[3] Contents of Notice of Motion and Accompanying Papers

The notice of motion should state the name of the person to be examined. The time, place, manner, conditions, scope, and nature of the examination, and the identity and the specialty, if any, of person or persons whom will perform the examination must be specified in the notice of motion [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2032.310(b)].

If the motion seeks performance of unusual, painful, protracted, dangerous, or intrusive diagnostic procedures, it is good practice to include a declaration of a physician explaining the necessity for those procedures and the degree of pain or danger involved. If no extraordinary procedures are involved, the declaration in support of the motion should probably so state (Paragraph 6 of Declaration).

The declaration in support of the motion will usually be completed by the attorney for the moving party. If the person to be examined is an agent or in the custody under the legal control of a party, optional Paragraph 4 should be included. Paragraphs 2 and 7 of the declaration restate the identity of the person to be examined, the identity and qualifications of the examiner, and the time, place, nature, manner, conditions, and scope of the examination [Code Civ. Proc. § 2032.310(b); see Code Civ. Proc. § 2032.020 (who is qualified to make examination)].

The declaration must state facts showing that the condition to be examined is in controversy (Paragraph 5) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2032.020(a)] and must also contain facts showing that good cause exists for taking the examination (Paragraph 6).

If a mental examination is being sought of a party seeking recovery for personal injuries, the declaration should also include a statement that the party sought to be examined has not stipulated as provided under Code Civ. Proc. § 2032.320(c) (Paragraph 8) [Code Civ. Proc. § 2032.320(b); see discussion in § 197.17[5][a], see also § 197.70].

If the place of the examination is more than 75 miles from the residence of the person to be examined, the court cannot order the examination unless it makes a determination that there is good cause for the travel involved and conditions the examination on the advancement by the moving party of the reasonable expenses and costs to the examinee for travel to the place of examination [Code Civ. Proc. § 2032.320(e)]. Thus, if travel beyond 75 miles is being sought, the declaration should establish good cause for the travel and should give an estimate of reasonable travel expenses and costs.

Lastly, as discussed in [2], above, the declaration must state facts showing that a reasonable and good faith attempt has been made to arrange for the examination by stipulation [Code Civ. Proc. § 2032.310(b)].

It is hereby stipulated by plaintiff _____ [name], by and through his/her counsel and in order to demonstrate that there is no need or good cause for the mental examination of plaintiff requested by defendant _____ [name], that (1) plaintiff makes no claim for mental and emotional distress over and above that usually associated with the physical injuries claimed, and (2) no expert testimony regarding this usual mental and emotional distress will be presented at trial in support of the claim for damages.

[It is further stipulated that if a mental examination of plaintiff is ordered by the court, plaintiff will not be bound by the foregoing stipulation and may increase his/her claim to include a claim for mental and emotional distress over and above that usually associated with the physical injuries that he/she has claimed and may present expert testimony at trial regarding any claim for damages over and above the usual mental and emotional distress.]

[2] Use of Form

The form of stipulation set out in [1], above, is for use by a personal injury plaintiff who is not seeking recovery for mental or emotional distress over and above that usually associated with the physical injuries he or she claims. If a party seeking recovery for personal injuries stipulates that (1) no claim is being made for mental and emotional distress over and above that usually associated with such physical injuries; and (2) no expert testimony regarding this usual mental and emotional distress will be presented at trial in support of the claim for damages, a mental examination of a person for whose personal injuries a recovery is being sought shall not be ordered except on a showing of exceptional circumstances [Code Civ. Proc. § 2032.320(b)].

It is not clear what constitutes exceptional circumstances. As originally proposed, the draft legislation allowed the court to order a mental examination after such a stipulation only if its purpose was vocational rehabilitation testing [see Reporter's Notes to Proposed Code Civ. Proc. § 2032(d); see also Ch. 190, Discovery: Scope, Regulation, and Timing, § 190.13[2]].

Plaintiff may want to include the second paragraph in hopes of not being bound by the stipulations if the court finds exceptional circumstances and orders the mental examination. Alternatively, if the party seeking the mental examination is willing to stipulate to drop its request and not to renew it, the stipulation could be made and signed by both parties.

For further discussion, see § 197.17[5][a]. For cross references to additional discussion and forms relating to stipulations generally, see § 197.60[6].

[3] Filing and Retention

It is unnecessary to file the stipulation with the court, except in accompanying papers opposing a motion for mental examination despite the stipulation [cf. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.250(a)(11)]. It should be retained until six months after final disposition of the cause [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.250(b)].

The motion of _____ [identify moving party, e.g., defendant] _____ [name] for an order that _____ [identify party, e.g., plaintiff] _____ [name] _____ [submit to or produce _____ (name) for] a _____ [physical or mental] examination came on regularly for hearing on _____ [date]. Plaintiff appeared by counsel _____ [name]; defendant appeared by counsel _____ [name].

Proof having been made to the satisfaction of the court, and good cause appearing therefor,

IT IS ORDERED that the motion be, and hereby is, granted [in part], and that _____ [identify party, e.g., plaintiff] _____ [name] _____ [submit to or produce _____ (name) for] a _____ [physical or mental or blood] examination by Dr. _____ [name] on _____ [date], at _____ [time], in his/her offices at _____ [address].

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that this examination shall be conducted as in the following manner:

[Specify, in as many separately numbered subparagraphs as necessary, the nature, manner, scope, and conditions of the examination demanded.]

1. The examining _____ [specialty of examiner, e.g., physician] may ask, and _____ [name of person to be examined] shall answer, questions relating to the nature and extent of the injuries alleged to have been sustained in the accident that is the subject matter of this action; present symptoms and conditions; medical history, including the manner in which the injuries were incurred; prior injuries and diseases; and _____'s [name of person to be examined] occupational history. There shall be no inquiry, other than is necessary for purposes of diagnosis and evaluation of the injuries, symptoms, and conditions, into the conduct, events, or circumstances alleged to have produced or contributed to the happening of the accident.

2. The examining _____ [specialty of examiner, e.g., physician] may use, and _____ [name of person to be examined] shall cooperate in the use of, accepted diagnostic instruments, tests, manipulations, and techniques, including the making of X-ray pictures of _____'s [name of person to be examined] _____ [specify limited area of body to be x-rayed, e.g., left shoulder, arm, and hand] and _____ [specify other procedures such as electroencephalography, myography, electrocardiography, etc., if appropriate], but no procedure causing pain or undue discomfort or endangering _____'s [name of person to be examined] life or health shall be used except by order of this court, granted with notice, on a further showing of good cause therefor.

[4. Continue, if necessary, with other conditions, such as the manner and extent to which bodily fluids, products, and tissues may be taken for laboratory analysis; arrangements for calling in specialists and consultants; arrangements for the presence of counsel for the person to be examined; arrangements for the presence of a court reporter, or for a tape recording of the examination, etc..

[5. Continue, if examination will be made more than 75 miles from examinee's residence, with provision for advancement by moving party of reasonable expenses and costs to the examinee for travel to the place of examination..
Dated: _____.

_____ [signature]
Judge of the Superior Court

The form of proposed order set out in [1], above, is for use when the court has granted a motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 2032.320 for a physical or mental examination. See discussion in § 197.69 and § 197.70.

[3] Contents of Order

The order must specify the person or persons who may perform the examination and the time, place, manner, diagnostic tests and procedures, conditions, scope, and nature of the examination [Code Civ. Proc. § 2032.320(d)]. If the place of the examination is more than 75 miles from the residence of the person to be examined, the order to submit to it shall be made only on the court's determination that there is good cause for the travel involved, and conditioned on the advancement by the moving party of the reasonable expenses and costs to the examinee for travel to the place of examination [Code Civ. Proc. § 2032.320(e)]. See also discussion in § 197.17[6].

To _____ [identify party who caused examination to be made, e.g., defendant] _____ [name] and to his/her attorney:

Demand is hereby made, pursuant to Section 2032.610 of the Code of Civil Procedure, that you deliver to _____ [identify party who was examined or who produced examinee, e.g., plaintiff _____ (name)], through his/her attorney, on or before _____ [date], the following:

1. A copy of a detailed written report by Dr. _____ [name of examiner] setting out the history, examinations, findings, including results of all tests made, diagnoses, prognoses, and conclusions of Dr. _____ [name of examiner] based on his/her examination of _____ [name of person examined] on _____ [date].

2. Copies of reports of all earlier examinations of the condition for which _____ [identify party or person examined, e.g., plaintiff _____ (name)] was examined by Dr. _____ [name of examiner] on _____ [date of examination referred to in item 1] made by _____ [name of examiner] or by any other examiner.

Dated: _____

_____ [signature]
Attorney for _____ [requesting party]

The form of demand set out in [1], above, is for use by a party who was examined, or who produced another for examination, to require the party who caused the examination to deliver a copy of a medical report by the examiner, together with copies of reports of all earlier examinations of the same condition, by the same or any other examiner. The form may be used regardless of whether the examination was performed in accordance with a stipulation, a demand, or a court order, unless, of course, it was pursuant to a stipulation which specifically provided that Code Civ. Proc. § 2032.610 would not apply [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2032.610 and discussion in § 197.19[1]].

Although Code Civ. Proc. § 2032.610 does not specify a particular form of request or that the request be in writing, this form, together with a proof of service of the request, is recommended in the event it is later necessary to establish a basis for an order requiring delivery [see §§ 197.73, 197.74].

The demand is not to be filed unless offered as relevant to a law and motion proceeding or other hearing or ordered filed for good cause. The original is to be retained by the demanding party [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.250(a)(12), (b)].

[3] Copies of Reports of Earlier Examinations

It is not clear whether reports of earlier examinations of the same condition may be requested in the general statutory language. A party who wishes to describe them specifically in the request may obtain the details through other discovery methods such as interrogatories, prior to serving the request under Code Civ. Proc. § 2032.610.

[4] Time for Production of Reports

The copies of the reports must be delivered within 30 days after service of the demand or within 15 days of trial, whichever is earlier [Code Civ. Proc. § 2032.610(b); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1013(a), 2016.050 (extending 30-day period when demand is served by mail, etc.)].

[5] Demand Waives Privilege Not to Disclose Reciprocal Reports

By demanding and obtaining a report of an examination under Code Civ. Proc. § 2032.610, or by taking the deposition of the examiner, the party who submitted to, or produced another for a physical or mental examination waives in the pending action, and in any other action involving the same controversy, any privilege, as well as any protection for work product under Code Civ. Proc. § 2018.010 et seq., that the examinee may have regarding the testimony of every other physician, psychologist, or other health care practitioner who has examined or may thereafter examine the party, in respect of the same physical or mental condition [Code Civ. Proc. § 2032.630]. See further discussion in § 197.19].

MEMORANDUM IN SUPPORT OF MOTION

[Add memorandum supporting motion.]

The form of notice of motion and motion with supporting declaration set out in [1], above, is for use by a party who has been examined or who produced another for an examination, to obtain copies of the report of the examination and of any like reports of earlier examinations of the same condition [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2032.610]. The right to copies of these reports under Code Civ. Proc. § 2032.610 applies regardless of whether the examination was pursuant to stipulation, demand, or court order unless it was pursuant to a stipulation which specifically provided that Code Civ. Proc. § 2032.610 would not apply [Code Civ. Proc. § 2032.610].

The motion must be accompanied by a declaration stating facts showing a reasonable and good faith attempt at an informal resolution of each issue presented by the motion [Code Civ. Proc. § 2032.620(a); for further discussion of this general requirement, see Ch. 190, Discovery: Scope, Regulation, and Timing, § 190.33[1]]. The declaration included with this form includes statements designed to satisfy this requirements, as well as factual statements supporting the grounds for the motion, and facts supporting the amount of monetary sanctions that might be awarded in favor of the moving party. For further discussion of monetary sanctions, see [3], below.

A supporting memorandum is required to be served and filed with this form [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1005(b), 1010, 2023.040; for further discussion of memorandum requirements and a skeletal form of memorandum, see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities; for forms of memoranda for use in proceedings under Code Civ. Proc. § 2032.010 et seq., see California Points and Authorities, Ch. 87, Discovery: Physical and Mental Examinations (Matthew Bender)].

For further discussion, see § 197.19[3]. For a procedural checklists, see §§ 197.44, 197.53. For cross references to additional discussion and forms relating to law and motion proceedings generally, see § 197.63[4].

[3] Monetary Sanctions

The court must impose a monetary sanction under Code Civ. Proc. § 2023.010 et seq. against any party, person, or attorney who unsuccessfully makes or opposes this motion, unless it finds that the one subject to the sanction acted with substantial justification or that other circumstances make the imposition of the sanction unjust [Code Civ. Proc. § 2032.620(b); see also discussion of this general provision in Ch. 190, Discovery: Scope, Regulation, and Timing, § 190.33[2]].

As discussed in [2], above, this motion must be accompanied by a declaration showing of a reasonable and good faith attempt at informal resolution of the issues raised by the motion. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 2023.010(i), the court is also required to impose a monetary sanction against any party or attorney who fails to confer in an attempt to resolve informally any dispute concerning discovery, in favor of anyone who incurs expenses, including attorney's fees, as a result of that conduct, when the section of the Civil Discovery Act governing a particular discovery motion requires a declaration showing that an attempt has been made. This sanction is to be imposed regardless of the outcome of the particular discovery motion [Code Civ. Proc. § 2023.020].

A monetary sanction under Code Civ. Proc. § 2023.010 et seq. is an order that one who engaged in a misuse of the discovery process, his or her attorney if the attorney advised the conduct, or both, pay the reasonable expenses, including attorney's fees, incurred by anyone as a result of that conduct [Code Civ. Proc. § 2023.030(a)].

A monetary sanction may only be imposed after notice to any affected party, person, or attorney, and after opportunity for hearing [Code Civ. Proc. § 2023.030].

A request for a sanction must, in the notice of motion, identify every party, person, and attorney against whom the sanction is sought, and specify the type of sanction sought. The notice of motion must be supported by a memorandum, and accompanied by a declaration setting forth facts supporting the amount of any monetary sanction sought [Code Civ. Proc. § 2023.040]. The notice of motion and supporting declaration in this form include language designed to satisfy these requirements.

For further discussion of monetary sanctions, see Ch. 192, Discovery: Sanctions for Discovery Misuse, §§ 192.13[2], 192.15[2].

The form of proposed order set out in [1], above, is for use when the court has granted or denied a motion for an order requiring the party who caused a physical or mental examination to be made to deliver to the party who was examined or who produced another for examination, a copy of a detailed written report of the examiner [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2032.620 and discussion in § 197.19[3]].

If the moving party has requested copies of reports of earlier examinations, the order should include those as well. Although the order could refer to all earlier examinations of the same condition, it would seem better practice to specify the earlier examinations and examiners if they are known.

To _____ [identify party, e.g., plaintiff] _____ [name] and to his/her attorney of record:

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that on _____ [date], at _____ [time], or as soon thereafter as the matter may be heard, in [_____ (Department or Division) _____ of] this court, located at _____ [address], _____ [city], _____ [identify party who caused examination to be made, e.g., defendant] _____ [name] will, and hereby does, move the court for an order requiring _____ [identify party who was examined or who produced another for examination, e.g., plaintiff] _____ [name] to deliver to _____ [identify moving party, e.g., defendant] _____ [name] copies of detailed written reports of any examination of _____ [identify party or other person examined, e.g., plaintiff] _____ [name] made prior to or after the examination by Dr. _____ [name of examiner] on _____ [date], of the same condition examined on _____ [date]. _____ [Identify party who caused examination to be made, e.g., Defendant] _____ [name] will further move this court for an order requiring _____ [identify party who was examined or who produced another for examination, e.g., plaintiff] _____ [name] to provide _____ [identify moving party, e.g., defendant] _____ [name], through his/her attorney, promptly after it has been prepared, any later report of any previous or subsequent examination of that condition. Plaintiff will further move this court for an order requiring _____ [identify party or attorney or both, e.g., defendant and/or his/her attorney _____ (name)] to pay a monetary sanction in the amount of $_____ to _____ [identify moving party, e.g, plaintiff]. The motion will be made on the grounds that _____ [identify moving party, e.g., defendant] _____ [name], after request by _____ [identify party who was examinedor who produced another for examination, e.g., plaintiff] _____ [name], delivered copies of all reports as required by Section 2032.610 of the Code of Civil Procedure; that [identify moving party, e.g., defendant] _____ [name] then requested from _____ [identify party who was examined or who produced another for examination, e.g., plaintiff] _____ [name] copies of all existing reports of all examinations of the same condition and the identity of any other physician or psychologist who has examined the same condition but who has not submitted a report; that despite _____ [identify moving party, e.g., defendant]'s reasonable and good faith attempt to informally resolve the areas of disagreement, _____ [identify opposing party, e.g., plaintiff] has failed and refused to deliver the copies of existing reports of examinations of _____ [identify person examined, e.g., plaintiff] _____ [name] relating to thesame condition; and that _____ [identify moving party, e.g., defendant] _____ [name] is entitled to copies of such reports and to receive, promptly after it has been prepared, any later report of any previous or subsequent examination of that condition, all pursuant to Section 2032.640 of the Code of Civil Procedure.

The motion will be based on this notice of motion, on the declaration(s) of _____ [name(s)] and the memorandum set forth below, on the records and file herein, and on such evidence as may be presented at the hearing of the motion.

[moving party's status and name]

DECLARATION OF _____ [name]

I, _____ [name], declare:

1. [Identity of declarant. See § 197.73[1], Declaration, Paragraph 1.]

2. [Date and description of examination. See § 197.73[1], Declaration, Paragraph 2.]

3. [If known, dates and descriptions of earlier examinations of same condition. See § 197.73[1], Declaration, Paragraph 3.].

4. [Date and service of examinee's demand for reports. See § 197.73[1], Declaration, Paragraph 4.].

[5. Examinations of the same condition were made thereafter as follows: _____ (list subsequent examinations of the same condition of which declarant has personal knowledge and for which copies of reports are being sought).]

6. On _____ [date], in response to the request of _____ [identify party who was examined or who produced another for examination, e.g., plaintiff] _____ [name], dated _____ [date], _____ [identify party who caused examination to be made, e.g., defendant] _____ [name] delivered to _____ [identify person who made request, e.g., plaintiff] _____ [name] the report of Dr. _____ [name of examiner] of his/her examination made on _____ [date][, and _____ (specify any reports of earlier examinations of the same condition which were also delivered as required by Code Civ. Proc. § 2032.610)].

7. Thereafter, on _____ [date], _____ [identify party who caused examination to be made, e.g., defendant] _____ [name] made a [written] request of _____ [identify party who was examined or who produced another for examination, e.g., plaintiff] _____ [name] for the delivery of copies of all existing reports of any examinations, previously or thereafter made, of the same condition. [A copy of that request (and proof of service thereof) is/are attached hereto as Exhibit C and made a part hereof)].

8. _____ [Specify party who was examined or who produced another for examination, e.g., Plaintiff] _____ [name] failed and refused and continues to fail and refuse to deliver copies of such reports.

9. [Reasonable and good faith attempt to resolve issues presented by motion. See § 197.64[1], Declaration Paragraph 7.].

10. Because _____ [identify party who was examined or who produced another for examination, e.g., plaintiff] _____ [name] has unreasonably refused to deliver copies of existing reports, I do not believe that _____[identify party who was examined or who produced another for examination, e.g., plaintiff] _____ [name] will provide reports of future examinations as required by Section 2032.640 of the Code of Civil Procedure unless this court orders him/her to do so.

11. _____ [Identify moving party, e.g., Defendant] bases his/her request for the imposition of a sanction in the amount of $_____ on _____ [itemize and explain, in as many paragraphs as necessary, the basis of the computation of the monetary amount of sanction requested].

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

MEMORANDUM IN SUPPORT OF MOTION

[Add memorandum supporting motion.]

The form of notice of motion and motion with supporting declaration set out in [1], above, is for use by a party who caused a physical or mental examination to be made and who has complied with a demand under Code Civ. Proc. § 2032.610 by the party examined, to obtain copies of reports of examinations of the same condition [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2032.650(a)]. If the examination was taken pursuant to a stipulation, the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2032.610-2032.650 are applicable unless the parties have agreed otherwise [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2032.610-2032.650].

The motion must be accompanied by a declaration stating facts showing a reasonable and good faith attempt at an informal resolution of each issue presented by the motion [Code Civ. Proc. § 2032.650(a); for further discussion of this general requirement, see Ch. 190, Discovery: Scope, Regulation, and Timing, § 190.33[1]]. The declaration included with this form includes statements designed to satisfy this requirements, as well as factual statements supporting the grounds for the motion, and facts supporting the amount of monetary sanctions that might be awarded in favor of the moving party. For further discussion of monetary sanctions, see [3], below.

A supporting memorandum is required to be served and filed with this form [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1005(b), 1010, 2023.040; for further discussion of memorandum requirements and a skeletal form of memorandum, see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities ; for forms of memoranda for use in proceedings under Code Civ. Proc. § 2032.010 et seq., see California Points and Authorities, Ch. 87, Discovery: Physical and Mental Examinations (Matthew Bender)].

For further discussion, see § 197.19[3]. For a procedural checklists, see §§ 197.44, 197.53. For cross references to additional discussion and forms relating to law and motion proceedings generally, see § 197.63[4].

[3] Monetary Sanctions

The court must impose a monetary sanction under Code Civ. Proc. § 2023.010 et seq. against any party, person, or attorney who unsuccessfully makes or opposes this motion, unless it finds that the one subject to the sanction acted with substantial justification or that other circumstances make the imposition of the sanction unjust [Code Civ. Proc. § 2032.650(b); see also discussion of this general provision in Ch. 190, Discovery: Scope, Regulation, and Timing, § 190.33[2]].

As discussed in [2], above, this motion must be accompanied by a declaration showing of a reasonable and good faith attempt at informal resolution of the issues raised by the motion. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 2023.010(i), the court is also required to impose a monetary sanction against any party or attorney who fails to confer in an attempt to resolve informally any dispute concerning discovery, in favor of anyone who incurs expenses, including attorney's fees, as a result of that conduct, when the section of the Civil Discovery Act governing a particular discovery motion requires a declaration showing that an attempt has been made. This sanction is to be imposed regardless of the outcome of the particular discovery motion [Code Civ. Proc. § 2023.020].

A monetary sanction under Code Civ. Proc. § 2023.010 et seq. is an order that one who engaged in a misuse of the discovery process, his or her attorney if the attorney advised the conduct, or both, pay the reasonable expenses, including attorney's fees, incurred by anyone as a result of that conduct [Code Civ. Proc. § 2023.030(a)].

A monetary sanction may only be imposed after notice to any affected party, person, or attorney, and after opportunity for hearing [Code Civ. Proc. § 2023.030].

A request for a sanction must, in the notice of motion, identify every party, person, and attorney against whom the sanction is sought, and specify the type of sanction sought. The notice of motion must be supported by a memorandum, and accompanied by a declaration setting forth facts supporting the amount of any monetary sanction sought [Code Civ. Proc. § 2023.040]. The notice of motion and supporting declaration in this form include language designed to satisfy these requirements.

For further discussion of monetary sanctions, see Ch. 192, Discovery: Sanctions for Discovery Misuse, §§ 192.13[2], 192.15[2].

[2] Use of Form

The form of proposed order set out in [1], above, is for use when the court has granted or denied a motion by a party who caused a physical or mental examination to be taken and who has complied with the examined party's demand under Code Civ. Proc. § 2032.610 for a written report, to require the party who was examined or who produced the examinee to deliver copies of all existing reports of examinations of the same condition. The order also requires delivery of any subsequent reports. It also provides for imposing, or not imposing, monetary sanctions against the unsuccessful party and his/her attorney [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2032.650(b)]. See discussion in § 197.19.

MEMORANDUM IN SUPPORT OF MOTION

The form of notice of motion and motion with supporting declaration set out in [1], above, is for use by a party in obtaining the sanctions available under Code Civ. Proc. § 2032.410 and § 2032.420 for the failure of a party to submit to or to produce another for a physical or mental examination as required by Code Civ. Proc. § 2032.220 (demand for initial physical examination of personal injury plaintiff) or Code Civ. Proc. § 2016.030 (stipulation of parties) [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2032.410, 2032.420].

The particular types of sanctions available are described in § 197.78 and discussed in § 197.20. Since Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2032.410-2032.420 provide that the court may make any order which is just, counsel may wish to specify an order which is not set out in Code Civ. Proc. § 2023.030.

For a form of order that may be modified for use as an order imposing the sanctions sought by this form, see Ch. 192, Discovery: Sanctions for Discovery Misuse, § 192.53.

A supporting memorandum is required to be served and filed with this form [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1005(b), 1010, 2023.040; for further discussion of memorandum requirements and a skeletal form of memorandum, see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities ; for forms of memoranda for use in proceedings under Code Civ. Proc. § 2032.010 et seq., see California Points and Authorities , Ch. 87, Discovery: Physical and Mental Examinations (Matthew Bender)].

For further discussion, see § 197.20. For a procedural checklists, see § 197.45, 197.53. For cross references to additional discussion and forms relating to law and motion proceedings generally, see § 197.63[4].

[3] Contents of Declaration

Sanctions cannot be ordered against a party who was required to produce another for physical or mental examination if the party failing to comply demonstrates that he or she was unable to produce the other person for the examination [Code Civ. Proc. § 2032.420]. Paragraph 6 of the declaration should be used whenever the noncomplying party was required to produce another.

Chapter 198 DISCOVERY: EXCHANGE OF EXPERT WITNESS INFORMATION
PART I. SCOPE

16-198 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 198.01

§ 198.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter covers discovery under the Civil Discovery Act by exchange of expert witness information.

Part II (§ 198.10 et seq.) has detailed discussion of the requirements and procedures relating to discovery by exchange of expert witness information.

Part IV provides the following procedural checklists:

- Procedures for demanding (§ 198.40) and conducting (§ 198.41) an exchange.
- Procedures for augmenting, amending, or submitting tardy expert witness information (§ 198.42).
- Procedures for examining a designated expert (§ 198.43).

Part V provides forms relating to discovery by exchange of expert witness information, including the following:

- A demand for exchange of expert witness information (§ 198.50) as well as an expert witness declaration for use in responding to a demand for exchange of information (§ 198.51).
- Forms for use in motion proceedings to set a different date for the exchange of information (§§ 198.52, 198.53).
- Forms for use in motion proceedings to augment, amend, or submit tardy expert witness information (§§ 198.54, 198.55).
- Forms for use in motion proceedings to obtain a protective order prior to an exchange of expert witness information (§§ 198.56, 198.57).
- Forms for use in motion proceedings for an order setting compensation for an expert witness (§§ 198.58, 198.59).

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

16-198 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 198.10

§ 198.10 Governing Law

Discovery by exchange of expert witness information pursuant to the Civil Discovery Act (Code Civ. Proc. § 2016.010 et seq.) is governed generally by Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.010 et seq. Related provisions of the Civil Discovery Act include the provisions governing discovery generally, set out in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2016.010 et seq.-2019.010 et seq., 2023.010 et seq.

The extent of discovery permitted under the Civil Discovery Act is restricted in limited civil cases by the Economic Litigation provisions of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 94 and 95. The use of discovery under Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.010 et seq. is, however, authorized without restriction by Code Civ. Proc. § 94(e). For further discussion of discovery in limited civil cases generally, see Ch. 190, Discovery: Scope, Regulation, and Timing, §§ 190.11[2], 190.23[2][a].

Statewide rule provisions relating to the format, content, and service of discovery papers and motions, and to discovery sanctions, are set out in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1000, 3.1345, 3.1346, 3.1347, and 3.1348.

Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.010 et seq. does not apply to the exchange of lists of expert witnesses in eminent domain proceedings. These are instead governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 1258.010 et seq. [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.010]. For discussion of these proceedings, see Ch. 247, Eminent Domain .

Chapter 198 DISCOVERY: EXCHANGE OF EXPERT WITNESS INFORMATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

16-198 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 198.11

§ 198.11 Demand for Exchange of Expert Witness Information

[1] Demand for Mutual and Simultaneous Exchange

After the trial date is set, any party may obtain discovery by demanding that all parties simultaneously exchange information concerning each other's expert witnesses to the following extent [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.210]:

- A mutual and simultaneous exchange of a list containing the name and address of any natural person, including one who is a party, whose oral or deposition testimony in the form of an expert opinion any party expects to offer in evidence at the trial [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.210(a)]. The statute does not permit a unilateral exchange [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2034.230, 2034.250, 2019.010(f); Fairfax v. Lords (2006) 138 Cal. App. 4th 1019, 1026-1027, 41 Cal. Rptr. 3d 850 (trial court committed prejudicial error by allowing medical malpractice defendant to delay his designation of retained expert witnesses until 20 days after plaintiff had designated his own expert, instead of enforcing simultaneous exchange of information as required by former Code Civ. Proc. § 2034 (now see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2034.210(a), 2034.260(a), (b)); Hernandez v. Superior Court (2003) 112 Cal. App. 4th 285, 297, 4 Cal. Rptr. 3d 883 (case management order requiring unilateral disclosure of identity, curriculum vitae, and opinion concerning causation of each medical expert who would support plaintiffs' wrongful death claims was not proper exercise of trial court's power to manage complex litigation)].

- If any expert designated in the expert witness list is a party or an employee of a party, or has been retained by a party for the purpose of forming and expressing an opinion in anticipation of the litigation or in preparation for the trial of the action, the designation of the witness must include or be accompanied by an expert witness declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.260(c) [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.210(b); for detailed discussion relating to expert witness declarations, see §§ 198.12[2][b] and 198.51].

- A mutual and simultaneous production, for inspection and copying, of all discoverable reports and writings, if any, made by any expert described in Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.210(b) (see above; that is, a designated expert for whom an expert witness declaration must be provided) in the course of preparing the expert's opinion [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.210(c); for further discussion see § 198.13].

A party may withdraw a designated expert from the list of trial witnesses at any time before that expert is deposed [County of Los Angeles v. Superior Court (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 647, 656, 271 Cal. Rptr. 698 (work-product protection accorded that expert's knowledge is thereby revived)].

For a form for a demand for an exchange of expert witness information, see § 198.50. For discussion of when a party waives the attorney-client privilege and work product protection by designating himself as an expert witness, see Ch. 191, Discovery: Privileges and Other Discovery Limitations, § 191.103[2].

[2] Procedure for Making Demand

The party demanding an exchange of information may do so without leave of court by serving the demand on all parties who have appeared in the action [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2034.220, 2034.240].

Neither the demand nor any expert witness lists and declarations exchanged are filed with the court. The party demanding the exchange, however, must retain the original of the demand with the original proof of service attached and the original of the lists and declarations exchanged until six months after final disposition of the action. The originals may then be destroyed unless the court, on the motion of any party for good cause shown, orders them preserved for a longer period [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.290(a), (b)].

However, the demand and all expert witness lists and declarations exchanged in response to it must be lodged with the court when their contents become relevant to an issue in any pending matter in the action. For example, it appears that the demand and information must be lodged when a party files a motion to augment an expert witness list or to amend an expert witness declaration [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.290(c) and discussion in § 198.16].

For a procedural checklist for use in making a demand, see § 198.40.

[3] When Demand Must Be Made

[a] General Rule

The demand for an exchange of information must be made no later than the tenth day after the initial trial date has been set or 70 days before that trial date, whichever is closer to the trial date [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.220].

[b] Relief From Untimely Demand

Although Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.010 et seq. contains no provision for relief from an untimely demand for exchange of expert witness information, relief from a prematurely made demand has been granted under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 [Zellerino v. Brown (1991) 235 Cal. App. 3d 1097, 1104-1107, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 222 ; for discussion of Code Civ. Proc. § 473 (relief based on mistake, inadvertence, surprise or excusable neglect), see Ch. 489, Relief From Judgments and Orders]. For example, when the defendants in a medical malpractice action mistakenly believed the case was governed by the rules of a local Accelerated Civil Trial project and sent the demand for exchange in accordance with those rules, before the trial date was set, relief was available to the defendants under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 in the form of a later date for exchange [Zellerino v. Brown (1991) 235 Cal. App. 3d 1097, 1104-1107, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 222] . The court adopted the very broad definition accorded the term "proceeding" in Code Civ. Proc. § 473, concluded that it included any step or measure taken in the prosecution or defense of a civil action, including a demand for discovery [Zellerino v. Brown (1991) 235 Cal. App. 3d 1097, 1105-1106, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 222] .

Relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 is unavailable in discovery proceedings when the Discovery Act provides analogous, if more limited, relief. Nevertheless, nothing in Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.010 et seq. provides for relief from failure to file a timely demand for exchange of expert trial witness information [Zellerino v. Brown (1991) 235 Cal. App. 3d 1097, 1106-1107, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 222 (construing former Code Civ. Proc. § 2034)].

Any relief granted under Section 473 must satisfy the grounds for relief stated in the Discovery Act. Former Code Civ. Proc. § 2034(c) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 2034(c)), which allows a court to order an earlier or later date of exchange on a showing of good cause [see § 198.12[1]], permits a court to change the date of exchange in granting relief under Section 473 [Zellerino v. Brown (1991) 235 Cal. App. 3d 1097, 1108, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 222] .

[c] Demand and Related Proceedings on Retrial

If an action is reset for trial, for example, following a mistrial, grant of new trial, or appellate reversal and remittitur, discovery is reopened, and the general time requirements for completing discovery are recalculated based on the new trial date [see Fairmont Ins. Co. v. Stendell (2000) 22 Cal. 4th 245, 247, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 70, 991 P.2d 156 ; see also Guzman v. Superior Court (1993) 19 Cal. App. 4th 705, 708, 23 Cal. Rptr. 2d 585 (on grant of one party's motion for new trial, another party may utilize exchange procedures to designate new expert witnesses before the new trial)]. Thus, a party's second demand for exchange of expert witness information, served more than 70 days before the second trial date, is timely [Beverly Hospital v. Superior Court (1993) 19 Cal. App. 4th 1289, 1292-1296, 24 Cal. Rptr. 2d 238] .

Requirements for the exchange the expert witness information otherwise continue to apply on retrial. For example, if a party improperly elicits expert testimony from a non-designated expert witness in the initial trial, that does not absolve the party from requirements to designate and make disclosure concerning that witness on retrial [see Province v. Center for Women's Health & Family Birth (1993) 20 Cal. App. 4th 1673, 1683-1684, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 667 , disapproved on other grounds in Heller v. Norcal Mutual Insurance Co. (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 30, 41, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 200, 876 P.2d 999] .

[4] Retention of Demand or List

Demands for exchange of expert witnesses, demands for production of discoverable reports and writings of expert witnesses, and lists of expert witnesses whose opinion a party intends to offer into evidence [see [1], above] may not be filed with the court, unless offered as relevant under a law and motion proceeding or other hearing or ordered filed for good cause [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.250(a)(13), (14), (15); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.250(a)(16) (statement that party does not presently intend to offer expert witness testimony similarly is not filed)]. Instead, the serving party retains the original and the proof of service until six months after final disposition of the cause, unless otherwise ordered by the court for cause [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.250(b)].

Chapter 198 DISCOVERY: EXCHANGE OF EXPERT WITNESS INFORMATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

§ 198.12 Exchange of Information

[1] Procedure and Date of Exchange

All parties who have appeared in the action must exchange information concerning expert witnesses in writing on or before the date of exchange specified in the demand. The exchange of information may occur at a meeting of the attorneys for the parties involved or by mailing the information on or before the date of exchange [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.260(a)].

The specified date of exchange must be 50 days before the initial trial date or 20 days after service of the demand, whichever is closer to the trial date. However, on motion and a showing of good cause, the court may order an earlier or later date of exchange [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.230].

For a form of motion to set an earlier or later date for exchange, see § 198.52. For procedural checklists relating to the exchange, see §§ 198.40, 198.41.

[2] Contents of Exchange

[a] List Designating Experts or Statement of Intent Not to Use Experts

The information provided by a party in a simultaneous exchange of expert witness information must include either of the following:

- A list setting forth the name and address of any person whose expert opinion the party expects to offer in evidence at the trial [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.260(b)(1)].

- Alternately, a statement that the party does not presently intend to offer the testimony of any expert witness [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.260(b)(2)].

[b] Expert Witness Declaration for Party-Affiliated Expert

[i] Declaration Generally Required for Expert Retained by Party

If a party provides a list [see [a], above], that includes an expert described under Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.210(b) (that is, an expert who is a party, an employee of a party, or was retained by a party to form and express an opinion in anticipation of the litigation or in preparation for the trial of the action) [see § 198.11[1]], the list must be accompanied by an expert witness declaration as to that witness [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.260(c)]. For a form of expert witness declaration, see § 198.51.

[ii] Contents of Declaration

The expert witness declaration must contain the following:

- A brief narrative statement of the qualifications of the expert [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.260(c)(1)].

- A brief narrative statement of the general substance of the testimony the expert is expected to give [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.260(c)(2)].

- A representation that the expert has agreed to testify at trial [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.260(c)(3)].

- A representation that the expert will be sufficiently familiar with the pending action to submit a meaningful oral deposition concerning the specific testimony that he or she is expected to give, including any opinion and the basis for that opinion [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.260(c)(4)].

- A statement of the expert's hourly and daily fee for providing deposition testimony and for consulting with the retaining attorney [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.260(c)(5)].

The expert witness declaration must be signed under penalty of perjury, only by the attorney for the party, or by the party if he or she has no attorney [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.260(c)].

[iii] Purpose of Declaration and Harmless Noncompliance

The requirement that a party disclose the general substance of an expert witness's expected testimony means the party must disclose the substance of the facts and the opinions to which the expert will testify at trial, thereby giving the opposing party the opportunity to prepare for cross examination and rebuttal of the testimony [Kennemur v. State of California (1982) 133 Cal. App. 3d 907, 919, 184 Cal. Rptr. 393 (prior law)].

A failure to include the general substance of an expert witness's proposed testimony is harmless error, however, if the opposing party nevertheless obtains such information through a deposition of the expert [Kennemur v. State of California (1982) 133 Cal. App. 3d 907, 918 n.5, 184 Cal. Rptr. 393 (prior law)]. Further, even if testimony is offered without prior disclosure, there is no prejudice if the court offers to recess the trial in order for counsel to depose the witness to obtain rebuttal evidence, but counsel refuses to accept the offer [Whitehall v. United States Lines, Inc. (1986) 177 Cal. App. 3d 1201, 1210, 223 Cal. Rptr. 452 (prior law)].

[iv] Declaration Is Required When Designating an Expert Retained by Another Party

The necessity for an expert witness declaration is based on the "designation" of a witness, as well that witness' status as a party-affiliated expert. An expert witness declaration is required for each expert retained by a party, who is not necessarily the same as the designating party. Thus, if one party designates an expert witness who was retained by another party, the party who designates that witness, and who therefore expects to offer the expert's testimony at trial, must furnish an expert witness declaration [Zellerino v. Brown (1991) 235 Cal. App. 3d 1097, 1116, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d

[v] Declaration Is Not Required When Designating Treating Physician or Other "Percipient" Expert

The Supreme Court has held that an expert witness declaration, disclosing the anticipated testimony of a party-affiliated expert, need not be provided with respect to a percipient expert. A percipient expert is distinguished from one who is employed by a party and provided with information by that party in order to render an expert opinion in anticipation of or preparation for litigation [see discussion in § 198.11[1]]. This is because a percipient expert provides expert opinion that is based, not on information provided by an employing party witness, but rather on information acquired from personal observation. Requiring the designating party to analyze such a witness's anticipated testimony and to submit that analysis to the opponent would invade the absolute protection given by the work-product doctrine to the thought processes of an attorney in preparation for trial [Schreiber v. Estate of Kiser (1999) 22 Cal. 4th 31, 34-35, 91 Cal. Rptr. 2d 293, 989 P.2d 720 ; Hurtado v. Western Medical Center (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 1198, 1203, 272 Cal. Rptr. 324] .

Thus, for example, an expert witness declaration need not be submitted for a treating physician who has been designated as an expert witness. A treating physician is not the type of "retained" expert described by Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.210(b) for whom such a declaration is required under Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.260(c). A treating physician is not consulted for litigation purposes, but is rather a percipient witness who acquires facts independently through the underlying physician-patient relationship. As a percipient witness, a treating physician may nevertheless testify as an expert witness to any opinions formed on the basis of facts independently acquired and informed by the physician's training, skill, and experience [Schreiber v. Estate of Kiser (1999) 22 Cal. 4th 31, 34-36, 91 Cal. Rptr. 2d 293, 989 P.2d 720 ; see, e.g, Fatica v. Superior Court (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 350, 353, 120 Cal. Rptr. 2d 904 (petitioners' expert, a treating physician, should have been permitted to testify concerning his opinions; under Schreiber, testimony of treating physician who is a percipient expert is not limited to personal observations, rather, he or she may provide both fact and opinion testimony and may testify as to opinions formed on basis of facts independently acquired and informed by his or her training, skill, and experience)]. This includes opinions regarding causation and standard of care, because those issues are inherent in a physician's work [Schreiber v. Estate of Kiser (1999) 22 Cal. 4th 31, 39, 91 Cal. Rptr. 2d 293, 989 P.2d 720 (disapproving Plunkett v. Spaulding (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 114, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 377)].

Compliance with Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.010 et seq., however, is required if the treating physicians will be called to testify as a retained expert [see Kalaba v. Gray (2002) 95 Cal. App. 4th 1416, 1423-1424, 116 Cal. Rptr. 2d 570 (treating physicians, who were not listed or identified by name, but simply referred to in expert witness designation as "all past or present examining and/or treating physicians," could not testify as experts; construing former Code Civ. Proc. § 2034); see § 198.19[2]].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

§ 198.13 Exchange of Discoverable Reports and Writings

If a demand for an exchange of information concerning expert trial witnesses includes a demand for production of reports and writings as described in Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.210(c) [see § 198.11[1]], all parties must produce and exchange, at the place and on the date specified in the demand, all discoverable reports and writings, if any, made by any designated expert described in Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.210(b) (that is, a designated expert who is a party, an employee of a party, or was retained by a party to form and express an opinion in anticipation of the litigation or in preparation for the trial of the action) [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.270; for further discussion of experts described under Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.210(b), see §§ 198.11[1]] and 198.12[2][b]]. Retention requirements are discussed in § 198.11[4].

A party who does not file a discoverable report of an expert witness until the date of trial unreasonably fails to fulfill this obligation. Even if the report is not received until the date of trial, the party should file the report as part of a motion for leave to submit tardy information [see Zellerino v. Brown (1991) 235 Cal. App. 3d 1097, 1116-1117, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 222] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

§ 198.14 Motion for Protective Order

A party who has been served with a demand may promptly move for a protective order [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.250].

On a showing of good cause, the court may make any order that justice requires to protect any party from unwarranted annoyance, embarrassment, oppression, or undue burden and expense [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.250(b)]. The order may include, but is not limited to, one or more of the following directions:

- That the demand be quashed because it was not timely served [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.250(b)(1); see also discussion in § 198.11[3][b]].

- That the date of exchange be earlier or later than that specified in the demand [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.250(b)(2)].

- That the exchange be made only on specified terms and conditions [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.250(b)(3)].

- That the production and exchange of any reports and writings of experts be made at a different place, or at a different time than that specified in the demand [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.250(b)(4)].

- That some or all of the parties be divided into sides on the basis of their identity of interest in the issues in the action, and that the designation of retained experts or experts otherwise described under Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.210(b) [see § 198.11[1]] be made by any side so created [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.250(b)(5)].

- That a party or a side reduce the list of employed or retained experts designated by that party or side under Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.210(b) [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.250(b)(6); see also § 198.11[1]].

If the motion for a protective order is denied in whole or in part, the court may order that the parties against whom the motion is brought provide or permit the discovery against which the protection was sought on those terms and conditions that are just [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.250(c)].

A motion for a protective order is the only method of properly challenging a demand for exchange of expert trial witness information [see Zellerino v. Brown (1991) 235 Cal. App. 3d 1097, 1109-1112, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 222 (objection is improper challenge)]. A protective order may also be sought in post-demand proceedings, such as proceedings to depose a expert designated in the exchange [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.420, discussed in § 198.18[3][a]].

For a form of motion for protective order, with discussion of requirements relating to monetary sanctions and a good faith attempt at informal resolution of issues presented by the motion, see § 198.56. For a procedural checklist relating to this motion proceeding, see § 198.41[1].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

§ 198.15 Supplemental Witness List

Within 20 days after the exchange described in Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.260 [see § 198.12], any party who engaged in the exchange may submit a supplemental expert list containing the name and address of any experts who will express an opinion on a subject to be covered by an expert designated by an adverse party to the exchange, if the party supplementing an expert witness list has not previously retained an expert to testify on that subject [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.280(a)].

This supplemental list must be accompanied by an expert witness declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.260(c) concerning the additional experts [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.280(b); for discussion of declarations under Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.260(c), see § 198.12[2][b]]. It must also be accompanied by all discoverable reports and writings, if any, made by those additional experts [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.280(b); see also discussion in § 198.13].

A party submitting supplemental information regarding additional experts must also make those experts available immediately for a deposition under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2034.410-2034.470 [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.280(c); see discussion in § 198.18]. Such a deposition may be taken even though the time limit for discovery under Code Civ. Proc. § 2024.010 et seq. has expired [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.280(c); for general discussion relating to time limits under Code Civ. Proc. § 2024.010 et seq., see Ch. 190, Discovery: Scope, Regulation, and Timing, § 190.50 et seq.].

The procedural for supplemental expert witness information allows a party to reconsider which experts he or she should call. For example, if a party decides not to call an expert on an issue on the assumption that another party will not call one on that issue, but the initial exchange reveals that the assumption was incorrect, the first party may submit a supplemental list under Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.280 [see Reporter's Notes to Proposed Code Civ. Proc. § 2034(h); see also Ch. 190, Discovery: Scope, Regulation, and Timing, § 190.13[2]].

Conversely, a party who has already designated an expert to testify on a particular subject may not replace that expert with one stated on a supplemental list [Basham v. Babcock (1996) 44 Cal. App. 4th 1717, 1718, 52 Cal. Rptr. 2d 456]

For a procedural checklist in submitting supplemental expert witness information, see § 198.41[3].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

16-198 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 198.16

§ 198.16 Amending or Augmenting Expert Witness Information

[1] Motion for Leave to Amend or Augment

On the motion of any party who has engaged in a timely exchange of expert witness information, the court may grant leave to do either of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.610(a)]:

- Augment that party's expert witness list and declaration by adding the name and address of any expert witness whom the party has subsequently retained.

- Amend the party's expert witness declaration with respect to the general substance of the testimony that a previously designated expert is expected to give.

A party who wishes to substitute an expert for one already designated must make a motion to augment that party's list of experts as required by Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.610. A court's order that discovery is closed except for experts who are allowed to be designated late does not constitute permission for a party to augment that party's list of experts without bringing the statutory motion [Richaud v. Jennings (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 81, 87-91, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 790 (construing former Code Civ. Proc. § 2034)].

For a form of motion for leave to augment or amend, with discussion of requirements relating to monetary sanctions and a good faith attempt at informal resolution of issues presented by the motion, see § 198.54. For procedural checklists relating to this motion proceeding, see § 198.42[1] and [2].

[2] Timing of Motion

The motion must be made a sufficient time in advance of the time limit for the completion of discovery under Code Civ. Proc. § 2024.010 et seq. to permit the deposition, within that time limit, of any expert to whom the motion [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.610(b); see Bonds v. Roy (1999) 20 Cal. 4th 140, 149, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 289, 973 P.2d 66 (trial court was within discretion to deny motion made near close of trial)].

Under exceptional circumstances, the court may permit the motion to be made at a later time [Code Civ. Proc. §

2034.610(b)]. For discussion of general time requirements under Code Civ. Proc. § 2024.010 et seq., see Ch. 190, Discovery: Scope, Regulation, and Timing, § 190.50 et seq. For discussion relating to the reopening of discovery when a trial date is reset following mistrial or pursuant to a new trial, see § 198.11[3][c].

[3] Grounds for Granting Leave

The court may grant leave to augment or amend an expert witness list or declaration only after taking into account the extent to which the opposing party has relied on the list of expert witnesses, and after determining that any party opposing the motion will not be prejudiced in maintaining the party's action or defense on the merits [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.620(a), (b); see Dickison v. Howen (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 1471, 1478-1479, 270 Cal. Rptr. 188 (party will be prejudiced by augmentation when, due to its reliance on previous list of experts, it is not prepared for new testimony, and cannot be prepared to respond to new testimony in time for trial)].

The court must also determine the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.620(c)]:

- The moving party sought leave promptly after deciding to call the additional expert witness or offer the different or additional testimony.

- The moving party, in seeking leave, has also promptly served a copy of the proposed expert witness information on all other parties who have appeared in the action.

- Before seeking leave, the moving party either (1) would not in the exercise of reasonable diligence have determined to call that expert witness or have decided to offer the different or additional testimony of that expert witness, or (2) failed to determine to call that expert witness, or to offer the different or additional testimony of that expert witness as a result of mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect.

For purposes of showing mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect, when a party's attorney previously interviewed an expert witness and determined the expected testimony of that witness, a change of testimony by that expert witness constituted "surprise" sufficient to support leave for augmentation [Dickison v. Howen (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 1471, 1478, 270 Cal. Rptr. 188] .

[4] Conditions for Granting Leave

Leave to amend or augment expert witness information is required to be conditioned on the moving party making the expert available immediately for a deposition under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2034.410-2034.470 [see discussion in § 198.18]. Leave is also to be conditioned on such other terms as may be just. These may include, but are not limited to, the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.620(d)]:

- Granting leave to any party opposing the motion to designate additional expert witnesses or to elicit additional opinions from those previously designated.

- Granting a continuance of the trial for a reasonable period of time.

- Awarding costs and litigation expenses to any party opposing the motion.

Additional conditions may be appropriate depending on the circumstances of the case. For example, in a medical malpractice action, the trial court, in granting the defendant leave to augment, also granted certain conditions requested by plaintiff in the event the court granted the motion to augment. These conditions limited defendant's augmentation to one new expert, to be made available under terms convenient to the plaintiff and at the defendant's expense, and required the defendant to provide plaintiff with an itemization of consultation fees paid to the new expert by the defendant's malpractice insurer within the last three years, together with the names of counsel for the plaintiffs in those cases in which the new expert had been paid for such consultation [Dickison v. Howen (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 1471, 1479-1480, 270 Cal. Rptr. 188] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

16-198 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 198.17

§ 198.17 Motion to Submit Tardy Expert Witness Information

[1] On Failure to Submit Timely Information

On the motion of any party who has failed to submit expert witness information on the date specified in a demand for that exchange, the court may grant leave to submit that information on a later date [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.710].

The motion to submit tardy information must be made a sufficient time in advance of the time limit for the completion of discovery under Code Civ. Proc. § 2024.010 et seq. to permit the deposition, within that time limit, of any expert to whom the motion [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.710(b)]. Under exceptional circumstances, however, the court may permit the motion to be made at a later time [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.710(b); for discussion of time requirements under Code Civ. Proc. § 2024.010 et seq., see Ch. 190, Discovery: Scope, Regulation, and Timing, § 190.50 et seq.].

For a form of motion for leave to submit tardy information, with discussion of requirements relating to monetary sanctions and a good faith attempt at informal resolution of issues presented by the motion, see § 198.54. For a procedural checklist relating to this motion proceeding, see § 198.42[3].

[2] Grounds and Conditions for Granting Leave

The court may grant leave to submit tardy information only after taking into account the extent to which the opposing party has relied on the absence of a list of expert witnesses, and after determining that any party opposing the motion will not be prejudiced in maintaining the party's action or defense on the merits [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.720(a), (b)].

The court must also determine the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.720(c)]:

- The moving party failed to submit the information for which leave to submit is being sought, as a result of mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect.

- The moving party sought leave promptly after learning of the mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect.

- The moving party, in seeking leave, has also promptly served a copy of the proposed expert witness information described in Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.260 [see discussion in § 198.12[2]] on all other parties who have appeared in the action.

Leave to submit tardy information is required to be conditioned on the moving party making the expert available immediately for a deposition under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2034.410-2034.470 [see discussion in § 198.18]. Leave is also to be conditioned on such other terms as may be just. These may include, but are not limited to, the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.720(d)]:

- Granting leave to any party opposing the motion to designate additional expert witnesses or to elicit additional opinions from those previously designated.

- Granting a continuance of the trial for a reasonable period of time.

- Awarding costs and litigation expenses to any party opposing the motion.

Chapter 198 DISCOVERY: EXCHANGE OF EXPERT WITNESS INFORMATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

16-198 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 198.18

§ 198.18 Deposition of Expert Witness

[1] Right to Depose Expert Designated by Another Party

When any party receives an expert witness list from another party, he or she may take the deposition of any person on the list [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.410]. This right was one that formerly distinguished California discovery practice from that under the federal rules [see Reporter's Notes to Proposed Code Civ. Proc. § 2034(k)]. Since the 1986 enactment of former Code Civ. Proc. § 2034, however, Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 26(b)(4)(A) has been revised to afford this right as well.

In exceptional circumstances, a party may depose another party's expert witness even before receipt of the other party's expert witness list. For example, when one party submitted a declaration by an expert witness in support of a motion for summary judgment, and the opposing party presented a counter affidavit by another expert, the moving party sought to depose the opposing party's expert on the basis of that expert's foundational facts. The opposing party resisted the deposition on the ground that it was premature under former Code Civ. Proc. § 2034(i) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.410). The moving party argued that an expert's affidavit expressing a completely untenable opinion based on inaccurate foundational facts should not alone be permitted to raise a triable issue so as to defeat summary judgment. The court of appeal agreed, on these unusual facts, and permitted the deposition to proceed on that limited issue [St. Mary Medical Center v. Superior Court (1996) 50 Cal. App. 4th 1531, 1534, 1538-1541, 58 Cal. Rptr. 2d 182] .

[2] Procedures for Taking Depositions Generally Apply

Generally, the procedures for taking oral and written depositions set forth in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2025.010 et seq., 2026.010, 2027.010, and 2028.010 et seq. apply to the deposition of the expert [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.410]. For detailed discussion and forms relating to these procedures, see Ch. 193, Discovery: Depositions . Exceptions to the general procedures that otherwise apply, set out in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2034.410-2034.470, are discussed in [3], below.

[3] Exceptions to General Deposition Procedures

A deposition under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2034.410-2034.470, of an expert of the type described in Code Civ. Proc. §

2034.210(b) (that is, one who has been retained by a party for the purpose of forming and expressing an opinion in anticipation of the litigation or in preparation for the trial of the action, or who is an employee of a party or party himself or herself) [see § 198.11[1]], must be taken within 75 miles of the courthouse where the action is pending [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.420]. This codifies prior case law holding that retained experts, unlike nonparty witnesses or experts with independently acquired knowledge, may be compelled to travel to the area where the trial will be held [see Reporter's Notes to Proposed Code Civ. Proc. § 2034(k)(1) (subsequently enacted as Code Civ. Proc. § 2034(i)(1); now see Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.420); see also Tahoe Forest Inn v. Superior Court (1979) 99 Cal. App. 3d 509, 512, 160 Cal. Rptr. 314] . As such, it is an exception to the location requirements that apply to oral depositions generally [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.420; see discussion in [2], above; for discussion of the general location requirements, see also Ch. 193, Discovery: Depositions, § 193.22].

The court may order the deposition to be taken at a more distant place from the courthouse, but only on a motion for a protective order by the party designating the expert and on a showing of exceptional hardship [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.420]. For a form of motion for protective order that may be used for this purpose, see § 198.56. For a procedural checklists relating to this proceeding, see § 198.41[1] and 198.43[1].

[b] Use of Deposition Notice Rather Than Subpoena

The service of a proper deposition notice, accompanied by a tender of the expert's fee described in Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.430 [see discussion in [3], below], is effective to require a party employing or retaining an expert to produce that expert for a deposition under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2034.410-2034.470) [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.460(a)].

This codifies prior case regarding the deposition of retained experts [see Tahoe Forest Inn v. Superior Court (1979) 99 Cal. App. 3d 509, 512, 160 Cal. Rptr. 314] . It makes it clear that a deposition notice is sufficient to compel the attendance of a designated expert at a discovery deposition, and that in this situation no deposition subpoena is required [see Reporter's Notes to Proposed Code Civ. Proc. § 2034(k)(3) (subsequently enacted as Code Civ. Proc. § 2034(i)(3), now see Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.460); see also Ch. 190, Discovery: Scope, Regulation, and Timing, § 190.13[2]]. As such, it is an exception to the general deposition provisions that otherwise apply [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.420; see discussion in [2], above; for discussion of the deposition notice and deposition subpoena provisions that otherwise apply to compel attendance at a deposition, see also Ch. 193, Discovery: Depositions, § 193.21[3] and 193.30 et seq.].

The obligation to attend based on a deposition notice alone is, however, effectively limited to experts who are employed or retained by the designating party, since it is only these experts who are under the effective control of the party who is required to produce them on receipt of a deposition notice under Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.460 [see Reporter's Notes to Proposed Code Civ. Proc. § 2034(k)(3) (subsequently enacted as Code Civ. Proc. § 2034(i)(3), now see Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.460))]. In other words, even if the party serving the deposition notice properly tenders the expert witness fees, a designating party receiving the deposition notice has the burden of producing the expert witness only if that party employed or retained the expert for the purpose of preparation for trial. A designating party need not produce an expert who is a percipient witness and was not designated because he or she was retained, but only because the designating party intends to ask questions of the witness that may require an expert opinion [Hurtado v. Western Medical Center (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 1198, 1203, 272 Cal. Rptr. 324] .

[c] Payment of Expert Witness Fee

[i] Summary of Exception

A party desiring to depose an expert witness designated by another party under Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.430(a), must pay compensation to that witness as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.430, provided that the expert is not a party or an employee of a party, and provided that the expert falls within one of the definitions discussed in [ii], below [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.430(a)]. For discussion of the determination of the amount of the fee, and proceedings to have the court reset an unreasonable fee, see respectively [iii] and [vi], below.

This compensation requirement is one of the exceptions to the general deposition procedures that otherwise apply to expert witness depositions under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2034.410-2034.470 [see discussion in [2], above].

[ii] "Expert Witness" Subject to Exception

For the purpose of the compensation requirement of Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.430 [see [i], above], an "expert witness" who must be compensated for time spent at a deposition under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2034.410-2034.470 is one who is not a party or an employee of a party, and who falls within one of the following categories [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.430(a)]:

- An expert, other than a party or employee of a party, described in Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.210(b) (that is, an expert who has been retained by a party for the purpose of forming and expressing an opinion in anticipation of the litigation or in preparation for the trial of the action) [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.430(a); see also § 198.11[1]].

- A treating physician and surgeon or other treating health care practitioner who is to be asked during the deposition to express opinion testimony [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.430(a)(2)]. This includes opinion or factual testimony regarding the past or present diagnosis or prognosis made by the practitioner or the reasons for a particular treatment decision made by the practitioner, but does not include testimony requiring only the reading of words and symbols contained in the relevant medical record, or, if those words and symbols are not legible to the deponent, the approximation by the deponent of what those words and symbols are [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.430(a)(2)].

- An architect, professional engineer, or licensed land surveyor who was involved with the original project design or survey for which he or she is asked to express an opinion both within his or her expertise and relevant to the action or proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.430(a)(3)].

- A designated expert in a workers' compensation case arising under Lab. Code § 3201 et seq. or 6100 et seq. [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.430(f)].

[iii] Calculation of Fee Payable by Deposing Party

An expert who is deposed under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2034.410-2034.470 and who falls within one of the categories described in Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.430(a) [see [ii], above], must be paid his or her reasonable and customary hourly or daily fee for any time spent at the deposition [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.430(b)].

The time spent at the deposition commences at the time noticed in the deposition subpoena (or deposition notice) [see [2], above], or, alternately, at the time of arrival if the expert witness arrives at a later time. The time spent at the deposition terminates when the expert witness is dismissed from the deposition, whether or not he or she is actually deposed by any party attending the deposition [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.430(b)]. For discussion of charges for preparation and travel, see [v], below.

A daily fee may only be charged for a full day of attendance at a deposition, or when the expert was required by the deposing party to be available for a full day and the expert necessarily had to forego all business he or she would have otherwise conducted that day but for the request that he or she be available all day for the scheduled deposition [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.430(e)].

The hourly or daily fee to be charged by the expert witness must not exceed the fee charged to the party who retained the expert, except when the expert has donated his or her services to a charitable or other nonprofit organization [Code

Civ. Proc. § 2034.430(d)]. This provision does not prohibit a variable fee schedule based on the type of services rendered. It requires an expert to charge for deposition testimony the same fee that would be charged to the retaining party for testimonial, as opposed to non-testimonial, services, such as consultative or investigative work [Rancho Bernardo Development Co. v. Superior Court (1992) 2 Cal. App. 4th 358, 361-363, 2 Cal. Rptr. 2d 878 (construing former Code Civ. Proc. § 2034)]. Experts generally charge more for testimony at depositions or court proceedings than they do for non-testimonial services. This is rationalized by the fact that it is a more stressful, and a more valuable, type of service than non-testimonial services. Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.430 does not limit the fee for deposition services to whatever lower fee may be charged for non-testimonial services. Because most experts are retained by a party for consultative or investigative purposes only, there being little cause for a party to depose its own expert, this means that another party who subsequently deposes that expert will typically be charged a higher fee than that charged to the party who designated the expert, at least for those rendered to the designating party before testifying at trial [see Rancho Bernardo Development Co. v. Superior Court (1992) 2 Cal. App. 4th 358, 362, 2 Cal. Rptr. 2d 878 (court specifically did not address reasonableness of fee)].

An expert witness's "customary" fee is not necessarily the "reasonable" fee a deposing party must pay for deposing another party's expert witness. When the deposing party believes the expert's fee is unreasonable, Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.470 provides a mechanism for the court to resolve the dispute and set the fee [see discussion of this proceeding in [vi], below].

Witness fees incurred in deposing an opponent's treating physicians are not costs recoverable under Code Civ. Proc. § 1033.5(a)(7) by the prevailing party [Baker-Hoey v. Lockheed Martin Corp. (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 592, 597-600, 3 Cal. Rptr. 3d 593 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 1033.5(a)(7) (prevailing party in tort case may recover as costs ordinary witness fees incurred in deposing witness)]. Deposition fees paid to an opponent's treating physician are recoverable as costs only if the expert was ordered by the court [Baker-Hoey v. Lockheed Martin Corp. (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 592, 595-596, 3 Cal. Rptr. 3d 593 (treating physicians are experts and recovery of their fees as costs are accordingly governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 1033.5's provisions governing expert witness fees, not provisions applicable to ordinary witnesses); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1033.5(a)(8) (fees or expert witness fees ordered by court are recoverable); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1033.5(b)(1) (specifically disallowing expert fees as costs unless court has ordered fees to be incurred, absent specific authorizing statute)]. Otherwise, a treating physician's reasonable and customary hourly or daily fees must be paid under Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.430 to take his or her deposition [Baker-Hoey v. Lockheed Martin Corp. (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 592, 600, 3 Cal. Rptr. 3d 593 (construing former Code Civ. Proc. § 2034)].

Gov. Code § 68092.5 sets out provisions substantially similar to Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2034.430-2034.470 (discussed above and in [iv]-[vi], below). Gov. Code § 68092.5 applies to the compensation of an expert for testimony at trial, as distinguished from compensation for time spent at deposition for discovery purposes. For further discussion of Gov. Code § 68092.5, see Ch. 535, Subpoena .

[iv] Tender of Anticipated Fee by Deposing Party

The deposing party must either accompany the service of the deposition notice with a tender of the expert's fee based on the anticipated length of the deposition, or tender that fee at the commencement of the deposition [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.450(a); True v. Shank (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 1250, 1257, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 462 (per statutory provision, expert witness fees may be tendered at commencement of deposition as alternative to tender with deposition notice)]. In either event, the deposing party is required to deliver the expert's fee to the designating party's attorney [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.450(b);].

If the deposing party fails to tender the fee either with the deposition notice or at the commencement of the deposition, the expert need not be deposed at the time specified in the notice, unless the parties stipulate otherwise [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.460(b); for further discussion of Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.460, see [b], above].

If the deposition takes longer than anticipated, the party noticing the deposition must pay the balance of the fee within five days of receipt of an itemized statement from the expert [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.450(c)].

[v] Fees Payable by Designating Party or Tardy Counsel

The party designating the expert is responsible for any fee charged by the expert for preparing for the deposition and for traveling to the place of the deposition, as well as for any travel expenses of the expert [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.440].

The provision for setting the amount of fees to be paid to an expert under Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.430 renders the deposing party liable only for those fees of the expert that are "reasonable." An expert is not precluded from charging or receiving an additional amount from his or her client, the designating party. Thus, for example, an expert may bill his or her client for any amounts that have been disallowed by the court in a proceeding to set the fees payable by the deposing party [for discussion of this proceeding, see [vi], below]. These excess or "unreasonable" fees remain a matter of negotiation and agreement between the expert and the designating party [Marsh v. Mountain Zephyr, Inc. (1996) 43 Cal. App. 4th 289, 304, 50 Cal. Rptr. 2d 493] .

If any counsel for the expert, the designating party, or any other party other than the deposing party is late arriving at the deposition, the expert's reasonable and customary hourly or daily fee for the time period determined from the time noticed in the deposition subpoena (or deposition notice) until the time of that counsel's late arrival is chargeable to that tardy counsel [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.430(c)].

[vi] Motion to Set Reasonable Fee

If a party desiring to take the deposition of an expert witness under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2034.410-2034.470 deems that the expert's hourly or daily fee for providing deposition testimony is unreasonable, that party may move for an order setting the expert's compensation. Notice of the motion must be given to the expert [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.470(a)].

This motion must be accompanied by a declaration stating facts showing a reasonable and good faith attempt at an informal resolution of each issue presented by the motion. Notice of this motion must be given to the expert [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.470(b); for further discussion of this requirement, see generally Ch. 190, Discovery: Scope, Regulation, and Timing, § 190.33[1]].

In any such attempt at an informal resolution, either the party or the expert must provide the other with the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.470(b)]:

- Proof of the ordinary and customary fee actually charged and received by that expert for similar services provided outside the subject litigation [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.470(b)(1)].

- The total number of times the presently demanded fee has ever been charged and received by that expert [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.470(b)(2)].

- The frequency and regularity with which the presently demanded fee has been charged and received by that expert within the two-year period preceding the hearing on the motion [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.470(b)(3)].

In the motion proceeding, in addition to any other facts or evidence offered in support of or in opposition to the motion, either the expert or the designating must provide proof of these same three items [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.470(c) (also providing that the items described in Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.470(b)(2) and (3) apply only in actions filed after 1993)].

The court's determination as to the reasonableness of the fee is also required to be based on these same three items [

Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.470(c), (d)]. The court may also consider, however, evidence of the ordinary and customary fees charged by similar experts for similar services within the relevant community, as well as any other factors that the court deems necessary or appropriate to make its determination [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.470(e)]. If the court determines that the expert's fee is unreasonable, it must set that fee based on the evidence and factors considered [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.470(f)].

For a form of motion to set fees, with discussion of additional requirements relating to monetary sanctions for unsuccessfully making or opposing the motion, see § 198.58.

[vii] Expert's Standing to Appeal Order Setting Fee

An expert witness has standing to appeal the order setting his or her deposition testimony fee [Marsh v. Mountain Zephyr, Inc. (1996) 43 Cal. App. 4th 289, 297, 50 Cal. Rptr. 2d 493] .

Chapter 198 DISCOVERY: EXCHANGE OF EXPERT WITNESS INFORMATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

16-198 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 198.19

§ 198.19 Effect of Unreasonable Failure to Exchange Expert Witness Information

[1] Exclusion From Evidence of Expert Testimony

On the objection of any party who has made a complete and timely compliance with the exchange requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.260 [see discussion in 198.12], the trial court is required to exclude from evidence the expert opinion of any witness that is offered by any party who has unreasonably failed to do any of the following:

- List that witness as an expert under Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.260 [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.300(a); see discussion in 198.12[2][a]].

- Submit an expert witness declaration [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.300(b); see discussion in 198.12[2][b]].

- Produce reports and writings of expert witnesses under Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.270 [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.300(c); see discussion in 198.13].

- Make that expert witness available for a deposition under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2034.410-2034.470 [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.300(d); see discussion in 198.18].

These exclusion provisions apply except as provided in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2034.610-2034.630 (proceeding to augment or amend expert witness information, discussed in § 198.16), Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2034.710-2034.730 (proceeding to submit tardy expert witness information, discussed in § 198.17), and Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.310 (nonlisted expert may be called to testify if listed by another party or for impeachment purposes, discussed in § 198.20) [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.300].

These exclusion provisions do not apply to pretrial proceedings. For example, a declaration under penalty of perjury by an expert who was not listed pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.010 et seq. may properly be offered as support for a party's position on a pretrial motion [Kennedy v. Modesto City Hospital (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 575, 580-582, 270 Cal. Rptr. 544 (summary judgment motion; construing former Code Civ. Proc. § 2034)].

[2] Determining "Unreasonable" Failure

Interpretation of the phrase "unreasonably failed" has been the key in applying the expert testimony exclusion provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.300, discussed in [1], above.

In the malpractice case of Bonds v. Roy (1999) 20 Cal. 4th 140, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 289, 973 P.2d 66 , the trial court excluded a defense expert witness's testimony on a particular issue pursuant to former Code Civ. Proc. § 2034(j)(2) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.300(b)) (failure to submit expert witness declaration) [see discussion in § 198.12[2][b]]. The defendant had in fact submitted an expert witness declaration, but that declaration did not mention that the expert was expected to testify on the particular issue on which the court excluded testimony.

The Supreme Court, in affirming the trial court's ruling, interpreted a "failure" to submit a declaration under former Code Civ. Proc. § 2034(j)(2) to include not only a failure to submit a declaration altogether, but also a failure to submit an expert witness declaration that complies fully with the content requirements of former Code Civ. Proc. § 2034(f)(2) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.260(c)) [see discussion in § 198.12[2][b][ii]]. In this case, the defendant "failed" to submit a declaration in that the declaration did not provide the general substance of all the testimony that the expert was expected to give. Although the defendant made a motion to amend the declaration under former Code Civ. Proc. § 2034(k) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.610) in order to correct this failure, this motion was not made until moments before the expert was to be sworn as a witness, near the close of the trial, and the trial court was within its discretion denying that motion as untimely [Bonds v. Roy (1999) 20 Cal. 4th 140, 142-143, 145-146, 149, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 289, 973 P.2d 66 (disapproving contrary rulings in Castaneda v. Bornstein (1995) 36 Cal. App. 4th 1818, 1828-1830, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 10 and Martinez v. City of Poway (1993) 12 Cal. App. 4th 425, 429-430, 15 Cal. Rptr. 2d 644); see also discussion of timeliness of motion to augment or amend in § 198.16].

However, Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.300(b), providing for the exclusion of testimony as a sanction for the failure to submit a witness declaration, which under Bonds v. Roy (discussed above) includes an inaccurate declaration, did not provide the statutory authority to impose monetary sanctions for disclosing for the first time during the trial a theory that the expert did not disclose in the expert witness declaration [Muller v. Fresno Community Hospital & Medical Ct. (2009) 172 Cal. App. 4th 887, 905-906, 91 Cal. Rptr. 3d 617] .

A California court of appeal excluded expert testimony under Code Civ. Proc. § 2034(j)(4) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.300(d)) (failure to make expert available for deposition) [see discussion in § 198.18[3][b]], to the extent that the testimony went beyond opinions the expert had expressed during his deposition [Jones v. Moore (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 557, 564-565, 95 Cal. Rptr. 2d 216 (legal malpractice case)]. In his deposition, the expert testified as to specific opinions, and affirmatively stated that these were the only opinions he intended to offer at trial, and promised to notify defendant if he later formulated others. This the expert did not do. Nor did plaintiff make a timely motion to amend the expert's declaration under former Code of Civ. Proc. § 2034(k) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.610), although that declaration regarding this expert arguably was broad enough to encompass the additional testimony [Jones v. Moore (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 557, 564-565, 95 Cal. Rptr. 2d 216] . The court reasoned that the case did not turn on the adequacy of the expert witness declaration. It turned, rather, on a party's right to rely on the other party's expert's express representation that the opinions expressed during an expert deposition were the only ones that needed be met at trial. Although this case did not present precisely the situation described in former Code of Civ. Proc. § 2034(j)(4), it was sufficiently similar in that the expert was, in effect, not made available for deposition as to the further opinions he offered at trial, opinions which, in his deposition testimony, he had assured defense counsel he did not have. The court concluded that it would be grossly unfair and prejudicial to hold otherwise [Jones v. Moore (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 557, 565, 95 Cal. Rptr. 2d 216] .

Another court of appeal has held that expert testimony is not to be excluded under former Code Civ. Proc. § 2034(j)(4) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.300(d)) unless the party offering the testimony "unreasonably" failed to make that expert witness available for deposition under former Code Civ. Proc. § 2034(i) (now see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2034.410-2034.470). In Stanchfield v. Hamer Toyota, Inc. (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 1495, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 565 , the party seeking to present the testimony did make the expert available for a deposition, although the deposition was never completed because the expert needed more time to develop his opinions. The court concluded that this was not an unreasonable failure to make the witness available for deposition, especially since the opposing party did nothing at the time and waited until two weeks before the trial date before making an objection [Stanchfield v. Hamer Toyota, Inc. (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 1495, 1503-1504, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 565] .

One court of appeal refused to allow plaintiff's treating physicians to testify as experts because the treating physicians were not listed or identified by name, as required by former Code Civ. Proc. § 2034(j)(1) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.300(a)) (failure to list witness as an expert) [see discussion in § 198.12[2][a]], but simply referred to in the expert witness designation as "all past or present examining and/or treating physicians" [Kalaba v. Gray (2002) 95 Cal. App. 4th 1416, 1423-1424, 116 Cal. Rptr. 2d 570] . Although no expert declaration is required for a treating physician who will be called to testify at trial as an expert witness [see Schreiber v. Estate of Kiser (1999) 22 Cal. 4th 31, 34-35, 91 Cal. Rptr. 2d 293, 989 P.2d 720 (discussed in § 198.12[2][b][v])], retained experts must be designated, and the designation must be accompanied by the expert witness declaration described in Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.260(c) [Kalaba v. Gray (2002) 95 Cal. App. 4th 1416, 1422-1423, 116 Cal. Rptr. 2d 570 (construing former Code Civ. Proc. § 2034(f))]. The court of appeal explained that "the transformation from treating physician to expert" does not occur unless the treating physician is identified by name and address in the proponent's designation [Kalaba v. Gray (2002) 95 Cal. App. 4th 1416, 1418, 116 Cal. Rptr. 2d 570] . The court found no authority to support plaintiff's contention that her discovery responses should be viewed as "substantial compliance" with the specific requirements of former Code Civ. Proc. § 2034. Although the Supreme Court suggested in Schreiber that an opposing party would be prudent to ask a treating physician at his or her deposition whether the physician holds any opinions on the matters about which expert testimony will be required at trial, and if so, the manner in which he or she obtained the factual underpinning of those opinions, the Supreme Court did not suggest that, to be prudent, defense counsel should depose every treating physician without regard to whether the treating physician had been designated as an expert [Kalaba v. Gray (2002) 95 Cal. App. 4th 1416, 1423, 116 Cal. Rptr. 2d 570] . Expressing concern that medical malpractice cases are already particularly complex and expensive to prosecute and to defend, the court found nothing in Schreiber to suggestthat the Supreme Court intended to impose further unnecessary economic burdens on either side by encouraging more depositions than reasonably necessary in any particular case [Kalaba v. Gray (2002) 95 Cal. App. 4th 1416, 1423-1424, 116 Cal. Rptr. 2d 570,1423-1424] . Accordingly, the court concluded that plaintiff had complied with neither the letter nor the spirit of former Civ. Proc. Code § 2034 [Kalaba v. Gray (2002) 95 Cal. App. 4th 1416, 1423, 116 Cal. Rptr. 2d 570] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

16-198 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 198.20

§ 198.20 When Nonlisted Expert May Testify at Trial

A party who has not previously designated an expert witness may nevertheless call that expert witness to testify at trial in either of the following situations [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.310]:

- The expert was designated by another party, and was thereafter deposed under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2034.410-2034.470 [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.310(a)].

- The expert is called as a witness to impeach the testimony of an expert witness offered by any other party at the trial. This impeachment may include testimony as to the falsity or nonexistence of any fact used as the foundation for any opinion by any other party's expert witness, but may not include testimony that contradicts the opinion [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.310(b); see, e.g., Mizel v. City of Santa Monica (2001) 93 Cal. App. 4th 1059, 1067-1068, 113 Cal. Rptr. 2d 649 (no error in excluding expert testimony of defendants' rebuttal witness, because proposed testimony expressed contrary opinion, and thus did not qualify under exception of former Code Civ. Proc. § 2034(m), now see Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.310(b))].

Calling a witness pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.310(a) is not restricted to situations in which the designating party does not call the expert to testify, or in which coparties agree to share an expert and the designating coparty leaves the case [Powell v. Superior Court (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 441, 445, 259 Cal. Rptr. 390 (construing former Code Civ. Proc. § 2034(m)(1))]. Thus, a nondesignating party may call an expert even though the expert was designated by an opposing party, so long as the nondesignating party deposed that expert after his or her designation [Powell v. Superior Court (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 441, 444-445, 259 Cal. Rptr. 390 (plaintiff was allowed to call as expert physician previously designated by defendant hospital)].

PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

16-198 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 198.32

§ 198.32 Decisions

[1] Exchange of Expert Witness Information

Trial court committed prejudicial error by allowing medical malpractice defendant to delay his designation of retained expert witnesses until 20 days after the patient had designated his own expert, instead of enforcing simultaneous exchange of information as required by former Code Civ. Proc. § 2034 (now see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2034.210(a), 2034.260(a), (b)). Fairfax v. Lords (2006) 138 Cal. App. 4th 1019, 1026-1027, 41 Cal. Rptr. 3d 850

Former Code Civ. Proc. § 2034 (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.010 et seq.) specifically provides for a simultaneous, mutual exchange of expert witness information, not a unilateral exchange; thus, case management order requiring unilateral disclosure of identity, curriculum vitae, and opinion concerning causation of each medical expert who would support plaintiffs' wrongful death claims was not proper exercise of trial court's power to manage complex litigation. Hernandez v. Superior Court (2003) 112 Cal. App. 4th 285, 297, 4 Cal. Rptr. 3d 883

As matter of first impression, concluding that Civil Discovery Act applies to Sexually Violent Predators Act (Welf. & Inst. Code § 6600 et seq.); thus, trial court erred in denying petitioner's motion to compel exchange of expert witness information. Leake v. Superior Court (2001) 87 Cal. App. 4th 675, 682, 104 Cal. Rptr. 2d 767 , overruled on other grounds, People v. Yartz (2005) 37 Cal. 4th 529, 537, 36 Cal. Rptr. 3d 328, 123 P.3d 604

Well-defined procedures for exchange of expert witness information such as experts' identities and testimony are necessary to ensure fairness to parties and efficient resolution of disputes. Province v. Center for Women's Health & Family Birth (1993) 20 Cal. App. 4th 1673, 1683, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 667 , disapproved on other grounds in Heller v. Norcal Mutual Insurance Co. (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 30, 41, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 200, 876 P.2d 999

Former Code Civ. Proc. § 2034 (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.010 et seq.) requires litigating party to reveal expert witness information to other parties sufficiently early in pretrial stage so that expert witness discovery does not interfere with other trial preparation. Richaud v. Jennings (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 81, 90, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 790

Party is required to disclose, either in expert witness exchange list or at expert's deposition, substance of facts and opinions to which expert will testify at trial; impeaching expert is permitted to give reasons why opposing expert's foundational facts were false or nonexistent, but not to generally rebut opinion of expert being impeached. Kennemur v. State of California (1982) 133 Cal. App. 3d 907, 919, 924-925, 184 Cal. Rptr. 393 (prior law)

[2] Exclusion of Expert Testimony at Trial

Treating physicians, who were not listed or identified by name, but simply referred to in expert witness designation as "all past or present examining and/or treating physicians" could not testify as experts; "the transformation from treating physician to expert" does not occur unless treating physician is identified by name and address in proponent's designation, and designation is accompanied by expert witness declaration described in former Code Civ. Proc. § 2034(f) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.260(c)). Kalaba v. Gray (2002) 95 Cal. App. 4th 1416, 116 Cal. Rptr. 2d 570, 575-577

Former Code Civ. Proc. § 2034(m) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.310(b)) required exclusion of expert testimony of defendants' rebuttal witness, because proposed testimony would not have challenged foundational facts of plaintiff's expert's testimony; "calling an expert witness to express an opinion contrary to that expressed by another expert witness is not the 'impeachment' contemplated by section [2034, subdivision (m)]." Mizel v. City of Santa Monica (2001) 93 Cal. App. 4th 1059, 1067-1068, 113 Cal. Rptr. 2d 649

Former Code of Civ. Proc. § 2034(j)(4) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.300(d)) required exclusion of expert testimony going beyond opinions expert expressed during his deposition, even though expert witness declaration arguably was broad enough to encompass additional testimony, because expert failed to fulfill his promise to notify defendant that he later formulated other opinions, and plaintiff did not make timely motion to amend declaration under former Code of Civ. Proc. § 2034(k) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.610). Jones v. Moore (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 557, 564-565, 95 Cal. Rptr. 2d 216

Trial court must exclude expert opinion of witness only if party offering witness has unreasonably failed to fulfill statutory requirements. Stanchfield v. Hamer Toyota, Inc. (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 1495, 1503-1504, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 565

Pursuant to former Code Civ. Proc. § 2037.5 (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.310(b)), party is not entitled to call undisclosed expert witness merely to give opinion testimony contrary to that of opposing party. Sprague v. Equifax, Inc. (1985) 166 Cal. App. 3d 1012, 1040, 213 Cal. Rptr. 69 (prior law); Gallo v. Peninsula Hospital (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 899, 903-905, 211 Cal. Rptr. 27 (prior law); Ellenberger v. Karr (1982) 127 Cal. App. 3d 423, 427, 179 Cal. Rptr. 583 (prior law)

[3] Expert Witness Costs

Treating physicians' fees that defendant corporation had to pay under former Code Civ. Proc. § 2034(i)(2) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.430) when deposing physicians in connection with residents' claims against corporation for groundwater contamination were not recoverable as costs, although corporation was prevailing party at trial; recovery was unavailable under Code Civ. Proc. § 1033.5(a)(8) because physicians were not court-ordered experts, and unavailable under Code Civ. Proc. § 1033.5(a)(7), because fees paid to physicians were not ordinary witness fees. Baker-Hoey v. Lockheed Martin Corp. (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 592, 597-600, 3 Cal. Rptr. 3d 593

[4] Expert Witness Declaration

Neither Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.300(b), nor any other statute, authorized imposing monetary sanctions for disclosing for first time during trial a theory that the expert did not disclose in the expert witness declaration. Muller v. Fresno Community Hospital & Medical Ct. (2009) 172 Cal. App. 4th 887, 905-906, 91 Cal. Rptr. 3d 617

Treating physicians, who were not listed or identified by name, but simply referred to in expert witness designation as "all past or present examining and/or treating physicians," could not testify as experts; retained experts must be designated, and designation must be accompanied by expert witness declaration described in former Code Civ. Proc. § 2034(f) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.260(c)). Kalaba v. Gray (2002) 95 Cal. App. 4th 1416, 116 Cal. Rptr. 2d 570, 575-577

No expert witness declaration is required for treating physician, in that a treating physician is neither a "retained" expert nor otherwise a witness described under Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.210(b) to whom the declaration requirement of Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.260(c) applies; treating physician is rather a percipient fact witness who, as physician, may be designated as an expert and give expert opinion testimony as to any opinions formed on basis of facts independently acquired and informed by physician's training, skill, and experience, including opinions regarding causation and standard of care. Schreiber v. Estate of Kiser (1999) 22 Cal. 4th 31, 34-36, 39, 91 Cal. Rptr. 2d 293, 989 P.2d 720 (disapproving Plunkett v. Spaulding (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 114, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 377 to the extent contrary; construing former Code Civ. Proc. § 2034(a)(2), (f))

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.260(c), a party must include in expert witness declaration a brief narrative statement of the general substance of the testimony that each expert is expected to give; when a party has failed to provide a declaration providing the general substance of all testimony that an expert is expected to give, and has not moved to amend the declaration under Code Civ. Proc. 2034.610, it is proper for the trial court, on objection by another party under Code Civ. Proc. 2034.300(b), to exclude testimony by that expert on matters not described in the declaration. Bonds v. Roy (1999) 20 Cal. 4th 140, 142-143, 145-146, 149, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 289, 973 P.2d 66 (disapproving Castaneda v. Bornstein (1995) 36 Cal. App. 4th 1818, 1828-1830, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 10 and Martinez v. City of Poway (1993) 12 Cal. App. 4th 425, 429-430, 15 Cal. Rptr. 2d 644 to the extent contrary; construing former Code Civ. Proc. § 2034(f)(2), (j)(2), (k))

Petitioners' expert, a treating physician, should have been permitted to testify concerning his opinions; under Schreiber v. Estate of Kiser, testimony of treating physician who is a percipient expert is not limited to personal observations, rather, he or she may provide both fact and opinion testimonyand may testify as to opinions formed on the basis of facts independently acquired and informed by his or her training, skill, and experience. Fatica v. Superior Court (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 350, 353, 120 Cal. Rptr. 2d 904

[5] Proceeding to Augment or Amend Expert Witness Information

Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.610 provides procedure for augmentation of party's expert witness list when for good reason expert was not listed on original expert witness list. Richaud v. Jennings (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 81, 90, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 790 (construing former Code Civ. Proc. § 2034(k))

[6] Withdrawal of Designated Expert Witness

Party did not waive his attorney-client privilege by designating himself as expert witness, because designation was withdrawn before he disclosed significant part of privileged communication. Shooker v. Superior Court (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 923, 930, 4 Cal. Rptr. 3d 334

Party is entitled to withdraw designated expert witness at any time before expert's deposition, thereby reviving work product protection for reports prepared by expert in consultant's capacity. County of Los Angeles v. Superior Court (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 647, 656, 271 Cal. Rptr. 698

Withdrawal of designated expert does not require noticed motion procedure. County of Los Angeles v. Superior Court (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 647, 656, 271 Cal. Rptr. 698

PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLISTS

16-198 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 198.40

§ 198.40 Demand Exchange of Expert Witness Information

[1] Service of Demand

1. Determine that it is not later than 10 days after initial trial date has been set, or 70 days before that trial date, whichever is closer to trial date [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.220].

2. Prepare demand [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.210; see § 198.50 (form of demand)].

3. Prepare proof of service, and attach to demand [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1013a and Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers].

4. Serve the demand on all parties who have appeared in the action. Leave of court is not required [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.220, 2034.240].

[2] Date of Exchange

1. Specify the date of exchange in the demand [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.230(b)].

NOTE:
The date of exchange must be 50 days before the initial trial date, or 20 days after service of the demand, whichever is closer to the trial date, unless the court on motion and a showing of good cause orders an earlier or later date [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2034 .230(b)].

2. To have the date of exchange set within 50 days of the initial trial date, or within 20 days after service of the demand, do the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.230]:

a. Prepare a notice of motion to set a different date for the exchange of expert witness information, a supporting declaration [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.230(b); see § 198.52 (form of motion)], a memorandum of points and authorities, and proof of service of these documents [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1013a, and Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers].

b. At least 16 court days before the date set for the hearing [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b) (period extended if service made by mail, Express Mail, other overnight delivery, or fax)], serve every party to the action or proceeding with a copy of the foregoing documents [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1010-1020 and Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers].

[3] Disposition of Original Demand

1. Do not file the demand with the court. Retain the original, with original proof of service attached, until six months after final disposition of the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.290(a), (b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.250(a)(13), (b)]. Should any discovery motions relating to expert witnesses become necessary during the action, these documents will have to be lodged with the court [see e.g., § 198.42[1]].

2. When six months after final disposition have passed, destroy original demand and proof of service unless the court, on the motion of any party, orders them preserved for a longer period [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.290(b)].

PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLISTS

16-198 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 198.41

§ 198.41 Exchange of Expert Witness Information

NOTE:

Once the demand has been made, all parties who have appeared in the action, including the demanding party, must simultaneously exchange expert witness information. Thus, most of the following steps must or may be taken by the demanding party as well as by all parties served with the demand [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2034 .260]. The only exception is a motion for a protective order relating to the exchange, which may only be made by a party served with a demand [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2034* .250].

[1] Motion for Protective Order

1. If the demand causes unwarranted annoyance, embarrassment, oppression, or undue burden and expense, promptly prepare a notice of motion for a protective order, a supporting declaration [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.250; see § 198.56 (form of motion)], a memorandum [for supporting forms of points and authorities, see California Points and Authorities, Ch. 88, Discovery: Exchange of Expert Witness Information (Matthew Bender)], and proof of service of these documents [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1013a and Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers].

2. Serve a copy of the documents on each party in same manner as noticed motion proceeding described in § 198.40[2]

[2] Initial Exchange

1. If any expert whose testimony will be used at trial is a party, an employee of a party, or retained in connection with the litigation [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.210(b)], prepare an expert witness declaration [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.260(c); see § 198.51 (form of declaration)].

2. On or before the date specified in the demand, which must be 50 days before the trial date, or 20 days after service of the demand, whichever is closer to the trial date, unless court has ordered a different date [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.230(b); for court-ordered date change, see § 198.40[2]], exchange any expert witness information, including any expert witness declarations [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.260(c)], with all parties who have appeared in the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.260(a)]. This may occur at a meeting of the attorneys for the parties involved, or by mail [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.260(a)].

[3] Supplemental Expert List

NOTE:
Any supplemental expert list must be submitted within 20 days of the initial exchange [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034 .280(a)].

1. After the exchange, determine whether any other party has designated an expert to express an opinion on a subject for which you have not retained an expert.

2. Prepare and submit a supplemental expert witness list containing the name and address of any experts who will be called to testify on that subject [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.280(a)].

a. Include an expert witness declaration concerning the additional experts [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.280(b); see § 198.51 (form of declaration)].

b. Include all discoverable reports and writings, if any, made by the additional experts [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.280(b)].

c. Ensure that those experts are available immediately for a deposition under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2034.410-2034.470, even if the time limit for discovery under Code Civ. Proc. § 2024.010 et seq. has expired [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.280(c)].

16-198 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 198.42

§ 198.42 Augmenting, Amending, and Submitting Tardy Expert Witness Information

[1] Motion to Augment Expert Witness List

1. Determine that your original exchange of expert witness information was timely [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.610(a)(1)].

2. Determine that there is sufficient time to permit the deposition of any expert who may be added to the expert witness list to be taken within the time limit for completing discovery under Code Civ. Proc. § 2024.010 et seq. [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.610(b)].

NOTE:
Under exceptional circumstances, the court may permit a motion to submit tardy expert witness information to be made at a later time [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034 .610(b)].

3. If because of mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect, an expert was not designated in the exchange, do the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.620]:

a. Prepare and promptly serve on all other parties who have appeared in the action a copy of an augmented expert witness list containing the name and address of the new expert [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.620(c)(2)(B)].

NOTE:
As a prerequisite to making the motion, counsel must make a reasonable and good faith attempt at an informal resolution of each issue presented by the motion [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2034 .610(c)].

b. Prepare a notice of motion to augment the expert witness list, a supporting declaration stating facts showing the attempt at an informal resolution of the dispute [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.610(c); § 198.54 (form of motion)], a supporting memorandum [for supporting memoranda, see California Points and Authorities, Ch. 88, Discovery: Exchange of Expert Witness Information (Matthew Bender)], and proof of service of these documents [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1013a and Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers].

c. Promptly file the notice of motion and supporting documents with the court [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1005.5, 1010; see Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.620(c)(2)(A)].

d. Serve copies of the documents on each party in same manner as noticed motion proceeding described in § 198.40[2].

e. Lodge the demand, and all expert witness lists and declarations exchanged in response to it, with the court [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.290(c)].

[2] Motion to Amend Expert Witness Declaration

1. Determine that your original exchange of expert witness information was timely [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.610(a)(2)].

2. Determine whether additional testimony or different testimony than that summarized in the expert witness declaration is required [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.610(a)(2)].

3. Determine that there is sufficient time within the time limit for completing discovery under Code Civ. Proc. § 2024.010 et seq. to permit the taking of the deposition of any expert with respect to whom the expert witness declaration may be amended [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.610(b)].

NOTE:
Under exceptional circumstances, the court may permit a motion to augment to be made at a later time [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034 .610(b)].

4. If because of mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect, the testimony was not included in the exchange, do the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.620]:

a. Prepare and promptly serve on all other parties who have appeared in the action a copy of the different or additional testimony [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.620(c)(2)(B)].

NOTE:
As a prerequisite to making the motion, counsel must make a reasonable and good faith attempt at an informal resolution of each issue presented by the motion [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2034 .610(c)].

b. Prepare a notice of motion to amend the expert witness declaration, a supporting declaration stating facts showing the attempt at an informal resolution of the dispute [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.610(c); for a form, see § 198.54], a supporting memorandum [for supporting memoranda, see California Points and Authorities, Ch. 88, Discovery: Exchange of Expert Witness Information (Matthew Bender)], and proof of service of these documents [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1013a and Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers].

c. Promptly file the notice of motion and supporting documents, serve the appropriate copies, and lodge the appropriate documents with the court as described in [1], above.

[3] Motion to Submit Tardy Expert Witness Information

1. Determine that there is sufficient time within the time limit for completing discovery under Code Civ. Proc. § 2024.010 et seq. to permit the taking of the deposition of any expert who will be included in the tardy expert witness information [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.710(b)].

NOTE:
Under exceptional circumstances, the court may permit a motion to augment to be made at a later time [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034 .710(b)].

2. If as the result of mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect, expert witness information was not timely submitted, promptly serve a copy of any proposed expert witness information on all other parties who have appeared in the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.720(c)].

NOTE:
As a prerequisite to making the motion, counsel must make a reasonable and good faith attempt at an informal resolution of each issue presented by the motion [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2034 .710(c)].

3. Prepare a notice of motion to submit tardy information, a supporting declaration stating facts showing the attempt at an informal resolution of the dispute [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.710(c); § 198.54 (form of motion)], a supporting memorandum [for supporting memoranda, see California Points and Authorities, Ch. 88, Discovery: Exchange of Expert Witness Information (Matthew Bender)], and proof of service of these documents [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1013a and Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers].

4. Promptly file the notice of motion and supporting documents, serve the appropriate copies, and lodge the appropriate documents with the court as described in [1], above.

PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLISTS

16-198 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 198.43

§ 198.43 Examining Designated Expert Witnesses

[1] Prepare Notice of Taking Deposition

Follow procedures for taking oral and written depositions set forth in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2025.010 et seq.-2028.010 et seq. [see Ch. 193, Discovery: Depositions], with the following exceptions:

1. If any expert to be deposed is retained by a party or is otherwise an expert described under Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.210(b), notice the deposition at a place within 75 miles of the courthouse where the action is pending [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.420].

2. Service of the deposition notice, accompanied by the tender of the expert witness fee as provided under Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.430 [see [2], below], is effective to require the party retaining the expert to produce the retained expert for deposition [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.460(a)].

[2] Tender Expert Witness Fees

1. Either accompany the service of the deposition notice with a tender of the expert's fee based on the anticipated length of the deposition or tender that fee at the commencement of the deposition. If the fee is not tendered, the expert will not be deposed at that time unless the parties stipulate otherwise. Ensure that the fee is delivered to the attorney for the party designating the expert [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2034.450-2034.460; see § 198.18[3][c]].

2. Motion to Set Expert's Compensation.

a. If the expert's hourly or daily fee for providing deposition testimony is deemed unreasonable, prepare a notice of motion for an order setting the expert's compensation, a supporting declaration stating facts showing the attempt at informal resolution of the dispute [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.470; see § 198.58 (form of motion)], a memorandum of points and authorities [for supporting forms of points and authorities, see California Points and Authorities, Ch. 88, Discovery: Exchange of Expert Witness Information

(Matthew Bender)], and proof of service of these documents [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1013a and Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers].

NOTE:
As a prerequisite to making the motion, counsel must make a reasonable and good faith attempt at an informal resolution of any issue presented by the motion [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2034 .470(b)].

b. Serve copies of the foregoing documents on each party in same manner as noticed motion proceeding described in § 198.40[2].

NOTE:
Notice must be given to the expert as well as to the parties [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2034 .470(a)].

§ 198.50 Demand for Exchange of Information Relating to Expert Witnesses [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.210]

[1] FORM Demand for Exchange of Information Relating to Expert Witnesses [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.210]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA, COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)	NO. _____
vs.	)	DEMAND FOR EXCHANGE
_____ [name],	)	OF INFORMATION RELATING TO EXPERT
Defendant.	)	WITNESSES

To _____ [name of party to whom demand is being made], from _____ [name of demanding party]:

You are requested to serve, not later than _____ [specify date 50 days before the initial trial date, or 20 days after service of the demand, whichever is closer to the trial date, unless the court orders otherwise], in compliance with Section 2034.210 of the Code of Civil Procedure, a list of expert witnesses together with expert witness declarations[, and any and all reports and writings made by each expert in the course of preparing his or her opinion]. You are requested to produce the reports and writings at _____ (address), _____ (city).]

Dated: _____.

_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Use of Form

The demand set out in [1], above, is for use by any party to obtain simultaneous production of information relating to the expert witnesses that all other parties to the action expect to call. The optional language may be used when a party also wants production of all discoverable reports and writings made by expert witnesses in the course of preparing their opinions. Any party may include a demand for production of discoverable reports and writings when the expert witness is a party, an employee of a party, or has been retained by a party in anticipation of litigation [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.210]. The demand may be made without leave of court [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.220]. A copy of the demand must be served on all parties who have appeared in the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.240].

[3] Time Limit for Demand

The demand must be made no later than the tenth day after the initial trial date has been set, or 70 days before that trial date, whichever is closer to the trial date [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.220].

[4] Time for Exchange

The date for the exchange must be 50 days before the initial trial date, or 20 days after service of the demand, whichever is closer to the trial date. However, on motion and a showing of good cause, the court may order an earlier or later date of exchange [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.230(b); see § 198.52].

The demand, and any expert witness lists and declarations exchanged, are not filed with the court. The demanding party must retain both the original of the demand with the original proof of service affixed, and the original of all expert witness lists and declarations exchanged, until six months after final disposition of the action. At that time, all originals may be destroyed, unless the court, on motion of any party, and for good cause shown, orders that they be preserved for a longer period [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.290(a), (b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.250(a)(13), (b)].

[5] Contents of Demand

There is no requisite statutory language, but the demand must be in writing, and must identify, below the title of the case, the party making the demand. The demand must state that it is being made under Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.010 et seq. and must also specify the date for the exchange [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.230]. When the demand requests production of reports and writings, it must apparently also specify a place for the exchange [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.270].

[2] Use of Form

The declaration set out in [1], above, is for use by any party to respond to a demand for the exchange of information concerning expert witnesses. It is used by a responding party to provide information required under Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.260(c), relating to any expert designated by that party who is an expert described under Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.210(b) (that is, an expert who is retained by a party for the purpose of forming and expressing an opinion in anticipation of the litigation, or in preparation for the trial of the action, is an employee of a party, or is a party). For further discussion, including discussion of the required contents of this declaration, see § 198.12[2][b] [see also § 198.11[1] (discussing experts described under Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.210(b))]. For discussion of the exclusion of expert testimony for failure to include complete information in an expert witness declaration, see § 198.19.

The declaration must be made under penalty of perjury. It must be signed only by the attorney for the party designating the expert, or by that party if that party has no attorney [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.260(c)].

MEMORANDUM IN SUPPORT OF MOTION

[Add memorandum supporting motion.]

[2] Use of Form

The form of notice of motion and motion, with supporting declaration, set out in [1], above, is for use by a party to move for an order to set a date for the exchange of expert witness information different from that specified by statute [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.230].

Generally, the date for the exchange of expert witness information must be 50 days before the initial trial date, or 20 days after service of the demand, whichever is closer to the trial date. However, the court, on motion and a showing of good cause, may order an earlier or later date of exchange [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.230(b)]. If this day falls on a Saturday, Sunday, or holiday, the last day becomes the next court day closer to the trial date [Code Civ. Proc. § 2016.060; see Code Civ. Proc. § 10 (designated holidays)].

A supporting memorandum is required to be served and filed with this motion [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1005(b), 1010, 2023.040]. For general discussion of memoranda requirements and a skeletal form of memorandum, see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities . For forms of memoranda relating to proceedings to exchange expert witness information under Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.010 et seq., see California Points and Authorities, Ch. 88, Discovery: Exchange of Expert Witness Information (Matthew Bender).

MEMORANDUM IN SUPPORT OF MOTION

[2] Use of Form

The form of notice of motion and motion, with supporting declaration, set out in [1], above, is for use by a party to move for leave either to augment or amend expert witness information already submitted in response to a demand for the exchange of such information, or to submit expert witness information after the time specified in the demand has lapsed [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2034.610(a), 2034.710(a)]. For discussion of these proceedings, see §§ 198.16 and 198.17.

For procedural checklists relating to this motion proceeding, see § 198.42[1] and [2].

A supporting memorandum is required to be served and filed with this motion [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1005(b), 1010, 2023.040]. For general discussion of memoranda requirements and a skeletal form of memorandum, see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities . For forms of memoranda relating to proceedings to exchange expert witness information under Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.010 et seq., see California Points and Authorities, Ch. 88, Discovery: Exchange of Expert Witness Information (Matthew Bender).

For cross references to additional discussion and forms relating to law and motion proceedings generally, see § 198.52[3].

[3] Timing of Motion

Motions to augment, amend, or submit tardy expert witness information must be made a sufficient time in advance of the time limit for the completion of discovery under Code Civ. Proc. § 2024.010 et seq. to permit the deposition of any expert to whom the motion relates to be taken within that time limit. However, under exceptional circumstances, the court may permit the motion to be made at a later time [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2034.610(b), 2034.710(b)].

[4] Accompanying Papers

The demand, and all expert witness lists and declarations exchanged in response to it, must be lodged with the court when their contents become relevant to an issue in any pending matter in the action [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.290(c)]. If relevant, the demand should also be lodged with the court in a proceeding to submit tardy expert witness information under Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.710.

[5] Declaration of Good Faith Attempt at Informal Resolution

The form of declaration in [1], above, includes a statement of facts showing a reasonable and good faith attempt at an informal resolution of each issue presented by the motion. This statement must accompany both a notice of motion to augment expert witness information, and a notice of motion to submit tardy information [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2034.610(c), 2034.710(c); see also discussion in [6], below, and general discussion in Ch. 190, Discovery: Scope, Regulation, and Timing, § 190.33[1]]. The form of declaration also includes factual statements supporting the grounds for the motion.

Whether the motion is to augment, amend, or submit tardy witness information, the court must impose a monetary sanction under Code Civ. Proc. § 2023.010 et seq. against any party, person, or attorney who unsuccessfully makes or opposes the motion, unless it finds that the one subject to the sanction acted with substantial justification or that other circumstances make the imposition of the sanction unjust [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2034.630, 2034.730; see also discussion of this general provision in Ch. 190, Discovery: Scope, Regulation, and Timing, § 190.33[2]].

As discussed in [5], above, a motion under either Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.610 or § 2034.710 must be accompanied by a declaration showing of a reasonable and good faith attempt at informal resolution of the issues raised by the motion. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 2023.010(i), the court is also required to impose a monetary sanction against any party or attorney who fails to confer in an attempt to resolve informally any dispute concerning discovery, in favor of anyone who incurs expenses, including attorney's fees, as a result of that conduct, when the section of the Civil Discovery Act governing a particular discovery motion requires a declaration showing that an attempt has been made. This sanction is to be imposed regardless of the outcome of the particular discovery motion [Code Civ. Proc. § 2023.020].

A monetary sanction under Code Civ. Proc. § 2023.010 et seq. is an order that one who engaged in a misuse of the discovery process, his or her attorney if the attorney advised the conduct, or both, pay the reasonable expenses, including attorney's fees, incurred by anyone as a result of that conduct [Code Civ. Proc. § 2023.030(a)].

A monetary sanction may only be imposed after notice to any affected party, person, or attorney, and after opportunity for hearing [Code Civ. Proc. § 2023.030].

A request for a sanction must, in the notice of motion, identify every party, person, and attorney against whom the sanction is sought, and specify the type of sanction sought. The notice of motion must be supported by a memorandum, and accompanied by a declaration setting forth facts supporting the amount of any monetary sanction sought [Code Civ. Proc. § 2023.040]. The notice of motion and supporting declaration in this form include language designed to satisfy these requirements.

For further discussion of monetary sanctions, see Ch. 192, Discovery: Sanctions for Discovery Misuse, §§ 192.13[2], 192.15[2].

[2] Use of Form

The form of proposed order set out in [1], above, is for use when the court has granted a motion for leave either to augment or amend expert witness information already submitted in response to a demand for the exchange of such information, or to submit expert witness information after the time specified in the demand has lapsed [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2034.610, 2034.710]. For discussion of the determinations required to be made by the court, and the conditions that are required or permitted, in an order granting leave to augment or amend expert witness information, see § 198.16[3], [4]. For discussion of such determinations and conditions in granting leave to submit tardy expert witness information, see § 198.17[2]. See also discussion in § 198.54[2] -[6].

MEMORANDUM IN SUPPORT OF MOTION

The notice of motion and motion, with supporting declaration, set out in [1], above, is for use by a party who seeks a protective order relating to the demand for, and exchange of, expert witness information. The motion is sought to protect the moving party from unwarranted annoyance, embarrassment, oppression, or undue burden and expense, and must be brought promptly after the demand has been served [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.250]. For discussion of this proceeding, including discussion of the types of directions that the court may give in granting the motion, see § 198.14. For a procedural checklist relating to this motion proceeding, see § 198.41[1].

A supporting memorandum is required to be served and filed with this motion [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1005(b), 1010, 2023.040]. For general discussion of memoranda requirements and a skeletal form of memorandum, see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities . For forms of memoranda relating to proceedings to exchange expert witness information under Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.010 et seq., see California Points and Authorities, Ch. 88, Discovery: Exchange of Expert Witness Information (Matthew Bender).

For cross references to additional discussion and forms relating to law and motion proceedings generally, see § 198.52[3].

[3] Declaration of Good Faith Attempt at Informal Resolution

The form of declaration in [1], above, includes a statement of facts showing a reasonable and good faith attempt at an informal resolution of each issue presented by the motion. This statement must accompany the motion [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.250(a); see also discussion in [4], below, and general discussion in Ch. 190, Discovery: Scope, Regulation, and Timing, § 190.33[1]]. The form of declaration also includes factual statements supporting the grounds for the motion.

[4] Monetary Sanctions

In a motion proceeding for a protective order under Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.250, the court is required to impose a monetary sanction under Code Civ. Proc. § 2023.010 et seq. against any party, person, or attorney who unsuccessfully makes or opposes the motion, unless it finds that the one subject to the sanction acted with substantial justification or that other circumstances make the imposition of the sanction unjust [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.250(d); see also discussion of this general provision in Ch. 190, Discovery: Scope, Regulation, and Timing, § 190.33[2]].

As discussed in [3], above, the motion must be accompanied by a declaration showing of a reasonable and good faith attempt at informal resolution of the issues raised by the motion. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 2023.010(i), the court is also required to impose a monetary sanction against any party or attorney who fails to confer in an attempt to resolve informally any dispute concerning discovery, in favor of anyone who incurs expenses, including attorney's fees, as a result of that conduct, when the section of the Civil Discovery Act governing a particular discovery motion requires a declaration showing that an attempt has been made. This sanction is to be imposed regardless of the outcome of the particular discovery motion [Code Civ. Proc. § 2023.020].

A monetary sanction under Code Civ. Proc. § 2023.010 et seq. is an order that one who engaged in a misuse of the discovery process, his or her attorney if the attorney advised the conduct, or both, pay the reasonable expenses, including attorney's fees, incurred by anyone as a result of that conduct [Code Civ. Proc. § 2023.030(a)].

A monetary sanction may only be imposed after notice to any affected party, person, or attorney, and after opportunity for hearing [Code Civ. Proc. § 2023.030].

A request for a sanction must, in the notice of motion, identify every party, person, and attorney against whom the sanction is sought, and specify the type of sanction sought. The notice of motion must be supported by a memorandum, and accompanied by a declaration setting forth facts supporting the amount of any monetary sanction sought [Code Civ. Proc. § 2023.040]. The notice of motion and supporting declaration in this form include language designed to satisfy these requirements.

For further discussion of monetary sanctions, see Ch. 192, Discovery: Sanctions for Discovery Misuse, §§ 192.13[2], 192.15[2].

MEMORANDUM IN SUPPORT OF MOTION

[Add memorandum supporting motion.]

[2] Use of Form

The form of notice of motion and motion, with supporting declaration, set out in [1], above, is for use by a party who wants to depose another party's expert witness to make a motion to have the court set the witness' deposition fee. Such a motion may be made if the deposing party deems that the expert's hourly or daily fee for providing deposition testimony is unreasonable [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.470].

For discussion of this proceeding, see § 198.18[3][c][vi].

A supporting memorandum is required to be served and filed with this motion [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1005(b), 1010, 2023.040]. For general discussion of memoranda requirements and a skeletal form of memorandum, see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities . For forms of memoranda relating to proceedings to exchange expert witness information under Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.010 et seq., see California Points and Authorities, Ch. 88, Discovery: Exchange of Expert Witness Information (Matthew Bender).

For cross references to additional discussion and forms relating to law and motion proceedings generally, see § 198.52[3].

[3] Declaration of Good Faith Attempt at Informal Resolution

The form of declaration in [1], above, includes a statement of facts showing a reasonable and good faith attempt at an informal resolution of each issue presented by the motion. This statement must accompany the motion [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.470(b); see also discussion in [4], below, and general discussion in Ch. 190, Discovery: Scope, Regulation, and Timing, § 190.33[1]]. The form of declaration also includes factual statements supporting the grounds for the motion.

[4] Monetary Sanctions

In a motion proceeding to set fees under Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.470, the court is required to impose a monetary sanction under Code Civ. Proc. § 2023.010 et seq. against any party, person, or attorney who unsuccessfully makes or opposes the motion, unless it finds that the one subject to the sanction acted with substantial justification or that other circumstances make the imposition of the sanction unjust [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.470(g); see also discussion of this general provision in Ch. 190, Discovery: Scope, Regulation, and Timing, § 190.33[2]].

As discussed in [3], above, the motion must be accompanied by a declaration showing of a reasonable and good faith

attempt at informal resolution of the issues raised by the motion. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 2023.010(i), the court is also required to impose a monetary sanction against any party or attorney who fails to confer in an attempt to resolve informally any dispute concerning discovery, in favor of anyone who incurs expenses, including attorney's fees, as a result of that conduct, when the section of the Civil Discovery Act governing a particular discovery motion requires a declaration showing that an attempt has been made. This sanction is to be imposed regardless of the outcome of the particular discovery motion [Code Civ. Proc. § 2023.020].

A monetary sanction under Code Civ. Proc. § 2023.010 et seq. is an order that one who engaged in a misuse of the discovery process, his or her attorney if the attorney advised the conduct, or both, pay the reasonable expenses, including attorney's fees, incurred by anyone as a result of that conduct [Code Civ. Proc. § 2023.030(a)].

A monetary sanction may only be imposed after notice to any affected party, person, or attorney, and after opportunity for hearing [Code Civ. Proc. § 2023.030].

A request for a sanction must, in the notice of motion, identify every party, person, and attorney against whom the sanction is sought, and specify the type of sanction sought. The notice of motion must be supported by a memorandum, and accompanied by a declaration setting forth facts supporting the amount of any monetary sanction sought [Code Civ. Proc. § 2023.040]. The notice of motion and supporting declaration in this form include language designed to satisfy these requirements.

For further discussion of monetary sanctions, see Ch. 192, Discovery: Sanctions for Discovery Misuse, §§ 192.13[2], 192.15[2].

Judge of the Superior Court

[2] Use of Form

The form of proposed order set out in [1], above, is for use when the court has granted a motion to set expert witness compensation for deposition testimony. The court must set the expert's fee if it determines that the fee demanded by the expert is unreasonable [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.470(f)]. For further discussion, see § 198.18[3][c][vi] [see also discussion in § 198.58[2] -[4]].

Chapter 199 DISCOVERY: PRESERVATION OF EVIDENCE
PART I. SCOPE

§ 199.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter covers procedures under the Civil Discovery Act whereby a party or potential party may utilize specified discovery methods for the purpose of perpetuating testimony or preserving evidence, when there is some appreciable danger that the testimony or evidence will be lost before an action can be been commenced, or a retrial begun after a pending appeal.

Part II provides discussion in the following subparts:

- Subpart A (§ 199.10 et seq.) discusses the procedures to be followed for preserving evidence before an action has been commenced.

- Subpart B (§ 199.20 et seq.) discusses the procedures to be followed for preserving evidence while an appeal is pending and a new trial or retrial is anticipated.

Part IV provides procedural checklists in the following subparts:

- Subpart A (§ 199.40 et seq.) provides checklists for use in proceedings to preserve evidence prior to commencement of an action.

- Subpart B (§ 199.50 et seq.) provides checklists for use in proceedings to preserve evidence when an appeal is pending.

Part V includes the following forms:

- Subpart A (§ 199.60 et seq.) includes forms of petition, notice of petition, and order for use in seeking an order allowing discovery to preserve evidence before the commencement of an action.

- Subpart B (§ 199.70 et seq.) includes forms of motion and order for use in seeking an order allowing discovery to preserve evidence when an appeal is pending.

§ 199.10 Governing Law

Proceedings to perpetuate testimony or preserve evidence prior to the commencement of an action are governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 2035.010 et seq.

In addition, the trial court has the inherent power to issue an injunction to prevent the potential destruction of evidence pending discovery, based on the trial court's inherent power to make orders facilitating discovery and the presentation of evidence, when the Civil Discovery Act does not provide an adequate remedy at law [Dodge, Warren & Peters Ins. Serv., Inc. v. Riley (2003) 105 Cal. App. 4th 1414, 1419-1420, 130 Cal. Rptr. 2d 385 (in action by employer against terminated employees for misappropriation of trade secrets, unfair business practices, breach of fiduciary duty and breach of contract, trial court properly issued preliminary injunction against defendants, requiring preservation of electronic evidence by prohibiting defendants from destroying, deleting, or secreting from discovery any of their electronic storage media)].

For discussion of the duty to preserve electronic evidence and sanctions for e-discovery abuses, as well as other issues arising in e-discovery, see Ch. 195A, Discovery: Discovery of Electronically Stored Evidence (E-Discovery), §§ 195A.16, 195A.22, 195A.60. For points and authorities in support of an application for a temporary restraining order and preliminary injunction to preserve evidence pending a discovery order, see California Points and Authorities, Ch. 116, Injunctions, § 116.31 (Matthew Bender).

§ 199.11 When Discovery Is Available Before Action Is Commenced

[1] To Prevent Failure or Delay of Justice

A person may file a verified petition under Code Civ. Proc. § 2035.030 if he or she desires to perpetuate his or her own testimony, or that of another person, or preserve evidence for use in any action that may be cognizable in any court of California [Code Civ. Proc. § 2035.030].

An order authorizing all or part of the discovery is proper if the court determines that the discovery requested may prevent a failure or delay of justice [Code Civ. Proc. § 2035.050(a)]. In determining whether to authorize discovery by a petitioner who expects a successor in interest to be a party to the action, the court must consider, in addition to other appropriate factors, whether the requested discovery could be conducted by the petitioner's successor in interest, instead of by the petitioner [Code Civ. Proc. § 2035.050(a)].

[2] Not for Investigative Purposes

Code Civ. Proc. § 2035.010 et seq. is designed for the perpetuation of testimony or the preservation of evidence for use in the event that an action is subsequently brought [Code Civ. Proc. § 2035.010(a); see Campbell Chain Co. v. Alameda County (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 248, 257, 90 Cal.Rptr. 501 (former Code Civ. Proc. § 2017 intended to permit perpetuation of testimony for use in actual legal action that cannot be presently brought)]. Code Civ. Proc. § 2035.010 et seq. may not be used for the purpose either of ascertaining the possible existence of a cause of action or a defense to it, or of identifying those who might be made parties to an action not yet filed [Code Civ. Proc. § 2035.010(b)].

In other words, the procedure is not designed for purely investigative or discovery purposes but for the preservation of evidence for introduction in a probable future court case [see Hunt-Wesson Foods, Inc. v. County of Stanislaus (1969) 273 Cal. App. 2d 92, 98, 77 Cal. Rptr. 832 ; see also Reporter's Notes to Proposed Code Civ. Proc. § 2035(a); see also Ch. 190, Discovery: Scope, Regulation, and Timing, § 190.13[2]]. If testimony or evidence sought to be preserved cannot be used in an actual legal action, Code Civ. Proc. § 2035.010 et seq. may not be used simply as a means to obtain that information [see Hunt-Wesson Foods, Inc. v. Stanislaus County (1969) 273 Cal. App. 2d 92, 98, 77 Cal. Rptr. 832 (depositions that could not be used in anticipated board of equalization hearing not authorized to be taken under former Code Civ. Proc. § 2017)].

[3] Not When Declaratory Relief Is Available

The petitioner seeking an order under Code Civ. Proc. § 2035.010 et seq. must show that he or she is unable to bring the expected action or to cause it to be brought [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2035.030(b)(2)]. If petitioner may bring an action for relief by declaratory judgment [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1060-1062.5 and Ch. 182, Declaratory Relief], then it would appear that his or her petition could not properly contain the necessary allegation that an action could not be brought [see DeMeo, California Deposition and Discovery Practice , Ch. 65, Perpetuation of Testimony and Preservation of Evidence (Matthew Bender)].

§ 199.12 Discovery Methods Available for Perpetuation or Preservation

Where a proper showing is made [see discussion in § 199.14[1]], the court may make an order authorizing any or all of the following discovery methods [Code Civ. Proc. § 2035.020]:

- Oral and written depositions.
- Inspections of documents, things, and places.
- Physical and mental examinations.

If the court authorizes the use of one or more of these methods, discovery must then be conducted in accordance with the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2016.010-2036.050 that govern the particular discovery method to be used [Code Civ. Proc. § 2035.050(c)]. For detailed discussion and forms relating to the provisions that generally govern these particular discovery methods, see respectively Ch. 193, Discovery: Depositions , Ch. 195, Discovery: Inspection of Tangible Evidence, and Ch. 197, Physical and Mental Examinations.

There is no requirement that discovery be conducted in a particular sequence, such as by taking a deposition before ordering an inspection or an examination [see Block v. Superior Court (1963) 219 Cal. App. 2d 469, 477, 33 Cal. Rptr. 205 (decided under prior discovery act)]. Use of the discovery methods authorized under Code Civ. Proc. § 2035.010 et seq. is, however, subject to the general scope of discovery delimited by Code Civ. Proc. § 2017.010 et seq. and the general restrictions of Code Civ. Proc. § 2019.010 et seq. [Code Civ. Proc. § 2035.010(a)]. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 2019.010 et seq., for example, a court may in fact issue an order regulating the manner, timing, and sequence of discovery. For detailed discussion and forms relating to the general scope and regulation of discovery under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2017.010 et seq. and 2019.010 et seq., see Ch. 190, Discovery: Scope, Regulation and Timing .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Preservation of Evidence Before Action Is Commenced

16-199 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 199.13

§ 199.13 Petition for Leave to Conduct Discovery

[1] Contents of Petition

The person who wants to perpetuate the testimony or to preserve evidence must file a verified petition [Code Civ. Proc. § 2035.030(a)].

The petition must be titled in the name of the petitioner and show all of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 2035.030(b)]:

- That the petitioner, or the petitioner's successor in interest, expects to be a party to an action cognizable in a court in California.

- The present inability of the petitioner, and, if applicable, the petitioner's successor in interest, to bring the action or cause it to be brought.

- The subject matter of the expected action and petitioner's involvement. If the validity or construction of a written instrument may be called into question or is connected to the subject matter of the proposed discovery, a copy of that written instrument must be attached to the petition.

- The particular discovery methods that the petitioner desires to employ.

- The facts that petitioner desires to establish by the proposed discovery.

- The petitioner's reasons for desiring to perpetuate or preserve these facts before the action is brought.

- The names or descriptions of the persons petitioner expects will be adverse parties so far as known.

- The names and addresses of those from whom the discovery is to be sought.

- The substance of the information expected to be elicited from each of those from whom discovery is being sought.

- A request for an order authorizing the petitioner to engage in discovery by the described methods for the purpose of perpetuating the described testimony or preserving the described evidence.

For a form of petition under Code Civ. Proc. § 2035.030(a), see § 199.60. For procedural checklists relating to this motion, see § 199.40 et seq.

[2] Court in Which Petition Must Be Filed

The petition must be filed in the superior court in the county of the residence of at least one expected adverse party, or if no expected adverse party is a resident of California, in the superior court of a county where the action or proceeding may be filed [Code Civ. Proc. § 2035.030(a)].

[3] Notice of Petition

Petitioner must give notice to each natural person or organization named in the petition as an expected adverse party, stating that the petitioner will apply to the court, at a time and place named therein, for the order described in the petition [Code Civ. Proc. § 2035.040(a), (b)]. A copy of the petition must be served with the notice [Code Civ. Proc. § 2035.040(b)].

For a form for a notice of petition under Code Civ. Proc. § 2035.040, see § 199.61. For procedural checklists relating to this notice, see § 199.40.

[4] Service of Notice and Petition

The notice and a copy of the petition must be served at least 20 days before the date of the hearing [Code Civ. Proc. § 2035.040(c)]. Service is to be made in the manner provided for service of summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 2035.040(a); for the manner of service of summons, see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 413.10-417.40 and Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers].

If service cannot be made with due diligence on any expected adverse party named in the petition, the court shall make an order for service by publication [Code Civ. Proc. § 2035.040(d); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 415.50 (service of summons by publication)].

If there is any doubt concerning the adequacy of notice to a particular expected adverse party, a petitioner should seek an order of service by publication on that party. This will ensure that the party is properly represented at the deposition [see discussion in [5], below]. For discussion of the potential exclusion of deposition testimony as to any expected adverse party who does not receive adequate notice and is not represented at the deposition, see § 199.15.

[5] Appointment of Attorney When Service Is by Publication

If any expected adverse party served by publication does not appear at the hearing, the court must appoint an attorney to represent that party for all purposes, including the cross examination of any person whose testimony is taken by deposition. The court must order that the petitioner pay the reasonable fees and expenses of any attorney so appointed [Code Civ. Proc. § 2035.040(e)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Preservation of Evidence Before Action Is Commenced

§ 199.15 Use of Deposition to Perpetuate Testimony

A deposition to perpetuate testimony taken under Code Civ. Proc. § 2035.010 et seq. or under comparable provisions of the laws of the state, the federal courts, or a foreign nation, in which it was taken, may be used in any action involving the same subject matter brought in a court of California. The deposition may be used in accordance with the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 2025.620 (use of oral depositions) [Code Civ. Proc. § 2035.060].

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 2025.620, deposition testimony may be used at trial subject only when it is otherwise admissible under the rules of evidence and only against parties who had proper notice of the deposition. Thus, a petitioner who perpetuates a deponent's testimony under Code Civ. Proc. § 2035.010 et seq. may ultimately be unable to use that testimony in a later action against an expected adverse party who did not receive proper notice and was not present or properly represented at the deposition. For example, one court concluded that notice under former Code Civ. Proc. § 2035(e) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 2035..040) was inadequate as to a defendant nurse, when the notice was given to the nurse in care of the attorneys for two defendant hospitals, neither of which were the nurse's employer. As a result, the nurse did not appear either personally or through representation at the hearing on the petition or at the deposition. The court held that testimony perpetuated at the deposition was properly excluded as to the nurse [N.N.V. v. American Assn. of Blood Banks (1999) 75 Cal.App. 4th 1358, 1395-1396, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 885 (noting also that even if notice were adequate, the testimony at issue was inadmissible under the rules of evidence)].

§ 199.21 When Discovery Pending Appeal Is Allowed

If an appeal has been taken from a judgment of any California court, or if the time for taking an appeal has not expired, a party may obtain discovery to perpetuate testimony or to preserve evidence for use in the event of further proceedings in that court [Code Civ. Proc. § 2036.010; see also § 199.11[1]]. This situation may arise when a complaint is dismissed after a demurrer to the complaint has been sustained without leave to amend, and the plaintiff has appealed. Since so much time will elapse before the appeal is decided, it may be necessary to perpetuate testimony or to preserve evidence to be used at trial [see DeMeo, California Deposition and Discovery Practice , Ch. 65, Perpetuation of Testimony and Preservation of Evidence (Matthew Bender)].

Chapter 199 DISCOVERY: PRESERVATION OF EVIDENCE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Preservation of Evidence Pending Appeal

16-199 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 199.22

§ 199.22 Discovery Methods Available for Perpetuation or Preservation

The discovery methods available to preserve evidence pending an appeal are the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 2036.020]:

- Oral and written depositions.
- Inspections of documents, things, and places.
- Physical and mental examinations.

If the court authorizes the use of one or more of these methods, discovery is then required to be conducted in accordance with the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2016.010-2036.050 that govern the particular discovery method authorized [Code Civ. Proc. § 2036.040(c)]. Use of these discovery methods is also subject to the general scope of discovery delimited by Code Civ. Proc. § 2017.010 et seq. and the general restrictions of Code Civ. Proc. § 2019.010 et seq. [Code Civ. Proc. § 2036.010].

For detailed discussion and forms relating to provisions that generally govern the particular discovery methods that may be used under Code Civ. Proc. § 2036.010 et seq., see respectively Ch. 193, Discovery: Depositions , Ch. 195, Discovery: Inspection of Tangible Evidence , and Ch. 197, Physical and Mental Examinations . For detailed discussion and forms relating to the general scope and regulation of discovery under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2017.010 et seq. and 2019.010 et seq., see Ch. 190, Discovery: Scope, Regulation and Timing .

B. Preservation of Evidence Pending Appeal

§ 199.23 Notice of Motion

A party may request leave to obtain discovery must bring a motion in the trial court that entered the judgment subject to the pending appeal, on the same notice and service as required for discovery sought in an action pending in that court [Code Civ. Proc. § 2036.030(a); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2025.010 et seq. (depositions), 2031.010 et seq. (inspection of documents, tangible things, or electronically stored information), 2032.010 et seq. (physical and mental examinations)].

The party must show the names or addresses of the natural persons or organizations from whom the discovery is sought, the methods of discovery for which authorization is sought, and the reasons for perpetuating testimony or preserving evidence [Code Civ. Proc. § 2036.030(b)].

For a form for a notice of motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 2036.030, see § 199.70. For procedural checklists relating to this motion, see § 199.50.

16-199 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 199.32

§ 199.32 Decisions

Provisions regarding scope of examination and various limitations and protections against abuse which control other discovery procedures are applicable in proceeding to perpetuate testimony under former Code Civ. Proc. § 2017. Greyhound Corp. v. Superior Court (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 355, 372, 15 Cal. Rptr. 90, 364 P.2d 266

Petition to preserve evidence under Code Civ. Proc. § 2035.010 et seq. did not constitute "an action" for purposes of statute of limitations in Gov. Code § 945.6(a)(1); procedure to perpetuate testimony or to preserve evidence "does not provide the petitioner with any further relief beyond obtaining discovery materials." Orr v. City of Stockton (2007) 150 Cal. App. 4th 622, 630-631, 58 Cal. Rptr. 3d 662

In action by employer against terminated employees for misappropriation of trade secrets, unfair business practices, breach of fiduciary duty and breach of contract, trial court properly issued preliminary injunction against defendants, requiring preservation of electronic evidence by prohibiting defendants from destroying, deleting, or secreting from discovery any of their electronic storage media, based on trial court's inherent power to make orders facilitating discovery and presentation of evidence, when Discovery Act does not provide an adequate remedy at law. Dodge, Warren & Peters Ins. Serv., Inc. v. Riley (2003) 105 Cal. App. 4th 1414, 1419-1420, 130 Cal. Rptr. 2d 385

Notice under former Code Civ. Proc. § 2035(e) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 2035.040) was inadequate, and deposition testimony was properly excluded, as to defendant nurse, when plaintiffs gave notice to nurse only in care of counsel for two defendant hospitals that did not employ defendant nurse, and nurse consequently was not properly represented at deposition. N.N.V. v. American Assn. of Blood Banks (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 1358, 1395-1396, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 885

PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLISTS
A. Preservation of Evidence Before Action Is Commenced

16-199 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 199.40

§ 199.40 Petitioner's Checklists

[1] Prepare Petition and Notice of Petition

1. Prepare verified petition [Code Civ. Proc. § 2035.030; see § 199.60].

2. Prepare notice stating that petitioner will apply to the court for order or orders prayed for in petition [Code Civ. Proc. § 2035.040; see § 199.61].

3. Prepare supporting memorandum. The memorandum is required [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1130(a), 3.1113(a)] in that the notice of petition is equivalent to a notice of motion [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1064 (definitions of motions and orders in civil actions apply to similar acts in special proceedings)]. For general discussion and forms, see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities . For memoranda supporting a petition to perpetuate testimony or preserve evidence before an action is commenced, see California Points and Authorities, Ch. 89, Discovery: Preservation of Evidence (Matthew Bender).

4. Prepare proposed order [Code Civ. Proc. § 2035.050; see § 199.62].

[2] Serve Notice

1. The notice of petition must be served, together with a copy of the petition and accompanying papers, on each natural person or organization named in the petition as an expected adverse party [Code Civ. Proc. § 2035.040].

2. Service must be effected at least 20 days before the date set in the notice for the hearing [Code Civ. Proc. § 2035.040(c)].

3. Service is required to be in the same manner as service of summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 2035.040(a); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 415.10-415.47; for methods of service of summons, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers].

4. If after due diligence the petitioner is unable to cause service on any expected adverse party, petitioner must apply for an order of service of publication. In this situation the court in which the petition is filed may make such an order [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2035.040(d); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 415.50 (service by publication), and Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers; for discussion and forms relating to ex parte applications generally, see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders].

NOTE:

If service by publication must be requested for one or more of the anticipated adverse parties, counsel will probably need to prepare a new notice of petition, to ensure that the hearing date is at least 20 days after the completion of service by publication. Such service is deemed complete when the notice is published the requisite number of times over the specified period of time as provided in Gov. Code § 6064 [see Code Civ. Proc. § 415.50]. It may thus be necessary to serve the papers again, with the new date of hearing, on any other expected adverse party who was already served with the original notice.

[3] File Papers

1. File original copy of verified petition and accompanying papers with the clerk of the superior court in a county in which any of the persons named in the petition as expected adverse parties to the anticipated action reside, or, if none of the parties resides in California, in the county in which the action may be filed [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2035.030(a)].

2. Pay filing fee for first paper filed in a special proceeding [see Gov. Code §§ 26820, 70611].

3. Prepare and file signed original proof of service of copies of petition, notice of petition, and supporting memorandum of points and authorities on expected adverse parties [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 417.10-417.40 and Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers].

[4] Hearing and Post Hearing Matters

1. Appear at hearing and present argument if necessary.

2. If any expected adverse party who has been served with notice by publication does not appear at the hearing, the court appoints an attorney to represent that person [Code Civ. Proc. § 2035.040(e); see [2], above].

3. If the court grants the petition, prepare proposed order if not previously prepared [see 199.62], submit for judge's signature, and file original signed order.

NOTE:

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 1019.5(a), when a motion is granted or denied, unless the court otherwise orders, notice of the court's decision or order [see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders] must be given by the prevailing party to all other parties or to their attorneys, in the manner provided in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1010-1020 [see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers], unless notice is waived by all parties in open court and is entered in the minutes.

[5] Conduct Discovery Authorized by Court

Conduct discovery authorized by the order in accordance with provisions governing the method or methods of discovery authorized [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2035.020, 2035.050(c); see also Ch. 193, Discovery: Depositions , Ch.

195, Discovery: Inspection of Tangible Evidence , and Ch. 197, Physical and Mental Examinations]. A copy of the order of authorization should be attached to any deposition notice, demand for production, etc.

1. Prepare memorandum opposing petition, any opposing declarations or affidavits, and proof of service of opposing papers.

2. If desired, prepare counterpetition for protective order, patterned after the noticed motions for protective orders authorized under the Discovery Act in relation to the discovery sought in the petition [see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2025.420, 2031.060, 2032.510(d), (e) and discussion of protective orders in Ch. 193, Discovery: Depositions, Ch. 195, Discovery: Inspection of Tangible Evidence, and Ch. 197, Physical and Mental Examinations].

2. Serve opposing papers, and counterpetition, if any, and file with proof of service.

3. Appear at hearing and present opposing argument if necessary.

4. Prepare, serve and file order denying petition if so directed by court [see discussion of this procedure in § 199.40[4].

5. If discovery is granted, consider procedures available under the general provisions governing the discovery method authorized by the order, e.g., protective orders under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2025.420, 2031.060, or 2032.510(d), (e) [see discussion and forms in Ch. 193, Discovery: Depositions , Ch. 195, Discovery: Inspection of Tangible Evidence , and Ch. 197, Physical and Mental Examinations].

