After 1991, an unauthorized transfer of community personal property may be set aside if made for less than fair and reasonable value [see Fam. Code § 1100(b)], as alleged in this form. Prior to 1992, such a transfer could be set aside if made without valuable consideration [see former Civ. Code § 5125(b)]. Thus, if the transfer at issue occurred before January 1, 1992, this form should be changed to state that the transfer was made without valuable consideration. For discussion of what constitutes valuable consideration, see § 122.51[6][c].

[5] Notice to Insurer

When the plaintiff seeks to recover his or her community share of the proceeds of a life insurance policy from the insurer, written notice of the plaintiff's claim must be given to the insurer prior to payment of the proceeds to the named beneficiary. Unless it receives written notice at its home office before payment, the insurer is fully discharged from all claims under the policy [Ins. Code § 10172]. When the proper notice is not given, the plaintiff may bring an action only against the designated beneficiary who received payment under the policy.

The first alternative version of Paragraph 8 of the complaint states the proper allegation when the insurance company has not made payment and plaintiff has given notice of his or her claim in the proceeds. When payment has been made and the insurer is not a party because the plaintiff failed to give notice before payment, counsel should allege the first sentence of the second alternative version of Paragraph 8. When payment has been made and the insurer is a party because plaintiff gave proper notice, counsel should allege both sentences in the second alternative version of Paragraph 8.

[6] Verification

Verification of this complaint is not required, but verification of the complaint requires the defendant to file a verified answer in a superior court action other than a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446] and precludes a general denial. [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion of the effect that verifying a complaint has on the answer, see Ch. 26, Answers .

[7] Cross References

For additional discussion and forms relating to actions against insurance companies to recover insurance benefits, see Ch. 308, Insurance .

[8] State Statutes

Interest as recoverable on damages certain, or capable of being made certain by calculation, from day right to recover is vested. Civ. Code § 3287(a)

Payment or refund under employee benefit plan as fully discharging plan sponsor, administrator, trustee, or insurance company unless written notice of claim is received before payment. Fam. Code § 755

[9] Decisions

Designation or change of beneficiary by insured spouse under life insurance policy purchased with community funds as voidable by excluded spouse if the designation or change is made without valuable consideration, unless excluded spouse consents in writing; surviving spouse as entitled to maintain action for his or her community share of proceeds of policy. Tyre v. Aetna Life Ins. Co. (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 399, 404, 6 Cal. Rptr. 13, 353 P. 2d 725 ; Grimm v. Grimm (1945) 26 Cal. 2d 173, 175, 157 P. 2d 841 (both decided prior to legislation changing term "valuable consideration" to "fair and reasonable value" in predecessor to Fam. Code § 1100(b))

§ 123.10 Governing Law

Pleadings in civil actions generally are governed by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 420-475. Complaints and cross complaints are specifically governed by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 425.10-429.40.

General rules of pleading are set forth in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 452-465, and verification is governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 446. Signatures on pleadings, and the certification of pleadings by presenting them to court are governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7, which is patterned on Fed. R. Civ. P. 11 [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(i) (application of Section 128.7 to actions filed on or after January 1, 1995); see also Code of Civ. Proc. § 128.5 (applicable to actions filed before 1995)].

The form and format of papers filed in California courts are governed by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.100 et seq. The requirement that actions must be prosecuted in the name of the real party in interest is set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 367, and exceptions in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 369 and 1368.3.

Objections to pleadings, denials, and defenses are governed by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10-432.10.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

12-123 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 123.11

§ 123.11 Definitions

[1] Pleadings in General

Pleadings are the formal allegations by the parties of their respective claims and defenses, for the judgment of the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 420]. Complaints and cross complaints are two of the four permissible pleadings in civil actions [see Code Civ. Proc. § 422.10]. They are the only pleadings by which a party to a civil action (Part Two of the Code of Civil Procedure, Code Civ. Proc. § 307 et seq.) may seek affirmative relief [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 425.10, 431.30(c)]. In a civil action, the party complaining is known as the plaintiff and the adverse party is known as the defendant [Code Civ. Proc. § 308].

[2] Papers

The word "papers" as defined in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.3(2) includes all documents, except exhibits or copies of documents, that are offered for filing in any case; but it does not include Judicial Council and local court forms, records on appeal in limited civil cases, or briefs filed in the appellate divisions.

[3] Complaint, Cross Complaint, Related Cause of Action

As used in the provisions dealing with compulsory cross complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 426.30-426.60], "complaint" means a complaint or cross complaint, "plaintiff" means a person who files a complaint or cross complaint, and "related cause of action" means a cause of action that arises out of the same transaction, occurrence, or series of transactions or occurrences as the cause of action that the plaintiff alleges in his or her complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 426.10].

[4] Third-Party Plaintiff and Defendant

As used in Code Civ. Proc. § 428.70 (rights of third parties to actions), the term "third-party plaintiff" means a person against whom a cause of action has been asserted in a complaint or cross complaint who claims the right to recover all or part of any amounts for which he or she may be held liable on such cause of action from a third person and who files a cross complaint stating such claim as a cause of action against the third person [Code Civ. Proc. § 428.70(a)(1)].

The term "third-party defendant" means the person who is alleged in a cross complaint filed by a third-party plaintiff to be liable to the third-party plaintiff if the third-party plaintiff is held liable on the claim against him or her [Code Civ. Proc. § 428.70(a)(2)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

12-123 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 123.12

§ 123.12 Function and Purpose of Complaint and Cross Complaint

A civil action is commenced by filing a complaint with the court [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 350, 411.10, 411.20]. Its function and purpose is to present and define the issues, to form the foundation of and to limit the proof to be submitted, and to advise the court and the adverse party as to what is relied on as a cause of action [Roth v. Cottrell (1952) 112 Cal. App. 2d 621, 624, 246 P.2d 958] . In addition, because a civil action is commenced by filing a complaint, it is critical to consideration of the applicable statutes of limitations [see Code Civ. Proc. § 312; see generally Ch. 345, Limitation of Actions]. On the other hand, the fundamental purpose of the cross complaint is to have a complete determination of the controversy among the parties in one action, thus avoiding a circuity of action [White Lighting Co. v. Wolfson (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 336, 351 n.10, 66 Cal. Rptr. 697, 438 P.2d 345 ; Bewley v. Riggs (1968) 262 Cal. App. 2d 188, 192, 68 Cal. Rptr. 520 ; for discussion of cross complaints, see § 123.29].

Chapter 123 COMPLAINTS AND CROSS COMPLAINTS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

12-123 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 123.13

§ 123.13 Causes of Action and Counts Distinguished

[1] Confusion of Terms

Confusion as to the meaning of the terms "causes of action" and "counts" exists in California because the former phrase is often used to mean counts as well as to mean what it says [Eichler Homes of San Mateo, Inc. v. Superior Court (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 845, 846, 13 Cal. Rptr. 194, 361 P.2d 914] .

[2] Cause of Action Defined

A cause of action consists of the primary right possessed by plaintiff, the corresponding primary duty devolving on the defendant, and the wrong done by the defendant [Jenkins v. Pope (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 1292, 1299, 1299 n.2, 266 Cal. Rptr. 557] . Under the "primary right" theory of pleading followed in California, a cause of action is based on the injury suffered by the plaintiff, regardless of the particular legal theory or theories on which plaintiff seeks redress. Under this theory, even if the plaintiff has various forms of relief or theories of relief available, violation of a single primary right gives rise to only one cause of action. For example, a complaint alleging fraud and negligent misrepresentation involves one primary right because the harm to the plaintiff is the same whether the alleged misrepresentations were made intentionally or negligently [Jenkins v. Pope (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 1292, 1299, 1299 n.3, 266 Cal. Rptr. 557] .

If more than one primary right has been invaded and the theory of liability of each is different, the complaint, will normally set forth multiple causes of action, in which case each must be separately numbered [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.112(1)]. If several causes of action arise out of a single happening or event or series of events and the theory of liability for each is the same (for example, negligence), the causes of action are normally combined and stated as a single cause of action seeking recovery of damages for invasion of each of the primary rights pleaded. A common illustration is an automobile accident in which the plaintiff suffers personal injury and property damage, two separate primary rights.

Whether a complaint in fact asserts one or more causes of action for pleading purposes depends on whether it alleges invasion of one or more primary rights. The most salient characteristic of a primary right is that it is indivisible: the violation of a single primary right gives rise to but a single cause of action [Hindin v. Rust (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 1247, 1257, 13 Cal. Rptr. 3d 668 , relying on Crowley v. Katleman (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 666, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 386, 881 P.2d 1083] .

The manner in which a plaintiff elects to organize his/her claims within the body of the complaint is irrelevant to determining the number of causes of action alleged under the primary right theory. A complaint that states several purported causes of action which allege an invasion of the same primary right, actually states only one cause of action; alternatively, a complaint that alleges that the defendant's single wrongful act invaded two different primary rights has stated two causes of action, even if the two invasions are pleaded in a single count of the complaint [Hindin v. Rust (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 1247, 1258, 13 Cal. Rptr. 3d 668 , relying on Skrbina v. Fleming Companies (1996) 45 Cal. App. 4th 1353, 53 Cal. Rptr. 2d 481] .

Mislabeling a cause of action is not a fatal defect [Gagne v. Bertran (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 481, 487, 275 P.2d 15] .

[3] Count Defined

A cause of action (invasion of one primary right) may give rise to two or more legal theories on which liability can be predicated. For example, in a case arising out of injuries sustained from a defective product, liability might be predicated on the theory of negligence, strict liability in tort, breach of warranty, or on all or any combination of these or other theories. Separate counts are merely the separate theories of liability based on the same cause of action [Eichler Homes of San Mateo, Inc. v. Superior Court (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 845, 846-847, 13 Cal. Rptr. 194, 361 P.2d 914] , even if each count must allege different facts to establish plaintiff's right to the remedy created by the theory on which the count is based [see Zumbrun v. University of Southern California (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 1, 9, 101 Cal. Rptr. 499] .

The complaint in such a case will state a separate "count" for each separate legal theory relied on. Each count must state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action if it is to withstand a general demurrer [see Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(e); Warren v. Atchison, T. & S.F. Ry. Co. (1971) 19 Cal. App. 3d 24, 41, 96 Cal. Rptr. 317] . If separate counts are stated, each must be separately numbered [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.112(1)]. Stating a separate count for each separate theory of liability, rather than combining them in a single count or cause of action, is done to avoid confusion in the framing of the issues to be tried and to avoid the rule against inconsistent pleading in the same cause of action [see Steiner v. Rowley (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 713, 715-716, 718-719, 221 P.2d 9 ; Zumbrun v. University of Southern California (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 1, 9, 101 Cal. Rptr. 499 (in interests of justice to both sides and of orderly administration of justice, plaintiff should set forth separate theories in separate counts to facilitate the adjudication of their validity)]. But stating a cause of action in separate counts does not make each count a separate cause of action where only one primary right has been invaded [see Peiser v. Mettler (1958) 50 Cal. 2d 594, 604-605, 328 P.2d 953] .

[4] Liberal Construction

In the construction of a pleading for the purpose of determining its effect, its allegations must be liberally construed with a view to substantial justice to the parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 452; Smith v. Kern County Land Co. (1958) 51 Cal. 2d 205, 206, 331 P.2d 645] . The policy of the law in this respect is to permit cases to be tried on their merits rather than disposed of on technicalities. An action cannot be defeated merely because of a mistaken label or a confusion of legal theories; if the complaint states a cause of action on any theory, the plaintiff is entitled to introduce evidence thereon [Porten v. University of San Francisco (1976) 64 Cal. App. 3d 825, 833, 134 Cal. Rptr. 839] .

Chapter 123 COMPLAINTS AND CROSS COMPLAINTS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

12-123 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 123.14

§ 123.14 Format

[1] Filing Requirements

[a] California Rules of Court

The format requirements for papers filed in court are set forth in the California Rules of Court. The word "papers" as used in the rules on format include complaints and cross complaints [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.100].

The clerk of the court is not permitted to accept for filing or file any papers that do not comply with Tit. 2, Div.2, Ch. 1 of the Cal. Rules of Ct., [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.118(a)]. However, for good cause shown, the court may permit the filing of papers that do not comply with Tit. 2, Div.2, Ch. 1 of the Cal. Rules of Ct., [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.118(c)]. Additionally, a clerk cannot reject a paper for filing solely on the ground that it is handwritten or handprinted or that the handwriting or handprinting is in a color other than blue-black or black [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.118(a)], or solely on the ground that it does not contain an attorney's or a party's fax number or e-mail address on the first page [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.118(b)].

Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.110(c) requires that a cross complaint against a party who has appeared in the action be accompanied by proof of service of the cross complaint at the time it is filed; if the cross complaint adds new parties, the cross complaint must be served on all parties and proofs of service on the new parties must be filed within thirty days of the filing of the cross-complaint.

[b] Effect of Local Rules

A local superior court may not condition the filing of a complaint on local rule requirements. So long as a complaint complies with state requirements, the clerk has a ministerial duty to file. In legal effect, a complaint is "filed" when it is presented to the clerk for filing in the form required by state law, i.e., in a form that complies with Tit. 2, Div.2, Ch. 1 of the Cal. Rules of Ct. Thus, it has been held that a clerk lacks authority to enforce a local rule requiring a Certificate of Assignment by rejecting papers that comply with the Cal. Rules of Ct., but fails to include such a certificate [Carlson v. Department of Fish & Game (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 1268, 1270-1276, 1281, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 601 (plaintiff's complaint effectively filed when first presented to clerk and thus statute of limitations did not elapse)]. After a paper is filed, the court may use its power to impose sanctions (Code Civ. Proc. § 575.2, Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.30, and other authorization) to redress local rule violations [Carlson v. Department of Fish & Game (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 1268, 1281-1282, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 601] .

[2] Paper and Print

Complaints and cross complaints must be presented on opaque, unglazed paper, white or unbleached, of standard quality not less than 20-pound weight, 81/2 by 11 inches in size [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.103]. Recycled paper must be used for all original papers filed with the court and all copies of papers, documents, and exhibits filed with the court or served on other parties. The attorney, party, or other person filing or serving a document certifies, by the act of filing or service, that the document was produced on paper purchased as recycled [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.101(b)].

All papers must be typewritten or printed or prepared by a photocopying or other duplication process that will produce clear and permanent copies equally legible to printing. The type cannot be smaller than 12 points. The type face must be essentially equivalent to Courier, Times Roman, or Helvetica. The color of print must be blue-black or black [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.106].

[3] Line Spacing and Numbering

Only one side of the paper may be used, and the lines on each page are one and one half spaced or double spaced and numbered consecutively. Descriptions of real property may be single spaced. Footnotes, quotations, and printed forms of corporate surety bonds and undertakings may be single spaced and have unnumbered lines if they comply generally with the space requirements of Rule 2.111 [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.108(3)].

Each page must be numbered consecutively at the bottom. Each page must consist entirely of original pages without riders and must be firmly bound together at the top. Exhibits may be fastened to pages of the specified size and, if prepared by a machine copying process, must be equal to typewritten material in legibility and permanency of image. Each paper presented for filing must contain two prepunched normal size holes, centerd 21/2 inches apart and 5/8 inch from the top of the paper [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.115].

Except for exhibits, each paper filed with the court must have a footer in the bottom margin of each page, placed below the page number and divided from the rest of the document by a printed line. The footer must contain the title of the paper or some clear and concise abbreviation in at least 10-point type [Cal. Rules Ct., Rule 2.110(a)]. One example given in the rules is simply "Complaint" [see Cal. Rules Ct., Rule 2.110(b)].

The first page of complaints and cross complaints are in the following form:

> (1) In the space commencing 1 inch from the top of the page with line 1, to the left of the center of the page, the name, office address or, if none, residence address, telephone number, fax number and e-mail address, if available, and State Bar membership number, either of the attorney for the party in whose behalf the paper is presented or of the party if he or she is appearing in person; inclusion of a fax number or e-mail address does not constitute consent to service by fax or e-mail unless otherwise provided by law [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(1)].

(3) On or below 31/3 inches from the top of the paper, at line 8, the title of the court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(3); see Code Civ. Proc. § 422.30(a); Ex parte Fil Ki (1889) 79 Cal. 584, 586-587, 21 P. 974 (misnaming court in complaint as nonfatal defect)].

(5) To the right of and opposite the title, the number of the case (in a complaint, a blank line should be used since the case number is stamped or written in by the court clerk; in a cross complaint, the number of the case is typed in [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(5)]).

(6) Below the number of the case, the nature of the paper and the character of the action or proceeding [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(6)].

(7) Below the nature of the paper or the character of the action or proceeding, the name of the judge and department, if any, to which the case is assigned [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(7)].

(8) In a limited civil case, immediately below the character of the action or proceeding, either "Amount demanded exceeds $10,000" or "Amount demanded does not exceed $10,000" [Gov. Code § 70613(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(9)], and in a limited civil case, it must specify "Limited Civil Case" as required by Code Civ. Proc. § 422.30(b) [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(10)].

(9) If a case is reclassified by an amended complaint, cross-complaint, amended cross-complaint, or other pleading under Code Civ. Proc. § 403.020 or 403.030, the caption must indicate that the action or proceeding is reclassified by this pleading [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(11)]. The caption or title must state that the case is a limited civil case reclassified as an unlimited civil case, or an unlimited civil case reclassified as a limited civil case, or other words to that effect [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(11)].

A party or attorney whose address changes while an action is pending must serve on all parties and file written notice of the change of address [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.200].

[6] Additions, Deletions, Interlineations, and Copies

Any additions, deletions, or interlineations must be initialed by the clerk or judge at the time of filing [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.116]. All copies served must conform to the original filed, including the numbering of lines, pagination, additions, deletions, and interlineations [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.117].

[7] Cases Governed by Trial Court Delay Reduction Programs

Superior courts in all California counties are required to implement trial court delay reduction programs for limited civil cases [Gov. Code §§ 68605.5, 68620].

Counties may require a plaintiff to file additional documents with the complaint [see Hartford Acc. & Indem. Co. v. Gonzalez (1994) 31 Cal. App. 4th 51, 56, 36 Cal. Rptr. 2d 769 (upholding local rule in Ventura County requiring case information sheet to be filed with complaint)].

For further coverage of the act and local delay reduction rules, see Ch. 552, Trial Court Delay Reduction .

[8] Numbering Causes of Action, Counts, and Paragraphs

Each separately stated cause of action or count must be separately numbered[Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.112(1); for further discussion, see § 123.13]. Each separate cause of action in a pleading must be specifically identified with all of the following information [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.112]:

- Its number (e.g., "First Cause of Action").
- Its nature (e.g., "for Fraud").
- The party asserting it, if more than one party is represented in the pleading (e.g., "by Plaintiff Jones").
- The party or parties to whom it is directed (e.g., "against Defendant Smith").

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

§ 123.15 Incorporation by Reference

If the complaint sets up more than one cause of action or count, it is unnecessary for a party to repeat at length in each of succeeding counts the facts stated in preceding counts [Treweek v. Howard (1895) 105 Cal. 434, 441-442, 39 P. 20] . Allegations of a preceding count may be incorporated by reference into subsequent alleged counts [Clark v. Berlin Realty Co. (1917) 33 Cal. App. 50, 53, 164 P. 333] . Use of incorporation by reference will not be subject to serious objection so long as the reference is definite and certain [Treweek v. Howard (1895) 105 Cal. 434, 442, 39 P. 20] . Nevertheless, each count must be complete in itself and must contain all the facts necessary to constitute a cause of action; its defects cannot be supplied from other statements unless those statements are expressly referred to and adopted as a part of it [Priola v. Paulino (1977) 72 Cal. App. 3d 380, 383, 140 Cal. Rptr. 186] .

When incorporating into a count allegations from other counts, the pleader should be cautious not to incorporate conflicting facts and thereby render the pleading uncertain and subject to demurrer [see Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(f)].

Courts differ over the desirability of a "chain letter" or cumulative type of pleading in which the plaintiff incorporates by reference entire causes of action. The Second District Court of Appeal, for example, has stated that this type of pleading should be avoided as it tends to cause ambiguity and creates redundancy [Kelly v. General Telephone Co. (1982) 136 Cal. App. 3d 278, 285, 186 Cal. Rptr. 184] . The Fourth District Court of Appeal, on the other hand, has stated that a civil plaintiff may for the sake of convenience incorporate by reference previous portions of his or her pleading for informational purposes only [Cal-West Nat. Bank v. Superior Court (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 96, 101, 229 Cal. Rptr. 431] .

A complaint may also incorporate by reference a document that is attached as an exhibit, in order to supply material facts to comprise a cause of action. This practice is consistent with the obligation of the courts to construe pleadings liberally with a view to attaining substantial justice among the parties [Del Mar Beach Club Owners Assn. v. Imperial Contracting Co. (1981) 123 Cal. App. 3d 898, 908, 176 Cal. Rptr. 886 ; see also Ludgate Ins. Co. v. Lockheed Martin Corp. (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 592, 609, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 277 (trial court abused discretion in not allowing cross complainant to amend its fifth amended cross complaint to add words "incorporated by reference")].

A willful misconduct claim under Code Civ. Proc. § 337.15(f) may be made in a cross-complaint by way of incorporating by reference allegations contained in the complaint [Pine Terrace Apartments, LP v. Windscape, LLC (2009) 170 Cal. App. 4th 1, 4, 87 Cal. Rptr. 3d 630].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

12-123 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 123.18

§ 123.18 Pleading Facts

[1] Language

A complaint or cross complaint must contain a statement of the facts constituting the cause of action in ordinary and concise language [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(a)(1)]. It is not to be tested for literary excellence [Dillon v. Haskell (1947) 78 Cal. App. 2d 814, 816, 178 P.2d 462] . The nature of a cause of action is determined by the facts pleaded in it and not by the title ascribed to it by the pleader [see Nymark v. Heart Fed. Savings & Loan Assn. (1991) 231 Cal. App. 3d 1089, 1093 n.2, 283 Cal. Rptr. 53 ; Luckey v. Superior Court (1930) 209 Cal. 360, 366, 287 P. 450] .

[2] Ultimate Facts

Ultimate facts, rather than evidentiary facts or conclusions of law, must be alleged [Krug v. Meeham (1952) 109 Cal. App. 2d 274, 277, 240 P.2d 732 ; see also Careau & Co. v. Security Pacific Business Credit, Inc. (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 1371, 1390, 272 Cal. Rptr. 387 (improper and insufficient simply to plead evidence by which plaintiff hopes to prove ultimate facts); Lopez v. City of San Diego (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 678 . 681, 235 Cal. Rptr. 583 (function of complaint is to plead facts, not legal conclusions)]. An allegation of ultimate fact usually involves one or more conclusions of fact [In re Estate of Bixler (1924) 194 Cal. 585, 589, 229 P. 704] . Distinguishing ultimate facts from evidentiary facts and conclusions of law is often difficult and involves a matter of degree [Burks v. Poppy Construction Co. (1962) 57 Cal. 2d 463, 473, 20 Cal. Rptr. 609, 370 P.2d 313] .

Ultimate facts have been said to be logical conclusions deduced from certain primary facts evidentiary in character. If, from evidentiary facts, the allegations can be reached by that process of natural reasoning adopted in the investigation of truth, they are ultimate facts [Rhode v. Bartholomew (1949) 94 Cal. App. 2d 272, 279, 210 P.2d 768] .

As indicated above, the concept of ultimate facts is easier to state than to apply practically. In the practical realm, the pleader should consider a balance between being so specific that the proof of very particular facts may be difficult and being so general that the complaint may be demurrable for failure to state a cause of action or for uncertainty. Nevertheless, the complaint is not subject to a demurrer without leave to amend when it can be amended to state a cause of action.

However, a demurrer sustained with leave to amend requires an amendment which results in delay and additional work and may result in some embarrassment to the attorney or client, or both, and may give a psychological advantage to the defendant [see Youngman v. Nevada Irrigation Dist. (1969) 70 Cal. 2d 240, 245, 74 Cal. Rptr. 398, 449 P.2d 462 ; Smith v. Kern County Land Co. (1958) 51 Cal. 2d 205, 206, 331 P.2d 645 (liberal construction of complaints)].

In determining whether a complaint alleges facts sufficient to state a cause of action, a court of appeal will treat a demurrer as admitting all material facts properly pleaded, but not contentions, deductions, or conclusions of fact or law. A court of appeal also considers matters of which the court may or must take judicial notice [Dubin v. Robert Newhall Chesebrough Trust (2002) 96 Cal. App. 4th 465, 471-472, 116 Cal. Rptr. 2d 872] .

[3] Examples

Courts have permitted allegations that obviously included conclusions of law and have termed them ultimate facts or conclusions of fact, such as, one is the "owner" of property, an act was "negligently" done, or an employee was "acting within the scope of his or her employment" [see Burks v. Poppy Construction Co. (1962) 57 Cal. 2d 463, 473-474, 20 Cal. Rptr. 609, 370 P.2d 313] . The simple allegation that "the defendant executed a promissory note" involves several conclusions of fact based on the evidentiary facts of the signing of the instrument, the intent with which that act was performed, the manual or constructive delivery of the instrument, and the intent with which that act was performed. The allegation that "the defendant by his attorney in fact thereunto duly authorized executed a promissory note" thus involves conclusions of both fact and law. Yet, under the rules of pleading, it is regarded as an allegation of ultimate fact [Estate of Bixler (1924) 194 Cal. 585, 589, 229 P. 704] . All that is required of a plaintiff, as a matter of pleading, is that the complaint set forth the essential facts of the case with reasonable precision and with sufficient particularity to acquaint the defendant with the nature, source, and extent of the cause of action [Rannard v. Lockheed Aircraft Corp. (1945) 26 Cal. 2d 149, 156-157, 157 P.2d 1 (noting that defendant may be assumed to possess at least equal, if not superior, knowledge in a negligence action)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

12-123 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 123.19

§ 123.19 Pleading Particular Matters

[1] Description of Land

In an action for the recovery of real property, it must be described in the complaint with such certainty as to enable an officer, on execution, to identify it [Code Civ. Proc. § 455].

[2] Judgment or Court Determination

In pleading a judgment or other determination of a court, officer, or board, it is not necessary to state the facts conferring jurisdiction, but the judgment or determination may be stated to have been duly given or made and to have become final [Code Civ. Proc. § 456].

[3] Performance of Conditions

In pleading the performance of conditions precedent in a contract, it is not necessary to state the facts showing the performance, but it may be stated generally that the party duly performed all the conditions on his or her part [Code Civ. Proc. § 457].

[4] Statute or Ordinance

In pleading a private statute or an ordinance of a county or municipal corporation, or a right derived therefrom, it is sufficient to refer to the statute or ordinance by its title and the day of its passage. If an action is based on a statute, it is ordinarily sufficient to frame the pleading in the language of the statute [Quinn v. Mathiassen (1935) 4 Cal. 2d 329, 332, 49 P.2d 284] . For discussion and forms relating to pleading statutes and ordinance, see Ch. 531, Statutes and Ordinances .

In pleading the performance of conditions precedent under a statute or an ordinance, or of a right dervied therefrom, it is not necessary to state the facts showing the performance, but if may be stated generally that the party duly performed all the conditions on his or her part required thereby [Code Civ. Proc. § 459].

[5] Privacy Protections: Redacting Social Security Numbers and Financial Account Numbers and Use of Confidential Reference List

Parties or their attorneys must not include, or must redact, certain identifiers from documents or records filed with the court do not apply to documents or records that by court order or operation of law are filed in their entirety either confidentially or under seal [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1.20(b)(1)]. To protect personal privacy and other legitimate interests, parties and their attorneys must not include, or must redact where inclusion is necessary, the following identifiers from all pleadings and other papers filed in the court's public file, whether filed in paper or electronic form, unless otherwise provided by law or ordered by the court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1.20(b)(2)]:

- Social security numbers. If an individual's social security number is required in a pleading or other paper filed in the public file, only the last four digits of that number may be used.

- Financial account numbers. If financial account numbers are required in a pleading or other paper filed in the public file, only the last four digits of these numbers may be used.

The responsibility for excluding or redacting identifiers identified above from all documents filed with the court rests solely with the parties and their attorneys. The court clerk will not review each pleading or other paper for compliance with this provision [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1.20(b)(3)].

If the court orders on a showing of good cause, a party filing a document containing identifiers listed above may file, along with the redacted document that will be placed in the public file, a reference list. The reference list is confidential. For that purpose, a party filing a confidential reference list must use Judicial Council Form MC-120, Confidential Reference List of Identifiers. The confidential list must identify each item of redacted information and specify an appropriate reference that uniquely corresponds to each item of redacted information listed. All references in the case to the redacted identifiers included in the confidential reference list will be understood to refer to the corresponding complete identifier. A party may amend its reference list as of right [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1.20(b)(4)].

§ 123.20 Information and Belief

Allegations as to matters that are peculiarly within the knowledge of the opposite party and that the pleader can learn only from statements made by him or her to others may properly be based on information and belief. One may not, however, allege in this manner facts presumably within his or her knowledge [Hall v. James (1926) 79 Cal. App. 433, 435-436, 249 P. 876] , such as facts that are a matter of public record [People v. Birch Securities Co. (1948) 86 Cal. App. 2d 703, 708, 196 P.2d 143] .

Care must be taken in pleading on information and belief. Operative January 1, 1995, the pleader is certifying to the court that there is evidentiary support for the allegations and other factual contentions made in the complaint or, if specifically so identified, that the allegations and other factual contentions are likely to have evidentiary support after a reasonable opportunity for further investigation or discovery [Code Civ. Proc § 128.7(b)(3); see Code Civ. Proc § 128.7(i)]. For discussion of this and other certifications made by presenting a complaint to the court, see § 123.23[2], below. For forms of allegations, see §§ 123.62 and 123.63.

Chapter 123 COMPLAINTS AND CROSS COMPLAINTS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

12-123 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 123.21

§ 123.21 Body of Complaint

[1] Format and Content

The body of the complaint cannot be described specifically without reference to particular parties and particular causes of action. Generally, however, although not required by statute or court rule, a complaint or cross complaint begins with an introduction, such as "Plaintiff alleges:" or "Cross complainant alleges:" [for forms of introductions, see Ch. 108, Captions and Introductions].

Although separate causes of action or counts need not be separately stated, if the complaint or cross complaint sets forth two or more separately stated causes of action or counts, each must be separately numbered [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.112(1)].

[2] Identification of Plaintiff

The first paragraphs usually are an identification of the parties. These allegations involve the status or capacity of the parties. An action must be prosecuted in the name of the real party in interest [Code Civ. Proc. § 367], but, if the plaintiff is an individual, usually no identifying statement is used. An individual party may sue or be sued in any name in which he or she is known and recognized, even if that is an assumed name [see Emery v. Kipp (1908) 154 Cal. 83, 84, 97 P. 17 ; Cabrera v. McMullen (1988)204 Cal. App. 3d 1, 3-4, 251 Cal. Rptr. 34 (plaintiff using assumed name)]. If the plaintiff is other than an individual, such as, a corporation, it is customary to identify it as such and, if the plaintiff is doing business under a fictitious name and brings the action in that name, an allegation to that effect and showing compliance with publication of a fictitious name statement should be included [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17913, 17918]. If the status or capacity of the plaintiff affects the action, an allegation of plaintiff's status or capacity must be included [see, e.g., Bus. & Prof. Code § 7031(a) (relating to building contractor's licenses)].

[3] Identification of Defendant

[a] To Obtain Admission

An allegation of the status, capacity, and residence of the defendant is usually included to obtain an admission by way of answer as to these items and to allege venue [see Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a) (venue in county of defendant's residence)].

[b] Required in Certain Consumer and Unlawful Detainer Litigation

Moreover, in the instances listed below, the plaintiff must state facts in the complaint, verified by his or her oath or the oath of his or her attorney, showing that the action or proceeding has been commenced in the proper court for trial and showing that the action or proceeding is subject to the provisions of one of the laws listed below [Code Civ. Proc. § 396a]. Alternatively, those facts may be stated by an affidavit (or declaration under penalty of perjury (Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5)) of the plaintiff or of his or her attorney filed with the complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 396a].

This requirement applies to [Civ. Code §§ 1812.10, 2984.4; Code Civ. Proc. § 396a]:

- Any case subject to the Unruh Retail Installment Sales Act (Civ. Code § 1801 et seq.);
- Any case subject to the Rees-Levering Motor Vehicle Sales and Finance Act (Civ. Code § 2981 et seq.);
- Any limited civil case subject to Code Civ. Proc. § 395(b), which concerns:
  - Actions arising from an offer or provision of goods, services, loans, or extensions of credit intended primarily for personal, family, or household use; or
  - Actions arising from a transaction consummated as a proximate result of either an unsolicited telephone call made by a seller engaged in the business of consummating transactions of that kind or a telephone call or electronic transmission made by the buyer or lessee in response to a solicitation by the seller;
- Any limited civil case that is a proceeding for unlawful detainer as defined in Code Civ. Proc. § 1161.

[4] Designating Defendant by Fictitious Name DOE Pleading

When the plainfiff is genuinely ignorant of the name of a defendant [see Nissan v. Barton (1970) 4 Cal. App. 3d 76, 79-81, 84 Cal. Rptr. 36] or lacks knowledge of acts giving him or her a cause of action against that person [Breceda v. Gamsby (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 167, 174, 72 Cal. Rptr. 832 ; see Garrett v. Crown Coach Corp. (1968) 259 Cal. App. 2d 647, 650, 66 Cal. Rptr. 590] , he or she must state that fact in the complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 474]. Such defendant may be designated in any pleading by any name, and, when his or her true name is discovered, the pleading must be amended accordingly [Code Civ. Proc. § 474]. There is, however, no requirement under Code Civ. Proc. § 474 that a plaintiff exercise reasonable diligence in discovering the true identity of fictitiously named defendants or the facts giving rise to a cause of action against such persons [Joslin v. H.A.S. Ins. Brokerage (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 369, 376, 228 Cal. Rptr. 878] .

Fictitiously named defendants are usually designated as DOE I, DOE II, etc., or DOES 1 through 10. An allegation of such defendants should be used whenever there is a possibility that another defendant may be liable since the allegation will toll the statute of limitations against such defendant [see Bernson v. Browning-Ferris Indus. (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 926, 933, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 440, 873 P.2d 613 ; Austin v. Massachusetts Bonding & Insurance Co. (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 596, 602, 15 Cal. Rptr. 817, 364 P.2d 681] . In addition to alleging that the plaintiff does not know the name and capacity of such defendant, a charging allegation should be included. For example, an amendment of a personal injury complaint based on negligence was allowed to allege a cause of action against a different defendant based on products liability where the original complaint alleged that each fictitious defendant was responsible in some manner for the events and happenings referred to, and caused injuries and damages proximately brought to the plaintiff as alleged further in the complaint [Smeltzley v. Nicholson Mfg. Co. (1977) 18 Cal. 3d 932, 940, 136 Cal. Rptr. 269, 559 P.2d 624] .

Even though the plaintiff knows of the existence of the defendant sued by a fictitious name, and even though the plaintiff knows the defendant's actual identity (that is, his/her name), the plaintiff is "ignorant " within the meaning of the statute if unaware of that person's connection with the case or with the injuries [General Motors Corp. v. Superior Court (1996) 48 Cal. App. 4th 580, 589, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 871 ; Wallis v. Southern Pac. Transp. Co. (1976) 61 Cal. App. 3d 782, 786, 132 Cal. Rptr. 631] . Therefore, an original complaint against a Doe defendant allows a plaintiff to allege a new cause of action against a new, previously known defendant, if the plaintiff was actually ignorant of the cause of action when the original complaint was filed.

For discussion and forms of allegations relating to fictitious defendants, see Ch. 20, Allegations Commonly Used .

Chapter 123 COMPLAINTS AND CROSS COMPLAINTS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

12-123 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 123.22

§ 123.22 Damages and Prayer

A complaint or cross complaint must contain a demand for judgment for the relief to which the pleader claims he or she is entitled and, if the recovery of money or damages is demanded, the amount demanded must be stated with two exceptions [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(a)(2)].

The first exception is that no claim for punitive damages is to state an amount or amounts [Civ. Code § 3295(e); for discussion and forms of the Code Civ. Proc. § 325.115 procedure for preserving the right to seek punitive damages pursuant on a default judgment, see Ch. 177, Damages].

The second is that an action brought to recover actual or punitive damages for personal injury or wrongful death is not to state the amount demanded. However, if the complaint involves a limited civil case, the caption must comply with Code Civ. Proc § 422.30 (requiring statement of "limited civil case" in caption), and with Gov. Code § 70613(b) (requirement that first page of the first paper state whether the amount demanded exceeds or does not exceed $10,000) [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b); for discussion and forms regarding the Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11 procedure for a statement of damages when the amount is not to be stated in the complaint, see Ch. 177, Damages].

The basic requirement of a demand for judgment for the relief claimed is the basis of the requirement that a complaint include a prayer.

It has nevertheless been said that the prayer is not essential in a contested case, that it may be corrected or supplied by amendment, and that recovery may be allowed even in the absence of a prayer [Estate of Kalal (1981) 121 Cal. App. 3d 841, 845 fn.3, 175 Cal. Rptr. 582] .

The better practice, however, is to include a prayer. A prayer, for example, may be necessary for determining which court has subject matter jurisdiction when jurisdiction depends on the nature of the controversy (e.g., whether the action is at law or in equity) or the amount in controversy [see, e.g., Gardiner v. Royer (1914) 167 Cal. 238, 244, 139 P. 75] . Moreover, if there is no answer, the relief granted to the plaintiff cannot exceed that which he or she has demanded in the complaint, the Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11 statement of damages, or the Code Civ. Proc. § 425.115(b) statement preserving the right to punitive damages, although in any other case the court may grant plaintiff any relief consistent with the case made by the complaint and embraced within the issue [Code Civ. Proc. § 580]. Thus, the prayer will define the scope of a default judgment [see Code Civ. Proc. § 585(a), (b); for discussion of the specificity with which damages must be alleged to support a default judgment, see Ch. 205, Defaults and Default Judgments].

The complaint must state the specific dollar amount sought only when a default judgment is to be entered. In any other case, the court may grant the plaintiff any relief consistent with the case made by the complaint and embraced within the issue. Hence, the absence of a specific amount from the complaint is not necessarily fatal as long as the pleaded facts entitle the plaintiff to relief [Furia v. Helm (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 945, 957, 4 Cal. Rptr. 3d 357] .

The prayer usually concludes with a demand for costs of suit and for such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

For discussion and forms relating to the allegation of damages and to prayers for relief, see Ch. 177, Damages , and Ch. 420, Prayers .

Chapter 123 COMPLAINTS AND CROSS COMPLAINTS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

12-123 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 123.23

§ 123.23 Signature

[1] Requirement

Beginning January 1, 1995, every pleading must be signed by at least one attorney of record in the attorney's individual name. If, however, a party is not represented by an attorney, the party must sign the papers. Each paper must state the signer's address and telephone number, if any [Code Civ. Proc § 128.7(a)]. An unsigned paper must be stricken unless the omission of the signature is corrected promptly after being called to the attorney's or party's attention [Code Civ. Proc § 128.7(a)].

Actions or proceedings filed on or after January 1, 1995 are subject to sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7 [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(i)].

Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7 is patterned on Fed. R. Civ. P. 11, and the signature links to the grounds for imposing sanctions, as discussed under § 123.23[2][a], below. For discussion of Rule 11, see Moore's Federal Practice, Ch. 11 (3d ed. Matthew Bender).

A corporation's failure to have an attorney sign the complaint on behalf of the corporation is a defect that may be corrected, on such terms as are just in the sound discretion of the court [CLD Construction v. City of San Ramon (2004) 120 Cal. App. 4th 1141, 1149, 16 Cal. Rptr. 3d 555] .

Where a complaint was signed by the party's father, instead of by the party or his or her attorney of record, the plaintiff's failure to comply with the subscription requirement did not constitute an incurable defect where the correction is promptly made and the court finds that the plaintiff actually assented to the filing of the action [Board of Trustees v. Superior Court (2007) 149 Cal. App. 4th 1154, 1167-1170, 1173, 57 Cal. Rptr. 3d 755] .

[2] Presentation of Complaint as Certification

[a] Four Conditions

An attorney or unrepresented party by presenting a complaint to the court certifies under Code Civ. Proc § 128.7(b) that to the best of the person's knowledge, information, and belief, formed after an inquiry reasonable under the circumstances, the complaint meets four conditions, discussed below.

A paper is presented to the court by any of the following actions [Code Civ. Proc § 128.7(b)]:

- Signing.
- Filing.
- Submitting.
- Later advocating.

For further discussion of sanctions under Section 128.7, see Ch. 510, Sanctions .

[b] Not Presented Primarily for Improper Purpose

The first condition is that the complaint is not being presented primarily for an improper purpose, such as to harass or to cause unnecessary delay or needless increase in litigation cost [Code Civ. Proc § 128.7(b)(1)].

[c] Legal Contentions Are Not Unwarranted

The second condition is that the claims, defenses, and other legal contentions set forth in the papers are warranted by existing law or by a nonfrivolous argument for the extension, modification, or reversal of existing law or the establishment of new law [Code Civ. Proc § 128.7(b)(2)].

[d] Evidentiary Support Exists or Likely to Exist After Reasonable Opportunity for Discovery

The third and fourth conditions deal with the evidence. The third condition is that there is evidentiary support for the allegations and other factual contentions or, if specifically so identified, the allegations and other factual contentions are likely to have evidentiary support after a reasonable opportunity for further investigation or discovery [Code Civ. Proc § 128.7(b)(3)].

The fourth condition, relevant to the answer and law and motion proceedings rather than to the complaint, is that the denials of factual contentions are warranted on the evidence, or if specifically so identified, are reasonably based on a lack of information or belief [Code Civ. Proc § 128.7(b)(4)].

[3] Reasonable Inquiry

Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7 does not define the "inquiry reasonable under the circumstances" that must be the basis of the certification [see [2], above]. The standard under Fed. R. Civ. P. 11, on which Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7 is patterned, is based on what was reasonable to believe at the time the pleading was submitted. Thus, what constitutes a reasonable inquiry may depend on such factors as how much time for investigation was available to the signer, whether he or she had to rely on a client for information as to the facts underlying the pleading, motion, or other paper, whether the paper was based on a plausible view of the law, or whether he or she depended on forwarding counsel or another member of the bar [see Notes of Advisory Committee on Rules to 1983 Amendments to Rule 11].

This view comports with California cases which require the court to consider timing considerations, such as potential statute of limitations problems when considering imposing sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 [see Atchison, Topeka, and Santa Fe Ry. Co. v. Stockton Port Dist. (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 111, 115, 117, 189 Cal. Rptr. 208] .

[4] Sanctions for Violation of Certification

If the certification of the four conditions discussed above is false, sanctions may be imposed after an opportunity to withdraw or correct the challenged complaint, claim, or allegation [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(c)]. For more detailed discussion of sanctions under Section 128.7, see Ch. 510, Sanctions .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

12-123 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 123.24

§ 123.24 Verification

[1] Defined

A verification is an affidavit, or declaration under penalty of perjury [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5], of the truth of the matters stated in the complaint and its object is to insure good faith in the averments or statements of the plaintiff [see Albertson v. Raboff (1960) 185 Cal. App. 2d 372, 388, 8 Cal. Rptr. 398] .

A verification by a party consists of an affidavit, or declaration under penalty of perjury, that the pleading is true, except as to the matters stated therein on information and belief, and as to those matters, that he or she believes it to be true. A pleading is ordinarily verified by a party, but in certain instances it may be verified by the attorney or a person having knowledge of the facts, and if it is made on behalf of a corporation or public agency it may be made by any officer thereof. If it is made by the attorney, or by a corporate or public agency officer, the verification must state that such person has read the pleading and that he or she is informed and believes the matters therein to be true and on that ground alleges that they are true [see Code Civ. Proc. § 446]. The attorney must sign the complaint even if the plaintiff verifies it [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(a); for discussion, see § 123.23, above].

[2] When Required

Except when otherwise provided by law, a complaint need not be verified or accompanied by an affidavit [Code Civ. Proc § 128.7(a); see Code Civ. Proc § 446 (verification requirements generally); see Quick v. Corsaro (1960) 180 Cal. App. 2d 831, 836, 4 Cal. Rptr. 674] . Even if the complaint is not verified, the signature acts as a certification, as discussed in § 123.23[2][a]. In addition, there are code provisions that require verification of complaints in specific actions [see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. § 1166, operative January 1, 2005 (complaints for forcible or unlawful detainer)]. When public entities or officers are plaintiffs, verification is not required but the answers to their complaints must be verified [see Code Civ. Proc. § 446].

[3] Using Verification When Not Required

When verification is not required, the plaintiff, in an unlimited civil case, may nevertheless consider verifying the complaint because verification of the complaint requires the defendant to file a verified answer, thereby precluding a general denial and requiring the defendant's denial of the allegations of the complaint to be made positively or according to the defendant's information and belief [see Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d); see also Ch. 26, Answers]. In addition, a verified complaint alleging evidentiary facts within the verifier's personal knowledge may serve as an evidentiary statement, such as, when plaintiff seeks a temporary restraining order [see Code Civ. Proc. § 527(a)] or is required to submit a counter affidavit opposing a motion to change venue or to quash service of summons [see Atkins, Kroll & Co. v. Broadway Lbr. Co. (1963) 222 Cal. App. 2d 646, 654, 35 Cal. Rptr. 385 ; see also Civ. Code §§ 1812.10, 2984.4; Code Civ. Proc. § 396a discussed under § 123.21, above].

In limited civil cases, however, the answer need not be verified even if the complaint or cross complaint is verified except in actions on claims assigned for collection [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 91, 92(b), 431.30(d)].

For further discussion and forms of verification, see Ch. 572, Verification .

§ 123.25 Notice of Related Case

When a party files a civil action with knowledge of a related action or proceeding pending in any state or federal court in California, he or she must file and serve a Notice of Related Case. This is a continuing duty that applies thereafter whenever the party may learn of a related action or proceeding [Cal. Rules Ct., Rule 3.300].

A pending civil case is related to another pending civil case, or to a civil case that was dismissed with or without prejudice, or to a civil case that was disposed of by judgment, if the cases [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.300(a)]:

- Involve the same parties and are based on the same or similar claims [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.300(a)(1)];

- Arise from the same or substantially identical transactions, incidents, or events requiring the determination of the same or substantially identical questions of law or facts [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.300(a)(2)];

- Involve claims against, title to, possession of, or damages to the same property [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.300(a)(3)]; or

- Are likely for other reasons to require substantial duplication of judicialresources if heard by different judges [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.300(a)(4)].

The Notice of Related Case must be served and filed as soon as possible, but no later than 15 days after the facts concerning the existence of related cases become known [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.300(e)]. The Notice of Related Case must be filed in all pending cases listed in the notice and must be served on all parties in those cases [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.300(d)].

For discussion and a form of notice, see Ch. 137, Continuing Duties During Litigation .

12-123 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 123.26

§ 123.26 Summons, Filing, and Service

[1] Preparing Summons, Filing Complaint, and Paying Filing Fee

A printed form of summons approved by the Judicial Council is usually prepared with the complaint. The complaint and summons, together with the Judicial Council Form of Case Cover Sheet [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.220; for discussion, see § 123.27], are presented to the clerk of the court with the filing fee. As of January 1, 2006, the uniform filing fee for first papers filed in a general civil action (not including adoption, probate, or family law actions) applies to the filing of a complaint [Gov. Code § 70611 (unlimited civil actions); Gov. Code § 70613 (limited civil actions)]. Surcharges may be tacked onto the uniform fee for complaints in complex cases [see Gov. Code § 70603(a)(1)], unlawful detainer actions [see Gov. Code § 70603(a)(2)], and, where imposed, for court construction funds in the county or county and city of Riverside, San Bernardino, and San Francisco [see Gov. Code §§ 70603(a)(3)-(5), 70622, 70624, 70625].

On presentation of the complaint and the payment of the filing fee, the clerk files the complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 411.20] and issues the summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 412.10]. The clerk must keep each original summons in the court records and provide a copy of each summons issued to the plaintiff who requested issuance of the summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 412.10]. Prior to the 2006 amendments to the Code, the original summons was issued to the plaintiff, served on the defendant, and then returned to the court. The clerk's issuance of summons is a routine ministerial duty on the filing of the complaint and payment of fees [Maginn v. City of Glendale (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 1102, 1107, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 639] . It is mandatory for court clerks to demand and receive the fee required by statute before documents or pleadings are filed [Duran v. St. Luke's Hospital (2004) 114 Cal. App. 4th 457, 459, 8 Cal. Rptr. 3d 1] .

For discussion of the effects of paying a complaint filing fee with a check that is returned for nonpayment, or paying less than the filing fee, see § 123.28.

Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.221(a) requires that each court must make available to the plaintiff, at the time of filing of the complaint, an ADR information package that includes specified information. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.221(c) requires that each plaintiff must serve a copy of the ADR information package on each defendant along with the complaint, and each cross-complainant must serve a copy of the ADR information package on any new parties to the action along with

[2] ADR Information Package

When the complaint is filed in a general civil case, the court must make an ADR information package available to the plaintiff [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.221(a)]. The plaintiff must serve this package on each defendant along with the complaint, and each cross-complainant must serve a copy of the ADR information package on any new parties to the action along with the cross-complaint [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.221(c)].

ADR process and mediation as used in this context are defined in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.800(1), (2)].

[3] Service

A copy of the complaint, a copy of the summons, and the ADR information package are served on the defendant [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 413.10-416.90] and proof of service is prepared [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 417.10-417.40].

Under the Trial Court Delay Reduction Act (Gov. Code § 68600 et seq.), local delay reduction rules may not require a shorter period for service than 60 days after the initial filing of the complaint [Gov. Code § 68616(a)]. For further discussion, see § 123.14[7], above.

Other requirements regarding the time for service of a complaint, cross-complaint, and response are set forth in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.110.

Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.110(c) requires that a cross complaint against a party who has appeared in the action be accompanied by proof of service of the cross complaint at the time it is filed; if the cross complaint adds new parties, the cross complaint must be served on all parties and proofs of service on the new parties must be filed within thirty days of the filing of the cross-complaint.

For discussion of service of summons, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers .

The first paper filed in an action or proceeding must be accompanied by a civil case cover sheet as required in Cal. Rules of Ct. Rule 3.220. This cover sheet is a form prescribed by the Judicial Council, and must be filed in addition to any cover sheet required by local court rules [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.220(a)]. Under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.220(b)(1), the Judicial Council cover sheet form CM-010 must be used in each civil action or proceeding, except those filed in small claims court or filed under the Probate Code, Family Code, or Welfare and Institutions Code [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.220(b)(1); for an illustration of the form, see § 123.60].

Although the cover sheet must be filed, it need not be served with the complaint unless the plaintiff has indicated on the cover sheet that the case is complex under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.400 et seq. or a collections case under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.740. The cover sheet is used for statistical purposes and may affect the assignment of a complex or collections case [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.220(a)].

If a party that is required to provide a cover sheet under this rule or a similar local rule fails to do so or provides a defective or incomplete cover sheet at the time the party's first paper is submitted for filing, the clerk of the court must file the paper. Failure of a party or a party's counsel to file a cover sheet as required by this rule may subject that party, its counsel, or both, to sanctions under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.30 [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.220(c)].

12-123 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 123.28

§ 123.28 Procedure If Filing Fee Check Returned Without Payment or In Amount Less Than Required Fee

[1] Twenty Days to Pay After Notice

If the clerk accepts for filing a complaint or other first paper, or any subsequent filing, and payment is made by check which is later returned without payment, the clerk must, by mail, notify the party who tendered the check that (1) the check has been returned without payment, (2) the administrative charge specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 411.20(g) has been imposed to reimburse the court for the costs of processing the returned check and providing the notice, and (3) the party has 20 days from the date of mailing of the notice within which to pay the filing fee and the administrative charge, except as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 411.20(e) [Code Civ. Proc. § 411.20(a)]. The administrative charge must, in each instance, be either $25 or a reasonable amount that does not exceed the actual cost incurred by the court, as determined by the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 411.20(g)]. If any trial or other hearing is scheduled to be heard prior to the expiration of the 20-day period, the fee must be paid prior to the trial or hearing; failure of the party to pay the fee prior to the trial or hearing date requires the court to void the filing and proceed as if it had not been filed [Code Civ. Proc. § 411.20(e)].

If a complaint or other first paper is accompanied by payment by check in an amount less than the required fee, the clerk must accept the paper for filing, but cannot issue a summons until the court receives full payment of the required fee [Code Civ. Proc. § 411.21(a)]. The clerk must, by mail, notify the party tendering the check that (1) the check was made out for an amount less than the required filing fee, (2) the administrative charge specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 411.21(g) has been imposed to reimburse the court for the costs of processing the partial payment and providing the notice specified, and (3) the party has 20 days from the date of mailing of the notice within which to pay the remainder of the required fee and the administrative charge, except as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 411.21(f). If any trial or other hearing is scheduled to be heard prior to the expiration of the 20-day period, the fee must be paid prior to the trial or hearing; and failure of the party to pay the fee prior to the trial or hearing date requires the court to void the filing and proceed as if it had not been filed [Code Civ. Proc. § 411.21(f))].

The clerk's certificate as to the mailing of the notice establishes a rebuttable presumption that the fees were not paid. This presumption is a presumption affecting the burden of producing evidence [Code Civ. Proc. § 411.20(a); see Hu v. Silgan Containers Corp. (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 1261, 1268, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 333] .

These procedures also apply to payment of filing fees for responsive papers [Code Civ. Proc. § 411.20(c)].

[2] Filing Voided for Nonpayment

The clerk must void the filing if the party who tendered a returned check or on whose behalf a returned check was tendered has not paid the full amount of the fee and the administrative charge by a means specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 411.20(a) within 20 days of the date on which the notice was mailed; and any filing voided by this section can be disposed of immediately after the 20 days have elapsed without preserving a copy in the court records, notwithstanding Gov. Code § 68152 [Code Civ. Proc. § 411.20(b)].

The clerk must void the filing if the party who tendered a check in an amount less than the required filing fee or on whose behalf a check in an amount less than the required filing fee was tendered has not paid the full amount of the fee and the administrative charge by a means specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 411.21(a) within 20 days of the date on which the notice was mailed; and any filing voided by this section may be disposed of immediately after the 20 days have elapsed without preserving a copy in the court records, notwithstanding Gov. Code § 68152 [Code Civ. Proc. § 411.21(b)].

Payment of the filing fees within this 20-day period is both mandatory and jurisdictional. If payment is not made within this period the court loses jurisdiction over the complaint and can only void the complaint. The trial court does not possess authority thereafter to reinstate the voided complaint [Hu v. Silgan Containers Corp. (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 1261, 1266, 1268-1269, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 333] . Moreover, Code Civ. Proc. § 473 cannot provide relief from the judgment of dismissal unless the fees were actually paid within the time limit or the plaintiff was prevented from paying the fees by fraud or some other conduct perpetuated by the defendant [Hu v. Silgan Containers Corp. (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 1261, 1267 n.2, 1269-1270, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 333 (relief not available)]. For discussion of Code Civ. Proc. § 473, see Ch. 489, Relief From Judgments and Orders .

[3] Payment in Less Than Twenty Days If Trial or Hearing Scheduled Sooner

If any trial or other hearing is scheduled to be heard prior to the expiration of the 20-day period, the party must pay the fee prior to the trial or hearing. If the fee is not paid prior to the trial or hearing date, the court will void the filing and proceed as if the paper had not been filed [Code Civ. Proc. § 411.20(e) (returned check), Code Civ. Proc. § 411.21(f) (payment in amount less than required filing fee)].

[4] Opposing Party Can Claim Refund of Fee for Responsive Paper

If an adverse party files a response to a complaint, paper or filing referred to in Code Civ. Proc. § 411.20(a), together with a filing fee, and the original filing is voided pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 411.20(b), the responsive filing is not required and must be voided [Code Civ. Proc. § 411.20(c)]. The court must, by mail, provide notice to the parties or their attorneys that the initial paper and the response have been voided. The responding party's filing fee must be refunded upon request, provided that the request for a refund is made within 20 days from the date on which the notice was mailed. Upon receipt of the request, the court must refund the responding party's filing fee without imposing any administrative charge. A refund is available if the adverse party has filed only a responsive pleading, but not if the party has also filed a cross-complaint or other first paper seeking affirmative relief for which there is a filing fee [Code Civ. Proc. § 411.20(c)].

If an adverse party files a response to a complaint or other first paper referred to in Code Civ. Proc. § 411.21(a), together with a filing fee, and the original filing is voided pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 411.21(b), the responsive filing is not required and must be voided [Code Civ. Proc. § 411.21(d)]. The court must, by mail, provide notice to the parties that the initial paper and the response have been voided. The responding party's filing fee must be refunded upon request, provided that the request for a refund is made in writing within 20 days from the date on which the notice was mailed. Upon receipt of the request, the court must reimburse the responding party's filing fee without imposing any administrative charge. A refund under this subdivision is available if the adverse party has filed only a responsive pleading, but not if the party has also filed a cross-complaint or other first paper seeking affirmative relief for which there is a filing fee [Code Civ. Proc. § 411.21(d)].

[5] Payment for Clerk's Services or Issuance of Documents

If the clerk performs a service or issues any document for which a fee is required and payment is made by check which is later returned without payment, the court may order further proceedings suspended as to the party for whom the check was tendered [Code Civ. Proc. § 411.20(f)]. If the court so orders, the clerk must, by mail, notify the party who tendered the check that proceedings have been suspended until the receipt of payment of the required fee and the administrative charge specified Code Civ. Proc. § 411.20(g) by cash, cashier's check, or other means specified by the court, but not by personal check or traveler's check. If the person who tendered the check is not a party to the action or proposed action, but only is acting on behalf of a party, the clerk must notify not only the person who tendered the check, but also the party or that party's attorney if the party is represented. The clerk's certificate as to the mailing of notice pursuant to this section establishes a rebuttable presumption that the fees were not paid; this presumption is a presumption affecting the burden of producing evidence [Code Civ. Proc. § 411.20(f)].

12-123 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 123.29

§ 123.29 Cross Complaints

[1] In General

Cross complaints are generally governed by the statutes and rules applicable to complaints. They are required to be separate documents [Code Civ. Proc. § 428.40], that is, they may not be set forth with the answer.

A cross complaint is a separate pleading that must be drafted so as to be as complete and sufficient as a complaint alleging a cause of action. The cross complainant is akin to a plaintiff and the cross defendant is akin to a defendant [see Wilson, McCall & Daoro v. American Qualified Plans, Inc. (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 1030, 1036, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 192] .

Issues concerning cross complaints arise depending on whether the cross complaint is permissive or compulsory. As to permissive cross complaints, questions arise as to whether the defendant is allowed to bring a particular cause of action or party into the pending action. As to compulsory cross complaints, questions arise as to whether the defendant may assert a cause of action in another action instead of in the pending action.

[2] Counterclaim Abolished

The counterclaim has been abolished. Any cause of action that formerly was asserted by counterclaim is now to be asserted by cross complaint. Where any statute refers to asserting a cause of action as a counterclaim, such cause of action is to be asserted as a cross complaint. The erroneous designation of a pleading as a counterclaim does not affect its validity, but the pleading is deemed to be a cross complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 428.80].

Chapter 123 COMPLAINTS AND CROSS COMPLAINTS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

12-123 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 123.30

§ 123.30 Permissive Cross Complaints

[1] Causes of Action

A party against whom a cause of action has been asserted in a complaint or cross complaint may file a cross complaint setting forth either or both the following:

- Any cause of action the party has against any of the parties who filed the complaint or cross complaint against him or her. This provision, however, does not authorize the filing of a cross complaint against a plaintiff in an eminent domain action [Code Civ. Proc. § 428.10(a); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1230.010 et seq.].

- Any cause of action the party has against a person alleged to be liable thereon, whether or not such person is already a party to the action, if the cause of action asserted in his or her cross complaint either [Code Civ. Proc. § 428.10(b)].

  - Arises out of the same transaction, occurrence, or series of transactions or occurrences as the cause brought against him or her; or

  - Asserts a claim, right, or interest in the property or controversy that is the subject to the cause brought against him or her.

Code Civ. Proc. § 428.10(a), added in 1971, adopts Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 13, which states that a party against whom a complaint or cross complaint has been filed may bring any cause of action he or she has (regardless of its nature) against the party who filed the complaint or cross complaint. There need be no factual relationship between his or her cause and the cause of the other party. This subdivision is also consistent with prior law [former Code Civ. Proc. § 438], except that it permits unlimited scope to cross complaints which may be filed against an opposing party and does not limit the causes which a party has against an opposing party to those that satisfy the "defeat or diminish" or "several judgment" requirements [see Assembly Legislative Committee Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 428.10; see also Friedenthal, Joinder of Claims, Counterclaims, and Cross Complaints: Suggested Revision of the California Provisions, 23 Stan. L.

Rev. 1 (1970); for discussion of the right to sever an action, see Ch. 125, Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions].

Code Civ. Proc. § 428.10(b), also added in 1971, continues the former rule [former Code Civ. Proc. § 442] that a cross complaint may be asserted against any person, whether or not a party to the action, if the cause of action asserted in the cross complaint arises out of the same transaction or occurrence or involves the same property or controversy [see Assembly Legislative Committee Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 428.10].

[2] Joinder of Parties and Causes of Action

The permissive joinder rules authorized by Code Civ. Proc. § 428.10 treat a cross complaint generally the same as a complaint in an independent action [see Law Review Commission Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 428.20].

Thus, when a person files a cross complaint as authorized by Code Civ. Proc. § 428.10, he or she may > (1) Join any person as a cross complainant or cross defendant, whether or not that person is already a party to the action, if, had the cross complaint been filed as an independent action, the joinder of that party would have been permitted by the statutes governing joinder of parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 428.20; see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 378, 379 (permissive joinder of parties), 389 (compulsory joinder of parties); Ch. 395, Parties]; and

> (2) Unite with the cause of action asserted in the cross complaint any other causes of action he or she has against any of the cross defendants, other than the plaintiff in an eminent domain proceeding, whether or not this cross defendant is already a party to the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 428.30].

[3] When Permission to File Cross Complaint Is Required

A party must obtain leave of court to file any cross complaint not filed within the times specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 428.50(a) or (b) [Code Civ. Proc. § 428.50(c)]. Code Civ. Proc. § 428.50(a) provides that a party may file a cross complaint against any of the parties who filed the complaint or cross complaint against him or her before or at the same time as the answer to the complaint or cross complaint. Code Civ. Proc. § 428.50(b) provides that any other cross complaint may be filed at any time before the court has set a date for trial [Code Civ. Proc. § 428.50(b)].

Chapter 123 COMPLAINTS AND CROSS COMPLAINTS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

12-123 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 123.31

§ 123.31 Compulsory Cross Complaint

Except as otherwise provided by statute, if a party against whom a complaint has been filed and served fails to allege in a cross complaint any related cause of action that (at the time of serving his or her answer to the complaint) he or she has against the plaintiff, such party may not thereafter in any other action assert against the plaintiff the related cause of action not pleaded [Code Civ. Proc. § 426.30(a); for exceptions, see [2], below].

Code Civ. Proc. § 426.30 continues the substance of the former compulsory counterclaim rule [former Code Civ. Proc. § 439]. However, since the scope of a cross complaint is expanded to include claims that would not have met the "defeat or diminish" or "several judgment" requirements of the former counterclaim statute, the scope of the former rule is expanded by Code Civ. Proc. § 426.30 to include some causes of action that formerly were not compulsory. This may affect, for example, an action to quiet title in which the defendant may be required to cross complain for damages on any cause of action that arises out of the same transaction, occurrence, or series of transactions or occurrences on which the action to quiet title is based [see Hanes v. Coffee (1931) 212 Cal. 777, 780, 300 P. 963 (noted in Senate Legislative Committee Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 426.30 since defendant did not have to file a cross complaint in that action)].

Code Civ. Proc. § 426.30 affects only related causes of action that exist at the time of service of the answer to the complaint on the particular plaintiff [see Senate Legislative Committee Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 426.30], and only those related causes of action the defendant must assert against the plaintiff. A cross complaint is permissive as between coparties and between parties and nonparties [Banerian v. O'Malley (1974) 42 Cal. App. 3d 604, 612, 116 Cal. Rptr. 919] . If a defendant fails to file a cross-complaint against the plaintiff on a related cause of action as required by Section 426.30, the plaintiff's voluntary dismissal of the action without prejudice does not relieve the defendant from the requirement of filing a cross complaint, and Section 426.30 will bar the defendant from bringing the related action later [see AL Holding Co. v. O'Brien & Hicks, Inc. (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 1310, 1313-1314, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 918 (later action by defendant's assignee)].

Once a compulsory cross complaint has been filed in an action, if the plaintiff voluntarily dismisses without prejudice, the plaintiff is subject to Code Civ. Proc. § 426.30, and cannot reflie a new separate action; rather, to refile the plaintiff must seek leave under Code Civ. Proc. § 426.50 to file a late cross complaint in the original action [Carroll v. Import Motors, Inc. (1995) 33 Cal. App. 4th 1429, 1436, 39 Cal. Rptr. 2d 791 ; for discussion of Section 426.50, see [4] below].

[2] Exceptions

[a] Lack of Jurisdiction Over Party With Related Cause of Action

The provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 426.30(a) [see [1], above] do not apply if the court in which the action is pending does not have jurisdiction to render a personal judgment against the person who failed to plead the related cause of action [Code Civ. Proc. § 426.30(b); for similar rule in federal court practice, see Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 13(a)(2)].

[b] No Response to Complaint by Party With Related Cause of Action

The provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 426.30(a) [see [1], above] do not apply if the person who failed to plead the related cause of action did not file an answer to the complaint against him or her [Code Civ. Proc. § 426.30(b)].

[c] Lack of Jurisdiction Over Other Parties or Subject Matter or Other Action Is Pending

The provisions relating to compulsory cross complaints [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 426.10-426.70] do not apply if any of the following are established [Code Civ. Proc. § 426.40; see also Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 13(a)(1) for similar provision applicable to federal district courts]:

- The cause of action not pleaded requires for its adjudication the presence of additional parties over whom the court cannot acquire jurisdiction.

- Both the court in which the action is pending and any other court to which the action is transferable pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 396 (change of venue) are prohibited by the federal or state Constitution or by a statute from entertaining the cause of action not pleaded.

- At the time the action was commenced, the cause of action not pleaded was the subject of another pending action.

[d] Applicable to Civil Actions Only, Not Special Proceedings

The compulsory cross complaint rule applies only to civil actions ("actions" is defined in Code Civ. Proc. § 22) and does not apply to special proceedings (defined in Code Civ. Proc. § 23) except eminent domain proceedings discussed in [3], below.

[e] Not Applicable to Small Claims or Declaratory Relief

The rule does not apply to actions in the small claims court or to actions in which the only relief sought is a declaration of rights and duties of the respective parties in an action for declaratory relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 1060 et seq. [Code Civ. Proc. § 426.60; see Anderson v. Superior Court (1990) 226 Cal. App. 3d 698, 701, 276 Cal. Rptr. 18 (small claims)].

[3] Eminent Domain Proceedings

The provisions relating to compulsory cross complaints [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 426.10-426.70] apply to eminent domain proceedings [Code Civ. Proc. § 426.70(a)]. The related cause of action may be asserted by cross complaint in an eminent domain proceeding whether or not the party asserting such cause of action has presented a claim in compliance with Gov. Code § 900 et seq. (claims against public entities) to the plaintiff in the eminent domain proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 426.70(b)].

[4] Permission to Assert Unpleaded Cause

A party who fails to plead a cause of action subject to the compulsory cross complaint provisions, whether through oversight, inadvertence, mistake, neglect, or other cause, may apply to the court for leave to amend his or her pleading, or to file a cross complaint, to assert such cause at any time during the course of the action. The court, after notice to the adverse party, "shall grant," on such terms as may be just to the parties, leave to amend the pleading, or to file the cross complaint, to assert such cause if the party who failed to plead the cause acted in good faith. This provision is to be liberally construed to avoid forfeiture of causes of action [Code Civ. Proc. § 426.50; see Senate Legislative Committee Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 426.50(interpreting this provision to be mandatory)]. Prior to the 1972 enactment of Code Civ. Proc. § 426.50, the standard for reviewing a trial court's denial of a motion to file a compulsory cross complaint was whether the court had abused its discretion. Now, under the statute, the trial court may not "exercise discretion" to deny a motion to file a compulsory cross complaint. The legislative mandate is clear. A policy of liberal construction of Code Civ. Proc. § 426.50 to avoid forfeiture of causes of action is imposed on the trial court. A motion to file a cross complaint at any time during the course of the action must be granted if forfeiture would otherwise result unless bad faith of the moving party is demonstrated [Silver Organizations Ltd. v. Frank (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 94, 98-99, 265 Cal. Rptr. 681] .

The determination of what constitutes "good faith"--or lack of it--under Code Civ. Proc. § 426.50 must be made in light of and in conformity with the liberality conferred on the trial courts by this section and by prior law. Generally, the principle of liberality requires that a strong showing of bad faith be made in order to support a denial of the right to amend a pleading or to file a cross complaint under Code Civ. Proc. § 426.50 [Foot's Transfer & Storage Co. v. Superior Court (1980) 114 Cal. App. 3d 897, 902, 171 Cal. Rptr. 1 ; see also Silver Organizations Ltd. v. Frank (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 94, 99, 265 Cal. Rptr. 681 (substantial evidence of bad faith must support trial court's denial of motion)]. Mere delay in amending a pleading or filing a cross complaint is generally insufficient to constitute the requisite bad faith, absent a showing that the amendment of a pleading or filing of the cross complaint would work a substantial injustice to the opposing party and would prejudice that party's position in some way [see Foot's Transfer & Storage Co. v. Superior Court (1980) 114 Cal. App. 3d 897, 903, 171 Cal. Rptr. 1 ; see also Silver Organizations Ltd. v. Frank (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 94, 99, 265 Cal. Rptr. 681 (unless accompanied by bad faith, factors such as oversight, inadvertence, neglect, mistake, or other cause are insufficient grounds to deny the motion)].

Substantial evidence of bad faith will obviously negate good faith, the latter being the sine qua non to the granting of a motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 426.50. It is therefore necessary to examine the amorphous concept of bad faith. "Bad faith" is defined as the opposite of "good faith." It generally implies or involves actual or constructive fraud, or a design to mislead or deceive another, or a neglect or refusal to fulfill some duty or some contractual obligation, not prompted by an honest mistake, but by some interested or sinister motive, not simply bad judgment or negligence, but rather the conscious doing of a wrong because of dishonest purpose or moral obliquity. That is, it contemplates a state of mind affirmatively operating with furtive design or ill will [Silver Organizations Ltd. v. Frank (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 94, 100, 265 Cal. Rptr. 681] .

§ 123.32 Filing of Cross Complaint

A cross complaint is usually filed with the answer [see Code Civ. Proc. § 428.50], on the payment of the filing fee for the filing of the answer or other first paper of the defendant [see Gov. Code §§ 70611, 70612, 70613, 70614 (filing fees)]. Certain cross complaints may, however, be filed at a later time, and cross complaints not filed within the time required by Code Civ. Proc. § 428.50(a) or (b) may be filed later with court permission [Code Civ. Proc. § 428.50(c); for further discussion, see § 123.30[3], above, and for a form of notice of motion, see § 123.64]. A cross complaint cannot, however, be filed after judgment has been entered on the underlying complaint, notwithstanding the fact that the case has not been finally determined on appeal [City of Hanford v. Superior Court (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 580, 584, 586-589, 256 Cal. Rptr. 274 (construing "any time during the course of the action," as used in Code Civ. Proc. § 428.50(c), as meaning from the time the action is commenced until judgment is entered and not from the time the action is commenced until final determination on appeal, as set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 1049, specifying period "an action is deemed to be pending")].

Trial court delay reduction rules implementing the Trial Court Delay Reduction Act [Gov. Code § 68600 et seq.] may impose special filing and service requirements on cross complaints. For further discussion, see § 123.14[7], above.

If a party has not appeared in the action, a summons on the cross complaint must be issued and served on him or her in the same manner as on commencement of an original action [Code Civ. Proc. § 428.60(1); see Code Civ. Proc. § 413.10 (service of summons)]. In addition, the cross complainant must cause a copy of the most recently amended complaint and any answers to be served on cross defendants who have not previously appeared [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.222].

Judicial Council Form SUM-110, Summons--Cross-Complaint, is adopted for mandatory use as the summons on a cross complaint. For an illustration of this form, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers, § 518.70A.

In general civil cases, a copy of the ADR information package must be served on any new parties to the action along with the cross complaint [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.221(c)]. For further discussion, see § 123.26[2].

Other requirements regarding the time for service of a cross-complaint are set forth in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.110.

Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.110(c) requires that a cross complaint against a party who has appeared in the action be accompanied by proof of service of the cross complaint at the time it is filed; if the cross complaint adds new parties, the cross complaint must be served on all parties and proofs of service on the new parties must be filed within thirty days of the filing of the cross-complaint.

If a party has appeared in the action, the cross complaint must be served on his or her attorney, or on the party if he or she has appeared without an attorney, in the manner provided for service of summons [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 413.10, 465] or in the manner provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 1010 et seq. (service of papers) [Code Civ. Proc. § 428.60(2)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

12-123 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 123.35

§ 123.35 Pleadings in Federal District Court

In federal district court actions, complaints, third-party complaints, answers, replies to counterclaims, answers to cross claims, and third-party answers are the allowable pleadings. Cross claims and counterclaims, which are similar in some respects to cross complaints used in California state courts, are not considered separate pleadings, but are asserted in an answer [Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 7(a)]. If a defendant wishes to assert a claim against a person not a party to an action who may be liable to him or her for all or part of the plaintiff's claim against him or her, he or she may file and serve a third-party complaint on such person [Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 14(a)].

The form of pleadings filed in federal district courts is governed by Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 10, which requires that every pleading contain a caption and that all averments of claim or defense be made in numbered paragraphs and each separate claim stated in a separate count, and provides that statements in a pleading may be adopted by reference and exhibits may be made a part of the pleading. The contents of a pleading setting forth a claim for relief (such as an original claim, a counterclaim, a cross claim, or a third-party claim) are prescribed in Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 8(a), and consist of a statement of jurisdictional grounds, a statement of the claim, and a demand for judgment. Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 8(e), states that there are no technical forms of pleading, but each averment should be simple, concise, and direct. If a party is represented by an attorney, his or her pleading is to be signed by the attorney or, otherwise, by himself or herself [Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 11(a)].

For detailed discussion of federal procedure, see Moore's Federal Practice (3d ed. Matthew Bender). For a comprehensive collection of litigation forms for use in federal courts, see Bender's Federal Practice Forms.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

12-123 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 123.36

§ 123.36 Judicial Council Trial Court Forms

[1] In General

Code Civ. Proc. § 425.12 requires that the Judicial Council develop and approve official forms for use in California trial courts for any complaint, cross complaint, or answer in any action based on personal injury, property damage, wrongful death, unlawful detainer, breach of contract, or fraud. Use of these forms is optional [see Code Civ. Proc. § 425.12].

A party or attorney may file a duplicate of a Judicial Council form produced by a computer and a printer or similar device with a resolution of at least 300 dots per inch [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1.44]. Any form filed must be a true copy of the original form and must be as legible as a printed form [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1.43]. A party or attorney who files a Judicial Council form certifies by filing the form that it is a true and correct copy of the form [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.132].

A complete set of Judicial Council trial court pleading forms is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

[2] Use of Complaint Forms

In using the general complaint forms developed for tort or contract actions, one or more attachments must be used to allege specific causes of action. The Judicial Council has developed attachment forms for this purpose. The attachment forms for use in tort actions include cause of action attachments for motor vehicle accidents, general negligence, intentional tort, premises liability, products liability, and an attachment for pleading exemplary damages [see Judicial Council Forms, Forms PLD-PI-001(1)-PLD-PI-001(6)]. The attachment forms for use in contract actions include cause of action attachments for breach of contract, common counts, and fraud [see Judicial Council Forms, Forms PLD-C-001-PLD-C-001(3)]. The complaint form for unlawful detainer does not require cause of action attachments.

In cases in which specific allegations need to be alleged, the pleader must add the details, because the form complaint, standing alone, is no more immune to demurrer than any other complaint that fails to meet essential pleading requirements to state a cause of action [People ex rel. Dep't of Transportation v. Superior Court (1992) 5 Cal. App. 4th 1480, 1486, 7 Cal. Rptr. 2d 498 (demurrer sustained to defective complaint on Judicial Council form for dangerous condition of public property)].

[3] Use of Cross Complaint Form

For contract actions, the general complaint form may also be used as a cross complaint, and the same attachments used with the complaint may be used with the cross complaint [see [4], below]. For actions for personal injury, property damage, or wrongful death, the Judicial Council has developed a general cross complaint form separate from the general complaint form [see Judicial Council Forms, Form PLD-PI-002]. This cross complaint form contains allegations constituting causes of action for indemnity, apportionment of fault, declaratory relief, and others, and therefore does not require cause of action attachments. Attachment forms or attachments prepared by counsel may be used if appropriate [see [4], below].

[4] Use of Attachments

Any approved cause of action may be attached to any approved form of complaint or cross complaint [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1.45(b)]. A cause of action for which no form has been approved may be prepared in the format prescribed by Tit. 2, Div. 2, ch. 1 of the Cal. Rules of Ct., (regulating format of papers presented for filing in superior court), and attached to any approved complaint or cross complaint. Each paragraph within a cause of action must be numbered consecutively beginning with one, and each paragraph number must be preceded with one or more identifying letters derived from the title of the cause of action [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1.45(c)]. For specific format requirements for all attachments prepared by counsel, see § 123.14, above.

In addition to cause of action attachments, it may be necessary to prepare attachments containing information for which there was insufficient space on the printed form. Occasionally the forms themselves provide for and refer to such attachments. In preparing such attachments, the format prescribed in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.100 et seq., should be followed, and each attachment, and each paragraph within the attachment, should be sufficiently labeled as to its identity and relationship to the form. Any attachment prepared by counsel should also have the short title of the case at the top, along with a space designated for the case number, so that the attachment will be consistent in appearance with the Judicial Council form and attachments.

For illustrations of Judicial Council trial court pleading forms and attachments, and for discussion related to filling out specific forms, see Ch. 58, Assault and Battery , Ch. 83, Automobiles: Bringing the Action , § 83.120, Ch. 121, Common Counts, Ch. 140, Contracts, Ch. 177, Damages, Ch. 181, Death and Survival Actions, Ch. 269, Fraud and Deceit, Ch. 362, Mental Suffering and Emotional Distress, and Ch. 460, Products Liability.

[1] Allegations

Allegation referring to "Defendants, and each of them," was sufficient to charge each defendant with liability. Lee v. Escrow Consultants, Inc. (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 915, 925, 259 Cal. Rptr. 117

[2] Appealable Orders

When defendant cross complains against third party or against codefendant, dismissal of cross complaint is final adverse adjudication of cross complainant's rights against distinct party and, order is appealable. County of Los Angeles v. Guerrero (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 1149, 1152 n.2, 257 Cal. Rptr. 787

Under single judgment rule, order striking cross complaint against plaintiff is ordinarily not considered sufficiently independent to permit entry of separate judgment on it unless judgment on cross complaint is final as to specific party. Daon Corp. v. Place Homeowners' Assn. (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 1449, 1456, 255 Cal. Rptr. 448

Purported final judgment rendered on complaint without adjudication of issues raised by cross complaint against plaintiff is nonappealable, absent some exception to general rule that there can be only one final judgment in action. American Nat. Bank v. Stanfill (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 1089, 1095, 252 Cal. Rptr. 861 (also, however, amending summary judgment, holding judgment as amended was appealable, and reversing judgment with directions)

Order striking entire complaint is appealable order. Morales v. Camello (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 370, 371, 90 Cal. Rptr. 718

Misnaming court in complaint is nonfatal defect in pleading. Ex parte Fil Ki (1889) 79 Cal. 584, 586-587, 21 P. 974

Nature of complaint for venue purposes is determined from allegations of complaint and not from caption. Franco Western Oil Co. v. Cameron (1962) 200 Cal. App. 2d 37, 38, 41, 19 Cal. Rptr. 304

Incorrect description in caption of complaint of party as a corporation did not constituting fatal defect. McDonough v. Waxman (1930) 103 Cal. App. 169, 172-173, 284 P. 482

[4] Counts and Causes of Action Distinguished

In action by heirs of worker killed on job, "causes of action" for (1) negligence, (2) strict liability, (3) breach of implied warranty, and (4) wrongful death alleged in complaint are more properly characterized as "counts"; suit consists of only one true cause of action, namely, injury suffered as result of decedent's wrongful death, and causes of action are actually counts based on same primary right of plaintiffs and same primary duty of defendants, each of which merely alleged additional circumstances out of which primary right and duty arose; each set of circumstances, in turn, is differentiated by reference in alternative to legal theories pertaining to nature of wrongfulness of defendants' acts. Barrett v. Superior Court (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 1176, 1181-1182, 272 Cal. Rptr. 304

[5] Cross Complaint

[a] Availability and Purpose

A lawyer sued by a former client for legal malpractice is generally denied the option of filing a cross complain against plaintiff's present lawyer for indemnity or contribution. Musser v. Provencher (2002) 28 Cal. 4th 274, 281, 121 Cal. Rptr. 2d 373 (public policy disfavors suits between past and present counsel; however, court permitted attorney to seek indemnification from co-counsel in connection with legal malpractice case, finding that public policy did not require adoption of a blanket rule barring suits against co-counsel; includes list of cases denying indemnification and one highly criticized case permitting it)

Cross complaint allowed in order to avoid circuity of litigation in which attachment defendant sued plaintiff for malicious prosecution. White Lighting Co. v. Wolfson (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 336, 351 n.10, 66 Cal. Rptr. 697, 438 P.2d 345

Use and timeliness of cross complaints in validation actions under Code Civ. Proc. § 860 et seq. Moorpark Unified School Dist. v Superior Court (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 954, 957-960, 273 Cal. Rptr. 18

That original complaint pleads action legal in nature does not bar cross complaint seeking equitable relief. County of San Mateo v. Berney (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 1489, 1494, 245 Cal. Rptr. 738

Code Civ. Proc. § 426.60(c) (excepting actions for declaratory relief from compulsory filing of cross complaint) does not prohibit defendant in declaratory relief action from filing cross complaint to assert related causes of action. California State Auto. Assn. Inter-Ins. Bureau v. Superior Court (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 1428, 1433 n.6, 229 Cal. Rptr.

Issue concerning cross action was not able to be addressed when appeal was taken from main action because complaint and cross complaint are two separate actions, with issues severable from each other. Security Pacific National Bank v. Adamo (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 492, 496, 191 Cal. Rptr. 134

Provisions for compulsory cross complaints do not apply to special proceedings and permissive cross complaints are allowed only when cross complaint responds to complaint or another cross complaint, not to petition. Airfloor Co. of California, Inc. v. Regents of University of California (1978) 84 Cal. App. 3d 1004, 1009, 149 Cal. Rptr. 130 (involving petition to confirm arbitration award)

Purpose of cross complaint is to secure complete determination of controversy among parties in order to avoid circuity of action. Bewley v. Riggs (1968) 262 Cal. App. 2d 188, 192, 68 Cal. Rptr. 520

[b] Compulsory

A plaintiff/cross-defendant against whom a compulsory cross-complaint has been filed is not entitled to seek a change of venue under Code Civ. Proc. § 396b based on a claim of improper venue as determined by reference to the cross-complaint. Rather, the cross-complaint is to be tried in the same county that has been established as the proper venue based on the original complaint. K.R.L. Partnership v. Superior Court (2004) 120 Cal. App. 4th 490, 506, 15 Cal. Rptr. 3d 517

Scope and effect of compulsory cross complaint rule of Code Civ. Proc. § 426.30 is analogous to res judicata rather than to collateral estoppel, because statute bars claims party failed to assert by cross complaint in previous action arising from same occurrence and necessarily bars issues that were never litigated and never actually decided. Hulsey v. Koehler (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 1150, 1156-1157, 267 Cal. Rptr. 523

Defense based on Code Civ. Proc. § 426.30 (mandatory cross complaint) must be specially pleaded; affirmative defense of failure to state facts sufficient to constitute cause of action is insufficient to raise it. Hulsey v. Koehler (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 1150, 1158, 267 Cal. Rptr. 523

Motion for leave to file cross complaint to cross complaint on ground that it alleged related causes of action (see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 426.30, 426.50) was properly denied when cross complaint to cross complaint merely set out causes of action that had been pleaded in original complaint, which was dismissed for failure to bring action to trial within five years (see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 583.310, 583.360). Flynn v. Page (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 342, 347, 266 Cal. Rptr. 830

Action was barred by compulsory cross complaint requirement of Code Civ. Proc. § 426.30 when earlier federal action between parties arose out of same transaction or occurrence and involved common issues of law and fact; federal court could have heard present claims under its ancillary jurisdiction. Currie Medical Specialties, Inc. v. Bowen (1982) 136 Cal. App. 3d 774, 776-777, 186 Cal. Rptr. 543

[c] Declaratory Relief

Cross complaint seeking declaratory judgment that action was maliciously prosecuted was premature prior to termination of action in defendant's (cross complainant's) favor. Babb v. Superior Court (1971) 3 Cal. 3d 841, 844-850, 92 Cal. Rptr. 179, 479 P.2d 379

Cross complaint for declaratory relief against codefendant to determine warranty obligation to cross complainant with respect to plaintiff's claim was not premature. Sattinger v. Newbauer (1954) 123 Cal. App. 2d 365, 367, 266 P.2d 586

[d] Effect of Dismissal of Complaint

When plaintiff voluntarily dismissed action without prejudice after settlement conference, defendant who did not file or seek leave to file cross complaint on related cause of action prior to dismissal was barred from later asserting related cause of action by Code Civ. Code § 426.30. AL Holding Co. v. O'Brien & Hicks, Inc. (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 1310, 1313-1314, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 918 (later action by defendant's assignee)

Cross complainant was not deprived of right of trial on issues of cross complaint by judgment dismissing complaint. National Electric Supply Co. v. Mount Diablo Unified School Dist. (1960) 187 Cal. App. 2d 418, 422, 9 Cal. Rptr. 864

Complaint deemed filed when presented at proper office and deposited. City of Los Angeles v. Superior Court (1968) 264 Cal. App. 2d 766, 770, 70 Cal. Rptr. 826

[f] Filing After Answer

Court was without power to impose prohibited prejudgment attachment as condition to allowing filing of cross complaint after answer. Medford v. Superior Court (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 236, 240, 189 Cal. Rptr. 227

Filing cross complaint after answer only as permitted by court. Dunzweiler v. Superior Court (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 569, 575, 73 Cal. Rptr. 331

Ruling on application to file cross complaint after answer is reversible on appeal only on showing abuse of discretion. Dunzweiler v. Superior Court (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 569, 575-576, 73 Cal. Rptr. 331 ; Nels E. Nelson, Inc. v. Tarman (1958) 163 Cal. App. 2d 714, 730, 329 P.2d 953

[g] Filing After Judgment

Party is not permitted to file cross complaint after judgment has been entered on underlying complaint. City of Hanford v. Superior Court (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 580, 584, 586-589, 256 Cal. Rptr. 274

[h] Judgment

Where a complaint and cross-complaint involving the same parties have been filed, there is no final, appealable judgment until both have been resolved. Thus, under the one final judgment rule, a defendant could not appeal from a judgment as to its cross-complaint while proceedings remained pending as to the complaint; defendant could appeal only from a final judgment which resolved both the complaint and the cross-complaint. ECC Construction, Inc. v. Oak Park Calabasas Homeowners Assn. (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 994, 1002

Cross complaint is not considered sufficiently independent to allow separate final judgment to be entered on it, except when cross complaint seeks separate and independent relief by or against different parties. City of Hanford v. Superior Court (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 580, 584, 588, 256 Cal. Rptr. 274

[i] Jurisdiction

Transfer of action to court having jurisdiction over subject matter of cross complaint is mandatory. Eveleth v. American Brass & Iron Foundry (1962) 203 Cal. App. 2d 41, 44-45, 21 Cal. Rptr. 95

[j] Parties

In declaratory judgment action against insurer by plaintiff who claims to be an additional insured on defendant insurer's policy issued to third party, defendant insurer's claim against plaintiff's primary insurer based on "other insurance" clauses of both policies did not constitute compulsory cross complaint when primary insurer not party to action. Insurance Co. of North America v. Liberty Mutual Ins. Co. (1981) 128 Cal. App. 3d 297, 303, 180 Cal. Rptr. 244

Defendant is not permitted to bring in possible joint tortfeasor by cross complaint absent any right of indemnification or contribution. Balding v. D.B. Stutsman, Inc. (1966) 246 Cal. App. 2d 559, 562-563, 54 Cal. Rptr. 717

[k] Permissive Filing

Code Civ. Proc. § 428.10(b) permits party against whom cause of action has been asserted in complaint to file cross complaint stating any cause of action he or she has against person alleged to be liable thereon; accordingly, defendant may generally file cross complaint against any person from whom he or she seeks equitable indemnity. Platt v. Coldwell Banker Residential Real Estate Services (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 1439, 1444, 266 Cal. Rptr. 601

Code Civ. Proc. § 428.10(b) permits defendant to file cross complaint against any person from whom he or she seeks total or partial indemnity on basis of comparative fault. Daon Corp. v. Place Homeowners' Assn. (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 1449, 1454-1455, 255 Cal. Rptr. 448

Motion for leave to file cross complaint to join alleged joint torfeasor was properly denied when cross complaint was devoid of any allegation of relationship or conduct by proposed cross defendant which would compel indemnification or contribution by it. Balding v. D.B. Stutsman, Inc. (1966) 246 Cal. App. 2d 559, 563, 54 Cal. Rptr. 717

[l] Service

Default judgment entered by court clerk on purported cross complaint is void when supposed cross complaint was not personally served on cross defendant. Westport Oil Co. v. Garrison (1971) 19 Cal. App. 3d 974, 977-978, 97 Cal. Rptr. 287

[m] Answer to Cross Complaint

Cross defendant must file answer to cross complaint; necessity for answer cannot be avoided on theory that cross complaint merely replicates answer and should be reclassified as counterclaim since counterclaim was abolished in 1971, pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 428.80. Saum v. Reppert (1995) 35 Cal. App. 4th 1766, 1771-1773, 42 Cal. Rptr. 2d 454

[6] Function of Complaint

Function of complaint is to present and define issues, form foundation of and limit proof to be submitted, and advise court and adverse party of cause of action relied on. Roth v. Cottrell (1952) 112 Cal. App. 2d 621, 624, 246 P.2d 958

[7] Judicial Council Forms

Demurrer to defective complaint on Judicial Council form for dangerous condition of public property improperly overruled on ground that Judicial Council form complaint is nondemurrable; form complaint is no more immune to demurrer than any other complaint that fails to state cause of action. People ex rel. Dep't of Transportation v. Superior Court (1992) 5 Cal. App. 4th 1480, 1486, 7 Cal. Rptr. 2d 498

[8] Pleading Facts

[a] Condition Precedent

Pleading occurrence of conditions precedent is necessary for recovery on contract. Clack v. State of California ex rel. Dept. Pub. Wks. (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 743, 748, 80 Cal. Rptr. 274

[b] Construction

Liberal construction of allegations with a view to substantial justice to the parties is required when construing pleadings to determine their effect. Smith v. Kern County Land Co. (1958) 51 Cal. 2d 205, 206, 331 P.2d 645

When contract is ambiguous, plaintiffs is entitled to allege their construction in complaint and on demurrer, which construction, if not clearly erroneous, must be accepted as correct. Marina Tenants Assn. v. Deauville Marina Development Co (1986) 181 Cal. App. 3d 122, 128, 132, 226 Cal. Rptr. 321

If complaint contains antagonistic allegations of fact, court is required to take as true allegations that bear most strongly against pleader, when they are specifically admitted in answer. Manti v. Gunari (1970) 5 Cal. App. 3d 442, 450, 85 Cal. Rptr. 366

Pleading to be construed liberally, but most strongly against pleader. Lavine v. Jessup (1958) 161 Cal. App. 2d 59, 64-65, 326 P.2d 238

Pleading to be read and construed as a whole. Lavine v. Jessup (1958) 161 Cal. App. 2d 59, 64, 326 P.2d 238

[c] Defects

Where original complaints are so devoid of factual allegations they fail to meet the minimal fact-pleading requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(a), the complaint is the functional equivalent of no complaint at all. Davaloo v. State Farm Ins. Co. (2005) 135 Cal. App. 4th 409, 417, 37 Cal. Rptr. 3d 528

Where amendment to complaint does not add a new defendant, but simply corrects a misnomer by which an old defendant was sued, case law recognizes an exception to the general rule of no relation back. Hawkins v. Pacific Coast Building Products, Inc. (2005) 124 Cal. App. 4th 1497, 1503, 22 Cal. Rptr. 3d 453

Pleading matters are unimportant when case is fairly tried on merits under circumstances indicating other party was not misled by pleading to his injury. Nels E. Nelson, Inc. v. Tarman (1958) 163 Cal. App. 2d 714, 721, 329 P.2d 953

Defect in pleading is to be disregarded unless it affects substantial rights. Nels E. Nelson, Inc. v. Tarman (1958) 163 Cal. App. 2d 714, 721, 329 P.2d 953

[d] Essential Facts and Specificity

Complaint is required to set forth only essential facts with reasonable precision and with sufficient particularity to acquaint the defendant with nature, source, and extent of the cause of action. Rannard v. Lockheed Aircraft Corp. (1945) 26 Cal. 2d 149, 156-157, 157 P.2d 1

Allegation of ultimate fact in pleading usually involves one or more conclusions of fact. Estate of Bixler (1924) 194 Cal. 585, 589, 229 P. 704 ; Krug v. Meeham (1952) 109 Cal. App. 2d 274, 277, 240 P.2d 732

Where plaintiff's complaint requested, in its prayer for relief, double damages under the Uniform Trade Secrets Act, but failed to allege, or even try to allege, a prima facie case for misappropriation of a trade secret, the court refused to conclude that its lawsuit constituted a claim for misappropriation of trade secrets. CytoDyn of New Mexico, Inc. v. Amerimmune Pharmaceuticals, Inc. (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 288, 297-98, 72 Cal. Rptr. 3d 600

Plaintiff is required only to set forth essential facts of his or her case with reasonable precision and with particularity sufficient to acquaint defendant with nature, source, and extent of action; particularity required in pleading facts depends on extent to which defendant in fairness needs detailed information that can be conveniently provided by plaintiff; less particularity is required when defendant may be assumed to have knowledge of facts equal to that possessed by plaintiff; there is no need to require specificity in pleadings because modern discovery procedures necessarily affect amount of detail that should be required in a pleading. Ludgate Ins. Co. v. Lockheed Martin Corp. (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 592, 608, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 277

Pleading alleges facts and not mere conclusions. Jones v. Grewe (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 950, 954, 234 Cal. Rptr. 717

Specific pleading of facts showing estoppel or waiver is necessary when those elements are essential to action. Windsor Mills v. Richard B. Smith, Inc. (1969) 272 Cal. App. 2d 336, 341-342, 77 Cal. Rptr. 300

Cause of action to be pleaded by actionable facts, not by legal or generic terms. Lavine v. Jessup (1958) 161 Cal. App. 2d 59, 70, 326 P.2d 238

Complaint must state facts constituting cause of action in ordinary and concise language, but not to be tested for literary excellence. Dillon v. Haskell (1947) 78 Cal. App. 2d 814, 816, 178 P.2d 462

Complaint states cause of action though containing uncertain, ambiguous, and confliting allegations. Goes v. Perry (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 373, 378, 115 P.2d 441

The effect of "omitted matter destructive" to a cause of action cannot be avoided by simply omitting it in a subsequent pleading. This rule is intended to prevent sham pleadings omitting an incurable defect in the case. However, rules of pleading are conveniences to promote justice and not to impede or warp it. All allegations of fact in a verified complaint, which are subsequently omitted or contradicted, are still binding on the complainant. The rule is valid and useful, but it does not exist in a vacuum and cannot be mechanically applied. It is a good rule to defeat abuses of the privilege to amend and to discourage sham and untruthful pleadings. It is not a rule, however, which is intended to prevent honest complainants from correcting erroneous allegations of generic terms which may have legal implications but which are also loosely used by laymen or to prevent the correction of ambiguous statements of fact. The rule is aimed at averments of fact the pleading party attempts to avoid in a later pleading. Lim v. The.TV Corporation (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 684, 690-691, 121 Cal. Rptr. 2d 333 , citing Berman v. Bromberg (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 936, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 777 and Contreras v. Blue Cross of California (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 945, 245 Cal. Rptr. 258

Verification of inconsistent facts indicates perjury, although inconsistent theories may be pleaded. Manti v. Gunari (1970) 5 Cal. App. 3d 442, 449, 85 Cal. Rptr. 366

Fact available from public records improperly alleged on information and belief. People v. Birch Securities Co. (1948) 86 Cal. App. 2d 703, 708, 196 P.2d 143

Facts that are peculiarly within the knowledge of the pleader improperly alleged on basis of information and belief. Hall v. James (1926) 79 Cal. App. 433, 435-436, 249 P. 876

[g] Language of Statute

Framing pleading in language of statute germane to action is ordinarily sufficient. Quinn v. Mathiassen (1935) 4 Cal. 2d 329, 332, 49 P.2d 284

[h] Separate Causes of Action

Separate causes of action to be stated separately. Summers v. Dominguez (1938) 29 Cal. App. 2d 308, 313, 84 P.2d 237

[i] Theory of Action

Plaintiff is permitted to plead inconsistent theories of recovery in separate counts and is entitled to recover on whichever count is supported by evidence. Grudt v. City of Los Angeles (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 575, 586, 86 Cal. Rptr. 465, 468 P.2d 825 ; Burks v. Poppy Construction Co. (1962) 57 Cal. 2d 463, 470, 20 Cal. Rptr. 609, 370 P.2d 313 ; Brandolino v. Lindsay (1969) 269 Cal. App. 2d 319, 324, 75 Cal. Rptr. 56

Cause of action is obligation to be enforced that may be stated in separate counts. Eichler Homes of San Mateo, Inc. v. Superior Court (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 845, 847, 13 Cal. Rptr. 194, 361 P.2d 914 ; Kaufman & Broad Bldg. Co. v. City & Suburban Mortg. Co. (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 206, 215, 88 Cal. Rptr. 858

The rule of pleading related to inconsistent factual averments does not apply to alternative or even inconsistent pleading of the legal effect of the same facts. Lim v. The.TV Corporation (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 684, 690, 121 Cal. Rptr. 2d 333

California employs primary rights theory to determine scope of causes of action; under that theory, one single cause of action exists for invasion of one primary right. Swartzendruber v. City of San Diego (1992) 3 Cal. App. 4th 896, 904, 5 Cal. Rptr. 2d 64

When exact nature of facts is in doubt or when exact legal nature of plaintiff's right and defendant's liability depend on facts not well known to plaintiff, pleading properly sets forth alternative theories in varied and inconsistent counts. Rader Co. v. Stone (1986) 178 Cal. App. 3d 10, 29, 223 Cal. Rptr. 806

Doctrine limiting plaintiff to recovery on theory of his or her pleadings repudiated. Fletcher v. Western National Life Ins. Co. (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 376, 399, 89 Cal. Rptr. 78

Facts conforming to several theories of recovery are permissibly pleaded in single count in complaint. Flournoy v. State of California (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 806, 811, 80 Cal. Rptr. 485

[9] Prayer

[a] Effect and Purpose

Improper prayer for relief does not destroy otherwise sufficiently stated cause of action. Carney v. Simmonds (1957) 49 Cal. 2d 84, 96, 315 P.2d 305

Prayer as establishing court jurisdiction. Gardiner v. Royer (1914) 167 Cal. 238, 244, 139 P. 75

Where plaintiff's complaint requested, in its prayer for relief, double damages under the Uniform Trade Secrets Act, but failed to allege, or even try to allege, a prima facie case for misappropriation of a trade secret, the court refused to conclude that its lawsuit constituted a claim for misappropriation of trade secrets. CytoDyn of New Mexico, Inc. v. Amerimmune Pharmaceuticals, Inc. (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 288, 297-98, 72 Cal. Rptr. 3d 600

No legal requirement for party to affirmatively plead entitlement to costs of prejudgment interest to be able to recover them. Pilimai v. Farmers Insurance Exchange Co. (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 1093, 1098, 26 Cal. Rptr. 3d 383

Complaint must state specific dollar amount sought only when a default judgment is to be entered; in any other case, the court may grant the plaintiff any relief consistent with the case made by the complaint and embraced within the issue. Furia v. Helm (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 945, 957, 4 Cal. Rptr. 3d 357 .

Absence of a specific amount from the complaint not necessarily fatal as long as the pleaded facts entitle the plaintiff to relief. Furia v. Helm (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 945, 957, 4 Cal. Rptr. 3d 357 .

Failure of cross complainant to plead damages in detail and with certainty is defect deemed waived by cross defendant in absence of demurrer on that ground. Central Surety & Ins. Corp. v. Foley (1962) 204 Cal. App. 2d 738, 743, 22 Cal. Rptr. 504

Statement contained in prayer of complaint, although not bolstering insufficient pleading, may be considered in determining whether pleader can amend to state cause of action. Lane v. Davis (1959) 172 Cal. App. 2d 302, 310, 342 P.2d 267

Power of court to grant any relief consistent with issues raised by pleadings if answer has been filed. Martin v. Pacific Southwest Royalties (1940) 41 Cal. App. 2d 161, 172, 106 P.2d 443

[b] Default Actions

Court in default annulment of marriage case exceeded its jurisdiction by awarding plaintiff money in lieu of specific property prayed for in complaint where prayer did not request monetary award. Wilkinson v. Wilkinson (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 1164, 1167, 91 Cal. Rptr. 372

Failure to make specific request for allowable interest did not preclude award for such in contested case in which prayer did request "such other and further relief as to the court seems proper." Shell Chemical Corp. v. Owl Transfer Co. (1959) 173 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 796, 804-805 , 344 P.2d 108

Right to attorney's fees is in issue though not requested in prayer if lease incorporated by reference in complaint showed defendant's agreement to pay it. Martin v. Pacific Southwest Royalties (1940) 41 Cal. App. 2d 161, 172, 106 P.2d 443

[10] Pretrial Conference Order

Issue of defendant's negligence is triable even though not pleaded in complaint if pretrial conference order recited such negligence as issue to be tried. Grudt v. City of Los Angeles (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 575, 585, 86 Cal. Rptr. 465, 468 P.2d 825

Pretrial conference order, when filed, is part of record controlling subsequent course of case unless modified at or before trial to prevent injustice, even though inconsistent with pleadings. Grudt v. City of Los Angeles (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 575, 585, 86 Cal. Rptr. 465, 468 P.2d 825

Pretrial conference order supersedes inconsistent pleadings. Jay v. Dollarhide (1970) 3 Cal. App. 3d 1001, 1011, 84 Cal. Rptr. 538

[11] Real Party in Interest

Primary purpose underlying requirement that action be brought in name of real party in interest (Code Civ. Proc. § 367) is to protect defendant from multiplicity of suits and further annoyance and vexation at hands of other claimants on same demand. Vaughn v. Dame Construction Co. (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 144, 149, 272 Cal. Rptr. 261

Purpose of Code Civ. Proc. § 367, requiring that actions be prosecuted in name of real party in interest, is to protect defendant from multiplicity of actions predicated on same gravamen and to preserve all personal defenses and counterclaims available to that defendant. Kaley v. Catalina Yachts (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 1187, 1195, 232 Cal. Rptr. 384

[12] Sanctions

Trial court properly awarded sanctions against cross complainants and their counsel jointly under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 for time spent defending against frivolous cross complaint. 580 Folsom Associates v. Prometheus Development Co. (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 1, 27-28, 272 Cal. Rptr. 227

[13] Signature

Where complaint was signed by party's father, Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7 may be interpreted to allow correction of signature defect after the defect is called to the attention of the plaintiff, where the correction is promptly made and the court finds that the plaintiff actually assented to the filing of the action. Board of Trustees v. Superior Court (2007) 149 Cal. App. 4th 1154, 1167-1170, 1173, 57 Cal. Rptr. 3d 755

A corporation's failure to have an attorney sign the complaint on behalf of the corporation is a defect that may be corrected, on such terms as are just in the sound discretion of the court. CLD Construction v. City of San Ramon (2004) 120 Cal. App. 4th 1141, 1149, 16 Cal. Rptr. 3d 555

Omission of signature to pleading is irregularity not affecting jurisdiction of court and curable by amendment. Canadian Bank of Commerce v. Leale (1910) 14 Cal. App. 307, 309, 111 P. 759

Unsigned complaint is sufficient to institute action within period of limitation. Canadian Bank of Commerce v. Leale (1910) 14 Cal. App. 307, 308-309, 111 P. 759

Use of fictitious names to designate defendants in personal injury action. Smeltzley v. Nicholson Mfg. Co. (1977) 18 Cal. 3d 932, 940, 136 Cal. Rptr. 269, 559 P.2d 624

Purpose of designating defendants by fictitious names is to toll statute of limitations. Austin v. Massachusetts Bonding & Insurance Co. (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 596, 602, 15 Cal. Rptr. 817, 364 P.2d 681

[15] Verification

Purpose of verification is to ensure good faith in plaintiff's averments or statements. Albertson v. Raboff (1960) 185 Cal. App. 2d 372, 388, 8 Cal. Rptr. 398

Complaint commencing civil action generally need not be verified. Quick v. Corsaro (1960) 180 Cal. App. 2d 831, 836, 4 Cal. Rptr. 674

Verification used as counteraffidavit in opposition to motion to quash service of summons. Atkins, Kroll & Co. v. Broadway Lumber Co., (1963) 222 Cal. App. 2d 646, 654, 35 Cal. Rptr. 385

[16] Filing Fee

Neither Gov. Code § 68511.3, which creates a special regime for prison inmates who seek permission to proceed in forma pauperis, nor any other provision of law authorizes a dismissal of a civil action filed by an inmate for failure to file a certified statement of account; instead, the sanction for a failure to file a statement of account is to require a payment of the full amount of fees under § 68511.3(e). Sanders v. Yarborough (2006) 137 Cal. App. 4th 764, 770, 40 Cal. Rptr. 3d 565

For discussion of waiving court fees because of a person's financial condition, see Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees, § 174.110 et seq.

[1] FORM Case Cover Sheet--Judicial Council Form CM-010 [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.220]

Judicial Council Form CM-010, the Civil Case Cover Sheet illustrated in [1], above, must be filed with the first paper, typically the complaint, in each civil action or proceeding, except those filed in small claims court or filed under the Probate Code, Family Code, or Welfare and Institutions Code [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.220(b)(1)]. It must be filed in addition to any other cover sheet required by local rule (such as those required in some local trial delay reduction programs).

The cover sheet need not be served with the complaint unless the plaintiff has indicated on the sheet that the case is complex under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.400 et seq. or a collections case under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.740 [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.220(a)].

If a party that is required to provide a cover sheet under this rule or a similar local rule fails to do so or provides a defective or incomplete cover sheet at the time the party's first paper is submitted for filing, the clerk of the court must file the paper. Failure of a party or a party's counsel to file a cover sheet as required by this rule may subject that party, its counsel, or both, to sanctions under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.30 [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.220(c)].

For further discussion, see § 123.27.

This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

[3] Purpose of Cover Sheet

The sheet is to be used for statistical purposes, and may affect the assignment of a complex or collections case [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.220(a)]. Thus, in addition to preliminary information about the filing party or his or her attorney, and the name of the court and the case, the form consists primarily of providing basic information about the action or proceeding being initiated by the complaint or other first paper:

- In the caption, the nature of the case as limited or unlimited [for discussion, see Ch. 324, Jurisdiction: Subject Matter].

- In Paragraph 1, a very basic categorization of the case.

- In Paragraph 2, the designation of the case as complex or not complex, with additional information requested if the plaintiff is designating the case as complex [for discussion of what constitutes a complex case, see Ch. 425, Pretrial Proceedings, § 425.52].

- In Paragraph 3, information concerning the type of relief being sought.

- In Paragraph 4, the number of causes of action.

- In Paragraph 5, whether the case is or is not a class action suit.

The Complex Case Designation area in the caption is for use by the defendant to either contest or join in the plaintiff's categorization of the case. The plaintiff's designation of the case is addressed in Paragraph 2, rather than in the caption.

Finally, the form calls for the signature of the filing party or his or her attorney.

[Title of Court. On or below 31/3 inches from the top of the paper, at line 8, set forth the title of the court (see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(3)), containing the name of the court and county (Code Civ. Proc. § 422.30).]

[Nature of Paper and Character of Action; Jurisdictional Classification. *Immediately below the number of the case, set forth the nature of the paper and the character of the action (see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(6)). It is customary to use all capital letters for the nature of the paper line, although the character line is sometimes in lower case letters. Attorneys vary regarding how they designate nature and character, but the following illustration is typical. If the case is a limited civil case, the caption must so state (see Code Civ. Proc. § 422.30(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(10)). The caption must also state either that the amount demanded exceeds or does not exceed $10,000 (see Gov. Code § 70613(b); Cal. If a case is reclassified by an amended complaint, cross-complaint, amended cross- complaint, or other pleading under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 403.020 or 403.030, the caption must indicate that the action or proceeding is reclassified by this pleading [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(11)]. The caption or title must state that the case is a limited civil case reclassified as an unlimited civil case, or an unlimited civil case reclassified as a limited civil case, or other words to that effect [*Cal. [Assigned Judge and Department. The name of the assigned judge and department, if any, appears below the nature of the paper or the character of the action or proceeding (Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(7)). For an initial complaint, this information is not available as the case has not yet been assigned; however in the matter of cross-complaints or amended complaints, this information may be available and should be inserted.]

_____ [Plaintiff or Cross Complainant] alleges:

[Body. The main portion of the complaint or cross complaint consists of a series of numbered paragraphs in which a statement is made of the facts constituting the cause of action, in ordinary and concise language (Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(a)(1)). Each numbered paragraph is generally limited to allegations of a single ultimate fact or set of circumstances. A separate set of numbered paragraphs is used for each separate count or a cause of action and for each additional cause of action (Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.112(1)). For the form of the body of a complaint with multiple counts and causes, see § 123.62. The paragraphs are numbered with arabic numerals preceding the paragraph on the same line as the first sentence. The following are illustrations.]

[Demand for Judgment for Relief. Following the factual allegations set forth a demand for judgment for the relief to which plaintiff or cross complainant claims he or she is entitled. If recovery of money or damages is demanded, the amount demanded shall be stated (Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(a)(2)). If the action is brought to recover damages for personal injury or wrongful death, the amount of money or damages demanded must not be stated (Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)), and in no case may an amount of punitive damages be stated (Civ. Code § 3295(e); Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)). This part is generally referred to as the prayer and often consists of an introductory line followed by a listing of items of relief.]

VERIFICATION

I, _____ [name], am the _____ [identify party, e.g., plaintiff] in the above-entitled action. I have read the foregoing complaint and know the contents thereof. The same is true of my own knowledge, except as to those matters which are therein alleged on information and belief, and as to those matters, I believe it to be true.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

_____ [signature]

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, illustrates the various parts of a complaint and cross complaint and sets out the required format of such pleadings. It sets forth the illustrations of:

- The caption [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 422.30, 422.40] and the required format of the first page [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.100 et seq.].

- The body, which must contain a statement of the facts constituting the cause of action in ordinary and concise language [see Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10].

- The prayer or demand for judgment [see Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10].

- The signature of the attorney of record in his or her individual name, or if none, the party [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(a) (applicable to actions filed on or after January 1, 1995; pleadings filed in actions commenced before 1995 may be signed by either the attorney or the party under Code Civ. Proc. § 446); for discussion, see § 123.23, above] and the verification, if any [see Code Civ. Proc. § 446].

A complaint for or against a class party must include in the caption the designation "CLASS ACTION." This designation must be in capital letters on the first page of the complaint, immediately below the case number but above the description of the nature of the complaint. The complaint in a class action must also contain a separate heading entitled "CLASS ACTION ALLEGATIONS," under which the plaintiff describes how the requirements for class certification are met [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.761].

A complaint or cross complaint generally need not be verified [Quick v. Corsaro (1960) 180 Cal. App. 2d 831, 836, 4 Cal. Rptr. 674] . However, in certain actions and proceedings, verification is required by statute [for a summary of those actions and proceedings, see [7], below, and Ch. 572, Verification].

Even if verification is not required, plaintiff or cross complainant in an unlimited civil case may wish to verify in order to compel the other party to file a verified answer [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 91(a), 92(b), 446] or to require specific, rather than general, denials of the controverted allegations in the complaint or cross complaint [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 91(a), 431.30(d)].

[4] Preparation of Documents Offered for Filing

[a] Paper

Documents offered for filing, other than exhibits, copies, and printed forms furnished by the court clerk must be on opaque, unglazed paper, white or unbleached, of standard quality not less than 20-pound weight, 81/2 by 11 inches in size [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.103]. All original papers filed in the court must be on recycled paper. All copies of papers, documents, and exhibits filed with the court or served on other parties must be on recycled paper. Filing or serving a paper after these dates will constitute a certification that the paper was purchased as recycled paper [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.101(b). see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1.6(22) ("recycled" defined)].

Each paper presented for filing must contain two prepunched normal-sized holes, centered 21/2 inches apart and 5/8 inch from the top of the paper [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.115.]

[b] Type Size and Color

All documents offered for filing in court except exhibits, copies of documents, printed forms furnished by the clerks of the courts, and, in superior court, records on appeal from civil cases and briefs filed in the appellate departments are to be typewritten or printed or prepared by a photocopying or other duplication process that will produce clear and permanent copies equally legible to printing, in type not smaller than 12 points. The type face must be essentially equivalent to Courier, Times Roman, or Helvetica. The color of print must be blue-black or black [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.106].

[c] Single-Sided; Spacing

Only one side of the paper is to be used, and the lines on each page must be one and one half spaced or double spaced and numbered consecutively, but descriptions of real property may be single spaced, and footnotes, quotations, and printed forms of corporate surety bonds and undertakings may be single spaced and have unnumbered lines if they comply generally with the space requirements of Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111 [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.108(3)].

Each page must be numbered consecutively at the bottom. All papers must consist entirely of original pages without riders and must be firmly bound together at the top. Exhibits may be fastened to pages of the specified size and, when prepared by machine copying process, must be equal to typewritten material in legibiltiy and permanency of image [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.114].

Except for exhibits, each paper filed with the court must have a footer in the bottom margin of each page, placed below the page number and divided from the rest of the document by a printed line. The footer must contain the title of the paper or some clear and concise abbreviation in at least 10-point type [Cal. Rules Ct., Rule 2.110]. One example given in the rules is simply "Complaint" [see Cal. Rules Ct., Rule 2.110(b)].

[5] Additions, Deletions, Interlineations, and Copies

Additions, deletions, or interlineations must be initialed by the clerk or judge at the time of filing [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.116]. All copies served must conform to the original filed, including the numbering of lines, pagination, additions, deletions, and interlineations [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.117)].

[6] Acceptance for Filing

The clerk of the court cannot accept for filing or file any papers that do not comply with Tit. 2, Div. 2, ch. 1 of the Cal. Rules of Ct. However, for good cause shown, the court may permit the filing of papers that do not comply with the Rules [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.118(c)]; and a clerk cannot reject a paper for filing solely on the ground that it is handwritten or handprinted or that the handwriting or handprinting is in a color other than blue-black or black [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.118(a)].

[7] Actions Involving Installment or Automotive Sales, Consumer Obligations, or Unlawful Detainer

In any action or proceeding subject to the provisions of the Unruh Retail Installment Sales Act (Civ. Code § 1801 et seq.) or the Rees-Levering Motor Vehicle Sales and Finance Act (Civ. Code § 2981 et seq.), in all limited civil cases subject to the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 395(b) (concerning (1) actions arising from an offer or provision of goods, services, loans, or extensions of credit intended primarily for personal, family, or household use or (2) actions arising from a transaction consummated as a proximate result of either an unsolicited telephone call made by a seller engaged in the business of consummating transactions of that kind or a telephone call or electronic transmission made by the buyer or lessee in response to a solicitation by the seller), or in an action or proceeding for unlawful detainer as defined in Code Civ. Proc. § 1161, the plaintiff must file, concurrently with the complaint, an affidavit (or declaration under penalty of perjury [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) stating facts showing that the action has been commenced in the proper court for the trial of the action or proceeding, and that the action is subject to the provisions of Civ. Code § 1812.10 or 2984.4 or of Code Civ. Proc. § 395(b) or is an action for unlawful detainer.

In lieu of an affidavit or declaration, the required facts may also be stated in a complaint verified by the oath of the plaintiff or of his or her attorney [Civ. Code §§ 1812.10, 2984.4; Code Civ. Proc. § 396a]. In cases subject to Civ. Code § 1812.10 or 2984.4, however, the facts may not be stated on information or belief when they are stated in a verified complaint [Civ. Code §§ 1812.10, 2984.4]. When an affidavit or declaration is filed with the complaint, a copy must be served with the summons [Civ. Code §§ 1812.10, 2984.4; Code Civ. Proc. § 396a].

If a plaintiff fails to file an affidavit or declaration or to state the required facts in a verified complaint, there may be no further proceedings, except to dismiss the action without prejudice [Civ. Code §§ 1812.10, 2984.4; Code Civ. Proc. § 396a]. In an action subject to Civ. Code § 1812.10 or 2984.4, such dismissal is obtained on the court's own motion or on motion of any party [Civ. Code §§ 1812.10, 2984.4]. The court may, however, on such terms as may be just, permit the affidavit or declaration to be filed after the complaint. In that case, a copy of the affidavit must be served on the defendant, and the time to answer or otherwise to plead will date from the time of service [Civ. Code §§ 1812.10, 2984.4; Code Civ. Proc. § 396a]; for venue allegation forms, see Ch. 20, Allegations Commonly Used , for further discussion and forms, see Ch. 89, Automobiles: Sales and Financing Under the Rees-Levering Act, § 89.61[5]; Ch. 501, Sales: Retail Installment Sales and Ch. 333, Landlord and Tenant: Eviction Actions .

[1] FORM Body of Complaint or Cross Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(a)]--Skeletal Form--Multiple Causes of Action and Counts

[The headings, numbered paragraphs, and general allegations of a complaint or cross complaint in which more than one cause of action is pleaded and in which one of the causes of action is stated in several counts may be arranged as follows.]

_____ [Identify party, e.g., Plaintiff] alleges:

FIRST CAUSE OF ACTION

[1. _____ (Allege plaintiff's/cross complainant's status or capacity if plaintiff/cross complainant is other than a competent adult or is suing in a representative capacity.)]

2. _____ [Allege defendant's/cross defendant's identity, capacity, and residence, e.g., Defendant is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a resident of _____ County, California.]

3. _____ [Allege unknown defendants/cross defendants by fictitious names in appropriate fictitious name allegation.]

[4. The allegations of this complaint stated on information and belief are likely to have evidentiary support after a reasonable opportunity for further investigation or discovery.]

5. _____ [Here and in subsequent numbered paragraphs, state facts constituting the cause of action in ordinary and concise language.]

WHEREFORE, _____ [identify party, e.g., plaintiff] prays judgment against defendant as hereinafter set forth.

SECOND CAUSE OF ACTION
FIRST COUNT
(_____ [Specify theory, e.g., Breach of Contract])

[Paragraphs in succeeding causes of actions or counts should be numbered consecutively from the last paragraph of the immediately preceding cause of action or count.]

[10. _____ (If desired, specify any paragraphs from preceding causes of action or counts to be incorporated by reference, e.g., Plaintiff refers to and herein incorporates Paragraphs 1 through 5 of the First Cause of Action).]

11. _____ [Here and in subsequent numbered paragraphs, state facts constituting the cause of action under the theory alleged, in ordinary and concise language.]

WHEREFORE, _____ [identify party, e.g., plaintiff] prays judgment against defendant as hereinafter set forth.

SECOND CAUSE OF ACTION
SECOND COUNT

[Paragraphs in succeeding causes of actions or counts should be numbered consecutively from the last paragraph of the immediately preceding cause of action or count.]

20. _____ [If desired, specify any paragraphs from preceding cause of action to be incorporated by reference, e.g., Plaintiff refers to and herein incorporates Paragraphs 1 through 5 of the First Cause of Action, and paragraphs 11 through 13 of the Second Cause of Action, First Count, as though fully set forth herein.]

21. _____ [Here and in subsequent numbered paragraphs, state facts constituting the cause of action under the theory alleged, in ordinary and concise language.]

WHEREFORE, _____ [identify party, e.g., plaintiff] prays judgment as follows:

[Set forth prayer for relief for each cause of action and count, for example:]

On the FIRST CAUSE OF ACTION:

1. For general damages _____ [in the sum of $_____ or according to proof];

2. For _____ [specify special damages, if any, e.g., damages for loss of earnings] _____ [according to proof or in the sum of $_____].

On the SECOND CAUSE OF ACTION, FIRST COUNT:

3. For compensatory damages in the sum of $_____;

4. For interest on the sum of $_____ from and after _____ [date];

[5. For reasonable attorney's fees _____ in the sum of $_____ or according to proof.]

On the SECOND CAUSE OF ACTION, SECOND COUNT:

6. For the sum of $_____;

7. For interest on the sum of $_____ from and after _____ [date].

On ALL CAUSES OF ACTION AND COUNTS:

8. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

9. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[Verification, if desired. See § 123.61[1].]

The form in [1], above, illustrates a format that may be used in separately stating and numbering each cause of action and count, as well as the allegations therein, when multiple causes of action and counts are alleged by a single plaintiff against a single, named defendant or a single cross complainant against a single cross defendant. In the following discussion, usage of "plaintiff" also refers to "cross complainant" and usage of "defendant" also refers to "cross defendant," unless otherwise noted.

The form may be modified for use in a complaint alleging a single cause of action. When there is only one cause of action that asserts a single theory of recovery, the cause of action ordinarily will not be numbered or otherwise identified as such.

For a sample complaint involving multiple causes of action and parties, see Ch. 83, Automobiles: Bringing the Action, § 83.66. For a general form of complaint involving multiple parties, see § 123.63.

A complaint for or against a class party must include in the caption the designation "CLASS ACTION." This designation must be in capital letters on the first page of the complaint, immediately below the case number but above the description of the nature of the complaint. The complaint in a class action must contain a separate heading entitled "CLASS ACTION ALLEGATIONS," under which the plaintiff describes how the requirements for class certification are met [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.761].

[3] Multiple Causes of Action

[a] General Considerations

California joinder laws permit a plaintiff who alleges a cause of action against one or more defendants to unite with that cause any other causes that he or she has against the defendant [Code Civ. Proc. § 427.10].

In determining whether to allege a particular cause of action, counsel should determine whether the claim would be subject to a plea of abatement because of another pending action, or to objections based on the prohibition against claim-splitting because of a prior action [see Ch. 3, Abatement of Actions and Ch. 491, Res Judicata]. Counsel should also consider his or her obligation to assert the cause of action in light of professional and ethical standards of conduct [see Gambert v. Hart (1872) 44 Cal. 542, 552 (counsel bound to use ordinary skill and care in course of professional employment); Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rules 3-110 (competent performance), 3-200 (prohibiting litigation for purpose of harassment); for further discussion, see Ch. 72, Attorney Practice and Ethics, § 72.270 et seq.].

In addition, if a party against whom a complaint has been filed and served fails to allege in a cross complaint a related cause of action that he or she has against the plaintiff at the time of serving an answer to the complaint or filing the cross complaint, the party generally may not assert, at a later time in another action, the nonpleaded related cause of action against the plaintiff [Code Civ. Proc. § 426.30(a); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 426.30(b) (exemptions), 426.40 (exceptions), 426.50 (application for leave to assert unpleaded cause)]. For further discussion relating to compulsory cross complaints, see § 123.31, above.

[b] Cause of Action Distinguished From Count

The phrase "causes of action" is often used indiscriminately to mean what it says and also to mean "counts," which state differently the same cause of action [see Eichler Homes of San Mateo, Inc. v. Superior Court (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 845, 847, 13 Cal. Rptr. 194, 361 P.2d 914] . The essence of a cause of action is the existence of a primary right and one violation of that right [Kaufman & Broad Bldg. Co. v. City & Suburban Mortg. Co. (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 206, 215, 88 Cal. Rptr. 858] . An example of a primary right is the plaintiff's right to be free from injury to his or her person [see Slater v. Blackwood (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 791, 795, 126 Cal. Rptr. 225, 543 P.2d 593] .

A plaintiff may plead in one cause of action alternative, inconsistent theories of recovery under separate "counts" [see Eichler Homes of San Mateo, Inc. v. Superior Court (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 845, 847, 13 Cal. Rptr. 194, 361 P.2d 914 ; Tanforan v. Tanforan (1916) 173 Cal. 270, 273, 159 P. 709] . For example, a plaintiff may bring an action to recover damages arising from personal injuries suffered in an automobile accident by seeking recovery under both negligence and willful misconduct theories [see Savage v. Van Marle (1974) 39 Cal. App. 3d 241, 245, 114 Cal. Rptr. 51] .

A count must state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action if it is to withstand a general demurrer [see Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(e); Warren v. Atchison, T. & S.F. Ry. Co. (1971) 19 Cal. App. 3d 24, 41, 96 Cal. Rptr. 317] . If one well-pleaded count in a complaint is supported by the evidence, the plaintiff is entitled to recover [Grudt v. City of Los Angeles (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 575, 586, 86 Cal. Rptr. 465, 468 P.2d 825] . Note, however, that the rule permitting inconsistent counts does not permit the pleader to allege inconsistently in the same complaint on the subject of facts of which the pleader purports to speak with knowledge under oath [Faulkner v. Cal. Toll Bridge Auth. (1953) 40 Cal. 2d 317, 328, 253 P.2d 659] .

Some examples of a single cause of action based on multiple counts are (1) an action based on personal injuries in an automobile accident alleging theories of negligence and willful misconduct [see Savage v. Van Marle (1974) 39 Cal. App. 3d 241, 245, 114 Cal. Rptr. 51] ; (2) an action based on removal of items from land by former tenant alleging theories of breach of contract, conversion, restoration and reinstallment, and waste [see Peiser v. Mettler (1958) 50 Cal. 2d 594, 603-605, 328 P.2d 953] ; (3) an action based on economic loss alleging theories of breach of contract and common counts [see Maselli v. E. H. Appleby & Co., Inc. (1953) 117 Cal. App. 2d 634, 635-637 ; 256 P.2d 618] .

Generally, it is a good practice to state a separate count for each separate theory of liability, rather than to combine theories in a single count or cause of action. This approach helps avoid both inconsistent pleading in the same count, as well as confusion in the framing of issues [see Steiner v. Rowley (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 713, 715-716, 718-719, 221 P.2d 9 ; Zumbrun v. University of Southern California (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 1, 9, 101 Cal. Rptr. 499] . A separate statement of causes of action joined in the same complaint is no longer required by statute [see Stats. 1973, ch. 828 (repealing Code Civ. Proc. § 425.20 and amending Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10)].

For further discussion of the distinction between causes of action and counts, see Ch. 206, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings .

[c] Numbering Causes of Action, Counts, and Paragraphs

Each separately stated cause of action must be separately numbered [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.112(1)], and separately stated counts should also be separately numbered.

[d] Identification of Cause of Action or Count

When more than one cause of action is stated, each separate cause of action must be specifically identified with all of the following information [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.112]:

- Its number (e.g., "First Cause of Action").
- Its nature (e.g., "for Fraud").
- The party asserting it, if more than one party is represented in the pleading (e.g., "by Plaintiff Jones").
- The party or parties to whom it is directed (e.g., "against Defendant Smith").

Mistaken labels and confusion of legal theory, however, are not fatal to the statement of the cause of action [see Lacy v. Laurentide Finance Corp. (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 251, 256, 104 Cal. Rptr. 547] .

[4] Allegations

Paragraphs 1 and 2 of the form identify the parties. If the plaintiff is an individual, usually no identifying allegation is necessary, except if desired simply to "set the stage" of the pleading. Paragraph 3 calls for the insertion, if desired, of an allegation including fictitiously named defendants [see Code Civ. Proc. § 474; for further discussion, see § 123.21[4], above]. For further discussion and general forms of allegations relating to the identification of plaintiffs, defendants, and fictitiously named defendants, see Ch. 20, Allegations Commonly Used .

Paragraphs 10 and 20 provide examples of incorporating by reference allegations from other causes of action or counts. If the complaint consists of multiple causes of action or counts, this device is a convenient means of avoiding repetition. Care must be taken, however, to avoid incorporating any facts that would render the complaint uncertain or inconsistent [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(f) (demurrer on ground that pleading is uncertain; "uncertain" as including ambiguous and unintelligible); for further discussion, see § 123.15, above].

[5] Allegations on Information and Belief

Optional Paragraph 4 of the form is included if the complaint includes any allegations on information and belief. In this case, the complaint should expressly state that those allegations are likely to have evidentiary support after a reasonable opportunity for further investigation or discovery. The purpose of the allegation is to ensure compliance with Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(b)(3) [for discussion, see § 123.23[2], above].

The attorney of record must sign the complaint in his or her individual name, or if the party is not represented, the party must sign [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(a) (actions filed on or after January 1, 1995, pleadings filed in actions commenced before 1995 may be signed by either the attorney or the party under Code Civ. Proc. § 446); for discussion, see § 123.23, above].

[2] Use of Form

The form of complaint in [1], above, may be used when multiple causes of action are alleged by more than one plaintiff against more than one defendant or by more than one cross complainant against more than one cross defendant. In the following discussion, usage of "plaintiff" also refers to "cross complainant" and usage of "defendant" also refers to "cross defendant," unless otherwise noted.

For a sample complaint involving multiple parties and multiple causes of action, see Ch. 83, Automobiles: Bringing the Action, § 83.66. For a form of complaint setting forth more than one cause of action based on alternative legal theories or counts, see § 123.62.

A complaint for or against a class party must include in the caption the designation "CLASS ACTION." This designation must be in capital letters on the first page of the complaint, immediately below the case number but above the description of the nature of the complaint. The complaint in a class action must contain a separate heading entitled "CLASS ACTION ALLEGATIONS," under which the plaintiff describes how the requirements for class certification are met [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.761].

[3] Multiple Parties

In preparing the complaint or cross complaint, counsel should determine whether there are any persons that must be joined under compulsory joinder rules [see Code Civ. Proc. § 389(a),(b)]. A complaint or cross complaint must state the names, if known to the pleader, of any such persons who are not joined and the reasons why they are not joined [see Code Civ. Proc. § 389(c)]. Counsel should also verify whether persons contemplated as plaintiffs or defendants satisfy permissive joinder rules [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 378 (plaintiffs), 379 (defendants)]. For a summary of factors useful in determining who should be included as parties to an action as well as procedures relating to joinder of parties, see the Procedural Guide in Ch. 395, Parties.

If the pleading is a cross complaint and if a party against whom a complaint has been filed and served fails to allege in the cross complaint any related cause of action that (at the time of serving his or her answer to the complaint) he or she has against the plaintiff, with certain exceptions, the party may not thereafter in any other action assert against the plaintiff the related cause of action not pleaded [Code Civ. Proc. § 426.30(a); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 426.30(b) (exemptions), 426.40 (exceptions), 426.50 (application for leave to assert unpleaded cause)]. The permissive cross complaint rules under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 428.10-428.30 should also be reviewed to determine what persons may properly be the subject of the cross complaint. For a discussion of these statutes, see §§ 123.30 and 123.31, above .

[b] Identification of Parties and Causes of Action

This form of complaint conforms to the requirement that each separate cause of action must be specifically identified with all of the following information [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.112]:

- Its number (e.g., "First Cause of Action").
- Its nature (e.g., "for Fraud").
- The party asserting it, if more than one party is represented in the pleading (e.g., "by Plaintiff Jones").
- The party or parties to whom it is directed (e.g., "against Defendant Smith").

[4] Allegations

The form provides three skeletal causes of action that set forth standard allegations that may be used in a multiple-party complaint or cross complaint.

Under the First Cause of Action, Paragraph 1 provides an initial allegationidentifying the specific person who is asserting the cause of action as "Plaintiff". The utility of this device is that it enables the pleader to set out in a definite manner who among the several plaintiffs was allegedly injured by the defendants under the cause of action. The pleader also conveniently avoids having to identify the particular party at each occurrence of the term "plaintiff" throughout the pleading. This allegation is also provided under Paragraphs 10 and 20 for the Second and Third Causes of Action.

The remaining allegations illustrate some of the basic allegations for identifying the various parties to the causes of action, including fictitiously named defendants and individuals acting as agents of a named defendant. For further discussion and general forms of allegations relating to the identification of plaintiffs, defendants, and fictitiously named defendants, see Ch. 20, Allegations Commonly Used .

[5] Allegations on Information and Belief

Optional Paragraph 5 of the form is included if the complaint includes any allegations on information and belief. In this case, the complaint should expressly state that those allegations are likely to have evidentiary support after a reasonable opportunity for further investigation or discovery. The purpose of the allegation is to ensure compliance with Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(b)(3) [for discussion, see § 123.23[2], above].

[6] Prayer

A complaint or cross complaint is required to contain a demand for judgment for the relief to which the pleader claims he or she is entitled [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(a)(2)]. Hence, the foregoing form sets forth an example of a prayer under which each plaintiff separately states what relief he or she is seeking from the defendants specified in the particular cause of action. For a discussion of the use and effect of prayers in civil pleadings generally, as well as examples of prayers involving multiple plaintiffs or defendants, see Ch. 420, Prayers .

[7] Signature

The attorney of record must sign the complaint in his or her individual name, or if the party is not represented, the party must sign [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(a) (actions filed on or after January 1 1995; pleadings filed in actions commenced before 1995 may be signed by either the attorney or the party under Code Civ. Proc. § 446); for discussion, see § 123.23, above].

This form provides an example of a verification by multiple plaintiffs. Generally, a complaint need not be verified to commence a civil action [Quick v. Corsaro (1960) 180 Cal. App. 2d 831, 836, 4 Cal. Rptr. 674] ; for a list of actions and proceedings in which a verification is specifically required, see the Research Guide in Ch. 572, Verification.

Verification of the complaint requires the defendant to file a verified answer in an unlimited civil case [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 91(a), 92(b), 446]. Verification will also preclude the defendant from using a general denial in an unlimited civil case, and will preclude a general denial in a limited civil case if the action is a claim assigned to a third party for collection [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion of the effect that verifying a complaint has on the answer, see Ch. 26, Answers .

The form in [1], above, is for use to apply for a court order granting leave to file an otherwise proper cross complaint not filed within the applicable time period prescribed in Code Civ. Proc. § 428.50(a) or (b) [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 428.10, 428.50(c); see Loney v. Superior Court (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 719, 721-724, 206 Cal. Rptr. 769 (under section 428.50(b), (c) party must obtain leave of court to file cross complaint after trial date has been set by court and vacated by stipulation of parties)]. Leave to file a cross complaint may, in the interest of justice, be granted by the court at any time during the course of the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 428.50(c)].

The motion in the form is for leave to file a permissive cross complaint [see Code Civ. Proc. § 428.10]. This motion should be distinguished from a motion for leave to file a compulsory cross complaint under Code Civ. Proc. § 426.50 to set up a related cause of action, as defined in Code Civ. Proc. § 426.10(c) [see § 123.67]. If leave to file a permissive cross complaint is denied, the moving party can still assert the cause of action set forth in another civil action, subject to any statute of limitations defense, but if leave to file a compulsory cross complaint is denied, the cross action is forfeited and the moving party may not assert it in a subsequent civil action [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 426.10-426.70; for further discussion, see § 123.31, above].

Although there is no express statutory requirement that a copy of the proposed cross complaint be attached to the notice of motion, the better practice, which may be expressly required by local court rule, is to attach it [cf. Code Civ. Proc. § 1010 (if any paper on which a motion is to be based has not previously been served on the party to be notified and was not filed by that party, a copy of such paper must accompany the notice of motion)].

[4] Grounds

The motion is made on the grounds that (1) the proposed cross complaint is proper under Code Civ. Proc. § 428.10, the permissive cross complaint statute [see also Code Civ. Proc. § 428.30 (permissive joinder of actions in cross complaint)], and (2) granting leave to file it would be in the interest of justice [Code Civ. Proc. § 428.50(c)].

For a form of declaration supporting the motion, see § 123.65.

[5] Court's Discretion

After the answer has been filed, filing a cross complaint is a matter for the discretion of the trial court [see People v. City of Los Angeles (1960)179 Cal. App. 2d 558, 567, 4 Cal. Rptr. 531 , appeal dismissed, 364 U.S. 476 , reh. denied 365 U.S. 805 ; see also Dunzweiler v. Superior Court (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 569, 575-576, 73 Cal. Rptr. 331 (ruling on application to file cross complaint after answer is reversible on appeal only on showing abuse of discretion)].

[6] Form of Motion

There is no express statutory requirement that a motion for an order granting leave to file the cross complaint be noticed, but the better practice is to apply for the order by noticed motion [cf. Code Civ. Proc. § 428.50(c), relating to permissive cross complaints and requiring only that the party obtain leave of court, and Code Civ. Proc. § 426.50, relating to compulsory cross complaints and providing that leave may be granted only after notice to the adverse party]. A noticed motion may be expressly required by local court rule. Also, the general rule is that notice of motion must be given whenever the order sought may affect the rights of an adverse party [see McDonald v. Severy (1936) 6 Cal. 2d 629, 631, 59 P.2d 98 (motion to vacate a dismissal)].

A memorandum must be filed and a copy served with this notice of motion [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a)]. For discussion and forms, see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities .

I, _____ [name], declare:

I am _____ [identify declarant, e.g., an attorney at law duly admitted to practice before all the courts of the State of California and the attorney of record herein for _____ (moving party) or other statement as appropriate].

On or about _____ [date], defendant _____ [name] filed an answer to the complaint herein. Defendant has a cause of action against _____ [name] which is set forth in the copy of the cross complaint attached to the notice of motion as Exhibit A.

[_____ (If the intended cross complaint is against a person who is not a party to the action, state evidentiary facts showing that the cause of action to be asserted in the cross complaint either arose out of the transaction on which plaintiff's action is brought or that it asserts an interest in the property or controversy to which such action relates).]

The cross complaint was not filed due to _____ [state evidentiary facts as to why the cross complaint was not filed within the time prescribed by Code Civ. Proc. § 428.50(a) or (b)].

It is in the interest of justice that leave be granted to file the cross complaint in that _____ [state evidentiary facts, e.g., if leave is not granted, defendant will file a separate action against plaintiff which will require a separate trial whereas if leave is granted, all controversies between the parties can be resolved in the within action].

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

_____ [date]

_____ [typed name]

The form in [1], above, outlines a declaration that may be submitted in support of a notice of motion for leave to file a cross complaint [for a form of notice of motion, see § 123.64].

To support the request to cross complain against a new party, the declaration must show by a statement of evidentiary facts that the cause of action against the new party arises out of the transaction which cross complainant is being sued on, or asserts an interest in the property or controversy which is the subject of the action [see Code Civ. Proc. § 428.10].

The declaration must then state evidentiary facts showing that granting the motion would serve the interests of justice [see Code Civ. Proc. § 428.50(c)].

[3] Compulsory Cross Complaint

This declaration may be amended for use in seeking leave to file a compulsory cross complaint [for a form of notice of motion, see § 123.67]. A declaration supporting such a motion should state facts showing the cause of action in the proposed cross complaint is a related cause of action [see Code Civ. Proc. § 426.10 (same transaction or interest in same property)], the reason it was not filed before [Code Civ. Proc. § 426.50 (oversight, inadvertance, mistake, neglect, or other cause)], and that the party acted in good faith [Code Civ. Proc. § 426.50].

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use to apply for leave of court to file a compulsory cross complaint after having served an answer [see Code Civ. Proc. § 426.50].

A related cause of action means a cause of action which arises out of the same transaction, occurrence, or series of transactions or occurrences as the cause of action which the plaintiff alleges in his or her complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 426.10].

If a party against whom a complaint has been filed and served fails to allege in a cross complaint any related cause of action which, at the time of serving his or her answer to the complaint, he or she has against the plaintiff, such party may not thereafter in any other action assert against the plaintiff the related cause of action not pleaded [Code Civ. Proc. § 426.30(a)]. The filing of a cross complaint asserting a related cause of action is therefore said to be compulsory as distinguished from a permitted cross complaint [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 428.10-428.30; see also § 123.64[2] et seq.].

Leave of court to file a compulsory cross complaint may be granted after notice to the adverse party [Code Civ. Proc. § 426.50] and therefore a noticed motion is required [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1010].

Code Civ. Proc. § 426.50, by its own terms, is to be liberally construed to avoid forfeiture of causes of action. For a discussion of whether the granting of the motion is mandatory, see § 123.31[4], above.

[3] Proposed Cross Complaint

This form provides for a copy of the proposed cross complaint to be attached. If a copy is not attached, the identity of the parties and the essence of the cause of action should be set forth in the declaration in support of the motion. There is no specific requirement in this regard but the court should be aware of what particular cross complaint will be filed in order to make its decision on the motion.

[4] Grounds

The grounds set forth in the form are taken from Code Civ. Proc. § 426.50 which provides that a party who fails to plead a compulsory cross complaint whether through oversight, inadvertence mistake, or other cause may apply for leave of court if the party acted in good faith.

[5] Declaration in Support and Order

For forms of supporting declaration and order that may be modified for use with this form, see §§ 123.65 and 123.66.

[6] Memorandum

A Supporting memorandum must be filed and a copy served with this notice of motion [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a)]. For discussion and forms, see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities .

[2] Use of Form

Judicial Council Form MC-120, Confidential Reference List of Identifiers illustrated in [1], above, must be filed with the complaint if the court, on a showing of good cause, orders a party filing a document containing social security numbers or financial accounts numbers to file a reference list. The party may file this reference list, along with the redacted document that will be placed in the public file. The reference list is confidential. The confidential list must identify each item of redacted information and specify an appropriate reference that uniquely corresponds to each item of redacted information listed. All references in the case to the redacted identifiers included in the confidential reference list will be understood to refer to the corresponding complete identifier. A party may amend its reference list as of right [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1.20(b)(4)].

This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format is also available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

This chapter discusses the creation, governing instruments, and liabilities of common interest developments under various statutes and regulations. The chapter includes the following forms:

- Forms for failure to provide a purchaser of a separate interest with required documents [§§ 124.70-124.72].
- A complaint for an action against a separate interest owner for dues and assessments [§ 124.73].
- Forms for obtaining or opposing an order to reduce the percentage of votes necessary to amend a development's declaration [§§ 124.74-124.77].
- A complaint for an action based on the negligence of an association [§ 124.78].
- Forms for injunctive relief to restrain a managing association from selling an interest to enforce a lien for unpaid assessments [§§ 124.79, 124.80].
- A complaint for partition and sale of a condominium project [§ 124.81].
- A complaint for injunctive relief to compel an association's good faith approval or disapproval of proposed improvements [§ 124.83].
- Forms regarding alternative dispute resolution [§§ 124.82, 124.84, 124.85].
- A form relating to an action for damages against a builder for design or construction defects [§ 124.86].
- A form of affirmative defense based on the immunity from liability accorded a volunteer officer or volunter director [§ 124.87].

In addition, pursuant to its authority under the Subdivided Lands Act, the California Department of Real Estate has promulgated detailed regulations [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 2790 et seq.] governing most aspects of the creation and control of subdivisions, including those common interest developments that are subject to the Subdivided Lands Act [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 11004.5]. Finally, the Condominium and Cooperative Abuse Relief Act [15 U.S.C. § 3601 et seq.] contains federal regulations of condominium and cooperative housing conversions.

[1] Common Interest Development

Common interest developments are regulated by the Davis-Stirling Common Interest Development Act [Civ. Code § 1350 et seq.].

