The deduction permitted for the production of income is personal to the spouse seeking the production of income. Thus, if one spouse incurs attorney's fees to produce income in a dissolution or separation proceeding and the other spouse either agrees to pay the fees or is ordered by the court to do so, the expenses are not deductible [see I.R.C. § 212; Treas. Reg. § 1.212-1].

Payments to a spouse that qualify for alimony tax treatment, however, are deductible by the payor-spouse and includable in the income of the payee-spouse [I.R.C. §§ 71, 215]. If these payments then are used by the payee-spouse to pay deductible legal expenses, the payee-spouse may deduct them, subject to the 2 percent limitation on miscellaneous deductions [see § 227.18[1]].

In addition, payments may qualify for alimony tax treatment if they are made to a third party on behalf of the payee-spouse. Thus, for example, a payor spouse may deduct direct payments made to the payee-spouse's attorney for attorney fees incurred by the payee-spouse. However, to obtain alimony tax treatment for direct payments that are not required by the terms of the divorce or separation agreement, the payee-spouse must give the payor a written request, consent, or ratification stating that the parties intend the payment to be treated as an alimony or separate maintenance payment to the payee-spouse. The payor-spouse must receive the request, consent, or ratification before the date the payor-spouse files his or her first return for the taxable year in which the payment was made. The direct payment is treated as though it were paid to the payee-spouse, who then pays it to the attorney. Thus, the payment is deductible by the payor-spouse, includable in the income of the payee-spouse, and then deductible by the payee-spouse to the extent that the payment of attorney's fees is deductible [Temp. Treas. Reg. § 1.71-1T(b), Q-6, Q-7; see § 227.10[2]].

PRACTICE TIP:

Payments Structured to Include Attorney Fees. Counsel for the lower-earning spouse throws away potential tax benefits for both parties by merely seeking an award of attorney fees. The parties can allow for deduction of alimony payments by the payor, as well as deduction of attorney fees owed by the payee, by characterizing payments as spousal support qualifying for alimony tax treatment. To do this, the parties should structure a stipulated judgment that sets spousal support in an amount above the state guidelines and includes attorney fees and that contains a step-down in payments to an agreed amount on a specified later date. The payor-spouse may then deduct the spousal support payments and the payee-spouse can deduct attorney fees paid directly, to the extent the fees are otherwise deductible.

[d] Resisting Other Spouse's Claims for Income

Legal expenses incurred by one spouse in resisting the other spouse's income demands, as opposed to expenses incurred for the actual production or collection of income, are not deductible. Resisting the other spouse's money demands in a dissolution or separation proceeding does not create legal expenses that are deductible as expenses for the management, conservation, or maintenance of income-producing property [United States v. Gilmore (1963) 372 U.S. 39, 51-52, 83 S. Ct. 623, 9 L. Ed. 2d 570 ; United States v. Patrick (1963) 372 U.S. 53, 56, 83 S. Ct. 618, 9 L. Ed. 2d 580 ; see Wild v. Commissioner (1964) 42 T.C. 706, 710-711 , acq., 1967-2 C.B. 4].

[e] Relating to Child Support

Attorney's fees incurred in connection with demands for child support are not deductible as an expense for the production or collection of income. The deduction is limited to expenses related to the production of income that must beincluded in the spouse's income for income tax purposes [see Treas. Reg. § 1.212-1(a)(1)]. Similarly, attorney's fees incurred in resisting demands for child support are not deductible. Resisting money demands in a dissolution or separation proceeding does not create legal expenses that are deductible as expenses for the management, conservation, or maintenance of income-producing property [United States v. Gilmore (1963) 372 U.S. 39, 51-52, 83 S. Ct. 623, 9 L. Ed. 2d 570 ; United States v. Patrick (1963) 372 U.S. 53, 56, 83 S. Ct. 618, 9 L. Ed. 2d 580 ; see Wild v. Commissioner (1964) 42 T.C. 706, 710 , acq., 1967-2 C.B. 4].

[f] Allocation of Attorney's Fees

A taxpayer claiming a deduction for attorney's fees has the burden of allocating the fees by showing what portion of them is attributable to the production of income [see Treas. Reg. § 1.262-1(b)(7); see also Mirsky v. Commissioner (1971) 56 T.C. 664, 677] . Thus, an attorney who charges fees for obtaining spousal support or other forms of income for his or her client should provide a breakdown of fees charged and carefully itemize the number of hours and expenses incurred for the production of this income, both in the attorney's records and in the client's bill. If the attorney provides such a breakdown, the client should have adequate proof to enable him or her to claim the deduction for attorney's fees [see Beth Van Sickle (1986) 52 T.C.M. 982 (CCH)] .

[3] Attorney's Fees Incurred for Tax Advice

[a] Deductibility

Legal expenses incurred in connection with the determination, collection, or refund of any tax (tax advice expenses) are deductible [I.R.C. § 212(3); Treas. Reg. § 1.212-1(a)(1)(iii)]. This deduction applies not only to expenses relating to a contest of tax liability or the preparation of tax returns for a particular year, but also to expenses relating to tax advice given merely for tax planning purposes [Carpenter v. United States (Ct. Cl. 1964) 338 F.2d 366, 369] . The deduction clearly extends to tax advice regarding dissolution, judgments of nullity, or separation. Therefore, taxpayers may deduct fees paid for legal advice regarding the tax consequences of a property settlement agreement or proposed property transfer or division between spouses, the tax consequences of various forms of spousal and child support payments, or the right to claim a dependency exemption for a child [see Rev. Rul. 72-545, 1972-2 C.B. 179].

[b] Payment by Other Spouse

The deduction for legal fees incurred for tax advice regarding issues stemming from dissolution or separation can be claimed only by the spouse seeking the advice. Therefore, if one spouse either agrees to or is ordered by the court to pay the expenses incurred for tax advice sought by the other spouse, the expenses are not deductible by either spouse [Carpenter v. United States (Ct. Cl. 1964) 338 F.2d 366, 368] . For discussion of deducting these payments by qualifying them for alimony tax treatment, see § 227.18[2][c].

[c] Allocation of Attorney's Fees

A taxpayer claiming a deduction for attorney's fees has the burden of allocating the fees by substantiating what portion of them is attributable to tax advice [see Rev. Rul. 72-545, 1972-2 C.B. 179]. If the bill for attorney's fees is not specifically itemized and the attorney who provided the tax advice cannot give any specific information as to the number of hours worked on tax advice (as compared to other legal matters), it may be difficult to determine the amount of the fee allocable to tax advice. Such a failure, however, does not preclude an allocation. Rather, an allocation may be made by looking to the record as a whole and examining documents such as the bill for fees and the attorney's ledger sheets that deal with the taxpayer's account, thereby determining the approximate portion of time spent on tax advice and the value of the service [see Howard C. Goldaper (1977) 36 T.C.M. 1381 (CCH) ; see also Munn v. United States (Ct. Cl. 1972) 455 F.2d 1028, 1035] .

[4] Attorney's Fees Incurred for Division of Property--Nondeductible Expenses Added to Basis of Property

Legal expenses arising from dissolution or separation that are attributable to division of property or claims regarding the existence of community property and the spouses' rights in it are not deductible by either spouse [see Justin R. Melat (1993) 65 T.C.M. 2868 (CCH) (legal fees for valuing a law partnership interest as part of property division were nondeductible personal expenses)]. These expenses are personal expenses arising from the marital relationship and not expenses incurred either for the production of income or for the management, conservation, or maintenance of property held for the production of income [United States v. Gilmore (1963) 372 U.S. 39, 51-52, 83 S. Ct. 623, 9 L. Ed. 2d 570 ; Georgia Leary Neill (1964) 42 T.C. 793, 798-799 ; Genevieve M. Hahn (1976) 35 T.C.M. 509 (CCH) ; see § 227.18[1]]. However, these nondeductible fees are capital expenditures [Genevieve M. Hahn (1976) 35 T.C.M. 509 (CCH)] and may be added to the cost basis of an asset obtained as a result of the legal expenses [George v. United States (Ct. Cl. 1970) 434 F.2d 1336, 1338-1340] . Expenses incurred in protecting title to a capital investment have been held to constitute capital expenditures [see Samuel Berger (1954) 13 T.C.M. 177 (CCH) , aff'd, 234 F.2d 959 (2d Cir. 1956)] . Thus, it could be argued that legal fees spent protecting the title to property should be allowed as an addition to the property's cost basis.

PRACTICE TIP:

Client Billing Statements Should Specifically Describe Attorney Activities. To be in compliance with *Bus. & Prof. Code § 6148(b),*attorneys should generate monthly statements that specifically describe the activities for which the client is billed. Providing the small degree of extra specificity required to categorize attorney fees will give the client a clear record of deductible fees for tax advice or advice relating to the production of income, and will document fees that should arguably be added to the basis of property as related to property division. If past billing statments have been too general, counsel should prepare a statement specifically categorizing the fees as accurately as possible. However, such after-the-fact statements may, of course, be suspect and may be difficult to substantiate absent underlying timesheets or other documents detailing attorney activities.

[1] General Rules--Marriage Requirement

Spouses are entitled to file joint returns [I.R.C. § 6013(a)] if they are married as of the end of the taxable (calendar) year, except that, if a spouse dies during the taxable year, the date of the spouse's death will be used to determine marital status for filing purposes [I.R.C. § 7703(a)(1); cf. Mueller (Robert) v. Commissioner, T.C. Memo. 2001-274 (same-sex economic partners may not file joint return)]. Problems may arise in determining the right to file a joint return when spouses have taken action to terminate their marriage, to live separately under a judgment of legal separation, and in other cases. Therefore, the determination of marital status plays an important role in evaluating whether filing a joint return is appropriate. General rules for determining marital status are discussed in § 227.19[2]. Special rules concerning final judgments of dissolution of marriage, legal separation, and nullity of marriage are discussed in § 227.19[2][c][i] -[iii].

[2] Determination of Marital Status

[a] Federal Law

The determination of whether a particular individual is married or single for income tax purposes is made by reference to state law [Calhoun (Robert), T.C. Memo. 1992-246 ; see Mueller v. Comm'r, T.C. Memo 2001-274 (same-sex economic partners may not file joint return); but cf. Rinehart v. Comm'r, T.C. Memo 2003-109 (fraudulent annulment disregarded in determining couple's marital status)]. An individual who is legally separated from his or her spouse under a judgment of dissolution or legal separation is not considered as married for income tax purposes [I.R.C. § 7703(a)(2)] (§ 227.19[c][i]-[iii]). In certain cases, married taxpayers living apart are not considered married [I.R.C. § 7703(b); but see Patterson v. Commissioner, T.C. Memo. 1989-193 (legally married taxpayer not permitted to file as single taxpayer, despite prohibition of divorce by taxpayer's religion; treatment of estranged spouse as unmarried person for tax purposes does not necessarily entitle other spouse to same treatment). A taxpayer is not considered as married as of the close of the taxable year, and is not permitted to file a joint return, if at any time during the taxable year the taxpayer's spouse was a nonresident alien [I.R.C. § 6013(a)(1)].

A taxpayer's marital status not only determines whether a joint return may be filed, but also is decisive in determining whether the gross income filing requirement has been met [see I.R.C. § 6012], how many personal exemptions may be claimed [see I.R.C. §§ 151-153], whether the spouse's medical deductions may be claimed [see I.R.C. § 213], and other tax-related issues. In addition, each spouse is liable for tax on half of the community income even though the dissolution becomes final and separate returns must be filed, as discussed in § 227.19[3].

[b] California Law

In general, for purposes of filing a California personal income tax return, marital status is to be determined in accordance with I.R.C. § 7703 [see Rev. & Tax. Code § 17021.5; 18 Cal. Code Reg. § 18402(a)], keeping in mind that federal law must look to state (California) law concerning marriage in assessing whether an individual is married or single [see Calhoun (Robert), T.C. Memo. 1992-246] . However, California law imposes special requirements concerning the filing of joint returns if one of the taxpayers is a nonresident or part-time resident of California during the taxable year [see Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 17045, 17046, 18521, 18522, 19006].

[c] Effect of Parties' Intent to Make Joint Return

[i] In General

Whether an income tax return is a joint return depends on the intent of the spouses. Intent may become a key issue particularly if only one of the spouses signs the return (for the signing spouse or for both spouses), or when a spouse claims that a signature was made by mistake, under duress, without knowledge of the contents of the return, or was forged [see, e.g., Stanley v. Commissioner (1983) 81 T.C. 634, 637-638 ; Douglas (J.) (1956) 27 T.C. 306, 312-314 , aff'd, 256 F.2d 4 (5th Cir. 1958)] . An extensive treatment of the intent issue is beyond the scope of this work, and therefore only the following general principles are discussed.

Although the federal tax regulations generally require that joint returns be signed by both spouses, the presence or absence of a signature is not determinative of the validity of a joint return, and the parties' intent in making the return must be examined. For example, a "filing spouse" may have implied authority to file a joint return on behalf of a nonsigning spouse if the nonsigner's signature has been a mere formality or the parties have filed a joint return for many years [Estate of Quirk v. Commissioner (1995) T.C.Memo 1995-234 ; see Treas. Reg. § 1.6013-1(a)(2); seealso Treas. Reg. § 1.6013-1(a)(5) (permitting authorized agent to sign return, when accompanied by required form); but cf. Levitt v. Commissioner, T.C. Memo. 1993-294 (court lacked jurisdiction over wife whose husband signed her name to petition, even though husband had signed her name to all financial documents, including tax returns, for many years)]. Similarly, a joint return may be binding on a nonsigning spouse if the facts show that both parties intended to file a joint return [see Noonan (Daniel C.) v. Commissioner, T.C. Memo. 1997-22 (ex-wife who refused to sign joint return was held to have consented to filing jointly when she was obligated to do so under binding agreement); Ashworth v. Commissioner (1990) T.C. Memo 1990-423 ; Parker v. Commissioner (1978) T.C. Memo 1978-23 ; see also Ziegler v. Comm'r, T.C. Memo 2003-282 (spouse seeking innocent spouse relief effectively conceded ratification of filing joint return lacking her signature); but see Olpin v. Comm'r (10th Cir. 2001) 270 F.3d 1297, 1300-1301 (joint return filed without signatures was invalid when spouses divorced and one spouse subsequently filed separate return)].

In addition, although the burden of proof rests on a spouse seeking to disavow a joint return, the courts generally are willing to disregard a spouse's signature if the other evidence indicated that a joint return was not intended [Sharwell v. Commissioner (6th Cir. 1969) 419 F.2d 1057 ; Warmack v. Commissioner, T.C. Memo. 1992-431 ; see Hoyle v. Commissioner, T.C. Memo 1994-592 (though husband signed both spouses' names to return and stated he believed he had her consent, there was insufficient evidence of wife's intent to hold that joint return had been intended)].

In California, the judgment of dissolution is equivalent to the final judgment of divorce [see Fam. Code § 2300] and terminates the right to file a joint return [I.R.C. §§ 6013(d)(2), 7703(a)(2)]. A final judgment of divorce, for purposes of filing a joint return, includes a judgment that is on appeal at the end of the taxable year [Sullivan v. Commissioner (1957) 29 T.C. 71, 76 , aff'd, 256 F.2d 664 (4th Cir. 1958)] . However, note that entry of an interlocutory judgment of dissolution does not terminate the right to file jointly, as it is not sufficient to terminate the parties' marital status. This concept remains of at least limited importance in California, because, while interlocutory dissolution judgments have been abolished, there may remain some spouses who obtained an interlocutory judgment under former law but who never applied for and obtained the final judgment [Treas. Reg. § 1.6013-4(a); Commissioner of Int. Rev. v. Ostler (9th Cir. 1956) 237 F.2d 501 ; Rev. Rul. 75-536, 1975-2 C.B. 462 ; see McDonald (Bill) T.C. Memo. 1994-607] .

With respect to parties who only obtained an interlocutory judgment, an attempt to retroactively enter a final judgment through the use of a nunc pro tunc order is technically possible, but such an order will be recognized for tax purposes only if it is consistent with underlying state law. The Tax Court has, in effect, taken the position that it may look behind a California trial court's entry of a nunc pro tunc order to determine whether the order is contrary to or consistent with state law when the issue is raised [see McDonald v. Commissioner, T.C. Memo. 1994-607 (finding that nunc pro tunc order was not consistent with California law)].

[iii] Legal Separation

A taxpayer and his or her spouse do not lose their right to file a joint return for the taxable year if they become legally separated or have their marriage dissolved after the close of that taxable year [Treas. Reg. § 1.6013-4(a); see 18 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 18410-18410.9]. Nevertheless, the entry of a judgment of legal separation [see generally Fam. Code § 2300 et seq.] during the taxable year terminates the right to file a joint return for that taxable year [see I.R.C. §§ 6013(d)(2), 7703(a)(2); Rev. & Tax. Code § 17021.5; 18 Cal. Code Reg. § 18402(a); see also Kenneth V. Klementowski (1986) T.C. Memo 1986-145]. Spouses who are not legally separated under a court judgment of legal separation, even though they are living apart under a written separation agreement, are considered married for income tax purposes [see, e.g., Elizabeth S. C. Ashby (1984) T.C. Memo 1984-121 ; Donigan v. Commissioner (1977) 68 T.C. 632, 635-637] . Furthermore, one court has held that an order granting exclusive possession of a couple's residence to a spouse, without more, did not meet the statutory requirements of a legal separation accomplished by a decree of divorce or separate maintenance [Klementowski v. Commissioner (1986) T.C. Memo 1986-145]. The mere fact that spouses have not lived together during the course of the taxable year does not prohibit them from making a joint return [Treas. Reg. § 1.6013-4(a)]. Physical separation of the spouses during the taxable year, however, coupled with other factors, may qualify a spouse to file as a "head of household" [see § 227.19[4][d]].

[iv] Judgment of Nullity

A judgment of nullity based on the fact that the marriage was void [Fam. Code §§ 2200, 2201] terminates the right to file a joint return for the taxable year in which the judgment is entered. A judgment of nullity may relate back to rescind any joint returns made in prior taxable years because the marriage was never valid, and the taxpayers must file amended separate returns for those years [Rev. Rul. 76-255, 1976-2 C.B. 40 ; William R. (Bob) Wilson (1976) T.C. Memo 1976-285] . However, this rule may not apply when the rights of third parties (including the I.R.S.) are adversely affected [Shackelford v. C.I.R., T.C. Memo. 1995-484 (laches prevents retroactive application); see Rinehart v. Comm'r, T.C. Memo 2003-109 (fraudulent annulment does not relate back)]. A judgment of nullity based on the fact the marriage was voidable terminates the right to file a joint return for the taxable year in which the judgment is entered but does not operate retroactively because the marriage was only voidable and therefore valid until the judgment [see Fam. Code § 2210].

[d] Joint and Several Liability for Tax

[i] Assessments Against One or Both Spouses

If spouses file a joint return, each spouse is jointly and severally liable for the tax due, even if only one spouse had income [I.R.C. § 6013(d)(3); Treas. Reg. § 1.6013-4(b); see Steffen v. Comm'r, T.C. Memo 2002-229 (spouses were jointly and severally liable for negligence penalties); cf. Carrick v. Commissioner, T.C. Memo. 1991-502] . The IRS may assess the full amount of tax, penalties, and interest against either spouse [Furnish v. C.I.R. (9th Cir. 1958) 262 F.2d 727, 731] . An allocation and indemnification clause in a couple's marital settlement agreement, under which one spouse promises to indemnify the other for all tax liabilities, will not prevent the IRS from collecting a deficiency from the supposedly indemnified spouse, because the IRS is not a party to the agreement [Alioto (Angelina G.) v. Commissioner, T.C. Memo. 1994-51 ; but see Karp v. U.S. (1994) 868 F. Supp. 235 (if I.R.S. officially knows of agreement and includes it in its settlement agreement, it can be bound)]. Note that the I.R.S. has announced a policy of notifying both spouses when a collection action is brought against one of them [I.R.S. 1996-14 I.R.B. 28, Notice 96-19].

One spouse may be relieved from joint and several liability, however, when "innocent spouse" provisions are applicable (§ 227.19[2][g]) or when the civil fraud penalty is imposed [I.R.C. § 6663(c); see Kaye v. Commissioner, T.C. Memo. 1995-345] . If a supposedly indemnified spouse is denied innocent spouse relief, the spouse may have to pay any assessed deficiency and seek recovery from the other spouse in state court under the terms of the marital settlement agreement [see, e.g., Barriga v. Comm'r, T.C. Memo 2004-102 (equitable innocent spouse relief denied, despite clause in former wife's divorce decree that allocated all tax liabilities to former husband)].

The fact that the IRS designates a party as an "innocent spouse" will not preclude a state family law court from enforcing a preexisting provision of an agreement and judgment requiring both spouses to equally share tax obligations, because the IRS's designation does not preempt state law efforts to impose liability for federal income taxes [In re Marriage of Hargrave (1995) 36 Cal. App. 4th 1313, 1320-1321, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 474 ; see § 227.19[2][h]].

For California personal income tax purposes, the Franchise Tax Board or a court in a dissolution proceeding may revise the joint liability of one spouse with respect to income earned by or subject to the exclusive management of the other spouse [Rev. & Tax. Code § 19006; see Murchison v. Murchison (1963) 219 Cal. App. 2d 600, 33 Cal. Rptr. 285] .

An assessment against one spouse does not prevent assessment against the other [Bloomfield v. Commissioner (1969) 52 T.C. 745, 751-752 ; Dolan v. Commissioner (1965) 44 T.C. 420, 426-427] . Thus, the IRS may assess an entire deficiency against one spouse even after paying a refund to the other spouse [Bloomfield v. Commissioner (1969) 52 T.C. 745, 751-752 ; see Gordon v. United States (11th Cir. 1985) 757 F.2d 1157, 1159-1160] . This assessment power, however, does not extend to the civil fraud penalty for underpayment of tax unless the government can prove that some part of the underpayment was due to fraud on that spouse's part [I.R.C. § 6663(c); Treas. Reg. § 301.6653-1(f); see Meier v. Commissioner (1988) 91 T.C. 273, 297-303 ; Turner v. Commissioner (1988) T.C. Memo 1988-339]. This exception to joint and several liability applies only to the addition of tax for fraud and does not prevent a spouse from being held liable for the tax deficiency itself if the spouse is otherwise unable to meet the innocent spouse requirements [see Hicks Co. (1971) 56 T.C. 982, 1030 ; Keene v. Commissioner (1979) T.C. Memo 1979-121 ; see § 227.19[2][g]]. In addition, even though a return may be fraudulent only with respect to one spouse, the unlimited period for assessment and collection of tax applies to both spouses [Hicks Co. (1971) 56 T.C. 982, 1030 ; see I.R.C. § 6501(c)]. Thus, the nonfraudulent spouse still may be jointly and severally liable for the tax owed due to omissions of income [Furnish v. C.I.R. (9th Cir. 1958) 262 F.2d 727, 731-732 ; United States v. Diehl (S.D. Tex. 1978) 460 F. Supp. 1282, 1287-1288 , aff'd per curium, 586 F.2d 1080 (5th Cir. 1978)] .

An issue related to joint and several liability is the question of standing to sue for a tax refund. This issue may pose problems, particularly when a spouse has acquired property in a divorce context that is subject to a tax lien as a result of deficiencies assessed against the other spouse. Although parties may not generally challenge the tax liabilities of others, the U.S. Supreme Court has held that a spouse who, under protest, pays taxes owed by the other (former) spouse in order to remove a lien from the paying spouse's property, has standing to sue for a refund [United States v. Williams (1995) 514 U.S. 527, 115 S. Ct. 1611, 131 L. Ed. 2d 608, 613 , aff'g Williams v. U.S. (9th Cir. 1994) 24 F.3d 1143 ; see 28 U.S.C. § 1346(a)(1)].

A spouse who is granted "innocent spouse" relief from joint and several liability (§ 227.19[2][g]) is entitled to a refund of overpaid taxes, provided that the spouse files a timely refund claim [Washington v. Comm'r (2003) 120 T.C. 137, 160 ; see Bartman v. Comm'r, T.C. Memo 2004-93 (untimely refund claim based on grant of innocent spouse relief)]. A refund claim must be filed within three years from the date that the tax return at issue was filed or within two years from the date that the tax was paid [I.R.C. § 6511(a)].

[iii] Offsetting Interests

With respect to satisfying a tax liability by offsetting another interest, note that a spouse's community property interest in a joint income tax refund may be used to offset the other spouse's separate premarital tax liability if state law permits allcommunity assets to be reached to satisfy premarital debts [Rev. Rul. 85-70, 1985-1 C.B. 361]. Under California law, the community property generally is liable for a debt incurred by either spouse before or during marriage [see Fam. Code § 910(a)]. "During marriage" does not include the period during which the spouses are living separate and apart before a judgment for dissolution of marriage or a judgment for legal separation is entered [Fam. Code § 910(b)]. The nondebtor-spouse's community property earnings are not liable for the other spouse's premarital debts, however, as long as the earnings are held in a deposit account in which the debtor-spouse has no right of withdrawal and are not commingled with other community property, except for property insignificant in amount [Fam. Code § 911]. The same result should be reached if the parties have a valid premarital agreement that characterizes each party's income during marriage as separate property.

Failure to file a return for a particular taxable year does not preclude a married couple from eventually filing a joint return even after the three-year period of limitations contained in I.R.C. § 6013(b)(2) has expired [Rev. Rul. 72-539, 1972-2 C.B. 634 ; but see Durovic v. C.I.R. (7th Cir. 1973) 487 F.2d 36, 41-42] . If separate deficiency notices have been issued to each spouse, however, the couple cannot thereafter elect to file jointly [Joan D. Thompson (1982) 78 T.C. 558, 561 ; Dritz v. Commissioner (1969) T.C. Memo 1969-175 , aff'd per curiam, 427 F.2d 1176 (5th Cir. 1970) ; but see Phillips v. C.I.R. (D.C. Cir. 1988) 851 F.2d 1492, 1496, 1498 (limitations of I.R.C. § 6013(b) on filing joint return did not apply if taxpayer had not already filed separate return)]. Failure to file a joint return precludes the application of joint rates to the spouse's taxable income [Anderson v. Commissioner (1973) T.C. Memo 1973-155 ; see I.R.S. Letter Rul. 7825086; but see Stone v. Commissioner (1954) 22 T.C. 893, 901] . However, the Tax Court has reversed long-established authority and ruled that a taxpayer who has failed to file any return and for whom the IRS has filed a "substitute return" under I.R.C. § 6020(b) may thereafter file a return on which the taxpayer elects joint return filing status [Millsap v. Commissioner (1989) 91 T.C. 926, 938 , acq., 1991-2 C.B. 1].

Individual liability has been imposed even in cases in which the spouses filed joint returns in the taxable years before and after the year in which no return was filed [Simms v. Commissioner (1968) T.C. Memo 1968-298 , aff'd, 422 F.2d 340 (4th Cir. 1970)] . Joint and several liability may be imposed, however, if the spouses in effect have authorized the calculation of the deficiency as if a joint return were made [United States v. Martin (E.D. Mo. 1967) 274 F. Supp. 1002, 1005 , aff'd, 411 F.2d 1164 (8th Cir. 1969) ; but see Estate of Quirk v. C.I.R., T.C. Memo. 1995-234] . A couple may be deemed to have filed a joint return, and thus be jointly and severally liable, if the couple jointly files certain forms such as a waiver of restrictions (federal Form 870) [Rev. Rul. 74-203, 1974-1 C.B. 330]. A spouse is jointly and severally liable even though that spouse gains no benefit from filing the form [see Fine v. Commissioner (1978) 70 T.C. 684, 690] .

[f] Notifying IRS of Separation

Separated spouses who have filed a joint return should notify the IRS that they are separated and living apart. Many problems can arise when the IRS is not kept informed of the separated taxpayer's filing status and current address. For example, the IRS must send separate joint deficiency notices to each spouse if the IRS has notice that the couple maintains separate addresses, even if it only knows one of the addresses [Kir v. Commissioner (1991) T.C. Memo 1991-504 ; see Abeles v. Commissioner (1988) 91 T.C. 1019] . Nevertheless, the Tax Court has dismissed an action as untimely filed despite the taxpayer's delayed receipt of a tax deficiency notice that had been forwarded to an ex-spouse in the United Kingdom [Wisdom v. Commissioner (1991) T.C. Memo 1991-327 ; see I.R.C. § 6213]. In a similar case, the Tax Court held that an ex-wife's failure to notify the IRS of her new address precluded her from complaining that she had not received a copy of a joint deficiency notice in time to file a petition with the Tax Court [Kirk v. Commissioner (1991)T.C. Memo 1991-504 ; see I.R.C. § 6213].

[g] Innocent Spouse Relief

[i] Current Law

The "innocent spouse" provisions of the Internal Revenue Code are intended to ameliorate some of the hard practical consequences of the joint income tax return. In filing jointly, the spouses merge their incomes and deductions, and no attempt is made to attribute tax items to one spouse rather than the other. A natural consequence is that both spouses are made jointly and severally liable for the payment of the tax [I.R.C. § 6013(d)]. But problems arise when a tax deficiency is subsequently determined for the taxable year, whether due to the omission of taxable income or to the disallowance of a deduction or credit. As these adjustments should have been made on the original joint return, they are not attributed to either of the individual spouses. The additional tax becomes part of the amount for which both spouses are jointly and severally liable.

If the spouses are still married (or at least not legally separated) at the time the deficiency is established, there will generally be no unfairness in collecting the tax from both spouses. The spouses are yet in a marital property relationship. But if the spouses are divorced or legally separated, it may be unfair to impose joint and several liability for tax liabilities arising during the marriage, perhaps many years before. The innocent spouse provisions of current and prior law have sought to define the circumstances under which a spouse (or, more typically, an ex-spouse) may be relieved of joint and several liability. The key word is "innocent." Relief is premised on the idea that a spouse should be relieved of liabilities that are attributable to the other spouse if the spouse seeking relief played no part increating the tax deficiency and did not know of it.

Stated another way, the purpose of innocent spouse relief is to protect one spouse from the overreaching or dishonesty of the other spouse [Purcell v. Commissioner (6th Cir. 1987) 826 F.2d 470, 475] . However, innocent spouse relief is inappropriate when it would allow one spouse to escape liability for apparently legitimate claims that the IRS subsequently disallows [Bartlett (Sharon Lee) v. Commissioner, T.C. Memo. 1997-413 ; see Bartak v. Comm'r, T.C. Memo 2004-83 (relief denied when wife reluctantly participated in tax shelter at husband's urging, but was not abused or coerced)].

The current innocent spouse provision is found in I.R.C. § 6015, which provides for two overlapping types of relief. One type, contained in subsection (b), applies to all taxpayers, regardless of whether they are still married and living with the spouse with whom they filed the joint return (§ 227.19[2][g][iii]). A second, and more liberal provision, is available to a taxpayer who is divorced, separated from, or not sharing the same household with, the other spouse. This type of relief, under I.R.C. § 6015(c) provides an election to limit liability to each spouse's allocated share of the deficiency (§ 227.19[2][g][iv]).

It is important to understand that state community property law is irrelevant to innocent spouse relief [I.R.C. § 6015(a)].

When a joint return is filed, all income, both community and separate, is lumped together without distinction. When a taxpayer seeks relief under Section 6015, the determination of whether a tax liability is attributable or allocable to the other spouse is made without regard to community property law. Thus the earnings of one spouse are allocated to that spouse, regardless of the fact that they would constitute community property under state law.

Note that in addition to relief provided under subsections (b) and (c) of I.R.C. § 6015, subsection (f) provides for general equitable relief. Under that provision, if, taking into account all the facts and circumstances, it is inequitable to hold the individual liable for any unpaid tax or any deficiency (or portion of either), and relief is not available under I.R.C. § 6015(b), or (c), the Internal Revenue Service is authorized to relieve the individual of liability [I.R.C. § 6015(f); see § 227.19[2][g][v]].

Relief under I.R.C. § 6015(b) or (c) requires a tax understatement or deficiency for the year for which relief is sought [see I.R.C. §§ 6015(b)(1), (c)(1); Foor v. Comm'r, T.C. Memo 2004-54 (no understatement when proper tax amount reported but not paid); Demirjian v. Comm'r, T.C. Memo 2004-22 (no deficiency when amended returns corrected earlier understatement)]. However, if no understatement or deficiency exists, equitable relief may still be available under I.R.C. § 6015(f) [see, e.g., Foor v. Comm'r, T.C. Memo 2004-54 (relief granted even though taxpayer had reason to know that taxes would not be paid); Demirjian v. Comm'r, T.C. Memo 2004-22 (relief denied due to taxpayer's constructive knowledge of understatement)]. Relief under I.R.C. § 6015 is barred once a taxpayer settles his or her tax liability by submitting an offer in compromise that the IRS accepts [Dutton v. Comm'r (2004) 122 T.C. 133 ; see I.R.C. §§ 6015(g), 7122].

Requests for innocent spouse relief must be made within two years of the time the IRS begins collection activities with respect to the taxes at issue [I.R.C. § 6015(b)(1)(E), (c)(3)(B); 2003-32 I.R.B. 296, Rev. Proc. 2003-61 , supersedes 2000-1 C.B. 447, Rev. Proc. 2000-15 , effective for requests for relief filed on or after November 1, 2003 (limitations period for equitable relief under I.R.C. § 6015(f)); McGee v. Comm'r (2004) 123 T.C. 314] . The IRS must notify taxpayers of their right to seek innocent spouse relief on all collection-related notices [Pub. Law 105-206, § 3501(b); (2004) Prevo v. Comm'r, (limitations period not commenced by IRS collection activity that omitted notice of taxpayer's right to seek innocent spouse relief)].

The current provisions, which were initiated through enactment of the Internal Revenue Service Restructuring and Reform Act of 1998 [Pub. L. No. 105-206], became operative as follows. In general, the amendments made by the Act apply to any liability for tax arising after the date of its enactment (July 22, 1998), and any liability for tax arising on or before that date but remaining unpaid as of that date. However, under a special provision, the two-year period set forth in I.R.C. § 6015(b)(1)(E) or I.R.C. § 6015(c)(3)(B) will not expire before a date that is two years after the date of the first collection activity after the date of the enactment of the Act [Pub. L. No. 105-206, § 3201(g)].

The IRS has issued final regulations governing innocent spouse relief under I.R.C. § 6015 [Treas. Regs. 1.6015-1-1.6015-9, Treas. Dec. Int. Rev. 9003, published at 67 FR 47278 (July 18, 2002) , with correction published at 67 FR 54735 (August 26, 2002)].

In some instances, a taxpayer who has been awarded innocent spouse relief may be able to recover litigation costs. Under I.R.C. § 7430, a party who has prevailed in a court proceeding against the United States may be awarded reasonable litigation costs if the party establishes, among other things, that the position of the United States was not substantially justified [see I.R.C. § 7430; see Kean v. Comm'r, T.C. Memo 2003-275 (IRS position was substantially justified, despite inconsistency of its positions on unallocated support payments); Goertler v. Comm'r, T.C. Memo 2003-136 (IRS position substantially justified, given that taxpayers triggered litigation by failing to timely respond to IRS inquiry); Rowe v. Comm'r, T.C. Memo 2002-136 (position of IRS in opposing innocent spouse relief was substantiallyjustified, given that taxpayer's case involved newly enacted I.R.C. § 6015)].

[ii] Former Law Contrasted

Innocent spouse relief has existed for many years, and has been periodically revised to address perceived inadequacies. The present version of the statute, in particular, can only be understood in the light of its antecedents. Originally, the law applied only to cases in which one spouse omitted income from the tax return that the other spouse knew nothing about, but the law as it stood before the I.R.S. Restructuring and Reform Act of 1998 [Pub. L. No. 105-206] was more expansive, and fairly complex.

Former I.R.C. § 6013(e), the innocent spouse provision prior to the 1998 Act, provided relief from joint and several liability when:

1. A joint return was filed;

2. There was a substantial understatement of tax attributable to grossly erroneous items of the other spouse on the return;

3. The spouse seeking relief established that, in signing the return, he or she did not know (or have reason to know) of the substantial understatement; and

4. Under all the circumstances, it would be inequitable to hold the spouse liable for the tax deficiency.

A "substantial understatement" was defined by a dollar amount or percentage of adjusted gross income (AGI) that eliminated controversy over small sums, and this requirement was rarely a barrier to relief. The requirement that the deficiency be attributable to "grossly erroneous" items, however, has been a considerable source of trouble. Such items included all forms of omitted income, but only such disallowed deductions and credits that had "no basis in law or fact." Congress was unclear concerning what unlawful deductions or credits should provide the basis for innocent spouse relief. At one extreme, purely fraudulent deductions taken by one spouse were clearly covered. But most disallowed deductions had some legal premise, however weak, and courts were often reluctant to permit a spouse to disavow liability for run-of-the-mill disallowed tax deductions that seemed to involve little or no fraud [see Dillon v. Commissioner, T.C. Memo. 1998-5] .

The largest problem area in former Section 6013(e) was in the "lack-of-knowledge" requirement. A spouse could hardly claim to be innocent of misreported items of which he or she had knowledge. But it was often unclear how to treat a spouse who had knowledge of the underlying economic facts behind a tax decision, but no knowledge that the decision was unlawful. For example, a spouse might well know of a tax shelter investment, and even know that deductions had been claimed, but not know that the deductions were illegal. Another aspect of the "knowledge" problem has been in the requirement that the spouse seeking relief did not have reason to know of the deficiency, even if he or she did not have actual knowledge. This requirement was intended to cull out culpable negligence, and to preserve a minimum sense of responsibility in signing a joint income tax return. But it has proved troublesome and inconsistent in application because it often turns on a court's assessment of the sophistication of the spouse seeking relief [see Infelise v. Commissioner, T.C. Memo. 1998-191] .

The 1998 Act repealed subsection (e) of I.R.C. § 6013 and replaced it with two provisions found in new I.R.C. § 6015. A revised version of the traditional innocent spouse provision was placed in subsection (b), and this provision applies to all taxpayers seeking relief from joint return liability [I.R.C. § 6015(b)]. Subsection (c) applies only to a taxpayer who is divorced or legally separated from the person with whom he or she filed a joint return [I.R.C. § 6015(c)].

Because subsection (c) is considerably more lenient than subsection (b), and because the overwhelming majority of persons seeking innocent spouse relief are divorced or separated, it is not clear how often subsection (b) will apply in practice. The prior statute made no formal distinction between taxpayers who were still married and living with the fraudulent spouse and those who were divorced or legally separated. But marital status found its way into the statute obliquely, through the requirement that relief be justified on equitable grounds. Innocent spouse relief was generally intended to protect taxpayers who have broken their economic ties with the fraudulent spouse, and taxpayers who remained married had difficulty asserting the unfairness of joint liability. The 1998 Act acknowledges that divorce or legal separation is a factor in providing expanded relief under subsection (c), yet it still provides more basic relief to all taxpayers. Thus it is arguable that the new statute intends greater protection for taxpayers who are still married to fraudulent spouses than was available under prior law.

[iii] Relief for All Joint Filers

I.R.C. § 6015(b) provides for relief to all taxpayers who filed a joint return, regardless of their current marital or household status. To qualify for relief under this section--which includes relief from liability for tax (including interest, penalties, and other amounts) to the extent that liability is attributable to an understatement of tax--the following requirements must be met [I.R.C. § 6015(b)(1); Aranda v. Comm'r, T.C. Memo 2003-306 (relief denied to spouse absent proof she satisfied each requirement of I.R.C. § 6015(b)(1))]:

1. A joint return has been made for the taxable year;

2. The return contains an understatement of tax attributable to erroneous items of one individual filing the return;

3. The other individual filing the joint return establishes that in signing it, he or she did not know, and had no reason to know, that there was an understatement;

4. Taking into account all the facts and circumstances, it is inequitable to hold that other individual liable for the deficiency in tax that is attributable to the understatement; and

5. That other individual elects the benefits of I.R.C. § 6015 not later than a date that is two years after the date that the IRS has begun collection activities with respect to him or her.

A special apportionment provision permits an individual who would be relieved from liability but for the "knowledge" requirement of item 3, above [I.R.C § 6015(b)(1)(C)], to limit the amount of his or her liability by establishing that in signing the return he or she did not know, and had no reason to know, the extent of the understatement. In that case, the individual will be relieved of liability for tax (including interest, penalties, and other amounts) to the extent that the liability is attributable to the portion of the understatement of which that individual did not know and had no reason to know [I.R.C. § 6015(b)(2)].

This language largely tracks the provisions of former I.R.C. § 6013(e), and to the extent that it does, prior case law should presumably still govern. The deficiency must, obviously, not be attributable to the spouse seeking relief [see Ishizaki v. Comm'r, T.C. Memo 2001-318 (relief denied when spouses were equally involved in business operations); Marzullo v. Commissioner, T.C. Memo. 1997-261] . As under prior law, the spouse claiming relief must demonstrate lack of knowledge (or constructive knowledge), and relief must be equitable under the circumstances [see Barranco v. Comm'r, T.C. Memo 2003-18 (relief denied; wife had constructive knowledge and enjoyed comfortable lifestyle and financial security with culpable husband); Penfield v. Comm'r, T.C. Memo 2002-254 (former spouse's intervention showed that spouse seeking relief had knowledge of unreported pension withdrawal)]. In deciding whether a taxpayer has carried his or her burden of proof, witness credibility is an important consideration [see Ishizaki v. Comm'r, T.C. Memo 2001-318] . Actual knowledge of the impropriety of the tax return always forecloses relief [see, e.g., Cullen v. Comm'r, T.C. Memo 2004-176 (relief denied when husband knew estranged wife was employed but failed to report her income on joint return); Entezam v. Comm'r, T.C. Memo 2003-253 (relief denied; spouse actively involved in husband's business operations and record-keeping, and had actual knowledge of large amounts of unreported income)]. However, the courts have been inconsistent in the treatment of taxpayers who knew of the underlying economic facts, but not of their proper tax effect. There is important authority for the proposition that knowledge of the transaction alone is sufficient to deny relief [Purcell v. Commissioner (6th Cir. 1987), 826 F.2d 470 ; Quinn v. Commissioner (7th Cir. 1975) 524 F.2d 617] . However, other decisions have granted relief when the spouse knew of the transaction--such as the payment of an item that was claimed as a deduction--but did not understand the impropriety of its treatment by the other spouse on the joint tax return [Price v. Commissioner (9th Cir. 1989) 887 F.2d 959 ; Guth v. Commissioner (9th Cir. 1990) 897 F.2d 441 ; but see Capehart v. Comm'r, T.C. Memo 2004-268 (relief denied when wife held tax shelter partnership units in joint tenancy with spouse); Bartak v. Comm'r, T.C. Memo 2004-83 (relief denied when wife participated in tax shelter with reluctance but was not abused or coerced); Doyel v. Comm'r, T.C. Memo 2004-35 (relief denied when spouse was aware of large tax shelter deductions taken on joint returns); Mora v. Comm'r (2001) 117 T.C. 279 (relief denied when spouse lacked factual knowledge of tax shelter, but had "reason to know" of understatement, given size of losses relative to income)]. Even when there was actual knowledge of the impropriety of the tax return, the Tax Court has granted innocent spouse relief in compelling circumstances, such as when a battered wife was too frightened to question her husband about their return [Aude v. Commissioner, T.C. Memo. 1997-478] .

When a taxpayer lacks actual knowledge, he or she must not have had "reason to know" of the deficiency. The following factors are generally consulted in making this determination [Laird v. Commissioner, T.C. Memo. 1994-564] :

1. The presence of unusual or lavish expenditures;

2. Whether the couple's standard of living improved significantly;

3. Participation in business affairs or bookkeeping by the party claiming innocent spouse status;

4. The culpable spouse's openness or refusal to be forthright concerning the couple's income and business transactions; and

5. The level of education, business knowledge, and experience of the party claiming innocent spouse status.

In determining whether, under all the facts and circumstances, it is inequitable to impose joint and several liability, certain factors have been given special weight under prior law. The most important is whether the spouse claiming relief significantly benefited from the understatement of tax [Ebeling v. Commissioner, T.C. Memo. 1994-277 ; Walker v. Commissioner, T.C. Memo. 1985-278 ; see Alt v. Comm'r (2002) 119 T.C. 306, 313-315 (relief denied; wife benefited from deficiencies, was not deceived, and would not experience economic hardship if not granted relief); Treas. Reg. § 1.6013-5(b)]. But the significance of the benefit is measured against the taxpayer's normal standard of living, and thus more affluent taxpayers are more likely to obtain relief than lessaffluent ones [Hinds v. Commissioner, T.C. Memo. 1988-426] . The courts have also weighed the probable future hardship to the spouse if relief is not granted, and have found such hardship even when a spouse, now divorced, received a fair distribution of the marital assets [Dillon v. Commissioner, T.C. Memo. 1998-5] .

I.R.C. § 6015(b) departed from prior law in eliminating any requirement that the understatement of tax be "substantial," and thus relief is available without regard to the dollar amount of the deficiency [see former I.R.C. § 6013(e)(3),(4)].

A much more important change, however, was the removal of the former requirement that the tax items at issue be "grossly" erroneous, having "no basis in law or fact" [see former I.R.C. § 6013(e); Friedman v. Commissioner (2d Cir. 1995) 53 F.3d 523] . The practical impact of this revision in the courts is uncertain. For example, assume that (as is very common) a husband takes a tax position on the advice of an accountant for which there was significant legal support. If this position is ultimately rejected in the Tax Court, the wife (or ex-wife) may attempt to disavow liability simply on the basis that the "erroneous" deduction was attributable to the husband. The statute would seem to allow relief in cases in which there is no serious claim of fraud toward either against the spouse or the fisc, and perhaps only honest error. The courts may choose to place greater emphasis on the requirement that relief be equitable in order to prevent dilution of the principle of joint and several liability when both spouses benefitted financially from a disallowed deduction or credit.

Prior law was confusing on the issue of whether innocent spouse relief was available when the spouse knew something of the deficiency, but not of its magnitude. The language of the statute could be read to eliminate relief when a spouse had knowledge to any extent, although at least one court had decided otherwise [Wiksell v. Commissioner (9th Cir. 1996) 90 F.3d 1459] . The new statute explicitly provides that, when the spouse is unaware of the extent of the understatement, relief is available as to the portion of the understatement of which he or she was without knowledge [I.R.C. § 6015(b)(2)].

[iv] Separate Liability Election for Divorced or Separated Taxpayers--Generally

I.R.C. § 6015(c), applicable only to taxpayers who are no longer married to or living with the other joint filer, is significantly more liberal than I.R.C. § 6015(b) (§ 227.19[2][g][iii]). It provides for what amounts to an election to revoke joint return status with respect to tax deficiencies determined after separation or divorce. Subject to limited exception, subsection (c) limits a taxpayer's liability on the joint return to his or her "portion" of the deficiency, which is determined under I.R.C. § 6015(d) [see § 227.19[2][g][v]].

A person who elects the application of subsection (c) bears the burden of proof with respect to establishing the portion of the deficiency allocable to that person, except as provided in I.R.C. § 6015(c)(3)(A)(ii), or I.R.C. § 6015(c)(3)(C)--which, respectively, concern persons who were not members of the same household during the 12 months preceding the filing of the election, and certain deficiencies not covered by the election (discussed below) [I.R.C. § 6015(c)(2)].

The threshold issue is whether a taxpayer can elect relief. An individual is eligible to elect the application of I.R.C. § 6015(c) if [I.R.C. § 6015(c)(3)(A)(i); Jonson v. Comm'r (2002) 118 T.C. 106 (deceased spouse, married at time of death, does not meet eligibility requirements of I.R.C. § 6015(c))]:

1. At the time the election is filed, the individual is no longer married to, or is legally separated from, the person with whom he or she filed the joint return to which the election relates; or

2. The individual was not a member of the same household as the person with whom the joint return was filed at any time during the 12-month period ending on the date the election is filed.

However, the election may nonetheless be voided by a fraudulent transfer of assets between individuals. The statute provides that if the Internal Revenue Service demonstrates that assets were transferred between individuals filing a joint return as part of a fraudulent scheme by them, an election under I.R.C. § 6015(c) by either individual will be invalid and joint and several liability will apply to the joint return [I.R.C. § 6015(c)(3)(A)(ii)]. The intention is to prevent spouses from colluding to defraud the public fisc by transferring assets to a spouse who then seeks innocent spouse relief.

With respect to timing of the election, the statute provides that an election for any taxable year must be made not later than two years after the date on which the Internal Revenue Service has begun collection activities with respect to the individual making the election [I.R.C. § 6015(c)(3)(B)].

The only significant barrier to relief applies to a taxpayer who, at the time he or she signed the return, had actual knowledge of the tax item giving rise to the deficiency. The statute, significantly, places the burden on the Internal Revenue Service to demonstrate that the individual making an election had actual knowledge at the time he or she signed the return of any item giving rise to a deficiency (or portion of it) that is not allocable to that individual under

I.R.C. § 6015(d) (§ 227.19[2][g][v]). If this is shown, the election will not apply to the deficiency (or portion).

Nevertheless, even a taxpayer with actual knowledge may still obtain relief if he or she can establish that the return was signed under duress [I.R.C. § 6015(c)(3)(C); see, e.g., Cullen v. Comm'r, T.C. Memo 2004- 176 (relief denied when husband had actual knowledge of estranged wife's unreported income and joint return was not signed under duress); Aude v. Commissioner, T.C. Memo. 1997-478 (construing prior law)].

In the context of disallowed deductions, a taxpayer with actual knowledge of a claimed deduction must lack actual knowledge of the factual circumstances that made the item at issue nondeductible [King v. Comm'r, 116 T.C. 198 (2001) (spouse unaware that husband lacked profit motive for cattle-raising activity); see I.R.C. § 6015(c)(3)(C)]. Also, a taxpayer with actual knowledge of income but with only a superficial knowledge of a spouse's complex business transactions and the amount of financial gain, or a taxpayer unaware that a spouse has not accounted for all income, may be granted relief [Martin (Evelyn M.) v. Commissioner,T.C. Memo. 2000-346 ; Charlton (Fredie L.) v. Commissioner, 114 T.C. 333, 341-342 (2000)] . However, a taxpayer who is aware of omitted income but unaware of applicable tax laws, or a taxpayer who merely avoids reviewing or "turns a blind eye" to facts on a joint tax return, will be denied relief [Von Kalinowski (Julian O.) v. Commissioner, T.C. Memo. 2001-21 ; Cheshire (Kathryn) v. Commissioner, 115 T.C. 183 (2000)] . If a taxpayer has actual knowledge of some misreported items but not others, relief will be denied or granted accordingly [see, e.g., Orsino v. Comm'r, T.C. Memo 2003-174 (relief denied on husband's early 401(k) withdrawal but granted on husband's savings bond interest)].

Note that the "actual knowledge" standard is much more liberal than the "reason to know" standard in subsection (b) and in prior law. If a taxpayer did not know of the other spouse's understatements, it does not matter whether he or she was negligent or reckless in failing to notice the problem. The courts often see cases in which a wife signs a joint return reporting little or no income for a year in which the couple spent considerable amounts of money. Under prior law, a court could readily find that the wife "had reason to know" that the tax return was false or fraudulent, and thus avoid the issue of whether she had actual knowledge (see [b], above). Unlike subsection (b), the subsection (c) separate liability election does not contain an equity standard that a court might use to protect the public fisc.

I.R.C. § 6015(c)(4) provides that the portion of any deficiency for which an individual making an election is otherwise liable will be increased by the value of any "disqualified asset" transferred to the individual, but the election is not invalidated, and only the value of the transferred assets is excluded from the amount of the deficiency covered by the election [I.R.C. § 6015(c)(4)]. In general, a "disqualified asset" is any property or right to property transferred to an individual making the election by the other individual filing the joint return if the principal purpose of the transfer was the avoidance of tax or payment of tax. For this purpose, any transfer that is made after a date that is one year before the date on which the first letter of proposed deficiency that allows the taxpayer an opportunity for administrative review in the Internal Revenue Service Office of Appeals is sent will be presumed to have as its principal purpose the avoidance of tax or payment of tax. However, this presumption will not apply to any transfer pursuant to a decree of divorce or separate maintenance or a written instrument incident to such a decree, or to any transfer that an individual establishes did not have as its principal purpose the avoidance of tax or payment or tax [I.R.C. § 6015(c)(4); but see Ohrman v. Comm'r, T.C. Memo 2003-301 (spouse who obtained legal separation to shield assets from IRS efforts to collect tax deficiency caused by husband's gambling addiction received transfer of disqualified assets)].

[v] Separate Liability Election for Divorced or Separated Taxpayers--Allocation of Deficiency

I.R.C. § 6015(c) limits an electing taxpayer's liability to the portion of the joint return deficiency "properly allocable to the individual under subsection (d)" [I.R.C. § 6015(c)(1)]. As explained further hereafter, the statutory allocation is achieved by dividing the items of omitted income or disallowed deductions that generated the deficiency between the spouses, and then dividing the tax liability in the same proportion [I.R.C. § 6015(d)(1)]. The fact that the division is based on items of income and deduction explains the special rule for tax credits and taxes other than the income tax or minimum tax, which are allocated separately [I.R.C. § 6015(d)(2)].

Under I.R.C. § 6015(d), the portion of any deficiency on a joint return allocated to an individual is the amount that bears the same ratio to the deficiency as the net amount of items taken into account in computing the deficiency and allocable to the individual under paragraph (3) of that section bears to the net amount of all items taken into account in computing the deficiency [I.R.C. § 6015(d)(1)].

If a deficiency (in whole or in part) is attributable to (1) the disallowance of a credit, or (2) any tax (other than tax imposed by I.R.C. § 1 or 55) required to be included with the joint return, and that item is allocated to one person under I.R.C. § 6015(d)(3), the deficiency will be allocated to that person. Any item of that nature will not be taken into account under I.R.C. § 6015(d)(1)--the general deficiency apportionment discussed in the first paragraph above [I.R.C. § 6015(d)(2)].

Statute sets forth an allocation of items giving rise to the deficiency. Subject to two exceptions discussed hereafter, any item giving rise to a deficiency on a joint return must be allocated to the individuals filing the return in the same manner as it would have been allocated if the individuals had filed separate returns for the taxable year [I.R.C. § 6015(d)(3)(A)]. Note that community property laws aredisregarded (see [a], above), which would otherwise require each spouse to report half of all community income and deductions on separate returns [I.R.C. § 6015(a)]. Wage income is allocated to the spouse performing the job and receiving the Form W-2. Business and investment income (including capital gains) is allocated in the same proportion as the ownership of the business or investment that produces the income. If the ownership of the business or investment is held by both spouses as joint tenants, it is expected that any income is allocated equally to each spouse, in the absence of clear and convincing evidence supporting a different allocation. The allocation of business deductions is expected to follow the ownership of the business. Personal deductions are expected to be allocated equally between the spouses, unless the evidence shows that a different allocation is appropriate--such as the situation in which an overvalued charitable deduction is made with the sole property of one of the spouses [S. Rep. No. 105-174].

There are, however, exceptions to the general allocation rule discussed above. First, an item otherwise allocable to any individual under I.R.C. § 6015(d)(3)(A) must be allocated to the other individual filing the joint return to the extent the item gave rise to a tax benefit on the joint return to the other individual [I.R.C. § 6015(d)(3)(B); Mora v. Comm'r (2001) 117 T.C. 279 (innocent spouse relief limited due to receipt of tax benefit)]. Second, the Internal Revenue Service may provide for an allocation of any item in a manner not prescribed by I.R.C. § 6015(d)(3)(A) if the Internal Revenue Service establishes that the allocation is appropriate due to the fraud of one or both individuals [I.R.C. § 6015(d)(3)(A)].

Under I.R.C. § 6015(d), limitations on separate returns are disregarded. Accordingly, if a deduction or credit is disallowed in its entirety solely because a separate return is filed, that disallowance must be disregarded and the item computed as if a joint return had been filed and then allocated between the spouses appropriately [I.R.C. § 6015(d)(4)].

In addition, if the liability of a taxpayer's child is included on a joint return, that liability must be disregarded in computing the separate liability of either spouse and that liability must be allocated appropriately between the spouses [I.R.C. § 6015(d)(5)].

[vi] General Equitable Relief

I.R.C. § 6015(f), applicable to all taxpayers who file a joint return [see Raymond v. Comm'r (2002) 119 T.C. 191 , No. 11], provides general equitable relief to taxpayers who cannot qualify for innocent spouse relief under I.R.C. § 6015(b) or (c). Under subsection (f), the IRS has discretion to grant equitable relief if, after taking into account all the facts and circumstances, it is inequitable to hold a taxpayer liable for any unpaid tax or deficiency, and relief is unavailable under subsections (b) or (c) [I.R.C. § 6015(f)(1), (2)].

A common situation giving rise to the need for equitable relief occurs when income is properly reported on a joint return, but the tax remains unpaid due to the actions of the other spouse [see, e.g., Wiest v. Comm'r, T.C. Memo 2003-91 (relief granted); Collier v. Comm'r, T.C. Memo 2002-144 (relief denied)].

Standards for granting discretionary relief under I.R.C. § 6015(f) are found in Rev. Proc. 2003-61 Rev. Proc. 2003-61, 2003-32 I.R.B. 296 [Rev. Proc. 2003-61, 2003-32 I.R.B. 296 (supersedes Rev. Proc. 2000-15, 2000-1 C.B. 447 , effective for requests for relief filed on or after November 1, 2003)]. To be considered for equitable relief, all of the following conditions must be met [(Rev. Proc. 200361, 2003-32 I.R.B. 296 supersedes Rev. Proc. 2000-15, 2000-1 C.B. 447 , effective for requests for relief filed on or after November 1, 2003)]:

1. The spouse seeking relief filed a joint return for the taxable year for which relief is sought;

2. Relief is not available to the spouse under I.R.C. § 6015(b) or 6015(c);

3. The spouse applies for relief no later than two years after the date of the IRS's first collection activity after July 22, 1998, with respect to the spouse;

4. No assets were transferred between the spouses filing the joint return as part of a fraudulent scheme;

5. There were no disqualified assets (as defined in I.R.C. § 6015(c)(4)(B)) transferred to the spouse seeking relief by the other spouse [see, e.g., Ohrman v. Comm'r, T.C. Memo 2003-301] ; or if disqualified assets were transferred, then relief will be available only to the extent that the liability exceeds the value of the disqualified assets;

6. The spouse seeking relief did not file the return with fraudulent intent; and

7. The income tax liability from which the spouse seeks relief is attributable to an item of the other spouse [see, e.g., Feldman v. Comm'r, T.C. Memo 2003-201] , unless an item attributable or partially attributable to the spouse seeking relief falls under one of four exceptions based on (a) attribution solely due to the operation of community property law, (b) nominal ownership, (c) misappropriation of funds, or (d) abuse not amounting to duress.

Once the threshold conditions are met, equitable relief will ordinarily be granted in cases involving an unpaid liability on a joint return, if all of thefollowing elements are satisfied [Rev. Proc. 2003-61, 2003-32 I.R.B. 296 (supersedes Rev. Proc. 2000-15, 2000-1 C.B. 447 , effective for requests for relief filed on or after November 1, 2003); see, e.g., Feldman v. Comm'r, T.C. Memo 2003-201 (relief denied)]:

1. The spouse seeking relief is no longer married to, or is legally separated from, the other spouse, or has not been a member of the same household as the other spouse at any time during the 12-month period ending on the date relief was requested;

2. At the time the return was signed, the spouse seeking relief had no knowledge or reason to know that the tax would not be paid [see, e.g., George v. Comm'r, T.C. Memo 2004-261 (relief denied when widow claimed she believed taxes reported on returns she signed after husband's death had already been paid by husband); Wiest v. Comm'r, T.C. Memo 2003-91 (relief granted); Collier v. Comm'r, T.C. Memo 2002-144 (relief denied when spouse failed to demonstrate lack of knowledge)] and it was reasonable for the spouse to believe that the other spouse would pay the reported liability; and

3. The spouse seeking relief will suffer economic hardship (based on rules similar to those provided in I.R.S. Regulations on Procedure and Administration § 301.6343-1(b)(4)) [see, e.g., Washington v. Comm'r (2003) 120 T.C. 137, 149-150 (relief granted; spouse would suffer great economic hardship if not relieved of tax liability); Castle v. Comm'r, T.C. Memo 2002-142 (relief denied when spouse failed to demonstrate inability to meet basic living expenses if required to pay tax liability)] if relief is not granted.

If a spouse fails, or is ineligible for, this primary test, then additional factors listed in Rev. Proc. 2003-61 may be considered and balanced to grant equitable relief [see Rev. Proc. 2003-61, 2003-32 I.R.B. 296 (supersedes Rev. Proc. 2000-15, 2000-1 C.B. 447 , effective for requests for relief filed on or after November 1, 2003); see, e.g., Abeid v. Comm'r, 122 T.C. 404 (relief granted after step-by-step analysis of factors under former Rev. Proc. 2000-15)]. Factors that may be relevant include, but are not limited to: (1) the marital status of the spouse seeking relief (namely, whether he or she is separated or divorced from the other spouse); (2) whether the spouse seeking relief will suffer economic hardship if relief is not granted; (3) whether the spouse seeking relief knew or had reason to know that a liability would not be paid or would give rise to a deficiency [see, e.g., Capehart v. Comm'r, T.C. Memo 2004-268 (relief denied to taxpayer who failed to satisfy "duty of inquiry" regarding tax shelter investments); Sjodin v. Comm'r, T.C. Memo 2004-205 (relief denied to wife whose husband kept financial records in locked office because wife had reason to know from signed joint returns that taxes would not be paid); Demirjian v. Comm'r, T.C. Memo 2004-22 (relief denied to taxpayer charged with constructive knowledge of understatement due to her failure to fulfill "duty of inquiry" regarding amended return); Feldman v. Comm'r, T.C. Memo 2003-201 (relief denied when spouse had duty to investigate blatant factual inconsistencies in tax returns)]; (4) whether the other spouse has a legal obligation to pay the outstanding liability pursuant to a divorce decree or agreement (unless the spouse seeking relief knew or had reason to know that the other spouse would not pay the liability); (5) whether the spouse seeking relief received a significant benefit (beyond normal support) from the unpaid liability or item giving rise to the deficiency; and (6) whether the spouse seeking relief has made a good faith effort to comply with income tax laws in the years following the taxable year or years related to the request for relief [Rev. Proc. 2003-61, 2003-32 I.R.B. 296 (supersedes Rev. Proc. 2000-15, 2000-1 C.B. 447 , effective for requests for relief filed on or after November 1, 2003)].

"Reason to know" of the item giving rise to the deficiency is not weighed more heavily than other factors. In determining whether the spouse seeking relief had reason to know, the IRS will consider the spouse's level of education, the other spouse's deceit or evasiveness if present, the spouse's involvement in the activity generating the liability, the spouse's involvement in business and household financial matters, the spouse's business or financial expertise, and any lavish or unusual expenditures compared with past spending levels [Rev. Proc. 2003-61, 2003-32 I.R.B. 296 (supersedes Rev. Proc. 2000-15, 2000-1 C.B. 447 , effective for requests for relief filed on or after November 1, 2003); see Ziegler v. Comm'r, T.C. Memo 2003-282 (relief denied; evidence spouse was misled by other spouse insufficient to overcome evidence that spouse had reason to know of omission of own earned income)].

Actual knowledge of the item giving rise to the deficiency is a strong factor weighing against relief [see, e.g., Cullen v. Comm'r, T.C. Memo 2004-176 (relief denied to former husband who had actual knowledge of estranged wife's unreported income at time of filing joint return)], but the factor may be overcome if factors in favor of relief are particularly compelling [Rev. Proc. 2003-61, 2003-32 I.R.B. 296 (supersedes Rev. Proc. 2000-15, 2000-1 C.B. 447 , effective for requests for relief filed on or after November 1, 2003); see, e.g., Foor v. Comm'r, T.C. Memo 2004-54 (relief granted despite fact that taxpayer should have known taxes would not be paid, due to existence of unusually strong factors in favor of relief); Washington v. Comm'r (2003) 120 T.C. 137, 148-152 (relief granted; compelling reasons existed for IRS to grant discretionary relief even if spouse was aware that tax liability would not be paid)].

Factors that will weigh in favor of equitable relief include, but are not limitedto: (1) whether the other spouse abused the spouse seeking relief [see, e.g., Sjodin v. Comm'r, T.C. Memo 2004-205 (spouse's controlling and secretive nature did not constitute abuse); Bartak v. Comm'r, T.C. Memo 2004-83 (relief denied when wife participated in tax shelter with reluctance but was not abused or coerced)], and (2) whether the spouse seeking relief was in poor mental or physical health on the date the spouse signed the tax return [Rev. Proc. 2003-61, 2003-32 I.R.B. 296 (supersedes Rev. Proc. 2000-15, 2000-1 C.B. 447 , effective for requests for relief filed on or after November 1, 2003)].

A key requirement is that the spouse seeking relief reasonably assumed that the other spouse paid the tax or deficiency [see, e.g., Wiest v. Comm'r, T.C. Memo 2003-91 (relief granted partly due to showing that innocent spouse's W-2 forms were found in trunk of car belonging to deceptive spouse who had supposedly filed tax returns); Castle v. Comm'r, T.C. Memo 2002-142 (relief denied)]. The spouse needs to demonstrate concrete grounds for his or her assumption [see Castle v. Comm'r, T.C. Memo 2002-142 (relief denied despite spouse's testimony that she had no reason to know at time she signed return that tax would not be paid)].

Because Rev. Proc. 2003-61 [Rev. Proc. 2003-61, 2003-32 I.R.B. 296 (supersedes Rev. Proc. 2000-15, 2000-1 C.B. 447 , effective for requests for relief filed on or after November 1, 2003)] permits great latitude in balancing the equitable factors, it appears that taxpayers who cannot satisfy the primary test for relief under I.R.C. § 6015(f) will usually be unsuccessful in obtaining relief by claiming that the IRS abused its discretion in considering the equitable factors [see Wallace v. Comm'r, T.C. Memo 2003-330 (relief denied spouse who owed liability on own income, knew liability would be unpaid, significantly benefited from nonpayment, and suffered no economic hardship); Penfield v. Comm'r, T.C. Memo 2002-254 (relief denied absent hardship, demonstrated lack of knowledge); Castle v. Comm'r, T.C. Memo 2002-142 (relief denied absent hardship, spousal abuse, and sole liability of other spouse); Collier v. Comm'r, T.C. Memo 2002-144 (relief denied when spouse benefited from nonpayment of taxes); but see Foor v. Comm'r, T.C. Memo 2004-54 (relief granted despite wife's knowledge that husband was not likely to pay taxes, due to existence of unusually strong factors in favor of equitable relief); Washington v. Comm'r (2003) 120 T.C. 137, 148-152 (relief granted; compelling reasons existed for IRS to grant discretionary relief even if spouse was aware tax liability would not be paid); Wiest v. Comm'r, T.C. Memo 2003-91 (relief granted; IRS made arbitrary findings on spouse's lack of knowledge and liability attributable to other spouse)].

[vii] Tax Court Review

The election procedures for both innocent spouse relief under I.R.C. § 6015(b) and the separate liability election under I.R.C. § 6015(c) anticipate a determination by the IRS If the election is denied, the taxpayer may petition the Tax Court for review. The petition must be filed 90 days following the date on which the denial is mailed or (if earlier) six months after the election is filed [I.R.C. § 6015(e)(1); see, e.g., Raymond (Ranie M.) v. Commissioner (2002)]. The Tax Court has jurisdiction to decide the applicability of relief, but its jurisdiction in "stand alone" cases brought under I.R.C. § 6015(e) is limited to reviewing the IRS's denial of relief available under I.R.C. § 6015(b), (c), and (f) from an otherwise existing joint and several tax liability [I.R.C. § 6015(e)(1)(A); Block v. Comm'r (2003) 120 T.C. 62 (no jurisdiction to determine whether taxpayer's underlying assessment was barred by statute of limitations)]. Review of denial of relief is a de novo proceeding based on an abuse of discretion standard, and is not limited to matter contained in the IRS's administrative record [Ewing v. Comm'r (2004) 122 T.C. 32] . The Tax Court loses jurisdiction if the year at issue is the subject of a tax refund suit in the other federal courts [I.R.C. § 6015(e)(3)(A)].

If a current or former spouse seeks innocent spouse relief from the IRS outside a deficiency proceeding, the other ("nonelecting") spouse may participate in any administrative proceedings [I.R.C. § 6015(e); see also Corson (Thomas) v. Commissioner (2000) 114 T.C. 354, 364-365 ; Hale Exemption Trust v. Commissioner, T.C. Memo. 2001-89] . However, the nonelecting spouse may not seek judicial review of an administrative grant of innocent spouse relief by the IRS, unless the electing spouse has filed a deficiency, stand-alone, or collection review proceeding [Maier (John, III) v. Commissioner (2002)]. The Tax Court is required to establish rules that provide an individual who has filed a joint return but who has not made the election adequate notice and an opportunity to join the proceeding as a party [I.R.C. § 6015(e)(4); Van Arsdalen (Diana) v. Commissioner (2004) 123 T.C. 135, 140-143 (spouse may intervene to support other spouse's claim); Corson v. Commissioner (2000) 114 T.C. 354, 360-361 (spouse may intervene to oppose other spouse's claim)].

[viii] California Law

The California personal income tax law contains an innocent spouse provision similar to the federal provision in effect prior to 1998 [see Rev. and Tax. Code § 18533]. Until January 1, 2009, a taxpayer who is granted relief under I.R.C. § 6015 is eligible for California relief if the facts and circumstances are the same [Rev. and Tax. Code § 18533(i) (sunset Rev. and Tax. Code § 18533(m))]. In addition, the Franchise Tax Board (FTB) may relieve a spouse of liability for nonpayment of taxes (including interest and penalties) for any year in which a joint return is filed. The spouse must establish that he or she did not know, and hadno reason to know, of the nonpayment at the time the return was filed [Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 18533(b), 19006(c)(2)].

A spouse cannot be relieved of liability for tax on income earned by, or subject to the exclusive management of, that spouse. The liability of a spouse for the tax, penalties, and interest due for the taxable year must be in the same ratio to the total tax, penalties, and interest due for the taxable year as the income earned by or subject to the management and control of the spouse is to the total gross income reportable on the return [Rev. & Tax. Code § 19006(c)(1)(A)]. Moreover, relief by the FTB cannot lower a spouse's liability by more than the amount actually paid on the liability (including credits from other taxable years available to be applied against the liability) before relief is granted [Rev. & Tax. Code § 19006(c)(1)(B)].

The FTB must wait at least 30 days after notifying the other spouse before revising the liability of the innocent spouse. The FTB must decide whether, under all the facts and circumstances, it would be inequitable to hold the spouse requesting relief liable [Rev. & Tax. Code § 19006(c)(4)].

[h] Family Court Enforcement of Tax Liabilities Despite Federal "Innocent Spouse" Treatment

Despite the treatment of a party as an "innocent spouse" under federal law, a state family law court is not precluded from enforcing a preexisting provision of an agreement and judgment that requires both spouses to equally share tax obligations. Federal recognition of a party as an "innocent spouse" is an administrative determination--typically involving an administrative hearing or informal negotiation--and is not a formal adjudication of rights and duties as between the spouses. The federal statute that permits innocent spouse relief [I.R.C. § 6015] does not preempt a state court's ability to impose federal tax liability on an innocent spouse [In re Marriage of Hargrave (1995) 36 Cal. App. 4th 1313, 1320-1321, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 474] . Courts have observed that the "federal government has no interest in how states allocate tax liability between divorcing spouses, as long as they do not interfere with IRS collection efforts." The important federal interest, in those courts' view, is the right of the IRS to obtain direct payment of federal taxes from the party of its choosing, rather than in determining how state court's allocate liability between the spouses [In re Marriage of Hargrave (1995) 36 Cal. App. 4th 1313, 1320-1321, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 474 ; see Ravetti v. United States (9th Cir. 1994) 37 F.3d 1393, 1396-1396] .

[3] Married Taxpayers Filing Separately

[a] General Rules

Spouses may file separate income tax returns and be subject to the rate schedules for married persons filing separately [I.R.C. § 1(d), (i)]. The use of separate returns almost always results in a higher total tax than a joint return, and precludes eligibility for the earned income credit [Becker v. C.I.R., T.C. Memo. 1995-177] . Thus, separate returns typically are used only if one or both spouses seek to avoid joint and several tax liability because, for example, the spouses are separated. If separate returns are used in a community property jurisdiction, the general rule is that each spouse must report one-half of the community income and all of his or her separate income [Poe v. Seaborn (1930) 282 U.S. 101, 118, 51 S. Ct. 58, 75 L. Ed. 239 ; Mischel (Francis Z.) v. Commissioner, T.C. Memo. 1997-350 ; Prop. Treas. Reg. § 1.66-1, Reg. 115054-01, 2002-7 I.R.B. 530 (2/19/02) (published at 67 FR 2841 (January 22, 2002))] . The earnings of either spouse or the income from community property (including gains or losses from any sales or exchanges) are divided equally between the spouses; income from separate property is taxable to the owner spouse alone. Quasi-community property is separate property during marriage, and therefore the income from quasi-community property is separate income for tax purposes [see Sbicca v. Commissioner (1960) 35 T.C. 96] .