MEMORANDUM IN SUPPORT OF MOTION

[Add memorandum supporting motion.]

[2] Use of Form

The form of petition set out in [1], above, is for use by a person wishing to perpetuate testimony or preserve evidence, prior to the commencement of an action. It may be used to seek discovery by oral and written depositions, inspections of documents, things and places, and physical and mental examinations [Code Civ. Proc. § 2035.020]. It may not be used to ascertain the possible existence of a cause of action or defense or to identify those who might be made parties to an action not yet filed [Code Civ. Proc. § 2035.010(b)].

This petition must be verified and filed in the superior court of any county where an expected adverse party to the anticipated action resides, or if no expected adverse party resides in California, in the county where the action may be filed [Code Civ. Proc. § 2035.030(a)].

The petition is required to accompanied by a supporting memorandum [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1103(a) 3.1113(a)] in that the required notice of petition [§ 199.61] makes the petition the functional equivalent of a noticed motion [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1064 (definitions of motions and orders in civil actions apply to similar acts in special proceedings)]. For general discussion and forms relating to memoranda see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities . [2] Use of Form

The form of notice of motion and motion with supporting declaration set out in [1], above, is for use by a party seeking to obtain discovery by either taking depositions, inspecting documents, things, or places, or obtaining the physical or mental examination of a person for use in the event of further proceedings in the court in which judgment in an action has been rendered [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2036.020, 2036.030]. It must be filed in the court in which judgment was rendered after an appeal has been taken or before the time for taking an appeal has expired [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2036.010].

The supporting declaration portion of the form is designed to comply with the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 2036.030(b) that the motion must show (1) the names and addresses of the natural persons or organizations from whom the discovery is being sought, (2) the methods of discovery for which authorization is being sought, and (3) the reasons for perpetuating testimony or preserving evidence. The declaration should also state sufficient facts to show that the perpetuation of testimony or preservation of evidence is proper to avoid a failure or delay of justice if there are further proceedings in the action in that court [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2036.040(a)].

A supporting memorandum must be served and filed with the form [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a)]. For general discussion and forms relating to memoranda, see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities . For memoranda supporting a petition to perpetuate testimony or preserve evidence before an action is commenced, see California Points and Authorities, Ch. 89, Discovery: Preservation of Evidence (Matthew Bender).

Chapter 200 DISCOVERY: REVIEW OF DISCOVERY ORDERS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

16-200 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 200.11

§ 200.11 Appeal of Discovery Orders

[1] Generally Not Separately Appealable

Orders relating to discovery generally are not separately appealable, but, instead, are reviewable on appeal from the judgment finally entered in the action [Southern Pacific Co. v. Oppenheimer (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 784, 786, 8 Cal. Rptr. 657, 356 P.2d 441 ; Peterson v. General Motors Corp. (1993) 19 Cal. App. 4th 1330, 1332-1333, 23 Cal. Rptr. 2d 768 ; Clausing v. San Francisco Unified School Dist. (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 1224, 1241, 271 Cal. Rptr. 72] .

The merits of a discovery order may not always be subjected to a thorough review since appellate courts are much more reluctant to overturn the judgment of a trial court after a full trial because of a procedural error, unless the error is so prejudicial that it constitutes a miscarriage of justice [Wooldridge v. Mounts (1962) 199 Cal. App. 2d 620, 629, 18 Cal. Rptr. 806] . Moreover, by the time a final judgment is entered, the harm presented by the discovery has already occurred, and a decision on appeal of the final judgment may not remedy the situation.

[2] Exception When Discovery Unrelated to Merits of Case

When the discovery sought does not relate to the merits of the underlying case, however, a discovery order may be appealed prior to a final judgment [Gregori v. Bank of America (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 291, 310, 254 Cal. Rptr. 853] . Thus, in a lender liability action brought by a growers' cooperative against its bank, when the plaintiff's attorney initiated and maintained an undisclosed social relationship with the defense counsel's secretary, who was familiar with all aspects of the litigation, the trial court's order on a motion to compel further discovery regarding the nature of that relationship and the matters that may have been discussed was immediately appealable. The court of appeal reasoned that the discovery sought did not relate to the merits of the lender liability case and that, considering the substance of the defendant's claim, resolution of the discovery issue could not be deferred until final judgment was rendered [Gregori v. Bank of America (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 291, 310, 254 Cal. Rptr. 853] .

[3] Postjudgment Order That Affects Judgment or Relates to Its Enforcement

To be appealable, a postjudgment order must raise issues different from those arising from an appeal from the judgment, and must affect the judgment or relate to its enforcement. For example, an appeal from an order denying attorney's fees pursuant to former Code Civ. Proc. § 2033(o) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 2033.420) (sanction for unwarranted failure to admit discovery request) raises issues different from those arising from the judgment itself. Secondly, the order affects the judgment or relates to its enforcement because it determines the rights and liabilities of the parties arising from the judgment, is not preliminary to later proceedings, and will not become subject to appeal after some future judgment. Therefore, the order is appealable [Lakin v. Watkins Associated Industries (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 644, 651-656, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 109, 863 P.2d 179] .

[4] Sanction Orders

Whether denial of a motion for sanctions is appealable "is far from settled" [Muller v. Fresno Community Hospital & Medical Ct. (2009) 172 Cal. App. 4th 887, 897-898, 91 Cal. Rptr. 3d 617 (reviewing conflicting decisions)]. In the frequently cited opinion in Sjoberg v. Hastorf (1948) 33 Cal. 2d 116, 119, 199 P.2d 668 , the California Supreme Court held that orders levying sanctions for failure to make discovery may be appealed if they are a final judgment on a collateral proceeding growing out of the action. It is not sufficient, though, that the order determine finally, for the purpose of further proceedings in the trial court, some distinct issue in the case. The order must direct the payment of money by appellant or the performance of an act by or against him or her [Sjoberg v. Hastorf (1948) 33 Cal. 2d 116, 119, 199 P.2d 668 ; see Lund v. Superior Court (1964) 61 Cal. 2d 698, 709, 39 Cal. Rptr. 891, 394 P.2d 707] .

However, in Meehan v. Hopps (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 213, 288 P.2d 267 , the California Supreme Court disregarded the limitations on the collateral order doctrine that the order require the payment of money or the performance of an act [Meehan v. Hopps (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 213, 217, 288 P.2d 267 (order disqualifying an attorney)]. In Muller v. Fresno Community Hospital & Medical Ct. (2009) 172 Cal. App. 4th 887, 901-902, 91 Cal. Rptr. 3d 617 , a California court of appeal has reconciled these apparent inconsistencies in the Supreme Court's opinions by focusing on the nature of the order; that is, on whether the order itself does or does not require a payment of money or the performance of an act. That court proffered that when the order does not require a payment of money or the performance of an act, the Supreme Court will find the order appealable without reference to these limitations, as long as the court is satisfied that the order is truly collateral [Muller v. Fresno Community Hospital & Medical Ct. (2009) 172 Cal. App. 4th 887, 901-902, 91 Cal. Rptr. 3d 617 , citing Meehan v. Hopps (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 213, 217, 288 P.2d 267 ; Takehara v. H. C. Muddox Co. (1972) 8 Cal. 3d 168, 171, 104 Cal. Rptr. 345, 501 P.2d 913 ; McClearen v. Superior Court (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 852, 855, 291 P.2d 449] . The court explained that the limitations of a payment of money and the performance of an act are actually indications that the order in question is collateral to the main action. In other words, when the order directs the payment of money or the performance of an act, it is likely that the matter addressed in the order is collateral to the main action. Viewed from this perspective, the court found it logical that orders awarding pendente lite attorney fees [In re Marriage of Skelley (1976) 18 Cal. 3d 365, 368-369, 134 Cal. Rptr. 197, 556 P.2d 297] , orders directing the parties to share in the payment of discovery costs [San Diego Unified Port Dist. v. Douglas E. Barnhart, Inc. (2002) 95 Cal. App. 4th 1400, 1402, 116 Cal. Rptr. 2d 65] , and an order unsealing court records (the performance of an act) [In re Providian Credit Card Cases (2002) 96 Cal. App. 4th 292, 297, 116 Cal. Rptr. 2d 833] were orders that were collateral to the main action [Muller v. Fresno Community Hospital & Medical Ct. (2009) 172 Cal. App. 4th 887, 902, 91 Cal. Rptr. 3d 617] .

The Muller court concluded that in the case before it, the order denying the motion for sanctions was appealable as a collateral order. The sanctions were too independent of the cause itself to require that appellate consideration be deferred until the whole case was adjudicated. The issue of sanctions to be awarded for defendants' alleged misconduct during and prior to the second trial of this case was not relevant to the proceedings on the remand of this case. If the order denying sanctions were to be reviewed on appeal, there was no reason to defer that review to the appeal from the eventual judgment. There was also the "very real question" whether the order denying sanctions would be reviewable from a judgment following a third trial in this case, assuming that there is a third trial. The court, however, did not hold that generally all orders denying motions for sanctions are appealable as collateral orders [Muller v. Fresno Community Hospital & Medical Ct. (2009) 172 Cal. App. 4th 887, 904-905, 91 Cal. Rptr. 3d 617] . In this case, there is no judgment and there might never be a judgment. Under these circumstances, the order denying the motion for sanctions was appealable as a collateral order [Muller v. Fresno Community Hospital & Medical Ct. (2009) 172 Cal. App. 4th 887, 904-905, 91 Cal. Rptr. 3d 617] .

Other than final judgments on collateral proceedings, discovery orders, including orders imposing sanctions, were traditionally classified as interim, nonappealable orders [Ballard v. Taylor (1993) 20 Cal. App. 4th 1736, 1738-1739, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 384 (sanction orders nonappealable regardless of amount of sanction; construing former Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1(k)); Hanna v. BankAmerica Business Credit, Inc. (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 913, 915-918, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 430 (construing former Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1(k))]. For example, an order imposing sanctions for failure to make discovery on an attorney representing a party in a pending matter is not a separately appealable final order [Slemaker v. Woolley (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 1377, 1382, 255 Cal. Rptr. 532 (former Code Civ. Proc. § 2025 order, now see Code Civ. Proc. § 2025.101 et seq.); see In re Marriage of Niklas (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 28, 34, 258 Cal. Rptr. 921 (court of appeal granted review by treating appeal as application for extraordinary relief, in part because sanctions were imposed in response to earlier order from it)]. Former Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1(k) was added operative in 1990, authorizing an appeal from a superior court judgment directing payment of monetary sanctions by a party or an attorney in excess of $750. Even after the addition of this provision, the majority view apparently was that orders imposing monetary discovery sanctions were nonappealable [Ballard v. Taylor (1993) 20 Cal. App. 4th 1736, 1738-1739, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 384 (and cases cited therein); Peterson v. General Motors Corp. (1993) 19 Cal. App. 4th 1330, 1332-1333, 23 Cal. Rptr. 2d 768 ; Hanna v. BankAmerica Business Credit, Inc. (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 913, 915-918, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 430] .

Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1 as amended operative January 1, 1994, provides that when a superior court enters an interlocutory judgment or order directing payment of monetary sanctions by a party or an attorney for a party in an amount exceeding $5,000, an appeal is expressly authorized [see Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1(a)(11), (12); see also Mattco Forge, Inc. v. Arthur Young & Co. (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 1429, 1442 n.10, 273 Cal. Rptr. 262 (construing sanction order to be judgment under former Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1(k))]. Aggregation of separate sanction awards to exceed the $5,000 threshhold under Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1(a)(11) or (12) is appropriate only when the same conduct is being sanctioned [see Champion/L.B.S. Associates Development Co. v. E-Z Serve Petroleum Marketing, Inc. (1993) 15 Cal. App. 4th 56, 59-60, 18 Cal. Rptr. 2d 726 (dictum; construing former Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1(k)].

An order or judgment directing payment of monetary sanctions of $5,000 or less by a party or an attorney for a party may be reviewed on an appeal by that party after entry of a final judgment in the main action, or, at the discretion of the court of appeal, may be reviewed on a petition for an extraordinary writ [Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1(b); see also Guillemin v. Stein (2002) 104 Cal. App. 4th 156, 161, 128 Cal. Rptr. 2d 65 (after appeal from discovery sanctions award of $1,643 was dismissed as untimely, it was immaterial that court later "confirmed" its sanctions award in postjudgment order from which there was a timely appeal; to be appealable, postjudgment order must also raise issue different from issues embraced in judgment, otherwise it would give party two chances to appeal same ruling and thus circumvent time limit on appealing from judgment)]. Limited civil cases are specifically excluded from the sanction provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1(a) [Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1(a); see Code Civ. Proc. § 85 et seq.; see also Ch. 190, Discovery: Scope, Regulation, and Timing, § 190.23].

[5] Order in Foreign Action

Whether monetary discovery sanctions exceeding $5,000 are made appealable by the 1994 amendment to Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1 expanding the right of appeal to encompass an "order" as well as an interlocutory judgment has not yet been expressly decided by a reviewing court [see Ballard v. Taylor (1993) 20 Cal. App. 4th 1736, 1739 n.1, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 384] .

A discovery order issued in a proceeding pending in another jurisdiction constitutes an exception to the general rule that discovery orders are not appealable. In these cases, the order will be deemed a final, appealable judgment because it is the sole matter before the trial court and no final review of the underlying action will take place in California [

Warford v. Medeiros (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 1035, 1039-1041, 207 Cal. Rptr. 94 (immediate appeal allowed of order denying application to compel discovery under former Code Civ. Proc. § 2034 in out-of-state action)].

Chapter 200 DISCOVERY: REVIEW OF DISCOVERY ORDERS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

16-200 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 200.12

§ 200.12 Review of Discovery Orders by Writ

[1] Availability

In an appropriate situation, a prerogative writ of mandate or prohibition may be used to review interim orders in discovery cases, although they will not be issued routinely or as a matter of course even when the trial court's order is erroneous [Mobil Oil Corp. v. Superior Court (1976) 59 Cal. App. 3d 293, 303, 130 Cal. Rptr. 814 ; O'Brien v. Superior Court (1965) 233 Cal. App. 2d 388, 391, 43 Cal. Rptr. 815 ; see Palay v. Superior Court (1993) 18 Cal. App. 4th 919, 925, 22 Cal. Rptr. 2d 839] . Their use is not favored because the delay caused by interim review of discovery orders is likely to result in greater harm to the judicial process than would the enforcement of a possibly improper discovery order [Sav-On Drugs, Inc. v. Superior Court (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 1, 5, 123 Cal. Rptr. 283, 538 P.2d 739 ; Pacific Tel. & Tel. Co. v. Superior Court (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 161, 169-170, 84 Cal. Rptr. 718, 465 P.2d 854] .

Generally the prerogative writs should be used in discovery matters only to review questions of first impression that are of general importance to the trial courts and to the profession, and when general guidelines can be laid down for future cases [Vinson v. Superior Court (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 833, 838, 239 Cal. Rptr. 292, 740 P.2d 404 ; Oceanside Union School Dist. v. Superior Court (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 180, 185-186 n.4, 23 Cal. Rptr. 375, 373 P.2d 439 ; Stermer v. Superior Court (1993) 20 Cal. App. 4th 777, 779-780 n.1, 24 Cal. Rptr. 2d 577 (disapproved on other grounds in Emerson Electric Co. v. Superior Court (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 1101, 1106, 1113, 68 Cal. Rptr. 2d 883, 946 P.2d 841 ; court of appeal ruled mandate appropriate to review order requiring deponent to physically reenact event during videotaped deposition because it was an important issue of first impression; the Supreme Court disapproved the court of appeal's conclusion that such reenactment could not be required)]. However, as an exception to this general rule, courts permit review by extraordinary writ if an order allegedly violates a party's privilege or other protection against disclosure [see Roberts v. Superior Court (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 330, 336, 107 Cal. Rptr. 309, 508 P.2d 309 ; Hiott v. Superior Court (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 712, 716, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 157 (order compelled disclosure of allegedly privileged videotape); Thomas B. v. Superior Court (1985) 175 Cal. App. 3d 255, 260, 220 Cal. Rptr. 577 (order compelling putative father to produce privileged income tax returns before parentage was conclusively established); Hofmann Corp. v. Superior Court (1985) 172 Cal. App. 3d 357, 362-363 n.2, 218 Cal. Rptr. 355 (order compelling discovery of confidential customer list)].

Review by extraordinary writ has also been granted when the case involved a significant issue. Thus, it was an appropriate method of review of a court order for exhumation and autopsy of a deceased testator due to the sensitive nature of the issues [Holm v. Superior Court (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 1241, 1244, 232 Cal. Rptr. 432] . Review by extraordinary writ may also be warranted by the procedural history of a particular case. For example, an order imposing monetary sanctions was reviewed by the court of appeal prior to a final judgment when the trial court had granted the monetary sanctions in response to a notice that the court of appeal was considering issuing a peremptory writ directing the trial court to modify its order imposing issue sanctions and to impose only severe monetary sanctions [In re Marriage of Niklas (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 28, 34, 258 Cal. Rptr. 921] .

Additionally, an appellate court may, in its discretion, review a judgment or order for the payment of monetary sanctions of $5,000 or less on petition for an extraordinary writ [Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1(b)].

[2] Choice of Writ

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 1085, mandate may issue to compel the performance of an act by an inferior court, corporation, board, or person that the law specially commands as a duty arising from an office, trust, or station. The writ of prohibition is the counterpart of mandate. Its function, as expressed in Code Civ. Proc. § 1102, is to arrest proceedings of an inferior court, corporation, board, or person that has exceeded its jurisdiction [American Mut. Liab. Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1974) 38 Cal. App. 3d 579, 588, 113 Cal. Rptr. 561] . Consequently, mandate is ordinarily the appropriate remedy sought when attacking an improper denial of discovery, and prohibition is the remedy sought to overturn an improper grant of discovery [Burke v. Superior Court (1969) 71 Cal. 2d 276, 277-278 n.1, 78 Cal. Rptr. 481, 455 P.2d 409 ; Petterson v. Superior Court (1974) 39 Cal. App. 3d 267, 269, 114 Cal. Rptr. 20] .

Despite the different purposes of the two writs, the courts have often used mandate to prohibit actions of trial courts [Morris Stulsaft Foundation v. Superior Court (1966) 245 Cal. App. 2d 409, 415, 54 Cal. Rptr. 12] . This use has had the effect of changing the test for exercise of the writ of prohibition, which is in theory a jurisdictional writ, from excess of jurisdiction to abuse of discretion. Hence a discovery order may be prohibited not only when it is wholly invalid, but also when, under the circumstances, it constitutes an abuse of the lower court's discretion [see American Mut.Liab. Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1974) 38 Cal. App. 3d 579, 589, 113 Cal. Rptr. 561] .

Although counsel should attempt to choose the appropriate remedy, a mistake in the choice is not fatal to the request for relief. When the allegations and prayers of the petition are broad enough to encompass the appropriate remedy, the petition may be treated as one for such relief, and the proper order may be granted. Moreover, if a single writ will not grant all the relief required, the court may grant both writs of prohibition to prevent the lower court from acting in excess of its jurisdiction and mandate to compel a mandatory act [O'Brien v. Superior Court (1965) 233 Cal. App. 2d 388, 392, 43 Cal. Rptr. 815] .

[3] Grounds for Writ

[a] Denial of Discovery

For a prerogative writ to be issued when discovery is denied, a clear abuse of discretion by the trial court should be demonstrated [West Pico Furniture Co. v. Superior Court (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 407, 415, 15 Cal. Rptr. 119, 364 P.2d 295 (quoting earlier case); Lehman v. Superior Court (1986) 179 Cal. App. 3d 558, 562, 224 Cal. Rptr. 572] . Such abuse is shown if there is no substantial basis for the manner in which the trial court discretion was exercised, or if the trial court applied a patently improper standard of decision [Coriell v. Superior Court (1974) 39 Cal. App. 3d 487, 491 n.1, 114 Cal. Rptr. 310] .

[b] Grant of Discovery

The liberal policies of the discovery statutes generally counsel against overturning a trial court's decision granting discovery unless a substantial interest of the petitioner will be impaired by the discovery [Pacific Tel. & Tel. Co. v. Superior Court (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 161, 171, 84 Cal. Rptr. 718, 465 P.2d 854 ; see Avant! Corp. v. Superior Court (2000) 79 Cal. App. 4th 876, 881-882, 94 Cal. Rptr. 2d 505 (reviewing court is not free to substitute its discretion for that of trial court if trial court's conclusion was reasonable exercise of its discretion, even though court of appeal may disagree with trial court's conclusion)]. Consequently, when discovery is granted, petitioner should show a violation of privilege or of the provisions of Cal. Const., art. I, § 13 (unreasonable searches and seizures) [West Pico Furniture Co. v. Superior Court (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 407, 415, 15 Cal. Rptr. 119, 364 P.2d 295 (quoting earlier case); see Sav-On Drugs, Inc. v. Superior Court (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 1, 5, 123 Cal. Rptr. 283, 538 P.2d 739] . The general rule, however, that a reviewing court should rarely interfere with pretrial discovery orders, particularly when the orders grant discovery, is not applicable in a case involving an order pertaining to requests for admissions under former Code Civ. Proc. § 2033 (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 2033.010 et seq.) because requests for admissions are more closely akin to summary adjudication procedures than to orthodox discovery, designed less to discover the facts than to render it unnecessary to try otherwise triable issues [Hansen v. Superior Court (1983) 149 Cal. App. 3d 823, 827, 197 Cal. Rptr. 175 (decided under former Code Civ. Proc. § 2033)].

Perrogative writs are especially needed if the trial court order allegedly violates a privilege of the party against whom discovery is granted. That party must either disclose the privileged information or subject himself or herself to a charge of contempt for refusal to obey the court's order pending appeal. The first alternative could lead to disruption of a confidential relationship, while the second would involve the possibility of a jail sentence and additional delay of the litigation during review of the contempt order [Roberts v. Superior Court (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 330, 336, 107 Cal. Rptr. 309, 508 P.2d 309 ; see Davis v. Superior Court (1992) 7 Cal. App. 4th 1008, 1012-1013, 9 Cal. Rptr. 2d 331 (mandate is proper method to seek review of order denying motion to quash subpoena duces tecum for psychotherapy records)].

A court generally will not issue an extraordinary writ if the objection to the trial court's grant of discovery is on relevancy grounds, unless the court concludes that the answers sought by a given line of questioning cannot, as a reasonable possibility, lead to the discovery of admissible evidence or be helpful in preparing for trial. Even though this rule requires disclosing irrelevant matter, the burden of disclosing such matter will generally not be too onerous, and the purposes of the discovery process of improving the efficiency and integrity of the judicial process will be preserved [Pacific Tel. & Tel. Co. v. Superior Court (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 161, 170 n.11, 173, 84 Cal. Rptr. 718, 465 P.2d 854 ; see Colonial Life & Accident Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1982) 31 Cal. 3d 785, 790, 183 Cal. Rptr. 810, 647 P.2d 86 ; Sav-On Drugs, Inc. v. Superior Court (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 1, 7, 123 Cal. Rptr. 283, 538 P.2d 739] .

A discovery order normally is reviewed under the deferential abuse of discretion standard [John B. v. Superior Court (2006) 38 Cal. 4th 1177, 1186, 45 Cal. Rptr. 3d 316, 137 P.3d 153 ; Greyhound Corp. v. Superior Court (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 355, 380, 15 Cal. Rptr. 90, 364 P.2d 266 (decided under prior law)]. Accordingly, a reviewing court generally will not substitute its opinion for that of the trial court unless the trial court's decision "falls outside the bounds of reason" [People v. DeSantis (1992) 2 Cal. 4th 1198, 1226, 9 Cal. Rptr. 628, 831 P. 2d 1210 ; Lipton v. Superior Court (1996) 48 Cal. App. 4th 1599, 1612, 56 Cal. Rptr. 2d 341 (trial court's ruling will be sustained unless "there was 'no legal justification' for the order granting or denying the discovery in question")].

Although the trial court has wide discretion in managing discovery issues, "there can be no room for the exercise of such discretion if no ground exists upon which it might operate" [Toshiba America Electronic Components v. Superior Court (2004) 124 Cal. App. 4th 762, 768, 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 532]. Thus, when the relevant facts are undisputed, a trial court's exercise of discretion is reviewed as a question of law [Toshiba America Electronic Components v. Superior Court (2004) 124 Cal. App. 4th 762, 768, 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 532]. An appellate court may reverse a trial court's decision for abuse of discretion when the exercise of that discretion is not based on the applicable law. "Action that transgresses the confines of the applicable principles of law is outside the scope of discretion and we call such action an 'abuse' of discretion" [Toshiba America Electronic Components v. Superior Court (2004) 124 Cal. App. 4th 762, 768, 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 532]. When the issue on appeal is whether a particular communication falls outside the protection of the First Amendment, independent review is called for, both to be sure that the speech in question actually falls within the unprotected category and to confine the perimeters of any unprotected category within acceptably narrow limits in an effort to ensure that protected expression will not be inhibited [Krinsky v. Doe 6 (2008) 159 Cal. App. 4th 1154, 1161, 72 Cal. Rptr. 3d 231]. This independent review function, however, is not equivalent to a de novo review of the ultimate judgment itself, in which a reviewing court makes an original appraisal of all the evidence to decide whether or not it believes that judgment should be entered for plaintiff [Krinsky v. Doe 6 (2008) 159 Cal. App. 4th 1154, 1161, 72 Cal. Rptr. 3d 231].

In all other cases, abuse of discretion is the appropriate standard [Krinsky v. Doe 6 (2008) 159 Cal. App. 4th 1154, 1161, 72 Cal. Rptr. 3d 231 (independent review of plausible First Amendment defense in determining whether communications constituted libel in appeal arising from denial of anonymous Internet poster's motion to quash plaintiff's subpoena seeking his or her identity)].

For discussion of the appellate court's deference to the trial court's findings of fact, see [4], below.

[4] Trial Court's Factual Determinations

Each exercise of discretion by a trial court will occur under a differing set of facts, and each case, of necessity, must be decided in light of those particular facts. Nevertheless, the Supreme Court has stated that, to constitute a proper exercise of discretion, the factual determination of the trial court should clearly and unequivocally be based on the following legal concepts [Greyhound Corp. v. Superior Court (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 355, 382-384, 15 Cal. Rptr. 90, 364 P.2d 266 (decided under prior law)]:

- The legislative purposes of the Discovery Act are not to be subverted under the guise of the exercise of discretion [see discussion in Ch. 190, Discovery: Scope, Regulation, and Timing, § 190.12].

- Those purposes are to be given effect rather than thwarted so that discovery is encouraged.

- When disputed facts provide a basis for the exercise of discretion, those facts should be liberally construed in favor of discovery, rather than in the most limited and restrictive manner possible.

- Although the statutory limitations on discovery must be applied when the facts so warrant, exercise of discretion does not authorize extension beyond these limits.

- There is no room for judicial discretion in those situations not included in the statutes but asserted as general limitations on the privileges conferred. These situations, however, may be subject to judicial discretion under the statutory power to prevent abuse and advance the ends of justice.

- The power to prevent abuse by granting protective orders is the power to exercise discretion based on the factual showing made. When the record indicates facts on which the court exercised its discretion, that exercise will not be disturbed on appeal. When the facts are undisputed, or there is but one reasonable interpretation of them, the question is not one of fact but of law.

- The trial courts in exercising their discretion should keep in mind that the Legislature has suggested that, when possible, the courts should impose partial limitations rather than outright denial of discovery.

- In the exercise of its discretion, the court should weigh the relative importance of the information sought against the hardship that its production might entail; and it must weigh the relative ability of the parties to obtain the information before requiring the adversary to bear the burden or cost of production, keeping in mind the statutory admonition of entering an order consistent with justice.

Any record that indicates a failure to give adequate consideration to these concepts is subject to the attack of abuse of discretion, regardless of the fact that the order shows no such abuse on its face [Greyhound Corp. v. Superior Court (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 355, 384, 15 Cal. Rptr. 90, 364 P.2d 266 (decided under prior law)].

[5] Furnishing Trial Court Record

A petitioner for an extraordinary writ to a trial court must furnish a record sufficient to enable the reviewing court to evaluate the lower court's exercise of discretion [Lemelle v. Superior Court (1978) 77 Cal. App. 3d 148, 156, 143 Cal. Rptr. 450] . The record must include the ruling of the trial court on petitioner's motion concerning discovery, or else the petitioner cannot contend that it was erroneous [Hamwi v. Citinational-Buckeye Inv. Co. (1977) 72 Cal. App. 3d 462, 474, 140 Cal. Rptr. 215] . The record also should include a copy of all declarations filed in the lower court and, in most instances, a transcript of any hearing. In the absence of a transcript the reviewing court will have no way of knowing, in many cases, what grounds were advanced, mutually assumed, or judicially noticed at the hearing [Lemelle v. Superior Court (1978) 77 Cal. App. 3d 148, 156-157, 143 Cal. Rptr. 450] .

§ 200.13 New Objections Not Considered on Appeal

Generally an order or judgment of a trial court will be sustained, without regard to the reasons given by that court, if adequate grounds existed for the making of the order or judgment at the time the order was made. Consequently, an objecting party may not urge new and additional objections raised for the first time on appeal [West Pico Furniture Co. v. Superior Court (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 407, 413-414, 15 Cal. Rptr. 119, 364 P.2d 295] .

§ 200.14 Review of Contempt Order

Contempt is one sanction available under discovery proceedings [see former Code Civ. Proc. § 2023(b) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 2023.030), discussed in Ch. 192, Discovery: Sanctions for Discovery Misuse, §§ 192.13[4], 192.15[4]].

The judgment and orders of the court or judge in contempt cases are final, conclusive [Code Civ. Proc. § 1222], and not appealable [In re Buckley (1973) 10 Cal. 3d 237, 259, 110 Cal. Rptr. 121, 514 P.2d 1201] . Although a contempt order is nonappealable, it may be reviewed by a petition for a writ of review [Mitchell v. Superior Court (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 759, 764, 104 Cal. Rptr. 921] , habeas corpus [see In re Carvallo (1973) 29 Cal. App. 3d 983, 986, 105 Cal. Rptr. 925] , or prohibition [see Safer v. Superior Court (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 230, 235, 124 Cal. Rptr. 174, 540 P.2d 14] . For discussion and forms for use in seeking review of contempt proceedings, see Ch. 135, Contempt .

Because only a party has a right to appeal or seek review by prerogative writ, the only procedure by which a nonparty witness may secure relief from a discovery order is to subject himself or herself to a contempt order for noncompliance, which is reviewable in an appellate court by habeas corpus or by writ of review [*La Bella v. § 200.24 Decisions

All discovery disputes involving arbitration proceedings must be submitted first to arbitrator, not to court; although parties are entitled to only limited judicial review of arbitrator discovery orders, nonparties are entitled to full judicial review of arbitrators' adverse discovery orders. Berglund v. Arthroscopic & Laser Surgery Ct. of San Diego (2008) 44 Cal. 4th 528, 532, 535-536, 79 Cal. Rptr. 3d 370, 187 P.3d 86

After appeal from discovery sanctions award of $1,643 was dismissed as untimely, it was immaterial that court later "confirmed" its sanctions award in postjudgment order from which there was a timely appeal; to be appealable, postjudgment order must also raise issue different from those embraced in judgment, otherwise it would give party two chances to appeal same ruling and thus circumvent time limit on appealing from judgment. Guillemin v. Stein (2002) 104 Cal. App. 4th 156, 161, 128 Cal. Rptr. 2d 65

Trial court rulings concerning discovery sanctions are generally not subject to review by extraordinary writ, but are reviewable on appeal after judgment; exception exists when compelled disclosure of claimed privilege is threatened. Hiott v. Superior Court (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 712, 716, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 157

Discovery orders are not directly appealable; trial court order denying motion for discovery is proper when discovery sought was relevant only to plaintiffs' class action allegations, to which defendants' demurrer was properly sustained without leave to amend prior to issuance of discovery order. Clausing v. San Francisco Unified School Dist. (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 1224, 1241, 271 Cal. Rptr. 72

Order striking defendant's answer and entering default as sanction for failure to participate in discovery is not appealable, but is reviewable on appeal from subsequent default judgment against him. Thomas v. Luong (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 76, 78, 231 Cal. Rptr. 631

Plaintiff who elects to present issue of alleged untimeliness of motion to compel further answers by disobeying court order compelling further answers, and then raising untimeliness issue on appeal, is not entitled to escape sanction dismissing case when untimeliness argument and plaintiff's good faith is not sustained by court of appeal. Karz v. Karl (1982) 137 Cal. App. 3d 637, 650, 187 Cal. Rptr. 183

Grant of protective order precluding further discovery until conclusion of all administrative proceedings or until further order of court is not appealable. Bartschi v. Chico Community Memorial Hospital (1982) 137 Cal. App. 3d 502, 507-508, 187 Cal. Rptr. 61

Discovery matters in municipal court actions (now limited civil cases) may be reviewed by petition for extraordinary writ in superior court (now superior court appellate division). Webb v. Municipal Court (1981) 118 Cal. App. 3d 881, 885-886, 173 Cal. Rptr. 636

Appeal is not adequate remedy when party is left with choice of supplying information to which other party is clearly not entitled or of suffering risk of default judgment on debatable point of law. Board of Administration v. Superior Court (1975) 50 Cal. App. 3d 314, 324, 123 Cal. Rptr. 530

Although order to compel answers on deposition is generally not appealable, order based on motion to compel answers, which was, in effect, motion to enjoin attorney from representing plaintiffs due to conflict of interest, is appealable. Kraus v. Davis (1970) 6 Cal. App. 3d 484, 486-487, 85 Cal. Rptr. 846

[2] Burden of Proof

Party seeking to overturn trial court ruling on discovery showed abuse of discretion by court; court erred as matter of law in upholding relevancy objection in motion to compel further answers to interrogatories. Fisher v. Superior Court (1986) 177 Cal. App. 3d 779, 784, 223 Cal. Rptr. 203

On appeal from order imposing sanctions in discovery proceedings, appellant has burden of showing abuse of trial court's discretion. Petersen v. Vallejo (1968) 259 Cal. App. 2d 757, 781, 66 Cal. Rptr. 776

[3] Mandate

Mandate is appropriate remedy for improper denial of discovery. Burke v. Superior Court (1969) 71 Cal. 2d 276, 277-278 n. 1, 78 Cal. Rptr. 481, 455 P.2d 409

Although petitioner mistook remedy and sought prohibition, appellate court is able to grant writ of mandamus since petitioner made out case entitling him to mandamus. Powell v. Superior Court (1957) 48 Cal. 2d 704, 705, 312 P.2d 698

Liberal policy of relevancy in justifying discovery counsels against overturning trial court's decision granting discovery, but appellate court should not use rule giving trial court wide discretion to defeat liberal policies of statutes with respect to orders limiting or denying discovery. Mobil Oil Corp. v. Superior Court (1976) 59 Cal. App. 3d 293, 303-304, 130 Cal. Rptr. 814

[b] Examples of Mandate Proceedings

Whether trial court had power to grant prospective witness use and derivative use immunity to facilitate discovery by private party is question meeting criteria for use of mandate in discovery matters. Daly v. Superior Court (1977) 19

Cal. 3d 132, 140, 137 Cal. Rptr. 14, 560 P.2d 1193

Writ of mandate is proper to require trial court to set aside order denying production and inspection of documents requested and reconsider defendant's objections to specific documents. Associated Brewers Distrib. Co. v. Superior Court (1967) 65 Cal. 2d 583, 589, 55 Cal. Rptr. 772, 422 P.2d 332

Writ of mandate is proper to require that trial court order real parties in interest to produce documents in question for purpose of refreshing witness's recollection during his deposition. Filipoff v. Superior Court (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 443, 453, 15 Cal. Rptr. 139, 364 P.2d 315

Writ of mandate is proper to compel trial court to set aside order sustaining objections to requests for admissions and to require trial court to reconsider objections. Cembrook v. Superior Court (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 423, 430, 15 Cal. Rptr. 127, 364 P.2d 303

Writ of mandate is proper method to seek review of trial court order compelling putative father to produce state income tax returns and other privileged financial records before his parentage was conclusively established. Thomas B. v. Superior Court (1985) 175 Cal. App. 3d 255, 260, 220 Cal. Rptr. 577

Relief by writ of mandate is available when trial court abused its discretion by ordering discovery of a confidential customer list; use of the writ to protect confidential information as justified by same reasoning that allows use of writ to protect privileged information. Hofmann Corp. v. Superior Court (1985) 172 Cal. App. 3d 357, 362-363 n.2, 218 Cal. Rptr. 355

Writ of mandate is proper method to seek review of protective order preventing depositions based on single fact that proposed deponents are lawyers. Meritplan Insurance Co. v. Superior Court (1981) 124 Cal. App. 3d 237, 242, 177 Cal. Rptr. 236

Peremptory writ of mandate to compel production of things is proper when full briefing by parties and issuance of alternative writ would only cause further delay. Watt Indus., Inc. v. Superior Court (1981) 115 Cal. App. 3d 802, 806, 171 Cal. Rptr. 503

Writ of mandate is proper to compel trial court to vacate order compelling production of documents and enter new order denying production on ground that order violates attorney-client privilege and attorney's work-product privilege. Schlumberger Ltd. v. Superior Court (1981) 115 Cal. App. 3d 386, 391, 171 Cal. Rptr. 413

Exception to general rule that disfavors pretrial review of discovery orders by extraordinary writ exists when information sought is protected by statutory psychotherapist-patient privilege, since redress after disclosure would be impossible. City of Alhambra v. Superior Court (1980) 110 Cal. App. 3d 513, 517-518, 168 Cal. Rptr. 49

Writ of mandate is proper to compel trial court to set aside order granting motion to compel further answers to interrogatories on ground that order violated privilege against disclosure of income tax returns. Coate v. Superior Court (1978) 81 Cal. App. 3d 113, 114-115, 144 Cal. Rptr. 350

Writ of mandate is proper to require trial court to quash order that plaintiff reenact circumstances of accident for photographic recording by defendant. Bailey v. Superior Court (1978) 79 Cal. App. 3d 444, 447, 144 Cal. Rptr. 875

Writ of mandate is proper to direct trial court to vacate its conditional order, and issue unconditional order, quashing subpoenas duces tecum re depositions served on custodians of records of doctors hired by plaintiff's attorney to examine plaintiff and to inform attorney as to plaintiff's medical condition. Sanders v. Superior Court (1973) 34 Cal. App. 3d 270, 278-280, 109 Cal. Rptr. 770

Writ of mandate is proper to direct trial court to vacate order requiring defendant to answer certain interrogatories. City of Los Angeles v. Superior Court (1973) 33 Cal. App. 3d 778, 786, 109 Cal. Rptr. 365

Writ of mandate is proper method to review discovery order appointing commission to take depositions of officials or employees of defendant in another country. Volkswagenwerk Aktienge sellschaft v. Superior Court (1973) 33 Cal. App. 3d 503, 508-509, 109 Cal. Rptr. 219

[4] Prohibition

Writ of prohibition is proper remedy to restrain trial court's order requiring videotaping of deposition. Bailey v. Superior Court (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 970, 978, 140 Cal. Rptr. 669, 568 P.2d 394

Writ of prohibition is proper to restrain superior court from compelling petitioner to answer interrogatory seeking disclosure of information concerning petitioner's state sales tax returns. Sav-On Drugs, Inc. v. Superior Court (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 1, 7, 123 Cal. Rptr. 283, 538 P.2d 739

Writ of prohibition, barring production and inspection of psychotherapist's records concerning plaintiff when no specific mental condition of plaintiff was at issue, is proper because psychotherapist-patient privilege applied. Roberts v. Superior Court (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 330, 336-337, 107 Cal. Rptr. 309, 508 P.2d 309

Writ of prohibition is proper when discovery improperly ordered. Burke v. Superior Court (1969) 71 Cal. 2d 276, 277-278 n.1, 78 Cal. Rptr. 481, 455 P.2d 409 ; Petterson v. Superior Court (1974) 39 Cal. App. 3d 267, 269, 114 Cal. Rptr. 20

Writ of prohibition is properly used to review trial court order overruling petitioner's objections to interrogatories on grounds that they were calculated to annoy, embarrass, and oppress plaintiff and that the information was protected by attorney-client privilege and privilege accorded communications made in confidence to public officer when public interest would suffer by disclosure. Oceanside Union School Dist. v. Superior Court (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 180, 185-187, 23 Cal. Rptr. 375, 373 P.2d 439

Writ review is appropriate to resolve tension between right of defendant in sexual harassment case to conduct discovery and plaintiff's countervailing constitutional right to privacy. Doyle v. Superior Court (1996) 50 Cal. App. 4th 1878, 1883-1884, 58 Cal. Rptr. 2d 476

Prerogative writ is appropriate to review discovery order when based on violation of right of privacy, such as that involved in compelled production of personnel file. El Dorado Savings & Loan Assn. v. Superior Court (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 342, 344-345, 235 Cal. Rptr. 303

Application by prerogative writ is appropriate in discovery cases when order of the trial court granting discovery purportedly violates a privilege involving attorney-client relationship or constitutes an invasion of the constitutional right of privacy. Willis v. Superior Court (1980) 112 Cal. App. 3d 277, 289, 169 Cal. Rptr. 301

[5] Questions of First Impression

Question of whether third-party recipient of confidential information from physician may assert physician-patient privilege is question of first impression for which writ of mandate is proper method to review trial court's action. Rudnick v. Superior Court (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 924, 928, 114 Cal. Rptr. 603, 523 P.2d 643

Reviewing courts may entertain applications for prerogative writs to control discovery, but only sparingly and only to review questions of first impression and general importance. Oceanside Union School Dist. v. Superior Court (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 180, 185-186 n. 4, 23 Cal. Rptr. 375, 373 P.2d 439 ; Matchett v. Superior Court (1974) 40 Cal. App. 3d 623, 626, 115 Cal. Rptr. 317

Review by extraordinary writ is appropriate in case of first impression involving interpretation of provision of new Discovery Act and justification of trial court's exercise of discretion. Appleton v. Superior Court (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 632, 634, 253 Cal. Rptr. 762

Prerogative writ is not favored method to review discovery orders; however, use of prerogative writ instead of direct appeal is justified when question of first impression is presented that affects large number of litigants and attorneys. St. Vincent Medical Center v. Superior Court (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 1030, 1032, 206 Cal. Rptr. 840

Question of whether motion to compel answers to interrogatories must comply with former Cal. Rules of Ct, Rule 222.1 when there has been total failure to respond within time prescribed by statute is question of first impression likely to repeatedly arise until resolved; thus review of discovery order by prerogative writ is appropriate. Leach v. Superior Court (1980) 111 Cal. App. 3d 902, 906, 169 Cal. Rptr. 42

[6] Record on Appeal

Although often desirable to aid appellate review, no statement of reasons by trial court for denying motion to quash subpoena is required; trial court's order is presumed to be correct on appeal, and all intendments and presumptions are indulged in favor of its correctness. Schnabel v. Superior Court (1993) 5 Cal. 4th 704, 718, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 200, 854 P.2d 1117

When record contains no explanation of grounds for trial court's order sustaining objections to request for admission, appellate court presumes that order was based on objections set forth by real party in interest and that trial court found objections meritorious. Cembrook v. Superior Court (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 423, 426, 15 Cal. Rptr. 127, 364 P.2d 303

When motion for pretrial inspection of material is made, showing as to why material was needed is required before appellate court will find that denial of motion was abuse of discretion. Brenard v. Superior Court (1959) 172 Cal. App. 2d 314, 318, 341 P.2d 743

[7] Standard of Review

In appeal arising from denial of anonymous Internet poster's motion to quash plaintiff's subpoena served on California message-board host, seeking poster's identity, appellate court conducted independent review of plausible First Amendment defense in determining whether communications constituted libel; because plaintiff could not make required prima facie showing of elements of libel necessary to overcome defendant's First Amendment right to speak anonymously, court quashed subpoena. Krinsky v. Doe 6 (2008) 159 Cal. App. 4th 1154, 72 Cal. Rptr. 3d 231

Appellate court reviews trial court's discovery order to determine if trial court's factual determinations are based on substantial evidence; trial court is able to assess credibility and resolve any conflicts in evidence; trial court's findings are thus entitled to great weight; even though contrary findings could have been made, appellate court should defer to trial court's factual determinations if evidence is in conflict, whether trial court's ruling is based on oral testimony or declarations. Hiott v. Superior Court (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 712, 716-717, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 157

§ 200.41 Petition for Writ of Prohibition [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1102, 1103] to Restrain Enforcement of Discovery Order

[1] FORM Petition for Writ of Prohibition [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1102, 1103] to Restrain Enforcement of Discovery Order

[1. If related appeal is pending, allege: A related appeal is pending in the case entitled _____ (title of case), No. _____ in the Superior Court of _____ County and No. _____ in the _____ (specify appellate court and appellate court docket number, if any).]

2. Petitioner is _____ [identify petitioner and describe the proceeding, e.g., the _____ (plaintiff or defendant) in the action entitled _____ (name), Plaintiff, vs. _____ (name), Defendant, Civil Action No. _____, now pending before respondent court].

[EITHER]

3. Respondent is the Superior Court of the State of California, County of _____, in which the above-entitled action is pending.

4. Real party in interest is _____ [name] and has an interest that is directly affected by this proceeding in that _____ [specify reasons that make person the real party in interest, e.g., he/she/it is the _____ (plaintiff or defendant) in the above-entitled action].

5. On _____ [date], _____ [petitioner or real party in interest] filed the action described in Paragraph 2 of this petition. A copy of that complaint is attached hereto as Exhibit A and made a part hereof. That complaint seeks _____ [specify, e.g., to recover damages for personal injuries suffered when the car belonging to the real party in interest struck the car in which petitioner was riding].

6. On _____ [date], _____ [describe discovery proceeding leading to objection to respondent's exercise of jurisdiction, e.g., real party in interest served on petitioner written interrogatories, a copy of which is attached hereto as Exhibit B and made a part hereof. Interrogatories No. 25-30 inquired whether petitioner had undergone previous illness and institutional confinements during his/her lifetime and requested a description of the injuries he/she claims to have suffered in the collision with defendant's vehicle. On _____ [date], petitioner served on the real party in interest written answers under oath to the written interrogatories in which petitioner answered Interrogatories No. 25-30 by indicating he/she had been hospitalized for a prior automobile accident and for an overdose of pills. Petitioner further stated that he/she had received psychiatric treatment from a psychotherapist for a few months].

7. _____ [Allege further facts of discovery proceeding, if necessary, e.g., On receipt of petitioner's answers, real party in interest subpoenaed all of petitioner's medical records in the custody of the various doctors who had treated him/her, including those of petitioner's psychotherapist. The psychotherapist refused to surrender his/her records unless ordered to do so by the court, on the ground that they were privileged].

8. _____ [Describe judicial action exercised by respondent court in response to the motions of real party in interest that is in excess of respondent court's jurisdiction, e.g., On _____ [date], respondent, on motion made and noticed by real party in interest, made and signed an order requiring production of the psychotherapist's records. A copy of the order is attached hereto as Exhibit C and made a part hereof].

9. _____ [Allege that respondent's action granting discovery was in excess of the court's jurisdiction or an abuse of discretion in that it was a violation of privilege or of the provisions of Cal. Const., Art I, § 13 (unreasonable searches and seizures) or that the material was not relevant for discovery purposes, including, as well, objections made by petitioner to action in trial court, e.g., Respondent's action requiring production of petitioner's psychotherapists' records was in excess of its jurisdiction in that it was a violation of the psychotherapist-patient privilege as raised by petitioner in his/her papers opposing real party in interest's motion in the trial court. A copy of petitioner's papers is attached hereto as Exhibit D and made a part hereof. No specific mental condition of petitioner was at issue in the action and consequently, bringing the action did not deprive him/her of the privilege. Additionally, he/she did not waive the privilege by disclosing that he/she had received psychiatric treatment since he/she disclosed no more than was necessary to avoid application of the patient-litigant exception set forth in Section 1016 of the Evidence Code].

[10. If ground for petition is lack of relevancy of information sought, allege that the answers sought by the line of questioning cannot as a reasonable possibility lead to the discovery of admissible evidence or be helpful in preparation for trial; allege any other facts, if applicable, showing burden or other injustice caused by complying with discovery.]

11. _____ [If real party in interest has taken steps to obtain sanctions, allege what steps he/she has taken and what sanctions he/she is seeking, e.g., On _____ [date], real party in interest served on petitioner a notice of motion notifying petitioner that on _____ [date], he/she will move respondent for an order striking petitioner's complaint in the action described in Paragraph 2 of this petition for petitioner's failure to obey the order requiring production of the psychotherapist's records and ordering petitioner to pay to real party in interest all reasonable expenses, including reasonable attorney's fees, incurred by real party in interest in obtaining such an order. A copy of the notice of motion is attached hereto as Exhibit E and made a party hereof].

12. Petitioner is a person beneficially interested in the issuance of a writ of prohibition by virtue of the fact that he/she is the _____ [identify party, e.g., plaintiff or defendant] in the above-described action and _____ [specify any further interest, e.g., that production of the above-described records would violate the confidentiality of the relationship required between petitioner and his/her psychiatrist].

13. Petitioner has no plain, speedy, and adequate remedy in the ordinary course of law in that an order issued by a court in enforcement or in aid of the discovery procedure is not an appealable order and prohibition is an appropriate remedy to attack the improper enforcement of a discovery order.

[14. The issues presented in this petition are questions of first impression that are of general importance to the trial courts and to the legal profession, and general guidelines may be laid down for future cases by resolving the questions in that _____ (specify what issues will be resolved by the court's decision).]

[15. If petition is an original proceeding in a court of appeal, add: This petition is made to this court in the first instance rather than to the Superior Court of the State of California, County of _____, for the following reason(s): _____ (specify circumstances, as required by Rule 8.490(b)(1) of California Rules of Court, that render it proper and necessary that the writ issue from an appellate court).]

WHEREFORE, petitioner prays:

1. That the court issue an alternative writ of prohibition commanding respondent to _____ [desist or refrain] from further proceeding in the matter specified in the petition, and to show cause before this court at a time specified by court order why it should not be absolutely restrained from any further proceedings in such matter;

2. That on the return of the alternative writ and the hearing of this petition, this court issue its peremptory writ of prohibition absolutely restraining respondent from any further proceedings in this matter;

3. For costs of this proceeding; and

4. For such other and further relief as the court deems just and proper.

[2] Use of Form

The form of petition set out in [1], above, is for use in seeking a writ of prohibition in a superior court or a court of appeal to restrain the enforcement of a discovery order granted by a trial court. Although the form is designed to be adapted to meet the facts peculiar to any situation, a petition may be denied summarily, and care must be taken in adapting the form to make certain that no essential allegations are omitted.

Original writ proceedings should be initiated in the Supreme Court only in cases of overwhelming public importance. The Supreme Court rarely accepts such proceedings, but instead transfers the case to the appropriate court of appeal. For further discussion and forms relating to writs of prohibition generally, see Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition .

[3] Allegations

The petition alleges the following:

- The identity of respondent as an inferior tribunal (Paragraph 3) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1103].
- The identity of real party in interest (Paragraph 4) [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.490(b)(2)].
- The discovery proceeding involved in the dispute (Paragraphs 6 and 7).
- The judicial action being exercised by respondent (Paragraph 8).
- The reason or reasons why the court's action was in excess of its jurisdiction or an abuse of its discretion (Paragraph 9) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1102].
- The petitioner's objection to underlying motion by real party in interest's, which was the basis for the trial court's order (Paragraph 9).
- The beneficial interest of petitioner (Paragraph 12).
- The fact that petitioner has no adequate legal remedy (Paragraph 13).
- The reason or reasons why it is proper for the writ to issue from an appellate court, to be included if the petition is filed in the court of appeal and could otherwise be filed in superior court (Paragraph 15).

The petition also contains an allegation that the questions presented are of first impression and of general importance to the trial courts and the legal profession (Paragraph 14). Whether this allegation is part of a petitioner's initial burden in seeking an extraordinary writ, and therefore whether it should be alleged, is unclear. The Supreme Court has long noted a tendency of some courts of appeal to regard prerogative writs as the normal instruments for reviewing discovery orders, noting further that this tendency is likely to result in more harm to the judicial process than the denial of immediate relief from less significant errors. The Court has repeated its standard, previously set out in Oceanside Union School Dist. v. Superior Court (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 180, 185-186 n. 4, 23 Cal. Rptr. 375, 373 P.2d 439 , that writs should be used in discovery matters only to review questions of first impression that are of general importance to the trial courts and the legal profession in which general guidelines can be laid down for future cases [Pacific Tel. & Tel. Co. v. Superior Court (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 161, 169-170, 84 Cal. Rptr. 718, 465 P.2d 854] .

[4] Memorandum

A writ petition filed in the court of appeal must be accompanied by points and authorities [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.490(b)(5)].

If the respondent is the superior court or a judge of that court (as is commonly the case), the petition and one set of supporting documents (including a memorandum) must be served on any named real party in interest, but only the petition must be served on the respondent [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.490(f)(1)]. However, if the respondent is not the superior court or a judge of that court, both the petition and one set of supporting documents must be served on the respondent and on any named real party in interest [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.490(f)(2)].

The petition must also be accompanied by proof of service of copies of the petition and accompanying memorandum on the respondent and any real party in interest named in the petition [Code Civ. Proc. § 1107; see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.490(b)(5), (f)]. The proof of service must give the telephone number of each attorney served and name each party represented by each attorney [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.490(f)(3)].

The clerk must file the petition even if its proof of service is defective. However, if the petitioner fails to file a corrected proof of service within five days after the clerk gives notice of the defect, the court may strike the petition or impose a lesser sanction [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.490(f)(5)]. A court may, however, in its discretion and for good cause, grant the petition ex parte without notice or service of the petition on the respondent and any real party in interest [Code Civ. Proc. § 1107; see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.490(f)(6) (court may allow petition to be filed without proof of service); see also Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition for detailed discussion of service].

In a trial court proceeding, a memorandum is not expressly required, but are nevertheless strongly recommended [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1103(a)(2), 3.1113 (law and motion requirements, applicable to writ petitions, require a memorandum to accompany noticed motion)]. For further discussion of this point, see Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition .

For memoranda in support of writ petitions for review of discovery orders, see California Points and Authorities, Ch. 89A, Discovery: Review of Discovery Orders (Matthew Bender)

[5] Adequate Record

When a writ petition is filed in an appellate court to seek review of a trial court ruling, it must be accompanied by a record adequate to permit the review, including (1) copies of the order or judgment, (2) all documents and exhibits, and (3) a transcript, or a declaration that a transcript has been ordered and is expected to be filed on a certain date, or if no transcript is available, an explanation of its unavailability and a summary of the proceedings. In exigent circumstances, the petition may be filed without copies of the ruling from which the petition seeks relief or the required documents or exhibits [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.490(c)(1)(A)-(C)], if counsel files a declaration that explains the urgency and the circumstances making the documents unavailable and fairly summarizes their substance. Failure to meet these requirements may result in a summary denial of the petition, stay request, or both [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.490(c)(5)].

All supporting documents must (1) be bound together at the end of the petition or in separate volumes not to exceed 300 pages each, with consecutive pagination throughout, (2) be index-tabbed by number or letter, and (3) begin with a table of contents listing each document by title and index-tab number or letter. If the document has attachments, the table of contents must give the title of each attachment and a brief description of its contents [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.490(d)(1)]. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.44(a) governs the number of copies of supporting documents to be filed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.490(d)(3); see [8], below].

Additionally, the petition must be served on a nonparty public officer or agency when required by statute or by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.29 [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.490(f)(4)]. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.29 requires service of certain briefs or petitions on the state attorney general, as well as on public officers and agencies, as required by statute.

[6] Certificate of Interested Persons or Entities

When a writ petition is filed in an appellate court to seek review of a trial court ruling in civil cases other than family, juvenile, guardianship, and conservator cases, each party must also file and serve a Certificate of Interested Persons or Entities, as required by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.208 [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.490(i)(1), (2)].

The petitioner's certificate must be included in the petition [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.490(i)(3)]. The certificates of the respondent and the real party of interest must be included in their preliminary opposition, or if no opposition is filed, in any return [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.490(i)(3)]. The certificate must appear after the cover and before the tables [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.490(i)(3)]. If the identity of any party has not been publicly disclosed in the proceedings, the party may file an application for permission to file its certificate under seal, separately from the petition, preliminary opposition, or return [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.490(i)(3)].

Sanctions for failure to comply with court's notice to file the certificate are discretionary. If the petitioner fails to file a certificate within 10 days after the clerk of court mails a notice to file, the court may strike the petition. If the respondent fails to comply, the court may strike the document [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.490(i)(4), (5)].

The certificate is designed to provide Court of Appeal justices with additional information identifying persons with "hidden" interests in a proceeding, to help the justices determine whether to disqualify themselves [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.208(a); see Appellate Advisory Committee Report dated March 10, 2006, http://www.courtinfo.ca.gov/rules/amendments.htm].

Thus, if a party is an entity, the certificate must list any other "entity or person that the party knows has an ownership interest of 10 percent or more in the party" [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.208(e)(1)]. All parties must also list "any other person or entity that has a financial or other interest in the outcome of the proceeding that the party reasonably believes the justices should consider in determining whether to disqualify themselves" [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.208(e)(2)]. If the party knows of no entity or person required to be disclosed under the rule, the party must so state in the certificate [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.208(e)(3)]. Further, a party who learns of changed or additional information required to be disclosed under Rule 8.208 "must promptly serve and file a supplemental certificate" [Cal. Rules of Ct., 8.208(f)].

A petition for writ of prohibition must be verified [Code Civ. Proc. § 1103; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.490(b)(4)]. This requirement may be met by affidavit or by declaration under penalty of perjury [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 446, 1109, 2015.5].

[8] Timely Filing of Petition

A petition for a writ of mandate or prohibition is filed timely unless there is an unreasonable delay in filing the petition and prejudice to the real party. What is reasonable is determined by the facts. For example, a writ filed almost six months after a discovery order had been issued, well after the 60-day period applicable to appeals, was not untimely when the petitioners had made a motion for summary judgment, which, if granted, would have mooted the discovery order, and when the respondent had retained new counsel who was not immediately substituted into the case [Rosso & Ebersold v. Superior Court (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 1514, 1517, 237 Cal. Rptr. 242] .

[9] Number of Copies

When filing the petition in superior court, the attorney should prepare the following number of copies:

- Original for filing.
- Copy for service on respondent.

- Copy for service on real party in interest (if there are two or more respondents or real parties in interest, a copy for service on each party should be prepared).
- Office copy.
- Copy for petitioner, if desired.
- Additional copies as desired.

When filing the petition in a court of appeal, the attorney should prepare the following number of copies

- Original and four copies for filing [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.44(b)(3)].
- Copy for service on respondent.
- Copy for service on real party in interest (if there are two or more respondents or two or more real parties in interest, a copy for service on each party should be prepared).
- Office copy.
- Copy for petitioner, if desired.
- Additional copies as desired.

Unless the court orders otherwise by local rule or in the specific case, the attorney also must file one set of separately bound supporting documents accompanying the petition [Cal. Rules Ct., Rule 8.44(b)(5)].

[10] Praying for Relief in the Alternative

When counsel is in doubt as to the type of writ to seek, it is proper to pray in the alternative for a writ of prohibition or mandate. The cases uniformly follow the modern pleading principle that neither mislabeling nor a defective prayer will bar relief justified by proper allegations and proof [Peck's Liquors, Inc. v. Superior Court (1963) 221 Cal. App. 2d 772, 775, 34 Cal. Rptr. 735] .

[1] FORM Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086] to Compel Issuance of Discovery Order

1. [Related appeal pending. See § 200.41[1], Paragraph 1.]

2-4. [Identity of parties involved. See § 200.41[1], Paragraphs 2-4.]

5. _____ [Allege statutory authority for discovery procedure sought by petitioner, e.g., Code of Civil Procedure Section 2030.020(b), (c) provides that a plaintiff may propound interrogatories to a party without leave of court at any time that is 10 days after the service of the summons on, or appearance by, that party, whichever occurs first, or in an unlawful detainer action or other proceeding under Code of Civil Procedure Section 1159 et seq. (forcible entry and detainer), whether five days have elapsed since service of the summons on, or appearance by, that party, whichever occurs first. Code of Civil Procedure Section 2030.210(a) provides that the interrogatories must be responded to separately and fully in writing under oath by either an answer, an exercise of the party's option to produce writings, or by an objection].

6. _____ [Allege facts of discovery proceeding sought by petitioner, e.g., On _____ (date), real party in interest was duly and properly served with summons in the action described in Paragraph 2 of this petition, and on _____ (specify date more than 10 days after service of summons), petitioner duly and properly served written interrogatories relevant to the subject matter of the action on the real party in interest. A copy of these written interrogatories is attached as Exhibit A and incorporated by reference].

7. _____ [Allege facts showing that real party in interest refused to comply with discovery request and lacked reasons to do so, e.g., More than 30 days have elapsed since the service of written interrogatories on the real party in interest. The real party in interest obtained no order extending his/her time to answer such written interrogatories. He/She failed to serve responses to the interrogatories served on him/her as described in Paragraphs 5 and 6 of this petition although the information sought by the interrogatories is relevant to the subject matter of the action and is not privileged matter. Real party in interest offered no sufficient reasons for failing to comply with petitioner's request for answers to the written interrogatories].

8. _____ [Allege facts showing petitioner obtained an order to compel real party in interest to answer the interrogatories, e.g., Code of Civil Procedure Sections 2030.290(b) and (c) provide in part that when a responding party has failed to serve a timely response to interrogatories, the propounding party may bring a motion to compel a response and a motion for monetary sanctions. On _____ (date), petitioner, on motion duly made and noticed, moved the respondent for such an order. On _____ (date), respondent made its order compelling real party in interest to answer the interrogatories within 30 days of the date of the order, and assessing monetary sanctions against real party in interest in the amount of $_____ (specify)].

9. _____ [Allege facts showing that real party in interest failed to comply with the order made, e.g., Thereafter, real party in interest failed to serve answers to the interrogatories on petitioner within 30 days after respondent made its order compelling real party in interest to do so].

10. _____ [Allege facts showing that petitioner made a motion to impose sanctions, e.g., On _____ (date), petitioner, on motion duly made and noticed, moved the respondent, under Code of Civil Procedure Section 2030.290(b), for an order _____ (specify sanction sought, e.g., striking out the answer of real party in interest, and imposing monetary sanctions, including reasonable attorney's fees) under Code of Civil Procedure Section 2023.290(c)].

11. _____ [Allege respondent's improper action constituting an abuse of discretion, e.g., On _____ (date), after hearing the motion described in Paragraph 10 of this petition, respondent made a finding that the real party in interest had engaged in conduct that constitutes an abuse of the discovery process, but respondent abused its discretion by refusing to enter an order imposing any of the sanctions available pursuant to Code of Civil Procedure Sections 2023.020 and 2030.290(c)].

12. Petitioner is entitled to an order of respondent _____ [allege type of order petitioner is entitled to, e.g., imposing sanctions on the real party in interest for his/her willfully engaging in conduct constituting an abuse of the discovery process] for the reason that _____ [specify reasons, e.g., such an order is expressly prescribed by statute as alleged in Paragraph 10 of this petition].

13. Petitioner is a person beneficially interested in the issuance of a writ by virtue of the fact that he/she is the _____ [describe party, e.g., plaintiff] in the action described in Paragraph 2 of the petition and _____ [allege any other interest, e.g., is entitled to the benefit of the sanctions set out in Code of Civil Procedure Section 2023.020].

14. Petitioner has no plain, speedy, and adequate remedy in the ordinary course of law, other than the relief sought in this petition, because the order denying discovery is not appealable and mandate is an appropriate remedy to attack the improper denial of discovery. _____ [Allege further reasons, if any, why petitioner has no adequate legal remedy, e.g., If sanctions are not imposed on the real party in interest, petitioner will have to proceed to trial of the action described in Paragraph 2 of this petition without information that is in the exclusive knowledge of the real party in interest and essential to the proper prosecution of the action.]

15. [Question of first impression. See § 200.41[1], Paragraph 14.]

16. [Original proceeding in court of appeal. See § 200.41[1], Paragraph 15.]

WHEREFORE, petitioner prays:

1. That the court issue an alternative writ of mandate commanding respondent to _____ [describe duty to be performed] or to show cause before this court at a time specified by court order why it has not done so and why a peremptory writ should not issue;

2. That, on the return of the alterative writ and the hearing of this petition, this court issue its peremptory writ of mandate commanding respondent to _____ [describe duty to be performed];

3. For costs of this proceeding; and

4. For such other and further relief as the court deems just and proper.

[2] Use of Form

The petition set out in [1], above, is a general form for use in filing a petition for a writ of mandate in a superior court or a court of appeal. The examples used throughout the form illustrate one of the many factual situations in which mandate might be an appropriate remedy in a discovery proceeding. Counsel may adapt the form to meet the facts peculiar to his or her situation. However, because a petition may be denied summarily, care must be taken to make certain that no essential allegations are omitted.

For discussion regarding the initiation of original writ proceedings in the Supreme Court, as distinguished from the court of appeal, see § 200.41[2].

[3] Allegations

The petition alleges the following:

- The identity of respondent as an inferior tribunal (Paragraph 3) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1085].
- Identity of real party in interest (Paragraph 4) [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.490(b)(2)].
- The statutory authority for the discovery procedure sought by petitioner (Paragraph 5).
- Facts showing the type of discovery sought by petitioner (Paragraph 6).
- The refusal of the real party in interest to comply with the discovery request (Paragraph 7).
- Facts showing that petitioner obtained an order compelling discovery (Paragraph 8) and that real party in interest failed to comply with the order (Paragraph 9).
- Motion by petitioner under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2030.290(b), (c) to impose sanctions (Paragraph 10).

- Improper action by respondent constituting an abuse of discretion (Paragraph 11). Note that the petitioner does not need to allege specifically that the trial court committed an abuse of discretion if he or she alleges the facts that show such abuse [West Pico Furniture Co. v. Superior Court (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 407, 415, 15 Cal. Rptr. 119, 364 P.2d 295] .

- Petitioner's entitlement to the order for sanctions (Paragraph 12).

- Petitioner's beneficial interest (Paragraph 13) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1086].

- The lack of an adequate legal remedy (Paragraph 14) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1086].

- The reason or reasons why it is proper for the writ to issue from an appellate court, to be included if the petition is filed in the court of appeal (Paragraph 16).

For a discussion of the allegation of a question of first impression (Paragraph 15) see § 200.41[3].

For discussion of the requirements that a writ petition be accompanied by a supporting memorandum, see § 200.41[4].

For memoranda in support of writ petitions for review of discovery orders, see California Points and Authorities, Ch. 89A, Discovery: Review of Discovery Orders (Matthew Bender).

[5] Adequate Record

For discussion of the requirements that a writ petition filed in the court of appeal be accompanied by a record adequate to permit review, see § 200.41[5].

[6] Verification

A petition for a writ of mandate must be verified [Code Civ. Proc. § 1086]. This requirement may be met by affidavit or by declaration under penalty of perjury [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 446, 1109, 2015.5].

[7] Certificate of Interested Persons or Entities

For discussion of the requirement that a certificate of interested persons or entities be filed in the court of appeal, see § 200.41[6].

§ 205.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter discusses the pretrial disposition of an action by entry of a default and default judgment. The chapter focuses on when a default may be entered and the procedures for obtaining entry of a default and default judgment. The introduction discusses:

- An overview of procedures [see § 205.10 et seq.].
- Entry of default [see § 205.20 et seq.].
- Entry of default judgment [see § 205.40 et seq.].

This chapter includes the following forms:

- An illustration of the Judicial Council form of Request for Entry of Default [see § 205.90].
- A request to fix attorney's fees [see § 205.91].
- A declaration, application, and order required to take a default against a person in the military [see §§ 205.92 -205.94].

- Default judgments by the clerk [see § 205.95] and by the court [see §§ 205.97 -205.98].

- A notice to shorten the time to seek relief from default in actions involving real property [see § 205.100].

- A stipulation to set aside a default [see § 205.101].

§ 205.11 Default and Default Judgment Distinguished

A default proceeding is a device designed to enable the courts to clear their calendars of cases lacking adversarial quality [see Jones v. Interstate Recovery Service (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 925, 928, 206 Cal. Rptr. 924] . The two key procedural events in a default proceeding are the entry of default and the entry of the default judgment. These events may be distinguished as follows:

- Entry of default cuts off a defendant's right to answer or otherwise respond to the complaint. Once the default is entered, the defendant is "out of court" and cannot take further steps in the cause affecting plaintiff's right of action, until the default is set aside in a proper proceeding [Devlin v. Kearny Mesa AMC/Jeep/Renault, Inc. (1984) 155 Cal. App. 3d 381, 385-386, 202 Cal. Rptr. 204] . For discussion of the procedures for setting aside a default or default judgment, see Ch. 371, Motions After Trial , and Ch. 489, Relief From Judgments and Orders .

- Default judgment actually awards the plaintiff the relief sought in the plaintiff's complaint. It also conclusively establishes between the parties, so far as subsequent proceedings on a different cause of action are concerned, the truth of all material allegations in the complaint in the default action and every fact necessary to uphold the default judgment [see Collin v. American Empire Ins. Co. (1994) 21 Cal.

App. 4th 787, 805, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 391 ; Mitchell v. Jones (1959) 172 Cal. App. 2d 580, 586-587, 342 P.2d 503 and discussion in § 205.44].

§ 205.12 Availability of Default and Default Judgment

[1] Defendant Fails to Make Timely Response

A plaintiff may request the entry of default against a defendant who fails to do one of the following:

- File a response to a complaint within the time specified in the summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 585; see discussion in § 205.20].

- Answer within the proper time after a complaint is amended or the court rules on a demurrer or certain motions in the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 586; see discussion in § 205.20[2], et seq.].

If a defendant is technically in default, default will not be entered unless the plaintiff affirmatively takes action to obtain the entry of the defendant's default [see Code Civ. Proc. § 585]. This is accomplished by filing a formal request with the clerk of the court on the form prescribed by the Judicial Council for such applications, along with proper documentation [see § 205.25[1]]. If the case is an appropriate one for the entry of default, the clerk must enter default, thereby cutting off the defendant's right to appear [see discussion in § 205.27]. For an illustration of the form of request for entry of default, see § 205.90.

[2] Entry of Default Judgment by Clerk and Court Distinguished

At the time of entry of default, the court clerk may also enter a default judgment if the following requirements are met [Code Civ. Proc. § 585(a); see discussion in § 205.45]:

- The defendant was not served by publication.
- The action arises on contract or judgment.
- The action only seeks recovery of a fixed or determinable amount of money or damages.

In all other cases, the plaintiff must obtain a court judgment of default [see Code Civ. Proc. § 585(b), (c)]. A plaintiff seeking a court judgment of default must present sufficient evidence to a court to support his or her claim for relief [see Code Civ. Proc. § 585(b)-(d)]. This process is often referred to as "prove-up" [see, e.g., Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rules 9.11(b), 9.18].

[3] Application to Cross Complaint

Default may be taken on a cross complaint filed by a defendant against another defendant or the plaintiff as well as on a complaint [see Code Civ. Proc. § 585(e)]. As used in the default statutes "complaint" includes a cross complaint, "defendant" include a cross defendant, and "plaintiff" includes a cross complainant [Code Civ. Proc. § 587.5].

[4] Default Limited to "Actions"

Code Civ. Proc. §§ 585-587.5 apply specifically to "actions." They do not apply to special proceedings unless they are expressly made applicable by the statutes governing a particular special proceeding [see In re Christopher A. (1991) 226 Cal. App. 3d 1154, 1162, 277 Cal. Rptr. 302 (default statutes inapplicable to proceeding for freedom from parental control and custody under former Civ. Code § 232 et seq.; now see Fam. Code § 7800 et seq.)].

Civil actions are generally those actions governed by Part Two of the Code of Civil Procedure (Code Civ. Proc. § 307 et seq.). Special proceedings are generally those governed by Part Three of the Code of Civil Procedure (Code Civ. Proc. § 1063 et seq.), although there are other scattered statutes providing for special proceedings [see, e.g., Pub. Res. Code § 3314 (special proceeding to enjoin waste of gas)].

[5] Imposition of Default as Sanction

[a] For Delay in "Fast Track" Program

Local rules adopted pursuant to the Trial Court Delay Reduction Act (Gov. Code § 68600 et seq.) provide strict guidelines for pretrial procedures. A number of courts authorize default as a potential sanction for noncompliance with their trial court delay reduction rules [see, e.g., Orange Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 454; Sacramento Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 11.12].

For discussion and forms relating to sanctions under local court rules, see Ch. 510, Sanctions .

[b] For Misuse of Discovery Provisions

Under certain circumstances, a trial court may order that a default judgment be rendered as a "terminating sanction," for a party's misuse of the discovery process [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2023.030]. For further discussion of this sanction, see Ch. 190, Depositions and Discovery.

§ 205.20 Grounds for Entry of Default

[1] No Answer or Response to Complaint

When the defendant has been served other than by publication, the clerk, on plaintiff's application, must enter the default of the defendant or defendants so served if, within the time specified in the summons, none of the following has been filed [Code Civ. Proc. § 585(a), (b)]:

- Answer.
- Demurrer.
- Notice of motion to strike (of the type described, below).
- Notice of motion to transfer under Code Civ. Proc. § 396b.
- Notice of motion to dismiss pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 583.210 for failure to timely serve the summons.

- Notice of motion to quash service or to stay or dismiss pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10.
- Notice of filing petition for writ of mandate pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10.

The time permitted for a responsive pleading generally is 30 days [Code Civ. Proc. § 412.20(a)(3)], although specific statutes may dictate a shorter time period for the filing of a response [see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. § 1167 (five-day limitation for response in forcible and unlawful entry and detainer actions)].

A notice of motion to strike in this context is a notice of motion to strike the whole or any part of a pleading filed within the time that the moving party is required otherwise to plead to that pleading. The notice of motion must specify a hearing date set in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b) (general requirements for notice of motions; see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders) The filing of the notice of motion does not extend the time within which to demur [Code Civ. Proc. § 585(f)].

[2] No Answer or Response to Amended Complaint

On proper application, the clerk must enter the defendant's default if the defendant, within 30 days after service of the amended complaint or within the time allowed by the court, fails to file any of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 586(a)(1); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 471.5(a), 585]:

- Answer.
- Demurrer.
- Notice of motion to strike under Code Civ. Proc. § 585(f) (see § 205.20[1]).

When, however, an amendment relates merely to formal or immaterial matters and does not change the cause of action, the defendant does not have to answer. A default entered under those circumstances should be set aside [Gray v. Hall (1928) 203 Cal. 306, 310-311, 265 P. 246 ; Carrasco v. Craft (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 796, 808-811, 210 Cal. Rptr. 599] .

ILLUSTRATION:

Amendment Relating to Immaterial Matter. Plaintiff files a complaint alleging eight causes of action against several defendants. Two of the defendants file an answer to the complaint specifically denying relevant portions of the complaint and setting forth seven separate affirmative defenses. Plaintiff later files a motion to amend the complaint, which is granted. The complaint, as amended, does not change the causes of action alleged against the two defendants, but changes the paragraphing in which the causes of action are alleged. Defendants fail to file an answer to the amended complaint and default is entered. Has the court committed error by entering the default? Yes. While the specific denials and admissions made in the answer filed by defendants could not be applied directly to the amended complaint insofar as the amended complaint had changed the paragraphs and the way that it was written, the answer did set forth a sufficient defense to the complaint as amended. Therefore, it was error to enter the default and default judgment on the basis that the defendants failed to file an answer to the amended complaint [Carrasco v. Craft (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 796, 808-811, 210 Cal. Rptr. 599 (setting aside default)].

[3] No Answer After Overruling of Demurrer or Denial of Motion to Strike

On proper application, the clerk must enter the defendant's default if the defendant fails to answer a complaint within the time allowed by the court after a demurrer is overruled and/or a motion to strike pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 585(f) is denied [Code Civ. Proc. § 586(a)(2); see Code Civ. Proc. § 585].

[4] No Answer After Portion of Complaint Stricken

On proper application, the clerk must enter the defendant's default if the defendant fails to answer, within the time allowed by the court, the unstricken portion of a complaint after a motion to strike as defined in Code Civ. Proc. § 585(f) is granted, if no demurrer has been sustained or is then pending [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 585, 586(a)(3)].

[5] No Response After Motion to Quash or Stay Denied

On proper application, the clerk must enter the defendant's default if the defendant fails to plead to the complaint within 15 days after service of written notice of entry of an order denying defendant's motion to quash service or to stay or dismiss the action. For good cause shown, however, the trial court may extend the time to plead for an additional period not exceeding 20 days [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 418.10(b), 585, 586(a)(4)].

If a defendant seeks a writ of mandate to require the trial court to quash service or to stay or dismiss the action, the defendant's default may be taken if he or she fails to file a responsive pleading within 10 days after service of written notice of denial of the writ. For good cause shown, however, the trial court may extend the time to plead for an additional period not exceeding 20 days [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 418.10(c), 585, 586(a)(4)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Notice of Ruling to Defendant. To control the commencement of the period in which the defendant must file a responsive pleading, plaintiff's counsel may wish to provide a Notice of Ruling to the defendant.

PRACTICE TIP: Note Effect of Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b). Be mindful of whether or not extensions of time for service by mail or FAX [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b)] apply to the time within which defendant must respond.

[6] No Amendment After Demurrer to Answer Sustained

On proper application, the clerk must enter the defendant's default if the defendant fails to amend an answer within the time permitted by the court after a demurrer to the answer is sustained [Code Civ. Proc. § 586(a)(5); see Code Civ. Proc. § 585].

[7] No Response After Action on Motion to Transfer

[a] Motion Denied

On proper application, the clerk must enter the defendant's default if a motion to transfer under Code Civ. Proc. § 396b is denied and the defendant fails to respond to the complaint within the time allowed by the court or within the time provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 586(a)(6)(C) (discussed under § 205.20[7][c]) [Code Civ. Proc. § 586(a)(6)(A); see Code Civ. Proc. § 585].

[b] Motion Granted

On proper application, the clerk must enter the defendant's default if a motion to transfer under Code Civ. Proc. § 396b is granted and the defendant fails to respond to the complaint within 30 days of the mailing of the notice of the filing and case number by the clerk of the court to which the action or proceeding is transferred or within the time provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 586(a)(6)(C) (discussed in § 205.70[7][c]) [Code Civ. Proc. § 586(a)(6)(B); see Code Civ. Proc. § 585].

[c] Time to Respond If Order Is Appealed, Stayed, or Subject of Writ

Code Civ. Proc. § 586(a)(6)(C) provides that if the order granting or denying the motion to transfer under Code Civ. Proc. § 396a or 396b is appealed under Code Civ. Proc. § 904.2 and a stay is granted or if a writ of mandate is sought following the grant or denial of the motion to transfer, the court, on application or on its own motion, must allow the defendant a reasonable time to answer the complaint after the appeal or mandate proceeding becomes final or on earlier termination of the stay. Notice of the order allowing defendant further time to answer the complaint must be promptly served by the party who obtained the order or by the clerk if the order is made on the court's own motion [Code Civ. Proc. § 586(a)(6)(C)].

[8] No Amendment After Answer Stricken With Leave to Amend

On proper application, the clerk must enter the defendant's default when a defendant fails to amend the answer within the time allowed by the court after a motion to strike all or part of the answer is granted with leave to amend [Code Civ. Proc. § 586(a)(7); see Code Civ. Proc. § 585(f)].

[9] Answer Stricken Without Leave to Amend

On proper application, the clerk must enter the defendant's default when a motion to strike the entire answer, as defined in Code Civ. Proc. § 585(f) (see § 205.20[2]), is granted without leave to amend [Code Civ. Proc. § 586(a)(7); see Code Civ. Proc. § 585].

[10] No Response After Code Civ. Proc. § 583.250 Motion to Dismiss

On proper application, the clerk must enter the defendant's default if the defendant fails to respond within the time allowed by the court after a motion to dismiss pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 583.250 (failure to timely serve summons) is denied [Code Civ. Proc. § 586(a)(8); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10 (motion to dismiss as response to action)].

§ 205.21 Belated Responsive Pleading Precludes Entry of Default

If the defendant belatedly files a pleading at a time when his or her default has not yet been taken, the plaintiff is considered to have granted, in effect, additional time to the defendant to plead; the defendant is not strictly in default in such case [Goddard v. Pollock (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 137, 141, 112 Cal. Rptr. 215] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Striking Defendant's Untimely Pleading. Should the defendant belatedly file a pleading at a time when his or her default has not yet been taken, the plaintiff should promptly move to strike the defendant's untimely pleading. If the court in its discretion grants the motion, the plaintiff should then request entry of the defendant's default [Goddard v. Pollock (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 137, 141, 112 Cal. Rptr. 215] . § 205.22 Responsive Pleading by Corporation Precludes Entry of Default Against Fictitious Business Name It Uses

Use of a fictitious business name does not create a legal entity separate from its owner. There is no legal distinction between a corporation and its fictitious business name. Thus, when a corporation is sued in its corporate name as well as under a fictitious business name that it uses, and the corporation appears in its corporate name, entry of default against the fictitious business name thereafter is improper [Pinkerton's, Inc. v. Superior Court (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 1342, 1344, 1347-1349, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 356 (trial court wrong when it found that action could proceed against a fictitious business name after the legal entity had been dismissed)].

§ 205.23 Notice of Damages Required Before Taking Default

[1] Due Process Limitation

It is a fundamental concept of due process that a judgment cannot be entered against a defendant unless he or she has been given proper notice and an opportunity to defend. California satisfies these requirements in default cases through Code Civ. Proc. § 580, the primary purpose of which is to guarantee defaulting parties adequate notice of the maximum judgment that may be assessed against them [Sole Energy Company v. Hodges (2005) 128 Cal. App. 4th 199, 208 , 26 Cal. Rtpr. 3d 823; In re Marriage of Lippel (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 1160, 1166, 276 Cal. Rptr. 290, 801 P.2d 1041]. Section 580 limits the relief granted to the plaintiff, if there is no answer, to no more than that which the plaintiff demanded in the complaint, in the statement of damages required by Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11, or in the statement provided for in Code Civ. Proc. § 425.115. It constitutes a statutory expression of the mandates of due process, which require formal notice of potential liability [see Parish v. Peters (1991) 1 Cal. App. 4th 202, 207, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 836 ; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 585(a)-(c) (limiting default judgment to amount in complaint or Section 425.11 or 425.115 statement)].

These principles apply whether the default occurs before or after an answer is filed [see Greenup v. Rodman (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 822, 826-829, 231 Cal. Rptr. 220, 726 P.2d 1295 (answer stricken for refusal to comply with discovery orders, and matter continued as default proceeding); see also Morton Regent Enterprises, Inc. v. Leadtec California, Inc. (1977) 74 Cal. App. 3d 842, 847-848, 141 Cal. Rptr. 706 (involving motion by plaintiff's and cross defendant's surety to intervene after judgment to vacate judgment when plaintiff failed to appear at trial and judgment was entered against it on complaint and cross complaint)].

Code Civ. Proc. § 580 applies to limited civil cases to limit default judgments to the amount specified in the complaint [see Janssen v. Luu (1997) 57 Cal. App. 4th 272, 278, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 838 (applying law with respect to municipal court jurisdiction)]. Both Section 580 and due process require that defendants be told exactly what their exposure is [see Karton v. Dougherty (2009) 171 Cal. App. 4th 133, 151, 89 Cal. Rptr. 3d 506 (default judgment void where it is mathematically impossible for the unpaid fees and costs awarded to plaintiff, plus interest awarded thereon, to be within the amount demanded in the complaint); Janssen v. Luu (1997) 57 Cal. App. 4th 272, 277-278, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 838 (directing judgment to be modified to reduce total award from $24,825.04 to $3,000 when complaint had sought damages "in excess of $3,000.00 and according to proof"); Pino v. Campo (1993) 15 Cal. App. 4th Supp. 1,3-6 , 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 483 (reversing judgment for $20,867.84 and directing default to be set aside)]. It is not enough that the defendant may know the court's jurisdictional limits. If no specific amount of damages is demanded, there is no adequate notice to the defendant, and a default judgment entered under those conditions is void [Falahati v. Kondo (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 823, 830, 26 Cal. Rptr. 3d 104 ; Janssen v. Luu (1997) 57 Cal. App. 4th 272, 278-279, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 838 (rejecting the Los Angeles Superior Court appellate department view expressed in Brown v. McAdoo (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 20 , 242 Cal. Rptr. 473 , that a complaint is sufficient if it seeks general damages according to proof, expressly remitting all amounts in excess of the court's jurisdictional maximum, but without specifying in the complaint what that maximum is, and similar view expressed by the Los Angeles Superior Court appellate department in Wisdom v. Ramirez (1985) 177 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 1 , 222 Cal. Rptr. 923)]. If no amount were stated in a complaint in a limited civil case, the resulting judgment would be void in its entirety [Janssen v. Luu (1997) 57 Cal. App. 4th 272, 279, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 838 (under circumstances of case, however, municipal court judgment was void only to extent it exceeded amount claimed in complaint)].

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 580, actual notice of the damages sought is not sufficient. Due process requires formal notice; and constructive notice of potential liability does not satisfy section 580 [Stein v. York (2010) 181 Cal. App. 4th 320, 325, 105 Cal. Rptr. 3d 1 (Defendant's active participation in discovery and other pretrial procedures was not a waiver of his right to object to the amount of damages awarded. Nor was defendant on notice of the damages because he attended the default hearing. Although defendant was physically present at the hearing, he was in default, and therefore "out of court." He did not participate in his capacity as a defendant but only as a witness who had been subpoenaed by plaintiff to testify. Because the complaint did not specify the amount of damages sought, it could not support a default judgment in any amount. Thus, the judgment was void and had to be vacated. On remand, plaintiff could move to amend the complaint to state the full amount of damages sought. If plaintiff was permitted to do so, defendant would have the opportunity to attack the amended pleading, answer it, or default once more, if he so chose.)].

The rule requiring that defaulting parties receive adequate notice applies to cases in which an amount claimed is not usually, by the nature of the action, specified in the complaint. For example, in an action for dissolution of partnerships and an accounting in which the amount due is unliquidated and unascertained, it has been held that a default judgment awarding a sum of money of which no prior notice as to the amount was given to the defendant was in excess of the trial court's jurisdiction [Ely v. Gray (1990) 224 Cal. App. 3d 1257, 1260-1261, 274 Cal. Rptr. 536 (Third District)] . By analogizing this case to one for personal injury or wrongful death in which the amount claimed cannot be stated in the complaint but must be stated in a statement of damages served on the defendant before his or her her default can be entered (see discussion under § 205.23[2][c][i], below), Ely v. Gray held that the plaintiff who seeks an accounting has the solution of a postcomplaint and predefault notice to the defendant of the amount plaintiff will seek to prove due if the defendant defaults and that, as with the statement of damages required by Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11, the notice must be given with adequate time for the defendant to respond before a default is entered [Ely v. Gray (1990) 224 Cal. App. 3d 1257, 1263-1264, 274 Cal. Rptr. 536 (affirming portion of judgment dissolving partnerships and reversing that portion awarding a specified sum on the accounting)].

Another case, however, has held that there is no need to serve a statement of damages on the defaulting defendant in an action for an accounting, valuation and payment of plaintiff's interest in a partnership from which plaintiff withdrew when the defandant partnership has a partnership agreement setting out a specific method for calculating a withdrawing partner's interest and the financial information from which it can precisely calculate the amount for which it could be liable if it defaulted [Cassel v. Sullivan, Roche & Johnson (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 1157, 1163-1164, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 899 (concluding that under the circumstance before it, Ely v. Gray was not analytically sound in light of later cases)]. The Cassel court held that in this situation, the complaint need only specify the type of relief requested, and not the specific dollar amount sought [Cassel v. Sullivan, Roche & Johnson (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 1157, 1162-1164, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 899 (relying on In re Marriage of Andresen (1994) 28 Cal. App. 4th 873, 877, 879, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 147 , which held that when wife had adequately given notice that she was requesting the parties' property rights to be determined, there was no need to include the amount of relief requested, as contrasted with the type of relief requested)].

[b] Punitive Damages Claim

[i] No Amount to Be Alleged

No claim for punitive damages may specify the amount or amounts of punitive damages sought [Civ. Code § 3295(e)]. Conversely, punitive damages may not be recovered from a defaulting defendant on the basis of a general allegation in the complaint of entitlement to such damages. Due process requires that notice be given in some form of the amount of punitive damages sought [Wiley v. Rhodes (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 1470, 1472-1474, 273 Cal. Rptr. 279] .

If a complaint, in violation of Civ. Code § 3295(e), specifies the amount of punitive damages sought, the trial court may however award punitive damages because the statement of the amount meets the notice requirement of Code Civ. Proc. § 580 [Cummings Medical Corp. v. Occupational Medical Corp. (1992) 10 Cal. App. 4th 1291, 1296-1298, 13 Cal. Rptr. 2d 585 (cross complaint; cross defendant admitted actual notice of amount sought)].

[ii] Statement Preserving Right to Punitive Damages

A plaintiff may preserve the right to seek punitive damages pursuant to Civ. Code § 3294 on a default judgment by serving a statutory statement on the defendant [see Code Civ. Proc. § 425.115(b)]. The plaintiff must serve the statement before a default may be taken if the motion for default judgment includes a request for punitive damages [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.115(f)]. The plaintiff may serve the statement pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 425.115, and may serve it as part of the statement of damages required by Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11, discussed under § 205.23[2][c][i] [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 425.11(e), 425.115(e); for forms of both types of statements, see Ch. 177, Damages].

If the defendant appears in the action, the plaintiff will not be limited to the amount set forth in the statement [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.115(c)].

The procedures provided for in Code Civ. Proc. § 425.115 also apply to cross complaints [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.115(a)].

[iii] Manner of Service of Statement Preserving Right to Punitive Damages

If the party against whom default is to be taken has not appeared in the action, the statement preserving the right to punitive damages must be in the same manner as a summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.115(g)(1); see Code Civ. Proc. §

415.10 et seq. (service of summons)].

If the party against whom default is to be taken has appeared in the action, the statement preserving the right to punitive damages must be served on the party's attorney, or on the party if he or she has appeared without an attorney, either in the same manner as a summons or in the manner provided for service of other papers [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.115(g)(2); see Code Civ. Proc. § 415.10 et seq. (service of summons); Code Civ. Proc. § 1010 et seq. (service of papers)].

For discussion of these manners of service, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers .

[c] Personal Injury or Wrongful Death Actions

[i] Service of Statement of Damages

Normally, a complaint sets forth the relief to which the plaintiff claims to be entitled, and, if money or damages is sought, the amount claimed [see Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(a)(2)]. In actions to recover actual or punitive damages for personal injury or wrongful death, however, the amount claimed must not be stated in the complaint, but the complaint must comply with Code Civ. Proc. § 422.30 (caption requirements), and in limited civil cases alleging these causes of action the complaint must comply with Gov. Code § 70613(b) (first page of complaint to state whether amount demanded exceeds or does not exceed $10,000) [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)].

Before a default can be taken in cases in which the amount of damages is not stated in the complaint, the plaintiff must give the defendant notice of the amount of special and general damages sought to be recovered [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11; see Hamm v. Elkin (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 1343, 1346, 242 Cal. Rptr. 545] . This provision is referred to as the "statement of damages" requirement [see, e.g., Plotitsa v. Superior Court (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 755, 759, 189 Cal. Rptr. 769] , which replaces the specification of damages generally required to be made in the complaint [Damele v. Mack Trucks, Inc. (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 29, 38, 267 Cal. Rptr. 197] .

The Section 425.11 statement of damages may be combined with the statement provided for in Code Civ. Proc. § 425.115, discussed under § 205.23[2][b][ii] [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 425.11(e), 425.115(e)].

Any default or subsequent default judgment entered without the statement of damages having been given is in excess of the court's jurisdiction [see Petty v. Manpower, Inc. (1979) 94 Cal. App. 3d 794, 797-798, 156 Cal. Rptr. 622 ; see also Jones v. Interstate Recovery Service (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 925, 929-930, 206 Cal. Rptr. 924] and void [Barragan v. Banco BCH (1986) 188 Cal. App. 3d 283, 303, 232 Cal. Rptr. 758 ; see also Stevenson v. Turner (1979) 94 Cal. App. 3d 315, 318-320, 156 Cal. Rptr. 499] .

ILLUSTRATION:

Default May Be Set Aside If Statement Not Served. In a personal injury action, the defendant has neither retained counsel, filed an answer, nor otherwise appeared. Plaintiff obtains an entry of default without serving a statement of damages. May defendant have the default set aside? Yes. A default entered against a nonappearing defendant is void if a statement of damages has not been served on the defendant [see Plotitsa v. Superior Court (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 755, 758-761, 189 Cal. Rptr. 769] .

[ii] Required When Answer Stricken

Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11 also applies when a defendant's answer is stricken and default entered as a discovery sanction [Morgan v. Southern Cal. Rapid Transit Dist. (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 976, 984-986, 237 Cal. Rptr. 756 (disapproved on another ground in Schwab v. Rondel Homes, Inc. (1991) 53 Cal. 3d 428, 434, 280 Cal. Rptr. 83, 808 P.2d 226 ; see also discussion under § 205.23[1])].

[iii] Requirements When Multiple Causes of Action Alleged

If the complaint alleges multiple causes of action, some based on personal injury and the others not, the statement must be given as to all causes of action if the two kinds of claims are closely tied [see Jones v. Interstate Recovery Service (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 925, 929-930, 206 Cal. Rptr. 924] .

Otherwise, the statement may be limited to the damages claimed for personal injury [see Barragan v. Banco BCH (1986) 188 Cal. App. 3d 283, 303-304, 232 Cal. Rptr. 758] . The damages claimed on the nonpersonal injury claims should normally be set forth in the complaint [see Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(a)(2)].

[iv] Manner of Service

If the party against whom default is to be taken has not appeared in the action, the statement of damages must be served in the same manner as a summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11(d)(1)].

If the party against whom default is to be taken has appeared in the action [see § 205.12[5][a] et seq.], the statement of damages must be served either on the party's attorney or, if the party appears without an attorney, on the party. Service must be either in the manner provided for the service of summons or in the manner provided for Code Civ. Proc. § 1010 et seq. [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11(d)(2)]. For discussion these manners of service, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers .

ILLUSTRATION:

Service of Statement on Appearing Party's Attorney. In a superior court personal injury action in which the defendant has made a general appearance, the plaintiff mails a notice of damages to the defendant's attorney. No answer is timely filed, and default is entered. May the defendant have the default set aside on the ground that service of the notice of damages on the attorney was improper? No. When a defendant is represented by counsel and has appeared in an action, service of the statement of damages on the defendant's attorney is permissible [Beeman v. Burling (1990) 216 Cal. App. 3d 1586, 1593-1594, 265 Cal. Rptr. 719] .

[v] When Original Service Was by Publication

Under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 425.11 and 585(c), as amended by Stats. 1993, ch. 456, the defendant is entitled to be served with a statement of damages. Presumably, if service was originally by publication, the defendant has not appeared, and the defendant still cannot be served otherwise, the statement would be served by publication [see Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11(d)(1); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 415.50 (service by publication)]. The 1993 amendments resolved a conflict in the courts of appeal [compare Candelaria v. Avitia (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 1436, 1441, 269 Cal. Rptr. 32 (Sixth Appellate Dist., relying on Code Civ. Proc. § 585(c) and excusing service of statement of damages as futile) with Parish v. Peters (1991) 1 Cal. App. 4th 202, 210-211, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 836 (Third Appellate Dist., service by publication constitutionally mandated)].

Once a party obtains a court order allowing service of the summons and complaint by publication, a separate order is not necessary to also simultaneously serve the statement of damages by publication [Anastos v. Lee (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 1314, 1318, 13 Cal. Rptr. 3d 716] .

[vi] Time for Service

The phrase "before a default may be taken" has been construed to require that the notice be given before the default is entered by the clerk [Hamm v. Elkin (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 1343, 1345-1346, 242 Cal. Rptr. 545] .

Prudent counsel should allow 30 days to elapse after service of the statement of damages before taking the defendant's default [but see Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(a)(13), (b) (21-day notice for proceedings that require notice but do not specify time)]. Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11 prior to its amendment by 1993 Stats., Ch. 456, contained no language stating or suggesting the amount of notice that a plaintiff must give a defendant concerning the amount of damages sought before seeking default [Connelly v. Castillo (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 1583, 1588, 236 Cal. Rptr. 112] . The Supreme Court, construing Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11 held that a defendant is entitled to actual notice of the liability to which he or she may be subjected, a reasonable period of time before default may be entered [Schwab v. Rondel Homes, Inc. (1991) 53 Cal. 3d 428, 435, 280 Cal. Rptr. 83, 808 P.2d 226] .

Prior to the Schwab decision, some courts, analogizing the situation to the time permitted to answer an amended complaint increasing the amount of damages sought, had held that the plaintiff must defer the entry of default until 30 days from the date the statement of damages was served [Twine v. Compton Supermarket (1986) 179 Cal. App. 3d 514, 517, 224 Cal. Rptr. 562 ; Plotitsa v. Superior Court (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 755, 761, 189 Cal. Rptr. 769] . At least one court had rejected the 30-day rule, and held that a reasonable time was adequate [Connelly v. Castillo (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 1583, 1589-1590, 236 Cal. Rptr. 112 (27 days)]. When Schwab held that a reasonable period of time was required, it cited the cases that required 30 days [see Schwab v. Rondel Homes, Inc. (1991) 53 Cal. 3d 428, 434-435, 280 Cal. Rptr. 83, 808 P.2d 226] . The amendment of Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11 by 1993 Stats., Ch. 456, to specify the manner of service, seems to strengthen the service of summons analogy [see § 205.23[2][c][iv]].

[vii] Failure to Serve

Liability imposed on a defaulting defendant without notice of the amount of damages violates both Code Civ. Proc. §§ 425.11 and 580 [Schwab v. Rondel Homes, Inc. (1991) 53 Cal. 3d 428, 433, 280 Cal. Rptr. 83, 808 P.2d 226 ; see discussion under § 205.23[2][c][i]].

A specific notice of damages is required. Statements the plaintiff may make relating to damages in settlement demands or in the at-issue memorandum do not satisfy the Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11 notice requirement [Debbie S. v. Ray (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 193, 198-199, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 814 (trial court properly vacated judgment in favor of plaintiff for failure to file statement at least 60 days before trial)]. Service of the statement on some other interested party, such as defendant's insurance carrier, is insufficient [Lopez v. Fancelli (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 1305, 1309, 1312, 271 Cal. Rptr. 87] .

A default and default judgment entered in a superior court personal injury or wrongful death action are "void on the face of the record" and may be challenged at any time if it appears from papers filed with the court or it is admitted that no statement of damages was personally served on the defendant [see Lopez v. Fancelli (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 1305, 1310-1311, 271 Cal. Rptr. 87 (plaintiff admittedly did not serve statement on defendants); Twine v. Compton Supermarket (1986) 179 Cal. App. 3d 514, 516 n.1, 517-518, 224 Cal. Rptr. 562 (documents plaintiffs filed with court showed statement was served by mail); Plotitsa v. Superior Court (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 755, 760, 189 Cal. Rptr. 769 (request to enter default stated that statement was served by mail)].

[3] Filing

Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11, on its face, does not require that the statement of damages or proof of its service be filed. However, the better (if not required) practice may be to file a proof of service [see, e.g., Connelly v. Castillo (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 1583, 1586, 236 Cal. Rptr. 112 (plaintiff personally served defendant with a statement of special and general damages, but "curiously ... did not file proof of this service in superior court")]. Although the proof of service would not appear in the judgment roll [see Code Civ. Proc. § 670], the fact of service would appear from the court's records and file. On the other hand, the same court held that the fact, and not the proof, of service renders the subsequent default judgment valid and that failure to file proof of service of the statement of damages constitutes a mere irregularity that does not void the judgment [Connelly v. Castillo (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 1583, 1589, 236 Cal. Rptr. 112] .

Filing the statement of damages, however, may defeat the purpose of Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b) to protect the defendants from adverse publicity resulting from inflated demands [Schwab v. Rondel Homes, Inc. (1991) 53 Cal. 3d 428, 431, 280 Cal. Rptr. 83, 808 P.2d 226 ; Parish v. Peters (1991) 1 Cal. App. 4th 202, 208, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 836] , because the statement would be open to public inspection. Nevertheless, the better practice may be to file both the statement of damages and the proof of its service [see Parish v. Peters (1991) 1 Cal. App. 4th 202, 211, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 836 (stating that absent defendants bring about the publication of the statement of damages by their own actions)].

Language in some court opinions seems to require that the statement of damages be filed whether or not an answer to the complaint is filed [see, e.g., Damele v. Mack Trucks, Inc. (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 29, 42, 267 Cal. Rptr. 197 (statute requires that, after answer is filed, plaintiff must "file a statement of damages" at least 60 days before date set for trial); Connelly v. Castillo (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 1583, 1586, 236 Cal. Rptr. 112 (plaintiff "filed the damages statement with the trial court together with proof of service"); Petty v. Manpower, Inc. (1979) 94 Cal. App. 3d 794, 799, 156 Cal. Rptr. 622 ("[t]he record discloses that no notice [sic, statement] of damages sought was ever filed or served below")].

§ 205.24 Plaintiff Required to Take Default Promptly

Local court rules may require the plaintiff to move promptly to take a defendant's default. For example, San Diego County requires that if a defendant does not make a general appearance within the time provided by statute, the plaintiff must request entry of default forthwith [San Diego Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Div. II, Rule 2.1.7]. San Diego County local rules also require the plaintiff to obtain the default judgment within 45 days of taking the default if no active defendants remain in the case, or at the time of trial if other defendants are present [San Diego Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Div. II, Appendix A].

Plaintiff also should be aware of time requirements for obtaining a default judgment after entry of default. In collection cases, as defined in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.740(a), which are actions for recovery of not more than $25,000, exclusive of interest and attorney fees, arising from a credit transaction for property, services, or money, if proofs of service of the complaint are filed or service by publication is made and defendants do not file responsive pleadings, the plaintiff must obtain a default judgment within 360 days after the filing of the complaint [Cal Rules of Ct., Rule 3.740(f)]. If the plaintiff has not obtained a default judgment by that time, the court must issue an order to show cause why reasonable monetary sanctions should not be imposed. The order to show cause must be vacated if the plaintiff obtains a default judgment at least 10 court days before the order to show cause hearing [Cal Rules of Ct., Rule 3.740(f)].

§ 205.25 Preparing Request for Entry of Default

[1] Mandatory Judicial Council Form

A plaintiff or cross complainant seeking entry of a default, default judgment, or both, must use the Judicial Council form entitled Request for Entry of Default [see Gov. Code 68511; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1800, 1.30; Judicial Council Form CIV-100]. The form includes:

- A declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 585.5 (discussed under § 205.25[2]).
- A declaration of mailing (discussed under § 205.25[3]).
- A memorandum of costs (discussed under § 205.25[4]).
- A declaration of nonmilitary status (discussed under § 205.25[5][a] et seq.

For a checklist of steps for requesting entry of default and default judgment, see the Procedural Checklist. For an illustration of the Judicial Council form, see § 205.90.

[2] Declaration of Proper Venue

Code Civ. Proc. § 585.5 requires a declaration of venue when the requesting party is seeking a clerk's judgment for damages under Code Civ. Proc. § 585(a) (discussed in § 205.45). The declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 585.5 is intended to insure proper venue of actions under the Unruh Retail Installment Sales Act (Civ. Code § 1801 et seq.), the Rees-Levering Motor Vehicle Sales and Finance Act (Civ. Code § 2981 et seq.), or Code Civ. Proc. § 395(b) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 585.5(a)].

The statute requires that every application to enter default under Code Civ. Proc. § 585.5(a) include or be accompanied by this declaration. Thus, a clerk is justified in refusing to enter the default as requested when a plaintiff fails to complete the declaration [Code Civ. Proc. § 585(a)]. Entry of a default or default judgment without full compliance with the venue provisions of Civ. Code § 1812.10 or Civ. Code § 2984.4 or Code Civ. Proc. § 395(b) subjects the default to attack by defendant on noticed motion [Code Civ. Proc. § 585.5(b)-(d); see Ch. 371, Motions After Trial , and Ch. 489, Relief From Judgments and Orders]. The Judicial Council form of Request for Entry of Default includes this declaration [see § 205.90].

[3] Declaration of Mailing

The requesting party or his or her attorney must complete a declaration of mailing when requesting a default under Code Civ. Proc. § 585(a), (b), or (c), or Code Civ. Proc. § 586; otherwise the default cannot be entered nor the request for judgment heard [Code Civ. Proc. § 587]. The declaration must show either of the following [see Code Civ. Proc. § 587]:

- The requesting party mailed a copy of the request to the defendant's attorney of record, or, if none, to the defendant at his or her last known address, specifying the date of mailing.

- The requesting party did not mail a copy of the request because the defendant had no attorney of record and address known to the requesting party or his or her attorney.

To satisfy the minimum requirement of Code Civ. Proc. § 587 for notifying defendant of plaintiff's application for default, plaintiff must check all available sources, such as city and county directories, utility companies, friends, acquaintances or relatives of defendant, or licensing offices to ascertain the defendant's mailing address [Slusher v. Durrer (1977) 69 Cal. App. 3d 747, 756, 138 Cal. Rptr. 265] . The fact that the defendant or defendant's attorney did not receive the notice does not, however, invalidate the default or constitute a ground for setting aside a judgment based on the default [Code Civ. Proc. § 587].

Although Code Civ. Proc. § 587 specifically states that no default will be entered without the filing of an affidavit of mailing, the failure to comply with the requirement neither deprives the court of jurisdiction to render judgment nor requires the judgment to be set aside if defendant received actual notice of the request to enter default [see In re Marriage of Harris (1977) 74 Cal. App. 3d 98, 102, 141 Cal. Rptr. 333] .

The Judicial Council form of Request for Entry of Default includes this declaration [see § 205.90].

[4] Memorandum of Costs

The requesting party must provide a memorandum of costs when seeking a judgment by the clerk or court that includes an award of costs recoverable under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1032, 1033.5. A party seeking a default judgment who claims costs must request them on the Request for Entry of Default form (Application to Enter Default) (Judicial Council Form CIV-100) when applying for the judgment [Cal. Rules of Court, Rule 3.1700(a)(2); see § 205.90]. The memorandum must be certified by the oath of the party or his or her attorney or agent, or by the clerk of the attorney, stating that to the best of the declarant's knowledge and belief the items are correct, and that the items of cost have been necessarily incurred in the action or proceeding [Cal. Rules of Court, Rule supporting 3.1700(a)(1)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Special Requirements Under Local Rules. If a default judgment is to be entered by the court, the memorandum of costs may be incomplete since it would not include costs and disbursements incurred in preparation for the court hearing. However, some court clerks require that the memorandum be completed at the time the request for the entry of a default judgment by the court is filed with the clerk. If recoverable costs and disbursements have been incurred between the date of filing the official form and applying to the court for judgment, local court practice should be determined as to the appropriate procedure by which these expenses are to be recovered. Ordinarily, a second memorandum itemizing total costs and disbursements is filed, although some courts permit the filing of a supplemental memorandum, itemizing costs and disbursements incurred between the filing of the Request for Entry of Default and the application for judgment.

[5] Declaration of Nonmilitary Status

[a] Defendant's Nonmilitary Status Known

The requesting party or his or her attorney must provide a declaration of nonmilitary status if he or she knows that the defendant is not in military service, or in the case of multiple defendants, that none of them is in military service [see 50 U.S.C. App. § 521(b); Mil. & Vet. Code § 402(a)]. The Judicial Council form of Request for Default includes this declaration; however, this form has not yet been revised to reflect the 2003 revisions to the Servicemembers Civil Relief Act, and a separate declaration addressing the federal requirements should be filed [see § 205.90].

The filing of this declaration, or one in lieu of it (discussed in § 205. 25[5][b], below), is required by the Servicemembers Relief Act before entry of a default judgment against a defendant [see 50 U.S.C. App. § 520]. The filing of this declaration is also required by Mil. & Vet. Code § 402(a). Under the state statute, service member means both [see Mil. & Vet. Code § 401(a)]:

- Officers and enlisted members of the National Guard called or ordered into active state service by the Governor or President.

- Reservists of the United States Military Reserve who have been called to full-time active duty.

Military service under that state statute means full-time active state service or full-time active federal service for a period in excess of seven days in any 14-day period; and any service member who has been called to active service or duty since September 11, 2001, to engage in homeland defense against terrorism, his or her days of service prior to June 21, 2002 are credited toward this seven-day period [Mil. & Vet. Code § 401(b)].

Section 201(c) [50 U.S.C. App. § 521(c)] of the Servicemembers Civil Relief Act [50 U.S.C. App. § 501 et seq.] provides that any person who makes or uses an affidavit required under the section, or a statement, declaration, verification, or certificate that is certified or declared to be true under penalty of perjury permitted under 50 U.S.C. App. § 521(b)(4), knowing it to be false, will be guilty of a misdemeanor punishable by imprisonment not to exceed one year or by fine not to exceed $1,000, or both. Under the state statute, any person who, for purposes under the section, makes or uses a declaration declared to be true under penalty of perjury, knowing it to be false, is guilty of a misdemeanor and is punishable by imprisonment not to exceed one year or by a fine not to exceed $1,000, or both [Mil. & Vet. Code § 402(b)].

WARNING:

The declaration of nonmilitary status on the official form fails to meet the requirements of federal law in two respects: (1) it does not set forth facts showing that the defendant is not in the military service; and (2) it is usually dated and filed at the time of requesting entry of default rather than at the time of the actual entry of the default judgment. The Judicial Council form has not yet been revised to reflect the 2003 revisions to the Servicemembers Civil Relief Act, and the better practice is to include a second declaration addressing these facts and the federal requirements. This second declaration will often contain more specific statements of facts showing that the defendant is not in military service than does the declaration on the Judicial Council form. Such facts might include statements of defendant's age, physical disability, residence, and occupation [see § 205.92].

A party's military status can have far reaching effects on an action, from continuances and staying actions to restrictions on collecting debts and relief from judgments and orders. For a listing of cross references to multiple discussion on the effect of military status, see § 205.92[4].

[b] Procedure When Defendant Is in Military or Military Status Unknown

If the plaintiff knows that a defaulting defendant is in military service, or if plaintiff is unable to determine whether or not a defendant is in military service, plaintiff must file a declaration so stating [50 U.S.C. App. § 521(b)(1); Mil. & Vet. Code § 402(a)]. For a form of declaration, see § 205.92.

In this situation, under the Servicemembers Civil Relief Act, no judgment may be entered if the defendant is in military service until after the court has appointed an attorney to represent the defendant and protect his or her interest. The court is to make such an appointment on application [50 U.S.C. App. § 521(b)(2)]. The same protections apply under the state statute, including that a bond may be required and an order made to protect the rights of the service member; however, no attorney appointed to protect a service member may have the power to waive any right of the person for whom he or she is appointed or bind him or her by his or her acts [50 U.S.C. App. § 521(b)(2); Mil. & Vet. Code § 402(c)].

Under the state statute, if the declaration is not filed showing that the defendant is not in the military service, no judgment may be entered without first securing an order of court directing that entry, and no order may be made if the defendant is in the military service until after the court appoints an attorney to represent the defendant and protect his or her interest, and the court may, on application, make that appointment [Mil. & Vet. Code § 402(a)]. Unless it appears that the defendant is not in the military service the court may require, as a condition before judgment is entered, that the plaintiff file a bond approved by the court conditioned to indemnify the defendant, if in the military service, against any loss or damage that he or she may suffer by reason of any judgment should the judgment be thereafter set aside in whole or in part [Mil. & Vet. Code § 402(a)]. The court may make such other and further order or enter that judgment as in its opinion may be necessary to protect the rights of the defendant [Mil. & Vet. Code § 402(a)].

For a form of ex parte application and an order directing entry of default, see §§ 205.93 and 205.94.

[c] Relief for Servicemember Defendant

Under the Servicemembers Civil Relief Act a judgment rendered against a person in military service during the period of service or within 60 days thereafter may be opened on the application of that person or his or her personal representative if it appears that military service prejudiced him or her in making a defense. The state statute only applies to judgments rendered during the period of service or within 30 days thereafter.

The application must be made within 90 days after the military service terminates, and it must be shown that there is a meritorious or legal defense to the action or part of it [50 U.S.C. App. § 521(g); Mil. & Vet. Code § 402(d)]. Thus, although a default judgment entered without appointment of an attorney for a defendant in military service may be set aside, it is not void, but only voidable [Allen v. Allen (1947) 30 Cal. 2d 433, 436, 182 P.2d 551 ; see Radlinski v. Superior Court (1960) 186 Cal. App. 2d 821, 822-823, 9 Cal. Rptr. 73] .

To establish the necessary prejudice under state law to open up a default judgment entered without appointment of an attorney, the defendant must show that by reason of military service, he or she could not have been present if he or she had desired to be present [Kromm v. Kromm (1948) 84 Cal. App. 2d 523, 530, 191 P.2d 115] . Generally, no presumption of prejudice arises if it is shown only that a false affidavit of nonmilitary service was filed, that no affidavit was filed at all, or that no attorney was appointed [see Wilterdink v. Wilterdink (1947) 81 Cal. App. 2d 526, 534, 184 P.2d 527] . Prejudice is presumed, however, if no attorney was appointed for a defendant who was stationed outside the United States [In re Marriage of Lopez (1981) 115 Cal. App. 3d 776, 783, 173 Cal. Rptr. 718] . However, appointment of attorney is not required prior to entry of default judgment when the defendant in military service has appeared by his or her own attorney, even though limited to special appearance [Reynolds v. Reynolds (1943) 21 Cal. 2d 580, 585-586, 134 P.2d 251] .

For further discussion of relief from default under the Servicemembers Civil Relief Act and the state statute, see Ch. 489, Relief From Judgments and Orders .

The declaration regarding nonmilitary or military status must be filed before the default judgment is entered [50 U.S.C. App. § 521(b)(1); Mil. & Vet. Code § 402(a)]. A declaration is not, however, required to obtain a default. Thus, a court clerk may not refuse to enter a default because the plaintiff has not yet signed the declaration [Interinsurance Exchange v. Collins (1994) 30 Cal. App. 4th 1445, 1447, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 126] .

WARNING:

For discussion of filing a separate declaration in addition to declaration on Judicial Council Form CIV-100 to satisfy requirements of federal Servicemembers Civil Relief Act, see §§ 205.49[5] [b], 205.90 [8], and for form of separate declaration, see § 205.92.

If attorney fees are to be fixed by the court under Code Civ. Proc. § 585(a), the Judicial Council form of Request for Entry of Default should be accompanied by a written request for court determination of the amount of attorney fees and for a court judgment [see also discussion in § 205.49[3]]. For a form of request to fix attorney fees and enter judgment; see § 205.91.

If declarations will be used in lieu of testimony to obtain a court judgment [see Code Civ. Proc. § 585(d)], the declarations and other required information and documents specified in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1800 must also accompany the official form [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1800 and § 205.49[5]].

If applicable, the official form should be accompanied by the original of the contract or a certified copy of the judgment sued on [see Cal. Rules of Court, Rule 3.1806 (requiring the clerk to note across the face of the writing the fact of rendition of judgment with the date and title of the court and case); see also Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 9.13 (application for default judgment on written obligation to pay money should be accompanied by original writing for cancellation pursuant to Cal. Rules of Court, Rule 3.1806)].

If the requesting party is seeking a clerk's judgment or is seeking a default judgment on declarations, a proposed judgment should be lodged and served with the Request for Entry of Default but not attached to it [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1113(j), see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1590(h)]. For forms of clerk's default judgment, see § 205.95.

If the proof of service of summons has not already been filed, it must be filed with the request for entry of default. For a default under Code Civ. Proc. § 585(c), the official form should be accompanied by proof of publication of summons if such proof has not previously been filed with the court clerk.

If punitive damages are sought from a defaulting party, or if any damages are sought in a superior court personal injury or wrongful death action, the plaintiff must provide separate notice of the damages requested before a default may be taken [see Civ. Code § 3295(e); Code Civ. Proc. §§ 425.11(e), 425.115(e)]. For further discussion, see § 205.23[2][a] et seq.

§ 205.27 Clerk's Duty to Enter Default Is Ministerial

The clerk's duty to enter a default in an appropriate case (discussed under § 205.20[2] et seq.) is ministerial. If the clerk fails or refuses to enter a default, the plaintiff may petition a higher court for a writ of mandate to compel entry [see Todd v. Everett (1966) 247 Cal. App. 2d 209, 211-212, 55 Cal. Rptr. 382] .

Conversely, the ministerial nature of the clerk's duty means that he or she has no authority, for example, to determine the sufficiency of either the substance or form of a pleading. Thus, if a defendant has sent letters to the court that contained in substance an answer, the clerk has no power to enter a default [Baske v. Burke (1981) 125 Cal. App. 3d 38, 45, 177 Cal. Rptr. 794] .

§ 205.28 Clerk's Duty When Service Was by Publication

If service on the defendant was made by publication, the clerk must enter the defendant's default on plaintiff's application on the expiration of the time for answering and on proof of publication and that none of the responses under § 205.20[2] has been filed within the time specified in the summons [*Code Civ. § 205.29 Effect of Entry of Default

Once a default has been regularly entered and becomes effective, the defendant against whom it was entered is out of court and, in the absence of fraud by the plaintiff, that defendant's right to participate in the litigation is terminated. Pleadings filed by the defendant after his or her default becomes effective are void, unless the default is first set aside [Forbes v. Cameron Petroleums, Inc. (1978) 83 Cal. App. 3d 257, 262-263, 147 Cal. Rptr. 766 ; but see Jensen v. Allstate Ins. Co. (1973) 32 Cal. App. 3d 789, 791, 108 Cal. Rptr. 498 (permitting motion to strike plaintiff's request for entry of default and enlargement of time to respond)]. For discussion of proceedings to set aside a default and default judgment, see Ch. 371, Motions After Trial , and Ch. 489, Relief From Judgments and Orders .

The default generally admits, so far as the defaulting party is concerned, the absolute truth of all aptly pleaded allegations of the complaint giving rise to liability [Bristol Convalescent Hosp. v. Stone (1968) 258 Cal. App. 2d 848, 859, 66 Cal. Rptr. 404] .

Except for the mailing requirements relating to the request to enter default itself [see Code Civ. Proc. § 587 (discussed under § 205.25[3])], once the default has been duly entered, the defendant is not entitled to service of any bill of exceptions, notice of appeal, or other notices or papers filed thereafter, other than amendments to the pleadings or an amended pleading [Code Civ. Proc. § 1010]. The defaulting defendant has no right to notice of any default hearing [

§ 205.30 Waiver of Default

[1] By Stipulation

The entry of a defendant's default for failure to answer or otherwise appear in an action is a privilege which may or may not be exercised by the plaintiff [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 585, 586]. Accordingly, the parties may agree by stipulation to waive or set aside a default. For form of stipulation to waive or set aside default, see § 205.191.

[2] By Filing Amended Complaint After Taking Default

If the plaintiff, after taking the defendant's default, amends the complaint in a matter of substance as distinguished from a matter of mere form, the amendment opens the default and eliminates the original complaint as a basis for judgment [Jackson v. Bank of America (1986) 188 Cal. App. 3d 375, 387-389, 233 Cal. Rptr. 162] .

Examples of amendments of substance opening a default include:

- Amending the complaint to increase defendant's exposure to liability [see Leo v. Dunlap (1968) 260 Cal. App. 2d 24, 27-28, 66 Cal. Rptr. 888] .

- Bringing a new party into the action, if defaulting parties are affected [see Stack v. Welder (1935) 3 Cal. 2d 71, 75, 43 P.2d 270] .

An amended pleading that includes simply a change in form does not open a default and give a defendant a new right to answer [People v. Parcel No. 0560500-09 (1997) 58 Cal. App. 4th 120, 126 , 68 Rptr. 2d 51 (failure to serve amended complaint did not render default judgment void when amendment did not constitute change in substance)]. The fact that the amended complaint was different from the original complaint in form only is not a determination that the clerk can make, since the clerk's function is only to determine if there is proof of service and if an answer to the amended complaint has been filed within the time allowed by law or order of the court [Bristol Convalescent Hosp. v. Stone (1968) 258 Cal. App. 2d 848, 862, 66 Cal. Rptr. 404] . Further, the determination of whether the amendment was one of substance or form is within the court's discretion. Its determination of the question, even if erroneous, does not render a subsequent default judgment void [Butler v. Roma-Lind, Inc. (1961) 190 Cal. App. 2d 861, 864-865, 12 Cal. Rptr. 371] . For discussion related to the distinction between void and voidable judgments, see Ch. 489, Relief From Judgments and Orders .

When an amended complaint is served on a defendant in default, it must be served personally in the same manner as an original complaint. Service by mail is insufficient, and a default judgment taken after service by mail is void if the default was taken in an amount greater than set forth in the original complaint [Engebretson & Co. v. Harrison (1981) 125 Cal. App. 3d 436, 440-444, 178 Cal. Rptr. 77] .

Once the plaintiff amends the complaint, the defendant then has the right to answer or demur to the amendment, regardless of whether it is accomplished by a new amended complaint or an amendment to the original complaint [Ford v. Superior Court of Orange County (1973) 34 Cal. App. 3d 338, 342-343, 109 Cal. Rptr. 844 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 471.5].

If the defendant fails to plead to the amended complaint within 30 days after it is served, or such other time as the court may direct, plaintiff may again take defendant's default on the plaintiff's application [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 471.5(a), 586(a)(1); for analysis when there is no answer or response to an amended complaint, see § 205.20[2]].

[3] No Automatic Waiver From Failure to Obtain Judgment on Default

Under former Code Civ. Proc. § 581a(c), the court was required to dismiss an action if the plaintiff failed to have judgment entered after the defendant had filed no answer within three years after service was made or the defendant had made a general appearance, unless the parties filed a written stipulation extending the time [see Brown v. Ridgeway (1984) 149 Cal. App. 3d 732, 737, 197 Cal. Rptr. 327 (entry of a default judgment more than three years after the service of summons constituted reversible error under former statute)]. The 1984 amendments to the dismissal statutes eliminated this provision for mandatory dismissal [see Code Civ. Proc. § 583.210 et seq.; see also discussion in Ch. 212, Dismissal].

§ 205.40 Entry of Default Judgment as Matter of Right

Plaintiff may obtain entry of a default judgment either on application to the court [see Code Civ. Proc. § 585(b) and discussion in § 205.49] or, in certain contract actions or actions involving California judgments for the recovery of money or damages, on application to the clerk [see Code Civ. Proc. § 585(a) and discussion in § 205.45].

If the clerk or the court fails or refuses to enter a default judgment when the judgment is authorized and plaintiff has properly applied for its entry, plaintiff may seek a writ of mandate to compel entry of the judgment [see W.A. Rose Co. v. Municipal Court (1959) 176 Cal. App. 2d 67, 74, 1 Cal. Rptr. 49 ; Colthurst v. Fitzgerald (1922) 56 Cal. App. 740, 741, 206 P. 471] . For discussion relating to mandate generally, see Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition .

§ 205.41 Restrictions on Entry of Default Judgment

[1] Taking of Evidence Required in Certain Actions

A default judgment may not be rendered in the following types of actions without the taking of evidence by the court:

- Marital dissolution actions [Fam. Code § 2336].
- Actions in small claims court [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.520(b)].
- Actions to quiet title [Code Civ. Proc. § 764.010; see also discussion under § 205.49[2][b][ii]].
- Actions to reestablish destroyed land records [Code Civ. Proc. § 751.14].
- Actions to reestablish boundaries of land disturbed by earth movements [Code Civ. Proc. § 751.59].
- Mandamus proceedings [Code Civ. Proc. § 1088].

- Prohibition proceedings [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1088, 1105].

- Proceedings for involuntary dissolution of corporations [see Corp. Code § 1804].

- Actions to determine title to real property under tax sales or tax deeds [Rev. & Tax. Code § 3962].

[2] Default Judgment Unavailable Against Certain Types of Defendants

Entry of default judgment is prohibited or restricted by decisional or statutory law when the judgment is taken against the following persons:

- A defendant in military service, unless the court first appoints an attorney to represent the interests and issues an order directing entry of the default judgment [50 U.S.C. App. § 521; see discussion in § 205.25[5][b]].

- A defendant designated by a fictitious name, unless the copy of the summons or other process or, if no summons or process, the first pleading or notice served on defendant bore on its face a notice that the defendant was served as the person sued on the specified fictitious name [Code Civ. Proc. § 474; see Nissan v. Barton (1970) 4 Cal. App. 3d 76, 80-81, 84 Cal. Rptr. 36 (default judgment void when plaintiff failed to comply with Code Civ. Proc. § 474)].

- A nominal defendant who is in reality a plaintiff in the case [see Watkins v. Nutting (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 490, 498-499, 110 P.2d 384] .

- One of several defendants, when that defendant's liability is dependent on liability of answering defendant or defendants [Plott v. York (1939) 33 Cal. App. 2d 460, 464, 91 P.2d 924 ; see also Adams Mfg. & Engineering Co. v. Coast Centerless Grinding Co. (1960) 184 Cal. App. 2d 649, 655, 7 Cal. Rptr. 761] .

- A person or entity sued in a fictitious business name, when the person or entity using that name appears in the action in its legal name [see Pinkerton's, Inc. v. Superior Court (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 1342, 1344, 1347-1348, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 356 (improper to enter default of "Pinkerton's, Inc., DBA Pinkerton Security & Investigation Services" after Pinkerton's, Inc. appeared in and was dismissed from action); see also § 205.22].

- An indigent prisoner who has not been permitted counsel and the opportunity to avoid default [Payne v. Superior Court (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 908, 927, 132 Cal. Rptr. 405, 553 P.2d 565 (couching its decision in terms of due process and equal protection)].

[3] Additional Requirements for Default Judgment on Cross Complaint

Default judgment on a cross complaint may not be entered unless the following two requirements are met [Code Civ. Proc. § 585(e)]:

- A separate judgment may be properly awarded on the cross complaint.

- The court finds that a separate judgment on the cross complaint would not substantially delay the final disposition of the action between the parties.

Given that Code Civ. Proc. § 585(e) expressly requires a finding by the court concerning prospective delay, it appears that default judgment on a cross complaint must always be obtained through the court [see discussion under § 205.49[4]].

§ 205.42 Relief Awarded to Plaintiff Limited to Demand

If no answer is filed, the relief awarded to the plaintiff on entry of a default judgment cannot exceed that which the plaintiff has demanded in the complaint or stated in the Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11 statement of damages, and if any, stated in the Code Civ. Proc. § 425.115 statement preserving the right to punitive damages [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 580, 585; In re Marriage of Lippel (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 1160, 1166, 276 Cal. Rptr. 290, 801 P.2d 1041 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b); for discussion of the statements, see § 205.23[2][c][i], and § 205.23[2][b][ii]].

A default judgment purporting to award more relief than is demanded in the prayer in the complaint is void because it denies the defaulting defendant notice and a fair hearing. This is so even though the allegations of the complaint would support a judgment for additional relief and general or further relief is prayed for [Burtnett v. King (1949) 33 Cal. 2d 805, 806-807, 205 P.2d 657 ; see also In re Marriage of Wells (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 1434, 1437, 254 Cal. Rptr. 185]. Thus, when damages according to proof are prayed for, it is improper to grant a money judgment [Ludka v. Memory Magnetics International (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 316, 322, 101 Cal. Rptr. 615].

Moreover, the damages awarded on default must be of the same character as those pleaded. For example, a complaint seeking damages "in excess of $20,000," punitive damages of $100,000, and costs cannot support a default judgment for $26,457.50 compensatory damages, $2,500 in attorney's fees, and costs [Becker v. S.P.V. Construction Co. (1980) 27

Cal. 3d 489, 494-495, 165 Cal. Rptr. 825, 612 P.2d 915 ; Electronic Funds Solutions, LLC v. Murphy (2006) 134 Cal. App. 4th 1161, 1173, 36 Cal. Rptr. 3d 663 (compensatory damages on default cannot exceed the $50,000 amount prayed for in the complaint; phrase "in an amount in excess of $50,000" does not provide notice of unlimited damages and the recoverable damages on default are limited to $50,000); see also Ostling v. Loring (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th 1731, 1737, 1742, 33 Cal. Rptr. 2d 391 (prayer for damages in amount shown at trial, but not less than $50,000, and treble those damages pursuant to statute did not support default judgment for $150,000 actual damages)]. A default judgment in excess of the amount stated in the prayer of the complaint is void only to the extent of the excess and may be modified by the trial court to save that portion which is not void [Becker v. S.P.V. Construction Co. (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 489, 495, 165 Cal. Rptr. 825, 612 P.2d 915] .

For purposes of default, a failure to answer includes the case in which an answer is filed but later stricken by the court [Brown v. Ridgeway (1983)149 Cal. App. 3d 732, 736, 197 Cal. Rptr. 327] . Consequently, when a default judgment is entered as a discovery sanction and the defendant's answer is stricken, the award is limited to the amount prayed for by the plaintiff in the complaint [Greenup v. Rodman (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 822, 824, 231 Cal. Rptr. 220, 726 P.2d 1295] .

§ 205.43 Procedure for Obtaining Entry of Default Judgment

A default judgment may be requested at the same time as the entry of the default itself or at a later time. The judgment may be entered by either the clerk or the court by completing the appropriate sections of the Judicial Council form of Request for Entry of Default [see § 205.90].

Other papers may need to be filed with the request. For example, counsel should submit a completed form of proposed default judgment along with a request to enter a default and clerk's judgment. For further discussion of this and other additional papers that may be required, see § 205.26, and under § 205.49[5][a][ii].

For a checklist of the steps for obtaining a default judgment, see the Procedural Checklist. For forms of request to enter default judgment and proposed default judgments, see Forms § 205.90, and §§ 205.94-205.99.

Although entry of default prior to entry of a default judgment is provided for by statute [see Code Civ. Proc. § 585(a)-(c)] and often required by local court rule [see, e.g. , San Francisco Uniform Local Ct. Rules, Rule 8.13, a default judgment is not rendered invalid by failure to have entered default [Crouch v. H.L. Miller & Co. (1915) 169 Cal. 341, 345-346, 146 P. 880 ; *Norman v. § 205.44 Res Judicata Effect of Default Judgment

A default judgment conclusively establishes between the parties, so far as subsequent proceedings on a different cause of action are concerned, the truth of all material allegations in the complaint in the default action and every fact necessary to uphold the default judgment. However, a default judgment is not conclusive as to any defense or issue that was not raised and is not necessary to uphold the judgment [Four Star Electric, Inc. v. F & H Construction (1992) 7 Cal. App. 4th 1375, 1380, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1 (reversing dismissal when default judgments not entitled to collateral estoppel effect)].

§ 205.45 When Judgment by Clerk Permitted

Although the clerk usually enters a default, the clerk's power to render judgment on the default is limited to cases "arising upon contract or judgment of a court for the recovery of money or damages only" [Code Civ. Proc. § 585(a)]. This provision is intended to enable the clerk to enter judgment only if no evidence is necessary to disclose the correct amount. If evidence or the exercise of discretion is required, then entry is made under Code Civ. Proc. § 585(b) by the court [see Lynch v. Bencini (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 521, 526, 110 P.2d 662 (clerk is unauthorized to enter judgment on contract with no provision for damages)].

Because the clerk's authority is strictly construed, he or she has the power to enter a default judgment in a contract action only if the terms of the contract provide for some definite fixed amount of damages or such sum can be ascertained from the terms of the contract by mathematical computation [Liberty Loan Corp. of North Park v. Petersen (1972) 24 Cal. App. 3d 915, 918, 101 Cal. Rptr. 395 (clerk not authorized to enter judgment where note sued on showed on its face that it was secured)]. In determining whether the action is one coming within the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 585(a), the allegations of the complaint and the terms of the contract must be examined. If the amount to be awarded as damages is not ascertainable from either document, the clerk cannot enter judgment [see Lynch v. Bencini (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 521, 528, 110 P.2d 662] .

§ 205.46 Clerk's Authority When There Are Multiple Causes of Action

When a complaint states several causes of action and one of them is of the type on which the clerk may enter judgment, the clerk has the authority to enter judgment on that cause of action even though he or she has no authority to do so on the other causes [Norman v. Berney (1965) 235 Cal. App. 2d 424, 430, 45 Cal. Rptr. 467] . However, it must be clear that the allegation is in fact a separate cause of action and not just a separate theory of recovery [Brown v. Superior Court (1966) 242 Cal. App. 2d 519, 525, 51 Cal. Rptr. 633] .