"Common interest development" means any of the following [Civ. Code § 1351(c)]:

- A community apartment project [see § 124.11[2][a]];
- A condominium project [see § 124.11[2][b]];
- A planned development [see § 124.11[2][c]]; or
- A stock cooperative [see § 124.11[2][d]].

Either common ownership of the additional contiguous or noncontiguous lots, parcels, or areas, or the enjoyment of the mutual, common, or reciprocal interests in or restrictions on the separately owned lots, parcels, areas, or spaces, or both, may be through ownership of shares of stock, membership in an association, or otherwise [Civ. Code § 1351(c)(2)]. If through stock, each share is deemed to be an interest in a common interest development and real estate development for purposes of Corp. Code § 25100(f) [Civ. Code § 1351(c)(2)].

The estate in a separately or commonly owned lot, parcel, area, or space may be an estate of inheritance or perpetual estate, an estate for life, an estate for years, or any combination of these types of estate [Civ. Code § 1351(c)(2); see also Civ. Code §§ 783 (condominium as estate in real property), 783.1 (stock cooperative as interest in real property)].

[2] Types of Common Interest Developments

[a] Community Apartment Project

"Community apartment project" means a common interest development in which an undivided interest in land is coupled with the right of exclusive occupancy of any apartment located thereon [Civ. Code § 1351(d); see also Adler v. Elphick (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 642, 644, 647, 649, 229 Cal. Rptr. 254 (community apartment project cannot be created informally, but must specify right to exclusive occupancy on face of deed)].

[b] Condominium Project

"Condominium project" means a common interest development consisting of an undivided interest in common in a portion of real property coupled with a separate interest in space called a unit, the boundaries of which are described on a recorded final map, parcel map, or condominium plan in sufficient detail to locate all boundaries thereof. The area within these boundaries may be filled with air, earth, or water, or any combination thereof, and need not be physically attached to land except by easements for access and, if necessary, support. The description of the unit may refer to (1) boundaries described in the recorded final map, parcel map, or condominium plan; (2) physical boundaries, either in existence, or to be constructed, such as walls, floors, and ceilings of a structure or any portion thereof; (3) an entire structure containing one or more units; or (4) any combination thereof. The portion or portions of the real property held in undivided interest may be all of the real property, except for the separate interests, or may include a particular three-dimensional portion thereof, the boundaries of which are described on a recorded final map, parcel map, or condominium plan. The area within these boundaries may be filled with air, earth, or water, or any combination thereof [see Bear Creek Master Assn. v. Edwards (2005) 130 Cal. App. 4th 1470, 1480, 31 Cal. Rptr. 3d 337 (presence of structure or building not required for condominium to exist)], and need not be physically attached to land except by easements for access and, if necessary, support. An individual condominium within a condominium project may include, in addition, a separate interest in other portions of the real property [Civ. Code § 1351(f)].

[c] Planned Development

"Planned development" means a common interest development other than a community apartment project, a condominium project, or a stock cooperative, that has either or both of the following features: (1) the owners of separately owned lots, parcels, or areas also own in common any contiguous or noncontiguous lots, parcels, or areas, and possess appurtenant rights to the beneficial use and enjoyment of the commonly owned property; and (2) the association that manages the development has the power to enforce an obligation of an owner of a separately owned lot, parcel, or area, with respect to the beneficial use and enjoyment, by means of an assessment [see Civ. Code §§ 1367, 1367.1], which may become a lien on the separately owned lot, parcel, or area [Civ. Code § 1351(k)].

"Stock cooperative" means a common interest development in which a corporation is formed or availed of primarily for the purpose of holding title to, either in fee simple or for a term of years, improved real property and in which all or substantially all of the shareholders of the corporation receive a right of exclusive occupancy in a portion of the real property, title to which is held by the corporation. The owners' interest in the corporation, whether evidenced by a share of stock, a certificate of membership, or otherwise, shall be deemed to be an interest in a common interest development and a real estate development for purposes of Corp. Code § 25100(f) [Civ. Code § 1351(m)].

A limited-equity housing cooperative that meets the criteria of Civ. Code § 817 is a stock cooperative [Civ. Code § 1351(m); but see Bus. & Prof. Code § 11003.2 (for purposes of Subdivided Lands Act, limited equity housing cooperative is not included as stock cooperative)].

Both the separate interest [see Civ. Code § 1351(l)(4)] and the correlative interest in the stock cooperative are interests in real property [Civ. Code § 783.1].

[3] Other Definitions

"Association" means a nonprofit corporation or unincorporated association created for the purpose of managing a common interest development [Civ. Code § 1351(a); see Corp. Code § 25012 ("owners' association" defined for purposes of Corporations Code)].

"Declaration" means the document containing certain required information concerning the common interest development [see Civ. Code §§ 1351(h), 1353].

"Declarant" means the person or group of persons designated in the declaration as declarant, or if no declarant is designated, the person or group of persons who sign the original declaration or who succeed to special rights, preferences, or privileges designated in the declaration as belonging to the signator of the original declaration [Civ. Code § 1351(g)].

The term "governing documents" means the declaration and any other documents, such as bylaws, operating rules of the association, articles of incorporation, or articles of association that govern the operation of the common interest development or association [Civ. Code § 1351(j); see 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 2792.8 (governing instruments for ownership or management of common interest subdivisions enumerated in Bus. & Prof. Code § 11004.5 that are subject to Subdivided Lands Act)].

"Condominium plan" means a plan of a condominium project meeting certain required informational and recordation requirements [see Civ. Code § 1351(e)].

"Common area" means the entire common interest development except the separate interests in the development [Civ. Code § 1351(b)].

"Exclusive use common area" means a portion of the common areas designated by the declaration for the exclusive use of one or more, but fewer than all, of the owners of the separate interests and which is or will be appurtenant to the separate interest or interests [Civ. Code § 1351(i)]. Unless the declaration otherwise provides, any shutters, awnings, window boxes, doorsteps, stoops, porches, balconies, patios, exterior doors, door frames, and hardware incident thereto, screens and windows or other fixtures designed to serve a single separate interest, but located outside the boundaries of the separate interest, are exclusive use common areas allocated exclusively to that separate interest [Civ. Code § 1351(i)(1)]. Notwithstanding the provisions of the declaration, internal and external telephone wiring designed to serve a single separate interest, but located outside the boundaries of the separate interest, are exclusive-use common areas allocated exclusively to that separate interest [Civ. Code § 1351(i)(2); see Civ. Code § 1364(f) (reasonable access by owner of separate interest for purpose of maintaining wiring)].

"Separate interest" in a community apartment project means the exclusive right to occupy an apartment in the project [Civ. Code § 1351(l)(1)].

"Separate interest" in a condominium project means an individual unit in the project [Civ. Code § 1351(l)(2)].

"Separate interest" in a planned development means a separately owned lot, parcel, or area in the development [Civ. Code § 1351(l)(3)].

"Separate interest" in a stock cooperative means the exclusive right to occupy a portion of the real property of the cooperative [Civ. Code § 1351(l)(4)].

Unless otherwise provided in the declaration or condominium plan, "separate interest" in any type of common interest development includes the interior surfaces of the walls, floors, ceilings, windows, doors, and outlets designated as boundaries of a separate interest, but the other portions of the walls, floors, or ceilings are part of the common areas [Civ. Code § 1351(l)].

Chapter 124 CONDOMINIUMS AND OTHER COMMON INTEREST DEVELOPMENTS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

12-124 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 124.12

§ 124.12 Different Types of Common Interest Developments Distinguished

Typically, a condominium consists of an apartment house in which the units consist of individual apartments and the common areas consist of the remainder of the building and the grounds. Individual owners maintain their own apartments, and an association of apartment owners maintains the common areas [White v. Cox (1971) 17 Cal. App. 3d 824, 828, 95 Cal. Rptr. 259] .

In its system of tenure for real property the condominium draws elements both from tenancy in common and from separate ownership. The condominium owners are tenants in common of the common areas and the personal property held by the management association, and they are owners in fee of separate units [White v. Cox (1971) 17 Cal. App. 3d 824, 829, 95 Cal. Rptr. 259] .

Ownership interests in a condominium should be distinguished from real property interests created in a cooperative development. In a cooperative, a corporation is formed or availed of primarily for the purpose of holding title to real property so that the shareholders of the corporation receive the right of exclusive occupancy in a portion of the real property. The title to the property, unlike a condominium, is held by the corporation, and the right of occupancy is transferable only concurrently with the transfer of the share or shares of stock in the corporation held by the person having the right of exclusive occupancy [see Civ. Code § 1351(m)]. Generally, by retaining ownership of the individual units of the cooperative in a corporation, each tenant has a greater dependency on the other tenant-shareholders in the cooperative than a condominium unit owner has on the other owners in a condominium project. For example, financing of a cooperative is usually by a blanket mortgage covering the whole cooperative, whereas each condominium unit is separately financed. If one tenant in a cooperative defaults in his or her share of the mortgage payment, the other tenants must pay a greater share of the payment. This greater dependency of the tenant-shareholder in a cooperative also creates tax consequences and difficulties in transferring a share of the cooperative that a condominium owner does not face [see California Legal Forms , Ch. 34, Condominiums and Other Common-Interest Developments (Matthew Bender)].

A community apartment project differs from a stock cooperative in that each owner of the community apartment project, rather than a corporation, holds an undivided interest in the land. However, the two types of common interest developments are similar in that each owner of an interest in the community apartment project holds the right of exclusive occupancy in his or her apartment located on the premises [see Civ. Code § 1351(d), (m)].

A planned development is a development which contains both individual building sites and common property and is managed by a homeowners' association. Except for the fact that a condominium is a separate interest in space in a building on real property [see Civ. Code § 1351(f)], while a planned development consists of separate ownership interests in land, planned developments and condominium projects are very similar. There are some distinctions, however, one of which is that the areas in common in a planned development, unlike those in a condominium, may be owned, and not just managed, by a homeowners' association, a distinction which may affect liability for injuries incurred in the common areas [see California Legal Forms , Ch. 34, Condominiums and Other Common-Interest Developments (Matthew Bender); see also § 124.78].

A common interest development is created and governed by Civ. Code § 1350 et seq. whenever a separate interest coupled with an interest in the common area or membership in the association is or has been conveyed, provided that a declaration, a condominium plan, if any, and a final or parcel map, if required under the Subdivision Map Act (see Gov. Code § 66424; see generally Gov. Code § 66410 et seq.) are filed [Civ. Code § 1352].

[1] Controlling Statutes

The prospective purchaser of an interest in a common interest development must be supplied with copies of various governing documents, financial statements, and assessment statements.

If the common interest development is not subject to the Subdivided Lands Act (Bus. & Prof. Code § 11004.5; see generally Bus. & Prof. Code § 11000 et seq.), the furnishing requirements are governed by Civ. Code § 1368. If the common interest development is subject to the Subdivided Lands Act, the furnishing requirements are governed by Bus. & Prof. Code § 11018.6. A common interest development project is subject to the Subdivided Lands Act if it has five or more condominiums, lots, or apartments, or in the case of a stock cooperative, other than a limited equity housing cooperative, if it has or is intended to have five or more shareholders [Bus. & Prof. Code § 11004.5(a)-(d); see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 11003, 11003.2, 11004; Civ. Code §§ 783, 1351].

[2] Subdivided Lands Act Requirements

[a] In General

The prospective purchaser of an interest in a common interest development subject to the Subdivided Lands Act (Bus. & Prof. Code § 11000 et seq.) must be supplied with specified information before the purchase of the interest [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 11018, 11018.1, 11018.6; Civ. Code § 1133]. For more discussion of the Subdivided Lands Act, see Ch. 579, Zoning and Planning .

[b] Final Report From Commissioner

A subdivider or any other person connected with a project subject to the Subdivided Lands Act may not sell, lease, or offer for sale or lease any parcel in the subdivision without first obtaining a final public report from the Commissioner of Real Estate that complies with the provisions of the Subdivided Lands Act [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 11018, 11018.2; see also 10 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 2792-2792.2, 2792.5, 2792.6, 2794-2795.3 (public reports)]. The owner, subdivider, or agent must furnish a copy of this report to a prospective purchaser before the execution of a binding contract or agreement for the sale or lease of any lot or parcel in a subdivision, even if offered by the subdivider after repossession. A receipt must be taken from the prospective purchaser in the form and manner set forth in regulations of the Real Estate Commissioner [Bus. & Prof. Code § 11018.1(a); see 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 2795.1 (receipt)]. A statement containing the language required in Bus. & Prof. Code § 11018.1(c), giving general information about a common interest development, must also be furnished to the prospective purchaser.

The owner, subdivider, or agent must also furnish a copy of the report to any member of the public who has requested a copy, and must conspicuously post a copy at any office that is selling or leasing lots within the subdivision [Bus. & Prof. Code § 11018.1(b)].

[c] Additional Documents

The owner of a separate interest in a common interest development subject to the Subdivided Lands Act must make a copy of numerous documents available for examination by a prospective purchaser or tenant before an offer to purchase or lease is executed. A copy of each document must be given to the purchaser or tenant as soon as practicable before the interest is actually transferred [Bus. & Prof. Code § 11018.6].

The documents to be furnished to the purchaser are as follows [Bus. & Prof. Code § 11018.6]:

- The declaration of covenants, conditions, and restrictions for the subdivision;
- The articles of incorporation or association for the subdivision owners association;
- The bylaws for the association;
- Any other instrument that establishes or defines the common, mutual, and reciprocal rights and responsibilities of the owners or tenants as shareholders or association members;
- The required current financial and related statements (Bus. & Prof. Code § 11018.6(e) refers to statements specified in Civ. Code § 1365); and
- The association's statement of assessments and charges levied by the association.

[3] Civ. Code § 1368 Requirements

The requirements of Civ. Code § 1368, described below, are applicable to the owner of an interest in a common interest development that is not subject to the Subdivided Lands Act [see § 124.14[1]] when the owner is transferring title of that interest to a purchaser [Civ. Code § 1368(a)].

Under Civ. Code § 1368, the owner of the separate interest is required to provide the prospective purchaser with the following documents, as soon as is practicable before title to the interest is transferred or the real property sales contract, as defined in Civ. Code § 2985, is executed [Civ. Code § 1368(a)(1)-(5), (8)]:

- A copy of the governing documents of the development, including any operating rules and a copy of the association's articles of incorporation, or, if not incorporated, a written statement from an authorized representative that the association is not incorporated.
- Certain statements concerning Civ. Code § 51.3 if the governing documents limit the occupancy, residency, or use of a separate interest on the basis of age in a manner that differs from the provisions of that statute.

- A copy of the most recent financial statements, lien enforcement policies and practices, and summary of association insurance distributed pursuant to Civ. Code § 1365.

- A written statement from the association containing certain information concerning assessments and charges levied by the association [see Civ. Code §§ 1367, 1367.1].

- A copy or summary of any notice regarding the imposition of discipline previously sent to the owner that sets forth any alleged violation of the governing documents that remains unresolved at the time of the request [see Civ. Code § 1363(h)].

- Any change in the association's current regular and special assessments and fees that have been approved by the association's board of directors, but have not become due and payable as of the date of disclosure.

If the association is involved in a dispute with the developer that involves design or construction defects, the separate interest owner must also provide the following to the prospective purchaser [Civ. Code § 1368(a)(6), (7)]:

- If the dispute has not been settled or otherwise resolved, a copy of the preliminary list of defects that the association is required by statute to furnish to the developer along with a statement that a final determination has not been made as to whether the list is accurate and complete [see Civ. Code § 1375(b)(2); see also § 124.26[2][a]];

- If the dispute has been settled or otherwise resolved, a copy of the latest information required by statute to be disclosed to association members regarding the details of the settlement or resolution [see Civ. Code § 1375.1(a)].

Disclosure of the preliminary list of defects or the settlement information described above, does not waive any privilege attached to the information [Civ. Code §§ 1368(a)(6), 1375.1(c)].

A separate interest owner may obtain copies of all documents required to be furnished to a prospective purchaser pursuant to Civ. Code § 1368(a)(1)-(8) by submitting a written request for the documents to the association. The association may maintain the documents in electronic form and requesting parties have the option of receiving them by electronic transmission or machine readable storage media [see Civ. Code § 1368(b)].

Neither an association nor a "community service organization or similar entity" may impose or collect any assessment, penalty, or fee in connection with a transfer of title or any other interest except for an amount to cover (1) the association's actual costs to change its records, and (2) the reasonable cost of furnishing documents and assessment statements required by Civ. Code § 1368(a) and (b) [Civ. Code § 1368(c)(1)]. For these purposes, a "community service organization or similar entity" is a nonprofit entity, other than an association, that is organized to provide services to residents of the common interest development or to the public in addition to the residents, to the extent community common areas or facilities are available to the public. The term does not include an entity that has been organized solely to raise money and contribute to other nonprofit organizations that are tax exempt under Internal Revenue Code § 501(c)(3) and that provide housing or housing assistance [Civ. Code § 1368(c)(3)].

The amount of document and transfer fees charged by a managing agent in connection with the transfer of title is not limited by Civ. Code § 1368 [Berryman v. Merit Property Management, Inc. (2007) 152 Cal. App. 4th 1544, 1552, 62 Cal. Rptr. 3d 177] .

The limitation on transfer fees does not apply to a community service organization or similar entity that was established before February 20, 2003, and that exists and operates to fund or perform environmental mitigation or to restore or maintain wetlands or native habitat, as required by the state or local government as a condition of development [Civ. Code § 1368(c)(2)(A)]. The limitation also does not apply to a community service organization or similar entity that satisfies all of the following requirements [Civ. Code § 1368(c)(2)(B)]:

- The organization or entity is not one to which Civ. Code § 1368(2)(c)(2)(A) applies;
- The organization or entity was established and received a transfer fee before January 1, 2004; and
- On and after January 1, 2006, the organization or entity offers a purchaser the option of paying the transfer fee or charge either at the time of transfer or on an installment basis for a period of not less than seven years.

Any person or entity who willfully fails to furnish the purchaser, or an owner who makes a written request, with these documents is liable for actual damages and, in addition, is subject to a civil penalty not to exceed $500. The prevailing party in an action to enforce the liability is entitled to attorney's fees [Civ. Code § 1368(d)].

Failure to comply with these requirements does not affect the validity of a title to real property that is transferred [Civ. Code § 1368(e)].

Civ. Code § 1368 does not impose a duty on a homeowner's association to disclose to a prospective purchaser the existence of construction defects, or the fact of any litigation over construction defects; that duty is the seller's responsibility [Kovich v. Paseo Del Mar Homeowners' Assoc. (1996) 41 Cal. App. 4th 863, 867, 48 Cal. Rptr. 2d 758] . For discussion of the responsibility to disclose construction defects when an existing dwelling is converted to a condominium, see § 124.14[5].

[4] Blanket Encumbrance

If a lot, parcel, or unit of a condominium or community apartment project or a stock cooperative that is divided into two or more lots, parcels, or units is subject to a blanket encumbrance, as defined in Bus. & Prof. Code § 11013, but is exempt from compliance with Bus. & Prof. Code § 11013.2, the subdivider or the subdivider's agent or representative may not sell the lot, parcel, or unit until the prospective purchaser is furnished with and has signed a notice as required by Civ. Code § 1133(a) [Civ. Code § 1133(a), (b); see 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 2792.14 (approval by Real Estate Commissioner of blanket encumbrance on stock cooperative)]. However, the conveyance is not invalidated if the buyer fails to sign the notice [Civ. Code § 1133(c)].

Any person or entity who willfully fails to furnish the purchaser with the notice is liable for actual damages, and is also guilty of a public offense punishable by a fine. The prevailing party in an action to enforce the liability or fine is entitled to attorney's fees [Civ. Code § 1133(d)].

[5] Disclosure of Defects

When an existing dwelling is converted into a residential condominium, community apartment project, or stock cooperative, the owner, subdivider, or agent must furnish a prospective first buyer of a unit in the development with a written statement listing all the substantial defects or malfunctions in the unit and the common areas of the development, or disclaiming knowledge of any defects or malfunctions [Civ. Code § 1134(a)].

The statement must be furnished as soon as practicable before title in the unit is transferred [Civ. Code § 1134(a)]. If the statement is delivered after the agreement to purchase is executed, the buyer may terminate the agreement within three days after delivery in person or five days after delivery by deposit in the mail [Civ. Code § 1134(b)].

Failure to comply with the disclosure requirement does not invalidate the transfer of title of the unit [Civ. Code § 1134(f)]. However, a person who willfully violates the requirements is liable for actual damages to the buyer [Civ. Code § 1134(d)]. The buyer may also pursue any other available remedy under any other provision of law [Civ. Code § 1134(e)].

§ 124.15 Extent of Interest Conveyed

A conveyance of a separate interest in a community apartment project, or a judicial sale or other voluntary or involuntary transfer of the separate interest, includes a conveyance of the undivided interest in the project [Civ. Code § 1358(a)].

A conveyance, sale, or other transfer of a separate interest in a condominium project includes a conveyance of the undivided interest in the common areas of the project [Civ. Code § 1358(b)].

A conveyance, sale, or other transfer of a separate interest in a planned development includes a conveyance of the undivided interest in any existing common areas of the development [Civ. Code § 1358(c)].

A conveyance, sale, or other transfer of a separate interest in a stock cooperative includes the ownership interest in the corporation. A conveyance, judicial sale, or other voluntary or involuntary transfer of the owner's entire estate also includes the owner's membership interest in the association [Civ. Code § 1358(d)].

An interest in an exclusive use area may be transferred independent of any other interest in the common interest subdivision if authorization to separately transfer exclusive use areas is expressly stated in the declaration and if the transfer occurs in accordance with the terms of the declaration [Civ. Code § 1358(d)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

12-124 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 124.16

§ 124.16 Declaration

[1] Contents in General

A declaration of a common interest development, recorded on or after January 1, 1986, must include all of the following [Civ. Code § 1353(a)(1)]:

- A legal description of the development;
- A statement that the development is a community apartment project, condominium project, planned development, stock cooperative, or combination of these;
- The name of the association; and
- Any restrictions on use or enjoyment of any portion of the development that are intended to be enforceable equitable servitudes.

If the property is located within an airport influence area [see Civ. Code § 1353(a)(2) (definition)], a declaration that is recorded after January 1, 2004, must also include a statement, the wording of which is statutorily prescribed, giving notice that there is an airport in the vicinity and pointing out that there may be potential annoyances or inconveniences--such as noise, vibration, or odors--associated with proximity to airport operations [Civ. Code § 1353(a)(1)]. In addition, if the property is located within the San Francisco Bay Conservation and Development Commission's jurisdiction, a declaration recorded on or after January 1, 2006, must contain a statement pointing out that the property may be subject to special regulations, restrictions, and permit requirements [Civ. Code § 1353(a)(3)]. Neither of these statements constitutes a title defect, lien, or encumbrance [Civ. Code § 1353(a)(4)].

The declaration may contain any other matters considered appropriate by the original signator of the declaration or by the owners [Civ. Code § 1353(b); see 10 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 2792.8 (contents of governing instruments), 2792.26 (provisions for disciplinary action against individual owner)].

[2] Covenants and Restrictions

The covenants and restrictions in the declaration are enforceable equitable servitudes, unless unreasonable, and inure to the benefit of and bind all owners of separate interests in the project. Unless the declaration states otherwise, these servitudes may be enforced by any owner of a separate interest, by the association, or by both [Civ. Code § 1354(a)]. The statute of limitations for actions to enforce covenants and restrictions is four years as specified by Code Civ. Proc. § 337 for an action arising from a written instrument. The period commences when a demand for enforcement is made [Cutujian v. Benedict Hills Estates Assn. (1996) 41 Cal. App. 4th 1379, 1386-1387, 49 Cal. Rptr. 2d 166] .

A use restriction added to the declaration of a common interest development through amendment is enforceable against a homeowner who acquired his or her separate interest before the amendment was adopted and recorded [Villa De Las Palmas Homeowners Assn. v. Terifaj (2004) 33 Cal. 4th 73, 82-83, 14 Cal. Rptr. 3d 67, 90 P.3d 1223] . Use restrictions in amended declarations are enforceable through injunctive relief pursuant to Civ. Code § 1354(a), which applies to all covenants and restrictions in the declaration, irrespective of when such covenants and restrictions were incorporated [Villa De Las Palmas Homeowners Assn. v. Terifaj (2004) 33 Cal. 4th 73, 87, 14 Cal. Rptr. 3d 67, 90 P.3d 1223] . Subsequently promulgated and recorded use restrictions are entitled to the same judicial deference accorded covenants and restrictions in original declarations, that is, they are presumptively valid, and the burden of proving otherwise rests on the challenging homeowner [Villa De Las Palmas Homeowners Assn. v. Terifaj (2004) 33 Cal. 4th 73, 91-92, 14 Cal. Rptr. 3d 67, 90 P.3d 1223 ; see Nahrstedt v. Lakeside Village Condominium Assn. (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 361, 380, 389, 33 Cal. Rptr. 2d 63, 878 P.2d 1275] .

In determining whether a covenant or restriction is unreasonable, and thus not enforceable, the focus is on the restriction's effect on the development as a whole, not on an individual homeowner. A covenant or restriction that is part of the declaration is presumed to be reasonable and will be enforced uniformly against all owners unless it (1) is wholly arbitrary, (2) imposes a burden on the use of lands it affects that substantially outweighs any benefit to the development's residents, or (3) violates a fundamental public policy [Nahrstedt v. Lakeside Village Condominium Assn. (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 361, 382-383, 386, 33 Cal. Rptr. 2d 63, 878 P.2d 1275 ; see Dolan-King v. Rancho Santa Fe Assn. (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 965, 975, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 280] .

If a declaration establishing a common plan for the ownership of property in a subdivision and containing restrictions on the use of the property as part of the common plan is recorded before the execution of a contract for the sale of any lot in the subdivision, describes the property it is to govern, and states that it is intended to bind all purchasers and their successors, then subsequent purchasers who have constructive notice of the recorded declaration are deemed to intend and agree to be bound by, and to accept the benefits of, the common plan. The restrictions need not be additionally cited in a deed or other document at the time of the sale of parcels in the subdivision [Citizens for Covenant Compliance v. Anderson (1995) 12 Cal. 4th 345, 355, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 898, 906 P.2d 1314] . Citizens for Covenant Compliance involved two standard subdivisions, and has had a significant impact on such subdivisions [for further discussion of this opinion, see Ch. 184, Deeds]. Although most common interest developments are considered "subdivisions" under the two most important statutes governing subdivisions [see §§ 124.14[1], 124.19], the case does not have a significant effect on them because the requirements of the Davis-Stirling Common Interest Development Act [Civ. Code § 1350 et seq.] governing declarations impose similar (and, in some cases, more stringent) requirements regarding restrictions [see Civ. Code §§ 1353, 1354].

Any restrictions on the severability of the component interests in real property that are contained in the declaration will not be deemed conditions repugnant to the interest created within the meaning of Civ. Code § 711. However, these restrictions cannot extend beyond the period in which the right to partition a project is suspended under Civ. Code § 1359 [Civ. Code § 1358(d); see 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 2792.8(a)(19)].

Any provision purporting to restrict or abridge, directly or indirectly, the right of an owner to sell or lease his or her subdivision interest must include uniform, objective standards for invoking the restriction on sale or lease. The restriction may not be based on the race, color, national origin, religion, marital status, ancestry, or sex of the vendee or lessee [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 2792.25(a)], nor may a restriction be made against selling or leasing to families with children [see O'Connor v. Village Green Owners Ass'n (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 790, 793-797, 191 Cal. Rptr. 320, 662 P.2d 427 (restrictions against children residing in condominium as violation of Unruh Act)]. One court of appeal, however, has held that, although the outright prohibition on a sale of a unit to an owner having children may not be upheld, the prohibition against rental to a family with children may nevertheless be rationally related to the purposes of the restriction and may be upheld as reasonable [Sunrise Country Club Assn. v. Proud (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 377, 382-383 , 235 Cal. Rptr. 404] . In addition, the development may set aside some of its swimming pools or other recreational facilities for adult or for family use, so long as no group is totally excluded from the use of other such facilities [Sunrise Country Club Assn. v. Proud (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 377, 382, 235 Cal. Rptr. 404] .

In one case, the trial court did not abuse its discretion in granting a petition to reduce the number of votes required to amend the CC&Rs to prohibit short-term rentals [Mission Shores Assn. v. Pheil (2008) 166 Cal. App. 4th 789, 797, 83 Cal. Rptr. 3d 108 ; for discussion of court orders reducing the percentage of affirmative votes necessary for amendment of declarations, see § 124.16[3][c]]. The imposition of a 30-day minimum lease term was not unreasonable. The provision applied to all owners who rented their homes, the restriction did not violate public policy, and any burden to enforce the minimum lease term was outweighed by its beneficial value in preserving the residential character of the development [Mission Shores Assn. v. Pheil (2008) 166 Cal. App. 4th 789, 796-797, 83 Cal. Rptr. 3d 108].

A restriction that requires owner occupancy and prohibits leasing in a publicly subsidized low and moderate income project is not an unreasonable restraint on alienation and is enforceable [City of Oceanside v. McKenna (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 1420, 1428-1430, 264 Cal. Rptr. 275] . Further, a clause in the restrictions that requires approval of transfers by the association is not invalid as an unlawful restraint on alienation; however, consent to transfer may not be unreasonably withheld [Laguna Royale Owners Asso. v. Darger (1981) 119 Cal. App. 3d 670, 680-684, 174 Cal. Rptr. 136] . For example, refusal of consent to transfer one-quarter undivided interests to three other parties is unreasonable when each party will occupy the premises at separate times [Laguna Royale Owners Asso. v. Darger (1981) 119 Cal. App. 3d 670, 684-688, 174 Cal. Rptr. 136] . A condominium rule that prohibited nonresident owners from using common recreational facilities was a proper implementation of CC&R provisions that permitted owners to delegate to tenants who reside on the property the right to enjoy common facilities but prohibited the owners from severing that right from their separate interest. The clear intent of the CC&R provisions was to have one set of users per unit--either the owner or the tenant, but not both [Liebler v. Point Loma Tennis Club (1995) 40 Cal. App. 4th 1600, 1606-1609, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 783] .

If the owner gives notice to the association of the terms of a bona fide offer by a person who does not meet the prescribed standards and of his or her intention to accept the offer, the association may have a period, not to exceed 15 days after receipt of the notice, to procure or to make an offer on terms not less favorable to the owner than the terms of the offer of the person failing to meet the prescribed standards. If the association fails to take action within 15 days, the restrictions are deemed waived as to such an offer [see 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 2792.25(b)].

Any rule or regulation of an association that arbitrarily or unreasonably restricts an owner's ability to market his or her interest in a common interest development is void [Civ. Code § 1368.1(a)]. This specifically includes any rule or regulation that does either of the following [Civ. Code § 1368.1(b)]:

- Imposes an assessment or fee in connection with the marketing of an owner's interest in an amount that exceeds the association's actual or direct costs; or

- Establishes an exclusive relationship with a real estate broker through which the sale or marketing of interests in the development is required to occur, except with regard to common areas and/or separate interests owned by the association.

"Market" and "marketing" mean listing, advertising, or obtaining or providing access to show the owner's interest in the development [Civ. Code § 1368.1(c)]. Rules or regulations regarding real estate signs are not prohibited [Civ. Code § 1368.1(d); see Civ. Code §§ 712, 713].

The declaration (or any other governing document) may not include a provision that limits or prohibits, or that may be construed to limit or prohibit, the display of the United States flag by an owner on or in the owner's separate interest or within the owner's exclusive use common area [Civ. Code § 1353.5].

[3] Amendment of Declaration

[a] When Effective

The declaration may be amended in accordance with the governing documents of the project or pursuant to Civ. Code § 1350 et seq. [Civ. Code § 1355(a); see 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 2792.8(a)(18) (governing documents must ordinarily provide for amendment procedures); see also 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 2792.24 (requirements for method of amending governing instruments)]. An amendment, other than an amendment approved by the court pursuant to Civ. Code § 1356 [see § 124.16[3][c]], is effective after (1) the approval of the percentage of owners required by the governing documents has been given; (2) that fact has been certified in a writing and executed and acknowledged by the officer designated in the declaration or by the association for that purpose, or if no one is designated, by the president of the association; and (3) that writing has been recorded in each county in which a portion of the common interest development is located [Civ. Code § 1355(a)].

However, no amendment of the declaration or other instrument affecting the rights to ownership, possession, or use of a common interest development containing five or more lots, apartments, condominiums, shareholders, or undivided interests that would materially change the rights of an owner is valid unless the real estate commissioner has given prior written consent to the amendment during the period of time in which the subdivider or the subdivider's successor in interest holds or directly controls as many as one fourth of the votes that may be cast to effect such a change [Bus. & Prof. Code § 11018.7(a); see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 11000.1 and 11004.5 (defining subdivisions); see also 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 2793 (applications for consent under Bus. & Prof. Code § 11018.7)].

Except to the extent that a declaration provides by its express terms that it is not amendable, in whole or in part, a declaration which fails to include provisions for its amendment at all times during its existence may be amended at any time. For this purpose, an amendment is effective only after (1) the proposed amendment has been distributed to all of the owners of separate interests in the common interest development by first-class mail postage prepaid or personal delivery not less than 15 days and not more than 60 days before any approval being solicited; (2) the approval of owners representing more than 50 percent, or any higher percentage required by the declaration for the approval of an amendment to the declaration, of the separate interest in the common interest development has been given, and that fact has been certified in a writing, executed and acknowledged by an officer of the association; and (3) the amendment has been recorded in each county in which a portion of the common interest development is located. A copy of any amendment must be distributed by first-class mail postage prepaid or personal delivery to all of the owners of separate interests immediately on its recordation [Civ. Code § 1355(b)].

[b] Construction and Marketing Provisions

After the developer of a common interest development has completed construction of the development, has terminated construction activities, and has terminated marketing activities for the sale or lease of the separate interests, the board of directors may adopt an amendment deleting from the governing documents any provision that is unequivocally, or by its nature must have been, designed and intended to facilitate the developer in completing the construction and marketing. Such an amendment may be adopted notwithstanding any provision in the governing documents to the contrary. However, provisions of the governing documents relating to a particular construction or marketing phase of the development may not be deleted until that phase has been completed [Civ. Code § 1355.5(a)].

The provisions that may be deleted by action of the board are limited to those providing for access by the developer over or across the common area for the purposes of completing construction of the development and erecting, constructing, or maintaining structures or other facilities designed to facilitate the completion of construction or marketing of separate interests [Civ. Code § 1355.5(b)].

At least 30 days before taking action, the board of directors must mail to all owners of the separate interests, by first class mail, copies of all proposed amendments to the governing documents and a notice of the time, date, and place where the board will consider the amendments. The board may consider adopting amendments only at a meeting that is open to all owners of separate interests, who must be given the opportunity to make comments. All deliberations of the board must be conducted only in such an open meeting [Civ. Code § 1355.5(c)].

The board of directors may not amend the governing documents without the approval of the owners by a majority of the votes cast at a meeting or election of the association at which a quorum was obtained and conducted in accordance with Corp. Code §§ 7510-7527, 7613. For this purpose, quorum means more than 50 percent of the owners who own no more than two separate interests apiece in the development [Civ. Code § 1355.5(d)].

If an amendment to a declaration is required to be approved by the owners having more than 50 percent of the votes in the association in a single class voting structure, or by owners having more than 50 percent of the votes in more than one class in a voting structure with more than one class, the association, or any owner of a separate interest, may petition the superior court of the county in which the common interest development is located for an order reducing the percentage of the affirmative votes necessary for the amendment [Civ. Code § 1356(a); see § 124.74]. Civ. Code § 1356 requires an affirmative vote by more than 50 percent of all owners, whether or not they attended the meeting on the matter, rather than 50 percent of the owners who attended the meeting [Peak Invs. v. South Peak Homeowners Assn., Inc. (2006) 140 Cal. App. 4th 1363, 1367].

The petition may be granted, regardless of any requirement relating to quorums or the number or percentage of votes needed for approval of the amendment that would otherwise exist under the governing documents, if the petitioner has given proper notice of the hearing, balloting on the proposed amendment was properly conducted, a reasonably diligent effort was made to permit all eligible members to vote on the proposed amendment, owners having more than 50 percent of the votes in each class voted in favor of the amendment, the amendment is reasonable, and granting the petition is not improper for any reason set forth in Civ. Code § 1356(e) [see Civ. Code § 1356(c), (d); for a sample notice and discussion of this requirement, see § 124.75]. However, the court may not approve any amendment to the declaration that would (1) change a provision in the declaration that requires the approval of owners having more than 50 percent of the votes in more than one class to vote in favor of an amendment, unless owners having more than 50 percent of the votes in each affected class approved the amendment; (2) eliminate any special rights, preferences, or privileges designated in the declaration as belonging to the declarant, without the consent of the declarant; or (3) impair the security interest of a mortgagee of a mortgage or the beneficiary of a deed of trust without the approval of the percentage of the mortgagees and beneficiaries specified in the declaration, if the declaration requires the approval of a specified percentage of the mortgagees and beneficiaries [Civ. Code § 1356(e)].

An amendment approved by the court becomes effective, as if it had been adopted pursuant to the governing documents, when both the court order and the amendment have been recorded in every county in which a portion of the common interest development is located. Any person designated in the declaration or by the association to record an amendment, or if none, the president of the association, may record the order and amendment [Civ. Code § 1356(f)]. Within a reasonable time after the amendment is recorded, the association must mail a copy of the amendment to each member of the association, together with a statement that the amendment has been recorded [Civ. Code § 1356(g)].

[4] Extending Term of Declaration

If a declaration specifies a termination date but does not provide for an extension of that date, the owners having more than 50 percent of the votes in the association or any greater percentage specified in the declaration for an amendment thereto may approve an extension of the date. If the approval of owners having more than 50 percent of the votes in the association is required to amend the declaration, the term of the declaration may be extended by court order pursuant to Civ. Code § 1356 [Civ. Code § 1357(b); see § 124.16[3][c]].

No single extension of the terms of the declaration may exceed the initial term of the declaration or 20 years, whichever is less. However, more than one extension may be approved [Civ. Code § 1357(d)].

Any amendment to extend the termination date is effective on recordation in each county in which a portion of the common interest development is located [see Civ. Code §§ 1355, 1357(c)].

Chapter 124 CONDOMINIUMS AND OTHER COMMON INTEREST DEVELOPMENTS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

12-124 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 124.17

§ 124.17 Pre-Litigation Resolution of Disputes Related to Governing Documents, Davis-Stirling Act, and Nonprofit Mutual Benefit Corporation Law

[1] Intra-Association Dispute Resolution Procedure

[a] Rationale

The formal alternative dispute resolution (ADR) process [see § 124.17[2]], which is a prerequisite to litigation, contemplates the use of a neutral party (such as a mediator or arbitrator) in the decision-making process [see Civ. Code § 1369.510 et seq.]. Although mediation or arbitration may be effective to avert litigation, they are costly remedies in the context of the nonmonetary types of disputes that frequently arise in daily interactions in a common interest development. Believing that people should be able to resolve a dispute involving ordinary living arrangements without having to engage in a formal dispute resolution process, the Law Revision Commission proposed, and the Legislature enacted, a requirement that every homeowners' association must make available a fair, reasonable, and expeditious internal dispute resolution mechanism at no cost to the membership [see Civ. Code § 1363.820(a); see also Alternative Dispute Resolution in Common Interest Developments, 33 Cal. L. Revision Comm'n Reports 703-704 (2003)]. This supplements, and does not replace, the formal ADR process that is required as a prerequisite to an enforcement action [Civ. Code § 1363.810(b)]. If an association fails to provide for an internal dispute resolution procedure, a statutorily prescribed default procedure applies [Civ. Code § 1363.820(c); see Civ. Code § 1363.840].

[b] Disputes to Which Intra-Association Procedure Applies

The intra-association dispute resolution procedure applies to any dispute between an association and a member that involves their respective rights, duties, or liabilities under any of the following [Civ. Code § 1363.810(a)]:

- The Davis-Stirling Common Interest Development Act [Civ. Code § 1350 et seq.];
- The Nonprofit Mutual Benefit Corporation Law [Corp. Code § 7110 et seq.]; or
- The common interest development's or association's governing documents, which consist of the declaration and any other documents, such as bylaws, operating rules of the association, articles of incorporation, or articles of association, that govern the operation of the common interest development or association [see Civ. Code § 1351(j)].

[c] Requirements for Valid Intra-Association Procedure

The intra-association dispute resolution procedure must be fair, reasonable, and expeditious. There is a presumption affecting the burden or proof in favor of any procedure adopted by an association [Civ. Code § 1363.820(a), (b)]. To be considered "fair, reasonable, and expeditious," a dispute procedure must satisfy specified minimum requirements [see Civ. Code § 1363.830]. The "fair, reasonable, and expeditious" standard is not an objective one. It will vary from association to association, depending on such factors as size and involvement of membership. The statutory presumption is intended to avoid squabbles over procedural details and instead focus on the substance of the dispute to be resolved. If an association has a procedure in place, that procedure need not be re-adopted. The existing procedure has the benefit of the presumption [see 33 Cal. L. Revision Comm'n Comment to 2003 enactment of Civ. Code § 1363.820].

[d] Additional Remedy for Separate Interest Owner Disputing Charge or Sum Levied by Association

In addition to pursuing the formal ADR process [see [2], below], the owner of a separate interest who is disputing any charge or sum levied by the association including, but not limited to, an assessment, fine, penalty, late fee, collection cost, or monetary penalty imposed as a disciplinary measure, when the disputed amount does not exceed the jurisdictional limits of small claims court, may pay under protest the disputed amount and all other amounts levied including any fees and reasonable costs of collection, reasonable attorney's fees, late charges, and interest, if any, and commence an action in small claims court [Civ. Code § 1367.6(a)].

[2] Formal Alternative Dispute Resolution (ADR) Procedure

[a] ADR as Prerequisite to Filing Enforcement Action

An association or an owner or a member of a common interest development may not file an enforcement action [see § 124.17[2][b]] in the superior court unless the parties have endeavored to submit their dispute to some form of ADR, which may consist of mediation, arbitration, conciliation, or some other nonjudicial procedure that involves a neutral party in the decision-making process. With the parties' consent, the form of ADR chosen may be binding or nonbinding [Civ. Code §§ 1369.510(a), 1369.520(a), (d)].

[b] Actions to Which Prerequisite Applies

In the context of the ADR requirement, an "enforcement action" is a civil action or proceeding, other than a cross-complaint, to enforce any of the following [Civ. Code § 1369.510(b)]:

- The Davis-Stirling Common Interest Development Act [Civ. Code § 1350 et seq.];
- The Nonprofit Mutual Benefit Corporation Law [Corp. Code § 7110 et seq.]; or
- The common interest development's governing documents, which consist of the declaration and any other documents, such as bylaws, operating rules of the association, articles of incorporation, or articles of association, that govern the operation of the common interest development or association [see Civ. Code § 1351(j)].

The ADR requirement applies only if the enforcement action is for declaratory, injunctive, or writ relief, or for one of those forms of relief in conjunction with a claim for monetary damages not in excess of $5,000. It does not apply to a small claims action, and, as mentioned above, except at otherwise provided by law, it also does not apply to an assessment dispute [Civ. Code § 1369.520(b)-(d)]. Owners wishing to seek ADR to an assessment dispute may do so pursuant to an alternate procedure [see Civ. Code § 1366.3; see also § 124.17[3]].

To initiate the ADR process, a party to the dispute must serve on all other parties (that is, all persons intended to be named in an ensuing enforcement action) a request for resolution [Civ. Code § 1369.530(a)]. For a form of request for resolution, see § 124.82.

The request must be served by personal delivery, first-class mail, express mail, facsimile transmission, or other means reasonably calculated to provide the party on whom the request is served with actual notice of the request [Civ. Code § 1369.530(b)].

Once served, a party has 30 days to accept or reject the request. If that party does not accept the request within the 30-day period, that party is deemed to have rejected the request [Civ. Code § 1369.530(c)].

[d] Statute of Limitations Tolled Pending ADR

If the request for resolution is served before the statute of limitations for commencing an enforcement action, the statute is tolled during the 30-day period for accepting or rejecting the request [Civ. Code § 1369.550(a)]. If the request is accepted, the statute is tolled for 90 days from the date of acceptance, or such longer period as the parties may stipulate for completing ADR [Civ. Code § 1369.550(b); see Civ. Code § 1369.540(a)].

[e] ADR Process

If a request for resolution is accepted, the parties must complete the ADR within 90 days unless the parties stipulate in writing to a longer period [Civ. Code § 1369.540(a)]. Unless the process is an arbitration, it is governed by the rules of evidence that apply to mediation, which generally relate to the confidentiality of the proceeding [Civ. Code § 1369.540(b); see Evid. Code § 1115 et seq.].

The parties are responsible for the costs of ADR [Civ. Code §§ 1360.540(c), 1369.570(b)].

[f] Certifying Efforts to Resolve Dispute When Enforcement Action Filed

When an enforcement action is filed, the party who commences the action must file with the initial pleading a certificate stating that one or more of the following conditions is satisfied [Civ. Code § 1369.560(a)]:

- ADR has been completed in compliance with Civ. Code §§ 1369.510-1369.590;
- One of the other parties to the dispute did not accept the terms offered for ADR; and/or
- Preliminary or temporary injunctive relief is necessary.

For a form of certificate of compliance, see § 124.84.

Failure to file a certificate is grounds for demurrer or motion to strike unless the court finds that dismissal for failure to comply would substantially prejudice one of the parties [Civ. Code § 1369.560(b)]. The requirement to file a certificate does not apply to the filing of a cross-complaint [see Civ. Code § 1369.510(b) (exempting cross-complaints from "enforcement action")]. For a form of demurrer, see § 124.85.

[g] Referral to ADR If Enforcement Action Filed First

If an enforcement action is commenced before ADR is initiated, the matter may be referred to ADR on written stipulation of the parties in which case the referred action is stayed. During the stay, the action is not subject to the rules adopted by the Judicial Council establishing a case differentiation classification system based on the relative complexity of cases [Civ. Code § 1369.570(a); see Gov. Code § 68603(c)].

A condominium plan consists of a description or survey map of the project that shows monumentation, a three-dimensional description of the project that identifies the common areas and each separate interest, and a certificate of consent to the recordation of the plan. The plan may be amended or revoked by a subsequent instrument [Civ. Code § 1351(e)].

Any of the following common interest developments is a "subdivision" subject to the Subdivision Map Act (Gov. Code § 66410 et seq.) [Gov. Code § 66424]:

- A condominium project, other than a conversion from a community apartment project or a stock cooperative to a condominium under certain conditions [see Gov. Code § 66412(g), (h)];
- A community apartment project; and
- A conversion of five or more existing dwelling units to a stock cooperative.

A tentative and final map complying with the Subdivision Map Act is required for all subdivisions creating five or more condominiums, parcels, or dwelling units [Gov. Code § 66426]. The map need not show the buildings or the manner in which the buildings or the airspace above the property shown on the map are to be divided, nor does the governing body have the right to refuse approval of the map because of the design or location of buildings on the property shown on the map which do not violate local ordinances, or because of the manner in which airspace is to be divided in conveying the condominium [Gov. Code § 66427(a)]. Local agencies may, by ordinance, waive the requirement for a tentative and final map for the construction of a condominium project on a single parcel [Gov. Code § 66428(b)].

The conversion of rental property to condominiums is considered to be a subdivision under the Subdivision Map Act. A local legislative body may not approve a final map for a subdivision to be created from the conversion of residential rental property into a condominium project, a community apartment project, or a stock cooperative unless that body finds that each tenant of the proposed conversion project and each person applying to rent a unit in the residential property to be converted has received or will have received all applicable notices and rights required under the Act [Gov. Code § 66427.1(a)(1)]. To that end, each of the tenants of the proposed condominium, community apartment project, or stock cooperative project must receive [Gov. Code § 66427.1(a)(2)]:

- Written notification of intention to convert [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 66452.18], which must be provided at least 60 days before a tentative map is filed in accordance with Gov. Code § 66452.

- Ten days' written notice that an application for a public report will be, or has been, submitted to DRE, that the period for each tenant's right to purchase begins with the issuance of the final public report, and that the report will be available on request.

- Written notice that the subdivider has received the public report from DRE. This notice must be provided within five days after the date that the subdivider receives the public report from DRE.

- Written notice within 10 days after approval of the final map for the proposed conversion.

- 180 days' written notice of the intention to convert, which must be must be provided before termination of the tenancy due to the conversion or proposed conversion [see Gov. Code § 66452.19], but not before the local authority has approved a tentative map for the conversion.

- Notice of an exclusive right to contract for the purchase of his or her respective unit on the same terms and conditions that the unit will be initially offered to the general public or terms more favorable to the tenant [see Gov. Code § 66452.20].

These notice requirements are deemed satisfied if service is in accordance with the legal requirements for service by mail [Gov. Code § 66427.1(b); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1013].

In addition, the local agency is required to give notice to the tenants of any hearing to be held [Gov. Code § 66451.3(b)].

The subdivider or any tenant of the property may appeal the approval or disapproval of the maps [Gov. Code § 66452.5].

§ 124.20 Construction of Deed, Declaration, or Plan

Any deed, declaration, or condominium plan for a common interest development must be liberally construed to facilitate the operation of the development. In addition, its provisions are presumed to be independent and severable [Civ. Code § 1370].

In interpreting deeds and condominium plans, the existing physical boundaries of a unit in a condominium project, rather than the metes and bounds (if any) expressed in the deed or condominium plan, will be conclusively presumed to be its boundaries, if those boundaries are contained within a building or the unit has been reconstructed in substantial accordance with its original plans. This presumption applies regardless of (1) settling or lateral movement of the building, or (2) minor variances between the boundaries shown on the plan or in the deed and those of the building [Civ. Code § 1371].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

12-124 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 124.22

§ 124.22 Common Areas

[1] Type of Tenancy

In a condominium project, or in a planned development in which the common areas are owned by the owners of the separate interests, the owners of the separate interests own the common area as tenants in common, in equal shares, one for each separate interest, unless otherwise provided in the declaration [Civ. Code § 1362].

[2] Rights or Easements in Common Areas

In a community apartment project and condominium project, and in those planned developments with common areas owned in common by the owners of the separate interests, nonexclusive rights of ingress, egress, and support, if necessary, through the common areas are appurtenant to each separate interest of an owner, unless otherwise provided in the declaration. The common areas are subject to these rights [Civ. Code § 1361(a)].

In a stock cooperative, and in a planned development with common areas owned by the association, an easement for ingress, egress, and support, if necessary, is appurtenant to each separate interest. The common areas are subject to these easements [Civ. Code § 1361(b)].

A homeowner has a cause of action against the homeowners' association for not enforcing the restrictions and allowing another homeowner to encroach in the common area [Posey v. Leavitt (1991) 229 Cal. App. 3d 1236, 1246-1247, 280 Cal. Rptr. 568] .

[3] Restrictions on Partition Actions in Condominium Projects

The common areas in a condominium project are undivided and may not be nonjudicially partitioned [14859 Moorpark Homeowner's Assn. v. VRT Corp. (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 1396, 1406-1407, 74 Cal. Rptr. 2d 712] . They may be judicially partitioned only if the owner of a separate interest maintains a partition action as to the entire project as if the owners of all the separate interests in the project were tenants in common in the entire project in the same proportion as their interests in the common areas [Civ. Code §§ 1358(b), 1359(a), (b); see 14859 Moorpark Homeowner's Assn. v. VRT Corp. (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 1396, 74 Cal. Rptr. 2d 712] .

The court may order partition of the common areas only by sale of the entire project and if one of the following is shown: (1) more than three years before the filing of the action, the condominium project was damaged or destroyed, so that a material part was rendered unfit for its prior use, and the condominium project has not been rebuilt or repaired substantially to its state prior to the damage or destruction; (2) three-fourths or more of the project is destroyed or substantially damaged and owners of separate interests holding in the aggregate more than a 50-percent interest in the common areas oppose repair or restoration of the project; (3) the project has been in existence more than 50 years and is obsolete and uneconomical, and owners of separate interests holding in the aggregate more than a 50-percent interest in the common area oppose repair or restoration of the project; or (4) the conditions for such a sale, set forth in the declaration, have been met [Civ. Code § 1359(b)].

Except as provided above, the common areas may not be judicially partitioned. These areas must remain undivided, although nothing in Civ. Code § 1359 prevents partition of a cotenancy in a condominium [Civ. Code § 1359(a)].

Chapter 124 CONDOMINIUMS AND OTHER COMMON INTEREST DEVELOPMENTS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

12-124 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 124.23

§ 124.23 Management of Common Interest Development

[1] General Powers and Duties of Association

A common interest development must be managed by either an incorporated or an unincorporated association [Civ. Code § 1363; see 10 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 2792.8(a)(8)-(18) (relevant provisions in governing instrument), 2792.19-2792.21 (governing body); see also Corp. Code § 25012 ("owners' association" defined for purposes of Corporations Code); 10 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 2792.17 (members' meetings), 2792.18 (members' voting rights)].

In general, the association may exercise the powers granted to an association by Civ. Code §§ 1350-1374 [Civ. Code § 1363; see also 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 2792.21 (powers and limitations of governing body)]. In addition, unless the governing documents provide otherwise, the association may exercise the powers granted to a nonprofit mutual benefit corporation [see Corp. Code § 7140]; however, an unincorporated association may not adopt or use a corporate seal or issue membership certificates [see Corp. Code § 7313].

Generally, a board of directors will act as the governing board of an association [see, e.g., Frances T. v. Village Green Owners Ass'n (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 490, 503-504, 229 Cal. Rptr. 456, 723 P.2d 573 ; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1365.5 (duties of board)].

If the common interest development has a "common area," the board of directors is required to review, on a quarterly basis, all of the following: (1) a current reconciliation of the association's operating accounts, (2) a current reconciliation of the association's reserve accounts, (3) the current year's actual reserve revenues and expenses compared to the current year's budget, and (4) an income and expense statement for the association's operating and reserve accounts. In addition, the board of directors is required to review the latest account statements prepared by the financial institution in which the association has its operating and reserve accounts [Civ. Code § 1365.5(a), (h); see Civ. Code § 1365.5(f) ("reserve accounts" defined)]. These requirements are minimal, however, and the association's governing documents may impose more stringent standards [Civ. Code § 1365.5(a)].

[3] Elections and Meetings

[a] Election Procedures

Beginning July 1, 2006, all common interest development associations, both incorporated and unincorporated, are required to adopt rules the purpose of which is to safeguard election procedures [Civ. Code § 1363.03(a), (j)]. The adoption procedure must conform to that specified by Civ. Code § 1357.100 et seq. [Civ. Code § 1363.03(a)], as described in § 124.23[4]. The rules must, among other things (1) ensure that candidates for the board of directors and other association members with a point of view have equal access to association media, newsletters, or Internet web sites during a campaign; (2) ensure access to common area meeting space for all candidates; and (3) specify qualifications for the board and other elected positions, voting qualifications, and a method of selecting independent third parties to serve as voting inspectors [see Civ. Code § 1363.03(a)].

Association funds may not be used for campaign purposes in connection with any association board election; nor may they be used for campaign purposes in connection with any other association election except to the extent necessary to comply with the association's duties imposed by law [Civ. Code § 1363.04(a); see also Civ. Code § 1363.04(b) ("campaign purposes" defined)].

Notwithstanding any other law or provision of an association's governing documents, an election regarding the following matters must be by secret ballot [Civ. Code § 1363.03(b)]:

- Assessments legally requiring a vote;
- Selection and removal of board members;
- Amendments to the governing documents; and
- Granting exclusive use of common area property.

A quorum is necessary only if required by the governing documents, or other provisions of law. If a quorum is required, each ballot received by the inspector of elections will be treated as a member present at a meeting. If the governing documents provide for cumulative voting, the association must allow for cumulative voting using secret ballot procedures [Civ. Code § 1363.03(b)].

Not less than 30 days before the voting deadline, the association must mail (first class) or personally deliver to every member the ballots and two pre-addressed envelopes with instructions on how to return ballots. To preserve confidentiality, a voter may not be identified by name, address, or lot, parcel, or unit number on the ballot [Civ. Code § 1363.03(e)]. The model for ensuring confidentiality of vote by mail ballots should be that used by California counties [see Civ. Code § 1363.03(e)(1), (2) (county procedures)].

All votes must be counted, tabulated, and tallied by the election inspectors in public at a properly noticed open meeting of the board or members. Any candidate or member may witness the vote counting and tabulation. No person, including an association member or management association employee, is permitted to open or otherwise review any ballot before the time and place at which the ballots are counted and tabulated [Civ. Code § 1363.03(f)]. The inspector may verify the member's information and signature on the outer envelope before the meeting at which the ballots are tabulated. A secret ballot is irrevocable once it is received by the inspector [Civ. Code § 1363.03(f)].

The election results must be promptly reported to the board and recorded in the minutes of the next board meeting. They must also be available for review by the members. Within 15 days of the election, the board must publicize the results in a communication directed to all members [Civ. Code § 1363.03(g)].

The sealed ballots must be in the inspector's custody, or at a location designated by the inspectors, until the vote has been tabulated and the time allowed for challenging the election has expired, at which time custody will be transferred to the association [Civ. Code § 1363.03(h); see Corp. Code § 7527]. If there is a recount or other challenge, the inspector must make the ballots available for inspection and review by an association member or his or her authorized representative. Any recount must be conducted in a manner that preserves the confidentiality of the vote [Civ. Code § 1363.03(h)]. After the ballots have been transferred to the association, they must be stored in a secure place for no less than one year after the election date [Civ. Code § 1363.03(i)].

[b] Conduct of Meetings

Meetings of the membership must be conducted in accordance with a recognized system of parliamentary procedure or parliamentary procedures adopted by the association [Civ. Code § 1363(d)]. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, notice of meetings of the members must specify the matters the board intends to present for action by the members, but, except as otherwise provided by law, any proper matter may be presented at the meeting for action [Civ. Code § 1363(e)]. Members of the association must have access to association records, including accounting books and records and membership lists, as provided in Corp. Code § 8330 et seq. [Civ. Code § 1363(f)].

Any congregation of a majority of the members of the board of directors at the same time and place to hear, discuss, or deliberate on any item of business scheduled to be heard by the board, except those matters that may be used in executive session, is considered to be a board meeting, and must be properly noticed [Civ. Code § 1363.05(j)]. Unless the bylaws provide for a longer period, members must be given at least four days' notice of the time and place of board meetings. Notice must be given by posting in a prominent place or places within the common area and by mail to any owner who has requested notification of board meetings by mail, at the address requested by the owner. Notice may also be given by mail or delivery to each unit, or by association newsletter. The notice must include the agenda for the meeting [Civ. Code § 1363.05(f)]. The board president or any other two board members may call an emergency meeting if there are circumstances that could not have been reasonably foreseen that require immediate attention and possible board action and that, of necessity, make it impracticable to provide notice in the normal fashion [Civ. Code § 1363.05(g)].

As a general rule, the board of directors may not discuss or take action on any item at a non-emergency meeting unless the item was included in the agenda that was included in the notice of the meeting. The rule applies to the board only; residents who are not on the board may nonetheless speak on issues that are not part of the agenda [Bus. & Prof. Code § 1363.05(i)(1); but see Bus. & Prof. Code § 1363.05(i)(2), (3)]. The board is allowed to act on a non-agenda item if it is determined to be an unanticipated emergency situation requiring immediate attention and possible action by the board. Non-agenda items also may be considered on a vote of two-thirds of the board or, if less than two-thirds are present, a unanimous vote of those board members present; or when an item was continued from a previous meeting as long as that meeting was within the last 30 days [Bus. & Prof. Code § 1363.05(i)(4)].

Any member of the association may attend meetings of the board of directors of the association, except when the board adjourns to executive session to consider litigation, matters that relate to the formation of contracts with third parties, member discipline, personnel matters, or to meet with a member, on the member's request, regarding the member's payment of assessments [Civ. Code § 1363.05(b); see Civ. Code §§ 1367, 1367.1]. Members must also be permitted to speak at any association or board of directors meeting, except when the board meets in executive session. To this end, the board must establish a reasonable time limit for members to speak at or before meetings [Civ. Code § 1363.05(h)]. The board must meet in executive session if requested to do so by a member who may be subject to fine, penalty, or other form of discipline. The member is entitled to attend [Civ. Code §§ 1363(g), 1363.05(b)]. Any matter discussed in executive session must be generally noted in the minutes of the immediately following meeting open to the entire membership [Civ. Code § 1363.05(c)].

Whenever two or more associations have consolidated any of their functions under a joint neighborhood association or similar organization, members of each participating association must be entitled to attend all meetings of the joint association other than executive sessions. Further, the members must be given reasonable opportunity for participation in the meetings, and must be entitled to the same access to the joint association's records as they are to their participating association's records [Civ. Code § 1363(i)].

The minutes or summary of minutes of any meeting of the board of directors, other than executive session, must be available to members within 30 days of the meeting. The minutes must be distributed to any member on request and reimbursement of cost. Members must be notified of the right to obtain copies of the minutes [Civ. Code § 1363.05(d), (e)].

[c] Relief for Violation of Election Procedures and Open Meeting Requirements

On or after July 1, 2006, an association member may bring a civil action against the association for declaratory or equitable relief for a violation of rules related to association election procedures and open meeting requirements [Civ. Code § 1363.09(a); 2005 Stats., ch. 450, § 7 (operative date); see Civ. Code §§ 1363.03 et seq.]. Relief may include, but not be limited to, injunctive relief, restitution, or a combination of both. The action must be brought within one year of the date the cause of action accrues. If the court finds that the election procedures, or the procedures governing the board's power to adopt and change operating rules, have been violated, the court may void any election results [Civ. Code § 1363.09(a); see Civ. Code §§ 1363.03, 1363.04; see also Civ. Code § 1357.100 et seq.]. A member who prevails is entitled to reasonable attorney's fees and court costs. The court may also impose a civil penalty of up to $500 for each violation, except each identical violation will be subject to only one penalty if the violation equally affects each member. A prevailing association is not entitled to recover any costs, unless the court finds the action to be frivolous, unreasonable, or without foundation [Civ. Code § 1363.09(b)].

The following actions may be brought in small claims court if the amount of the demand does not exceed the court's jurisdictional limit [Civ. Code § 1363.09(c)]:

- Access to association resources by a candidate or member advocating a point of view [see Civ. Code § 1363.03(a)(1), (2)].

- The receipt of a ballot by a member, or the counting, tabulation, or reporting of, or access to, ballots for inspection and review after tabulation [see Civ. Code § 1363.03(e)-(i)].

[4] Operating Rules

The board of directors of a homeowners' association has the power to adopt operating rules to govern the operation of a common interest development [see, e.g., Civ. Code §§ 1351(j), 1360.5, 1363(g); 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 2792.21(a)]. However, before January 1, 2004, there was no established procedure for doing so. Thus, specified types of rule changes commenced on or after that date are now subject to a statutory procedure [Civ. Code § 1357.120]. However, the advent of the mandated operating rule change procedure does not affect the validity of a rule change commenced before January 1, 2004 [Civ. Code § 1357.150(b)].

An "operating rule" is a regulation adopted by the board of directors that generally applies to the management and operation of the common interest development or the conduct of the association's business affairs [Civ. Code § 1357.100(a)]. To be valid and enforceable, an operating rule must satisfy specified standards [see Civ. Code § 1357.110].

When a rule change relates to one or more specified subjects, such as use of common areas or separate interests [see Civ. Code § 1357.120(a)], the board must give notice to association members who then are afforded an opportunity to reverse the change [see Civ. Code §§ 1357.130(c), 1357.140]. The board is not required to follow this procedure if it determines that an immediate rule change is required to address an emergency [see Civ. Code § 1357.130(d)].

[5] Standing to Sue and Be Sued

[a] Right of Association

Assuming the development has a common area, as defined by Civ. Code § 1351(b) [see Civ. Code § 1374], the association has standing to institute, defend, settle, or intervene in litigation, arbitration, mediation, or administrative proceedings in its own name as the real party in interest and without joining with it the individual owners of the common interest development, in matters pertaining to (1) enforcement of its governing documents; (2) damage to the common areas; (3) damage to the separate interests that the association is obligated to maintain or repair; and (4) damage to the separate interests that arises out of, or is integrally related to, damage to the common areas or separate interests that the association is obligated to maintain or repair [Civ. Code § 1368.3].

The policy behind the statutory right of the homeowners' association to bring an action to enforce the covenants, conditions, and restrictions requires that declaratory judgments brought in such litigation are res judicata and binding on individual owners, including those who do not join in the litigation [Duffey v. Superior Court (1992) 3 Cal. App. 4th 425, 433-434, 4 Cal. Rptr. 2d 334] .

[b] Parties to Suits

When a homeowners' association brings an action for declaratory relief as to whether an improvement is barred by the covenants, conditions, and restrictions (CC&Rs), objecting neighbors are not proper defendants because the homeowners' association does not have a cause of action against them. Objecting neighbors, however, may join an enforcement lawsuit under the provisions of Civ. Code § 1354, which allows enforcement by owners as well as the association [Duffey v. Superior Court (1992) 3 Cal. App. 4th 425, 428-430, 432-433, 4 Cal. Rptr. 2d 334 ; see § 124.16[2]].

[6] Comparative Fault

In any action maintained by an association for harm to the common areas, harm to separate interests that the association is obligated to repair, or harm to separate interests that arises out of or is integrally related to harm to the common area or separate interests that the association is obligated to repair, damages recovered by the association must be reduced by the amount of damages allocated to the association or its managing agents in direct proportion to their percentage of fault based on principles of comparative fault. In such an action, the comparative fault of the association or its managing agents may be raised by way of defense, but comparative fault may not be the basis for any cross action or separate action against the association or its managing agents for contribution or implied indemnity, when the only harm was sustained by the association or its members. It is the intent of the Legislature in enacting this provision to require that comparative fault must be pleaded as an affirmative defense rather than a separate cause of action, when the only harm was sustained by the association or its members [Civ. Code § 1368.4(a)].

In any such action, the defendant or cross defendant may allege and prove the comparative fault of the association or its managing agents as an offset to the defendant's liability even if the association is not a party to the action or is no longer a party, whether by reason of settlement, dismissal, or otherwise [Civ. Code § 1368.4(b)].

These provisions do not affect joint liability or the liability of the association or its managing agents for any act or omission that causes harm to another [Civ. Code § 1368.4(d)].

[7] Penalties

If an association adopts or has adopted a policy imposing any monetary penalty, including any fee, on any association member for a violation of the governing documents or rules of the association, including any monetary penalty related to the activities of a guest or invitee of a member, the board of directors must adopt and distribute to each member, by personal delivery or first-class mail, a schedule of the monetary penalties that may be assessed for those violations. The schedule must be in accordance with the authorization for member discipline contained in the governing documents. The board of directors is not required to distribute any additional schedules of monetary penalties unless changes are made in schedules previously distributed [Civ. Code § 1363(g)].

When the board of directors is to meet to consider or impose discipline on a member, the board must notify the member in writing, by either personal delivery or first-class mail, at least 10 days before the meeting. The minimum requirements for the notice are (1) the date, time, and place of the meeting, (2) the nature of the alleged violation for which the member may be disciplined, and (3) a statement that the member has a right to attend and may address the board at the meeting. The board must meet in executive session if the member being disciplined so requests. If the board imposes discipline on the member, the board must notify the member in writing by either personal delivery or first-class mail within 15 days following the action. Any disciplinary action that is imposed will be ineffective unless the board has fulfilled these requirements [Civ. Code § 1363(h)].

A monetary penalty imposed by the association as a disciplinary measure for a member's failure to comply with the governing documents, except for late payment of regular assessments, may not be characterized or treated in the governing instruments as an assessment that may become a lien against the member's subdivision interest enforceable by foreclosure and sale of the member's interest [Civ. Code § 1367(c)]. However, the governing documents may authorize the creation of a lien on an owner's separate interest to secure a monetary penalty imposed as a means of reimbursing the association for its costs incurred in repairing damage to common areas and facilities for which the member or the member's guests or tenants were responsible. Such a lien may be enforced by foreclosure and sale of the owner's separate interest [Civ. Code § 1367(b)]. For discussion of enforcing assessment liens, see § 124.23[15][f].

[8] Maintenance of Common Interest Development

Unless otherwise provided in the declaration, the association is responsible for repairing, replacing, or maintaining the common areas, other than exclusive-use common areas [Civ. Code § 1364(a); see 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 2792.21(a)(4), (7)]. The owner of each separate interest is responsible for maintaining that separate interest and any exclusive-use common areas appurtenant to the separate interest [Civ. Code § 1364(a)].

In a community apartment project, condominium project, or stock cooperative, unless otherwise provided in the declaration, the association is responsible for the repair and maintenance of the common area occasioned by the presence of wood-destroying pests or organisms. In a planned development, however, each owner of a separate interest is responsible for this type of repair and maintenance for his or her own separate interest, unless otherwise provided in the declaration or unless responsibility is delegated to the association by approval of the majority of the members of the association [Civ. Code § 1364(b)]. In any event, the association may cause the temporary, summary removal of any occupant of the development as is necessary for prompt, effective treatment of wood-destroying pests or organisms [Civ. Code § 1364(d)(1); see Civ. Code § 1364(d)(2), (3) (required notice); see also Civ. Code § 1364(e) ("occupant" defined)]. The cost of relocation, however, is borne by the owner of the separate interest affected [Civ. Code § 1364(c)].

When a duly constituted association board, on reasonable investigation, in good faith and with regard for the best interests of the community association and its members, exercises discretion within the scope of its authority under Civ. Code § 1364 and the covenants and restrictions to select among means for discharging an obligation to maintain and repair the development's common areas, courts should defer to the board's authority and presumed expertise. This rule applies, regardless of the association's corporate status, when owners in common interest developments seek to litigate ordinary maintenance decisions entrusted to the board's discretion [Lamden v. La Jolla Shores Clubdominium Homeowners Assn. (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 249, 252, 265, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 237, 980 P.2d 940] .

This rule was applied in a case where the court rejected a challenge by a condominium owner to an amendment to the CC&Rs allowing ground floor condominium owners to encroach on a small strip of land outside their units in order to protect their privacy [Haley v. Casa Del Rey Homeowners Assn. (2007) 153 Cal. App. 4th 863, 875, 63 Cal. Rptr. 3d 514] . Haley concluded that Lamden reasonably stands for the proposition that a homeowner's association has discretion to select among means for remedying violations of the CC&Rs without resorting to expensive and time-consuming litigation, and that courts should defer to that discretion [Haley v. Casa Del Rey Homeowners Assn. (2007) 153 Cal. App. 4th 863, 875, 63 Cal. Rptr. 3d 514] . However, when the CC&Rs for a residential development required all trees to be trimmed in order to preserve homeowners' views, the homeowners association's exception for palm trees was not entitled to judicial deference. The association board did not have the discretion to exclude view-blocking trees or to define what was meant by "view" in a fashion that rendered the CC&R provision meaningless [Ekstrom v. Marquesa at Monarch Beach Homeowners Association (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 1111, 1124-1125, 86 Cal. Rptr. 3d 145].

Notwithstanding the provisions of the declaration, the owner of a separate interest is entitled to reasonable access to the common areas for the purpose of maintaining the internal and external telephone wiring made part of the exclusive-use common areas of a separate interest pursuant to Civ. Code § 1351(i)(2) [Civ. Code § 1364(f); see § 124.11[3]]. The access is subject to the consent of the association, whose approval must not be unreasonably withheld. This approval may include the association's approval of telephone wiring on the exterior of the common areas, and other conditions as the association determines reasonable [Civ. Code § 1364(f)].

[9] Financial Statements

Financial statements must be prepared by the association and distributed to all its members. Detailed financial reporting requirements are required by statute, although the governing documents may impose more stringent standards [Civ. Code § 1365; see 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 2792.22 (financial and related information regularly prepared and distributed by governing body)].

A summary financial statement may be distributed to the members, but a member has a right to obtain a complete financial statement on request [Civ. Code § 1365(d)].

Statutes prescribe the format of required disclosures, including a disclosure document index and summary [see Civ. Code §§ 1363.005, 1365.2.5], and allow disclosures to be made in electronic form, including by e-mail [Civ. Code § 1350.7].

[10] Availability of Books, Records, and Minutes

In general, association members are entitled to the same rights to access association records as those afforded to members of other nonprofit mutual benefit corporations by Corp. Code §§ 8330-8338 [Civ. Code § 1363(f); see 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 2792.23]. However, beginning July 1, 2006 [see Civ. Code § 1365.2(n)], the association must make available "association records" [see Civ. Code § 1365.2(a)(1)] and "enhanced association records" [see Civ. Code § 1365.2(a)(2)] for inspection and copying by a member, or his or her designated representative, in accordance with statutory timeframes [Civ. Code § 1365.2(b)(1); see Civ. Code § 1365.2(i), (j)]. As of that date, Corp. Code §§ 8330 and 8333 do not apply to the extent that they are inconsistent with Civ. Code § 1365.2 [Civ. Code § 1365.2(m)].

The right of members to inspect records applies to any community service organization or similar entity that is related to the association [Civ. Code § 1365.2(g)]. In general, the right does not apply to any common interest development in which the separate interests are still being marketed by the subdivider and the subdivider, and any other person who receives direct or indirect compensation from the subdivider, comprise a majority of the association's board of directors [Civ. Code § 1365.2(m)].

The association may withhold or redact information from association records if the information or its release could lead to identify theft or fraud, violate a privilege afforded by law, or violate an individual member's privacy [Civ. Code § 1365.2(d)(1)(A)-(D)].

Association records must be made available for the current fiscal year and for each of the previous two fiscal years. Minutes of member and board meetings must be permanently made available. If a committee has decision-making authority, the minutes of its meetings must be made available beginning January 1, 2007. Thereafter, they must be made permanently available [Civ. Code § 1365.2(i)]. The association is not liable for failing to retain records that were created before January 1, 2006 [Civ. Code § 1365.2(k)].

Records must be provided to a requesting member within the following timeframes [Civ. Code § 1365.2(j)]:

- Association records prepared during the current fiscal year, within 10 business days following receipt of the request.

- Association records prepared during the previous two fiscal years, within 30 calendar days following receipt of the request.

- Any record of statement available pursuant to Civ. Code § 1365 or 1368, within the timeframe specified in those statutes.

- Minutes of member and board meetings, within 30 days of the meeting [see Civ. Code § 1363.05(d)].

- Minutes of meetings of committees with decision-making authority for meetings commencing on or after January 1, 2007, within 15 calendar days following approval.

- Membership list, within five business days, unless the association provides a reasonable alternative [see Corp. Code § 8330].

The association has the right to injunctive relief and actual damages for misuse of requested information, including the right to attorney's fees if successful [Civ. Code § 1365.2(e) (operative July 1, 2006)].

A member may bring an action to enforce his or her right to inspect and copy association records. If the court finds that access was unreasonably withheld, the member is entitled to reasonable costs and expenses, including attorney's fees, and the court may assess a civil penalty of up to $500 for the denial of each separate written request [Civ. Code § 1365.2(f) (operative July 1, 2006)].

The association owes a fiduciary duty of good faith towards its members in its actions. In one case, a homeowner was able to state a cause of action against the association for approving the construction of a neighbor's fence in violation of the declaration of restrictions. The court also held that clauses in the declaration exculpating the association from liability for any such approvals were invalid as contrary to public policy [Cohen v. Kite Hill Community Assn. (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 642, 650-655, 191 Cal. Rptr. 209] .

However, in another case, the court of appeal upheld an exculpatory clause in the declaration of restrictions as not violative of public policy. In this case, a homeowner brought an action against the association for water damage to her condominium unit alleging that the association's failure to maintain and repair the central plumbing caused the water damage. The exculpatory clause in the declaration purported to exclude the association from liability for damage from water leaks unless caused by the gross negligence of the association. The court held that the exculpatory clause was not against public policy and that the association could contractually shift the risk of loss to the condominium owner [Franklin v. Marie Antoinette Condominium Owners Ass'n (1993) 19 Cal. App. 4th 824, 833-834, 23 Cal. Rptr. 2d 744] . The court noted that its enforcement of the exculpatory clause did not relieve the condominium association of its statutory duty to maintain and repair the common area [Franklin v. Marie Antoinette Condominium Owners Ass'n (1993) 19 Cal. App. 4th 824, 832, 23 Cal. Rptr. 2d 744 ; see Civ. Code § 1364(a)].

In maintaining the common areas of a common interest development, the association functions as a landlord. As such, the association has a duty to exercise due care for the residents' safety in those areas under the association's control, and is subject to liability in negligence for failure to do so. Thus, for example, when an association was aware of the need for additional lighting that could have aided in deterring criminal conduct, was notified that crimes were being committed against the development's residents, and knew that one resident's unit had in fact been recently burglarized, the association was subject to tort liability when the latter resident was subsequently attacked in her unit at night [Frances T. v. Village Green Owners Ass'n (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 490, 498, 229 Cal. Rptr. 456, 723 P.2d 573] . However, a homeowners' association and the security company it hired to enforce community rules and regulations owed no duty to either eject from the community or arrest a resident with a history of drunk driving who crashed a car while intoxicated and killed the plaintiff's father. The foreseeability of the injury and the minimal connection between the defendants and the individuals involved in the crash were outweighed by the defendants' lack of connection to the injury-producing event and the burden of complying with the proposed duties [Titus v. Canyon Lake Property Owners Assn. (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 906, 916, 13 Cal. Rptr. 3d 807] .

[a] Fiduciary Duty

The directors of the management body are fiduciaries who are required to exercise their powers in accordance with the duties imposed by the Corporations Code [Frances T. v. Village Green Owners Ass'n (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 490, 513, 229 Cal. Rptr. 456, 723 P.2d 573 ; Raven's Cove Townhomes, Inc. v. Knuppe Development Co. (1981) 114 Cal. App. 3d 783, 799, 171 Cal. Rptr. 334] . The directors are thus required to exercise due care and undivided loyalty for the interests of the association [Frances T. v. Village Green Owners Ass'n (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 490, 513, 503, 229 Cal. Rptr. 456, 723 P.2d 573 ; see Corp. Code §§ 309(a), 7231(a)]. The fiduciary duty is to each member of the association in the capacity of shareholder, and not as a landlord to a tenant (even though the association itself functions as landlord) [Frances T. v. Village Green Owners Ass'n (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 490, 513-514, 503, 229 Cal. Rptr. 456, 723 P.2d 573] . For example, the directors may be held liable for breach of their fiduciary duties to members to maintain adequate reserves for repair and replacement. And, when the initial directors are the developers, they must avoid making decisions for the homeowners' association that benefit the developer's interests and not those of the association members [Raven's Cove Townhomes, Inc. v. Knuppe Development Co. (1981) 114 Cal. App. 3d 783, 799-801, 171 Cal. Rptr. 334] . On the other hand, the directors may not be held to have breached a fiduciary duty for failing to provide a member, in that member's capacity as tenant, with adequate lighting in the common grounds near the member's unit [Frances T. v. Village Green Owners Ass'n (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 490, 514, 503, 229 Cal. Rptr. 456, 723 P.2d 573] .

[b] Torts

The directors may not be held vicariously liable for any torts of the association in which they do not participate [Frances T. v. Village Green Owners Ass'n (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 490, 504, 229 Cal. Rptr. 456, 723 P.2d 573] . However, a plaintiff may maintain a tort claim against a director in the director's personal capacity if that director specifically authorized, directed, or participated in the tort, or if that director specifically knew or reasonably should have known that some hazardous condition or activity under his or her control could injure the plaintiff but the director negligently failed to take or order appropriate action to avoid the harm [Frances T. v. Village Green Owners Ass'n (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 490, 508, 229 Cal. Rptr. 456, 723 P.2d 573] . Thus, for example, a director has been held liable in tort to a resident who was attacked in her unlit unit at night, when the director specifically knew that common grounds were inadequately lit and that crimes had been committed as a result, yet failed to take action to provide adequate lighting and directed the resident to remove additional lighting that she had provided [Frances T. v. Village Green Owners Ass'n (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 490, 509, 229 Cal. Rptr. 456, 723 P.2d 573] .

When a homeowner's association sues a developer for construction defects, the developer may not bring an action for equitable indemnification against the directors of the association. Such an action would not be equitable. The acts of the directors are the acts of the association and can be raised by the developer as comparative negligence or avoidable consequences [Jaffe v. Huxley Architecture (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 1188, 1190-1192, 246 Cal. Rptr. 432] .

[a] Immunity

A volunteer officer or volunteer director of an association, as defined in Civ. Code § 1351(a) [see § 124.11[3]], that manages an exclusively residential common interest development is not personally liable, in excess of the required insurance coverage, to any person who suffers bodily injury, including, but not limited to, emotional distress or wrongful death, as a result of the tortious act or omission of the volunteer officer or volunteer director, if all of the following criteria are met [Civ. Code § 1365.7(a)]:

(1) The act or omission was performed within the scope of the officer's or director's association duties.

(2) The act or omission was performed in good faith.

(3) The act or omission was not willful, wanton, or grossly negligent.

(4) The association maintained and had in effect, at the time the act or omission occurred and at the time a claim is made, one or more policies of insurance that included coverage for general liability of the association and individual liability of the officers and directors of the association for negligent acts or omissions in that capacity, provided that both types of coverage are in the following minimum amounts:

(a) At least $500,000 if the common interest development consists of 100 or fewer separate interests.

(b) At least $1 million if the common interest development consists of more than 100 separate interests.

For purposes of (1), above, the scope of the officer's or director's association duties includes, but is not limited to, whether to conduct an investigation of the development for latent deficiencies before the applicable statute of limitations expires, and whether to commence a civil action against the builder for design or construction defects [Civ. Code § 1365.7(f)(1)].

Nothing in Civ. Code § 1365.7 shall be construed to limit the liability of the association for its negligent act or omission or for any negligent act or omission of an officer or director of the association [Civ. Code § 1365.7(d)].

Civ. Code § 1365.7 does not provide immunity for homeowners, who as tenants in common have a nondelegable duty to control and manage their property. By its terms, § 1365.7 is applicable only to volunteer directors and officers [Ruoff v. Harbor Creek Community Ass'n (1992) 10 Cal. App. 4th 1624, 1629, 13 Cal. Rptr. 2d 755] .

[b] "Volunteer" Officer or Director

The payment of actual expenses incurred by a director or officer in the execution of the duties of that position does not affect the director's or officer's status as a volunteer [Civ. Code § 1365.7(b)]. However, an officer or director who, at the time of the act or omission, was a declarant as defined in Civ. Code § 1351(g) [see § 124.11[3]] or received either direct or indirect compensation as an employee from the declarant or from a financial institution that purchased a separate interest, as defined in Civ. Code § 1351(l) [see § 124.11[3]], at a judicial or nonjudicial foreclosure of a mortgage or deed of trust on real property, is not a volunteer [Civ. Code § 1365.7(c)].

Civ. Code § 1365.7 only applies to a volunteer officer or volunteer director who is a tenant of a separate interest in the common interest development or who is an owner of no more than two separate interests in that development [Civ. Code § 1365.7(e)].

[14] Liability of Separate Interest Owners

If an association is a nonprofit mutual benefit corporation, as most are in California, the owners of separate interests, as members of the corporation, are not personally liable for the association's debts, liabilities, or obligations [see Corp. Code § 7350(a)]. Thus, for example, a construction contractor that contracts with the association for work to be done is barred from bring suit against individual separate interest owners because the owners are not parties to the construction contract. Rather, the contractor's cause of action is against the association itself which, in turn, will look to the separate interest owners, if necessary, to pay its debts [ECC Construction v. Ganson (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 572, 575-576, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 292] .

[15] Regular and Special Assessments

Except as provided in Civ. Code § 1366, the association must levy regular and special assessments sufficient to perform its obligations under its governing documents and under Civ. Code §§ 1350-1374 [Civ. Code § 1366(a); see 10 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 2792.8(a)(5), (6) (contents of governing instrument), 2792.16 (assessments); see also 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 2792.9 (subdivider's payment of assessments during early stages of ownership and operation)]. However, the association must not impose or collect an assessment or a fee that exceeds the amount necessary for the purpose or purposes for which it is levied [Civ. Code § 1366.1; see Foothills Townhome Assn. v. Christiansen (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 688, 693-694, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 516 (under § 1366.1, assessment may be levied to replenish association reserve funds depleted to pay for unanticipated repairs)]. Annual increases in regular assessments for any fiscal year may not be imposed unless the board has complied with the distribution of financial statements requirement [see Civ. Code § 1365] or has obtained consent of a majority of the owners, constituting a quorum, at a meeting or election of the association [Civ. Code § 1366(a)].

The declaration may provide for unequal ownership by condominium owners of common areas as tenants in common. As a result, no statute or regulation prohibits unequal assessments based on greater voting power [see Cebular v. Cooper Arms Homeowners Assn. (2006) 142 Cal. App. 4th 106, 121, 47 Cal. Rptr. 3d 666 ; see also Civ. Code § 1362 (ownership of common areas as tenants in common)]. Thus, provisions in a condominium association's declarations and bylaws under which some owners held more voting shares than others and the amount of assessments for common areas and other purposes was tied to the number of voting shares held did not violate California law [Cebular v. Cooper Arms Homeowners Assn. (2006) 142 Cal. App. 4th 106, 121-122, 47 Cal. Rptr. 3d 666] .

The power of the board of directors to make assessments may be further limited by the governing documents of the association. Notwithstanding more restrictive limitations, the board of directors may not impose a regular assessment that is more than 20 percent greater than the regular assessment for the association's preceding fiscal year or impose special assessments that in the aggregate exceed five percent of the budgeted gross expenses of the association for that fiscal year, without the approval of owners, constituting a quorum, casting a majority of the votes at a meeting or election of the association [Civ. Code § 1366(b); see Corp. Code §§ 7510-7527, 7613]. A quorum is more than 50 percent of the owners of the association [Civ. Code § 1366(b)].

However, the percentage limits do not apply when an assessment is necessary for an emergency situation, defined as one of the following [Civ. Code § 1366(b)]:

- An extraordinary expense required by an order of a court [see James F. O'Toole Co., Inc. v. Los Angeles Kingsbury Court Owners Assn. (2005) 126 Cal. App. 4th 549, 555, 23 Cal. Rptr. 3d 894 (trial court properly ordered homeowners' association to levy special assessment to pay civil judgment arising out of extraordinary and unforeseeable expense necessarily incurred to repair common areas following Northridge earthquake)].

- An extraordinary expense necessary to repair or maintain the development, or any part of it for which the association is responsible, when a threat to personal safety on the property is discovered.

- An extraordinary expense necessary to repair or maintain the development, or any part of it for which the association is responsible, when the expense could not have been reasonably foreseen by the board in its operating budget required by Civ. Code § 1365. Prior to making an assessment to cover such an unforeseen expense, the board must pass a resolution containing written findings as to the necessity of the extraordinary expense involved and why the expense was not or could not have been reasonably foreseen in the budgeting process, and the resolution must be distributed to the members with the notice of assessment.

Regular and special assessments levied pursuant to the governing documents are delinquent 15 days after they become due [Civ. Code § 1366(d)]. If an assessment is delinquent, the association may recover all of the following [Civ. Code § 1366(e)(1)-(3)]:

- Reasonable costs incurred in collecting the delinquent assessment, including reasonable attorney's fees [see Brown v. Professional Community Management, Inc. (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 532, 539, 25 Cal. Rptr. 3d 617 (homeowners' association properly passed on to delinquent homeowners charges assessed by association's management company for collection services)];

- A late charge not exceeding 10 percent of the delinquent assessment or $10, whichever is greater, unless the declaration specifies a late charge in a smaller amount, in which case any late charge imposed may not exceed the amount specified in the declaration; and

- Interest on all sums imposed at an annual rate not exceeding 12 percent, commencing 30 days after the assessment becomes due, unless the declaration specifies a lesser rate, in which case the lesser rate applies.

The association must provide notice by first-class mail to the owners of the separate interests of any increase in the regular or special assessments of the association, not less than 30 nor more than 60 days prior to the increased assessment becoming due [Civ. Code § 1366(d)].

To ensure that it is provided with information about the subsequent purchaser of a separate interest at a foreclosure sale, the association should file with the county recorder a request that a mortgagee, trustee, or other person authorized to record a notice of default, mail to the association a copy of any trustee's deed resulting from the default sale of a separate interest. The association will then be able to begin collecting assessments from the new owner of the separate interest [see Civ. Code § 2924b(f)]. For a form of request, see California Legal Forms, Ch. 34, Condominiums, § 34.248 (Matthew Bender).

An association is exempt from the interest-rate limitations imposed by Cal. Const., art. XV [Civ. Code § 1366(f)].

[b] Collecting or Securing Debts for Delinquent Assessments Arising on or After January 1, 2006

An association is precluded from resorting to judicial or nonjudicial foreclosure proceedings to collect on a debt arising from delinquent regular or special assessments when the debt arose on or after January 1, 2006, and the delinquent amount is less than $1,800, excluding accelerated assessments, late charges, fees and costs of collection, attorney's fees, or interest [Civ. Code § 1367.4(a), (b); but see Civ. Code § 1367.4(d) (limitation on foreclosure does not apply to enforcement of assessments on time-share interests and interests owned by developers)]. Instead, the association has the following options [Civ. Code § 1367.4(b)(1)-(3)]:

- File a civil action in small claims court;

- Record a lien on the owner's separate interest and delay foreclosure until the amount of delinquent assessments, exclusive of accelerated assessments, late charges, fees and costs of collection, attorney's fees, or interest, equals or exceeds $1,800 or the assessments are more than 12 months delinquent; or

- Any other manner provided by law, except for judicial or nonjudicial foreclosure.

If an association chooses to file an action in small claims court, the amount that may be recovered may not exceed the court's jurisdictional limit and will be the sum of (1) the amount owed as of the date the complaint is filed, and (2) at the court's discretion, an additional amount equal to the amount owed for the period from the date the complaint is filed until the judgment is satisfied, including accruing unpaid assessments, reasonable late charges, fees and collection costs, attorney's fees, and interest, up to the court's jurisdictional limit [Civ. Code § 1367.4(b)(1)(A), (B); see Code Civ. Proc. § 116.20]. The association may be represented in small claims court by an agent, a management company representative, or a bookkeeper [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.540(i)].

If an association chooses to record a lien and delay foreclosure, it must, before recording the lien, offer the owner and, if the offer is accepted, participate in the association's dispute resolution process [Civ. Code § 1367.4(b)(2); see Civ. Code § 1368.810 et seq.; see also § 124.17[1]].

An association that seeks to collect on a debt arising from delinquent regular or special assessments when the debt arose on or after January 1, 2006, and the delinquent amount is at least $1,800, excluding accelerated assessments, late charges, fees and costs of collection, attorney's fees, or interest, may use any option provided by law, including judicial and nonjudicial foreclosure, subject to some conditions, which are described when appropriate in § 124.23[15][c] and [f] [Civ. Code § 1367.4(c)].

[c] Assessment Liens Recorded on or After January 1, 2003

The discussion in this subsection applies to assessment liens recorded on or after January 1, 2003 [see Civ. Code § 1367.1(m)].

A regular or special assessment and any late charges, reasonable fees, and costs of collection, and any reasonable attorney's fees and interest, becomes a debt of a separate interest owner at the time the assessment or other sums are levied [Civ. Code § 1367.1(a)]. If the governing documents so provide, a monetary charge imposed by the association as a means of reimbursing itself for costs incurred in repairing damage to common areas and facilities for which a member or the member's guests or tenants were responsible may also become a lien on the owner's unit [Civ. Code § 1367.1(d); but see Civ. Code § 1367.1(e) (excludes monetary penalty imposed as disciplinary measure)].

At least 30 days before recording a lien on the owner's separate interest to collect a past due debt, the association must notify the owner of record in writing by certified mail. The contents of the notice are prescribed by statute [Civ. Code § 1367.1(a); see Civ. Code § 1367.1(k) (owner's right to request mailing to secondary address)].

Before recording a lien for delinquent assessments, the association must offer the owner and, if the owner accepts, participate in dispute resolution pursuant to the association's "meet and confer" program [Civ. Code § 1367.1(c)(1)(A); see Civ. Code § 1363.810 et seq.; see also § 124.17[1]]. Before initiating an action to foreclose an assessment lien, the association must once again offer the owner, and if the owner accepts, participate in dispute resolution pursuant either to the association's "meet and confer" program, or alternative dispute resolution with a neutral third party [Civ. Code §§ 1367.1(c)(1)(B), 1367.4(c)(1); see Civ. Code § 1363.510 et seq.; see also § 124.17[2]]. The decision to pursue either resolution process is the owner's, except that binding arbitration is not available if the association intends to judicially foreclose the lien [Civ. Code §§ 1367.1(c)(1)(B), 1367.4(c)(1)]. If it is determined through dispute resolution process that the association recorded the lien in error, the association must promptly reverse all late charges, fees, interest, attorney's fees, collection costs, costs imposed for giving the owner notice of its intention to record the lien, and costs to record and release the lien, and pay all costs associated with the dispute resolution or alternative dispute resolution [Civ. Code § 1367.5].

For liens recorded on or after January 1, 2006, the decision to record a delinquent assessment lien can only be made by the board of directors, who may not delegate the decision to an agent of the association. Approval of the decision to record must be approved by a majority of the board members at an open meeting, and the vote must be recorded in the minutes [Civ. Code § 1367.1(c)(2)].

To establish the lien, the association must record a notice of delinquent assessment in the county where the owner's unit is located. The notice must state the following [Civ. Code § 1367.1(d)]:

- The amount of the assessment and other sums imposed;

- A legal description of the owner's separate interest in the development against which the assessment and other sums are levied;

- The name of the record owner of the separate interest in the development against which the lien is imposed; and

- If nonjudicial foreclosure is a possibility, the name and address of the trustee authorized by the association to enforce the lien by sale.

The notice of delinquent assessment must be signed by the person designated in the declaration or by the association for that purpose. If no one is designated, the president of the association must sign. A copy of the recorded notice must be mailed by certified mail to every person whose name is shown as an owner of the separate interest in the association's records. The mailing must take place no later than 10 calendar days after the notice was recorded [Civ. Code § 1367.1(d)].

An association may not voluntarily assign or pledge its right to collect payments or assessments, or to enforce or foreclose a lien to a third party, except when the assignment or pledge is made to a federally or state chartered or licensed financial institution as security for a loan obtained by the association. However, this does not affect the association's right or ability to assign any unpaid obligations of a former member to a third party for collection purposes [Civ. Code § 1367.1(g)].

The discussion in this subsection applies to assessment liens recorded on or after January 1, 1986, and before January 1, 2003 [see Civ. Code § 1367(g)].

A regular or special assessment and any late charges, reasonable costs of collection, and interest are a debt of the owner of the unit at the time the assessment or other sums are levied. The association may place a lien on an owner's unit to secure the amount of a regular or special assessment, plus any costs of collection, late charges, and interest assessed [Civ. Code § 1367(a)]. If the governing documents so provide, a monetary charge imposed by the association as a means of reimbursing itself for costs incurred in repairing damage to common areas and facilities for which a member or the member's guests or tenants were responsible may also become a lien on the owner's unit [Civ. Code § 1367(b); but see Civ. Code § 1367(c) (excludes monetary penalty imposed as disciplinary measure)].

Before the association can place a lien on an owner's unit for a past due debt for a regular or special assessment, the owner must be notified by certified mail of the association's fee and penalty procedures, and provided with an itemized statement of the charges owed. The contents of the statement are prescribed by statute [Civ. Code § 1367(a)].

To establish the lien, the association must record a notice of delinquent assessment in the county where the owner's unit is located. The contents of the notice are prescribed by statute [Civ. Code § 1367(b)]. The notice must be signed by the person designated in the declaration or by the association for that purpose, or if no one is designated, by the president of the association. It must then be mailed to all record owners of the owner's interest. The mailing requirements are the same as those that apply when mailing a notice of default in conjunction with enforcing a trust deed power of sale [Civ. Code § 1367(b); see Civ. Code § 2924b; see also § 123.12[2] (mailing requirements)].

Unless the declaration provides for the subordination of a delinquent assessment lien, such a lien has priority over all liens recorded after the notice of assessment [Civ. Code § 1367.1(f) (liens recorded on or after January 1, 2003); Civ. Code § 1367(d) (liens recorded on or after January 1, 1986, and before January 1, 2003); but see 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 2792.16(g) (circumstances under which assessment may be subordinated)].

Although Civ. Code § 1367.1, which applies to liens recorded on or after January 1, 2003 [Civ. Code § 1367.1(m)], and Civ. Code § 1367, which applies to liens recorded before that date [Civ. Code § 1367(g)], give an assessment lien priority over subsequently recorded liens, neither statute mentions conveyances filed before an assessment lien. However, there is no reason to believe the Legislature intended to deviate from the general California rule of "first in time, first in right." It is consistent with this rule that a lien, such as that imposed by a second mortgage, recorded before an assessment lien has priority over the assessment lien as a matter of law. CC&Rs that purport to create a "separate and present lien" with power of sale to secure the payment of future assessments will not be interpreted to give priority to an assessment lien over a prior-recorded lien because, by statute, the assessment lien is not perfected until a notice of delinquent assessment has been recorded [Thaler v. Household Finance Corp. (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 1093, 1100-1101, 95 Cal. Rptr. 2d 779] .

[f] Enforcement of Assessment Lien

Thirty days after the lien is recorded, it may be enforced in any manner permitted by law, including sale by the court, sale by the trustee designated in the notice of delinquent assessment, or sale by a properly substituted trustee. Any sale by the trustee must comply with Civ. Code §§ 2924, 2924b, and 2924c, which apply to the exercise of powers of sale in mortgages and deeds of trust [Civ. Code § 1367.1(g) (liens recorded on or after January 1, 2003); Civ. Code § 1367(e) (liens recorded on or after January 1, 1986, and before January 1, 2003)]. Subject to the conditions of Civ. Code § 1367.4 regarding liens arising from certain debts arising on or after January 1, 2006, the sale is subject to the right of redemption within 90 days after the sale [Code Civ. Proc. § 729.035]. The "one form of action rule" of Code Civ. Proc. § 726 does not apply, and the association may take a deed in lieu of foreclosure [Civ. Code § 1367.1(h) (liens recorded on or after January 1, 2003); Civ. Code § 1367(f) (liens recorded on or after January 1, 1986, and before January 1, 2003)]. The inapplicability of that rule means that the association can sue on the debt without losing its right to foreclose its lien for sums uncollected by the suit on the debt.

For liens recorded on or after January 1, 2006, (1) when the debt is at least $1,800, excluding accelerated assessments, late charges, fees and collection costs, attorney's fees, or interest, or (2) when any assessments are more than 12 months delinquent, the decision to initiate foreclosure can only be made by the board and may not be delegated [Civ. Code § 1367.4(c)(2)]. If the lien is nonjudicially foreclosed, the owner has a right of redemption. The redemption period within which the separate interest may be redeemed ends 90 days after the sale [Civ. Code § 1367.4(c)(4)].

On payment of the sums specified in the notice of delinquent assessment, the association must record a notice of satisfaction and release of the lien [Civ. Code § 1367.1(d) (liens recorded on or after January 1, 2003); Civ. Code § 1367(f) (liens recorded on or after January 1, 1986, and before January 1, 2003)]. In the case of liens recorded on or after January 1, 2003, the release or notice of rescission must be recorded and a copy must be provided to the owner, within 21 days of payment of the sums owed [Civ. Code § 1367.1(d), (m)].

[g] Exemption from Execution by Judgment Creditors

Regular assessments that are imposed or collected to perform an association's obligations imposed by either the governing documents or the Davis-Stirling Common Interest Development Act [Civ. Code § 1350 et seq.] are exempt from execution by the association's judgment creditors only to the extent necessary for the association to perform essential services, such as paying for utilities and insurance. In determining the appropriateness of an exemption, a court must ensure that only essential services are protected [Civ. Code § 1366(c)].

The exemption does not apply to the following [Civ. Code § 1366(c)]:

- Consensual pledges, liens, or encumbrances that have been approved by the association owners, constituting a quorum, casting a majority of the votes at a meeting or association election;
- Any state tax lien; or
- Any lien for labor or materials supplied to the common area.

[16] Reserve Accounts

The board of directors may not expend reserve funds for any purpose other than repair, restoration, replacement, or maintenance of, or litigation involving the repair, restoration, replacement, or maintenance of, major components that the association is obligated to repair, restore, replace, or maintain and for which the reserve fund was established [Civ. Code § 1365.5(c)(1)].

The board may, however, authorize a temporary transfer of money from a reserve fund to the general operating fund to meet short-term cash-flow requirements or other expenses. To do so, the board must give notice of its intent to consider the transfer in a notice of meeting. The notice must include (1) the reasons the transfer is needed, (2) some of the options for repayment, and (3) whether a special assessment may be considered. If the board authorizes the transfer, it must issue a written finding, which will be recorded in its minutes, explaining the reasons for the transfer and describing when and how the money will be repaid to the reserve fund. The transferred funds must be restored to the reserve fund within one year of the initial transfer unless the board, after giving the same notice required for considering the transfer, makes a finding, supported by documentation, that a temporary delay is in the best interests of the development, in which case the restoration may be temporarily delayed [Civ. Code § 1365.5(c)(2)].

In making a decision to delay the restoration of temporarily transferred funds, and in restoring the funds to the reserve fund, the board must exercise prudent financial management. This includes levying a special assessment, if necessary, to fully restore the funds within the one-year period or any authorized extension of that period. Any special assessment is subject to the five percent limitation specified in Civ. Code § 1366(b) [see § 124.23[15][a]]. The board has discretion to extend the due date for payment of any special assessment; but any extension will not prevent the board from pursuing its legal remedies to enforce and collect unpaid special assessments [Civ. Code § 1365.5(c)(2)].

When the board decides to use reserve funds or to temporarily transfer money from the reserve fund to pay for litigation, the association must notify its members of that decision in the next available mailing to all members [see Corp. Code § 5016 (authorizing newsletters and other mailings to all members as means of giving required written notice to members of nonprofit corporations)]. The notice must inform the members of the availability of an accounting of the litigation expenses, which must updated on at least a quarterly basis and made available for inspection by members in the association's office [Civ. Code § 1365.5(d)].

At least once every three years, the board of directors must cause to be conducted a reasonably competent and diligent visual inspection of the accessible areas of the major components that the association is obligated to repair, replace, restore, or maintain as part of a study of the reserve account requirements of the development if the current replacement value of the major components is equal to or greater than one-half of the association's gross budget exclusive of the association's reserve account for that three-year period. The board must review this study annually and consider and implement necessary adjustments to the board's analysis of the reserve account requirements as a result of that review [Civ. Code § 1365.5(e); see Civ. Code § 1365.5(g) ("reserve account requirements" defined)].

The study must, at a minimum, include all of the following [Civ. Code § 1365.5(e)]:

- Identification of the major components that the association is obligated to repair, replace, restore, or maintain that, as of the date of the study, have a remaining useful life of less than 30 years;

- Identification of the probable remaining useful life of the identified components as of the date of the study;

- An estimate of the cost of repair, replacement, restoration, or maintenance of each major identified component;

- An estimate of the total annual contribution necessary to defray the cost to repair, replace, restore, or maintain each major component during and at the end of its useful life, after subtracting total reserve funds as of the date of the study; and

- A reserve funding plan that indicates how the association plans to fund the estimate described, above, to meet the association's obligation for the repair and maintenance of all major components with an expected remaining life of 30 years or less, not including those components the board has determined will not be repaired or replaced [see Civ. Code § 1365.5(e)(5) (required contents and adoption procedure)].

The board must review a current reconciliation of the association's reserve accounts on at least a quarterly basis [Civ. Code § 1365.5(a)(1); see Civ. Code § 1365.5(f) ("reserve accounts" defined)]. Also on at least a quarterly basis, the board must review the current year's actual reserve revenues and expenses compared to the current year's budget, as well as an income and expense statement for reserves. Further, the board must review the latest account statements prepared by the financial institutions where the association has its reserve accounts [Civ. Code § 1365.5(a)]. The signatures of at least two persons are required before moneys from the association's reserve accounts may be withdrawn. These two persons must either be (1) members of the board of directors, or (2) an officer who is not a member of the board of directors and a member of the board of directors [Civ. Code § 1365.5(b); see Civ. Code § 1365.5(f) ("reserve accounts" defined)].

The requirements of Civ. Code § 1365.5 are not applicable if the association does not have a common area [Civ. Code § 1365.5(h); see Civ. Code § 1351(b) ("common area" defined)].

[17] Sale or Dissolution of Common Interest Development

The association managing a common interest development subject to the Subdivided Lands Act [Bus. & Prof. Code § 11000 et seq.; see § 124.14[1]] or any person acting on its behalf, shall not transfer all or substantially all of its assets, or file a certificate of dissolution without the approval of 100 percent of its members, so long as there is any lot, parcel, area, apartment, or unit for which the association is obligated to provide management, maintenance, preservation, or control [Corp. Code § 12663(a)].

No court may enter an order declaring the association duly wound up and dissolved [Corp. Code § 12663(b)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

§ 124.24 Tort Liability of Owners of Separate Interests

Civil liability protection is afforded by statute to owners of the separate interests in a common interest development that have common areas owned in tenancy-in-common if the association carries a specified minimum level of prescribed insurance that covers a cause of action in tort [Civ. Code § 1365.9(a) (legislative intent)]. When the insurance requirements are met, any tort cause of action against any separate interest owner that arises solely because the owner has an ownership interest as a tenant in common in the common area of a common interest development must be brought against the association and not against the individual separate interest owners [Civ. Code § 1365.9(b)]. To limit the liability of individual owners, the association must maintain and have in effect at the time of the cause of action one or more general liability policies with total policy limits of at least $2 million if the development consists of 100 or fewer separate interests, or $3 million if the development consists of more than 100 separate interests [Civ. Code § 1365.9(b)(1), (2)].

The association must deliver to each separate interest owner a summary of the association's general liability policy, and has an ongoing responsibility to notify owners of policy changes [see Civ. Code § 1365(f)].

To the extent that the specified insurance coverage requirements are not met, the clear statutory implication is that individual owners of separate interests with ownership interests in the common areas are not immune from liability to third parties for torts arising in common areas. This implication is bolstered by case law that preceded the statutory insurance requirements. Support for liability of individual owners is found in Davert v. Larson, a case of first impression in California on the issue of the potential tort liability of individual owners of common areas. On reversing summary judgment for the defendant who was an individual owner in a common area, the Court of Appeal noted [Davert v. Larson (1985) 163 Cal. App. 3d 407, 412, 209 Cal. Rptr. 445] :

> "Since California law does not require insurance to protect third parties in the case of common area torts, relieving individual owners in common of liability would eliminate any motivation on the part of any party to exercise due care in the management and control of commonly owned property and could leave third parties with no remedy at law.
> Therefore, we believe that tenants in common of real property who delegate the control and management of the property to a separate legal entity should not be immunized from liability to third parties for tortious conduct."

The statutory tort immunity granted to volunteer association officers and directors, which is also conditioned on the association maintaining specified insurance coverage [see Civ. Code § 1365.7; see also § 124.23[13][a]], does not immunize individual owners from liability for tortious acts or omissions in managing or controlling the common areas [Ruoff v. Harbor Creek Community Ass'n (1992) 10 Cal. App. 4th 1624, 1629-1630, 13 Cal. Rptr. 2d 755 (citing Davert v. Larson)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

§ 124.25 Tort Liability of Developer

Subject to the statutory limitations discussed in § 124.26, the association of a common interest development may bring a tort action against the developer for damages to the common areas caused by negligent acts or omissions of the developer, including those acts or omissions that occurred before the association was formally organized [see, e.g., Orange Grove Terrace Owners Assn. v. Bryant Properties, Inc. (1986) 176 Cal. App. 3d 1217, 1219, 1223 , 222 Cal. Rptr. 523 ; see also Civ. Code §§ 1363, 1368.3(b)].

The individual owners may also maintain a class action against the developer for fraudulently misrepresenting in the final public report the cost and extent of the maintenance of the development. In such an action, an ascertainable class exists; common questions of law and fact susceptible to common proof arise because each purchaser is required to sign the report. Justifiable reliance on the report is inferred, because the cost of the monthly maintenance fee is a material fact in development purchases, and damages may be commonly proved, because they consist of the diminution in the value of the interests resulting from the overall reduction and increased cost of maintenance services [see, e.g., Occidental Land, Inc. v. Superior Court (1976) 18 Cal. 3d 355, 360-364, 134 Cal. Rptr. 388, 556 P.2d 750 (class action suit by condominium owners)].

§ 124.26 Prerequisites to Suit Based on Design or Construction Defects

[1] Notice and General Membership Meeting

Before an association files suit for damages against a developer for alleged damage to the common areas, or to other areas in a development that the association has an obligation to maintain and repair, the board of directors must provide written notice to each member that a meeting will take place to discuss the problems and consider available options, including filing a civil action [Civ. Code § 1368.5(a)]. If the association has reason to believe that, in order to avoid expiration of the statute of limitations, a civil action must be filed before a meeting can take place, the notice of the meeting may be given within 30 days after the action has been filed [Civ. Code § 1368.5(b)].

[2] Mandatory Pre-Litigation Dispute Resolution Process for Developments of 20 or More Units

[a] Association's Notice of Commencement of Legal Proceedings

Beginning July 1, 2002, and continuing until July 1, 2017 [see Civ. Code § 1375(r), (s)], before an association representing a common interest development that includes 20 or more units can file a complaint for damages against a builder, developer, or general contractor ("respondent") based on a claim for design or construction defects in the development, the association must initiate a statutory procedure that requires the parties either to settle the matter or to submit it to alternative dispute resolution (ADR) [Civ. Code § 1375(a); see Civ. Code § 1375(p)(3)]. The process begins with the association serving the respondent with a Notice of Commencement of Legal Proceedings that must include all of the following [Civ. Code § 1375(b)]:

- The name and location of the development;
- An initial list of defects that is sufficient to apprise the respondent of the general nature of the defects at issue;
- A description of the results of the defects, if known;
- A summary of the results of any survey or questionnaire distributed to homeowners to determine the nature and extent of defects; and

- Either a summary of the results of any testing conducted to determine the nature and extent of defects, or the actual results of any test conducted.

The notice must be served by certified mail on the respondent's agent, if any. If there is no agent, it must be served on any of the respondent's officers. If there are no current officers, service must be on the person or entity otherwise authorized by law. Service on the general contractor is sufficient with regard to any building or developer [Civ. Code § 1375(b)].

Service of the notice will begin a period, not to exceed 180 days, during which the association, the respondent, and all other participating parties must try to resolve the dispute. The 180-day period may be extended for up to an additional 180 days on the parties' agreement [Civ. Code § 1375(c)]. During this period, all applicable statutes of limitation and repose, whether contractual or statutory, by and against all potentially responsible parties, regardless of whether they are named in the notice, will be tolled [Civ. Code § 1375(b)].

Within 25 days of service of the notice, the respondent may request in writing to meet and confer with the association's board of directors. If the request is granted, the meeting must take place within 10 days of the request. The meeting is subject to the Common Interest Development Open Meeting Act [see Civ. Code § 1363.05], and all discussions are privileged communications and not admissible in evidence in any civil action, unless the association and respondent waive the privilege [Civ. Code § 1375(d)].

[b] Right of Association and Respondent to Inspect and Copy Other Party's Files

Within 60 days of receiving the association's Notice of Commencement of Legal Proceeding, the respondent must provide the association with access, for inspection and copying purposes, to all plans and specifications, subcontracts, and other construction files that are reasonably calculated to lead to the discovery of admissible evidence regarding the defects claimed. The association must provide the respondent with similar access to all files reasonably calculated to lead to the discovery of admissible evidence regarding the defects claimed, including all reserve studies, maintenance records, and any survey questionnaires, or results of testing to determine the nature and extent of defects. All other potentially responsible parties have the same rights as the respondent regarding production of the association's documents. A privilege log must be prepared and submitted to all other parties for any documents withheld based on privilege [Civ. Code § 1375(e)(1)].

[c] Respondent's Notice to Other Potentially Responsible Parties

Within 60 days of receiving the association's Notice of Commencement of Legal Proceeding, the respondent must provide written notice by certified mail to all subcontractors, design professionals, their insurers, and the insurers of any additional insured whose identities are either known to the respondent or readily ascertainable by review of the project files or other similar sources and whose potential responsibility appears on the face of the notice. The notice must include a copy of the association's Notice of Commencement of Legal Proceedings. It must specify the date and manner by which the parties will meet and confer to select a dispute resolution facilitator [see Civ. Code § 1375(f)(1)], and advise the recipient that [Civ. Code § 1375(e)(2)]:

- It has an obligation to participate in the meet and confer or to serve a written acknowledgment of receipt of the notice;

- It will waive any challenge to selection of the dispute resolution facilitator if it elects not to participate in the meet and confer;

- It may be bound by any settlement reached [see Civ. Code § 1375.05(d)];

- It may be deemed to have waived rights to conduct inspection and testing [see Civ. Code § 1375.05(c)];

- It may seek the assistance of an attorney; and

- It should contact its insurer, if any.

[d] Right of Potentially Responsible Party to Be Released from Dispute Resolution Process

Any subcontractor or design professional may, at any time, petition the dispute resolution facilitator for release from the dispute resolution process on a showing that the subcontractor or design professional is not potentially responsible for the defect claims at issue. The petition must be served contemporaneously on all other parties who then will have 15 days from the date of service to object. If a petition is granted and it later appears that the released party may be a responsible party in light of the current defect list or demand, the respondent must (1) "renotice" the party [see Civ. Code § 1375(e)(2)], (2) provide a copy of the current defect list or demand, and (3) direct the party to attend a dispute resolution session at a stated time and location. The party who is then rejoined cannot be prejudiced by its absence from the dispute resolution process as a result of having been previously released [Civ. Code § 1375(m)].

[e] Statement of Insurance Provided by Subcontractor, Design Professional, or Insurer

Any subcontractor, design professional, or insurer of a subcontractor, design professional, or other insured, who receives the respondent's written notice of the meet and confer, must serve on the respondent a written acknowledgment that it received the notice. Within 10 days of service of the written acknowledgment, each subcontractor or design professional must provide the association and the respondent a Statement of Insurance that includes both of the following [Civ. Code § 1375(e)(2)]:

- The names, addresses, and contact persons, if known, of all insurance carriers whose policies were in effect from the commencement of construction to the present and that potentially cover the association's claims; and

- The policy number for each policy.

[f] Peripheral Parties

A peripheral party is a party having a total claimed exposure of less than $25,000. Any subcontractor or design professional, or insurer for that subcontractor, design professional, or additional insured, who so chooses may, at any time, make a written request to the dispute resolution facilitator for designation as a peripheral party. The request must be served contemporaneously on the association and the respondent. If no objection to that designation is received within 15 days, or on rejection of any objection, the dispute resolution facilitator will designate that subcontractor or design professional as a peripheral party. Participation of peripheral parties should be limited to attendance only at those dispute resolution sessions deemed peripheral party sessions or to those sessions during which the dispute resolution facilitator believes settlement as to peripheral parties may be finalized [Civ. Code § 1375(e)(3)].

[g] Selecting Dispute Resolution Facilitator

Within 20 days of the date the respondent sent its notice to subcontractors, design professionals, and insurers [see Civ. Code § 1375(e)(2), discussed in § 124.26[2][c]], the association, respondent, and those who were sent the notice must meet and confer in an effort to select a dispute resolution facilitator to preside over the mandatory dispute resolution process. Any subcontractor or design professional who received notice and chooses not to participate waives any challenge he or she may have to the selection of the dispute resolution facilitator [Civ. Code § 1375(f)(1)].

The dispute resolution facilitator's role is to attempt to resolve the conflict in a fair manner. He or she must be sufficiently knowledgeable in the subject matter and be able to devote sufficient time to the case. The facilitator is not required to reside in or have an office in the county in which the project is located [Civ. Code § 1375(f)(1)]. He or she is empowered to enforce all provisions of Civ. Code § 1375, the pre-litigation dispute resolution statute [Civ. Code § 1375(h)(8)].

If the parties cannot agree to a facilitator, then each party will submit a list of three suggested facilitators. Each party may then strike one nominee from the other parties' lists, and petition the court for final selection. The court may then issue an order for final selection [Civ. Code § 1375(f)(4); see Civ. Code § 1375(n), (o) (procedure for court order)].

A dispute resolution facilitator must disclose to the parties all matters that could cause a person aware of the facts to reasonably entertain a doubt that the facilitator would be able to resolve the conflict in a fair manner [Civ. Code § 1375(f)(2)]. On service of a notice of disqualification by any party before the case management meeting [see § 124.26[2][i]], the court may disqualify a facilitator based either on a disclosure made, or on information that should have been disclosed, but was not [Civ. Code § 1375(f)(3)].

Any subcontractor or design professional who receives notice of the association's claim without having previously received notice of the meet and confer to select the dispute resolution facilitator must be given the facilitator's name, address, and telephone number by the respondent. The subcontractor or design professional then has 15 days from the date he or she received notice of the claim to serve the parties and the facilitator with written objection to the chosen facilitator. Within seven days after the objection is served, the subcontractor or design professional may petition the court to replace the facilitator, which the court may do on a showing of good cause. Failure to satisfy these deadlines constitutes a waiver of the right to challenge the facilitator [Civ. Code § 1375(f)(5)].

[h] Apportioning Costs of Dispute Resolution Facilitator

The dispute resolution facilitator's costs are apportioned as follows [Civ. Code § 1375(f)(6)]:

- One-third to the association;
- One-third to the respondent; and
- One-third to the subcontractors and design professionals as allocated among them by the facilitator.

The facilitator's costs are recoverable by the prevailing party in any subsequent litigation pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1032, provided that any nonsettling party may, before the complaint is filed, petition the facilitator to reallocate the facilitator's costs as they apply to the nonsettling party. In reallocating costs, the facilitator must take into account all relevant factors and equities between all parties in the dispute resolution process. The facilitator's determination with regard to cost allocation is binding in any subsequent litigation [Civ. Code § 1375(f)(6)].

[i] Case Management Meeting

The dispute resolution facilitator and the participating parties must agree on a date, time, and location to hold a case management meeting of all parties and the facilitator to discuss the claims being asserted and the scheduling of events under the pre-litigation dispute resolution process. The chosen date must be within 100 days of service of the association's Notice of Commencement of Legal Proceedings [see § 124.26[2][a]], and the location must be in the county where the project is located [Civ. Code § 1375(f)(1)].

No later than 10 days before the scheduled meeting, the respondent must send written notice of the meeting to the association, subcontractors, design professionals, and the insurers that, to the respondent's knowledge, are on notice of the claim. The notice must specify the meeting's date, time, and location. The facilitator, in consultation with the respondent, must maintain a contact list of the participating parties [Civ. Code § 1375(f)(1)].

The main purpose of the case management meeting is for the parties, with the dispute resolution facilitator's assistance, to reach agreement on a case management statement, which will govern the subsequent dispute resolution process [see Civ. Code § 1375(h)]. For further discussion of the case management statement, see § 124.26[2][j].

[j] Case Management Statement

Except for those elements that the parties agree are not appropriate, the case management statement must include the following elements to take place in the order listed [Civ. Code § 1375(h)(1)-(8)]:

(1) Establishment of a document depository, located in the county where the project is located, for deposit of all relevant documents, defect lists, demands, and other information related to the dispute.

(2) Provision for a more detailed list of defects by the association to the respondent after the association completes a visual inspection of the project.

(3) Provision for a visual inspection of the project by the respondent, subcontractors, and design professionals.

(4) Provision for invasive testing conducted by the association, as the association deems appropriate.

(5) Provision by the association of a comprehensive demand that provides sufficient detail for the parties to engage in meaningful dispute resolution.

(6) Provision for invasive testing conducted by the respondent, subcontractors, and design professionals, as they deem appropriate.

(7) Allowance for the association to modify the demand if new issues arise during the testing by the respondent, subcontractor, or design professionals.

(8) Provision for facilitated dispute resolution of the claim, with all parties, including peripheral parties, as appropriate, and insurers, if any, present and having settlement authority.

All documents exchanged by the parties and all documents created pursuant to the pre-litigation resolution dispute process must be deposited in the document depository described in (1), above. The documents will remain available to all parties during the dispute resolution process and in any subsequent litigation. When any party deposits a document in the depository, that party must provide written notice to all other parties [Civ. Code § 1375(h)(1)].

The list of defects referred to in (2), above, must provide sufficient detail for the respondent to ensure that all potentially responsible subcontractors and design professionals are provided with notice of the dispute resolution process. The respondent is responsible for serving a copy of the Notice of Commencement of Legal Proceedings on all subcontractors and design professionals whose potential responsibility appears on the face of the more detailed defects list. The respondent also must serve a copy of the case management statement, including the dispute resolution facilitator's name, address, and telephone number, on all potentially responsible subcontractors and design professionals at the same time [Civ. Code § 1375(h)(2)].

In addition to (1)-(8), above, on mutual agreement of the parties, the case management statement may also provide for the exchange of consultant or expert photographs, expert presentations, expert meetings, or any other mechanism the parties deem appropriate to further the resolution of the dispute [Civ. Code § 1375(i)].

Once the case management statement has been established, the facilitator must set deadlines for the occurrence of each event set forth in the statement, taking into account the size and complexity of the case and the requirement that the dispute resolution process may not exceed 180 days plus extensions agreed by the parties [Civ. Code § 1375(j); see Civ. Code § 1375(c)].

[k] Respondent's Settlement Offer

At a time determined by the dispute resolution facilitator, the respondent should submit to the association all of the following [Civ. Code § 1375(k)(1)(A)]:

- A request to meet with the association's board to discuss a written settlement offer;
- A written settlement offer, and a concise explanation of the reasons for the offer's terms;
- A statement that the respondent has access to sufficient funds to satisfy the conditions of the settlement offer; and
- A summary of the results of any testing conducted for the purposes of determining the nature and extent of defects, unless the association provided the respondent with actual test results.

No less than 10 days after the respondent submits these items, the respondent and the association's board of directors must meet and confer about the settlement offer [Civ. Code § 1375(k)(1)(C)]. The respondent is permitted only one request to meet and discuss a written settlement offer [Civ. Code § 1375(k)(1)(H)].

[l] Meeting of Association Membership on Board's Rejection of Settlement Offer

If the association's board rejects the respondent's settlement offer, the board must hold a meeting open to each association member not less than 15 days before the association commences an action for damages against the respondent [Civ. Code § 1375(k)(1)(D)]. Notice of this meeting must be sent to each association member not less than 15 days before the meeting is held. The notice must specify all of the following [Civ. Code § 1375(k)(1)(E)]:

- That a meeting will take place to discuss problems that may lead to filing a civil action, and the time and place of the meeting;
- The options that are available to address the problems, including filing a civil action, a statement of the various foreseeable alternatives for paying for those options, and whether the payments will be made from reserve account funds, or from the proceeds of regular, special, or emergency assessments; and
- The complete text of any written settlement offer, and a concise explanation of the specific reasons for the terms of any offer submitted by the respondent to the board at any meeting requested by the respondent under Civ. Code § 1375(d) [see § 124.26[2][a]].

The respondent must pay all expenses related to sending the settlement offer to the association members. The respondent is also responsible for the expenses incurred in holding the meeting, not to exceed $3.00 per association member [Civ. Code § 1375(k)(1)(F)].

The discussions at the meeting, the contents of the notice, and the items required to be specified in the notice are privileged communications and are not admissible in evidence in any civil action, unless the association consents to their admission [Civ. Code § 1375(k)(1)(G); see Civ. Code § 1375(l)].

[m] Petitioning for Court Intervention to Further Pre-Litigation Dispute Resolution Process

Any party may, at any time, petition the superior court in the county where the project is located, on a showing of good cause, for an order or appointment of a referee to resolve a dispute regarding the pre-litigation dispute resolution process [Civ. Code § 1375(n)]. Before involving the court, however, all parties must meet with the dispute resolution facilitator, if one has been appointed, and confer in person or by telephone to attempt to resolve the matter [Civ. Code § 1375(o)(2)]. The following matters are specified by statute as appropriate subjects for seeking court intervention in the dispute resolution process [Civ. Code § 1375(n)]:

- To take a deposition of any party to the process, or subpoena a third party for deposition or production of documents necessary to resolve the dispute before litigation.

- To resolve any disputes concerning inspection, testing, production of documents, or exchange of information necessary to resolve the dispute before litigation.

- To resolve any disagreements relative to the timing or contents of the case management statement.

- To authorize internal extensions of time frames set forth in the case management statement.

- To seek a determination that a settlement is a good faith settlement [see Code Civ. Proc. § 877.6].

- To ensure compliance, on shortened notice, with the obligation to provide a Statement of Insurance [see Civ. Code § 1375(e)(2); see also § 124.26[2][e]].

- For any other relief appropriate to further the pre-litigation dispute resolution process, including ordering parties, and any insurers to the process with settlement authority.

The court must hear and decide the petition within 10 days after filing. The petitioning party must serve the petition on all parties, including the date, time, and location of the hearing no later than five business days before the hearing. Any responsive papers must be filed and served no later than three business days before the hearing [Civ. Code § 1375(o)(1)].

[n] Remedy for Failure to Complete Pre-Litigation Dispute Resolution Process

The only method for seeking judicial relief for the failure of either the association or the respondent to complete the dispute resolution process is the assertion of a procedural deficiency in an action for damages by the association against the respondent, discussed in § 124.26[3]. A verified application asserting a procedural deficiency must be filed with the court no later than 90 days after service of the defendant's answer in the association's action for damages, unless the court finds that extraordinary conditions exist [Civ. Code § 1375.05(g)(1)]. Once the verified application has been filed, the court must schedule a hearing within 21 days to determine whether the association or respondent has substantially complied with the dispute resolution process. At the court's discretion, the issue may be determined on affidavits or oral testimony [Civ. Code § 1375.05(g)(2)].

If the court finds that the association or the respondent did not substantially comply with the pre-litigation dispute resolution process, the court must stay the association's action for damages for up to 90 days to allow the noncomplying party to substantially comply. The noncomplying party may apply to extend the 90-day period, which application will be granted on a showing of good cause [Civ. Code § 1375.05(g)(3)(A)]. If, within the time set by the court, the association or respondent fails to establish that it has substantially complied with the dispute resolution process, the court must determine if, in the interest of justice, the association's action for damages should be dismissed without prejudice, or if another remedy should be fashioned. The action cannot, under any circumstances, be dismissed with prejudice as a result of the association's failure to substantially comply with the dispute resolution process. In determining the appropriate remedy, the court must consider the extent to which the respondent has complied with the dispute resolution process requirements [Civ. Code § 1375.05(g)(3)(B)].

[3] Procedure Governing Litigation If Dispute Resolution Process Fails

[a] Right to Trial Priority

Beginning July 1, 2002, and continuing until July 1, 2010 [see Civ. Code § 1375.05(h), (i)], if an association representing a common interest development that includes 20 or more units and the development's builder, developer, or general contractor ("respondent") completes the mandatory dispute resolution process discussed in § 124.26[2], but fails to reach a settlement of the association's claim for design or construction defects, the association or its assignee may file a complaint in superior court in the county in which the development is located. The action must be given priority on the court's trial calendar [Civ. Code § 1375.05(a)]. The court must assign the earliest possible trial date, considering the pretrial preparation completed pursuant to the pre-litigation dispute resolution process. The complaint is deemed to have been filed on the date the association served it's Notice of Commencement of Legal Proceeding initiating the pre-litigation dispute resolution process [Civ. Code § 1375.05(b); see Civ. Code § 1375(b), discussed in § 124.26[2][a]].

[b] Right to Engage in Additional Inspections or Testing

Any respondent, subcontractor, or design professional who received timely prior notice of the inspections and testing conducted during the pre-litigation dispute resolution process [see Civ. Code § 1375(h)(6)] is prohibited from engaging in additional inspection or testing unless a motion is filed with the court and all of the following conditions are met [Civ. Code § 1375.05(c)]:

- There is an insurer for a subcontractor or design professional that did not have timely notice that legal proceedings were commenced under Civ. Code § 1375 at least 30 days before inspections or testing were initiated under Civ. Code § 1375(h)(6);

- The insurer's insured did not participate in any inspections or testing conducted in accordance with Civ. Code § 1375(h)(6);

- After receiving notice that a complaint has been filed in superior court, the insurer retained separate counsel, who did not participate in the pre-litigation dispute resolution process, to defend its insured;

- It is reasonably likely that the insured would be prejudiced if the additional inspections or testing are not permitted; and

- The information obtainable through the proposed additional inspections or testing is not available through any reasonable alternative sources.

Any additional inspections or testing must be limited to the extent reasonably necessary to avoid the likelihood of prejudice, and must be coordinated among all similarly situated parties to ensure that they occur without unnecessary duplication [Civ. Code § 1375.05(c)].

If, in its complaint, the association alleges defects that were not specified in the pre-litigation dispute resolution process under Civ. Code § 1375, the respondent, subcontractor, and design professionals will be permitted to engage in testing or inspection necessary to respond to the additional claims. A party who seeks additional inspections or testing based on an amendment of claims must apply to the court for leave to conduct those inspections or that testing. If the court determines that it must review the defect claims alleged by the association in the pre-litigation dispute resolution process to determine whether the association alleges new or additional defects, the review must be conducted in camera. On objection of either party, the court must refer the matter to a judge other than the assigned trial judge to determine if the claim has been amended in such a way as to require additional testing or inspection [Civ. Code § 1375.05(c)].

[c] Order of Discovery

At the request of any defendant and except on a showing of good cause, the order of discovery must permit the association's expert witnesses to be deposed before any percipient parties are deposed. Except on a showing of good cause, the depositions must, at the association's request, be followed immediately by the defendant's experts and then by the subcontractors' and design professionals' experts. In determining whether good cause exists, the court must consider the goal of early disclosure of defects and whether the expert is prepared to render a final opinion, except that the court may modify the scope of any expert's deposition to address those concerns [Civ. Code § 1375.05(f)].

[d] Seeking Relief for Failure to Complete Pre-Litigation Resolution Dispute Process

The only method for seeking judicial relief for the failure of either the association or the respondent to complete the pre-litigation dispute resolution process required by Civ. Code § 1375 is the assertion of a procedural deficiency in an action for damages by the association against the respondent. A verified application asserting a procedural deficiency must be filed with the court no later than 90 days after service of the defendant's answer in the association's action for damages [Civ. Code § 1375.05(g)(1)]. For further discussion, see § 124.26[2][n].

§ 124.27 Actions for Defective Construction in New Residential Condominiums Sold on or After January 1, 2003

In accordance with Division 2, Part 2, Title 7 of the Civil Code, "Requirements for Actions for Construction Defects" [Civ. Code § 895 et seq.], any action against a builder, general contractor, subcontractor, individual product manufacturer, or design professional, seeking recovery of damages arising out of, or related to deficiencies in, residential construction, design, specifications, surveying, planning, supervision, testing, or observation of construction when the property involved is a new residential unit (excluding a condominium conversion) when the purchase agreement with the original buyer was signed by the seller on or after January 1, 2003, is governed by detailed statutory standards related to the various functions and components of the building [see Civ. Code §§ 896, 938].

An action under Title 7 is preceded by a mandatory pre-litigation procedure, which provides the potential defendant with a right to attempt a repair of any alleged defect before litigation. The pre-litigation procedure also includes inspections and exchanges of documentation between the parties under certain circumstances, and mediation at various points, all pursuant to statutory timeframes [see Civ. Code §§ 910-938]. If the parties under a Title 7 action comply with this statutory pre-litigation process, the parties will be excused from performing the pre-litigation dispute resolution process required by Civ. Code § 1375 to the extent that the provisions of the Title 7 procedure are substantially similar to the provisions of § 1375 [Civ. Code § 935]. For discussion of the Civ. Code § 1375 procedure, see § 124.26[2]. For further coverage of the Title 7 mandatory pre-litigation process, see Ch. 104, Building Contracts .

12-124 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 124.28

§ 124.28 Improvements and Modifications to Separate Interest Property

Subject to the provisions of the governing documents and other applicable provisions of law, the owner of a separate interest whose boundaries are contained within a building may make any improvements or alterations within the boundaries of the interest that do not impair the structural integrity or mechanical systems or lessen the support of any portions of the common interest development [Civ. Code § 1360(a)(1)].

Subject to the provisions of the governing documents and other applicable provisions of law, the owner of a separate interest whose boundaries are contained within a building may modify a unit in a condominium, at the owner's expense, to facilitate access for persons who are blind, visually handicapped, deaf, or physically disabled, or to alter conditions which could be hazardous to these persons. These modifications may also include modifications of the route from the public way to the door of the unit if the unit is on the ground floor or already accessible by an existing ramp or elevator [Civ. Code § 1360(a)(2)].

The modifications must be consistent with applicable building code requirements and with the intent of otherwise applicable provisions of the governing documents pertaining to safety or aesthetics. Furthermore, any modifications that are external to the dwelling must not prevent reasonable passage by other residents, and must be removed by the owner when the unit is no longer occupied by blind, visually handicapped, deaf, or physically disabled persons who require those modifications [Civ. Code § 1360(a)(2)].

Any owner who intends to so modify a unit must submit his or her plans and specifications to the association of the condominium project for review, to determine whether the modifications will comply with the provisions of Civ. Code § 1360(a)(2). The association may not deny approval of the proposed modifications without good cause [Civ. Code § 1360(a)(2)].

Any change in the exterior appearances of a separate interest must be in accordance with the governing documents and applicable provisions of law [Civ. Code § 1360(b)].

12-124 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 124.29

§ 124.29 Liens for Labor or Material

In a condominium project, a lien may not be filed against an owner of property in the project for labor performed or services or materials furnished with the consent or at the request of another owner in the condominium project, or of that other owner's agent or contractor, unless that other owner has expressly consented to or requested the performance of the labor or furnishing of the materials or services [Civ. Code § 1369].

Express consent is deemed to have been given by the owner of any condominium if emergency repairs are made to the property. In addition, labor performed or services or materials furnished for the common areas, if duly authorized by the association, are deemed to be performed or furnished with the express consent of each condominium owner [Civ. Code § 1369].

The owner of any condominium may remove his or her condominium from a lien against two or more condominiums or any part thereof by payment to the holder of the lien of the fraction of the total sum secured by the lien which is attributable to his or her condominium [Civ. Code § 1369].

In a related context, the law permits a blanket lien, i.e., a lien against an entire condominium complex, including the individual units, that does not allocate the amount of the lien per unit owner [see Civ. Code § 3130]. However, when such a lien has been filed against a condominium project, the contractor must notify each owner of the fraction of the total sum secured by the lien that is attributable to his or her condominium. The information is statutorily required so that any owner may remove his or her unit from the lien by making payment to the lienholder of the owner's fractional share [Civ. Code § 1369]. The lienholder's failure or refusal to notify each unit owner of his or her unit's apportioned share of the blanket lien may render the entire lien unenforceable [see ECC Construction v. Ganson (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 572, 578, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 292 ; but see Flintkote Co. v. Lisa Constr. Co. (1968) 268 Cal. App. 2d 606, 609, 74 Cal. Rptr. 136 (holding in non-condominium context that only penalty for failure to apportion lien is to postpone claimant's lien to other liens)].

[1] Bond

If a subdivision is subject to the Subdivision Map Act (Gov. Code § 66410 et seq.; see § 124.19) and to a lien for taxes or special assessments collected as taxes which are not yet payable, the final map or parcel map may not be recorded until the owner or subdivider executes and files a bond conditioned on the payment of the taxes with the clerk of the board of supervisors of the county in which any part of the subdivision is located, and files with that clerk a certificate statement prepared by the appropriate state or local official estimating the taxes [Gov. Code § 66493(a)].

[2] Property Taxes

Each separately owned lot, parcel, or area of a planned development is separately assessed and taxed for property tax purposes. The assessment includes the value of the separate interest, plus a proportionate interest in the common area reserved as an appurtenance of the separate interest [see Rev. & Tax. Code § 2188.5].

When individual units in a condominium project are initially sold, the initial seller or purchaser of each unit may request separate assessment of property taxes, unless a bond has been filed pursuant to Gov. Code § 66493 [see Rev. & Tax. Code § 2188.6]. Thereafter, each condominium unit is separately assessed and taxed to its owner [see Rev. & Tax. Code § 2188.3].

The assessor must separately assess the individual interests of the owners of a community apartment project or a stock cooperative if the owners have properly given approval of a written request for the separate assessment [see Rev. & Tax. Code § 2188.7(a)]. The interest assessed for a community apartment project is the value of the right of exclusive occupancy in a portion of the real property, plus the value of the undivided interest in the land. The interest assessed for a stock cooperative is the value of the right of exclusive occupancy that is transferable with the transfer of the individual's shares of stock in the corporation, plus the value of the interest in appurtenant common areas [see Rev. & Tax. Code § 2188.7(b)].

For further discussion of property taxes, as well as forms for claiming a refund of them, see Ch. 540, Taxes and Assessments .

PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

12-124 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 124.55

§ 124.55 Decisions

[1] Arbitration

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.2, party seeking to compel arbitration must plead and prove prior demand for arbitration under agreement and refusal to arbitrate before it may be entitled to order compelling arbitration; when homeowners' association failed to make such showing its petition to compel arbitration should have been denied. Mansouri v. Superior Court (2010) 181 Cal. App. 4th 633, 640, 104 Cal. Rptr. 3d 824

Provision in condominium project's declaration of covenants, conditions, and restrictions requiring construction and design defect claims to be submitted to binding arbitration was contract of adhesion that was unenforceable because it was procedurally and substantively unconscionable. Villa Milano Homeowners Ass'n v. IL Davorge (2000) 84 Cal. App. 4th 819, 835, 102 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1

Arbitration clause in condominium purchase agreement was valid; class action for fraudulent concealment, breach of statutory and fiduciary duties, and negligence was therefore subject to arbitration. Izzi v. Mesquite Country Club (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 1309, 1316, 1322, 231 Cal. Rptr. 315

[2] Bylaws

Amendment to condominium bylaws that created two classes of members and adversely affected rights of one class was not valid because it was not approved by affected class as required by Corp. Code § 7150. Lake Arrowhead Chalets Timeshare Owners Assn. v. Lake Arrowhead Chalets Owners Assn. (1996) 51 Cal. App. 4th 1403, 1408-1409, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 875

[3] Conversions

Ordinance regulating condominium conversions is legitimate exercise of city's police power, is not preempted by Subdivision Map Act, and does not result in taking of property. Griffin Development Co. v. City of Oxnard (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 256, 266-267, 217 Cal. Rptr. 1, 703 P.2d 339

City ordinance imposing moratorium on condominium conversions was legitimate exercise of police power; ordinance was not unconstitutional as applied, because strict scrutiny test was inapplicable and rational relationship test was met because ordinance is reasonably related to city's goal of preserving rental housing; city was not required to ban all conversions but was free to restrict moratorium to those buildings whose impact on rental housing was most palpable; retroactive application of moratorium ordinance was valid. Leavenworth Properties v. City and County of San Francisco (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 986, 990-994, 234 Cal. Rptr. 598

Fifty-day period of Gov. Code § 66452.1(b), requiring local advisory agency to take action on subdivision map within 50 days or be deemed to have approved it under Gov. Code § 66452.4, is not operative when application is not accepted by agency for filing, nor is it operative when local ordinance does not authorize agency to approve applications. Leavenworth Properties v. City and County of San Francisco (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 986, 995, 234 Cal. Rptr. 598

Subdivision Map Act prescribes exclusive means, after recordation of final map containing plan for developing condominium units, for obtaining refund of development fees imposed pursuant to Act on formal reversion to acreage. B & P Development Corp. v. City of Saratoga (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 949, 961, 230 Cal. Rptr. 192

Condominium conversion ordinance was ordinance but was not so intrusive as to have confiscatory effect. Terminal Plaza Corp. v. City and County of San Francisco (1986) 177 Cal. App. 3d 892, 912, 223 Cal. Rptr. 379

Local ordinance requiring condominium converter to pay relocation assistance to displaced tenants was valid. Briarwood Properties, Ltd. v. City of Los Angeles (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 1020, 217 Cal. Rptr. 849 ; Kalaydjian v. City of Los Angeles (1983) 149 Cal. App. 3d 690, 693-694, 197 Cal. Rptr. 149

Developer engaging in condominium conversion was required to comply with local rent control ordinance that required removal permit, despite fact that developer's tentative tract map was approved before ordinance was enacted. Blue Chip Properties v. Permanent Rent Control Bd. (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 648, 663, 216 Cal. Rptr. 492

Rent control ordinance that required removal permit to convert apartments to condominiums was not preempted by Subdivision Map Act when map had been approved before enactment of ordinance. McMullan v. Santa Monica Rent Control Bd. (1985) 168 Cal. App. 3d 960, 963-964, 214 Cal. Rptr. 617

Consummation of tenant's right of first refusal to purchase converting unit was required to be in form of binding contract to sell and purchase real property to satisfy statute of frauds. Greenberg v. Superior Court (1982) 131 Cal. App. 3d 441, 448, 182 Cal. Rptr. 466

Tenant's right of first refusal to purchase converting unit arises only when project has been fully approved, final map recorded, and subdivision public report issued. Greenberg v. Superior Court (1982) 131 Cal. App. 3d 441, 448, 182 Cal. Rptr. 466

[4] Covenants, Conditions, and Restrictions

If declaration establishing common plan for ownership of property in subdivision and containing restrictions on use of property as part of the common plan is recorded before execution of sales agreement for any land in subdivision and satisfies other specified requirements, subsequent purchasers who have constructive notice of recorded declaration are deemed to intend and agree to be bound by common plan. Citizens for Covenant Compliance v. Anderson (1995) 12 Cal. 4th 345, 349, 355, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 898, 906 P.2d 1314

Reasonableness or unreasonableness of condominium use restriction subject to Civ. Code § 1354 is determined by reference to common interest development as whole, not to facts that are specific to objecting homeowner; use restriction subject to Civ. Code § 1354 is enforceable unless it is wholly arbitrary, imposes burden on use of affected land that substantially outweighs any benefit to development's residents, or violates fundamental public policy. Nahrstedt v. Lakeside Village Condominium Assn. (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 361, 382-383, 386, 33 Cal. Rptr. 2d 63, 878 P.2d 1275 ; Dolan-King v. Rancho Santa Fe Assn. (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 965, 975, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 280

Homeowners' association violated Fair Employment and Housing Act [Gov. Code § 12900 et seq.] by failing to allow married residents to keep companion dog as reasonable accommodation to their disabilities. Auburn Woods I Homeowners Assn. v. Fair Employment & Housing Comm'n (2004) 121 Cal. App. 4th 1578, 1591-1592, 18 Cal. Rptr. 3d 669

When covenants, codes, and restrictions entitle members to use common areas, rule precluding use by nonresident member exceeds authority of association. Major v. Miraverde Homeowners Assn. (1992) 7 Cal. App. 4th 618, 625-628, 9 Cal. Rptr. 2d 237

Homeowners' association is not prohibited by Civ. Code § 714 from imposing solar unit guidelines in covenant that are reasonable restrictions and that allow for alternative system of comparable cost and efficiency. Palos Verdes Homes Assn. v. Rodman (1986) 182 Cal. App. 3d 324, 328, 227 Cal. Rptr. 81

Homeowners' association that seeks to enforce covenants, codes, and restrictions to compel act by member owner is required to show that it has followed its own standards and procedures before pursuing mandatory injunctive relief, and that its substantive decision was made in good faith and is reasonable and not arbitrary or capricious. Ironwood Owners Assn. IX v. Solomon (1986) 178 Cal. App. 3d 766, 772, 224 Cal. Rptr. 18

[5] Disputes Involving Governing Documents

Successful invocation of homeowners' association's governing documents as defense does not entitle defendant to attorneys' fees under former Civ. Code § 1354(f) (now see Civ. Code § 1369.580) if plaintiff's claim was not brought to enforce those documents. Salawy v. Ocean Towers Housing Corp. (2004) 121 Cal. App. 4th 664, 671, 17 Cal. Rptr. 3d 427

Trial court has jurisdiction after voluntary dismissal to determine who was prevailing party for purposes of awarding attorney's fees under former Civ. Code § 1354(f) (now see Civ. Code § 1369.580). Parrott v. Mooring Townhomes Assn., Inc. (2003) 112 Cal. App. 4th 873, 877, 6 Cal. Rptr. 3d 116

Action purportedly brought under Corp. Code § 7616 to determine validity of election of directors was in fact action to enforce members' proxy and cumulative voting rights under the bylaws; thus court properly awarded attorney's fees pursuant to former Civ. Code § 1354(f) (now see Civ. Code § 1369.580). Kaplan v. Fairway Oaks Homeowners Assn. (2002) 98 Cal. App. 4th 715, 721, 120 Cal. Rptr. 2d 158

[6] Elements of Common Interest Development

Declaration that restricted use of four lots did not give owners of other lots in development any interest in those four lots or right to use lots for their own enjoyment did not create any "mutual or reciprocal easement rights appurtenant to the separate interests," and development therefore was not a common interest development within meaning of Davis-Sterling Act. Committee to Save the Beverly Highlands Homes Assn. v. Beverly Highlands Homes Assn. (2001) 92 Cal. App. 4th 1247, 1270, 112 Cal. Rptr. 2d 732

Right to exclusive occupancy is prerequisite to creation of community apartment project, and that right must appear on face of deed for that estate to be created; community apartment project cannot be created informally. Adler v. Elphick (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 642, 644, 647, 649, 229 Cal. Rptr. 254

Condominium's system of tenure for real property draws elements from both tenancy in common and separate ownership. White v. Cox (1971) 17 Cal. App. 3d 824, 829, 95 Cal. Rptr. 259

Existence of condominium as defined in Civ. Code § 783 requires that at least one unit has been conveyed by subdivider. County of Los Angeles v. Hartford Acc. & Indem. Co. (1970) 3 Cal. App. 3d 809, 814, 83 Cal. Rptr. 740

[7] Liability of Association

Association functions as landlord in maintaining common areas of condominium, and has duty to exercise due care for residents' safety in areas under its control. Frances T. v. Village Green Owners Ass'n (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 490, 498, 503, 229 Cal. Rptr. 456, 723 P.2d 573

Injunction properly issued requiring association to repair slab penetrations adjacent to plaintiff's unit; evidence showed that slab penetrations constituted deviation from original architectural plans for construction of building, penetrations existed in violation of current building requirements, and presence of slab penetrations constituted fire hazard. Ritter & Ritter, Inc. Pension and Profit Plan v. Churchill Condominium Assn. (2008) 166 Cal. App. 4th 103, 124, 82 Cal. Rptr. 3d 389

Coverage of action alleging fraud and breach of duty based on association's conduct in dispute over views blocked by new construction was not barred by exclusion in association's liability insurance policy for wrongful acts based on design or construction of any structure. Marquez Knolls Property Owners Assn., Inc. v. Executive Risk Indemnity, Inc. (2007) 153 Cal. App. 4th 228, 234, 62 Cal. Rptr. 3d 510

Homeowners association had no duty to inform members of filing of litigation against its insurer, when duty was not imposed in association's governing documents. Ostayan v. Nordhoff Townhomes Homeowners Assn. (2003) 110 Cal. App. 4th 120, 129, 1 Cal. Rptr. 3d 528

Association has no duty to disclose to prospective purchasers existence of construction defects or fact of any litigation concerning construction defects. Kovich v. Paseo Del Mar Homeowners' Assn. (1996) 41 Cal. App. 4th 863, 867-869, 48 Cal. Rptr. 2d 758

Clause in declaration exculpating homeowners' association from liability for damage from water leaking from pipes was enforceable as not violative of public policy and association could contractually shift the risk of loss to the condominium owner. Franklin v. Marie Antoinette Condominium Owners Ass'n (1993) 19 Cal. App. 4th 824, 833-834, 23 Cal. Rptr. 2d 744

Negligence action by condominium unit owner against condominium and condominium association is permitted. White v. Cox (1971) 17 Cal. App. 3d 824, 828, 95 Cal. Rptr. 259

[8] Liability of Developer

Right of condominium unit owners to maintain class action against developer for fraudulent misrepresentations in final public report. Occidental Land, Inc. v. Superior Court (1976) 18 Cal. 3d 355, 360-361, 134 Cal. Rptr. 388, 556 P.2d 750

Developer-drafted provision in CC&Rs requiring all disputes between association and developer to be decided by general judicial reference is not written contract within meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 638 (authorizing party to written contract to move for judicial reference if contract so provides) and therefore cannot effect waiver of right to jury trial. Treo @ Kettner Homeowners Assn. v. Superior Court (2008) 166 Cal. App. 4th 1055, 1067, 83 Cal. Rptr. 3d 318

Association may recover from developer for damages to common areas of condominium caused by negligent acts or omissions that occurred before association was formally organized. Orange Grove Terrace Owners Assn. v. Bryant Properties, Inc. (1986) 176 Cal. App. 3d 1217, 1219, 1223, 222 Cal. Rptr. 523

Developer is liable to individual homeowners and to homeowners' association for breach of fiduciary duty to act in good faith, exercise proper management, and avoid conflicts of interest. Cohen v. S & S Construction Co. (1983) 151 Cal. App. 3d 941, 945, 201 Cal. Rptr. 173

[9] Liability of Director

Director of association is not vicariously liable for association's tort in which he or she does not participate. Frances T. v. Village Green Owners Ass'n (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 490, 504, 229 Cal. Rptr. 456, 723 P.2d 573

Director of association is liable in his or her personal capacity for association's tort, if that director specifically authorized, directed, or participated in tort or if director specifically knew or reasonably should have known that some hazardous condition or activity under his or her control could injure plaintiff but director negligently failed to take or order appropriate action to avoid harm. Frances T. v. Village Green Owners Ass'n (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 490, 508, 229 Cal. Rptr. 456, 723 P.2d 573

Generally, board of directors of corporation is not personally liable to third parties for negligence amounting to breach of duty that officer owes to corporation alone. Jaffe v. Huxley Architecture (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 1188, 1191, 246

Cal. Rptr. 432

Condominium complex developers sued by homeowners' association for construction defects for which developers were responsible were not entitled to seek equitable indemnification from individual members of association's board of directors for acts and omissions that contributed to damages arising from original defects, because acts and omissions related to board's management of complex and were in legal sense conduct of association itself; acts and omissions could be asserted by developers against association under either doctrine of comparative negligence or doctrine of avoidable consequences. Jaffe v. Huxley Architecture (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 1188, 1190-1192, 246 Cal. Rptr. 432

[10] Liability of Individual Owner

Members of property owners' association who held access easements in private streets in subdivision had no duty to child injured on street by resident's dogs, because there was no connection between easement's scope and harm that occurred. Cody F. v. Falletti (2001) 92 Cal. App. 4th 1232, 1243-1244, 112 Cal. Rptr. 2d 593

Individual owner is liable for injury sustained by third person in common area. Davert v. Larson (1985) 163 Cal. App. 3d 407, 412, 209 Cal. Rptr. 445

[11] Voting

When not specifically prohibited by governing documents, vote on proposed amendment to declaration may be conducted by mail ballot pursuant to Corp. Code § 7513(a). Fourth La Costa Condominium Owners Assn. v. Seith (2008) 159 Cal. App. 4th 563, 569-570, 71 Cal. Rptr. 3d 299

When vote on proposed amendment of declaration has been conducted by mail ballot, Corp. Code § 7513(b) ("approval by written ballot pursuant to this section shall be valid only when the number of votes cast by ballot ...equals or exceeds the quorum required to be present at a meeting authorizing the action, and the number of approvals equals or exceeds the number of votes that would be required to approve at a meeting at which the total number of votes cast was the same as the number of votes cast by ballot") does not prohibit association or member from seeking judicial intervention under Civ. Code § 1356 (homeowners association, or any member, may petition superior court for reduction in percentage of affirmative votes required to amend CC&Rs if they require approval by "owners having more than 50 percent of the votes in the association"). Fourth La Costa Condominium Owners Assn. v. Seith (2008) 159 Cal. App. 4th 563, 570-571, 71 Cal. Rptr. 3d 299

When bylaws require vote by joint action of owners, votes by less than all joint owners of a unit were not valid affirmative votes. King v. Oakmore Homes Assn. (1987) 195 Cal App. 3d 779, 782-783, 241 Cal. Rptr. 140

Plaintiff alleges:

1. Defendant _____ [name] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, _____ [state capacity and residence of defendant or other basis of venue, e.g., a resident of _____ County, California or a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of California with its principal place of business in _____ (city), California [if applicable, _____ Judicial District].

[2. Plaintiff is ignorant of the true names and capacities of defendants sued herein as Does I-_____, inclusive, and therefore sues these defendants by such fictitious names. Plaintiff will amend this complaint to allege their true names and capacities when ascertained. (Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that each of the fictitiously named defendants is responsible in some manner for the occurrences herein alleged, and that plaintiff's injuries as herein alleged were proximately caused by their conduct.)]

3. Defendant is, and at all times herein mentioned was, the owner of a separate interest in a common interest development commonly known as _____ [name of development]. Specifically, defendant is the owner of _____ [describe defendant's separate interest].

4. _____ [Name of development] is not subject to Business and Professions Code Sections 11000-11200, commonly known as the Subdivided Lands Act, because _____ [specify, e.g., it is a community apartment project containing only three apartments].

5. On or about _____ [date], _____ [describe prospective sale of defendant's separate interest to plaintiff, e.g., defendant and plaintiff entered into negotiations for plaintiff to purchase defendant's separate interest in the _____ (name of development). On _____ (date), defendant and plaintiff executed a real property sales contract on the separate interest].

6. Defendant failed to provide plaintiff, as soon as practicable before the _____ [transfer of title to or execution of the real property sales contract for] the separate interest with _____ [a copy of the operating rules and/or the governing documents of _____ (name of development) or a statement that the restriction in the governing documents limiting the _____ (occupancy or residency or use) of a separate interest on the basis of age is only enforceable to the extent permitted by Civil Code Section 51.3 or a statement specifying the applicable provisions of Civil Code Section 51.3 or a copy of the most recent financial statement prepared by the management association of _____ (name of development) and distributed to all its members pursuant to (Civil Code Section 1367.1 or, if lien was recorded before January 1, 2003, Civil Code Section 1367) or a true statement in writing obtained from an authorized representative of the management association of _____ (name of development) as to the amount of any assessments levied on defendant's interest in _____ (name of development) which are unpaid, including true information of late charges, interest, and costs of collection which are or may be made a lien on defendant's interest pursuant to Civil Code Section 1367, or a copy or summary of any notice issued by the board of directors to defendant pursuant to Civil Code Section 1363(h) that sets forth any alleged and unresolved violation of the governing documents or any combination thereof].

7. Defendant's failure to provide plaintiff with the above-described document(s) was willful, because _____ [specify circumstances indicating willful failure to provide].

8. As a proximate result of defendant's failure to provide plaintiff with the above-described document(s), plaintiff has suffered actual damages in that _____ [describe manner in which plaintiff has been damaged], all to his/her damage in the amount of $_____.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendant as follows:

1. For actual damages in the sum of $_____;

2. For reasonable attorney's fees [in the sum of $_____];

3. For the imposition of a civil penalty in the sum of $500;

4. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

VERIFICATION

I, _____ [name], am the plaintiff in the above-entitled action. I have read the foregoing complaint and know the contents thereof. The same is true of my own knowledge, except as to those matters which are therein alleged on information and belief, and as to those matters, I believe it to be true.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

_____ [typed name]

[2] Use of Form

This complaint is for use by a purchaser of a separate interest in a common interest development not subject to the Subdivided Lands Act (Bus. & Prof. Code § 11000 et seq.), when the seller has willfully failed to provide the purchaser with the documents required under Civ. Code § 1368(a) [see Civ. Code § 1368(d)].

[3] Allegations

This complaint alleges the following:

- The residence and capacity of the defendant (Paragraph 1).
- Fictitious names (Paragraph 2).
- A description of the separate interest (Paragraph 3).
- That the development is not subject to the Subdivided Lands Act (Paragraph 4) [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 11004.5; Civ. Code § 1368(a); see also § 124.14[2]].
- A description of the sale of the separate interest (Paragraph 5).
- That defendant failed to provide plaintiff with the necessary document(s) as required under Civ. Code § 1368(a) (Paragraph 6).
- That defendant's failure to provide plaintiff with the documents was willful (Paragraph 7).
- That, as a proximate result, plaintiff suffered actual damages (Paragraph 8) [see Civ. Code § 1368(d)].

[4] Attorney's Fees

If the purchaser is the prevailing party in the action, he or she is entitled to reasonable attorney's fees, in addition to actual damages [Civ. Code § 1368(d)].

[5] Verification

Although verification of this complaint is not required [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(a)], verification will require any answer to be verified also, if the action is in the superior court and is not a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446]. Verification will also preclude a general denial except in a limited civil case, and will preclude a general denial even in a limited civil case when the action is a claim assigned to a third party for collection [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion of the effect that verifying a complaint has on the answer, see Ch. 26, Answers .

[6] Jurisdiction and Venue

The superior court has jurisdiction of the action, which will be classified as an unlimited civil case unless the amount in controversy, exclusive of interest, is $25,000 or less, in which case it will be classified as a limited civil case [Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(6)]. For further discussion of jurisdiction, see Ch. 323, Jurisdiction: Personal , and Ch. 324, Jurisdiction: Subject Matter .

In limited civil cases the caption must state whether the demand exceeds or does not exceed $10,000. The caption must also identify the case as a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. § 422.30(b); Gov. Code § 70613; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(9), (10)].

Venue is determined under the general venue statutes [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 392-402 (generally); see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. §§ 393(a) (recovery of penalty), 395(a) (personal injury), 395.5 (corporations or associations)]. For further discussion, see Ch. 571, Venue .

§ 124.71 Allegation--Willful Failure of Subdivider to Notify Purchaser or Tenant of Blanket Encumbrance [Civ. Code § 1133]

[1] FORM Allegation--Willful Failure of Subdivider to Notify Purchaser or Lessee of Blanket Encumbrance [Civ. Code § 1133]

1. Defendant is, and at all times herein mentioned was, the _____ [subdivider or _____ (agent or representative) of the subdivider, _____ (name of subdivider)] of a common interest development commonly known as _____ [name of development].

2. _____ [Name of development] is not subject to Business and Professions Code Sections 11000-11200, commonly known as the Subdivided Lands Act, and thus is exempt from compliance with Business and Professions Code Section 11013.2 regarding conditions under which a sale or lease without a release clause is permitted, because _____ [specify, e.g., it is a community apartment project containing only four apartments].

3. On or about _____ [date], defendant _____ [(caused to be) sold to plaintiff or (caused to be) leased to plaintiff for a term exceeding five years] a separate interest in _____ [name of development], consisting of that certain _____ [type of interest, e.g., apartment] located at _____ [street address and city], California, and more particularly described as follows: _____ [legal description of lot, parcel, or unit].

4. At the time of the above _____ [sale or lease], the _____ [type of interest, e.g., apartment] was subject to a blanket encumbrance, as defined in Business and Professions Code Section 11013.

5. Defendant [failed to furnish plaintiff with a true copy of the notice required by Civil Code Section 1133, and further] failed to obtain plaintiff's signature on the notice [required by Civil Code Section 1133], before making the _____ [sale or lease] to plaintiff.

[2] Use of Form

This allegation is for use by the purchaser of a lot, parcel, or unit of a subdivision not subject to the Subdivided Lands Act (Bus. & Prof. Code § 11000 et seq.) when the subdivider willfully fails to notify the buyer of a blanket encumbrance as required by Civ. Code § 1133. It can also be used by a tenant if the lease was for a term exceeding five years [Civ. Code § 1133(a)]. The allegation in this form may be inserted in lieu of Paragraphs 3-6 of § 124.70[1].

The term "subdivision" for purposes of an action under Civ. Code § 1133 includes, but is not limited to, a condominium project as defined in Civ. Code § 1351(f), a community apartment project as defined in Civ. Code § 1351(d), a stock cooperative as defined in Civ. Code § 1351(m), and a limited equity housing cooperative as defined in Civ. Code § 1351(m) [Civ. Code § 1133(b)].

[3] Allegations

The form alleges that:

- Defendant, or his or her agent or representative, is a subdivider (Paragraph 1) [Civ. Code § 1133(a)].

- The development is not subject to the Subdivided Lands Act (Bus. & Prof. Code § 11000 et seq.) (Paragraph 2) [Civ. Code § 1133(a); see Bus. & Prof. Code § 11004.5; see also § 124.14[2]].

- Defendant sold the lot or leased it for a term exceeding five years (Paragraph 3) [Civ. Code § 1133(a)].

- At the time of the sale or lease, the lot, parcel, or unit was subject to a blanket encumbrance, as defined in Bus. & Prof. Code § 11013 (Paragraph 4) [Civ. Code § 1133(a)].

- Defendant sold or leased the lot, parcel, or unit before plaintiff was furnished with and signed a true copy of the notice set out in Civ. Code § 1133 (Paragraph 5) [Civ. Code § 1133(a)].

If the defendant's failure to provide the required notice was willful (see § 124.70[1], Paragraph 7), the purchaser or tenant is entitled to actual damages. In addition, the defendant will be guilty of a public offense punishable by a fine of up to $500. The prevailing party in an action to enforce such liability or fine will be awarded reasonable attorney's fees [Civ. Code § 1133(d)].

[4] State Statutes

Blanket encumbrance is defined to be trust deed, mortgage, lien, or encumbrance securing payment of money, or agreement under which subdivider holds subdivision under option, contract to sell, or trust agreement. Bus. & Prof. Code § 11013.

Notice to purchaser or to tenant (for term exceeding five years) is required when subdivision unit is subject to blanket encumbrance; form of notice. Civ. Code § 1133(a).

Failure of buyer or tenant to sign notice does not invalidate grant, conveyance, lease, or encumbrance. Civ. Code § 1133(c).

Remedies for willful violation of requirement to provide notice of blanket encumbrance to prospective buyer or tenant. Civ. Code § 1133(d).

[2] Use of Form

This complaint is for use by an owner's association to collect delinquent assessments from a separate interest owner in a common interest development [see Civ. Code § 1366].

In lieu of filing a complaint to collect a delinquent assessment, the association may record a notice of delinquent assessment, which establishes a lien on the owner's separate interest for the amount of the assessment, plus late charges, reasonable costs of collection, and interest. The lien may be enforced in any manner permitted by law, including sale by the court or by the trustee designated in the notice [see Civ. Code § 1367(b), (e), (g) (liens recorded on or after January 1, 1986, and before January 1, 2003); Civ. Code § 1367.1(d), (h), (m) (liens recorded on or after January 1, 2003); Civ. Code § 1367.4(c) (liens for assessment debts of $1,800 or more arising on or after January 1, 2006); see also § 124.15[b] -[f]]. For a form of notice of delinquent assessment for use in recording such a lien, see California Legal Forms , Ch. 34, Condominiums and Other Common-Interest Developments (Matthew Bender).

If the association chooses to record a notice of delinquent assessment in lieu of filing a complaint to collect the debt, the association must first offer the separate interest owner and, if the owner accepts, participate in dispute resolution pursuant to the association's "meet and confer" program [Civ. Code § 1367.1(c)(1)(A); see Civ. Code § 1363.810 et seq.; see also § 124.17[1]].

If the amount of the debt for a delinquent regular or special assessment is less than $1,800 (excluding any accelerated assessments, late charges, fees and collection costs, and attorney's fees, or interest), and the debt arose on or after January 1, 2006, the debt may be collected by filing an action in small claims court, although an action in Superior Court is not inappropriate [see Civ. Code § 1367.4(b)(1), (3)].

[3] Allegations

This complaint alleges the following:

- The capacity of the plaintiff (Paragraph 1).
- The residence and capacity of the defendant(s) (Paragraph 2).
- That a regular or special assessment was levied pursuant to the governing documents (Paragraph 3) [Civ. Code § 1366(e)].
- That at least 15 days, or a longer period specified in the Declaration, have passed since the assessment became due and it is still unpaid (Paragraph 4) [Civ. Code § 1366(e)].

[4] Prayer

The association may recover the following: (1) the amount of the delinquent assessment; (2) a late charge in an amount not exceeding the greater of 10 percent of the assessment or $10, unless the declaration provides for a lesser charge; and (3) reasonable fees and costs of collection, and reasonable attorney's fees, at an annual interest rate not to exceed 12 percent, commencing 30 days after the assessment becomes due, unless the declaration specifies the recovery of interest at a rate of a lesser amount, in which case the lesser interest rate will apply [Civ. Code § 1366(e)(3)].

[5] State Statutes

Association must levy regular and special assessments sufficient to perform its obligations under governing documents and Civ. Code § 1350 et seq. Civ. Code § 1366(a).

Exemption from execution by judgment creditors of regular assessments imposed to perform essential services. Civ. Code § 1366(c).

Regular and special assessments are delinquent 15 days after becoming due; association is authorized to recover collection costs, including reasonable attorney's fees, late charge, and interest; limitations on late charges and interest. Civ. Code § 1366(e).

Assessment, as well as late charges, collection costs, and interest, are debt of owner of separate interest at time assessment or other sums are levied. Civ. Code § 1367(a), (g) (liens recorded on or after January 1, 1986, and before January 1, 2003); Civ. Code § 1367.1(a), (m) (liens recorded on or after January 1, 2003).

Petitioner(s) allege(s):

1. At all times mentioned herein, petitioner(s) _____ [name(s)] was/were, and now is/are, _____ [specify, e.g., owner(s) of individual _____ (type of interest, e.g., condominium units) located at _____ (street address and city), California, and commonly called _____ (name of development)].

2. At all times mentioned herein, respondent(s) _____ [name(s)] was/were, and now is/are, _____ [specify, e.g., individual owners and the managing association, respectively, of the _____ (type of development, e.g., condominium project) located at _____ (street address and city), California, and commonly called _____ (name of development)].

3. _____ [Name of managing association], hereinafter referred to as the Association, was formed and now exists for the purposes set forth in the Declaration executed on _____ [date] and recorded in the Official Records of the County of _____, Book _____, page _____. A copy of the Declaration [and all other governing documents of _____ (name of development)], is/are attached to this petition as Exhibit(s) _____.

4. On or about _____ [date], _____ [specify the circumstances surrounding the proposal of the amendment, e.g., the Association held a meeting at which petitioner proposed that the voters pass an amendment to the Declaration to _____ (specify objective of proposed amendment)]. A copy of the complete text of the amendment and a short explanation of the reason for the amendment are attached hereto as Exhibits _____.

5. Petitioner(s) attempted to solicit approval of the amendment by the Association members in the manner provided in the Declaration by _____ [describe actions taken to solicit approval]. [Copies of the _____(notices and/or solicitation materials) utilized in the solicitation of owner approvals are attached to this petition as Exhibit(s) _____.]

6. Balloting on the proposed amendment was conducted in accordance with all applicable provisions of the governing document(s) of _____ (name of development), in that _____ [describe when and how balloting was conducted].

7. _____ [Name(s)] made a reasonably diligent effort to permit all eligible members of the Association to vote on the proposed amendment, by _____ [describe efforts made].

[EITHER, if single class voting structure]

8. The votes were cast as follows: _____ [specify number] members of the Association, representing _____ percent of the membership, voted in favor of the amendment, and _____ [specify number] members of the Association, representing _____ percent of the membership, voted against the amendment.

9. Although owners having more than 50 percent of the votes voted in favor of the amendment, the balloting did not result in approval of the proposed amendment, because the Declaration requires that the Declaration may only be amended by the approval of the owners having more than _____ percent of the votes in the Association.

[OR, if voting structure has more than one class]

8. The votes were cast as follows: _____ [specify numbers and corresponding percentages of affirmative and negative votes in each voting class].

9. Although owners having more than 50 percent of the votes of each class required by the declaration to vote in favor of the amendment voted in favor of it, the balloting did not result in approval of the proposed amendment, because the Declaration requires that the Declaration may only be amended by the approval of the owners having more than _____ percent of the votes in more than one class.

[CONTINUE]

[10. _____ (Specify any other matter that is relevant to court's determination, including references to other documentation that is attached as an exhibit).]

11. Pursuant to Civil Code Section 1356, the court may reduce the percentage of affirmative votes necessary for approval of the proposed amendment, or dispense with the requirement altogether, and may confirm the amendment as being validly approved on the basis of the affirmative votes that were cast.

12. Granting this petition is not improper for any reason specified in Civil Code Section 1356(e).

WHEREFORE, petitioner(s) pray(s) for an order as follows:

1. Dispensing with the Declaration's requirement relating to the _____ [quorum or number of votes or percentage of votes] needed for approval of the amendment, or in the alternative, confirming the amendment as being validly approved on the basis of the affirmative votes that were actually received during the balloting period; and

2. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

_____ [signature]
Attorney for Petitioner(s)

[2] Use of Form

This form of petition is for use by a proponent of an amendment to the declaration of a common interest development to obtain an order reducing the percentage of affirmative votes necessary for approval of the amendment. The petition is for use when the proponent has failed to obtain the approval of the owners when the declaration requires approval of amendments by more than 50 percent of the votes in an association with a single class voting structure, or by owners having more than 50 percent of the votes in more than one class if the voting structure has more than one class [see Civ. Code § 1356].

The court will set the matter for hearing, and issue an ex parte order setting forth the manner in which notice of the hearing is to be given [Civ. Code § 1356(b)]. For a form of notice of hearing, see § 124.75. For a form of order reducing the required percentage of votes, see § 124.76.

CAUTION:
Counsel should not use this form (1) if the proposed amendment would materially change the rights of an owner of a separate interest in a common interest development that is subject to the Subdivided Lands Act (Bus. & Prof. Code § 11000 et seq.), and (2) if the subdivider or his or her successor in interest holds or directly controls one-fourth of the votes that may be cast, unless the valid written consent of the Real Estate Commissioner has first been obtained [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 11018.7].

[3] Allegations

The petition is required to describe all of the following:

- The effort that has been made to solicit approval of the association members in the manner provided in the declaration (Paragraph 5).

- The number of affirmative and negative votes actually received (alternative Paragraphs 8).

- The number or percentage of affirmative votes required to effect the amendment in accordance with the existing declaration (alternative Paragraphs 9).

- Any other relevant matters (Paragraph 10) [Civ. Code § 1356(a)].

- That granting the petition is not improper for any reason stated in Civ. Code § 1356(e) (Paragraph 12) [Civ. Code § 1356(c)(6)].

The following must be attached to the petition as exhibits [Civ. Code § 1356(a)]:

- The governing documents (Paragraph 3).

- Complete text of the amendment and a short explanation of the reason for it (Paragraph 4).

- Copies of any notice and solicitation materials utilized in the solicitation of owner approvals (Paragraph 5).

- Any other relevant documentation (Paragraph 10).

The petition may be granted, regardless of any requirement relating to quorums or the number or percentage of votes needed for approval of the amendment that would otherwise exist under the governing documents, if [Civ. Code § 1356(c)]:

- The petitioner has given proper notice of the hearing (see § 124.75).

- Balloting on the proposed amendment was properly conducted (Paragraph 6).

- A reasonably diligent effort was made to permit all eligible members to vote on the proposed amendment (Paragraph 7).

- Owners having more than 50 percent of the votes in each class voted in favor of the amendment (alternative Paragraphs 8 and 9).

- The amendment is reasonable (Paragraph 4, referring to short explanation of reason for amendment to be attached to petition as exhibit).

- Granting the petition is not improper for any reason set forth in Civ. Code § 1356(e) (Paragraph 12).

It is unclear whether Civ. Code § 1356(c)(6) requires the petitioner to raise the latter point, or whether the issue of impropriety under Civ. Code § 1356(e) is instead to be raised by an opposing party as an affirmative defense. Because of the ambiguity in the statute, prudent counsel may wish to include the allegation as part of the petitioner's prima facie case.

[4] Jurisdiction and Venue

The petition may be filed in the superior court of the county in which the common interest development is located [Civ. Code § 1356(a)].

[5] State Statutes

Reducing percentage of affirmative votes to amend declaration. Civ. Code § 1356.

[2] Use of Form

This form of notice of hearing is for use by the proponent of an amendment to the declaration of a common interest development who is petitioning for an order reducing the percentage of affirmative votes necessary for approval of the amendment [see Civ. Code § 1356]. The form should be modified as necessary to conform with requirements otherwise imposed by the court in its ex parte order setting forth the manner in which notice is to be given [see Civ. Code § 1356(b)].

[3] Notice Requirement

The petitioner is required to give not less than 15 days' written notice of the court hearing to (1) all members of the association; (2) any mortgagee of a mortgage or beneficiary of a deed of trust who is entitled to notice under the terms of the declaration; and (3) the city, county, or city and county in which the common interest development is located that is entitled to notice under the terms of the declaration [Civ. Code § 1356(c)(1)].

The petition of _____ [name(s) of petitioner(s)] for an order to reduce the percentage of affirmative votes necessary for amending the Declaration of the common interest development known as _____ [name of common interest development] came on regularly for hearing by the court on _____ [date]. Petitioner(s) appeared by counsel _____ [name]. [Respondent(s) _____ (name(s)) appeared by counsel _____ (name).]

The Court, having considered the petition and its exhibits, [and other documents in support of and in opposition to the petition,] having heard the arguments of counsel, and being fully advised in the matter, finds as follows:

1. The petitioner(s) gave not less than 15 days' written notice of the court hearing to all members of

_____ [name of association], [(and) to all _____ (mortgagees of mortgages and/or beneficiaries of deeds of trust) who are entitled to notice under the terms of the Declaration][, and to the City and/or County of _____ (specify) in which _____ (name of development) is located].

2. Balloting on the proposed amendment was conducted in accordance with all applicable provisions of the governing document(s) of _____ [name of development].

3. A reasonably diligent effort was made to permit all eligible members to vote on the proposed amendment.

4. Owners having more than 50 percent of the votes [of each class, as required by the Declaration to vote in favor of the amendment,] voted in favor of the amendment.

5. The amendment is reasonable.

6. Granting the petition is not improper for any reason specified in Civil Code Section 1356(e).

IT IS, THEREFORE, ORDERED that the Declaration's requirement relating to the percentage of votes needed for approval of the amendment is hereby _____ [dispensed with or reduced], and that the amendment is confirmed as being validly approved on the basis of the affirmative votes that were actually received during the balloting period.

[2] Use of Form

This form is for use to object to a petition for an order reducing the percentage of affirmative votes necessary for amending the declaration of a common interest development [see Civ. Code § 1356(e)].

CAUTION:

Civ. Code § 1356* does not specify a procedure for responding to a petition for amending a declaration. Therefore, the form in which the response should be presented is unclear. It could arguably be in the form of a response or objection, or perhaps simply by affidavit or declaration and a memorandum of points and authorities. Before drafting responding papers, counsel should consult the clerk of court to determine local practice.

[3] Allegations

The response alleges:

- Standing to respond to the petition (Paragraph 1).
- If desired, that respondent denies all or part of the petition (optional Paragraph 2).

- That the proposed amendment to the declaration would change a provision in the declaration that requires the approval of owners having more than 50 percent of the votes in more than one class to vote in favor of an amendment, when owners having more than 50 percent of the votes in each affected class did not approve the amendment (Paragraph 3) [see Civ. Code § 1356(e)(1)].

- That the proposed amendment to the declaration would eliminate any special rights, preferences, or privileges designated in the declaration as belonging to the declarant, without the consent of the declarant (Paragraph 4) [see Civ. Code § 1356(e)(2)].

- That the proposed amendment to the declaration would impair the security interest of a mortgagee of a mortgage or the beneficiary of a deed of trust without the approval of the percentage of the mortgagees and beneficiaries specified in the declaration, if the declaration requires the approval of a specified percentage of the mortgagees and beneficiaries (Paragraph 5) [see Civ. Code § 1356(e)(3)].

Defendants.

Plaintiff alleges:

1. At all times mentioned in this complaint, defendant _____ [name] was, and now is, an unincorporated association, composed of approximately _____ [number] owners of individual _____ [type of interest, e.g., condominium units] located at _____ [street address and city], California, and commonly called _____ [name of development]. Defendant association has its principal office in _____ County, California.

2. At all times mentioned in this complaint, defendants _____ [names of directors] were directors of the above-described association.

[3. Plaintiff is ignorant of the true names and capacities of defendants sued in this complaint as DOES I-_____, inclusive, and therefore sues these defendants by such fictitious names. Plaintiff will amend this complaint to allege their true names and capacities when ascertained. Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that each of the fictitiously-named defendants is negligently responsible in some manner for the offenses alleged in this complaint, and that plaintiff's injuries as alleged in this complaint were proximately caused by such negligence.]

[4. (Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that) at all times mentioned in this complaint defendant(s) _____ (name(s)) was/were the agent(s) of defendant association and defendant directors, and each and all of the things in this complaint alleged to have been done by him/her/them were done in the capacity of and as agent for defendant association and defendant directors.]

5. Plaintiff is and at all times mentioned in this complaint was a member in good standing of defendant association.

6. Defendant association was formed and now exists for the purposes set forth in _____ [describe the document creating the association and setting forth its purposes, e.g., Article VIII of the Declaration of Restrictions executed on _____ [date], and recorded in the Official Records of the County of _____, Book _____, page _____, which sets forth at Section 5 the maintenance, upkeep, and repair of all common areas of _____ (name of development) for the benefit, protection, and safety of the individual owner-members of the association].

7. On or about _____ [date], defendant association failed to maintain the common areas of _____ [name of development] and to exercise due care for the residents' safety in these areas, under the association's control, in that _____ [describe nature of defendants' negligent conduct, e.g., the association failed to provide additional lighting in the common areas needed to deter criminal conduct, even though the association had been informed that crimes were being committed against the residents in darkened areas and that plaintiff's unit had been recently burglarized, and in that instead of timely responding to the need for additional lighting, the association ordered plaintiff to remove additional lights that he/she had provided for his/her unit].

8. On or about _____ [date], defendants _____ [names of directors], directors of defendant association, _____ [specifically authorized, directed, or participated in the above-described tortious conduct of the association or specifically knew or reasonably should have known that some hazardous condition or activity under their control could injure plaintiff but negligently failed to take or order appropriate action to avoid the harm] and thereby failed to refrain from acting in a manner that creates an unreasonable risk of personal injury to third parties, in that _____ [describe acts or omissions of directors, e.g., defendant directors had received letters and other notifications of recent criminal attacks on residents, that these attacks had been linked to the lack of adequate lighting in the common areas and that defendant directors had been informed of the link, that plaintiff had informed defendant directors that his/her unit had previously been burglarized, yet defendant directors refused to provide additional lighting to the common areas, and further, that defendant directors ordered plaintiff to remove additional lighting that he/she had provided for his/her unit].

9. The above-described negligence of defendant association and defendant directors caused _____ [describe plaintiff's accident or occurrence, e.g., plaintiff's unit to be in total darkness on the night of _____ [date], during which plaintiff was robbed and raped].

10. As a proximate result of the negligence and carelessness of defendants, and each of them, plaintiff was hurt and injured in his/her health, strength, and activity, sustaining injury to his/her nervous system and person, all of which injuries have caused, and continue to cause plaintiff great mental, physical, and nervous pain and suffering. Plaintiff is informed and believes, and thereon alleges, that some of the injuries will result in permanent disability to plaintiff, to his/her general damage.

11. As a further result of the negligence of defendants, and each of them, plaintiff was required to, and did, incur bills for _____ [specify, e.g., physicians, surgeons, drugs, medicines, X rays, and other medical technicians and personnel], and other related expenses, all to his/her damage.

[12. As a further result of the negligence of defendants, and each of them, _____ (allege any additional special damages, e.g., plaintiff was prevented from attending to his/her usual occupation as _____ [specify] and thereby lost earnings. Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that he/she will thereby be prevented from attending to his/her usual occupation for a period in the future which he/she cannot now ascertain and will thereby sustain further loss of earnings, all to his/ her damage).]

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendants, and each of them, as follows:

1. For general damages;

2. For medical and related damages;

3. For damages for loss of income and earnings and impairment of earning ability;

4. For costs of suit incurred in this complaint; and

5. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

This complaint is for use by the owner of a separate interest in a common interest development to bring an action for negligence against the association that manages the development and its common areas for an injury occurring on the premises. The form also joins as defendants those directors of the association whose personal act or omission created an unreasonable risk of personal injury to persons on the premises [see Frances T. v. Village Green Owners Ass'n (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 490, 499, 505, 229 Cal. Rptr. 456, 723 P.2d 573 ; White v. Cox (1971) 17 Cal. App. 3d 824, 830, 95 Cal. Rptr. 259 ; see also Civ. Code § 1714(a)]. The form may also be modified for use by a plaintiff who is not an owner of a separate interest, and may be combined with appropriate allegations in the forms in Ch. 421, Premises Liability .

[3] Allegations

The complaint alleges the following:

- The identity and capacity of the parties (Paragraphs 1 through 6).

- That defendants were negligent. An association functions as a landlord in maintaining common areas of a condominium and has the duty to exercise due care for residents' safety in areas under its control [

Frances T. v. Village Green Owners Ass'n (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 490, 498, 503, 229 Cal. Rptr. 456, 723 P.2d 573] (Paragraph 7) . A director of an association is liable in his or her personal capacity for the association's tort, if the director specifically authorized, directed, or participated in the tort or if the director specifically knew or reasonably should have known that some hazardous condition or activity under his or her control could injure plaintiff, but the director negligently failed to take or to order appropriate action to avoid the harm [Frances T. v. Village Green Owners Ass'n (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 490, 508, 229 Cal. Rptr. 456, 723 P.2d 573] (Paragraph 8) .

- That defendants' negligence proximately caused injury to plaintiff [see Civ. Code § 3333] (Paragraphs 9 and 10).

- General damages (Paragraph 10).

- Special damages (Paragraphs 11 and 12).

[4] Specification of Damages

In an unlimited civil case brought to recover damages for personal injury or wrongful death, the complaint must not state the amount of actual or punitive damages demanded [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)]. Otherwise, the amounts claimed as damages must be alleged [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(a)(2)] or an equivalent statement must be included, for example, a statement that the damages for a particular loss or harm sustained [see Civ. Code §§ 3281, 3282] are not known and that leave will be sought to amend the complaint to state the exact amount when ascertained. If this is done, counsel must remember to seek leave to amend the complaint to so state before judgment.

No claim for punitive damages may state an amount sought regardless of the nature of the case [Civ. Code § 3295(e)].

For discussion of and forms for requesting and stating the amount of damages sought when they are not stated in the complaint, see Ch. 177, Damages , and Ch. 205, Defaults and Default Judgments [see also Code Civ. Proc. §§ 425.11, 425.115].

[5] Joining Separate Interest Owners as Defendants

This complaint may be modified to name individual owners of separate interests as defendants. However, if the association carries a specified minimum amount of general liability insurance covering tort causes of action, a cause of action against any owner of a separate interest arising solely because of the owner's interest as a tenant in common in the common area can be brought only against the association and not against the individual separate interest owners [see Civ. Code § 1365.9(a), (b)]. If these insurance coverage requirements are not met, individual owners of separate interests with ownership interests in the common areas are in all likelihood individually liable for the entire amount of any judgment. If a judgment exceeds the limits of the association's insurance, owners may be individually liable only for their proportional share of assessments levied to pay the amount of the judgment that exceeds those limits [see Civ. Code § 1365.9(c); Davert v. Larson (1985) 163 Cal. App. 3d 407, 412, 209 Cal. Rptr. 445] . For a further discussion of Civ. Code § 1365.9 and the Davert v. Larson case, see § 124.24.

Plaintiff alleges:

1. Plaintiff is, and at all times mentioned in this complaint, was the owner in fee of that certain _____ [type of interest, e.g., condominium unit], hereinafter referred to as "the _____ [short reference, e.g., unit]," located at _____ [street address and city], California, commonly referred to as _____ [name of common interest development].

2. Defendant _____ [name of association] is and at all times mentioned in this complaint was the association managing _____ [name of development], and having its principal office in _____ County, California.

3. [Fictitious name allegations, if appropriate. See § 124.78[1], Paragraph 2.]

4. [Agency allegation, if appropriate. See § 124.78[1], Paragraph 3.]

5. Defendant, as the association managing the _____ [name of development], was authorized by _____ [describe the empowering document, e.g., Article _____, Section _____ of the Declaration of Restrictions executed on _____ [date], and recorded in the Official Records of the County of _____, Book _____, page _____, a copy of which is attached to this complaint as Exhibit "A" and made a part of this complaint,] and as limited by Section 1366 of the Civil Code, to make reasonable assessments to meet management expenses.

6. On _____ [date], defendant imposed a _____ [regular or special] assessment on the owners of _____ [name of common interest development] in the aggregate amount of $_____, which included a _____ [regular or special] assessment on plaintiff in the amount of $_____, and which is intended to be used for _____ [describe, e.g., constructing a new swimming pool in the common area].

[EITHER, if a regular assessment]

7. This regular assessment is more than 20 percent greater than the regular assessment for defendant's preceding fiscal year, which was in the amount of $_____.

[OR, if a special assessment]

7. This special assessment in the aggregate exceeds five percent of the budgeted gross expenses of defendant's preceding fiscal year, which was in the amount of $_____.

[EITHER]

8. This assessment is not an extraordinary expense required by an order of a court, nor is it an extraordinary expense necessary to repair or maintain _____ [name of common interest development] or any part of it because of a threat to personal safety on the property that has been discovered for which defendant is responsible, nor is it an extraordinary expense necessary to repair or maintain _____ [name of common interest development] or any part of it for which defendant is responsible that could not have been reasonably foreseen by defendant's board in preparing and distributing the proforma operating budget under Civil Code Section 1365.

[OR]

8. Defendant's governing board, before the imposition or collection of this assessment, did not _____ [pass a resolution containing written findings about the necessity of the extraordinary expense involved and why the expense was not or could not have been reasonably foreseen in the budgeting process and/or distribute the resolution to defendant's members with the notice of assessment].

[CONTINUE]

9. This assessment was approved in the following manner: _____ [describe, e.g., a meeting was held on _____ (date), at which only 20 percent of the owners of _____ (name of common interest development) were in attendance. A resolution was passed by 51 percent of those present, approving the assessment].

10. The approval of the assessment was in violation of Civil Code Section 1366(b), which requires approval by a majority of the votes at a meeting or election of an association for which there is a quorum of 50 percent of its owners.

[11. Defendant was also prohibited under Civil Code Section 1366.1 from imposing and collecting this assessment, because it exceeds the amount necessary for the purpose for which it was levied in that _____ (state why assessment is excessive).]

12. On _____ [date], defendant caused to be recorded a Notice of Assessment against plaintiff in the amount of $_____, which sum includes $_____ assessment, $_____ penalty charges, $_____ interest, and $_____ costs including attorney's fees, all of which sum is unreasonable in that it relates to the unauthorized expenditures as alleged in this complaint.

13. On _____ [date], plaintiff received a notice of sale which informed plaintiff that defendant intended to enforce the lien created by the _____ [date], recording of the Notice of Assessment by selling plaintiff's _____ [type of unit, e.g., condominium unit] on _____ [date], at _____ _____.M. at _____ [street address and city], California. A copy of the notice is attached to this complaint as Exhibit "C" and made a part of this complaint.

14. Plaintiff has informed defendant of the unauthorized nature of the assessment and demanded that defendant immediately record a Satisfaction of Assessment and Release of Lien and abandon the planned sale of plaintiff's _____ [type of interest, e.g., condominium unit]. Defendant refuses to do so and has repeatedly threatened plaintiff with the sale of plaintiff's _____ [type of interest, e.g., condominium unit] unless plaintiff pays in full the unauthorized assessment and charges. Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that defendant does intend to sell and will in fact sell, plaintiff's _____ [type of interest, e.g., condominium unit] on _____ [date].

15. A subsequent action for money damages for defendant's wrongful conduct cannot adequately compensate plaintiff for the loss of plaintiff's _____ [type of interest, e.g., condominium unit] and consequently plaintiff has no adequate remedy at law and will suffer irreparable injury unless defendant is enjoined and restrained by this court from selling plaintiff's _____ [type of interest, e.g., condominium unit].

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendant as follows:

1. For an order requiring defendant to show cause, if any, why it should not be enjoined as hereinafter set forth, during the pendency of this action;

2. For a temporary restraining order, a preliminary injunction, and a permanent injunction, all enjoining defendant, and its agents, servants, and employees, and all persons acting under, in concert with, or for it:

a. From conducting the sale of plaintiff's _____ [type of interest, e.g., condominium unit] on _____ [date], as presently noticed;

b. CAUTION:

A complaint seeking preliminary injunctive relief must be either verified or accompanied by affidavits (or declarations under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) in support of the allegations of the complaint [Code

Civ. Proc. § 527(a)]. If relying on a verified complaint instead of affidavits (or declarations), counsel must plead evidentiary facts that would entitle plaintiff to the relief sought [see E. H. Renzel Co. v. Warehousemen's Union (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 369, 373; San Juan G. Co. v. San Juan R. etc. Assn. (1939) 34 Cal. App. 2d 159, 174]. For discussion, a procedural checklist, and additional forms necessary to obtain a temporary restraining order or preliminary injunction, see Ch. 303, Injunctions .

[2] Use of Form

This form of complaint is for use by the owner of a separate interest in a common interest development to bring an action to restrain the association managing the development from enforcing a lien for unpaid assessments against the owner's individual interest. The form is used when the association is proceeding with a nonjudicial sale, which the trustee named in the notice of delinquent assessment (or a substitute trustee) may do in the same manner as a power of sale in a deed of trust is exercised under Civ. Code §§ 2924, 2924b, 2924c (deeds of trust) [see Civ. Code § 1367(e), (g) (liens recorded on or after January 1, 1986, and before January 1, 2003); Civ. Code § 1367.1(g), (m) (liens recorded on or after January 1, 2003)]. If the dispute between the association and the separate interest owner is to be fully resolved it may be necessary to plead additional causes of action, such as one for declaratory relief [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1060 et seq.; for discussion and forms, see Ch. 182, Declaratory Relief].

[3] Allegations

This complaint alleges the following:

- The identity and capacity of the parties (Paragraphs 1-4).

- That the managing association was authorized but restricted in making unauthorized assessments (Paragraph 5) [see Civ. Code § 1366(a)].

- That plaintiff was assessed an unauthorized amount (Paragraphs 6-11) [see Civ. Code §§ 1366(b), 1366.1].

- That the association recorded the unauthorized assessment (Paragraph 12).

- That plaintiff received a notice of sale as a result of the assessment (Paragraph 13) [see Civ. Code § 1367(b), (e), (g) (liens recorded on or after January 1, 1986, and before January 1, 2003); Civ. Code § 1367.1(d), (h), (m) (liens recorded on or after January 1, 2003)].

- That grounds for preliminary and permanent injunctive relief exist (Paragraphs 14 and 15) [see Civ. Code § 3422 (permanent); Code Civ. Proc. § 526 (preliminary)].

[4] Certification re Notice

When a temporary restraining order is sought without formal notice, the applicant or the applicant's attorney is required to certify to the court under oath that (1) within a reasonable time before the application, he or she informed the opposing party (or his or her attorney, if any) of the time when and place where the application would be made; (2) he or she in good faith attempted to inform the opposing party (or attorney) but was unable to do so, specifying the efforts made to do so; or (3) for reasons specified, he or she should not be required to inform the opposing party (or attorney) [Code Civ. Proc. § 527(c), (e); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1204(b)].

[5] Restrictions on Imposition of Regular and Special Assessments

Notwithstanding more restrictive limitations placed on the board of directors by the governing documents, the board may not impose a regular assessment that is more than 20 percent greater than the regular assessment for the association's preceding final year or impose special assessments that, in the aggregate, exceed five percent of the budgeted gross expenses of the association for that fiscal year without the approval of owners, constituting a quorum of more than 50 percent of the owners of the association, casting a majority of the votes at a meeting or election of the association [Civ. Code § 1366(b); see Corp. Code §§ 7510-7527, 7613].

However, the board is not limited in imposing assessment increases necessary for an emergency situation. An emergency situation is any one of the following [Civ. Code § 1366(b)]:

- An extraordinary expense required by an order of a court;

- An extraordinary expense necessary to repair or maintain the common interest development or any part of it for which the association is responsible when a threat to personal safety on the property is discovered;

- An extraordinary expense necessary to repair or maintain the common interest development, or any part of it for which the association is responsible, that could not have been reasonably foreseen by the board in preparing and distributing the proforma operating budget under Civ. Code § 1365; however, before the assessment may be imposed or collected as this type of extraordinary expense, the board must pass a resolution containing written findings about the necessity of the extraordinary expense involved and why the expense was not or could not have been reasonably foreseen in the budgeting process, and the resolution must be distributed to the members with the notice of assessment; or

- An extraordinary expense in making the first payment of earthquake insurance surcharge pursuant to Ins. Code § 5003.

Plaintiff,	)
vs.	)	NO. _____
_____ [names],	)	COMPLAINT FOR PARTITION AND SALE OF Defendants.	)	CONDOMINIUM PROJECT

Plaintiff alleges:

1. The subject of this action is real property situated in _____ County, California.

2. The real property is a condominium project commonly known as _____ [name], and more particularly described as follows: _____ [give legal description, which may be single-spaced pursuant to Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.108(2)].

3. Plaintiff, _____ [name], is the owner of a separate interest in _____ [name of condominium project].

4. As owner of a separate interest, plaintiff may maintain a partition action as to the entire _____ [name of condominium project] as if the owners of all the separate interests in the project are tenants in common in the entire _____ [name of condominium project] in the same proportion to their interests in the common area, pursuant to Civil Code Section 1359(b).

[EITHER]

5. More than three years before the filing of this action, _____ [name of condominium project] was _____ [damaged or destroyed], so that a material part was rendered unfit for its prior use, as follows: _____ [specify facts].

6. Since the above-described _____ [damage or destruction], _____ [name of condominium project] has not been rebuilt or repaired substantially to its state prior to the _____ [damage or destruction].

[AND/OR]

5. _____ [More than or At least] three-fourths of _____ [name of condominium project] has been _____ [substantially damaged or destroyed], as follows: _____ [specify facts].

6. Owners of separate interests holding in the aggregate more than a 50 percent interest in the common areas oppose repair or restoration of the project. Specifically, _____ [specify facts establishing opposition to repair or restoration, e.g., on September 29, 2004, the management association of the Project held a meeting at which voters holding a 70 percent interest in the common areas voted not to repair or restore the damage].

[AND/OR]

5. _____ [name of condominium project] has been in existence since _____ [date], which is more than 50 years.

6. _____ [name of condominium project] has become obsolete and uneconomic, because _____ [specify].

7. Owners of separate interests holding in the aggregate more than a 50 percent interest in the common areas oppose repair or restoration of the project. Specifically, _____ [specify facts establishing opposition to repair or restoration, e.g., on September 29, 2004, the management association of the Project held a meeting at which voters holding a 70 percent interest in the common areas voted not to repair or restore the damage].

[AND/OR]

5. The Declaration of _____ [name of condominium project] provides the following conditions for a partition sale of the condominium project: _____ [specify].

6. The above-described conditions for a partition sale have been met, because _____ [specify].

[CONTINUE]

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendants, and each of them, as follows:

1. For partition by sale of the entire _____ [name of condominium project] according to the respective rights of the parties hereto; and

2. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

This complaint is for use by an owner of a separate interest in a condominium project to bring an action for partition of the entire project [Civ. Code § 1359(b); see Civ. Code § 1358(b)]. This is the only means by which partition may be sought [see 14859 Moorpark Homeowner's Assn v. VRT Corp. (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 1396, 74 Cal. Rptr. 2d 712 (common areas in condominium project are undivided and may not be nonjudicially partitioned)].

An action for partition of a condominium project is specially governed by Civ. Code § 1359(b), and therefore is not governed by the general provisions of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 872.010-874.240 [see Legislative Committee Comment--Assembly (1976 Addition) to Code Civ. Proc. § 872.020]. For a discussion of the latter type of partition action, see Ch. 397, Partition .

[3] Allegations

This complaint alleges the following:

- The location and description of the condominium project (Paragraphs 1 and 2) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 392(a)(1) (venue)].

- Plaintiff's standing to bring the action (Paragraphs 3 and 4) [see Civ. Code § 1359(b)].

- That the project was damaged or destroyed three years previously but not yet rebuilt or repaired (first alternative Paragraphs 5 and 6) [see Civ. Code § 1359(b)(1)], at least three-fourths of the project is substantially damaged or destroyed and owners of an aggregate of more than a 50-percent interest in the common areas oppose repair or restoration (second alternative Paragraphs 5 and 6) [see Civ. Code § 1359(b)(2)], the project has been in existence for more than 50 years, has become obsolete and uneconomic, and at least three-fourths of the project is substantially damaged or destroyed and owners of an aggregate of more than a 50 percent interest in the common areas oppose repair or restoration (third alternative Paragraphs 5, 6, and 7) [see Civ. Code § 1359(b)(3)], or the conditions for a partition sale as set forth in the declaration have been met (fourth alternative Paragraphs 5 and 6) [see Civ. Code § 1359(b)(4)].

Superior courts have jurisdiction to try partition cases [see Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. § 580(b)(3)].

Venue is proper in the county in which the condominium project is located [see Code Civ. Proc. § 392(a)(1)].

[5] Lis Pendens

A party who asserts a real property claim may record a lis pendens in the county recorder's office to give constructive notice of the pendency of the action to subsequent purchasers, encumbrancers, or other transferees [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 405.20, 405.24]. For a discussion and forms relating to lis pendens, see Ch. 348, Lis Pendens .

[6] State Statutes

Restrictions on partition of common interest developments. Civ. Code § 1358.

Partition of condominium projects. Civ. Code § 1359.

[1] FORM Request for Resolution of Dispute Over Enforcement of Governing Documents, Davis-Stirling Act, or Nonprofit Mutual Benefit Corporation Law [Civ. Code § 1369.530]

REQUEST FOR RESOLUTION

TO: _____ [name]
_____ [address]
_____ [city, state, zip]

This notice relates to a dispute involving enforcement of the _____ [Davis-Stirling Common Interest Development Act or Nonprofit Mutual Benefit Corporation Law or governing documents of the _____ (type of common interest development, e.g., condominium project ("Project"))] commonly referred to as _____ [name of common interest development] and located at _____ [street address and city], California. The following is a brief description of the dispute: _____ [specify, e.g., You have commenced construction of an improvement to a condominium unit in the above Project. The unit is located at _____ (street address). The work violates the governing documents of the Project in that (1) you have not received permission from _____ (name of homeowners' association), the homeowners' association for the Project, to construct the improvement as required by the Declaration of Restrictions for the Project, and (2) the improvement is forbidden by the Declaration. The undersigned, who is a member of _____ (name of homeowners' association) and owns the condominium unit located at _____ (street address), has demanded in writing that the construction cease, but neither _____ (name of homeowners' association) nor you has responded and construction continues. This construction has and will damage the property and personal interests of the undersigned.]

As a result of the above dispute, you are hereby requested to agree to submit the dispute to a form of alternative dispute resolution (such as mediation or arbitration). You must respond to this request within 30 days of your receipt of this request. You may respond by contacting the undersigned at _____ [specify]. If you do not respond within the foregoing 30-day period, you will be deemed to have rejected this request.

This notice is provided pursuant to Civil Code Sections 1369.510 through 1359.590 [Add if recipient is an owner of a separate interest in the common interest development: A copy of that statute is attached to this Request.]
Dated: _____.

_____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]

[2] Use of Form

This form of request for resolution is for use by a homeowners' association or an owner or a member of a common interest development to request that a dispute relating to the enforcement of the Davis-Stirling Common Interest Development Act, the Nonprofit Mutual Benefit Corporation Law, or the governing documents be submitted to a form of alternative dispute resolution (such as arbitration or mediation) that involves a neutral party in the decision-making process. It must be served on a party to the dispute before the filing of an enforcement action that is solely for declaratory, injunctive, or writ relief, or for that relief in conjunction with a claim for monetary damages not exceeding $5,000. It is not required before filing a small claims action [Civ. Code §§ 1369.510, 1369.520]. Failure to attempt to resolve the dispute by alternative means before filing an enforcement action is grounds for a demurrer or motion to strike unless the court finds that dismissal for failure to comply would substantially prejudice one of the parties [Civ. Code § 1369.560(b)]. For a form of demurrer, see § 124.85.

The alternative dispute resolution requirements of Civ. Code § 1369.510 et seq. do not apply to the filing of a cross-complaint [see Civ. Code § 1369.510(b)].

[3] Contents of Request

The Request for Resolution must include (1) a brief description of the dispute between the parties, (2) a request for alternative dispute resolution, and (3) a notice indicating that the party receiving the request must respond to it within 30 days of receipt, and that the request will be deemed rejected if the recipient does not respond within that 30-day period. If the recipient is an owner of a separate interest in the common interest development, the request must also include a copy of Civ. Code § 1369.510 et seq. [Civ. Code § 1369.530(a)].

[4] Service

The request must be served by personal delivery, first-class mail, express mail, facsimile transmission, or other means reasonably calculated to provide the party on whom the request is served with actual notice of the request [Civ. Code § 1369.530(b)].

[5] Response

A party receiving a Request for Resolution has 30 days following service to accept or reject alternative dispute resolution. If the recipient does not respond within that 30-day period, the request will be deemed rejected by that party [Civ. Code § 1369.530(c)].

[Certification of Notice. See § 124.79.]

CAUTION:

A complaint seeking preliminary injunctive relief must be either verified or accompanied by affidavits or declarations in support of the allegations of the complaint [see Code Civ. Proc. § 527(a)]. For further discussion, see § 124.79.

[2] Use of Form

This form of complaint is for use by a separate interest owner to restrain an owner's association, or its architectural control committee, from arbitrarily approving an improvement proposed by a neighboring owner [see Cohen v. Kite Hill Community Assn. (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 642, 647, 652, 191 Cal. Rptr. 209] . Alternatively, the form may be used to compel an association or its committee to approve an owner's plans and specifications for an improvement to the owner's interest after an application has been arbitrarily denied.

The form may be combined with a form of complaint enjoining the individual homeowner [see Cohen v. Kite Hill Community Assn. (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 642, 646, 191 Cal. Rptr. 209 ; see also Ch. 184, Deeds (discussion and forms relating to use restrictions on lots and enforcement)]. However, a separate interest owner may not directly enjoin other owners in a development from violating a construction restriction if the homeowner's association reserves the sole right to determine whether proposed construction violates the restrictions and the construction was approved [see Trahms v. Starrett (1973) 34 Cal. App. 3d 766, 770, 110 Cal. Rptr. 239 (right reserved in subdivider)].

[3] Allegations

This complaint alleges the following:

- The identity and capacity of the parties (Paragraphs 1-2), with an Optional Paragraph 3 for use when the owner's association of a common interest development subject to the Subdivided Lands Act [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 11004.5] has set up an architectural control committee as mandated by 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 2792.28(a).

- Fictitious name allegation (Optional Paragraph 4) [Code Civ. Proc. § 474].

- That defendant had a duty to review and approve or disapprove proposed improvements in conformity with the Declaration of Restrictions (Paragraph 5) [see Cohen v. Kite Hill Community Assn. (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 642, 650-652, 191 Cal. Rptr. 209] .

- That plaintiff or another separate interest owner submitted plans to defendant and the defendant either approved or rejected them (Paragraph 6).

- That defendant's approval or disapproval of the proposed improvement was unreasonable, arbitrary, and in bad faith (Paragraph 7) [see Cohen v. Kite Hill Community Assn. (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 642, 652, 191 Cal. Rptr. 209] .

- That defendant's approval or disapproval of the proposed improvement also violated the restrictions set out in the declaration (Optional Paragraph 8) [see Cohen v. Kite Hill Community Assn. (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 642, 652, 191 Cal. Rptr. 209] .

- That defendants' actions were negligent (Paragraph 9) [see Cohen v. Kite Hill Community Assn. (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 642, 647, 652, 191 Cal. Rptr. 209] .

- That defendants' actions were willful and are grounds for punitive damages (Optional Paragraph 10) [see Civ. Code § 3294(a); see also Cohen v. Kite Hill Community Assn. (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 642, 647, 652, 191 Cal. Rptr. 209] .

- That grounds for preliminary and injunctive relief exist (Paragraphs 11, 12) [see Civ. Code § 3422 (permanent); Code Civ. Proc. §§ 526 (preliminary), 527 (procedure for obtaining preliminary injunction or temporary restraining order)].

- There is also an optional allegation of damages for use when appropriate (Paragraph 13) [see Mock v. Shulman (1964) 226 Cal. App. 2d 263, 269-270, 38 Cal. Rptr. 39] .

[4] Certificate Related to Alternative Dispute Resolution Efforts

When the complaint is filed, it must be accompanied by a certificate stating that specified conditions related to the parties' efforts to resolve the dispute by alternative means have been satisfied [see Civ. Code § 1369.560(a); see also § 124.84]. Such a certificate is required to be filed in conjunction with an action to enforce the Davis-Stirling Common Interest Development Act, the Nonprofit Mutual Benefit Corporation Law, or the governing documents of a common interest development, which action is solely for declaratory, injunctive, or writ relief, or for that relief in conjunction with a claim for monetary damages not in excess of $5,000 [Civ. Code §§ 1369.510, 1369.520].

For a form of certificate, see § 124.84. With certain exceptions, the failure to file such a certificate will be grounds for a demurrer pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10 or a motion to strike pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 435 [Civ. Code § 1369.560(b)]. For further discussion, see § 124.85 (demurrer).

[5] Attorney's Fees

The prevailing party in any action to enforce the declaration is awarded reasonable attorney's fees and costs [Civ. Code § 1354(c)].

[6] State Statutes

Use restrictions that are intended to be enforceable equitable servitudes are required to be set forth in declaration. Civ. Code § 1353(a).

Reasonable covenants and restrictions in declaration are enforceable by separate interest owner or association as equitable servitudes. Civ. Code § 1354(a).

[7] Decisions

Trial court has authority to determine identity of prevailing party in litigation under Civ. Code § 1354 for purposes of awarding attorney's fees; defendant dismissed without prejudice in action to enforce equitable servitude under Civ. Code § 1354 is not, ipso facto, the prevailing party. Heather Farms Homeowners Assn., Inc. v. Robinson (1994) 21 Cal. App. 4th 1568, 1570, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 758 .

Covenants requiring applications for improvement to be evaluated in light of goal of "artistic result and attractiveness in exterior and physical appearance" requires Association and Art Jury to make evaluations on subjective basis; artistry and attractiveness is not objectively mesaureable or quantifiable. Clark v. Rancho Santa Fe Assn. (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 606, 618-619, 265 Cal. Rptr. 41 .

Declaration of restrictions requiring individual owner to obtain approval of homeowner's association before improving or landscaping lot is enforceable if association's approval or disapproval is reasonable. Palos Verdes Homes Assn. v. Rodman (1986) 182 Cal. App. 3d 324, 328, 227 Cal. Rptr. 81 .

Association's disapproval of landscaping change is enforceable by injunction on showing by homeowner's association that it followed its own standards and procedures, that procedures were fair, and that substantive decision was made in good faith and was reasonable. Ironwood Owners Assn. IX v. Solomon (1986) 178 Cal. App. 3d 766, 771-773, 224 Cal. Rptr. 18 .

Plaintiff

[2] Use of Form

This form of certificate is for use by the plaintiff to be filed with the complaint in an enforcement action involving the Davis-Stirling Common Interest Development Act, the Nonprofit Mutual Benefit Corporation Law, or the governing documents of a common interest development. The enforcement action is solely for declaratory, injunctive, or writ relief, or for that relief in conjunction with a claim for monetary damages not in excess of $5,000 [Civ. Code § 1369.560(a); see Civ. Code §§ 1369.510, 1369.520].

The certificate, which must be filed with the initial pleading, must state that one or more of the following conditions is satisfied [Civ. Code § 1369.560(a)]:

- Alternative dispute resolution has been completed in compliance with Civ. Code § 1369.510 et seq.

- One of the other parties to the dispute did not accept the terms offered for alternative dispute resolution.

- Preliminary or temporary injunctive relief is necessary.

[3] Failure to File

Failure to file the certificate is grounds for demurrer pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10 [see § 124.85] or motion to strike pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 435 unless the court finds that dismissal of the action for failure to comply with the alternative dispute resolution requirements would result in substantial prejudice to one of the parties [Civ. Code § 1369.560(b)].

§ 124.85 General Demurrer [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a)]--Failure to File Certificate Regarding Alternative Dispute Resolution [Civ. Code § 1369.560(b)]

Defendant demurs to the complaint on the ground that plaintiff has not filed a certificate, as required by Civil Code Section 1369.560(a), stating that (1) alternative dispute resolution has been completed in compliance with Civil Code Sections 1369.510 through 1369.590, (2) one of the other parties to the dispute did not accept the terms offered for alternative dispute resolution, or (3) preliminary or temporary injunctive relief is necessary.

[2] Use of Form

This form of demurrer is for use when the plaintiff has failed to file, with the initial pleading, a certificate stating that one or more of the following conditions is satisfied [Civ. Code § 1369.560(a)]:

- Alternative dispute resolution has been completed in compliance with Civ. Code § 1369.510 et seq.
- One of the other parties to the dispute did not accept the terms offered for alternative dispute resolution.
- Preliminary or temporary injunctive relief is necessary.

Failure to file the certificate is grounds for demurrer or motion to strike unless the court finds that dismissal of the action for failure to comply with the alternative dispute resolution requirements would result in substantial prejudice to one of the parties [Civ. Code § 1369.560(b)].

CAUTION:

A party filing a demurrer must serve and file with it a memorandum in support of each ground of demurrer [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1320(c), 3.1103(b); for discussion and forms, see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities].

Defendant, _____ [name], hereby applies to this court for a determination, to be made after hearing, that a procedural deficiency exists with respect to this action. This application is made on the ground that plaintiff has failed to substantially comply with the requirements of Civil Code Section 1375, and is based on the following facts:

[STATE facts evidencing defendant's efforts to comply with Civ. Code § 1375 and plaintiff's failure to do so, e.g.]

[1. In accordance with the Case Management Statement established by the parties to this litigation pursuant to Civil Code Section 1375(h), on or before _____ [date established by dispute resolution facilitator for provision of demand], plaintiff association was required to provide defendant with a comprehensive demand that provides in sufficient detail for the parties to engage in meaningful dispute resolution.

2. Defendant has made repeated requests of plaintiff to provide the required comprehensive demand so the parties can continue with the dispute resolution process in accordance with the requirements of Civil Code Section 1375, but notwithstanding defendant's efforts, plaintiff failed to provide the required demand, or to respond in any way before bringing this action.]

[2] Use of Form

This form of application is for use by the building of a common interest development when (1) the development consists of 20 or more units, (2) the association has commenced an action for damages against the builder based on design or construction defects, and (3) the association has not complied with all of the requirements of Civ. Code § 1375, which establishes a dispute resolution process that must be followed to completion before such an action can be filed. For discussion of this process, see § 124.26[2].

The only method for seeking judicial relief for the failure of either the association or the respondent to complete the dispute resolution process required by Civ. Code § 1375 is the assertion of a procedural deficiency in an action for damages by the association against the respondent [see § 124.26[3]]. A verified application asserting a procedural deficiency must be filed with the court no later than 90 days after service of the defendant's answer in the association's action for damages, unless the court finds that extraordinary conditions exist [Civ. Code § 1375.05(g)(1)]. Once the verified application has been filed, the court must schedule a hearing within 21 days to determine whether the association or respondent has substantially complied with the dispute resolution process. At the court's discretion, the issue may be determined on affidavits or oral testimony [Civ. Code § 1375.05(g)(2)]. For further discussion, see § 124.26[2][n], [3].

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--Defendant Is Volunteer Officer or Director [Civ. Code § 1365.7]

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges:

1. He/She is not liable to plaintiff pursuant to the provisions of Civil Code Section 1365.7, in that defendant is a volunteer _____ [officer or director] of _____ [specify association], an association managing a common interest development that is exclusively residential.

2. Any act or omission of defendant that may have resulted in injury to plaintiff was performed within the scope of his/her duties as a volunteer _____ [officer or director]. Any such act or omission was performed in good faith and was not willful, wanton, or grossly negligent.

3. _____ [Specify association] maintained and had in effect at the time the act or omission occurred and at the time plaintiff's claim was made policies of insurance that included coverage for general liability of the association and individual liability of the officers and directors of the association for negligent acts or omissions in that capacity, in the amount of $_____ [if common interest development consists of 100 or fewer separate interests, specify amount of at least $500,000; if development consists of more than 100 separate interests, specify amount of at least $1 million].

4. Defendant is _____ [a tenant of a separate interest or an owner of no more than _____ (one or two) separate interests].

[2] Use of Form

This form of affirmative defense is for insertion into an answer to a complaint based on the alleged negligence of the defendant in his or her capacity as officer or director of an association managing a common interest residential development. The defense is based on the fact that the defendant was a volunteer officer or volunteer director, and thereby immune from liability by the provisions of Civ. Code § 1365.7. This immunity only applies to a volunteer officer or director who is a tenant of a separate interest in the common interest development or who is an owner of no more than two separate interests in that development. Moreover, this immunity will not be construed to limit the liability of the association for its negligent act or omission or for any negligent act or omission of an officer or director of the association [Civ. Code § 1365.7(d), (e); see § 124.23[13]].

PART I. SCOPE

§ 125.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter discusses consolidation [see § 125.10 et seq.], severance [see § 125.20 et seq.], and coordination of actions [see § 125.30 et seq.]. Consolidation is the power of the court to order several actions or issues with common question or law or fact, filed in the same county, to be tried together. Severance is the power of the court to order a separate trial of any cause of action or issue filed in that county. Coordination is the assignment of civil actions sharing common questions of law or fact, but filed in different counties, to a single judge for trial who coordinates pretrial procedures and may try the cases in one or more courts.

This chapter includes Procedural Checklists for consolidation [see § 125.80 et seq.], severance [see § 125.90 et seq.], and coordination [see § 125.100 et seq.].

This chapter contains the following forms relating to consolidating actions or issues for trial:

- Caption for papers filed in consolidated actions [see § 125.120].
- Stipulations to consolidate actions [see § 125.121].
- Notice of motion to consolidate actions [see § 125.122].
- Declaration supporting motion to consolidate actions [see § 125.123].
- Order to consolidate actions [see § 125.124].
- Stipulations to consolidate issues [see § 125.125].
- Notice of motion to consolidate issues [see § 125.126].
- Declaration supporting motion to consolidate issues [see § 125.127].

- Order to consolidate issues for trial [see § 125.128].

This chapter contains the following forms relating to severance of actions or issues for trial:

- Notice of motion to sever causes of action or issues [see § 125.140].
- Order severing causes of action or issues [see § 125.141].

This chapter contains the following forms for coordination of non-complex and complex civil actions filed in different counties:

- Notice of motion to transfer non-complex actions for coordination [see § 125.150].
- Declaration in support motion to transfer non-complex actions [see § 125.151].
- Order transferring non-complex actions [see § 125.152].

§ 125.11 Notice of Related Cases

A party in a civil action who knows or learns of the existence of a related action or proceeding pending in any state or federal court in California is required to file and serve a Notice of Related Case. This duty applies when a party files a case with knowledge of a related action or proceeding, and applies thereafter whenever a party learns of a related action or proceeding [Cal. Rules Ct., Rule 3.300(b)].

If all the related cases have been filed in one superior court, the court, on notice to all parties, may order that the cases, including probate and family law cases, be related and may assign them to a single judge or department. In a superior court where there is a master calendar, the presiding judge may order the cases related [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.300(h)(1)]. If the related cases are pending in more than one superior court on notice to all parties, the judge to whom the earliest filed case is assigned may confer informally with the parties and with the judges to whom each related case is assigned, to determine the feasibility and desirability of joint discovery orders and other informal or formal means of coordinating proceedings in the cases [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.300(h)(2)]. For coordination of actions, see § 125.30 et seq.

A. Consolidation

12-125 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 125.12

§ 125.12 Consolidation

[1] Definition and Purpose

Consolidation is the power of the court to order several actions or issues filed in the same county to be tried together. In order to promote convenience and conserve judicial resources by avoiding unnecessary costs, delays, and duplication when actions involving common questions of law or fact are pending before the court, it may order a joint hearing or trial of any or all of the matters in issue in the actions. Actions may be consolidated for all purposes with a single judgment or may be consolidated for the purpose of trial of related issues with separate judgments. The court may make any orders concerning consolidated proceedings as may tend to avoid unnecessary costs or delay [Code Civ. Proc. § 1048(a)].

Code Civ. Proc. § 1048(a) provides only for consolidation of actions pending before the same court in the same county. For civil causes of action that share common questions of law and fact and are filed in courts in different counties, the procedure utilized is coordination of actions, which assigns the actions to a single judge who coordinates the actions in one or more courts [see § 125.30 et seq.]. If non-complex civil actions are transferred to another court using coordination, the court to which the case is transferred may order the cases consolidated for trial pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1048 without any further motion or hearing [Code Civ. Proc. § 403].

[2] Types of Consolidation

Two distinct types of consolidation are possible. The court may order complete consolidation or consolidation for all purposes, which results in a single action under one case number with one verdict or set of findings and one judgment [Hamilton v. Asbestos Corp (2000) 22 Cal. 4th 1127, 1147, 95 Cal. Rptr. 2d 701, 998 P.2d. 403 ; Jaffe v. Albertson Co. (1966) 243 Cal. App. 2d 592, 606-607, 53 Cal. Rptr. 25] . Complete consolidation, with one set of findings and judgment, is correct where no doubt exists as to the applicability of the various findings to each of the consolidated cases [Page v. Bakersfield Uniform etc. Co. (1966) 239 Cal. App. 2d 762, 772, 49 Cal. Rptr. 46] . Complete consolidation, moreover, is proper where the plaintiffs could have joined together originally to bring the action [Jaffe v. Albertson Co. (1966) 243 Cal. App. 2d 592, 606-607, 53 Cal. Rptr. 25] .

Alternatively, courts may order consolidation for purposes of trial only, that is, consolidation only for the purpose of trial of related issues, with separate judgments and findings, as necessary [Hamilton v. Asbestos Corp (2000) 22 Cal. 4th 1127, 1147, 95 Cal. Rptr. 2d 701, 998 P.2d. 403 ; McClure v. Donovan (1949) 33 Cal. 2d 717, 722, 205 P.2d 17 ; see Stubblefield Construction Co. v. City of San Bernardino (1995) 32 Cal. App. 4th 687, 701, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 413] . With consolidation only for trial of related issues, each action maintains its separate identity and independent dispositions of the actions are necessary [McFarland v. Booker (1967) 250 Cal. App. 2d 402, 415-417, 58 Cal. Rptr. 417 ; see Hamilton v. Asbestos Corp (2000) 22 Cal. 4th 1127, 1147, 95 Cal. Rptr. 2d 701, 998 P.2d. 403 (actions remain otherwise separate)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Consolidation

12-125 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 125.13

§ 125.13 Discretion to Consolidate

[1] Not a Matter of Right

Consolidation is not a matter of right and rests solely within the sound discretion of the trial judge [Fisher v. Nash Bldg. Co. (1952) 113 Cal. App. 2d 397, 402, 248 P.2d 466 ; see also Hamilton v. Asbestos Corp (2000) 22 Cal. 4th 1127, 1149, 95 Cal. Rptr. 2d 701, 998 P.2d. 403 (consolidation under Code Civ. Proc. § 1048 is permissive, and it is for trial court to determine whether consolidation is for all purposes or for trial only)]. The trial court's decision to grant consolidation will not be disturbed on appeal absent a clear showing of abuse of discretion [Todd-Stenberg v. Dalkon Shield Claimants Trust (1996) 48 Cal. App. 4th 976, 978-979, 56 Cal. Rptr. 2d 16] . In actual practice, it is rare that an appellate court will find a consolidation order to be an abuse of discretion.

[2] Factors Determining Appropriateness of Consolidation

[a] No Statutory Guideline

Code Civ. Proc. § 1048(a) sets forth no guidelines with respect to when consolidation is proper except general ones directed toward avoiding unnecessary costs and delays when actions contain common questions of law or fact. The factors discussed in [b]-[e], below, present some guidelines regarding when consolidation may be warranted.

[b] Prejudice to Parties

An order of consolidation is not proper if parties to the action are prejudiced by virtue of the consolidation [see State Farm Etc. Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1956) 47 Cal. 2d 428, 431-432, 304 P.2d 13] . Such prejudice may result if the party resisting consolidation is forced to assume inconsistent and contradictory positions in the consolidated actions. For example, a declaratory judgment action in which an insurer seeks a determination that the insured was carrying riders for a charge under a liability policy which excluded coverage where passengers were carried may not be consolidated with an action brought by the riders against the insured in which the insurer is obligated to contend that the insured had been carrying guests within the meaning of a guest statute which would require the passengers to prove willful misconduct in order to recover. In such a case, obligating the insurer to argue inconsistent positions in the same consolidated action is prejudicial and sufficient for a finding of abuse of discretion in consolidation [see State Farm Etc. Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1956) 47 Cal. 2d 428, 431, 304 P.2d 13] .

[c] Confusion to Jury

Similar to the prejudice analysis, above, consolidation is not proper where such an order would result in confusion to the jury, such as when the same party is obligated to assume inconsistent positions and the jury must apply differing tests to particular fact situations which it may find to exist [see State Farm Etc. Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1956) 47 Cal. 2d 428, 431, 304 P.2d 13 ; see also Todd-Stenberg v. Dalkon Shield Claimants Trust (1996) 48 Cal. App. 4th 976, 980, 981 n.1, 56 Cal. Rptr. 2d 16 (no confusion when jury awarded three very different awards of damages, consistent with evidence, demonstrating their ability to distinguish between plaintiffs; distinguishing situation where jury awards identical measure of damages to each plaintiff, in which case inference is overwhelming that jury did not differentiate between cases)].

[d] Evidence

Consolidation may be proper although the evidence presented in one action would not have been admissible in the other action [Jud Whitehead Heater Co. v. Obler (1952) 111 Cal. App. 2d 861, 866-867, 245 P.2d 608] . Where consolidation is only for the purpose of trial of related issues, the evidence presented in one case is deemed applicable in the other only to the extent that it is relevant [McClure v. Donovan (1949) 33 Cal. 2d 717, 722, 205 P.2d 17] .

[e] Identity of Parties

Analogous to situations in which evidence admissible in one action but not in the other, consolidation of actions may also be appropriate and not an abuse of discretion even though the parties to both actions are not identical [Jud Whitehead Heater Co. v. Obler (1952) 111 Cal. App. 2d 861, 867, 245 P.2d 608] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Consolidation

12-125 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 125.14

§ 125.14 Effect of Consolidation

[1] Filing of Papers

The order granting or denying all or part of a motion to consolidate is filed in each case sought to be consolidated [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.350(a)(1)(C)].

If the motion is granted for all purposes including trial, any subsequent document is to be filed only in the lead case [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.350(c)]. All documents filed in the consolidated case must include the caption and case number of the lead case, followed by the case numbers of all the other consolidated cases [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.350(d)].

Unless otherwise ordered in granting the motion to consolidate, the lead case will be the case with the lowest file number [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.350(b)].

[2] Findings and Judgment

Consolidation may have the effect of joining causes of action involving the same parties to be tried as one case with one judgment and one set of findings of fact and conclusions of law [Didier v. American Cas. Co. (1968) 261 Cal. App. 2d 742, 752, 68 Cal. Rptr. 217] . In such situations, the cases are treated as if the actions had been united originally. A different situation exists where pending actions are consolidated only for the purpose of trial of related issues. In that case, the evidence presented in one action is deemed applicable in the other insofar as it is relevant, but separate findings, if any [Code Civ. Proc. § 632], and judgments must be made in each action [McClure v. Donovan (1949) 33 Cal. 2d 717, 722, 205 P.2d 17 (decided prior to amendment of Code Civ. Proc. § 632 in 1981, replacing findings of fact and conclusions of law with a statement of decision on the request of any party appearing at trial)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Severance

12-125 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 125.21

§ 125.21 Definition and Purpose

Although the term severance continues to be used, Code Civ. Proc. § 1048, as amended in 1971, no longer authorizes severance of a civil action, but only separate trial of a cause of action or issue within a single civil action [Morehart v. County of Santa Barbara (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 725, 737 n.3, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 804, 872 P.2d 143] . Specifically, Section 1048(b) provides that the court, in furtherance of convenience or to avoid prejudice, or when separate trial will be conducive to expedition and economy, may order a separate trial of any cause of action, including a cause of action asserted in a cross complaint, or of any separate issue or of any number of causes of action or issues, preserving the right of jury trial required by the constitution or a statute of California or the United States [Code Civ. Proc. § 1048].

Code Civ. Proc. § 1048(b) provides judicial control through severance when the liberal rules of permissive joinder might cause undue hardship to a party or create unnecessary confusion or complexity at trial [10 Cal. L. Revision Comm'n Reports 515 (1971)].

The 1971 amendment of Section 1048(b) was intended to conform in substance to Fed. Rule Civ. P., Rule 42 trial [10 Cal. L. Revision Comm'n Reports 523 (1971)]. For discussion of Rule 42, see Moore's Federal Practice, Ch. 42 (3d ed. Matthew Bender).

Section 1048(b) does not affect other statutes that provide for separate trial of particular issues, even though Section 1048(b) may provide duplicative authority. Other such statutes include Code Civ. Proc. §§ 597, 597.5, 598 [10 Cal. L. Revision Comm'n Reports 523 (1971)]. For discussion of separate trial of issues under those statutes, see Ch. 425, Pretrial Proceedings, § 425.50 et seq.

§ 125.22 Discretion to Sever

Severance is a matter within the discretion of the trial court and is not interfered with except where there has been a manifest abuse of discretion [Omaha Indemnity Co. v. Superior Court (1989) 209 Cal. pp. 3d 1266, 1271, 258 Cal. Rptr. 66 ; accord Finley v. Superior Court (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 1152, 1163, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 128] . Severance, however, may be mandatory pursuant to particular statutes governing specific actions. For example, Code Civ. Proc. § 597.5 requires mandatory severance of issues involving the bar of the statute of limitations in medical malpractice cases [see § 125.61 for other similar statutes].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Severance

12-125 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 125.23

§ 125.23 Propriety of Severance

Severance is proper, for example, when an insured is sued for negligence and the insurer is sued for bad faith in the same action, because to do otherwise would violate the letter and spirit of Evid. Code § 1155, which precludes the use of evidence that a tortfeasor has insurance for the injury her or she allegedly caused [Omaha Indemnity Co. v. Superior Court (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 1266, 1271, 258 Cal. Rptr. 66 (abuse of discretion to deny motion to sever)].

The court may sever legal and equitable claims for trial and try the equitable first, without a jury, if the claims are mutually exclusive remedies. Even if the court's determination of the equitable issue is also dispositive of the legal issues, and nothing remains to be tried to a jury, this does not deprive a party of the right to a jury trial [Walton v. Walton (1995) 31 Cal. App. 4th 277, 293] . Equitable claims cannot, however, be severed from legal claims where they are not mutually exclusive, such as a claim for damages for trespass and a claim for injunctive relief against future trespass [Walton v. Walton (1995) 31 Cal. App. 4th 277, 293] .

Severance may be appropriate when undue prejudice might arise from a $10 million punitive damage claim riding on a $200 claim for the destruction of personal property [see Stencel Aero Engineering Corp. v. Superior Court (1976) 56 Cal. App. 3d 978, 988, 128 Cal. Rptr. 691 ; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1048(b)].

An appeal cannot be taken from a judgment that fails to complete the disposition of all the causes of action between the parties even if the causes of action disposed of by the judgment have been ordered to be tried separately, or may be characterized as "separate and independent" from those remaining [Morehart v. County of Santa Barbara (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 725, 743, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 804, 872 P.2d 143 (disapproving Schonfeld v. City of Vallejo (1976) 50 Cal. App. 3d 401, 123 Cal. Rptr. 669 and its progeny)].

Review by writ of mandate may be available when unusual circumstances make appellate review of an interlocutory judgment appropriate. The circumstances would be so unusual that postponement of the appeal until the final judgment would cause serious hardship and inconvenience, rendering appeal from the final judgment an inadequate remedy [Morehart v. County of Santa Barbara (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 725, 743, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 804, 872 P.2d 143] .

12-125 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 125.31

§ 125.31 Definition

Coordination is the assignment of civil actions which share common questions of law or fact and are filed in different courts--that is, courts in different counties or different levels of courts in the same county--to a single judge for trial [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 403, 404]. The assigned judge may try the cases in one or more courts [Code Civ. Proc. § 404.3]. The assigned judge also has the flexibility to order issues or defenses tried separately, and to order the hearings conducted at various sites in the state as may be selected to provide convenience to witnesses, parties and counsel [see Cal. Rules of Court, Rule 3.541; see generally McGhan MedicalCorp. v. Superior Court (1992) 11 Cal. App. 4th 804, 812-814, 14 Cal. Rptr. 2d 264 (ordering coordination of over 300 breast implant cases pending in 20 counties)]. Although coordination is a simple process, it is governed by rather complex procedural rules [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.500 et seq.].

12-125 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 125.32

§ 125.32 Purpose

Coordination serves as a vehicle to eliminate unnecessary duplication of judicial resources and effort where causes of action involving common questions of law or fact are filed in different courts. Effective utilization of coordination further reduces the risk of inconsistent rulings among courts, waste of personnel and judicial facilities, and inefficient use of court calendars [see Code Civ. Proc. § 404.1].

Coordination is useful in a wide variety of cases including actions such as personal injury, death, property damage and commercial litigation, construction and subdivision litigation, public law litigation, fire casualty litigation, and miscellaneous tort actions [see Yakutis, "Multicourt Litigation Coordination: The First 100 Petitions," 10(3) Bev Hills BJ 12, 13 (1976)]. Coordination proceedings are useful in determining common issues in personal injury mass-tort claims, although each individual plaintiff is responsible for proof of the particular facts applicable to that plaintiff [Jolly v. Eli Lilly & Co. (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 1103, 1125 n.19, 245 Cal. Rptr. 658, 751 P. 2d 923] . Strict products liability actions can also benefit from coordination in the area of discovery and demurrer or summary judgment rulings [see McGhan Medical Corp. v. Superior Court (1992) 11 Cal. App. 4th 804, 812-814, 14 Cal. Rptr. 2d 264] .

§ 125.33 Notice of Related Cases

A party in a civil action who knows or learns of the existence of a related action or proceeding pending in any state or federal court in California is required to file and serve a Notice of Related Case. This duty applies when a party files a case with knowledge of a related action or proceeding, and applies thereafter whenever a party learns of a related action or proceeding [Cal. Rules Ct., Rule 3.300(a)].

If all the related cases have been filed in one superior court, the court, on notice to all parties, may order that the cases, including probate and family law cases, be related and may assign them to a single judge or department. In a superior court where there is a master calendar, the presiding judge may order the cases related [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.300(h)(1)]. If the related cases are pending in more than one superior court on notice to all parties, the judge to whom the earliest filed case is assigned may confer informally with the parties and with the judges to whom each related case is assigned, to determine the feasibility and desirability of joint discovery orders and other informal or formal means of coordinating proceedings in the cases [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.300(h)(2)].

§ 125.34 Different Procedures Depending on Whether Actions Are Complex or Non-Complex

Code Civ. Proc. § 403 and Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.500 govern coordination of non-complex cases pending in different courts.

Code Civ. Proc. § 404 et seq. and Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.501 et seq. govern coordination of complex cases pending in different courts.

The main distinction is that in a non-complex case, the issue of consolidation is addressed at the trial court level, while in a complex case, the issue is dealt with by a petition for consolidation directed to the Chair of the Judicial Council [compare Code Civ. Proc. § 403 with Code Civ. Proc. § 404 et seq.].

12-125 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 125.35

§ 125.35 Determining Whether Case is Complex or Non-Complex

In determining whether a case is or is not complex within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 403 and 404, the court must consider Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.400 et seq. [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.502].

Rule 3.400(a) defines a complex case as an action that requires exceptional judicial management to avoid placing unnecessary burdens on the court or the litigants and to expedite the case, keep costs reasonable, and promote effective decision making by the court, the parties, and counsel [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.400(a)]. The factors to be considered by the court in deciding whether an action is a complex case include, among other things, whether the action is likely to involve [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.400(b)]:

- Numerous pretrial motions raising difficult or novel legal issues that will be time-consuming to resolve;
- Management of a large number of witnesses or a substantial amount of documentary evidence;
- Management of a large number of separately represented parties;
- Coordination with related actions pending in one or more courts in other counties, states, or countries, or in a federal court; or
- Substantial postjudgment judicial supervision.

Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.400(c) provides that an action is provisionally complex if it involves one or more of the following types of claims:

- Antitrust or trade regulation claims;
- Construction defect claims involving many parties or structures;

- Securities claims or investment losses involving many parties;
- Environmental or toxic tort claims involving many parties;
- Claims involving mass torts;
- Claims involving class actions; or
- Insurance coverage claims arising out of any of the claims listed above.

Notwithstanding the above list, an action is not provisionally complex if the court has significant experience in resolving like claims involving similar facts and the management of those claims has become routine; moreover, a court may declare by local rule that certain types of cases are or are not provisionally complex [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.400(d)]. For additional analysis of provisionally complex actions and court case management, see Deskbook on the Management Of Complex Civil Litigation, §§ 2.01, 3.01 et seq. (Matthew Bender).

For additional analysis of complex cases, see Ch. 425, Pretrial Proceedings, § 425.15, and Deskbook on the Management of Complex Civil Litigation, §§ 1.02, 2.01 (Matthew Bender).

12-125 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 125.36

§ 125.36 Non-Complex Actions

[1] Grounds and Motion for Coordination

A judge may, on motion, transfer an action or actions from another court to that judge's court for coordination with an action involving a common question of fact or law within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 404. The motion must be supported by a declaration stating facts showing the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 403; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.500(c)]:

- The actions meet the standards specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 404.1 [see § 125.37[4]].
- The actions are not complex as defined by the Judicial Council [see § 125.35].
- The moving party has made a good faith effort to obtain agreement to the transfer from all parties to each action.
- The moving party has notified all parties of their obligation to disclose to the court any information they may have concerning any other motions requesting transfer of any case that would be affected by the granting of the motion before the court.

For forms of notice of motion and supporting declaration for coordination of non-complex actions, see §§ 125.150, and 125.151.

Notice of the motion must be served on all parties to each action and on each court in which an action is pending. Any party to that action may file papers opposing the motion within the time permitted by rule of the Judicial Council [Code Civ. Proc. § 403]. The motion is subject to the requirements generally applicable to motions [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.500(c)].

[2] Order Granting Motion

If the court orders that the case or cases be transferred from another court, the order must specify the reasons supporting a finding that the transfer will promote the ends of justice, with reference to the following standards [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.500(d); for a form of order, see § 125.152]:

- The actions are not complex;
- Whether the common question of fact or law is predominating and significant to the litigation;
- The convenience of the parties, witnesses, and counsel;
- The relative development of the actions and the work product of counsel;
- The efficient utilization of judicial facilities and staff resources;
- The calendar of the courts;
- The disadvantages of duplicative and inconsistent rulings, orders, or judgments; and
- The likelihood of settlement of the actions without further litigation should coordination be denied.

[3] Responsibilities of Moving Party When Motion Is Granted

If the court orders that the case or cases be transferred from another court, the moving party must promptly:

- Serve copies of the order on all parties to each case and send it to the Judicial Council and to the presiding judge of the court from which each case is to be transferred [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.500(e)];
- Take all appropriate action necessary to assure that the transfer takes place and that proceedings are initiated in the other court or courts to complete consolidation with the case pending in that court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.500(f)].

[4] Reconciliation of Conflicting Orders; Potential Sanctions

The coordination staff in the Administrative Office of the Courts must review all transfer orders submitted under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.500(e) and must promptly confer with the presiding judges of any courts that have issued conflicting orders under Code Civ. Proc. § 403. The presiding judges of those courts must confer with each other and with the judges who have issued the orders to the extent necessary to resolve the conflict [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.500(g)].

If it is determined that any party to a case has failed to disclose information concerning pending motions, the court may after a duly noticed hearing find that the party's failure to disclose is an unlawful interference with the processes of the court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.500(g); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.30 (sanctions for unlawful interference with the processes of the court); for further discussion, see Ch. 510, Sanctions].

[5] Consolidation of Actions Without Further Motion

The court to which a case is transferred under Code Civ. Proc. § 403 may order the cases consolidated for trial pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1048 without any further motion or hearing [Code Civ. Proc. § 403].

[6] Order Directing Parties to Move for Transfer to Different Court

If after considering a Code Civ. Proc. § 403 coordination motion, the judge determines that the action or actions pending in another court should not be transferred to the judge's court but instead all the actions that are subject to the motion to transfer should be transferred and consolidated in another court, the judge may order the parties to prepare, serve, and file a motion to have the actions transferred to the appropriate court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.500(h)].

C. Coordination

12-125 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 125.37

§ 125.37 Complex Actions

[1] Petition for Coordination

Any time after filing of the complaint, coordination proceedings may be commenced by a petition for coordination to the Chair of the Judicial Council [see Code Civ. Proc. § 404; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.521(a)].

The petition must be Supported by a memorandum and declarations stating facts showing that the actions are complex and meet the standards of Code Civ. Proc. § 404.1 for coordination [see Code Civ. Proc. § 404; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.521(a); for a form of declaration, see § 125.163].

In each included action, the petitioner must file a "Notice of Submission of Petition for Coordination" and the petition for coordination [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.522(a)].

The papers are all submitted to the Chair of the Judicial Council at the Judicial Council's San Francisco office [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.511, listing the papers that must be so submitted; see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.512, regarding the electronic submission of documents to the Chair of the Judicial Council], with proof of prior service on all other parties to the included actions [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.510].

For an outline of the procedures for a petition for coordination and procedures that apply after a petition is granted, see § 125.100 et seq.

[2] Who May Petition

[a] Persons Authorized

A petition for coordination may be filed by any of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 404]:

- All parties plaintiff or defendant to one of the actions.

- Any party to one of the actions after obtaining permission from the presiding judge.
- The presiding judge of a court in which one of the actions is pending.

[b] Any Party After Obtaining Presiding Judge's Permission

When a direct petition is not authorized by Code Civ. Proc. § 404, a party may request permission from the presiding judge of a court in which one of the actions is pending for permission to submit a petition for coordination to the Chair of the Judicial Council [see Code Civ. Proc. § 404; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.520(b); for a form of notice of motion, see § 125.160]. The request must be made by noticed motion accompanied by a proposed order, which must state that the moving party has permission to submit a petition for coordination to the Chair of the Judicial Council under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.521-3.523 [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.520(b)(1)]. The motion must be accompanied by a declaration stating facts showing that the actions are complex and meet the standards of Code Civ. Proc. § 404.1 for coordination [see Code Civ. Proc. § 404; for a form of declaration, see § 125.163].

If permission to submit a petition is granted, the moving party must serve and file the signed order and submit it to the Chair of the Judicial Council [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.520(b)(2)]. To provide sufficient time for a party to submit a petition, the presiding judge may stay all related actions pending in that court for a reasonable time not to exceed 30 calendar days [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.520(b)(3); for discussion of stays, see § 125.106; for forms of motions and orders to stay actions, see §§ 125.168 -125.171].

[c] All Parties Plaintiff or Defendant in One of Actions

In actual practice, the most common method of commencing a coordination proceeding is by direct petition since the requirement of concert by all parties plaintiff or defendant means only that either all plaintiffs or all defendants in any one action support the petition [see Code Civ. Proc. § 404]. Thus, numerous actions containing the same question of law or fact could be pending in the state, but it would be sufficient to commence a coordination proceeding if one side in any one of the actions acted in unison in supporting a direct petition.

[3] Action on Receipt of Petition for Coordination

On receiving a petition for coordination, the Chair of the Judicial Council may assign a judge to determine whether the actions are complex, and if so, whether coordination of the actions is appropriate, or may authorize the presiding judge of a court to assign the matter to judicial officers of the court to make the determination in the same manner as assignments are made in other civil cases [see Code Civ. Proc. § 404]. This coordination motion judge either denies or grants the coordination petition after a hearing, if requested, and transmits a copy of the order to the Chair of the Judicial Council [see Code Civ. Proc. § 404.3; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.511, 3.520]. If the order grants coordination, the Chair, on receipt of the order, either assigns a coordination trial judge to preside over the coordinated actions in the site or sites the assigned judge finds appropriate or authorizes the presiding judge of a court to assign the matter to judicial officers of the court in the same manner as assignments are made in other civilcases [see Code Civ. Proc. § 404.3; see generally Keenan v. Superior Court (1980) 111 Cal. App. 3d 336, 340-341, 168 Cal. Rptr. 561] .

For an outline of these procedures and procedures that apply after a petition is granted, see § 125.100 et seq.

[4] Standards for Determining Appropriateness of Coordination

The coordination motion judge, whose task it is to determine whether or not actions are appropriate for coordination, makes his or her determination based on the following statutory standards [Code Civ. Proc. § 404.1]:

- If one judge hearing all of the actions for all purposes in a selected site or sites will promote the ends of justice taking into account whether or not the common question of fact or law is predominating and significant to the litigation.

- The convenience of parties, witnesses, and counsel.
- The relative development of the actions and the work product of counsel.
- The efficient utilization of judicial facilities and manpower.
- The calendar of the courts.
- The disadvantages of duplicative and inconsistent rulings, orders, or judgments.
- The likelihood of settlement of the actions without further litigation should coordination be denied.

An express limitation to these standards is that the imminence of a trial in any action otherwise appropriate for coordination may be a ground for summary denial of a petition for coordination in whole or in part [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.521(d)].

[5] Flexibility of Coordination Procedures

The coordination statutes refer to one judge hearing all of the actions for all purposes in a selected site or sites [Code Civ. Proc. § 404.1; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 404.3 (assigning one judge to hear and determine the actions)]. Code Civ. Proc § 404.7, however, grants the Judicial Council the power by rule to order the practice for coordinated actions, "notwithstanding any other provision of law" [McGhan Medical Corp. v. Superior Court (1992) 11 Cal. App. 4th 804, 812-814, 14 Cal. Rptr. 2d 264] . Further, Section 404.7 gives the Judicial Council broad discretion to adopt procedures which will foster the goals of coordination, and such procedures may reconcile apparent inconsistencies in the statute [Keenan v. Superior Court (1980) 111 Cal. App. 3d 336, 341, 168 Cal. Rptr. 561] .

Thus, even when the coordination will involve hundreds of separate complaints and as many as 20 different counties, the coordination judge would have the flexibility to (1) sever noncommon cases or issues, (2) order trial in more than one forum, (3) minimize travel by all participants by lodging discovery materials in a central location accessible by computer networking or fax and by centralizing motion practice in specific county courts [McGhan Medical Corp. v. Superior Court (1992) 11 Cal. App. 4th 804, 812-813, 14 Cal. Rptr. 2d 264 (ordering coordination of breast implant cases)].

[6] Disqualification of Assigned Judge

Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.516 contemplates and controls the exercise of any challenge to any assigned judge in a coordination proceedings including preemptory challenges under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6. The procedure and practices established in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.516 prevail over any inconsistent, additional or limiting provisions of the general disqualification statutes, Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1 et seq. [Philip Morris, Inc. v. Superior Court (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 116, 122, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 671 ; see also Farmers Ins. Exchange v. Superior Court (1992) 10 Cal. App. 4th 1509, 1511-1512, 13 Cal. Rptr. 2d 449 (challenge not rendered untimely on ground that judge had ruled on contested matters in some of the actions prior to their coordination)].

The statutory scheme for coordination and the rules of court implementing that scheme provide for two separate assignments which may be to two separate judges. To be consistent with the statutory scheme, the term "assigned judge" in Rule 3.516 must be read as the judge assigned for the particular purpose, i.e., either to determine whether coordination is appropriate or to hear and determine the coordinated actions [Stone v. Superior Court (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 1144, 1147, 31 Cal. Rptr. 2d 56] . Thus, under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.516, when a coordination motion judge or coordination trial judge is assigned, the parties have 20 days after service of the assignment order to challenge the respective assigned judge whether peremptorily or otherwise [Philip Morris, Inc. v. Superior Court (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 116, 123, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 671 ; see Stone v. Superior Court (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 1144, 1147, 31 Cal. Rptr. 2d 56 (party challenging assignment of judge pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6 has 20 days after specific assignment to file affidavit of prejudice; challenge to coordinated trial judge filed on April 5 was timely when coordination motion judge was appointed February 3 and notice that same judge was appointed coordination trial judge was served on March 17)]. Once a coordinated motion judge or coordinated trial judge is assigned, the plaintiff and defense sides in any included action or coordinated action, respectively, are entitled to only one Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6 peremptory challenge each [Philip Morris, Inc. v. Superior Court (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 116, 123, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 671] .

Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.516 contains no provision that precludes plaintiffs in a coordination proceeding from exercising a Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6 peremptory challenge against the coordinated trial judge when one of those plaintiff's has made a precoordination peremptory challenge to a judge in plaintiff's independent action that has later become a coordinated action. Thus, disqualification of an assigned coordination trial judge has been held proper under those circumstances [Philip Morris, Inc. v. Superior Court (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 116, 125, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 671] . However, Cal Rules of Court, Rule 3.544, dealing with the procedure to add cases to an ongoing coordination proceeding after a coordination trial judge has been assigned contains no provision for a peremptory challenge by a party to an add-on case. Accordingly, the effect of the rules governing coordination cases is to exclude add-on parties from the right to peremptorily challenge the coordination trial judge [Industrial Indemnity Co. v. Superior Court (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 259, 263-264 (challenge by add-on defendants was untimely because not brought within 20 days after service of order assigning coordination trial judge); see Philip Morris, Inc. v. Superior Court (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 116, 125, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 671 (Industrial Indemnity Co. discussed)].

The 20-day time period specified in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.516 has been held extended under Code Civ. Proc. § 1013 when an order of assignment of a coordination trial judge has been served by mail [Citicorp North America, Inc. v. Superior Court (1989) 213 Cal. App. 3d 563, 565, 261 Cal. Rptr. 668] .

If a petition for coordination is granted, the coordination motion judge must, in the order granting coordination, recommend to the Chair of the Judicial Council a particular superior court for the site of the coordination proceedings [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.530(a)]. The coordination motion judge may consider any relevant factors in making a recommendation for the site of the coordination proceedings, including the following [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.530(b)]:

- The number of included actions in particular locations;
- Whether the litigation is at an advanced stage in a particular court;
- The efficient use of court facilities and judicial resources;
- The locations of witnesses and evidence;
- The convenience of the parties and witnesses;
- The parties' principal places of business;
- The office locations of counsel for the parties; and
- The ease of travel to and availability of accommodations in particular locations.

§ 125.40 Petition for Coordination When Cases Already Ordered Coordinated

If it appears that included actions in a petition for coordination share a common question of law or fact with cases already ordered coordinated, the Chair of the Judicial Council may assign the petition to the coordination trial judge for the existing coordinated cases to decide the petition as a request to coordinate an add-on case under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.544 [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.532(a)]. The coordination trial judge's order must specify that the request to coordinate an add-on case is either granted or denied [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.532(b)]. The petitioner must promptly file the order in each included action, serve it on each party appearing in an included action, and submit a copy to the Chair of Judicial Council [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.532(c)].

If the coordination trial judge grants the petition, the included actions will be coordinated as add-on cases and the right to file a peremptory challenge under Code of Civil Procedure section 170.6 will be limited by *Cal. A. Consolidation

§ 125.53 Decisions

[1] Discretion of Trial Court

Consolidation is within discretion of trial court and as not matter of right. Fisher v. Nash Bldg. Co. (1952) 113 Cal. App. 2d 397, 402, 248 P.2d 466

Trial court abused discretion in ordering consolidation where prejudice resulted by requiring plaintiff to assume inconsistent positions in consolidated actions. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1956) 47 Cal. 2d 428, 431-432, 304 P.2d 13

Consolidation is permitted where defendant's substantial rights not prejudiced even though all parties not same and evidence admissible in one case is not admissible in other. Jud Whitehead Heater Co. v. Obler (1952) 111 Cal. App. 2d 861, 866-867, 245 P.2d 608

[2] Effect

There are two types of consolidation: consolidation for purposes of trial only where actions remain otherwise separate; and complete consolidation or consolidation for all purposes, where two actions are merged into single proceeding under one case number and result in only one verdict or set of findings and one judgment. Hamilton v. Asbestos Corp (2000) 22 Cal. 4th 1127, 1147, 95 Cal. Rptr. 2d 701, 998 P.2d. 403

Consolidated actions ordinarily are determined by single set of findings and single judgment. Didier v. American Cas. Co. (1968) 261 Cal. App. 2d 742, 752, 68 Cal. Rptr. 217

Consolidation for trial of related issues requires independent dispositions of actions with each retaining separate identity. McFarland v. Booker (1967) 250 Cal. App. 2d 402, 415-417, 58 Cal. Rptr. 417

One set of findings and one judgment was correct where no doubt existed as to applicability of various findings to each of consolidated cases. Page v. Bakersfield Uniform etc. Co. (1966) 239 Cal. App. 2d 762, 772, 49 Cal. Rptr. 46

One set of findings and one judgement was proper in consolidated case where plaintiffs originally could have joined together to bring action. Jaffe v. Albertson Co. (1966) 243 Cal. App. 2d 592, 606-607, 53 Cal. Rptr. 25

Consolidation for trial of related issues does not consolidate actions for all purposes. National Elec. Supply Co. v. Mount Diablo Unified School Dist. (1960) 187 Cal. App. 2d 418, 422, 9 Cal. Rptr. 864

Where pending actions are consolidated for purpose of trial of related issues, evidence presented in one case is deemed applicable in other so far as relevant but separate judgments and findings are required. McClure v. Donovan (1949) 33 Cal. 2d 717, 722, 205 P.2d 17

[3] Particular Actions

Consolidation for trial of probate matter and civil lawsuit is within trial court's discretion and is not disturbed on appeal absent clear showing of abuse of discretion. Estate of Baker (1982) 131 Cal. App. 3d 471, 484-485, 182 Cal. Rptr. 550

Alleged wrongdoer in tort action was not permitted to bring in other defendants where their presence would not defeat plaintiff's claim but only lessen wrongdoer's burden. General Elec. Co. v. California ex rel. Dep't Public Works (1973) 32 Cal. App. 3d 918, 925, 108 Cal. Rptr. 543

Consolidation of two actions to recover proceeds of separate trust accounts was within discretion of trial court. Kropp v. Sterling Sav. & L. Ass'n (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 1033, 1046, 88 Cal. Rptr. 878

Consolidation for trial of related issues was permitted with petition to determine heirship in pending proceeding and independent action to vacate prior judgment and final probate orders. Neubrand v. Superior Court (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 311, 322-323, 88 Cal. Rptr. 586

Consolidation of action seeking preliminary injunction with action for dissolution of corporation was proper. Spector v. Superior Court (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 839, 844, 13 Cal. Rptr. 189, 361 P.2d 909

Consolidation of actions involving condemnation proceedings as to several parcels permitted. San Diego County v. Bank of America (1955) 135 Cal. App. 2d 143, 146-147, 286 P.2d 880

Consolidation of causes of action for negligence for physical injuries suffered by husband and loss of consortium by wife is proper. Rodriguez v. Bethlehem Steel Corp. (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 382, 407, 115 Cal. Rptr. 765, 525 P.2d 669

Consolidation of condemnation actions was not abuse of discretion even though several owners of parcels were of different races and each contends he would suffer prejudice therefrom. Los Angeles High School Dist. v. Swensen (1964) 226 Cal. App. 2d 574, 583-584, 38 Cal. Rptr. 214

Consolidation of two unlawful detainer actions was not abuse of discretion. Cicinelli v. Iwasaki (1959) 170 Cal. App. 2d 58, 71, 338 P.2d 1005

Separate actions for money had and received against same defendant were properly consolidated. Morrell v. Clark (1951) 106 Cal. App. 2d 198, 203, 234 P.2d 774

[4] Procedure

Where presiding judge consolidates two cases and assigns consolidated action for all further proceedings to another judge who overrules demurrer to complaints, motion to disqualify assigned judge was timely where made at least five days prior to hearing on motion to test propriety of case as class action. Zdonek v. Superior Court (1974) 38 Cal. App. 3d 849, 852-853, 113 Cal. Rptr. 669

Trial court may make new order of consolidation or severance after pleadings closed and parties advise court of trial plans. Vegetable Oil Products Co. v. Superior Court (1963) 213 Cal. App. 2d 252, 259-260, 28 Cal. Rptr. 555

Consolidation is permitted by stipulation of parties. Phillips v. Beilsten (1958) 164 Cal. App. 2d 450, 454, 330 P.2d 912

Mandate is possible remedy where trial court refuses consolidation. Realty Mfg. Co. v. Superior Court (1913) 165 Cal. 543, 547, 132 P. 1048

Order of consolidation is not appealable but reviewable on appeal from subsequent judgment. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1956) 47 Cal. 2d 428, 432, 304 P.2d 13

Trial court's decision to grant consolidation will not be disturbed on appeal absent clear showing of abuse of discretion. Todd-Stenberg v. Dalkon Shield Claimants Trust (1996) 48 Cal. App. 4th 976, 978-979, 56 Cal. Rptr. 2d 16

Judgments in actions on creditor's claims are reviewable on appeal from judgment in action for declaratory relief where actions were ordered consolidated and actually tried together. Bank of California v. Connolly (1973) 36 Cal. App. 3d 350, 363, 111 Cal. Rptr. 468

Exercise by court of its discretion to consolidate is not reviewable except in case of palpable abuse. Jud Whitehead Heater Co. v. Obler (1952) 111 Cal. App. 2d 861, 867, 245 P.2d 608

12-125 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 125.62

§ 125.62 Decisions

[1] Discretion of Court

It is within court's discretion to order severance and separate trails. Finley v. Superior Court (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 1152, 1163, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 128

Possibility of undue prejudice to defendant was avoidable by discretionary power of court to sever issues for trial where plaintiff's claim for $10,000 in punitive damages was associated with $200 property damages claim. Stencel Aero Engineering Corp. v. Superior Court (1976) 56 Cal. App. 3d 978, 988, 128 Cal. Rptr. 691

Severance and separate trials of issues in single action is within discretion of trial court. Mellone v. Lewis (1965) 233 Cal. App. 2d 4, 7, 43 Cal. Rptr. 412

[2] Particular Actions

Order of separate trial of several issues in class action was prejudicial to defendant prior to determination of suitability of action as class action. Home Sav. & L. Ass'n v. Superior Court (1974) 42 Cal. App. 3d 1006, 1012, 117 Cal. Rptr. 485

Severable nature of two causes of action, by itself, did not preclude consideration of "impracticable and futile" exception to dismissal for failure to bring an action within statutory period, where effect would be to undermine policy of consolidation statute. Brunzell Constr. Co. v. Wagner (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 545, 551-554, 86 Cal. Rptr. 297, 468 P.2d 553

Severance was appropriate remedy where joinder was proper under statute but inconvenient to particular defendant. Landau v. Salam (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 901, 908, 95 Cal. Rptr. 46, 484 P.2d 1390

Severance of actions and order of separate trials of complaint and cross complaint in divorce action are within discretion of court and not reviewable except with manifest abuse of discretion. McLellan v. McLellan (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 343, 353, 100 Cal. Rptr. 258

In tort action for deceit where defendants are jointly and severally liable and suit could have been brought originally against any or all of them, action is essentially divisible and could be severed at any time. Ross v. George Pepperdine Foundation (1959) 174 Cal. App. 2d 135, 141-142, 344 P.2d 368

[3] Purpose

Trial court order purporting to sever dismissed count of complaint from other count, following trial court's sustaining of demurrer to dismissed count, for purpose of permitting immediate appellate review of trial court's ruling on demurrer was improper in that court's authority under Code Civ. Proc. § 1048(b) to sever causes of action is limited to severance for purpose of separate trial; severance is improper where no trial of severed cause of action is contemplated. Armstrong Petroleum Corp. v. Superior Court (1981) 114 Cal. App. 3d 732, 736, 170 Cal. Rptr. 767

[4] Review

Exercise of court's discretion to order severance will not be interfered with on appeal except when there has been a manifest abuse of discretion. Finley v. Superior Court (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 1152, 1163, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 128

Although mandate in certain instances provides more effective remedy than does appeal for purpose of reviewing order denying severance, writ relief is inappropriate if trial court denies motion for severance without prejudice to making motion at later time; Supreme Court's order directing court of appeal to issue alternative writ of mandate ordering superior court to grant motion to sever constitutes determination that, in ordinary course of law, petitioner is without adequate remedy. Omaha Indemnity Co. v. Superior Court (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 1266, 1274-1275, 258 Cal. Rptr. 66

Tort settlement allocation agreement requires separate trial after judgment where remaining defendant alleges lack of good faith in allocation by settling tortfeasors. Lareau v. Southern Pac. Transportation Co. (1975) 44 Cal. App. 3d 783, 796-798, 118 Cal. Rptr. 837

Where plaintiff sues on separate causes of action for money due on promissory note and on account stated, entry of judgment on one cause of action was patently void and not appealable when two causes were never severed into separate lawsuits. Trani v. R.G. Hohman Enterprises, Inc. (1975) 52 Cal. App. 3d 314, 315-316, 125 Cal. Rptr. 34

Final judgment rule does not preclude review on appeal of properly severed action prior to determination of all actions. Schonfeld v. City of Vallejo (1975) 50 Cal. App. 3d 401, 417-419, 123 Cal. Rptr. 669

In proceeding in probate where court found favorably for one claimant, order was severable and appealable even though interests of other beneficiaries had not been determined. Estate of Brissel (1963) 218 Cal. App. 2d 841, 843, 32 Cal. Rptr. 458

Mandate is remedy to compel severance of actions for trial. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1956) 47 Cal. 2d 428, 433, 304 P.2d 13

12-125 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 125.73

§ 125.73 Decisions

[1] Grounds for Coordination

Although coordination under Code of Civ. Proc. § 404 is limited to "complex" cases, coordinated actions are not by definition difficult or novel. The criteria that determine whether actions are "complex" within the meaning of section 404 are set forth in former Cal. Rules of Court, Rule 1800(a) (now 3.400), which defines a "complex case" as "an action that requires exceptional judicial management to avoid placing unnecessary burdens on the court or the litigants and to expedite the case, keep costs reasonable, and promote effective decision making by the court, the parties, and counsel." Thayer v. Wells Fargo Bank (2001) 92 Cal. App. 4th 819, 835, 112 Cal. Rptr. 2d 284

Predicted benefits of coordination of hundreds of breast implant cases in 20 counties, especially in streamlining discovery and motion practice, as outweighing some delay and inequity. McGhan Medical Corp. v. Superior Court (1992) 11 Cal. App. 4th 804, 812-815, 14 Cal. Rptr. 2d 264 .

Although class actions are rarely appropriate for resolution of personal injury mass-tort claims because they rarely meet community-of-interest requirement in that each member's right to recover depends on facts peculiar to each particular case, some benefits of class action device as implemented by other means, such as coordination proceedings, in which common issues can be determined, but each individual plaintiff is responsible for proof of particular facts applicable to that particular plaintiff. Jolly v. Eli Lilly & Co. (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 1103, 1125 n.19, 245 Cal. Rptr. 658, 751 P.2d 923

Request for coordination as appropriate when civil actions sharing common question of fact or law are pending in different courts. Keenan v. Superior Court (1980) 111 Cal. App. 3d 336, 340-341, 168 Cal. Rptr. 561

Rules for coordination of civil actions, in different courts, involving common questions of fact or law contemplate that existence of pending actions will be disclosed to court by parties having knowledge of them. Trotsky v. Los Angeles Fed. Sav. & Loan Ass'n (1975) 48 Cal. App. 3d 134, 151, 121 Cal. Rptr. 637

[2] Power of Coordination Judge

Coordination judge as governing subsequent activities without interference by any other judge and as free to determine place of trial unfettered by narrow perspective of venue statutes. Keenan v. Superior Court (1980) 111 Cal. App. 3d 336, 342, 168 Cal. Rptr. 561

Presence of common questions of law, efficient utilization of judicial facilities and manpower, state of court's calendar, and problems which would be engendered by duplicative and inconsistent rulings as supporting exercise of trial court's discretion in refusing to retransfer actions which had previously been coordinated, despite fact that convenience of witnesses would favor retransferring. Pesses v. Superior Court (1980) 107 Cal. App.3d 117, 125, 165 Cal. Rptr. 680 (wrongful death actions arising out of airplane crash)

[3] Disqualification of Judge

Former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1515 (now 3.516) controls exercise of any challenge to any assigned judge in coordination proceedings, including preemptory challenges under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6; under former Rule 1515, when coordination motion judge or coordination trial judge is assigned, parties have 20 days after service of assignment order to challenge judge whether peremptorily or otherwise; once coordinated motion judge or coordinated trial judge is assigned, plaintiff and defense sides in any included action or coordinated action, respectively, are entitled to only one Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6 peremptory challenge each; procedures and practices established by former Rule 1515 prevail over any inconsistent provisions of general disqualification statutes; no provision in former Rule 1515 precludes plaintiffs from exercising Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6 peremptory challenge against coordinated trial judge when one of those plaintiffs made precoordination peremptory challenge in plaintiff's independent action that later becomes coordinated action; thus, despite any language in Section 170.6 to contrary, former Rule 1515 made plaintiffs' peremptory challenge timely. Philip Morris, Inc. v. Superior Court (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 116, 122-126, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 671

In coordination proceedings under Code Civ. Proc. § 404 et seq., trial court erred in striking defendants' written motion to disqualify assigned judge peremptorily under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6 on ground motion, submitted 22 days after order of assignment was made, was untimely under Cal. Rules of Ct., former Rule 1515 (now 3.516) (requiring submission of challenge within 20 days after order of assignment); since order was served by mail, defendants' time for moving to disqualify was extended by five days under Code Civ. Proc. § 1013, thus giving them 25 days from date of service of order to make motion. Citicorp North America, Inc. v. Superior Court (1989) 213 Cal. App. 3d 563, 566-571, 261 Cal. Rptr. 668

[4] Review

Mandate rather than appeal as method for review of orders made in connection with coordination proceedings. Lathrup, Inc. v. Trans-West Discount Corp. (1976) 64 Cal. App. 3d 316, 317, 134 Cal. Rptr. 348

12-125 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 125.81

§ 125.81 Preliminary Determinations

☐ Determine what common questions of law or fact are involved in the actions.

☐ Determine how consolidation may tend to avoid unnecessary costs or delays.

☐ Determine whether other counsel in the cases may stipulate to consolidation.

☐ Determine whether the consolidation should be of the entire actions or only of certain issues in the actions.

NOTE:

Unless otherwise ordered in granting the motion to consolidate, the lead case in a consolidated case is the case with the lowest file number [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.350(b)]. The order on the motion to consolidate is filed in each of the cases. Thereafter, if the motion is granted for all purposes including trial, any subsequent document must be filed only in the lead case [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.350(c)] and must include the caption and case number of the lead case, followed by the case numbers of all of the other consolidated cases [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.350(d)].

NOTE:

The actions may be consolidated to be tried as one case and the original actions are treated as if the causes had been united originally. Pending actions may also be consolidated for the purpose of trying only certain related issues. In that event the evidence presented in one case is deemed applicable to the other insofar as it is relevant thereto, but separate findings, when required, and judgments are made in each case [McClure v. Donovan (1949) 33 Cal. 2d 717, 722, 205 P.2d 17] .

12-125 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 125.82

§ 125.82 Stipulation

1. If counsel for all parties to the actions agree, prepare a stipulation for consolidation of actions [for form, see § 125.121] or of issues for trial [for form, see § 125.125] in the following number of copies:

- ☐ One duplicate original for filing in each of the actions.
- ☐ One copy for each counsel signing the stipulation.
- ☐ Office copy.
- ☐ Copy for client, if desired.
- ☐ Additional copies as desired.

2. Have stipulation executed by each counsel.

3. Prepare an order for consolidation of actions [for form, see § 125.124] or of issues [for form, see § 125.128] in the same number of copies as listed in Paragraph 1, above.

4. Present the stipulation and order to the court clerk with the requests:

- ☐ That the stipulation be filed.
- ☐ That the filed stipulation and the order be handed to the judge.

☐ That the judge be asked to sign the order.

☐ That the signed order be filed [see Phillips v. Beilsten (1958) 164 Cal. App. 2d 450, 454, 330 P.2d 912] .

12-125 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 125.83

§ 125.83 Noticed Motion

1. If stipulation is not possible, prepare a notice of motion for an order consolidating actions [for form, see § 125.122] or consolidating issues for trial [for form, see § 125.126] in the following number of copies [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.350(a)]:

- ☐ An original for filing in the lowest numbered case.
- ☐ One copy for filing in each additional case sought to be consolidated.
- ☐ One copy for each attorney of record and unrepresented party in all of the cases.
- ☐ Office copy.
- ☐ Copy for client, if desired.
- ☐ Additional copies as desired.

2. Prepare an affidavit or a declaration under penalty of perjury [for forms, see § 125.123, 125.127] and a memorandum [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a)] in support of the motion in the same number of copies as in Paragraph 1, above, omitting the copies for filing in cases other than the lowest numbered case.

NOTE:
For memoranda related to this motion, see California Points and Authorities, Ch. 45, Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions .

3. Insert the date and place of the hearing on the motion in the notice and request that the motion be placed on the calendar for that time.

NOTE:

If counsel is not familiar with local court practice, he or she may inquire of the clerk of the court regarding this procedure. For example, the Sacramento County Superior Court requires that motions for consolidation of actions be heard by the presiding judge on written notice to all parties which must be given, and the motion made, promptly on the necessity for the consolidation being ascertained [Sacramento Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 2.02(B)].

The Contra Costa Superior Court provides that motions to consolidate cases, bifurcate issues of liability or other issues, such as statute of limitations or other special defense, or sever consolidated cases or causes of action for trial may be heard in the Law and Motion Department or may be reserved for the trial department. Motions to consolidate must be noticed for hearing in the department which is assigned to the lowest numbered case of those cases proposed for consolidation [Contra Costa Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 7(i)].

4. Execute or have executed the documents in Paragraphs [1] and [2], above.

5. Serve copies of the notice of motion, declaration, and memorandum by mail [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1012, 1013] or by delivery in person or as otherwise provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 1011.

6. Prepare the certificate, affidavit, or declaration of proof of service.

NOTE:

For a procedural guide for service of papers and for forms of proof of service, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers .

7. File the originals of all of the documents in the lowest numbered case, and file copies of the notice of motion only in each of the additional cases sought to be consolidated [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.350(a)].

8. Attend the hearing on the motion and present argument in support of the motion. If the motion is granted, prepare the order [for forms, see §§ 125.124, 125.128] and present it to the clerk with the request that it be signed by the judge and filed.

NOTE:

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 1019.5, when a motion is granted or denied, unless the court otherwise orders, notice of the court's decision or order (see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders) must be given by the prevailing party to all other parties or their attorneys, in the manner provided in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1010-1020 (see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers), unless notice is waived by all parties in open court and is entered in the minutes.

NOTE:
A Stipulation to a severance appears to be less common than a stipulation for a consolidation; therefore, no guide is set forth here for that procedure. If each counsel is agreeable to such a stipulation, the procedural guide for consolidation (see § 125.82) may be adapted to such procedure.

1. Prepare a notice of motion for an order severing the causes of action or issues therein [for form, see § 125.140] in the following number of copies:

☐ Original for filing.

☐ Copy for counsel for each other party.

☐ Office copy.

☐ Copy for client, if desired.

☐ Additional copies as desired.

2. Prepare an affidavit [Code Civ. Proc. § 2009] or a declaration under penalty of perjury [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5] and a memorandum [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a)] in support of the motion in the same number of copies as in Paragraph 1, above.

NOTE:
For a form of declaration under penalty of perjury which may be adapted for use with this motion, see § 125.123. For memoranda related to this motion, see California Points and Authorities, Ch. 45, Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions .

12-125 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 125.100

§ 125.100 Non-Complex Actions: Procedure for Coordination

[1] Preliminary Determinations

1. Determine that actions are not complex [see Code Civ. Proc. § 403]; [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.502, 3.400 et seq.; see also § 125.35].

2. Determine that actions meet standards for coordination under Code Civ. Proc. § 404.1 [see Code Civ. Proc. § 403; see also § 125.37[4]].

3. Determine whether other parties will agree to coordination; good faith effort to obtain agreement is required [see Code Civ. Proc. § 403; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.500(a)].

4. Inform other parties of their obligation to inform the of any other motions for transfer that might affect the moving party's motion for transfer [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.500(a), (f)].

[2] Prepare, File, and Serve Papers

1. Prepare:

- ☐ Notice of motion [for form, see § 125.150].
- ☐ Supporting declaration [for form, see § 125.151].
- ☐ Supporting points and authorities.
- ☐ Proposed order [for form, see § 125.152].

☐ Proof of service [for discussion and forms, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers].

2. Serve notice of motion and supporting papers on [see Code Civ. Proc. § 403]:

☐ All parties to each action.

☐ Each court in which an affected action is pending.

3. File papers.

NOTE:
Procedure on the motion is the same as for motions generally [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.500(c); for discussion and a procedural checklist, see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders].

[3] Procedure if Court Grants Motion

1. Promptly serve copies of order granting motion to [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.500(e)]:

☐ All parties to each case.

☐ The Judicial Council.

NOTE:
Coordination staff in the Administrative Office of the Courts will review coordination orders and confer with presiding judges of courts which have may issued conflicting orders. Judges of those courts will then confer to resolve the conflict [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.500(g)].

☐ The presiding judge of a court from which each case is to be transferred.

2. Take appropriate action to assure that transfer takes place to [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.500(f)].

12-125 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 125.101

§ 125.101 Complex Actions: Two Procedures for Commencing Coordination

NOTE:

The following checklist is designed to be illustrative only of the procedures commonly utilized by counsel in coordination proceedings. The checklist employs the definitions as set forth in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.501, in § 125.110. Counsel are, therefore, encouraged to refer to the definitional section in conjunction with the procedural checklist and to familiarize themselves with all rules of court pertaining to coordination of actions as set forth in California Rules of Court, Rules 3.501-3.550.

[1] By Motion

NOTE:

If all plaintiffs or all defendants in any of the actions are seeking coordination, they should directly petition the Chairperson of the Judicial Council under the procedures set out in § 125.101[2] [see Code Civ. Proc. § 404; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.520].

1. File motion supported by declaration in trial court, following the manner provided by law for motions in civil actions generally [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1003-1030], seeking commencement of a coordination proceeding by the presiding judge [Code Civ. Proc. § 404; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.520(a); for forms, see §§ 125.160, 126.163].

2. The declaration should contain the following:

☐ The name of each petitioner and the name and address of his or her attorney of record, if any;

☐ The names of the parties to all included actions, and the name and address of each party's attorney of record, if any;

☐ The complete title of each included action, together with the title of the court in which such action is pending and the number of such action;

☐ The complete title of any other action known to the petitioner to be pending in a California court that shares a common question of fact or law with the included actions, and a statement of the reasons for not including such other action in the petition for coordination;

☐ The status of each included action, including the status of any pretrial or discovery motions or orders in that action, if known to petitioner;

☐ The facts relied upon to show that each included action meets the coordination standards specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 404.1;

☐ Any facts relied on in support of a request that a particular site or sites be selected for a hearing on the petition for coordination [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.521(a)(8)];

☐ Facts showing that the actions are complex as defined in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.400 et seq. [Code Civ. Proc. § 404; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.502].

3. If permission to submit a petition for coordination is granted, the moving party must serve and file the signed order and submit it to the Chair of the Judicial Council [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.520(b)(2)].

[2] By Direct Petition

1. Submit petition to Chair of Judicial Council. When petition is made directly by all parties plaintiff or defendant, submit original petition for coordination [for form, see § 125.162] and a copy thereof to the Chair of the Judicial Council for assignment of a coordination motion judge to determine whether or not coordination of actions is appropriate [Code Civ. Proc. § 404; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.520, 3.521(a)].

2. Petition for coordination. The petition for coordination consists of the following:

☐ Contents. State whether or not a hearing is requested and include declarations and points and authorities containing those elements set forth in Paragraph [2] of § 125.102[1] [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.520, 3.521(a); for form, see § 125.162].

NOTE:
In lieu of proof by declaration of facts [see Paragraph 2, (c), (f), or (g) of § 125.101[1]], a certified or endorsed copy of the respective pleadings may be attached to the petition for coordination specifying which parts of the pleadings are relied on to support a particular fact [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.521(c)].

☐ Proof of filing. Within five court days of submitting the petition for coordination, the petitioner must submit to the Chair of the Judicial Council proof of filing of the notice of submission of petition required by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.522, and proof of service of the notice of submission of petition and of the petition required by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.523 [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.521(b), 3.522; see §§ 125.101, 125.162[7]].

☐ Proof of service. Attach proof of service on each party or on his or her attorney of record, if he or she is represented by an attorney, of the petition for coordination and all supporting documents [see § 125.102[2]; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.521(b), 3.523].

☐ Notice of submission of petition. Attach a notice of submission of petition for coordination [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.521(b), 3.522; see Paragraph [2] of § 125.102[1]; for form, see § 125.164].

☐ Stay order (optional). Motion for an order staying proceedings may be included with a petition for coordination or served and submitted by any party [see § 125.107; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.515(a)]. If coordination is not sought by all parties plaintiff or defendant to an action, it is recommended that an order be sought staying proceedings in that action until a coordination motion judge can be assigned by the Chair of the Judicial Council. Notice the application in the usual manner for motions for stay orders generally, according to the applicable rules of court. In a court having more than one judge, if the presiding judge does not rule on the motion, the stay order should be countersigned by the presiding judge [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.520].

3. Address of Chair of Judicial Council. The petition and supporting papers should be submitted in duplicate to the Chair of the Judicial Council, at the following address [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.511]:
Chairperson of the Judicial Council Administrative Office of the Courts
c/o Coordination Attorney
455 Golden Gate Avenue
San Francisco, California 94102-3660

4. Documents transmitted to chair. A copy of the following papers must be submitted to the Chair of the Judicial Council at the Judicial Council's San Francisco office [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.511(a)]:

(1) Petition for coordination, including a petition for coordination of add-on cases;

(2) Notice of submission of petition for coordination, along with the caption page of the original action;

(3) Order assigning coordination motion judge, if made by a presiding judge;

(4) Order assigning coordination trial judge, if made by a presiding judge;

(5) Notice of opposition;

(6) Response in opposition to or in support of a petition for coordination;

(7) Motion for a stay order;

(8) Notice of hearing on petition;

(9) Order granting or denying coordination, including coordination of add-on cases;

(10) Order of remand;

(11) Order of transfer;

(12) Order terminating a coordination proceeding in whole or in part;

(13) Order dismissing an included or coordinated action;

(14) Notice of appeal; and

(15) Notice of disposition of appeal.

The papers listed above are to be submitted by the party that filed or submitted and served the papers or that was directed to give notice of entry of the order. Notice of submission must be filed with the court as part of the proof of service [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.511(b)].

Any paper listed in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.511(a) may be submitted electronically to coordination@jud.ca.gov [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.512(a)]. A party submitting a document electronically must (1) take all reasonable steps to ensure that the submission does not contain computer code, including viruses, that might be harmful to the Judicial Council's electronic system and to other users of that system; and (2) furnish one or more electronic notification addresses and immediately provide any change to his or her electronic notification addresses [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.512(b)]. A document that is submitted electronically must meet the following requirements: (1) the software for creating and reading the document must be in the public domain or generally available at a reasonable cost; and (2) the printing of documents must not result in the loss of document text, format, or appearance [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.512(c)]. When a document to be submitted electronically requires a signature under penalty of perjury, the document is deemed signed by the declarant if, before submission, the declarant has signed a printed form of the document [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.512(d)(1)]. By electronically submitting the document, the party submitting it indicates that he or she has complied with Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.512(d)(1) and that the original, signed document is available for review and copying at the request of the court or any party [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.512(d)(2)]. At any time after the document is submitted, any other party may serve a demand for production of the original signed document. The demand must be served on all other parties but need not be filed with the court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.512(d)(3)]. Within five days of service of the demand, the party on whom the demand is made must make the original signed document available for review and copying by all other parties [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.512(d)(4)]. If a document does not require a signature under penalty of perjury, the document is deemed signed by the party if the document is submitted electronically [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.512(e)]. A party is not required to use a digital signature on an electronically submitted document [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.512(f)].

§ 125.102 Filing and Service of Petition and Accompanying Papers--Complex Actions

[1] Filing of Petition and Notice of Submission

NOTE:

Despite the different procedures for commencing the procedure for coordination of complex cases, described in §§ 125.101[1] and [2], once the petition is submitted to the chair there is no further procedural distinction made. Thus, the following procedures, as set forth below, apply equally to all coordinated actions.

1. Filing. File in the appropriate court for each included action one copy of the petition [see § 125.101[2]] along with a notice of submission of petition for coordination [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.521(b), 3.522; for form, see § 125.164].

2. Contents. Each notice of submission must bear the title of the court in which the notice is to be filed and the number of any included action pending in that court, together with [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.521(b), 3.522]:

☐ The date that the petition for coordination was submitted to the Chair of the Judicial Council;

☐ The name and address of the petitioner's attorney of record;

☐ The title and case number of each included action to which the petitioner is a party and the title of the court in which each action is pending; and

☐ The statement that any written opposition to the petition must be submitted and served at least nine calendar days before the hearing date.

3. Opposing petition. Any written opposition to the petition must be submitted and served at least nine court days before the hearing date [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.522(a)(4); for form, see § 125.164].

[2] Service on Parties

1. Service of petition and notice. Serve one copy of the notice of submission of petition for coordination of each included action, together with a copy of the petition for coordination and supporting documents, on each party or on his or her attorney of record if he or she is represented by an attorney and submit the notice to the Chair of the Judicial Council within five court days of submitting the petition for coordination [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.523].

2. Service on liaison counsel. Except as provided in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.506(b), any party for whom liaison counsel has been designated may be served by serving the liaison counsel [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.510(b); see § 125.103[4].

3. Failure to serve. Failure to serve any defendant with a copy of the summons and of the complaint, or failure to serve any party with any other paper as required by the California Rules of Court governing coordination does not preclude the coordination of the actions, but any such defendant or party may assert such failure to serve him or her as a basis for appropriate relief [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.510(c)].

12-125 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 125.103

§ 125.103 Assignment of Coordination Motion Judge--Complex Actions

[1] Order Assigning Judge

On receipt of a petition for coordination, the Chair of the Judicial Council assigns a coordination motion judge to determine whether the actions are complex, and if so, whether coordination of the actions is appropriate, or may authorize the presiding judge of a court to assign the matter to judicial officers of the court to make the determination in the same manner as assignments are made in other civil cases [Code Civ. Proc. § 404]. The order assigning a coordination motion judge is served on each party and bears a special number and title assigned to that particular coordination proceeding and all subsequent papers filed in such proceedings should also bear the assigned number and title [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.524(a)(1); for form of caption, see § 125.165].

[2] Disqualification of Assigned Motion Judge

For disqualification of judge, see § 125.106[2].

[3] Submission of Documents to Motion Judge

The order assigning a coordination motion judge specifies a court address to which all subsequent documents to the coordination motion judge should be submitted [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.524(a)(2)]. Note that certain documents submitted to the coordination motion judge must also be transmitted to the Chair of the Judicial Council [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.511; see Paragraph 4 of § 125.101[2]; see also Paragraph 3 of § 125.104[1], Paragraph 2 of § 125.104[2], and Paragraph 2 of § 125.104[3]].

[4] Liaison Counsel

Either an assigned coordination motion judge or an assigned coordination trial judge may at any time appoint an attorney of record to an included or coordinated action to serve as representative of all parties on that side. Selection of the liaison counsel may be made by the assigned judge if the parties are unable to agree and the appointment of a liaison counsel by the coordination motion judge generally terminates with the final determination of the appropriateness of the actions for coordination [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.506; for discussion of duties, see § 125.110].

C. Coordination

12-125 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 125.104

§ 125.104 Determination of Appropriateness of Coordination--Complex Actions

OVERVIEW:

The judge assigned under Code Civ. Proc. § 404 to hear the coordination motion determines whether the actions are complex, and if so, whether coordination of the actions is appropriate based on the standards set forth by Code Civ. Proc. § 404.1 [see § 125.37[4]]. Counsel will already have considered these same criteria in submission of the coordination petition and in filing of an affidavit in support of a motion to commence coordination proceedings, if the proceeding was begun by motion [see § 125.101[1]; for forms, see §§ 126.160, 125.162]. These same standards [Code Civ. Proc. § 404.1] should be utilized by other parties wishing to submit petitions supporting or opposing coordination of actions.

[1] Supporting and Opposing Petitions by Other Parties

☐ Statement in support of petition. Any party to an included action that supports coordination may serve and submit a written statement in support of the petition. Any response in support must be served and filed at least nine court days before the date set for hearing. If a party that supports coordination does not support the particular site or sites requested by the petitioner for the hearing on the petition for coordination, that party may request that a different site or sites be selected and include in his or herresponse the facts relied on in support thereof [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.526; for form, see § 125.166].

☐ Notice of opposition to petition. Parties opposing the petition may serve, submit, and file a memorandum and declarations in opposition to the petition at least nine court days before the date set for hearing [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.525; for form, see § 125.167].

☐ Submission of notice or statement. After assignment of the judge under Code Civ. Proc. § 404, submit original of each notice of opposition or statement in support of a petition for coordination to the judge along with proof of prior service on each party to an included action [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule

3.510(a)]. Additionally, transmit a copy of every notice of opposition to the Chair of the Judicial Council [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.511].

☐ Address of assigned judge. Petitions should be submitted to the assigned motion judge at the address designated in the order of assignment [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.524(a)(2)].

[2] Hearing on Petition for Coordination

1. Circumstances in which hearing required. A hearing must be held to decide a petition for coordination if a party opposes coordination. A petition for coordination may not be denied unless a hearing has been held [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.527(b)].

2. Separate hearing on certain coordination issues. When a petition for coordination may be disposed of on the determination of a specified issue or issues, without a hearing on all issues raised by the petition and any opposition, the assigned judge may order that the specified issue or issues be heard and determined before a hearing on the remaining issues [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.528].

3. Notice of scheduled hearing. If the judge sets a hearing date on a petition for coordination, the petitioner must provide notice of the hearing to each party appearing in an included action. If the coordination motion judge determines that a party that should be served with notice of the petition for coordination has not been served with notice, the coordination motion judge must order the petitioner to promptly serve that party [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.527(a)]. The petitioner is required to submit a copy of the notice to the Chair of the Judicial Council at the Judicial Council's San Francisco office [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.511].

4. Service and submission of supporting papers. All memorandums and declarations in support of or opposition to any petition, motion, or application must be served and submitted at least nine court days before any hearing on the matter, unless otherwise provided in the California Rules of Court or otherwise directed by the assigned judge [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.513].

5. Evidence at hearing. All factual matters to be heard on any petition for coordination, or on any other petition, motion, or application under the rules in this chapter, must be initially presented and heard on declarations, answers to interrogatories or requests for admissions, depositions, or matters judicially noticed. Oral testimony will not be permitted at a hearing except as the assigned judge may permit to resolve factual issues shown by the declarations, responses to discovery, or matters judicially noticed to be in dispute. Only parties that have submitted a petition or motion, or a written response or opposition to a petition or motion, will be permitted to appear at the hearing, except the assigned judge may permit other parties to appear, on a showing of good cause [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.514].

[3] Granting or Denying Petition for Coordination

1. Severable claims or actions. A petition for coordination may be granted or denied as to any action included in the petition for coordination or of any severable claim in any included action with the original trial court continuing to exercise jurisdiction over any severable claim that has not been ordered coordinated [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.529(b)].

2. Service, filing, and submittal of order. When a petition for coordination is granted or denied, the petitioner must promptly file the order in each included action, serve it on each party appearing in an included action, and submit it to the Chair of the Judicial Council [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.529(a)].

3. Authority of coordination motion judge. After a petition for coordination has been granted and before a coordination trial judge has been assigned, the coordination motion judge may for good cause make any appropriate order as the ends of justice may require, but is without authority to commence a trial or enter judgment in any included action. Good cause includes a showing of an urgent need for judicial action to preserve the rights of a party pending assignment of a coordination trial judge [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.529(c); for general forms of notice of motion and order, see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders].

4. Termination of authority of motion judge. The authority of a coordination motion judge over an action terminates on the filing and service of an order denying a petition for coordination and any stay that was ordered terminates 10 days after the order denying coordination is filed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.529(d)].

5. Automatic stay of proceedings. The filing of an order granting a petition for coordination automatically stays all further proceedings in that action, except as otherwise directed by the coordination trial judge or by the coordination motion judge pursuant to Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.529(c) [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.592(b); see Paragraph [2] of § 125.107[1]]. The court in which such action is pending may, however, accept and file papers with proof of submission of a copy to the coordination trial judge and may continue to exercise jurisdiction over any severable claim that has not been coordinated [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.529(b)].

§ 125.105 Review of Coordination Orders--Complex Actions

If the judge assigned under Code Civ. Proc. § 404 determines that coordination is appropriate, he or she selects the reviewing court having appellate jurisdiction if the actions to be coordinated are within the jurisdiction of more than one reviewing court. The assigned judge is required to select the reviewing court which will promote the ends of justice as determined under the standards specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 404.1 [see § 125.37[4]; Code Civ. Proc. § 404.2].

1. When reviewing court must be specified. If the actions to be coordinated are within the jurisdiction of more than one reviewing court, the coordination motion judge must select and the order granting a petition for coordination must specify, in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. § 404.2, the court having appellate jurisdiction of the coordinated actions [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.505(a)].

2. Review by mandate. Review of orders is by mandate and a writ of mandate to the appropriate court must be made within 10 days after service on any party of a written notice of entry of an order in a coordination proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 404.6].

§ 125.106 Trial of Coordinated Actions--Complex Actions

[1] Assignment of Coordination Trial Judge

If the judge assigned under Code Civ. Proc. § 404 determines that coordination is appropriate, he or she orders the actions coordinated, reports that fact to the Chair of the Judicial Council, and the Chair then either assigns a coordination trial judge to hear and determine the actions in the site or sites the assigned judge finds appropriate or authorizes the presiding judge of a court to assign the matter to judicial officers of the court in the same manner as assignments are made in other civil cases [Code Civ. Proc. § 404.3]. The order by the chair further designates the court address to which all papers submitted to the coordination trial judge shall be sent, including proof of filing of all papers filed in the coordinated action [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.540(a)].

The petitioner must file the assignment order in each coordinated action and serve it on each party appearing in each action. Every paper filed in a coordinated action must be accompanied by proof of submission of a copy of the paper to the coordination trial judge at the designated address. A copy of the assignment order must be included in any subsequent service of process on any defendant in the action [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.540(c)].

[2] Disqualification of Assigned Judges

1. Motion or affidavit of prejudice. Submit any motion or affidavit of prejudice regarding an assigned judge in writing to the assigned judge within 20 days after service of the order assigning that judge to the coordination proceeding [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.516; see Citicorp North America, Inc. v. Superior Court (1989) 213 Cal. App. 3d 563, 565, 261 Cal. Rptr. 668 (if order of assignment was served by mail, 20-day period is extended under Code Civ. Proc. § 1013); see also § 125.73[3]].

2. Adversary positions for disqualification. All plaintiffs or similar parties in the included or coordinated actions constitute a side and all defendants or similar parties in the actions constitute a side for purposes of applying Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6 (disqualification of judges) [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.516; see Philip Morris, Inc. v. Superior Court (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 116, 124-126, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 671 (exercise of peremptory challenge in independent action that is later coordinated does not preclude peremptory challenge of coordination trial judge); Industrial Indemnity Co. v. Superior Court (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 259, 261, 262 Cal. Rptr. 544 (party precluded from moving to disqualify assigned judge if party's case is added to coordination proceeding beyond 20-day time period after service of order of assignment); see also § 125.73[3]].