In short, federal tax law generally follows state-created property rights in determining what income is taxable to each spouse filing a separate return. This rule may represent a hardship if, despite each spouse's legal right to one-half of the community income, one spouse is taxed on community income to which he or she has no practical access. In recognition of this problem, the Internal Revenue Code provides that, in certain instances, community income can be treated as separate income for income tax purposes. Community income may be recharacterized as separate income if the spouses are separated for the entire year [I.R.C. § 66(a)], if one spouse does not notify the other spouse of the existence of community income [I.R.C. § 66(b)], or if it is inequitable to one of the spouses to treat income as community property [I.R.C. § 66(c)].

If either spouse is a nonresident alien, the community income of the spouses is recharacterized as separate income for income tax purposes according to special rules [I.R.C. § 879(a)]. In addition, the earnings of a child are taxable to the child alone, regardless of the fact that the earnings may be community or separate property of the parents under California law [I.R.C. § 73].

PRACTICE TIP:

A joint return filed early can be changed to a separate filing if the separate return is filed before the last filing date for either spouse. A joint return filed after the last filing date cannot be changed. A separate return can be changed to a joint return at any time within three years of the last date to file a separate return (without extensions). If one spouse has a risky financial record, file a separate return, with an agreement to amend the filing to a joint return (if this is otherwise permissible) after an audit or other protection is in place.

[b] Treatment and Recharacterization of Income of Spouses Living Apart

Under California law, the earnings of a spouse while living separate and apart from the other spouse are the separate property of the earning spouse [Fam. Code § 771]. This provision applies only if the spouses have separated with no present intention of resuming the marital relationship [In re Marriage of Imperato (1975) 45 Cal. App. 3d 432, 435, 119 Cal. Rptr. 590] . If spouses separate without intending a final break in the marital relationship, the earnings of each spouse continue to be treated as community property. Earnings of separated spouses that are treated as community property under California law are also treated as community property for federal and California income tax purposes. The earnings may be treated as separate property for federal income tax purposes, however, under I.R.C. § 66(a). California personal income tax law does not have a similar provision for recharacterizing the community income of separated spouses.

Community income of separated spouses may be recharacterized for federal income tax purposes under I.R.C. § 66(a), if each spouse files a separate return reporting only his or her separate income as recharacterized. In addition, to qualify for separate property tax treatment of community income, the spouses must meet all of the following requirements [I.R.C. § 66(a)]:

- They are married to each other at any time during the calendar year.
- They live apart at all times during the calendar year.
- They do not file a joint return with each other for a taxable year beginning or ending during the calendar year.
- One or both have "earned income" that is community income for the calendar year, no portion of which is transferred directly or indirectly between them before the close of the calendar year [see Layman, II (Daniel F.) v. Commissioner, T.C. Memo. 1999-218 (income earned by separated spouse living in community property state was divisible between spouses for tax purposes, even though other spouse was domiciled in separate property jurisdiction)].

"Earned income" is defined as wages, salaries, or professional fees, together with other amounts received as compensation for personal services actually rendered. Earned income does not include compensation for personal services rendered by the taxpayer to a corporation, if the compensation represents a distribution of earnings and profits rather than a reasonable allowance for services actually rendered. If the taxpayer is engaged in a trade or business in which both personal services and capital are material income-producing factors, a reasonable allowance as compensation for the personal services of the taxpayer is considered earned income. This reasonable allowance may not exceed 30 percent of the taxpayer's share of the net profits of the trade or business [I.R.C. §§ 66(d)(1), 911(b), (d)(2); see I.R.C. § 911(b), prior to amendment by Pub. L. No. 97-34]. Legislative history indicates that de minimis transfers of earned income between spouses are disregarded. Also, payments to or for the benefit of the couples' dependent children are not considered indirect transfers to the recipient spouse solely because the payments satisfy the recipient spouse's child support obligations [H.R. Rep. No. 96-1278, Pub. L. No. 96-605, reprinted at 1980-2 C.B. 709, 711 ; see IRS Publication 555, Federal Tax Information on Community Property]. Legislative history also indicates that Congress conceived of I.R.C. § 66(a) as a protection for abandoned spouses [H.R. Rep. No. 96-1278, Pub. L. No. 96-605, reprinted at 1980-2 C.B. 709, 711]. However, its application is much broader and extends to separated spouses in general, including, for example, spouses separated for work reasons.

If the requirements of I.R.C. § 66(a) are met, the community income of the spouses is recharacterized according to four rules [I.R.C. §§ 66(a), 879(a); Treas. Reg. § 1.879-1(a)]. First, earned income, other than trade or business income or a partner's distributive share of partnership income, is treated as the separate income of the spouse who rendered the personal services [I.R.C. § 879(a)(1)]. Second, community income and deductions derived from a trade or business, other than a trade or business carried on by a partnership, are treated as the separate income and deductions of the spouse carrying on the trade or business, or if the trade or business is jointly operated, its income and deductions are treated as the income and deductions of each spouse on the basis of his or her distributive share [I.R.C. §§ 879(a)(2), 1402(a)(5)(A)]. Third, any portion of a partner's distributive share of ordinary income and loss that is considered community income under state law is treated as the separate income and loss of the partner spouse [I.R.C. §§ 879(a)(2), 1402(a)(5)(B)]. Fourth, any community income not described in th first three rules that is derived from the separate property of one spouse is treated as the separate income of that spouse [I.R.C. § 879(a)(3)]. No other community income is recharacterized for federal income tax purposes [I.R.C. § 879(a)(4)].

[c] Recharacterization of Income by IRS for Failure to Notify Spouse of Community Income

The IRS may disallow the benefits of state community property laws with respect to any income of the taxpayer, if the taxpayer acted as if solely entitled to the income and failed to notify his or her spouse of the nature and amount of the income before the due date (including extensions) for filing the return for the taxable year in which the income was derived [I.R.C. § 66(b)]. Thus, a taxpayer who fails to notify his or her spouse of his or her earnings may be required by the IRS to report all of those earnings (rather than half) as separate income on the taxpayer's separate return [Prop. Treas. Reg. § 1.66-3, Reg. 115054-01, 2002-7 I.R.B. 530 (2/19/02) (published at 67 FR 2841 (January 22, 2002))] . This statute apparently is directed at instances in which the IRS discovers unreported income and the spouse to whom it is attributable claims that half should be taxed to the other spouse.

[i] Distinguished From Recharacterization by IRS

In certain circumstances, taxpayers are permitted to recharacterize community income as separate income for federal tax purposes [I.R.C. § 66(c)]. Although I.R.C. § 66(c) covers much the same ground as I.R.C. § 66(b) [see § 227.19[3][c]], I.R.C. § 66(c) is more helpful because it is directed at the ignorant spouse, rather than the spouse who conceals community income. A taxpayer who is unaware of specific items of community income and fails to report half of it on a separate return is not penalized if the taxpayer meets the requirements for recharacterization of community income provided by I.R.C. § 66(c). Instead, those items will be included in the income of his or her spouse [see, e.g., Dooley v. Commissioner (1992) T.C. Memo 1992-39], and the IRS will issue a deficiency assessment against the spouse if the spouse has not already reported all of the recharacterized items of income [I.R.C. § 66(c); Prop. Treas. Reg. § 1.66-4, Reg. 115054-01, 2002-7 I.R.B. 530 (2/19/02) (published at 67 FR 2841 (January 22, 2002))] .

A taxpayer may recharacterize a specific item of community income as separate income under I.R.C. § 66(c) if four requirements are met. First, the taxpayer has not filed a joint return for the taxable year in question [I.R.C. § 66(c)(1)]. Second, the taxpayer has not, for that taxable year, included in gross income a properly includable item of community income that would be treated as income of the other spouse under the rules contained in I.R.C. § 879(a) [I.R.C. § 66(c)(2)]. Third, the taxpayer establishes that he or she did not know of, and had no reason to know of, the item of community income to be recharacterized [I.R.C. § 66(c)(3); *see*Prop. Treas. Reg. § 1.66-4, Reg. 115054-01, 2002-7 I.R.B. 530 (2/19/02) (published at 67 FR 2841 (January 22, 2002))] . Fourth, it would be inequitable, considering all of the facts and circumstances, to include the item of community income in the taxpayer's gross income [I.R.C. § 66(c)(4); *see*Prop. Treas. Reg. § 1.66-4, Reg. 115054-01, 2002-7 I.R.B. 530 (2/19/02) (published at 67 FR 2841 (January 22, 2002)) ; Rev. Proc. 2003-61, 2003-32 I.R.B. 296 (supersedes Rev. Proc. 2000-15, 2000-1 C.B. 447, effective for requests for relief filed on or after November 1, 2003)].

Although a taxpayer initiates the process by failing to include the items of community income in his or her gross income, the IRS determines whether the taxpayer had no reason to know of the income and whether recharacterization is equitable [see I.R.C. § 66(c)]. In determining whether recharacterization is equitable, the IRS may consider whether the taxpayer benefitted from the income and whether the taxpayer made his or her claim for recharacterization sufficiently promptly to prevent the assessment limitations period from running on the other spouse [House Comm. Report on Tax Reform Act of 1984, § 424, Pub. L. No. 98-369].

Apart from the general requirements for recharacterization of income discussed above, a spouse may be relieved from liability on equitable grounds. If, taking into account all the facts and circumstances, it is inequitable to hold the individual liable for any unpaid tax or any deficiency (or any portion of either) attributable to any item for which relief is not available under (I.R.C. § 66(c)), the IRS may relieve that individual of the liability [I.R.C. § 66(c)].

Ignorant spouse relief under I.R.C. § 66 generally parallels innocent spouse relief under I.R.C. § 6015. Revenue procedures applicable to both provisions are found in Rev. Proc. 2003-61 . Spouses seeking relief under I.R.C. § 66 must file the appropriate IRS "Request for Innocent Spouse Relief" form, and the IRS must notify the other spouse of any request for relief and permit him or her an opportunity to participate in the administrative determination of whether relief is appropriate [Prop. Treas. Reg. § 1.66-4, Reg. 115054-01, 2002-7 I.R.B. 530 (2/19/02) , published at 67 FR 2841 (January 22, 2002) ; Rev. Proc. 2003-61, 2003-32 I.R.B. 296 (supersedes Rev. Proc. 2000-15, 2000-1 C.B. 447 , effective for requests for relief filed on or after November 1, 2003)]. However, the Tax Court lacks jurisdiction to consider a spouse's petition for independent ("stand alone") review of an IRS denial of a claim for equitable relief under I.R.C. § 66, because I.R.C. § 66(c) lacks a provision parallel to I.R.C. § 6015(e) [Bernal v. Comm'r (2003) 120 T.C. 102 ; for discussion of independent review procedure under I.R.C. § 6015(e), see § 227.19[2][g][vii]].

[iii] Proving Ignorance

Many spouses seeking recharacterization of items of community income under I.R.C. § 66(c) have found it difficult to prove that they lacked knowledge of that income. For example, a taxpayer was not permitted to recharacterize any of her husband's community property earnings, even though he placed his earned income in a savings account with his mother and transferred funds from that account to another account he shared with the taxpayer. The taxpayer knew of the earned income, but did not initially know about the separate account. The court denied relief under I.R.C. § 66(c) because the taxpayer knew her husband was earning income that was community property under state law. It noted that she suffered no hardship because her husband used the funds for community expenses [Bozek v. Commissioner (1986) T.C. Memo 1986-37 ; cf., e.g., Hardy v. Comm'r (9th Cir. 1999) 181 F.3d 1002 (wife was taxable on half of community property income earned by husband when she was aware of income); McGee v. Commissioner (1991) T.C. Memo 1991-510 ; Jean Thatcher (1988) 56 T.C.M. 707 (CCH)] .

[iv] Items Subject to Recharacterization

The community income items subject to recharacterization as separate income of the other spouse under I.R.C. § 66(c) are those items that would have been treated as separate income of the other spouse if I.R.C. § 66(a), relating to spouses living apart, had applied [I.R.C. §§ 66(c)(2), 879(a); Treas. Reg. § 1.879-1(a)]. Thus, the earned income of the other spouse, other than trade or business income and a partner's distributive share of partnership income, may be treated as the separate income of that spouse [I.R.C. § 879(a)(1)].

Community income and deductions derived from a trade or business, other than a trade or business carried on by a partnership, also may be shifted to the spouse carrying on the trade or business, or if the trade or business is jointly operated, to each spouse on the basis of his or her distributive share [I.R.C. §§ 879(a)(2), 1402(a)(5)(A); see § 227.19[3][b]].

If a spouse is a partner in a partnership, partnership income and loss that is considered community income or loss under state law may be treated as the separate income of the partner spouse. Any other community income, not described above, that is derived from the separate property of the other spouse may be treated as the separate income of that spouse [I.R.C. § 879(a)(3)].

[4] Status as Head of Household

[a] Qualifying Persons

The tax bracket amounts that apply to a person who qualifies as a head of household are more favorable than those for a person who files as a single person. Accordingly, filing as a head of household is more advantageous than filing as an unmarried individual [compare I.R.C. § 1(b) with I.R.C. § 1(c)]. A head of household is a taxpayer who, at the close of the taxable year, is not married, is not a surviving spouse, and who either [I.R.C. § 2(b)(1) (applicable to tax years beginning after December 31, 2004; *see*Pub. Law 108-311, § 202)]:

1. Maintains as his home a household which for more than one-half of the taxable year is the principal place of abode of a qualifying child of the individual, as defined, or of another relative for whom the taxpayer can claim a dependency exemption [I.R.C. § 2(b)(1)(A); see I.R.C. § 152(c) (qualifying child); I.R.C. § 152(d) (qualifying relative)]; or

2. Maintains a household which for the taxable year is the principal place of abode of the taxpayer's parent for whom the taxpayer can claim a dependency exemption [I.R.C. § 2(b)(1)(B)].

Under no circumstances may the same person be used to qualify more than one person as a head of household for the same taxable year [Treas. Reg. § 1.2-2(b)(2)].

A taxpayer who was a nonresident alien at any time during the taxable year may not be considered to be a head of household [I.R.C. § 2(b)(3)(A)]. Also, head-of-household status is unavailable if the person claimed as a dependent is unrelated to the taxpayer or is deemed a dependent under a multiple support agreement [I.R.C. § 2(b)(3)(B); see I.R.C. § 152(d)(2)(H), (3), see also § 227.12[2][f]].

Under present law, in order for a taxpayer to be considered a head of household for maintaining a household that is the abode for more than six months of a qualifying child or other dependent, the household must be the taxpayer's own home [I.R.C. § 2(b)(1)(A) (applicable to tax years beginning after December 31, 2004)]. Under prior law, there was authority that with respect to a child, it was not sufficient if the taxpayer maintained the household without occupying it [see Stanford (Sharron K. Wirges) T.C. Memo. 1995-78 ; McDonald (Lillie B.) T.C. Memo. 1991-242 (taxpayer who maintained separate principal residences for self and son did not qualify for head of household status)], but there was also authority that the household need not be the taxpayer's sole or principal place of abode, as long as there is a substantial period of cohabitation with the child [see Smith v. Commissioner (9th Cir. 1964) 332 F.2d 671, 673 , reversing 40 T.C. 591 (1963) ; see also Grace v. Commissioner (5th Cir. 1969) 421 F.2d 165, 166 , aff'd, 51 T.C. 685 (1969) ; Muse v. United States (4th Cir. 1970) 434 F.2d 349, 352-353] . There is no cohabitation requirement if the taxpayer maintains a household which for the taxable year is the principal place of abode of the taxpayer's parent [I.R.C. § 2(b)(1)(B); Treas. Reg. § 1.2-2(b)(1), (c)(1)].

The household must constitute the principal place of abode of the child for more than one half of the taxable year [I.R.C. § 2(b)(1)(A)]. Unlike the dependency exemption, head-of-household filing status is not a tax benefit that may be transferred by the custodial parent to the noncustodial parent based on the payment of more than half of a child's support [I.R.C. § 2(b)(1)(A) (applicable to tax years beginning after December 31, 2004, excluding "qualifying child" assigned under I.R.C. § 152(e) to noncustodial parent); see Grace v. Commissioner (5th Cir. [T.C.] 1969) 421 F.2d 165, 166] .

Temporary absences from the household due to special circumstances do not disqualify the taxpayer under the cohabitation requirement. A custody agreement under which a child is absent from the taxpayer's home for less than six months of the year is considered a temporary absence due to special circumstances [Treas. Reg. § 1.2-2(c)(1)].

In order to establish a temporary absence, the taxpayer or child must bereasonably expected to return to the household, and the taxpayer must continue to maintain the household in anticipation of the return [Treas. Reg. § 1.2-2(c)(1); see Addison (Beverly P.) T.C. Memo. 1992-349 (mother did not meet requirements for head-of-household filing status because daughter's absence from home to attend school was not deemed temporary)]. For example, a taxpayer will not be denied head of household status if the qualifying person is temporarily maintained in a mental institution and the household is held open for his or her return [W.J. Hein (1957) 28 T.C. 826, 835] . Head of household status will be denied a parent whose child leaves the family household and establishes a separate residence for more than half the year [see Prendergast v. C.I.R. (9th Cir. 1973) 483 F.2d 970, 971 (decided under prior law requiring taxpayer's home to be child's principal place of residence for entire year)].

The fact that the person for whom the abode is furnished is born or dies within the taxable year will not prevent the taxpayer from qualifying as a head of household if the household constitutes the principal place of abode for the dependent for the remaining or preceding part of the taxable year [Treas. Reg. § 1.2-2(c)(1)].

[c] Costs of Maintaining Household

A taxpayer will be considered as maintaining a household only if he or she pays more than one half of the cost of the household for the taxable year [I.R.C. § 2(b)(1)]. "Cost" includes property taxes, mortgage interest, rent, utility charges, upkeep and repairs, property insurance, and food consumed on the premises. Maintenance costs do not include such items as clothing, education, medical treatment, vacations, life insurance, and transportation [Treas. Reg. § 1.2-2(d)].

The cost of maintaining the household must be distinguished from the costs of supporting the child or other qualifying person. In the case of divorced parents, there is no requirement that the parent claiming head-of-household status pay more than half of the support for the child, as long as he or she pays over half the cost of maintaining the household [Treas. Reg. § 1.2-2(b)(3)(i)]. A custodial parent may release the dependency exemption for a child to a noncustodial parent who pays more than half of the child's support, but still claim head-of-household status [I.R.C. § 2(b)(1)(A)(i); see I.R.C. § 152(e)(2)].

[d] Rights of Certain Married Persons to Head of Household Filing Status

Head-of-household status ordinarily is limited to single persons [I.R.C. § 2(b)(1); compare I.R.C. § 1(b) with I.R.C. § 1(d) (tax rates of head of household and married individuals filing separately); see also I.R.C. § 1(i) (reduced tax rates after 2000)]. However, an individual who is legally separated from his or her spouse under a decree of divorce or of separate maintenance is not considered as married [I.R.C. § 2(b)(2)(A)].

In addition, a married taxpayer who is living apart from his or her spouse is not deemed married, and therefore is eligible to file as a head of household if he or she otherwise qualifies, provided the individual meets all of the following requirements [I.R.C. §§ 2(c), 7703(b); Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 17021.5, 17042; see Treas. Reg. § 1.2-2(e)]:

- Files a separate income tax return;
- Maintains as his or her home a household that is, for more than half of the taxable year, the principal place of abode of a dependent child or stepchild [see I.R.C. § 152(f)(1)];
- Is entitled to a dependency deduction for the child or stepchild;
- Furnishes more than half of the cost of maintaining the household; and
- Does not have, for the last six months of the taxable year, his or her spouse as a member of the household [see Diaz v. Comm'r, T.C. Memo 2004-145 (married taxpayer filing separate return not entitled to earned income credit under I.R.C. § 32(a) absent evidence of date of wife's departure from household)].

Although spouses can be living separate and apart under California law and yet reside under the same roof, the Tax Court refuses to follow this approach, holding instead that a married taxpayer living in the same household with his or her spouse while obtaining a divorce is not eligible to file as a head of household [Hopkins v. Commissioner, T.C. Memo. 1992-326 (head of household status denied taxpayer who occasionally allowed former spouse to sleep in living room because of former spouse's inability to secure housing for himself); Dawkins v. Commissioner, T.C. Memo. 1991-225 (filing status of divorcing taxpayer who lived in separate quarters under same roof with spouse was "married filing separate," not "head of household")]. As a result, because the Ninth Circuit has not specifically addressed this issue, the current rule is that both spouses cannot live under the same roof and be deemed living separate and apart [see Hopkins v. Commissioner, T.C. Memo. 1992-326 ; see also Jackson v. Commissioner (1996), T.C. Memo 1996-54 (taxpayer's home may not constitute "separate household" if it lacks kitchen and telephone privileges); but see Sydnes v. Commissioner (8th Cir. 1978) 577 F.2d 60, 62 (in case involving tax treatment of support payments, Eighth Circuit rejected this strict standard for separated and living apart)].

The taxpayer's spouse will be considered a member of the household during a period in which the spouse is absent from the household temporarily. For example, the spouse will be considered a household member during periods that he or she is away from the household due to illness, educational activities, business, vacation, or military service [Treas. Reg. § 1.143-1(b)(5) (regulation does not reflect change in requirement regarding former spouse's residence fromentire taxable year to last six months of taxable year)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Note that the IRS regularly matches returns of alimony payors and payees. A deficiency notice may be sent to both parties if the payor reports a deduction while the payee fails to include the payments in income.

§ 240.11 Definitions

[1] Easement or Profit

[a] Right to Use Land (Easement)

An easement is a possessory interest in the land of another, by which the owner of the easement is entitled to make limited use of the land [Goble v. Dotson (1962) 203 Cal. App. 2d 272, 277, 21 Cal. Rptr. 769] . An easement involves primarily the right to do a certain act on, or to the detriment of, another's property. It is a restricted right to specific, limited, definable use or activity on another's property and must be less than the right of ownership [Mesnick v. Caton (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 1248, 1261, 228 Cal. Rptr. 779] .

[b] Right to Take From Land (Profit)

A profit (or profit 'a prendre) is a right to take something from another's land, such as a right to remove minerals. It carries the right of entry and the right to remove and take from the land certain products or substances. It includes the right to use as much of the surface as is necessary and convenient for the exercise of the profit. Like an easement, a profit is a possessory interest in land [Costa Mesa Union Sch. Dist. v. Security First Nat. Bk. (1967) 254 Cal. App. 2d 4, 11-12, 62 Cal. Rptr. 113] .

[c] Absence of Legal Distinction

The rules applicable to easements and profits are the same, and the Civil Code designates burdens or servitudes in the nature of a profit as easements [see Civ. Code §§ 801, 802; Gerhard v. Stephens (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 864, 880-881, 890, 69 Cal. Rptr. 612, 442 P.2d 692 ; Leggio v. Haggerty (1965) 231 Cal. App. 2d 873, 879-880, 42 Cal. Rptr. 400] .

[2] Easement Appurtenant or Easement in Gross

[a] Easement Appurtenant; Dominant and Servient Tenements

An easement is appurtenant to land when it is created to benefit, and does benefit, the possessor of the land in his or her use of the land [Leggio v. Haggerty (1965) 231 Cal. App. 2d 873, 880, 42 Cal. Rptr. 400] . The land to which an easement appurtenant is attached is called the dominant tenement, and the land on which the burden of the easement is laid is called the servient tenement [Civ. Code § 803].

[b] Easement in Gross

An easement in gross is a personal possessory interest in the land of another. It is an interest not created to benefit, and that does not benefit, the possessor in the use of his or her land, but merely benefits the possessor personally [Balestra v. Button (1942) 54 Cal. App. 2d 192, 197, 128 P.2d 816] .

[c] Statutory Examples

Examples of rights that may be easements appurtenant are listed in Civ. Code § 801, and examples of rights that may be easements in gross are listed in Civ. Code § 802. However, these sections do not purport to enumerate all possible servitudes [Wright v. Best (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 368, 382, 121 P.2d 702 ; City of Glendora v. Faus (1957) 148 Cal. App. 2d 920, 925-926, 307 P.2d 976] . Other easements may be created as long as no principle of public policy is violated [see Wright v. Best (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 368, 382, 121 P.2d 702] . Additionally, a comparison of Civ. Code §§ 801 and 802 indicates that a particular use or activity can be either an easement in gross or an easement appurtenant, as determined by the terms of the grant or the nature of the use by which it was acquired [Civ. Code § 806; City of Glendora v. Faus (1957) 148 Cal. App. 2d 920, 925-926, 307 P.2d 976] .

In determining whether an easement is in gross or appurtenant, a court will look primarily to the nature of the right and to the intention of the parties. Courts favor easements appurtenant. If the right in question is an appropriate and useful adjunct to the owner's land, and there is nothing to show that the parties intended a mere personal right, the right will be construed as an easement appurtenant to the land [Leggio v. Haggerty (1965) 231 Cal. App. 2d 873, 879, 42 Cal. Rptr. 400] .

When a deed does not expressly declare an easement to be appurtenant, or when the language of the deed is ambiguous, and it does not clearlyappear whether an easement was intended to be in gross or appurtenant, parol evidence is admissible to determine the nature of the easement and to identify a dominant tenement [Continental Baking Co. v. Katz (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 512, 522-523, 67 Cal. Rptr. 761, 439 P.2d 889] .

[3] License Distinguished From Easement

[a] Privilege to Use Land

A license is a personal, generally revocable, and unassignable privilege to do one or more acts on the land of another without possessing an interest in the land [Belmont County Water Dist. v. State of California (1976) 65 Cal. App. 3d 13, 17, 135 Cal. Rptr. 163 ; but see Restatement of Property § 517 (assignability)]. It is essentially an authority to do a lawful act that without authorization would be unlawful, so that as long as the license remains unrevoked, it is a justification for the acts that it authorizes [Fisher v. General Petroleum Corp. (1954) 123 Cal. App. 2d 770, 776, 267 P.2d 841] .

The principal distinction between a license and an easement or profit is that the latter would be fully protected as an interest in land [see [1], above]. Since the rights involved are often similar, similar language may be used in instruments creating easements and licenses, leading to problems of interpretation. In that case, whether an easement or a license has been created is a question of the parties' intent, and the words used to describe the right created are not controlling [see Guerra v. Packard (1965) 236 Cal. App. 2d 272, 286, 46 Cal. Rptr. 25 ; Fisher v. General Petroleum Corp. (1954) 123 Cal. App. 2d 770, 776, 267 P.2d 841] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Courts May Favor Construction of Instrument As Granting Easement Rather Than License. In a case that settled right before trial, this practitioner found that a trial judge favored construing ambiguous language as granting an easement instead of a license. This is consistent with the earlier rule that courts favor interpreting instrument grants as easements running with the land (a real estate interest) rather than an easement in gross (a personal interest). By William M. Hensley

[b] Nonpossessory Interest

Although a license is an interest in land in the sense that it confers a privilege to use land [Restatement of Property § 512, comment c], it does not amount to such an interest as would come within the statute of frauds [Eastman v. Piper (1924) 68 Cal. App. 554, 560, 229 P. 1002 ; see Civ. Code § 1624(a)(3); Code Civ. Proc. § 1971], be compensable in a condemnation proceeding [Belmont County Water Dist. v. State of California (1976) 65Cal. App. 3d 13, 17, 135 Cal. Rptr. 163] , or support an action for trespass or ejectment [Lucky Auto Supply v. Turner (1966) 244 Cal. App. 2d 872, 881, 53 Cal. Rptr. 628] . However, when an irrevocable license is involved [see [4][a], below], a licensee may maintain an action to enjoin or redress an invasion by the licensor or a third party of the licensee's rights under the terms of the license [Lucky Auto Supply v. Turner (1966) 244 Cal. App. 2d 872, 881, 53 Cal. Rptr. 628] .

Since it is not within the statute of frauds, a license may be created orally or by writing [Belmont County Water Dist. v. State of California (1976) 65 Cal. App. 3d 13, 17, 135 Cal. Rptr. 163] or may be implied by the acts of the landowner or his or her acquiescence in the acts of the licensee [Zellers v. State of California (1955) 134 Cal. App. 2d 270, 273-275, 285 P.2d 962] . A license may also result when the parties intend to create an easement but fail to meet formal requirements [Powell on Real Property, Ch. 34, Easements and Licenses, P 429 (Matthew Bender)].

[4] Irrevocable License Compared to Easement

[a] When License Is Irrevocable

There are two exceptions to the general rule that a license is revocable at the will of the licensor:

- First, a license is irrevocable if it is coupled with an interest. For example, the owner of personal property has an irrevocable license to remove it when it has been placed on another's land by permission of the owner. Similarly, when there has been a sale of personal property located on the vendor's land, the purchaser has an irrevocable license to enter and remove the property within a reasonable time [Bomberger v. McKelvey (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 607, 618, 220 P.2d 729] .

- Second, a license becomes irrevocable when the licensee, acting in reasonable reliance on either the licensor's representations or the terms of the license, makes a substantial expenditure of labor or money in execution of the license. In this situation, it is unjust to permit revocation without first fully compensating the licensee for his or her loss, and the licensor is estopped from such revocation [Cooke v. Ramponi (1952) 38 Cal. 2d 282, 286, 239 P.2d 638 (oral license); Belmont County Water Dist. v. State of California (1976) 65 Cal. App. 3d 13, 17-18, 135 Cal. Rptr. 163] .

An irrevocable license confers essentially the same rights as an easement in that the licensee may enter the licensor's land to maintain structures or improvements involved [Higgins v. Kadjevich (1960) 186 Cal. App. 2d 520, 523-524, 9 Cal. Rptr. 115] .

[b] Irrevocable License May Not Be Perpetual

In any case, an irrevocable license will continue to exist only for the period contemplated by its terms [Bomberger v. McKelvey (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 607, 618, 220 P.2d 729 (license coupled with interest); Bryant v. Marstelle (1946) 76 Cal. App. 2d 740, 746, 173 P.2d 846 (estoppel theory)]. When the license's duration is expressly limited, the licensor may revoke it at will after the expiration of the specified period [Bryant v. Marstelle (1946) 76 Cal. App. 2d 740, 746, 173 P.2d 846] .

Chapter 240 EASEMENTS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

20-240 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 240.12

AUTHOR: by William M. Hensley Editorial Consultant

§ 240.12 Express Easements

[1] Grant or Reservation of Easement

[a] Deed, Contract, or Covenant

Since an easement is an interest in land, it can be created by express or implied grant or by express reservation in a grant [Buehler v. Oregon-Washington Plywood Corp. (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 520, 525 n.1, 131 Cal. Rptr. 394, 551 P.2d 1226 (grant); Elliot v. McCombs (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 23, 28, 30, 109 P.2d 329 (reservation or grant)]. (An easement can be created by prescription as well. For discussion, see Ch. 13, Adverse Possession .) The writing creating an easement may be in the form of a contract or covenant, but such agreements are in effect grants [Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. v. Minnette (1953) 115 Cal. App. 2d 698, 708, 252 P.2d 642] .

A conveyance or other instrument creating an easement must be subscribed by the easement's grantor or by his or her lawful agent authorized in writing to do so [Code Civ. Proc. § 1971; see Goble v. Dotson (1962) 203 Cal. App. 2d 272, 277, 21 Cal. Rptr. 769 ; but see Restatement of Property § 467(a), comment f (easement for term not exceeding one year is not within statute of frauds)].

An easement enforceable in equity may be created by an executed oral agreement based on valuable consideration [Wilkes v. Brady (1927) 84 Cal. App. 365, 368-371, 258 P. 108] .

For a complete discussion of the requirements for a conveyance of an interest in real property, see Ch. 184, Deeds .

[b] Construction of Grant or Reservation

Whether a deed conveys an easement or a fee is a mixed question of law and fact. The issue is one of intent to be gathered from the language of the conveyance and the surrounding circumstances [Warren v. Atchison, T. & S.F. Ry. Co. (1971) 19 Cal. App. 3d 24, 35, 96 Cal. Rptr. 317] . Generally, the rules governing interpretation of deeds are applicable [see City of Glendora v. Faus (1957) 148 Cal. App. 2d 920, 926, 307 P.2d 976 ; see generally Ch. 184,

Deeds]. In addition, the following factors may beconsidered specifically with regard to the question of whether an easement or a fee was conveyed:

- The fact that only a nominal consideration was paid indicates that the grant conveys an easement and not a limited fee [Warren v. Atchison, T. & S.F. Ry. Co. (1971) 19 Cal. App. 3d 24, 35, 96 Cal. Rptr. 317] .

- A deed for a railroad right-of-way is usually construed as giving a mere easement, even though its terms otherwise would be effective to convey a fee [Warren v. Atchison, T. & S.F. Ry. Co. (1971) 19 Cal. App. 3d 24, 35, 96 Cal. Rptr. 317] .

- When the limitation on a grant appears in the granting clause itself and not merely in the habendum or other parts, the limitation ordinarily operates to confine the grant to that of an easement [Johnson v. Ocean Shore Railroad Co. (1971) 16 Cal. App. 3d 429, 433, 94 Cal. Rptr. 68] .

- A grant of a "right of way" for a road indicates conveyance of an easement, while a grant of land "to be used as a road" is consistent with the conveyance of a fee [Highland Realty Co. v. City of San Rafael (1956) 46 Cal. 2d 669, 677-678, 298 P.2d 15] .

- A transfer of an unlimited use or enjoyment of a tract is in effect a conveyance of ownership of the fee, not an easement [Raab v. Casper (1975) 51 Cal. App. 3d 866, 876-877, 124 Cal. Rptr. 590] .

- A transfer of fee is not vitiated by a clause describing a purpose for which the grantor intends the property will be used [Machado v. Southern Pacific Transportation Co. (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 347, 359, 284 Cal. Rptr. 560] .

An easement incorporating a right of exclusive use may fall short of ownership in fee when the easement is restricted in scope [Blackmore v. Powell (2007) 150 Cal. App. 4th 1593, 1599, 59 Cal. Rptr. 3d 527] . Thus, a grant deed conveying an appurtenant easement for "parking and garage purposes" authorized the holder to build a garage on the easement for his exclusive use as a necessary incident of the easement [Blackmore v. Powell (2007) 150 Cal. App. 4th 1593, 1599, 59 Cal. Rptr. 3d 527] . The easement for parking and garage purposes did not rise to fee ownership because (1) the rights accorded under the grant deed were circumscribed, and (2) the award of exclusive control over the garage, which would occupy only a small portion of the easement, was intended solely to protect those restricted rights [Blackmore v. Powell (2007) 150 Cal. App. 4th 1593, 1600, 59 Cal. Rptr. 3d 527] .

In another case, the plaintiffs, who held an access easement over the defendants' property, sued to prevent the defendants from using the easement area for any purpose. The court of appeal concluded that the language of the instrument by which the easement was created clearly expressed an intention that the use of the easement area be exclusive to the owners of the dominant tenement, and therefore was sufficient to create an exclusive easement [Gray v. McCormick (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 1019, 1026, 84 Cal. Rptr. 3d 777]. The court held that the exclusive easement was not prohibited under California law as being tantamount to the taking of fee title by a neighboring property owner. It concluded that plaintiffs had not acquired fee title to the easement area because their use of the easement area was limited to access, ingress, and egress purposes, not all conceivable uses of the property [Gray v. McCormick (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 1019, 1031, 84 Cal. Rptr. 3d 777] .

[c] Creation of Easements by Owner Who Conveys Less Than Full Title

A property owner who conveys less than full title may validly create easements inhis or her favor on the property. "Owner" under Civ. Code § 805 ("a servitude thereon cannot be held by the owner of the servient tenement") means the owner of the full fee title, both legal and equitable, such that a property owner who owns less than full title may validly create easements in his or her own favor on his or her land [Beyer v. Tahoe Sands Resort (2005) 129 Cal. App. 4th 1458, 1473, 29 Cal. Rptr. 3d 561] . Thus, three easements were validly created by landowners who expressly reserved the easements when they dedicated a portion of their real property, including common areas, to a time-share project and conveyed legal title of the property to a bank as trustee pursuant to a trust agreement for the time-share project. The landowners' retention of an ownership interest in the property did not preclude their creating easements in their own favor under Civ. Code § 805 [Beyer v. Tahoe Sands Resort (2005) 129 Cal. App. 4th 1458, 1474, 1477, 29 Cal. Rptr. 3d 561] .

[2] Solar Easement

A solar easement is the right to receive sunlight across real property of another for any solar energy system. An instrument creating a solar easement must include at least the following [Civ. Code § 801.5]:

- A description of the dimensions of the easement expressed in measurable terms, such as vertical or horizontal angles measured in degrees, or the hours of the day on specified dates during which direct sunlight to a specified surface of a solar collector, device, or structural design feature may not be obstructed, or a combination of these descriptions.

- The restrictions placed on vegetation, structures, and other objects that would impair or obstruct the passage of sunlight through the easement.

- The terms or conditions, if any, under which the easement may be revised or terminated.

[3] Conservation Easement Under Civil Code

[a] Definition

A conservation easement is any limitation in a deed, will, or other instrument in the form of an easement, restriction, covenant, or condition, executed by or on behalf of the owner of the land subject to the easement, binding on successive owners of the land, and for the purpose of retaining land predominantly in its natural, scenic, historical, agricultural, forested, or open-space condition [Civ. Code § 815.1]. A conservation easement is an interest in real property of perpetual duration that is voluntarily created and freely transferable in whole or in part for the purposes mentioned above [Civ. Code § 815.2].

All interests not transferred or conveyed by the instrument creating the easement remain in the grantor, including the right to engage in all uses of the land not affected by the easement or not prohibited by law or by the easement [Civ. Code § 815.4].

[b] Ownership Restriction

A conservation easement may be acquired and held only by (1) a tax-exempt nonprofit organization [see generally I.R.C. § 501(c)(3) (income tax exemption)] qualified to do business in California and having as its primary purpose the preservation, protection, or enhancement of land in its natural, scenic, historical, agricultural, forested, or open-space condition, or (2) the state, any city, county, city and county, district, or other state or local governmental entity, if that entity is otherwise authorized to acquire and hold title to real property and if the conservation easement is voluntarily conveyed [Civ. Code § 815.3].

[c] Recordation of Easement

Like other conveyances, instruments creating, assigning, or otherwise transferring conservation easements are subject to the recording laws. They are required to be recorded in the county recorder's office in the county where the land is situated in whole or in part [Civ. Code § 815.5].

[d] Owner's Remedies

Actual or threatened injury to or impairment of a conservation easement, or actual or threatened violation of its terms may be prohibited or restrained, or the interest intended for protection by the easement may be enforced, by injunctive relief granted by any court of competent jurisdiction in a proceeding initiated by the grantor or by the easement's owner [Civ. Code § 815.7(b)]. In addition to the remedy of injunctive relief, the holder of a conservation easement is entitled to recover money damages for any injury to the easement or to the interest being protected by it, or for the violation of the easement's terms. For a form of complaint that can be used for this purpose, see § 240.51. In assessing damages, there may be taken into account, in addition to the cost of restoration and other usual rules of the law of damages, the loss of scenic, aesthetic, or environmental value to the real property subject to the easement [Civ. Code § 815.7(c)]. The court may also award to the prevailing party the costs of litigation, including reasonable attorney's fees [Civ. Code § 815.7(d)].

In addition, a conservation easement is not unenforceable because of any lack of privity of contract or lack of benefit to particular land, or because the easement is not expressly designated in the instrument creating it as running with the land [Civ. Code § 815.7(a)].

[4] Easement by Covenant in Favor of City or County

[a] Creation

In addition to any other method for the creation of an easement, an easement in favor of a city or county may be created by a recorded covenant of easement made by an owner of real property to the city or county. This type of easement may be created for parking, ingress, egress, emergency access, light and air access, landscaping, or open-space purposes [Gov. Code § 65871(a)]. The easement must be created in accordance with a municipal ordinance allowing covenants of easement [Gov. Code §§ 65870, 65871(a)].

At the time the covenant of easement is recorded, all of the real property benefitted and burdened by the covenant must be in common ownership. The covenant is effective when recorded and acts as an easement under Civ. Code § 801 et seq., except that it will not merge into any other interest in real property. The easement passes with the land [Gov. Code § 65871(b); see Civ. Code § 1104].

A recorded covenant of easement must describe the real property to be subject to the easement and the real property to be benefitted. The covenant must also identify the approval, permit, or designation granted that relied on or required the covenant [Gov. Code § 65871(c)]. A covenant is enforceable by the successors in interest to the real property benefitted by the covenant [Gov. Code § 65871(d)].

The covenant of easement must be recorded in the county where all or part of the restricted property is located and must contain a legal description of the real property and be executed by the owner. From and after the time of recordation, the covenant imparts notice to all persons to the extent afforded by the recording laws. On recordation, the burdens of the covenant are binding on, and the benefits of the covenant will inure to, all successors in interest to the real property [Gov. Code § 65873].

[b] Release

The enabling ordinance must provide a procedure for the release of the covenant. The procedure must require a public hearing by the agency designated by the ordinance for that purpose. The hearing must be held at the request of any person whether or not that person has title to the real property [Gov. Code § 65874(a)]. On a determination that the restriction of the property is no longer necessary to achieve the land-use goals of the city or county, a release must be recorded by the city or county in the county where the restricted property is located [Gov. Code § 65874(b)]. The ordinance may provide for the imposition of fees to recover the reasonable costs of processing the release from the persons requesting the release [Gov. Code § 65874(c)].

[c] Standing

No person other than the city or county and the owner of the real property burdened or benefitted by the covenant has standing to enforce or to challenge the covenant or any amendment or release [Gov. Code § 65875].

[5] Comprehensive Index of Conservation Easements

[a] Index Developed and Maintained by County Recorder

The county recorder in each county must develop and maintain, within the county's existing indexing system, a comprehensive index of conservation easements and Notices of Conservation Easements on land within the county. This index must include all conservation easements, as defined, recorded on or after January 1, 2002 [Gov. Code § 27255(a), (f); see § 240.12[5][b]]. When a county recorder records a new conservation easement affecting property within the county, the recorder must include the easement in the comprehensive index if the document contains an easement entitled "conservation easement" or if the notice described in [c], below, is properly filled out by the submitter and recorded at the same time, or at a later date [Gov. Code § 27255(c); see Gov. Code §§ 27255(e), (c), 27361 (no fee pursuant to Gov. Code § 6103; but standard fee charged for recording)].

[b] Index Includes Conservation, Open-Space, and Agricultural Conservation Easements

For purpose of inclusion in the comprehensive index, a "conservation easement" means any limitation in a recorded instrument that [Gov. Code § 27255(b)]:

- Contains an easement, restriction, covenant, condition, or offer to dedicate, which is or has been executed by or on behalf of the owner of the land subject to that limitation.

- Is binding on successive owners of the land.

- Has as its purpose to retain land predominantly in its natural, scenic, historical, agricultural, forested, or open-space condition.

Included in the definition of "conservation easement" for these purposes are conservation easements as defined in Civ. Code § 815.1 [see § 240.12[3]], open-space easements as defined in Gov. Code § 51075 [see Ch. 183, Dedication], and agricultural conservation easements as defined in Pub. Res. Code § 10211 [Gov. Code § 27255(b); see Ch. 579, Zoning and Planning].

[c] Notice of Conservation Easement for Indexing Purposes

In addition to adding information to the comprehensive index concerning recorded documents that contain a specifically named conservation easement, a county recorder must also add information to the index concerning an easement that is described in a notice that is properly filled out by the submitter, and recorded at the same time as it is submitted, or at a later time. The form of that notice, entitled "NOTICE OF CONSERVATION EASEMENT," is prescribed by statute [Gov. Code § 27255(c)]. The notice must include information on the recording of the easement, the grantors and grantees, and a declaration under penalty of perjury that the information given is true and correct. The notice itself is for indexing purposes only, and does not by itself constitute a conservation easement [Gov. Code § 27255(c)]. For an example of this statutory notice, see § 240.56.

A conservation easement recorded before January 1, 2002, may be included in the comprehensive index of conservation easements if a party to the easement fills out and records a Notice of Conservation Easement for the previously recorded easement, and files the notice in the county in which the affected real property is located [Gov. Code § 27255(d)]. Any party to a conservation easement may fill out and record a notice, including, but not limited to, counties, cities, recreation and park districts or agencies, state conservancies, state agencies, the California Coastal Commission, land trusts, and nonprofit organizations [Gov. Code § 27255(d)].

[6] State Registry for Conservation Easements

The Natural Resources Agency is required to establish a central public registry of all conservation easements held or required by the state, or purchased with state grant funds provided by any agency, department, or division of the state on or after January 1, 2000 [Pub. Res. Code § 5096.520(a); see Pub. Res. Code § 5096.520(b) ("conservation easement" defined for this purpose); see also Stats. 2006, ch. 531, § 1 (legislative intent)]. The registry will include the assessor's parcel numbers for the property covered by the easement and the following information on each conservation easement [Pub. Res. Code § 5096.520(c)]:

- The easement's purpose;
- The easement's location, identified by county and nearest city;
- The identity of the easement holder;
- The size of the easement in acres;
- The date the easement transaction was recorded; and
- The amount of funding provided by the agency, department, or division of the state holding or requiring the easement or providing state grant funds for the easement.

On or before January 1, 2009, the registry must be made available for use by thegeneral public. Only the first five items of information listed above may be provided on the internet regarding conservation easements held or required by the state, or purchased with state grant funds provided by an agency, department, or division of the state, on or after January 1, 2006. Personal identifying information must not be posted on the internet. The registry is to be updated biennially [Pub. Res. Code § 5096.520(e)]. The updating is to be done by each agency, department, or division of the state with conservation easements that are held or required by the state or purchased with state grant funds [Pub. Res. Code § 5096.520(d)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

20-240 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 240.13

§ 240.13 Implied Easements

[1] Grant or Reservation Implying Intent

[a] Rule of Construction

A transfer of real property creates an easement in favor of the grantee, to use other real property of the grantor in the same manner and to the same extent as the property was obviously and permanently used by the grantor for his or her benefit at the time the transfer was agreed on or completed [Civ. Code § 1104]. In other words, when the owner of two parcels sells one of them, or the owner of one tract sells part of it, the purchaser takes the parcel or part sold with all of the benefits and burdens that appear, at the time of sale, to belong to it, as between it and the property that the seller retains [Glass v. Gulf Oil Corp. (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 412, 432, 89 Cal. Rptr. 514] . This is the doctrine of implied easements, the purpose of which is to give effect to the actual intent of the parties as shown and inferred from all of the facts and circumstances. Accordingly, whether or not an easement was implied depends on the intent of the parties; and to sustain an easement by implication, the intent of the parties to create such an easement must clearly appear [Walters v. Marler (1978) 83 Cal. App. 3d 1, 21, 147 Cal. Rptr. 655 (disapproved on other grounds in Gray v. Don Miller & Associates, Inc. (1984) 35 Cal. 3d 498, 507, 198 Cal. Rptr. 551, 674 P.2d 253)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Make the Intent Conclusive Through Conveyance Recital Language. Since intent is the key consideration in implied easement cases, the grantor can eliminate factual controversies by making his or her purposes clear through recitals in the conveyance instrument. Under Evid. Code § 622, these recitals are conclusively presumed as true between the parties as well as successors in interest. Use of such recitals can dispel that easements are to be implied or can be used to set forth the intended use of the land so as to easily imply an easement in favor of the grantor or the grantee. By William M. Hensley

The following elements are necessary to create an implied easement [Mikels v. Rager (1991) 232 Cal. App. 3d 334, 357, 284 Cal. Rptr. 87 ; Warfield v. Basich (1958) 161 Cal. App. 2d 493, 498-499, 326 P.2d 942 (action to quiet title to implied easement)]:

- A separation or severance of title must occur so as to imply a unity of ownership at some time [see § 240.13[2]].

- Before the separation takes place, the use that gives rise to the easement must have continued in an obvious manner long enough to show that it was intended to be permanent [see § 240.13[3]].

- The easement must be reasonably necessary to the beneficial enjoyment of the land conveyed [see § 240.13[4]].

[b] Implied Easement Disfavored

Although the courts will more readily find an implied easement in favor of the grantee than an easement by implied reservation in the grantor's favor [see Civ. Code § 1069], easements by implication are generally not favored [Orr v. Kirk (1950) 100 Cal. App. 2d 678, 681, 224 P.2d 71] . An implied easement will not be imposed by the court if it is contrary to the express intention of the parties (for example, the deed specifically provides that it does not convey any easements) [County of Los Angeles v. Bartlett (1962) 203 Cal. App. 2d 523, 529-531, 21 Cal. Rptr. 776] . Similarly, an easement is not implied when the parties have entered into an agreement that leaves nothing to be inferred, such as when the rights of the parties with regard to the same subject matter as the claimed easement are determined by contract [Warfield v. Basich (1958) 161 Cal. App. 2d 493, 499, 326 P.2d 942] .

[2] Severance of Title

Severance of title is required for implication of an easement because as long as unity of possession exists, the owner of the whole may at any time rearrange the quality of the several servitudes. However, on severance by the sale of part of a tract, the owner's right to redistribute ceases, and easements or servitudes are created corresponding to the benefits or burdens existing at the time of sale [Warfield v. Basich (1958) 161 Cal. App. 2d 493, 498, 326 P.2d 942] .

[3] Apparent Use

The required obvious or apparent use is one that is visible on the servient estateor consists of an artificial or permanent structure on the servient tenement, such as a pipe, sewer, or ditch [Warfield v. Basich (1958) 161 Cal. App. 2d 493, 499, 326 P.2d 942 ; Swarzwald v. Cooley (1940) 39 Cal. App. 2d 306, 325, 103 P.2d 580] . This type of use may be distinguished from a use of the servient tenement in its natural state and at intervals, leaving no visible sign, such as a right of fishery or pasture, which will not give rise to an implied easement [see Swarzwald v. Cooley (1940) 39 Cal. App. 2d 306, 325, 103 P.2d 580] .

Generally the use made before the severance of title controls [Piazza v. Schaefer (1967) 255 Cal. App. 2d 328, 334, 63 Cal. Rptr. 246 (action to declare implied easement)]. However, easements have been implied in some situations in which there was no prior use. For example, when land was conveyed by reference to a map or plat showing proposed streets, an easement was implied in the grantee's favor for use of the streets as private ways [Marin County Hospital Dist. v. Cicurel (1957) 154 Cal. App. 2d 294, 303, 316 P.2d 32 ; see Ratchford v. County of Sonoma (1972) 22 Cal. App. 3d 1056, 1069 n.6, 99 Cal. Rptr. 887] . Similarly, when land was purchased in reliance on representations regarding use of recreational facilities in a subdivision, aneasement for use of the facilities was implied [Bradley v. Frazier Park Playgrounds (1952) 110 Cal. App. 2d 436, 441-443, 242 P.2d 958 (declaratory judgment designating property to which easement was related and mandatory injunction granting residents of subdivision unrestricted use of facilities); see Wool v. Scott (1956) 140 Cal. App. 2d 835, 845-846, 296 P.2d 17 (action seeking declaration of title to easement for park purposes)].

[4] Reasonable Necessity

Reasonable necessity rather than strict necessity is required for implication of an easement [see Warfield v. Basich (1958) 161 Cal. App. 2d 493, 498, 326 P.2d 942] . The grantee is required to show, for example, not that there is no other means of access to his or her property [Owsley v. Hamner(1951) 36 Cal. 2d 710, 720, 227 P.2d 263] , but only that the easement is reasonably necessary to the beneficial enjoyment of his or her land [Piazza v. Schaefer (1967) 255 Cal. App. 2d 328, 335, 63 Cal. Rptr. 246] .

The potential reduction in the value of the benefitted property if the easement were eliminated may be considered, since the property's use and its value are directly related [Owsley v. Hamner (1951) 36 Cal. 2d 710, 720, 227 P.2d 263] . The cost of creating a substitute means of access can also be considered in deciding whether use of a right-of-way easement is reasonably necessary [Leonard v. Haydon (1980) 110 Cal. App. 3d 263, 268-273, 167 Cal. Rptr. 789] .

[5] Easement for Light and Air

When a conveyance is involved, easements over adjoining land for light and air cannot be created by implication but can be created only by express grant or covenant [Katcher v. Home S. & L. Assn. (1966) 245 Cal. App. 2d 425, 429-430, 53 Cal. Rptr. 923 ; Taliaferro v. Salyer (1958) 162 Cal. App. 2d 685, 690, 328 P.2d 799] . When the relation of landlord and tenant exists between the parties, however, this rule is subject to the qualification that if the premises would be untenantable without the easement, resulting in a constructive eviction, an easement for light and air will be inferred [Clark v. Mountain States Life Ins. Co. (1934) 1 Cal. App. 2d 301, 304, 36 P.2d 848] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

20-240 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 240.14

AUTHOR: by William M. Hensley Editorial Consultant

§ 240.14 Easements by Operation of Law (Necessity)

[1] Right-of-Way Easement

[a] Recognition of Easement

A right-of-way easement arises by operation of law when it is established that [Roemer v. Pappas (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 201, 205-206, 249 Cal. Rptr. 743 ; Reese v. Borghi (1963) 216 Cal. App. 2d 324, 332-333, 30 Cal. Rptr. 868] :

- There is a strict necessity for the easement [see § 240.14[1][c]].

- The dominant and servient tenements were under the same ownership at the time of the conveyance giving rise to the necessity.

The main distinction between a way of necessity and an implied easement is that the latter rests primarily on a preexisting use, while the former is based on the need for a right-of-way easement across the granted or reserved premises [Reese v. Borghi (1963) 216 Cal. App. 2d 324, 330-331, 30 Cal. Rptr. 868] and on the public policy that land should not be rendered unfit for occupancy or successful cultivation by denial of access [Daywalt v. Walker (1963) 217 Cal. App. 2d 669, 672, 31 Cal. Rptr. 899 ; see Reese v. Borghi (1963) 216 Cal. App. 2d 324, 331, 30 Cal. Rptr. 868] .

[b] Intent of Parties

A way of necessity results from the presumption that when a grantor conveys property, he or she conveys whatever is necessary for the beneficial use of that property and retains whatever is necessary for the beneficial use of the land he or she still possesses. The presumption, however, is one of fact, and creation of a way of necessity depends on the terms of the deed and facts of the particular case [Daywalt v. Walker (1963) 217 Cal. App. 2d 669, 672-674, 31 Cal. Rptr. 899] . Accordingly, a way of necessity will not be found if it is shown that it is contrary to the intent of the parties [County of Los Angeles v. Bartlett (1962) 203 Cal. App. 2d 523, 529-530, 21 Cal. Rptr. 776 ; see Daywalt v. Walker (1963) 217

Cal. App. 2d 669, 674-676, 31 Cal. Rptr. 899] .

[c] Strict Necessity

Strict necessity must be shown for a right-of-way easement of necessity toarise. This requires that the easement be the only possible means of access to the property. That a way over the grantee's own land is too steep, narrow, or difficult, or that the only alternative access is by waterway, will not suffice [Horowitz v. Noble (1978) 79 Cal. App. 3d 120, 130-131, 130 n.4, 144 Cal. Rptr. 710 ; County of Los Angeles v. Bartlett (1962) 203 Cal. App. 2d 523, 528, 21 Cal. Rptr. 776 (access by canal)]. The fact that a parcel is difficult to develop does not mean that there is no necessity for access; however, it has been suggested that if a property is undevelopable, the requisite necessity would not exist [Roemer v. Pappas (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 201, 206-207, 249 Cal. Rptr. 743] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Renegotiate Right-Of-Way Easements as Subdivided Property is Sold. In subdivided property areas filling in with residential development in both suburban and rural areas, it is common to find that access easements have been provided, although not necessarily in the best of locations. Frequently, the access easements involve difficult turns or ascents up sloped terrain. This practitioner advises property buyers to renegotiate right-of-way and access easements as part of a property purchase as development is filling in. Since strict necessity would not dictate finding an easement in many situations, the leverage of buying will often make the seller go to neighboring owners and reconnoiter access easements for the benefit of everyone in a subdivision. By William M. Hensley

[d] Duration

A way of necessity lasts only as long as the necessity continues to exist. If a legally usable means of access is created, the way of necessity must be eliminated, notwithstanding the fact that the route of the way of necessity may continue to offer the most convenient access to the property [Daywalt v. Walker (1963) 217 Cal. App. 2d 669, 676-677, 31 Cal. Rptr. 899] .

[2] Easement for Utility Service

An owner of real property may acquire by eminent domain an appurtenant easement to provide utility service to his or her property [Civ. Code § 1001]. When seeking to acquire the easement, the owner is deemed to be a "quasi-public entity" for purposes of applying the Eminent Domain Law [see generally Code Civ. Proc. § 1230.010 et seq.]. In lieu of the usual requirements [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.030], the following must be established [Civ. Code § 1001]:

- There is a great necessity for the taking.

- The easement's location affords the most reasonable service to the property to which it is appurtenant, consistent with the least damage to burdened property.

- The hardship to the owner of the benefitted property if the taking is not permitted clearly outweighs any hardship to the burdened property's owner.

For discussion of the Eminent Domain Law and appropriate forms and procedures, see Ch. 247, Eminent Domain and Inverse Condemnation.

[3] Balancing Relative Hardships

The doctrine of balancing of relative hardships has been applied to deny removal of an encroachment, such as a roadway, but allow the property owner damages, when the encroachment does not irreparably injure the owner and was innocently made, and the cost of removal would be great compared to the inconvenience caused to the plaintiff by the encroachment's continuance. When the doctrine applies, the court may grant the encroaching party an easement for continued use of the adjoining land [Donnell v. Bisso Brothers (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 38, 44-47, 88 Cal. Rptr. 645 ; see Miller v. Johnston (1969) 270 Cal. App. 2d 289, 305-308, 75 Cal. Rptr. 699] .

For further discussion and a form for use in pleading the doctrine of balancing relative hardships as an affirmative defense, see Ch. 11, Adjoining Landowners .

20-240 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 240.15

AUTHOR: by William M. Hensley Editorial Consultant

§ 240.15 Scope of Easement

[1] Express Easement

[a] Construing Grant or Reservation

The extent of an easement created by grant or reservation is determined by the instrument's terms [Glass v. Gulf Oil Corp. (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 412, 428, 89 Cal. Rptr. 514 ; see Civ. Code § 806]. The rules applicable to the construction of deeds generally apply [Wilson v. Abrams (1969) 1 Cal. App. 3d 1030, 1035, 82 Cal. Rptr. 272 ; see generally Ch. 184, Deeds].

When the terms of the instrument are specific, they define the limits of the easement [Wilson v. Abrams (1969) 1 Cal. App. 3d 1030, 1034, 82 Cal. Rptr. 272] , and only those interests expressed in the grant and those necessarily incident to them pass from the owner of the fee [Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Ry. Co. v. Abar (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 456, 464, 79 Cal. Rptr. 807] .

The directive in Civ. Code § 1069 that every grant by a public body is to be interpreted in the grantor's favor applies only if there is an ambiguity in the grant [see City of Los Angeles v. Howard (1966) 244 Cal. App. 2d 538, 545, 53 Cal. Rptr. 274] . Thus, an access easement had to be construed in favor of the grantor public utility when the agreement to grant the easement was ambiguous as to the easement's scope [Red Mountain v. Fallbrook Public Utility District (2006) 143 Cal. App. 4th 333, 347, 48 Cal. Rptr. 3d 875] .

[b] Drawing Inferences From Instrument

If the easement is not specifically defined, the easement's scope is construed as whatever is reasonably necessary and convenient for the purpose for which the easement was created [Wilson v. Abrams (1969) 1 Cal. App. 3d 1030, 1034, 82 Cal. Rptr. 272] . This includes a use consistent with normal future development within the scope of the basic purpose of the easement but not an abnormal development that increases the burden on the servient tenement [Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Ry. Co. v. Abar (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 456, 464, 79 Cal. Rptr. 807] .

Consideration is given to actual uses being made at the time of the grant and to such uses as facts and circumstances show were within the reasonable contemplation of the parties at the time of the conveyance [Maywood Mut. Water Co. No. 2 v. City of Maywood (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 266, 270-271, 100 Cal. Rptr. 174] . Use of the easement after the conveyance may also be considered. For example, when location of a right-of-way easement is in question and the easement has been used at a particular location with the acquiescence of the servient owner, the parties have, in effect, placed their own practical construction on the grant, and the easement will be regarded as fixed at that place [Haley v. L.A. County Flood Control Dist. (1959) 172 Cal. App. 2d 285, 289, 342 P.2d 476] .

[c] Resorting to Parol Evidence

If the language of the instrument conveying an easement is clear and explicit, parol evidence is not admissible to show the nature and extent of the easement [Wilson v. Abrams (1969) 1 Cal. App. 3d 1030, 1035, 82 Cal. Rptr. 272] . Extrinsic evidence may be admitted to explain the terms used, however, subject to the limitation that it is not admissible to give the terms a meaning to which they are not reasonably susceptible [Continental Baking Co. v. Katz (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 512, 522, 67 Cal. Rptr. 761, 439 P.2d 889 ; see Buehler v. Oregon-Washington Plywood Corp. (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 520, 528, 131 Cal. Rptr. 394, 551 P.2d 1226] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Reformation as Parol Evidence Exception. With regard to easements, an important exception to the parol evidence bar is the doctrine of reformation. Mutual mistake or a manifest scrivener's error rising to the level of reformation, in this practitioner's experience, will not preclude use of parol evidence to demonstrate that an easement should be reformed. By William M. Hensley

[2] Implied Easement

The scope of an implied easement is measured by the extent to which the property was obviously and permanently used when the transfer was made. The scope must beinferred from all of the circumstances, including the existing uses and expected uses that were within the reasonable contemplation of the parties [Kytasty v. Godwin (1980) 102 Cal. App. 3d 762, 771, 162 Cal. Rptr. 556] . It is assumed that the parties anticipated uses that might reasonably be required by a normal development of the dominant tenement but did not anticipate an abnormal development. The easement's scope does not usually extend to uses required by an abnormal development [Fristoe v. Drapeau (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 5, 9-10, 215 P.2d 729 ; Horowitz v. Noble (1978) 79 Cal. App. 3d 120, 133-134, 144 Cal. Rptr. 710 ; Maywood Mut. Water Co. No. 2 v. City of Maywood (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 266, 271 n.3, 100 Cal. Rptr. 174 ; see Civ. Code § 806].

In one case where property owners sought an injunction to prevent neighbors from using a roadway across the plaintiffs' property, the trial court properly quieted title to an equitable easement in the roadway in favor of the neighbors [Linthicum v. Butterfield (2009) 175 Cal. App. 4th 259, 267, 95 Cal. Rptr. 3d 538] . Through the doctrine of "balancing conveniences" or "relative hardship," the trial court may create an easement by refusing to enjoin an encroachment or nuisance [Linthicum v. Butterfield (2009) 175 Cal. App. 4th 259, 265, 95 Cal. Rptr. 3d 538] . The balance of equities favored the neighbor's continued use of the roadway: the roadway was the only access to the neighbor's property, and the existence of the roadway did not prevent plaintiffs from developing their parcel [Linthicum v. Butterfield (2009) 175 Cal. App. 4th 259, 267, 95 Cal. Rptr. 3d 538] .

In contrast to private party conveyances, conveyances involving a sovereign as the common owner typically do not give rise to implied reservations of easements or other property interests in conveyed land [Murphy v. Burch (2009) 46 Cal. 4th 157, 165, 92 Cal. Rptr. 3d 381, 205 P.3d 289] . When a claimant traces common ownership back to the federal government and seeks to establish an implied reservation of an access right-of-way, the intent of Congress is paramount and the government's power of eminent domain also bears significance. Given the unique historical and legal nature of land patents, extreme caution must be exercised in determining whether the circumstances surrounding a government land grant are sufficient to overcome the inference prompted by the omission of an express reference to a reserved right of access. The easement claimant bears the burden of producing evidence on the issues regarding the government's intent to reserve an easement and the government's lack of power to condemn. An easement is not a matter of necessity when the federal government had the power of eminent domain to gain access to its property and strict necessity may be extinguished when a sovereign owner failed to exercise that power [Murphy v. Burch (2009) 46 Cal. 4th 157, 167, 92 Cal. Rptr. 3d 381, 205 P.3d 289 ; Moores v. Walsh (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 1046, 1051, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 389] .

[3] Secondary Easements

Every easement includes so-called secondary easements consisting of the right to do acts that are necessary to the full enjoyment of the easement. This right is limited and must be exercised in a reasonable manner so as not to place an undue burden on, go beyond the boundaries of, or make any changes in, the servient tenement [Haley v. L.A. County Flood Control Dist. (1959) 172 Cal. App. 2d 285, 290, 342 P.2d 476 (express and implied easements)]. Within these limits, the easement owner may make repairs, improvements, or changes that do not affect the substance of the easement [White v. Walsh (1951) 105 Cal. App. 2d 828, 832, 234 P.2d 276] . For example, the owner of a right-of-way easement adjoining a steep embankment may construct and maintain guard rails along the roadway, since the guard rails are reasonably necessary to the owner's use of theeasement and do not unduly burden the servient tenement [Herzog v. Grosso (1953) 41 Cal. 2d 219, 225, 259 P.2d 429] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

20-240 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 240.16

AUTHOR: by William M. Hensley Editorial Consultant

§ 240.16 Relations Between Owners of Various Interests

[1] Rights Retained by Landowner

Every incident of ownership not inconsistent with the easement and its enjoyment is reserved to the servient tenement's owner [City of Los Angeles v. Ingersoll-Rand Co. (1976) 57 Cal. App. 3d 889, 893-894, 129 Cal. Rptr. 485 ; City of Los Angeles v. Howard (1966) 244 Cal. App. 2d 538, 543, 53 Cal. Rptr. 274] . The landowner may make any use of the land that does not interfere unreasonably with the easement [McCann v. City of Los Angeles (1978) 79 Cal. App. 3d 112, 116, 144 Cal. Rptr. 696 ; Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Ry. Co. v. Abar (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 456, 464, 79 Cal. Rptr. 807 ; McCoy v. Matich (1954) 128 Cal. App. 2d 50, 53, 274 P.2d 714 (landowner could maintain gates across right-of-way easement if they were constructed so as not to interfere unreasonably with easement, and terms of grant of easement did not preclude maintenance of gates)]. The landowner also may transfer his or her right to make such use of the servient tenement, and whether an assignee's use of the land is permissible depends on whether the landowner could have used the land in that manner [Pasadena v. California-Michigan etc. Co. (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 576, 579, 110 P.2d 983 ; Guerra v. Packard (1965) 236 Cal. App. 2d 272, 295, 46 Cal. Rptr. 25] .

[2] Rights of Owner of Future Interest in Dominant Tenement

The owner of a future interest in a dominant tenement may use easements appurtenant for the purpose of viewing waste, demanding rent, or removing an obstruction of the easement, even if the dominant tenement is occupied by a tenant [Civ. Code § 808].

[3] Relocation of Easement

Once the location of an easement has been established, whether by the express terms of a grant or by use and acquiescence, it cannot be substantially changed without the consent of both parties [Haley v. L.A. County Flood Control Dist. (1959) 172 Cal. App. 2d 285, 289, 342 P.2d 476] . The mutual consent of the parties to relocate the easement may be express or implied by the acts and acquiescence of the parties. If the parties consent to a new location, existing rights are not affected by the change but attach to the new location [Kosich v. Braz (1967) 247 Cal. App. 2d

737, 739-740, 56 Cal. Rptr. 52 ; McCarty v. Walton (1963) 212 Cal. App. 2d 39, 46, 27 Cal. Rptr. 792] .

[4] Broadening of Easement by Prescriptive Use

The owner of an easement may broaden its scope by maintaining an enlarged claim and nonconforming use exercised openly, notoriously, continuously, and adversely during the five-year prescriptive period [Faus v. City of Los Angeles (1967) 67 Cal. 2d 350, 362, 62 Cal. Rptr. 193, 431 P.2d 849 ; Security Pac. Nat. Bank v. City of San Diego (1971) 19 Cal. App. 3d 421, 432, 97 Cal. Rptr. 61] . For discussion of prescriptive easements, see Ch. 13, Adverse Possession .

[5] Apportionment of Easement on Partition

If the dominant tenement is partitioned or subdivided, the easement must be apportioned accordingly. The owner or assignee of any portion of the dominant tenement may assert rights under the easement that are applicable to his or her part of the property [Civ. Code § 807; Herbert v. Russell (1969) 1 Cal. App. 3d 63, 66, 81 Cal. Rptr. 448 ; Leggio v. Haggerty (1965) 231 Cal. App. 2d 873, 881, 42 Cal. Rptr. 400] . The burden, however, may not be apportioned so as to impose an undue or unreasonable burden on the servient tenement [Civ. Code § 807; Jordan v. Worthen (1977) 68 Cal. App. 3d 310, 327, 137 Cal. Rptr. 282] .

[6] Enforcement of Parties' Rights

[a] Action by Easement Owner

The easement owner may sue to enjoin obstruction of the easement or unreasonable interference with his or her use of the easement by the servient owner [Civ. Code § 809; see, e.g., Herzog v. Grosso (1953) 41 Cal. 2d 219, 224-225, 259 P.2d 429] . When appropriate, the easement owner may also recover compensatory and punitive damages [see, e.g., Zimmer v. Dykstra (1974) 39 Cal. App. 3d 422, 429-430, 437-439, 114 Cal. Rptr. 380] . For a form of complaint, see § 240.51.

[b] Action by Landowner

The owner of the servient tenement is entitled to an injunction against uses of the easement that materially increase the burden or impose a new and additional burden on the servient tenement [Warren v. Atchison, T. & S.F. Ry. Co. (1971) 19 Cal. App. 3d 24, 37, 96 Cal. Rptr. 317 ; see Wall v. Rudolph (1961) 198 Cal. App. 2d 684, 686,18 Cal. Rptr. 123] . The landowner may also maintain an action to quiet title, an action for declaratory relief, or both, to have the extent and burdens of the easement defined and determined [see Warren v. Atchison, T. & S.F. Ry. Co. (1971) 19 Cal. App. 3d 24, 33, 96 Cal. Rptr. 317 (quiet title and injunction)]. For a form of complaint, see § 240.55.

An easement that violates zoning ordinances is unenforceable. In one case, the defendant had an easement to keep horses on a portion of the landowner's property. The landowner brought the action contending that the easement granted by his predecessor violated a municipal ordinance that provided that the keeping of equines was an accessory use to a residential use on property. Therefore, residential use had to be established before keeping equines on the same parcel would be allowed. Another municipal ordinance provided that an accessory use must be on the same lot as the residence. The landowner argued that the easement was invalid because his lot was vacant land. The defendant argued that the equine use was accessory to use of his own residential property, and that it was therefore valid. The court of appeal held that the defendant had a valid easement, but the zoning ordinances prohibited the keeping of horses on the landowner's lot, which not developed for residential use. The easement thus was unenforceable insofar as it would allow a use in violation of those ordinances [Baccouche v. Blankenship (2007) 154 Cal. App. 4th 1551, 1557, 65 Cal. Rptr. 3d 659] .

[7] Duty to Maintain Easement

[a] Generally

The owner of the easement ordinarily has the duty to keep the easement in repair, although the parties may alter this obligation by contract [Rose v. Peters (1943) 59 Cal. App. 2d 833, 835, 139 P.2d 983 ; see McManus v. Sequoyah Land Assoc. (1966) 240 Cal. App. 2d 348, 356, 49 Cal. Rptr. 592 ; see also Civ. Code § 845(a) (right-of-way easement); Reinsch v. City of Los Angeles (1966) 243 Cal. App. 2d 737, 747, 52 Cal. Rptr. 613 (prescriptive easement)].

[b] Agreement Apportioning Costs of Repairing Right-of-Way Easement

If an easement in the nature of a private right-of-way is owned by more than one person, or is appurtenant to parcels of land under different ownership, the cost of maintaining it in repair may be shared by each easement owner or owner of a benefitted parcel, pursuant to the terms of any agreement entered into by the parties for that purpose. If any owner who is a party to the agreement refuses to perform or fails after demand in writing to pay the owner's portion of the cost, an action for specific performance or contribution may be brought against that owner in a court of competent jurisdiction by the other owners, either jointly or severally [Civ. Code § 845(b)]. For a form of complaint, see § 240.53.

[c] Proportional Sharing of Costs

In the absence of an agreement, the cost must be shared in proportion to the use of the easement made by each owner. A property owner may be asked to contribute only to the maintenance of that portion of the right-of-way lying between his or her driveway and the public road. Also, a distinction must be made between an occupied residence and an unimproved lot. Within such general guidelines, the trier of fact must be allowed to fashion any reasonable apportionment scheme [Healy v. Onstott (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 612, 617, 237 Cal. Rptr. 540 (trier of fact need not distinguish between number of cars each resident uses, or those heating their homes with electric power versus those serviced periodically by heavy butane trucks)].

Although nonconsenting owners of an easement in the nature of a right-of-way may be compelled to contribute to keeping the way in repair [Civ. Code § 845], they may not be compelled to contribute to the cost of major improvements [McManus v. Sequoyah Land Assoc. (1966) 240 Cal. App. 2d 348, 355, 49 Cal. Rptr. 592] . Additionally, the provisions of Civ. Code § 845 do not apply to rights of way held or used by railroad common carriers subject to the jurisdiction of the Public Utilities Commission [Civ. Code § 845(e)].