§ 205.47 Limitation on Clerk's Authority When There Are Several Defendants

When there are several defendants, and one or more, but not all, of the defendants have defaulted, only the court has discretion whether to enter a judgment against the defaulting defendants. The clerk may not enter a default judgment against the defaulting defendants; any default judgment taken by a clerk in violation of this rule is void [Kooper v. King (1961) 195 Cal. App. 2d 621, 628-629, 15 Cal. Rptr. 848 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 579; see also Diamond National Corp. v. Golden Empire Builders, Inc. (1963) 213 Cal. App. 2d 283, 288, 28 Cal. Rptr. 616 (default judgment by clerk permissible if all defendants are in default)]. The rationale underlying this rule is that if an answering codefendant raises defenses that bear upon the plaintiff's right to recover at all (as distinguished from the right to recover against any particular defendant), the court must have the opportunity to determine whether the defenses also inure to the defaulting defendants' benefit [see Kooper v. King (1961) 195 Cal. App. 2d 621, 629, 15 Cal. Rptr. 848 ; Plott v. York (1939) 33 Cal. App. 2d 460, 463, 91 P.2d 924] .

§ 205.48 Contents of Clerk's Judgment

The clerk is empowered to enter judgment for the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 585(a)]:

- The principal amount demanded in the complaint, the Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11 statement of damages, or the Code Civ. Proc. § 425.115 statement preserving the right to punitive damages, or a lesser amount if credit has been acknowledged by plaintiff.
- Interest allowed by law or in accordance with the terms of the contract.
- Costs against defendant or defendants, or against one or more of the defendants.

In addition, if a schedule of attorney fees has been adopted by rule of court, the clerk may include in the judgment attorney fees in accordance with the schedule if at least one of the following is true [Code Civ. Proc. § 585(a)]:

- The contract involved in the action provides for attorney fees.
- The action is one in which the plaintiff is statutorily entitled to attorney fees.

For a form of proposed default judgments by clerk, see § 205.95.

Although the clerk may be authorized to enter judgment and award attorney fees under the statute, plaintiff has a right to request that attorney fees be fixed by the court if he or she is dissatisfied with the attorney fees permitted by the schedule of fees or if no schedule of fees has been adopted by the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 585(a); see also Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rules 3.2(a) (fee schedule) 9.15 (fee requirements and variations from schedule)]. For a form of request that attorney's fees be fixed by court, see § 205.91.

The clerk is also authorized to enter judgment for restitution of premises in an unlawful detainer action. If the complaint sought other relief, such as damages, the plaintiff may then apply for a court judgment for the remainder of the relief demanded [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1169].

§ 205.49 Entry of Judgment by Court

[1] Actions Involving Personal Service

The plaintiff may apply to the court under Code Civ. Proc. § 585(b) for the relief demanded in the complaint when a default is entered in:

- An action involving a contract from which the amount of damages cannot be ascertained.
- An action on a judgment in which the recovery is not limited to money or damages.
- Any other action in which the defendant is served other than by publication.

After the default is entered by the clerk, the court will hear evidence offered by the plaintiff and will render judgment in his or her favor for such sum, not to exceed the amount stated in the complaint, the Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11 statement of damages, or the Code Civ. Proc. § 425.115 statement preserving the right to punitive damages, as appears by the evidence to be just. If the taking of an account or the proof of any fact is necessary to enable the court to give judgment or to carry the judgment into effect, the court may take the account or hear the proof or may in its discretion order a reference for that purpose [Code Civ. Proc. § 585(b)].

Similarly, if the action is for the recovery of damages, in whole or in part, the court may order the damages to be assessed by a jury or by a reference [Code Civ. Proc. § 585(b)]. However, the court is not bound by such an assessment and may award damages in whatever sum appears to the court to be just, not exceeding the demand of the complaint [Cyrus v. Haveson (1976) 65 Cal. App. 3d 306, 318, 135 Cal. Rptr. 246] .

When the default judgment has been returned after appeal, unless the appellate court directs otherwise, a defaulting defendant cannot participate in a second judgment hearing any more than he or she can in the first hearing between default and appeal [Devlin v. Kearny Mesa AMC/Jeep/Renault, Inc. (1984) 155 Cal. App. 3d 381, 387, 202 Cal. Rptr. 204 (defendant not allowed to submit evidence in proceedings following reversal of default judgment due to excessive damages)].

For forms of proposed default judgments by the court, see §§ 205.97-205.98.

[2] Actions With Service by Publication

[a] Court Renders Judgment on Plaintiff's Evidence

After a default has been entered in an action in which the service of the summons was by publication, the plaintiff may apply to the court for the relief demanded in the complaint. The court will hear the evidence offered by the plaintiff, and render judgment in plaintiff's favor for such sum (not exceeding the amount stated in the complaint, the Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11 statement of damages, or the Code Civ. Proc. § 425.115 statement preserving the right to punitive damages), as appears by that evidence to be just [Code Civ. Proc. § 585(c); see § 205.42].

[b] Requirements in Specific Situations

[i] Nonresident Defendant

If the defendant is not a California resident, the court will require the plaintiff, or his or her agent, to be examined, on oath, respecting any payments that have been made to the plaintiff, or to anyone for his or her use, on account of any demand mentioned in the complaint, the Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11 statement of damages, or the Code Civ. Proc. § 425.115 statement preserving the right to punitive damages, and may render judgment for the amount which he or she is entitled to recover [Code Civ. Proc. § 585(c)].

[ii] Action Involving Real Property

In all cases affecting the title to or possession of real property, where the service of the summons was by publication and the defendant has failed to answer, no judgment is to be rendered on proof of mere occupancy, unless that occupancy has continued for the time and has been of the character necessary to confer title by prescription. In all cases in which the plaintiff bases his or her claim on a paper title, the court shall require evidence establishing plaintiff's equitable right to judgment before rendering judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 585(c); for discussion of title by prescription, see Ch. 13, Adverse Possession].

On the other hand, in actions involving only the possession of real property, the court may render judgment on proof of occupancy by plaintiff and ouster by defendant if the complaint is verified [see Code Civ. Proc. § 446] and shows by proper allegations that no party to the action claims title to the real property involved, either by prescription, accession, transfer, will, or succession, but only possession of it [Code Civ. Proc. § 585(c)].

[3] Determination of Attorney's Fees

In actions in which the clerk is generally authorized to enter judgment, a plaintiff who seeks to have attorney's fees fixed by the court when no schedule of fees has been adopted or when he or she is dissatisfied with the fee schedule, must file a written request at the time of application for entry of default [Code Civ. Proc. § 585(a); see also Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rules 3.2(a) (fee schedule), 9.15 (calculation of fees on default)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Requesting Attorney's Fees in Separate Document. A separate document requesting the court to fix attorney's fees and enter judgment may be used when the plaintiff wishes the court to set the recoverable attorney's fees. The application should be filed with the Request for Entry of Default if counsel desires immediate entry of judgment. A hearing date should be obtained from the clerk [see Code Civ. Proc. § 585(a)].

In such cases, after entry of the default, the court will hear the application for determination of the attorney's fees and render judgment for the fees, for the other relief demanded in the complaint, the Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11 statement of damages, or the Code Civ. Proc. § 425.115 statement preserving the right to punitive damages, or a lesser amount if credit has been acknowledged, and for costs against the defendant or defendants, or against one or more of the defendants [Code Civ. Proc. § 585(a)]. The matter may be determined on affidavits or declarations in lieu of testimony [see Code Civ. Proc. § 585(d); for discussion, see § 205.49[5]].

[4] When Default on Cross Complaint Is Sought

Before ordering entry of a default judgment on a cross complaint, the court must determine whether a separate judgment may be properly awarded on the cross complaint and must find that a separate judgment on the cross complaint would not substantially delay the final disposition of the action between the parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 585(e)]. Therefore, it appears that entry of default judgment on a cross complaint must always be by court order. Presumably the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 585(d), which give the court discretionary power in certain cases to permit the use of affidavits or declarations in lieu of personal testimony when a court judgment of default on a complaint is sought, will be applicable to defaults on cross complaints under Code Civ. Proc. § 585(e); see Code Civ. Proc. § 587.5 (as used in default statutes, "complaint" includes cross complaint, "defendant" includes cross defendant, and "plaintiff" includes cross complainant)].

For a form of default judgment on a cross complaint, see § 205.98.

[5] Use of Declarations in Lieu of Testimony

[a] In Court's Discretion

The court has discretion to permit a plaintiff applying for a court judgment on default under Code Civ. Proc. § 585(b), (c) [see § 205.49[2][a]] to use affidavits (or declarations under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) in lieu of personal testimony, as to all or any part of the evidence or proof required or permitted to be offered, received, or heard in such cases. This power also applies to applications to the court to fix attorney's fees under Code Civ. Proc. § 585(a) [Code Civ. Proc. § 585(d); see § 205.49[3]].

In Los Angeles County Superior Court, determination of applications for default judgment on declarations pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 585(d) is the preferred procedure.

[b] Requirements

A party who seeks a default judgment on declarations must use Cal. Judicial Council Form CIV-100 and must include in the documents filed with the clerk the following [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1800]:

- Except in unlawful detainer cases, a brief summary of the case identifying the parties and the nature of plaintiff's claim;
- Declarations or other admissible evidence in support of the judgment requested;
- Interest computations as necessary;
- A memorandum of costs and disbursements;
- A declaration of nonmilitary status for each defendant against whom judgment is sought;
- A proposed form of judgment;
- A dismissal of all parties against whom judgment is not sought or an application for separate judgment against specified parties under Code Civ. Proc. § 579, supported by a showing of grounds for each judgment;
- Exhibits as necessary; and
- A request for attorney fees if allowed by statute or by the agreement of the parties.

The facts stated in the affidavits or declarations must be within the personal knowledge of the affiant or declarant and must be set forth with particularity. Each affidavit or declaration must show affirmatively that the affiant or declarant, if sworn as a witness, can testify competently to the facts contained therein [Code Civ. Proc. § 585(d)].

WARNING:

The declaration of military status in Judicial Council Form CIV-100 may not satisfy federal statutory requirements as amended by the 2003 Servicemembers Civil Relief Act (formerly the Soldiers' and Sailors' Civil Relief Act). The federal statute requires the filing of a declaration as to military status of the defendant before a default judgment can be entered. The declaration must state whether or not the defendant is in military service, but the declaration must be more than the mere statement in the Judicial Council Form because it must contain facts necessary to support the declaration [50 U.S.C. App. § 521(b)(1)]. If the plaintiff is unable to determine whether the defendant is in military service under the Act, the plaintiff must file a declaration so stating. Thus, a declaration should be filed in addition to Paragraph 8 of this Judicial Council Form [see § 205.92 (form of declaration); see also Mil. & Vet. Code § 402(a)].

[6] Costs, Interest, and Attorney's Fees Included in Judgment

When the default judgment is entered by the court, costs, interest, and attorney fees may be included in the judgment as provided by law [Civ. Code § 3287 et seq. (interest); Code Civ. Proc. § 1021 (attorney fees); see also Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1032-1034 (costs)].

For discussion and forms relating to recovery of costs and attorney's fees, see Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees .

For discussion and forms relating to recovery of interest, see Ch. 177, Damages , and Ch. 318, Judgments .

§ 205.50 Notice of Entry of Judgment

[1] In General

A defaulting party must be notified when the plaintiff applies for entry of default [see Code Civ. Proc. 587, discussed in § 205.25[3]]. Once the default is duly entered, however, no further notices are required to be given to a defaulting party who has not appeared in the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 1010].

In contested actions or special proceedings, the party submitting a judgment for entry must prepare and mail a copy of the notice of entry of judgment to all parties who have appeared in the action or proceeding and must file with the court the original notice of entry of judgment together with the proof of service by mail [Code Civ. Proc. § 664.5(a)]. This requirement does not apply unless the prevailing party is represented by counsel. Nor does it apply to proceedings for dissolution of marriage, nullity of marriage, or legal separation or to small claims actions [Code Civ. Proc. § 664.5(a)]. Thus, notice must be given to a defaulting party who appeared in the action, to other defendants who have appeared in the action, or both.

Even when notice is not required, it may nonetheless be desirable in order to shorten the defendant's time for seeking relief from the judgment. For example, a defaulting defendant has up to two years after entry of a default judgment against him or her to move to set aside the default for lack of actual notice under Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5. If he or she is served with written notice that the default or default judgment has been entered, however, the motion must be filed within 180 days after service of the notice [Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5; for further discussion of procedure for relief from default under Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5, see Ch. 489, Relief From Judgments and Orders ; see also discussion under § 205.50[2]].

For purposes of the mandatory relief provision of Code Civ. Proc., § 473(b), "default" means only a defendant's failure to answer a complaint, and a "default judgment" means only a judgment entered after the defendant has failed to answer and the defendant's default has been entered [Vandermoon v. Sanwong (2006) 142 Cal. App. 4th 315, 321, 47 Cal. Rptr. 3d 772] .

For a general form of notice of entry of judgment, see Ch. 318, Judgments, § 318.40 et seq. For an optional California Judicial Council Form CIV-130, Notice of Entry of Judgment or Order, see Ch. 318, Judgments § 318.336.

[2] In Property Actions

If a default judgment determines the ownership or right to possession of real or personal property and the plaintiff has personally served both the defaulting defendant and his or her attorney of record within the state of California a written notice that the judgment was taken and that any rights defendant has to relief from the judgment under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) for mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect will expire 90 days after service of the notice, any Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) motion must be made within 90 days after service of the notice on the defaulting party or on the attorney, whichever service is later [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]. Absent this notice, the defendant may move to set aside the default under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 up to six months after the date of entry of default [see In re Marriage of Jacobs (1982) 128 Cal. App. 3d 273, 281-282, 180 Cal. Rptr. 234 ; for further discussion of procedure for relief from default under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), see Ch. 489, Relief From Judgments and Orders].

Thus, in property actions, it is advisable for a plaintiff to give a defaulting defendant and his or her attorney the special notice entry of judgment authorized under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), especially when the default judgment is entered soon after the entry of default, because the notice will shorten the defendant's time for filing a motion to set aside the default.

For a form of notice of default judgment and shortening time for relief from default in property actions, see § 205.100.

[1] Effect of Default Judgment

Judgment by default as said to "confess" material facts alleged by plaintiff, that is, defendant's failure to answer has same effect as express admission of matters well pleaded in complaint. Beeman v. Burling (1990) 216 Cal. App. 3d 1586, 1597, 265 Cal. Rptr. 719

[2] Entry of Default and Default Judgment

[a] Entry Improper

Under the "well pleaded" complaint rule, it is error to enter a default judgment on a complaint that fails to state a cause of action against the defaulting defendant. Ferraro v. Camarlinghi (2008) 161 Cal. App. 4th 509, 539, 75 Cal. Rptr. 3d 19

Default and default judgment is void if the complaint fails to apprise the defendant of the nature of the plaintiff's demand or if the court granted relief which it had no power to grant including a default judgment that exceeds the amount demanded in the complaint. When the complaint contained no specific factual allegations with respect to the particular defendant seeking relief from the default judgment and did not specify the amount of damages plaintiff sought from the particular defendant, the default judgement against that defendant was void. Falahati v. Kondo (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 823, 830, 26 Cal. Rptr. 3d 104

Default and default judgment as void when entered only 16 days after earliest date on which service by publication could have been deemed completed under former Code Civ. Proc. § 413 [now Code Civ. Proc. § 415.50] because defendant served by publication had 30 days after completion of service to appear and answer under former Code Civ. Proc. § 407 [now Code Civ. Proc. § 412.20]. Whealton v. Whealton (1967) 67 Cal. 2d 656, 659, 63 Cal. Rptr. 291, 432 P.2d 979

Failure to properly serve and give formal statutory notice to defendant of the amount of money damages the plaintiff was seeking is basis to set aside default, even if defendant had actual notice. Schwab v. Southern California Gas Co. (2004) 114 Cal. App. 4th 1308, 1320-1322, 8 Cal. Rptr. 3d 627

Plaintiff as required to name business entity in its right capacity in his or her complaint in order to obtain enforceable judgment by default. Earl W. Schott, Inc. v. Kalar (1993) 20 Cal. App. 4th 943, 946, 24 Cal. Rptr. 2d 580

Failure to serve husband with amended petition and summons for dissolution after service of action for legal separation as improper service as basis to set aside default. In re Marriage of Rhoades (1984) 157 Cal. App. 3d 169, 172, 211 Cal. Rptr. 531

When elderly defendant wrote letters to court clerk requesting that clerk do "what was needed" to answer complaint and stating that defendant would pay any necessary fees, clerk as having no authority to determine that such letters did not constitute sufficient pleading and to enter default judgment. Baske v. Burke (1981) 125 Cal. App. 3d 38, 45, 177 Cal. Rptr. 794

If defendants' notice of motion to quash service was on file when clerk received plaintiff's request for entry of default, clerk as having no authority to enter defendants' default despite fact that notice was technically defective when filed. Goddard v. Pollock (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 137, 143, 112 Cal. Rptr. 215

When creditor pursuant to former Com. Code § 9504 (now see Com. Code § 9601 et seq.) dealt with and sold property that was security for debt sued on, clerk was not authorized by former Code Civ. Proc. § 585(l) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 585(a)) to enter default judgment against debtor for deficiency since such judgment requires judicial determination that sale was conducted in commercially reasonable manner and that claimed expenses connected with repossession and sale were reasonable. Liberty Loan Corp. of North Park v. Petersen (1972) 24 Cal. App. 3d 915, 919, 101 Cal. Rptr. 395

When only plaintiff's attorney was served with cross complaint, clerk had no power to enter default under former Code Civ. Proc. § 585(1) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 585(a)), which required personal service on party, and entry of default and default judgment was void; superior court's power to set aside void judgment not affected by six-month limitation of Code Civ. Proc. § 473. Westport Oil Co. v. Garrison (1971) 19 Cal. App. 3d 974, 978, 97 Cal. Rptr. 287

[b] Entry Proper

Motion to dismiss filed in federal court after removal is sufficiently similar to demurrer to constitute responsive pleading for purpose of avoiding entry of default when case is transferred back to state court by federal court. Laguna Village, Inc. v. Laborers' Internat. Union of North America (1983) 35 Cal. 3d 174, 182, 197 Cal. Rptr. 99, 672 P.2d 882

Trial court properly granted landlords' motion for summary adjudication following the tenants' failure to appear at trial, resulting in a default judgment, in the landlords' action for breach of contract, declaratory relief, ejectment, and quiet title. Tenants failed to file the separate statement of facts in opposition required pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(b)(3), and the tenants' attempt to shift the blame for their failure to comply to the trial court, without any case authority demonstrating that the trial court abused its discretion, was incorrect and misplaced. The tenants had taken the time to file a sur-reply to the landlords' reply brief, and could have used that opportunity to remedy their deficiency, but did not do so. Whitehead v. Habig (2008) 163 Cal. App. 4th 896, 902, 77 Cal. Rptr. 3d 679

Entry of default is proper when defendant fails to file answer within 10 days of entry of court order denying defendant's motion to dismiss complaint; denied motion to dismiss is treated as demurrer overruled without leave to amend. Barragan v. Banco BCH (1986) 188 Cal. App. 3d 283, 299-300, 232 Cal. Rptr. 758

Defaulting party's motion for summary judgment does not preclude entry of default judgment. Barragan v. Banco BCH (1986) 188 Cal. App. 3d 283, 299, 232 Cal. Rptr. 758

Defendant's demurrer asserting pendency of another action involving substantially same causes of action and issues does not preclude entry of default against defendant because operative effect of demurrer ceased after conclusion of first action. Barragan v. Banco BCH (1986) 188 Cal. App. 3d 283, 298-299, 232 Cal. Rptr. 758

Clerk is entitled to rely on document's label in determining whether defendant has filed answer; default was properly entered by clerk when only document defendant filed was labeled as declaration in opposition to preliminary injunction. Wisdom v. Ramirez (1986) 177 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 1, 7-8 , 222 Cal. Rptr. 923

If affidavit showed fact of service of summons, court was empowered to render default judgment, although affidavit erroneous as to place of service. Wheat v. McNeill (1931) 111 Cal. App. 72, 78, 295 P. 102

[3] Filing of Amended Complaint

Amended pleading that includes simply change in form does not open default and give defendant new right to answer; when amended complaint merely corrected two typographical errors pertaining to assessor's parcel number, but original complaint contained correct parcel number in grant deed incorporated as exhibit and thereby gave notice of real property at issue, amendment did not constitute change in substance; failure to serve amended complaint did not render default judgment void. People v. Parcel No. 0560500-09 (1997) 58 Cal. App. 4th 120, 126 , 68 Rptr. 2d 51

Substantive amendment to complaint superseded original complaint, thereby opening default, and permitting defaulting defendant to answer. Beeman v. Burling (1990) 216 Cal. App. 3d 1586, 1597, 265 Cal. Rptr. 719

In action against bank for rescission, fraud, and negligent misrepresentation, plaintiff's argument and proof at default hearing regarding bank's conduct after complaint had been filed constituted de facto amendment of complaint relieving bank of default and entitling it to be served anew and then to answer. Jackson v. Bank of America (1986) 188 Cal. App. 3d 375, 387-389, 233 Cal. Rptr. 162

[4] Prerequisites to Default

Although a plaintiff's attorney is not legally required to warn a defendant's attorney before taking a default, if plaintiff's counsel knows the identity of the lawyer representing a defendant, such warning is at the least an ethical obligation of counsel. Fasuyi v. Permatex, Inc. (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 681, 701, 84 Cal. Rptr. 3d 351

Party is required to provide notice and an opportunity to be heard before defaults can be entered as a discovery sanction. Failure to provide defendants notice and an opportunity for a hearing is a denial of due process and renders the default and subsequent default judgment void. Sole Energy Company v. Hodges (2005) 128 Cal. App. 4th 199, 208 , 26 Cal. Rtpr. 3d 823

Although law generally favors hearing on merits, plaintiff is entitled to default judgment when defendant fails to answer, demur, or give notice of certain other motions. Ely v. Gray (1990) 224 Cal. App. 3d 1257, 1260, 274 Cal. Rptr. 536

To reach default stage, party is required to follow well-defined rules that ensure that defendant has sufficient knowledge of pending action to make fair and informed choice regarding whether or not to defend; if plaintiff fails to adhere to those rules, defendant is not required to suffer consequences default judgment brings. Lopez v. Fancelli (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 1305, 1309-1310, 271 Cal. Rptr. 87

[5] Relief Awarded to Plaintiff

[a] Limitation to Amount Demanded in Complaint

Default judgment entered as discovery sanction cannot include award in excess of that prayed for in complaint. Greenup v. Rodman (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 822, 826-829, 231 Cal. Rptr. 220, 726 P.2d 1295

Default judgment in excess of amount stated in prayer of complaint is void only to extent of excess, and may be modified by court to save valid portion. Becker v. S.P.V. Construction Co. (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 489, 495, 165 Cal. Rptr. 825, 612 P.2d 915

Where the dollar amount demanded on plaintiff's request for entry of default was "0.00," appellate court found that it could not support a default judgment in any amount. Where no specific amount of damages is demanded, there is no adequate notice to the defendant--and the default judgment of $2.65 million entered under those conditions is void. Constructive notice of potential liability does not satisfy Code Civ. Proc. § 580. Stein v. York (2010) 181 Cal. App. 4th 320, 325, 105 Cal. Rptr. 3d 1

Compensatory damages on default cannot exceed the $50,000 amount prayed for in the complaint. The phrase "in an amount in excess of $50,000" does not provide notice of unlimited damages and the recoverable damages on default are limited to $50,000. Electronic Funds Solutions, LLC v. Murphy (2006) 134 Cal. App. 4th 1161, 1173, 36 Cal. Rptr. 3d 663

Prayer in complaint alone governs amount of relief available in default judgment. Gudarov v. Hadjieff (1952) 38 Cal. 2d 412, 416-417, 240 P.2d 621

When the complaint did not specify the amount of damages plaintiff sought from the defendant, the default judgement against that defendant was void. Where no amount of damages is demanded, any amount awarded is by definition greater than the amount demanded. Falahati v. Kondo (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 823, 830-831, 26 Cal. Rptr. 3d 104

Intent of Code Civ. Proc. § 580, limiting relief to that demanded in complaint, is to ensure that defendant who declines to contest action does not thereby subject him or herself to open-ended liability; default judgment greater than amount specifically demanded is beyond court's jurisdiction and void. In re Marriage of Wells (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 1434, 1437, 254 Cal. Rptr. 185

Defendant in municipal court action had sufficient notice to satisfy Code Civ. Proc. § 580 and uphold default judgment for $11,479.95 plus $1,250 in attorney's fees, even though complaint did not demand any specific amount of compensatory damages, when complaint did demand $15,000 in punitive damages and referred to statute that established liability for actual damages, penalty not to exceed stated amount, and minimum award. Wisdom v. Ramirez (1986) 177 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 1, 7-8 , 222 Cal. Rptr. 923

When no amount of damages is alleged and prayer merely asks for damages according to proof, pleading is insufficient to permit award on default judgment. Ludka v. Memory Magnetics International (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 316, 322-323, 101 Cal. Rptr. 615

Allegation in complaint that plaintiff had been damaged in sum of $10,000, combined with prayer for damages according to proof, gives sufficient notice to defendant that plaintiff sought damages in addition to restitutional relief to sustain award of damages. Thorson v. Western Development Corp. (1967) 251 Cal. App. 2d 206, 213, 59 Cal. Rptr. 299

Default judgment fatally deficient for award of excess relief may be set aside without vitiating defendant's default. Jonson v. Weinstein (1967) 249 Cal. App. 2d 954, 958, 58 Cal. Rptr. 32

[b] Limitation in Personal Injury and Wrongful Death Actions

Default judgment in personal injury or wrongful death case as not to be entered absent notice in complaint or "statement of damages" of special and general damages sought. Schwab v. Rondel Homes, Inc. (1991) 53 Cal. 3d 428, 434, 280 Cal. Rptr. 83, 808 P.2d 226 (disapproving Morgan v. Southern Cal. Rapid Transit Dist. (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 976, 237 Cal. Rptr. 756)

Statement of damages under Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11 as required to be served before entry of default by clerk; statement served after entry of default but before entry of default judgment as untimely. Hamm v. Elkin (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 1343, 1346, 242 Cal. Rptr. 545

Amount of damages sought in personal injury or wrongful death action as required to be communicated by plaintiff through notice under Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11 before defendant's answer may be stricken and default entered as discovery sanction. Morgan v. Southern Cal. Rapid Transit Dist. (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 976, 986, 237 Cal. Rptr. 756 (disapproved on other grounds in Schwab v. Rondel Homes, Inc. (1991) 53 Cal. 3d 428, 434, 280 Cal. Rptr. 83, 808 P.2d 226)

In action by former depositors against bank for conversion, accounting, fraud and deceit, negligence, breach of contract, and false imprisonment, failure of depositors to comply with Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11 as not rendering default judgment void because nonpersonal injury damages were clearly isolated from personal injury damages and amply supported amount set forth in prayer for relief. Barragan v. Banco BCH (1986) 188 Cal. App. 3d 283, 303-304, 232 Cal. Rptr. 758

Default judgment for trespass, assault, conversion, intentional infliction of emotional distress, and wrongful repossession as properly set aside when plaintiff had failed to inform defendant of amount of damages sought as required by Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11 disclosure for all causes of action. Jones v. Interstate Recovery Service (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 925, 929-930, 206 Cal. Rptr. 924

In personal injury action, plaintiff's request to enter default, specifying only total amount of damages sought, as not complying with Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11 requirement that notice be given to defendant of amount of special and general damages sought. Plotitsa v. Superior Court (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 755, 761-762, 189 Cal. Rptr. 769

In personal injury or wrongful death action, default as void on face and subject to challenge beyond Code Civ. Proc. §

473 six-month limitation period if it was entered without statement of amount of damages sought as required under Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11. Plotitsa v. Superior Court (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 755, 760, 189 Cal. Rptr. 769

Plaintiff in personal injury action as required to personally serve defendant with request to enter default if defendant has not been given prior notice that complies with Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11 statement-of-damages requirement. Plotitsa v. Superior Court (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 755, 759, 189 Cal. Rptr. 769 ; see also Twine v. Compton Supermarket (1986) 179 Cal. App. 3d 514, 517-518, 224 Cal. Rptr. 562 (Plotitsa applies retroactively)

Entry of default judgment as improper in personal injury action when complaint did not state amount demanded and defendant was given no notice of amount sought by plaintiff, either by way of statement of damages pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11 or request to enter default. Petty v. Manpower, Inc. (1979) 94 Cal. App. 3d 794, 798, 156 Cal. Rptr. 622

[c] Amount of Damages as Stated in Body of Complaint

Where complaint adequately notified defendant that the amount of damages sought was $245,000--the amount of an uncollected judgment--plaintiffs were not required to reiterate that sum in the prayer in order to comply with Code of Civ. Proc. § 580. However, because neither the body of the complaint nor the prayer for relief identified the amount of attorney's fees being sought as $15,000, that amount must be stricken from the judgment. Hearn v. Howard (2009) 177 Cal. App. 4th 1193, 1209, 99 Cal. Rptr. 3d 642

[6] Purpose of Default Judgment

Default judgment as procedural device designed to clear court's calendar and files of those cases that have no adversarial quality. Lopez v. Fancelli (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 1305, 1309, 271 Cal. Rptr. 87

[7] Standard of Proof

When defendant has defaulted, standard of proof requires that plaintiff merely establish a prima facie case; trial court erroneously applied preponderance of evidence standard in determining whether plaintiff entitled to an award of damages. Johnson v. Stanhiser (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 357, 361, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 82

[8] Standard of Review on Appeal

On plaintiff's appeal from award of damages after defendant defaulted, in which trial court failed to award plaintiff any damages other than costs and fees, case presented set of circumstances where award, or lack of it, was totally unconscionable and without justification, thus calling for review. Johnson v. Stanhiser (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 357, 361, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 82

[9] Waiver of Constitutional Rights

Defendant in any civil action as having right to notice of relief sought in complaint and to opportunity for hearing on matter to be adjudicated, but defendant who has received requisite notice and defaults deliberately as waiving his or her constitutional right to that hearing; hence, if proper notice is given, there is no constitutional impediment to entry of default judgment, notwithstanding general principle that waiver of constitutional rights is not presumed. County of Mendocino v. Ted S. (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 1202, 1206-1207, 266 Cal. Rptr. 452

§ 205.70 Preliminary Steps and Planning

☐ Consult local practice as to other required documentation or additional requirements to obtain entry of a default and default judgment.

☐ File and serve statement of damages on defendant if complaint does not state amount [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 425.11, 580; for form, see Ch. 177, Damages, § 177.40 et seq.].

☐ File and serve statement preserving the right to punitive damages, if claiming such damages [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 425.115, 580; for form, see Ch. 177, Damages, § 177.40 et seq.].

☐ Determine whether defendant is in military service [see 50 U.S.C. App. § 521(1)].

☐ Determine whether clerk or court will enter the default judgment.

☐ Clerk may enter judgment if [see Code Civ. Proc. § 585(a)]:

- ☐ Service was not by publication, and
- ☐ Case arises in contract or on judgment for recovery of money or damages only.

☐ Court enters judgment in all other cases [see Code Civ. Proc. § 585(b), (c)].

☐ Determine whether attorney fees are available by contract or law. If so:

☐ If judgment may be entered by clerk, determine whether court has adopted a schedule of attorney's fees, so that clerk may include fees in the judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 585(a)].

☐ If the court has a schedule of attorney's fees but counsel is dissatisfied with the fees it would provide, consider whether to request a court determination of attorney's fees, as authorized by Code Civ. Proc. § 585(a).

☐ If there is no schedule, be prepared to have court enter judgment.

§ 205.71 Entry of Default [and Default Judgment by Clerk or Court]

☐ Prepare mandatory Judicial Council form of Request for Entry of Default [for form, see § 205.90], filling in:

☐ Request to enter default and if sought at same time, request to enter clerk's judgment or court judgment.

☐ Declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 585.5(a) if application to enter default is made under Code Civ. Proc. § 585(a) [Code Civ. Proc. § 585.5(a)].

☐ Declaration of military status, when appropriate [see 50 U.S.C. App. § 520(1); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1800(a)].

NOTE:
Timing of Declaration. The declaration of military status must be filed before entry of a default judgment, but need not be filed before entry of default [Interinsurance

Exchange v. Collins (1994) 30 Cal. App. 4th 1445, 1447, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 126]* .

☐ Memorandum of costs [Code Civ. Proc. § 1033.5; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1800, 3.1750; for discussion, see § 205.25[4], above].

☐ Declaration of mailing [Code Civ. Proc. § 587].

☐ Make copies of mandatory Judicial Council form:

☐ Original for filing.

☐ One copy for defendant, or if defendant is represented by counsel, his or her attorney of record.

☐ One copy for client, if desired.

☐ Prepare accompanying papers:

☐ Proposed judgment [for form, see § 205.95], if party seeks a clerk's judgment on the default or seeks a default judgment on declarations [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 585(a), 586; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1800].

☐ Request to fix attorney's fees [for form, see § 205.91], if counsel wishes to have the court fix attorney's fees authorized by the contract or by statute and render judgment under Code Civ. Proc. § 585(a), with copies as for mandatory Judicial Council form, above [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1800].

☐ Declaration of military status [see § 205.92], if defendant is in military service or if plaintiff does not know defendant's military status [see 50 U.S.C. App. § 521]. Also:

☐ Secure court appointment of an attorney to represent the absent defendant [for form, see § 205.93].

☐ Furnish a bond if one is required as a condition to entry of judgment.

☐ Declarations or other admissible evidence in support of the judgment requested, if seeking a default judgment on declarations and if the court permits use of declarations in a case requiring a court hearing for judgment [see Code Civ. Proc. § 585(b), (c), (e); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1800(a)], or on an application to have the court fix attorney's fees [see Code Civ. Proc. § 585(a)], for use in lieu of personal testimony at the hearing [Code Civ. Proc. § 585(d)]. Ensure that declarations:

☐ Set out particular facts within the declarant's personal knowledge, and ☐ State facts showing that declarant is competent to testify as witness [Code Civ. Proc. § 585(d)].

☐ If party seeks default judgment on declarations, prepare additional documents to be included with documents filed with the clerk [Cal Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1800(a)]:

☐ Brief summary of the case identifying the parties and the nature of plaintiff's claim (not required in unlawful detainer cases).

☐ Interest computations as necessary.

☐ A dismissal of all parties against whom judgment is not sought or an application for separate judgment against specified parties under Code Civ. Proc. § 579, supported by a showing of grounds for each judgment.

☐ Exhibits as necessary.

☐ If judgment is to be rendered on written obligation to pay money, obtain original of contract or certified copy of judgment so clerk can annotate it when judgment is entered [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1806].

☐ Mail copies of papers:

☐ Mail one copy of the application and of each of the accompanying papers to defendant's attorney of record, or if none, to defendant at his or her last known address [Code Civ. Proc. § 587].

☐ Deliver originals of papers:

☐ Deliver the original of the official form and the originals of each of the accompanying papers to the court clerk for filing.

☐ If proof of service of summons has not been previously filed, such proof should accompany the Request for Entry of Default [see Code Civ. Proc. § 585(a), (b)].

☐ If a required Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11 statement of damages was served and proof of service of the statement has not been previously filed, such proof should accompany the Request for Entry of Default.

☐ If a statement to preserve punitive damages under Code Civ. Proc. § 425.115 has been served and proof of service of the statement has not been previously filed, such proof should accompany the Request for Entry of Default.

§ 205.72 Entry of Default Judgment by Court After Hearing

☐ Consult local court procedures to determine whether the complaint is a type for which the court requires a hearing or a type for which the court prefers to issue a judgment on the basis of declarations in lieu of personal testimony.

☐ If court requires oral prove-up hearing rather than determining case on basis of declarations, obtain hearing date:

☐ If a court judgment on the default is sought [see Code Civ. Proc. § 585(b), (c), (e)], obtain a hearing date from the clerk at the time the request for entry of default form is filed, or from the department or courtroom where the case is assigned, according to local practice.

☐ If not already filed with the clerk [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1800], prepare proposed judgment [for forms, see §§ 205.97 -205.99]:

☐ Attend hearing:

☐ Instruct persons who will be offering personal testimony to attend the hearing on the default.

☐ Attend the hearing and submit the proposed judgment to the court.

§ 205.73 Notice of Entry of Default Judgment

☐ Prepare and serve notice of entry of default judgment, if required or desired:

☐ In a contested superior court action, serve a copy of notice of entry of the default judgment on all parties who have appeared in the action and file the original notice, with proof of service by mail, with the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 664.5(a); for form, see Ch. 318, Judgments, § 318.40 et seq.].

☐ In an action involving ownership or right to possession of real or personal property, personally serve a copy of the notice of entry of judgment and shortening of time for relief on the defendant and his or her attorney of record and file the original notice and proof of service with the court, if desired to shorten defendant's time for seeking relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 [for form, see § 205.100].

§ 205.90 Request for Entry of Default and/or Default Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 585]--Judicial Council Form CIV-100

The form in [1], above, is an illustration of Cal. Judicial Council Form CIV-100, which must be used by a plaintiff or cross complainant to seek entry of a default and/or default judgment. Use of the form is mandatory; no court may use a different form [Gov. Code § 68511; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1.31].

The form has been filled in to illustrate how it might be used to request entry of default and entry of a default judgment by the court clerk. The boxes in the heading that request Entry of Default and Clerk's Judgment, therefore, are checked. For discussion of when the box entitled Court Judgment should be checked, see § 205.90[3][c], Request for Court Judgment (Paragraph 1(b)), below.

This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in

PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

CAUTION:

If attorney's fees are to be fixed by the court under Code Civ. Proc. § 585(a), this form should be accompanied by a written request for court determination of the amount of attorney's fees and for a court judgment [see Code Civ. Proc. § 585(a); § 205.91]. The request should also be accompanied by proof of service [Code Civ. Proc. § 585(a), (b)], or by proof of publication [Code Civ. Proc. § 585(c)], of the summons, as the case may be, if that proof has not previously been filed with the court clerk [see Code Civ. Proc. § 417.30(a)]. If the entry of default is requested under Code Civ. Proc. § 585(b), (c), or (e) and the court permits the use of affidavits (or declarations under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) in lieu of personal testimony pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 585(d), the request should be accompanied by the appropriate affidavits or declarations and additional documents as required by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1800.

[3] Request for Entry of Default and Default Judgment

[a] Date and Plaintiff's Name (Paragraph 1)

The date on which the complaint or cross complaint was filed should be entered at Paragraph 1(a). The blank at the end of Paragraph 1(b) should be filled in with the typed name of the plaintiff or cross claimant exactly as it appears on the complaint or cross complaint.

[b] Request That Clerk Enter Default (Paragraph 1(a))

The requesting party cannot obtain a court judgment or clerk's judgment until a default has been entered [see Code Civ. Proc. § 585(a), (b), (e)]. Therefore, unless a default has been entered pursuant to a previous request, Paragraph 1(c) must be checked and filled in with the typed name of the defendant or other defaulting party as it appears on the complaint or cross complaint. If only entry of the default is desired at this time, nothing further need be filled out [see Code Civ. Proc. § 585(a), (b), (e)]. If a default has been entered previously and a judgment is requested, Paragraph 1(c) may be left blank.

[c] Request for Court Judgment (Paragraph 1(b))

In certain cases, discussed in § 205.49[2], above, a default judgment must be entered by the court, as distinguished from a clerk's judgment (discussed under § 205.45). If a court judgment is sought, Paragraph 1(b) should be checked. The Judicial Council form does not provide an option for a court judgment for default on a cross complaint pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 585(e). When judgment is sought in this situation, the requesting party should manually insert subdivision "(e)" after " Code Civ. Proc. § 585(b), (c)," in line one of Paragraph 1(b).

If the complaint is a type for which local court practice requires a hearing, or if a hearing is desired, a hearing date should be obtained from the clerk. Otherwise, the necessary affidavits or declarations allowed by Code Civ. Proc. § 585(d) in lieu of testimony must be prepared for filing with the Request for Entry of Default.

A party who seeks a default judgment on declarations must include in the documents filed with the clerk the following [Cal Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1800]:

- Except in unlawful detainer cases, a brief summary of the case identifying the parties and the nature of plaintiff's claim;

- Declarations or other admissible evidence in support of the judgment requested;

- Interest computations as necessary;

- A memorandum of costs and disbursements (Paragraph 7 of Judicial Council Form);

- A declaration of nonmilitary status for each defendant against whom judgment is sought (Paragraph 8 of Judicial Council Form);

- A proposed form of judgment [see §§ 205.95 -205.99];

- A dismissal of all parties against whom judgment is not sought or an application for separate judgment against specified parties under Code Civ. Proc. § 579, supported by a showing of grounds for each judgment;

- Exhibits as necessary; and

- A request for attorney fees if allowed by statute or by the agreement of the parties (Paragraph 2 of Judicial Council Form and § 205.91).

For further discussion see § 205.49[5].

If the action is one for unlawful detainer, forcible detainer, or forcible entry, and the plaintiff seeks immediate restitution of the premises and a writ of execution on the judgment under Code Civ. Proc. § 1169, he or she should check Paragraph 1(c)(1) of the Judicial Council form of Request for Entry of Default.

If, however, the action is for unlawful detainer after nonpayment of rent and the lease has not expired, the requesting party should not check Paragraph 1(c)(1) if Code Civ. Proc. § 1174(c) applies. Section 1174(c) provides for a five-day stay of judgment for restitution, during which time the tenant can pay back rent together with any damages, interest, and costs, unless the notice to pay or quit stated the landlord's election to declare the lease forfeited [Code Civ. Proc. § 1174(c)]. If the five-day stay provision applies, it appears that the plaintiff should request a court judgment for restitution, as well as any damages, interest, and costs, rather than proceed under the expedited default procedure provided by Code Civ. Proc. § 1169.

The requesting party should check the box under Paragraph 1(c)(1) of the form if the default judgment is to include not only the defendants named in the complaint but also all other occupants of the premises [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1169]. The judgment will include and be enforceable against those unnamed persons if, at the time the defendants were served with process, a summons, complaint, and prejudgment claim of right to possession were also served on all other persons who might claim to have occupied the premises at the time the action was filed [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 415.46(a), (b), (e), 715.020(d)].

If a judgment for costs and damages, such as back rent, is desired in addition to restitution of the premises, the requesting party should also request a court judgment under Paragraph 1(b) of the form (discussed under § 205.90[3][c]). After the clerk enters an immediate judgment for restitution and issues the writ, the court will consider the request for a court judgment granting such additional relief [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1169].

If the action is one for damages in which the clerk may enter judgment under Code Civ. Proc. § 585(a) (discussed in § 205.45 et seq., below), the requesting party should check Paragraph 1(c)(2) of the Judicial Council form of Request for Entry of Default. In this situation the requesting party must also complete a declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 585.5 (discussed under § 205.90[5] (Paragraph 5), below).

If, however, the requesting party claims reasonable attorney fees in the absence of a court-approved fee schedule, or in excess of such a schedule, he or she should request a court judgment under Paragraph 1(b) of the form (discussed under § 205.90[3][c], above), rather than a clerk's judgment under Paragraph 1(c)(2) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 585(a)]. For further discussion regarding the recovery of attorney's fees in a judgment by the court, see § 205.49[3].

For a form of request to fix attorney's fees and enter judgment, see § 205.91.

[f] Request for Clerk's Judgment on Previously Entered Default (Paragraph 1(c)(3))

If a clerk's judgment is sought (see discussion under § 205.90[3][d], and § 205.90[3][e]), and a default has already been entered pursuant to a previous request, the requesting party should so indicate by checking Paragraph 1(c)(3) of the Judicial Council form of Request for Entry of Default and by filling in the prior date on which the clerk entered the default [see also discussion under § 205.90[3][b]].

[g] Itemizing the Monetary Request (Paragraph 2)

[i] List and Total Amounts

The requesting party must complete Paragraph 2 of the Judicial Council form of Request for Entry of Default when seeking a judgment by the clerk or court that includes any monetary award. In this paragraph the requesting party itemizes the the following amounts:

- The demand of the complaint or cross complaint, or, in the case of a complaint or cross complaint for personal injury or wrongful death in an unlimited civil case, the amount of special and general damages stated in the plaintiff's or cross complainant's Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11 statement of damages [see also discussion in the § 205.23[2][c]].

- Prejudgment interest as allowed by law or in accordance with the terms of the contract [see, e.g., Civ. Code § 3287; see also Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 9.14 (if interest is requested in excess of the usury limitations of Cal. Const., art. XV, § 1, proof must be presented of plaintiff's exemption from the usury limitations unless an exemption has been pleaded in the complaint and admitted by the entry of default)].

- Costs [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1032, 1033.5 and discussion in § 205.25[4]].

- Attorney's fees, when recovery from the defaulting party is authorized by contract or statute [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1033.5(a)(10), (c)(5); see also discussion under § 205.90[3][e], and in § 205.25[4], and § 205.49[3]].

[ii] Punitive Damage Claims

Counsel will need to modify the form if punitive damages are to be claimed on default. In that event, the plaintiff will have had to have prepared and served a statement preserving the right to punitive damages on the defendant. Although this statement may be combined with the Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11 statement, its use is not limited to personal injury or wrongful death actions in superior courts [see Code Civ. Proc. § 425.115; for discussion, see the introduction to § 205.23[2][b][ii]]. The Judicial Council has not revised the form of default to account for this additional potential source of an item of the monetary award.

[iii] Deductions for Any Credits Acknowledged

The requesting party must deduct from the foregoing amounts any "credits acknowledged," that is, any amounts previously paid by the defaulting party to the requesting party. The requesting party should then determine the balance and totals. If, however, the requesting party is seeking a court determination of attorney's fees under Code Civ. Proc. § 585(a) (see § 205.90[3][e], and in § 205.49[3]), he or she should not total the items in Paragraph 2 pending the setting of those fees.

[iv] Daily Damages

If daily damages have been demanded in the complaint, such as in an action for unlawful detainer or breach of contract, the amount demanded should be entered at Paragraph 2(g) of the form. The blank at the end of Paragraph 2(g) should be filled in with the date on which the complaint alleges that damages began to accrue.

[h] Signing and Dating the Request

The requesting party or his or her attorney must sign and date the form in the space immediately following Paragraph 2(g) of the form.

[4] Unlawful Detainer Cases (Paragraphs 3 and 4)

If a "legal document assistant" or "unlawful detainer assistant," was compensated for giving advice or assistance with the form [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 6400, 6408], Paragraphs 3 and 4 must be completed.

[5] Declaration Under Code Civ. Proc. § 585.5 (Paragraph 5)

The appropriate boxes of Paragraph 5 must be checked if entry of a default is requested under Code Civ. Proc. § 585(a) in an action arising on a contract or on a judgment for recovery of money or damages [see Code Civ. Proc. § 585.5(a)]. This declaration is intended to ensure proper venue of actions under the Unruh Retail Installment Sales Act [Civ. Code § 1801 et seq.] (Paragraph 3(a)), the Rees-Levering Motor Vehicle Sales and Finance Act [Civ. Code § 2981 et seq.] (Paragraph 3(b)), or Code Civ. Proc. § 395(b) (Paragraph 3(c)) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 585.5(a); see also discussion in § 205.25[2]].

[6] Declaration of Mailing (Paragraph 6)

The person mailing the request to enter default must complete the Declaration of Mailing, by checking Paragraph 6(a) and giving the name or names of defendants who cannot be located or by checking Paragraph 6(b) and filling in the date of mailing and the names and addresses of the attorney or party to whom the request was mailed [see Code Civ. Proc. § 587].

The declaration of mailing must be signed under penalty of perjury by the person mailing the copy of the request to enter default or by someone with knowledge of such mailing [see Code Civ. Proc. § 587]. For further discussion, see § 205.25[3].

[7] Memorandum of Costs (Paragraph 7)

[a] In General

The memorandum of costs should be completed by itemizing costs and necessary disbursements in the action or proceeding. The term "costs" refers to recoverable expenses fixed in amount, by statute or otherwise, whereas the term "disbursements" refers to recoverable expenses not fixed in amount [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1033.5 (costs allowed); see also Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees, § 174.10 et seq.].

A party seeking a default judgment who claims costs must request them on the Request for Entry of Default form (Application to Enter Default) (Judicial Council Form CIV-100) at the time of applying for the judgment [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1700(a)(2)]. The memorandum must be certified by the oath of the party or his or her attorney or agent, or by the clerk of the attorney, stating that to the best of the declarant's knowledge and belief the items are correct, and that the disbursements have been necessarily incurred in the action or proceeding [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1700(a)(1)].

For further discussion, see § 205.25[4].

[8] Declaration of Nonmilitary Status (Paragraph 8)

If it is known that defendant is not in military service or, in the case of multiple defendants, that none of them is in military service, the declaration at Paragraph 8 should be completed [see 50 U.S.C. App. § 521; Mil. & Vet. Code § 402(a)]. The filing of this declaration, or one in lieu of it, is required by the state statutory protections for members of National Guard and reservists called to active duty before entry of a default judgment against a defendant [see Mil. & Vet. Code § 402(a)]. A declaration of nonmilitary service is also required under the Servicemembers Civil Relief Act for active members of the military as defined under the act [50 U.S.C. App. § 521]. For further discussion, see § 205.25[5][a].

WARNING:

The declaration of military status in Judicial Council Form CIV-100 may not satisfy federal statutory requirements as amended by the 2003 Servicemembers Civil Relief Act (formerly the Soldiers' and Sailors' Civil Relief Act). The federal statute requires the filing of a declaration as to military status of the defendant before a default judgment can be entered. The declaration must state whether or not the defendant is in military service, but the declaration must be more than the mere statement in the Judicial Council Form because it must contain facts necessary to support the declaration [50 U.S.C. App. § 521(b)(1)]. If the plaintiff is unable to determine whether the defendant is in military service under the Act, the plaintiff must file a declaration so stating. Thus, a declaration should be filed in addition to Paragraph 8 of this Judicial Council Form [see § 205.92 (form of declaration); see also Mil. & Vet. Code § 402(a)].

[2] Use of Form

The form of request to fix attorney's fees and enter judgment in [1], above, may be used by a plaintiff to obtain a default judgment under Code Civ. Proc. § 585(a) when plaintiff wishes the court to set the recoverable attorney's fees because a schedule of attorney's fees has not been adopted by the court or the plaintiff is dissatisfied with the fee permitted by the schedule. This application should be filed with the Request for Entry of Default if counsel desires immediate entry of a judgment. A hearing date should be obtained from the clerk [see Code Civ. Proc. § 585(a); see also discussion in § 205.49[3] above].

I, _____ [name], declare:

I am the _____ [plaintiff or attorney for plaintiff] in the above-entitled action.

This declaration is in support of plaintiff's application for default judgment against _____ [name], the/a defendant in the above-entitled action. The declaration is made to comply with the provisions of the Act of Congress cited as the Servicemembers Civil Relief Act and the state protections for servicemembers and reservists as provided in Military and Veterans Code section 400 et seq.

[EITHER to declare nonmilitary status]

_____ [Name], _____ [the or a] defendant in the above-entitled action, is not presently in the military service within the meaning of that Act.

_____ [Specify facts within declarant's personal knowledge tending to show that defendant is a civilian, such as residence, full time occupation, results of inquiry of armed services, etc.]

[OR to declare status as member of military]

_____ [Name], the/a defendant in the above-entitled action, is, at the date hereof, a person in the military service of the United States, within the meaning of the Act [Servicemembers Civil Relief Act and/or the state protections for servicemembers and reservists as provided in Military and Veterans Code section 400 et seq.], in that he/she is _____ [a member of the Army of the United States or a member of the United States Marine Corps or a member of the United States Coast Guard or a member of the United States Air Force or an officer of the Public Health Service detailed by proper authority for duty with the _____ (Army or Navy) or a person being trained or educated under the supervision of the United States preliminary to induction into military service or an officer or enlisted member of the National Guard called or ordered into active state service by the Governor or President for a period in excess of seven days in any 14-day period or a reservists of the United States Military Reserve who haw been called to full-time active duty for a period in excess of seven days in any 14-day period].

[2] Use of Form

The form of declaration in [1], above, should be used by a plaintiff seeking a default judgment to make the required declaration regarding the defendant's military status. The form should be submitted in lieu of or in addition to the declaration printed on the Judicial Council form of request for entry of default [see § 205.90; 50 U.S.C. App. § 521(b); Mil. & Vet. Code § 402(a), and discussion in § 205.25[5][a] et seq.]. Judicial Council Form CIV-100, Request for Entry of Default, has not yet been revised to reflect the requirements of the 2003 changes made by the Servicemembers Civil Relief Act, and providing the form, above, in addition to the Judicial Council form is the better practice. Counsel may then file an application for the appointment of an attorney to represent defendant [Form § 205.93], and obtain a court order for entry of the default judgment [Form § 205.94].

For the definition of "persons in military service," see 50 U.S.C. App. § 511(1); Mil. & Vet. Code § 400. For the applicability of the Soldiers' and Sailors' Civil Relief Act of 1940 [50 U.S.C. App. §§ 501-591] to state courts, see 50 U.S.C. App. § 512. For filing an "in lieu" declaration of military status, see 50 U.S.C. App. § 520(1).

[3] Declaration Under Penalty of Perjury

Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5, 50 U.S.C. App. § 521; Mil. & Vet. Code § 402(a) authorize use of a declaration under penalty of perjury, as in the foregoing form, in lieu of an affidavit. For a form of an affidavit see Ch. 15, Affidavits, Certificates, and Declarations .

[2] Use of Form

The form of ex parte application for order in [1], above, is for use by a plaintiff seeking to have a default judgment entered against a defendant who is in military service. An attorney must be appointed prior to entry of any judgment to represent the interests of a defendant who is in military service if the defendant does not appear [50 U.S.C. App. § 521(b)(2); Mil. & Vet. Code § 402(a)]. Since the attorney is to be appointed for a defendant who by reason of military service does not appear in the action, the application would logically be an ex parte matter.

For the appointment of an attorney to represent a defendant in military service as required before entry of default judgment, see 50 U.S.C. App. § 521(b)(2); Mil. & Vet. Code § 402(a). For discussion on the acts of appointed attorney as not binding on a defendant, see 50 U.S.C. App. § 521(b)(2); Mil. & Vet. Code § 402(c).

[3] Contents of Application

The contents of this form are based in part on former Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 400, § 8, which required that the application state (1) the branch of military service that the defendant is in; (2) his or her service mailing address; (3) when the time to plead expired; (4) whether any pleading has been filed on his or her behalf; and (5) any other pertinent fact. Although no longer specifically required by the Los Angeles rules, this information appears to be appropriate to give the court adequate background for the proceeding. Optional Paragraph 3 may be used if appropriate, pursuant to local court rule or practice, to identify an attorney to represent the defendant's interests.

The form of verification shown here complies with the requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5.

The form of order in [1], above, may be used to obtain a default judgment from the clerk by a plaintiff who has filed an affidavit or declaration stating his or her inability to determine the defaulting defendant's military status [see § 205.92]. Under state law [Mil. & Vet. Code § 400 et seq.], if plaintiff does not know whether defendant is in military service, no judgment can be entered on the defendant's default unless plaintiff first obtains a court order directing such entry [Mil. & Vet. Code § 402(a)].

In this action defendant _____ [name], having been regularly served with summons and copy of the complaint and having failed to file an answer or other responsive pleading within the time prescribed by law, and the default of the defendant having been duly entered on _____ [date], on application of the plaintiff to the Clerk for judgment,

[EITHER]

JUDGMENT IS ENTERED for plaintiff against defendant in the sum of $_____, principal, with interest thereon at the rate of _____ percent to the date hereof [, attorney fees in the sum of _____], and the costs and disbursements of plaintiff in the sum of $_____, for an amount totalling $_____; together with interest on the judgment as provided by law.

[OR]

JUDGMENT IS ENTERED for plaintiff, and plaintiff shall recover from defendant [and any and all tenants, subtenants, named claimants, and other occupants] the restitution and possession of those premises situated in the County of _____, State of California, and more particularly described as _____ [specify].

[CONTINUE]

Judgment entered, _____ [date].

_____ [signature]
Clerk
By: _____ [signature]
Deputy Clerk

[2] Use of Form

The form of judgment in [1], above, may be used to obtain entry of a default judgment by the clerk pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 585(a). Local court practice may require use of a preprinted form, however, and counsel should check with the clerk of the court to determine whether such a form is available.

An alternative paragraph is provided for use when the default judgment is obtained in an unlawful detainer case seeking restitution of the premises [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1169].

[3] Contents of Form

The clerk is authorized to enter judgment in an action arising on a contract or a judgment for recovery of money or damages only [for discussion, see the Introduction, § 205.45, above]. The clerk's judgment will award plaintiff the principal amount demanded in the complaint or a lesser amount if defendant has made payments to plaintiff, interest allowed by law or in accordance with the terms of the contract, and costs. If by rule of court a schedule of attorney's fees has been adopted, the judgment may also include such fees if the contract or statute involved provides for recovery of attorney's fees [Code Civ. Proc. § 585(a)].

The clerk is also authorized to enter judgment for restitution of premises in an unlawful detainer action. If the complaint sought other relief, such as damages, the plaintiff may then apply for a court judgment for the remainder of the relief demanded [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1169]. For discussion of the circumstances in which the judgment for restitution of the premises includes all the occupants, whether they were named in the complaint or not, see the Comments to § 205.90.

The cross defendant, _____ [name], has been served with the cross complaint filed herein and has failed to answer or respond to it, and the default of the cross defendant has been duly entered. This court having found that a separate judgment on the cross complaint may be properly awarded in this action and that a separate judgment on the cross complaint would not substantially delay the final disposition of the action between the parties.

IT IS ORDERED that cross complainant have and recover judgment from the cross defendant in the sum of $_____ [principal or damages]; interest thereon at the rate of _____ percent per annum to the date hereof; [attorney's fees in the sum of $_____;] and cross complainant's costs and disbursements in the sum of $_____; together with interest on such judgment as provided by law.
Dated: _____.

Judge

The form of judgment in [1], above, may be used by a cross complainant in obtaining the entry of a default judgment by the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 585(e)]. Because a default judgment on a cross complaint may not be entered unless a separate judgment may be properly awarded on it and the court finds that a separate judgment on the cross complaint would not substantially delay the final disposition of the action between the parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 585(e)], a default judgment on a cross complaint must always be obtained through the court.

The form may be modified for use when the cross complaint has been filed by a defendant against another defendant [for alternative captions for cross complaints, see Ch. 123, Complaints and Cross Complaints].

For a court determination of attorney's fees, see Code Civ. Proc. § 585(a). For use of affidavits in lieu of personal testimony in hearing on application for default judgment by court, see Code Civ. Proc. § 585(d). For entry of default judgment by court on a cross complaint, see Code Civ. Proc. § 585(e).

Chapter 206 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART I. SCOPE

§ 206.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter covers proceedings on demurrer to test the sufficiency of pleadings contained in a complaint, cross complaint, or answer. The Legal Background defines demurrers and discusses the grounds for demurrers [see §§ 206.11 -206.14], and the requirements for drafting, serving, and filing demurrers and related papers, and the responses available to an opposing party [see §§ 206.15 -206.24], as well as the requirements and considerations relating to the hearing and ruling on the demurrer and postruling matters [see §§ 206.25 -206.37]. A Research Guide [see § 206.80 et seq.] and Procedural Checklists [see § 206.100 et seq.] are also provided. This chapter also includes the following forms relating to demurrers:

- Skeletal forms of demurrers to complaints [see § 206.120] and answers [see § 206.131].
- Forms that state the various grounds for objection and that may be incorporated in the body of the skeletal forms of demurrers including:
    - Objections to a complaint or cross complaint [see §§ 206.121 -206.130].
    - Objections to an answer [see §§ 206.132 -206.134].
- Notice of hearing on demurrer [see § 206.135].
- Stipulations for postponing the hearing on a demurrer [see §§ 206.136- 138].
- Order on a demurrer [see § 206.139].
- Notice of the court's ruling [see § 206.140].
- Notice of motion for reconsideration of the ruling [see § 206.141].
- Ex parte application and order [see §§ 206.142 -206.143] for use in dismissing a complaint when a plaintiff has failed to amend his or her complaint after a demurrer was sustained with leave to amend.

This chapter also discusses the procedure for obtaining, on motion, a judgment on the pleadings by reason of defects appearing on the face of the pleading or from matter of which the court must [Evid. Code § 451] or may [Evid. Code §§ 452, 453] take judicial notice [see §§ 206.50 et seq.]. A Research Guide [see § 206.90 et seq.] and Procedural Checklists [see § 206.110 et seq.] are also provided. This chapter includes the following forms relating to motions for judgment on the pleadings:

- Notice of motion for judgment on the pleadings [§ 206.150] and an order on the motion [see § 206.151].

- Notice of motion to strike an amended pleading filed after a motion for judgment on the pleadings has been granted with leave to amend when the amended pleading is untimely or violates the prior ruling [see § 206.152].

- Notice of motion to enter judgment when no amended pleading is filed after a motion for judgment on the pleadings has been granted with leave to amend [see § 206.153].

- Judgment [see § 206.154].

§ 206.10 Governing Law

Demurrers are governed generally by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 422.10, 430.10-430.80, 472a-472d, 589, 591, 1014 and by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 1.6, 2.100-2.119, 3.1100, 3.1103(b), (c), 3.1109, 3.1112, 3.1113(a), 3.1320, 3.1326. Their service and filing are governed by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 465, 1011-1013, 1015, 1017, 1020 and by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1.6(15), (19), 1.20. Proof of service is governed by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1013a, 2009, 2015.5. The amendment of pleadings, which includes demurrers (see Code Civ. Proc. § 422.10), is governed by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 471.5, 472, 473.

The dismissal of an action after a demurrer to the complaint or cross complaint is sustained without leave to amend, or with leave to amend and no amendment is filed, is governed by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 581(f)(1), (2), 581d and by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1320(h). The entry of a default judgment against a defendant who fails to plead to an amended complaint or to answer a complaint after his, her, or its demurrer to it has been overruled is governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 586(a)(1), (2).

Other statutory provisions authorize the use of a demurrer pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10 in specific actions [see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. § 340.1(j) (failure to file certificates in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. § 340.1 in action by plaintiff 26 years of age or older to recover damages suffered as a result of childhood sexual abuse)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Demurrers

17-206 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 206.11

§ 206.11 Demurrer Defined

[1] Responsive Pleading That Objects to Facially Defective Accusatory Pleading

A demurrer is a essentially a pleading filed in response to one of the other types of pleadings [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 422.10, 430.10, 430.20]. The other types of pleadings are a complaint and cross complaint, which are accusatory pleadings, and an answer, which, like a demurrer, is also a responsive pleading [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 412.20(a)(3), (4), 422.10, 425.10, 430.10, 430.20, 431.20, 431.30, 432.10, 585(a)].

Unlike these other pleadings, a demurrer cannot allege facts, deny facts, or otherwise allude to extrinsic evidence not subject to judicial notice [see, e.g., Cook v. de la Guerra (1864) 24 Cal. 237, 239 ; Hayward v. Henderson (1979) 88 Cal. App. 3d 64, 71, 151 Cal. Rptr. 505 ; see also Gould v. Maryland Sound Industries, Inc. (1995) 31 Cal. App. 4th 1137, 1144 (defendants cannot state facts in their demurrers that, if true, would defeat plaintiff's complaint)].

A demurrer simply objects to the pleading in question on the ground that the pleading contains a defect that appears from examination of the pleading itself or from examination of the pleading together with judicially noticed facts [see Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30; for discussion of the specific defects that constitute grounds for objection by demurrer, see § 206.13, below].

Thus, a demurrer only raises issues of law to be tried by the court [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 589, 591; Pescosolido v. Maddock (1985) 172 Cal. App. 3d 230, 232, 218 Cal. Rptr. 165] , and its primary function is to test the sufficiency of the pleading it challenges by raising these questions of law [see E-Fab, Inc. v. Accountants, Inc. Services (2007) 153 Cal. App. 4th 1308, 1315-1316, 64 Cal. Rptr. 3d 9 (complaint must show on its face that action is barred by statute of limitations; it is not enough for the complaint to show merely that the action may be barred); see also Salimi v. State Comp. Ins. Fund (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 216, 219, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 640 ; Nordlinger v. Lynch (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 1259, 1271, 275 Cal. Rptr. 684 ; see also Boyle v. City of Redondo Beach (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 1109, 1114 n.2, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 164 (demurrer tests legal sufficiency of factual allegations in complaint); accord Stevens v. Superior Court (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 594, 608-609, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 370] . A demurrer is not the appropriate procedure for determining the truth of disputed facts or what inferences should be drawn when competing inferences are possible [

CrossTalk Productions, Inc. v. Jacobson (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 631, 635, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 615 ; see also Ball v. GTE Mobilnet of California (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 529, 534-535, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 801 (general demurrer challenges only legal sufficiency of complaint, not truth or accuracy of its factual allegations or plaintiff's ability to prove those allegations)].

[2] "General" vs. "Special" Demurrers

The terms "general demurrer" and "special demurrer" do not generally appear in statutory language (but see Code Civ. Proc. § 92(a), (c) and discussion under § 206.12[2], below). They are, however, distinctions commonly used by courts and counsel.

A "general demurrer" is a demurrer to a complaint or cross complaint on the ground the challenged pleading fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(e)] or, alternatively, a demurrer to an answer on the ground it does not state facts sufficient to constitute a defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.20(a); for further discussion, see § 206.13[1], [2], below].

A "special demurrer" is one that is based on any of the other grounds for objection set out in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10 and 430.20 (discussed under § 206.13[1] and § 206.13[2], below) [see Timberidge Enterprises, Inc. v. City of Santa Rosa (1978) 86 Cal. App. 3d 873, 879-880, 150 Cal. Rptr. 606 (demurrer to answer); Buss v. J.O. Martin Co. (1966) 241 Cal. App. 2d 123, 133, 50 Cal. Rptr. 206 (demurrer to complaint or cross complaint)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Demurrers

17-206 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 206.12

§ 206.12 Proceedings in Which Demurrers May Be Used

[1] In Civil Actions

A demurrer may be filed generally in any civil action [Code Civ. Proc. § 422.10; see also Code Civ. Proc. §§ 21-32 (distinguishing civil actions, special proceedings, and criminal actions)].

[2] Special Demurrers Prohibited in Most Limited Civil Cases

Special demurrers, as distinguished from general demurrers, are not allowed in limited civil cases [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 91(a), 92(c); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 91(b) (restriction not applicable in small claims, unlawful detainer, forcible entry, and forcible detainer actions)].

[3] Use of Demurrers Limited in Special Proceedings

A demurrer may be filed in a special proceeding of a civil nature if the statutes governing the particular special proceeding expressly so provide. Examples of such statutes are Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1069.1 (certiorari), 1089 (mandate), 1105 (prohibition), 1170 (unlawful or forcible detainer or forcible entry), and 1250.350 (eminent domain).

Absent express statutory authority, a demurrer may nevertheless be filed in a special proceeding if the statutes governing the special proceeding incorporate the provisions of Part 2 of the Code of Civil Procedure (which governs civil actions and includes the demurrer statutes, that is, Code Civ. Proc. §§ 422.10, 430.10-430.80, 472a-472d, 581, 591), provided a demurrer would not be inconsistent with the legislative purpose intended to be accomplished by the special proceeding.

A demurrer may not be used in certain special proceedings in which courts have held its use to be inappropriate or unauthorized [see, e.g., In re Fred J. (1979) 89 Cal. App. 3d 168, 176, 152 Cal. Rptr. 327 (demurrer held unauthorized in proceeding under Welf. & Inst. Code § 300 to declare minor a dependent child of juvenile court, although procedure "akin" to demurrer might be used to question sufficiency of notice)] or in which demurrers are expressly prohibited by the statutes or rules that govern the particular special proceeding [see, e.g., Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.108 (forbidding demurrers in proceedings under the Family Law Act unless otherwise specifically permitted under the rules)].

[4] Class Actions

For discussion of the use of demurrers in class actions, see Ch. 120, Class Actions .

[5] Limitation on Use of Demurrers Against Common Counts

Generally, claims alleged by common counts are not subject to demurrer [see Farmers Ins. Exchange v. Zerin (1997) 53 Cal. App. 4th 445, 460 (allegation of claim using common counts sufficient against general or special demurrers)]. When a complaint pleads a single cause of action in different counts (that is, separately stated theories of relief for the same cause of action or injury), however, there may be instances when a joined common count is subject to a demurrer [see, e.g., Farmers Ins. Exchange v. Zerin (1997) 53 Cal. App. 4th 445, 460, 61 Cal. Rptr. 2d 707 (common count was subject to demurrer when it incorporated allegations of all preceding claims including allegation of equitable lien and court concluded under other alleged theories of relief that plaintiff had no such equitable lien thereby so that plaintiff had no claim for money had and received); see also discussion under § 206.16[3], below, and Ch. 121, Common Counts].

§ 206.13 Grounds for Demurrer

[1] Objections to Complaint or Cross Complaint

The party against whom a complaint or cross complaint has been filed may object, by demurrer or answer as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30, to the pleading on any one or more of the following grounds:

- The court has no jurisdiction of the subject of the cause of action alleged in the pleading [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(a); for further discussion, see § 206.14[3], below; for a form, see § 206.123, below].

- The person who filed the pleading does not have the legal capacity to sue [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(b); for further discussion, see § 206.14[2], below; for a form, see § 206.124, below].

- There is another action pending between the same parties on the same cause of action [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(c); for further discussion, see § 206.14[4], below; for a form, see § 206.125, below].

- There is a defect or misjoinder of parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(d); for further discussion, see § 206.14[5], [6] below; for forms, see §§ 206.126 and 206.127, below].

- The pleading does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(e); for further discussion, see § 206.14[1], below; for a form, see § 206.122, below].

- The pleading is uncertain (the term "uncertain" including any pleading that is ambiguous or unintelligible, or both) [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(f); for further discussion, see § 206.14[7], below; for a form, see § 206.128, below].

- In an action founded on a contract, it cannot be ascertained from the pleading whether the contract is written or oral or implied by conduct [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(g); for further discussion, see § 206.14[8], below; for a form, see § 206.129, below].

- In an action for damages or indemnity for professional negligence of a certified architect, registered professional engineer, or a licensed land surveyor, the certificate required by Code Civ. Proc. § 411.35 has not been filed [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 411.35(g), 430.10(h); for further discussion, see § 206.14[9], below; for a form, see § 206.130, below].

For discussion regarding when these objections may be raised by demurrer, see § 206.15[1], below.

Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(i) also lists the failure to file a certificate required by former Code Civ. Proc. § 411.36 as a ground for demurrer, but Section 411.36 was repealed by its own terms effective January 1, 1997.

[2] Objections to Answer

A party against whom an answer has been filed may object by demurrer to the answer on any of the following grounds [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.20]:

- The answer does not state facts sufficient to constitute a defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.20(a); for further discussion, see § 206.14[1], below; for a form, see § 206.132, below].

- The answer is uncertain, which includes ambiguity and unintelligibility [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.20(b); for further discussion, see § 206.14[7], below; for a form, see § 206.133, below].

- When the answer pleads a contract, it cannot be ascertained from the answer whether the contract is written or oral [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.20(c); for further discussion, see § 206.14[8], below; for a form, see § 206.134, below].

For discussion regarding when these objections may be raised by demurrer, see § 206.15[2], below.

[3] Objections to Complaint in Intervention

Whether an objection to a complaint in intervention [see Code Civ. Proc. § 387] may be made on the grounds specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10 (discussed under § 206.13[1], above) or Code Civ. Proc. § 430.20 (discussed under § 206.13[2], above) depends on whether the intervening party is to be regarded as a plaintiff or as a defendant in the action. If the intervenor joins with plaintiff or otherwise assumes the role of a plaintiff, an objection to the complaint in intervention may be on any of the grounds enumerated in Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10. If the intervenor unites with a defendant, an objection to the complaint in intervention has the legal effect of an objection to the answer and may be made on any of the grounds enumerated in Code Civ. Proc. § 430.20 [see Timberidge Enterprises, Inc. v. City of Santa Rosa (1978) 86 Cal. App. 3d 873, 879-880, 150 Cal. Rptr. 606 ; for discussion of intervention generally, see Ch. 395, Parties].

[4] Objections to Pleadings Filed in Special Proceeding

Additional or alternative grounds of demurrer to a pleading filed in a special proceeding may be found in the particular statutes governing the special proceeding [see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1250.350-1250.370 (proceeding in eminent domain)].

[5] Statutory Grounds for Objections Are Exclusive

The statutory grounds for demurrer are exclusive [Kyle v. Craig (1899) 125 Cal. 107, 111, 57 P. 791 (involving predecessor statutes)].

§ 206.14 Analysis of Particular Objections

[1] Failure to State Cause of Action

[a] General Demurrer

A party may demur to a complaint or cross complaint if the pleading appears not to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(e)].

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 430.80(a), the objection that the complaint or cross complaint does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action is not waived by failure to raise it by demurrer or answer. The objection may normally be raised at any point in the proceeding [see Wilson v. Sharp (1954) 42 Cal. 2d 675, 677, 268 P.2d 1062 ; Fried v. Municipal Court (1949) 94 Cal. App. 2d 376, 378, 210 P.2d 883 ; see also Wilson v. Houston Funeral Home (1996) 42 Cal. App. 4th 1124, 1132, 50 Cal. Rptr. 2d 161] , for example, by a motion for judgment on the pleadings [see § 206.50 et seq., below], by an objection at trial to the introduction of evidence [see, e.g., Parker v. Bowron (1953) 40 Cal. 2d 344, 349-350, 254 P.2d 6 (affirming judgment where issue was raised in that manner, without directly holding it to be appropriate)], or on appeal [Greene v. Municipal Court (1975) 51 Cal. App. 3d 446, 450, 124 Cal. Rptr. 139 ; Halbert v. Berlinger (1954) 127 Cal. App. 2d 6, 15, 273 P.2d 274] .

The objection may be made the basis of a motion for summary judgment [Bowden v. Robinson (1977) 67 Cal. App. 3d 705, 710, 136 Cal. Rptr. 871] , in which event the motion for summary judgment, in effect, operates as a motion for judgment on the pleadings [C. L. Smith Co. v. Roger Ducharme, Inc. (1977) 65 Cal. App. 3d 735, 744-745, 135 Cal. Rptr. 483] .

Notwithstanding the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 430.80(a), the objection that the pleading fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action may be waived in certain cases when it is not raised by demurrer or answer. Examples are as follows:

- The failure of the pleading to state a cause of action results from the fact that the action appears on the face of the pleading or from judicially noticed matter to be barred by the statute of limitations [see

Hall v. Chamberlin (1948) 31 Cal. 2d 673, 679-680, 192 P.2d 759 ; Burke v. Maguire (1908) 154 Cal. 456, 462-463, 98 P. 21 ; for discussion, see Ch. 345, Limitation of Actions, § 345.28].

- The failure to state a cause of action results from the pleading of an essential allegation as a legal conclusion rather than as an ultimate fact [see Penrose v. Winter (1901) 135 Cal. 289, 290-291, 67 P. 772 (action to foreclose mortgage; court held that material fact of nonpayment is implied in averment that specified sum "is now due and owing," a legal conclusion rather than an ultimate fact, and is sufficient to sustain judgment by default; court overruled Ryan v. Holliday (1895) 110 Cal. 335, 337, 42 P. 891 , on this point)].

- Proof admitted at trial without objection establishes the existence of a cause of action defectively pleaded and the pleading is amended pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 469 to conform to proof.

- The action is tried on the theory that the defective pleading in fact states a cause of action and raises material issues that are decided by the verdict or judgment and the defect is nonprejudicial to the other party [see Steffen v. Refrigeration Discount Corp. (1949) 91 Cal. App. 2d 494, 500, 205 P.2d 727 ; Flennaugh v. Heinrich (1948) 89 Cal. App. 2d 214, 219-220, 200 P.2d 580 ; Drullinger v. Erskine (1945) 71 Cal. App. 2d 492, 496-497, 163 P.2d 48] . In this case, a new trial or reversal of the judgment for error as to pleading is prohibited by the provision of Cal. Const., art VI, § 13.

[b] Choice of Substantive Law

Whether the complaint states facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action will depend on the substantive law to be followed, which is not necessarily the law of the forum. For example, an action properly commenced in a California court may be based on the substantive law of another state because the events in question occurred there [see, e.g., Pacific Diamond Co. v. Superior Court (1978) 85 Cal. App. 3d 871, 875-878, 149 Cal. Rptr. 813 (Colorado law as governing issue whether innkeeper is liable on account of theft of diamonds from guest in guest's room at innkeeper's Denver hotel)].

[c] Essential Element Omitted

A complaint or cross complaint fails to state a cause of action if it omits an essential element of the cause of action sought to be stated. Examples are as follows:

- Failure to allege facts showing existence of legal duty [see, e.g., Beauchene v. Synanon Foundation, Inc. (1979) 88 Cal. App. 3d 342, 348, 151 Cal. Rptr. 796 ; see Ch. 380, Negligence].

- Failure to allege breach of duty or proximate cause [see, e.g., Marsiglia v. Dozier (1911) 161 Cal. 403, 405, 119 P. 505 ; Potter v. Richards (1955) 132 Cal. App. 2d 380, 384-385, 282 P.2d 113 ; see Ch. 380, Negligence].

- Failure to allege exhaustion of administrative or contract remedies if that is a condition precedent to maintenance of the action [see, e.g., State of California v. Superior Court (2004) 32 Cal. 4th 1234, 13 Cal. Rptr. 3d 534, 90 P.3d 116 (failure to allege facts demonstrating or excusing compliance with claim presentation requirement of Tort Claims Act); Hood v. Hacienda La Puente Unified School Dist. (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 435, 439-441, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 448 (administrative remedies); Hayward v. Henderson (1979) 88 Cal. App. 3d 64, 70, 151 Cal. Rptr. 505 (administrative remedies); A. Teichert & Son, Inc. v. State of Cal. (1965) 238 Cal. App. 2d 736, 746, 48 Cal. Rptr. 225 (contract remedies; disapproved on other grounds in E. H. Morrill Co. v. State of California (1967) 65 Cal. 2d 787, 792, 56 Cal. Rptr. 479, 423 P.2d 551); see also Dalton v. East Bay Mun. Utility Dist. (1993) 18 Cal. App. 4th 1566, 1573-1574, 23 Cal. Rptr. 2d 230 (failure to file claim under California Tort Claims Act)].

The fact that a trial court is acting in excess of its jurisdiction if it improperly overrules the demurrer and proceeds to hear the case without requiring exhaustion of administrative remedies does not convert the ground of demurrer from failure to state a cause of action to lack of subject matter jurisdiction, since the failure to have alleged exhaustion of administrative remedies may simply have been an oversight and the complaint can properly be amended to include such allegation. Should the trial court overrule the demurrer, it would appear that the defendant should petition a higher court for a writ of mandate compelling the lower court to set aside its order and to make an order sustaining the demurrer [see Abelleira v. District Court of Appeal (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 280, 287-296, 109 P.2d 942] .

If an amended complaint is filed that alleges exhaustion of the administrative remedies, defendant may respond appropriately to the allegation in his, her, or its answer. If the amended complaint alleges exhaustion of part but not all of the administrative remedies and fails to allege sufficient excuse for the nonexhaustion or if it alleges simply that plaintiff did not exhaust his, her, or its administrative remedies and shows no legal excuse therefor, it appears the amended complaint would be subject to demurrer on the ground the court lacks jurisdiction of the subject matter, since exhaustion of administrative remedies is a jurisdictional prerequisite to resort to the courts [Abelleira v. District Court of Appeal (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 280, 293, 109 P.2d 942 (petition for writ of mandate affirmatively alleged administrative remedies had not been exhausted)].

[d] No Cause of Action on Any Theory Stated

A complaint or cross complaint fails to state a cause of action if the cause of action alleged does not lie and no cause of action on any theory is stated [see, e.g., Otworth v. Southern Pac. Transportation Co. (1985) 166 Cal. App. 3d 452, 461, 212 Cal. Rptr. 743 (no abuse of discretion in sustaining demurrer since complaint for conversion, breach of contract, unjust enrichment, and violation of due process failed to allege essential facts and elements of causes of action); City Products Corp. v. Globe Indemnity Co. (1979) 88 Cal. App. 3d 31, 35-42, 151 Cal. Rptr. 494 (demurrer by insurance company to insured's complaint for breach of contract to recover punitive damages assessed against insured in prior action for malicious prosecution held properly sustained without leave to amend since recovery is barred by Ins. Code § 533 and public policy requires that burden of such damages be borne by party against whom they were assessed and not passed on to party's insurer)].

[e] Action Is Premature

A complaint or cross complaint fails to state a cause of action if it shows on its face that the action is premature [see, e.g., Royal Globe Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1979) 23 Cal. 3d 880, 892, 153 Cal. Rptr. 842, 592 P.2d 329 (overruled on other grounds in Moradi-Shalal v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Companies (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 287, 292, 250 Cal. Rptr. 116, 758 P.2d 58); see also Breneric Associates v. City of Del Mar (1998) 69 Cal. App. 4th 166, 188, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 324 (demurrer may be sustained when complaint shows on face claim not ripe for adjudication)].

[f] Lack of Standing to Sue

A complaint or cross complaint fails to state a cause of action if it shows on its face that the cause of action alleged is in someone other than the plaintiff or cross complainant and, therefore, the pleader lacks standing to sue [see Code Civ. Proc. § 367 (requiring with specified exceptions that action be prosecuted in name of real party in interest); Parker v. Bowron (1953) 40 Cal. 2d 344, 351, 254 P.2d 6 (distinguishing this ground from lack of legal capacity to sue, a ground of special demurrer [see § 206.124]); Klopstock v. Superior Court (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 13, 19, 108 P.2d 906 ; Charpentier v. Los Angeles Rams Football Co. (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 301, 307, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 115 ; see also Gulf Ins. Co. v. TIG Ins. Co. (2001) 86 Cal. App. 4th 422, 428-433, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 305 (surety could not bring bad faith action against general liability insurer); Sacramento County Fire Protection Dist. v. Sacramento County Assessment Appeals Bd. (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 327, 331, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 215 (standing to sue goes to existence of cause of action, i.e., whether plaintiff has right to relief in court; demurrer can be used to challenge standing)]. For further discussion, see Ch. 123, Complaints and Cross Complaints .

[g] Affirmative Defense Appears on Face of Pleading

A complaint or cross complaint fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action if it shows on its face or it appears from judicially noticed matter that the action is barred by an affirmative defense [see, e.g., Halvorsen v. Aramark Uniform Services, Inc. (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 1383, 1391, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 383 (when complaint affirmatively alleges facts amounting to an affirmative defense, it is subject to demurrer); Sissle v. Stefenoni (1979) 88 Cal. App. 3d 633, 635-636, 152 Cal. Rptr. 56 (judgment of dismissal following sustaining of general demurrer to complaint for wrongful death affirmed when complaint on its face showed action was barred by decedent's willful misconduct)]. The affirmative defense must clearly appear on the face of the complaint to support a demurrer [CrossTalk Productions, Inc. v. Jacobson (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 631, 635, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 615] .

A demurrer based on an affirmative defense cannot be granted when the action might be barred by the defense, but is not necessarily barred [CrossTalk Productions, Inc. v. Jacobson (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 631, 635, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 615] .

Other examples of affirmative defenses that may appear on the face of the pleading or from judicially noticed matter include the following:

- Action is time-barred [Lockley v. Law Office of Cantrell, Green, Pekich, Cruz & McCort (2001) 91 Cal. App. 4th 875, 881, 110 Cal. Rptr. 2d 877 (demurrer on the ground of bar of the statute of limitations must appear clearly and affirmatively that, upon the face of the complaint, the right of action is necessarily barred; however, not applicable unless the complaint alleges every fact which the defendant would be required to prove if he or she were to plead the bar of the applicable statute of limitation as an affirmative defense; see Ch. 345, Limitation of Actions].

- Laches [Kleinclaus v. Dutard (1905) 147 Cal. 245, 248, 250, 81 P. 516 ; Warren v. Atchison, T. & S.F. Ry. Co. (1971) 19 Cal. App. 3d 24, 36, 96 Cal. Rptr. 317 (general demurrer to complaint on basis of laches as not subject to being sustained, absent showing on face of complaint of unexplained, unreasonable delay and some prejudicial effect].

- Statute of frauds [Gressley v. Williams (1961) 193 Cal. App. 2d 636, 640-641, 14 Cal. Rptr. 496 ; see Ch. 530 Statute of Frauds].

- Res judicata [Weil v. Barthel (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 835, 837, 291 P.2d 30 ; see Ch. 491, Res Judicata].

- Absolute privilege [Easton v. Sutter Coast Hospital (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 485, 490, 95 Cal. Rptr. 2d 316 (tort actions based on events following health practitioner's report of suspected elder abuse, subject of absolute privilege under Welf. & Inst. Code § 15634); Goodley v. Sullivant (1973) 32 Cal. App. 3d 619, 625-626, 108 Cal. Rptr. 451 (defamation action based on statements made in relation to proceedings of hospital's liaison, executive, and grievance committees, disapproved on other grounds in Hackethal v. Weissbein (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 55, 61 n.5, 154 Cal. Rptr. 423, 592 P.2d 1175); Donnell v. Linforth (1935) 11 Cal. App. 2d 25, 29, 52 P.2d 937 (defamation action based on statement made in affidavit filed in judicial proceeding)].

- Governmental immunity [see, e.g., Universal By-Products, Inc. v. City of Modesto (1974) 43 Cal. App. 3d 145, 154, 117 Cal. Rptr. 525 ; see Ch. 464, Public Entities and Officers: California Tort Claims Act].

- Failure to exhaust arbitration if the only issue litigated is covered by the arbitration clause [Charles J. Rounds Co. v. Joint Council of Teamsters No. 42 (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 888, 899, 95 Cal. Rptr. 53, 484 P.2d 1397] . If, however, the complaint raises issues not susceptible to arbitration, the defendant may not merely assert failure to arbitrate an issue as an affirmative defense but must demand arbitration and seek a stay of the litigation [see Charles J. Rounds Co. v. Joint Council of Teamsters No. 42 (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 888, 899, 95 Cal. Rptr. 53, 484 P.2d 1397 ; but see Badgley v. Van Upp (1993) 20 Cal. App. 4th 218, 221-222, 24 Cal. Rptr. 2d 406 (demurrer properly overruled when relief sought was beyond arbitrator's authority to award)].

A defense that would render the complaint susceptible to a general demurrer if it appeared on the face of the pleading but does not so appear may be pleaded in the answer [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(b)] as an affirmative defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]. If it is so pleaded and it does not go to the merits of the action, but constitutes a bar (or ground of abatement), it may on motion of either party be tried before trial of any other issues in the case [Code Civ. Proc. § 597; see also Ch. 3, Abatement of Actions] or be made the basis of a motion for summary judgment [see Code Civ. Proc. § 437c; for discussion and forms, see Ch. 537, Summary Judgment].

[h] Complaint Raises Claim Required to Have Been Raised in Previous Compulsory Cross-Complaint

If a party against whom a complaint or cross-complaint has been filed and served fails to allege in a cross-complaint any related cause of action which (at the time of serving the answer to the complaint) the party has against the plaintiff, the party may not thereafter in any other action assert against the plaintiff the related cause of action not pleaded [Code Civ. Proc. § 426.30(a); for discussion of compulsory cross-complaints in general, see Ch. 123, Complaints and Cross Complaints]. "Related cause of action" is a cause of action arising out of the same transaction, occurrence, or series of transactions or occurrences as the cause of action the plaintiff alleges in the complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 426.10(c)]. For the compulsory cross-complaint statute to apply, the related cause of action must be in existence at the time of service of the answer [Code Civ. Proc. § 426.30(a)]; otherwise, failure to assert it in prior litigation is not a bar under the statute [Align Technology, Inc. v. Tran (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 949, 960, 102 Cal. Rptr. 3d 343 ; Crocker Nat. Bank v. Emerald (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 852, 864, 270 Cal. Rptr. 699] . The relatedness standard does not require an absolute identity of factual backgrounds for the two claims, only a logical relationship between them [Align Technology, Inc. v. Tran (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 949, 960, 102 Cal. Rptr. 3d 343 ; Currie Medical Specialties, Inc. v. Bowen (1982) 136 Cal.App.3d 774, 777, 186 Cal. Rptr. 543] .

A court may properly sustain a demurrer for failure to state a claim on which relief can be granted if the claims alleged in the challenged complaint are barred under the compulsory cross-complaint statute. The analysis includes a review of whether the current claims are logically related to those asserted in the prior suit, and if so, whether the current claims are nonetheless maintainable because they were not in existence at the time of the service of the answer to the original complaint or cross-complaint. If the current claims are logically related to those asserted in the prior suit and therefore barred under the compulsory cross-complaint statute, but there is a question as to whether they were in existence at the time of the original suit, the demurrer should be granted with leave to amend [Align Technology, Inc. v. Tran (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 949, 958-972, 102 Cal. Rptr. 3d 343] .

[2] Lack of Capacity

Unless a governing statute states otherwise, a complaint need not allege the plaintiff's capacity to sue. If lack of capacity does not appear on the face of the complaint, it cannot be raised by demurrer, but is a special plea in abatement [Hydrotech Systems, Ltd. v. Oasis Waterpark (1991) 52 Cal. 3d 988, 994 n.4, 277 Cal. Rptr. 517, 803 P.2d 370 ; for further discussion and forms, see Ch. 3, Abatement of Actions, § 3.30 et seq.].

If the objection that the person who filed the pleading does not have legal capacity to sue [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(b)] is not taken by demurrer or answer, it is deemed waived [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.80(a); Parker v. Bowron (1953) 40 Cal. 2d 344, 351, 254 P.2d 6 ; Tinsley v. Palo Alto Unified School Dist. (1979) 91 Cal. App. 3d 871, 883, 154 Cal. Rptr. 591] . For a form of demurrer based on lack of capacity, see § 206.124.

The question of incapacity to sue is different from that of standing to sue [see discussion under [1][f], above]. Incapacity [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(b)] is merely a legal disability, which deprives a party of the right to come into court to assert a cause of action that he, she, or it has. It is a ground of special demurrer and is waived if not raised by demurrer or answer [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.80]. A person who lacks standing to sue to assert the cause of action alleged is one who has no right to the relief sought. This latter objection goes to the existence of a cause of action and is not a plea in abatement as is lack of capacity to sue. A complaint or cross complaint that states a cause of action in someone but not in the plaintiff is subject to a general demurrer for failure to state a cause of action [see Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(e)] and, under Code Civ. Proc. § 430.80, is not waived by failure to raise it by demurrer or answer [see Parker v. Bowron (1953) 40 Cal. 2d 344, 351, 254 P.2d 6 ; Tinsley v. Palo Alto Unified School Dist. (1979) 91 Cal. App. 3d 871, 883, 154 Cal. Rptr. 591] .

[3] Lack of Subject Matter Jurisdiction

The only jurisdictional objection that may be raised by demurrer to a complaint or cross complaint is lack of subject matter jurisdiction [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(a), 430.30(a)]. Lack of jurisdiction over the person of the defendant is made by motion to quash service of the summons [see Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(a)], and an act in excess of the court's jurisdiction is attacked, not by demurrer, which lies only to challenge a pleading, but, for example, by petitioning a higher court for a writ of prohibition or certiorari, as the case may be [see Abelleira v. District Court of Appeal (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 280, 291, 109 P.2d 942 ; see also Ch. 323, Jurisdiction: Personal , and Ch. 324, Jurisdiction: Subject Matter].

If the trial court sustains a demurrer based on the objection that the court has no jurisdiction of the subject of the cause of action alleged in the pleading [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(a)], it may dismiss the action only if there is no state court in California having such jurisdiction. If there is a California state court having subject matter jurisdiction, the court, on sustaining the demurrer, must order the case transferred to such court [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 396a, 399; and Ch. 324, Jurisdiction: Subject Matter].

The objection that the court lacks jurisdiction of the subject of the cause of action alleged in the challenged pleading [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(a)] is not waived by the failure to raise it by demurrer or answer [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.80(a)] and, hence, may be raised at any time [People v. Coit Ranch, Inc. (1962) 204 Cal. App. 2d 52, 57, 21 Cal. Rptr. 875] . In this respect, this type of "special demurrer" is similar to a "general demurrer" for insufficiency of facts [see Certified Grocers of California, Ltd. v. San Gabriel Valley Bank (1983) 150 Cal. App. 3d 281, 285-286 n.1, 197 Cal. Rptr. 710 ; Buss v. J.O. Martin Co. (1966) 241 Cal. App. 2d 123, 133, 50 Cal. Rptr. 206 ; discussion under [1][a], above].

[4] Another Action Pending

A demurrer may be taken to a complaint or cross complaint on the ground that another action is pending between the same parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(c); for a form, see § 206.125]. An action is pending from the time it is commenced until its final determination on appeal, or until the time for appeal has passed, unless the judgment is satisfied sooner [Code Civ. Proc. § 1049]. The objection that another action is pending between the same parties on the same cause does not normally appear on the face of the complaint or cross complaint but is based on matters of which the court may take judicial notice [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.30(a), 430.70; Evid. Code § 452(d)]. If the objection that there is another action pending between the same parties on the same cause of action is not taken by demurrer or answer, it is deemed waived [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.80(a)].

The pendency of a prior action in a California state court predicated on the same cause of action and between the same parties constitutes a ground of abatement of the second action [see Code Civ. Proc. § 597] filed either in the same court or in another court of competent jurisdiction [Simmons v. Superior Court (1950) 96 Cal. App. 2d 119, 122-123, 214 P.2d 844] . Should the court in the second action overrule the demurrer and proceed or threaten to proceed with the case after the court in the first action has assumed and exercised jurisdiction, it may be restrained from doing so by issuance of a writ of prohibition [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1102-1105; see Browne v. Superior Court (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 593, 597, 107 P.2d 1 ; Kresteller v. Superior Court (1967) 248 Cal. App. 2d 545, 549, 56 Cal. Rptr. 771] . For further discussion, see Ch. 3, Abatement of Actions, § 3.50 et seq. For discussion and a form of demurrer based on the rule of exclusive concurrent jurisdiction and a comparison to another action pending, see Ch. 324, Jurisdiction: Subject Matter, §§ 324.25[2], 324.106.

If a demurrer based on Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(c) is sustained and no other special defense is sustained, the court enters an interlocutory judgment to the effect that no trial of other issues shall be had until final determination of the other action. The plaintiff may appeal from this interlocutory judgment [see Code Civ. Proc. § 597].

[5] Defect of Parties

If the objection that there is a defect of parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(d)] is not taken by demurrer or answer, it is deemed waived [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.80(a); for a form of demurrer, see § 206.126, below], unless the defect in parties results from the nonjoinder of an indispensable party. The nonjoinder of an indispensable party is a jurisdictional defect that can be raised at any stage of the proceedings [Bank of California v. Superior Court (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 516, 522-523, 106 P.2d 879 ; Vanoni v. County of Sonoma (1974) 40 Cal. App. 3d 743, 746, 115 Cal. Rptr. 485] . For discussion and forms relating to the compulsory joinder of parties, see Code Civ. Proc. § 389 and Ch. 395, Parties.

A court of appeal has stated that, although many cases have held that the failure to join an indispensable party is a jurisdictional defect, the failure is not a jurisdictional defect in the fundamental sense because, even in the absence of an indispensable party, the court still has power to render a decision as to the parties before it that will stand. For reasons of equity and convenience, not because it is without power to proceed, a court should not proceed with a case when it determines that an indispensable party is absent and cannot be joined. The court acknowledged, however, that the courts of appeal continue to state in dicta that the absence of an indispensable party deprives the court of jurisdiction over the subject matter, but that this is not the correct rule under former Code Civ. Proc. § 389, Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 19, or Code Civ. Proc. § 389, as amended in 1971. The question of whether a nonjoined person is not only a necessary but an indispensable party apparently will arise only when the person cannot be joined. In that event, the court should focus first on what relief, if any, can be granted to the parties in the case before it and not on the character of the nonjoined person [Kraus v. Willow Park Public Golf Course (1977) 73 Cal. App. 3d 354, 364-365, 140 Cal. Rptr. 744] .

Rather than demurring based on nonjoinder of a party, counsel may wish to consider compelling joinder by pleading the defect of the parties in the answer and moving by noticed motion for an order compelling joinder [see Code Civ. Proc. § 389 and Ch. 395, Parties].

In any event, a defendant may not raise a defect or misjoinder of parties by demurrer if the pleadings do not disclose the existence of the matter relied on [Harboring Villas Homeowners Assn. v. Superior Court (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 426, 429, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 646] .

[6] Misjoinder of Parties

A demurrer on the ground of misjoinder of parties defendant or parties cross defendant is generally available only to a defendant or cross defendant who is misjoined, since one defendant's or cross defendant's interests are not normally prejudiced by the misjoinder of another defendant or cross defendant [see Wuest v. Wuest (1942) 53 Cal. App. 2d 339, 344, 127 P.2d 934 (misjoinder of parties defendant); Division of Labor Law Enforcement v. Barnes (1962) 205 Cal. App. 2d 337, 345, 23 Cal. Rptr. 55 (misjoinder of parties cross defendant; disapproved on another ground in White Lighting Co. v. Wolfson (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 336, 351 n.9, 66 Cal. Rptr. 697, 438 P.2d 345)].

Although it is not necessary that the demurrer state the reasons the misjoinder is improper, it must nevertheless designate the party who is improperly joined [Gardner v. Samuels (1897) 116 Cal. 84, 88, 47 P. 935] .

If the objection that there is a misjoinder of parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(d)] is not taken by demurrer or answer, it is deemed waived [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.80(a)]. For a form of demurrer, see § 206.127, below.

[7] Pleading Is Uncertain

A demurrer for uncertainty (including ambiguity and unintelligibility) is directed at the allegations actually made in the challenged pleading and not to matters not alleged. A demurrer for uncertainty does not lie as to immaterial matter or if the facts are presumptively within the knowledge of the demurring party [Dumm v. Pacific Valves (1956) 146 Cal. App. 2d 792, 799, 304 P.2d 738] . Moreover, such a demurrer should not be sustained if the allegations are sufficiently clear to apprise the defendant of the issues that must be met, even if the allegations of the complaint may not be as clear and as detailed as might be desired [Gonzales v. State of California (1977) 68 Cal. App. 3d 621, 631, 137 Cal. Rptr. 681] .

If the objection that the pleading is uncertain, which includes ambiguity and intelligibility [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(f)], is not taken by demurrer or answer, it is waived [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.80(a)]. For a form of demurrer, see § 206.128, below.

[8] Ambiguous Pleading of Contract

A party may demur if the action or cross action is founded on a contract and it cannot be ascertained from the pleading whether the contract is written or oral or implied by conduct [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(g), 430.30(a)].

A defendant or cross defendant will normally want to demur on this ground if the contract was not in writing and is either unenforceable under the statute of frauds or the action on it is barred by the statute of limitations. On the filing of the amended complaint alleging that the contract was oral or implied by conduct, defendant will then be in a position to demur generally to the complaint or cross complaint.

The objection in an action or cross action founded on a contract that it cannot be ascertained from the pleading whether the contract is written or oral or implied by conduct may be taken by demurrer or answer [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(g), 430.30(a), (b)] and, if not so taken, is deemed waived [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.80(a)]. For a form of demurrer, see § 206.129, below.

[9] Absence of Certificate

[a] Professional Negligence Action

A party may demur in an action or cross action for damages or indemnity arising out of the professional negligence of a certificated architect, registered professional engineer, or licensed land surveyor if the certificate required under Code Civ. Proc. § 411.35(a), (b) has not been filed [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 411.35(g), 430.10(h)]. Actions covered by this requirement include any complaint or cross complaint for equitable indemnity arising out of the rendition of professional services, whether or not the complaint or cross complaint specifically asserts or uses the terms "professional negligence" or "negligence" [Code Civ. Proc. § 411.35(i)].

In an action based on professional negligence, as that term is used in Code Civ. Proc. § 411.35, an objection that the certificate required under Code Civ. Proc. § 411.35(a), (b) has not been filed may be taken by demurrer [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 411.35(g), 430.10(h)]. For a form of demurrer, see § 206.130.

It is error for a court to grant a defendant's demurrer without leave to amend where it is "reasonably possible" for the plaintiff to cure the defect of failing to properly file a certificate required by Code Civ. Proc. § 411.35(a), (b) [Price v. Dames & Moore (2001) 92 Cal. App. 4th 355, 359, 112 Cal. Rptr. 2d 65 (plaintiff in pro per filed certificate of merit after the filing of original complaint and prior to the filing of the amended complaint; since her attorney had not filed a substitution of attorney, substituting out of the case, this certificate of merit was not properly signed; however certificate statute does not require dismissal for improper certificate)].

[b] Limitation on Procedure

Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10 provides that the objections it enumerates, including the lack of a Code Civ. Proc. § 411.35 certificate may be taken by either demurrer or answer as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30. Nevertheless, Code Civ. Proc. § 411.35 provides that the objections regarding lack of the certficates may be raised by demurrer or motion to strike, but makes no mention of raising the objection by answer [see Code Civ. Proc. § 411.35(g); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(h) (expressly referring to Code Civ. Proc. § 411.35) and Code Civ. Proc. § 340.1(j) (authorizing demurrer or motion to strike, without mentioning answer, if certificates not filed in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. § 340.1 in action by plaintiff 26 years of age or older to recover damages suffered as a result of childhood sexual abuse)]. Assuming that Code Civ. Proc. § 411.35, as the more specific provision, controls, the objections apparently may not be raised by answer. A party may nevertheless raise the objection by demurrer even in those situations in which raising the objection by answer would otherwise be appropriate (that is, in which the defect is not apparent on the face of the challenged pleading), simply by requesting that the court take judicial notice of the fact that the certificate had not been filed [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.30(a), 430.70; Evid. Code §§ 452(d), 453; for further discussion, see also Ch. 321, Judicial Notice].

If the objection is not taken by demurrer or other authorized means, it is deemed waived [see Code Civ. Proc. § 430.80(a)].

[c] Procedure in Limited Civil Cases

In addition to the issues discussed under § 206.14[9][b], above, the manner of raising this objection is further limited in limited civil cases. In these cases, special demurrers are generally prohibited [Code Civ. Proc. § 92(c); see also discussion in § 206.12[2], above]. One likely argument to reconcile the statutes would be that Code Civ. Proc. § 92(c) controls the earlier-enacted, contrary language of Code Civ. Proc. § 411.35(g). That argument might be countered on the basis that Section 411.35 should prevail as a more specific provision.

Motions to strike are also prohibited in limited civil cases, except when made because the damages or relief sought are not supported by the allegations of the complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 92(d)]. Arguably, Code Civ. Proc. § 411.35(g) nevertheless permits motions to strike to be made, because the language in the provisions authorizing the motion was enacted later than the contrary language in Code Civ. Proc. § 92(d) [for discussion of general rules of statutory construction, see Ch. 531, Statutes and Ordinances].

[d] Failure to Comply as Basis for Sanctions

An attorney's failure to comply with the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 411.35 may constitute grounds for professional discipline [Code Civ. Proc. § 411.35(f)].

[10] Federal Preemption

A purely legal issue of federal preemption is properly addressed by demurrer [Washington Mutual Bank v. Superior Court (2002) 95 Cal. App. 4th 606, 612, 115 Cal. Rptr. 2d 765 (Home Owners' Loan Act, 42 U.S.C. § 1461 et seq., preempted state claims under California's Civ. Code § 2948.5 alleging unlawful charging of interest on home loans); Ball v. GTE Mobilnet of California (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 529, 535, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 801] .

§ 206.15 When Objections May Be Raised by Demurrer

[1] Defective Complaint or Cross Complaint

An objection to a complaint or cross complaint on any of the grounds enumerated in Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10 (discussed in Subpart A under Grounds for Demurrer, above) must be made as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30 [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10].

Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30 provides, in turn, that, if any ground for objection appears on the face of the complaint or cross complaint or from any matter of which the court must or may take judicial notice, the objection on that ground may be taken by demurrer to the pleading [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)]. Alternatively, if the ground for objection does not appear on the face of the pleading, the objection may be taken by answer [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(b)]. For related discussion of alternative means for raising the objection set out in Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(h), (i), see § 206.14[9][b], above.

The objections set out in Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10 are deemed waived if they are not raised by either demurrer or answer, except that the following two objections are not deemed waived [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.80(a); for further discussion, see § 206.14, above]:

- The objection that the court has no jurisdiction of the subject matter of the cause of action alleged in the pleading.

- The objection that the pleading does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action.

[2] Defective Answer

An objection to an answer on any of the grounds enumerated in Code Civ. Proc. § 430.20 (discussed in Subpart A under § 206.13[2], above) may be made by demurrer whenever the objection appears on the face of the answer or from any matter of which the court must or may take judicial notice [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)].

A demurrer is the only pleading that may be filed in response to an answer. California law does not authorize the filing of a "replication" or other form of reply in civil actions. Instead, any new matters alleged in the answer, either in avoidance or constituting a defense, are automatically deemed to be controverted by the opposing party [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.20(b)].

An objection to an answer on the ground that it does not state facts sufficient to constitute a defense is not waived by a failure to raise it by demurrer [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.80(b)].

17-206 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 206.16

§ 206.16 Specification of Pleading or Portion of Pleading Subject to Demurrer

[1] General Rule

A demurrer to a complaint or cross complaint may be taken to the whole pleading or to any of the causes of action (or counts) stated in it [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.50(a)]. Thus, a demurrer to a cause of action may be filed without answering other causes of action [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1320(j)].

A demurrer cannot, however, be taken to only a part of a cause of action or count [Campbell v. Genshlea (1919) 180 Cal. 213, 217, 180 P. 336 (general demurrer); Chazen v. Centennial Bank (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 532, 542, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 462 ; see PH II, Inc. v. Superior Court (1995) 33 Cal. App. 4th 1680, 1681, 1683, 40 Cal. Rptr. 2d 169 (although party may not demur to a portion of a cause of action, when a substantive defect is clear from the face of a complaint involving only a portion of a cause of action, that portion may be attacked by filing a motion to strike)].

For purposes of this rule, a "cause of action" is a set of facts giving rise to a basis for relief. The facts may constitute grounds for various remedies, such as damages or injunctive relief, but the availability of alternative remedies does not mean there is more than one cause of action [California Assn. of Psychology Providers v. Rank (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 1, 7 n.3, 270 Cal. Rptr. 796, 793 P.2d 2] . Stated in another way, a "cause of action" consists of [Skrbina v. Fleming Companies (1996) 45 Cal. App. 4th 1353, 1364, 53 Cal. Rptr. 2d 481 ; Miranda v. Shell Oil Co. (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 1651, 1658 ; see Crowley v. Katleman (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 666, 681-683, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 386, 881 P.2d 1083 (discussing primary right theory in holding that it did not apply to preclude malicious prosecution action when at least one theory of liability was based on probable cause)]:

- A primary right of the plaintiff,
- A corresponding primary duty imposed on the defendant, and
- The defendant's delict or wrongful act that constitutes a breach of that primary right and duty.

A cause of action is not based on the characterization of the legal theory or theories to advance it. Rather, it is based on plaintiff's injuries [Skrbina v. Fleming Companies (1996) 45 Cal. App. 4th 1353, 1364, 53 Cal. Rptr. 2d 481] . A violation of one primary right gives rise to one cause of action [Crowley v. Katleman (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 666, 681, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 386, 881 P.2d 1083] .

"Counts" are, in turn, separate theories of entitlement to a remedy based on the same cause of action [Eichler Homes of San Mateo, Inc. v. Superior Court (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 845, 847-848, 13 Cal. Rptr. 194, 361 P.2d 914] , even if each count alleges different facts to establish that entitlement under its particular theory [see Zumbrun v. University of Southern California(1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 1, 9, 101 Cal. Rptr. 499] . Each count must state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action if it is to withstand a general demurrer [see Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(e); Warren v. Atchison, T. & S.F. Ry. Co. (1971) 19 Cal. App. 3d 24, 40-41, 96 Cal. Rptr. 317] .

Thus, when several purported causes of action allege invasion of the same primary right in actuality only one cause of action has been stated. On the other hand, if a plaintiff alleges that the defendant's single wrongful act invaded two different primary rights, the plaintiff has stated two causes of action, even though both invasions are pleaded in a single "count" of the complaint [Skrbina v. Fleming Companies (1996) 45 Cal. App. 4th 1353, 1364, 53 Cal. Rptr. 2d 481 (defendant's second demurrer to complaint, timely filed under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1320(g) after first demurrer was overruled without an order that defendant answer the complaint, was procedurally proper when first demurrer, nominally taken to the whole complaint actually addressed only one of three inartfully pleaded causes of action)].

For further discussion of what constitutes a "cause of action" and a "count," see Ch. 123, Complaints and Cross Complaints .

The prayer is not part of a cause of action and is not subject to demurrer even if plaintiff has prayed for relief to which he or she is not entitled [see Moropoulos v. C.H. & O.B. Fuller Co. (1921) 186 Cal. 679, 688, 200 P. 601 ; Grisingher v. Shaeffer (1938) 25 Cal. App. 2d 5, 9, 76 P.2d 149] .

[2] Single Cause of Action

If the complaint or cross complaint states only a single cause of action or count, any demurrer to it would go to the whole pleading since the demurrer cannot go to part of the cause of action [see Campbell v. Genshlea (1919) 180 Cal. 213, 217, 180 P. 336 ; Financial Corp. of America v. Wilburn (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 764, 778, 234 Cal. Rptr. 653 ; see also PH II, Inc. v. Superior Court (1995) 33 Cal. App. 4th 1680, 1681, 1683, 40 Cal. Rptr. 2d 169 (although party may not demur to a portion of a cause of action, when a substantive defect is clear from the face of a complaint involving only a portion of a cause of action, that portion may be attacked by filing a motion to strike)]. In the case of a special demurrer for uncertainty, the objection should identify those specific portions of the pleading that are uncertain [see Jones v. Iverson (1900) 131 Cal. 101, 103-104, 63 P. 135 ; for a form, see § 206.128].

[3] Multiple Causes of Action or Counts in Complaint

A demurrer to a part of a complaint or cross complaint setting forth multiple causes of action or counts must identify the particular cause or count that is being challenged [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1112(d)]. If a general demurrer to a pleading containing multiple causes of action or counts fails to do so, the court will normally overrule that demurrer so long as any one of the causes of action or counts are sufficient to withstand the demurrer [see, e.g., Jones v. Iverson (1900) 131 Cal. 101, 104, 63 P. 135 (special demurrer); Warren v. Atchison, T. & S.F. Ry. Co. (1971) 19 Cal. App. 3d 24, 29, 96 Cal. Rptr. 317 (general demurrer); Western Title Ins. etc. Co. v. Bartolacelli (1954) 124 Cal. App. 2d 690, 694, 269 P.2d 165 (general demurrer)].

Separately stated causes of action and counts are severable for the purposes of objecting to them by demurrer and each must normally stand or fall on its own allegations [Western Title Ins. etc. Co. v. Bartolacelli (1954) 124 Cal. App. 2d 690, 694, 269 P.2d 165] . Hence, the averments of one count cannot be amplified by the allegations of another separately stated count or cause of action in the same pleading unless the latter are included by special reference or otherwise in the portion of the complaint under attack. Similarly, unless the alternate pleadings contain antagonistic statements, the statement of facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action in one count is not a bar to the maintenance of a separately stated count in the same pleading based on inconsistent allegations [Steiner v. Rowley (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 713, 719, 221 P.2d 9] .

Nevertheless, in a complaint pleading a single cause of action in different counts (that is, separately stated theories of relief for the same cause of action or injury), a count premised on detailed factual allegations made in another count must stand or fall with the other count [Lambert v. Southern Counties Gas Co. (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 347, 353, 340 P.2d 608] . This rule clearly applies if a generally pleaded common count is clearly based on a specifically pleaded count for breach of contract. If plaintiff is not entitled to recover under the count for damages for breach of contract wherein all the facts on which plaintiff's demand is based are specifically pleaded, it is proper to sustain a demurrer to the whole pleading, including a common count set forth in the complaint the recovery under which is obviously based on the set of facts specifically pleaded in the other count [Zumbrun v. University of Southern California (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 1, 14, 101 Cal. Rptr. 499 ; see Farmers Ins. Exchange v. Zerin (1997) 53 Cal. App. 4th 445, 460, 61 Cal. Rptr. 2d 707 (common count was subject to demurrer when it incorporated allegations of all preceding claims including existence of an equitable lien and court concluded under other alleged theories of relief that plaintiff had no such equitable lien so that plaintiff had no claim for money had and received); for further discussion of this rule and exceptions to it, see Ch. 121, Common Counts].

Similarly, in a complaint that consists of two counts, one to quiet title to real property and the other, as incidental to the first count, to have declared void an instrument under which particular defendants assert title, if the count to quiet title in regard to particularly named defendants clearly shows that it is based on the same facts that are pleaded in the cause to remove a cloud, a general demurrer of those defendants should be sustained if the second count reveals a defect in plaintiff's title or does not state a cause of action to remove a cloud [Ephraim v. Metropolitan Trust Co. (1946) 28 Cal. 2d 824, 833, 172 P.2d 501 ; but see Western Title Ins. etc. Co. v. Bartolacelli (1954) 124 Cal. App. 2d 690, 694, 269 P.2d 165 , in which the court of appeal, without discussing or citing Ephraim, stated that the "rule is limited to pleadings involving a common count"].

If separate counts are in reality separate causes of action against different defendants, a properly stated cause of action against one defendant cannot be defeated by incorporating allegations from the other cause of action against another defendant that plaintiff did not specifically incorporate by reference in the complaint [Lambert v. Southern Counties Gas Co. (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 347, 353-354, 340 P.2d 608] .

[4] Multiple Defenses in Answer

The demurrer may be taken to the whole answer or to any one or more of the several defenses set up in it [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.50(b)].

Separate defenses, like separately stated causes of action and counts, must be separately numbered [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 2.112, 1.5(b)], and, hence, any demurrer to an answer alleging multiple affirmative defenses should identify the particular defense being challenged.

[5] Joint Demurrers by Multiple Defendants

In a case involving multiple defendants or cross defendants, two or more of them may demur jointly to the complaint or cross complaint. If this is done, the joint demurrer must be overruled if the complaint is good as against any of the defendants jointly demurring [Wise v. Southern Pacific Co. (1963) 223 Cal. App. 2d 50, 76, 35 Cal. Rptr. 652 (overruled on other grounds in Applied Equipment Corp. v. Litton Saudi Arabia Ltd. (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 503, 510, 521, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 475, 869 P.2d 454)]. This rule is limited to special demurrers. It does not apply to a general demurrer since a defendant may raise at any time in any appropriate way the defect that a plaintiff has not stated in his or her complaint facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action against that defendant [Majestic Realty Co. v. Pacific Lighting Corp. (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 641, 642-643, 112 Cal. Rptr. 423] .

[6] Demurrer to Judicial Council Form Complaint

Adoption of Judicial Council official forms for the most common civil actions has not changed the statutory requirement that the complaint contain whatever ultimate facts are essential to state a cause of action. Thus, in cases in which specific allegations need to be alleged, such as a claim for a dangerous condition of public property, the pleader must add the details. The form complaint, standing alone, is no more immune to demurrer than any other complaint that fails to meet essential pleading requirements to state a cause of action [People ex rel. Dept. of Transportation v. Superior Court (1992) 5 Cal. App. 4th 1480, 1486, 7 Cal. Rptr. 2d 498 ; see Setliff v. E.I. Du Pont De Nemours & Co. (1995) 32 Cal. App. 4th 1525, 1529-1538, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 763 (sustaining of defendants' demurrers to Judicial Council form complaint affirmed)].

The size of papers and type, pagination, and so forth, are governed by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 2.101-2.109, and the format of the first page by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 2.111 and 3.1110(b). Footers are governed by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.110.

Any additions, deletions, or interlineations on the face of the pleading must be initialed by the clerk or judge at the time of filing, and all copies served must conform to the filed original, including the numbering of lines, pagination, additions, deletions, and interlineations [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.117]. The clerk is forbidden to file papers that do not comply with these requirements, but the court, for good cause shown, may permit the filing of papers that do not comply [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 2.118, 1.5(b)].

A demurrer must state on the first page immediately below the number of the case, the names of the party filing the demurrer and of the party whose pleading is the subject of the demurrer [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1320(e)].

Local court rules should be checked if counsel is unfamiliar with them. However, local rules concerning demurrers or the form and format of papers are preempted by the California Rules of Court. The exception to the rule of preemption most likely to be relevant to a demurrer is the exception for local rules adopted under the Trial Court Delay Reduction Act [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.20].

For a form of demurrer and further discussion of format, see § 206.120.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Demurrers

17-206 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 206.19

§ 206.19 Accompanying Papers

[1] Notice of Hearing

A party filing a demurrer must serve and file with it a notice of hearing [see § 206.135 (form)] that specifies a hearing date in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b) [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 1.5(b), 3.1110, 3.1103(b), 3.1112(a), 3.1320(c)]. Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b) provides generally that unless otherwise ordered or specifically provided by law a written notice of motion must be given at least 16 court days before the hearing. If, however, the notice is served by mail, this period is increased by 5 calendar days if the place of mailing and of address are within California, by 10 calendar days if either the place of mailing or of address is outside California but within the United States, or by 20 calendar days if either the place of mailing or of address is outside the United States [Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b)]. If the notice is served by fax, express mail, or another method of overnight delivery, the 16-day notice period is increased by two calendar days [Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b)]. A two court day extension may apply in the case of electronic service [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1010.6(a)(6); for discussion, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers, § 518.41[8]].

A demurrer must be set for hearing not more than 35 days following the filing of the demurrer or on the first date available to the court thereafter [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 1.5(b), 3.1110, 3.1103(b), 3.1320(c)].

For good cause shown, the court may order the hearing held on an earlier or later day on notice prescribed by the court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 1.5(b), 3.1110, 3.1103(b), 3.1320(c)].

[2] Points and Authorities

A party filing a demurrer must serve and file with it a memorandum in support of each of its grounds. The absence of the memorandum may be construed by the court as an admission that a special demurrer is not meritorious and as a waiver of all grounds thereof not so supported [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 1.5(b), 3.1110, 3.1103(b) 3.1113(a); for discussion and forms, see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities].

The objections that the court has no jurisdiction of the subject of the cause of action alleged in the pleading attacked [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(a)] and that the pleading does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action [Code

Civ. Proc. § 430.10(e) (ground of general demurrer)] are not waived by failure to take the objection by demurrer or answer [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.80] and would, therefore, not be waived by failure to submit a memorandum in support of a demurrer on either ground. Nevertheless, to avoid the possibility of an erroneous ruling on the demurrer that can prove costly to counsel or to his or her client to correct, the better practice is to submit points and authorities in support of each of these grounds of demurrer.

If the party is relying on matters subject to judicial notice, the supporting points and authorities should include not only the authorities supporting the ground of the demurrer, but also the applicable authorities showing (1) that the court is authorized to take judicial of the particular matter, and (2) the propriety of granting judicial notice under the circumstances of the case [see Evid. Code §§ 453, 454; see also § 206.19[3], below].

Points and authorities in support of and in opposition to demurrers may be found in California Points and Authorities, Ch. 71, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings (Matthew Bender).

[3] Request for Judicial Notice

A demurrer may be made whenever the objection appears on the face of the pleading or appears from both that pleading and any matter of which the court is required to or may take judicial notice [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a); Rodas v. Spiegel (2001) 87 Cal. App. 4th 513, 517, 104 Cal. Rptr. 2d 439 (judicial notice)]. When a demurring party is relying on matters subject to mandatory judicial notice, no request need be made for the court to take such judicial notice. On the other hand, if the demurring party is relying on matters subject to permissive judicial notice, he or she must request that the court take notice of such matters, subject to the requirements of Evid. Code § 453 [see also Cal. Rules Ct., Rules 3.1113(l), 3.1306(b)].

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 430.70, when the ground for demurrer is based on matter of which the court may take judicial notice under Evid. Code § 452 or 453, such matter must be specified in the demurrer, or in the supporting points and authorities, except as the court may otherwise permit [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.70; see StorMedia Inc. v. Superior Court (1999) 20 Cal. 4th 449, 456 n.9, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 843, 976 P.2d 214] . The California Rules of Court provide that any request for judicial notice must be made in a separate document listing the specific items for which notice is requested, must provide the court and each party with a copy of the material; and if the material is part of a court file, the party must specify in writing the part of the court file sought to be judicially noticed and the party must make arrangements with the clerk to have the file in the courtroom at the time of the hearing [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1306(a), (c)]. Local court rule requirements, if any, should also be ascertained.

For detailed discussion of judicial notice, including the matters subject to mandatory and permissive judicial notice, the requirements for making a request that judicial notice be taken of specified matters, and a form of request for judicial notice for inclusion in a demurrer, see Ch. 321, Judicial Notice .

[4] Proof of Service

A demurrer must be both served and filed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 1.5(b), 3.1110, 3.1103(b), 3.1113(a), 3.1320(c)]. That is, a copy of the demurrer with its supporting papers and of the notice of hearing must be served on the adverse party's attorney of record or on the adverse party if he or she has no attorney of record [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 465, 1015; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 1.5(15), (19), 3.1110, 3.1103(b)], and then the originals of these papers, with proof of prior service attached, are presented to the court clerk or deputy clerk for filing [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 1.21(b), 3.1100, 3.1103]. Service is normally made by mail [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1012, 1013], although other manners of service are provided for [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1011]. For further discussion and forms of proof of service, see the Procedural Guide, § 206.100[3], [4], below, and Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Demurrers

17-206 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 206.20

§ 206.20 Time Requirements

[1] Demurrer to Complaint or Cross Complaint

Any demurrer to a complaint or cross complaint in a civil action must be served [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 422.10, 465; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 1.5(b), 3.1110, 3.1103(b), 3.1113(a), 3.1320(c)] and filed with the court in which the action is pending within 30 days after the complaint or cross complaint was served on the party demurring [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.40(a), 432.10] or within any extension of that period [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1054, 1054.1].

One court opinion holds the 30-day language of Code Civ. Proc. § 430.40(a) is permissive, not mandatory, and the 30-day time requirement "applies only to a first round of demurrers" and not to amended complaints [McAllister v. County of Monterey (2007) 147 Cal. App. 4th 253, 280, 54 Cal. Rptr. 3d 116 (court aware of no statute or rule that specifically governs time limit for amended complaint or where no amended pleading is filed after dissolution of a stay)].

When a demurrer was directed to fewer than all the causes of action in the complaint, the defendant, unless otherwise ordered, has 10 days to move to strike, to demur, or otherwise to plead to the complaint or the remaining causes of action following [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1320(j)]:

(1) The overruling of the demurrer;

(2) Amendment of the complaint or the expiration of the time to amend if the demurrer was sustained with leave to amend; or

(3) The sustaining of the demurrer if the demurrer was sustained without leave to amend.

Thus, for example, when a demurrer that has been directed to fewer than all the causes of action in the complaint has been overruled by the trial court without the court ordering the defendant to answer the complaint, under appropriate circumstances a successive demurrer directed to other causes of action may be appropriate [see, e.g., Skrbina v.

Fleming Companies (1996) 45 Cal. App. 4th 1353, 1363-1365, 53 Cal. Rptr. 2d 481 (when defendant's wrongful act alleged to have invaded two different primary rights, two causes of action stated even though both are pleaded in single count; second demurrer to same complaint was not procedurally improper when (a) plaintiff's first cause of action actually, though inartfully, pleaded three causes of action, (b) defendants' first demurrer, though nominally taken to whole complaint, addressed only one of those causes of action, (c) demurrer was overruled without the trial court ordering defendants to answer the complaint, and (d) defendants' second demurrer filed timely under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1320(j))].

[2] Demurrer to Answer

Any demurrer to an answer to a complaint or cross complaint in a civil action must be served [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 422.10, 465; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 1.5(b), 3.1110, 3.1103(b), 3.1113(a), 3.1320(c)] and filed with the court in which the action is pending within 10 days after service of the answer on the party demurring [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.40(b)] or within any extension of that period [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1054, 1054.1].

[3] Other Circumstances

Following denial of a motion to transfer a case from an improper to a proper court under Code Civ. Proc. § 396b, relating to change of venue, 30 calendar days are deemed granted to defendant, unless otherwise ordered, to move to strike, to demur, or otherwise to plead if the defendant has not previously filed a response [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1326]. If a motion to transfer is granted, 30 calendar days are deemed granted from the date the receiving court mails notice of receipt of the case and its new case number [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1326; see Code Civ. Proc. § 586(a)(1) (authorizing entry of default if defendant fails to respond to complaint within 30 days)].

With respect to special proceedings of a civil nature in which demurrers are authorized, special provisions may limit the time within which to demur to a shorter period [see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1167, 1167.3, 1170 (relating to forcible or unlawful detainer and forcible entry, and limiting the time within which to demur to five days)].

For forms of stipulations postponing the hearing on a demurrer and dropping the demurrer off calender, see §§ 206.136 and 206.137. For forms of stipulation and order extending time within which to demur, see Ch. 26, Answers .

As a responsive pleading, the filing of a demurrer by a defendant constitutes an appearance in the case by that defendant [Code Civ. Proc. § 1014]. As such, its filing, when it is the first paper filed by the party, requires payment of the filing fee [see Gov. Code §§ 70611, 70614].

[1] Answer

A party objecting to a complaint or cross complaint may both demur and answer at the same time (in separate pleadings, of course) [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(c)], and the demurrer is not waived by the concurrent filing of the answer [Code Civ. Proc. § 472a]. For discussion and forms relating to answers generally, see Ch. 26, Answers .

[2] Motion to Strike

If a notice of motion to strike the whole or any part of a pleading [see Code Civ. Proc. § 435; see also Ch. 375, Motions to Strike: Pleadings , and § 206.120[3][v], below] is interposed with a demurrer, it must be noticed for hearing and heard at the same time as the demurrer [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 1.5(b), 3.1110, 3.1103(b) 3.1322].

§ 206.24 Response to Demurrer

[1] Amendment of Pleading

Before the hearing on the demurrer, a party whose pleading is challenged by demurrer may elect to amend the pleading to correct the alleged defects by filing the amended pleading and serving it on the other party [see Code Civ. Proc. § 472]. In such a case, the demurrer hearing is usually taken off calendar.

[2] Continuance of Hearing

A party whose pleading is challenged by demurrer may also consider seeking a stipulation to continue the demurrer hearing in order to allow for filing of an amended pleading. For a form of stipulation, see § 206.136. However, counsel should consult local court rules for any limitations on continuances [see Ch. 136, Continuances , and Ch. 552, Trial Court Delay Reduction].

[3] Opposition to Demurrer

The party opposing the demurrer may respond by filing and serving a memorandum in opposition to the demurrer at least 9 court days before the hearing. All papers opposing a motion must be served by personal delivery, facsimile transmission, express mail, or other means consistent with the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1010, 1011, 1012, and 1013, and reasonably calculated to ensure delivery to the other party or parties not later than the close of the next business day after the time the opposing papers are filed. The time extensions provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 1013 do not apply to these time periods [Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(c); cf. Code Civ. Proc. § 1010.6(a)(6) (two court day extension in case of electronic service; although Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b) expressly excludes extensions under Code Civ. Proc. § 1013, it is silent as to section 1010.6); see also Ch. 372, Motions and Orders ; Ch. 417, Points and Authorities]. For discussion and forms of points and authorities in opposition to a demurrer of a particular issue, see the appropriate chapter in California Points and Authorities (Matthew Bender).

As a pleading, an improperly filed demurrer may also be subject to a motion to strike [see Code Civ. Proc. § 422.10; Baxter v. Boston-Pacific Oil Co. (1927) 81 Cal. App. 187, 189, 253 P. 185 (demurrer is pleading and can be amended)].

Failure of the person filing a demurrer to prosecute it may be construed as a waiver of the demurrer, except as otherwise provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 430.80 [Code Civ. Proc. § 591]. The exceptions referred to are failure to state a cause of action and lack of subject matter jurisdiction [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.80].

§ 206.26 Tentative Rulings in Law and Motion Matters

A trial court that offers a tentative ruling procedure in civil law and motion matters must follow one of the following procedures [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1308(a)]:

- The court must make its tentative ruling available by telephone and also, at the option of the court, by any other method designated by the court, by no later than 3:00 p.m. the court day before the hearing. If the court desires oral argument, the tentative ruling must so direct. The tentative ruling may also note any issues on which the court wishes the parties to provide further argument. If the court has not directed argument, oral argument must be permitted only if a party notifies all other parties and the court by 4:00 p.m. on the court day before the hearing of the party's intention to appear. A party must notify all other parties by telephone or in person. The court must accept notice by telephone and, at its discretion, may also designate alternative methods by which a party may notify the court of the party's intention to appear. The tentative ruling will become the ruling of the court if the court has not directed oral argument by its tentative ruling and notice of intent to appear has not been given.

- The court must make its tentative ruling available by telephone and also, at the option of the court, by any other method designated by the court, by a specified time before the hearing. The tentative ruling may note any issues on which the court wishes the parties to provide further argument at the hearing. This procedure must not require the parties to give notice of intent to appear, and the tentative ruling will not automatically become the ruling of the court if such notice is not given. The tentative ruling, or such other ruling as the court may render, will not become the final ruling of the court until the hearing.

Other than following one of the two tentative ruling procedures above, courts must not issue tentative rulings except by posting a calendar note containing tentative rulings on the day of the hearing or by announcing the tentative ruling at the time of oral argument [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1308(b)]. A judge is not required to issue tentative rulings [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1308(e)]. If a court or a branch of a court adopts a tentative ruling procedure, that procedure must be used by all judges in the court or branch who issue tentative rulings [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1308(d)].

Counsel should consult local rules and practice regarding tentative rulings.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Demurrers

17-206 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 206.27

§ 206.27 Hearing on Demurrer

[1] By Court

A demurrer raises only issues of law [see Code Civ. Proc. § 589; Wylie v. Gresch (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 412, 414, 236 Cal. Rptr. 552] . Thus, a hearing on demurrer is necessarily determined by the court, as distinguished from a jury [see Code Civ. Proc. § 591; Evid. Code § 310].

[2] Failure of Party to Appear

If a party fails to appear at the hearing, the demurrer must be disposed of on the merits at the request of the party appearing unless, for good cause, the hearing is continued. The failure to appear in support of a special demurrer may be construed by the court as an admission that the demurrer is not meritorious and as a waiver of all its grounds [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 1.5(b), 3.1110, 3.1103(b) 3.1320(f); see Code Civ. Proc. § 591].

If neither party appears, the demurrer may be disposed of on its merits or dropped from the calendar (to be restored on notice or on such terms as the court may deem proper), or the hearing may be continued to such time as the court shall order [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 1.5(b), 3.1110, 3.1103(b) 3.1320(f)].

[3] Placing Off Calendar

The parties may wish to stipulate to placing the matter off calendar [see § 206.137]. Counsel should consult local court rules for any restrictions on stipulations [see Ch. 552, Trial Court Delay Reduction].

[4] Telephone Appearance by Counsel

Counsel may appear by telephone in many law and motion hearings at which witnesses are not called to testify (other than those arising under the Welfare and Institutions Code, the Family Code, or Code Civ. Proc. §§ 527.6, 527.7, 527.8 (injunctive relief regarding harassment, gang violence, or violence or threats toward employees)), although the court has discretion to require personal appearance on a case by case basis [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.670(a)-(e); see also Code

Civ. Proc. § 367.5].

Counsel choosing to appear by telephone must place the phrase "Telephone Appearance" below the title of the moving or opposing papers or at least five court days before the appearance, notify the court and all other parties of the party's intent to appear by telephone. If the notice is oral, it must be given either in person or by telephone. If the notice is in writing, it must be given by filing a "Notice of Intent to Appear by Telephone" with the court at least five court days before the hearing and by serving the notice at the same time on all other parties by personal delivery, facsimile transmission, express mail, or other means reasonably calculated to ensure delivery to the parties no later than the close of the next business day [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.670(g)(1)].

If a party that has given notice that it intends to appear by telephone subsequently chooses to appear in person, the party must so notify the court and all other parties that have appeared in the action, by telephone, at least two court days before the hearing [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.670(g)(3)].

For further discussion of the statutes, rules, and judicial standards governing telephone appearances, see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders, § 372.21[16].

[5] Opportunity for Hearing and Oral Argument Required

The court may not deprive the parties of oral argument at the hearing on a demurrer. The hearing on a demurrer is a "critical pretrial matter" where there is a "real and genuine dispute" and the opportunity for oral argument must be provided. Statutes and Rules governing demurrers all contemplate the physical presence of the lawyers in the courtroom unless arrangements have been made for telephonic appearances. Thus, a local court procedure in which the court's ruling was disseminated to counsel via the Internet the day prior to the hearing, and in which there was no procedure for oral argument, was improper [Medix Ambulance Service, Inc. v. Superior Court (2002) 97 Cal. App. 4th 109, 117, 118 Cal. Rptr. 2d 249] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Demurrers

17-206 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 206.28

§ 206.28 Ruling on Demurrer

[1] Matters Considered by Court

In ruling on a demurrer the court is usually limited to a consideration of the pleading attacked and to matters of which it must or may take judicial notice under Evid. Code §§ 451, 452 [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.30(a), 430.70; see also Gould v. Maryland Sound Industries, Inc. (1995) 31 Cal. App. 4th 1137, 1144, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 718 (defendants cannot state facts in their demurrers that, if true, would defeat plaintiff's complaint)].