[3] Preliminary Considerations

1. Mandatory preliminary trial conference. The pretrial conference is mandatory, preferably within 30 days of the assignment order, and counsel may at any time following the assignment of the coordination trial judge serve and submit a proposed agenda for the preliminary trial conference and a proposed form of order covering such matters of procedure and discovery as may be appropriate. Counsel should, moreover, be prepared to discuss any matters specified in the order setting the conference. A liaison counsel may be appointed at the pretrial conference [for matters considered at the conference, see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.541(a); see also § 125.103[4]].

2. Rules governing coordinated actions. Except as otherwise provided by the California Rules of Court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.501-3.550], all provisions of law applicable to civil actions generally apply to an actionn included in a coordination proceeding [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.504(d)]. The local rules of court of thedesignated court apply, except as otherwise specified by the assigned judge [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.504(c)].

[4] Transfer, Remand, and Termination of Actions

1. Transfer. The coordination trial judge may order any coordinated action or severable claim in that action transferred from the court in which it is pending to another court for a specified purpose or for all purposes. Transfer may be made by the court on its own motion or on the motion of any party to any coordinated action [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.543(a)]. If a party objects to the transfer, the court must hold a hearing on at least 10 days' written notice served on all parties to that action. At any hearing to determine whether an action or claim should be transferred, the court must consider the convenience of parties, witnesses, and counsel; the relative development of the actions and the work product of counsel; the efficient use of judicial facilities and resources; the calendar of the courts; and any other relevant matter [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.543(b)].

2. Remand. The coordination trial judge may at any time remand a coordinated action or any severable claim or issue in that action to the court in which the action was pending at the time the coordination of that action was ordered. Remand may be made on the stipulation of all parties or on the basis of evidence received at a hearing on the court's own motion or on the motion of any party to any coordinated action. No action or severable claim or issue in that action may be remanded over the objection of any party unless the evidence demonstrates a material change in the circumstances that are relevant to the criteria for coordination under Code of Civil Procedure section 404.1. If the order of remand requires that the action be transferred, the provisions of rule 3.543(b) are applicable to the transfer. A remanded action is no longer part of the coordination proceedings for purposes of Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.501-3.550.

3. Termination of coordinated actions. The coordination trial judge may terminate any coordinated action by settlement or final dismissal, summary judgment, or judgment, or may transfer a coordinated action so that it may be dismissed or otherwise terminated in the court in which it was pending when coordination was ordered. The judgment entered in each coordinated action bears the title and number that would be applicable to that action without regard to the coordination proceeding. Until the judgment in a coordination becomes final (no longer subject to review), all further trial court proceedings in that action must be determined by the coordination trial judge. Subsequently, all proceedings must be conducted in the court in which the action was pending prior to coordination [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.545].

4. Copies of orders to Chair of the Judicial Council. Counsel should note that every copy of an order remanding, transferring, or terminating a coordination proceeding in whole or in part must be transmitted to the Chair of the Judicial Council [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.511].

[5] Separate Trial of Issues

The coordination trial judge may order any issue or defense to be tried separately and before trial of the remaining issues when it appears that the disposition of any of the coordinated actions might thereby be expedited [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.541(b)(3)].

[6] Entry of Judgment or Order

A certified copy of any order dismissing or terminating the action and of any judgment must be transmitted to (1) the clerk of the court in which the action was pending when coordination was ordered, who must promptly enter any judgment and serve notice of entry of the judgment on all parties to the action, and (2) the appropriate clerks for filing in each pending coordinated action. The judgment entered in each coordinated action must bear the title and case number assigned to the action at the time it was filed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.545(c)]. A copy of the order must also be transmitted to the Chair of the Judicial Council [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.511].

12-125 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 125.107

§ 125.107 Stay of Action--Complex Actions

NOTE:

Any action included in the petition for coordination, and any action affecting an included action, if pending in a California court is subject to being stayed by the coordination motion judge's order [Code Civ. Proc. § 404.5; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.515].

[1] Automatic Stays

a. Automatic stay with assignment of motion judge. A court receiving an order assigning a coordination motion judge may not commence trial of an action included in the assignment nor enter judgment in any included action except that in the absence of a stay order the court may continue to exercise jurisdiction for purposes of pretrial proceedings as well as over any trial already commenced before assignment of the coordination motion judge [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.515(i)].

b. Automatic stay with order granting petition. Filing of an order granting a petition for coordination automatically stays all further proceedings in that action unless otherwise directed by the coordination trial judge or by the coordination motion judge under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.529(c) [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.529(b)].

[2] Discretionary Stay Orders

1. Stay orders prior to commencement of proceeding. To provide sufficient time for a party to submit a petition for coordination, the presiding judge may stay all related actions pending in that court for a reasonable time not to exceed 30 calendar days [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.520(b)(3); for forms, see §§ 125.168, 125.169].

2. Stay order pending ruling on petition. The coordination motion judge may stay any action being considered for coordination or any action affecting one being considered for coordination pending a determination of whether coordination is appropriate [Code Civ. Proc. § 404.5].

3. When application for stay order made. Motion for an order to stay proceedings in any action may be included with a petition for coordination or may be served and submitted by any party, along with all supporting documents (see Paragraph VII(B)(4), below) at any time prior to the determination of the petition [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.515(a); see § 125.107[2]; for form, see § 125.170].

4. Papers supporting stay order request. Support any application for an order to stay proceedings with a list of all known related cases pending in any California court and whether such actions should be included in the order, a memorandum, and affidavits establishing the necessity of a stay order. If the action to be stayed is not included in the petition for coordination or any response to that petition, the motion for a stay order and all supporting documents must be served on each party to the action to be stayed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.515(c); for form, see § 125.170].

5. Opposing application to stay proceedings. Any party may serve and submit opposition to the motion for a stay order [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.515(c)]. Any memorandums and declarations in opposition to a motion for a stay order must be served and submitted within 10 days after service of the motion [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.515(d)].

NOTE:

The judge making the determination of whether a stay order shall issue may, but is not required to, schedule a hearing. If a hearing is scheduled, prepare and serve notice of the same at the direction of the judge [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.515(a), (c)]. All memoranda and declarations in support of or opposition to any petition, motion, or application must be served and submitted at least nine court days before any hearing on the matter at issue [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.513].

[3] Standards to Determine Appropriateness of Stay Order

In ruling on an application for a stay order, the assigned judge determines whether the stay will promote the ends of justice, considering the imminence of any trial or other proceeding that might materially affect the status of the action to be stayed, and whether a final judgment in that action would have a res judicata or collateral estoppel effect with regard to any common issues of the included actions [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.515(f)].

[4] Submission of Stay Order

Copies of application for and orders granting stays shall be submitted to the Chairperson of the Judicial Council [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.511].

[5] Effect of Stay Order

A stay order suspends all proceedings in the action to which it applies, unless otherwise specified in the order, and may be limited by its terms to specified proceedings, orders, motions, or other phases of the action to which the order applies. The time during which a stay order is in effect will not be included in determining whether the action should be dismissed under Code Civ. Proc. § 583.110 et seq., either for delay in service when the stay affects service or for delay in bringing the action to trial [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 583.240(b), 583.340(b), 583.420(b); see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.515(h), (j)].

[6] Termination of Stay Orders

1. Termination with denial of petition. Filing and service of an order denying a petition for coordination automatically terminates any stay order that was granted 10 days after the order denying coordination is filed. [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.529].

2. Termination of ex parte orders. If a stay order is issued, the party that requested the stay must serve and file a copy of the order in each included action that is stayed. Thirty or more days following issuance of the stay order, any party that is subject to the stay order may move to terminate the stay [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.515(g)].

12-125 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 125.108

§ 125.108 Adding on to Coordinated Action--Complex Actions

NOTE:

Where an action that is pending shares a common question of law or fact with actions already coordinated pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 404, the presiding judge on the court's own motion or on the motion of any party may request that the assigned trial judge add that action to the already coordinated actions. The appropriateness of the action for coordination with the others is determined by the same standards as any other coordinated action [see Code Civ. Proc. § 404.1; see also § 125.37[4]] and the motion of any party to add on a case must be supported by an affidavit or declaration showing that the action meets the standards specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 404.1 [Code Civ. Proc. § 404.4].

[1] Petition to Add-On Case

Follow the same format in a petition for coordination of an add-on case as in an ordinary petition for coordination except submit the add-on petition to the coordination trial judge following the special caption prescribed for papers filed in ongoing coordination proceedings [for forms, see §§ 125.162, 125.165; see discussion of coordination petition in § 125.101[2]].

1. Submission of request. Submit add-on request and all supporting papers to the coordination trial judge with proof of filing in each coordinated and add-on case, proof of mailing of one copy of all required papers to the Chairperson of the Judicial Council, and proof of service on all parties in conformity with the Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.510 [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.544(a); see § 125.102].

2. Right to oppose petition. Advise parties served that any party may serve and submit a notice of opposition [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.544(b)].

[2] Opposition to Petition to Add On

Within 10 days after the service of a request, any party may serve and submit a notice of opposition to the request.

Thereafter, within 15 days after submitting a notice of opposition, the party must serve and submit a memorandum and declarations in opposition to the request. Failure to serve and submit a memorandum and declarations in opposition may be a ground for granting the request to coordinate an add-on case [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.544(b)].

NOTE:

A copy of the opposition should further be transmitted to the Chairperson of the Judicial Council [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.511].

[3] Hearing

Follow the rules governing the hearing of a regular coordination petition if the coordination trial judge determines that a hearing on the add-on petition is appropriate [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.544(c); see § 125.104[2]]. If a hearing is held, the judge may allow the parties to serve and submit additional written materials supporting or opposing the add-on request. At any such hearing, the court must consider the relative development of the actions and the work product of counsel, in addition to any other relevant matters [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.544(c)].

[4] Stay Order During Add-On Procedure

Counsel may apply to the coordination trial judge for an order staying the add-on case, otherwise following the procedure for stay orders generally [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.544(c); § 125.107].

[5] Order Granting or Denying Petition

If no party has filed a notice of opposition within the time required under Cal. Rules of Ct, Rule 3.544(b), the coordination trial judge may enter an order granting or denying the request without a hearing [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.544(d)].

Prepare, serve, and file in each coordinated action and the add-on case an order granting or denying a request to coordinate an add-on case. Counsel should note that the filing of any order granting an add-on case automatically stays all further proceedings in such add-on case [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.529(b), 3.544(d)]. A copy of any order must be transmitted to the Chair of the Judicial Council [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.511].

[6] Authority of Judge Over Add-On Case

The authority of the coordination motion judge over the add-on case terminates ten days after the order denying coordination is filed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.529(d), 3.544(c)].

The time within which any act is permitted or required to be done by a party may be shortened or extended by the assigned judge on such terms as may be just. Unless otherwise ordered, any motion or application for an extension of time to perform an act required by the California Rules of Court must be served and submitted in accordance with Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.501(17). A stipulation for the extension of time for the filing and service of documents required by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.501-3.550 requires approval of the assigned judge [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.503(b)].

§ 125.110 Definitions--Complex Actions

NOTE:

The terms defined below are used in the California Rules of Court governing coordination, unless the context or subject matter otherwise requires.

1. "Action" means any civil action or proceeding that is subject to coordination or that affects an action subject to coordination [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.501(1)].

2. "Assigned judge" means any judge assigned by the Chair of the Judicial Council or by a presiding judge authorized by the Chair of the Judicial Council to assign a judge under Code Civ. Proc. § 404 or 404.3, including a "coordination motion judge" and a "coordination trial judge" [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.501(3)].

3. "Included action" means any action or proceeding included in a petition for coordination [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.501(11)].

4. "Liaison counsel" means an attorney of record for a party to an included action or a coordinated action who has been appointedby an assigned judge to serve as representative of all parties on a side with the following powers and duties, as appropriate: (A) to receive on behalf all and promptly distribute to the parties for whom he or she acts, all notices and other documents from the court; (B) to act as spokesperson for the side that he or she represents at all proceedings set on notice before trial, subject to the right of each party to present individual or divergent positions; and (C) to call meetings of counsel for the purpose of proposing joint action [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.501(12)].

5. "Party" includes all parties to all included actions or coordinated actions, and the word "party," "petitioner," or any other designation of a party includes that party's attorney of record. When a notice or other paper is required to be given or served on a party, the notice or paper must be given to or served on the party's attorney of record, if any [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.501(13)].

6. "Petition for coordination" means any petition, motion, application, or request for coordination of actions submitted to the Chair of the Judicial Council or to a coordination trial judge under to Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.544 [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.501(14)].

7. "Serve and file" means that a paper filed in a court must be accompanied by proof of prior service of a copy of the paper on each party required to be served under the Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 1500-1550 [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.501(16)].

8. "Serve and submit" means that a paper to be submitted to an assigned judge under the Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.500-3.551 must be submitted to that judge at a designated court address. Every paper so submitted must be accompanied by proof of prior service on each party required to be served under the Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.500-3.550. If there is no assigned judge, or if the paper is of a type included in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.511(a), the paper must be submitted to the Chair of the Judicial Council [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.501(17)].

9. "Side" means all parties to an included or a coordinated action who have a common or substantially similar interest in the issues, as determined by the assigned judge for the purpose of appointing liaison counsel, or of allotting peremptory challenges in jury selection, or for any other appropriate purpose [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.501(18)].

[2] Use of Form

This form of stipulation in [1], above, is for use when counsel has stipulated that two actions be consolidated for all purposes [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 283, 1048(a)]. The stipulation sets forth the agreement to consolidation and any further matters which will clarify and join the issues of the two actions. The stipulation also is a joint application for an order of consolidation and requests the court to give certain directions as to the filing of papers in only one action.

[3] Copies

Duplicate originals of this stipulation should be filed in each of the actions to be consolidated. When the order is entered duplicate originals of it will also be filed in each action. Thereafter all papers may be filed in only one action if the court so directs [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.350]. For further procedures to be followed in stipulating to consolidation, see § 125.100[1].

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Use of Form

The form of notice of motion and motion in [1], above, is for use to obtain an order to consolidate two or more actions into one action [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1048(a)].

A memorandum is required to be served and filed with the motion [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a)]. For discussion and forms, see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities .

[3] Caption

The notice of motion must contain the caption of all the cases sought to be consolidated, with the lowest numbered case listed first [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.350(a)]. This form shows only two captions, and additional captions should be added as necessary.

[4] Contents of Notice

The notice states when the motion will be heard, the grounds on which it is based, and the papers on which it is based [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1010; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1112]. The notice also states that the actions are pending before the court, that they involve a common question of law or fact, and that consolidation will avoid unnecessary costs or delay [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1048(a)].

The notice of motion must list all named parties in each case, the names of those who have appeared, and the names of their respective attorneys of record [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.350(a)].

[5] Filing of Notice

Although a copy of the motion must be filed in each case sought to be consolidated, the motion is deemed a single motion for the purposes of determining the filing fee. A memorandum, declarations, and other supporting papers are to be filed only in the lowest numbered case [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.350(a)].

[6] Service of Notice

The motion must be served on all attorneys of record and all nonrepresented parties in all of the cases sought to be consolidated and a proof of service filed as part of the motion [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.350(a)].

I am _____ [identify declarant, e.g., an attorney at law duly admitted to practice before all the courts of California and the attorney of record herein for _____ (name of party or other statement as appropriate)].

[Here and in subsequent paragraphs set forth applicable facts in narrative form, e.g., Plaintiffs in both actions were riding in an automobile being driven by _____ (name) in _____ County, California on _____ (date), at which time it was involved in a collision with an automobile owned by _____ (name) and driven by _____ (name). Both actions arise out of this one automobile collision and the primary issue to be determined is the liability for the collision. The defendants in both actions are the same persons and consolidation of the actions would avoid delay since the same witnesses would be called to testify as to liability and this testimony would be repeated if the actions were tried separately.]

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

[2] Use of Form

The form of declaration in [1], above, is for use in support of a noticed motion to consolidate actions [for the form of motion, see § 125.122]. The form is a declaration under penalty of perjury [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5] and is used in lieu of an affidavit [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2009].

The form identifies the declarant and sets forth facts in support of the consolidation of the actions. The conclusions to be drawn from the facts and the argument in support of the motion should be set forth in the memorandum in support of the motion.

The declaration is filed only in the lowest numbered case sought to be consolidated [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.350(a)].

[2] Use of Form

The form of order in [1], above, is for use when the court grants a motion to consolidate two or more cases into one action [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1003, 1048(a)]. The order may be made after the stipulation of the parties to the consolidation [see § 125.121] or after a noticed motion [see § 125.122]. The order must use the words of the court and should include as many directions as to further procedure as will aid the court and counsel in further handling of the case.

The order must be filed in each case sought to be consolidated [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.350(c)].

[2] Use of Form

The form of stipulation in [1], above, is for use when counsel agrees that two or more actions may be consolidated for limited purposes. A common purpose is for the trial of one or more issues which are common to each of the actions. The stipulation should clarify, insofar as possible, the exact issues that are to be consolidated and may include a request for an order as to any procedures which may be necessary to implement the consolidation.

[2] Use of Form

The form of notice of motion in [1], above, is for use in obtaining an order to consolidate two or more actions for the purpose of trial of one or more issues. The notice states when, and the grounds on which, the motion will be made and the papers on which it is to be based [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1010]. The notice also states that the actions are pending before the court, that they involve a common question of law or fact, and that consolidation will avoid unnecessary costs or delay [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1048(a)]. The motion should also request any other orders which counsel anticipates will implement the order of consolidation.

A memorandum is required to be served and filed with the motion [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a)]. For discussion and forms, see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities .

[3] Copies

Duplicate originals of this notice and supporting documents should be filed in each of the actions affected by the motion [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.350(a)]. Since the order requested is for consolidation only for trial, duplicate originals of all further papers should be filed in each of the actions.

[2] Use of Form

The form of notice of motion in [1], above, is for use in obtaining an order severing causes of action or issues. The notice states when, and the grounds on which, the motion will be made and the papers on which it will be based [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1010]. The notice also identifies the particular causes of action or issue to be severed, and states that the grounds show that the severance will be conducive to expedition and economy and is in furtherance of convenience or to avoid prejudice [Code Civ. Proc. § 1048(b)].

A supporting memorandum is required to be served and filed with the motion [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a)]. For discussion and forms, see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities .

[3] Severance

The court, in furtherance of convenience or to avoid prejudice, or when separate trials will be conducive to expedition and economy, may order a separate trial of any cause of action, including a cause of action asserted in a cross complaint, or of any separate issue or of any number of causes of action or issues, preserving the right of trial by jury required by the United States Constitution or a statute of the state or of the United States [Code Civ. Proc. § 1048]. For a procedural checklist to be followed in moving to sever causes of action or issues, see § 125.90 et seq.

COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)	NO. _____
Plaintiff,	)	ORDER
vs.	)	Date: _____
_____ [name],	)	Time: _____
Defendant.	)	Judge: _____
	)	Date Action Filed: _____
	)	Trial Date: _____

The motion of _____ [name of moving party] for an order severing _____ [specify, e.g., plaintiff's first cause of action from plaintiff's second cause of action] came on regularly for hearing by the court this date. Plaintiff appeared by counsel _____ [name]; defendant appeared by counsel _____ [name].

Upon proof made to the satisfaction of the court that the motion ought to be granted,

IT IS ORDERED that _____ [specify, e.g., plaintiff's first cause of action be severed from plaintiff's second cause of action or the issue of the bar of the statute of limitations be severed from the remaining issues herein] and a separate trial of such _____ [causes of action or issues] be hereby ordered.
Dated: _____.

_____ [signature]
Judge of the _____ Court

[2] Use of Form

The form of order in [1], above, is for use when the court grants a motion to sever causes of action or issues in a pending case [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1003, 1048(b); for the related motion, see § 125.140]. The order should use the words of the court and should clearly identify the cause of action or issue which is severed. This form also provides for a separate trial of the causes of action or issues which are severed.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

_____ [date]
_____ [signature]

[2] Use of Form

The form of declaration in [1], above, is for use to support a motion to transfer an action or actions from another court for coordination with the action in which the motion is made [see Code Civ. Proc. § 403; for a form of notice of motion, see § 125.150].

[3] Contents of Declaration

The declaration state facts showing the following matters:

- The actions are not complex cases [see Code Civ. Proc. § 403; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.500(b), 3.501, 3.400 et seq.].

- The actions meet the standards specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 404.1 (Paragraph 6) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 403; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.500(b)].

- The moving party made a good faith effort to obtain agreement to the transfer and coordination from all parties involved (Paragraph 7) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 403; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.500(b)].

- The moving party has informed all parties of their obligation to disclose to the court any information they may have concerning any other motions requesting transfer of any case that might be affected by the motion before the court (Paragraph 8) [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.500(c)(3); see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.500(g) (failure to disclose as unlawful interference with the processes of the court)].

To grant the motion, the court will need to make findings that the transfer will promote the ends of justice, taking into consideration standards specified in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.500(d). For discussion of those factors, which counsel may wish to highlight in this declaration, see the Comments to § 125.152[3].

The declaration also identifies all parties and actions involved (Paragraphs 2, 3), as well as the existence of any other related action not subject to the motion, along with the reason why it is not being included (Paragraph 4).

[2] Use of Form

The form of order in [1], above, is for use where a motion to commence coordination proceedings is granted [see § 125.160]. An order to stay proceedings while coordination proceedings are commenced may also be included.

For discussion of law and motion practice, including general rules regarding orders, see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders .

[3] Signature of Presiding Judge

Normal motion practice according to applicable local court rules should be followed. In a court having two or more judges, if the motion is not ruled on by the presiding judge, the order should be countersigned by the presiding judge [see Code Civ. Proc. § 404].

[4] Submission, Service, and Filing of Petition and Supporting Papers

For discussion of submission, service, and filing of the petition for coordination and supporting papers, see § 125.102 and Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.522, 3.523.

[5] Order Granting Stay

To provide sufficient time for a party to submit a petition for coordination, the presiding judge may stay all related actions pending in that court for a reasonable time not to exceed 30 calendar days [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.520(b)(3)].

Petitioner hereby submits a request to the Chair of the Judicial Council for assignment of a judge to determine whether the above-entitled action and the included actions referred to herein are complex actions, and if so, whether coordination of the actions is appropriate.

The request is made on the grounds set forth in Section 404.1 of the Code of Civil Procedure, namely, that one judge hearing all of the actions for all purposes in a selected site or sites will promote the ends of justice taking into account whether the common question of fact or law is predominating and significant to the litigation; the convenience of parties, witnesses, and counsel; the relative development of the actions and the work product of counsel; the efficient utilization of judicial facilities and manpower; the calendar of the courts; the disadvantages of duplicative and inconsistent rulings, orders, or judgments; and the likelihood of settlement of the actions without further litigation should coordination be denied.

Declarations, a memorandum, and accompanying supporting papers set forth with more particularity the appropriateness of the actions for coordination.

Proof of filing in each included action of a notice of submission of petition for coordination and of a copy of this petition as required by Rule 3.522 of the California Rules of Court and proof of service on each party appearing in each included action of the notice of submission of petition for coordination and a copy of this petition as required by Rule 3.523 California Rules of Court is affixed to the original of this petition as Exhibit A.

WHEREFORE, petitioner prays that the actions herein referred to be coordinated pursuant to Sections 404-404.9 of the Code of Civil Procedure and Rules 3.501-3.550 of the California Rules of Court. Petitioner _____ [requests or does not request] that a hearing be held [at _____ (specify site(s))] to determine whether coordination is appropriate.

[2] Use of Form

The form of petition in [1], above, is for use by a party seeking coordination of complex actions [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 404, 404.1].

[3] Caption

The petition should bear a caption appropriate for the action in which the petitioner is a party. If there are several such actions, any of several appropriate captions may be used.

[4] Contents of Petition

The contents of the petition are specified in § 125.101[2].

[5] Supporting Papers

The petition must be accompanied by a supporting memorandum and declarations [Code Civ. Proc. § 404; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.521(a); see § 125.163].

[6] Submission of Petition

The petition should be submitted to the Chair of the Judicial Council, Administrative Office of the Courts, c/o Coordination Attorney, 455 Golden Gate Avenue, San Francisco, California 94102-3660 [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.511, 3.521].

[7] Proof of Service and Filing

For a discussion of the filing and service requirements and proof thereof which must accompany any petition, see § 125.102.

[8] Stay Orders

A request for an order staying proceedings may be submitted with a petition for coordination. For discussion of stay orders, see § 125.107, and §§ 125.161[5] and 125.170[2].

[2] Use of Form

The form of declaration under penalty of perjury in [1], above, is for use to accompany a coordination petition, in lieu of an accompanying affidavit [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5; for a form of petition, see § 125.162]. The declaration must set forth facts establishing that the actions are complex and the appropriateness of the action for coordination pursuant to the criteria enumerated in Code Civ. Proc. § 404.1 and Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.521 [see Code Civ. Proc. § 404]. In determining whether a case is complex within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 404, the court must consider Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.400 et seq. [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.502; for discussion, see § 125.35].

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)
vs.	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	NOTICE OF SUBMISSION OF PETITION FOR Defendant.	)	COORDINATION

To the clerk of the above-named court, to each party appearing in the above-named action, and to his/her attorney of record:

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that on _____ [date], a petition for coordination of certain actions, including this action, was submitted to the Chair of the Judicial Council pursuant to Sections 404-404.9 of the Code of Civil Procedure and Rules 3.501-3.550 of the California Rules of Court.

Any party to this action who intends to oppose the petition must serve and submit written opposition thereto at least 9 calendar days before the hearing date.

The following actions are included in the petition:

_____ [List included actions by title, case number, and title of the court in which each action is pending].

_____ [A copy of the petition for coordination is affixed to the original of this notice to be filed herewith in the above-named court or Copies of the petition and supporting documents are on file in this action and will be furnished to any party who, within five days after being served with a copy of this notice, sends a written request to counsel for petitioner].
Dated: _____.

_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Petitioner

[2] Use of Form

The form of notice in [1], above, is for use by the party seeking coordination. It is filed with the petition [see § 125.162] in each included action and served on all parties.

[3] Contents of Notice

[a] Caption

A notice of the petition for coordination must be filed in each included action. Thus, counsel will prepare two or more versions of the notice, each identical in text but bearing a caption appropriate for the action in which it will be filed [see § 125.102[1]].

[b] Date of Submission

The notice must give the date when the petition for coordination was submitted to the Chair of the Judicial Council [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.522].

[c] Petitioner's Counsel

The notice must give the name and address of the petitioner's attorney of record [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.522(a)(2)].

[d] Right to Oppose Petition

The notice is required to contain a statement of the other parties' rights to oppose the petition by serving and filing written opposition at least nine calendar days before the date set for hearing [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.522(a)(4); see § 125.102[1]].

[e] Included Actions

The notice must state "the title and case number of each included action to which the petitioner is a party" and the "title of the court in which each action is pending" [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.522(a)(3)]. Since the directive is somewhat ambiguous, the safest course is simply to list all included actions by case name, number, and court.

[4] Transmission of Notice of Submission

The notice should be submitted to the Chair of the Judicial Council, Administrative Office of the Courts, c/o

Coordination Attorney, 455 Golden Gate Avenue, San Francisco, Cal. 94102-3660, within five court days of submitting the petition for coordination.

[5] Proof of Service and Filing

For a discussion of the filing and service requirements and proof thereof which must accompany any notice of submission of petition, see § 125.102.

_____ [case title]	)	_____ [title of paper]
_____ [etc.]

[2] Use of Form

The form of caption in [1], above, should be used on papers submitted in coordination proceedings after assignment of a coordination motion judge or a coordination trial judge. A special case title and coordination proceeding number will be assigned by the Coordination Attorney in the Administrative Office of the Courts [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.550(b)]. This title and the file number will appear on the order of the Chair of the Judicial Council assigning a coordination motion judge, except that the court name in the foregoing form of caption is supplanted by "CHAIR, JUDICIAL COUNCIL OF CALIFORNIA, 455 Golden Gate Avenue, San Francisco, Cal. 94102" in all orders issued by the Chair of the Judicial Council.

[3] Elements

[a] Court Title

The court title is the title of the assigned judge's court, which is designated in the order of assignment [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.524(a)(2)].

[b] Special Title

The phrase "Coordination Proceeding Special Title (Rule 3.550(b))" is not required by the rules but is customarily included in the special title. That title will be a descriptive phrase; for example, if automobile collision cases are the subject of the petition, the title might be "MARKET STREET COLLISION CASES."

[c] Included Actions

Until the petition is granted, the included actions are listed under the heading "Included actions." If the petition is granted, the included actions will be listed under the heading "Coordinated actions," but it would not be improper to use the heading "Included actions" on all papers.

Case titles are given on the left, court names and file numbers are given opposite the case titles, on the right. When many actions are coordinated this will mean that the first page of each paper will contain nothing but the caption, which might, indeed, continue to the second page, so that the case titles and court names and file numbers can all be listed.

Case titles listed in the caption are abbreviated to the style of running heads in the official reports (such as Washington, et al. vs. Lincoln, et al., instead of a full case title).

[d] Title of Paper

The format outlined above makes it more convenient to put the title of the paper below the caption, centered, instead of to the right of the case title as in the practice in ordinary circumstances.

[e] Motion Papers

If the paper is subject to the civil law and motion rules, which apply to most motions [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.110, 3.1103], the first page of each paper must specify immediately below the case number the date, time, and location, if ascertainable, of the hearing, and the name of the hearing judge, if ascertainable, the nature or title of any attached document (other than an exhibit), the date of filing of the action, and the trial date, if set [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1110(b)].

The caption of a declaration or affidavit must state the declarant's or affiant's name and specify the motion or other proceeding it supports or opposes [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1115].

[2] Use of Form

A memorandum and declarations in support of a petition for coordination must be served and filed at least nine court days before the date set for hearing [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.526; for discussion, see § 125.104[1]].

[3] Transmission to Coordination Motion Judge

This statement in support of a petition for coordination must be transmitted to the coordination motion judge assigned under Code Civ. Proc. § 404 at the court address designated in the order assigning such judge [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule

3.524(a)(2)].

[4] Service

[a] Parties to Be Served

Each party to an included action must be served as provided in civil actions generally [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1011-1013].

[b] Proof of Service

This statement must be transmitted to the coordination motion judge accompanied by proof of service on each party to an included action [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.501(17), 3.510; Code Civ. Proc. § 1013a (proof of service by mail)].

[c] Submission and Service of Supporting Papers

Unless otherwise provided in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.501-3.550 or directed by the assigned judge, all memorandums and declarations in support of or opposition to any petition, motion, or application must be served and submitted at least nine court days before any hearing on the matter at issue [*Cal. Opposition is hereby made to the petition for coordination by _____ [name of party], a party to the included action _____ [name of case] on the ground(s) that: _____ [specify some or all of the standards set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 404.1 as follows:]

Trial in _____ (name of case(s)) is imminent.

The actions are not pending in different courts.

One judge hearing all of the actions for all purposes in a selected site will not promote the ends of justice because:

1. The common question of fact or law is not predominating in that _____ (specify);

2. The convenience of parties, witnesses, and counsel will not be served;

3. The relative development of the actions and the work product of counsel makes coordination inappropriate;

4. Efficient utilization of judicial facilities and manpower will not be realized and the calendar of the courts will not be benefitted;

5. There is no disadvantage of duplicative and inconsistent rulings;

6. Settlement of the actions without further litigation is less likely if coordination is granted].

Grounds for the opposition to petition for coordination are based on the facts as evidenced by the affidavits, declarations, and other papers attached hereto, and as argued in the memorandum affixed hereto.

[2] Use of Form

The form of notice of motion in [1], above, is for use by a party who will seek coordination of actions, either directly or by motion, to obtain a stay of proceedings so that a coordination proceeding can be commenced. A stay of proceedings is especially recommended if any of the moving party's coparties refuses to join in submitting a petition for coordination and the coordination proceeding is commenced by motion [see §§ 125.101, 125.107[2]]. For a discussion of stay orders in general, see § 125.107.

For discussion of law and motion practice in general, see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders .

[3] Supporting Papers

The notice of motion must be accompanied by a supporting memorandum and affidavits (or declarations under penalty of perjury [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) establishing that a stay order is necessary and appropriate to effectuate the purposes of coordination [Code Civ. Proc. § 404].

A memorandum is required to be served and filed with the motion [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a); for discussion and general forms, see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities]. A supporting affidavit (or declaration under penalty of perjury [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) should accompany the notice of motion [see Code Civ. Proc. § 404].

[4] Notice

This motion should be made in the manner provided by law for civil actions in general [Code Civ. Proc. § 1010; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.520].

[5] Criteria for Stay Order

The criteria for issuance of a stay order to allow for commencement of coordination proceedings are the same as those for stay orders during other phases of coordination [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.515(f)].

The motion of _____ [name of moving party] for an order staying proceedings in this action for 30 days to permit commencement of a coordination proceeding came on regularly for hearing by the court this date. Plaintiff appeared by counsel _____ [name]; defendant appeared by counsel _____ [name].

Upon proof made to the satisfaction of the court,

The court finds that there are civil actions pending in different courts of this state, of which this action is one, sharing a common question; that the standards for coordination specified in Section 404.1 of the Code of Civil Procedure appear to be met; that coordination of actions may be sought pursuant to Sections 404-404.9 of the Code of Civil Procedure and Rules 3.501-3.550 of the California Rules of Court; that proceedings in this action should be stayed to permit commencement of a coordination proceeding; good cause appearing and therefor,

IT IS ORDERED that the motion by, and it hereby is, granted and that further proceedings in this action be stayed for 30 days from and after the date of entry of this order to permit the commencement of a coordination proceeding.
Dated: _____.

_____ [signature]
[Presiding] Judge of the Superior Court

[If not signed by presiding judge or sole judge, add:]

I concur.
_____ [signature]
..... Presiding Judge

[2] Use of Form

The form of order in [1], above, is for use where a motion for stay of proceedings to permit commencement of a coordination proceeding [see § 125.168] is granted.

For discussion of law and motion practice, including general rules regarding orders, see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders .

[3] Signature of Presiding Judge

Normal motion practice according to applicable local court rules should be followed. In a court having two or more judges, if the motion is not ruled on by the presiding judge, the order should be countersigned by the presiding judge [see Code Civ. Proc. § 404].

[4] Length of Stay

To provide sufficient time for a party to submit a petition for coordination, the presiding judge may, stay all related actions pending in that court for a reasonable time not to exceed 30 calendar days [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.520(b)(3)].

[2] Use of Form

The form of notice of motion in [1], above, may be used at any time prior to the granting or denial of a petition by any party to a coordination proceeding who wishes to have proceedings in an included action, or another action which affects an included action, stayed pending determination of the petition. Any such action may be stayed by the coordination motion judge, on proper application, if a stay order is necessary and appropriate to effectuate the purposes of coordination [Code Civ. Proc. § 404.5; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.515(a)].

In ruling on the motion, the judge must determine whether a stay will promote the ends of justice, considering the imminence of any trial or other proceeding that might materially affect the status of the action to be stayed, and whether a judgment in that action would have a res judicata or collateral estoppel effect with regard to any common issue in the included actions [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.515(f)].

For a discussion of stay orders in general, see § 125.107.

[3] Contents of Notice of Motion

A motion for a stay order must (1) list all known pending related cases; (2) state whether the stay order should extend to any such related case; and (3) be supported by a memorandum and by declarations establishing the facts relied on to show that a stay order is necessary and appropriate to effectuate the purposes of coordination [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.515(b)].

[4] Supporting Papers

The notice of motion must be accompanied by a supporting memorandum and affidavits (or declarations under penalty of perjury [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) establishing that a stay order is necessary and appropriate to effectuate the purposes of coordination [Code Civ. Proc. § 404].

A memorandum is required to be served and filed with the motion [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a); for discussion and general forms, see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities]. A supporting affidavit (or declaration under penalty of perjury [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) should accompany the notice of motion [see Code Civ. Proc. § 404].

[5] Notice

This motion should be made in the manner provided by law for civil actions generally [Code Civ. Proc. § 1010]. If the action to be stayed is not included in the petition for coordination or any response to that petition, the motion for a stay order and all supporting documents must be served on each party to the action to be stayed and any such party may serve and submit opposition to the motion for a stay order [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.515(c)].

[1] FORM Order Staying Proceedings to Allow Court to Determine Appropriateness of Actions for Coordination--Complex Action [Code Civ. Proc. § 404]

[Caption. See § 125.165]

The motion of _____ [name of moving party] for an order staying proceedings in this action to allow the court to determine the appropriateness of coordination of _____ [name of case] and _____ [name of case] came on regularly for hearing by the court this date. Plaintiff appeared by counsel _____ [name]; defendant appeared by counsel _____ [name].

Upon proof made to the satisfaction of the court,

The court finds that there are civil actions pending in different courts of this state, of which this action is one, sharing a common question; that the standards for coordination specified in Section 404.1 of the Code of Civil Procedure appear to be met; that coordination of actions pursuant to Sections 404-404.9 of the Code of Civil Procedure and Rules 3.501-3.550 of the California Rules of Court may be appropriate; and that proceedings in this action should be stayed pending a determination by the coordination motion judge of the appropriateness of the above actions for coordination.

IT IS ORDERED that the motion be, and it hereby is, granted and that further proceedings in these actions be stayed to permit a determination of the appropriateness of these actions for coordination.
Dated: _____.

_____ [signature]
Coordination Motion Judge

[2] Use of Form

The form of order in [1], above, is for use where a motion for a stay of proceedings to allow the court to determine the appropriateness of actions for coordination [see § 125.170] is granted.

§ 126.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter discusses and contains forms relating to actions for damages arising from civil wrongs perpetrated or committed pursuant to civil conspiracies. It includes both forms of complaints [see §§ 126.50 -126.53] and allegations [see §§ 126.54 -126.57] for use in actions against coconspirators as well as forms of affirmative defense for use by individual coconspirators [see §§ 126.58 -126.61]. It also includes a form of petition and supporting declaration for an order allowing a conspiracy action to be filed against an attorney and client [see § 126.62], and a form of demurrer based on a plaintiff's failure to obtain that order [see § 126.63].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

13-126 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 126.10

§ 126.10 Definition and Nature of Civil Conspiracy

[1] In General

A civil conspiracy is a combination of two or more persons to accomplish by concerted action a criminal or unlawful purpose or a lawful purpose by criminal or unlawful means [Parkinson Co. v. Building Trades Council (1908) 154 Cal. 581, 593, 98 P. 1027 ; Peskin v. Squires (1957) 156 Cal. App. 2d 240, 246, 319 P.2d 405] . Civil conspiracy in and of itself is not a tort. Thus, the labeling of an action as one for conspiracy to commit some tort is misleading since the cause of action for damages for conspiracy arises out of the commission of some wrongful act by one or more of the conspirators with damage resulting from it [Unruh v. Truck Ins. Exch. (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 616, 631, 102 Cal. Rptr. 815, 498 P.2d 1063] , superseded by statute on other grounds as stated in Hendy v. Losse (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 723, 731-732, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 543 . Accordingly, in such an action, it must be determined whether the pleaded facts show that something was done that, without the conspiracy, would give rise to a right of action [Tietz v. Los Angeles Unified Sch. Dist. (1965) 238 Cal. App. 2d 905, 913, 48 Cal. Rptr. 245 ; see also Harrell v. 20th Century Ins. Co. (9th Cir. 1991) 934 F.2d 203, 208 (civil conspiracy claim fails because underlying cause of action for fraud barred by statute of limitations)].

[2] Conspirators Liable as Joint Tortfeasors

The advantage gained in alleging a conspiracy is that the act of one during the conspiracy is the act of all if done in furtherance of the conspiracy [Mox Inc. v. Woods (1927) 202 Cal. 675, 678, 262 P. 302 ; see de De Vries v. Brumback (1960) 53 Cal. 2d 643, 2 Cal. Rptr. 764, 349 P.2d 532] . The liability of the defendants is thus joint and several [Lomita Land & Water Co. v. Robinson (1908) 154 Cal. 36, 46, 97 P. 10 ; Prince v. Harting (1960) 177 Cal. App. 2d 720, 728, 2 Cal. Rptr. 545 ; see also Kesmodel v. Rand (2004) 119 Cal. App. 4th 1128, 1143, 15 Cal. Rptr. 3d 118] . If the conspiracy is sufficiently pleaded, each participant in the conspiracy may be responsible as a joint tortfeasor for all damages ensuing from the underlying wrong, regardless of whether he or she was a direct actor or of the degree of his or her activity [Unruh v. Truck Ins. Exch. (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 616, 631, 102 Cal. Rptr. 815, 498 P.2d 1063 , superseded by statute on other grounds as stated in Hendy v. Losse (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 723, 731-732, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 543 ; Mox Inc. v. Woods (1927) 202 Cal. 675, 677-678, 262 P. 302 ; Bank of Cal. v. Pan Am. Tire Corp. (1982) 132 Cal. App. 3d 843, 847-848, 183 Cal. Rptr. 470] . Such liability may be imposed even if the defendant committed no overt act whatsoever and gained no benefit therefrom [Mox Inc. v. Woods (1927) 202 Cal. 675, 678,

[3] Basis of Liability

Generally, those jointly and severally liable for tortious activity arising out of a conspiracy or concerted action include all those who in pursuance of a common plan or design to commit a tortious act, actively take part in it, further it by cooperation or request, lend aid or encouragement to the wrongdoers, or ratify and adopt his or her acts done for their benefit [Cully v. Bianca (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 1172, 1176, 231 Cal. Rptr. 279 ; Orser v. George (1967) 252 Cal. App. 2d 660, 667, 60 Cal. Rptr. 708 ; see also Sindell v. Abbott Labs. (1980) 26 Cal. 3d 588, 604, 163 Cal. Rptr. 132, 607 P.2d 924] . It is not essential that there be an agreement, as may be implied in the word "conspiracy," but it is essential that each particular defendant charged with responsibility proceeded tortiously, that is, with intent to commit a tort, or with negligence [Orser v. George (1967) 252 Cal. App. 2d 660, 667, 60 Cal. Rptr. 708] . Thus, each defendant is a tortfeasor, acting or failing to act in such a way as to be a concurrent legal cause of the damage to the plaintiff [see Summers v. Tice (1948) 33 Cal. 2d 80, 84-85, 199 P.2d 1 ; Orser v. George (1967) 252 Cal. App. 2d 660, 666-668, 60 Cal. Rptr. 708 ; Restatement (Second) of Torts §§ 875, 876].

[4] Other Bases for Imposing Joint Liability

[a] Concurrent or Successive Tortfeasors

Joint and several liability based on the fact that several defendants are the legal cause of the damage to the plaintiff may also result from the fact that one defendant, although not acting in concert with another tortfeasor, was a concurrent or successive tortfeasor [see Witkin, Summary of California Law, vol. 5, Torts, § 49 (10th ed. 2005)]. For example, if the separate and distinct negligent acts of two persons are in substantially simultaneous operation and contribute to cause the injury, each is and both are the proximate cause, and the plaintiff may, except as noted below, recover in full from either of the parties or both [Kramer v. Gaddis (1976) 56 Cal. App. 3d 837, 843, 128 Cal. Rptr. 860] . Similarly, a defendant may be liable for all the plaintiff's injuries, although a third person committed a subsequent intervening negligent act that was also the proximate cause of the plaintiff's injuries, if the defendant at the time of his or her negligent conduct should have realized that the third person might so act [see Di Muro v. Masterson Trusafe Steel Scaffold Co. (1961) 193 Cal. App. 2d 784, 792-794, 14 Cal. Rptr. 551] .

However, in actions for personal injury, wrongful death, or property damage that are based on principles of comparative fault, cotortfeasors are liable only for their proportionate share of the injured party's noneconomic damages, such as pain and suffering [see Civ. Code § 1431.2(a)]. Joint liability does not apply in these situations. However, despite this limitation, joint and several liability for noneconomic damages is still the rule in a case of civil conspiracy, because liability in a case of conspiracy is not allocated based on comparative fault, but is premised on the concerted action of all tortfeasors acting as one in causing a single indivisible injury [Kesmodel v. Rand (2004) 119 Cal. App. 4th 1128, 1143, 15 Cal. Rptr. 3d 118] .

Concerted or conspiratorial action should also not be confused with situations in which two or more persons are participating negligently in the same conduct and the plaintiff is injured as a result of that conduct, but it is unclear which particular negligent act caused the injury. In such a case the participants are jointly and severally liable for the plaintiff's injuries. However, to speak of the action of the participants as being in concert strains that concept. The more reasonable basis for imposing such liability is that the defendants have placed the injured party in an unfair position of pointing to which defendant caused the harm. Because the defendants in such cases are ordinarily in a better position to offer evidence to determine which one caused the injury, the plaintiff satisfies his or her burden proving that one of the defendants must have caused the injury [see Summers v. Tice (1948) 33 Cal. 2d 80, 85-86, 199 P.2d 1] .

[b] Liability of Associations and Their Members

Liability of associations for the tortious conduct of one member normally must be based on a theory of concerted action.

Thus, although an unincorporated association is bound to use the same care as a natural person, mere membership does not make all members liable for unlawful acts of their members without their participation, knowledge, or approval [Orser v. George (1967) 252 Cal. App. 2d 660, 670, 671, 60 Cal. Rptr. 708] . Nevertheless, individual members of a group may be jointly and severally liable for the tortious activity of one member of the group if the particular member was entrusted with the activity even though the members neither authorized nor approved that the activity be done in a tortious manner [see Steuer v. Phelps (1974) 41 Cal. App. 3d 468, 472, 116 Cal. Rptr. 61] . In such a case it would seem liability is based on a joint venture theory under which the negligence of one joint venturer acting in connection with the joint venture is imputed to the other joint venturers on agency principles [see Leming v. Oilfields Trucking Co. (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 343, 350, 282 P.2d 23 ; Steuer v. Phelps (1974) 41 Cal. App. 3d 468, 472, 116 Cal. Rptr. 61 ; see also Bank of Cal. v. Connolly (1973) 36 Cal. App. 3d 350, 364, 111 Cal. Rptr. 468] .

[5] Criminal Conspiracy Distinguished

There is a clear distinction between criminal and civil conspiracy. The gist of the crime of conspiracy is the agreement to commit the unlawful act [see People v. Corica (1942) 55 Cal. App. 2d 130, 134-135, 130 P.2d 164] , while the gist of the tort is the damage resulting to the plaintiff froman overt act or acts done pursuant to the common design [de Vries v. Brumback (1960) 53 Cal. 2d 643, 2 Cal. Rptr. 764, 349 P.2d 532] .

13-126 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 126.11

§ 126.11 Elements of Cause of Action

[1] In General

The elements of an action for civil conspiracy are the formation and operation of the conspiracy and damage resulting to the plaintiff from an act or acts done in furtherance of the common design [Applied Equip. Corp. v. Litton Saudi Arabia Ltd. (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 503, 511, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 475, 869 P.2d 454 ; Saunders v. Superior Court (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th 832, 845-846, 33 Cal. Rptr. 2d 438] .

[2] Formation of Conspiracy

[a] Projected Joint Action Required

Generally, the formation of an alleged conspiracy depends on projected joint action [Wetherton v. Growers Farm Labor Ass'n (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 168, 176, 79 Cal. Rptr. 543] . The defendant must share a common purpose with another person, not merely suspect or have knowledge of the other person's private purpose [Harris v. Capitol Records Distrib. Corp. (1966) 64 Cal. 2d 454, 462, 50 Cal. Rptr. 539, 413 P.2d 139] . He or she must have united or cooperated with another in inflicting a wrong on the plaintiff [Mox Inc. v. Woods (1927) 202 Cal. 675, 677-678, 262 P. 302 ; Black v. Sullivan (1975) 48 Cal. App. 3d 557, 566, 122 Cal. Rptr. 119] . It is sufficient, however, if the plaintiff can show the defendant's knowing participation in a common plan or design to commit an act or acts constituting a civil wrong [Loeb v. Kimmerle (1932) 215 Cal. 143, 150-151, 9 P.2d 199 ; Black v. Sullivan (1975) 48 Cal. App. 3d 557, 566-567, 122 Cal. Rptr. 119] .

It is not necessary that a defendant join a conspiracy at the time of its inception to render him or her liable as a coconspirator. Everyone who joins and actively participates in an existing conspiracy with full knowledge of the prior acts of his or her coconspirators becomes a party to every act previously or subsequently done by any of the others in furtherance of the conspiracy [de Vries v. Brumback (1960) 53 Cal. 2d 643, 2 Cal. Rptr. 764, 349 P.2d 532 ; see Schick v. Lerner (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 1321, 1328, 238 Cal. Rptr. 902] .

The liability of a defendant as a conspirator is limited, nevertheless, to all those who, in pursuance of a common plan or design to commit a wrong, actively take part in it, further it by cooperation or request, lend aid or encouragement to the wrongdoer, or ratify and adopt his or her acts done for their benefit. Mere knowledge by one party of what the other is doing is not sufficient concert to make him or her liable for the acts of the other since one person ordinarily owes no duty to take affirmative steps to interfere with another's activities in the absence of some special relationship. Thus, in seeking to impose liability on coconspirators as joint tortfeasors, it is essential that each defendant charged with responsibility should have been proceeding tortiously, that is, with intent to commit a tort or with negligence, because one who innocently does an act that furthers the tortious purpose of another is not acting in concert with him or her [see Saunders v. Superior Court (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th 832, 846, 33 Cal. Rptr. 2d 438 ; Orser v. George (1967) 252 Cal. App. 2d 660, 667, 60 Cal. Rptr. 708] .

[b] Liability of Agents

A person who acts solely as an agent for a conspirator is liable for his or her participation in the conspiracy even if he or she is unacquainted with the details of the scheme [Revert v. Hesse (1920) 184 Cal. 295, 302-303, 193 P. 943 ; Wetherton v. Growers Farm Labor Ass'n (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 168, 177, 79 Cal. Rptr. 543] .

An agent or employee is not liable for conspiracy to cause his or her principal to violate a duty that is binding only on the principal, such as an insurer's statutory duty under Ins. Code § 790.03(h)(5) to attempt in good faith to make a prompt, fair, and equitable settlement of a claim in which liability has become reasonably clear [Doctors' Co. v. Superior Court (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 39, 48-49, 260 Cal. Rptr. 183, 775 P.2d 508 ; see also Gruenberg v. Aetna Ins. Co. (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 566, 576, 108 Cal. Rptr. 480, 510 P.2d 1032] .

[c] Agent's Immunity Rule

The agent's immunity rule provides that agents and employees of a corporation cannot conspire with their corporate principal or employer if they are acting in their official capacities on behalf of the corporation, and not acting either as individuals for their individual advantage or beyond the scope of their authority [Applied Equip. Corp. v. Litton Saudi Arabia Ltd. (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 503, 512, n.4, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 475, 869 P.2d 454 ; Black v. Bank of Am. (1994) 30 Cal. App. 4th 1, 4-6, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 725] . A corporation is a legal fiction that cannot act at all except through its employees and agents, whose acts are the acts of the corporation. A corporation cannot conspire with itself any more than a private individual can [Black v. Bank of Am. (1994) 30 Cal. App. 4th 1, 6, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 725] .

One possible exception to the agent's immunity rule holds corporate agents or employees liable for conspiring with the corporation, despite their acting on behalf of the corporation, if they owe a duty to the plaintiff independent of the corporation's duty [Applied Equip. Corp. v. Litton Saudi Arabia Ltd. (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 503, 511-514, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 475, 869 P.2d 454 ; see also Doctors' Co. v. Superior Court (1989) 49 Cal.3d 39, 48, 260 Cal. Rptr. 183, 775 P.2d 508 ; Younan v. Equifax Inc. (1980) 111 Cal. App. 3d 498, 516-517, 169 Cal. Rptr. 478] . However, at least one court of appeal decision has questioned the potential breadth of this exception, and held that it did not apply in a case involving an allegation of conspiracy between a corporation and its own employees [see Black v. Bank of Am. (1994) 30 Cal. App. 4th 1, 4-6, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 725 (distinguishing case from cases involving agents and employees outside corporate structure of principal)].

Another possible exception to the agent's immunity rule is that corporate officers and directors may become liable for the corporation's tortious conduct if they directly ordered, authorized, or participated in that tortious conduct, and this personal liability may rest on a conspiracy among the officers and directors to injure third parties through the corporation [Wyatt v. Union Mortgage Co. (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 773, 785, 157 Cal. Rptr. 392, 598 P.2d 45 ; Black v. Bank of Am. (1994) 30 Cal. App. 4th 1, 6, fn. 4, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 725] .

[3] Operation of Conspiracy

[a] Overt Acts Resulting in Damage to Plaintiff

The plaintiff in a cause of action for conspiracy must show not only the formation of the conspiracy [see § 126.11[2]], but also its operation, that is, an overt wrongful act or acts committed by one or more of the conspirators pursuant to the common design that resulted in damage to the plaintiff [Unruh v. Truck Ins. Exch. (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 616, 631, 102 Cal. Rptr. 815, 498 P.2d 1063 , superseded by statute on other grounds as stated in Hendy v. Losse (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 723, 731-732, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 543 ; De Vries v. Brumback (1960) 53 Cal. 2d 643, 2 Cal. Rptr. 764, 349 P.2d 532 ; Barney v. Aetna Cas. & Sur. Co. (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 966, 981, 230 Cal. Rptr. 215] . The plaintiff must show that something was done that, without the conspiracy, would give rise to a right of action [Tietz v. Los Angeles Unified Sch. Dist. (1965) 238 Cal. App. 2d 905, 913, 48 Cal. Rptr. 245] .

The act of one of the conspirators during a conspiracy is the act of all of them if done in furtherance thereof [Mox Inc. v. Woods (1927) 202 Cal. 675, 678, 262 P. 302 ; Prince v. Harting (1960) 177 Cal. App. 2d 720, 728, 2 Cal. Rptr. 545 ; see De Vries v. Brumback (1960) 53 Cal. 2d 643, 648, 2 Cal. Rptr. 764, 349 P.2d 532]. Thus, irrespective of whether a particular conspirator was a direct actor and regardless of the degree of his or her activity, each participant is responsible for the damage resulting from the act or acts committed in furtherance of the conspiracy [Unruh v. Truck Ins. Exch. (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 616, 631, 102 Cal. Rptr. 815, 498 P.2d 1063 , superseded by statute on other grounds as stated in Hendy v. Losse (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 723, 731-732, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 543 ; Mox Inc. v. Woods (1927) 202 Cal. 675, 677-678, 262 P. 302] even if he or she committed no overt act whatsoever and gained no benefit therefrom [Mox Inc. v. Woods (1927) 202 Cal. 675, 678, 262 P. 302 ; Wetherton v. Growers Farm Labor Ass'n (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 168, 176, 79 Cal. Rptr. 543] .

[b] Actions Not Sufficient for Conspiracy Liability

Because the operation of a conspiracy requires a wrongful overt act that would give rise to a right of action even without the existence of the conspiracy [see § 126.11[3][a]], no liability for conspiracy exists if the actor had a legal right to do the act complained of [see Agnew v. Parks (1959) 172 Cal. App. 2d 756, 762, 764, 765, 343 P.2d 118 (false testimony arising out of perjury, subornation of perjury, or concealment of evidence as not giving rise to civil action aside from defamation and malicious prosecution); see also Thompson v. California Fair Plan Assn. (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 760, 767, 270 Cal. Rptr. 590 (opposition to declaratory judgment action as absolutely privileged act and cannot serve as act sufficient to revive time-barred claim on conspiracy theory)]. Thus, if the actor in a conspiracy is exonerated from liability, there is no basis for holding any coconspirators liable [Vargas v. Giacosa (1953) 121 Cal. App. 2d 521, 525, 263 P.2d 840 , overruled on other grounds, Hardy v. Vial (1957) 48 Cal. 2d 577, 581, 311 P.2d 494 ; see also Richard B. LeVine, Inc. v. Higashi (2005) 131 Cal. App. 4th 566, 575, 579, 32 Cal. Rptr. 3d 244 (because direct actors were absolved from liability in earlier arbitration action, res judicata doctrine precluded holding alleged conspirator liable in subsequent lawsuit)].

A similar rule applies if the actor is legally incapable of committing the tort forming the basis for the alleged conspiracy because of a statutorily created or other immunity from suit [Applied Equip. Corp. v. Litton Saudi Arabia Ltd. (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 503, 513, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 475, 869 P.2d 454 ; see also Hardy v. Vial (1957) 48 Cal. 2d 577, 582-583, 311 P.2d 494 (agents of college were immune from liability for malicious prosecution because performing investigative duties and therefore could not be liable for conspiring with defendants not similarly immune)].

Thus, a party to a contract cannot be liable for conspiracy to interfere with the performance of the contract, because only strangers to a contract can be liable in tort for intentional interference with a contract's performance [Applied Equip. Corp. v. Litton Saudi Arabia Ltd. (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 503, 514, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 475, 869 P.2d 454 (rejecting Wise v. Southern Pac. Co. (1963) 223 Cal. App. 2d 50, 71-72, 35 Cal. Rptr. 652 , which permitted imposition of liability on party to contract for conspiracy to interfere with contract)]. Similarly, a third party who is not a fiduciary of the plaintiff cannot be liable for conspiring with the fiduciary to commit a breach of fiduciary duty [1-800- Contacts, Inc. v. Steinberg (2003) 107 Cal. App. 4th 568, 590, 132 Cal. Rptr. 2d 789 ; Everest Investors 8 v. Whitehall Real Estate Ltd. P'ship XI (2002) 100 Cal. App. 4th 1102, 1106-1108, 123 Cal. Rptr. 2d 297] . Finally, a person cannot be held liable for conspiracy to violate a statute when the statute does not place any duty on that person [see, e.g., Klistoff v. Superior Court (2007) 157 Cal. App. 4th 469, 479-480, 68 Cal. Rptr. 3d 704 (private parties could not be liable for conspiracy to violate provisions of Gov. Code § 1090, which only prohibits public officials from holding financial interests in public contracts)].

§ 126.12 Pleading Cause of Action

To state a cause of action for conspiracy the complaint must allege facts showing the formation and operation of a conspiracy and, as the cause of action is for the damage suffered and not the mere conspiracy, the complaint must state facts which show that a civil wrong was done resulting in damage [Orloff v. Metropolitan Trust Co. (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 484, 488, 110 P.2d 396 ; see Unruh v. Truck Ins. Exch. (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 616, 631, 102 Cal. Rptr. 815, 498 P.2d 1063 , superseded by statute on other grounds asstated in Hendy v. Losse (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 723, 731-732, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 543 ; Short v. Nevada Joint Union High Sch. Dist. (1985) 163 Cal. App. 3d 1087, 1101, 210 Cal. Rptr 297] . Because a cause of action based on civil conspiracy accrues on the date of the commission of the last overt act in pursuance of the conspiracy, a plaintiff must allege when the last overt act took place [Bedolla v. Logan & Frazer (1975) 52 Cal. App. 3d 118, 136-137, 125 Cal. Rptr. 59] .

A complaint against the party or parties who acted pursuant to a conspiracy need not contain a conspiracy allegation where the complaint alleges the commission of the wrongful act [see Unruh v. Truck Ins. Exch. (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 616, 631, 102 Cal. Rptr. 815, 498 P.2d 1063 , superseded by statute on other grounds as stated in Hendy v. Losse (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 723, 731-732, 1 Cal. Rptr. 243 ; Hege v. Worthington, Park & Worthington (1962) 209 Cal. App. 2d 670, 678, 26 Cal. Rptr. 132] . However, the advantage to the pleader in alleging a conspiracy is that such an allegation implicates all of those who participated in the common design and thus fastens liability on those who merely agreed to the plan to commit the wrong as well as on those who actually carried it out [Wise v. Southern Pac. Co. (1963) 223 Cal. App. 2d 50, 64, 35 Cal. Rptr. 652] .

It should be noted that although the pleaded facts must show that something was done which, without the conspiracy, would give rise to a cause of action, the information and operation of a conspiracy may be alleged in general terms. Thus, general allegations such as that the defendants "did agree together" [Farr v. Bramblett (1955) 132 Cal. App. 2d 36, 47, 281 P.2d 372] , disapproved on other grounds, Field Research Corp. v. Superior Court of San Francisco (1969) 71 Cal. 2d 110, 114, 77 Cal. Rptr. 243, 453 P.2d 747 or the ultimate fact that the defendants "conspired together" to commit specified wrongful acts [Greenwood v. Mooradian (1955) 137 Cal. App. 2d 532, 535-537, 290 P.2d 955] are sufficient to allege the conspiracy. The acts constituting the conspiracy, as distinguished from the acts done pursuant to the conspiracy and inflicting the wrong, need not be alleged [Greenwood v. Mooradian (1955) 137 Cal. App. 2d 532, 537-538, 290 P.2d 955] .

For discussion of the allegations that are essential to plead conspiracy, see § 126.50[3].

§ 126.13 Proof of Civil Conspiracy

[1] Inferences and Circumstantial Evidence

A plaintiff need not produce evidence showing that the defendants met and actually agreed to undertake the performance of the unlawful act [Black v. Sullivan (1975) 48 Cal. App. 3d 557, 567, 122 Cal. Rptr. 119] . Because of the inherent difficulty in proving a conspiracy, a conspiracy may sometimes be inferred from the nature of the acts done, the relations of the parties, the interests of the alleged conspirators, and other circumstances [Chicago Title Ins. Co. v. Great W. Fin. Corp. (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 305, 316, 70 Cal. Rptr. 849, 444 P.2d 481 ; Black v. Sullivan (1975) 48 Cal. App. 3d 557, 566-567, 122 Cal. Rptr. 119] . Thus, for example, a civil conspiracy can be inferred from evidence showing a course of conduct on the part of the defendants that teems with fraudulent representations and is replete with intrigue, deception, and duplicity [see Anderson v. Thacher (1946) 76 Cal. App. 2d 50, 73, 172 P.2d 533] . It can also be inferred from circumstantial evidence of dealings between the defendants [see Rogers v. Grua (1963) 215 Cal. App. 2d 1, 9, 30 Cal. Rptr. 39] and from statements made by one who claimed merely to be an advisor rather than a conspirator from which it could be inferred that he or she had joined in the wrongful project [see Wetherton v. Growers Farm Labor Ass'n (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 168, 176-177, 79 Cal. Rptr. 543] .

In a suit based on allegations that real estate brokers, a realty board, and the seller of property had conspired to discriminate against prospective buyers on the basis of their race in violation of statute [Civ. Code §§ 51, 52], the conspiracy could be shown by such circumstantial evidence as the strange manner by which the plaintiffs' offer to purchase was handled by the defendants. The record as a whole supported the inference that the treatment accorded to the plaintiffs was a part of some kind of group plan or understanding, and, considering the relationship between the brokers and the realty board, it could be concluded the realty board was the instrumentality through which the discrimination was promoted [Wagner v. O'Bannon (1969) 274 Cal. App. 2d 121, 132, 79 Cal. Rptr. 44] .

On the other hand, when there is no evidence of any civil wrong or unlawful act committed by the defendants sufficient to sustain allegations of conspiracy against them, the court may exclude evidence that merely tends to show that the defendants were affiliated [Peterson v. Corporation of Am. (1937) 21 Cal. App. 2d 527, 532, 69 P.2d 904] .

[2] Hearsay Rule

Evidence of a statement offered against a party to a civil conspiracy is not inadmissible under the hearsay rule if: (1) the statement was made by the declarant while participating in the conspiracy and in furtherance thereof; (2) the statement was made prior to or during the time that the party was participating in the conspiracy; and (3) the evidence is offered either after admission of evidence sufficient to sustain a finding of the facts specified in (1) or (2), or, in the court's discretion as to the order of proof, subject to the admission of such evidence [Evid. Code § 1223].

Chapter 126 CONSPIRACY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

13-126 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 126.14

§ 126.14 Attorney-Client Conspiracy

[1] Tortious Acts

Under certain circumstances, attorneys may be held liable for participation in tortious acts with their clients, such as when the attorney has conspired with the principal for the attorney's independent advantage or to violate the attorney's own duty toward the plaintiff. The attorney may not be held liable, however, for conspiracy to cause a principal to violate a duty that is binding on the principal alone [see Doctors' Co. v. Superior Court (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 39, 46-48, 260 Cal. Rptr. 183, 775 P.2d 508 ; see also § 126.11[2][b]].

[2] Attempt to Contest or Compromise Dispute

[a] Prefiling Order Requirement

No cause of action against an attorney for a civil conspiracy with his or her client arising from any attempt to contest or compromise a claim or dispute, and which isbased on the attorney's representation of the client, may be included in a complaint or other pleading unless the court enters an order allowing the pleading to be filed [Civ. Code § 1714.10(a)]. The filing of the petition for the order, the proposed pleading, and the requisite supporting affidavits (or declarations under penalty of perjury under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5), tolls the running of the statute of limitations [Civ. Code § 1714.10(a); see § 126.62[5]]. The failure to obtain the order is a defense to an action [Civ. Code § 1714.10(b); see § 126.14[2][e]]. Any proceeding under Civ. Code § 1714.10 is a special proceeding of a civil nature. Any order made under Civ. Code § 1714.10 determining the rights of a petitioner or an attorney against whom a pleading has been or is proposed to be filed is appealable as a final judgment in a civil action [Civ. Code § 1714.10(d); see also Civ. Code § 1714.10(e) (appealability provisions as declaratory of, and not constituting change in, existing law)].

The denomination of a cause of action as something other than conspiracy does not necessarily remove the case from the application of Civ. Code § 1714.10 [see Hung v. Wang (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 908, 929-930, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 113 ("concert of action" allegations were virtually identical to conspiracy cause of action in prior proceeding)]. Furthermore, it appears that a case may be governed by the statute even if the proposed cause of action does not include all the elements required to state a common-law conspiracy cause of action [see Howard v. Superior Court (1992) 2 Cal. App. 4th 745, 749, 3 Cal. Rptr. 2d 575 ("aiding and abetting" cause of action is governed by § 1714.10 despite absence of conspiracy element that defendant agree to join in wrongful conduct; decided under pre-1991 version of statute)].

[b] "Reasonable Probability" Showing

A court may allow a pleading alleging a cause of action for an attorney-client conspiracy, based on the attorney's attempt to contest or compromise a claim or dispute, only after it determines that the party seeking to file the pleading has established that there is a reasonable probability that the party will prevail in the action [Civ. Code § 1714.10(a)]. "Reasonable probability" of prevailing, under Civ. Code § 1714.10, means that there is a substantial potential for success. The literal meaning of this phrase in the context of the section is that the petition must be granted if the proposed pleading is legally sufficient and the evidentiary showing to support it makes out a prima facie showing. The petitioner is not required to establish that a particular outcome is more likely than not to occur. Rather, the party must show that he or she has a case that will survive a motion for nonsuit and, if successful, will be supported by sufficient evidence to warrant affirmance on appeal [Burtscher v. Burtscher (1994) 26 Cal. App. 4th 720, 725-726, 31 Cal. Rptr. 2d 682 ; Hung v. Wang (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 908, 929-930, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 113 (decided under pre-1991 version of statute)].

[c] Exceptions to Requirement

[i] Independent Duty to Plaintiff

The prefiling order requirement of Civ. Code § 1714.10 does not apply to a cause of action against an attorney for a civil conspiracy with his or her client, if the attorney has an independent legal duty to the plaintiff [Civ. Code § 1714.10(c); see, e.g., Shafer v. Berger, Kahn, Shafton, Moss, Figler, Simon & Gladstone (2003) 107 Cal. App. 4th 54, 84, 131 Cal. Rptr. 2d 777 (attorney for insurance company had independent legal duty to provide policy claimants with truthful information about policy coverage)]. In interpreting this exception, one court of appeal opinion held that the attorney for an assignee for the benefit of creditors does not owe an independent duty to the creditors or to any one of them individually [Berg & Berg Enters. v. Sherwood Partners, Inc. (2005) 131 Cal. App. 4th 802, 828-833, 32 Cal. Rptr. 3d 325] . Another court opinion rejected claims that attorneys representing a landowner owed any actionable independent duty to the landowner's commercial tenants when communicating with the commercial tenants about their possible lease violations in furtherance of their client's interests [Panoutsopoulos v. Chambliss (2007) 157 Cal. App. 4th 297, 306-308, 68 Cal. Rptr. 3d 647].

[ii] Conspiracy to Violate Legal Duty

The prefiling order requirement of Civ. Code § 1714.10 does not apply to a cause of action against an attorney for a civil conspiracy with his or her client, if the attorney's acts go beyond the performance of a professional duty to serve the client and involve a conspiracy to violate a legal duty in furtherance of the attorney's financial gain [Civ. Code § 1714.10(c)].

For these purposes, the phrase "in furtherance of the attorney's financial gain" requires that the attorney derive economic advantage over and above the monetary compensation received in exchange for professional services actually rendered on behalf of the client, regardless of whether the attorney fees charged are alleged to have been excessive [Panoutsopoulos v. Chambliss (2007) 157 Cal. App. 4th 297, 306, 68 Cal. Rptr. 3d 647 ; Berg & Berg Enters. v. Sherwood Partners, Inc. (2005) 131 Cal. App. 4th 802, 835-836, 32 Cal. Rptr. 3d 325] .

[iii] Malicious Prosecution Action

Civ. Code § 1714.10 does not apply to a malicious prosecution action against an attorney who allegedly prosecuted an action that any reasonableattorney would have recognized as untenable and allegedly did so without probable cause and adequate investigation. A wholly independent malicious prosecution action may be brought against an attorney for his or her wrongful conduct in bringing the untenable action without pleading a civil conspiracy, even if the attorney's client is also sued for malicious prosecution [Westamco Inv. Co. v. Lee (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 481, 487-488, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 634] .

If the operative pleading contains a conspiracy claim in addition to a malicious prosecution claim, but the plaintiff has failed to obtain judicial authorization in compliance with Civ. Code § 1714.10, only the conspiracy claim is subject to dismissal under that statute, and the malicious prosecution claim may still be prosecuted [Alden v. Hindin (2003) 110 Cal. App. 4th 1502, 1507-1508, 2 Cal. Rptr. 3d 845] .

For discussion of the malicious prosecution cause of action generally, see Ch. 357, Malicious Prosecution and Abuse of Process .

[iv] Potential Effect of Exceptions on Pleading Requirement Generally

Although the discussion was arguably dicta, one court of appeal opinion has concluded that the statutory exceptions described in §§ 126.14[2][c][i] and 126.14[2][c][ii] appear to effectively exclude from the scope of the pleading requirement all viable conspiracy claims against an attorney [Pavicich v. Santucci (2000) 85 Cal. App. 4th 382, 394-396, 102 Cal. Rptr. 2d 125] . That court opinion noted that although the language and history of Civ. Code § 1714.10(a) suggest that its pleading requirement was intended to apply to conspiracy claims stemming from an attorney's representation of his or her client, under the agent's immunity rule discussed in § 126.11[2][c], an agent is not liable for conspiring with the principal if the agent is acting in an official capacity on behalf of the principal. Thus, the court of appeal concluded that an attorney could only be liable for conspiring with the client if the attorney owed an independent legal duty to the plaintiff or if the attorney's actionable conduct went beyond the scope of his or her duties to the client. Under the statutory exceptions listed above, however, these situations are precisely the situations in which the pleading requirement does not apply [Pavicich v. Santucci (2000) 85 Cal. App. 4th 382, 394-396, 102 Cal. Rptr. 2d 125] .

However, the court of appeal in Pavicich failed to recognize that the agent's immunity rule has only been applied to agents of corporations and has not generally been extended to all agents acting on behalf of a principal [see § 126.11[2][c]].

[d] Procedure to Obtain Order

[i] Petition and Proposed Pleadings

The court may allow the filing of a pleading that claims liability based on a civil conspiracy, but only following the filing of a verified petition therefor accompanied by the proposed pleading and supporting affidavits (or declarations under penalty of perjury [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) stating the facts on which the liability is based [Civ. Code § 1714.10(a)]. For a form of petition and supporting declaration, see § 126.62[1].

One court has held that failure to file a verified petition would not prevent a party from filing a pleading claiming liability based on an attorney's civil conspiracy. The court held that the requirement was satisfied because the party, who was moving for leave to amend a complaint to add the civil conspiracy allegations, had verified the complaint and amended complaint, and had filed declarations under penalty of perjury in support of the motion. These items were sufficient because they have the same effect as a verified petition: they tend to discourage frivolous allegations by requiring claimants to make their assertions under oath [Burtscher v. Burtscher (1994) 26 Cal. App. 4th 720, 727, 31 Cal. Rptr. 2d 682] .

The court is required to order service of the petition on the party against whom the action is proposed to be filed [Civ. Code § 1714.10(a)].

[ii] Submission of Opposing Affidavits

The court is required to permit the party against whom the action is proposed to be filed to submit opposing affidavits (or declarations under penalty of perjury under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) before making its determination [Civ. Code § 1714.10(a)].

[iii] Filing of Proposed Pleading

If the final determination of the matter is favorable to the petitioning party, the court must permit the proposed pleading to be filed [Civ. Code § 1714.10(a)].

[e] Failure to Obtain Order Is Defense to Action

The failure to obtain an order required under Civ. Code § 1714.10(a) is a defense to any action for civil conspiracy filed in violation of that provision. The defense must be raised by the party charged with the civil conspiracy on that party's first appearance by demurrer, motion to strike, or other motion or application as may be appropriate. The failure to raise the defense in a timely manner constitutes a waiver of the defense [Civ. Code § 1714.10(b)]. For a form of demurrer to a complaint against an attorney based on an attorney-client conspiracy, see § 126.63[1].

If a single conspiracy cause of action is brought against both an attorney and the attorney's law firm, the entire cause of action is subject to the defense of failure to meet the prefiling requirements of Section 1714.10 even if one of the exceptions of Civ. Code § 1714.10(c) applies to the conspiracy action as brought against the individual attorney [Evans v. Pillsbury, Madison & Sutro (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 599, 607, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 679 (entire conspiracy cause of action brought against law firm and individual attorney stricken because plaintiffs failed to comply with prefiling requirements, despite apparent application of one exception to action against attorney); see Civ. Code § 1714.10(a); see also § 126.14[2][c]].

In appropriate circumstances, a trial court may permit amendment of the complaint after sustaining a demurrer based on failure to comply with Civ. Code § 1714.10 [Central Concrete Supply Co., Inc. v. Bursak (2010) 182 Cal. App. 4th 1092, 1103, 105 Cal. Rptr. 3d 909] . For example, amendment might be allowed when the plaintiff appears able to allege that the attorney was not providing legal representation at the time of the alleged conspiratorial conduct, as well as when plaintiff appears able to allege that the attorney's acts went beyond the performance of a professional duty to serve the client and involved a conspiracy to violate a legal duty in furtherance of the attorney's financial gain [Central Concrete Supply Co., Inc. v. Bursak (2010) 182 Cal. App. 4th 1092, 1103, 105 Cal. Rptr. 3d 909 ; see [a], [c][ii], above]. Thus, as a practical matter, a plaintiff who did not seek a pre-filing order, but who has a compelling argument that the pre-filing order requirement does not apply, should be allowed to amend his or her complaint to specifically allege the facts supporting that conclusion if he or she failed to do so in the original complaint.

If a petition to obtain an order under Civ. Code § 1714.10 is denied on the merits, rather than on technical grounds, the denial is res judicata as to any later action [see Castro v. Higaki (1994) 31 Cal. App. 4th 350, 358-359, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 84 (petition denied for failure to show any theory of liability under which petitioner could prevail)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

13-126 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 126.15

§ 126.15 Statute of Limitations

[1] Determined by Nature of Underlying Wrong

There is no cause of action for conspiracy in and of itself; therefore, the applicable statute of limitations in an action against conspirators is determined by the nature of the underlying civil wrong the complaint alleges the defendants conspired to perpetrate [McFaddin v. H.S. Crocker Co. (1963) 219 Cal. App. 2d 585, 591, 33 Cal. Rptr. 389 ; Agnew v. Parks (1959) 172 Cal. App. 2d 756, 765-766, 343 P.2d 118] .

Thus, an action for damages for conspiracy to defraud is governed by a three-year statute of limitations [Code Civ. Proc. § 338(d)], whereas a whereas a conspiracy to commit assault or battery, or to cause injury to or death of an individual by the wrongful act or neglect of another is subject to a two-year (one-year, prior to January 1, 2003) limitations period [Code Civ. Proc. § 335.1; see former Code Civ. Proc. § 340(3); see generally Ch. 345, Limitation of Actions, § 345.14], and a conspiracy to violate a personal right described in Code Civ. Proc. § 340(c) is subject to a one-year limitation period [see Code Civ. Proc. § 340(c); Agnew v. Parks (1959) 172 Cal. App. 2d 756, 765, 343 P.2d 118 (conspiracy to obstruct prosecution of civil action); Schessler v. Keck (1954) 125 Cal. App. 2d 827, 832, 271 P.2d 588 (defamation)].

An action for damages for conspiracy to induce a breach of contract is governed by a two-year statute of limitations, Code Civ. Proc. § 339(1) [Kenworthy v. Brown (1967) 248 Cal. App. 2d 298, 301, 56 Cal. Rptr. 461] , as is a cause of action for damages for conspiracy alleging tortious interference with the plaintiff's business [McFaddin v. H.S. Crocker Co. (1963) 219 Cal. App. 2d 585, 591, 33 Cal. Rptr. 389] . A cause of action for civil conspiracy based on fraud is governed by the three-year statute of limitations set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 338(d) [Snow v. A.H. Robins Co. (1985)165 Cal. App. 3d 120, 134, 211 Cal. Rptr. 271] . Generally, an action for damages for conspiracy based on fraudulent conveyance is subject to a four-year statute of limitations if the transfer was made or the obligation incurred on or after January 1, 1987, or subject to a three-year statute of limitations if the transfer was made or the obligation incurred prior to that date [see Civ. Code §§ 3439.09, 3439.12 (also providing exceptions and limitations); see also Filmservice Labs., Inc. v. Harvey Bernhard Enters., Inc. (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 1297, 1309, 256 Cal. Rptr. 735] .

[2] When Statutory Period Begins and Stops Running

Generally, a cause of action based on civil conspiracy accrues on the date of the commission of the last overt act in pursuance of the conspiracy [Wyatt v. Union Mortgage Co. (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 773, 786, 157 Cal. Rptr. 392, 598 P.2d 45 ; Livett v. F.C. Financial Associates (1981) 124 Cal. App. 3d 413, 418, 177 Cal. Rptr. 411 ; Kenworthy v. Brown (1967) 248 Cal. App. 2d 298, 301, 56 Cal. Rptr. 461] . Therefore, it is imperative that the complaint in an action for damages based on conspiracy to commit an actionable wrong allege when the last overt act in the commission of that wrong actually occurred [Maheu v. CBS, Inc. (1988) 201 Cal. App. 3d 662, 673-674, 247 Cal. Rptr. 304 ; Bedolla v. Logan & Frazer (1975) 52 Cal. App. 3d 118, 136-137, 125 Cal. Rptr. 59] .

An exception to this rule applies in conspiracy-to-defraud cases in which it is alleged that the fraud was not discovered until less than three years before the complaint was filed. In such cases, Code Civ. Proc. § 338(d) directs that the action may be timely despite the fact that the last overt act is more than three years old. If the plaintiff relies on the delayed discovery doctrine rather than on the last overt act doctrine, facts alleged in the complaint that support a tolling of the limitation period due to the plaintiff's delayed discovery, rather than allegation of the date of the last overt act, establish the timeliness of the action [see Aaroe v. First Am. Title Ins. Co. (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 124, 128-129, 271 Cal. Rptr. 434 ; see also Casualty Ins. Co. v. Rees Inv. Co. (1971) 14 Cal. App. 3d 716, 720, 92 Cal. Rptr. 857 (discussing pleading requirements for delayed discovery rule)]. For discussion of the essential facts that a plaintiff must plead and prove under the delayed discovery rule, see Ch. 269, Fraud and Deceit .

The filing of a petition, proposed pleading, and accompanying affidavits in pursuit of an order under Civ. Code § 1714.10 [see § 126.14[1]] tolls the running of any applicable statute of limitations until the final determination of the matter [Civ. Code § 1714.10(a)].

§ 126.16 Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organizations Act

In addition to bringing a cause of action alleging conspiracy, a plaintiff's counsel may also wish to consider whether the facts of the case give rise to a civil action under the federal Racketeer Influenced and CorruptOrganizations Act (RICO) (18 U.S.C.S. § 1961 et seq.). RICO authorizes recovery of treble damages and costs of suit, including a reasonable attorney's fee [18 U.S.C.S. § 1964(c); see Douglas v. Superior Court (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 155, 159, 263 Cal. Rptr. 473 (RICO cause of action sufficiently pleaded); see also Ch. 565, Unfair Competition]. In addition to violations of RICO provisions, a conspiracy to violate RICO is itself actionable [see 18 U.S.C.S. §§ 1962(d), 1964(c)].

13-126 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 126.33

§ 126.33 Decisions

[1] Actions Required

Cause of action for damages based on conspiracy arises out of some wrongful act committed by one or more conspirators. Unruh v. Truck Ins. Exch. (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 616, 631, 102 Cal. Rptr. 815, 498 P.2d 1063 , superseded by statute on other grounds as stated in Hendy v. Losse (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 723, 731-732, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 543 ; Short v. Nevada Joint Union High Sch. Dist. (1985) 163 Cal. App. 3d 1087, 1101, 210 Cal. Rptr. 297

Civil conspiracy does not per se give rise to cause of action unless civil wrong has been committed and that wrong results in damage. Unruh v. Truck Ins. Exch. (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 616, 631, 102 Cal. Rptr. 815, 498 P.2d 1063 , superseded by statute on other grounds as stated in Hendy v. Losse (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 723, 731-732, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 543 ; Mox Inc. v. Woods (1927) 202 Cal. 675, 677-678, 262 P. 302

Each participant in wrongful act in pursuance of conspiracy is jointly responsible irrespective of whether participant was direct actor and regardless of degree of his or her activity. Unruh v. Truck Ins. Exch. (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 616, 631, 102 Cal. Rptr. 815, 498 P.2d 1063 , superseded by statute on other grounds as stated in Hendy v. Losse (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 723, 731-732, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 543 ; Mox Inc. v. Woods (1927) 202 Cal. 675, 677-678, 262 P. 302

One who joins and actively participates in continuing conspiracy to convert stolen property with full knowledge of prior criminal acts of coconspirators is civilly liable as joint tortfeasor for prior acts of coconspirators. de De Vries v. Brumback (1960) 53 Cal. 2d 643, 648-650, 2 Cal. Rptr. 764, 349 P.2d 532

Acts alleged to have been perpetrated required to be wrongful, but not required to be criminal or in violation of statute. Rogers v. Grua (1963) 215 Cal. App. 2d 1, 7, 30 Cal. Rptr. 39

Civil liability for conspiracy to commit tort exists if there is conspiracy to accomplish by concerted action criminal or unlawful purpose or lawful purpose by criminal or unlawful means resulting in actual damage. Taylor v. S & M Lamp Co. (1961) 190 Cal. App. 2d 700, 706, 12 Cal. Rptr. 323

Act of one conspirator is act of all if done in furtherance of conspiracy. Prince v. Harting (1960) 177 Cal. App. 2d 720, 728, 2 Cal. Rptr. 545

Overt act not required on part of one conspirator because act of one conspirator during conspiracy is act of all if done in furtherance thereof. Prince v. Harting (1960) 177 Cal. App. 2d 720, 728, 2 Cal. Rptr. 545

[2] Attorney-Client Conspiracy

Denial of petition to obtain order under Civ. Code § 1714.10 is res judicata if denial was on merits. Castro v. Higaki (1994) 31 Cal. App. 4th 350, 358-359, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 84

Requirement under Civ. Code § 1714.10 that plaintiff alleging attorney-client conspiracy show "reasonable probability" of prevailing in action is met if plaintiff can make out prima facie showing. Burtscher v. Burtscher (1994) 26 Cal. App. 4th 720, 725-726, 31 Cal. Rptr. 2d 682 ; Hung v. Wang (1992)8 Cal. App. 4th 908, 929-930, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 113 (decided under pre-1991 version of statute)

[3] Criminal Conspiracy Distinguished

Gist of crime of conspiracy is agreement to commit unlawful act. De Vries v. Brumback (1960) 53 Cal. 2d 643, 649, 2 Cal. Rptr. 764, 349 P.2d 532 ; People v. Corica (1942) 55 Cal. App. 2d 130, 134-135, 130 P.2d 164

Gist of tort action is damage resulting to plaintiff from overt act pursuant to common design while gist of crime is agreement to commit unlawful act. De Vries v. Brumback (1960) 53 Cal. 2d 643, 649, 2 Cal. Rptr. 764, 349 P.2d 532

[4] Defenses

Liability for conspiracy does not include one who does not share common purpose with alleged coconspirators but who merely suspected or had knowledge of their common purpose. Harris v. Capitol Records Distrib. Corp. (1966) 64 Cal. 2d 454, 462, 50 Cal. Rptr. 539, 413 P.2d 139

Defense that officers or agents of corporation cannot conspire with corporation when acting on its behalf and not for their individual advantage was not available because officers of corporation acted in dual capacity as corporate officers and as administrators of pension fund. Hannon Eng'g, Inc. v. Reim (1981) 126 Cal. App. 3d 415, 428, 179 Cal. Rptr. 78

Agents or employees of corporation sued as such along with corporation are not conspirators for acts perpetrated by them while acting in official capacities on behalf of corporation rather than as individuals acting for own individual advantage. Black v. Bank of Am. (1994) 30 Cal. App. 4th 1, 4-6, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 725 ; Zumbrun v. University of So. Cal. (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d l, 12-13, 101 Cal. Rptr. 499 ; Wise v. Southern Pac. Co. (1963) 223 Cal. App. 2d 50,

72-73, 35 Cal. Rptr. 652 , overruled on other grounds, Applied Equipment Corp. v. Litton Saudi Arabia Ltd. (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 503, 510, 521, 869 P.2d 454

Mere knowledge, acquiescence, or approval of action taken by one or more of conspirators, without cooperation or agreement to cooperate is insufficient to implicate one for conspiracy. Wetherton v. Growers Farm Labor Ass'n (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 168, 176, 79 Cal. Rptr. 543 , overruled on other grounds, Applied Equipment Corp. v. Litton Saudi Arabia Ltd. (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 503, 521, 869 P.2d 454

Commission of crime of obstruction of justice through suborning of perjury, perjury, or concealment of documentary evidence, does not give rise to cause of action aside from defamation or malicious prosecution. Agnew v. Parks (1959) 172 Cal. App. 2d 756, 765, 343 P.2d 118

Action for conspiracy not maintainable if, to be established, plaintiff must rely on illegal act or transaction to which he or she is party. Huber v. Peek-A-Boot, Inc. (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 512, 515, 11 Cal. Rptr. 467

Exoneration of actor in conspiracy precludes liability of any co-conspirators. Peterson v. Cruickshank (1956) 144 Cal. App. 2d 148, 163-164, 300 P.2d 915 ; Vargas v. Giacosa (1953) 121 Cal. App. 2d 521, 525, 263 P.2d 840 ,overruled on other grounds, Hardy v. Vial (1957) 48 Cal. 2d 577, 581, 311 P.2d 494

Conspiracy to induce breach of contract that is unenforceable because unlawful does not give rise to cause of action. Mindenberg v. Carmel Film Prod. (1955) 132 Cal. App. 2d 598, 602, 282 P.2d 1024

[5] Damage Requirement

Gist of action charging civil conspiracy is not conspiracy but damage suffered. Orloff v. Metropolitan Trust Co. (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 484, 488, 110 P.2d 396 ; Bank of Cal. v. Pan Am. Tire Corp. (1982) 132 Cal. App. 3d 843, 848, 183 Cal. Rptr. 470

Allegation of casual connection between alleged delicts on part of defendants and damages claimed is required. Zumbrun v. University of So. Cal. (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 1, 12, 101 Cal. Rptr. 499

Complaint containing no allegation showing damage caused by wrongful conduct of alleged conspirators is defective. Straughter v. Safety Sav. & Loan Ass'n (1966) 244 Cal. App. 2d 159, 163, 52 Cal. Rptr. 871

[6] Definition and Nature

To be conspirator requires one to share common purpose with another, not merely to suspect or have knowledge of other party's private purpose. Harris v. Capitol Records Distrib. Corp. (1966) 64 Cal. 2d 454, 462, 50 Cal. Rptr. 539, 413 P.2d 139

Conspiracy is combination of two or more persons to accomplish by concerted action a criminal or unlawful purpose or a lawful purpose by criminal or unlawful means. Parkinson Co. v. Building Trades Council (1908) 154 Cal. 581, 593,

98 P. 1027 ; Peskin v. Squires (1957) 156 Cal. App. 2d 240, 246, 319 P.2d 405

Civil action for conspiracy is precluded if object in view of conspiracy is lawful and no unlawful means are used, even though damage results and defendants acted with malicious motives. Keniston v. American Nat'l Ins. Co. (1973) 31 Cal. App. 3d 803, 811, 107 Cal. Rptr. 583 ; Riner v. Paskan (1963) 213 Cal. App. 2d 499, 504, 28 Cal. Rptr. 846

Conspiracy requires that purpose to be effected by it be unlawful in its nature or in means to be employed for its accomplishment. Keniston v. American Nat'l Ins. Co. (1973) 31 Cal. App. 3d 803, 811, 107 Cal. Rptr. 583

Civil conspiracy allegation does not state cause of action for independent tort. Minniear v. Tors (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 495, 506, 72 Cal. Rptr. 287

Action for damages for conspiracy requires determination whether pleaded facts show something as done that, without conspiracy, would give rise to cause of action. Tietz v. Los Angeles Unified Sch. Dist. (1965) 238 Cal. App. 2d 905, 913, 48 Cal. Rptr. 245

Actionability of combination requires that purpose to be effected by conspiracy be unlawful in its nature or in means to be employed for its accomplishment. Riner v. Paskan (1963) 213 Cal. App. 2d 499, 504, 28 Cal. Rptr. 846

Damages do not flow from conspiracy unless conspirators do some unlawful act or injure plaintiff by unlawful means; absent allegation of such unlawfulact or injury, conspiracy complaint fails to state cause of action. Williams v. Smith (1954) 127 Cal. App. 2d 607, 613, 274 P.2d 204

[7] Elements of Cause of Action

Elements of action for damage based on civil conspiracy are formation and operation of conspiracy and damage resulting to plaintiff from act or acts done in furtherance of common design; cause of action is for damage suffered. Mox Inc. v. Woods (1927) 202 Cal. 675, 677, 262 P. 302 ; Rogers v. Grua (1963) 215 Cal. App. 2d 1, 8, 30 Cal. Rptr. 39

[8] Evidence

Evidence was insufficient to establish probability of prevailing on conspiracy claim because nothing unlawful was agreed to in memo or phone conversation and there was no proof that cross-defendant ever received, agreed with, or agreed to act on another memo that could be construed as calling for unlawful boycott. Wilcox v. Superior Court (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th 809, 828-829, 33 Cal. Rptr. 2d 446

Statements of conspirators made after commission of crime that was object of conspiracy are admissible if evidence shows that conspiracy also contemplated payment of certain sum to accessory for accessory's partnership in crime. Downey Sav. & Loan Ass'n v. Ohio Casualty Ins. Co. (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 1072, 1091, 234 Cal. Rptr. 835 , superseded by statute on other grounds as stated in Yang v. Peoples Benefit Ins. Co., 2007 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 41331

[9] Formation and Operation

Conspiracy is not necessarily result of express agreement, but rests on tacit assent and acquiescence inferred from circumstances. Chicago Title Ins. Co. v. Great W. Fin. Corp. (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 305, 316, 70 Cal. Rptr. 849, 444 P.2d 481

Fact or scope of conspiracy is inferable from nature of acts done, relations of parties, interests of alleged conspirators, and other circumstances. Chicago Title Ins. Co. v. Great W. Fin. Corp. (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 305, 316, 70 Cal. Rptr. 849, 444 P.2d 481 ; Wetherton v. Growers Farm Labor Ass'n (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 168, 176, 79 Cal. Rptr. 543 , overruled on other grounds, Applied Equipment Corp. v. Litton Saudi Arabia Ltd. (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 503, 521, 869 P.2d 454

Conspiracy count was properly dismissed because record did not show knowledge of intent on part of conspirators to commit wrongful acts. Holder v. Home Sav. & Loan Ass'n (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 91, 108, 72 Cal. Rptr. 704

Agreement on which charge of civil conspiracy is based is required to have been entered into by persons who knew of conspiracy and its unlawful purpose. Beeler v. West Am. Fin. Co. (1962) 201 Cal. App. 2d 702, 707, 20 Cal. Rptr. 190

[10] Joining Existing Conspiracy

One who joins existing conspiracy is liable for every act previously or subsequently done by any coconspirator in pursuance of conspiracy. de De Vries v. Brumback (1960) 53 Cal. 2d 643, 648, 2 Cal. Rptr. 764, 349 P.2d 532

To maintain cause of action on theory of vicarious liability arising out of joining already-formed conspiracy, plaintiff must allege subsequent joiner's knowledge of object and purpose of conspiracy, agreement to injure plaintiff, meeting of minds on objective and course of action, and act, committed by at least one conspirator, that resulted in injury. Schick v. Lerner (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 1321, 1328, 238 Cal. Rptr. 902

[11] Jury Instruction

Jury instruction requested by plaintiff implying that person could be held liable for "aiding and abetting" commission of tort was inadequate; instruction is required to state elements of knowledge and intent, both of which are required for liability as cotortfeasor under concerted action theory. Gerard v. Ross (1988) 204 Cal. App. 3d 968, 983, 251 Cal. Rptr. 604

Jury instruction given by trial court properly reflected requirement that defendant agree to commit civil wrong and that knowledge of unlawful purpose is necessary part of such agreement. Sprague v. Equifax, Inc. (1985) 166 Cal. App. 3d 1012, 1045-1046, 213 Cal. Rptr. 69

Erroneous jury instruction, which implied that conspiracy could be inferred from similarity of conduct, association, and discussion of common means and interests, was insufficient grounds for new trial when, in spite of potential prejudice to defendants, jury entered verdict in their favor, so instruction did not in fact mislead jury. Bristow v. Ferguson (1981) 121 Cal. App. 3d 823, 826-827, 175 Cal. Rptr. 571

[12] Liability as Joint Tortfeasors

If two or more persons agree to perform wrongful act, civil liability is incurred by all for resulting damages, regardless of whether they actually commit tort themselves. Barney v. Aetna Cas. & Sur. Co. (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 966, 982, 230 Cal. Rptr. 215 ; see also Saunders v. Superior Court (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th 832, 845, 33 Cal. Rptr. 2d 438

All who, in pursuance of common plan or design to commit wrong, actively take part in it, or further it by cooperation or request, or who lend aid or encouragement to wrongdoer, or who ratify and adopt wrongdoer's acts for their benefit are equally liable with that party as joint tortfeasors. Orser v. George (1967) 252 Cal. App. 2d 660, 667, 60 Cal. Rptr. 708

Mere knowledge by one party of what other party is doing is not sufficient concert to make that party liable for acts of other party because one ordinarily owes no duty to act affirmatively to interfere with another's acts in absence of special relationship. Orser v. George (1967) 252 Cal. App. 2d 660, 667, 60 Cal. Rptr. 708

[13] Liability of Agents

Exception to agent's immunity rule holds corporate agents or employees liable for conspiring with corporation, despite acting on behalf of corporation, if they owe duty to plaintiff independent of corporation's duty. Applied Equip. Corp. v. Litton Saudi Arabia Ltd. (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 503, 511-514, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 475, 869 P.2d 454 ; see also Doctors' Co. v. Superior Court (1989)49 Cal. 3d 39, 48, 260 Cal. Rptr. 183, 775 P.2d 508 ; Younan v. Equifax Inc. (1980) 111 Cal. App. 3d 498, 516-517, 169 Cal. Rptr. 478 ; but see Black v. Bank of Am. (1994) 30 Cal. App. 4th 1, 4-6, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 725 (questioning potential breadth of exception and holding that it did not apply to allegation of conspiracy between corporation and its own employees)

Employees or agents not liable for conspiracy to cause their principal to violate duty that is binding on principal alone. Doctors' Co. v. Superior Court (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 39, 48, 260 Cal. Rptr. 183, 775 P.2d 508

Agent's immunity rule provides that agents and employees of corporation cannot conspire with corporate principal or employer if they are acting in official capacities on behalf of corporation, and not acting either as individuals for individual advantage or beyond scope of their authority; corporation is legal fiction that cannot act at all except through employees and agents, whose acts are acts of corporation; corporation is not able to conspire with itself any more than private individual can. Black v. Bank of Am. (1994) 30 Cal. App. 4th 1, 4-6, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 725 ; see also Applied Equip. Corp. v. Litton Saudi Arabia Ltd. (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 503, 512 n.4, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 475, 869 P.2d 454

Conduct of defendants allegedly supporting liability under civil "aiding and abetting" cause of action is within ambit of Civ. Code § 1714.10 requirement of prefiling order in action against attorney based on conspiracy with client. Howard v. Superior Court (1992) 2 Cal. App. 4th 745, 749, 3 Cal. Rptr. 2d 575 (interpreting statute before 1991 amendment limiting scope of requirement)

Agents and employees of insurer, although not parties to insurance contract, are liable for conspiracy if they join insurer in plan to defraud insured. Younan v. Equifax Inc. (1980) 111 Cal. App. 3d 498, 511, 169 Cal. Rptr. 478

Person acting solely as agent is liable for participation in conspiracy to commit civil wrong even though unacquainted with details of scheme. Revert v. Hesse (1920) 184 Cal. 295, 302-303, 193 P. 943 ; Wetherton v. Growers Farm

Labor Ass'n (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 168, 177, 79 Cal. Rptr. 543 , overruled on other grounds, Applied Equipment Corp. v. Litton Saudi Arabia Ltd. (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 503, 521, 869 P.2d 454

Estate not liable for tort committed by trustee, executor, or administrator; entry into conspiracy on part of administrator of estate is merely personal wrong on part of administrator. Rapaport v. Forer (1937) 20 Cal. App. 2d 271, 278, 66 P.2d 1242

[14] Liability of Conspirators

Advantage gained in alleging conspiracy is that act of one during conspiracy is act of all if done in furtherance of conspiracy. Unruh v. Truck Ins. Exch. (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 616, 631, 102 Cal. Rptr. 815, 498 P.2d 1063 , superseded by statute on other grounds as stated in Hendy v. Losse (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 723, 731-732, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 543 ; Mox Inc. v. Woods (1927) 202 Cal. 675, 677, 262 P. 302

Effect of alleging unitary action inherent in allegations of conspiratorial conduct is implicating all participating in common design and thus fastening liability on those who agree to plan to commit wrong as well as those who actually carry it out. Chicago Title Ins. Co. v. Great W. Fin. Corp. (1968)69 Cal. 2d 305, 316, 70 Cal. Rptr. 849, 444 P.2d 481 ; Black v. Sullivan (1975) 48 Cal. App. 3d 557, 566, 122 Cal. Rptr. 119

Liability of defendant as conspirator does not require that defendant join conspiracy at time of its inception. De Vries v. Brumback (1960) 53 Cal. 2d 643, 648, 2 Cal. Rptr. 764, 349 P.2d 532

Conspirator is jointly and severally liable with other conspirators, even if no overt act committed by him or her and no benefit received. Lomita Land & Water Co. v. Robinson (1908) 154 Cal. 36, 46, 97 P. 10 ; Prince v. Harting (1960) 177 Cal. App. 2d 720, 728, 2 Cal. Rptr. 545

All parties to civil conspiracy to defraud are directly liable for all misrepresentations made pursuant thereto as are persons who knowingly aid and abet fraud or furnish means for accomplishment. People v. Bestline Prod., Inc. (1976) 61 Cal. App. 3d 879, 918, 132 Cal. Rptr. 767

Joint liability attaches if joint project to do wrongful act is carried out and damage results. Wetherton v. Growers Farm Labor Ass'n (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 168, 175, 79 Cal. Rptr. 543 , overruled on other grounds, Applied Equip. Corp. v. Litton Saudi Arabia (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 503, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 475, 869 P.2d 454

Release or dismissal of action as to one conspiring joint tortfeasor does not operate to release other tortfeasors from liability. Wetherton v. Growers Farm Labor Ass'n (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 168, 177, 79 Cal. Rptr. 543 , overruled on other grounds, Applied Equip. Corp. v. Litton Saudi Arabia (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 503, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 475, 869 P.2d 454

Release of one conspiring joint tortfeasor reduces claims against those not released to extent relief is obtained under release. Wetherton v. Growers Farm Labor Ass'n (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 168, 177, 79 Cal. Rptr. 543 , overruled on other grounds, Applied Equip. Corp. v. Litton Saudi Arabia (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 503, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 475, 869 P.2d 454

Representations of one conspirator made in pursuance of conspiracy are binding on others. Penziner v. West Am. Fin. Co. (1933) 133 Cal. App. 578, 586, 24 P.2d 501

[15] Mere Conspiracy as Not Actionable

Civil conspiracy is neither separate tort nor ground for civil action unless wrongful act committed with damages flowing from it. Archibald v. Cinerama Haw. Hotels, Inc. (1977) 73 Cal. App. 3d 152, 160, 140 Cal. Rptr. 599 , overruled on other grounds, Koire v. Metro Car Wash (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 24, 219 Cal. Rptr. 133, 707 P.2d 195

Verdict for plaintiff on count of conspiracy to commit tort is inconsistent with verdict for defendant on count alleging tort from which liability for conspiracy is derived. Manor Inv. Co. v. F. W. Woolworth Co. (1984) 159 Cal. App. 3d 586, 596, 206 Cal. Rptr. 37 , disapproved on other grounds, Applied Equipment Corp. v. Litton Saudi Arabia Ltd. (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 503, 521, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 475, 869 P.2d 454

[16] Particular Wrongs

[a] Abduction of Child

Allegation that defendant conspired with child's father to abduct child, conceal child from her mother, and deprive mother of child's society and servicesstated cause of action. Rosefield v. Rosefield (1963) 221 Cal. App. 2d 431, 434-436, 34 Cal. Rptr. 479

[b] Assault and Battery

Plaintiffs lacked evidence that off-duty and on-duty law enforcement officers agreed to commit battery on plaintiffs and then engage in cover-up. Choate v. County of Orange (2000) 86 Cal. App. 4th 312, 333-334, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 339

Conspiracy to commit assault and battery inferred in course of union elections. Balistreri v. Turner (1964) 227 Cal. App. 2d 236, 242, 38 Cal. Rptr. 553

Conspiracy to commit assault and battery by committing abortions. Sayadoff v. Warda (1954) 125 Cal. App. 2d 626, 629, 271 P.2d 140

[c] Breach of Contract

Cause of action for conspiracy to breach contract or to induce breach of contract does not exist against party to contract because party to contract legally incapable of committing tort of interference with contract. Applied Equip. Corp. v. Litton Saudi Arabia Ltd. (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 503, 510, 514, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 475, 869 P.2d 454 (rejecting Wise v. Southern Pac. Co. (1963) 223 Cal. App. 2d 50, 72, 35 Cal. Rptr. 652)

[d] Civil Rights Violations

Conspiracy to discriminate on basis of race in housing purchase. Wagner v. O'Bannon (1969) 274 Cal. App. 2d 121, 132, 79 Cal. Rptr. 44

[e] Concealment of Cause of Action

Conspiracy to conceal and defeat plaintiff's common law action for damages. Ramey v. General Petroleum Corp. (1959) 173 Cal. App. 2d 386, 403, 343 P.2d 787

[f] Conversion

Conspiracy to convert property of another is continuing concert of action. de Vries v. Brumback (1960) 53 Cal. 2d 643, 647, 2 Cal. Rptr. 764, 349 P.2d 532

Party who joins and participates in continuing conspiracy to convert stolen property with knowledge of prior criminal acts of coconspirators is civilly liable as joint tortfeasor for prior acts of coconspirators. De Vries v. Brumback (1960) 53 Cal. 2d 643, 648-650, 2 Cal. Rptr. 764, 349 P.2d 532

Allegation of ouster of plaintiff by plaintiff's partner and third parties in pursuance of conspiracy and that defendants took possession of partnership party and converted it to their use, depriving plaintiff of any further use of it, was basis for cause of action. Moropoulos v. C.H. & O.B. Fuller Co. (1921) 186 Cal. 679, 685, 200 P. 601

Conspiracy to convert metal belonging to employer, sell it, and divide proceeds. Arch Rib-Summerbell Steel Fabricators v. Lubliner (1960) 183 Cal. App. 2d 593, 595, 7 Cal. Rptr. 94

Conspiracy to deprive partner of possession of partnership property. Ellis v. Navarro (1943) 61 Cal. App. 2d 755, 759, 143 P.2d 735

Allegation of ouster of plaintiff by plaintiff's partner and third parties in pursuance of conspiracy and that defendants took possession of partnership property and converted same to their use depriving plaintiff of any further use thereof as basis for cause of action. Moropoulos v. C.H. & O.B. Fuller Co. (1921) 186 Cal. 679, 685, 200 P. 601

[g] Defamation

Conspiracy to slander. Rodriguez v. North Am. Aviation, Inc. (1967) 252 Cal. App. 2d 889, 893, 61 Cal. Rptr. 579

Conspiracy to commit libel followed by publication of libelous matter. Farr v. Bramblett (1955) 132 Cal. App. 2d 36, 47, 281 P.2d 372 , overruled on other grounds, Field Research Corp. v. Superior Court (1969) 71 Cal. 2d 110, 77 Cal. Rptr. 243, 453 P.2d 747

Conspiracy to defame sufficiently alleged. Schessler v. Keck (1954) 125 Cal. App. 2d 827, 833, 271 P.2d 588

[h] False Imprisonment

Finding of conspiracy on part of defendant requires concert of action to detain unlawfully without consent, action in furtherance of common scheme or design to imprison falsely, and knowledge by defendant of conspiracy and its unlawful purpose. Peterson v. Cruickshank (1956) 144 Cal. App. 2d 148, 163, 300 P.2d 915

[i] Fraud in Advertising

Civil conspiracy to defraud through false advertising. People v. Bestline Prod., Inc. (1976) 61 Cal. App. 3d 879, 918, 132 Cal. Rptr. 767

[j] Fraud in Real Estate

Conspiracy to defraud by land scheme. Mox Inc. v. Woods (1927) 202 Cal. 675, 677, 262 P. 302

Liability of person conspiring with promoters of corporation to take secret profits from sale of land to corporation. Lomita Land & Water Co. v. Robinson (1908) 154 Cal. 36, 45, 97 P. 10

Action against real estate broker and broker's associates for secret profits made on exercise of option to buy plaintiff's property. Zikratch v. Stillwell (1961) 196 Cal. App. 2d 535, 541-542, 16 Cal. Rptr. 660

In violating fiduciary obligation to principal and making secret profit in real estate transaction, broker and coconspirators assisting broker were equally liable for consequences of conspiracy, regardless of extent of participation or share of profits obtained. Anderson v. Thacher (1946) 76 Cal. App. 2d 50, 72, 172 P.2d 533

False statement by owner of property regarding its value. Vah Dah Dunshee v. Boadway (1932) 119 Cal. App. 678, 684, 7 P.2d 325

[k] Fraud in Settling Debt

Conspiracy inducing plaintiff to settle indebtedness for less than amount due and to reduce rental payments. Campbell v. Birch (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 778, 782, 122 P.2d 902

[l] Fraud of Fiduciary

One who knowingly aids and abets fiduciary to make secret profits is liable jointly with fiduciary. Fink v. Weisman (1933) 129 Cal. App. 305, 317, 18 P.2d 961

[m] Fraud on Creditors

Debtor and those who conspire with debtor to conceal assets to defraud creditors are guilty of tort and liable in damages. Taylor v. S & M Lamp Co. (1961) 190 Cal. App. 2d 700, 706, 12 Cal. Rptr. 323

[n] Fraud Through False Testimony

Conspiracy to defraud plaintiff by having doctor falsely represent to plaintiff and court in malpractice action that doctor was disinterested witness. Agnew v. Parks (1959) 172 Cal. App. 2d 756, 765-769, 343 P.2d 118

Conspiracy to have doctor falsely represent that doctor was disinterested and unprejudiced witness and would give independent testimony. Agnew v. Parks (1959) 172 Cal. App. 2d 756, 767-775, 343 P.2d 118

[o] Harassment

Conspiracy by landlord and others to harass tenants. Barkett v. Brucato (1953) 122 Cal. App. 2d 264, 274, 264 P.2d 978

[p] Inducing Breach of Lease

Inducing another to breach lease pursuant to conspiracy is tort. McWilliams v. Holton (1967) 248 Cal. App. 2d 447, 452-453, 56 Cal. Rptr. 574

[q] Insurance Bad Faith

Insurer's attorney was not liable for conspiracy based on conduct involving only insurer's duty to plaintiff; agent's conduct is wrongful only if independent duty to plaintiff is breached. Doctors' Co. v. Superior Court (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 39, 45-47, 260 Cal. Rptr. 183, 775 P.2d 508 (distinguishing cases in which agent could be liable for breaching fiduciary duty owed directly to plaintiff or for acting as individual for individual advantage)

Conspiracy existed between insurer and attorney hired by insurer on behalf of insured to induce third party to file dismissal of civil action against insured with prejudice, thereby derogating insured's rights against third party. Barney v. Aetna Cas. & Sur. Co. (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 966, 981-983, 230 Cal. Rptr. 215 (action for insurance bad faith and legal malpractice)

[r] Interference With Contractual Relationship

Cause of action for conspiracy to breach contract or to induce breach of contract does not exist against party to contract because party to contract legally incapable of committing tort of interference with contract. Applied Equip. Corp. v. Litton Saudi Arabia Ltd. (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 503, 510, 514, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 475, 869 P.2d 454 (rejecting Wise v. Southern Pac. Co. (1963) 223 Cal. App. 2d 50, 71-72, 35 Cal. Rptr. 652)

Intentional interference by third person with contractual relationship, either by unlawful means or by means otherwise lawful if there is lack of sufficient justification, is actionable in tort. Herron v. State Farm Mut. Ins. Co. (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 202, 205, 14 Cal. Rptr. 294, 363 P.2d 310 ; Wise v. Southern Pac. Co. (1963) 223 Cal. App. 2d 50, 65, 35 Cal. Rptr. 652

Action arising from conspiracy to interfere with real estate broker's contractual relationship was stated by general allegation of formation of conspiracy, defendant's wrongful acts, and damage to plaintiff by breach. Allen v. Powell (1967) 248 Cal. App. 2d 502, 508-509, 56 Cal. Rptr. 715

Depriving plaintiff of commission through acts pursuant to conspiracy is intentional interference with contractual relationship and is actionable. Rogers v. Grua (1963) 215 Cal. App. 2d 1, 7, 8, 30 Cal. Rptr. 39

Conspiracy to deprive broker of commission of sale. California Auto Court Ass'n v. Cohn (1950) 98 Cal. App. 2d 145, 149, 219 P.2d 511

[s] Interference With Joint Venture

Cause of action stated against defendants conspiring to interfere and wrongfully interfering with plaintiffs' contractual joint venture relationship. Di Lorenzo v. Stewart Title Guar. Co. (1965) 232 Cal. App. 2d 839, 842, 43 Cal. Rptr. 261

Conspiracy to appropriate and convert assets and profits of joint venture and interest of plaintiff therein. Greenwood v. Mooradian (1955) 137 Cal. App. 2d 532, 540-542, 290 P.2d 955

[t] Interference With Partnership Relationship

Allegation of ouster of plaintiff by plaintiff's partner and third parties in pursuance of conspiracy and that defendants took possession of partnership party and converted it to their use, depriving plaintiff of any further use of it, was basis for cause of action. Moropoulos v. C.H. & O.B. Fuller Co. (1921) 186 Cal. 679, 685, 200 P. 601

Conspiracy to deprive partner of possession of partnership property. Ellis v. Navarro (1943) 61 Cal. App. 2d 755, 759, 143 P.2d 735

[u] Interference With Real Property Sale

Action by vendees of real property against conspirators who induced vendor not to go forward with sale. Duff v. Engelberg (1965) 237 Cal. App. 2d 505, 508, 47 Cal. Rptr. 114

[v] Preventing Close of Escrow

Duty of trust deed beneficiary or assignee in conspiracy to prevent close of escrow. Black v. Sullivan (1975) 48 Cal. App. 3d 557, 567, 122 Cal. Rptr. 119

[w] Products Liability

Absent endorsement or sponsorship for economic gain, publisher of advertisement has no duty to investigate safety of advertised product; thus, no cause of action for conspiracy was stated against publisher based on injuries sustained from use of product. Walters v. Seventeen Magazine (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 1119, 1121-1122, 241 Cal. Rptr. 101

[x] Rendering Stock Worthless

Cause of action was stated against persons conspiring to commit tortious acts to wreck corporation and render worthless stock held by plaintiffs. Price v. Hibbs (1964) 225 Cal. App. 2d 209, 218-221, 37 Cal. Rptr. 270

[y] Restraining Practice of Profession

Action for damages for unfair trade practices and combinations in restraint of trade. Chicago Title Ins. Co. v. Great W. Fin. Corp. (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 305, 312-318, 70 Cal. Rptr. 849, 444 P.2d 481

Cause of action for interference is stated by complaint that denial of doctor's right of access to hospital resulting from conspiracy designed to restrain competition and deprive doctor of practice to benefit competing members of conspiracy. Willis v. Santa Ana Cmty. Hosp. Ass'n (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 806, 810, 26 Cal. Rptr. 640, 376 P.2d 568 , overruled on other grounds, Cianci v. Superior Court (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 903, 221 Cal. Rptr. 575, 710 P.2d 375

If only act in furtherance of conspiracy was association's repeated and forceful urging of member real estate firms to use contract, substantial evidence to show unlawful combination between association and firms to fix prices and restrain trade was lacking if salesperson was required by firm to sign form contract that set amount of commission earned on sales. Bartley v. California Ass'n of Realtors (1980) 115 Cal. App. 3d 930, 935, 173 Cal. Rptr. 284

Bus. & Prof. Code § 2392.5 requires private hospitals to be governed by same criteria as public hospitals, which may not exclude doctor except for cause and must grant hearing to determine whether doctor's qualifications meet legal requirements. Ascherman v. San Francisco Med. Soc'y (1974) 39 Cal. App. 3d 623, 640-649, 114 Cal. Rptr. 681

Evidence was sufficient to permit inference as to conspiracy to injure doctor in practice of profession. Ascherman v. San Francisco Med. Soc'y (1974) 39 Cal. App. 3d 623, 655-662, 114 Cal. Rptr. 681

[z] Running of Statute of Limitations

Conspiracy by plaintiff's attorney and indemnity company and indemnity company's attorney to allow statute of limitations to run. Hege v. Worthington, Park & Worthington (1962) 209 Cal. App. 2d 670, 678-679, 26 Cal. Rptr. 132

[aa] Violation of Fiduciary Duty

Fraudulent partner, as fiduciary, liable with coconspirators who owed no fiduciary duty to plaintiff partner. Prince v. Harting (1960) 177 Cal. App. 2d 720, 731, 2 Cal. Rptr. 545

Assisting real estate broker in violating fiduciary obligation to principal by making secret profit. Anderson v. Thacher (1946) 76 Cal. App. 2d 50, 72, 172 P.2d 533

Loss of employment pursuant to conspiracy to violate plaintiffs' rights under Labor Code is actionable. Wetherton v. Growers Farm Labor Ass'n (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 168, 174-176, 79 Cal. Rptr. 543 , overruled on other grounds, Applied Equip. Corp. v. Litton Saudi Arabia (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 503, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 475, 869 P.2d 454

[17] Pleading Cause of Action

Statement of cause of action for conspiracy requires allegation of: (1) formation and operation of conspiracy; (2) wrongful act or acts done pursuant thereto; and (3) damage resulting from such acts. Bartley v. California Ass'n of

Realtors (1980) 115 Cal. App. 3d 930, 934, 173 Cal. Rptr. 284 ; Wise v. Southern Pac. Co. (1963) 223 Cal. App. 2d 50, 64-65, 35 Cal. Rptr. 652 , overruled on other grounds, Applied Equip. Corp. v. Litton Saudi Arabia (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 503, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 475, 869 P.2d 454

Allegation of "conspiracy" not required if cause of action based on conspiracy arises out of some wrongful act committed by one or more conspirators and complaint alleges wrongful act. Hege v. Worthington, Park & Worthington (1962) 209 Cal. App. 2d 670, 678, 26 Cal. Rptr. 132

General allegation of conspiracy in restraint of trade, without statement of facts constituting conspiracy, was legal conclusion only and insufficient to constitute cause of action for damages for civil conspiracy. Chicago Title Ins. Co. v. Great W. Fin. Corp. (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 305, 316-317, 70 Cal. Rptr. 849, 444 P.2d 481

Pleading of civil conspiracy is merely procedural method of joining defendants and as superfluous if concurrent or successive acts are alleged, unless plaintiff cannot show or prove each defendant committed wrongful act or some part of it; consequently, dismissal of one defendant does not release others. Barney v. Aetna Cas. & Sur. Co. (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 966, 983, 230 Cal. Rptr. 215

Trial court's granting of nonsuit on cause of action based on civil conspiracy to induce breach of contract is proper if defendants could not be liable for breach of contract. Short v. Nevada Joint Union High Sch. Dist. (1985) 163 Cal. App. 3d 1087, 1101-1102, 210 Cal. Rptr. 297

Cause of action based on civil conspiracy accrues on date of commission of last overt act in pursuance of conspiracy and thus plaintiff must allege whenlast overt act took place. Bedolla v. Logan & Frazer (1975) 52 Cal. App. 3d 118, 136-137, 125 Cal. Rptr. 59

Malice, express or implied, is essential element in action for slander of title and conspiracy to slander title. Alhambra Consol. Mines, Inc. v. Alhambra, Shumway Mines, Inc. (1966) 239 Cal. App. 2d 590, 597, 49 Cal. Rptr. 38

Complaint alleging plaintiff was judgment creditor of third persons who were possessed of assets, but that on specified date defendant conspired with debtors in concealing such assets and thus prevented plaintiff from recovering on judgment, thereby damaging plaintiff in stated amount, is sufficient to state cause of action. Taylor v. S & M Lamp Co. (1961) 190 Cal. App. 2d 700, 705-706, 12 Cal. Rptr. 323

General allegation that defendants "did agree together" to commit specified wrongful acts is sufficient to allege conspiracy. Greenwood v. Mooradian (1955) 137 Cal. App. 2d 532, 535-537, 290 P.2d 955

Allegation of acts constituting conspiracy, as distinguished from acts done pursuant to conspiracy and inflicting wrong, are not required to be alleged. Greenwood v. Mooradian (1955) 137 Cal. App. 2d 532, 537, 538, 290 P.2d 955

Allegation of ultimate fact that defendants "conspired together" to commit specified wrongful acts is sufficient to allege conspiracy. Farr v. Bramblett (1955) 132 Cal. App. 2d 36, 47, 281 P.2d 372 , overruled on other grounds, Field Research Corp. v. Superior Court (1969) 71 Cal. 2d 110, 77 Cal. Rptr. 243, 453 P.2d 747

[18] Proof of Conspiracy

Conspiracy is inferrable from nature of acts done, relations of parties, interests of alleged conspirators, and other circumstances. Chicago Title Ins. Co. v. Great W. Fin. Corp. (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 305, 316, 70 Cal. Rptr. 849, 444 P.2d 481 ; Black v. Sullivan (1975) 48 Cal. App. 3d 557, 566-567, 122 Cal. Rptr. 119

Plaintiff presented sufficient evidence from which jury could infer that insurance holding company conspired with insurance company, adjusters, and doctor to arrange inadequate medical examination and to produce false conclusion to deprive insured of claim benefits without adequate cause. Sprague v. Equifax, Inc. (1985) 166 Cal. App. 3d 1012, 1027-1029, 213 Cal. Rptr. 69

Evidence that defendants met and actually agreed to undertake performance of unlawful act is not necessary. Black v. Sullivan (1975) 48 Cal. App. 3d 557, 567, 122 Cal. Rptr. 119

Participation in wrongful project by one who claimed merely to be an advisor is inferrable from statements by that party. Wetherton v. Growers Farm Labor Ass'n (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 168, 176-177, 79 Cal. Rptr. 543 , overruled on other grounds, Applied Equip. Corp. v. Litton Saudi Arabia (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 503, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 475, 869 P.2d 454

Civil conspiracy not necessarily based on expressed agreement. Wagner v. O'Bannon (1969) 274 Cal. App. 2d 121, 132, 79 Cal. Rptr. 44

Combination shown by circumstantial evidence such as strange manner by which plaintiffs' offer to purchase house was handled by defendants, and record as whole supported inference that there was group plan or understanding. Wagner v. O'Bannon (1969) 274 Cal. App. 2d 121, 132, 79 Cal. Rptr. 44

Conspiracy not necessarily result of express agreement but as resting on tacit assent and acquiescence. Holder v. Home Sav. & Loan Ass'n (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 91, 108, 72 Cal. Rptr. 704

Inclusion in conspiracy of one defendant not substantiated if that party acted in good-faith reliance on wrongful acts of actual conspirators and did not join in any wrongful acts or agreement. General Adver. Agency, Inc. v. Komer (1967) 251 Cal. App. 2d 805, 811, 60 Cal. Rptr. 10

Proof of conspiracy to defraud by circumstantial evidence. Machado v. Katcher Meat Co. (1951) 108 Cal. App. 2d 1, 4-6, 237 P.2d 715

Evidence that defendants were affiliated is excludable if there is no evidence of any civil wrong or unlawful act committed by defendants sufficient to sustain allegations of conspiracy against them. Peterson v. Corporation of Am. (1937) 21 Cal. App. 2d 527, 532, 69 P.2d 904

[19] Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organizations Act

Distribution of newspaper, even if newspaper contains injurious falsehood, is not act of "racketeering" for purposes of satisfaction of RICO requirement of illegal conduct. Globe Int'l, Inc. v. Superior Court (1992) 9 Cal. App. 4th 393, 396, 12 Cal. Rptr. 2d 109

"Control" requirement referred to in 18 U.S.C.S. § 1962(b) is real, functional control, not mere business relationship. Rosenthal v. Vogt (1991) 229 Cal. App. 3d 69, 78

[20] Statute of Limitations

Cause of action based on civil conspiracy accrues on date of commission of last overt act in pursuance of conspiracy. Wyatt v. Union Mortgage Co. (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 773, 786, 157 Cal. Rptr. 392, 598 P.2d 45 ; Livett v. F.C. Fin. Assocs. (1981) 124 Cal. App. 3d 413, 418, 177 Cal. Rptr. 411 ; Kenworthy v. Brown (1967) 248 Cal. App. 2d 298, 301, 56 Cal. Rptr. 461 ; Schessler v. Keck (1954) 125 Cal. App. 2d 827, 832-833, 271 P.2d 588

Action alleging conspiracy to defraud is governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 338(d); delayed discovery rule of that section is applicable even if last overt act was committed more than three years before filing of action. Aaroe v. First Am. Title Ins. Co. (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 124, 128-129, 271 Cal. Rptr. 434

Action for conspiracy based on conversion is subject to three-year limitation period under Code Civ. Proc. § 338(c). Maheu v. CBS, Inc. (1988) 201 Cal. App. 3d 662, 673, 247 Cal. Rptr. 304

Action for damages for conspiracy to defraud is governed by three-year statute of limitations applicable to cause of action for fraud, former Code Civ. Proc. § 338(4) [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 338(d)]. Livett v. F.C. Financial Associates (1981) 124 Cal. App. 3d 413, 418, 177 Cal. Rptr. 411 ; Agnew v. Parks (1959) 172 Cal. App. 2d 756, 766, 343 P.2d 118

Statute of limitations in action based on conspiracy is determined by nature of action in which conspiracy is alleged. Bedolla v. Logan & Frazer (1975) 52 Cal. App. 3d 118, 136, 125 Cal. Rptr. 59

Complaint alleging conspiracy to slander is subject to one-year statute of limitations, former Code Civ. Proc. § 340(3) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 340(c)), and not barred if complaint alleges overt act causing damage within one year. Rodriguez v. North Am. Aviation, Inc. (1967) 252 Cal. App. 2d 889, 892-894, 61 Cal. Rptr. 579

Action for damages for conspiracy to induce breach of contract is governed by two-year statute of limitations, Code Civ. Proc. § 339(1). Kenworthy v. Brown (1967) 248 Cal. App. 2d 298, 301, 56 Cal. Rptr. 461

Action for damages for conspiracy tortiously to interfere with plaintiff's business as governed by two-year statute of limitations, Code Civ. Proc. § 339(1). McFaddin v. H.S. Crocker Co. (1963) 219 Cal. App. 2d 585, 591, 33 Cal. Rptr. 389

Action for damages for conspiracy to violate personal rights by preventing doctor from testifying for plaintiff is governed by one-year statute of limitations, former Code Civ. Proc. § 340(3) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 340(c)). Agnew v. Parks (1959) 172 Cal. App. 2d 756, 765, 343 P.2d 118

Cause of action for conspiracy to defame is governed by one-year statute of limitations governing action for libel and slander, former Code Civ. Proc. § 340(3) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 340(c)). Schessler v. Keck (1954) 125 Cal. App. 2d 827, 832, 271 P.2d 588

[21] Summary Judgment

Summary judgment in action alleging conspiracy is proper only if no triable issue of fact exists regarding formation and operation of conspiracy, wrongful act or acts done pursuant to conspiracy, and damage resulting from such acts. Bank of Cal. v. Pan Am. Tire Corp. (1982) 132 Cal. App. 3d 843, 848, 183 Cal. Rptr. 470

[1] FORM Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10] for Compensatory [Civ. Code § 3333] and Punitive or Exemplary [Civ. Code § 3294] Damages for Injury Based on Conspiracy--General Form

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)
vs.	)	NO. _____
_____ [names],	)	COMPLAINT FOR DAMAGES
Defendants.	)

Plaintiff alleges:

1. Defendant _____ [name] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of California with its principal place of business in _____ County, California [or allege other capacity and residence].

2. Defendant _____ [name] resides in _____ County, California [or allege other capacity and residence].

[3. Plaintiff is ignorant of the true names and capacities of defendants sued herein as DOES I-_____, inclusive, and therefore sues these defendants by such fictitious names. Plaintiff will amend this complaint to allege their true names and capacities when ascertained. (Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that each of the fictitiously named defendants is responsible in some manner for the occurrences herein alleged and that plaintiff's injuries were proximately caused thereby.)]

[4. Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that at all times herein mentioned each of the defendants was the agent and employee of each of the remaining defendants, and in doing the things hereinafter alleged, was acting within the course and scope of such agency.]

5. On or about _____ [date], defendants _____ [_____ (names) or and each of them,] [knowingly and willfully conspired and] agreed among themselves to _____ [specify tortious or other wrongful scheme].

6. _____ [Here, and in subsequent paragraphs as necessary, allege facts constituting the tort or other civil wrong committed by defendants and the injury caused thereby to plaintiff].

7. Defendants _____ [name] and _____ [name] did the acts and things herein alleged pursuant to, and furtherance of, the conspiracy and above-alleged agreement.

[8. Defendant(s) _____ (name(s)) _____ (furthered the conspiracy by cooperation with or lent aid and encouragement to or ratified and adopted the acts of) defendants _____ (names of defendants set forth in Paragraph 6) (in that _____ (specify acts showing cooperation, aid and encouragement, or ratification and adoption)).]

9. Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that the last overt act in pursuance of the above-described conspiracy occurred on or about _____ [date], on which date defendants [_____ (names)] _____ [set forth the last overt act in pursuance of the conspiracy, e.g., collected from plaintiff the final payment on the subject loan].

[10. _____ (If the underlying cause of action is for fraud, and it is apparent on the face of the pleading that the statute of limitations would have run but for plaintiff's delayed discovery of the facts constituting the fraud, here and in subsequent paragraphs allege with particularity facts, rather than conclusions, showing (a) plaintiff's lack of knowledge; (b) plaintiff's lack of means of obtaining knowledge (that is, in the exercise of reasonable diligence the facts could not have been discovered at an earlier date); and (c) how and when plaintiff actually discovered the fraud).]

11. As a proximate result of the wrongful acts herein alleged, plaintiff has been generally damaged.

12. _____ [Here and in subsequent paragraphs specifically set forth facts on which plaintiff's claim for special damages is based].

[13. In doing the things herein alleged, defendants acted _____ (specify conduct constituting malice, oppression, and/or fraud as defined under Civ. Code § 3294(c), e.g., willfully and with the intent to cause injury to the plaintiff). Defendants were therefore guilty of _____ (malice and/or oppression and/or fraud) in conscious disregard of plaintiff's rights, thereby warranting an assessment of punitive damages in an amount appropriate to punish defendants and deter others from engaging in similar misconduct.]

[2] Use of Form

This general form of complaint is for use in an action for damages for the violation of a civil duty owed to plaintiff by one or more defendants who acted in concert with others to violate the duty.

[3] Allegations

This complaint alleges facts showing the following:

- Formation and operation of the conspiracy with knowledge of all of the defendants (Paragraph 5) [Unruh v. Truck Ins. Exch. (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 616, 631, 102 Cal. Rptr. 815, 498 P.2d 1063 , superseded by statute on other grounds as stated in Hendy v. Losse (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 723, 731-732, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 543 ; Orloff v. Metropolitan Trust Co. (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 484, 488, 110 P.2d 396] . Formation and operation of the conspiracy is established by specifically alleging facts showing the conspirators knowingly entered an agreement to do a wrongful act. It does not matter at what time each defendant joined the conspiracy; each is party to every act previously or subsequently done by any of the others pursuant to the conspiracy [De Vries v. Brumback (1960) 53 Cal. 2d 643, 648, 2 Cal. Rptr. 764, 349 P.2d 532].

- Wrongful act or acts done by one or more of the conspirators in pursuance of the conspiracy (Paragraphs 6, 7) [Unruh v. Truck Ins. Exch. (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 616, 631, 102 Cal. Rptr. 815, 498 P.2d 1063 , superseded by statute on other grounds as stated in Hendy v. Losse (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 723, 731-732, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 543 ; Orloff v. Metropolitan Trust Co. (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 484, 488, 110 P.2d 396] .

- Cooperation, aid and encouragement, or ratification and adoption of the acts of the defendants by other defendants who may have participated in the conspiracy subsequent to its formation and operation (Optional Paragraph 8) [see Orser v. George (1967) 252 Cal. App. 2d 660, 667, 60 Cal. Rptr. 708] .

- Date when the last overt act in pursuance of the conspiracy occurred (Paragraph 9) [Wyatt v. Union Mortgage Co. (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 773, 786, 157 Cal. Rptr. 392, 598 P.2d 45 ; Bedolla v. Logan & Frazer (1975) 52 Cal. App. 3d 118, 136, 137, 125 Cal. Rptr. 59] . In addition, if the action is for conspiracy to defraud and the action would be barred by the statute of limitations based on the last overt act allegation, facts showing application of the delayed discovery doctrine (Optional Paragraph 10) [Aaroe v. First Am. Title Ins. Co. (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 124, 128-129, 271 Cal. Rptr. 434 ; see also Casualty Ins. Co. v. Rees Inv. Co. (1971) 14 Cal. App. 3d 716, 720, 92 Cal. Rptr. 857 (essential facts to be pleaded and proved)].

- Actual damage resulting to the plaintiff from the tortious act or acts done in pursuance of the conspiracy (Paragraphs 11, 12) [Unruh v. Truck Ins. Exch. (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 616, 631, 102 Cal. Rptr. 815, 498 P.2d 1063 , superseded by statute on other grounds as stated in Hendy v. Losse (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 723, 731-732, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 543 ; Orloff v. Metropolitan Trust Co. (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 484, 488, 110 P.2d 396] .

- Facts supporting award of exemplary or punitive damages based on the defendants' oppression, fraud, or malice (Optional Paragraph 13) [see Civ. Code §§ 3294, 3295(e); Wyatt v. Union Mortgage Co. (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 773, 790, 157 Cal. Rptr. 392, 598 P.2d 45] .

[4] Verification

Verification of this complaint is not required, but verification of the complaint requires the defendant to file a verified answer [Code Civ. Proc. § 446(a)] and precludes a general denial [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion of the effect that verifying a complaint has on the answer, see Ch. 26, Answers .

[2] Source of Form

The suggested facts in this form of complaint are taken from Willis v. Santa Ana Cmty. Hosp. Ass'n (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 806, 26 Cal. Rptr. 640, 376 P.2d 568 , overruled in part, Cianci v. Superior Court (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 903, 221 Cal. Rptr. 575, 710 P.2d 375 .

[3] Use of Form

This form of complaint may be used in an action by a professional person for damages against persons and institutions who, by conspiracy and wrongful acts, interfere with and deprive the plaintiff of the right to practice his or her profession. The examples used within the form specifically allege an action against a hospital and other parties for conspiracy based on intentional interference with a doctor's right to practice medicine in the hospital and for damage to the doctor's reputation as a result of public statements made by named defendants [see Willis v. Santa Ana Cmty. Hosp. Ass'n (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 806, 810-811, 26 Cal. Rptr. 640, 376 P.2d 568] , overruled in part, Cianci v. Superior Court (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 903, 221 Cal. Rptr. 575, 710 P.2d 375 .

[4] Allegations

This complaint alleges: (1) the formation, operation, and knowledge of the conspiracy by defendants (Paragraph 5); (2) the wrongful acts undertaken pursuant to the conspiracy (Paragraphs 6, 7); (3) the date when the last overt act in pursuance of the conspiracy occurred (Paragraph 8);(4) the injury and damages proximately caused plaintiff by the conspiracy (Paragraph 9); and (5) malice and oppression by defendants that support an award to plaintiff of punitive and exemplary damages under Civ. Code § 3294 (Paragraphs 5, 10) [*see Willis v. Santa Ana Cmty. Hosp. Ass'n (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 806, 808, 810, 26 Cal. Rptr. 640, 376 P.2d 568] , overruled in part, Cianci v. CAUTION:

Civ. Code § 1714.10 requires verification of this petition. However, at least one court has held that failure to file a verified petition does not necessarily prevent a party from filing a pleading claiming liability based on an attorney's civil conspiracy. In that case, the requirement was satisfied because the party, who was moving for leave to amend a complaint to add the civil conspiracy allegations, had verified the complaint and amended complaint, and had filed declarations under penalty of perjury in support of the motion. These items were sufficient because they have the same effect as a verified petition: they tend to discourage frivolous allegations by requiring claimants to make their assertions under oath [Burtscher v. Burtscher (1994) 26 Cal. App. 4th 720, 727, 31 Cal. Rptr. 2d 682] .

[2] Use of Form

This form is for use by a plaintiff to obtain judicial authorization to file a complaint or other pleading if the pleading includes a cause of action based on an alleged conspiracy between an attorney and that attorney's client, arising from an attempt to contest or compromise a claim or dispute, and that is based on the attorney's representation of the client [Civ. Code § 1714.10(a)].

[3] Accompanying Documents

The petition must be accompanied by the proposed pleading and supporting affidavits (or declarations under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) stating the facts on which the attorney's liability is based [Civ. Code § 1714.10(a)].

[4] Service of Petition and Opposition

The court must order service of the petition on the party against whom the action is proposed to be filed and permit that party to submit opposing affidavits prior to making its determination [Civ. Code § 1714.10(a)].

[5] Statute of Limitations

The filing of the petition, proposed pleading, and accompanying affidavits tolls the running of any applicable statute of limitations until the final determination of the matter by the court [Civ. Code § 1714.10(a)].

[2] Use of Form

This notice of motion is for use to object by demurrer to a complaint that includes a cause of action against an attorney for a civil conspiracy with his or her client arising from an attempt to contest or compromise a claim or dispute and based on the attorney's representation of the client. The ground of the objection is that the plaintiff has failed to obtain a court order allowing the pleading to be filed [see Civ. Code § 1714.10(a), (b)].

The failure to obtain a court order when required by Civ. Code § 1714.10(a) is a defense to any action for civil conspiracy filed in violation of that provision. The defense must be raised by the party charged with civil conspiracy on that party's first appearance by demurrer, motion to strike, or such other motion or application as may be appropriate [Civ. Code § 1714.10(b)]. This form may be modified for use in other proceedings in which the objection may be raised under Civ. Code § 1714.10(b)]. The failure to raise the defense constitutes a waiver of the defense [Civ. Code § 1714.10(b)].

The defect objected to in this form normally would not appear on the face of the complaint, but from the court's records, a matter of which the court may take judicial notice [see Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a); Evid. Code § 452(d)]. This matter must be specified in the demurrer or in the supporting points and authorities for the purpose of invoking the notice, except as the court may otherwise permit [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.70]. Hence, this form includes an optional request that the court take judicial notice [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1306(c) (party required to make arrangements with court clerk to have court's file in court at time of hearing)].

A demurrer must be accompanied by a notice of hearing [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1320(c)], and this form includes such a notice. It must also be accompanied by a memorandum of points and authorities in support of each ground for the demurrer [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113]. For discussion and forms, see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities .

This form may be modified for use when the defendant is demurring to a specified cause of action, rather than to the whole complaint. In that case, the demurrer must specify the particular cause of action to which it objects [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1320(a)].

Chapter 126A CONSTITUTIONAL LAW
PART I. SCOPE

-126A California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 126A.01

§ 126A.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter examines civil powers and rights under the California Constitution, with relevant analysis under comparable provisions, if any, in the U.S. Constitutions included for added depth or comparison, as the case may be. Accordingly, the chapter emphasizes interpretations of the California Constitution and the powers and rights that it extends.

This chapter discusses the history, general structure, and process for amending and revising the California Constitution (see § 126A.10 et seq.). It also touches on principles guiding analysis of conflicts between different provisions of the Constitution. For discussion of the interpretation of constitutional provisions, see Ch. 531, Statutes and Ordinances .

This chapter also addresses the distribution of powers among the branches of California government and between the federal and California governments, including the separation of powers, the impact of the Commerce Clause of the U.S. Constitution on state law, preemption of state law by federal law, and preemption of local law by state law (see § 126A.20 et seq.).

This chapter also covers the general powers of state government, including the police power, eminent domain, the power of taxation, and the limitation on impairing the obligation of contracts (see § 126A.30 et seq.).

This chapter also covers substantive due process and individual civil rights as limitations on government powers (see § 126A.40 et seq.). For detailed civil rights coverage and application to specific facts, including actions for damages under 42 U.S.C.S. § 1983, see Ch. 112, Civil Rights: Government-Funded Programs and Activities , see Ch. 113, Civil Rights: Post-Civil War Statutes , see Ch. 114, Civil Rights: Prisoners' Rights , see Ch. 115, Civil Rights: Employment , see Ch. 116, Civil Rights: Business Establishments , see Ch. 117, Civil Rights: Housing , see Ch. 117A, Civil Rights: Interference .

This chapter also addresses the primary elements of the broad topic of procedural due process (see § 126A.50 et seq.). For voluminous discussion of procedural due process in administrative agency actions, see Ch. 470A, Due Process Restrictions on Public Agencies , et seq.

This chapter also addresses the interrelated subjects of equal protection and privileges and immunities (see § 126A.60 et seq.).

This chapter also contains a brief discussion of procedure for challenging the constitutionality of laws and government actions, including declaratory and injunctive relief against enforcement of unconstitutional statutes or ordinances or unconstitutional applications of those laws (see § 126A.70 et seq.). For forms andfurther discussion relating to declaratory relief to determine the validity of statutes and ordinances, see Ch.183, Declaratory Relief . For forms and further discussion relating to a taxpayer's suit to restrain the expenditure of public money to enforce an unconstitutional statute or ordinance, see Ch. 466, Public Entities and Officers: Taxpayer's Actions . For forms and further discussion relating to injunctive relief generally, see Ch. 303, Injunctions . For forms and discussion relating to actions for administrative mandate challenging the action of a public agency, see Ch. 474, Availability of Judicial Review of Agency Decisions , et seq.

This chapter also include a sample complaint alleging denial of a constitutional right under both the United States and California constitutions: specifically, a Complaint Against Public Entity and Officials for Injunctive and Declaratory Relief for Denial of Right to Freedom of Expression [U.S. Const., amend. I, XIV; Cal. Const., art. I, 2]--Denial of Application for Access to Public Forum [see § 126A.100]. This form is illustrative of one type of constitutional challenge. Cross references throughout this chapter highlight various forms across the wide spectrum of actions that assert a constitutional right and/or infringement. Refer to the specific discussions in this chapter to locate applicable forms in other chapters.

California constitutional law is embodied in the California Constitution of 1879, as amended.

Amending and revising the California Constitution are governed by Cal. Const., art. XVIII. The legislature's power for enactments related to amending or revising the constitution is set forth in Cal. Const., art. IV, § 1, and the power of initiative, in Cal. Const., art. II, §§ 8, 10, 11.

Resolving conflicts between different provisions of the California constitution is governed by Cal. Const., art. XVIII, § 4 [see Crawford v. Huntington Beach Union High Sch. Dist. (2002) 98 Cal. App. 4th 1275, 1286, 121 Cal. Rptr. 2d 96]

§ 126A.11 History of the California Constitution

The first constitution of California, ratified on November 13, 1849, was replaced by the current California Constitution, which was ratified on May 7, 1879. This Constitution of 1879 has been amended hundreds of times [for discussion of amending, see § 126A.13[1]], but has been revised only twice [for discussion of revising, see § 126A.13[2]], with a third attempt at revision resulting in no changes in the 1990s. The bulk of revisory changes occurred as the result of the second revision commission in the 1960s and 1970s.

For detailed information on revision commissions, see Henke's California Law Guide, Ch. 2, California Constitution, § 2.02 [Matthew Bender]. For discussion of researching constitutional law, see Henke's California Law Guide, Ch. 2, California Constitution, § 2.03 [Matthew Bender].

§ 126A.12 Structure of the California Constitution, and Cross References to Detailed Discussions Throughout This Publication

The California Constitution begins with the following preamble:

> "We, the People of the State of California, grateful to Almighty God for our freedom, in order to secure and perpetuate its blessings, do establish this Constitution."

After the preamble, the substantive articles of the Constitution address the following broad subjects presented here in the order in which they first appear:

- The inalienable rights of individual California citizens [see Cal. Const., art. I; for discussion, see § 126A.40 et seq.],

- Voting, initiatives and referendums, elections, and recall [see Cal. Const.,art. II; for detailed discussion, see Chs. 242, Election Campaigns , 243, Elections , and 302, Initiative, Referendum & Recall ; for discussion of convicts' voting disability, see Ch. 114, Civil Rights: Prisoners' Rights, § 114.27],

- The basic nature of the State of California [see Cal. Const., art. III; for discussion of federal-law preemption of state law, see § 126A.23; for detailed discussion of boundaries, see Ch. 101, Boundaries ; for discussion of separation of powers, see § 126A.21],

-126A California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 126A.13

§ 126A.13 Amending or Revising the California Constitution

[1] Constitutional Amendments

[a] By Legislative Action

[i] Proposing, Amending, or Withdrawing Proposed Amendments

The Legislature may propose an amendment to the California Constitution, or amend or withdraw its proposed amendment. Two-thirds of the membership of each house must concur by rollcall vote entered in the journal in any proposal or amendment or withdrawal of a previously proposed amendment [Cal. Const., art. XVIII, § 1].