[d] Arbitrator to Apportion Costs

Any owner of the easement or of a benefitted parcel may apply to the appropriate court where the right-of-way easement is located for the appointment of an impartial arbitrator to apportion the costs of maintenance. For a form of petition, see § 240.52. The application may be made before, during, or after performance of the maintenance work. If the arbitration award is not accepted by all of the owners, the court may enter a judgment determining the proportional liability of each owner [Civ. Code § 845(c)]. Civ. Code § 845 affords the right to a trial de novo if fewer than all of the owners of a private right-of-way accept the arbitrator's award. This right is to receive a trial by the court, not a jury trial [Healy v. Onstott (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 612, 616, 237 Cal. Rptr. 540] . The judgment may be enforced as a money judgment by any party against any other party to the action [Civ. Code § 845(c)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Get Agreement By All Owners to Binding Arbitration. To save costs of litigation, this practitioner suggests that an easement owner should obtain an agreement from all interested parties to treat the impartial arbitrator's award as binding. It is also preferable for the parties to stipulate to an acceptable arbitrator or stipulate to appointment protocol, with court approval, so that the parties are not stuck with an appointment from a court arbitration panel of an arbitrator who may not have the experience or qualifications to serve as a referee for an easement apportionment dispute. By William M. Hensley

[e] Snow Removal

If snow removal is not required under Civ. Code § 845(a) (requiring the owner of an easement in the nature of a private right-of-way, or of any land to which such an easement is attached, to maintain it in repair) or under any independent contractual or statutory duty, an agreement to maintain the easement in repair must be construed to include snow removal if all of the following conditions are satisfied [Civ. Code § 845(d)]:

- Snow removal is not expressly precluded by the terms of the agreement.
- Snow removal is necessary to provide access to the properties served by the agreement.
- Snow removal is approved in advance by the property owners or their elected representatives in the same manner as provided by the agreement for repairs to the easement.

§ 240.17 Transfer of Easement

A transfer of the dominant tenement passes all easements appurtenant to the land, whether or not they are specifically mentioned in the deed [see Civ. Code §§ 801, 1104; St. Louis v. DeBon (1962) 204 Cal. App. 2d 464, 466, 22 Cal. Rptr. 443] . In contrast, transfer of an easement in gross requires an express assignment since the right is only personal [St. Louis v. DeBon (1962) 204 Cal. App. 2d 464, 466, 22 Cal. Rptr. 443] . As a personal right, an easement in gross may be conveyed independently of the land, whereas an easement appurtenant may not be transferred to a third party or severed from the land [City of Anaheim v. Metropolitan Water Dist. of Southern Cal. (1978) 82 Cal. App. 3d 763, 768, 147 Cal. Rptr. 336] . However, the owner of an easement appurtenant may contract with a third party for the use of the easement in connection with the dominant tenement [Franceschi v. Kuntz (1967) 253 Cal. App. 2d 1041, 1046, 61 Cal. Rptr. 810] .

§ 240.18 Termination of Easement

[1] Statutory Termination

[a] Recognized Methods

A granted or implied easement may be extinguished or terminated in three ways [Civ. Code § 811]:

- Title to the easement becomes vested in the owner of the servient tenement (merger of titles) [see [b], below].
- The servient tenement is destroyed [see [c], below].
- The owner of the easement does or assents to another's doing any act on either tenement that is incompatible with the nature of the easement or the exercise of the owner's right [see [d], below].

[b] Merger of Titles

An easement is extinguished by merger when the servient tenement and the easement come to be owned by one person, such as when the owner of the dominant tenement acquires title to the servient tenement [Leggio v. Haggerty (1965) 231 Cal. App. 2d 873, 881-883, 42 Cal. Rptr. 400 ; see Civ. Code §§ 805, 811(1)]. To effect a merger, there must be unity of title or coextensive ownership of both the servient tenement and the dominant tenement [Hemmerling v. Tomlev, Inc. (1967) 67 Cal. 2d 572, 575, 63 Cal. Rptr. 1, 432 P.2d 697 ; Leggio v. Haggerty (1965) 231 Cal. App. 2d 873, 883-884, 42 Cal. Rptr. 400] . Merger does not occur if the owner of the servient tenement acquires only one of several parcels composing the dominant tenement [Piazza v. Schaefer (1967) 255 Cal. App. 2d 328, 335, 63 Cal. Rptr. 246] . Similarly, an easement is not extinguished by merger if the estates in the two tenements, acquired by one person, are such that one will or may terminate before the other. In this case, the easement is merely suspended and may be revived when one of the estates terminates [Renden v. Geneva Development Corp. (1967) 253 Cal. App. 2d 578, 587 n.8, 61 Cal. Rptr. 463] . However, a person who acquires a partial or limited interest in the dominant tenement may extinguish the easement by merger as to his or her interest alone [Leggio v. Haggerty (1965) 231 Cal. App. 2d 873, 884, 42 Cal. Rptr. 400] .

A view easement was extinguished by merger when property owners (66 Clarendon) bought the neighboring lot (60 Clarendon), and thus became the owners of both the dominant tenement and servient tenement. The fact that the properties were held by two owners did not preclude application of merger. Furthermore, the fact that 66 Clarendon was held in joint tenancy, 60 Clarendon was held as tenants in common, and one of the owners held his interest in 60 Clarendon as trustee for his inter vivos revocable trust did not render the estates held by the two owners unequal so as to preclude extinguishment by merger [Zanelli v. McGrath (2008) 166 Cal. App. 4th 615, 634, 82 Cal. Rptr. 3d 835]. Finally, the easement was not revived when 60 Clarendon was sold to a third party, because the act of severance alone does not revive an extinguished easement, and the previous owners had not attempted expressly to recreate the view easement in the conveyance to the buyer [Zanelli v. McGrath (2008) 166 Cal. App. 4th 615, 635, 82 Cal. Rptr. 3d 835].

[c] Destruction of Servient Tenement

An easement is extinguished by the destruction of the servient tenement [Civ. Code § 811(2)]. This rule applies primarily to situations involving easements in a building, such as a right to use a stairway. An easement survives the destruction of part of the servient tenement when there is anything remaining on which the easement may operate. However, the grant of a right to use part of a building gives no real property interest that will survive destruction of the building. Therefore, a right in the nature of an easement in a building is extinguished by destruction of the building or the part of the building on which the easement is imposed, because nothing remains on which the right can operate [see Rothschild v. Wolf (1942) 20 Cal. 2d 17, 20-21, 123 P.2d 483] .

An easement in a building ceases when the building is destroyed involuntarily or without the fault of the owner of the servient tenement. Thereafter, the easement owner will not have an easement in any new building that may be erected in place of the one destroyed [Rothschild v. Wolf (1942) 20 Cal. 2d 17, 21, 123 P.2d 483] . The owner of the servient tenement may not voluntarily destroy the building and thus terminate the easement when depreciation of the building has progressed far enough to make it economically advantageous to destroy it. The depreciation or obsolescence must have progressed to the point of becoming the equivalent of destruction or at least so far as to make it economically disadvantageous to maintain the building [see Rothschild v. Wolf (1942) 20 Cal. 2d 17, 20, 123 P.2d 483 ; Walner v. City of Turlock (1964) 230 Cal. App. 2d 399, 405-406, 41 Cal. Rptr. 29 (trial court's refusal to make finding on issue of economic obsolescence was reversible error)].

[d] Incompatible Acts

An easement may be extinguished by performance of an act on either the dominant tenement or the servient tenement, by the owner of the easement or with his or her assent, which is incompatible with the easement's nature or exercise [Civ. Code § 811(3)]. The incompatible act must be a permanent interference or an act of such a nature that, thereafter, the easement cannot be used without severely burdening the servient tenement [Buechner v. Jonas (1964) 228 Cal. App. 2d 127, 132, 29 Cal. Rptr. 298] . That is, the incompatible act must result in a physical change that permanently and materially prevents the dominant owner from using the easement or makes the dominant owner's use of the easement severely burdensome on the servient tenement [Reichardt v. Hoffman (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 754, 767-769, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 770] . For example, the act of the owner of the dominant tenement in grading his or her lot so as to make use of a right-of-way easement impossible extinguishes the easement [Fletcher v. Stapleton (1932) 123 Cal. App. 133, 137, 10 P.2d 1019] . However, the easement owner's assent to the landowner's construction of a fence with a gate where the way entered the highway did not extinguish the easement because the gate was never locked and the easement owner continued to use the way as before [Silveira v. Smith (1926) 198 Cal. 510, 519, 246 P. 58] . In another case, outrageous conduct by the owner of an easement used as a driveway which prevented the servient owners from making reasonable use of the easement area did not justify extinguishment, because the easement owner's conduct did not interfere with his own use of the easement. The easement owner's threats that he would run over anything in the easement area including children and pets did not support extinguishment, because they did not permanently prevent the easement owner from using the easement or establish that his continued use of the easement would put a permanent and severe burden on the servient tenement. The appropriate remedy to remove the basis for such threats was an injunction requiring the easement owner to accommodate the servient tenement's use of the easement area [Reichardt v. Hoffman (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 754, 768-769, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 770] .

[2] Common Law Abandonment or Forfeiture

[a] Nonuse With Intent to Abandon

An easement created by grant or implication is not extinguished by mere nonuse, but nonuse accompanied by an express or implied intent to abandon the easement will operate to extinguish it [Wilson v. Abrams (1969) 1 Cal. App. 3d 1030, 1035-1036, 82 Cal. Rptr. 272] . The intent that the easement's owner must manifest is an intent to give up making all future conforming uses of the easement [Faus v. City of Los Angeles (1967) 67 Cal. 2d 350, 363, 62 Cal. Rptr. 193, 431 P.2d 849] .

For discussion of the abandonment or vacation of an easement for public use, see Ch. 183, Dedication .

[b] Misuse or Excessive Use Leading to Forfeiture

Generally, misuse or excessive use by the easement owner is not sufficient to extinguish the easement, although the owner of the servient tenement may obtain an injunction against such use. However, if the burden of the servient tenement is increased through changes in the dominant tenement that increase the use and subject it to use by owner of the servient tenement, a forfeiture will be justified if the unauthorized use may not be severed and enjoined [Crimmins v. Gould (1957) 149 Cal. App. 2d 383, 391, 308 P.2d 786] .

[3] Statutory Action to Establish Abandonment

[a] Landowner's Cause of Action

The owner of real property subject to an easement may bring an action to establish the easement's abandonment and to remove the burden of the easement on the record title [Civ. Code § 887.040(a)]. The action is brought in the same manner and is subject to the same procedure as an action to quiet title [see generally Code Civ. Proc. § 760.010 et seq.; Ch. 482, Quieting Title], to the extent applicable [Civ. Code § 887.040(c)]. For a form of complaint, see § 240.54.

[b] Definition of Easement

An easement subject to the statutory procedure is any burden or servitude on land, whether or not attached to other land as an incident or appurtenance, that allows the holder of the burden or servitude to do acts on the land [Civ. Code § 887.010]. The statutory abandonment procedure does not apply to an easement that is part of a unified or reciprocal system for the mutual benefit of multiple parties [Civ. Code § 887.020].

The statutory abandonment procedure applies to any easement except a mutual benefit easement, regardless of when the easement was created [Civ. Code § 887.090].

[c] Definition of Abandonment

For purposes of this procedure, an easement is abandoned if all of the following conditions are satisfied for 20 years continuously and immediately preceding commencement of the action to establish the easement's abandonment [Civ. Code § 887.050(a)]:

- The easement was not used at any time.
- No property tax was separately assessed on the easement, or no taxes were paid on the assessment.
- No instrument creating, reserving, transferring, or otherwise evidencing the easement was recorded.

The 20-year provision applies despite any provision to the contrary in the instrument creating, reserving, transferring, or otherwise evidencing the easement or in another recorded document, unless the instrument or other document provides an earlier expiration date [Civ. Code § 887.050(b)].

[d] Notice of Intent to Preserve Easement

An easement's owner may at any time record a notice of intent to preserve the easement [Civ. Code § 887.060(a)]. A notice of intent to preserve an easement may refer generally and without specificity to any or all easements claimed by the claimant in any real property situated in the county, despite any requirements in Civ. Code §§ 880.330(b)(2), (3) and 880.340 [Civ. Code § 887.060(b)]. For a form of notice, see California Legal Forms, Ch. 28A, Easements and Licenses (Matthew Bender). An easement is not abandoned for purposes of the statutory procedure if a notice of intent to preserve the easement is recorded either within 20 years immediately preceding commencement of the action to establish abandonment or after the action's commencement and before judgment is entered [Civ. Code § 887.060(c)].

In an action to establish abandonment of an easement under Civ. Code § 887.010 et seq., the court must permit the easement's owner to record a late notice of intent to preserve the easement as a condition of dismissal of the action on payment into court, for the landowner's benefit, the litigation expenses attributable to the easement or portion of it as to which the notice is recorded. Litigation expenses are the recoverable costs and expenses reasonably and necessarily incurred in preparation for the action, including a reasonable attorney's fee [Civ. Code § 887.070]. Litigation expenses are payable only when the recordation of the late notice of intent to preserve and dismissal of the action result in preservation of the easement. If the court finds that the easement is extinguished on another basis, an order for payment of litigation expenses is error [Worthington v. Alcala (1992) 10 Cal. App. 4th 1404, 1408-1411, 13 Cal. Rptr. 2d 374] .

[e] Effect of Court Order

An abandoned easement is unenforceable and is deemed to have expired. A court order establishing an easement's abandonment is equivalent for all purposes to a conveyance of the easement to the owner of the servient tenement [Civ. Code § 887.080].

[f] Effect on Common Law Abandonment

The statutory abandonment procedure supplements and does not limit or otherwise affect either the common law governing abandonment of an easement or any other procedure provided by statute or otherwise for clearing an abandoned easement [Civ. Code § 887.030].

[4] Adverse Possession by Landowner

An easement may be extinguished by the landowner's use of the servient tenement in a manner that is adverse to the owner of the easement for the five-year period required to acquire title by prescription [Glatts v. Henson (1948) 31 Cal. 2d 368, 371, 188 P.2d 745 ; Guerra v. Packard (1965) 236 Cal. App. 2d 272, 293, 46 Cal. Rptr. 25] . The elements required to extinguish an easement by adverse possession are the same as to create a prescriptive easement [see Zimmer v. Dykstra (1974) 39 Cal. App. 3d 422, 435, 114 Cal. Rptr. 380] . For discussion, see Ch. 13, Adverse Possession .

Change of ownership of the servient tenement during the prescriptive period would not affect its running. It is the occupancy of the land adverse to the easement owner, not occupancy by a particular holder, that extinguishes the easement [Sevier v. Locher (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 1082, 1085-1086, 272 Cal. Rptr. 287] .

20-240 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 240.33

AUTHOR: by William M. Hensley Editorial Consultant

§ 240.33 Decisions

[1] Commerce Clause

City's imposition of franchise fee based on reasonable fraction (here 50 percent) of appraised value of land abutting pipeline in exchange for granting oil company right to run pipeline under streets where city held easement was not shown to burden interstate commerce; California Constitution was not violated if franchise fee did not discriminate between intercity and intracity businesses. Shell Oil Co. v. City of Santa Monica (9th Cir. 1987) 830 F.2d 1052, 1060-1061

[2] Creation of Easement

[a] Easement by Implication

Easement by implication may be created when owner of real property dies intestate and property is divided and distributed to intestate heirs by court decree. Larsson v. Grabach (2004) 121 Cal. App. 4th 1147, 1153-1154, 18 Cal. Rptr. 3d 136

Appurtenant easement to use driveway to access rented commercial property could be implied when it was not expressly negated by terms of lease and tenant alleged facts supporting assertion that use of right of way was reasonably necessary to enjoyment of leased premises. Dubin v. Robert Newhall Chesebrough Trust (2002) 96 Cal. App. 4th 465, 477, 116 Cal. Rptr. 2d 872

Factual issue as to whether easement was obvious and permanent so as to be impliedeasement when subdivision restrictions gave notice of intention to have utility easement and power line on lot alleged to be servient tenement appeared to be intended to provide electricity to plaintiff's lot. George v. Goshgarian (1983) 139 Cal. App. 3d 856, 861-863, 189 Cal. Rptr. 94

[b] Grant or Reservation

Granting clause that did not contain words fee, easement, or right-of-way conveyed fee simple title to city and county for parcel used as part of its underground aqueduct, in light of deed provisions reserving certain rights to grantors; however, parties were bound by agreement to accept decision in another case holding city and county had acquired subsurface easement under similar facts. City and County of San Francisco v. Union Pacific R.R. Co. (1996) 50 Cal. App. 4th 987, 995, 998, 58 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1

Recording of subdivision map with streets created private easement in lot owners for use of adjacent streets for access whether or not streets were accepted by public entity or described in subsequent deeds. Tract Development Services, Inc. v. Kepler (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 1374, 1381-1383, 246 Cal. Rptr. 469

[c] Relative Hardships

Easement for sewer line found by relative hardships when line was under neighbor's property and neighbor could construct around it. Field-Escandon v. DeMann (1988) 204 Cal. App. 3d 228, 237-239, 251 Cal. Rptr. 49

[d] Way of Necessity

Way of necessity was appurtenant to land and passed with dominant tenement when it was sold. Kripp v. Curtis (1886) 71 Cal. 62, 65, 11 P. 879

Grantor was entitled to first designate way of necessity to be pursued, and in event of his or her failure to do so, grantee was entitled to choose. Kripp v. Curtis (1886) 71 Cal. 62, 65, 11 P. 879

Easement of necessity did not exist where property owned by plaintiff and defendants was originally owned by federal government, even though defendants' property entirely surrounded plaintiff's parcel; because federal government had power of eminent domain, critical requirement of "strict necessity" for creation of an easement by necessity did not exist. Murphy v. Burch (2007) 156 Cal. App. 4th 1434, 1446, 68 Cal. Rptr. 3d 200

Element of common ownership satisfied when dominant and servient tenements were under ownership of federal government at time of conveyance. Kellogg v. Garcia (2002) 102 Cal. App. 4th 796, 808, 125 Cal. Rptr. 2d 817

Subsequent owners of landlocked property did not have easement by necessity over adjacent land when state had previously owned property and had not exercised its power of eminent domain to provide access for parcel. Moores v. Walsh (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 1046, 1050-1051, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 389

Necessary element of common ownership for right-of-way by necessity existed even though one parcel was owned outright and other was purchased by installment sale. Roemer v. Pappas (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 201, 205-206, 249 Cal. Rptr. 743

Presumption of way of necessity affected burden of proof; presumption was overcome by evidence of later disclaimer that grantor did not intend to reserve easement over property conveyed and evidence that, at time property was conveyed, access over conveyed parcel would have been very difficult. Hewitt v. Meaney (1986) 181 Cal. App. 3d 361, 367-370, 226 Cal. Rptr. 349

Way of necessity was granted for running sewer line. Frederick v. Louis (1935) 10 Cal. App. 2d 649, 651-652, 52 P.2d 533

Owner of land abutting public highway has all usual rights and remedies of owner of freehold concerning unlawful obstruction or interference with use of public road, including trespass, ejectment, action for damages, injunction, or action to remove obstruction, or abate nuisance. Fitzgerald v. Smith (1928) 94 Cal. App. 480, 485

[3] Interpretation

Reasonable expectations of parties in creating easements anticipated uses reasonably required by normal development of dominant tenement. Camp Meeker Water System, Inc. v. Public Utilities Com. (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 845, 867, 274 Cal. Rptr. 678, 799 P.2d 758

Deed that did not specify whether easement was in gross or appurtenant was to be interpreted in favor of grantor and of easement appurtenant; finding of easement appurtenant was proper when grantor testified that he intended easement appurtenant and grantee did not testify as to intent. Moylan v. Dykes (1986) 181 Cal. App. 3d 561, 569-572, 226 Cal. Rptr. 673

[4] License

Trivial expenditure on improvements did not bring plaintiff within rule that when licensee has entered under oral license and has expended money or its equivalent in labor, in execution of license, license becomes irrevocable. Kaler v. Brown (1951) 101 Cal. App. 2d 716, 719, 226 P.2d 66

[5] Scope of Easement

Installation, operation, and maintenance by telecom company of fiber optic cables within county road easements came within scope of easements. Anderson v. Time Warner Telecom of California Inc. (2005) 129 Cal. App. 4th 411, 419, 28 Cal. Rptr. 3d 289

Easement for access did not give dominant-tenement owner right to use every portion of easement, and servient-tenement owner could make continued use of area as long as that use did not unreasonably interfere with owner's access to dominant tenement. Scruby v. Vintage Grapevine, Inc. (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 697, 702-704, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 810

Easement granted in general terms, so that it was nonspecific regarding its particular nature, extent, and location, entitled holder to choose reasonable location and to use whatever portion of servient tenement was reasonably necessary for purposes for which easement was created; use actually made by holder over time fixed location, nature, and extent of use. Colvin v. Southern Cal. Edison Co. (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 1306, 1312, 240 Cal. Rptr. 142

Placing cable television line on telephone poles was within scope of easement. Salvaty v. Falcon Cable Television (1985) 165 Cal. App. 3d 798, 802-804, 212 Cal. Rptr. 31

When easement existed as dirt ditch, dominant-tenement owner did not have right to change easement by lining ditch. Krieger v. Pacific Gas & Electric Co. (1981) 119Cal. App. 3d 137, 142-145, 173 Cal. Rptr. 751

[6] Statute of Limitation

Statute of limitation was not applicable to action to quiet title to easement by implication. Lichty v. Sickels (1983) 149

Cal. App. 3d 696, 702-704, 196 Cal. Rptr. 718

[7] Termination of Easements

Outrageous conduct by owner of easement which prevented servient owners from making reasonable use of easement area did not justify extinguish ment, because easement owner's conduct did not interfere with his own use of easement. Reichardt v. Hoffman (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 754, 768-769, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 770

Right-of-way easement was not abandoned by planting trees on it because trees were not incompatible with future use of right-of-way easement, nor was it abandoned by fencing it off because gate in fence implied intent to use easement. Tract Development Services, Inc. v. Kepler (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 1374, 1384-1387, 246 Cal. Rptr. 469

Claimant of easement in property of bankruptcy estate that was sold by bankruptcy court free of liens and encumbrances was not barred by res judicata from proceeding against purchaser to establish easement by fact that he knew that parcel was being sold, when he did not file objection or otherwise participate in hearings authorizing sale. Scheidel v. Lister (1986) 182 Cal. App. 3d 657, 661-667, 227 Cal. Rptr. 510

Easement for access was terminated by adverse possession when owner of servient tenement blocked road with barrier and stored material on road for more than five years. Masin v. La Marche (1982) 136 Cal. App. 3d 687, 693-695, 186 Cal. Rptr. 619

Easement cannot be acquired or extinguished by adverse use unless party whose rights are affected thereby has actual or constructive knowledge of adverse nature of use, such knowledge resulting from either express or implied notice. Clark v. Redlich (1957) 147 Cal. App. 2d 500, 508, 305 P.2d 239

Certain uses of servient tenement by their nature constituted notice of adverse claim while other uses appeared to be only reasonable exercise of proprietary rights and therefore not basis for implication of notice of adverse claim. Clark v. Redlich (1957) 147 Cal. App. 2d 500, 508, 305 P.2d 239

Code § 809*; Warfield v. Basich (1958) 161 Cal. App. 2d 493, 495, 326 P.2d 942 (action to quiet title to implied easement); Gazos Creek Mill Etc. Co. v. Coburn (1908) 8 Cal. App. 150, 159, 36 P. 359 (owner of right to cut growing timber and of easements in connection therewith had right to maintain action to quiet title)]. The form may be adapted for use in an action involving an easement in gross by appropriately changing references to the easement, so as to refer to it as being in gross. If the facts involve obstruction of the plaintiff's use of the easement, the plaintiff may want to plead a cause of action for injunctive relief and damages [see § 240.51].

PRACTICE TIP:

Obtaining Title Reports. The plaintiff may wish to obtain a title report before commencing the action. If the plaintiff intends to add unknown persons as defendants [see [4][c], below], an examination of the record title and an inspection of the property will be necessary [see Code Civ. Proc. § 762.060(b)]. Also, the court may order the plaintiff to obtain a title report and keep it available for inspection and copying by the parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 762.040(b)]. By Publisher's Editorial Staff

[3] Allegations

[a] Required Allegations

A quiet title complaint must include the following allegations [Code Civ. Proc. § 761.020]:

- Both the legal description and the street address or common designation, if any, of the property that is the subject of the action (Paragraphs 1-3) [Code Civ. Proc. § 761.020(a); see Code Civ. Proc. § 455 (necessity, in action for recovery of real property, to describe property with such certainty that officer levying execution can identify it)].

- The title of the plaintiff as to which determination is sought and the basis of the title (Paragraphs 3 and 4) [Code Civ. Proc. § 761.020(b)].

- The adverse claims to the title of the plaintiff against which a determination is sought (Paragraphs 6-12) [Code Civ. Proc. § 761.020(c)].

  - If the claim or the share or quantity of the claim of a person required to be named as a defendant is unknown, uncertain, or contingent, the plaintiff must state this in the complaint. If the lack of knowledge, uncertainty, or contingency is caused by a transfer to an unborn or unascertained person or class member, or by a transfer in the form of a contingent remainder, vested remainder subject to defeasance, executory interest, or similar disposition, the plaintiff must also state in the complaint, as far as is known to the plaintiff, the name, age, and legal disability, if any, of the person in being who would be entitled to the claim had the contingency on which the claim depends occurred before the action's commencement (Optional Paragraph 7) [Code Civ. Proc. § 762.020(b)].

  - If the plaintiff admits the validity of any adverse claim, the complaint must state this (Optional clause at end of Paragraph 12) [Code Civ. Proc. § 762.060(c)].

- The date as of which the determination is sought. If the determination is sought as of a date other than the date the complaint is filed, the complaint must include a statement of the reasons why a determination as of that date is sought (Paragraph 13) [Code Civ. Proc. § 761.020(d)].

- A prayer for the determination of the plaintiff's title against the adverse claims [Code Civ. Proc. § 761.020(e)].

[b] Plaintiff's Identity and Capacity

If the plaintiff is not a natural person, the complaint should allege the plaintiff's identity as an existing legal entity entitled to come into court. If the plaintiff sues in a special capacity, the complaint should allege this capacity to show that the plaintiff is entitled to relief if other facts alleged are true [see Parker v. Bowron (1953) 40 Cal. 2d 344, 351, 254 P.2d 6] .

[c] Defendant's Identity and Capacity

If the defendant is not a natural person, the complaint should allege the defendant's identity as an existing entity, such as a corporation, against which the court's judgment will operate [see Tanner v. Best (1940) 40 Cal. App. 2d 442, 445, 104 P.2d 1084] . If the defendant is sued in a particular capacity, for example as executor or trustee, the complaint should allege that capacity [see, e.g., Katleman v. First Nat. Bank of Nevada (1963) 212 Cal. App. 2d 520, 524, 28 Cal. Rptr. 150 (discharged executor was not subject to suit in representative capacity)]. See [4], below, regarding the selection of defendants.

[d] Seisin or Possession Within Five Years

When the plaintiff claims a present interest in real property [see Civ. Code § 689], he or she is deemed to sue for the recovery of real property within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 318 and is required to plead and prove that the plaintiff or his or her ancestor, predecessor, or grantor was seised or possessed of the property in question within five years before the action's commencement (Paragraph 5) [see Safwenberg v. Marquez (1975) 50 Cal. App. 3d 301, 311, 123 Cal. Rptr. 405 ; see also Schoenfeld v. Pritzker (1967) 257 Cal. App. 2d 117, 121, 64 Cal. Rptr. 592 (seisin as shown when plaintiff establishes legal title to land)].

[4] Selection of Defendants

[a] Who Must Be Made Defendants

The plaintiff must name as defendants the persons having adverse claims to the title of the plaintiff and against which a determination is sought [Code Civ. Proc. § 762.010]. If the name of a person required to be named as a defendant is not known to the plaintiff, the plaintiff must state this in the complaint and must name all persons unknown as parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 762.020(a); see [c], below].

The court on its own motion may, and on the motion of any party must, make appropriate orders for the joinder of additional parties as necessary or proper [Code Civ. Proc. § 762.040(a)].

[b] Decedents and Personal Representatives

If a person required to be named as a defendant is dead and the plaintiff knows of a personal representative, the plaintiff must join the personalrepresentative [Code Civ. Proc. § 762.030(a)]. If a person required to be named as a defendant is dead, or is believed by the plaintiff to be dead, and the plaintiff knows of no personal representative, the plaintiff must state these facts in an affidavit filed with the complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 762.030(b)(1)]. If it is stated in the affidavit that the person is dead, the plaintiff may join as defendants "the testate and intestate successors of [name of deceased person], deceased, and all persons claiming by, through, or under such decedent" (Optional Paragraph 8) [Code Civ. Proc. § 762.030(b)(2)].

If a person required to be named as a defendant is believed by the plaintiff to be deceased, the person believed to be deceased may be named as a defendant as may that person's successors. The successors must be denominated as "the testate and intestate successors of [name of person believed to be deceased], believed to be deceased, and all persons claiming by, through, or under such person" [Code Civ. Proc. § 762.030(b)(3)].

[c] Unknown Defendants

The plaintiff may name as defendants "all persons unknown, claiming any legal or equitable right, title, estate, lien, or interest in the property described in the complaint adverse to the plaintiff's title, or any cloud upon the plaintiff's title thereto" naming them in that manner (Optional Paragraph 9) [Code Civ. Proc. § 762.060(a)]. If unknown defendants are named, the plaintiff must name as defendants the persons having adverse claims that are of record or known to the plaintiff or reasonably apparent from an inspection of the property [Code Civ. Proc. § 762.060(b)]. Naming unknown defendants and serving them by publication [see generally [7], below] will entitle the plaintiff to an in rem judgment against all persons known and unknown who were parties to the action and all persons not parties to the action and unknown to the plaintiff who had a claim that was not recorded when the lis pendens [see [9][b], below] was filed [Code Civ. Proc. § 764.030]. However, a person who is in open and actual occupancy of the property cannot be named as an unknown defendant [Code Civ. Proc. § 763.010(c)].

[d] Fictitious Defendants

Testate and intestate successors and "all persons unknown" may be designated as "DOE" defendants, although that is not recommended because it differs from the statutory language of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 762.030(b)(2), (3) and 762.060 by which those defendants are to be designated [see [c], above] and because it may limit the in rem effect of the judgment by limiting the number of adverse claimants in those classes [see Code Civ. Proc. § 763.030(b)]. However, fictitious defendants may be named as "DOE" defendants under Code Civ. Proc. § 474 (Optional Paragraph 10) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 760.060 (rules governing civil actions generally are applicable in quiet title actions unless they are inconsistent with quiet title provisions)].

[5] Verification

The complaint must be verified [Code Civ. Proc. § 761.020].

[6] Jurisdiction and Venue

Quiet title actions are in the jurisdiction of the superior court and are not limited civil cases [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 580(b)(3), 760.040(a)]. Subject to the power of the court to transfer actions, the superior court in the county where the real property, or some part of it, is situated is the proper court for the trial of an action to quiet title to real property [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 392(a)(1), 760.050(a)].

There is no requirement that facts establishing venue be specially alleged and the plaintiff does not have the burden of showing that venue is proper. Instead, the defendant has the burden, if venue is improper, to raise an objection and prove the point [see Code Civ. Proc. § 396b]. Nevertheless, whether venue is proper is determined from the face of the complaint [Peiser v. Mettler (1958) 50 Cal. 2d 594, 603, 328 P.2d 953] . Therefore, when venue is proper in only one county, the plaintiff should indicate that county by including a description of the property in the complaint [see Sheeley v. Jones (1923) 192 Cal. 256, 257, 258, 219 P. 744] . The description need not be alleged in a separate paragraph if it is included elsewhere in the complaint.

[7] Service of Summons

The form, content, and manner of the service of summons is the same as in civil actions generally [Code Civ. Proc. § 763.010(a)]. If unknown defendants are named, there must also be service by publication and posting [Code Civ. Proc. § 763.010(b)]. The requirements for service by publication and posting are discussed in Ch. 482, Quieting Title . The procedure for service of summons is set forth in Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers .

[8] Statute of Limitations and Laches

If the party seeking to quiet title is in possession of the land, it is unnecessary to determine which statute would otherwise apply, because no statute of limitation runs against a party seeking to quiet title while the party is in possession of the property [Muktarian v. Barmby (1965) 63 Cal. 2d 558, 560, 47 Cal. Rptr. 438, 407 P.2d 659 ; but see Rev. & Tax. Code § 175; Sears v. County of Calaveras (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 518, 521-522, 289 P.2d 425] . The doctrine of laches may still bar the action to quiet title ifthe plaintiff's delay in bringing suit has prejudiced the adverse claimant [Muktarian v. Barmby (1965) 63 Cal. 2d 558, 561, 47 Cal. Rptr. 483, 407 P.2d. 659 ; but see Gerhard v. Stephens (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 864, 904, 69 Cal. Rptr. 612, 442 P.2d 692 (laches as no defense if defendant fails to demonstrate that he or she was in adverse possession of contested property during period of delay)].

[9] Ancillary Matters

[a] Appointment of Guardian ad Litem

The court on its own motion may, and on motion of any party must, make such orders for appointment of guardians ad litem as appear necessary to protect the interest of any party [Code Civ. Proc. § 762.080]. Appointment of guardians ad litem is discussed in Ch. 291, Guardians ad Litem .

[b] Lis Pendens

Immediately after filing the complaint, the plaintiff must file a lis pendens in the office of the county recorder of each county in which any real property described in the complaint is situated [Code Civ. Proc. § 761.010(a)]. The lis pendens gives constructive notice of the pendency of the action to subsequent purchasers or encumbrancers [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.24]. For discussion and forms of lis pendens, see Ch. 348, Lis Pendens .

PRACTICE TIP:

Motion to Strike If No Lis Pendens Recorded. If no lis pendens is recorded in tandem with a quiet title action, the proper method to raise this infirmity is a motion to strike for not filing a pleading in conformity with the laws of California [Code Civ. Proc. § 436(b)]. By William M. Hensley

[2] Use of Form

This form is a complaint for use by the owner of an easement appurtenant to obtain a permanent injunction and damages, as well as a temporary restraining order and a preliminary injunction [see generally Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1150 (procedure for obtaining preliminary injunction)], based on interference with or obstruction of the easement by the owner of the servient tenement. This form may be used by the owner of a prescriptive easement [see LeDeit v. Ehlert (1962) 205 Cal. App. 2d 154, 169, 22 Cal. Rptr. 747] as well as by the owner of a granted or like easement. For discussion and additional forms related to prescriptive easements, see Ch. 13, Adverse Possession .

[3] Supporting Papers

The form in [1], above, reflects an assumption that the plaintiff will file affidavits (or declarations under penalty of perjury [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) in support of the allegations in the complaint in order to obtain the temporary restraining order and preliminary injunction. If the complaint is not supported by affidavits (or declarations), counsel must take care to plead evidentiary facts that would entitle the plaintiff to the relief sought [see E.H. Renzel Co. v. Warehousemen's Union (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 369, 373, 106 P.2d 1 ; San Juan G. Co. v. San Juan R. etc. Assn. (1939) 34 Cal. App. 2d 159, 174, 93 P.2d 582] . In addition, when no affidavits (or declarations) are prepared, the complaint must be verified [see Code Civ. Proc. § 527(a), (c)(1); for further discussion, see § 240.51[10]].

If a TRO or preliminary injunction is being sought, a separate application will be needed [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1150(a), (b); for further discussion, see § 240.51[7]].

[4] Contents of Complaint

[a] Allegations

An allegation of the ultimate fact of the plaintiff's ownership of the easement described in the complaint and a further allegation that the defendant interfered with the plaintiff's use of the easement are sufficient to state a cause of action for an injunction and nominal damages [Metzger v. Bose (1957) 155 Cal. App. 2d 131, 133, 317 P.2d 128] . The complaint in [1], above, alleges:

- The plaintiff's ownership of the dominant tenement and the easement appurtenant (Paragraphs 1 and 3).

- The defendant's ownership of the servient tenement (Paragraph 2) [see Ames v. Prodon (1967) 252 Cal. App. 2d 94, 100, 60 Cal. Rptr. 183] .

- Facts showing the defendant's interference with or obstruction of the easement (Paragraph 4) [see Metzger v. Bose (1957) 155 Cal. App. 2d 131, 133, 317 P.2d 128] .

- The plaintiff's optional demand of the defendant to refrain from the interference or obstruction (Paragraph 5).

- Facts showing why the defendant's conduct will cause great and irreparable injury to the plaintiff (Paragraph 6) [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 526(a)(2), 527(c)(1); see E.H. Renzel Co. v. Warehousemen's Union (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 369, 373, 106 P.2d 1] .

- Facts showing why the plaintiff has no adequate remedy at law (Paragraph 7) [see Civ. Code § 3422(1)-(3); Code Civ. Proc. § 526(a)(4)-(6)].

- That the plaintiff sustained compensatory damages because of the defendant's wrongful conduct (Paragraph 8) [Civ. Code § 3333].

- Optionally, that the plaintiff is entitled to exemplary or punitive damages (Paragraph 9) [Civ. Code § 3294].

For further discussion of the allegations necessary to state a claim for injunctive relief, see Ch. 303, Injunctions .

[b] Depiction or Description of Property

An application for an injunction to protect an easement must depict by drawings, plot plans, photographs, or other appropriate means, or must describe in detail, the premises involved (Paragraph 3) [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1151].

[5] Right to Permanent Injunction

[a] Mandatory Injunction

In a proper case, the court may award a mandatory injunction for the protectionand preservation of an easement, including an order for the removal of an obstruction that the defendant erected [see, e.g., Greiner v. Kirkpatrick (1952) 109 Cal. App. 2d 798, 802-803, 241 P.2d 564 (injunction requiring removal of part of wall interfering with plaintiff's use of right-of-way easement)]. Whether a mandatory injunction is appropriate depends on:

- The relative adequacy to the plaintiff of the injunction and of other available remedies such as damages.

- The relative hardship likely to result to the defendant if the injunction is granted and to the plaintiff if it is denied.

- The interests of third parties and of the public.

- The practicability of framing and enforcing the order or judgment.

The appropriateness of an injunction is determined as of the time of the order or judgment, unless special circumstances require otherwise [Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. v. Minnette (1953) 115 Cal. App. 2d 698, 708-709, 252 P.2d 642] .

Concerning whether to request a mandatory injunction or another form of relief, it should be noted that a mandatory injunction is automatically stayed on appeal whereas a prohibitory injunction is not automatically stayed. The object of this rule is to preserve the status quo [Paramount Pictures Corp. v. Davis (1964) 228 Cal. App. 2d 827, 835, 39 Cal. Rptr. 791] . An additional consideration is that a mandatory preliminary injunction is rarely granted, since a clear case of prospective injury and urgency is indispensable [Alvarez v. Eden Township Hospital Dist. (1961) 191 Cal. App. 2d 309, 312, 12 Cal. Rptr. 661] .

[b] Prohibitory Injunction

A permanent prohibitory injunction to restrain interference with the plaintiff's use of a way of necessity would terminate by operation of law when the necessity on which the easement is based ceases [Martinelli v. Luis (1931) 213 Cal. 183, 185, 1 P.2d 980] .

[6] Right to Damages

Damages may be sought along with an injunction since legal and equitable remedies may be sought in one action [Pacific Western Oil Co. v. Bern Oil Co. (1939) 13 Cal. 2d 60, 66, 87 P.2d 1045] . For example:

- The plaintiff may seek compensatory damages [Civ. Code § 3333] for loss of use of an obstructed easement [see, e.g., Zimmer v. Dykstra (1974) 39 Cal. App. 3d 422, 429-430, 437-439, 114 Cal. Rptr. 380 (nuisance theory)] or for actual harm to the easement itself [see, e.g., Donnell v. Bisso Brothers (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 38, 43-44, 88 Cal. Rptr. 645 (trespass theory)].

- Damages for annoyance and discomfort are recoverable by the owner of the dominant tenement once a cause of action for trespass or nuisance is established [Herzog v. Grosso (1953) 41 Cal. 2d 219, 225, 259 P.2d 429] .

- Punitive or exemplary damages are available when the defendant has been guilty of oppression, fraud, or malice [Civ. Code § 3294; Zimmer v. Dykstra (1974) 39 Cal. App. 3d 422, 437-439, 114 Cal. Rptr. 380 ; Donnell v. Bisso Brothers (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 38, 44, 88 Cal. Rptr. 645] .

When the owner of the dominant tenement suffers a permanent depreciation in the value of his or her property because of a tortious interference with the easement, the amount by which the value is decreased may be recovered as damages. When the cost of restoring the easement to its original state is less than the permanent depreciation in value of the property, the former may be used as an alternative measure of damages. However, the burden is on the defendant to prove that the cost of restoration is less [Herzog v. Grosso (1953) 41 Cal. 2d 219, 226, 259 P.2d 429] .

For further discussion and forms for use in pleading various kinds of damages in the present situation, see Ch. 177, Damages, § 177.40 et seq., Ch. 391, Nuisance , and Ch. 550, Trespass .

[7] Right to Temporary Restraining Order and Preliminary Injunction

[a] Cause of Action Required

A preliminary injunction is warranted only if the complaint states a sufficient cause of action for injunctive relief of the character embraced in the permanent injunction. The essential conditions for granting temporary injunctive relief are that the complaint must allege facts that appear to be sufficient to constitute a cause of action for an injunction and that the injunction is reasonably necessary to protect the legal rights of the plaintiff pending litigation [Moreno Mut. Irr. Co. v. Beaumont Irr. Dist. (1949) 94 Cal. App. 2d 766, 778, 211 P.2d 928] .

[b] Application for Temporary Restraining Order and Preliminary Injunction

The application for the TRO and preliminary injunction is made application for an order to show cause [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1150(a) (also providing for application for preliminary injunction by noticed motion if the responding party has already appeared in the action)]. The application will need to include a statement whether there has been any previous application for similar relief, and if so, the result of that application [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1150(f)].

For a form of application and discussion and a checklist of the procedure forobtaining injunctive relief, see Ch. 303, Injunctions .

[c] Certification Regarding Notice

When seeking a temporary restraining order without formal notice, the plaintiff or plaintiff's attorney must accompany the application for an order by an affidavit or a declaration showing that one of the following is true [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1204(b)]:

- Within the applicable time period (described below), the applicant informed the opposing party when and where the application would be made.

- The applicant in good faith attempted to inform the opposing party but was unable to do so, specifying the efforts made to inform the opposing party.

- For reasons specified, the applicant should not be required to inform the opposing party.

To come within the "applicable time period," a party seeking an ex parte order must notify all parties no later than 10 a.m. on the court day before the ex parte appearance, unless the party can show exceptional circumstances that justify a shorter time for notice [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1203(a); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1205 (clerk must accept ex parte application even if it does not comply with these notification requirements)].

When notice of an ex parte application is given, the person giving notice must state with specificity the nature of the relief to be requested, and the date, time, and place for presentation of the application, and must attempt to determine whether the opposing party will appear to oppose the application [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1204(a)]. Every ex parte application must be accompanied by a declaration regarding notice that states one of the following [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1204(b)(1)]:

- The notice given, including the date, time, manner, and name of the party informed, the relief sought, any response, and whether opposition is expected.

- Why notice should not be required.

In addition, if notice was provided later than 10 a.m. on the court day before the ex parte appearance, the declaration regarding note must explain the exceptional circumstances that justify the shorter notice [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1204(c)].

For a form of declaration and discussion and a checklist of the procedure for obtaining injunctive relief, see Ch. 303, Injunctions .

[d] Service Required Before Hearing

The plaintiff must, within five days after the temporary restraining order is issued or two days before the hearing, whichever is earlier, serve on the defendant [Code Civ. Proc. § 527(d)(2)]:

- A copy of the complaint (if not previously served).
- The order to show cause stating the date, time, and place of the hearing.
- Any affidavits to be used in the application.
- A copy of the points and authorities in support of the application.

The court may for good cause, on the plaintiff's motion or on its own motion, shorten the time required for service on the defendant [Code Civ. Proc. § 527(d)(2)]. When the matter first comes up for hearing, if the party who obtained the order is not ready to proceed or service was not effected as stated above, the court must dissolve the temporary restraining order [Code Civ. Proc. § 527(d)(3)]. However, if service was not effected as stated above, and the plaintiff files an affidavit stating that the defendant could not be served within the required time, the court may reissue the temporary restraining order [Code Civ. Proc. § 527(d)(5)] and reset the matter for hearing.

For discussion and a checklist of the procedure for obtaining injunctive relief, see Ch. 303, Injunctions .

[8] Jurisdiction

[a] Subject-Matter Jurisdiction

Because the complaint in [1], above, seeks permanent injunctive relief, the action is in the jurisdiction of the superior court and is not a limited civil case [Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86, 580(b)(3)]. When title or right to possession is to be tried, or permanent injunctive relief is sought, the case will be classified as an unlimited civil case [see Code Civ. Proc. § 88].

[b] Personal Jurisdiction

Issuance of either a preliminary injunction or a permanent injunction requires personal jurisdiction over the person enjoined [see Comfort v. Comfort (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 736, 741, 112 P.2d 259 (permanent injunction); Rothschild v. Erda (1968) 258 Cal. App. 2d 750, 753, 66 Cal. Rptr. 209 (preliminary injunction)].

[9] Venue

Subject to the power of the court to transfer actions and proceedings [see generally Code Civ. Proc. § 392 et seq.], the superior court in the county where the real property that is the subject of the action, or some part of the property, is situated, is the proper court for the trial of actions for the determination in any form of an estate or interest in real property and for injuries to real property [Code Civ. Proc. § 392(a)(1); cf. Strosnider v. Pomin (1939) 32 Cal. App. 2d 103,109-110, 89 P.2d 179 (action for damages for slander of title resulting in obstruction of right-of-way easement)].

[10] Verification

A complaint seeking a preliminary injunction or temporary restraining order must either be verified or be accompanied by affidavits (or declarations under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) in support of the allegations of the complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 527(a), (c)]. If relying on a verified complaint instead of affidavits (or declarations), counsel must plead evidentiary facts that would entitle the plaintiff to the relief sought [see E.H. Renzel Co. v. Warehousemen's Union (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 369, 373, 106 P.2d 1 ; Finnie v. Town of Tiburon (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 1, 15, 244 Cal. Rptr. 581] . For discussion, a procedural checklist, and additional forms necessary to obtain a temporary restraining order or preliminary injunction, see Ch. 303, Injunctions .

[11] Statute of Limitations

An action for trespass on or injury to real property must be brought within three years after the cause of action accrued [Code Civ. Proc. § 338(b); Roth v. Cottrell (1952) 112 Cal. App. 2d 621, 624-625, 246 P.2d 958 (action for damages for obstruction of right-of-way easement)]. A cause of action for injury to property accrues at the time of the injury. If the trespass is "permanent," as when a structure is built on the land, the action accrues at the time construction is completed. However, when the character of the trespass is such that it will not be presumed that the wrongful conduct will be continued, each successive trespass gives rise to a cause of action. A similar rule is applied to an action for nuisance, which may be permanent or continuing [Polin v. Chung Cho (1970) 8 Cal. App. 3d 673, 677-678, 87 Cal. Rptr. 591] .

[2] Use of Form

This form is a petition for use by one of the owners of a right-of-way easement in gross or an owner of any land to which a right-of-way easement is appurtenant (the dominant tenement), against another owner of the easement or another owner of the dominant tenement, to obtain the appointment of an impartial arbitrator who will apportion the costs of maintaining the easement between the parties [see Civ. Code § 845]. If the arbitration award is not accepted by all of the owners, the court may enter a judgment determining the proportional liability of each owner. The judgment may be enforced as a money judgment by any party against any other party to the action [Civ. Code § 845(c)]. For further discussion of the right to apportionment, see § 240.16[7].

[3] Supporting Papers

A notice of hearing of the petition and a supporting memorandum should accompany a petition filed in superior court [Code Civ. Proc. § 1290.2 (notice of petition to compel arbitration under arbitration agreement); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a)], since this petition is not listed among the petitions, civil motions, and applications for which a memorandum is not required [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1114(a)]. Additionally, a memorandum may be required by the court in support of any motion, application, or petition if it would further the interests of justice, or a party may voluntarily submit a memorandum in that situation [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1114(b); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113]. For general discussion of points and authorities, see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities .

[4] Respondents

The respondents should be all other owners of an easement in gross or, in the case of an easement appurtenant, all other owners of the land (possibly including separate parcels) composing the dominant tenement [see Civ. Code § 845(b); Whitson v. Goudeseune (1955) 137 Cal. App. 2d 445, 448-449, 290 P.2d 590] .

[5] Jurisdiction and Venue

The petition must be filed in the county where the right-of-way easement is located [Civ. Code § 845(c)].

The superior court has jurisdiction of the action, which will be classified as an unlimited civil case unless the amount in controversy, exclusive of interest, is $25,000 or less, in which case it will be classified as a limited civil case [Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86]. When title or right to possession is to be tried, or permanent injunctive relief is sought, the case will be classified as an unlimited civil case [see Code Civ. Proc. § 88].

In limited civil cases, the first page of the first paper must state that it is a limited civil case and whether the amount demanded exceeds or does not exceed $10,000 [Code Civ. Proc. § 422.30(b); Gov. Code § 70613(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(9), (10)].

[6] Verification

Verification of this petition is not required [see Civ. Code § 845; see also Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1281.2, 1290]. If the petition were considered equivalent to a complaint, verification of it would require the defendant to file a verified answer in a superior court action other than a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446] and would also preclude a general denial except in a limited civil case, and would preclude a general denial even in a limited civil case when the action is a claim assigned to a third party for collection [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion of the effect that verifying a complaint has on the answer, see Ch. 26, Answers .

[2] Use of Form

This form is a complaint for use by one of the owners of an easement in the nature of a right of way, or of a parcel of land to which such an easement is appurtenant, against another owner to obtain damages for the cost of repairs to the easement made under an apportionment agreement [*see Civ. - The plaintiff's ownership of an easement in the nature of a private right of way or of a parcel of land to which such an easement is appurtenant (Paragraph 1).
- The defendant's ownership of the easement or a parcel of land to which the easement is appurtenant (Paragraph 2).

[4] Statute of Limitations

An action on a written contract must be brought within four years [Code Civ. Proc. § 337(1)], or an action on an oral contract must be brought within two years [Code Civ. Proc. § 339(1)], after the cause of action arose.

[5] Jurisdiction

The superior court has jurisdiction of the action, which will be classified as an unlimited civil case unless the amount in controversy, exclusive of interest, is $25,000 or less, in which case it will be classified as a limited civil case [Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86]. When title or right to possession is to be tried, or permanent injunctive relief is sought, the case will be classified as an unlimited civil case [see Code Civ. Proc. § 88].

- The county in which the defendant resided at the time the agreement was entered into.
- The county in which the defendant resides at the commencement of the action.

If a county is a defendant, the action may be commenced in that county [Code Civ. Proc. § 394]. In special cases, other counties also may be proper [see Code Civ. Proc. § 395.1 (action against executor, administrator, guardian, or trustee); Code Civ. Proc. § 395.2 (action against unincorporated association); *Code Civ. Although verification of this complaint is not required [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(a)], verification will require any answer to be verified in an unlimited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446]. Verification will also preclude the defendant from using a general denial in an unlimited civil case, and will preclude a general denial in a limited civil case if the action is a claim assigned to a third party for collection [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion, see Ch. 26, Answers .

Proc. § 762.030(a)*] or heirs and intestate or testate successors [Code Civ. Proc. § 762.030(b)] of persons known or believed by the plaintiff to be deceased. If those defendants are necessary [see generally § 240.50[4]], appropriate allegations can be found in § 240.50[1].

[4] Jurisdiction and Venue

[5] Effect of Judgment

An abandoned easement is unenforceable and is deemed to have expired. Acourt order establishing an easement's abandonment is equivalent for all purposes to a conveyance of the easement to the owner of the servient tenement [Civ. Code § 887.080].

[2] Use of Form

This form is a complaint for use by the owner of an alleged servient tenement in an action against the owner of the alleged dominant tenement for a declaration as to the nonexistence or limited extent of an easement on the plaintiff's property, and to quiet title to the plaintiff's property.

[3] Landowner's Cause of Action

The owner of a fee interest in real property subject to a servitude is entitled to have the extent and burdens of the servitude defined and determined in a quiet title action [Warren v. Atchison, T. & S.F. Ry. Co. (1971) 19 Cal. App. 3d 24, 33, 96 Cal. Rptr. 317] . The owner of a servient tenement is entitled to maintain an action for possession of the land even if a servitude exists in favor of the public [Civ. Code § 810].

[4] Contents of Complaint

[a] Allegations

In the first cause of action, for declaratory relief [see generally Code Civ. Proc. § 1060 et seq.], the complaint alleges [Code Civ. Proc. § 1060]:

- The plaintiff's ownership of the real property that is purportedly theservient tenement (Paragraph 1).
- The defendant's ownership of the real property that is purportedly the dominant tenement (Paragraph 2).
- The facts giving rise to the dispute as to the existence or extent of the alleged easement (Paragraph 4).
- Facts showing that an actual controversy exists between the parties as to their respective rights and duties with regard to the plaintiff's land (Paragraph 5).
- The determination and declaration sought by the plaintiff (Paragraph 6).
- Facts showing that declaratory relief is necessary and appropriate at this time (Paragraph 7).

For discussion of the allegations in the second cause of action, to quiet title, see § 240.50[3].

[b] Defendants

The form in [1], above, does not contain any allegations regarding defendants who are personal representatives [Code Civ. Proc. § 762.030(a)] or heirs and intestate or testate successors [Code Civ. Proc. § 762.030(b)] of persons known or believed by the plaintiff to be deceased. If those defendants are necessary [see generally § 240.50[4]], appropriate allegations can be found in § 240.50[1], along with an expanded caption that includes them as defendants.

[5] Jurisdiction and Venue

An action seeking declaratory relief and quiet title to real property is in the jurisdiction of the superior court and is not a limited civil case [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(7), 580(b)(3), (4), 1060, 760.040(a)]. When title or right to possession is to be tried, or permanent injunctive relief is sought, the case will be classified as an unlimited civil case [see Code Civ. Proc. § 88].

The superior court in the county where the real property, or some part of it, is situated is the proper court for the trial of an action for the determination of a right or interest in real property and to quiet title [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 392(a), 760.050(a); but see Code Civ. Proc. § 394 (action in which city, county, consolidation, or local agency is party)].

[2] Use of Form

This form is a Notice of Conservation Easement that may be completed and submitted to the county recorder in the county in which the easement is located. The information is to be added to the county's comprehensive index of conservation easements, which also includes information on recorded documents that contain a specifically named conservation easement. The conservation easement must be described in a notice, and all requested information must be properly filled out by the submitter. The notice may be recorded at the same time as it is submitted, or at a later time [Gov. Code § 27255(c)]. For information on the elements of a conservation easement, and the types of easements that fall into this category, see § 240.12[5].

[3] Comprehensive Index of Conservation Easements

The county recorder in each county must develop and maintain, within the county's existing indexing system, a comprehensive index of conservation easements and Notices of Conservation Easements on land within the county. Thisindex must include all conservation easements, as defined, recorded on or after January 1, 2002 [Gov. Code § 27255(a), (f); see § 240.12[5][a]]. In addition, a conservation easement recorded before January 1, 2002, may be included in the comprehensive index if a party to the easement fills out and records a notice for the previously recorded easement, and files the notice in the county in which the affected real property is located [Gov. Code § 27255(d)]. Any party to a conservation easement may fill out and record a notice, including, but not limited to, counties, cities, recreation and park districts or agencies, state conservancies, state agencies, the California Coastal Commission, land trusts, and nonprofit organizations [Gov. Code § 27255(d)].

A complaint in ejectment should allege facts showing the following:

- Title or right of possession in the plaintiff [see Kirsch v. Brigard (1883) 63 Cal. 319, 322-323 ; Haight v. Green (1861) 19 Cal. 113, 117 ; see § 241.13];

- Defendant's possession of the property and, if applicable, defendant's ouster of plaintiff [see Payne & Dewey v. Treadwell (1860) 16 Cal. 220 ; Boles v. Weifenback (1860) 15 Cal. 144 ; see § 241.13].

If plaintiff is also seeking damages for the wrongful detention of the property, the complaint should allege facts showing the following:

- The date on which defendant's wrongful possession of the property began and plaintiff's right to possession at that time [see Payne & Dewey v. Treadwell (1860) 16 Cal. 220 ; see § 241.13];

Chapter 241 EJECTMENT
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

20-241 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 241.10

§ 241.10 Nature of Action

[1] Recovery of Possession

Ejectment is a civil action to recover possession of real property [see Civ. Code § 3375; Code Civ. Proc. § 307; Payne & Dewey v. Treadwell (1860) 16 Cal. 220] by the owner or person entitled to possession of the property against the unlawful occupier of the land [Paap v. Von Helmholt (1960) 185 Cal. App. 2d 823, 829, 8 Cal. Rptr. 568] .

The action litigates only the right to possession of the premises demanded by plaintiff, and, unlike a quiet title action, it leaves the title to the property unchanged [see Whittaker v. Otto (1961) 188 Cal. App. 2d 619, 626, 10 Cal. Rptr. 689 ; Barcroft v. Livacich (1930) 35 Cal. App. 2d 710, 717, 96 P.2d 951] .

[2] Plaintiff's Possessory Right Sufficient to Bring Action

Plaintiff may bring an ejectment action on the basis of his or her legal title or, if neither party relies on actual fee title, on the basis of a mere possessory right [Whittaker v. Otto (1961) 188 Cal. App. 2d 619, 626, 10 Cal. Rptr. 689 ; see Shusett, Inc. v. Home Sav. & Loan Assn. (1964) 231 Cal. App. 2d 146, 150, 41 Cal. Rptr. 622] . However, a licensee who has no interest in the property may not ordinarily maintain an action for ejectment [Lucky Auto Supply v. Turner (1966) 244 Cal. App. 2d 872, 881, 53 Cal. Rptr. 628 ; Nahas v. Retail Clerks International Asso. (1956) 144 Cal. App. 2d 808, 821, 301 P.2d 932] .

In any case, plaintiff must recover on the basis of his or her own rights and not on the basis of defendant's lack of title or interest [Vowinckel v. N. Clark & Sons (1933) 217 Cal. 258, 262, 18 P.2d 58] .

Chapter 241 EJECTMENT
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

20-241 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 241.11

§ 241.11 When Action Lies

[1] Against Another Lessee

When neither party to an action to recover possession of property asserts a right to possession based on title and there has been no forcible entry or unlawful detainer as defined by statute, an action in ejectment is the only action available to litigate the right to possession. Ejectment is thus properly brought by a party ousted from actual possession of realty when two parties claim the right to possession based on leases either from the same or different lessors [see Boles v. Weifenback (1906) 15 Cal. 144, 144 ; Dondero v. O'Hara (1906) 3 Cal. App. 633, 640, 86 P. 985] .

[2] Against Person Adversely Possessing Property or Mere Trespasser

An action for ejectment is proper to recover possession of real property from an adverse possessor [see McLeran v. McNamara (1882) 60 Cal. 610, 613-614] . It is also the proper procedure by which to recover the land from a mere trespasser [Smpardos v. Piombo Construction Co. (1952) 111 Cal. App. 2d 415, 423, 244 P.2d 435] . Since a trespasser has no interest in the land, plaintiff may bring an action for ejectment on the basis of his or her prior peaceful possession of the property, without the necessity of showing any greater title or interest in the land [Smpardos v. Piombo Construction Co. (1952) 111 Cal. App. 2d 415, 423, 244 P.2d 435] .

[3] Against Vendee

An action in ejectment may be used to recover possession of realty from a vendee who breaches an executory contract for the sale of realty [see Paap v. Von Helmholt (1960) 185 Cal. App. 2d 823, 828, 8 Cal. Rptr. 568 ; see Maloney v. White (1960) 182 Cal. App. 2d 787, 788-789, 6 Cal. Rptr. 540] .

[4] Against Tenant, Employee, or Mortgagor

Although an action in ejectment may also be used to recover realty from a tenant who wrongfully retains possession of his or her landlord's property, an employee who wrongfully retains possession after the termination of his or her employment, a judgment debtor wrongfully in possession after sale of the property under execution and the perfection of title in the purchaser, or a mortgagor wrongfully in possession of property after a mortgage foreclosure sale and the perfection of title in the purchaser, an action under the unlawful detainer statutes is usually commenced under these circumstances rather than an action in ejectment. Since unlawful detainer is a summary proceeding that has priority over nearly every other civil action on a court's calendar [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161 et seq.], it is the most expeditious way to regain possession of property. The unlawful detainer statute lists the situations in which the procedure is available and also requires that certain notice provisions be strictly complied with [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1161, 1161a, 1167, and Ch. 333, Landlord and Tenant: Eviction Actions].

Chapter 241 EJECTMENT
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

20-241 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 241.12

§ 241.12 Damages

[1] Plaintiff's Right to Damages

[a] Measure of Damages

In addition to recovery of possession of the property, the plaintiff may recover damages for the wrongful ouster or unlawful holding of the property [Civ. Code § 3334(a)]. The measure of damages is [Civ. Code § 3334(a)]:

- The value of the use of the property for the time of the wrongful occupation, not exceeding the five years next preceding the commencement of the action;
- The reasonable cost of repair or restoration of the property to its original condition; and
- The costs of recovering possession.

[b] Determining Value of Use of Property

The value of the use of the property is the greater of [Civ. Code § 3334(b)]:

- The reasonable rental value of the property; or
- The benefits obtained by the person wrongfully occupying the property by reason of the wrongful occupation.

If, however, the wrongful occupation is the result of the wrongful occupier's mistake of fact, the value of the use of the property is the reasonable rental value of the property [Civ. Code § 3334(b)].

The recovery for lost value of use may include that period of time subsequent to the filing of the complaint and continuing until the plaintiff is let into possession [Don v. Trojan Constr. Co. (1960) 178 Cal. App. 2d 135, 137-138, 2 Cal. Rptr. 626] .

In an action to recover damages for groundwater and soil contamination caused by the leakage of leaded gasoline from a pipeline, the jury improperly found that defendant derived a $14,275,237 benefit when it failed to clean up the contamination and awarded that amount to plaintiff pursuant to Civ. Code § 3334. A trespass must result in something advantageous for the trespasser or it does not qualify as a benefit for purposes of the statute, and the pipeline leakage and the resulting contamination of plaintiff's land could not be considered something advantageous for the defendant [Watson Land Co. v. Shell Oil Co. (2005) 130 Cal. App. 4th 69, 79, 29 Cal. Rptr. 3d 343] .

[2] Defendant's Right to Setoff

If the defendant held the property in good faith under color of title, he or she is entitled to a setoff for any improvements made to the property during the term of his or her possession. This provision applies only in the event the plaintiff seeks damages for the wrongful withholding of the property, and the allowance cannot exceed the amount of damages awarded the plaintiff [Taliaferro v. Colasso (1956) 139 Cal. App. 2d 903, 906, 294 P.2d 774] .

To allege a cause of action in ejectment, the plaintiff need only allege ownership of the property (described with such certainty as to enable the execution officer to identify it [Code Civ. Proc. § 455]), or plaintiff's prior possession and ouster by defendant, and that defendant is still in possession [Payne & Dewey v. Treadwell (1860) 16 Cal. 220] .

It is not necessary to allege the probative facts establishing plaintiff's title or right to possession. The right of possession is inherent in the fact of ownership [Payne & Dewey v. Treadwell (1860) 16 Cal. 220, 243-244] .

If plaintiff is seeking damages for the wrongful detention of the property, it is necessary to allege the date on which the wrongful possession of the property by defendant began, plaintiff's right to possession at that time as well as at the time the action is commenced, the damages plaintiff suffered as a result of the detention, and the value of rents and profits if their recovery is sought [see Payne & Dewey v. Treadwell (1860) 16 Cal. 220] .

20-241 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 241.14

§ 241.14 Enforcement of Judgment

[1] Under Enforcement of Judgments Law

The party who is decreed to have the right of possession is entitled to have the judgment enforced by process of the court. The successful litigant may enforce the judgment by means of a writ of possession, which will direct the sheriff to carry into effect the directions in the decree of judgment: that is, direct the sheriff to take possession of the real property involved and to satisfy any money judgment that was rendered in the action [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 715.010, 715.020; for discussion and forms for enforcing judgments, see Ch. 254, Executions and Enforcement of Judgments].

[2] By Contempt Proceedings

If the ousted litigant reenters the premises without having acquired any further rights than those asserted at the trial, he or she is guilty of contempt of the court from which the judgment was rendered. Following a finding and conviction of such contempt, the party entitled to the possession of the premises may have an alias writ of possession issued to recover the land [Code Civ. Proc. § 1210].

For a form of order of contempt, see § 241.54.

[2] Use of Form

The form of complaint in [1], above, is for use in an action to recover possession of real property [see Civ. Code § 3375] and to recover damages [see Paap v. Von Helmholt (1960) 185 Cal. App. 2d 823, 830, 8 Cal. Rptr. 568 ; Bank of America v. O'Shields (1954) 128 Cal. App. 2d 212, 218, 275 P.2d 153] for its wrongful retention brought by the owner or person entitled to possession of the property [see also Chinese Hosp. Foundation Fund v. Patterson (1969) 1 Cal. App. 3d 627, 632, 81 Cal. Rptr. 795 ; Shusett, Inc. v. Home Sav. & Loan Asso. (1964) 231 Cal. App. 2d 146, 150, 41 Cal. Rptr. 622] .

[3] Allegations

The complaint alleges:

- Plaintiff's title to the property or his or her right to possession from a certain date (Paragraph 1) [see Kirsch v. Brigard (1883) 63 Cal. 319, 322-323 ; Haight v. Green (1861) 19 Cal. 113, 117] .

- A description of the property (Paragraph 1).

- Defendant's possession of the property and, if applicable, his or her ouster of plaintiff since a certain date (Paragraph 3) [see Payne & Dewey v. Treadwell (1860) 16 Cal. 220 ; Boles v. Weifenback (1860) 15 Cal. 144] .

- Plaintiff's demand that defendant remove from the premises or, if applicable, pay a reasonable rent and defendant's refusal to do so (Paragraph 4).

- The reasonable value of the rents and profits of the property (Paragraph 5).

- The damages suffered by plaintiff as a result of the wrongful detention (Paragraph 5).

For discussion of damages, see § 241.12.

The superior court has jurisdiction of the action, which will be classified as an unlimited civil case unless the amount in controversy, exclusive of interest, is $25,000 or less, in which case it will be classified as a limited civil case [Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(8)]. If the case will involve a determination of title to the property, it cannot be brought as a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. § 580(b)(3)]. When title or right to possession is to be tried, or permanent injunctive relief is sought, the case will be classified as an unlimited civil case [see Code Civ. Proc. § 88].

In limited civil cases, the first page of the first paper must state whether the amount demanded exceeds or does not exceed $10,000 [Code Civ. Proc. § 422.30(b); Gov. Code § 70613(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(9), (10)].

[5] Statute of Limitations

No action for the recovery of real property or for the recovery of the possession of real property can be maintained unless it appears that the plaintiff or his or her ancestor, predecessor, or grantor was seised or possessed of the property within five years before the commencement of the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 318]. The person establishing legal title is presumed to have been in possession for this five-year period unless the property was held and possessed adversely to this legal title for the entire period [see Code Civ. Proc. § 321].

[6] Venue

Subject to the power of the court to transfer actions and proceedings as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 392 et seq., the superior court in the county where the subject real property, or some part of it, is situated is the proper court for the trial of an action for the recovery of real property [Code Civ. Proc. § 392(a)].

[7] Verification

Although verification of this complaint is not required [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(a)], verification will require any answer to be verified in an unlimited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446]. Verification will also preclude the defendant from using a general denial in an unlimited civil case, and will preclude a general denial in a limited civil case if the action is a claim assigned to a third party for collection [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion, see Ch. 26, Answers .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
1. Political Reform Act of 1974

§ 242.20 Purpose

The Political Reform Act of 1974 (Gov. Code § 81000 et seq.) is intended comprehensively to address the influence of money, whether private or public, on electoral and governmental processes [see Fair Political Practices Com. v. Suitt (1979) 90 Cal. App. 3d 125, 132, 153 Cal. Rptr. 311 ; see also People v. Snyder (2000) 22 Cal. 4th 304, 307, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 734, 992 P.2d 1102 (act approved as initiative measure concerning elections and various means for preventing corruption and undue influence in political campaigns and governmental activities)].

The act was enacted to accomplish the following purposes [Gov. Code § 81002]:

- Receipts and expenditures in election campaigns should be fully and truthfully disclosed in order that the voters may be fully informed and improper practices may be inhibited.

- The activities of lobbyists should be regulated and their finances disclosed in order that improper influences will not be directed at public officials.

- Assets and income of public officials that may be materially affected by their official actions should be disclosed and in appropriate circumstances the officials should be disqualified from acting in order that conflicts of interest may be avoided [for discussion and forms pertaining to conflicts of interest under the act, see Ch. 469, Public Entities and Officers: Conflicts of Interest].

- The state ballot pamphlet should be converted into a useful document so that voters will not be entirely dependent on paid advertising for information regarding state measures.

- Laws and practices unfairly favoring incumbents should be abolished in order that elections may be conducted more fairly.

- Adequate enforcement mechanisms should be provided to public officials and private citizens so that the act will be vigorously enforced.

The act is to be construed liberally to accomplish its purposes [Gov. Code § 81003].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
1. Political Reform Act of 1974

20-242 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 242.21

[1] Candidate

A "candidate" is an individual who is listed on the ballot or who has qualified to have write-in votes on his or her behalf counted by election officials, for nomination for or election to any elective office, or who receives a contribution or makes an expenditure or gives his or her consent for any other person to receive a contribution or make an expenditure with a view to bringing about his or her nomination or election to any elective office, whether or not the specific elective office for which he or she will seek nomination or election is known at the time the contribution is received or the expenditure is made and whether or not he or she has announced his or her candidacy or filed a declaration of candidacy at such time. A "candidate" is also any officeholder who is the subject of a recall election. An individual who becomes a candidate must retain his or her status as a candidate until such time as that status is terminated pursuant to Gov. Code § 84214 (termination of filing obligation by committee and candidate) [Gov. Code § 82007].

[2] Committee

[a] In General

A "committee" is any person or combination of persons who directly or indirectly (1) receives contributions totaling $1,000 or more in a calendar year [Gov. Code § 82013(a)], (2) makes independent expenditures totaling $1,000 or more in a calendar year [Gov. Code § 82013(b)], or (3) makes contributions totaling $10,000 or more in a calendar year to or at the behest of candidates or committees [Gov. Code § 82013(c)]. A person or combination of persons that becomes a committee retains its status as a committee until that status is terminated pursuant to Gov. Code § 84214 (termination of filing obligation by committee and candidate) [Gov. Code § 82013].

[b] Controlled Committee

A "controlled committee" is a committee that is controlled directly or indirectly by a candidate or state measure proponent or that acts jointly with a candidate, state measure proponent, or controlled committee in connection with the making of expenditures. A candidate or state measure proponent controls a committee if he or she, his or her agent, or any other committee he or she controls has a significant influence on the actions or decisions of the committee [Gov. Code § 82016(a)]. Notwithstanding Gov. Code § 82016(a), a political party committee, as defined in Gov. Code § 85205 (see § 242.41[4]), is not a controlled committee [Gov. Code § 82016(b)].

[c] General Purpose Committee

A "general purpose committee" means all committees under Gov. Code § 82013(b) or (c), and any committee under Gov. Code § 82013(a) that is formed or exists primarily to support or oppose more than one candidate or ballot measure, except as provided in Gov. Code § 82047.5 (with regard to a group of specific candidates being voted on in the same city, county, or multicounty election, or two or more ballot measures being voted on in the same city, county, multicounty, or state election) [Gov. Code § 82027.5(a); for discussion of Gov. Code § 82047.5, see § 242.21[2][d]]. General purpose committees are further classified as follows [Gov. Code § 82027.5(b)-(d)]:

- State general purpose committees, political party committees, as defined in Gov. Code § 85205, or committees formed or existing primarily to support or oppose candidates or ballot measures voted on in state elections or in more than one county;

- County general purpose committees, formed or existing primarily to support or oppose candidates or ballot measures voted on in only one county, or in more than one jurisdiction within one county; and

- City general purpose committees, formed or existing primarily to support or oppose candidates or ballot measures voted on in only one city.

[d] Primarily Formed Committee

A "primarily formed committee" is a person or combination of persons who receives contributions totaling $1,000 or more in a calendar year, and formed or existing primarily to support or oppose a single candidate, a single measure, a group of specific candidates being voted on in the same city, county, or multicounty election, or two or more measures being voted on in the same city, county, multicounty, or state election [Gov. Code § 82047.5; see Gov. Code § 82013(a) (definition of "committee")].