In an appropriate case, the court may also consider judicial admissions contained in the plaintiff's complaint and apparently admissions contained in the plaintiff's opposition papers to a defendant's demurrer to negate the plaintiff's ability to state a cause of action [see Casterson v. Superior Court (2002) 101 Cal. App. 4th 177, 181, 123 Cal. Rptr. 2d 637 (face of the complaint showed that the claim was barred by a statutory affirmative defense); Rodas v. Spiegel (2001) 87 Cal. App. 4th 513, 517, 104 Cal. Rptr. 2d 439 (taking judicial notice of admissions in plaintiff's opposition to demurrer); Setliff v. E.I. Du Pont De Nemours & Co. (1995) 32 Cal. App. 4th 1525, 1534, 1536-1537, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 763 ; see also Knoell v. Petrovich (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 164, 168-169, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 162 (admission in plaintiff's first amended complaint)]. Moreover, the court does not error by considering other matters not objected to by the party whose pleading is attacked.

A demurrer may be sustained only if the complaint lacks any sufficient allegations to entitle the plaintiff to relief [Chazen v. Centennial Bank (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 532, 542, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 462] . If on consideration of all the facts stated it appears that the plaintiff is entitled to any relief, the complaint will be held good [Salimi v. State Comp. Ins. Fund (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 216, 219, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 640] . A complaint withstands a general demurrer, if, on consideration of all the facts stated, it appears that the plaintiff is entitled to some relief, even if the facts are inartfully stated or intermingled with irrelevant facts or the complaint demands relief to which plaintiff is not entitled under the facts alleged [Selby Realty Co. v. City of San Buenaventura (1973) 10 Cal. 3d 110, 123, 109 Cal. Rptr. 799, 514 P.2d 111 (trial court erred in sustaining general demurrer to cause of action that incorrectly sought traditional rather than administrative mandamus); White v. State of California (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 452,471, 240 Cal. Rptr. 732 (trial court erred in sustaining general demurrer to cause of action that sought unavailable money damages rather than compensatory educational services available under Education of the Handicapped Act); see Schnall v. Hertz Corp. (2000) 78 Cal. App. 4th 1144, 1152, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 439] .

[2] Allegations Admitted by General Demurrer

[a] Facts Admitted

A general demurrer admits the truth of all factual material allegations properly pleaded in the challenged pleading, regardless of possible difficulties of proof [Blank v. Kirwan (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 311, 318, 216 Cal. Rptr. 718, 703 P.2d 58 ; Martinez v. Socoma Companies, Inc. (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 394, 399, 113 Cal. Rptr. 585, 521 P.2d 841 ; see Stop Loss Ins. Brokers, Inc. v. Brown & Toland Medical Group (2006) 143 Cal. App. 4th 1036, 1040, 49 Cal. Rptr. 3d 609 (court treats demurrer as admitting all facts properly pleaded, but not contentions, deductions, or conclusions of fact or law); StorMedia Inc. v. Superior Court (1999) 20 Cal. 4th 449, 453 n.3, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 843, 976 P.2d 214 (court assumes truth of all well-pleaded allegations of complaint); Roskind v. Morgan, Stanley Dean Witter & Co. (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 345, 349, 95 Cal. Rptr. 2d 258 (court assumes truth of well-pleaded allegations of complaint; ability of plaintiff to prove them not in issue); Gervase v. Superior Court (1995) 31 Cal. App. 4th 1218, 1224, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 875 (demurrer admits, provisionally for purposes of testing pleading, all material facts properly pleaded, however improbable they may be)]. Thus, material facts alleged in the complaint, as well as facts that may be implied or inferred from those expressly alleged, are treated generally as true for the purpose of ruling on the demurrer [Marshall v. Gibson, Dunn & Crutcher (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 1397, 1403, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 501 ; see Rodas v. Spiegel (2001) 87 Cal. App. 4th 513, 517, 104 Cal. Rptr. 2d 439 (all material facts pleaded in complaint and all those that arise by reasonable implication are deemed admitted by demurring party); Wilner v. Sunset Life Ins. Co. (2000) 78 Cal. App. 4th 952, 958, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 413 (same)]. A general demurrer to a complaint based on a written contract set out in full in the pleading admits not only the contents of the instrument but also any pleaded meaning to which the instrument is reasonably susceptible [Martinez v. Socoma Companies, Inc. (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 394, 400, 113 Cal. Rptr. 585, 521 P.2d 841] .

The court accepts as true facts appearing in exhibits attached to the complaint, as well as facts alleged in the text of the complaint. If the facts appearing in the attached exhibit contradict those expressly pleaded, those in the exhibit are given precedence [Mead v. Sanwa Bank California (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 561, 567-568, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 625 ; see Breneric Associates v. City of Del Mar (1998) 69 Cal. App. 4th 166, 180, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 324] . There may be instances, however, when the rule giving precedence to allegations in exhibits does not apply [see, e.g., Mead v. Sanwa Bank California (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 561, 568, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 625 (in context of Civ. Code § 2832, if written instruments attached to pleading were always given precedence, then a supposed principal would be foreclosed from exercising the statutory right to prove he or she was actually a surety)].

[b] Contentions and Conclusions Not Admitted

A general demurrer does not admit contentions, deductions, or conclusions of fact or law alleged in the complaint; facts impossible in law; or allegations contrary to facts of which a court may take judicial notice [Blank v. Kirwan (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 311, 318, 216 Cal. Rptr. 718, 703 P.2d 58 ; Martinez v. Socoma Companies, Inc. (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 394, 399, 113 Cal. Rptr. 585, 521 P.2d 841 ; William S. Hart Union High School Dist. v. Regional Planning Com. (1991) 226 Cal. App. 3d 1612, 1616 n.2, 277 Cal.Rptr. 645] . Thus, if the facts alleged are inconsistent with and do not support the conclusion drawn from them, the facts control, and the sufficiency of the complaint is to be determined from the facts pleaded [Iverson, Yoakum, Papiano & Hatch v. Berwald (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 990, 995, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 665] .

[c] Distinction Between Admitted Ultimate Facts and Unadmitted Conclusions

The distinction between conclusions that are not admitted and ultimate facts that are deemed admitted is not always clear. In difficult cases, the particularity of pleading required depends on the extent to which the defendant in fairness needs detailed information that can be conveniently provided by the plaintiff. Less particularity is required if the defendant may be assumed to possess knowledge of the facts at least equal, if not superior, to that possessed by the plaintiff [Burks v. Poppy Construction Co. (1962) 57 Cal. 2d 463, 473-474, 20 Cal. Rptr. 609, 370 P.2d 313] . Thus, the "conclusion of law--ultimate fact" dichotomy is not absolute. Rather, in any case, the fair import of language used in the pleading must be received to determine whether the adversary has been fairly apprised of the factual basis of the claim against him or her [Jones v. Oxnard School Dist. (1969) 270 Cal. App. 2d 587, 593, 75 Cal. Rptr. 836 ; see also Semole v. Sansoucie (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 714, 721, 104 Cal. Rptr. 897] .

[3] Construction of the Challenged Pleading

The court is required in the construction of a pleading, for the purpose of determining its effect, to construe its allegations liberally with a view to substantial justice between the parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 452; Chazen v. Centennial Bank (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 532, 542, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 462 ; C & H Foods Co. v. Hartford Ins. Co. (1984) 163 Cal. App. 3d 1055, 1062, 211 Cal. Rptr. 765 ; see also Wilner v. Sunset Life Ins. Co. (2000) 78 Cal. App. 4th 952, 958, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 413 (complaint must be construed liberally by drawing reasonable inferences from facts pleaded)]. It must disregard any error or defect in the pleading which in the opinion of the court does not affect the substantial rights of the parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 475; see also Steiner v. Rowley (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 713, 719, 221 P.2d 9] .

The court must look through the form of the pleading to its substance in ruling on the demurrer. Labels that are attached that are erroneous or confusing must be ignored if the complaint pleads facts that would entitle the plaintiff to relief. What a paper is, rather than how it is named, fixes its character [LiMandri v. Judkins (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 326, 339, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 539] . If, however, there is any inconsistency between the specific allegations of a complaint on which a conclusion must be based and the conclusion alleged, the specific allegations control [Wood v. EllingCorp. (1977) 20 Cal. 3d 353, 364 n.8, 142 Cal. Rptr. 696, 572 P.2d 755 ; Stowe v. Fritzie Hotels, Inc. (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 416, 422, 282 P.2d 890 ; see also Henderson v. Superior Court (1978) 77 Cal. App. 3d 583, 590, 142 Cal. Rptr. 478] . Moreover, allegations in a complaint must yield to contrary facts found in exhibits to the complaint [Software Design & Application, Ltd. v. Hoefer & Arnett, Inc. (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 472, 484, 56 Cal. Rptr. 2d 756 ; see Mead v. Sanwa Bank California (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 561, 567-568, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 625 (stating rule, but also noting that there are instances in which the rule giving precedence to allegations in exhibits does not apply)].

A plaintiff's complaint need not be liberally construed if (1) the plaintiff has filed a defective complaint, (2) the defect is pointed out by demurrer, (3) the demurrer is sustained with leave to amend, and (4) the plaintiff is unwilling or unable to remove the defect. In such a case, the court may resolve all ambiguities within the pleading against the plaintiff [see Truta v. Avis Rent A Car System, Inc. (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 802, 816, 238 Cal. Rptr. 806] .

[4] Inconsistency in Pleadings

A party may not avoid objections to a pleading raised by demurrer merely by amending the pleading to omit the objectionable matters. If a complaint contains allegations destructive of a cause of action, the defect is not curable in subsequently filed pleadings by simply omitting the allegations without explanation. The original defect infects the subsequent pleading so as to render it vulnerable to demurrer [Reichert v. General Ins. Co. (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 822, 836, 69 Cal. Rptr. 321, 442 P.2d 377 ; see also Freeman v. San Diego Assn. of Realtors (1999) 77 Cal. App. 4th 171, 178 n.3, 91 Cal. Rptr. 2d 534 (plaintiff may not avoid defects of earlier pleadings by omitting facts or alleging new facts inconsistent with allegations of earlier pleadings); Continental Ins. Co. v. Lexington Ins. Co. (1997) 55 Cal. App. 4th 637, 646, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d 116 (even if plaintiff given leave to amend, plaintiff would not be allowed to amend complaint to state a fact directly contradictory to one previously stated)]. This rule applies to both verified and unverified complaints [Reichert v. General Ins. Co. (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 822, 836, 442 P.2d 377 ; Zappas v. King Williams Press, Inc. (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 768, 775, 89 Cal. Rptr. 307 ; see Hills Trans. Co. v. Southwest Forest Industries, Inc. (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 702, 710-711, 72 Cal. Rptr. 441 ; see also Hendy v. Losse (1991) 54 Cal. 3d

Similarly, a party cannot retreat from allegations and supporting exhibits concerning actual documentation and supplant them in amended pleadings with conclusory allegations characterizing the documentation in general terms, and with an entirely different twist [Software Design & Application, Ltd. v. Hoefer & Arnett, Inc. (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 472, 484, 56 Cal. Rptr. 2d 756 (plaintiff in initial complaint attached copies of a letter and a transfer request form both signed by plaintiff which were not at all questionable or irregular on their face, but in amended complaint failed to include description of this documentation or to append copies of it); see also Freeman v. San Diego Assn. of Realtors (1999) 77 Cal. App. 4th 171, 178 n.3, 91 Cal. Rptr. 2d 534 (when affidavits or exhibits filed by plaintiff may be judicially noticed, court may consider those facts to assess whether complaint survives a general demurrer)]. If the facts alleged in the complaint are contradicted by the supporting exhibits, the facts in the exhibits will take precedence [Holland Holland v. Morse Diesel Internat., Inc. (2001) 86 Cal. App. 4th 1443, 1447, 104 Cal. Rptr. 2d 239] .

The judicial policy against sham pleading permits the appellate court to take judicial notice of the prior pleading and require the pleader to explain the inconsistency. If the party fails to do so, the appellate court is permitted to disregard inconsistent allegations and to read into the amended complaint allegations of the superseded complaint [Owens v. Kings Supermarket (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 379, 384, 243 Cal. Rptr. 627 ; see Freeman v. San Diego Assn. of Realtors (1999) 77 Cal. App. 4th 171, 178 n.3, 91 Cal. Rptr. 2d 534 (if plaintiff in amended complaint pleads facts inconsistent with prior complaint without explaining inconsistency, court will read into amended complaint facts alleged in superseded complaint)].

On the other hand, the fact that prior pleadings may have contained true, but irrelevant, matters does not render the proposed amended complaint a sham. The sham pleading rule should not be applied when the plaintiff seeks to change the legal theory of recovery and the legal conclusions he or she seeks to draw from the underlying factual events, and also seeks to omit factual allegations that are irrelevant and immaterial to the new legal theories asserted [Berman v. Bromberg (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 936, 948-949, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 777] . Under such circumstances, there is no need for the plaintiff to explain the reasons for the amended pleading because there are no inconsistencies in the underlying material or relevant factual allegations [Berman v. Bromberg (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 936, 949, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 777] .

§ 206.29 Order Overruling Demurrer

If a demurrer to a complaint or cross complaint is overruled and no answer has been filed, the court, except as otherwise provided by rule adopted by the Judicial Council, is required to allow the filing of an answer on such terms as may be just [Code Civ. Proc. § 472a]. The Judicial Council has provided in this case that, unless otherwise ordered or provided by law, leave to answer within 10 days shall be deemed granted, except for actions in forcible entry, forcible detainer, or unlawful detainer, in which case 5 calendar days shall be deemed granted [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1320(g)]. An example of a time period otherwise provided by law is Code Civ. Proc. § 1167.3, relating to proceedings in unlawful or forcible detainer or forcible entry (not to exceed five days). The time given to answer runs from service of the notice of the order [for a form of order, see § 206.140, below], unless the notice is waived in open court and the waiver entered in the minutes [Code Civ. Proc. § 472b].

If a demurrer to an answer is overruled, the action must proceed as if no demurrer had been interposed, and any new matter alleged in the answer must be considered as denied [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 431.20(b), 472a(b)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Demurrers

17-206 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 206.30

§ 206.30 Order Sustaining Demurrer

[1] Specification of Ground

When a demurrer is sustained, the court is required to include in its decision or order a statement of the specific ground or grounds on which the decision or order is based. The specification may be by reference to appropriate pages and paragraphs of the demurrer. The party against whom the demurrer has been sustained may, however, waive these requirements [Code Civ. Proc. § 472d]. For example, he or she waives the requirement by failing to notify the court of its failure to specify the grounds [Krawitz v. Rusch (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 957, 962, 257 Cal. Rptr. 610] .

A court satisfies the requirement of Code Civ. Proc. § 472d by referencing the appropriate paragraphs of the demurrer or supporting points and authorities, but an order made "per points and authorities in moving papers" does not suffice. However, if the sole ground of the demurrer is the complaint's failure to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action, an order sustaining a demurrer without leave to amend satisfies the requirement of Section 472d if the court rules that it appears from the points and authorities that the complaint does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action against defendant. Section 472d does not mandate a detailed statement explaining the court's reasons for sustaining the demurrer on the ground specified [Mautner v. Peralta (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 796, 801-802, 263 Cal. Rptr. 535] .

Specification by reference to appropriate pages and paragraphs of the demurrer, as opposed to specifying the ground, would normally be done if the demurrer to the pleading was on multiple grounds.

[2] With Leave to Amend

When a demurrer is sustained, the court may grant leave to amend the challenged pleading [Code Civ. Proc. § 472a(c)], but is not required by the cited statute to do so; hence, it may sustain a demurrer without leave to amend [Baldwin v. Daniels (1955) 132 Cal. App. 2d 560, 563, 282 P.2d 522] . Liberality in permitting amendment, however, is the rule when a fair opportunity to correct any defect has not been given [Angie M. v. Superior Court (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 1217, 1227, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 197] .

Unless it is clear that the pleading is not susceptible of amendment to correct the defect, it is an abuse of discretion to sustain a demurrer without leave to amend [see, e.g., Richelle L. v. Roman Catholic Archbishop of San Francisco (2003) 106 Cal. App. 4th 257, 282, 130 Cal. Rptr. 2d 601 ; Cundiff v. Bell Atlantic Corporation (2002) 101 Cal. App. 4th 1395, 1405, 125 Cal. Rptr. 2d 445 ; Schwarz v. Regents of University of California (1990) 226 Cal. App. 3d 149, 153, 276 Cal. Rptr. 470 ; Murray v. Wright (1958) 166 Cal. App. 2d 589, 591, 333 P.2d 111 ; Kadota Fig Assn. v. Case-Swayne Co. (1946) 73 Cal. App. 2d 796, 804, 167 P.2d 518 ; see also Angie M. v. Superior Court (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 1217, 1227, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 197 (denial of leave to amend abuse of discretion unless complaint shows on face that it is incapable of amendment)]. Conversely stated, if the complaint, liberally construed, can state a cause of action, or if it is reasonably possible that plaintiffs can cure the complaint by amendment, the trial court should not sustain the demurrer without leave to amend [Citizens for Open Access, Etc. Tide, Inc. v. Seadrift Assn. (1998) 60 Cal. App. 4th 1053, 1063, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 77 ; accord Schnall v. Hertz Corp. (2000) 78 Cal. App. 4th 1144, 1151, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 439] .

Although it is an abuse of discretion to sustain a demurrer without leave to amend when there is a reasonable possibility that the plaintiff can amend its complaint to cure the defect, the burden is on the plaintiff to show how the complaint can be amended and how the amendment will change the legal effect of its pleading Holcomb v. Wells Fargo Bank, N.A. (2007) 155 Cal. App. 4th 490, 495, 66 Cal. Rptr. 3d 142 ; [McKelvey v. Boeing North American, Inc. (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 151, 163, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 645] . The assertion of an abstract right to amend does not satisfy this burden [Rakestraw v. California Physicians' Service (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 39, 43, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 354 (for further discussion of plaintiff's burden, see § 206.36[3][d], below)].

If a demurrer is sustained without leave to amend, the question as to whether the court abused its discretion in making the order is open on appeal even though no request to amend the pleading was made [Code Civ. Proc. § 472c(a)]. Thus, a trial court may be required to grant leave to amend when it knows of potentially viable claims at the time it sustains a demurrer, even though plaintiff does not request leave to amend [Kolani v. Gluska (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 402, 405, 411-412, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 257 (absent statute of limitations concern or prejudice to opposing party such as delay in trial, loss of critical evidence, or added cost of preparation, trial court should have granted leave to amend, rather than sustaining demurrer without leave to amend, when it knew of potentially viable claim at time of sustaining of demurrer, even though plaintiff did not request leave to amend); cf. Rakestraw v. California Physicians' Service (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 39, 44, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 354 (burden of showing reasonable possibility exists that amendment can cure defects remains with plaintiff; neither the trial court nor the appellate court will rewrite complaint; when appellant offers no allegations to support possibility of amendment and no legal authority showing viability of new causes of action, there is no basis for finding trial court abused its discretion when it sustained demurrer without leave to amend)].

For further discussion of when there is an abuse of discretion when a demurrer is sustained without leave to amend, see § 206.36[3][d], below.

If a demurrer to any pleading is sustained with leave to amend, the court is required to fix the time within which the amendment or amended pleading must be filed [Code Civ. Proc. § 472a(c)]. (Simple amendments may, however, be permitted by interlineation or alteration on the face of the pleading [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1110, 3.1324].) Should the court, in sustaining the demurrer, either fail to indicate whether the demurrer is sustained with or without leave to amend or, if leave to amend is granted, fail to specify the time within which the amendment or amended pleading must be filed, leave to amend within 10 days, unless otherwise provided by law, is deemed granted, except for actions in forcible entry, forcible detainer, or unlawful detainer, in which case 5 calendar days shall be deemed granted [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1320(g)]. In a proceeding in unlawful or forcible detainer or forcible entry, the time to file an amended answer may not exceed five days [Code Civ. Proc. § 1167.3]. The time for filing the amendment or amended pleading runs from the service of the notice [see § 206.140, below (form of notice)] of the order, unless the notice is waived in open court and the waiver entered in the minutes [Code Civ. Proc. § 472b].

If a demurrer is sustained with leave to amend, the party whose pleading was challenged has two options:

- Stand on the pleading by refusing to amend, suffer a dismissal or default, as the case may be, to be entered, and appeal from the subsequent judgment [see, e.g., Stowe v. Fritzie Hotels, Inc. (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 416, 420, 282 P.2d 890] (but, if the judgment is affirmed, the case is adjudicated); or

- Accept the court's determination that the pleading was defective and amend it. In this case, if the court's order sustaining a demurrer to a cause of action in a complaint or cross-complaint, or to an affirmative defense in an answer, does not sustain the demurrer as to the entire pleading, the order remains open on appeal after the filing of an amended pleading [Code Civ. Proc. § 472c(b)(1), (2)]. "Open on appeal" in this context means that the party aggrieved by the order may claim the order as error in an appeal from the final judgment in the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 472c(c)].

When leave to amend is granted, a plaintiff is not precluded from adding a new cause of action that supports recovery on the original obligation sued on under a different legal theory [Datig v. Dove Books, Inc. (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 964, 983 n.19, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 719 (party may plead cause of action for recision of contract after having pleaded cause of action for breach of contract; under election of remedies doctrine, it is acceptance of an actual benefit from one theory that renders continued pursuit of alternative unfair and constitutes election); see also Patrick v. Alacer Corp. (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 995, 84 Cal. Rptr. 3d 642 (party permitted to add declaratory relief cause of action to establish standing after demurrer sustained with leave to amend because addition of that cause of action directly responded to the court's reason for sustaining the earlier demurrer)].

[3] Without Leave to Amend

If a demurrer to a pleading is sustained without leave to amend, the aggreived party may do either of the following:

- Seek reconsideration of the order sustaining the demurrer [for discussion, see § 206.31]; or

- Seek appellate review of the judgment of dismissal or default judgment resulting from the order sustaining the demurrer [for discussion, see § 206.36].

[4] Statement of Decision

Since factual questions are not involved in ruling on a demurrer, the trial court is not required at the request of a party to prepare a statement of decision under Code Civ. Proc. § 632 [see Hayward v. Henderson (1979) 88 Cal. App. 3d 64, 70-71, 151 Cal. Rptr. 505 (decided prior to 1981 amendment of Code Civ. Proc. § 632 substituting statement of decision for findings of fact and conclusions of law)].

[5] Notice of Court's Ruling

If the demurrer is submitted and taken under advisement, the clerk must forthwith notify the parties of the ruling when it is made. The notification must specifically identify the matter ruled on and may be given by mailing the parties a copy of the ruling. In a case having multiple parties, the notification (or any notice of the ruling [see § 206.140, below (form)] served by a party) must name the moving party and the party against whom relief was requested and specifically identify the particular demurrer ruled on. The failure of the clerk to give such notification does not extend the time provided by law for performing any act, except as provided in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.104(a) or 8.751(a) (relating to notice of appeal from superior court and from municipal courts, respectively, in civil cases) [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1110, 3.1109].

§ 206.31 Motion for Reconsideration

A demurrer is an "application for an order" for purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 1008(a) (reconsideration of application for order), and a motion to reconsider may be made when a demurrer is sustained without leave to amend. Thus, a party against whom a demurrer has been sustained may file an application to reconsider the matter supported by a proposed pleading containing new allegations not previously included by the pleader [Rains v. Superior Court (1984) 150 Cal. App. 3d 933, 943, 198 Cal. Rptr. 249] .

Prior to the 1992 amendment of Code Civ. Proc. § 1008, cases had held that the new allegations in the proposed pleading may state facts previously known to the moving party [Rains v. Superior Court (1984) 150 Cal. App. 3d 933, 943, 198 Cal. Rptr. 249 ; see Careau v. Security Pacific Business Credit, Inc. (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 1371, 1386 n.9, 272 Cal. Rptr. 387 (Code Civ. Proc. § 1008(a) does not require that support for motion for reconsideration be based on "new facts"; only necessary that motion be based an "alleged different state of facts" than the original motion); see also Mogilefsky v. Superior Court (1993) 20 Cal. App. 4th 1409, 1418, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 116 (plaintiff entitled to submit amended complaint by way of motion for reconsideration; if amended complaint states any cause of action, trial court obligated to vacate order sustaining demurrers without leave to amend and make different order granting leave to file amended complaint)]. However, even though a motion to reconsider may be based on either new or different facts, the moving party must provide the trial court with a satisfactory explanation as to why he or she failed to produce the evidence at any earlier time. Failure to do so may expose the party to sanctions [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1008(a), (d); Lucas v. Santa Maria Public Airport Dist. (1995) 39 Cal. App. 4th 1017, 1027-1028, 46 Cal. Rptr. 2d 177 (trial court held not to have abused discretion in denying motion when moving party failed to bring matter to trial court's attention earlier and proposed third amended complaint stated no cause of action)].

For a form of motion for reconsideration, see § 206.141, below. For further discussion and forms relating to motions for reconsideration generally, see Ch. 374, Motions to Reconsider and Renewed Motions .

§ 206.32 Obtaining Judgment of Dismissal After Order Sustaining Demurrer Without Leave to Amend

Unless Code Civ. Proc. § 597 (relating to separate trial of affirmative defenses) applies, the court may dismiss the complaint as to a defendant after a demurrer to that complaint is sustained without leave to amend and either party moves for dismissal [see Code Civ. Proc. § 581(f)(1)].

In the absence of a request for reconsideration (see discussion under § 206.31, above) a formal motion to dismiss the action is not necessary; an informal request by either party is sufficient [Berri v. Superior Court (1955) 43 Cal. 2d 856, 860, 279 P.2d 8 ; see also Rudolph v. Fulton (1960) 178 Cal. App. 2d 339, 343, 2 Cal. Rptr. 807 ; cf. discussion under § 206.33[1], below].

The entry of judgment follows the order of dismissal as a matter of course. Specifically, a dismissal ordered by the court must be in the form of a written order signed by the court and filed in the action, and, when so filed, the order constitutes the judgment and is effective for all purposes. The clerk must note the judgment in the register of actions in the case [Code Civ. Proc. § 581d].

§ 206.33 Obtaining Judgment of Dismissal After Opposing Party's Failure to Amend Pleading

[1] On Motion by Demurring Party

Unless Code Civ. Proc. § 597 (relating to separate trial of affirmative defenses) applies, Code Civ. Proc. § 581 provides that the court may dismiss the complaint as to that defendant if, after a demurrer to the complaint is sustained with leave to amend, the plaintiff fails to amend it within the time allowed by the court and either party moves for dismissal [Code Civ. Proc. § 581(f)(2)]. Under this section, either plaintiff or defendant may move for dismissal. Defendant cannot, therefore, forestall an appeal by failing to move for dismissal [see California Ammonia Co. v. Macco Corp. (1969) 270 Cal. App. 2d 429, 433, 75 Cal. Rptr. 753] .

A motion to dismiss the entire action and for entry of judgment after expiration of the time to amend following the sustaining of a demurrer may be made ex parte [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1320(h)]. For a combined form of ex parte motion and order granting the motion, see § 206.143, below.

If an untimely amendment is filed following the court's order sustaining the demurrer with leave to amend, the defendant should bring a motion to strike the amendment before moving to dismiss the action pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 581(f)(2) [Gitmed v. General Motors Corp. (1994) 26 Cal. App. 4th 824, 827-828, 31 Cal. Rptr. 2d 625] . The motion to strike the untimely amended pleading must be obtained by noticed motion pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1010 [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1320(h); see Gitmed v. General Motors Corp. (1994) 26 Cal. App. 4th 824, 828-829, 31 Cal. Rptr. 2d 625 (party should give notice of motion to strike and motion to dismiss)]. For a form of notice of motion to strike an amended complaint as untimely and to dismiss the action, see § 206.142, below.

[2] On Court's Own Motion

Code Civ. Proc. § 581(f)(2) does not provide the exclusive method for securing dismissal of an action on plaintiff's failure to serve and file an amended complaint after a demurrer to the complaint has been sustained with leave to amend. Rather, the court has inherent power to enforce its order sustaining a demurrer with leave to amend by dismissing the action on its own motion without notice to plaintiff when plaintiff fails to comply with the terms on which the court granted permission to amend [Sousa v. Capital Co. (1963) 220 Cal. App. 2d 744, 755, 34 Cal. Rptr.

71 (involving a predecessor statute)].

§ 206.34 Voluntary Dismissal After Demurrer Sustained

A plaintiff may obtain voluntary dismissal without prejudice before a demurrer is heard and submitted for decision, even if the trial court has already made a tentative ruling sustaining the demurrer [Datner v. Mann Theatres Corp. (1983) 145 Cal. App. 3d 768, 770-771, 193 Cal. Rptr. 676] . It may even be possible to obtain a voluntary dismissal without prejudice after the demurrer has been submitted for decision but before the final decision is made [see Wells v. Marina City Properties, Inc. (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 781, 789-790, 176 Cal. Rptr. 104, 632 P.2d 217 (dictum); Kyle v. Carmon (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 901, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 303, 309-310 (applying Wells dictum to allow voluntary dismissal witouth prejudice after hearing but before decision on Code Civ. Proc. § 425.16 motion)].

When a demurrer is sustained with leave to amend, a plaintiff may still obtain a voluntary dismissal without prejudice before the time to amend expires [Christensen v. Dewor Developments (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 778, 785, 191 Cal. Rptr. 8, 661 P.2d 1088 ; see also Parsons v. Umansky (1994) 28 Cal. App. 4th 867, 870-871, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 144] .

Once a general demurrer is sustained, either without leave to amend or with leave to amend and plaintiff thereafter fails to amend within the time permitted, there has been a "trial" for the purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 581. Thus, the plaintiff can no longer voluntarily dismiss the action without prejudice under Code Civ. Proc. § 581(b)(1), (c), even if the trial court has yet to enter a judgment of dismissal on the sustained demurrer [see Wells v. Marina City Properties, Inc. (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 781, 789, 176 Cal. Rptr. 104, 632 P.2d 217 (decided under former Code Civ. Proc. § 581(1)); Berri v. Superior Court (1955) 43 Cal. 2d 856, 859, 279 P.2d 8 ; Tokerud v. CapitalBank Sacramento (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 775, 781, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 345] .

§ 206.35 Obtaining Default Judgment Following Order on Demurrer

[1] Demurrer to Complaint Sustained With Leave to Amend

If defendant's demurrer to the complaint was sustained with leave to amend, an amended complaint was served and filed, and the defendant failed to answer it as amended or to demur to it, or to file a notice of motion to strike of the character specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 585 within 30 days after it was served on defendant or within the time allowed by the court, a default judgment may be entered against the defendant [see Code Civ. Proc. § 586(a)(1)].

[2] Demurrer to Complaint Overruled

If defendant, without answering, demurred to the complaint with or without filing a notice of motion to strike of the character specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 585, the demurrer was overruled and, if a notice of motion to strike was filed, the motion was denied, and defendant failed to answer the complaint within the time allowed by the court, a default judgment may be entered against the defendant [Code Civ. Proc. § 586(a)(2)].

[3] Demurrer to Answer Sustained With Leave to Amend

If plaintiff's demurrer to the answer was sustained and defendant failed to amend the answer within the time allowed by the court, a default judgment may be entered against the defendant [Code Civ. Proc. § 586(a)(5)].

[4] In Unlawful Detainer, Forcible Detainer, or Forcible Entry Proceedings

A special provision governs proceedings in unlawful or forcible detainer and forcible entry and limits the time to answer the complaint to five days unless the court orders otherwise for good cause shown. This provision applies after a demurrer to a complaint is overruled or a demurrer to an answer is sustained [Code Civ. Proc. § 1167.3 (referring to time to answer under Code Civ. Proc. § 586(a)(2) and (5))].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Demurrers

17-206 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 206.35A

§ 206.35A Subsequent Demurrers

When a prior demurrer was sustained as to some causes of action but overruled as to others, a defendant may not demur again on the same grounds to those portions of an amended pleading as to which the prior demurrer was overruled [Bennett v. Suncloud (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 91, 96-97, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 80] . However, a party is within its rights to successively demurrer to a cause of action in an amended pleading notwithstanding a prior unsuccessful demurrer to that same cause of action [Pavicich v. Santucci (2000) 85 Cal. App. 4th 382, 389, 102 Cal. Rptr. 2d 125] . The interests of all parties are advanced by avoiding a trial and reversal for a defect in pleadings. The objecting party is acting properly in raising the point at the first opportunity, by general demurrer. If the demurrer is erroneously overruled, the objecting party is acting properly in raising the point again, at the next opportunity. If the trial judge made the former ruling himself or herself, he or she is not bound by it. If the demurrer was overruled by a different judge, the trial judge is equally free to reexamine the sufficiency of the pleading [Pacific States Enterprises, Inc. v. City of Coachella (1993) 13 Cal. App. 4th 1414, 1420, n.3, 17 Cal. Rptr. 2d 68] .

When there was only one cause of action and the prior demurrers to that cause of action were sustained, a defendant may demur again on the grounds that the prior demurrer was sustained [Berg & Berg Enterprises, LLC v. Boyle (2009) 178 Cal. App. 4th 1020, 1035-1036, 100 Cal. Rptr. 3d 875 (because defendants demurred to single cause of action of new third amended complaint as to which no prior demurrer had been overruled, restrictive provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 1008 were inapplicable)]. When a plaintiff files an amended pleading in response to an order sustaining a prior demurrer to a cause of action with leave to amend, the amended cause of action is treated as a new pleading and a defendant is free to respond to it by demurrer on any ground [Bennett v. Suncloud (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 91, 96-97, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 80 ; Clausing v. San Francisco Unified School Dist. (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 1224, 1232, 271 Cal. Rptr. 72] .

The role of an appellate court entails review of the trial court's ruling, not its rationale. Even if the trial court is constrained by its prior rulings in its consideration of the grounds raised on demurrers to an amended pleading, on review of the judgment, the appellate court is not so constrained and is free to render an opinion based on the correct rule of law [Berg & Berg Enterprises, LLC v. Boyle (2009) 178 Cal. App. 4th 1020, 1036, 100 Cal. Rptr. 3d 875 ; Bennett v. Suncloud (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 91, 97, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 80] .

[1] Of Order

[a] Order Not Appealable

Neither an order overruling a demurrer nor one sustaining a demurrer, whether with or without leave to amend, is appealable [see San Diego Gas & Electric Co. v. Superior Court (1996) 13 Cal. 4th 893, 912-913, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 724, 920 P.2d 669 (overruling demurrer); Youngblood v. Board of Supervisors (1978) 22 Cal. 3d 644, 651, 150 Cal. Rptr. 242, 586 P.2d 556 (sustaining demurrer without leave to amend); Jones v. H.F. Ahmanson & Co. (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 93, 119, 81 Cal. Rptr. 592, 460 P.2d 464 (overruling demurrer); see also People ex rel. Lungren v. Superior Court (1996) 14 Cal. 4th 294, 299-300, 58 Cal. Rptr. 2d 855, 926 P.2d 1042 (review of demurrer sustained with leave to amend by writ of mandate)]. But, the ruling may be reviewed on appeal from a subsequent judgment or order of dismissal [Code Civ. Proc. § 472c; Timberidge Enterprises, Inc. v. City of Santa Rosa (1978) 86 Cal. App. 3d 873, 878, 150 Cal. Rptr. 606 ; see McKelvey v. Boeing North American, Inc. (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 151, 157 n.8, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 645] . For further discussion and forms, see Ch. 374, Motions to Reconsider and Renewed Motions .

An exception to this rule may apply in class actions. An order sustaining a demurrer without leave to amend that prevents any further proceedings as a class action has been held to be in legal effect a final judgment from which an appeal lies because the order has the "death knell" effect of making further proceeding in the action impractical [Kennedy v. Baxter Healthcare Corp. (1995) 43 Cal. App. 4th 799, 807, 50 Cal. Rptr. 2d 736 ; for further discussion, see Ch 120, Class Actions].

[b] Construction of Order as Judgment

Although an order sustaining or overruling a demurrer is not appealable (see discussion under § 206.36[1][a], above), an appellate court may elect to treat an appeal from an order sustaining a demurrer as an appeal from the judgment of dismissal subsequently entered and to review the order on that appeal. In doing so the court may deem the order sustaining the demurrer to contain a judgment of dismissal [see Los Altos Golf and Country Club v. County of Santa Clara (2008) 165 Cal. App. 4th 198, 202, 80 Cal. Rptr. 3d 340 ; Beazell v. Schrader (1963) 59 Cal. 2d 577, 579-580, 30 Cal. Rptr. 534, 381 P.2d 390 ; Conley v. Roman Catholic Archbishop (2000) 85 Cal. App. 4th 1126, 1130, 102 Cal. Rptr. 679 ; Thaler v. Household Finance Corp. (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 1093, 1098, 95 Cal. Rptr. 2d 779 ; Lumpkin v. Jordon (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 1223, 1226 n.1, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 303 ; see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.104(d)]. An appellate court can also amend an order sustaining a demurrer to make it an appealable judgment of dismissal [see Hardman v. Feinstein (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 157, 159 n.1, 240 Cal. Rptr. 483 (construing notice of appeal as applying to amended judgment)].

Some courts have been reluctant, however, to treat a nonappealable order as appealable or to amend a nonappealable order to make it an appealable judgment of dismissal [see, e.g., Jordan v. Malone (1992) 5 Cal. App. 4th 18, 22-23, 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 454 (Fifth District panel dismissed purported appeal from tentative written decision) ; Munoz v. Florentine Gardens (1991) 235 Cal. App. 3d 1730, 1731, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 609 (Second District panel dismissed appeal from minute order granting motion to dismiss for failure to prosecute) ; Modica v. Merin (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 1072, 1074, 285 Cal. Rptr. 673 (Third District panel dismissed appeal from order granting summary judgment after plaintiff failed to take opportunity to have judgment entered); Cohen v. Equitable Life Assurance Society (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 669, 671, 242 Cal. Rptr. 84 (Second District panel as "saving" unperfected appeal from order sustaining demurrer, but serving notice that it would not "bail out" careless attorneys in the future)]. The ultimate responsibility for perfecting the appeal rests with the appealing party [Jordan v. Malone (1992) 5 Cal. App. 4th 18, 21, 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 454] .

Despite some courts' reluctance to save appeals, other courts may still interpret a notice of appeal from an unappealable order sustaining a demurrer as applying to the judgment rather than the nonappealable order [see Thaler v. Household Finance Corp. (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 1093, 1098, 95 Cal. Rptr. 2d 779 (First Dist., Div. Five) ; LiMandri v. Judkins (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 326, 333 n.1, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 539 (Fourth Dist., Div. One)] .

[c] Review by Extraordinary Writ

[i] Order Sustaining Demurrer

An erroneous order sustaining a demurrer may, in an appropriate case, be reviewed in a higher court by mandate. For example, if a demurrer is granted as to a substantial part of a case, but does not dispose of the entire case, review by mandate may be appropriate [Vasquez v. Superior Court (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 800, 806-807, 94 Cal. Rptr. 796, 484 P.2d 964 ; see North American Chemical Co. v. Superior Court (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 764, 773, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 466 (when court has sustained demurrer to only one of several causes of action, its order is not appealable and review by mandate is appropriate way to control abuse of judicial discretion)].

For discussion and forms relating to review by writ of mandate, see Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition .

[ii] Order Overruling Demurrer

An erroneous order overruling a demurrer ordinarily would not be considered on extraordinary writ, but may be in an appropriate case [see Babb v. Superior Court (1971) 3 Cal. 3d 841, 851-852, 92 Cal. Rptr. 179, 479 P.2d 379 ; City of Huntington Park v. Superior Court (1995) 34 Cal. App. 4th 1293, 1297, 41 Cal. Rptr. 2d 68] . Appropriate cases include the following:

- When the issue is tendered on undisputed facts and is purely legal in nature, it calls for the court's independent appellate review, and if the issue is of significant legal import, relief by extraordinary writ is appropriate [see City of Huntington Park v. Superior Court (1995) 34 Cal. App. 4th 1293, 1297, 41 Cal. Rptr. 2d 68 (mandate)].

- When a significant issue of law is raised and when resolution of the issue in petitioner's favor would result in final disposition as to that party, relief by extraordinary writ is appropriate [Curry v. Superior Court (1993) 20 Cal. App. 4th 180, 183, 24 Cal. Rptr. 2d 495 (mandate)].

- When the issue raised is considered jurisdictional, relief by extraordinary writ is appropriate [County of Santa Barbara v. Superior Court (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 751, 754-755, 93 Cal. Rptr. 406 (prohibition)].

- When, under the facts, the court's discretion can only be exercised in one way and the issue is of grave nature or significant legal impact, relief by extraordinary writ is appropriate [Babb v. Superior Court (1971) 3 Cal. 3d 841, 851-852, 92 Cal. Rptr. 179, 479 P.2d 379 (court treated petition for writ of prohibition as one for mandate)].

For discussion and forms relating to review by writ of mandate, see Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition .

[2] Of Subsequent Judgment

Judgments are, with specified exceptions, made appealable by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 904.1(a)(1) (judgments in unlimited civil cases) and 904.2(a) (judgments in limited civil cases). Hence, judgments of dismissal entered after a demurrer to the complaint has been sustained, either without leave to amend or with leave to amend and plaintiff has failed to amend, are appealable [see, e.g., Irwin v. City of Manhattan Beach (1966) 65 Cal. 2d 13, 16, 51 Cal. Rptr. 881, 415 P.2d 769 (demurrer sustained without leave to amend); Battle v. Kessler (1983) 149 Cal. App. 3d 853, 855, 197 Cal.Rptr. 170 (appeal from nonappealable order sustaining demurrer treated as having been taken from appealable order of dismissal)].

Either party may appeal a several judgment [see Code Civ. Proc. § 579] resolving all issues between a plaintiff and, for example, one of two or more defendants, although the action remains pending in the trial court between the plaintiff and the other defendant or defendants. Thus, a judgment dismissing the complaint as to some but not all defendants after their demurrer to a complaint that has been sustained without leave to amend is appealable [Tinsley v. Palo Alto Unified School Dist. (1979) 91 Cal. App. 3d 871, 880, 154 Cal. Rptr. 591] . Moreover, although an order sustaining a demurrer without leave to amend is not an appealable order, the appellate court may amend a judgment to include a dismissal of the action as to a defendant whose demurrer has been sustained without leave to amend [Fisher v. San Pedro Peninsula Hospital (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 590, 599 n.1, 262 Cal. Rptr. 842] .

[3] Standard of Review

[a] In General

A demurrer tests the legal sufficiency of a complaint, and the granting of leave to amend involves the trial court's discretion. Thus, an appellate court employs two separate standards of review [McClain v. Octagon Plaza, LLC (2008) 159 Cal. App. 4th 784, 791 , 71 Cal. Rtpr. 3d 885; Filet Menu, Inc. v Cheng (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 1276, 1279-1280, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 384 ; Hernandez v. City of Pomona (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 1492, 1497-1498, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 406 ; see G. L. Mezzetta, Inc. v. City of American Canyon (2000) 78 Cal. App. 4th 1087, 1091-1092, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 292 ; Lazar v. Hertz Corp. (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 1494, 1501, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 368]:

- First, there is a de novo review of the complaint to determine if it contains facts sufficient to state a cause of action, or in other words, to determine whether or not the trial court erroneously sustained the demurrer as a matter of law.

- Second, where the complaint is sustained without leave to amend, reviewing courts determine whether the trial court abused its discretion in doing so.

Absent a clear error or abuse of discretion by the trial court, the judgment or order of dismissal following the sustaining of a demurrer will be affirmed [Pena v. Sita World Travel, Inc. (1978) 88 Cal. App. 3d 642, 644, 152 Cal. Rptr. 17 ; Banerian v. O'Malley (1974) 42 Cal. App. 3d 604, 610-611, 116 Cal. Rptr. 919 ; see Farmers Ins. Exchange v. Zerin (1997) 53 Cal. App. 4th 445, 459, 61 Cal. Rptr. 2d 707 (judgment must be affirmed if supported on any ground stated in demurrers, whether or not relied on by trial court); Stanton Road Associates v. Pacific Employers Ins. Co. (1995) 36 Cal. App. 4th 333, 341, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1 (unless failure to grant leave to amend is an abuse of discretion, appellate court must affirm the trial court's judgment if it is correct on any theory); see also Trinkle v. California State Lottery (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 1198, 1201, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 496 (although appellate court exercises independent judgment in reviewing demurrer to determine if complaint's factual allegations state cause of action, appellate court must affirm if trial court's decision correct on any theory); Hernandez v. City of Pomona (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 1492, 1497, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 406 (reversible error exists only if facts were alleged showing entitlement to relief under any possible legal theory)].

The appellant has the burden of demonstrating that either (1) the demurrer was sustained erroneously as matter of law on the facts pleaded, or (2) the court abused its discretion by failing to grant leave to amend [Kroll & Tract v. Paris & Paris (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 1537, 1541, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 78] . A trial court's ruling sustaining a demurrer is deemed erroneous when a plaintiff has stated a cause of action under any possible legal theory. In assessing the sufficiency of a demurrer, all material facts pleaded in the complaint, and those that arise by reasonable implication, are deemed true [Las Lomas Land Co., LLC v. City of Los Angeles (2009) 177 Cal. App. 4th 837, 847-848, 99 Cal. Rptr. 3d 503 ; Tafoya v. Hastings College (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 437, 440, 236 Cal. Rptr. 395 ; Terhell v. American Commonwealth Associates (1985) 172 Cal. App. 3d 434, 438, 218 Cal. Rptr. 256 ; see also Thaler v. Household Finance Corp. (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 1093, 1098, 95 Cal. Rptr. 2d 779 (court accepts as true all facts that may be implied or inferred from those alleged)]. If the demurrer is based on an affirmative defense, it cannot be granted if the action might be barred by the defense, but is not necessarily barred [CrossTalk Productions, Inc. v. Jacobson (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 631, 635, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 615] .

It is an abuse of discretion to sustain a demurrer without leave to amend if there is a reasonable possibility that defect can be cured by amendment [Las Lomas Land Co., LLC v. City of Los Angeles (2009) 177 Cal. App. 4th 837, 847-848, 99 Cal. Rptr. 3d 503 ; Minsky v. City of Los Angeles (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 113, 118, 113 Cal. Rptr. 102, 520 P.2d 726 ; Wilner v. Sunset Life Ins. Co. (2000) 78 Cal. App. 4th 952, 958-959, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 413 ; Vanzant v. DaimlerChrysler Corp. (2002) 96 Cal. App. 4th 1283, 1288, 118 Cal. Rptr. 2d 48 ; Gilmer v. Ellington (2008) 159 Cal. App. 4th 190, 202 , 70 Cal. Rtpr. 3d 893]. It is, however, proper to sustain a demurrer without leave to amend when it is improbable that plaintiff can state a cause of action in light of earlier failed attempts by plaintiff to do so and the nature of the defects involved [Wilner v. Sunset Life Ins. Co. (2000) 78 Cal. App. 4th 952, 958-959, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 413 ; Lee v. Interinsurance Exchange (1996) 50 Cal. App. 4th 694, 724, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 798 ; see Alexandria S. v. Pacific Fertility Medical Center, Inc. (1997) 55 Cal. App. 4th 110, 115, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d 23 (demurrers sustained without leave to amend after plaintiff had twice failed to adequately amend the complaint)].

The showing as to how a complaint can be amended to state a cause of action need not be made to the trial court and can be made for the first time to the reviewing court [see Burchett v. City of Newport Beach (1995) 33 Cal. App. 4th 1472, 1483, 40 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1 ; Careau & Co. v. Security Pacific Business Credit, Inc. (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 1371, 1386, 272 Cal. Rptr. 387 ; see also Rakestraw v. California Physicians' Service (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 39, 43, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 354] . However, while a plaintiff need not request leave to amend in order to preserve on appeal the issue of whether the court abused discretion in a sustaining demurrer without leave to amend, on appeal the plaintiff bears the burden of proving there is reasonable possibility the defect in the pleading can be cured by amendment. The plaintiff must show how plaintiff can amend its complaint and how that amendment will change the legal effect of the complaint [Palm Springs Tennis Club v. Rangel (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 1, 7-8, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 73 ; see McKelvey v. Boeing North American, Inc. (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 151, 163, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 645 ; for further discussion, see § 206.36[3][d], below)]. A new legal theory can be advanced for the first time on appeal why the allegations state a cause of action [20th Century Ins. Co. v. Quackenbush (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 135, 139 n.3, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 113] . New issues, however, cannot generally be raised for the first time in oral argument [see Burchett v. City of Newport Beach (1995) 33 Cal. App. 4th 1472, 1483, 40 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1 (demurrer was properly sustained without leave to amend when no suggestion of the potential viability of any new cause of action was made in trial or appellate court)]. At least one court has held that the general rule allowing plaintiff to request leave to amend for the first time on appeal does not apply if the trial court sustains defendant's demurrer with leave to amend and plaintiff elects not to amend the pleading [Las Lomas Land Co., LLC v. City of Los Angeles (2009) 177 Cal. App. 4th 837, 861, 99 Cal. Rptr. 3d 503].

[b] Statement of Grounds in Order

Code Civ. Proc. § 472d provides that, when a demurrer is sustained, the trial court "shall" include in its decision or order a statement of the specific ground or grounds on which the decision or order is based. If the court enters a specific ground for sustaining the demurrer in the court minutes, the minutes constitute an order for this purpose [Stevenson v. San Francisco Housing Authority (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 269, 275, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 398] . Trial courts do not, however, always comply with this requirement. In any case, Code Civ. Proc. § 472d prescribes no rule regulating the reviewing process, that is, it does not provide that the order must be tested only according to the reasons given by the trial court [Weinstock v. Eissler (1964) 224 Cal. App. 2d 212, 224-225, 36 Cal. Rptr. 537] . Consequently, the trial court's order sustaining a demurrer, urging several grounds of objection, may be upheld on appeal from the judgment if any of the grounds urged are correct even though the trial court specified the wrong ground or did not specify any ground [see Zappas v. King Williams Press, Inc. (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 768, 771, 89 Cal. Rptr. 307 (demurrer erroneously sustained on ground action was barred by statute of frauds, but judgment of dismissal affirmed on ground action was barred by Bus. & Prof. Code § 10136, requiring that it be alleged and proved that plaintiff was a licensed broker at time of transaction and plaintiff could not amend to so allege); California State Employees' Assn. v. Williams (1970) 7 Cal. App. 3d 390, 395, 86 Cal. Rptr. 305 (trial court erroneously sustained demurrer on jurisdictional grounds, but judgment for defendants affirmed on ground demurrer should have been sustained for failure to state cause of action, a ground urged by defendants in trial court); see also CAMSI IV v. Hunter Technology Corp. (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 1525, 1533, 282 Cal. Rptr. 80 (defendant demurred on grounds that complaint failed to plead sufficiently theories of recovery and action was barred by statute of limitations; trial court sustained demurrer on ground that complaint did not sufficiently plead theories of recovery, and appellate court affirmed judgment on ground that claims were barred by statute of limitations].

[c] Court's Action, Not Reasons, Reviewed

It is the validity of the court's action in sustaining the demurrer that is reviewable, not the court's opinion or statement of reasons for its actions [Gonzales v. State of California (1977) 68 Cal. App. 3d 621, 627, 137 Cal. Rptr. 681 ; Sackett v. Wyatt (1973) 32 Cal. App. 3d 592, 598 n.2, 108 Cal. Rptr. 219 ; see Wilner v. Sunset Life Ins. Co. (2000) 78 Cal. App. 4th 952, 958, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 413 ; Orange Unified School Dist. v. Rancho Santiago Community College Dist. (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 750, 757, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 778] . If the allegations adequately state a cause of action under any legal theory, it is error to sustain a demurrer [Cellular Plus, Inc. v. Superior Court (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 1224, 1231, 18 Cal. Rptr. 2d 308] .

Nor is the demurring party limited on appeal to the reasons and arguments advanced in the trial court in support of a general demurrer; rather, the party may present to the appellate court any and all reasons supporting the trial court's order sustaining it [Sanchez v. Truck Ins. Exchange (1994) 21 Cal. App. 4th 1778, 1787, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 812 ; Zumbrun v. University of Southern California (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 1, 8-9, 101 Cal. Rptr. 499 ; see also Zappas v. King Williams Press, Inc. (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 768, 771, 89 Cal. Rptr. 307] .

If an order sustaining a demurrer to a complaint with leave to amend is general in its terms and does not specify the particular ground of the court's ruling and the pleader elects not to amend, the subsequent order of dismissal will not be disturbed on appeal if the complaint is objectionable on any ground raised by the demurrer [Shapiro v. Wells Fargo

Realty Advisors (1984) 152 Cal. App. 3d 467, 474, 199 Cal. Rptr. 613 ; Weinstock v. Eissler (1964) 224 Cal. App. 2d 212, 223, 36 Cal. Rptr. 537 ; see also Rader v. Apple Valley Bldg. & Dev. Co. (1968) 261 Cal. App. 2d 308, 314, 68 Cal. Rptr. 108] .

If the demurrer is based on both general and special grounds and the trial court sustains it with respect to the general ground, the ruling impliedly was made either without considering the special grounds or on determining that they were not well taken. Thus, if the trial court sustains a demurrer without leave to amend in general terms, the court of appeal must assume that the trial court only ruled on the general demurrer and not on the special demurrer [Rogoff v. Grabowski (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 624, 628, 246 Cal. Rptr. 185] .

If the appellate court concludes that the general demurrer was erroneously sustained (that is, that the complaint states a cause of action), the trial judge should, on remand, be directed to consider the special grounds [Stowe v. Fritzie Hotels, Inc. (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 416, 425-426, 282 P.2d 890 ; Weinstock v. Eissler (1964) 224 Cal. App. 2d 212, 223-224, 36 Cal. Rptr. 537] .

[d] Sufficiency of Complaint After Demurrer Sustained

A reviewing court is not bound by the trial court's construction of the pleadings, but rather will make its own independent judgment of the sufficiency of the complaint [Parsons v. Tickner (1995) 31 Cal. App. 4th 1513, 1521, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 810 ; see Hernandez v. City of Pomona (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 1492, 1497, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 406] , even as to matters not expressly ruled on by the trial court [Herman v. Los Angeles County Metropolitan Transportation Authority (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 819, 824, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 144] .

The court takes the facts from the plaintiff's complaint, the allegations of which are deemed true for the limited purpose of determining whether the plaintiff has stated a viable cause of action [Stevenson v. Superior Court (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 880, 885, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 888, 941 P.2d 1157] . The court's only task is to determine whether the complaint states a cause of action [Snyder v. Michael's Stores, Inc. (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 991, 995, 68 Cal. Rptr. 2d 476, 945 P.2d 781] .

When a demurrer is sustained, the appellate court must determine whether the complaint states facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action. In reviewing the sufficiency of a complaint against a general demurrer, the appellate court treats the demurrer as admitting all material facts properly pleaded, but not contentions, deductions, or conclusions of fact or law, and it considers matters that may be judicially noticed. It also gives the complaint a reasonable interpretation, reading it as a whole and its parts in their context. Moreover, the allegations of the complaint must be liberally construed with a view to attaining substantial justice among the parties [Biles v. Richter (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 325, 328-329, 253 Cal. Rptr. 414 ; see Herman v. Los Angeles County Metropolitan Transportation Authority (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 819, 824, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 144 ; Levin v. Gulf Ins. Group (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 1282, 1284, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 228 ; Santa Monica Rent Control Bd. v. Bluvstein (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 308, 313-314, 281 Cal. Rptr. 298 ; see also 20th Century Ins. Co. v. Quackenbush (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 135, 138 n.1, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 113 (argumentative allegations and conclusions of law not presumed to be true)]. Allegations in a complaint, however, must yield to contrary facts found in exhibits to the complaint [Software Design & Application, Ltd. v. Hoefer & Arnett, Inc. (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 472, 484, 56 Cal. Rptr. 2d 756 ; see Breneric Associates v. City of Del Mar (1998) 69 Cal. App. 4th 166, 180, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 324 ; Mission Oaks Ranch, Ltd. v. County of Santa Barbara (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 713, 720, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1] . There may be some instances, however, when the rule giving precedence to allegations in exhibits does not apply [see, e.g., Mead v. Sanwa Bank California (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 561, 567-568, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 625 (stating rule, but also noting that there are instances in which the rule giving precedence to allegations in exhibits does not apply)].

The appellate court must examine the complaint's factual allegations to determine if they state a cause of action under any available legal theory irrespective of the labels attached to any alleged cause of action. Reversible error has been committed if the facts alleged show entitlement to relief under any possible legal theory [Daly v. Exxon Corp (1997)

55 Cal App. 4th 39, 43, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 727 ; Sindell v. Gibson, Dunn & Crutcher (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 1457, 1465, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 594 ; accord Rosales v. City of Los Angeles (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 419, 423, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 144 ; see also Franklin v. Monadnock Co. (2007) 151 Cal. App. 4th 252, 257, 59 Cal. Rptr. 3d 692 ; G. L. Mezzetta, Inc. v. City of American Canyon (2000) 78 Cal. App. 4th 1087, 1091, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 292 (reversible error exists only if facts alleged show entitlement to relief under any possible legal theory); Mead v. Sanwa Bank California (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 561, 564, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 625 (court disregards any erroneous or confusing labels employed by plaintiff when considering legal effect of facts)].

The court considers neither the truth nor accuracy of the material factual allegations [Campbell v. Superior Court (1996) 44 Cal. App. 4th 1308, 1311, 52 Cal. Rptr. 2d 385] . The court is not concerned with the plaintiff's possible inability or difficulty in proving the allegations of the complaint [Parada v. City of Colton (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 356, 362, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 309 ; see also Gordon v. Law Offices of Aguirre & Meyer (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 972, 975 n.2, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 119 (reviewing court accepts as true all properly pleaded allegations without concern for proof problems); Gervase v. Superior Court (1995) 31 Cal. App. 4th 1218, 1224, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 875 (demurrer neither concerned with likelihood that plaintiffs will prevail nor with whether they have evidence to support their allegations)]. Rather, the appellate court is required to construe the complaint liberally to determine if a cause of action has been stated, given the assumed truth of the facts pleaded [Picton v. Anderson Union High School Dist. (1996) 50 Cal. App. 4th 726, 730, 733, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 829] .

But, an allegation that is contrary to law or to a fact of which the court may take judicial notice [see Evid. Code §§ 452, 459] is to be treated as a nullity [Rauber v. Herman (1991) 229 Cal. App. 3d 942, 946, 280 Cal. Rptr. 785 ; see Cochran v. Cochran (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 488, 493, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 540 (court may disregard such allegations); accord Duggal v. G.E. Capital Communications Services, Inc. (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 81, 86, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 383 ; City of Chula Vista v. County of San Diego (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 1713, 1719, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 89 (judicially noticeable facts may supersede allegations)]. Moreover, in an appropriate case, the court may consider judicial admissions contained in the plaintiff's complaint and apparently admissions contained in the plaintiff's opposition papers to a defendant's demurrer to negate the plaintiff's ability to state a cause of action [see Setliff v. E.I. Du Pont De Nemours & Co. (1995) 32 Cal. App. 4th 1525, 1534, 1536-1537, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 763 ; see also Knoell v. Petrovich (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 164, 168-169, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 162 (admission in plaintiff's first amended complaint); Gordon v. Law Offices of Aguirre & Meyer (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 972, 980 n.10, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 119 (admission in plaintiff's complaint and reply brief)].

Also, if the trial court sustains a demurrer with leave to amend but the plaintiff elects not to amend, there is a presumption that the plaintiff has stated as strong a case as he or she can. In those instances, in determining whether the trial court has abused its discretion, the appellate court must resolve all ambiguities and uncertainties raised by the demurrer against the plaintiff; if the complaint is objectionable on any ground raised by the demurrer, the judgment of dismissal must be affirmed [Casella v. City of Morgan Hill (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 43, 48, 280 Cal. Rptr. 876 , cert. denied, 118 L. Ed. 2d 387 (1992) ; see also Freeman v. San Diego Assn. of Realtors (1999) 77 Cal. App. 4th 171, 197, 91 Cal. Rptr. 2d 534 ; Tudor Ranches, Inc. v. State Comp. Ins. Fund (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 1422, 1434, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 574] .

Conversely, if the trial court fails to grant leave to amend when it knows of potentially viable claims at the time it sustains a demurrer, even though plaintiff does not request leave to amend reversal may be required [see Kolani v. Gluska (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 402, 405, 411-412, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 257 (absent statute of limitations concern or prejudice to opposing party such as delay in trial, loss of critical evidence, or added cost of preparation, trial court should have granted leave to amend, rather than sustaining demurrer without leave to amend, when it knew of potentially viable claim at time of sustaining of demurrer, even though plaintiff did not request leave to amend)].

There is a strong policy in favor of a hearing on the merits [Vaillette v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. (1993) 18 Cal. App. 4th 680, 685, 22 Cal. Rptr. 2d 807] and in reviewing an order sustaining a demurrer without leave to amend, the appellate court accepts as true all properly pleaded facts and determines whether the plaintiff pleaded facts showing that he or she is entitled to some relief under any legal theory [Rauber v. Herman (1991) 229 Cal. App. 3d 942, 946, 280 Cal. Rptr. 785] . Moreover, the appellate court accepts as true not only the facts alleged in the complaint but also facts that may be implied or inferred from those expressly alleged [Mead v. Sanwa Bank California (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 561, 564, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 625 ; Marshall v. Gibson, Dunn & Crutcher (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 1397, 1403, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 339 ; see Gordon v. Law Offices of Aguirre & Meyer (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 972, 976, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 119] .

The appellate court when reviewing the sufficiency of a complaint against a demurrer will not ordinarily consider the allegations of a superseded complaint [see Baltins v. James (1995) 36 Cal. App. 4th 1193, 1205, 42 Cal. Rptr. 2d 896 (disapproved on other grounds in Jordache Enterprises, Inc. v. Brobeck, Phleger & Harrison (1998) 18 Cal. 4th 739, 761, 76 Cal.Rptr. 2d 749, 958 P.2d 1026)]. For discussion of exceptions to this rule, see § 206.28[4], above.

If the pleading is defective, the court must further decide whether there is a reasonable possibility that the defect can be cured by amendment. If it can be, the trial court has abused its discretion, and the judgment will be reversed. If not, there has been no abuse of discretion, and the judgment will be affirmed. The burden is on the plaintiff to prove the reasonable possibility of amendment [Blank v. Kirwan (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 311, 318, 216 Cal. Rptr. 718, 703 P.2d 58 ; KFC Western, Inc. v. Meghrig (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 1167, 1173, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 676 ; Vaillette v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. (1993) 18 Cal. App. 4th 680, 685, 22 Cal. Rptr. 2d 807 ; see Assurance Co. of America v. Haven (1995) 32 Cal. App. 4th 78, 81-82, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 25 (trial court's judgment of dismissal based on demurrer sustained without leave to amend reversed when there was reasonable possibility that insurer could amend its complaint to allege cause of action)].

The plaintiff must show in what manner plaintiff can amend the complaint and how that amendment will change the legal effect of the pleading [Redmond v. Secure Horizons, Pacificare, Inc. (1997) 60 Cal. App. 4th 96, 105, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 174 ; accord Rakestraw v. California Physicians' Service (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 39, 43, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 354 ; McKelvey v. Boeing North American, Inc. (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 151, 163, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 645 ; Palm Springs Tennis Club v. Rangel (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 1, 5, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 73 ; see Downs v. Department of Water & Power (1997) 58 Cal. App. 4th 1093, 1099, 68 Cal. Rptr. 2d 590 (to meet burden of showing abuse of discretion plaintiff must show how complaint can be amended to state cause of action)]. The assertion of an abstract right to amend does not satisfy this burden. The plaintiff must clearly and specifically set forth the applicable substantive law and the legal basis for amendment, i.e., the elements of the cause of action and authority for it. Further, the plaintiff must set forth factual allegations that sufficiently state all required elements of that cause of action. Allegations must be factual and specific, not vague or conclusory [Rakestraw v. California Physicians' Service (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 39, 43-44, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 354] . Plaintiff's showing need not be made in the trial court, however, as long as it made to the reviewing court [Downs v. Department of Water & Power (1997) 58 Cal. App. 4th 1093, 1099, 68 Cal. Rptr. 2d 590 ; see discussion under § 206.36[3][a], above].

The burden of showing a reasonable possibility exists that amendment can cure the defects remains with the plaintiff; neither the trial court nor the appellate court will rewrite a complaint [Rakestraw v. California Physicians' Service (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 39, 44, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 354] . If the plaintiff cannot show an abuse of discretion, the trial court's order sustaining the demurrer without leave to amend must be affirmed [Lazar v. Hertz Corp. (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 1494, 1501, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 368] . If there is no factual dispute in the case, the nature of the claim is obvious, and no liability exists under the applicable substantive law, there is no abuse of discretion, because the defect could not be cured by amendment [Harshbarger v. City of Colton (1988) 197 Cal. App. 3d 1335, 1349, 243 Cal. Rptr. 463 ; see Redmond v. Secure Horizons, Pacificare, Inc. (1997) 60 Cal. App. 4th 96, 105, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 174 (defendant's demurrer properly sustained without leave to amend when no reasonable possibility that plaintiff could amend complaint to bring it within jurisdiction of trial court); see also Biles v. Richter (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 325, 332, 253 Cal. Rptr. 414 (demurrer to complaint for negligence properly sustained without leave to amend when lack of negligence is determined as matter of law)]. Similarly, when the plaintiff offers no allegations to support the possibility of amendment and no legal authority showing the viability of new causes of action, there is no basis for finding the trial court abused its discretion when it sustained the demurrer without leave to amend [Rakestraw v. California Physicians' Service (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 39, 44, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 354] .

It has been stated that when a demurrer to an original complaint has been sustained, denial of leave to amend constitutes an abuse of discretion if the pleading on its face does not show that it is incapable of amendment [Association of Community Organizations for Reform Now v. Department of Industrial Relations (1995) 41 Cal. App. 4th 298, 302 n.2, 48 Cal Rptr. 2d 486 , citing California Federal Bank v. Matreyek (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 125, 130-131, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 58] . This rule, however, is peculiar to cases in which a complaint is good as against a general demurrer for failure to state a cause of action but is subject to a special demurrer for uncertainty or ambiguity in the pleading. In those cases the plaintiff must be given the opportunity to clarify the uncertainty or ambiguity unless the pleading on its face shows that the defect cannot be cured. When a complaint is subject to a general demurrer, however, this special rule is inapplicable and the burden remains on the appellant to demonstrate how the complaint might be amended [Association of Community Organizations For Reform Now v. Department of Industrial Relations (1995) 41 Cal. App. 4th 298, 302 n.2, 48 Cal Rptr. 2d 486 (no error in trial court sustaining general demurrer without leave to amend; plaintiff did not meet burden to demonstrate manner in which complaint might be amended)].

[e] Consideration of Matters Subject to Judicial Notice

A reviewing court may consider facts judicially noticed by the trial court or those which the trial court properly could have noticed [StorMedia Inc. v. Superior Court (1999) 20 Cal. 4th 449, 456 n.9, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 843, 976 P.2d 214] .

When reviewing a demurrer on appeal, in the interests of justice, a court will consider judicially noticeable facts, even if these facts are not set forth in the complaint [Cantu v. Resolution Trust Corp. (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 857, 877, 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 151 ; see City of Chula Vista v. County of SanDiego (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 1713, 1719, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 89] . In particular, appellate courts should judicially notice any fact of which the trial court took proper judicial notice [Evid. Code § 459(a); Cantu v. Resolution Trust Corp. (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 857, 877, 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 151 ; see also Freeman v. San Diego Assn. of Realtors (1999) 77 Cal. App. 4th 171, 178 n.3, 91 Cal. Rptr. 2d 534 (when affidavits or exhibits filed by plaintiff may be judicially noticed, court may consider those facts)].

A reviewing court will ordinarily, however, look to the record made in the trial court. Although the court may take judicial notice of matters not before the trial court, it need not do so. An appellate court may properly decline to take judicial notice under Evid. Code §§ 452 and 459 of a matter that should have been presented in the first instance to the trial court for its consideration [Brosterhous v. State Bar (1996) 12 Cal. 4th 315, 325-326, 48 Cal. Rptr. 2d 87, 906 P.2d 1242 (judicial notice of administrative record not taken; no request made in trial court and Court of Appeal)].

§ 206.50 Governing Law

The motion for judgment on the pleadings, long recognized by case law [see Hibernia S. & L. Soc. v. Thornton (1897) 117 Cal. 481, 482, 49 P. 573 ; see also Coyne v. Krempels (1950) 36 Cal. 2d 257, 262, 223 P.2d 244] , was established as a statutory motion by 1993 Stats., ch. 456, which, among other changes, enacted Code Civ. Proc. § 438. Section 438 now governs a motion for judgment on the pleadings.

§ 206.51 Other Motions Treated as Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings

When a motion for summary judgment challenges the sufficiency of the pleadings rather than the evidence supporting the allegations contained in the pleadings, it is tantamount to a motion for judgment on the pleadings and may be treated as such by the trial court. The practical effect of this procedure is that in granting judgment on the pleadings, the trial court may give the plaintiff the opportunity to amend the complaint even when no motion to amend has been filed [Taylor v. Lockheed Martin Corp. (2000) 78 Cal. App. 4th 472, 479, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 873 ; see also American Airlines, Inc. v. County of San Mateo (1996) 12 Cal. 4th 1110, 1117-1118, 51 Cal. Rptr. 2d 251, 912 P.2d 1198 (defendants' summary judgment motion used to test whether complaint stated cause of action treated as motion for judgment on pleadings when time for demurrer had passed)]. Court has treated an improperly brought motion to dismiss as a nonstatutory motion for judgment on the pleadings [see Saltarelli & Steronovich v. Douglas (1995) 40 Cal. App. 4th 1, 4-5, 46 Cal. Rptr. 2d 683] .

Similarly, a court may properly treat motions in limine as a motion for judgment on the pleading where the cumulative effect of the motions in limine is to challenge all of the evidence submitted by a party on the ground that it fails to state any cause of action and entitles the other party to judgment as a matter of law [Coshow v. City of Escondido (2005) 132 Cal. App. 4th 687, 701, 34 Cal. Rptr. 3d 19] .

§ 206.52 Limitations on Motion

The Code Civ. Proc. § 438 motion for judgment on the pleadings is comparable to a general demurrer, and may also be based on the special demurrer ground of lack of jurisdiction [compare Code Civ. Proc. § 438(c) with Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(a), (e); see § 206.54[1], below]. However, the Section 438 motion cannot be brought until the time for a demurrer to the challenged pleading has expired [Code Civ. Proc. § 438(f)]. A party may make a Section 438 motion for judgment on the pleadings if he or she did not demur to the complaint or answer on the same grounds as those asserted in the motion [Code Civ. Proc. § 438(g)(2)]. If a party demurred and the demurrer was overruled, the party may make a Section 438 motion on the same grounds, but only if there has been a material change in applicable case law or statutes since the ruling on the demurrer [Code Civ. Proc. § 438(g)(1)]. The Section 438 motion is not available after entry of the pretrial conference order or within 30 days of the date initially set for trial, whichever is later, unless the court allows otherwise [Code Civ. Proc. § 438(e)]. Thus, parties are pressed to make any challenges to the pleadings at the earliest possible time.

§ 206.54 Grounds

[1] Enumerated in Code Civ. Proc. § 438

The grounds for a Code Civ. Proc. § 438 motion for judgment on the pleadings are limited to those specifically listed [Code Civ. Proc. § 438(c)(1)].

If the moving party is a plaintiff, the grounds are that the complaint states facts sufficient to constitute a cause or causes of action against the defendant and that the answer does not state facts sufficient to constitute a defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 438(c)(1)(A)].

If the moving party is a defendant, the grounds are that the court lacks subject matter jurisdiction, or that the complaint does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action against that defendant [Code Civ. Proc. § 438(c)(1)(B)].

The same limitations as to grounds apply to a motion brought by the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 438(c)(3)].

The motion may be as to either the entire pleading attacked or as to separate causes of action or separate defenses [Code Civ. Proc. § 438(c)(2)].

[2] Compared to Demurrer

The statutory grounds under Code Civ. Proc. § 438 are similar to those recognized by case law prior to the enactment of Section 438. The case law established that the grounds for a motion for judgment on the pleadings are the same as those for a general demurrer [see Carlson v. Lindauer (1953) 119 Cal. App. 2d 292, 301, 259 P.2d 925] . The motion is analagous to a general demurrer. In other words, it admits the truth of all material facts pleaded [Kempton v. City of Los Angeles (2008) 165 Cal. App. 4th 1344, 1347, 81 Cal. Rptr. 3d 852 ; CD Investment Co. v. California Ins. Guarantee Assn. (2000) 84 Cal. App. 4th 1410, 1417, 101 Cal. Rptr. 2d 806 ; see Consolidated Fire Protection Dist. v. Howard Jarvis Taxpayers' Assn. (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 211, 219, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 586] , unless contrary to law or fact of which the court may take judicial notice [Mechanical Contractors Assn. v. Greater Bay Area Assn. (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 672, 677, 78 Cal. Rptr. 2d 225] . Hence, it attacks only defects appearing from the face of the pleadings, or by matters that can be judicially noticed [Howard Jarvis Taxpayers Assn. v. City of Riverside (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 679, 685, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 592 ; Cloud v. Northrop Grumman Corp. (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 995, 999, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 544] .

A motion for judgment on the pleadings, like a general demurrer, tests whether, as a matter of law, a pleading states facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action [Thornburg v. El Centro Regional Medical Center (2006) 143 Cal. App. 4th 198, 201, 48 Cal. Rptr. 3d 840 ; Ponderosa Homes, Inc. v. City of San Ramon (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 1761, 1767-1768, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 26 (statute of limitations barred action); Fraker v. Sentry Life Ins. Co. (1993) 19 Cal. App. 4th 276, 285, 23 Cal. Rptr. 2d 372 ; La Jolla Village Homeowners' Assn. v. Superior Court (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 1131, 1141, 261 Cal. Rptr. 146] or a defense [see MacIsaac v. Pozzo (1945) 26 Cal. 2d 809, 812-813, 161 P.2d 449] . A complaint is subject to the motion only when the facts alleged are not sufficient to state a cause of action and do not entitle plaintiff to any part of the relief sought [Rannard v. Lockheed Aircraft Corp. (1945) 26 Cal. 2d 149, 151, 157 P.2d 1] . The complaint cannot be attacked by reference to matters set forth in the answer [Hughes v. Western MacArthur Co. (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 951, 957, 237 Cal. Rptr. 738] . An answer is subject to the motion only when the complaint states a cause of action and theanswer raises no material issue and states no defense [see MacIsaac v. Pozzo (1945) 26 Cal. 2d 809, 812-813, 161 P.2d 449] .

[3] Lack of Subject Matter Jurisdiction

The granting of a motion for judgment on the pleadings made by one defendant and dismissing the action as to all defendants on the ground the court lacked subject matter jurisdiction in that the alleged cause of action was preempted by federal law has been held to be proper as a prudent and economical use of judicial resources [see Gene R. Smith Corp. v. Terry's Tractor, Inc. (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 951, 952-953, 956 n.1, 257 Cal. Rptr. 598 , cert. denied, 494 U.S. 1016 ; see also Saks v. Parilla, Hubard & Militzok (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 565, 567, 574, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 120 (court properly granted defendants' motion for judgment on the pleadings based on lack of subject matter jurisdiction over action for malicious prosecution and abuse of process that was completely preempted by Bankruptcy Code)].

[4] Limited to Matter on Face of Pleading and Judicial Notice

The grounds for the motion must appear on the face of the challenged pleading or from any matter of which the court is may take judicial notice [Code Civ. Proc. § 438(d)]. In ruling on a motion for judgment on the pleadings, the trial court must accept as true all material facts properly pleaded, but does not consider conclusions of law or fact, opinions, speculation, or allegations contrary to law or facts that are judicially noticed [Stevenson Real Estate Services, Inc. v. CB Richard Ellis Real Estate Services, Inc. (2006) 138 Cal. App. 4th 1215, 1219-1220, 42 Cal. Rptr. 3d 235] .

Thus, matters of which the court must [Evid. Code § 451] or may [Evid. Code § 452; see Evid. Code § 453 (procedure for making permissive judicial notice mandatory)] take judicial notice, including competent evidence of record in the trial court, may be considered by the court in ruling on the motion for judgment on the pleadings [see Code Civ. Proc. § 438(d); Sullivan v. County of Los Angeles (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 710, 714 n.3, 117 Cal. Rptr. 241, 527 P.2d 865 ; Tiffany v. Sierra Sands Unified School Dist. (1980) 103 Cal. App. 3d 218, 225, 162 Cal. Rptr. 669] . Competent evidence means extrinsic evidence that is properly authenticated and included in the record, such as written responses to requests for admissions and written interrogatories [see Stencel Aero Engineering Corp. v. Superior Court (1976) 56 Cal. App. 3d 978, 986-987 n.6, 128 Cal. Rptr. 691 ; see also Tiffany v. Sierra Sands Unified School Dist. (1980) 103 Cal. App. 3d 218, 230-231, 162 Cal. Rptr. 669 (although trial court may, but is not compelled to, take judicial notice of competent evidence adduced at trial proceedings on motion for judgment on pleadings); compare Stencel and Tiffany with Hong Soo Shin v. Oyoung Kong (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 498, 505, 95 Cal. Rptr. 304 (expert declarations that were part of summary judgment motion could not be used to attack judgment on pleadings)].

The court may not, however, consider evidence outside of the pleadings or its judicial notice, nor may it interpret the matters before it if the interpretations involve resolving factual questions that cannot be resolved without resort to extrinsic evidence [Trewin v. State of California (1984)150 Cal. App. 3d 975, 981, 198 Cal. Rptr. 263 ; see Cloud v. Northrop Grumman Corp. (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 995, 999-1000, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 544 (if factual issues could not be decided solely by reviewing complaint and matters that could be judicially noticed, issues could not be decided on motion for judgment on the pleadings); see also Hong Soo Shin v. Oyoung Kong (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 498, 502-503, 505, 95 Cal. Rptr. 304 (expert declarations that were part of summary judgment motion could not be used to attack judgment on pleadings); cf. Howard Jarvis Taxpayers Assn v. City of Riverside (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 679, 688-689, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 592 (statements by various city officials could not be considered by court as evidence, but could be considered to extent they show plaintiffs should have been given leave to amend)].

A court may, however, consider evidence outside the pleading when the parties enter into a written stipulation concerning facts and authorize the court on the record to consider the stipulation for purposes of the motion [see North Side etc. Assn. v. Hillside etc. Park (1945) 70 Cal. App. 2d 609, 613-614, 161 P.2d 618 ; cf. Agnew v. City of Los Angeles (1950) 99 Cal. App. 2d 105, 107-108, 221 P.2d 340 (record did not show that parties had consented to court's consideration of stipulation)].

The court may also properly consider the parties' statements of undisputed facts, as to which they waived their rights to have a determination at trial [Ponderosa Homes, Inc. v. City of San Ramon (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 1761, 1768, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 26 (defendant's motion for judgment on the pleadings based on bar of statute of limitations followed its successful opposition to plaintiff's motion for summary adjudication on the same grounds)].

In addition, in an appropriate case, the court may consider judicial admissions contained in a party's pleadings and apparently admissions contained in that party's opposition papers [see Setliff v. E.I. Du Pont De Nemours & Co. (1995) 32 Cal. App. 4th 1525, 1534, 1536-1537, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 763 (demurrers granted as to some defendants and judgment on the pleadings granted as to other defendants; on appeal court held that judicial admissions contained in plaintiff's amended complaint negated plaintiff's ability to state causes of action for negligence and products liability under traditional theories and that admissions contained in plaintiff's opposition papers to demurrers also negated plaintiff's ability to state cause of action for products liability under alternative liability and market share theories)].

When a written instrument is attached to the pleading and properly incorporated by reference, the court may examine the exhibit and treat the pleader's allegations of its legal effect as surplusage [Lumbermens Mut. Cas. Co. v. Vaughn (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 171, 178, 244 Cal. Rptr. 567 (insurance coverage case); cf. Columbia Casualty Co. v. Northwestern Nat. Ins. Co. (1991) 231 Cal. App. 3d 457, 468-470, 282 Cal. Rptr. 389 (when written instruments incorporated by reference are basis of claim or defense, recitals in instruments take precedence over allegations in pleadings unless incorporated instruments susceptible to more than one interpretation; given liberality of California's parol evidence rule, judgment on pleadings granted in reliance on terminology of incorporated complex contract to negate express allegation of its meaning is highly suspect)].

If there are material factual issues that require evidentiary resolution, judgment on the pleading must be denied [Schabarum v. California Legislature (1998) 60 Cal. App. 4th 1205, 1216, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 745] .

When judicial notice is sought, the matter to be noticed must be specified in the notice of motion, or in the supporting points and authorities, unless the court permits otherwise [Code Civ. Proc. § 438(d)]. For further discussion of matters subject to judicial notice and of the procedure for taking judicial notice, see Ch. 321, Judicial Notice .

§ 206.57 Form of Motion

Except for motions under Code Civ. Proc. § 438(i), discussed under § 206.59[2], below, Section 438 does not expressly require a noticed motion. The section appears to contemplate that the motion usually will be noticed, because Section 438(d) requires that matter to be judicially noticed must be specified in the notice of motion or the supporting points and authorities, unless the court otherwise permits. Thus, counsel should generally give notice under Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b) unless local practice is otherwise [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(a)(13) (Section 1005(b) notice to be given when notice is required and no other time or method is prescribed by law or by court or judge); see also Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1010, 1011]. For a form of notice of motion, see § 206.150, below.

B. Motions For Judgment On the Pleadings

17-206 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 206.58

§ 206.58 Hearing on Motion

[1] Right to and Scope of Hearing

The party whose pleading is attacked by this motion is entitled to a hearing [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1005.5; see McDonald v. Severy (1936) 6 Cal. 2d 629, 631, 59 P.2d 98] , at which only matters appearing on the face of the pleading (and judicially noticed matters [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.30(a), 430.70; Evid. Code §§ 452, 453]) will be considered [De Gonia v. Building Material etc. Union (1957) 155 Cal. App. 2d 573, 577-578, 318 P.2d 486] .

Because of the essential similarity between a general demurrer and a motion for judgment on the pleadings, the rules governing the construction of pleadings in ruling on a general demurrer govern in the ruling on a judgment on the pleadings [see Hardy v. Admiral Oil Co. (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 836, 840, 16 Cal. Rptr. 894, 366 P.2d 310] . Thus, the general rule that, in construing a pleading for the purpose of determining its effect, its allegations must be liberally construed with the view to substantial justice [Code Civ. Proc. § 452] applies to motions for judgment on the pleadings [Gill v. Curtis Publishing Co. (1952) 38 Cal. 2d 273, 275, 239 P.2d 630 ; Gabaldon v. United Farm Workers Organizing Committee (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 757, 759, 111 Cal. Rptr. 203] .

Similarly, because the motion admits all material and issuable facts pleaded [Colberg, Inc. v. State of California ex rel. Dept. Pub. Wks. (1967) 67 Cal. 2d 408, 412, 62 Cal. Rptr. 401, 432 P.2d 3 ; see Howard Jarvis Taxpayers Assn v. City of Riverside (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 679, 685, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 592] , the trial court is required to treat all of plaintiff's, or defendant's, allegations as true [Sullivan v. County Los Angeles (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 710, 714-715 n.3, 117 Cal. Rptr. 241, 527 P.2d 865 ; IMO Development Corp. v. Dow Corning Corp. (1982) 135 Cal. App. 3d 451, 457, 185 Cal. Rptr. 341] , unless contrary to law or fact of which the court may take judicial notice [Mechanical Contractors Assn. v. Greater Bay Area Assn. (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 672, 677, 78 Cal. Rptr. 2d 225] .

The facts alleged being deemed true, the only question for determination is one of law, and the trial court has no discretion in granting or denying the motion, but must apply the law correctly [Ludgate Ins. Co. v. Lockheed Martin Corp. (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 592, 603, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 277] . The court is not concerned with a plaintiff's possible inability to prove the claims made in the complaint [Inter-Modal Rail Employees Assn. v. Burlington Northern &

[2] Considerations on Motion by Plaintiff

In ruling on a plaintiff's motion for a judgment on the pleadings, the trial court must consider (1) whether or not the complaint states a cause of action and, if it does, (2) whether or not the answer states facts sufficient to constitute a defense. If the answer does not, a judgment on the pleadings for plaintiff is proper [Code Civ. Proc. § 438(c)(1)(A); see MacIsaac v. Pozzo (1945) 26 Cal. 2d 809, 812-813, 161 P.2d 449 ; Adjustment Corp. v. Hollywood etc. Co. (1939) 35 Cal. App. 2d 566, 569, 96 P.2d 161] .

[3] Considerations on Motion by Defendant

The trial court may grant a defendant's motion for judgment on the pleading only if there is an entire absence in the complaint of some fact or facts essential to state a cause of action [Code Civ. Proc. § 438(c)(1)(B)(ii); see Hibernia S. & L. Soc. v. Thornton (1897) 117 Cal. 481, 482-483, 49 P. 573 ; Trewin v. State of California (1984) 150 Cal. App. 3d 975, 981, 198 Cal. Rptr. 263] or if there is a lack of subject matter jurisdiction [Code Civ. Proc. § 438(c)(1)(B)(i)].

In ruling on a defendant's motion, it has been stated that the trial court determines what has been called a pure question of law, "but what is in fact a mixed question of law and fact that is predominantly legal: does the plaintiff's complaint state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action against the defendant?" [Smiley v. Citibank (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 138, 145, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 441, 900 P.2d 690] .

§ 206.59 Granting Order

[1] With or Without Leave to Amend

A Code Civ. Proc. § 438 motion for judgment on the pleadings may be granted with or without leave to file an amended complaint or answer, as the case may be [Code Civ. Proc. § 438(h)(1)]. The standard for granting the motion is essentially the same as that applicable to a general demurrer, that is, under the state of the pleadings, together with matters that may be judicially noticed, it appears that a party is entitled to judgment as a matter of law [Schabarum v. California Legislature (1998) 60 Cal. App. 4th 1205, 1216, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 745] .

The same standards regarding leave to amend apply to a general demurrer and motion for judgment on the pleadings [Kempton v. City of Los Angeles (2008) 165 Cal. App. 4th 1344, 1348, 81 Cal. Rptr. 3d 852 ; Cloud v. Northrop Grumman Corp. (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 995, 1006, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 544] . An order granting a motion for judgment on the pleadings will normally grant leave to amend, if an amendment curing the defect is possible [see Beverage v. Canton Placer Mining Co. (1955) 43 Cal. 2d 769, 778, 278 P.2d 694 ; see also Smiley v. Citibank (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 138, 164 n.18, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 441, 900 P.2d 690 (leave to amend should generally be granted if reasonable possibility that defect can be cured); Cloud v. Northrop Grumman Corp. (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 995, 1011, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 544 (if pleading defective, but amendable, judgment on pleadings should be granted with leave to amend)]. Indeed, it has been held that if a motion for judgment on the pleadings is granted as to the original complaint, denial of leave to amend constitutes an abuse of discretion if the pleading does not show on its face that it is incapable of amendment [Consolidated Fire Protection Dist. v. Howard Jarvis Taxpayers' Assn. (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 211, 219, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 586 ; Virginia G. v. ABC Unified School Dist. (1993) 15 Cal. App. 4th 1848, 1852, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 671 ; see Schonfeldt v. State of California (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 1462, 1465, 72 Cal. Rptr. 2d 464 (reversible error if defect can reasonable be cured by amendment)].

Thus, a judgment on the pleadings without leave to amend should not be granted if there is a reasonable possibility that the defect in the pleading can be cured by amendment. The burden of proving that there is a reasonable possibility that the defect can be cured by amendment is on the party whose pleading is attacked [see La Jolla Village Homeowners' Assn. v. Superior Court (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 1131, 1141, 261 Cal. Rptr. 146 ; see also Smiley v. Citibank (1995)

11 Cal. 4th 138, 164 n.18, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 441, 900 P.2d 690 (Court of Appeal properly upheld trial court's order granting motion without leave to amend when no reasonably possibility to cure defect in complaint appeared)]. A trial court does not abuse its discretion in sustaining a motion for judgment on the pleadings without leave to amend if the plaintiff fails to indicate the nature of the proposed amendment or the manner in which he or she would amend the complaint [Tiffany v. Sierra Sands Unified School Dist. (1980) 103 Cal. App. 3d 218, 226, 162 Cal. Rptr. 669] .

If the defect cannot be corrected by amendment, for example, when a defendant moves for judgment on the pleadings and no liability exists under substantive law, leave to amend the complaint should be denied [La Jolla Village Homeowners' Assn. v. Superior Court (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 1131, 1141, 261 Cal. Rptr. 146 ; see Schonfeldt v. State of California (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 1462, 1465, 72 Cal. Rptr. 2d 464 (if there is no liability as a matter of law, leave to amend should not be granted)].

For a form of order on a motion for judgment on the pleadings, see § 206.151, below; for a form of judgment, see § 206.154, below.

[2] Procedure if Granted With Leave to Amend

If leave to amend is granted, the court is required to grant 30 days to the party against whom the motion was granted to file an amended pleading [Code Civ. Proc. § 438(h)(2)].

If the amended pleading is filed after the time specified in the court's order, the moving party may move the court to strike the amended pleading and for entry of judgment in moving party's favor [Code Civ. Proc §§ 438(h)(4)(A), (B), (i)(1)(A), 435(b)(1), (e); for a form, see § 206.152, below]. The moving party may also move to have the amended pleading striken and for entry judgment in its favor if the amended pleading violates the the court's prior ruling on the motion [Code Civ. Proc §§ 438(i)(1)(A), 435(b)(1), (e); for a form, see § 206.152, below]. If no amended pleading is filed, after the time to file an amended complaint or answer has expired, the moving party must move for entry of judgment in its favor and judgment will be entered forthwith [Code Civ. Proc. § 438(h)(4)(C), (i)(1)(B); for a form, see § 206.153, below].

All motions under Code Civ. Proc. § 438(i) must be made pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1010 [Code Civ. Proc. § 438(i)(2); for discussion of Section 1010, see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders]. At the hearing on the motion, the court is required to determine whether to enter judgment in favor of a particular party [Code Civ. Proc. § 438(i)(3); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 438(h)(4)].

[3] Procedure if Granted Without Leave to Amend

If the motion for judgment on the pleadings is granted with respect to the entire complaint or answer without leave to amend, judgment shall be entered forthwith in accordance with the motion [Code Civ. Proc. § 438(h)(3)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Motions For Judgment On the Pleadings

17-206 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 206.60

§ 206.60 Appeal

[1] When Available

As in the case of a demurrer, only the judgment, not the order granting the motion, is appealable [Cream v. Wheatcraft (1953) 115 Cal. App. 2d 517, 522, 252 P.2d 637 ; Budrow v. Wheatcraft (1953) 115 Cal. App. 2d 517, 522, 252 P.2d 637 (disapproved on other grounds in Carney v. Simmonds (1957) 49 Cal. 2d 84, 315 P.2d 305)].

This general rule is based on the theory that the interlocutory order can be reviewed on appeal from the final judgment. Nevertheless, when a superior court order granted a partial judgment on the pleadings as to only one cause of action and then transfered the action to the municipal court on the ground that it lacked subject matter jurisdiction of the other cause of action by itself, the order granting the partial judgment on the pleadings was treated as tantamount to a dismissal from which an appeal may be taken. Otherwise, any appeal from the subsequent municipal court judgment after trial on the remaining cause of action would have been to the appellate department of the superior court, which would not have had jurisdiction to pass on the propriety of the superior court's order granting a partial judgment on the pleadings [Uptain v. Duarte (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 1258, 1261-1262, 254 Cal. Rptr. 150] .

[2] Standard of Review

[a] Same as on Demurrer

Because a judgment on the pleadings is equivalent to a judgment entered after a demurrer has been sustained, the standard of appellate review is the same [see, e.g., Everett v. State Farm General Ins. Co. (2008) 162 Cal. App. 4th 649, 75 Cal. Rtpr. 3d 812 ; Pardee Construction Co. v. Insurance Co. of the West (2000) 77 Cal. App. 4th 1340, 1361 n.25, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 443 ; Hu v. Silgan Containers Corp. (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 1261, 1265, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 333] . Similarly, the appellate court reviews a trial court's decision to deny a motion for judgment on the pleadings under the same standard of review as the decision to overrule a demurrer [McCutchen v. City of Montclair (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 1138, 1144, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 95] . For discussion of review concerning demurrers, see § 206.36[3][a], above.

An appellate court independently reviews a trial court's order on a motion for judgment on the pleadings [Smiley v.

Citibank (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 138, 146, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 441, 900 P.2d 690 (discussing common law motion for judgment on the pleadings); McCutchen v. City of Montclair (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 1138, 1144, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 95 ; Howard Jarvis Taxpayers Assn. v. City of Riverside (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 679, 685, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 592 ; see Ludgate Ins. Co. v. Lockheed Martin Corp. (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 592, 602-603, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 277 (de novo standard of review)].

[b] Assumption of Truth of Facts Alleged

On appeal from a judgment on the pleadings for defendant, the court accepts as true all well pleaded allegations in the complaint [Aron v. U-Haul Co. of California (2006) 143 Cal. App. 4th 796, 802, 49 Cal. Rptr. 3d 555 ; Hong Soo Shin v. Oyoung Kong (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 498, 502, 95 Cal. Rptr. 304 ; Pang v. Beverly Hospital, Inc. (2000) 79 Cal. App. 4th 986, 989, 94 Cal. Rptr. 2d 643 (material facts properly pleaded are deemed true, but not contentions, deductions, or conclusions of fact or law)].

On appeal from a judgment on the pleadings for plaintiff, the appellate court will assume the truth of all facts properly pleaded in the answer and will disregard the controverted allegations of the complaint [Sebago, Inc. v. City of Alameda (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 1372, 1379-1380, 259 Cal. Rptr. 918 ; see also Lumbermens Mut. Cas. Co. v. Vaughn (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 171, 178, 244 Cal. Rptr. 567 (facts alleged in attacked pleading accepted as true)].

On appeal from a judgment for the plaintiff on both the complaint and the defendant's cross complaint, both standards of review apply; the appellate court must assume the truth of all facts properly pleaded in the cross complaint and in the answer to the complaint and must disregard the controverted allegations of the complaint [Sebago, Inc. v. City of Alameda (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 1372, 1379-1380, 259 Cal. Rptr. 918] .

[c] Consideration of Facts Subject to Judicial Notice

An appellate court may take judicial notice of any matter of which a trial court may take judicial notice, and the trial court's refusal to take judicial notice does not preclude the appellate court from doing so in reviewing a judgment on the pleadings [see Evid. Code § 459; Sebago, Inc. v. City of Alameda (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 1372, 1380, 259 Cal. Rptr. 918 ; compare Tiffany v. Sierra Sands Unified School Dist. (1980) 103 Cal. App. 3d 218, 225, 162 Cal. Rptr. 669 (court may consider matters subject to judicial notice, including competent evidence of record in lower court) with Hong Soo Shin v. Oyoung Kong (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 498, 503, 505, 95 Cal. Rptr. 304 (court does not consider factual information outside complaint and judicially noticed matters; declarations that were part of summary judgment motion could not be used to attack judgment on pleadings); see also Pang v. Beverly Hospital, Inc. (2000) 79 Cal. App. 4th 986, 989-990, 94 Cal. Rptr. 2d 643 (taking notice of declarations that were part of summary judgment motion when both parties requested consideration)].

[d] Consideration of Admissions

The appellate court may consider matters that may be judicially noticed, including a party's admissions or concessions which cannot reasonably be controverted [Pang v. Beverly Hospital, Inc. (2000) 79 Cal. App. 4th 986, 989-990, 94 Cal. Rptr. 2d 643 (when trial court treated motion for summary adjudication as motion for judgment on the pleadings, appellate court judicially noticed declarations, excerpts from deposition testimony and separate statement of undisputed facts placed before trial court by summary adjudication motion which contained admissions and concessions fatal to plaintiff's claim)].

The appellate court may also consider judicial admissions contained in a plaintiff's pleading and apparently admissions contained in plaintiff's opposition papers to negate plaintiff's ability to state a cause of action [see Setliff v. E. I. Du Pont De Nemours & Co. (1995) 32 Cal. App. 4th 1525, 1534, 1536-1537, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 763] .

[e] Motion Granted Without Leave to Amend

If leave to amend was not granted, the appellate court determines whether the complaint states a cause of action and whether the defect can reasonably by cured by amendment. If the pleading defect can be cured, the trial court committed reversible error. If not, the appellate court affirms. Plaintiff bears the burden of proof on this issue [Pang v. Beverly Hospital, Inc. (2000) 79 Cal. App. 4th 986, 989, 94 Cal. Rptr. 2d 643] . When a motion for judgment on the pleadings is granted as to the original complaint, denial of leave to amend constitutes an abuse of discretion if the pleading on its face does not show that it is incapable of amendment [Consolidated Fire Protection Dist. v. Howard Jarvis Taxpayers' Assn. (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 211, 219, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 586 ; Gami v. Mullikin Medical Center (1993) 18 Cal. App. 4th 870, 876-877, 22 Cal. Rptr. 2d 819] .

Although normally an appellant may not assert on appeal a legal theory not asserted below, this principal does not apply where the case was resolved at the pleading stage without leave to amend being granted. In that situation, the appellate court must consider whether the plaintiff's allegations state a cause of action under any legal theory, whether or not asserted in the trial court [Barthelemy v. Orange County Flood Control Dist. (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 558, 566, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 575] .

§ 206.61 Review by Mandate

An order granting a motion for judgment on the pleadings that does not dispose of the entire case but terminates the case as to one or more of several causes of action, parties, or defenses, but less than all of them, may be reviewable before trial by mandate [see, e.g., La Jolla Village Homeowners' Assn. v. Superior Court (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 1131, 1140-1141, 261 Cal. Rptr. 146 (review of motion for judgment on pleadings on one cause of action in favor of certain defendants)]. Relief by extraordinary writ is also appropriate to review denial of a motion for judgment on the pleadings if the issue raised is purely legal in nature and is one of significant legal import [American Internat. Group, Inc. v. Superior Court (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 749, 755, 285 Cal. Rptr. 765 (issue of first impression regarding availability of civil RICO claim between insurer and insured)].

Generally, the same matters considered by the appellate court on appeal from a judgment on the pleadings are considered by the reviewing court on a review by mandate. Thus, for purposes of mandate review of an order for judgment on the pleadings such as the kind mentioned above, the material facts alleged in the complaint and facts that may be implied or inferred from those expressly alleged are usually treated as true, and the reviewing court determines whether the trial court erred when it ruled that the plaintiff had failed to state a cause of action as a matter of law [La Jolla Village Homeowners' Assn v. Superior Court (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 1131, 1141, 261 Cal. Rptr. 146] .

A. Demurrers

17-206 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 206.84

§ 206.84 Decisions

[1] Amendment

[a] In General

Demurrer is pleading subject to amendment under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 472, 473. Baxter v. Boston-Pacific Oil Co. (1927) 81 Cal. App. 187, 189, 253 P. 185

[b] Failure to Amend Within Time Allowed

On plaintiff's failure to amend complaint in timely manner after demurrer was sustained with leave to amend, trial court has discretion to grant or deny defendant's motion to dismiss under former Code Civ. Proc. § 581(c) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 581(f)(2)) on plaintiff's opposition to motion and prompt submission of amended complaint; court is not required to dismiss action subject to subsequent motion by plaintiff under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 (excusable neglect) to set aside and vacate order of dismissal. Contreras v. Blue Cross of California (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 945, 948, 245 Cal. Rptr. 258

[2] Appeal of Judgment of Dismissal

[a] Appealability of Order on Demurrer

Notice of appeal from nonappealable order sustaining demurrer treated as premature, but valid, notice of appeal from subsequently entered judgment of dismissal under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2(c) [see now Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.104(d)]. Turpin v. Sortini (1982) 31 Cal. 3d 220, 224 n.2, 182 Cal. Rptr. 337, 643 P.2d 954

Order sustaining demurrer is usually not immediately appealable, because it is not on its face a final judgment; however, it may be treated as judgment for purposes of appeals when, like a formal judgment, it disposes of action and precludes further proceedings; when demurrer is sustained as to all causes of action, without leave to amend, only step left to finally dispose of action is formality of an order or judgment of dismissal; in those situations, appellate court may deem order sustaining demurrer to incorporate a judgment of dismissal, and review the order. Thaler v. Household Finance Corp. (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 1093, 1098, 95 Cal. Rptr. 2d 779 (First Dist., Div. Five)

Order sustaining demurrer without leave to amend is not appealable; appeal treated as being from amended notice of appeal from subsequent judgment of dismissal. Hood v. Hacienda La Puente Unified School Dist. (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 435, 437 n.1, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 448

Order sustaining demurrer is not appealable; it may be reviewed only on appeal from subsequent order of dismissal; although appellate court may save premature appeal by deeming order sustaining demurrer to incorporate judgment of dismissal, appellate court will not use this device to defeat appeal; appeal held timely as to sustaining of demurrers when court sustained demurrers of some of defendants without leave to amend but did not dismiss action as to them at that time and thereafter granted other defendants' motion for judgment on the pleadings and at same time dismissed all remaining defendants from the action; there was only one order dismissing the parties from the action, that is, the order granting motion for judgment on the pleadings and dismissing action as to all remaining defendants, and thus defendants that demurred were still defendants at this point, order applied to them, and their appeal from that order was timely. Orange Unified School Dist. v. Rancho Santiago Community College Dist. (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 750, 756, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 778

Although notice of appeal stated that appeal was from order sustaining demurrer and order denying motion for reconsideration of ruling on demurrer, both being nonappealable orders, in interest of orderly administration of justice court construed notice of appeal liberally in favor of its sufficiency interpreting it to apply to the judgment rather than the nonappealable orders. LiMandri v. Judkins (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 326, 333 n.1, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 539 (Fourth Dist., Div. One)

Order sustaining demurrer without leave to amend which prevents any further proceedings as a class action is in legal effect a final judgment from which an appeal lies. Kennedy v. Baxter Healthcare Corp. (1996) 43 Cal. App. 4th 799, 807, 50 Cal. Rptr. 2d 736 (distinguishing Vasquez v. Superior Court of San Joaquin County (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 800, 794 Cal. Rptr. 796 , in which court concluded appeal not permitted when demurrers sustained to class action allegations contained in one cause of action but overruled as to second cause of action)

When nonappealable order granting motion to strike and sustaining demurrer without leave to amend included complete opinion in support of order and constituted final judicial determination of the merits, order treated as appealable judgment. Luna Records Corp., Inc. v. Alvarado (1991) 232 Cal. App. 3d 1023, 1025 n.1, 283 Cal. Rptr. 865

Order sustaining demurrer without leave to amend is not appealable; any appeal must be taken from subsequent dismissal of action. Yancey v. Fink (1991) 226 Cal. App. 3d 1334, 1342-1343, 277 Cal. Rptr. 415

Judgment dismissing complaint after demurrer was sustained without leave to amend and complaint was severed from cross complaint for express purpose of enabling plaintiffs to appeal was nonappealable as to plaintiff who was a party to still-pending cross action; but appeal by plaintiffs who were not parties to cross complaint was proper. California Dental Assn. v. California Dental Hygienists' Assn. (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 49, 58-60, 271 Cal. Rptr. 410 (nevertheless, treating cross defendant plaintiff's appeal as petition for writ of mandate to avoid fragmentation and multiplicity of appeals)

Appeal from order sustaining demurrer without leave to amend construed to be appeal from order of dismissal. Holland v. Thacher (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 924, 927 n.1, 245 Cal. Rptr. 247 ; Cohen v. Equitable Life Assurance Society (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 669, 671, 242 Cal. Rptr. 84 (expressing refusal to "bail out" careless attorneys in future)

Order sustaining demurrer without leave to amend is nonappealable, but appellate court is empowered to amend order to make it appealable judgment of dismissal and to construe notice of appeal as applying to that judgment. Hardman v. Feinstein (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 157, 159 n.1, 240 Cal. Rptr. 483

[b] Burden on Appeal

If demurrer to complaint is sustained without leave to amend, burden on appeal of proving that there is reasonable possibility that defect can be cured by amendment is squarely on plaintiff. Blank v. Kirwan (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 311, 318, 216 Cal. Rptr. 718, 703 P.2d 58 ; Stansfield v. Starkey (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 59, 71-72, 269 Cal. Rptr. 337 ; Hall v. Nomura Securities International (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 43, 46, 268 Cal. Rptr. 45

Plaintiff bears burden of showing how complaint might be amended to state viable cause of action. Duggal v. G.E. Capital Communications Services, Inc. (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 81, 86, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 383

On appeal, plaintiff bears burden of demonstrating that trial court erroneously sustained demurrer as matter of law; because demurrer tests legal sufficiency of complaint, plaintiff must show complaint alleges facts sufficient to establish every element of each cause of action; if complaint fails to plead, or if defendant negates, any essential element of particular cause of action, appellate court should affirm sustaining of demurrer; when demurrer has been sustained without leave to amend, appellate court decides whether reasonable possibility exists that amendment may cure defect; plaintiff bears burden of proving there is reasonable possibility of amendment; plaintiff may make this showing for first time on appeal; to satisfy burden on appeal, plaintiff must show in what manner plaintiff can amend complaint and how that amendment will change legal effect of plaintiff's pleading; assertion of an abstract right to amend does not satisfy burden; plaintiff must clearly and specifically set forth applicable substantive law and legal basis for amendment, i.e., elements of cause of action and authority for it; further, plaintiff must set forth factual allegations that sufficiently state all required elements of that cause of action; allegations must be factual and specific, not vague or conclusory; burden of showing reasonable possibility exists that amendment can cure defects remains with plaintiff; neither trial court nor appellate court will rewrite complaint; when plaintiff offers no allegations to support possibility of amendment and no legal authority showing viability of new causes of action, there is no basis for finding trial court abused its discretion when it sustained demurrer without leave to amend. Rakestraw v. California Physicians' Service (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 39, 43-44, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 354

While appellate court must consider whether complaint might state cause of action if a defect could reasonably be cured by amendment, and reverse the judgment of dismissal if defect can be cured, plaintiff bears burden of demonstrating a reasonable possibility to cure any defect by amendment; trial court abuses discretion if it sustains demurrer without leave to amend when plaintiff shows a reasonable possibility to cure any defect by amendment; if plaintiff cannot show an abuse of discretion, trial court's order sustaining demurrer without leave to amend must be affirmed. Schnall v. Hertz Corp. (2000) 78 Cal. App. 4th 1144, 1152, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 439

If demurrer was sustained without leave to amend, appellate court decides whether there is a reasonable possibility that the defect can be cured by amendment; if it can be, trial court has abused its discretion and appellate court will reverse; burden of proving such reasonable possibility is squarely on plaintiff. Hart v. County of Alameda (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 766, 775, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 386

When demurrer has been sustained, appellate court determines whether complaint states facts sufficient to constitute cause of action; when demurrer sustained without leave to amend, appellate court decides whether there is reasonable possibility that defect can be cured by amendment; if it can be, trial court has abused discretion and appellate court reverses; if not there has been no abuse of discretion, and appellate court affirms; burden of proving such reasonable possibility is squarely on plaintiff. Lagatree v. Luce, Forward, Hamilton & Scripps (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 1105, 1111, 88 Cal. Rptr. 2d 664

Although it is abuse of discretion to sustain demurrer without leave to amend when there is reasonable possibility that plaintiff can amend complaint to cure defect, burden on plaintiff to show how complaint can be amended and how amendment will change legal effect of pleading; showing may be made for first time on appeal. McKelvey v. Boeing North American, Inc. (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 151, 163, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 645

While plaintiff need not request leave to amend to preserve on appeal issue of whether court abused discretion in sustaining demurrer without leave to amend, on appeal plaintiff bears burden of proving there is reasonable possibility defect in pleading can be cured by amendment; plaintiff must show how plaintiff can amend its complaint and how that amendment will change legal effect of complaint. Palm Springs Tennis Club v. Rangel (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 1, 7-8, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 73

On appeal following sustaining demurrer without leave to amend, appellant has burden of demonstrating either (1) demurrer sustained erroneously as matter of law on facts pleaded, or (2) court abused discretion by failing to grant leave to amend. Kroll & Tract v. Paris & Paris (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 1537, 1541, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 78

When demurrer sustained, appellate court determines if complaint states facts sufficient to constitute cause of action; when complaint sustained without leave to amend, appellate court determines if there is reasonable possibility that defect can be cured by amendment; if it can be, trial court has abused discretion and appellate court reverses; if not, there has been no abuse of discretion and appellate court affirms; burden of proving such reasonable possibility is squarely on plaintiff. Herman v. Los Angeles County Metropolitan Transportation Authority (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 819, 824, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 144

When trial court sustains demurrer without leave to amend, appellate court must consider if complaint might state cause of action if defect could reasonably be cured by amendment; if defect can be cured, judgment of dismissal must be reversed to allow plaintiff opportunity to do so; plaintiff bears burden of demonstrating reasonable possibility to cure any defect by amendment; trial court abuses discretion if it sustains demurrer without leave to amend when plaintiff shows reasonable possibility to cure any defect by amendment; trial court's order sustaining demurrer without leave to amend must be affirmed if plaintiff cannot show abuse of discretion. Lazar v. Hertz Corp. (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 1494, 1501, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 368

Burden on plaintiff to demonstrate that the trial court abused its discretion; plaintiff must show in what manner plaintiff can amend plaintiff's complaint and how that amendment will change the legal effect of plaintiff's pleading. Redmond v. Secure Horizons, Pacificare, Inc. (1997) 60 Cal. App. 4th 96, 105, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 174

Plaintiff bears burden of proving reasonable possibility that defect can be cured by amendment when demurrer to complaint sustained without leave to amend. Silva v. Block (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 345, 349, 56 Cal. Rptr. 2d 613 ; Cross v. Bonded Adjustment Bureau (1996) 48 Cal. App. 4th 266, 275, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 801

On appeal, burden on plaintiff to demonstrate either that demurrer was erroneously sustained or that sustaining demurrer without leave to amend was abuse of discretion. Zuniga v. Housing Authority (1995) 41 Cal. App. 4th 82, 92, 48 Cal. Rptr. 2d 353

Plaintiff bears burden on appeal of demonstrating that trial court abused its discretion in sustaining demurrer without leave to amend by showing in what manner it can amend its complaint and how that amendment will change legal effect of its pleading. Trustees of Capital Wholesale Electric etc. Fund v. Shearson Lehman Brothers, Inc. (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 617, 622, 270 Cal. Rptr. 566

[c] Considerations on Appeal

On appeal from dismissal following sustained demurrer, reviewing court takes as true all well-pleaded factual allegations of complaint. Haggis v. City of Los Angeles (2000) 22 Cal. 4th 490, 495, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 327, 993 P.2d 983

Supreme Court will assume truth of all properly pleaded material allegations when appeal is from judgment of dismissal entered after trial court sustained demurrer without leave to amend. Preferred Risk Mutual Ins. Co. v. Reiswig (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 208, 212, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 187, 980 P.2d 895

Reviewing court may consider facts judicially noticed by the trial court or those which the trial court properly could have noticed. StorMedia Inc. v. Superior Court (1999) 20 Cal. 4th 449, 456 n.9, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 843, 976 P.2d 214

Because matter comes to reviewing court after trial court sustained defendant's demurrer, reviewing court must, under established principles, assume truth of all properly pleaded material allegations of complaint in evaluating validity of decision below; only sufficiency of plaintiff's complaint, not seemliness of its litigation strategy, or its counsel's motives, are properly before court on review at this time. Stop Youth Addiction, Inc. v. Lucky Stores, Inc. (1998) 17 Cal. 4th 553, 558-559, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 731, 950 P.2d 1086

In reviewing dismissal following trial court's sustaining of demurrer, reviewing court takes properly pleaded material allegations of complaint as true; court's only task is to determine whether complaint states cause of action. Snyder v. Michael's Stores, Inc. (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 991, 995, 68 Cal. Rptr. 2d 476, 945 P.2d 781

When matter comes to appellate court on demurrer, court takes facts from plaintiff's complaint, allegations of which are deemed true for limited purpose of determining whether plaintiff has stated viable cause of action. Stevenson v. Superior Court (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 880, 885, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 888, 941 P.2d 1157

For purpose of appeal following dismissal of action after court has sustained demurrer without leave to amend, reviewing court takes properly pleaded material allegations of complaint as true; appellate court's only task on review is to determine if complaint states a cause of action. ABC Internat. Traders, Inc. v. Matsushita Electric Corp. (1997) 14 Cal. 4th 1247, 1253, 61 Cal. Rptr. 2d 112, 931 P.2d 290

On appeal from judgment of dismissal following sustaining of general demurrer, all material allegations of complaint as being accepted as true. Shoemaker v. Myers (1990) 52 Cal. 3d 1, 7, 276 Cal. Rptr. 303, 801 P.2d 1054

Only task of appellate court in ruling on demurrer as being to determine whether complaint states cause of action; accordingly, court assumes that complainant's properly pleaded material allegations are true and gives complaint a reasonable interpretation by reading it as a whole and all its parts in their context; court does not, however, assume truth of contentions, deductions, or conclusions of fact or law. Moore v. Regents of University of California (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 120, 125, 271 Cal. Rptr. 146, 793 P.2d 479 ; Gulf Ins. Co. v. TIG Ins. Co. (2001) 86 Cal. App. 4th 422, 429, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 305

General demurrer admits proof of all material allegations in complaint and on appeal; appellate court is not concerned with plaintiff's ability to prove allegations. Cole v. Fair Oaks Fire Protection Dist. (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 148, 151 n.1, 162, 233 Cal. Rptr. 308, 729 P.2d 743

On appeal from judgment of dismissal following sustaining of general demurrer, plaintiff's ability to prove allegations of complaint or possibile difficulty in making such proof as not concerning reviewing court; plaintiff as needing only to plead facts showing that he or she may be entitled to some relief. Ochoa v. Superior Court (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 159,

162 n.2, 216 Cal. Rptr. 661, 703 P.2d 1 ; Conklin v. Sloss (1978) 86 Cal. App. 3d 241, 248, 150 Cal. Rptr. 121 ; see also Worldwide Commerce, Inc. v. Fruehauf Corp. (1978) 84 Cal. App. 3d 803, 807, 149 Cal. Rptr. 42

Judgment of dismissal after demurrer sustained without leave to amend is to be affirmed if proper on any grounds stated in demurrer, whether or not trial court acted on that ground. Carman v. Alvord (1982) 31 Cal. 3d 318, 324, 182 Cal. Rptr. 506, 644 P.2d 192

On appeal from judgment entered pursuant to order sustaining demurrer, appellate court is to assume truth of factual allegations of complaint. Hoyem v. Manhattan Beach City Sch. Dist. (1978) 22 Cal. 3d 508, 517, 150 Cal. Rptr. 1, 585 P.2d 851 ; Jones v. Grewe (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 950, 954, 234 Cal. Rptr. 717

Review of order sustaining demurrer on appeal is not limited to ground on which demurrer was sustained by trial court. Burke v. Maguire (1908) 154 Cal. 456, 461, 98 P. 21

An appellate court's only task in reviewing a ruling on a demurrer is to determine whether the complaint states a cause of action; the reviewing court assumes the truth of allegations in the complaint which have been properly pleaded and gives it a reasonable interpretation by reading it as a whole and with all its parts in their context; however, the assumption of truth does not apply to contentions, deductions, or conclusions of law and fact. Gulf Ins. Co. v. TIG Ins. Company (2001) 86 Cal. App. 4th 422, 429, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 305

In reviewing judgment of dismissal after demurrer is sustained without leave to amend, appellate court must assume truth of all facts properly pleaded by plaintiff; regardless of label attached to cause of action, appellate court must examine complaint's factual allegations to determine whether they state cause of action on any available legal theory; reversible error is committed if facts alleged show entitlement to relief under any possible legal theory; appellate court, however, will not assume truth of contentions, deductions or conclusions of fact or law, and may disregard allegations that are contrary to law or to fact of which judicial notice may be taken. Rosales v. City of Los Angeles (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 419, 423-424, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 144

In reviewing order sustaining demurrer, appellate court considers prior complaint and judgment, which was judicially noticed in trial court and is part of record on appeal; to determine whether to sustain demurrer on res judicata grounds, judicial notice may be taken of prior judgment and other court records. Dunkin v. Boskey (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 171, 180 n.4, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 44

In determining whether complaint alleges facts sufficient to state cause of action, appellate court treats demurrer as admitting all material facts properly pleaded, but not contentions, deductions or conclusions of law; court also considers matter that court may or must take judicial notice. Freis v. Soboroff (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 1102, 1104, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 429

In reviewing sufficiency of complaint against general demurrer, appellate court treats demurrer as admitting all material facts properly pleaded, but not contentions, deductions, or conclusions of fact or law; court also considers matters that may be judicially noticed; when demurrer was sustained, appellate court determines whether complaint states facts sufficient to constitute cause of action. Rakestraw v. California Physicians' Service (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 39, 43, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 354

For purposes of assessing sufficiency of demurrer, appellate court assumes truth of all well-pleaded facts; appellate court accepts as true all facts that may be implied or inferred from those alleged; in addition, relevant matters that are properly subject of judicial notice may be treated as having been pled. Thaler v. Household Finance Corp. (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 1093, 1098, 95 Cal. Rptr. 2d 779

Appellate court treats demurrer as admitting all material facts when properly pleaded; court, however, will not assume truth of contentions, deductions, or conclusions of fact or law and court may disregard any allegations that are contrary to law or to fact of which judicial notice may be taken. Crystaplex Plastics, Ltd. v. Redevelopment Agency (2000) 77 Cal. App. 4th 990, 993, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 197

Demurrer admits truth of all material factual allegations, and appellate court is required to accept them as such, together with those matters subject to judicial notice. Wise v. Pacific Gas & Electric Co. (1999) 77 Cal. App. 4th 287, 291, 91 Cal. Rptr. 2d 479

When examining sufficiency of complaint against general demurrer, appellate court treats as true all material facts properly pleaded, but not contentions, deductions or conclusions of fact or law; court, however disregards allegations that are contrary to law or to facts that may be judicially noticed, or are contradicted by express terms of an exhibit incorporated into the complaint; when plaintiff pleads inconsistent facts without explaining inconsistency, court will read into amended complaint facts alleged in superseded complaint; moreover, when affidavits or exhibits filed by plaintiff may be judicially noticed, court may consider those facts to assess whether complaint survives general demurrer; because plaintiff was given leave to amend complaint but elected to stand on allegations as pleaded, appellate court construes any ambiguity against plaintiff. Freeman v. San Diego Assn. of Realtors (1999) 77 Cal. App. 4th 171, 178 n.3, 197, 91 Cal. Rptr. 2d 534

Demurrer admits all material facts properly pleaded, and because review on demurrer is pure legal question, trial court's determination entitled to no deference from appellate court; one area when court's discretion comes into play is when plaintiff complains trial court abused discretion in refusing leave to amend in which case appellate court considers each issue, accordingly, in light of possibility that the complaint could be improved enough to survive demurrer; appellate court must afford reasonable interpretation of complaint read as a whole with its parts in context. Charpentier v. Los Angeles Rams Football Co. (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 301, 306-307, 307 n.4, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 115

Appellate court treats demurrer as admitting all material facts properly pleaded, but not contentions, deductions or conclusions of fact or law; court also considers matters that may be judicially noticed; further, court gives complaint reasonable interpretation, reading it as whole, and its parts in their context. Lagatree v. Luce, Forward, Hamilton & Scripps (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 1105, 1110-1111, 88 Cal. Rptr. 2d 664

In reviewing sufficiency of complaint against general demurrer, appellate court treats demurrer as admitting all material facts properly pleaded. Britz, Inc. v. Dow Chemical Co. (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 177, 180, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 188

On appeal from judgment dismissing action after sustaining demurrer without leave to amend, appellate court gives complaint reasonable interpretation, and treats demurrer as admitting all material facts properly pleaded, but does not assume truth of contentions, deductions or conclusions of law. Palm Springs Tennis Club v. Rangel (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 1, 4-5, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 73

Appellate court treats demurrer as admitting all material facts properly pleaded, but not contentions, deductions or conclusions of fact or law; appellate court also considers matters judicially noticed; general demurrer admits truth of all material factual allegations of complaint and plaintiff's ability to prove allegations, or possible difficulty in making such proof, does not concern reviewing court; appellate court not bound by construction placed by trial court on pleadings and must make independent judgment thereon, even as to matters not expressly ruled on by trial court; complaint must be given reasonable interpretation and read as whole with its parts considered in their context. Herman v. Los Angeles County Metropolitan Transportation Authority (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 819, 824, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 144

In reviewing sufficiency of complaint against general demurrer, court treats demurrer as admitting all material facts properly pleaded, but not contentions, deductions, or conclusions of fact or law; court also considers matters that may be judicially noticed. Boyle v. City of Redondo Beach (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 1109, 1114 n.2, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 164

Because appeal arises from dismissal following demurrer, appellate court relies on plaintiffs' complaint and documents court judicially noticed for summary of factual background; court accepts as true all properly pleaded allegations without concern for proof problems; court must accept as true not only facts alleged in complaint but also facts that may be implied or inferred from those expressly alleged. Gordon v. Law Offices of Aguirre & Meyer (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 972, 975 n.2, 976, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 119

Appellate court gives complaint reasonable interpretation, reading it as whole and reviewing its parts in context; court deems true all material facts properly pled; court also accepts as true those facts that may be implied or inferred from those expressly alleged. Lazar v. Hertz Corp. (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 1494, 1501, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 368

In reviewing sufficiency of complaint, appellate court treats demurrer as admitting all material facts properly pleaded; in construing pleading for purpose of determining its effect, its allegations must be liberally construed with view toward substantial justice between parties. Levin v. Gulf Ins. Group (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 1282, 1284, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 228 ; Chazen v. Centennial Bank (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 532, 542, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 462

In reviewing ruling on demurrer, court treats demurrer as admitting all material facts properly pleaded, but not contentions, deductions or conclusions of fact or law; court also considers matters that may be judicially noticed; further, court gives complaint reasonable interpretation, reading it as whole and its parts in their context. Countrywide Home Loans, Inc. v. Superior Court (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 785, 791, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 63

Appellate court treats demurrer as admitting all material facts properly pleaded, but not contentions, deductions or conclusions of law; court also disregards allegations that are contrary to law or facts that may be judicially noticed or that are contradicted by express terms of exhibit incorporated into complaint; court gives complaint reasonable interpretation, reading it as whole and its parts in their context, to determine if complaint states facts sufficient to constitute cause of action. Breneric Associates v. City of Del Mar (1998) 69 Cal. App. 4th 166, 180, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 324

Demurrer treated as admitting all material facts properly pleaded, but not contentions, deductions, or conclusions of fact or law; appellate court gives complaint reasonable interpretation, reading it as whole and its parts in context; when demurrer is based on affirmative defense, defense must clearly appear on face of complaint to support demurrer; demurrer based on affirmative defense cannot properly be granted when action might be barred by defense, but is not necessarily barred. CrossTalk Productions, Inc. v. Jacobson (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 631, 635, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 615

In reviewing judgment of dismissal after demurrer is sustained without leave to amend, appellate court assumes truth of all facts properly pleaded by plaintiff; regardless of label attached to cause of action, court must examine complaint's factual allegations to determine whether they state cause of action on any available legal theory; reversible error committed if facts alleged show entitlement to relief under any legal theory; court, however, will not assume truth of contentions, deductions, or conclusions and may disregard allegations that are contrary to the law or to a fact which judicial notice may be taken; court may take judicial notice of records of California court and must take judicial notice of state's decisional and statutory law. Cochran v. Cochran (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 488, 493, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 540

In reviewing sufficiency of complaint against general demurrer, appellate court treats demurrer as admitting all material facts properly pleaded, but not contentions, deductions, or conclusions of law; court also considers matters which may be judicially noticed; court gives complaint reasonable interpretation, reading it as a whole and its parts in their context. Hood v. Hacienda La Puente Unified School Dist. (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 435, 438, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 448

When reviewing order sustaining demurrer, appellate court must presume truth of all material facts alleged in complaint; argumentative allegations and conclusions of law are not presumed true. 20th Century Ins. Co. v. Quackenbush (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 135, 138 n.1, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 113

On appeal from judgment of dismissal after demurrer has been sustained without leave to amend, appellate court assumes truth of all properly pleaded facts in complaint; appellate court examines these facts to determine whether complaint successfully states cause of action on any available legal theory; if it does, sustaining demurrer constitutes abuse of discretion and appellate court must reverse. Day v. AT & T Corp. (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 325, 331, 74 Cal. Rptr. 2d 55

Because it is not reviewing court's role to construct theories or arguments that would undermine the judgment, appellate court considers only those theories advanced in appellant's briefs. Mead v. Sanwa Bank California (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 561, 564, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 625

In reviewing judgment of dismissal after demurrer sustained without leave to amend, court must assume truth of all facts properly pleaded by plaintiff; regardless of label attached, court must examine complaint's factual allegations to determine whether they state cause of action on any available legal theory; reversible error committed if facts alleged show entitlement to relief under any possible legal theory; court, however, will not assume truth of contentions, deductions or conclusions of fact or law and may disregard allegations that are contrary law or fact of which judicial notice may be taken. Cochran v. Cochran (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 1115, 1119-1120, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 337

On review, demurrer admits all material facts properly pleaded, but not contentions, deductions, or conclusions of fact or law; appellate court must examine complaint's factual allegations to determine if they state cause of action under any legal theory regardless of label given to the cause of action; reversible error committed if facts alleged show entitlement to relief under any possible legal theory. Daly v. Exxon Corp (1997) 55 Cal App. 4th 39, 43, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 727

In determining merits of demurrer, all material facts pleaded in complaint and those that arise by reasonable implication, but not conclusions of fact or law, are deemed admitted by demurring party; on appeal, reviewing court does not review validity of trial court's reasoning, but only propriety of the ruling itself. Orange Unified School Dist. v. Rancho Santiago Community College Dist. (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 750, 757, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 778

Reviewing court's task in reviewing a judgment following the sustaining of a general demurrer without leave to amend is to determine if complaint states, or can be amended to state, a cause of action; for that purpose reviewing court accepts as true complaint's properly pleaded material factual allegations together with facts that may properly be judicially noticed. LiMandri v. Judkins (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 326, 335, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 539

In reviewing demurrer, appellate court limited to facts alleged in complaint and appearing in exhibits attached to complaint; demurrer challenges only legal sufficiency of complaint, not truth of its factual allegations or plaintiff's ability to prove those allegations; thus, appellate court treats as true all of complaint's material factual allegations, but not contentions, deductions, or conclusions of fact or law and can also consider facts appearing in exhibits attached to complaint; appellate court required to construe complaint liberally to determine if cause of action has been stated, given assumed truth of facts pleaded. Picton v. Anderson Union High School Dist. (1996) 50 Cal. App. 4th 726, 730, 732-733, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 829

A party cannot retreat from allegations and supporting exhibits concerning actual documentation and supplant them in amended pleadings with conclusory allegations characterizing documentation in general terms, and with an entirely different twist; moreover, allegations in complaint must yield to contrary facts found in exhibits to complaint. Software Design & Application, Ltd. v. Hoefer & Arnett, Inc. (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 472, 484, 56 Cal. Rptr. 2d 756

When reviewing sufficiency of complaint against demurrer, court must accept as true factual allegations of complaint, but not contentions, deductions or conclusions of law; allegations of complaint superseded by amended complaint ordinarily not considered, but are considered when amended complaint tries to avoid earlier complaint's defects by pleading inconsistent facts or omitting facts that rendered prior complaint defective. Baltins v. James (1995) 36 Cal. App. 4th 1193, 1196-1197, 1205, 42 Cal. Rptr. 2d 896 (disapproved on other grounds in Jordache Enterprises, Inc. v.