[ii] Each Proposed Amendment Submitted Separately; Separate Submission Required for Each Section Amended

Each legislatively proposed constitutional amendment must be prepared and submitted so that it can be voted on separately [Cal. Const., art. XVIII, § 1]. This single subject rule requires a showing that the provisions are reasonably germane to a common theme, purpose, or subject. It does not impose a stricter standard requiring a showing of close or functional relatedness. It is to be interpreted leniently [Californians for an Open Primary v. McPherson (2006) 38 Cal. 4th 735, 777, 43 Cal. Rptr. 3d 315, 134 P. 3d 299 , (proposal concerning both primary elections and state property and bonds repayment violated the single subject rule); see Senate of the State of Cal. v. Jones (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 1142, 1157, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 810, 988 P.2d 1089] . This procedural mandate allows a proposed amendment of one section of the constitution to be submitted as a whole to the voters, even though it would affect several other sections [Tinsley v Superior Court (1983) 150 Cal. App. 3d 90, 106-107, 197 Cal. Rptr. 643] .

The common purpose to which the initiative's various provisions relate, however, cannot be so broad that a virtually unlimited array of provisions are joined in the proposition, essentially obliterating the constitutional requirement [Manduley v. Superior Court (2002) 27 Cal. 4th 537, 575, 117 Cal. Rptr. 2d 168, 41 P.3d 3] .

[iii] Relief from Proposed Amendments Not Submitted Separately

Bifurcation of proposals by subject is not a remedy for a violation of the separate-vote requirement of Cal. Const., art. XVIII, § 1. Rather, the measure is void, even if challenged after the election [Californians for an Open Primary v. McPherson (2006) 38 Cal. 4th 735, 780-782, 43 Cal. Rptr. 3d 315, 134 P. 3d 299 (after election, court voided unbifurcated version adopted by legislature and bifurcated version not adopted by legislature)].

[b] By Initiative

The electors may amend the California Constitution by initiative [Cal. Const., art. XVIII, § 3].

For discussion of the mechanics of undertaking an initiative, see Ch. 302, Initiative, Referendum & Recall .

[2] Constitutional Revision

[a] Proposed by Legislature

The Legislature may propose a revision of the California Constitution, or amend or withdraw its proposed revision. Two-thirds of the membership of each house must concur by rollcall vote entered in the journal in any proposal or amendment or withdrawal of a previously proposed revision [Cal. Const., art. XVIII, § 1].

[b] Proposed by Constitutional Convention

The Legislature may submit at a general election the question whether to call a convention to revise the Constitution. Two-thirds of the membership of each house must concur by rollcall vote entered in the journal in submitting the question to the voters. If the majority of voters vote yes on a question whether to call a convention to revise the Constitution, then within 6 months the Legislature must provide for the convention. Delegates to a constitutional convention are to be voters elected from districts as nearly equal in population as may be practicable [Cal. Const., art. XVIII, § 2].

[3] Distinguishing Constitutional Amendments from Constitutional Revision

If the scope of a proposed initiative measure is so broad that if the measure became law, a substantial revision of our present state Constitution would be effected, then the measure may not properly be submitted to the electorate until and unless it is first agreed upon by a constitutional convention [Strauss v. Horton (2009) 46 Cal. 4th 364, 424, 93 Cal. Rptr. 3d 591, 207 P.3d 48 (Proposition 8 does not constitute a constitutional revision)]. The differentiation required is not merely between two words; more accurately, it is between two procedures and between their respective fields of application [Strauss v. Horton (2009) 46 Cal. 4th 364, 424, 93 Cal. Rptr. 3d 591, 207 P.3d 48 (quoting McFadden v. Jordan (1948) 32 Cal. 2d 330, 347-348, 196 P.2d 787)].

Distinguishing a revision from an amendment requires the court to examine both the quantitative and qualitative effects of the measure on the California constitutional scheme, because substantial changes in either respect can amount to a revision [Raven v. Deukmejian (1990) 52 Cal. 3d 336, 350, 276 Cal. Rptr. 326, 801 P.2d 1077 ; Legislature v. Eu (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 492, 506, 286 Cal. Rptr. 283, 816 P.2d 1309] . For whether an initiative constitutes an amendment or revision to the California Constitution does not necessarily depend on the number of constitutional provisions it affects, but rather on the nature of the changes it makes [California Assn. of Retail Tobacconists v State (2003) 109 Cal. App. 4th 792, 804, 135 Cal. Rptr. 2d 224] . For a proposal to be a revision, the face of the proposal must necessarily or inevitably disclose that the measure would substantially alter the basic governmental framework set forth in the California Constitution [Legislature v. Eu (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 492, 510, 286 Cal. Rptr. 283, 816 P.2d 1309 ; California Assn. of Retail Tobacconists v State (2003) 109 Cal. App. 4th 792, 804, 135 Cal. Rptr. 2d 224] .

One California Supreme Court decision stated that substantial changes in either quantitative or qualitative aspects of the Constitution could amount to a revision [Raven v. Deukmejian (1990) 52 Cal. 3d 336, 350, 276 Cal. Rptr. 326, 801 P.2d 1077].

Under the quantitative-qualitative analysis, an enactment that is so extensive in its provisions as to change directly the "substantial entirety" of the Constitution by the deletion or alteration of numerous existing provisions may well constitute a constitutional revision. However, even a relatively simple enactment may accomplish such far reaching changes in the nature of our basic governmental plan as to amount to a revision also [Strauss v. Horton (2009) 46 Cal. 4th 364, 427, 93 Cal. Rptr. 3d 591, 207 P.3d 48 (quoting Amador Valley Joint Union High Sch. Dist. v. State Bd. of Equalization (1978) 22 Cal. 3d 208, 223, 149 Cal. Rptr. 239, 583 P.2d 1281)].

One instance of such an initiative "would vest all judicial interpretive power, as to fundamental criminal defense rights, in the United States Supreme Court," by virtue of its provisions limiting interpretation of rights in the California Constitution to the same standards as used by the United States Supreme Court in interpreting federal constitutional rights [Raven v. Deukmejian (1990) 52 Cal. 3d 336, 351-352, 276 Cal. Rptr. 326, 801 P.2d 1077].

Another standard that the California Supreme Court applied to the question of a revision looked for "such a sweeping change either in the distribution of powers made in the organic document or in the powers which it vests in [one] branch as to constitute a revision of the Constitution within the contemplation of article XVIII" [In re Lance W. (1985) 37 Cal.3d 873, 892, 210 Cal. Rptr. 631, 694 P.2d 744].

In contrast, even an initiative that makes very significant changes constitutes only an amendment if its changes nonetheless operate functionally within a relatively narrow range of subject matter [Strauss v. Horton (2009) 46 Cal. 4th 364, 428, 93 Cal. Rptr. 3d 591, 207 P.3d 48 (citing Amador Valley Joint Union High Sch. Dist. v. State Bd. of Equalization (1978) 22 Cal. 3d 208, 228, 149 Cal. Rptr. 239, 583 P.2d 1281)].

The question of whether an initiative constitutes an amendment or a revision requires analysis of the statute on its face [Rippon v. Bowen (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 1308, 1319, 73 Cal. Rptr. 3d 421]. Each situation involving the question of amendment, as contrasted with revision, of the Constitution must be resolved upon its own facts [Strauss v. Horton (2009) 46 Cal. 4th 364, 424, 93 Cal. Rptr. 3d 591, 207 P.3d 48 (quoting McFadden v. Jordan (1948) 32 Cal. 2d 330, 347-348, 196 P.2d 787)].

The distinction drawn by the California Constitution between an amendment and a revision does not turn on the relative importance of the measure, but rather upon the measure's scope [Strauss v. Horton (2009) 46 Cal. 4th 364, 446-447, 93 Cal. Rptr. 3d 591, 207 P.3d 48].

The Supreme Court has applied the aforementioned standards to the facts to find an initiative was an amendment as follows:

- Proposition 13's alteration of eight separate articles and 37 sections of the preexisting California Constitution did not constitute a revision in the Court's quantitative analysis, and the Court rejected arguments that Proposition 13 effected qualitative change to the framework of government through the restriction of home rule and the requirement of initiatives to approve larger tax increases [Amador Valley Joint Union High Sch. Dist. v. State Bd. of Equalization (1978) 22 Cal. 3d 208, 221-227, 149 Cal. Rptr. 239, 583 P.2d 1281].

- An initiative to add one section to the Constitution concerning the death penalty did not implement far reaching changes in the nature of our basic governmental plan under the qualitative analysis by a plurality of the Court [People v. Frierson (1979) 25 Cal. 3d 142, 186-187, 158 Cal. Rptr. 281, 599 P.2d 587] .

- 1982 Proposition 8 effected only a limited quantitative effect, in that it deleted one section and added another consisting of seven subdivisions addressing a variety of issues decided in California Supreme Court cases. The greatest impact was on the criminal justice system, but the Court found that the Proposition's qualitative effect, while substantial, fell far short of the sweeping change necessary for a determination that the initiative would constitute a revision, because it did not alter the basic framework of the Constitution [Brosnahan v. Brown (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 236, 260-261, 186 Cal. Rptr. 30, 651 P.2d 274].

- The provision of 1982 Proposition 8 that effectively abrogated the exclusionary rule under the state Constitution was an amendment, because it affected only one incident of the guarantee of freedom from unlawful search and seizure, which is not "such a sweeping change either in the distribution of powers made in the organic document or in the powers which it vests in the judicial branch as to constitute a revision of the Constitution" [In re Lance W. (1985) 37 Cal. 3d 873, 895, 891-892, 210 Cal. Rptr. 631, 694 P.2d 744].

- Proposition 140, an initiative measure that: (1) adopted legislative term limits, (2) restricted retirement benefits for legislators, and (3) limited expenditures for legislative staff and support services did not constitute a revision because the basic and fundamental structure of the Legislature as a representative branch of government was left substantially unchanged [Legislature v. Eu (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 492, 506-510, 286 Cal. Rptr. 283, 816 P.2d 1309].

- The Supreme Court rejected the argument that Proposition 35, relating to the contracting out of architectural and engineering services for public works, usurped the Legislature's plenary authority to regulate private contracting by public agencies in a global sense. On that basis, it ruled that the inititative did not enact sufficiently "far reaching changes [to] our basic governmental plan as to amount to a revision" [Professional Engineers in California Government v. Kempton (2007) 40 Cal. 4th 1016, 1047, 56 Cal. Rptr. 3d 814, 155 P.3d 226].

In contrast, Proposition 115 made a number of changes to criminal procedural rights, one of which limited the power of California courts to find constitutional rights of the accused that were more extensive than that found by the United States Supreme Court under the U.S. Constitution. The California Supreme Court determined that this provision constituted a revision, even though it added only three sections and amended a fourth, because under a qualitative analysis, the measure would, the court found, effectively vest all judicial interpretive power, as to fundamental criminal defense rights, in the United States Supreme Court [Raven v. Deukmejian (1990) 52 Cal. 3d 336, 350-356, 276 Cal. Rptr. 326, 801 P.2d 1077].

[4] Effective Date of Amendments and Revisions

A proposed amendment or revision submitted to the electors and approved by a majority of votes thereon takes effect the day after the election unless the measure provides otherwise [Cal. Const., art. XVIII, § 4].

§ 126A.14 Conflicting Provisions

It is a firmly established rule of constitutional jurisprudence that where two constitutional provisions conflict, the one that was enacted later in time controls [Slavich v. Walsh (1947) 82 Cal. App. 2d 228, 236-237, 186 P.2d 35 ; Crawford v. Huntington Beach Union High Sch. Dist. (2002) 98 Cal. App. 4th 1275, 1286, 121 Cal. Rptr. 2d 96] .

If provisions of two or more constitutional amendments or revisions approved at the same election conflict, those of the measure receiving the highest affirmative vote prevail [Cal. Const., art. XVIII, § 4]. Under this provision, there is a distinction between the situation of two competing or alternative initiative measures, only one of which could prevail, and that of two measures presented to the voters as complementary or supplementary. In the latter situation, the two measures may be compared section by section, giving effect to both so long as there is no direct conflict [Yoshisato v. Superior Court (1992) 2 Cal. 4th 978, 987-988, 991-992, 9 Cal. Rptr. 2d 102, 831 P.2d 327] .

§ 126A.15 Courts Do Not Have Authority to Invalidate

Where the language of the Constitution is express and the intent plain, there is no power in the judicial department to set it aside. For the judiciary is but the creature of the Constitution, and cannot judge its creator. It cannot rise above the source of its own existence. If it could do this, it could annul the Constitution, instead of simply declaring what it means. Therefore, California state courts do not possess the authority to invalidate an explicit constitutional amendment, adopted through a constitutionally prescribed procedure, on the ground that the amendment is inconsistent with the scope of a right previously embodied in the Constitution [Strauss v. Horton (2009) 46 Cal. 4th 364, 468-469, 93 Cal. Rptr. 3d 591, 207 P.3d 48 (Proposition 8 cannot be invalidated on grounds that it conflicts with existing provisions of Constitution)].

§ 126A.20 Governing Law

The California constitutional provision on separate of powers of the three branches of state government is found in Cal. Const., art. III, § 3. The limitation on the ability of executive agencies to declare statutes invalid is contained in Cal. Const., art. III, § 3.5.

The Commerce Clause of the U.S. Constitution is set forth in U.S. Const., art. I, § 8, cl. 3.

The Supremacy Clause of the U.S. Constitution is located at U.S. Const., art. VI, cl. 2. The provision of the California Constitution declaring the U.S. Constitution the law of the land is Cal. Const., art. III, § 1.

Local law is preempted in accordance with Cal. Const., art. XI, § 7 and Gov. Code § 37100. Cal. Const., art. XI, §§ 5 and 7 set out the exceptions to this rule for certain cases involving municipal affairs of charter cities and towns.

§ 126A.21 Separation of Powers

[1] The California Constitution on Separation of Powers

The California Constitution provides that persons charged with the exercise of legislative, executive, or judicial power of the state may not exercise another of those powers except as permitted by the Constitution [see Cal. Const., art. III, § 3]. However, the separation of powers doctrine does not mean quite what it seems to mean. The doctrine does not mean that legislative, executive, and judicial powers must be kept wholly and entirely separate and distinct, and have no common link of connection or dependence in the slightest degree. The true meaning is that the whole power of one of these departments may not be exercised by the same hands that possess the whole power of either of the other departments [People ex rel. McCauley & Tevis v. Brooks (1860) 16 Cal. 11, 40 ; accord Manduley v. Superior Court (2002) 27 Cal. 4th 537, 557, 117 Cal. Rptr. 2d 168, 41 P.3d 3] . The separation of powers doctrine limits the authority of one of the three branches of government to arrogate to itself the core functions of another branch [Carmel Valley Fire Protection Dist. v. State of California (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 287, 297, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 636, 20 P.3d 533] .

Although enshrined in the Constitution and fundamental to the preservation of civil liberties, the separation of powers doctrine does not mean that the three departments of state government are not in many respects mutually dependent [Younger v Superior Court of Sacramento County (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 102, 117, 145 Cal. Rptr. 674, 577 P.2d 1014 , quoting Solberg v. Superior Court (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 182, 191, 137 Cal. Rptr. 460, 561 P.2d 1148] . Each department of government for its own existence must in some degree exercise some of the functions of the others [Younger v Superior Court of Sacramento County (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 102, 117, 145 Cal. Rptr. 674, 577 P.2d 1014 , quoting Laisne v. Cal. St. Bd. of Optometry (1942) 19 Cal.2d 831, 835, 123 P.2d 457] . The purpose of the doctrine is to prevent one branch of government from exercising the complete power constitutionally vested in another [Younger v Superior Court of Sacramento County (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 102, 117, 145 Cal. Rptr. 674, 577 P.2d 1014 , citing Laisne v. Cal. St. Bd. of Optometry (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 831, 835, 123 P.2d 457] . It is not intended to prohibit one branch from taking action properly within its sphere that has the incidental effect of duplicating a function or procedure delegated to another branch [Younger v Superior Court of Sacramento County (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 102, 117, 145 Cal. Rptr. 674, 577 P.2d 1014 , citing Parker v. Riley (1941) 18 Cal.2d 83, 89-90, 113 P.2d 873] .

[2] Exercise of Legislative and Judicial Powers by the Executive

[a] In General

The executive branch, via an administrative agency, may exercise judicial or legislative power without violating the separation of powers doctrine when thejudicial power is subject to judicial review and the legislative power is clearly defined by the legislature. Agency action may not violate the separation of powers doctrine even when it does not satisfy these requirements [20th Century Ins. Co. v. Quackenbush (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 135, 141-142, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 113] .

For discussion of the exercise by administrative agencies of legislative or judicial powers, see Ch. 470, Overview of Public Administrative Law, § 470.12[6].

[b] Constitutional Limitation on Adjudicatory Powers of Administrative Agencies

Administrative agencies are constitutionally barred from declaring statutes unconstitutional or otherwise unenforceable on constitutional or federal-preemption grounds [see Cal. Const., art. III, § 3.5].

For discussion of Cal. Const., art. III, § 3.5, see Ch. 470, Overview of Public Administrative Law, § 470.12; see also Ch. 473A, Commencing Agency Adjudication, § 473A.13.

[3] Exercise of Executive and Judicial Powers by the Legislature

[a] Presumption of Constitutionality of Statutes

A properly enacted statute is presumed to have been enacted by the Legislature within the scope of its constitutional powers [Hughes v. Board of Architectural Examiners (1998) 17 Cal. 4th 763, 788, 72 Cal. Rptr. 2d 624, 952 P.2d 641] .

For detailed discussion of the presumption that statutes are constitutional, see Ch. 531, Statutes and Ordinances, § 531.64.

[b] Executive Power

The Legislature cannot require or authorize that powers or responsibilities that the constitution specially confers or imposes upon the governor or other executive officer are to be performed or undertaken by any other officer or authority. Likewise, the Legislature cannot directly or indirectly take matters that the constitution specifically confides to a specified body or agency from its control [State Board of Education v. Levit (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 441, 461, 343 P.2d 8] .

In addition, having enacted a statutory scheme, the Legislature has no power to exercise supervisory control or to retain for itself some sort of veto power over the manner of execution of the laws [State Board of Education v. Levit (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 441, 461-462, 343 P.2d 8 ; California Radioactive Materials Management Forum v. Department of Health Services (1993) 15 Cal. App. 4th 841, 872, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 357 , (Legislature cannot exercise supervisory control over executive nominee's performance of the duties of office)]. Having granted authority to an executive department to execute the provisions of a law, the Legislature "must abide by its delegation of authority until that delegation is legislatively altered or revoked" by statute in accordance with the bicameral and presentment requirements of the California Constitution [California Radioactive Materials Management Forum v. Department of Health Services (1993) 15 Cal. App. 4th 841, 872, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 357 , citing and quoting INS v. Chadha (1983) 462 U.S. 919, 954-955, 103 S.Ct. 2764, 77 L.Ed.2d 317, 347] . The legislative branch may not control the exercise of the discretion actually vested by statute in the executive by retaining the unilateral power of removal [Bowsher v. Synar (1986) 478 U.S. 714, 727, 106 S. Ct. 3181, 3188, 92 L. Ed. 2d 583 ; Carmel Valley Fire Protection Dist. v. State of California (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 287, 305, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 636, 20 P.3d 533] .

However, the Legislature may limit the discretion vested in the executive by enacting a statute circumscribing that discretion [Carmel Valley Fire Protection Dist. v. State of California (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 287, 305, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 636, 20 P.3d 533] . That is, control means absolute control. Incidental control within usual legislative powers is within the power of the legislative branch [Carmel Valley Fire Protection Dist. v. State of California (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 287, 306, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 636, 20 P.3d 533] . This incidental power includes the power to completely withdraw a statutory grant of authority to an executive agency or completely remove funding for a particular exercise of its power [Consumer Energy v. F. E. R. C. (D.C. Cir. 1982) 673 F.2d 425, 474 , summarily aff'd sub nom., Process Gas Consumers Group v. Consumer Energy Council of America (1983) 463 U.S. 1216, 103 S. Ct. 3556, 77 L. Ed. 2d 1402, 1403 ; Carmel Valley Fire Protection Dist. v. State of California, 25 Cal. 4th 287, 307, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 636, 20 P.3d 533] .

Under Cal. Const., art. IV, § 7, the Legislature retains powers necessary to its lawmaking functions, including the power to protect the safety and security of the Legislature, its members, and any buildings and grounds used by the Legislature [The Zumbrun Law Firm v. California Legislature (2008) 165 Cal. App. 4th 1603, 1614, 82 Cal. Rptr. 3d 525 (power to contract for construction of its facilities)].

[c] Judicial Power

The Legislature may not undertake to readjudicate controversies that have been litigated in the courts and resolved by final judicial judgment [Superior Court v. County of Mendocino (1996) 13 Cal. 4th 45, 53, 51 Cal. Rptr. 2d 837, 913 P.2d 1046 , citing Mandel v. Myers (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 531, 547-550, 174 Cal. Rptr. 841, 629 P.2d 935 , and Plaut v. Spendthrift Farm, Inc. (1995) 514 U.S. 211, 115 S. Ct. 1447, 1453-1456, 131 L. Ed. 2d 328, 342-346 ; accord Le Francois v. Goel (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 1094, 1103, 29 Cal. Rptr. 3d 249, 112 P.3d 636 (the essential judicial power to resolve specific controversies between parties is a core function that the Legislature may regulate but not usurp)].

Under Cal. Const., art. III, § 3, the legislature lacks the power to state that a change in the law is a declaration of existing law, as such a declaration interpreting the law is a judicial responsibility [McClung v. Employment Development Dept. (2004) 34 Cal. 4th 467, 469-470, 20 Cal. Rptr. 3d 428, 99 P.3d 1015 (contrary to legislative declaration, statute in question changed the law)].

Nonetheless, the Legislature may put reasonable restrictions upon constitutional functions of the courts provided they do not defeat or materially impair the exercise of those functions [Le Francois v. Goel (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 1094, 1103, 29 Cal. Rptr. 3d 249, 112 P.3d 636 (the essential judicial power to resolve specific controversies between parties is a core function that the Legislature may regulate but not usurp); Superior Court v. County of Mendocino (1996) 13 Cal. 4th 45, 58, 51 Cal. Rptr. 2d 837, 913 P.2d 1046 , quoting Brydonjack v. State Bar (1929) 208 Cal. 439, 444, 281 P. 1018 (legislation authorizing counties to designate unpaid furlough days on which the courts must be closed did not violate separation of powers)].

[4] Exercise of Legislative and Executive Powers by the Judiciary

[a] Legislative Power

Where the legislature has failed to exercise its power, and that failure jeopardizes constitutional rights of the public, the judiciary may exercise that power [see Wilson v. Eu (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 471, 473, 286 Cal. Rptr. 280, 816 P.2d 1306 (Legislature's failure to reapportion justifies judicial adoption of reapportionment plan)]. However, a court is without power to interfere with purely legislative action, and when the Legislature has committed to a municipal body the power to legislate on a given subject, the court has no power to command or prohibit the exercise of the legislative function [County of Orange v. Barratt American, Inc. (2007) 150 Cal. App. 4th 420, 437, 58 Cal. Rptr. 3d 542].

In contrast, a court may nullify a specific and valid exercise by the Legislature and the Executive of fundamental budgetary powers explicitly entrusted to those branches, simply for the purpose of satisfying a judgment or order that is unrelated to the appropriation [Butt v. State of California (1992) 4 Cal. 4th 668, 702-703, 15 Cal. Rptr. 2d 480, 842 P.2d 1240] .

While a court cannot compel the Legislature either to appropriate funds or to pay funds not yet appropriated, no violation of the separation of powers doctrine occurs when a court orders appropriate expenditures from already existing funds. The test is whether such funds are reasonably available for the expenditures in question. Funds are reasonably available for reimbursement when the purposes for which those funds were appropriated are generally related to the nature of costs incurred. There is no requirement that the appropriation specifically refer to the particular expenditure, nor must past administrative practice sanction coverage from a particular fund. Still, funds appropriated for one specific educational purpose may not be judicially diverted to another [County of San Diego v. California (2008) 164 Cal. App. 4th 580, 598-599, 79 Cal. Rptr. 3d 489].

Of course, the court may promulgate rules for its own conduct and as otherwise delegated to it by the legislative branch [Mistretta v. United States (1989) 488 U.S. 361, 387-388, 109 S.Ct. 647, 102 L.Ed.2d 714 , citing Sibbach v. Wilson & Co. (1941) 312 U.S. 1, 9-10, 61 S. Ct. 422, 85 L. Ed. 479] .

The principle of constitutional separation of power underlies the mental processes principle, which precludes any judicial inquiry into the subjective motives or mental processes of legislators [Sutter's Place v. Superior Court (2008) 161 Cal. App. 4th 1370, 1382, 75 Cal. Rptr. 3d 9].

[b] Executive Power

Judicial exercise of power incidental to power of the executive department of state government is not a violation of separation of powers [see Younger v Superior Court of Sacramento County (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 102, 117, 145 Cal. Rptr. 674, 577 P.2d 1014 (court order expunging criminal record after completion of sentence is not unconstitutional infringement on executive power of clemency)].

§ 126A.22 Federal Commerce Clause as Limitation on State Powers

[1] In General

The Commerce Clause of the U.S. Constitution [U.S. Const., art. I, § 8, cl. 3] bars states from imposing a substantial burden on interstate commerce which outweighs its putative local benefits [Edgar v. MITE Corp. (1982) 457 U.S. 624, 646, 102 S. Ct. 2629, 73 L. Ed. 2d 269 ; Diamond Multimedia Sys. v. Superior Court (1999) 19 Cal. 4th 1036, 1073, 968 P.2d 539 ; 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 828] .

The Federal Commerce Clause precludes the application of a state statute to commerce that takes place wholly outside of the state's borders, whether or not the commerce has effects within that state [Healy v. The Beer Institute (1989) 491 U.S. 324, 336 [109 S. Ct. 2491, 105 L. Ed. 2d 275] .

For the effect of the Federal Commerce Clause on equal protection analysis, see § 126A.66.

[2] Dormant Commerce Clause

[a] Nature and Applicability

The U.S. Constitution does not in terms limit the power of States to regulate commerce. Nonetheless, the Commerce Clause [see U.S. Const., art. I, § 8, cl. 3] is an implicit restraint on state authority, even in the absence of a conflicting federal statute [United Haulers Ass'n v. Oneida-Herkimer Solid Waste Mgmt. Auth. (2007) 550 U.S. 330, 337, 127 S. Ct. 1786, 167 L. Ed. 2d 655] . The dormant Commerce Clause is implicated if state laws regulate an activity that has a substantial effect on interstate commerce such that Congress could regulate the activity [National Association of Optometrists & Opticians Lenscrafters, Inc. v. Brown (9th Cir. 2009) 567 F.3d 521, 524] .

[b] Laws That Discriminate Against Out-of-State Persons

To determine whether a law violates the dormant Commerce Clause, the Court first asks whether it discriminates against interstate commerce. A statutory scheme can discriminate against out-of-state interests in three different ways [

National Association of Optometrists & Opticians Lenscrafters, Inc. v. Brown (9th Cir. 2009) 567 F.3d 521, 525] :

- Facially.
- Purposefully.
- In practical effect

In this context, "discrimination" generally means differential treatment of in-state and out-of-state economic interests that benefits the former and burdens the latter [United Haulers Ass'n v. Oneida-Herkimer Solid Waste Mgmt. Auth. (2007) 550 U.S. 330, 338, 127 S. Ct. 1786, 167 L. Ed. 2d 655 , quoting Oregon Waste Sys. v. Department of Envtl. Quality, 511 U.S. 93, 99, 114 S. Ct. 1345, 128 L. Ed. 2d 13] . However, in the case of local laws, the discrimination may be between local persons and other persons elsewhere in the state and those outside of the state [C & A Carbone, Inc. v. Town of Clarkstown (1994) 511 U.S. 383, 391, 114 S. Ct. 1677, 128 L. Ed. 2d 399] .

To determine whether the laws have a purposeful discriminatory effect, it is necessary to determine whether the purpose of the law is to protect in-state entities from similar out-of-state entities [National Association of Optometrists & Opticians Lenscrafters, Inc. v. Brown (9th Cir. 2009) 567 F.3d 521, 525] . Discriminatory laws motivated by simple economic protectionism are subject to a virtually per se rule of invalidity [United Haulers Ass'n v. Oneida-Herkimer Solid Waste Mgmt. Auth. (2007) 550 U.S. 330, 338, 127 S. Ct. 1786, 167 L. Ed. 2d 655 , quoting Philadelphia v. New Jersey, 437 U.S. 617, 624, 98 S. Ct. 2531, 57 L. Ed. 2d 475] , which can only be overcome by a showing that there is no other means to advance a legitimate local purpose [United Haulers Ass'n v. Oneida-Herkimer Solid Waste Mgmt. Auth. (2007) 550 U.S. 330, 338, 127 S. Ct. 1786, 167 L. Ed. 2d 655 , citing Maine v. Taylor, 477 U.S. 131, 138, 106 S. Ct. 2440, 91 L. Ed. 2d 110] .

To determine whether the laws have a practical discriminatory effect, it is necessary to compare the out-of-state entity with a similarly situated in-state entity [National Association of Optometrists & Opticians Lenscrafters, Inc. v. Brown (9th Cir. 2009) 567 F.3d 521, 525] .

[c] Laws That Do Not Discriminate, but Burden Interstate Commerce

In contrast to laws that discriminate against out-of-state persons, non-discriminatory laws only need to satisfy a less rigorous balancing test to survive constitutional scrutiny [C & A Carbone, Inc. v. Town of Clarkstown (1994) 511 U.S. 383, 392, 114 S. Ct. 1677, 128 L. Ed. 2d 399 ; National Association of Optometrists & Opticians Lenscrafters, Inc. v. Brown (9th Cir. 2009) 567 F.3d 521, 524] . If not discriminatory, the laws may still be invalidated if the burden they place on interstate commerce outweighs their benefits. Where the statute regulates even-handedly to effectuate a legitimate local public interest, and its effects on interstate commerce are only incidental, it will be upheld unless the burden imposed on such commerce is clearly excessive in relation to the putative local benefits [Pike v. Bruce Church, Inc. (1970) 397 U.S. 137, 142, 90 S. Ct. 844, 25 L. Ed. 2d 174 ; National Association of Optometrists & Opticians Lenscrafters, Inc. v. Brown (9th Cir. 2009) 567 F.3d 521, 528] .

[3] "Indian Commerce Clause"

In addition, the Indian commerce clause of U.S. Const., art. I, § 8, is a potential barrier to the exercise of state authority if the state authority interferes with "commercial activity on an Indian reservation [Agua Caliente Band of Cahuilla Indians v. Superior Court (2006) 40 Cal. 4th 239, 249, 52 Cal. Rptr. 3d 659, 148 P.3d 1126 ; Ramah Navajo School Bd. v. Bureau of Revenue (1982) 458 U.S. 832, 837, 102S. Ct. 3394, 73 L. Ed. 2d 1174 (federal law may preempt state authority if it interferes with tribe's ability to exercise its sovereign functions)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Division of Power Among Branches of State Government and Between State and Federal Governments

-126A California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 126A.23

§ 126A.23 Federal Preemption of State Laws

[1] The Nature of Preemption Power

The authority of Congress to preempt state law derives from the Supremacy Clause in the U.S. Constitution. It provides that the federal constitution and federal statutes and treaties are the supreme law of the land and bind state judges, despite state constitutional and statutory law to the contrary [see U.S. Const., art. VI, cl. 2; see also Cal. Const., art. III, § 1 (U.S. Constitution is supreme law of the land)]. In exercising its legislative powers, Congress may expressly preempt state law. Moreover, absent express preemption, there are three bases for finding implied preemption.

Any provision of the federal statute specifying how to determine the scope of express preemption controls [*see Silvas v. E*Trade Mortg. Corp. (9th Cir. 2008) 514 F.3d 1001, 1005* & n.1 (discussing OTS, Final Rule, 61 Fed. Reg. 50951, 50966-67 (Sept. 30, 1996) , concerning 12 C.F.R. § 560.2)].

For discussion of federal-law preemption of state law in the context of federal jurisdiction and removal of cases from state to federal court, see Ch. 265, Federal Courts: Jurisdiction and Removal .

[2] Express Preemption

[a] Conditions Under Which Preemption Is Express

When Congress has expressly stated in a statute the areas of state law that are preempted, a state law will fall in the following situations [California Service Station etc. Assn. v. Union Oil Co. (1991) 232 Cal. App. 3d 44, 51, 283 Cal. Rptr. 279] :

- A direct conflict exists between the state and federal regulations making it impossible to comply with both laws;

- The state regulation stands as an obstacle to the accomplishment and execution of the full purposes and objectives of Congress; or

- Congress has taken possession of the field in a particular area so as to displace all state regulations regardless of whether they are compatible.

[b] Scope of Express Preemption

When express preemptive language establishes that Congress intended to preempt at least some state law, it is still necessary to "identify the domain" expressly preempted by the statutory language, by determining the scope of the federal statute [Southern Cal. Gas Co. v. Occupational Safety & Health Appeals Bd. (1997) 58 Cal. App. 4th 200, 204, 67 Cal. Rptr. 2d 892 , citing Medtronic, Inc. v. Lohr (1996) 518 U.S. 470, 485-486, 116 S. Ct. 2240, 2250, 135 L. Ed. 2d 700] . The market participant doctrine distinguishes between a state's role as a regulator, on the one hand, and its role as a market participant, on the other. Actions taken by a state or its subdivision as a market participant are generally protected from federal preemption [Engine Manufacturers Ass'n v. South Coast Air Quality Maintenance Dist. (9th Cir. 2007) 498 F.3d 1031, 1040]. Given that the scope of express preemption is itself usually not stated in a federal statute, it must be inferred from the federal statute.

When interpreting a preemption clause, courts must give effect to its plain language unless there is good reason to believe Congress intended the language to have some more restrictive meaning. Interpretation does not occur in a contextual vacuum, but rather is informed by two presumptions. First, the states are independent sovereigns in the U.S. federal system, so courts have long presumed that Congress does not cavalierly preempt state law causes of action. Second, the purpose of Congress is the ultimate touchstone in every preemption case [Sanchez v. Aerovias De Mex., S.A. de C.V. (9th Cir. 2010) 590 F.3d 1027, 1029-1030] .

A determination of the scope of an express preemption statute begins with an analysis of its text, considered in context with the structure and purpose of the statute and its surrounding regulatory scheme. Thus, on the one hand, a statute that would preempt state health and safety regulation is narrowly construed to include within its scope only matters that are consistent with "a fair understanding of congressional purpose" [Southern Cal. Gas Co. v. Occupational Safety & Health Appeals Bd. (1997) 58 Cal. App. 4th 200, 204, 67 Cal. Rptr. 2d 892 , citing Medtronic, Inc. v. Lohr (1996) 518 U.S.470, 485-486, 116 S. Ct. 2240, 2250-2251, 135 L. Ed. 2d 700] . On the other hand, when federal law so thoroughly occupies a legislative field by a pervasive and complex regulatory system, it is reasonable to infer that Congress intended to leave no room for the states to supplement it [Fidelity Federal Sav. & Loan Ass'n v. de la Cuesta (1982) 458 U.S. 141, 102 S. Ct. 3014, 3022, 73 L. Ed. 2d 664 ; Southern Cal. Gas Co. v. Occupational Safety & Health Appeals Bd. (1997) 58 Cal. App. 4th 200, 205, 67 Cal. Rptr. 2d 892] .

[c] Waivers of Express Preemption

Federal law may provide procedure and standards for administrative waiver of express preemption of state law by the federal law [see, e.g., 42 U.S.C.S. § 6297(d)(1)(B); California Energy Com. v. U.S. Dep't of Energy (9th Cir. 2009) 585 F.3d 1143, 1152] . An appellate court will uphold an agency decision on a waiver application only on the basis of the reasoning articulated therein. It will overturn a decision as arbitrary and capricious if the agency did any of the following [California Energy Com. v. U.S. Dep't of Energy (9th Cir. 2009) 585 F.3d 1143, 1150] :

- Relied on a factor that Congress did not intend it to consider.

- Failed to consider an important factor or aspect of the problem.

- Failed to articulate a rational connection between the facts found and the conclusions made.

- Supported the decision with a rationale that runs counter to the evidence or is so implausible that it could not be ascribed to a difference in view or the product of agency expertise.

- Made a clear error in judgment.

[3] Implied Preemption

[a] Methods of Implied Preemption

[i] Federal Statute Occupies the Field

If it is clear that Congress intended, by comprehensive legislation, to occupy an entire given field of regulation, leaving no room for the states to supplement federal law, state law in that field is preempted [Bronco Wine Co. v. Jolly (2004) 33 Cal. 4th 943, 955-956, 17 Cal. Rptr. 3d 180, 95 P.3d 422 ; see, e.g., Beneficial Nat'l Bank v. Anderson (2003) 539 U.S. 1, 7-11, 123 S. Ct. 2058, 156 L. Ed. 2d 1 (state-law usury claims against national bank are completely preempted by National Bank Act, 12 U.S.C. § 1 et seq., intended to provide exclusive federal cause of action for usury against national banks)].

Unlike its traditional statutory counterpart, foreign affairs field preemption may occur even in the absence of a treaty or federal statute, because a state may violate the U.S. Constitution by establishing its own foreign policy, thus exercising a power reserved exclusively to the federal government by the Constitution [Von Saher v. Norton Simon Museum of Art at Pasadena (9th Cir. 2010) 592 F.3d 954, 964] .

[ii] Federal Law Conflicts With State Law

Even if Congress has not intended that federal law occupy a regulatory field, state law is nevertheless preempted to the extent it actually conflicts with federal law, that is, if compliance with both state and federal law is impossible [Bronco Wine Co. v. Jolly (2004) 33 Cal. 4th 943, 955-956, 17 Cal. Rptr. 3d 180, 187, 95 P.3d 422 ; California v. ARC America Corp. (1989) 490 U.S. 93, 100-101, 109 S. Ct. 1661, 104 L. Ed. 2d 86 ; Stevenson v. San Francisco Housing Auth. (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 269, 280, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 398 ; see Doyle v. Bd. of Supervisors (1988) 197 Cal. App. 3d 1358, 1363, 243 Cal. Rptr. 572 ; see also Tahoe Regional Planning Agency v. King (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 1365, 1386-1387, 285 Cal. Rptr. 335 (court held no preemption because purpose of federal law was to induce states to comply, not require compliance)].

Where the federal law does not expressly preempt or impliedly occupy the field, states may establish their own requirements, including a state-law cause of action, pertaining to the subject of the federal statute so long as the state requirements areidentical to those contained in the federal statute [Farm Raised Salmon Cases (2008) 42 Cal. 4th 1077, 1086, 1096, 72 Cal. Rptr. 3d 112, 175 P.3d 1170 (labeling of artificially colored food under Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act, 21 U.S.C. § 343(k))].

[iii] Federal Statute Obstructed by State Law

Federal law impliedly preempts any state law that stands as an obstacle to the accomplishment and execution of the full purposes and objectives of Congress [Bronco Wine Co. v. Jolly (2004) 33 Cal. 4th 943, 955-956, 17 Cal. Rptr. 3d 180, 95 P.3d 422 ; Aalgaard v. Merchants Nat. Bank, Inc. (1990) 224 Cal. App. 3d 674, 686, 688, 274 Cal. Rptr. 81] .

[b] Scope of Implied Preemption

When a state law is preempted because it conflicts with federal law, it is preempted only to that extent and no further. In such a case, the portion of the state law that does not conflict with federal law can be given effect if the invalid portion can be severed. [Jevne v. Superior Court (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 935, 960-961, 28 Cal. Rptr. 3d 685, 111 P.3d 954] .

In determining whether a state statute interferes with and frustrates a federal statute, a court considers whether the existence of a conflict results from the effect and not merely the purpose of the state statute [Bronco Wine Co. v. Jolly (2004) 33 Cal. 4th 943, 972-973, 17 Cal. Rptr. 3d 180, 95 P.3d 422 (court must consider relationship between state and federal laws as they are interpreted and applied, not merely as they are written); California Aviation, Inc. v. Leeds (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 724, 732-733, 284 Cal. Rptr. 687 (effect of state limitation period on malpractice claims would be to thwart Congress's intent to extend bankruptcy limitation period to protect creditors)].

[4] Federal Statutes, Regulations, Treaties, and Executive Agreements Preempt

Federal regulations have no less preemptive effect than federal statutes [*Silvas v. E*Trade Mortg. Corp. (9th Cir. 2008) 514 F.3d 1001, 1005* (applying 12 C.F.R. § 560.2); Olszewski v. Scripps Health (2003) 30 Cal. 4th 798, 814-827, 135 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1, 69 P.3d 927 (federal Medicaid statutes and regulations limiting provider reimbursement preempt conflicting California statutes)]. Thus, a federal agency may preempt state law through regulations that are within the scope of its statutory authority and that are not arbitrary [People v. Edward D. Jones & Co. (2007) 154 Cal. App. 4th 627, 639, 65 Cal. Rptr. 3d 130 ; Black v. Financial Freedom Senior Funding Corp. (2001) 92 Cal. App. 4th 917, 926, 112 Cal. Rptr. 2d 445] . Similarly, the foreign policy of the federal government, as embodied in treaties and executive agreements made with other countries, may preempt conflicting state laws, either expressly or by necessary implication. For example, California's Holocaust Victim Insurance Relief Act of 1999 [Ins. Code § 13800 et seq.] is preempted because it interferes with the federal government's conduct of foreign relations, as expressed principally in executive agreements with Germany, Austria, and France [American Ins. Ass'n v. Garamendi (2003) 539 U.S. 396, 123 S. Ct. 2374, 156 L. Ed. 2d 376, 395-402] .

[5] Presumption Against Preemption in Areas Traditionally Regulated By States

There is a presumption against finding preemption of state law in areas traditionally regulated by the states [State of California v. ARC America Corp. (1989) 490 U.S. 93, 109 S. Ct. 1661, 104 L. Ed. 2d 86, 94 (unfair business practices); Bronco Wine Co. v. Jolly (2004) 33 Cal. 4th 943, 973-974, 17 Cal. Rptr. 3d 180, 95 P.3d 422 (presumption against preemption applies in case involving federal and state wine-labeling regulations, because protection of consumers from potentially misleading brand names and labels of food and beverages in general, and wine in particular, has traditionally been regulated by states); McCall v. PacifiCare of Cal., Inc. (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 412, 416-424, 106 Cal. Rptr. 2d 271, 21 P.3d 1189 (in absence of clear indication of congressional intent, Medicare Act does not preempt California tort remedies for claims that find no remedy under Medicare administrative process)], and it even applies in the determination of the scope of preemption [see Washington Mutual Bank v. Superior Court (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 773, 782, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 560 , citing Cipollone v. Liggett Group, Inc. (1992) 505 U.S. 504, 523, 112 S. Ct. 2608, 120 L. Ed. 2d 407 (in interpreting the extent of express preemption, courts must be mindful of strong presumption against preemption or displacement of state laws)]. Specifically, if a federal statute operates in an area of traditional state regulation, congressional intent to preempt must be clear and manifest [Bronco Wine Co. v. Jolly (2004) 33 Cal. 4th 943, 973-974, 17 Cal. Rptr. 3d 180, 95 P.3d 422 (in field traditionally regulated by states, court should not find that traditional police powers of states are superseded unless it is clear and manifest that Congress intended to preempt state law)].

The presumption against preemption is applicable in implied preemption cases, including those in which the asserted basis of preemption is that state law would stand as an obstacle to the accomplishment and execution of the full purposes and objectives of Congress [Bronco Wine Co. v. Jolly (2004) 33 Cal. 4th 943, 958 n.12, 17 Cal. Rptr. 3d 180, 95 P.3d 422] . In deciding whether a state law would hinder the complete accomplishment of a federal law's objective, a court must give considerable weight to the views of the federal agency charged with administering the federal law [Jevne v. Superior Court (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 935, 958, 28 Cal. Rptr. 3d 685, 111 P.3d 954] .

The presumption against preemption applies not only to state substantive requirements, but also to state causes of action. The mere absence of a private right of action under the federal law does not mean that a private right of action under state law is preempted as a right inherently in conflict with the federal law. There is no federal policy against the states imposing liability in addition to that imposed by federal law. Ordinarily, state causes of action are not preempted solely because they impose liability over and above that authorized by federal law [Washington Mutual Bank v. Superior Court (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 773, 782, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 560] .

While there is a strong presumption against federal preemption of state lawgoverning historic police powers, the United States Supreme Court has held that the presumption does not apply when a state regulates in an area where there has been a history of significant federal presence [Silvas v. E* *Silvas v. E*Trade Mortg. Corp. (9th Cir. 2008) 514 F.3d 1001, 1004* (banking)].

[6] "Generic Concerns" Do Not Preempt

When both the state and federal requirements reflect "generic concerns" rather than specific regulations, they probably will not conflict, resulting in no preemption. Preemption occurs "only where a particular state requirement threatens to interfere with a specific federal interest" [Medtronic, Inc. v. Lohr (1996) 518 U.S. 470, 485, 116 S. Ct. 2240, 2257-2258, 135 L. Ed. 2d 700 (courts should broadly interpret preemption provision of federal statutes with limited applicability and narrowly interpret statutes with general applicability); People ex rel. Lungren v. Cotter & Co. (1997) 53 Cal. App. 4th 1373, 1384, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 368] .

§ 126A.24 State Law Preemption of Local Law

[1] General Rule

Generally, city and county ordinances must not conflict with general laws [Cal. Const., art. XI, § 7; Gov. Code § 37100; but see discussion under § 126A.13[2]], but they will be presumed valid until a conflict is shown [Water Quality Assn. v. Santa Barbara County (1996) 44 Cal. App. 4th 732, 740-741, 52 Cal. Rptr. 2d 184] . Absent a clear indication of preemptive intent from the Legislature, the court presumes that local regulation in an area over which the local government traditionally has exercised control is not preempted by state law [Rental Housing Ass'n of N. Alameda Cty. v. City of Oakland (2009) 171 Cal. App. 4th 741, 752, 90 Cal. Rptr. 3d 181]. However, once a conflict with state law is found to exist, the ordinance is void [Building Industry Association of Northern California v. City of Livermore (1996) 45 Cal. App. 4th 719, 724, 52 Cal. Rptr. 2d 902] . A conflict exists if the ordinance duplicates, contradicts, or enters into a field of regulation expressly or impliedly reserved to the state [Lancaster v. Municipal Court (1972) 6 Cal. 3d 805, 807-808, 100 Cal. Rptr. 609, 494 P.2d 681 ; Water Quality Assn. v. Santa Barbara County (1996) 44 Cal. App. 4th 732, 740-741, 52 Cal. Rptr. 2d 184 ; Music Plus Four, Inc. v. Barnet (1980) 114 Cal. App. 3d 113, 121, 170 Cal. Rptr. 419 ; Citizens for Uniform Laws v. County of Contra Costa (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 1468, 1473-1475, 285 Cal. Rptr. 456 (no preemption where purpose of local ordinance did not conflict with purpose of state statute)]. If the state's preemption of the field is not complete, however, local supplemental legislation is not deemed conflicting to the extent that it covers phases of the subject which have not been covered by state law [Baron v. City of Los Angeles (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 535, 541, 86 Cal. Rptr. 673, 469 P.2d 353] . Additionally, if the statute contains language indicating that the Legislature did not intend its regulations to be exclusive, the general rule permitting additional supplementary local regulations has been applied [Korean American Legal Advocacy Foundation v. City of Los Angeles (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 376, 393, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 530 ; see Lowe v. City of Commerce (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 1075, 1082, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 356 (ordinance allowed exclusion for broader range of conduct, but did not directly conflict with state statute)].

The first step in a preemption analysis is to determine whether the local regulation explicitly conflicts with or duplicates any provision of state law [Big Creek Lumber Co. v. County of Santa Cruz (2006) 38 Cal. 4th 1139, 45 Cal. Rptr. 3d 21, 136 P.3d 821 (Pub. Res. Code § 4516.5(d), which prohibits county regulation of "conduct of timber operations," does not expressly preempt local zoning ordinances that regulate location of timber operations but not manner in which they are carried out)]. If the local regulation does not expressly contradict or duplicate state law, its validity must then be evaluated under implied preemption principles [see Cohen v. Board of Supervisors (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 277, 291-292, 219 Cal. Rptr. 467, 707 P.2d 840 ; California Rifle & Pistol Assn. v. City of West Hollywood (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 1302, 1310, 78 Cal. Rptr. 2d 591] . Local law contradicts state law when it is inimical to state law, and duplicates state law when it is coextensive with it [Great W. Shows, Inc. v. County of Los Angeles (2002) 27 Cal. 4th 853, 860, 864-869, 118 Cal. Rptr. 2d 746, 44 P.3d 120 (local gun show ordinances not preempted by state gun-show laws); Xiloj-Itzep v. City of Agoura Hills (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 620, 644, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 879] .

Under these principles, there are three tests to determine whether the Legislature has impliedly preempted local regulation of a particular subject by manifesting an intent to fully occupy the particular area of law [Nordyke v. King (2002) 27 Cal. 4th 875, 882, 118 Cal. Rptr. 2d 761, 44 P.3d 133 (firearms-sales ordinance not preempted by state gun-show laws); Great W. Shows, Inc. v. County of Los Angeles (2002) 27 Cal. 4th 853, 860, 118 Cal. Rptr. 2d 746, 44 P.3d 120] :

- Whether the subject matter has been so fully and completely covered by general law as to indicate that it has become exclusively a matter of state concern;

- Whether the subject matter has been partially covered by a general law couched in such terms as to indicate clearly that a paramount state concern will not tolerate further or additional local action; or

- Whether the subject matter has been partially covered by general law, and the subject is of such a nature that the adverse effect of a local ordinance on the transient citizens of the state outweighs the possible benefit to the locality.

Thus, preemption by implication of legislative intent exists when the scope or the goal of state legislation necessitates the abrogation of local regulation. Preemption by implication may not be found when the Legislature has expressed its intent to permit local regulation. Similarly, it should not be found when the statutory scheme recognizes local regulations [Waste Resource Technologies v. Department of Public Health (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 299, 305, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 422] .

Where the legislature has adopted statutes governing a particular subject matter, its intent with regard to occupying the field to the exclusion of all local regulation is not to be measured alone by the language used but by the whole purpose and scope of the legislative scheme [Sequoia Park Associates v. Cty. of Sonoma (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 1270, 1278, 98 Cal. Rptr. 3d 669] .

A party claiming preemption of local law has the burden of demonstrating state law preemption [In re Jennifer S. (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 64, 69, 101 Cal. Rptr. 3d 467] .

For a discussion and forms relating to state preemption of local licensing ordinances, see Ch. 471B, Licensing by Public Agencies, §§ 471B.13[2] and 471B.113 et seq.

For discussion of state law preemption of local initiatives, see Ch. 302, Initiative, Referendum, and Recall, § 302.12[1][b].

[2] Charter Cities and Counties

Despite the general rule that city ordinances must not conflict with general laws [see Cal. Const., art. XI, § 7; Gov. Code § 37100], a city that adopts a charter may provide in the charter that the city may make and enforce all ordinances with respect to municipal affairs, subject only to restrictions and limitations provided in the charter. With respect to other matters, a charter city is subject to general laws. With respect to municipal affairs, the city charter supersedes all inconsistent laws [Cal. Const., art. XI, § 5(a); Stuart v. Civil Service Com. (1985) 174 Cal. App. 3d 201, 206, 219 Cal. Rptr. 770] . Under Cal. Const., art. XI, §§ 5 and 7, it is clear that ordinances enacted by a charter city are subject to and controlled by conflicting state legislative action unless the subject matter is a "municipal affair," as those words are used in Cal. Const., art. XI, § 5 [Whisman v. San Francisco Unified Sch. Dist. (1978) 86 Cal. App. 3d 782, 789, 150 Cal. Rptr. 548 (school system not municipal affair)]. Thus, when a charter city is involved, even if the state has preempted the field in which the city is legislating [see § 126A.B13[1]], the city's legislation may still be valid if it relates to a "municipal affair" [Doe v. City and County of San Francisco (1982) 136 Cal. App. 3d 509, 512, 186 Cal. Rptr. 380] .

The courts have not given a general definition to the term "municipal affair." The determination whether a matter is a municipal affair or one of statewide concern is an ad hoc inquiry [California Fed. Savings & Loan Assn. v. City of Los Angeles (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 1, 15-16, 283 Cal. Rptr. 569, 812 P. 2d 916] . The issue is not to be resolved by cordoning off an entire area of governmental activity as either a municipal affair or one of statewide concern. Invalidation of a city's measure does not necessarily mean the subject is not appropriate for municipal regulation, but that under the historical circumstances presented, the state has a more substantial interest in the subject than the charter city. Thus, invalidation of the city measure does not necessarily mean that the city could not legislate in the field if the statute were repealed. Moreover, a decision upholding a charter city measure does not preclude superseding state legislation in a later case if the factual justification of statewide dimension is subsequently demonstrated. In the case of true conflict, the decision hinges on the identification of a convincing basis for legislative action originating in extramunicipal concerns justifying legislative supersession based on sensible, pragmatic considerations [California Fed. Savings & Loan Assn. v. City of Los Angeles (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 1, 17-18, 283 Cal. Rptr. 569, 812 P. 2d 916] .

The police power arises from the legislative power granted in Cal. Const., art. IV, § 1, as well as from the power of initiative set forth in Cal. Const., art. II, §§ 8, 10, 11.

The California constitutional restrictions and procedures for exercise of eminent domain, also applicable, where relevant, to claims for inverse condemnation, are found in Cal. Const., art. I, § 19.

The California tax system is set forth in the California Constitution, mainly Articles XIII, XIII A, XIII B, XIII C, and XIII D. The provision barring the Legislature from delegating the power to tax to a private entity, or surrendering or suspending the taxing power by grant or contract is Cal. Const., art. XI, § 11.

Federal constitutional restrictions on state taxation are found in U.S. Const., art. I, § 10, cl. 2, art. VI, as well as the Commerce Clause, U.S. *Const., art. PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Governmental Powers

-126A California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 126A.31

§ 126A.31 Police Power

[1] General Nature of Police Power

The police power is an exercise of the sovereign right of the government to protect the lives, health, morals, comfort, and general welfare of the people [Keystone Bituminous Coal Ass'n v. DeBenedictis (1987) 480 U.S. 470, 503, 107 S. Ct. 1232, 94 L. Ed. 2d 472 ; quoting Manigault v. Springs, 199 U.S. 473, 480, 26 S. Ct. 127, 50 L. Ed. 274] .

The courts will not nullify laws enacted under the police power unless they are manifestly unreasonable, arbitrary or capricious, having no real or substantial relation to the public health, safety, morals or general welfare [Ratkovich v. City of San Bruno (1966) 245 Cal.App.2d 870, 878-879, 54 Cal. Rptr. 333 , quoting Miller v. Board of Public Works (1925) 195 Cal. 477, 490, 234 P. 381, 38 A. L. R. 1479] .

[2] Power to Regulate

In the civil context, the police power is simply the power of sovereignty or power to govern, i.e., the inherent reserved power of the state to subject individual rights to reasonable regulation for the general welfare [Sinclair Paint Co. v. State Bd. of Equalization (1997) 15 Cal. 4th 866, 878, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d 447, 937 P.2d 1350 ; Massingill v. Department of Food & Agriculture (2002) 102 Cal. App. 4th 498, 504, 125 Cal. Rptr. 2d 561] . All contract and property rights are held subject to its fair exercise [Atlantic Coast Line R. R. Co. v. Goldsboro (1914) 232 U.S. 548, 558, 34 S.Ct. 364, 58 L.Ed. 721 , citing Texas &c. R.R. Co. v. Miller, 221 U.S. 408, 414, 415] . The enforcement of uncompensated obedience to a regulation established under this power for the public health or safety is not an unconstitutional taking of property without compensation or without due process of law [Atlantic Coast Line R. R. Co. v. Goldsboro (1914) 232 U.S. 548, 558-559, 34 S.Ct. 364, 58 L.Ed. 721 , citing Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. Chicago (1896) 166 U.S. 226, 255].

If it appears that the regulation under criticism is not in any way designed to promote the health, comfort, safety, or welfare of the community, or that the means employed have no real and substantial relation to the avowed or ostensible purpose, or that there is wanton or arbitrary interference with private rights, the question arises whether the lawmaking body has exceeded the legitimate bound of the police power [Atlantic Coast Line R. R. Co. v. Goldsboro (1914) 232 U.S. 548, 559, 34 S.Ct. 364, 58 L.Ed. 721] . Regulation of economic interests that goes too far may become a taking even though the property remains in private hands [Massingill v. Department of Food& Agriculture (2002) 102 Cal. App. 4th 498, 505-506, 125 Cal. Rptr. 2d 561 , quoting Kavanau v. Santa Monica Rent Control Bd. (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 761, 773, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 672, 941 P.2d 851] .

Among other things, the police power empowers cities to control and organize development within their boundaries as a means of serving the general welfare [Hernandez v. City of Hanford (2007) 41 Cal. 4th 279, 296, 59 Cal. Rptr. 3d 442, 159 P.3d 33].

For discussion of regulatory takings, see Ch. 247, Eminent Domain and Inverse Condemnation, § 247.201.

[3] Emergency Police Power

The police power doctrine of noncompensable loss applies in emergency situations when private property is directly taken or damaged by the government due to public necessity and to avert impending peril [Holtz v. Superior Court (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 296, 305, 90 Cal. Rptr. 345, 475 P.2d 441] . This doctrine extends even to incidental damage to private property by police officers in the course of efforts to enforce the law [see Customer Co. v. City of Sacramento (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 368, 384-385, 41 Cal. Rptr. 2d 658, 895 P.2d 900] .

For discussion of the noncompensable loss doctrine, see Ch. 247, Eminent Domain and Inverse Condemnation, § 247.13[2].

[4] Police Power Is Inalienable

The police power can neither be abdicated nor bargained away, and is inalienable even by express grant [Atlantic Coast Line R. R. Co. v. Goldsboro (1914) 232 U.S. 548, 558, 34 S.Ct. 364, 58 L.Ed. 721 , citing Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Miller (1911) 221 U.S. 408, 414, 415]. Accordingly, a governmental entity may not contract away its right to exercise the police power in the future [Cotta v. City and County of San Francisco (2007) 157 Cal. App. 4th 1550, 1557, 69 Cal. Rptr. 3d 612]. A contract that purports to do so is invalid as against public policy [Cotta v. City and County of San Francisco (2007) 157 Cal. App. 4th 1550, 1558, 69 Cal. Rptr. 3d 612].

[5] Police Power Compared With Eminent Domain

The very essence of the police power as differentiated from the power of eminent domain is that the deprivation of individual rights and property cannot prevent its operation, once it is shown that its exercise is proper and that the method of its exercise is reasonably within the meaning of due process of law [Consolidated Rock Products Co. v. City of Los Angeles (1962) 57 Cal. 2d 515, 530, 20 Cal. Rptr. 638, 370 P.2d 342 , quoting Beverly Oil Co. v. City of Los Angeles (1953) 40 Cal. 2d 552, 557-558, 254 P.2d 865] .

For discussion of eminent domain, see § 126A.32.

[6] Regulatory Fees Compared With Taxation

Regulatory fees imposed under the police power are fees charged in connection with regulatory activities that do not exceed the reasonable cost of providing services necessary to the activity for which the fee is charged and that are not levied for unrelated revenue purposes [Sinclair Paint Co. v. State Bd. of Equalization (1997) 15 Cal. 4th 866, 876, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d 447, 937 P.2d 1350] . A "mitigating effects" measure is a police power measures imposing fees to defray the actual or anticipated adverse effects of various business operations, whether imposed at licensing or permitting or as a remedial measure [Sinclair Paint Co. v. State Bd. of Equalization (1997) 15 Cal. 4th 866, 877, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d 447, 937 P.2d 1350] . The police power is broad enough to include mandatory remedial measures to mitigate the past, present, or future adverse impact of the fee payer's operations, at least where the measure requires a causal connection or nexus between the product and its adverse effects [Sinclair Paint Co. v. State Bd. of Equalization (1997) 15 Cal.

4th 866, 877-878, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d 447, 937 P.2d 1350] . To show a fee is a regulatory fee and not a special tax, the government should prove (1) the estimated costs of the service or regulatory activity, and (2) the basis for determining the manner in which the costs are apportioned, so that charges allocated to a payor bear a fair or reasonable relationship to the payor's burdens on or benefits from the regulatory activity [Sinclair Paint Co. v. State Bd. of Equalization (1997) 15 Cal. 4th 866, 878, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d 447, 937 P.2d 1350 , citing San Diego Gas & Electric Co. v. San Diego County Air Pollution Control Dist. (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 1132, 1146, 250 Cal. Rptr. 420] .

Regulatory fees, unlike other types of user fees, often are not easily correlated to a specific, ascertainable cost. This may be due to the complexity of the regulatory scheme and the multifaceted responsibilities of the department or agency charged with implementing or enforcing the applicable regulations; the multifaceted responsibilities of each of the employees who are charged with implementing or enforcing the regulations; the intermingled functions of various departments as well as intermingled funding sources; and expansive accounting systems that are not designed to track specific tasks [Collier v. City and County of San Francisco (2007) 151 Cal. App. 4th 1326, 1349, 60 Cal. Rptr. 3d 698].

A municipality may, under its police powers, spend regulatory fee revenues for the purpose of legitimate regulation so long as those revenues do not exceed the reasonably necessary expense of the regulatory effort [Collier v. City and County of San Francisco (2007) 151 Cal. App. 4th 1326, 1339, 60 Cal. Rptr. 3d 698].

For discussion of taxation power, see § 126A.33.

§ 126A.32 Eminent Domain and Inverse Condemnation

[1] Distinguishing Eminent Domain from Inverse Condemnation

Cal. Const., art. I, § 19 authorizes both eminent domain proceedings instituted by a public entity to acquire private property, as well as inverse condemnation proceedings initiated by a landowner to obtain compensation for a claimed taking or damaging of his or her property. Both types of actions are governed by the same principles [San Diego Metropolitan Transit Development Bd. v. Handlery Hotel, Inc. (1999, 4th Dist) 73 Cal App 4th 517, 529, 86 Cal Rptr 2d 473] .

"Direct condemnation" refers to a condemnation proceeding brought by a person or public entity empowered to exercise the right to condemn property by eminent domain. "Inverse condemnation" refers to a proceeding brought by the owner of a propertyinterest taken or damaged by such a person or public entity that has failed to initiate condemnation proceedings against the owner [see Klopping v. Whittier (1972) 8 Cal. 3d 39, 43, 104 Cal. Rptr. 1, 500 P.2d 1345] .

For detailed discussion of and forms of complaints in eminent domain and inverse condemnation, see Ch. 247, Eminent Domain and Inverse Condemnation .

[2] Power of Eminent Domain

[a] The Nature of Eminent Domain

Eminent domain is the power of government to take private property for public use. The power is inherent in the sovereignty of the state [County of San Diego v. Miller (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 684, 687, 119 Cal. Rptr. 491, 532 P.2d 139] . However, the California Constitution sets forth the power, as well as the limitations on it [see Cal. Const., art. I, § 19]. Only entities authorize to use eminent domain, independently or jointly [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.140(b)], may do so, including [for discussion, see Ch. 247, Eminent Domain and Inverse Condemnation, § 247.30]:

- Local entities within their territorial jurisdictions [Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.050].

- State agencies,
- Special districts,
- Cites and counties,
- School districts,
- Private persons, and
- Quasi-public entities.

For detailed discussion of and forms of complaints in eminent domain, see Ch. 247, Eminent Domain and Inverse Condemnation .

[b] Requirement of Public Use

A public use is one that concerns the whole community as distinguished from a particular individual or particular number of individuals or that promotes the general interest in its relation to any legitimate object of government. A public use is not limited to matters of mere business necessity and ordinary convenience, but may extend to matters of public health, recreation, and enjoyment [Housing Authority v. Dockweiler (1939) 14 Cal. 2d 437, 450, 94 P.2d 794] . However, when the Legislature provides by statute that a use, purpose, object, or function is one for which the power of eminent domain may be exercised, this action is a legislative declaration that the use, purpose, object, or function is public [Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.010]. Thus, ordinarily a taking by a public entity or public utility does not present a public use issue since the property sought to be taken is usually devoted to a purpose that is declared to be a public use by statute.

[c] Statutory Scheme Governs

The legislature has enacted an elaborate statutory scheme governing the planned taking of private property for a public use [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1230.010 et seq.]. Except as otherwise provided by statute, the power of eminent domain may be exercised only as provided in that law [Code Civ. Proc. § 1230.020]. The Eminent Domain Law does not affect any other statute granting jurisdiction over any issue in eminent domain proceedings to the Public Utilities Commission [Code Civ. Proc. § 1230.060; for discussion of the Commission's powers on eminent domain, see Ch. 247, Eminent Domain and Inverse Condemnation, § 247.10[3]].

[3] Compensation for Inverse Condemnation

[a] Nature of Inverse Condemnation

Inverse condemnation is an invasion or appropriation by a public entity of some valuable property right that a landowner possesses that directly and specially affects the landowner to his or her injury [Selby Realty Co. v. City of San Buenaventura (1973) 10 Cal. 3d 110, 119-120, 109 Cal. Rptr. 799, 514 P.2d 111] . Inverse condemnation actions are grounded in the constitutional proscription against taking or damaging without just compensation [see Cal. Const., art. I, § 19]. Such an action may be maintained even though the defendant does not have statutory authority to exercise affirmative eminent domain powers to accomplish the same result as the relief sought [Baker v. Burbank-Glendale-Pasadena Airport Authority (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 862, 867-868, 218 Cal. Rptr. 293, 705 P.2d 866 , cert. denied, 475 U.S. 1017 (1986)] .

For detailed discussion of and forms of complaints in actions for inverse condemnation, see Ch. 247, Eminent Domain and Inverse Condemnation, § 247.190 et seq.

[b] Elements of Cause of Action

To establish a cause of action for inverse condemnation, a plaintiff must show:

- An injury to private property resulting from a deliberate act undertaken to fulfill the public objects of a project as a whole. Neither negligent acts committed during the routine day-to-day operation of a public improvement, nor negligence in the routine operations having no relation to the function of the project as conceived, gives rise to an inverse condemnation claim [Bauer v. County of Ventura (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 276, 286-287, 289 P.2d 1] .

- A substantial cause-and-effect relationship excluding the possibility that other forces alone produced the injury [Belair v. Riverside County Flood Control Dist. (1988) 47 Cal. 3d 550, 559, 253 Cal. Rptr. 693, 764 P.2d 1070] .

- The owner of the damaged property, if uncompensated, would contribute more than a proper share to the public undertaking. That is because the underlying purpose of the constitutional provision requiring compensation is to distribute evenly throughout the community the loss inflicted on the individual. A contrary policy consideration is that compensation too freely allowed will seriously impede, if not stop, beneficial public improvements because of the greatly increased cost [Varjabedian v. City of Madera (1977) 20 Cal. 3d 285, 296, 142 Cal. Rptr. 429, 572 P.2d 43] .

For further discussion of the elements of inverse condemnation, see Ch. 247,Eminent Domain and Inverse Condemnation, § 247.193.

[c] Property the Taking of Which Must Be Compensated

For inverse condemnation purposes, the term "property" has a broad definition. It is not used in the nontechnical sense of the physical thing with respect to which the citizen exercises rights recognized by law. Instead, it denotes the group of rights inherent in the citizen's relation to the physical thing, such as the right to possess, use, and dispose of it [Agins v. Tiburon (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 266, 273, 157 Cal. Rptr. 372, 598 P.2d 25 , aff'd, 447 U.S. 255, 100 S. Ct. 2138, 65 L. Ed. 2d 106 (1980)] .

Exception:

Under a rule that is a vestige of former common law, if the government acts "reasonably" in the design, construction, or operation of a flood control project, or of other public improvements which increase the flow of surface water into a natural watercourse, it may be immune from liability for resulting flood damage [Locklin v. City of Lafayette (1993) 7 Cal. 4th 327, 367, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 613, 867 P.2d 724 ; Belair v. Riverside County Flood Control Dist. (1988) 47 Cal. 3d 550, 565-566, 253 Cal. Rptr. 693, 764 P.2d 1070 ; for discussion, see Ch. 575, Waters, § 575.11[2]].

[d] California Takings Clause Broader Than Federal

California's Takings Clause, Cal. Const., art. I, § 19, requires compensation for damage as well as a taking, which the Federal Takings Clause, U.S. Const., amend. V does not. Therefore, the California Takings Clause protects a somewhat broader range of property values than does the corresponding federal provision. Aside from that difference, California courts have construed the clauses congruently. Thus, courts have analyzed takings claims under decisions of both the California and United States Supreme Courts [Monks v. City of Rancho Palos Verdes (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 263, 264, 84 Cal. Rptr. 3d 75].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Governmental Powers

-126A California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 126A.33

§ 126A.33 Taxation

[1] Constitutional Power to Tax

[a] Under the California Constitution

The California tax system is set forth in the California Constitution, mainly Articles XIII, XIII A, XIII B, XIII C, and XIII D. The Legislature cannot delegate the power to tax to a private entity, nor may the power to tax be surrendered or suspended by grant or contract [Cal. Const., art. XI, § 11, art. XIII, § 31; see Howard Jarvis Taxpayers' Assn. v. Fresno Metropolitan Projects Authority (1995) 40 Cal. App. 4th 1359, 48 Cal. Rptr. 2d 269 (construing and discussing history of Cal. Const., art. XI, § 11)]. The Legislature cannot impose taxes for local purposes but may authorize local governments to impose them [Cal. Const., art. XIII, § 24]. Local governments have no inherent taxing power; they have only such power as granted by the state Constitution or by the Legislature [Sacramento Mun. Utility Dist. v. County of Solano (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 1163, 1166, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 286] .

Taxation under the California Constitution must generally abide by the other provisions of the Constitution [see, e.g., City of Alameda v. Premier Communications Network, Inc. (1984) 156 Cal. App. 3d 148, 154, 202 Cal. Rptr. 684 , cert. denied, 469 U.S. 1073 (invalidating tax that was "differentially burdensome" on instrumentalities of speech or press, such as subscription television services, as interference with First Amendment rights); Ferran v. City of Palo Alto (1942) 50 Cal. App. 2d 374, 378, 122 P.2d 965 (municipal taxes must not exceed statutory grant of authority to tax)].

[b] Limits Under the Federal Constitution

Taxation under the California Constitution must generally abide by the other provisions of general or specific application in the U.S. Constitution that may bear on the power of taxation [see, e.g., Hillsborough Township v. Cromwell (1946) 326 U.S. 620, 623, 66 S. Ct. 445, 90 L. Ed. 358 (equal protection)], as follows:

- State and local governments are prohibited from imposing any tax on exports or from taxing instrumentalities of the federal government without the consent of Congress [U.S. Const., art. I, § 10, cl. 2, art. VI].

- The commerce clause and the Fourteenth Amendment due process clause of the Federal Constitution limit the imposition of state and local taxes. State or local taxes may not place an undue burden on interstate commerce [U.S. Const., art. I, § 8, cl. 3].

- The U.S. Constitution provides limits on a state's taxation of foreign commerce that are similar to the restrictions on interstate commerce [U.S. Const., art. I, § 8, cl. 3].

For further discussion of limits on the power of taxation by other constitutional provisions, see Ch. 540, Taxes and Assessments, § 540.11.

[2] The Property Tax

Under the Constitution, property in California is generally subject to property tax in proportion to its full value [Cal. Const., art. XIII, § 1]. Intangible property is exempt [Cal. Const., art. XIII, § 2]. Real and personal property are assessed separately, but the rate for personal property cannot be higher than that for real property in the same jurisdiction [Cal. Const., art. XIII, §§ 2, 13]. The tax rate for the secured roll is set by the county or city every budget year. That rate is also the rate for the unsecured roll for the next year [Cal. Const., art. XIII, § 12].

The combined maximum of ad valorem taxes that may be levied on real property by all taxing agencies is one percent of the property's full cash value [Cal. Const., art. XIII A, § 1(a)]. The one-percent limitation does not apply to ad valorem property taxes or special assessments levied either to pay indebtedness that was approved by the voters prior to July 1, 1978, or to make annual payments for the principal and interest on any bonded indebtedness for acquisition or improvement of real property if that indebtedness was approved after June 4, 1986 by a two-thirds vote [Cal. Const., art. XIII A, § 1(b)]. From values set at the assessor's appraisal of full cash value as shown on the 1975-76 tax rolls, the assessed value of real property may only be increased by an inflation factor of not more than two percent per year. However, real property may be reassessed if the property is purchased, newly constructed, or changes ownership [Cal. Const., art. XIII A, § 2(a), (b)]. For these purposes, the terms "purchased," "newly constructed," and "change in ownership" have exclusions [see, e.g., Cal. Const., art. XIII A, § 2(a), (c), (d), (g), (h)].

To prevent the imposition of new taxes to make up for the decrease in property taxes resulting from Cal. Const., art. XIII A, §§ 1, 2, Cal. Const., art. XIII A, §§ 3, 4 prohibit new ad valorem real property taxes and new sales or transaction taxes on real property sales and place other restrictions on state or local taxes.

Each county board of equalization meets to equalize the values of all property on the local assessment roll by adjusting individual assessments [Cal. Const., art. XIII, § 16]. The state's functions are limited to equalizing the assessment rolls among the counties, assessing publicly owned property subject to local taxation and property of railroad, telephone, electric generation facilities, and utility companies, providing regulatory and advisory services for counties, and performing certain appellate functions [Cal. Const., art. XIII, §§ 11, 19].

For detailed discussion of property taxes, see Ch. 540, Taxes and Assessments, § 540.30 et seq.

[3] Sales and Use and Other Excise Taxes

Provisions of the California Constitution with respect to sales and use tax are limited to:

- Limitations on the extent to which the Legislature may make changes to existing statutes providing for sales and use taxation by local government [Cal. Const., art. XIII, § 25.5],

- Sharing of revenues of sales and use taxes among local governments [Cal. Const., art. XIII, § 29],

- Barring the taxation of the sale or use of food except at provided by existing statutes [Cal. Const., art. XIII, § 34],

- Imposition of sales and use taxes on gross receipts and certain other activities associated with selling tangible personal property at retail [Cal. Const., art. XIII, § 29],

The state Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control is granted exclusive power under the California Constitution to collect license fees or occupational taxes related to alcoholic beverage sales [Cal. Const., art. XX, § 22].

Under Cal. Const., art. XIII C, all new local general and special taxes must be approved by a vote of the local electorate [Santa Clara County Local Transportation Authority v. Guardino (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 220, 233, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 207, 902 P.2d 225] . No local government or district may impose any special tax without the approval of two thirds of the voters voting in an election on the issue [see Cal. Const., art. XIII C, § 2(d)].

For detailed discussion of sales and use taxes, see Ch. 540, Taxes and Assessments, § 540.110 et seq.

[4] The Income Tax

Taxes on or measured by income may be imposed on persons, corporations, or other entities as prescribed by law [Cal. Const., art. XIII, § 26(a)]. Interest on bonds issued by the state or a local government in the state is exempt from taxes on income [Cal. Const., art. XIII, § 26(b)], and the income of a nonprofit educational institution of collegiate grade within the State of California is exempt from taxes on or measured by income if two constitutional conditions are met [Cal. Const., art. XIII, § 26(c)]. A further provision exempts certain income of nonprofit organizations [see Cal. Const., art. XIII, § 26(d)].

For detailed discussion of the state income tax, see Ch. 540, Taxes and Assessments, § 540.250 et seq.

C. Governmental Powers

-126A California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 126A.34

§ 126A.34 State Laws May Not Impair Obligation of Contracts

[1] The State and Federal Constitutional Provisions

The California contracts clause, Cal. Const., art. I, § 9, is similar to the contract clause of the federal constitution, U.S. Const., art. I, § 10, cl. 1. prohibiting the states from passing any law impairing the obligation of contracts [White v Davis (2002) 108 Cal. App. 4th 197, 133 Cal. Rptr. 2d 691 , rev'd on other grounds, in part, remanded, ordered published 30 Cal. 4th 528, 133 Cal. Rptr. 2d 648, 68 P.3d 74] .

For Example:

- Given that the parties, consisting of municipalities, utility companies, and cable television providers, did not contemplate that the cost of repairing inherent trenching damage would fall under the repair cost provision of the franchises, new municipal fees to cover trenching damage were simply a unilateral increase in the franchise fee. Such an increase was a substantial impairment of franchise contracts in violation of the federal and state constitutions [PG &E Co. v City of Union City (N.D. Cal., 2002) 220 F. Supp. 2d 1070] .

"The constitutional prohibition against contract impairment does not exact a rigidly literal fulfillment; rather, it demands that contracts be enforced according to their "just and reasonable purport;" not only is the existing law read into contracts in order to fix their obligations, but the reservation of the essential attributes of continuing governmental power is also read into contracts as a postulate of the legal order. The contract clause and the principle of continuing governmental power are construed in harmony; although not permitting a construction which permits contract repudiation or destruction, the impairment provision does not prevent laws which restrict a party to the gains "reasonably to be expected from the contract" [People v Gipson (2004) 117 Cal. App. 4th 1065, 1069-1070, 12 Cal. Rptr. 3d 478 (citing Board of Administration v. Wilson (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 1109, 1130-1131, 61 Cal. Rptr. 2d 207)].

[2] Applicability to Vested Rights Under General Statutes

[a] Rights Against the State

For purposes of the constitutional limitation on the power of the state to modify the obligation of contracts [see Const., art. I, § 9], a statute [San Bernardino Public Employees Assn. v. City of Fontana (1998, 4th Dist.) 67 Cal. App. 4th 1215, 1220, 1222, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 634] or initiative [see Hermosa Beach Stop Oil Coalition v City of Hermosa Beach (2001) 86 Cal. App. 4th 534, 549, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 447] will be treated as a contract with binding obligations when the statutory language and circumstances accompanying its passage clearly evince a legislative intent to create private rights of contractual nature enforceable against the state.

However, the right against the state must have vested in order for the impairment to be invalid [Olson v. Cory (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 532, 536-538, 178 Cal. Rptr. 568, 636 P.2d 532 ; White v Davis (2002) 108 Cal. App. 4th 197, 228, 133 Cal. Rptr. 2d 691 , revd on other grounds, in part, remanded, ordered published 30 Cal. 4th 528, 133 Cal. Rptr. 2d 648, 68 P.3d 74 (public employee right to compensation)]. The vested rights doctrine is predicated upon estoppel of the governing body. This is a principle of equitable estoppel which may be applied against the government where justice and fairness require it. An equitable estoppel requiring the government to exempt a land use from a subsequently imposed regulation must include [Hermosa Beach Stop Oil Coalition v City of Hermosa Beach (2001) 86 Cal. App. 4th 534, 551-552, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 447 (citing Santa Monica Pines, Ltd. v. Rent Control Board (1984) 35 Cal. 3d 858, 866-867, 201 Cal. Rptr. 593, 679 P.2d 27)]:

- A promise such as that implied by a building permit that the proposed use will not be prohibited by a class of restrictions that includes the regulation in question and

- Reasonable reliance on the promise by the promisee to the promisee's detriment.

Example:

- A ballot measure that reinstated a total ban on oil drilling within a city did not constitute an unconstitutional impairment of an oil and gas lease that the city had entered into. A developer's rights do not vest until the final building permit is received, which had not happened in this case [Hermosa Beach Stop Oil Coalition v City of Hermosa Beach (2001) 86 Cal. App. 4th 534, 551-553, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 447] .

Conversely, contracting parties whose interests under a contract have not yet vested are not entitled to relief from the impairment of contract obligations [O'Connor v. Superior Court (1979) 90 Cal. App. 3d 107, 114-115, 153 Cal. Rptr. 306] .

For discussion of application of contracts clause to public employees and officers, see Ch. 118, Civil Service , see Ch. 464, Public Entities and Officers: California Tort Claims Act , and see Ch. 469, Public Entities and Officers: Conflicts of Interest .

For discussion of application of contracts clause to retroactive statutes, see Ch. 531, Statutes and Ordinances, § 531.71[7][a].

[b] Rights Against Third Parties

The provision of the California Constitution barring laws that impair the obligation of contracts [Const., art. I, § 9] applies to contracts between private parties [see, e.g., Hellinger v Farmers Group, Inc. (2001) 91 Cal. App. 4th 1049, 1067, 111 Cal. Rptr. 2d 268] .

[c] Exception for Reasonable Use of Police Power

[i] Reserve Police Power Incorporated Into All Contracts

The contract clause must be accommodated to the inherent police power of the state "to safeguard the vital interests of its people" [People v Gipson (2004, 6th Dist) 117 Cal. App. 4th 1065, 1069, 12 Cal. Rptr. 3d 478 (citing 20th Century Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (2001) 90 Cal. App. 4th 1247, 1268, 109 Cal. Rptr. 2d 611] . Consequently, contracts incorporate and contemplate "the reserve power of the state to amend the law or enact additional laws for the public good and in pursuance of public policy" [People v Gipson (2004) 117 Cal. App. 4th 1065, 1070, 12 Cal. Rptr. 3d 478 (citing In re Marriage of Walton (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 108, 112, 104 Cal. Rptr. 472)].

PRACTICE TIP:

A contract that originally agrees to incorporate subsequent changes in the law may bar claims of impairment of the obligation of contracts by subsequent change in the law [Torrance v Workers' Comp. Appeals Bd. (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 371, 185 Cal. Rptr. 645, 650 P.2d 1162] . In drafting contracts, counsel may protect his or her client by including provisions that incorporate or reject incorporation of future changes in the law, as the interests of the client may require.

[ii] Establishing Valid Police Power Impairment of Obligation of Contracts

First, the court must assess the severity of the impact of the exercise of police power upon the contract rights of petitioners [Sonoma County Organization of Public Employees v. County of Sonoma (1979) 23 Cal. 3d 296, 308, 152 Cal. Rptr. 903, 591 P.2d 1 ; Hellinger v Farmers Group, Inc. (2001) 91 Cal. App. 4th 1049, 1063-1064, 111 Cal. Rptr. 2d 268] . If the statute accomplishes a severe impairment of petitioners' contractual rights, the height of the hurdle the state legislation must clear is elevated and a careful examination of the nature and purpose of the statute is required [Sonoma County Organization of Public Employees v. County of Sonoma (1979) 23 Cal. 3d 296, 309, 152 Cal. Rptr. 903, 591 P.2d 1 , citing Allied Structural Steel Company v. Spannaus (1978) 438 U.S. 234, 245, 98 S.Ct. 2716, 57 L.Ed.2d 727, 737 ; Hellinger v Farmers Group, Inc. (2001) 91 Cal. App. 4th 1049, 1064, 111 Cal. Rptr. 2d 268] . Specifically, it must be reasonable and necessary to serve an important state interest [United States Trust Co. v. New Jersey (1977) 431 U.S. 1, 29, 97 S.Ct. 1505, 52 L.Ed.2d 92] . In this respect, some cases give particular weight to legislation enacted in response to a fiscal emergency [Sonoma County Organization of Public Employees v. County of Sonoma (1979) 23 Cal. 3d 296, 309-310, 152 Cal. Rptr. 903, 591 P.2d 1 (lack of real emergency invalidated impairment); Hellinger v Farmers Group, Inc. (2001) 91 Cal. App. 4th 1049, 1064, 111 Cal. Rptr. 2d 268 (social or economic problem); but see United States Trust Co. v. New Jersey (1977) 431 U.S. 1, 22-23, 97 S.Ct. 1505, 52 L.Ed.2d 92 (fiscal emergency is but one factor in determining reasonableness of exercise of police power impairing obligation of contracts)]. Finally, that the exercise of police power is temporary or limited to the exigency will help to validate an exercise of police power impairing the obligation of contracts [see El Paso v. Simmons (1965) 379 U.S. 497, 516, 85 S. Ct. 577, 13 L. Ed. 2d 446 ; Home Building & Loan Assn. v. Blaisdell (1934) 290 U.S. 398, 439-440, 54 S.Ct. 231, 78 L.Ed. 413, 423, 88 A.L.R. 1481] . In the absence of an emergency, the existence at the time of the making of the contract of laws or regulations already affecting the area with which the new enactment is concerned may justify upholding the new exercise of police power [Veix v. Sixth Ward Bldg. & Loan Ass'n (1940) 310 U.S. 32, 38, 60 S. Ct. 792, 84 L. Ed. 1061 ; Hellinger v Farmers Group, Inc. (2001) 91 Cal. App. 4th 1049, 1064, 111 Cal. Rptr. 2d 268] .

Example:

- CCP § 340.9, which extended the time for presenting insurance claims for damages from the Northridge earthquake, did not impair an insurer's contractual rights under Cal. Const., art. I, § 9. Although reviving contract-barred claims constituted an impairment of contract, the impairment went to the remedy for a breach of the insurance contract, rather than to its core provisions. Insurers still had available all applicable defenses to such revived claims other than the limitations defense. In addition, § 340.9 was supported by what the Legislature could reasonably view as significant, compelling, and legitimate state interests, thus satisfying the public purpose portion of the constitutional test. As applied to the instant case, § 340.9 was also a reasonable and appropriate statute because it was limited in both time and application [Hellinger v Farmers Group, Inc. (2001) 91 Cal. App. 4th 1049, 111 Cal. Rptr. 2d 268] .

Where a less drastic modification of the contracting party's rights would have sufficed, alternative means of achieving the state's goals can be adopted, and changed circumstances do not justify the impairment because the public need has been known by the state, a statute modifying the state's contractual obligations unconstitutionally impairs the obligation of contract [United States Trust Co. v. New Jersey (1977) 431 U.S. 1, 26, 29, 97 S.Ct. 1505, 52 L.Ed.2d 92] .

[iii] Additional Consideration When Use of Police Power Affects State's Obligation

While the contract clause is not an absolute bar to subsequent modification of a state's own financial obligations, complete deference to a legislative assessment of reasonableness and necessity is not required because the government's self-interest is at stake [United States Trust Co. v. New Jersey (1977) 431 U.S. 1, 30-31, 97 S.Ct. 1505, 52 L.Ed.2d 92 ; Sonoma County Organization of Public Employees v. County of Sonoma (1979) 23 Cal. 3d 296, 310, 152 Cal. Rptr. 903, 591 P.2d 1] .

Example:

- A ballot measure that reinstated a total ban on oil drilling within a city did not constitute an unconstitutional impairment of an oil and gas lease that the city had entered into. In the face of the developer's legitimate contractually based expectation, a total prohibition of previously authorized conduct was not unconstitutional under Cal. Const., art. I, § 9, where the ballot measure was a legitimate exercise of the city's police power, the lease agreement at issue anticipated regulatory change impacting the project, and significant health and safety concerns supported application of the ballot measure to the project. The ballot measure was an exercise of the city's reserved powers under the lease and it used reasonable and necessary means for implementing its important public purpose [Hermosa Beach Stop Oil Coalition v City of Hermosa Beach (2001) 86 Cal. App. 4th 534, 551-571, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 447] .

[3] Applicability to Decisions by State Courts

Although the US Supreme Court has interpreted the federal contract clause to be "directed only against impairment by legislation and not by judgment of courts" [see Tidal Oil Co. v. Flanagan (1924) 263 U.S. 444, 451, 44 S. Ct. 197, 68 L. Ed. 382] , the California Supreme Court has construed the contract clause in the California constitution to also apply to judicial action [see Bradley v. Superior Court (1957) 48 Cal.2d 509, 519, 310 P.2d 634 ; see also Newhall v. Newhall (1964) 227 Cal. App. 2d 800, 815, 39 Cal. Rptr. 144 (court had no power to modify properly settlement agreement)].

[4] Limitation on Unilateral Modification of Contracts by Public Entities

[a] The General Rule

Cal. Const., art. I, § 9, limits the power of public entities to modify their own contracts with other parties. There can be no impairment of contract by a change in the contract effected with the consent of only one contracting party [San Bernardino Public Employees Ass'n v. City of Fontana (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 1215, 1220, 1222, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 634] . In balancing the sovereign power of the state against this concern, the analysis requires a two-step inquiry into: (1) the nature and extent of the contractual obligation, and (2) the scope of the Legislature's power to modify the obligation [

Teachers' Retirement Board v. Genest (2007) 154 Cal. App. 4th 1012, 1027, 65 Cal. Rptr. 3d 326]. The contract clause and the principle of continuing governmental power are construed in harmony; although not permitting a construction that permits contract repudiation or destruction, the impairment provision does not prevent laws that restrict a party to the gains "reasonably to be expected from the contract [Teachers' Retirement Board v. Genest (2007) 154 Cal. App. 4th 1012, 1027, 65 Cal. Rptr. 3d 326].

[b] Exception for Ultra Vires Contracts

No contractual obligation may be enforced against a public agency unless it appears the agency was authorized by the Constitution or statute to incur the obligation. A contract entered into by a governmental entity without the requisite constitutional or statutory authority is void and unenforceable [White v Davis (2003) 30 Cal. 4th 528, 549, 133 Cal. Rptr. 2d 648, 68 P.3d 74] .

[5] Cause of Action for Impairment of Obligation of Contracts

The constitutional issue of whether a statute impairs the obligation of contracts is not within the exclusive initial jurisdiction of the California Public Employment Relations Board; rather, it is an issue for the judiciary [California Assn. of Professional Scientists v. Schwarzenegger (2006) 137 Cal. App. 4th 371, 380-382, 40 Cal. Rptr. 3d 354 (Board did not have the right to intervene in the lawsuit)] .

The right of a party not to have a state or a political subdivision of a state impair its obligations of contract is protected by U.S. Const., art. I, § 10, cl. 1, and a deprivation of that right may give rise to a cause of action under 42 U.S.C.S. § 1983 [So. Cal. Gas Co. v. City of Santa Ana (9th Cir. 2003) 336 F.3d 885, 887] .

-126A California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 126A.41

§ 126A.41 Substantive Due Process

[1] Distinguished from Procedural Due Process

Under the California constitution, a person may not be deprived of life, liberty, or property without due process of law [Cal. Const., art. I, § 7(a)]. Similarly, the federal constitution provides that "no State shall ... deprive any person of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law" [U.S. Const., amend. XIV, § 1]. The federal provision has been interpreted to "guarantee more than fair process" [County of Sacramento v. Lewis (1998) 523 U.S. 833, 841, 118 S. Ct. 1708, 140 L. Ed. 2d 1043 , quoting Washington v. Glucksberg (1997) 521 U.S. 702, 719, 117 S. Ct. 2258, 138 L. Ed. 2d 772] , in that it covers a substantive sphere as well. Its substantive aspect bars "certain government actions regardless of the fairness of the procedures used to implement them" [County of Sacramento v. Lewis (1998) 523 U.S. 833, 841, 118 S. Ct. 1708, 140 L. Ed. 2d 1043 , quoting Daniels v. Williams (1986) 474 U.S. 327, 331, 106 S. Ct. 662, 88 L. Ed. 2d 662] .

Accordingly, the touchstone of due process is protection of the individual against arbitrary action of government [County of Sacramento v. Lewis (1998) 523 U.S. 833, 845-846, 118 S. Ct. 1708, 140 L. Ed. 2d 1043 , quoting Wolff v. McDonnell (1974) 418 U.S. 539, 558, 94 S. Ct. 2963, 41 L. Ed. 2d 935] , whether the fault lies in a denial of fundamental procedural fairness, i.e., procedural due process, or in the exercise of power without any reasonable justification in the service of a legitimate governmental objective, i.e., substantive due process [County of Sacramento v. Lewis (1998) 523 U.S. 833, 846, 118 S. Ct. 1708, 140 L. Ed. 2d 1043] . The substantive due process guarantee protects against government power arbitrarily and oppressively exercised [County of Sacramento v. Lewis (1998) 523 U.S. 833, 846, 118 S. Ct. 1708, 140 L. Ed. 2d 1043 ; see, e.g., Daniels v. Williams, 474 U.S. at 331].

For discussion of procedural due process, see § 126A.50 et seq.

[2] More Specific Constitutional Violation Controls

The U.S. Supreme Court has "always been reluctant to expand the concept of substantive due process" [County of Sacramento v. Lewis (1998) 523 U.S. 833, 842, 118 S. Ct. 1708, 140 L. Ed. 2d 1043 , quoting Collins v. Harker Heights (1992) 503 U.S. 115, 125, 112 S. Ct. 1061, 117 L. Ed. 2d 261] . Accordingly, where another constitutional provision provides an explicit textual source of constitutional protection against a particular sort of government behavior, that provision and the standard appropriate to that specific provision--not the more generalized notion of substantive due process--must be the guide for analyzing constitutional claims concerning that behavior [County of Sacramento v. Lewis (1998) 523 U.S. 833, 842, 843, 118 S. Ct. 1708, 140 L. Ed. 2d 1043 , quoting Graham v. Connor (1989) 490 U.S. 386, 395, 109 S. Ct. 1865, 104 L. Ed. 2d 443 (1989) and United States v. Lanier (1997) 520 U.S. 259, 272 n.7, 117 S. Ct. 1219, 137 L. Ed. 2d 432] .

[3] Necessity of Deprivation of Life, Liberty, or Property Interest

[a] Initial Showing of Deprivation Required

A claim based on substantive due process must be based on the deprivation of an underlying protected life, liberty or property interest [Stubblefield Construction Co. v. City of San Bernardino (1995) 32 Cal. App. 4th 687, 709 n.13, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 413] . The Due Process Clause specially protects those fundamental rights and liberties that are, objectively, deeply rooted in this nation's history and tradition [Washington v. Glucksberg (1997) 521 U.S. 702, 720-721, 117 S. Ct. 2258, 117 S. Ct. 2302, 138 L. Ed. 2d 772 , quoting Moore v. East Cleveland (1977) 431 U.S. 494, 503, 97 S. Ct. 1932, 52 L. Ed. 2d 531 (plurality opinion)] and so implicit in the concept of ordered liberty that neither liberty nor justice would exist if they were sacrificed [Washington v. Glucksberg (1997) 521 U.S. 702, 721, 117 S. Ct. 2258, 117 S. Ct. 2302, 138 L. Ed. 2d 772 , quoting Palko v. Connecticut (1937) 302 U.S. 319, 325, 326] . A careful description of the asserted fundamental liberty interest is required [Washington v. Glucksberg (1997) 521 U.S. 702, 721, 117 S. Ct. 2258, 117 S. Ct. 2302, 138 L. Ed. 2d 772 , quoting, inter alia, Reno v. Flores (1993) 507 U.S. 292, 301-302, 113 S. Ct. 1439, 123 L. Ed. 2d 1] . In making that description, the nation's history, legal traditions, and practices provide the crucial guideposts for responsible decision making [Washington v. Glucksberg (1997) 521 U.S. 702, 721, 117 S. Ct. 2258, 117 S. Ct. 2302, 138 L. Ed. 2d 772 , quoting Collins v. Harker Heights (1992) 503 U.S. 115, 125, 112 S. Ct. 1061, 117 L. Ed. 2d 261] .

Conversely, the absence of any claim by the plaintiff that an interest in liberty or property has been impaired is a fatal defect in her substantive due process argument [Stubblefield Construction Co. v. City of San Bernardino (1995) 32 Cal. App. 4th 687, 709 n.13, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 413] .

For discussion of action for damages for deprivation of life, liberty, or property without substantive due process under 42 U.S.C.S. § 1983, see Ch. 113, Civil Rights: The Post-Civil War Civil Rights Statutes, § 113.14.

[b] Interests Found to Be Protected by Substantive Due Process

In addition to the specific freedoms protected by the Bill of Rights, the "liberty" specially protected by the Due Process Clause includes the rights to:

- Marry [Loving v. Virginia (1967) 388 U.S. 1 ; Strauss v. Horton (2009) 46 Cal. 4th 364, 390, 407, 93 Cal. Rptr. 3d 591, 207 P.3d 48 (Proposition 8 does not abrogate the state constitutional due process right for same-sex couples to any other of "the core set of basic substantive legal rights and attributes traditionally associated with marriage, but instead carves out a narrow exception applicable only to access to the designation of the term "marriage"); In re Marriage Cases (2008) 43 Cal. 4th 757, 811, 820, 76 Cal. Rptr. 3d 683, 183 P.3d 384 (same-sex couples); see § 126A.42[3][c]],

- Have children [Skinner v. Oklahoma ex rel. Williamson (1942) 316 U.S. 535] ,

- Direct the education and upbringing of one's children [Meyer v. Nebraska (1923) 262 U.S. 390 ; Pierce v. Society of Sisters (1925) 268 U.S. 510] ,

- Marital privacy [Griswold v. Connecticut (1965) 381 U.S. 479] ,

- Use contraception [Griswold v. Connecticut (1965) 381 U.S. 479 ; Eisenstadt v. Baird (1972) 405 U.S. 438] ,

- Bodily integrity [Rochin v. California (1952) 342 U.S. 165] ,

- Abortion [Planned Parenthood v. Casey (1992) 505 U.S. 833, 851 ; fordiscussion of the constitutional right to abortion, see Ch. 4, Abortion and Birth Control Methods, § 4.11], and

- Refuse unwanted lifesaving medical treatment [Cruzan v. Director, Mo. Dept. of Health (1990) 497 U.S. 261, 278-279] .

- Use of land free of regulation having no substantial relation to the public health, safety, morals, or general welfare [Lingle v. Chevron U.S.A. Inc. (2005) 544 U.S. 528, 541-542, 125 S. Ct. 2074, 161 L. Ed. 2d 876].

[c] Effect of Involvement of Life, Liberty, or Property Interest

Substantive due process forbids the government to infringe fundamental liberty interests at all, no matter what process is provided, unless the infringement is narrowly tailored to serve a compelling state interest [Washington v. Glucksberg (1997) 521 U.S. 702, 721, 117 S. Ct. 2258, 117 S. Ct. 2302, 138 L. Ed. 2d 772 , quoting Reno v. Flores (1993) 507 U.S. 292, 302, 113 S. Ct. 1439, 123 L. Ed. 2d 1] . The impairment of a lesser interest demands no more than a "reasonable fit" between governmental purpose and the means chosen to advance that purpose [Reno v. Flores (1993) 507 U.S. 292, 305, 113 S. Ct. 1439, 123 L. Ed. 2d 1] , that the legislation be rationally related to legitimate government interests [Washington v. Glucksberg (1997) 521 U.S. 702, 728, 117 S. Ct. 2258, 117 S. Ct. 2302, 138 L. Ed. 2d 772] , otherwise known as the rational basis test.

[4] Scope of and Elements Specific to Application

[a] Applies to Legislation and Executive Acts

While due process protection in the substantive sense limits what the government may do in both its legislative [see, e.g., Griswold v. Connecticut (1965) 381 U.S. 479, 85 S. Ct. 1678, 14 L. Ed. 2d 510] and its executive capacities [see, e.g., Rochin v. California (1952) 342 U.S. 165, 72 S. Ct. 205, 96 L. Ed. 183] , criteria to identify what is fatally arbitrary differ depending on whether it is legislation or a specific act of a governmental officer that is at issue [County of Sacramento v. Lewis (1998) 523 U.S. 833, 846, 118 S. Ct. 1708, 140 L. Ed. 2d 1043] .

[b] Application to Legislation

Legislative acts adjusting the burdens and benefits of economic life come to the Court with a presumption of constitutionality. The burden of proof is on the person complaining of a due process violation to establish that the legislature has acted in an arbitrary and irrational way [Stubblefield Construction Co. v. City of San Bernardino (1995) 32 Cal. App. 4th 687, 709, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 413 , quoting Usery v. Turner Elkhorn Mining Co. (1976) 428 U.S. 1, 15, 96 S. Ct. 2882, 49 L. Ed. 2d 752, 766] .

Strategic Point:

Another California court of appeal has stated the rule as providing that courts will only strike down a law on substantive due process grounds if it is manifestly unreasonable, arbitrary, or capricious, and has no real or substantial relation to public health, safety, morals or general welfare [see Hess Collection Winery v. Agricultural Labor Relations Bd. (2006) 140 Cal. App. 4th 1584, 45 Cal. Rptr. 3d 609 , rev.

denied, (2006) 2006 Cal. LEXIS 11206 , quoting Massingill v. Department of Food & Agriculture (2002) 102 Cal. App. 4th 498, 504, 125 Cal. Rptr. 2d 561] . By quoting Massingill, a case concerning proper use of the police power, the court in Hess implicitly points out how similar the test for substantive due process with respect to legislation is to the test for proper use of the police power. For discussion of the police power, see § 126A.31.

[c] Application to Executive Acts

Only the most egregious official conduct can be said to be arbitrary in the constitutional sense [County of Sacramento v. Lewis (1998) 523 U.S. 833, 846, 118 S. Ct. 1708, 140 L. Ed. 2d 1043 , quoting Collins v. Harker Heights (1992) 503 U.S. 115, 129, 112 S. Ct. 1061, 117 L. Ed. 2d 261] . As such, the cognizable level of executive abuse of power as that which shocks the conscience [County of Sacramento v. Lewis (1998) 523 U.S. 833, 846, 118 S. Ct. 1708, 140 L. Ed. 2d 1043 , quoting Rochin v. California (1952) 342 U.S. 165, 172-173, 72 S. Ct. 205, 96 L. Ed. 183] . The judgment of whether conduct shocks the conscience may be informed by a history of liberty protection, but it necessarily reflects an understanding of traditional executive behavior, of contemporary practice, and of the standards of blame generally applied to them [County of Sacramento v. Lewis (1998) 523 U.S. 833, 847 n.8, 118 S. Ct. 1708, 140 L. Ed. 2d 1043] . Conduct intended to injure in some way unjustifiable by any government interest is the sort of official action most likely to rise to the conscience-shocking level [County of Sacramento v. Lewis (1998) 523 U.S. 833, 847, 118 S. Ct. 1708, 140 L. Ed. 2d 1043] .

For detailed discussion of substantive due process respecting executive acts, see Ch. 470A, Due Process Restrictions on Public Agencies, §§ 470A.10, 470A.31.

Chapter 126A CONSTITUTIONAL LAW
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
D. Substantive Civil Constitutional Rights

-126A California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 126A.42

§ 126A.42 Inalienable Rights

[1] Under the Constitution

"All people are by nature free and independent and have inalienable rights. Among these are enjoying and defending life and liberty, acquiring, possessing, and protecting property, and pursuing and obtaining safety, happiness, and privacy" [Cal. Const., art. I, § 1].

That rights listed in Cal. Const. art. I, § 1 and in other sections of the Constitution are identified as "inalienable" does not signify that such rights are totally exempt from any limitation or restriction [Strauss v. Horton (2009) 46 Cal. 4th 364, 466, 93 Cal. Rptr. 3d 591, 207 P.3d 48]. The "inalienable" nature of a constitutional right never has been understood to preclude the adoption of a constitutional amendment that limits or restricts the scope or application of that right [Strauss v. Horton (2009) 46 Cal. 4th 364, 467, 93 Cal. Rptr. 3d 591, 207 P.3d 48]. Accordingly, there is no basis for suggesting that the inalienable rights set forth in Cal. Const. art. I, § 1, and the other provisions of the Declaration of Rights, are of a higher order than, and thus exempt from, the people's right to "alter or reform" the Constitution through either the legislative or the initiative constitutional amendment process [Strauss v. Horton (2009) 46 Cal. 4th 364, 467, 93 Cal. Rptr. 3d 591, 207 P.3d 48].

[2] The Right to Property in Particular

The right of the individual to acquire and to possess property is one of the inalienable constitutional rights granted by the California constitution [see Cal. Const., art. I, § 1]. It includes the right to dispose of it in whatever innocent manner as he or she may see fit [Hart v. Beverly Hills (1938) 11 Cal. 2d 343, 345, 79 P.2d 1080] . The right to make contracts, common to all legitimate vocations, is a property right [Binford v Boyd (1918) 178 Cal. 458, 461, 174 P. 56] .

The right to property is subject to land-use regulation pursuant to Cal. Const., art. XI, § 7.

For discussion of contracts generally, see Ch. 140, Contracts .

For discussion of limitations on state's power to alter obligation of contracts, see § 126A.34 et seq.

For discussion of land-use regulation, see Ch. 579, Zoning and Planning .

[3] The Right to Privacy in Particular

[a] The Right and Its Limitations

An individual's right to privacy is one of the inalienable constitutional rights granted by the California constitution [see Cal. Const., art. I, § 1]. A plaintiff claiming an invasion of privacy must show the following threshold elements [International Fed. of Prof. and Tech. Engineers, Local 21, AFL-CIO v. Superior Court (2007) 42 Cal. 4th 319, 338, 64 Cal. Rptr. 3d 693, 165 P.3d 488 ; American Academy of Pedriatics v. Lungren (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 307, 330, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 210, 940 P.2d 797] :

- A legally protected privacy interest,
- A reasonable expectation of privacy under the circumstances, and
- Conduct by the defendant that amounts to a serious invasion of that interest.

If these threshold elements are established, the diverse and somewhat amorphous character of the privacy right necessarily requires that privacy interests be specifically identified and carefully compared with competing or countervailing privacy and nonprivacy interests in a balancing test [American Acad. of Pedriatics v. Lungren (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 307, 330 n. 15, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 210, 940 P.2d 797 ; Hill v. National Collegiate Athletic Assn. (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 1, 37-38, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 834, 865 P.2d 633] . The defendant must show that the intrusion substantively furthers one or more countervailing interests. However, the plaintiff may then rebut a defendant's assertion of countervailing interests by showing there are feasible and effective alternatives to defendant's conduct that have a lesser impact on the plaintiff's privacy interests [American Academy of Pedriatics v. Lungren (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 307, 330, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 210, 940 P.2d 797 ; Hill v. National Collegiate Athletic Assn. (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 1, 40, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 834, 865 P.2d 633] .

[b] Applications of the Right to Privacy

The protection that Cal. Const., art. 1, § 1 gives to privacy extends to, among other things:

- The right to an abortion [Committee to Defend Reproductive Rights v. Myers (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 252, 262, 172 Cal. Rptr. 866, 625 P.2d 779 ; for discussion, see Ch. 4, Abortion and Birth Control Methods, §§ 4.11, 4.17].

- The right to not be sued concerning fraud in sexual relationships [see Stephen K. v. Roni L. (1980) 105 Cal. App. 3d 640, 643, 645, 164 Cal. Rptr. 618 ; for discussion, see Ch. 58, Assault and Battery, § 58.26].

- The right of a prisoner not to have correspondence from a court be opened without the prisoner present [In re Short (1976) 55 Cal. App. 3d 268, 272, 127 Cal. Rptr. 498 ; for detailed discussion of prisoners' rights generally, see Ch. 114, Civil Rights: Prisoners' Rights].

- Excessive demands of job applicants by employers [Leonel v. American Airlines, Inc. (9th Cir. 2005) 400 F.3d 702, 712, 714 ; for discussion, see Ch. 115, Civil Rights: Employment Discrimination, § 115.30[5]].

- The right to choose one's living companions [Park Redlands Covenant Control Committee v. Simon (1986) 181 Cal. App. 3d 87, 95-99, 226 Cal. Rptr. 199 ; for discussion, see Ch. 184, Deeds, § 184.69[7][c]].

- Freedom from overbroad discovery of private associational rights in litigation [Britt v. Superior Court (1978) 20 Cal. 3d 844, 852-856, 143 Cal. Rptr. 695, 574 P.2d 766 ; for discussion of constitutional privilege of privacy from discovery, see Ch. 191, Discovery and Depositions, §§ 191.12[2], 191.120].

- Prevention of discovery of employment files in the possession of former employers [Harding Lawson Associates v. Superior Court (1992) 10 Cal. App. 4th 7, 10, 12 Cal. Rptr. 2d 538 ; for discussion, see Ch. 249, Employment Law: Termination and Discipline, § 249.43[5]].

- Preclusion of sterilization of incompetent developmentally disabled persons is impermissible deprivation of privacy interests [Conservatorship of Valerie N. (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 143, 160-161, 219 Cal. Rptr. 387, 707 P.2d 760 ; for discussion, see Ch. 285, Guardianship and Conservatorship: Care of Ward or Conservatee, § 285.47].

- Medical records, which doctors may protect on behalf of their patients [see Board of Medical Quality Assurance v. Gherardini (1979) 93 Cal. App. 3d 669, 680-681, 156 Cal. Rptr. 55 ; for discussion, see Ch. 414, Physicians: Licensing and Discipline, § 414.71].

- The right to refuse medical treatment [Bouvia v. Superior Court (1986) 179 Cal. App. 3d 1127, 1137, 225 Cal. Rptr. 297 ; for discussion, see Ch. 415, Physicians: Medical Malpractice, § 415.15[11]].

- Preclusion of the discovery of a will during the testator's lifetime under most circumstances [Estate of Gallio (1995) 33 Cal. App. 4th 592, 597, 39 Cal. Rptr. 2d 470 ; for discussion, see Ch. 443, Probate: Compelling Production of Will, § 443.10].

Merchant's obtaining the home address and using it for its own profit, where the plaintiff alleged no facts showing that plaintiff's home address was not otherwise publicly available or that plaintiff undertook efforts to keep it private [Pineda v. Williams-Sonoma Stores, Inc. (2009) 178 Cal. App. 4th 714, 721, 100 Cal. Rptr. 3d 458] .

- Restricting the power of administrative agencies to collect records [e.g., Doyle v. State Bar (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 12, 20, 184 Cal. Rptr. 720, 648 P.2d 942 ; for discussion, see Ch. 470, Overview of Public Administrative Law, § 470.16[2][a]].

- The right to due process before being listed publicly as a potential child abuser [Burt v. County of Orange (2004) 120 Cal. App. 4th 273, 284-286, 15 Cal. Rptr. 3d 373] .

- Limitations on investigations by administrative agencies [White v. Davis (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 757, 775, 120 Cal. Rptr. 94, 533 P.2d 222 ; for discussion, see Ch. 471, Investigations by Public Agencies, § 471.11].

On the other hand, the right to privacy does not extend to, among other things:

- The names and salaries of public employees earning $100,000 or more per year, including peace officers [International Fed. of Prof. and Tech. Engineers, Local 21, AFL-CIO v. Superior Court (2007) 42 Cal. 4th 319, 340, 64 Cal.Rptr. 3d 693, 165 P.3d 488].

- Discovery of personal information to be used for statistical analysis for age discrimination claims in a class action [Alch v. Superior Court (2008) 165 Cal. App. 4th 1412, 1439-1440, 82 Cal. Rptr. 3d 470 ; for discussion, see Ch. 191, Discovery: Privileges and Other Discovery Limitations, § 191.20[6][a]].

- Preventing the involuntary medication of a sexually violent predator with antipsychotic drugs in accordance with statute [In re Calhoun (2004) 121 Cal. App. 4th 1315, 1350, 18 Cal. Rptr. 3d 315] .

- Corporations [Roberts v. Gulf Oil Corp. (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 770, 790-795, 195 Cal. Rptr. 393 ; for discussion, see Ch. 471, Investigations by Public Agencies, § 471.20].

For general discussion of the right to privacy and actions for invasion of privacy, see Ch. 429, Privacy .

[c] The Right to Marry and Proposition 8

The California state constitutional right to marry clearly falls within the reach of the constitutional protection afforded to an individual's interest in personal autonomy by California's explicit state constitutional privacy clause [In re Marriage Cases (2008) 43 Cal. 4th 757, 810, 76 Cal. Rptr. 3d 683, 183 P.3d 384]. The right to marry constitutes an aspect of autonomy privacy [In re Marriage Cases (2008) 43 Cal. 4th 757, 810 n31, 76 Cal. Rptr. 3d 683, 183 P.3d 384]The substance of the constitutional right at issue is the importance to an individual of the freedom to join in marriage with the person of one's choice [In re Marriage Cases (2008) 43 Cal. 4th 757, 811, 76 Cal. Rptr. 3d 683, 183 P.3d 384].

Just as the state constitutional right to marry extended to interracial couples [Perez v. Sharp (1948) 32 Cal.2d 711, 714, 198 P.2d 17], the right of the individual to have the freedom to join in marriage with the person of one's choice extends to same sex couples [In re Marriage Cases (2008) 43 Cal. 4th 757, 811, 820, 76 Cal. Rptr. 3d 683, 183 P.3d 384] The right to marry, as embodied in Cal/ Const. art. I, §§ 1, 7, guarantees same-sex couples the same substantive constitutional rights as opposite-sex couples to choose one's life partner and enter with that person into a committed, officially recognized, and protected family relationship that enjoys all of the constitutionally based incidents of marriage [In re Marriage Cases (2008) 43 Cal. 4th 757, 829, 76 Cal. Rptr. 3d 683, 183 P.3d 384].

The passage of Proposition 8, providing that "[o]nly marriage between a man and a woman is valid or recognized in California" [Cal. Const., art. I, § 7.5] does not entirely repeal or abrogate the aspect of a same-sex couple's state constitutional right of privacy, namely, to choose one's life partner and enter with that person into a committed, officially recognized, and protected family relationship that enjoys all of the constitutionally based incidents of marriage [Strauss v. Horton (2009) 46 Cal. 4th 364, 388, 93 Cal. Rptr. 3d 591, 207 P.3d 48]. Proposition 8 does not abrogate the state constitutional right to privacy for same-sex couples, but instead carves out a narrow exception applicable only to access to the designation of the term "marriage," but not to any other of "the core set of basic substantive legal rights and attributes traditionally associated with marriage" [Strauss v. Horton (2009) 46 Cal. 4th 364, 390, 407, 93 Cal. Rptr. 3d 591, 207 P.3d 48]. By its terms, the new provision refers only to "marriage" and does not address the right to establish an officially recognized family relationship, which may bear a name or designation other than "marriage." Thus, it does not affect the right of same-sex couples, as well as opposite-sex couples, to establish an officially recognized family relationship. [Strauss v. Horton (2009) 46 Cal. 4th 364, 408, 411, 93 Cal. Rptr. 3d 591, 207 P.3d 48].

For a full discussion of these issues, see Ch. 387, Nonmarital Cohabitation, § 387.11[3].

[4] Limitations on Inalienable Rights

The inalienable rights guaranteed under Cal. Const., art. I, § 1 are not absolute and do not operate as a curtailment on the basic power of the Legislature to enact reasonable police regulations [Nash v City of Santa Monica (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 97, 207 Cal. Rptr. 285, 688 P.2d 894 . (property rights); National Organization for Reform of Marijuana Laws v. Gain (1979) 100 Cal. App. 3d 586, 598, 161 Cal. Rptr. 181 (prohibition on private possession and use of marijuana by adults was not unconstitutional violation of rights to liberty and obtaining happiness); for discussion of police power, see § 126A.30 et seq.]. Similarly, the obligation to attend a legal proceeding and give testimony as a witness is a limitation on the inalilenable rights granted in Cal. Const., art. I, § 1 [Vannier v. Superior Court (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 163, 171, 185 Cal. Rptr. 427, 650 P.2d 302] .

In some cases, where those rights are implicated, the Legislature's power to delegate its legislative power will be limited [see Bownds v Glendale (1980) 113 Cal. App. 3d 875, 885, 170 Cal. Rptr. 342 (in areas of critical importance and sensitivity, such as impairing private property rights and mandating the expenditure of public funds, a delegation of legislative authority to an administrative agency would violate the doctrine of separation of powers); for discussion of separation of powers doctrine, see § 126A.20 et seq.].

Chapter 126A CONSTITUTIONAL LAW
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
D. Substantive Civil Constitutional Rights

-126A California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 126A.43

§ 126A.43 Freedom of Speech and the Press

[1] Under the California Constitution

The California Constitution protects the freedom of speech and of the press [see Cal. Const., art. I, § 2(a)]. This provision protects most methods and modes of speech [see, e.g., Aaron v. Municipal Court of San Jose-Milpitas Judicial Dist. (1977) 73 Cal. App. 3d 596, 602, 140 Cal. Rptr. 849] . Commercial speech receives a lesser degree of constitutional protection than many other forms of expression, and governments may entirely prohibit commercial speech that is false or misleading [Kasky v. Nike (2002) 27 Cal. 4th 939, 946, 119 Cal. Rptr. 2d 296, 45 P.3d 243 ; for discussion of commercial speech generally, see Ch. 14, Advertising]. Religious activity typically involves expressive speech and, although protected by the First Amendment, it is as a matter of law subordinate to establishment clause concerns [DiLoreto v. Board of Educ. of Downey Unif. Sch. Dist. (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 267, 280, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 791 ; for discussion of the federal and state constitutional protections for religion, see Ch. 110, Churches and Religious Organizations].

For detailed discussion of the speech protected under the California Constitution, see Ch. 59, Assemblies, Meetings and Demonstrations, §§ 59.11, 59.15.

For detailed discussion of remedies for violation of the right to freedom of speech, see Ch. 59, Assemblies, Meetings and Demonstrations, § 59.16.

For discussion of public school students' right to freedom of expression, see Ch. 513, Schools: Student Rights And Responsibilities, § 513.34.

[2] Limitation to State Action

[a] Owners May Generally Prohibit Expression on Their Private Property

A private property owner constitutionally does not have to permit free speech activities on his or her property against his or her wishes. The owner may expel persons attempting to do so without permission as trespassers [Trader Joe's

Co. v. Progressive Campaigns (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 425, 430, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 442 ; Savage v. Trammell Crow Co. (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 1562, 1578-1580, 273 Cal. Rptr. 302] .

For detailed discussion of requirement of state action, see Ch. 59, Assemblies, Meetings and Demonstrations, § 59.14[1].

[b] California Constitution Gives Broader Speech Protection Than Federal Constitution

The right to free speech under the California Constitution [Cal. Const., art. I, § 2(a)] is more "definitive and inclusive" than that afforded by the First Amendment [Robins v. Pruneyard Shopping Center (1979) 23 Cal. 3d 899, 908, 153 Cal. Rptr. 854, 592 P.2d 341 , aff'd, 447 U.S. 74, 100 S. Ct. 2035, 64 L. Ed. 2d 741 (1980)] . The more expansive view includes a burden on the state to prove that the speech activity was "incompatible" with the public forum although it tolerates content-neutral speech restriction commensurate with the First Amendment [Rosenbaum v. City and County of San Francisco (9th Cir. 2007) 484 F.3d 1142, 1167]. Thus, the California provision protects the reasonable exercise of free speech rights on private property when that property is generally open to the public and functions as the equivalent of a traditional public forum [Allred v. Harris (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 1386, 1390, 18 Cal. Rptr. 2d 530] . In other situations, the court balances the competing interests of the property owner and of society with respect to the particular property or type of property at issue to determine whether there is a state constitutional right to engage in the challenged activity [Trader Joe's Co. v. Progressive Campaigns (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 425, 433, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 442] .

For detailed discussion of private property as a public forum, see Ch. 59, Assemblies, Meetings and Demonstrations, § 59.14[2][a].

[3] Limitation by Police Power

[a] Expression in Private Forums

In determining the constitutionality of governmental limitations on free expression, the courts distinguish between and content-neutral limitations on the time, place, and manner of expression. A more stringent standard of scrutiny applies to restrictions based on the content of speech [see, e.g., Los Angeles Alliance for Survival v. City of Los Angeles (2000) 22 Cal. 4th 352, 364-378, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1, 993 P.2d 334] . The level of scrutiny applied to content-neutral time, place, and manner regulations is anintermediate scrutiny [Los Angeles Alliance for Survival v. City of Los Angeles (2000) 22 Cal. 4th 352, 364, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1, 993 P.2d 334] .

Similarly, owners of private property that function as public forums may impose reasonable content-neutral limitations on the time, place, and manner of expression [Savage v. Trammell Crow Co. (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 1562, 1572-1573, 273 Cal. Rptr. 302] .

For detailed discussion of the levels of scrutiny of governmental restrictions on freedom of speech, see Ch. 59, Assemblies, Meetings and Demonstrations, §§ 59.12, 59.14[2][b].

[b] Expression in Public Forums

The courts have adopted a "public forum analysis" as a means to determine when the government's interest in limiting the use of its property to its intended purpose outweighs the interests of those who wish to use the property for other purposes [see Clark v. Burleigh (1992) 4 Cal. 4th 474, 482, 14 Cal. Rptr. 2d 455, 841 P.2d 975] .

For detailed discussion of governmental restrictions on freedom of speech in public formus, see Ch. 59, Assemblies, Meetings and Demonstrations, § 59.13.

[c] Advertising in the Press

The state may use its police power to limit inherently misleading commercial speech [see Bronco Wine Co. v. Jolly (2005) 129 Cal. App. 4th 988, 999, 29 Cal. Rptr. 3d 462 (state wine labeling statute did not violate winery's free speech rights)].

For detailed discussion of governmental restrictions on advertising, see Ch. 470, Overview of Public Administrative Law, § 470.16[2][b].

[4] Constitutional Protection as Defense in Defamation Suit

When speech that is alleged to be defamatory in a defamation suit is constitutionally protected by the freedom of expression, the plaintiff must prove actual malice [Antonovich v. Superior Court (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 1041, 1047, 285 Cal. Rptr. 863 , citing New York Times Co. v. Sullivan (1964) 376 U.S. 254, 84 S. Ct. 710, 11 L. Ed. 2d 686] .

For detailed discussion of constitutional defenses to defamation actions, see Ch. 340, Libel and Slander, §§ 340.18, 340.51[1].

[5] Newsperson's Shield Law

To protect the free flow of information, news reporters and related news media personnel have an immunity from contempt for refusing to obey an order that seeks disclosure of either the source of published information or unpublished information obtained in the course of newsgathering [Cal. Const., art. I, § 2(b)]. The provision is implemented by statutes [see Evid. Code § 1070; Code Civ. Proc. § 1986.1].

For detailed discussion of the newsperson's shield law, see Ch. 191, Discovery: Privileges and Other Discovery Limitations, § 191.122 et seq.

§ 126A.44 Assembly, Petition, and Freedom of Information

[1] Freedom of Assembly

The California constitution protects the right to freely to consult for the common good [see Cal. Const., art. I, § 3(a)]. Likewise, the First Amendment to the United State Constitutions includes the right to freedom of assembly, which applies to the states by virtue of the Fourteenth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution [Danskin v. San Diego Unified School Dist. (1946) 28 Cal. 2d 536, 542, 171 P.2d 885 , citing Thomas v. Collins, 323 U.S. 516, 530, 65 S.Ct. 315, 89 L.Ed. 430] . Freedom of assembly is susceptible of restriction only to prevent grave and immediate danger to interests that the state may lawfully protect [West Virginia State Bd. of Educ. v. Barnette (1943) 319 U.S. 624, 63 S. Ct. 1178, 87 L. Ed. 1628, 147 A.L.R. 674] .

[2] The Right to Petition

The California constitution sets forth the right to petition government for the redress of grievances [see Cal. Const., art. I, § 3(a)]. The First Amendment to the United State Constitutions includes the same right to petition and is applied against the states by virtue of the Fourteenth Amendment [Hague v. C.I.O. (1939) 307 U.S. 496, 512-513, 59 S. Ct. 954, 963, 83 L. Ed. 1423, 1435] . The federal and state constitutional right to petition for redress of grievances is the right of the governed to petition those exercising the powers of government [Greene v. Hawaiian Dredging Co. (1945) 26 Cal. 2d 245, 251, 157 P.2d 367] . It encompasses the right to lobby, file an administrative action, sue, and testify [Briggs v. Eden Council for Hope & Opportunity (1999) 19 Cal. 4th 1106, 1115, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 471, 969 P.2d 564 ; see California Transport v. Trucking Unlimited (1972) 404 U.S. 508, 510, 92 S. Ct. 609, 611-612, 30 L. Ed. 2d 642, 646 (right to sue)]. It may even extend to private property [Robins v. Pruneyard Shopping Center (1979) 23 Cal. 3d 899, 910, 153 Cal. Rptr. 854, 592 P.2d 341 (shopping malls)]. The right to petition is subject only to reasonable restrictions [Johnson v. Avery (1969) 393 U.S. 483, 490, 89 S. Ct. 747, 21 L. Ed. 2d 718 ; In re Harrell (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 675, 683, 87 Cal. Rptr. 504, 470 P.2d 640] .

For discussion of the right to petition government under the California constitution, see Ch. 59, Assemblies, Meetings, and Demonstrations, § 59.18.

[3] Right to Information on Government

Added to the constitution effective November 2, 2004, a California constitution provision gives the people the right of access to information concerning the conduct of the people's business [see Cal. Const., art. I, § 3(b)(1)]. The extent of the right to access to public information is constitutionally restricted [see Cal. Const., art. I, § 3(b)(2) et seq.]. Enactment of this amendment did not repeal the "mental processes principle" barring discovery of the motives or mental processes of legislators [Sutter's Place v. Superior Court (2008) 161 Cal. App. 4th 1370, 1382, 75 Cal. Rptr. 3d 9].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
D. Substantive Civil Constitutional Rights

-126A California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 126A.45

§ 126A.45 Religious Constitutional Rights

[1] The Separation of Church and State

[a] Federal and State Constitutions

The Establishment Clause of the First Amendment to the U.S. Constitution [U.S. Const., amend. I, cl. 1], as applied to the states through the Fourteenth Amendment [U.S. Const., amend. XIV, § 1, cl. 2], commands that a state may make no law respecting an establishment of religion or prohibiting the free exercise of religion [Cantwell v. Connecticut (1940) 310 U.S. 296, 303, 60 S. Ct. 900, 84 L. Ed. 1213] . Similarly, the California constitution bars the Legislature from making laws respecting an establishment of religion [see Cal. Const., art. I, § 4].

For detailed discussion of religious organizations generally, see Ch. 110, Churches and Religious Organizations, § 110.13[1].

[b] Provisions Mean the Same Thing

The California concept of "a law respecting an establishment of religion" coincides with the intent and purpose of the First Amendment's Establishment Clause [East Bay Asian Local Development Corp. v. State of California (2000) 24 Cal. 4th 693, 718, 102 Cal. Rptr. 2d 280, 13 P.3d 1122] . They are not violated by a law that meets all of the following criteria [Committee for Public Education v. Nyquist (1973) 413 U.S. 756, 772-773, 93 S. Ct. 2955, 37 L. Ed. 2d 948 ; East Bay Asian Local Development Corp. v. State of California (2000) 24 Cal. 4th 693, 705-718, 102 Cal. Rptr. 2d 280, 13 P.3d 1122] :

- Has a secular purpose;
- Has a primary effect that neither advances nor prohibits religion; and
- Avoids excessive government entanglement with religion.

For further discussion of federal and state constitutional separation of church and state, see Ch. 110, Churches and Religious Organizations, § 110.13[1].

[2] The Right to Religious Freedom

[a] More Comprehensive Than Federal Constitution

The right of the individual to "[f]ree exercise and enjoyment of religion without discrimination or preference" is guaranteed by the California constitution [see Cal. Const., art. I, § 4], whereas the Free Exercise Clause of the First Amendment to the U.S. Constitution [U.S. Const., amend. I, cl. 2], as applied to the states through the Fourteenth Amendment [U.S. Const., amend. XIV, § 1, cl. 2], only bars laws "prohibiting the free exercise" of religion. In addition, the California provision contains the following sentence not yet interpreted by any California court [see Cal. Const., art. I, § 4]:

> This liberty of conscience does not excuse acts that are licentious or inconsistent with the peace or safety of the State.

In view of the difference of language, the California constitutional provision may be more comprehensive than the federal Constitution [see Fox v. City of Los Angeles (1978) 22 Cal. 3d 792, 796-797, 150 Cal. Rptr. 867, 587 P.2d 663 (city display of lighted cross is forbidden preference even if not discriminatory); Smith v. Fair Employment & Housing Com. (1996) 12 Cal. 4th 1143, 1179 n.22, 51 Cal. Rptr. 2d 700, 913 P.2d 909 (specifically refers to "liberty of conscience"); see also Lucas Valley Homeowners Assn. v. County of Marin (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 130, 145, 284 Cal. Rptr. 427 (under California Constitution, preference is forbidden even when there is no discrimination)]. However, there is no settled interpretation of the state Constitution's free exercise clause [see Catholic Charities of Sacramento, Inc. v. Superior Court (2004) 32 Cal. 4th 527, 561, 10 Cal. Rptr. 3d 283, 85 P.3d 67] .

Under the federal constitutional provision, religious beliefs do not excuse compliance with otherwise valid laws regulating matters the state is free to regulate [Employment Div., Ore. Dept. of Human Res. v. Smith (1990) 494 U.S. 872, 877-882, 110 S. Ct. 1595, 108 L. Ed. 2d 876 ; Catholic Charities of Sacramento, Inc. v. Superior Court (2004) 32 Cal. 4th 527, 547, 10 Cal. Rptr. 3d 283, 85 P.3d 67] .

For discussion of public school students' right to freedom of religion, see Ch. 513, Schools: Student Rights and Responsibilities, § 513.35.

For further discussion of federal and state constitutional guarantees of the right to religious freedom, see Ch. 110, Churches and Religious Organizations, § 110.13[2].

[b] Prohibits Discrimination

Even if the state provision [see Cal. Const., art. I, § 4] is more protective of religious exercise than that of the federal Constitution, no California court has articulated a more protective test than the compelling state interest test. Under this test if a person shows that a law substantially burdens the free exercise of religion, the government must demonstrate that application of the burden to the person is in furtherance of a compelling governmental interest and is the least restrictive means of furthering that compelling interest [Swaggart v. Calif. Equalization Bd. (1990) 493 U.S. 378, 384, 110 S. Ct. 688, 107 L. Ed. 2d 796, 806 ; Smith v. Fair Employment & Housing Com. (1996) 12 Cal. 4th 1143, 1167, 51 Cal. Rptr. 2d 700, 913 P.2d 909] . This test is strict scrutiny [see Employment Div., Ore. Dept. of Human Res. v. Smith (1990) 494 U.S. 872, 877, 110 S. Ct. 1595, 108 L. Ed. 2d 876 ; Catholic Charities of Sacramento, Inc. v. Superior Court (2004) 32 Cal. 4th 527, 550, 10 Cal. Rptr. 3d 283, 85 P.3d 67] .

Under this rule, a law is a burden on free exercise of religion if:

- It is not neutral and generally applicable [Church of Lukumi Babalu Aye, Inc. v. Hialeah (1993) 508 U.S. 520, 533-547, 113 S. Ct. 2217, 124 L. Ed. 2d 472 ; Catholic Charities of Sacramento, Inc. v. Superior Court (2004) 32 Cal. 4th 527, 550-552, 10 Cal. Rptr. 3d 283, 85 P.3d 67] ,

- It is a religious gerrymander [Church of Lukumi Babalu Aye, Inc. v. Hialeah (1993) 508 U.S. 520, 534, 113 S. Ct. 2217, 124 L. Ed. 2d 472 ; Catholic Charities of Sacramento, Inc. v. Superior Court (2004) 32 Cal. 4th 527, 552-556, 10 Cal. Rptr. 3d 283, 85 P.3d 67] , or

- It involves so-called "hybrid rights" [see Employment Div., Ore. Dept. ofHuman Res. v. Smith (1990) 494 U.S. 872, 881-882, 110 S. Ct. 1595, 108 L. Ed. 2d 876 ; but see Catholic Charities of Sacramento, Inc. v. Superior Court (2004) 32 Cal. 4th 527, 556-560, 10 Cal. Rptr. 3d 283, 85 P.3d 67] .

However, the right of free exercise does not relieve an individual of the obligation to comply with a valid and neutral law of general applicability on the ground that the law proscribes (or prescribes) conduct that his religion prescribes (or proscribes) [Employment Div., Ore. Dept. of Human Res. v. Smith (1990) 494 U.S. 872, 877, 110 S. Ct. 1595, 108 L. Ed. 2d 876 , quoting United States v. Lee (1982) 455 U.S. 252, 263 n.3, 102 S. Ct. 1051, 71 L. Ed. 2d 127] . Conversely, a law that is neutral and of general applicability need not be justified by a compelling government interest even if the law has the incidental effect of burdening a particular religious practice [Church of Lukumi Babalu Aye, Inc. v. Hialeah (1993) 508 U.S. 520, 531, 113 S. Ct. 2217, 124 L. Ed. 2d 472 ; Catholic Charities of Sacramento, Inc. v. Superior Court (2004) 32 Cal. 4th 527, 549, 10 Cal. Rptr. 3d 283, 85 P.3d 67] . It does not give an individual the right to dictate the conduct of the government's internal procedures [Lyng v. N.W. Indian Cemetery Prot. Asso. (1988) 485 U.S. 439, 448, 108 S. Ct. 1319, 99 L. Ed. 2d 534, 546 , quoting Bowen v. Roy (1986) 476 U.S. 693, 699-700, 106 S. Ct. 2147, 90 L. Ed. 2d 735, 744-745] .

[c] Prohibits Preferences

The free exercise clause of the California Constitution, by prohibiting preferences for religion [see Cal. Const., art. I, § 4], also seeks to prevent government from giving any advantage to religion in California. The California Supreme Court has not interpreted this clause in light of the U.S. Supreme Court's decision in Employment Div., Ore. Dept. of Human Res. v. Smith (1990) 494 U.S. 872, 881-882, 110 S. Ct. 1595, 108 L. Ed. 2d 876 (applied rational basis test, rejecting strict scrutiny applied in prior U.S. Supreme Court decisions) [see Catholic Charities of Sacramento, Inc. v. Superior Court (2004) 32 Cal. 4th 527, 556-560, 10 Cal. Rptr. 3d 283, 85 P.3d 67 (challenged law passed even strict scrutiny, so court did not have to determine if standard was less than strict)]. California decisions prior to Smith applied the rule of strict scrutiny used by the U.S. Supreme Court prior to Smith in interpreting the California free exercise clause [Catholic Charities of Sacramento, Inc. v. Superior Court (2004) 32 Cal. 4th 527, 560-562, 10 Cal. Rptr. 3d 283, 85 P.3d 67 ; Smith v. Fair Employment & Housing Com. (1996) 12 Cal. 4th 1143, 1178-1179, 51 Cal. Rptr. 2d 700, 913 P.2d 909] .

One court of appeals ruled subsequent to Smith that preferences for religion are subject to the rational basis test [Brunson v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 1251, 1255 , 85 Cal. Rtpr. 2d 710]. However, the Supreme Court found that that decision erred in concluding that Smith v. Fair Employment & Housing Com. (1996) 12 Cal. 4th 1143, 51 Cal. Rptr. 2d 700, 913 P.2d 909 , mandated application of the rational basis test to the petitioners' claims under the state free exercise clause, upon which it relied in applying the rational basis test [Catholic Charities of Sacramento, Inc. v. Superior Court (2004) 32 Cal. 4th 527, 560, 10 Cal. Rptr. 3d 283, 85 P.3d 67] . That same Supreme Court decision disavowed the need of the lower court from which it was hearing the appeal [see Catholic Charities of Sacramento, Inc. v. Superior Court (3d Dist., 2001) 90 Cal. App. 4th 425, 452-453, 109 Cal. Rptr. 2d 176 (rational basis test applies under state free exercise clause)] to have decided the question of whether strict scrutiny or a lower standard applies [Catholic Charities of Sacramento, Inc. v. Superior Court (2004) 32 Cal. 4th 527, 560-562, 10 Cal. Rptr. 3d 283, 85 P.3d 67] .

§ 126A.46 Other Civil Constitutional Rights

[1] Freedom from Involuntary Servitude and Slavery

The California Constitution prohibits slavery and, except to punish crime, involuntary servitude [see Cal. Const., art. I, § 6]. When considering involuntary servitude issues, the protection extended by Cal. Const., art. I, § 6 is coextensive with that accorded by the Thirteenth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution [Moss v. Superior Court (1998) 17 Cal. 4th 396, 418-420, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 215, 950 P.2d 59 ; see, e.g., Johnson v. Calvert (1993) 5 Cal. 4th 84, 96 [19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 494, 851 P.2d 776] . Accordingly, the qualifying phrase "unless for the punishment of crime" within this section's proscriptions against involuntary servitude does not vitiate or violate the provisions of the Thirteenth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution [Morrison v California (S.D. Cal., 1964) 238 F. Supp. 22, 25] .

Under the Thirteenth Amendment, involuntary servitude has been recognized in cases of criminal punishment for refusal to work, or where there is extrinsic evidence of coercion or duress [Johnson v Calvert (1993) 5 Cal. 4th 84, 96, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 494, 851 P.2d 776] . However, the prohibition against involuntary servitude does not prevent a court from ordering a parent to obtain paid employment in order that the parent may pay child support [Moss v Superior Court (1998) 17 Cal. 4th 396, 418, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 215, 950 P.2d 59 , overruling Ex parte Todd (1897) 119 Cal. 57, 50 P. 1071 insofar as it may apply to child support obligations)].

[2] Freedom from Discrimination in Employment or Business

Cal. Const., art. I, § 8, which provides that no person may be disqualified from entering or pursuing a business, profession, vocation, or employment because of sex, race, creed, color, or national or ethnic origin, sets forth a fundamental public policy against employment discrimination on those grounds, and may be the basis for a tort cause of action for wrongful termination in violation of public policy [Rojo v. Kliger (1990) 52 Cal. 3d 65, 88-91, 276 Cal. Rptr. 130, 801 P.2d 373] .

For detailed discussion of Cal. Const., art. I, § 8, see Ch. 115, Civil Rights: Employment Discrimination, § 115.34; Ch. 249, Employment Law: Termination and Discipline, §§ 249.12, 249.21.

[3] Fishing Rights

The California Constitution affords the people the right to fish on public lands subject to reasonable regulations [see Cal. Const., art. I, § 25]. The words, "public lands," mean state-owned land the use of which by the state is compatible with use by the public for purposes of fishing. Only property that is being used for a special purpose that is incompatible with its use by the public does not fall within the scope of the constitutional provision [California v. San Luis Obispo Sportsman's Assn.(1978) 22 Cal. 3d 440, 446-447, 149 Cal. Rptr. 482, 584 P.2d 1088 (the constitutional provision applied to state-owned lands surrounding a domestic water supply reservoir where a properly implemented public recreational fishing program would not interfere with its function as a domestic water supply reservoir)].

The right to fish in the Constitution does not create an interest that is a fundamental right for purposes of equal protection analysis. The constitutional provision authorizes legislative regulation of fishing, and creates only a qualified right to fish. Further, the constitutional provision was not intended to curtail the traditional legislative prerogative to regulate fishing; the power to regulate fishing has always existed as an aspect of the inherent power of the legislature to regulate the terms under which a public resource may be taken by private citizens [California Gillnetters Ass'n v. Dep't of Fish & Game (1995) 39 Cal. App. 4th 1145, 1153-1154, 46 Cal. Rptr. 2d 338] .

[1] Distinguishing Procedural Due Process from Substantive Due Process, and Cross References to Detailed Discussions Throughout This Publication

Under the California constitution, a person may not be deprived of life, liberty, or property without due process of law [Cal. Const., art. I, § 7(a)]. Similarly, the federal constitution provides that "no State shall ... deprive any person of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law" [U.S. Const., amend. XIV, § 1].

Accordingly, the touchstone of due process is protection of the individual against arbitrary action of government [County of Sacramento v. Lewis (1998) 523 U.S. 833, 845-846, 118 S. Ct. 1708, 140 L. Ed. 2d 1043 , quoting Wolff v. McDonnell (1974) 418 U.S. 539, 558, 94 S. Ct. 2963, 41 L. Ed. 2d 935] , whether the fault lies in a denial of fundamental procedural fairness, i.e., procedural due process, or in the exercise of power without any reasonable justification in the service of a legitimate governmental objective, i.e., substantive due process [County of Sacramento v. Lewis (1998) 523 U.S. 833, 846, 118 S. Ct. 1708, 140 L. Ed. 2d 1043] .

[2] Elements of Procedural Due Process

[a] Three Factors

The following three factors normally determine whether an individual has received the "process" that the Constitution finds "due" [City of Los Angeles v. David (2003) 538 U.S. 715, 123 S. Ct. 1895, 155 L. Ed. 2d 946 ; Mathews v. Eldridge, 424 U.S. 319, 335, 96 S. Ct. 893, 47 L. Ed. 2d 18 (1976)] :

- The private interest that will be affected by the official action;

- The risk of an erroneous deprivation of such interest through the procedures used, and the probable value, if any, of additional or substitute procedural safeguards; and

- The Government's interest, including the function involved and the fiscal and administrative burdens that the additional or substitute procedural requirement would entail.

[b] Showing of Deprivation of Life, Liberty, or Property Required First

The Due Process Clause protects persons against deprivations of life, liberty, or property; and those who seek to invoke its procedural protection must first establish that one of these interests is at stake [Wilkinson v. Austin (2005) 545 U.S. 209, 221, 125 S. Ct. 2384, 162 L. Ed. 2d 174 ; Mathews v. Eldridge, 424 U.S. 319, 332, 96 S. Ct. 893, 47 L. Ed. 2d 18 (1976)] .

-126A California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 126A.52

§ 126A.52 Vagueness of Laws

A person may not be deprived of life, liberty, or property without due process of law[U.S. Const., amend. XIV; Cal. Const., art. I, § 7(a)]. Civil as well as criminal statutes must be sufficiently clear to give a fair warning of the conduct prohibited and must provide a standard or guide against which conduct can be uniformly judged by courts and administrative agencies [Morrison v. State Board of Education (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 214, 231, 82 Cal. Rptr. 175, 461 P.2d 375 ; see Menefee & Son v. Department of Food & Agriculture (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 774, 780-783, 245 Cal. Rptr. 166] . However, although enactments outside the criminal area have occasionally been subjected to scrutiny on grounds of vagueness, especially in cases involving the right to practice a recognized profession or the exercise of other fundamental rights, scrutiny for vagueness has normally been limited to situations in which First Amendment rights have been at stake [Goldin v. Public Utilities Commission (1979) 23 Cal. 3d 638, 659, 153 Cal. Rptr. 802, 592 P.2d 289] .

An enactment is void for vagueness if its prohibitions are not clearly defined. An enactment must give a person of ordinary intelligence a reasonable opportunity to know what is prohibited, so that he or she may act accordingly. Also, if arbitrary and discriminatory enforcement is to be prevented, laws must provide explicit standards for those who apply them. When a vague statute abuts on sensitive areas of basic First Amendment freedoms, it operates to inhibit the exercise of those freedoms. Uncertain meanings inevitably lead citizens to steer far wider of the unlawful zone than if the boundaries had been clearly marked [Ketchens v. Reiner (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 470, 477, 239 Cal. Rptr. 549 ; see People v. Scott (1993) 20 Cal. App. 4th Supp. 5, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 179] .

Vagueness may be resolved by a more precise judicial construction and by application of the statute in conformity with the legislative objectives [Morrison v. State Board of Education (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 214, 232-233, 82 Cal. Rptr. 175, 461 P.2d 375 (immoral or unprofessional conduct or conduct involving moral turpitude as grounds for revocation of teacher's diplomas construed as limited to conduct showing unfitness to teach)]. For example, when the language of a statute fails to provide an objective standard by which conduct can be judged, the required specificity may nonetheless be provided by the common knowledge and understanding of members of the particular vocation or profession to which the statute applies [Cranston v. City of Richmond (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 755, 764, 221 Cal. Rptr. 779, 710 P.2d 845] . Additionally, a challenge on the ground of vagueness to a statute that does not involve First Amendment freedoms must be examined in light of the facts of the case at hand [Cranston v. City of Richmond (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 755, 763, 221 Cal. Rptr. 779, 710 P.2d 845] . Many, probably most, statutes are ambiguous in some respects and instances invariably arise under which the application of statutory language may be unclear. So long as a statute does not threaten to infringe on the exercise of First Amendment or other constitutional rights, however, such ambiguities, even if numerous, do not justify the invalidation of a statute on its face [City Of Santa Cruz v. Patel (2007) 155 Cal. App. 4th 234, 247, 65 Cal. Rptr. 3d 824 ; Evangelatos v. Superior Court (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 1188, 1201, 246 Cal. Rptr. 629, 753 P.2d 585]. In order to succeed on a facial vagueness challenge to a legislative measure that does not threaten constitutionally protected conduct, a party must do more than identify some instances in which the application of the statute may be uncertain or unambiguous; the party must demonstrate that the law is impermissibly vague in all of its applications [People v. Scott (1993) 20 Cal. App. 4th Supp. 5, 12 , People v. Scott (1993) 20 Cal. App. 4th Supp. 5, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 179] .