[e] Sponsored Committee

A "sponsored committee" is a committee, other than a candidate-controlled committee, that has one or more sponsors. Any person, except a candidate or other individual, may sponsor a committee [Gov. Code § 82048.7(a)]. A person sponsors a committee if: (1) the committee receives 80 percent or more of its contributions from the person or its members, officers, employees, or shareholders; (2) the person collects contributions for the committee by use of payroll deductions or dues from its members, officers, or employees; (3) the person alone or in combination with other organizations, provides all or nearly all of the administrative services for the committee; or (4) the person, alone or in combination with other organizations, sets the policies for soliciting contributions or making expenditures of committee funds [see Gov. Code § 82048.7(b)].

[3] Contribution

A "contribution" is a payment, a forgiveness of a loan, a payment of a loan by a third party, or an enforceable promise to make a payment except to the extent that full and adequate consideration is received, unless it is clear from surrounding circumstances that it is not made for political purposes [Gov. Code § 82015(a)]. A payment made at the behest of a committee as defined in Gov. Code § 82013(a) (see [2][a], above) is a contribution to the committee unless full and adequate consideration is received from the committee for making the payment [Gov. Code § 82015(b)(1)]. A payment made at the behest of a candidate is a contribution to the candidate unless the criteria in either Gov. Code § 82015(b)(2)(A) or Gov. Code § 82015(b)(2)(B) are satisfied [Gov. Code § 82015(b)(2)], i.e., full and adequate consideration is received from the candidate [Gov. Code § 82015(b)(2)(A)], or it is clear from the surrounding circumstances that the payment was made for purposes unrelated to his or her candidacy for elective office [Gov. Code § 82015(b)(2)(B)]. The following types of payments are presumed to be for purposes unrelated to a candidate's candidacy for elective office:

1. A payment made principally for personal reasons, in which case it may be considered a gift under Gov. Code § 82028 (see § 242.21[6]) [Gov. Code § 82015(b)(2)(B)(i)]. Payments that are otherwise subject to the limits of Gov. Code § 86203 are presumed to be principally for personal purposes [Gov. Code § 82015(b)(2)(B)(i)].

2. A payment made by a state, local, or federal governmental agency or from a nonprofit organization that is exempt from taxation under I.R.C. § 501(c)(3) [Gov. Code § 82015(b)(2)(B)(ii)].

3. A payment not covered by Gov. Code § 82015(b)(2)(B)(i), made principally for legislative, governmental, or charitable purposes, in which case it is neither a gift nor a contribution [Gov. Code § 82015(b)(2)(B)(iii)]. However, reporting requirements may apply to payments of this type that are made at the behest of a candidate who is an elected officer [see Gov. Code § 82015(b)(2)(B)(iii), discussed in § 242.53C].

On the other hand, for purposes of Gov. Code § 82015(b)(2)(B), a payment is made for purposes related to a candidate's candidacy for elective office if all or a portion of the payment is used for election-related activities [Gov. Code § 82015(b)(2)(C)]. For purposes of Gov. Code § 82015(b)(2)(C), "election-related activities" include, but are not limited to, the following [Gov. Code § 82015(b)(2)(C)(i)-(viii)]:

1. Communications that contain express advocacy of the nomination or election of the candidate or the defeat of his or her opponent.

2. Communications that contain reference to the candidate's candidacy for elective office, the candidate's election campaign, or the candidate's or his or her opponent's qualifications for elective office.

3. Solicitation of contributions to the candidate or to third persons for use in support of the candidate or in opposition to his or her opponent.

4. Arranging, coordinating, developing, writing, distributing, preparing, or planning of any communication or activity described in items 1, 2, or 3 above.

5. Recruiting or coordinating campaign activities of campaign volunteers on behalf of the candidate.

6. Preparing campaign budgets.

7. Preparing campaign finance disclosure statements.

8. Communications directed to voters or potential voters as part of activities encouraging or assisting persons to vote if the communication contains express advocacy of the nomination or election of the candidate or the defeat of his or her opponent.

A contribution made at the behest of a candidate for a different candidate or to a committee not controlled by the behesting candidate is not a contribution to the behesting candidate [Gov. Code § 82015(b)(2)(D)].

The term "contribution" further includes the following (subject to specified exclusions listed below):

- The purchase of tickets for events such as dinners, luncheons, rallies, and similar fund-raising events [Gov. Code § 82015(c)];

- The candidate's own money or property used on behalf of his or her candidacy, other than personal funds of the candidate used to pay either a filing fee for a declaration of candidacy or a candidate statement prepared pursuant to Elec. Code § 13307 [Gov. Code § 82015(c)];

- The granting of discounts or rebates not extended to the public generally or the granting of discounts or rebates by television and radio stations and newspapers not extended on an equal basis to all candidates for the same office [Gov. Code § 82015(c)];

- The payment of compensation by any person for the personal services or expenses of any other person, if the services are rendered or expenses incurred on behalf of a candidate or committee without payment of full and adequate consideration [Gov. Code § 82015(c)];

- Any transfer of anything of value received by a committee from another committee, unless full and adequate consideration is received [Gov. Code § 82015(d)]; and

- The payment of public money by a state or local governmental agency for a communication to the public, if the communication both (1) expressly advocates the election or defeat of a clearly identified candidate or the qualification, passage, or defeat of a clearly identified measure or, taken as a whole and in context, unambiguously urges a particular result in an election, and (2) is made at the behest of the affected candidate or committee [Gov. Code § 82015(h)].

The term "contribution" does not include any of the following:

- Amounts received pursuant to an enforceable promise to the extent those amounts have been previously reported as a contribution (but the fact that those amounts have been received must be indicated in the appropriate campaign statement) [Gov. Code § 82015(e)];

- A payment made by an occupant of a home or office for costs related to any meeting or fund-raising event held in the occupant's home or office, if the costs for the meeting or fund-raising event aggregate to not more than $500 [Gov. Code § 82015(f)]; or

- Volunteer personal services or payments made by any individual for his or her own travel expenses, if the payments are made voluntarily without any understanding or agreement that they will be, directly or indirectly, repaid to him or her [Gov. Code § 82015(g)].

Further refinement of the term "contribution" to accord with changes in the Political Reform Act of 1974 effected by Proposition 208 remains the province of the commission [Californians for Political Reform Foundation v. Fair Political Practices Com. (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 472, 483-489, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 606 (upholding 2 Cal. Code Reg. § 18215(c)(16), which excepts from statutory definition of "contribution" payments by sponsoring organization to establish and administer its political action committee)].

[3A] Elective State Office

"Elective state office" means the office of Governor, Lieutenant Governor, Attorney General, Insurance Commissioner, Controller, Secretary of State, Treasurer, Superintendent of Public Instruction, Member of the Legislature, member elected to the Board of Administration of the Public Employees' Retirement System, and member of the State Board of Equalization [Gov. Code § 82024].

[4] Expenditure

[a] In General

An "expenditure" is a payment, a forgiveness of a loan, a payment of a loan by a third party, or an enforceable promise to make a payment, unless it is clear that it was not made for political purposes [Gov. Code § 82025; see 2 Cal. Code Reg. § 18225]. An "expenditure," however, does not include a candidate's use of his or her own money to pay for either a filing fee for a declaration of candidacy or a candidate statement prepared pursuant to Elec. Code § 13307 [Gov. Code § 82025].

[b] Independent Expenditure

An "independent expenditure" is an expenditure made by any person, including a payment of public money by a state or local governmental agency, in connection with a communication that expressly advocates the election or defeat of a clearly identified candidate or the qualification, passage, or defeat of a clearly identified measure, or taken as a whole and in context, unambiguously urges a particular result in an election, but that is not made to or at the behest of the affected candidate or committee [Gov. Code § 82031].

[5] Fair Market Value

"Fair market value" is the estimated fair market value of goods, services, facilities, or anything of value, other than money. The term "full and adequate consideration" means fair market value. Whenever the amount of goods, services, facilities, or anything of value, other than money, must be reported under the Political Reform Act, the amount reported must be the fair market value, and a description of the item must be appended to the report or statement [Gov. Code § 82025.5].

[6] Gift

A "gift" is, except as provided in Gov. Code § 82028(b), any payment that confers a personal benefit on the recipient to the extent that consideration of equal or greater value is not received, and includes a rebate or discount in the price of anything of value unless the rebate or discount is made in the regular course of business to members of the general public without regard to official status [Gov. Code § 82028(a)]. Any person, other than a defendant in a criminal action, who claims that a payment is not a gift by reason of receipt of consideration bears the burden of proving that the consideration received is of equal or greater value [Gov. Code § 82028(a)].

Specific items and contributions that are not included in the term "gift" are set out in Gov. Code § 82028(b). For example, the term "gift" does not include informational material such as books, reports, pamphlets, calendars, or periodicals (however, no payment for travel or reimbursement for any expenses shall be deemed "informational material") [Gov. Code § 82028(b)(1)]; gifts which are not used and which, within thirty days after receipt, are either returned to the donor or delivered to a 501(c)(3) nonprofit entity without being claimed as a charitable contribution for tax purposes [Gov. Code § 82028(b)(2)]; gifts from specified members of an individual's family, provided that a gift from any such person must be considered a gift if the donor is acting as an agent or intermediary for any person not covered by Gov. Code § 82028(b)(3) [Gov. Code § 82028(b)(3)]; campaign contributions required to be reported under specified law [Gov. Code § 82028(b)(4)]; any devise or inheritance [Gov. Code § 82028(b)(5)]; or personalized plaques and trophies with an individual value of less than $250 [Gov. Code § 82028(b)(6)].

"Jurisdiction" is the state with respect to a state agency and, with respect to a local government agency, the region, county, city, district, or other geographical area in which the local agency has jurisdiction. Real property is deemed to be "within the jurisdiction" with respect to a local government agency if the property or any part of it is located within or not more than two miles outside the boundaries of the jurisdiction or within two miles of any land owned or used by the local government agency [Gov. Code § 82035].

[8] Lobbyists

[a] Lobbyist

A "lobbyist" is any individual who receives $2,000 or more in economic consideration in a calendar month, other than reimbursement for reasonable travel expenses, or whose principal duties as an employee are to communicate directly or through his or her agents with any elective state official, agency official, or legislative official for the purpose of influencing legislative or administrative action [Gov. Code § 82039]. The phrase "influencing legislative or administrative action" means promoting, supporting, influencing, modifying, opposing, or delaying any legislative or administrative action by any means, including but not limited to the provision or use of information, statistics, studies, or analyses [Gov. Code § 82032; see 2 Cal. Code Reg. § 18239(d)(4); see also 2 Cal. Code Reg. § 18239].

An individual is not a lobbyist by reason of activities described in Gov. Code § 86300 (exempting certain public officials, state employees, news media, and churches or religious societies) [Gov. Code § 82039(a)].

For the purposes of Gov. Code § 82039(a), a proceeding before the Public Utilities Commission constitutes "administrative action" if it meets any of the definitions set forth in Gov. Code § 82002(b) or (c). However, a communication made for the purpose of influencing this type of Public Utilities Commission proceeding is not within Gov. Code § 82039(a) if the communication is made at a public hearing, public workshop or other public forum that is part of the proceeding, or if the communication is included in the official record of the proceeding [Gov. Code § 82039(b)].

[b] Lobbyist Employer

A "lobbyist employer" is any person, other than a lobbying firm, who employs one or more lobbyists or contracts for the services of a lobbying firm, for economic consideration other than reimbursement for reasonable travel expenses, for the purpose of influencing legislative or administrative action [Gov. Code § 82039.5].

[c] Lobbying Firm

A "lobbying firm" is any business entity, including an individual contract lobbyist, that meets either of the following criteria [Gov. Code § 82038.5(a)]:

(1) The business entity receives or becomes entitled to receive any compensation, other than reimbursement for reasonable travel expenses, for the purpose of influencing legislative or administrative action on behalf of any other person, and any partner, owner, officer, or employee of the business entity is a lobbyist.

(2) The business entity receives or becomes entitled to receive any compensation, other than reimbursement for reasonable travel expenses, to communicate directly with any elective state official, agency official, or legislative official for the purpose of influencing legislative or administrative action on behalf of any other person, if a substantial or regular portion of the activities for which the business entity receives compensation is for the purpose of influencing legislative or administrative action.

No business entity is a lobbying firm by reason of activities described in Gov. Code § 86300 (exempting certain public officials, state employees, news media, and churches or religious societies) [Gov. Code § 82038.5(b)].

[9] Local Government Agency

A "local government agency" is a county, city, or district of any kind, including a school district, any other local or regional political subdivision, or any department, division, bureau, office, board, commission, or other agency of the foregoing [Gov. Code § 82041].

[10] Mass Mailing

A "mass mailing" is over 200 substantially similar pieces of mail. A "mass mailing" does not include a form letter or other mail that is sent in response to an unsolicited request, letter, or other inquiry [Gov. Code § 82041.5].

[11] Person

A "person" is an individual, proprietorship, firm, partnership, joint venture, syndicate, business trust, company, corporation, limited liability company, association, committee, and any other organization or group of persons acting in concert [Gov. Code § 82047; see Yes On Measure A v. City of Lake Forest (1997) 60 Cal. App. 4th 620, 623 n.3, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 517 (city subject to act)].

[12] Slate Mailer

A "slate mailer" is a mass mailing that supports or opposes a total of four or more candidates or ballot measures [Gov. Code § 82048.3].

[13] Slate Mailer Organization

A "slate mailer organization" is any person who, directly or indirectly, both [Gov. Code § 82048.4(a)]:

- Is involved in the production of one or more slate mailers and exercises control over the selection of the candidates and ballot measures to be supported or opposed in the slate mailers; and

- Receives, or is promised, payments totaling $500 or more in a calendar year for the production of one or more slate mailers.

The term "slate mailer organization" does not include any of the following [Gov. Code § 82048.4(b)]:

- A candidate or officeholder, or a candidate's or officeholder's controlled committee;

- An official committee of any political party;

- A legislative caucus committee; or

- A committee primarily formed to support or oppose a candidate, officeholder, or ballot measure.

[14] State Agency

A "state agency" is every state office, department, division, bureau, board and commission, and the Legislature [Gov. Code § 82049; see 2 Cal. Code Reg. § 18249 (additional definitions)].

[14A] Statewide Elective Office

"Statewide elective office" means the office of Governor, Lieutenant Governor, Attorney General, Insurance

Commissioner, Controller, Secretary of State, Treasurer, Superintendent of Public Instruction and member of the State Board Of Equalization [Gov. Code § 82053].

[15] Types of Elections

"Election," "general election," "federal election," "municipal election," "primary election," "presidential primary," "direct primary," "statewide election," "local election," "regular election," and "special election" are defined in Elec. Code §§ 316, 318, 323, 324, 328, 330, 340, 341, 348, 356, and 357.

20-242 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 242.30

§ 242.30 Committees

[1] Statement of Organization

Every committee that has become qualified by virtue of Gov. Code § 82013(a) (by receiving contributions totaling $1,000 or more in a calendar year) must file a statement of organization with the Secretary of State and with the local filing officer, if any, with whom the committee is required to file the originals of its campaign reports under Gov. Code § 84215 [Gov. Code § 84101(a)]. The contents of the statement are mandated by Gov. Code § 84102, and amendments to the statement are governed by Gov. Code § 84103. Gov. Code § 84101 sets forth the manner in which the statement or its contents must be filed and the times within which filing must be made.

If an independent expenditure committee qualifies as a committee pursuant to Gov. Code § 82013(a) during the time period described in Gov. Code § 82036.5 and makes independent expenditures of $1,000 or more to support or oppose a candidate or candidates for office, the committee must file by facsimile transmission, online transmission, guaranteed overnight delivery, or personal delivery within 24 hours of qualifying as a committee, the information required to be reported in the statement of organization [Gov. Code § 84101(c)]. The information required by Gov. Code § 84101(c) must be filed with the filing officer with whom the committee is required to file the original of its campaign reports pursuant to Gov. Code § 84215, and to file at all locations required for the candidate or candidates supported or opposed by the independent expenditures. The filings required by Gov. Code § 84101(c) are in addition to filings that may be required by Gov. Code §§ 84203.5 and 84204.

[2] Treasurer

Every committee is required to have a treasurer, and no expenditures can be made by or on behalf of a committee without the authorization of the treasurer or his or her designated agents. During a vacancy in the office of treasurer, no contribution or expenditure can be accepted or made by or on behalf of a committee [Gov. Code § 84100; see 2 Cal. Code Reg. § 18426.1].

[3] Record-Keeping Requirements

Each candidate, treasurer, and elected officer must maintain detailed accounts, records, bills, and receipts that are necessary to prepare campaign statements, to establish that campaign statements were properly filed, and to otherwise comply with the provisions of Gov. Code § 84100 et seq. [Gov. Code § 84104; see 2 Cal. Code Reg. § 18401; see also § 242.50]. Additional provisions governing the duties of treasurers and candidates with regard to campaign statements are set out in 2 Cal. Code Reg. § 18427.

2. Committees and Slate Mailer Organizations

§ 242.31 Slate Mailer Organizations

Every slate mailer organization is bound by much the same statutory requirements as are committees [see Gov. Code § 84108(a)]. Thus, every slate mailer organization must have a treasurer, who alone can accept and authorize contributions received and expenditures made by or on behalf of the organization [Gov. Code § 84108(a); see Gov. Code § 84100].

Every slate mailer organization must also file a statement of organization with the Secretary of State and with the local filing officer, if any, with whom the organization is required to file the originals of its campaign reports under Gov. Code § 84215 [Gov. Code § 84108(a); see Gov. Code § 84101]. The statement's contents are mandated by Gov. Code § 84108(b), and amendments to the statement are governed by Gov. Code § 84103 [Gov. Code § 84108(a), (b); see Gov. Code § 84103]. Gov. Code §§ 84101 and 84108(c) set forth the manner in which the statement or its contents must be filed and the times within which filing must be made.

Additionally, every slate mailer organization must keep whatever detailed accounts, records, bills, and receipts are necessary to prepare campaign statements and to comply with the financial disclosure provisions of Gov. Code § 84100 et seq. [Gov. Code § 84108(a); see Gov. Code § 84104].

In May 2001, a federal district court permanently enjoined the Fair Political Practices Commission from enforcing Gov. Code § 84503, which provides that any advertisement for or against any ballot measure must include a disclosure statement identifying persons whose cumulative contributions are $50,000 or more, as to slate mail [see California Prolife Council v. Scully (E.D. Cal. 2001) No. CIV. S-96-1965 LKK/DAD; see also California Prolife Council v. Scully (E.D. Cal. 1998) 989 F. Supp. 1282 (same case), aff'd (9th Cir. 1999) 164 F.3d 1189 (affirming grant of preliminary injunction)].

3. Regulation of Campaign Financing

20-242 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 242.40

§ 242.40 Prerequisites for Candidate to Receive or Spend Funds

[1] Filing Statement of Intention of Candidacy

Before soliciting or receiving any contribution or loan, an individual who intends to be a candidate for an elective state office under Gov. Code § 82024 must file with the Secretary of State an original statement, signed under penalty of perjury, of the individual's intention to be a candidate for a specific office [Gov. Code § 85200]. An individual who intends to be a candidate for any other elective office must file the statement of intention with the same filing officer and in the same location as the individual would file an original campaign statement under Gov. Code § 85215(c), (d), and (e) [Gov. Code § 85200]. For the purposes of Gov. Code § 85200, "contribution" and "loan" do not include any payments from the candidate's personal funds for a candidate filing fee or a candidate statement of qualifications fee [Gov. Code § 85200, as enacted by Prop. 73 and later amended].

[2] Establishing Campaign Contribution Account

Once an individual has filed a statement of intention of candidacy, the individual must establish one campaign contribution account at an office of a financial institution located in California [Gov. Code § 85201(a)]. The requirement to establish the account does not apply to an individual who will not receive contributions, and who makes expenditures from personal funds, of less than $1,000 in a calendar year to support his or her candidacy [Gov. Code § 85201(g)]. However, an individual who raises contributions from others for his or her campaign, but who raises or spends less than $1,000 in a calendar year and does not qualify as a committee under Gov. Code § 82013, must establish a campaign contribution account under Gov. Code § 85201(a), but is not required to file a committee statement of organization under Gov. Code § 84101 or other statement of bank account information [Gov. Code § 85201(h)].

As required by Gov. Code § 84102(f), a candidate who raises contributions of $1,000 or more in a calendar year must set forth the name and address of the financial institution and the account number on the committee of organization filed under Gov. Code §§ 84101 and 84103 [Gov. Code § 85201(b)].

All contributions or loans made to the candidate, to a person on behalf of the candidate, or to the candidate's controlled committee must be deposited in the account [Gov. Code § 85201(c)]. Any personal funds that will be used to promote the candidate's election, except the candidate's payment of a filing fee and a statement of qualifications fee, must be deposited in the account before expenditure [Gov. Code § 85201(d), (f)].

All campaign expenditures (except a candidate's payment from his or her personal funds of a filing fee and a statement of qualifications fee) must be made from the account [Gov. Code § 85201(e), (f)]. This expenditure rule does not apply to a candidate who will not receive contributions and who makes expenditures from personal funds of less than $1,000 in a calendar year to support his or her candidacy [Gov. Code § 85201(g)].

For purposes of Gov. Code § 85201, a candidate's payment for a filing fee and statement of qualifications is not included in calculating the total expenditures made [Gov. Code § 85201(g)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
3. Regulation of Campaign Financing

20-242 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 242.41

§ 242.41 Contribution Limits

[1] Introduction

Gov. Code, tit. 9, ch. 5 (commencing with Gov. Code § 85100) is known as the "Campaign Contribution and Voluntary Expenditure Limits Without Taxpayer Financing Amendments to the Political Reform Act of 1974." Most of the provisions of Gov. Code, tit. 9, ch. 5 were enacted by Proposition 34. Unless specifically superseded by Proposition 34, the definitions and provisions of Gov. Code, tit. 9 (commencing with Gov. Code § 81000) govern the interpretation of chapter 5 (commencing with Gov. Code § 85100) [Gov. Code § 85202].

[2] Applicable to Person, Other Than Small Contributor Committee or Political Party Committee

A person, other than a small contributor committee (see [3], below) or political party committee (see [4], below), may not make to any candidate for elective state office (see § 242.21[3A]) other than a candidate for statewide elective office (see § 242.21[14A]), and a candidate for elective state office other, than a candidate for statewide elective office may not accept from a person, any contribution totaling more than $3,000 per election [Gov. Code § 85301(a)].

Except to a candidate for Governor, a person, other than a small contributor committee or political party committee, may not make to any candidate for statewide elective office, and except a candidate for Governor, a candidate for statewide elective office may not accept from a person other than a small contributor committee or a political party committee, any contribution totaling more than $5,000 per election [Gov. Code § 85301(b)].

A person, other than a small contributor committee or political party committee, may not make to any candidate for Governor, and a candidate for governor may not accept from any person other than a small contributor committee or political party committee, any contribution totaling more than $20,000 per election [Gov. Code § 85301(c)].

The provisions of Gov. Code § 85301, however, do not apply to a candidate's contributions of his or her personal funds to his or her own campaign [Gov. Code § 85301(d)].

Notwithstanding any other provision of Gov. Code, tit. 9, ch. 5, if a candidate for elective state office or the candidate's controlled committee had net debts resulting from an election held prior to January 1, 2001, contributions to that candidate or committee for that election are not subject to the limits of Gov. Code §§ 85301 and 85302 [Gov. Code § 85321].

Gov. Code § 85301 became operative on January 1, 2001. However, Gov. Code § 85301 applies to candidates for statewide elective office (see § 242.21[14A]) beginning on and after November 6, 2002 [Prop. 34, § 83]. On the commission adjusting the contribution limitations of Gov. Code § 85301 in January of every odd-numbered year, see § 242.41B.

[3] Applicable to Small Contributor Committee

A small contributor committee may not make to any candidate for elective state office (see § 242.21[3A]) other than a candidate for statewide elective office (see § 242.21[14A]), and a candidate for elective state office, other than a candidate for statewide elective office may not accept from a small contributor committee, any contribution totaling more than $6,000 per election [Gov. Code § 85302(a)]. Moreover, except to a candidate for Governor, a small contributor committee may not make to any candidate for statewide elective office and except for a candidate for Governor, a candidate for statewide elective office may not accept from a small contributor committee, any contribution totaling more than $10,000 per election [Gov. Code § 85302(b)]. Furthermore, a small contributor committee may not make to any candidate for Governor, and a candidate for governor may not accept from a small contributor committee, any contribution totaling more than $20,000 per election [Gov. Code § 85302(c)].

"Small contributor committee" means any committee that meets all of the following criteria [Gov. Code § 85203(a)-(d)]:

- The committee has been in existence for at least six months.
- The committee receives contributions from 100 or more persons.
- No one person has contributed to the committee more than $200 per calendar year.
- The committee makes contributions to five or more candidates.

Notwithstanding any other provision of this chapter, if a candidate for elective state office or the candidate's controlled committee had net debts resulting from an election held prior to January 1, 2001, contributions to that candidate or committee for that election are not subject to the limits of Gov. Code §§ 85301 and 85302 [Gov. Code § 85321].

Gov. Code §§ 85203 and 85302 became operative on January 1, 2001. However, Gov. Code § 85302 applies to candidates for statewide elective office (see § 242.21[14A]) beginning on and after November 6, 2002 [Prop. 34, § 83]. On the commission adjusting the contribution limitations of Gov. Code § 85302 in January of every odd-numbered year, see § 242.41B.

[4] Contribution to Committee or Political Party Committee

A person may not make to any committee, other than a political party committee, and a committee other than a political party committee may not accept, any contribution totaling more than $5,000 per calendar year for the purpose of making contributions to candidates for elective state office (see § 242.21[3A]) [Gov. Code § 85303(a)]. Moreover, a person may not make to any political party committee, and a political party committee may not accept, any contribution totaling more than $25,000 per calendar year for the purpose of making contributions for the support or defeat of candidates for elective state office. Notwithstanding Gov. Code § 85312, this limit applies to contributions made to a political party used for the purpose of making expenditures at the behest of a candidate for elective state office for communications to party members related to the candidate's candidacy for elective state office [Gov. Code § 85303(b)].

"Political party committee" means the state central committee or county central committee of an organization that, meets the requirements for recognition as a political party under Elec. Code § 5100 [Gov. Code § 85205].

Except as provided in Gov. Code § 85310(c), nothing in Gov. Code, tit. 9, ch. 5 (commencing with Gov. Code § 85100) limits a person's contributions to a committee or political party committee provided the contributions are used for purposes other than making contributions to candidates for elective state office [Gov. Code § 85303(c)]. Furthermore, nothing in Gov. Code, tit. 9, ch. 5 limits a candidate for elected state office from transferring contributions received by the candidate in excess of any amount necessary to defray the candidate's expenses for election related activities or holding office to a political party committee, provided those transferred contributions are used for purposes consistent with Gov. Code § 89519(b)(4) [Gov. Code § 85303(d); see § 242.44[5] (discussing Gov. Code § 89519)].

Gov. Code §§ 85205 and 85303 became operative on January 1, 2001. However, Gov. Code §§ 85205 and 85303 apply to candidates for statewide elective office (see § 242.21[14A]) beginning on and after November 6, 2002 [Prop. 34, § 83]. On the commission adjusting the contribution limitations of Gov. Code § 85303 in January of every odd-numbered year, see § 242.41B.

[5] Special Elections and Special Runoff Elections

The contribution limits of Gov. Code, tit. 9, ch. 5 (commencing with Gov. Code § 85100) apply to special elections and apply to special runoff elections. A special election and a special runoff election are separate elections for purposes of the contribution and voluntary expenditure limits set forth in Gov. Code, tit. 9, ch. 5 [Gov. Code § 85314].

Gov. Code § 85314 became operative on January 1, 2001. However, Gov. Code § 85314 applies to candidates for statewide elective office (see § 242.21[14A]) beginning on or after November 6, 2002 [Prop. 34, § 83].

[6] Recall Elections

Notwithstanding any other provision of Gov. Code, tit. 9, ch. 5 (commencing with Gov. Code § 85100), an elected state officer may establish a committee to oppose the qualification of a recall measure, and the recall election. This committee may be established when the elected state officer receives a notice of intent to recall under Elec. Code § 11021. An elected state officer may accept campaign contributions to oppose the qualification of a recall measure, and if qualification is successful, the recall election, without regard to the campaign contributions limits set forth in Gov. Code, tit. 9, ch. 5. The voluntary expenditure limits (see § 242.41A) do not apply to expenditures made to oppose the qualification of a recall measure or to oppose the recall election [Gov. Code § 85315(a)].

After the failure of a recall petition or after the recall election, the committee formed by the elected state officer must wind down its activities, and dissolve. Any remaining funds must be treated as surplus funds and must be expended within 30 days after the failure of the recall petition, or after the recall election for a purpose specified in Gov. Code § 89519(b) [Gov. Code § 85315(a); see § 242.44[5] (discussing Gov. Code § 89519)].

Gov. Code § 85315 became operative on January 1, 2001. Presumably, however, Gov. Code § 85315 applies to recall of candidates holding statewide elective office (see § 242.21[14A]) beginning on or after November 6, 2002 [see Prop. 34, § 83; see also Gov. Code § 82007 (defining candidate to include officeholder subject to recall; also, individual who becomes candidate retains status as candidate until status terminated under Gov. Code § 84214)].

Nothing in Propostion 34 (under which the voters in 2000 enacted the contribution limits discussed in [1]-[6] above, the voluntary expenditure limits discussed in § 242.41A[1] -[3] and other prohibitions) nullifies contribution limitations or prohibitions of any local jurisdiction that apply to elections for local elective office, except that these limitations and prohibitions may not conflict with the provisions of Gov. Code § 85312 [Gov. Code § 85703(a); see Gov. Code § 85703(b), (c) (specified restrictions and limitations by local jurisdiction on payments for "member communications," as defined, would conflict with Gov. Code § 85312 and are prohibited)].

[8] Aggregation of Contributions

For purposes of the contribution limits of Gov. Code, tit. 9, ch. 5 (commencing with Gov. Code § 85100), "entity" means any person, other than an individual [Gov. Code § 85311(a)(1)]. The contributions of an entity whose contributions are directed and controlled by any individual must be aggregated with contributions made by that individual and any other entity whose contributions are directed and controlled by the same individual [Gov. Code § 85311(b)]. If two or more entities make contributions that are directed and controlled by a majority of the same persons, the contributions of those entities must be aggregated [Gov. Code § 85311(c)].

For purposes of Gov. Code, tit. 9, ch. 5 (commencing with Gov. Code § 85100), "majority-owned" means a direct or indirect ownership of more than 50 percent [Gov. Code § 85311(a)(2)]. Contributions made by entities that are majority-owned by any person must be aggregated with the contributions of the majority owner and all other entities majority-owned by that person, unless those entities act independently in their decisions to make contributions [Gov. Code § 85311(d)].

Moreover, contributions made by a husband and wife may not be aggregated [Gov. Code § 85308(a)]. A contribution made by a child under 18 years of age, however, is presumed to be a contribution from the parent or guardian of the child [Gov. Code § 85308(b)].

Gov. Code §§ 85308 and 85311 became operative on January 1, 2001. However, Gov. Code §§ 85308 and 85311 apply to candidates for statewide elective office (see § 242.21[14A]) beginning on or after November 6, 2002 [Prop. 34, § 83].

[9] Account to Defray Attorney Fees and Other Related Costs For Candidate for Elective State Office or Elective State Officer

A candidate for elective state office (see § 242.21[3A]) or an elected state officer may establish a separate account to defray attorney's fees and other related legal costs incurred for the candidate's or officer's legal defense if the candidate or officer is subject to one or more civil or criminal proceedings or administrative proceedings arising directly out of the conduct of an election campaign, the electoral process, or the performance of the officer's governmental activities and duties. These funds may be used only to defray those attorney fees and other related legal costs [Gov. Code § 85304(a)].

A candidate may receive contributions to this account that are not subject to the contribution limits set forth in Gov. Code, tit. 9, ch. 5, art. 3 (commencing with Gov. Code § 85300). However, all contributions must be reported in a manner prescribed by the commission [Gov. Code § 85304(b)].

Once the legal dispute is resolved, the candidate must dispose of any funds remaining after all expenses associated with the dispute are discharged for one or more of the purposes set forth in Gov. Code § 89519(b)(1)-(5), inclusive [Gov. Code § 85304(b); see § 242.44[5] (discussing Gov. Code § 89519)].

Gov. Code § 85304 became operative on January 1, 2001. However, Gov. Code § 85304 applies to candidates for statewide elective office (see § 242.21[14A]) beginning on or after November 6, 2002 [Prop. 34, § 83].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
3. Regulation of Campaign Financing

§ 242.41A Voluntary Expenditure Limits

[1] Limitations as to Amount

A candidate for elective state office (see § 242.21[3A]), other than the Board of Administration of the Public Employees' Retirement System, who voluntarily accepts expenditure limits may not make campaign expenditures in excess of the following [Gov. Code § 85400(a)(1)-(5)]:

- For an Assembly candidate, $400,000 in the primary or special primary election and $700,000 in the general or special general runoff election.

- For a Senate candidate, $600,000 in the primary or special primary election and $900,000 in the general or special general runoff election.

- For a candidate for the State Board of Equalization, $1,000,000 in the primary election and $1,500,000 in the general election.

- For a statewide candidate other than a candidate for Governor or the State Board of Equalization, $4,000,000 in the primary election and $6,000,000 in the general election.

- For a candidate for Governor, $6,000,000 in the primary election and $10,000,000 in the general election.

For purposes of Gov. Code § 85400, "campaign expenditures" has the same meaning as "election-related activities" as defined in clauses (i) to (vi), inclusive, and clause (viii) of Gov. Code § 82015(b)(2)(C).

A campaign expenditure made by a political party on behalf of a candidate may not be attributed to the limitations on campaign expenditures set forth in Gov. Code § 85400 [Gov. Code § 85400(c)].

Gov. Code § 85400 became operative on January 1, 2001. However, Gov. Code § 85400 applies to candidates for statewide elective office (see § 242.21[14A]) beginning on and after November 6, 2002 [Prop. 34, § 83]. On the commission adjusting the contribution limitations of Gov. Code § 85400 in January of every odd-numbered year, see § 242.41B.

[2] Filing Statement of Acceptance and Effect

Each candidate for elective state office (see § 242.21[3A]) must file a statement of acceptance or rejection of the voluntary expenditure limits set forth in Gov. Code § 85400 at the time he or she files the statement of intention specified in Gov. Code § 85200 [Gov. Code § 85401(a)]. Until the deadline for filing nomination papers set forth in Elections Code § 8020, a candidate who has not exceeded the voluntary expenditure limits may change his or her statement of acceptance or rejection of those limits. A candidate may not change the statement of acceptance or rejection of voluntary expenditure limits more than twice after the candidate's initial filing of the statement of intention for that election and office [Gov. Code § 85401(b)]. Any candidate for elective state office who declined to accept the voluntary expenditure limits but who nevertheless does not exceed the limits in the primary, special primary, or special election, may file a statement of acceptance of the expenditure limits for a general or special runoff election within 14 days following the primary, special primary, or special election [Gov. Code § 85401(c)].

Any candidate for elective state office who has filed a statement accepting the voluntary expenditure limits is not bound by those limits if an opposing candidate contributes personal funds to his or her own campaign in excess of the limits set forth in Gov. Code § 85400 [Gov. Code § 85402(a) as enacted by Prop. 34]. The commission shall require by regulation timely notification by candidates for elective state office who make personal contributions to their own campaign [Gov. Code § 85402(a)].

Any candidate who files a statement of acceptance under Gov. Code § 85401 and makes campaign expenditures in excess of the limits is subject to the remedies in Gov. Code, tit. 9, ch. 3 (commencing with Gov. Code § 83100) and ch. 11 (commencing with Gov. Code § 91000) [Gov Code § 85403].

Gov. Code § 85401 became operative on January 1, 2001. However, Gov. Code § 85400 applies to candidates for statewide elective office (see § 242.21[14A]) beginning on and after November 6, 2002 [Prop. 34, § 83].

[3] Ballot Pamphlet

The Secretary of States designates in the state ballot pamphlet those candidates for statewide elective office, as defined in Gov. Code § 82053, who have voluntarily agreed to the expenditure limitations set forth in Gov. Code § 85400. Local elections officers designate in the voter information portion of the sample ballot those candidates for state Senate and Assembly (see § 242.21[3A]) who have voluntarily agreed to expenditure limitations set forth in Gov. Code § 85400 [Gov. Code § 85600].

A candidate for statewide elective office, as defined in Gov. Code § 82053, who accepts the voluntary expenditure limits set forth in Gov. Code § 85400 may purchase the space to place a statement in the state ballot pamphlet that does not exceed 250 words. The statement may not make any reference to any opponent of the candidate. The statement must be submitted in accordance with time frames and procedures set forth by the Secretary of State for the preparation of the state ballot pamphlets [Gov. Code § 85601(a)].

Notwithstanding Gov. Code § 88001(e) or Elec. Code § 9084(e), on and after November 6, 2002, the Secretary of State may not include in the state ballot pamphlet a statement from a candidate who has not voluntarily agreed to the expenditure limitations set forth in Gov. Code § 85400 [Gov. Code § 85601(b)].

A candidate for State Senate or Assembly who accepts the voluntary expenditure limits set forth in Gov. Code § 85400

may purchase the space to place a statement in the voter information portion of the sample ballot that does not exceed 250 words. The statement may not make any reference to any opponent of the candidate. The statement must be submitted in accordance with the time frames and procedures set forth in the Elections Code for the preparation of the voter information portion of the sample ballot [Gov. Code § 85601(c)].

Gov. Code § 85600 became operative on January 1, 2001. However, Gov. Code § 85600 applies to candidates for statewide elective office (see § 242.21[14A]) beginning on and after November 6, 2002 [Prop. 34, § 83].

20-242 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 242.42

§ 242.42 Other Provisions Concerning Contributions to Candidates and Committees

[1] Receipt of Public Moneys

No candidate is permitted to accept any public moneys for the purpose of seeking elective office [Gov. Code § 85300, as enacted by Prop. 73]. "Public moneys" means all bonds and evidence of indebtedness; all moneys belonging to the state, or any city, county, town, district, or public agency in the state; and all moneys, bonds, and evidences of indebtedness received or held by state, county, district, city, town, or public agency officers in their official capacities [Penal Code § 426; Gov. Code § 85206, as enacted by Prop. 34].

Whether Gov. Code § 85300 (as enacted by Prop. 73) is a matter of statewide concern, and thus beyond the purview of local legislation governing public financing for candidates for local office, was raised in County of Sacramento v. Fair Political Practices Com. (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 687, 271 Cal. Rptr. 802 . The court concluded that because Prop. 73 is part of a comprehensive scheme of political reform and is intended to establish a single statewide body of law pertaining to the financing of election campaigns, the matter of campaign financing is a matter of statewide concern and local legislation is thus preempted by the state scheme [County of Sacramento v. Fair Political Practices Com. (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 687, 692-693, 271 Cal. Rptr. 802] . This conclusion, however, was questioned in Johnson v. Bradley (1992) 4 Cal. 4th 389, 14 Cal. Rptr. 2d 470, 841 P.2d 990 . The Supreme Court found that the court of appeal in County of Sacramento offered no "convincing basis" for its determination that public financing of election campaigns, and partial funding of local election campaigns in particular, is necessarily a matter of statewide concern. Consequently, the Court declined to accept County of Sacramento's holding that campaign financing is a statewide concern based on the drafters' and voters' intent to establish a uniform rule [Johnson v. Bradley (1992) 4 Cal. 4th 389, 404-406, 14 Cal. Rptr. 2d 470, 841 P.2d 990] .

The Court in Johnson also rejected attempts to establish a statewide concern of Prop. 73 by relying on the asserted statewide interest in how local tax proceeds are spent and an asserted legitimate statewide concern regarding the funding of political campaigns of candidates who are outside the mainstream of political thinking [Johnson v. Bradley (1992) 4 Cal. 4th 389, 407-409, 14 Cal. Rptr. 2d 470, 841 P.2d 990] . The Court, however, did find that Prop. 73 may be read to identify "the integrity of the electoral process" as a legitimate statewide concern [Johnson v. Bradley (1992) 4 Cal.

4th 389, 409, 14 Cal. Rptr. 2d 470, 841 P.2d 990] . But it refused to find that Gov. Code § 85300 is reasonably related to the resolution of that concern, thereby concluding that the Government Code prohibition does not preempt local legislation [see Johnson v. Bradley (1992) 4 Cal. 4th 389, 410-411, 14 Cal. Rptr. 2d 470, 841 P.2d 990] .

[1A] Candidate's Acceptance of Contributions

A candidate for elective statewide office may only accept contributions within the limits provided in Gov. Code, tit. 9, ch. 5 (commencing with Gov. Code § 85100) [Gov. Code § 89510(a)].

Moreover, a contribution for an election may be accepted by a candidate for elective state office after the date of the election only to the extent that the contribution does not exceed net debts outstanding from the election, and the contribution does not otherwise exceed the applicable contribution limit for that election [Gov. Code § 85316].

Gov. Code § 85316 became operative on January 1, 2001. However, Gov. Code § 85316 applies to candidates for statewide elective office (see § 242.21[14A]) beginning on and after November 6, 2002 [Prop. 34, § 83].

[1B] Restriction on Contributions By Lobbyist

An elected state officer or candidate for elected state office may not accept a contribution from a lobbyist, and a lobbyist may not make a contribution to an elected state officer or candidate for elected state office, if that lobbyist is registered to lobby the governmental agency for which the candidate is seeking election or the governmental agency of the elected state officer [Gov. Code § 85702]. For other prohibited acts by a lobbyist, see §§ 242.63, 242.64.

In rejecting a facial challenge to Gov. Code § 85702, the federal district court concluded that California has a legitimate state interest in avoiding the potential for corruption and the appearance of corruption that could occur if lobbyists, whose continued employment depends on their success in influencing legislative action, are allowed to make campaign contributions to the very persons whose decisions they hope to influence. According to the court, Gov. Code § 85702 achieves this interest by forbidding such contributions from lobbyists to elected state officials or candidates for elected state office when they are registered to lobby those very individuals or their agencies. The statute is thus narrowly tailored to serve the state's important interests [Institute of Governmental Advocates, et al. v. Fair Political Practices Com. (E.D. Cal. 2001) 164 F. Supp. 2d 1183] .

Gov. Code § 85702 became operative on January 1, 2001. However, Gov. Code § 85702 applies to candidates for statewide elective office (see § 242.21[14A]) beginning on and after November 6, 2002 [Prop. 34, § 83].

[2] Contributions Between Candidates

A candidate for elective state office (see § 242.21[3A]) or committee controlled by that candidate may not make any contribution to any other candidate for elective state office in excess of the limits set forth in Gov. Code § 85301(a) (see § 242.41[1]) [Gov. Code § 85305].

Gov. Code § 85305 became operative on January 1, 2001. However, Gov. Code § 85305 applies to candidates for statewide elective office (see § 242.21[14A]) beginning on and after November 6, 2002 [Prop. 34, § 83].

[2A] Transfer of Campaign Funds Between Controlled Committees

A candidate may transfer campaign funds from one controlled committee (see § 242.21[2][b]) to a controlled committee for elective state office (see § 242.21[3A]) of the same candidate. Contributions transferred must be attributed to specific contributors using a "last in, first out" or "first in, first out" accounting method, and these attributed contributions when aggregated with all other contributions from the same contributor may not exceed the limits set forth in Gov. Code §§ 85301 or 85302 (see § 242.41[1], [2]) [Gov. Code § 85306(a)].

Notwithstanding Gov. Code § 85306(a), a candidate for elective state office, other than a candidate for statewide elective office (see § 242.21[14A]) who possesses campaign funds on January 1, 2001, may use the funds to seek elective office without attributing the funds to specific contributors [Gov. Code § 85306(b)]. Moreover, notwithstanding Gov. Code § 85306(a), a candidate for statewide elective office who possesses campaign funds on November 6, 2002, may use those funds to seek elective office without attributing the funds to specific contributors [Gov. Code § 85306(c)].

Gov. Code § 85306 became operative on January 1, 2001. However, Gov. Code § 85306 applies to candidates for statewide elective office (see § 242.21[14A]) beginning on or after November 6, 2002 [Prop. 34, § 83].

[2B] Carrying Over Contributions For Subsequent Election

Notwithstanding Gov. Code § 85306(a) (see [2A], above), a candidate for elective state office (see § 242.21[3A]) may carry over contributions raised in connection with one election for elective state office to pay campaign expenditures incurred in connection with a subsequent election for the same elective state office [Gov. Code § 85317].

Gov. Code § 85317 became operative on January 1, 2001. However, Gov. Code § 85317 applies to candidates for statewide elective office (see § 242.21[14A]) beginning on and after November 6, 2002 [Prop. 34, § 83].

[3] Cash and In-Kind Contributions

No contribution of $100 or more may be made or received in cash [Gov. Code § 84300(a)]. In addition, no expenditure of $100 or more may be made in cash [Gov. Code § 84300(b)]. No contribution of $100 or more, other than an in-kind contribution, may be made unless in the form of a written instrument containing the name of the donor and the name of the payee and drawn from an account of the donor or the intermediary, as defined in Gov. Code § 84302 [Gov. Code § 84300(c)].

A cash contribution will not be deemed received if it is not negotiated or deposited and if it is returned to the contributor before the closing date for the campaign statement on which the contribution would otherwise be reported. If a cash contribution, other than a late contribution [see Gov. Code § 82036 (received before date of election but after closing date for last campaign statement required before election)], is negotiated or deposited, it will not be deemed received if it is refunded within 72 hours of receipt. A late contribution will not be deemed received if it is returned to the contributor within 48 hours of receipt [Gov. Code § 84300(a)].

The value of all in-kind contributions of $100 or more must be reported in writing to the recipient on his or her written request [Gov. Code § 84300(d)].

[4] Contributions in Legal Name

All contributions must be made in the contributor's legal name [Gov. Code § 84301; see also People v. Snyder (2000) 22 Cal. 4th 304, 307, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 734, 992 P.2d 1102 (Gov. Code § 84301 contains broad prohibition against what is commonly termed money laundering)]. Any candidate or committee that receives a contribution in violation of Gov. Code § 84301 must pay to the General Fund of the state the amount of the contribution [Gov. Code § 85701].

Gov. Code § 85701 became operative on January 1, 2001. However, Gov. Code § 85701 applies to candidates for statewide elective office (see § 242.21[14A]) beginning on or after November 6, 2002 [Prop. 34, § 83].

[5] Contribution on Behalf of Another

A person making a contribution on behalf of another or while acting as an agent or intermediary of another must disclose to the recipient his or her identity and the identity of the employer or person on whose behalf the contribution is made [see Gov. Code § 84302].

[5A] Contribution to Committee Conditioned On It Being Contributed to Another Candidate

A person may not make any contribution to a committee on the condition or with the agreement that it will be contributed to any particular candidate unless the contribution is fully disclosed pursuant to Gov. Code § 84302 (see [5], above) [Gov. Code § 85704].

Gov. Code § 85704 became operative on January 1, 2001. However, Gov. Code § 85704 applies to candidates for statewide elective office (see § 242.21[14A]) beginning on or after November 6, 2002 [Prop. 34, § 83].

[6] Contributions Received by Agents

Contributions received by a person acting as an agent of a candidate must promptly be reported to the candidate or any of his or her designated agents. Contributions received by a person acting as an agent of a committee must promptly be reported to the committee's treasurer or any of the treasurer's designated agents. The term "promptly" means not later than the closing date of any campaign statement the committee or candidate for whom the contribution is intended is required to file [Gov. Code § 84306].

[7] Anonymous Contributions of $100 or More

No person may make an anonymous contribution or contributions totaling $100 or more in a calendar year to a candidate, committee, or any other person. An anonymous contribution of $100 or more may not be kept by the intended recipient, but instead must be promptly paid to the Secretary of State for deposit in the state's General Fund [Gov. Code § 84304].

[8] Specified Contributions in Excess of $250

No elected or appointed officer, or alternate, or candidate for office who serves on any state or local governmental agency (except courts, agencies of the judicial branch, directly elected local governmental agencies, the Legislature, the Board of Equalization, or constitutional officers) may accept, solicit, or direct a contribution of more than $250 from any person, or his or her agent, who has an application for a license, permit, or other entitlement for use pending before any body of which the officer or alternate is a member. This prohibition applies for three months following the decision date on an application. It also restricts contributions from any person, or his or her agent, who actively supports or opposes an application. The officer or alternate, however, must know or have reason to know that the person who supports or opposes the application has a financial interest, as that term is used in Gov. Code § 87100 et seq. [Gov. Code § 84308(b); see Gov. Code §§ 82003, 84308(a)(3) ("agency" defined)]. Officers or alternates must report contributions of more than $250 as provided in Gov. Code § 84308(c). Applicants for licenses, permits, or other entitlements from a nonexempted agency must disclose contributions of more than $250, and are prohibited from making the contributions during the proceeding or three months thereafter, as provided under Gov. Code § 84308(d).

[9] Commingling

No contribution may be commingled with the personal funds of the recipient or any other person [Gov. Code § 84307].

[10] Receipt or Delivery in State Buildings

No person may receive or personally deliver or attempt to deliver a contribution in the State Capitol, in any state office building, or in any office for which the state pays the majority of the rent, other than a legislative district office [Gov. Code § 84309(a); see Gov. Code § 84309(b) ("personally deliver" and "receive" defined)].

[11] Notice to Contributor on Receipt of $5,000 or More

A candidate or committee that receives contributions of $5,000 or more must inform the contributor within two weeks of receipt of the contributions that he or she may be required to file campaign reports. Notification need not be sent to any contributor who has filed a committee organization statement under Gov. Code § 84101 and has been assigned an identification number under that section [Gov. Code § 84105; see § 242.30[1]].

[12] Return of Contribution

A candidate for state elective office may return all or part of any contribution to the donor who made the contribution at any time, whether or not other contributions are returned [Gov. Code § 85319]. A candidate or committee, however, must return not later than 60 days of receipt by the candidate or committee any contribution of $100 or more for which the candidate or committee does not have on file in the records of the candidate or committee the name, address, occupation, and employer of the contributor [Gov. Code § 85700(a); see also § 242.43[2] (when general election funds are required to be refunded to contributors on pro rata basis)].

A candidate or committee may return a contribution pursuant to Gov. Code § 85700(a) after the date that the candidate or committee has reported the contribution under any provision of Gov. Code, tit. 9 [Gov. Code § 85700(b)].

Gov. Code §§ 85319 and 85700 became operative on January 1, 2001. However, Gov. Code §§ 85319 and 85700 apply to candidates for statewide elective office (see § 242.21[14A]) beginning on and after November 6, 2002 [Prop. 34, § 83].

§ 242.42A Loan to Campaign by Candidate For Elective State Office

Notwithstanding Gov. Code § 85307(a), candidate for elective state office (see § 242.21[3A]) may not personally loan to his or her campaign, including the proceeds of a loan obtained by the candidate from a commercial lending institution, an amount, the outstanding balance of which exceeds $100,000. A candidate may not charge interest on any loan he or she made to his or her campaign [Gov. Code § 85307(b); see also § 242.50[2] (information required to be in campaign statements concerning loans)].

The provisions of Gov. Code, tit. 9, ch. 5, art. 3 (commencing with Gov. Code § 85300) regarding loans apply to extensions of credit, but do not apply to loans made to a candidate by a commercial lending institution in the lender's regular course of business on terms available to members of the general public for which the candidate is personally liable [Gov. Code § 85307(a)].

Gov. Code § 85307 became operative on January 1, 2001. However, Gov. Code § 85600 applies to candidates for statewide elective office (see § 242.21[14A]) beginning on and after November 6, 2002 [Prop. 34, § 83].

§ 242.43 Solicitation of Contributions

[1] By Political Parties

Any person that includes in any part of its name the name of any political party that was qualified to participate in the last preceding primary election may not directly or indirectly solicit funds for any purpose on the representation, either express or implied, that the funds are being solicited for the party's use, unless the person soliciting has previously obtained written consent from the party officials specified in Elec. Code § 20201 [Elec. Code § 20201]. The term "person" includes a firm, association, corporation, campaign committee, or organization [Elec. Code § 20200].

All persons soliciting funds in accordance with Elec. Code § 20201 must be furnished with adequate credentials bearing the name of the solicitor and a copy of the written consent that bears the signature of the person authorizing the solicitation [Elec. Code § 20201].

[2] By Candidates or Committees

Before the solicitation of any contribution or loan, an individual who intends to be a candidate for an elective, as provided for in Gov. Code § 85200, must file with the Secretary of State an original statement, signed under penalty of perjury, of the individual's intention to be a candidate for a specific office [Gov. Code § 85200; see § 242.40[1]].

Any person who solicits funds for the purpose of supporting or promoting any candidate or committee may not include in any part of its name the name of that candidate or committee unless the person has previously obtained authorization from the candidate or committee, or from a designated agent [Elec. Code § 20202; see Elec. Code §§ 305, 309 ("candidate" and "committee" defined)].

Any person who solicits or receives contributions on behalf of any candidate or committee for the purported and exclusive use of that committee or the candidate's election campaign and who is not authorized by the candidate or committee, or a designated agent, must include a notice in any magazine, printed literature, direct mailing, or any other type of general public advertising, or through telephone or individual oral fundraising appeal, clearly and conspicuously stating that the person is not authorized and that the candidate or committee is not responsible for the person's actions [

Elec. Code § 20203].

[1A]A candidate for elective state office may raise contributions for a general election prior to the primary election, and for a special general election prior to a special primary election, for the same elective state office if the candidate sets aside these contributions and uses these contributions for the general election or special general election. If the candidate for elective state office is defeated in the primary election or special primary election, or otherwise withdraws from the general election or special general election, the general election or special general election funds must be refunded to the contributors on a pro rata basis less any expenses associated with the raising and administration of general election or special general election contributions. Notwithstanding Gov. Code § 85201, candidates for elective state office may establish separate campaign contribution accounts for the primary and general elections or special primary and special general elections [Gov. Code § 85318; see also, above (concerning acceptance of contributions)]. Gov. Code § 85318 became operative on January 1, 2001. However, Gov. Code § 85318 applies to candidates for statewide elective office (see § 242.21[14A]) beginning on and after November 6, 2002 [Prop. 34, § 83].

3. Regulation of Campaign Financing

20-242 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 242.44

§ 242.44 Expenditures of Campaign Funds

[1] Governing Law and Definitions

Expenditures of campaign funds held by candidates for elective office, elected officers, controlled committees, ballot measure committees, committees opposed to a candidate or measure, and all committees qualified pursuant to Gov. Code § 82013(a) are subject to the provisions of Gov. Code §§ 85200, 85201, and 85300 (as enacted by Proposition 73) and the provisions of Gov. Code § 89510 et seq. [Gov. Code § 89511(a); see Gov. Code § 89511(b)(2) ("committee" defined)].

The term "campaign funds" includes all contributions, cash, cash equivalents, and other assets received or possessed by a committee as defined by Gov. Code § 82013(a) [Gov. Code § 89511(b)(1)]. For purposes of Gov. Code § 89510 et seq., the term "household" includes the candidate's or elected officer's spouse, dependent children, and parents who reside with the candidate or elected officer [Gov. Code § 89511(b)(4)].

[2] Payable From Campaign Contribution Account

All of a candidate's campaign expenditures (except a candidate's payment from his or her personal funds of a filing fee and a statement of qualifications fee) must be made from the campaign contribution account [Gov. Code § 85201(e), (f), as enacted by Prop. 73; see also § 242.40[2]].

All contributions deposited into the campaign account are deemed to be held in trust for expenses associated with the election of the candidate or for expenses associated with holding office [Gov. Code § 89510(b)].

[3] Prohibition Against Spending Public Moneys

No public officer may expend any public moneys for the purpose of seeking elective office [Gov. Code § 85300, as enacted by Prop. 73; for definition of "public moneys," see § 242.42[1]].

However, the government has the right--and arguably even the duty--to speak on matters that concern the discharge of its responsibilities to its citizens. For example, a city has broad discretion to make public expenditures, subject to the limitations that the expenditure be for a public purpose and not expressly forbidden by law. While a government agency may not spend public funds for a partisan campaign advocating the passage or defeat of a ballot measure, a public agency pursues a proper informational role when it simply gives a fair presentation of the facts. Thus, a city did not make improper government expenditures for communications on an initiative election because in its communications, which analyzed the impact of a tax-relief measure, did not contain words of express advocacy [Vargas v. City of Salinas (2005) 135 Cal. App. 4th 361, 385-387, 37 Cal. Rptr. 3d 506] .

[4] Lawful Expenditures

[a] Reasonably Related to Political Purpose

An expenditure to seek office is lawful if it is reasonably related to a political purpose. An expenditure associated with holding office is lawful if reasonably related to a political, legislative, or governmental purpose [Gov. Code § 89512]. But if an expenditure of campaign funds results in a direct personal benefit valued in excess of $200 to a candidate, elected officer, or to any individuals with authority to approve the expenditure of campaign funds held by a committee, then the expenditure confers a "substantial personal benefit" and is lawful only if directly related to a political, legislative, or governmental purpose [Gov. Code §§ 89511(b)(3), 89512]. Any expenditure by a committee that confers a substantial personal benefit on any individual or individuals with authority to approve the expenditure of campaign funds held by the committee also must be directly related to a political, legislative, or governmental purpose of the committee [Gov. Code § 89512.5(b); see Gov. Code § 89511(b)(3)].

Gov. Code § 89500 et seq. is not to be construed to permit an expenditure of campaign funds prohibited by Elec. Code § 18680 [Gov. Code § 89522; see Elec. Code § 18680 (misappropriation of money or things of value entrusted to individual's use in connection with specified initiative, referendum, or recall petitions and statewide ballot measures)].

[b] Specific Expenditure Provisions

Notwithstanding the general limitations of Gov. Code § 89512, use of the following expenditures of campaign funds are governed by specific provisions:

- Payment or reimbursement for travel and accommodation expenses of a candidate, an elected officer, any individual with authority to approve the expenditure of campaign funds held by a committee, the employees or staff of the committee, an elected officer's governmental agency, or the household of a candidate or elected officer [see Gov. Code § 89513(a)].

- Payment or reimbursement for the cost of professional services, including health-related expenses for a candidate, elected officer, any individual with authority to approve the expenditure of campaign funds held by a committee, or members of his or her household [see Gov. Code § 89513(b)].

- Payment or reimbursement for fines, penalties, judgments, or settlements [see Gov. Code § 89513(c)].

- Payment or reimbursement for clothing [see Gov. Code § 89513(d)].

- Purchase of or reimbursement for purchase of tickets to political fundraising, entertainment, or sporting events for a candidate, elected officer, his or her immediate family, an officer, director, employee, or staff of the committee, or the elected officer's governmental agency [see Gov. Code § 89513(e)].

- Payment or reimbursement for personal gifts [see Gov. Code § 89513(f)].

- Payment or reimbursement for loans, other than to organizations pursuant to Gov. Code § 89515 [see Gov. Code § 89513(g)].

- Payment or reimbursement for donations or loans to charitable, educational, civic, religious, or similar tax-exempt, nonprofit organizations [see Gov. Code § 89515].

- Payment or reimbursement for vehicle expenses [see Gov. Code § 89516].

- Payment or reimbursement for purchase or lease of real property, and payment or reimbursement for purchase, lease, or refurbishment of appliances or equipment [see Gov. Code § 89517].

- Compensation of a candidate or elected officer for the performance of political, legislative, or governmental activities [Gov. Code § 89518].

[c] Attorney's Fees and Costs

Expenditure of campaign funds for attorney's fees and other costs in connection with administrative, civil, or criminal litigation are not directly related to a political, legislative, or governmental purpose, except when the litigation (1) is directly related to activities of a committee that are consistent with its primary objectives; (2) arises directly out of a committee's activities; or (3) arises directly out of a candidate's or elected officer's activities, duties, or status as a candidate or elected officer. For example, litigation that is directly related to or arises directly out of such activities, duties, or status includes an action to enjoin defamation, defense of an action to enjoin defamation, defense of an action brought for a violation of state or local campaign, disclosure, or election laws, and an action arising from an elective contest or recount [Gov. Code § 89514].

[5] Use of Surplus Funds Raised After January 1, 1989

On leaving any elected office, or at the end of the postelection reporting period following the defeat of a candidate for elective office, whichever occurs last, campaign funds raised after January 1, 1989, under the control of the former candidate or elected officer, are considered surplus campaign funds. The surplus funds must be disclosed pursuant to the campaign disclosure requirements of Gov. Code § 84100 et seq. [Gov. Code § 89519(a)]. Surplus campaign funds must be used only for the following purposes [Gov. Code § 89519(b)(1)-(6)]:

- The payment of outstanding campaign debts or elected officer's expenses.

- The repayment of contributions.

- Donations to any bona fide charitable, educational, civic, religious, or similar tax-exempt, nonprofit organization, where no substantial part of the proceeds will have a material financial effect on the former candidate or elected officer, any member of his or her immediate family, or his or her campaign treasurer.

- Contributions to a political party committee, provided the campaign funds are not used to support or oppose candidates for elective office. However, the campaign funds may be used by a political party committee to conduct partisan voter registration, partisan get-out-the-vote activities, and slate mailers as that term is defined in Gov. Code § 82048.3.

- Contributions to support or oppose any candidate for federal office, any candidate for elective office in a state other than California, or any ballot measure.

- The payment for professional services reasonably required by the committee to assist in the performance of its administrative functions, including payment for attorney's fees for litigation which arises directly out of a candidate's or elected officer's activities, duties, or status as a candidate or elected officer, including, but not limited to, an action to enjoin defamation, defense of an action brought of a violation of state or local campaign, disclosure, or election laws, and an action from an election contest or recount.

For purposes of Gov. Code § 89519, the payment for, or the reimbursement to the state of, the costs of installing and monitoring an electronic security system in the home or office, or both, of a candidate or elected officer who has received threats to his or her physical safety is deemed an outstanding campaign debt or elected officer's expense, provided that the threats arise from his or her activities, duties, or status as a candidate or elected officer and that the threats have been reported to and verified by an appropriate law enforcement agency. Verification must be determined solely by the law enforcement agency to which the threat was reported. The candidate or elected officer must report any expenditure of campaign funds made pursuant to Gov. Code § 89519 to the commission. The report to the commission must include the date that the candidate or elected officer informed the law enforcement agency of the threat, the name and the telephone number of the law enforcement agency, and a brief description of the threat. No more than $5,000 in surplus campaign funds may be used, cumulatively, by a candidate or elected officer pursuant to Gov. Code § 89519(c). Payments made pursuant to Gov. Code § 89519(c) must be made during the two years immediately following the date upon which the campaign funds become surplus campaign funds. The candidate or elected officer must reimburse the surplus fund account for the fair market value of the security system no later than two years immediately following the date upon which the campaign funds became surplus campaign funds. The campaign funds become surplus campaign funds upon sale of the property on which the system is installed, or prior to the closing of the surplus campaign fund account, whichever comes first. The electronic security system shall be the property of the campaign committee of the candidate or elected officer [Gov. Code § 89519(c)].

[6] Liability for Violations

Any person who makes or receives an honorarium, gift, or expenditure in violation of the provisions of Gov. Code § 89510 et seq. is liable in a civil action brought by the Fair Political Practices Commission for an amount of up to three times the amount of the unlawful honorarium, gift, or expenditure [Gov. Code § 89521]. The remedies set forth in Gov. Code § 91000 et seq. [see § 242.70 et seq.] do not apply to violations of Gov. Code § 89510 et seq. [Gov. Code § 89520].

4. Reporting Campaign Contributions and Expenditures

20-242 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 242.50

§ 242.50 Campaign Statements

[1] Filing Requirement

Campaign statements are itemized reports that must be prepared on forms prescribed by the Fair Political Practices Commission [Gov. Code § 82006; see also Gov. Code §§ 84205, 84206, 84212]. As a general rule, all elected officers, candidates, committees under Gov. Code § 82013(a) (committees receiving $1,000 or more in contributions in a calendar year), and slate mailer organizations must file semiannual campaign statements each year. The statements must be filed no later than July 31 for the six-month reporting period ending June 30, and no later than January 31 for the six-month reporting period ending December 31 [Gov. Code § 84200(a); see Gov. Code § 84218(a)].

[2] Contents, Verification, and Place of Filing Campaign statements for candidates, committees, elected officers, and specified slate mailer organizations must contain the information required by Gov. Code § 84211 [see Gov. Code §§ 84211, 84218(c), 84219(k); see also [6], below, concerning slate mailer organizations]. Additionally, campaign statements for candidates and committees must contain the information relating to loans required by Gov. Code §§ 84211, 84216(b) and 84216.5. For example, for each person contributing $100 or more during a reporting period, the statement must include the contributor's name, address, occupation, employer or business name if self-employed, the date and amount received for each contribution, and the cumulative amount of contributions [see Gov. Code § 84211(f); see also Gov. Code § 82015 ("contribution" defined), discussed in § 242.21[3]].

A candidate must verify (in accordance with Gov. Code § 81004) his or her campaign statement and the campaign statement of each committee subject to his or her control [Gov. Code § 84213]. All candidates and elected officers and their controlled committees must file copies of campaign statements at the places specified in Gov. Code § 84215.

For discussion of the reporting requirement concerning payments made at the behest of candidate who is an elected officer for purposes unrelated to the candidate's candidacy for elective office [see Gov. Code § 82015(b)(2)(B)(iii)], see § 242.53C.

[3] Candidates

A candidate who, during the past six months, has filed a declaration that he or she has received contributions and made expenditures of less than $1,000 in a calendar year need not file a statement for that six-month period [Gov. Code § 84200(a)(1); see Gov. Code § 84206].

[4] Committees

[a] In General

Committees under Gov. Code § 82013(b) or (c) (committees making independent expenditures, including payments to a slate mailer organization, of $1,000 or contributions of $10,000 or more in a calendar year) must file semiannual campaign statements no later than July 31 for the six-month reporting period ending June 30, and no later than January 31 for the six-month reporting period ending December 31, if they have made contributions or independent expenditures during the six-month period before the closing date of the statements [Gov. Code § 84200(b); see § 242.21[2][a]].

Ballot measure committees pursuant to Gov. Code § 82013(a) and proponents of a state ballot measure who control those committees are also required to file campaign statements for the first half of any semiannual period during which these committees are not required to file preelection statements [Gov. Code § 84202.3; see § 242.51[6]].

During an odd-numbered year, any committee that makes contributions totaling $10,000 or more during specified periods to elected state officers, their controlled committees, or committees primarily formed to support or oppose any elected state officer must file campaign statements on specified dates [see Gov. Code § 84202.7(a)]. If a committee makes contributions totaling $10,000 or more during a specified period to elected state officers, their controlled committees, or committees primarily formed to support or oppose any elected state officer, and all of those contributions are reported under Gov. Code § 84202.5 (supplemental preelection statements) on or before the appropriate time period, the committee need not file additional statements for that period under Gov. Code § 84202.7 [Gov. Code § 84202.7(b)].

[b] LAFCO Proposal Committee

A "LAFCO proposal" in this context is a proceeding or proposal as defined in Gov. Code § 56067 or § 56069 [Gov. Code § 82035.5]. All requirements of the Political Reform Act of 1974 applicable to a measure [see Gov. Code § 82043 (definition)] also apply to a LAFCO proposal, except as set forth in Gov. Code § 84252, below [Gov. Code § 84250].

A committee primarily formed to support or oppose a LAFCO proposal must file all statements required under the disclosure provisions of the Political Reform Act of 1974 [see Gov. Code § 84100 et seq.] except that, in lieu of the statements required by Gov. Code §§ 84200 and 84202.3 [see [a], above], the committee must file monthly campaign statements from the time circulation of a petition begins until a measure is placed on the ballot or, if a measure is not placed on the ballot, until the committee is terminated pursuant to Gov. Code § 84214. The committee must file an original and one copy of each statement on the 15th day of each calendar month, covering the prior calendar month, with the clerk of the county in which the measure may be voted on. If the petition results in a measure that is placed on the ballot, the committee thereafter must file campaign statements required by the disclosure provisions of the Political Reform Act of 1974 [Gov. Code § 84252(a)].

In addition to any other statements required by the disclosure provisions of the Political Reform Act of 1974, a committee that makes independent expenditures in connection with a LAFCO proposal must file statements pursuant to Gov. Code § 84203.5 [Gov. Code § 84252(b)].

A payment made for the purpose of influencing or attempting to influence the actions of voters or a local agency formation commission for or against the qualification, adoption, or passage of a LAFCO proposal is a payment made for "political purposes" as that term is used in Gov. Code §§ 82015 and 82025 defining what are contributions and expenditures for purposes of the Political Reform Act of 1974 [Gov. Code § 84251].

[5] Elected Officers, Judges, and Judicial Candidates

Elected officers whose salaries are less than $200 a month, judges, judicial candidates, and their controlled committees need not file semiannual statements under Gov. Code § 84200(a) for any six-month period in which they have not made or received any contributions or made any expenditures [Gov. Code § 84200(a)(2); see Gov. Code § 82020 ("elected officer" defined)].

A judge who is not listed on the ballot for reelection to, or recall from, any elective office during a calendar year need not file semiannual statements for any six-month period in that year if [Gov. Code § 84200(a)(3)]:

- The judge has not received any contributions; and

- The only expenditures made by the judge during the calendar year are contributions from the judge's personal funds to other candidates or committees, totaling less than $1,000.

[6] Slate Mailer Organizations

A slate mailer organization must file semiannual campaign statements for each period in which it has done either of the following [Gov. Code § 84218(a)]:

- Received payments totaling $500 or more from any person for the support of or opposition to candidates or ballot measures in a slate mailer; or

- Expended $500 or more to produce one or more slate mailers.

The production and distribution of slate mailers by a slate mailer organization do not constitute making contributions or expenditures for purposes of Gov. Code § 82013(b) or (c) [see § 242.21[13]]. If a slate mailer organization makes contributions or expenditures other than by producing or distributing slate mailers, and it reports them under Gov. Code §§ 84218 and 84219 (campaign statements and reports), no additional campaign reports are required under Gov. Code § 84200 (time for filing campaign statements and reports) or § 84200.5 (time for filing preelection statements) [Gov. Code § 82048.4(c)].

The contents of the semiannual statements are mandated by Gov. Code § 84219. Whenever a slate mailer organization also qualifies as a general purpose committee under Gov. Code § 82027.5 [see § 242.21[2][c]], the campaign report must include, in addition to any information required by Gov. Code § 84219, the information required by Gov. Code § 84211 [Gov. Code § 84219(k)].

The statements must be filed no later than July 31 for the period ending June 30, and no later than January 31 for the period ending December 31 [Gov. Code § 84218(a)]. The organization must file two copies of its campaign reports with the clerk of the county in which it is domiciled. It is deemed to be domiciled at the address listed on its statement of organization, unless it is domiciled outside California. If it is domiciled outside California, its domicile is deemed to be Los Angeles County for the purpose of filing statements and reports specified in Gov. Code § 84218 [Gov. Code § 84218(c)].

Code § 82013(a) [Gov. Code § 84221].

In addition to these campaign statements, the preelection statements [see § 242.51] and the late contribution reports [see § 242.53], slate mailer organizations must file campaign reports as follows [Gov. Code § 84218(c)]:

- A slate mailer organization that produces one or more slate mailers supporting or opposing candidates or measures voted on in a state election, or in more than one county, must file campaign reports in the same manner as state general purpose committees [see § 242.21[2][c]] pursuant to Gov. Code § 84215(a).

- A slate mailer organization that produces one or more slate mailers supporting or opposing candidates or ballot measures voted on in only one county, or in more than one jurisdiction within one county, must file campaign reports in the same manner as county general purpose committees [see § 242.21[2][c]] pursuant to Gov. Code § 84215(d).

- A slate mailer organization that produces one or more slate mailers supporting or opposing candidates or ballot measures voted on in only one city must file campaign reports in the same manner as city general purpose committees [see § 242.21[2][c]] pursuant to Gov. Code § 84215(e).

Notwithstanding the foregoing, no slate mailer organization is required to file more than the original and one copy, or two copies, of a campaign report with any one county or city clerk or with the Secretary of State [Gov. Code § 84218(c)(4)].

For discussion of setting up an account to defray attorney fees and related costs for candidates for elective state office, or for an elected state officer, without being subject to the contribution limits set forth in Gov. Code, tit. 9, ch. 5 (commencing with Gov. Code § 85100), see § 242.41[9].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
4. Reporting Campaign Contributions and Expenditures

20-242 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 242.51

§ 242.51 Preelection Statements

[1] Filing Requirement

In addition to campaign statements [see § 242.50], elected officers, candidates, committees, and slate mailer organizations must file preelection statements [Gov. Code § 84200.5; see Gov. Code § 84218(b)].

[2] Elected State Officers and Their Committees

During an even numbered year, committees primarily formed to support or oppose an elected state officer being voted on in the statewide direct primary election or statewide general election must file the applicable preelection statements specified in Gov. Code § 82400.7 or 82400.8. All elected state officers who, during the applicable reporting periods covered by § 82400.7 or § 82400.8, contribute to any committee required to report receipts, expenditures, or contributions under the Political Reform Act of 1974, or make an independent expenditure, must also file the applicable preelection statements specified in Gov. Code § 82400.7 or 82400.8 [Gov. Code § 84200.5(a)].