Brobeck, Phleger & Harrison (1998) 18 Cal. 4th 739, 761, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 749, 958 P.2d 1026)

Court may consider judicial admissions contained in plaintiff's complaint and apparently admissions contained in plaintiff's opposition papers to defendant's demurrer to negate plaintiff's ability to state cause of action. See Setliff v. E.I. Du Pont De Nemours & Co. (1995) 32 Cal. App. 4th 1525, 1534, 1536, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 763

Determination of sufficiency of complaint against demurrer is limited to whether plaintiff alleged essential facts to support claim for relief; court as not concerned with plaintiff's possible inability or difficulty in proving allegations of complaint. Parada v. City of Colton (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 356, 362, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 309

On appeal, party may change his or her theory so long as it presents only questions of law based on undisputed facts. Sanchez v. Truck Ins. Exchange (1994) 21 Cal. App. 4th 1778, 1787, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 812

In evaluating whether appellant may be able to state cause of action, all allegations are taken as true even though their proof appears unlikely, as well as all facts that may be implied or inferred from those expressly alleged. Smith v. County of Kern (1993) 20 Cal. App. 4th 1826, 1830, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 716

In reviewing order sustaining demurrer without leave to amend, appellate court accepts as true all properly pleaded facts since strong policy favors hearing on the merits. Vaillette v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. (1993) 18 Cal. App. 4th 680, 685, 22 Cal. Rptr. 2d 807

Correctness of trial court's action in sustaining demurrer, not its reasons, as reviewable. Tarmann v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (1991) 2 Cal. App. 4th 153, 159, 2 Cal. Rptr. 2d 861

On appeal from judgment entered after sustaining demurrer to complaint without leave to amend, appellate court as construing allegations of complaint liberally to attain substantial justice among parties, as deeming true all material and properly pleaded facts, as considering all documents that have been determined by trial court as appropriate for judicial notice, and as not considering conclusions of fact or law, opinions, speculation, or allegations that are contrary either to law or to judicially noticed facts. Long Beach Equities, Inc. v. County of Ventura (1991) 231 Cal. App. 3d 1016, 1024, 282 Cal. Rptr. 877

In reviewing demurrer to complaint, appellate court as assuming that plaintiff can prove all facts that he or she has alleged. William S. Hart Union High School Dist. v. Regional Planning Com. (1991) 226 Cal. App. 3d 1612, 1616 n.2, 277 Cal. Rptr. 645

If demurrer is sustained, appellate court as determining whether complaint states facts sufficient to constitute cause of action, allegations as regarded as true and as liberally construed with view to attaining substantial justice, and relevant matters that are properly the subject of judicial notice as permitted to be treated as having been pleaded; if demurrer is sustained without leave to amend, appellate court as deciding whether there is a reasonable possibility defect can be cured by amendment; if not, trial court as not having abused its discretion, and appellate court as affirming. Nordlinger v. Lynch (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 1259, 1271, 275 Cal. Rptr. 684

When reviewing order sustaining demurrer without leave to amend, appellate court as required to treat demurrer as admitting all properly pleaded facts, but not contentions, deductions, or conclusions of law, and as required to read complaint as a whole and to give it reasonable interpretation; appellant as permitted to raise arguments for first time on appeal when facts are not disputed and issue merely raises new question of law. Koch v. Rodlin Enterprises (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 1591, 1595, 273 Cal. Rptr. 438

On review of judgment of dismissal following sustaining of demurrer to complaint with leave to amend and plaintiff elected not to amend, appellate court as reviewing facts alleged in complaint in light of well-established principle that allegations of complaint that are not contrary to law or to fact of which court may take judicial notice must be deemed to be true. Terminals Equipment Co. v. City and County of San Francisco (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 234, 238, 241, 270 Cal. Rptr. 329

Reviewing court is concerned not with party's possible difficulty or inability in proving allegations of complaint, but rather with party's possible entitlement to relief. Rader Co. v. Stone (1986) 178 Cal. App. 3d 10, 20, 223 Cal. Rptr. 806

[d] Standard of Review

In reviewing sufficiency of complaint against general demurrer, appellate court (1) treats demurrer as admitting all material facts properly pleaded, but not contentions, deductions, or conclusions of fact or law; (2) considers matters that may be judicially noticed; (3) gives complaint reasonable interpretation, reading it as a whole and its parts in their context; (4) determines, when demurrer is sustained, whether complaint states facts sufficient to constitute cause of action; and (5) decides, when demurrer is sustained without leave to amend, whether there is a reasonable possibility that defect can be cured by amendment; if it can, trial court has abused its discretion and appellate court reverses; if not, there has been no abuse of discretion and appellate court affirms. Blank v. Kirwan (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 311, 318, 216 Cal. Rptr. 718, 703 P.2d 58 ; Marsha V. v. Gardner (1991) 231 Cal. App. 3d 265, 269, 281 Cal. Rptr. 473 ; Careau & Co. v. Security Pacific Business Credit, Inc. (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 1371, 1381, 272 Cal. Rptr. 387 ; Stansfield v. Starkey (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 59, 71-72, 269 Cal. Rptr. 337

If general demurrer is to original complaint and is sustained without leave to amend, issues presented on appeal is whether complaint states cause of action and, if not, whether there is reasonable possibility that it could be amended to do so. Martinez v. Socoma Companies, Inc. (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 394, 400, 113 Cal. Rptr. 585, 521 P.2d 841

Trial court's decision to dismiss case after sustaining general demurrer is based predominantly on question of law; trial court's ruling is, therefore, subject to de novo review, meaning that appellate court independently exercises its judgment about whether complaint properly states cause of action. Kendrick v. City of Eureka (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 364, 368, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 153

When reviewing order sustaining demurrer without leave to amend, appellate court must treat demurrer as admitting all properly pleaded facts, but not contentions, deductions or conclusions of law; court must read complaint as whole and give it reasonable interpretation; regardless of labels attached to cause of action, court must examine complaint's factual allegations to determine whether they state cause of action on any available theory; reversible error is committed if facts alleged show entitlement to relief under any possible legal theory. Dunkin v. Boskey (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 171, 180, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 44

On appeal from judgment dismissing action after sustaining demurrer without leave to amend, standard of review is well settled; reviewing court gives complaint reasonable interpretation, and treats demurrer as admitting all material facts properly pleaded; court does not, however, assume truth of contentions, deductions or conclusions of law; judgment must be affirmed if any of several grounds of demurrer is well taken; however, it is error for trial court to sustain demurrer when plaintiff has stated cause of action under any possible legal theory; and it is abuse of discretion to sustain demurrer without leave to amend if plaintiff shows there is reasonable possibility any defect identified by defendant can be cured by amendment. Shvarts v. Budget Group, Inc. (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 1153, 1157, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 722

When demurrer sustained without leave to amend, appellate court determines whether there is reasonable possibility that cause of action can be stated; if it can, appellate court reverses; if not, appellate court affirms. Ball v. GTE Mobilnet of California (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 529, 535, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 801

In reviewing judgment of dismissal after demurrer sustained without leave to amend, appellate court must assume truth of all facts properly pleaded by plaintiff; appellate court, however, does not assume truth of contentions, deductions or conclusions of fact or law and may disregard allegations that are contrary to law or fact of which judicial notice may be taken; regardless of labels attached to cause of action, appellate court must examine complaint's factual allegations to determine if they state cause of action on any available legal theory; reversible error is committed if facts alleged show entitlement to relief under any possible legal theory; appellate court will affirm order sustaining demurrer which is correct on any legal theory. Duggal v. G.E. Capital Communications Services, Inc. (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 81, 86, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 383

On appeal, plaintiff bears burden of demonstrating that trial court erroneously sustained demurrer as matter of law; appellate court thus reviews complaint de novo to determine whether it alleges facts stating cause of action under any legal theory; because demurrer tests legal sufficiency of complaint, plaintiff must show complaint alleges facts sufficient to establish every element of each cause of action; if complaint fails to plead, or if defendant negates, any essential element of particular cause of action, appellate court should affirm sustaining of demurrer; when demurrer sustained without leave to amend, appellate court decides whether reasonable possibility exists that amendment may cure defect; if it can appellate court reverses, but if not appellate court affirms. Rakestraw v. California Physicians' Service (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 39, 43, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 354

Although appellate court exercises its independent judgment in reviewing demurrer to determine if complaint's factual allegations state cause of action, appellate court must affirm if trial court's decision to sustain demurrer was correct on any theory; because case comes to appellate court on sustaining of demurrer, court accepts as true facts alleged in complaint. Boon v. Rivera (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 1322, 1325-1327, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 276

Order sustaining demurrer is erroneous if allegations of complaint state cause of action under any legal theory; on appeal from demurrer/dismissal of declaratory relief action, appellate court may apply abuse of discretion standard to determine whether declaratory relief is proper remedy unless facts not in dispute and issue may be determined as matter of law. Thaler v. Household Finance Corp. (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 1093, 1098, 1099 n.5, 95 Cal. Rptr. 2d 779

On appeal from a dismissal after an order sustaining a demurrer, appellate court reviews order de novo, exercising independent judgment about whether complaint states cause of action as matter of law; appellate court gives complaint reasonable interpretation, reading it as whole and viewing its parts in context; appellate court deems to be true all material facts properly pled and must also accept as true those facts that may be implied or inferred from those expressly alleged; if no liability exists as matter of law, appellate court must affirm that part of judgment sustaining demurrer; trial court abuses its discretion if it sustains demurrer without leave to amend when plaintiff shows reasonable possibility to cure any defect by amendment; complaint's allegations must be liberally construed with view to substantial justice between parties. Mack v. Soung (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 966, 971-972, 95 Cal. Rptr. 2d 830

In reviewing dismissal entered after trial court sustained demurrer, appellate court takes properly pleaded material allegations of complaint to be true; appellate court's task is to determine if complaint states cause of action; demurrer to it is properly sustained if complaint on its face alleges facts amounting to an affirmative defense of absolute privilege. Easton v. Sutter Coast Hospital (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 485, 490, 95 Cal. Rptr. 2d 316

Appellate court reviews de novo to determine whether facts as pleaded could entitle plaintiff to any legal remedy as matter of law; appellate court gives complaint reasonable interpretation, reading it as whole and viewing its parts in context; court deems to be true all material facts properly plead; in other words, plaintiff need only plead facts showing that plaintiff may be entitled to some relief; court construes complaint's allegations liberally with view to substantial justice between parties. Roskind v. Morgan, Stanley Dean Witter & Co. (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 345, 349-350, 95 Cal. Rptr. 2d 258

Review of judgment entered after sustaining demurrer without leave to amend presents question whether it appears plaintiff is entitled to any relief at court's hands against defendants, which is pure question of law. Roskind v. Morgan, Stanley Dean Witter & Co. (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 345, 349, 95 Cal. Rptr. 2d 258 ; Schnall v. Hertz Corp. (2000) 78 Cal. App. 4th 1144, 1152, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 439

Demurrer tests legal sufficiency of complaint, and granting leave to amend involves trial court's discretion; therefore, appellate court employs two separate standards of review on appeal; first, complaint is reviewed de novo to determine if it contains sufficient facts to state cause of action; in doing so, appellate court accepts as true complaint's properly pleaded material factual allegations, together with facts that may be properly judicially noticed; reversible error exists only if facts were alleged showing entitlement to relief under any possible legal theory; second, when demurrer is sustained without leave to amend, reviewing courts determine if trial court abused its discretion in doing so; appellate court will only reverse for abuse of discretion if appellate court determines there is reasonable possibility the pleading can be cured by amendment; otherwise, trial court's decision will be affirmed for lack of abuse. G. L. Mezzetta, Inc. v. City of American Canyon (2000) 78 Cal. App. 4th 1087, 1091-1092, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 292

On appeal, appellate court does not review validity of trial court's reasoning but only propriety of ruling itself; appellate court is not bound by trial court's construction of complaint, but must make its own independent interpretation. Rodas v. Spiegel (2001) 87 Cal. App. 4th 513, 517, 104 Cal. Rptr. 2d 439 ; Wilner v. Sunset Life Ins. Co. (2000) 78 Cal. App. 4th 952, 958, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 413

When trial court sustains demurrer without leave to amend, appellate court reviews action under abuse of discretion standard; if there is reasonable possibility that pleading can be cured by amendment, trial court's ruling will be reversed; on review, appellate court examines complaint's factual allegations to determine if they state cause of action on any available legal theory; court treats demurrer as admitting all material facts when properly pleaded; court, however, will not assume truth of contentions, deductions, or conclusions of fact or law and court may disregard any allegations that are contrary to law or to fact of which judicial notice may be taken. Crystaplex Plastics, Ltd. v. Redevelopment Agency (2000) 77 Cal. App. 4th 990, 993, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 197

Reviewing court gives complaint reasonable interpretation, and treats demurrer as admitting all material facts properly pleaded; court does not, however, assume truth of contentions, deductions or conclusions of law; judgment must be affirmed if any one of several grounds of demurrer is well taken; however, it is error of law for a trial court to sustain demurrer when plaintiff has stated cause of action under any legal theory; questions of law are independently reviewed. Walker v. Allstate Indemnity Co. (2000) 77 Cal. App. 4th 750, 754, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 132

In reviewing sufficiency of complaint against a general demurrer that was sustained, appellate court treats demurrer as admitting all material facts that are properly pleaded and determines whether the complaint states facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action. Writers Guild of America, West, Inc. v. City of Los Angeles (2000) 77 Cal. App. 4th 475, 477, 91 Cal. Rptr. 2d 603

Court's task in reviewing ruling on demurrer is to determine whether complaint states cause of action; accordingly, court assumes that complaint's properly pleaded material allegations are true and gives complaint reasonable interpretation by reading it as a whole and all its parts in context; when trial court sustains demurrer, reversible error exists if those facts show entitlement under any possible legal theory; further, when demurrer is sustained without leave to amend, appellate court decides whether there is a reasonable possibility that defect can be cured by amendment; if it can be, trial court has abused its discretion and appellate court will reverse. Hart v. County of Alameda (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 766, 775, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 386

When trial court sustained demurrers without leave to amend, appellate court reviews trial court's ruling for abuse of discretion, treating demurrers as admitting all material facts properly pleaded in complaint; if those facts sufficient to support a cause of action under any valid theory, complaint is good against demurrers. Mac v. Bank of America (1999)

Because appellate court assumes truth of all properly pleaded material allegations of complaint with respect to appeal from judgment based on sustaining of demurrer, interpretation of Code Civ. Proc. § 47(b) is question of law and subject to appellate court's independent review. Sacramento Brewing Co. v. Desmond, Miller & Desmond (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 1082, 1085, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 760

On review of judgment sustaining demurrers without leave to amend, appellate court accepts as true factual allegations in complaint; for purpose of determining effect of complaint, its allegations are liberally construed, with a view toward substantial justice; in reviewing sufficiency of complaint against general demurrer, appellate court must determine whether complaint states facts sufficient to constitute cause of action; and when it is sustained without leave to amend, appellate court decides whether there is reasonable possibility that the defect can be cured by amendment; if it can be, trial court abused its discretion and appellate court reverses; if not, there has been no abuse of discretion and appellate court affirms; if appellate court concludes complaint does not state a claim, but there is reasonable possibility that defects can be cured by amendment, leave to amend must be granted. Stevens v. Superior Court (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 594, 599, 601, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 370

Demurrer admits all material facts properly pleaded, and because review on demurrer is pure legal question, trial court's determination is entitled to no deference from appellate court; one area when court's discretion comes into play is when plaintiff complains trial court abused discretion in refusing leave to amend in which case appellate court considers each issue, accordingly, in light of possibility that the complaint could be improved enough to survive demurrer; appellate court must afford reasonable interpretation of complaint read as a whole with its parts in context; if factual allegations of complaint are adequate to state cause of action under any legal theory, demurrer must be overruled; appellate court can only uphold general demurrer sustained without leave to amend if it appears there is no cause of action stated under applicable substantive law. Charpentier v. Los Angeles Rams Football Co. (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 301, 306-307, 307 n.4, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 115

Appellate court treats demurrer as admitting all material facts properly pleaded, but not contentions, deductions or conclusions of fact or law; court also considers matters that may be judicially noticed; further, court gives complaint a reasonable interpretation, reading it as whole, and its parts in their context; when demurrer sustained, appellate court determines whether complaint states facts sufficient to constitute cause of action; when demurrer sustained without leave to amend, appellate court decides whether there is reasonable possibility that defect can be cured by amendment; if it can be, trial court has abused discretion and appellate court reverses; if not, there has been no abuse of discretion, and appellate court affirms; burden of proving such reasonable possibility is squarely on plaintiff. Lagatree v. Luce, Forward, Hamilton & Scripps (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 1105, 1110-1111, 88 Cal. Rptr. 2d 664

In evaluating whether court erred in sustaining demurrer, appellate court must assume truth of all facts properly pleaded and decide whether, on de novo review of complaint, plaintiff has pleaded sufficient facts to constitute cause of action; when trial court sustains demurrer without leave to amend, appellate court must decide whether complaint alleges facts showing entitlement to relief under any possible legal theory; if so, court abuses its discretion in denying leave to amend. Harris v. Rudin, Richman & Appel (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 299, 306-307, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 822

On appeal from judgment dismissing action after sustaining demurrer without leave to amend, appellate court gives complaint reasonable interpretation, and treats demurrer as admitting all material facts properly pleaded, but does not assume truth of contentions, deductions or conclusions of law; trial court errs in sustaining demurrer when plaintiff has stated cause of action under any possible legal theory, and abuses discretion in sustaining demurrer without leave to amend if plaintiff shows there is reasonable possibility any defect identified by defendant can be cured by amendment. Palm Springs Tennis Club v. Rangel (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 1, 4-5, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 73

Because demurrer both tests legal sufficiency of complaint and involves trial court's discretion, appellate court employs two separate standards of review; first court reviews complaint de novo to determine whether complaint alleges facts sufficient to state cause of action under any legal theory, or in other words, to determine whether or not trial court erroneously sustained demurrer as matter of law; second, if trial court sustains demurrer without leave to amend, appellate court determines whether plaintiff could amend complaint to state cause of action. Filet Menu, Inc. v Cheng (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 1276, 1279, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 384

Because appeal follows order sustaining demurrer, appellate court accepts as true all well-pleaded material allegations of complaint; although appellate court exercises independent judgment in reviewing demurrer to determine if complaint's factual allegations state cause of action, appellate court must affirm if trial court's decision is correct on any theory. Trinkle v. California State Lottery (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 1198, 1200-1201, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 496

Appellate court treats demurrer as admitting all material facts properly pleaded, but not contentions, deductions or conclusions of fact or law; appellate court also considers matters judicially noticed; general demurrer admits truth of all material factual allegations of complaint and plaintiff's ability to prove allegations, or possible difficulty in making such proof, does not concern reviewing court; appellate court not bound by construction placed by trial court on pleadings and must make independent judgment thereon, even as to matters not expressly ruled on by trial court; complaint must be given reasonable interpretation and read as whole with its parts considered in context; when demurrer sustained, appellate court determines if complaint states facts sufficient to constitute cause of action; when complaint sustained without leave to amend, appellate court determines if there is reasonable possibility that defect can be cured by amendment; if it can be, trial court has abused discretion and appellate court reverses; if not, there has been no abuse of discretion and appellate court affirms. Herman v. Los Angeles County Metropolitan Transportation Authority (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 819, 824, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 144

In reviewing judgment of dismissal after demurrer sustained without leave to amend, appellate court assumes truth of all facts properly pleaded by plaintiff; regardless of label attached to cause of action, appellate court must examine complaint's factual allegations to determine whether they state cause of action on any legal theory; reversible error is committed if facts alleged show entitlement to relief under any possible legal theory; appellate court, however, will not assume truth of contentions, deductions, or conclusions of fact or law and may disregard allegations that are contrary to law or to a fact of which judicial notice may be taken; when ground for objection to complaint, such as statute of limitations, appears on its face or from matters of which court may take judicial notice, demurrer on that ground is proper. Shaolian v. Safeco Ins. Co. (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 268, 271, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 702

When demurrer sustained, appellate court determines whether complaint states facts sufficient to constitute cause of action; when demurrer sustained without leave to amend, appellate court decides whether a reasonable possibility exists that amendment may cure defect; if it can, appellate court reverses, but if not appellate court affirms. Boyle v. City of Redondo Beach (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 1109, 1114 n.2, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 164

On appeal from judgment of dismissal following sustaining of demurrer without leave to amend, appellate court must accept as true not only facts alleged in complaint but also facts that may be implied or inferred from those expressly alleged; demurrer based on statute of limitations will not lie where action may be, but is not necessarily, barred; for bar of statute of limitations to be raised by demurrer, defect must clearly and affirmatively appear on face of complaint; it is not enough that complaint shows that action may be barred. Gordon v. Law Offices of Aguirre & Meyer (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 972, 976, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 119

On appeal from dismissal after order sustaining demurrer, appellate court reviews order de novo exercising independent judgment whether complaint states cause of action as matter of law; court gives complaint reasonable interpretation, reading it as whole and reviewing its parts in context; court deems true all material facts properly pled; court also accepts as true those facts that may be implied or inferred from those expressly alleged; appellate court must affirm that part of judgment sustaining demurrer if no liability exists as matter of law. Lazar v. Hertz Corp. (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 1494, 1501, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 368

Although decision to sustain or overrule demurrer is legal ruling subject to de novo review on appeal, granting of leave to amend involves exercise of trial court's discretion; when trial court sustains demurrer without leave to amend, appellate court must consider if complaint might state cause of action if defect could reasonably be cured by amendment; if defect can be cured, judgment of dismissal must be reversed to allow plaintiff opportunity to do so; plaintiff bears burden of demonstrating reasonable possibility to cure any defect by amendment; trial court abuses discretion if it sustains demurrer without leave to amend when plaintiff shows reasonable possibility to cure any defect by amendment; trial court's order sustaining demurrer without leave to amend must be affirmed if plaintiff cannot show abuse of discretion. Lazar v. Hertz Corp. (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 1494, 1501, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 368

In reviewing sufficiency of complaint against general demurrer that was sustained, appellate court treats demurrer as admitting all material facts properly pleaded and determines whether complaint states facts sufficient to constitute cause of action; in construing pleading for purpose of determining its effect, its allegations must be liberally construed with view toward substantial justice between parties. Levin v. Gulf Ins. Group (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 1282, 1284, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 228

When reviewing judgment based on order sustaining demurrer without leave to amend, appellate court accepts as accurate factual allegations of complaint; if complaint states cause of action, judgment must be reversed; appellate court decides whether there is reasonable possibility that defect can be cured by amendment; if it can be, trial court has abused its discretion and appellate court reverses; if not, there has been no abuse of discretion, and appellate court affirms; burden of proving reasonable possibility is squarely on plaintiff. Morrison v. Viacom, Inc. (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 534, 540, 545, 78 Cal. Rptr. 2d 133

When demurrer is based on affirmative defense, affirmative defense must clearly appear on face of complaint to support demurrer; demurrer based on affirmative defense cannot properly be granted when action might be barred by defense, but is not necessarily barred. CrossTalk Productions, Inc. v. Jacobson (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 631, 635, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 615

Demurrer treated as admitting all material facts properly pleaded, but not contentions, deductions, or conclusions of fact or law; appellate court gives complaint reasonable interpretation, reading it as whole and its parts in context; when demurrer is sustained, appellate court determines whether complaint states facts sufficient to constitute cause of action; when it is sustained without leave to amend, appellate court decides whether there is reasonable possibility that defect can be cured by amendment; if it can be, trial court abused discretion and appellate court reverses; if not, no abuse of discretion and appellate court affirms; complaint must be liberally construed with view towards substantial justice between parties. CrossTalk Productions, Inc. v. Jacobson (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 631, 635, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 615

In reviewing judgment of dismissal after demurrer is sustained without leave to amend, appellate court assumes truth of all facts properly pleaded by plaintiff; regardless of label attached to cause of action, court must examine complaint's factual allegations to determine whether they state cause of action on any available legal theory; reversible error committed if facts alleged show entitlement to relief under any legal theory; court, however, will not assume truth of contentions, deductions, or conclusions and may disregard allegations that are contrary to the law or to a fact which judicial notice may be taken; when ground for objection to complaint, such as statute of limitations, appears on its face or from matters that may be judicially noticed, demurrer on that ground is proper; if plaintiff shows complaint can be amended to state a cause of action, it is abuse of discretion to sustain demurrer without leave to amend. Cochran v. Cochran (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 488, 493, 494 n.3, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 540

In reviewing sufficiency of complaint against general demurrer, appellate court treats demurrer as admitting all material facts properly pleaded, but not contentions, deductions, or conclusions of law; court also considers matters that may be judicially noticed; court gives complaint reasonable interpretation, reading it as whole and its parts in context; when demurrer is sustained, court determines whether complaint states facts sufficient to constitute cause of action and if complaint is sustained without leave to amend, court decides whether there is reasonable possibility that defect can be cured by amendment; if it can be, trial court abused its discretion and appellate court reverses; if not, there was no abuse of discretion and appellate court affirms; burden of proving reasonably possibility is squarely on plaintiff; because under California Tort Claims Act all governmental tort liability is based on statute, general rule that statutory causes of action must be pleaded with particularity is applicable; every fact material to the existence of its statutory liability must be pleaded with particularity. Hood v. Hacienda La Puente Unified School Dist. (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 435, 438-439, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 448

When reviewing order sustaining demurrer, appellate court must presume truth of all material facts alleged in complaint; argumentative allegations and conclusions of law are not, however, presumed true; new legal theory can be advanced for first time on appeal why allegations state cause of action. 20th Century Ins. Co. v. Quackenbush (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 135, 138 n.1, 139 n.3, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 113

When considering appeal from judgment of dismissal following sustaining of demurrer, appellate court accepts facts pleaded as true; trial erred if pleading states cause of action under any possible legal theory; it abused its discretion if face of pleading s shows reasonable probability defects could be cured by properly amended pleading. Merlet v. Rizzo (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 53, 58, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 83

When demurrer is sustained, appellate court determines whether complaint states facts sufficient to constitute cause of action; and when it is sustained without leave to amend, appellate court decides whether there is reasonable possibility that defect can be cured by amendment; if it can be, trial court has abused its discretion and appellate court reverses; if not, there has been no abuse of discretion and appellate court affirms; burden of proving reasonable possibility is squarely on plaintiff. Axline v. Saint John's Hospital & Health Center (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 907, 912, 74 Cal. Rptr. 2d 385

On appeal from judgment of dismissal after demurrer has been sustained without leave to amend, appellate court assumes truth of all properly pleaded facts in complaint; appellate court examines these facts to determine whether complaint successfully states cause of action on any available legal theory; if it does, sustaining demurrer constitutes abuse of discretion and appellate court must reverse. Day v. AT & T Corp. (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 325, 331, 74 Cal. Rptr. 2d 55

In evaluating order sustaining demurrer, appellate court gives pleading reasonable interpretation by reading it as whole and all of its parts in context; court assumes truth of all properly pleaded material facts, facts that may be inferred from those expressly pleaded, and any material facts of which judicial notice has been requested and may be taken; court accepts as true both facts alleged in text of complaint and facts appearing in attached exhibits; if facts appearing in attached exhibit contradict those expressly pleaded, those in exhibit are given precedence; rule giving precedence to allegations in exhibits, however, not applicable under facts in context of applicability of Civ. Code § 2832; when considering legal effect of facts, court disregards any erroneous or confusing labels employed by plaintiff; complaint sufficient if it alleges facts that state cause of under any possible legal theory. Mead v. Sanwa Bank California (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 561, 564, 567-568 ; 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 625

In reviewing sufficiency of complaint, appellate court treats demurrer as admitting all material facts properly pleaded; demurrer does not lie to portion of cause of action; demurrer may be sustained only if complaint lacks any sufficient allegations to entitle plaintiff to relief; in construction of pleading, for purpose of determining its effect, its allegations must be liberally construed, with view to substantial justice between parties. Chazen v. Centennial Bank (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 532, 542, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 462

When reviewing order sustaining general demurrer without leave to amend, appellate court must treat demurrer as admitting all properly pleaded facts, but not contentions, deductions or conclusions of fact or law; appellate court must read complaint as whole and give it reasonable interpretation; if complaint, liberally construed, can state cause of action, or if it is reasonably possible that plaintiffs can cure complaint by amendment, trial court should not sustain demurrer without leave to amend. Citizens for Open Access, Etc. Tide, Inc. v. Seadrift Assn. (1998) 60 Cal. App. 4th 1053, 1063, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 77

In reviewing sufficiency of complaint against general demurrer, court treats demurrer as admitting all material facts properly pleaded, but not contentions, deductions or conclusions of law; court may also consider matters which may be judicially noticed; further, court gives complaint reasonable interpretation, reading it as a whole and its parts in their context; when demurrer sustained, court determines whether complaint states facts sufficient to constitute cause of action; irrespective of labels attached by pleader to any alleged cause of action, court examines factual allegations of complaint to determine whether they state (or can state) cause of action on any available legal theory; if they do trial court's order of dismissal must be reversed. North American Chemical Co. v. Superior Court (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 764, 773, 786, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 466 ; Sindell v. Gibson, Dunn & Crutcher (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 1457, 1465, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 594

In reviewing sufficiency of complaint against general demurrer, court treats demurrer as admitting all material facts properly pleaded, but not contentions, deductions or conclusions of law; court may also consider matters which may be judicially noticed; further, court gives complaint reasonable interpretation, reading it as whole and its parts in their context; when demurrer sustained without leave to amend, appellate court decides whether there is reasonable possibility that defect can be cured by amendment; if it can be, trial court has abused discretion and appellate court reverses; if not, there has been no abuse of discretion and appellate court affirms. Downs v. Department of Water & Power (1997) 58 Cal. App. 4th 1093, 1099, 68 Cal. Rptr. 2d 590

On appeal from judgment dismissing action after sustaining demurrer without leave to amend, reviewing court gives complaint reasonable interpretation and treats demurrer as admitting all material facts properly pleaded, but does not assume the truth of contentions, deductions, or conclusions of law; judgment must be affirmed if any one of several grounds of demurrer is well taken; it is error, however, for trial court to sustain demurrer when plaintiff has stated cause of action under any possible legal theory; and it is abuse of discretion to sustain demurrer without leave to amend if plaintiff shows there is reasonable possibility any defect identified by the defendant can be cured by amendment. Weikel v. TCW Realty Fund II Holding Co. (1997) 55 Cal. App. 4th 1234, 1243-1244, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 25

Appellate court accepts facts pleaded as true when considering appeal from demurrer; trial court erred if pleading states cause of action under any possible legal theory; it abused its discretion if face of pleadings shows a reasonable probability the defects could be cured by a properly amended pleading. Alexandria S. v. Pacific Fertility Medical Center, Inc. (1997) 55 Cal. App. 4th 110, 115, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d 23

When reviewing merits of general demurrer, court must, at every stage of action, disregard any defect in pleadings that does not affect substantial right of parties; pleadings must be reasonably interpreted, being read as a whole and each part must be given meaning from context where it appears; all that is necessary as against general demurrer is to plead facts showing that plaintiff may be entitled to some relief; in passing on sufficiency of pleadings, allegations must be liberally construed with view toward substantial justice between parties. Michaelian v. State Comp. Ins. Fund (1996) 50 Cal. App. 4th 1093, 1104-1105, 58 Cal. Rptr. 2d 133

When matter comes to appellate court on judgment of dismissal following trial court's order sustaining defendants' demurrer without leave to amend, appellate court assumes truth of all properly pleaded facts, but not contentions, deductions, or conclusions of fact or law; assuming truth of plaintiffs' factual allegations, appellate court then independently determines whether they have alleged cognizable claims; an order sustaining demurrer without leave to amend is unwarranted and constitutes abuse of discretion if there is reasonable possibility that defect can be cured by amendment, but it is proper to sustain demurrer without leave to amend when it is improbable that plaintiffs can state a cause of action in light of earlier failed attempts by plaintiff to do so and nature of defects involved. Lee v. Interinsurance Exchange (1996) 50 Cal. App. 4th 694, 709, 724, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 798

Appellate court employs two separate standards of review; first, there is de novo review of complaint to determine if it contains facts sufficient to state a cause of action; in doing so, appellate court accepts as true properly pleaded material factual allegations of complaint, together with facts that may be properly judicially noticed; reversible error exists only if facts were alleged showing entitlement to relief under any possible legal theory; second, when complaint sustained without leave to amend, reviewing courts determine whether trial court abused its discretion in doing so. Hernandez v. City of Pomona (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 1492, 1497, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 406

On review of the trial court's refusal to grant leave to amend, appellate court will reverse for abuse of discretion if appellate court determines there is reasonable possibility pleading can be cured by amendment; otherwise, trial court's decision will be affirmed for lack of abuse. Hernandez v. City of Pomona (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 1492, 1498, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 406

When demurrer sustained, appellate court determines whether complaint states facts sufficient to constitute cause of action; if demurrer sustained without leave to amend court decides whether there is reasonable possibility that defect can be cured by amendment; if it can be so cured, trial court abused its discretion and appellate court will reverse; if it cannot be so cured, there has been no abuse of discretion and appellate court will affirm. Engstrom v. Kallins (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 773, 778, 56 Cal. Rptr. 2d 842 ; Cross v. Bonded Adjustment Bureau (1996) 48 Cal. App. 4th 266, 275, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 801

Appellate court must affirm if trial court's decision to sustain demurrer was correct on any theory. Silva v. Block (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 345, 350, 56 Cal. Rptr. 2d 613

Trial court's judgment must be affirmed if any one of several grounds of demurrer is well taken; however, error for trial court to sustain demurrer when plaintiff has stated cause of action under any possible theory; also abuse of discretion to sustain demurrer without leave to amend if plaintiff shows reasonable possibility any defect identified by defendant can be cured by amendment. Winding Creek v. McGlashan (1996) 44 Cal. App. 4th 933, 939, 52 Cal. Rptr. 2d 236

Court gives reasonable interpretation to complaint, reading it as a whole and its parts in their context; if demurrer sustained without leave to amend, appellate court decides if there is reasonable possibility that defect can be cured by amendment and if so reverses and if not affirms. Campanelli v. Regents of University of California (1996) 44 Cal. App. 4th 572, 575-576, 51 Cal. Rptr. 2d 891

In reviewing ruling on demurrer to determine if complaint states cause of action, court (1) treats demurrer as admitting all material facts properly pleaded but not contentions, deductions or conclusions of law or fact, (2) considers matters that may be judicially noticed, and (3) gives complaint reasonable interpretation reading it as whole and its parts in their context; when demurrer is sustained, court determines whether complaint states facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action; when demurrer is sustained without leave to amend, court decides whether there is a reasonable possibility that defect can be cured by amendment, and if so, trial court abused discretion and court will reverse, and if not, no abuse of discretion and court will affirm; if trial court's decision to sustain demurrer is correct on any theory appellate court must affirm. Kennedy v. Baxter Healthcare Corp. (1996) 43 Cal. App. 4th 799, 807-808, 50 Cal. Rptr. 2d 736

Allegations in complaint must be read in light most favorable to plaintiff and liberally construed with view to attaining substantial justice among parties. Wilson v. Houston Funeral Home (1996) 42 Cal. App. 4th 1124, 1131, 50 Cal. Rptr. 2d 169

On appeal from judgment dismissing action after demurrer sustained without leave to amend, standard of review is as follows: (1) reviewing court gives complaint reasonable interpretation; (2) court treats complaint as admitting all material facts well pleaded; (3) court, however, does not assume truth of contentions, deductions or conclusions of law; (4) if any one of several grounds for demurrer is well taken judgment must be affirmed; (5) however, error for trial court to sustain demurrer when plaintiff has stated cause of action under any legal theory; (6) moreover, abuse of discretion to sustain demurrer without leave to amend if plaintiff shows there is reasonable possibility any defect identified by defendant can be cured by amendment; and (7) court also considers matters that may be judicially noticed. Howard Jarvis Taxpayers' Assn. v. Board of Supervisors (1996) 41 Cal. App. 4th 1363, 1372, 49 Cal. Rptr. 2d 157

Court may consider judicial admissions contained in plaintiff's complaint and apparently admissions contained in plaintiff's opposition papers to defendant's demurrer to negate plaintiff's ability to state cause of action. See Setliff v. E.I. Du Pont De Nemours & Co. (1995) 32 Cal. App. 4th 1525, 1534, 1536-1537, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 763

In evaluating whether appellant may be able to state cause of action, all allegations are taken as true even though their proof appears unlikely, as well as all facts that may be implied or inferred from those expressly alleged. Smith v. County of Kern (1993) 20 Cal. App. 4th 1826, 1830, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 716

Trial court may consider demurrer filed later that local rules require; contention that complaint fails to state cause of action is never waived and can be raised at later state of proceeding, such as motion for judgment on pleadings or summary judgment; therefore plaintiff suferred not prejudice by court considering demurrer that was filed outside time required by local rule. Wilson v. Houston Funeral Home (1996) 42 Cal. App. 4th 1124, 1132, 50 Cal. Rptr. 2d 169

Sustaining demurrer without leave to amend as abuse of discretion if there is reasonable possibility that plaintiff can amend complaint to cure defects, but such showing as not required to be made in trial court so long as it is made to reviewing court; rule as liberally applied to permit further amendment not only if defect is one of form but also if it is one of substance, provided pleader did not have fair, prior opportunity to correct substantive defect. Careau & Co. v. Security Pacific Business Credit, Inc. (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 1371, 1386-1387, 272 Cal. Rptr. 387

In reviewing propriety of order sustaining demurrer to cross complaint for failure to state facts sufficient to constitute cause of action, appellate court independently determines whether cross complaint shows some relief can properly be given and as not concerning itself with cross complainant's difficulty or inability to prove various allegations; appellate court as concerned only with whether such allegations show entitlement to relief or prospect for such entitlement, if properly amended; because review encompasses solely questions of law, appellate court as able to entertain legal arguments not presented in court below. Selma Pressure Treating Co. v. Osmose Wood Preserving Co. (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 1601, 1611, 1614, 271 Cal. Rptr. 596 ; overruled in part by Johnson v. American Standard, Inc. (2008) 43 Cal. 4th 56

On appeal, all intendments weigh in favor of regularity of trial court proceedings and correctness of judgment; unless clear error or abuse of discretion is demonstrated, trial court's judgment of dismissal following sustaining of demurrer to complaint as affirmed on appeal. Krawitz v. Rusch (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 957, 962-963, 257 Cal. Rptr. 610

General demurrer presents same question to appellate court as to trial court, that is, whether plaintiff has alleged sufficient facts to justify any relief. B & P Development Corp. v. City of Saratoga (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 949, 952, 230 Cal. Rptr. 192

Sustaining general demurrer without leave to amend is not abuse of discretion if it appears from complaint that, under applicable substantive law, there is no reasonable probability that defect can be cured by amendment. C & H Foods Co. v. Hartford Ins. Co. (1984) 163 Cal. App. 3d 1055, 1062, 211 Cal. Rptr. 765

If party elects to stand on complaint after demurrer to it has been sustained with leave to amend, judgment is affirmed if complaint is objectionable on any ground. Shapiro v. Wells Fargo Realty Advisors (1984) 152 Cal. App. 3d 467, 474, 199 Cal. Rptr. 613 ; Vaughn v. Certified Life Ins. Co. (1965) 238 Cal. App. 2d 177, 180, 47 Cal. Rptr. 619

Strict construction of demurrer and assumption that plaintiff has pleaded strongest possible case are required in determining on appeal whether trial court has abused its discretion in sustaining demurrer and plaintiff has elected not to amend complaint. Flynn v. Higham (1983) 149 Cal. App. 3d 677, 679, 197 Cal. Rptr. 145

[3] Continuance

Plaintiff's contention that the hearing on defendant's demurrer should have been continued to permit plaintiff to examine some documents rejected and trial court held not to have abused discretion in denying continuance when (1) there had been a previous continuance for that purpose, (2) only five pages remained to be produced none of which could possibly be relevant to the legal issues raised by plaintiff's complaint, and (3) plaintiff failed to explain how the five pages could possibly affect outcome of demurrer. Mitchell, Silberberg & Knupp v. Yosemite Ins. Co. (1997) 58 Cal. App. 4th 389, 395, 67 Cal. Rptr. 2d 906

[3A] Failure to State Cause of Action as Grounds

Trial court properly sustained demurrer to complaint by former employer against former employee alleging breach of contract and conversion of patents belonging to employer, on grounds that under Code Civ. Proc. § 426.30, compulsory cross-complaint statute, employer was required to raise claims in response to former employee's prior cross-complaint filed in prior action by employer against employee, where claims alleged by employer in complaint were logically related to claims asserted in Tran cross-complaint in the prior suit, and where allegations of complaint did not clearly show that any claims arose after employer answered cross-complaint in prior action. However, trial court abused its discretion in denying employer leave to amend for employer to provide additional allegations as to when it discovered misconduct at issue, where employer met its burden of showing there was reasonable possibility it could have amended complaint to allege claim against former employee that would not be barred by compulsory cross-complaint statute. Align Technology, Inc. v. Tran (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 949, 958-972, 102 Cal. Rptr. 3d 343

[4] Waiver of Defenses

Objection based on plaintiff's lack of standing to sue is not subject to waiver under Code Civ. Proc. § 430.80 because person lacking standing cannot state valid cause of action. McKinny v. Board of Trustees (1982) 31 Cal. 3d 79, 90, 181 Cal. Rptr. 549, 642 P.2d 460

Failure to object to defect in pleadings, such as misjoinder of parties, by demurrer or answer waives objection. Jordan v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 449, 469, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 333

On appeal from judgment dismissing complaint after trial court sustained general demurrer without leave to amend, plaintiff who fails to challenge on appeal denial of leave to amend normally waives issue. Rose v. County of Plumas (1984) 152 Cal. App. 3d 999, 1008, 199 Cal. Rptr. 842

[5] Function of Demurrer

Demurrer merely tests legal sufficiency of complaint, not its factual truth. Roskind v. Morgan, Stanley Dean Witter & Co. (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 345, 349, 95 Cal. Rptr. 2d 258

Demurrer tests legal sufficiency of complaint. Kendrick v. City of Eureka (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 364, 367, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 153 ; G. L. Mezzetta, Inc. v. City of American Canyon (2000) 78 Cal. App. 4th 1087, 1091, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 292

General demurrer challenges only legal sufficiency of complaint, not truth or accuracy of its factual allegations or plaintiff's ability to prove those allegations. Ball v. GTE Mobilnet of California (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 529, 534-535, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 801 ; Granquist v. Sandberg (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 181, 183, 268 Cal. Rptr. 109

Demurrer tests legal sufficiency of factual allegations in complaint. Rakestraw v. California Physicians' Service (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 39, 42, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 354 ; Boyle v. City of Redondo Beach (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 1109, 1114 n.2, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 164

Demurrer tests sufficiency of a complaint by raising questions of law. Wilner v. Sunset Life Ins. Co. (2000) 78 Cal. App. 4th 952, 958, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 413

Demurrer tests sufficiency of complaint's factual allegations rather than relief suggested in prayer of complaint. Stevens v. Superior Court (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 594, 609, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 370

Function of demurrer is to test sufficiency of complaint by raising questions of law. Herman v. Los Angeles County Metropolitan Transportation Authority (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 819, 824, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 144

Demurrer tests only sufficiency of pleading and as lying only when defect appears on face of pleading or from matters judicially noticed by court; demurrer as not proper vehicle for determining truth of disputed facts. Fiorito v. Superior Court (1990) 226 Cal. App. 3d 433, 437, 438, 277 Cal. Rptr. 27

Question of proof as not subject to being resolved on demurrer because all properly pleaded allegations are taken as true even though their proof appears unlikely. Bach v. McNelis (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 852, 866, 255 Cal. Rptr. 232

[6] General and Special Demurrers

Rule is being that, if special demurrer is well taken on any ground, it is sustained with leave to amend and court does not specify ground of its ruling, and plaintiff fails to amend, judgment of dismissal should be affirmed on appeal. Stowe v. Fritzie Hotels, Inc. (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 416, 424, 282 P.2d 890

When general and special demurrers were made and trial court sustained demurrer without leave to amend in general terms, court of appeal is required to assume that trial court only ruled on general demurrer and not on special demurrer. Rogoff v. Grabowski (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 624, 628, 246 Cal. Rptr. 185

Objections that complaint is ambiguous or uncertain or that essential facts appear only inferentially, as conclusions of law or by way of recitals, must be raised by special demurrer and is not reachable on general demurrer. Johnson v. Mead (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 156, 160, 236 Cal. Rptr. 277

Demurrer on ground that complaint does not state facts sufficient to constitute cause of action is general demurrer and demurrers on other grounds including lack of jurisdiction are special demurrers. Certified Grocers of California, Ltd. v. San Gabriel Valley Bank (1983) 150 Cal. App. 3d 281, 285 n.1, 197 Cal. Rptr. 710 ; Buss v. J.O. Martin Co. (1966) 241 Cal. App. 2d 123, 133, 50 Cal. Rptr. 206

[7] Judicial Notice

[a] Effect of Judicial Notice

In ruling on demurrer, court may consider facts of which it has taken judicial notice; this includes existence of document; when judicial notice is taken of document, however, truthfulness and proper interpretation of document is subject to dispute; reviewing court may consider facts judicially noticed by trial court or those which trial court properly could have noticed. StorMedia Inc. v. Superior Court (1999) 20 Cal. 4th 449, 456 n.9, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 843, 976 P.2d 214

Demurrer reaches not only contents of challenged pleading but also matters that may be considered under judicial notice, including orders, regulations, decisions, and records of state administrative agencies. El Rancho Unified School Dist. v. National Education Assn. (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 946, 950 n.6, 192 Cal. Rptr. 123, 663 P.2d 893

All facts well pleaded and facts that may be judicially noticed are considered in ruling on demurrer. Talley v. Northern San Diego Hosp. Dist. (1953) 41 Cal. 2d 33, 36, 257 P.2d 22 ; see also Serrano v. Priest (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 584, 591, 96 Cal. Rptr. 601, 487 P.2d 1241

Appellate court may disregard allegations that are contrary to law or fact of which judicial notice may be taken. Duggal v. G.E. Capital Communications Services, Inc. (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 81, 86, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 383

When affidavits or exhibits filed by plaintiff may be judicially noticed, court may consider those facts to assess whether complaint survives a general demurrer. Freeman v. San Diego Assn. of Realtors (1999) 77 Cal. App. 4th 171, 178 n.3, 91 Cal. Rptr. 2d 534

In reviewing sufficiency of complaint against general demurrer, appellate court considers matters that may be judicially noticed. Boyle v. City of Redondo Beach (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 1109, 1114 n.2, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 164

In reviewing judgment of dismissal after demurrer is sustained without leave to amend, appellate court assumes truth of all facts properly pleaded by plaintiff; court, however, will not assume truth of contentions, deductions, or conclusions and may disregard allegations that are contrary to the law or to a fact of which judicial notice may be taken. Cochran v. Cochran (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 488, 493, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 540

In determining sufficiency of complaint against demurrer, judicially noticeable facts supersede inconsistent factual allegations contained in complaint. City of Chula Vista v. County of San Diego (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 1713, 1719, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 89

In determining sufficiency of complaint against demurrer, court as considering not only contents of complaint, but also matters of which judicial notice may be taken. Pitman v. City of Oakland (1988) 197 Cal. App. 3d 1037, 1041, 243 Cal. Rptr. 306

All material facts properly pleaded in complaint are assumed to be true unless they are contradicted by facts judicially noticed. Financial Corp. of America v. Wilburn (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 764, 768-769, 234 Cal. Rptr. 653

Tests or rules applied in determining whether court that has taken judicial notice of document may take judicial notice of truth of contents. Joslin v. H.A.S. Ins. Brokerage (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 369, 374-375, 228 Cal. Rptr. 878

[b] Improper

At demurrer stage, existence of contract between private parties cannot be established by judicial notice under Evid. Code § 452(h) to contradict allegations in complaint; sufficiency of plaintiff's complaint must be tested without reference to purported contract. Gould v. Maryland Sound Industries, Inc. (1995) 31 Cal. App. 4th 1137, 1144-1446, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 718

Although Evid. Code § 452(d) permits court to take judicial notice of court records, court as not allowed to take judicial notice of truth of hearsay statements simply because statements are part of court record; although court may take judicial notice of existence of each document in court file, court as allowed only to take judicial notice of truth of facts asserted in documents such as orders, findings of fact and conclusions of law, and judgments. Magnolia Square Homeowners Assn. v. Safeco Ins. Co. (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 1049, 1056, 271 Cal. Rptr. 1

In action based on sexual discrimination in country club membership, court as not permitted in hearing on demurrer to complaint to take judicial notice of "admission" by plaintiff's counsel that club was "truly a private membership club in the view that people cannot walk in and use the club"; unlike answer to request for admission relied on by defendant, counsel's statement in another context during hearing in trial court as not constituting judicially noticeable fact. Warfield v. Peninsula Golf & Country Club (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 646, 653 n.4, 262 Cal. Rptr. 890

Although, in ruling on demurrer, court may take judicial notice of files in other judicial proceedings, court as not allowed to take judicial notice of truth of factual matters asserted in them; court as not permitted to take judicial notice of truth of assertions in declarations or affidavits filed in court proceedings or of hearsay allegations as being true just because they are part of court record or file; court as permitted to take judicial notice of existence of each document in court file, but only of truth of facts asserted in documents such as orders, findings of fact and conclusions of law, and judgments. Bach v. McNelis (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 852, 865, 255 Cal. Rptr. 232

Judicial notice of county's practice of preparing and mailing rejections as not dispositive of whether county actually mailed rejection to plaintiff because that fact may not be deduced from mailing practice at demurrer stage. Cruz v. County of Los Angeles (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 1131, 1134, 219 Cal. Rptr. 661

Judicial notice as proper only with respect to plaintiff's recorded statements inconsistent with pleadings, not to inconsistencies in materials filed on behalf of adverse party. Del E. Webb Corp. v. Structural Materials Co. (1981) 123 Cal. App. 3d 593, 605, 176 Cal. Rptr. 824

Court as not permitted to take judicial notice of truth of allegations made in documents such as pleadings, affidavits, and allegations in bankruptcy proceedings. Tarr v. Merco Constr. Engineers, Inc. (1978) 84 Cal. App. 3d 707, 715, 148 Cal. Rptr. 813

[c] Proper

The court may take judicial notice of the decisions of other state and federal courts, particularly "several federal and state court decisions that have extensively discussed the factual and legal background relating to the present dispute." U.S. Ecology, Inc. v. State of California (2001) 92 Cal. App. 4th 113, 120, 111 Cal. Rptr. 2d 689

To determine whether to sustain demurrer on res judicata grounds, judicial notice may be taken of prior judgment and other court records. Dunkin v. Boskey (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 171, 180 n.4, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 44

When ground for objection to complaint, such as statute of limitations, appears on its face or from matters of which court may or must take judicial notice, demurrer on that ground is proper; appellate court may take judicial notice of records of a California court and must take judicial notice of decisional and statutory law of California and United States. Duggal v. G.E. Capital Communications Services, Inc. (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 81, 86, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 383 ; Shaolian v. Safeco Ins. Co. (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 268, 271, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 702

Custom of sending monthly bank statements is sufficiently established to support judicial notice; date check paid can support inference that it was the subject of a monthly statement over a year before suit filed or an unauthorized signature reported. Mac v. Bank of America (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 562, 565-566, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 496

Proper for trial court in ruling on demurrer to consider facts of which it has taken judicial notice which include the existence of a document, though not the truthfulness or proper interpretation of the document's contents. AL Holding Co. v. O'Brien & Hicks, Inc. (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 1310, 1313, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 918

Appellate court took judicial notice of amended notice of motion in bankruptcy proceeding that corrected error in caption as authorized under Evid. Code §§ 452, 459; under Evid. Code § 452(d), records of any court of the United States are subject to judicial notice and defendants made request for judicial notice in trial court; in appeal from ruling on demurrer, appellate court may take judicial notice of such matters. Sacramento Brewing Co. v. Desmond, Miller & Desmond (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 1082, 1085 n.3, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 760

When court records subject to judicial notice provide ground for objection to complaint, demurrer on that ground is proper. Britz, Inc. v. Dow Chemical Co. (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 177, 180, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 188

When ground for objection to complaint, such as statute of limitations, appears on its face or from matters of which court may or must take judicial notice, demurrer on that ground is proper. Cochran v. Cochran (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 1115, 1120, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 337

Judicial notice of party's earlier pleadings and positions, as well as of established facts from both same case and other cases, is proper; plaintiff cannot avoid demurrer by pleading facts that contradict facts or positions pleaded in earlier actions or by suppressing facts that prove the pleaded facts false. Cantu v. Resolution Trust Corp. (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 857, 877, 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 151

Judicial notice of content of court records is appropriate only when existence of record itself precludes contravention of that which is recited in it, for example, if findings of fact, conclusions of law, or judgments bind party for purposes of res judicata or collateral estoppel; otherwise, judicial notice for truth of content of court records is not appropriate either because truth of content is reasonably subject to dispute or because content is hearsay. Columbia Casualty Co. v. Northwestern Nat. Ins. Co. (1991) 231 Cal. App. 3d 457, 473, 282 Cal. Rptr. 389

Court may take judicial notice of truth of facts asserted in documents such as orders, findings of fact and conclusions of law, and judgments. Cote v. Henderson (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 796, 802, 267 Cal. Rptr. 274

Judicial notice may ordinarily be taken of court's own records, including prior pleadings in case. People v. Cavanna (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 1054, 1058, 263 Cal. Rptr. 177

In ruling on demurrer, trial court properly considers judicially noticeable matters, and allegations of complaint that are inconsistent with, or contradicted by, judicially noticed facts must be rejected. Rossco Holdings Inc. v. State of California (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 642, 646-647, 260 Cal. Rptr. 736

Agency memorandum is proper subject of judicial notice. Truta v. Avis Rent A Car System, Inc. (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 802, 809 n.6, 238 Cal. Rptr. 806

Trial court in civil action properly took judicial notice that, prior to action, plaintiff had filed petition for relief under former Bankruptcy Act. Tarr v. Merco Constr. Engineers, Inc. (1978) 84 Cal. App. 3d 707, 712, 148 Cal. Rptr. 813

[8] Motions for Reconsideration

If demurrer is sustained without leave to amend, plaintiff is entitled to submit proposed amended complaint by way of motion for reconsideration; if amended complaint states any cause of action, trial court is obligated (1) to vacate order sustaining demurrer without leave to amend and (2) to make different order granting plaintiff leave to file amended complaint that may include cause of action that trial court, in deciding merits of motion for reconsideration, determined was valid. Careau & Co. v. Security Pacific Business Credit, Inc. (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 1371, 1386, 272 Cal. Rptr. 387

[9] New Trial After Appeal

If judgment of dismissal entered on order sustaining demurrer without leave to amend is reversed on appeal, under former Code Civ. Proc. § 583(c) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 583.320(a)), action must be brought to trial within three years from filing of remittitur in trial court. McDonough Power Equipment Co. v. Superior Court (1972) 8 Cal. 3d 527, 532, 105 Cal. Rptr. 330, 503 P.2d 1338

[10] Propriety of Demurrer

Right to demur is limited to parties to action. Artana v. San Jose Scavenger Co. (1919) 181 Cal. 627, 629, 185 P. 850

The issue of class certification may appropriately be decided on demurrer. Alvarez v. May Department Stores Co. (2006) 143 Cal. App. 4th 1223, 1231, 49 Cal. Rptr. 3d 892

When complaint shows on its face that action is barred by statute of limitations, general demurrer for failure to state cause of action will lie. Kendrick v. City of Eureka (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 364, 367, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 153

Purely legal issue of federal preemption is properly addressed by demurrer. Washington Mutual Bank v. Superior Court (2002) 95 Cal. App. 4th 606, 612, 115 Cal. Rptr. 2d 765

Demurrer is appropriate vehicle to secure dismissal of state law action based on federal law preemption. Ball v. GTE Mobilnet of California (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 529, 535, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 801

When complaint affirmatively alleges facts amounting to an affirmative defense, it is subject to demurrer. Halvorsen v. Aramark Uniform Services, Inc. (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 1383, 1391, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 383

Demurrer is not appropriate procedure for determining truth of disputed facts or what inferences should be drawn when competing inferences are possible. CrossTalk Productions, Inc. v. Jacobson (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 631, 635, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 615

Demurrer does not lie to portion of cause of action. Chazen v. Centennial Bank (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 532, 542, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 462

Demurrer sustained without leave to amend was appropriate as to complaint against public entity in which plaintiffs failed to first file a claim pursuant to the California Tort Claims Act and failed to prove exemption from filing claim under Gov. Code § 905(f). Dalton v. East Bay Mun. Utility Dist. (1993) 18 Cal. App. 4th 1566, 1573-1574, 23 Cal. Rptr. 2d 230

Complaint against public entity is subject to demurrer or to judgment on pleadings if facts or theory of complaint are different from those alleged in original claim filed with public entity. Colapinto v. County of Riverside (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 147, 152 n.1, 281 Cal. Rptr. 171

Complaint against public entity is vulnerable to demurrer or motion for judgment on pleadings if it alleges factual basis for recovery that is not fairly reflected in written claim filed with public entity. Crow v. State of California (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 192, 199-200, 271 Cal. Rptr. 349

Demurrer is ordinarily inappropriate when plaintiff pleads contract and controversy concerning effect of terms of contract, because cause of action for declaratory relief has been stated; demurrer is proper, however, when allegations do not support declaratory relief in plaintiff's favor as matter of law. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. v. Superior Court (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 74, 76, 236 Cal. Rptr. 216

General demurrer to part of cause of action is improper. Financial Corp. of America v. Wilburn (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 764, 778, 234 Cal. Rptr. 653

Objections to prayer are not properly taken by demurrer. Grisingher v. Shaeffer (1938) 25 Cal. App. 2d 5, 9, 76 P.2d 149

[11] Review by Extraordinary Writ

Mandate is appropriate remedy to compel trial court to vacate order sustaining demurrer in class action in which plaintiffs could not appeal from order that barred substantial portion of cause of action from being heard on merits. Vasquez v. Superior Court (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 800, 807, 94 Cal. Rptr. 796, 484 P.2d 964

When court has sustained demurrer to only one of several causes of action, its order is not appealable and review by mandamus is appropriate way to control judicial discretion where that discretion has been abused; abuse of discretion exists when trial court has committed substantial error which is clearly prejudicial; such error is present when court improperly prevents party from pleading substantial part of its case; under such circumstances relief by mandamus is appropriate to prevent needless and expensive trial and reversal. North American Chemical Co. v. Superior Court (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 764, 773, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 466

When demurrer sustained without leave to amend with respect to less than all causes of action, mandate is appropriate remedy to review trial court's ruling sustaining demurrer when it appears trial court deprived party of opportunity to plead cause of action and extraordinary relief may prevent needless and expensive trial and reversal. Campbell v. Superior Court (1996) 44 Cal. App. 4th 1308, 1314-1315, 52 Cal. Rptr. 2d 385

Mandate is appropriate remedy to review trial court's ruling sustaining demurrer without leave to amend to less than all causes of action pled when trial court has deprived party opportunity to plead substantial portion of case and extraordinary relief may prevent needless trial and reversal. Angie M. v. Superior Court (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 1217, 1223, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 197

Mandate is appropriate remedy to review order overruling demurrer if significant issue of law is raised and resolution of that issue in petitioner's favor would result in final disposition as to that party. Curry v. Superior Court (1993) 20 Cal. App. 4th 180, 183, 24 Cal. Rptr. 2d 495

On petition for writ of mandate to compel trial court to vacate order overruling demurrer, petitioner has burden to show that trial court's order is erroneous as matter of law and that petitioner will suffer harm that cannot be corrected on further appeal. Long Beach Equities, Inc. v. County of Ventura (1991) 231 Cal. App. 3d 1016, 1024, 282 Cal. Rptr. 877

In mandate proceeding to review trial court's overruling of insurer's demurrer to complaint, reviewing court as assuming truth of all properly pleaded material allegations of complaint and as giving complaint a reasonable interpretation by reading it as a whole and its parts in their context. Doctors' Co. Ins. Services v. Superior Court (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 1284, 1288-1289, 275 Cal. Rptr. 674

Although reviewing court will not ordinarily intervene to review rulings on pleadings, mandate as appropriate remedy to review order overruling demurrer when significant questions are presented. Coopers & Lybrand v. Superior Court (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 524, 529, 539, 260 Cal. Rptr. 713 (significant questions involved were definition of arbitration and applicability of arbitral immunity to facts of case)

Writ of mandate as properly issued, in discretion of appellate court, when trial court, by sustaining demurrer without leave to amend complaint, appears to have deprived party of opportunity to plead cause of action. Pfleger v. Superior Court (1985) 172 Cal. App. 3d 421, 425, 218 Cal. Rptr. 371

Writ of mandate as proper to direct trial court to overrule defendant's demurrer to complaint when plaintiff unable to appeal because of one final judgment rule and when refusal to consider petition will result in piecemeal disposition of case. Wallis v. Superior Court (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 1109, 1114 n.1, 207 Cal. Rptr. 123

Writ of mandate as issuing to compel trial court to sustain demurrer to complaint without leave to amend. Miner v. Superior Court (1973) 30 Cal. App. 3d 597, 600, 602, 106 Cal. Rptr. 416

Order overruling demurrer as reviewable by prohibition if jurisdictional question is presented. County of Santa Barbara v. Superior Court (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 751, 754-755, 93 Cal. Rptr. 406

[12] Ruling on Demurrer

[a] In General

On appeal from a judgment dismissing an action after sustaining a demurrer without leave to amend, the standard of review is well settled. The reviewing court gives the complaint a reasonable interpretation, and treats the demurrer as admitting all material facts properly pleaded. The court does not, however, assume the truth of contentions, deductions or conclusions of law. The judgment must be affirmed if any one of the several grounds of demurrer is well taken. However, it is error for a trial court to sustain a demurrer when the plaintiff has stated a cause of action under any possible legal theory. If the complaint states a cause of action under any theory, regardless of the title under which the factual basis for relief is stated, that aspect of the complaint is good against a demurrer. The court is not limited to plaintiffs' theory of recovery in testing the sufficiency of their complaint against a demurrer, but instead must determine if the factual allegations of the complaint are adequate to state a cause of action under any legal theory. California courts have long since departed from holding a plaintiff strictly to the "form of action" he has pleaded and instead have adopted the more flexible approach of examining the facts alleged to determine if a demurrer should be sustained. Bagatti v. Department of Rehabilitation (2002) 97 Cal. App. 4th 344, 353, 118 Cal. Rptr. 2d 443

If complaint, liberally construed, can state cause of action, or if it is reasonably possible that plaintiffs can cure complaint by amendment, trial court should not sustain demurrer without leave to amend. Dunkin v. Boskey (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 171, 180, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 44

For purposes of ruling on demurrer, court assumes truth of all well-pleaded allegations of complaint; ability of plaintiff to prove them not in issue. Roskind v. Morgan, Stanley Dean Witter & Co. (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 345, 349, 95 Cal. Rptr. 2d 258

In determining if complaint is sufficient to constitute a cause of action, rule is, that if on consideration of all facts stated it appears plaintiffs entitled to any relief at hands of court against defendants, complaint will be held good, although facts may not be clearly stated, or may be intermingled with statement of other facts irrelevant to the cause of action shown, or although plaintiff may demand relief to which he or she is not entitled on facts alleged; in other words, plaintiff need only plead facts showing that he or she may be entitled to some relief. Schnall v. Hertz Corp. (2000) 78

When conclusion is alleged and also special facts from which conclusion is drawn, if special facts are inconsistent with and do not support conclusion, the former control, and sufficiency of complaint is to be determined from special facts pleaded. Iverson, Yoakum, Papiano & Hatch v. Berwald (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 990, 995, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 665

If factual allegations of complaint are adequate to state cause of action under any legal theory, demurrer must be overruled. Charpentier v. Los Angeles Rams Football Co. (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 301, 307, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 115

When demurrer is based on affirmative defense, affirmative defense must clearly appear on face of complaint to support demurrer; demurrer based on affirmative defense cannot properly be granted when action might be barred by defense, but is not necessarily barred. CrossTalk Productions, Inc. v. Jacobson (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 631, 635, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 615

Regardless of label attached to cause of action, court must examine complaint's factual allegations to determine whether they state cause of action on any available legal theory; reversible error committed if facts alleged show entitlement to relief under any legal theory. Cochran v. Cochran (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 488, 493, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 540

Trial court may be required to grant leave to amend when it knows of potentially viable claims at time it sustains demurrer, even though plaintiff does not request leave to amend. Kolani v. Gluska (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 402, 405, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 257

Irrespective of labels attached by pleader to any alleged cause of action, court examines factual allegations of complaint to determine whether they state cause of action on any legal theory; if they do the trial court's order of dismissal must be reversed. North American Chemical Co. v. Superior Court (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 764, 773, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 466

Trial court must look through form of pleading to its substance in ruling on demurrer; labels that are attached that are erroneous or confusing must be ignored if complaint pleads facts that would entitle plaintiff to relief; what paper is, rather than how it is named, fixes its character. LiMandri v. Judkins (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 326, 339, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 539

Because demurrer to complaint tests only sufficiency of complaint, court does not consider facts that have not been alleged in complaint unless they may be reasonably inferred from matters that have been pleaded or are proper subjects of judicial notice. Hall v. Great Western Bank (1991) 231 Cal. App. 3d 713, 719 n.7, 282 Cal. Rptr. 640

Demurrer to complaint by improperly joined parties defendant against whom no cause of action was or could be stated is to be sustained without leave to amend. William M. v. Superior Court (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 447, 451-452, 275 Cal. Rptr. 103

In ruling on demurrer, trial court is obligated to look past form of pleading to its substance; erroneous or confusing labels attached by inept pleader are to be ignored if complaint pleads facts that would entitle plaintiff to relief. Saunders v. Cariss (1990) 224 Cal. App. 3d 905, 908, 274 Cal. Rptr. 186

Trial court is not to sustain demurrer without leave to amend when plaintiff has alleged facts showing entitlement to relief under any possible legal theory. Savage v. Trammell Crow Co. (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 1562, 1576, 273 Cal. Rptr. 302

Trial court properly entered judgment of dismissal after sustaining demurrer to plaintiffs' fourth amended complaint when plaintiffs not only failed to state cause of action after five attempts but also elected not to amend again. Golden

Feather Community Assn. v. Thermalito Irrigation Dist. (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 1276, 1288, 257 Cal. Rptr. 836

Only requirement to withstand general demurrer to complaint as that, on consideration of all facts stated, plaintiff must appear to be entitled to some relief, notwithstanding plaintiff may demand relief to which he or she is not entitled under facts alleged. White v. State of California (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 452, 471, 240 Cal. Rptr. 732

[b] Ambiguous Instrument

General rule is that, when written instrument that is foundation of cause of action or defense is attached to pleading as exhibit and incorporated in it by proper reference, court may, on demurrer, examine exhibit and treat pleader's allegations of its legal effect as surplusage. Washer v. Bank of America (1943) 21 Cal. 2d 822, 829-830, 136 P.2d 297 , overruled on another ground in MacLeod v. Tribune Publishing Co. (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 536, 551, 343 P.2d 36

In ruling on general demurrer to complaint for alleged breach of contract, trial court properly construed alleged employment contract against assertion that judicial interpretation of written instrument is proper only after parties have had opportunity to present extrinsic evidence as to intent and meaning of writing, if complaint did not allege that writing was ambiguous or place any definite construction on it by averment, and plaintiff attached copy of alleged contract to complaint and incorporated it by reference, leaving it to speak for itself. Beck v. American Health Group Internat., Inc. (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 1555, 1560-1562, 260 Cal. Rptr. 237

Plaintiff's failure to plead what extrinsic evidence will be offered to prove meaning of ambiguous instrument did not prevent plaintiff from contending on appeal that demurrer should not have been sustained because extrinsic evidence would have been admissible to assist in interpretation of contract; when ambiguous contract is attached and incorporated into complaint, party pleading ambiguous contract is only required to allege in complaint the meaning that party ascribes to contract. Southern Pacific Land Co. v. Westlake Farms, Inc. (1987) 188 Cal. App. 3d 807, 816-817, 233 Cal. Rptr. 794

General rule is that, if instrument sued on is ambiguous, party pleading it must set forth its meaning and that meaning attributed to it must be one to which it is reasonably susceptible; if pleaded instrument is susceptible to more than one construction as to its nature or purpose intended by parties, construction of party pleading as to be accepted, if reasonable, in considering sufficiency of pleading attacked by general demurrer. Connell v. Zaid (1969) 268 Cal. App. 2d 788, 794-795, 74 Cal. Rptr. 371

[c] Attached Exhibits

Appellate court disregards allegations that are contrary to law or facts that may be judicially noticed or that are contradicted by express terms of exhibit incorporated into complaint. Freeman v. San Diego Assn. of Realtors (1999) 77 Cal. App. 4th 171, 178 n.3, 91 Cal. Rptr. 2d 534 ; Breneric Associates v. City of Del Mar (1998) 69 Cal. App. 4th 166, 180, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 324

Written instruments that are foundation of causes of action and attached to complaint are presumed to be valid for purposes of demurrer and reviewable by court. SCEcorp v. Superior Court (1992) 3 Cal. App. 4th 673, 677, 4 Cal. Rptr. 2d 372

Although allegations in complaint must be accepted as true for purposes of demurrer, facts appearing in exhibits attached to complaint as also accepted as true and, if contrary to allegations of pleading, as given precedence. Dodd v. Citizens Bank of Costa Mesa (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 1624, 1626-1627, 272 Cal. Rptr. 623

Demurrer tests pleading alone and not evidence or other extrinsic matters that do not appear on face of pleading or cannot be properly inferred from factual allegations of complaint; this principle means that, if pleading sufficiently states cause of action, demurrer cannot be granted on basis of showing of extrinsic matters by inference from attached exhibits, affidavits, or otherwise, except those matters that are subject to judicial notice; court cannot give judicial notice to truth of assertions in declarations or affidavits filed in court proceedings. Bach v. McNelis (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 852, 864-865, 255 Cal. Rptr. 232

[d] Grant or Denial of Leave to Amend

Although trial court properly sustained demurrer to complaint by former employer against former employee alleging breach of contract and conversion of patents belonging to employer, on grounds that under Code Civ. Proc. § 426.30, compulsory cross-complaint statute, employer was required to raise claims in response to former employee's prior cross-complaint filed in prior action by employer against employee, trial court abused its discretion in denying employer leave to amend for employer to provide additional allegations as to when it discovered misconduct at issue, where employer met its burden of showing there was reasonable possibility it could have amended complaint to allege claim against former employee that would not be barred by compulsory cross-complaint statute. Align Technology, Inc. v. Tran (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 949, 971-972, 102 Cal. Rptr. 3d 343

If the complaint, on its face, alleges facts constituting an affirmative defense barring the claim, a demurrer without leave to amend should be sustained. Casterson v. Superior Court (2002) 101 Cal. App. 4th 177, 181, 123 Cal. Rptr. 2d 637

If there is any reasonable possibility that plaintiff can state a good cause of action, it is error to sustain demurrer without leave to amend. Ludgate Ins. Co. v. Lockheed Martin Corp. (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 592, 608, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 277

If complaint, liberally construed, can state cause of action, or if it is reasonably possible that plaintiffs can cure complaint by amendment, trial court should not sustain demurrer without leave to amend. Dunkin v. Boskey (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 171, 180, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 44

It is abuse of discretion to sustain demurrer without leave to amend if plaintiff shows there is reasonable possibility any defect identified by defendant can be cured by amendment. Shvarts v. Budget Group, Inc. (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 1153, 1157, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 722

Neither trial court nor appellate court will rewrite complaint; when plaintiff offers no allegations to support possibility of amendment and no legal authority showing viability of new causes of action, there is no basis for finding trial court abused its discretion when it sustained demurrer without leave to amend. Rakestraw v. California Physicians' Service (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 39, 44, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 354

Trial court abuses its discretion if it sustains demurrer without leave to amend when plaintiff shows reasonable possibility to cure any defect by amendment. Mack v. Soung (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 966, 971, 95 Cal. Rptr. 2d 830

If there is reasonable possibility that defect in complaint can be cured by amendment or that pleading liberally construed can state cause of action, demurrer should not be sustained without leave to amend. Schnall v. Hertz Corp. (2000) 78 Cal. App. 4th 1144, 1151, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 439

It is abuse of discretion to sustain demurrer without leave to amend if there is reasonable possibility any defect can be cured by amendment; demurrer may be sustained without leave to amend when nature of defects and previous unsuccessful attempts to plead render it probable plaintiff cannot state cause of action; to avoid this result, plaintiff must demonstrate how he or she can amend complaint to change legal effect of the pleading. Wilner v. Sunset Life Ins. Co.

Although it is abuse of discretion to sustain demurrer without leave to amend when there is reasonable possibility that plaintiff can amend complaint to cure defect, burden is on plaintiff to show how complaint can be amended and how amendment will change legal effect of pleading. McKelvey v. Boeing North American, Inc. (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 151, 163, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 645

Trial court errs in sustaining demurrer when plaintiff has stated cause of action under any possible legal theory, and abuses discretion in sustaining demurrer without leave to amend if plaintiff shows there is reasonable possibility any defect identified by defendant can be cured by amendment. Palm Springs Tennis Club v. Rangel (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 1, 5, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 73

When complaint contained factual ambiguity which if construed one way supported trial court's ruling sustaining demurrer without leave to amend, but construed another way showed trial court was incorrect in its ruling, and complaint otherwise contained no fatal defects and could easily been amended to cure ambiguity and state claim on which relief could be granted, trial court committed reversible error in sustaining demurrer without leave to amend. CrossTalk Productions, Inc. v. Jacobson (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 631, 635, 649, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 615

Denial of leave to amend constitutes abuse of discretion if pleading does not show on its face that it is incapable of amendment; generally it is abuse of discretion to sustain demurrer without leave to amend if there is any reasonable possibility that defect can be cured by amendment. Redmond v. Secure Horizons, Pacificare, Inc. (1997) 60 Cal. App. 4th 96, 105, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 174

Even if plaintiff were given leave to amend, plaintiff would not be allowed to amend complaint to state fact directly contradictory to one previously stated. Continental Ins. Co. v. Lexington Ins. Co. (1997) 55 Cal. App. 4th 637, 646, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d 116

Allegations in complaint must yield to contrary facts found in exhibits to complaint. Software Design & Application, Ltd. v. Hoefer & Arnett, Inc. (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 472, 484, 56 Cal. Rptr. 2d 756

Demurrer properly sustained without leave to amend if it appears that under applicable substantive law there is no reasonable possibility that amendment could remedy defects. Dalton v. East Bay Mun. Utility Dist. (1993) 18 Cal. App. 4th 1566, 1570-1571, 23 Cal. Rptr. 2d 230 ; Vaillette v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. (1993) 18 Cal. App. 4th 680, 685, 22 Cal. Rptr. 2d 807

Denial of leave to amend complaint was proper where plaintiff's proposed amended complaint added allegations regarding events subsequent to filing action. Hebert v. Los Angeles Raiders, Ltd. (1991) 23 Cal. App. 4th 414, 426, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 540

Demurrer is not to be sustained without leave to amend if complaint, liberally construed, can state cause of action under any theory or if there is reasonable possibility defect in complaint can be cured by amendment; demurrer as to be sustained and leave to amend denied only when facts are not in dispute and nature of plaintiff's claim is clear but, under substantive law, no liability exists. Schwarz v. Regents of University of California (1990) 226 Cal. App. 3d 149, 153, 276 Cal. Rptr. 470

Although general rule is that it is abuse of discretion to sustain demurrer without leave to amend unless complaint shows that it is incapable of amendment, leave to amend as properly denied when nature of plaintiff's claim is clear but, under substantive law, no liability exists, for no amendment could change result. Clausing v. San Francisco Unified School Dist. (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 1224, 1233, 271 Cal. Rptr. 72 ; McDonald v. John P. Scripps Newspaper (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 100, 105, 257 Cal. Rptr. 473

Although it would be error to deny leave to amend cross complaint on sustaining of general demurrer if there were any reasonable possibility that cross complainant could state cause of action, such as by supplying additional allegations, sustaining demurrer without leave to amend as proper when undisputed facts give rise to no liability as matter of law; complainant as having burden of showing how pleading can be amended and how amendment will change legal effect of pleading. Cooper v. Equity Gen. Insurance (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 1252, 1263, 268 Cal. Rptr. 693

Declarations of fact filed after demurrer considered by trial court in determining amendability of complaint to state cause of action. Mobaldi v. Regents of University of California (1976) 55 Cal. App. 3d 573, 577, 127 Cal. Rptr. 720 (disapproved on other grounds in Baxter v. Superior Court (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 461, 466 n.4, 138 Cal. Rptr. 315, 563 P.2d 871 , and Elden v. Sheldon (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 267, 277, 250 Cal. Rptr. 254, 758 P.2d 582)

[e] Inconsistency in Pleadings

Plaintiff may not avoid defects of plaintiff's earlier pleadings by omitting facts that made earlier pleadings defective or alleging new facts inconsistent with the allegations of the earlier pleading; when plaintiff pleads inconsistent facts without explaining inconsistency, court will read into amended complaint facts alleged in superseded complaint. Freeman v. San Diego Assn. of Realtors (1999) 77 Cal. App. 4th 171, 178 n.3, 91 Cal. Rptr. 2d 534

Because of judicial admission in plaintiff's first amended complaint plaintiff could not plead contradictory facts in third amended complaint to toll statute of limitations, and demurrer to third amended complaint sustained without leave to amend. Knoell v. Petrovich (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 164, 168-169, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 162

Sham pleading rule should not be applied in case where plaintiff seeks to change legal theory of recovery and legal conclusions he or she seeks to draw from underlying factual events, and also seeks to omit factual allegations that are irrelevant and immaterial to new legal theories asserted; third amended complaint alleged different legal theories based on same set of general facts as set out in superseded pleadings and prior omitted allegations, even if true and even if read into third amended complaint, were immaterial to the legal theories set out in third amended complaint and thus prior allegations did not undermine or destroy causes of action in that complaint; under such circumstances, sham pleading rule inapplicable and no need for plaintiff to explain reasons for amended pleading because there were no inconsistencies in underlying material or relevant factual allegations. Berman v. Bromberg (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 936, 946-949, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 777

Material factual allegations in verified pleading that are omitted in subsequent amended pleading without adequate explanation are considered by court in ruling on demurrer to later pleading. Shoemaker v. Myers (1990) 52 Cal. 3d 1, 12, 276 Cal. Rptr. 303, 801 P.2d 1054

If verified complaint contains allegations destructive of cause of action, defect is not curable in subsequently filed pleadings by simply omitting such allegations without explanation; original defect infects subsequent pleading so as to render it vulnerable to demurrer; party may correct pleading by omitting allegation that apparently was made as result of mistake or inadvertence. Reichert v. General Ins. Co. (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 822, 836, 69 Cal. Rptr. 321, 442 P.2d 377

Even if plaintiff were given leave to amend, plaintiff would not be allowed to amend complaint to state a fact directly contradictory to one previously stated. Continental Ins. Co. v. Lexington Ins. Co. (1997) 55 Cal. App. 4th 637, 646, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d 116

Plaintiff is not allowed to avoid demurrer by discarding factual allegations of its prior complaint or by avoiding factual allegations by contradictory averments in superseding amended pleading. California Dental Assn. v. California Dental Hygienists' Assn. (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 49, 53 n.1, 271 Cal. Rptr. 410

In considering demurrer, court of appeal is not to consider sufficiency of superseded complaint unless it appears that allegations in prior complaint that were destructive of cause of action were omitted in subsequent complaint without valid explanation. Amarel v. Connell (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 137, 144, 248 Cal. Rptr. 276

Rule that all allegations of fact in verified complaint that are subsequently omitted or contradicted in amended complaint are still binding on plaintiff is valid and useful to defeat abuses of privilege to amend and to discourage sham and untruthful pleadings, but is not intended to prevent honest plaintiffs from correcting erroneous allegations of generic terms or to prevent correction of ambiguous statements of fact. Contreras v. Blue Cross of California (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 945, 950, 245 Cal. Rptr. 258

When party files amended complaint and seeks to avoid defects of prior complaint, either by omitting facts that rendered complaint defective or by pleading facts inconsistent with allegations of prior pleading, policy against sham pleading permits appellate court to take judicial notice of prior pleading and requires pleader to explain inconsistency; on failure of party to do so, appellate court may disregard inconsistent allegations and read into amended complaint allegations of superseded complaint. Owens v. Kings Supermarket (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 379, 384, 243 Cal. Rptr. 627 ; see also Baltins v. James (1995) 36 Cal. App. 4th 1193, 1205, 42 Cal. Rptr. 2d 896 (disapproved on other grounds in Jordache Enterprises, Inc. v. Brobeck, Phleger & Harrison (1998) 18 Cal. 4th 739, 761, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 749, 958 P.2d 1026)

[f] Consideration of Other Pleadings

Allegations of answer filed contemporaneously with demurrer do not cure defects in complaint. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co. v. Rolph (1920) 184 Cal. 557, 564, 194 P. 1005

Matters alleged in complaint are not considered in ruling on demurrer to cross complaint. Fresno Canal & Irr. Co. v. Perrin (1915) 170 Cal. 411, 414, 149 P. 805

[g] Matters Admitted by Demurrer

For purpose of ruling on demurrer, court assumes truth of all well-pleaded allegations of complaint. StorMedia Inc. v. Superior Court (1999) 20 Cal. 4th 449, 453 n.3, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 843, 976 P.2d 214

Only task of appellate court in ruling on demurrer is to determine whether complaint states cause of action; accordingly, appellate court assumes that complaint's properly pleaded material allegations are true and gives complaint reasonable interpretation by reading it as a whole and all its parts in context; appellate court, however, does not assume truth of contentions, deductions, or conclusions of fact or law. People ex rel. Lungren v. Superior Court (1996) 14 Cal. 4th 294, 300-301, 58 Cal. Rptr. 2d 855, 926 P.2d 1042

Demurrer as admitting all material facts properly pleaded, but not contentions, deductions, or conclusions of fact or law. Serrano v. Priest (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 584, 591, 96 Cal. Rptr. 601, 487 P.2d 1241 ; William S. Hart Union High School Dist. v. Regional Planning Com. (1991) 226 Cal. App. 3d 1612, 1616 n.2, 277 Cal. Rptr. 645

Demurrer as not admitting truth of impermissible conclusions of law alleged in pleading attacked. Faulkner v. California Toll Bridge Auth. (1953) 40 Cal. 2d 317, 329, 253 P.2d 659 (allegations that acts were arbitrary, capricious, fraudulent, wrongful, and unlawful); see also Callahan v. Broderick (1899) 124 Cal. 80, 82-84, 56 P. 782 ; Beresford Neighborhood Assn. v. City of San Mateo (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 1180, 1190, 255 Cal. Rptr. 434 (demurrer does not admit conclusions of law)

All material facts pleaded in complaint and all those that arise by reasonable implication are deemed admitted by demurring party. Rodas v. Spiegel (2001) 87 Cal. App. 4th 513, 517, 104 Cal. Rptr. 2d 439 ; Wilner v. Sunset Life Ins. Co. (2000) 78 Cal. App. 4th 952, 958, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 413

When reviewing order sustaining demurrer without leave to amend, appellate court must treat demurrer as admitting all properly pleaded facts, but not contentions, deductions or conclusions of law. Dunkin v. Boskey (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 171, 180, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 44

On appeal from judgment dismissing action after sustaining demurrer without leave to amend, reviewing court treats demurrer as admitting all material facts properly pleaded but court does not assume truth of contentions, deductions or conclusions of law. Shvarts v. Budget Group, Inc. (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 1153, 1157, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 722

In determining whether complaint alleges facts sufficient to state cause of action, appellate court treats demurrer as admitting all material facts properly pleaded, but not contentions, deductions or conclusions of law. Freis v. Soboroff (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 1102, 1104, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 429

In reviewing judgment of dismissal after demurrer sustained without leave to amend, appellate court must assume truth of all facts properly pleaded by plaintiff; appellate court, however, does not assume truth of contentions, deductions or conclusions of fact or law and may disregard allegations that are contrary to law or fact of which judicial notice may be taken. Duggal v. G.E. Capital Communications Services, Inc. (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 81, 86, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 383

In reviewing sufficiency of complaint against general demurrer, appellate court treats demurrer as admitting all material facts properly pleaded, but not contentions, deductions, or conclusions of fact or law. Rakestraw v. California Physicians' Service (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 39, 43, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 354

For purposes of assessing sufficiency of demurrer, appellate court assumes truth of all well-pleaded facts; appellate court accepts as true all facts that may be implied or inferred from those alleged. Thaler v. Household Finance Corp. (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 1093, 1098, 95 Cal. Rptr. 2d 779

Appellate court deems to be true all material facts properly pled and must also accept as true those facts that may be implied or inferred from those expressly alleged. Mack v. Soung (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 966, 971, 95 Cal. Rptr. 2d 830

For purposes of ruling on demurrer, court assumes truth of all well-pleaded allegations of complaint; ability of plaintiff to prove them is not in issue; instead facts alleged must be treated as having been admitted; appellate court deems to be true all material facts properly pled. Roskind v. Morgan, Stanley Dean Witter & Co. (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 345, 349, 95 Cal. Rptr. 2d 258

For purposes of ruling on demurrer allegations of complaint must be treated as having been admitted; while, however, demurrer admits all material and issuable facts properly pleaded, it does not admit contentions, deductions or conclusions of fact or law alleged therein. Schnall v. Hertz Corp. (2000) 78 Cal. App. 4th 1144, 1151-1152, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 439

In reviewing complaint de novo to determine if it contains sufficient facts to state cause of action, appellate court accepts as true complaint's properly pleaded material factual allegations, together with facts that may be properly judicially noticed. G. L. Mezzetta, Inc. v. City of American Canyon (2000) 78 Cal. App. 4th 1087, 1091, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 292

Appellate court treats demurrer as admitting all material facts when properly pleaded; court, however, will not assume truth of contentions, deductions, or conclusions of fact or law and court may disregard any allegations that are contrary to law or to fact of which judicial notice may be taken. Crystaplex Plastics, Ltd. v. Redevelopment Agency (2000) 77 Cal. App. 4th 990, 993, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 197

Reviewing court treats demurrer as admitting all material facts properly pleaded; court does not, however, assume truth of contentions, deductions or conclusions of law. Walker v. Allstate Indemnity Co. (2000) 77 Cal. App. 4th 750, 754, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 132

For purpose of reviewing judgment of dismissal following sustaining of demurrer, appellate court accepts as true properly pleaded material factual allegations of the complaint, together with facts that may be judicially noticed. Sacramento Brewing Co. v. Desmond, Miller & Desmond (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 1082, 1084, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 760

Demurrer admits all material facts properly pleaded. Charpentier v. Los Angeles Rams Football Co. (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 301, 306, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 115

In reviewing sufficiency of complaint against general demurrer, court treats demurrer as admitting all material facts properly pleaded, but not contentions, deductions, or conclusions of fact or law. Boyle v. City of Redondo Beach (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 1109, 1114 n.2, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 164

Demurrer treated as admitting all material facts properly pleaded, but not contentions, deductions, or conclusions of fact or law. CrossTalk Productions, Inc. v. Jacobson (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 631, 635, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 615

In determining merits of demurrer, all material facts pleaded in the complaint and those that arise by reasonable implication, but not conclusions of fact or law, are deemed admitted by the demurring party. Orange Unified School Dist. v. Rancho Santiago Community College Dist. (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 750, 757, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 778

For purposes of testing questions of law raised, demurrer admits all material and issuable facts properly pleaded. Fiorito v. Superior Court (1990) 226 Cal. App. 3d 433, 437, 277 Cal. Rptr. 27

Demurrer admits all material and issuable facts properly pleaded, but as not admitting contentions, deductions, or conclusions of fact or law alleged in pleading; thus, although allegations of complaint are deemed to be true in ruling on demurrer, allegation contrary to law or to fact of which court may take judicial notice is to be treated as nullity. Terminals Equipment Co. v. City and County of San Francisco (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 234, 241, 270 Cal. Rptr. 329

For purpose of testing question of law raised, demurrer admits all material and issuable facts that are properly pleaded, however improbable they may be. Byrne v. Harvey (1962) 211 Cal. App. 2d 92, 103, 27 Cal. Rptr. 110

[h] Notice of Court's Ruling

Service of file-stamped copy of formal order sustaining demurrer with leave to amend constitutes lawful service of notice of order pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 472b. Parris v. Cave (1985) 174 Cal. App. 3d 292, 293, 219 Cal. Rptr. 871

[13] Subsequent Demurrers

In action by largest creditor of failed company against individual members of company's board of directors resulting from assignment for benefit of creditors, which plaintiff alleged breached fiduciary duty, because of prior rulings on demurrers to plaintiff's superseded pleadings, trial court did not lack jurisdiction to consider whether third amended complaint alleged viable cause of action for breach of fiduciary duty, where there was only one cause of action and prior demurrers to that cause of action were sustained; where plaintiff filed third amended complaint in response to order sustaining prior demurrers with leave to amend, so that amended cause of action was treated as new pleading and defendants were free to respond to it by demurrer on any ground; and where, even if trial court had been constrained by its prior rulings in its consideration of grounds raised on demurrers to third amended complaint, on review of the judgment, appellate court was not so constrained and was free to render opinion based on correct rule of law. Berg & Berg Enterprises, LLC v. Boyle (2009) 178 Cal. App. 4th 1020, 1035-1036, 100 Cal. Rptr. 3d 875

[1] Amended Complaint

Trial court abused discretion in granting defendants' motion for judgment on pleadings and in denying plaintiffs' motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(a) to amend complaint to name bankruptcy trustee as party plaintiff; regarding motion to amend, although substitution would occur after state statute of limitations expired, amendment related back to original complaint and doctrine of judicial estoppel did not apply. Haley v. Dow Lewis Motors, Inc. (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 497, 507-511, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 352

Leave to amend complaint as proper when circumstances surrounding motion for judgment on pleadings show that plaintiff's complaint excusably confused similar names of seller and manufacturer of automobile. Prince v. Jensen Motors, Inc. (1983) 139 Cal. App. 3d 653, 655-656, 188 Cal. Rptr. 911

Granting of motion for judgment on pleadings without leave to amend as not abuse of discretion when, even if leave granted, complaint cannot be made to state cause of action by amendment. IMO Development Corp. v. Dow Corning Corp. (1982) 135 Cal. App. 3d 451, 461, 185 Cal. Rptr. 341

[2] Appeal

[a] In General

A motion for judgment on the pleadings, like a demurrer, raises only questions of law. Therefore, the appellate court can consider new theories on appeal to challenge or justify the trial court's ruling. Burnett v. Chimney Sweep (2004) 123 Cal. App. 4th 1057, 1065, 20 Cal. Rptr. 3d 562

Review of judgment on pleadings requires appellate court to determine, de novo and as matter of law, whether complaint states cause of action; for purposes of review, appellate court accepts as true all material facts alleged in complaint; denial of leave to amend after granting judgment on pleadings is reviewed for abuse of discretion; court gives complaint reasonable interpretation by reading it as whole and all its parts in their context. Ludgate Ins. Co. v. Lockheed Martin Corp. (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 592, 602, 609, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 277

Motion for judgment on pleadings is equivalent to demurrer and is governed by same standard of review; all material facts that are properly pleaded are deemed true, but not contentions, deductions, or conclusions of fact or law; if leave to amend was not granted, appellate court determines whether complaint states cause of action and whether defect can reasonably by cured by amendment; if pleading defect can be cured, trial court committed reversible error; if not, appellate court affirms; plaintiff bears burden of proof on this issue; finally, judgment will be affirmed if it is proper on any grounds raised in motion even if court did not rely on those grounds. Pang v. Beverly Hospital, Inc. (2000) 79 Cal. App. 4th 986, 989, 94 Cal. Rptr. 2d 643

On appeal from granting of a motion for judgment on the pleadings, standard of review is same as for judgment of dismissal following sustaining of general demurrer; thus, appellate court applies de novo standard of review, exercising its independent judgment in determining whether pleadings, together with matters that may be judicially noticed, entitle defendants to judgment. Pardee Construction Co. v. Insurance Co. of the West (2000) 77 Cal. App. 4th 1340, 1361 n.25, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 443

On appeal, appellate court reviews trial court's decision to grant or deny motion for judgment on pleadings under same standard of review as decision to sustain or overrule demurrer; standard of review de novo, i.e., appellate court exercises independent judgment about whether, assuming truth of pleadings, complaint states cause of action. McCutchen v. City of Montclair (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 1138, 1144, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 95

Appellate court reviews order granting judgment on pleadings independently. Howard Jarvis Taxpayers Assn. v. City of Riverside (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 679, 685, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 592

Judgment on pleadings equates to judgment entered after sustaining of demurrer, and standard of review is identical; thus, when motion for judgment on pleadings granted, appellate court determines whether complaint states facts sufficient to constitute cause of action; appellate court is confined to facts alleged in pleadings attacked. Hu v. Silgan Containers Corp. (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 1261, 1265, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 333

Standard of appellate review of judgment on the pleadings is identical to that of review of judgment following sustaining of demurrer; in either case, leave to amend should be granted if there is any reasonable possibility that plaintiff can state good cause of action; when demurrer is sustained or motion for judgment on the pleadings is granted as to original complaint, denial of leave to amend constitutes abuse of discretion if pleading does not show on its face that it is incapable of amendment. Consolidated Fire Protection Dist. v. Howard Jarvis Taxpayers' Assn. (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 211, 219, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 586

Defendant may move for judgment on the pleadings on same basis as general demurrer; standard of appellate review corresponds to that applied to judgment following sustaining of demurrer. Ruttenberg v. Ruttenberg (1997) 53 Cal. App. 4th 801, 804, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 78

Standards that govern judgment after successful demurrer also govern judgment on the pleadings. Williams v. Wells & Bennett Realtors (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 857, 861, 61 Cal. Rptr. 2d 34

Court review of judgment on the pleadings is guided by same rules governing review of sustaining of general demurrer. Fiol v. Doellstedt (1996) 50 Cal. App. 4th 1318, 1323, 58 Cal. Rptr. 2d 308

Because judgment on pleadings is equivalent to judgment entered after sustaining of demurrer, standard of appellate review as same. Orange Unified School Dist. v. Rancho Santiago Community College Dist. (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th

750, 764, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 778 ; Setliff v. E.I. Du Pont De Nemours & Co. (1995) 32 Cal. App. 4th 1525, 1534, 1536-1537, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 763 ; Gami v. Mullikin Medical Center (1993) 18 Cal. App. 4th 870, 876, 22 Cal. Rptr. 2d 819 ; Briggs v. Lawrence (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 605, 610, 281 Cal. Rptr. 578 ; Heredia v. Farmers Ins. Exchange (1991) 228 Cal. App. 3d 1345, 1358-1359, 279 Cal. Rptr. 511 ; Rodriguez v. Superior Court (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 1371, 1374, 271 Cal. Rptr. 114 ; Tokeshi v. State of California (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 999, 1002, 266 Cal. Rptr. 255

Review on appeal from order granting motion for judgment on pleadings as same as if general demurrer had been sustained, since motion has purpose and effect of general demurrer. Yanase v. Automobile Club of So. Cal. (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 468, 470, 260 Cal. Rptr. 513

On appeal from judgment on pleadings, case as reviewed in same way as judgment of dismissal entered following sustaining of general demurrer. Lumbermens Mut. Cas. Co. v. Vaughn (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 171, 178, 244 Cal. Rptr. 567

[b] Considerations on Appeal

In reviewing order granting motion for judgment on pleadings, reviewing court as accepting as true all material allegations of complaint. Kimmel v. Goland (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 202, 205, 271 Cal. Rptr. 191, 793 P.2d 524 ; Vehicular Residents Assn. v. Agnos (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 996, 998, 272 Cal. Rptr. 216 ; Yanase v. Automobile Club of So. Cal. (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 468, 470, 260 Cal. Rptr. 513

Task of appellate court is to determine whether complaint states cause of action; all facts alleged in complaint are deemed admitted, and appellate court gives complaint reasonable interpretation by reading it as whole and all its parts in their context; court is not concerned with plaintiff's possible inability to prove claims made in complaint, the allegations of which are accepted as true and liberally construed with view toward attaining substantial justice. Ludgate Ins. Co. v. Lockheed Martin Corp. (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 592, 602, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 277

On appeal from judgment on pleadings, appellate court accepts as true all well pleaded allegations in complaint and matters properly subject to judicial notice; motion should only be granted when complaint fails to state cause of action; because purpose of motion for judgment on pleadings is to test sufficiency of pleadings, court does not consider factual information outside complaint and judicially noticed matters; declarations that were part of summary judgment motion could not be used to attack judgment on pleadings. Hong Soo Shin v. Oyoung Kong (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 498, 502-503, 505, 95 Cal. Rptr. 304

In addition to facts pleaded, appellate court may consider matters that may be judicially noticed, including party's admissions or concessions which can not reasonably be controverted. Pang v. Beverly Hospital, Inc. (2000) 79 Cal. App. 4th 986, 989-990, 94 Cal. Rptr. 2d 643

In considering whether defendant is entitled to judgment on pleadings, appellate court looks to face of pleading under attack; all facts alleged in complaint are admitted for purposes of motion and court determines if those facts constitute cause of action; court also may consider matters subject to judicial notice. Howard Jarvis Taxpayers Assn v. City of Riverside (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 679, 685, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 592

Appellate court determines whether complaint states cause of action; all facts alleged in complaint are deemed admitted and appellate court gives complaint reasonable interpretation by reading it as whole and all parts in their context; appellate court not concerned with a plaintiff's possible inability to prove the claims made in complaint, the allegations of which are accepted as true and liberally construed with view toward attaining substantial justice. Inter-Modal Rail Employees Assn. v. Burlington Northern & Santa Fe Ry. Co. (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 918, 924, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 60

Defendant is entitled to judgment on pleadings if plaintiff's complaint does not state facts sufficient to constitute cause of action; in considering whether defendant entitled to judgment on pleadings, appellate court looks only to face of pleading under attack; all facts alleged in complaint are admitted for purpose of motion and court determines if those facts constitute cause of action; court also may consider matters subject to judicial notice. Howard Jarvis Taxpayers Assn. v. City of Riverside (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 679, 684-685, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 592

Appellate court decides propriety of judgment on pleadings by examining pleadings and judicially noticed matters to see if facts are sufficient to state cause of action. Saks v. Parilla, Hubard & Militzok (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 565, 567, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 120

Because appeal emanated from granting motion for judgment on the pleadings, appellate court assumes truth of material factual allegations of complaint; although normally appellant may not assert on appeal a legal theory not asserted below, this principal does not apply when case resolved at pleading stage without leave to amend being granted; in that situation, appellate court must consider whether plaintiff's allegations state cause of action under any legal theory, whether or not asserted in trial court. Barthelemy v. Orange County Flood Control Dist. (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 558, 561, 566, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 575

In reviewing judgment on the pleadings, appellate court determines whether complaint states cause of action and whether defect can be reasonably cured by amendment; if so, trial court committed reversible error; otherwise, appellate court affirms; appellate court treats pleadings as admitting all material facts properly pleaded, but not contentions, deductions or conclusions of law; appellate court independently construes statutes as matter of law; if there is no liability as a matter of law, leave to amend should not be granted. Schonfeldt v. State of California (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 1462, 1465, 72 Cal. Rptr. 2d 464

In determining whether pleadings, together with matters that may be judicially noticed, entitle party to judgment, reviewing court can itself conduct appropriate analysis and need not defer to trial court. Schabarum v. California Legislature (1998) 60 Cal. App. 4th 1205, 1216, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 745

Defendant may move for judgment on the pleadings on same basis as general demurrer; standard of appellate review corresponds to that applied to judgment following sustaining of demurrer; thus, motion confined to face of pleading under attack; court's task in reviewing judgment of dismissal following sustaining of such a demurrer is to determine if complaint states, or can be amended to state, cause of action; for that purpose, court accepts as true properly pleaded material factual allegations of complaint, together with facts that may be judicially noticed. Ruttenberg v. Ruttenberg (1997) 53 Cal. App. 4th 801, 804, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 78

On appeal from a judgment on the pleadings, appellate court assumes truth of complaint's allegations. Williams v. Wells & Bennett Realtors (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 857, 861, 61 Cal. Rptr. 2d 34

In reviewing order granting motion for judgment on the pleadings, court may consider judicial admissions contained in plaintiff's pleadings and apparently admissions contained in plaintiff's opposition papers to negate plaintiff's ability to state cause of action. See Setliff v. E.I. Du Pont De Nemours & Co. (1995) 32 Cal. App. 4th 1525, 1534, 1536-1537, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 763

In reviewing dismissal following judgment on pleadings, facts as alleged as taken as true and judgment as looked on in light most favorable to party opposing motion. Settimo Associates v. Environ Systems, Inc. (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 842, 845 n.3, 17 Cal. Rptr. 2d 757

In reviewing order granting defendant's motion for judgment on pleadings and dismissing action, appellate court as accepting as true facts alleged in complaint and as considering face of complaint to determine whether facts alleged entitle plaintiff to any relief. MacDonald v. State of California (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 319, 326, 281 Cal. Rptr. 317

If defendant's motion for judgment on pleadings is granted, appellate court as determining whether complaint states facts sufficient to constitute cause of action. Heredia v. Farmers Ins. Exchange (1991) 228 Cal. App. 3d 1345, 1358-1359, 279 Cal. Rptr. 511

On review of judgment on pleadings, appellate court as looking only to face of pleading under attack; complaint as not subject to attack by reference to matters set forth in answer; all facts alleged in complaint as admitted for purposes of motion and court as also permitted to consider matters subject to judicial notice. Rodriguez v. Superior Court (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 1371, 1374, 271 Cal. Rptr. 114

In reviewing order granting motion for judgment on pleadings, appellate court as accepting as true all material allegations in plaintiff's complaint; underlying merit of allegations as ultimately subject to proof by competent and convincing evidence. Quesada v. Oak Hill Improvement Co. (1989) 213 Cal. App. 3d 596, 601, 261 Cal. Rptr. 769

On appeal from judgment on pleadings, appellate court as required to accept allegations of parties opposing judgment as true and to determine whether their allegations state, or can be amended to state, cause of action. GEM Developers v. Hallcraft Homes of San Diego, Inc. (1989) 213 Cal. App. 3d 419, 423, 261 Cal. Rptr. 626

Although it is reviewing court's duty in most cases to indulge in every reasonable presumption in favor of sustaining trial court, substantially opposite as true when plaintiff appeals from judgment on pleadings. Lumbermens Mut. Cas. Co. v. Vaughn (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 171, 178-179, 244 Cal. Rptr. 567

[3] Concurrent Motions

Motion for judgment on pleadings as made concurrently with other motions. Dragna v. White (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 469, 470, 289 P.2d 428 ; Allen v. California Mut. B. & L. Assn. (1940) 40 Cal. App. 2d 374, 377, 104 P.2d 851 (objection to taking of testimony)

[4] Demurrer Compared

Because motion for judgment on pleadings performs same function as general demurrer, truth of facts alleged in complaint as required to be accepted in review of ruling on motion. Nunn v. State of California (1984) 35 Cal. 3d 616, 620-621, 200 Cal. Rptr. 440, 677 P.2d 846

Motion for judgment pleadings is analogous to general demurrer. Ludgate Ins. Co. v. Lockheed Martin Corp. (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 592, 602, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 277

Motion for judgment on pleadings equivalent to demurrer and is governed by same standard of review. Pang v. Beverly Hospital, Inc. (2000) 79 Cal. App. 4th 986, 989, 94 Cal. Rptr. 2d 643

Motion for judgment on the pleadings is tantamount to a general demurrer. Pardee Construction Co. v. Insurance Co. of the West (2000) 77 Cal. App. 4th 1340, 1361 n.25, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 443 ; Orange Unified School Dist. v. Rancho Santiago Community College Dist. (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 750, 764, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 778

On appeal, appellate court reviews trial court's decision to grant or deny motion for judgment on pleadings under same standard of review as decision to sustain or overrule demurrer; standard of review de novo, i.e., appellate court exercises independent judgment about whether, assuming truth of pleadings, complaint states cause of action. McCutchen v. City of Montclair (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 1138, 1144, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 95

Motion for judgment on pleading is analogous to general demurrer; task of appellate court is to determine whether complaint states a cause of action; appellate court determines whether complaint states cause of action; all facts alleged in complaint are deemed admitted and appellate court gives complaint reasonable interpretation by reading it as whole and all parts in their context; appellate court not concerned with a plaintiff's possible inability to prove the claims made in complaint, the allegations of which are accepted as true and liberally construed with view toward attaining substantial justice. Inter-Modal Rail Employees Assn. v. Burlington Northern & Santa Fe Ry. Co. (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 918, 924, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 60

Motion for judgment on pleadings and general demurrer perform same functions and thus motion for judgment on pleadings attacks only defects appearing from face of pleadings, or by matters that can be judicially noticed; therefore, presentation of extrinsic evidence not proper on motion for judgment on pleadings; same standards regarding leave to amend apply to general demurrer and motion for judgment on pleadings; if pleading defective, but amendable, judgment on pleadings should be granted, but with leave to amend. Cloud v. Northrop Grumman Corp. (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 995, 999, 1006, 1011, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 544

Both demurrer and motion for judgment on pleadings accept as true all material factual allegations of challenged pleading, unless contrary to law or facts of which court may take judicial notice; sole issue is whether complaint, as it stands, states cause of action as matter of law. Mechanical Contractors Assn. v. Greater Bay Area Assn. (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 672, 677, 78 Cal. Rptr. 2d 225

Motion for judgment on the pleadings performs function of general demurrer, admitting truth of all material facts pleaded; in addition to facts alleged in complaint, court may consider matters which may be judicially noticed, including court records; standard of appellate review of judgment on the pleadings is identical to that of review of judgment following sustaining of demurrer. Consolidated Fire Protection Dist. v. Howard Jarvis Taxpayers' Assn. (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 211, 219, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 586

Standard for granting motion for judgment on the pleadings is essentially same as that applicable to general demurrer, that is, under state of pleadings, together with matters that may be judicially noticed, it appears that a party is entitled to judgment as a matter of law. Schabarum v. California Legislature (1998) 60 Cal. App. 4th 1205, 1216, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 745

Defendant may move for judgment on the pleadings on same basis as a general demurrer; standard of appellate review corresponds to that applied to judgment following sustaining of demurrer; thus, motion confined to face of pleading under attack; court's task in reviewing judgment of dismissal following sustaining of such a demurrer is to determine if complaint states, or can be amended to state, cause of action; for that purpose, court accepts as true properly pleaded material factual allegations of complaint, together with facts that may be judicially noticed. Ruttenberg v. Ruttenberg (1997) 53 Cal. App. 4th 801, 804, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 78

Motion for judgment on the pleadings may be made on ground that pleading at issue fails to state facts sufficient to constitute legally cognizable claim or defense; appellate review is guided by same rules governing review of sustaining of general demurrer. Fiol v. Doellstedt (1996) 50 Cal. App. 4th 1318, 1323, 58 Cal. Rptr. 2d 308

Motion for judgment on pleadings as well-established procedure for testing sufficiency of pleading, having purpose and effect of general demurrer. Kortmeyer v. California Ins. Guarantee Assn. (1992) 9 Cal. App. 4th 1285, 1293, 12 Cal. Rptr. 2d 71

Motion for judgment on pleadings as equivalent of general demurrer made after pleadings are in. Columbia Casualty Co. v. Northwestern Nat. Ins. Co. (1991) 231 Cal. App. 3d 457, 463, 282 Cal. Rptr. 389

Demurrer and motion for judgment on pleadings as functionally equivalent; each as testing allegations of complaint, supplemented by any relevant matter of which trial court can take judicial notice, to determine whether plaintiff has stated any legally cognizable claim for relief against defendant. Briggs v. Lawrence (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 605, 610, 281 Cal. Rptr. 578

Motion by defendant for judgment on pleadings as operating as general demurrer to complaint; motion as available when complaint shows on its face that action is barred by statute of limitations. Hunt v. County of Shasta (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 432, 440 n.5, 275 Cal. Rptr. 113

Like demurrer, motion for judgment on pleadings as confined to face of pleading under attack, which means two things: (1) if pleading, though uncertain or otherwise defective in form, sufficiently states cause of action or defense, motion cannot be granted on basis of showing of extrinsic matters by inference from attached exhibits, by affidavits, or otherwise; (2) sufficient complaint cannot be thus attacked by reference to matters set forth in answer; however, various outside matters may be looked to under doctrine of judicial notice; finally, since motion performs function of general demurrer, it admits as true material facts pleaded. Tokeshi v. State of California (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 999, 1002, 266 Cal. Rptr. 255

Motion for judgment on pleadings as made on same grounds and decided on same basis as general demurrer; judgment on pleadings for defendant as granted if complaint on its face fails to state cause of action. Pierson v. Sharp Memorial Hospital, Inc. (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 340, 342, 264 Cal. Rptr. 673 ; Quesada v. Oak Hill Improvement Co. (1989) 213 Cal. App. 3d 596, 600-601, 261 Cal. Rptr. 769

Motion for judgment on pleadings by defendant as equivalent of general demurrer and, on appeal from judgment, appellate court as assuming truth of all facts properly pleaded in complaint; motion for judgment on pleadings by plaintiff as equivalent of demurrer to answer, and appellate court as assuming truth of all facts properly pleaded in answer and disregarding controverted allegations of complaint; both standards of review as applying to judgment on pleadings for plaintiff on both complaint and cross complaint, in that appellate court must assume truth of all facts properly pleaded in cross complaint and in answer to complaint and must disregard controverted allegations of complaint. Sebago, Inc. v. City of Alameda (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 1372, 1379-1380, 259 Cal. Rptr. 918

When motion for judgment on pleadings has purpose and effect of general demurrer, facts alleged in pleading attacked as required to be accepted as true. Lumbermens Mut. Cas. Co. v. Vaughn (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 171, 178, 244 Cal. Rptr. 567

Motion for judgment on pleadings performs function of general demurrer, admitting all material and issuable facts pleaded; court as permitted to consider matters that may be judicially noticed in addition to facts alleged; review of judgment on pleadings as identical to that on judgment following sustaining of general demurrer. Barker v. Hull (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 221, 224, 236 Cal. Rptr. 285

Motion for judgment on pleadings operates like general demurrer with review restricted to facts alleged in complaint, and judgment as to be upheld only when complaint fails to state cause of action. Barney v. Aetna Casualty & Surety Co. (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 966, 974, 230 Cal. Rptr. 215 ; Wolfrich Corp. v. United Services Automobile Assn. (1983) 149 Cal. App. 3d 1206, 1209, 197 Cal. Rptr. 446 (disapproved on other grounds in Doctors' Co. v. Superior Court (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 39, 49, 260 Cal. Rptr. 183, 775 P.2d 508)

Like demurrer, motion for judgment on pleadings as confined to face of pleading under attack, and properly pleaded operative facts as accepted as true. Lehto v. City of Oxnard (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 285, 287, 217 Cal. Rptr. 450

Motion for judgment on pleadings as analogous to plaintiff's demurrer to answer and as evaluated by same standards; denial of motion as proper when defendant's pleadings raise material issue or set up affirmative matter constituting defense. Allstate Ins. Co. v. Kim W. (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 326, 330-331, 206 Cal. Rptr. 609

Standard of review of judgment on pleadings as same as that used to review judgment following sustaining of demurrer; ultimate issue as being whether, disregarding formal defects curable by amendment, pleading party is entitled to any relief based on facts pleaded and judicially noticed. Kayfetz v. State of California (1984) 156 Cal. App. 3d 491, 496, 203 Cal. Rptr. 33

Motion for judgment on pleadings as, in effect, general demurrer; thus, defendant as able to move for judgment on pleadings on ground that complaint fails to state legally cognizable cause of action. IMO Development Corp. v. Dow Corning Corp. (1982) 135 Cal. App. 3d 451, 457, 185 Cal. Rptr. 341

Motion for judgment on pleadings as treated as demurrer on appeal. Galligan v. City of San Bruno (1982) 132 Cal. App. 3d 869, 876, 183 Cal. Rptr. 466

Motion for judgment on the pleadings as receiving same treatment from legal standpoint as general demurrer; facts alleged in complaint as assumed to be true and as liberally construed in favor of party against whom motion is made. Higgins v. Del Faro (1981) 123 Cal. App. 3d 558, 565, 176 Cal. Rptr. 704

[5] Evidence Considered

Because purpose of motion for judgment on pleadings is to test sufficiency of pleadings, court does not consider factual information outside complaint and judicially noticed matters; declarations that were part of summary judgment motion could not be used to attack judgment on pleadings. Hong Soo Shin v. Oyoung Kong (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 498, 502-503, 505, 95 Cal. Rptr. 304

When summary adjudication motion denied and trial court on own motion deemed matter motion for judgment on pleadings, appellate court judicially noticed declarations, excerpts from deposition testimony and separate statement of undisputed facts placed before trial court by summary adjudication motion which contained admissions and concessions fatal to plaintiff's claim. Pang v. Beverly Hospital, Inc. (2000) 79 Cal. App. 4th 986, 990, 94 Cal. Rptr. 2d 643

Statements made by city officials admitting that Proposition 218 could or would abrogate assessment (which was subject of suit) could not be considered by court as evidence, but could be considered to extent they showed that plaintiffs should have been given leave to amend. Howard Jarvis Taxpayers Assn v. City of Riverside (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 679, 688-689, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 592

Motion for judgment on pleadings attacks only defects disclosed appearing from face of pleadings, or by matters that can be judicially noticed; presentation of extrinsic evidence is not proper on motion for judgment on pleadings; thus, if factual issues could not be decided solely by reviewing complaint and matters that could be judicially noticed, issues could not be decided on motion for judgment on pleadings. Cloud v. Northrop Grumman Corp. (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 995, 999-1000, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 544

Trial court properly denied plaintiff's motion for judgment on pleading concerning plaintiff's complaint after defendant dismissed its cross complaint with prejudice; party who dismisses cross complaint with prejudice is not precluded from contesting allegations in plaintiff's complaint; that party, however, may not assert affirmative defenses in nature of new matter where those affirmative defenses concern same nucleus of operative facts as were alleged in dismissed action. Walsh v. West Valley Mission Community College Dist. (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 1532, 1545-1547, 78 Cal. Rptr. 2d 725

Judgment on the pleadings does not depend on resolution of questions of witness credibility or evidentiary conflicts; in fact, judgment on the pleading must be denied when there are material factual issues that require evidentiary resolution. Schabarum v. California Legislature (1998) 60 Cal. App. 4th 1205, 1216, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 745

Appellate court in reviewing granting of motion for judgment on the pleadings may consider judicial admissions contained in plaintiff's pleadings and apparently admissions contained in plaintiff's opposition papers to negate plaintiff's ability to state cause of action. See Setliff v. E.I. Du Pont De Nemours & Co. (1995) 32 Cal. App. 4th 1525, 1534, 1536-1537, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 763

Statements of undisputed facts submitted by parties, as to which they waived their rights to determination at trial, as properly considered in determination of motion for judgment on the pleadings. Ponderosa Homes, Inc. v. City of San Ramon (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 1761, 1768, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 26

Motion for judgment on pleadings as to cross complaint as tested by sufficiency of allegations included in cross complaint, amplified only by matter subject to judicial notice and concessions made by pleader; if written instruments incorporated in pleading are foundation of claim or defense, recitals of instruments as taking precedence over allegations in pleading itself unless incorporated instruments are susceptible to more than one interpretation; for judicial notice to support motion by negating express allegation of pleading, notice as required to be of something that cannot reasonably be controverted; judgment on pleadings granted in reliance on terminology of incorporated complex contract to negate express allegation of its meaning as highly suspect; motion as granted only if instrument incorporated by reference conclusively negates express allegation in pleading, and, except in extraordinary case, conclusive negation as unlikely because parol evidence may lead to interpretation of contract consistent with pleading's express allegation. Columbia Casualty Co. v. Northwestern Nat. Ins. Co. (1991) 231 Cal. App. 3d 457, 463, 468, 470, 282 Cal. Rptr. 389

Written instrument attached to pleading and properly incorporated by reference as properly considered in determination of motion for judgment on pleadings, although, ordinarily, motion is confined to face of challenged pleading. Lumbermens Mut. Cas. Co. v. Vaughn (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 171, 178, 244 Cal. Rptr. 567

[6] Grounds of Motion for Judgment on Pleadings

Ground of motion by defendant or cross defendant as being failure of complaint or cross complaint to state facts sufficient to constitute cause of action. Gill v. Curtis Publishing Co. (1952) 38 Cal. 2d 273, 275, 239 P.2d 630 ; Hibernia S. & L. Soc. v. Thornton (1897) 117 Cal. 481, 482, 49 P. 573 ; McCarthy v. Frost (1973) 33 Cal. App. 3d 872, 874, 109 Cal. Rptr. 470

Ground of motion by plaintiff as being that answer fails to state facts sufficient to constitute defense. MacIsaac v. Pozzo (1945) 26 Cal. 2d 809, 812-813, 161 P.2d 449 ; City of Los Angeles v. California Towel & Linen Supply Co. (1963) 217 Cal. App. 2d 410, 416, 31 Cal. Rptr. 832

Motion for judgment on pleadings by plaintiff on ground answer is evasive or sham. Gay v. Winter (1867) 34 Cal. 153, 161

A motion for judgment on the pleadings may be made on ground that pleading at issue fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a legally cognizable claim or defense. Fiol v. Doellstedt (1996) 50 Cal. App. 4th 1318, 1323, 58 Cal. Rptr. 2d 308

Motion for judgment on pleadings as proper if plaintiff failed to allege intent to hold defendant corporation liable for acts committed by predecessor corporation. Hughes v. Western MacArthur Co. (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 951, 957, 237 Cal. Rptr. 738

[7] Judgment on Court's Motion

Court's granting of judgment on pleadings during hearing on demurrer as proper, in light of fact that motions are substantially similar, same rules apply to each, and appeal is reviewed in same manner. Peters v. State of California (1987) 188 Cal. App. 3d 1421, 1424, 234 Cal. Rptr. 117

Court as having power to give judgment on pleadings on its own motion, although, if made without warning and without affording opportunity for argument or amendment, order may constitute serious abuse of discretion. Jayasinghe v. Lee (1993) 13 Cal. App. 4th Supp. 33, 36 , 17 Cal. Rptr. 2d 117

[8] Judicial Notice

In addition to facts pleaded, appellate court may consider matters that may be judicially noticed, including party's admissions or concessions which can not reasonably be controverted. Pang v. Beverly Hospital, Inc. (2000) 79 Cal. App. 4th 986, 989-990, 94 Cal. Rptr. 2d 643

In considering whether defendant entitled to judgment on pleadings, appellate court may consider matters subject to judicial notice. Howard Jarvis Taxpayers Assn. v. City of Riverside (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 679, 685, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 592

In deciding motion for judgment on pleadings, court as permitted to consider, in addition to facts pleaded, any matters subject to judicial notice. Sebago, Inc. v. City of Alameda (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 1372, 1380-1381, 259 Cal. Rptr. 918

[9] New Trial Motion

Motion for new trial after judgment on pleadings. Carney v. Simmonds (1957) 49 Cal. 2d 84, 91, 315 P.2d 305

[10] Res Judicata

Judgment on pleadings as res judicata. Takekawa v. Hole (1911) 17 Cal. App. 653, 656, 121 P. 296 ; see also Keidatz v. Albany (1952) 39 Cal. 2d 826, 828, 249 P.2d 264

[11] Review by Mandate

Because orders dealing with pleadings are largely discretionary and interlocutory in nature and are seldom appealable until final judgment in case, mandamus review as normally lying to control judicial discretion if that discretion has been abused. La Jolla Village Homeowners' Assn. v. Superior Court (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 1131, 1140, 261 Cal. Rptr. 146

In mandate proceeding reviewing trial court's order striking causes of action and granting motions for judgment on pleadings, without leave to amend, reviewing court as considering de novo whether trial court has made ruling that deprives party of opportunity to plead cause of action, which, if it did, is abuse of discretion. La Jolla Village Homeowners' Assn. v. Superior Court (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 1131, 1140, 261 Cal. Rptr. 146

[12] Ruling on Motion

Trial court has no discretion in granting or denying motion for judgment on pleadings; facts alleged being deemed true, only question for determination is one of law; on pure questions of law, trial courts have no choice; they must, without choice, apply law correctly. Ludgate Ins. Co. v. Lockheed Martin Corp. (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 592, 603, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 277

When ruling on a motion for judgment on the pleadings, court may consider only face of pleadings and matters that are a proper subject of judicial notice. Taylor v. Lockheed Martin Corp. (2000) 78 Cal. App. 4th 472, 479, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 873

In considering whether defendant entitled to judgment on pleadings, appellate court looks only to face of pleading under attack; all facts alleged in complaint are admitted for purpose of motion and court determines if those facts constitute cause of action; court also may consider matters subject to judicial notice. Howard Jarvis Taxpayers Assn. v. City of Riverside (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 679, 685, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 592

Both demurrer and motion for judgment on pleadings accept as true all material factual allegations of challenged pleading, unless contrary to law or facts of which court may take judicial notice; sole issue is whether complaint, as it stands, states cause of action as matter of law. Mechanical Contractors Assn. v. Greater Bay Area Assn. (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 672, 677, 78 Cal. Rptr. 2d 225

Motion for judgment on the pleadings performs function of general demurrer, admitting truth of all material facts pleaded; in addition to facts alleged in complaint, court may consider matters which may be judicially noticed, including court records. Consolidated Fire Protection Dist. v. Howard Jarvis Taxpaye rs' Assn. (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 211, 219, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 586

Standard for granting motion for judgment on the pleadings is essentially same as that applicable to general demurrer, that is, under state of pleadings, together with matters that may be judicially noticed, it appears that party is entitled to judgment as a matter of law; judgment on the pleadings does not depend on resolution of questions of witness credibility or evidentiary conflicts; in fact, judgment on the pleading must be denied if there are material factual issues that require evidentiary resolution. Schabarum v. California Legislature (1998) 60 Cal. App. 4th 1205, 1216, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 745

In ruling on motion for judgment on pleadings, allegations in pleading attacked as required to be accepted as true and liberally construed in pleader's favor; if addressed to pleading as a whole, motion as required to be denied if even one count is good; if addressed to separate counts, motion as permitted to be granted as to some counts and denied as to others. Heredia v. Farmers Ins. Exchange (1991) 228 Cal. App. 3d 1345, 1358, 279 Cal. Rptr. 511

In considering whether defendant is entitled to judgment on pleadings, court as looking only to face of pleading under attack and as not considering matters raised in answer; all facts alleged in complaint as admitted for purposes of motion, and court as determining whether those facts constitute cause of action; court as also permitted to consider matters subject to judicial notice. Hunt v. County of Shasta (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 432, 440, 275 Cal. Rptr. 113

Court as required to assume that facts alleged in complaint are true when ruling on motion for judgment on pleadings and to construe them liberally in favor of party against whom motion is made. Higgins v. Del Faro (1981) 123 Cal. App. 3d 558, 565, 176 Cal. Rptr. 704

[13] Summary Judgment Distinguished

Defendants' motion for summary judgment treated as motion for judgment on pleadings to test constitutionality under federal Constitution of state constitutional initiative measure relating to housing. Mulkey v. Reitman (1966) 64 Cal. 2d 529, 532, 50 Cal. Rptr. 881, 413 P.2d 825

When motion for summary judgment challenges sufficiency of the pleadings rather than evidence supporting allegations contained therein, it is tantamount to motion for judgment on the pleadings and may be treated as such by trial court; practical effect of this procedure is that in granting judgment on the pleadings, trial court may give plaintiff the opportunity to amend the complaint even when no motion to amend has been filed. Taylor v. Lockheed Martin Corp. (2000) 78 Cal. App. 4th 472, 479, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 873

Motion for judgment on pleadings and motion for summary judgment distinguished. Columbia Casualty Co. v. Northwestern Nat. Ins. Co. (1991) 231 Cal. App. 3d 457, 463, 467-470, 282 Cal. Rptr. 389

[14] Timeliness of Motion

Judgment on the pleadings as properly granted after denial of two prior motions and overruling of general demurrer if party made motion at first opportunity; judge as always free to reexamine sufficiency of pleading. Donohue v. State of California (1986) 178 Cal. App. 3d 795, 801, 224 Cal. Rptr. 57

A. Demurrers

17-206 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 206.100

§ 206.100 Demurring Party's Checklist

[1] Preliminary Determinations

1. If demurring party is a defendant who has not yet appeared in the action, consider that general demurrer constitutes general appearance; thus, after filing demurrer defendant may no longer make a special appearance to contest lack of personal jurisdiction.

2. Determine whether the opposing party's pleading is timely.

a. A complaint or cross complaint is subject to general demurrer if the lapse of the applicable statute of limitations appears from the pleading or from judicially noticed matters.

b. An untimely answer (not filed within 30 days after service of the summons or of the cross complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.40(a), 432.10] or within any stipulated or court-ordered extension [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1054, 1054.1; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.20]) may be subject to a motion to strike.

3. Determine whether one or more of the statutory grounds for objection to the opposing party's pleading may be established, either from the face of the opposing party's pleading, or from that pleading and matters subject to judicial notice [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10, 430.20].

a. Grounds for objection to complaint or cross complaint [see Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10]:

☐ The court lacks subject matter jurisdiction over the cause of action alleged in the pleading.

☐ The opposing party lacks legal capacity to sue.

☐ Another action is pending between the same parties on the same cause of action.

☐ There is a defect or misjoinder of the parties.

☐ The pleading does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action. Included are situations in which the allegations or judicially noticed matters disclose an affirmative defense that disposes of the cause of action.

☐ The pleading is uncertain, ambiguous, or unintelligible.

☐ In an action founded on a contract, it cannot be ascertained from the pleading whether the contract is written, oral, or implied by conduct.

☐ In an action for professional negligence against an architect, professional engineer, or land surveyor, a certificate of merit has not been filed as required under Code Civ. Proc. § 411.35.

b. Grounds for objection to answer [see Code Civ. Proc. § 430.20]:

☐ The answer does not state facts sufficient to constitute a defense.

☐ The answer is uncertain, ambiguous, or unintelligible.

☐ The answer pleads a contract, but it cannot be ascertained from the answer whether the contract is written or oral.

4. Consider whether a demurrer is the most appropriate method for raising the objection or objections against the opposing party's pleading.

a. Special demurrers (that is, demurrers on grounds other than the failure to state a cause of action or defense) are generally not allowed in limited civil cases [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 91(a),(d), 92(c)].

b. The objection may be raised by answer if it is not disclosed on the face of the pleading or from judicially noticed matters [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30].

c. An objection for failure to file the certificate required under Code Civ. Proc. § 411.35 may generally be raised by motion to strike as well as demurrer.

5. Consider any strategic reasons for demurrer.

a. Certain statutory objections are waived if not timely raised by demurrer or answer [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.80].

b. Depending on the circumstances, it may be strategically advantageous or disadvantageous to demur

(for example, the demurrer may narrow the issues on which the opposing party may proceed or, conversely, may aid the opposing party in focusing on his or her stronger issues).

c. In some situations, for example, when it likely that the opposing party's defect can be cured by amendment, it may be less expensive and more expedient to approach opposing counsel about stipulating to a voluntary amendment of the pleading.

6. Consider whether it is appropriate to file an answer or motion to strike concurrently with demurrer.

7. Make sure the demurrer is made within applicable time requirements.

a. A demurrer to a complaint or cross complaint must be filed within 30 days after service of the summons or of the cross complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.40(a), 432.10].

b. A demurrer to an answer must be filed within 10 days after service of the answer [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.40(b)].

c. It may be possible to extend the applicable time limit by stipulation or by court order on application [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1054, 1054.1; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.20].

[2] Documents to Be Obtained

If the demurring party is relying on matters subject to judicial notice, he or she must in some situations (for example, with regard to records of another court) obtain properly authenticated copies of the matters to be noticed, and attach these to the demurrer or supporting memorandum [see Code Civ. Proc. § 430.70].

[3] Preparation of Papers

1. Draft the Demurrer [FORMS: see §§ 206.120 -206.134].

a. State separately each ground for objection and specify the pleading or portion of the pleading against which each objection is made.

b. Sign the demurrer. Because a demurrer is a pleading [Code Civ. Proc. § 422.10], it must be signed by the attorney of record, or if none, by the party [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(a)].

2. Draft the notice of hearing [FORM: see § 206.135]. In some courts it may be necessary to reserve a hearing date in advance with the clerk. The selected hearing date must allow sufficient time for advance service on the other parties [see § 206.100[4], below], but must be not more than 35 days following filing of the demurrer (or the first date available to the court thereafter) [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1320(c)].

3. Draft the supporting memorandum [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113; for general discussion and forms, see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities]. For forms of memoranda, see California Points and Authorities, Ch. 71, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings (Matthew Bender), and the General Index to that publication.

4. If a ground for demurrer is based on matters of which the court may take judicial notice under Evid. Code §§ 452 and 453, specify these matters for the purpose of invoking such notice, in a separate document listing the specific items for which notice is requested [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(l); see Code Civ. Proc. § 430.70; for a discussion and forms, see Ch. 321, Judical Notice].

5. Prepare any additional papers that are to be filed concurrently with the demurrer (for example, motion to strike and supporting papers).

6. Prepare declaration or certificate regarding proof of service [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1013a; see also Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers].

[4] Service and Filing

1. Serve copies of the demurrer and accompanying papers on the opposing party and other parties who have appeared [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 465, 1005, 1011, 1012, 1015; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 1.6(15), (19), 3.1110, 3.1103(b), 3.1320(c)].

a. Service is normally made in person or by mail [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1011, 1012]; for alternative methods (for example, by fax), see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1010.5, 1011 [see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 2.300, 2.306].

b. Service in person must be completed at least 16 court days before the selected hearing date [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1320(c)].

☐ When service is by mail, this 16-day period for completing service before the hearing date is extended by 5 calendar days if the place of mailing and the place of address are within California, by 10 calendar days if either of these places is outside California but within the United States, or by 20 calendar days if either of these places is outside the United States [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1320(c)].

☐ When service is by fax transmission, express mail, or another form of overnight delivery, this 16-day period is extended by 2 calendar days [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1320(c)]. An extension period of two court days, as opposed to calendar days, may apply in the case of electronic service made pursuant to a local rule adopted under Code Civ. Proc. § 1010.6 [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1010.6(a)(6); for discussion, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers, § 518.41[8]].

2. File the originals of the demurrer and accompanying papers with the clerk of the court in which the action is pending at least 16 court days, plus any applicable additional period, before the selected hearing date [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 465, 1005(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1320(c); cf. Code Civ. Proc. § 1010.6(a)(6) (noted above)].

a. Pay filing fee.

b. Generally, it is good practice to submit the office copy to the clerk to be stamped together with the original, to serve as a check on the contents of the original.

c. Proof of service must be filed no later than five calendar days before the hearing date [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1300(c)].

3. If necessary (for example, to file a timely demurrer), apply for an order shortening the time requirements for service and filing requirements [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1320(c)].

PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLISTS
A. Demurrers

17-206 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 206.101

§ 206.101 Responding Party's Checklist

[1] Preliminary Determinations

1. Examine the demurrer and notice of hearing for timeliness and other potential defects; an untimely or otherwise improper demurrer is subject to a motion to strike.

2. Examine the demurrer, supporting memorandum of points and authorities, and any matters specified for judicial notice, and determine whether the challenged pleading actually contains the defects objected to in the demurrer.

a. Although a general demurrer does not specify the precise defect in the sufficiency of the allegations, the responding party may usually determine the purported defects by referring to the memorandum submitted in support of the demurrer.

b. Check the authorities cited in the supporting memorandum to verify that they actually support the points stated.

c. Check the accuracy and relevancy of the matters specified for judicial notice, if any.

[2] Preparation of Papers

1. Determine the most appropriate response and draft the papers, if any, required to make that response.

a. If the demurrer is untimely or otherwise improper, draft a motion to strike the demurrer in whole or part, together with supporting papers [see Ch. 375, Motions to Strike: Pleadings].

b. If the demurrer is well taken, in whole or part, consider, for example, whether it might be most expedient to seek to remedy the defect by stipulating to the filing of an amended pleading before the hearing or by stipulating that the demurrer be sustained with leave to amend.

c. If the pleading is sufficient or not subject to the objections raised by the demurrer, prepare an opposing memorandum establishing the sufficiency of the pleading.

d. Consider seeking a stipulated continuation of the hearing date if necessary to prepare the response [Form: see § 206.136].

e. If no opposition is desirable, some local courts may require filing a notice of nonopposition.

2. Prepare declaration or certificate regarding proof of service of the response [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1013a; see also Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers].

[3] Service and Filing

1. Serve copies of the opposing memorandum or other response on the demurring party and other parties who have appeared [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 465, 1005, 1011, 1012, 1015; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 1.6(15), (19), 3.1110, 3.1103(b), 3.1320(c)].

a. Service must be completed at least 9 court days before the scheduled hearing date, and the opposition papers must be served by personal delivery, facsimile transmission, express mail, or other means consistent with the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1010, 1011, 1012, and 1013, and reasonably calculated to ensure delivery to the other party or parties not later than the close of the next business day after the time the opposing papers are filed [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(c); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1320(c); cf. Code Civ. Proc. § 1010.6(a)(6) (two court day extension in case of electronic service; although Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b) expressly excludes extensions under Code Civ. Proc. § 1013, it is silent as to section 1010.6)].

b. Some courts require service to ensure that other parties receive papers in time to submit a reply or to prepare for the hearing, for example, by personal service. Consider sending papers by messen ger service (or sending a courtesy copy by fax transmission).

2. File the original responding papers directly with the court clerk within 9 court days of the scheduled hearing date [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1302(a), 3.1320(c); cf. Code Civ. Proc. § 1010.6(a)(6) (noted above)]. Generally it is good practice to submit the office copy to the clerk to be stamped together with the original, to serve as a check on the contents of the original.

PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLISTS
A. Demurrers

17-206 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 206.102

§ 206.102 Hearing and Postruling Checklist

[1] Hearing on Demurrer

1. If possible, obtain any tentative ruling and consult local rules for procedure, if any, for appearing at hearing and stipulating to or contesting the tentative ruling.

2. If a party desires to appear by telephone and telephone appearances are permissible under the Rules of Court [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.670(a)-(d)] and available under local rule, arrange for telephone appearance [see Code Civ. Proc. § 367.5; Cal. Rules of Ct., Stds. Jud. Admin., Std. 3.1].

3. Attend hearing.

a. The court may determine a demurrer on its merits despite the failure of one party to attend the hearing. If the demurring party fails to attend the hearing on a special demurrer, this demurrer may be deemed not meritorious and its grounds waived [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1320(f); see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1304(c) (notice of nonappearance; court must rule as if party had appeared when that party gives proper notice of nonappearance)].

b. If court usually requires prevailing party to prepare order, prepare and bring proposed order (if not already submitted). Make sure an order sustaining a demurrer specifies the grounds for the ruling, whether the order is submitted by the prevailing party or is prepared by the clerk as a minute order [see Code Civ. Proc. § 472d].

[2] Postruling Matters

1. If court so requests, the prevailing party prepares the court's order, in the same number of copies as the demurrer, and presents it to judge for signature.

2. Unless the court orders otherwise, the prevailing party requests conformed copies of the original order and serves these copies, with proof of service, on all parties or their attorneys, unless each party has waived such notice of the order and the waiver was noted in the court's minutes [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1019.5]. The prevailing party then files the proof of service.

3. A nonprevailing party should consider the following:

a. Whether to seek reconsideration of the ruling [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1008; see also Ch. 374, Motions to Reconsider and Renewed Motions].

b. Whether to amend the defective pleading when the demurrer was sustained with leave to amend, or whether to answer when the demurrer has been overruled. Unless otherwise ordered, the amendment or answer must be served and filed within 10 days after service of the notice of the ruling [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1320(g) (or within five calendar in unlawful detainer proceeding)].

4. The prevailing party should consider serving and filing a motion to dismiss when the demurrer was sustained with leave to amend but the nonprevailing party fails to amend within the time required.

[1] Preliminary Determinations

1. Sufficiency of pleading.

Determine whether the opposing pleading (complaint, cross complaint, answer) states a cause of action or defense or whether the court lacks subject matter jurisdiction.

a. Judicial notice.

☐ Determine whether there are any facts of which the court must [Evid. Code § 451] or may [Evid. Code §§ 452, 453] take judicial notice, including competent evidence of record that, when read with the challenged pleading, will render it deficient [see, e.g., Tiffany v. Sierra Sands Unified School Dist. (1980) 103 Cal. App. 3d 218, 162 Cal. Rptr. 669] .

☐ Determine whether there are any facts of which the court must [Evid. Code § 451] or may [Evid. Code §§ 452, 453] take judicial notice that will supplement the challenged pleading so as to render it sufficient.

b. Stipulation.

Determine whether there are any matters to which the parties will stipulate that will form the basis of a motion for judgment on the pleadings [see discussion in § 206.54[4], above].

2. Change in law.

If the moving party's earlier demurrer on the same grounds to be raised in the motion was overruled, determine whether there has been a material change in the applicable case law or statutes [Code Civ. Proc. § 438(g)(1)].

3. Time Limitations.

Determine whether the motion is timely.

NOTE:
The defendant must have filed an answer, and the moving party's time to demur to the opposing party's pleading must have expired before the motion can be made [Code Civ. Proc. § 438(f)]. The motion cannot be made after a pretrial conference order has been entered pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 575, or within 30 days of the date the action is initially set for trial, whichever is later, unless the court otherwise permits [Code Civ. Proc. § 438(e)].

[2] Preparation of Stipulation

1. Consultation with adverse parties.

If there are matters to which the parties can stipulate that will form the basis of a motion for judgment on the pleadings, consult with the adverse parties, or with their attorneys if they are represented by counsel, to determine the precise matters to be agreed on and whether the parties or their attorneys will in fact stipulate in writing to the court's considering them on the motion.

2. Drafting the stipulation.

a. Form.