Finally, in examining statutes challenged for vagueness, courts need not consider every conceivable situation that might arise under the statute's language so long as that language may be given a reasonable and practical construction which is consistent with the Legislature's probable intent and which encompasses the conduct of the complaining party [Cranston v. City of Richmond (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 755, 764-765, 221 Cal. Rptr. 779, 710 P.2d 845 ; People v. Scott (1993) 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 179] .

Economic regulation is subject to a less strict vagueness test because its subject matter is often more narrow, and because businesses, which face economic demands to plan behavior carefully, can be expected to consult relevant legislation in advance of action. Indeed, the regulated enterprise may have the ability to clarify the meaning of the regulation by its own inquiry, or by resort to an administrative process [Amaral v. Cintas Corp. No. 2 (2008) 163 Cal. App. 4th 1157, 1181, 78 Cal. Rptr. 3d 572].

A person's property may not be confiscated by the state without "notice and opportunity to be heard" [*Dusenbery v. United States (2002) 534 U.S. 161, 167, 122 S. Ct. 694, 151 L. While in most cases the hearing will be required before the taking, unusual circumstances may permit the postponement of notice and hearing until after the initial taking has occurred [Kash Enterprises, Inc. v. City of Los Angeles (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 294, 308, 138 Cal. Rptr. 53, 562 P.2d 1302 ; Bryte v. City of La Mesa (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 687, 689, 255 Cal. Rptr. 64] . The statute itself must provide for notice of the time and place of hearing where the parties may present in a regular and orderly manner issues of law and fact. [Kash Enterprises, Inc. v. City of Los Angeles (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 294, 308, 138 Cal. Rptr. 53, 562 P.2d 1302 ; Bryte v. City of La Mesa (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 687, 690, 255 Cal. Rptr. 64 ; *see City of W. Covina v. E. Procedural Due Process

§ 126A.54 Procedural Due Process in Adjudicative Actions

[1] Adequate Notice and Hearing

The fundamental requisite of procedural due process of law is the opportunity to be heard. [Mullane v. Central Hanover Bank & Trust Co., 339 U.S. 306, 314, 70 S. Ct. 652, 94 L. Ed. 865 (1950)] . Another elementary and fundamental requirement of due process in any proceeding that is to be accorded finality is notice reasonably calculated, under all the circumstances, to apprise interested parties of the pendency of the action and afford them an opportunity to present their objections. Notice is constitutionally adequate when the practicalities and peculiarities of the case are reasonably met [Cleveland Bd. of Ed. v. Loudermill, 470 U.S. 532, 542, 105 S. Ct. 1487, 84 L. Ed. 2d 494 (1985) ; Mullane v. Central Hanover Bank & Trust Co. (1950) 339 U.S. 306, 314-315, 70 S. Ct. 652, 94 L. Ed. 865] .

The key focus is the "reasonableness" of the means chosen by the State to notify affected parties [Mullane v. Central Hanover Bank & Trust Co. (1950) 339 U.S. 306, 315, 70 S. Ct. 652, 94 L. Ed. 865] . Whether a particular method of notice is reasonable depends on the outcome of the balance between the "interest of the State" and "the individual interest sought to be protected by the Fourteenth Amendment [Mullane v. Central Hanover Bank & Trust Co. (1950) 339 U.S. 306, 314, 70 S. Ct. 652, 94 L. Ed. 865] . Of course, it is not the courts' responsibility to prescribe the form of service that the state should adopt [Greene v. Lindsey (1982) 456 U.S. 444, 455 n.9]. It is the primary responsibility of the state to strike this balance, and the courts will upset this process only when the state strikes the balance in an irrational manner [Mennonite Board of Missions v. Adams (1983) 462 U.S. 791, 801, 103 S. Ct. 2706, 77 L. Ed. 2d 180] . Thus, the right to notice and an opportunity to be heard must be granted at a meaningful time and in a meaningful manner [Fuentes v. Shevin, 407 U.S. 67, 80, 92 S. Ct. 1983, 32 L. Ed. 2d 556 (1972) , quoting inter alia Baldwin v. Hale, 68 U.S. 223, 17 L. Ed. 531, 1 Wall. 223, 233 (1864) ; Armstrong v. Manzo, 380 U.S. 545, 552, 85 S. Ct. 1187, 14 L. Ed. 2d 62 (1965)] .

However, the rule is not that the state must provide actual notice, but rather that it must attempt to provide actual notice [Mennonite Bd. of Missions v. Adams, 462 U.S. 791, 796-797, 103 S. Ct. 2706, 77 L. Ed. 2d 180] . Indeed, the government must only show the "reasonableness and hence the constitutional validity of any chosen method ... on the ground that it is in itself reasonably certain to inform those affected" [Dusenbery v. United States (2002) 534 U.S.

161, 170, 122 S. Ct. 694, 151 L. Ed. 2d 597 ; Mullane v. Central Hanover Bank & Trust Co., 339 U.S. 306, 315, 70 S. Ct. 652, 94 L. Ed. 865 (1950)] .

For discussion of complaints and cross complaints as notices of claims, see Ch. 123, Complaints and Cross-Complaints . For discussion of service of summons and complaint, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers .

[2] Neutral Decisionmaker

Due process requires a neutral and detached decisionmaker in the first instance [Concrete Pipe & Products of Cal., Inc. v. Construction Laborers Pension Trust for Southern Cal., 508 U.S. 602, 617, 113 S. Ct. 2264, 124 L. Ed. 2d 539 (1993) , quoting *Ward v. Monroeville, 409 U.S. 57, 61-62, 93 S. Ct. 80, 34 L. § 126A.55 Facial Constitutional Conflict of Procedural Scheme

A facial challenge to the constitutional validity of a statute or ordinance considers only the text of the measure itself, not its application to the particular circumstances of an individual. To support a determination of facial unconstitutionality, voiding the statute as a whole, a plaintiff cannot prevail by suggesting that in some future hypothetical situation constitutional problems may possibly arise as to the particular application of the statute. Rather, a plaintiff must demonstrate that the provisions of an act inevitably pose a present total and fatal conflict with applicable constitutional prohibitions [California Teachers Assn. v. State of California (1999) 20 Cal. 4th 327, 333, 337, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 425, 975 P.2d 622 ; Tobe v. City of Santa Ana (1995) 9 Cal. 4th 1069, 1084, 40 Cal. Rptr. 2d 402, 892 P.2d 1145] .

When considering a facial challenge to a procedural scheme, a court must determine whether the procedures provide sufficient protection against erroneous and unnecessary deprivations of liberty and property [Schall v. Martin (1984) 467 U.S. 253, 274, 104 S. Ct. 2403, 2415, 81 L. Ed. 2d 207 ; California Teachers Assn. v. State of California (1999) 20 Cal. 4th 327, 333, 347, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 425, 975 P.2d 622] . The balancing analysis requires an examination of procedures to determine whether they assure a minimum overall standard of fairness in the particular context. Procedural due process rules are shaped by the risk of error inherent in the generality of cases, not the rare exceptions [Mathews v. Eldridge (1976) 424 U.S. 319, 334-335, 96 S. Ct. 893, 902-903, 47 L. Ed. 2d 18 ; California Teachers Assn. v. State of California (1999) 20 Cal. 4th 327, 333, 347, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 425, 975 P.2d 622] .

In considering facial challenges to procedural schemes, courts are to balance the competing interests to ascertain whether the procedures meet due process requirements. It is not sufficient to ascertain simply whether there are instances falling within the scheme in which a particular result would be constitutionally permissible [California Teachers Assn. v. State of California (1999) 20 Cal. 4th 327, 333, 347, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 425, 975 P.2d 622 ; see also, e.g., Cleveland Board of Education v. Loudermill (1985) 470 U.S. 532, 536-537, 542-546, 105 S. Ct. 1487, 1493, 84 L. Ed. 2d 494] .

When the state's interest reflected in the actual language of a statute renders the statute unconstitutional, the incidental effect of conserving public resources or recouping costs cannot save the law [California Teachers Assn. v. State of California (1999) 20 Cal. 4th 327, 346, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 425, 975 P.2d 622] .

§ 126A.56 Traditional Practice

Traditional practice provides a touchstone for constitutional analysis [Honda Motor Co. v. Oberg (1994) 512 U.S. 415, 430, 114 S. Ct. 2331, 2339, 129 L. Ed. 2d 336 ; California Teachers Assn. v. State of California (1999) 20 Cal. 4th 327, 333, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 425, 975 P.2d 622] . Thus, the fact that a statutory provision was "unique and virtually unprecedented" was important in considering whether the statute failed to satisfy constitutional requirements [California Teachers Assn. v. State of California (1999) 20 Cal. 4th 327, 333, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 425, 975 P.2d 622 (statute requiring dismissed or suspended teachers to reimburse state for half cost of administrative law judge was unique exception to statutory requirement that public agencies pay cost of such services, and radical departure from established common law tradition of public funding of adjudicators in courts and in official quasi-judicial bodies)]. Before endorsing a novel idea, particularly when the due process clause requires the state to provide a hearing, courts should proceed with great care [California Teachers Assn. v. State of California (1999) 20 Cal. 4th 327, 333, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 425, 975 P.2d 622] .

§ 126A.61 Equal Protection Under the California Constitution

The California constitutional mandate of equal protection [see Cal. Const., art. I, § 7(a)] was added to the California Constitution in 1974 [see Serrano v. Priest, 18 Cal. 3d 728, 763 n.40, 135 Cal. Rptr. 345, 557 P.2d 929 (Proposition 7)] . Prior to that time, the California courts interpreted the privileges and immunities provision of the California constitution along with the requirement of uniform general laws as being substantially equivalent to the equal protection clause of the Fourteenth Amendment to the federal constitution [see § 126A.64].

The California courts' interpretations may not restrict the guarantees accorded the national citizenry under the federal equal protection clause [see U.S. Const., amend. XIV, § 1, cl. 3]. In such constitutional adjudication, the first referent is California law and the full panoply of rights Californians have come to expect as their due. Accordingly, decisions of the United States Supreme Court defining fundamental rights are persuasive authority to be afforded respectful consideration, but are to be followed by California courts only when they provide no less individual protection than is guaranteed by California law [People v. Longwill (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 943, 951 n. 4, 123 Cal. Rptr. 297, 538 P.2d 753] .

§ 126A.62 Scrutiny of Classification in Equal Protection Analysis

[1] Rational-Basis Test Applies Generally to Statutory Classifications

In areas of social and economic policy, a statutory classification that neither proceeds along suspect lines nor infringes fundamental constitutional rights must be upheld against equal protection challenge if there is any reasonably conceivable state of facts that could provide a rational basis for the classification [Kasler v. Lockyer, 23 Cal. 4th 472, 481-482, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 334, 2 P.3d 581 (2000) (quoting FCC v. Beach Communications, Inc. (1993) 508 U.S. 307, 313, 113 S. Ct. 2096, 2101, 124 L. Ed. 2d 211); Facundo-Guerrero v. Workers' Compensation Appeals Board, Nurserymen's Exchange (2008) 163 Cal. App. 4th 640, 655, 77 Cal. Rptr. 3d 731] .

A threshold requirement of any meritorious equal protection claim is a showing that the state's classification affects two or more similarly situated groups in an unequal manner. This initial inquiry is not whether groups in question are similarly situated for all purposes, but whether they are similarly situated for purposes of the law challenged [People v. Travis (2006) 139 Cal. App. 4th 1271, 1291, 44 Cal. Rptr. 3d 177] .

Where there are plausible reasons for a classification, the courts' inquiry is at an end [Kasler v. Lockyer, 23 Cal. 4th 472, 481-482, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 334, 2 P.3d 581 (2000) (quoting FCC v. Beach Communications, Inc. (1993) 508 U.S. 307, 313, 113 S. Ct. 2096, 2101, 124 L. Ed. 2d 211)]. The party challenging a classification bears the burden of demonstrating its invalidity [City and County of San Francisco v. Flying Dutchman Park, Inc. (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 74, 83-84, 18 Cal. Rptr. 3d 532 (citing Warden v. State Bar (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 628, 641, 88 Cal. Rptr. 2d 283, 982 P.2d 154)].

Within this framework, the state may recognize that different categories or classes of persons within a larger classification may pose varying degrees of risk of harm, and properly may limit a regulation to those classes of persons as to whom the need for regulation is thought to be more crucial or imperative [Kasler v. Lockyer, 23 Cal. 4th 472, 482, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 334, 2 P.3d 581 (2000) , citing American Bank & Trust Co. v. Community Hospital (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 359, 371, 204 Cal. Rptr. 671, 683 P.2d 670, 41 A.L.R.4th 233] .

The courts will not overturn a statute unless the varying treatment of different groups or persons is so unrelated to the achievement of any combination of legitimate purposes that they can only conclude that the legislature's actions were irrational [Hernandez v. City of Hanford (2007) 41 Cal. 4th 279, 301, 59 Cal. Rptr. 3d 442, 159 P.3d 33 , quoting Kadrmas v. Dickinson Public Schools (1988) 487 U.S. 450, 462-463, 108 S. Ct. 2481, 101 L. Ed. 2d 399].

[2] Classifications Suspect or Touching Fundamental Interests Are Subject to Strict Scrutiny

In cases involving "suspect classifications" or touching on "fundamental interests," courts analysis the classification actively and critically, subjecting the classifications to strict scrutiny. Under this strict standard applied in those cases, the state bears the burden of establishing not only that it has a compelling interest that justifies the law, but that the distinctions drawn by the law are necessary to further its purpose [Kasler v. Lockyer, 23 Cal. 4th 472, 480, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 334, 2 P.3d 581 (2000) (quoting Warden v. State Bar (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 628, 640-641, 88 Cal. Rptr. 2d 283, 982 P.2d 154)]. Accordingly, the applicable test is whether the law is narrowly tailored to meet a compelling governmental interest [Tobe v. City of Santa Ana, 9 Cal. 4th 1069, 1129, 40 Cal. Rptr. 2d 402, 892 P.2d 1145 (1995) (Mosk, J., dissenting) (citing Plyler v. Doe, 457 U.S. 202, 216-217, 102 S.Ct. 2382, 72 L.Ed.2d 786, 798-799 (1982))] .

The area of fundamental interests includes "all protections of the California Declaration of Rights" [People v. Longwill (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 943, 951 n. 4, 123 Cal. Rptr. 297, 538 P.2d 753] .

[3] Class of One Scrutinized for Rational Basis

Equal protection claims are successfully brought by a "class of one" when the plaintiff alleges that he or she has been intentionally treated differently from others similarly situated and that there is no rational basis for the difference in treatment [Vill. of Willowbrook v. Olech (2000) 528 U.S. 562, 564, 120 S. Ct. 1073, 145 L. Ed. 2d 1060 ; Genesis Environmental Services v. San Joaquin Valley Unified Air Pollution Control Dist. (2003) 113 Cal. App. 4th 597, 605, 6 Cal. Rptr. 3d 574] . An equal protection claim by a class of one contains the following essential elements: (1) plaintiff was treated differently from other similarly situated persons, (2) the difference in treatment was intentional, and (3) there was no rational basis for the difference in treatment [Genesis Environmental Services v. San Joaquin Valley Unified Air Pollution Control Dist. (2003) 113 Cal. App. 4th 597, 605, 6 Cal. Rptr. 3d 574]. A 2009 decision of the federal Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals serves as a reminder that the class-of-one treatment must concern a fundamental right [Nurre v. Whitehead (9th Cir. 2009) 580 F.3d 1087, 1098-1099 (claim that one group of graduates was permitted to select a song for graduation while another was not involves neither a fundamental right nor a suspect class)].

§ 126A.63 Limitation on Equal Protection by Proposition 209

[1] Proposition 209

The ratification by the voters of Proposition 209, which added Cal. Const., art. I, § 31 to the state constitution effective November 6, 1996, limited the scope of equal protection in respect to preferential treatments in the law based on race, sex, color, ethnicity, or national origin in the operation of public employment, public education, or public contracting [Crawford v. Huntington Beach Union High Sch. Dist. (2002) 98 Cal. App. 4th 1275, 1279, 121 Cal. Rptr. 2d 96] . Proposition 209 has "undeniably changed state law," for it controls where it conflicts with the equal protection clause [Crawford v. Huntington Beach Union High Sch. Dist. (2002) 98 Cal. App. 4th 1275, 1284, 121 Cal. Rptr. 2d 96] .

[2] Limitation of Equal Protection by Proposition 209

By removing public education laws from heightened scrutiny under the California constitution, Cal. Const., art. I, § 31 in effect put the California constitutional requirement of equal protection back to the point of federal equal protection with respect to education [see San Antonio School Dist. v. Rodriguez (1973) 411 U.S. 1, 93 S.Ct. 1278, 36 L.Ed.2d 16 (no federal equal protection on education); *compare Crawford v. Huntington Beach Union High Sch. Dist. (2002) 98 Cal. § 126A.63A Limitation on Equal Protection by Proposition 8

The California Supreme Court has ruled that sexual orientation is a suspect classification for purposes of the California Constitution's Equal Protection Clause. Therefore, statutes that treat persons differently because of their sexual orientation are subject to strict scrutiny [see In re Marriage Cases (2008) 43 Cal. 4th 757, 840, 76 Cal. Rptr. 3d 683, 183 P.3d 384].

The ratification by the voters of Proposition 8, which added Cal. Const., art. I, § 7.5 to the state constitution effective November 5, 2008, limits the scope of equal protection in respect to marriage on the basis of sexual orientation by defining a valid marriage as being between a man and a woman. Per the 2009 California Supreme Court decision upholding the constitutionality of Proposition 8 "[w]ith respect to the specific subject of the designation of the word 'marriage,' Proposition 8 does change the rule, set forth in the majority opinion in the Marriage Cases, that limiting access to this designation to opposite-sex couples constitutes an impermissible violation of the state equal protection clause. ... By incorporating into the California Constitution a specific provision that expressly restricts the designation of 'marriage' to the union of a man and a woman, Proposition 8 must be understood as creating a limited exception to the state equal protection clause as interpreted in the majority opinion in the Marriage Cases. ... This exception--although constituting the governing state constitutional rule with regard to the specific matter it addresses--does not alter the general equal protection principles set forth in the Marriage Cases and in other California decisions interpreting and applying the state constitutional equal protection clause. Those principles continue to apply in all other contexts" [Strauss v. Horton (2009) 46 Cal. 4th 364, 411-412, 93 Cal. Rptr. 3d 591, 207 P.3d 48].

F. Equal Protection, and Privileges and Immunities

-126A California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 126A.64

§ 126A.64 Privileges and Immunities in Relation to Equal Protection

[1] Privileges and Immunities Provision in Combination with Uniform General Laws Provision Required Equal Protection

Under the California Constitution, a citizen or class of citizens may not be granted privileges or immunities not granted on the same terms to all citizens. Privileges or immunities granted by the Legislature may be altered or revoked [Cal. Const., art. I, § 7(b)].

Prior to the enactment of the equal protection provision of the California Constitution [see Cal. Const., art. I, § 7(a); for discussion, see § 126A.61 et seq.], the California Supreme Court interpreted the privileges and immunities provision of the California constitution [see now Cal. Const., art. I, § 7(b)] along with the requirement of uniform general laws [see now Cal. Const., art. IV, § 16(a); for discussion, see 126A.65] as being "substantially the equivalent" of the equal protection clause of the Fourteenth Amendment to the federal constitution [Dep't of Mental Hygiene v. Kirchner (1965) 62 Cal.2d 586, 588, 43 Cal. Rptr. 329, 400 P.2d 321 ; see Sagaser v. McCarthy (1986) 176 Cal. App. 3d 288, 305, 221 Cal. Rptr. 746 (Cal. Const., art. IV, § 16(a) and Cal. Const., art. I, § 7(b) have essentially the same meaning)].

Exception:

The privileges and immunities clause applies by its terms to "citizens." Thus, unlike due process and equal protection rights, which attach to "persons," corporations are not entitled to the protection of the privileges and immunities clause because they are not "citizens" [City and County of San Francisco v. Flying Dutchman Park, Inc. (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 74, 83-84, 18 Cal. Rptr. 3d 532 (citing Blake v. McClung (1898) 172 U.S. 239, 19 S. Ct. 165, 43 L. Ed. 432 ; Asbury Hospital v. Cass (1945) 326 U.S. 207, 66 S. Ct. 61, 90 L. Ed. 6)].

[2] Elements of Privileges and Immunities Analysis

To be constitutional under the privileges and immunities provision of the California constitution statutory classifications distinguishing between either individuals or businesses, and thus legally discriminate between them, whether for purposes of benefit or of restriction must [Mansur v. Sacramento (1940) 39 Cal. App. 2d 426, 430, 103 P.2d 221] :

- Be necessary,

- Be neither arbitrary nor capricious, and

- Rest upon some substantial, inherent, intrinsic difference or distinction in the relation of the particular class toward the lives, safety, property, health, happiness or convenience of the public, when contrasted with the relation, duties, responsibilities, position or situation of other persons or classes toward the same matters of public concern.

Under Cal. Const., art I, § 7(b), like the equal protection clause and the prohibitions against special legislation, statutory classifications are valid unless the classification is unreasonable or arbitrary [City and County of San Francisco v. Flying Dutchman Park, Inc. (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 74, 87, 18 Cal. Rptr. 3d 532 ; People v. Housman (1984) 163 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 43, 53, 210 Cal. Rptr. 186] .

[3] Protection of Privileges and Immunities under Fourteenth Amendment to U.S. Constitution

The Fourteenth Amendment to the United States Constitution, in providing that the states may not make or enforce laws that abridge the privileges or immunities of citizens of the United States [U.S. Const., amend. XIV, § 1], only secures those rights that owe their existence to the federal government, its national character, its constitution, or its laws [Merrifield v. Lockyer (9th Cir. 2008) 547 F.3d 978, 983] . It protects, among other things, a resident's right to be free of discrimination based on length of residency [Saenz v. Roe (1999) 526 U.S. 489, 502-503, 119 S. Ct. 1518, 143 L. Ed. 2d 689 ; People v. Parker (2006) 141 Cal. App. 4th 1297, 1305, 46 Cal. Rptr. 3d 888] . However, other than the right to travel, the courts have not found other economic rights protected by that clause [Merrifield v. Lockyer (9th Cir. 2008) 547 F.3d 978, 984].

[4] Distinguish from Federal Privileges and Immunities Clause

The Privileges and Immunities Clause of the United States Constitution, in providing that the citizens of each state are entitled to the privileges and immunities of the citizens in the other states [U.S. Const., art. IV, § 2], applies only with respect to those privileges and immunities bearing on the vitality of the nation as a single entity [Supreme Court of New Hampshire v. Piper (1985) 470 U.S. 274, 279, 105 S. Ct. 1272, 84 L. Ed. 2d 205] . Accordingly, it bars states from discriminating against citizens of other states for no substantial reason beyond the fact that they are residents of other states [Saenz v Roe (1999) 526 U.S. 489, 119 S. Ct. 1518, 143 L. Ed. 2d. 689] .

§ 126A.65 General Statutory Provisions in Relation to Equal Protection

[1] Operation Generally Is Substantially Equivalent to Equal Protection Analysis

Laws of a general nature are required to have uniform operation [Cal. Const., art. IV, § 16(a)]. Moreover, local or special statutes are invalid in any case in which a general statute can be made applicable [Cal. Const., art. IV, § 16(b)]. These two clauses of Cal. Const., art. IV, § 16 have substantially the same meaning, and are substantially the equivalent of the equal protection clause of the Fourteenth Amendment to the federal Constitution, and the same standards apply to them as in an attack on equal protection grounds [Sagaser v. McCarthy, 176 Cal. App. 3d 288, 305, 221 Cal. Rptr. 746 ; Durham v. City of Los Angeles (1979) 91 Cal. App. 3d 567, 575, 154 Cal. Rptr. 243 , quoting Russell v. Carleson, 36 Cal. App.3d 334, 342, 111 Cal. Rptr. 497 (railroads' immunity from liability to unauthorized persons on railroad cars not invalid as special law); McGlothlen v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1977) 71 Cal. App. 3d 1005, 1025-1026, 140 Cal. Rptr. 168 (experimental program for disposition of persons convicted of driving under the influence of intoxicating liquor applicable in only four counties not invalid as special law); see County of Sacramento v. Hickman (1967) 66 Cal. 2d 841, 844 n.1, 59 Cal. Rptr. 609, 428 P.2d 593 (statute having general application and that serves public purpose is valid under Cal. Const., art. IV, § 16)].

[2] Uniformity of General Laws

For a law to be general in its scope, it need not include all classes of individuals in the state. It answers the constitutional requirements of Cal. Const., art. IV, § 16(a) if it relates to and acts uniformly upon the whole of any single class of individuals or objects, and the classification is founded upon some natural, intrinsic or constitutional distinction. If good grounds for the classification exist, the classification is not void because it does not embrace within it every other class that could be included [Heitz v. County of Sacramento (1978) 87 Cal. App. 3d 754, 758-759, 151 Cal. Rptr. 429 , quoting Powers Farms v. Consolidated Irr. Dist. (1941) 19 Cal.2d 123, 131, 119 P.2d 717 (immunity from liability arising out of swine flu innoculation applicable only to participants in public innoculation programs not invalid as special law).

[3] Special Law Invalid Where General Law Applies

Under the California constitutional provision that local or special statutes are invalid in any case in which a general statute can be made applicable [see Cal. Const., art. IV, § 16(b)], the general law can be made to apply where [Consolidated Printing & Publishing Co. v. Allen (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 63, 69-70, 112 P.2d 884] :

- There is a general law in existence that on its face covers the same subject matter as the special law,

- The general law is otherwise valid, and

- The application of a special law with different requirements is not mandated on constitutional grounds or by natural and intrinsic differences of the case subject to the special law from that covered by the general law.

§ 126A.66 Equal Protection and the Federal Commerce Clause

Discriminatory state conduct that violates the Commerce Clause of the United States Constitution [see U.S. Const., art. I, § 8, cl. 3] does not necessarily offend the equal protection clause [*Children's Hospital & Medical Center v. Bonta (2002) 97 Cal. App. 4th 740, 769, 118 Cal. Essentially, an additional requirement on a class that has a rational relation to a state interest for purposes of equal protection may nonetheless constitute too great a burden on interstate commerce for purposes of the Commerce Clause [compare *G. D. Searle & Co. v. Cohn, 455 U.S. 404, 102 S. Ct. 1137, 71 L. 13-126A California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 126A.70

§ 126A.70 Judicial Approach to Constitutional Challenges

[1] Availability of Statutory Relief

It is a well-settled rule that if statutory relief is adequate, it is unnecessary and inappropriate for a court to reach constitutional issues [Santa Clara County Local Transportation Authority v. Guardino (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 220, 230-231, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 207, 902 P.2d 225 ; Americans for Safe Access v. Cty. of Alameda (2009) 174 Cal. App. 4th 1287, 1295, 95 Cal. Rptr. 3d 246 (reversing adjudication of constitutional claims)].

[2] Depends on Grounding in U.S. or California Constitution

A court's approach to analyzing a constitutional challenge to a California statute depends on whether the challenge is based on the federal or California Constitution. Unlike the federal Constitution, which is a grant of power to Congress, the California Constitution is a limitation or restriction on the powers of the Legislature. Two important consequences flow from this difference. First, in California, the Legislature's power is plenary. That is, the entire law-making authority of the state, other than the people's right of initiative and referendum, is vested in the Legislature, which may exercise any and all legislative powers that are not expressly or by necessary implication denied to it by the Constitution. Thus, a court will not look to the California Constitution to determine whether the Legislature is authorized to do an act, but only to see if it is prohibited. Second, any doubt as to the Legislature's power to act in a given instance should be resolved in favor of the constitutionality of the Legislature's action. Any restrictions and limitations imposed by the California Constitution are to be construed strictly, and they are not to be extended to include matters not covered by the actual constitutional language [State Personnel Bd. v. Department of Personnel Admin. (2005) 37 Cal. 4th 512, 36 Cal. Rptr. 3d 142, 149-150, 123 P.3d 169 ; Methodist Hosp. v. Saylor (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 685, 691, 97 Cal. Rptr. 1, 488 P.2d 161] . Nevertheless, the courts have a duty to enforce the provisions of the California Constitution and will not disregard a clear constitutional mandate [State Personnel Bd. v. Department of Personnel Admin. (2005) 37 Cal. 4th 512, 523, 36 Cal. Rptr. 3d 142, 123 P.3d 169 ; *County of Riverside v. Superior Court (2003) 30 Cal. 4th 278, 284-285, 132 Cal. § 126A.71 Facial Unconstitutionality

In general, a complaint that seeks to "enjoin any application of the ordinance to any person in any circumstance" constitutes a facial attack on the statute. [Tobe v. City of Santa Ana (1995) 9 Cal. 4th 1069, 1087, 40 Cal. Rptr. 2d 402, 892 P.2d 1145 ; California Family Bioethics Council, LLC v. California Institute for Regenerative Medicine (2007) 147 Cal. App. 4th 1319, 1339, 55 Cal. Rptr. 3d 272] . There are two ways an ordinance may be judged unconstitutional on its face [Reed v. Town of Gilbert (9th Cir. 2009) 587 F.3d 966, 974 (citing Members of City Council v. Taxpayers for Vincent (1984) 466 U.S. 789, 796, 104 S. Ct. 2118, 80 L. Ed. 2d 772)]:

- It is unconstitutional in every conceivable application, or
- It seeks to prohibit such a broad range of protected conduct that it is unconstitutionally "overbroad."

A facial challenge to the constitutional validity of a statute or ordinance considers only the text of the measure itself, not its application to the particular circumstances of an individual [Tobe v. City of Santa Ana (1995) 9 Cal. 4th 1069, 1084, 40 Cal. Rptr. 2d 402, 892 P.2d 1145 , citing Dillon v. Municipal Court (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 860, 865 [94 Cal. Rptr. 777, 484 P.2d 945] . To support a determination of facial unconstitutionality, voiding the statute as a whole, petitioners cannot prevail by suggesting that in some future hypothetical situation constitutional problems may possibly arise as to the particular application of the statute. Rather, petitioners must demonstrate that the act's provisions inevitably pose a present total and fatal conflict with applicable constitutional prohibitions [Tobe v. City of Santa Ana (1995) 9 Cal. 4th 1069, 1084, 40 Cal. Rptr. 2d 402, 892 P.2d 1145 , quoting Arcadia Unified School Dist. v. State Dept. of Education (1992) 2 Cal. 4th 251, 267, 5 Cal. Rptr. 2d 545, 825 P. 2d 438] . Thus, if a plaintiff seeks to enjoin future, allegedly impermissible, types of applications of a facially valid statute or ordinance, the plaintiff must demonstrate that such application is occurring or has occurred in the past [Tobe v. City of Santa Ana (1995) 9 Cal. 4th 1069, 1084, 40 Cal. Rptr. 2d 402, 892 P.2d 1145] .

An as applied challenge contemplates analysis of the facts of a particular case or cases to determine the circumstances in which the statute or ordinance has been applied and to consider whether in those particular circumstances the application deprived the individual to whom it was applied of a protected right. It may seek [Tobe v. City of Santa Ana (1995) 9 Cal. 4th 1069, 1084, 40 Cal. Rptr. 2d 402, 892 P.2d 1145 , citing inter alia *Broadrick v. - Relief from a specific application of a facially valid statute or ordinance to an individual or class of individuals who are under allegedly impermissible present restraint or disability as a result of the manner or circumstances in which the statute or ordinance has been applied, or

- An injunction against future application of the statute or ordinance in the allegedly impermissible manner it is shown to have been applied in the past.

The result of a successful as-applied challenge to a particular statute is not the invalidation of the statute as a whole, but rather an order enjoining specific unlawful application of the statute [*Tobe v. [1] Proper Action to Test Constitutionality in Most Instances

Under the declaratory relief statute [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1060], declaratory relief is available to adjudicate the constitutionality of statutes and ordinances on their face or as applied to a particular party or situation [State v. Superior Court of Orange County (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 237, 251-252, 115 Cal. Rptr. 497, 524 P.2d 1281 ; Excelsior College v. Board of Registered Nursing (2006) 136 Cal. App. 4th 1218, 1228 n.2, 39 Cal. Rptr. 3d 618 ; see Pennell v. City of San Jose (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 365, 367, 228 Cal. Rptr. 726, 721 P.2d 1111 (declaratory relief action to test constitutionality of rent control ordinance)].

For a form of complaint for declaratory relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 1060 to declare state statute unconstitutional, by city and affected public officials against district attorney, see Ch. 182, Declaratory Relief, § 182.65.

For a form of complaint for declaratory relief and for preliminary and permanent injunctions that zoning ordinance is unconstitutional and void, see Ch. 579, Zoning and Planning, § 579.370.

For a further discussion and forms relating to actions for declaratory relief, including forms of complaints for declaratory relief to determine the validity of statutes, ordinances, and administrative regulations, or to interpret statutes, ordinances, and administrative regulations, see Ch. 182, Declaratory Relief .

[2] Taxpayer Actions

Declaratory relief is also available in a taxpayer's action [Van Atta v. Scott (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 424, 449-450, 166 Cal. Rptr. 149, 613 P.2d 210] .

For a form of allegation of illegal expenditure of public money under an unconstitutional statute or ordinance in an action under Code Civ. Proc. § 526a, see Ch. 466, Public Entities and Officers: Taxpayer's Actions, § 466.61.

For discussion and forms relating to taxpayer's suits, see Ch. 466, Public Entities and Officers: Taxpayer's Actions .

[3] Exception for Challenging Constitutionality of Application of Law by Administrative Agency

A challenge to the constitutionality of an administrative agency's application of a law are not to be resolved in an action for declaratory relief [State v. Superior Court of Orange County (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 237, 251, 115 Cal. Rptr. 497, 524 P.2d 1281 ; City of Santee v. Superior Court (1991) 228 Cal. App. 3d 713, 718, 279 Cal. Rptr. 22] .

For a further discussion and forms relating to actions for mandamus generally, see Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition .

§ 126A.74 Injunctive Relief

[1] To Restrain Enforcement or Implementation in General

As a general rule, an injunction may not be granted to prevent the execution of a public statute by officers of the law for the public benefit [Civ. Code § 3423(d); Code Civ. Proc. § 526(b)(4)]. For example, injunctive relief is not available to a plaintiff who makes no claim of unconstitutionality or of irreparable injury to a property right but who is merely seeking to have a penal statute construed in a manner that will allow him or her to engage in an activity undertaken merely for pleasure [Manchel v. County of Los Angeles County (1966) 245 Cal. App. 2d 501, 506, 54 Cal. Rptr. 53] .

Despite this statutory rule, however, injunctive relief is available in the following situations:

- When a state statute or ordinance is preempted by federal law [Independent Living Center of Southern California, Inc. v. Shewry (9th Cir. 2008) 543 F.3d 1050, 1061-1062 (federal court)].

- When a statute or ordinance is unconstitutional on its face, or although valid on its face, is unconstitutional as applied [Conover v. Hall (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 842, 849-850, 114 Cal. Rptr. 642, 523 P.2d 682 ; Merandette v. City and County of San Francisco (1979) 88 Cal. App. 3d 105, 110-111, 151 Cal. Rptr. 580 ; see Ketchens v. Reiner (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 470, 480, 239 Cal. Rptr. 549] ; or

- When enforcement of the unconstitutional statute or ordinance would cause irreparable harm to property rights [Coffee-Rich, Inc. v. Fielder (1975) 48 Cal. App. 3d 990, 999-1000, 122 Cal. Rptr. 302 , appeal dismissed, 423 U.S. 1042, 96 S. Ct. 764, 46 L. Ed. 2d 631 (1976) ; see Menefee & Son v. Department of Food & Agriculture (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 774, 783, 245 Cal. Rptr. 166] .

For a form of complaint for declaratory relief and for preliminary and permanent injunctions that zoning ordinance is unconstitutional and void, see Ch. 579, Zoning and Planning, § 579.370.

For a discussion and forms relating to proceedings to obtain injunctive relief, see Ch. 303, Injunctions , and see Ch.

182, Declaratory Relief .

[2] Taxpayer's Suit

Taxpayers may bring suit to restrain the illegal expenditure of public funds, which includes the expenditure of a public official's time in performing illegal and unauthorized acts. In a taxpayer's suit, public officials may be enjoined from implementing an unconstitutional statute or ordinance [Code Civ. Proc. § 526a; Blair v. Pitchess (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 258, 267-269, 96 Cal. Rptr. 42, 486 P.2d 1242 ; see Ketchens v. Reiner (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 470, 474, 239 Cal. Rptr. 549] .

Strategic Point:

While plaintiffs generally need to establish standing by showing deprivation of a life, liberty, or property interest, they need not do so if they have such a beneficial interest as taxpayers who have standing under Code Civ. Proc. § 526a to restrain illegal expenditure or waste of city funds on future enforcement of an unconstitutional ordinance or an impermissible means of enforcement of a facially valid ordinance [Tobe v. City of Santa Ana (1995) 9 Cal. 4th 1069,1086, 40 Cal. Rptr. 2d 402, 892 P.2d 1145 ; White v. Davis (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 757, 764, 120 Cal. Rptr. 94, 533 P.2d222] .

For a form of allegation of illegal expenditure of public money under an unconstitutional statute or ordinance in an action under Code Civ. Proc. § 526a, see Ch. 466, Public Entities and Officers: Taxpayer's Actions, § 466.61.

For discussion and forms relating to taxpayer's suits, see Ch. 466, Public Entities and Officers: Taxpayer's Actions . Also see Ch. 303, Injunctions and see Ch. 471, Investigations by Public Agencies .

Actions challenging the basis of an administrative agency's decision are to be in the form of an action for writ of mandate against the agency in accordance with CCP § 1094.5 [State v. Superior Court of Orange County (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 237, 251, 115 Cal. Rptr. 497, 524 P.2d 1281 ; *Excelsior College v. Board of Registered Nursing (2006) 136 Cal. App. 4th 1218, 1228 n.2, 39 Cal. § 126A.76 Reformation of Laws Containing Unconstitutional or Preempted Provisions

[1] When Severance Is to Be Considered

If the Legislature's intent clearly would be furthered by application of the revised version rather than by the alternative of invalidation of the entire statute, then the court is to sever the invalid portion of the statute [Kopp v. Fair Political Practices Comm'n (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 607, 615, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 108, 905 P.2d 1248 (constitutional issue)]. Judicial reformation or rewriting of a statute is appropriate when: (1) doing so closely effectuates policy judgments clearly articulated by the enacting body, and (2) the enacting body would have preferred such a reformed version of the statute over the invalid and unenforceable statute [Kopp v. Fair Political Practices Comm'n (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 607, 625, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 108, 905 P.2d 1248 ; People v. Roder (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 491, 499-502, 189 Cal. Rptr. 501, 658 P.2d 1302].

Under California law, when faced with a question of whether to reform a state statute, the function of a federal court is to divine, to the best of its ability, how the state's highest court would resolve that state law issue [American Bankers Ass'n v. Lockyer (2008) 541 F.3d 1214, 1217 ; Kopp v. Fair Political Practices Comm'n (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 607, 625, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 108, 905 P.2d 1248].

[2] Effect of Severance Clause

Although not conclusive, a severability clause normally calls for sustaining the valid part of the enactment, especially when the invalid part is mechanically severable. At the same time, a severability clause plus the ability to mechanically sever the invalid part while normally allowing severability, does not conclusively dictate it. The final determination depends on whether the remainder is complete in itself and would have been adopted by the legislative body had the latter foreseen the partial invalidity of the statute, or constitutes a completely operative expression of legislative intent and is not so connected with the rest of the statute as to be inseparable [Gerken v. Fair Political Practices Com. (1993) 6 Cal.4th 707, 714, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 449, 863 P.2d 694 ; Palmer/Sixth Street Properties, L.P. v. City of Los Angeles (2009) 175 Cal. App. 4th 1396, 1412, 96 Cal. Rptr. 3d 875 ; Abbott Laboratories v. Franchise Tax Board (2009) 175 Cal. App. 4th 1346, 1357, 96 Cal. Rptr. 3d 864] .

[3] Mechanical Severability of Invalid Portion

To be severable, the invalid provision must be grammatically, functionally, and volitionally separable [Jevne v. Superior Court (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 935, 960-961, 28 Cal. Rptr. 3d 685, 111 P.3d 954 (federal preemption of state law); Abbott Laboratories v. Franchise Tax Board (2009) 175 Cal. App. 4th 1346, 1357, 96 Cal. Rptr. 3d 864 (state preemption of local ordinance)].

To be grammatically separable, the invalid parts of the statute have to be distinct and separable and thus be able to be removed as a whole without affecting the wording of any of the law's other provisions [Jevne v. Superior Court (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 935, 960-961, 28 Cal. Rptr. 3d 685, 111 P.3d 954] . The valid and invalid parts of the statute have to be able to be separated by paragraph, sentence, clause, phrase, or even single words [Abbott Laboratories v. Franchise Tax Board (2009) 175 Cal. App. 4th 1346, 1358, 96 Cal. Rptr. 3d 864 ; People's Advocate, Inc. v. Superior Court (1986) 181 Cal. App. 3d 316, 330, 226 Cal. Rptr. 640] .

To be functionally separable, the invalid parts of the statute have to be not necessary to the law's operation and purpose [Jevne v. Superior Court (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 935, 960-961, 28 Cal. Rptr. 3d 685, 111 P.3d 954] . The remainder after separation of the invalid part must be complete in itself and capable of independent application [Abbott Laboratories v. Franchise Tax Board (2009) 175 Cal. App. 4th 1346, 1358, 96 Cal. Rptr. 3d 864 ; People's Advocate, Inc. v. Superior Court (1986) 181 Cal. App. 3d 316, 331-332, 226 Cal. Rptr. 640] .

To be volitionally separable, the invalid parts of the statute must not be of critical importance to the law's enactment [Jevne v. Superior Court (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 935, 960-961, 28 Cal. Rptr. 3d 685, 111 P.3d 954] . The final determination depends on whether the remainder is complete in itself and would have been adopted by the legislative body had the latter foreseen the partial invalidation of the statute or constitutes a completely operative expression of the legislative intent [Santa Barbara Sch. Dist. v. Superior Court (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 315, 331, 118 Cal. Rptr. 637, 530 P.2d 605 ; Abbott Laboratories v. Franchise Tax Board (2009) 175 Cal. App. 4th 1346, 1358, 96 Cal. Rptr. 3d 864] .

[4] Applications of Severability

In the context of cases involving tax statutes that violate the commerce clause, the courts have consistently declined to exercise the power of judicial reformation to cure the constitutional violation [Abbott Laboratories v. Franchise Tax Board (2009) 175 Cal. App. 4th 1346, 1361, 96 Cal. Rptr. 3d 864] .

§ 126A.82 Decisions

[1] Amending or Revising Constitution

The single subject rules pertaining to constitutional amendments have been satisfied so long as challenged provisions meet the test of being reasonably germane to a common theme, purpose, or subject. Senate of the State of Cal. v. Jones (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 1142, 1157, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 810, 988 P.2d 1089

[2] As-Applied Challenge

Plaintiffs' claim of unconstitutionality was not "a facial challenge to the ... ordinance predicated on a theory that the mere enactment of the ... ordinance worked a taking" but, rather, an as-applied claim that the County effected a taking by demanding invalid exactions as a condition of issuing them second unit permits. Travis v. County of Santa Cruz (2004) 33 Cal. 4th 757, 767, 16 Cal. Rptr. 3d 404, 94 P.3d 538

[3] Conflicting Provisions

Conflict in power of chartered cities under one constitutional provision resolved by looking to other constitutional provisions enacted later in time. Slavich v. Walsh (1947) 82 Cal. App. 2d 228, 236-237, 186 P.2d 35

[4] Declaratory Relief

Declaratory relief action to test constitutionality of rent control ordinance. Pennell v. City of San Jose (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 365, 367, 228 Cal. Rptr. 726, 721 P.2d 1111

[5] Due Process

[a] Substantive Due Process

A regulation that fails to serve any legitimate governmental objective may be so arbitrary or irrational that it runs afoul of the Due Process Clause. Lingle v. Chevron U.S.A. Inc. (2005) 544 U.S. 528, 542, 125 S. Ct. 2074, 161 L. Ed. 2d 876

City's delays in processing its application did not lack a rational relationship to a government interest, because the city explained the information needed that was related to its determination on the application. North Pacifica LLC v. City of Pacifica (9th Cir. 2008) 526 F.3d 478, 486

"Don't Ask, Don't Tell" policy, 10 U.S.C.S. § 654, did not violate substantive due process rights of Air Force reservist, because under the strict scrutiny test, the government advance important governmental interests at stake, namely, the management of the military. Witt v. Dep't of the Air Force (9th Cir. 2008) 527 F.3d 806, 821

The irreducible minimum of a substantive due process claim challenging land use regulation is failure to advance any governmental purpose. Crown Point Dev., Inc. v. City of Sun Valley (9th Cir. 2007) 506 F.3d 851, 856

If a property owner has performed substantial work and incurred substantial liabilities in good faith reliance upon a permit issued by the government, he acquires a vested right to complete construction in accordance with the terms of the permit. Avco Community Developers, Inc. v. South Coast Regional Com. (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 785, 791, 132 Cal. Rptr. 386, 553 P.2d 546

For additional decisions on substantive due process, see Ch. 113, Civil Rights: The Post-Civil War Civil Rights Statutes, § 113.34

[b] Procedural Due Process

Procedural due process concerns do not require that the Labor Code Private Attorneys General Act of 2004, Lab. Code, § 2698 et seq., to be construed as requiring representative actions under the act to be brought as class actions, in order to avoid defendants in those actions from being subjected to the unfairness flowing from one-way intervention, thereby violating their constitutional right to due process of law. Arias v. Superior Court (2009) 46 Cal. 4th 969, 985, 95 Cal. Rptr. 3d 588, 209 P.3d 923

So long as statute does not threaten to infringe on exercise of constitutional right, ambiguities as not justifying invalidation of statute on its face; to succeed on facial vagueness challenge, party as required to do more than identify some instances in which application may be uncertain or ambiguous; party as required to demonstrate that law is impermissibly vague in all of its applications. Evangelatos v. Superior Court (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 1188, 1201-1202, 246 Cal. Rptr. 629, 753 P.2d 585

Even though vagueness challenges arise most often in criminal context, prohibition against vagueness as extending to administrative regulations affecting conditions of governmental employment. Cranston v. City of Richmond (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 755, 763-764, 221 Cal. Rptr. 779, 710 P.2d 845

Whenever property is taken, due process requires some form of notice and a hearing. The petition gave no notice to shareholder that the court might assess the corporation's voluntary dissolution litigation expenses against his shareholder interest. Nor did shareholder have prior notice the court would hold him liable for corporation's defense costs in his effectively severed, still pending civil action against it. Moreover, shareholder lacked prior notice the court would aggregate these assessments to wipe out his entire shareholder interest and enter a money judgment against him for the deficiency. In re FairWageLaw in Voluntary Dissolution (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 279, 286-287, 97 Cal. Rptr. 3d 652

Pawnbrokers have a right to procedural due process before the trial court can order that stolen property in their possession and subject to a 90-day hold under Bus. & Prof. Code § 21647, be returned to the purported owners of the property. People v. Hernandez (2009) 172 Cal. App. 4th 715, 719, 91 Cal. Rptr. 3d 604

Bonding statute, Civ. Code, § 1695.17, compelling persons of ordinary intelligence to necessarily guess at what the statute requires for them to comply with its obligations is void for vagueness. Schweitzer v. Westminster Investments, Inc. (2007) 157 Cal. App. 4th 1195, 1211, 69 Cal. Rptr. 3d 472

Finding that statute is facially unconstitutional as requiring challengers to demonstrate that statute's provisions inevitably pose present total and fatal conflict with applicable constitutional prohibitions, not merely to suggest that in some future hypothetical situation constitutional problems may possibly arise as to particular application of statute. Lillebo v. Davis (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 1421, 1447, 272 Cal. Rptr. 638

Use of nonmathematical terms such as "reasonable," "necessary and proper," "substantial," and the like, as not rendering statute or regulation invalid provided reasonable and practical construction can be given in accordance with probable intent of Legislature and in view of common experiences of mankind. Medlock Dusters, Inc. v. Dooley (1982) 129 Cal. App. 3d 496, 501, 181 Cal. Rptr. 80

[6] Equal Protection

[a] Exception for Exercise of Police Power

In challenge to validity of legislation enacted pursuant to police power, court as required to uphold legislation if its reasonableness is fairly debatable; court as able to nullify legislation only if it is manifestly unreasonable, arbitrary or capricious, having no real or substantial relation to public health, safety, morals, or general welfare. Barenfeld v. City of Los Angeles (1984) 162 Cal. App. 3d 1035, 1040, 209 Cal. Rptr. 8

Where neither suspect classifications nor fundamental interests are affected, regulation need only bear rational relationship to legitimate state purpose and does not violateequal protection simply because in practice it results in some inequality. Pro-Family Advocates v. Gomez (1996) 46 Cal. App. 4th 1674, 1685-1686, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 600

[b] Proposition 209

Statutory definition of "discrimination" exceeded Legislature's authority under Cal Const Art XVIII, § 1, because it conflicted with Cal Const Art I, § 31(a). C & C Construction, Inc. v Sacramento Mun. Utility Dist. (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 284, 301, 18 Cal. Rptr. 3d 715

[c] Reform Measures

Legislature as free to enact reform measures one step at a time, addressing phase of problem that seems most acute to legislative mind, rather than enacting comprehensive reform scheme; presence of specific reform measures absent comprehensive reform scheme as not nullifying specific reform measure. Brown v. Superior Court (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 509, 521, 96 Cal. Rptr. 584, 487 P. 2d 1224 ; Myers v. Patterson (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 130, 139, 241 Cal. Rptr. 751

[c1] Suspect Classes

Sexual orientation is a suspect classification for purposes of the California Constitution's Equal Protection Clause, and therefore statutes that treat persons differently because of their sexual orientation are subject to strict scrutiny. In re Marriage Cases (2008) 43 Cal. 4th 757, 840, 76 Cal. Rptr. 3d 683, 840, 183 P.3d 384

Taxpayers earning more than $1 million annually did not constitute a "suspect class" requiring a strict scrutiny constitutional analysis. Jensen v. Franchise Tax Bd. (2009) 178 Cal. App. 4th 426, 434-435, 100 Cal. Rptr. 3d 408

[d] Welfare Benefits

Equal protection not violated by denying welfare benefits to applicant for political asylum not yet lawfully resident under federal regulations; aliens not required to be treated alike when not similarly situated under federal immigration law. Khasminskaya v. Lum (1996) 47 Cal. App. 4th 537, 545, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 915

[e] Class of One

Village's intentional demand for a 33-foot easement as a condition of connecting plaintiff's property to the municipal water supply where the Village required only a 15-foot easement from other similarly situated property owners constituted a class-of-one violation of equal protection. Vill. of Willowbrook v. Olech (2000) 528 U.S. 562, 565, 120 S. Ct. 1073, 145 L. Ed. 2d 1060

Plaintiff failed to show a class-of-one equal protection violation given that plaintiff did not bring its objection to the city council's attention before it approved the condition on development permit, so the council did not know it was imposing a condition to which plaintiff objected and that the city had not imposed on other developers. North Pacifica LLC v. City of Pacifica (9th Cir. 2008) 526 F.3d 478, 486

Plaintiff presented sufficient allegations of evidence and argument of a claim for a violation of equal protection against a class of one based on air pollution control district's unequal application of testing certification requirements to defeat demurrer. Genesis Environmental Services v. San Joaquin Valley Unified Air Pollution Control Dist. (2003) 113 Cal. App. 4th 597, 605, 6 Cal. Rptr. 3d 574

[7] Facial Challenge

A facial challenge to a legislative act is the most difficult challenge to mount successfully, because the challenger must establish that no set of circumstances exists under which the act would be valid. Sprint Telephony PCS, L.P., v. Cty. of San Diego (9th Cir. 2008) 543 F.3d 571, 579

It cannot reasonably be suggested that, under any and all circumstances, a county's designation of one or more unpaid furlough days pursuant to challenged statute necessarily will "defeat" or "materially impair" a court's fulfillment of its constitutional duties. Superior Court v. County of Mendocino, 13 Cal. 4th 45, 51 Cal. Rptr. 2d 837, 913 P.2d 1046

[8] Federal Commerce Clause

A state may favor its own municipal bonds without violating the dormant Commerce Clause, U.S. Const. art. I, § 8, cl. 3, by including in taxable income interest from only out-of-state municipal bonds and excluding interest from in-state bonds. Department of Rev. of Kentucky v. Davis (2008) 553 U.S. 328, 128 S. Ct. 1801, 1818-1819, 170 L. Ed. 2d 685

After an unrelated case held that the limitation of the Rev. & Tax Code § 24402 deduction to dividends from income on which California tax had been imposed violated the commerce clause, U.S. Const., art. I, § 8, cl. 3, the taxpayer's proposed revision of § 24402(a), did not pass the volitional separability test. Abbott Laboratories v. Franchise Tax Board (2009) 175 Cal. App. 4th 1346, 1361, 96 Cal. Rptr. 3d 864

Under the federal commerce clause, a state may not tax value earned outside its borders. Hoechst Celanese Corp. v. Franchise Tax Bd. (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 508, 538, 22 P.3d 324 ; 106 Cal. Rptr. 2d 548

Although an ordinance that favored a particular private business would have violated the dormant Commerce Clause, the Counties' ordinances did not discriminate against interstate commerce because they benefitted a clearly public facility while treating all private companies exactly the same. United Haulers Ass'n v. Oneida-Herkimer Solid Waste Mgmt. Auth. (2007) 550 U.S. 330, 344, 127 S. Ct. 1786, 167 L. Ed. 2d 655

Town's ordinance that required all solid waste generated in the town to pass through its new center so that the town could assess a handling fee and recoup its cost to build the center facially discriminated against out-of-town waste carriers, and did not fit into the narrow exception to invalidity of facially discriminatory laws. C & A Carbone, Inc. v. Town of Clarkstown (1994) 511 U.S. 383, 392, 114 S. Ct. 1677, 128 L. Ed. 2d 399

Recyclers' injury was not even marginally related to the interests the dormant Commerce Clause sought to safeguard. Therefore, they lacked prudential standing to bring their federal constitutional claim. City of Los Angeles v. County of Kern (9th Cir. 2009) 581 F.3d 841, 848-849

Statute that prevented licensed opticians from having specified business relationships with or offering services in the same locations as licensed optometrists and ophthalmologists did not discriminate against out-of-state opticians purposefully or practically, and did not burden interstate commerce. National Association of Optometrists & Opticians Lenscrafters, Inc. v. Brown (9th Cir. 2009) 567 F.3d 521, 524-528

State statutes imposing taxes on income earned outside the state, or imposing a tax on total income without apportionment to activities within the state, have long been held to violate the commence clause. Ventas Finance I, LLC, v. Franchise Tax Bd. (2008) 165 Cal. App. 4th 1207, 1218, 81 Cal. Rptr. 3d 823

[9] Federal Preemption of State Law

State requirements are preempted under the Medical Device Amendments of 1976, 21 U.S.C.S. § 360c et seq., only to the extent that they are "different from, or in addition to" the requirements imposed by federal law, and 21 U.S.C.S. § 360k does not prevent a state from providing a damages remedy for claims premised on a violation of Food and Drug Administration regulations. The state duties in such a case "parallel," rather than add to, federal requirements. Riegel v. Medtronic, Inc. (2008) 552 U.S. 312, 128 S. Ct. 999, 169 L. Ed. 2d 892, 906

Federal Aviation Administration Authorization Act of 1994, 49 U.S.C.S. § 14501(c)(1), preempts state enforcement actions having a significant connection with, or reference to, carrier rates, routes, or services. Rowe v. New Hampshire Motor Transport Association (2008) 552 U.S. 364, 128 S. Ct. 989, 169 L. Ed. 2d 933

Federal Arbitration Act, 9 U.S.C. § 1 et seq., supersedes state laws lodging primary jurisdiction in another forum, whether judicial or administrative, such as procedural prescriptions of the California Talent Agency Act, Labor Code § 1700.1 et seq., that conflict with the FAA's dispute resolution regime in two basic respects. Preston v. Ferrer (2008) 552 U.S. 346, 128 S. Ct.978, 169 L. Ed. 2d 917, 927

Foreign policy of federal government, as embodied in treaties and executive agreements made with other countries, may preempt conflicting state laws. Am. Ins. Ass'n v. Garamendi (2003) 539 U.S. 396, 123 S. Ct. 2374, 156 L. Ed. 2d 376, 395-402

State-law usury claims against national bank are completely preempted by National Bank Act, 12 U.S.C. § 1 et seq., which was intended to provide exclusive federal cause of action for usury against national banks preempted. Beneficial Nat'l Bank v. Anderson (2003) 539 U.S. 1, 123 S. Ct. 2058, 156 L. Ed. 2d 1, 8-10

Absent explicit indication by Congress of intent to preempt state law, state law as preempted only if compliance with both state and federal law is impossible or state law is impediment to accomplishment and execution of full purpose and objectives of Congress. CTS Corp. v. Dynamics Corp. of America (1987) 481 U.S. 69, 78-79, 107 S. Ct. 1637, 95 L. Ed. 2d 67

Pre-emption is not to be lightly presumed. California Federal Sav. & L. Ass'n v. Guerra(1987) 479 U.S. 272, 281, 107 S. Ct. 683 ; Marques v. Bank of America (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 356, 360, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 154

Code Civ. Proc. § 354.3 was preempted by the foreign affairs doctrine because it applied to museums displaying looted art that were located outside of the state. Von Saher v. Norton Simon Museum of Art at Pasadena (9th Cir. 2010) 592 F.3d 954, 968

The preemption clause in the Airline Deregulation Act of 1978, 49 U.S.C.S. § 41713(b)(1), which prohibits states from enacting laws related to an airline's price, route, or service, does not prevent enforcement of private contracts. Sanchez v. Aerovias De Mex., S.A. de C.V. (9th Cir. 2010) 590 F.3d 1027, 1030-1031

Preston v. Ferrer (2008) 552 U.S. 346, 128 S. Ct. 978, 982, 169 L. Ed. 2d 917 does not change the rule that the Federal Arbitration Act, 9 U.S.C.S. § 1 et seq., does not impliedly preempt California unconscionability law, where the plaintiffs are challenging only the validity of the arbitration agreement. Laster v. AT&T Mobility LLC (9th Cir. 2009) 584 F.3d 849, 857-859

A local regulation can run afoul of 47 U.S.C.S. § 332(c)(7)(B)(i)(II), the Telecommunications Act of 1996's effective prohibition clause, if it prevents a wireless provider from closing a significant gap in service coverage. The effective prohibition inquiry involves a two-pronged analysis requiring: (1) the showing of a significant gap in service coverage, and (2) some inquiry into the feasibility of alternative facilities or site locations. Significant gap determinations are extremely fact-specific inquiries that defy any bright-line legal rule. The relevant service gap must be truly significant. The Act does not guarantee wireless service providers coverage free of small dead spots. Sprint PCS Assets, L.L.C. v. City of Palos Verdes Estates (9th Cir. 2009) 583 F.3d 716, 726

Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974, 29 U.S.C. § 1001 et seq., does not preempt San Francisco Health Care Security Ordinance, S.F. Admin. Code § 14.1 et seq., which mandates that covered employers make health care expenditures to or on behalf of certain employees each quarter. Golden Gate Restaurant Association v. City and County of San Francisco (9th Cir. 2008) 512 F.3d 1112, 1126

Emissions standards in Clean Air Act, 42 U.S.C. §§ 7543(a), 7507, did not preempt the "Fleet Rules" requiring operators of vehicle fleets to buy vehicles meeting state emissions or fuel standards insofar as the rules directed the procurement behavior of state and local governmental entities. Engine Manufacturers Ass'n v. South Coast Air Quality Maintenance Dist. (9th Cir. 2007) 498 F.3d 1031, 1044

Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 (ERISA), 29 U.S.C. § 1001 et seq., does not preempt the claims of parties who do not have the right to sue under ERISA because they are neither participants in nor beneficiaries of an ERISA plan. Miller v. Rite Aid Corp. (9th Cir. 2007) 504 F.3d 1102, 1106

Congress expressed a clear intention that federal execution law, 18 U.S.C. § 3613(a), was not intended to preempt state exemptions to state execution law. Thus, 18 U.S.C.S. § 3613(a) did not override Cal. Code Civ. Proc. § 704.130. Paul Revere Ins. Group v. United States (9th Cir. 2007) 500 F.3d 957, 962-963

The federal Clean Air Act, 42 U.S.C.S. § 7401 et seq., did not preempt the Fleet Rules adopted under Health & Safety Code § 40447.5, insofar as they directed the procurement behavior of state and local governmental entities. Engine Mfrs. Ass'n v. S. Coast Air Quality Maint. Dist. (9th Cir. 2007) 498 F.3d 1031

The preemption provision under 5 U.S.C.S. § 8902(m)(1) of the Federal Employee Health Benefits Act (FEHBA), 5 U.S.C.S. § 8901 et seq., closely resembles the express preemption provision under 29 U.S.C.S. § 1144(a) of the Employee Retirement Income Security Act (ERISA), 29 U.S.C.S. § 1001 et seq., and precedent interpreting the ERISA provision thus provides authority for cases involving the FEHBA provision. Cedars-Sinai Med. Ctr. v. Nat'l League of Postmasters (9th Cir. 2007) 497 F.3d 972, 978 n.2

To prevent plaintiffs' evasion of the requirements of the Labor Management Relations Act, 29 U.S.C.S. § 185(a), by relabeling their contract claims as claims for tortious breach of contract or some other state cause of action, the Lueck line of preemption cases and its progeny require, first, an inquiry into whether the asserted cause of action involves a right conferred upon an employee by virtue of state law, not by a collective bargaining agreement (CBA). If the right exists solely as a result of the CBA, then the claim is preempted, and our analysis ends there. If, however, the right exists independently of the CBA, the court must still consider whether it is nevertheless substantially dependent on analysis of a CBA. If such dependence exists, then the claim is preempted by § 185(a); if not, then the claim can proceed under state law. Burnside v. Kiewit Pac. Corp. (9th Cir. 2007) 491 F.3d 1053, 1059

Ordinance imposing a permitting structure and design requirements presented barriers to wireless telecommunications within the county and was therefore preempted by the Telecommunications Act of 1996, 47 U.S.C.S. § 253(a). Sprint Telephony PCS, L.P. v. County of San Diego (2007) 490 F.3d 700, 716

Consumer protection laws are within the states' historic police powers and therefore are subject to the presumption against preemption. Farm Raised Salmon Cases (2008) 42 Cal. 4th 1077, 1088, 72 Cal. Rptr. 3d 112, 175 P.3d 1170

Federal Cigarette Labeling and Advertising Act, 15 U.S.C. § 1331 et seq., preempts action against defendant tobacco companies, alleging that defendants' advertising and marketing practices violate California Unfair Competition Law, Bus. & Prof. Code, § 17200 et seq. In Re Tobacco Cases II (2007) 41 Cal. 4th 1257, 1276, 63 Cal. Rptr. 3d 418, 163 P.3d 106

Party claiming preemption has burden of overcoming presumption against it. Perdue v. Crocker National Bank (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 913, 937, 216 Cal. Rptr. 345, 702 P.2d 503 ; Marques v. Bank of America (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 356, 360, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 154

There is a general presumption against federal preemption of a state's traditional police powers, unless the state regulates in an area where there has been a significant federal presence. The area of banking regulation has posed some issues in this regard. Miller v. Bank of America, N.A (USA) (2008) 170 Cal. App. 4th 980, 984, 88 Cal. Rptr. 3d 723

National Labor Relations Act, 29 U.S.C. § 151 et seq., does not deprive states of the power to regulate where the activity regulated is a merely peripheral concern of the Act or where the regulated conduct touches interests so deeply rooted in local feeling and responsibility that, in the absence of compelling congressional direction, it cannot be inferred that Congress deprived the states of the power to act. Luke v. Collotype Labels USA, Inc. (2008) 159 Cal. App. 4th 1463, 1471, 72 Cal. Rptr. 3d 440

In spite of the fact that federal law may have completely occupied the field of regulation of aircraft safety, remedies for personal injury that a party may have under state law are not necessarily preempted by the Federal Aviation Act of 1958, 49 U.S.C. § 40103 et seq. Booth v. Santa Barbara Biplane Tours, LLC (2008) 158 Cal. App. 4th 1173, 1181, 70 Cal. Rptr. 3d 660

Device-specific federal approval under Medical Device Amendments, 21 U.S.C. § 360k(a), preempted the state-law actions for injury caused by approved device. Jessen v. Mentor Corporation (2008) 158 Cal. App. 4th 1480, 1489-1490, 71 Cal. Rptr. 3d 714 ; Blanco v. Baxter Healthcare Corp. (2008) 158 Cal. App. 4th 1039, 1054-1055, 1057, 70 Cal. Rptr. 3d 566

The Locomotive Boiler Inspection Act, 49 U.S.C. § 20701 et seq., occupies the field of locomotive equipment, preempting all state-law claims within that field. Frastaci v. Vapor Corp. (2007) 158 Cal. App. 4th 1389, 1396, 70 Cal. Rptr. 3d 402

National Securities Markets Improvement Act of 1996, specifically, 15 U.S.C. § 77r, preempts state securities registration requirements only with respect to securities that actually qualify as covered securities under federal law, so that causes of action under California Corporate Securities Law of 1968, Corp. Code, § 25000 et seq., are not preempted for noncovered securities. Apollo Capital Fund LLC v. Roth Capital Partners, LLC (2007) 158 Cal. App. 4th 226, 250-251, 70 Cal. Rptr. 3d 199

Flight attendants' claims for state minimum wages and meal/break time damages were preempted by the Railway Labor Act (RLA), 45 U.S.C. § 151 et seq., which preempted state law causes of action that depended upon interpretation of a collective bargaining agreement. Fitz-Gerald v. Skywest, Inc. (2007) 155 Cal. App. 4th 411, 419-420, 65 Cal. Rptr. 3d 913

Savings clause in National Securities Markets Improvement Act of 1996, 15 U.S.C. § 77r(c)(1), allows state agencies to bring enforcement actions with respect to fraud, deceit, or unlawful conduct by a broker or dealer, and therefore does not preempt Corp. Code §§ 25401, 25216(a). People v. Edward D. Jones & Co. (2007) 154 Cal. App. 4th 627, 639, 65 Cal. Rptr. 3d 130

Provision of Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 giving trustees similar cause of action, 29 U.S.C. § 1132(a)(3), preempts state law breach of contract action trustees of an employee health and welfare benefit plan seeking reimbursement for medical payments made by the plan. Totten v. Hill (2007) 154 Cal. App. 4th 40, 53, 64 Cal. Rptr. 3d 357

Federal law as superseding state law by express preemption, by scheme of federal regulation being so comprehensive as to leave no room for supplementary state regulation, or by actual conflict between state and federal law. Doyle v. Board of Supervisors (1988) 197 Cal. App. 3d 1358, 1363, 243 Cal. Rptr. 572

[10] Obligation of Contracts

The insurance business is a highly regulated industry, and one in which further regulation can reasonably be anticipated, so that insurers were well aware of the possibility that initiatives or ordinary legislation might be enacted that would affect existing policies, precluding a finding that the obligation of contracts was impaired by revival of the pertinent statute of limitations. Calfarm Ins. Co. v. Deukmejian (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 805, 830, 258 Cal. Rptr. 161, 771 P.2d 1247

[11] Police Power

The noncompensable loss doctrine is only applied to takings that were necessary to avoid an impending peril. Massingill v. Department of Food & Agriculture (2002) 102 Cal. App. 4th 498, 506, 125 Cal. Rptr. 2d 561

[12] Separation of Powers

Proposition 8, limiting a valid marriage to that between a man and a woman, does not readjudicate the equal-protection right of same-sex couples to marry under the California Constitution, so as to violate the separation of powers. Strauss v. Horton (2009) 46 Cal. 4th 364, 463-465, 93 Cal. Rptr. 3d 591, 207 P.3d 48

The Legislature's direction to the Commission on State Mandates to reconsider or set aside its final decisions was an unconstitutional collateral attack on those decisions. California School Boards Assn. v. California (2009) 171 Cal. App. 4th 1183, 1200, 90 Cal. Rptr. 3d 501

The trial court acted well within its discretion in denying counties' request for a writ of mandate compelling prompt payment of massive reimbursement claims from the state's 2005-2006 fiscal year budget. County of San Diego v. California (2008) 164 Cal. App. 4th 580, 603, 79 Cal. Rptr. 3d 489

California Children and Families Act of 1998, Cal. Prop. 10, which imposed taxes on cigarettes and other tobacco products and allocated the revenues for public education regarding the effects of smoking on young children and for anti-smoking programs, did not violate the separation of powers doctrine, in that the appointment mechanism for state and county commissioners did not impair the executive branch's authority over the commissions. California Assn. of Retail Tobacconists v State (2003) 109 Cal. App. 4th 792, 135 Cal. Rptr. 2d 224

[12A] Severance of Unconstitutional Laws

Valid portion of municipal development plan's in lieu fee provision could not be severed despite a severability clause because it was inextricably intertwined with the invalid portion of the plan's affordable housing requirements. Palmer/Sixth Street Properties, L.P. v. City of Los Angeles (2009) 175 Cal. App. 4th 1396, 1412, 96 Cal. Rptr. 3d 875

After an unrelated case held that the limitation of the Rev. & Tax Code § 24402 deduction to dividends from income on which California tax had been imposed violated the commerce clause, U.S. Const., art. I, § 8, cl. 3, the taxpayer's proposed revision of § 24402(a), did not pass the volitional separability test. Abbott Laboratories v. Franchise Tax Board (2009) 175 Cal. App. 4th 1346, 1358-1361, 96 Cal. Rptr. 3d 864

[13] State Preemption of Local Law

The litigation privilege, Civ. Code § 47, conflicts with and, thus, preempts the provision of Santa Monica Mun. Code § 4.56.020(i)(1), authorizing a suit based on a defendant landlord bringing an action to recover possession of a rental housing unit based upon facts that the landlord had no reasonable cause to believe to be true or upon a legal theory that is untenable under the facts known to the landlord. Action Apartment Association, Inc. v. City Of Santa Monica (2007) 41 Cal. 4th 1232, 1249-1250, 63 Cal. Rptr. 3d 398, 163 P.3d 89

Veh. Code, § 21 preempts an ordinance that seeks to regulate vehicle use in soliciting prostitution by requiring forfeiture of the vehicle. O'Connell v. City of Stockton (2007) 41 Cal.4th 1061, 1073-1074, 63 Cal. Rptr. 3d 67, 162 P.3d 583 ; City Of Los Angeles v. 2000 Jeep Cherokee (2008) 159 Cal. App. 4th 1272, 1278, 72 Cal. Rptr. 3d 252

No implied preemption of local regulations by state statutory law when state legislature has expressed its intent to permit local regulation. IT Corp. v. Solano County Bd. of Supervisors (1991) 1 Cal. 4th 81, 94, 2 Cal. Rptr. 2d 513, 820 P. 2d 1023

Ordinances made and enforced by charter city under Cal. Const., art. XI, § 5(a), and relating to matters that are purely municipal affairs, as prevailing over state laws covering same subject. Committee of Seven Thousand v. Superior Court (1988) 45 Cal. 3d 491, 505, 247 Cal. Rptr. 362, 754 P.2d 708

Ordinance regulating escort services as preempted by state law to extent that ordinance duplicates state law prohibiting criminal conduct, but as not preempted to extent that it establishes licensing requirements. Cohen v. Board of Supervisors (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 277, 290-304, 219 Cal. Rptr. 467, 707 P.2d 840

Legislature's evaluation of what constitutes matter of statewide concern as accorded great weight by courts. Baggett v. Gates (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 128, 136, 185 Cal. Rptr. 232, 649 P.2d 874

Preemption by state of field of statewide concern for purpose of regulation as not preventing local taxation of persons or activities regulated. The Pines v. City of Santa Monica (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 656, 659-662, 175 Cal. Rptr. 336, 630 P.2d 521

Ordinances regulating consumption of alcohol are not preempted by state law. Localities may regulate consumption of alcohol because Cal. Const., art. XX, § 22, does not refer to consumption. In re Jennifer S. (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 64, 69, 101 Cal. Rptr. 3d 467

Teacher failed to demonstrate school district's action conditioning her enjoyment of earned teaching credential on her obtaining an additional certification was preempted by a conflicting state statute. Governing Board of Ripon Unified School Dist. v. Com. on Prof. Competence (2009) 177 Cal. App. 4th 1379, 1390, 99 Cal. Rptr. 3d 903

Gov. Code, § 66427.5, subd. (e), has the effect of an express preemption of the power of local authorities to inject other factors when considering an application to convert an existing mobilehome park from a rental to a resident-owner basis. Sequoia Park Associates v. Cty. of Sonoma (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 1270, 1297, 98 Cal. Rptr. 3d 669

The State Aeronautics Act (SAA), Pub. Util. Code § 21001 et seq., does not expressly or impliedly preempt local land use regulation. To the contrary, the SAA expressly permits local regulation. Citizens for Planning Responsibly v. County of San Luis Obispo (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 357, 372, 97 Cal. Rptr. 3d 636

Ordinances that regulate in a more restrictive manner the very conduct regulated in state law impermissibly conflict with state law. Tosi v. County of Fresno (2008) 161 Cal. App. 4th 799, 806, 74 Cal. Rptr. 3d 727

The California Veterinary Medical Practice Act, Bus. & Prof. Code § 4800 et seq., and a statute barring ordinances regulating state-regulated professions, Bus. & Prof. Code, § 460, did not preempt West Hollywood Mun. Code § 9.49.020, an ordinance that banned the practice of animal declawing as cruel and inhumane unless necessary for a therapeutic purpose. California Veterinary Medical Assn. v. City of West Hollywood (2007) 152 Cal. App. 4th 536,

557, 560, 61 Cal. Rptr. 3d 318

Gov. Code, § 38773.5(b), which required ordinances allowing attorney fees in nuisance actions to permit recovery by the prevailing party, rather than limiting recovery of fees to the city if it prevailed, preempted Monte Sereno Mun. Code § 6.17.170, which provided for recovery of attorney fees only by the city if it prevailed in a nuisance action. City of Monte Sereno v. Padgett (2007) 149 Cal. App. 4th 1530, 1537, 58 Cal. Rptr. 3d 218

State's limited incursion into field does not signal occupation to exclusion of all local governmental regulation affecting subject matter of ordinance. Kucera v. Lizza (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 1141, 1153, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 582

State statute or state constitutional provision will prevail over local ordinance if conflict occurs. City of Oakland v. Superior Court (1996) 45 Cal. App. 4th 740, 760, 53 Cal. Rptr. 2d 120

Even if state has preempted particular field, local governments may issue ordinances containing standards or regulations different from those at the statewide level if this action is specifically authorized by state. Building Industry Association of Northern California v. City of Livermore (1996) 45 Cal. App. 4th 719, 726-727, 52 Cal. Rptr. 2d 902

State legislation permitting landlords to go out of business as regulating area of statewide concern and fully occupying field and thus preempting conflicting local ordinances. City of Santa Monica v. Yarmark (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 153, 163-168, 249 Cal. Rptr. 732

As to matters of statewide concern, home rule charter cities and charter counties as subjectto and controlled by applicable general state laws regardless of provisions of their charters. Los Angeles County Safety Police Assn. v. County of Los Angeles (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 1378, 1385-1386, 237 Cal. Rptr. 920

Applicability of state statute to charter city or charter county as turning on whether statute addresses matters of statewide or strictly local concern, and courts as deciding this issue under facts of each case; doubt as required to be resolved in favor of legislative authority of state. Los Angeles County Safety Police Assn. v. County of Los Angeles (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 1378, 1385-1386, 237 Cal. Rptr. 920

Permitting local regulation as determined by balancing need of local governments to meet local needs with need for uniform state regulation; matter of health and medicine, including psychiatry, as recognized by legislature to be of statewide concern. Northern Cal. Psychiatric Society v. City of Berkeley (1986) 178 Cal. App. 3d 90, 101, 108, 223 Cal. Rptr. 609

Limited participation of local authority in general field as not allowing local regulation to totally control one aspect of field. Ventura v. City of San Jose (1984) 151 Cal. App. 3d 1076, 1079, 199 Cal. Rptr. 216

In determining issue of preemption of local regulation by state law, any doubt as to whether or not local regulation is municipal affair as required to be resolved in favor of legislative authority of state. Aguilar v. Municipal Court (1982) 130 Cal. App. 3d 34, 37, 181 Cal. Rptr. 516

If state's preemption of field or subject is not complete, local supplemental legislation as not deemed conflicting to extent it covers phases of subject that have not been covered by state law. Alioto's Fish Co. v. Human Rights Com. of San Francisco (1981) 120 Cal. App. 3d 594, 604, 174 Cal. Rptr. 763

City's transient occupancy tax was not preempted by state law. Far from manifesting an intent to fully occupy the field, the legislature instead ceded to cities and counties the ability to levy taxes on the occupancy of rooms in hotels and other lodgings unless the occupancy is for a period of more than 30 days. Kumar v. Superior Court (2007) 149 Cal. App. 4th 543, 552 ; 57 Cal. Rptr. 3d 72

Plaintiff alleges:

FIRST CAUSE OF ACTION
(Injunctive Relief Against Violation of Constitutional Right to Free Speech and Free Assembly)

1. Plaintiff _____ [name] is _____ [allege facts regarding plaintiff's capacity and standing, e.g., a California nonprofit corporation organized for the purpose of (describe in detail purpose of corporation). Plaintiff's principal place of business is located at _____ (city), _____ County, California].

2. Defendant _____ [name of government entity] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, _____ [state capacity and type of governmental entity], duly organized under the laws of the State of California, and was empowered and authorized to _____ [describe duties and operations of entity, e.g., enforce all rules and regulations for government operations and management of the public facilities and properties under its jurisdiction]. [Unless defendant is the county, add: Defendant _____ (name of governmental entity) is located and operates within the County of _____.]

3. Defendant, _____ [name], is, and at all times herein mentioned was, _____ [allege capacities and duties of anyindividual defendant(s), e.g., the chief administrative officer of defendant _____ (name of governmental entity), and is and at all times herein mentioned has been responsible for the enforcement of ordinances, rules, and regulations pertaining to facilities and property owned and/or operated by defendant _____ (name of governmental entity)].

4. Plaintiff is ignorant of the true names and capacities of defendants sued herein as DOES I-_____, inclusive, and therefore sues these defendants by these fictitious names. Plaintiff will amend this complaint to allege their true names and capacities when ascertained. [Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that each of the fictitiously named defendants is responsible in some manner for the occurrences herein alleged, and that plaintiff's injuries as herein alleged were proximately caused by the wrongful conduct of these fictitiously named defendants.]

5. [Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that] [A]t all times herein mentioned, defendants _____ [names], were the agents, servants, and employees of their codefendants and in doing the things hereinafter alleged were acting within the course and scope of their authority as agents, servants, and employees with the permission and consent of their codefendants.

6. [Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that] [A]t all times herein mentioned defendant _____ [name] was authorized and empowered by defendant _____ [name of principal] to act and did act as the agent of defendant _____ [name of principal], and each and all of the things herein alleged to have been done by him/her were done in the capacity of and as agent for defendant _____ [name of principal].

7. [Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that] [A]t all times herein mentioned, each of the defendants sued herein as DOES I-_____, inclusive, was the agent and employee of each of the remaining defendants and was at all times acting within the course and scope of that agency and employment.

8. Defendant _____ [name of entity] has promulgated an ordinance that requires certain public facilities and properties under its jurisdiction to be dedicated as forums for members of the public and/or public groups to _____ [specify nature of use, e.g., use to peaceably meet, assemble, and disseminate and convey messages and information to the public]. A copy of this ordinance is attached hereto as Exhibit _____ and made a part of this complaint by reference.

9. Among the facilities and properties covered by the ordinance referred to in Paragraph 8 is _____ [identify and describe public facility that plaintiff desires to use for speech activities].

10. On _____ [date], defendant _____ [name of official], established procedures to implement the ordinance that included specific requirements for administration of the ordinance referred to in Paragraph 9. Any members of the public and/or public groups who wished to use any facilities or properties operated by defendant _____ [name of entity] as a public forum for assembly, as described in Paragraph 9, were required to submit an application for a permit to defendant _____ [name of official] for approval as to time, place, and manner of use of the forum. A copy of these procedures is attached hereto as Exhibit _____ and made a part of this complaint by reference.

11. On _____ [date], plaintiff _____ [name(s)] submitted an application for a permit to use the _____ [name of public facility referred to in Paragraph 9] as a public forum by [specify manner of application, e.g., fully and properly completing the application as described in Paragraph 10 and submitting it to defendant _____ (name of official)'s office]. The application stated that plaintiff wished to use the _____ [name of public facility] to peaceably assemble for the purpose of _____ [describe in detail the purpose and nature of plaintiff's proposed use of public facility, alleging any facts necessary to show that plaintiff's activities are constitutionally protected, e.g., distributing literature and displaying signs informing the public of plaintiff's position and opinions on the subject of _____ (specify)].

12. On _____ [date], defendant(s) informed plaintiff [by letter] that his/her/its application for a permit was denied on grounds that _____ [specify reasons, e.g., defendant did not consider use of its facilities and properties to be suitable for the purpose of plaintiff's meeting because of its concern for maintaining public safety and it did not believe the forum to be a suitable place for conveying plaintiff's message].

13. _____ [Allege subsequent efforts, if any, to obtain reconsideration of permit denial, e.g., On _____ (date), plaintiff contacted defendant _____ (name of official) and requested a meeting to discuss the denial of the application for permit and request reconsideration of the denial. Defendant _____ (name of official) declined to attend such a meeting and further indicated that there was no process for appealing defendants' decision].

[14. Plaintiff is informed and believe, and on that basis alleges, that the denial of his/her/its application for use of _____ (identify public facility or property) as a public forum was based wholly or in part on defendants' disagreement with the content of the message that plaintiff intended to convey, that is, _____ (specify nature and content of message to be conveyed by plaintiff).]

[EITHER]

15. _____ [Identify public facility] is a public forum that has traditionally been used by members of the public for expressive activities.

[OR]

15. By passing an ordinance described in Paragraph 8, defendant _____ [name of entity] has designated _____ [identify publicfacility] as a public forum for use by members of the public for expressive activities.

[CONTINUE]

16. No compelling state interest justifies defendants' refusal to make _____ [identify public facility] available for use by plaintiff to convey his/her/its constitutionally protected speech and message. In fact, defendants articulated no legitimate governmental reason whatsoever for refusing plaintiff use of _____ [identify public facility] to convey his/her/its message. Defendants' decision to refuse plaintiff's request for use of _____ [identify public facility] was wholly arbitrary.

17. As a proximate result of defendants' policies and actions, plaintiff has been deprived of the right to free speech and assembly as guaranteed by the First and Fourteenth Amendments of the United States Constitution and by California Constitution, Article I, Sections 2 and 3.

18. Unless defendants are restrained by injunction, plaintiff will continue to suffer severe, irreparable harm in that _____ [describe harm, e.g., the message proposed by plaintiff will not be conveyed in a public forum in defendants' jurisdiction and plaintiff's constitutional rights to express its message as described in Paragraph 10 will continue to be violated]. Plaintiff is informed and believes, and on that basis alleges, that unless the court grants injunctive relief, defendants will continue to prohibit plaintiff's exercise of free speech, and plaintiff and the public will continue to suffer injury as described in Paragraph 17.

19. Plaintiff has no adequate remedy at law because monetary damages will not afford adequate relief for the suppression of plaintiff's message and the deprivation of plaintiff's constitutional rights.

SECOND CAUSE OF ACTION
(Declaratory Relief)

20. Plaintiff incorporates by reference the allegations of Paragraphs 1 through 19, inclusive, in the First Cause of Action, above, as though fully set forth here.

21. An actual controversy has arisen and now exists between plaintiff and defendants regarding their respective rights and duties in that plaintiff contends that defendants' rules, policies, and practices concerning the use of its facilities and properties for speech activities, as described in Paragraphs 8 through 14 inclusive, of the First Cause of Action set forth above, violate plaintiff's rights of freedom of speech and freedom of assembly under the First and Fourteenth Amendments of United States Constitution and under the California Constitution, Article I, Section 2, in the following manner: _____ [specify manner in which policies and actions amount to constitutional violation, e.g., Defendants' rules vest total discretion in defendant _____ (name of official) to determine and allocate use of defendant _____'s (name of entity) property for speech activities and permits arbitrary suppression of messages with which defendant _____ (name of official) disagrees]. Defendants dispute these contentions and contend that the rules, policies, and practices described in this complaint are lawful and constitutional.

22. Plaintiff desires a declaration as to the validity of defendant's rules, policies, and practices, as described in this complaint, both on their face and as applied to plaintiff's permit application and proposed free speech activities. Unless the court issues an appropriate declaration of rights, the parties will not know whether defendants' policies and procedures comply with the law, and there will continue to be disputes and controversy surrounding the defendants' current policies for permitting use of and access to its facilties and properties, including _____ [identify facility], for public use and dissemination of information and messages.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendants, and each of them, as follows:

1. For a temporary restraining order, a preliminary injunction, and a permanent injunction, all enjoining defendant(s) and his/her/their/its agents, servants, and employees, and all such persons acting under, in concert with, or for him/her/them/it from denying plaintiff's constitutional right to express his/her/its views and in particular to require defendants, and each of them, to grant plaintiff's application for a permit to use _____ [identify facility] as a public forum for the purposes of distributing literature and other free speech activities, as described in Paragraph 11 of this complaint;

2. For a declaration by the court of the rights and duties of plaintiff herein, and specifically for a declaration that

_____ [describe declaratory judgment sought, e.g., the policies and practices of defendants are unconstitutional as a violation of plaintiff's rights, as described in Paragraph 21];

3. For reasonable attorney's fees according to proof, pursuant to Code of Civil Procedure Section 1021.5;

4. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

5. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is a complaint for use in an action arising from a governmental agency's violation of the plaintiff's constitutional rights of free speech and assembly by denying a permit to use a public forum for constitutionally protected expressive activities. The form combines a complaint for injunctive relief [see generally Civ. Code 3420-3423; Code Civ. Proc. 526, 527; Ch. 303, Injunctions] against the defendants' violations of plaintiff's constitutional rights (First Cause of Action), with a complaint for declaratory relief [see generally Code Civ. Proc. 1060; Ch. 182, Declaratory Relief] requesting that the court declare the defendants' rules, policies, and practices to be unconstitutional (Second Cause of Action). For discussion of free speech rights in public forums, see Ch. 59, Assemblies, Meetings, and Demonstrations, § 59.13.

In an appropriate case, counsel may wish to add to this complaint a cause of action under 42 U.S.C. 1983 for damages for deprivation of federal constitutional rights under color of state law. For discussion of the general requirements for establishing a cause of action under that statute and a general form of complaint that may be adapted for that purpose, see Ch. 112, Civil Rights: Government-Funded Programs and Activities .

Plaintiff's counsel may also wish to join a petition for writ of mandate compelling the governmental entity to immediately issue the permit to plaintiff for exercise of free speech [see generally Code Civ. Proc. 427.10, 1084 et seq.;

Wrather-Alvarez Broadcasting, Inc. v. Hewicker (1957) 147 Cal. App. 2d 509, 511, 305 P.2d 236] with the causes of action for declaratory and injunctive relief. For discussion of mandate proceedings, see Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition .

The prayer of the complaint includes a request for attorney fees under the statutory "private attorney general" provision [see Code Civ. Proc. 1021.5]. For discussion of criteria and procedures for an award of attorney's fees under that statute, see Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees, § 174.50 et seq.

[3] Allegations

[a] Injunctive Relief

The First Cause of Action in [1], above, seeks injunctive relief and alleges the following:

- Plaintiff's capacity (Paragraph 1).

- Defendants' capacities as a governmental entity and officials (Paragraphs 2, 3).

- Agency and fictitious name allegations (Paragraphs 4-7).

- Location and description of the public facility or property that plaintiff wishes to use for free speech activities (Paragraph 9) and its status as a traditional or designated public forum (Paragraph 15) [see, e.g., Clark v. Burleigh (1992) 4 Cal. 4th 474, 482-483, 14 Cal. Rptr. 2d 455, 841 P.2d 975] .

- Defendants' permit rules and other policies regarding the use of its facilities for such activities (Paragraphs 8, 10).

- Plaintiff's application for a permit to use the public facility for free speech activities and facts showing that the intended use was constitutionally protected under U.S. Const., amend. I, XIV, and Cal. Const., art. I, 2, 3 (Paragraph 11).

- Defendants' refusal to grant the permit and the reasons given for the denial, if any (Paragraph 12).

- Plaintiff's subsequent efforts to obtain reconsideration of the permit denial, if any (Paragraph 13).

- Defendants' lack of a constitutionally sufficient justification for denying plaintiff access to the public forum and the consequent violation of plaintiff's rights of free speech and assembly under U.S. Const., amend. I, XIV, and Cal. Const., art. I, 2, 3 (Paragraphs 16, 17).

- Facts showing how defendants' denial of permit to use the public forum constitutes great and irreparable injury to plaintiff's constitutional rights (Paragraph 18) [see Code Civ. Proc. 526(a)(2); E. H. Renzel Co. v. Warehousemen's Union I.L.A. 38-44 (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 369].

- Facts showing plaintiff lacks an adequate remedy at law (Paragraph 19) [see Civ. Code 3422(1)-(3); Code Civ. Proc. 526(a)(4)-(6)].

[b] Declaratory Relief

The Second Cause of Action in [1], above, seeks declaratory relief. Itincorporates by reference the allegations of the First Cause of Action (Paragraph 20) and alleges the following:

- Facts showing the existence of an actual controversy between the parties concerning their respective rights and duties, including the parties' conflicting contentions regarding the constitutionality of defendants' actions (Paragraph 21) [see Code Civ. Proc. 1060].

- Plaintiff's present need for a declaration of his, her, or its rights (Paragraph 22) [see Code Civ. Proc. 1060, 1061].

[4] Verification

Verification [see Code Civ. Proc. 446] is required if plaintiff seeks a temporary restraining order or a preliminary injunction on a complaint instead of on affidavits (or declarations under Code Civ. Proc. 2015.5) [see Code Civ. Proc. 527(a); see generally Ch. 303, Injunctions]. In addition, if a temporary restraining order is sought without notice on the other party, the certification requirements of Code Civ. Proc. 527(c) must be satisfied. For discussion of the procedural requirements for obtaining a temporary restraining order or preliminary injunction, see Ch. 303, Injunctions .

If no preliminary injunctive relief is sought, the complaint need not be verified [see Code Civ. Proc. 128.7(a) (unless otherwise required by law, pleadings not required to be verified); see also Code Civ. Proc. 128.7(j) (Code Civ. Proc § 128.7 applies to complaint or petition filed on or after January 1, 1995, and any other pleading, written notice of motion, or other similar paper filed in that matter)].

A public entity need not verify its answer even though the complaint is verified [see Code Civ. Proc. 446(a)]. However, the verification of a complaint against a public entity does preclude a general denial in superior court actions that are not limited civil cases [see Code Civ. Proc. 431.30(d)].

[5] Jurisdiction and Venue

The complaint should contain allegations showing that the action has been commenced in the proper county for trial. The proper place for trial of an action against a public officer for an act done by him or her "in virtue of the office" is the county in which the cause of action arose [see Code Civ. Proc. 393(b)]. An action against a city, county, or other local public entity may be tried in the county in which the defendant public entity is located [see Code Civ. Proc. 394(a)]. As a practical matter, an action against a local governmental entity and its officials arising out of challenges to restrictions on speech activities will normally be brought in the county in which the entity is located, which will also normally be the place where the cause of action arose.

For discussion of venue in actions against the State of California, see Ch. 571, Venue .

An action seeking permanent injunctive relief is in the jurisdiction of the superior court and is not a limited civil case [see Cal. Const., art. VI, 10; Code Civ. Proc. 85, 86(a)(8), 580(b)(2)].

13-127 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 127.01

§ 127.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter discusses various consumer protection statutes affecting the areas of consumer credit and loans. It includes coverage of various statutory schemes and requirements [see § 127.11], non-statutory relief [see § 127.27], credit cards [see § 127.28], discrimination in credit transactions [see § 127.29], creditor remedies regarding credit disability insurance [see § 127.30], and consumer loans secured by real property [see § 127.31].

Forms in this chapter that relate to the Song-Beverly Credit Card Act of 1971 are:

- A complaint for damages by a cardholder regarding the willful failure to correct a billing error [see § 127.80].

- A complaint for damages by a cardholder regarding reporting untrue or unfavorable credit information [see § 127.81].

- An allegation regarding an improper cancellation or refusal to renew a credit card [see § 127.82].

- A petition for damages and to compel the issuance of a credit card due to unlawful discrimination in denying a credit card [see § 127.83].

- A petition to compel the issuance of a credit card bearing a maiden or married name [see § 127.84].

- A complaint for civil penalties regarding the wrongful recording of personal identifying information in a credit card transaction [see § 127.85].

Other forms for consumer protection in this chapter are:

- A complaint for civil penalties for wrongfully requiring a credit card for acceptance of a payment by check [see § 127.90].

- A complaint for damages for denial of offered credit on less favorable terms [see § 127.100].

- A complaint for damages for failure of a credit reporting agency to file spousal credit information separately [see § 127.101].

- A complaint for equitable relief and damages regarding a violation of the creditor disclosure provisions of Civ. Code § 1812.400 et seq. [see § 127.110].

- A complaint for damages regarding a violation of the consumer loansecured by real property provisions of Fin. Code § 4970 et seq. [see § 127.120].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

13-127 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 127.10

§ 127.10 Governing Statutes

Many different statutory schemes exist to protect consumers. This chapter covers those listed below:

- The Consumer Affairs Act is contained in Bus. & Prof. Code § 300 et seq. [see § 127.11].

- The Rosenthal-Roberti Item Pricing Act is contained in Civ. Code § 7100 et seq. [see § 127.18].

- Requirements for translated versions of contracts negotiated in languages other than English are prescribed by Civ. Code § 1632

- The Servicemembers Civil Relief Act is contained in 50 U.S.C. App. § 501 et seq., and the California counterpart to the federal legislation is contained in Mil. & Vet. Code § 400 et seq. [see § 127.22].

- Credit transactions regarding women and married or single persons are regulated by Civ. Code §§ 1812.30-1812.35 [see § 127.29].

- The limitations on creditors' remedies against debtors who do not meet the obligations imposed by a credit agreement because of a disability covered by credit disability insurance are governed by Civ. Code §§ 1812.400-1812.410 [see § 127.30].

- Transactions respecting credit cards are governed by the California Song-Beverly Credit Card Act of 1971 (Civ. Code § 1747 et seq.), the federal Fair Credit Billing Act (15 U.S.C. § 1666 et seq.), and parts of the federal Truth in Lending Act (15 U.S.C. § 1601 et seq.) [see § 127.28]. Analogous provisions of the federal statutes are referred to in the discussion of the California provisions. The Legislature expressly stated its intent that the provisions of Civ. Code § 1747 et seq., which are similar to provisions in the federal Truth in Lending Act, essentially conform and be interpreted to conform to the federal rules, regulations, or interpretations issued by an official or employee of the Federal Reserve System duly authorized to issue such an interpretation [Civ. Code § 1747.01].

In addition, this chapter briefly describes the following consumer protection statutes and cross refers to other chapters that have more detailed coverage of them:

- The Automotive Repair Act is contained in Bus. & Prof. Code § 9880 et seq. [see § 127.12].

- The Electronic and Appliance Repair Dealers Registration Law is contained in Bus. & Prof. Code § 9800 et seq. [see § 127.13].

- The Consumers Legal Remedies Act is contained in Civ. Code § 1750 et seq. [see § 127.14].

- The Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act is contained in Civ. Code § 1790 et seq. [see § 127.15].

- The Unruh Retail Installment Sales Act is contained in Civ. Code § 1801 et seq. [see § 127.16].

- The Rees-Levering Motor Vehicle Sales and Finance Act is contained in Civ. Code § 2981 et seq. [see § 127.17].

- The Magnuson-Moss Warranty-Federal Trade Commission Improvement Act is contained in 15 U.S.C. § 2301 et seq. [see § 127.20].

- The Truth in Lending Act is contained in 15 U.S.C. § 1601 et seq. [see § 127.21].

- Unfair competition is governed by Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 [see § 127.25].

Consumer credit issues can also be affected by the application of various laws regulating activity on the Internet. Examples are the Consumer Protection Against Computer Spyware Act [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 22947 et seq.] and the Anti-Phishing Act of 2005 [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 22948 et seq.].

Chapter 127 CONSUMER CONTRACTS AND LOANS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

13-127 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 127.11

§ 127.11 Consumer Affairs Act

[1] Purpose

The Consumer Affairs Act (Bus. & Prof. Code § 300 et seq.) was enacted to promote and protect the interests of the people as consumers [Bus. & Prof. Code § 301]. A "consumer" is defined as any individual who seeks or acquires, by purchase or lease, any goods, services, money, or credit for personal, family, or household purposes [Bus. & Prof. Code § 302(c)].

[2] Legal Proceedings by Director of Department of Consumer Affairs

The director of the Department of Consumer Affairs administers and enforces the Consumer Affairs Act [Bus. & Prof. Code § 305]. Whenever it appears to the director that the interests of the consumers of California are being damaged, or may be damaged, by any person who engaged in, or intends to engage in, any acts or practices in violation of any law of this state, or any federal law, the director, or any officer or employee designated by the director, or the Attorney General, may commence legal proceedings in the appropriate forum to enjoin the acts or practices and may seek other appropriate relief on behalf of the consumers [Bus. & Prof. Code § 321].

[3] Receiving Complaints From Consumers

It is also the duty of the director of the Department of Consumer Affairs to receive complaints from consumers concerning [Bus. & Prof. Code § 325]:

- Unfair methods of competition and unfair or deceptive acts or practices undertaken by any person in the conduct of any trade or commerce.

- The production, distribution, sale, and lease of any goods and services undertaken by any person which may endanger the public health, safety, or welfare.

- Violations of provisions of the Business and Professions Code relating to businesses and professions licensed by any agency of the department, and implementing regulations.

- Other matters consistent with the purposes of the Consumer Affairs Act [Bus. & Prof. Code § 300 et seq.], whenever appropriate.

Attorneys who are representing consumers should keep in mind that complaints can be made to the Department of Consumer Affairs. Since the department is quite active, as a practical matter, it would be advisable for an attorney to file a complaint under Bus. & Prof. Code § 325. If no relief is obtained, a civil action can then be filed.

[4] Action of Director After Receipt of Consumer Complaint

On receipt of any complaint pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code § 325, the director may notify the person against whom the complaint is made of the nature of the complaint and may request appropriate relief for the consumer [Bus. & Prof. Code § 326(a)]. The director must also transmit any valid complaint to the local, state, or federal agency whose authority provides the most effective means to secure such relief. If appropriate, the director must advise the consumer of the action taken on the complaint and of any other means which may be available to the consumer to secure relief [Bus. & Prof. Code § 326(b)].

If the director receives a complaint or receives information from any source indicating a probable violation of any law or rule or order of any regulatory agency of the state, or if a pattern of complaints from consumers develops, the director must transmit any complaint he or she considers to be valid to any appropriate law enforcement or regulatory agency, along with any evidence or information he or she may have concerning such a probable violation or pattern of complaints, or he or she must request the Attorney General to undertake appropriate legal action. It is the continuing duty of the director to discern patterns of complaints and to ascertain the nature and extent of action taken with respect to probable violations or patterns of complaints [Bus. & Prof. Code § 326(c)].

§ 127.12 Automotive Repair Act

The Automotive Repair Act [Bus. & Prof. Code § 9880 et seq.] governs the repair of motor vehicles by automotive repair dealers. All automotive repair dealers must register in accordance with the provisions of the act [Bus. & Prof. Code § 9884.6]. The act prescribes certain procedures to be followed, including the recording of all work done by an automotive repair dealer on an invoice describing all service work done and parts supplied [Bus. & Prof. Code § 9884.8], the giving of a written estimated price for labor and parts necessary for a specific job before work is begun [Bus. & Prof. Code § 9884.9(a)], and the return of replaced parts to the customer at the time of the completion of the work [Bus. & Prof. Code § 9884.10].

The Bureau of Automotive Repair is part of the Department of Consumer Affairs. It is under the supervision and control of a director who has the duty of enforcing and administering the Automotive Repair Act [Bus. & Prof. Code § 9880 et seq.]. However, nothing in the provisions of the act prohibits the bringing of a civil action against an automotive repair dealer by an individual [Bus. & Prof. Code § 9884.18].

Attorneys representing clients with auto repair problems should contact the Bureau of Automotive Repair before proceeding with a civil action. The bureau has a packet of material that will be mailed to any attorney who contacts them.

For a discussion and forms relating to the Automotive Repair Act [Bus. & Prof. Code § 9880 et seq.], see Ch. 91, Automobiles: Actions Involving Defects and Repairs , and Ch. 274, Garages and Gas Stations .

§ 127.13 Electronic and Appliance Repair Dealer Registration Law

The Electronic and Appliance Repair Dealer Registration Law [Bus. & Prof. Code § 9800 et seq.] governs licensing and regulation of electronic and appliance repair dealers. Until January 1, 2013 [Bus. & Prof. Code § 9855.9], this law also governs service contractors [Bus. & Prof. Code § 9855 et seq.; see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 9855(a)(1), 9855.05 (what are service contracts in this context)].

The Bureau of Electronic and Appliance Repair, Home Furnishings, and Thermal Insulation, in the Department of Consumer Affairs [Bus. & Prof. Code § 9810], gathers evidence of violations of the act and any implementing regulations, by any service dealer, whether registered or not, and by any employee, partner, officer, or member of any service dealer. The bureau must conduct spot-check investigations of service dealers throughout California on a continuous basis [Bus. & Prof. Code § 9812]. Until January 1, 2013, this applies also to service contractors [Bus. & Prof. Code § 9812.5].

The bureau establishes procedures for accepting complaints from the public against any service dealer (and, until January 1, 2013, against any service contractor) [Bus. & Prof. Code § 9860].

For further discussion of the Electronic and Appliance Repair Dealer Registration Law, see Ch. 484, Radio and Television, § 484.16.

§ 127.14 Consumers Legal Remedies Act

The purposes of the Consumers Legal Remedies Act [Civ. Code § 1750 et seq.] are to protect consumers against unfair and deceptive business practices and to provide efficient and economical procedures to secure such protection [Civ. Code § 1760]. The act lists unfair methods of competition and unfair or deceptive acts and practices which, when undertaken by any person in a transaction intended to result or which results in the sale or lease of goods or services to any consumer, are unlawful [Civ. Code § 1770].

A consumer who suffers damages as a result of any person's use or employment of a method, act, or practice declared to be unlawful by Civ. Code § 1770 may bring an individual or class action against that person [Civ. Code §§ 1780, 1781; see, e.g., Consumer Advocates v. Echostar Satellite Corp. (2003) 113 Cal. App. 4th 1351, 1353-1354, 8 Cal. Rptr. 3d 22 (consumers alleged that provider of satellite TV service violated Civ. Code § 1770(a)(5), (7), (9); triable issues of fact found on whether defendants violated statute with representations about number of channels and program schedule)]. The individual consumer or the class may obtain actual damages (in a class action, the total award may not be less than $1,000), punitive damages, an order enjoining the unlawful methods, acts, or practices, and any other relief which the court deems proper [Civ. Code § 1780(a)]. An award of up to $5,000 may be made to any senior or disabled plaintiff in an action under Civ. Code § 1780 [Civ. Code §§ 1780(b), 3345].

§ 127.15 Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act

The Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act (Civ. Code § 1790 et seq.) governs consumer warranties applying to consumer goods used, bought, or leased primarily for personal, family, or household purposes [Civ. Code § 1791]. The act defines implied and express warranties [Civ. Code §§ 1791.1, 1791.2] and sets forth when consumer goods are accompanied by implied warranties of merchantability and fitness [Civ. Code §§ 1792-1792.3]. It also prescribes the requirements for an "as is" sale [Civ. Code §§ 1792.4, 1792.5]. In addition, the act requires that every manufacturer of consumer goods sold in California which are accompanied by express warranties maintain sufficient service and repair facilities in California to carry out the terms of the warranties or designate and authorize as service and repair facilities independent service and repair facilities to carry out the terms of the warranties [see Civ. Code § 1793.2; see also California State Electronics Assn. v. Zeos Int'l (1996) 41 Cal. App. 4th 1270, 1276-1277, 49 Cal. Rptr. 2d 127 (personal computers sold by Minnesota manufacturer by mail order to California residents were not "sold in this state" for purposes of act's local repair facilities requirement)]. The act sets forth the alternativesavailable if the manufacturer does not provide service and repair facilities in California or does maintain such facilities, but fails to supply them with adequate replacement parts and service literature [see Civ. Code § 1793.2].

Any buyer of consumer goods who is damaged by a failure to comply with any obligation under the Song-Beverly Warranty Act or under an implied or express warranty or service contract may bring an action for the recovery of damages and other legal and equitable relief [Civ. Code § 1794(a); see Mocek v. Alfa Leisure, Inc. (2003) 114 Cal. App. 4th 402, 406-408, 7 Cal. Rptr. 3d 546 (buyer is not required to give seller opportunity to repair before rescinding when implied warranty of merchantability is breached; judgment for amount of purchase price plus interest upon return of defective travel trailer affirmed); see also Atkinson v. Elk Corporation (2003) 109 Cal. App. 4th 739, 757, 135 Cal. Rptr. 2d 433 (analyzing statutory definition of "consumer goods" and holding that roof shingles are not consumer goods under the Act)]. If the buyer establishes that the failure to comply was willful, a civil penalty not exceeding twice the amount of actual damages may be recovered [Civ. Code § 1794(c)]. In addition, any retailer or independent service person injured by willful or repeated violations of the act may bring an action for damages and may recover treble damages [Civ. Code § 1794.1].

§ 127.16 Unruh Retail Installment Sales Act

The Unruh Retail Installment Sales Act (Civ. Code § 1801 et seq.) governs retail installment sales. The act sets forth the required provisions of retail installment contracts, including restrictions on such contracts [see Civ. Code §§ 1803.1 et seq., 1804.1 et seq.]. It also sets limitations on finance charges [see Civ. Code § 1805.1] and states to whom the buyer should make payments [see Civ. Code § 1806.1]. The act also contains provisions concerning refinancing and consolidation [see Civ. Code § 1807.1 et seq.], add-on sales [see Civ. Code § 1808.1 et seq.], retail installment accounts [see Civ. Code § 1810 et seq.], retail installment account credit card periodic rate disclosures [see Civ. Code § 1810.21], repossession and resale [see Civ. Code § 1812.2 et seq.], and penalties for noncompliance [see Civ. Code § 1812.6 et seq.].

The buyer may bring an action under the Unruh Act for damages against any person who violates the act and, in any case in which a person willfully violated any provision of the act in connection with the imposition, computation, or disclosures of or relating to a finance charge on a consolidated total of two or more contracts under the provisions of Civ. Code § 1808.1 et seq. (add-on sales), the buyer may recover three times the total of the finance charges and any delinquency, collection, extension, deferral, or refinance charges imposed, contracted for, or received on all contracts included in the consolidated total, and the seller is barred from the recovery of any such charges [Civ. Code § 1812.9].

§ 127.18 Rosenthal-Roberti Item Pricing Act

The Rosenthal-Roberti Item Pricing Act [see Civ. Code § 7100 et seq.] governs item-pricing in grocery stores and grocery departments within general retail merchandise stores using a point-of-sale system, and sets forth the exclusive remedies available to any person, state, local agency, or law enforcement official. The terms "grocery department" and "grocery store" are defined in Civ. Code § 7100(c)(3) and (4), respectively. The term "point-of-sale system" means any computer or electronic system used by a retail establishment such as, but not limited to, universal product code (UPC) scanners, price lookup codes, or an electronic price lookup system as a means for determining the price of the item being purchased by a consumer [Civ. Code § 7100(c)(1)]. The act requires grocery stores and grocery departments to have a clearly readable price indicated on 85 percent of the total number of packaged consumer commodities offered for sale that are not exempt [Civ. Code § 7100(a)]. Exempt items are listed in Civ. Code § 7100(b). "Consumer commodity" is defined in Civ. Code § 7100(c)(2).

Any person, firm, corporation, or association that violates Civ. Code §§ 7100 and 7101 is liable to any person injured by the violation for any losses and expenses thereby incurred and, in addition, to the sum of $50, but this applies only to actions brought by a single plaintiff and is not applicable in multiple-plaintiff or class actions [Civ. Code § 7102].

A business establishment that uses a point-of-sale system to sell goods or services to consumers must ensure that the price of each good or service to be paid by the consumer is conspicuously displayed to the consumer at the time the price is interpreted by the system. In any instance in which the business advertises a price reduction or discount regarding an item offered for sale, the checkout system customer indicator must display either (1) the discounted price for that item, or (2) the regularprice and a credit or reduction of the advertised saving. Any surcharges and the total to be charged for the overall transaction also must be displayed for the consumer at least once before the consumer is required to pay for the goods or services. The checkout system customer indicator must be positioned, and the prices and amounts displayed must be of a size and form, so as to be easily viewable from a typical and reasonable customer position at each checkout location [Bus. & Prof. Code § 13300(a) (applicable after 2006); see Bus. & Prof. Code § 13300(b) (definition of point-of-sale system); see also Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 13301, 13302 (enforcement by public attorney or sealer)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

13-127 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 127.19

§ 127.19 Contract Negotiated in Language Other than English

[1] When Required

[a] Languages Subject to Requirement

If a language other than English is the primary language used for negotiations with a consumer, the consumer may have to be provided with a translation of the contract in that other language. For contracts entered into prior to July 1, 2004, this requirement is applicable only to contracts negotiated primarily in Spanish. On and after July 1, 2004, it is applicable to contracts negotiated primarily in Spanish, Chinese, Tagalog, Vietnamese, or Korean [see Civ. Code § 1632].

[b] Types of Contracts Subject to Requirement

Generally, any person engaged in a trade or business who negotiates primarily in the other language, orally or in writing, in the course of entering into any consumer contract or agreement, must deliver to the consumer, before the consumer executes the contract or agreement, a translation of the contract or agreement in the other language. This translation must include a translation of every term and condition in that contract or agreement. This requirement applies to the following kinds ofcontracts [Civ. Code § 1632(b)]:

- A contract or agreement that is subject to any of the following [Civ. Code § 1632(b)(1)]:
  - The Unruh Retail Installment Sales Act [see Civ. Code § 1801 et seq.].
  - The Rees-Levering Motor Vehicles Sales and Finance Act [see Civ. Code § 2981 et seq.; Ch. 89, Automobiles: Sales and Financing Under the Rees-Levering Act].
  - The Vehicle Leasing Act [see Civ. Code § 2985.7 et seq.; Ch. 90, Automobiles: Vehicle Leasing Act].
- Any other loan or extension of credit secured otherwise than by real property, or unsecured, for use primarily for personal, family, or household purposes [Civ. Code § 1632(b)(2)].

- A lease, sublease, rental contract or agreement, or other tenancy contract or agreement, for a period longer than one month, covering a dwelling, an apartment, a mobilehome, or any other dwelling unit normally occupied as a residence [Civ. Code § 1632(b)(3)].

- A loan or extension of credit for use primarily for personal, family, or household purposes, when the loan or extension of credit is subject to anay of the following [Civ. Code § 1632(b)(4)]:

  - Bus. & Prof. Code § 10240 et seq., concerning loans negotiated by real estate brokers.

  - The Industrial Loan Law [see Fin. Code § 18000 et seq.].

  - The California Finance Lenders Law [see Fin. Code § 22000 et seq.].

- A reverse mortgage [Civ. Code § 1632(b)(5); see Civ. Code § 1923 et seq. (regulation of reverse-mortgage lenders)].

- A contract or agreement containing a statement of fees or charges, entered into for the purpose of obtaining legal services, when the person with whom the consumer negotiates the contract or agreement is a California-licensed attorney [Civ. Code § 1632(b)(6)].

- A foreclosure consulting contract subject to Civ. Code § 2945 et seq. [Civ. Code § 1632(b)(7)].

An alternative requirement applies in the case of negotiating in any of the specified foreign languages for a loan or other extension of credit to be secured by residential property [see Civ. Code § 1632.5; § 127.19[7]].

If a loan or extension of credit for use primarily for personal, family, or household purposes, is negotiated by a real estate broker and is subject to the mortgage loan disclosure statement requirements of Bus. & Prof. Code § 10240 et seq. [for discussion, see California Legal Forms, Ch. 25, Real Estate Loans (Matthew Bender)], the translation requirement technically applies to the resulting contract or agreement when negotiations are conducted primarily in the other language [see Civ. Code § 1632(b)(4)], but the broker can comply by delivering the required mortgage loan disclosure statement [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 10240(a), 10241; see California Legal Forms, Ch. 25, Real Estate Loans, §§ 25.250, 25.251 (Matthew Bender)] in the other language [Civ. Code § 1632(c)].

At the time and place where a lease, sublease, or rental contract or agreement described above is executed, notice in the other language in which the contract or agreement was negotiated must be provided to the lessee or tenant [Civ. Code § 1632(d)].

[c] Ancillary Documents

Generally, "contract or agreement" in Civ. Code § 1632 means the document creating the rights and obligations of the parties and includes any subsequent document making substantial changes in the rights and obligations of the parties [Civ. Code § 1632(g)], but periodic statements, sales slips, invoices, and other similar documents are excluded [see [d], below]. For example, a notice of repossession and deficiency of a motor vehicle under Civ. Code § 2983.2 is a document that substantially affects the borrower's rights under the contract. Therefore, the borrower is entitled to a translation of the notice [Reyes v. Superior Court (1981) 118 Cal. App. 3d 159, 162, 173 Cal. Rptr. 267] .

[d] Matters Excluded From Requirement

The term "contract or agreement" does not include any of the following [Civ. Code § 1632(g)]:

- Matters ordinarily incorporated by reference in a residential lease, sublease, rental contract or agreement, or other tenancy contract or agreement, including but not limited to rules and regulations governing a tenancy and inventories of furnishings to be provided by the lessor or other person in the position of a lessor.

- Any subsequent documents authorized or contemplated by the original document such as periodic statements, sales slips or invoices representing purchases made pursuant to a credit card agreement, a retail installment contract or account or other revolving sales or loan account, memoranda of purchases in an add-on sale, or refinancing of a purchase as provided by, or pursuant to, the original document.

- A home improvement contract [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 7151.2, 7159 (definitions)], or plans, specifications, description of work to be done and materials to be used, or collateral security taken or to be taken for the retail buyer's obligation contained in a contract for the installation of goods by a licensed contractor, if the home improvement or installation contract is otherwise a part of a contract subject to Civ. Code § 1632.

[e] Elements of Contract Not Required to Be Translated

The other-language version of a contract or agreement may retain the following elements of the executed English contract or agreement without translation: names and titles of individuals and other persons, addresses, brand names, trade names, trademarks, registered service marks, full or abbreviated designations of the make and model of goods or services, alphanumeric codes, numerals, dollar amounts expressed in numerals, dates, and individual words or expressions having no generally acceptable translation into English. It is permissible, but not required, that the other-language version be signed [Civ. Code § 1632(i)].

[2] Compliance by Supervised Financial Organization

A translation of disclosures required by federal Regulation M on consumer leasing or Regulation Z on truth in lending [see 12 C.F.R. §§ 213.1 et seq., 226.1 et seq.] or by the Industrial Loan Law or the California Finance Lenders Law [see Fin. Code §§ 18000 et seq., 22000 et seq.], can be provided to the consumer by a supervised lender, before the execution of the contract, and that will be deemed compliance with Civ. Code § 1632. Supervised lenders include banks, savings and loan associations, credit unions, and the holding companies, affiliates, and subsidiaries of any of them; real estate brokers when subject to Bus. & Prof. Code § 10240 et seq.; and lenders subject to the Industrial Loan Law or the California Finance Lenders Law [Civ. Code § 1632(e)].

[3] Requirements Inapplicable When Interpreter Negotiates Contract

Civ. Code § 1632 does not apply to any person engaged in a trade or business who negotiates primarily in the other language [see [1], above], if the party with whom he or she is negotiating is a buyer of goods or services, or receives a loan or extension of credit, or enters an agreement obligating himself or herself as a tenant, lessee, or sublessee, or similarly obligates himself or herself by contract or lease, and that party negotiates the terms of the contract, lease, or other obligation through his or her own interpreter who is not a minor, is able to speak fluently and read with full understanding both English and the other language, and is neither employed by nor made available through the person that negotiates with the consumer [Civ. Code § 1632(h)].

[4] Notice of Right to Translation

At the time and place for entering into a contract or agreement that is subject to the Unruh Retail Installment Sales Act, the Rees-Levering Motor Vehicles Sales and Finance Act, or the Vehicle Leasing Act [see Civ. Code §§ 1801 et seq., 2981 et seq., 2985.7 et seq.], or that is for a loan or extension of credit secured otherwise than by real property, or unsecured, for use primarily for personal, family, or household purposes [see [1], above], a notice in the other language must be conspicuously displayed, to the effect that the person with whom the consumer is negotiating is required to provide a contract or agreement, or a translation of the disclosures required by law, in the other language in which the contract or agreement was negotiated [Civ. Code § 1632(f)].

It is reversible error for a court to render a deficiency judgment in favor of a finance company if the borrower is unable to understand English and there is no evidence that the finance company did or did not post a notice in the other language pursuant to Civ. Code § 1632 at the location of the loan negotiations [Reyes v. Superior Court (1981) 118 Cal. App. 3d 159, 162, 173 Cal. Rptr. 267] .

[5] Evidentiary Use of Translation

The terms of the contract or agreement that is executed in English determines the rights and obligations of the parties. The other-language translation of the contract or the disclosures can be admitted into evidence only to show that no contract was entered into because of the substantial difference in the material terms and conditions of the contract and the translation [Civ. Code § 1632(j)].

[6] Rescission for Noncompliance

In the event of noncompliance with the requirements of Civ. Code § 1632, the consumer may rescind the contract or agreement. When a contract for a consumer credit sale or consumer lease that has been sold and assigned to a financial institution is rescinded, the consumer must make restitution to, and have restitution made by, the person with whom he or she made the contract, and must give notice of rescission to the assignee. Notwithstanding that the contract was assigned without recourse, the assignment must be deemed rescinded, and the assignor must promptly repurchase the contract from the assignee [Civ. Code § 1632(k)].

[7] Alternative Requirement for Loan or Credit Secured by Residential Property

If a state-supervised financial institution negotiates primarily in Spanish, Chinese, Tagalog, Vietnamese, or Korean, to make a loan, or otherwise to extend credit, that will be secured by residential real property, then unless the institution complies with Civ. Code § 1632 or unless the other party negotiates the terms of the contract through his or her own interpreter, the institution must deliver to the other party a form on which the terms of the contract are summarized in the language of the negotiation [Civ. Code § 1632.5(a), (b)(2), (c)(2), (e)(1), (j)]. The form is prescribed by the Department of Corporations and the Department of Financial Institutions and is intended to be a foreign-language equivalent, in purpose and effect, to the good faith estimate that is prescribed by HUD for use under the Real Estate Settlement Procedures Act [Civ. Code § 1632.5(i)].

State-supervised financial institutions are all of the persons, except real estate brokers, that are subject to Civ. Code § 1632 [see § 127.19[2]]--banks, savings associations, and credit unions; holding companies, affiliates, and subsidiaries of those institutions; industrial loan companies and finance lenders--as well as residential mortgage lenders [Civ. Code § 1632.5(b)(2)]. Real estate brokers are not affected by Civ. Code § 1632.5, although they are subject to Civ. Code § 1632 [2009 Stats., ch. 274, § 2].

Civ. Code § 1632.5 does not create, enhance, or limit any claim, right of action, or civil liability under state law [Civ. Code § 1632.5(k)]. An action for violation of Civ. Code § 1632.5 may be brought only by the institution's licensing agency or by the attorney general [Civ. Code § 1632.5(l)]. When an institution is subject to Civ. Code § 1632 and complies with Civ. Code § 1632.5, the institution is deemed to be compliance with Civ. Code § 1632, and vice versa [Civ. Code § 1632.5(c)]; and if the institution attempts but fails to comply with Civ. Code § 1632.5, the institution is subject only to remedies allowed by that section and is not subject to the remedies allowed by Civ. Code § 1632 [2009 Stats., ch. 274, § 2].

Use of the prescribed form in compliance with Civ. Code § 1632.5 has no legal effect on the determination of the parties' rights and obligations, which are to be determined by the terms of the contract that is executed in English. However, the translated words in the form that is provided by the institution can be admitted in evidence to show, and only to show, that no contract or agreement was entered into because of a substantial difference in the material terms and conditions of the contract or agreement as alleged and the translation in the form provided to the other party [Civ. Code § 1632.5(g)].

§ 127.20 Magnuson-Moss Warranty--Federal Trade Commission Improvement Act

The Magnuson-Moss Warranty--Federal Trade Commission Improvement Act [see 15 U.S.C. § 2301 et seq.] is a federal law governing consumer product warranties. Included in the act are rules governing the contents of warranties [15 U.S.C. § 2302], the Federal minimum standards for written warranties [15 U.S.C. § 2304], and restrictions on disclaimers or modifications of implied warranties [15 U.S.C. § 2308]. The act sets forth procedures to be followed in informal dispute settlements [15 U.S.C. § 2310(a)]. In addition, the act provides for the issuance of a temporary restraining order or preliminary injunction without bond [15 U.S.C.§ 2310(c)(1)]. A consumer who is damaged by the failure of a supplier, warrantor, or service contractor to comply with any obligation of the act, or under a written warranty, implied warranty, or service contract, may bring suit for damages and other legal and equitable relief [15 U.S.C. § 2310(d)(1)].

§ 127.21 Federal Truth in Lending Act

The purposes of the federal Truth in Lending Act [see 15 U.S.C. § 1601 et seq.] are to assure a meaningful disclosure of credit terms so that the consumer will be able to compare more readily the various credit terms available to him or her and avoid the uninformed use of credit, and to protect the consumer against inaccurate and unfair credit billing and credit card practices [15 U.S.C. § 1601(a)]. Its purpose is also to assure a meaningful disclosure of the terms of leases of personal property for personal, family, or household purposes so as to enable the lessee to compare more readily the various lease terms available to him or her, limit balloon payments in consumer leasing, enable comparison of lease terms with credit terms when appropriate, and to assure meaningful and accurate disclosures of lease terms in advertisements [15 U.S.C. § 1601(b)].

The act is divided into five parts: general provisions, credit transactions, credit advertising, credit billing, and consumer leases.

The general provisions include measures governing the determination of finance charges [15 U.S.C. § 1605], the determination of annual percentage rates [15 U.S.C. § 1606], and administrative enforcement [15 U.S.C. § 1607].

The credit transactions part includes provisions governing the requirement of disclosure [15 U.S.C. § 1631], open-end consumer credit plans [15 U.S.C. § 1637], consumer credit transactions other than open-end credit plans [15 U.S.C. § 1638], civil liability [15 U.S.C. § 1640], assignee liability [15 U.S.C. § 1641], the liability of credit cardholders [15 U.S.C. § 1643], the fraudulent use of credit cards [15 U.S.C. § 1644], business credit cards [15 U.S.C. § 1645], the collection, publication, and dissemination of annual percentage rates [15 U.S.C. § 1646], plans secured by a consumer's principal dwelling [15 U.S.C. § 1647], "reverse mortgages" [15 U.S.C. § 1648], limitations on liability for disclosure of taxes, mortgage broker fees, and other specified expenses [15 U.S.C. § 1649], restrictions on private educational lenders [15 U.S.C. § 1650], and the creation of procedures for the timely settlement of estates of deceased obligors [15 U.S.C. § 1651].

The credit advertising part contains provisions governing catalogs and multiple-page advertisements [15 U.S.C. § 1661], the advertising of downpayments and installments [15 U.S.C. § 1662], the advertising of open-end credit plans [15 U.S.C. § 1663], the advertising of credit other than open-end plans [15 U.S.C. § 1664], the more-than-four-installment rule for advertisements [15 U.S.C. § 1665a], and the advertising of open-end consumer credit plans secured by the consumer's principal dwelling [15 U.S.C. § 1665b].

The part on advertising also contains provisions governing the following matters (but not in the context of advertising): interest rate reductions on open-end consumer credit plans [15 U.S.C. § 1665c], reasonable penalty fees on open-end consumer credit plans [15 U.S.C. § 1665d], and consideration of ability to repay [15 U.S.C. § 1665e].

The credit billing part contains provisions on the correction of billing errors [15 U.S.C. § 1666], the regulation of credit reports [15 U.S.C. § 1666a], the length of the billing period in a credit statement for imposition of a finance charge, and the effect of tardy mailing or delivery of a statement [15 U.S.C. § 1666b], the prompt crediting of payments and the imposition of a finance charge [15 U.S.C. § 1666c], the treatment of credit balances [15 U.S.C. § 1666d], notification to the credit card issuer, by a seller, that a return credit should be processed [15 U.S.C. § 1666e], inducements to cardholders by sellers of cash discounts, to encourage payments by cash, check, or similar means, and finance charges for sales transactions involving cash discounts [15 U.S.C. § 1666f], the prohibition of tie-in services for issuance of a credit card [15 U.S.C. § 1666g], offsetting a cardholder's indebtedness to the issuer of a credit card against funds deposited with the issuer by the cardholder [15 U.S.C. § 1666h], a cardholder's assertion, against the card issuer, of claims and defenses arising out of a credit card transaction [15 U.S.C. § 1666i], limits on interest rate, fee, and finance charge increases applicable to outstanding balances [15 U.S.C. § 1666i-1], additional limits on interest rate increases [15 U.S.C. § 1666i-2], and the applicability of state laws [15 U.S.C. § 1666j].

The consumer leasing provisions include provisions relating to consumer lease disclosures [15 U.S.C. § 1667a], a lessee's liability on the expiration or termination of a lease [15 U.S.C. § 1667b], consumer lease advertising [15 U.S.C. § 1667c], the civil liability of lessors [15 U.S.C. § 1667d], and the applicability of state laws [15 U.S.C. § 1667e].

For a discussion of and forms relating to these parts of the Truth in Lending Act, see Ch. 501, Sales: Retail Installment Sales . For additional coverage, see California Legal Forms, Ch. 45, Consumer Installment Loans and Credit Sales, and Ch. 46, Credit Card and Other Open-End Credit Transactions (Matthew Bender).

The credit billing section, also known as the Fair Credit Billing Act [see 15 U.S.C. § 1666 et seq.], is discussed in § 127.28.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

13-127 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 127.22

§ 127.22 Military Service Members

[1] Debt Relief for Active Service Members

The federal Servicemembers Civil Relief Act [50 U.S.C. App. § 501 et seq.] provides for the temporary suspension of various legal proceedings, obligations, and liabilities for persons in military service [see 50 U.S.C. App. § 510 (purpose of statute)]. The statute is applicable to all members of the United States Army, Navy, Marine Corps, Air Force, and Coast Guard, and to Public Health Service officers detailed for duty with the Army or Navy [50 U.S.C. App. § 511(1) et seq.]. The California counterpart to the federal legislation [Mil. & Vet. Code § 400 et seq.] is designed to fill certain gaps in the federal law in the wake of the events of September 11, 2001. The latter statute, many provisions of which are virtually identical to their federal counterparts, is designed to apply to military reservists and National Guard members who are called to active military service under specified circumstances and, in many cases, for limited periods of time [see Mil. & Vet. Code § 400].

The federal and California statutes provide specific relief to qualifying military personnel in a variety of areas, including the following:

- Default judgments [50 U.S.C. App. § 520; Mil. & Vet. Code § 402(a)].
- Pending judicial proceedings [50 U.S.C. App. § 521; Mil. & Vet. Code § 403(a)].
- Fines or penalties on contracts and similar obligations [50 U.S.C. App. § 522; Mil. & Vet. Code § 403(b)].
- Execution of judgments, attachments, and similar matters [50 U.S.C. App. § 523; Mil. & Vet. Code § 403(c)].
- Statutes of limitations [50 U.S.C. App. § 525; Mil. & Vet. Code § 404].
- Interest rates [50 U.S.C. App. § 526; Mil. & Vet. Code § 405].

- Rent and eviction [50 U.S.C. App. § 530].
- Leases [50 U.S.C. App. § 534; Mil. & Vet. Code § 409].
- Installment contracts [50 U.S.C. App. § 531; Mil. & Vet. Code § 407].
- Mortgages [50 U.S.C. App. § 532; Mil. & Vet. Code § 408].
- Insurance [50 U.S.C. App. §§ 535, 540-547; Mil. & Vet. Code § 409.1].
- Taxes [50 U.S.C. App. §§ 560-574; Mil. & Vet. Code § 409.2].

In addition to these specific types of relief, the federal and California statutes contain "catch-all" type provisions that allow qualifying service members to initiate proceedings to seek relief [50 U.S.C. App. § 531; Mil. & Vet. Code § 407].

These statutes can have important effects on consumer contracts, mortgages, and other obligations for persons in military service. If the buyer entered military service after the obligation was incurred, or is a reservist or National Guard member who was called to active duty after entering into the obligation, these statutes will limit the rate of interest that can be charged while the buyer is on active military service [see 50 U.S.C. App. § 526; Mil. & Vet. Code § 405], and significantly restrict the creditor's rights to enforce the obligation during (and in some situations immediately after) the period of military service [see, e.g., 50 U.S.C. App. § 531; Mil. & Vet. Code § 407]. In addition, statutes of limitation are tolled during the period of active military service [50 U.S.C. App. § 525; Mil. & Vet. Code § 404(a)].

For more detailed discussion of the relief available under these statutes, the manner in which such relief can be requested, and the persons who qualify for relief, see § Ch. 501, Sales: Retail Installment Contracts, § 501.60 et seq. Forms for requesting various forms of relief from installment and related obligations under these statutes are located in § Ch. 501, Sales: Retail Installment Contracts, § 501.300 et seq. For a form for a complaint for unlawful retaliation by a lender, creditor, or other person against a person who received stay or postponement because of military service, see Ch. 129, Consumer Credit Reporting, § 129.150.

[2] Deceptive Marketing of Financial Services and Products

No person or entity licensed under the Business and Professions Code, the Corporations Code, the Financial Code--excepting any bank or credit union [Mil. & Vet. Code § 823.5(c); see Fin. Code §§ 102, 14002 (definitions)]--or the Insurance Code may market financial services or products to a service member or former service member, or the spouse of a service member or former service member, in a misleading or deceptive manner that suggests that the person or entity marketing the financial service or product is acting on behalf of, or is an affiliate of, any branch of the U.S. military or the U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs, or the financial service or product is being offered on behalf of any branch of the U.S. military or the U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs [Mil. & Vet. Code § 823.5(a)].

"Service member" means an active-duty member of the U.S. armed forces, an officer or enlisted member of the national guard called or ordered into active state service by the governor [see Mil. & Vet. Code §§ 143, 146], or into active federal service by the President, for a period of 30 days or more, or a reservist of the U.S. military reserve who has been called to full-time active duty for a period of 30 days or more [Mil. & Vet. Code § 823.5(d)(1)]. "Former service member" means a veteran [Mil. & Vet. Code § 823.5(d)(2); see Mil. & Vet. Code § 980 (definition)].

If a person who violates this section is licensed under any state licensing law, a violation of Mil. & Vet. Code § 823.5 will be deemed a violation of the laws under which that person is licensed [Mil. & Vet. Code § 823.5(b)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

13-127 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 127.23

§ 127.23 Consumer Credit Contracts

[1] Defined

Civ. Code § 1799.90 et seq., which govern consumer credit contracts, apply to many different types of consumer transactions, including retail installment sales, automobile sales contracts, and consumer loans. (Any waiver of the provisions of Civ. Code § 1799.90 et seq. is contrary to public policy, and is void and unenforceable [Civ. Code § 1799.104].) The following transactions are considered consumer credit contracts if the consumer is obligated to pay money on a deferred payment basis and the money, property, services, or other consideration that is the subject matter of the contract is primarily for personal, family, or household purposes [Civ. Code § 1799.90(a)]:

- Retail installment contracts, as defined in Civ. Code § 1802.6 of the Retail Installment Sales Act [see Ch. 501, Sales: Retail Installment Sales].

- Retail installment accounts, as defined in Civ. Code § 1802.7 of the Retail Installment Sales Act [see Ch. 501, Sales: Retail Installment Sales].

- Conditional sales contracts, as defined in Civ. Code § 2981(a) of the Rees-Levering Motor Vehicles Sales and Finance Act [see Ch. 89, Automobiles: Sales and Financing Under the Rees-Levering Act];

- Loans or extensions of credit secured by other than real property, or unsecured, for use primarily for personal, family, or household purposes [see Ch. 503, Sales: Secured Transactions].

- Loans or extensions of credit subject to Bus. & Prof. Code § 10240 et seq. (real estate brokers), Fin. Code § 18000 et seq. (industrial loan companies), Fin. Code § 22000 et seq. (finance lenders) that are for use primarily for personal, family, or household purposes, whether secured by real property or otherwise [see Ch. 568, Usury].

- Lease contracts, as defined in Civ. Code 2985.7(d) (governing motor vehicle leases) [see generally Ch. 90, Automobiles: Vehicle Leasing Act].

[2] Permissible Collateral

[a] Household Goods

It is unlawful for any person to take a security interest in any household goods in connection with a consumer credit contract, or other credit obligation, incurred primarily for personal, family, or household purposes unless (1) the person takes possession of the household goods, or (2) the purchase price of the household goods was financed through the consumer credit contract or credit obligation [Civ. Code § 1799.100(a)]. A security interest taken in violation of this prohibition is void and unenforceable [Civ. Code § 1799.100(e)].

"Household goods" include clothing, furniture, appliances, one radio, one television, linens, china, crockery, kitchenware, personal effects, and wedding rings. They do not include other electronic entertainment equipment, other jewelry, items acquired as antiques, or works of art [Civ. Code § 1799.100(g)(1)].

Any person injured by a violation of Civ. Code § 1799.100 may bring a civil action for the recovery of damages, equitable relief, and attorney's fees and costs [Civ. Code § 1799.100(f)].

[b] Other Personal Property

An agreement or other document creating a nonpossessory security interest in personal property in connection with a consumer credit contract, or other credit obligation, that is incurred primarily for personal, family, or household purposes, must contain a statement of description of the personal property in which the security interest is taken. The statement must indicate each specific item of the personal property, and must be reviewed and signed by the consumer [Civ. Code § 1799.100(b)]. "Personal property" for purposes of this requirement consists of the following:

- Any goods, as defined in Com. Code § 9102(a)(44) (in general, all things that are movable when a security interest attaches), except for vessels, vehicles, and aircraft, that are used or bought for use primarily for personal, family, or household purposes and that have a fair market value of less than $1,000 per individual item at the time the security interest is created [Civ. Code § 1799.100(d)(1)].

- The property described in Code Civ. Proc. § 704.050 (health aids needed by debtor or debtor's spouse or dependent) and in Code Civ. Proc. § 704.060(a) (tools and specified personal property used in trade, business, or profession), except for vessels, vehicles, and aircraft [Civ. Code § 1799.100(d)(2)].

This statement-of-description requirement is automatically satisfied by any consumer credit contract, or other credit obligation, if it is subject to the Unruh Act (Civ. Code § 1801 et seq.) and complies with either Civ. Code § 1803.3(a) (required contents of retail installment contract) or § 1810.1(f) (required disclosures concerning security interests created by retail installment account). For discussion of these provisions, as well as the types of transactions subject to the Unruh Act, see Ch. 503, Sales: Secured Transactions .

In addition, a person who has a nonpossessory security interest in personal property taken in connection with a consumer credit contract, or other credit obligation, that is incurred primarily for personal, family, or household purposes can only enforce the security by judicial action, unless the consumer abandons or freely and voluntarily surrenders the property. Personal property for purposes of this prohibition is the same as for the statement-of-description requirement set forth in Civ. Code § 1799.100(b) [Civ. Code § 1799.100(c)].

Any person injured by a violation of Civ. Code § 1799.100 may bring a civil action for the recovery of damages, equitable relief, and attorney's fees and costs [Civ. Code § 1799.100(f)].

[3] Protections for Cosignor

[a] Notice of Contract Obligations

When a creditor obtains the signature of more than one person, other than persons married to each other, on a consumer credit contract, the creditor is required to deliver a notice, in English and Spanish in at least 10-point type, to each person who does not in fact receive any of the money, property, or services that are the subject matter of the contract, prior to that cosigner becoming obligated on the contract [Civ. Code §§ 1799.90(a), 1799.91(a); see Civ. Code §§ 1799.90-1799.99]. The exact wording of the required notice is set forth in Civ. Code § 1799.91(a), and other requirements regarding the notice are set forth in Civ. Code §§ 1799.91(b)-1799.93. For a discussion and a form relating to the notice, see Ch. 501, Sales: Retail Installment Sales .

[b] Notice of Delinquency Before Credit Record Affected

In addition to the liability notice, a cosignor is entitled to notice of any delinquency before his or her credit record is affected. For the purpose of this notice requirement, a "cosigner" is a natural person, other than the primary obligor or the spouse of the primary obligor, who renders himself or herself liable for the obligation on a consumer credit contract without compensation. The term includes a person whose signature is requested by a creditor as a condition to granting credit to another person. A person who does not receive goods, services, or money in return for executing a consumer credit contract does not receive compensation within the meaning of this section. "Cosigner" does not include a joint applicant for open-ended credit pursuant to Civ. Code § 1799.91(c). A person is a cosigner within the meaning of this section whether or not he or she is designated as such on a consumer credit contract or other document creating the consumer credit contract obligation for the cosigner [Civ. Code § 1799.101(a)(3)].

A creditor may not provide any adverse information about any cosigner to a consumer credit reporting agency, regarding a failure to make timely payment to the creditor of all or a portion of any installment under a consumer credit contract entered into on or after July 1, 1992, unless the notice requirements are satisfied. "Adverse information" includes information directly or indirectly indicating that a delinquency has occurred because a cosigner has not complied with the contractual provisions of a consumer credit contract [Civ. Code § 1799.101(a)(1)]. At or before the time the adverse information is provided to the consumer credit reporting agency, written notice of the delinquency must be provided to the cosignor [Civ. Code § 1799.101(b); see Civ. Code § 1799.101(a)(4) ("delinquency" defined)]. The notice need not be given, however, if the cosigner whose address, as shown in the creditor's records respecting the consumer credit contract, is the same as the primary obligor [Civ. Code § 1799.101(d)].

The statutory notice is also required before a creditor may give a debt collector any information regarding the cosigner's obligation on a consumer credit contract [Civ. Code § 1799.101(c)].

The required cosignor notice describes, recites, or otherwise refers to the delinquency, but no particular form or language for the notice is otherwise prescribed [see Civ. Code §§ 1799.101(a)(5), (f)]. The notice requirements are satisfied by mailing a copy of the required notice to the cosigner at the cosigner's address, as shown in the creditor's records respecting the consumer credit contract. If more than one cosigner resides at the address shown in the creditor's records, however, a notice addressed to any cosigner at that address is deemed notice to all the cosigners residing at that address [Civ. Code § 1799.101(e)].

If a delinquency or delinquencies have been reported to a consumer credit reporting agency and included in a cosigner's file maintained by theagency, and the delinquency is subsequently paid, the consumer credit reporting agency, within a reasonable time after the creditor has reported to the credit reporting agency that the delinquency or delinquencies have been cured, must indicate in the file that the payment was made [see Civ. Code § 1799.101(g)].

For discussion of the statutes governing consumer credit reporting generally, see Ch. 129, Consumer Credit Reporting .

[c] Damages Action for Failure to Give Delinquency Notice

A cosigner may bring an action to recover actual damages or $250, whichever is greater, as well as reasonable attorney's fees, when he or she suffers a loss as a result of a violation of Civ. Code § 1799.101, which mandates cosignor notice before a creditor on a consumer credit contract reports a cosignor's delinquency or provides information to a debt collector. A consumer credit reporting agency is also required to record payment of delinquencies in a cosignor's file [Civ. Code § 1799.102(a)].

The cosigner, not less than 30 days before bringing an action pursuant to Civ. Code § 1799.102(a), must notify the person alleged to have violated Civ. Code § 1799.101 of the cosigner's intention to bring an action. The notice must include a statement of the specific evidence that proves the loss suffered by the cosigner. If within 25 days after the date of receiving the notice, the person alleged to have violated Civ. Code § 1799.101 tenders to the cosigner an amount equal to the loss, or otherwise resolves the matter to the cosigner's satisfaction, the cosigner is barred from further recovery of that loss, including reasonable attorney's fees [Civ. Code § 1799.102(b)].

§ 127.24 False Advertising

It is unlawful for any person, firm, corporation, or association, or employee, with the intent directly or indirectly to dispose of real or personal property or to perform services, professional or otherwise, or anything of any nature whatsoever or to induce the public to enter into any obligation, to make or disseminate, or cause to be made or disseminated before the public in California, or to make or disseminate or cause to be made or disseminated from California before the public in any state, in any newspaper or other publication, or any advertising device, or by public outcry or proclamation, or in any other manner or means whatever, including over the Internet, any statement concerning the real or personal property or services, professional or otherwise, or concerning any circumstance or matter of fact connected with the proposed performance or disposition, which is untrue or misleading, and which is known, or which by the exercise of reasonable care should be known, to be untrue or misleading, or for any such person, firm, or corporation to so make or disseminate or cause to be so made or disseminated any such statement as part of a plan or scheme with the intent not to sell those personal property or services, professional or otherwise, so advertised at the price stated therein, or as so advertised [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500]. In addition, the Consumers Legal Remedies Act (Civ. Code § 1750 et seq.) makes it unlawful to advertise goods or services with the intent not to sell them as advertised, to advertise goods or services with the intent not to supply reasonably expectable demand, unless the advertisement discloses a limitation of quantity, to advertise furniture without clearly indicating that it is unassembled if that is the case, and to advertise the price of unassembled furniture without clearly indicating the assembled price of the furniture if the furniture is available assembled from the seller [Civ. Code § 1770(9)-(12)].

§ 127.26 Retailer's Duty to Deliver Merchandise Within Four-Hour Waiting Period

Whenever a contract is entered into between a consumer and a retailer with 25 or more employees relating to the sale of merchandise that is to be delivered by the retailer or the retailer's agent to the consumer at a later date, and the parties have agreed that the presence of the consumer is required at the time of delivery, the retailer and consumer must agree, either at the time of the sale or at a later date before the delivery date, on a four-hour time period within which any delivery will be made. Whenever a contract is entered into between a consumer and a retailer with 25 or more employees for service or repair of merchandise, whether or not the merchandise was sold by the retailer to the consumer, and the parties have agreed that the presence of the consumer is required at the time of service or repair, on receipt of a request for service or repair under the contract the retailer and consumer must agree, before the date of service or repair, on a four-hour period within which the service or repair will be commenced. Once a delivery, service, or repair time is established, the retailer or the retailer's agent must deliver the merchandise to the consumer, or commence service or repair of the merchandise, within that four-hour period [Civ. Code § 1722(a)(1)].

If the merchandise is not delivered within the specified four-hour period, except for delays caused by unforeseen or unavoidable occurrences beyond the control of the retailer, the consumer may bring an action in small claims court against the retailer for lost wages, expenses actually incurred, or other actual damages not exceeding a total of $600 [Civ. Code § 1722(a)(2)]. Any provision of a delivery, service, or repair contract in which the consumer or subscriber agrees to modify or waive any of the rights afforded by Civ. Code § 1722 is void as contrary to public policy [Civ. Code § 1722(d)].