[3] Candidates and Their Committees

During an even-numbered year, all candidates for elective state office being voted on in the statewide direct primary or general election, their control committees, and committees primarily formed to support or oppose them must file the applicable preelection statements specified in Gov. Code § 82400.7 or 82400.8 [Gov. Code § 84200.5(a)]. A candidate who is not being voted on in the November election, his or her controlled committee, and any committee primarily formed to support or oppose the candidate is not, however, required to file statements in connection with the November election pursuant to Gov. Code § 82400.7(b) unless, during the reporting periods covered by Gov. Code § 84200.7, the candidate, his or her controlled committee, or any committee primarily formed to support or oppose the candidate either contributes to any committee required by the Political Reform Act to report receipts, expenditures, or contributions or makes independent expenditures [Gov. Code § 84200.5(a)].

During an even-numbered year, all candidates not specified in Gov. Code § 84200.5(a) who are being voted on in an election held on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in June or November of that year, their controlled committees, and committees primarily formed to support or oppose them must file preelection statements specified in Gov. Code § 84200.7(a) in case of a June election, or Gov. Code § 84200.8(b) in case of a November election [Gov. Code § 84200.5(b)].

All candidates being voted on in an election held on a date other than the first Tuesday after the first Monday in June or November of an even-numbered year, their controlled committees, and committees primarily formed to support or oppose them must file the preelection statements specified in Gov. Code § 84200.8 [Gov. Code § 84200.5(c)].

[4] State and County General Purpose Committees

In an even-numbered year in which the statewide direct primary election is held on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in June, a state or county general purpose committee formed pursuant to Gov. Code § 82013(a), other than a political party committee as defined in Gov. Code § 85205, (i.e., one receiving contributions of $1,000 or more in a calendar year) must file the preelection statements specified in Gov. Code § 84200.7 if it makes contributions or independent expenditures totaling $500 or more during the period covered by the preelection statement [Gov. Code § 84200.5(d); for definition of state or county general purpose committee, see § 242.21[2][c]]. A state or county general purpose committee formed pursuant to Gov. Code § 82013(b) or 82013(c) (i.e., one that makes either independent expenditures totaling $1,000 or more in a calendar year, or contributions of $10,000 or more in a calendar year to or at the behest of candidates or committees), however, is not required to file the statements specified in Gov. Code § 84200.7 [Gov. Code § 84200.5(d)].

Similarly, during an even-numbered year in which the statewide direct primary election is held on a date other than the first Tuesday after the first Monday in June, a state or county general purpose committee formed pursuant to Gov. Code § 82013(a), other than a political party committee as defined in Gov. Code § 85205, (i.e., one receiving contributions of $1,000 or more in a calendar year) must file the preelection statements specified in Gov. Code § 84200.8 if it makes contributions or independent expenditures totaling $500 or more during the reporting period covered by the statement. A state or county general purpose committee formed pursuant to Gov. Code § 82013(b) or 82013(c) (i.e., one that makes either independent expenditures totaling $1,000 or more in a calendar year, or contributions of $10,000 or more in a calendar year, to or at the behest of candidates or committees), however, is not required to file the statements specified in Gov. Code § 84200.8 [Gov. Code § 84200.5(e)].

[5] Political Party Committees

A political party committee, as defined in Gov. Code § 85205, shall file the applicable preelection statements specified in Gov. Code §§ 84200.7 or 84200.8 in connection with a state election if the committee receives contributions totaling $1,000 or more, or if it makes contributions or independent expenditures totaling $500 or more during the period covered by the preelection statement.

[6] City General Purpose Committees

City general purpose committees in a city that has an election on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in June or November of an even-numbered year must file the statement specified in Gov. Code § 84200.7(a) or 84200.7(b) for the six-month period in which the city election is held if they make contributions or independent expenditures totaling $500 or more during the period covered by the preelection statement [Gov. Code § 84200.5(g)(1)].

City general purpose committees in a city that has an election on any other date must file the preelection statements specified in Gov. Code § 84200.8 if they make contributions or independent expenditures totaling $500 or more during the period covered by the preelection statement [Gov. Code § 84200.5(g)(2)].

Slate mailer organizations must, in addition to the semiannual campaign statements required by Gov. Code § 84218(a) [see § 242.50[6]], file preelection statements as follows [Gov. Code § 84218(b); see Gov. Code § 84219 (contents of preelection statements)]:

- Any slate mailer organization that produces a slate mailer supporting or opposing candidates or ballot measures voted on in an election held on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in June or November of an even-numbered year must file the preelection statements specified in Gov. Code § 84200.7 if, during the reporting period covered by the preelection statement, the organization receives payments totaling $500 or more from any person for the support of or opposition to candidates or ballot measures in one or more slate mailers, or expends $500 or more to produce one or more slate mailers.

- Any slate mailer organization that produces a slate mailer supporting or opposing candidates or ballot measures voted on in an election held on a date other than the first Tuesday after the first Monday in June or November of an even-numbered year must file the preelection statements specified in Gov. Code § 84200.8 if, during the reporting period covered by the preelection statement, the organization receives payments totaling $500 or more from any person for the support of or opposition to candidates or ballot measures in one or more slate mailers, or expends $500 or more to produce one or more slate mailers.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
4. Reporting Campaign Contributions and Expenditures

20-242 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 242.52

§ 242.52 Supplemental Preelection Statements

Any candidate or any committee that makes contributions of $10,000 or more in connection with an election, including a runoff election, must file a supplemental preelection statement for the reporting period on the date specified in Gov. Code § 84202.5(a) [Gov. Code § 84200.6(a)]. This statement need not be filed during any semiannual period in which the candidate or committee must file preelection statements under Gov. Code § 84200.5 [Gov. Code § 84202.5(b)]. Moreover, if a candidate or committee makes contributions totalling $10,000 or more in connection with an election and all those contributions are reported under Gov. Code § 84200 or 84202.7 on or before the date specified in Gov. Code § 84202.5(a), the candidate or committee is not required to file additional statements for that period under *Gov. 4. Reporting Campaign Contributions and Expenditures

§ 242.53A Online or Electronic Filing Requirements

[1] Under the Online Disclosure Act

In 1997, Gov. Code, tit. 9, ch. 4.6 (commencing with Gov. Code § 84600) was enacted [see Stats 1997, ch. 866]. Chapter 4.6 is known and may be cited as the Online Disclosure Act of 1997 [Gov. Code § 84600]. The Legislature, in enacting the Act, declared that advances in technology have made it viable for disclosure statements and reports required by the Political Reform Act to be filed online and placed on the internet, thereby maximizing availability to the public [Gov. Code § 84601(c)].

Under the Act, numerous persons and entities listed in Gov. Code §§ 84604 and 84605 that are required to file statements, reports or other documents under Gov. Code, tit. 9, ch. 4 (commencing with Gov. Code § 84100) and Gov. Code, tit. 9, ch. 6 (commencing with Gov. Code § 86100) must also file them online or electronically with the Secretary of State when certain threshold amounts are met [see Gov. Code §§ 84602(a), 84604, 84605]. Similarly, in addition to filing in paper format, persons or entities not required to file online or electronically under Gov. Code §§ 84604, or 84605 may do so voluntarily [Gov. Code §§ 84604(b), 84605(f), (i)].

The Secretary of State, once all state-mandated development, procurement, and oversight requirements have been met, must make public their availability to accept reports online or electronically. Any filer may then commence voluntarily filing online or electronically any required report or statement that is otherwise required to be filed with the Secretary of State under Gov. Code, tit. 9, ch. 4 (commencing with Gov. Code § 84100) or Gov. Code, tit. 9, ch. 6 (commencing with Gov. Code § 86100) [Gov. Code § 84603].

The Secretary of State must determine and publicly disclose when the online and electronic disclosure systems are operating effectively. The online or electronic disclosure system shall not become operative until the Department of Information Technology approves the system. On this determination, filers required by Gov. Code, tit. 9, ch.4.6 (commencing with Gov. Code § 84600) to file online or electronically no longer will be required to file a paper copy or with local filing officers. Furthermore, the date that a filer transmits an online or electronic report shall be the date the report is received by the Secretary of State [Gov. Code § 84606].

If the Secretary of State rejects a filing made under the Online Disclosure Act, the Secretary of State must immediately notify the filer, by electronic mail, of the reason or reasons for rejection using plain, straightforward language, avoiding technical terms as much as possible, and using a coherent and easily readable style. The notice must be written or displayed so that the meaning will be easily understood by those persons directly affected by it [Gov. Code § 84612].

The Secretary of State must make all data filed available on the internet free of charge as soon as possible after receipt. For example, all late contributions and late independent expenditure reports as defined in Gov. Code §§ 84203 and 84204 must be made available on the Internet within 24 hours after receipt [Gov. Code § 84602(d); see Gov. Code §§ 84604(c), 84605(e)]. The Secretary of State must maintain all filed data online for 10 years after the date it was filed, and then archive the information in a secure format [Gov. Code § 84602(f)].

[2] Under Other Specified Provisions

In addition to any other reports required by Gov. Code, tit. 9 (commencing with Gov. Code § 81000), a committee, including a political party committee (as defined in Gov. Code § 85205; see § 242.41[3]), that is required to file reports under Gov. Code § 84605 (see [1], above) and that makes independent expenditures of $1,000 or more during an election cycle (as defined in Gov. Code § 85204) in connection with a candidate for elective state office or state ballot measure (see § 242.21[3A]), must file online or electronically a report with the Secretary of State in accordance with Gov. Code § 85500(a) [see Gov. Code § 85500(a)]. An expenditure may not be considered independent, however, and must be treated as a contribution from the person making the expenditure to the candidate on whose behalf, or for whose benefit, the expenditure is made, if the expenditure is made under any of the following circumstances [Gov. Code § 85500(b)]:

- The expenditure is made with the cooperation of, or in consultation with, the candidate on whose behalf, or for whose benefit, the expenditure is made, or any controlled committee or any agent of the candidate [Gov. Code § 85500(b)(1)].

- The expenditure is made in concert with, or at the request or suggestion of, the candidate on whose behalf, or for whose benefit, the expenditure is made, or any controlled committee or any agent of the candidate [Gov. Code § 85500(b)(2)].

- The expenditure is made under any arrangement, coordination, or direction with respect to the candidate or the candidate's agent and the person making the expenditure [Gov. Code § 85500(b)(3)].

A controlled committee (as defined in Gov. Code § 82016) of a candidate may not make independent expenditures and may not contribute funds to another committee for the purpose of making independent expenditures to support or oppose other candidates [Gov. Code § 85501].

Furthermore, in addition to any other reports required by Gov. Code, tit. 9 (commencing with Gov. Code § 81000 et seq.), a candidate for elective state office who is required to file reports under Gov. Code § 84605 (see [1], above) must file online or electronically with the Secretary of State a report disclosing receipt of a contribution of $1,000 or more received during an election cycle (as defined in Gov. Code § 85204) in accordance with Gov. Code § 85309(a) [see Gov. Code § 85309(a)]. Similarly, in addition to any other report required by Gov. Code, tit. 9 (commencing with Gov. Code § 81000 et seq.), any committee primarily formed to support or oppose one or more state ballot measures that is required to file reports under Gov. Code § 84605 must file online or electronically with the Secretary of State a report disclosing receipt of a contribution of $1,000 or more received during an election cycle in accordance with Gov. Code § 85309(b) [see Gov. Code § 85309(b)].

In addition to any other report required by Gov. Code, tit. 9 [Gov. Code § 81000 et seq.], a candidate for elective state office who is required to file reports pursuant to Gov. Code § 84605 must file online or electronically with the Secretary of State a report disclosing receipt of a contribution of $5,000 or more received at any time other than during an election cycle. Those reports must disclose the same information required by Gov. Code § 84203(a) and must be filed within 10 business days of receipt of the contribution [Gov. Code § 85309(c)]. This requirement is also applicable to a committee primarily formed to support or oppose a state ballot measure [Gov. Code § 85309(d)].

Gov. Code §§ 85500 and 85309 became operative on January 1, 2001. However, Gov. Code §§ 85500 and 85309(b) apply to candidates for statewide elective office (see § 242.21[14A]) beginning on and after November 6, 2002 [Prop. 34, § 83].

[3] Report of Payments Concerning Issue Advocacy

Any person who makes a payment or a promise of payment totaling $50,000 or more for a communication that clearly identifies a candidate for elective state office, but does not expressly advocate the election or defeat of the candidate, and that is disseminated, broadcast, or otherwise published within 45 days of an election, must file online or electronically with the Secretary of State a report disclosing the name of the person, address, occupation, and employer, and amount of the payment. The report must be filed within 48 hours of making the payment or the promise to make the payment [Gov. Code § 85310(a)].

Except as provided in Gov. Code § 85319(b)(2), if any person has received a payment or a promise of a payment from other persons totaling $5,000 or more for the purpose of making a communication described in Gov. Code § 85310, the person receiving the payments must disclose on the report the name, address, occupation and employer, and date and amount received from the person [Gov. Code § 85310(b)(1)]. A person who receives or is promised a payment that is otherwise reportable under Gov. Code § 85310(b)(1), however, is not required to report the payment if the person is in the business of providing goods or services and receives or is promised the payment for the purpose of providing those goods or services [Gov. Code § 85310(b)(2)].

Any payment received by a person who makes a communication described in Gov. Code § 85310(a) is subject to the limits specified in Gov. Code § 85303(b) (see § 242.41[3]) if the communication is made at the behest of the clearly identified candidate [Gov. Code § 85310(c); see § 242.21[3] (defining contribution)].

Gov. Code § 85310 became operative on January 1, 2001. However, Gov. Code § 85310 applies to candidates for statewide elective office (see § 242.21[14A]) beginning on or after November 6, 2002 [Prop. 34, § 83].

§ 242.53B Certain Payments Not Made For General Public Advertising Not Deemed Contributions or Independent Expenditures

For purposes of Gov. Code, tit. 9 (commencing with Gov. Code § 81000), payments for communications to members, employees, shareholders, or families of members, employees, or shareholders of an organization for the purpose of supporting or opposing a candidate or a ballot measure are not contributions or expenditures, provided those payments are not made for general public advertising such as broadcasting, billboards, and newspaper advertisements. However, payments made by a political party for communications to its members who are registered with that party which would otherwise qualify as contributions or expenditures must be reported in accordance with Gov. Code § 84200 et seq. and Gov. Code § 84600 et seq. [Gov. Code § 85312; see §§ 242.21[3] (defining contributions), 242.21[4][b] (defining independent expenditures)].

Gov. Code § 85312 became operative on January 1, 2001. However, Gov. Code § 85312 applies to candidates for statewide elective office (see § 242.21[14A]) beginning on and after November 6, 2002 [Prop. 34, § 83].

§ 242.53C Payments Made at Behest of Candidate Who Is Elected Officer for Purposes Unrelated to Candidate's Candidacy

A payment not covered by Gov. Code § 82015(b)(2)(B)(i) (i.e., not being a payment made principally for personal purposes that may be considered a gift) made principally for legislative, governmental, or charitable purposes is considered neither a gift nor a contribution [Gov. Code § 82015(b)(2)(B)(iii); see § 242.21[3], above]. Payments of this type, however, that are made at the behest of a candidate who is an elected officer must be reported within 30 days following the date on which the payment or payments equal or exceed $5,000 in the aggregate from the same source in the same calendar year in which they are made. The report must be filed by the elected officer with the elected officer's agency and is a public record subject to inspection and copying pursuant to Gov. Code § 81008(a) [Gov. Code § 82015(b)(2)(B)(iii)]. The report must contain the following information [Gov. Code § 82015(b)(2)(B)(iii)]:

- Name of the payor.
- Address of the payor.
- Amount of the payment.
- Date the payment was made.
- Name and address of the payee.
- Brief description of any goods or services provided by or purchased from the payee.
- Description of the specific purpose or event for which the payment was made.

Once the $5,000 aggregate threshold from a single source has been reached for a calendar year, all payments for the calendar year made by that source must be disclosed within 30 days after the date the threshold was reached or the payment was made, whichever occurs later. Within 30 days after receipt of the report, state agencies must forward a copy of these reports to the Fair Political Practices Commission, and local agencies must forward a copy of these reports to the officer with whom elected officers of that agency file their campaign statements [Gov. Code § 82015(b)(2)(B)(iii)].

However, payments of this type must be reported within 30 days following the date on which the payments equal or exceed $5,000 in the aggregate from the same source in the same calendar year in which they are made. The report must be filed by the member with the Public Utilities Commission and must be a public record subject to inspection and copying pursuant to Gov. Code § 81008(a). [1] By Agents or Independent Contractors

No expenditure of $500 or more may be made, other than overhead or normal operating expenses, by an agent or independent contractor, including but not limited to an advertising agency, on behalf of or for the benefit of any candidate or committee unless it is reported by the candidate or committee as if it were made directly by the candidate or committee. The agent or independent contractor must make known to the candidate or committee all information required to be reported under this provision [Gov. Code § 84303].

[2] For Mass Mailings

No newsletter or other mass mailing may be sent at public expense [Gov. Code § 89001]. This prohibition is constitutional, because it neither interferes with the Legislature's authority to govern its internal affairs nor burdens the exercise of any fundamental right [Watson v. Fair Political Practices Com. (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 1059, 1064, 266 Cal. Rptr. 408]. The prohibition is not unconstitutionally broad nor violative of the single-subject requirement of *Cal. PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
4A. Particular Disclosure Requirements

§ 242.55 Mass Mailings

No candidate or committee may send a mass mailing unless the outside of each piece of mail meets the form and content requirements of Gov. Code § 84305 [see 2 Cal. Code Reg. § 18435 (defining "sender" as person who incurs largest portion of expenditures attributable to designing, printing, and posting of mailing)].

The Gov. Code § 84305 requirement that candidates for public office (or candidate-controlled committees) must identify themselves on mass mailings has been upheld against a challenge that the provision violates the First Amendment [Griset v. Fair Political Practices Com. (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 851, 853, 866 n.5, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 659, 884 P.2d 116 (Griset I) (rejecting candidate's argument that person who sends mass mailings designed to influence election outcome is entitled to remain anonymous under First Amendment)].

After Griset I, the U.S. Supreme Court considered the question of whether a state statute that prohibits the distribution of anonymous campaign literature is a law abridging the freedom of speech within the meaning of the First Amendment. The statute prohibited distribution of political campaign literature that does not include the name and address of the person or campaign official issuing the literature. The Court held that the statute was unconstitutional because the state failed to show that the state's interest in preventing misuse of anonymous election-related speech justified a prohibition of all that speech [McIntyre v. Ohio Elections Comm'n (1995) 514 U.S. 334, 357, 115 S. Ct. 1511, 131 L. Ed. 2d 426] .

Arguably, McIntyre, brings into question the constitutionality of Gov. Code § 84305, because the statute prohibits distribution of anonymous mass mailings. Section 84305 may be distinguished from the statute before the Court, however, because Section 84305 is more narrow and concerns only "candidates or committees." The offending statute in McIntyre, on the other hand, applied "not only to the activities of candidates and their organized supporters, but also to individuals acting independently and using only their own modest resources." The Court cited an earlier decision in which it stressed the importance of this distinction [McIntyre v. Ohio Elections Comm'n (1995) 514 U.S. 334, 351, 115 S. Ct. 1511, 131 L. Ed. 2d 426 ; see Buckley v. Valeo (1976) 424 U.S. 1, 37, 96 S. Ct. 612, 46 L. Ed. 2d 659 (striking down independent expenditure limitations of Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971)].

Relying on McIntyre, the Griset I plaintiffs, in the same action, again asked the superior court to declare section 84305 unconstitutional. The superior court denied plaintiffs' request and entered judgment for defendant Fair Political Practices Commission. On plaintiffs' appeal from that judgment, the Court of Appeal reversed. However, the California Supreme Court granted the Commission's petition for review, and reversed on the grounds that the Court of Appeal lacked the authority to entertain plaintiffs' second appeal in the same action [Griset v. Fair Political Practices Com. (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 688, 701-702 107 Cal. Rptr. 2d 149, 23 P. 3d 43 (Griset II)] .

§ 242.55A Slate Mailers

A slate mailer organization or committee formed primarily to support or oppose any ballot measure is prohibited from sending a slate mailer unless the mailer meets the following requirements [Gov. Code § 84305.5(a)]:

- The name, street address, and city of the slate mailer organization or committee must be shown on the outside of each piece of slate mail and on at least one of the inserts included with each piece of slate mail, in at least 8-point roman type, in a color or print that contrasts with the background so as to be easily legible. A post office box may be stated in lieu of a street address if the street address of the slate mailer organization or the committee is a matter of public record with the Secretary of State's Political Reform Division [*Gov. - The name, street address, and city of the slate mailer organization or committee as required above and the statement required above may appear on the same side or surface of an insert [Gov. Code § 84305.5(a)(3)].

- Each candidate and each ballot measure that has paid to appear in the slate mailer must be designated by an asterisk (*). Any candidate or ballot measure that has not paid to appear in the slate mailer may not designated by an asterisk. The asterisk must be of the same type size, type style, color or contrast, and legibility as is used for the name of the candidate or the ballot measure name or number and position advocated to which the asterisk designation applies, except that in no case is the asterisk required to be larger than 10-point boldface type. The designation must immediately follow the name of the candidate, or the name or number and position advocated on the ballot measure when the designation appears in the slate of candidates and measures. If there is no slate listing, the designation must appear at least once in at least 8-point boldface type, immediately following the name of the candidate, or the name or number and position advocated on the ballot measure [Gov. Code § 84305.5(a)(4)].

- The name of any candidate appearing in the slate mailer who is a member of a political party differing from the political party which the mailer appears by representation or indicia to represent must be accompanied, immediately below the name, by the party designation of the candidate, in at least 9-point roman type, in a color or print that contrasts with the background so as to be easily legible. The designation is not required in the case of candidates for nonpartisan office, however [Gov. Code § 84305.5(a)(5)].

For purposes of the designations required by Gov. Code § 84305.5(a)(4), the payment of any sum made reportable by Gov. Code § 84219(c) by or at the behest of a candidate or committee whose name or position appears in the mailer, to the slate mailer organization or committee, will constitute a payment to appear, requiring the asterisk designation. The payment will also be deemed to constitute authorization to appear in the mailer [Gov. Code § 84305.5(b)].

NOTE:

In 2004, the Legislature enacted legislation seeking to clarify the status of disclosure requirements affecting slate mail, which had been brought into question by the passage of Propositions 208 and 34 and ensuing litigation [see Levine v. Fair Political Practices Comm'n (E.D. Cal. 2002) 222 F. Supp. 2d 1182, 1191 ; California Prolife Council PAC v. Scully (E.D. Cal. 1998) 989 F. Supp. 1282, 1292-1295 , aff'd (9th Cir. 1999) 164 F. 3d 1189 (affirming preliminary injunction)]. The 2004 legislation repealed the slate mailer disclosure provisions of Proposition 208, as well as the additional requirement contained in Proposition 34, and re-enacted the slate mailer disclosure provisions that were in effect prior to the passage of Proposition 208 [see 2004 Stats., ch. 478].

Code § 84501(b)*].

[2] Cumulative Contribution Defined

"Cumulative contributions" means the cumulative amount of contributions received by a committee beginning 12 months prior to the date the committee made its first expenditure to qualify, support, or oppose the measure and ending within seven days of the time the advertisement is sent to the printer or broadcast station [Gov. Code § 84502].

[3] Disclosure Statement

Any advertisement for or against any ballot measure must include a disclosure statement identifying any person whose cumulative contributions are $50,000) or more [Gov. Code § 84503(a)]. If there are more than two donors of $50,000 or more, the committee is only required to disclose the highest and second highest in that order. In the event that more than two donors meet this disclosure threshold at identical contribution levels, the highest and second highest must be selected according to chronological sequence [Gov. Code § 84503(b)].

If disclosure of two major donors is required by Gov. Code § 84503, the committee is required to disclose, in addition to the committee name, only its highest major contributor in any advertisement which is [Gov. Code § 84508(a), (b)]:

- An electronic broadcast of 15 seconds or less, or
- A newspaper, magazine, or other public print media advertisement which is 20 square inches or less.

NOTE:

Gov. Code § 84503 was added by Proposition 208, an initiative approved by the voters in 1996. On January 6, 1998, a federal district court issued a preliminary injunction enjoining the Fair Political Practices Commission from enforcing any of the provisions of Prop. 208 and Prop. 34, a campaign finance initiative passed by voters in November 2000, largely invalidated Prop. 208 [see California Prolife Council PAC v. Scully (E.D. Cal. 1998) 989 F. Supp. 1282, 1292-1295 , aff'd (9th Cir. 1999) 164 F. 3d 1189] . However, the constitutionality of two Prop. 208 provisions, including Gov. Code § 84503, was left to the federal district court to determine. On March 1, 2001, U.S. District Court Judge Lawrence Karlton declared both provisions to be unconstitutional and permanently enjoined their enforcement. On May 8, 2001, Judge Karlton clarified his earlier ruling by stating, among other things, that the FPPC is enjoined from enforcing Gov. Code § 84503 only as to slate mail, and not as to any other type of paid political advertisement. On May 22, 2001, the FPPC decided not to appeal this final judgment; intervenors in the defense of Prop. 208 also decided not to appeal the court's ruling.

Any committee that supports or opposes one or more ballot measures must name and identify itself using a name or phrase that clearly identifies the economic or other special interest of its major donors of $50,000 or more in any reference to the committee required by law, including, but not limited, to its statement of organization filed under Gov. Code § 84101 [Gov. Code § 84504(a)]. If the major donors of $50,000 or more share a common employer, the identity of the employer must also be disclosed [Gov. Code § 84504(b)]. Any committee that supports or opposes a ballot measure, must print or broadcast its name as provided in Gov. Code § 84504 as part of any advertisement or other paid public statement [Gov. Code § 84504(c)]. If candidates or their controlled committees, as a group or individually, meet the contribution thresholds for a person, they must be identified by the controlling candidate's name [Gov. Code § 84504(d)].

[4] Advertisement Involving Independent Expenditures

A broadcast or mass mailing advertisement supporting or opposing a candidate or ballot measure, that is paid for by an independent expenditure, shall include a disclosure statement that identifies both the name of the committee making the independent expenditure and the names of the persons from whom the committee making the independent expenditure has received its two highest cumulative contributions of $50,000 or more during the 12-month period prior to the expenditure [Gov. Code § 84506(a)]. If the committee can show, on the basis that contributions are spent in the order they are received, that contributions received from the two highest contributors have been used for expenditures unrelated to the candidate or ballot measure featured in the communication, the committee must disclose the contributors making the next largest cumulative contributions of $50,000 or more [Gov. Code § 84506(a)].

If an acronym is used to identify any committee names required by Gov. Code § 84506, the names of any sponsoring organization of the committee must be printed on print advertisements or spoken in broadcast advertisements [Gov. Code § 84506(b)].

An advertisement supporting or opposing a candidate that is paid for by an independent expenditure must include a statement that it was not authorized by a candidate or a committee controlled by a candidate [Gov. Code § 84506.5].

If disclosure of two major donors is required by Gov. Code §§ 84503 and 84506, the committee must disclose, in addition to the committee name, only its highest major contributor in any advertisement which is:

- An electronic broadcast of 15 seconds or less [Gov. Code § 84508(a)], or

- A newspaper, magazine, or other public print media advertisement that is 20 square inches or less [Gov. Code § 84508(b)].

[5] Additional Requirements Concerning Committees

In addition to the requirements of Gov. Code §§ 84503 [see [3], above], 84504 [see [3], above], and 84506 and 84506.5 [see [4], above], the committee placing the advertisement, or persons acting in concert with that committee, are prohibited from creating or using a noncandidate controlled committee or a nonsponsored committee to avoid, or that results in the avoidance of, the disclosure of any individual, industry, business entity, controlled committee, or sponsored committee as a major funding source [Gov. Code § 84505].

[6] Disclosure Format

Any disclosure statement required by Gov. Code, tit. 9, ch. 4, art. 5 (commencing with Gov. Code § 84501) must be printed clearly and legibly in no less than 10-point type and in a conspicuous manner as defined by the commission or, if the communication is broadcast, the information must be spoken so as to be clearly audible and understood by the intended public and otherwise appropriately conveyed for the hearing impaired [Gov. Code § 84507; see § 242.93[3]].

[7] Amended Campaign Statements

When a committee files an amended campaign statement under Gov. Code § 81004.5, the committee must change its advertisements to reflect the changed disclosure information [Gov. Code § 84509].

[8] Individual Appearing in Advertisement

A committee that makes an expenditure of $5,000 or more to an individual for his or her appearance in an advertisement to support or oppose the qualification, passage or defeat of a ballot measure must file a report within 10 days of the expenditure. The report must identify the measure, the date of the expenditure, the name of the recipient, and the amount expended [Gov. Code § 84511(a)]. The advertisement must include the statement "(spokesperson's name) is being paid by this campaign or its donors" in highly visible roman font shown continuously if the advertisement consists of printed or televised material, or spoken in a clearly audible format if the advertisement is a radio broadcast or telephone message [Gov. Code § 84511(b)].

[9] Enforcement

In addition to the remedies provided for in Gov. Code, tit. 9, ch. 11 (commencing with Gov. Code § 91000), any person who violates Gov. Code, tit. 9, ch. 4, art. 5 (commencing with Gov. Code § 84501, see [1]-[8], above) is liable in a civil or administrative action brought by the commission or any person for a fine up to three times the cost of the advertisement, including placement costs [Gov. Code § 84510(a)]. The remedies provided in Gov. Code § 84510(a) also apply to any person who purposely causes any other person to violate any provision of Gov. Code, tit. 9, ch. 4, art. 5 or who aids and abets any other person in a violation [Gov. Code § 84510(b)].

If a judgment is entered against the defendant or defendants in an action brought under Gov. Code § 84510, the plaintiff receives 50 percent of the amount recovered. The remaining 50 percent must be deposited in the State's General Fund. In an action brought by a local civil prosecutor, 50 percent must be deposited in the account of the agency bringing the action and the often 50 percent must be paid to the State's General Fund [Gov. Code § 84510(c)].

Lobbying firms [see Gov. Code § 82038.5; see also § 242.21[8][c]] and lobbyist employers who employ one or more lobbyists [see Gov. Code § 82039.5(a)] must register with the Secretary of State no later than 10 days after qualifying as lobbying firms or lobbyist employers [Gov. Code §§ 86100(b), (c), 86101]. Individual lobbyists [*see Gov. But lobbying firms, lobbyist employers, and individual lobbyists that cease, at the close of a regular session of the Legislature, all activity that required registration or certification are not required to file notice of termination [Gov. Code § 86107(a), (b)]. Lobbyists and lobbying firms remain subject to *Gov. which the lobbyist or lobbying firm ceased all activity that required certification or registration [Gov. Code § 86107(c)].

All information listed on any registration statement and on any amendment, renewal, or notice of termination must be printed by the Secretary of State and made public within 30 days of filing [*Gov. § 242.62 Periodic Reports

[1] Lobbyists

Each lobbyist must complete a periodic report that contains the following:

(1) Any expense incurred, or payment made or arranged by the lobbyist, that benefits, in whole or in part, any elective state official, legislative official, agency official, state candidate, or member of the immediate family of one of these individuals. These expenses and payments include gifts, honoraria, consulting fees, salaries, and any other form of compensation except campaign contributions [Gov. Code §§ 86111(a), 86113(a)(1)].

(2) All contributions of $100 or more made or delivered by the lobbyist to any elected state officer or state candidate during the reporting period [Gov. Code § 86113(a)(2)].

[2] Lobbying Firms

Lobbying firms must file periodic reports containing all of the following:

(1) The name, address, and telephone number of the lobbying firm, each person contracting with the firm for lobbying services, and each lobbying firm subcontracting with the reporting firm for lobbying services [Gov. Code § 86114(a)(1), (2), (6)(A)].

(2) A description of the specific lobbying interests of each person contracting with the firm for lobbying services and the total payments received from the person for lobbying services during the reporting period [Gov. Code § 86114(a)(2)].

(3) The total amount of payments received by the lobbying firm for lobbying services during the reporting period [Gov. Code § 86114(a)(3)].

(4) The name of each person for whom another lobbying firm is subcontracted to lobby and the total amount of all payments made to the subcontractor firm [Gov. Code § 86114(a)(6)(B), (C)].

(5) Any expense incurred, or payment made or arranged by the firm, that benefits, in whole or in part, any elective state official, legislative official, agency official, state candidate, or member of the immediate family of one of these individuals. These expenses and payments include those reimbursed by a person contracting with the firm for services. A total of all expenses and payments of the firm and all of its lobbyists must be reported [Gov. Code § 86114(a)(5); see also Gov. Code § 86111].

(6) The date, amount, and name of the recipient of any contribution of $100 or more made by the filer to an elected state officer, state candidate, committee controlled by an elected state officer or state candidate, or committee primarily formed to support these officers or candidates [Gov. Code § 86114(a)(7)].

(7) Any other information required by the Fair Political Practices Commission consistent with the purposes and provisions of Gov. Code § 86100 et seq. [Gov. Code § 86114(a)(8)].

A lobbying firm must also submit a periodic report completed by each lobbyist in its firm pursuant to Gov. Code § 86113 (reporting requirements for lobbyists) [Gov. Code § 86114(a)(4); see [1], above].

Lobbying firms as defined in Gov. Code § 82038.5(a)(2) must, in addition to this information, report the name and title of each partner, owner, officer, and employee of the firm who, on at least five separate occasions during the reporting period, engaged in direct communication with any elective state, legislative, or agency official for the purpose of influencing legislative or administrative action on behalf of a person who contracts with the firm for lobbying services. This reporting requirement does not include individuals whose actions were purely clerical [Gov. Code § 86114(b)].

[3] Lobbyist Employers and Nonlobbyists

Subject to the exceptions listed in Gov. Code § 86300 (certain elected officials, state employees, news personnel, and churches or religious societies), the following persons must file periodic reports:

(1) Any lobbyist employer under Gov. Code § 82039.5 [Gov. Code § 86115(a); see also § 242.21[8][b]]; and

(2) Any person who directly or indirectly makes payments, in any calendar quarter, of $5,000 or more in value to influence legislative or administrative action, unless all of the payments directly or indirectly benefit any elective state official, legislative official, or agency official, or immediate family member of any of these officials [Gov. Code §§ 86115(b), 82045(c)].

Periodic reports by lobbyist employers and persons other than lobbyists must contain information similar to the data required in reports by lobbyists and lobbying firms [see Gov. Code §§ 86116, 86116.5].

[4] Signature and Verification

All reports and statements filed under the Political Reform Act of 1974 must be signed under penalty of perjury and verified by the filer. The verification must state that the filer has used all reasonable diligence preparing the report or statement and that to the best of his or her knowledge the document is true and complete [Gov. Code § 81004(a)].

[5] Filing Reports

The original of a lobbyist's periodic report, required by Gov. Code § 86113, must be provided to the lobbyist's lobbying firm or lobbyist employer within two weeks following the end of each calendar quarter [Gov. Code § 86113(b)].

The original and one copy of reports required by Gov. Code §§ 86114 (lobbying firms), 86116 (lobbyist employers and others) must be filed with the Secretary of State during the month following each calendar quarter [Gov. Code §§ 86117(a), 86118]. The period covered by the first report required by Gov. Code §§ 86114, 86116 and 86116.5 begins with the first day of the calendar quarter in which the filer first registers or qualifies and extends through the last day of the quarter prior to the month in which the report is filed [Gov. Code § 86117(b)]. After that, the period covered extends from the first day of January of each new biennial legislative session through the last day of the calendar quarter prior to the month in which the report is filed [Gov. Code § 86117(a)].

The report for a given period must not include any information reported in previous reports filed by the same person, but when total amounts are required to be reported, totals for both the period covered by the statement and the entire legislative session to date must be reported [Gov. Code § 86117(a)]. On the first report a person is required to file, the total amount must be stated for the entire calendar quarter covered by the first report [Gov. Code § 86117(b)].

Lobbyists and lobbying firms may not perform the following acts [Gov. Code § 86205]:

(1) Do anything with the purpose of placing any elected state officer, legislative official, agency official, or state candidate under personal obligation to the lobbyist, the lobbying firm, or the lobbyist's or the firm's employer;

(3) Cause or influence the introduction of any bill or amendment thereto for the purpose of thereafter being employed to secure its passage or defeat;

(4) Attempt to create a fictitious appearance of public favor or disfavor of any proposed legislative or administrative action or to cause any communication to be sent to any elected state officer, legislative official, agency official, or state candidate in the name of any fictitious person or in the name of any real person, except with the real person's consent;

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
5. Regulation of Lobbying Activities

20-242 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 242.64

§ 242.64 Gifts

[1] Limitations

It is unlawful for a lobbyist or lobbying firm to make gifts to a person aggregating more than $10 in a calendar month, to act as an agent or intermediary in the making of any gift, or to arrange for the making of any gift by any other person [Gov. Code § 86203; see also 2 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 18623, 18630 (extent to which honoraria and home hospitality constitute gifts)]. The term "gift" means a gift made directly or indirectly to a state candidate, an elected state officer, a legislative official, or an official of any agency required to be listed on the registration statement of the lobbying firm or the lobbyist employer of the lobbyist [see Gov. Code § 86201].

This prohibition, before its amendment in 1985 to include lobbying firms, was upheld as not constituting a substantial limitation on petition and speech rights under U.S. Const., amend. I [Fair Political Practices Com. v. Superior Court (1979) 25 Cal. 3d 33, 49, 157 Cal. Rptr. 855, 599 P.2d 46 , cert. denied, 444 U.S. 1049, 100 S. Ct. 740, 62 L. Ed. 2d 736 (1980)].

[2] Disclosures to Gift Beneficiaries

Each person filing a report pursuant to the registration and reporting requirements of Gov. Code § 86100 et seq. is required to provide specified information to each beneficiary of a gift listed within the report [see Gov. Code § 86112.5(a)]. The general categories of persons who are subject to this requirement are persons who are lobbyists, lobbying firms, lobbyist employers, and specified non-lobbyists [see Gov. Code § 86111 et seq.; see also § 242.62[1] -[3]]. The information required to be provided to each beneficiary of a gift listed in the report is (1) the date and amount of each gift reportable by the beneficiary and (2) a description of the goods or services provided to the beneficiary [Gov. Code § 86112.5(a)]. Gov. Code § 86112.5(b) governs the time period within which this information must be provided as well as the manner in which lobbying firms and lobbyist employers may provide it [see Gov. Code § 86112.5(b)].

It appears that if the gift is not reportable by the beneficiary under the provisions of the Political Reform Act of 1974, then the date and amount of the gift need not be provided to the beneficiary [see Gov. Code § 86112.5(a)(1)]. Campaign expenditure and income reporting requirements for individuals and organizations other than lobbyists, lobbyist employers, lobbying firms, and specified non-lobbyists are set forth in Gov. Code § 84100 et seq. Conflict of interest expenditure and income reporting requirements for individuals other than lobbyists, lobbyist employers, lobbying firms, and specified non-lobbyists are set forth in Gov. Code § 87200 et seq. The term "gift" is defined in Gov. Code § 82028 [see [1], above] and does not include campaign contributions required to be reported under Gov. Code § 84100 et seq. [see Gov. Code § 82028(b)(4)].

The remedies provided in Gov. Code § 83100 et seq., which include the enforcement powers of the Fair Political Practices Commission, constitute the exclusive penalty for a violation of this disclosure requirement. The remedies set forth in Gov. Code § 91000 et seq. (enforcement provisions of the Political Reform Act of 1974) do not apply to Gov. Code § 86112.5 [Gov. Code § 86112.5(c)].

§ 242.71 Violations Resulting in Criminal Liability

Any person who knowingly or willfully violates any provision of the Political Reform Act of 1974 is guilty of a misdemeanor [Gov. Code § 91000(a)]. Violations of the Act may also lead to other criminal charges, such as misdemeanor conspiracy and felony perjury [see, e.g., People v. Hedgecock (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 395, 403, 411, 272 Cal. Rptr. 803, 795 P.2d 1260 (former mayor charged with conflict of interest under Gov. Code §§ 87100, 87103, 91000(a), conspiracy under Penal Code § 182, and multiple perjury counts under Penal Code § 118 for violations of both Political Reform Act and local ordinances; perjury conviction reversed when trial court took materiality issue from jury; conspiracy conviction remanded for evidentiary hearing regarding jury misconduct)].

In addition to other penalties provided by law, a fine of up to the greater of $10,000 or three times the amount the person failed to properly report or unlawfully contributed, expended, gave, or received may be imposed, for each violation, on conviction [Gov. Code § 91000(b); see § 242.72].

The penalties and remedies set forth in Gov. Code § 91000 et seq. do not apply to violations of Gov. Code § 86112.5 (disclosure of gift to beneficiary) and Gov. Code § 89510 et seq. (use of campaign funds) [Gov. Code §§ 86112.5(c), 89520; see §§ 242.44[6], 242.64[2]]. For when no criminal penalties apply for violations of Gov. Code § 83116.5 (subjecting violators to enforcement by Fair Political Practices Commission), see § 242.75[2].

§ 242.72 Enforcement of Criminal Provisions

[1] Prosecution

The Attorney General is responsible for enforcing the criminal provisions of the Act with respect to state agencies, lobbyists, and state elections. The district attorney of any county in which a violation occurs has concurrent powers and responsibilities with the Attorney General [Gov. Code § 91001(a)]. In any case in which a district attorney could act as the criminal prosecutor under the Act, the elected city attorney of any charter city may act as the criminal prosecutor with respect to any violations occurring within the city [Gov. Code § 91001.5].

[2] Effect of Conviction

No person convicted of a misdemeanor under the Act may be a candidate for any elective office or act as a lobbyist for a period of four years following the date of the conviction, unless the court specifically determines at the time of sentencing that this prohibition will not apply. A plea of nolo contendere is deemed a conviction for purposes of this prohibition. Any person violating the prohibition is guilty of a felony [Gov. Code § 91002].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
6. Penalties and Remedies for Violations

20-242 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 242.73

§ 242.73 Violations Resulting in Civil or Administrative Liability

[1] Reporting Requirements

As a general rule, any person who intentionally or negligently violates any of the reporting requirements [see Gov. Code §§ 84100 et seq., 86111 et seq.] of the Political Reform Act is liable in a civil action brought by the civil prosecutor or by a person residing within the jurisdiction for an amount not more than the amount or value not properly reported [Gov. Code § 91004; cf. Community Cause v. Boatwright (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 562, 573 n.4, 240 Cal. Rptr. 794 (person who inadvertently violates any of reporting requirements is not liable for damages in civil action under Gov. Code § 91004); see § 242.76; see also §§ 242.130, 242.131].

Civil liability does not result from violations of Gov. Code § 86112.5 (disclosure of gift to beneficiary) or Gov. Code § 89510 et seq. (use of campaign funds) [Gov. Code §§ 86112.5(c), 89520; see §§ 242.44[6], 242.64[2]]. For when civil liability does not result from violations of Gov. Code § 83116.5 (subjecting violators to enforcement by Fair Political Practices Commission), see § 242.75[2].

Any report or statement filed pursuant to the Act may be amended by the filer at any time. Amending an incorrect or incomplete report or statement may be considered as evidence of good faith [Gov. Code § 81004.5].

[2] Late Filing of Report or Statement

As a general rule, if any person files an original statement or report after any deadline imposed by the Political Reform Act, he or she is liable in the amount of $10 per day after the deadline until the statement or report is filed. This liability is in addition to any other penalties or remedies established by the Act. Any such penalties are owed to the officer with whom the statement or report must be filed. The officer need not enforce liability under this provision if he or she determines, on an impartial basis, that the late filing was not willful and that enforcement will not further the purposes of the Act. But if the filing officer has sent specific written notice of the filing requirement, liability may not be waived if a statement or report is not filed within 10 days, or 5 days for a campaign statement required to be filed 12 days before an election, or 30 days for a statement of economic interest (other than a candidate's statement filed under Gov. Code § 87201) after the notice was sent [Gov. Code § 91013(a)]. A similar provision applies when copies of a statement or report are filed late [see Gov. Code § 91013(b)].

Liability for late filing does not result from violations of Gov. Code § 86112.5 (disclosure of gift to beneficiary) or Gov. Code § 89510 et seq. (use of campaign funds) [Gov. Code §§ 86112.5(c), 89520; see §§ 242.44[6], 242.64[2]]. For when liability for late filing does not result from violations of Gov. Code § 83116.5 (subjecting violators to enforcement by Fair Political Practices Commission), see § 242.75[2].

[3] Gift, Contribution, or Expenditure

As a general rule, any person who makes or receives a contribution, gift, or expenditure in violation of specific provisions of the Political Reform Act enumerated in Gov. Code § 91005(a) is liable in a civil action brought by the civil prosecutor or by a person residing within the jurisdiction for an amount up to $1,000 or three times the amount of the unlawful contribution, gift, or expenditure, whichever amount is greater [Gov. Code § 91005(a)]. The following provisions are enumerated [Gov. Code § 91005(a); see § 242.76]:

- Gov. Code § 84300 (limitations on cash campaign contributions and expenditures);
- Gov. Code § 84304 (limitations on anonymous campaign contributions);
- Gov. Code § 86203 (limitations on lobbyists' and lobbying firms' gifts); and
- Gov. Code § 86204 (prohibition on receiving from a lobbyist any contribution or gift made unlawful under Gov. Code § 86203).

This liability does not result from violations of Gov. Code § 86112.5 (disclosure of gift to beneficiary) or Gov. Code § 89510 et seq. (use of campaign funds) [Gov. Code §§ 86112.5(c), 89520; see §§ 242.44[6], 242.64[2]]. For when this liability does not result from violations of Gov. Code § 83116.5 (subjecting violators to enforcement by Fair Political Practices Commission), see § 242.75[2].

[4] Conflict of Interest Code

Any designated employee or public official specified in Gov. Code § 87200 (judges, court commissioners, members of certain commissions and boards, district attorneys, city treasurers, county treasurers, and other state and local officials and administrative officers), except an elected state officer, who realizes an economic benefit from a violation of Gov. Code § 87100 (prohibiting conflicts of interest in general) or from a disqualification provision of a Conflict of Interest Code [see Gov. Code § 87300 et seq.; 2 Cal. Code Reg. § 18750 et seq.] is liable in a civil action brought by the civil prosecutor or by a person residing within the jurisdiction for an amount up to three times the value of the benefit [Gov. Code § 91005(b)].

Any person who violates a provision of Gov. Code § 87200 et seq. (financial disclosure requirements applicable to government officeholders and candidates for office), or Gov. Code § 87300 et seq. (procedure for state agency adoption and promulgation of conflict of interest codes), or who violates Gov. Code § 87450 (restrictions in participation of state officers in decisions relating to contracts) is subject to discipline, including dismissal, by his or her agency consistent with any applicable civil service or other personnel laws, regulations, and procedures [Gov. Code § 91003.5].

For discussion and forms pertaining to the conflict of interest provisions of the Political Reform Act, see Ch. 469, Public Entities and Officers: Conflicts of Interest .

[5] Violations for Which No Specific Civil Penalty Is Provided

As a general rule, any person who violates any provision of the Political Reform Act for which no specific civil penalty is provided is liable in a civil action brought by the Fair Political Practices Commission or the district attorney pursuant to Gov. Code § 91001(b), or the elected city attorney pursuant to Gov. Code § 91001.5, for an amount up to $5,000 [Gov. Code § 91005.5]. Violations of Gov. Code §§ 84305 (requirements for mass mailings), 84307 (prohibition against commingling of contributions with recipient's personal funds), and 89001 (prohibition against sending mass mailing at public expense) are excepted from coverage [Gov. Code § 91005.5]. In addition, no civil action alleging a violation of the Political Reform Act may be filed against a person pursuant to Gov. Code § 91005.5 if the criminal prosecutor is maintaining a criminal action against that person under Gov. Code § 91000 [Gov. Code § 91005.5; see also § 242.74[3]].

This liability under Gov. Code § 91005.5 also does not result from violations of Gov. Code § 86112.5 (disclosure of gift to beneficiary) or Gov. Code § 89510 et seq. (use of campaign funds) [Gov. Code §§ 86112.5(c), 89520; see §§ 242.44[6], 242.64[2]]. For when this liability under Gov. Code § 91005.5 does not result from violations of Gov. Code § 83116.5 (subjecting violators to enforcement by Fair Political Practices Commission), see § 242.75[2].

§ 242.74 Procedural Rules Applicable to Civil Enforcement

[1] Statute of Limitations

No civil action alleging a violation in connection with a report or statement [see Gov. Code § 91004] required by Gov. Code § 84100 et seq. may be filed more than four years after an audit could begin as set forth in Gov. Code § 90002(c), or more than one year after the Franchise Tax Board forwards its report to the Commission, pursuant to Gov. Code § 90004, of any audit conducted of the alleged violator, whichever period is less [Gov. Code § 91011(a); see McCauley v. Howard Jarvis Taxpayers Assn. (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 1255, 1260-1261, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 900 ; see also discussion of time for beginning audit or investigation in § 242.76[2][b]].

No civil action alleging a violation of any provisions of the Political Reform Act, other than those described in Gov. Code § 91011(a) [see Gov. Code §§ 91003, 91005], may be filed more than four years after the date the violations occurred [Gov. Code § 91011(b); see McCauley v. Howard Jarvis Taxpayers Assn. (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 1255, 1260-1261, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 900] . Gov. Code § 91011(b) only applies to civil actions. Its four-year general limitation period does not extend to special proceedings such as mandamus petitions [Ching v. San Francisco Bd. of Permit Appeals (1998) 60 Cal. App. 4th 888, 895-896, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 700 (three-year limitation period of Code Civ. Proc. § 338(a) generally applicable to special proceedings under Political Reform Act, but specific 90-day limitation period of former Gov. Code § 65907 (now see Gov. Code § 65009) controls in cases challenging decisions of local board of permit appeals)].

[2] Preferential Treatment of Elections Litigation

Cases involving election proceedings must be given precedence on the court calendar [Code Civ. Proc. § 35]. Appeals in contested election cases will be given preference in hearing in the courts of appeal, and in the Supreme Court when transferred to it [Code Civ. Proc. § 44]. Actions or appeals involving the election of presidential electors have priority over all other civil matters [Elec. Code § 16003]. For further discussion relating to precedence and preference, see Ch. 425, Pretrial Proceedings .

[3] Effect of Order by Fair Political Practices Commission

No civil action may be filed under Gov. Code § 91004, 91005, or 91005.5 with regard to any person for any violation of the Political Reform Act after the Fair Political Practices Commission has issued an order under Gov. Code § 83116 against that person for the same violation [Gov. Code § 91008.5; see § 242.75[6]].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
6. Penalties and Remedies for Violations

20-242 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 242.75

§ 242.75 Enforcement by Fair Political Practices Commission

[1] Powers in General

The Fair Political Practices Commission [see Gov. Code § 83100 et seq.] has primary responsibility for the impartial, effective administration and implementation of the Political Reform Act [Gov. Code § 83111]. Accordingly, the commission may do the following:

- Conduct investigations [Gov. Code § 83115];

- Hold hearings in accordance with the Administrative Procedure Act [Gov. Code § 83116; see Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.];

- Compel the attendance of witnesses and the production of evidence [Gov. Code § 83118; see People v. Pereira (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 1057, 1063-1069, 255 Cal. Rptr. 285 (individual may be liable under Penal Code §§ 132 (offering false evidence) and 134 (preparing false version of document) in responding to subpoena duces tecum issued by FPPC], provide immunity to witnesses compelled to testify [Gov. Code § 83119]; and

- Impose orders and penalties with regard to violations of the Political Reform Act [see Gov. Code § 83116].

The commission, however, cannot take any action to implement the Political Reform Act of 1974 that would (1) abridge constitutional guarantees of freedom of speech, (2) deny any person of life, liberty, or property without due process of law, or (3) deny any person the equal protection of the laws [Gov. Code § 83111.5].

[2] Persons Subject to Liability

Any person who violates any provision of the Political Reform Act, who purposely or negligently causes any other person to violate any provision of the Act, or who aids and abets any other person in the violation of any provision of the Act is liable under the provisions of Gov. Code, tit. 9, ch. 3 (commencing with Gov. Code § 83100) for the commission's implementation and enforcement of the Act [Gov. Code § 83116.5]. Liability under Gov. Code § 83116.5, however, applies only to persons who have filing or reporting obligations under the Act, or who are compensated for services involving the planning, organizing, or directing of any activity regulated or required by the Act. Furthermore, a violation under *Gov. Code § 83116.5*will not constitute an additional violation under Gov. Code, tit. 9, ch. 11 (commencing with Gov. Code § 91000) [Gov. Code § 83116.5].

Gov. Code § 83116.5, by expressly providing that violations of the section do not constitute an additional violation under Chapter 11, connotes that any independent civil or criminal sanctions available when the section was added in 1984 would continue unaffected. The purpose of Gov. Code § 83116.5 was to broaden the reach of the Political Reform Act. The Legislature sought to expand the class of persons that the commission could hold accountable for reporting violations under the Act [People v. Snyder (2000) 22 Cal. 4th 304, 307-310, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 734, 992 P.2d 1102] . This expansion of coverage operates in two ways [People v. Snyder (2000) 22 Cal. 4th 304, 310, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 734, 992 P.2d 1102] :

- First, it imposes administrative liability on persons not previously subject to regulation or penalties under the act, i.e., those persons, such as campaign managers who are compensated for services involving the planning, organization, or directing of any activity regulated or required by the Act. Although neither civil nor criminal sanctions apply, such persons come within the administrative control of the commission.

- Second, Gov. Code § 83116.5 sanctions conduct not previously subject to regulation or penalties under the Act, i.e., the statute imposes administrative liability on any person who purposely or negligently causes any other person to violate any provisions of the Act, or who aids and abets any other person in violation of any provisions of the Act. Those already having direct reporting obligations are now also subject to administrative liability if they indirectly cause others to engage in prohibited activity.

Thus, under Gov. Code § 83116.5, administrative sanctions, but not additional civil or criminal liability, may be imposed on persons with reporting obligations who engage in newly prohibited conduct--aiding and abetting or negligently causing violation--as well as on persons newly regulated by the Act--those such as campaign managers otherwise compensated for services involving filing and reporting activities. There is no basis for concluding that in so amending the Act the Legislature intended to affect liability outside these circumstances [People v. Snyder (2000) 22 Cal. 4th 304, 310, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 734, 992 P.2d 1102 (decided under repealed Gov. Code § 83116.5 which was reenacted in substantially same language by Prop. 34; lobbyist was subject to criminal penalties under Gov. Code § 91000(a) for making political contributions in false name in violation of Gov. Code § 84301)].

The FPPC has authority to bring suit against an Indian tribe in enforcing the Political Reform Act. Allowing a tribe immunity from suit in this context would allow tribal members to participate in elections and make campaign contributions using the tribal organization, unfettered by regulations designed to ensure the system's integrity. Allowing tribal members to participate in the state electoral process while leaving the state powerless to effectively guard against political corruption would have put the state in an untenable and indefensible position, in light of the constitutionally significant importance of the state's ability to provide a transparent election process with rules applying equally to all parties in the electoral fray [Agua Caliente Band of Cahuilla Indians v. Superior Court (2007) 40 Cal. 4th 239, 259, 52 Cal. Rptr. 3d 659] .

[3] Investigations

[a] Initiation and Procedures

On the sworn complaint [see 2 Cal. Code Reg. § 18360 (governing contents of formal complaints)] of any person or on its own initiative, the commission must investigate possible violations of the Political Reform Act relating to any agency, official, election, lobbyist, or legislative or administrative action [Gov. Code § 83115]. The commission has the authority to determine whether alleged violations should be adjudicated in administrative hearings pursuant to the Administrative Procedure Act (Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.) or in civil litigation [see 2 Cal. Code Reg. § 18361.2].

When the commission decides to proceed by administrative adjudication, it must comply with Gov. Code §§ 83115.5 (notification to alleged violator with a summary of evidence) and 83116 (noticed hearing on a finding of probable cause for a violation) [see 2 Cal. Code Reg. § 18361.4; see also [5], below]. If the commission wishes to bring a civil action that could be brought by a voter or resident of the jurisdiction [see Gov. Code §§ 91004, 91005; see also § 242.73[1], [3]], a written authorization from the appropriate district attorney must be obtained [Gov. Code § 91001(b)].

[b] Notification of Action or Nonaction on Complaint

Within 14 days after receipt of a complaint under Gov. Code § 83115, the commission must notify in writing the person who made the complaint of the action, if any, the commission has taken or plans to take on the complaint, together with the reasons for the action or nonaction. If no decision has been made within 14 days, the complainant must be notified of the reasons for the delay and must subsequently receive notification of the commission's plans for action or nonaction [Gov. Code § 83115; see 2 Cal. Code Reg. § 18362 (confidentiality of information in complaints)].

[4] Probable Cause for Violation

No finding of probable cause to believe the Political Reform Act has been violated may be made by the commission unless, at least 21 days before the commission's consideration of an alleged violation, notification of the violation is given to the alleged violator. The notification must be provided by service of process or registered mail with return receipt requested. The alleged violator must be provided with a summary of the evidence, and must be informed of his or her right to be present in person and represented by counsel at any proceeding of the commission held to consider whether probable cause exists for believing that the person violated the Act. Notice will be deemed made on the date of service, the date the registered mail receipt is signed, or if the registered mail receipt is not signed, the date returned by the post office. A proceeding held for the purpose of considering probable cause must be private unless the alleged violator files a written request that it be public [Gov. Code § 83115.5].

[5] Hearing on Complaint

If the commission determines that there is probable cause for believing the Act has been violated, it may hold a hearing to determine if the violation has occurred. Notice must be given and the hearing must be conducted in accordance with the Administrative Procedure Act (Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.). The commission has all of the powers granted by that Act [Gov. Code § 83116]. Regulations pertaining to commission investigations and enforcement proceedings are contained in 2 Cal. Code Reg. § 18360 et seq. For further discussion and forms pertaining to investigations and trials by administrative agencies, see Ch. 471, Investigations by Public Agencies , and Ch. 473, Public Agency Adjudication , et seq.

[6] Commission Action Following Hearing

If the commission determines on the basis of the hearing that a violation has occurred, it must issue an order that may require the violator to do all or any of the following [Gov. Code § 83116]:

- Cease and desist from violating the Act;
- File any reports, statements, or other documents or information required by the Act; and
- Pay a monetary penalty of up to $5,000 for each violation to the state's General Fund.

When the commission determines that no violation has occurred, it must publish a declaration so stating [Gov. Code § 83116].

Whenever the commission rejects an administrative law judge's decision pursuant to Gov. Code § 11517, the commission must state the reasons for the rejection in writing [Gov. Code § 83116.3].

[7] Judicial Review

[a] Petition of Interested Person

An interested person may seek judicial review of any action of the commission [Gov. Code § 83120]. The commission is an agency for purposes of the Administrative Procedure Act [see Gov. Code §§ 11500(a), 11501(a)], under which judicial review may be had by filing a petition for a writ of mandate [Gov. Code § 11523; see Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5; see also § 242.130 (form of petition for writ of mandate to review decision of commission)].

The term "interested person" in Gov. Code § 83120 has not been defined by statute or judicial decision. The term "beneficially interested" for purposes of permitting mandate proceedings [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1086] includes anyone who participated in the administrative trial [see Bodinson Mfg. Co. v. California E. Com. (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 321, 330, 109 P.2d 935] . If the person directly affected by an administrative decision is a member of an organization and the decision affects the person with respect to his or her activities as a member, the organization is beneficially interested in issuance of a writ and may seek review [see International Assn. of Fire Fighters v. City of Palo Alto (1963) 60 Cal. 2d 295, 298, 32 Cal. Rptr. 842, 384 P.2d 170 ; Residents of Beverly Glen, Inc. v. City of Los Angeles (1973) 34 Cal. App. 3d 117, 121-130, 109 Cal. Rptr. 724] [.

Thus, it appears that the following persons or groups would be entitled to judicial review of the commission's action:

- A person found by the commission to be in violation of the act;
- A person who filed a formal complaint that resulted in commission action or inaction;
- A committee [see Gov. Code § 82013 ("committee" defined)] or controlled committee [see Gov. Code § 82016 ("controlled committee" defined)]; or
- A candidate or state measure proponent having direct or indirect control of a committee [see Gov. Code § 82016].

The commission action being reviewed must be final [Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5; see § 242.130 (form of petition for writ of mandate to review decision of commission)]. Courts enforce compliance with the finality requirement by applying the doctrine of exhaustion of administrative remedies [see discussion in Ch. 474, Availability of Review of Agency Decisions, § 474.13]. For discussion and forms pertaining to judicial review of agency decisions by administrative mandate proceedings under Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5, see Ch. 474, Availability of Review of Agency Decisions , through Ch. 474C, Procedures in Reviewing Agency Decisions .

[b] Preference on Court Docket

When judicial review of a commission action relating to a pending election is being sought, the matter must be advanced on the docket of the court and put ahead of other actions. The court may, consistent with due process of law, shorten deadlines and take other steps necessary to permit a timely decision [Gov. Code § 83121].

§ 242.76 Action for Damages by Private Litigant

[1] Availability

A person residing within the jurisdiction may bring a civil action for damages for violations of reporting requirements or certain restrictions on contributions, gifts, and expenditures [see Gov. Code §§ 91004, 91005(a), discussed in § 242.73[1], [3]; see also §§ 242.131, 242.132 (form of request to civil prosecutor to commence civil action for violations of Political Reform Act and form of complaint for damages for violation of Political Reform Act by private litigant)].

A civil action by a private litigant is not available if an order has been issued by the Fair Political Practices Commission for the same violation [see Gov. Code § 91008.5; see also § 242.74[3]]. Additionally, the remedies set forth in Gov. Code § 91000 et seq. do not apply to violations of Gov. Code § 86112.5 (disclosure of gift to beneficiary) or Gov. Code § 89510 et seq. (use of campaign funds) [Gov. Code §§ 86112.5(c), 89520; see §§ 242.44[6], 242.64[2]]. For when a civil action under Gov. Code §§ 91004 and 91005 is not available for violations of Gov. Code § 83116.5 (subjecting violators to enforcement by Fair Political Practices Commission), see § 242.75[2].

[2] Request to Civil Prosecutor Before Filing

[a] In General

Before filing a civil action pursuant to Gov. Code §§ 91004 and 91005, a person must file with the civil prosecutor a written request for the civil prosecutor to commence the action. The request must include a statement of the grounds for believing a cause of action exists [Gov. Code § 91007(a); see § 242.131 (form of request)].

The designation of civil prosecutor varies according to the entity or agency involved in enforcement. The civil prosecutor is the Fair Political Practices Commission with respect to the state or any state agency, except itself. The Attorney General is the civil prosecutor with respect to the commission. The district attorneys are the civil prosecutors with respect to any other agency [Gov. Code § 91001(b)]. In any case in which a district attorney could act as the civil prosecutor under the Act, the elected city attorney of any charter city may act as the civil prosecutor with respect to any violations occurring within the city [Gov. Code § 91001.5].

[b] Requests Regarding Campaign Statements or Reports

No request to the civil prosecutor pursuant to Gov. Code § 91007(a) may be made or filed in connection with a report or statement required by Gov. Code § 84100 et seq. (campaign statements and reports) until the time when an audit and investigation could be begun under Gov. Code § 90002(c) (audit or investigation may not begin until after last date for filing first report or statement following general, runoff, or special election) [Gov. Code § 91010].

[c] Time for Reply

The civil prosecutor must respond to the person in writing, indicating whether he or she intends to file a civil action [Gov. Code § 91007(a)]. If the civil prosecutor responds in the affirmative and files suit within 120 days from receipt of the written request to commence the action, no other action may be brought unless the action brought by the civil prosecutor is dismissed without prejudice as provided in Gov. Code § 91008 (dismissal of pending action without prejudice to any other action for plaintiff's failure to proceed diligently and in good faith) [Gov. Code § 91007(a)(1); see McCauley v. Howard Jarvis Taxpayers Assn. (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 1255, 1260, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 900] .

If the civil prosecutor responds in the negative within 120 days from receipt of the written request to commence the action, the person requesting the action may proceed to file a civil action on receipt of the response from the civil prosecutor. Failure of the civil prosecutor under Gov. Code § 91007(a)(2) to respond within 120 days is treated as a negative written response on the 120th day [Gov. Code § 91007(a)(2)].

Thus, a private litigant may proceed with an action under the following circumstances: (1) the civil prosecutor responds in the affirmative but fails to suit within the required time, (2) the civil prosecutor responds by indicating that he or she does not intend to file an action, (3) the civil prosecutor fails to respond in the required time, or (4) an action by the civil prosecutor is dismissed without prejudice to any other action for failure to proceed diligently and in good faith [see Gov. Code §§ 91007(a), 91008; see also § 242.132 (form of complaint by private litigant)].

[d] Tolling Period For Commencing Action

The time period within which a civil action must be commenced, as set forth in Gov. Code § 91011 [see § 242.74], is tolled from the date of receipt by the civil prosecutor of the written request to either the date the civil action is dismissed without prejudice, or the date of receipt by the person of the negative response from the civil prosecutor, but only for a civil action brought by the person who requested the civil prosecutor to commence the action [Gov. Code § 91700(a)(3)].

[3] Notice to Commission When Filing

Any person filing a complaint, cross complaint, or other initial pleading in an action for injunctive relief under Gov. Code § 91003 (enjoining violations of or compelling compliance with the Act), or actions for damages under Gov. Code § 91004 (reporting requirement violations), 91005 (violation of restrictions on contributions, gifts, and expenditures, and for conflict of interest violations), or 91005.5 (violations of provisions of the Act for which no specific civil penalty is provided) must, within 10 days of filing, serve on the Fair Political Practices Commission either a copy of the complaint, cross complaint, or other initial pleading, or a notice containing all of the following provisions [Gov. Code § 91007(b)]:

- The full title and number of the case;
- The court in which the case is pending;

- The name and address of the attorney for the person filing; and
- A statement that the case raises issues under the Political Reform Act of 1974.

Failure to so notify the commission is not grounds for dismissal of the complaint, cross complaint, or other initial pleading [Gov. Code § 91007(c)].

[4] Determining Liability and Apportioning Damages

The issues of (1) whether a violation is inadvertent, negligent, or deliberate; and (2) the presence or absence of good faith must be considered in applying the remedies and sanctions of the Political Reform Act [Gov. Code § 91001(c); see Thirteen Committee v. Weinreb (1985) 168 Cal. App. 3d 528, 536, 537, 214 Cal. Rptr. 297 (evidence of candidate's subjective belief is sufficient to support finding that violation was inadvertent or in good faith under Gov. Code § 91001(c))]. In determining the amount of liability under Gov. Code § 91004 or 91005, the court may take into account the seriousness of the violation and the degree of culpability of the defendant [Gov. Code § 91009].

If a judgment is entered against the defendant or defendants in an action brought under Gov. Code § 91004 or 91005, the plaintiff receives 50 percent of the amount recovered. The remaining 50 percent is deposited in the state's General Fund. In an action brought by the civil prosecutor, the entire amount recovered is paid to the general fund or treasury of the jurisdiction [Gov. Code § 91009].

[5] Joint and Several Liability

If two or more persons are responsible for any violation, they are jointly and severally liable [Gov. Code § 91006].

[6] Multiple Actions for Damages

Not more than one judgment on the merits with respect to any violation may be obtained under Gov. Code §§ 91004 and 91005. Actions brought for the same violation have precedence for purposes of trial in order of the time filed. Such actions must be dismissed once judgment has been entered or a settlement approved by the court in a previously filed action [Gov. Code § 91008].

The court may dismiss a pending action without prejudice to any other action for failure of the plaintiff to proceed diligently and in good faith. The action may be dismissed on motion of the civil prosecutor or any plaintiff in an action based on the same violation [Gov. Code § 91008; see [2][c], above].

[7] Security for Costs

On motion of any party, the court must require a private plaintiff to post a bond in a reasonable amount at any stage of the litigation to guarantee payment of costs [Gov. Code § 91012; see also Dunn v. Jurupa Unified School Dist. (2000) 79 Cal. App. 4th 957, 960-961, 94 Cal. Rptr. 2d 529 (although provision of security for payment of costs under Gov. Code § 91012 could not be ordered in favor of agency, individual member of school board entitled to security posting under § 91012 even though agency provided defense)]. This provision is not a violation of due process when interpreted to require a hearing at which the trial court may make a determination of the probable merit of the lawsuit and may set the amount of the undertaking based on the reasonable costs to the defendant and the probability that the lawsuit will be successful [see Rhodes v. Superior Court (1979) 90 Cal. App. 3d 484, 489, 153 Cal. Rptr. 495] . Nothing in Gov. Code § 91012, however, requires the trial court to take the plaintiff's means into consideration in determining whether to require a bond [Dunn v. Jurupa Unified School Dist. (2000) 79 Cal. App. 4th 957, 963, 94 Cal. Rptr. 2d 529] . For further discussion pertaining to security for costs, see Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees, § 174.90 et seq.

[8] Award of Costs and Attorney's Fees

The court may award litigation costs, including reasonable attorney's fees, to a plaintiff or defendant, other than an agency, who prevails in any action authorized by the Political Reform Act [Gov. Code § 91012; see Dunn v. Jurupa Unified School Dist. (2000) 79 Cal. App. 4th 957, 961, 94 Cal. Rptr. 2d 529 (although agency precluded from recovering its costs and attorney fees under Gov. Code. § 91012, that section does not prohibit individual school board member from recovering costs including attorney fees even though agency provides individual's defense); see also Gov. Code §§ 91003, 91004, 91005].

A voluntary dismissal by a district attorney of a civil lawsuit for injunctive relief under the Political Reform Act does not entitle the defendants to attorneys' fees as prevailing parties [see People v. Roger Hedgecock for Mayor Com. (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 810, 812, 228 Cal. Rptr. 424] . Prevailing defendants in actions under the Political Reform Act may only be awarded attorney's fees if the suit against them was frivolous, unreasonable, or without foundation [Community Cause v. Boatwright (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 562, 575, 576, 240 Cal. Rptr. 794 ; People v. Roger Hedgecock for Mayor Com. (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 810, 815, 228 Cal. Rptr. 424] .

An award of attorney's fees may not be denied solely on the ground that a violation was made inadvertently or in good faith [Thirteen Committee v. Weinreb (1985) 168 Cal. App. 3d 528, 537, 538, 214 Cal. Rptr. 297] .

§ 242.77 Action for Injunctive Relief by Private Litigant

[1] Availability

Any person residing in the jurisdiction may sue for injunctive relief to enjoin violations of or to compel compliance with the Political Reform Act [Gov. Code § 91003(a); see § 242.133 (form of complaint for injunctive relief)].

This enforcement action is not available for violations of Gov. Code § 86112.5 (disclosure of gift to beneficiary) or Gov. Code § 89510 et seq. (use of campaign funds) [Gov. Code §§ 86112.5(c), 89520; see §§ 242.44[6], 242.64[2]]. For when this enforcement action is not be available for violations of Gov. Code § 83116.5 (subjecting violators to enforcement by Fair Political Practices Commission), see § 242.75[2].

[2] Conflict of Interest Violations

On a preliminary showing that a violation of certain conflict of interest provisions has occurred, the court may restrain the execution of any official action in relation to which a violation has occurred, pending final adjudication [Gov. Code § 91003(b); see § 242.73[4]]. This provision applies to violations of Gov. Code § 87100 et seq. (prohibiting participation in or influence over governmental decision by public official with financial interest), Gov. Code § 87400 et seq. (restricting specified activities of former state officers and employees), and Gov. Code § 87450 (prohibiting state administrative officials from entering into specified contracts), or to violations of a disqualification provision of a Conflict of Interest Code (see Gov. Code § 87300 et seq.). If it is ultimately determined that a violation has occurred and that the official action might not otherwise have been taken or approved, the court may set the official action aside as void [Gov. Code § 91003(b)].

Official actions covered by Gov. Code § 91003(b) include orders, permits, resolutions, and contracts, but do not include the enactment of any state legislation. In considering whether to grant preliminary or permanent relief, the court must accord due weight to any injury that may be suffered by innocent persons relying on the official action [Gov. Code § 91003(b)].

Gov. Code § 91001(a) authorizes injunctive relief against future conduct by an official which would violate Gov. Code § 87000 independently of whether an official action taken as a result of the unlawful conduct should be set aside under Gov. Code § 91003(b) [City of Vernon v. Central Basin Mun. Water Dist. (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 508, 517, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 650 (trial court did not abuse discretion in declining to issue injunction when plaintiff did not show reasonable probability that acts complained of would recur)].

For additional discussion of conflicts of interest under the Political Reform Act and a form of complaint for injunctive relief under Gov. Code § 91003(b), see Ch. 469, Public Entities and Officers: Conflicts of Interest .

[3] Prior Complaint With Commission

The court may in its discretion require any plaintiff, other than the Fair Political Practices Commission, to file a complaint with the commission prior to seeking injunctive relief [Gov. Code § 91003(a)].