Set forth on pleading paper, in the style of the pleadings of the case [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 2.100-2.119], the circumstances that the parties stipulate to facts, the facts as agreed on, and a place for the signatures of all stipulating parties. For a general form of stipulation, see Ch. 533, Stipulations .

[3] Preparation of Papers

1. Draft notice of motion for judgment on the pleadings [FORM: see § 206.150, below].

2. Draft supporting memorandum [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113].

For points and authorities in support of motions for judgment on the pleadings, see California Points and Authorities, Ch. 71, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings (Matthew Bender). See also Ch. 417, Points and Authorities .

NOTE:
If the motion is based on matters of which the court may take judicial notice [Evid. Code § 452], include the matters to be so noticed in the notice of motion or memorandum [Code Civ. Proc. § 438(d); see Code Civ. Proc. § 430.70; Evid. Code § 453]. For discussion and forms relating to judicial notice, see Ch. 321, Judicial Notice* .

If the motion is based on matters as to which a stipulation is filed, bring that fact to the attention of the court in the memorandum [see § 206.54[4], above].

3. Collect or draft any additional supporting papers.

Identify the papers on which the motion will be based [Code Civ. Proc. § 1010].

NOTE:
Additional papers may include any matter of which the court is requested to take judicial notice or stipulations as to matters, other than the pleadings, that may be considered by the court, but will not include any declaration in support of the motion.

4. Draft proof of service [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1013a]. For discussion and forms of proof of service, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers .

5. Draft proposed order [Form: see § 206.151, below].

[4] Service and Filing

1. Serve copies of the notice of motion and accompanying papers on the attorney for the party whose pleading is challenged or, if the party has no attorney, on the other party [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1005, 1011, 1012, 1015; 303(b), Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 1.6(15), (19), 3.1110, 3.1103(b)].

Service in person must be completed at least 16 court days before the selected hearing date [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b)].

If service is by mail, the 16-day period for completing service before the hearing date is extended by 5 calendar days if the place of mailing and of address are within California, by 10 calendar days if either of these places is outside California but within the United States, or by 20 calendar days if either of these places is outside the United States [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b)].

If service is by fax transmission or overnight delivery, this 21-day period is extended by 2 calendar days [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b)]. An extension period of two court days may apply in the case of electronic service [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1010.6(a)(6); for discussion, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers, § 518.41[8]].

2. File the originals of the notice of motion and accompanying papers at least 16 court days, plus any appropriate additional period, with the clerk of the court in which the action is pending [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1300, 3.1302(a); Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1005(b), 1013a; cf. Code Civ. Proc. § 1010.6(a)(6) (noted above)].

NOTE:
Generally, it is good practice to submit the office copy to the clerk to be stamped together with the original, to serve as a check on the contents of the original.

3. File proof of service no later than five calendar days before the hearing date [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1300(c)].

[5] Response to Opposing Party's Memorandum

1. File response if appropriate.

a. Examine the memorandum, if any, filed in response to the motion for judgment on the pleadings.

b. If time permits, counsel may wish to file a supplemental memorandum, with proof of service, in opposition to the opposing party's memorandum. Local practice may vary, but usually this supplemental memorandum should be filed directly with the clerk of the law and motion department or division, rather than in the office of the court clerk, so that the court will have sufficient time to consider the memorandum prior to the hearing on the motion.

2. Serve and file any response papers.

All reply papers must be filed and a copy served at least five court days before the time appointed for the hearing. All reply papers must be served by personal delivery, facsimile transmission, express mail, or other means consistent with the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1010, 1011, 1012, and 1013, and reasonably calculated to ensure delivery to the other party or parties not later than the close of the next business day after the time the reply papers are filed [Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1300(a); cf. Code Civ. Proc. § 1010.6(a)(6) (two court day extension in case of electronic service; although Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b) expressly excludes extensions under Code Civ. Proc. § 1013, it is silent as to section 1010.6)]. Unless otherwise provided by local court rule, all papers relating to a law and motion proceeding must be filed in the clerk's office [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1302(a)].

§ 206.111 Opposing Party's Guide

[1] Preliminary Determinations

1. On receipt of the notice of motion and supporting memorandum, ascertain if it was timely served. Read the notice of motion to ascertain the alleged defects in the pleading.

2. Read the supporting memorandum and verify the citations to determine whether they support the points or statements for which they are cited.

NOTE:
Points may be inaccurately stated or not supported by the authorities cited. Moreover, a case cited may superficially support the point in that it makes an identical or similar statement, but may actually hold that the statement is not applicable to the facts of that case or that the case presents an exception to the rule. In that situation, the case is usually not authority for the statement made but, rather, an authority in opposition to it.

3. If the motion is well taken, determine the advisability of not opposing it or of stipulating that the motion be granted with leave to amend the pleading.

[2] Preparation of Papers

1. If counsel intends to oppose the motion, prepare an opposing memorandum. For forms of memoranda, see California Points and Authorities, Ch. 71, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings (Matthew Bender), and the General Index to that publication. See also Ch. 417, Points and Authorities , in this publication.

2. Prepare the certificate, affidavit, or declaration, as the case may be, of service [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1013(b), 1013a, 2009, 2015.5].

[3] Service and Filing

1. Serve copies of the opposing memorandum on the moving party's attorney or, if none, on the moving party [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1005(b), 1011, 1012, 1015; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 1.6(15), (19). 3.1110, 3.1103].

NOTE:

Unless otherwise ordered or specifically provided by law, all papers opposing a motion must be served at least 9 court days before the hearing. All papers opposing a motion must be served by personal delivery, facsimile transmission, express mail, or other means consistent with the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1010, 1011, 1012, and 1013, and reasonably calculated to ensure delivery to the other party or parties not later than the close of the next business day after the time the opposing papers are filed [Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(c); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1300; cf. Code Civ. Proc. § 1010.6(a)(6) (two court day extension in case of electronic service; although Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b) expressly excludes extensions under Code Civ. Proc. § 1013, it is silent as to Code Civ. Proc. § 1010.6)].

2. File the original opposing papers with the clerk of the court in which the action is pending. The papers may be delivered in person or by mail.

a. Unless otherwise ordered or specifically provided by law, all papers opposing a motion must be filed at least 9 court days before the hearing [Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1300; cf. Code Civ. Proc. § 1010.6(a)(6) (two court day extension in case of electronic service; although Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b) expressly excludes extensions under Code Civ. Proc. § 1013, it is silent as to Code Civ. Proc. § 1010.6)].

b. Unless otherwise provided by local rule, all papers relating to a law and motion proceeding must be filed in the clerk's office [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1302(a)].

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, illustrates the various parts of the demurrer and is for use by a defendant to demur to a complaint. With appropriate modifications, it may also be used by a cross defendant to demur to a cross complaint, in which case, the nature of the papers set forth in the caption would read "DEMURRER OF CROSS DEFENDANT _____ [name] TO CROSS COMPLAINT OF _____ [name of cross complainant]," etc. [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 2.111(6), 3.1112(a), (b), (e), 3.1320(c)]. For the format of a demurrer to an answer, see § 206.131, below.

[3] Format

[a] Caption

[i] General Rules

The demurrer is a pleading [Code Civ. Proc. § 422.10] that must contain a caption setting forth the name of the court and county in which the action is brought and the title of the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 422.30].

The title of the action is required to include the names of the parties unless otherwise provided by statute or Judicial Council rule. It is sufficient to state the name of the first party on each side with an appropriate indication of other parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 422.40; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(4)], such as, the phrase "et al." following the first named party [for example, John Smith et al., Plaintiffs, vs. Peter Brown et al., Defendants].

If the demurrer is filed in a limited civil case, the caption must also include the phrase "Limited Civil Case" [Code Civ. Proc. § 422.30(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(10)].

The format requirements of the first page are set forth in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 2.111, 3.1110(b). For a listing and discussion of these requirements, see Ch. 108, Captions and Introductions .

Additional requirements are imposed by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.111(b) and 3.1320(e), which require the following information to be included immediately below the case number:

1. The date, time, and location, if ascertainable, of any scheduled hearing and the name of the hearing judge, if ascertainable;

2. The nature or title of any attached document other than an exhibit;

3. The date of filing of the action;

4. The trial date, if set; and

5. The name of the party filing the demurrer and the name of the party whose pleading is the subject of the demurrer.

[ii] Supporting Memorandum

A memorandum must accompany the demurrer [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1110, 3.1112(a), 3.1113(a)]. The usual procedure is to append the memorandum to the end of the demurrer immediately after the signature line with a heading, "MEMORANDUM," centered on the page. When this is done, the memorandum will not have a separate caption, but, instead, is noted in the caption of the demurrer, as in the form in [1], above.

For additional discussion of memoranda, see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities . For complete memoranda supporting and opposing demurrers and requirements imposed by the California Rules of Court and local court rules, see California Points and Authorities, Ch. 71, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings (Matthew Bender).

[iii] Notice of Hearing

The notice of hearing required to accompany a demurrer under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1112(a), 3.1320(c), is usually a separate document, but may be physically attached to the demurrer. If it is physically attached, it need not, unless required by local court rule, have a separate caption, but, instead, is noted in the caption to the demurrer, as indicated in the foregoing form. For a form of notice of hearing, see § 206.135, below.

[iv] Request for Judicial Notice

Any request for judicial notice must be in a separate document listing the specific items for which notice is requested [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(l); see Code Civ. Proc. § 430.70 (request to take judicial notice to be in demurrer or memorandum except as court may otherwise permit)].

For discussion and a form of request for judicial notice that may be used with a demurrer, see Ch. 321, Judicial Notice .

[v] Notice of Motion to Strike

A notice of motion to strike must be given within the time allowed to plead. If a demurrer is interposed, the notice must be given concurrently with the demurrer and heard at the same time as the demurrer [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 1.5(b), 3.1100, 3.1103(b), 3.1332]. If a motion to strike is noticed concurrently with a demurrer, the better practice, if not required by local rule, is to so indicate in the caption of the demurrer under the statement of the nature of the papers, as illustrated in the foregoing form [see discussion and forms in Ch. 375, Motions to Strike: Pleadings].

[b] Body of Demurrer

For discussion of the body of a demurrer, see § 206.121[3], below.

[c] Prayer

A prayer to a demurrer is not required but is frequently included.

[d] Date

A demurrer, like other pleadings, need not be dated, since the operative dates are the dates of service and filing, but counsel frequently date pleadings to have a record of when they were prepared and executed.

[e] Signature and Sanctions

In cases commenced on or after January 1, 1995, if there is an attorney of record in an action, he or she must sign the demurrer [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(a), (i), (j)]. If there is no attorney of record, the party must sign [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(a)].

By presenting the demurrer to the court, the signer certifies that the paper is not being presented primarily for an improper purpose, such as harassment, delay, or needless increase in the cost of litigation [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(b)(1)]. The signer also certifies that the demurrer is warranted by existing law or by a nonfrivolous argument for the extension, modification, or reversal of existing law or the establishment of new law [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(b)(2)].

If the court finds that this certification is false, sanctions may be imposed [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(c)].

In actions or proceedings pending as of December 31, 1994, sanctions for frivolous or delaying tactics under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 apply.

For discussion of these sanction provisions, see Ch. 510, Sanctions .

[4] Requirements Under Local Rules

Local court rules may contain additional requirements and should be checked if counsel is unfamiliar with them. However, any local rules concerning demurrers or the form and format of papers are preempted by the California Rules of Court, and should be considered null and void. The exception to the rule of preemption most likely to be relevant to a demurrer is the exception for local rules adopted under the Trial Court Delay Reduction Act [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.20].

[OR, demurrer on multiple grounds to single cause of action or count]

Defendant demurs to [_____ (Count I or the First Cause of Action or other) of] the complaint herein separately and severally on each of the following grounds: _____ [specify, e.g.,

1. It fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action.

2. It is uncertain in that, in Paragraph 3 on page 2, lines 5-6, it is alleged that the contract sued on is written and was executed on January 31, 1997, whereas, in Paragraph 7 on page 4, lines 9-10, it is alleged that the contract was oral and was entered into on April 1, 1996.

3. _____ (Continue, setting forth each ground of demurrer in a separately numbered paragraph).]

[OR, demurrers on multiple grounds to multiple causes of action or counts]

Defendant demurs to the complaint herein separately and severally on each of the following grounds:

1. _____ [Count I or The First Cause of Action or other] _____ [specify, e.g., fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action].

2. _____ [Count II or The Second Cause of Action or other] _____[specify, e.g., fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action in that it shows on its face that the cause of action alleged is barred by the statute of limitations].

3. _____ [Count III or The Third Cause of Action or other] is uncertain in that, in Paragraph 4 on page 2, lines 4-7, it alleges that the contract sued on was entered into on March 1, 1997, whereas, in Paragraph 8 on page 4, lines 26-28, it alleges that the contract sued on was entered into on March 1, 1994.

4. Further, with respect to _____ [Count III or the Third Cause of Action or other], it cannot be ascertained from the allegations thereof whether the contract on which the action is founded is written or oral.

[OR, demurrers on multiple grounds to multiple causes of action or counts; another form]

DEMURRER TO _____ [COUNT I or FIRST CAUSE OF ACTION or other]

Defendant demurs to _____ [Count I or the First Cause of Action or other] of the complaint herein on the ground _____ [specify, e.g., that it fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action].

DEMURRER TO _____ [COUNT II or SECOND CAUSE OF ACTION or other]

Defendant demurs to _____ [Count II or the Second Cause of Action or other] of the complaint herein on the ground _____ [specify, e.g., that it fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action in that it shows on its face that the cause of action alleged is barred by the statute of limitations].

2. It cannot be ascertained from the pleading whether the contract on which the action is founded is written or oral.]

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, illustrates the manner of demurring on a single ground, on multiple grounds, and to multiple causes of action or counts in a complaint [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10 (grounds of objection to complaint or cross complaint), 430.20 (grounds of objection to answer)]. The examples may be inserted as appropriate as the body of the demurrer in the form set out in § 206.120[1], above.

For further discussion, see § 206.16, above.

[3] Format of Body of Demurrer

The demurrer must distinctly specify the grounds on which any objections to the complaint, cross complaint, or answer are taken. If it does not, it may be disregarded [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.60]. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1112 governs the format of motions generally. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1320(a), requires that each ground of demurrer be set forth in a separate paragraph and state whether it applies to the entire complaint, cross complaint, or answer or to specified causes of action or defenses.

Each of several grounds of demurrer should be stated separately, since a demurrer stating several grounds conjunctively may be overruled unless all grounds are good [see Jones v. Iverson (1900) 131 Cal. 101, 104, 63 P. 135 ; Kraner v. Halsey (1889) 82 Cal. 209, 212, 22 P. 1137] . Moreover a separate demurrer should be made against each count or cause of action, since a demurrer attacking an entire complaint that contains several counts or causes of action will be overruled if any count or cause of action is good against the demurrer [Skipper v. Gilbert J. Martin Constr. Co. (1957) 156 Cal. App. 2d 82, 86-87, 318 P.2d 732] .

_____ [Defendant or Cross defendant _____ (name)] demurs to [_____ (Count I or the First Cause of Action or other) of] the _____ [complaint or cross complaint of _____ (name), cross complainant,] herein on the ground that it does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action.

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for insertion in § 206.120[1] as the body of the demurrer when the complaint or cross complaint, or a cause of action or count in it, does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a); for discussion see, see also § 206.14[1], above]. For a form for use when the objection is that it appears on the face of the pleading or from judicially noticed matter that the action is barred by the statute of limitations, see Ch. 345, Limitation of Actions .

[3] Specification in Demurrer of Ground of Objection

Code Civ. Proc. § 430.60 requires that the demurrer distinctly specify the grounds on which any of the objections to the complaint or cross complaint are taken and that, unless it does so, it may be disregarded. Nevertheless, the ground of a general demurrer, except when it is based on the bar of the statute of limitations [see § 206.123], may be stated in the words of the statute [Burke v. Maguire (1908) 154 Cal. 456, 462, 98 P. 21], that is, in the words of Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(e). This results from the fact that the failure to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action is usually not waived by failure to take the objection by demurrer or answer [see Code Civ. Proc. § 430.80(a)]. The supporting points and authorities required to accompany the demurrer [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 1.5(b), 3.1100, 3.1103(b), 3.1113(a)] will, however, normally specify the particular defect constituting the ground of objection.

_____ [Defendant or Cross defendant _____ (name)] demurs to the _____ [complaint or cross complaint of _____ (name), cross complainant,] herein on the ground _____ [plaintiff or cross complainant] does not have legal capacity to sue [for the reason that it appears _____ (on the face of the _____ (complaint or cross complaint) or from _____ (specify matter) of which this court is requested to take judicial notice) that _____ (plaintiff or cross complainant) _____ (specify, e.g., is a 16-year old minor appearing by a foreign guardian who has not been appointed by a California court as plaintiff's guardian ad litem or as the guardian or conservator of his/her estate)].

The form in [1], above, is for insertion in § 206.120[1] as the body of the demurrer when it appears from the challenged pleading or from judicially noticed matter [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)] that the plaintiff or cross complainant has no legal capacity to sue [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(b)].

The demurrer assumes that the lack of capacity to sue appears on the face of the complaint. In this regard, it should be noted that, unless a governing statute states otherwise, a complaint need not allege the plaintiff's capacity to sue. If lack of capacity does not appear on the face of the complaint, it cannot be raised by demurrer, but is a special plea in abatement [Hydrotech Systems, Ltd. v. Oasis Waterpark (1991) 52 Cal. 3d 988, 994 n.4, 277 Cal. Rptr. 517, 803 P.2d 370] .

For further discussion, see § 206.14[2], above.

Special demurrers are generally not allowed in limited civil cases [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 91(a), (d), 92(c)].

[3] Specification of Ground

The demurrer must distinctly specify the ground on which the objection is taken or it may be disregarded [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.60]. The bare statement that plaintiff does not have legal capacity to sue, however, constitutes a distinct specification of the ground and is sufficient [Ginsberg Tile Co. v. Faraone (1929) 99 Cal. App. 381, 385, 278 P. 866 (decided under predecessor statute)], since a demurrer raises issues of law [Code Civ. Proc. § 589], whereas answers raise factual issues [Code Civ. Proc. § 590; see also, e.g., Ontario State Bank v. Tibbits (1889) 80 Cal. 68, 69-70, 22 P. 66 (statement in answer that plaintiff had no legal capacity to sue was conclusion of law and tendered no issue of fact)]. The reason the plaintiff or cross complainant lacks legal capacity to sue will, if not obvious on the face of the pleading or specified in the demurrer, be made clear from the memorandum that must accompany the demurrer [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 1.5(b), 3.1110, 3.1103(b), 3.1112(a), 3.1113(a); see also Ch. 417, Points and Authorities].

[This court is hereby requested to take judicial notice of this other pending action, and, for that purpose, certified copies of the (records and) files in that action are attached to the separate Request for Judicial Notice that is filed with this demurrer.]

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for insertion in § 206.120[1] as the body of the demurrer when it appears on the face of the challenged pleading or from judicially noticed matter [*Code Civ. [2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, may be used to secure an order postponing the hearing on the demurrer for a period not to exceed 30 days [see Code Civ. Proc. § 595.2]. For forms of stipulation and order extending time within which to demur, see Ch. 26, Answers .

[3] Stipulations

An attorney has authority to bind his or her client in any of the steps of an action or proceeding by his or her agreement filed with the clerk or entered on the minutes of the court, and not otherwise [Code Civ. Proc. § 283(1)].

[4] Postponement of Hearing on Stipulation

Although the demurrer must be noticed for hearing within the time limits specified in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1320(c) [see § 206.135[2], above], the court is authorized to postpone the hearing for a period not to exceed 30 days if all attorneys of record of parties who have appeared in action agree in writing to the postponement [Code Civ. Proc. § 595.2 (applying also to hearings of motion and to trial)]. Code Civ. Proc. § 595.2 provides in such case that "the court shall postpone." Despite its mandatory language, the section is directory only since otherwise the section would constitute an unconstitutional interference with the inherent power of the courts to control the order of business before them [Lorraine v. McComb (1934) 220 Cal. 753, 757, 32 P.2d 960 (involving postponement of trial); see County of San Bernardino v. Doria Mining & Engineering Corp. (1977) 72 Cal. App. 3d 776, 784, 140 Cal. Rptr. 383 (same)].

Since the court may deny the postponement absent a showing of good cause, it is suggested that the stipulation set forth the reason for the postponement, although this is not required by the statute.

Because local trial delay reduction rules may restrict stipulations and continuances, counsel should be sure to check local court rules [see Ch. 136, Continuances].

Judge of the Superior Court

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use when a formal order on the demurrer is desired or is required by the court. This might occur when the demurrer is not taken under advisement, but is ruled on at the hearing. Although the court's ruling will appear in the minutes as a minute order, the court may direct the prevailing or other party, particularly if the demurrer is sustained, to prepare a formal order.

If the courts sustains the demurrer, the order must specify the ground or grounds on which the order it based. This may be done by reference to appropriate pages and paragraphs of the demurrer. The party against whom the demurrer was sustained may waive this requirement [Code Civ. Proc. § 472d].

When a demurrer is sustained, the order may grant leave to amend the pleading [see Code Civ. Proc. § 472a(c)]. Unless the court orders otherwise, leave to amend within 10 days following the ruling on demurrer is deemed to be granted (five calendar days in forcible entry, forcible detainer, or unlawful detainer actions) [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1320(g); see Code Civ. Proc. § 472b (when time begins to run)].

When a demurrer to a complaint is overruled, the court must allow an answer to be filed on such terms as may be just [see Code Civ. Proc. § 472a(b)]. Unless the court orders otherwise, leave to answer within 10 days following the ruling on demurrer is deemed to be granted (five calendar days in forcible entry, forcible detainer, or unlawful detainer actions) [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1320(g); see Code Civ. Proc. § 472b (when time begins to run)].

If the demurrer is sustained on the ground that there is another action pending between the parties on the same cause of action, and no other special defense is sustained, an interlocutory judgment will be entered in favor of the defendant so pleading to the effect that no trial of other issues may be had until the final determination of the other action [Code Civ. Proc. § 597]. Otherwise, either party may move for dismissal after a demurrer has been sustained without leave to amend, or if sustained with leave to amend, after plaintiff fails to amend within the time allowed [Code Civ. Proc. § 581(f)]. The order dismissing the action must be in writing [Code Civ. Proc. § 581d].

For further discussion of orders overruling and sustaining demurrers, see § 206.29 and 206.30 respectively, above.

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use by the prevailing party to notify the nonprevailing party of the court's ruling on the demurrer. In a case having multiple parties, the notice must name the moving party and the party against whom relief was requested and must specifically identify the particular demurrer ruled on [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1109].

[3] Commencement of Time to Answer or Amend

Following a ruling on a demurrer, unless otherwise ordered, leave to answer or amend within 10 days is deemed granted, except for actions in forcible entry, forcible detainer, or unlawful detainer, in which case five calendar days are deemed granted [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1320(g)].

A demurrer to a cause of action may be filed without answering other causes of action. Unless otherwise ordered, defendant shall have 10 days to move to strike, to demur, or otherwise to plead to the complaint or the remaining causes of action following [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1320(j)]:

- The overruling of the demurrer;
- Amendment of the complaint or the expiration of the time to amend if the demurrer was sustained with leave to amend; or
- The sustaining of the demurrer if the demurrer was sustained without leave to amend.

The time given to amend a pleading if the demurrer to it is sustained, or to answer if a demurrer to a complaint or cross complaint is overruled and no answer was filed, runs from the service of the notice of the decision or order, unless notice is waived in open court and the waiver entered in the minutes [Code Civ. Proc. § 472b].

The motion also seeks dismissal of the action for failure to file an amended pleading within the time allowed after the court sustained the demurrer with leave to amend, which will be the status of the case if the motion to strike is granted [see Gitmed v. General Motors Corp. (1994) 26 Cal. App. 4th 824, 827-829, 31 Cal. Rptr. 2d 625] . The time prescribed by law is set forth in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1320(g), which provides that, following a ruling on a demurrer, unless otherwise ordered, leave to amend within 10 days is deemed granted, except for actions in forcible entry, forcible detainer, or unlawful detainer, in which case 5 calendar days are deemed granted.

The motion to strike must be made as a noticed motion [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1320(i) (motion to be noticed pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1010)], although the motion to dismiss may be ex parte. For discussion, see § 206.33, above.

With appropriate modifications, the form may also be used to seek dismissal of a single cause of action to which the demurrer was sustained. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1320(j), provides that a demurrer to a cause of action may be filed without answering other causes of action and that, unless otherwise ordered, defendant shall have 10 days to move to strike, to demur, or otherwise to plead to the complaint or the remaining causes of action following

- The overruling of the demurrer;

- Amendment of the complaint or the expiration of the time to amend if the demurrer was sustained with leave to amend; or

- The sustaining of the demurrer if the demurrer was sustained without leave to amend.

For a form of order granting the motion that may be used in conjunction with this form, see § 206.143.

A supporting memorandum must be filed and a copy served with this notice of motion [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1112(a), 3.1113(a); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1005(b), 1010]. For discussion and forms, see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities .

Defendant _____ [name] hereby moves for an order dismissing the above-entitled action [as to this defendant] pursuant to Code of Civil Procedure section 581(f)(2) and California Rules of Court, Rule 3.1320(h) on the ground that, on _____ [date], this court sustained [this] defendant's demurrer to the complaint with _____ days leave to amend, that, as shown by the records and file herein of which the court is requested to take judicial notice, plaintiff, at th e hearing on the demurrer, in open court, orally waived service of notice of the court's ruling on the demurrer, and the waiver was entered in the court's minutes, that plaintiff has failed to [serve or] file an amended complaint, and that the time for doing so has expired.

[OR]

Defendant _____ [name] hereby moves for an order dismissing the above-entitled action [as to this defendant] pursuant to Code of Civil Procedure section 581(f)(2) and California Rules of Court, Rule 3.1320(h) on the ground that, on _____ [date], this court sustained [this] defendant's demurrer to the complaint with _____ days leave to amend, that, as shown by the records and file herein of which the court is requested to take judicial notice, notice of the court's ruling was served on plaintiff on _____ [date], that plaintiff has failed to [serve or] file an amended complaint, and that the time for doing so has expired.

[CONTINUE]

ORDER

It appearing from the records of this court that defendant's demurrer to the plaintiff's complaint in the above-entitled action was sustained on _____[date], with _____ days leave to amend, that plaintiff _____ [waived service of notice of the ruling or was properly served with notice of the court's ruling], that no extension of this time was granted by the court, that plaintiff has failed to file an amended complaint within the time allowed or at all, and that the time for doing so has expired, and, on the further representation to this court, that defendant _____[name] has at no time, by stipulation or otherwise, granted plaintiff an extension of time within which to file the amended complaint,

IT IS ORDERED THAT the above-entitled action [or complaint as to defendant _____ (name)] be, and hereby is, dismissed [without prejudice] and that defendant recover costs in the sum of $_____.
Dated: _____.

_____ [signature]
Judge

The combined form of application and order in [1], above, is for use by a defendant whose demurrer to a complaint was sustained with leave to amend to move for an order dismissing the action or, if the defendant is only one of two or more defendants and the demurrer was sustained only as to him or her, dismissing the complaint as to the moving defendant, when the plaintiff has failed to file an amended pleading within the time required [Code Civ. Proc. § 581(f)(2); Cal. Rules Ct., Rule 3.1320(h)]. An application for an order is, of course, a motion [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1003].

The matters set forth in the first paragraph of the application are all matters that will have appeared in the court's records and file. A request for judicial notice in a separate document listing the specific items for which notice is requested should also be included in the moving papers and counsel must arrange with the clerk to have the file in the courtroom at the time of the hearing [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1113(l), 3.1306(c); for discussion and forms, see Ch. 321, Judical Notice]. If the optional second paragraph is included, representing that there was no agreement to extend time, the optional declaration under penalty of perjury should also be included [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2009 (use of affidavit on motion authorized), 2015.5 (use of declaration under penalty of perjury in lieu of affidavit)].

Because a written order of dismissal when filed constitutes a judgment, the court may require preparation of a separate formal order instead of the abbreviated order appended to the motion [for a separate form of order, see § 206.144, below].

With appropriate modifications, this form may also be used by a defendant to seek dismissal of a single cause of action when a demurrer to it was sustained with leave to amend and plaintiff has failed to amend [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1320(j)], or by a cross defendant to move for an order dismissing a cross complaint or cause of action in a cross complaint on the same ground.

[3] Procedure on Ex Parte Motion

A party seeking an ex parte order is generally required to give or attempt to give notice of the application to opposing counsel or unrepresented party. An affidavit or declaration regarding the giving of this notice must accompany the application [see Cal. Rules Ct., Rule 3.1204]. For discussion of this requirement and related forms, see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders .

[4] Local Court Rules

Local court rules may contain additional requirements regarding ex parte motions and should be checked if counsel is unfamiliar with them. However, any local rules concerning ex parte applications or the form and format of papers are preempted by the California Rules of Court, and should be considered null and void [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.20].

[2] Use of Form

The form of order in [1], above, is for use to dismiss the action if the plaintiff has failed to file an amended complaint within the time allowed by the court on sustaining defendant's demurrer to the complaint and the defendant has moved for the dismissal [see Code Civ. Proc. § 581(f)(2)].

[3] Order of Dismissal

All dismissals ordered by the court are required to be in the form of a written order signed by the court and filed in the action, and these orders when so filed constitute judgments and are effective for all purposes. Such judgments are required to be noted in the clerk's register of actions in the case [Code Civ. Proc. § 581d].

The order includes an award of costs to the defendant [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1032(a)(4), (b) (defendant in whose favor dismissal is entered as prevailing party entitled to costs)].

[2] Use of Form

The notice of motion in [1], above, is for use by a plaintiff or defendant to move for a judgment on the pleadings prior to trial [see Code Civ. Proc. § 438(c)]. With appropriate modifications, it may also be used by a cross complainant or cross defendant to move for judgment on the complaint and cross complaint [see Code Civ. Proc. § 438(a)].

[3] Accompanying Papers

A supporting memorandum must be filed and a copy served with this notice of motion [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1112(a)]. The absence of the memorandum may be construed by the court as an admission that the motion is not meritorious and as cause for its denial [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1113(a); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1005(b), 1010].

Declarations or affidavits are not permitted. If the parties wish facts outside the pleadings to be considered at the hearing of the motion, there must be a formal stipulation specifically for that purpose, and the stipulation must be mentioned as a basis for the motion, order, and judgment [see Agnew v. City of Los Angeles (1950) 99 Cal. App. 2d 105, 107-108, 221 P.2d 340 ; North Side etc. Assn. v. Hillside etc. Park (1945) 70 Cal. App. 2d 609, 613-614, 161 P.2d 618 (in dictum, noting, however, that stipulation is not proper basis for motion)].

If the party bases the motion on a matter of which the court may take judicial notice [see Code Civ. Proc. § 438(d); Clark v. City of Pasadena (1951) 102 Cal. App. 2d 198, 200, 227 P.2d 306] pursuant to Evid. Code § 452, the request for judicial notice must be made in a separate document listing the specific items for which notice is requested [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111; Evid. Code § 452; for discussion and forms, see Ch. 321, Judicial Notice].

Any paper referred to that has been previously filed must be referred to by date of execution and title [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1110(d)].

Judge of the Superior Court

[2] Use of Form

The order in [1], above, is for use when a formal order denying or granting the motion is required by the court. The general rule is that an order is ineffective unless it is filed with the clerk or entered in the minutes [Jablon v. Henneberger (1949) 33 Cal. 2d 773, 775, 205 P.2d 1] . Under this rule, the order granting the motion must be entered in the official minutes and not merely in the rough minutes of the department clerk, in order that it be effective [Jablon v. Henneberger (1949) 33 Cal. 2d 773, 774-775, 205 P.2d 1] .

[3] Amendment of Pleading

A Code Civ. Proc. § 438 motion for judgment on the pleadings may be granted with or without leave to file an amended complaint or answer, as the case may be [Code Civ. Proc. § 438(h)(1)]. However, an order granting a motion for judgment on the pleadings will normally grant leave to amend, if an amendment curing the defect is possible [see Beverage v. Canton Placer Mining Co. (1955) 43 Cal. 2d 769, 778, 278 P.2d 694] . If the court grants leave to amend, it is required to grant 30 days to file the amended pleading [Code Civ. Proc. § 438(h)(2)]. For discussion, see § 206.59, above.

[4] Judgment

If the motion is granted as to the entire pleading without leave to amend, judgment is to be entered forthwith [Code Civ. Proc. § 438(h)(3)].

If the motion is granted with leave to amend, judgment may be entered after further proceedings as required by Section 438(i) if no amended pleading is filed or if it is filed late or otherwise in violation of the court's prior ruling on the motion [see Code Civ. Proc. § 438(h)(4), (i); for discussion, see § 206.59[3], above].

PART I. SCOPE

17-209 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 209.01

§ 209.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter discusses and contains forms relating to the liability of dentists for malpractice and proceedings involving dental licenses.

Malpractice actions against dentists are discussed in § 209.10 et seq. Forms relating to dental malpractice include:

- General forms of complaint against a dentist based on negligence[see § 209.60], lack of informed consent[see § 209.64], and battery[see § 209.65].

- Specific allegations[see §§ 209.61 -209.63] for use in a complaint against a dentist for negligence.

- Specific allegation of nerve damage[see § 209.66] that may be used in any of the three complaints.

For discussion and forms regarding general principles of negligence, contributory negligence, and res ipsa loquitur, see Ch. 295, Hospitals , Ch. 380, Negligence , and Ch. 415, Physicians: Medical Malpractice .

Proceedings involving licenses to practice dentistry are discussed in § 209.30 et seq. Forms relating to proceedings involving licenses include:

- Petition for a writ of mandate to obtain judicial review of disciplinary proceedings affecting a dentist's license to practice[see § 209.80].

PART I. SCOPE

§ 209.02 Dentistry Defined

Dentistry is the diagnosis or treatment, by surgery or other method, of diseases and lesions and the correction of malpositions of the human teeth alveolar process, gums, jaws, or associated structures. Such diagnosis or treatment may include all necessary related procedures as well as the use of drugs, anesthetic agents, and physical evaluation[Bus. & Prof. Code § 1625]. Additionally, a person practices dentistry within the meaning of the Dental Practice Act[Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 1600-1808] if the person does any one or more of the following[Bus. & Prof. Code § 1625(a)-(e)]:

- Advertises or represents himself or herself to be a dentist by card, circular, pamphlet, newspaper, or by any other means.

- Performs, or offers to perform, an operation or diagnosis of any kind, or treats diseases or lesions of the human teeth, alveolar process, gums, jaws, or associated structures, or corrects malposed positions thereof.

- In any way indicates that he or she will perform by himself or herself or his or her agents or servants any operation on the human teeth, alveolar process, gums, jaws, or associated structures, or in any way indicates that he or she will construct, alter, repair, or sell any bridge, crown, denture, orother prosthetic appliance or orthodontic appliance.

- Makes, or offers to make, an examination of, with the intent to perform or cause to be performed any operation on the human teeth, alveolar process, gums, jaws, or associated structures.

- Manages or conducts as manager, proprietor, conductor, lessor, or otherwise, a place where dental operations are performed.

§ 209.10 Governing Statutes

Dental malpractice, like other types of negligence, is governed by Civ. Code § 1714(a). In addition, the Medical Injury Compensation Reform Act of 1975 (MICRA), which allows evidence of collateral sources[see Civ. Code § 3333.1], limits the amount of noneconomic damages recoverable[see Civ. Code § 3333.2], and provides for periodic payment of a judgment for future damages[see Code Civ. Proc. § 667.7(a)], also applies to dental malpractice. Additional statutes governing dental malpractice actions are listed in § 209.40[2].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Malpractice

17-209 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 209.11

§ 209.11 Liability for Negligence

[1] Generally

A dentist is responsible for injuries caused to a patient by lack of ordinary skill in the practice of his or her profession[see Civ. Code § 1714(a); Roberts v. Parker (1932) 121 Cal. App. 264, 267, 8 P.2d 908] .

[2] Standard of Care

A dentist is required to have and to use only that degree of learning and skill ordinarily possessed by dentists of good professional reputation practicing in the vicinity[Barham v. Widing (1930) 210 Cal. 206, 213, 291 P. 173] . Failure to usesuch ordinary skill and care in the application of such knowledge renders a dentist liable for any injuries suffered by his or her patients as a result[Roberts v. Parker (1932) 121 Cal. App. 264, 267, 8 P.2d 908] . The question as to whether or not there was proper care in the treatment of a plaintiff is one to be determined by the opinions of experts. In the absence of expert evidence, a dentist is presumed to exercise the ordinary care and skill required in treating a patient[Simone v. Sabo (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 253, 257-258, 231 P.2d 19] .

[3] General Practitioner and Specialist

A general practitioner has a duty to refer a patient to a specialist if, under the same circumstances, a reasonably careful and skillful general practitioner would have done so. The general practitioner's duty is measured in relation to the facts of the particular case, taking into consideration such elements as the patient's mental and emotional condition, his or her known financial situation, and the many other variables which a physician meets in treating human ailments[Simone v. Sabo (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 253, 257, 231 P.2d 19] .

§ 209.12 Informed Consent

[1] Lack of Informed Consent; Negligence or Battery

A patient's failure to give his or her informed consent to a particular medical procedure or operation may be the basis of a professional malpractice action against a doctor. Depending on the facts, the theory of such an action may be either negligenceor battery (or both). If the doctor obtains the consent of the patient to perform one type of treatment and subsequently performs a substantially different treatment for which no consent was obtained, the doctor commits a technical battery since the requisite element of deliberate intent to deviate from the consent given is present. Liability for a battery may arise because the doctor either failed to properly explain the contemplated procedure or failed to determine if the patient reasonably comprehended the explanation[Cobbs v. Grant (1972) 8 Cal. 3d 229, 239-241, 104 Cal. Rptr. 505, 502 P.2d 1 ; Berkey v. Anderson (1969) 1 Cal. App. 3d 790, 803, 82 Cal. Rptr. 67] .

Cases often categorize the failure to obtain an informed consent as negligence because the issue more often involves a matter of the standard of professional care. Thus, when the patient consents to a certain treatment and the doctor performs that treatment, but an undisclosed complication occurs, even though no intentional deviation from the consent appears, the doctor, in obtaining the consent, may have failed to meet his or her duty to use due care in disclosing pertinent information. In this situation, the action should be pleaded in negligence[Cobbs v. Grant (1972) 8 Cal. 3d 229, 240-241, 104 Cal. Rptr. 505, 502 P.2d 1] . The duty to reveal is measured by the patient's right of self-decision. The right is effectively exercised only if the patient possesses adequate information to make an intelligent choice, thus, the physician is required to communicate whatever information would be material to thedecision[Cobbs v. Grant (1972) 8 Cal. 3d 229, 245, 104 Cal. Rptr. 505, 502 P.2d 1] .

For further discussion of informed consent, see Ch. 415, Physicians: Medical Malpractice .

[2] Importance of Distinction Between Battery and Negligence

[a] Different Elements to Be Proved

When the performance of a particular procedure or operation constitutes a technical battery, the defendant is liable for all damages proximately resulting, regardless of whether or not the procedure or operation was skillfully performed or whether or not the damages could have been anticipated[Berkey v. Anderson (1969) 1 Cal. App. 3d 790, 803, 82 Cal. Rptr. 67] .

In a negligence action, there must be a causal relationship between the failure to inform and the injury to the plaintiff. This is established only if the evidence shows that, had the revelation been made, consent to treatment would not have been given. This in turn requires the jury to apply an objective test: that is, what would a prudent person in the patient's position have decided if the person had been adequately informed of all significant perils[Cobbs v. Grant (1972) 8 Cal. 3d 229, 245, 104 Cal. Rptr. 505, 502 P.2d 1] .

Expert opinion as to community standards is not required under a cause of action for battery. The patient must prove only the failure to give an informed consent and a mere touching, absent consent [Cobbs v. Grant (1972) 8 Cal. 3d 229, 240, 104 Cal. Rptr. 505, 502 P.2d 1].

[b] Insurance Coverage and Damages

A doctor liable for a battery might not be covered by malpractice insurance[see Ins. Code § 533 (precluding insurance coverage for willful acts of insured)], and may be liable for punitive damages[Cobbs v. Grant (1972) 8 Cal. 3d 229, 240, 104 Cal. Rptr. 505, 502 P.2d 1] .

[c] Statute of Limitations

In some jurisdictions (including, apparently, California, as discussed in § 209.15), the patient has a longer statute of limitations if he or she sues in negligence[Cobbs v. Grant (1972) 8 Cal. 3d 229, 240, 104 Cal. Rptr. 505, 502 P.2d 1] .

17-209 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 209.13

§ 209.13 Damages Recoverable in Negligence Action

The general measure of damages in an action against a dentist based on negligence is the amount which will compensate the plaintiff for all the detriment proximately caused by the defendant's breach of duty, whether or not such detriment could have been anticipated[Civ. Code § 3333; see also discussion under § 209.12[2]].

A plaintiff who sues a health care provider for professional negligence, however, is subject to the Medical Injury Compensation Reform Act of 1975 (MICRA), which allows evidence of collateral sources[see Civ. Code § 3333.1], limits the amount of noneconomic damages recoverable[see Civ. Code § 3333.2], and provides for periodic payment of a judgment for future damages [see Code Civ. Proc. § 667.7(a); Fein v. Permanente Medical Group (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 137, 155-178, 211 Cal. Rptr. 368, 695 P.2d 665 (upholding constitutionality of Civ. Code §§ 3333.1, 3333.2; periodic payments as mandatory under Code Civ. Proc. § 667.7)]. For the purposes of these rules, the term "professional negligence" means negligent conduct by a health care provider in rendering professional services which proximately causes a personal injury or wrongful death, provided that such services are within the scope of service for which the provider is licensed and are not within any restriction imposed by the licensing authority or a licensed hospital[Civ. Code §§ 3333.1(c)(2), 3333.2(c)(2); Code Civ. Proc. § 667.7(e)(4)].

For discussion of these rules, see Ch. 415, Physicians: Medical Malpractice .

§ 209.14 Punitive Damages

No claim for punitive damages against a health care provider may be included in a complaint or other pleading unless the court enters an order allowing an amended pleading that includes a claim for punitive damages to be filed. The court may allow the filing of an amended pleading claiming punitive damages on a motion by the party seeking the amended pleading, when, on the basis of the supporting and opposing affidavits presented, that party has established that there is a substantial probability that he or she will prevail on the claim under Civ. Code § 3294[Code Civ. Proc. § 425.13(a)]. For discussion ofthe availability of punitive damages, see Ch. 177, Damages, § 177.40 et seq.

The motion for such an order must be filed within two years after the complaint or initial pleading is filed or not less than nine months before the date the matter is first set for trial, whichever is earlier[Code Civ. Proc. § 425.13(a)].

For further discussion and forms for obtaining an order under Code Civ. Proc. § 425.13, see Ch. 415, Physicians: Medical Malpractice .

Chapter 209 DENTISTS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Malpractice

17-209 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 209.15

§ 209.15 Statute of Limitations

[1] Negligence

An action against a dentist for injury or death based on professional negligence must be commenced within three years after the date of injury or one year after the plaintiff discovers or should have discovered the injury through the use of reasonable diligence. The statute of limitations may be tolled, however, on proof of fraud, intentional concealment, or the presence of a foreign body in the plaintiff which has no therapeutic or diagnostic purpose or effect[see Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5].

An action for malpractice brought by a minor must also be commenced within three years from the date of the wrongful act, except that a minor under the full age of six must commence any action within three years or prior to his or her eighth birthday, whichever provides a longer period. The statute of limitationsfor minors is tolled for any period during which the parent or guardian engages in fraud or collusion with the defendant's insurer or health care provider in the failure to bring an action for alleged professional negligence on behalf of the minor[see Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5; see generally Ch. 367A, Minors: Tort Actions].

If the action is against a dentist who is a public employee, both Gov. Code § 954.6 (the statute of limitations for actions against public entities under the Tort Claims Act) and Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5 (the statute of limitations for medical malpractice actions) apply with equal force. Thus, for example, if the plaintiff files a claim under the Torts Act against the dentist, and the plaintiff receives notice of rejection of that claim pursuant to Gov. Code § 913, a court action must be filed within six months or the action will be barred under Gov. Code § 945.6, even though the action is filed within the one-year limitation period of Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5[Anson v. County of Merced (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 1195, 1199, 1202, 249 Cal. Rptr. 457] .

[2] Battery

Formerly, the same statute of limitations, former Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5, applied to causes of action for both negligence and battery since the statute applied to actions for injury or death resulting from professional services rendered without consent or for error or omission in practice. Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5 was amended and now applies only to actions for injury or death based on professional negligence. Since professional negligence is defined elsewhere in the codes as a negligent act or omission to act[see Civ. Code §§ 3333.1(c)(2), 3333.2(c)(2); Code Civ. Proc. § 364(f)(2)], Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5 may no longer apply to an action against a dentist for battery. If this is the case, the statute of limitations in a battery action would be two years (one year, prior to January 1, 2003)[Code Civ. Proc. § 335.1; see former Code Civ. Proc. § 340(3); Ch. 345, Limitation of Actions, § 345.14] and would commence running immediately on the commission of the battery[Sonbergh v. MacQuarrie (1952) 112 Cal. App. 2d 771, 773-774, 247 P.2d 133] .

[3] Notice of Intention to Commence Action

[a] Requirement

An action based on a dentist's professional negligence cannot be commenced unless the defendant has been given at least 90 days prior notice of the intention to commence the action[see Code Civ. Proc. § 364(a)]. Although no particular form of notice is necessary, the notice must inform the defendant of the legal basis of the claim and the type of loss sustained, specifying the nature of the injuries suffered[Code Civ. Proc. § 364(b)]. Service of the notice may be effected as prescribed in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1010-1020[Code Civ. Proc. § 364(c)].

This notice requirement, however, does not apply to any defendant whose name is unknown to the plaintiff at the time of filing the complaint and who is identified in the complaint by afictitious name pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 474[Code Civ. Proc. § 364(e)].

The notice is not required in battery actions. Thus, a plaintiff may not extend the one-year statute of limitations for battery by filing a notice within 90 days before the statute's expiration[see Noble v. Superior Court (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 1189, 1192-1194, 237 Cal. Rptr. 38 (action against physician)].

For a form of notice, see Ch. 415, Physicians: Medical Malpractice .

[b] Extension of Period of Limitation

If the notice is served within 90 days of the expiration of the statute of limitations, the time for commencement of the action is extended 90 days from the service of the notice[Code Civ. Proc. § 364(d); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5 and the discussion under [1] above].

[c] Effect of Failure to Give Notice

Failure to comply with the notice provision of Code Civ. Proc. § 364 neither invalidates any court proceedings nor affects the jurisdiction of the court to render judgment. Failure to comply by any attorney at law, however, does render such person subject to professional discipline and the State Bar of California must investigate and take appropriate action in any such case brought to its attention[Code Civ. Proc. § 365].

§ 209.16 Security for Costs in Professional Negligence Actions

[1] On Defendant's Motion

In an action for damages for personal injuries against a dentist or his or her employer hospital for error, omission, or negligence in the performance of professional services, or performance of professional services without consent, the defendant may move the court, within six months after service of summons, for an order requiring the plaintiff to furnish an undertaking in a sum not to exceed $500 as security for costs of defense as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 1029.6(d), which may be awarded against the plaintiff [Code Civ. Proc. § 1029.6(a)].

The defendant's motion for an order requiring security must be supported by an affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) showing that the claim against the defendant is frivolous. Notice must be given to the plaintiff and to all defendants who appeared in the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 1029.6(a)].

Within 30 days of receipt of the notice, any other defendant who appeared in the action may join with the moving party to request such an order. A defendant who fails to join with the moving party may not subsequently move for an order requiring security [Code Civ. Proc. § 1029.6(a)].

The motion is not available in actions filed in small claims court [Code Civ. Proc. § 1029.6(b)].

For discussion of the hearing on a motion for security, the awarding of costs to the prevailing party, and defendant's preclusion from making a motion for summary judgment, see Ch. 295, Hospitals .

[2] Security in Form of Undertaking

The undertaking must be executed by two or more sufficient personal sureties, by one sufficient admitted surety insurer, or by any combination of sufficient personal sureties and admitted surety insurers [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.310]. It must be in writing and signed by the sureties under oath [see Code Civ. Proc. § 995.320(a)]. It appears that the undertaking is no longer required to be approved by the court [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 995.410, 1029.6].

For further discussion of undertakings and related forms, see Ch. 538, Suretyship, Bonds, and Undertakings, § 538.40 et seq.

In addition to the other limitations the Legislature has imposed in an action against a dentist based on his or her professional negligence, Bus. & Prof. Code § 6146 sets forth rules governing the percentage of the recovery an attorney may contract for or collect as his or her fee in the action, whether recovery is by settlement, arbitration, or judgment. § 209.18 Malpractice Reporting Requirements

[1] Settlement, Judgment, or Arbitration Award

Every insurer providing professional liability insurance to a licensed dentist is required to send a complete report to the Dental Board of California for any settlement or arbitration award over $10,000 of or for a claim or action for damages for death or personal injury caused by the dentist's negligence, error, or omission in practice, or by the dentist's rendering of unauthorized professional services. The report must be sent within 30 days after the written settlement agreement has been reduced to writing and signed by all parties, or within 30 days after service of the arbitration award on the parties [Bus. & Prof. Code § 801(c)].

Every settlement, judgment, or arbitration award over $30,000 of a claim or action for damages for death or personal injury caused by a dentist's negligence, error or omission in practice, or by the unauthorized rendering of professional services, by a dentist who does not possess professional liability insurance, must be reported to the Dental Board of California within 30 days after the written settlement agreement is reduced to writing and signed by all the parties or 30 days after service of the judgment or arbitration award on the parties. A complete report must be made by the dentist or his or her counsel, with a copy sent to the claimant through his or her counsel if the person is represented, or directly if he or she is not. If, within 45 days of the conclusion of the written settlement agreement or service of the judgment or arbitration award on the parties, counsel for the claimant, or, if the claimant is not represented by counsel, the claimant himself or herself, has not received a copy of the report, the claimant must make the report himself or herself. Failure of the licensee or claimant, or, if represented by counsel, their counsel, to comply, as well as knowing and intentional failure to comply or conspiracy or collusion not to comply, or to hinder or impede any other person in the compliance, are each punishable by a fine [Bus. & Prof. Code § 802(a)].

The required content of the reports is set out in Bus. & Prof. Code § 804.

[2] Judgment or Criminal Conviction

Within 10 days after a criminal conviction, or a malpractice judgment in excess of $30,000, the court clerk of the court rendering the judgment is required to report that fact to the Dental Board of California [Bus. & Prof. Code § 803(a)].

The Dental Board of California has the power to revoke or suspend a dentist's license after a hearing conducted in accordance with the provisions of the Administrative Procedure Act, Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.[Bus. & Prof. Code § 1670]. Protection of the public is the Board's highest priority in exercising its licensing, regulatory and disciplinary functions. Whenprotecting the public is inconsistent with other interests sought to be promoted, protecting the public is paramount[Bus. & Prof. Code § 1601.2].

§ 209.32 Judicial Review

Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5] is the proper remedy to review orders suspending or revoking a license [Gov. Code § 11523]. Neither a writ of prohibition nor certiorari will lie to review orders suspending or revoking a license [Whitten v. California State Board, etc. (1937) 8 Cal. 2d 444, 446-447, 65 P.2d 1296] . Further, thepetitioner is not entitled to a trial de novo unless it is apparent from the record that the proceedings before the board were capricious. However, the court may allow further evidence to be submitted, if it appears that the interest of justice will best be served by so doing [see Dare v. Bd. of Medical Examiners (1943) 21 Cal. 2d 790, 800-801, 136 P.2d 304] .

§ 209.33 Proof of License Required in Action for Compensation

To bring or maintain an action, or to recover in law or equity in any action for the collection of compensation, a dentist must allege and prove that he or she was duly licensed at all times during the performance of the act of dentistry for which compensation is sought, regardless of the merits of the action [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 143, 1626].

The following acts and operations do not require a license from the Board of Dentistry [Bus. & Prof. Code § 1626]:

- The practice of oral surgery by a physician or surgeon licensed under the Medical Practice Act [Bus. & Prof. Code § 1626(a)].

- Specified practices in approved dental colleges and licensing examinations [Bus. & Prof. Code § 1626(b)-(d),(g)].

- The construction, alteration, and repair of specified dental prostheses and orthodontic appliances [Bus. & Prof. Code § 1626(e)].

- The manufacture and sale of wholesale dental supplies [Bus. & Prof. Code § 1626(f)].

- The practice of dentistry by specified federal personnel when engaged in the discharge of official duties [Bus. & Prof. Code § 1626].

§ 209.42 Decisions

[1] Malpractice

[a] Standard of Care

Dentist has duty to refer patient to specialist only if, under same circumstances, reasonably careful and skillful practitioner would have done so. Simone v. Sabo (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 253, 257, 231 P.2d 19

General practitioner not negligent absent proof that he or she did something that reasonably prudent and skillful dental specialist would not have done. Simone v. Sabo (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 253, 258, 231 P.2d 19

Dentist's extraction of impacted left lower second bicuspid did not fall below standard of care of reasonably prudent oral surgeon despite plaintiff's claim of severance of nerve and resulting numbness. Simone v. Sabo (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 253, 258, 231 P.2d 19

Dentist required to have and use only degree of learning and skill ordinarily possessed by dentists of good professionalreputation in same locality. Barham v. Widing (1930) 210 Cal. 206, 213, 291 P. 173

When expert testimony showed that dentists' diagnosis and treatment were within standard of care of community, and patient countered this evidence with only her personal declaration of negligence, court properly granted summary judgment in dentists' favor. Willard v. Hagemeister (1981) 121 Cal. App. 3d 406, 175 Cal. Rptr. 365

[b] Informed Consent

Dentists' representation of periodontal condition and salvageability of patient's tooth raised triable issue of fact in case concerning alleged misrepresentation of severity of patient's condition and dentist's alleged failure to disclose material facts necessary for informed consent. Willard v. Hagemeister (1981) 121 Cal. App. 3d 406, 416-419, 175 Cal. Rptr. 365

Failure to obtain informed consent constitutes battery when patient gave permission for physician to perform electromyograms and physician instead performed myelogram. Berkey v. Anderson (1969) 1 Cal. App. 3d 790, 803, 82 Cal. Rptr. 67

Matter of informed consent is not determined by whether or not physician's failure to disclose risks to patient was in conformity with recognizedpractices in community. Berkey v. Anderson (1969) 1 Cal. App. 3d 790, 805, 82 Cal. Rptr. 67

Informed consent involves duty of doctor to properly explain contemplated procedure and question of whether patient comprehended explanation. Berkey v. Anderson (1969) 1 Cal. App. 3d 790, 803, 82 Cal. Rptr. 67

When patient consents to certain treatment which doctor performs but undisclosed inherent complication with low probability occurs, action must be pleaded in negligence. Cobbs v. Grant (1972) 8 Cal. 3d 229, 240-241, 104 Cal. Rptr. 505, 502 P.2d 1

[c] Negligence

Actionable negligence consists of either practitioner doing something which should not have been done or omitting to do something which should have been done. Roberts v. Parker (1932) 121 Cal. App. 264, 268, 8 P.2d 908

Dentist was negligent in failing to use reasonable precautions and ordinary care in extracting tooth and treating wound following extraction; jury justified in finding that negligence was origin of plaintiff's osteomyelitis. Roberts v. Parker (1932) 121 Cal. App. 264, 268-270, 8 P.2d 908

[d] Pleading Professional Negligence

Malpractice action against several dentists and physician as sufficiently pleaded when plaintiff alleged defendants' agreement to treat plaintiff with professional skill, negligent acts by defendants, and injury to plaintiff asproximate result of same acts. Smith v. Beauchamp (1945) 71 Cal. App. 2d 250, 254-256, 162 P.2d 662

Joinder of cause of action for assault based on theory of unauthorized operation with cause of action based on theory that same operation was negligently performed was proper. Estrada v. Orwitz (1946) 75 Cal. App. 2d 54, 57, 170 P.2d 43

[e] Battery

Failure to obtain informed consent in California is battery if patient did not consent to procedure at all. Cobbs v. Grant (1972) 8 Cal. 3d 229, 239-240, 104 Cal. Rptr. 505, 502 P.2d 1

Plaintiff's consent to removal of tooth as complete legal defense in action against dentist for assault and battery based on alleged extraction by dentist of tooth other than one causing plaintiff pain. Carr v. Dickey (1958) 163 Cal. App. 2d 416, 423, 329 P.2d 539

Unauthorized surgical operation constitutes technical assault and battery. Estrada v. Orwitz (1946) 75 Cal. App. 2d 54, 57, 170 P.2d 43

Failure to obtain informed consent constitutes battery when patient gave permission for one procedure and physician

instead performed another for which no permission was given. Berkey v. Anderson (1969) 1 Cal. App. 3d 790, 803, 82 Cal. Rptr. 67

[f] Evidence

In action for damages for malpractice against dentist, jury was justified in inferring negligence from dentist's admission of having made mistake. Walter v. England (1933) 133 Cal. App. 676, 686-687, 24 P.2d 930

Admission of evidence of dentist's insurance coverage as not prejudicial error when conversation disclosing insurance involved admission of responsibility and mistake on part of dentist. Walter v. England (1933) 133 Cal. App. 676, 688-689, 24 P.2d 930

Failure to use proper professional care in treatment of patient is established only by expert testimony. Simone v. Sabo (1933) 37 Cal. 2d 253, 257-258, 231 P.2d 19

Expert testimony unnecessary when cases do not depend on facts peculiarly within knowledge of professional experts but rather depend on facts ascertainable through ordinary senses of nonexpert. Barham v. Widing (1930) 210 Cal. 206, 214, 291 P. 173

Testimony of plaintiff's husband that he was awakened night after night by wife's cries due to pain in her jaw subsequent to defendant dentist's needle breaking off during surgery and that wife had been in good health previously was admissible evidence constituting common knowledge and not necessitating expert testimony. Walter v. England (1933) 133 Cal. App. 676, 689-690, 24 P.2d 930

Arbitrarily excluding expert witness from testifying in dental malpractice case on geographical grounds held improper. Evans v. Ohanesian (1974) 39 Cal. App. 3d 121, 128, 112 Cal. Rptr. 236

Excluding expert witness from testifying in dental malpractice action on ground that witness is specialist and would hold defendant to higher standard of care than is required of general practitioner held improper. Evans v. Ohanesian (1974) 39 Cal. App. 3d 121, 128, 112 Cal. Rptr. 236

[g] Implied Contract

Although dentist cannot be held to guarantee results of services, in undertaking treatment of patient, practitioner impliedly contracts and represents that he or she possesses reasonable skill and learning and that he or she will use due care in application of such skill. Roberts v. Parker (1932) 121 Cal. App. 264, 267, 8 P.2d 908

[h] Liability for Other Acts

In action to recover for injuries sustained as result of X-ray burns, defendant dentist held liable under doctrine of respondeat superior for negligence of employee who operated X-ray machine. Ragin v. Zimmerman (1929) 206 Cal. 723, 730, 276 P. 107

Jury properly instructed jury that defendant dentist would be bound by message given nurse who had actual or ostensible authority. Rising v. Veatch (1931) 117 Cal. App. 404, 407, 3 P.2d 1023

When individual dentist guilty of negligence was employee of defendant corporation but corporation was alter ego of individual dentist, judgment as properly rendered against dentist and corporation. Nelson v. Painless Parker (1930)

104 Cal. App. 770, 778, 286 P. 1078

[i] Statute of Limitations

One-year statute of limitations of Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5 did not begin to run merely because plaintiff sought second opinion based on suspicions that plaintiff's treating dentist may have been doing something wrong; after second opinion dentist allayed plaintiff's concerns by indicating that medical treatment she had been receiving was fine, plaintiff then continued to be treated by original dentist. Kitzig v. Nordquist (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 1384, 1392-1396, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 762

Medical malpractice action against public entity brought after claim rejected under Gov. Code § 913 as required to be filed within six-month limitation period of Gov. Code § 945.6, even though action is filed within one-year limitation period of Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5 for medical malpractice actions. Anson v. County of Merced (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 1195, 1199, 1202, 249 Cal. Rptr. 457

One-year statute of limitations applicable to health care providers under Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5 as tolled and extended for 90 days by timely notice of intention to commence action under Code Civ. Proc. § 364. Gomez v. Valley View Sanitorium (1978) 87 Cal. App. 3d 507, 510, 151 Cal. Rptr. 97

Failure to remove pieces of roots of extracted teeth from plaintiff's jaw and gum was subject to statute of limitations, which began running on date plaintiff discovered or should have discovered presence of root pieces. Ehlen v. Burrows (1942) 51 Cal. App. 2d 141, 145-146, 124 P.2d 82

[j] Continuance

When party being sued by dentist in small claims court has malpractice claim against dentist exceeding jurisdictional amount in small claims court, party has right to continuance of small claims trial to comply with Code Civ. Proc. § 364 and former Code Civ. Proc. § 116.8(b) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 116.390). Clark v. Superior Court (1980) 113 Cal. App. 3d 865, 869, 169 Cal. Rptr. 898

[2] Proceedings Involving Licenses

[a] Membership in Professional Organizations

Writ of mandate requiring American Dental Association (ADA) to vacate decision reducing penalty imposed by California Dental Association (CDA) against dentist from expulsion to suspension properly granted when ADA failed to consider CDA code of ethics as ADA was required to do under its own bylaws. California Dental Assn. v. American Dental Assn. (1979) 23 Cal. 3d 346, 354-355, 152 Cal. Rptr. 546, 590 P.2d 401

Power of dental and medical associations to exclude persons from membership not unbridled but viewed judicially as fiduciary power to be exercised in reasonable and lawful manner for advancement of interests of medicalprofession and public generally. Pinsker v. Pacific Coast Soc. of Orthodontists (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 160, 165, 81 Cal. Rptr. 623, 460 P.2d 495 P.2d 495

Plaintiff dentist, by showing that exclusion from membership in defendant orthodontal associations deprives him of substantial economic advantages, establishes right to judicial intervention with respect to denial of application for membership. Pinsker v. Pacific Coast Society of Orthodontists (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 160, 164-165, 81 Cal. Rptr. 623, 460 P.2d 495

[b] Suspension, Revocation, and Reinstatement of Dental Licenses

Advertising to guarantee any dental service constitutes unprofessional conduct for which dentist is subject to license suspension or revocation. Webster v. Board of Dental Examiners (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 534, 540-541, 110 P.2d 992

In proceeding for reinstatement of license, Board of Dental Examiners may consider former licensee's business practices after revocation of license. Flanzer v. Board of Dental Examiners (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 1392, 1397-1398, 271 Cal. Rptr. 583

Proper conditions for reinstatement of license include: (1) requiring former licensee to take and pass California State Dental Board Examination, (2) requiring former licensee to limit practice to a solo practice or practice with one other dentist, and (3) requiring former licensee to submit to Board of Dental Examiners a detailed plan for practice. Flanzer v. Board of Dental Examiners (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 1392, 1398-1399, 271 Cal. Rptr. 583

Imposition of community service as condition of reinstatement of license is prohibited by Bus. & Prof. Code § 1671(e) if original discipline resulted from violations relating to quality of care. Flanzer v. Board of Dental Examiners (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 1392, 1400, 271 Cal. Rptr. 583

Reversal of dental license revocation requires redetermination of appropriate penalty by board when, at most, dentist had committed one act of unprofessional conduct, two acts of incompetence, and two acts of negligence, and board had improperly held dentist accountable for acts of other dentists under respondeat superior theory. James v. Board of Dental Examiners (1985) 172 Cal. App. 3d 1096, 1110, 1112, 218 Cal. Rptr. 710

Board of Medical Examiners' decision to adopt hearing officer's proposed order to dismiss proceedings for license suspension or revocation against dentist leaves licensee as though no accusation had been filed against him and thus with no right to protect and no entitlement to issuance of writ of mandate. Grant v. Board of Medical Examiners (1965) 232 Cal. App. 2d 820, 827-828, 43 Cal. Rptr. 270

Advertisement by dentist of professional superiority constituted unprofessional conduct subject to licensesuspension or revocation. Barron v. Board of Dental Examiners (1941) 44 Cal. App. 2d 790, 793, 113 P.2d 247

Aiding and abetting unlicensed person in practice of dentistry as constituting grounds for suspension of license to practice dentistry even if unlicensed person performed no surgical operation but merely took molds or casts. Jacobs v. Board of Dental Examiners (1922) 189 Cal. 709, 714, 209 P. 1006

Aiding and abetting corporation in practice of dentistry constitutes grounds for suspension of license to practice dentistry. Painless Parker v. Board of Dental Examiners (1932) 216 Cal. 285, 298-299, 14 P.2d 67

Bartering by dentist for use of license of other qualified practitioner so as to employ unqualified person to practice dentistry under license of another constitutes unprofessional conduct for which license suspension or revocation is appropriate. Homan v. Board of Dental Examiners (1927) 202 Cal. 593, 596-598, 262 P. 324

[c] Review of Administrative Law Decisions

Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(administrative mandamus) applies to all cases in which agency decision being reviewed by court is product of proceeding in which hearing and related procedural protections are required by law. Anton v. San Antonio Community Hosp. (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 802, 817, 140 Cal. Rptr. 442, 567 P.2d 1162

In mandamus proceeding to review action of administrativelaw board, trial de novo is not unqualified or unlimited right and defendant not entitled to remain silent during hearing before administrative body and subsequently secure trial de novo in unlimited sense. Dare v. Bd. of Medical Examiners (1943) 21 Cal. 2d 790, 795, 799, 136 P.2d 304

Writ of prohibition is available to restrain threatened exercise of judicial power in excess of jurisdiction but inappropriate to restrain officer or board exercising purely ministerial functions. Whitten v. California State Board, etc. (1937) 8 Cal. 2d 444, 445, 65 P.2d 1296

State agencies engaged in making administrative decisions are subject to review by writ of mandate. Whitten v. California State Board, etc. (1937) 8 Cal. 2d 444, 446-447, 65 P.2d 1296

Independent judgment test applies in first judicial review of administrative proceeding in which license to practice dentistry is revoked; substantial evidence test applies to appellate review of first judicial review. James v. Board of Dental Examiners (1985) 172 Cal. App. 3d 1096, 1105-1106, 218 Cal. Rptr. 710

[3] Antitrust

Labor exemption to California's Cartwright Antitrust Act (Bus. & Prof. Code § 16703) extends to concerted effort by voluntary dental hygienists' association to increase and fix members' compensation paid by dentists,under whose supervision they are legally required to work. California Dental Assn. v. California Dental Hygienists' Assn. (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 49, 63-71, 271 Cal. Rptr. 410

Defendant.	)	[Amount demanded _____
	)	(exceeds or does not exceed) $10,000]
	)	[LIMITED CIVIL CASE]

Plaintiff alleges:

1. Defendant is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a dentist duly licensed to practice his/her profession and is practicing his/her profession in _____ County, California.

[2. Plaintiff is ignorant of the true names and capacities of defendants sued herein as DOES I-_____, inclusive, andtherefore sues these defendants by such fictitious names. Plaintiff will amend this complaint to allege their true names and capacities when ascertained. (Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that each of the fictitiously named defendants is negligently responsible in some manner for the occurrences herein alleged, and that plaintiff's injuries as herein alleged were proximately caused by such negligence.)]

3. On _____ [date], in _____ [city], _____ County, California, defendant maintained dental offices and held himself/herself out to the public as a competent and skilled dentist. Relying on defendant's skill and competency in dentistry, plaintiff employed him/her to _____ [specify dental service, e.g., examine and treat plaintiff's teeth to alleviate pain from toothache].

4. At this time and place, defendant negligently examined, diagnosed, and treated plaintiff's _____ [specify area treated] [in that _____ (if appropriate, generally state acts and omissions wherein defendant failed to conform to standard of care required)].

5. As a proximate result of the defendant's negligence, plaintiff _____ [specify result of defendant's negligence, e.g., suffered osteomyelitis of the jaw] and suffered the injuries alleged below.

6. As a further proximate result of the defendant's negligence, plaintiff was hurt and injured in his/her health, strength, and activity, sustaining injury to his/her nervous system and person, all of which injuries have caused, andcontinue to cause, plaintiff great mental, physical, and nervous pain and suffering. [Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that such injuries will result in some permanent disability to him/her.]. As a result of these injuries, plaintiff has suffered general damages.

7. As a further proximate result of defendant's negligence, plaintiff has been damaged in that he/she has been required to expend money and incur obligations for medical services, X-rays, drugs, and sundries reasonably required in the treatment and relief of his/her injuries.

8. As a further proximate result of defendant's negligence, plaintiff's earning capacity has been greatly impaired, both in the past and present.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendant as follows:

1. For general damages according to proof;

2. For medical and related expenses according to proof;

3. For loss of earnings according to proof;

4. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

5. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

The form of complaint in [1], above may be used by a patient in an action to recover damages for personal injuries resulting from a dentist's professional negligence. In appropriate case, this form may be combined with a complaint alleging battery [for a form, see § 209.65], lack of informed consent [for a form, see § 209.64], or both. For discussion, see § 209.12.

[3] Notice of Intention to Commence Action Required

An action based on a health care provider's professional negligence may not be commenced unless the defendant has been given at least 90 days prior notice of the intention to commence the action[Code Civ. Proc. § 364(a)]. For discussion, see § 209.15[3], and for a form of notice, see Ch. 415, Physicians: Medical Malpractice .

[4] No Statement of Amount of Damages

A complaint for personal injuries or wrongful death may not state the amount of damages sought to be recovered[Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)]. Therefore, no reference to specific dollar amounts of damages should be used. For forms and procedures for use to ascertain the specific damages sought in such personal injury or wrongful death actions, see Ch. 177, Damages .

[5] Allegations

Negligence, including malpractice, may be pleaded in general terms[Landeros v. Flood (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 399, 408, 131 Cal. Rptr. 69, 551 P.2d 389 ; Stafford v. Shultz (1954) 42 Cal. 2d 767, 774, 270 P.2d 1] . It is thus sufficient, at least as far as a general demurrer is concerned, to allege that certain treatment was negligently administered by the defendant to the plaintiff's damage without alleging in what respect the treatment may have been deficient[Stafford v. Shultz (1954) 42 Cal. 2d 767, 774, 270 P.2d 1 ; Greninger v. Fischer (1947) 81 Cal. App. 2d 549, 552, 184 P.2d 694] .

Therefore, the complaint alleges:

- The existence of a dentist-patient relationship, express or implied (Paragraph 3), thereby establishing plaintiff's right to expect defendant will care for and treat plaintiff with proper professional skills and will exercise reasonable and ordinary care and diligence[see Keene v. Wiggins (1977) 69 Cal. App. 3d 308, 313, 138 Cal. Rptr. 3 (stating that essential element of malpractice suit is establishment of duty owed to plaintiff by physician and adding that the duty owed varies with the relationship of parties, the foreseeability of injury or harm, and plaintiff's reasonable reliance on opinion received from defendant); see also Stafford v. Shultz (1954) 42 Cal. 2d 767, 775, 270 P.2d 1 ; Felton v. Schaeffer (1991) 229

Cal. App. 3d 229, 234-235, 279 Cal. Rptr. 713] .

- Negligence on defendant's part in rendering professional services (Paragraph 4)[Greninger v. Fischer (1947) 81 Cal. App. 2d 549, 552, 184 P.2d 694 ; Smith v. Beauchamp (1945) 71 Cal. App. 2d 250, 254-256, 162 P.2d 662] .

- Plaintiff's injuries, pleaded both generally and specifically (Paragraphs 4-8)[see Civ. Code § 3333; Myers v. Stephens (1965) 233 Cal. App. 2d 104, 120, 43 Cal. Rptr. 420 (noting the general rules that general damages need not be specially pleaded, but special damages do); for a discussion of general and special damages in tort actions, see Ch. 177, Damages, § 177.140 et seq.].

- Defendant's negligence as a proximate cause of plaintiff's injuries (Paragraphs 4-8)[Keen v. Prisinzano (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 275, 279, 100 Cal. Rptr. 82 ; Marvin v. Talbott (1963) 216 Cal. App. 2d 383, 385, 30 Cal. Rptr. 893] .

Although verification of this complaint is not required[see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(a)], verification will require any answer to be verified in an unlimited civil case[Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446]. Verification will also preclude the defendant from using a general denial in an unlimited civil case, and will preclude a general denial in a limited civil case if the action is a claim assigned to a third party for collection[Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion, see Ch. 26, Answers .

[7] Statute of Limitations

An action for personal injury or death against a dentist based on professional negligence must be commenced within three years after the date of injury or one year after the plaintiff discovers or should have discovered the injury by use of reasonable diligence[Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5]. For discussion of tolling the statute of limitations and actions by minors, see § 209.14.

[8] Security for Costs

In an action for damages for personal injuries against a dentist for professional negligence, the defendant may, within six months after service of summons, move the court for an order requiring the plaintiff to furnish an undertaking in a sum not to exceed $500 as security for costs of defense as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 1029.6(d), which may be awarded against the plaintiff[Code Civ. Proc. § 1029.6(a); for discussion, see § 209.16].

[2] Use of Form

The complaint in [1], above, may be used by a dental patient in an action based on negligence to recover damages for personal injuries if the patient consented to certain treatment which the doctor performed, but an undisclosed inherent complication with low probability occurred[see Cobbs v. Grant (1972) 8 Cal. 3d 229, 240-241, 104 Cal. Rptr. 505, 502 P.2d 1 ; for discussion, see § 209.12].

In appropriate case, this form may be combined with a complaint alleging general negligence [for a form, see § 209.60], battery [for a form, see § 209.65], or both.

[3] Notice of Intention to Commence Action Required

An action based on a health care provider's professional negligence may not be commenced unless the defendant has been given at least 90 days prior notice of the intention to commence the action[Code Civ. Proc. § 364(a)]. For discussion, see § 209.15[3], and for a form of notice, see Ch. 415, Physicians: Medical Malpractice .

[4] No Statement of Amount of Damages

In an action to recover damages for personal injury or wrongful death, the complaint must not state the amount of actual or punitive damages demanded for this cause of action[Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)].

Otherwise, the amounts claimed as damages must be alleged[Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)] or an equivalent statement must be included, for example, a statement that the damages for a particular loss or harm sustained[see Civ. Code §§ 3281, 3282] are not known and that leave will be sought to amend the complaint to state the exact amount when ascertained. If this is done, counsel must remember to seek leave to amend the complaint to so state before judgment.

For discussion of and forms for requesting and stating the amount of damages sought when they are not stated in the complaint, see Ch. 177, Damages, § 177.40 et seq., and Ch. 205, Defaults and Default Judgments [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 425.11, 425.115].

5. On _____ [date], after plaintiff arrived in defendant's office, an anesthetic was administered by defendant which rendered plaintiff unconscious. While plaintiff was unconscious, defendant _____[specify treatment performed, e.g., extracted all four of plaintiff's wisdom teeth], a procedure to which plaintiff had not consented [except _____ (specify procedure to which plaintiff had consented)].

[OR]

5. Defendant did not inform plaintiff that a risk integral to the procedure [and highly probable to occur] was _____ [specify risk, e.g., the severing of the mandibular nerve]. In performing the procedure, _____ [describe occurrence of risk].

[2] Use of Form

The complaint in [1], above, may be used by a dental patient in an action based on battery to recover damages for personal injuries when plaintiff did not consent either to the entire procedure or some part of the procedure performed by defendant dentist or when plaintiff consented to the procedure but defendant did not inform him or her of a risk integral to the procedure[see Cobbs v. Grant (1972) 8 Cal. 3d 229, 239, 104 Cal. Rptr. 505, 502 P.2d 1] .

In appropriate case, this form may be combined with a complaint alleging general negligence [for a form, see § 209.60], negligent failure to obtain informed consent [for a form, see § 209.64], or both. For discussion, see § 209.12.

[3] No Statement of Amount of Damages

A complaint for personal injuries or wrongful death may not state the amount of damages sought to be recovered[Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)]. Therefore, no reference to specific dollar amounts of damages should be used. For forms and procedures for use in ascertaining the specific damages sought in such personal injury or wrongful death actions, see Ch. 177, Damages .

[4] Allegations

The complaint alleges in part:

- Plaintiff's consent to the procedure performed by defendant (Paragraph 4).

- Defendant's performance of a procedure different from the one consented to by plaintiff or the failure of defendant to inform plaintiff of a risk integral to the procedure and the occurrence of that risk (Paragraph 5).

- Damages suffered by plaintiff (Paragraph 6)[see Cobbs v. Grant (1972) 8 Cal. 3d 229, 239, 104 Cal. Rptr. 505, 502 P.2d 1] .

[5] Notice of Intention to Commence Action Not Required

No notice of intention to commence an action for battery against a dentist need be filed prior to the filing of this complaint because the notice is required only in actions based on a health care provider's professional negligence, which is defined as anegligent act or omission[Code Civ. Proc. § 364(f)(2)]. It may be advisable to file such notice since a trial court may consider that the facts pleaded in support of a battery theory should be interpreted as a matter of law to state a cause of action for negligence. Nevertheless, the failure to comply with the notice requirements does not invalidate the court's proceedings, nor does it affect the court's jurisdictionto render a judgment. Failure to comply is, however, ground for professional discipline[Code Civ. Proc. § 365].

§ 209.66 Allegation of Severance or Traumatization of Nerve During Dental Procedure

[1] FORM Allegation of Severance or Traumatization of Nerve During Dental Procedure

At this time and place, defendant [negligently and unskillfully] _____ [severed or traumatized] plaintiff's _____[specify nerve, e.g., mandibular] nerve during the _____[specify procedure performed, e.g., extraction by defendant of plaintiff's left lower second bicuspid] which caused plaintiff numbness in the _____ [specify affected area, e.g., lower lip and jaw].

[2] Use of Form

The allegation in [1], above, is for use in a complaint to recover damages for the severance or traumatization of a nerve and resulting numbness[see Myers v. Ross (1963) 216 Cal. App. 2d 645, 649, 31 Cal. Rptr. 110 (dentist was negligent in severing nerve while fitting patient for dentures)].

If the plaintiff was not informed of the risk of a severed nerve, but the probability of the nerve being severed was low, the cause of action would appear to be for negligence based on lack of informed consent, and the allegation should be insertedin the form of complaint in § 209.64[1].

If the risk was integral to the procedure being performed, the cause of action is probably for battery, and the allegation should be inserted in the form of complaint in § 209.65[1].

If plaintiff was informed of the risks involved and consented to the procedures used but the nerve was severed as a result of the negligence of the dentist, the cause of action is for negligence and, and the allegation should be inserted in the form of complaint in § 209.60[1].

For discussion of the different possible actions, see the discussion under § 209.12.

Petitioner alleges:

[EITHER]

1. Petitioner is now [, and for many years has been,] regularly and duly licensed by the Board of Dental Examiners of the State of California to practice dentistry in California, and holds a license to do so; the license number is _____ and it was issued to him/her on _____ [date].

[OR]

1. Petitioner meets all of the qualifications for a dentist's license established by law. Petitioner duly applied for a dentist's license on _____[date] in compliance with all statutes and administrative regulations governing such an application.

[CONTINUE]

2. Respondent Board of Dental Examiners is a statewide administrative agency charged by law with administration of the Dental Practice Act, Business and Professions Code, Section 1600 et seq..

3. _____ [State authority of respondent to exercise discretion in determining relevant facts and requirement that hearing be held, e.g., Under Sections 1670-1680 of the Business and Professions Code, the Board has discretion todetermine whether or not a ground exists either for suspension or for revocation of a dentist's license, and particularly whether _____ (specify facts constituting ground for action). Pursuant to Business and Professions Code Section 1670 and Government Code Sections 11500-11528, the Board is required to hold a hearing and take evidence in its proceedings for the determination of those facts].

4. _____ [Specify facts regarding holding of hearing, e.g., On _____ [date], at _____ (specify meeting place) a hearing was held to receive evidence on the issue of whether or not a ground exists either for suspension or for revocation of the dentist's license which petitioner then held and which was then in full force and effect. Petitioner attended the hearing. On _____ [date], petitioner received the Board's decision and order _____(specify effect of decision and order, e.g., revoking petitioner's dentist's license) on the ground that _____ (specify, if possible). _____ (State fact of application for reconsideration, if appropriate, and adverse result)].

5. The Board's decision and order are invalid for the following reasons:

[STATE reasons that decision is invalid, e.g., :]

a. The administrative law judge found that _____ [state all findings]. The Board does not have authority to _____ [suspend or revoke or deny] a dentist's license on any of those grounds.

b. At the hearing, petitioner tried to offer evidence toshow that _____ [specify facts provable by evidence in question]. This evidence was in the form of _____[specify, e.g., the testimony of _____(name)]. The hearing officer ruled that this evidence was not admissible and it was not received. The evidence was admissible and should have been received.

c. The hearing administrative law judge found that _____ [state specific findings]. [The evidence received at the hearing does not support these findings, as petitioner alleges more particularly below.]

[CONTINUE]

6. _____ [A verbatim transcript of the record of the hearing, containing the evidence received, is attached as Exhibit A and made a part hereof or The substance of the evidence received at the hearing is as follows: _____ (state substance of evidence).] [If petitioner claims that evidence does not support findings, add: The evidence does not support the findings for thefollowing reasons: _____ (specify).] [If petitioner claims that incompetent evidence was received, add: Petitioner objected at the hearing to the following evidence, on the grounds indicated, but in each instance petitioner's objection was not sustained and the evidence was received: _____ (identify evidence, e.g., the testimony of _____(name), which was offered to show _____(specify, e.g., petitioner's former affiliation with particular political parties in violation of petitioner's constitutional rights) _____ (state ground for objection, e.g., which was objected to on the ground that _____ (specify)).]

[7. Add, if appropriate : Petitioner has the following relevant evidence that was not presented at the hearing: _____ (describe completely). This evidence could not be produced at the hearing because _____ (specify why, in the exercise of reasonable diligence, petitioner could not produce evidence and, if appropriate, why evidence could not be produced on reconsideration). This evidence tends to show that _____ (state what evidence will prove).]

[8. If attorney's fees are claimed under Gov. Code § 800, add : As an incident of bringing and maintaining this proceeding, petitioner has become, and is, obligated personally to pay to his/her counsel _____ (name), attorney's fees _____ (exceeding $7,500 or in the sum of $_____).]

WHEREFORE, petitioner prays judgment as follows:

[1. If alternative writ procedure is used: For an alternative writ of mandate directing respondent to set aside its order of _____[date], _____ (specify effect of order, e.g., revoking petitioner's dentist's license), _____ (if application for license was denied, add: and to reconsider whether petitioner is entitled to receive a dentist's license as applied for*; or if license was suspended, revoked, or otherwise restricted, add:* and to reinstate petitioner's dentist's license as it existed before that order was issued or in the alternative to show cause why a peremptory writ of mandate to the same effect should not be issued);]

[2. If petitioner will seek stay of operation of administrative order or decision pending judgment, add : For an order restraining respondent from giving effect to its order of _____ (date), _____ (specify effect of order), until further order of the court and to show cause why operation of that order should not be stayed pending the judgment in this proceeding;]

3. For a peremptory writ of mandate _____ [to the same effect as the alternative writ except for the order to show cause or set out terms at length as in Paragraph 1 of this prayer, omitting words relating to order to show cause];

[4. For reasonable attorney's fees, in addition to any other relief granted or other costs awarded;]

5. For costs of suit herein incurred [add, if appropriate: including $_____ for preparation of the administrative record]; and

6. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

VERIFICATION

I, _____ [name], am the petitioner in the above-entitled proceeding. I have read the foregoing petition and know the contents thereof. The same is true of my own knowledge, except as to those matters that are therein alleged on information and belief, and as to those matters, I believe it to be true.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

[2] Use of Form

[a] In General

The form of petition for a writ of mandate in [1], above, is for use by an aggrieved dentist to obtain judicial review of an administrative decision (and resulting order, if any) that the petitioner's license be suspended or revoked or that the petitioner's application for a license be denied. For discussion of petitions for writs of mandate to review administrative decisions, see Ch. 474, Availability of Judicial Review of Agency Decisions , through Ch. 474C, Proceudres in Reviewing Agency Decisions .

[b] Alternative Writ Procedure

If petitioner proceeds by the alternative writ procedure, he or she should prepare a petition, an order for issuance of the alternative writ, if local court rules or practice require, and an alternative writ of mandate. He or she must serve a copy of the petition on the respondent and file the petition along with proof of service[Code Civ. Proc. § 1107]. At the time, the alternative writ is deposited, but not filed, with the clerk of the court. Five days after the filing of the petition, the court must examine thepapers on file and issue or decline toissue the alternative writ. Within the five-day period, the respondent may file points and authorities in opposition to the alternative writ. If the respondent files a memorandum, he or she must serve a copy on the petitioner, but the petitioner has no right to respond[see Code Civ. Proc. § 1107]. If the court issues the alternative writ, the judge signs either the order for issuance or the writ itself. When the writ had been duly issued, the petitioner is informed and he or she may then have a copy served on the respondent[see Code Civ. Proc. § 1096]. The alternative writ includes an order to show cause why a peremptory writ should not be issued at a time and place specified in the writ[see Code Civ. Proc. § 1087].

For a form of an alternative writ of mandate, see Ch. 474C, Procedures in Reviewing Agency Decisions .

[c] Noticed Application Procedure

Pursuant to the noticed application procedure, the petitioner prepares his or her petition and a notice fixing a time (at least 10 days in advance) and place for hearing the petition[see Code Civ. Proc. § 1088]. Copies of these papers may be filed and served in the same manner as in an ordinary civil action[Code Civ. Proc. § 1107; see Code Civ. Proc. § 1088.5]. If the petition is filed in the trial court without proof of service pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1088.5, the respondent has 30 days to answer or otherwise respond after service of the petition when a record ofthe proceeding to be reviewed has been filed with the petition or when no record is required, or has 30 days to answer or otherwise respond following receipt of a copy of the record if a record has been requested pursuant to Gov. Code § 11523 or otherwise, and the record has not been filed with the petition[Code Civ. Proc. § 1089.5]. If proof of service is filed with the petition, the respondent may serve and file points and authorities in opposition to the petition within five days after the filing of the petition[see Code Civ. Proc. § 1107]. However, no alternative writ is issued[see Code Civ. Proc. § 1108]. Instead, the court hears the petition and the respondent's answer, if any, on the date fixed by the notice for hearing. If the petitioner makes a persuasive case, the court issues or orders issued the peremptory writ[see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1088, 1089, 1094].

[3] Proof of Service Required

Proof of service of a copy of the petition on each respondent and real party in interest must accompany the petition when it is offered for filing (except when, in its discretion and for good cause, the court has granted the application for the writ ex parte)[Code Civ. Proc. § 1107]. In a trial court, if no alternative writ is sought, proof of service of a copy of the petition need not accompany the application for the writ at the time of filing, but proof of service of a copy of the filed petition must be lodged with the court prior to a hearing or any action by the court[Code Civ. Proc. § 1088.5].

[4] Points and Authorities

Points and authorities customarily accompany a petition filed in a superior court, although they do not appear to be expressly required by statute.

[5] Allegations

The petition in [1], above, alleges in part[see Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5]:

- That petitioner is beneficially interested in the issuance of the writ (Paragraph 1).
- The Board of Dental Examiner's authority to exercise discretion in determining relevant facts (Paragraph 3).
- The requirement that a hearing be held at which evidence is required to be taken (Paragraph 3).
- Facts regarding the holding of the hearing (Paragraph 4).
- The decision of the board (Paragraph 4).
- The reasons for the invalidity of the decision (Paragraph 5).

For discussion of the essential and optional allegations in a petition for administrative mandate, see Ch. 474C, Procedures in Reviewing Agency Decisions .

[6] Verification

Verification of this complaint is not required, but verification of the complaint requires the defendant to file a verified answer[Code Civ. Proc. § 446] and precludes a general denial[Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion of the effect that verifying a complaint has on the answer, see Ch. 26, Answers .

[7] Time for Filing

The petition for writ of mandate must be filed within 30 days after the last day on which reconsideration can be ordered[Gov. Code § 11523].

[8] Attorney's Fees

In a civil action to appeal or review the award, finding, or other determination of any administrative proceeding under the Government Code or any other provision of state law, except actions of the State Board of Control, the complainant, if he or she prevails in the civil action, may collect reasonable attorney's fees, computed at $100 per hour, not to exceed $7,500, if the complainant is personally obligated to pay such fees and if it was determined that the administrative decision or award was the result of arbitrary or capricious action or conduct by a public entity or an official thereof acting in an official capacity[Gov. Code § 800].

Chapter 211 DEPOSIT IN COURT
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

17-211 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 211.10

§ 211.10 Provisions for Deposit of Money in Court

This chapter discusses the procedure set out in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 572-574 for requiring a party to a controversy to deposit funds or property in court when that party has no right to the assets but is merely holding them in trust for another.

Additional proceedings, discussed elsewhere, which permit or require a party to deposit money in court include the following:

- Proceedings by which a defendant may deposit in court a sum that defendant alleges was tendered to plaintiff before the action commenced and is the full amount due to plaintiff, for the purpose of shifting costs if the allegation is found to be true [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1025; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 998 (analogous cost-shifting provision when settlement offer, rather than tender, is made); for further discussion, see Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees, § 174.10 et seq.].

- Proceedings by which a party may deposit a sum admitted to be owing and interplead other parties who conflicting claims to that sum [Code Civ. Proc. § 386; for further discussion, see Ch. 314, Interpleader].

- Proceedings by which a party may deposit a sum equal to the amount of a required undertaking, in lieu of that undertaking [see Code Civ. Proc. § 995.710 et seq.; for further discussion, see Ch. 538, Suretyship, Bonds, and Undertakings].

- Proceedings by which a court may order a party to a maritial dissolution to deposit funds that it has found belong to the party's former spouse, as a means of enforcing its judgment under Fam. Code § 290 [see Ch. 258, Family Law Enforcement: General Enforcement Principles and Remedies, § 258.60 et seq., and Ch. 259, Family Law Enforcement: Special Remedies for Support Enforcement, § 259.80 et seq.].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

17-211 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 211.11

§ 211.11 Deposit in Court Under Code Civ. Proc. § 572

[1] Provisional Remedy Available When Funds Are Held in Trust

A party to a controversy involving a right to a certain sum of money or any other thing capable of delivery may be required to deposit that money or property in court if it is clearly admitted by the pleadings or shown on examination of a party to an action that he or she has no right to retain the money or property but is holding it as trustee for the other party, to whom it belongs or is due or that the property should, under the circumstances of the case, be held by the court pending final disposition of the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 572].

Code Civ. Proc. § 572 is a prejudgment remedy only and may not be used to enforce a judgment [In re Marriage of Fithian (1977) 74 Cal. App. 3d 397, 401, 141 Cal. Rptr. 506 (holding that Code Civ. Proc. § 572 was notavailable to wife to enforce husband's obligation to apply her portion of pension but concluding that trial court had power under Fam. Code § 290 to enforce marital decree by order directing deposit of funds in court)].

[2] Entitlement to Funds Must Be at Issue

Funds or property can be required to be deposited with the court only if the funds or property are the subject of the litigation [see Code Civ. Proc. § 572]. For example, if the money the party possesses is an incident of the litigation, that is, if it is dependent on the judgment to be rendered in the action, such as in the case of an action for accounting, redemption, specific performance, or rescission, the party cannot be compelled to deliver the money as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 572 [Green v. Duvergey (1905) 146 Cal. 379, 386, 80 P. 234 ; see Burke v. Superior Court (1907) 7 Cal. App. 178, 181, 93 P. 1058] .

[3] Requirement That Funds Be Held in Trust for Another

It must be shown by the pleadings or an examination of the party who holds the funds or property that the party admits he or she has no right to retain the money or property but is holding it as trustee for the other party [Code Civ. Proc. § 572]. The admission must be free from any condition, and the party who is proceeding under Code Civ. Proc. § 572 must claim an immediate right to the money. If the admission makes the right of the other party dependent on his or her performance of some condition, or if the other party does not claim any right to the money, or disputes the existence of the condition, a trial court may not order the funds deposited before a hearing in the cause and a judicial determination of the respective rights of the parties [Green v. Duvergey (1905) 146 Cal. 379, 385, 80 P. 234 ; see In re Elias (1962) 209 Cal. App. 2d 262, 271, 275, 25 Cal. Rptr. 739 (alleged agreement that party holding funds in trust for other party for purpose of discharging other party's obligation on bonds, until such time as bonds were completely exonerated, as not admission that other party was entitled to funds where party had made no admission that bonds were not exonerated and thus held in trust)].

§ 211.12 Procedure for Requiring Deposit or Delivery

[1] Application and Order

When the provisional remedy under Code Civ. Proc. § 572 is available, a party may move the court for an order that the money or property be deposited in court or delivered to the party to whom it belongs or is due. If the requisite showing is made, the court may make this order on such occasions as may be just and subject to the further direction of the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 572].

[2] Enforcement of Order

Whenever a court has ordered the deposit or delivery of money or property and the order is disobeyed, the court, besides punishing the disobedience, may make an order requiring the sheriff, or marshal to take the money or property and deposit or deliver it in conformity with its directions [Code Civ. Proc. § 574; see § 211.53].

If punishment is sought for disobedience of the order, proceedings in contempt under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1209-1222 should be commenced by a declaration of contempt conforming to the requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 1211 [see Frey v. Superior Court (1913) 22 Cal. App. 421, 425-426, 134 P. 733 (obedience to Code Civ. Proc. § 572 order as permitted to be enforced by proceedings in contempt)]. For discussion and forms for use in contempt proceedings, see Ch. 135, Contempt .

§ 211.13 Calculating Deposit When Foreign Money Is at Issue

Code Civ. Proc. § 676.11 sets out the the rules for computing foreign money in United States dollars in an action on a foreign-money claim (defined in Code Civ. Proc. § 676.1(6)). It applies in the following situations only [Code Civ. Proc. § 676.11(b)]:

- To determine the value of assets to be seized or restrained pursuant to a writ of attachment, garnishment, execution, or other legal process.
- To determine the amount at issue for assessing costs.
- To determine the amount involved for a surety bond or other court-required undertaking.

§ 211.34 Decisions

[1] Court Authority

Court does not necessarily lose authority and responsibility over fund deposited in court when judgment entered or action dismissed. Vallelunga v. Gomes (1951) 102 Cal. App. 2d 374, 379, 227 P.2d 550

[2] Deposit Requirements

Court deposits transferred to the county treasurer are required by Code Civ. Proc. 573 to be placed in special interest-bearing account for benefit of owner. Fresno Fire Fighters v. Jernagan (1986) 177 Cal. App. 3d 403, 407-408, 222 Cal. Rptr. 886

Order that money be deposited in court under Code Civ. Proc. § 572 is proper when party holds money as trustee, or when money belongs or is due to another party and party from whom money is asked has no right or title to hold money. Green v. Duvergey (1905) 146 Cal. 379, 386, 80 P. 234

Court is without jurisdiction to order deposit with clerk under Code Civ. Proc. § 572, and all subsequent proceedings on contempt charge based on defendant's refusal to so deposit money are void, when there was no admission in the pleadings that any sum was owed, there was no proof that defendant owed any money to plaintiff or a third party, and there was no proof that a trust existed. In re Elias (1962) 209 Cal. App. 2d 262, 270-275, 25 Cal. Rptr. 739

Right of court to order deposit under Code Civ. Proc. § 572 depends on facts shown to court, and it must be shown that party from whom payment is asked has no right or title to hold money in question, and that it belongs to or is due another. Frey v. Superior Court (1913) 22 Cal. App. 421, 425, 134 P. 733

Court has jurisdiction to make order requiring party to deposit sum in court under Code Civ. Proc. § 572 where party's pleadings admitted possessingmoney belonging to another party. Burke v. Superior Court (1907) 7 Cal. App. 178, 180, 93 P. 1058

Court is not entitled to adjudicate title to property by ordering its deposit under Code Civ. Proc. § 572 when party holding property claimed title to it in his own right and disputed other's interest in property. Ex parte Casey (1886) 71 Cal. 269, 271-272, 12 P. 118

Order that money be deposited in court under Code Civ. Proc. § 572 is improper when money was consideration plaintiff had received for conveyance of property and plaintiff sought to have conveyance declared void on ground that it resulted from defendants' fraudulent representations and undue influence at a time when plaintiff was mentally incompetent to transact business, and defendants sought to defeat right of action. Green v. Duvergey (1905) 146 Cal. 379, 386, 80 P. 234

[3] Money Requirement

Code Civ. Proc. § 573 requires deposit of money; certificate of deposit drawn in name of county clerk and given to county clerk pursuant to written stipulation of attorneys to court suit is not payment or deposit of money into court under Code Civ. Proc. § 573. Armstrong v. Brown (1936) 12 Cal. App. 2d 22, 26, 54 P.2d 1118

[4] Notice Requirements

Court order directing court clerk to apportion money in court's possession according to judgment is valid despite lack of notice of a motion, when the real controversy was decided and there was no reason to prolong litigation. Shepherd v. Perea (1950) 98 Cal. App. 2d 837, 837, 220 P.2d 777

[2] Use of Form

The form of application, supporting declaration and memorandum of points and authorities, and order set out in [1], above, is for use in enforcing an order requiring deposit under Code Civ. Proc. § 572, when a party disobeys that order.

Code Civ. Proc. § 574 provides simply that a court may make an order directing an officer to take the money or property and deposit or deliver it in accordance with the prior order under Code Civ. Proc. § 572. Thus, there is no express requirement that the order be made on motion or application. Any application for an order under Code Civ. Proc. § 572 should at least, however, conform to the requirments applicable to ex parte applications generally [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1200-3.1207; for detaileddiscussion of these requirements and a skeletal form of ex parte application, see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders].

Because the court may make this order "beside punishing the disobediance" [Code Civ. Proc. § 574], this order is sometimes sought together with a judgment of contempt. Sometimes contempt proceedings alone are pursued [see Frey v. Superior Court (1913) 22 Cal. App. 421, 425-426, 134 P. 733 (order under Code Civ. Proc. § 572 may be enforced by proceedings in contempt); see also In re Elias (1962) 209 Cal. App. 2d 262, 268, 269, 25 Cal. Rptr. 739] .

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use in applying for an order directing the county treasurer to pay money or deliver property on deposit with the court as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 573 or in any action or proceeding when money has been deposited with the clerk or judge [see Gov. Code § 68084]. This form is based on the requirements for such an application specified in Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 3.1(b), when the money or property is deposited with the court other than pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 708.710 et seq. (deposit of money owed by public agency to a judgment debtor) [see also San Bernardino Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 740.8 (imposing similar requirements)].

Both Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 3.1(b) and San Bernardino Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 740.8 also state that the judge or commissioner may require the applicant to proceed by motion on notice to all interested persons. The rules do not otherwise provide guidelines for when notice may be required. Commonly, however, local court rules have no specific requirements for applying for money or property on deposit with the court. Local court practice should be consulted to determine if there is any general procedure to follow [see Santa Clara Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 1.10(A) (order for payment of money required to be supported by affidavit setting forth right to specific amount shown and stating that amount is on deposit in treasurer's office)].

[3] Money Deposited

[a] With Treasurer

If any money is deposited with the clerk or judge of any superior court pursuant to any action or proceeding in the court, or pursuant to any order, decree, or judgment of the court, or when any money is to be paid to the court to be held in trust pursuant to any provision of Title 8 of the Government Code or the Code of Civil Procedure, that money must be deposited as soon as practicable after the receipt thereof with the treasurer and a duplicate receipt of the treasurer, for it must be filed with the auditor. The certificate of the auditor that a duplicate receipt has been filed is necessary before the clerk, judge, or party required to deposit the money is entitled to a discharge of the obligation imposed upon the clerk, judge, or party to make the deposit [Gov. Code § 68084(a)].

If any money deposited or paid is to be withdrawn or paid out, the order directing the payment or withdrawal must require the auditor to draw a warrant for it and the treasurer to pay it [Gov. Code § 68084(b)].

[b] In Interest-Bearing Bank Account

Money deposited into court and transferred to the custody of the county treasurer is deemed to be in the court's treasury, and interest earned thereon belongs to the court as trustee for the party ultimately entitled to receive it [Ostly v. Saper (1957) 147 Cal. App. 2d 671, 675, 305 P.2d 946] . Since a county treasurer receives money under Code Civ. Proc. § 573 or Gov. Code § 68084 subject to court order, he or she gets mere custody of such money, and any interest earned on the money belongs to the party ultimately entitled to receive it [Metropolitan Water Dist. v. Adams (1948) 32 Cal. 2d 620, 627-628, 197 P.2d 543] . Gov. Code § 53844, providing that all interest earned on funds in the county treasury shall be credited to the county general fund, is not applicable to court deposits. Absent a statutory directive that court deposits transferred to the county treasurer are to be placed in the county treasury, they must be placed in a special interest-bearing account for the benefit of the owner as required by Code Civ. Proc. § 573. [Fresno Fire Fighters v. Jernagan (1986) 177 Cal. App. 3d 403, 407-408, 222 Cal. Rptr. 886] .

No statute requires money deposited in a superior court to be deposited in an interest-bearing account, except for Civ. Code § 1717(b)(2) (tender and deposit in contract action), which requires that when any deposit is made pursuant to that section, the court shall, on the application of any party to the action, order the deposit to be invested in an insured, interest-bearing account, and that the interest on the amount is to be allocated to the parties in the same proportion as the original funds are allocated. However, superior courts are considered on a parity with other depositing local agencies within the meaning of Gov. Code § 53630(a) [Ostly v. Saper (1957) 147 Cal. App. 2d 671, 675, 305 P.2d 946] . So far as possible, money in the custody of such court and delivered to a county treasurer must be deposited in state or national banks, savings associations or federal associations, credit unions, or federally insured industrial loan companies in California, or must be invested as specified in Gov. Code § 53635 [see Gov. Code §§ 53630, 53635, 53637]. Money deposited in a bank, savings association or federal association, state or federal credit union, or federally insured industrial loan company must be invested with the objective of realizing maximum return, consistent with prudent financial management [Gov. Code § 53637]. Municipal courts are exempted from this requirement, and money in the possession of a municipal court may, but need not, be deposited in a bank, savings and loan association, or credit union in an interest-bearing account [Gov. Code § 53679].

This chapter covers the grounds, conditions, and procedures for obtaining a voluntary dismissal of an action [see § 212.30 et seq.]. This chapter also includes a checklist for voluntary dismissal [see § 212.210 et seq.] and relevant forms [see § 212.270 et seq.].

This chapter also covers involuntary dismissal for delay in prosecution with the following topics:

- An overview of involuntary dismissal [see § 212.60 et seq.].
- Motion to dismiss as a response to the complaint [see § 212.80 et seq.].
- Mandatory dismissal for delay in serving the summons and complaint [see § 212.100 et seq.].
- Mandatory dismissal for delay in bringing an action to trial or new trial [see § 212.120 et seq.].
- Discretionary dismissal for delay in service or bringing an action to trial [see § 212.150 et seq.].

This chapter also provides procedural checklists [see § 212.230 et seq. and the following forms:

- A notice of motion for dismissal if the motion is to be made within time to answer without making a general appearance [see § 212.290] and a petition of writ of mandate [see § 212.291] and of notice of petition [see § 212.292] to seek review if the motion is denied.

- A stipulation extending the time within which to bring an action to trial [see § 212.298].

- Notices of motion for mandatory [see §§ 212.293 -212.294] and discretionary [see §§ 212.296 and 212.297] dismissal.

- Written statement [see § 212.299] and declaration [see § 212.300] to oppose dismissal.

- Orders of dismissal [see §§ 212.301 -212.306].

§ 212.11 Types of Dismissal

A dismissal may be voluntary, by the party filing the action [see Code Civ. Proc. § 581(b)(1), (2), (e); see Part I, below], or involuntary, by the court [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 581(b)(3)-(5), (d), (f)-(i), (l), 583.110 et seq.; see Part II, below].

Involuntary dismissals by the court are either discretionary [see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. § 583.410-583.430; see Part II, Introduction, Subpart E, below] or mandatory, in the sense it is required under certain circumstances unless some express statutory exception or excuse applies [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 583.250, 583.360; see Part II, Introduction, Subparts C and D, below].

§ 212.12 Dismissal With and Without Prejudice

[1] Distinguished

A judgment of dismissal that is not rendered on the merits does not bar the filing of a subsequent action based on the same facts [Stephan v. American Home Builders (1971) 21 Cal. App. 3d 402, 406, 98 Cal. Rptr. 354 ; see Hill v. City of Clovis (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 434, 445, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 638 (dismissal risks applicable statute of limitations will run before party in position to renew dismissed action); Troche v. Daley (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 403, 412, 266 Cal.Rptr. 34 (subsequent action is subject to applicable statute of limitations)]. Such a dismissal is said to be without prejudice [see Kinley v. Alexander (1955) 137 Cal. App. 2d 382, 387, 290 P.2d 287] .

A dismissal with prejudice, on the other hand, is a final judgment on the merits and bars a subsequent action on the same cause [Gagnon Co., Inc. v. Nevada Desert Inn (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 448, 455, 289 P.2d 466] . A dismissal with prejudice may occur because there was actually a determination on the merits; the parties reached a settlement and the dismissal was intended to act as a retraxit, that is, a final disposition on the merits; or because of a statutory requirement for dismissal with prejudice [see Code Civ. Proc. § 581(d), (e); Goddard v. Security Title Ins. & Guar. Co.(1939) 14 Cal. 2d 47, 55, 92 P.2d 804 ; Stephan v. American Home Builders (1971) 21 Cal. App. 3d 402, 407, 98 Cal. Rptr. 354 ; see also Torrey Pines Bank v. Superior Court (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 813, 819-820, 265 Cal. Rptr. 217] .

A dismissal that does not specify whether it was with or without prejudice should be deemed to be with prejudice absent a contrary contention by the plaintiff [Tudor Ranches, Inc. v. State Comp. Ins. Fund (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 1422, 1430, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 574] .

[2] Voluntary Dismissals May Be Either

With respect to voluntary dismissals under Code Civ. Proc. § 581 (see Part I, Introduction, below), if the dismissal is made by the clerk's entry, it is presumed to be without prejudice, but if the dismissal is entered in open court pursuant to a stipulation or motion addressed to the court, it is ordinarily effective as a retraxit [Lewis v. Johnson (1939) 12 Cal. 2d 558, 563, 86 P.2d 99] .

[3] Involuntary Dismissals Are Without Prejudice

Involuntary dismissals under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 583.110-583.430 for delay in prosecution (see Part II, below), are always without prejudice because they are not considered to be on the merits [Code Civ. Proc. § 581(b)(4) and (g); Watson v. Superior Court (1972) 24 Cal. App. 3d 53, 60, 100 Cal. Rptr. 684 (prior law), disapproved on another ground in Hocharian v. Superior Court (1981) 28 Cal. 3d 714, 722 n. 5, 170 Cal. Rptr. 790, 621 P.2d 829 ; see also Ashworth v. Memorial Hospital (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 1046, 1063, 1063 ns.2, 3, 254 Cal. Rptr. 104] .

As a practical matter, however, a new action is often barred by the statute of limitations, even though the dismissal was without prejudice [Stephan v. American Home Builders (1971) 21 Cal. App. 3d 402, 407, 98 Cal. Rptr. 354] . Even though the filing of the complaint may have tolled the statute, once the action is dismissed the limitation period is restored as if no action had been brought [Wood v. Elling Corp. (1977) 20 Cal. 3d 353, 359, 142 Cal. Rptr. 696, 572 P.2d 755] .

§ 212.13 Effect of Cross Complaint on Dismissal Without Prejudice

The right to bring a new action within the limitations period following voluntary dismissal of a first complaint without prejudice pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 581(c) is not absolute when there is a related cross-complaint pending in the original action. The compulsory cross complaint statute, Code Civ. Proc. § 426.30, precludes the plaintiff from bringing a new action based on claims arising from the same transaction that was the basis of a cross complaint in the first action [Carroll v. Import Motors, Inc. (1995) 33 Cal. App. 4th 1429, 1435-1436, 39 Cal. Rptr. 2d 791 ; see also Hill v. City of Clovis (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 434, 445, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 638 (voluntary dismissal does not protect cross-complainant from later contention that dismissed cause of action in cross-complaint was compulsory and therefore required to be brought and adjudicated in action initiated by plaintiff)].

Rather than filing a second action, the proper course in this situation is for the plaintiff to request leave of court to file a late compulsory cross complaint in the first action [Carroll v. Import Motors, Inc. (1995) 33 Cal. App. 4th 1429, 1436, 39 Cal. Rptr. 2d 791 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 426.50; for discussion of Section 426.50, see Ch. 123, Complaints and Cross Complaints].

§ 212.14 Effect of Trial Delay Reduction Programs

[1] Local Rules Govern

Superior Courts in all California counties are required to implement delay reduction programs [Gov. Code §§ 68605.5, 68620(a)]. Local court rules implementing the Trial Court Delay Reduction Act govern much of the procedure, particularly impacting on time requirements [see Gov. Code §§ 68607, 68612, 68616].

The local rules are restricted by Gov. Code § 68616, which provides some minimum time standards. Local rules cannot impose shorter time limits than authorized by Section 68616. Issues that may arise under trial court delay reduction rules and affect voluntary or involuntary dismissal are discussed in Parts I and II, respectively.

For further discussion, see Ch. 552, Trial Court Delay Reduction .

[2] Dismissal of DOE Defendants

One restriction precludes local delay reduction rules from requiring the dismissal or severance of unnamed (DOE) defendants prior to the conclusion of the introduction of evidence at trial, except on stipulation or on motion of the parties [Gov. Code § 68616(h)].

§ 212.30 Governing Law

The principal statute governing dismissal of actions is Code Civ. Proc. § 581. The statutory grounds for obtaining a voluntary dismissal are contained in Code Civ. Proc. § 581(b)(1) (prior to trial), (2) (written consent of parties), and (e) (after commencement of trial). Section 581 is not to bedeemed an exclusive enumeration of the court's power to dismiss an action or a complaint as to a defendant [Code Civ. Proc. § 581(m)].

§ 212.31 Voluntary Dismissal Defined

Dismissal of an action is a termination of the court's consideration of a case prior to completion of a full trial of the issues of fact [Schisler v. Mitchell (1959) 174 Cal. App. 2d 27, 29, 344 P.2d 61] .

"Voluntary dismissal" refers to a dismissal that is requested by the plaintiff or taken with the plaintiff's express consent [see Code Civ. Proc. § 581(b)(1), (2), (e); Datner v. Mann Theatres Corp. (1983) 145 Cal. App. 3d 768, 770, 193 Cal. Rptr. 676 (using term "voluntary dismissal" to refer to dismissal requested by plaintiff before trial); cf. discussion of involuntary dismissal in Part II, below].

§ 212.32 Statutory Definitions

The following definitions apply with respect to voluntary dismissals under Code Civ. Proc. § 581:

- "Action" means any civil action or special proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 581(a)(1)].
- "Complaint" means a complaint and a cross complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 581(a)(2)].
- "Court" means the court in which the action is pending [Code Civ. Proc. § 581(a)(3)].
- "Defendant" includes a cross defendant [Code Civ. Proc. § 581(a)(4)].
- "Plaintiff" includes a cross complainant [Code Civ. Proc. § 581(a)(5)].

§ 212.33 Purpose of Voluntary Dismissal

The purpose of the voluntary dismissal provisions is to afford a plaintiff a limited degree of freedom in controlling the course of litigation that he or she has initiated [see Wilson v. L.A. County Civil Service Com. (1954) 126 Cal. App. 2d 679, 684, 273 P.2d 34] .

§ 212.34 Types of Voluntary Dismissal

Code Civ. Proc. § 581 provides for three basic categories of voluntary dismissal:

- An action may be dismissed by the plaintiff, for any reason, at any time before the actual commencement of trial, by filing or making a request as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 581(b)(1) [Code Civ. Proc. § 581(b)(1); see § 212.36].

- Any party may dismiss an action with the written consent of all other parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 581(b)(2); see § 212.37].

- A plaintiff may request the dismissal (with prejudice) of a complaint, or any of the causes of action asserted in it, after commencement of trial [Code Civ. Proc. § 581(e); see § 212.38].

In addition, a voluntary dismissal will be implied if plaintiff abandons the case after commencement of trial [see Code Civ. Proc. § 581(d); see also § 212.37[2]].

§ 212.36 Voluntary Dismissal Before Trial

[1] Plaintiff's Right to Request Voluntary Dismissal

An action may be dismissed with or without prejudice by the plaintiff, for any reason, at any time before the actual commencement of trial, by filing or making a request as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 581(b)(1) [Code Civ. Proc. § 581(b)(1); see Kyle v. Carmon (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 901, 908-909, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 303] . For purposes of Section 581, a "trial" is deemed to commence at the beginning of the opening statement or argument of any party or his or her counsel, or if there is no opening statement, then at the time of the administering of the oath or affirmation to the first witness, or the introduction of any evidence [Code Civ. Proc. § 581(a)(6); see Kyle v. Carmon (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 901, 908-909, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 303] . This language, however, has been held to be illustrative rather than exclusive of the circumstances under which a trial has begun [Gray v. Superior Court (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 165, 171, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 428] .

With some exceptions (see, e.g., discussion under § 212.36[2]), voluntary dismissal before trial is a matter of right and may be exercised by plaintiff without the knowledge of other parties or the consent of the court [Roski v. Superior Court (1971) 17 Cal. App. 3d 841, 845, 95 Cal. Rptr. 312] . When plaintiff files a voluntary dismissal within the time provided by statute, the court is stripped of jurisdiction to dismiss a case for failure to prosecute [Franklin Capital

Corp. v. Wilson (2007) 148 Cal. App. 4th 187, 192 n.6, 55 Cal. Rptr. 3d 424] .

Plaintiff's voluntary dismissal of the complaint leaves undisturbed pending cross-complaints involving other cross-complainants and cross-defendants [Sanabria v. Embrey (2001) 92 Cal. App. 4th 422, 425, 111 Cal. Rptr. 2d 837] .

The entry of a properly filed request for dismissal is not a judicial act but a ministerial one [Parenti v. Lifeline Blood Bank (1975) 49 Cal. App. 3d 331, 335, 122 Cal. Rptr. 709 , disapproved on another ground in Wells v. Marina City Properties, Inc., (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 781, 789, 176 Cal. Rptr. 104, 632 P.2d 217] . When a plaintiff has an absolute right to dismiss an action and does everything within his or her power to comply with the applicable statute, a trial court is without power to prevent the filing of the request for dismissal, and a court clerk is without power to prevent entry of dismissal [see Aetna Casualty & Surety Co. v. Humboldt Loaders, Inc. (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 921, 931, 249 Cal. Rptr. 175 (decided under former Code Civ. Proc. § 581(1))].

For further discussion, see § 212.270. For a checklist of the procedure for making a request for voluntary dismissal, see § 212.210.

[2] Limits on Availability of Voluntary Dismissal

[a] Defendant Seeks Affirmative Relief or Transfer

Voluntary dismissal without prejudice before trial is not available in either of the following situations [Code Civ. Proc. § 581(i)]:

- If the defendant or an intervenor seeks affirmative relief in a cross complaint or complaint in intervention.

- If there is a motion pending for an order transferring the action to another court under Code Civ. Proc. § 396b (for discussion, see Ch. 571, Venue).

A pleading is not considered to seek affirmative relief unless it contains, plainly on its face, affirmative allegations or introduces new affirmative matter entitling the pleader to relief [In re Mercantile Guaranty Co. (1968) 263 Cal. App. 2d 346, 351, 69 Cal. Rptr. 361] .

ILLUSTRATION:

Right to Dismiss Unaffected by Answer in Declaratory Relief Action. In a declaratory relief action brought by an insurance company against its insureds and others claiming coverage under a liability policy, the persons claiming coverage interpose an answer requesting a judicial declaration in favor of policy coverage, and make allegations in the answer that denial of coverage was the product of bad faith. Have the persons claiming coverage defeated the insurer's right to voluntarily dismiss the declaratory relief action? No. Neither the answer nor the allegations in the answer qualify as a cross complaint or as a request for affirmative relief to defeat the insurer's absolute right to dismiss [Aetna Casualty & Surety Co. v. Humboldt Loaders, Inc. (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 921, 927-929, 249 Cal. Rptr. 175 (decided under former Code Civ. Proc. § 581(1); now see Code Civ. Proc. § 581(b)(1), (i))].

In a partition action, however, contrary to normal pleading procedure, a defendant may seek affirmative relief in his or her answer which avoids the need for the defendant to file a cross-complaint seeking such relief [Code Civ. Proc. § 872.430;Gray v. Superior Court (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th165, 168 n.2, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 428] . Thus, a defendant who requests affirmative relief in his or her answer in a partition action may invoke Code Civ. Proc. § 581(i) as a bar to a voluntary dismissal [Gray v. Superior Court (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 165, 174, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 428 (dismissal inappropriate in partition action when defendant requested affirmative relief in answer)].

A voluntary dismissal without prejudice erroneously obtained in violation of the limitations imposed under Code Civ. Proc. § 581(i) will be treated as a dismissal with prejudice [see Hehr v. Swendseid (1966) 243 Cal. App. 2d 142, 150-151, 52 Cal. Rptr. 107 (decided under former Code Civ. Proc. § 581(a))].

[b] Improper Under Trial Court Delay Reduction Rules to Dismiss for Purpose of "Judge Shopping"

Local rule may state a policy against dismissing and refiling to obtain a different judge. For example, Los Angeles Superior Court rules provide that if a case is dismissed by the party (or by the judge) prior to judgment and the same or essentially the same claims, involving the same or essentially the same parties are alleged in another action, the later filed action is to be assigned to the judge to whom the first case was assigned. As an exception, the presiding judge may, for good cause, order that the case be assigned to a different judge [Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 7.3(d); see also § 212.14[1]].

[c] Demurrer Has Been Sustained

A plaintiff's right to a voluntary dismissal without prejudice under Code Civ. Proc. § 581(b)(1) is terminated by a decision sustaining a demurrer to his or her complaint without leave to amend [see Goldtree v. Spreckels (1902) 135 Cal. 666, 673, 67 P. 1091 (decided under former Code Civ. Proc. § 581); Bell v. Hummel (1982) 136 Cal. App. 3d 1009, 1015, 186 Cal. Rptr. 688 (decided under former Code Civ. Proc. § 581; overruled on other grounds in Laird v. Blacker (1992) 2 Cal. 4th 606, 617, 7 Cal. Rptr. 2d 550, 828 P.2d 691 , cert. denied, 506 U.S. 1021)].

The right to voluntary dismissal without prejudice is also terminated if a demurrer to the plaintiff's complaint is sustained with leave to amend and the plaintiff fails to amend within the time authorized by the court, as extended by stipulation or order, even if the trial court has not yet entered a judgment of dismissal on the sustained demurrer [Wells v. Marina City Properties, Inc. (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 781, 789, 176 Cal. Rptr. 104, 632 P.2d 217] . In these cases the court may dismiss the complaint as to the defendant [Code Civ. Proc. § 581(f)(2)].

On the other hand, when a demurrer is sustained with leave to amend, a plaintiff may obtain a voluntary dismissal without prejudice before the expiration of the time to amend [Parsons v. Umansky (1994) 28 Cal. App.4th 867, 870-871, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 144] . Similarly, after a demurrer has been sustained with leave to amend, a plaintiff may dismiss without prejudice while a demurrer to an amended complaint is pending decision [Christensen v. Dewor Developments (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 778, 785, 191 Cal. Rptr. 8, 661 P.2d 1088] . A plaintiff may also obtain voluntary dismissal without prejudice before the demurrer is heard and submitted for decision, even if the trial court has already made a tentative ruling sustaining the demurrer [Datner v. Mann Theatres Corp. (1983) 145 Cal. App. 3d 768, 770-771, 193 Cal. Rptr. 676] . It may even be possible to obtain a voluntary dismissal without prejudice after the demurrer has been submitted for decision but before the final decision is made [see Wells v. Marina City Properties, Inc. (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 781, 789-790, 176 Cal. Rptr. 104, 632 P.2d 217 (dictum); see also Kyle v. Carmon (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 901, 908-912, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 303 (voluntary dismissal with prejudice valid when entered after Code Civ. Proc. § 425.16 motion to strike was taken under submission, but before court ruled on motion)].

[d] In Lieu of Opposition to a Defendant's Summary Judgment Motion

If the request for dismissal is filed prior to the time to file an opposition to a motion for summary judgment, then the dismissal is valid [Zapanta v. Universal Care, Inc. (2003) 107 Cal. App. 4th 1167, 1172-1173, 132 Cal. Rptr. 2d 842] . However, a plaintiff who attempts to dismiss the complaint after a motion for summary judgment has been filed, and the time for opposition has passed, is subject to the trial court's continuing jurisdiction to hear and rule on the pending motion. A plaintiff may not frustrate the summary judgment statute by interposing a voluntary dismissal without prejudice in lieu of opposition to a defendant's motion [Cravens v. State Bd. of Equalization (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 253, 255, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 436] . Thus, a trial court has the power to grant an unopposed defense motion for summary judgment when the defendants' moving papers have met their burden of negating the plaintiff's claims, entitling them to judgment as a matter of law if no issues of disputed fact are raised, and plaintiff, rather than filing opposition papers within the requisite time, files a request for dismissal without prejudice one day before the scheduled hearing date [Cravens v. State Bd. of Equalization (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 253, 255, 257, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 436] . The basis of Cravens is that a plaintiff who fails to oppose a summary judgment motion cannot evade the consequences of that failure by an adroit dismissal of the lawuit [Mossanen v. Monfared (2000) 77 Cal. App. 4th 1402, 1409, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 459] . Under other circumstances, dismissal may be proper [see Mossanen v. Monfared (2000) 77 Cal. App. 4th 1402, 1409, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 459 (trial court erred in vacating dismissal and entering summary judgment when court had erroneously allowed counsel to withdraw leaving guardian ad litem powerless to oppose motion)].

Moreover, a plaintiff may not voluntarily dismiss an action without prejudice after an adverse tentative summary judgment ruling has been announced and a hearing has commenced which is thereafter continued under Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(h) for the express and exclusive purpose of permitting the plaintiff the opportunity to present opposition evidence that plaintiff claims was previously unavailable [Mary Morgan, Inc. v. Melzark (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 765, 767, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 4] . Furthermore, a summary judgment order bars voluntary dismissal [Sweat v. Hollister (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 603, 614-615, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 399 ; see Mary Morgan, Inc. v. Melzark (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 765, 769, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 4] .

[e] When Evidence Presented Before Referee in Partition Proceeding

A plaintiff's right to dismiss his or her complaint at any time before the actual commencement of trial (see Code Civ. Proc. § 581(b)(1)) is cut off by the commencement of evidentiary proceedings before a referee appointed in a partition action. A trial has actually commenced when the parties appear and present evidence before the referee in the partition proceeding [Gray v. Superior Court (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 165, 167, 173, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 428] .

[f] Avoidance of Discovery Sanctions

A plaintiff may not defeat a defendant's motion for a terminating discovery sanction by filing a voluntary dismissal just before the sanction hearing. That tactic would simply defeat the trial court's power to enforce its discovery orders [Hartbrodt v. Burke (1996) 42 Cal. App. 4th 168, 175-176, 49 Cal. Rptr. 2d 562] .

[g] Plaintiff Is Not Real Party in Interest

If the plaintiff or petitioner is not the real party in interest, and the plaintiff or petitioner has a fiduciary duty to the real party in interest, dismissal may be granted only with court approval on a showing that the party or parties in whose name or names the lawsuit is instituted have been adequately protected [see Marcarelli v. Cabell (1976) 58 Cal. App. 3d 51, 55, 129 Cal. Rptr. 509] . The rule applies in the following proceedings:

- Probate proceedings [see Malibu Outrigger Bd. of Governors v. Superior Court (1980) 103 Cal. App. 3d 573, 579, 165 Cal. Rptr. 1] .

- Child custody matters [Ford v. Superior Court (1959) 171 Cal. App. 2d 228, 230, 340 P.2d 296] .

- Guardianship matters [see Malibu Outrigger Bd. of Governors v. Superior Court (1980) 103 Cal. App. 3d 573, 579, 165 Cal. Rptr. 1] .

- Shareholder derivative suits [Marcarelli v. Cabell (1976) 58 Cal. App. 3d 51, 55, 129 Cal. Rptr. 509] .

- Class actions [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.770 and discussion in § 212.36[2][k]].

[h] Effect Is to Dismiss an Indispensable Party

When the dismissal affects one of two or more codefendants, the dismissal may be denied if the codefendant to be dismissed is an indispensable party to the action [see Wilson v. Frakes (1960) 178 Cal. App. 2d 580, 582-584, 3 Cal. Rptr. 434] .

[i] After Adverse Arbitration Award

Dismissal may be denied if the plaintiff requests it after demanding a trial de novo following a judicial arbitration award in defendant's favor. Dismissal under these circumstances would defeat the legislative policy of judicial arbitration. In such a case, the request for dismissal is deemed to repudiate the demand for a trial de novo and reinstate the arbitration award [Herbert Hawkins Realtors, Inc. v. Milheiser (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 334, 337-340, 189 Cal. Rptr. 450] .

[j] After Mandatory Dismissal Ruling but Before Order

The plaintiff has no right to voluntary dismissal of an action after the defendant has obtained a ruling dismissing the same action involuntarily, but before the order for involuntary dismissal has been filed [M & R Properties v. Thomson (1992) 11 Cal. App. 4th 899, 900-901, 14 Cal. Rptr. 2d 579] . When there is a conflict between a plaintiff's right to voluntary dismissal and a defendant's right to a mandatory dismissal, the defendant's right prevails [M & R Properties v. Thomson (1992) 11 Cal. App. 4th 899, 905, 14 Cal. Rptr. 2d 579] .

[k] Restrictions in Class Actions

No action may be dismissed that has been determined to be a class action under the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure unless and until notice that the court deems adequate has been given, and the court orders dismissal [Code Civ. Proc. § 581(k); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.770; see Code Civ. Proc. § 382 (statutory authority for class action); La Sala v. American Sav. & Loan Assn. (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 864, 868, 871, 97 Cal. Rptr. 849, 489 P.2d 1113 ; see also Malibu Outrigger Bd. of Governors v. Superior Court (1980) 103 Cal. App. 3d 573, 579, 165 Cal. Rptr. 1 (holding that dismissal should have been granted in class action as matter of class protection)]. For discussion of the procedure for obtaining dismissal in class actions, see Ch. 120, Class Actions .

§ 212.37 Voluntary Dismissal After Commencement of Trial

[1] By Request

A plaintiff may request the dismissal of a complaint, or any of the causes of action asserted in it, in its entirety or as to any defendants, after commencement of trial [Code Civ. Proc. § 581(e); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 581(a)(6) (defining "commencement of trial"; discussed under § 212.36[1]].

After commencement of trial dismissal is with prejudice, unless all affected parties consent that it be without prejudice or the court orders that the dismissal be without prejudice on a showing of good cause [Code Civ. Proc. § 581(e); see Davis v. Pine Mountain Lbr. Co. (1969) 273 Cal. App. 2d 218, 226-227, 77 Cal. Rptr. 825 ; see also §§ 212.12, 212.38].

A dismissal with prejudice before the court renders its decision will not have the effect of dismissing a cross complaint filed in the same action [see Code Civ. Proc. § 581(e)].

Code Civ. Proc. § 581(e) does not affect a plaintiff's right, prior to the entry of judgment, to abandon or dismiss one or more counts of the complaint that set forth alternative remedies to the counts on which plaintiff elected to stand [Steele v. Litton Industries, Inc. (1968) 260 Cal. App. 2d 157, 171-172, 68 Cal. Rptr. 680 (holding that dismissal with prejudice was not required when plaintiff dismissed alternative counts requesting equitable relief)].

[2] By Abandonment

During the period extending from the beginning of the trial to submission of the case, the court must dismiss a complaint with prejudice if the plaintiff abandons it [see Code Civ. Proc. § 581(d)].

Although by its terms Code Civ. Proc. § 581(d) grants the trial court independent authority to dismiss an action, the provision has been used solely as a mechanism by which a plaintiff, and not the court, voluntarily dismisses an action which has been abandoned [Kaufman & Broad Bldg. Co. v. City & Suburban Mortg. Co. (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 206, 212-213, 88 Cal. Rptr. 858] .

A voluntary dismissal under Code Civ. Proc. § 581(d) must be predicated on a clear, unequivocal, and express intent to abandon an action. That intent may be shown by a motion to dismiss, stipulation of the parties, or some other form of express intent on the record [Kaufman & Broad Bldg. Co. v. City & Suburban Mortg. Co. (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 206, 212-213, 88 Cal. Rptr. 858] .

ILLUSTRATION:

Abandonment Arising From Plaintiff's Motion to Dismiss: A plaintiff makes an insufficient showing of just cause on a motion fordismissal after commencement of trial under Code Civ. Proc. § 581(e). May the court treat plaintiff's dismissal attempt as an abandonment if defendant insists on proceeding with trial? Yes [see Burnett v. Burnett (1948) 88 Cal. App. 2d 805, 807, 199 P.2d 685] .

As is true with voluntary dismissals under Code Civ. Proc. § 581(b) or (e), the abandonment of the action under Code Civ. Proc. § 581(d) does not have the effect of dismissing a cross complaint filed in the action [see Kershaw v. Hogan (1932) 127 Cal. App. 89, 90, 15 P.2d 535 (decided under former Code Civ. Proc. § 581].

§ 212.38 Voluntary Dismissal on Consent of Parties

Any party may dismiss an action with or without prejudice with the written consent of all other parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 581(b)(2)].

In addition, the parties may agree to limit the legal effect of the dismissal to the plaintiff dismissing the action [see Manning v. Wymer (1969) 273 Cal. App. 2d 519, 523-527, 78 Cal. Rptr. 600] .

ILLUSTRATION:

Limiting Effect to Dismissing Plaintiff. Parties who file separate complaints involving the same transaction enter into an agreement that dismissal with prejudice by one party of his or her action would not preclude other party from proceeding with the remaining action. Is such an agreement permissible? Yes. Parties may agree to limit the legal effect of a dismissal to the dismissing plaintiff [see Manning v. Wymer (1969) 273 Cal. App. 2d 519, 523-527, 78 Cal. Rptr. 600] .

Code Civ. Proc. § 581(e) also provides that all parties to the action may consent to a dismissal without prejudice after actual commencement of the trial. A defendant's failure to object to dismissal without prejudice is sufficient to establish consent under Code Civ. Proc. § 581(e) [Davis v. Pine Mountain Lbr. Co. (1969) 273 Cal. App. 2d 218, 227, 77 Cal.

§ 212.39 Dismissal in Trial Court Delay Reduction Action

The right of a plaintiff to exercise the statutory right to voluntarily dismiss an action under Code Civ. Proc. § 581(b) is consistent with the mission of and unimpaired by the trial court delay reduction program [Harris v. Billings (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 1396, 1404-1405, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 718] . Therefore, the court should allow dismissal without prejudice even if the parties have an underlying agreement to facilitate settlement, under which statutes of limitations and laches claims will be tolled for a particular period of time. The dismissal is nonetheless a final disposition that removesthe case from the court's inventory and allows later-filed cases to move ahead in line [Harris v. Billings (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 1396, 1400, 1404, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 718] .

§ 212.40 Effects of Voluntary Dismissal

[1] Effect on Rights of Other Parties

The entry of a request for dismissal generally cuts off any rights the defendant may have had, except a defendant's right to affirmative relief or a motion to transfer. Plaintiff's voluntary dismissal of the complaint leaves undisturbed pending cross-complaints involving other cross-complainants and cross-defendants [Sanabria v. Embrey (2001) 92 Cal. App. 4th 422, 425, 111 Cal. Rptr. 2d 837] . Any pending motion, such as a motion to intervene or a motion to dismiss under the five-year provision of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 583.310, 583.360(a), may not be heard, and the moving party's rights are entirely cut off [see Egly v. Superior Court (1970) 6 Cal. App. 3d 476, 479, 482 n.4, 86 Cal. Rptr. 18 (judgment creditor's motion to impose lien on plaintiff's cause of action); see also Kyle v. Carmon (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 901, 909, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 303 (after plaintiff properly exercises right to voluntary dismissal before commencement of trial under Code Civ. Proc. § 581, trial court lacks jurisdiction to enter further orders in dismissed action except for matters such as attorney fees)]. Any right that may have accrued because leave to intervene has been given does not affect the plaintiff's right to dismiss if no complaint in intervention requesting affirmative relief has yet been filed [Klinghoffer v. Barasch (1970) 4 Cal. App. 3d 258, 261-262, 84 Cal. Rptr. 350] . For discussion of the effect of dismissal on a demurrer proceeding, see § 212.36[2][c].

Once a plaintiff has voluntarily dismissed without prejudice, the court is without jurisdiction to vacate the dismissal or to enter a new order dismissing the action with prejudice [Harris v. Billings (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 1396, 1400, 1404, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 718] .