No action will be valid if the consumer was not present at the time, within the specified period, when the retailer or the retailer's agent attempted to make the delivery or made a diligent attempt to notify the consumer, by telephone or in person, of its inability to do so because of unforeseen or unavoidable occurrences beyond its control. If notification is by telephone, the retailer or the retailer's agent must leave a telephone number for a return telephone call by the consumer to the retailer or its agent, to enable the consumer to arrange a new two-hour period for delivery, service, or repair with the retailer or the retailer's agent [Civ. Code § 1722(a)(3)]. Additionally, it is a defense to the action if a diligent attempt was made to notify the consumer of the delay caused by unforeseen or unavoidable occurrences beyond the control of the retailer or its agent, or the retailer or its agent was unable to notify the consumer of the delay because of the consumer's absence or unavailability during the four-hour period, and, in either instance, the retailer or its agent makes the delivery within two hours of a newly agreed upon time or the consumer unreasonably declines to arrange a new delivery time [Civ. Code § 1722(a)(5)].

Logs and other business records maintained by the retailer or its agent in the ordinary course of business are prima facie evidence of the time period specified for the delivery and of the time when the merchandise was delivered, or of a diligent attempt by the retailer or its agent to notify the consumer of a delay caused by unforeseen or unavoidable occurrences [Civ. Code § 1722(a)(4)].

Similar procedures and rights exist for a subscriber who calls a cable television company or a utility for a service connection or repair for which the presence of the subscriber is required. [see Civ. Code § 1722(b) (cable television), (c) (utilities)]. For more detailed discussion of a cable television or utility subscriber's right to have a service connection or repair for which his or her presence is required made within a previously specified four-hour time period, see Ch. 484, Radio and Television , and Ch. 545, Telephone and Telegraph Communication , respectively [see also Ch. 277, Gas and Electricity , Ch. 511, Sanitation and Sewerage Districts , and Ch. 575, Waters].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

13-127 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 127.27

§ 127.27 Nonstatutory Relief

[1] In General

Counsel should be aware that in referring to the specific remedies or provisions for relief from a violation of a statute governing consumer protection, there may be other remedies not specifically provided for in the statute.

[2] Rescission

Counsel should consider whether the consumer may rescind the particular contract in question. For a discussion of and forms relating to rescission, see Ch. 490, Rescission and Restitution .

[3] Tort in Essence

A tort in essence is the breach of a nonconsensual duty owed another. Violation of a statutory duty to another may therefore be a tort and violation of a statute embodying a public policy is generally actionable even though no specific civil remedy is provided in the statute itself. Any injured member of the public for whose benefit the statute was enacted may bring the action [Laczko v. Jules Meyers, Inc. (1969) 276 Cal. App. 2d 293, 295, 80 Cal. Rptr. 798] . The tort-in-essence theory is important because many statutes enacted for the benefit of consumers do not provide for a private cause of action. Counsel should be aware of this theory when a statute declares a public policy but provides for only an administrative or a criminal remedy.

[4] Punitive Damages

In an action for the breach of an obligation not arising from contract, when the defendant has been guilty of oppression, fraud, or malice, the plaintiff, in addition to the actual damages, may recover damages for the sake of example and by way of punishing the defendant [Civ. Code § 3294(a)].

For further discussion of punitive damages, see Ch. 177, Damages .

[5] Attorney's Fees in Action on Contract

In any action on a contract, when the contract specifically provides that attorney's fees and costs, which are incurred to enforce the provisions of the contract, must be awarded to one of the parties or the prevailing party, then the prevailing party on the contract, whether he or she is the party specified in the contract or not, is entitled to reasonable attorney's fees in addition to other costs [Civ. Code § 1717(a)].

Attorney's fees provided by Civ. Code § 1717 are not subject to waiver by the parties to any contract. Any provision in any such contract that provides for a waiver of attorney's fees is void [Civ. Code § 1717(a)].

Except in the case of a voluntary dismissal or dismissal pursuant to settlement, on notice and motion of a party, the court will determine who is the party prevailing on the contract, whether or not the suit proceeds to final judgment. The party prevailing on the contract is the party who recovered a greater relief in the action on the contract. The court may also determine that for purposes of this section there is no party prevailing on the contract [Civ. Code § 1717(b)(1)]. When an action has been voluntarily dismissed, or dismissed pursuant to settlement, there is no prevailing party [Civ. Code § 1717(b)(2); but see Jackson v. Homeowners Association Monte Vista Estates-East (2001) 93 Cal. App. 4th 773, 779-780, 782, 113 Cal. Rptr. 2d 363 (parties who agreed on record and in written settlement agreement that trial court would determine prevailing party in action and amount of attorney fee award before dismissal of action could and did waive provisions of Civ. Code § 1717(b)(2))]. Additionally, when the defendant alleges in the answer that he, she, or it has tendered to plaintiff the full amount to which plaintiff is entitled, and has deposited that amount in court, if the allegation is found to be true, defendant is deemed to be the party prevailing on the contract [Civ. Code § 1717(b)(2)]. When the deposit has been made pursuant to Civ. Code § 1717, the court, on the application of any party to the action, must order the deposit to be invested in an insured, interest-bearing account. Interest on the amount is required to be allocated to the parties in the same proportion as the original funds are allocated [Civ. Code § 1717(b)(2)].

Attorney's fees may be recovered by the prevailing party in certain contract actions based on a book account as defined in Code Civ. Proc. § 337a, entered into on or after January 1, 1987 [see Civ. Code § 1717.5; see also Civ. Code § 1717]. For further discussion, see Ch. 8, Accounts Stated and Open Accounts , and Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees , § 174.50 et seq.

§ 127.28 Credit Cards

[1] Governing Law

The issuance and use of credit cards and the rights and obligations between credit card issuers, retailers, and holders are governed by the Song-Beverly Credit Card Act of 1971 (Civ. Code § 1747 et seq.) [see Powers v. Pottery Barn, Inc. (2009) 177 Cal. App. 4th 1039, 1041, 99 Cal. Rptr. 3d 693 (Act is not preempted by CAN-SPAM Act of 2003, pursuant to 15 U.S.C. § 7707(b)(2); see Ch. 14, Advertising, § 14.15[3])]. Any waiver of the provisions of that law is contrary to public policy, and is void and unenforceable [Civ. Code § 1747.04].

Federal laws may also apply, such as the Truth in Lending Act [15 U.S.C. § 1601 et seq.; see § 127.28[4]] and the Fair Credit Billing Act [15 U.S.C. § 1666 et seq.; see § 127.28[19]]. (For a list of various provisions of federal law that apply to credit cards, and similar credit devices, but which are not discussed in this chapter, see § 127.51.) Federal laws governing national banks may preempt state law with respect to credit cards issued by national banks [see, e.g., Rose v. Chase Bank USA (9th Cir. 2008) 513 F.3d 1032, 1038 (National Bank Act [12 U.S.C. § 21 et seq.] preempts disclosure requirements of Civ. Code 1748.9 [see § 127.28[4][d]], insofar as those requirements apply to national banks); Miller v. Bank of Am. (2009) 170 Cal. App. 4th 980, 982, 88 Cal. Rptr. 3d 723 (Civ. Code §§ 9 and 11, stating that whenever legal or contractual act is required to be performed on holiday, it may be performed on next business day without any adverse consequence, do not apply to national bank's credit card payment due dates because those state laws are preempted by federal law stating that national bank may make non real estate loans without regard to state law limitations concerning terms of credit, including schedule for repayment of principal and interest and payments due [12 C.F.R. § 7.4008(d)(2)(iv)])].

[2] Definitions

[a] Credit Card

"Credit card" means any card, plate, coupon book, or other credit device existing for the purpose of being used from time to time on presentation to obtain money, property, labor, or services on credit. "Credit card" does not mean any of the following [Civ. Code § 1747.02(a)]:

- Any single credit device used to obtain telephone property, labor, or services in any transactions under public utility tariffs.

- Any device that may be used to obtain credit pursuant to an electronic fund transfer if such credit is obtained under an agreement between a consumer and a financial institution to extend credit when the consumer's asset account is overdrawn or to maintain a specific minimum balance in the consumer's asset account.

- Any key or card key used at an automated dispensing outlet to obtain or purchase petroleum products, as defined by Bus. & Prof. Code § 13401(c), which will be used primarily for business other than personal or family purposes.

For the definition of "accepted credit card," see Civ. Code § 1747.02(b).

Any rights or responsibilities created by Civ. Code § 1747 et seq. that are based on the use of a credit card have no effect with respect to those transactions that constitute electronic funds transfers as defined by Federal Reserve Board Regulation E (see 12 C.F.R. pt. 205) or to those transactions involving the use of any key or card key used at an automated dispensing outlet to obtain or purchase petroleum products, as defined by Bus. & Prof. Code § 13401(c), which will be used primarily for business rather than personal or family purposes [Civ. Code § 1747.03(a)]. Despite Civ. Code § 1747.03(a), no person, company, or corporation issued a key or card key as described in Civ. Code § 1747.03(a) is liable for losses incurred due to the loss or theft of the key or card key after receipt by the issuer of written or oral notification of the loss or theft [Civ. Code § 1747.03(b)].

[b] Card Issuer

"Card issuer" means any person, or an agent of any person, who issues a credit card [Civ. Code § 1747.02(c)].

[c] Cardholder

"Cardholder" means a natural person to whom a credit card is issued for consumer credit purposes, or a natural person who has agreed with the card issuer to pay consumer credit obligations arising from the issuance of a credit card to another natural person. For purposes of Civ. Code §§ 1747.05, 1747.10, and 1747.20, the term includes any person to whom a credit card is issued for any purpose, including business, commercial, or agricultural use, or a person who has agreed with the card issuer to pay obligations arising from the issuance of such a credit card to another person [Civ. Code § 1747.02(d)].

[d] Retailer

"Retailer" means every person other than a card issuer who furnishes money, goods, services, or anything else of value on presentation of a credit card by a cardholder. Retailer does not mean the state, a county, city, city and county, or any other public agency [Civ. Code § 1747.02(e)].

[e] Billing Error

A "billing error" means an error by omission or commission in (1) posting any debit or credit or (2) computation or similar error of an accounting nature contained in a statement given to the cardholder by the card issuer. A "billing error" does not mean any dispute with respect to value, quality, or quantity of goods, services, or other benefit obtained through use of a credit card [Civ. Code § 1747.02(j)]. The Song-Beverly Credit Card Act, however, does provide for defenses by a cardholder in the case of such a dispute [see § 127.28[11]]. For the definitions of "unauthorized use," "response," and "adequate notice," see Civ. Code § 1747.02(f), (h), and (k), respectively.

[3] When Credit Card May Be Issued

No credit card may be issued except (1) in response to an oral or written request or application for the card, or (2) as a renewal of, or in substitution for, an accepted credit card, whether such card is issued by the same or a successor card issuer [Civ. Code § 1747.05(a); see 15 U.S.C. § 1642 (issuance of credit card)]. A credit card issued in substitution for an accepted credit card may be issued only if the card issuer provides an activation process whereby the cardholder is required to contact the card issuer to activate the credit card before the first use of the credit card in a credit transaction [Civ. Code § 1747.05(b)].

The above provisions do not prohibit the completion of an overdraft protection advance or recurring charge transaction that a cardholder has previously authorized on an accepted credit card [Civ. Code § 1747.05(c)].

On and after February 22, 2010 [see Pub. L. No. 111-24, § 3 (May 29, 2009) (effective date)]:

- No credit card may be issued to, nor may an open end consumer credit plan be established by or on behalf of, a consumer younger than 21 years old unless the consumer has submitted a written application to the card issuer that meets specified requirements [15 U.S.C. § 1637(c)(8)].

- No card issuer or creditor may offer to a student at an institution of higher education [see 15 U.S.C. § 1650(a)(3) (definition)] any tangible item to induce such student to apply for or participate in an open end consumer credit plan offered by the card issuer or creditor, if the offer is made on the campus of an institution of higher education, near the campus of an institution of higher education, as determined by regulation, or at an event sponsored by or related to an institution of higher education [15 U.S.C. § 1650(f)(2)].

- An institution of higher education must publicly disclose any contract or other agreement made with a card issuer or creditor for the purpose of marketing a credit card [15 U.S.C. § 1650(f)(1)].

It is the sense of Congress that each institution of higher education should consider adopting the following policies relating to credit cards: that any card issuer that markets a credit card on the campus of the institution must notify the institution of the location at which the marketing will take place, that the number of locations on the campus of the institution at which the marketing of credit cards takes place will be limited, and that credit card and debt education and counseling sessions will be offered as a regular part of any orientation program for new students of the institution [15 U.S.C. § 1650(f)(3)].

[4] Required Disclosures

[a] Credit Card Applications and Solicitations

The federal Truth in Lending Act (15 U.S.C. § 1601 et seq.) provisions governing open-end credit plans contain special disclosure requirements applicable to certain direct mail, telephone, and other applications and solicitations to open credit card accounts [see 15 U.S.C. § 1637(c)]. The federal requirements preempt any state disclosure requirements governing credit card applications and solicitations but the state may establish laws relating to enforcement of the federal requirements [15 U.S.C. § 1610(e)]. The federal disclosure requirements do not apply to home equity plans accessible by a credit card, overdraft lines of credit, or lines of credit accessed by check guarantee or automatic teller cards [12 C.F.R. § 226.5a(a)(3)]. For discussion of federal disclosure requirements related to credit card solicitations and agreements, see California Legal Forms, Ch. 46, Credit Card and Other Open-End Credit Transactions (Matthew Bender).

A card issuer who mails an application to open a credit card account under an open-end consumer credit plan or a solicitation to open such an account without requiring an application must disclose the following [see 15 U.S.C. § 1637(c)(1)]:

- The annual percentage rate.
- Any annual fee, membership fee, or other periodic fee for the issuance or availability of the card, and any minimum finance charge.
- The extent of the grace period, if any, during which no finance charge is imposed.
- The balance calculation method.
- Any cash-advance fee, late fee, or over-the-limit fee.

The information must be provided in the form of a table in accordance with 12 C.F.R. § 226.5a.

If the solicitation is made by telephone, the card issuer must orally disclose the same information [15 U.S.C. § 1637(c)(2)(A)]. However, if there is no fee to issue the card or no fee is imposed until the consumer uses the card, and the card issuer clearly informs the consumer that he or she is not obligated to accept the card, then the information may be disclosed in writing within 30 days after the consumer requests the card, but in no event later than the date of delivery of the card [15 U.S.C. § 1637(c)(2)(B)].

Any application or solicitation that is made available to the public or contained in catalogs, magazines, or other publications must also disclose the required information, including a conspicuous disclosure of the date the information was printed [15 U.S.C. § 1637(c)(3)(A)]. A general application or solicitation is sufficient if it contains no specific term and does contain a general, conspicuous statement that there are costs associated with the use of credit cards, together with a toll-free telephone number and address at which the consumer may contact the creditor to obtain the required information [15 U.S.C. § 1637(c)(3)(C)].

Applications and solicitations concerning charge cards, which are credit cards on accounts for which no periodic rate is used to compute a finance charge, must disclose similar information, including any transaction charge imposed for use of the card and a statement that charges are due and payable on receipt of a periodic statement [see 15 U.S.C. § 1637(c)(4); 12 C.F.R. § 226.2(a) (charge card defined)].

On and after January 29, 2010 [see Pub. L. No. 109-8, §§ 1303(b)(2), 1304(b)(2) (Apr. 20, 2005)]:

- Additional notice regarding "introductory rates" is required in an application or solicitation to open a credit card account, and all promotional materials accompanying such an application or solicitation for which a disclosure is required, if the application or solicitation offers a temporary annual percentage rate of interest [15 U.S.C. § 1637(c)(6); see 12 C.F.R. § 226.16(g) (implementing regulations, published Jan. 29, 2009, effective July 1, 2010)].
- Specific disclosures are required with respect to any solicitation to open a credit card account under an open end consumer credit plan using the Internet or any other interactive computer service [15 U.S.C. § 1637(c)(7); see 12 C.F.R. § 226.5a(a)(2)(vi)(B) (implementing regulations, published Jan. 29, 2009, effective July 1, 2010)].

A card issuer that violates the disclosure requirements in 15 U.S.C. § 1637(c) is liable only to a cardholder who uses the card [15 U.S.C. § 1640(a), 4th sentence]. For a discussion of individual actions brought under 15 U.S.C. § 1640(a), see Ch. 501, Sales: Retail Installment Sales .

[b] Renewal Disclosures

If the card issuer has changed or amended any term of the account since the last renewal, and that term has not been previously disclosed, or if the card issuer imposes any annual fee, other periodic fee, or membership fee for the issuance or availability of a credit or charge card, then the card issuer must send to the consumer, at least 30 days before the scheduled renewal date of the card, a clear and conspicuous disclosure of the following [15 U.S.C. § 1637(d)(l)]:

- When the account will expire if not renewed;
- The information required for direct mail applications and solicitations or for charge card applications and solicitations under 15 U.S.C. § 1637(c)(1)(A) and (4)(A); and
- The method by which the consumer may terminate the account.

A card issuer that violates this disclosure requirement in 15 U.S.C. § 1637(d) is liable only to a cardholder who uses the card or who pays such a fee [15 U.S.C. § 1640(a), 4th sentence]. For a discussion of individual actions brought under 15 U.S.C. § 1640(a), see Ch. 501, Sales: Retail Installment Sales .

[c] Change in Credit Card Account Insurance

If a credit card issuer plans to change the provider of insurance for repayment of all or part of the outstanding balance of an open-end credit card account, the issuer must send each insured consumer written notice of the proposed change not less than 30 days prior to the change, including the following items, to the extent applicable [15 U.S.C. § 1637(g)(2), (3)]:

- Any increase in the rate that will result from the change.
- Any substantial decrease in coverage or service which will result from the change.
- A statement that the cardholder may discontinue the insurance.

Once the change occurs, the card issuer must provide the cardholder with a written notice no later than 30 days after the change, including the following items, to the extent applicable [15 U.S.C. § 1637(g)(2), (3)]:

- The name and address of the new insurance provider.
- A copy of the new policy or group certificate containing the basic terms of the insurance, including the rate to be charged.
- A statement that the cardholder may discontinue the insurance.

These requirements do not supersede any provision of California law that applies to the regulation of insurance [15 U.S.C. § 1637(g)(4)].

[d] Extension of Credit by Preprinted Check

When credit is extended to a card holder through use of a preprinted check or draft, the credit card issuer must disclose on the front of an attachment affixed to the check or draft, in clear and conspicuous language, the following information [Civ. Code § 1748.9 (application to transactions on and after July 1, 2000)]:

- This statement: "Use of the attached check or draft will constitute a charge against your credit account."

- The annual percentage rate and computation of finance charges, as required by 12 C.F.R. § 226.16, associated with the use of the attached check or draft.

- Whether the finance charges are triggered immediately on the use of the check or draft.

Any waiver of the above requirements is contrary to public policy, and is void and unenforceable [Civ. Code § 1748.14].

The Ninth Circuit holds that the National Bank Act [12 U.S.C. § 21 et seq.] preempts the disclosure requirements of Civ. Code 1748.9, insofar as those requirements apply to national banks [Rose v. Chase Bank USA (9th Cir. 2008) 513 F.3d 1032, 1038].

[5] Liability for Unauthorized Use of Credit Card

A cardholder is liable for the unauthorized use of a credit card only if all of the following conditions are met [Civ. Code § 1747.10; see 15 U.S.C. § 1643 (liability of credit cardholder)]:

- The card is an accepted credit card.

- The liability is not in excess of $50.

- The card issuer gives adequate notice to the cardholder of the potential liability.

- The card issuer has provided the cardholder with a description of the means by which the card issuer may be notified of loss or theft of the card.

- The unauthorized use occurs before the card issuer has been notified that an unauthorized use of the credit card has occurred or may occur as the result of loss, theft, or otherwise.

- The card issuer has provided a method whereby the user of the card can be identified as the person authorized to use it.

If 10 or more credit cards are issued by one card issuer for use by the employees of an organization, Civ. Code § 1747.10 does not prohibit the card issuer and the organization from agreeing to liability for unauthorized use without regard to Civ. Code § 1747.10. However, liability for unauthorized use may be imposed on an employee of the organization, by either the card issuer or the organization, only in accordance with Civ. Code § 1747.10 [Civ. Code § 1747.20].

"Unauthorized use" means the use of a credit card by a person, other than the cardholder, who does not have actual, implied, or apparent authority for such use and from which the cardholder receives no benefit. Unauthorized use does not include the use of a credit card by a person who has been given authority by the cardholder to use the credit card. Any attempted termination by the cardholder of such a person's authority is ineffective as against the card issuer until such time as the cardholder complies with any procedures that may be required by the card issuer to terminate that authority. However, following the card issuer's receipt of oral or written notice from a cardholder indicating that it wishes to terminate the authority of a previously authorized user of a credit card, the card issuer is required to follow its usual procedures for precluding any further use of a credit card by an unauthorized person [Civ. Code § 1747.02(f)].

When a credit card issuer mails an offer or solicitation for a credit card to a person who then submits a completed application that lists an address different from that on the mailed offer or solicitation, the applicant is not liable for an unauthorized use of the credit card issued in response if the issuer does not verify the change of address before issuing the credit card, unless the issuer proves that the person actually incurred the charge on the card issued [Civ. Code § 1747.06(b)].

Liability for losses due to loss or theft of a key or card key, as defined in Civ. Code § 1747.02(a)(3), are similarly limited [Civ. Code § 1747.03(b); see discussion under [2][a], above].

[6] Billing Errors

[a] Correction of Billing Errors by Card Issuer

Every card issuer must correct any billing error made by the issuer within two complete billing cycles, but in no event later than 90 days, after receiving an inquiry [Civ. Code § 1747.50(a)]. An inquiry is a writing that is posted by mail to the address of the card issuer to which payments are normally tendered, unless another address is specifically indicated on the statement for that purpose, that is received by the card issuer no later than 60 days after the card issuer transmitted the first periodic statement that reflects the alleged billing error, and that does the following [Civ. Code § 1747.02(g)]:

- Sets forth sufficient information to enable the card issuer to identify the cardholder and the account.
- Sufficiently identifies the billing error.
- Sets forth information providing the basis for the cardholder's belief that a billing error exists.

Although a letter correctly addressed and properly mailed is presumed to have been received in the ordinary course of mail [Evid. Code § 641], it is nevertheless suggested that the inquiry be sent by registered mail, return receipt requested. Any issuer who fails to correct a billing error made by the issuer within the period prescribed by Civ. Code § 1747.50(a) is neither entitled to the amount by which the outstanding balance of the cardholder's account is greater than the correct balance, nor any interest, finance charges, service charges, or other charges on the obligation giving rise to the error [Civ. Code § 1747.50(b)]. Any cardholder who is injured by a willful violation of Civ. Code § 1747.50 may bring an action for the recovery of damages. Judgment may be entered for three times the amount at which actual damages are assessed. The cardholder is entitled to recover reasonable attorney's fees and costs incurred in the action [Civ. Code § 1747.50(c)].

[b] Failure of Card Issuer to Give Timely Response

If a card issuer fails to give a timely response (a response mailed within two complete billing cycles, but in no event later than 90 days, after the card issuer receives an inquiry [Civ. Code § 1747.02(i)]) concerning any debit or credit applicable to an obligation incurred through the use of a credit card, he or she is not entitled to interest, finance charges, service charges, or any other charges thereon, from the date of mailing of the inquiry to the date of mailing of the response [Civ. Code § 1747.40].

[c] Correction of Billing Errors by Retailer

Every retailer must correct any billing error made by the retailer within 60 days from the date on which an inquiry (a writing posted by mail to the address of the retailer, unless another address is specifically indicated by the retailer for the purpose of mailing inquiries with respect to billing errors, then to that address [Civ. Code § 1747.60(d)]) concerning the error was mailed [Civ. Code § 1747.60(a)]. Any retailer who fails to do so is liable to the cardholder in the amount by which the outstanding balance of the cardholder's account is greater than the correct balance, and any interest, finance charges, service charges, or other charges on the obligation giving rise to the billing error [Civ. Code § 1747.60(b)].

Any cardholder who is injured by a willful violation of Civ. Code § 1747.60 may bring an action for the recovery of damages and may recover three times the amount at which actual damages are assessed in addition to reasonable attorney's fees and costs incurred in the action [Civ. Code § 1747.60(c)].

[d] Liability for Billing Errors

A card issuer is not liable for a billing error made by a retailer and a retailer is not liable for a billing error made by a card issuer [Civ. Code § 1747.65].

[7] Selling Through Another Merchant's Credit Card Account

In some cases, it is unlawful for a merchant who wishes to sell goods or services by credit card to process credit card charges through another merchant's credit cardaccount. It is a misdemeanor for any person to process a charge through a retailer's account, or for a retailer to permit charges to be processed, if that retailer did not furnish or agree to furnish the goods or services that are the subject of the charge [see Civ. Code § 1748.7(a), (b), (e)]. The prohibition does not apply to specified persons and institutions, including persons who process less than $500 of charges a year, persons who furnish goods or services on the business premises of a general merchandise retailer, and franchisors and franchisees [Civ. Code § 1748.7(c)]. Any person damaged by a violation of this prohibition may bring a civil cause of action for damages, equitable relief, and reasonable attorney's fees and costs [Civ. Code § 1748.7(d)].

[8] Untrue or Unfavorable Credit Information

No card issuer may knowingly give any untrue credit information to any other person concerning a cardholder [Civ. Code § 1747.70(a)] or after receiving an inquiry from a cardholder regarding a billing error and prior to satisfying the requirements of Civ. Code § 1747.50 (correction of billing errors by issuer), communicate unfavorable credit information concerning the cardholder to any person solely because of the cardholder's failure to pay the amount by which the outstanding balance of the cardholder's account is greater than the correct balance [Civ. Code § 1747.70(b)]. Furthermore, no card issuer may cancel or refuse to renew a credit card for the reason that the cardholder has obtained relief under Civ. Code § 1747.50 (correction of billing errors by issuer) [Civ. Code § 1747.70(c)].

Any cardholder who is injured by a willful violation of these provisions may bring an action for the recovery of damages and may recover three times the amount at which actual damages are assessed in addition to reasonable attorney's fees and costs incurred in the action [Civ. Code § 1747.70(d)].

[9] Discrimination in Issuance of Credit Card Prohibited

[a] Improper Refusal to Issue Card

No card issuer may refuse to issue a credit card to any person solely because of any characteristic listed or defined in Civ. Code § 51(b) or (e); that is, sex, race, color, religion, ancestry, national origin, disability, medical condition, marital status, or sexual orientation (including a perception that a person has, or is associated with, someone who has or is perceived to have any particular characteristic or characteristics within the listed categories) [Civ. Code § 1747.80(a)].

Any card issuer who willfully violates Civ. Code § 1747.80 is liable for each and every such offense for the actual damages, plus an additional $250, suffered by any person denied a credit card solely for the reasons set forth in this provision, and, in addition, that person may petition the court to order the card issuer to issue him or her a credit card on the terms, conditions, and standards that the card issuer normally utilizes in granting credit to other individuals [Civ. Code § 1747.80(b)].

[b] Name on Card of Married Woman

If a card issuer has determined in the normal course of business that it will issue a card to a married woman, the card is to be issued bearing either the maiden name or married name of the woman, as the woman may direct. Card issuers may require that a married woman requesting a card in her maiden name open a new account in that name [Civ. Code § 1747.81].

[10] Notice of Cancellation of Credit Card

Unless requested by the cardholder, no card issuer may cancel a credit card without having first given the cardholder 30 days' written notice of its intention to do so, unless the cardholder is, or within the last 90 days has been, in default of payment or otherwise in violation of any provision of the agreement between the card issuer and the cardholder governing the cardholder's use of the credit card, or unless the card issuer has evidence or reasonable belief that the cardholder is unable or unwilling to repay obligations incurred under the agreement or that an unauthorized use of the card may be made [Civ. Code § 1747.85]. This provision does not prohibit the card issuer from placing the account of a cardholder on inactive status if the cardholder has not used the card for a period in excess of 18 months or from requiring that the cardholder, on subsequent reuse of a card, to provide to the card issuer updated information to enable the card issuer to verify the cardholder's current creditworthiness [Civ. Code § 1747.85].

Under the Truth in Lending Act, on and after January 29, 2009 [Pub. L. No. 109-8, § 1306(b)(2) (Apr. 20, 2005)], the creditor of any account under an open end consumer credit plan may not terminate the account before its expiration date solely because the consumer has not incurred finance charges on the account. However, the creditor may terminate the account for inactivity in three or more consecutive months [15 U.S.C. § 1637(h); see 12 C.F.R. § 226.11(b) (implementing regulations, published Jan. 29, 2009, effective July 1, 2010)].

[11] Defenses of Cardholder Against Issuer

[a] Defenses Cardholder Has as Buyer

Subject to the limitations contained in Civ. Code § 1747.90(b) [discussed in [b], below], a card issuer who has issued a credit card to a cardholder under an open-end consumer credit plan is subject to all claims and defenses, other than tort claims, arising out of any transaction in which the credit card is used as a method of payment or extension of credit if the following conditions are met [Civ. Code § 1747.90(a)(1)]:

- The cardholder has made a good-faith attempt to obtain satisfactory resolution of a disagreement or problem relative to the transaction from the person honoring the credit card.

- The amount of the initial transaction exceeds $50.

- The place where the initial transaction occurred was in California, or, if not within California, then within 100 miles from the cardholder's current designated address in California.

The dollar amount and territorial limitations on a cardholder's right to assert claims and defenses against a card issuer are not applicable to any transaction in which the person honoring the credit card satisfies any of the following requirements [Civ. Code § 1747.90(a)(2)]:

- He or she is the same person as the card issuer.

- He or she is controlled by the card issuer.

- He or she is under direct or indirect common control with the card issuer.

- He or she is a franchised dealer in the card issuer's products or services.

- He or she has obtained the order for the transaction through a mail solicitation made by, or participated in by, the card issuer in which the cardholder is solicited to enter into the transaction by using the credit card issued by the card issuer.

[b] Limitations on Cardholder's Claims or Defenses

The amount of claims or defenses asserted by the cardholder cannot exceed the amount of credit outstanding with respect to such transaction at the time the cardholder first notifies the card issuer or the person honoring the credit card of the claim or defense. For the purpose of determining the amount of credit outstanding, payments and credits to the cardholder's account are deemed to have been applied, in the order indicated, to the payment of the following [Civ. Code § 1747.90(b)]:

- Late charges in the order of their entry to the account.

- Finance charges in the order of their entry to the account.

- Debits to the account other than those set forth above, in the order in which the debit entry to the account was made.

Civ. Code § 1747.90 does not apply to use of a check guarantee card or a debit card in connection with an overdraft credit plan, or to a check guarantee card used in connection with cash advance checks [Civ. Code § 1747.90(c)].

[12] Disclosures Required for Secured Credit Card

A secured credit card is any credit card issued under an agreement or other instrument that pledges, hypothecates, or places a lien on real property or money or other personal property to secure the cardholder's obligations to the card issuer [Civ. Code § 1747.02(l)]. In addition to any other disclosures required by law, a card issuer of a secured credit card, in every advertisement or solicitation to prospective cardholders, must expressly identify the credit instrument offered as a "secured credit card" and prominently disclose that credit extended under the secured credit card is secured. The card issuer must also describe the security by item or type [Civ. Code § 1747.94(a)].

Any deed of trust executed in connection with a secured credit card must contain a statement that it is security for a secured credit card obligation. However, the failure to include the statement will not invalidate the deed of trust [Civ. Code § 1747.94(b)].

The disclosure requirement for secured credit cards does not apply to (1) any credit card that is issued under an agreement or other instrument creating a purchase money security interest in property purchased with the credit card, but which does not pledge, hypothecate, or place a lien on other property of the cardholder or any co-obligor; or (2) loans or extensions of credit subject to the Federal Home Equity Loan Consumer Protection Act of 1988 (Pub. L. No. 100-709) [Civ. Code § 1747.94(c)].

Any violation of the disclosure provisions of Civ. Code § 1747.94 constitutes unfair competition within the meaning of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 [Civ. Code § 1747.94(d); see generally Ch. 565, Unfair Competition].

[13] Invalidity of Agreements to Prohibit Discounts for Cash Payment

Any provision in a contract between a card issuer and a retailer which has the effect of prohibiting the retailer from offering price discounts or from charging a different and lower price to customers who pay for goods or services by cash instead of by credit card is contrary to public policy and void [Civ. Code § 1748].

[14] Statement of Interest and Finance Charges to Cardholder

A cardholder may request, not more frequently than once a year, that the card issuer inform the cardholder of the total amount of finance charges assessed on the account during the preceding calendar year. The issuer must provide that information to the cardholder within 30 days of receiving the request, without charge. The issuer must provide the information in writing if the request was made in writing. However, if the issuer is required to furnish the cardholder with a periodic billing or periodic statement of account or furnishes the billing or statement of account, the requested statement of finance charges may be furnished along with the periodic billing or periodic statement of account [Civ. Code § 1748.5(a)].

The above requirements do not apply to card issuers or cardholders who issue or use credit cards in connection with a retail installment account [Civ. Code § 1748.5(b); see Civ. Code § 1802.7 ("retail installment account" defined)].

[15] Notice of Cardholder's Right to Prohibit Disclosure of Marketing Information

[a] Notice and Exercise of Right

If the credit card issuer discloses marketing information concerning a cardholder to any person, the credit card issuer must provide a written notice to the cardholder that clearly and conspicuously describes the cardholder's right to prohibit the disclosure of marketing information concerning the cardholder that discloses the cardholder's identity [Civ. Code § 1748.12(b); see Civ. Code § 1748.12(a)(3) ("marketing information" defined)]. The notice must be in 10-point type and must advise the cardholder of his or her ability to respond either by completing a pre-printed form or using a toll-free number that the cardholder may call to exercise this right [Civ. Code § 1748.12(b)].

The cardholder's election to prohibit disclosure of marketing information will be effective only with respect to marketing information that is disclosed to any party beginning 30 days after the credit card issuer has received, at the designated address on the form containing the new credit card or on the preprinted form, or by telephone, the cardholder's election to prohibit disclosure. This does not apply to the disclosure of marketing information prior to the cardholder's notification to the credit card issuer of the cardholder's election [Civ. Code § 1748.12(b)].

[b] Satisfaction of Notice Requirements

The notice requirements noted in [a], above, will be satisfied by furnishing the notice to the cardholder [Civ. Code § 1748.12(c)]:

- At least 60 days prior to the initial disclosure of marketing information concerning the cardholder by the credit card issuer.

- For all new credit cards issued on or after April 1, 2002, on the form containing the new credit card when the credit card is delivered to the cardholder.

- At least once per calendar year, to every cardholder entitled to receive an annual statement of billings rights pursuant to federal Regulation Z [12 C.F.R. § 226.9].

If federal law requires disclosure to cardholders regarding the use of personal information, compliance with the federal requirements will be deemed to be compliance with Civ. Code § 1748.12 [Civ. Code § 1748.12(f)].

[c] Disclosures Exempt From Requirement

The disclosure requirements of Civ. Code § 1748.12 do not apply to any of the following communications of marketing information by a credit card issuer [Civ. Code § 1748.12(e)]:

- Communications to any party to, or merchant specified in, the credit card agreement, or any person whose name appears on the credit card or on whose behalf the credit card is issued.

- Communications to consumer credit reporting agencies [see Civ. Code § 1785.3(d) (definition)].

- Communications to a corporate subsidiary or affiliate of the card issuer.

- Communications to a third person that is responsible for conveying information from the card issuer to cardholders.

[d] Termination of Election to Exercise Right

A cardholder's election to exercise this right will terminate on the credit card issuer's receipt of a notice from the cardholder indicating that the election is no longer effective [Civ. Code § 1748.12(d)(2)].

[16] Invalidity of Surcharge for Use of Credit Card in Lieu of Cash

A retailer (other than certain utilities; see below) may not impose a surcharge on a consumer who elects, in any sales, service, or lease transaction, to use a credit card in lieu of cash, check, or similar means of payment. A retailer, however, may offer discounts to induce payment by cash, check, or other means not involving the use of a credit card if the discount is offered to all prospective buyers [Civ. Code § 1748.1(a); see Thrifty Oil Co. v. Superior Court (2001) 91 Cal. App. 4th 1070, 1076-1079, 111 Cal. Rptr. 2d 253 (retailer's evidence of two-tier pricing based on its costs, offered to all customers, supported motion for summary adjudication; facts established permissible offer of discount under Civ. Code § 1748.1(a) and pricing system consistent with legislative intent to encourage discounts under Civ. Code § 1748.1(e))]. A consumer is not deemed to have elected to use a credit card in lieu of another means of payment for purposes of Civ. Code § 1748.1 when the retailer accepts only credit cards in payment for consumer orders made over the telephone, and accepts only cash at the retailer's public store or other facility [Civ. Code § 1748.1(c)]. Charges for third-party credit card guarantee services, when added by the retailer to the cash price, are deemed surcharges for the purposes of Civ. Code § 1748.1 even if they are payable directly to the third party or are charged separately [Civ. Code § 1748.1(d)].

A retailer who willfully violates Civ. Code § 1748.1 and who fails to pay the amount of the surcharge to the cardholder within 30 days of the cardholder's written demand by certified mail is liable to the cardholder for three times the actual damages assessed and for costs and attorney's fees incurred in the action. A cause of action under Civ. Code § 1748.1 may be brought in small claims court or any other appropriate court [Civ. Code § 1748.1(b)].

Civ. Code § 1748.1(a)-(e) do not apply to charges for payment by credit card or debit card that are made by an electrical, gas, or water corporation and approved by the Public Utilities Commission [Civ. Code § 1748.1(f); see Pub. Util. Code § 755].

[17] Credit Card Transactions

[a] Prohibition Against Recording Personal Identification Information

Except as provided in Civ. Code § 1747.08(c) [see § 127.28[17][b]], no person, firm, partnership, association, or corporation that accepts credit cards for the transaction of business may do any of the following [Civ. Code §

1747.08(a)]:

- Request, or require the cardholder as a condition to accepting the credit card as payment in full or in part for goods or services, to write any personal identification information on the credit card transaction form or otherwise.

- Request, or require the cardholder as a condition to accepting the credit card as payment in full or in part for goods or services, to provide personal identification information, which the person, firm, partnership, association, or corporation accepting the credit card writes, causes to be written, or otherwise records on the credit card transaction form or otherwise.

- Use, in any credit card transaction, a credit card form that contains preprinted spaces specifically designated for filling in any personal identification information of the cardholder.

"Personal identification information" means information concerning the cardholder, other than information set forth on the credit card, and including, but not limited to, the cardholder's address and telephone number [Civ. Code § 1747.08(b)]. A cardholder's five-digit ZIP code is not personal identification information, and the statute does not prohibit asking for it [Party City Corp. v. Superior Court (2008) 169 Cal. App. 4th 497, 519-520, 86 Cal. Rptr. 3d 721].

In a case interpreting Civ. Code § 1747.08, the court determined that the word"request" (as added to the statute in 1991) prohibits a retailer from making a request for personal identification from the consumer if it immediately precedes a credit card transaction, even if the consumer's response is voluntary and made only for marketing purposes [Florez v. Linens'N Things, Inc. (2003) 108 Cal. App. 4th 447, 450-453, 133 Cal. Rptr. 2d 465 (allegation that store improperly requested customer's telephone number held sufficient to state cause of action for violation of Civ. Code § 1747.08)].

The prohibitions do not apply when a customer who bought merchandise using a credit card subsequently returns that merchandise and requests reversal of the credit card charge [Absher v. AutoZone, Inc. (2008) 164 Cal. App. 4th 332, 346, 78 Cal. Rptr. 3d 817].

No person, firm, partnership, association, corporation, or limited liability company that accepts credit cards in transacting business may print more than the last five digits of the credit card's account number or its expiration date on any electronically printed receipt [Civ. Code § 1747.09(a), (b)], whether the receipt is given to the cardholder [Civ. Code § 1747.09(a)(1)] or, starting January 1, 2009, the vendor retains the receipt and the cardholder either signed it or used a personal identification number to complete the transaction [Civ. Code § 1747.09(a)(2), (3), (d); see Civ. Code § 1747.09(c) (section does not apply to other documents used for internal administrative purposes)].

[b] Inapplicability to Cash Advances and Other Transactions

Civ. Code § 1747.08(a) [see § 127.28[17][a]] does not apply in the following instances [Civ. Code § 1747.08(c)]:

- When the credit card is being used as a deposit to secure payment in the event of default, loss, damage, or similar occurrence.

- Cash advance transactions.

- When the person or entity accepting the credit card is contractually obliged to provide personal information in order to complete the credit card transaction or is obliged to collect and record the personal identification information by federal law or regulation.

- When personal identification information is required for a special purpose incidental but related to the individual credit card transaction, including, but not limited to information relating to shipping, delivery, servicing, or installation of the purchased merchandise, or for special orders [see also Absher v. AutoZone, Inc. (2008) 164 Cal. App. 4th 332, 346, 78 Cal. Rptr. 3d 817 (prohibitions in Civ. Code § 1747.08(a) do not apply when customer who bought merchandise using a credit card returns that merchandise and requests reversal of the credit card charge)].

The statute also does not apply when merchandise is being returned to the merchant from whom it was bought and the merchant intends to post a credit to the buyer's credit card account. In that situation, a court of appeal has observed, there are substantial opportunities for fraud, and it behooves the merchant to identify the person who returns the merchandise, which subsequent examination may disclose to have been used, damaged, or even stolen. Therefore, and because Civ. Code § 1747.08(a) cannot reasonably be construed to apply to credit card transactions in the context of a person returning merchandise to the seller, a merchant may request or require personal identification information from the person returning the merchandise, and may use a preprinted form for the purpose [TJX Cos., Inc. v. Superior Court (2008) 163 Cal. App. 4th 80, 87-89, 77 Cal. Rptr. 3d 114].

In addition, Civ. Code § 1747.08 does not prohibit any person, firm, partnership, association, or corporation from requiring the cardholder, as a condition to accepting the credit card as payment in full or in part for goods or services, to provide reasonable forms of positive identification, which may include a driver's license or a California state identification card or, when one of these is not available, another form of photo identification, provided that none of the information is written or recorded on the credit transaction form or otherwise [Civ. Code § 1747.08(d)]. If the cardholder pays for a transaction with a credit card number and does not make the credit card available on request to verify the number, the cardholder's driver's license number may be recorded on the credit card transaction form or otherwise [Civ. Code § 1747.08(d)].

[c] Remedies for Wrongfully Recording Personal Information

Any person who violates Civ. Code § 1747.08 is subject to a civil penalty of up to $250 for the first violation and up to $1,000 for each subsequent violation, to be assessed and collected in a civil action brought by the person paying with a credit card, the Attorney General, or the district attorney or city attorney of the county or city in which the violation occurred. No civil penalty will be assessed for a violation of Civ. Code § 1747.08, however, if the defendant shows by a preponderance of the evidence that the violation was not intentional and resulted from a bona fide error made notwithstanding the defendant's maintenance of procedures reasonably adopted to avoid such an error. When collected, the civil penalty is payable, as appropriate, to the person paying with a credit card who brought the action, or to the general fund of whichever governmental entity brought the action to assess the civil penalty [Civ. Code § 1747.08(e)]. (Although Civ. Code § 1747.08(e) does not explicitly remove mistakes of law from the scope of the "bona fide error" defense--whereas some other statutes allowing the same defense do exclude mistakes of law--the defense probably does not cover a violation that arose from the defendant's mistaken interpretation of statutory requirements [*cf. Jerman v. Carlisle, McNellie, Rini, Kramer & Ulrich LPA (2010) -- U.S. --, 130 S. Ct. 1605, 176 L. Ed. 2d 519, 2010 U.S. LEXIS 3480, at *15-59 (such defense allowed by Fair Debt Collection Practices Act, 15 U.S.C. § 1692k(c), in same language as Civ. Code § 1747.08(e), did not cover debt-collecting attorney's mistake of law as to Act's requirements)].)

In addition, the Attorney General, or any district attorney or city attorney within his or her respective jurisdiction, may bring an action in the superior court in the name of the people of the State of California to enjoin a violation and, on notice to the defendant of not less than five days, to temporarily restrain and enjoin the violation. If it appears to the satisfaction of the court that the defendant has, in fact, violated Civ. Code § 1747.08(a), the court may issue an injunction restraining further violations, without requiring proof that any person has been damaged by the violation. In these proceedings, if the court finds that the defendant has violated Civ. Code § 1747.08(a), the court may direct the defendant to pay any or all costs incurred by the Attorney General, district attorney, or city attorney in seeking or obtaining injunctive relief pursuant to this subdivision [Civ. Code § 1747.08(f); see Ch. 303, Injunctions]. Actions for collection of civil penalties under Civ. Code § 1747.08(e) may be consolidated with actions for injunction relief under Civ. Code § 1747.08(f) [Civ. Code § 1747.08(g); see Ch. 125, Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions].

For a complaint for civil penalties for wrongfully requiring personal identificationinformation in a credit card transaction, see § 127.85.

[18] Payment by Negotiable Instrument

[a] Prohibition Against Requiring Credit Card

Unless permitted under Civ. Code § 1725(c), no person accepting a negotiable instrument, such as a check, as payment in full or in part for goods or services sold or leased at retail, may do any of the following [Civ. Code § 1725(a); see Civ. Code § 1725(b)(4) (defining "retail")]:

- Require the person paying with a negotiable instrument to provide a credit card as a condition of acceptance of the negotiable instrument, or record the number of the credit card.

- Require, as a condition of acceptance of the negotiable instrument, or cause the person paying with a negotiable instrument to sign a statement agreeing to allow his or her credit card to be charged to cover the negotiable instrument if returned as no good.

- Record a credit card number in connection with any part of the transaction described in Civ. Code § 1725(a).

- Contact a credit card issuer to determine if the amount of any credit available to the person paying with a negotiable instrument will cover the amount of the negotiable instrument.

[b] Inapplicability to Specified Transactions

Civ. Code § 1725 does not prohibit any person from requiring the production of reasonable forms of positive identification, other than a credit card, or, when one of these is not available, another form of photo identification, which may include a driver's licence or a California state identification card, as a condition of acceptance of a negotiable instrument [Civ. Code § 1725(c)(1)]. In addition, Civ. Code § 1725 does not prohibit any person from requesting but not requiring that a purchaser voluntarily display a credit card as an indicia of creditworthiness or financial responsibility, or as an additional identification, provided the only information concerning the credit card that is recorded is the type of credit card displayed, the issuer of the card, or the expiration date of the card [Civ. Code § 1725(c)(2)]. All retailers that request the display of a credit card pursuant to Civ. Code § 1725(c) must inform the customer by either of two methods (posting a notice to that effect in a conspicuous location, or training and requiring sales clerks to so inform check writing customers) that displaying the credit card is not a requirement for check writing [Civ. Code § 1725(c)(2)(A)-(B)].

Finally, Civ. Code § 1725 does not prohibit any person from doing the following [Civ. Code § 1725(c)(3)-(6)]:

- Requesting production of, or recording, a credit card number as a condition for cashing a check that is being used solely to receive cash back from the person.

- Requesting, receiving, or recording a credit card number in lieu of requiring a deposit to secure payment in event of default, loss, damage, or other occurrence.

- Requiring, verifying, and recording the purchaser's name, address, and telephone number.

- Requesting or recording a credit card number on a check used to make a payment on that credit card account.

Civ. Code § 1725 does not require acceptance of a negotiable instrument, whether or not a credit card is presented [Civ. Code § 1725(d)].

For purposes of Civ. Code § 1725, "negotiable instrument" has the meaning specified in Com. Code § 3104 [Civ. Code § 1725(b)(3); see also Ch. 385, Negotiable Instruments]. "Credit card" has the meaning specified in Civ. Code § 1747.02 (discussed in § 127.28[2][a]), and does not include a check guarantee card, as defined in Civ. Code § 1725(b)(1) [Civ. Code § 1725(b)(2)].

[c] Remedies for Wrongfully Requiring Credit Card

Any person who violates Civ. Code § 1725 is subject to a civil penalty of up to $250 for a first violation and up to $1,000 for a second or subsequent violation, to be assessed and collected in a civil action brought by the person paying with a negotiable instrument, the Attorney General, or the district attorney or city attorney of the county or city in which the violation occurred. No civil penalty can be assessed for a violation of Civ. Code § 1725, however, if the defendant shows by a preponderance of the evidence that the violation was not intentional and resulted from a bona fide error made notwithstanding the defendant's maintenance of procedures reasonably adopted to avoid such an error. When collected, the civil penalty is payable, as appropriate, to the person paying with a negotiable instrument or to the general fund of whatever governmental entity brought the action to assess the civil penalty [Civ. Code § 1725(e)]. (Although Civ. Code § 1725(e) does not explicitly remove mistakes of law from the scope of the "bona fide error" defense--whereas some other statutes allowing the same defense do exclude mistakes of law--the defense probably does not cover a violation that arose from the defendant's mistaken interpretation of statutory requirements [*cf. Jerman v. Carlisle, McNellie, Rini, Kramer & Ulrich LPA (2010) -- U.S. --, 130 S. Ct. 1605, 176 L. Ed. 2d 519, 2010 U.S. LEXIS 3480, at *15-59 (such defense allowed by Fair Debt Collection Practices Act, 15 U.S.C. § 1692k(c), in same language as Civ. Code § 1725(e), did not cover debt-collecting attorney's mistake of law as to Act's requirements)].)

In addition, the Attorney General, or any district attorney or city attorney within his or her respective jurisdiction, may bring an action in the superior court in the name of the people of the State of California to enjoin a violation and, on notice to the defendant of not less than five days, to temporarily restrain and enjoin the violation. If it appears to the satisfaction of the court that the defendant has, in fact, violated Civ. Code § 1725(a), the court may issue an injunction restraining further violations, without requiring proof that any person has been damaged by the violation. In these proceedings, if the court finds that the defendant has violated Civ. Code § 1725(a), the court may direct the defendant to pay any or all costs incurred by the Attorney General, district attorney, or city attorney in seeking or obtaining injunctive relief pursuant to this subdivision [Civ. Code § 1725(f); see Ch. 303, Injunctions]. Actions for collection of civil penalties under Civ. Code § 1725(e) may be consolidated with actions for injunction relief under Civ. Code § 1725(f) [Civ. Code § 1725(g); see Ch. 125, Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions].

For a complaint for civil penalties for wrongfully requiring personal identification information in a credit card transaction, see § 127.90.

[19] Federal Fair Credit Billing Act

[a] Provisions of Act

The federal Fair Credit Billing Act [15 U.S.C. § 1666 et seq.] contains provisions that govern the correction of billing errors [see 15 U.S.C. § 1666], the information contained in credit reports about consumers who dispute bills [see 15 U.S.C. § 1666a], and the timely mailing of statements when a grace period is allowed [15 U.S.C. § 1666b]. In addition, the act contains provisions concerning the prompt crediting of payments [see 15 U.S.C. § 1666c], the refunding or crediting of excess payments [see 15 U.S.C. § 1666d], and the notification of credit card issuers by sellers of the return of goods by obligors [see 15 U.S.C. § 1666e]. Provisions governing cash discounts for payments by cash, check, or similar means [see 15 U.S.C. § 1666f], tie-in services and the issuance of credit cards [see 15 U.S.C. § 1666g], and the offset of a cardholder's indebtedness by the card issuer with funds deposited with the issuer by the cardholder [see 15 U.S.C. § 1666h] are also contained in the act. Finally, the act delineates the claims and defenses a cardholder may assert against a card issuer [see 15 U.S.C. § 1666i]. For a discussion of credit cards and the federal Truth in Lending Act, see Ch. 501, Sales: Retail Installment Sales .

[b] Applicability of State Laws

The federal Fair Credit Billing Act does not annul, alter, affect, or exempt any person subject to the provisions of the act from complying with the laws of any state with respect to credit billing practices, except to the extent that those laws are inconsistent with any provision of the act, and then only to the extent of the inconsistency. A state law may not be determined to be inconsistent with any provisions of the act if that law gives greater protection to the consumer [15 U.S.C. 1666j].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

13-127 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 127.29

§ 127.29 Discrimination in Credit Transactions Based on Sex and Marital Status

[1] Governing Law

Discrimination in credit transactions on the basis of sex and marital status is regulated by Civ. Code § 1812.30 et seq.

[2] Definitions

[a] Credit

"Credit" is the obtainment of money, property, labor, or services on a deferred-payment basis [Civ. Code § 1812.30(g)].

[b] Earnings

"Earnings" include, but are not limited to, spousal and child support payments, pensions, social security, and disability or survivorship benefits. Spousal and child support payments are considered in the same manner as earnings from salary, wages, or other sources where the payments are received pursuant to a written agreement or court decree to the extent that the reliability of such payments is established. The factors which a creditor may consider in evaluating the reliability of such payments are the length of time payments have been received, the regularity of receipt, and whether full or partial payments have been made [Civ. Code § 1812.30(h)].

[3] Circumstances Under Which Denial of Credit Prohibited

No person, regardless of marital status, may be denied credit in his or her own name if the earnings and other property over which he or she has management and control are such that a person of the opposite sex managing and controlling the same amount of earnings and other property would receive credit [Civ. Code § 1812.30(a)].

No unmarried person may be denied credit if his or her earnings and other property are such that a married person managing and controlling the same amount of earnings and other property would receive credit [Civ. Code § 1812.30(c)].

[4] Circumstances Under Which Less Favorable Credit Terms Prohibited

No person, regardless of marital status, managing and controlling earnings and other property, may be offered credit on terms less favorable than those offered to a person of the opposite sex seeking the same type of credit and managing and controlling the same amount of earnings and other property [Civ. Code § 1812.30(b)].

No unmarried person may be offered credit on terms less favorable than those offered to a married person managing and controlling the same amount of earnings and other property [Civ. Code § 1812.30(d)].

[5] Credit Information Filed Under Names of Joint Credit Account Holders

A credit reporting agency which in its normal course of business either receives information on joint credit accounts identifying the persons responsible for such accounts or receives information which reflects the participation of both spouses, must: (1) at the time the information is received, file the information separately under the names of each person or spouse, or file the information in another manner that would enable either person or spouse to gain access automatically to the credit history without having in any way to list or refer to the name of the other person, and (2) provide access to all information about the account in the name of each person or spouse [Civ. Code § 1812.30(e)].

For all accounts established prior to January 1, 1977, a credit reporting agency must, at any time on the written or personal request of a person who is or has been married, verify the contractual liability, the liability by operation of law, or the authorized use by that person, of joint credit accounts appearing in the file of the person's spouse or former spouse, and, if applicable, file the information separately and thereafter continue to do so under the names of each person responsible for the joint account or in another manner that would enable either person responsible for the joint account to gain access automatically to the credit history without having in any way to list or refer to the name of the other person [Civ. Code § 1812.30(f)].

[6] Relevant Factors in Determining Whether to Extend Credit

Nothing in Civ. Code §§ 1812.30-1812.35 will be construed to prohibit a person from doing any of the following [Civ. Code § 1812.30(i)]:

- Utilizing an evaluation of the reliability of earnings provided that such an evaluation is applied to persons without regard to their sex or marital status.

- Inquiring into and utilizing an evaluation of the obligations for which community property is liable pursuant to the provisions of Fam. Code § 700 et seq. (obligations and property rights of husbands and wives) for the sole purpose of determining the creditor's rights and remedies with respect to the particular extension of credit, provided that it is done with respect to all applicants without regard to their sex.

- Utilizing any other relevant factors or methods in determining whether to extend credit to an applicant provided that such factors or methods are applicable to all applicants without regard to their sex or marital status. The fact that an applicant is of child-bearing age is not a relevant factor.

[7] Availability of Separate Accounts

Credit applications for obtaining money, goods, labor, or services must clearly specify that the applicant, if married, may apply for a separate account [Civ. Code § 1812.30(j)].

[8] Action for Damages

Any person who violates Civ. Code § 1812.30 is liable to the aggrieved person in an amount equal to the sum of any actual damages sustained by that person acting either in an individual capacity or as a representative of a class [Civ. Code § 1812.31(a)].

Any person who violates Civ. Code § 1812.30 is liable to the aggrieved person for punitive damages in an amount not greater than $10,000 as determined by the court, in addition to any actual damages. However, in pursuing the recovery of punitive damages under Civ. Code § 1812.31(b), the aggrieved person may proceed only in an individual capacity and not as a representative of a class [Civ. Code § 1812.31(b)].

Notwithstanding Civ. Code § 1812.31 (b), any person who violates Civ. Code § 1812.30 may be liable for punitive damages in the case of a class action in such an amount as the court may allow, except that as to each member of the class no minimum recovery is applicable, and the total recovery in such action may not exceed the lesser of $100,000 or one percent of the net worth of the creditor. In determining the amount of the award in any class action, the court must consider, among other relevant factors, the amount of any actual damages awarded, the frequency and persistence of violations, the resources of the creditor, the number of persons adversely affected, and the extent to which the creditor's violation was intentional [Civ. Code § 1812.31(c)]. For a discussion and forms relating to class actions, see Ch. 120, Class and Representative Actions .

[9] Injunctive Relief

Any person or organization that violates or proposes to violate Civ. Code §§ 1812.30-1812.35 may be enjoined by any court of competent jurisdiction. Actions for injunction may be prosecuted by the Attorney General or any district attorney, county counsel, city attorney, or city prosecutor in California in the name of the people of the State of California or by any person denied credit or offered credit in violation of Civ. Code § 1812.30 [Civ. Code § 1812.32].

[10] Costs of Action and Attorney's Fees

Any person denied credit or offered credit in violation of Civ. Code § 1812.31 or 1812.32 may petition the court for award of costs and reasonable attorney's fees which the court will award if the action is successful [Civ. Code § 1812.34].

[11] Statute of Limitations

Any action commenced pursuant to Civ. Code § 1812.31 must be commenced within two years from the date on which the person is denied credit or is offered credit in violation of Civ. Code § 1812.30 [Civ. Code § 1812.35].

[12] Federal Equal Credit Opportunity Act

The federal Equal Credit Opportunity Act [15 U.S.C. §§ 1691-1691f] is similar to Civ. Code §§ 1812.30-1812.35 which regulates discrimination in credit transactions in California, but the federal act sets forth more bases on which a creditor cannot discriminate. The federal law states that it is unlawful for any creditor to discriminate against any applicant, with respect to any aspect of a credit transaction: (1) on the basis of race, color, religion, national origin, sex or marital status, or age (provided the applicant has the capacity to contract); (2) because all or part of the applicant's income derives from a public assistance program; or (3) because the applicant has in good faith exercised any right under the act [15 U.S.C. § 1691(a)]. The federal act requires that an applicant be notified of a creditor's action on the credit application within 30 days after receipt of the application. Applicants against whom adverse action is taken are entitled to a statement of specific reasons for such action [15 U.S.C. § 1691(d)(1), (2), (3)].

Any creditor who fails to comply with the federal act is liable to the aggrieved applicant for any actual damages sustained by the applicant acting in an individual capacity or as a member of a class [15 U.S.C. § 1691(a)]. In addition to actual damages, a noncompliant creditor is also liable for punitive damages in an amount not greater than $10,000, except that in the case of a class action the total recovery may not exceed $500,000 or one percent of the net worth of the creditor [15 U.S.C. § 1691(b)]. Any action may be brought in the appropriate United States district court without regard to the amount in controversy, or in any other court or competent jurisdiction within two years from the date of the violation, but when a civil action is brought by the Attorney General orwhen an enforcement proceeding is brought by an administrative agency, the action may be brought within one year after the commencement of the proceeding or action [15 U.S.C. § 1691(f)].

§ 127.30 Creditor Remedies in Transactions Involving Credit Disability Insurance

[1] Governing Law

Civ. Code § 1812.400 et seq. imposes limitations on the remedies available to a creditor when the debtor in a credit transaction cannot meet his or her obligations because of a disability covered by a policy of credit disability insurance.

[2] Definitions

[a] Credit Disability Insurance

The term "credit disability insurance" means insurance of a debtor to provide indemnity for payments becoming due on a specific loan or other credit transaction while the debtor is disabled as defined in the policy [Civ. Code § 1812.401(a)].

[b] Creditor

The term "creditor" means the lender of money or vendor or lessor of goods, services, property, rights, or privileges, for which payment is arranged through a credit transaction, who has directly participated in, arranged, or received a commission or other compensation for the sale of credit disability insurance to the debtor, or any successor to the right, title, or interest of any such lender, vendor, or lessor, and an affiliate, associate, or subsidiary of any of them or any director, officer, or employee of any of them or any other person in any way associated with any of them [Civ. Code § 1812.401(b)].

[c] Creditor's Remedy

The term "creditor's remedy" means the imposition of any late charge or penalty, the acceleration of the maturity of all or any part of the indebtedness, the collection or assignment for collection of all or any part of the indebtedness, the commencement of any action or special proceeding, or the enforcement of any security interest in any manner including, but not limited to, repossession, foreclosure, or the exercise of a power of sale contained in a deed of trust or mortgage [Civ. Code § 1812.401(d)].

[d] Debtor

The term "debtor" means a borrower of money or a purchaser or lessee of goods, services, property, rights, or privileges for which payment is arranged through a credit transaction [Civ. Code § 1812.401(c)].

[e] Disability Claim Period

The term "disability claim period" or "claim period" means the period beginning on the due date of the first payment not paid by the debtor for which the debtor claims disability coverage arising from a then-current disability and continuing until three calendar months thereafter or until the insurer pays or rejects the claim, whichever occurs sooner [Civ. Code § 1812.401(e)].

[f] Open-End Credit Plan

The term "open-end credit plan" means credit extended by a creditor under a plan in which the creditor reasonably contemplates repeated transactions, the creditor may impose a finance charge from time to time on an outstanding unpaid balance, and the amount of credit that may be extended to the debtor during the term of the plan, up to any limit set by the creditor, is generally made available to the extent that any outstanding balance is repaid [Civ. Code § 1812.405].

[g] Notice

"Notice" to a creditor means written notice deposited in the United States mail postage prepaid, addressed to the creditor at the location where payments on the loan or credit transaction are normally required to be sent by the debtor. A creditor may elect to require that written notice be sent to a different location or may elect to accept telephonic notice to a telephone number specified by the creditor. In either case, in lieu of notice being sent to the location where payments are regularly required to be sent, that location or telephone number must be clearly and conspicuously disclosed as the proper place to direct any notice to the creditor relating to any claim of disability, on each monthly billing or on each payment coupon, or (if payments are automatically deducted from an account of the debtor) on the annual statement of loan activity [Civ. Code § 1812.401(f)].

[3] Legislative Findings

The Legislature has declared that it is unfair for a creditor who has directly participated in, arranged, or received a commission or other compensation for the sale of credit disability insurance to the debtor, or that creditor's successor in interest, to invoke a creditor's remedy because of a debtor's nonpayment of any sum that has become due during a period of disability until a reasonable time has passed for the disability insurance claim to be filed, verified, and processed [Civ. Code § 1812.400; see McManis v. San Diego Postal Credit Union (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 547, 557-558, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 617] .

[4] Applicability

[a] Transactions Covered

The provisions of Civ. Code §§ 1812.400 et seq. apply to the nonpayment of any sum that became due on or after April 1, 1984, and for which the debtor claims disability coverage [Civ. Code § 1812.407].

[b] Limitations

Civ. Code § 1812.400 et seq. apply only if the creditor, the predecessor to the right, title, or interest of the creditor, or the representative of either of them directly arranges or participates in the sale or receives a commission or other compensation for the sale of credit disability insurance to the debtor [Civ. Code § 1812.404; see discussion under [2][b], above]. These provisions do not apply to credit disability insurance covering a key person, who the creditor and debtor or debtors agree must be involved in the operation of a business to assure its success, when the creditor requires the coverage as a condition of making a loan of at least $25,000 to be used in the operation of a business in which the key person is employed or has an ownership interest [Civ. Code § 1812.406].

Civ. Code § 1812.400 et seq. do not apply to a loan or credit transaction (including an open line of credit) of more than 10 years' duration that is secured by a mortgage or deed of trust unless (1) the principal purpose of the loan is the construction (other than initial construction), rehabilitation, or improvement of real property consisting of four or fewer residential units, and (2) a document in existence at the time the loan or extension of credit was made would indicate that purpose [Civ. Code § 1812.406(b)]. The exclusion provided for in Civ. Code § 1812.406(b) does not apply to debtors who were entitled to receive initial disclosure from the creditor pursuant to Civ. Code § 1812.402(f) between January 1, 1984 and September 17, 1984 (the effective date of Civ. Code § 1812.406(b)), unless the debtor receives notice that the remedies provided by Civ. Code § 1812.400 et seq. are revoked, the debtor is given the opportunity to cancel the insurance, no claim has been made, and no notice of disability has been given, as provided in Civ. Code § 1812.401. If such a debtor does not cancel the insurance after receipt of the notice of revocation, Civ. Code § 1812.406(b) will apply on payment by the debtor of the next installment of premium [Civ. Code § 1812.406(c)].

[5] Disclosure Requirements

[a] Creditors

At the time the insurance is sold, the creditor must disclose to the debtor the obligations of the creditor and the debtor imposed by Civ. Code § 1812.402 in writing in at least 10-point type, in substantially the form set out in Civ. Code § 1812.402(f)(1)[Civ. Code § 1812.402(f)]. No specific consequences are prescribed for a failure to do so beyond the general provision authorizing a cause of action for a violation of Civ. Code § 1812.400 et seq. [Civ. Code § 1812.402(i); see discussion under [8], below].

When a creditor receives notice of the debtor's claim of disability, the creditor must inform the debtor in writing of the name, address, and telephone number of the insurer or its designated representative from whom the debtor may obtain claim forms. The successor in interest of the original creditor need not do so, however, if the successor in interest (1) is not related by common ownership and control to the original creditor, and (2) has no information regarding the name, address, and telephone number of the insurer or its designated representative [Civ. Code § 1812.402(b)].

[b] Insurers

An insurer or its designated representative must send necessary claim forms to a debtor when the former receives notice of the debtor's disability claim [Civ. Code § 1812.402(b)]. When an insurer sends claim forms to the debtor, the insurer must also include a written notice disclosing the obligations of the creditor and the debtor imposed by Civ. Code § 1812.402 in at least 10-point type, in substantially the form set out in Civ. Code § 1812.402(f)(2) [Civ. Code § 1812.402(f)]. No specific consequences are prescribed for a failure to do so beyond the general provision authorizing a cause of action for a violation of Civ. Code § 1812.400 et seq. [Civ. Code § 1812.402(I); see discussion under [8], below].

The debtor must submit the claim to the insurer or its designated representative and must notify the creditor that a claim has been submitted [Civ. Code § 1812.402(b); see Civ. Code § 1812.401(f) (notice requirements)].

[6] Limitations on Creditors' Remedies

[a] Generally

A creditor cannot invoke any creditor's remedy against a debtor because of the debtor's nonpayment of any sum that becomes due during any disability claim period, and for which credit disability insurance coverage is provided, subject to the provisions of Civ. Code § 1812.400 et seq. [Civ. Code § 1812.402(a); see discussion under [9], below]. If the insurer pays the claim within the disability claim period, the creditor must treat each payment made by the insurer as though it were timely made by the debtor. If the insurer rejects the claim, or accepts the claim as a partial disability resulting in a payment of less than the full amount that would be paid for the total disability, within the disability claim period, the debtor must begiven the opportunity to pay the amount that became due during the disability claim period, minus any partial payment made by the insurer, without being subject to any creditor's remedy except the imposition of late charges, for 35 days following the date that the insurer sends notice of the rejection of the claim or acceptance of the claim as a partial disability. If the payment is not made within 35 days, the creditor may then invoke any creditor's remedy [Civ. Code § 1812.402(e)].

[b] Exception for Sums Due Before Disability

A creditor is not prohibited from invoking any creditor's remedy during or after the disability claim period for the debtor's nonpayment of any sum due before the claim period, whether or not the nonpayment is related to the claimed disability, or for the debtor's nonpayment of any interest, finance charge, or late charge accruing during the claim period on any sum due before the claim period [Civ. Code § 1812.402(c)].

[c] Exception for Foreclosure by Senior Lienholder

A creditor may also foreclose a lien on property to protect his or her security interest if a senior lienholder on that property (1) has initiated the foreclosure of its lien; (2) is not prohibited from continuing the foreclosure by any law or order of court; or (3) will not otherwise suspend or delay its foreclosure proceeding until after the disability claim period [Civ. Code § 1812.402(d)]. The disjunctive nature of this provision makes it appear that the existence of any of the alternatives will be sufficient to allow a creditor to foreclose a lien, although each alternative seems to assume that a proceeding to foreclose the lien has been initiated by the senior lienholder. Clarification of this apparent ambiguity awaits judicial interpretation or legislative amendment.

[d] Exception for Open-End Credit Plans

A creditor may also invoke any creditor's remedy as a result of a debtor's nonpayment when due of any amount obtained under an open-end credit plan after the debtor has given notice of a disability claim, unless the nonpayment is related to a covered disability, then affecting the debtor, that is other than the disability previously claimed. Termination of the open-end credit plan by the creditor because the debtor does not meet the creditor's customary credit standards at the time the debtor notifies the creditor of the disability claim is not a creditor's remedy for the purposes of Civ. Code § 1812.400 et seq. [Civ. Code § 1812.405; for the definition of an open-end credit plan, see [2][f], above].

[e] Exception for Debtor's Failure to Submit Forms to Insurer

A creditor may also invoke any creditor's remedy 15 days after receiving notice that the insurer has ceased making payments on a credit disability insurance claim because of the debtor's failure to submit timely any forms required by the insurer for recertification of a temporary disability [Civ. Code § 1812.403].

[f] Effect of Creditor's Lack of Knowledge of Disability Claim

If a creditor sends a notice of delinquency to a debtor who has not made a payment, and thereafter invokes a creditor's remedy because of the nonpayment without knowledge of the debtor's claim of disability coverage, and the provisions of Civ. Code § 1812.400 et seq. would otherwise apply, on receipt of notice of the debtor's claim the creditor must not invoke any further creditor's remedy during the claim period and the period provided by Civ. Code § 1812.402(e) [Civ. Code § 1812.402(g)(1); see discussion under [2][e], above]. The creditor must also rescind every creditor's remedy that has been invoked relating to the delinquency for which coverage is claimed, except that the creditor is not obligated to restore property that has been sold in a bona fide lawful sale to any person not related by common ownership or control to the creditor [Civ. Code § 1812.402(g)(2)]. The debtor is liable for costs and expenses actually incurred in connection with the invocation or rescission of any creditor's remedy [Civ. Code § 1812.402(g)(3)]. If the creditor complies with the requirements of Civ. Code § 1812.402(g)(1) and (2), the creditor will not be in violation of the provisions of Civ. Code § 1812.400 et seq., and no liability under Civ. Code § 1812.402(I) will result [Civ. Code § 1812.402(g)(4); see discussion under [8], below].

[7] Bona Fide Purchasers Protected After Creditor's Violation

Civ. Code § 1812.400 et seq. will not affect or defeat an interest in the debtor's property acquired, after the creditor invokes a remedy in violation of Civ. Code § 1812.400 et seq., by a bona fide purchaser or encumbrancer for value and without notice of the facts that constitute the violation [Civ. Code § 1812.409].

[8] Action Authorized

A debtor may bring an action for damages, equitable relief, or other relief for any violation of Civ. Code § 1812.400 et seq. [Civ. Code § 1812.402(I); see 127.110].

Violations of these provisions can also affect other causes of action. For example, in a breach of contract action by a debtor against a credit union for wrongful repossession of a car while the debtor's credit disability insurance claim was pending, the debtor was allowed to assert Civ. Code § 1812.400 et seq. as an independent basis for reversing summary judgment in favor of the credit union, even though the debtor had never pled a separate cause of action under those sections. The court held that the act nevertheless was relevant because it showed that the credit union failedto satisfy its burden to negate the debtor's breach of contract theory. Under the express terms of the agreement between the debtor and the credit union, the credit union was entitled to repossess the vehicle if (1) the loan was in default, and (2) the repossession was "permitted by law." Under the facts, the repossession was not "permitted by law" because the credit union violated Civ. Code § 1812.401(d) [see [2][c], above] by moving for relief from a bankruptcy stay in a related proceeding initiated by the debtor, proffered no evidence that it made required disclosures under Civ. Code § 1812.402(f) [see [5][a], above], and produced no evidence showing that under Civ. Code § 1802.402(e) [see [6][a], above] it permitted the debtor 35 days to satisfy the outstanding debt once the insurer agreed to partially accept the claim [see McManis v. San Diego Postal Credit Union (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 547, 557-558, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 617] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

13-127 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 127.31

§ 127.31 Consumer Loans Secured by Real Property

[1] Governing Law

Consumer loans secured by real property are governed by Fin. Code § 4970 et seq.

[2] Definitions

[a] Annual Percentage Rate

The term "annual percentage rate" means the annual percentage rate for the loan calculated according to the provisions of the federal Truth in Lending Act [see 15 U.S.C. § 1601 et seq.] and the regulations adopted under that act by the Federal Reserve Board [Fin. Code § 4970(a)]. For discussion of the Act and Regulation Z (concerning formalities and disclosures under the Act), see Ch. 501, Sales: Retail Installment Sales .

[b] Consumer Loan

"Consumer loan" means a consumer credit transaction that is secured by real property located in California used, or intended to be used or occupied, as the principal dwelling of the consumer that is improved by a one-to-four residential unit. "Consumer loan" does not include a reverse mortgage, an open line of credit as defined in Regulation Z [see 12 C.F.R. § 226.1 et seq.], or a consumer credit transaction that is secured by rental property or second homes. "Consumer loan" does not include a bridge loan with a maturity of less than one year if the purpose of the loan is a bridge loan connected with the acquisition or construction of a dwelling intended to become the consumer's principal dwelling [Fin. Code § 4970(d)].

[c] Covered Loan

A "covered loan" is a consumer loan in which the original principal balance of the loan does not exceed the most current conforming loan limit for a single-family first mortgage loan established by the Federal National Mortgage Association in the case of a mortgage or deed of trust, and with respect to which one of the following conditions is met [Fin. Code § 4970(b)]:

- For a mortgage or deed of trust, the annual percentage rate at consummation of the transaction will exceed by more than 8 percentage points the yield on Treasury securities having comparable periods of maturity on the 15th day of the month immediately preceding the month in which the application for the extension of credit is received by the creditor.

- The total points and fees payable by the consumer at or before closing for a mortgage or deed of trust will exceed 6 percent of the total loan amount [see Wolski v. Fremont Inv. & Loan (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 347, 350, 25 Cal. Rptr. 3d 500 (transaction was not covered loan when total points and fees exceeded 6 percent only if yield-spread premium was included); see also [h], below].

[d] Licensed Person

"Licensed person" means any of the following [Fin. Code § 4970(g)]:

- A real estate broker licensed under the Real Estate Law [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 10000 et seq.].

- A commercial or industrial bank organized under the Banking Law [see Fin. Code § 99 et seq.].

- A savings association organized under the Savings Association Law [see Fin. Code § 5000 et seq.].

- A credit union organized under the California Credit Union Law [see Fin. Code § 14000 et seq.].

- A finance lender or broker licensed under the California Finance Lenders Law [see Fin. Code § 22000 et seq.].

- A residential mortgage lender licensed under the California Residential Mortgage Lending Act [see Fin. Code § 50000 et seq.].

A licensed person includes any person engaged in the practice of consumer lending, as defined in Fin. Code § 4970 et seq., for which a licenseis required under any other provision of law, but whose license is invalid, suspended or revoked, or where no license has been obtained [Fin. Code § 4970(g)].

Nothing in Fin. Code § 4970 et seq. prevents any enforcement by a governmental entity against any person who originates a loan and who is exempt or excluded from licensure by all of the licensing agencies, based on a violation of any provision of Fin. Code § 4970 et seq. In addition, nothing in Fin. Code § 4970 et seq. prevents the Department of Real Estate from enforcing Fin. Code § 4970 et seq. against a licensed salesperson employed by a licensed real estate broker as if that salesperson were a licensed person under Fin. Code § 4970 et seq. [Fin. Code § 4970(g)].

[e] Licensing Agency

"Licensing agency" means the Department of Real Estate for licensed real estate brokers, the Department of Corporations for licensed residential mortgage lenders and licensed finance lenders and brokers, and the Department of Financial Institutions for commercial and industrial banks and savings associations and credit unions organized in California [Fin. Code § 4970(f)].

[f] Original Principal Balance

"Original principal balance" means the total initial amount the consumer is obligated to repay on the loan [Fin. Code § 4970(e)].

[g] Originate

"Originate" means to arrange, negotiate, or make a consumer loan [Fin. Code § 4970(h)].

[h] Points and Fees

"Points and fees" includes the following:

- All items required to be disclosed as finance charges under 12 C.F.R. § 226.4(a) and (b), including the Official Staff Commentary, as amended from time to time, except interest [Fin. Code § 4970(c)(1)].

- All compensation and fees paid to mortgage brokers in connection with the loan transaction [Fin. Code § 4970(c)(2)].

- All items listed in 12 C.F.R. § 226.4(c)(7), only if the person originating the covered loan receives direct compensation in connection with the charge [Fin. Code § 4970(c)(3)].

A "yield spread premium" (YSP) paid in connection with a residential mortgage loan was held not to be included in the definition of points and fees payable by a borrower at or before closing under Fin. Code § 4970 [Wolski v. Fremont Investment & Loan (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 347, 350, 25 Cal.Rptr. 3d 500 (transaction did not violate predatory lending law because it was not "covered loan"; total points and fees exceeded six percent only if YSP was included)].

For discussion of the referenced federal regulations (concerning components of the finance charge under the federal Truth in Lending Act), see Ch. 501, Sales: Retail Installment Sales .

[i] Servicer

The term "servicer" has the same meaning provided in 12 U.S.C. § 2605(I)(2) (in the Real Estate Settlement Procedures Act of 1974) [Fin. Code § 4970(I)].

[3] Exemptions

Fin. Code § 4970 et seq. do not apply to persons chartered by Congress to engage in secondary mortgage market transactions [Fin. Code § 4979.8]. These provisions also do not impose liability on an assignee that is a holder in due course [Fin. Code § 4979.8].

[4] Prohibited Loan Provisions and Acts

[a] Prepayment Penalty

A covered loan may not include a prepayment fee or penalty after the first 36 months after the date of consummation of the loan [Fin. Code § 4973(a)(1)]. A covered loan may include a prepayment fee or penalty up to the first 36 months after the date of consummation of the loan if all of the following conditions are satisfied:

- The person who originates the covered loan has also offered the consumer a choice of another product without a prepayment fee or penalty [Fin. Code § 4973(a)(2)(A)].

- The person who originates the covered loan has disclosed in writing to the consumer at least three business days prior to loan consummation the terms of the prepayment fee or penalty to the consumer for accepting a covered loan with the prepayment penalty and the rates, points, and fees that would be available to the consumer for accepting a covered loan without a prepayment penalty [Fin. Code §

4973(a)(2)(B)].

- The person who originates the covered loan has limited the amount of the prepayment fee or penalty to an amount not to exceed the payment of six months advance interest, at the contract rate of interest then in effect, on the amount prepaid in any 12-month period in excess of 20 percent of the original principal amount [Fin. Code § 4973(a)(2)(C)].

- A covered loan will not impose the prepayment fee or penalty if the covered loan is accelerated as a result of default [Fin. Code § 4973(a)(2)(D)].

- The person who originates the covered loan will not finance a prepayment penalty through a new loan that is originated by the same person [Fin. Code § 4973(a)(2)(E)].

[b] Payment Schedule

A covered loan with a term of five years or less must not provide at origination for a payment schedule with regular periodic payments that,when aggregated, do not fully amortize the principal balance as of the maturity date of the loan [Fin. Code § 4973(b)(1)].

For a payment schedule that is adjusted to account for the seasonal or irregular income of the consumer, the total installments in any year must not exceed the amount of one year's worth of payments on the loan. This prohibition does not apply to a "bridge loan," which is a loan with a maturity of less than 18 months that only requires payments of interest until the time when the entire unpaid balance is due and payable [Fin. Code § 4973(b)(2)].

A covered loan must not contain a provision for negative amortization under which the payment schedule for regular monthly payments causes the principal balance to increase, unless the covered loan is a first mortgage and the licensed person discloses to the consumer that the loan contains a negative amortization provision that may add principal to the balance of the loan [Fin. Code § 4973(c)].

[c] Payments From Loan Proceeds

A covered loan must not include terms under which periodic payments required under the loan are consolidated and paid in advance from the loan proceeds [Fin. Code § 4973(d)].

A person who originates a covered loan must not pay a contractor under a home improvement contract from the proceeds of a covered loan other than by an instrument payable to the consumer or jointly to the consumer and the contractor or, at the election of the consumer, to a third-party escrow agent for the benefit of the contractor in accordance with terms and conditions established in a written escrow agreement signed by the consumer, the person who originates a covered loan, and the contractor prior to the disbursement of funds. No payments, other than progress payments for home improvement work that the consumer certifies is completed, may be made to an escrow account or jointly to the consumer and the contractor unless the person who originates the loan is presented with a signed and dated completion certificate by the consumer showing that the home improvement contract was completed to the satisfaction of the consumer [Fin. Code § 4973(g)].

[d] Interest Rate

A covered loan may not contain a provision that increases the interest rate as a result of a default. However, this does not apply to interest rate changes in a variable rate loan otherwise consistent with the provisions of the loan documents, provided the change in the interest rate is not triggered by the event of default or the acceleration for the indebtedness [Fin. Code § 4973(e)].

[e] Acceleration

A covered loan must not contain a call provision that permits the lender, in its sole discretion, to accelerate the indebtedness. This prohibition does not apply, however, if repayment of the loan has been accelerated in accordance with the terms of the loan documents as a result of the consumer's default, or pursuant to a due-on-sale provision, or due to fraud or material misrepresentation by a consumer in connection with the loan or the value of the security for the loan. A licensed person must not refinance or arrange for the refinancing of a consumer loan such that the new loan is a covered loan that is made for the purpose of refinancing, debt consolidation or cash out, that does not result in an identifiable benefit to the consumer, considering the consumer's stated purpose for seeking the loan, fees, interest rates, finance charges, and points [Fin. Code § 4973(I)].

[f] Points and Fees

A person who originates a covered loan must not make a covered loan that finances points and fees in excess of $1,000 or 6 percent of the original principal balance, exclusive of points and fees, whichever is greater [Fin. Code § 4979.6].

[g] Credit Insurance

After June 2002, a person who originates a consumer loan must not finance, directly or indirectly, into a consumer loan transaction or finance to the same borrower, within 30 days of a consumer loan transaction, any credit life, credit disability, credit property, or credit unemployment insurance premiums, or any debt cancellation or suspension agreement or contract fees, provided that insurance premiums, debt cancellation, or suspension fees computed and paid on a monthly basis will not be considered financed by the person originating the loan. Credit insurance does not include a contract issued by a government agency or private mortgage insurance company to insure the lender against loss caused by a mortgagor's default [Fin. Code § 4979.7].

[h] Default on Existing Loan

It is unlawful for a person who originates a covered loan to recommend or encourage a consumer to default on an existing consumer loan or other debt in connection with the solicitation or making of a covered loan that refinances all or any portion of the existing consumer loan or debt [Fin. Code § 4973(h)].

[i] Borrower's Risk Grade

A person who originates a covered loan must not steer, counsel, or direct any prospective consumer to accept a loan product with a risk grade lessfavorable than the risk grade that the consumer would qualify for based on that person's then current underwriting guidelines, prudently applied, considering the information available to that person, including the information provided by the consumer. A person will not be deemed to have violated Fin. Code § 4973 if the risk grade determination applied to a consumer is reasonably based on the person's underwriting guidelines if it is an appropriate risk grade category for which the consumer qualifies with the person [Fin. Code § 4973(m)(1)].

If a broker originates a covered loan, the broker must not steer, counsel, or direct any prospective consumer to accept a loan product at a higher cost than that for which the consumer could qualify based on the loan products offered by the persons with whom the broker regularly does business [Fin. Code § 4973(m)(2)].

[5] Duties of Person Originating Loan

[a] Assessment of Borrower's Ability to Repay

A person who originates covered loans may not make or arrange a covered loan unless, at the time the loan is consummated, the person reasonably believes the consumer, or consumers when considered collectively in the case of multiple consumers, will be able to make the scheduled payments to repay the obligation based upon a consideration of their current and expected income, current obligations, employment status, and other financial resources, other than the consumer's equity in the dwelling that secures repayment of the loan. In the case of a covered loan that is structured to increase to a specific designated rate, stated as a number or formula, at a specific predetermined date not exceeding 37 months from the date of application, this evaluation must be based upon the fully indexed rate of the loan calculated at the time of application. The consumer must be presumed to be able to make the scheduled payments to repay the obligation if, at the time the loan is consummated, the consumer's total monthly debts, including amounts owed under the loan, do not exceed 55 percent of the consumer's monthly gross income, as verified by the credit application, the consumer's financial statement, a credit report, financial information provided to the person originating the loan by or on behalf of the consumer, or any other reasonable means [Fin. Code § 4973(f)(1)].

No presumption of inability to make the scheduled payments to repay the obligation can arise solely from the fact that at the time the loan is consummated, the consumer's total monthly debts, including amounts owed under the loan, exceed 55 percent of the consumer's monthly gross income [Fin. Code § 4973(f)(2)].

In the case of a stated income loan, the reasonable belief requirement in Fin. Code § 4973(f)(1) applies. However, for stated income loans, that belief may be based on the income stated by the consumer, and other information in the possession of the person originating the loan after the solicitation of all information that the person customarily solicits in connection with loans of this type. A person must not knowingly or willfully originate a covered loan as a stated income loan with the intent, or effect, of evading the provisions of Fin. Code § 4973(f) [Fin. Code § 4973(f)(3)].

[b] Disclosure to Consumer

A covered loan may not be made unless the following disclosure, written in 12-point font or larger, has been provided to the consumer no later than three business days prior to signing of the loan documents of the transaction [Fin. Code § 4973(j)(1)]:

"CONSUMER CAUTION AND HOME OWNERSHIP COUNSELING NOTICE

"If you obtain this loan, the lender will have a mortgage on your home. You could lose your home, and any money you have put into it, if you do not meet your obligations under the loan.

"Mortgage loan rates and closing costs and fees vary based on many other factors, including your particular credit and financial circumstances, your earnings history, the loan-to-value requested, and the type of property that will secure your loan. Higher rates and fees may be justified depending on the individual circumstances of a particular consumer's application. You should shop around and compare loan rates and fees.

"This particular loan may have a higher rate and total points and fees than other mortgage loans and is, or may be, subject to the additional disclosure and substantive protections under Division 1.6 (commencing with Section 4970) of the Financial Code. You should consider consulting a qualified independent credit counselor or other experienced financial adviser regarding the rate, fees, and provisions of this mortgage loan before you proceed. For information on contacting a qualified credit counselor, ask your lender or call the United States Department of Housing and Urban Development's counseling hotline at 1-888-466-3487 or go to www.hud.gov/fha/sfh/hcc [Publisher's Note: Although the code section containing this disclosure language remains unchanged, the website referred to is now located at www.hud.gov/offices/hsg/sfh/hcc/hccprof14.cfm] for a list of counselors.

"You are not required to complete any loan agreement merely because you have received these disclosures or have signed a loan application.

"If you proceed with this mortgage loan, you should also remember that you may face serious financial risks if you use this loan to pay off credit card debts and other debts in connection with this transaction and then subsequently incur significant new credit card charges or other debts. If you continue to accumulate debt after this loan is closed and then experience financial difficulties, you could lose your home and any equity you have in it if you do not meet your mortgage loan obligations.

"Property taxes and homeowner's insurance are your responsibility. Not all lenders provide escrow services for these payments. You should ask your lender about these services.

"Your payments on existing debts contribute to your credit ratings. You should not accept any advice to ignore your regular payments to your existing creditors."

There is a rebuttable presumption that a licensed person has met the obligation to provide this disclosure if the consumer provides the licensed person with a signed acknowledgment of receipt of a copy of the disclosure notice [Fin. Code § 4973(j)(2)].

[c] Information to Employees

A person who originates covered loans must inform any employee, who originates covered loans on behalf of the person, of the administrative, civil, and criminal penalties for a violation of Fin. Code § 4970 et seq. [Fin. Code § 4978.6].

[d] Documentation to Consumer or Licensing Agency

On request, a person who originates a covered loan must provide the licensing agency or the consumer, at no cost, documentation regarding his or her loan that clearly demonstrates whether any loan is a covered loan. This documentation must include, but is not limited to, full disclosure of the original principal balance, the annual percentage rate, and the total points and fees, as defined in Fin. Code § 4971 [Fin. Code § 4979].

[6] Evasion or Avoidance

A person who originates a covered loan cannot avoid, and must not attempt to avoid, the application of Fin. Code § 4970 et seq. by doing either of the following:

- Structuring a loan transaction as an open-end credit plan for the purpose of evading the provisions of Fin. Code § 4970 et seq. when the loan would have been a covered loan if the loan had been structured as a closed-end loan [Fin. Code § 4973(n)(1)].

- Dividing any loan transaction into separate parts for the purpose of evading the provisions of Fin. Code § 4970 et seq. [Fin. Code § 4973(n)(2)].

A person who originates a covered loan must not act in any manner, whether specifically prohibited by Fin. Code § 4973 or of a different character, that constitutes fraud [Fin. Code § 4973(o)].

[7] Noncompliance

[a] Unintentional Errors

Any compliance failure that was not willful or intentional and resulted from a bona fide error, that occurred notwithstanding the maintenance of procedures reasonably adopted to avoid those errors, including, but not limited to, those involving clerical errors, computation errors, computer malfunction and programming errors, and printing errors must be corrected no later than 45 days after receipt of the complaint or discovery of the error. A person who originates a covered loan is not administratively, civilly, or criminally liable for a bona fide error that is duly corrected. An error in legal judgment is not a bona fide error [Fin. Code § 4974(a)].

[b] Automatic Licensing Law Violation

Any licensed person who violates any provision of Fin. Code §§ 4973, 4979.6, or 4979.7 is deemed to have violated that person's licensing law [Fin. Code § 4975(a)(1)]. After any action under Fin. Code § 4978.5 resulting in a conviction, the licensing agency may bring a proceeding to suspend the license of the licensed person for not less than six months and not more than three years [Fin. Code § 4975(a)(2)]. After any action under Fin. Code § 4978.5 resulting in a second or subsequent conviction, the licensing agency may bring a proceeding to permanently revoke the license of the licensed person or impose any lesser licensed sanction for at least three years [Fin. Code § 4975(b)].

A licensing agency may exercise any and all authority and powers available to it under any other provisions of law, to administer and enforce Fin. Code § 4970 et seq. A licensing agency may charge and collect reasonable costs for enforcing Fin. Code § 4970 et seq.; however, this does not authorize the imposition or collection of charges or fees that duplicate charges or fees authorized under any other provision of law [Fin. Code § 4975(c)]. Nothing in Fin. Code § 4975 impairs or impedes a licensing agency's authority under any other provision of law [Fin. Code § 4975(d)].

A licensing agency may exercise any and all authority and powers available to it under any other provisions of law, to administer and enforce Fin. Code § 4970 et seq., including, but not limited to, investigating and examining the licensed person's books and records, and charging and collecting the reasonable costs for these activities. The licensing agency may not charge a licensed person twice for the same service. Any civil, criminal, and administrative authority and remedies available to the licensing agency pursuant to its licensing law may be sought and employed in any combination deemed advisable by the licensing agency to enforce the provisions of Fin. Code § 4970 et seq. [Fin. Code § 4977(c)].

[c] Administrative Penalty, Forced Restitution, or Disgorgement

A licensing agency, after appropriate notice and opportunity for hearing, may levy, by order, administrative penalties against a person who violates any provision of Fin. Code § 4970 et seq. The administrative penalties may not be more than $2,500 for each violation. Except for licensing agencies exempt from the provisions of the Administrative Procedure Act, any hearing must be held in accordance with the Administrative Procedure Act [see Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.], and the licensing agency has all the powers granted under that act [Fin. Code § 4977(a)]. For discussion, see Ch. 473, Public Agency Adjudication .

If the licensing agency determines that it is in the public interest, the licensing agency may include, in any action for penalties authorized by Fin. Code § 4977(b), a claim for relief in addition to the penalties, including a claim for restitution or disgorgement, and the court has jurisdiction to award the additional relief [Fin. Code § 4977(d)].

[d] Civil Penalty

Any person who willfully and knowingly violates any provision of Fin. Code § 4970 et seq. is liable for a civil penalty of not more than $25,000 for each violation. This penalty must be assessed and recovered in a civil action brought in the name of the people of the State of California by the licensing agency in any court of competent jurisdiction [Fin. Code § 4977(b)].

Nothing in Fin. Code § 4977 impairs or impedes the Attorney General from representing a licensing agency in bringing an action to enforce Fin. Code § 4970 et seq. at the request and on behalf of the licensing agency [Fin. Code § 4977(e)].

In any action brought under Fin. Code § 4970 et seq. by the licensing agency, or the Attorney General acting at the request and at the behest of the licensing agency, in which a judgment against a person is rendered, the licensing agency or the Attorney General is entitled to recover costs which, in the discretion of the court, may include an amount representing reasonable attorney's fees and investigative expenses for services rendered for deposit in the appropriate fund of that licensing agency [Fin. Code § 4977(f)].

The amounts collected under Fin. Code § 4977(a) and (b) must be deposited in the appropriate fund of the licensing agency to be used by that licensing agency, subject to appropriation by the Legislature, for the purposes of education and enforcement in connection with abusive lending practices [Fin. Code § 4977(g)].

[e] Liability to Consumer for Damages

A person who fails to comply with Fin. Code § 4970 et seq. is liable to the consumer in an amount equal to any actual damages suffered by the consumer, plus attorney's fees and costs. For a willful and knowing violation of Fin. Code § 4970 et seq., the person is liable to the consumer in the amount of $15,000 or the consumers actual damages, whichever is greater, plus attorney's fees and costs [Fin. Code § 4978(a)]. The court may also award punitive damages to the consumer on a finding that such damages are warranted pursuant to Civ. Code § 3294 [Fin. Code § 4978(b)]. For discussion, see Ch. 177, Damages, § 177.40 et seq.

Nothing in Fin. Code § 4978 abrogates existing common law provisions prohibiting double recovery of damages [Fin. Code § 4978(c)].

[f] Knowledge of Broker's Violation

If a person who originates covered loans makes a loan with respect to which the person knew of and showed reckless disregard for a violation of Fin. Code § 4970 et seq. by a broker, the person and broker are jointly and severally liable for all damages awarded under Fin. Code § 4970 et seq. with respect to the broker's unlawful conduct. However, this provision does not impose or transfer liability for a breach of the broker's fiduciary duty [Fin. Code § 4974(b)].

[g] Voidability of Nonconforming Loan

A provision in a covered loan that violates Fin. Code § 4970 et seq. is unenforceable. A court in which any action is brought by, or on behalf of, an aggrieved consumer for relief may issue an order or injunction to reform the terms of the covered loan to conform to the provisions of Fin. Code § 4970 et seq. [Fin. Code § 4978(b)].

[8] Broker's Fiduciary Duty

A person who provides brokerage services to a borrower in a covered loan transaction by soliciting lenders or otherwise negotiating a consumer loan secured by real property, is the fiduciary of the consumer, and any violation of the person's fiduciary duties is a violation of Fin. Code § 4979.5. A broker who arranges a covered loan owes this fiduciary duty to the consumer regardless of who else the broker may be acting as an agent for in the course of the loan transaction [Fin. Code § 4979.5(a)].

Except for a broker or a person who provides brokerage services, no licensed person or subsequent assignee has administrative, civil, or criminal liability for a violation of Fin. Code § 4979.5 [Fin. Code § 4979.5(b)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

13-127 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 127.32

§ 127.32 Deferred Deposit Transactions (Payday Loans)

[1] Scope of Regulation

On and after December 31, 2004 [see Fin. Code § 23104 (operative date)], the California Deferred Deposit Transaction Law [Fin. Code § 23000 et seq.] governs financial service providers commonly known as payday lenders. Deferred deposit transactions (payday loans) occurring before December 31, 2004, are governed by Civ. Code § 1789.30 et seq. [see generally Stats. 2004, ch. 17; Stats. 2002, ch. 777], applicable to persons operating check-cashing businesses [for discussion of check-cashing businesses, see Ch. 95, Banks, Deposits, and Checks]. Licensed check cashers operating under the former law can obtain a license to engage in deferred deposit transactions on and after December 31, 2004 [see Fin. Code § 23100 et seq. (transition provisions and procedures)].

Payday lenders make small, short-term loans to individuals who receive regular paychecks. Instead of signing a promissory note, on receiving the loan amount, the borrower hands the lender a personal check covering the loan amount plus the lender's transaction fee--which together may not exceed $300, under California law--and the lender holds that check until an agreed due date, which may not be more than 31 days away, under California law [Fin. Code § 23035(a)]. The due date usually is the borrower's next payday, or the payday after next. On the due date, the lender may deposit the borrower's check, or present it to the borrower's bank for payment. When the lender operates a check-cashing business (which often is the case), if the borrower brings a paycheck to be cashed on the due date, the lender could retain the loan amount (plus a check-cashing fee) and hand over the remainder along with the borrower's personal check that covered the loan. (Pawnbrokers also provide a small-loan service; for discussion, see Ch. 568, Usury .)

A payday lender is specifically subject to the Fair Debt Collection Practices Act (Civ. Code § 1788 et seq.) [Fin. Code § 23036(g)] but is exempt under the usury law (Cal. Const., art. XV, § 1) [Fin. Code § 23106].

[2] Application of Law

The California Deferred Deposit Transaction Law applies to any person [see Fin. Code § 23001(e) (definition)] who offers, originates, or makes a deferred deposit transaction, who arranges a deferred deposit transaction for a deferred deposit originator, who acts as an agent for a deferred deposit originator, or who assists a deferred deposit originator in the origination of a deferred deposit transaction [Fin. Code § 23001(d)].

"Deferred deposit transaction" means a transaction whereby a person defers depositing a customer's personal check until a specific date, pursuant to a written agreement, for a fee or other charge, as provided in Fin. Code § 23035 [Fin. Code § 23001(a)]. "Deferred deposit originator" means a person who offers, originates, or makes a deferred deposit transaction [Fin. Code § 23001(f)].

The law does not apply to the following [Fin. Code § 23001(d)]:

- Any state or federally chartered bank, thrift, savings association, industrial loan company, or credit union.

- A retail seller engaged primarily in the business of selling consumer goods, including consumables, to retail buyers that cashes checks or issues money orders for a minimum fee not exceeding $2 as a service to its customers that is incidental to its main purpose or business.

- An employee regularly employed by a licensee at the licensee's place of business. An employee, when acting under the scope of the employee's employment, is exempt from any other law from which the employee's employer is exempt [Fin. Code § 23001(d)].

In any proceeding under the Deferred Deposit Transaction Law, the burden of proving an exemption or exception is on the person claiming it [Fin. Code § 23014].

[3] Administrative Regulation

The California Deferred Deposit Transaction Law is administered by the Department of Corporations [see Fin. Code §§ 23001(b), (c), 23015 et seq.]. The Department is required to maintain a toll-free telephone number for deferred deposit transaction customers to make complaints and express concerns regarding the product or a specific lender [Fin. Code § 23025].

Persons subject to the California Deferred Deposit Transaction Law [see [2], above] must be licensed by the Commissioner of Corporations [Fin. Code § 23005(a); see Fin. Code §§ 23005-23012 (licensing requirements)] and must maintain a $25,000 surety bond to be used for the recovery of expenses, fines, and fees, or for losses or damages incurred by consumers as the result of lender's noncompliance with the Deferred Deposit Transaction Law [Fin. Code § 23013(a)]. The license must be conspicuously posted in the place of business [Fin. Code § 23018(a)].

The lender must also post a complete, detailed, and unambiguous schedule of fees in a conspicuous location in the unobstructed view of the public within the licensed location. The information must be clear, legible, and in letters not less than one-inch in height [Fin. Code § 23019].

[4] Advertising Restrictions

The Deferred Deposit Transaction Law specifically prohibits payday lenders from making false, misleading, or deceptive statements, or omitting material information, in any form of advertisement with regard to business subject to the Deferred Deposit Transaction Law [Fin. Code § 23027(a)]. Any advertisements disseminated primarily in California for deferred deposit transactions must disclose that the lender is licensed by the Department of Corporations [Fin. Code § 23027(b)].

The Commissioner of Corporations may require that rates of charges or fees, if stated by the lender, be stated fully and clearly in the manner that the Commissioner deems necessary to give adequate information to, or to prevent misunderstanding by, prospective customers [Fin. Code § 23027(c)].

No advertising copy may be used after its use has been disapproved by the Commissioner and the lender is notified in writing of the disapproval [Fin. Code § 23027(d)]. The Commissioner may require lenders to maintain a file of all advertising copy for a period of 90 days from the date of its use. The file must be available to the Commissioner on request [Fin. Code § 23027(e)].

[5] Transaction Requirements and Limitations

[a] In General

A payday lender may defer the deposit of a customer's personal check for up to 31 days. The face amount of the check must not exceed $300. Each deferred deposit transaction must be made pursuant to a written agreement as described in Fin. Code § 23035(e) that has been signed by the customer and by the lender or an authorized representative of the lender [Fin. Code § 23035(a)].

A payday lender must not enter into an agreement for a deferred deposit transaction with a customer during the period of time that an earlier written agreement for a deferred deposit transaction for the same customer is in effect [Fin. Code § 23036(c)].

A customer who enters into a deferred deposit transaction and offers a personal check to a lender pursuant to an agreement is not subject to any criminal penalty for the failure to comply with the terms of that agreement [Fin. Code § 23035(b)]. No customer may be required to pay treble damages if this check does not clear [Fin. Code § 23035(c)(6)]. A payday lender who enters into a deferred deposit transaction agreement, or any assignee of that licensee, is not entitled to recover damages for that transaction in any action brought pursuant to, or governed by, Civ. Code § 1719 (liability, including treble damages, for passing a check on insufficient funds) [Fin. Code § 23036(d)].

[b] Notice to Customer

Before entering into a deferred deposit transaction, the lender must distribute to the customer a notice that must include, but need not be limited to, the following [Fin. Code § 23035(c)]:

- Information about charges for deferred deposit transactions;

- That if the customer's check is returned unpaid, the customer may be charged an additional fee of up to $15;

- That the customer cannot be prosecuted in a criminal action in conjunction with a deferred deposit transaction for a returned check or be threatened with prosecution;

- The toll-free telephone number of the Department of Corporations for receiving calls regarding customer complaints and concerns;

- That the lender may not accept any collateral in conjunction with a deferred deposit transaction; and

- That the check is being negotiated as part of a deferred deposit transaction made pursuant to Fin. Code § 23035 and is not subject to the provisions of Civ. Code § 1719 (liability for passing a check on insufficient funds).

The notice must be written and available in the same language principally used in any oral discussions or negotiations leading to execution of the deferred deposit agreement and must be in at least 10-point type [Fin. Code § 23035(f)].

The following notices must be clearly and conspicuously posted in the unobstructed view of the public in each location of a business providing deferred deposit transactions, in letters not less than a half inch in height [Fin. Code § 23035(d)]:

- The lender cannot use the criminal process against a consumer to collect any deferred deposit transaction.

- The schedule of all charges and fees to be charged on those deferred deposit transactions with an example of all charges and fees that would be charged on at least a $100 deferred deposit transaction and a $200 deferred deposit transaction, payable in 14 days and 30 days, respectively, giving the corresponding annual percentage rate.

The schedule may be provided in a chart as specified in Fin. Code § 23035(d).

[c] Written Agreement

An agreement to enter into a deferred deposit transaction must be in writing and must be provided by the lender to the customer. The written agreement must authorize the lender to defer deposit of the personal check, must be signed by the customer, and must include all of the following [Fin. Code § 23035(e)]:

- A full disclosure of the total amount of any fees charged for the deferred deposit transaction, expressed both in U.S. currency and as an APR as required under the federal Truth in Lending Act and its regulations.

- A clear description of the customer's payment obligations as required under the federal Truth in Lending Act and its regulations.

- The name, address, and telephone number of the lender.

- The customer's name and address.

- The date to which deposit of check has been deferred (due date).

- The payment plan, or extension, if applicable as allowed under Fin. Code § 23036(c).

- An itemization of the amount financed as required under the federal Truth in Lending Act and its regulations.

- Disclosure of any returned-check charges.

- That the customer cannot be prosecuted or threatened with prosecution to collect.

- That the lender cannot accept collateral in connection with the transaction.

- That the lender cannot make a deferred deposit transaction contingent on the purchase of another product or service.

- Signature space for the customer and signature of the lender or authorized representative of the lender and date of the transaction.

- Any other information that the Commissioner of Corporations may deem necessary by regulation.

The written agreement must be written in the same language principally used in any oral discussions or negotiations leading to execution of the deferred deposit agreement; must not be vague, unclear, or misleading and must be in at least 10-point type [Fin. Code § 23035(g)].

Under no circumstances may a deferred deposit transaction agreement include any of the following [Fin. Code § 23035(h)]:

- A hold harmless clause.
- A confession of judgment clause or power of attorney.
- Any assignment of or order for payment of wages or other compensation for services.
- Any acceleration provision.
- Any unconscionable provision.

[d] Fees

A fee for a deferred deposit transaction must not exceed 15 percent of the face amount of the check [Fin. Code § 23036(a); see Fin. Code § 23106 (exemption under usury law)]. A fee not to exceed $15 may be charged for the return of a dishonored check by a depositary institution in a deferred deposit transaction. A single returned-check fee is the exclusive charge for a dishonored check. No fee may be added for late payment [Fin. Code § 23036(e)]. No amount in excess of the authorized amount may be directly or indirectly charged by a payday lender pursuant to a deferred deposit transaction [Fin. Code § 23036(f)].

[e] Extension of Time for Repayment

A payday lender may allow an extension of time, or a payment plan, for repayment of an existing deferred deposit transaction but may not charge any additional fee or charge of any kind in conjunction with the extension or payment plan. A lender in compliance with that requirement is not in violation of Fin. Code § 23037(g) (which prohibits accepting more than one check for a single deferred deposit transaction; see [f], below) [Fin. Code § 23036(b)].

[f] Prohibited Acts

In no case may a payday lender do any of the following [Fin. Code § 23037]:

- Accept or use the same check for a subsequent transaction, or permit a customer to pay off all or a portion of one deferred deposit transaction with the proceeds of another.
- Accept any collateral for a deferred deposit transaction.
- Make any deferred deposit transaction contingent on the purchase of insurance or any other goods or services.
- Enter into a deferred deposit transaction with a person lacking the capacity to contract.

- Alter the date or any other information on a check.

- Engage in any unfair, unlawful, or deceptive conduct, or make any statement that is likely to mislead in connection with the business of deferred deposit transactions.

- Accept more than one check for a single deferred deposit transaction.

- Take any check, instrument, or form in which blanks are left to be filled in after execution.

In no case may a payday lender offer, arrange, act as an agent for, or assist a deferred deposit originator in any way in the making of a deferred deposit transaction unless the deferred deposit originator complies with all applicable federal and state laws and regulations, including the provisions of Fin. Code § 23000 et seq. [Fin. Code § 23037(i)]. However, this prohibition does not apply to the arranger, agent, or assistant to a state or federally chartered bank, thrift, savings association, or industrial loan company where the state or federally chartered bank, thrift, savings association, or industrial loan company meets all of the following requirements [Fin. Code § 23037(i)(1)]:

- It initially advances the loan proceeds to the customer.

- It does not sell, assign, or transfer a preponderant economic interest in the deferred deposit transaction to the arranger, agent, or assistant, or an affiliate or subsidiary of the state or federally chartered bank, thrift, savings association, or industrial loan company, unless selling, assigning, or transferring a preponderant economic interest is expressly permitted by the primary regulator of the state or federally chartered bank, thrift, savings association, or industrial loan company.

- It develops the deferred deposit transaction product or products on its own.

If a payday lender offers, arranges, acts as an agent for, or assists a state or federally chartered bank, thrift, savings association, or industrial loan company in any way in the making of a deferred deposit transaction andthe state or federally chartered bank, thrift, savings association, or industrial loan company meets the standards set forth above, the payday lender must comply with all other provisions in Fin. Code § 23000 et seq. to the extent they are not preempted by other state and federal laws [Fin. Code § 23037(i)(2)].

[6] Lender's Sale of Debt

If a payday lender sells or otherwise transfers a customer's debt, the lender must clearly disclose in a written agreement that any debt or checks held or transferred pursuant to a deferred deposit transaction made pursuant to Fin. Code § 23035 [see § 127.32[5][c]] are not subject to the provisions of Civ. Code § 1719 (liability, including treble damages, for passing a check on insufficient funds) and that no customer may be required to pay treble damages if the check or checks are dishonored [Fin. Code § 23035(i)].

[7] Enforcement and Remedies

[a] Administrative Remedies, Civil Penalties, and Criminal Liability

The Commissioner of Corporations has power to investigate and discipline payday lenders for violations of Fin. Code § 23000 et seq. [see Fin. Code § 23045 et seq.], and issue citations and cease and desist orders to payday lenders and unlicensed persons [Fin. Code §§ 23050, 23058]. The Commissioner also may bring actions for injunctive relief [Fin. Code § 23051(a)] and civil penalties [Fin. Code § 23051(c)], as well as for restitution, disgorgement, or damages on behalf of persons injured by the act or practice in question [Fin. Code § 23051(b)], in any combination [Fin. Code §

23051(d)]. Willful violation of Fin. Code § 23000 et seq., or any implementing rule or order, is also a criminal offense [see Fin. Code § 23065 (no person may be imprisoned for the violation of any rule or order unless he or she had knowledge of the rule or order)].

[b] Transaction Void If Excessive Fees Are Charged or Law Is Violated

If any amount other than, or in excess of, the charges or fees permitted by Fin. Code § 23000 et seq. is willfully charged, contracted for, or received, or if any provision of Fin. Code § 23000 et seq. is willfully violated in the making or collection of a deferred deposit transaction, the deferred deposit transaction contract is void, and no person has any right to collect or receive the principal amount provided in the deferred deposit transaction, any charges, or fees in connection with the transaction [Fin. Code § 23060].

If any amount other than, or in excess of, the charges permitted by Fin. Code § 23000 et seq. is charged, contracted for, or received in connection with a deferred deposit transaction, or if any provision of Fin. Code § 23000 et seq. is violated in the making or collection of a deferred deposit transaction, for any reason other than a willful act of the payday lender, the lender must forfeit all charges and fees on the deferred deposit transaction and may collect or receive only the principal amount of the transaction [Fin. Code §§ 23061(a), 23062(a)]. An exception is granted for errors in computation or unintentional statutory violations resulting from a bona fide error if the lender maintains procedures reasonably adapted to avoid such errors and notifies the customer of the error, within 60 days in the case of an error in computation, or 30 days in the case of any other inadvertent statutory violation, and makes whatever adjustments are necessary to correct it [Fin. Code §§ 23061(b), 23062(b)]. (Although Fin. Code §§ 23061(b) and 23062(b) do not explicitly remove mistakes of law from the scope of the "bona fide error" defense--whereas some other statutes allowing the same defense do exclude mistakes of law--the defense probably does not cover a violation that arose from the defendant's mistaken interpretation of statutory requirements [*cf. Jerman v. Carlisle, McNellie, Rini, Kramer & Ulrich LPA (2010) -- U.S. --, 130 S. Ct. 1605, 176 L. Ed. 2d 519, 2010 U.S. LEXIS 3480, at *15-59 (such defense allowed by Fair Debt Collection Practices Act, 15 U.S.C. § 1692k(c), in same language as Fin. Code §§ 23061(b) and 23062(b), did not cover debt-collecting attorney's mistake of law as to Act's requirements)].) In addition, no provision imposing liability under Fin. Code § 23000 et seq. may be applied to any act done or omitted in good faith in conformity with any written general rule, regulation, or specific ruling of the Commissioner of Corporations, notwithstanding that after the act or omission has occurred, the written general rule, regulation, or specific ruling is amended, rescinded, or determined by judicial or other authority to be invalid for any reason [Fin. Code § 23063].

[c] Action for Treble Damages, Injunction, and Other Relief

Any person who is injured by any violation of Fin. Code § 23000 et seq. may bring an action for the recovery of damages, an equity proceeding to restrain and enjoin those violations, or both. The amount awarded may be up to three times the damages actually incurred, but in no event less than the amount paid by the aggrieved consumer to a person subject to Fin. Code § 23064. If the plaintiff prevails, the plaintiff must be awarded reasonable attorney's fees and costs. If a court determines by clear and convincing evidence that a breach or violation was willful, the court, in its discretion, may award punitive damages in addition to the amounts set forth above. On application, the court may also grant any equitable relief that it deems proper, including, but not limited to, a claim for restitution and disgorgement [Fin. Code § 23064].

[d] Remedies Cumulative

The rights, remedies, and penalties established by Fin. Code § 23000 et seq. are cumulative to the rights, remedies, or penalties established under other laws. It is not necessary to exhaust administrative remedies in order to pursue the civil remedies provided for in Fin. Code § 23000 et seq. [Fin. Code § 23064.5; see Fin. Code § 23051(d)].

§ 127.33 Consumer Product Bought Through Website--Personal Jurisdiction of Seller

While it is possible that Internet activity alone could create the necessary minimum contacts to expose a nonresident defendant to personal jurisdiction in California courts, that issue must be determined by examining the level of interactivity and commercial nature of the exchange of information that occurs onthe defendant's website [Pavlovich v. Superior Court (2002) 29 Cal. 4th 262, 274, 127 Cal. Rptr. 2d 329, 58 P.3d 2 ; see Ch. 323, Jurisdiction: Personal Jurisdiction, Inconvenient Forum, and Appearances, § 323.14[4][b]]. A disgruntled California consumer will not necessarily be able to sue a nonresident seller in a California court. In one case, for instance, a Florida seller's website merely advertised a consumer product (a car) for sale, which a California resident bought after initiating contact with the seller. There was no evidence that files were exchanged through the website or that any business was actually conducted through the website, nor any evidence that anything about the website specifically targeted California residents, and the seller had none of the traditionally sufficient activities with California to establish minimum contact. Therefore, the seller's maintenance of the website alone was insufficient to establish personal jurisdiction when the California consumer sued the seller in a California court for rescission or damages [Shisler v. Sanfer Sports Cars, Inc. (2007) 146 Cal. App. 4th 1254, 1260-1262, 53 Cal. Rptr. 3d 335] .

§ 127.34 Private Education Loans

[1] Application of Truth in Lending Act

The Private Student Loan Transparency and Improvement Act of 2008 [Pub. L. No. 110-315, § 1001 et seq. (Aug. 14, 2008)] added several provisions to the Truth in Lending Act (TILA) for the purpose of preventing unfair and deceptive private educational lending practices and eliminating conflicts of interest with respect to such lending [see generally 15 U.S.C. §§ 1638(e), 1650]. Implementing regulations are at 12 C.F.R. §§ 226.46-226.48 [see 74 Fed. Reg. 41250 et seq. (Aug. 14, 2009)].

The effective date for most of the added TILA provisions is August 14, 2009 [Pub. L. No. 110-315, §§ 1003(b), 1012(b) (Aug. 14, 2008)]; those provisions are 15 U.S.C. §§ 1638(e)(1)-(4) and (6)-(8), 1640(j), and 1650(c). Also effective August 14, 2009, are related amendments to 15 U.S.C. § 1640(a) in the first sentence, clause (3) (concerning attorney's fees and costs), and in the fifth sentence (concerning statutory damages for violations of 15 U.S.C. § 1638), and to 15 U.S.C. § 1640(e) (concerning the limitation period for actions based on the added provisions).

In general, unsecured consumer loans exceeding $25,000 are exempt from TILA regulation. However, that exemption does not reach private education loans subject to 15 U.S.C. §§ 1638(e) and 1650 [15 U.S.C. § 1603(3)].

The term "creditor" in TILA includes a private educational lender [15 U.S.C. § 1602(f)].

[2] Definitions

[a] Private Education Loan

The term "private education loan" means, in general, a loan provided by a private educational lender [see § 127.34[2][b]] that is not made, insured, or guaranteed under of title IV of the Higher Education Act of 1965 [see 20 U.S.C. § 1070 et seq.] and is issued expressly for post-secondary educational expenses to a borrower, regardless of whether the loan is provided through the educational institution that the subject student attends or directly to the borrower from the lender [15 U.S.C. §§ 1638(e)(10), 1650(a)(7)(A)].

The term "post-secondary educational expenses" means any of the expenses that are included as part of the cost of attendance of a student, as defined in 20 U.S.C. § 1087 ll [15 U.S.C. § 1650(a)(4)].

A private education loan does not include an extension of credit under an open-end consumer credit plan, a reverse mortgage transaction, a residential mortgage transaction, or any other loan that is secured by real property or a dwelling [15 U.S.C. §§ 1638(e)(10), 1650(a)(7)(B)].

[b] Private Educational Lender

The term "private educational lender" means a financial institution, as defined in 12 U.S.C. § 1813, that solicits, makes, or extends private education loans; a federal credit union, as defined in 12 U.S.C. § 1752, that solicits, makes, or extends private education loans; or any other person engaged in the business of soliciting, making, or extending private education loans [15 U.S.C. §§ 1638(e)(10), 1650(a)(6)].

[c] Covered Educational Institution

The term "covered educational institution" [see § 127.34[3], [4]] means any educational institution that offers a post-secondary educational degree, certificate, or program of study (including any institution of higher education); and the term includes an agent, officer, or employee of the educational institution [15 U.S.C. §§ 1638(e)(10), 1650(a)(1)].

The term "institution of higher education" has the same meaning as in 20 U.S.C. § 1002 [15 U.S.C. § 1650(a)(3)].

[3] Prohibited Acts by Employees of Educational Institutions

Any person who is employed in the financial aid office of a covered educational institution [see § 127.34[2][c]], or who otherwise has responsibilities with respect to private education loans or other financial aid of the institution, and who serves on an advisory board, commission, or group established by a private educational lender or group of such lenders, is prohibited from receiving anything of value from that lender or group of lenders. However, nothing in this prohibition prevents the reimbursement of reasonable expenses incurred by an employee of a covered educational institution as part of the employee's service on an advisory board, commission, or group [15 U.S.C. § 1650(d)].

[4] Prohibited Acts by Lenders

[a] Gifts to Educational Institutions

A private educational lender may not offer or provide, directly or indirectly, any gift to a covered educational institution [see § 127.34[2][c]] in exchange for any advantage or consideration provided to the lender and related to its private education loan activities [15 U.S.C. § 1650(b)(1)].

The term "gift" means, in general, any gratuity, favor, discount, entertainment, hospitality, loan, or other item having more than a de minimis monetary value, including services, transportation, lodging, or meals, whether provided in kind, by purchase of a ticket, payment in advance, or reimbursement after the expense has been incurred [15 U.S.C. § 1650(a)(2)(A)(i)]. The term includes any such item that is provided to a family member of an officer, employee, or agent of a covered educational institution, or to any other individual based on that individual's relationship with the officer, employee, or agent, if (1) the item is provided with the knowledge and acquiescence of the officer, employee, or agent, and (2) the officer, employee, or agent has reason to believe that the item was provided because of the official position of the officer, employee, or agent [15 U.S.C. § 1650(a)(2)(A)(ii)].

A gift, in this context, does not include any of the following [15 U.S.C. § 1650(a)(2)(B)(i)-(vi)]:

- Standard informational material related to a loan, default aversion, default prevention, or financial literacy;

- Food, refreshments, training, or informational material furnished to an officer, employee, or agent of a covered educational institution, as an integral part of a training session or through participation in an advisory council that is designed to improve the service of the private educational lender to the covered educational institution, if such training or participation contributes to the professional development of the officer, employee, or agent of the covered educational institution;

- Favorable terms, conditions, and borrower benefits on a private education loan provided to a student employed by the covered educational institution, if such terms, conditions, or benefits are not provided because of the student's employment with the covered educational institution;

- The provision of financial literacy counseling or services, including counseling or services provided in coordination with a covered educational institution, to the extent that any such counseling or service is not undertaken to secure applications for private education loans or private-education-loan volume, applications or loan volume for any loan made, insured, or guaranteed under title IV of the Higher Education Act of 1965 [see 20 U.S.C. § 1070 et seq.], or the purchase of a product or service of a specific private educational lender;

- Philanthropic contributions to a covered educational institution from a private educational lender that are unrelated to private education loans and are not made in exchange for any advantage related to private education loans; or

- State education grants, scholarships, or financial aid funds administered by or on behalf of a state.

[b] Revenue Sharing With Educational Institutions

A private educational lender may not engage, directly or indirectly, in revenue sharing with a covered educational institution [15 U.S.C. § 1650(b)(2)]. The term "revenue sharing" means an arrangement between a covered educational institution [see [2][c], above] and a private educational lender under which all of the following conditions exist [15 U.S.C. § 1650(a)(8)]:

- The lender provides or issues private education loans with respect to students attending the covered educational institution.

- The covered educational institution recommends, to students or others, the lender or the private education loans of the lender.

- The lender pays a fee or provides other material benefits, including profit sharing, to the covered educational institution in connection with the private education loans provided to students attending the covered educational institution or to a borrower acting on behalf of a student.

[c] Co-Branding With Educational Institutions

A private educational lender may not use the name, emblem, mascot, or logo of a covered educational institution [see § 127.34[2][c]], or other words, pictures, or symbols readily identified with a covered educational institution, in the marketing of private education loans, in any way that implies that the covered educational institution endorses the private education loans offered by the lender [15 U.S.C. § 1650(c); see § 127.34[1] (effective date)].

[5] Terms and Administration of Loans

[a] 30-Day Acceptance Period

With respect to a private education loan, the borrower has the right to accept the terms of the loan and consummate the transaction at any time within 30 calendar days (or such longer period as the lender may provide) following the date the application for the loan is approved and the borrower receives the disclosure documents required under 15 U.S.C. § 1638(e) [see § 127.34[6]] for the loan. The lender may not change the rates and terms of the loan during that period [15 U.S.C. § 1638(e)(6)(A); see § 127.34[1] (effective date)].

Except for changes based on adjustments to the index used for the loan, the lender may not change the rates and terms of the loan before the date of acceptance of the terms of the loan and consummation of the transaction by the borrower or the expiration of the 30-day acceptance period, whichever occurs first [15 U.S.C. § 1638(e)(6)(B); see § 127.34[1] (effective date)].

[b] Information Form

Before a private educational lender may consummate a private education loan with respect to a student attending an institution of higher education [see § 127.34[2][c]], the lender must obtain from the loan applicant a prescribed form, which the Secretary of Education is required to devise for this purpose [20 U.S.C. § 1019d], setting forth information about education loans. The form must be signed by the applicant. It may be in written or electronic form [15 U.S.C. § 1638(e)(3)(A); see § 127.34[1] (effective date)].

No other provision of 15 U.S.C. § 1638(e) may be construed to require a private educational lender to perform any additional duty under 15 U.S.C. § 1638(e)(3), other than collecting the specified form [15 U.S.C. § 1638(e)(3)(B); see § 127.34[1] (effective date)].

A private educational lender has no liability under 15 U.S.C. § 1640 [see § 127.34[7]] for failure to comply with 15 U.S.C. § 1638(e)(3) [15 U.S.C. § 1640(j); see § 127.34[1] (effective date)].

[c] Borrower's Right to Cancel Within Three Days

With respect to a private education loan, the borrower may cancel the loan, without penalty to the borrower, at any time within three business days after the date the loan is consummated. The lender must disclose this right to the borrower when the loan is consummated [15 U.S.C. § 1638(e)(7); see § 127.34[6][d]; see also § 127.34[1] (effective date)].

No funds may be disbursed with respect to the loan until the expiration of the three-day period allowed for the borrower to cancel the loan [15 U.S.C. § 1638(e)(8); see § 127.34[1] (effective date)].

[d] Prepayment Fees and Penalties

It is unlawful for any private educational lender to impose a fee or penalty on a borrower for early repayment or prepayment of any private education loan [15 U.S.C. § 1650(e)].

[6] Disclosures by Lenders

[a] Model Form of Disclosures

Any private educational lender that elects to provide a model form of disclosures [see 15 U.S.C. § 1638(e)(5)(A),(B) (mandate for federal agencies to develop and issue model forms that may be used, at option of private educational lender, for providing required disclosures)], which accurately reflects the lender's practices, will be deemed to be in compliance with the disclosure requirements of 15 U.S.C. § 1638(e) [15 U.S.C. § 1638(e)(5)(c)].

[b] Loan Application and Solicitation Disclosures

In any application for a private education loan, or a solicitation for a private education loan without requiring an application, the lender must disclose to the borrower, clearly and conspicuously, all of the following [15 U.S.C. § 1638(e)(1)(A)-(Q); see § 127.34[1] (effective date)]:

- The potential range of rates of interest applicable to the loan.

- Whether the rate of interest applicable to the loan is fixed or variable.

- Limitations on interest rate adjustments, in terms of both frequency and amount, or the absence of limitations, if applicable.

- Requirements for a co-borrower, including any changes in the applicable interest rates without a co-borrower.

- Potential finance charges, late fees, penalties, and adjustments to principal, based on defaults or late payments by the borrower.

- Fees or the range of fees applicable to the loan.

- The term of the loan.

- Whether interest will accrue while the student to whom the loan relates is enrolled at a covered educational institution.

- Payment deferral options.

- General eligibility criteria for the loan.

- An example of the total cost of the loan over the life of the loan, which must be computed (1) using the principal amount and the maximum rate of interest actually offered by the lender and (2) both with and without capitalization of interest, if an option exists for postponing interest payments.

- The possibility that a covered educational institution may have school-specific education loan benefits and terms not detailed on the disclosure form.

- The possibility that the borrower may qualify for federal student financial assistance through a program under title IV of the Higher Education Act of 1965 [see 20 U.S.C. § 1070 et seq.], in lieu of, or in addition to, a loan from a nonfederal source.

- The interest rates available with respect to such federal student financial assistance through a program under title IV of the Higher Education Act of 1965.

- The fact that the borrower will have the right to accept the terms of the loan and consummate the transaction at any time within 30 calendar days (or such longer period as the lender may provide) following the date on which the application for the loan is approved and the borrower receives the disclosure documents required under 15 U.S.C. § 1638(e) for the loan; and the fact that, except for changes based on adjustments to the index used for a loan, the rates and terms of the loan may not be changed by the lender during that acceptance period [see 15 U.S.C. § 1638(e)(6); § 127.34[5][a]].

- The fact that, before the loan may be consummated, the borrower must obtain from the relevant institution of higher education a prescribed certification form, and complete, sign, and return the form to the lender [see 15 U.S.C. § 1638(e)(3); § 127.34[5][b]].

- The fact that consumers may obtain additional information concerning federal student financial assistance from their institutions of higher education or at the web site of the Department of Education.

[c] Disclosures When Loan Application Is Approved

Contemporaneously with the approval of a private education loan application, and before the loan transaction is consummated, the lender must disclose to the borrower, clearly and conspicuously, all of the following [15 U.S.C. § 1638(e)(2); see § 127.34[1] (effective date)]:

- The applicable rate of interest in effect on the date of approval [15 U.S.C. § 1638(e)(2)(A)].

- Whether the rate of interest applicable to the loan is fixed or variable [15 U.S.C. § 1638(e)(2)(B)].

- Limitations on interest-rate adjustments, in terms of both frequency and amount, or the absence of limitations, if applicable [15 U.S.C. § 1638(e)(2)(C)].

- The initial approved principal amount [15 U.S.C. § 1638(e)(2)(D)].

- Applicable finance charges, late fees, penalties, and adjustments to principal, based on borrower defaults or late payments, including limitations on the discharge of the loan in bankruptcy [15 U.S.C. § 1638(e)(2)(E)].

- Fees or the range of fees applicable to the loan [15 U.S.C. § 1638(e)(2)(F)].

- The maximum term under the loan program [15 U.S.C. § 1638(e)(2)(G)].

- An estimate of the total amount for repayment, both at the interest rate in effect on the date of approval and also at the maximum possible rate of interest offered by the lender and applicable to the borrower, or using a good faith estimate of the maximum rate if it is not determinable [15 U.S.C. § 1638(e)(2)(H)].

- Any principal and interest payments required while the student for whom the loan is intended is enrolled at a covered educational institution, and unpaid interest that will accrue during such enrollment [15 U.S.C. § 1638(e)(2)(I)].

- Payment-deferral options applicable to the borrower [15 U.S.C. § 1638(e)(2)(J)].

- Whether monthly payments are graduated [15 U.S.C. § 1638(e)(2)(K)].

- The fact that the borrower will have the right to accept the terms of the loan and consummate the transaction at any time within 30 calendar days (or such longer period as the lender may provide) following the date on which the application for the loan is approved and the borrower receives the disclosure documents required under 15 U.S.C. § 1638(e) for the loan, and the fact that, except for changes based on adjustments to the index used for a loan, the rates and terms of the loan may not be changed by the lender during that acceptance period [15 U.S.C. § 1638(e)(2)(L); see 15 U.S.C. §

1638(e)(6); § 127.34[5][a]].

- The possibility that the borrower may qualify for federal financial assistance through a program under title IV of the Higher Education Act of 1965 [see 20 U.S.C. § 1070 et seq.], in lieu of, or in addition to, a loan from a nonfederal source; and the fact that consumers may obtain additional information concerning such assistance from institutions of higher education or the web site of the Department of Education [15 U.S.C. § 1638(e)(2)(M)].

- The interest rates available with respect to such federal financial assistance through a program under title IV of the Higher Education Act of 1965 [15 U.S.C. § 1638(e)(2)(N)].

- The maximum monthly payment, computed using the maximum rate of interest actually offered by the lender and applicable to the borrower, or using a good faith estimate of the maximum rate if it is not determinable [15 U.S.C. § 1638(e)(2)(O)].

[d] Disclosures When Loan Is Consummated

Contemporaneously with the consummation of a private education loan, the private educational lender must disclose to the borrower [15 U.S.C. § 1638(e)(4)(A)-(c); see § 127.34[1] (effective date)]:

- The applicable rate of interest in effect on the date of approval [see 15 U.S.C. § 1638(e)(2)(A)] (adjusted, as necessary, for the rate of interest in effect on the date of consummation, based on the index used for the loan).

- Each of the other disclosures described in § 127.34[6][c] [see 15 U.S.C. § 1638(e)(2)(B)-(P)] except the disclosure regarding the borrower's 30-day acceptance period [see 15 U.S.C. § 1638(e)(2)(L)].

- The borrower's right to cancel the loan [see 15 U.S.C. § 1638(e)(4); see § 127.34[5][c]].

[7] Lender's Liability for Violation

[a] General Liability of Creditor Under TILA

Since the term "creditor" in the Truth in Lending Act (TILA) includes a private educational lender [15 U.S.C. § 1602(f)], a lender is generally subject to liability, under 15 U.S.C. § 1640, for violations of 15 U.S.C. §§ 1638(e) and 1650 [see 15 U.S.C. § 1640(a)]. For a discussion of individual actions brought under 15 U.S.C. § 1640, see Ch. 501, Sales: Retail Installment Sales .

[b] Limitation Period

The limitation period for an action against the lender based on a violation of TILA is one year from the date on which the first regular payment of principal is due under the loan [15 U.S.C. § 1640(e); see § 127.34[1] (effective date)].

[c] Statutory Damages

The lender cannot be liable for statutory damages [see 15 U.S.C. § 1640(a), 1st sentence, cl. (2)] except in a case of violating any of the following [15 U.S.C. § 1640(a), 5th sentence; see § 127.34[1] (effective date)]:

- Specified disclosure requirements [see 15 U.S.C. § 1638(e)(2)(A), (B), (D), (F), (J); § 127.34[6][c]];

- The requirement for a 30-day acceptance period [see 15 U.S.C. § 1638(e)(6); § 127.34[5][a]];

- The provision that the borrower has a right to cancel within three days [see 15 U.S.C. § 1638(e)(4)(c), (7); § 127.34[5][c]]; and

- The proscription against disbursing funds until after that three-day period [see 15 U.S.C. § 1638(e)(8); § 127.34[5][c]].

[d] Attorney's Fees and Costs in Case of Rescission

In any action in which a borrower is determined to have a right of rescission under 15 U.S.C. § 1638(e)(7) [see § 127.34[5][c]], the plaintiff may recover (in addition to any damages) the costs of the action, together with a reasonable attorney's fee as determined by the court [15 U.S.C. § 1640(a), 1st sentence, cl. (3); see § 127.34[1] (effective date)].

13-127 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 127.55

§ 127.55 Decisions

[1] Consumer Loans Secured by Real Property

Yield spread premium (YSP) paid in connection with residential mortgage loan is not included in definition of points and fees payable by borrower at or before closing under Fin. Code § 4970. Wolski v. Fremont Investment & Loan (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 347, 350, 25 Cal. Rptr. 3d 500

[2] Credit Cards

Credit card agreement encompasses convenience "services" in addition to extension of credit, and, thus, is consumer contract for retail purchase of services and is subject to Civ. Code § 1671(d), which governs validity of liquidated damages provisions. Hitz v. First Interstate Bank (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 274, 287-288

Late and over limit credit card fees charged by bank did not represent result of reasonable endeavor by parties to estimate fair average compensation for any loss that might be sustained, and thus fees constituted invalid liquidated damages under Civ. Code § 1671(d), which governs validity of liquidated damages provisions. Hitz v. First Interstate Bank (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 274, 289 (bank's purpose in imposing late and over limit card fees was to generate revenue rather than provide compensation for loss)

Civ. Code § 1671(d) codifies common law and entitles party who has paid sums in accordance with invalid liquidated damages provision to affirmative relief; measure of breaching party's recovery is difference between sums paid under invalid liquidated damages provision and other party's actual damages for four years (in case of written contract) prior to commencement of action. Beasley v. Wells Fargo Bank (1991) 235 Cal. App. 3d 1383, 1398-1402, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 446 , disapproved on other grounds, Olson v. Automobile Club of So. Cal. (2008) 42 Cal. 4th 1142, 1153 n.6

Despite invalid liquidated damages provision regarding late and over-limit charges, credit card issuer was entitled to recover its actual damages resulting from default; whether measure of issuer's actual damages includes its indirect costs is factual question turning on causation. Beasley v. Wells Fargo Bank (1991) 235 Cal. App. 3d 1383, 1402,

1404-1405, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 446 , disapproved on other grounds, Olson v. Automobile Club of So. Cal. (2008) 42 Cal. 4th 1142, 1153 n.6

After invalidating liquidated damages provision regarding late and over-limit charges, issuer's actual damages did not properly include fees it paid to collection agency based on percentage of collected debts, even though issuer actually paid those fees, when fees did not necessarily represent actual expense required to collect late balances. Beasley v. Wells Fargo Bank (1991) 235 Cal. App. 3d 1383, 1405-1406, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 446 , disapproved on other grounds, Olson v. Automobile Club of So. Cal. (2008) 42 Cal. 4th 1142, 1153 n.6

Although cardholder authorized friend to use credit card for one purchase, friend's use of card for other purchases in circumstances from which it could be inferred that friend never intended to return card and took it under false pretenses was unauthorized use for which cardholder was not liable. Young v. Bank of America (1983) 141 Cal. App. 3d 108, 112-113, 190 Cal. Rptr. 122

[3] Creditor Remedies

Credit union failed to meet its burden on summary judgment to negate consumer's breach of contract claim because it did not establish that it complied with Civ. Code § 1812.400 et seq. before it repossessed vehicle. McManis v. San Diego Postal Credit Union (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 547, 559, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 617

VERIFICATION

I, _____ [name], am the plaintiff in the above-entitled action. I have read the foregoing complaint and know the contents thereof. The same is true of my own knowledge, except as to those matters which are therein alleged on information and belief, and as to those matters, I believe it to be true.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

_____ [date]

_____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

[2] Use of Form

The complaint in [1], above, is for use in an action for damages by a credit cardholder against a card issuer or a retailer based on the card issuer's or retailer's willful failure to correct a billing error under the Song-Beverly Credit Card Act of 1971 [Civ. Code §§ 1747-1748.5].

[3] Allegations

The complaint alleges in pertinent part that [see Civ. Code § 1747.50]:

- Defendant card issuer issued a credit card to plaintiff (Paragraph 4).

- Plaintiff received a statement from the card issuer containing an incorrect item (Paragraph 5).
- Plaintiff mailed an inquiry to defendant concerning the error (Paragraph 6).
- Defendant failed to correct the error within 60 days of the mailing of the inquiry (Paragraph 7).
- Defendant's failure to correct the error was willful (Paragraph 8).
- As a result of defendant's failure to correct the error, plaintiff was damaged (Paragraph 9).

[4] Jurisdiction

The superior court has jurisdiction of the action, which will be classified as an unlimited civil case unless the amount in controversy, exclusive of interest, is $25,000 or less, in which case it will be classified as a limited civil case [Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(1)].

In limited civil cases, the caption must identify the case as a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. § 422.30(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(10)], and the first page of thepaper must state whether or not the demand exceeds $10,000 [Gov. Code § 70613(b); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(9) (statement regarding amount of demand must appear "below the character of the action or proceeding")].

[5] Verification

Although verification of this complaint is not required [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(a)], verification will require any answer to be verified in an unlimited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446]. Verification will also preclude the defendant from using a general denial in an unlimited civil case, and will preclude a general denial in a limited civil case if the action is a claim assigned to a third party for collection [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion, see Ch. 26, Answers .

Petitioner alleges:

1. Petitioner is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a resident of _____ County, California.

2. Respondent _____ [name] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, _____ [state, e.g., a resident of _____ County, California or a corporation duly organized and existing under the laws of the state of California, and authorized and doing business as a _____ (type of business), with its principal place of business in _____ County, California].

3. On or about _____ [date], petitioner made application to respondent for issuance of a credit card and met all the expressed requirements of respondent for issuance of such a card.

4. On or about _____ [date], respondent notified petitioner that the above-mentioned application was denied.

5. [Petitioner is informed and believes and thereon alleges that] [R]espondent's denial of petitioner's application was based solely on the fact that petitioner is _____ [show unlawful discrimination, e.g., black or Jewish or a naturalized Russian or of Japanese ancestry or a female].

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is a petition for damages and to compel the issuance of a credit card. Such an action may be brought by an applicant for a credit card against a credit card issuer following denial of the application by the issuer.

Civ. Code § 1747.80, part of California's Song-Beverly Credit Card Act of 1971 [Civ. Code § 1747 et seq.], prohibits credit card issuers from refusing to issue a credit card to any person solely because of any characteristic listed or defined in Civ. Code § 51(b) or (e); that is, sex, race, color, religion, ancestry, national origin, disability, medical condition, marital status, or sexual orientation (including a perception that a person has, or is associated with, someone who has or is perceived to have any particular characteristic or characteristics within the listed categories) [Civ. Code § 1747.80(a)

]. Any card issuer who willfully violates this section is liable, for each offense, for $250 plus actual damages suffered by any person who is denied a credit card solely for any of the above reasons. In addition, such a person may petition the court to order the card issuer to issue the person a credit card upon such terms, conditions, and standards as the card issuer normally utilizes in granting credit to other individuals [Civ. Code § 1747.80(a)].

[3] Allegations and Prayer

This petition alleges that petitioner was denied a credit card on the basis of unlawful discrimination (Paragraph 5) [see Civ. Code § 1747.80(a)].

The petition also prays for relief for actual damages, statutory damages, for an order compelling issuance of the credit card, for costs [see Civ. Code § 1747.80(b)], and for exemplary or punitive damages [see Civ. Code § 3294]. The amount of exemplary or punitive damages sought must not be stated in the complaint [Civ. Code § 3295(e)].

[4] Jurisdiction

An order to compel issuance of a credit card would appear to be in the nature of a mandatory injunction [see Ch. 303, Injunctions]. An action seeking permanent injunctive relief is in the jurisdiction of the superior court and may not be a limited civil case except as otherwise authorized by statute [see Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(8), 580(b)(2)].

[5] Exemplary and Punitive Damages

A statute providing for a penalty does not operate to exclude the recovery ofexemplary and punitive damages in a proper case [see Greenberg v. Western Turf Asso. (1903) 140 Cal. 357, 363-364, 73 P. 1050] . For a discussion of exemplary and punitive damages, see § 127.27[3].

Petitioner alleges:

1. _____ [Capacity and residence of petitioner. See Paragraph 1 in § 127.83[1]].

2. _____ [Capacity and residence of respondent. See Paragraph 2 in § 127.83[1]].

3. On or about _____ [date], respondent _____ [name] issued a credit card to petitioner, a married woman. Petitioner had requested that the card be issued in her _____ [maiden or married] name. Contrary to petitioner's request, the credit card was issued in her _____ [maiden or married] name.

WHEREFORE, petitioner prays judgment against respondent as follows:

1. For an order compelling respondent to issue a credit card to petitioner in her _____ [maiden or married] name;

Verification, if desired. See § 127.80[1].]

[2] Use of Form

This petition in [1], above, is for use in compelling issuance of a credit card to a married woman in either her maiden or married name.

Civ. Code § 1747.81, part of California's Song-Beverly Credit Card Act of 1971 [Civ. Code § 1747 et seq.], provides that if a credit card issuer has determined in the normal course of business that it will issue a card to a married woman, the card must be issued bearing either the maiden name or married name of the woman, as thewoman may direct [Civ. Code § 1747.81 (note that card issuers may require that a married woman requesting a card in her maiden name open a new account in that name)].

[3] Allegations and Prayer

This petition alleges that respondent issued a credit card to petitioner bearing her maiden or married name contrary to her request, and prays for an order compelling issuance of the credit card in the name which she requested [see Civ. Code § 1747.81].

Civ. Code § 1747.81 does not provide any specific remedies against credit card issuers who fail to comply with its provisions. However, by analogy to Civ. Code § 1747.80, which specifies that a person may petition the court for issuance of a credit card refused on the basis of marital status [see § 127.83], it can be argued that a married woman should be able to petition under Civ. Code § 1747.81 for issuance of a card in her married or maiden name.

[4] Jurisdiction

An order to compel issuance of a credit card would appear to be in the nature of a mandatory injunction [see Ch. 303, Injunctions]. An action seeking permanent injunctive relief is in the jurisdiction of the superior court and may not be a limited civil case except as otherwise authorized by statute [see Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(8), 580(b)(2)].

[Verification, if desired. See § 127.80[1].]

[2] Use of Form

The complaint in § 127.85[1] is for use by a credit card holder against a person, firm, partnership, association, or corporation that wrongfully required or requested that the cardholder's personal identification information be recorded in a credit card transaction [see Civ. Code § 1747.08]. Civ. Code § 1747.08, part of California's Song-Beverly Credit Card Act of 1971 [Civ. Code § 1747 et seq.], with specified exceptions [see Civ. Code § 1747.08(c)], prohibits those who accept credit cards for the transaction of business from doing any of the following [Civ. Code § 1747.08]:

- Requesting, or requiring as a condition of accepting a credit card as payment in full or in part for goods or services, the cardholder to write any personal identification information on the credit card transaction form or otherwise.

- Requesting, or requiring as a condition of accepting the credit card as payment in full or in part for goods or services, the cardholder to provide personal identification information, which the person, firm, partnership, association, or corporation accepting the credit card writes, causes to be written, or otherwise records upon the credit card transaction form or otherwise.

- Using, in any credit card transaction, a credit card form that contains preprinted spaces specifically designated for filling in any personal identification information of the cardholder.

"Personal identification information," means information concerning the cardholder, other than information set forth on the credit card, and including, but not limited to, the cardholder's address and telephone number [Civ. Code § 1747.08(b)]. A cardholder's five-digit ZIP code is not personal identification information, and the statute does not prohibit asking for it [Party City Corp. v. Superior Court (2008) 169 Cal. App. 4th 497, 519-520, 86 Cal. Rptr. 3d 721].