[4] Costs and Attorney's Fees to Prevailing Party

The court may award to a prevailing plaintiff or defendant his or her costs of litigation, including reasonable attorney's fees [Gov. Code § 91003(a)].

The civil prosecutor [see § 242.76[2]] is primarily responsible for enforcement of the civil penalties and remedies of the Act. The civil prosecutor may bring any civil action under the Act that could be brought by a voter or resident of the jurisdiction [Gov. Code § 91001(b)].

An enforcement action by the civil prosecutor is not available for violations of Gov. Code § 86112.5 (disclosure of gift to beneficiary) or Gov. Code § 89510 et seq. (use of campaign funds) [Gov. Code §§ 86112.5(c), 89520; see §§ 242.44, 242.64[2]]. For when this enforcement action is not be available for violations of *Gov. § 242.79 Civil Action to Recover Penalties and Fees Imposed

In addition to any other available remedies, the commission or filing officer may bring a civil action and obtain a judgment for the purpose of collecting any unpaid monetary penalties, fees, or civil penalties imposed pursuant to the Political Reform Act. This action may be brought in a small claims, municipal, or superior court, depending on the jurisdictional amount, with venue in the county where the penalties or fees were imposed by the commission or filing officer [Gov. Code § 91013.5].

To obtain a judgment under Gov. Code § 91013.5, the commission or filing officer must follow the procedures and rules of evidence applicable in ordinary civil actions and show the following [Gov. Code § 91013.5(1)-(3)]:

- That the monetary penalties, fees, or civil penalties were imposed following the procedures set forth in the Act and implementing regulations;

- That the defendant or defendants in the action were notified, by actual or constructive notice, of the imposition of the monetary penalties, fees, or civil penalties; and

- That a demand for payment has been made by the commission or the filing officer and full payment has not been received.

§ 242.80 Defenses to Enforcement

[1] Commission Opinion

Any person may request the Fair Political Practices Commission to issue an opinion with respect to his or her duties under the Act. The commission must, within 14 days, either issue the opinion or advise the person who made the request whether an opinion will be issued. No person who acts in good faith based on an opinion issued to him or her by the commission is subject to criminal or civil penalties for the actions. But the material facts must have been stated in the opinion request in order for this defense to apply [Gov. Code § 83114(a); see 2 Cal. Code Reg. § 18320 et seq.].

[2] Written Advice of Commission

Any person may request the commission to provide written advice with respect to the person's duties under the Act. The advice must be provided within 21 working days of the request. This time may be extended for good cause [Gov. Code § 83114(b)].

The written advice is a complete defense in any enforcement proceeding initiated by the commission, and evidence of good faith conduct in any other civil or criminal proceeding, if the requesting person, at least 21 working days prior to the alleged violation, did the following [Gov. Code § 83114(b); see 2 Cal. Code Reg. § 18329]:

- Requested written advice from the commission in good faith.
- Disclosed truthfully all the material facts.
- Committed the acts complained of either in reliance on the advice of the commission or because of the failure of the commission to provide advice within 21 days of the request or later extended time.

20-242 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 242.90

§ 242.90 Scope

This subpart discusses the state constitutional ban on party endorsements of candidates for nonpartisan offices. This subpart also discusses the requirements of the Truth in Endorsements Law (Elec. Code § 20000 et seq.) and the remedies for violation of its provisions (Elec. Code §§ 20006, 20007, 20009), as well as other provisions of the Elections Code, the Civil Code, the Penal Code, and the Government Code, relating to improper campaign conduct. It also discusses the Truth in Political Advertising Act (Elec. Code § 20010).

Related forms include complaints for injunctive relief as follows:

- To restrain dissemination of unlawful campaign material [see § 242.140].
- To restrain unlawful use of an official party name in an election campaign [see § 242.141].
- To restrain unlawful use of a simulated ballot or sample ballot [see § 242.142].
- To restrain unlawful use of an image, picture or photograph concerning a candidate [see § 242.143].
- To enjoin statements and conduct by a candidate pretending to be an incumbent [see § 242.144].

Liability for defamatory campaign advertising or communications is discussed in Ch. 340, Libel and Slander, § 340.10 et seq.; see also § 242.100.

§ 242.91 Governing Law

Endorsement of candidates is governed by Cal. Const., art. II, § 6, and by Elec. Code § 20000 et seq. Injunctions or restraining orders for violations of endorsement laws are provided for by Elec. Code §§ 20006, 20007, and 20009. Provisions concerning, and remedies for, the improper use of a candidates's image, picture or photograph are provided for in Elec. Code § 20010.

Elec. Code § 20200 et seq. governs advertising for the purpose of soliciting campaign funds. Pretending to be an incumbent is prohibited by Elec. Code § 18350, and injunctive relief to restrain someone from pretending to be an incumbent is provided under Elec. Code § 18350. Improper use of unauthorized signatures in campaign advertisements is governed by Civ. Code § 3344.5 and Penal Code § 115.1. Improper use of state resources for campaign activities is governed by Gov. Code § 8314.

State statutes prohibiting unfair competition and false and misleading commercial advertising do not apply to political election campaign practices [O'Connor v. Superior Court (1986) 177 Cal. App. 3d 1013, 1014, 1019-1020, 223 Cal. Rptr. 357 (complaint by incumbent assemblyman against opponent in general election and opponent's campaign consulting firm for damages and injunctive relief under Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17200 et seq. and 17500 et seq., for attribution of false and derogatory statements about and endorsements against plaintiff to politicians and other well-known persons)]. For further discussion, see Ch. 14, Advertising .

Substituted service on a candidate is governed by Elec. Code § 12.

§ 242.92 Purpose of Laws Governing Endorsements

To protect the voting public from deception in political campaigns, the California Legislature has enacted the Truth in Endorsements Law (Elec. Code § 20000 et seq.). The rationale of the law is that the public is entitled to protection from deception in political campaigns in the same manner and for the same reasons that it is entitled to protection from deception by advertisers of commercial products [Elec. Code § 20001(4)]. Civil enforcement of the law's provisions is provided by way of injunctive relief, available to registered voters [Elec. Code §§ 20006, 20009; see Elec. Code § 359 ("voter" defined)]. Penal provisions applicable to violations of the Truth in Endorsements Law are set out in Elec. Code § 18000 et seq.

B. Improper Campaign Conduct

20-242 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 242.93

§ 242.93 Support or Opposition by Convention or Central Committee

[1] Partisan Offices

Former Elec. Code §§ 11702-11705 essentially banned any type of partisan preprimary endorsements. The United States Supreme Court held that this outright ban on partisan preprimary endorsements was unconstitutional as a violation of the First and Fourteenth Amendments [Eu v. San Francisco County Democratic Cent. Comm. (1989) 489 U.S. 214, 229, 109 S. Ct. 1013, 103 L. Ed. 2d 271] . As of January 1, 1995, the Elections Code provisions contrary to the ruling of the United States Supreme Court in Eu v. San Francisco Democratic Com. (1989) 489 U.S. 214, 229, 109 S. Ct. 1013, 103 L. Ed. 2d 271 were repealed by the California Legislature [Cal. Stats. 1994 ch. 1189, §§ 3-6].

[2] Nonpartisan Offices

The state constitution prohibits any political party or party central committee from endorsing, supporting, or opposing a candidate for nonpartisan office [Cal. Const., art. II, § 6(b)]. All judicial, school, county, and city offices are nonpartisan [Cal. Const., art. II, § 6(a)]. To date, the United States Supreme Court has declined to rule on the constitutionality of this prohibition for want of a justiciable controversy [see Renne v. Geary (1991) 501 U.S. 312, 315, 111 S. Ct. 2331, 115 L. Ed 2d 288 (vacating respondents' cause of action challenging Cal. Const., art. II, § 6(b), and remanding to court of appeals with instructions to dismiss without prejudice)]. Typically, local elections officials enforce the ban by deleting from voter pamphlet material, including candidate statements, any references to party or central committee endorsements [see Renne v. Geary (1991) 501 U.S. 312, 329, 111 S. Ct. 2331, 115 L. Ed 2d 288 ; see also White, J., dissenting, at 501 U.S. 312, 111 S. Ct. 2331, 115 L. Ed 2d 288, 306] .

[3] Newspaper Advertisements

Any paid political advertisement that refers to an election or to any candidate for state or local elective office and that is contained in or distributed with a newspaper must bear the words "Paid Political Advertisement," in a typesize and format provided by Elec. Code § 20008. A paid political advertisement within the meaning of this section is limited to published statements paid for by advertisers for purposes of supporting or defeating any person who has filed for an elective state or local office [Elec. Code § 20008; see also § 242.55B[6]].

[4] Action for Injunctive Relief Regarding Identification Requirements

§ 242.94 Simulated Ballots

[1] Prohibited Conduct

Simulated ballots and simulated sample ballots are governed by the Truth in Endorsements Law. Elec. Code § 20009(a) requires that notice be given to voters that such ballots are unofficial. The notice must also identify the person or organization that prepared it [Elec. Code § 20009(a); but cf. McIntyre v. Ohio Elections Comm'n (1995) 514 U.S. 334, 115 S. Ct. 1511, 131 L. Ed. 2d 426, 446 (holding much broader Ohio law that prohibited anonymous campaign literature to be violation of First Amendment; for discussion, see § 242.54[2])]. The notice requirement does not apply to any editorial or other statement appearing in a regularly published newspaper or magazine other than a paid political advertisement [Elec. Code § 20009(a)].

No simulated ballot or simulated sample ballot may bear any official seal or the insignia of any public entity, and no such seal or insignia may appear on the envelope in which it is mailed or otherwise delivered [Elec. Code § 20009(b)].

[2] Action for Injunctive Relief Regarding Simulated Ballots

The superior court, in any case brought before it by any registered voter, may issue a temporary or permanent restraining order or injunction against the publication, printing, circulation, posting, or distribution, of any matter in violation of the requirements and prohibitions contained in *Elec. B. Improper Campaign Conduct

20-242 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 242.95

§ 242.95 False Claim of Support of Committee or Organization

[1] Prohibited Conduct

No candidate or committee acting on behalf of a candidate may represent, in connection with an election campaign, either orally or in campaign material, that the candidate has the support of a committee or an organization that includes as part of its name the name, or any variation on the name, of a qualified political party with which the candidate is not affiliated, together with the words "county committee" or "central committee" or "county" or any other term that might tend to lead voters to the mistaken belief that the candidate has the support of that party's county or state central committee [Elec. Code § 20007].

The prohibition is against misrepresenting the support of a party's central committee only. A candidate, or committee acting on his or her behalf, may represent that the candidate has the support of a committee or a group of voters both affiliated with another political party and identified by the name of that party, if the name of the committee or group also includes the name of the candidate [Elec. Code § 20007]. Thus, there is no prohibition against advertising that a candidate has the support of, for example, "Republicans for Smith" or "Los Angeles Republicans for Smith," when the candidate is not affiliated with the party referred to, as long as there is no representation of support by the party's central committee.

[2] Action by Central Committee Member for Injunctive Relief

Any member of a county or state central committee may commence an action in the superior court to enjoin a violation of Elec. Code § 20007 [Elec. Code § 20007; see § 242.141 (form of complaint for injunctive relief to restrain unlawful use of party name)].

20-242 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 242.96

[1] Prohibited Conduct

Under the Truth in Political Advertising Act (Elec. Code § 20010), except as provided in Elec. Code § 20010(b) (see [3], below), no person, firm, association, corporation, campaign committee, or organization may, with actual malice, produce, distribute, publish, or broadcast campaign material that contains (1) a picture or photograph of a person or persons into which the image of a candidate for public office is superimposed, or (2) a picture or photograph of a candidate for public office into which the image of another person or persons is superimposed [Elec. Code § 20010(a)]. For discussion of when Elec. Code § 20010 does not apply, see [5], below.

[2] Definitions

[a] Campaign Material

Campaign material includes, but is not limited to, any printed matter, advertisement in a newspaper or other periodical, television commercial, or computer image [Elec. Code § 20010(a)].

[b] Actual Malice

For the purposes of Elec. Code § 20010, actual malice means the knowledge that the image of a person has been superimposed on a picture or photograph to create a false representation, or a reckless disregard of whether or not the image of a person has been superimposed on a picture or photograph to create a false representation [Elec. Code § 20010(a)].

[3] Conduct Not Prohibited

A person, firm, association, corporation, campaign committee, or organization may produce, distribute, publish, or broadcast campaign material that contains a picture or photograph prohibited by Elec. Code § 20010(a) (see [1], above) only if each picture in the campaign material contains the following statement in the same point size type as the largest point size type used elsewhere in the campaign material: "This picture is not an accurate representation of fact." The statement must be immediately adjacent to each picture or photograph prohibited by Elec. Code § 20010(a) [Elec. Code § 20010(b)].

[4] Remedies For Prohibited Conduct

Any registered voter may seek a temporary restraining order and an injunction prohibiting the publication, distribution, or broadcasting of any campaign material in violation of Elec. Code § 20010. On filing a petition under Elec. Code § 20010, the plaintiff may obtain a temporary restraining order in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. § 527 [Elec. Code § 20010(c)(1)]. For a form of petition, see § 242.143.

Similarly, a candidate for public office whose likeness appears in a picture or photograph prohibited by Elec. Code § 20010(a) may bring a civil action against any person, firm, association, corporation, campaign committee, or organization that produced, distributed, published, or broadcast the picture or photograph prohibited by Elec. Code § 20010(a). The court may award damages in an amount equal to the cost of producing, distributing, publishing, or broadcasting the campaign material that violated Elec. Code § 20010, in addition to reasonable attorney's fees and costs [Elec. Code § 20010(c)(2)].

[5] Situations When Elec. Code § 20010 Inapplicable

The Truth in Political Advertising Act, (Elec. Code § 20010), does not apply to a holder of a license granted under the Federal Communications Act of 1934 (47 U.S.C. § 151 et seq.) in the performance of the functions for which the license is granted [Elec. Code § 20010(d)(1)].

Similarly, the Truth in Political Advertising Act does not apply to the publisher or an employee of a newspaper, magazine, or other periodical that is published on a regular basis for any material published in that newspaper, magazine, or other periodical [Elec. Code § 20010(d)(2)]. For purposes of Elec. Code § 20010(d)(2), a "newspaper, magazine, or other periodical that is published on a regular basis" does not include any newspaper, magazine, or other periodical that has as its primary purpose the publication of campaign advertising or communications, as defined in Elec. Code § 304 [Elec. Code § 20010(d)(2)].

[2] Action by Candidate for Injunctive Relief

Any person engaging in conduct proscribed by Elec. Code § 18350 may be enjoined in a civil action brought by any candidate for the public office involved [*Elec. § 242.98 Unauthorized Signatures on Campaign Materials

[1] Prohibited Conduct

No person shall publish or cause to be published, with intent to deceive, a campaign advertisement containing a signature that the person knows to be unauthorized [Penal Code § 115.1(b)]. A "campaign advertisement" is any communication directed to voters by means of a mass mailing (Gov. Code § 82041.5), a paid television, radio, or newspaper advertisement, an outdoor advertisement, or any other printed matter if the expenditures for that communication are required to be reported under Gov. Code § 84100 et seq. (campaign finance disclosure requirements of Political Reform Act) [Penal Code § 115.1(c)]. A "signature" is a handwritten or mechanical signature, a copy of a handwritten or mechanical signature, or any representation of a person's name, including a printed or typewritten representation, that would lead a reasonable person to believe that the contents of an advertisement are attributable to the person whose name is depicted [Penal Code § 115.1(g)].

Nothing in Penal Code § 115.1 prohibits a person from publishing or causing to be published a reproduction of all or part of a document containing an actual or authorized signature, provided that the signature so reproduced shall not, with the intent to deceive, be incorporated into another document in a manner that falsely suggests that the person whose signature is reproduced has signed the other document [Penal Code § 115.1(e)]. An authorization to use a signature must be oral or written [Penal Code § 115.1(d)].

[2] Action for Damages by Candidate or Person Whose Signature Is Used

Any person whose signature is used in violation of Penal Code § 115.1(b), and any candidate for elective office whose election or defeat is expressly advocated in any campaign advertisement that violates Penal Code § 115.1(b), has a civil cause of action against any person committing the violation [Civ. Code § 3344.5(a)]. If a mass mailing or other printed matter that violates Penal Code § 115.1(b) expressly advocates the election or defeat of more than one candidate, only a person whose signature is used, and the candidate or candidates to whom the unauthorized signature directly relates, has a civil cause of action under Civ. Code § 3344.5 [Civ. Code § 3344.5(b), (d)].

Any person bringing a cause of action under Civ. Code § 3344.5 may recover damages in an amount of two times the cost of the communication, but not to exceed $50,000, with regard to which the unauthorized signature was used [Civ. Code § 3344.5(c)].

[3] Criminal Penalty

Any knowing or willful violation of Penal Code § 115.1 is a public offense punishable by imprisonment in the state prison or in the county jail, or by a fine not to exceed $50,000, or both [Penal Code § 115.1(f)].

§ 242.99 Improper Use of State Resources

[1] Prohibited Conduct

It is unlawful for any elected state officer, appointee, employee, or consultant to use or permit others to use state resources for a campaign activity, or personal or other purposes that are not authorized by law [Gov. Code § 8314(a)].

[2] Definitions

[a] Personal Purpose

"Personal purpose" means personal enjoyment, private gain or advantage, or outside endeavor not related to state business. It does not include an occasional telephone call, or an incidental and minimal use of state resources, such as equipment or office space, for personal purposes [Gov. Code § 8314(b)(1)].

[b] Campaign Activity

"Campaign activity" means an activity constituting a contribution as defined in Gov. Code § 82015 or an expenditure as defined in Gov. Code § 82025. It does not include the incidental and minimal use of state resources, such as equipment or office space, for campaign purposes, including the referral of unsolicited political mail, telephone calls, and visitors to private political entities [Gov. Code § 8314(b)(2)].

[c] State Resources

"State resources" means any state property or asset, including, but not limited to, state land, buildings, facilities, funds, equipment, supplies, telephones, computers, vehicles, travel, and state-compensated time [Gov. Code § 8314(b)(3)].

[d] Use

"Use" means a use of state resources that is substantial enough to result in a gain or advantage to the user or a loss to the state for which a monetary value may be estimated [Gov. Code § 8314(b)(4)].

[3] Civil Action by Attorney General or Local Prosecutor

Any person who intentionally or negligently violates Gov. Code § 8314 is liable for a civil penalty not to exceed $1,000 for each day on which a violation occurs, plus three times the value of the unlawful use of state resources. The penalty will be assessed and recovered in a civil action brought in the name of the people of the State of California by the Attorney General or by any district attorney or any city attorney of a city having a population in excess of 750,000. If two or more persons are responsible for any violation, they are jointly and severally liable for the penalty [Gov. Code § 8314(c)(1)]. If the action is brought by the Attorney General, the moneys recovered must be paid into the General Fund. If the action is brought by a district attorney, the moneys recovered must be paid to the treasurer of the county in which the judgment was entered. If the action is brought by a city attorney, the moneys recovered must be paid to the treasurer of that city [Gov. Code § 8314(c)(2)].

No civil action alleging a violation of Gov. Code § 8314 may be commenced more than four years after the date the alleged violation occurred [Gov. Code § 8314(c)(3)].

[4] Inapplicability to Public Informational Activities

Nothing in Gov. Code § 8314 prohibits the use of state resources for providing information to the public about the possible effects of any bond issue or other ballot measure on state activities, operations, or policies, provided that (1) the informational activities are otherwise authorized by the constitution or laws of California, and (2) the information constitutes a fair and impartial presentation of relevant facts to aid the electorate in reaching an informed judgment regarding the bond issue or ballot measure [Gov. Code § 8314(d)].

Code § 82041.5*, with intent to deceive the voters, is guilty of a misdemeanor [Elec. Code § 18304(a); see Penal Code § 19 (punishment for misdemeanor)].

[2] Evidence of Intent to Deceive

§ 242.100 Defamatory Campaign Advertising or Communications

Campaign advertising is subject to libel and slander causes of action under Elec. Code §§ 20501 and 20502. These sections apply to candidates for state and federal office [Beilenson v. Superior Court (1996) 44 Cal. App. 4th 944, 953, 52 Cal. Rptr. 2d 357] . An action for slander or libel is permitted under Elec. Code § 20501 provided the commission of the slander or libel is willfully and knowingly made [Beilenson v. Superior Court (1996) 44 Cal. App. 4th 944, 953, 52 Cal. Rptr. 2d 357 (plaintiff failed to meet this rigorous standard)].

Under Elec. Code § 20501(a), a candidate or state measure proponent is liable for any slander or libel committed by a committee that is controlled by the candidate or state measure proponent as defined in Gov. Code § 82016 if the candidate or state measure proponent willfully and knowingly directs or permits the libel or slander. Similarly, a person who is a sponsor of a sponsored committee as defined in *Gov. § 242.101 Political Cybersquatting

The "California Political Cyberfraud Abatement Act" [Elec. Code § 18320 et seq.] provides that it is unlawful for a person, with intent to mislead, deceive, or defraud, to commit an act of political cyberfraud, defined as a knowing and willful act concerning a political web site that is committed with the intent to deny a person access to a political web site, deny a person the opportunity to register a domain name for a political web site, or cause a person reasonably to believe that a political web site has been posted by a person other than the person who posted the web site, and cause a reasonable person, after reading the web site, to believe the site actually represents the views of the proponent or opponent of a ballot measure. Political cyberfraud includes, but is not limited to, any of the following acts:

- Intentionally diverting or redirecting access to a political web site to another person's web site by the use of a similar domain name, meta-tags, or other electronic measures [Elec. Code § 18320(c)(1)(A)];

- Intentionally preventing or denying exit from a political web site by the use of frames, hyperlinks, mouse-trapping, pop-up screens, or other electronic measures [Elec. Code § 18320(c)(1)(B)];

- Registering a domain name that is similar to another domain name for a political web site [Elec. Code § 18320(c)(1)(C)]; or

- Intentionally preventing the use of a domain name for a political web site by registering and holding the domain name, or by reselling it to another with the intent of preventing its use, or both [Elec. Code § 18320(c)(1)(D)].

The term "domain name" means any alphanumeric designation that is registered with or assigned by any domain name registrar, domain name registry, or other domain registration authority as part of an electronic address on the Internet [Elec. Code § 18320(c)(2)]. The term "political web site" means a web site that urges or appears to urge the support or opposition of a ballot measure [Elec. Code § 18320(c)(3)].

This Act does not apply to a domain name registrar, registry, or registration authority [Elec. Code § 18321].

In addition to any other remedies available under law, a court may order the transfer of a domain name as part of the relief awarded for a violation of the Act [Elec. Code § 18322].

[1] Financing and Lobbying

[a] Regulation of Campaign Financing

Campaign contribution limits applied on fiscal-year basis unconstitutionally discriminate in favor of incumbents and against challengers by limiting First Amendment expressive and associational rights of challengers and their supporters to contribute to political campaigns. Service Employees International v. Fair Political Practices Commission (9th Cir. 1992) 955 F.2d 1312, 1318-1321 , cert. denied, 505 U.S. 1230, 112 S. Ct. 3056, 112 S. Ct. 3057, 120 L. Ed. 2d 922 (1992)

California Supreme court declined to reform, that is, rewrite, former Gov. Code §§ 85301(a), 85302, 85303(a), (b), and 85304, as enacted by Proposition 73,(now see Gov. Code § 85301 et seq., as enacted by Prop. 34) to conform to constitutional requirements so as to overcome holding in Services Employees of their unconstitutionality. Kopp v. Fair Pol. Practices Com. (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 607, 615-616, 663-671, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 108, 905 P.2d 1248

Gov. Code § 85300 (as enacted by Proposition 73, prohibiting public officers from expending or contributing public moneys to campaign for public office) preempts Sacramento County charter provision enacted by voters to supply partial public financing for candidates for county offices; campaign financing of elections, whether state or local, is matter of statewide concern and thus beyond purview of county regulation. County of Sacramento v. Fair Political Practices Com. (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 687, 689, 271 Cal. Rptr. 802

Expenditures "for political purposes," subject to disclosure under Gov. Code § 82025, includes attorney's fees paid in defamation action that was brought by incumbent candidate against opponent to influence voters through forthright denial of opponent's charges. Thirteen Committee v. Weinreb (1985) 168 Cal. App. 3d 528, 532-536, 214 Cal. Rptr. 297

[b] Political Reform Act of 1974

The FPPC has authority to bring suit against an Indian tribe in enforcing the Political Reform Act. Allowing a tribe immunity from suit in this context would allow tribal members to participate in elections and make campaign contributions using the tribal organization, unfettered by regulations designed to ensure the system's integrity. Allowing tribal members to participate in the state electoral process while leaving the state powerless to effectively guard against political corruption would have put the state in an untenable and indefensible position, in light of the constitutionally significant importance of the state's ability to provide a transparent election process with rules applying equally to all parties in the electoral fray. Agua Caliente Band of Cahuilla Indians v. Superior Court (2007) 40 Cal. 4th 239, 259, 52 Cal. Rptr. 3d 659

Application of Gov. Code § 83116.5 explained; lobbyist held subject to criminal penalties under Gov. Code § 91000(a) for making political contributions in false name in violation of Gov. Code § 84301. People v. Snyder (2000) 22 Cal. 4th 304, 307-310, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 734, 992 P.2d 1102 (decided under repealed Gov. Code § 83116.5 which was reenacted in substantially same language by Prop. 34)

In perjury prosecution based on failure to comply with disclosure provisions of Political Reform Act, materiality is element of offense required to be determined by jury; trial court's action in taking materiality question from jury constitutes reversible error. People v. Hedgecock (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 395, 408, 409, 410, 272 Cal. Rptr. 803, 795 P.2d 1260

Proposition 73 amends Political Reform Act of 1974 to add Gov. Code § 85100 et seq., limiting campaign contributions for all elected state officeholders and prohibiting public funding of elections; although measures were similar and both approved by voters, Proposition 73 is effective and Proposition 68 is inoperative, because Proposition 73 received highest vote and measures were competing and conflicting. Taxpayers to Limit Campaign Spending v. Fair Pol. Practices Com. (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 744, 765, 274 Cal. Rptr. 787, 799 P.2d 1220 (Gov. Code § 85100 et seq. repealed and new Gov. Code § 85100 et seq. added by Prop. 34 in 2000)

Provisions of the Political Reform Act that authorize enforcement actions, on their face, are limited to violations of the Act. Violations of local campaign finance laws that are independent of the Act fall outside the scope of the enforcement mechanisms established under the Act. Major v. Silna (2005) 134 Cal. App. 4th 1485, 1502-1503, 36 Cal. Rptr. 3d 875

The government has the right--and arguably even the duty--to speak on matters that concern the discharge of its responsibilities to its citizens. For example, a city has broad discretion to make public expenditures, subject to the limitations that the expenditure be for a public purpose and not expressly forbidden by law. While a government agency may not spend public funds for a partisan campaign advocating the passage or defeat of a ballot measure, a public agency pursues a proper informational role when it simply gives a fair presentation of the facts. Thus, a city did not make improper government expenditures for communications on an initiative election because in its communications, which analyzed the impact of a tax-relief measure, did not contain words of express advocacy. Vargas v. City of Salinas (2005) 135 Cal. App. 4th 361, 385-387, 37 Cal. Rptr. 3d 506

Power of commission under Code Civ. Proc. § 83112 to adopt, amend, and rescind regulations to carry out purposes and provisions of Political Reform Act of 1974 not affected by Proposition 208; commission may refine term "contribution" to accord with changes in Political Reform Act of 1974 effected by Proposition 208; regulation adopted by Fair Political Practices Commission that excepted from statutory definition of "contribution" payments by sponsoring organization to establish and administer its political action committee (see 2 Cal. Code Reg. § 18215(c)(16)) upheld. Californians for Political Reform Foundation v. Fair Political Practices Com. (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 472, 482-489, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 606

governor, it did not incorporate any reference to a vote, a candidacy, an election, or any other express words of advocacy. Governor Gray Davis Committee v. American Taxpayers Alliance (2002) 102 Cal. App. 4th 449, 471-472, 125 Cal. Rptr. 2d 534

Four-year general limitation period of Gov. Code § 91011(b) applies only to civil actions, not special proceedings such as mandamus petitions; three-year limitation period of Code Civ. Proc. § 338(a) generally applies to special proceedings under Political Reform Act, but specific 90-day limitation period of former Gov. Code § 65907 (now see Gov. Code § 65009) controls over three-year statute of limitations in cases challenging decisions of local board of permit appeals. Ching v. San Francisco Bd. of Permit Appeals (1998) 60 Cal. App. 4th 888, 895-896, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 700

City's litigation expenses incurred in pursuing preelection challenge to constitutionality or legality of local initiative held not reportable expenditures within meaning of Political Reform Act of 1974 (Gov. Code § 81000 et seq.). Yes On Measure A v. City of Lake Forest (1997) 60 Cal. App. 4th 620, 622, 625-626, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 517

County's failure to report expenditures in developing statewide initiative measure for criminal justice reform does not violate Political Reform Act. League of Women Voters v. Countywide Crim. Justice Coordination Com. (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 529, 556-560, 250 Cal. Rptr. 161

Inadvertent violation of reporting requirements of Political Reform Act does not result in liability for damages in civil action under Gov. Code § 91004. Community Cause v. Boatwright (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 562, 573 n.4, 240 Cal. Rptr. 794

Principal investigator is entitled to be present during trial when designated by district attorney bringing action on behalf of public against public official under Political Reform Act, pursuant to Evid. Code § 777(c). People ex rel. Curtis v. Peters (1983) 143 Cal. App. 3d 597, 599-600, 192 Cal. Rptr. 70

Provision prohibiting candidacy for four years on misdemeanor conviction (Gov. Code § 91002) under Political Reform Act is constitutional. People v. Ballard (1980) 104 Cal. App. 3d 757, 764, 164 Cal. Rptr. 81

Gifts of public money in the form of services by state employee are subject to disclosure requirements of Political Reform Act. Fair Political Practices Com. v. Suitt (1979) 90 Cal. App. 3d 125, 132, 153 Cal. Rptr. 311

Public entities are included within definition of "person" in Gov. Code § 82047. Fair Political Practices Com. v. Suitt (1979) 90 Cal. App. 3d 125, 133, 153 Cal. Rptr. 311

[c] Action for Damages by Private Litigant

Only two kinds of defendants are subject to an action under Political Reform Act: governmental agencies and individual governmental officials; Gov. Code § 91012 precludes agency from recovering its costs and attorney fees, but there is no such express exclusion for individual officials; neither is there any provision that individual governmental officials are entitled to award of costs, including attorney fees, only when they have personally incurred such expenses; accordingly, Gov. Code § 91012 does not prohibit individual member of school board from recovering costs, including attorney fees and thus such individual defendant was entitled to have plaintiff post security under Gov. Code § 91012 even though agency was providing his defense; moreover, nothing in Gov. Code § 91012 requires trial court to take plaintiff's means into consideration in determining whether to require bond. Dunn v. Jurupa Unified School Dist. (2000) 79 Cal. App. 4th 957, 960-961, 963, 94 Cal. Rptr. 2d 529

Gov. Code § 91011 four-year statute of limitations barred recovery against private organization formed to pass

Proposition 36 for alleged violation of reporting requirements of Political Reform Act of 1974; amended complaint held not to relate back for purpose of limitation period because different reporting violations by single defendant mentioned in amended complaint but not in original complaint were not part of same general set of facts; reporting violations, given discrete deadlines, are necessarily discrete events themselves, not continual ones. McCauley v. Howard Jarvis Taxpayers Assn. (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 1255, 1258-1263, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 900

Validity of Gov. Code § 91012 requirement of security for costs. Rhodes v. Superior Court (1979) 90 Cal. App. 3d 484, 489, 153 Cal. Rptr. 495

[2] Improper Campaign Conduct

Gov. Code § 84301 contains broad prohibition against what is commonly termed money laundering; lobbyist is subject criminal penalties under Gov. Code § 91000(a) for making political contributions in false name in violation of Gov. Code § 84301. People v. Snyder (2000) 22 Cal. 4th 304, 307-311, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 734, 992 P.2d 1102

County sheriff's distribution of postcards printed by private campaign committee expressly organized to force chief justice of state supreme court to resign or to be defeated in retention election is prohibited partisan political campaign activity rather than proper informational activity, because it involved illegal expenditures of public funds and use of county personnel. California Common Cause v. Duffy (1987) 200 Cal. App. 3d 730, 744-749, 246 Cal. Rptr. 285

Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17200 et seq. (enforcement provisions of unfair competition law) and 17500 et seq. (prohibited advertising practices) are inapplicable to political election campaign practices; Legislature recognizes, in election regulation scheme, that any attempt at wholesale regulation of, or government intrusion into, content of political literature is constitutionally impermissible. O'Connor v. Superior Court (1986) 177 Cal. App. 3d 1013, 1020, 223 Cal. Rptr. 357

Legislator seeking reelection in district expanded by reapportionment is able to claim incumbency in entire district without violating former Elec. Code § 29450(b) [now see Elec. Code 18350(b)]. Friends of Assemblywoman La Follett v. Superior Court (1982) 134 Cal. App. 3d 832, 835, 838, 184 Cal. Rptr. 856

[2] Use of Form

The form of petition for writ of mandate in [1], above, may be used by a person or entity seeking judicial review of a decision by the Fair Political Practices Commission. The person or entity seeking review may be a person who is dissatisfied with the commission's disposition of his or her sworn complaint, or a person or entity found to be in violation of the Political Reform Act of 1974 in the commission's administrative proceeding [see Gov. Code §§ 83115, 83120; see also § 242.75[7]]. For further discussion and forms pertaining to judicial review of administrative actions under Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5, see Ch. 474, Availability of Judicial Review of Agency Decisions , through Ch. 474C, Procedures in Reviewing Agency Decisions .

[3] Procedure When Commission Fails to Act

This form may not be used when the commission, pursuant to an investigation on its own initiative or on a sworn complaint, has elected to take no further action. Under these circumstances, a person seeking additional action by the commission could pursue one of the following courses:

- File a petition for writ of mandate to compel further action [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1086; for discussion and forms pertaining to traditional mandate proceedings to compel agency action, see Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition].

- File a petition for injunctive relief against the alleged violator of the Act to compel compliance [see Gov. Code § 91003; see also § 242.133 (form of complaint against candidate for injunctive relief)].

- Subsequent to filing a written request with the civil prosecutor [see Gov. Code § 91007(a); see also § 242.131 (form of request to civil prosecutor)], file an action for damages for failure to properly disclose or for making or receiving unlawful contributions, expenditures, or gifts [see Gov. Code §§ 91004, 91005; see also § 242.132 (form of complaint by private litigant against candidate for damages)].

[4] Allegations

The form of petition alleges the following:

- The identity and capacity of the petitioner, respondent commission, and if petitioner was the complainant in the administrative proceeding, the real party in interest charged with violating the act (Paragraphs 1-3).

- Petitioner's interest in issuance of the writ (Paragraph 1) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1086; Gov. Code § 83120; see also § 242.75[7]].

- The investigation of alleged violations on the commission's own initiative or on the sworn complaint of petitioner (Paragraph 4) [see Gov. Code § 83115].

- The commission's probable cause hearing and finding of probable cause to believe violations have occurred (Paragraph 5) [see Gov. Code §§ 83115.5, 83116].

- The commission's administrative hearing and petitioner's attendance (Paragraph 6).

- The commission's declaration stating that no violation had occurred or the commission's decision finding a violation and order requiring remedial action by the petitioner or real party in interest (Paragraph 7) [see Gov. Code § 83116; see also § 242.75[6]].

- Application for reconsideration, if appropriate, and adverse results (Optional Paragraph 8).

- Reasons for the invalidity of the commission's decision (Paragraph 9) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(b), (c)].

- Attachment of the hearing transcript or a summary of the evidence, if petitioner claims the findings are not supported by the evidence or that incompetent evidence was received (Paragraph 10) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(c)].

- Relevant evidence that could not be produced or that was improperly excluded at the hearing, if appropriate (Optional Paragraph 11) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(e)].

- Exhaustion of administrative remedies (Paragraph 12) [see Abelleira v. District Court of Appeal (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 280, 291-296, 109 P.2d 942] .

- Petitioner's lack of a plain, speedy, or adequate remedy in the ordinary course of law (Paragraph 13) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1086].

A paragraph alleging the existence of fictitious defendants may be added under appropriate circumstances [see Ch. 20, Allegations Commonly Used].

[5] Verification Required

A petition for a writ of mandate must be verified [Code Civ. Proc. § 1086]. Proof of service on each respondent and real party in interest of a copy of a petition that seeks an alternative writ must accompany the petition when it is offered for filing except when, in its discretion and for good cause, the court has granted the application for the writ ex parte [Code Civ. Proc. § 1107; for discussion of serving the petition, see Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition]. Points and authorities also customarily accompany a petition filed in a superior court, although they do not appear to be expressly required by statute. When no alternative writ is sought, proof of service of a copy of the petition need not accompany the application, but proof of service of a copy of the filed petition must be lodged with the court prior to a hearing or any action by the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 1088.5].

Although the petition for writ of mandate must be verified, a public agency need not verify its answer, even though the complaint is verified [see Code Civ. Proc. § 446; Crowl v. Commission on Professional Competence (1990) 225 Cal.

App. 3d 334, 342, 275 Cal. Rptr. 86] . The verification of a complaint against a public agency precludes a general denial [see Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)].

[6] Security for Costs

On motion of any party, the court must require a private plaintiff to post a bond in a reasonable amount at any stage of the litigation to guarantee payment of costs [Gov. Code § 91012; see § 242.76[7]].

[7] Costs and Attorney's Fees

The court may award litigation costs, including reasonable attorney's fees, to a plaintiff or defendant, other than an agency, who prevails in any action authorized by the Political Reform Act of 1974 [Gov. Code § 91012]. A prevailing defendant will be awarded attorney's fees under Gov. Code § 91012 only if plaintiff's claim is frivolous, unreasonable, malicious, or clearly groundless [Community Cause v. Boatwright (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 562, 574, 575-576, 240 Cal. Rptr. 794] . As an agency, the commission would not be able to obtain an award of costs and attorney's fees under this provision. For additional discussion and forms pertaining to costs and attorney's fees, see Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees .

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Plaintiff _____ [name]

[Verification, if desired. For discussion, see [7], below; for form, see § 242.130[1].]

The form of complaint in [1], above, may be used by a person residing within the jurisdiction in an action for damages against a candidate, committee, or other person for violation of reporting requirements [see Gov. Code § 91004; see also § 242.50 et seq.], or for violation of restrictions on making or receiving gifts, contributions, or expenditures [see Gov. Code § 91005(a); see also § 242.40 et seq.].

Before filing a civil action pursuant to Gov. Code § 91004 or 91005, a private litigant must first file with the civil prosecutor a written request for the civil prosecutor to commence the action [Gov. Code § 91007(a); see § 242.131 (form of request to civil prosecutor); see also § 242.76[2]]. A private litigant may not file an action if the civil prosecutor indicates in the affirmative and files suit 120 days from receipt of the request unless the prosecutor's action is dismissed without prejudice [see Gov. Code §§ 91007(a)(1), 91008]. On the other hand, a private litigant can file an action when the civil prosecutor responds to the request in the negative within 120 days from receipt of the request, or fails to respond within that time [Gov. Code § 91007(a)(2); for discussion, see § 242.76[2][c]]. For discussion of the tolling effect of written request for commencing action under Gov. Code § 91007(a)(3), see § 242.76[2][d].

Additionally, within 10 days of filing a complaint, cross complaint, or other initial pleading in actions for damages under Gov. Code §§ 91004 and 91005, either a copy of the initial pleading or a notice must be served on the Fair Political Practices Commission [Gov. Code § 91007(b); see § 242.76[3]]. Failure to so notify the commission is not grounds for dismissal of the pleading [Gov. Code § 91007(c)].

[3] Allegations

The form of complaint alleges:

- Plaintiff's residence (Paragraph 1) [see Gov. Code §§ 91004, 91005(a)].

- The identity and capacity of defendant (Paragraph 2).

- Plaintiff's residence within the jurisdiction to which the office or measure that is the subject of the violations relates (Paragraph 3) Gov. Code §§ 91004, 91005(a); see [4], below].

- Violations of reporting requirements if action is brought under Gov. Code § 91004 and/or violations of restrictions on gifts, contributions, or expenditures if action is brought under Gov. Code § 91005(a) (Paragraphs 4, 5).

- Additional violations based on information and belief, if appropriate (Paragraph 6).

- Plaintiff's written request for the civil prosecutor to file suit (Paragraph 7) [see Gov. Code § 91007; see also § 242.131 (form of request to civil prosecutor).

- The civil prosecutor's response to plaintiff's request (Paragraph 8) [Gov. Code § 91007(a)].

[4] Standing to Sue

A person residing within the jurisdiction may sue for damages for violations of the Political Reform Act of 1974 under Gov. Code §§ 91004 and 91005. If the alleged violations pertain to a campaign involving a state office or agency, a person residing within the state is a person residing within the jurisdiction. If the violations relate to a local government office or agency, a plaintiff has standing to sue if he or she resides within the region, county, city, district, or other geographical area in which the office or agency has jurisdiction [see Gov. Code § 82035; see also § 242.21[7]].

[5] Amount and Apportionment of Damages

In an action under Gov. Code § 91004 for violation of reporting requirements, the plaintiff may recover damages in an amount not more than the amount or value not properly reported (Paragraph 1 of prayer) [Gov. Code § 91004]. In an action for violation of restrictions on making and receiving a gift, contribution, or expenditure, a person residing within the jurisdiction may recover damages in an amount up to $1,000 or three times the amount of the unlawful contribution, gift, or expenditure, whichever amount is greater (Alternative Paragraphs 2 of prayer) [Gov. Code § 91005(a); see § 242.76[4]]. It is not clear under Gov. Code § 91005(a) whether plaintiff may recover $1,000 for each violation, if seeking damages for more than one unlawful contribution, gift, or expenditure, or whether the minimum $1,000 recovery covers all violations alleged in one action.

If a judgment is entered against a defendant in an action under Gov. Code § 91004 or 91005, the plaintiff receives 50 percent of the amount recovered, and the remaining 50 percent is deposited in the state's General Fund [Gov. Code § 91009]. Thus, the prayer should request this allocation of damages (Paragraph 3 of prayer).

[6] Attorney's Fees and Costs

The court may award litigation costs, including reasonable attorney's fees, to a plaintiff or defendant, other than an agency, who prevails in any action authorized by the Act (Paragraphs 4, 5 of prayer) [Gov. Code § 91012]. But prevailing defendants in actions under the Political Reform Act may only be awarded attorney's fees if the suit against them was frivolous, unreasonable, or without foundation [Community Cause v. Boatwright (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 562, 575-576, 240 Cal. Rptr. 794 ; People v. Roger Hedgecock for Mayor Com. (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 810, 815, 228 Cal. Rptr. 424] .

[7] Verification

Although verification of this complaint is not required [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(a)], verification will require any answer to be verified in an unlimited civil case in the superior court [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446]. Verification will also preclude a general denial in an unlimited civil case, and will preclude a general denial in a limited civil case when the action is a claim assigned to a third party for collection [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion see Ch. 26, Answers .

[8] Security for Costs

On motion of any party, the court must require a private plaintiff to post a bond in a reasonable amount at any stage of the litigation to guarantee payment of costs [Gov. Code § 91012; see § 242.76[7]].

The form of complaint in [1], above, may be used by any person residing in the jurisdiction [see Gov. Code § 91003(a); see also § 242.132 (form of complaint by private litigant for damages)] in an action for injunctive relief to enjoin violations of or to compel compliance with the provisions of the Political Reform Act of 1974 [*Gov. For discussion and forms pertaining to injunctive relief for violations of conflict of interest provisions of the Political Reform Act of 1974 [see Gov. Code § 91003(b)], see Ch. 469, Public Entities and Officers: Conflicts of Interest . For additional discussion and forms pertaining to injunctive relief in general, see Ch. 303, Injunctions .

[3] Allegations

The form alleges, in part, the following:

- Violations, including code sections violated, that plaintiff seeks to enjoin (Paragraph 4).

- Defendant's failure to comply with provisions of the Act (Paragraph 5).

- Plaintiff's complaint, if any, to the commission before filing a civil action and the commission's response (Optional Paragraph 6).

- The absence of any adequate remedy at law for plaintiff's injuries (Paragraph 7) [Civ. Code § 3422; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 526, 527(a); Gov. Code § 91003(a)].

- Plaintiff's request for litigation costs, including reasonable attorney's fees (Paragraph 8) [Gov. Code § 91003(a)].

A paragraph alleging the existence of fictitious defendants may be added under appropriate circumstances [see Ch. 20, Allegations Commonly Used].

[4] Supporting Evidence Required

A preliminary injunction may be granted on a verified complaint or on affidavits or declarations under penalty of perjury [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5] showing sufficient grounds for the injunction [Code Civ. Proc. § 527(a)]. The form of complaint in [1], above, is based on the assumption that counsel will file affidavits or declarations to support the allegations. If the complaint will not be so supported, counsel must take care to plead evidentiary facts that will entitle plaintiff to the relief sought [see E. H. Renzel Co. v. Warehousemen's Union (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 369, 373, 106 P.2d 1 ; Finnie v. Town of Tiburon (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 1, 15, 244 Cal. Rptr. 581] , and have the complaint verified [Code Civ. Proc. § 527(a)].

[5] Verification

When a preliminary injunction is sought, the complaint must be verified unless it is supported by affidavits or declarations that provide evidentiary support [see Code Civ. Proc. § 527(a); see [4], above]. Verification of the complaint requires that the defendant file a verified answer, unless the defendant is a public entity [Code Civ. Proc. § 446]. Verification of the complaint also precludes a general denial [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)].

[6] Service of Copy of Complaint on Fair Political Practices Commission

Within 10 days of filing a complaint, cross complaint, or other initial pleading in an action for injunctive relief under Gov. Code § 91003, either a copy of the initial pleading or a notice must be served on the Fair Political Practices Commission [Gov. Code § 91007(b); see § 242.76[3]]. Failure to so notify the commission is not grounds for dismissal of the pleading [Gov. Code § 91007(c)].

[7] Prior Complaint With Commission

The court may in its discretion require any plaintiff, other than the commission, to file a complaint with the Fair Political Practices Commission before seeking injunctive relief [Gov. Code § 91003(a)]. Therefore, if a complaint has previously been filed with the commission, counsel should allege the filing in the subsequent complaint for injunctive relief (Optional Paragraph 6).

[8] Notice to Opposite Party for Preliminary Injunction

No preliminary injunction may be granted without notice to the opposite party [Code Civ. Proc. § 527(a)]. For discussion and forms pertaining to the methods of giving notice, see Ch. 303, Injunctions .

[9] Attorney's Fees and Costs

The court may award litigation costs, including reasonable attorney's fees, to a plaintiff or defendant who prevails in a suit for injunctive relief under Gov. Code § 91003(a) [Gov. Code § 91003(a)]. This provision does not exclude agencies, in contrast to the section allowing costs and attorney's fees in other actions for violations of the Political Reform Act of 1974 [see Gov. Code § 91012; see also § 242.76[8]].

Prevailing defendants in actions under the Political Reform Act may only be awarded attorney's fees if the suit against them was frivolous, unreasonable, or without foundation [Community Cause v. Boatwright (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 562, 575-576, 240 Cal. Rptr. 794 ; People v. Roger Hedgecock for Mayor Com. (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 810, 815, 228 Cal. Rptr. 424] .

[2] Use of Form

The application and declaration in [1], above, may be used when the plaintiff seeks substituted service of process on a defendant candidate under Elec. Code § 12, as authorized by Code Civ. Proc. § 416.80.

In any action or proceeding arising out of or in connection with any matters concerning a defendant's candidacy or the election laws, the court may order that service of process be made on the candidate by hand delivering one copy of the process together with a copy of the order authorizing service to the Secretary of State or county elections official appointed as the candidate's attorney for service of process, or to any person employed in the Secretary of State's or county official's office in the capacity of assistant or deputy. The court may make an order for substituted service when it is shown by affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) that personal service of process against the candidate cannot be made with the exercise of due diligence [Elec. Code § 12].

[3] Candidate's Appointment of Attorney for Service of Process

Whenever any candidate files a declaration of candidacy, a nomination paper, or any other paper evidencing an intention to be a candidate for any public office at any election in California with the Secretary of State or a county elections official, the candidate, by that filing, irrevocably appoints the Secretary or county official and their successors in office as the candidate's attorneys on whom all process in any action or proceeding concerning the candidacy or election laws may be served with the same effect as if the candidate had been lawfully served with process. The appointment continues until the day of the election [Elec. Code § 12].

[4] Information Regarding Ex Parte Application

An ex parte order must be supported by declaration showing that information regarding when and where the application will be made was timely given or attempted to be given, or that for specified reasons should not be required (Paragraph 7) [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1204(b)]. For further discussion, see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders .

[2] Use of Form

The complaint in [1], above, is for use by any registered voter to enjoin [Elec. Code § 20006] a violation of the political advertising provisions [Elec. Code § 20008] of the Truth in Endorsements Law. For further discussion and related forms regarding injunctions, see Ch. 303, Injunctions .

[3] Allegations

An injunction to restrain unlawful campaign material may be issued on the suit of any registered voter [Elec. Code § 20006]. The form of complaint alleges the following:

- The plaintiff's status as a registered voter (Paragraph 1).
- The defendant's identity and capacity and the particular election campaign involved (Paragraph 2).
- The nature of defendant's wrongful conduct (Paragraph 3).
- The specific Elections Code provision that is the basis of the cause of action and the manner in which the campaign material does not comply with such provision (Paragraph 4).
- Facts showing why defendant's conduct will constitute great and irreparable injury (Paragraph 5) [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 526(a)(2), 527(c)(1); see E. H. Renzel Co. v. Warehousemen's Union (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 369, 373, 106 P.2d 1] .
- Facts showing why plaintiff lacks an adequate remedy at law (Paragraph 6) [see Civ. Code § 3422(1)-(3); Code Civ. Proc. § 526(a)(4)-(6)].

The form includes a prayer for attorney's fees. This is not expressly authorized with respect to this cause of action, but is included because it might be argued that the plaintiff, if successful, should be entitled to attorney's fees under a "private attorney general theory" [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.5]. For discussion, see Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees, § 174.50 et seq.

[4] Verification

Verification [Code Civ. Proc. § 446] is required if plaintiff seeks a temporary restraining order or a preliminary injunction on a complaint instead of on affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 527(a); for further discussion, see § 242.133[4]]. If relying on a verified complaint instead of affidavits (or declarations), counsel must plead evidentiary facts that would entitle plaintiff to the relief sought [see E.H. Renzel Co. v. Warehousemen's Union (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 369, 373, 106 P.2d 1 ; Finnie v. Town of Tiburon (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 1, 15, 244 Cal. Rptr. 581] . Otherwise, verification is not required, but verification of the complaint requires the defendant to file a verified answer [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446] and precludes use of a general denial [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion of the effect that verifying a complaint has on the answer, see Ch. 26, Answers .

[5] Certification re Notice

When a temporary restraining order is sought without formal notice, the applicant or the applicant's attorney is required to certify to the court under oath that either (1) within a reasonable time before the application, he or she informed the opposing party (or his or her attorney, if any) at what time and where the application would be made, or (2) he or she in good faith attempted to inform the opposing party (or attorney) but was unable to do so, specifying the efforts made to do so, or (3) for reasons specified he or she should not be required to inform the opposing party (or attorney) [Code Civ. Proc. § 527(c)(2)].

[6] Jurisdiction

Jurisdiction in an action brought pursuant to Elec. Code § 20006 is in the superior court [Elec. Code § 20006]. It is not a limited civil case [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85(b), 580(b)(2)].

For discussion and forms relating to jurisdiction generally, see Ch. 323, Jurisdiction: Personal and Ch. 324, Jurisdiction: Subject Matter .

[7] Venue

The Elections Code contains no specific provision for venue in an action involving violation of the Truth in Endorsements Law. Presumably general venue provisions apply [see Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a) (venue based on of defendant's residence)].

[2] Use of Form

The form of complaint in [1], above, is for use by any member of a state or county central committee to obtain injunctive relief against advertising that a candidate has the support of an organization having a name so similar to that of the state or county central committee that the voters will tend to be misled into believing that such committee supports the candidate [see Elec. Code § 20007]. An injunction may be issued on the suit of any member of a county central committee or state central committee[Elec. Code § 20007].

For further discussion of bringing a complaint for injunctive relief for improper campaign conduct, see § 242.140.

[3] Allegations

The complaint alleges:

- Plaintiff's status as a member of the appropriate county or state central committee (Paragraph 1).

- That a candidate or a committee acting on his or her behalf, is representing, or is about to represent, in connection with an election campaign, that the candidate has the support of a committee or an organization that includes as part of its name the name, or any variation thereon, of a qualified political party with which the candidate is not affiliated, together with the words "county committee" or "central committee" or "county" or any other terms that might tend to mislead the voters into believing that the candidate has the support of that party's state or county central committee (Paragraph 2).

- The manner in which the misrepresentation is or will be made (Paragraph 3).

- That the candidate does not have the support of the state or county central committee of which plaintiff is a member (Paragraph 4).

- That the defendant's misrepresentation is misleading to the voters and therefore in violation of Elec. Code § 20007 (Paragraph 4).

- Irreparable injury and the inadequacy of a legal remedy (Paragraphs 5, 6) [see Civ. Code § 3422(1)-(3); Code Civ. Proc. §§ 526(a)(2), (4)-(6), 527(c)(1)].

The form includes a prayer for attorney's fees. This is not expressly authorized with respect to this cause of action, but is included because it might be argued that the plaintiff, if successful, should be entitled to attorney's fees under a "private attorney general theory" [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.5]. For discussion, see Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees, § 174.50 et seq.

[4] Jurisdiction

Jurisdiction in an action brought pursuant to Elec. Code § 20007 is in the superior court [Elec. Code § 20007]. It is not a limited civil case [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85(b), 580(b)(2)].

[2] Use of Form

The form of complaint in [1], above, is for use by a registered voter to obtain a temporary restraining order and injunctive relief for a violation of Elec. Code § 20010 which prohibits, except as provided in Elec. Code § 20010(b) [see § 242.96[3]], a person, firm, association, corporation, campaign committee, or organization, with actual malice [as defined in Elec. Code § 20010(a), see § 242.96[2][b]], from producing, distributing, publishing, or broadcasting campaign material [as defined in Elec. Code § 20010(a), see § 242.96[2][a]] that contains (1) a picture or photograph of a person or persons into which the image of a candidate for public office is superimposed, or (2) a picture or photograph of a candidate for public office into which the image of another person or persons is superimposed [Elec. Code § 20010(a)]. For those to whom the provisions of Elec. Code § 20010 do not apply, see discussion in § 242.96[5].

On filing a petition under Elec. Code § 20010, the plaintiff may obtain a temporary restraining order in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. § 527 [Elec. Code § 20010(c)(1)]. For discussion and related forms, see Ch. 303, Injunctions .

For further discussion of bringing a complaint for injunctive relief for improper campaign conduct, see § 242.140.

[3] Allegations

This form of complaint alleges [see Elec. Code § 20010(c)(1)]:

- Plaintiff's status as a registered voter (Paragraph 1).
- Identity and status of defendant (Paragraph 2).
- Defendant's production, publication, distribution, or broadcasting of specified campaign material within the scope of Elec. Code § 20010 (Paragraph 3).
- In what respect the statutory requirements set out in Elec. Code § 20010(c) have not been met (Paragraph 4).
- Defendant doing the prohibited activity with actual malice as defined in Elec. Code § 20010(a)

(Paragraph 5).

- Irreparable injury and the inadequacy of any legal remedy (Paragraphs 6, 7) [see Civ. Code § 3422(1)-(3); Code Civ. Proc. §§ 526(a)(2), (4)-(6), 527(c)(1)].

[4] Attorney's Fees

Elec. Code § 20010(c)(1) does not explicitly provide for the recovery of attorney's fees when a registered voter seeks a temporary restraining order and injunctive relief under that subsection, while Elec. Code § 20010(c)(2) does explicitly provide for the recovery of attorney's fees in an action for damages brought by the candidate whose likeness appears in the picture or photograph. Nevertheless, it might be argued that a registered voter who successfully proceeds under Elec. Code § 20010(c)(1) should be entitled to attorney's fees under a "private attorney general theory" [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.5]. For discussion, see Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees, § 174.50 et seq.

SPECIAL ALERT TO CHAPTER 243 Special Alert

20-243SA California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated Scope

Scope

Special Alert

The following changes enacted by Stats. 2009, ch. 364, effective January 1, 2010, are to become operative if and when the Secretary of State certifies that California has a statewide voter registration database in compliance with the requirements of the federal Help America Vote Act of 2002 (HAVA) [Stats. 2009, ch. 364, § 7; see 42 U.S.C. § 15301 et seq. (HAVA)].

- Seventeen-Year-Old May Pre-Register to Vote. A person who is at least 17 years of age and otherwise meets all eligibility requirements to vote may submit his or her affidavit of registration as prescribed by Elec. Code § 2102. A properly executed registration made pursuant to this authorization will be deemed effective as of the date the affiant becomes 18 years of age, if the information in the affidavit of registration is still current at that time. If the information provided by the affiant in the affidavit of registration is not current at the time the registration would otherwise become effective, then for his or her registration to become effective, the affiant must provide the current information to the proper county elections official as prescribed by Elec. Code § 2100 et seq. (that is, the chapter concerning voter registration) [Elec. Code § 2102(d) as enacted by Stats. 2009, ch. 364, § 2]. For discussion of voter registration procedure, see § 243.13.

- Affidavit of Registration Is Modified Accordingly. Elec. Code § 2150, which mandates the content of an affidavit of registration, is amended to conform to the authorization for a 17-year-old to pre-register [see Elec. Code § 2150(a)(5) as enacted by Stats. 2009, ch. 364, §§ 4, 4.5; see also Stats. 2009, ch. 364, § 8 (version enacted by section 4 is operative until and unless voters approve certain "voter-nominated primary election" plan that is contingently provided for in Stats. 2009, ch. 1; version enacted by section 4.5, which is identical in all pertinent respects, becomes operative if and when that contingency is met)].

- Pre-Registration Does Not Allow Signing of Petitions and Papers. A person who submits his or her affidavit of registration pursuant to Elec. Code § 2102(d) is not eligible to sign a petition or paper that is subject to the Elections Code, unless at the time of signing the petition or paper, he or she is 18 years of age [Elec. Code § 100(a) as enacted by Stats. 2009, ch. 364, § 1].

In November 2005, the Secretary of State entered into an agreement with the U.S. Department of Justice to ensure the state's compliance with the voter registration list requirements of HAVA. Under the agreement, the state is committed to implementing both a temporary plan and a long-term permanent solution to meet its obligations under HAVA [see Memorandum of Agreement (Nov. 2, 2005), available at http://www.justice.gov/crt/voting/hava/ca_moa.php; "Justice Department Reaches Agreement With California on Federally Required Statewide Voter Registration Lists," available at http://www.justice.gov/opa/pr/2005/November/05_crt_585.html].

PART I. SCOPE

§ 243.03 Governing Law

The elective franchise is conferred by Cal. Const., art. II, § 2, which states the minimum age and residence qualifications for possession of the franchise. Cal. Const., art. II, § 2.5 provides that a voter who casts a vote in an election in accordance with the laws of California shall have that vote counted [enacted by Proposition 43, March 5, 2002]. Cal. Const., art. II, § 4, sets out the bases for disqualification.

These constitutional provisions are not self-executing. Statutes establish procedures to do the following:

- Compel registration of persons qualified under the constitution [Elec. Code § 2142; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085-1087 (mandate)].
- Compel cancellation of persons disqualified [Elec. Code § 2213].
- Determine the right to be a candidate on the ballots [Elec. Code § 13314].
- Determine the right to request a recount of ballots [Elec. Code § 15620].
- Determine the right to contest elections [Elec. Code § 16000 et seq.].

Penal provisions applicable to all elections [Elec. Code § 18000] are set out in Elec. Code §§ 18000 et seq. (general provisions), 18100 et seq. (interference with voter registration), 18200 et seq. (improper nomination), 18400 et seq. (illegal practices with regard to ballots), and 18500 et seq. (corruption of the voting process).

The Elections Code was repealed and reenacted in 1994. This chapter is based on the new code. For your convenience when dealing with case law that construes repealed code sections, a table correlating the old and new Elections Code is provided as an appendix to this chapter [see § 243.200].

§ 243.04 Definitions

[1] Set Out in Elections and Government Codes

The Elections Code and the Government Code define various key words and terms [Elec. Code § 300 et seq.; Gov. Code § 82000 et seq.]. These definitions are to be particularly noted in initiating or defending any election proceeding.

[2] Clerk

A "clerk" is any county clerk, registrar of voters, city clerk, or other officer or board charged with the duty of conducting any election [Elec. Code § 307].

[3] County Clerk

A "county clerk" is a registrar of voters, in the counties in which that office has been established. In those counties in which the office of registrar of voters has not been established, the county clerk may also be known as "ex officio registrar of voters" [Elec. Code § 311].

[4] Elections

A "primary election" includes all primary nominating elections provided for by the Elections Code [Elec. Code § 341].

A "presidential primary" is the primary election that is held on the first Tuesday in February in any year which is evenly divisible by the number four, and at which delegations to national party conventions are to be chosen [Elec. Code § 340].

A "direct primary" is the primary election, held on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in June in each even-numbered year to nominate candidates to be voted for at the ensuing general election or to elect members of a party central committee [Elec. Code § 316].

[5] Elections Official

An "elections official" is a clerk or any person who is charged with the duty of conducting an election, or a county clerk, city clerk, registrar of voters, or elections supervisor having jurisdiction over elections within any county, city, or district within the state [Elec. Code § 320].

[6] Elector Distinguished From Voter

An "elector" is any person who is a United States citizen, 18 years of age or older, and a resident of an election precinct for at least 15 days prior to an election [Elec. Code § 321]. The term "voter" means any elector who is registered under the provisions of the Elections Code [Elec. Code § 359].

Although the terms "elector" and "voter" are often used interchangeably, an elector is one who has the qualifications to vote but may not have complied with the legal prerequisites for exercising his or her right to vote [People v. Darcy (1943) 59 Cal. App. 2d 342, 348-349, 139 P.2d 118 , overruled on other grounds, Murgia v. Municipal Court (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 286, 301, 124 Cal. Rptr. 204, 540 P.2d 44] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Proceedings Relating to Registration of Electors

20-243 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 243.12

§ 243.12 Qualifications for Electors

[1] Requirements in General

Both the United States and California Constitutions require that a voter be 18 years old and a citizen of the United States [U.S. Const., amend. XXVI; Cal. Const., art. II, § 2; see People v. Rodriguez (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 900, 902, 904, 111 Cal. Rptr. 238 ; Padilla v. Allison (1974) 38 Cal. App. 3d 784, 113 Cal. Rptr. 582 (citizenship is valid criterion by which state may measure right to participate in political process, and therefore, state is not required to extend franchise to permanent resident aliens)]. The California Constitution provides that, to be able to vote in California, a person must also be a resident of California [Cal. Const., art. II, § 2]. However, electors are disqualified while mentally incompetent or while imprisoned or on parole for the conviction of a felony [Cal. Const., art. II, § 4; Elec. Code § 2101].

The constitutional provision for the disqualification of electors while imprisoned or on parole for the conviction of a felony is self executing. An elector convicted of any felony is temporarily disenfranchised while serving a sentence of imprisonment or while undergoing an unexpired term of parole. The temporary disenfranchisement of convicted felons while on parole applies uniformly to all paroled felons in California, whether convicted under the law of California, the law of any other state, or federal law [Flood v. Riggs (1978) 80 Cal. App. 3d 138, 155, 156, 145 Cal. Rptr. 573] . The constitutional provision does not disenfranchise a person who by plea or verdict has been adjudicated guilty of a felony but either (1) is on probation under the jurisdiction of the court after the court has suspended imposition or execution of sentence or (2) was sentenced under Penal Code § 18 to punishment other than imprisonment in a state prison [League of Women Voters v. McPherson (2006) 145 Cal. App. 4th 1469, 1484-1485, 52 Cal. Rptr. 3d 585] .

California's temporary disenfranchisement of convicted felons comports with the Fourteenth Amendment's specific exception, from the guaranty of the Equal Protection Clause, for the disenfranchisement of persons "for participation in rebellion or other crime" [U.S. Const., amend. XIV, § 2; League of Women Voters v. McPherson (2006) 145 Cal. App. 4th 1469, 1478 n.6, 52 Cal. Rptr. 3d 585] . The term "other crime" in the Fourteenth Amendment is not limited to common law felonies; therefore, the term "felony" in the California constitutional provision also is not so limited [Legal Servs. for Prisoners With Children v. Bowen (2009) 170 Cal. App. 4th 447, 450, 459, 87 Cal. Rptr. 3d 869] .

California's disenfranchisement of convicted felons could possibly violate the federal Voting Rights Act. In a case brought by incarcerated felons in Washington, the Ninth Circuit held that section 2 of the Voting Rights Act [42 U.S.C. § 1973] invalidated the Washington disenfranchisement law because the plaintiffs demonstrated that the Washington law had a discriminatory impact that was attributable to racial discrimination in the state's criminal justice system [Farrakhan v. Gregoire (9th Cir. 2010) 590 F.3d 989].

[2] Durational Residence Requirement

Because any durational residence requirement both affects the fundamental right to vote and creates a suspect classification of citizens who have lost the right to vote because of the exercise of their right to travel, no durational residence requirement in excess of 30 days may constitutionally be imposed [Young v. Gnoss (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 18, 27-28, 101 Cal. Rptr. 533, 496 P.2d 445 ; see Elec. Code § 2020 (term of domicile as including day on which domicile commenced and excluding day of election)].

[3] Residence as Domicile for Voting Purposes

As used in the Elections Code, a person's residence for voting purposes generally means a person's domicile [Elec. Code § 349(a)]. Nevertheless, Elec. Code § 2020 et seq. contains specific provisions for determining a person's residence for purposes of voting both in California and in a particular precinct. The terms "residence" and "domicile" have acquired a special meaning under these sections. For example, a person's "domicile" is the place of the person's fixed habitation, in which he or she intends to remain and to which he or she intends to return if absent [Elec. Code § 349(b); see Elec. Code § 2021 (leaving or entering another state or precinct for temporary purposes as not affecting domicile)]. A person's "residence" is the place of the person's fixed habitation for some period of time but in which he or she does not intend to remain [Elec. Code § 349(c)]. Thus, at a given time, a person has only one domicile but may have more than one residence [Elec. Code § 349(b), (c)]. To acquire a new domicile requires both the intent to acquire a new domicile and the fact of removal [see Elec. Code § 2024].

A person may leave his or her domicile with the intention of abandoning it, but may currently reside in a place where he or she does not intend to remain and that is in a precinct different from the former domicile. In that case, the person may vote in the precinct of his or her former domicile until acquiring a new domicile [Walters v. Weed (1988) 45 Cal. 3d 1, 14, 246 Cal. Rptr. 5, 752 P.2d 443] . This rule protects the person who leaves a residence with the intention not to return, but who views the new abode as a temporary stopping place and does not intend it to be his or her domicile for voting purposes [Walters v. Weed (1988) 45 Cal. 3d 1, 8, 246 Cal. Rptr. 5, 752 P.2d 443] .

The rule in Walters also resolves a conflict in the elections statutes. The definition of "domicile" for voting purposes is a fixed habitation where the voter intends to remain and to which, when temporarily absent, the voter intends to return [see Elec. Code § 349(b), (c)]. In contrast, other statutes require that everyone be domiciled somewhere, and that the act of leaving one's domicile without the act and intention of establishing a new one does not extinguish the old [see Elec. Code §§ 2021, 2024; see also Gov. Code §§ 243, 244; Walters v. Weed (1988) 45 Cal. 3d 1, 6-9, 246 Cal. Rptr. 5, 752 P.2d 443] .

The Walters rule protects a person who has a residence but no domicile. This situation should be distinguished, however, from a situation in which a voter changes domicile more than 28 days before an election, the new domicile is in a precinct different from the old, and the voter fails to either reregister or execute an address change to preserve his or her eligibility to vote. In that case, the voter is neither properly registered nor entitled to vote in either the old or the new precinct [Escalante v. City of Hermosa Beach (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 1009, 1023, 241 Cal. Rptr. 199 ; see Walters v. Weed (1988) 45 Cal. 3d 1, 13, 246 Cal. Rptr. 5, 752 P.2d 443] .

[4] Application of Rule of Domicile in Special Instances

Generally, the domicile of one spouse is not presumed to be the same as that of the other, but is determined according to Elec. Code § 2021 et seq. [Elec. Code § 2029]. However, the place where a person's family is domiciled is considered to be his or her domicile unless it is a temporary establishment for his or her family or for transient objects [Elec. Code § 2027 (place includes trailer or vehicle at campground)]. This is true even though the person does business in another place, unless the person has taken up an abode in another place with the intention of remaining [Elec. Code § 2028].

Moving to a place of fixed habitation in another state with the intent either to acquire a new domicile or to remain there for an indefinite time results in the loss of person's domicile in California [see Elec. Code §§ 2022, 2023]. However, a person does not gain or lose a domicile because of his or her presence or absence from a place as a result of being (1) an employee of the United States or of California, (2) an employee engaged in navigation, (3) a student in any institution of learning, unless the student has abandoned his or her former domicile, or (4) an inmate of an almshouse, asylum, or prison [Elec. Code § 2025].

A person having more than one residence who has not physically resided at any one of them in the immediate preceding year is rebuttably presumed not to be domiciled at any one of them [see Elec. Code § 2032], unless the person has claimed a property tax exemption or renter's tax credit for one of the residences, in which case there is a rebuttable presumption that the residence is his or her domicile [see Elec. Code §§ 2031 (exception if different residence is listed in information on file with Department of Motor Vehicles), 346 (rebuttable presumption as affecting burden of producing evidence)].

The designation of a public park as a residence, coupled with a present intent to remain in the park, can qualify as a domicile for voting purposes [Collier v. Menzel (1985) 176 Cal. App. 3d 24, 31, 221 Cal. Rptr. 110] . A person evidences a present intent to remain in a public park as a residence by declaring, on the registration affidavit, an intent to remain at that place and to return to it after temporary absences and by designating an address at which mail can be received [Collier v. Menzel (1985) 176 Cal. App. 3d 24, 31-32, 35, 221 Cal. Rptr. 110 (citing former Elec. Code §§ 302, 304; now see Elec. Code §§ 2103, 2105)]. Even though a person may have no legal right to use a public park as a habitation because the park may, by law, be forbidden for use as a residence, a person can still have an intent to remain in the park independent from any intent to violate the law forbidding such use [Collier v. Menzel (1985) 176 Cal. App. 3d 24, 31-32, 221 Cal. Rptr. 110] .

The domicile of a member of the California Legislature or the Congress of the United States is conclusively presumed to be the residence indicated on that person's currently filed affidavit of registration [Elec. Code § 2026].

For special rules governing the place of a person's domicile in a particular precinct, see Elec. Code §§ 2034 and 2035.

Chapter 243 ELECTIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Proceedings Relating to Registration of Electors

20-243 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 243.13

§ 243.13 Registration Procedure

[1] Method of Registration

The only way a person can become a registered voter is by submitting to the county elections official, either by mail or in person, an affidavit of registration [Elec. Code § 2102(a); but see Elec. Code § 2196 (alternative method); [6], below]. The affidavit must contain all of the information prescribed by Elec. Code § 2150. A properly executed registration is deemed effective on receipt of the affidavit by the county elections official if received on or before the 15th day prior to an election to be held in the registrant's precinct [Elec. Code § 2102(a)]. A properly executed registration is also effective on receipt of the affidavit by the county official if any of the following apply [Elec. Code § 2102(a)(1)-(3)]:

- The affidavit is postmarked on or before the 15th day prior to the election and received by mail by the county elections official.

- The affidavit is submitted to the Department of Motor Vehicles or accepted by any other public agency designated as a voter registration agency under the National Voter Registration Act of 1993 (42 U.S.C. § 1973gg) on or before the 15th day prior to the election.

- The affidavit is delivered to the county elections official by means other than those described in Elec. Code § 2102(a)(1), (2) on or before the 15th day prior to the election.

[2] Time for Registration

With the exception discussed in the next paragraph, the county elections official must accept affidavits of registration at all times except during the 14 days immediately preceding any election, when registration must cease for that election as to electors residing in the territory within which the election is to be held. Nevertheless, transfers of registration for an election may be made from one precinct to another in the same county at any time when registration is in progress in the precinct to which the elector seeks to transfer [see Elec. Code § 2107(a)].

The county elections official must accept an affidavit of registration executed as part of a voter registration card in the forthcoming election if the affidavit is executed on or before the 15th day before the election, and if any of the following apply [Elec. Code. § 2107(b)(1)-(3); see Elec. Code. § 2102(a)(1)-(3)]:

- The affidavit is postmarked on or before the 15th day prior to the election and received by mail by the county elections official.

- The affidavit is submitted to the Department of Motor Vehicles or accepted by any other public agency designated as a voter registration agency pursuant to the National Registration Act of 1993 (42 U.S. C. § 1973gg) prior to the election.