[2] Effect on Recovery of Costs

A trial court is without power either to impose any conditions on the dismissal, such as requiring plaintiff to prepay defendant the costs of the action [see Hopkins v. Superior Court (1902) 136 Cal. 552, 553-554, 69 P. 299] , or to stay the entry of the dismissal before or after the request was filed [Egly v. Superior Court (1970) 6 Cal. App. 3d 476, 479, 482-483, 86 Cal. Rptr. 18] .

The court does, however, have jurisdiction to award costs and statutory attorney's fees incurred up to the date of dismissal [Bell v. Hummel (1982) 136 Cal. App. 3d 1009, 1015, 186 Cal. Rptr. 688 (overruled on other grounds in Laird v. Blacker (1992) 2 Cal. 4th 606, 617, 7 Cal. Rptr. 2d 550, 828 P.2d 691); Associated Convalescent Enterprises v. Carl Marks& Co., Inc. (1973) 33 Cal. App. 3d 116, 120, 108 Cal. Rptr. 782 ; see Townzen v. County of El Dorado (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 1350, 1358, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 281 (defendants entitled to recover initial filing fee as litigation costs)]. For example, when the plaintiff voluntarily dismisses an alleged SLAPP (strategic litigation against public participation) suit while a special motion to strike is pending, the court has discretion to determine whether the defendant is the prevailing party for purposes of attorney's fees under Code Civ. Proc § 426.16(c) [Coltrain v. Shewalter (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 94, 107, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 600 ; see also Kyle v. Carmon (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 901, 917-918, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 303 (recovery of prevailing defendant's attorney fees and costs under Code Civ. Proc. § 425.16)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Judgment Should Provide For Costs. A defendant seeking recovery of costs should have a formal judgment of dismissal entered ordering payment of court costs [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1032(b)].

Contractually authorized attorney's fees are not recoverable following voluntary dismissal. There is no "prevailing party" for the purpose of a fee award if the action has been voluntarily dismissed [Civ. Code § 1717(b)(2)]. Although Civ. Code § 1717 bars recovery of attorney fees incurred in defending contract claims when the case is voluntarily dismissed before trial, Section 1717 does not bar recovery of attorney fees incurred in defending tort or other noncontract claims arising from a contract with a broadly worded attorney's fee provision. Whether attorney fees incurred in defending tort or other noncontract claims are recoverable after a pretrial dismissal depends on the terms of the contractual attorney fee provision [Santisas v. Goodin (1998) 17 Cal. 4th 599, 602, 617, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 830, 951 P.2d 399 (also holding that International Industries, Inc. v. Olen (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 218, 577 P.2d 1031 , does not bar recovery)].

[3] Effect on Settlements

A voluntary dismissal deprives the court of jurisdiction to enforce the terms of a settlement under Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6; however, the parties may agree to the court retaining jurisdiction to enforce the terms of the settlement [Wackeen v. Malis (2002) 97 Cal. App. 4th 429, 433, 118 Cal. Rptr. 2d 502 (where plaintiff dismissed complaint pursuant to a good faith settlement and thereafter defendant breached agreement, plaintiff could not move for an order entering judgment on the settlement agreement under Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6 because the parties did not make a specific agreement prior to dismissal of the case, either in writing or on the record, that the court was to retain jurisdiction after dismissal, and the plaintiff's only remedy was a separate action for enforcement)].

[4] Effect on Sanctions Motion

A voluntary dismissal made while a motion for sanctions pursuant to CCP § 128.7 is pending may not avoid a court's consideration of an award of sanctions [Eichenbaum v. Alon (2003) 106 Cal. App. 4th 967, 976, 131 Cal. Rptr. 2d 296

(where plaintiff's voluntary dismissal of his action with prejudice, after defendant's motion for sanctions had been filed and taken under submission, did not deprive the trial court of authority to grant the motion and impose sanctions on plaintiff and his attorneys for presenting an improper amended complaint)].

§ 212.41 Appeal After Voluntary Dismissal

The entry of a properly filed request for dismissal is a ministerial act from which there is no right to appeal [Parenti v. Lifeline Blood Bank (1975) 49 Cal. App. 3d 331, 335, 122 Cal. Rptr. 709 (disapproved on another ground in Wells v. Marina City Properties, Inc. (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 781, 789, 176 Cal. Rptr. 104, 632 P.2d 217)]. Thus, a plaintiff may not appeal after taking a voluntary dismissal [Yancey v. Fink (1991) 226 Cal. App. 3d 1334, 1342-1343, 277 Cal. Rptr. 415] , nor may a defendant appeal the plaintiff's dismissal [Gray v. Superior Court (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 165, 170-171, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 428] . A defendant, however, may file a motion to vacate the dismissal which motion if denied is nonappealable, but may be reviewed by extraordinary writ [Gray v. Superior Court (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 165, 171-172, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 428] .

§ 212.42 Appeal After Stipulated Dismissal

Generally, there is no right to appeal after a voluntary dismissal [Denney v. Lawrence (1994) 22 Cal. App. 4th 927, 930 n.1, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 556] . However, when a dismissal was requested after an adverse trial court ruling so that an appeal could be taken promptly, and operates as a request for an entry of judgment based on the adverse ruling, an appeal will lie [Denney v. Lawrence (1994) 22 Cal. App. 4th 927, 930 n.1, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 556 ; see Norgart v. Upjohn Co. (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 383, 400-402, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 453, 981 P. 2d 79 (appealability of consent judgments); Casey v. Overhead Door Corp. (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 112, 116 n.2, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 603 (appeal available if dismissal is intended to expedite appeal and is not truly a voluntary relinquishment of the action)]. A written order of dismissal entered in the clerk's register as required by Code Civ. Proc. § 581d, constitutes a judgment [see APRI Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 176, 181, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 171] .

The parties may agree to a dismissal with a stipulation that a sanctions order may be appealed [Stewart v. Colonial Western Agency, Inc. (2001) 87 Cal. App. 4th 1006, 1012, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 115] .

If the parties stipulate to judgment on less than all causes of action and the plaintiff voluntarily dismisses the remainder with prejudice, thejudgment may be appealable [Tudor Ranches, Inc. v. State Comp. Ins. Fund (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 1422, 1429-1431, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 574] . However, if the remaining causes of action are dismissed without prejudice, the judgment does not disposes of all the causes of action and there is no appealable judgment [Hill v. City of Clovis (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 434, 442-446, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 638 ; see Tudor Ranches, Inc. v. State Comp. Ins. Fund (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 1422, 1429-1431, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 574] .

§ 212.60 Involuntary Dismissal Defined

A dismissal of an action is a termination of the court's consideration of a case prior to completion of a full trial of the issues of fact [Schisler v. Mitchell (1959) 174 Cal. App. 2d 27, 29, 344 P.2d 61] . A voluntary dismissal is one entered at the request of the party filing the action [see Code Civ. Proc. § 581(b)(1), (2), (e) and discussion in Part I,]; an involuntary dismissal is a dismissal by the court [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 581(b)(3)-(5), (d), (f), (g), (l), 583.110 et seq.].

There are two categories of involuntary dismissal:

- Mandatory involuntary dismissals, that is, dismissals that are required under certain circumstances unless some express statutory exception or excuse applies [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 583.250, 583.360 and discussion in Subpts. B, C, and D,].

- Discretionary involuntary dismissals, that is, dismissals that are entered by the court when dismissal appears to be appropriate under the circumstances [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 583.410-583.430 and discussion in Subpt. E,].

§ 212.61 Principal Governing Law

[1] Applicable Statutes and Rules

Code Civ. Proc. § 583.110 et seq., sets out the principal provisions governing involuntary dismissals for delay in prosecution. Other applicable provisions and rules include the following:

- Code Civ. Proc. § 581 (grounds for dismissal).
- Code Civ. Proc. § 581d (requirements for dismissal orders).
- Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.770 (dismissal of class actions).
- Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1340 (discretionary dismissal for failure to bring action to trial within two years).
- Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1342 (procedure for discretionary dismissal for delay in prosecution).

- Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1390 (notice of entry of dismissal).

NOTE:

Case Authority Decided Under Former Statutes. Code Civ. Proc. § 583.110 et seq. replaced former Code Civ. Proc. §§ 581a and 583 in 1985. The current statutes codify and clarify preexisting case law and make certain substantive changes [see 17 Cal. L. Revision Comm'n Reports 905 (1984); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 583.160 (when prior law applies)]. Cases decided under former Code Civ. Proc. §§ 581a and 583 are cited and discussed as persuasive, rather than controlling, authority to the extent that the current law codifies former case law or continues former substantive principles.

For involuntary dismissal under other provisions, see § 212.62[1].

[2] Statutory Definitions

The following definitions apply under Code Civ. Proc. § 583.110 et seq., unless a particular provision or context requires otherwise:

- "Action" includes an action commenced by a cross complaint or other pleading that asserts a cause of action or claim for relief [Code Civ. Proc. § 583.110(a)].

- "Complaint" includes a cross complaint or other initial pleading [Code Civ. Proc. § 583.110(b)].

- "Court" means the court in which the action is pending [Code Civ. Proc. § 583.110(c)].

- "Defendant" includes a cross defendant or other person against whom an action is commenced [Code Civ. Proc. § 583.110(d)].

- "Plaintiff" includes a cross complainant or other person by whom an action is commenced [Code Civ. Proc. § 583.110(e)].

- "Service" includes return of summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 583.110(f)].

[3] Statutory Policy and Construction

The statutory scheme for involuntary dismissals under Code Civ. Proc. § 583.110 et seq. expressly states the policy that every plaintiff shall proceed with reasonable diligence in the prosecution of an action or cross complaint, but that all parties shall cooperate in bringing the action to trial or other disposition [Code Civ. Proc. § 583.130].

Additionally, in construing Code Civ. Proc. § 583.110 et seq., the policy favoring the parties' right to stipulate in their own interests and the policy favoring a disposition on the merits are generally to be preferred over the policy requiring dismissal for failure to proceed with reasonable diligence, except as otherwise expressly provided by statute or court rule adoptedpursuant to statute [Code Civ. Proc. § 583.130; see also Denham v. Superior Court (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 557, 566, 86 Cal. Rptr. 65, 468 P.2d 193 (decided under prior law); Weeks v. Roberts (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 802, 806, 69 Cal. Rptr. 305, 442 P.2d 361 (decided under prior law)].

[4] Application in Special Proceedings

*Code Civ. Proc. § 583.110 et seq.*apply to civil actions but not to special proceedings except to the extent that these statutes are incorporated by reference in the special proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 583.120(a); see, e.g., Dresser v. Superior Court (1964) 231 Cal. App. 2d 68, 78, 41 Cal. Rptr. 473 (former Code Civ. Proc. § 581a applicable in eminent domain proceedings under Code Civ. Proc. § 1230.040, incorporating by reference provisions applicable to civil actions)].

Despite the general rule, a court may, by rule or otherwise under its inherent authority, apply Code Civ. Proc. § 583.110 et seq. to all or part of a special proceeding, unless to do so would be inconsistent with the character of the special proceeding or the statute governing the proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 583.120(b); Oskooi v. Fountain Valley Regional Hospital (1996) 42 Cal. App. 4th 233, 238-239, 49 Cal. Rptr. 2d 769 (Code Civ. Proc. § 583.110 et seq. applies to mandamus proceedings; lead opinion by Sonenshine, J.; concurring and dissenting opinions did not address issue); cf. Civ. Code § 3147 (special rule for discretionary dismissal of action to foreclose mechanic's lien); Horney v. Superior Court (1948) 83 Cal. App. 2d 262, 270-271, 188 P.2d 552 (holding former Code Civ. Proc. § 581a inconsistent with and not applicable to will contests)].

§ 212.62 Other Authority for Involuntary Dismissal

[1] Not Limited by Code Civ. Proc. § 583.110 et seq.

The provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 583.110 et seq. do not limit or otherwise affect the authority of a court to dismiss an action or impose other sanctions pursuant to any of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 583.150]:

- A rule adopted under Code Civ. Proc. § 575.1 (authorizing superior courts to adopt local rules to expedite and facilitate business of court).
- A rule adopted by the Judicial Council pursuant to some other statute.
- The inherent authority of the court.

[2] After Demurrer or Motion to Strike Without Leave to Amend or on Failure to Amend

Under another statute, involuntary dismissal is proper when a party moves for dismissal after a demurrer or a motion to strike the whole complaint is sustained or granted either without leave to amend or with leave to amend and the plaintiff fails to make timely amendment [Code Civ.Proc. § 581(f) (also providing that dismissal is not permitted if Code Civ. Proc. § 597, relating to separate trial of special defense or defenses, applies); see Cano v. Glover (2006) 143 Cal. App. 4th 326, 330, 48 Cal. Rptr. 3d 871 (dismissal under Code Civ. Proc. § 581(f)(2), after demurrer is sustained with leave to amend but plaintiff fails to amend, should be with prejudice); Leader v. Health Indus. of Am. (2001) 89 Cal. App. 4th 603, 614, 107 Cal. Rptr. 2d 489 (dismissal proper following failure to amend within allotted time; plaintiff tried to file belated and unexcused fourth amended complaint); Harding v. Collazo (1986) 177 Cal. App. 3d 1044, 1053-1054, 223 Cal. Rptr. 329 (dismissal also proper following failure to amend pursuant to stipulation)].

[3] In Case of Failure to Appear

[a] Neither Party Appears

Involuntary dismissal is allowed when neither party appears for trial following 30 days notice of time and place [Code Civ. Proc. § 581(b)(3) (dismissal without prejudice)].

[b] Either Party Fails to Appear

Involuntary dismissal is also statutorily authorized if either party fails to appear at trial and the other party appears and requests dismissal [Code Civ. Proc. § 581(b)(5) (dismissal of action without prejudice), (l) (dismissal of complaint in whole or as to that defendant without prejudice)].

If the issue to be tried is one of fact, proof must first be made that the absent party had 15 days' notice of the trial; if proof is available or if the issue to be tried is one of law, the appearing party has the option to proceed with the case to obtain a verdict or judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 594(a); see Clune v. Quitzow (1899) 125 Cal. 213, 214, 57 P. 886] .

Dismissal under Code Civ. Proc. § 581(b)(5), (l) is discretionary [Schlothan v. Rusalem (1953) 41 Cal. 2d 414, 415, 417-418, 260 P.2d 68 (decided under former Code Civ. Proc. § 581(3), now Code Civ. Proc. § 581 (b)(5)); Link v. Cater (1998) 60 Cal. App. 4th 1315, 1320-1321, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 130 (decided under Code Civ. Proc. § 581(l)].

A trial court's discretion to dismiss under Code Civ. Proc. § 581(l) will be overturned only on a showing of manifest abuse of discretion. Discretion is abused when the trial court's ruling is arbitrary, capricious, exceeds the bounds of reason or prevents a fair hearing from being held [Link v. Cater (1998) 60 Cal. App. 4th 1315, 1320-1321, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 130] . Examples of cases in which dismissal has been held to be an abuse of discretion include:

- When plaintiff's counsel failed to appear after being misled by the court concerning the date that a trailed case would be called for trial [see Schlothan v. Rusalem (1953) 41 Cal. 2d 414, 415, 417-418, 260 P.2d 68] .

- When plaintiff diligently prosecuted a case for over four years and the trial court invited dismissal under Code Civ. Proc. § 581(l) and refused to grant a continuance when imposition of a lesser sanction, such as monetary sanctions, would suffice [Link v. Cater (1998) 60 Cal. App. 4th 1315, 1325-1326, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 130 ; for discussion of the use of terminating sanctions, see Ch. 510, Sanctions].

In the case of an indigent, pro se prisoner who is the plaintiff, the trial court will abuse its discretion by dismissing the prisoner's action if, prior to dismissing a case based on the prisoner's failure to appear at a proceeding, the trial court does not make findings that the failure to appear is willful. For example, after allowing an indigent prisoner appearing pro se to appear telephonically, the trial court abused its discretion by dismissing the case for the prisoner's failure to appear telephonically at the case management conference without making any finding that the failure to telephonically appear was willful. By doing so, the trial court failed to ensure that the prisoner was able to exercise his right of meaningful access to the courts [Jameson v. Desta (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 672, 683-684, 101 Cal. Rptr. 3d 345] .

[4] As Sanction Under Statute

Additional statutes authorize involuntary dismissal in certain circumstances as a sanction for disobedience of a court order [see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2023(b)(4), 2025(o) (dismissal for disobedience of order compelling answers to deposition) (Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2023.030(d), 2025.480(a) operative July 1, 2005)]. For discussion of dismissal as a discovery sanction, see Ch. 192, Discovery: Sanctions for Discovery Misuse .

Dismissal as a sanction has been upheld even when not expressly authorized by statute, but imposed as a sanction for plaintiff's deliberate refusal to comply with an order referring a case to judicial arbitration [see Genovia v. Cassidy (1983) 145 Cal. App. 3d 452, 458-459, 193 Cal. Rptr. 454] . Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 was subsequently amended to make clear that the sanctions authorized by it for frivolous or delaying tactics applied to judicial arbitration proceedings [see Lyons v. Wickhorst (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 911, 918, 231 Cal. Rptr. 738, 727 P.2d 1019] .

For discussion of other grounds for dismissal as a sanction, see Ch. 510, Sanctions .

[5] As Sanction Under Trial Court Delay Reduction Rule

Several counties have rules authorizing dismissal as a potential sanction for any failure to comply with the rules [see, e.g., Alameda Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 4.4(2)(R); Orange Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 454; Sacramento Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 11.12; see also Gov. Code § 68608(b) (authorization for sanctions)]. For discussion of dismissal as a sanction under local court rule, see Ch. 510, Sanctions .

[6] Court's Inherent Power

Trial courts retain an inherent discretionary power to dismiss for lack of prosecution as a means of controlling their calendars [Overaa v. Keeney (1915) 169 Cal. 628, 630-631, 147 P. 466 ; Blue Chip Enterprises, Inc. v. Brentwood Sav. & Loan Assn. (1977) 71 Cal. App. 3d 706, 712-713, 139 Cal. Rptr. 651] . However, it appears unlikely that a court may properly exercise this inherent power in any situation covered by statute [see General Motors Corp. v. Superior Court (1966) 65 Cal. 2d 88, 98, 52 Cal. Rptr. 460, 416 P.2d 492 (no discretion to dismiss for delay in bringing action to trial which was less than minimum period of delay allowed by former Code Civ. Proc. § 583(a)); Roman v. Usary Tire & Service Center (1994) 29 Cal. App. 4th 1422, 1430-1431, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 329 (dismissal reversed when court's order stated dismissal was under Section 583.410,but two years had not elapsed)]. Thus, the exercise of power appears to be limited to situations not covered by Code Civ. Proc. § 583.110 et seq., such as delays in prosecution after trial has commenced [see Karras v. Western Title Ins. Co. (1969) 270 Cal. App. 2d 753, 757, 76 Cal. Rptr. 141 (dismissal upheld after seven-year delay following continuance to allow plaintiffs to prepare authorities in support of evidentiary objection); see also § 212.37[2]].

Moreover, in light of Code Civ. Proc. § 583.150, a trial court retains inherent discretionary power to dismiss an action when the complaint has been shown to be fictitious or sham such that plaintiff has no valid cause of action [Pearlson v. Does 1 to 646 (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 1005, 1010, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 787 (dismissal upheld)].

§ 212.63 Recovery of Costs and Attorney's Fees Following Involuntary Dismissal

A defendant in whose favor a dismissal is entered is a "prevailing party" [Code Civ. Proc. § 1032(a)(4)]. Except as otherwise expressly provided by statute, a prevailing party is entitled as a matter of right to recover costs in any action or proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 1032(b)]. Items allowed and not allowed as costs are listed in Code Civ. Proc. § 1033.5.

Allowable costs include attorney's fees authorized by statute or law and may be assessed on a noticed motion or on submission of a costs bill [Code Civ. Proc. § 1033.5(a)(10)(B), (C); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1033.5(c)(5)]. When any California statute refers to the award of "costs and attorney's fees," attorney's fees are an item of costs to be awarded [Code Civ. Proc. § 1033.5(c)(5)].

Attorney's fees authorized by contract are also allowable costs and must be assessed on noticed motion, unless otherwise provided by the parties' stipulation [Civ. Code § 1717; Code Civ. Proc. § 1033.5(a)(10)(A), 1033.5(c)(5)]. Because Code Civ. Proc. § 1032(a)(4), (b) provides that a defendant in whose favor a dismissal is entered is a "prevailing party" entitled to costs, the defendant is entitled to attorney's fees under Code Civ. Proc. § 1033.5(a)(10)(A) if the contract authorizes payment of attorney's fees incurred in enforcing the contract. Under Civ. Code § 1717, a "party prevailing on the contract" is the party who recovered a greater relief in the action on the contract, although the court may also determine that there is no party prevailing on the contract [Civ. Code § 1717(b)(1)].

By its terms, Civ. Code § 1717(b)(1) does not require a final judgment. Thus, because Civ. Code § 1717(b)(2) expressly excludes from the definition of prevailing party only those defendants as to whom an action has been voluntarily dismissed, it appears that a court may determine that a defendant as to whom an action has been involuntarily dismissed may be a party prevailing on the contract for purposes of Civ. Code § 1717.

§ 212.64 Relief From Dismissal Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473

A plaintiff may obtain mandatory relief from involuntary dismissal under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) only if the dismissal occurred because the plaintiff's attorney failed to oppose the defendant's motion for dismissal [Leader v. Health Indus. of Am. (2001) 89 Cal. App. 4th 603, 620, 107 Cal. Rptr. 2d 489] . A plaintiff may not obtain mandatory relief merely by filing an affidavit in which plaintiff's counsel avows that the dismissal came about through counsel's fault. A literal reading of Section 473 would abrogate the dismissal statutes by implication, as few, if any, dismissals under those statutes would ever be final [Bernasconi Commercial Real Estate v. St. Joseph's Regional Healthcare System (1997) 57 Cal. App. 4th 1078, 1080, 182, 67 Cal. Rptr. 2d 475 (affirming denial of relief from mandatory dismissal for failure to serve complaint within three years under Code Civ. Proc. § 583.210); Peltier v. McCloud River R.R. Co. (1995) 34 Cal. App. 4th 1809, 1817-1825, 41 Cal. Rptr. 2d 182 (affirming denial of relief from discretionary dismissal under Code Civ. Proc. § 583.410 for failure to bring case to trial within three years); Leader v. Health Indus. of Am. (2001) 89 Cal. App. 4th 603, 620, 107 Cal. Rptr. 2d 489 (affirming denial of relief from discretionary dismissal based on the failure to file an amended complaint after demurrer was sustained with leave to amend)].

§ 212.80 Motion to Dismiss as Response to Complaint

A defendant, on or before the last day of defendant's time to plead or within any further time that the court may for good cause allow, may serve and file a notice of motion to dismiss the action pursuant to the applicable provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 583.110 et seq. [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(a)(3)]. Dismissals under Code Civ. Proc. § 583.110 et seq. are discussed in § 212.100 et seq., § 212.120 et seq., and § 212.150 et seq.

When dismissing the complaint in whole, or as to a defendant, under Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10, the court may dismiss without prejudice [Code Civ. Proc. § 581(h)].

Other motions that may be brought at the same time are motions to quash service of summons on the ground the court lacks jurisdiction over the defendant and to stay or dismiss the action on the ground of inconvenient forum [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(a)(1), (2); for discussion of these motions, see Ch. 323, Jurisdiction: Personal].

§ 212.82 Notice of Motion

[1] Time for Motion

The notice must designate, as the time for making the motion, a date not more than 30 days after filing of the notice. The notice must be served in the manner and times prescribed by Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b) [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(b); for discussion of Section 1005(b), see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders].

For a form of notice of motion to dismiss under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 418.10(a)(3), 583.110 et seq. for delay in serving the summons, see § 212.290.

[2] Notice Extends Time to Respond

The service and filing of the notice extends the defendant's time to plead until 15 days after service on the defendant of a written notice of entry of an order denying the motion. However, if the defendant shows good cause, the court may extend the defendant's time to plead for an additional period not exceeding 20 days [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(b); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 472a(e) (court to allow pleading to be filed when motion to dismiss under Code Civ. Proc. § 583.210 et seq. for failure to timely serve summons is denied); for a general form of application to extend time, see Ch.

524, Shortening and Extension of Time]. The defendant must file or enter a responsive pleading in the trial court within this time unless, on or before the last day of the defendant's time to plead, the defendant serves on the adverse party and files with the trial court a notice that the defendant has petitioned for a writ of mandate [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(c); see § 212.83[1]; for a form of notice of the petition, see § 212.292].

§ 212.83 Review of Denial of Motion

[1] Writ of Mandate

If the trial court denies the motion, the defendant, within 10 days after service on the defendant of a written notice of entry of the court's order, or within any further time not exceeding 20 days that the trial court may for good cause allow, and before pleading, may petition an appropriate reviewing court for a writ of mandate to require the trial court to enter its order dismissing the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(c); see § 212.291].

[2] Notice Extends Time to Respond Pending Review

The service and filing of a notice that the defendant has petitioned for a writ of mandate extends the defendant's time to plead until 10 days after service on the defendant of a written notice of the final judgment in the mandate proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(c); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.491 (extension of time to plead until 10 days after Supreme Court files order denying petition for review of court of appeal's denial of writ of madate); for a form of notice of the petition, see § 212.292]. The trial court may extend the time to plead for an additional period not exceeding 20 days for good cause shown [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(c); for a general form of application to extend time, see Ch. 524, Shortening and Extension of Time].

No default may be entered against the defendant before expiration of the time to plead [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(d); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 585(a)-(c)]. There appears, however, to be an inconsistency in the statutes in this respect.

On the one hand, Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(a)(3) allows any motion to dismiss under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 583.110-583.430 to be made within in the time for responding to the complaint to avoid default [see Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(a)(3), (d)]. This would include, for example, motions for either discretionary or mandatory dismissal for failure to serve summons or for failure to bring to trial. Code Civ. Proc. § 585(a)-(c), however, only refers to motions for mandatory dismissal for failure to serve summons (Code Civ. Proc. §§ 583.210-583.250) as forestalling default. Thus, Section 418.10(a)(3) appears to allow a motion to dismiss under Section 583.410 for failure to serve the complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 583.410, 583.420(a)(1)] and to bring to trial within two years of filing the action [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 583.410, 583.420(a)(2)(B); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1340], and to provide that neither motion constitutes a general appearance and that no default may be taken pending their resolution.

On the other hand, Code Civ. Proc. § 585(a)-(c) refers only to Section 583.210 motions as precluding default. This is of particular concernbecause Section 585(a)-(c) was amended to include Section 583.210 motions as precluding default in the same legislation that added Section 583.110 motions to Section 418.10 [see 1993 Stats., ch. 456, §§ 1, 10]. The Legislature's intent as to which motions to dismiss forestall default and do not constitute a general appearance, therefore, is not entirely clear. As a practical matter, of course, the motion for failure to have served summons is the most relevant motion.

If a motion to dismiss pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 583.250 is denied, and the defendant fails to respond within the time allowed by the court, the plaintiff may take the defendant's default and obtain a default judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 586(a)(8); see Code Civ. Proc. § 585; for discussion and forms, see Ch. 205, Defaults and Default Judgments].

§ 212.100 Mandatory Dismissal for Delay in Serving Summons and Complaint

Code Civ. Proc. §§ 583.210-583.250 set forth periods in which the plaintiff must serve a summons and complaint on a defendant [see § 212.101]. If service is not completed within the mandatory time periods, the court must dismiss the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 583.250(a)].

Proceedings to dismiss a case for delay in service may be initiated on [Code Civ. Proc. § 583.250(a)]:

- A motion by any person interested in the action, whether named as a party or not.
- A motion by the court.

PRACTICE TIP:

Mandatory Dismissal of Co-Defendant. A defendant may be dismissed under Code Civ. Proc. § 583.250(a) even though he or she may be jointly liable with the defendants who were served or who did appear [Andre v. General Dynamics, Inc. (1974) 43 Cal. App. 3d 839, 842-843, 118 Cal. Rptr. 95 (decided under prior law)].

For a form of motion to dismiss for delay in service, see § 212.293.

§ 212.101 Time for Service

[1] Basic Time Period: Three Years Plus 60 Days

A summons and complaint must generally be served on a defendant no later than three years after the action is commenced against that defendant [Code Civ. Proc. § 583.210(a)]. If the last day of the three-year period is a holiday, the period is extended to and includes the next day that is not a holiday [see Code Civ. Proc. § 12a; Ystrom v. Handel (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 144, 147-149, 252 Cal. Rptr. 110 ("holiday" includes Saturday)].

Proof of service of the summons must be filed within 60 days after the time the summons and complaint must be served upon a defendant [Code Civ. Proc. § 583.210(b)]. For discussion of filing proof of service of summons, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers, § 518.21.

PRACTICE TIP:

Ascertain Trial Court Delay Reduction Status. As soon as possible after filing a case, counsel must ascertain whether the case is going to be assigned to the court's delay reduction program. If the case is so assigned, counsel may be required to complete service of the summons and complaint within a much shorter period, usually 60 days, or face sanctions [see Gov. Code § 68616(a) (60 days is least a court may require); for discussion, see § 212.105].

[2] Commencement of Time Period for Service

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 583.210(a), an action is commenced at the time the complaint is filed [Code Civ. Proc. § 583.210(a)]. It commences at this time against a defendant named in the caption of the complaint, even though no attempt is made to state a cause of action against that defendant until a subsequent amendment based on the same general set of facts [Elling Corp. v. Superior Court (1975) 48 Cal. App. 3d 89, 94-95, 123 Cal. Rptr. 734 (decided under prior law)].

When an original complaint alleges causes of action against a fictitiously named defendant, the action commences against that defendant when the original complaint was filed, not when an amendment is filed substituting the defendant's true name for the fictitious one. If a new party is added to the action, however, the action commences as to that party on the date of filing of the pleading naming him or her as a new party [Barrington v. A.H. Robins Co. (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 146, 150, 216 Cal. Rptr. 405, 702 P.2d 563 ; Nelson v. A.H. Robins Co. (1983) 149 Cal. App. 3d 862, 866-868, 197 Cal. Rptr. 179] . The rules that determine whether there is a relation-back to the filing of the original complaint for purposes of the delay-in-prosecution statutes applies to amendments adding plaintiffs as well as defendants [American Western Banker v. Price Waterhouse (1993) 12 Cal. App. 4th 39, 48-49, 14 Cal. Rptr. 2d 916 (no relation back for new plaintiff for new plaintiffs on new cause of actions)].

If a cause of action in an amended complaint does not relate back to the original complaint for purposes of determining the statute of limitations, that is, if it does not rest on the same general set of facts as the original complaint and does not refer to the same accident or injury, the three-year period commences as to that cause of action at the time it is first alleged in an amended complaint [Barrington v. A.H. Robins Co. (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 146, 150, 151-158, 216 Cal. Rptr. 405, 702 P.2d 563 (decided under prior law, but stating its applicability to current law in dicta)]. This rule applies as to both:

- Defendants named by a fictitious name in the original complaint [see Barrington v. A.H. Robins Co. (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 146, 150, 151-158, 216 Cal. Rptr. 405, 702 P.2d 563] .

- Defendants added by the amended complaint [see Hennessey's Tavern, Inc. v. American Air Filter Co. (1988) 204 Cal. App. 3d 1351, 1354, 1360-1361, 251 Cal. Rptr. 859] .

[3] When Service Is Complete

[a] Service of Summons on Defendant

In determining whether service was made within the mandatory period prescribed by Code Civ. Proc. § 583.210, it is deemed effective on completion of the last necessary act [see Billings v. Edwards (1979) 91 Cal. App. 3d 826, 830, 154 Cal. Rptr. 453] .

ILLUSTRATION:

Mailing Copy of Summons Within Mandatory Period. Plaintiff files a complaint on October 8, 1974. He makes substituted service pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 415.20, mailing a copy of the summons and complaint on October 5, 1977. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 415.20, service of summons is deemed "complete on the 10th day after the mailing." The applicable mandatory dismissal statute requires service to be made within a three-year period. Is service timely for purposes of the statute? Yes. If service is made by mail, it is timely if mailed within the required time period despite the provision of Code Civ. Proc. § 415.20(a) that service by mail is not "complete" until 10 days after the mailing [Billings v.

Edwards (1979) 91 Cal. App. 3d 826, 830, 154 Cal. Rptr. 453 (decided under prior law)].

[b] Return of Summons

"Service" includes return of summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 583.110(f); see § 212.101]. Therefore, even if a defendant is timely served within a three-year period, the action must be dismissed as to that defendant if the return is not timely made thereafter [Kaiser Foundation Hospitals v. Superior Court (1975) 49 Cal. App. 3d 523, 527, 122 Cal. Rptr. 432 (decided under prior law; disapproved to extent inconsistent with Johnson v. Superior Court(1985) 38 Cal. 3d 243, 255 n.7, 211 Cal. Rptr. 517, 695 P.2d 1058 , discussed)].

Formal defects in the return of service do not invalidate a timely return, since the defects may be cured by amendment nunc pro tunc after expiration of the statutory period [Botsford v. Pascoe (1979) 94 Cal. App. 3d 62, 70, 156 Cal. Rptr. 177 (decided under prior law)].

When substituted service is made by mail under Code Civ. Proc. § 415.40 (service on person outside California), the return need not include every item necessary for proof of service, at least for the purpose of dismissal for delay in service. The return is effective when it provides the court with notice that plaintiff has completed all acts necessary to effect service [see Johnson & Johnson v. Superior Court (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 243, 252-256, 211 Cal. Rptr. 517, 695 P.2d 1058 (decided under prior law)].

§ 212.102 Statute Satisfied if Defendant Makes General Appearance

[1] Effect of Stipulation or General Appearance

The defendant's general appearance in the action has the same effect as valid service and return of summons [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 583.210, 583.220].

A general appearance, however, does not excuse the time period prescribed for service if the appearance is made after the period has lapsed [see Blank v. Kirwan (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 311, 333, 216 Cal. Rptr. 718, 703 P.2d 58 (prior law); see also Biss v. Bohr (1995) 40 Cal. App. 4th 1246, 1251, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 692 (because summons and complaint must be served within three years, answer will excuse failure to do so only if filed within that period)]. That is, a general appearance after the period for service has run does not give the court jurisdiction over the defendant [Dale v. ITT Life Ins. Corp. (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 495, 499 n.4, 255 Cal. Rptr. 8] .

If the defendant is timely served with a summons and complaint within the three year period for service, but generally appears thereafter during the 60-day period for return of summons, there appears to be a split of authority as to whether the time limitation within which return of summons must be made still applies.

Division Three of the Fourth District Court of Appeal has held that when a summons must be returned within three years, sixty days, an answer during that period excuses compliance [Biss v. Bohr (1995) 40 Cal. App. 4th 1246, 1249-1251, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 692 (answer constitutes general appearance; order of dismissal reversed against two defendants when summons and complaint timely served, defendants filed answers within 60-day period for return of summons and plaintiff filed proof of service after 60-day period had elapsed)]. Similarly, Division Three of the First District Court of Appeal has held that the limitation for return of summons becomes inapplicable in this circumstance, the court reasoning that a general appearance during the period for return of summons eliminates the provision for mandatory dismissal because the filing of an answer serves the same purpose as the return of summons of informing the court that the defendant has received jurisdictional notice [Wong v. Armstrong World Industries, Inc. (1991) 232 Cal. App. 3d 1032, 1034-1035, 283 Cal. Rptr. 870 (defendant filed answer three years and 24 days after issuance of summons; judgment of dismissal reversed when defendant returned summons three years and ten months after issuance of summons)].

Division Four of the Second District, however, has ruled that a defendant's general appearance within the additional 60-day period does not relieve plaintiff of the requirement to complete service within three years and return the summons 60 days thereafter [Weatherby v. Van Diest (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 506, 508-511, 284 Cal. Rptr. 622 (defendant filed answer three years and 46 days after issuance of summons; order of dismissal upheld when defendant returned summons three years and ten months after issuance of summons)]. The court in Biss v. Bohr (1995) 40 Cal. App. 4th 1246, 1250-1251, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 692 , discussed above, refused to follow and pointed out what it considered to be the mistaken reasoning in Weatherby.

[2] Acts Constituting General Appearance

[a] By Statutory Definition

By statute, a defendant is considered to have made a general appearance if he or she [Code Civ. Proc. § 1014]:

- Answers.
- Demurs.
- Files a notice of motion to strike.
- Files a notice of motion to transfer under Code Civ. Proc. § 396b.
- Moves for reclassification under Code Civ. Proc. § 403.040.
- Gives the plaintiff written notice of appearance, or defendant's attorney gives notice of appearance for the defendant.

[b] By Intent to Appear Generally

In the absence of a controlling statute, an act will be considered a general appearance if, under all the circumstances, it reflects a defendant's intent to submit to the court's jurisdiction [General Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 449, 453, 124 Cal. Rptr. 745, 541 P.2d 289 (decided under prior law); see Goodwine v. Superior Court (1965) 63 Cal. 2d 481, 484, 47 Cal. Rptr. 201, 407 P.2d 1 (decided under prior law)].

As a general rule, a defendant makes a general appearance if he or she does any of the following [see Botsford v. Pascoe (1979) 94 Cal. App. 3d62, 67, 156 Cal. Rptr. 177 (prior law); Slaybaugh v. Superior Court (1977) 70 Cal. App. 3d

216, 222-224, 138 Cal. Rptr. 628 (prior law)]:

- Requests relief that could only be given to a party.

- Makes an appearance and request for relief that itself would be a regular proceeding.

- Seeks, takes, or agrees to some beneficial step or proceeding in the cause other than one only contesting jurisdiction.

ILLUSTRATION:

Filing of Answers to Interrogatories. A defendant files and serves interrogatories in a case, assuming that the court has jurisdiction over him. Has the defendant generally appeared in the action? Yes. The filing of answers to interrogatories is a regular proceeding in a case [see Chitwood v. County of Los Angeles (1971) 14 Cal. App. 3d 522, 527-528, 92 Cal. Rptr. 441 (decided under prior law)].

[3] Acts Not Constituting General Appearance

For the purpose of determining whether the time period for service applies under Code Civ. Proc. § 583.220, none of the following acts constitute a general appearance in an action:

- A stipulation under Code Civ. Proc. § 583.230 extending the time within which service must be made [Code Civ. Proc. § 583.220(a)].

- A motion to dismiss made under Code Civ. Proc. § 583.110 et seq., whether joined with a motion to quash service or a motion to set aside a default judgment, or otherwise [Code Civ. Proc. § 583.220(b)].

- An extension of time to plead after a motion to dismiss made under Code Civ. Proc. § 583.110 et seq. [Code Civ. Proc. § 583.220(c)].

- A motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10 to quash service of summons or to stay or dismiss the action on the ground of inconvenient forum (a defendant or cross defendant who makes such a motion may simultaneously answer, demur, or move to strike the complaint or cross-complaint; no general appearance is deemed to have been made until the motion made under Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10 is denied) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(a), (e)].

[4] In Case Involving Cross Complaint

Because a complaint and a cross complaint are generally treated as independent actions, an appearance in one does not preclude obtaining a dismissal in regard to the other [Botsford v. Pascoe (1979) 94 Cal. App. 3d 62, 67, 156 Cal. Rptr. 177 (decided under prior law)].

[5] In Case Involving Complaint in Intervention

An appearance in an action will prevent dismissal of a complaint in intervention because a complaint in intervention is not treated as a separate action but as part of the original, main action. Thus, if a defendant appears in the original action, he or she cannot obtain dismissal of a complaint in intervention for failure to serve it within three years [Rhode v. National Medical Hosp. (1979) 93 Cal. App. 3d 528, 537-538, 155 Cal. Rptr. 797 (decided under prior law)].

On the other hand, the filing of an answer to a complaint in intervention does not constitute a general appearance in the underlying action so as to prevent dismissal of the underlying action for failure to serve summons [Kuchins v. Hawes (1990) 226 Cal. App. 3d 535, 538-541, 276 Cal. Rptr. 281 (involving discretionary dismissal under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 583.410(a), 583.420(a)(1) for failure to serve summons within two years after action commenced)].

[6] In Cases Consolidated for Trial

When two separate actions against the same defendant, arising from the same incident, have been consolidated for trial but not merged, a general appearance in one of the actions does not constitute an appearance in the other [Sanchez v. Superior Court (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 1391, 1396, 250 Cal. Rptr. 787] .

ILLUSTRATION:

Appearance in One of Two Consolidated Actions. A defendant complies with a subpoena for a deposition noticed by the plaintiff in one of the actions for which the defendant has been served with process. The defendant participates and defends his interest with regard to that action action at the deposition. Has he made a general appearance with regard to the second action for which has has not received service? No [Sanchez v. Superior Court (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 1391, 1396, 1399, 250 Cal. Rptr. 787] .

[7] Determining if Time Extension Is General Appearance

By statute, an extension of time to plead made either after a motion to dismiss under Code Civ. Proc. § 583.110 et seq. or in connection with a motion to quash service does not constitute a general appearance [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 418.10(d), 583.220(c); see § 212.194[8][b]].

In other situations, a defendant who seeks an extension of time to plead is not usually deemed to have made a general appearance, since the purpose may be to obtain adequate time to determine whether or not to object to the court's jurisdiction [Busching v. Superior Court (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 44, 50-51, 115 Cal. Rptr. 241, 524 P.2d 369 (decided under prior law)]. If, however, the resulting written agreement extending time discloses an intent to submit to the court's jurisdiction, it constitutes a general appearance [General Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 449, 452-454, 124 Cal. Rptr. 745, 541 P.2d 289] . That intent may be shown by:

- An agreement to accept service [General Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 449, 452-453, 124 Cal. Rptr. 745, 541 P.2d 289 (decided under prior law)].

- An agreement extending time in which to appear [RCA Corp. v. Superior Court (1975) 47 Cal. App. 3d 1007, 1009-1010, 121 Cal. Rptr. 441 (decided under prior law)].

- An open extension of time in which to plead that neither challenges nor questions personal service [Knapp v. Superior Court (1978) 79 Cal. App. 3d 799, 802, 804-805 n.2, 145 Cal. Rptr. 154 (decided under prior law)].

The authorities are split on whether, in any event, an agreement to extend time made by someone other than the defendant or his or her attorney constitutes a general appearance [see Knapp v. Superior Court (1978) 79 Cal. App. 3d 799, 803-804, 145 Cal. Rptr. 154 (agreement between claims adjuster and plaintiff's counsel as sufficient under prior law); Woodruff v. McDonald's Restaurants (1977) 75 Cal. App. 3d 655, 657-658, 142 Cal. Rptr. 367 (stipulation between plaintiff's attorney and representative of defendant's insurance carrier as insufficient under prior law)].

Even when a request for an extension of time does not constitute a general appearance, it may nonetheless give rise to a defense of estoppel if the plaintiff's failure to complete timely service was caused by his or her reasonable reliance on that request [see § 212.129[3]].

§ 212.103 Extension of Time for Service by Stipulation

The parties may extend the time within which service must be made under Code Civ. Proc. § 583.210 by written stipulation, which need not be filed, but if not, must be brought to the court's attention if it becomes relevant to a motion for dismissal [Code Civ. Proc. § 583.230(a)].

The parties may also extend the time period for service by oral agreement made in open court, if entered in the minutes of the court or a transcript is made [Code Civ. Proc. § 583.230(b); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 583.130 (policy favoring right of parties to stipulate as generally to be preferred)].

A stipulation to extend time for service is effective even if it is made after the time period has lapsed and a motion to dismiss has been made, so long as it is executed before the court orders dismissal [see General Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 449, 454-455, 124 Cal. Rptr. 745, 541 P.2d 289 ; *Big Bear Mun. Water Dist. v. Superior Court (1969) 269 Cal. App. 2d 919, 923-924, 75 Cal. § 212.104 Time Excluded From Computation of Period

[1] Time During Which Defendant Not Amenable to Process

The period of time during which the defendant was not amenable to process must be excluded in computing the time within which service must be made under Code Civ. Proc. § 583.210 [Code Civ. Proc. § 583.240(a)].

The plaintiff has the burden of showing that the defendant is not amenable to process [Perez v. Smith (1993) 19 Cal. App. 4th 1595, 1597, 24 Cal. Rptr. 2d 186 ; Evartt v. Superior Court (1979) 89 Cal. App. 3d 795, 802, 152 Cal. Rptr. 836 (decided under prior law)].

The general test is whether any statutory procedure exists under which service of process could be made on the defendant through the exercise of reasonable diligence [see, e.g., Adelson v. Hertz Rent-A-Car (1982) 133 Cal. App. 3d 221, 226-227, 183 Cal. Rptr. 779] .

ILLUSTRATION:

Amenability to Process. Plaintiff files her complaint against defendant on August 16, 1977. On April 28, 1979, defendant marries and changes her surname; thereafter she moves to an address in Canada. On > September 9, 1980, 24 days after the lapse of the then-applicable 3-year statute for service, plaintiff serves defendant in Canada. Before this time, plaintiff's counsel made no attempts to serve defendant at her Canadian address. May plaintiff claim that the case falls under the exception for defendants not amenable to the process of the court? No. When there are procedures by which a defendant may be served, and through the exercise of reasonable diligence, the possibility of effecting that service exists, the defendant cannot be considered "not amenable to process." In this case, Code Civ. Proc. § 413.30 sets out a procedure for serving a foreign defendant, and plaintiff in fact effected such service on defendant with little difficulty, despite defendant's name change and move. Additionally, plaintiff made no showing of any attempt to serve defendant until after the lapse of the applicable three-year limitation period [see Adelson v. Hertz Rent-A-Car (1982) 133 Cal. App. 3d 221, 224-227, 183 Cal. Rptr. 779] .

If a person can be served by publication under Code Civ. Proc. § 415.50, he or she is amenable to process. A finding under Section 415.50 that a defendant was not reasonably available for service of process other than by publication is not the equivalent of a finding that a defendant was not amenable to process within the meaning of Section 583.240(a) [Watts v. Crawford (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 743, 761, 42 Cal. Rptr. 2d 81, 896 P.2d 807 (disapproving Quaranta v. Merlini (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 22, 237 Cal. Rptr. 179); Perez v. Smith (1993) 19 Cal. App. 4th 1595, 1599-1600, 24 Cal. Rptr. 2d 186] . Thus, if service is to be by publication, the publication must be completed before the Code Civ. Proc. §§ 583.410, 583.250 period expires [see Watts v. Crawford (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 743, 761, 42 Cal. Rptr. 2d 81, 896 P.2d 807] .

[2] Stay Affecting Service

In computing the time within which service must be made under Code Civ. Proc. § 583.210, one must exclude any time during which the prosecution of the action or proceedings in the action was stayed and the stay affected service [Code Civ. Proc. § 583.240(b)].

[3] Litigation Concerning Validity of Service

Any time during which the parties litigated the validity of service must be excluded from the computation of time within which service must be made under Code Civ. Proc. § 583.210 [Code Civ. Proc. § 583.240(c)].

[4] Service Impossible, Impracticable, or Futile

[a] Nature of Exclusion

The time within which service must be made under Code Civ. Proc. § 583.210 does not include any time during which service, for any reason, was impossible, impracticable, or futile due to causes beyond the plaintiff's control [Code Civ. Proc. § 583.240(d)]. This exclusion is to be strictly construed due to the potential prejudice to the defendant occasioned by any delay in service and in recognition of the fact that service is ordinarily within the plaintiff's control when exercising reasonable diligence [see Law Revision Commission Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 583.240; see also Shipley v. Sugita (1996) 50 Cal. App. 4th 320, 326, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 750] . Thus, for example, false statements by plaintiff's counsel to plaintiff that a defendant had been properly served, when in fact no service had occurred, were held not to have made proper service within the statutory period impossible or impracticable under Code Civ. Proc. § 583.240(d) so as to toll the period during the time plaintiff erroneously believed the defendant had been served. Plaintiff is not entitled to relief from the mandatory dismissal requirement of Code Civ. Proc. § 583.210 because of attorney misconduct [Shipley v. Sugita (1996) 50 Cal. App. 4th 320, 324-327, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 750 (declining to judicially engraft into Code Civ. Proc. § 583.240(d) another exception to the rule of mandatory dismissal for those cases in which attorney misconduct frustrates the plaintiff's ability to perfect service)].

Examples of situations involving impossibility or impracticability include:

- Defendant has intentionally concealed himself or herself to avoid service, and plaintiff has failed to locate defendant in spite of an exercise of reasonable diligence [see Wyoming Pacific Oil Co. v. Preston (1958) 50 Cal. 2d 736, 740-741, 329 P.2d 489 (dismissal based on plaintiff's failure to timely serve concealed defendant reversed as abuse of discretion); see also Adelson v. Hertz Rent-A-Car (1982) 133 Cal. App. 3d 221, 228, 183 Cal. Rptr. 779 (reasonable diligence to find and serve defendant required)].

- Defendant has initiated an appeal in a collateral action that involves a point essential to the action sought to be dismissed [Deas v. Knapp (1982) 129 Cal. App. 3d 443, 449-451, 181 Cal. Rptr. 76 (decided under prior law)].

[b] Failure to Discover Relevant Facts Not Cause Beyond Plaintiff's Control

For purposes of the exclusion under Code Civ. Proc. § 583.240(d), plaintiff's failure to discover relevant facts or evidence is not a cause beyond the plaintiff's control [Code Civ. Proc. § 583.240(d)].

Plaintiff, despite the exercise of reasonable diligence, fails to obtain evidence leading to the discovery of a "Doe" defendant's identity in time to serve that defendant within the prescribed period. Does Code Civ. Proc. § 583.240(d) exclude the time within which plaintiff attempts to learn the defendant's identity? No [see Republic Corp. v. Superior Court (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 1253, 1254-1255, 1258, 207 Cal. Rptr. 241 (decided under prior law)].

Plaintiff's action is filed on November 4, 1977. Counsel does not attempt to serve process on defendant until September, 1980, and fails to serve process within the three-year period. Counsel explains that he delayed because he did not determine until September, 1980, that the suit had a reasonable probability of success. Does counsel's argument excuse his failure to effect service within the three years required under applicable law?. No. Counsel's showing may explain or excuse a failure to bring the matter to trial in a timely fashion, but it does not excuse a failure to effect service and return of service within three years [see Tandy Corp. v. Superior Court (1982) 129 Cal. App. 3d 734, 742-743, 181 Cal. Rptr. 319 (decided under prior law)].

§ 212.105 Additional Requirements Under Trial Court Delay Reduction Act

Under the Trial Court Delay Reduction Act (Gov. Code § 68600 et seq.), all superior courts in California must maintain delay reduction programs to facilitate timely disposition of civil actions [see Gov. Code §§ 68605.5, 68608(a), 68620]. Local rules governing delay reduction programs may and commonly do require service of the complaint within as short a time as 60 days after filing [Gov. Code § 68616(a)].

Los Angeles County's delay reduction rules provide a useful illustration. Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 7.7(a)(1), provides that all complaints "shall be served within 60 days of the filing date and a proof of service thereof shall be filed within 90 days of the filing date, unless an appearance is made within said 90 days" [Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 7.7(a)(1); see Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 7.7(b) (extension by court for good cause)]. The rule further provides that cross complaints must be served within 30 days of the filing date and a proof of service filed within 60 days of the filing date [Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 7.7(a)(2)].

The "three-years plus 60 days" time requirements under Code Civ. Proc. § 583.210 [see § 212.101] and the more stringent time requirements under local delay reduction rules are distinguishable in that violation of the former results in mandatory dismissal, while violation of the latter does not [see Code Civ. Proc. § 583.250; Gov. Code § 68608(b)].

Dismissal is discretionary if a plaintiff fails to serve a complaint within the expedited time frame called for under a local delay reduction rule [see Gov. Code § 68608(b)].

A judge in a delay reduction case has the power to dismiss an action "if it appears that less severe sanctions would not be effective, after taking into account the effect of previous sanctions or previous lack of compliance in the case" [Gov. Code § 68608(b)]. Thus, if a plaintiff fails to serve the defendant within the shortened period mandated under a local delay reduction rule, it appears that the court should, at the very least, notify the plaintiff of the noncompliance and provide the plaintiff with an opportunity for compliance before the court can dismiss the case. Of course, even if the court does not dismiss a plaintiff's case, it may still impose other sanctions on the plaintiff or the plaintiff's attorney for noncompliance, including monetary sanctions [see Code Civ. Proc. § 575.2(a)].

For discussion of the Trial Court Delay Reduction Act, including what actions are and are not subject to it, see Ch. 552, Trial Court Delay Reduction .

§ 212.106 Nonapplicability of Statutes Tolling Statutes of Limitation

The time within which service must be made once an action is commenced is not tolled by the statutory provisions tolling the running of the statute of limitations [Tzolov v. International Jet Leasing (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 325, 327, 262 Cal. Rptr. 606 (rejecting application of *Code Civ. § 212.107 Defenses to Motion for Dismissal for Delay in Service

[1] Defenses Limited by Statute

The requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 583.210 et seq. are mandatory and are not subject to extension, excuse, or exception except as expressly provided by statute [Code Civ. Proc. § 583.250(b)]. Thus, aside from the exceptions under Code Civ. Proc. § 583.220 [see § 212.102], extensions under Code Civ. Proc. § 583.230 [see § 212.103, and exclusions under Code Civ. Proc. § 583.240 [see § 212.104, there is generally no defense to a motion for mandatory dismissal under Code Civ. Proc. § 583.250(a)(2) other than that of waiver or estoppel [Code Civ. Proc. § 583.140; see § 212.129[2]].

[2] Estoppel

Estoppel may be raised as a defense if the defendant's conduct reasonably misled the plaintiff into believing that the time requirements for service had been satisfied or waived [see Tresway Aero, Inc. v. Superior Court (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 431, 437-442, 96 Cal. Rptr. 571, 487 P.2d 1211] .

ILLUSTRATION:

Defendant Estopped From Seeking Dismissal. Plaintiff brings an action against a state agency for damages. Almost three years after the filing of the complaint, plaintiff asks the general counsel of the agency to accept service on behalf of the agency. Before the applicable three-year period for service runs out, the general counsel executes an acknowledgment of service provided by plaintiff's counsel. Approximately 17 months later, the Attorney General files a motion to dismiss for failure to timely serve summons and complaint, claiming that the plaintiff's service on agency counsel was legally ineffective. The Attorney General asserts that plaintiff was required by statute to make service on the Attorney General and that the agency counsel had no legal right to accept service on the agency's behalf. May the defendant be estopped from claiming that service was improper? Yes. Regardless of whether the agency counsel had the right to accept service, he thought he did, and so there is a possible factual predicate for estoppel [see State Air Resources Bd. v. Superior Court (1979) 93 Cal. App. 3d 803, 807, 808-809, 155 Cal. Rptr. 726] .

ILLUSTRATION: Defendant Not Estopped From Seeking Dismissal. On October 5, 1981, plaintiffs file a complaint to recover damages caused by construction defects. The complaint, as originally filed, erroneously names "Heltzer Building Company" as defendant. The project's true owner and developer, Heltzer Enterprises, is not named as defendant until June 6, 1985, when plaintiff files an amendment to the complaint naming Heltzer Enterprises as Doe 1. On October 21, 1985, Heltzer Enterprises and Heltzer Building Company file a joint answer to the first amended complaint; the answer denies either defendant was the project's developer or general contractor, and alleges improper use of the Doe statute as an affirmative defense. Thereafter, Heltzer Enterprises actively participates in pretrial discovery, as well as in a mandatory settlement conference. After plaintiff voluntarily dismisses Heltzer Building Company from the action on June 9, 1986, Heltzer Enterprises files its own motion for dismissal, based on plaintiff's failure to serve the complaint within three years. Is defendant barred from seeking dismissal under the doctrine of equitable estoppel? No. Defendant did not lull plaintiff into a false sense of security resulting in inaction prior to the running of the applicable three-year date [see Brookview Condominium Owners' Assn. v. Heltzer Enterprises-Brookview (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 502, 510-512, 267 Cal. Rptr. 76] .

The authorities are split on whether or not a request by defendant's counsel for an extension of time in which to plead past the date of expiration of the statutory time period gives rise to an estoppel defense.

One case held, under prior law, that estoppel is present unless the defendant questions the adequacy of service of process or otherwise indicates lack of intention to submit to the jurisdiction of the court [see Knapp v. Superior Court (1978) 79 Cal. App. 3d 799, 804, 145 Cal. Rptr. 154 (decided by First Dist., Div. Four)].

Another court, however, held under prior law that estoppel was not established by a request for extension of time to plead, as opposed to an extension of time to appear [see Owen v. Niagara Machine & Tool (1977) 68 Cal. App. 3d 566, 569, 137 Cal. Rptr. 378 (decided by Second Dist., Div. Four)]. Similarly, a later case has held that estoppel was not established by a request for an extension for 15 days which was granted and which fell within 3 years, 60 days after the complaint was filed, when nothing on the last day of the extension was forthcoming and plaintiff on that date still had time to file a timely return [Biss v. Bohr (1995) 40 Cal. App. 4th 1246, 1251-1253, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 692 (decided by Fourth Dist., Div. Three; although extension not expressly stated to be to answer complaint, court indicated its analysis would not be altered if it were)].

[3] Waiver

Waiver can also be a defense to the three-year rule. In contrast to the doctrine of estoppel, which applies when the conduct of one side has induced the other to take a position that it would be injured if the first should be permitted to repudiate its acts [see § 212.129[3]], waiver refers to the act, or the consequences of the act, of one side only [

Brookview Condominium Owners' Assn. v. Heltzer Enterprises-Brookview (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 502, 512, 267 Cal. Rptr. 76 (no waiver found)].

To support a finding of waiver, there must be [Brookview Condominium Owners' Assn. v. Heltzer Enterprises-Brookview (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 502, 513, 267 Cal. Rptr. 76] :

- An existing, right, benefit, or advantage.
- Actual or constructive knowledge of the right's existence.
- Either an actual intention to relinquish the right or conduct so inconsistent with any intent to enforce the right as to induce a reasonable belief that it has been relinquished.

§ 212.120 Mandatory Dismissal for Delay in Bringing Action to Trial or Retrial

[1] Failure to Bring Case to Trial Within Statutory Period

Code Civ. Proc. §§ 583.310-583.360 set forth periods in which the plaintiff must bring an action to trial [see § 212.121].

If an action is not brought to trial within the mandatory time periods, the court must dismiss the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 583.360(a)].

Proceedings to dismiss a case for delay in bringing it to trial may be initiated by [Code Civ. Proc. § 583.360(a)]:

- A motion by the defendant.
- A motion by the court.

The aim of the requirement is to promote the trial of actions before evidence is lost or destroyed, or the memory of witnesses becomes dimmed, and also to protect defendants from being subjected to the annoyance of unmeritorious actions remaining undecided for an indefinite period of time [Moran v. Superior Court (1983) 35 Cal. 3d 229, 237, 197 Cal. Rptr. 546, 673 P.2d 216] .

For a form of notice of motion for dismissal based on failure to bring action to trial, see § 212.294.

[2] Special Rule Re Dismissal of Petition for Dissolution of Marriage

A petition for dissolution of marriage or legal separation is not subject to dismissal for delay in prosecution if any of the following conditions are present [Code Civ. Proc. § 583.161]:

- An order for child support has been issued in connection with the proceeding and has not been terminated by the court or by operation of law under Fam. Code §§ 3900, 3901, 4007, and 4013.

- An order for spousal support has been issued in connection with the proceeding and has not been terminated by the court.

- The petition is for dissolution of marriage and a separate trial on the issue of status of the marriage has been conducted under Fam. Code § 2337.

For discussion of dismissal of these petitions, see Ch. 221, Dissolution of Marriage: Procedure .

[3] Dismissal Order Possible Before Expiration Date

Although mandatory dismissal is normally appropriate only after the applicable time period has expired, an order of dismissal has been upheld even though it was made before the mandatory expiration date, on the ground that the time remaining to bring the action to trial was grossly inadequate under the circumstances [Massey v. Bank of America (1976) 56 Cal. App. 3d 29, 33, 128 Cal. Rptr. 144 (decided under prior law); see also § 212.150 et seq.].

§ 212.121 Period for Bringing Action to Trial

[1] Five-Year Period

An action must be brought to trial within five years after the action is commenced against the defendant [Code Civ. Proc. § 583.310].

The five-year period of Code Civ. Proc. § 583.310 does not apply to family law proceedings in which a pendente lite child support order is obtained, or other family law actions in which a pendente lite child support order may be obtained such as petitions to establish parental relationship, petitions for custody and support of minor children, and proceedings under the Domestic Violence Prevention Act [County of Orange v. Quinn (2002) 97 Cal. App. 4th 956, 960, 118 Cal. Rptr. 2d 833 (interpreting Fam. Code § 3601)].

NOTE:

Effect of "Fast Track" Programs. The stricter requirements of trial court delay reduction programs has lessened the impact of the mandatory five-year period of Code Civ. Proc. § 583.310. Case disposition time standards promulgated by the Judicial Council direct municipal and superior courts to dispose of 90 percent of general civil cases within 12 months, 98 percent of general civil cases within 18 months, and 100 percent of general civil cases within 24 months [see Cal. Rules of Ct. Appen. Div. I, §§ 2.1(c), (h), 2.3(b); but see Cal. Rules of Ct. Appen. Div. I, § 2.1(g) (superior court case involving "exceptional circumstances" or requiring "continuing review" is exempt from time standards); see generally Gov. Code § 68600 et seq. (Trial Court Delay Reduction Act)]. Many courts have adopted the Judicial Council time standards [see, e.g., Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 7.6; Riverside County Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 11.0050 (adopting Judicial Council Standards)].

[2] Commencement of Period

[a] To Bring to Trial

An action commences on the date the original complaint is filed, as to any defendant named in that complaint either expressly or by a fictitious name. But when a new party defendant is added to the action, the action commences as to that defendant on the date of the order adding him or her as a party or on the date the pleading naming him or her as a new party is filed [Gray v. Firthe (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 202, 209, 239 Cal. Rptr. 389 ; see also Code Civ. Proc. §§ 350 (action commences when complaint is filed), 583.310 (five-year period begins when action commences against defendant)].

[b] To Bring to Arbitration

Several courts interpreting prior law have stated that, when an action is subject to contractual arbitration, the five-year period for bringing the action to an arbitration hearing commences at the time the court files the order compelling arbitration, not at the time the plaintiff files the complaint [see Gainey v. Occidental Land Research (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 1051, 1054, 231 Cal. Rptr. 249 ; Preston v. Kaiser Foundation Hospitals (1981) 126 Cal. App. 3d 402, 408-410, 178 Cal. Rptr. 882 ; but see Lockhart-Mummery v. Kaiser Foundation Hospitals (1980) 103 Cal. App. 3d 891, 896, 163 Cal. Rptr. 325 (five-year period is measured from date of filing the complaint)]. It is uncertain whether courts will follow this approach under Code Civ. Proc. § 583.310, which requires the five-year period to be calculated from the date the "action is commenced against the defendant."

§ 212.122 Period for Bringing Action to New Trial

[1] Three-Year Period Generally

In cases in which a new trial is granted in an action, the action must be brought again within certain three-year trial periods [see § 212.122[2]]. If, however, the applicable three-year period expires before the end of the initial five-year period prescribed by Code Civ. Proc. § 583.310 [see discussion under § 212.121], the action need not be brought to trial again before the expiration of the latter period [Code Civ. Proc. § 583.320(b)].

The time requirements for bringing an action again to trial do not apply to ancillary or collateral proceedings subsequent to the original trial, such as a motion for attorney's fees under Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.5 (private attorney general theory) [No Oil, Inc. v. City of Los Angeles (1984) 153 Cal. App. 3d 998, 1003-1006, 200 Cal. Rptr. 768] .

For a form of notice of motion for dismissal for failure to bring an action to a new trial, see § 212.295.

[2] After Mistrial

If a trial is commenced but no judgment is entered because of a mistrial or because a jury is unable to reach a decision, and a new trial is granted in the action, the action must again be brought to trial within three years after the order of the court declaring the mistrial or the disagreement of the jury is entered [Code Civ. Proc. § 583.320(a)(1)].

When the parties stipulate to binding arbitration without a right to a trial de novo, the binding arbitration is equivalent to a trial. In such a case, when the arbitration hearing is abruptly terminated and arbitrator's appointment vacated, the order vacating the appointment is equivalent to an order declaring a mistrial within the meaning of former Code Civ. Proc. § 583 (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 583.320(a)(1)) [Dodd v. Ford (1984) 153 Cal. App. 3d 426, 429-431, 200 Cal. Rptr. 256] .

[3] After Order Granting New Trial

If after judgment a new trial is granted and no appeal is taken, the action must again be brought to trial within three years after the order granting the new trial is entered [Code Civ. Proc. § 583.320(a)(2)].

If a default judgment has been obtained under Code Civ. Proc. § 585, an order setting aside the default judgment does not qualify as a new trial order for the purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 583.320 [Misic v. Segars (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 1149, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 100 (setting aside judgment after default proveup hearing did not extend 5-year period for trial for three additional years provided for in Code Civ. Proc. § 583.320(a)(3)]. An order vacating a default judgment for the defendant's failure to answer is not equivalent to an order for a new trial for the purpose of this requirement, since a default judgment results from a non-adversarial hearing rather than a trial [Tiholiz v. Superior Court (1980) 104 Cal. App. 3d 201, 205, 163 Cal. Rptr. 452 (decided under prior law); see Misic v. Segars (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 1149, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 100] . It has been suggested, however, that rather than asking to have a default judgment set aside, under certain circumstances a defaulting defendant may ask the trial court for a new trial. If granted, under Code Civ. Proc. § 583.320(a)(e) plaintiff arguably would have three years from the date of the order to bring the matter to trial [Misic v. Segars (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 1149, 1154-1156, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 100 (issue raised but not decided); see In re Marriage of Dunmore (1996) 45 Cal. App. 4th 1372, 1377, 53 Cal. Rptr. 2d 450 (uncontested hearing to prove damages for default judgment while subject to new trial motion is not "trial" for purposes of dismissal statute)].

By contrast, it has been held that an action is "brought to trial" when a plaintiff proceeds to try the action under Code Civ. Proc. § 594 (proceeding with case when other party fails to appear at trial or hearing) in the defendant's absence, so that an order setting aside the judgment in the plaintiff's favor is equivalent to an order granting a new trial for purposes of this requirement [Briley v. Sukoff (1979) 98 Cal. App. 3d 405, 408-410, 159 Cal. Rptr. 452 (decided under prior law)].

For discussion of the exclusion of time in computing when action must be brought to trial generally when a default judgment is vacated, see § 212.125[4][c][vi] below.

[4] After Remittitur for New Trial

If on appeal an order granting a new trial is affirmed or a judgment is reversed and the action remanded for a new trial, the action must again be brought to trial within three years after the remittitur is filed by the clerk of the trial court [Code Civ. Proc. § 583.320(a)(3)].

On the going down of the remittitur, the action is remanded for a new trial whether the decision so provides expressly, is an unqualified reversal, or contains a direction only as to the overruling of court's discretion. The fact that an appellate court did not expressly remand for a new trial is immaterial if the appeal followed from a final determination of the parties' rights on the merits [see McDonough Power Equipment Co. v. Superior Court (1972) 8 Cal. 3d 527, 532-533, 105 Cal. Rptr. 330, 503 P.2d 1338] .

On the other hand, an action is not deemed to be remanded for a new trial within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. §

583.320(a)(3) if the appellate opinion is but a qualified reversal of a judgment after a dismissal without prejudice rather than a "trial" on the merits [Fannin Corp. v. Superior Court (1974) 36 Cal. App. 3d 745, 753-755, 111 Cal. Rptr. 920 (decided under prior law)].

§ 212.123 When Action Is Brought to Trial or New Trial

[1] Commencement of Trial

[a] In Jury Case

For the purpose of the time requirements of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 583.310 and 583.320, an action is "brought to trial" if, in a jury case, the jury has been impanelled [Hartman v. Santamarina (1982) 30 Cal. 3d 762, 765-767, 765 n.3, 180 Cal. Rptr. 337, 639 P.2d 979 (decided under prior law)].

One court of appeal has held that a party can put a jury trial beyond the bar of the dismissal statute by merely commencing the jury selection process, the rationale being that a contrary rule would invite an unscrupulous party to delay or prolong voir dire examination of prospective jurors until the expiration of the five-year period [Hilliard v. A.H. Robins Co. (1983) 148 Cal. App. 3d 374, 389-390, 196 Cal. Rptr. 117] .

[b] In Nonjury Case

An action is "brought to trial" in a nonjury case if one witness has been sworn and gives some testimony relevant to the issues [Weeks v. Roberts (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 802, 805, 69 Cal. Rptr. 305, 442 P.2d 361 (decided under prior law); Blue Chip Enterprises, Inc. v. Brentwood Sav. & Loan Assn. (1977) 71 Cal. App. 3d 706, 711-712, 139 Cal. Rptr. 651 (decided under prior law)].

Alternatively, an action may be brought to trial if the plaintiff requests leave to present his or her first witness, but is denied [Clements v. Ragghianti (1957) 155 Cal. App. 2d 188, 191, 317 P.2d 706 (decided under prior law)].

[c] In Judicially Arbitrated Case

Usually, submission of an action to judicial arbitration [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.10 et seq.] is not considered bringing the action to trial, since a trial de novo may be subsequently demanded. However, commencement of a judicial arbitration hearing was held to be equivalent to the commencement of a trial when the parties had stipulated to binding arbitration without a right to trial de novo [Dodd v. Ford (1984) 153 Cal. App. 3d 426, 429-431, 200 Cal. Rptr. 256 (decided under prior law)].

[2] Pretrial Disposition on Merits

An action may be "brought to trial" when a judgment is rendered pursuant to a pretrial order which determines an issue of law or fact [McDonough Power Equipment Co. v. Superior Court (1972) 8 Cal. 3d 527, 532, 105 Cal. Rptr. 330, 503 P.2d 1338 (decided under prior law)]. In other words, an action is "brought to trial" in any situation in which the rights of the parties have been finally determined on the merits of the case, either factually or legally [Fannin Corp. v. Superior Court (1974) 36 Cal. App. 3d 745, 751, 111 Cal. Rptr. 920 (decided under prior law)].

Examples of situations in which an action is "brought to trial" include the following:

- When the court dismisses an action with prejudice following the sustaining of a demurrer [see Berri v. Superior Court (1955) 43 Cal. 2d 856, 858-860, 279 P.2d 8 (decided under prior law)].

- When the court enters a judgment following a motion for summary judgment [Southern Pacific Co. v. Seaboard Mills (1962) 207 Cal. App. 2d 97, 104, 24 Cal. Rptr. 236 (decided under prior law)].

- When a case is submitted on stipulated facts for final determination of legal questions [Ryerson v. Riverside Cement Co. (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 789, 795, 72 Cal. Rptr. 595 (decided under prior law)].

Examples of situations in which an action is not "brought to trial" include the following:

- When a court grants discretionary dismissal of an action for delay in prosecution [see Fannin Corp. v. Superior Court (1974) 36 Cal. App. 3d 745, 751, 111 Cal. Rptr. 920 (decided under prior law)].

- When a court grants a motion for partial summary judgment or summary adjudication of issues [see King v. California (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 307, 310-312, 89 Cal. Rptr. 715 (decided under prior law)].

- When a court sets a trial date for a date after the expiration of the applicable period [see Tunis v. Superior Court (1963) 59 Cal. 2d 465, 467, 30 Cal. Rptr. 135, 380 P.2d 823 (decided under prior law)].

[3] Effect of Bringing Action to Trial

If an action is "brought to trial" within the applicable time period for doing so, the mandatory requirement measured by that particular period is satisfied even if the trial is not completed [see Hartman v. Gordon H. Ball, Inc. (1969) 269 Cal. App. 2d 779, 780-781, 75 Cal. Rptr. 618 (decided under prior law)].

ILLUSTRATION:

Trial Ending in Mistrial. The trial of an action ends in a mistrial. Is the action "brought to trial" for purposes of the dismissal statute? Yes [see Hartman v. Gordon H. Ball, Inc. (1969) 269 Cal. App. 2d 779, 780-781, 75 Cal. Rptr. 618 (decided under prior law)].

[4] Partial Trial

Partial trial of an action will take the case out of the operation of the five-year statute [Berri v. Superior Court (1955) 43 Cal. 2d 856, 861, 279 P.2d 8 (prior law); In re Marriage of MacFarlane & Lang (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 247, 255, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 157 (partial trial found in evidentiary hearing granting judgment of dissolution and subsequent hearings on issues relating to property over which it had reserved jurisdiction)].

However, if none of the issues determined in the earlier trial are related to the issues to be tried on the remaining causes of action, the earlier trial will not be considered a partial trial and will not take the case out of the operation of the five year statute [Sagi Plumbing v. Chartered Constr. Corp. (2004) 123 Cal. App. 4th 443, 449, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 835 (earlier trial of issues unrelated and irrelevant to remaining two causes of action did not constitute commencement of trial on the remaining two causes of action; plaintiff's failure to bring the remaining two causes of action to trial within five years resulted in their involuntary dismissal)].

§ 212.124 Extension of Time for Trial by Stipulation

[1] Stipulation by Parties

The parties may extend the time within which an action must be brought to trial under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 583.310 and 583.320 by the following:

- A written stipulation, which need not be filed, but if not filed, must be brought to the court's attention if relevant to a motion for dismissal [Code Civ. Proc. § 583.330(a)].

- An oral agreement made in open court, if entered in the minutes of the court or if a transcript is made [Code Civ. Proc. § 583.330(b); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 583.130 (policy favoring right of parties to stipulate is generally to be preferred)].

A stipulation may be made after the expiration of the applicable time period, so long as dismissal of the action has not yet been ordered [see General Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 449, 454-455, 124 Cal. Rptr. 745, 541 P.2d 289] . However, a stipulation entered into after the five-year period has expired will extend the five-year term only if it expressly waives the right to dismissal or extends the time of trial to a date beyond the five-year period [see Miles v. Speidel (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 879, 883, 259 Cal. Rptr. 582] .

For a form of stipulation extending time within which an action must be brought to trial, see § 212.298.

[2] Construction of Stipulation

A stipulation is effective under Code Civ. Proc. § 583.330 if it expressly waives the right to mandatory dismissal for failure to satisfy the requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 583.310 or 583.320, or if it expressly permits the plaintiff to bring the action to trial or retrial at some date beyond the applicable time period [see General Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 449, 455, 124 Cal. Rptr. 745, 541 P.2d 289 (decided under prior law); J.C. Penney Co. v. Superior Court (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 666, 669, 343 P.2d 919 (decided under prior law)].

A stipulation may also be effective if it shows intent to extend the applicable time period by indefinitely extending the time for performance of some other act that is a necessary prerequisite to bringing the action to trial [see Health Industries of America v. Los Angeles County Metropolitan Transportation Authority (2002) 102 Cal. App. 4th 1372, 1378, 126 Cal. Rptr. 2d 294 ; Regan Distributors, Inc. v. Yurosek & Son, Inc. (1979) 88 Cal. App. 3d 924, 928-929, 152 Cal. Rptr. 127 (decided under prior law; appellate court, based on stipulation, reversed discretionary dismissal for failure to timely bring action to trial)]. However, the mere granting of an open extension of time to answer, which is exercised within the statutory period, may not extend the period under circumstances that do not preclude the plaintiff from bringing the case to trial within the prescribed time [see Gentry v. Nielsen (1981) 123 Cal. App. 3d 27, 33, 176 Cal. Rptr. 385 (decided under prior law)].

ILLUSTRATION:

Indefinite Extension Does Not Excuse Delay in Bringing to Trial. Parties stipulate in writing to an open extension of time within which defendant may respond to the complaint. Defendants file answers two years before the expiration of the five-year dismissal period. Plaintiff does not bring the action to trial within five years from the date the action was filed. Does the stipulation automatically operate to toll or waive the five-year period for bringing the action to trial? No. The mere granting of an open extension of time to answer, which is exercised within the statutory period, does not extend the period under circumstances which do not preclude the plaintiff from bringing the case to trial within the prescribed time [see Gentry v. Nielsen (1981) 123 Cal. App. 3d 27, 33, 176 Cal. Rptr. 385 (decided under prior law)].

If the stipulation extends the applicable period for an indefinite period of time, a court may construe it to include an implied condition that the extension be for a reasonable period of time [see Chapin v. Superior Court (1965) 234 Cal. App. 2d 571, 576, 44 Cal. Rptr. 496 (decided under prior law; court opined that additional five years was maximum boundary for "reasonable time")].

In construing a stipulation extending the five-year period, the ordinary rules of interpretation of contracts apply. Under those rules, the paramount consideration is the intention of the parties as it existed at the time of contracting. The court must examine the instrument in the light of the circumstances surrounding its execution so as to ascertain what the parties meant by the words they used [Miles v. Speidel (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 879, 883-884, 259 Cal. Rptr. 582] . The objective intent as evidenced by the words of the contract governs the court's interpretation [Miles v. Speidel (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 879, 884, 259 Cal. Rptr. 582] .

§ 212.125 Exclusions From Computation of Time Period

[1] All Exclusions Statutory

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 583.360, the five-year period is not subject to extension, excuse, or exception except as expressly provided by statute [Code Civ. Proc. § 583.360(b)]. The statutory exceptions (other than by stipulation, discussed in § 212.194[7][h]), are discussed in the remainder of this section and in § 212.126.

[2] Suspension of Court's Jurisdiction

Any time during which the court's jurisdiction to try the action was suspended is excluded in computing the time within which an action must be brought to trial or retrial under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 583.310-583.360 [Code Civ. Proc. § 583.340(a)]. For discussion of appellate courts' divergent views on how to determine impossibility, impracticability, and futility, see § 212.154[4]..

Suspension of jurisdiction under Code Civ. Proc. § 583.340(a) refers to a lack of jurisdiction in the strict sense, that is, an entire absence of power to hear or to determine the case [White v. Renck (1980) 108 Cal. App. 3d 835, 840-841, 166 Cal. Rptr. 701 (decided under prior law)].

ILLUSTRATIONS:

Jurisdiction Suspended. Plaintiff brings an action against defendant, filing the complaint on July 21, 1976. The trial court enters summary judgment in plaintiff's favor on February 7, 1977. Defendant successfully appeals the judgment and a remittitur is filed on May 12, 1978. On August 3, 1981, defendant moves to dismiss the action on the ground that plaintiffs have failed to bring the action to trial within five years from the filing of the complaint. In computing the date by which plaintiff's action must be brought to trial in order to avoid dismissal, must the court exclude the one-year and sixteen-day period of the time that its jurisdiction to try the action was suspended due to defendant's appeal? Yes. The time during which the court's jurisdiction to try the action was suspended because of defendant's appeal from the summary judgment must be excluded from the overall five-year period commencing with the filing of the complaint. Plaintiffs have until August 6, 1982 to bring their action to trial [Bergin v. Portman (1983) 141 Cal. App. 3d 23, 26, 190 Cal. Rptr. 81] .

Jurisdiction Not Suspended. Plaintiff, a minor, files a complaint in a tort action against defendant on February 5, 1973. On that same day, the court appoints plaintiff's father as her guardian ad litem. The father dies on January 18, 1976 and a second guardian ad litem, plaintiff's mother, is not appointed until August 4, 1976, approximately 200 days later. On March 20, 1978, defendants move to dismiss the action, based on plaintiff's failure to bring the case to trial within five years after the filing of the complaint. In computing the date by which plaintiff's action must be brought to trial in order to avoid dismissal, may the court exclude the 200-day hiatus when plaintiff was unrepresented by a guardian ad litem? No. The absence of a guardian ad litem is not a jurisdictional defect. The court does not lose jurisdiction of the subject matter and the parties by this defect; the defect could be waived and the judgment would not be subject to collateral attack as a void judgment. The dismissal statute refers to "lack of jurisdiction" only in the fundamental sense of an entire absence of power to hear or determine the case [White v. Renck (1980) 108 Cal. App. 3d 835, 838-841, 166 Cal. Rptr. 701 (decided under prior law)].

[3] Stay or Injunction of Prosecution of Action

Any time during which the prosecution of the trial of the action is stayed or enjoined is excluded in computing the time within which an action must be brought to trial or retrial under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 583.310-583.360 [Code Civ. Proc. § 583.340(b); see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.515 (stay pending coordination of actions as excluded from calculation of time periods under Code Civ. Proc. § 583.110 et seq.)].

For purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 583.340(b), a "stay" is a temporary suspension of a case, or some proceeding in it, until the happening of a defined contingency [Holland v. Dave Altman's R.V. Center (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 477, 482, 271 Cal. Rptr. 706] .

Examples of stays that would result in a exclusion of time include the following:

- The stay under federal bankruptcy law, which operates as a stay on the commencement or continuation of any action against a bankrupt when bankruptcy proceedings are pending against the bankrupt [Hughes v. Portsmouth Square, Inc. (1982) 135 Cal. App. 3d 170, 172-173, 184 Cal. Rptr. 926 (decided under prior law)].

- The stay pending contractual arbitration ordered under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1281.2, 1281.4 [see Byerly v. Sale (1988) 204 Cal. App. 3d 1312, 1314-1316 ; for discussion of the relationship between the dismissal statutes and contractual arbitration, see § 212.128].

- A stay for an indefinite time until an appeal on an order quashing service of summons is concluded [ see Holland v. Dave Altman's R.V. Center (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 477, 482, 271 Cal. Rptr. 706] .

[4] Impossibility, Impracticability, or Futility

[a] When Tolling Applicable

Any time during which it was impossible, impracticable, or futile to bring an action to trial is excluded in computing the time within which an action must be brought to trial or retrial under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 583.310-583.360 [Code Civ. Proc. § 583.340(c); see, e.g., Hattersley v. American Nucleonics Corp. (1992) 3 Cal. App. 4th 397, 401, 4 Cal. Rptr. 2d 331 (tolling principle of Code Civ. Proc. § 583.340(c) applies to three-year nondiscretionary dismissal statute Code Civ. Proc. § 583.320(a)(3))].

The plaintiff has the burden of proving impossibility, impracticability, or futility [see Lauriton v. Carnation Co. (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 161, 165, 263 Cal. Rptr. 476] . The plaintiff must show a causal connection between the circumstances on which plaintiff relies and the failure to satisfy the five-year requirement; bringing the action to trial must be impossible, impracticable, or futile for the reason proffered [see Wilshire Bundy Corp. v. Auerbach (1991) 228 Cal. App. 3d 1280, 1289, 279 Cal. Rptr. 488 ; Sierra Nevada Memorial-Miners Hospital, Inc. v. Superior Court (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 464, 473, 266 Cal. Rptr. 50] . For discussion of appellate courts' divergent views on how to determine impossibility, impracticability, and futility, see § 212.154[4].

The excuse of impossibility or impracticability may apply as follows:

- When, as a matter of law or fact, it would not be possible to commence trial [see Christin v. Superior Court of Los Angeles County (1937) 9 Cal. 2d 526, 71 P.2d 205] .

- When, although proceeding to trial is neither legally nor factually impossible, it would involve excessive and unreasonable difficulty in light of the circumstances of the individual case, including the acts and conduct of the parties and the nature of the proceedings [Brunzell Constr. Co. (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 545, 554, 86 Cal. Rptr. 297, 468 P.2d 553 (decided under prior law)].

If the trial court concludes that there was a period of impossibility, impracticability, or futility over which plaintiff had no control, it must toll the running of the five-year period for that period, even if there is ample time after that period for the plaintiff to bring the case to trial [Brown & Bryant, Inc. v. Hartford Accident & Indemnity Co. (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 247, 257, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 144] . The plaintiff need not show that he or she would have brought the case to trial within the five-year period but for theperiod of impracticability [New West Fed. Savings & Loan Assn. v. Superior Court (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 1145, 1155, 273 Cal. Rptr. 37] .

[b] Reasonable Diligence Required

The plaintiff has a duty to use reasonable diligence in prosecuting his or her action [Lauriton v. Carnation Co. (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 161, 164, 263 Cal. Rptr. 476 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 583.130]. The exclusion of Code Civ. Proc. § 583.340(c) does not apply when a plaintiff fails to take reasonable steps to expedite the proceedings [see Schwenke v. J & P Scott, Inc. (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 71, 79-80, 252 Cal. Rptr. 91] . To establish reasonable diligence, the plaintiff must be able to demonstrate diligence in pursuit of his or her duty to expedite the resolution of the case at all stages of the proceedings, including the specific duty to use every reasonable effort to bring the matter to trial within the five-year period [Lauriton v. Carnation Co. (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 161, 164, 263 Cal. Rptr. 476] . For discussion of appellate courts' divergent views on how to determine impossibility, impracticability, and futility, see § 212.154[4].

ILLUSTRATION:

Failure to Exercise Due Diligence. On December 31, 1981, plaintiff files a complaint in municipal court to foreclose on a mechanic's lien. On June 29, 1982, defendants file a verified answer and unverified cross complaint seeking damages for breach of contract in the amount of $35,000. On December 8, 1982, defendant successfully moves to have the action transferred to the superior court; the case is docketed in that court on March 14, 1983. The matter is sent to arbitration. On March 12, 1984, plaintiff requests a trial de novo. The case is restored to the trial calendar. At a status conference held on August 30, 1984, plaintiff requests that the case be ordered off the active calendar. For the next two and one-half years, there is no activity on the case. On March 5, 1987, defendant moves to restore the case to the trial calendar. On May 15, 1987, defendant moves to dismiss the case on the ground that more than five years have elapsed since the filing of the complaint. Is Code Civ. Proc. § 583.340(c) applicable? No. Plaintiff could easily have moved to transfer the action at the time he was served with the cross complaint. Instead, he did nothing, waiting until defendant brought the motion nearly five months later. Moreover, the case was taken off calendar for approximately two and one-half years at plaintiff's request [see Schwenke v. J & P. Scott, Inc. (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 71, 79-80, 252 Cal. Rptr. 91] .

[c] Situations in Which Exclusion May Be Applicable

[i] Court Congestion

A period of court congestion may be a sufficient basis for exclusion under Code Civ. Proc. § 583.340(c) when the congestion causes unusual or abnormal delays beyond the plaintiff's control [see Lazelle v. Lovelady (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 34, 38-42, 217 Cal. Rptr. 145 (decided under prior law); Bennett v. Bennett Cement Contractors, Inc. (1981) 125 Cal. App. 3d 673,677-678, 125 Cal. App. 3d 673, 678, 178 Cal. Rptr. 633 (decided under prior law); see also Chin v. Meier (1991) 235 Cal. App. 3d 1473, 1477-1478, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 499 (aggregate time of continuances due to court unavailability as tolling limitation period of Code Civ. Proc. § 583.340(c) even if reasonable time remains to bring action to trial)].

ILLUSTRATION:

Five-Year Period Tolled While Case on Civil Active List. On November 27, 1978, plaintiffs file a complaint against defendants. Pursuant to an "Order to Specially Set Case for Trial," trial is set for September 14, 1983. On that date, no courts are available and the case begins trailing on a day-to-day basis. On November 22, 1983, five days before the running of the five-year limitation period, plaintiffs file an Election of Arbitration, pursuant to Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1600 et seq [now see Rule 3.810]. The case is taken off the civil active list and placed on the arbitration list. The five-year period expires. On December 29, 1983, defendants file a motion to dismiss for failure to prosecute within five years. Plaintiff argues that the five- year period should be tolled under Code Civ. Proc. § 583.340(c), because it was impossible for him to prosecute his action during the 69-day period from September 14, 1983 to November 22, 1983, due to the unavailability of a judge and court room. Is *Code Civ. Proc. § 583.340(c)*applicable? Yes. An exception to mandatory dismissal for failure to prosecute is recognized when the delay in bringing a case to trial is due, at least partially, to court congestion. When a plaintiff has waited the normal time for a place on the calendar and has been assigned such a place well within the five-year period, his or her inability thereafter to proceed to trial because of continued court congestion should not be chargeable to the five-year period [Lazelle v Lovelady (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 34, 41-42, 217 Cal. Rptr. 145 (decided under former law)].

The court congestion or unavailability of a courtroom to try the case must prevent or interfere with plaintiff's prosecution of the case. If plaintiff is not ready for trial, a court-declared moratorium on civil trials, for example, will not be sufficient to make it impossible, impracticable, or futile to bring the action to trial [see Jordan v. Superstar Sandcars (2010) 182 Cal. App. 4th 1416, 1420-1422 (while two court-declared moratoria on civil trials prevented civil cases from being tried, moratoria did not prevent or interfere with plaintiffs prosecuting their case, where plaintiffs were not ready for trial at time of moratoria)].

The tolling principle of Code Civ. Proc. § 583.340(c) applies to Code Civ. Proc. § 583.320(a)(3) (three-year nondiscretionary retrial dismissal statute) [Hattersley v. American Nucleonics Corp. (1992) 3 Cal. App. 4th 397, 401, 4 Cal. Rptr. 2d 331] .

[ii] Court Fails to Perform Duty

In calculating the applicable time periods for bringing an action to trial, the period during which the trial is held in abeyance pending official court action that is necessary to proceed may be excludable under Code Civ. Proc. § 583.340(c), on the ground that it is impossible for the plaintiff to prosecute the action during this time because of a delay caused solely by the court.

Examples of this excludable time include:

- The period between a plaintiff's successful peremptory challenge of the judge presiding over the trial under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6 and the time a new judge is assigned [Hartman v. Santamarina (1982) 30Cal. 3d 762, 768, 180 Cal. Rptr. 337, 639 P.2d 979 (decided under prior law); Nail v. Osterholm (1970) 13 Cal. App. 3d 682, 686, 91 Cal. Rptr. 908 (decided under prior law)].

- The time between the filing of a judicial arbitration award and the setting of a trial date, when a party has made a request for trial de novo following judicial arbitration [Moran v. Superior Court (1983) 35 Cal. 3d 229, 240-242, 197 Cal. Rptr. 546, 673 P.2d 216 (decided under prior law); Paul E. Iacono Structural Engineer, Inc. v. Rizzo (1984) 162 Cal. App. 3d 803, 807-808, 208 Cal. Rptr. 787 (decided under prior law); for further discussion, see § 212.125[5][a]].

[iii] Disability of Counsel

Delay in bringing a case to trial attributable to the sickness or death of counsel is not necessarily excusable so as to toll the running of the five-year statutory period under Code Civ. Proc. § 583.310. Rather, whether the period will be tolled depends on the facts of the case and whether the illness renders it impractical to bring the case to trial within the statutory period. The existence of impracticability is determined in light of all the circumstances of the individual case, including the acts and conduct of the parties and the nature of the proceedings themselves. The critical factor in applying the exception to a given factual situation is whether the plaintiff exercised reasonable diligence in prosecuting his or her case [Him v. Superior Court (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 35, 39, 228 Cal. Rptr. 839] .

ILLUSTRATIONS:

Attorney's Illness As Tolling Period. On April 7, 1981, plaintiff files a personal injury complaint against defendant. Plaintiff's at-issue memorandum is filed in November 1982. In October 1984, plaintiff serves interrogatories on defendant. Settlement negotiations take place during 1985. On February 18, 1986, seven weeks prior to the deadline for bringing the case to trial, plaintiff's sole counsel is hospitalized after suffering severe chest pains. By late March 1986, the attorney is able to work in his office two hours per day, and by May, he is able to spend four hours per day at the office. In late April 1986, the attorney realizes that the five-year period has expired, and he immediately telephones the office of defendant's attorney to obtain a written stipulation to extend time. Defense counsel declines to so stipulate, and files a motion to dismiss on May 8, 1986. Should the five-year period be tolled due to the disability of plaintiff's counsel? Yes. Under all of the circumstances, plaintiff's conduct was sufficiently diligent to warrant the applicability of the impracticability exception to excuse his failure to bring the case to trial within the five-year limit [see Him v. Superior Court (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 35, 39, 228 Cal. Rptr. 839] .

Attorney's Illness As Not Tolling Period. Plaintiff brings a medical malpractice action against defendant. As of December 1987, the law firm representing plaintiff consists of one partner and two contract attorneys; one of these contract attorneys works on the discovery and preparation of plaintiff's case. The partner undergoes three surgeries between August 5, 1987 and November8, 1988, requiring 77 days of recuperation. The contract attorney mistakenly refers to the service date posted on the file label (December 9, 1986) as the date the complaint was filed; consequently, she does not obtain a trial date within the five-year period. On February 6, 1989, defendant files a motion to dismiss for failure to to bring the action to trial within five years. Should the five-year period be tolled due to the partner's disability? No. The illness of the attorney for a total of 77 days during the five-year period is not a sufficient period alone to warrant an inference that an appreciable delay in the prosecution of plaintiff's case occurred because of that incapacity [see Sierra Nevada Memorial-Miners Hospital, Inc. v. Superior Court (Hudson) (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 464, 471, 473-474, 266 Cal. Rptr. 50] .

[iv] Multiple Defendants

An unavoidable delay in proceeding to trial against one defendant (caused, for example, by intervening injunctions and appeals) that results in plaintiff delaying proceedings against the other defendants in the action is not an excusable delay as to the other defendants if it would not have been impracticable and futile for plaintiff to sever the causes of action and proceed separately against the codefendants [Brunzell Constr. Co. v. Wagner (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 545, 554-556, 86 Cal. Rptr. 297, 468 P.2d 553 (decided under prior law)].

The trial court is in the most advantageous situation to evaluate the question of whether or not the action could be severed, and the factors it may consider include [Brunzell Constr. Co. v. Wagner (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 545, 554-556, 86 Cal. Rptr. 297, 468 P.2d 553 (decided under prior law); see Westinghouse Electric Corp. v. Superior Court (1983) 143 Cal. App. 3d 95, 107-108, 191 Cal. Rptr. 549 (decided under prior law)]:

- The relationship between the causes of action.
- The expense and difficulty likely to be engendered by separate trials.
- The diligence and good faith efforts of the plaintiff.
- The prejudice or hardship to defendants.
- The expense, complexity, and quantity of evidentiary duplication.
- The potential problems of inconsistent judicial determinations.
- Any other relevant facts the court deems important.

Since impracticability may vary not only as to different proceedings but as to different parties within the same proceeding, each defendant is entitled to an individual evaluation of the right to dismissal with respect to the defendant's particular role in the litigation [Brunzell Constr. Co. v. Wagner (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 545, 555, 86 Cal. Rptr. 297, 468 P.2d 553 (decided under prior law)].

[v] Separate Action Pending

The plaintiff may be able to establish that proceeding to trial would be impracticable and futile because another action is pending that arose outof the same incident or involves some of the same issues. Examples of situations in which impracticability or futility may be found to exist include the following:

- The outcome in the pending case would resolve a legal issue that is unsettled or essential to plaintiff's case and the interests of judicial economy would be promoted by delaying proceeding to trial [see Rose v. Knapp (1951) 38 Cal. 2d 114, 118, 237 P.2d 981 (decided under prior law); Stella v. Great Western Sav. & Loan Assn. (1970) 13 Cal. App. 3d 732, 737-739, 91 Cal. Rptr. 771 (decided under prior law)].

- The pending action, brought by plaintiff in federal court, cannot be consolidated with plaintiff's state court action and determination of the federal action would be beneficial to all the parties to the state action [see McRoberts v. Gorham (1971) 18 Cal. App. 3d 1040, 1045, 96 Cal. Rptr. 427 (decided under prior law)].

Conversely to the two examples above, the existence of a pending action will not justify delay in prosecuting the plaintiff's action if there are no disputed or complex facts or legal issues to be tried in plaintiff's action that would be obviated by a final determination in the pending action [see Reserve Ins. Co. v. Universal Underwriters Ins. Co. (1975) 51 Cal. App. 3d 57, 62-63, 123 Cal. Rptr. 763 (prior law)]. Also, existence of a pending action brought by the plaintiff in federal court may not justify delay in prosecuting plaintiff's state court action if there was no necessity for bringing the actions in different forums and no particular benefit to be gained by awaiting the outcome of the pending action [see Mitchell v. Frank R. Howard Memorial Hospital (1992) 6 Cal. App. 4th 1396, 1404, 8 Cal. Rptr. 2d 521 ; Manor Drug Stores v. Blue Chip Stamps (1977) 71 Cal. App. 3d 423, 426-427, 139 Cal. Rptr. 483 (decided under prior law)].

The fact that an action was consolidated with a second action may excuse delay in bringing the consolidated action against a defendant named in the first action if substantial benefits were gained by consolidation, such as preventing the duplication of complex mechanical and technical factual evidence [see General Motors Corp. v. Superior Court (1966) 65 Cal. 2d 88, 96, 52 Cal. Rptr. 460, 416 P.2d 492 (consolidated personal injury and wrongful death cases based on design defects in automobile; decided under prior law)].

[vi] Default Entered

Some courts of appeal have adopted a rule of mandatory exclusion in cases of default, holding that the period between the time that defendant defaulted and the time the default judgment was ultimately set aside is excluded from computation of the time within which the action must thereafter be brought to trial, because there is no adversary against whom the plaintiff may reasonably prosecute the action during this time [Maguire v. Collier (1975) 49 Cal. App. 3d 309, 312-313, 122 Cal. Rptr. 510 (decidedunder prior law); see Misic v. Segars (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 1149, 1156, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 100 ; see, e.g., Dale v. ITT Life Ins. Corp. (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 495, 498-499, 255 Cal. Rptr. 8] .

However, at least one court of appeal has rejected the rule of mandatory exclusion, taking the position that the time between entry of a default and entry of a default judgment is excludable if and only if the court finds that, despite the plaintiff's use of due diligence to obtain entry of the judgment, it was impossible, impracticable, or futile to obtain the judgment. Taking this approach, the court determined that the period of a defendant's default did not constitute a mandatory exclusion sufficient to toll the mandatory dismissal period when the plaintiff failed to obtain a default judgment for over three years after the clerk's entry of default, until the court on its own motion acted to dismiss the case [Hughes v. Kimble (1992) 5 Cal. App. 4th 59, 68-70, 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 616] .

[d] Situations in Which Exclusion Is Inapplicable

[i] Delay Due to Ordinary, Usual, Proceedings in Course of Prosecution of Action

The impossibility exclusion does not apply to those ordinary and usual proceedings in the course of the prosecution of an action that necessarily entail periods in which the plaintiff cannot bring the matter to trial, such as:

- The period during which the defendant has the right to answer [New West Fed. Savings & Loan Assn. v. Superior Court (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 1145, 1155, 273 Cal. Rptr. 37 ; Sierra Nevada Memorial-Miners Hospital, Inc. v. Superior Court (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 464, 472, 266 Cal. Rptr. 50] .

- Delays related to [Crown Coach Corp. v. Superior Court (1972) 8 Cal. 3d 540, 548, 105 Cal. Rptr. 339, 503 P.2d 1347 (decided under prior law); Sierra Nevada Memorial-Miners Hospital, Inc. v. Superior Court (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 464, 472, 266 Cal. Rptr. 50] :

  - The disposition of a demurrer.

  - Amendment of pleadings.

  - The normal time of waiting for a place on the court's calendar.

  - The normal time for securing the attendance of a jury.

- Normal delays in discovery proceedings [see Gentry v. Nielsen (1981) 123 Cal. App. 3d 27, 35-36 . 176 Cal. Rptr. 385 (decided under prior law)].

- The normal time required for change of venue [see Moore v. Powell (1977) 70 Cal. App. 3d 583, 589, 138 Cal. Rptr. 914] .

[ii] Inexcusable Error of Plaintiff's Counsel

Delays in prosecuting an action are not excludable from the five-year period if they result from an inexcusable error of plaintiff's counsel, such as:

- Failure due to a computational error in calendaring a case for timely action by mistakenly referring to the date posted on the office file label as the date the complaint was filed [see Sierra Nevada Memorial-Miners Hospital, Inc. v. Superior Court (Hudson) (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 464, 469, 266 Cal. Rptr. 50] .

- Failure to note that a stipulation mistakenly did not waive dismissal [Martin v. Cook (1977) 68 Cal. App. 3d 799, 807-809, 137 Cal. Rptr. 434 (decided under prior law)].

- Allowing the court inadvertently to set trial beyond expiration of the five-year period [Singelyn v. Superior Court (1976) 62 Cal. App. 3d 972, 975, 133 Cal. Rptr. 486] .

[iii] Incapacity of Plaintiff That Does Not Prevent Bringing Action to Trial

A delay resulting from an incapacity of the plaintiff that does not prevent bringing the action to trial is not excludable [see Singelyn v. Superior Court (1976) 62 Cal. App. 3d 972, 974-975, 133 Cal. Rptr. 486 (decided under prior law)].

[5] Other Statutory Time Extensions

[a] Submission of Action to Judicial Arbitration

Submission of an action to judicial arbitration under Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.10 et seq. suspends the running of the time periods specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 583.110 et seq. [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.17(a); see also § 212.126] if an action is or remains submitted to arbitration more than four years and six months after the plaintiff has filed the action.

In that case, the time beginning on the date four years and six months after the plaintiff has filed the action and ending on the date on which a request for a de novo trial is filed under Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.20 is not included in computing the five-year period specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 583.310 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.17(b)].

Section 1141.17 is the exclusive ground for tolling based on the submission of a case to judicial arbitration [Howard v. Thrifty Drug & Discount Stores (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 424, 434, 41 Cal. Rptr. 2d 362, 895 P.2d 469] . Thus, there is no further tolling to prevent dismissal under Code Civ. Proc. § 583.310 when a request for trial de novo is filed, the court selects a trial date beyond the five year statutory period taking into account the tolling under Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.17(b), and plaintiff fails to object to the trial date and to inform the court as to the last day of trial within the statutory period. It is plaintiff's obligation to exercise reasonable diligence in calculating the mandatory dismissal date under Code Civ. Proc. § 583.310 and to request a trial date within the statutory period [Lee v. Park (1996) 43 Cal. App. 4th 305, 308-309, 50 Cal. Rptr. 2d 511] . Nonetheless, after a trial de novo request, tolling may be based on Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.20, based on the trial court's failure to calendar or recalendar the case after the trial de novo request. For Section 1141.20 tolling to apply, the plaintiff must inform the court of the impending five-year deadline at the time of or shortly after the request for trial de novo [Howard v. Thrifty Drug & Discount Stores (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 424, 434-435, 41 Cal. Rptr. 2d 362, 895 P.2d 469] . For discussion of tolling after judicial arbitration, see Ch. 36, Judicial Arbitration, § 36.37.

[b] Submission of Action to Mediation

Submission of an action to mediation tolls the running of the five-year time period if the action is submitted to mediation more than four years and six months after the plaintiff has filed the action [Code. Civ. Proc. § 1775.7]. In that case, the time beginning on the date four years and six months after the plaintiff has filed the action and ending on the date on which a statement of nonagreement (indicating that the mediation did not resolve the matter) is filed shall not be included in computing the five year period [Code. Civ. Proc. § 1775.7]. The tolling commences on the four-year six-month date after the action was filed by plaintiff, not on the date the trial court orders the case to mediation [Code. Civ. Proc. § 1775.7; Gonzalez v. County of Los Angeles (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 1124, 1130, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 381] .

[c] Party in Military Service

Federal law suspending statutory limitation periods during the time that a party is in active military service (for example, 50 U.S.C. App. § 526) tolls the time period for bringing an action to trial or retrial [Buttler v. City of Los Angeles (1984) 153 Cal. App. 3d 520, 524-525, 200 Cal. Rptr. 372 , cert. denied, 469 U.S. 883 (decided under prior law)].

[d] Review of Determination of Good Faith Settlement

When a trial court has made a determination that a plaintiff's settlement with a joint tortfeasor or coobligor on a contract debt was made in good faith, this determination is subject to review by petition for writ of mandate, and the periods for bringing an action to trial are tolled during the period of such review [Code Civ. Proc. § 877.6(e)(3)].

[e] Stay Order in Coordination Proceeding

The time during which any stay of proceeding is in effect under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.510 et seq., relating to coordination proceedings, is notincluded in determining whether the action stayed should be dismissed for lack of prosecution under Code Civ. Proc. § 583.110 et seq. [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.515(j)]. Only that time when a stay has been actually granted under the rules is excluded from the time in which a case must be brought to trial [Gordon's Cabinet Shop v. State Comp. Ins. Fund (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 33, 40-41, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 541 (five-year dismissal statute not tolled)].

§ 212.126 Special Extension After Statutory Tolling or Extension

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 583.350, if the time within which an action must be brought to trial or retrial under Code Civ. Proc. § 583.310 et seq. is tolled or extended by statute and at the end of the tolling or extension period less than six months remain in the applicable time period, the action is not subject to mandatory dismissal under Code Civ. Proc. § 583.310 et seq. if it is brought to trial or retrial within six months after the end of the tolling or extension period [Code Civ. Proc. § 583.350; see Him v. Superior Court (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 35, 38, 228 Cal. Rptr. 839] .

Conversely, if no trial setting was obtained in an action within six months after expiration of the tolling period, the action must be dismissed [Greene v. Howmedica, Inc. (1993) 13 Cal. App. 4th 912, 915, 16 Cal. Rptr. 2d 777] .

One court of appeal has held that Code Civ. Proc. § 583.350 does not apply to cases submitted to judicial arbitration, that cases in arbitration four years and six months after the action was filed are governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.17(b) (discussed under § 212.125[5][a]), and that under Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.17(b), the plaintiff has six months from the date the request for trial de novo is filed within which to bring the action to trial [Drummond v. Murata (1991) 227 Cal. App. 3d 44, 48-49, 277 Cal. Rptr. 727 (Second District, Division Three)] .

Another court of appeal, however, has cited Code Civ. Proc. § 583.350 as the authority in reaching the same conclusion as to the time within which the plaintiff must bring the action to trial after the request for trial de novo is filed [Marchuk v. Ralphs Grocery Co. (1990) 226 Cal. App. 3d 1273, 1276 n.1, 276 Cal. Rptr. 627 (Fourth District, Division Three)] .

§ 212.127 Motions by Plaintiff to Avoid Mandatory Dismissal

[1] Consideration of Discretionary Dismissal Factors

Whenever a plaintiff makes any motion seeking to avoid the mandatory five-year statute, the trial court, before entering any order on the merits of the motion, should consider the factors relevant to a motion to dismiss under the discretionary dismissal provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 583.420 (discussed in Subpt. E, below) [see Sisler v. Superior Court (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 864, 868, 252 Cal. Rptr. 665 (discussed under § 212.127[3])].

[2] Motion for Trial Preference

As a means of expediting the trial when the time limit for bringing an action to trial is approaching, a plaintiff may move for trial preference [see Code Civ. Proc. § 36].

A court may grant a motion for trial preference in a civil case, on a showing of cause by the movant that satisfies the court that the interests of justice will be served by granting the preference [Code Civ. Proc. § 36(e)]. The court, however, has discretion to grant or deny such a motion, even when it is made to avoid dismissal under Code Civ. Proc. § 583.310 et seq., on an evaluation of the totality of the circumstances [Salas v. Sears, Roebuck & Co. (1986) 42 Cal.

3d 342, 344-349, 228 Cal. Rptr. 504, 721 P.2d 590] .

A motion to specially set to avoid the bar of the five-year statute raises the same issues as a motion for discretionary dismissal based on delay in prosecution (discussed in § 212.150 et seq.) [Salas v. Sears, Roebuck & Co. (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 342, 346, 228 Cal. Rptr. 504, 721 P.2d 590] . The court should consider the criteria for discretionary dismissal listed in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1342(e) (discussed in §§ 212.152- 212.153 below) when deciding a motion to specially set under Code Civ. Proc. § 36(e) [Biondi, Flemming & Gonzales v. Braham (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 842, 847, 267 Cal. Rptr. 365] .

Relevant factors include [Salas v. Sears, Roebuck & Co. (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 342, 349, 228 Cal. Rptr. 504, 721 P.2d 590 ; Parlen v. Golden State Sanwa Bank (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 906, 912, 240 Cal. Rptr. 73] :

- The condition of the court calendar.
- Dilatory conduct by plaintiff.
- Prejudice to the defendant of an accelerated trial date.
- The likelihood of eventual mandatory dismissal if the early trial date is denied.

[3] Motion to Refer Case to Arbitration

When a plaintiff seeks to avoid mandatory dismissal by moving to refer the case to arbitration, the trial court, before entering any order on the merits of the motion, should consider the factors relevant to a motion to dismiss under the discretionary dismissal provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 583.420 (discussed under Criteria Used by Court in Exercising Discretion, below) [Sisler v. Superior Court (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 864, 868, 252 Cal. Rptr. 665] .

§ 212.128 Application of Mandatory Dismissal Statutes in Contractual Arbitration Proceedings

The mandatory dismissal provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 583.310 et seq. apply to lawsuits subject to contractual arbitration, even if the case is inarbitration [see Kuzmanoff v. Kron (1988) 207 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 1, 3 , 255 Cal. Rptr. 168 (citing cases)]. The dismissal statutes apply only to court actions [see Code Civ. Proc. § 583.120(a)] and hence cannot be applied directly to arbitration proceedings. Nevertheless, their concepts and limitation periods provide the guideline for determining whether a matter submitted to contractual arbitration should be dismissed for unreasonable delay in bringing the matter to a conclusion [see Byerly v. Sale (1988) 204 Cal. App. 3d 1312, 1315, 251 Cal. Rptr. 749 ; Young v. Ross-Loos Medical Group, Inc. (1982) 135 Cal. App. 3d 669, 673, 185 Cal. Rptr. 536] .

For discussion of the relationship of the dismissal statutes to contractual arbitration, see Ch. 32, Contractual Arbitration: Agreement and Compelling Arbitration, §§ 32.33 and 32.50 et seq.

§ 212.129 Defenses to Motion for Dismissal for Delay in Bringing Action to Trial

[1] Limited Availability of Defenses

The requirements of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 583.310-583.360 are mandatory and are not subject to extension, excuse, or exception except as expressly provided by statute [Code Civ. Proc. § 583.360(b)]. Thus, aside from the extensions under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 583.330 and 583.350 [see § 212.194[7][h]] and exclusions under Code Civ. Proc. § 583.340 or other statutes [see § 212.125], there is generally no defense to a motion for mandatory dismissal under Code Civ. Proc. § 583.360(a) other than that of waiver or estoppel [Code Civ. Proc. § 583.140].

[2] Waiver

[a] Applicability

Nothing in Code Civ. Proc. § 583.110 et seq. affects the principles of waiver [Code Civ. Proc. § 583.140].

ILLUSTRATION:

Failure to Seek Dismissal Until After Trial. Plaintiff files a complaint for dissolution of partnership on May 30, 1974. After court trial on January 12, 1983, judgment is entered in her favor. Defendant appeals from the judgment entered, contending that the trial court erred in failing to dismiss the action pursuant to the five-year dismissal provision. Has the defendant waived the right to have the action dismissed? Yes. If an action is subject to dismissal under the five-year rule, but is nonetheless brought to trial without any objection from the defendant, his or her conduct indicates intent to submit the issues for a determination on the merits and constitutes a waiver of the right to seek dismissal [see Butler v. Hathcoat (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 834, 838-840, 194 Cal. Rptr. 352] .

[b] Conduct Not Constituting Waiver

[i] Presence at Trial-Setting Conference When Date is Set After Five-Year Period

A defendant's mere presence at a trial setting conference at which the trial date is set beyond the time required for bringing an an action to trial is not sufficient to constitute a waiver [Central Mutual Ins. Co. v. Executive Motor Home Sales, Inc. (1983) 143 Cal. App. 3d 791, 796, 192 Cal. Rptr. 169 (decided under prior law); Singelyn v. Superior Court (1976) 62 Cal. App. 3d 972, 974, 133 Cal. Rptr. 486 (decided under prior law)].

[ii] Request for Continuance

A request for a continuance made by the defendant after the expiration of the applicable time period does not constitute a waiver [Balboa Ins. Co. v. Aguirre (1983) 149 Cal. App. 3d 1002, 1008, 197 Cal. Rptr. 250 (decided under prior law)].

[3] Estoppel

[a] Applicability

Nothing in Code Civ. Proc. § 583.110 et seq. affects the principles of estoppel [Code Civ. Proc. § 583.140]. Thus, the equitable doctrine of estoppel applies fully to motions to dismiss on account of failure to bring an action to trial within five years of its filing [Greene v. State Farm Fire & Casualty Co. (1990) 224 Cal. App. 3d 1583, 1590, 274 Cal. Rptr. 736] .

[b] Nature and Elements

The doctrine of equitable estoppel is founded on concepts of equity and fair dealing. It provides that a person may not deny the existence of a state of facts if he or she intentionally led another to believe a particular circumstance to be true and to rely on such belief to his or her detriment. The elements of the doctrine are as follows [Greene v. State Farm Fire & Casualty Co. (1990) 224 Cal. App. 3d 1583, 1590, 274 Cal. Rptr. 736 (quoting Strong v. County of Santa Cruz (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 720, 725, 125 Cal. Rptr. 896, 543 P.2d 264)]:

- The party to be estopped must be apprised of the facts and must intend that his or her conduct shall be acted on, or must so act that the party asserting the estoppel has a right to believe it was so intended.

- The other party must be ignorant of the true state of facts and must rely on the conduct to his or her injury.

For a form of declaration in opposition to a motion to dismiss under Code Civ. Proc. § 583.360(a) on the ground of estoppel, see § 212.300.

[c] Conduct of Party Giving Rise to Estoppel

Conduct of the defendant that reasonably induces the plaintiff to take no action to bring the action to trial within the time required may give rise to the defense of estoppel [Borglund v. Bombardier, Ltd. (1981) 121 Cal. App. 3d 276, 280-281, 175 Cal. Rptr. 150 (decided under prior law)].

Conduct by the defendant that may give rise to estoppel include the following:

- Submitting documents that indicate a willingness to proceed to a disposition on the merits [see City of Los Angeles v. Gleneagle Dev. Co. (1976) 62 Cal. App. 3d 543, 562-564, 133 Cal. Rptr. 212 (defendant submitted at-issue memorandum; decided under prior law); Mustalo v. Mustalo (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 580, 584-585, 112 Cal. Rptr. 594 (defendant submitted written response under Family Law Act and memorandum setting case for trial; decided under prior law)].

- Actively seeking a postponement [see Woley v. Turkus (1958) 51 Cal. 2d 402, 408-409, 334 P.2d 12 (decided under prior law); Breacher v. Breacher (1983) 141 Cal. App. 3d 89, 92-93, 190 Cal. Rptr. 112 (decided under prior law)].

Facts that might otherwise give rise to a defense of estoppel may not prevent dismissal if there is additional delay after the period of postponement that can be attributed to plaintiff [see Andre v. General Dynamics, Inc. (1974) 43 Cal. App. 3d 839 (decided under prior law, construing discretionary dismissal statute); Smith v. El Centro Lodge No. 1325 (1969) 271 Cal. App. 2d 713 (decided under prior law)].

ILLUSTRATION:

Plaintiff's Delay Makes Estoppel Inapplicable. On July 6, 1962, plaintiff files an action on a contract, seeking damages. Trial is set for February 1, 1967. On February 1, 1967, the court places the trial off calendar because the attorney for one of the defendants is ill and unable to appear for trial, and trial is reset for October 18, 1967. On September 19, the defendant files a motion to dismiss for failure to prosecute. Is defendant estopped from asserting the five-year dismissal rule because defendant requested a continuance based on the attorney's illness? No. While trial of the action was continued due to the attorney's illness, this occurred five months before the five-year period expired. Plaintiff had ample time to request a trial setting within the time limitation. The court notified plaintiff of the October 18, 1967, trial setting on February 19, 1967, almost five months before the time expired, yet he made no attempt to advance the trial to a date within the five-year period or secure written agreement to a trial after that time [Smith v. El Centro Lodge No. 1325 (1969) 271 Cal. App. 2d 713, 717, 76 Cal. Rptr. 629 (decided under prior law)].

[d] Conduct of Party Not Giving Rise to Estoppel

Examples of conduct not giving rise to estoppel include the following:

- A defendant's mere presence at a trial-setting conference at which the trial date is set beyond the time required for bringing an action to trial [Central Mutual Ins. Co. v. Executive Motor Home Sales, Inc. (1983) 143 Cal. App. 3d 791, 796, 192 Cal. Rptr. 169 (decided under prior law); Singelyn v. Superior Court (1976) 62 Cal. App. 3d 972, 974, 133 Cal. Rptr. 486 (decided under prior law)].

- A defendant's request for a continuance made after the expiration of the applicable time period [Balboa Ins. Co. v. Aguirre (1983) 149 Cal. App. 3d 1002, 1008, 197 Cal. Rptr. 250 (decided under prior law)].

- A defendant's agreement to trail a matter until after the expiration of the applicable time period, when plaintiff should have used due diligence in preventing the matter from being off calendar when the date expired [Hoffman v. State of California (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 1100, 1107-1108, 217 Cal. Rptr. 867 (decided under prior law)].

- A defendant's failure to appear voluntarily for a deposition, combined with efforts to seek a continuance of an arbitration hearing and assurances by defendant that defendant will be available for such a hearing before the statutory period expires [Tejada v. Blas (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 1335, 1341-1342, 242 Cal. Rptr. 538] .

- Defense counsel submitting a declaration stating he was not available for trial until after the expiration of the statutory period, since plaintiffs were aware when the five-year trial period ran, and it was not reasonable to assume defendants were willing to waive the deadline. Further, defense counsel was obligated to tell the court when he was unavailable for trial, and the fact that defense counsel's notice of unavailability extended beyond the five-year cutoff date did not constitute any misrepresentation or waiver of the five-year period. Any ambiguity or confusion created by defense counsel mentioning his unavailability beyond the cutoff date could have been clarified by plaintiffs' counsel, who was responsible for insuring the case was tried before the five-year period expired [Jordan v. Superstar Sandcars (2010) 182 Cal. App. 4th 1416, 1422-1423] .

[e] Conduct of Branches of Government

Estoppel may be asserted against the government when justice requires. Moreover, estoppel may arise as a result of conduct by the judicial branch as well as the executive branch of government. Thus, the conflicting interests of a trial court in expeditiously clearing its calendar of old cases and a plaintiff in having a full trial on the merits may set up a situation in which equitable estoppel may be applied against the court to prevent it from pursuing its interest to the detriment of the plaintiff [Greene v. State Farm Fire & Casualty Co. (1990) 224 Cal. App. 3d 1583, 1590, 274 Cal. Rptr. 736] .

ILLUSTRATION:

Estoppel Against Court. On April 12, 1982, plaintiff files an action for damages against defendant. The Superior Court, on its own motion, adopts a general order that establishes a civil jury trial calendar disposition program to which the court assigns 500 cases, including plaintiff's case, and extends the five-year period in such cases to March 18, 1988. On March 15, 1988, the defendant moves for dismissal for failure to bring the case to trial within five years. Should the court be estopped from dismissing the action? Yes. Plaintiff should be able to rely on the statements of the court [see Greene v. State Farm Fire & Casualty Co. (1990) 224 Cal. App. 3d 1583, 1590-1592, 274 Cal. Rptr. 736] .

[4] Effect of Settlement Agreement

The courts of appeal are in conflict as to whether another exception to mandatory dismissal exists when the parties have entered into a settlement agreement.

Under one view, set forth by Division Two of the Second District in Gorman v. Holte (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 984, 211 Cal. Rptr. 34 , the settlement agreement renders the five-year statutory limitation legally irrelevant, since an action that is settled by agreement will not proceed to trial [Gorman v. Holte (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 984, 987-988, 211 Cal. Rptr. 34 (Second Dist., Div. Two, decided under prior law)] . Both the Sixth District and Division Five of the Second District have endorsed the Gorman view [see Malouf Bros. v. Dixon (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 280, 285, 281 Cal. Rptr. 235 (Second Dist., Div. Five) ; Schiro v. Curci (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 840, 844-845, 269 Cal. Rptr. 639 (Sixth Dist.)] .

ILLUSTRATION:

Application of Gorman View. Parties reach a settlement agreement at the mandatory settlement conference. The agreement is stated in open court before the Code Civ. Proc. § 583.310 five-year limitation period had passed. Judgment is not entered until after expiration of the five-year period, when plaintiffs move for judgment under Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6 after plaintiffs had performed their part of the agreement and defendant had refused to perform his. Does Code Civ. Proc. § 583.310, requiring an action to be brought to trial within five years, apply to a judgment entered pursuant to a motion to enforce a settlement agreement entered into within the five-year period? No. The five-year dismissal statute (Code Civ. Proc. § 583.310) applies only to disputes that can and will be resolved by trial. The statute's purpose is to prevent avoidable delay in bringing an action to trial. Once the parties have stated a complete settlement in open court, the court may assume that the matter has been finally disposed of. Although details of execution may remain, it is reasonable to assume the matter will not go to trial. If a dispute about the settlement develops, it can be resolved through the procedure set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6 [Malouf Bros. v. Dixon (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 280, 284-285, 281 Cal. Rptr. 235] .

Under the second view, espoused by the First District, Division Two, in Varwig v. Leider (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 312, 217 Cal. Rptr. 208 , an action must be dismissed under the five-year rule, regardless of whether or not the parties had entered in to a settlement agreement [Varwig v. Leider (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 312, 315-316, 217 Cal. Rptr. 208 (decided under prior law)]. The Varwig view has been criticized as having the potential to prevent settlements on the eve of trial shortly before the five-year deadline or settlements that enable the defendant to avoid a court judgment [Malouf Bros. v. Dixon (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 280, 285, 281 Cal. Rptr. 235] . Moreover, the First District, Division Five, has declined to follow Varwig,and followed the Gorman view [see Canal Street, Ltd. v. Sorich (2000) 77 Cal. App. 4th 602, 608, 91 Cal. Rptr. 2d 811] . The court in Canal Street, Ltd. noted that since Varwig the five-year statute has been amended to particularly incorporate what had been simply a judicially created exception to the mandatory five-year dismissal. The computation of the five-year period now specifically excludes (Code Civ. Proc. § 583.340(c)) the time during which bring the action to trial was impossible, impracticable, or futile. Thus, the time during which a settlement agreement is in effect tolls the five-year period, because attempting to bring an action to trial when all issues have been resolved through settlement would be futile [Canal Street, Ltd. v. Sorich (2000) 77 Cal. App. 4th 602, 608-609, 91 Cal. Rptr. 2d 811] .

§ 212.150 Discretionary Dismissal for Delay in Prosecution

A trial court may, in its discretion, dismiss an action for delay in prosecution under the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 583.410-583.430, either on its own motion or on the defendant's motion, if to do so appears to the court to be appropriate under the circumstances of the case [Code Civ. Proc. § 583.410(a)].

§ 212.151 Time Periods Limiting Exercise of Discretion

[1] Two-Year Delay in Completing Service

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 583.420, the court has discretion to dismiss an action if service has not been made within two years after the action is commenced against the defendant [Code Civ. Proc. § 583.420(a)(1)]. "Service" in this context includes return of summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 583.110(f); see, e.g., Ladd v. Dart Equipment Corp. (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 1088, 1099, 281 Cal. Rptr. 813] .

The time period for the purpose of discretionary dismissal is calculated in the same manner as it is for mandatory dismissal [see Code Civ. Proc. § 583.420(b) and § 212.100 et seq.].

The factors to be considered by the court in determining whether an action should be dismissed for failure to serve within two years are set forth in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1342. For discussion of these factors, see § 212.153.

The court has no discretion to dismiss for a delay in effecting service if the complaint is served in less than two years [see Code Civ. Proc. § 583.420(a)(1)].

[2] Two-Year Delay in Bringing Action to Trial

The court may use its discretion to dismiss an action if it has not been brought to trial, or "conditionally settled," within two years after it was commenced against the defendant [Code Civ. Proc. § 583.420(a)(2); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1340]. A case is "conditionally settled" if and only if both of the following are true [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1340(a)]:

- A settlement agreement conditions dismissal on the satisfactory completion of specified terms that are not to be fully performed within two years after the filing of the case.

- Notice of the settlement is filed with the court under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1385.

The time period for the purpose of discretionary dismissal is calculated in the same manner as it is for mandatory dismissal for failure to bring to trial within five years [see Code Civ. Proc. § 583.420(b) and Subpt. D, above].

If a new trial has been granted, the court has discretion to dismiss the action if it is not brought again to trial within two years after one of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 583.420(a)(3)]:

- The entry of an order of the court declaring a mistrial or the disagreement of the jury if a trial is commenced but no judgment is entered because of a mistrial or because a jury is unable to to reach a decision.

- The entry of an order granting a new trial if after judgment a new trial is granted and no appeal is taken.

- The filing of the remittitur by the clerk of the trial court if on appeal an order granting a new trial is affirmed or a judgment is reversed and the action is remanded for a new trial.

Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1342 sets forth the criteria which the court must consider in determining whether to dismiss an action for failure to bring to trial or conditionally settle an action within two years. For detailed discussion of these factors, see § 212.153.

The court has no discretion to dismiss under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 583.410-583.430 for failure to bring to trial if the delay in question has been for a period shorter than two years [General Motors Corp. v. Superior Court (1966) 65 Cal. 2d 88, 98, 52 Cal. Rptr. 460, 416 P.2d 492 (decided under prior law); see Roman v. Usary Tire & Service Center (1994) 29 Cal. App. 4th 1422, 1430-1431, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 329 ; but see Vernon v. Great Western Bank (1996) 51 Cal. App. 4th 1007, 1011-1013, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 350 (order of dismissal with prejudice five months after mistrial held proper, whether viewed as dismissal for failure to diligently prosecute, or as dismissal for failure to appear on day of trial under Code Civ. Proc. § 581(b)(5), when there was a pattern of conduct showing a failure to prosecute diligently and a total disregard of the court's orders, including failing to appear on the date ordered for the retrial knowing continuancehad already been denied, but instead sending another attorney to make a special appearance to report that plaintiff's counsel was at that moment ready for another trial in another court)].

§ 212.152 General Criteria to Be Considered by Court

[1] All Relevant Matters

The court must consider all matters relevant to a proper determination of the motion, including the court's file in the case, the affidavits, and supporting data submitted by the parties [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1342(e)].

The discretion of the trial court is broad and will not be disturbed unless there has been a miscarriage of justice or the trial court exceeded the bounds of reason [Luti v. Graco, Inc. (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 228, 232, 215 Cal. Rptr. 902 (decided under prior law); see Landry v. Berryessa Union School Dist. (1995) 39 Cal. App. 4th 691, 698, 46 Cal. Rptr. 2d 119] . The court's order will be deemed, however, to have been made in abuse of the court's discretion if the record affirmatively shows that the court failed to consider all relevant factors of which it could take cognizance as required by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1342(e) [Visco v. Abatti (1983) 144 Cal. App. 3d 904, 907, 192 Cal. Rptr. 833 (decided under prior law); Tannatt v. Joblin (1982) 130 Cal. App. 3d 1063, 1066-1070, 182 Cal. Rptr. 112 (decided under prior law)].

For discussion of a plaintiff's reasonable excuse for delay in prosecuting the action, and of prejudice to a defendant as factors for the court's consideration, see §§ 212.154 and 212.155.

[2] Policies Preferring Disposition on Merits

When ruling on a motion for discretionary dismissal, a court shall generally be guided by the policies set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 583.130 [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1342(e); see Code Civ. Proc. § 583.130]:

- The plaintiff must proceed with reasonable diligence in the prosecution of the action, but all parties must cooperate in bringing the action to trial or disposition.

- Except as otherwise provided by statute or by rule of court adopted pursuant to statute, the policy favoring the right of parties to make stipulations in their own interests and the policy favoring trial or other disposition of an action on the merits are generally to be preferred over the policy requiring dismissal for failure to proceed with reasonable diligence in the prosecution of an action.

§ 212.153 Criteria Enumerated by Rule

[1] Presumption of Court Consideration

The court is presumed to have considered all relevant factors enumerated in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1342(e) (discussed under headings below) when ruling on a motion for discretionary dismissal, and it need not recite the fact that it complied with this rule or enumerate the specific basis for its ruling in its order [Wilson v. Sunshine Meat & Liquor Co. (1983) 34 Cal. 3d 554, 562-563, 194 Cal. Rptr. 773, 669 P.2d 9 (decided under prior law)].

[2] Diligence in Effecting Service of Process

When considering a discretionary dismissal for failure to effect service, the court shall consider the diligence with which the opposing party sought to effect service of process, and the extent to which the moving party and other essential parties were available for service [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1342(e)].

A discretionary dismissal for failure to complete service within two years was upheld, for example, when the plaintiff admitted that documents leading to the identity of the defendant originally named fictitiously could have been obtained before action was filed [Clark v. Stabond (1987) 197 Cal. App. 3d 50, 55, 242 Cal. Rptr. 676] .

[3] Extent of Settlement Negotiations

When applicable, a court considering a discretionary dismissal shall take into account the extent to which the parties engaged in any settlement negotiations or discussions [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1342(e)].

[4] Diligence in Pretrial Proceedings

In ruling on a motion for discretionary dismissal, the court shall, when applicable, consider the extent to which the parties were diligent in pursuing discovery or other pretrial proceedings, including whether either party sought any extraordinary relief [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1342(e)].

This is probably one of the most important factors, in view of the plaintiff's primary duty to use reasonable diligence in prosecuting the action at all stages, as well as the duty of other parties to cooperate in efforts to bring the action to trial or other disposition [see Code Civ. Proc. § 583.130].

For example, discretionary dismissal has been upheld under the following circumstances:

- When a plaintiff fails to explain delay in obtaining new counsel [Dubois v. Corroon & Black Corp. (1993) 12 Cal. App. 4th 1689, 1697, 16 Cal. Rptr. 2d 719 (no diligence demonstrated during 31-month delay); Andre v. General Dynamics, Inc. (1974) 43 Cal. App. 3d 839, 843-844, 118 Cal. Rptr. 95 (decided under prior law)].

- When most of plaintiff's pretrial activity has been initiated solely by defendant's various attempts to dispose of the action, including a motion to dismiss for lack of prosecution [see Farrant v. Casas de la Senda Homeowners Assn. (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 221, 226, 216 Cal. Rptr. 27 (decided under prior law)].

The likelihood of discretionary dismissal due to the plaintiff's failure to exercise reasonable diligence increases when the five-year period for mandatory dismissal has almost expired and the plaintiff fails to offer any satisfactory explanation for the lengthy delay [see Farrar v. McCormick (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 701, 704, 102 Cal. Rptr. 190 (decided under prior law)].

[5] Complexity or Nature of Case

When applicable, a court considering a discretionary dismissal shall take into account the extent to which delay may be attributable to the complexity or nature of the case [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1342(e)].

ILLUSTRATIONS:

Complexity of Case as Factor Weighing Against Discretionary Dismissal. Plaintiffs file an action against defendant in June 1964. The parties file extensive pleadings. During the course of the action, there are frequent personnel changes in the plaintiffs' law firm. In April 1969, defendant moves for discretionary dismissal for failure to prosecute. In ruling on the motion, may the court consider the fact that numerous pleadings were filed? Yes. The fact that extensive pleadings were filed is a factor, which, together with the frequent changes of counsel within plaintiffs' law firm and the resultant pressure on the attorneys remaining with the firm, may be considered in determining whether plaintiffs have shown that their delay was excusable [Denham v. Superior Court (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 557, 565, 86 Cal. Rptr. 65, 468 P.2d 193 (decided under prior law)].

Multiple plaintiffs file actions for personal injury, property damage, and deprivation of constitutional assembly and speech rights; the actions arise out of violence that occurred while plaintiffs were picketing in support of union recognition. The complaints allege that those responsible for the violence were agents of another labor union, acting under the direction of a specific individual. Two years after the complaints are filed, defendants move for discretionary dismissal for failure to bring the actions to trial. Should the court consider the nature and complexity of the actions in ruling on the motion? Yes. The factual and legal complexity of the cases militate against an early dismissal for want of prosecution [United Farm Workers National Union v. International Brotherhood of Teamsters (1978) 87 Cal. App. 3d 225, 237, 150 Cal. Rptr. 761 (decided under prior law)].

[6] Delay Caused by Applicable Law

The extent to which delay may be attributable to the law applicable to the case, including the pendency of other litigation under a common set of facts or determinative of the legal or factual issues in the case is a factor for judicial consideration on a motion for discretionary dismissal [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1342(e)].

ILLUSTRATION:

Pendency of Litigation Against Codefendant. In April 1977, plaintiff files a complaint against 10 specific defendants, alleging that the first named defendant, with the assistance of the other nine named defendants, wrongfully obtained and received for his own use monies plaintiff had posted as collateral for a bail bond. Plaintiff determines that only the first named defendant was primarily liable, and decides to proceed against that defendant first. Plaintiff serves the first named defendant, and the defendant answers the complaint in May 1977. In January 1979, plaintiff obtains a summary judgment against the defendant, but plaintiff is unable to successfully execute or otherwise collect. In March 1980, plaintiff serves the remaining nine defendants. These defendants file a motion for discretionary dismissal in September 1980. In assessing the reasonableness of plaintiff's delay against the nine other defendants, must the court consider the plaintiff's decision to save the other defendants the burden of litigation while actively pursuing the action against another defendant? Yes. Under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 203.5 [now see 3.1342(e)], the court must consider the law applicable to the case, including the pending of other litigation under a common set of facts. Under the facts pleaded in plaintiff's complaint, she could have brought one lawsuit against the first named defendant and another against the other defendants, making the consideration specifically applicable. The principle, nevertheless is the same; plaintiff should not be penalized for bringing one action rather than two [see Tannatt v. Joblin (1982) 130 Cal. App. 3d 1063, 1068, 182 Cal. Rptr. 112 (decided under prior law)].