In a case interpreting Civ. Code § 1747.08, the court determined that the word "request" (as added to the statute in 1991) prohibits a retailer from making a request for personal identification from the consumer if it immediately precedes a credit card transaction, even if the consumer's response is voluntary and made only for marketing purposes [Florez v. Linens'N Things, Inc. (2003) 108 Cal. App. 4th 447, 450-453, 133 Cal. Rptr. 2d 465 (allegation that store improperly requested customer's telephone number held sufficient to state cause of action for violation of Civ. Code § 1747.08)].

For more detailed discussion of the applicable requirements and limitations, see 127.28[17][a].

[3] Remedies

Any person who violates Civ. Code § 1747.08 is subject to a civil penalty not to exceed $250 for the first violation and $1,000 for each subsequent violation, to be assessed and collected in a civil action brought by the person paying with a credit card (or by certain governmental entities) [see Civ. Code § 1747.08(e)]. For further discussion, see § 127.28[17][c]. Because the penalty is mandatory, an action to recover the penalty is subject to the one-year limitation period prescribed in Code Civ. Proc. § 340 [TJX Cos., Inc. v. Superior Court (2008) 163 Cal. App. 4th 80, 85-86, 77 Cal. Rptr. 3d 114].

No civil penalty will be assessed if the defendant shows by a preponderance of the evidence that the violation was not intentional and resulted from a bona fide error made notwithstanding the defendant's maintenance of procedures reasonably adopted to avoid such an error [see Civ. Code § 1747.08(e)].

[4] Allegations

The complaint alleges:

- The basis for venue (Paragraph 1) [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 395 (individual), 395.2 (unincorporated association), 395.5 (corporation or association)].

- Defendant's status as an entity that accepts credit cards in the transaction of business (Paragraph 2) [see Civ. Code § 1747.08(a)].

- Facts regarding the wrongful requirement of or request for personal identifying information in a credit card transaction (Paragraphs 4-7) [see Civ. Code § 1747.08(a)(1)-(3)].

Optional Paragraph 8 may be used to allege subsequent violations of the prohibition against requiring personal identification information in credit card transactions, as abasis for additional civil penalties [see Civ. Code § 1747.08(d)].

[Verification, if desired. See § 127.80[1].]

[2] Use of Form

The complaint in [1], above, is for use against a person who accepts a check as payment in full or part for goods or services but who wrongfully requires the payor to provide a credit card or sign a statement guaranteeing payment by credit card, records a credit card number, or contacts a credit card issuer to determine the amount of credit available to the payor [see Civ. Code § 1725].

Civ. Code § 1725(a), subject to various exceptions [see Civ. Code § 1725(c); [4]-[5], below], prohibits any person no person accepting a negotiable instrument as payment in full or in part for goods or services sold or leased at retail from doing any of the following:

- Requiring the person paying with a negotiable instrument to provide a credit card as a condition of acceptance of the negotiable instrument, or record the number of the credit card.

- Requiring, as a condition of acceptance of the negotiable instrument, or causing the person paying with a negotiable instrument to sign, a statement agreeing to allow his or her credit card to be charged to cover the negotiable instrument if it is returned as no good.

- Recording a credit card number in connection with any part of the transaction described in this subdivision.

- Contacting a credit card issuer to determine if the amount of any credit available to the person paying with a negotiable instrument will cover the amount of the negotiable instrument.

[3] Remedies

Any person who violates Civ. Code § 1725(e) is subject to a civil penalty of up to $250 for a first violation, and to a civil penalty of up to $1,000 for a second or subsequent violation, to be assessed and collected in a civil action brought by the person paying with a negotiable instrument, by the Attorney General, or by the district attorney or city attorney of the county or city in which the violation occurred. The civil penalty is payable, as appropriate, to the person paying with a negotiable instrument who brought the action or to the general fund of whichever governmental entity brought the action to assess the civil penalty [Civ. Code § 1725(e)].

The Attorney General and local law enforcement officials are also authorized to seek and obtain injunctive relief for violation of Civ. Code § 1725, but this authority is not extended to private parties [see Civ. Code § 1725(f)].

For further discussion, see § 127.28[17][c].

[4] Unintentional Violations

The civil penalty discussed in [3], above, will not be assessed for a violation of Civ. Code § 1725 if the defendant shows by a preponderance of the evidence that the violation was not intentional and resulted from a bona fide error made notwithstanding the defendant's maintenance of procedures reasonably adopted to avoid such an error [see Civ. Code § 1725(e)]. Thus, the fact that a violation was unintentional may be raised as a defense to an action under Civ. Code §

1725.

[5] Permissible Requests for Identification

Civ. Code § 1725 specifies numerous exceptions from its prohibitions, and activities that do not constitute a violation of the section. Specifically, the section does not prohibit any person from doing any of the following [Civ. Code § 1725(c); see § 127.28[18]]:

- Requiring the production of reasonable forms of positive identification, other than a credit card, which may include a driver's license or a California state identification card or, if one of these is not available, another form of photo identification, as a condition of acceptance of a negotiable instrument.

- Requesting, but not requiring, a purchaser to voluntarily display a credit card as an indicia of creditworthiness or financial responsibility, or as an additional identification, provided the only information concerning the credit card which is recorded is the type of credit card displayed, the issuer of the card, and the expiration date of the card. Retailers that request the display of a credit card pursuant to this paragraph are required to inform the customer that displaying the credit card is not a requirement for check writing by either (1) posting a specified notice in a conspicuous location in the unobstructed view of the public within the premises where the check is being written; or (2) training andrequiring sales clerks or retail employees requesting the credit card to inform all check writing customers that they are not required to display a credit card to write a check.

- Requesting production of, or recording, a credit card number as a condition for cashing a negotiable instrument that is being used solely to receive cash back from the person.

- Requesting, receiving, or recording a credit card number in lieu of requiring a deposit to secure payment in event of default, loss, damage, or other occurrence.

- Requiring, verifying, and recording the purchaser's name, address, and telephone number.

- Requesting or recording a credit card number on a negotiable instrument used to make a payment on that credit card account.

Moreover, Civ. Code § 1725 does not require acceptance of a negotiable instrument whether or not a credit card is presented [Civ. Code § 1725(d)].

[6] Allegations

The complaint in [1], above, alleges:

- The basis for venue (Paragraph 1) [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 395 (individual), 395.2 (unincorporated association), 395.5 (corporation or association)].

- Facts regarding the wrongful requirement of a credit card in accepting payment for goods or services by check (Paragraphs 3-7) [see Civ. Code § 1725(a)(1)-(4)].

Optional Paragraph 8 may be used to allege subsequent violations, as a basis for additional civil penalties [see Civ. Code § 1725(b)].

[2] Use of Form

The complaint in [1], above, is for use in an action for damages brought by the plaintiff against a defendant who has denied credit or offered credit on less favorable terms than offered to other persons because of plaintiff's sex or marital status in violation of Civ. Code § 1812.30. For more detailed discussion of these provisions, see § 127.29.

[3] Actual Damages

Violators of Civ. Code § 1812.30 are liable to the aggrieved person in an amount equal to the sum of any actual damages sustained by the aggrieved person acting either in an individual capacity or as a representative of a class [Civ. Code § 1812.31(a)]. In addition, punitive damages may also be available [see [4], below].

[4] Punitive Damages

Any person who violates Civ. Code § 1812.30 is liable to the aggrieved person for punitive damages in an amount not greater than $10,000, as determined by the court, in addition to any actual damages. However, in pursuing the recovery of punitive damages under this provision, the aggrieved person may proceed only in an individual capacity and not as a representative of a class [Civ. Code § 1812.31(b)].

In class actions, violators of Civ. Code § 1812.30 are liable for punitive damages in such an amount as the court may allow, except that as to each member of the class no minimum recovery shall be applicable, and the total recovery in the action may not exceed the lesser of $100,000 or one percent of the net worth of the creditor. In determining the amount of the award in any class action, the court must consider, among other relevant factors, the amount of any actual damages awarded, the frequency and persistence of violations, the resources of the creditor, the number of persons adversely affected, and the extent to which the creditor's violation was intentional [Civ. Code § 1812.31(c)].

[5] Allegations

The complaint in [1], above, alleges:

- The application for credit (Paragraph 3).

- The denial of credit or the offering of credit on less favorable terms than proper (Paragraph 3).
- Damages (Paragraph 4).

[Verification, if action seeks injunctive relief or verification is otherwise desired. See § 127.80[1].]

[2] Use of Form

The complaint in [1], above, is for use in an action for damages and/or equitable relief by a debtor against a creditor alleging that the creditor has violated the provisions of Civ. Code § 1812.400 et seq. [Civ. Code § 1812.402(i)], which imposes limitations on the remedies available to a creditor when the debtor in a credit transaction cannot meet his or her obligations because of a disability covered by a policy of credit disability insurance. The form includes optional allegations for requesting a temporary restraining order, preliminary injunction, and permanent injunction [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 526, 527].

For more detailed discussion of Civ. Code § 1812.400 et seq., see § 127.30.

[3] Allegations

The complaint in [1], above, alleges the following:

- That plaintiff entered into a credit transaction, either by borrowing money or by purchasing or leasing goods, services, property, rights, or privileges (Paragraph 3) [see Civ. Code § 1812.401(c)].

- That plaintiff obtained credit disability insurance in connection with that transaction (Paragraph 4) [see Civ. Code § 1812.401(a)].

- That defendant or defendant's predecessor in interest participated in the sale of the credit disability insurance to plaintiff (Paragraph 5) [Civ. Code §§ 1812.401(b), 1812.404].

- That plaintiff notified defendant of plaintiff's claim of disability under the credit disability insurance policy, but that defendant nevertheless invoked a creditor's remedy during the disability claim period (Paragraph 6) [Civ. Code § 1812.402(a)].

- Facts showing defendant's threatened conduct (Paragraph 7), and the irreparability of defendant's actions and the inadequacy of legal remedies, when injunctive relief is sought (Paragraphs 8, 9) [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 526, 527].

- Damages resulting from the alleged violation of Civ. Code § 1812.400 et seq. (Paragraph 10) [Civ. Code § 1812.402(I)].

[4] Other Causes of Action

Violations of these provisions can also affect other causes of action. For example, in a breach of contract action by a debtor against a credit union for wrongful repossession of a car while the debtor's credit disability insurance claim was pending, the debtor was allowed to assert Civ. Code § 1812.400 et seq. as an independent basis for reversing summary judgment in favor of the credit union, even though the debtor had never pled a separate cause of action under those sections. The court held that the act was relevant because it showed that the credit union failed to satisfy its burden to negate the debtor's breach of contract theory. Under the express terms of the agreement between the debtor and the credit union, the credit union was entitled to repossess the vehicle if (1) the loan was in default, and (2) the repossession was "permitted by law." Under the facts alleged, the repossession was not "permitted by law" because of various violations of Civ. Code § 1812.400 et seq. by the credit union, and therefore was in violation of the agreement. Thus, plaintiff's breach of contract complaint was sufficient to withstand defendant's motion for summary judgment [McManis v. San Diego Postal Credit Union (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 547, 557-558, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 617] . This decision suggests that in appropriate cases a breach of contract claim may be added to the complaint for statutory relief under Civ. Code § 1812.400 et seq. For a form for a general complaint for damages for breach of a written contract, see Ch. 140, Contracts, § 140.101.

[5] Verification

Verification [see Code Civ. Proc. § 446] is required if the plaintiff seeks a temporary restraining order or a preliminary injunction on a complaint, instead of on an affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 527]. Otherwise, verification is not required, but verification of the complaint requires the defendant to file a verified answer in an unlimited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. § 446]. Verification also will preclude a general denial in an unlimited civil case, and will preclude a general denial even in a limited civil case when the action is a claim assigned to a third party for collection [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion of the effect that verifying a complaint has on the answer, see Ch. 26, Answers . If relying on a verified complaint instead of affidavits (or declarations), counsel must plead evidentiary facts that would entitle plaintiff to the relief sought [see E.H. Renzel Co. v. Warehousemen's Union (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 369, 373, 106 P.2d 1 ; San Juan G. Co. v. San Juan R. etc. Assn. (1939) 34 Cal. App. 2d 159, 174, 93 P.2d 582] .

[6] Jurisdiction

The superior court has jurisdiction of the action, which will be classified as an unlimited civil case unless the amount in controversy, exclusive of interest, is $25,000 or less, in which case it will be classified as a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(1)]. However, an action seeking injunctive relief is in the jurisdiction of the superior court and may not be a limited civil case except as otherwise authorized by statute [see Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(8), 580(b)(2)]. Therefore, inclusion of the form language seeking injunctive relief may preclude the action from being a limited civil case.

In limited civil cases, the caption must identify the case as a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. § 422.30(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(10)], and the first page of the paper must state whether or not the demand exceeds $10,000 [Gov. Code § 70613(b); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(9) (statement regarding amount of demand must appear "immediately below the character of the action or proceeding")].

In the subsequent solicitation, defendant stressed that the cost of the insurance could be added to the loan balance and thus financed as part of the loan, and that plaintiff's monthly payments then would be increased by only a very small amount or, e.g., Defendant made the payment specified in Paragraph 4 despite having received both oral and written notice from plaintiff that a dispute existed between plaintiff and _____ (name) regarding the nature and quality of the work performed under the home improvement contract and that no payments were to be made to _____ (name) until that dispute had been resolved].

6. _____ [specify how plaintiff has been harmed, e.g., The aggregate amount that plaintiff paid, through _____ (date), for the credit life insurance is $_____, including $_____ as interest on the financed premium amount. Plaintiff has continued to make the agreed monthly loan payments, so as not become in default under the loan agreement, even though plaintiff on _____ (date) informed defendant that the financing of credit life insurance was illegal and that plaintiff demanded appropriate relief from it].

[7. Attorney's fees. See Paragraph 10 in § 127.80[1].]

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendant as follows:

1. For general damages in the sum of $_____ [add, if violation was "willful and knowing" (see Fin. Code § 4978(a)): or statutory damages in the sum of $15,000, whichever is greater];

[2. For an order declaring the unenforceability of the loan agreement insofar as it concerns _____ (specify nonconforming provisions, e.g., the financing of credit life insurance) and reforming the agreement accordingly;]

3. For reasonable attorney's fees;

4. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

5. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

The complaint in [1], above, is for use in an action for damages by a consumer against a commercial lender, based on violation of Fin. Code § 4970 et seq. in connection with the making of a consumer loan secured by residential real property, if the plaintiff applied for the loan after June, 2002 [see Stats. 2001, ch. 732, § 3]. This complaint can be adapted for use in an action against a real estate broker that arranged a loan subject to the governing statutes.

[3] Allegations

The complaint in [1], above, alleges the following:

- The defendant is a commercial lender subject to Fin. Code § 4970 et seq. (Paragraph 1).

- After June, 2002, the plaintiff applied for and agreed to a loan from the lender, and the loan meets the following requirements and therefore is subject to Fin. Code § 4970 et seq. (Paragraph 3).

- The loan is secured by real property that is located in California, which is used or intended to be used or occupied as the plaintiff's principal dwelling and is improved by a one-to-four-unit residential building [see Fin. Code § 4970(d) (definition of "consumer loan")] (Paragraph 3).

- One or both of the following facts is true [see Fin. Code § 4970(b)] (Paragraph 3):

  - The annual percentage rate at consummation of the loan transaction exceeded by more than 8 percentage points theyield on Treasury securities having comparable periods of maturity on the 15th day of the month immediately preceding the month in which the application for the loan was received by the defendant.

  - The total points and fees payable by the plaintiff at or before closing exceeded 6 percent of the total loan amount [see Wolski v. Fremont Inv. & Loan (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 347, 350, 25 Cal. Rptr. 3d 500 (transaction was not covered loan when total points and fees exceeded 6 percent only if yield-spread premium was included)].

- The lender violated Fin. Code § 4970 et seq. as specified (Paragraph 4). Two alternative examples are illustrated in this form. The first example alleges that the lender sold credit disability insurance in violation of the limitations imposed by Fin. Code § 4979.7 [for discussion, see § 127.31[4][g]]. The second example alleges that the lender made direct payments to a contractor under a home improvement contract, in violation of Fin. Code § 4973(g) [for discussion, see § 127.31[4][c]]. Allegations of violations of the other requirements of Fin. Code § 4970 et seq., as discussed in § 127.31, may be substituted as appropriate.

- The violation was a willful and knowing violation as specified, if that was the case (Paragraph 5) [see Fin. Code § 4978(a) (in case of "willful and knowing violation," recoverable damages will be $15,000 or actual damages, whichever is greater)].

- As a proximate result of the violation, the plaintiff suffered harm as specified, if actual damages are demanded (Paragraph 6).

[4] Additional Relief

A provision in a covered loan that violates Fin. Code § 4970 et seq. is unenforceable. A court in which any action is brought by, or on behalf of, an aggrieved consumer for relief may issue an order or injunction to reform the terms of the covered loan to conform to the provisions of Fin. Code § 4970 et seq. [Fin. Code § 4978(b)].

In addition to any other remedy, the court may award punitive damages to the consumer on a finding that such damages are warranted pursuant to Civ. Code § 3294 [Fin. Code § 4978(b)]. For discussion and forms for use in claiming punitive damages, see Ch. 177, Damages .

[5] Attorney's Fees

The plaintiff is entitled to recover attorney's fees and costs in an action under Fin. Code § 4970 et seq., in addition to damages [Fin. Code § 4978(b)].

[6] Jurisdiction

The superior court has jurisdiction of the action, which will be classified as an unlimited civil case unless the amount in controversy, exclusive of interest, is $25,000 or less, in which case it will be classified as a limited civil case [Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(1)].

In limited civil cases, the caption must identify the case as a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. § 422.30(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(10)], and the first page of the paper must state whether or not the demand exceeds $10,000 [Gov. Code § 70613(b); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(9) (statement regarding amount of demand must appear "immediately below the character of the action or proceeding")].

This chapter discusses various types of consumer protection legislation dealing with specific categories of goods and services not covered elsewhere in this publication. The chapter covers the following topics:

- The Dance Studio Act and Health Studio Act [see § 128.10]. The forms include a complaint for damages based on a contract requiring payment in excess of the statutory limit [see § 128.40], and an allegation regarding a contract for an excessive term [see § 128.41].

- Dating service and weight loss contracts [see § 128.11]. The forms include a complaint for damages based on a failure to refund payments within 10 days of cancellation [see § 128.50], an allegation regarding a contract for an excessive term [see § 128.51], and an affirmative defense when a contract is canceled [see § 128.52].

- Home and seminar sales solicitation contracts [see § 128.12]. The forms include a complaint for restitution from the cancellation of a home or seminar solicitation contract based on the failure to refund payments within 10 days of cancellation [see § 128.60], an affirmative defense when the contract is canceled [see § 128.61], and a complaint for damages regarding unlawful home solicitation practices [see § 128.62].

- Unsolicited goods or services [see § 128.13]. The forms include a complaint for a temporary restraining order and injunction to restrain billing [see § 128.70] and a complaint for damages regarding the solicitation of an order [see § 128.71].

- Discount buying services [see § 128.14]. The forms include a complaint for damages and restitution [see § 128.80], an affirmative defense regarding limitation on recovery [see § 128.81], and an affirmative defense regarding unenforceability because of a statutory violation [see § 128.82].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

13-128 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 128.10

§ 128.10 Dance Studio Act and Health Studio Act

[1] Governing Law

Contracts for dance studio lessons and other services are governed by the Dance Studio Act [Civ. Code § 1812.50 et seq.]. Contracts for health studio services are governed by the Health Studio Act [Civ. Code § 1812.80 et seq.]. However, the provisions of the Dance Studio Act and the Health Studio Act are not exclusive and do not relieve the parties or the contracts subject to that statute from compliance with all other applicable provisions of law [Civ. Code §§ 1812.58, 1812.90].

Although the two acts deal with different types of contracts, their provisions are sufficiently similar to treat them together in this chapter.

[2] Purposes

The purposes of the Dance Studio Act (Civ. Code § 1812.50 et seq.) and the Health Studio Act (§ 1812.80 et seq.) are to safeguard the public against fraud, deceit, imposition, and financial hardship, and to foster and encourage competition, fair dealing, and prosperity in the field of dance studio lessons and other services and health studio services by prohibiting or restricting false or misleading advertising, onerous contract terms, harmful financial practices, and other unfair practices by which the public has been injured in connection with contracts for dance studio lessons and other services, and health studio services [Civ. Code §§ 1812.50(b) (Dance Studio Act), 1812.80(b) (Health Studio Act)].

[3] Noncomplying Contracts Void; Waivers Not Permitted

Any contracts for dance studio lessons and other services and health studio services that do not comply with the applicable provisions of the respective acts are void and unenforceable as contrary to public policy [Civ. Code §§ 1812.59 (Dance Studio Act), 1812.91 (Health Studio Act)]. In addition, any waiver of the buyer of the provisions of the Dance Studio Act or Health Studio Act is deemed contrary to public policy and is void and unenforceable [Civ. Code §§ 1812.61 (Dance Studio Act), 1812.93 (Health Studio Act)].

Nothing in the Health Studio Law is intended to prohibit month-to-month contracts [Civ. Code § 1812.98 (section is declaratory of existing law)].

[4] Definitions and Scope

[a] Contract for Dance Studio Lessons and Other Services

For purposes of the Dance Studio Act, "contract for dance studio lessons and other services" means a contract for instruction in ballroom or other types of dancing, and includes lessons and other services, whether given to students individually or in groups. It does not include contracts for professional services rendered or furnished by a person licensed in the healing arts, or contracts for instruction at schools operating pursuant to the provisions of the Education Code [Civ. Code § 1812.51].

The contract limitations in Civ. Code § 1812.53 (discussed in [5], below), the mandatory contract provision requirements of Civ. Code § 1812.54 (discussed in [6], below), Civ. Code § 1812.64, and the bond requirements of Civ. Code § 1812.65 (discussed in [11], below) do not apply to a dance studio that only offers instruction in ballet, modern, jazz, or tap dance, to persons under 21 years of age under a contract for dance studio lessons that provides all of the following [Civ. Code § 1812.67(b)]:

- A total payment of less than $500.
- That all agreed-on lessons will be offered within four months from the date the contract is entered.
- That the contract may be canceled and all money paid for instruction not yet received will be refunded within 10 days of cancellation, if the dance student cancels either (1) within three days after receiving the first lesson, or (2) any time after moving his or her residence more than 15 miles from the location of the dance studio.

Other exemptions from various provisions of the Act are discussed in conjunction with those topics, below.

[b] Contract for Health Studio Services

For purposes of the Health Studios Act, "contract for health studio services" means a contract for instruction, training, or assistance in physical culture, body building, exercising, reducing, figure development, or any such physical skill, or for the use by an individual patron of the facilities of a health studio, gymnasium, or other facility used for any of the above purposes, or for membership in any group, club, association, or organization formed for any of the above purposes [Civ. Code § 1812.81]. It does not include any of the following [Civ. Code § 1812.81]:

- Contracts for professional services rendered or furnished by a person licensed in the healing arts.
- Contracts for instruction at schools operating pursuant to the provisions of the Education Code.
- Contracts for instruction, training, or assistance relating to diet or control of eating habits not involving physical culture, body building, exercising,figure development, or any other such physical skill.

[5] Written Contract Required

Every contract for dance studio lessons and other services, and for health studio services, must be in writing and is subject to the provisions of the Dance Studio Act and the Health Studio Act, respectively. A copy of the written contract must be given to the customer at the time he or she signs the contract [Civ. Code §§ 1812.52 (Dance Studio Act), 1812.82 (Health Studio Act)].

[6] Limitations on Length and Amount of Contract

While lessons and other services to be rendered may extend over a period not to exceed seven years, no contract for dance studio lessons and other services may require payments or financing by the buyer over a period in excess of one year from the date the contract is entered into. The term of the contract cannot be measured by the life of the buyer [Civ. Code § 1812.53(a)].

A contract for health studio services may not require payment by the person receiving the services or the use of the facilities of a total amount in excess of $3,000 (rising to $4,400 on and after January 1, 2010), inclusive of initiation or initial membership fees and, exclusive of interest or finance charges [Civ. Code § 1812.86]. Further, the contract may not require payments or financing by the buyer over a period of more than three years, and may not have a term that exceeds three years; however, that does not apply to a member's obligation to pay a valid, outstanding debt due under the contract, including money to be paid pursuant to a termination notice period in the contract in which the termination notice period does not exceed 30 days [Civ. Code § 1812.84(a)]. The contract must include a statement, printed in at least 14-point type, that discloses the length of the term of the contract, and this statement must be placed above the space reserved for the buyer's signature [Civ. Code § 1812.84(b)].

All contracts for dance studio lessons and other services, and for health studio services, that may be in effect between the same seller and the same buyer, the terms of which overlap for any period, must be considered as one contract for the purposes of the Dance Studio Act and the Health Studio Act [Civ. Code §§ 1812.53(b) (Dance Studio Act), 1812.83 (Health Studio Act)].

The above provisions do not apply to dance studios that only teach ballet, modern, jazz, or tap dance, if they meet the other requirements of Civ. Code § 1812.67(b), discussed in [4][a], above, or to nonprofit organizations that have direct grants from the California Arts Council [Civ. Code § 1812.67(b), (c)].

[7] Commencement and Cancellation of Contract

[a] Dance Studio Lessons

Every contract for dance studio lessons and other services must provide that performance of the agreed-upon lessons will begin within six months from the date the contract is entered into [Civ. Code § 1812.54(a)]. Further, every contract may be canceled by the student at any time, provided the student gives written notice to the dance studio at the address specified in the contract. When a contract is canceled, the dance studio must compute any refund on a pro rata basis. A refund must be made within 10 days of receiving the cancellation notice, unless the student owes money for studio lessons or other services received before cancellation, in which case any money owed to the dance studio may be deducted from the refund and the balance, if any, must be refunded within 10 days. A dance studio may not charge a cancellation fee, or any other fee, for cancellation of the contract by the student [Civ. Code § 1812.54(b)].

The above provisions do not apply to dance studios that only teach ballet, modern, jazz, or tap dance, if they meet the other requirements of Civ. Code § 1812.67(b), discussed in [4][a], above, or to nonprofit organizations that have direct grants from the California Arts Council [Civ. Code § 1812.67(b), (c)].

[b] Health Studio Services

Every contract for health studio services must provide that performance of the agreed-upon services will begin within six months after the date the contract is entered into. The consumer may cancel the contract and receive a pro rata refund if the health studio fails to provide the specific facilities advertised or offered in writing by the time indicated. If no time is indicated in the contract, the consumer may cancel the contract within six months after the execution of the contract and must receive a pro rata refund. If a health studio fails to meet a timeline set forth in Civ. Code § 1812.85, the consumer may cancel the contract at any time after the expiration of the timeline, provided that if, following the expiration of the timeline, the health studio does provide the advertised or agreed-on services, the consumer may cancel the contract up to 10 days after those services are provided [Civ. Code § 1812.85(a)].

In addition, every contract for health studio services must contain on its face, and in close proximity to the space reserved for the signature of the buyer, a conspicuous statement in a size equal to at least 10-point boldface type, as follows [Civ. Code § 1812.85(b)(1)]:

> You, the buyer, may cancel this agreement at any time prior to midnight of the fifth business day of the health studio after the date of this agreement, excluding Sundays and holidays. To cancel this agreement, mail or deliver a signed and dated notice, or send a telegram which states that you, the buyer,are canceling this agreement, or words of similar effect. The notice shall be sent to, _____ [name of health studio operator] at _____ [address of health studio operator].

The contract must contain on the first page, in a type size no smaller than thatgenerally used in the body of the document, the name and address of the health studio operator to which the notice of cancellation is to be mailed, and the date the buyer signed the contract [Civ. Code § 1812.85(b)(2)]. The contract must provide a description of the services, facilities, and hours of access to which the consumer is entitled. Any services, facilities, and hours of access that are not described in the contract must be considered optional services, and these optional services must be considered as separate contracts for the purposes of the Health Studio Law and Civ. Code § 1812.83 [Civ. Code § 1812.85(b)(3)].

Until the health studio operator has complied with Civ. Code § 1812.85, the buyer may cancel the contract for health studio services [Civ. Code § 1812.85(b)(4)]. All money paid pursuant to a contract for health studio services must be refunded within 10 days after receipt of the notice of cancellation, except that payment must be made for any health studio services received prior to cancellation [Civ. Code § 1812.85(b)(5)].

If at any time during the term of the contract, including a transfer of the contractual obligation, the health studio eliminates or substantially reduces the scope of the facilities, such as swimming pools or tennis courts, that were described in the contract, in an advertisement relating to the specific location, or in a written offer, and available to the consumer on execution of the contract, the consumer may cancel the contract and receive a pro rata refund. The consumer may not cancel the contract for this reason if the health studio, after giving reasonable notice to its members, temporarily takes facilities out of operation for reasonable repairs, modifications, substitutions, or improvements. This cancellation privilege may not be interpreted to give the consumer the right to cancel a contract because of changes to the type or quantity of classes or equipment offered, provided the consumer is informed in the contract that the health studio reserves the right to make changes to the type or quantity of classes or equipment offered, and the changes to the type or quantity of classes or equipment offered are reasonable under the circumstances [Civ. Code § 1812.85(c)].

The person receiving services or the use of a facility under a contract for health studio services has the right to cancel the contract within any of the following time periods:

- Within 20 days after the contract is executed, if the contract requires payment of $1,500 to $2,000, inclusive, including initiation fees or initial membership fees [Civ. Code § 1812.85(d)(1)].

- Within 30 days after the contract is executed, if the contract requires payment of $2,001 to $2,500, inclusive, including initiation fees or initial membership fees [Civ. Code § 1812.85(d)(2)].

- Within 45 days after the contract is executed, if the contract requires payment of $2,501 or more, including initiation fees or initial membership fees [Civ. Code § 1812.85(d)(3)].

This right of cancellation must be set out in the membership contract [Civ. Code § 1812.85(d)(4)]. These rights and remedies are cumulative to any rights and remedies under other law [Civ. Code § 1812.85(d)(5)].

A health studio entering into a contract for health studio services that requires payment of less than $1,500, including initiation or initial membership fees and exclusive of interest or finance charges, by the person receiving the services or the use of the facilities, is not required to comply with the cancellation requirements in the preceding paragraph [Civ. Code § 1812.85(d)(6)].

On cancellation of a contract, the consumer is liable only for that portion of the total contract payment, including initiation fees and other charges however denominated, that has been available for use by the consumer, based on a pro rata calculation over the term of the contract. The remaining portion of the contract payment must be returned to the consumer by the health studio [Civ. Code § 1812.85(e)].

[8] Hourly Rate for Dance Studio Lessons

Every contract for dance studio lessons and other services must contain a written statement of the hourly rate charged for each type of lesson for which the student has contracted. If the contract includes dance studio lessons which are sold at different hourly rates, the contract must contain separate hourly rates for each different type of lesson sold. All other services for which the student has contracted which are not capable of an hourly charge must be set forth in writing in specific terms. This statement must be contained in the dance studio contract before the contract is signed by the buyer [Civ. Code § 1812.54(c)].

The above provisions do not apply to dance studios that only teach ballet, modern, jazz, or tap dance, if they meet the other requirements of Civ. Code § 1812.67(b), discussed in § 128.10[4][a], or to nonprofit organizations that have direct grants from the California Arts Council [Civ. Code § 1812.67(b), (c)].

[9] Limitations on Contract Obligations

[a] When Health Studio Facility Has Not Yet Opened

Generally, all money received by the seller of health studio services from a consumer for a health studio facility that has not yet opened for business must be held in trust and be deposited in a trust account established in a state or federally chartered bank or savings association. The seller may not draw, transfer, or encumber any of the money held in trust until five business days after the health studio facility has opened and the seller hasfully paid refunds to consumers who canceled their contracts as provided in Civ. Code § 1812.85 [see [7][b], above] or in the paragraph below [Civ. Code § 1812.96(a)].

In addition to any other cancellation rights, a consumer who pays any money under a contract for health studio services for a health studio facility that has not yet opened for business has the right to cancel the contract and receive a full refund at any time prior to midnight of the fifth business day after the date the health studio opens for business. This cancellation right must be set forth in the contract. The refund must be paid within 10 days of receipt of notice of cancellation [Civ. Code § 1812.96(b)].

A seller of health studio services may draw on money held in trust to pay refunds or may draw, transfer, or encumber funds to the extent that the amount is offset by a bond of equal or greater amount. The bond must be issued by a surety insurer admitted to do business in California and must be filed with the Secretary of State. The bond must be in favor of the State of California for the benefit of consumers harmed by a violation of the Health Studio Law [Civ. Code § 1812.96(c)].

The foregoing requirements do not apply to a seller of health studio services that is, at the time money is received from the consumer, operating at least five health studio facilities in California that have been in operation for a period of at least five years, and that has an excess of current assets over current liabilities of at least $1,000,000 [Civ. Code § 1812.96(d)].

[b] When Health Studio Services Recipient Moves

Unless expressly provided otherwise, every contract for health studio services must contain a clause providing that if the person agreeing to receive health studio services moves further than 25 miles from the health studio and is unable to transfer the contract to a comparable facility, that person is relieved from the obligation of making payment for services other than those received prior to the move, and if that person has prepaid any sum for health studio services, the amount of that sum that is allocable to services he or she has not taken must be promptly refunded [Civ. Code § 1812.89(b)(1)].

Alternatively, the contract may contain a clause providing that if the person agreeing to receive health studio services moves further than 25 miles from the health studio and is unable to transfer the contract to a comparable facility, that person may be charged a predetermined fee not exceeding $100, or, if more than half the life of the contract has expired, such person may be charged a predetermined fee not exceeding $50 [Civ. Code § 1812.89(b)(2)].

[10] Health Studio Contracts Including Finance Charges

Health studio contracts that include finance charges must conform to the provisions of the Unruh Retail Installment Sales Act [Civ. Code § 1801 et seq.]. Civ. Code § 1803.3 of that Act requires retail installment sales contracts to set forth total consideration, including the cash price, down payment, amount financed, and the finance charges [57 Ops. Cal. Att'y Gen. 394, 396 n.5 (1974)] . The formalities required by the Unruh Retail Installment Sales Act are discussed in Ch. 501, Sales: Retail Installment Sales , and in California Legal Forms, Ch. 45, Consumer Installment Loans and Credit Sales (Matthew Bender).

[11] Bonds or Cash Deposit Requirements Applicable to Dance Studios

Every dance studio subject to the provisions of Civ. Code §§ 1812.64 and 1864.65 (bond requirements) must include in every contract for dance studio lessons or other services a statement that the studio is bonded and that information concerning the bond may be obtained by writing to the office of the Secretary of State. If the studio has elected to make a cash deposit in lieu of procuring a bond, the contract must contain a description of the cash deposit [Civ. Code § 1812.54(d)]. For the bonding requirements, see Civ. Code §§ 1812.64-1812.67.

The above requirements do not apply to dance studios that bill or receive fees of less than $50 per month per student, or that only teach ballet, modern, jazz, or tap dance, if they meet the other requirements of Civ. Code § 1812.67(b), discussed in [4][a], above, or to nonprofit organizations that have direct grants from the California Arts Council [Civ. Code § 1812.67(b), (c)].

[12] Provisions Relating to Buyer's Rights or Defenses Against Third Parties

[a] Payment by Note

No contract for dance studio lessons and other services, or for health studio services, may require or entail the execution of any note or series of notes by the buyer which, when separately negotiated, will cut off any right of action or defense as to third parties which the buyer may have against the seller [Civ. Code §§ 1812.55 (Dance Studio Act), 1812.87 (Health Studio Act)]. This provision protects the buyer against the situation in which he or she separately negotiates a note for payment of dance studio and other services or health studio services with a third party, thereby preventing the buyer's assertion of defenses against the third party which he or she has against the seller.

[b] Assignment of Contract

No right of action or defense arising out of a contract for dance studio lessons and other services, or for health studio services, which the buyer has against the seller, and which would be cut off by assignment, may becut off by assignment of the contract to any third party whether or not he or she acquires the contract in good faith and for value, unless the assignee gives notice of the assignment to the buyer and, within 30 days of the mailing of the notice, receives no written notice of the facts giving rise to the claim or defense of the buyer. A notice of assignment must be in writing, addressed to the buyer at the address shown on the contract, and must identify the contract and inform the buyer that he or she must, within 30 days of the date of mailing of the notice, notify the assignee in writing of any facts giving rise to a claim or defense which she or he may have. The notice of assignment must state the name of the seller and buyer, a description of the lessons and other services, the contract balance, and the number and amount of the installments [Civ. Code §§ 1812.56 (Dance Studio Act), 1812.88 (Health Studio Act)].

[13] Relief From Payment on Death or Disability

Every contract for dance studio lessons and other services, or for health studio services, must contain a clause providing that if, by reason of death or disability, the person agreeing to receive the lessons and other services is unable to receive all the lessons or services for which he or she had contracted, he or she and his or her estate will be relieved from the obligation of making payment for the lessons or services other than those received prior to death or the onset of disability, and that if he or she has prepaid any sum for the lessons or services, as much of that sum as is allocable to the lessons or services he or she has not taken will be promptly refunded to him or her or his or her representative [Civ. Code §§ 1812.57(a) (Dance Studio Act), 1812.89(a)(1) (Health Studio Act)]. For the purpose of Civ. Code § 1812.89 (Health Studio Act), "disability" means a condition that precludes the buyer from physically using the facilities, and that is verified by a physician [Civ. Code § 1812.89(a)(3)].

In every case in which a person has prepaid a sum for services under a contract for health studio services, and, by reason of death or disability, is unable to receive all those services, the party agreeing to furnish those services, on request, must immediately refund to that person or the person's personal representative an amount of the prepaid sum proportionate to the amount of services that were not received [Civ. Code § 1812.89(a)(2) (Health Studio Act)]. Notwithstanding the provisions of any contract for health studio services to the contrary, whenever the contract price is payable in installments and the buyer is relieved from making further payments or to a refund, the amount of the contract price allocable to services not received must represent at least as great a proportion of the total contract price as the sum of the periodic monthly balances not yet due bears to the sum of all the periodic monthly balances under the schedule of installments in the contract [Civ. Code § 1812.89(a)(4) (Health Studio Act)].

Notwithstanding the provisions of any contract for dance studio lessons or other services to the contrary, whenever the contract price is payable in installments and the buyer is relieved from making further payments or entitled to a refund under Civ. Code § 1812.57, the buyer is entitled to receive a refund or refund credit or as much of the cash price as is allocable to the dance studio lessons or other services that the buyer did not actually receive. The refund of the finance charge must be computed according to the "sum of the balances method," also known as the "Rule of 78" [Civ. Code § 1812.57(b) (Dance Studio Act)]. Under this method, the sum of the digits representing the months of a year (1 to 12), which is 78, is the standard for measuring refunds. Financial publishing companies have printed tables to use in computing refunds based on the Rule of 78.

[14] Fraud Rendering Contract Void

Any contract for dance studio lessons and other services or for health studio services entered into in reliance on any willful and false, fraudulent or misleading information, representation, notice, or advertisement of the seller is void and unenforceable [Civ. Code §§ 1812.60 (Dance Studio Act), 1812.92 (Health Studio Act)].

[15] Action for Damages

Any buyer injured by a violation of the Dance Studio Act or the Health Studio Act may bring an action for the recovery of damages. Judgment may be entered for three times the amount at which the actual damages are assessed, plus reasonable attorney's fees [Civ. Code §§ 1812.62(a) (Dance Studio Act), 1812.94 (Health Studio Act)].

[16] Correction of Noncomplying Contract

Notwithstanding the provisions of the Dance Studio Act or the Health Studio Act, any failure to comply with either act may be corrected within 30 days after the buyer executes the contract and, if so corrected, neither the seller nor the holder is subject to any penalty under the appropriate act, provided that any correction which increases any monthly payment, the number of payments, or the total amount due must be concurred in, in writing, by the buyer. "Holder" includes the seller who acquires the contract, or, if the contract is purchased by a financing agency or other assignee, the financing agency or other assignee [Civ. Code §§ 1812.62(b) (Dance Studio Act), 1812.94(b) (Health Studio Act)].

[17] Statute of Limitations

Civ. Code § 1812.62 of the Dance Studio Act, which allows the court the option of granting judgment for treble damages, does not convert the statutory right of action into one for penal damages. Thus, an action under the Dance Studio Act is an action on a liability created by statute, otherthan a penalty or forfeiture, and the applicable period of limitation is three years under Code Civ. Proc. § 338 [Holland v. Nelson (1970) 5 Cal. App. 3d 308, 312-313, 85 Cal. Rptr. 117 ; but see Ashland Oil Co. of Cal. v. Union Oil Co. of Cal. (T.E.C.A., 1977) 567 F.2d 984, 991-993 ; G.H.I.I. v. MTS, Inc. (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 256, 278 n. 14, 195 Cal. Rptr. 211 (questioning Holland and applying separate limitations to recovery of actual damages (three-year limitation of Code Civ. Proc. § 338) and treble damages (one-year limitation of Code Civ. Proc. § 340(a)))].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

13-128 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 128.11

§ 128.11 Dating Service and Weight Loss Contracts

[1] Governing Law

Contracts for dating services are governed by Civ. Code § 1694 et seq. Contracts for weight loss are governed by Civ. Code § 1694.5 et seq. Because these statutes are substantially similar, they are discussed together in this section.

[2] Definitions

[a] Dating Service Contract

The phrase "dating service contract," as used in Civ. Code § 1694 et seq., is any contract with any organization that offers dating, matrimonial, or social referral services through the exchange of names, telephone numbers, addresses, and statistics; a photograph or video selection process; personal introductions provided by the organization at its place of business; or a social environment provided by the organization intended primarily as an alternative to other singles bars or club-type environments [Civ. Code § 1694].

[b] Weight Loss Contract

The phrase "weight loss contract," as used in Civ. Code § 1694.5 et seq., means a contract with any weight loss program or center that offers instruction, counseling, supervision, or assistance in weight reduction, body shaping, diet, and eating habits, by persons who are not licensed health care professionals; the use of facilities of a weight loss center for any such purposes; or membership in any group, club, association, or organization formed for any such purposes. "Weight loss contract" also includes a contract with any weight loss program or center that provides prepackaged or premeasured "diet foods" [Civ. Code § 1694.5(a)].

Contracts for health studio services, as defined in Civ. Code § 1812.81, are excepted from the definition of "weight loss contract" [Civ. Code § 1694.5(b); see discussion of health studio contracts in § 128.10].

[3] Contract Requirements

Every contract for dating services or weight loss must be in writing, and a copy must be provided to the buyer at the time the buyer signs the contract [Civ. Code §§ 1694.2(a) (dating services), 1694.7(a) (weight loss)].

The contract must contain on its face, and in close proximity to the space reserved for the signature of the buyer, a conspicuous statement in a size equal to at least 10-point boldface type that the buyer may cancel the agreement, without any penalty or obligation, at any time prior to midnight of the original contract seller's third business day following the date of the contract, excluding Sundays and holidays, by mailing or delivering to the seller a signed and dated notice, or a telegram, stating that the buyer is canceling the agreement [Civ. Code §§ 1694.2(b) (dating services), 1694.7(b) (weight loss)].

The agreement must contain on the first page, in a type size no smaller than that generally used in the body of the document, (1) the name and address of the dating service or weight loss program operator to whom the notice of cancellation is to be mailed, and (2) the date the buyer signed the contract [Civ. Code §§ 1694.2(c) (dating services), 1694.7(c) (weight loss)].

[4] Limitations on Payments for and Length of Contract

No contract for dating services or weight loss may require payments or financing by the buyer over a period in excess of two years from the date the contract is entered into, nor may the term of any such contract be measured by the life of the buyer [Civ. Code §§ 1694.2(d) (dating services), 1694.7(d) (weight loss)]. Nevertheless, the services to be rendered to the buyer under a dating services contract may extend over a period beginning within six months and ending within three years of the date the contract is entered into [Civ. Code § 1694.2(d)]. The services to be rendered to the buyer under a weight loss contract may not extend for more than three years after the date the contract is entered [Civ. Code § 1694.7(d)].

[5] Cancellation of Contract by Buyer

In addition to any other right to revoke an offer, the buyer has the right to cancel a dating service or weight loss contract or offer, until midnight of the third business day after the day on which the buyer signs an agreement or offer to purchase those services [Civ. Code §§ 1694.1(a) (dating services), 1694.6(a) (weight loss)].

Cancellation occurs when the buyer gives written notice of cancellation by mail, telegram, or delivery to the seller at the address specified in the agreement or offer [Civ. Code §§ 1694.1(b) (dating services), 1694.6(b) (weight loss)]. Notice of cancellation, if given by mail, is effective when deposited in the mail, properly addressed with postage prepaid [Civ. Code§§ 1694.1(c) (dating services), 1694.6(c) (weight loss)]. Notice of cancellation given by the buyer need not take the particular form provided in the contract or offer to purchase, and however expressed, is effective if it indicates the intention of the buyer not to be bound by the contract [Civ. Code §§ 1694.1(d) (dating services), 1694.6(d) (weight loss)].

Although the buyer may notify the dating service or weight loss program of his or her intent to cancel the contract within the three-day period, and stop the processing of a credit card voucher or check by telephone notification to the dating service or weight loss program, this does not negate the buyer's obligation to cancel the contract by mail, telegram, or delivery as required by Civ. Code § 1694.1 or Civ. Code § 1694.6 [Civ. Code §§ 1694.1(f) (dating services), 1694.6(f) (weight loss)].

If a contract is not in compliance with Civ. Code §§ 1694-1694.4 (dating services) or Civ. Code §§ 1694.5-1649.9 (weight loss), the buyer may cancel the contract at any time [Civ. Code §§ 1694.2(e) (dating services), 1694.7(e) (weight loss); see Civ. Code §§ 1694.4(a), 1694.9(a) (noncomplying contracts void and unenforceable), and discussion in [8][a], below].

[6] Refund of Payments

Within 10 days of receipt of a notice of cancellation of a dating service or weight loss contract, all moneys paid pursuant to the contract must be refunded [Civ. Code §§ 1694.1(e) (dating services), 1694.6(e) (weight loss)].

Notwithstanding the provisions of any contract to the contrary, whenever the contract price is payable in installments and the buyer is relieved from making further payments or entitled to a refund pursuant to Civ. Code § 1694 et seq. (dating services) or 1694.5 et seq. (weight loss), the buyer is entitled to receive a refund or refund credit of that portion of the cash price as is allocable to the services not actually received by the buyer. The refund of any finance charge must be computed according to the "sum of the balance method," also known as the "Rule of 78" [Civ. Code §§ 1694.4(d) (dating services), 1694.9(d) (weight loss)]. Financial publishing companies have printed tables to use in computing refunds based on the Rule of 78.

[7] Relief From Payment

[a] Death or Disability of Buyer

Every dating service and weight loss contract must contain language providing that if, by reason of death or disability, the buyer is unable to receive all services for which he or she has contracted, the buyer and his or her estate may elect to be relieved of the obligation to make payments for services other than those received before death or the onset of disability. If the buyer, however, is disabled, and his or her physician determines that the duration of the disability will be less than six months, the seller may extend the term of the contract for a period of six months at no additional charge to the buyer in lieu of cancellation. If the buyer has prepaid any amount for services, so much of the amount prepaid as is allocable to services that the buyer has not received must be promptly refunded to the buyer or his or her representative [Civ. Code §§ 1694.3(a) (dating services), 1694.8(a) (weight loss)].

The term "disability," as used in Civ. Code § 1694.3(a) (dating services) or Civ. Code § 1694.8(a) (weight loss), means a condition that precludes the buyer from physically using the services specified in the contract during the term of disability, which is verified in writing by a physician designated and remunerated by the buyer. The physician's written verification must be presented to the seller [Civ. Code §§ 1694.3(a)(2) (dating services), 1694.8(a)(2) (weight loss)].

[b] Relocation of Buyer

If the buyer relocates his or her primary residence further than 50 miles from the dating service office or weight loss center and is unable to transfer the contract to a comparable facility, he or she may elect to be relieved of the obligation to make payment for services other than those received prior to the relocation. If the buyer has prepaid any amount for dating or weight loss services, so much of the amount prepaid that is allocable to services not received by the buyer must be promptly refunded to him or her. A buyer who elects to be relieved of further obligation on relocation may be charged a predetermined fee not to exceed $100 or, if more than half the life of the contract has expired, a predetermined fee not to exceed $50 [Civ. Code §§ 1694.3(b) (dating services), 1694.8(b) (weight loss)].

[8] Noncompliance With Statutes; Fraudulent or Misleading Information

Any contract for dating services or weight loss that does not comply with Civ. Code § 1694 et seq. (dating services) or Civ. Code § 1694.5 et seq. (weight loss), or that is entered into under willful and fraudulent or misleading information or advertisements of the seller, is void and unenforceable [Civ. Code §§ 1694.4 (dating services), 1694.9 (weight loss)].

When language required by Civ. Code § 1694 et seq. is omitted from a dating services contract, and the requirement is "central to the policy of th[os]e statutes," an arbitration provision in the contract is unenforceable under California law, because the statutory scheme expressly provides that contracts omitting the required language are void and unenforceable [Duffens v. Valenti (2008) 161 Cal. App. 4th 434, 456, 74 Cal. Rptr. 3d 311] . (This would not be true if the Federal Arbitration Act applied in lieu of California law [Duffens v. Valenti (2008) 161 Cal. App. 4th 434, 451, 74 Cal. Rptr. 3d 311]).

[9] Provisions Not Waivable

Any waiver by the buyer of the provisions of Civ. Code § 1694 et seq. (dating services) or 1694.5 et seq. (weight loss) is void and unenforceable [Civ. Code §§ 1694.4(e) (dating services), 1694.9(e) (weight loss)].

[10] Action for Damages

Any buyer injured by a violation of Civ. Code § 1694 et seq. (dating services) or 1694.5 et seq. (weight loss) may bring an action for the recovery of damages in a court of competent jurisdiction. Judgment may be enteredfor three times the amount at which the actual damages are assessed, and reasonable attorney's fees may be awarded to the prevailing party [Civ. Code §§ 1694.4(c) (dating services), 1694.9(c) (weight loss)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

13-128 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 128.12

§ 128.12 Home and Seminar Sales Solicitation Contracts

[1] Governing Law

Home solicitation contracts or offers are governed by Civ. Code §§ 1689.5-1689.14 and Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17500.3 and 17533.8. These code sections also apply to the kinds of home solicitation contracts classified as either "home improvement contracts" or "service and repair contracts" [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 7151.2, 7159.10 (definitions)]. For discussion, procedures, and forms for the latter types of contracts, see Ch. 104, Building Contracts .

Some provisions in Civ. Code §§ 1689.5-1689.14 apply exclusively to what are known as "home improvement contracts" [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 7151.2 (definition)], including the low-cost kind known as "service and repair contracts" [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 7159.10 (definition)]. For discussion of the regulation of home improvement contracts, see Ch. 104, Building Contracts, § 104.100 et seq.

Seminar sales solicitation contracts or offers are governed by Civ. Code §§ 1689.20-1689.24. The sections governing seminar sales solicitation contracts or offers are declaratory of existing law with respect to contracts made at seminars held at locations other than appropriate trade premises, as defined in Civ. Code § 1689.5(b) [Stats. 1989, ch. 724, § 6].

[2] Definitions

[a] Home Solicitation Contract

A "home solicitation contract or offer" as used in Civ. Code §§ 1689.5-1689.14 (home solicitation contracts) is any contract, whether single or multiple, or any offer that is subject to approval, for the sale, lease, or rental of goods or services or both, made at other than appropriate trade premises in an amount of $25 or more, including any interest or service charges. A home solicitation contract does not include any contract under which the buyer has the right to rescind pursuant to 15 U.S.C. § 1635 (or that statute's implementing regulations), relating to credit transactions secured, or to be secured, by real property [Civ. Code § 1689.5(a)].

A home solicitation contract or offer also includes a contract or offer for the purchase of a "personal emergency response unit" [see Civ. Code § 1689.6(b),(g); see also [3], below].

The term also encompasses a contract or offer for the sale, lease, or rental of a water treatment device, as defined in Bus. & Prof. Code § 17577.1(b), if the contract or offer is subject to approval, regardless of where the contract or offer was made. Such an offer or contract is subject to the provisions of Civ. Code §§ 1689.5-1689.14 if it arises out of a scheduled presentation to promote the sale, lease, or rental of a water treatment device to a person invited to attend the presentation at a location other than a private residence [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17577.3(a)]. No water treatment device or any other materials that are the subject of a contract offer described in Bus. & Prof. Code § 17577.3(a) may be delivered, and no installation or other service may be performed until the expiration of the rescission period provided by Civ. Code §§ 1689.5-1689.14 [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17577.3(b); for discussion of other provisions relating to water treatment devices, see Ch. 14, Advertising]. The form in § 128.60 may be modified for use in bringing the civil action authorized by Bus. & Prof. Code § 17577.6

[b] Appropriate Trade Premises

The phrase "appropriate trade premises" means premises where either the owner or seller normally carries on a business, or where goods are normally offered or exposed for sale in the course of a business carried on at those premises [Civ. Code § 1689.5(b)].

[c] Seminar Sales Solicitation Contract

The phrase "seminar sales solicitation contract or offer" as used in Civ. Code §§ 1689.20-1689.24 means any contract, whether single or multiple, or any offer that is subject to approval, for the sale, lease, or rental of goods or services or both, made using selling techniques in a seminar setting in an amount of $25 or more, including any interest or service charges. "Seminar sales solicitation contract" does not include any contract under which the buyer has the right to rescind pursuant to 15 U.S.C. § 1635 or its implementing regulations, relating to credit transactions secured, or to be secured, by real property; nor does it include any contract that contains a written and dated statement signed by the prospective buyer stating that the negotiation between the parties was initiated by the prospective buyer [Civ. Code § 1689.24(a)].

[d] Seminar Setting

"Seminar setting" means premises other than the residence of the buyer [Civ. Code § 1689.24(b)].

[e] Goods

"Goods" for purposes of home and seminar sales solicitation contracts means tangible chattels bought for use primarily for personal, family, or household purposes, including certificates or coupons exchangeable for these goods, and including goods which, at the time of the sale or subsequently, are to be so affixed to real property as to become a part of the realproperty whether or not severable from the property. The term does not include any vehicle required to be registered under the Vehicle Code, nor any goods sold with a vehicle if sold under a contract governed by Civ. Code § 2982, relating to conditional sales contracts for motor vehicles. Also excepted from the definition of "goods" is any mobilehome, as defined in Health & Safety Code § 18008, and all goods sold with this mobilehome if either is sold under a contract subject to Health & Safety Code § 18036.5 [Civ. Code §§ 1689.5(c), 1689.24(c)].

[f] Services

"Services" means work, labor, and services, including, but not limited to, services furnished in connection with the repair, restoration, alteration, or improvement of residential premises, or services furnished in connection with the sale or repair of goods as defined in Civ. Code § 1802.1 (definition of goods applicable to Unruh Act), and courses of instruction, regardless of the purpose for which they are taken. The definition does not include the services of attorneys, real estate brokers and salespersons, securities dealers or investment counselors, physicians, optometrists, or dentists, nor financial services offered by banks, savings institutions, credit unions, industrial loan companies, personal property brokers, consumer finance lenders, or commercial finance lenders, organized pursuant to state or federal law, that are not connected with the sale of goods or services, as defined in Civ. Code §§ 1689.5(c), (d), 1689.24(c), (d) [Civ. Code §§ 1689.5(d), 1689.24(d)].

Also excepted from the definition of "services" are the sale of insurance that is not connected with the sale of goods or services as defined in Civ. Code §§ 1689.5(c), (d), 1689.24(c), (d), services in connection with the sale or installation of mobilehomes or of goods sold with a mobilehome if either are sold or installed under a contract subject to Health & Safety Code § 18036.5, and services for which the tariffs, rates, charges, costs, or expenses, including in each instance the time sale price, is required by law to be filed with and approved by the federal government or any official, department, division, commission, or agency of the United States or the State of California [Civ. Code §§ 1689.5(d), 1689.24(d)].

[g] Business Day

For purposes of home and seminar sales solicitation contracts, "business day" means any calendar day except Sunday, New Year's Day, Washington's Birthday, Memorial Day, Independence Day, Labor Day, Columbus Day, Veterans' Day, Thanksgiving Day, and Christmas Day [Civ. Code §§ 1689.5(e), 1689.24(e)].

[3] Buyer's Right to Cancel Contract

In addition to any other right to revoke an offer, the buyer has the right to cancel a home or seminar sales solicitation contract or offer until midnight of the third "business day" after the day on which the buyer signs an agreement or offer to purchase that complies with Civ. Code § 1689.7 (requirements of home solicitation contracts) or 1689.21 (requirements of seminar sales solicitation contracts) [Civ. Code §§ 1689.6(a)(1), 1689.20(a)].

A consumer also has the right to cancel a home solicitation contract or offer for the purchase of a personal emergency response unit until midnight of the seventh business day after the day on which the buyer signs an agreement or offer to purchase that complies with Civ. Code § 1689.7 [Civ. Code § 1689.6(b),(g)]. However, this seven day cancellation right does not apply to a personal emergency response unit installed with, and as part of, a home security alarm system subject to the Alarm Company Act (Bus. & Prof. Code § 7590 et seq.) that has two or more stationary protective devices used to enunciate an intrusion or fire and that is installed by an alarm company operator operating under a current license issued under the Alarm Company Act. For personal emergency response units that meet these specifications, the three day cancellation provision in Civ. Code § 1689.6(a) applies [Civ. Code § 1689.6(b)].

In addition to any other right to revoke an offer, the buyer has the right to cancel a home solicitation contract or offer for the repair or restoration of residential premises damaged by a disaster that would not be void in accordance with Civ. Code § 1689.14 [see [9][c], below], until midnight of the seventh business day after the buyer signs and dates the contract, unless Civ. Code § 1689.15, which relates to contracts classified as "service and repair contracts," is applicable [Civ. Code § 1689.6(c)]. For discussion of the rules governing service and repair contracts [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 7159.10 (definition)], see Ch. 104, Building Contracts .

Cancellation occurs when the buyer gives written notice of cancellation to the seller at the address specified in the agreement or offer [Civ. Code §§ 1689.6(d), 1689.20(b)]. Notice of cancellation, if given by mail, is effective when deposited in the mail properly addressed with postage prepaid [Civ. Code §§ 1689.6(e), 1689.20(c)]. Notice of cancellation given by the buyer need not take the particular form as provided in the contract or offer to purchase, and however expressed, is effective if it indicates the intention of the buyer not to be bound by the home contract or offer [Civ. Code §§ 1689.6(f), 1689.20(d)].

Until the seller has complied with Civ. Code § 1689.7 (home solicitation contracts) or 1689.21 (seminar sales solicitation contracts), relating to the contents and execution of the contract [see [4], below], the buyer may cancel the contract or offer [Civ. Code §§ 1689.7(g), 1689.21(e)].

[4] Requirements of Contract or Offer

[a] General Requirements

In a home or seminar sales solicitation contract or offer, the buyer's agreement or offer to purchase must be written in the same language thatwas principally used in the oral sales presentation, must be dated, signed by the buyer, and must contain, in immediate proximity to the space reserved for his or her signature, a conspicuous statement in a size equal to at least 10-point boldface type that the buyer may cancel the transaction at any time prior to midnight of the third business day after the date of the transaction, with a reference to the attached notice of cancellation [Civ. Code §§ 1689.7(a)(1), 1689.21(a)]. The statement required pursuant to Civ. Code § 1689.7 for a home solicitation contract or offer for purchase of a personal emergency response unit that is not subject to the Alarm Company Act [see discussion [3], above] must inform the buyer that he or she may cancel the transaction at any time before midnight of the seventh business day after the date of the transaction, with a reference to the attached notice of cancellation [Civ. Code § 1689.7(a)(2)]. The statement required by Civ. Code § 1689.7 for the repair or restoration of residential premises damaged by a disaster in accordance with Civ. Code § 1689.6(c) [see [3], above] must inform the buyer that he or she may cancel the transaction at any time before midnight of the seventh business day after the date of the transaction, with a reference to the attached notice of cancellation [Civ. Code § 1689.7(a)(3)].

The agreement or offer to purchase must contain on the first page, in a type size no smaller than that generally used in the body of the document, (1) the name and address of the seller to whom the notice is to be mailed; and (2) the date the buyer signed the agreement or offer to purchase [Civ. Code §§ 1689.7(b), 1689.21(b)].

[b] Notice of Cancellation

The agreement or offer to purchase must be accompanied by a completed form in duplicate, captioned "Notice of Cancellation." The notice of cancellation must be attached to the agreement or offer to purchase, and be easily detachable. It must be written in the same language as used in the contract, and be printed in at least 10-point type [Civ. Code §§ 1689.7(c), 1689.21(c); see Civ. Code § 1689.7(d) (notice of cancellation requirements applicable to agreement or offer to purchase personal emergency response unit)]. For a form for the notice of cancellation, see California Legal Forms, Ch. 77, Discharge of Obligations (Matthew Bender).

[c] Copy of Contract; Oral Notice of Right to Cancel

The seller must provide the buyer with a copy of the contract or offer to purchase and the attached notice of cancellation and must inform the buyer orally of his or her right to cancel at the time the home solicitation or seminar sales contract or offer is executed [Civ. Code §§ 1689.7(f), 1689.21(d)].

[5] Goods Affixed to Realty in Home Solicitation Contract

If the goods sold under any home solicitation contract are so affixed to real property as to become a part of the real property, whether or not severable from it, the buyer does not have the right to cancel as provided in Civ. Code § 1689.6 or 1689.7 if, after he or she signs the contract, he or she has sold or encumbered the real property to a bona fide purchaser or encumbrancer who was not a party to the sale of goods or to any loan agreement in connection with the property [Civ. Code § 1689.9].

[6] Refund of Payments

Within 10 days after a home or seminar sales solicitation contract or offer has been canceled, the seller must tender to the buyer any payments made by the buyer and any note or other evidence of indebtedness [Civ. Code §§ 1689.10(a), 1689.22(a)]. If the downpayment includes goods traded in, the goods must be tendered in substantially as good condition as when received [Civ. Code §§ 1689.10(b), 1689.22(b)]. Until the seller has complied with the obligations imposed by Civ. Code §§ 1689.7-1689.24 (home solicitation contracts) and 1689.20-1689.24 (seminar sales solicitation contracts), the buyer may retain possession of goods that the buyer has delivered to the seller, and has a lien on the goods for any recovery to which he or she is entitled [Civ. Code § 1689.10(c), 1689.22(c)].

[7] Return of Goods to Seller

[a] Requirements for Tender

Except as provided in Civ. Code §§ 1689.10(c) and 1689.22(c) (retention of goods by buyer), within 20 days after a home solicitation contract or offer has been canceled, the buyer, on demand, must tender to the seller any goods delivered by the seller pursuant to the sale or offer, but the buyer is not obligated to tender at any place other than his or her own address. If the seller fails to demand possession of goods within 20 days after cancellation, the goods become the property of the buyer without obligation to pay for them [Civ. Code § 1689.11(a), 1689.23(a)].

[b] Buyer's Duty of Care

The buyer has a duty to take reasonable care of the goods in his or her possession both prior to cancellation and during the 20-day period following cancellation. During the 20-day period after cancellation, except for the buyer's duty of care, the goods are held at the seller's risk [Civ. Code §§ 1689.11(b), 1689.23(b)].

[8] Services Performed by Seller Prior to Cancellation

If the seller has performed any services under a home or seminar sales solicitation contract or offer prior to cancellation, the seller is not entitledto any compensation. If the seller's services result in the alteration of property of the buyer, the seller must restore the property to substantially as good condition as it was at the time the services were rendered [Civ. Code §§ 1689.11(c), 1689.23(c)].

[9] Special Rules for Home Solicitation Contracts

[a] Waiver and Confession of Judgment

Any waiver or confession of judgment of the provisions of Civ. Code §§ 1689.5-1689.14 (home solicitation contracts) is deemed contrary to public policy and is void and unenforceable [Civ. Code § 1689.12].

[b] Emergency Services

The provisions of Civ. Code §§ 1689.5-1689.7 (home solicitation contracts) and 1689.10-1689.14 (cancellation of home solicitation contracts and waiver or confession of judgment) do not apply to a contract that is initiated by the buyer or his or her agent or insurance representative and that is executed in connection with the making of emergency or immediate-necessity repairs or services that are necessary for the immediate protection of persons or real or personal property, provided that the buyer furnishes the seller with a separate dated and signed personal statement describing the situation requiring immediate remedy and expressly acknowledging and waiving the right to cancel the sale within or seven business days, whichever applies [Civ. Code § 1689.13].

[c] Residential Premises Damaged by Disaster

A home solicitation contract or offer for repair or restoration of residential premises signed by the buyer on or after the date a disaster [see Civ. Code § 1689.14(b) (disaster defined)] causes damage to residential premises, but not later than midnight of the seventh business day after that date, is void, unless the buyer or his or her agent or insurance representative solicited the contract or offer at the appropriate trade premises of the seller. Such a contract is not void, however, if solicited by the buyer or his or her agent or insurance representative, regardless of where the contract is made. Buyer solicitation includes a telephone call from the buyer to the appropriate trade premises of the seller, whether or not the call is in response to a prior home solicitation [Civ. Code § 1689.14(a)].

[d] Identification of Solicitor Required

It is unlawful for any person [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500.3(f) (defining "person")] to solicit a sale or order for the sale of goods or services at the residence of a prospective buyer, in person or by means of telephone, without clearly, affirmatively, and expressly revealing at the time the person initially contacts the prospective buyer, and before making any other statement (except a greeting) or asking the prospective buyer any other questions, that the purpose of the contract is to effect a sale. To comply with this requirement, the solicitor must do all of the following [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500.3(a)]:

- State the identity of the person making the solicitation.
- State the trade name of the person represented by the person making the solicitation.
- State the kind of goods or services being offered for sale.
- In the case of an "in person" contact, showing or displaying identification that states the information required by the first two listed items above, as well as the address of the place of business of one of the persons so identified.

Any rights under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500.3(c), relating to intentional violations [see [h], below], are waived if, after the signing of the contract, the party bound by the contract states that identification was given [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500.3(c)].

[e] Improper Plan or Scheme

It is unlawful for any person, in soliciting a sale or order for the sale of goods or services at the residence of a prospective buyer, in person or by telephone, to use any plan, scheme, or ruse that misrepresents his or her true status or mission for the purpose of making the sale or order for the sale of goods or services [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500.3(b)].

[f] Demand for Termination

In order to bring an action against the person represented by the person making the solicitation, the aggrieved party must have demanded, in writing, that the person represented by the solicitor terminate the contract and return any and all payments made thereunder. The person represented by the solicitor must have refused to terminate the contract and return the payments within a reasonable time [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500.3(c)].

Persons represented by the person making the solicitation must keep and maintain copies of all demands for termination of contract for violation of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500.3 for a period of one year from the date of receipt. Failure to maintain the records creates a presumption affecting the burden of proof that demand for termination had been properly made [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500.3(d)].

[g] Return of Goods Received

If the person represented by the person making the solicitation elects to terminate the contract, he or she must return to the aggrieved party payments received for any and all goods and for services not rendered. On return of the payments, the aggrieved party must return any and all goods received under the contract. For these purposes, a reasonable time means 20 business days from the date of demand [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500.3(c)].

[h] Damages for Intentional Violation

The intentional violation of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500.3 entitles persons bound to a contract, if there was a sales approach or presentation or both in which a violation of this section took place, to damages of two times the amount of the sale price or up to $250, whichever is greater. In no case may the damages be less than $50 [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500.3(c)]. Any rights under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500.3(c), relating to intentional violations [see [h], below], are waived, however, if, after the signing the contract, the party bound by the contract states that identification was given [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500.3(c); see [d], above].

[i] Defense to Imposition of Penalty

A defendant may raise as a defense to the imposition of a penalty for violation of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500.3 that he or she did not commit the act or acts constituting the offense and that he or she did not know, and with the exercise of reasonable care could not have known, that the act constituting the violation was committed [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500.3(e)].

[10] Prize or Gift Offer

It is unlawful for any person to offer, by mail, by telephone, in person, or by any other means or in any other form, including over the Internet, a prize or gift, with the intent to offer a sales presentation, without disclosing at the time of the offer of the prize or gift, in a clear and unequivocal manner, the intent to offer that sales presentation [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17533.8(a)]. This does not apply, however, to the publisher of any newspaper, periodical, or other publication, or any radio or television broadcaster, or the owner or operator of any cable, satellite, or other medium of communications who broadcasts or publishes, including over the Internet, an advertisement or offer in good faith, without knowledge of a violation [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17533.8(b)].

[11] Injunctive Relief

Any person or entity that violates or proposes to violate the statutes concerning advertising [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500 et seq.] may be enjoined by any court of competent jurisdiction. The court may make whatever orders or judgments, including for the appointment of a receiver, may be necessary to prevent the use or employment by any person or entity of any practices that violate these statutes, or that may be necessary to restore to any interested person any money or property, real or personal, which may have been acquired by means of any practice declared in Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500 et seq. to be unlawful. Actions for injunction may be prosecuted by the Attorney General or any district attorney, county counsel, city attorney, or city prosecutor in California in the name of the people of the State of California on their own complaint or on the complaint of any board, officer, person, corporation, or association or by any person who has suffered injury in fact and has lost money or property as a result of a violation of the False Advertising Law; but a private plaintiff may pursue representative claims or relief on behalf of others only if the plaintiff meets that standing requirement and complies with Code Civ. Proc. § 382 concerning class-action certification [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17535].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

13-128 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 128.13

§ 128.13 Unsolicited Goods or Services

[1] Governing Law

Sending voluntary and unsolicited goods or providing voluntary and unsolicited services is governed by Civ. Code § 1584.5. The effect of termination of membership in an organization making retail sales is governed by Civ. Code § 1584.6. Solicitations disguised as bills are covered by Civ. Code § 1716.

Mailing of unordered merchandise is also governed by federal law [39 U.S.C. § 3009]. For further discussion of the federal provisions, see [7], below.

[2] Unsolicited Goods or Services

No person, entity, agent, or employee may offer for sale goods, wares, merchandise, or services, if the offer includes the voluntary and unsolicited sending or providing of those goods, wares, merchandise, or services not actually ordered or requested by the recipient orally or in writing. The receipt of any such goods, wares, merchandise, or services will be deemed for all purposes to be an unconditional gift to the recipient, who may use or dispose of the goods, wares, merchandise, or services in any manner he or she sees fit without any obligation on his or her part to the sender [Civ. Code § 1584.5].

With respect to merchandise or services offered for sale through the mail, the "voluntary and unsolicited sending or providing of goods, wares, merchandise, or services not actually ordered or requested by the recipient, either orally or in writing," includes any merchandise or services selected by the company and offered to the consumer that will be mailed to him or her for sale or on approval or provided to him or her unless he or she exercises an option to reject such an offer of sale or receipt on approval. Merchandise or services selected by the seller and offered for sale on a periodic basis must be affirmatively ordered by a statement or card signed by the consumer as to each periodic offer of merchandise or services [Civ. Code § 1584.5].

[3] Contractual Plans Not Governed by Statute

[a] Subscriptions, Standing Orders, and Similar Arrangements

Civ. Code § 1584.5 does not apply to contractual plans or arrangements such as continuity plans, subscription arrangements, standing order arrangements, supplements, and series arrangements under which the seller periodically ships merchandise to a consumer who has consented in advance to receive that merchandise on a periodic basis [Civ. Code § 1584.5(b)].

[b] Arrangements Involving Form or Announcement Card Instructing Seller Not to Ship Merchandise

Civ. Code § 1584.5 also is inapplicable to contractual plans or arrangements under which the seller periodically provides the consumer with a form or announcement card which the consumer may use to instruct the seller not to ship the offered merchandise. Any instructions not to ship merchandise included on such a form or card must be printed in type as large as all other instructions and terms stated on the form or card. Theform or card must specify a date by which it must be mailed by the consumer (the "mailing date") or received by the seller (the "return date") to prevent shipment of the offered merchandise. The seller must mail the form or card either at least 25 days prior to the return date or at least 20 days prior to the mailing date, or provide a mailing date of at least 10 days after receipt by the consumer, except that whichever system the seller chooses for mailing the form or card must be calculated to afford the consumer at least 10 days in which to mail his or her form or card. The form or card must be preaddressed to the seller so that it may serve as a postal reply card or, alternatively, must be accompanied by a return envelope addressed to the seller [Civ. Code § 1584.5(a)].

On the membership contract or application form, or on the same page and immediately adjacent to the contract or form, in clear and conspicuous language, the seller must disclose the material terms of the plan or arrangement including all of the following [Civ. Code § 1584.5(a)]:

- That aspect of the plan under which the subscriber must notify the seller, in the manner provided for by the seller, if he or she does not wish to purchase or receive the selection.
- Any obligation assumed by the subscriber to purchase a minimum quantity of merchandise.
- The right of a contract-complete subscriber to cancel his or her membership at any time.
- Whether billing charges will include an amount for postage and handling.

[4] Termination of Membership in Organization Making Retail Sales

If a person is a member of an organization that makes retail sales of any goods, wares, or merchandise to its members, and the person notifies the organization of his or her termination of membership by certified mail, return receipt requested, any unordered goods, wares, or merchandise sent to the person after 30 days following execution of the return receipt for the certified letter by the organization will be deemed for all purposes unconditional gifts to the person, who may use or dispose them in any manner he or she sees fit without any obligation on his or her part to the organization [Civ. Code § 1584.6].

If the termination of a person's membership in such an organization breaches any agreement with the organization, nothing in Civ. Code § 1584.6 relieves the person from liability for damages to which he or she might be otherwise subjected pursuant to law, but he or she will not be subject to any damages with respect to any goods, wares, or merchandise which are deemed unconditional gifts as described above [Civ. Code § 1584.6].

[5] Action to Enjoin Billing for Gifts

If, after any receipt of goods deemed to be an unconditional gift under Civ. Code § 1584.5 or 1584.6, the sender continues to send bill statements or requests for payment, an action may be brought by the recipient to enjoin such conduct. In such an action, reasonable attorney's fees and costs may also be awarded to the prevailing party [Civ. Code §§ 1584.5, 1584.6].

[6] Solicitation Disguised as Bill or Invoice

It is unlawful for any person to solicit payment of money by another by means of a written statement or invoice, or any writing that could reasonably be considered a bill, invoice, or statement of account due, but is in fact a solicitation for an order, unless the solicitation conforms to the following requirements [Civ. Code § 1716(a)]. The solicitation must bear on its face the following disclaimer prescribed by 39 U.S.C. § 3001(d)(2)(A) [Civ. Code § 1716(b)]:

> "This is a solicitation for the order of goods or services, or both, and not a bill, invoice, or statement of account due. You are under no obligation to make any payments on account of this offer unless you accept this offer."

Alternatively, the following notice may be used [Civ. Code § 1716(b) (also specifying type size and color of notice)]:

> "THIS IS NOT A BILL. THIS IS A SOLICITATION. YOU ARE UNDER NO OBLIGATION TO PAY THE AMOUNT STATED ABOVE UNLESS YOU ACCEPT THIS OFFER."

The disclaimer or notice must be displayed conspicuously apart from other print on the page, and may not be rendered unintelligible by folding or otherwise [Civ. Code § 1716(c), (d)]. If the solicitation is longer than one page or if any page is designed to be separated, the notice or disclaimer must be displaced in its entirety on each page or portion of a page that might be considered a bill, invoice, or statement of account [Civ. Code § 1716(e)].

Any person damaged by noncompliance with the above requirement is entitled to damages in any amount equal to three times the sum solicited, in addition to any other remedies [Civ. Code § 1716]. In addition, any person who violates Civ. Code § 1716 is liable for a civil penalty of up to $10,000 for each violation, recoverable in a civil action brought in the name of the people of the state by the Attorney General or a district attorney, county counsel, or city attorney [Civ. Code § 1716]. A violation of Civ. Code § 1716 also is a misdemeanor [Civ. Code § 1716(g)]. A violation of these requirements may result in a civil penalty in an action brought in the name of the people of the State of California, imprisonment in the county jail, and/or a fine [Civ. Code § 1716(h), (i)].

[7] Federal Prohibition Against Mailing of Unordered Merchandise

The mailing of unordered merchandise or of bills for unordered merchandise or of dunning communications, except for free samples clearly and conspicuously marked and merchandise mailed by charitable organizations soliciting contributions, is an unfair method of competition and an unfair trade practice in violation of 15 U.S.C. § 45(a)(1) [39 U.S.C. § 3009(a)]. Any merchandise described above which is received by mail may be treated as a gift by the recipient who has the right to retain, use, discard, or dispose of it in any manner desired without any obligation to the sender [39 U.S.C. § 3009(b)].

Since the federal and California statutes are not contradictory and the federal law does not specifically preempt state authority, a plaintiff probably can choose whether to bring an action under federal law for unfair competition or an action under California law for an injunction. However, at the present time there is no case authority on this particular issue.

The sections in both federal and state statutes providing that unordered merchandise sent to a person may be regarded as a gift are almost identical, with only a few differences in wording. For example, 39 U.S.C. § 3009 refers to merchandise "mailed" and Civ. Code § 1584.5 refers to merchandise "sent." Thus, the California section might encompass more situations, such as when merchandise is received by a means other than mail.

For a discussion and forms relating to unfair methods of competition, see Ch. 565, Unfair Competition .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

13-128 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 128.14

§ 128.14 Discount Buying Services

[1] Governing Law

Contracts for discount buying services are governed by Civ. Code § 1812.100 et seq. Any waiver by the buyer of the provisions of Civ. Code § 1812.100 et seq. is deemed contrary to public policy and is void and unenforceable [Civ. Code § 1812.127].

[2] Purpose

The purpose of Civ. Code § 1812.100 et seq. is to safeguard the public against fraud, deceit, and financial hardship, and to foster and encourage competition, fair dealing, and prosperity in the field of discount buying services by prohibiting or restricting false or misleading advertising, unfair contract terms, harmful financial practices, and other unfair, deceptive, destructive, unscrupulous, fraudulent, and discriminatory practices by which the public has been endangered and by which the public may be harmed in the future in connection with contracts for discount buying services [Civ. Code § 1812.100(b)].

[3] Definitions

[a] Discount Buying Organization

A "discount buying organization" is any person or persons, corporation, unincorporated association, or other organization that, for a consideration, provides or purports to provide its clients or the clients or members of any other discount buying organization with the ability to purchase goods or services at discount prices [Civ. Code § 1812.101(a)]. For the bonding requirements of a discount buying organization, see Civ. Code §§ 1812.103-1812.105.

However, regulation under Civ. Code § 1812.100 et seq. does not extend to a discount buying organization in any of the following circumstances.

- Regulation does not extend to a discount buying organization in which the total consideration paid by each client or member in any manner whatsoever for the purchase of discount buying services from the organization does not exceed a one-time fee of $50 or an annual fee of $25 to be paid on a yearly basis [Civ. Code § 1812.101(a)(1)(A)].

- Regulation does not extend to a discount buying organization if the total consideration paid by each client or member in any manner whatsoever for the purchase of discount buying services from the organization does not exceed a one-time or annual fee of $50, and the organization provides a majority of the goods and services throughpurchases by members who walk in to a fixed location operated by the organization [Civ. Code § 1812.101(a)(1)(B)].

- Regulation does not extend to a discount buying organization if persons receive discount buying services incidentally as part of a package of services provided to or available to the individual on account of his or her membership in the organization, and it is not organized for the profit of any person or organization, and it does not have the provision of discount buying services as one of its primary purposes or businesses [Civ. Code § 1812.101(a)(3)].

- Regulation does not extend to any person, corporation, unincorporated association, or other organization, that, for a consideration collected from another entity, provides or purports to provide the clients of the other entity with the ability to purchase goods or services at discount prices, if the clients of the other entity do not order from, or pay any money to, that person, corporation, unincorporated association, or other organization. However, the entity from which the customer purchases the right to obtain goods or services at discount prices must comply with the requirements of Civ. Code § 1812.100 et seq. [Civ. Code § 1812.101(a)(4)].

- Regulation does not extend to a discount buying organization if the total consideration paid by each client or member in any manner whatsoever for the purchase of discount buying services from theorganization does not exceed a one-time or annual fee of $100, and the organization meets all of the following requirements [Civ. Code § 1812.101(a)(2)]:

  - The organization must offer buying services to clients or members through toll-free telephone access, computer access, or video shopping terminals [Civ. Code § 1812.101(a)(2)(A)].

  - The organization must provide at least 15 toll-free service lines to California consumers devoted exclusively to customer service questions and complaints [Civ. Code § 1812.101(a)(2)(C)].

  - The organization must maintain a bond that meets the requirements of Civ. Code §§ 1812.103 and 1812.104, except that the principal sum of the bond need be only $20,000 [Civ. Code § 1812.101(a)(2)(C)].

- During the first year of membership of each member, on the request of the member, the organization must provide a full refund of membership fees, exclusive of any fees, however designated, not exceeding $10 in the aggregate, without conditions other than the surrender or destruction of materials that allow the member to access or use the service [Civ. Code § 1812.101(a)(2)(B)(i)].

- The organization must establish an escrow account of $50,000 for the purpose of providing refunds to members as stated above. If the $50,000 deposited in escrow is depleted during the first year of the existence of the escrow account, the organization, within three business days of depletion, must replenish the account in the amount of $50,000. For each calendar year thereafter, the organization must deposit in the account an amount equal to refunds made from the account in the previous calendar year, but not less than $50,000. At any time the balance in the escrow account decreases to 50 percent of the amount funded that year, the organization, within three business days, must replenish the account back to the balance required at the beginning of that calendar year. The organization must provide proof of the establishment of the escrow account to the secretary of state and must maintain records of all member requests for refunds and refunds made pursuant to this requirement. The records must be made available for review on request by the attorney general, any district attorney, or the state department of justice [Civ. Code § 1812.101(a)(2)(B)(ii)(I)].

- The escrow account must be established and maintained at a federally insured bank or federally insured financial institution independent of the organization, with escrow instructions making the bank or financial institution, or an officer or employee of the bank or financial institution, the escrow trustee [Civ. Code § 1812.101(a)(2)(B)(ii)(II)].

- Refunds must be made from the escrow account to any member who provides proof of membership while a California resident and requests, in writing, a membership refund, and who has not previously been refunded his or her membership fee. The escrow trustee must issue the refund within 10 days of the date the written request is received by the escrow trustee. In addition, requests for refunds may be made directly to and paid directly by the organization [Civ. Code § 1812.101(a)(2)(B)(ii)(III)].

- Proof of creation of the escrow account, and membership refund information, must be provided to the members in the following form: "The _____ [name of organization] has established an escrow account for the refund of membership fees at _____ [name of financial institution]. Refunds from the escrow account may, in addition to other remedies and sources available to you, be obtained by mailing a written request along with proof of membership to _____ [name of escrow trustee]. This refund request shall not affect or limit any other remedy at law available to you" [Civ. Code § 1812.101(a)(2)(B)(ii)(IV)].

- The organization must possess an unrevoked acknowledgment from the attorney general that the organization has provided to the attorney general, to the attorney general's reasonable satisfaction, marketing procedures and documents that clearly explain membership fee cancellation and refund terms, including the following [Civ. Code § 1812.101(a)(2)(E)(i)]:

  - The amount of the initial membership fee and how and when it will be collected [Civ. Code § 1812.101(a)(2)(E)(i)(I)].

  - If applicable, that a member must be advised, before any charges are applied, that they need not provide billing information in order to be charged a membership fee, in circumstances in which the telemarketing firm has prior access to the member's billing information [Civ. Code § 1812.101(a)(2)(E)(i)(II)].

  - In the case of trial membership offers, the duration of the trial period and that if the member does not cancel within the trial period, he or she will automatically be charged the membership fee [Civ. Code § 1812.101(a)(2)(E)(i)(III)].

  - Specifically how the member may cancel membership [Civ. Code § 1812.101(a)(2)(E)(i)(IV)].

  - The written disclosure, printed in capital letters with a minimum 14-point boldface type, indicating whom to contact, both directly through the company and through the escrow account, for a refund [Civ. Code § 1812.101(a)(2)(E)(i)(V)].

- The written disclosure made at the time of solicitation and at the time an enrollment package is sent to consumers [Civ. Code § 1812.101(a)(2)(E)(i)(VI)].

- The organization must provide the disclosures listed in Civ. Code § 1812.101(a)(2)(E)(i)(I)-(VI) (above) to every prospective member [Civ. Code § 1812.101(a)(2)(F)].

When the organization provides documentation that includes the information listed above and that clearly explains membership fee cancellation and refund terms to the attorney general's reasonable satisfaction, the attorney general will issue a revocable acknowledgment to the organization for it to obtain this exemption. The acknowledgment issued by the attorney general is not evidence of the adequacy or accuracy of the organization's actual disclosures and representations provided to consumers. No organization in any marketing to consumers may make any reference to an acknowledgment issued by the attorney general [Civ. Code § 1812.101(a)(2)(E)(ii)].

The exemption is null and void if the organization fails to comply with the conditions set forth above, or if the attorney general's office revokes the exemption because of the organization's not being in full compliance with all of the provisions of this exemption [Civ. Code § 1812.101(a)(2)(G)].

[b] Contract for Discount Buying Services

A "contract for discount buying services" is a contract between one party (the "buyer") who is purchasing the service for personal or family use and a discount buying organization whereby, for a consideration, the buyer receives the right to obtain goods or services from the discount buying organization, or to utilize the discount buying organization's services in obtaining goods and services, at discount prices [Civ. Code § 1812.101(b)].

[c] Discount Prices

"Discount Prices" are prices that are represented to be lower on most or all offered goods or services than those generally charged for the items in the locality in which the representation is made. This definition is not intended to affect the degree of savings that must be offered on an item or selection of items in order to truthfully and without misleading consumers represent an item, selection of items, or entire store as being "discount" or "discounted" [Civ. Code § 1812.101(c)].

[4] Disclosure Requirements

[a] Nature of Services

A discount buying organization must disclose to potential customers in writing before obtaining the signature of the potential customer on any application or contract for discount buying services the exact nature of the services it provides, specifying the following [Civ. Code § 1812.106(a)]:

- The general categories of goods that are available at the discount buying organization's place of business or warehouse.

- Those categories of goods, if any, that must be ordered or obtained through stores to which the discount buying organization will refer the customer.

- Those categories of goods, if any, that must be ordered or obtained through the mail.

[b] Representative List of Available Items

A discount buying organization also must furnish to potential customers, in writing and before obtaining the signature of a potential customer on any application or contract for discount buying services, a list of goods reasonably representative of the type of goods available. The list may be in either of the following forms [Civ. Code § 1812.106(b)]:

- A list, current within the previous 60 days, of at least 100 items that are sold by or through the organization or which are available to those who contract with the organization, identified by brand name, model, and total selling price including any incidental charges at which the item can, at the time the list is furnished, be purchased by one who contracts with the organization.

- A list of at least 100 items that were purchased by its members through the discount buying organization during the preceding 60 days identifying the items by brand name, model, and total selling price including freight and other incidental charges.

The list must include the total selling price including freight charges, if any; delivery charges, if any; setup charges, if any; the discount buying organization's price markup; and any other charges imposed by the discount buying organization [Civ. Code § 1812.106(b)].

If the maximum number of items available through a discount buying organization is less than 100 in number, it may comply with Civ. Code § 1812.106 by furnishing a list of the total items available [Civ. Code § 1812.106(b)].

[c] Warranties and Guarantees, Returns, Cancellation of Orders, and Refunds

A discount buying organization must disclose to potential customers in writing before obtaining the signature of a potential customer on any application or contract for discount buying services its policy with respect to warranties or guarantees on goods ordered, and the policy with respect to the return of ordered goods, cancellation of orders by the buyer, and refunds for canceled or returned goods [Civ. Code § 1812.106(c)].

[d] Incidental Charges

A discount buying organization must disclose to potential customers in writingbefore obtaining the signature of a potential customer on any application or contract for discount buying services, the kinds of charges, such as freight costs, seller's markup, and other costs which are incidental to the purchase of goods through the discount buying organization andwhich are to be paid by the buyer. These incidental charges must be disclosed and stated in specific monetary amounts for each order that is placed through the discount buying organization [Civ. Code § 1812.106(d)].

[e] Disclosure of Fraud by Owner or Officer

A discount buying organization must disclose whether any shareholder, director, officer, or general or limited partner has been convicted of a crime involving fraud, has been held liable in a civil action for fraud, embezzlement, or similar basis for liability, or is subject to any injunction relating to business activity [Civ. Code § 1812.106(e)].

[5] Contracts for Discount Buying Services

[a] Basic Requirements

Every contract for discount buying services must be in writing. The address of the seller's discount buying facility and the residence address of the buyer must be clearly indicated on the face of the contract. All blank spaces in the contract must be filled in before the contract is signed by the buyer. Provisions or terms written by hand on the buyer's copy must be legible [Civ. Code § 1812.107].

The contract must disclose that a bond has been obtained by the discount buying organization and that a copy of the bond is on file with the Secretary of State. In addition, the contract must be specific as to the period of time for which the discount buying services will be available to the buyer, but this time period may not be measured by the life of the buyer [Civ. Code § 1812.107].

A copy of the written contract must be given to the buyer at the time he or she signs the contract [Civ. Code § 1812.107].

[b] Overlapping Contracts

All contracts for discount buying services, which may be in effect between a seller or related sellers and a buyer, the terms of which overlap for any period of time, will be considered one contract for the purpose of determining compliance with Civ. Code §§ 1812.100-1812.128 [Civ. Code § 1812.108].

[c] Limitation on Payment or Financing Period

No contract for discount buying services may require payments or financing by the buyer over a period in excess of two years from the date the contract was entered [Civ. Code § 1812.109].

[d] Requirement of Availability of Services

Every contract for discount buying services must provide that the buying services will become available to the buyer within seven days from the date the contract was entered into [Civ. Code § 1812.110].

[e] Rights of Action and Defenses of Buyer

No contract for discount buying services may require or entail the execution of any note or series of notes by the buyer which, when separately negotiated, will cut off as to any third party any right of action or defense which the buyer may have against the seller [Civ. Code § 1812.113]. Additionally, no right of action or defense arising out of a contract for discount buying services which the buyer has against the discount buying organization may be cut off by assignment or transfer of the contract to any third party [Civ. Code § 1812.114].

[f] Refund If Goods Not Delivered or Not Available

Every contract for discount buying services must provide that if any goods ordered by the buyer from the seller are not delivered to the buyer or are not available for pickup by the buyer at a location within his or her county of residence within six weeks from the date the buyer placed the order, then any money paid by the buyer for the goods in advance of delivery, on the buyer's request must be fully refunded unless a predetermined delivery date has been furnished to the buyer in writing at the time he or she ordered the goods and the goods are delivered to the buyer or are available for pickup by that date [Civ. Code § 1812.116(a)].

[g] Cancellation of Contract by Buyer

Every contract for discount buying services must provide that the contract may be canceled at any time within three days after the date the buyer receives a copy of the contract, by written notice to the seller at the address specified in the contract. If the buyer cancels the contract, all money paid pursuant to the contract must be refunded. Every contract for discount buying services is subject to the cancellation privilege and must comply with the requirements of Civ. Code §§ 1689.6 and 1689.7 (cancellation of "home solicitation contracts") [Civ. Code § 1812.118]. For a further discussion of cancellation of home solicitation contracts, see § 128.12[3].

[6] Trust Account Requirements

Discount buying organizations are required to establish trust accounts and deposit the buyer's funds in those accounts [Civ. Code § 1812.116(b),(c)].

[7] Buyer's Right to Rescind

Any contract for discount buying services which does not comply with Civ.Code §§ 1812.100-1812.128 is voidable by the buyer [Civ. Code § 1812.119]. For discussion and forms relating to rescinding a voidable contract, see Ch. 490, Rescission and Restitution .

[8] Rescission and Pro Rata Refund

If a discount buying organization either moves its place of business, or, if it conducts business at more than one location, moves that place of business which is geographically closest to the buyer's residence indicated on the face of the contract more than 20 miles farther from the buyer's residence than it was at the time the contract for discount buying services was entered into, the organization must offer rescission and a pro rata refund to each buyer affected, based on the amount of time that the buyer has been a member of the organization [Civ. Code § 1812.121(a)].

If a discount buying organization discontinues providing any category of goods or services either disclosed in compliance with Civ. Code § 1812.106 or otherwise represented to the buyer to be available at or before the buyer's signing of the contract for discount buying services, the organization must offer rescission and a pro rata refund, based on the amount of time for which the buyer has been a member of the organization, to each buyer who was informed of the availability of the category of goods or services to be discontinued and who signed a contract for discount buying services within the six months immediately preceding the discontinuance of the category of goods or services [Civ. Code § 1812.121(b)].

[9] False or Misleading Representations

[a] In General

Any untrue or misleading information, representation, notice, or advertisement of the seller which has been received by or made to the buyer before he or she signs a contract for discount buying services renders that contract void and unenforceable by the seller. No seller may make or disseminate such information, representations, notices, or advertisements. The phrase "untrue or misleading information, representation, notice, or advertisement" includes any acts that constitute violations of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500 et seq. (false advertising). Moreover, the seller remains subject to liability for civil penalties imposed by Civ. Code § 3370.1 (unfair competition) and Bus. & Prof. Code § 17536 advertising [Civ. Code § 1812.120].

[b] Treble Damages

Any buyer injured by a violation of Civ. Code § 1812.100-1812.128 may bring an action for the recovery of damages and for return of all money paid by the buyer to the seller. Judgment will be entered for three times the amount at which the actual damages, plus restitution, are assessed, as well as reasonable attorney's fees and costs. In the event that the court finds a violation of Civ. Code § 1812.120 relating to untrue or misleading statements, judgment will be entered for $1,000 plus reasonable attorney's fees or three times the amount of actual damages plus restitution and attorney's fees, whichever is greater [Civ. Code § 1812.123(a)].

[c] Correction of Contract and Limitation of Liability

Any failure to comply with any provision of Civ. Code §§ 1812.100-1812.128 except Civ. Code § 1812.120 may be corrected within 30 days after the execution of the contract by the buyer. If so corrected, neither the seller nor any transferee of the seller is subject to any liability except that of a suit for actual damages plus reasonable attorney's fees and costs. However, any correction must be concurred in, in writing, by the buyer, or the contract is void and unenforceable by the seller, who must forthwith tender to the buyer a full refund. The term "transferee" includes holders and assignees [Civ. Code § 1812.123(b)].

[10] Remedies

[a] Overview of Available Remedies

The remedies available where there has been a violation of Civ. Code § 1812.100 et seq. respecting contracts for discount buying services include the following:

- Cancellation of the contract by the buyer, and recovery of any money paid pursuant to it, provided the buyer acts within three days [see Civ. Code § 1812.118].

- Rescission of the contract by the buyer, and recovery of any money paid pursuant to it [see Civ. Code §§ 1812.119, 1812.121, 1812.123(b)].

- Prosecution of a discount buying organization or an individual violator; any violation of statutory requirements is a misdemeanor [Civ. Code § 1812.125(b)].

- Recovery by civil authorities of a penalty for any violation of the laws prohibiting false advertising and unfair competition [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17536; Civ. Code §§ 1812.120, 3370.1].

- The defense of unenforceability of the contract [see Civ. Code §§ 1812.120, 1812.123(b), 1812.127].

- Recovery by the buyer of treble damages plus restitution (for violation of Civ. Code § 1812.120, treble damages or $1,000, whichever is greater) plus attorney's fees and costs [see Civ. Code § 1812.123].

Violation of the trust fund requirements is an offense (which may be prosecuted as a felony) [Civ. Code § 1812.125(a)].

[b] Defense of Unenforceability of Contract

Any violation of Civ. Code § 1812.100 et seq. renders a contract for discount buying services void and unenforceable [see Civ. Code §§ 1812.120, 1812.123(b)].

Any transfer by a discount buying organization of its duty or obligation to provide services to buyers under its contracts for discount buying services to another individual, corporation, or other business entity, as a result of which a buyer will have available substantially fewer goods and services, constitutes a complete defense to an action for further enforcement of or collection on such a contract. This defense may be asserted by any buyer who did not consent in writing, after a full and fair disclosure of the categories of goods and services to be provided by the new discount buying organization, to transfer of the duty or obligation of performance, and entitles the nonconsenting individual to rescind the contract and obtain a pro rata refund from the transferor [Civ. Code § 1812.122].

[2] Use of Form

The complaint in [1], above, is for use in an action for damages by a buyer against the seller of health studio services when the prepaid contract was for a sum in excess of the statutory limit of $3,000 (rising to $4,400 on and after January 1, 2010), inclusive of initiation or initial membership fees and exclusive of interest or finance charges [see Civ. Code § 1812.86]. (Note that the Dance Studio Act does not contain a similar limitation.)

[3] Allegations

The complaint in [1], above, alleges:

- The identity and capacity of defendant (Paragraphs 1) [see Corp. Code §§ 191, 2105, 2115, 2203; see also Ch. 160, Corporations: Capacity , regarding capacity of foreign corporations].

- Facts showing that defendant's operation is a health studio (Paragraph 2) [see Civ. Code § 1812.81].

- Standard fictitious defendant and agency allegations (Paragraphs 3, 4).

- The formation of the contract for a sum in excess of the allowable statutory maximum and payment of that sum by plaintiff to defendant (Paragraph 5) [see Civ. Code § 1812.86].

- Plaintiff's demand for a refund more than 30 days after execution of the contract (Paragraph 6) [see Civ. Code § 1812.94(b)].

- Defendant's failure to repay that amount (Paragraph 6).

- Attorney's fees (Paragraph 8) [see Civ. Code § 1812.94(a); Holland v. Nelson (1970) 5 Cal. App. 3d 308, 311-315, 85 Cal. Rptr. 117] .

[4] Actions for Recovery of Damages

Any buyer injured by a violation of the Health Studio Act may bring an action for the recovery of damages. Judgment may be entered for three times the amount at which actual damages are assessed, plus reasonable attorney's fees [Civ. Code § 1812.94 (Health Studio Act)].

[5] Verification

Although verification of this complaint is not required [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(a)], verification will require any answer to be verified in an unlimited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446]. Verification will also preclude the defendant from using a general denial in an unlimited civil case, and will preclude a general denial in a limited civil case if the action is a claim assigned to a third party for collection [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion, see Ch. 26, Answers .

[6] Jurisdiction

The superior court has jurisdiction of the action, which will be classified as an unlimited civil case unless the amount in controversy, exclusive of interest, is $25,000 or less, in which case it will be classified as a limited civil case [Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(1)].

In limited civil cases, the caption must identify the case as a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. § 422.30(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(10)], and the first page of the paper must state whether or not the demand exceeds $10,000 [Gov. Code § 70613(b); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(9) (statement regarding amount of demand must appear "below the character of the action or proceeding")].

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

[2] Use of Form

The complaint in [1], above, is for use in an action for damages based on a violation of either the Dance Studio Act [Civ. Code § 1812.50 et seq.] or the Health Studio Act [Civ. Code § 1812.80 et seq.], when the basis for the complaint is that the contract in question was void because it provided for a term in excess of that permitted by statute [see Civ. Code §§ 1812.53(a) (Dance Studio Act), 1812.84(a) (Health Studio Act)]. The form may be modified to allege other violations of these two acts, as appropriate [see [4], below].

[3] Allegations

The complaint in [1], above, alleges:

- The identity and capacity of defendant (Paragraphs 1) [see Corp. Code §§ 191, 2105, 2115, 2203; see also Ch. 160, Corporations: Capacity , regarding capacity of foreign corporations].

- Facts showing that defendant's operation is a dance studio [see Civ. Code § 1812.51] or a health studio [see Civ. Code § 1812.81] (Paragraph 2).

- Standard fictitious defendant and agency allegations (Paragraphs 3, 4).

- The formation of the contract for a term in excess of that permitted by the applicable statute (Paragraph 5). Alternative allegations are presented. The first alleges that a contract for dance studio lessons and other services required payments or financing for a period greater than one year, or that the term of the contract was to be measured by the life of the buyer [see Civ. Code § 1812.53(a)]. The second alleges that a contract for health studio services required payments or financing for a period of more than three years or that the term of the contract exceeded three years [see Civ. Code § 1812.84(a)]. Note that if a dance or health studio brings an action against a customer, the customer can use the appropriate allegation in Paragraph 5 as an affirmative defense.Note also that the three-year limitation on required payments does not apply to a member's obligation to pay a valid, outstanding debt due under the contract, including money to be paid pursuant to a termination notice period in a contract in which the termination notice period does not exceed 30 days [Civ. Code § 1812.84(a)].

- That the contract is void because it violates the term limitations of the applicable statute [see Civ. Code §§ 1812.53, 1812.59 (dance studios); Civ. Code §§ 1812.84, 1812.91 (health studios)] (Paragraph 6).

- Plaintiff's demand for a refund more than 30 days after execution of the contract [see Civ. Code § 1812.94(b)], and defendant's failure to repay that amount (Paragraph 7). The 30-day time period is necessary to support the plaintiff's prayer for treble damages [see Civ. Code §§ 1812.62 (Dance Studio Act), 1812.94 (Health Studio Act)], as discussed in [5], below.

- Additional damages, if any.

- Attorney's fees (Paragraph 9) [see Civ. Code § 1812.94(a); Holland v. Nelson (1970) 5 Cal. App. 3d 308, 311-315, 85 Cal. Rptr. 117] .

[4] Alleging Other Violations of Dance Studio Act or Health Studio Act

A dance or health studio can violate the Dance Studio Act or Health Studio Act in several different ways. The allegations in this form regarding the excessive term of the contract are an example of one type of violation. Other violations include the following:

- Entering into an oral contract that was not subsequently reduced to writing within 30 days [Civ. Code §§ 1812.62(b) (Dance Studio Act), 1812.94(b) (Health Studio Act)].

- Refusing to refund payments after the plaintiff has died or become disabled [Civ. Code §§ 1812.57(b) (Dance Studio Act), 1812.89(a)(2) (Health Studio Act)].

- Failing to provide in the contract for performance to begin within the time required by statute [Civ. Code §§ 1812.54(a) (Dance Studio Act), 1812.85(a) (Health Studio Act)].

- Failure of the contract to contain a written statement of the hourly rate for lessons [Civ. Code § 1812.54(c)].

- Failure of a health studio services contract to contain a statement, printed in at least 14-point type, that discloses the length of the term of the contract, or failure to place this statement above the space reserved for the buyer's signature [Civ. Code § 1812.84(b)].

A health studio may also violate the Health Studio Act if the contract for health studio services does not contain either of the following provisions:

- A conspicuous written statement in a size equal to at least 10-point boldface type informing the buyer of his or her right to cancel the agreement within three business days after the date of the agreement by delivering a signed and dated notice of cancellation to the health studio operator, on which appears the name and address of the health studio operator and the date the buyer signed the contract [Civ. Code § 1812.85(b)(1),(2)].

- A clause providing the buyer relief from his or her obligation to pay if the buyer moves more than 25 miles from the health studio and is unable to transfer the contract to a comparable facility, and for a prompt refund of any prepayments allocable to services not yet taken, unless the contract otherwise expressly provides for a predeterminedfee within statutory limits to be charged against the buyer if he or she moves more than 25 miles from the health studio and is unable to transfer the contract to a comparable facility [Civ. Code § 1812.89(b)].

For more detailed information on the requirements of the Dance Studio Act and the Health Studio Act, see § 128.10.

[5] Damages

Any buyer injured by a violation of the Dance Studio Act or the Health Studio Act may bring an action for the recovery of damages. Judgment may be entered for three times the amount at which actual damages are assessed, plus reasonable attorney's fees [Civ. Code §§ 1812.62(a) (Dance Studio Act), 1812.94(a) (Health Studio Act)]. Treble damages are unavailable, however, if the violation was corrected within 30 days after the buyer executed the contract, provided that the buyer must concur in writing with any correction that increases any monthly payment, the number of payments, or the total amount due [Civ. Code §§ 1812.62(b) (Dance Studio Act), 1812.94(b) (Health Studio Act)].

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendant as follows:

1. For an order requiring defendant to show cause, if any exists, why defendant should not be enjoined as hereinafter set forth, during the pendency of this action;

2. For a temporary restraining order, a preliminary injunction, and a permanent injunction, all enjoining defendant from sending _____ [billing statements or requests for payment] with respect to the unsolicited goods received;

3. For reasonable attorney's fees [in the sum of $_____];

4. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

5. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

CERTIFICATION RE NOTICE

I hereby certify that _____ [either on _____ (date), I informed defendant of what time and where the foregoing application for a temporary restraining order would be made or in good faith I attempted to inform defendant of what time and where the foregoing application for a temporary restraining order would be made, by _____ (specify efforts), but I was unable to do so or notice to defendant of the foregoing application for a temporary restraining order should not be required for the reason that _____ (specify)].

I certify under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

[2] Use of Form

The complaint in [1], above, is for use in an action to enjoin a party from sending statements or requests for payment for unordered goods or services that are considered unconditional gifts under either Civ. Code § 1584.5 or 1584.6.

[3] Allegations

The complaint in [1], above, alleges that:

- Defendant voluntarily and, unsolicited by plaintiff, sent goods or provided services (Paragraph 3).

- Defendant thereafter sent bills (Paragraph 4) [see Civ. Code §§ 1584.5 (unsolicited sending of goods), 1584.6 (unordered sending of goods or provision of services after termination of membership in organization making retail sales)].

[4] Verification

Verification [Code Civ. Proc. § 446] is required if plaintiff seeks a temporary restraining order or a preliminary injunction on a complaint instead of on affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 527(a)]. If relying on a verified complaint instead of affidavits (or declarations), counsel must plead evidentiary facts that would entitle plaintiff to the relief sought [see E.H. Renzel Co. v. Warehousemen's Union (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 369, 373, 106 P.2d 1 ; Finnie v. Town of Tiburon (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 1, 15, 244 Cal. Rptr. 581] . Otherwise, verification is not required, but verification of the complaint requires the defendant to file a verified answer [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446] and precludes use of a general denial [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion of the effect that verifying a complaint has on the answer, see Ch. 26, Answers .

[5] Certification re Notice

When a temporary restraining order is sought without formal notice, the applicant or the applicant's attorney is required to certify one of the following to the court under oath [Code Civ. Proc. § 527(c)]:

- That within a reasonable time prior to the application he or she informed the opposing party (or his or her attorney, if any) at what time and where the application would be made.

- That he or she in good faith attempted to inform the opposing party (or attorney) but was unable to do so, specifying the efforts made to do so.

- That for reasons specified he or she should not be required to inform the opposing party (or attorney).

The requirement of certification does not apply to an order issued under the Family Code [Code Civ. Proc. § 527(g); see Fam. Code § 240].

[6] Jurisdictional Classification

An action seeking permanent injunctive relief is in the jurisdiction of the superior court and may not be a limited civil case except as otherwise authorized by statute [see Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(8), 580(b)(2)].

Plaintiff alleges:

1. [Capacity and residence of defendant. See Paragraph 1 in § 128.40[1].]

2. [Fictitious name allegation, if appropriate. See Paragraph 4 in § 128.40[1].]

3. On or about _____ [date], defendant solicited payment of $_____ from plaintiff by means of a _____ [specify, e.g., written statement or invoice or writing that reasonably could be considered a bill, invoice, or statement of account due] for _____ [specify goods or services]. The _____ [written statement or invoice or other writing] actually was a solicitation for an order.

[EITHER]

4. Nowhere on the face of the _____ [billing statement or invoice] did there appear the disclaimer prescribed by 39 U.S.C. § 3001(d)(2)(A) or the warning prescribed by Civil Code Section 1716, to the effect that the _____ [billing statement or invoice] was a solicitation for the order of goods or services and that plaintiff was under no obligation to make payment unless he/she accepted the offer contained therein.

[Verification, if desired. See § 128.40[1].]

[2] Use of Form

The complaint in [1], above, is for use in an action for damages against a defendant who sent a written statement, invoice, or other writing that reasonably could be considered a bill, invoice, or statement of account due, but was actually a solicitation for an order, as a result of which the plaintiff, believing that the statement or other writing was a bill rather than a solicitation, paid the amount requested.

[3] Allegations

The complaint in [1], above, alleges:

- The solicitation (Paragraph 3).

- The failure to warn of the nature of the solicitation or the failure to comply with statutory requirements that the notice or disclaimer be conspicuous or intelligible (Paragraph 4).

- Damages (Paragraph 5) [see Civ. Code § 1716,] and, in addition, it prays for damages equal to three times the sum solicited as authorized under Civ. Code § 1716.

A civil action for the imposition of a monetary penalty may also be brought in the name of the people of the State of California by the Attorney General, district attorney, county counsel or city attorney [see Civ. Code § 1716(h)].

		[LIMITED CIVIL CASE]

Plaintiff alleges:

FIRST COUNT
(Discount Buying Organization)

1. [Capacity and residence of defendant. See Paragraph 1 in § 128.40[1].]

2. Defendant _____ [name] is a discount buying organization in that he/she/it, for a consideration, provides or purports to provide its clients or the clients or members of other discount buying organizations with the ability to purchase goods or services at discount prices, in that one of defendant's primary purposes is to provide discount buying services, and the total consideration paid by each _____ [client or member] is _____ [specify fee structure in excess of a one time fee of $50, an annual fee of $25, payable yearly, or if a majority of goods and services are provided to members who walk into the organization's fixed location, a one time or annual fee of $50, e.g., $35 per year, a majority of the goods being provided through mail orders].

3. On or about _____ [date], at _____ [specify locality, e.g., Newport Beach, California,] plaintiff and defendant _____ [name of discount buying organization] made an agreement, the terms of which were set out in a writing then and there executed by plaintiff and defendant, a copy of which is attached hereto as Exhibit A and incorporated by reference. By the terms of the agreement, plaintiff promised to pay to defendant the sum of $_____ [per year for the term of the agreement], and defendant promised, in consideration, to provide plaintiff with the continuing opportunity, for the term of the agreement, to purchase various goods and services at prices lower than those generally charged for the same goods and services in _____ [specify locality, e.g., Orange County].

4. Plaintiff made the agreement for plaintiff's personal and family use. On executing the agreement, plaintiff paid to defendant the sum of $_____ [, and since then plaintiff has paid to defendant the further sum of $_____,] as provided in the agreement.

5. _____ [Allege defendant's acts in violation of statutory requirements set out in Civ. Code §§ 1812.106-1812.122, referring also to Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500 et seq., e.g., Before plaintiff executed the agreement, defendant represented to plaintiff that plaintiff could, pursuant to the agreement, purchase any quantity of any item or article offered for sale by or through defendant. Plaintiff believed this representation and made the agreement in reliance on it. In fact, this representation was false and defendant has failed and refused, and continues to fail and refuse, to sell to plaintiff, or to allow plaintiff to buy, more than one of any particular item or article in any single transaction].

6. _____ [Allege plaintiff's damages and the measure of damages, e.g., On _____ [date], plaintiff ordered three television sets through defendant. Defendant refused to accept plaintiff's order for more than one set and so notified plaintiff on _____ [date]. Plaintiff was damaged in that the current retail price for the television set was $_____ and defendant's price was $_____.

[EITHER, if complaint is to serve as notice of rescission]

7. Plaintiff intends service of summons of this complaint to serve as notice of rescission of the contract described above, and hereby offers to restore all consideration furnished by defendant under said contract, on condition that defendant restore to him/her the consideration furnished by plaintiff in the sum of $_____ [or describe other consideration].

[OR, if plaintiff has already given notice of termination]

7. On or about _____ [date], plaintiff notified defendant in writing that he/she had rescinded the contract on the ground that _____ [specify grounds] and offered to restore to defendant all consideration given by him/her on condition that defendant restore to plaintiff the consideration advanced by him/her in the sum of $_____ [or describe other consideration]. Defendant has failed and refused, and continues to fail and refuse, to return that consideration [or to recognize that defendant's contract with plaintiff has been rescinded].

[CONTINUE]

SECOND COUNT
(Surety)

1. Plaintiff refers to and herein incorporates Paragraphs 1 and 3-7, inclusive, of the First Count.

2. [Capacity and residence of defendant. See Paragraph 2 in § 128.40[1].]

3. On _____ [date], at _____ [city], _____ County, California, defendant surety made, executed, and delivered to defendant _____ [name of discount buying organization] a bond in the sum of $_____. A copy of that bond was filed with the Secretary of State. The bond is in favor of the State of California for the benefit of any person damaged by a violation of the statutes governing discount buying organizations or by fraud or dishonesty or failure to provide the services of the discount buying organization in performance of the discount buying contract. A copy of that bond is attached as Exhibit B and incorporated by reference.

4. At all times herein mentioned, that bond was, and now is, in full force and effect.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendant [s, and each of them,] as follows:

1. For damages, against defendant _____ [name of discount buying organization] in the sum of $_____ which is three times the amount of actual damages plus restitution [or if the court finds a violation of Section 1812.120 of the Civil Code for $1,000, whichever is greater];

2. For damages, against defendant _____ [name of surety] in the sum of $_____ which is the actual damages plus restitution;

3. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

4. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.
Dated: _____.

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Plaintiff

[Verification, if desired. See § 128.40[1].]

[2] Use of Form

The complaint in [1], above, is for use in an action for damages and restitution where the plaintiff is the "buyer" party to a contract for discount buying services and the contract does not comply with, or the discount buying organization has violated, Civ. Code §§ 1812.106-1812.122.

[3] Allegations

The complaint in [1], above, alleges in the First Count:

- That a contract was made (Paragraph 3).
- That the agreement was for plaintiff's personal and family use (Paragraph 4) [Civ. Code § 1812.101(b)].
- That plaintiff paid defendant a sum of money (Paragraph 4).
- That defendant violated the statutory requirements of Civ. Code §§ 1812.106-1812.122 (Paragraph 5).
- That plaintiff suffered damages (Paragraph 6).
- That plaintiff has notified defendant that he or she has rescinded the contract or that the summons of the complaint is notice of rescission of the contract (Paragraph 7).

In the Second Count, the complaint alleges that defendant discount buying organization maintained a bond with a surety (Paragraph 3).

[4] Liability of Surety

The surety is liable only for actual damages plus restitution and not for treble damages [Civ. Code § 1812.104].

PART I. SCOPE

13-129 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 129.01

§ 129.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter covers California and federal laws dealing with the collection and dissemination of information relating to consumer credit, and related areas. Specifically, it discusses the California Consumer Credit Reporting Agencies Act and the California Investigative Consumer Reporting Agencies Act [see § 129.20 et seq.], the California Holden Credit Denial Disclosure Act of 1976 [see § 129.50 et seq.], and the California Credit Services Act of 1984 [see § 129.70 et seq.].

The following forms are included for actions under the California Consumer Credit Reporting Agencies Act and the California Investigative Consumer Reporting Agencies Act:

- A complaint for damages regarding the improper furnishing of a consumer credit report [see § 129.110].

- An allegation regarding reporting obsolete information or inaccuracies in a consumer report [see § 129.111].

- Complaints for damages regarding the failure to advise the consumer when adverse action is taken [see §§ 129.112, 129.113].

- Affirmative defenses based on maintaining reasonable procedures to comply with statute [see §§ 129.114, 129.115].

- A complaint for damages when a person has wrongfully obtained or used consumer credit data [see § 129.116].

- A complaint for damages when a person has obtained credit report under false pretenses or without a permissible purpose [see § 129.117].

- A complaint for damages when an investigative consumer report has been improperly furnished [see § 129.118].

- An allegation regarding the reporting of obsolete or inaccurate information in an investigative report [see § 129.119].

- A complaint for damages regarding a failure to disclose the procurement or preparation of an investigative consumer report [see § 129.120].

The following forms are included for actions under the California Holden Credit Denial Disclosure Act of 1976:

- A complaint for damages for violation of the statutes [see § 129.130].

- An allegation regarding the failure to notify the applicant of an action on the application [see § 129.131].

The following form is included regarding the California Credit Services Act of 1984:

- A complaint for damages regarding misleading representations on obtaining the credit card for the consumer [see § 129.140].

This chapter also includes the following form under the federal Servicemembers Civil Relief Act, and similar provisions of California law:

- A complaint for unlawful retaliation by a lender, creditor, or other person against a person who received a stay or postponement because of military service [see § 129.150].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. California Consumer Credit Reporting Agencies Act and California Investigative Consumer Reporting Agencies Act

13-129 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 129.10

§ 129.10 Governing Statutes

[1] California Laws

Credit reporting by consumer credit reporting agencies is governed by the Consumer Credit Reporting Agencies Act [Civ. Code § 1785.1 et seq.]. The notices and disclosures to consumers provided for in the Act are required to be made only to those consumers who have a mailing address in California [Civ. Code § 1785.6]. For other limitations on the scope of the act, see Civ. Code §§ 1785.4 and 1785.35. Any waiver of the provisions of the act is contrary to public policy, and is void and unenforceable [Civ. Code § 1785.36].

Credit reporting by investigative consumer reporting agencies is governed by the Investigative Consumer Reporting Agencies Act [Civ. Code § 1786 et seq.]. For limitations on the scope of the act, see Civ. Code § 1786.54. Any waiver of the provisions of the act is contrary to public policy, and is void and unenforceable [Civ. Code § 1786.57].

Commercial credit reports, which differ significantly from consumer credit reports [see Civ. Code § 1785.41], are governed by Civ. Code § 1785.41 et seq. Any waiver of those provisions is contrary to public policy, and is void and unenforceable [Civ. Code § 1785.44].

[2] Federal Laws

Credit reporting by consumer credit reporting agencies and by investigative consumer reporting agencies also is governed by the Fair Credit Reporting Act [15 U.S.C. § 1681 et seq.]. Generally the federal act does not annul, alter, affect, or exempt any person subject to the provisions of the act from complying with the laws of California with respect to the collection, distribution, or use of any information on consumers or with respect to the prevention or mitigation of identity theft, except to the extent that such a California law is inconsistent with any provision of the federal act, and then only to the extent of the inconsistency [15 U.S.C. § 1681t(a)]. However, California law is preempted by provisions of the federal act concerning the following matters [15 U.S.C. § 1681t(b)(1)]:

- Prescreening of consumer reports.

- The time by which a consumer reporting agency must take any action, including the provision of notification to a consumer or other person, in any procedure related to the disputed accuracy of information in a consumer's file.

- The duties of a person who takes any adverse action with respect to a consumer.

- The duties of persons who use a consumer report in connection with any credit or insurance transaction that is not initiated by the consumer and that consists of a firm offer of credit or insurance [see 15 U.S.C. § 1681t(c) (definition)].

- Information contained in consumer reports, except as to any California law in effect on September 30, 1996.

- The responsibilities of persons who furnish information to consumer reporting agencies, except as to Civ. Code § 1785.25(a) [see § 129.23[1]] as in effect on September 30, 1996.

- Information available to victims.

- The exchange and use of information to make a solicitation for marketing purposes.

- The duties of users of consumer reports to provide notice with respect to terms in certain credit transactions.

California law also is preempted by provisions of the federal act concerning the following:

- Exchange of consumer report information among persons affiliated by common ownership or common corporate control [15 U.S.C. § 1681t(b)(2); see American Bankers Ass'n v. Lockyer (9th Cir. 2008) 541 F.3d 1214, 1216, 1218 (Fin. Code § 4053(b)(1) is preempted insofar as it applies to consumer-report information as defined in 15 U.S.C. § 1681a(d)(1) but is not preempted insofar as it applies to nonconsumer-report information); American Bankers Ass'n v. Gould (9th Cir. 2005) 412 F.3d 1081, 1087 (federal act preempts California Financial Information Privacy Act, Fin. Code § 4050 et seq., insofar as California law attempts to regulate inter-affiliate communication of "information," as that term is defined in 15 U.S.C. § 1681a(d)(1))].

- Certain disclosures required to be made and the disclosure of credit scores for credit granting purposes, except as to Civ. Code §§ 1785.10, 1785.15-1785.15.2, 1785.16, and 1785.20.2 [see §§ 129.20[1], 129.21] as in effect on December 4, 2003 [15 U.S.C. § 1681t(b)(3)].

- The duty to provide a free annual disclosure and concerning various kinds of required conduct [15 U.S.C. § 1681t(b)(4), (5)].

Since the requirements placed on credit reporting agencies and investigative reporting agencies by California law and by the federal act are similar or the same in many respects, this chapter primarily discusses California law. Citations to federal provisions are included when appropriate. Any inconsistencies between California law and the federal act are noted. Several provisions of the federal act that have no counterpart in the California statutes are discussed separately [see § 129.26].

Chapter 129 CONSUMER CREDIT REPORTING
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. California Consumer Credit Reporting Agencies Act and California Investigative Consumer Reporting Agencies Act

13-129 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 129.11

§ 129.11 Commercial Credit Reports Compared

Commercial credit reports are not subject to the Consumer Credit Reporting Agencies Act because the circumstances, business practices, and reports themselves differ sufficiently to make it impractical to include commercial credit reports under that Act [Civ. Code § 1785.41]. "Commercial credit report" is defined as any reportprovided to a commercial enterprise for a legitimate business purpose, relating to the financial status or payment habits of a commercial enterprise that is the subject of the report. A commercial credit report does not include (1) a report containing information related to transactions or experiences between the subject and the person making the report; (2) any authorization or approval of a specific extension of credit directly or indirectly by the issuer of a credit card or similar device; or (3) any report in which a person who has been requested by a third party to make a specific extension of credit directly or indirectly to the subject conveys its decision with respect to that request [Civ. Code § 1785.42(a)].

Civ. Code § 1785.43 sets forth the requirements applicable to commercial credit reporting. The statute provides that commercial credit reporting agencies may protect the identity of sources of information to be used in commercial credit reports [Civ. Code § 1785.43(a)], requires a commercial credit reporting agency to provide, on request, a copy of a commercial credit report [see Civ. Code § 1785.43(b)], and establishes procedures for disputing alleged inaccuracies in the report [see Civ. Code § 1785.43(c)].

Chapter 129 CONSUMER CREDIT REPORTING
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. California Consumer Credit Reporting Agencies Act and California Investigative Consumer Reporting Agencies Act

13-129 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 129.12

§ 129.12 Purposes of California Consumer Credit Acts

The Consumer Credit Reporting Agencies Act [Civ. Code § 1785.1 et seq.] was enacted to require that consumer credit reporting agencies adopt reasonable procedures for meeting the needs of commerce for consumer credit, personnel, insurance, and other information in a manner that is fair and equitable to the consumer with regard to the confidentiality, accuracy, relevancy, and proper utilization of the information in accordance with the act's provisions [Civ. Code § 1785.1(d)]. The act governs "consumer credit reports" [see § 129.13[2]] and deals with what may be called creditworthiness information.

The purpose of the Investigative Consumer Reporting Agencies Act [Civ. Code § 1786 et seq.] is to require that investigative consumer reporting agencies adopt reasonable procedures for meeting the needs of commerce for employment and insurance information in a manner that is fair and equitable to the consumer with regard to the confidentiality, accuracy, relevancy, and proper utilization of the information [Civ. Code § 1786(f)]. This act governs "investigative consumer reports" [see § 129.13[3]] and deals with what may be called character information.

The Investigative Consumer Reporting Agencies Act imposes stricter duties and more severe penalties on persons compiling or requesting reports containing character information than the Consumer Credit Reporting Agencies Act does on those compiling or requesting reports containing creditworthiness information [see, e.g., Civ. Code § 1785.31(a)(1), (2)(A), (B) (consumer is entitled to recover actual damages for violation of credit-reporting act, plus limited punitive damages for willful violation); Civ. Code § 1786.50(a)(1), (b) (consumer is entitled to recover actual damages or statutory damages, whichever is greater, for violation of investigative-reporting act, plus unlimited punitive damages for willful violation); see also § 129.24[1][a], [2]]. Consumers have different rights depending on whether their reports contain creditworthiness information or character information [see, e.g., Civ. Code §§ 1785.15(f), 1785.16(f) (consumer may obtain copy of consumer credit report for limited charge and may insert 100-word statement of dispute in report); Civ. Code §§ 1786.22(b)(1), 1786.24(i) (consumer may obtain copy of investigative consumer report for actual cost of duplication and may insert 500-word statement of dispute in report)].

One court of appeal has concluded that the statutory scheme embodied in the two acts "presents a false dichotomy between creditworthiness and character" [Ortiz v. Lyon Management Group, Inc. (2007) 157 Cal. App. 4th 604, 611, 69 Cal. Rptr. 3d 66]. The court observed that while the statutes set up a distinction between creditworthiness and character information, the line between the two is not readily apparent. On the one hand, a consumer's creditworthiness itself pertains to the consumer's character or personal characteristics. Creditworthiness is a personal attribute, the quality of being financially sound enough that a lender will extend credit in the belief that the chances of default are slight. Thus, creditworthiness information is a type of character information. On the other hand, certain types of character information may constitute creditworthiness information. Information that a consumer has the character traits or personal characteristics of (or a general reputation for) dishonesty, profligacy, carelessness, or absentmindedness would reasonably relate to the consumer's financial soundness and likelihood of default [Ortiz v. Lyon Management Group, Inc. (2007) 157 Cal. App. 4th 604, 615, 69 Cal. Rptr. 3d 66] . In view of these observations (and for additional other reasons), the court held that the Investigative Consumer Reporting Agencies Act is unconstitutionally vague as applied to a report containing information about whether any unlawful detainer actions had been filed against the subject of the report. "We are left with no rational basis to determine whether unlawful detainer information constitutes creditworthiness information subject to the CCRAA [Consumer Credit Reporting Agencies Act] or character information subject to the ICRAA [Investigative Consumer Reporting Agencies Act]. We doubt any 'person of ordinary intelligence' can do so either. Rather, credit reporting agencies and landlords 'must necessarily guess at [the ICRAA's] meaning and differ as to its application.' Worse, landlords must make their guesses when they request tenant screening reports, before they learn whether the report will contain any unlawful detainer information or exactly what kind of unlawful detainer information it will include... . The ICRAA thus fails to provide adequate notice to persons who compile or request tenant screening reports that may contain unlawful detainer information" [Ortiz v. Lyon Management Group, Inc. (2007) 157 Cal. App. 4th 604, 615, 69 Cal. Rptr. 3d 66 (citations omitted)].

Chapter 129 CONSUMER CREDIT REPORTING
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. California Consumer Credit Reporting Agencies Act and California Investigative Consumer Reporting Agencies Act

13-129 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 129.13

§ 129.13 Definitions

[1] Consumer

The term "consumer" as used in the Consumer Credit Reporting Agencies Act means a natural individual [Civ. Code § 1785.3(b); see 15 U.S.C. § 1681a(c)]. The term "consumer" as used in the Investigative Consumer Reporting Agencies Act means a natural individual who has made application to a person for employment purposes or insurance for personal, family, or household purposes or for the hiring of a dwelling unit, as defined in Civ. Code § 1940(c) [Civ. Code § 1786.2(b); see 15 U.S.C. § 1681a(c)].

[2] Consumer Credit Report

The term "consumer credit report" means any written, oral, or other communication of any information by a consumer reporting agency bearing on a consumer's creditworthiness, credit standing, or credit capacity, that is used or expected to be used or collected in whole or in part for the purpose of serving as a factor in establishing the consumer's eligibility for any of the following [Civ. Code § 1785.3(c)]:

- Credit to be used primarily for personal, family, or household purposes;
- Employment purposes;
- Hiring a dwelling unit, as defined in Civ. Code § 1940(c); or
- Other purposes authorized in Civ. Code § 1785.11, which is set forth in § 129.14[1], below.

The term is not as broad as the definition of "consumer reports" under the federal Fair Credit Reporting Act [cf. 15 U.S.C. § 1681a(d); see Cisneros v. U.D. Registry Inc. (1996) 39 Cal. App. 4th 548, 559, 46 Cal. Rptr. 2d 233] .

The term does not include any of the following [Civ. Code § 1785.3(c)]:

- Any report containing information solely relating to transactions or experiences between the consumer and the person making the report.

- Any communication of that information or information from a credit application by a consumer that is internal within the organization making the report or that is made to an entity owned by, or affiliated by corporate control with, the organization making the report; provided that with respect to information in a credit application, it is clearly and conspicuously disclosed in writing to the consumer that the information may be provided to these persons. However, when a credit application is taken by telephone, disclosure must initially be given orally at the time the application is taken, and a clear and conspicuous written disclosure must be made to the consumer in the first written communication to that consumer after the application is taken.

- Any authorization or approval of a specific extension of credit directly or indirectly by the issuer of a credit card or similar device.

- Any report in which a person who has been requested by a third party to make a specific extension of credit directly or indirectly to a consumer conveys his or her decision with respect to that request if the third party advises the consumer of the name and address of the person to whom the request was made and that person makes the disclosures to the consumer required under Civ. Code § 1785.20 [see 15 U.S.C. § 1681a(d)].

- Any report containing information based solely on a consumer's character, general reputation, personal characteristics, or mode of living that is obtained through personal interviews with neighbors, friends, or associates of the consumer reported on, or others with whom he or she is acquainted or who may have knowledge concerning those items of information.

- Any communication about a consumer in connection with a credit transaction that is not initiated by the consumer, between persons who are affiliated within the meaning of Corp. Code § 150 by common ownership or common corporate control [see Corp. Code § 160] if either of those persons has complied with the disclosure requirements with respect to a prequalifying report [see Civ. Code § 1785.20.1(b)(2)] from which the information communicated is taken and provided that the consumer has consented to the provision and use of the prequalifying report in writing.

- Any consumer credit report furnished for use in connection with a transaction that consists of an extension of credit to be used solely for a commercial purpose.

A "prequalifying report" means a credit report containing the limited information permitted under Civ. Code § 1785.11(b)(2), which is discussed in § 129.14[2] [Civ. Code § 1785.3(k)].

The federal act does not cover hiring a dwelling unit but includes any information that is used or expected to be used or collected in whole or in part for the purpose of serving as a factor in establishing a consumer's eligibility for insurance to be used primarily for personal, family, or household purposes [15 U.S.C. § 1681a(d)]. Under the federal act, however, a report prepared by an insurer in order to evaluate an insurance claim is not a "consumer report," even if it contains information concerning the insured's credit history [Kemp v. County of Orange (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 1422, 1424, 1427, 260 Cal. Rptr. 131 ; but see Beresh v. Retail Credit Co., Inc. (1973) 358 F. Supp. 260, 261-262] . The federal statute governs both consumer credit and investigative consumer reporting agency procedures. As discussed in § 129.10, California has two separate statutes governing the two types of agencies.

[3] Investigative Consumer Report

Except in transactions between investigative consumer reporting agencies and insurance institutions, agents, or insurance-support organizations, the term "investigative consumer report" means a consumer report in which information on a consumer's character, general reputation, personal characteristics, or mode of living is obtained through any means. The information does not include specific factual information relating to a consumer's credit record or manner of obtaining credit obtained directly from a creditor or from a consumer reporting agency when that information was obtained directly from a potential or existing creditor of the consumer or from the consumer [Civ. Code § 1786.2(c); see 15 U.S.C. § 1681a(e); seealso Cisneros v. U.D. Registry Inc. (1996) 39 Cal. App. 4th 548, 568-569, 46 Cal. Rptr. 2d 233 (reports that company assembled and disseminated about renters were not "investigative consumer reports" under ICRA because information was not obtained through "personal interviews")].

[4] Consumer Credit Reporting Agency

The term "consumer credit reporting agency" means any person, who, for monetary fees, dues, or on a cooperative nonprofit basis, regularly engages in whole or in part in the business of assembling or evaluating consumer credit information or other information on consumers for the purpose of furnishing consumer reports to third parties. The term does not include any governmental agency whose records are maintained primarily for traffic safety, law enforcement, or licensing purposes [Civ. Code § 1785.3(d)].

Although services that investigate a consumer's checking account history do not come within this definition, they are treated in the same manner as consumer credit reporting agencies for purposes of the Consumer Credit Reporting Agencies Act. Any person who, for monetary fees, dues, or on a cooperative nonprofit basis, regularly engages in whole or in part in the practice of assembling, evaluating, or disseminating information on the checking account experiences of consumer customers of banks or other financial institutions is subject (with some exceptions) to the laws that govern consumer credit reporting agencies [Civ. Code § 1785.5].

Under the federal act, a consumer reporting agency, to be considered as such, must use some means or facility of interstate commerce must be used for the purpose of preparing or furnishing consumer reports [see 15 U.S.C. § 1681a(f); Cisneros v. U.D. Registry Inc. (1996) 39 Cal. App. 4th 548, 562, 46 Cal. Rptr. 2d 233 (company in business of gathering information about renters and selling it to landlords for screening purposes was "consumer credit reporting agency" under federal act)]. In addition, the federal act does not expressly exclude from the term "consumer reporting agency" governmental agencies whose records are maintained primarily for traffic safety, law enforcement, or licensing purposes [see 15 U.S.C. § 1681a(f)].

[5] Investigative Consumer Reporting Agency

The term "investigative consumer reporting agency" means any person who, for monetary fees or dues, engages in whole or in part in the practice of collecting, assembling, evaluating, compiling, reporting, transmitting, transferring, or communicating information concerning consumers for the purposes of furnishing investigative consumer reports to third parties, but it does not include any governmental agency whose records are maintained primarily for traffic safety, law enforcement, or licensing purposes, or any licensed insurance agent, insurance broker, or solicitor, insurer, or life insurance agent [Civ. Code § 1786.2(d)].

[6] Adverse Action

For purposes of the Consumer Credit Reporting Agencies Act, "adverse action" means a denial or revocation of credit, a change in the terms of an existing credit arrangement that is adverse to the consumer's interests, or a refusal to grant credit in substantially the amount or on substantially the terms requested [Civ. Code § 1785.3(a)]. Adverse action includes the following [Civ. Code § 1785.3(a)]:

- Any denial of, increase in any charge for, or reduction in the amount of insurance for personal, family, or household purposes made in connection with the underwriting of insurance.

- Any denial of employment or any other decision made for employment purposes that adversely affects any current or prospective employee.

- Any action taken, or determination made, with respect to a consumer for an application for an extension of credit or an application for hiring a dwelling unit that is adverse to the consumer's interests.

Adverse action does not include (1) a refusal to extend additional credit to a consumer under an existing credit arrangement if the applicant is delinquent or otherwise in default under that credit arrangement or if the additional credit would exceed a credit limit previously established for the consumer, or (2) a refusal or failure to authorize an account transaction at a point of sale [Civ. Code § 1785.3(a)].

Other definitions include "person" [see Civ. Code §§ 1785.3(j), 1786.2(a); see also 15 U.S.C. § 1681a(b)], "file" [see Civ. Code §§ 1785.3(g), 1786.2(e); see also 15 U.S.C. § 1681a(g)], "employment purposes" [see Civ. Code §§ 1785.3(f), 1786.2(f); see also 15 U.S.C. § 1681a(h)], "item of information" [see Civ. Code § 1785.3(i)], and "medical information" [see Civ. Code § 1786.2(g); see also 15 U.S.C. § 1681a(i)].

For the definitions of "credit transaction that is not initiated by the consumer," "firm offer of credit," and "state or local child support enforcement agency," see Civ. Code § 1785.3(e), (h), and (l) and 15 U.S.C. § 1681a(j), respectively.

Chapter 129 CONSUMER CREDIT REPORTING
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. California Consumer Credit Reporting Agencies Act and California Investigative Consumer Reporting Agencies Act

13-129 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 129.14

§ 129.14 Permissible Purposes of Consumer Credit and Investigative Consumer Reports

[1] Credit Reports

A consumer credit reporting agency or an investigative consumer reporting agency may furnish a report under the following circumstances [Civ. Code §§ 1785.11(a) (consumer agencies), 1786.12 (investigative agencies); see 15 U.S.C. § 1681b]:

- In response to the order of a court having jurisdiction to issue such an order.
- In accordance with the written instructions of the consumer to whom it relates.

In addition, a consumer credit reporting agency may furnish a report to a person who it has reason to believe intends to do any of the following [Civ. Code § 1785.11(a)(3); see 15 U.S.C. § 1681b(a)(3); see also Mone v. Dranow (9th Cir. 1991) 945 F.2d 306, 308 (determining whether individual can satisfy judgment in lawsuit intended to be filed by person obtaining report is not a permissible purpose under 15 U.S.C. § 1681b(a)(3); it is not in connection with either credit transaction or legitimate business purpose)]:

- Use the information in connection with a credit transaction, or entering or enforcing an order of a court of competent jurisdiction for support, involving the consumer on whom the information is to be furnished and involving the extension of credit to, or review or collection of an account of, the consumer [see, e.g., Olson v. Six Rivers National Bank (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 1, 12-13, 3 Cal. Rptr. 3d 301 (bank's request for husband's credit information in connection with wife's loan application was authorized under Civ. Code § 1785.11(a)(3)(A))].
- Use the information for employment purposes.
- Use the information in connection with the underwriting of insurance involving the consumer or for insurance claims settlements.

- Use the information in connection with a determination of the consumer's eligibility for a license or other benefit granted by a governmental instrumentality required by law to consider the applicant's financial responsibility or status.

- Use the information in connection with the hiring of a dwelling unit as defined in Civ. Code § 1940(c).

- Otherwise has a legitimate business need for the information in connection with a business transaction involving the consumer [see, e.g., Olson v. Six Rivers National Bank (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 1, 12, 3 Cal. Rptr. 3d 301 (bank's request for husband's credit information in connection with wife's loan application was authorized under Civ. Code § 1785.11(a)(3)(F))].

An investigative consumer reporting agency may also furnish a report to a person who it has reason to believe intends to use the information for any of the following purposes [Civ. Code § 1786.12(d); see 15 U.S.C. § 1681b]:

- Employment purposes.

- To serve as a factor in determining a consumer's eligibility for insurance or the rate for any insurance.

- In connection with a determination of the consumer's eligibility for a license or other benefit granted by a governmental instrumentality required by law to consider the applicant's financial responsibility or status.

- In connection with an order of a court of competent jurisdiction to provide support and the imposition or enforcement of the order involves the consumer.

- In connection with the hiring of a dwelling unit as defined in Civ. Code § 1940(c).

An investigative consumer reporting agency must not prepare or furnish an investigative consumer report to a person described in the preceding paragraph unless the agency has received the certification specified in Civ. Code § 1786.16(a)(4) [see discussion in § 129.19[1]] from the person requesting the report [Civ. Code § 1786.12(e)]. An investigative consumer reporting agency must not furnish an investigative consumer report to a person described in the preceding paragraph if that report contains medical information about a consumer, unless the consumer consents to the furnishing of the report [Civ. Code § 1786.12(f)].

[2] Prequalifying Reports

A consumer credit reporting agency may furnish information to a person that it has reason to believe intends to use the information in connection with a credit transaction when that credit transaction is not initiated by the consumer (a prequalifying report) only if (1) the consumer has authorized the agency to provide the report, or (2) the proposed transaction involves a firm offer of credit [Civ. Code § 1785.11(b)(1), (2)].

A "firm offer of credit" means any offer of credit to a consumer that will be honored if, based on information in a credit report on the consumer and other information bearing on the consumer's creditworthiness, he or she is determined to meet the criteria used to select the consumer for the offer and the consumer is able to provide any real property collateral specified in the offer. For purposes of this subdivision, the phrase "other information bearing on the creditworthiness of the consumer" means information that the person making the offer is permitted to consider pursuant to any rule, regulation, or formal written policy statement relating to the federal Fair Credit Reporting Act, as amended [15 U.S.C. § 1681 et seq.], promulgated by the Federal Trade Commission or any federal bank regulatory agency [Civ. Code § 1785.3(h)].

If the proposed transaction involves a firm offer of credit, the consumer credit reporting agency must have established a notification system as discussed below, and the consumer must not have elected to have his or her name excluded. If an agency satisfies these requirements, it may only provide the consumer's name and address and information pertaining to a consumer that is not identified or identifiable with a particular consumer [Civ. Code § 1785.11(b)(2)].

A consumer credit reporting agency must furnish to the consumer, but may not to furnish to anyone else, a record of all inquiries that resulted solely from credit transactions that were not initiated by the consumer within the previous 12-month period on his or her request [Civ. Code §§ 1785.11(c), 1785.15(a)(3)].

[3] Consumer Election to Have Name Removed From List for Unsolicited Offers

Every consumer credit reporting agency that furnishes prequalifying reports pursuant to Civ. Code § 1785.11(b) in connection with credit transactions not initiated by the consumers must establish and maintain a notification system, including a toll-free telephone number, that permits any consumer, with appropriate identification and for which the agency has a file, to notify the agency of the consumer's election to have his or her name removed from any list of names and addresses provided by the agency or by any affiliated consumer credit reporting agency in connection with any transaction that is not initiated by the consumer. Establishing such a notification system by one agency constitutes compliance by any of its affiliated agencies [Civ. Code § 1785.11(e)]. Each consumer credit reporting agency that compiles and maintains consumer files on a nationwide basis must establish and maintain a notification system jointly with its affiliated agencies [Civ. Code § 1785.11(f)].

If a consumer exercises the election to have his or her name removed from any list of names and addresses provided by the agency in connection with transactions that are not initiated by the consumer, it is effective on notifying the agency. Notification may be made in writing or by telephone. The election may be withdrawn by notifying the agency that the election is no longer effective [Civ. Code § 1785.11(d)].

§ 129.15 Unauthorized Access to or Use of Consumer Credit Data

A person who knowingly and wilfully obtains access to a file, or obtains data from a file, other than as provided by Civ. Code § 1785.11 (furnishing of consumer credit reports, discussed in § 129.14), is liable for a civil penalty payable to the consumer or to the person or entity responsible for the file accessed [Civ. Code § 1785.19(a)(1), (2)]. A person who uses the data received from a file in a manner contrary to an agreement with the consumer credit reporting agency is also liable [Civ. Code § 1785.19(a)(3)]. A "file" includes all of the information on a consumer recorded and retained by a consumer credit reporting agency, regardless of how the information is stored [Civ. Code § 1785.3(g)].

In addition, every consumer credit reporting agency, on written request and the furnishing of sufficient identification to identify the consumer and the subject file, must create reasonable procedures to prevent a consumer credit report or information from a consumer's file from being provided to any third party for marketing purposes or for any offer of credit not requested by the consumer. This does not apply, however, to the use of information by a credit grantor for purposes related to an existing credit relationship [Civ. Code § 1785.19.5]. For further discussion of procedures required of consumer credit reporting agencies to prevent furnishing of consumer credit reports for impermissible purposes, see § 129.18.

For discussion of a consumer or reporting agency's right to bring an action for civil penalties under Civ. Code § 1785.19, see § 129.24[1][e].

§ 129.17 Contents of Reports

[1] Consumer Credit Reports

[a] Obsolete Information Prohibited

No consumer credit reporting agency may make any consumer credit report that includes any adverse information concerning a consumer that antedates the report by more than 10 years or that otherwise is prohibited from being included in the report [Civ. Code § 1785.13(d)]. Prohibited items include the following [Civ. Code § 1785.13(a); see 15 U.S.C. § 1681c]:

- Bankruptcies that, from the date of the order for relief, antedate the report by more than 10 years.

- Suits and judgments that, from the date of entry or renewal, antedate the report by more than seven years or until the governing statute of limitations has expired, whichever is the longer period.

- Unlawful detainer actions, unless the lessor was the prevailing party. The lessor is deemed the prevailing party only if either (1) a final judgment was awarded to the lessor on entry of the tenant's default, on the granting of the lessor's motion for summary judgment, or following trial; or (2) the action was resolved by a written settlement agreement between the parties that states that the unlawful detainer action may be reported. In any other instance in which the action is resolved by settlement agreement, the lessor is not deemed to be the prevailing party.

- Paid tax liens that antedate the report by more than seven years from the date of payment.

- Accounts placed for collection or charged to profit and loss that antedate the report by more than seven years.

- Records of arrest, indictment, information, misdemeanor complaint, or conviction of a crime that antedate the report by more than seven years from the date of disposition, release, or parole, or, in the case of a conviction, for which a full pardon has been granted, or, in the case of an arrest, indictment, information, or misdemeanor complaint, for which a conviction did not result.

- Any other adverse information that antedates the report by more than seven years.