- The affidavit is delivered to the county elections official by means other than those described above, on or before the 15th day prior to the election.

[3] After Change of Residence Address

Whenever a voter, between that person's last voter registration and the time for the closing of registration for any given election, has changed his or her residence address by moving, the voter must execute a new affidavit of registration or a notice or a letter of change of address as permitted in Elec. Code. § 2119 in order to be eligible to vote at the next election [Elec. Code § 2116(a)]. Notwithstanding Elec. Code § 2116(a), a voter who has changed his or her residence address by moving may vote at the election immediately following the change of residence if he or she is entitled to vote under Elec. Code § 2035 or 14311 [Elec. Code § 2116(b)]. Under Elec. Code § 2035, a person duly registered as a voter in any precinct in California who moves from that precinct with 14 days before an election, for the purpose of that election is entitled to vote in the precinct from which the person moved from until the close of the polls on the date of that election. Elec. Code § 14311 deals with a voter who has moved to a new address within the same county.

[4] Vote by Mail Voters

Except as provided in Chapter 3 of the Elections Code (commencing with Elec. Code § 3200) [for permanent vote by mail voters, see [5], below], application for a vote by mail voter's ballot must be made in writing to the elections official having jurisdiction over the election between the 29th and the 7th day prior to the election. The application must be signed by the applicant and show his or her place of residence. Any applications received by the elections official prior to the 29th day must be kept and processed during the application period [Elec. Code § 3001]. The vote by mail ballot must be available to any registered voter [Elec. Code § 3003].

The county elections official must place a notice in any office within the county where applications are taken for federal passports or where military enlistments are received to inform potential special vote by mail voters of their right to a vote by mail voter's ballot and where registration materials and application forms can be obtained [Elec. Code § 3004]. Elec. Code § 3006 sets forth the required information which must be included on any printed application that is distributed to voters for requesting vote by mail voter ballots. Among other things, the application must inform the voter that if he or she is not affiliated with a political party, the voter may request a vote by mail ballot for a particular political party for the primary election, if that political party has adopted a party rule, duly noticed to the Secretary of State, authorizing that vote. The application must contain a toll-free telephone number, established by the Secretary of State, that the voter may call to access information regarding which political parties have adopted such a rule. The application must contain a check-off box with a conspicuously printed statement that reads, as follows: "I am not presently affiliated with any political party. However, for this primary election only, I request a vote by mail ballot for the _____ Party." The name of the political party must be personally affixed by the voter [Elec. Code § 3006(c)].

The Secretary of State must prepare and distribute to appropriate elections officials a uniform application format for a vote by mail voter's ballot that conforms to applicable law. This format must be followed by all individuals, organizations, and groups who distribute applications for a vote by mail voter's ballot. The uniform format need not be utilized by elections officials in preparing a vote by mail voter's ballot application to be included with the sample ballot [Elec. Code § 3007].

[5] Permanent Vote by Mail Voters

State law governing permanent vote by mail voter registration and related procedures is contained at Elections Code § 3200 et seq. Any voter may apply for permanent vote by mail voter status; application for permanent vote by mail voter status must be made in accordance with Elec. Code §§ 3001, 3100, or 3304 [Elec. Code § 3201]. The voter must complete an application, which must be available from the county elections official, and which must contain the applicant's name at length; the applicant's residence address; the address where ballot is to be mailed, if different from the place of residence; and the signature of the applicant [Elec. Code § 3201]. In lieu of executing the application set forth in Elec. Code § 3201, any voter may execute a request for permanent vote by mail voter status by making a written request to the county elections official requesting the status. If a written request is received by the county elections official and it contains the information set forth in Elec. Code § 3201, the elections official must process that application in the manner provided in Elec. Code § 3203 [Elec. Code § 3202]. The county elections official must send a copy of the list of all voters who qualify as permanent vote by mail voters to each city elections official or district elections official charged with the duty of conducting an election within the county. The list must be sent by the sixth day before an election [Elec. Code § 3204].

Vote by mail voter ballots mailed to, and received from, voters on the permanent vote by mail voter list are subject to the same deadlines and must be processed and counted in the same manner as all other vote by mail voter ballots [Elec. Code § 3205(a)]. Prior to each primary election, county elections officials must mail to every voter not affiliated with a political party whose name appears on the permanent vote by mail voter list a notice and application regarding voting in the primary election. The notice must inform the voter that he or she may request a vote by mail ballot for a particular political party for the primary election, if that political party adopted a party rule, duly noticed to the Secretary of State, authorizing these voters to vote in their primary. The notice must also contain a toll-free telephone number, established by the Secretary of State, that the voter may call to access information regarding which political parties have adopted such a rule. The application must contain a check-off box with a conspicuously printed statement that reads as follows: "I am not presently affiliated with any political party. However, for this primary election only, I request a vote by mail ballot for the _____ Party." The name of the political party must be personally affixed by the voter [Elec. Code § 3205(b)].

[6] Registration Through Secretary of State's Web Site

Notwithstanding any other provision of law, on and after the date the Secretary of State certifies that California has a statewide voter registration database that complies with the requirements of the Help America Vote Act of 2002 [42 U.S.C. § 15301 et seq.], a person who is qualified to register to vote and who has a valid California driver's license or state identification card may submit an affidavit of voter registration electronically on the website of the Secretary of State [Elec. Code § 2196(a)(1)]. The affidavit is effective on receipt of the affidavit by the Secretary of State if the affidavit is received on or before the 15th day prior to an election to be held in the precinct of the person submitting the affidavit [Elec. Code § 2196(a)(2)].

The affiant must affirmatively attest to the truth of the information provided in the affidavit [Elec. Code § 2196(a)(3)]. For voter registration purposes, the applicant must affirmatively assent to the use of his or her signature from his or her driver's license or state identification card [Elec. Code § 2196(a)(4)]. For each electronic affidavit, the Secretary of State must obtain an electronic copy of the applicant's signature from his or her driver's license or state identification card directly from the Department of Motor Vehicles [Elec. Code § 2196(a)(5)].

The Secretary of State must require a person who submits an affidavit pursuant to Elec. Code § 2196 to submit all of the following [Elec. Code § 2196(a)(6)]:

- The number from his or her California driver's license or state identification card.
- His or her date of birth.
- The last four digits of his or her social security number.
- Any other information the Secretary of State deems necessary to establish the identity of the affiant.

On submission of an affidavit pursuant to Elec. Code § 2196, the electronic voter registration system must provide for immediate verification of both of the following [Elec. Code § 2196(a)(7)]:

- The applicant has a California driver's license or state identification card, and the number for that driver's license or identification card provided by the applicant matches the number for that person's driver's license or identification card that is on file with the Department of Motor Vehicles.
- The date of birth provided by the applicant matches the date of birth for that person that is on file with the Department of Motor Vehicles.

The Secretary of State must employ security measures to ensure the accuracy and integrity of voter registration affidavits submitted electronically pursuant to Elec. Code § 2196 [Elec. Code § 2196(a)(8)].

The Department of Motor Vehicles must use the electronic voter registration system required by Elec. Code § 2196 to comply with its duties and responsibilities as a voter registration agency pursuant to the National Voter Registration Act of 1993 [Elec. Code § 2196(b); see 42 U.S.C. § 1973gg et seq.].

§ 243.14 Action or Proceeding to Compel Registration

If the county elections official refuses to register any qualified elector in the county, the elector may proceed by action in the superior court to compel his or her registration [Elec. Code § 2142(b)]. When the action is decided in the elector's favor, he or she may register on producing and filing a certified copy of the judgment directing registration to be made [Elec. Code § 2100].

The clerk of the court may not charge a fee for services rendered in an action under Elec. Code § 2142 [Elec. Code § 2142(c)]. Costs may not be recovered against the county elections official in the action, unless it is alleged and proved that the county elections official knowingly and willfully violated his or her duty [Elec. Code § 2143].

Although precedence is given to cases involving elections [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 35 (trial court), 44 (appeal)], the statutory remedy of filing a complaint under Elec. Code § 2142 may nevertheless be ineffective when relief cannot be obtained before the date of the election. In that case, a petition for a writ of mandate under *Code Civ. § 243.15 Cancellation of Voter Registration

[1] Grounds

The county elections official must cancel registration (1) at the signed, written request of the person registered [Elec. Code § 2201(a)]; (2) on the production of a certified copy of a judgment directing the cancellation to be made [Elec. Code § 2201(d)]; (3) on the death of the person registered [Elec. Code § 2201(e)]; (4) on official notification that the voter is registered to vote in another county or state [Elec. Code § 2201(g)]; or (5) on proof that the person is otherwise ineligible to vote [Elec. Code § 2201(h)]. Registration must also be canceled when the mental incompetency of the person registered is legally established as provided in Elec. Code §§ 2208-2211 [Elec. Code § 2201(b)]. The county elections official is authorized pursuant to Elec. Code § 2220 et seq. to cancel the registration of registrants who have moved or whose confirmatory postcards are undeliverable.

In addition, pursuant to Elec. Code § 2201(c), the county elections official must cancel the registration on proof that the person is currently imprisoned or on parole for conviction of a felony [Elec. Code § 2201(c); see Cal. Const., art. II, § 4 (disqualification while imprisoned or on parole for conviction of felony), and Ch. 114, Civil Rights: Prisoners' Rights]. Procedures for the gathering of data by the county clerk and cancellation deadlines are set forth in Elec. Code § 2212.

[2] Action to Compel Cancellation

Any person may proceed by an action in the superior court to compel the county elections official to cancel any registration made illegally or that should be canceled by reason of facts that have occurred subsequent to the registration. If the voter whose registration is sought to be canceled is not a party to the action, the court may order him or her to be made a party defendant. The county clerk and as many persons against whom there are causes of action may be joined as defendants [Elec. Code § 2213].

§ 243.16 Obtaining Voter Registration Information

[1] Procedure

Elec. Code § 2180 et seq. authorizes political parties, candidates, and specified other persons to obtain copies of the voter registration index in each county. This index is an index, by precinct, to the affidavits of registration. It contains the name, address, residence telephone number if furnished, and political affiliation of each voter, as well as a ruled space by each name within which to write the line number designating the position of the voter's name on the roster of voters [Elec. Code § 2180].

Elec. Code § 2188 sets forth the mandatory procedure, unless another is otherwise specifically provided [see, e.g., Elec. Code § 2194 (specifying the procedure for obtaining information from a confidential affidavit of registration, and discussed in § 243.17[2])], for applying to the Secretary of State or the local county elections official for access to information contained in the index.

[2] Penalty for Wrongful Acquisition, Use, or Disclosure

It is a misdemeanor for any person in possession of index information obtained under Elec. Code § 2180 et seq. knowingly to use or permit the use of all or any part of that information for any purpose other than as permitted by law [Elec. Code § 18109(a)]. It is a misdemeanor for any person knowingly to acquire possession or use of information contained in the index without first complying with Elec. Code § 2188 [Elec. Code § 18109(b)].

§ 243.17 Confidentiality of Voter Registration Information

[1] Availability

The home address, telephone number, e-mail address, precinct number, or other number specified by the Secretary of State for voter registration purposes, and prior registration information shown on the voter registration card for all registered voters is confidential, and may not be disclosed to anyone, except pursuant to Elec. Code § 2194 [Gov. Code § 6254.4(a); see [2], below]. "Home address" means street address only, not city and post office address [Gov. Code § 6254.4(b)]. Moreover, the California driver's license number, the California identification card number, the Social Security number, and any other unique identifier used by the State of California for purposes of voter identification shown on a voter registration card of a registered voter, or added to voter registration records to comply with the requirements of the Help America Vote Act of 2002 (42 U.S.C. § 15301 et seq.), are confidential and must not be disclosed to any person [Elec. Code § 2194(b)(1); Gov. Code § 6254.4(c)].

The voter registration card information must not be used for any personal, private, or commercial purpose, including, but not limited to the harassment of any voter or voter's household; the advertising, solicitation, sale, or marketing of products or services to any voter or voter's household; or reproduction in print, broadcast visual or audio, or display on the internet or any computer terminal unless pursuant to Elec. Code § 2194(a)(3) [Elec. Code § 2194(a)(2)]. The term "voter's household" means the voter's place of residence or mailing address or any persons who reside at the place of residence or use the mailing address as supplied on the affidavit of registration pursuant to Elec. Code § 2150(a)(3), (4) [Elec. Code § 2194(e)].

The signature of the voter shown on the voter registration card is confidential and must not be disclosed to any person, except as provided in Elec. Code § 2194(c) [Elec. Code § 2194(b)(2)]. An elections official must permit a person to view the signature of a voter for the purpose of determining whether the signature matches a signature on an affidavit of registration or a petition, but shall not permit a signature to be copied [Elec. Code § 2194(c)(2)].

[2] Authorized Disclosure of Contents

[a] General Rule

Certain information contained in the confidential affidavit may only be disclosed as set forth in Elec. Code § 2194 [Gov. Code § 6254.4(a)]. The permissible disclosures are set forth below.

[b] When Requested by Specified Persons

The home address, telephone number, e-mail address, precinct number, or other number specified by the Secretary of State for voter registration purposes, and prior registration information of a person granted confidentiality under Gov. Code § 6254.4 may be provided, subject to Elec. Code §§ 2166.5, 2166.7, and 2188, to a candidate, to any committee for or against any initiative or referendum measure for which legal publication is made, and to any person for election, scholarly, journalistic, or political purposes, or for governmental purposes, as determined by the Secretary of State [Elec. Code § 2194(a)(3)].

[c] When Registrant's Vote Is Challenged

The home address or signature of any voter must be released whenever the person's vote is challenged pursuant to Elec. Code §§ 15105-15108, inclusive, or Elec. Code § 14240 et seq.; the address or signature must be released only to the challenger, to elections officials, and to other persons as necessary to make, defend against, or adjudicate the challenge [Elec. Code § 2194(c)(1)]. An elections official must permit a person to view the signature of a voter for the purpose of determining whether the signature matches a signature on an affidavit or registration or a petition, but must not permit a signature to be copied [Elec. Code § 2194(c)(2)].

[3] Action for Wrongful Disclosure of Contents

A governmental entity, or its officer or employee, shall not be held civilly liable as a result of disclosure of the voter registration information as provided in Elec. Code § 2194 except on a showing of gross negligence or willfulness [Elec. Code § 2194(d)].

[4] Penalty for Wrongful Use of Contents

It is a misdemeanor for any person in possession of information obtained in a confidential affidavit knowingly to use or permit the use of all or any part of that information for any purpose other than as permitted by law [Elec. Code § 18109(a)].

§ 243.18 Voter Bill of Rights

[1] Enumeration of Rights

Elec. Code § 2300 sets forth the Voter Bill of Rights, which provides that each voter:

- Has the right to cast a ballot if he/she is a valid registered voter. A valid registered voter means a U.S. citizen who is a resident in this state, who is at least 18 years of age and not in prison or on parole for conviction of a felony, and who is registered to vote at his or her current residence address [Elec. Code § 2300(a)(1)].

- Has the right to cast a provisional ballot if name is not listed on the voting rolls [Elec. Code § 2300(a)(2)].

- Has the right to cast a ballot if he/she is present and in line at the polling place prior to the close of the polls [Elec. Code § 2300(a)(3)].

- Has the right to cast a secret ballot free from intimidation [Elec. Code § 2300(a)(4)].

- Has the right to receive a new ballot if, prior to casting his/her ballot, he/she believes that he/she made a mistake. If at any time before he/she finally casts his/her ballot, he/she feels that he/she has made a mistake, he/she has the right to exchange the spoiled ballot for a new ballot. Vote by mail voters may also request and receive a new ballot if they return their spoiled ballot to an elections official prior to the closing of the polls on election day [Elec. Code § 2300(a)(5)].

- Has the right to receive assistance in casting the ballot, if he/she is unable to vote without assistance [Elec. Code § 2300(a)(6)].

- Has the right to return a completed vote by mail ballot to any precinct in the county [Elec. Code §

2300(a)(7)].

- Has the right to election materials in another language, if there are sufficient residents in his/her your precinct to warrant production [Elec. Code § 2300(a)(8)].

- Has the right to ask questions about election procedures and observe the elections process [Elec. Code § 2300(a)(9)(A)].

- Has the right to ask questions of the precinct board and election officials regarding election procedures and to receive an answer or be directed to the appropriate official for an answer. However, if persistent questioning disrupts the execution of their duties, the board or election officials may discontinue responding to questions [Elec. Code § 2300(a)(9)(B)].

- Has the right to report any illegal or fraudulent activity to a local elections official or to the Secretary of State's Office [Elec. Code § 2300(a)(10)].

[2] Public Notification and Display of Rights

The Voter Bill of Rights must be made available to the public before each election and on election day, at a minimum, as follows [Elec. Code § 2300(d)]:

- The Voter Bill of Rights must be printed in the statewide voter pamphlet in a minimum of 12-point type (with specified exceptions).

- Posters or other printed materials containing the Voter Bill of Rights must be included in precinct supplies.

Beneath the Voter Bill of Rights there must be listed a toll-free telephone number to call if a person has been denied a voting right or to report election fraud or misconduct [Elec. Code § 2300(c)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Proceedings Relating to Registration of Electors

20-243 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 243.19

§ 243.19 California Voting Rights Act

The California Voting Rights Act of 2001 (CVRA) [Elec. Code § 14025 et seq.] provides that an at-large method of election may not be imposed or applied in a manner that impairs the ability of a protected class to elect candidates of its choice or its ability to influence the outcome of an election, as a result of the dilution or the abridgment of the rights of voters who are members of a protected class, as defined pursuant to Elec. Code § 14026 [Elec. Code § 14027]. A violation of Elec. Code § 14027 is established if it is shown that racially polarized voting occurs in elections for members of the governing body of the political subdivision or in elections incorporating other electoral choices by the voters of the political subdivision [Elec. Code § 14028(a)].

The occurrence of racially polarized voting is determined from examining results of elections in which at least one candidate is a member of a protected class or elections involving ballot measures, or other electoral choices that affect the rights and privileges of members of a protected class [Elec. Code § 14028(b)]. The fact that members of a protected class are not geographically compact or concentrated may not preclude a finding of racially polarized voting, but may be a factor in determining an appropriate remedy [Elec. Code § 14028(c)]. Proof of an intent on the part of the voters or elected officials to discriminate against a protected class is not required [Elec. Code § 14028(d)].

Other factors, such as the history of discrimination, the use of electoral devices or other voting practices or procedures that may enhance the dilutive effects of at-large elections, denial of access to those processes determining which groups of candidates will receive financial or other support in a given election, the extent to which members of a protected class bear the effects of past discrimination in areas such as education, employment, and health, which hinder their ability to participate effectively in the political process, and the use of overt or subtle racial appeals in political campaigns are probative, but not necessary factors to establish a violation of Elec. Code §§ 14027 and 14028 [Elec. Code § 14028(e)].

Upon a finding of a violation of Elec. Code §§ 14027 and 14028, the court must implement appropriate remedies, including the imposition of district-based elections, that are tailored to remedy the violation [Elec. Code § 14029]. Any voter who is a member of a protected class and who resides in a political subdivision where a violation of Elec. Code §§ 14027 and 14028 is alleged may file an action pursuant to those sections in the superior court of the county in which the political subdivision is located [Elec. Code § 14032].

The CVRA has been upheld as race-neutral as it does not favor any race over others or allocate burdens or benefits to any groups on the basis of race. It simply gives a cause of action to members of any racial or ethnic group that can establish that its members' votes were diluted through the combination of racially polarized voting and an at-large election system. Curing vote dilution is a legitimate government interest, and creation of a private right of action like that in the CVRA is rationally related to it. The CVRA does not deny anyone standing on the basis of membership in any group, is not an affirmative action law, and does not burden the fundamental right to vote [Sanchez v. City of Modesto (2006) 145 Cal. App. 4th 660, 680-685, 51 Cal. Rptr. 3d 821] .

B. Preelection Duties and Correction of Ballot Errors

§ 243.30 Scope

This part discusses the statutory remedy of a writ of mandate to compel either the correction of an error or omission contained in any ballot or other official election material, or the performance of any official duty, the neglect of which is a violation of the Elections Code or the Constitution under Elec. Code § 13314. It also discusses the remedies of a writ of mandate or injunction under Elec. Code § 13313 to amend or delete material in a voter's pamphlet that is false, misleading or inconsistent with the requirements of Elec. Code § 13300 et seq.

This part also discusses the steps that are prerequisite to becoming a candidate and the duties of election officials in connection with candidacies. Because of the unique procedure involved, steps prerequisite to becoming a nominee and candidate for a presidential primary election are not discussed. For a general form for a petition for a writ of mandate to compel correction of an error or omission or to enjoin the neglect of official duty, see § 243. For additional forms that may be useful in a proceeding in mandate, see Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Preelection Duties and Correction of Ballot Errors

20-243 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 243.31

§ 243.31 Governing Statutes

[1] Correcting Error or Neglect of Duty Generally

The general right to seek a writ of mandate to correct an error or omission that has occurred or is about to occur in the placing of any name on, or in the printing of, a ballot, sample ballot, voter pamphlet, or other official matter, or to correct any neglect of duty that has occurred or is about to occur, is governed by Elec. Code § 13314. By its terms, the section applies to compel the correction of any legal duty concerning the right of any person to become a candidate or to appear and be properly designated on astatewide or local ballot [see Elec. Code § 13314]. The provisions set out below govern the various aspects of this right in both statewide and local elections. For discussion of a petition for writ of mandate or injunction under Elec. Code § 13313 to amend or delete material in a voter's pamphlet that is false, misleading or inconsistent with the requirements of Elec. Code § 13300 et seq., see § 243.39.

[2] Presidential Primaries

Provisions pertaining to candidacy and nomination in presidential primary elections are contained in Elec. Code § 6000 et seq. (Democratic Party), Elec. Code § 6300 et seq. (Republican Party and any other qualified political parties for which presidential primary provisions are not expressly provided [see Elec. Code § 6300(a)]), Elec. Code § 6620 et seq. (American Independent Party), Elec. Code § 6700 et seq. (Peace and Freedom Party), and Elec. Code § 8300 et seq. (independent nominations).

[3] Direct Primaries

Provisions governing qualification of parties, candidacy, and nomination in direct primary elections are contained in Elec. Code § 8000 et seq.

[4] Special Elections

Nomination of candidates for legislative and congressional offices at special elections are set out in Elec. Code § 10700 et seq.

[5] Municipal Elections

Municipal elections are governed by Elec. Code § 10100 et seq. (general regulations); Elec. Code § 12101 et seq. (publication, notice of election), Elec. Code § 10220 et seq. (nominations), Elec. Code § 10300 et seq. (emergency elections in cities), and Elec. Code § 10400 et seq. (consolidation of municipal elections).

[6] District Elections

District elections are governed by the Uniform District Election Law, set forth in Elec. Code § 10500 et seq. Its provisions apply to all districts and agencies whose principal acts so provide. The provisions of Elec. Code § 10500 et seq. requiring the clerk to conduct elections apply to all resident voting districts and agencies and, at the discretion of the clerk, may apply to landowner voting districts [Elec. Code § 10502(a)]. However, the clerk is required to conduct an election on behalf of a landowner voting district if the governing body of that district, by specified resolution, makes such a request and agrees to reimburse the county [Elec. Code § 10502(b)].

[7] Elections for Particular Office

Provisions governing candidacy and elections for particular offices are set out in Elec. Code §§ 324, 10720, 15503 (members of congress), Elec. Code § 6900 et seq. (presidential electors), Elec. Code § 8200 et seq. (judicial officers), and Elec. Code § 8022 (members of state assembly and senate, state constitutional officers, and Insurance Commissioner).

[8] Independent Nominations

Provisions governing independent nominations for all types of elections are set out in Elec. Code § 8300 et seq.

[9] Write-in Candidacy

Write-in candidacy for all elections except those for presidential electors is governed by Elec. Code § 8600 et seq. Write-in candidacy for elections for presidential electors is governed by Elec. Code § 8650 et seq.

[10] Ballots

Preparation and distribution of ballots is governed by Elec. Code § 13000 et seq. Provisions governing ballot format, contents and related matters are set out in Elec. Code § 13100 et seq. Additional special provisions regarding ballots are contained in Elec. Code §§ 6240 (Democratic Party presidential primary ballot), 6480 (Republican Party presidential primary ballot), 6501 (American Independent Party presidential primary ballot), and 6821 (Peace and Freedom Party presidential primary ballot).

[11] Related Matters

Provisions governing Recall Elections [Elec. Code § 11000 et seq.] and proposed state measures [Elec. Code § 9000 et seq.; Gov. Code § 88001 et seq.] are discussed in Ch. 302, Initiative, Referendum, and Recall .

[12] Death of Candidate Soon Before Election

Several statutes prescribe procedures to be followed when a candidate dies within a short period before the scheduled election in which his or her name would be on the ballot. The general statute is Elec. Code § 15402, pursuant to which the election would proceed in spite of the death of the candidate if the candidate died after the 68th day before the election. If the deceased candidate is elected, the resulting vacancy in the office is to be filled in the same manner as if the candidate had died after taking office for the term in question.

Elec. Code § 8026 states an exception for a comparatively rare situation, which is the death of either candidate, after 12:01 a.m. of the 68th day before the election, in a two-candidate contest for a nonpartisan, nonjudicial office, when one of the candidates is the incumbent. In that case, the scheduled election is not to proceed (as to the office in question); instead the contest is to be concluded by a special election, to be held within a specified time frame [Faulder v. Mendocino County Bd. of Supervisors (2007) 144 Cal. App. 4th 1362, 1373, 51 Cal. Rptr. 3d 251]. When the death of either candidate in such a two-candidate contest occurs after the 88th day but before the 68th day before the election, no special election is to be held, but the filing period is to be reopened so that additional candidates can enter the race [Elec. Code § 8027].

Elec. Code § 8025 covers the case in which only one candidate has declared a candidacy for a partisan nomination at the direct primary election for a party qualified to participate at that election, and that candidate dies after the last day prescribed for the delivery of nomination documents to the elections official, but not less than 83 days before the election. Any qualified person [see Elec. Code § 8001] may circulate nomination documents for the office and deliver the documents to the elections official, up to 5:00 p.m. on the 74th day before the election. In that case, the elections official must, immediately after receipt of those nomination documents, certify and transmit them to the Secretary of State.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Preelection Duties and Correction of Ballot Errors

20-243 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 243.33

§ 243.33 Candidacy

[1] Eligibility

Unless otherwise specifically provided, no person is eligible to be elected or appointed to an elective office unless he or she is a registered voter and otherwise qualified to vote for that office at the time that nomination papers are issued to the person or at the time of his or her appointment [Elec. Code § 201].

[2] Independent Nominations

A candidate for any public office, including that of presidential elector, for which no nonpartisan candidate has been nominated or elected at any primary election, may be nominated subsequent to or in lieu of a primary election [Elec. Code § 8300].

[3] Qualification

In order to be considered a legally qualified candidate for any office or party nomination for a partisan office under California law, a person must either: (1) file a declaration of candidacy or declaration of acceptance of nomination with the proper election official for the particular election or primary; or (2) be entitled to have his or her name placed on a general election ballot by reason of having been nominated at a primary election or having been selected to fill a vacancy on the general election ballot as provided in Elec. Code § 8806 or having been selected as an independent candidate pursuant to Elec. Code § 8504 [Elec. Code § 13(a)].

These requirements do not prohibit any California voter from casting a ballot for any person by writing in that person's name, or from having that ballot counted or tabulated. They also do not prevent or prohibit any person from standing or campaigning for any elective office by means of a "write-in" campaign [Elec. Code § 13(b)]. However, Section 13 does not operate as an exception to the requirements that are prerequisites to having votes for a write-in candidate counted, including filing a statement of write-in candidacy and nomination papers [Elec. Code § 13(b); see Elec. Code §§ 8600 et

Candidates for specified county offices (for example, district attorney, sheriff, superintendent of schools, county treasurer, county tax collector, county treasurer-tax collector, and judges of the municipal and superior courts) must satisfy additional documentation requirements [see Elec. Code § 13.5].

A political party that has participated in a primary election for a partisan office has the right to participate in the general election for that office and shall not be denied the ability to place on the general election ballot the candidate who received, at the primary election, the highest vote among that party's candidates [Cal. Const., art. II, § 5(b)].

[b] District Elections

Qualifications of a candidate for elective office and of an elective officer of a district are determined by the principal act of that district [Elec. Code § 10514].

[c] Affiliation With Political Party

No declaration of candidacy for a partisan office or for membership on a county central committee is to be filed by a candidate unless at the time the declaration is presented and continuously for not less than three months immediately prior thereto, or for as long as the candidate has been eligible to register to vote in the state, the candidate is shown by his or her affidavit of registration to be affiliated with the political party, the nomination of which he or she seeks [Elec. Code § 8001(a)(1)].

Additionally, the candidate must not have been registered as affiliated with a qualified political party other than that political party the nomination of which he or she seeks within 12 months, or in the case of an election to fill a vacancy, three months, immediately before the filing of the declaration of candidacy [Elec. Code § 8001(a)(2)].

The provisions of Elec. Code § 8001 do not apply to: (1) declarations of candidacy filed by a candidate of a political party participating in its first direct primary subsequent to its qualification under Elec. Code § 5100 [Elec. Code § 8001(b)]; and (2) the independent nomination of candidates for any public office, including that of presidential elector, subsequent to or in lieu of a primary election as provided in Elec. Code § 8300 et seq. [see Elec. Code § 8003 (also providing that independent nomination is not available to party candidate defeated for nomination at direct primary)].

[d] Independent Nomination

A candidate for whom a nomination paper has been filed as a partisan candidate at a primary election, and who is defeated for his or her party nomination at the primary election is ineligible for nomination as an independent candidate [Elec. Code § 8301].

[4] Declaration of Candidacy

Declaration of candidacy is made by a personal declaration of the candidate [Elec. Code §§ 8040 (direct primary), 10511 (district election)] or by sponsors who sign a nomination paper on behalf of the candidate [Elec. Code §§ 8041 (direct primary), 8400 (independent nomination), 10220 (municipal election)]. The Elections Code prescribes the form for a declaration of candidacy [see Elec. Code §§ 8040 (direct primary), 10511 (district election)] and a nomination paper [see Elec. Code §§ 8041 (direct primary), 8409 (independent nomination), 10226 (municipal election)]. The number of signatures required for a nomination paper is set out in Elec. Code §§ 8062, 8067 (direct primary), 8400, 8402 (independent nomination), and Elec. Code § 10220 (municipal election). Qualifications of the signers for a nomination paper are set out in Elec. Code §§ 8068, 8069 (direct primary), 8401 (independent nomination), and 10221 (municipal election).

[5] Declaration of Write-in Candidacy

A person desiring to be a write-in candidate and have his or her name as written on the ballot counted for a particular office must file a statement of write-in candidacy in the manner prescribed by Elec. Code § 8600. The statement must be accompanied by the required number of signatures on the nomination papers, if any, required by Elec. Code §§ 8062 (direct primary), 10220 (municipal election), or in the case of a special district not subject to the Uniform District Election Law [Elec. Code § 10500 et seq.], the number of signatures required by the principal act of the district [Elec. Code § 8600]. Nomination papers for a write-in candidate must be in substantially the form set forth in Elec. Code § 8041 [Elec. Code § 8602]. Write-in candidacies for the office of presidential elector are specifically governed by Elec. Code § 8650 et seq.

[6] Delivery of Nomination Documents

Declarations of candidacy [see Elec. Code §§ 8040 (direct primary), 8350 (independent nomination), 8600 (write-in candidate for any election), 10511 (district election)] and nomination papers [see Elec. Code §§ 8041 (direct primary), 8602 (write-in candidate for any election), 10226 (municipal elections)] in the form prescribed by the Elections Code must be delivered to the proper public official within the time prescribed by the code [see Elec. Code §§ 8020, 8021 (direct primary), 8403 (independent nomination), 8601 (write-in candidate for any election), 10226 (municipal election), 10510 (district election)].

Nomination papers must be accompanied by an affidavit of the circulator of the papers [Elec. Code §§ 8041 (direct primary), 8409 (independent nomination), 10226 (municipal election)]. Additionally, all candidates must deliver an affidavit of acceptance of nomination [see Elec. Code §§ 8040 (direct primary), 8550 (independent nomination), 10223, 10226 (municipal election), 10511 (district election)].

[b] Statements by Candidates

[i] Nonpartisan Local Office Candidate

Each candidate for nonpartisan elective office in any local agency may prepare and submit to the proper public official a personal statement of the candidate's qualifications for the office. The statement is to be filed in the form and manner prescribed by the Elections Code [see Elec. Code §§ 13307, 13309; see also Elec. Code § 10540 (statement of candidate in district election)]. The word "qualifications" as used in Elec. Code § 13307 does not encompass attacks on one's opponents, but does encompass a candidates's ideas or platform [Hammond v. Agran (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 1181, 1183, 1192-1193, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 876 (candidate's views on issues, that contains no direct criticism of another candidate, does not constitute attack on opponent)].

[ii] Candidate for Congress

A candidate for U.S. Senator may purchase the space to place a statement in the state ballot pamphlet that does not exceed 250 words. The statement may not make any reference to any opponent of the candidate. The statement must be submitted in accordance with time frames and procedures set forth by the Secretary of State for the preparation of the state ballot pamphlet [Elec. Code § 9084(i); Gov. Code § 88001(i)].

A candidate for U.S. Representative may purchase the space to place a statement in the voter information portion of the sample ballot that does not exceed 250 words. The statement may not make reference to any opponent of the candidate. The statement must be submitted in accordance with the time frames and procedures set forth in the Elections Code for the preparation of the voter information portion of the sample ballot [Elec. Code § 13307.5].

[c] Declaration of Intention of Candidate for State Senator, Member of Assembly, Insurance Commissioner, or Any State Constitutional Office

In the case of candidates for a party nomination for the office of State Senator or Member of the Assembly, any state constitutional office, or Insurance Commissioner, the candidate must file nomination documents to become a candidate for his or her party's nomination for that office [Elec. Code § 8022]. The declaration of intention must be filed in the form and manner prescribed by the Elections Code [see Elec. Code § 8022].

[d] Extension of Time for Delivery of Documents

The time of delivery is extended if an incumbent fails to deliver his or her nomination documents or declaration of candidacy [Elec. Code §§ 8024 (direct primary), 10225 (municipal election), 10516 (district election)] or in the event of the death of a sole candidate [Elec. Code § 8204 (direct primary)]. In any event, all nomination documents that are delivered for filing to the elections official in compliance with Elec. Code § 8020 and that are not required to be filed in the Secretary of State's office [see [9], below] must be filed with the elections official by the eighty-third day before the election in the case of a direct primary [Elec. Code § 8021].

[7] Filing Fees or Petition in Lieu Thereof

The payment of filing fees for declaration of candidacy is governed by Elec. Code §§ 8103 et seq. (direct primary), 10228 (municipal election), and 10503 (applying general election laws to district election). An alternative means of access to the ballot is provided by Elec. Code § 8106, which allows a candidate for any elective office to submit a petition containing a specified number of signatures of registered voters in lieu of a filing fee. No fee or charge is required of a write-in candidate, except in the case of a candidate for city office pursuant to Elec. Code § 10228 [Elec. Code § 8604].

[8] In-Lieu-Filing-Fee Petition

Notwithstanding any other contrary provision of law, if a candidate informs the elections official that he or she intends to submit an in-lieu-filing-fee petition pursuant to Elec. Code § 8106, the elections official must issue the candidate a special in-lieu-filing-fee petition, which must contain in substantially the same form the text of Elec. Code § 8041(b) [see Elec. Code § 8106(b)]. The candidate must also receive the in-lieu-filing-fee petition prescribed in Elec. Code § 8106 [Elec. Code § 8061].

All valid signatures appearing on the special in-lieu-filing-fee petition must be counted towards the number of signatures required to be submitted pursuant to Elec. Code §§ 8062 and 8106. If the candidate obtains the required number of valid signatures on the special in-lieu-filing-fee petition required under the provisions of Elec. Code § 8062, the candidate is not required to execute a nomination paper as set forth in Elec. Code § 8041 [Elec. Code § 8061].

If the number of signatures affixed to an in-lieu-filing-fee petition filed pursuant to Elec. Code § 8106 is 100 or more, the clerk may use a random sampling technique for verification of the signatures. If a random sampling technique is used and the number of signatures on a petition is 100 or more but less than 2,000, the random sampling must include an examination of 100 signatures. If the number of signatures on a petition is 2,000 or more, the random sampling must include an examination of 5 percent of the signatures. On completion of the verification of signatures in the sample, the percentage of signatures that are valid must be applied and projected to the total number of signatures submitted [Elec. Code § 8084].

If a special in-lieu-filing-fee petition does not contain the required number of valid signatures as set forth in Elec. Code § 8062, the candidate is entitled to file, within the time period allowed for filing nomination papers, a nomination paper, in order to obtain the number of valid signatures required to be submitted to the county clerk on a nomination paper. A candidate who submits a nomination paper pursuant to this provision is required to obtain only the number of signatures needed thereon to supplement the special in-lieu-filing-fee petition so that the combination of signatures appearing on the special in-lieu-filing-fee petition and the nomination paper equals or exceeds the required number of signatures set forth in Elec. Code § 8062 [Elec. Code § 8061].

[9] Verification and Transmittal to Secretary of State

In a direct primary election certain nomination documents [see Elec. Code §§ 8100(a), 8504 (independent nomination)] must be transmitted by the county clerk to the office of the Secretary of State [Elec. Code §§ 8082, 8100(a), 8504; see Elec. Code § 8022]. All other nomination documents are to be filed in the county elections official's office [Elec. Code § 8100(b)].

All nomination documents must be verified by the county elections official, and documents to be filed with the Secretary of State must be forwarded within the prescribed time [see Elec. Code § 8082] and accompanied by a statement of verification by the county elections official [see Elec. Code § 8083].

The place of filing, pursuant to Elec. Code §§ 8100 and 8504 (independent nominations), is important in determining the proper defendants in an action to compel the performance of any official preelection duty [see § 243, form for petition for writ of mandate to compel correction of error and/or enjoin neglect of duty].

§ 243.37 Time for Filing Petition for Writ of Mandate

Elec. Code § 13314 is intended to provide for correction of errors and omissions in official voting materials before their use in elections and not after the elections have been held. It does not give a court the power to invalidate an election already conducted and to order another election [Kilbourne v. City of Carpinteria (1976) 56 Cal. App. 3d 11, 16, 128 Cal. Rptr. 133] . Accordingly, it would appear that the proceeding should be commenced sufficiently in advance of the election so as not to interfere with the election [see Elec. Code § 13314].

§ 243.39 Proceedings to Amend or Delete Material In Voter's Pamphlet

Not less than 10 calendar days before the election official submits the official voter's pamphlet referred to in Elec. Code § 13307 for printing, the elections officer must make a copy of the voter's pamphlet available for public examination in the elections official's office [Elec. Code § 13313(a)].

During this examination period, any voter of the jurisdiction in which the election is being held, or the elections official himself or herself, may seek a writ of mandate, or an injunction requiring any and all of the materials in the voter's pamphlet to be amended or deleted [Elec. Code § 13313(b)(1)]. A peremptory writ of mandate or an injunction can issue only on clear and convincing proof of both of the following [Elec. Code § 13313(b)(1)(A), (B)]:

- The material in question is false, misleading, or inconsistent with the requirements of Elec. Code § 13300 et seq.

- Issuance of the writ or injunction will not substantially interfere with the printing or distribution of official election material provided by law.

For example, Elec. Code § 13307 delineates the contents of a statement by a candidate for a nonpartisan local office [see § 243.33[6][b][i]], and a candidate who is the subject of impermissible comments in his or her opponent's statement may use Elec. Code § 13313 to petition for a writ of mandate directing the registrar of voters to delete the improper material from the voter's pamphlet [Dean v. Superior Court (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 638, 640-642, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 70] .

Elec. Code § 13313(b)(2) specifies who should be named as respondent and real party in interest depending on who seeks the writ of mandate or injunction.

§ 243.52 Definitions

[1] Voting System

The term "voting system" means any mechanical, electromechanical, or electronic system and its software, or any combination of such systems used to cast or tabulate votes or both [Elec. Code § 362].

[2] Precinct Board

The term "precinct board" means the board appointed by the elections official [see Elec. Code § 320 (defining "elections official")] to serve at a single precinct or a consolidated precinct. When used in relation to proceedings taking place after the polls have closed, the term includes any substitutive canvassing and counting board that may have been appointed to take the place of the board theretofore serving [Elec. Code § 339].

[3] Completion of Canvass

For the purposes of Elec. Code §§ 15620, 15621, which provide for a voter-requested recount, the term "completion of the canvass" is presumed to be that time when the elections official signs the certified statement of the results of the election. However, in the case of a city election, if a city council canvasses the returns itself and does not order the elections official to conduct the canvass as permitted by Elec. Code § 10263, the term is presumed to be that time when the governing body declares the persons elected or the measures approved of defeated [Elec. Code § 15620; see Elec. Code § 15621].

§ 243.53 Persons Entitled to Obtain Recount

A recount of the ballots in a precinct may be ordered by the elections official under certain circumstances [see Elec. Code § 15610], requested by any voter on behalf of a candidate, slate of electors, or position on a measure (affirmative or negative) [see Elec. Code §§ 15620, 15621], or ordered by the superior court on the petition of a district attorney after a request by the board of supervisors or the grand jury [see Elec. Code § 15640(a)].

Recount is also a remedy available to an elector contesting an election held in a county, city, or political subdivision of either [see Elec. Code § 16100 (grounds for contest)], as well as to a candidate at a primary election in contesting the right of another candidate to nomination to the same office as that for which the contest is a candidate [see Elec. Code § 16101 (grounds for contest by candidate)]. For a discussion of recount in both such cases, see §§ 243.60 et seq., 243.80 et seq.

[1] Generally

In elections not voted-on statewide, any voter may request a recount of votes cast for candidates for any office, for slates of presidential electors, or for or against any measure by filing a written request with the elections official responsible for conducting an election in the county in which the recount is sought within five days following the completion of the official canvass. In elections conducted in more than one county, the recount request may be filed with the appropriate elections official of any or all of the affected counties. The request must specify on behalf of which candidate, slate of electors, or position on a measure (affirmative or negative) it is filed [Elec. Code § 15620].

Any voter may request a recount of votes cast for candidates for any statewide office or for or against any measure voted-on statewide by filing a written request within five days beginning on the twenty-ninth day after a statewide election with the secretary of state, who in turn sends a copy to the elections official of each county affected by the request. The request must specify in which county or counties the recount is sought and on behalf of which candidate, slate of electors, or position on a measure (affirmative or negative) it is filed [Elec. Code § 15621].

The request may specify the order in which the precincts are to be recounted [Elec. Code § 15622].

[2] Additional Voter Requests

Any time during the conduct of a recount and for 24 hours thereafter, any other voter may request the recount of any precincts in an election for the same office, slate of presidential electors, or measure not recounted as a result of the original request [Elec. Code § 15623].

[3] Deposit Required

The voter filing the request seeking the recount must, before the recount is commenced and at the beginning of each day following, deposit with the elections official such sum as the elections official requires to cover the cost of the recount for that day. This money will be returned to the depositor if, on completion of the recount, the candidate, slate of presidential electors, or the position on the measure for which the declaration was filed is found to have received the plurality of votes cast that it had not received according to the official canvass or, when there are two or more candidates in an election, the recount results in the appearance on the ballot in a subsequent runoff election or general election, of the candidate who would not have so appeared in the absence of the recount [Elec. Code § 15624].

The depositor is entitled to the return of any money deposited in excess of the cost of the recount if the candidate, slate, or position on the measure has not received the plurality of the votes cast or, when there are two or more candidates in an election, the recount does not result in the candidate for whom the recount was requested appearing on the ballot in a subsequent runoff or general election as a result of the recount [Elec. Code § 15624].

[4] Commencement and Duration of Recount

The recount must be commenced not more than seven days following the request for recount under Elec. Code § 15620 or 15621, and must be continued daily, Saturdays, Sundays, and holidays excepted, for not less than six hours each day until completed. The recount shall not be commenced until the first day following notification of the individuals specified in Elec. Code § 15628 [Elec. Code § 15626].

[5] Determining Method of Recount

If in an election subject to recount the votes were recorded by means of a punch card voting system [see Elec. Code § 344 (defining "punch card")] or by electronic or electromechanical vote tabulating devices, the voter who filed the request for recount may select whether the recount will be conducted manually, or by means of the voting system used originally, or both [Elec. Code § 15627(a)]. For purposes of direct recording electronic voting systems, "conducted manually" means that either the paper record copies or the voter verified paper audit trail of the electronically recorded vote are counted manually, as selected by the voter who requests the recount [Elec. Code § 15627(b)].

[6] Notice and Public Recount

At least one day before commencement of the recount, the elections official must post a notice as to the date and place of the recount and notify all persons for whom separate notice is prescribed by Elec. Code § 15628. The recount must be conducted publicly [Elec. Code § 15629].

[7] Examination and Challenge of Ballots

All ballots, whether voted or not, and any other relevant material may be examined as part of any recount if the voter requesting the recount so requests [Elec. Code § 15630; e.g., Americans for Safe Access v. County of Alameda (2009) 174 Cal. App. 4th 1287, 1292, 95 Cal. Rptr. 3d 246 (request for examination of four kinds of "other relevant material" was improperly denied by registrar of voters, whose ground for denial was his conclusion that those materials were not relevant)]. No examination of any ballot can include touching or handling the ballot without the express consent of the elections official or election officer supervising the special recount board. No ballot may be touched or handled during the examination unless the elections official or election officer supervising the special recount is present to observe the examination. Apart from the foregoing, no ballot can be touched or handled by any person during the recount unless that person is the elections official, a person acting at the direction of the elections official, a member of the special recount board, or by order of the superior court [Elec. Code § 15630]. On recount, ballots may be challenged for incompleteness, ambiguity, or other defects in accordance with the following procedure: (1) the person challenging the ballot must state the reason for the challenge; (2) the official counting the ballot must count it as he or she believes proper and then set it aside with a notation as to how it was counted; and (3) the elections official, must, before the recount is completed, determine if the challenge is to be allowed. The decision of the elections official is final [Elec. Code § 15631].

[8] Entry of Result of Recount

If on completion of the recount a different election result is found, that result is entered in each precinct affected thereby, and for all purposes thereafter constitutes the official returns of those precincts for the office, slate, or measure involved in the recount [Elec. Code § 15632].

If the office, measure, or slates of presidential electors are not voted-on statewide, the results of any recount that is not completed by counting the votes in each and every precinct in the jurisdiction within which the votes were cast on the candidates for the office, on the slates of electors, or on the measure in question will be declared null and void. If the office, measure, or slates of presidential electors are voted-on statewide, the results of any recount will be declared null and void if each vote cast for the office, slates, or measure in any county specified in the request for recount filed with the secretary of state is not recounted [Elec. Code § 15632].

[9] Posting Results

A copy of the results of any recount must be posted conspicuously in the office of the elections official [Elec. Code § 15633].

D. Proceedings Relating to Election Contests
1. Contests of General Elections

20-243 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 243.61

§ 243.61 Governing Law

Contests of general elections are governed by Elec. Code § 16200 et seq. These provisions relate to election to office and not to nomination. Elec. Code § 16300 et seq. govern contests of nomination at a primary election [see § 243.80 et seq.]. When a candidate is actually elected to a nonpartisan office at a primary election [see Elec. Code § 8140], any contest thereof is brought under the provisions for contest of a general election [Elec. Code § 16200 et seq.] rather than those relating to primary elections [see Doran v. Biscailuz (1954) 128 Cal. App. 2d 55, 60, 274 P.2d 691 (decided under a constitutional provision that was repealed in 1972 and replaced by Elec. Code § 8142)]. The procedure to be followed by the contestant is set forth in Elec. Code § 16400 et seq. and that to be followed by the clerk of the superior court and court is set forth in Elec. Code § 16500 et seq.

Elec. Code § 16200 specifically provides that statutory election contests do not apply to elections of members of the California Legislature. Election contests regarding official general or special elections to choose a Representative to the United States Congress are governed by 2 U.S.C. § 381 et seq. and are outside the scope of this chapter.

In the case of a contest of the election of members of a party central committee, who are elected at a "direct primary" election [Elec. § 316], the governing law is that which applies to contests of general elections, not the law applicable to contests of primary elections, because in spite of the designation of the election as a "direct primary" election, it is a final election insofar as it concerns members of a party central committee, just as a general election is final concerning the candidates who are on the general election ballot [Cummings v. Stanley, 177 Cal. App. 4th 493, 514, 99 Cal. Rptr. 3d 284 (complaint to contest election of members of party central committee must be filed within 30 days pursuant to Elec. Code §§ 16400 and 16401, which apply to contest of "any election"; five-day period mandated by Elec. Code §§ 16421 for contest of primary election does not apply because election of committee members in "direct primary" election is final and thus does not conform to definition of "primary election" in Elec. Code § 341)].

§ 243.63 Nature of Election Contest Proceedings

An election contest is a special proceeding [Dorsey v. Barry (1864) 24 Cal. 449, 451-452] , although the proceeding is considered under the rules of law and evidence governing the determination of law and fact, so far as they are applicable [Elec. Code § 16602; see Elec. Code § 16620 (court's powers to determine issues in primary election contests)]. If the Code of Civil Procedure is incompatible with the Elections Code, then the Elections Code governs. For example, Code Civ. Proc. § 437c, which prohibits a summary judgment motion until 60 days from the date of a general appearance, has been held to be incompatible with Elections Code provisions requiring that an election contest trial commence no later than 45 days from the time notice of the contest is filed [Anderson v. County of Santa Barbara (1977) 56 Cal. App. 3d 780, 786-787, 128 Cal. Rptr. 707 (decided under former Elections Code requiring filing with county clerk unlike now under Elec. Code § 16400 requiring filing with clerk of superior court having jurisdiction); see Elec. Code §§ 16401, 16500, 16600, 16603, 16900 (provisions governing general election contests); 16443, 16520, 16920 (provisions governing primary election contests); 16462, 16464, 16540, 16741 (provisions governing simple recount)]. Accordingly, by the time a summary judgment motion can be made, the trial of the election contest must have been commenced and often will have been concluded [see Anderson v. County of Santa Barbara (1976) 56 Cal. App. 3d 780, 783, 786-787, 128 Cal. Rptr. 707 ; see § 243.80 et seq., for further discussion of primary election contests and recount contests].

§ 243.65 Grounds of Contest

The possible grounds of contest of a general election are that [Elec. Code § 16100]:

- The precinct board or any member of the board was guilty of malconduct;
- The person declared elected to an office was not, at the time of the election, eligible to that office;
- The defendant has given to any elector or member of a precinct board any bribe or reward, or has offered any bribe or reward for the purpose of procuring his or her election, or has committed any other offense against the elective franchise;
- Illegal votes were cast;
- Eligible voters who attempted to vote in accordance with the laws of the state were denied their right to vote;
- The precinct board, in conducting the election or in canvassing the returns, made errors sufficient to change the result of the election as to any person declared elected; or
- There was an error in the vote-counting programs or summation of ballot counts.

Elec. Code §§ 16201-16203 prescribe the showing that must be made at the trial on these grounds for a successful contest and are outlined in the Procedural Checklist, § 243.120[1].

The bases for an election contest enumerated in Gov. Code § 16100 are exclusive. However, an election may be set aside if a nonenumerated act of malconduct affects the electoral machinery itself and thus renders the result unconstitutional [McKinney v. Superior Court (2004) 124 Cal. App. 4th 951, 959-960, 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 773 (city clerk's qualification of third-person as write-in candidate and space on the ballot for write-in candidates was insufficient to find interference with electoral machinery)].

The presiding judge must immediately designate the time and place of hearing, which time cannot be less than 10 nor more than 20 days from the date of the judge's order [Elec. Code § 16500]. § 243.67 Remedies

[1] When Available

After hearing the evidence of the parties and within 10 days after the submission thereof the court must file its findings of fact and conclusions of law. Immediately thereafter the court must pronounce judgment in the premises, either confirming or annulling and setting aside the election [Elec. Code § 16603], or if it appears that a person other than the defendant has the highest number of legal votes, the court must declare that person to be elected [Elec. Code § 16703; see Stebbins v. Gonzales (1992) 3 Cal. App. 4th 1138, 1142-1145, 5 Cal. Rptr. 2d 88 (when it can be determined with certainty which candidate received highest number of legal votes elected, trial court has no authority under former Elec. Code § 20087 [now see Elec. Code § 16703] but to declare that candidate elected); Snibley v. Palmtag (1900) 128 Cal. 283, 284, 60 P. 860 (tie is insufficient to change result)].

[2] When Election Will Be Set Aside

[a] Illegal Votes

An election cannot be set aside on account of illegal votes, unless it appears that a number of illegal votes have been given to the person whose right to the office is contested or who has been certified as having tied for first place, which, if taken from him or her, would reduce the number of his or her legal votes below the number of votes given to some other person for the same office, after deducting therefrom the illegal votes which may be shown to have been given to that other person [Elec. Code § 16203].

[b] Candidate's Commission of Offense Against Elective Franchise

An elector may contest the election of a candidate who has given any bribe or reward to any elector or member of a precinct board, who has offered any bribe or reward for the purpose of procuring his or her election, or who has committed any other offense against the elective franchise as defined in Elec. Code § 18000 et seq. [Elec. Code § 16100(c)]. The successful candidate need not have been convicted of the offense before the contest is commenced, but if no conviction has been obtained, the elector must establish that the candidate in fact committed the offense. For the purposes of the contest proceeding, the commission of the offense must be proven by a preponderance of the evidence [Pierce v. Harrold (1982) 138 Cal. App. 3d 415, 426-427, 188 Cal. Rptr. 458 ; but see Stebbins v. White (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 769, 779 n.3, 784 n.11, 235 Cal. Rptr. 656 (noting that standard of proof is unclear and that trial court applied clear and convincing standard of proof)]. The commission of bribery or any other offense against the elective franchise committed by a candidate invalidates that candidate's election [Stebbins v. White (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 769, 772-773, 235 Cal. Rptr. 656] .

For forms of allegations for use in an election contest based on Elec. Code §§ 16100(c) and 18000 et seq., see § 243.172.

[c] Interference With Election Process

When an election is contested on the ground that it was illegal, unless it was plainly illegal, the court must validate the election [Rideout v. City of Los Angeles (1921) 185 Cal. 426, 430, 197 P. 74 ; Hardeman v. Thomas (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 153, 166, 256 Cal. Rptr. 158] . A finding that the fairness, purity, or freedom of an election has been materially interfered with so as to change the election result, however, will give rise to invalidation of an election [Williams v. Venneman (1941) 42 Cal. App. 2d 618, 620-621, 109 P.2d 757 (violence and intimidation of voters at polls); see People v. Prewett (1899) 124 Cal. 7, 11-12, 56 P. 619 (threat made that no one would be allowed to vote unless he or she was reregistered did not invalidate election since no one was in fact challenged for failure to reregister)].

[d] Noncompliance With Laws Governing Conduct of Election

Election violations with regard to the official conduct of elections may also constitute a basis for invalidating an election. However, a distinction is made between provisions that are mandatory and those that are merely directory. Absent an express statutory declaration, the determination of whether an election law provision is mandatory or directory depends on the character of the act prescribed. If the act enjoined goes to the substance or necessarily affects the merits or results of the election, it is mandatory; otherwise it is directory [Rideout v. City of Los Angeles (1921) 185 Cal. 426, 430-431, 197 P. 74 ; Hardeman v. Thomas (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 153, 166, 256 Cal. Rptr. 158] .

A violation of mandatory provision vitiates the election. A departure from a directory provision does not render the election void if there is a substantial observance of the law and no showing that the election has been changed or the rights of the voters injuriously affected by the deviation [Rideout v. City of Los Angeles (1921) 185 Cal. 426, 430, 197 P. 74 (deviation in ballot printing requirements not sufficient basis for invalidation of election absent proof of fraudulent intent on the part of election officials); see Davis v. County of Los Angeles (1938) 12 Cal. 2d 412, 426, 84 P.2d 1034 (technical errors and irregularities in carrying out directory provisions that did not mislead voters held to be immaterial and have no effect on the election result)]. If the violations of directory provisions are not so gross or radical as to give rise to a presumption of unfairness, the burden is on the contestant to prove that unfairness resulted from the violation [Rideout v. City of Los Angeles (1921) 185 Cal. 426, 432-433, 197 P. 74] .

This subpart discusses proceedings to contest the declared results of a primary election in which no candidate was actually elected. For a procedural checklist outlining the procedures to be followed in a primary election contest, see § 243.130 et seq. For forms of declarations contesting the right to nomination for partisan office and nonpartisan office, see §§ 243.190, 243.191. For a form of an answer and cross declaration contesting the declared results, see § 243.192. For a form of answering declaration in a contest involving a simple recount, see § 243.193.

As noted in the previous subpart on contests of general elections [see § 243.60 et seq.], when a candidate for a nonpartisan office is elected to office, as distinguished from nomination therefor, the code provision relating to contests of primary elections do not apply. Rather, the contest is brought under the provisions governing contests of general elections [Doran v. Biscailuz (1954) 128 Cal. App. 2d 55, 60, 274 P.2d 691 (decided under a constitutional provision that was repealed in 1972 and replaced by Elec. Code § 8142); McClintock v. Abel (1937) 21 Cal. App. 2d 11, 16-17, 68 P.2d 273 ; see § 243.60 et seq.].

§ 243.81 Governing Law

The procedure for contesting a primary election is governed by applicable provisions throughout Elec. Code § 16000 et seq. The grounds for contest are set out in Elec. Code § 16101.

In the case of a contest of the election of members of a party central committee, who are elected at a "direct primary" election [Elec. § 316], the governing law is that which applies to contests of general elections, not the law applicable to contests of primary elections, because in spite of the designation of the election as a "direct primary" election, it is a final election insofar as it concerns members of a party central committee, just as a general election is final concerning the candidates who are on the general election ballot [Cummings v. Stanley, 177 Cal. App. 4th 493, 514, 99 Cal. Rptr. 3d 284 (complaint to contest election of members of party central committee must be filed within 30 days pursuant to Elec. Code '§ 16400 and 16401, which apply to contest of "any election"; five-day period mandated by Elec. Code §§ 16421 for contest of primary election does not apply because election of committee members in "direct primary" election is final and thus does not conform to definition of "primary election" in Elec. Code § 341)].

- The defendant has committed an offense in violation of the Elections Code [see Elec. Code § 18000 et seq. (penal provisions)];

- A sufficient number of votes were illegal, fraudulent, forged, or otherwise improper, and that had such votes not been counted, defendant would not have received as many votes as contestant;

- A sufficient number of eligible voters who attempted to vote in accordance with the laws of the state were denied their right to vote, and that had those voters been permitted to vote, the defendant would not have received as many votes as the contestant; and

- Due to mistake, error, or misconduct the votes in any precinct were so incorrectly counted as the change the result of the election.

Chapter 243 ELECTIONS
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

20-243 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 243.107

§ 243.107 Decisions

[1] Definitions

Direct primary is regular election for purposes of former Elec. Code § 22807 [now see Elec. Code § 10201], providing that proposition may be submitted at regular election, or special election may be called, by ordinance or resolution, for purpose of voting on proposition. O'Connor v. Superior Court (1979) 90 Cal. App. 3d 107, 112-113, 153 Cal. Rptr. 306

[2] Preelection Procedure

State political party rule permitting independent voters (registered voters not affiliated with any political party) to vote in party primaries for federal and statewide offices is valid, despite state statute requiring voters in any party primary to be registered members of that party, because statute impermissibly burdens party's and its members' First Amendment and Fourteenth Amendment rights to enter into political association with individuals of their own choosing. Tashjian v. Republican Party of Connecticut (1986) 479 U.S. 208, 210-211, 229, 107 S. Ct. 544, 93 L. Ed. 2d 514

States are permitted to condition minor-party or independent candidate's access to general election ballot on showing of a modicum of support among potential voters without violating either First Amendment rights of individuals to associate for political purposes or Fourteenth Amendment rights of voters to cast votes effectively; states are not required to show voter confusion, ballot overcrowding, or presence of frivolous candidacies before imposition of reasonable restrictions on ballot access. Munro v. Socialist Workers Party (1986) 479 U.S. 189, 193-195, 107 S. Ct. 533, 93 L. Ed. 2d 499

State may legitimately allow political parties to close primaries to nonmembers, given state's interest in protecting associational rights of party members and preserving integrity of electoral process. Ziskis v. Symington (9th Cir. 1995) 47 F.3d 1004, 1006

A charter provision prohibiting write-in voting in runoff elections for municipal offices does not violate the free speech clause of Cal. Const. art. I, § 2(a); and Canaan v. Abdelnour (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 703, 221 Cal. Rptr. 468 is overruled to the extent it holds that a total ban on write-in voting in a city election is prohibited by the free speech clause of Cal. Const. art. I, § 2(a). Edelstein v. City and County of San Francisco (2002) 29 Cal. 4th 164, 172-183, 126 Cal. Rptr. 2d 727

California City's decision to restrict the vote on a local measure to city residents was rationally based and did not violate the equal protection clause of the federal or state constitutions, as the city could have determined that the residents are most knowledgeable and interested in all aspects of local affairs, on both the revenue and expenditure side of its ledger. Neilson v. City of California City (2005) 133 Cal. App. 4th 1296, 1317, 35 Cal. Rptr. 3d 453

The Legislature's decision to exclude voters on the inactive file of registered voters from the calculation to determine whether a political party qualifies to participate in a primary election pursuant to Elec. Code § 5100(b) passes constitutional muster. Because information in the inactive file is unreliable and often duplicative of information in the file of active voters, the exclusion is a reasonable, nondiscriminatory restriction that furthers the state's compelling interest in protecting the integrity and stability of the electoral process in California. Peace & Freedom Party v. Shelley (2004) 114 Cal. App. 4th 1237, 1247, 8 Cal. Rptr. 3d 497

Elections Code §§ 13112 and 13113 do not require a city clerk to request the Secretary of State to conduct a new randomized alphabet draw for the second round of voting in a single election (e.g., a runoff election following a primary election). A new randomized alphabet is not required for a runoff election with no new filing period or new candidates. Bradley v. Perrodin (2003) 106 Cal. App. 4th 1153, 1161-1165, 131 Cal. Rptr. 2d 402

Declarations of candidacy for would-be elected state officials do not have to include an affirmation that the candidate is not, nor has been for the last five years, a member of an organization advocating the overthrow of the government by force or violence. Jesson v. Davis (2002) 97 Cal. App. 4th 1032, 1035-1038, 118 Cal. Rptr. 2d 839

Trial court correctly issued peremptory writ of mandate ordering Registrar to accept plaintiff's ballot designation of her occupation as "administrative law judge"; ballot designation reflects a title authorized by statute, accurately describes plaintiff's occupation and does not mislead voters; such designation not impermissible under former Elec. Code § 10211 (now Elec. Code § 13107); professional title authorized by statute provides objective standard that election official may use as basis for approving a ballot designation; in contrast (citing Luke v. Superior Court (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 1360, 1363, 245 Cal. Rptr. 594), neither court commissioner nor any other individual not a judge, as that term is defined in the Constitution and state statutes, may use ballot designation containing word "judge" or derivative thereof. Andrews v. Valdez (1995) 40 Cal. App. 4th 492, 46 Cal. Rptr. 2d 744

Ballot access statutes are not subject to strict scrutiny standard of review unless restriction on candidate's access to ballot has real and appreciable impact on fundamental right to vote. Bullock v. Carter (1972) 405 U.S. 134, 92 S. Ct. 849, 31 L. Ed. 2d 92 ; Fridley v. Eu (1982) 131 Cal. App. 3d 100, 104, 182 Cal. Rptr. 232

Former Elec. Code §§ 6653 and 6661 [now see Elec. Code §§ 8605 and 8803], regarding the nomination of candidates by direct primary and by write-in votes, respectively, place only minimal burden on Libertarian Party's access to ballot; state has power to regulate method by which political parties nominate candidates. Lightfoot v. Eu (9th Cir. 1992) 964 F.2d 865, 868-873 , cert. denied, 507 U.S. 919

Former Elec. Code § 6555 [now see Elec. Code § 8106], allowing candidate for elective office to submit petition containing specified number of signatures of registered voters in lieu of filing fee, is constitutional. Andress v. Reed (9th Cir. 1989) 880 F.2d 239, 242

Charter city's broad power to regulate municipal elections is not relevant to constitutional challenge to city's election ordinances, because city may not regulate municipal election in manner that violates guarantees of state or federal constitutions. Canaan v. Abdelnour (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 703, 710, 221 Cal. Rptr. 468, 710 P.2d 268 , overruled in part by Edelstein v. City and County of San Francisco (2002) 29 Cal. 4th 164, 126 Cal. Rptr. 2d 727

Former Elec. Code § 6402 [now see Elec. Code § 8003], pertaining to independent nomination of candidates and prohibiting dual candidacy in same election, does not apply to selection of party county central committee members. Moore v. Panish (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 535, 538, 186 Cal. Rptr. 475, 652 P.2d 32

Former Elec. Code § 10212 [now see Elec. Code § 13105], requiring independent nominees to be listed on ballot as independents and not by their political parties, does not violate equal protection clause of state or federal constitutions. Libertarian Party v. Eu (1980) 28 Cal. 3d 535, 542-547, 170 Cal. Rptr. 25, 620 P.2d 612

Person desiring to be candidate for board of supervisors who has been elector in supervisorial district but who will be made nonresident thereof by redistricting is permitted to apply his or her previous place of residence to his or her new, or former, district, to end of becoming candidate of either; mandamus to compel registrar of voters to accept nomination papers. Wenke v. Hitchcock (1972) 6 Cal. 3d 746, 755, 100 Cal. Rptr. 290, 493 P.2d 1154

Alleged preference arising out of placement of incumbent's name first on ballot is not subject to judicial notice. Mexican-American Political Association v. Brown (1973) 8 Cal. 3d 733, 734, 106 Cal. Rptr. 12, 505 P.2d 204 ; Diamond v. Allison (1973) 8 Cal. 3d 736, 737, 106 Cal. Rptr. 13, 505 P.2d 205

Word "qualifications" as used in Elec. Code § 13307 does not encompass attacks on one's opponents, but does encompass candidates's ideas or platform; candidate's views on issues, that contains no direct criticism of another candidate, does not constitute attack on opponent; pursuant to petition for writ of mandate, trial court erred in striking candidates view on issues from candidate's statement. Hammond v. Agran (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 1181, 1183, 1192-1193, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 876

Under Elec. Code § 13307, candidate's statement for local office may comment on his or her own qualifications, but not on opponent's qualifications; when candidate sought to unseat incumbent in local election, but candidate's statement contained impermissible comments about incumbent, incumbent was entitled to writ of mandate under Elec. Code § 13313 directing registrar of voters to delete impermissible material in candidate's statement from voter's pamphlet. Dean v. Superior Court (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 638, 640-642, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 70

Candidate for city council who met burden of proof that he had intent before election to change his domicile to city where he ran for council seat overcome challenger's demonstration that candidate was domiciled in nonqualifying electoral jurisdiction. DeMiglio v. Mashore (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 1260, 1267-1271, 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 267 (reversal of trial court's order annulling election)

Disputes concerning election procedures are properly reviewable by appellate court even though election in question has occurred, if contentions raised are of general public interest and are likely to occur in future elections in a manner evasive of timely appellate review. Huening v. Eu (1991) 231 Cal. App. 3d 766, 770, 282 Cal. Rptr. 664 ; Gebert v. Patterson (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 868, 872, 231 Cal. Rptr. 150

Court commissioner or any other individual who is not a "judge" as defined in state constitution and statutes is not permitted to use ballot designation containing word "judge" or any derivative thereof. Luke v. Superior Court (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 1360, 1363, 245 Cal. Rptr. 594

Former Elec. Code § 10015 [now see Elec. Code § 13314] is intended to correct preelection ballot errors rather than to invalidate election that has already been conducted. Salazar v. City of Montebello (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 953, 956, 235 Cal. Rptr. 708

Former Elec. Code § 17113.5, which cancelled June 3, 1986, election for sheriff in San Mateo County, was unconstitutional special legislation prohibited by Cal. Const., art. IV, § 16, because of applicability of then existing general legislation, former Elec. Code § 17113 [now see Elec. Code § 15402], to that election. White v. Church (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 627, 630-631, 231 Cal. Rptr. 565

Former Elec. Code § 6661(a) [now see Elec. Code § 8605], requiring write-in candidate in primary election to receive at least 1 percent of votes cast for office sought at last preceding general election when office was filled, does not have appreciable impact on right to vote so as to require application of strict scrutiny standard of review. Fridley v. Eu (1982) 131 Cal. App. 3d 100, 104, 182 Cal. Rptr. 232

Former Elec. Code § 6661 [now see Elec. Code § 8605] is constitutionally valid because it is rationally related to legitimate state interests of avoiding confusion and deception at general election and fostering efficient operation of primary system. Fridley v. Eu (1982) 131 Cal. App. 3d 100, 104-106, 182 Cal. Rptr. 232

Proceeding in mandate is required to be filed before date of subject election. Kilbourne v. City of Carpinteria (1976) 56 Cal. App. 3d 11, 16, 128 Cal. Rptr. 133

[3] Right to Vote

Plaintiff's not barred by Legislature v. Eu (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 492, 286 Cal. Rptr. 283, 816 P.2d 1309 , from bringing action attacking constitutionality of Proposition 140's lifetime term limits because California would apply its public interest exception to res judicata doctrine and thus would reexamine merits of constitutional issue; Proposition 140's lifetime term limits held not to violate plaintiff's First and Fourteenth Amendment rights. Bates v. Jones (9th Cir. 1997) 131 F.3d 843, 845-847

Proposition 140, imposing term limits on state legislators, does not violate voter's right to vote for candidate of choice, because burden on voter is outweighed by state's strong interest in incumbency reform, and because less drastic alternatives to term limits are inadequate to achieve reform; any burden on voters is mitigated by continued right to vote for any qualified candidate and by fact that it is not clear whether and to what extent voters retain federal constitutional right to vote for any particular candidate such as incumbent state legislator affected by term limit. Legislature v. Eu (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 492, 518-525, 286 Cal. Rptr. 283, 816 P. 2d 1309 , cert. denied, 503 U.S. 919

Right to seek public office and right to unrestricted exercise of franchise are fundamental rights protected by U.S. Const., amends. I and XIV, and Cal. Const., art. I, § 2. Canaan v. Abdelnour (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 703, 715, 727, 221 Cal. Rptr. 468, 710 P.2d 268 , overruled in part by Edelstein v. City and County of San Francisco (2002) 29 Cal. 4th 164, 126 Cal. Rptr. 2d 727

Right to vote is fundamental, and reasonable legislative efforts to increase its exercise are required to be upheld; special city election conducted entirely by mail ballot are therefore valid and not in violation of constitutional requirement that voting be in secret. Peterson v. City of San Diego (1983) 34 Cal. 3d 225, 229-231, 193 Cal. Rptr. 533, 666 P.2d 975

Requirement of local election law that candidate make irrevocable choice between paying filing fee or submitting petition containing specified number of signatures in addition to signatures on nominating petition is unconstitutional. Green v. Layton (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 922, 928, 123 Cal. Rptr. 97, 538 P.2d 225

Provisions of Cal. Const., art. II, and former art. XX, § 11 (now see Cal. Const., art. VII, 8(b)) denying right of suffrage to persons convicted of crime, together with sections of Elections Code implementing these provisions, do not violate equal protection clause of U.S. Const., amend. XIV. Richardson v. Ramirez (1975) 418 U.S. 24, 56, 94 S. Ct. 2655 , reversing Ramirez v. Brown (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 199, 216-217, 107 Cal. Rptr. 137, 507 P.2d 1345

Provision of city charter prescribing two-year durational residence requirement for candidates to office of city councilman unconstitutional. Thompson v. Mellon (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 96, 97, 107 Cal. Rptr. 20, 507 P.2d 628

Four-year residence requirement for office of city council violates equal protection clause of U.S. Const., amend. XIV. Martinez v. Newton (1973) 8 Cal. 3d 756, 757, 106 Cal. Rptr. 105, 505 P.2d 529

Ninety-day residence requirement of former Cal. Const, art. II, § 1 (repealed) unconstitutional; 54-day residence requirement of Cal. Const., art. II, § 1 and parallel closing date for registration prescribed by (former) Elec. Code § 203 violate equal protection clause of U.S. Const., amend. XIV; no durational residence requirement in excess of 30 days may be constitutionally imposed, and general voter registration must remain open at all times except during 29 days immediately preceding election. Young v. Gnoss (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 18, 23-28, 101 Cal. Rptr. 533, 496 P.2d 445

Residence requirements of charter for election to office is illegal. Zeilenga v. Nelson (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 716, 722-723, 94 Cal. Rptr. 602, 484 P.2d 578 ; Camara v. Mellon (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 714, 715, 94 Cal. Rptr. 601, 484 P.2d 577

Cal. Const., art. II, § 4, does not disenfranchise person who by plea or verdict has been adjudicated guilty of felony but either (1) is on probation under jurisdiction of court after court has suspended imposition or execution of sentence, or (2) was sentenced under Penal Code § 18 to punishment other than imprisonment in state prison. League of Women Voters v. McPherson (2006) 145 Cal. App. 4th 1469, 1484-1485, 52 Cal. Rptr. 3d 585

Where city's municipal code prohibits persons from being elected as a member of the city council for more than two four-year terms, the term "four-year term" cannot reasonably be construed to mean less than a four-year term or a term of up to four years' duration. Pope v. Superior Court (2006) 136 Cal. App. 4th 871, 876-877, 39 Cal. Rptr. 3d 183

City charter provision permitting council member to serve continually in the same district for two four-year terms is not violated by a council member's election to a third term, because he did not contest the district seat immediately after his two consecutive four-year terms ended. Conde v. City of San Diego (2005) 134 Cal. App. 4th 346, 350, 36 Cal. Rptr. 3d 54

Supermajority requirement of Cal. Const., art. XIIIA, § 4 in election seeking imposition of special tax in special library district does not unconstitutionally deny voters equal protection of laws because it does not discriminate against, or otherwise debase vote of, definite, identifiable class of individuals. Altadena Library Dist. v. Bloodgood (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 585, 589-592, 237 Cal. Rptr. 649

Strict standard of judicial review is applicable to state action that excludes certain potential voters from participation; for legislative classification relating to elective process to avoid strict scrutiny test of equal protection, classification is required to have only minimal, if any, effect on fundamental right to vote. San Dieguito Union High School Dist. v. Rosander (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 968, 978, 217 Cal. Rptr. 737

In election regarding proposed removal of portion of junior high school program from high school district to elementary school district, restriction of franchise to voters residing in elementary school district is denial of equal protection of the law because elementary school district cannot claim compelling interest in excluding concededly interested voters because of how they may vote. San Dieguito Union High School Dist. v. Rosander (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 968, 979-981, 217 Cal. Rptr. 737

One-year residency requirement of former Cal. Const, art. II, § 1 (repealed) for voting is unconstitutional violation of equal protection clause of U.S. Const., amend. XIV, in absence of necessity to enforce compelling state interest. Keane v. Mihaly (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 1037, 1045-1046, 90 Cal. Rptr. 263

[4] Voter Registration

National Voter Registration Act (42 U.S.C. § 1973gg et seq.) requirement for states to provide simplified systems to vote in federal elections. Young v. Fordice (1997) 520 U.S. 273, 117 S. Ct. 1228, 1231-1232, 137 L. Ed. 2d 448, 453

U.S. Postal Service Guideline excluding county central committee from registering voters on Post Office property does not deprive committee of First Amendment right of free expression or Fifth Amendment equal protection guarantee if property constitutes neither traditional nor limited public forum and if Guideline rationally furthers legitimate Post Office purpose of maintaining public neutrality toward partisan associations. Monterey Cty. Dem. Cent. Comm. v. U.S. Postal Serv. (9th Cir. 1987) 812 F.2d 1194, 1197-1200

Private action by citizen to enforce provisions of former Elec. Code § 304 (county voter outreach programs) [now see Elec. Code § 2105] is authorized; Attorney General's enforcement power is nonexclusive. Common Cause v. Board of Supervisors (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 432, 440-441, 261 Cal. Rptr. 574, 777 P.2d 610

Former Elec. Code §§ 302, 304 [now see Elec. Code §§ 2103, 2105] does not require counties to deputize county employees as voting registrars, even if deputization would substantially further statutory goal of maximum registration; court-ordered deputization is unavailable as remedial device. Common Cause v. Board of Supervisors (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 432, 443-444, 261 Cal. Rptr. 574, 777 P.2d 610

Voter who leaves domicile with intention of abandoning it and currently resides in place where he or she does not intend to remain is entitled to vote in precinct of former domicile until new domicile is acquired. Walters v. Weed (1988) 45 Cal. 3d 1, 14, 246 Cal. Rptr. 5, 752 P.2d 443

Former Elec. Code § 200(b) [now see Elec. Code § 349(b)] must be read in light of statutory scheme that deems every person as domiciled somewhere, for voting purposes, and that one domicile is not lost until another is acquired. Walters v. Weed (1988) 45 Cal. 3d 1, 7, 11, 246 Cal. Rptr. 5, 752 P.2d 443

"Residence" as used in Gov. Code §§ 243 and 244 (setting forth rules for determining voter's domicile) construed to mean "legal residence" or "domicile." Walters v. Weed (1988) 45 Cal. 3d 1, 7, 246 Cal. Rptr. 5, 752 P.2d 443

Location of domicile of minor 18 years of age or older is not questionable on account of age or occupational status. Jolicoeur v. Mihaly (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 565, 582, 96 Cal. Rptr. 697, 488 P.2d 1

On moving from one precinct to another more than 28 days before election, voter is required to either reregister or execute address change to preserve eligibility to vote; if voter does neither, voter is not properly registered to vote in either old or new precinct. Escalante v. City of Hermosa Beach (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 1009, 1023, 241 Cal. Rptr. 199

Designation of public park as residence for voting purposes qualifies as place of fixed habitation within meaning of former Elec. Code § 207 [now see Elec. Code § 2027], even though camping and sleeping in park are prohibited. Collier v. Menzel (1985) 176 Cal. App. 3d 24, 31, 221 Cal. Rptr. 110

Even though person may be qualified to vote under state constitutional standards, person is not entitled to vote if he or she does not comply with state registration laws because proper registration is condition precedent to exercise of right to vote. Collier v. Menzel (1985) 176 Cal. App. 3d 24, 30, 221 Cal. Rptr. 110

Even though registration laws are valid if reasonable, these laws and their interpretation receive strict scrutiny if they deny certain classes of residents right to vote; government entity may not exclude otherwise qualified voters who have no way of making themselves eligible to vote. Collier v. Menzel (1985) 176 Cal. App. 3d 24, 33, 221 Cal. Rptr. 110

Equal protection clause of U.S. Const., amend. XIV prohibits use of voter's affluence as electoral standard because voter qualifications bear no relation to wealth; denial to resident of opportunity to vote merely because resident cannot afford housing is denial of citizen's right to vote on basis of economic status and impermissible basis for determining entitlement to vote. Collier v. Menzel (1985) 176 Cal. App. 3d 24, 37, 221 Cal. Rptr. 110

Designation of elector or his or her voting precinct not essential to registration as a voter. Ferreira v. Keller (1970) 4 Cal. App. 3d 292, 296, 84 Cal. Rptr. 253

Declaratory relief is proper means to determine genuine controversy as to voter's right to register. Ferreira v. Keller (1970) 4 Cal. App. 3d 292, 296, 84 Cal. Rptr. 253

[5] Writ of Mandate to Compel Registration

Petition for writ of mandate to compel registrar of voters to register petitioners is not rendered moot by passing of registration deadline when petitioners attempted to register approximately two months before deadline but were not permitted to do so by respondent. Keane v. Mihaly (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 1037, 1040-1041, 90 Cal. Rptr. 263

Issuance of peremptory writ of mandate directing registrar of voters to register an elector as proper. Truchon v. Toomey (1953) 116 Cal. App. 2d 736, 745, 254 P.2d 638 ; see Collier v. Menzel (1985) 176 Cal. App. 3d 24, 29, 37, 221 Cal. Rptr. 110

[6] Cancellation of Registration

In action to cancel registration, registered voter is indispensable party in proceeding. Ash v. Superior Court (1917) 33 Cal. App. 800, 801-802, 166 P. 841

[7] Voters' Pamphlet

Voters' pamphlet is limited public forum for First Amendment purposes, and is therefore required to provide equal access to all competing positions. Gebert v. Patterson (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 868, 874-875, 231 Cal. Rptr. 150

Charter city's required prepayment of estimated printing cost by individuals submitting ballot arguments for publication in voters' pamphlet is unconstitutional denial of equal access to political arena in violation of state and federal guarantees of equal protection and impediment to free expression in violation of U.S. Const., amend. I. Gebert v. Patterson (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 868, 872, 873, 876-877, 231 Cal. Rptr. 150

Cost of printing election pamphlet containing candidate qualification statements is not "tax, impost, assessment, toll, or municipal fine" within meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 86(a)(1); action to recover such costs and bar collection of additional cost, by candidate for seat on board of transit district who advanced such cost pursuant to board resolution, is not maintainable in superior court under Code Civ. Proc. § 86(a)(1) exception to municipal court subject-matter jurisdiction. Crawford v. Herringer (1978) 85 Cal. App. 3d 544, 546-551, 149 Cal. Rptr. 578

[8] Fair Political Practices Act

Requirement of former Elec. Code § 6552 [now see Elec. Code § 8103] that filing fee be paid in order to be placed on ballot in primary election, and providing no alternative means of access to ballot, is denial to indigent person of equal protection of U.S. Const., amend. XIV and rights of expressionand association guaranteed by U.S. Const., amend. I.