[7] Delay Attributable to Conduct of Party

The court ruling on a motion for discretionary dismissal must, when applicable, consider the extent to which delay was attributable to any extensions of time or other conduct of either party [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1342(e)]. For example, discretionary dismissal may be improper in light of this factor when plaintiff delayed prosecution for three years to allow defendants, cross complainants, and cross defendants to complete discovery amongst each other [Pomona Federal Plaza, Ltd. v. Investment Concepts, Inc. (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 217, 222-224, 249 Cal. Rptr. 757] .

However, a plaintiff is not excused from his or her obligation to prosecute when a defendant agrees to several continuances, and finally agrees to take the matter off calendar indefinitely for the benefit of the plaintiff and at the plaintiff's request [Blank v. Kirwan (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 311 (decided under prior law); Kidd v. Kopald (1994) 31 Cal. App. 4th 132, 36 Cal. Rptr. 2d 875 (dismissal upheld despite parties' stipulation to open extension of time for defendant to respond to complaint)].

[8] Condition of Court Calendar

The condition of the court's calendar and the availability of an earlier trial date, if the matter was ready for trial, are factors for consideration for a court ruling on a motion for discretionary dismissal [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1342(e)].

For example, this factor was deemed to be significant to assess the reasonableness of a delay of three years in bringing a jury case to trial in a court in which such actions routinely took five years to get to trial [Tannatt v. Joblin (1982) 130 Cal. App. 3d 1063, 1069, 182 Cal. Rptr. 112 (decided under prior law)].

[9] Interests of Justice

When ruling on a motion for discretionary dismissal, the court must consider whether the interests of justice are best served by dismissal or trial of the case [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1342(e)].

For example, when a delay is due to the negligence of plaintiff's counsel, and there is no indication that the plaintiff's case otherwise lacks merit, it may best serve the interests of justice to allow the case to go to trial, particularly when the plaintiff has no alternative remedy [City of Los Angeles v. Gleneagle Dev. Co. (1976) 62 Cal. App. 3d 543, 559-560, 133 Cal. Rptr. 212 (decided under prior law)].

[10] Other Facts and Circumstances

In addition to those factors specifically enumerated under the headings above, the court must consider any other fact or circumstance that is relevant to a fair determination of the motion [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1342(e); see also § 212.152[1]].

Examples of possible additional factors include:

- The degree to which the opposing party had an unusual caseload and staff problems [see Woolfson v. Personal Travel Service, Inc. (1971) 3 Cal. 3d 909, 912 n.2, 912-913, 92 Cal. Rptr. 286, 479 P.2d 646 (decided under prior law)].

- The degree to which plaintiff's pattern of conduct was "so severe and deliberate" as to constitute extreme circumstances [see Lyons v. Wickhorst (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 911, 917, 231 Cal. Rptr. 738, 727 P.2d 1019] .

- The availability of alternatives less severe than dismissal [see Lyons v. Wickhorst (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 911, 917, 231 Cal. Rptr. 738, 727 P.2d 1019] .

§ 212.154 Reasonable Excuse for Plaintiff's Delay

[1] As Criteria for Consideration

The role that excuse plays in discretionary dismissal is somewhat unclear. The prevailing view in the California appellate courts appears to be that a plaintiff's failure to show diligence or excuse for delay does not necessarily require dismissal [see Denham v. Superior Court (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 557, 563, 86 Cal. Rptr. 65, 468 P.2d 193 ; Ladd v. Dart Equipment Corp. (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 1088, 1105, 281 Cal. Rptr. 813] . However, there is authority to the contrary, holding that dismissal is required when no justification is provided for delay [see Trailmobile, Inc. v. Superior Court (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 1451, 1455-1456 . 259 Cal. Rptr. 100 ; see also Oskooi v. Fountain Valley Regional Hospital (1996) 42 Cal. App. 4th 233, 241, 49 Cal. Rptr. 2d 769 (lead opinion by Sonenshine, J.; concurring and dissenting opinions did not address issue)].

In any event, reasonable diligence is one of the more important criteria to be considered by the court [see Code Civ. Proc. § 583.130 (plaintiff must proceed with reasonable diligence); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1342(e) (enumerating diligence of the parties as one criterion to be considered); see also § 212.153[4]]. If the plaintiff fails to show reasonable or excusable delay, the court may dismiss the action in its discretion even if the defendant fails to establish actual prejudice [Putnam v. Clague (1992) 3 Cal. App. 4th 542, 549, 5 Cal. Rptr. 2d 25 ; see Lopez v. State of California (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 1292, 1295, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 266 ; see also § 212.194[9]].

[2] Sufficient Showing

Court of appeal decisions are at best inconsistent in their analysis as to what showing is necessary to constitute a viable "excuse." After setting out the various lines of cases and attempting to reconcile the decisions from its Fifth District decisions, one court of appeal suggests the trial court is called upon to make two determinations in deciding whether the delay is excusable [see Putnam v. Clague (1992) 3 Cal. App. 4th 542, 557-558, 5 Cal. Rptr. 2d 25 ; see also Yao v. Anaheim Eye Medical Group, Inc. (1992) 10 Cal. App. 4th 1024, 1030-1031, 12 Cal. Rptr. 2d 856 (Fourth Dist., Div. Three following Putnam)]:

- Is the explanation credible under all the circumstances?

- If so, could a reasonably competent attorney conclude that delay was justified under the circumstances?

This test was endorsed and utilized in Yao v. Anaheim Eye Medical Group, Inc. (1992) 10 Cal. App. 4th 1024, 1029-1030, 12 Cal. Rptr. 2d 856 (Fourth Dist.) , but was criticized in Roach v. Lewis (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 1179, 1184, 18 Cal. Rptr. 2d 281 (Second Dist.) . The court in Roach, in determining that the trial court had not abused its discretion in dismissing the case, simply relied on the factors set forth in former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 373(e) [now see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1342(e)], discussed in §§ 212.152, 212.153 above [Roach v. Lewis (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 1179, 1184, 18 Cal. Rptr. 2d 281 (attorney's strategy not a relevant matter)].

ILLUSTRATION:

Excusable Delay for Staggered Service Against Single Defendant. Two married couples represented by one attorney respectively file similar medical malpractice complaints against a single physician on May 29, 1987, and December 1, 1987. Summons in the actions is served on defense counsel on or about January 26, 1990, and defense counsel accepts service on defendant's behalf on February 11, 1990. On March 22, 1990, defendant files a motion seeking discretionary dismissal of the actions, based on the plaintiffs' failure to serve defendant within two years after the commencement of the actions. Plaintiffs file opposition to the dismissal motion, stating that their case was one of numerous cases handled by their attorney against the defendant arising from the defendant's performance of surgeries using a procedure allegedly falling below the applicable standard of care. The plaintiff's attorney's declaration discloses that he elected to pursue a case filed by another plaintiff, Thompson, as a "lead case" on the issue of negligence/standard of care, with the understanding that evidence developed in the Thompson case would be applicable to the other cases against the defendant. (The Thompson case settled in June 1989, after a number of trial date continuances, some of which were requested by defendant rather than due to court congestion.) Service of process and the conduct of discovery in the cases against defendant was deliberately staggered by plaintiff's counsel so as to avoid creating unmanageable demands on both parties and their counsel. Have the plaintiffs made an credible, reasonable excuse for their delay in serving the complaints? Yes. Reasonably competent attorneys in the position of plaintiff's counsel could conclude that staggering service in the numerous pending cases would accommodate the parties and the two attorneys involved in all of the cases by smoothing out the scheduling of discovery, trial, and other litigation events. Thus, the plaintiffs have met their initial burden of proof in opposing the motions to dismiss [see Putnam v. Clague (1992) 3 Cal. App. 4th 542, 558-563, 5 Cal. Rptr. 2d 25] .

[3] Insufficient Showing

Dismissal is clearly warranted when the plaintiff offers no explanation for delays in service or other prosecution of the action or otherwise fails to show excusable delay [see, e.g., Kuchins v. Hawes (1990) 226 Cal. App. 3d 535, 541, 276 Cal. Rptr. 281 ; Hilliard v. Lobley (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 638, 641-642, 265 Cal. Rptr. 5] .

ILLUSTRATION:

Failure to Show Excusable Delay. On August 22, 1985, plaintiff files an action for medical malpractice against defendant surgeon. Sometime thereafter, plaintiff substitutes attorneys and the second attorneyfiles an amended complaint on March 18, 1986. On May 14, 1987, plaintiff retains her present attorney, who obtains a medical consultation and thereafter serves the amended complaint on defendant on October 8, 1987. On May 19, 1988 defendant files an answer to the complaint and a motion to dismiss on the ground that plaintiff failed to serve the complaint within two years from the filing of the action. In opposing the motion, plaintiff does not explain why service was not or could not be effected prior to August 1987. Plaintiff does offer some explanation for the delay from May 1987, when her present attorney was hired until October 1987, when service was effectuated. However, with respect to the delay prior to May of 1987, plaintiff's declaration simply states that at some time after the complaint was filed, her first attorney referred her to a second attorney. There is no information as to when this occurred and no explanation as to why service was not or could not have been made by the first attorney. Similarly, there is no explanation as to why the second attorney did not serve defendant or when he advised plaintiff that he was no longer willing to represent plaintiff. Has the plaintiff showed justifiable delay or diligence in prosecution? No [see Hilliard v. Lobley (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 638, 640-642, 265 Cal. Rptr. 5 (affirming dismissal by trial court when plaintiff failed to explain delay in service from August 1986 to May 1987)].

As the mandatory dismissal deadline approaches, the showing required to justify delay grows increasingly [see United Farm Workers National Union v. International Brotherhood of Teamsters (1978) 87 Cal. App. 3d 225, 237, 150 Cal. Rptr. 761 (decided under prior law); Andre v. General Dynamics, Inc. (1974) 43 Cal. App. 3d 839, 843, 118 Cal. Rptr. 95 (decided under prior law)].

[4] Impossibility, Impracticability, or Futility

Prior to the 1984 amendment to Code Civ. Proc. § 583.340, the law held that regardless of whether there was a period of impossibility, impracticability, or futility that occurred during the statutory period, if there was a reasonable time within which the plaintiff could have exercised reasonable diligence to bring the matter to trial thereafter, the period of impossibility did not toll the five years limit. This rule was "overruled" by the 1984 amendment. The amendment inserted language making the tolling of the five years mandatory [Chin v. Meier (1991) 235 Cal. App. 3d 1473, 1477, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 499 ; Rose v. Scott (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 537, 542, 284 Cal. Rptr. 487 ; Sierra Nevada Memorial-Miners Hospital, Inc. v. Superior Court (Hudson) (1990) Cal. App. 3d, 217 Cal. App. 3d 464, 266 Cal. Rptr. 50 (citing 17 Cal. L. Revision Comm'n Report at 936)]. The Cal. Law Revision Commission's Comment to that amendment states the following [17 Cal. L. Revision Comm'n Rep at 936)]:

> Under Section 583.340 the time within which an action must be brought to trial is tolled for the period of the excuse, regardless whether a reasonable time remained at the end of the period of the excuse to bring the action to trial. This overrules cases such as State of California v. Superior Court, 98 Cal. App.3d 643, 159 Cal. Rptr. 650 (1979) , and Brown v. Superior Court, 62 Cal. App.3d 197, 132 Cal. Rptr. 916 (1976) .

The courts of appeal in California have three divergent views on the effect of the 1984 amendment in light of the aforementioned Comment [s ee De Santiago v. D & G Plumbing, Inc. (2007) 155 Cal. App. 4th 365, 376, 65 Cal. Rptr. 3d 882].

Under one view, if the trial court concludes there was a period of impossibility, impracticability, or futility over which plaintiff had no control, it must toll the running of the five-year period for that amount of time, even if there is ample time after the tolling period for the plaintiff to bring the case to trial [Chin v. Meier (1991) 235 Cal. App. 3d 1473, 1477, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 499 ; Brown & Bryant, Inc. v. Hartford Accident & Indemnity Co. (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 247, 257, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 144 ; Rose v. Scott (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 537, 542, 284 Cal. Rptr. 487]. Under this view, the plaintiff need not show that he or she would have brought the case to trial within the five-year period but for the period of impracticability [New West Fed. Savings & Loan Assn. v. Superior Court (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 1145, 1155, 273 Cal. Rptr. 37]. In Chin v. Meier, the court concluded that when there is a court-ordered continuance, the trial court must merely subtract the aggregate periods of time attributable to each court-ordered continuance because of courtroom unavailability [see Chin v. Meier (1991) 235 Cal. App. 3d 1473, 1478, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 499]. The court in Chin rejected any consideration of reasonable diligence in determining whether the impracticability exception applied.

The requirement of the aforementioned first view requires that the event causing the period of impossibility, impracticability, or futility must have been beyond the control of the plaintiff, which may have a similar function as a requirement of reasonable diligence. However, it applies only to the event causing the period of impossibility, impracticability, or futility, and does not apply to the time after the end of that period. The remaining two views, in contrast, apply diligence to the period after the end of the period of impossibility, impracticability, or futility that remains in the original five-year period in which to bring the case to trial.

Other cases advocate a second view that the plaintiff has a duty to use reasonable diligence in prosecuting his or her case in order to be entitled to the tolling for an event creating an impossibility, impracticability, or futility [see, e.g., De Santiago v. D & G Plumbing, Inc. (2007) 155 Cal. App. 4th 365, 65 Cal. Rptr. 3d 882 ; Tamburina v. Combined Ins. Co. of America (2007) 147 Cal. App. 4th 323, 336, 54 Cal. Rptr. 3d 175 (diligence is critical factor in applying exception); Moss v. Stockdale, Peckham & Werner (1996) 47 Cal. App. 4th 494, 502, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 805 (legal malpractice action); Lauriton v. Carnation Co. (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 161, 164, 263 Cal. Rptr. 476]. Under this view, the exclusion of Code Civ. Proc. § 583.340(c) does not apply when a plaintiff fails to take reasonable steps to expedite the proceedings in the remaining time in the original five-year period after the disability from the event ceases [see Schwenke v. J & P Scott, Inc. (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 71, 79-80, 252 Cal. Rptr. 91]. In determining whether the impracticability exception applies under this view, the court must find the following three factors [Tamburina v. Combined Ins. Co. of America (Third Dist. 2007) 147 Cal. App. 4th 323, 328, 54 Cal. Rptr. 3d 175]:

- The plaintiff has demonstrated a circumstance of impracticability.

- There is a "causal connection" between that circumstance and plaintiff's failure to move the case to trial.

- The plaintiff was reasonably diligent in moving the case to trial.

The Third District held that five stipulated continuances, totaling 424 days, attributable to the plaintiff's and his attorney's serious health problems, qualified as a circumstance of impracticability [Tamburina v. Combined Ins. Co. of America (2007) 147 Cal. App. 4th 323, 331-332, 54 Cal. Rptr. 3d 175]. The Tamburina court further concluded there was a causal connection between the stipulated continuances and the plaintiff's failure to bring the case to trial within five years, because the continuance period of 424 days deprived the plaintiff of a substantial portion of the five-year period for prosecuting the lawsuit [Tamburina v. Combined Ins. Co. of America (2007) 147 Cal. App. 4th 323, 335, 54 Cal. Rptr. 3d 175]. Because the trial court concluded in Tamburina that there was no causal connection, and thus dismissed the action for failure to bring the action within five years, the trial court did not consider the third factor, reasonable diligence, in determining whether the five-year period was tolled based on impracticability. As a consequence, the Third District reversed and remanded the case to the trial court for a determination of whether the plaintiff exercised reasonable diligence in prosecuting the case [Tamburina v. Combined Ins. Co. of America (2007) 147 Cal. App. 4th 323, 336, 54 Cal. Rptr. 3d 175].

Under a third view [see De Santiago v. D & G Plumbing, Inc. (2007) 155 Cal. App. 4th 365, 375, 65 Cal. Rptr. 3d 882], the plaintiff must show a causal connection between the circumstances on which plaintiff relies and the failure to satisfy the five-year requirement [Sanchez v. City of Los Angeles (2003) 109 Cal. App. 4th 1262, 1271, 135 Cal. Rptr. 2d 869 ; Sierra Nevada Memorial-Miners Hospital, Inc. v. Superior Court (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 464, 473, 266 Cal. Rptr. 50]. Upon becoming aware of the impending expiration of the five-year period after the period, the trial court in all likelihood would have given the case priority for the purpose of trying the case before the five-year period expired. Because there was a possibility the insurer could have brought the case to trial before expiration of the five-year period, despite trial continuances, the continuances did not result in impracticability [De Santiago v. D & G Plumbing, Inc. (2007) 155 Cal. App. 4th 365, 65 Cal. Rptr. 3d 882].

The courts have found that the plaintiff also had a duty to take whatever other measures were available to attempt to accelerate trial of the case before expiration of the five-year period, including bringing a motion to advance the trial, pursuant to California Rules of Court, Rule 3.1335 [De Santiago v. D & G Plumbing, Inc. (2007) 155 Cal. App. 4th 365, 374, 65 Cal. Rptr. 3d 882 (citing Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1335); Wale v. Rodriguez (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 129, 253 Cal. Rptr. 382]. Similarly, plaintiffs in a personal injury action were not entitled to a tolling of the five years on the asserted ground that the court assigned a trial date beyond the expiration of the period, as the plaintiffs never alerted the court to the fact that the date was set beyond the five-year deadline, and further manifested a lack of diligence by acquiescing in that trial date for over a year [Baccus v. Superior Court (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 1526, 255 Cal. Rptr. 781]. Moreover, courts have held that a plaintiff's filing of a bankruptcy petition does not invoke the tolling of the five years, as a plaintiff can seek relief from the bankruptcy court [see Lauriton v. Carnation Co. (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 161, 165, 263 Cal. Rptr. 476]. Further, even after plaintiff was discharged from bankruptcy and filed an at-issue memorandum before the five-year period expired, he made no motion to have the case specially set for trial [Lauriton v. Carnation Co. (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 161, 165, 263 Cal. Rptr. 476].

Further, there have been cases in which courts pursuing the causal connection also considered the notion of the plaintiff's control of the cause, but unlike the first view above, applied it to the period after the end of the event causing the impossibility, impracticability, or futility [see Sanchez v. City of Los Angeles (2003) 109 Cal. App. 4th 1262, 1273, 135 Cal. Rptr. 2d 869]. In Sanchez v. City of Los Angeles (2003) 109 Cal. App. 4th 1262, 135 Cal. Rptr. 2d 869 , despite plaintiff's argument that the five-year period should be tolled from the date of defendant's attorney's suicide until the date replacement counsel was retained and was ready for trial, the court found that expiration of the five-year period was actually due to the plaintiffs' attorney's miscalculation of the five-year period, and thus there was no causal connection between defendant's attorney's death and expiration of the five-year period [Sanchez v. City of Los Angeles (2003) 109 Cal. App. 4th 1262, 1274, 135 Cal. Rptr. 2d 869]. The causal connection operates like the reasonable diligence requirement noted in the second view discussed above [see De Santiago v. D & G Plumbing, Inc. (2007) 155 Cal. App. 4th 365, 375, 65 Cal. Rptr. 3d 882].

§ 212.155 Prejudice to Defendant

A defendant is not expressly required by statute or rule to show prejudice in order for a court to grant a motion for discretionary dismissal [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 583.410-583.430; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1342(e)].

The Supreme Court has concluded that prejudice to the defendant is not required to support a discretionary dismissal, reasoning that discretionary dismissal is designed not only to remedy prejudice to the defendant, but also to expedite the administration of justice by compelling every person who files an action to prosecute it with promptness and diligence [see Blank v. Kirwan (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 311, 332, 216 Cal. Rptr. 718, 703 P.2d 58 ; Freedman v. Pacific Gas & Electric Co. (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 696, 711, 242 Cal. Rptr. 8 (recognizing that Blank impliedly disapproves the line of cases beginning with Hurtado v. Statewide Home Loan Co. (1985) 167 Cal. App. 3d 1019, 1028-1032, 213 Cal. Rptr. 712 to the extent that they require a showing of actual prejudice to defendant to justify discretionary dismissal)].

Once plaintiff has made a showing of reasonable excuse for delay (discussed under § 212.154), the trial court must consider all pertinent factors, including prejudice to defendant from the delay in ruling on dismissal [Putnam v. Clague (1992) 3 Cal. App. 4th 542, 563, 5 Cal. Rptr. 2d 25 ; Cordova v. Vons Grocery Co. (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 1526, 1535, 242 Cal. Rptr. 605] . In particular, several appellate decisions have reversed a discretionary grant of dismissal when the plaintiff made a showing of reasonable diligence and the defendant did not show any actual prejudice [see Putnam v. Clague (1992) 3 Cal. App. 4th 542, 563, 5 Cal. Rptr. 2d 25 ; Cubit v. Ridgecrest Community Hospital (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 1552, 1569-1573, 240 Cal. Rptr. 346] . A mere inference of prejudice alone may not defeat the showing [Fleming v. Gallegos (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 68, 74-75, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 350 (in action to recover title to real property in which plaintiff showed attorney abandonment, inference of prejudice to defendant by existence of lis pendens was insufficient to override showing of reasonable diligence without evidence inability to refinance or sell)].

Other decisions, conversely, have affirmed a discretionary grant of dismissal when defendant did show actual prejudice and plaintiff failed to justify his or her delay [see Adams v. Roses (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 498, 505-506, 228 Cal. Rptr. 339 (decided under prior law)]. For further discussion of plaintiff's showing of excusable delay, see § 212.154.

Some courts have ruled that prejudice is inherent in any protracted delay and may be presumed as a factor justifying dismissal when the delay is unjustified [see Farrant v. Casas de la Senda Homeowners Assn. (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 221, 226-227, 216 Cal. Rptr. 27 (decided under prior law); Lopez v. Larson (1979) 91 Cal. App. 3d 383, 401-402, 153 Cal. Rptr. 912 (decided under prior law); see also Lopez v. State of California (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 1292, 1295, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 266] . That presumption is particularly appropriate when an unusual potential for prejudice exists under the circumstances of the case [see, e.g., Schumpert v. Tishman Co. (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 598, 606, 243 Cal. Rptr. 810 (presumed prejudice as factor justifying dismissal of personal injury case in which delay in service prevented defendants from gathering relevant physical evidence and conducting meaningful discovery)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Distinction Between Late Service and Late Trial. Counsel should note that there may well be a distinction between late service of process and a later trial. At least one court, discussing prior law, noted that courts have historically been more willing to infer prejudice in cases involving late service of process [see Luti v. Graco, Inc. (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 228, 233-238, 215 Cal. Rptr. 902] .

§ 212.156 Effect of Matter Having Been Set for Trial

When a trial court routinely sets a matter for trial it does so without regard to a motion to dismiss for failure to prosecute. The issue of whether the criteria for dismissal is present is not before the court at that time unless it is expressly brought to the court's and counsel's attention. Although a trial court has power under Code Civ. Proc. § 583.410 to dismiss on its own motion the court need not exercise it at any particular time, nor is the court forced to address the issue at routine case management conferences. Thus, a trial court does not pass on those issues in a routine trial setting context, and when a trial date has been routinely set, the court is not prevented from subsequently ruling on a motion to dismiss and granting discretionary dismissal [Lopez v. State of California (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 1292, 1296-1297, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 266 (setting of trial date did not establish that trial court was satisfied with plaintiff's due diligence so as to preclude trial court from granting discretionary dismissal)].

§ 212.157 Effect of Motion for Trial Preference

A trial court has discretion whether to grant a motion to specially set a case for trial pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 36(e). Under appropriate circumstances, a court may deny such a motion and in its discretion, based on its own motion or on motion of the defendant, dismiss an action pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 583.410 [Howard v. Thrifty Drug & Discount Stores (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 424, 439-444, 41 Cal. Rptr. 2d 362, 895 P.2d 469] . Moreover, although Code Civ. Proc. § 36(b) (which grants a trial preference for a party under the age of 14 in a wrongful death or personal injury action) is mandatory, it has been held not to divest the court of its discretion to dismiss a case under Code Civ. Proc. § 583.410 and Code Civ. Proc. § 583.420(a)(2) [Landry v. Berryessa Union School Dist. (1995) 39 Cal. App. 4th 691, 695-697, 46 Cal. Rptr. 2d 119 (no abuse of discretion in denying minor plaintiffs' request for a trial preference pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 36(b) and granting defendant's motion for discretionary dismissal pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. §§ 583.410 and 583.420(a)(2)]. For further discussion on the effect of a motion for a trial preference under Code Civ. Proc. § 36(e), see Ch. 425, Pretrial Proceedings, § 425.64[5][b].

§ 212.158 Motion for Discretionary Dismissal

[1] When Required

A party seeking discretionary dismissal must generally serve and file a notice of motion at least 45 days before the date set for hearing of the motion, and the party may serve and file an affidavit or declaration stating facts in support of the motion together with the supporting memorandum [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1342(a)]. A court may reduce the 45-day notice period, however, under Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b), which permits a court to prescribe a shortened notice period with respect to motions [see Kunzler v. Karde (1980) 109 Cal. App. 3d 683, 688, 167 Cal. Rptr. 425 (decided under prior law)].

If the court seeks to dismiss an action sua sponte under Code Civ. Proc. § 584.420(a)(2)(B), for failure to bring the action to trial or conditionally settle it within two years after it was commenced, the clerk must set a hearing on the dismissal and mail notice to all parties at least 20 days before the hearing date [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1340(b); see Sakhai v. Zipora (2009) 180 Cal. App. 4th 593, 598-600, 102 Cal. Rptr. 3d 691 (trial court was not required to give parties 45 days' notice before hearing on discretionary dismissal under Code Civ. Proc. § 583.410, and 28 days' notice trial court gave parties of order to show cause why action should not be dismissed for delay in prosecution before hearing was more than enough notice under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1340(b))].

The notice provision of Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1340(a) does not appear to apply to court-originated discretionary dismissal motions other than those under Code Civ. Proc. § 583.420(a)(2)(B). Thus, there is no express notice requirement for court-originated motions for discretionary dismissal under either Code Civ. Proc. § 583.420(a)(1) (delay in completing service) or Code Civ. Proc. § 583.420(a)(3) (delay in bringing action to retrial).

One court of appeal has held that the 45-day notice requirement of Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1342(a) applies when the parties have been specially brought into court for a hearing on a court-initiated motion [Tate v. Superior Court (1975) 45 Cal. App. 3d 925, 930, 119 Cal. Rptr. 835 (decided under prior law)]. The California Supreme Court, however, in Wilson v. Sunshine Meat & Liquor Co. has noted that former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 373(a) [now see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1342(a)], by its terms, does not apply to the court but to a "party" seeking dismissal [Wilson v. Sunshine Meat & Liquor Co. (1983) 34 Cal. 3d 554, 560, 194 Cal. Rptr. 773, 669 P.2d 9 (decided under prior law); see also Sakhai v. Zipora (2009) 180 Cal. App. 4th 593, 598, 102 Cal. Rptr. 3d 691 (Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1342 explicitly applies to party in action, whereas Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1340(b) explicitly applies to court's own motion to dismiss case; since dismissal occurred on court's own motion, Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1340(b) applied)]. The Court in Wilson held that, whatever the notice requirement might be with respect to a "true court-originated motion," the 45-day notice requirement does not apply when the court's motion for discretionary dismissal is made at a hearing on plaintiff's motion to set the case specially for trial. In the latter situation, a plaintiff is not prejudiced by a short notice period because the purpose of the 45-day period is satisfied. Moreover, the plaintiff waives any objection by arguing on its merits the motion to set the case specially for trial, since that motion traditionally invites inquiry into the same factors relevant to a motion for discretionary dismissal [Wilson v. Sunshine Meat & Liquor Co. (1983) 34 Cal. 3d 554, 560-562, 194 Cal. Rptr. 773, 669 P.2d 9 (decided under prior law)].

For a form of motion for discretionary dismissal and supporting papers, see § 212.296.

[2] Prosecution of Action Not Precluded by Notice of Motion

The filing of the notice of motion does not preclude the opposing party from further prosecution of the case to bring it to trial [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1342(a)]. In fact, the lengthy 45-day notice period of Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1342(a), is intended to provide the plaintiff with ample time withinwhich to complete any necessary preparation and move to set his or her case for trial, if so inclined. Thus, if the plaintiff moves to set the case specially for trial and the defendant then files a motion for discretionary dismissal, the plaintiff cannot complain that he or she was prejudiced by the fact that the court shortened the notice period for the dismissal motion in order to hear the motions together [Farrar v. McCormick (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 701, 705, 102 Cal. Rptr. 190 (decided under prior law)].

Similarly, the plaintiff waives any objection to an inadequate notice period by appearing at the hearing and challenging the motion on the merits rather than specially objecting to lack of compliance with the notice requirement [Clark v. Stabond Corp. (1987) 197 Cal. App. 3d 50, 59, 242 Cal. Rptr. 676] .

[3] Opposition

Within 15 days after service of the notice of motion, the opposing party may serve and file a written opposition, a memorandum of points and authorities, and a supporting affidavit or declaration stating facts showing why the motion should be denied. The court may grant the motion without a hearing on the merits if no opposition is filed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1342(b)].

[4] Response and Reply

Within 15 days after service of the written opposition, if any, the moving party may serve and file a response, including a supplemental memorandum of points and authorities and additional supporting affidavits or declarations [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1342(c)]. The opposing party may then serve and file a reply within five days after service of the response [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1342(d)].

[5] Burden of Proof

[a] Defendant's Initial Burden

On a motion for discretionary dismissal, at least one made by the defendant, the defendant has the initial burden of showing that the dismissal is warranted [Marra v. Mission Foods Corp. (1993) 19 Cal. App. 4th 724, 727, 23 Cal. Rptr. 2d 741 ; Visco v. Abatti (1983) 144 Cal. App. 3d 904, 908, 192 Cal. Rptr. 833 (decided under prior law)].

[b] Plaintiff's Burden to Show Excuse for Delay

Once the party moving for dismissal has shown that the dismissal is warranted, the burden shifts to the plaintiff opposing the motion to show some excuse for the delay [Lopez v. State of California (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 1292, 1295, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 266 ; Marra v. Mission Foods Corp. (1993) 19 Cal. App. 4th 724, 727, 23 Cal. Rptr. 2d 741 ; see also § 212.154].

If a plaintiff fails to file any written opposition to a motion for discretionary dismissal, the court may deem this to be an admission that the motion is meritorious and the court may grant the motion without a hearing on the merits [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1342(b)].

In Denham v. Superior Court, the California Supreme Court held that if a plaintiff files written opposition to the motion for dismissal, the court is not required to grant the motion for discretionary dismissal unless there is an entire absence of any showing constituting good cause for any demonstrated delay [see Denham v. Superior Court (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 557, 564, 86 Cal. Rptr. 65, 468 P.2d 193 (decided under prior law)].

Some courts of appeal have interpreted Denham to mean that, although the plaintiff is excused from presenting adequate evidence of good cause for the delay, the plaintiff is still required to present some evidence of good cause, and it would be an abuse of discretion for the court to refuse to grant the motion when the plaintiff's opposition failed to present any relevant evidence of good cause [Moore v. El Camino Hosp. Dist. (1978) 78 Cal. App. 3d 661, 664, 144 Cal. Rptr. 314 (decided under prior law); Dunsmuir Masonic Temple v. Superior Court (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 17, 21-23, 90 Cal. Rptr. 405 (decided under prior law)].

Other courts have taken a contrary view. In ruling on the motion, the court is required to consider not only evidence submitted by the parties, but also its own file or any other matters relevant to a property determination of which it may take cognizance by judicial notice, such as the condition of its calendar [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1342(e)]. Consequently, some courts have taken the position that the plaintiff is not necessarily required to present relevant evidence opposing the motion on penalty of having the motion automatically granted, so long as he or she submits written opposition that calls the court's attention to matters of which it may take cognizance and that tend to explain or justify the demonstrated delay. The court, in turn, would abuse its discretion in denying the motion only if there is a complete absence of any evidence or other data tending to explain or justify the delay [Kunzler v. Karde (1980) 109 Cal. App. 3d 683, 688-690, 167 Cal. Rptr. 425 (decided under prior law); Lopez v. Larson (1979) 91 Cal. App. 3d 383, 397 n.9, 397-398, 153 Cal. Rptr. 912 (decided under prior law); see also Oskooi v. Fountain Valley Regional Hospital (1996) 42 Cal. App. 4th 233, 241, 49 Cal. Rptr. 2d 769 (Lopez cited with approval; trial court must grant motion to dismiss when no showing of excusable delay; lead opinion by Sonenshine, J.; concurring and dissenting opinions did not address issue)].

[6] Conditional Grant or Denial of Motion

The court may not only grant or deny a motion under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 583.410-583.430, it may, when the facts warrant, continue or defer its ruling pending the performance of any conditions to a grant or denial thatit may impose to effectuate substantial justice [Code Civ. Proc. § 583.430(a); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1342(f)]. The court may make any necessary order to effectuate its authority under Code Civ. Proc. § 583.430(a), including, but not limited to, provisional and conditional orders [Code Civ. Proc. § 583.430(b)].

For example, when damage caused by delay in prosecution is compensable in money, the court may offer the plaintiff an opportunity to make economic redress as a condition to denying a motion to dismiss under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 583.410-583.430 [Hansen v. Snap-Tite, Inc. (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 208, 213, 100 Cal. Rptr. 51 (decided under prior law)]. Similarly, an order granting a motion to dismiss may be conditioned on the defendant either waiving a statute of limitations or voluntarily dismissing a cross complaint, whereas an order denying a motion to dismiss may be conditioned on the plaintiff's taking timely steps to complete discovery, to obtain a certificate of readiness for trial, or to obtain an order advancing the trial date [see Law Revision Commission Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 583.430].

[7] Review

[a] Order Dismissing Action

A dismissal order is appealable [Hydrotech Systems, Ltd. v. Oasis Waterpark (1991) 52 Cal. 3d 988, 993 n.3, 277 Cal. Rptr. 517, 803 P.2d 370] . Counsel intending to seek review by appeal of the dismissal of an action should take care to perfect the appeal by obtaining an order of dismissal and judgment. A mere "notice of ruling" of dismissal is not appealable, and courts of appeal are increasingly reluctant to save erroneous appeals by permitting appellant to obtain an appealable order or judgment after the fact [Shpiller v. Harry C's Redlands (1993) 13 Cal. App. 4th 1177, 1180, 16 Cal. Rptr. 2d 814] .

On appeal from an order dismissing a case for a failure to diligently prosecute, there can be no review of earlier, non-appealable summary adjudication orders that would otherwise be reviewed on appeal from a final judgment on the merits [Vernon v. Great Western Bank (1996) 51 Cal. App. 4th 1007, 1009, 1014-1015, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 350] .

[b] Order Denying Motion for Dismissal

A denial of a dismissal motion is not directly appealable. It may, however, be challenged either by a petition for a writ of mandate or on appeal from a final judgment [Oskooi v. Fountain Valley Regional Hospital (1996) 42 Cal. App. 4th 233, 237, 49 Cal. Rptr. 2d 769 (lead opinion by Sonenshine, J.; concurring and dissenting opinion did not address rule)]. If the defendant does not exercise the option of seeking pretrial review by a writ of mandate, however, and waits to raise the issue on appeal after trial, thecourt may be not be inclined to disturb plaintiff's victory on the merits after the judicial resources have already be expended on trial [see Reid v. Balter (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 1186, 1195-1196, 18 Cal. Rptr. 2d 287 ; see also Oskooi v. Fountain Valley Regional Hosp. & Medical Ctr. (1996) 42 Cal. App. 4th 251-253, 42 Cal. App. 4th 233, 253, 49 Cal. Rptr. 2d 769 (dissenting opinion)].

[c] Standard of Review

When the court exercises its discretionary powers under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 583.410-583.430 and dismisses a case, the reviewing court will not substitute its opinion for that of the trial court unless a clear case of abuse is shown and there has been a miscarriage of justice [Blank v. Kirwan (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 311, 331, 216 Cal. Rptr. 718, 703 P.2d 58, 703 P.2d 58] . The trial court is able to assess credibility and resolve any conflicts in the evidence, and its factual findings are entitled to great weight [see Shamblin v. Brattain (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 474, 479, 243 Cal. Rptr. 902, 749 P.2d 339 (proceeding to set aside default)].

In reviewing a trial court's ruling under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 583.410-583.430, the appellate court will generally uphold a denial of a motion to dismiss if there is any showing of good cause for the delay and no miscarriage of justice would result [Denham v. Superior Court (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 557, 564, 566, 86 Cal. Rptr. 65, 468 P.2d 193 (decided under prior law)]. On the other hand, a grant of dismissal is subject to closer appellate scrutiny, with doubts resolved in favor of the plaintiff, so that a grant of dismissal will generally be reversed if the circumstances indicate a reasonable excuse for the delay and an absence of actual prejudice to the defendants [City of Los Angeles v. Gleneagle Dev. Co. (1976) 62 Cal. App. 3d 543, 561-563, 133 Cal. Rptr. 212 (decided under prior law)]. The underlying policy for each rule is the same; a disposition on the merits is generally to be preferred over a dismissal for delay [Code Civ. Proc. § 583.130; see Denham v. Superior Court (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 557, 566, 86 Cal. Rptr. 65, 468 P.2d 193 (decided under prior law); City of Los Angeles v. Gleneagle Dev. Co. (1976) 62 Cal. App. 3d 543, 563, 133 Cal. Rptr. 212 (decided under prior law)].

§ 212.173 Decisions

[1] Voluntary Dismissal

[a] Generally

Court of appeal held plaintiff could dismiss action under Code Civ. Proc. § 581 after a motion to compel arbitration had been granted, but before the arbitration had commenced; precluding plaintiff from doing so would be at odds with provision permitting plaintiff to voluntarily dismiss his or her complaint at any time before the actual commencement of trial. Cardiff Equities, Inc. v. Superior Court (2008) 166 Cal. App. 4th 1541, 1549, 83 Cal. Rptr. 3d 699

Code Civ. Proc. § 581 allows plaintiff voluntarily to dismiss case before commencement of trial; purpose behind this right is to allow plaintiff certain amount of freedom of action within limits prescribed by code; statute treats equally dismissals with or without prejudice, with respect to right to dismiss before commencement of trial; apart from certain statutory exceptions, plaintiff's right to voluntary dismissal before commencement of trial under Code Civ Proc. § 581 appears absolute. Kyle v. Carmon (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 901, 908-909, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 303

When action is voluntarily dismissed by plaintiff as to some but not all of parties, court retains subject matter jurisdiction over action. Basinger v. Rogers & Wells (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 16, 22-23, 269 Cal. Rptr. 332

Plaintiff insurer had absolute right to dismiss declaratory relief action against its insured and others claiming coverage under liability insurance contract prior to trial when no cross complaint filed; neither answer requesting judicial declaration in favor of policy coverage nor allegations in answer that denial of coverage was product of bad faith qualified as cross complaint or affirmative relief, and therefore did not defeat plaintiff's absolute right to dismiss under former Code Civ. Proc. § 581(1) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 581(b)(1), (h)). Aetna Casualty & Surety Co. v. Humboldt Loaders, Inc. (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 921, 927-929, 249 Cal. Rptr. 175

Dismissal ordered by court considered to be involuntary, while one entered at request of party is voluntary. D & J, Inc. v. Ferro Corp. (1986) 176 Cal. App. 3d 1191, 1194, 222 Cal. Rptr. 656

Voluntary dismissal entered by plaintiff's attorney without plaintiff's knowledge and consent is voidable within reasonable time after plaintiff learns of it. Whittier Union High Sch. Dist. v. Superior Court (1977) 66 Cal. App. 3d 504, 507-509, 136 Cal. Rptr. 86

Voluntary dismissal before trial is generally matter of right and exercisable by plaintiff without knowledge of other parties or consent of court. Roski v. Superior Court (1971) 17 Cal. App. 3d 841, 845, 95 Cal. Rptr. 312

[b] Appeal

Party may not obtain immediate review of adverse ruling on some of its claims by dismissing remaining claims without prejudice; however, party may stipulate to adverse judgment with prejudice on all its claims in order to appeal from that judgment. Tudor Ranches, Inc. v. State Comp. Ins. Fund (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 1422, 1429-1431, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 574

Defendant cannot appeal plaintiff's dismissal; defendant, however, may file motion to vacate dismissal, which if denied may be reviewed by extraordinary writ. Gray v. Superior Court (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 165, 171-172, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 428

While compulsory dismissal by order of court is judicial act from which plaintiff may appeal, voluntary dismissal by plaintiff is accomplished by ministerial act of clerk, from which no appeal lies. Yancey v. Fink (1991) 226 Cal. App. 3d 1334, 1342-1343, 277 Cal. Rptr. 415

[2] Availability

Voluntary dismissal without prejudice was available after demurrer was sustained with leave to amend but before decision on demurrer to amended complaint. Christensen v. Dewor Developments (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 778, 785, 191 Cal. Rptr. 8, 661 P.2d 1088

Plaintiff may no longer voluntary dismiss a case when either (a) there had been a public and formal indication by the trial court of the legal merits of the case, or (b) there was some procedural dereliction by the plaintiff making dismissal inevitable; when plaintiff dismissed case prior to order to show cause hearing contemplating dismissal or sanctions, dismissal had not yet become inevitable and therefore plaintiff's voluntary dismissal was effective. Franklin Capital Corp. v. Wilson (2007) 148 Cal. App. 4th 187, 210, 55 Cal. Rptr. 3d 424

Apart from certain statutory exceptions, plaintiff's right to voluntary dismissal before commencement of trial under Code Civ Proc. § 581 appears absolute; plaintiff's voluntary dismissal with prejudice was valid when entered after Code Civ. Proc. § 425.16 motion to strike filed, hearing held, motion taken under submission, but before court ruled on motion. Kyle v. Carmon (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 901, 908-912, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 303

Plaintiff's right to dismiss complaint at any time before actual commencement of trial (see Code Civ. Proc. § 581(b)(1)) is cut off by commencement of evidentiary proceedings before referee appointed in a partition action; moreover, voluntary dismissal in action for partition improper when defendant's answer requests affirmative relief. Gray v. Superior Court (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 165, 167, 173-174, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 428

Plaintiff who waits until motion for summary judgment has been filed and time for opposition has passed, to attempt to dismiss his or her complaint, is subject to trial court's continuing jurisdiction to hear and rule on pending motion; plaintiff may not frustrate summary judgment statute by interposing voluntary dismissal without prejudice in lieu of opposition to defendant's motion. Cravens v. State Bd. of Equalization (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 253, 255, 257, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 436

Plaintiff may not voluntarily dismiss action without prejudice after adverse tentative summary judgment ruling announced and hearing commenced which is thereafter continued for express and exclusive purpose of permitting plaintiff opportunity to present opposition evidence that plaintiff claims was previously unavailable. Mary Morgan, Inc. v. Melzark (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 765, 767, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 4

Voluntary dismissal of action after filing petition for trial de novo subsequent to judicial arbitration is not available to avoid unfavorable arbitration ruling. Herbert Hawkins Realtors, Inc. v. Milheiser (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 334, 339-340, 189 Cal. Rptr. 450

Voluntary dismissal is not available after trial court sustains general demurrer without leave to amend. Bell v. Hummel (1982) 136 Cal. App. 3d 1009, 1015, 186 Cal. Rptr. 688 (overruled on other grounds in Laird v. Blacker (1992) 2 Cal. 4th 606, 617, 7 Cal. Rptr. 2d 550, 828 P.2d 691 , cert. denied, 506 U.S. 1021)

Voluntary dismissal is not sufficient to make defendant "prevailing party" entitled to attorney's fees under Civ. Code § 1717. D & J, Inc. v. Ferro Corp. (1986) 176 Cal. App. 3d 1191, 1193, 222 Cal. Rptr. 656 ; Associated Convalescent Enterprises v. Carl Marks & Co., Inc. (1973) 33 Cal. App. 3d 116, 120-121, 108 Cal. Rptr. 782

Voluntary dismissal without prejudice available after demurrer sustained with leave to amend and plaintiff files request for dismissal within time required to amend. Malick v. American Sav. & Loan Assn. (1969) 273 Cal. App. 2d 171, 174, 79 Cal. Rptr. 499

Payment of costs or attorney's fees not proper condition to obtaining voluntary dismissal. Eddings v. White (1964) 229 Cal. App. 2d 579, 585, 40 Cal. Rptr. 453

[3] Effect

In voluntary pretrial dismissal cases, Civ. Code § 1717 bars recovery of attorney fees incurred in defending contract claims, but neither Section 1717 nor International Industries, Inc. v. Olen (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 218, 577 P.2d 1031 , bar recovery of attorney fees incurred in defending tort or other noncontract claims arising from contract with broad attorney's fee provision; whether attorney's fees incurred in defending tort or other noncontract claims are recoverable after pretrial dismissal depends on terms of contractual attorney fee provision. Santisas v. Goodin (1998) 17 Cal. 4th 599, 602, 617, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 830, 951 P.2d 399

On proper exercise of plaintiff's right to voluntary dismissal before commencement of trial under Code Civ. Proc. § 581, trial court thereafter lacks jurisdiction to enter further orders in dismissed action except for matters such as attorney fees; order of court lacking subject matter jurisdiction is void. Kyle v. Carmon (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 901, 909, 84

Cal. Rptr. 2d 303

Defendant who prevails on motion for judgment on the pleadings as to contractual causes of action, but remains as defendant on tort counts, is not entitled to attorney's fees pursuant to Civ. Code § 1717 when plaintiff subsequently voluntarily dismisses defendant as to "entire action." Rosen v. Robert P. Warmington Co. (1988) 201 Cal. App. 3d 939, 942-944, 247 Cal. Rptr. 635

Voluntary dismissal is simply withdrawal of plaintiff's complaint which leaves defendant as though never a party. Skelly v. Richman (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 844, 858, 89 Cal. Rptr. 556

Voluntary dismissal without prejudice before trial is not judgment on merits. Crosswhite v. American Ins. Co. (1964) 61 Cal. 2d 300, 302, 38 Cal. Rptr. 412, 392 P.2d 5

[4] Relief From Voluntary Dismissal

Defendant may file motion to vacate dismissal, which if denied may be reviewed by extraordinary writ. Gray v. Superior Court (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 165, 172, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 428

Plaintiffs' attorney's lack of authority invalidated dismissal with prejudice; trial court abused its discretion in denying motion to vacate dismissal since court had attorney's declaration that she acted without authority and by mistake, and there was no conceivable reason to dismiss action with prejudice rather than without prejudice. Romadka v. Hoge (1991) 232 Cal. App. 3d 1231, 1237, 283 Cal. Rptr. 878

Even after voluntary dismissal with prejudice has been filed, trial court has jurisdiction to vacate judgment of dismissal under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 if it was entered as result of plaintiff's mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect. Basinger v. Rogers & Wells (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 16, 21-22, 269 Cal. Rptr. 332

§ 212.194 Decisions

[1] Appeal of Order Dismissing Action

Order dismissing fewer than all defendants from action is final judgment as to those dismissed and appealable. Hydrotech Systems, Ltd. v. Oasis Waterpark (1991) 52 Cal. 3d 988, 993 n.3, 277 Cal. Rptr. 517, 803 P.2d 370

On appeal from order dismissing case for failure to prosecute diligently, there can be no review of earlier, nonappealable summary adjudication orders that would otherwise be reviewed on appeal from final judgment on merits. Vernon v. Great Western Bank (1996) 51 Cal. App. 4th 1007, 1009, 1013-1015, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 350

As general rule involuntary dismissal effected by written court order is appealable. Topa Ins. Co. v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Companies (1995) 39 Cal. App. 4th 1331, 1336, 46 Cal. Rptr. 2d 516

Appeal from minute order granting motion to dismiss for failure to prosecute dismissed is not taken from appealable order; plaintiffs refused opportunity to secure order of dismissal and to request judicial notice of after-filed judgment. Munoz v. Florentine Gardens (1991) 235 Cal. App. 3d 1730, 1731-1732, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 609

Order of dismissal for failure to prosecute is appealable. Nye v. 20th Century Ins. Co. (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 1041, 1043 n.1, 275 Cal. Rptr. 319

Order of dismissal is appealable under Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1 when it finally disposes of action. Southern Cal. White Trucks v. Teresinski (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 1393, 1398 n.1, 236 Cal. Rptr. 159

[2] Considerations on Appeal

[a] Discretionary Dismissal

Dismissal under Code Civ. Proc. § 581(l) is discretionary; trial court's discretion will be overturned only on showing of manifest abuse of discretion; discretion abused when trial court's ruling is arbitrary, capricious, exceeds the bounds of reason or prevents fair hearing from being held; terminatingsanctions should only be ordered when there has been previous noncompliance with rule or order and it appears less severe sanction would be effective; terminating sanctions should not be ordered as first response when noncompliance is through no fault of party. Link v. Cater (1998) 60 Cal. App. 4th 1315, 1320-1321, 1325-1326, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 130

Reviewing court will not substitute its opinion for that of trial court unless there is clear abuse of discretion and miscarriage of justice. Lopez v. State of California (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 1292, 1295, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 266

Assuming trial court abused discretion in not granting motion for discretionary dismissal, defense attorney's declaration that because of passage of time witnesses had moved away and would not be available for trial is insufficient to show prejudice needed for reversal when declaration does not identify witnesses and what relevant facts their testimony would have shown. Reid v. Balter (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 1186, 1195, 18 Cal. Rptr. 2d 287

Objection that trial court, in granting motion to dismiss action for failure to serve and return summons within two years, failed to apply standards set forth in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1342(e) was not subject to being raised for first time on appeal; on appeal of trial court's ruling on discretionary dismissal motion, reviewing court will not substitute its opinion for that of trial court unless clear case of abuse is shown and there has been miscarriage of justice; burden of showing abuse is on complaining party. Ladd v. Dart Equipment Corp. (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 1088, 1092 n.2, 1100, 281 Cal. Rptr. 813

Trial court has wide discretion in ruling on motion to dismiss for lack of diligent prosecution and its decision will not be reversed on appeal absent abuse of discretion; appropriate test for abuse of discretion is whether trial court exceeded bounds of reason; when two or more inferences can reasonably be deduced from facts, reviewing court has no authority to substitute its decision for that of trial court; trial court's decision to deny motion to dismiss is not as closely scrutinized on appeal as decision to dismiss because law favors decisions on the merits. Maggio, Inc. v. United Farm Workers (1991) 227 Cal. App. 3d 847, 884, 278 Cal. Rptr. 250 , cert. denied, 502 U.S. 863

Discretionary dismissal of action for failure to serve summons within two years (Code Civ. Proc. §§ 583.410(a), 583.420(a)(1)) reversed on appeal only when manifest abuse of discretion has been shown; burden of demonstrating abuse of discretion is on appellant; trial court's decision reversed only if, based on evidence viewed most favorably in support of trial court's decision, appellate court finds that no reasonable judge could have reached same result. Kuchins v. Hawes (1990) 226 Cal. App. 3d 535, 538, 541, 276 Cal. Rptr. 281

When trial court has ruled on discretionary motion to dismiss, unless clear case of abuse is shown, and unless there has been miscarriage of justice, reviewing court will not substitute its opinion and thereby divest trial court of its discretionary power; burden is on complaining party to establish abuse of discretion. State Compensation Ins. Fund v. Selma Trailer & Manufacturing Co. (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 740, 747-748, 258 Cal. Rptr. 545

In reviewing ruling on motion to dismiss under Code Civ. Proc. § 583.420(a)(2)(A), reviewing court does not substitute its opinion and thereby divest trial court of its discretionary power unless clear case of abuse is shown and unlessthere has been miscarriage of justice; burden is on complaining party to establish abuse of discretion; ultimate question on review is whether under all circumstances plaintiff has shown a clear or manifest abuse of discretion. Freedman v. Pacific Gas & Electric Co. (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 696, 703-704, 242 Cal. Rptr. 8

Appellate court gives substantial deference to trial court's ruling on discretionary dismissal and will not reverse decision unless manifest abuse of discretion existed. San Ramon Valley Unified School Dist. v. Wheatley-Jacobsen, Inc. (1985) 175 Cal. App. 3d 1050, 1054, 221 Cal. Rptr. 342 (prior law)

[b] Mandatory Dismissal

Trial court's ruling on motion to dismiss under Code Civ. Proc. § 583.310 (requiring action to be brought to trial within five years), disturbed on appeal only on showing of manifest abuse of discretion; judgment or order of lower court presumed correct; all intendments and presumptions indulged to support it on matters as to which record is silent, and error required to be affirmatively shown. Monzon v. Schaefer Ambulance Service, Inc. (1990) 224 Cal. App. 3d 16, 26, 28, 273 Cal. Rptr. 615

[3] Discretionary Dismissal for Delay in Prosecution

[a] Generally

Municipal court lacks authority to dismiss plaintiff's case on ground that plaintiff failed to comply with local rules regarding Delay Reduction Standards when court had not adopted any trial delay reduction rules in compliance with California Rules of Court and statute governing adoption of those rules; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 583.410, 583.420 authorize dismissal only after two years have passed from date action commenced. Simmons v. City of Pasadena (1995) 40 Cal. App. 4th Supp. 1, 5, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 102

Although Code Civ. Proc. § 36(b) (which grants trial preference for party under age of 14 in wrongful death or personal injury action) is mandatory, it does not divest court of its discretion to dismiss case under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 583.410 and 583.420(a)(2) [Landry v. Berryessa Union School Dist. (1995) 39 Cal. App. 4th 691, 695-697, 46 Cal. Rptr. 2d 119] .

Trial court's dismissal of legal malpractice action on its own motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 583.410 for failure to bring to trial was not abuse of discretion even though plaintiff effected service of process within two years of filing complaint and parties agreed to open extension of time for defendant to respond, when extension was also for plaintiff's benefit (to conduct further investigation), plaintiff failed to serve complaint until end of two-year period during which defendant attorney continued to represent plaintiff without knowledge of existence of complaint, and plaintiff failed to conduct relevant discovery. Kidd v. Kopald (1994) 31 Cal. App. 4th 132, 36 Cal. Rptr. 2d 875

Trial court's discretionary dismissal of complaint in intervention upheld when intervening insurer consented to dropping case from civil active list, little discovery occurred in four years between complaint's filing and dismissal, insurer did not pursue arbitration of complaint in intervention, and insurerfailed to file at-issue memorandum. Wagner v. Rios (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 608, 612, 5 Cal. Rptr. 2d 731

Motion for discretionary dismissal of action for failure to serve summons within two years was properly granted when summons was not served until two and one half years after action was commenced, after which plaintiff conducted discovery, when her only attempt at prosecution of action or discovery in two-and-one-half-year period was filing complaint and writing one letter confirming a phone conversation; belated manifestation of diligence did not operate to justify earlier unjustified protracted delay; policy that interests of justice weigh against disposing of litigation on procedural grounds prevails only when plaintiff makes some showing of excusable delay in failing to prosecute, and no such showing was made. Kuchins v. Hawes (1990) 226 Cal. App. 3d 535, 541, 276 Cal. Rptr. 281

Motion for discretionary dismissal for failure to serve summons within two years after action was commenced against defendant properly denied when plaintiff acted diligently to serve summons and no prejudice from delay to defendant is shown. Highland Stucco & Lime, Inc. v. Superior Court (Los Angeles Unified School District) (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 637, 645, 272 Cal. Rptr. 60

Trial court did not err in dismissing cross complaint for delay in prosecution under three-year discretionary dismissal statute (Code Civ. Proc. § 583.420(a)(2)(A)), when it would have been justified in dismissing it under five-year mandatory dismissal statute (Code Civ. Proc. § 583.310 et seq.). Waxman v. Boren, Elperin, Howard & Sloan (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 519, 526, 270 Cal. Rptr. 540

As delay between filing of complaint and motion to dismiss increases from two years to five, showing required to excuse failure to bring case to trial grows greater and greater. State Compensation Ins. Fund v. Selma Trailer & Manufacturing Co. (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 740, 748, 258 Cal. Rptr. 545

Determination of whether case should be dismissed for failure to prosecute diligently requires assessment of credibility, resolution of conflicts in evidence, and balancing of competing judicial policies, all of which are uniquely within province of trial court; discretion of trial court must be upheld unless there is showing of clear abuse, and there has been miscarriage of justice. Ystrom v. Handel (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 144, 151, 252 Cal. Rptr. 110

Dismissal four and one half years after commencement of action was error when plaintiff had diligently conducted discovery, on learning of additional ground of malpractice three years after commencement of case had immediately joined additional defendants, and had vigorously responded to several demurrers and defendants showed no prejudice from delay. Cubit v. Ridgecrest Community Hospital (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 1552, 1565-1573, 240 Cal. Rptr. 346 (prior law)

Court did not abuse its discretion in denying motion to set case specially for trial and then dismissing case for lack of prosecution when deadline for mandatory dismissal was approaching. Parlen v. Golden State Sanwa Bank (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 906, 910-915, 240 Cal. Rptr. 73

Specific information regarding delay was required to enable court to find that plaintiff's conduct causing delay was reasonable. Longshore v. Pine (1986) 176 Cal. App. 3d 731, 737, 222 Cal. Rptr. 364 (prior law)

Defendant has burden to show discretionary dismissal is warranted through showing of some prejudice or presence of factors under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1342(e), which when viewed together militate in favor of dismissal, and when showing is made, burden shifts to plaintiff to show excusable delay. San Ramon Valley Unified School Dist. v. Wheatley-Jacobsen, Inc. (1985) 175 Cal. App. 3d 1050, 1057, 221 Cal. Rptr. 342 (prior law)

On motion for discretionary dismissal, defendant has burden of showing that dismissal is warranted. Campanella v. Takaoka (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 504, 513, 206 Cal. Rptr. 745 (prior law)

Sanction is appropriate alternative to dismissal when delay in prosecution is compensable. Hansen v. Snap-Tite, Inc. (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 208, 213, 100 Cal. Rptr. 51 (prior law)

[b] Applicability of Rulings in Default Cases

Because relief from default under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 depends on party's being able to show excusable neglect and implicates same opposing policies of encouraging diligence yet having cases resolved on their merits, reasoning of those cases is generally applicable in dismissal-for-delay cases. Freedman v. Pacific Gas & Electric Co. (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 696, 705, 242 Cal. Rptr. 8

[c] Attorney's Negligence

Plaintiff not entitled to relief from mandatory dismissal requirement of Code Civ. Proc. 583.210 due to attorney misconduct; on other hand, when dismissal is discretionary, misconduct of plaintiff's attorney must be considered by court. Shipley v. Sugita (1996) 50 Cal. App. 4th 320, 324-327, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 750

When attorney's neglect amounts to abandonment, neglect not imputed to client for purposes of discretionary dismissal statute, if client is relatively free of negligence. Fleming v. Gallegos (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 68, 71-73, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 350

Negligence of plaintiff's attorney in failing to prosecute case, when attorney did not totally fail to represent plaintiff, imputed to plaintiff. Freedman v. Pacific Gas & Electric Co. (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 696, 704-707, 242 Cal. Rptr. 8 .

[d] Computation of Statutory Periods

Time from filing of first amended complaint in municipal court to filing of transferred action in superior court not excluded in computing time for purposes of discretionary dismissal, when almost all of that time was within plaintiff's control. Williams v. Los Angeles Unified School Dist. (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 84, 104, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 219

Defendant not estopped to assert its right to move to dismiss action when plaintiff's grant of open extension of time in which defendant may respond was for plaintiff's benefit. Marra v. Mission Foods Corp. (1993) 19 Cal. App. 4th 724, 728-729, 23 Cal. Rptr. 2d 741

Delay attributed to awaiting outcome of related proceedings with direct bearing on action in which summons is not timely filed not excusable per se. Scarzella v. DeMers (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 1762, 1769, 22 Cal. Rptr. 2d 329

Two-year period under former Code Civ. Proc. § 583(a), after which action may be dismissed in discretion of court, not tolled while plaintiff obtains certificate of merit required by former Code Civ. Proc. § 411.30 in medical malpractice actions. Adams v. Roses (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 498, 504, 228 Cal. Rptr. 339

[e] Criteria to Be Considered

Discretionary dismissal of action under former Code Civ. Proc. § 583(a) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 583.420(a)) for failure to prosecute not abuse of discretion even though defendant was not prejudiced by delay because legislative policy underlying former Code Civ. Proc. § 583 not only grounded on prejudice caused by delay to defendant, but also on effective administration of justice. Blank v. Kirwan (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 311, 332, 216 Cal. Rptr. 718, 703 P.2d 58

Trial court abused discretion under Code Civ. Proc. § 581(l) in inviting dismissal of case and in refusing to grant continuance when imposition of lesser sanction would suffice; when plaintiff diligently prosecuted case for over four years, even assuming some penalty was warranted, clearly dismissal was too severe; terminating sanctions should only be ordered when there has been previous noncompliance with rule or order and it appears less severe sanction would be effective; terminating sanctions should not be ordered as first response when noncompliance is through no fault of party. Link v. Cater (1998) 60 Cal. App. 4th 1315, 1325-1326, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 130

In action to recover title to real property in which plaintiff showed attorney abandonment, inference of prejudice to defendant by existence of lis pendens insufficient to override showing of reasonable diligence without evidence inability to refinance or sell. Fleming v. Gallegos (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 68, 74, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 350

Discretionary dismissal statute places no restrictions on trial court's exercise of discretion on motion to dismiss for failure to serve summons within two years; there is no requirement that motion to dismiss must be granted unless opposed by adequate showing of diligence or excuse for delay. Ladd v. Dart Equipment Corp. (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 1088, 1105, 281 Cal. Rptr. 813 (Second Appellate District, Division Five; declining to follow Trailmobile, Inc. v. Superior Court (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 1451, 259 Cal. Rptr. 100)

In ruling on motion to dismiss because plaintiff has not brought case to trial within two years, trial court to be guided by policy favoring trial on merits over dismissal for failure to prosecute with reasonable diligence (Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1342); although interests of justice weigh heavily against disposition of litigation on procedural grounds, that policy necessarily prevails only if plaintiff makes some showing of excusable delay; trial court also to consider prejudice suffered by defendant. Maggio, Inc. v. United Farm Workers (1991) 227 Cal. App. 3d 847, 883, 278 Cal. Rptr. 250

To avoid dismissal for failure to serve process within two years after action was commenced against defendant, plaintiff who has delayed prosecutionbeyond discretionary deadlines set forth in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 583.410, 583.420(a)(1) is required to make some showing that lack of activity was excusable. Trailmobile, Inc. v. Superior Court (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 1451, 1455-1456, 259 Cal. Rptr. 100 (Third Appellate District, criticized in Ladd v. Dart Equipment Corp. (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 1088, 1105, 281 Cal. Rptr. 813)

Code Civ. Proc. § 474 (fictitious name statute) does not limit applicability of Code Civ. Proc. § 583.420 in actions against fictitiously named defendants whose identities are discerned more than two years after complaint is filed (but less than three-year period after which dismissal for delay in service is mandatory under Code Civ. Proc. § 583.210). Clark v. Stabond (1987) 197 Cal. App. 3d 50, 57, 242 Cal. Rptr. 676

Discretionary dismissal improper abuse of trial court's discretion when plaintiff was diligent in preparing for trial and delay resulted only from defendant's request for continuance and plaintiff's reliance on defendant's promise to arrange for continuance, so that no prejudice to defendant was shown. Cordova v. Vons Grocery Co. (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 1526, 1535-1536, 242 Cal. Rptr. 605

Decision in Blank v. Kirwan (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 311, 332, 216 Cal. Rptr. 718, 703 P.2d 58 , disapproved by implication rule in Hurtado v. Statewide Home Loan Co. (1985) 167 Cal. App. 3d 1019, 1028-1032, 213 Cal. Rptr. 712 , Luti v. Graco, Inc. (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 228, 235-236, 215 Cal. Rptr. 902 , Troupe v. Courtney (1985) 169 Cal. App. 3d 930, 934-935, 215 Cal. Rptr. 703 , and other cases, that actual prejudice must always be shown to justify discretionary dismissal under former Code Civ. Proc. § 583(a) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 583.420(a). Freedman v. Pacific Gas & Electric Co. (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 696, 711, 242 Cal. Rptr. 8

Although actual prejudice need not always be shown to justify discretionary dismissal, actual prejudice is factor to be considered if it exists. Freedman v. Pacific Gas & Electric Co. (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 696, 711, 242 Cal. Rptr. 8

Prejudice inhers in cases in which long delays inevitably result in dimmed memories and lost witnesses. Freedman v. Pacific Gas & Electric Co. (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 696, 712, 242 Cal. Rptr. 8

Court required to consider totality of circumstances of case, including prejudice to defendant, before granting discretionary dismissal. Cubit v. Ridgecrest Community Hospital (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 1552, 1569, 240 Cal. Rptr.

346 (prior law)

Inexcusable delay by plaintiff coupled with some prejudice to defendant as able to outweigh other factors considered by trial court, even if dismissal inevitably results; completion of formal discovery as not determinative of plaintiff's diligence. Parlen v. Golden State Sanwa Bank (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 906, 913-915, 240 Cal. Rptr. 73

Discretionary dismissal of cross complaint as proper when appellant failed to serve respondent until nearly three years after filing cross complaint and conducted no discovery until four years after filing, and when open extension to respond expressly precluded extension of trial date beyond statutory time. Martin v. K & K Properties Inc. (1987) 188 Cal. App. 3d 1559, 1566, 234 Cal. Rptr. 161 (prior law)

Absent some showing of prejudice to defendants, trial court as abusing discretion in granting motion for discretionary dismissal and denying request to specially set case for trial. Troupe v. Courtney (1985) 169 Cal. App. 3d 930, 934-935, 215 Cal. Rptr. 703 (prior law)

Discretionary dismissal as erroneous abuse of discretion when record indicated that trial court failed to consider all relevant factors under former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 203.5(e), (now see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1342(e)), particularly plaintiff's overall diligence in prosecuting action, and dismissed action solely due to plaintiff's failure to appear for trial-setting conference. Dockery v. Hyatt (1985) 169 Cal. App. 3d 830, 832-834, 215 Cal. Rptr. 488 (prior law)

On grant of discretionary dismissal, court as not required to specify rule or factors considered under former Cal. Rules of Ct, Rule § 203.5(e) (now see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule § 3.1342(e)). Wilson v. Sunshine Meat & Liquor Co. (1983) 34 Cal. 3d 554, 562-563, 194 Cal. Rptr. 773, 669 P.2d 9

In exercising discretionary power to dismiss for delay in prosecution, court as able to consider plaintiff's lack of diligence during period that case was submitted to arbitration. D'Hondt v. Regents of University of California (1984) 153 Cal. App. 3d 723, 730, 200 Cal. Rptr. 628 (prior law)

Grant of motion for discretionary dismissal as abuse of discretion if record shows that court failed to carefully consider each relevant factor as required by former Cal. Rules of Ct, Rule 203.5 (now see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1342(e)). Visco v. Abatti (1983) 144 Cal. App. 3d 904, 907, 192 Cal. Rptr. 833 (prior law); United Farm Workers National Union v. International Brotherhood of Teamsters (1978) 87 Cal. App. 3d 225, 236, 150 Cal. Rptr. 761 (prior law)

[f] Justification for Delay in Prosecution

On motion for discretionary dismissal for delay in prosecuting action, showing that is required to justify delay as becoming greater as time passes three years and approaches time when dismissal is mandatory. Freedman v. Pacific Gas & Electric Co. (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 696, 703, 242 Cal. Rptr. 8

[g] Procedure

Notice requirement of former Cal. Rules of Ct, Rule § 203.5(a) (now see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule § 3.1342) as not applying to discretionary dismissal when dismissal was ordered on court's own motion during review of plaintiff's motion to specially set case for trial to avoid mandatory dismissal. Wilson v. Sunshine Meat & Liquor Co. (1983) 34 Cal. 3d 554, 559-560, 194 Cal. Rptr. 773, 669 P.2d 9

Trial court was not required to give parties 45 days' notice before hearing on discretionary dismissal for delay in prosecution under Code Civ. Proc. § 583.410(b) and Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1342, where, under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1340(b), requiring clerk to set hearing and mail notice to all parties at least 20 days before hearing date if the court intends to dismiss an action on its own motion, trial court gave parties notice of order to show cause why action should not be dismissed for delay in prosecution 28 days before hearing, which was more than enough notice under Rule 3.1340(b); and where Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1342, which requires party seeking dismissal of case for delay in prosecution to serve and file notice of motion at least 45 days before date set for hearing on motion, explicitly applies to party in action, whereas Rule 3.1340(b) explicitly applies to court's own motion to dismiss case, and since dismissal occurred on court's own motion, Rule 3.1340(b) applied. Sakhai v. Zipora (2009) 180 Cal. App. 4th 593, 598-600, 102 Cal. Rptr. 3d 691

Plaintiff's due process rights as not violated when court failed to give notice of its intention to dismiss action under Code Civ. Proc. § 583.410, because plaintiff was afforded those rights in subsequent hearing on reconsideration. Cordova v. Vons Grocery Co. (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 1526, 1531-1532, 242 Cal. Rptr. 605

[4] Dismissal for Avoidance of Court Ordered Arbitration

Dismissal with prejudice as proper when plaintiff circumvented mandatory arbitration by requesting arbitrator to enter judgment for defendant in order to preserve right to jury trial to which plaintiff was not otherwise entitled, to defendant's disadvantage, and in defiance of court's order to arbitrate. Genovia v. Cassidy (1983) 145 Cal. App. 3d 452, 457-458, 193 Cal. Rptr. 454 (prior law)

[5] Inherent Power of Court to Dismiss

Inherent power without aid of legislation to dismiss action for lack of prosecution. Overaa v. Keeney (1915) 169 Cal. 628, 630-631, 147 P. 466 ; Blue Chip Enterprises, Inc. v. Brentwood Sav. & Loan Assn. (1977) 71 Cal. App. 3d 706, 712-713, 139 Cal. Rptr. 651

Trial court's dismissal under inherent discretionary power of fictitious or sham complaint upheld when no defendants were named in complaint, only fictitious defendants under Code Civ. Proc. § 474; while pleading was legally permissible, inability of plaintiff to identify even one potential defendant raised significant questions regarding viability of the alleged claims and plaintiff, by giving court no specific information to demonstrate that plaintiff's requested discovery to learn identity of unnamed defendants was anything other than a fishing expedition, failed to demonstrate good cause to support issuance of a discovery order under Code Civ. Proc. § 2025(b)(2) [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 2025.210 operative July 1, 2005]. Pearlson v. Does 1 to 646 (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 1005, 1010-1012, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 787

Discretionary dismissal after trial commences. Karras v. Western Title Ins. Co. (1969) 270 Cal. App. 2d 753, 757, 76 Cal. Rptr. 141

[6] Involuntary Dismissal for Reasons Other Than Delay in Prosecution

Trial court abused its discretion by choosing "drastic measure" of dismissal of indigent prisoner's pro se action against prison doctor for failure to appear telephonically at case management conference and subsequent order to show cause hearing, without first determining that prisoner had been afforded meaningful access to the courts and that his failure to appear at required hearings was willful. Jameson v. Desta (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 672, 683-684, 101 Cal. Rptr. 3d 345

Court did not have authority to involuntarily dismiss plaintiff's action when parties were unable to finalize settlement agreement after plaintiff's counsel had notified the court of a tentative settlement and asked the court to set an order to show cause hearing in 45 days; court was required to set the case for trial as requested by the parties once it was clear that settlement negotiations had failed. Levitz v. TheWarlocks (2007) 148 Cal. App.4th 531, 535-536, 55 Cal. Rptr. 3d 800

Trial court, after quashing service and vacating order for publication of summons because complaint failed to state cause of action as required by Code Civ. Proc. § 415.50(a)(1), as not empowered to dismiss action. Islamic Republic of Iran v. Pahlavi (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 620, 629, 206 Cal. Rptr. 752

[7] Mandatory Dismissal for Delay in Bringing Action to Trial

[a] Generally

After one judge had granted plaintiff's motion to advance and had set case for trial within five-year period, order by second judge dismissing action and vacating trial date as error; although trial court has jurisdiction to reconsider prior ruling or to entertain renewal of previous motion, one judge is not permitted to reconsider and overrule ruling of another absent showing that first judge is unavailable; considerations on motion for preferential trial setting as same as on motion to dismiss; both as addressed to discretion of trial court; both as governed by factors set forth in former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1342(e); Curtin v. Koskey (1991) 231 Cal. App. 3d 873, 874, 876-878, 282 Cal. Rptr. 706

Code Civ. Proc. § 583.310, requiring that action be dismissed if not brought to trial within five years after action is commenced, as not applying to judgment entered on motion to enforce settlement agreement (Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6). Malouf Bros. v. Dixon (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 280, 284-285, 281 Cal. Rptr. 235 (following Schiro v. Curci (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 840, 844, 269 Cal. Rptr. 639 , and Gorman v. Holte (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 984, 987-988, 211 Cal. Rptr. 34 , and rejecting contrary holding in Varwig v. Leider (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 312, 315-316, 217 Cal. Rptr. 208)

Trial court as having some discretion to grant or deny request to dismiss for delay in bringing action to trial, and reviewing court as not inclined to intervene unless there is a manifest abuse of that discretion. Wheeler v. City of Santa Monica (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 1554, 1560, 269 Cal. Rptr 175

Motion for leave to file cross complaint to defendant's cross complaint to allege causes of action set forth in original complaint that had been dismissed for failure to bring action to trial within five years (see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 583.310, 583.360) on ground they were related causes of action (see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 426.30, 426.50), and amended answer to allege same claims as offset, as properly denied. Flynn v. Page (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 342, 347, 266 Cal. Rptr. 830

Five-year time limit for bringing action to trial as no longer applicable when parties stipulated to complete settlement of their dispute before lapse of period, even though they did not formally execute their agreement before lapse of period. Gorman v. Holte (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 984, 987-989, 211 Cal. Rptr. 34 (prior law)

Federal provision tolling statutory limitation periods during party's period of military service (former 50 U.S.C. App. § 525; now see 50 U.S.C. App. § 526) also tolled five-year period for bringing case to trial under former Code Civ. Proc. § 583 (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 583.310). Buttler v. City of Los Angeles (1984) 153 Cal. App. 3d 520, 523-526, 200 Cal. Rptr. 372

[b] Commencement of Trial

For purposes of determining whether action was "brought to trial," "trial" as examination before competent tribunal, according to law of land, of questions of fact or of law put in issue by pleadings, for purpose of determining rights of parties; hearing on motion in limine as not trial because it did not involve question of law or fact raised by pleadings. Hendrix v. Hendrix (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 859, 862, 217 Cal. Rptr. 609 (prior law)

[c] Computation of Statutory Periods

Plaintiff as bringing action to trial so as to avoid dismissal when jury was impanelled within five-year period, even though jury was subsequently discharged and case was continued beyond five-year period for bringing action to trial. Hartman v. Santamarina (1982) 30 Cal. 3d 762, 765-767, 180 Cal. Rptr. 337, 639 P.2d 979 (prior law)

Test for determining whether subsequently filed claim has life independent of original complaint for purposes of five-year mandatory dismissal rule (Code Civ. Proc. §§ 583.310, 583.360) is whether claim asserts separate cause of action; in context of cross complaints and separate lawsuits subsequently consolidated, time for bringing claim to trial runs from filing of cross complaint or separate but consolidated lawsuit, rationale being that each claim states separate cause of action that could have been separately brought and tried and they were thus distinct though simultaneous actions with their own independent time frames for purposes of mandatory dismissal statute. Bright v. American Termite Control Co. (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 1464, 269 Cal. Rptr. 793

When complaint in intervention by insurer claiming property subrogation rights states essentially same causes of action against defendant as are stated in plaintiff's original complaint, five-year dismissal period for failure to bring action to trial (Code Civ. Proc. §§ 583.310, 583.360) as running from date original action was commenced and not from date complaint in intervention is filed; although both plaintiff and intervener each possess separate right of action, in contrast to separate causes of action involved in cross complaint or separate but consolidated lawsuit, bringing separate actions is proscribed by rule against splitting a cause of action unless objection is waived by defendant. Bright v. American Termite Control Co. (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 1464, 1468-1470, 269 Cal. Rptr. 793

Action as "commenced" for purposes of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 583.310 and 583.360(a) on plaintiff's filing original complaint against defendant. Bank of America v. Superior Court (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 1000, 1010-1011, 246 Cal. Rptr. 521

Date original complaint filed as commencement of five-year period for bringing action to trial as to intervenor in workers' compensation action even though complaint in intervention was filed later. Johnson v. Santos (l983) 148 Cal. App. 3d 566, 571, 196 Cal. Rptr. 145 (prior law)

Plaintiff as bringing action to trial so as to avoid dismissal when jury venire panel was sworn and voir dire examination begun within five-year period for bringing action to trial. Hilliard v. A.H. Robins Co. (1983) 148 Cal. App. 3d 374, 389-390, 196 Cal. Rptr. 117 (prior law)

Taking of testimony and resultant judgment under Code Civ. Proc. § 594 prior to end of five-year period for bringing action to trial as constituting bringing matter to trial so as to avoid dismissal. Briley v. Sukoff (1979) 98 Cal. App. 3d 405, 410, 159 Cal. Rptr. 452 (prior law)

[d] Effect of Dismissal

Dismissal for failure to bring action to trial within five-year period as not divesting trial court of jurisdiction to consider matters ancillary to underlying action, such as application for attorney fees under Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.5. Maria P. v. Riles (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 1281, 1290, 240 Cal. Rptr. 872, 743 P.2d 932

[e] Effect of Settlement on Mandatory Dismissal

Five-year dismissal period of Code Civ. Proc. § 583.310 tolled following recitation of settlement on record before expiration of five-year period even though settlement was not reduced to judgment within that period. Canal Street,

Ltd. v. Sorich (2000) 77 Cal. App. 4th 602, 608-609, 91 Cal. Rptr. 2d 811 (First Dist., Div. Five (following Brown & Bryant, Inc. v. Hartford Accident & Indemnity Co. (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 247, 255, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 144 , Malouf Bros. v. Dixon (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 280, 285, 281 Cal. Rptr. 235 , Schiro v. Curci (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 840, 844-845, 269 Cal. Rptr. 639 , and Gorman v. Holte (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 984, 988 and rejecting contrary holding of First District, Division Two, in Varwig v. Leider (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 312, 217 Cal. Rptr. 208)

Settlement agreement, entered into before expiration of five-year period for mandatory dismissal for failure to prosecute (Code Civ. Proc. § 583.310 et seq.) but not executed until after expiration of that period, providing that superior court would retain jurisdiction over enforcement of its terms as either coming within exception specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 583.340(c) in that, during time between agreement to settle and final execution of settlement agreement by all interested parties, it would have been "futile" to bring action to trial because all issues had been resolved through settlement, or as constituting implied waiver or extension of five-year dismissal rule because settlement agreement vested continued jurisdiction in trial court to supervise compliance with its terms. Schiro v. Curci (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 840, 844-845, 269 Cal. Rptr. 639 (following Gorman v. Holte (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 984, 986, 211 Cal. Rptr. 34 , and rejecting contrary holding in Varwig v. Leider (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 312, 314-316, 217 Cal. Rptr. 208)

[f] Effect of Swearing in Jury After Period Has Expired

Impanelment of jury after five-year period for bringing action to trial has run (Code Civ. Proc. §§ 583.310, 583.360(a)) as not preventing court from dismissing action for failure to prosecute; only circumstance that will revive action after five-year period has expired as stipulation between parties. Estate of Anastasio (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 486, 488-489, 263 Cal. Rptr. 622

[g] Estoppel or Waiver as Defense

Despite submission by counsel for defendants of declaration stating he was not available for trial until after five-year period expired, trial court appropriately rejected doctrine of equitable estoppel, where plaintiffs were aware when five-year trial period ran, and it was not reasonable to assume defendants were willing to waive deadline; where defense counsel was obligated to tell the court when he was unavailable for trial, and fact that defense counsel's notice of unavailability extended beyond five-year cutoff date did not constitute any misrepresentation or waiver of five-year period; and where any ambiguity or confusion created by defense counsel mentioning his unavailability beyond cutoff date could have been clarified by plaintiffs' counsel, who was responsible for insuring case was tried before five-year period expired. Jordan v. Superstar Sandcars (2010) 182 Cal. App. 4th 1416, 1422-1423

Dismissal of action for failure to bring to trial within five years improper since statute tolled during periods of delay caused by defendant's motions to continue trial. Rose v. Scott (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 537, 541, 284 Cal. Rptr. 487

Defendant as estopped from moving for mandatory dismissal for failure to bring action to trial during time that trial was continued at defendant's oral request in court, but not thereafter. Ward v. Levin (1984) 161 Cal. App. 3d 1026, 1034, 208 Cal. Rptr. 312 (prior law)

Defendant as estopped from invoking mandatory dismissal when defendants' counsel made misrepresentations to court concerning calculation of period for bringing action to trial, on which plaintiff's attorney justifiably relied. Griffis v. S.S. Kresge Co. (1984) 150 Cal. App. 3d 491, 499, 197 Cal. Rptr. 771 (prior law)

Defendant's request for continuance at trial setting conference and delayed filing of defendants' form substituting attorneys as not estopping defendants from invoking dismissal when those acts occurred after expiration of mandatory period for bringing action to new trial. Balboa Ins. Co. v. Aguirre (1983) 149 Cal. App. 3d 1002, 1008-1009, 197 Cal.

Rptr. 250 (prior law)

Right to pursue mandatory dismissal for delay in bringing action to trial as waived when no motion is made until after trial. Butler v. Hathcoat (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 834, 840, 194 Cal. Rptr. 352 (prior law)

Defendant as not estopped from moving for dismissal for failure to bring action to trial within five years on basis of conduct unrelated to plaintiff's delay in prosecution. Evans v. City of Los Angeles (1983) 145 Cal. App. 3d 142, 150, 193 Cal. Rptr. 282 (prior law)

Estoppel as applicable to prevent dismissal, even though case was not brought to new trial within three years as required, on ground that defendant's attorney moved for continuance of trial to date past three-year period and prosecuting attorney did not object. Holder v. Sheet Metal Worker's Internat. Assn. (1981) 121 Cal. App. 3d 321, 325-327, 175 Cal. Rptr. 313 (prior law)

Stipulation extending time to plead for indefinite period as not effective to extend statutory period by stipulation, but as nonetheless constituting waiver of diligence otherwise required in bringing action to trial, which in effect tolled running of statutory period until parties agreed to reinstate requirement of diligence. Farrar, Herrick & Associates v. Safecare Co. (1981) 115 Cal. App. 3d 123, 131, 171 Cal. Rptr. 191 (prior law)

[h] Extension of Time for Trial by Stipulation

Stipulation to extend five-year period which also gave specific judge authority to set case for trial "subject to the schedule of the judge" was a proper stipulation and prevented another judicial officer from granting a motion to dismiss. Health Industries of America v. Los Angeles County Metropolitan Transportation Authority (2002) 102 Cal. App. 4th 1372, 1378, 126 Cal. Rptr. 2d 294

Reason behind requirement for written stipulation extending time within which action must be brought to trial set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 583.330(a) as to preclude all disputes, with their attendant charges and countercharges of overreaching and unethical conduct, by requiring that clear and uncontrovertible evidence be presented to court that statutory time was deliberatedly intended to be extended by both parties. Miles v. Speidel (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 879, 883, 259 Cal. Rptr. 582

Letter from defendant's counsel confirming indefinite extension of time to answer complaint, subject to termination by notice, as constituting written stipulation within meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 583.330, thereby precluding defendant, who never filed answer, from obtaining dismissal for lack of prosecution. Wheeler v. Payless Super Drug Stores (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 1292, 1294, 1302-1303, 238 Cal. Rptr. 885

When parties stipulate to postpone trial indefinitely, subject to being reset on motion to advance by any party, dismissal as inappropriate before motion to advance has been made. Imperial Ins. Co. v. California Casualty Indem. Exchange (1984) 158 Cal. App. 3d 540, 548-549, 204 Cal. Rptr. 819 (prior law)

[i] Minority of Plaintiff

Fact that plaintiff is minor, so that time for commencing action is tolled under Code Civ. Proc. § 352(a), as not precluding dismissal under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 583.310, 583.360 for failure to bring timely commenced action to trial within five years. Baccus v. Superior Court (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 1526, 1536-1537, 255 Cal. Rptr. 781

[j] Periods Excluded From Statutory Period

[i] Action Stayed or Enjoined

Time during which the action at law is stayed during pendency of contractual arbitration proceedings as to be excluded in computing five-year period. Brock v. Kaiser Foundation Hospitals (1992) 10 Cal. App. 4th 1790, 1794, 13 Cal. Rptr. 2d 678

Period that plaintiff is in bankruptcy as not excluded from five-year period that action must be brought to trial under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 583.310 and 583.340 to avoid mandatory dismissal. Lauriton v. Carnation Co. (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 161, 163-164, 263 Cal. Rptr. 476

When action is ordered stayed pending resolution of appeal in related action, stay is continuing, for purposes of computing time excluded under Code Civ. Proc. § 583.340(b), until all avenues of judicial review of related case have been exhausted; stay is therefore continuing after remittitur by court of appeal when petition for writ of certiorari is pending in United States Supreme Court and as terminating only after grant or denial of that writ. Rosenthal v. Wilner (1988) 197 Cal. App. 3d 1327, 1333-1334, 243 Cal. Rptr. 472

Dismissal of action for failure to bring it to trial within five years as improper when action was stayed by bankruptcy proceeding. Hughes v. Portsmouth Square, Inc. (1982) 135 Cal. App. 3d 170, 172-173, 184 Cal. Rptr. 926 (prior law)

[ii] Jurisdiction Suspended

Trial court as properly dismissing action for failure to bring it to trial within five years, notwithstanding plaintiff's contention that five-year period was tolled on ground municipal court's jurisdiction was suspended between time plaintiff filed verified amended complaint, attached to motion to file amended complaint and to transfer case to superior court, to date superior court assumed jurisdiction (117 days) because plaintiff failed for more than two months to pay transfer fees required by Code Civ. Proc. § 399 and transfer was not timely accomplished; municipal court as not divested of jurisdiction until transfer fees were paid. Wheeler v. City of Santa Monica (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 1554, 1560-1562, 269 Cal. Rptr. 175 (distinguishing Schwenke v. J & P Scott, Inc. (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 71, 252 Cal. Rptr. 91)

Jurisdiction of superior court over action as not suspended by plaintiff's subsequent bankruptcy; although generally all causes of action possessed by bankrupt vest in trustee in bankruptcy, trustee as able to intervene in action or be substituted as party plaintiff; too, although plaintiff is not authorized to personally prosecute action without authorization from bankruptcy court, plaintiff may seek relief from that court, such as (1) an order permitting trustee to prosecute lawsuit in plaintiff's name; (2) an order compelling trustee to maintain action; (3) an order authorizing plaintiff to prosecute action in his or her own behalf; or (4) a formal order of abandonment. Lauriton v. Carnation Co. (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 161, 164-165, 263 Cal. Rptr. 476

Jurisdiction as not suspended by death of plaintiff joint tenant because title to property passed to surviving joint tenant. Ferk v. County of Lake (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 268, 274-276, 252 Cal. Rptr. 196

In action originally filed in municipal court, in which defendant filed unverfied cross complaint seeking damages in amount in excess of court's jurisdictional limit, period when court's jurisdiction was suspended as being between time that lack of jurisdiction under Code Civ. Proc. § 396 appeared to court, that is, at hearing on motion to transfer, and time case was refiled in superior court. Schwenke v. J & P Scott, Inc. (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 71, 75-79, 252 Cal. Rptr. 91

Period during appeal, excluded from time for bringing action to trial, as running from filing of notice of appeal to issuance of remittitur or denial of hearing. Standard Oil Co. v. Superior Court (1976) 61 Cal. App. 3d 852, 855 n. 1, 132 Cal. Rptr. 761 (prior law); Fannin Corp. v. Superior Court (1974) 36 Cal. App. 3d 745, 750, 111 Cal. Rptr. 920 (prior law)

Period of appeal as excluded from statutory period for bringing action to trial, even though appeal premature. Guy F. Atkinson Co. v. State of California (1971) 17 Cal. App. 3d 1065, 1068, 95 Cal. Rptr. 543 (prior law)

Period within which action must be brought to trial as tolled during time of appeal from pretrial order of dismissal. Diverco Constructors, Inc. v. Wilstein (1970) 4 Cal. App. 3d 6, 13-14, 85 Cal. Rptr. 851 (prior law)

[iii] Prosecution Impossible, Impracticable, or Futile

[A] Generally

Critical factor in applying impossibility, impracticability, or futility exclusion as being whether plaintiff exercised reasonable diligence in bringing action to trial throughout statutory period. Moran v. Superior Court (1983) 35 Cal. 3d 229, 238-240, 197 Cal. Rptr. 546, 673 P.2d 216 (prior law); Martin v. K & K Properties Inc. (1987) 188 Cal. App. 3d 1559, 1568, 234 Cal. Rptr. 161 (prior law)

Statutes providing for mandatory time for bringing action to trial or new trial as rendered "legally irrelevant" by timely and enforceable settlement agreement which finally disposes of all issues in underlying lawsuit Brown & Bryant, Inc. v. Hartford Accident & Indemnity Co. (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 247, 254, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 144

Code Civ. Proc. § 583.340(c), which tolls five-year period within which action must be brought to trial when it is impossible, impracticable, or futile to do so, as effectively recognizing tolling period from time notice of appeal from order dismissing action for failure to prosecute was filed until filing of remittitur, as it would obviously be impossible to bring case to trial during that period. Wilshire Bundy Corp. v. Auerbach (1991) 228 Cal. App. 3d 1280, 1286 n.10, 279 Cal. Rptr. 488

Code Civ. Proc. § 583.340 as impelling view that there must be a causal connection between circumstance on which plaintiff relies and failure to satisfy five-year requirement, that bringing action to trial must be impossible, impracticable, or futile for reason proffered, and that this is consistent with earlier case law requirement that party is unable, from causes beyond his or her control, to bring case to trial. Wilshire Bundy Corp. v. Auerbach (1991) 228 Cal. App. 3d 1280, 1289, 279 Cal. Rptr. 488

Appellate court as deferring to trial court's finding of excuse of impossibility or impracticability absent abuse of discretion; trial court as determining whether it is impossible, impracticable, or futile to bring case to trial in light of all circumstances in individual case, including acts and conduct of parties and nature of proceedings themselves; critical factor in applying exceptions to given factual situation as being whether plaintiff exercised reasonable diligence in prosecuting case; Law Revision Commission as having instructed that in construing Code Civ. Proc. § 583.340, excuse must be liberally construed as applied to bringing to trial requirement in recognition of fact that bringing case to trial frequently may be hindered by causes beyond plaintiff's control. Pat Rose Associates v. Coombe (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 9, 16-17, 275 Cal. Rptr. 1 (disapproved on other grounds in Adams v. Murakami (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 105, 116, 284 Cal. Rptr. 318, 813 P.2d 1348)

What is impossible, impractical, or futile within meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 583.340(c) as required (1) to be interpreted liberally, consistent with policy favoring trial on merits; and (2) to be determined in light of all circumstances in individual case, including acts and conduct of parties and nature of proceedings themselves; critical factor in applying these exceptions to given factual situation as being whether plaintiff exercised reasonable diligence in prosecuting his or her case; thus, whether exception is applicable as generally a question of fact to be determined by trial court under totality-of-circumstances test. Monzon v. Schaefer Ambulance Service, Inc. (1990) 224 Cal. App. 3d 16, 26, 28, 273 Cal. Rptr. 615

Denial of motion to dismiss for failure to bring action to trial within statutory period as proper when trial court properly concluded it was impracticable for trial to proceed during pendency of defendant's writ petition seeking to overturn denial of its summary judgment motion, although appellate court had denied motion to stay trial court proceedings and even though four months remained in which to bring action to trial after writ was denied. New West Fed. Savings & Loan Assn. v. Superior Court (Weber) (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 1145, 1151-1156, 273 Cal. Rptr. 37

What is impossible as required to be determined in light of all circumstances in individual case, including acts and conduct of parties and nature of proceedings themselves; critical factor in applying this exception to given fact situation is whether plaintiff exercised reasonable diligence in prosecuting case; to establish reasonable diligence, plaintiff as required to be able to demonstrate diligence in pursuit of duty to expedite resolution of case at all stages of proceedings, including specific duty to use every reasonable effort to bring matter to trial within five-year period; burden of proving that it was impossible to bring action to trial within five years as on plaintiff. Lauriton v. Carnation Co. (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 161, 164-165, 263 Cal. Rptr. 476

What is impossible, impracticable, or futile as determined in light of all circumstances of individual case, including acts and conduct of parties and nature of proceedings themselves; critical factor as being whether plaintiff exercised reasonable diligence, although reasonable diligence alone as not sufficient to protect plaintiff from involuntary dismissal but as constituting guideline by which to assess existing exceptions of impossibility, impracticability, or futility. Baccus v. Superior Court (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 1526, 1532-1533, 255 Cal. Rptr. 781

When plaintiff could have brought matter to trial before expiration of statutory period by moving to set matter specially for trial, but did not do so, he or she as precluded from making later claim of impossibility or impracticability based on defendant's dilatory conduct. Tejada v. Blas (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 1335, 1340, 242 Cal. Rptr. 538

Impracticability and impossibility as operating to toll statutory period in action that was stayed by bankruptcy proceedings as to some, but not all, defendants, when court denied motion to sever action and proceed only against nonbankruptcy defendants, and when bankruptcy defendants were indispensible parties. Rim Forest Lumber Co. v. Woodside Construction Co. (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 454, 467-470, 235 Cal. Rptr. 443

Impossibility as not applicable to toll statutory period while plaintiff obtains certificate of merit required by former Code Civ. Proc. § 411.30 in medical malpractice actions. Adams v. Roses (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 498, 504, 228 Cal. Rptr. 339 (discretionary dismissal under prior law)

Burden as on plaintiffs to establish in trial court, by clear and convincing proof, existence of either impossibility, impracticability or futility of bringing matter to trial within five years. Lane v. Newport Bldg. Corp. (1986) 176 Cal. App. 3d 870, 874, 222 Cal. Rptr. 443 (prior law)

What is impossible, impracticable, or futile as required to be determined in light of all circumstances in individual case, and critical factor as being whether plaintiff exercised reasonable diligence in prosecuting his or her case. Alvarado Community Hospital v. Superior Court (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 476, 484, 219 Cal. Rptr. 52 (prior law)

Trial court as having discretion to determine applicability of exception for impossibility, impracticability, or futility, and its decision as disturbed only in cases of manifest abuse. Alvarado Community Hospital v. Superior Court (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 476, 484-485, 219 Cal. Rptr. 52 (prior law)

Prosecution of action by plaintiff as clearly impossible, impracticable, or futile between date that plaintiff's attorney fraudulently dismissed action and date that plaintiff learned of dismissal. Alvarado Community Hospital v. Superior Court (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 476, 485, 219 Cal. Rptr. 52 (prior law)

Plaintiffs' inadvertence in selecting trial date beyond mandatory period as not constituting impossibility or impracticability because plaintiffs had duty to keep track of such crucial dates. Cannon v. City of Novato (1985) 167 Cal. App. 3d 216, 222, 213 Cal. Rptr. 132 (prior law)

[B] Court Congestion

Trial court did not abuse its discretion in dismissing plaintiffs' action based on finding that plaintiffs failed to establish that bringing action to trial was impossible, impracticable, or futile, where, while two court-declared moratoria on civil trials prevented civil cases from being tried, moratoria did not prevent or interfere with plaintiffs prosecuting their case, because plaintiffs were not ready for trial at time of moratoria; with regard to alleged de facto moratorium during final year within which plaintiffs were required to bring their case to trial, while few civil cases were being tried due to backlog in cases, cases approaching five-year cutoff were being tried, and three additional courtrooms were added for trying civil cases. Furthermore, record showed that plaintiffs were not reasonably diligent in bringing case to trial within five years, where plaintiffs took no steps to set case for trial before expiration of five-year period. Jordan v. Superstar Sandcars (2010) 182 Cal. App. 4th 1416, 1420-1422

Period that action was trailed by court until courtroom became available as excluded on ground that it was impossible, impracticable, or futile to bring action to trial during that time. Ward v. Levin (1984) 161 Cal. App. 3d 1026, 1034-1035, 208 Cal. Rptr. 312 (prior law)

Delay caused by unusual court congestion, during which time no judge or court was available although trial date set, as excluded from calculation of time within which action must be brought to trial. Breacher v. Breacher (1983) 141 Cal. App. 3d 89, 91, 190 Cal. Rptr. 112 (prior law); Goers v. Superior Court (1976) 57 Cal. App. 3d 72, 74-75, 129 Cal. Rptr. 29 (prior law)

Unexpectedly slow-moving judicial arbitration outside plaintiff's control as cause of impossibility. Brown v. Engstrom (1979) 89 Cal. App. 3d 513, 523-524, 152 Cal. Rptr. 628 (prior law)

[C] Court's Failure to Perform Duty

Period that trial is held in abeyance pending assignment of another judge under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6 (peremptory challenge of judge) excluded from calculation of time within which action must be brought to trial. Hartman v. Santamarina (1982) 30 Cal. 3d 762, 768, 180 Cal. Rptr. 337, 639 P.2d 979 (prior law); Breacher v. Breacher (1983) 141 Cal. App. 3d 89, 91, 190 Cal. Rptr. 112 (prior law)

[D] Death of Party

Period after plaintiff died and before estate was opened or personal representative was appointed to prosecute decedent's claims excluded from calculation of time within which action must be brought to trial. Pham v. Wagner Litho Machinery Co. (1985) 172 Cal. App. 3d 966, 973, 218 Cal. Rptr. 476 (prior law)

[E] Default Entered

Period that erroneous default judgment was in effect excluded from statutory periods for bringing action to trial.

Maguire v. Collier (1975) 49 Cal. App. 3d 309, 312-313, 122 Cal. Rptr. 510 (prior law); Ford v. Superior Court (1973) 34 Cal. App. 3d 338, 343, 109 Cal. Rptr. 844 (prior law)

[F] Multiple Defendants

Assumption by plaintiffs' counsel in state action that bankruptcy of one of several defendants stayed entire state action did not support plaintiffs' assertion that they were reasonably diligent in prosecuting action, particularly when plaintiffs did not cite any relevant authority supporting reasonableness of their counsel's assumption, or any steps taken by their counsel to preserve plaintiffs' right to trial and avoid dismissal. Lane v. Newport Bldg. Corp. (1986) 176 Cal. App. 3d 870, 874, 222 Cal. Rptr. 443 (prior law)

Plaintiff's duty to join necessary party, described in Code Civ. Proc. § 389, or to show the impossibility or impracticality of joinder to trial court and bring action to trial without necessary party is part of diligence that, if absent, supports dismissal for failure to bring action to trial. Sanders v. Fuller (1975) 45 Cal. App. 3d 994, 1002, 119 Cal. Rptr. 902 (prior law)

[G] When Exclusion Based on Impossibility, Impracticability, or Futility Not Available

False statement by plaintiff's attorney to plaintiff that defendant, a citizen and resident of a foreign country, had been properly served, when in fact no service had been made, did not make proper service within the statutory period impossible or impracticable under Code Civ. Proc. § 583.240(d); plaintiff not entitled to relief from mandatory dismissal requirement of Code Civ. Proc. § 583.210 due to attorney misconduct; Legislature intended that attorney misconduct could not excuse failure to complete service within mandatory statutory period; on other hand, when dismissal is discretionary, misconduct of plaintiff's attorney must be considered by the court. Shipley v. Sugita (1996) 50 Cal. App. 4th 320, 324-327, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 750

Prosecution of action within five-year limitation period did not render impossible, impracticable, or futile by appeal from trial court's orders allowing plaintiff's attorney to withdraw as counsel, since orders were nonappealable and appeal from nonappealable orders does not toll limitations statute; even if they were appealable, trial court retained general jurisdiction over action under Code Civ. Proc. § 916, and prosecution was not impossible, impracticable, or futile; prosecution was not stayed by denial of discovery motions or by plaintiff's appeal from order compelling him to attend deposition, continuing arbitration date until after that deposition, and granting defendants fees and costs; except for narrow subject matter of orders appealed from, trial court retained full jurisdiction to proceed with action; limitation period was not tolled by one peremptory challenge and one challenge for actual bias to trial judge when each was without merit, filed after five-year period had expired, and denied as untimely same day they were filed. Messih v. Levine (1991) 228 Cal. App. 3d 454, 459-460, 278 Cal. Rptr. 825 , cert. denied, 112 S. Ct. 387, 116 L. Ed. 2d 337

Court clerk's failure to perform duty to notify counsel of eligibility to file certificate of readiness did not excuse failure to bring action to trial resulting from failure to file certificate when counsel could easily have discovered clerk's failure and filed certificate in time to set trial within statutory period. Karubian v. Security Pacific Nat. Bank (1984) 152 Cal. App. 3d 134, 140, 199 Cal. Rptr. 295 (prior law)

Impossibility, impracticability, or futility in bringing action to trial within time required not shown by fact that court clerk set date for trial beyond required time, since plaintiff failed to exercise reasonable diligence in requesting advancement of trial date. Central Mutual Ins. Co. v. Executive Motor Home Sales, Inc. (1983) 143 Cal. App. 3d 791, 795, 192 Cal. Rptr. 169 (prior law)

Time spent complying with administrative claims procedure or relief from those proceedings does not affect time period for bringing action to trial. Davalos v. County of Los Angeles (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 57, 62-63, 190 Cal.

Rptr. 711 (prior law)

Delay caused by numerous failures of defendant to appear for scheduled depositions was not excludable when facts did not show that that delayaffected bringing case to trial. Gentry v. Nielsen (1981) 123 Cal. App. 3d 27, 35, 176 Cal. Rptr. 385 (prior law)

Ordinary incidents of class action proceedings, including certification and notice to class, were not basis for exclusion under prior law. Standard Oil Co. v. Superior Court (1976) 61 Cal. App. 3d 852, 857, 132 Cal. Rptr. 761 ; Massey v. Bank of America (1976) 56 Cal. App. 3d 29, 32-33, 128 Cal. Rptr. 144

Time consumed by plaintiff in attempting to serve foreign corporation not excluded from computation of statutory period for bringing action to trial when alternative means of service was available. Hughes & Ladd, Inc. v. Rogue River Paving Co. (1975) 46 Cal. App. 3d 311, 313, 119 Cal. Rptr. 925 (prior law)

[iv] When Plaintiff Makes Motion to Avoid Mandatory Dismissal

When plaintiff makes motion to set case specially for trial to avoid mandatory dismissal, court has discretion to deny motion after considering factors including plaintiff's dilatory conduct, prejudice to defendant of accelerated trial date, and likelihood of eventual mandatory dismissal if early trial date is denied. Salas v. Sears, Roebuck & Co. (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 342, 349, 228 Cal. Rptr. 504, 721 P.2d 590 ; Parlen v. Golden State Sanwa Bank (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 906, 912, 240 Cal. Rptr. 73

Motion to specially set case for trial to avoid mandatory dismissal for delay in prosecution requires showing of good cause under former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 375(b) [now see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1335]; mere showing that statutory period would run unless case were specially set not enough to compel trial court to grant motion; absence of prejudice by delay to adverse party neither compels trial court to grant motion to specially set nor prevents it from granting motion to dismiss. Nye v. 20th Century Ins. Co. (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 1041, 1045-1046, 275 Cal. Rptr. 319

When plaintiff makes any motion to avoid five-year statute, trial court required to consider factors relevant to motion to dismiss under discretionary dismissal provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 583.420 prior to entry of any order on merits of motion; motion to refer case to judicial arbitration brought close to expiration of five-year statute required to be determined after consideration of factors relevant to court's discretionary power to dismiss for failure to prosecute action diligently. Sisler v. Superior Court (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 864, 868-869, 252 Cal. Rptr. 665

[8] Mandatory Dismissal for Delay in Service

[a] Generally

Service by mail on person outside state under Code Civ. Proc. § 415.40 complete on date mailed, for purpose of mandatory dismissal for delay in service. Johnson & Johnson v. Superior Court (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 243, 252, 211 Cal. Rptr. 517, 695 P.2d 1058 (prior law)

Return need not include every item necessary for proof of service, at least for purpose of dismissal for delay in service; return of service under Code Civ. Proc. § 415.40 effective when it provides court with notice that plaintiff hascompleted all acts necessary to effect service, i.e., when it includes original summons and affidavit of service by mail, but does not include return receipt. Johnson & Johnson v. Superior Court (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 243, 252-256, 211 Cal. Rptr. 517, 695 P.2d 1058 (prior law)

Gov. Code § 945.3 (tolling of period for criminal defendant to file civil action against peace officer) not applicable to toll period of time for service of summons, and as not applicable to causes of action against civilian defendants or by plaintiffs other than criminal defendant. Damjanovic v. Ambrose (1992) 3 Cal. App. 4th 503, 510, 4 Cal. Rptr. 2d 560

In action for flood losses against insurers by property owners, one of whom alleged that his residence was insured by named insurer, trial court erred in quashing service of summons on named insurer because of plaintiff's failure to serve summons and complaint on it within three years as required by Code Civ. Proc. § 583.210 and dismissing plaintiff's complaint when plaintiff inadvertently served superseded second amended complaint within three-year period but served third amended operative complaint after limitation period had expired, inasmuch as service that was made constituted substantial compliance with Code Civ. Proc. § 583.210; when reasonable attempt was made to comply with statute in good faith, and there was no attempt to mislead or conceal, doctrine of substantial compliance holds that statute may be deemed satisfied. Davis v. Allstate Ins. Co. (1989) 217 Cal. App. 3d 1229, 1231-1232, 266 Cal. Rptr. 668

Motion to dismiss action for failure to serve summons within two years addressed to trial court's discretion, and its decision not disturbed on appeal absent clear showing of manifest abuse of that discretion. Hilliard v. Lobley (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 638, 640-641, 265 Cal. Rptr. 5

In action for personal injuries timely filed by plaintiff's guardian ad litem, plaintiff's incompetency, which would have tolled running of statute of limitations under Code Civ. Proc. § 352, did not toll three-year period within which summons must be served to avoid mandatory dismissal. Tzolov v. International Jet Leasing, Inc. (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 325, 327-328, 262 Cal. Rptr. 606

Trial court erred in denying defendant's motion to dismiss action for failure to serve summons and complaint within three years on ground that defendant had filed answer to complaint in intervention by employer to recover workers' compensation benefits paid to plaintiffs; filing of answer to complaint in intervention that had been later dismissed with prejudice at intervenor's request did not constitute general appearance in main action so as to relieve plaintiffs of duty to serve summons and complaint. Duckett v. Superior Court (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 1419, 1422-1425, 255 Cal. Rptr. 733

Workers' compensation insurer's complaint in intervention properly dismissed on ground that plaintiffs in underlying third-party tort action had failed to serve and return summons within statutory three-year period under former Code Civ. Proc. § 581. Chambers v. Santa Cruz City School Dist. (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 518, 522-524, 238 Cal. Rptr. 356

Desire to await outcome of underlying case no excuse for long and otherwise unexplained period of neglect in serving summons in legal malpracticeaction. Paul v. Drost (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 1407, 1411-1412, 231 Cal. Rptr. 361 (prior law)

Stipulation between parties extending time to answer complaint does not constitute general appearance precluding dismissal if it occurs after expiration of three-year period for service and return of summons. Tires Unlimited v. Superior Court (1986) 180 Cal. App. 3d 974, 982, 226 Cal. Rptr. 25 (prior law)

Notwithstanding mandatory language of former Code Civ. Proc. § 581, trial court vested with discretion to apply exceptions in accordance with spirit of law and with view toward serving ends of justice. Serrano v. Safeway Stores, Inc. (1986) 179 Cal. App. 3d 131, 135, 224 Cal. Rptr. 420 (prior law)

Code Civ. Proc. § 417.30, requiring return of summons together with proof of service, and former Code Civ. Proc. § 581a do not require return of original summons to establish proof of service; if service on defendant is properly made, any defect in return is immaterial as it is fact of service that gives court jurisdiction. Courtney v. Abex Corp. (1986) 176 Cal. App. 3d 343, 346-347, 221 Cal. Rptr. 770

Defendant in complaint in intervention not entitled to dismissal for failure to serve summons when defendant has made general appearance in main action in which intervention is sought. Rhode v. National Medical Hosp. (1979) 93 Cal. App. 3d 528, 537-538, 155 Cal. Rptr. 797 (prior law)

Three-year period for completing service not tolled by continuous cause of action. Los Angeles County v. Security Ins. Co. (1975) 52 Cal. App. 3d 808, 816, 125 Cal. Rptr. 701 (prior law)

Relief from judgment under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 for mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect not available to relieve plaintiff of dismissal for failure to complete service on ground of counsel's ignorance of law as to correct means of making return of summons. Kaiser Foundation Hospitals v. Superior Court (1975) 49 Cal. App. 3d 523, 527, 122 Cal. Rptr. 432 (prior law) (overruled on other grounds in Johnson & Johnson v. Superior Court (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 243, 254, 211 Cal. Rptr. 517, 695 P.2d 1058)

[b] Acts Constituting General Appearance

Defendant who was served in only one of two separate actions, brought against him by different plaintiffs concerning same incident and later consolidated but not merged, did not make general appearance in unserved action by appearing and otherwise defending interests at deposition noticed by plaintiff in served action. Sanchez v. Superior Court (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 1391, 1396, 1399, 250 Cal. Rptr. 787

[c] Computation of Statutory Period

Three-year period for completing service starts to run from filing of amended complaint substituting defendant's true name for fictitious name when cause of action in amended complaint is based on different operational facts. Barrington v. A.H. Robins Co. (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 146, 151-154, 216 Cal. Rptr. 405, 702 P.2d 563 (prior law)

Three-year period for completing service started from time of filing original complaint and not from time of filing amended complaint substitutingdefendant's true name for fictitious name. Nelson v. State of California (1982) 139 Cal. App. 3d 72, 76, 188 Cal. Rptr. 479 (prior law)

[d] Estoppel or Waiver as Defense

Doctrine of equitable estoppel applicable to motions to dismiss for failure to effectuate service within three years as required by Code Civ. Proc. § 583.210; if trial court finds statements or conduct by a defendant which lulls plaintiff into false sense of security resulting in inaction, and there is reasonable reliance, estoppel must be available to prevent defendant from profiting from his or her deception; estoppel and waiver distinguished. Brookview Condominium Owners' Assn. v. Heltzer Enterprises-Brookview (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 502, 510, 512-513, 267 Cal. Rptr. 76

Defendant under no duty to inform plaintiff of intent not to waive right to dismissal under three-year statute; thus defendant's silence at deposition about not yet being served in one of two consolidated actions for which deposition was being taken did not create estoppel to dismissal. Sanchez v. Superior Court (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 1391, 1400, 250 Cal. Rptr. 787

Participation in settlement negotiations does not estop defendant from seeking mandatory dismissal for delay in service. Lesko v. Superior Court (1982) 127 Cal. App. 3d 476, 485-487, 179 Cal. Rptr. 595 (prior law)

[e] Periods Excluded from Statutory Period

[i] Defendant Not Amenable to Process

Order for service by publication was not binding adjudication that defendant was not amenable to process, and constituted no impediment to defendant's motion to dismiss for untimely service. Watts v. Crawford (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 743, 761, 42 Cal. Rptr. 2d 81, 896 P.2d 807 ; Perez v. Smith (1993) 19 Cal. App. 4th 1595, 1600, 24 Cal. Rptr. 2d 186

Marriage and subsequent change of name and address do not make defendant not amenable to service so as to toll statutory time for completing service. Adelson v. Hertz Rent-A-Car (1982) 133 Cal. App. 3d 221, 226, 183 Cal. Rptr. 779 (prior law)

Defendant's absence from state does not make him or her not amenable to process so as to toll statutory time for completing service. Buchanan v. Buchanan (1979) 99 Cal. App. 3d 587, 592-593, 160 Cal. Rptr. 577 (prior law)

[ii] Service Affected by Stay

Time prosecution of action or proceedings in action was stayed, when stay precluded service on additional defendants in complex litigation case, properly excluded under Code Civ. Proc. § 583.240(b) in computing time within which service must be made to avoid dismissal. Highland Stucco & Lime, Inc. v. Superior Court (Los Angeles Unified School District) (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 637, 643-644, 272 Cal. Rptr. 60

[iii] Service Impossible, Impracticable, or Futile

False statement by plaintiff's attorney to plaintiff that defendant, a citizen and resident of a foreign country, had been properly served, when in fact no service had been made, did not make proper service within the statutory period impossible or impracticable under Code Civ. Proc. 583.240(d); Legislature intended that attorney misconduct could not excuse failure to complete service within mandatory statutory period; on other hand, when dismissal is discretionary, misconduct of plaintiff's attorney must be considered by the court. Shipley v. Sugita (1996) 50 Cal. App. 4th 320, 324-327, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 750

Even if invalid, legal effect of court order staying all proceedings in complex litigation case except for abatement and statute of limitations, thereby staying further service of summonses until after mandatory three-year period for service had passed, renders service during stay impossible, impracticable, or futile within meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 583.240(d), as compliance with facially valid court order is mandatory and thus a cause beyond plaintiff's control. Highland Stucco & Lime, Inc. v. Superior Court (Los Angeles Unified School District) (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 637, 644, 272 Cal. Rptr. 60

Failure to discover facts or evidence do not excuse plaintiff from duty to serve and return summons within three years. Dillashaw v. Ayerst Laboratories, Inc. (1983) 141 Cal. App. 3d 35, 40, 190 Cal. Rptr. 68 (prior law)

[9] Prejudice to Defendant

Actual prejudice to defendant not required to be established before court may dismiss action; legislative policy underlying dismissal statutes not solely to avoid prejudice to defendant but rather also to expedite administration of justice by requiring every person to prosecute action promptly and diligently; moreover, prejudice presumed from protracted and unexplained delay, particularly when delay has been in serving complaint; when faced with motion to dismiss it is incumbent on plaintiff to establish reasonable or excusable delay in service; if such showing is not made, court permitted to dismiss action in its discretion even if defendant fails to establish actual prejudice. Hilliard v. Lobley (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 638, 641-642, 265 Cal. Rptr. 5

[10] Public Policies

Public policy favoring disposition of cases on their merits coexists with policy that plaintiff must proceed with reasonable diligence in prosecution of action. Nye v. 20th Century Ins. Co. (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 1041, 1045, 275 Cal. Rptr. 319

[11] Purpose of Involuntary Dismissal Statutes

Purpose of Code Civ. Proc. § 583.310 et seq. is to implement the Legislature's policy to discourage stale claims. Santangelo v. Allstate Ins. Co. (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 804, 814, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 735

Purpose of involuntary dismissal statute for failure to bring action to trial within two years is to compel reasonable diligence in prosecution of lawsuits, and is designed to promote trial of cases before evidence is lost or destroyed, or memory of witnesses become dimmed. Maggio, Inc. v. United Farm Workers (1991) 227 Cal. App. 3d 847, 883, 278 Cal. Rptr. 250

One purpose of statutes relating to involuntary dismissal for delay in prosecution is to expedite administration of justice to benefit litigant as well as general public, specifically protecting from annoyance of unmeritorious action remaining undecided for indefinite period of time; purposes served by statutes is somewhat analogous to those underlying statutes of limitation, that is, both types of statutes as promoting trial of cases before evidence is lost, destroyed, or memory of witnesses become dimmed. State Compensation Ins. Fund v. Selma Trailer & Manufacturing Co. (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 740, 754, 258 Cal. Rptr 545

[12] Relationship to Arbitration

Court retains jurisdiction to dismiss for lack of diligent prosecution while case ordered to judicial arbitration. Nanfito v. Superior Court (1991) 2 Cal. App. 4th 315, 319-320, 2 Cal. Rptr. 2d 876

[13] Review by Mandate of Order Denying Motion to Dismiss

In mandate proceeding to review trial court's ruling denying motion to dismiss complaint for failure to serve process within time prescribed by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 583.410, 583.420(a)(1), reviewing court generally will not substitute its judgment for that of trial court absent clear abuse of discretion; burden is on defendant to establish abuse. Trailmobile, Inc. v. Superior Court (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 1451, 1455, 259 Cal. Rptr. 100

Mandate is appropriate remedy to obtain review of order denying motion to dismiss for delay in prosecution. Big Bear Mun. Water Dist. v. Superior Court (1969) 269 Cal. App. 2d 919, 922, 75 Cal. Rptr. 580

Vacation of dismissal order by trial court was possible at any time when court lacked jurisdiction to make order. Harris v. Board of Education (1957) 152 Cal. App. 2d 677, 680, 313 P.2d 212

§ 212.210 Trial Not Commenced

☐ Determine if there is a clerk with whom the request must be filed. If no clerk, the request may be made to the judge orally, or in writing as outlined below [Code Civ. Proc. § 581(b)(1)].

☐ Fill out mandatory Judicial Council Form CIV-110 "Request for Dismissal" [for form, see § 212.270] in the following numbers of copies:

- ☐ Original for filing.
- ☐ Office copy.
- ☐ Copy for opposing counsel.
- ☐ Any additional copies as may be desired.

☐ Sign form:

☐ If dismissing party's attorney of record will not give written consent to dismissal, dismissal will require court order after notice to attorney [Code Civ. Proc. § 581(j)].

☐ File form with court clerk or if no clerk, with judge.

☐ Submit, at same time, costs of clerk or judge [Code Civ. Proc. § 581(b)(1)].

☐ Costs involved are nominal costs for entering the order, but do not include defendant's costs in the action, which are recoverable in the usual manner by a cost bill [Hopkins v. Superior Court (1902) 136 Cal. 552, 553-554, 69 P. 299] .

☐ Prepare, serve on all parties, and file notice of entry of dismissal on mandatory Judicial Council Form CIV-120 "Notice of Entry of Dismissal and Proof of Service" [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1390; for form, see § 212.271].

§ 212.230 Preliminary Determinations

☐ Review basic timeframes for dismissal based on delay in service:

☐ Mandatory three years after commencement of action against that person, and/or return not made within 60 days thereafter [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 583.210, 583.250(a)(2)].

☐ Discretionary two years after commencement of action against that defendant, including return of summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 583.410(a), 583.420(a)(1); see Code Civ. Proc. § 583.110(f)].

☐ Determine whether dismissal is available:

☐ Ascertain date time period commenced.

☐ Determine date, if any, service and return made:

☐ Date summons or complaint or cross complaint served.

☐ Date summons or other proof of service returned to court.

☐ Determine time, if any, excluded from computation of applicable time period [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 583.240, 583.420(b)]:

☐ Time while defendant was not amenable to process.

☐ Time while action was stayed and stay affects service.

☐ Time while validity of service was subject of litigation by parties.

☐ Time while service was otherwise impossible, impracticable, or futile, for reasons beyond plaintiff's control.

☐ Determine whether applicable time period has been extended by written stipulation or by recorded oral agreement in open court [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 583.230(b), 583.420(b)].

☐ Determine if moving party may seek dismissal:

☐ Person interested in the action (or court itself) may move for mandatory dismissal under Code Civ. Proc. § 583.250.

☐ Defendant or cross defendant (or court itself) may move for discretionary dismissal [Code Civ. Proc. § 583.410(a)].

☐ Person may not move for dismissal if he or she has waived that right by stipulation or has made a general appearance in the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 583.220].

☐ Person otherwise entitled to move for dismissal may be estopped by his or her conduct from making motion [Code Civ. Proc. § 583.140].

☐ Consider combining motions for mandatory and discretionary dismissal.

PRACTICE TIP:

Provide Court With Alternative Basis to Grant Relief. Motion for mandatory dismissal should be combined with motion for discretionary dismissal under Code Civ. Proc. § 583.410(a) if grounds for exercise of trial court's discretion exist, because if motion for mandatory dismissal is denied because of exclusion of period of time or some other reason, motion for discretionary dismissal may nonetheless be granted if minimum period of delay has elapsed and it appears to be otherwise proper under circumstances.

☐ Determine whether motion for dismissal may be made as a response to the complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(a)(3)].

☐ Determine last day of defendant's time to respond to complaint.

☐ Consider combining motion with other motions that may be made in response to complaint without making a general appearance [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(a)(1), (2), (d)]:

☐ Motion to quash service of summons for lack of jurisdiction over defendant

☐ Motion to stay or dismiss the action for inconvenient forum.

☐ Code Civ. Proc. § 473 or 473.5 motion.

☐ Consider filing an answer, demurrer, or motion to strike, since to do so will not compromise a special appearance until the motions under Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10 are denied [see Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(e)].

☐ Move for dismissal [see (B), below].

§ 212.231 Procedure for Bringing the Motion

☐ Papers to be prepared:

☐ Mandatory dismissal [see §§ 212.290, 212.293].

☐ Discretionary dismissal [see §§ 212.290, 212.296].

☐ Supporting affidavits or declarations [see §§ 212.293, 212.296].

☐ Request for judicial notice [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(l); for form, see Ch. 321, Judicial Notice].

☐ If requesting judicial notice under Evid. Code § 452 or 453, include a copy of that matter to be noticed; if it is part of the court's file, include a statement specifying the part of the file to be judicially noticed, and arrange with the clerk to have the file in the courtroom at the hearing [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1306(c)].

☐ Supporting memorandum of points and authorities.

☐ Proposed order, if required by local rule [for form, see §§ 212.302, 212.303].

☐ Declaration or certificate re proof of service of moving papers [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1013a; for forms, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers].

☐ Copies of papers to be prepared:

☐ Original to be filed with court.

☐ One office copy.

☐ One copy for service on each party who has appeared in case.

☐ Additional copies as required by local court rule.

☐ Service:

☐ Select hearing date for motion, allowing sufficient time for service. Clear hearing date with clerk, if required by local practice.

☐ Attach declaration or certificate re proof of service to each copy of papers served.

☐ Time for serving notice:

☐ Serve copy of notice of motion for mandatory dismissal and supporting papers at least 16 court days before hearing, plus any extensions based on manner of service, unless otherwise ordered [Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b); see § Code Civ. Proc. § 1010.6(a)(6) (two court day extension in case of electronic service; although Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b) expressly excludes extensions under Code Civ. Proc. § 1013, it is silent as to Section 1010.6)].

☐ Serve copy of notice of motion for discretionary dismissal and supporting papers at least 45 calendar days before hearing, plus any extensions based on manner of service, unless otherwise ordered [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1342(a); Code Civ. Proc. § 1010.6(a)(6), 1013].

☐ If necessary, seek an order shortening the time requirements for service and filing [see Code Civ.

Proc. § 1005(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1300(b)].

☐ Filing:

☐ Submit original of notice of motion and supporting papers to court clerk for filing within the same time period as that applicable to service (discussed above).

☐ Submit office copy to clerk to be stamped together with the original.

PRACTICE TIP:
Avoid Later Disputes. The stamped office copy may then serve as a check on the contents of the papers, if any filed originals are lost; it may also provide ready resolution of any dispute over the file date.

☐ File proof of service of moving papers no later than five calendar days before the hearing date [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1300(c)].

§ 212.232 Procedure for Opposing Motion

☐ Determine whether it is desirable to submit opposing papers, e.g., opposing declarations or memoranda:

☐ Determine whether one or more exceptions to time requirement can be established.

☐ If opposition is not desirable, consider serving and filing a Notice of Nonopposition. This may be required in some courts.

☐ Prepare any opposing papers in as many copies as original papers.

☐ File original papers directly with clerk of appropriate department:

☐ At least 9 court days before hearing date on motion for mandatory dismissal [Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1300(a); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1010.6(a)(6) (two court day extension in case of electronic service; although Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b) expressly excludes extensions under Code Civ. Proc. § 1013, it is silent as to section 1010.6)].

☐ Within 15 days of service of notice of motion for discretionary dismissal [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1342(a); see also Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1010.6(a)(6), 1013 (extensions of time)].

☐ Have office copy stamped together with original to serve as check of contents and file date.

☐ Serve copies:

☐ At least 9 court days before hearing date on motion for mandatory dismissal [Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1300(a); Code Civ. Proc. § 1010.6(a)(6) (noted above)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Avoid Continuance. Some local rules require service to ensure that other parties receive papers in time to submit a reply or prepare for the hearing. Consider sending papers by messenger service (or sendingcourtesy copy by Fax transmission) to avoid continuance on the ground that opposing papers were not received before hearing [see, e.g., Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rules 7.12(b) (policy against using timing and manner of service to disadvantage opposing party; if it is likely service by mail, even if allowed will prejudice opposing party, service should be by personal delivery)].

NOTE:

Five Year Period May Govern Bringing to New Trial. If the mandatory three-year period for bringing to new trial would expire earlier than five years after the action was commenced against the defendant, the five-year period governs [Code Civ. Proc. § 583.320(b)].

§ 212.250 Preliminary Determinations

☐ Review basic timeframes for dismissal based on delay in bringing action to trial or new trial:

☐ Mandatory to trial within five years after action was commenced against defendant [Code Civ. Proc. § 583.310].

☐ Discretionary to trial or conditionally settled within two years after action was commenced against defendant [Code Civ. Proc. § 583.420(a)(2)(B); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1340(a)].

☐ Mandatory to new trial within three years or discretionary to new trial within two years after one of the following [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 583.320, 583.420(a)(3)]:

☐ Entry of order declaring mistrial or disagreement of jury, if no appeal.

- ☐ Entry of order granting new trial, if appeal.
- ☐ Filing of the remittitur by clerk of trial court following appeal.

☐ Determine date action was commenced against defendant or cross defendant, that is, when complaint or cross complaint was filed [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 411.10, 583.110(b), 583.310].

☐ In case of new trial, determine date relevant order was entered or remittitur filed [Code Civ. Proc. § 583.320(a)].

☐ Determine date, if any, that action is set for trial or new trial.

☐ Determine whether trial has commenced, i.e., whether any of the following have occurred:

- ☐ Jury is impanelled.
- ☐ Witness is called and testifies.
- ☐ Issue of law or fact is determined, bringing action to stage of final disposition.

☐ Determine time, if any, excluded from computation of time period [Code Civ. Proc. § 583.340]:

- ☐ Time while court's jurisdiction is stayed or enjoined.
- ☐ Time while prosecution of action is stayed or enjoined.
- ☐ Time while bringing action to trial is impossible, impracticable, or futile.
- ☐ Time party is on active military service [50 U.S.C. App. § 526].
- ☐ If action is in judicial arbitration in last six months of Code Civ. Proc. § 583.310 five-year period, time from four years and six months after plaintiff filed action until request for trial de novo is filed [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.17(b)].

☐ Determine whether time period has been extended by written stipulation or by recorded oral agreement in open court [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 583.330, 583.420(b)].

☐ Determine whether actual time remaining after any statutory tolling or exclusionary period is less than six months, in which case time period is extended so that six months will remain after end of excluded period [Code Civ. Proc. § 583.350].

☐ Determine if moving party may seek dismissal:

☐ Defendant or cross defendant (or court itself) may move for dismissal under Code Civ. Proc. § 583.360(a).

☐ Person may not move for dismissal if he or she has waived that right or is estopped by his or her conduct [Code Civ. Proc. § 583.140].

☐ Consider combining motion for mandatory dismissal with motion for discretionary dismissal [for checklist, see § 212.230].

☐ Move for dismissal [for checklist, see § 212.251].

§ 212.270 Request for Voluntary Dismissal of Action [Code Civ. Proc. § 581]--Judicial Council Form CIV-110

[1] FORM Request for Voluntary Dismissal of Action [Code Civ. Proc. § 581]--Judicial Council Form CIV-110

[2] Use of Form

This form is a filled-in illustrative reproduction of Judicial Council Form CIV-110, adopted by the Judicial Council for use to request voluntary dismissal in any of the following situations:

- Before commencement of trial purusant to Code Civ. Proc. § 581(b)(1).
- With the consent of all parties purusant to Code Civ. Proc. § 581(b)(2).
- After commencement of trial purusant to Code Civ. Proc. § 581(e).

Use of the form is mandatory [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1.31; see Gov. Code § 68511].

This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

[3] Filling Out Form

Fill in, in the spaces provided, the requested information concerning the requesting party's attorney, the court in which the action is filed, and the parties, title, and number of the action. Then check the appropriate boxes to describe the type of action, whether dismissal is with or without predjudice (Paragraph 1), and whether dismissal is of the entire action or only of the complaint, petition, or cross complaint (Paragraph 2). Dismissal under Code Civ. Proc. § 581(b)(1) or (2) may be with or without prejudice, while dismissal under Code Civ. Proc. § 581(e) is generally with prejudice [see General Introduction, under Dismissal With or Without Prejudice, above].

If dismissal relates only to specified parties, causes of action, or cross complaints, check the "Other" box and identify the parties, causes of action, and cross complaints (Paragraph 2).

The form should be signed by the requesting party's attorney of record in the space provided, to indicate consent to the dismissal [Code Civ. Proc. § 581(j); see Procedural Checklist]. If dismissal is based, in addition, on the opposing party's consent [see Code Civ. Proc. § 581(b)(2), (e)], the opposing party's attorney must sign in the space established for that purpose.

The authority for, limitations on, and effect of dismissal under Code Civ. Proc. § 581(b)(1), (2), or (e) are discussed in § 212.36.

[4] Notice of Entry of Dismissal

A party requesting dismissal under Code Civ. Proc. § 581(b)(1), (2), or (e) must serve on all parties and file a notice of entry of the dismissal [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1390]. For a form of notice, see § 212.271.

[2] Use of Form

This form is a reproduction of the form adopted by the Judicial Council for use a party who requested dismissal to serve and file notice of entry of the dismissal [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1390; see also Code Civ. Proc. §§ 581d (order of dismissal constitutes judgment), 664.5 (notice of entry of judgment)]. Rule 3.1390 requires the party who requested dismissal to serve on all parties and file notice of entry of the dismissal. The notice must be given on the mandatory Judicial Council form.

The effect of the notice, like the notice of entry of a judgment, is to commence the time within which a memorandum of costs must be served [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1700(a)(1); for discussion, see Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees, § 174.10 et seq.].

This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES
[Add memorandum of points and authorities here]

CAUTION:
Points And Authorities Required. A memorandum of points and authorities must be filed and a copy served with the notice of motion [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1005(b), 1010]. For discussion and forms, see Ch. 417, Points and Authorites .

[2] Use of Form

This notice of motion is for use by a defendant who has not appeared generally in an action or proceeding to apply for an order dismissing the action for delay in prosecution without making a general appearance [see Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(a)(3), (d); for discussion of what constitutes a general appearance, see Ch. 323, Jurisdiction: Personal]. The form may be modified for use by a cross defendant to move to dismiss an action on a cross complaint.

The example used in the form is failure to serve the summons within three years [see Code Civ. Proc. § 583.210 et seq.]. For discussion of the motion, including other grounds under Code Civ. Proc. § 583.110 et seq., see § 212.80 et seq.

For a form of proposed order granting the motion, see § 212.301. For a form of petition for a writ of mandate to review denial of the motion, see § 212.291.

[3] Related Motions

Other motions that may be brought at the same time without constituting a general appearance are a motion for an order quashing the service of summons for lack of personal jurisdiction and a motion to stay or dismiss the action on the ground that California is an inconvenient forum [see Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(a), (d)]. For discussion of these motions, see Ch. 323, Jurisdiction: Personal .

Any of these motions may also be combined with a Code Civ. Proc. § 473 or 473.5 motion to set aside an order or judgment, which may be necessary if the plaintiff has taken a default judgment before the defendant brings this motions.

For discussion of Section 473 and 473.5 motions, see Ch. 489, Relief From Judgments and Orders .

[4] Supporting Declaration

For forms of declaration supporting this motion, see §§ 212.293, 212.294, and 22.

[5] Service and Filing

[a] Within Time to Plead

A defendant must serve and file the notice of motion no later than the last day of his or her time to plead, unless the court for good cause allows further time [see Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(a)].

[b] Time for Making Motion

The notice of motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(a) must designate, as the time for making the motion, a date not more than 30 days after the filing of the notice [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(b); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1167.4(a) (in proceeding for unlawful or forcible detainer or forcible entry, time for making motion is not less than three or more than seven days after the filing of the notice)].

The notice and supporting papers must be filed and copies served at least 16 court days before the hearing, subject to the following extensions. If the notice is served by mail, the required 16-day period is increased by five calendar days if the place of mailing and of address are in California, by 10 calendar days if either the place of mailing or of address is outside California but in the United States, and by 20 calendar days if either the place of mailing or of address is outside the United States. If service is by fax or by Express Mail or other method of overnight delivery, the 16-day period is increased by two calendar days. The court, or judge of the court, may prescribe a shorter time [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 418.10(b), 1005(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1300(b)]. An extension period of two court days may apply in the case of electronic service [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1010.6(a)(6); for discussion, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers, § 518.41[8]].

[6] California Points and Authorities

For memoranda of points and authorities supporting and opposing a motion to dismiss for delay in prosecution, see California Points and Authorities , Ch. 90, Dismissal

[7] State Statutes

Time for making motion; filing and service requirements. Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(a), (b)