Lubin v. Panish (1974) 415 U.S. 709, 710-719, 94 S. Ct. 1315, 39 L. Ed. 2d 702

Former Elec. Code § 10012.5 [now see Elec. Code § 13307] compels local agency to include in voters' pamphlet each candidate's statement of qualifications and as permitting agency to bill, at its option, each candidate for his or her pro rata share of costs after pamphlet has been printed and distributed; requirement of payment as condition of having statement included in pamphlet is invalid. Knoll v. Davidson (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 335, 352-353, 116 Cal. Rptr. 97, 525 P.2d 1273

Former Elec. Code §§ 6551-6555 [now see Elec. Code §§ 8101-8105] (filing fee system) which do not provide reasonable alternative means of access to ballot violates equal protection clause of U.S. Const., amend. XIV and therefore is null and void. Knoll v. Davidson (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 335, 349, 116 Cal. Rptr. 97, 525 P.2d 1273 (but see Elec. Code § 8106 and Gov. Code § 16100.6, providing that candidate may submit specified number of signatures in lieu of filing fee)

Former Elec. Code § 10012 [now see Elec. Code § 13307], permitting local agencies to recover costs from candidates publishing statements in voter's pamphlet, is constitutional under U.S. Const., amends. I, XIV. Kaplan v. County of Los Angeles (9th Cir. 1990) 894 F.2d 1076, 1079-1082 , cert. denied, 496 U.S. 907

When election results were nullified due to misconduct of winning candidate and new election was ordered between defeated candidates, latter entitled under former Elec. Code § 10012 [now see Elec. Code § 13307] to have registrar print and distribute candidate statements for new election without having to pay costs twice. Dutcher v. Olson (1984) 153 Cal. App. 3d 1189, 1191-1193, 200 Cal. Rptr. 847

Former Elec. Code § 10012 [now see Elec. Code § 13307], permitting registrar of voters to refuse to print candidate's statement unless candidate has prepaid $17,000, is constitutional. Mackey v. Panish (1980) 106 Cal. App. 3d 7, 13-14, 164 Cal. Rptr. 771

Former Elec. Code § 10012 [now see Elec. Code § 13307] which permitted candidate's statement to include information regarding qualifications beyond mere personal data respecting name, age, occupation and education; portion of statute deleted in 1983 which gave clerk authority to reject libelous or obscene language was invalid as violating right to freedom of expression under federal and state constitutions. Loza v. Panish (1980) 102 Cal. App. 3d 821, 824, 826, 162 Cal. Rptr. 596

[9] Action to Compel Correction of Error or Omission on Voting Materials

Action challenging charter city's prohibition of write-in voting in municipal primary and general elections was not moot, even though election giving rise to action was over; court decided recurrent election issues even though particular elections initially in question had long been completed. Canaan v. Abdelnour (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 703, 709, 221 Cal. Rptr. 468, 710 P.2d 268 , overruled in part by Edelstein v. City and County of San Francisco (2002) 29 Cal. 4th 164, 126 Cal. Rptr. 2d 727

In light of the fact that the Legislature has determined in the Elections Code that an election cannot be undone on the basis of alleged deficiencies in a measure's impartial analysis, trying to achieve the same result under the rubric of constitutional due process requires a showing that the impartial analysis profoundly misled the electorate, and not just that it failed to educate the electorate as to all the legal nuances of the measure. People ex rel. Kerr v. County of Orange (2003) 106 Cal. App. 4th 914, 934, 131 Cal. Rptr. 2d 274

Registrar of voters has no ministerial duty to accept (and writ of mandate will not lie to compel registrar to accept) ballot arguments filed after deadline, when ordinance provides that arguments "must be submitted" not later than certain time and date; doctrine of substantial compliance does not apply to statutory deadlines for election filings couched in language requiring documents to be filed "not less" than or "not later" than given number of days before designated time. Barnes v. Wong (1995) 33 Cal. App. 4th 390, 395-396, 39 Cal. Rptr. 2d 417

Ballot designation of candidate's "principal" profession, vocation, or occupation, under former Elec. Code § 10211(a)(3) (now see Elec. Code § 13107(a)(3)), connotes substantial involvement of time and effort such that activity is one of primary, main, or leading professional, vocational, or occupational endeavors of candidate; term precludes activity that does not entail significant involvement on candidate's part, and involvement that is only nominal, pro forma, or titular in character does not meet requirements of statute. Andal v. Miller (1994) 28 Cal. App. 4th 358, 366-367, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 88

Presence of candidate's name on ballot, after candidate announced withdrawal of candidacy from school district governing board election, is not error, omission, or evidence of neglect of duty by county registrar of voters under former Elec. Code § 10015 [now see Elec. Code § 13314], in light of prohibition in former Educ. Code § 5012 [now see Elec. Code § 10603] against candidate's withdrawal from election after 88th day before election. Mann v. Superior Court (1986) 181 Cal. App. 3d 372, 375-376, 226 Cal. Rptr. 263 (action by voter to compel registrar to remove candidate's name from ballot)

Even though election mooted dispute between voter and county registrar of voters, decision on merits in registrar's mandate proceeding to stay enforcement of trial court's judgment in voter's underlying action under former Elec. Code § 10015 [now see Elec. Code § 13314] was warranted by trial court's erroneous judgment, public interest in proper conduct of elections, and probability that issue would arise again. Mann v. Superior Court (1986) 181 Cal. App. 3d 372, 374-375, 226 Cal. Rptr. 263

[10] Reapportionment

Political gerrymandering cases are justiciable under equal protection clause of U.S. Const., amend. XIV, but require threshold showing of discriminatory vote dilution for prima facie case of equal protection violation. Davis v. Bandemer (1986) 478 U.S. 109, 143, 106 S. Ct. 2797, 92 L. Ed. 2d 85

In vote dilution suit under Section 2 of Voting Rights Act of 1965 (42 U.S.C. § 1973), plaintiffs not required to demonstrate that challenged state legislative redistricting scheme was designed or maintained for discriminatory purpose, but only that redistricting scheme results in denying plaintiffs equal opportunity to participate in political process and elect candidates of their choice. Thornburg v. Gingles (1986) 478 U.S. 30, 43-46, 106 S. Ct. 2752, 92 L. Ed. 2d 25

At-large voting scheme in multimember district that dilutes minority's voting power violate U.S. Const., amend. XIV, if maintained for racially discriminatory purpose even if based on racially neutral policy. Rogers v. Lodge (1982) 458 U.S. 613, 626-628, 102 S. Ct. 3272, 73 L. Ed. 2d 1012 , reh'g denied, 459 U.S. 899, 103 S. Ct. 198, 74 L. Ed. 2d 160

Single-member reapportionment plan preferred absent special circumstances dictating use of multi-member districts. East Carroll Parish School Bd. v. Marshall (1976) 424 U.S. 636, 639, 96 S. Ct. 1083, 47 L. Ed. 2d 296

Population variation among county legislative districts not violative of Equal Protection Clause of federal constitution in absence of built-in bias. Abate v. Mundt (1971) 403 U.S. 182, 186, 91 S. Ct. 1904, 29 L. Ed. 2d 399

Disproportionately low number of legislators in ghetto district compared to county-wide distribution is insufficient proof of invidious discrimination within meaning of Equal Protection Clause. Whitcomb v. Chavis (1971) 403 U.S. 124, 149-150, 91 S. Ct. 1858, 29 L. Ed. 2d 363

Challenge under 42 U.S.C. § 1973 to change from district to at-large voting not sustainable without showing that minority voters had pattern of cohesive voting. Badillo v. City of Stockton, Cal. (9th Cir. 1992) 956 F.2d 884, 886-891

California Supreme Court adopts, with minor exceptions, recommendations of Special Masters for reapportionment plan on basis that Masters had complied to greatest possible extent with requirements of Voting Rights Act (42 U.S.C. § 1973 et seq.) and other applicable reapportionment standards and criteria in drafting recommended plan. Wilson v. Eu (1992) 1 Cal. 4th 707, 712-730, 4 Cal. Rptr. 2d 379, 823 P.2d 545 (Wilson III)

In accordance with goal of implementing reapportionment plans pursuant to timetable specified in Wilson I (infra), California Supreme Court approves procedure proposed by Secretary of State to avoid postponing or bifurcating June 2, 1992, primary election. Wilson v. Eu (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 546, 548-550, 286 Cal. Rptr. 625, 817 P.2d 890 (Wilson II)

California Supreme Court, in exercise of its original jurisdiction, appoints Special Masters to hold public hearings, file report, and make recommendations according to specified timetable for adoption of reapportionment plans for state's legislative, congressional, and Board of Equalization districts because of Legislature's failure to pass reapportionment bills acceptable to Governor in time for upcoming 1992 primary and general elections. Wilson v. Eu (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 471, 472-474, 286 Cal. Rptr. 280, 816 P.2d 1306 (Wilson I)

Initiative measure to reapportion legislative districts is unconstitutional attempt to reapportion more than once during decade following federal decennial census. Legislature v. Deukmejian (1983) 34 Cal. 3d 658, 674-676, 194 Cal. Rptr. 781, 669 P.2d 17

2 U.S.C. § 2c (each state required to create number of congressional districts equal to number of representatives to which state is entitled) requires single member districts and forbids using statewide elections to fill congressional positions. Assembly v. Deukmejian (1982) 30 Cal. 3d 638, 662, 664, 180 Cal. Rptr. 297, 639 P.2d 939

In adopting temporary reapportionment plan pending voter approval of plan drawn by Legislature, court is required to adopt plan that most effectively assures equal protection of law and most closely adheres to one-person, one-vote rule while minimizing disruption of electoral process. Assembly v. Deukmejian (1982) 30 Cal. 3d 638, 665, 180 Cal. Rptr. 297, 639 P.2d 939

New reapportionment plans for elections of 1974 through 1980; no violation of equal protection requirements in staggered terms in state Senate elections; establishment of residency of district where new district lines made as result of reapportionment. Legislature v. Reinecke (1973) 10 Cal. 3d 396, 405-407, 110 Cal. Rptr. 718, 516 P.2d 6

Provisions of Palo Verde Irrigation District Act [Stats. 1923, ch. 452, p. 1067, amended by Stats. 1927, ch. 583, § 1, p. 974; West's Water Code, app. § 33] granting voting rights to landowners in proportion to assessed value of their land holdings meets constitutional standards. Schindler v. Palo Verde Irrigation Dist. (1969) 1 Cal. App. 3d 831, 838-839, 82 Cal. Rptr. 61 ; cf. protest procedure of Gov. Code § 34311, granting to owner of land, as such, special power to prevent incorporation election and distributing voting power on basis of assessed value of land alone as unconstitutional under equal protection provisions of U.S. Const., amend. XIV and those of Cal. Const., art. I, §§ 11, 21; propriety of exercise of original jurisdiction by appellate court to issue mandate. Curtis v. Board of Supervisors (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 942, 950-963, 104 Cal. Rptr. 297, 501 P.2d 537

California Supreme Court, in performance of its duty to ensure electorate equal protection of laws, is proceeding well in advance of 1974 elections to draft its own reapportionment plans based on 1970 census, unless, by end of 1972 regular legislative session or at a special session called for that purpose, Legislature has enacted valid statutes reapportioning legislative and congressional districts. Legislature v. Reinecke (1972) 6 Cal. 3d 595, 598, 99 Cal. Rptr. 481, 492 P.2d 385 ; 7 Cal. 3d 92, 93, 101 Cal. Rptr. 552, 496 P.2d 464

Equal representation for equal numbers of people is principle designed to prevent debasement of voting power and diminution of access to elected representatives. Calderon v. City of Los Angeles (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 251, 259, 93 Cal. Rptr. 361, 481 P.2d 489

Court may reapportion voting districts only if appropriate legislative body, given opportunity, fails to do so. Visnich v. Sacramento County Bd. of Education (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 684, 687, 112 Cal. Rptr. 469

Mere fact that otherwise rationally based county supervisorial redistricting ordinance makes substantial changes in existing district lines thereby deferring franchise of more voters than another plan does not demonstrate violation of equal protection requirements. Griswold v. County of San Diego (1973) 32 Cal. App. 3d 56, 60-64, 107 Cal. Rptr. 845

Absence of unfair discrimination in election system does not justify failure to equally apportion on basis of population; no adoption of plan of apportionment based on any criteria other than population, unless effect of plan will be to create districts containing roughly equal numbers of people; system of election districts containing equal numbers of voters resulting in districtsof varying populations as illegal. D'Adamo v. Cobb (1972) 27 Cal. App. 3d 448, 450-451, 103 Cal. Rptr. 813

[11] Candidates

Law prohibiting multiple party, or fusion, candidacies for elected office, i.e., prohibiting a candidate from appearing on the ballot as the candidate of more than one party, held not to violate U.S. Const., amends. I and XIV. Timmons v. Twin Cities Area New Party (1997) 520 U.S. 351, 369-370, 117 S. Ct. 1364, 1367, 137 L. Ed. 2d 589

Former Elec. Code § 6830(d) [now see Elec. Code § 8550(f)], forbidding ballot position to independent candidate for elective public office if he had registered affiliation with qualified political party at any time within one year prior to immediately preceding primary election, is constitutional. Storer v. Brown (1974) 415 U.S. 724, 736-737, 94 S. Ct. 1274, 39 L. Ed. 2d 714

Federal preliminary injunction as appropriate to allow candidate to file nomination papers since, absent some relief, candidate would be foreclosed by time element. Brown v. Chote (1973) 411 U.S. 452, 456-457, 93 S. Ct. 1732, 36 L. Ed. 2d 420 (action by candidate to file without paying filing fee)

Plaintiff's not barred by Legislature v. Eu (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 492, 286 Cal. Rptr. 283, 816 P.2d 1309 from bring action attacking constitutionality of Proposition 140's lifetime term limits because California would apply its public interest exception to res judicata doctrine and thus would reexamine merits of constitutional issue; Proposition 140's lifetime term limits held not to violate plaintiff's first and fourteenth amendment rights. Bates v. Jones (9th Cir. 1997) 131 F.3d 843, 845-847

Proposition 140, imposing term limits on state legislators, does not violate person's right to candidacy for public office, because burden on persons thereby precluded from running for office is outweighed by state's strong interest in incumbency reform and because less drastic alternatives to term limits are inadequate to achieve reform; burden on persons precluded from running for office as mitigated by facts that these persons have enjoyed significant period in office before ban applies, ban is prospective only, and these persons may seek other public offices. Legislature v. Eu (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 492, 517-525, 286 Cal. Rptr. 283, 816 P.2d 1309 , cert. denied, 503 U.S. 919

Gov. Code § 24004.3, which requires candidates for the office of county sheriff to have law enforcement experience, is even-handed, politically neutral, and does not significantly impair access to the ballot, nor does it stifle speech or dictate electoral outcome in any sense. California's important regulatory interest in the qualifications of its sheriffs justifies the less-than-severe restrictions on First and Fourteenth Amendment freedoms imposed by Section 24004.3. Rawls v. Zamora (2003) 107 Cal. App. 4th 1110, 1117, 132 Cal. Rptr. 2d 675

Three-term limit for members of Assembly under Cal. Const., art. IV, § 2(a) (part of Proposition 140, the Political Reform Act of 1990) is lifetime limitation; service of any part of term counts as service of full term; however, service of more than three terms permitted in one limited instance as specified in Cal. Const., art. XX, § 7 which provides that limitations do not apply to anyunexpired term to which person elected or appointed if remainder of term is less than half of full term; canon of construction calling for narrow restrictions on rights of voters does not allow rewriting of language and does not compel adopting interpretation that is absurd or contrary to will of people. Schweisinger v. Jones (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 1320, 1324-1326, 1329, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 183

Fact that independent candidate for office of state assemblyman must secure 500 valid signatures of registered voters from affected district, to be included on ballot in special primary [Elec. Code § 8400] whereas qualified party candidate is required to secure not less than 40 such signatures [Elec. Code § 8062], as not violating equal protection clause of state or federal constitution. Kellam v. Eu (1978) 83 Cal. App. 3d 463, 468-469, 147 Cal. Rptr. 884

Former Elec. Code § 7203 [now see Elec. Code § 10706], providing that if no candidate receives majority of votes cast, name of that candidate of each qualified political party who receives most votes cast for all candidates of that party shall be placed on special general election ballot as candidate of that party, as preventing independent candidate in special election from participating in runoff election when no candidate receives majority vote in primary election and as unconstitutional under both "strict scrutiny" and "rational basis" tests in that it violates both voters' and independent candidates' rights to equal protection. Libertarian Party v. Eu (1978) 83 Cal. App. 3d 470, 472-474, 147 Cal. Rptr. 888

Candidate for supervisor whose residence was placed outside district pursuant to ordinance changing boundaries of districts in periodic redistricting was not entitled to declaratory judgment that he was entitled to be candidate from former district. Gage v. Allison (1971) 22 Cal. App. 3d 85, 87, 99 Cal. Rptr. 95 ; overruled on other grounds in Johnson v. Hamilton (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 461, 472, 125 Cal. Rptr. 129, 541 P.2d 881

[12] Vacancy

When, from circumstances attending disappearance of office holder, it reasonably appears more likely than not that incumbent is deceased, official in whom constitutional or statutory authority to appoint successor reposes is not required to rely on seven-year presumption of death [Evid. Code § 667] as such presumption is not exclusive; finding that death occurred in period shorter than seven years warranted when there is evidence of specific peril. Pollack v. Hamm (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 264, 90 Cal. Rptr. 181, 475 P.2d 213

Term "vacancy" in Cal. Const., art. VI, § 16(c) (judges) refers to vacancy that arises on death or surrender of office by elected incumbent and exists until accession to office of elected successor, although office may be temporarily filled by succession of appointees; only circumstances in which election may be postponed beyond sixth year of elected incumbent's term as those in which it is impossible to carry out full elective process. Pollack v. Hamm (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 264, 273, 90 Cal. Rptr. 181, 475 P.2d 213

[13] Central Committees and Delegates

Former Elections Code provisions that regulated selection of state central committee members and limited terms of office of committee chairs, that prohibited state and county central committees from endorsing, supporting, or opposing candidates in party primary elections, and that prohibited candidates in primaries from claiming official party endorsement, were unconstitutional as violating First Amendment. Eu v. San Francisco County Democratic Cent.

Comm. (1989) 489 U.S. 214, 109 S. Ct. 1013, 103 L. Ed. 2d 271

In determining qualifications and eligibility of delegates to national party conventions, rules of party prevail over laws of state. Cousins v. Wigoda (1975) 419 U.S. 477, 490-491, 95 S. Ct. 541, 42 L. Ed. 2d 595

[14] Judges

Cal. Const., art. VI, § 17, providing that judge may become eligible for election to other public office by taking leave of absence without pay before filing declaration of candidacy does not violate U.S. Const., amend. XIV (equal protection of laws), is not impermissibly vague, uncertain, and overly broad, and does not impose additional or different eligibility requirements for federal elective office rendering it unconstitutional. Alex v. County of Los Angeles (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 994, 1000-1008, 111 Cal. Rptr. 285 (complaint for declaratory relief and petition for writ of mandate by municipal court judge seeking back payment of salary for period for which he took leave of absence for purpose of running for Congress; relief denied)

[15] Conduct of Elections

Associational rights of political parties were unconstitutionally burdened by California's former blanket-primary law (former Elec. Code § 2001 as added by Proposition 198, adopted in 1996) because it forced them to associate with voters who did not share their beliefs. California Democratic Party v. Jones (2000) 530 U.S. 567, 581-582, 586, 120 S. Ct. 2402, 147 L. Ed. 2d 502 ; but cf. Washington State Grange v. Washington State Republican Party (2008) 552 U.S. 442, 128 S. Ct. 1184, 1195-1196, 170 L. Ed. 2d 151 (similar Washington law was not unconstitutional on its face)

U.S. Const., art. I, § 4, the Election clause, grants Congress power to override state regulations by establishing uniform rules of federal elections binding on the states; under 2 U.S.C. §§ 1 and 7, Tuesday after first Monday in November in even numbered year is established as date for federal congressional elections; Louisiana's open primary statute that provided opportunity to fill office of United States Senator and Representative during previous month, without any action to be taken on federal election day, held to violate federal law. Foster v. Love (1997) 522 U.S. 67, 118 S. Ct. 464, 139 L. Ed. 2d 369, 373

State law mandating primary election as method of selecting political party's candidates for partisan offices on general election ballot, thus preventing party leaders from selecting candidates by another method such as caucus or convention, did not unlawfully infringe party's constitutional right of association. Alaska Independence Party v. Alaska (9th Cir. 2008) 545 F.3d 1173, 1175-1180 (construing Alaska statute; pertinent in California because Elec. Code § 13 and related sections similarly mandate primary election for nomination of partisan-office candidates)

Election conducted entirely by mail does not violate Cal. Const., art. II, § 7, requiring secret ballot. Peterson v. City of San Diego (1983) 34 Cal. 3d 225, 230-231, 193 Cal. Rptr. 533, 666 P.2d 975

Former Elec. Code § 6403 [now see Elec. Code § 13314] authorizes relief in the nature of mandate and permits courts to compel primary election officials to perform their duties correctly. Knoll v. Davidson (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 335, 341, 116 Cal. Rptr. 97, 525 P.2d 1273

Secretary of State had authority to impose comprehensive system of post-election manual ballot tallying on local elections officials, in connection with Secretary of State conditionally approving use of electronic voting systems, but proceeded improperly by not following Administrative Procedure Act for issuance of regulations. County of San Diego v. Bowen (2008) 166 Cal. App. 4th 501, 505, 82 Cal. Rptr. 3d 818

California Legislature could authorize voting by facsimile for citizens outside the country, and could require fax voters to waive their right to a secret ballot under Elec. Code § 3103.5, without violating the secret ballot guarantee of Cal. Const., art. II, § 7, because voting by facsimile was a reasonable measure to facilitate voting. Bridgeman v. McPherson (2006) 141 Cal. App. 4th 277, 283-286, 45 Cal. Rptr. 3d 813

[16] "One Man, One Vote" Rule

State can require more than simple majority to enact tax or revenue measure is constitutional as long as it does not discriminate against any identifiable class. Gordon v. Lance (1971) 403 U.S. 1, 7, 8, 91 S. Ct. 1889, 29 L. Ed. 2d 273

Petition brought by 12 persons residing in California on behalf of themselves and all other citizens of United States for alternative writ of mandate tocompel registrar of voters in places of their residence to refrain from enforcing one-year residency requirement of former Cal. Const, art. II, § 11/2 (repealed), is properly denied because: (1) it cannot be ascertained which of few named petitioners attempted to register and which did not; (2) petitioners failed to follow procedure set out in Elections Code to compel registration [Elec. Code § 2142]; (3) court cannot assume that large number of unnamed persons who might be affected would all have attempted to register; and (4) problem of conducting registration process including distribution of required ballot pamphlets [Elec. Code § 9080 et seq.] would be, and was at the time of filing of petition, so vast as probably to create a condition of chaos. Anderson v. Sullivan (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 1047, 1048-1049, 90 Cal. Rptr. 478

Land value voting scheme of improvement district is unconstitutional; extraordinarily more voting strength assigned based on extent of landownership and nonlandowning residents precluded from voting at all. Burrey v. Embarcadero Mun. Improvement Dist. (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 671, 673-679, 97 Cal. Rptr. 203, 488 P.2d 395

Contention of property owners that provisions for landowner protest of Municipal Improvement Act of 1913 [Sts. & Hy. Code §§ 10000-10610] and Special Assessment Investigation, Limitation and Majority Protest Act of 1931 [Sts. & Hy. Code §§ 2800-3124] violated "one person, one vote" principle rejected; majority protest schemes do not constitute elections in fact and so not offend equal protection clause. County of Riverside v. Whitlock (1972) 22 Cal. App. 3d 863, 869-876, 99 Cal. Rptr. 710

"One man, one vote" rule applicable only to elective officials; not applicable to sanitation district board of directors. O'Keefe v. Atascadero County Sanitation Dist. (1971) 21 Cal. App. 3d 719, 724-726, 98 Cal. Rptr. 878

Application of "one man, one vote" rule to boundaries of divisions within irrigation district. Girth v. Thompson (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 325, 329-331, 89 Cal. Rptr. 823

[17] Election Contests

Duty of court in election contests is to validate election if possible; court is required to hold election valid unless plainly illegal. Wilks v. Mouton (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 400, 404, 229 Cal. Rptr. 1, 722 P.2d 187 , cert. denied, 479 U.S. 1066

Bar of former Elec. Code § 1013 [now see Elec. Code § 3017] to third party delivery of absentee ballots is not so fundamental to preservation of integrity of elections to require, in election contest proceeding, invalidation of absentee ballot delivered by third party in face of trial court determination that there was no fraud or tampering with ballot. Wilks v. Mouton (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 400, 411, 229 Cal. Rptr. 1, 722 P.2d 187 , cert. denied, 479 U.S. 1066 (distinguishing Fair v. Hernandez (1982) 138 Cal. App. 3d 578, 582, 188 Cal. Rptr. 45 ; holding of Wilks limited to its parties by 1987 amendment of former Elec. Code § 1013 [now see Elec. Code § 3017])

In appeal from contest of election for office of superior court judge, Supreme Court, on its independent review of ballots, is required to consider write-in votes for one of candidates for district attorney, when votes cast doubt on voters' choice of judge; primary election transmuted into general election for purposes of appeal. Keane v. Smith (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 932, 937-941, 95 Cal. Rptr. 197, 485 P.2d 261

Finding on election of tie vote at general election; judgment confirming election of defendant. Snibley v. Palmtag (1900) 128 Cal. 283, 284, 60 P. 860

Review of trial court's decision in election contest could not be had by petition for writ of mandate because review by appeal [see Elec. Code § 16900; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 44 (priority on docket in court of appeal)] was adequate remedy at law. Nguyen v. Superior Court (Nguyen) (2007) 150 Cal. App. 4th 1006, 1009-1010, 58 Cal. Rptr. 3d 802

The bases for an election contest enumerated in Gov. Code § 16100 are exclusive; however, an election may be set aside if a nonenumerated act of malconduct affects the electoral machinery itself and thus renders the result unconstitutional. [McKinney v. Superior Court (2004) 124 Cal. App. 4th 951, 959-960, 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 773] .

In election contest proceedings, court may properly refuse to count absentee ballot delivered to clerk's office by person other than voter in violation of former Elec. Code § 1013 [now see Elec. Code § 3017]; Elec. Code § 1013 as amended in 1986 is retroactively applicable to 1985 election contest because amendment merely clarified existing law. Escalante v. City of Hermosa Beach (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 1009, 1019-1020, 241 Cal. Rptr. 199

On review of election contest, interpretation of ballots is governed by same rules applied to construction of all other written instruments, unless interpretation turns on credibility of extrinsic evidence; accordingly, reviewing court is not bound by interpretation given to ballot based solely on ballot without aid of evidence, when there is no conflict in evidence, or when interpretation was made on incompetent evidence. Escalante v. City of Hermosa Beach (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 1009, 1014-1015, 241 Cal. Rptr. 199

Post-election relief is governed either by quo warranto proceedings or by former Elec. Code § 20021 [now see Elec. Code § 16100] Salazar v. City of Montebello (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 953, 957, 235 Cal. Rptr. 708

Evidence in election contest proceeding sufficient to show candidate's violation of penal provisions of Elections Code, when several absentee ballots cast were result of election bribery, election fraud, and voter coercion. Stebbins v. White (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 769, 784-788, 235 Cal. Rptr. 656

Actions seeking court disqualification of assemblyman from holding public office and injunction to prohibit Attorney General, Secretary of State, or County Registrar-Recorder from certifying election results of, swearing in, or disbursing money to assemblyman because of alleged violation of Cal. Const., art. VII, § 9 (prohibiting person who advocates support of foreign government against United States in the event of hostilities from holding state office), properly dismissed for lack of subject matter jurisdiction because, under Cal. Const., art. IV, § 5, Legislature has sole jurisdiction to determine qualifications of members and sole right to expel members. California War Veterans for Justice v. Hayden (1986) 176 Cal. App. 3d 982, 986, 989, 222 Cal. Rptr. 512

Delivery of absentee ballots to clerk by campaign worker is improper under former Elec. Code § 1013 [now see Elec. Code § 3017] and is sufficient to sustain challenge to those ballots. Fair v. Hernandez (1982) 138 Cal. App. 3d 578, 582, 188 Cal. Rptr. 45

Evidence that candidate committed offense against elective franchise by falsely declaring residence in declaration of candidacy [Elec. Code § 18203] was sufficient to contest election without showing of conviction. Pierce v. Harrold (1982) 138 Cal. App. 3d 415, 426, 188 Cal. Rptr. 458

Candidate's commission of offense warranting contest of election required to be proven only by preponderance of evidence. Pierce v. Harrold (1982) 138 Cal. App. 3d 415, 427, 188 Cal. Rptr. 458

Absentee voters' disclosure of marked ballots to candidate's representatives, and return of marked ballots from voters to election officials by those representatives, were not sufficient to vitiate election. Beatie v. Davila (1982) 132 Cal. App. 3d 424, 430-431, 183 Cal. Rptr. 179

Election contest on grounds of candidate's ineligibility for office subject to abatement rather than dismissal when preelection suit on same grounds is pending. Hale v. Farrell (1981) 115 Cal. App. 3d 164, 166, 166-167 n.1, 171 Cal. Rptr. 228

Inviting members of precinct board to reception and giving them certificates of merit does not constitute bribe or reward in violation of former Elec. Code § 20021(c) [now see Elec. Code § 16100(c)]. Hale v. Farrell (1981) 115 Cal. App. 3d 164, 167, 171 Cal. Rptr. 228

Summary judgment procedure is unavailable in election contests due to incompatibility of summary procedure under Code Civ. Proc. § 437c with statutory scheme governing election contests under former Elec. Code § 20020 et seq. [now see Elec. Code § 16200 et seq.]. Anderson v. County of Santa Barbara (1976) 56 Cal. App. 3d 780, 786-787, 128 Cal. Rptr. 707

[18] Annulment of Election

When an otherwise successful candidate is subsequently found to have committed an offense or offenses against the elective franchise, her election may be annulled even if the number of unqualified voters she fraudulently registered or the number of votes she unlawfully solicited were too few to have changed the outcome of the election. Bradley v. Perrodin (2003) 106 Cal. App. 4th 1153, 1167, 131 Cal. Rptr. 2d 402

Elections Code does not permit the trial court to annul the election of a winning candidate, based on offenses that did not change the result of the election, and then declare another candidate elected by shifting legal votes between the two candidates under the primacy effect theory. Having annulled the winning candidate's election for misdeeds that did not change the election results, the court should annul and set aside the runoff election under Elec. Code § 16603. Bradley v. Perrodin (2003) 106 Cal. App. 4th 1153, 1173-1174, 131 Cal. Rptr. 2d 402

Violation of former Elec. Code § 20021(c) [now see Elec. Code § 16100(c)] (election bribery and other offenses against elective franchise) by candidate whose election is contested is grounds for annulling candidate's election. Stebbins v. White (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 769, 790, 235 Cal. Rptr. 656

[19] Illegal Votes Cast

Votes cast by persons not privileged to vote, votes not entitled to be counted because not cast in manner provided by law, votes cast in violation of criminal provisions of Elections Code, and votes cast by persons who received their absentee ballots in improper manner are illegal votes. Hardeman v. Thomas (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 153, 168, 256 Cal. Rptr. 158

[20] List of Illegal Votes

Former Elec. Code § 20052 [now see Elec. Code § 16402] does not require list of illegal voters to identify legal basis for claiming that each listed voter cast illegal vote. Hardeman v. Thomas (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 153, 171-172, 256 Cal. Rptr. 158

Purpose of requiring list of illegal votes. Benson v. Superior Court (1963) 214 Cal. App. 2d 551, 560-561, 29 Cal. Rptr. 760

PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

20-243 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 243.120

§ 243.120 Contestant's Checklist for Contest of General Election

NOTE:

Scope of Checklist. This checklist is intended to be illustrative only of procedures commonly used in contests of elections, other than that of state senators and assemblypersons [Elec. Code § 16200], as opposed to nominations, and is not exhaustive. A particular case may require procedures not set out here. For contests of nominations at primary elections, see § 243.130.

[1] Ascertain Facts

☐ Facts relating to contestant:

☐ Name, address, and telephone number of contestant.

☐ County or city, or political subdivision of either, in which contestant is an elector [see Elec. Code § 16100; see also Elec. Code § 321 (defining "elector")].

☐ Additional facts, as desired, relating to contestant's stability and financial solvency (such as employment status, prior residences, credit, bank, and personal references, etc.).

☐ Facts relating to election:

☐ Type of election held.

☐ Name of county, or city, or political subdivision thereof, in which election was held.

☐ Elective office contested.

☐ Names and addresses of all candidates for office contested.

☐ Date of election.

☐ Date of declaration of result of election by body canvassing returns.

NOTE:
Period of Limitation. This date commences the running of statute of limitations applicable to elections contests [Elec. Code § 16401(a)-(d); see [3], below].

☐ Name of candidate declared elected.

☐ Number of votes declared cast for each candidate for office contested.

☐ Facts relating to grounds of contest:

NOTE:
Change in Result of Election Required. The errors must be sufficient to change the result of the election as to any person who has been declared elected [Elec. Code § 16100(f)].

☐ Precinct and/or member thereof guilty of malconduct [Elec. Code § 16100(a)]:

NOTE:
Malconduct Defined. Although the term "malconduct" is not defined by the Elections Code, it has been held to mean bad conduct or dishonesty in managing public affairs [Willburn v. Wixson (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 730, 735, 112 Cal. Rptr. 620] . In addition, because the Elections Code provides for contest based on errors in conducting an election or in canvassing returns [Elec. Code § 16100(f)] or in vote-counting programs or summation of ballot counts [Elec. Code § 16100(g)], the term "malconduct" would appear to refer to willful acts of misconduct rather than merely erroneous acts.

☐ Name of precinct or board member(s) guilty of malconduct

☐ Nature and effect of malconduct [see Willburn v. Wixson (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 730, 735, 112 Cal. Rptr. 620 (although election boards were lax in not giving verbal warnings prescribed to voters by former Elec. Code § 14409 [repealed by Cal. Stats. 1976 ch. 220, § 7], such omissions did not constitute malconduct)].

NOTE:
Change in Result of Election Required. Malconduct must be such as to procure the defendant to be declared either elected or one of those receiving an equal and highest number of votes [Elec. Code § 16201]. An election is not set aside because of malconduct on the part of a precinct board unless the rejection of the vote of that precinct would change the result as to that office in the remaining vote of the county [Elec. Code § 16202].

☐ Ineligibility to office of person declared elected [Elec. Code § 16100(b); see § 243.33; see also Shinn v. Heusner (1949) 91 Cal. App. 2d 248, 250, 204 P.2d 886 (term "ineligible" means lacking in legal qualification prescribed for the particular office)].

☐ Bribery or other election crime by candidate as provided in Elec. Code § 18000 et seq. [Elec. Code § 16100(c)]:

☐ If bribe was given to elector or member of precinct board or offered for purpose of procuring election:

☐ Name and title of person to whom bribe or reward was offered.

☐ Where, when, and how bribe was offered [Elec. Code § 18520].

☐ Purpose of bribe [Elec. Code § 18522].

☐ Action taken by person to whom bribe was offered.

☐ If bribe was delivered, when, where, and how.

☐ If other election crime [see § 243.03 (setting out specific statutes relating to election crimes)]:

☐ Names and titles of persons involved in illegal activity.

☐ Purpose of illegal activity.

☐ Time and place at which illegal activity occurred.

☐ Manner in which illegal activity was attempted or accomplished.

☐ Illegal votes cast for candidate [Elec. Code § 16100(d)]:

☐ Number of illegal votes for candidate declared elected.

NOTE:

Change in Result of Election Required. An election is not set aside on account of illegal votes cast unless it appears that a number of illegal votes have been given to the person whose right to the office is contested which, if taken from him or her, would reduce the number of his or her legal votes below the number of legal votes given to some other candidate [Elec. Code § 16203].

☐ Number of illegal votes cast for other candidates for same office.

☐ Reason for illegality of each vote claimed to be illegal [see Garrison v. Rourke (1948) 32 Cal. 2d 430, 441, 196 P.2d 884 (votes cast by nonresident of an election precinct properly disallowed as illegal in election contest)].

☐ Eligible voters who attempted to vote in accordance with the laws of the state were denied their right to vote [Elec. Code § 16100(e)]:

☐ Number of voters involved.

☐ Identity of voters involved.

☐ Details of how and when denial occurred.

NOTE:

Sufficient Number of Voters Must Be Denied Right to Vote. An election may not be set aside on account of eligible voters being denied the right to vote unless it appears that a sufficient number of voters were denied the right to vote as to change the result [Elec. Code § 16204].

☐ Errors by precinct board in conducting election or canvassing returns sufficient to change the result of the election as to any person who has been declared elected [Elec. Code § 16100(f)].

☐ Number of precincts involved.

☐ Details of how and when error was made.

☐ Effect of error on declaration of election.

☐ Error in vote-counting programs or summation of ballot counts [Elec. Code § 16100(g)]:

☐ Number of precincts involved.

☐ Details of how and when error occurred.

[2] Obtain Documents

Obtain documents to be used to prove the particular grounds of the contest based on the ascertained facts [see [1], above]; for example, the records of the conviction of an election crime by the candidate declared elected [Elec. Code §

16100(c)].

[3] Make Preliminary Investigations and Determinations

☐ Capacity of contestant to file contest.

NOTE:
Standing. An election may be contested only by an elector of the county, city, or any political subdivision of either in which the election is held [Elec. Code § 16100].

☐ Investigation and interviews.

☐ Venue (county).

☐ County in which the election was held [see Elec. Code §§ 16100, 16400].

☐ Jurisdiction.

☐ Superior court [Elec. Code § 16500].

☐ Statute of limitations [Elec. Code § 16401].

☐ In cases other than a tie, if grounds for contest is that defendant has given or offered to give to any elector or member of a precinct board any bribe or reward for the purpose of procuring defendant's election or has committed any other offense against the elective franchise [see Elec. Code § 18000 et seq.], six months [Elec. Code § 16401(a)].

☐ In all cases of tie, 20 days [Elec. Code § 16401(b)].

☐ If case involves presidential electors, 10 days [Elec. Code § 16401(c)].

☐ In all other cases, 30 days [Elec. Code § 16401(d)].

[4] Prepare Statement of Contest

☐ Essential allegations [Elec. Code § 16400]:

☐ Contestant's name and status as an elector of the district or county, as the case may be, in which the contested election was held [Elec. Code § 16400(a)].

☐ The defendant's name [Elec. Code § 16400(b)].

☐ The office contested [Elec. Code § 16400(c)].

☐ The particular grounds of the contest and the Elections Code section under which the statement of contest is filed [Elec. Code § 16400(d)].

☐ If the reception of illegal votes is alleged, a general statement that in one or more specified voting precincts illegal votes were given to defendant, which, if taken from him or her, will reduce the number of the defendant's legal votes below the number of legal votes given to some other candidate.

☐ Draft statement [for a form, see § 243.170]:

☐ For form, typing, paper, and style requirements for the California Rules of Court, see Ch. 123, Complaints and Cross Complaints .

☐ Copies to be prepared:

☐ Original for filing.

☐ Copy for service on each defendant.

☐ Additional copies for office file, client, etc., if desired.

☐ Sign statement [Code Civ. Proc. § 446 (signing pleadings)].

☐ Have contestant verify statement [Elec. Code § 16401].

[5] File Statement

☐ Statement of contest is filed with the clerk of the superior court having jurisdiction [Elec. Code § 16400].

NOTE:

Precedence. Proceedings in cases involving election contests must be placed on the calendar in the order of their date of filing and must be given precedence [Code Civ. Proc. § 34]. Within five days after the end of the time allowed for filing statements of contest, the clerk of the superior court notifies the superior court of all statements filed. The presiding judge designates a time and place of hearing not less than 10 nor more than 20, days from the date of the order [Elec. Code § 16500].

☐ Determine from the clerk, at the time of filing the statement, how to obtain notice of the hearing date and what action is needed to obtain the defendant's citation from the clerk and delivering it to the sheriff [see [6], below].

[6] Citation and Service

The clerk issues a citation for the defendant to appear at the time and place specified in the order. The citation is delivered to the sheriff who serves the citation on the defendant at least five days before the time specified, either:

☐ Personally [Elec. Code § 16501(a)]; or

☐ If party cannot be found, by leaving copy at house where he or she last resided [Elec. Code § 16501(b)].

[7] Provide List of Illegal Votes

If the contest involves illegal votes:

☐ Deliver to the defendant, at least three days before the trial, a written list of the number of illegal votes [for a form, see § 243.175], and by whom given, which the contestant intends to prove [Elec. Code § 16402; see Benson v. Superior Court (1963) 214 Cal. App. 2d 551, 562, 29 Cal. Rptr. 760 (attachment of list of illegal voters to the door of defendant's residence constitutes sufficient delivery)].

NOTE:
List Limits Issues. No testimony may be received regarding any illegal vote except those specified in the list [Elec. Code § 16402]. The list applies only to ballots made illegal because cast by an illegal voter. It does not apply to votes cast by a legal voter but made illegal because of distinguishing marks, since such fact can only be ascertained by a recount [Bass v. Leavitt (1909) 11 Cal. App. 582, 587-588, 105 P. 771 (interpreting former Code Civ. Proc. § 1116, the provisions of which are now contained in Elec. Code § 16402)].

[8] Subpoena Witnesses

☐ Request issuance of subpoenas [see Elec. Code § 16502].

☐ For a procedural checklist for serving subpoenas, see Ch. 535, Subpoena].

[9] Dismissal of Contest

The court may dismiss the proceedings if the statement of the cause of the contest is insufficient or for want of prosecution [Elec. Code § 16602].

[10] Trial

☐ Obtain continuance, if desired, on a declaration showing good cause [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5; Elec. Code § 16600].

NOTE:
Limits and Costs. The court may grant a continuance not exceeding 20 days; it will be at the costs of the party applying for it [Elec. Code § 16600].

☐ Attend trial.

NOTE:

Trial. If a continuance is not granted, the trial takes place at the time and place designated [see Elec. Code § 16600]. The court continues in session to hear and determine all issues [Elec. Code § 16603]. The court has all powers necessary to the determination of the contested election [Elec. Code § 16600].

☐ Recount of ballots.

At trial the ballots must be opened and a recounted, if it appears from the statements filed that a recount is necessary for the proper determination of the contest. The opening and recounting must be in the presence of all parties to the trial [Elec. Code § 16601]. A recount is required by Elec. Code § 16601 whenever the grounds alleged in the statement of contest are such that a recount would be required if the allegations were true [Enterprise Residents etc. Committee v. Brennan (1978) 22 Cal. 3d 767, 771, 151 Cal. Rptr. 1, 587 P.2d 658 (contestants alleged that more than 2,000 ballots were misplaced in an election in which the announced margin of victory was less than 600)].

☐ Expenses of recount.

NOTE:

Contestant Pays Daily. The contestant pays into court each day a sum the judge determines to be sufficient to pay all expenses of recounting that will have accrued by the end of that day. The sums paid are part of the costs [Elec. Code § 16503].

☐ Adhere to regular rules of evidence [see Elec. Code § 16602].

☐ Findings, conclusion, and judgment.

NOTE:

Timing. Within 10 days after the submission of the parties' proofs and allegations, the court files its findings of fact and conclusions of law, and immediately thereafter pronounces judgment either confirming or annulling and setting aside the election. The judgment is entered immediately thereafter [Elec. Code § 16603; see § 243.176]. In any election contest in which it appears that another person than the defendant has the highest number of legal votes, the court declares that person elected [Elec. Code § 16703].

☐ Certificate of election.

NOTE:

Certificate. The person declared elected by the superior court is entitled to a certificate of election [Elec. Code § 16700]. If a certificate has been issued to another person for the same office, that certificate is annulled by the judgment [Elec. Code § 16701]. When an election is annulled or set aside by the judgment, and no appeal is taken within 10 days thereafter, [see Paragraph 2] the commission, if any has issued, is void and the office vacant [Elec. Code § 16702].

☐ Costs.

☐ Primarily, each party is liable for the costs created by himself or herself to the officers and witnesses entitled thereto [Elec. Code § 16802].

☐ Awarded against county or city where election was held if election is annulled or set aside on the ground of precinct board's errors in conducting the election or in canvassing the returns [Elec. Code § 16800].

☐ Awarded against contestant and in favor of defendant if proceedings are dismissed for insufficiency or lack of prosecution, or if the court confirms the election [Elec. Code § 16800].

☐ Awarded against defendant and in favor of contestant if the election is annulled or set aside for any reason other than for errors by the precinct board [Elec. Code § 16800].

☐ Apportioned among the parties at the court's discretion if two or more contested elections are joined for the purpose of recounting votes [Elec. Code § 16801].

[11] Appeal

☐ If aggrieved by the judgment, appeal to the court of appeal as in other cases of appeal from the superior court [Elec. Code § 16900; see Ch. 40, Appeal: An Overview , et seq.].

NOTE:
Preference. Appeals in election cases must be given preference of hearing in the courts of appeal, and in the Supreme Court [see Code Civ. Proc. § 44].

☐ While appeal is pending, the person declared elected by the superior court is entitled to the office [see Elec. Code § 16900].

[2] Documents to Be Obtained

In a primary election contest, the documents to be obtained are those to be used to prove the particular grounds of contest [Elec. Code § 16101; see [1], above]. For example, a birth certificate may be used to prove that a voter is under age, making his or her vote illegal.

[3] Make Preliminary Investigations and Determinations

☐ Each precinct, separately specified, in which any irregularity or improper conduct took place, or in which recount is demanded [Elec. Code § 16404].

NOTE:
Change in Result of Election Required. Irregularity or improper conduct will annul or set aside a nomination only if it appears that illegal votes in the precinct have been given to the defendant which if taken from the defendant would reduce the number of his or her legal votes below the number of votes given to the contestant or any other candidate [Elec. Code § 16300].

☐ Nature of mistake, error, malconduct, or other cause of contest, separately specified [Elec. Code § 16404; see Elec. Code § 16101 and [1], above].

☐ No special appearance, demurrer, or objection may be taken other than by affidavits which are considered a general appearance in the contest [Elec. Code § 16444].

[4] Time and Place of Hearing

[5] Citation of Parties

☐ The clerk of the superior court must issue a citation to both parties containing a copy of the order setting the contest for trial and deliver it to the sheriff [Elec. Code § 16521].

☐ The sheriff must then either serve the citiations on the parties or leave them at the residences named in the affidavits of registration of the parties [Elec. Code § 16521].

NOTE:

Precedence. The appeal has precedence over all other appeals and must be acted on by the court of appeal within 10 days after the appeal is filed [Elec. Code § 16920; see Code Civ. Proc. § 44 (preference for contested election cases in the courts of appeal and in the Supreme Court when transferred thereto)].

PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

20-243 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 243.132

§ 243.132 Contestant's Checklist for Procedure Involving Recount Contests

NOTE:
Scope of Checklist. The procedure below applies only to contests of primary elections on grounds that due to mistake, error, or malconduct, the votes in any precinct were so incorrectly counted as to change the result of the election [Elec. Code § 16460]. For procedure applicable to contests based on other grounds see § 243.131.

[1] Service on Defendant

☐ Manner and time of service:

☐ As soon as the affidavit is filed, the county clerk posts a copy of the affidavit in a conspicuous place in his or her office [Elec. Code § 16462].

☐ In addition, on the date of filing, the contestant sends a copy of the affidavit to the defendant by registered mail in a sealed envelope with postage prepaid addressed to the place of residence named in defendant's affidavit of registration [Elec. Code § 16462].

NOTE:
Jurisdiction. All candidates at a primary election are permitted to be candidates under the Elections Code only on the condition that jurisdiction for all the purposes of a proceeding involving simple recount shall exist in the manner and under the conditions provided for by Elec. Code § 16462 (prescribing type of service, time for filing affidavit, posting affidavit, jurisdiction of the court, and mailing of copy of affidavit to defendant) [Elec. Code § 16463].

☐ Proof of service.

NOTE:

Form. The contestant makes and files an affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) of mailing, which becomes part of the record of the contest [Elec. Code § 16462]. For forms of declarations of service of papers by mail, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers .

☐ Proof of posting.

NOTE:

Time for Proof. On the fifth day after the end of the time for filing contestant's affidavit, the clerk of the superior court must present, along with the affidavits of the contestant and the defendant, proof of posting of contestant's affidavit to the presiding judge of the superior court [Elec. Code § 16540].

[2] Answers and Defendant's Affidavits

NOTE:

No demurrer or objection may be taken by the parties in any other manner than by answer, and all the objections must be contained in the answer [Elec. Code § 16466].

☐ Defendant's answer:

☐ If defendant appears, court will require the answer to be made within three days from the time and place set for hearing. If defendant does not appear, the court will note the default and determine the contest [Elec. Code § 16467].

☐ Defendant's affidavit.

NOTE:

Time Limit. The defendant may file an affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) with the clerk of the superior court at any time within three days after the filing of the contestant's affidavit of mailing [see [1], above]. The affidavit, filed on the defendant's own behalf, designates any precincts, in addition to those in contestant's affidavit, in which the defendant desires a recount of votes. Such an affidavit must include the grounds for defendant's request [Elec. Code § 16464].

☐ Contestant's answer:

☐ Time of filing.

NOTE:

The contestant may file an answer to defendant's affidavit not later than the first day of the trial of the contest [Elec. Code § 16464].

☐ Content.

NOTE:

The contestant has the same right to answer the defendant's affidavit as given to the defendant with reference to the contestant's affidavit [Elec. Code § 16464].

[3] Trial

☐ Time and place of hearing:

☐ Setting.

NOTE:
On the fifth day after the end of the time for filing contestant's affidavit, the clerk of the superior court must present all affidavits to the presiding judge, or anyone acting in his or her stead, who designates the time and place of hearing. Hearing is to be not less than 10 days nor more than 20 days from the date of the order [Elec. Code § 16540].

☐ Appearance.

NOTE:
Duty to Determine Time and Place of Hearing. The defendant must take notice of the order fixing the time and place of hearing from the records of the court without service and must appear at the hearing either in person or by attorney [Elec. Code § 16465].

Any appearance of the defendant or any request to the court by the defendant or his or her attorney will be entered as a general appearance in the contest [Elec. Code § 16466]. If the defendant does not appear, the court must note his or her default and proceed to hear and determine the contest with all convenient speed [Elec. Code § 16467].

☐ Number of judges.

NOTE:
Assignment of Additional Judges. Additional judges may be assigned to participate in the contest [Elec. Code § 16640, 16641], and clerks and assistants may be appointed [Elec. Code § 16643].

☐ Expenses of recount.

NOTE:
Daily Payment. The contestant must pay the expenses of the recount into court each day under the same provisions that apply to contests of general elections [Elec. Code § 16643; see § 243.120[10]].

☐ Recounting:

☐ All precincts named in the affidavits of the contestant and the defendant must be considered and a recount had in all those precincts [Elec. Code § 16464].

☐ The judges designated to hear the contest, including the judge to whom the contest was originally assigned, must convene and agree on the precincts which each one of them, sitting separately, will recount. The recounting then proceeds so that ballots opened before one judge need not be opened before another [Elec. Code § 16642].

[4] Judgment

☐ Decision.

NOTE:
When the recount has been completed, all the judges who took part assemble and make the court's decision. If there is any difference of opinion, a majority of the judges determines all questions. A majority of the judges gives a separate opinion in each contest [Elec. Code § 16740].

☐ Service of certified copy of judgment:

☐ On elections official [Elec. Code § 16741].

☐ On Secretary of State, if the contest proceeds in more than one county, and the nominee is to be certified by the Secretary of State [Elec. Code § 16742 (service of judgment from each county)].

[5] Appeal

☐ Judgment is final in every respect; no party may appeal [Elec. Code § 16940].

[2] Use of Form

The complaint in [1], above, is for use by a qualified elector in an action to compel his or her voter registration. The action is brought in superior court against the county clerk [see Elec. Code § 2142; see also Elec. Code §§ 311 (defining county clerk), 320 (defining elections official)]. When there is insufficient time before an election to file a complaint under Elec. Code § 2142, a proceeding in mandate may be appropriate to compel registration [Truchon v. Toomey (1953) 116 Cal. App. 2d 736, 745, 254 P.2d 638 ; but see § 243.141[5]]. For a form for a petition for writ of mandate see § 243.141.

The form may be revised for use to compel registration by a qualified elector who claims that he or she has registered to vote through the Department of Motor Vehicles or any other public agency designated as a voter registration agency pursuant to the National Registration Act of 1993 (42 U.S.C. § 1973gg) and the county elections official has refused registration [see Elec. Code § 2142(b)]. Paragraph 3, in particular, should be modified to reflect source of the registration.

The clerk of court may not charge a fee for services rendered in an action under Elec. Code § 2142 [Elec. Code § 2142(c)].

[3] Allegations

Every person who qualifies under Cal. Const., art. II, § 2, and who complies with the provisions of the Elections Code governing the registration of electors is entitled to vote at any election held within the territory within which he or she resides [Elec. Code § 2000(a)]. Any person who will be at least 18 years of age at the time of the next election is eligible to register and vote in that election [Elec. Code § 2000(b)].

This complaint alleges:

- Plaintiff's residence and citizenship (Paragraph 1) [Cal. Const., art. II, § 2].
- Defendant's capacity as county clerk or registrar or voters (Paragraph 2) [Elec. Code §§ 2100-2123].
- Plaintiff's presentation of his or her affidavit of registration to vote, either by mail or in person (Paragraph 3) [see Elec. Code §§ 2102, 2150, 2153; see discussion in § 243.13[1]] a copy of which should be attached to the petition and incorporated by reference.
- The defendant's continued refusal to perform his or her duty (Paragraph 4).

[4] Costs

Costs are not recoverable in any action under Elec. Code §§ 2142 and 2143 against the county clerk unless the plaintiff alleges in the complaint and establishes at trial that the county clerk or registrar or voters knowingly and willfully violated his or her duty to register the plaintiff to vote (Optional Paragraph 5) [Elec. Code § 2143].

[5] Verification

Verification is not required, and the filing of a verified complaint does not compel a defendant who is a public official being sued in his or her official capacity to file a verified answer [see Code Civ. Proc. § 446]. However, the verification of a complaint against a public official does preclude a general denial [see Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion, see Ch. 572, Verification .

[6] Jurisdiction and Venue

Jurisdiction of an action to compel voter registration is conferred on the superior court by Elec. Code § 2142.

Subject to the court's power to transfer actions and proceedings, the county in which the plaintiff seeks registration as a voter is the proper county for the trial against the county clerk or registrar of voters [see Code Civ. Proc. § 393(b)].

[7] Effect of Judgment

If the judgment directs registration, plaintiff may proceed to register to vote on the filing of a certified copy of the judgment [see Elec. Code § 2100]. For forms for judgments, see Ch. 318, Judgments .

20-243 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 243.141

§ 243.141 Petition for Writ of Mandate by Elector Against County Clerk or Registrar to Compel Registration of Elector as Voter [Code Civ. Proc. § 1086; Elec. Code § 2142]

[1] FORM Petition for Writ of Mandate by Elector Against County Clerk or Registrar to Compel Registration of Elector as Voter [Code Civ. Proc. § 1086; Elec. Code § 2142]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA, COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name], Petitioner,	)
vs.	)	NO. _____
_____ [name], as	)	PETITION FOR WRIT OF MANDATE
_____ [County Clerk or Registrar of	)
Voters] of the County of _____	)
Respondent.

Petitioner alleges:

1. [Allegations showing petitioner is qualified elector of county. See § 243.140[1], Paragraph 1.]

2. [Allegation of defendant's capacity. See § 243.140[1], Paragraph 2.]

3. [Allegation showing petitioner's attempt to register to vote. See, e.g., § 243.140[1], Paragraph 3.]

4. Respondent refused, and continues to refuse, to register petitioner as a voter on the purported ground that petitioner is not a qualified elector and not entitled to be registered as a voter for the reasons set forth below.

[ALLEGE reasons for respondent's refusal to register petitioner, for example]

5. On _____ [date], in the Superior court of the State of California for the County of _____, in an action entitled "the People of the State of California, Plaintiff v. _____ [name], Defendant," numbered _____, petitioner pleaded guilty to a violation of Section _____ and was placed on probation for a period of _____ years on condition that he/she be confined in the county jail for a period of _____ [specify length of time]. A copy of the judgment is attached as Exhibit A and made a part hereof.

6. Petitioner was accordingly confined in the county jail for the stated period, and satisfactorily completed the period of probation.

7. Thereafter, on _____ [date], in the Superior Court a motion was duly made under the provisions of Penal Code Section 1203.4 that petitioner withdraw his/her plea of guilty in the action and enter a new and different plea of not guilty, which motion was granted, and thereupon, in accordance with that section, the Superior Court ordered the plea of guilty withdrawn, a new and different plea of not guilty entered, the record expunged, and the cause dismissed.

8. Petitioner is not imprisoned or on parole for the conviction of a felony within the meaning of Article II, Section 4, of the California Constitution, and is not disqualified as an elector by the provisions thereof.

[CONTINUE]

[9. Add, if appropriate, (for discussion, see [4], below): Respondent knew of the facts alleged in paragraphs 5 through 8 but nevertheless unlawfully refused to register petitioner.]

10. There are regularly scheduled elections held in which petitioner will not be permitted to participate, to his/her irreparable injury, unless this court acts to compel respondent to register petitioner as a voter.

11. Petitioner has no plain, speedy, and adequate remedy in the ordinary course of law other than the relief sought in this petition, in that _____ [specify, e.g., the next election in said county will be held on _____ (date), 24 days from the date of the filing of this petition. The statutory remedy provided by Election Code Section 2142 is inadequate in that is would allow the respondent 30 days in which to file an answer, thereby defeating petitioner's chance to vote in this election].

WHEREFORE, petitioner prays judgment:

1. That the court issue a writ of mandate commanding respondent _____ [name], as _____ [County Clerk or Registrar of Voters] of the County of _____, to register petitioner as a voter in the county or to show cause before this court at a time specified by court order why he or she has not done so and why a writ should not issue;

[2. For costs of this proceeding;] and

3. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[2] Source of Form

The form in [1], above, was adapted from the petition in Truchon v. Toomey (1953) 116 Cal. App. 2d 736, 254 P.2d 638 , in which the court of appeal granted the writ under Code Civ. Proc. § 1085.

[3] Use of Form

The petition in [1], above, is for use by an elector for filing a writ of mandate [Code Civ. Proc. § 1086] in superior court to compel his or her right to register as a voter. Because the petition may be summarily denied, care must be taken to ensure that no essential allegations are inadvertently omitted.

The form may be modified for use by a qualified elector who claims that he or she has registered to vote through the Department of Motor Vehicles or any other public agency designated as a voter registration agency pursuant to the National Registration Act of 1993 (42 U.S.C. § 1973gg) and the county elections official has refused registration [see Elec. Code § 2142(b)].

The clerk of court may not charge a fee for services rendered in an action under Elec. Code § 2142 [Elec. Code § 2142(c)].

[4] Allegations

A petition for writ of mandate should allege:

- Petitioner's residence and citizenship (Paragraph 1).
- Defendant's capacity as county clerk or registrar of voters (Paragraph 2) [Elec. Code §§ 2100-2123].
- Petitioner's attempt to register to vote, either by mail or in person (Paragraph 3) [see Elec. Code § 2102].
- Defendant's continued refusal to perform his or her duty to register the petitioner to vote (Paragraph 4) and, if known, the reasons for the refusal (Paragraphs 5-8).
- The harm that will result to petitioner unless the court compels the respondent to perform his or her duty (Paragraph 10).
- Petitioner's lack of an adequate legal remedy (Paragraph 11).

If the petitioner seeks costs in the proceeding, he or she should also allege that the county clerk's refusal to register petitioner was knowing and willful (Paragraph 9), because, although Elec. Code § 2143 specifically applies to actions under Elec. Code §§ 2100-2123, it may also apply to mandate proceedings to compel registration.

If the petition might lawfully have been made to a lower court in the first instance, it must set forth the circumstances that, in the opinion of the petitioner, render it proper that the writ should issue originally from the reviewing court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(a)(1)].

[5] Verification Required

A petition for a writ of mandate must be verified [Code Civ. Proc. § 1086; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(a)(4)] and proof of service of a copy of the petition must accompany the petition when it is offered for filing unless the court allows the writ to issue without notice [Code Civ. Proc. § 1107; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(e); for discussion of methods of serving the petition, see Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition].

When the petition is filed in a court of appeal or in the Supreme Court, it must be accompanied by a memorandum [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(a)(5)]. There is no statute or rule specifically requiring the filing of a memorandum with a petition for writ of mandate addressed to a superior court. However, local rules of court might require it. For further discussion, see Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition .

[Verification, if desired. See § 243.140[1].]

The complaint in [1], above, is for use in an action to compel cancellation of a voter registration that was made illegally or that should be canceled by reason of facts that have occurred subsequent to the registration. The action is brought in superior court [Elec. Code § 2213]. The action may be brought by any person [Elec. Code § 2213]. The term "any person" has apparently never been construed, except in a case holding that the action may be brought by the Attorney General [Pierce v. Superior Court of Los Angeles County (1934) 1 Cal. 2d 759, 762, 37 P.2d 460] .

[3] Allegations

A complaint to compel cancellation of a voter's registration should allege facts showing:

- The plaintiff's capacity and citizenship (Paragraph 1).

- The capacity and duty of defendant registrar of voters or county clerk (Paragraph 2).
- The fact that defendant voter is registered (Paragraph 3).
- The grounds for cancellation of defendant voter's registration (Paragraph 4) [see Elec. Code § 2201].
- The refusal of defendant county clerk or registrar of voters to perform his or her official duty (Paragraph 5).

To recover costs in the action from the county clerk or registrar of voters, the plaintiff must allege a knowing and willful violation of the clerk's or registrar's official duty (Optional Paragraph 6) [see Elec. Code § 2143].

Petitioner alleges:

1. Petitioner is a United States citizen [more than] 18 years of age, a resident in this state, and a resident of election Precinct No. _____ in _____ County, California, since _____[date ], which is at least 15 days prior to the election.

2. Petitioner hereby applies for the issuance of a writ of mandate under Elections Code Section 13314 based on the allegations set forth below.

3. [Capacity of respondent. See § 243.140[1], Paragraph 2].

[4. Real party in interest is _____ (name) and he/she has an interest that is directly affected by this proceeding in that _____ (specify reasons making person real party in interest).]

[EITHER]

5. An _____ [error or omission] _____ [has occurred or is about to occur], in the printing of the _____ [ballot or sample ballot or voter pamphlet or other official matter], regarding the _____ [primary or general or specify other] election that is to be held on _____ [date], in that _____ [set forth with specificity facts demonstrating error or omission, e.g., Petitioner's name and candidacy for Mayor of _____ (name of city) has not been placed on the ballot, even though he has fulfilled all procedural requirements for nomination in that _____ (specify necessary steps to qualify for candidacy)].

7. The _____ [error or omission or neglect of duty] is in violation of _____ [specify Elections Code or constitutional violation].

8. The issuance of a peremptory writ of mandate will not substantially interfere with the conduct of the election.

9. The issuance of the writ is indispensable to the enforcement of the petitioner's rights in that petitioner has no plain, speedy, or adequate remedy in the ordinary course of law whereby his/her rights can be upheld or whereby respondent _____ [name] can be compelled to comply with the Elections Code. If the relief sought by this petition is not granted, great and irreparable injury will be caused petitioner.

WHEREFORE, petitioner prays judgment as follows:

1. That the court issue a writ of mandate, a copy of which is attached hereto, compelling respondent to _____ [correct the _____ (error or omission) alleged herein, or perform his/her duty, the neglect of such duty being a violation of the _____ (Elections Code or Constitution)] or to show cause before this court at a time specified by court order why respondent has not done so and why a writ should not issue;

3. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.
Dated: _____.

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Petitioner

[Verification. See § 243.140[1].]

The form in [1], above, is for use to petition for a writ of mandate [Code Civ. Proc. § 1086] to obtain relief from an error or omission on any ballot, sample ballot, voter pamphlet, or other official material that has occurred or is about to occur, or from a neglect of duty has occurred or is about to occur [Elec. Code § 13314].

The form may be modified for use when an elector is seeking a writ of mandate requiring an amendment to or deletion of material, regarding measures submitted to the voters, contained in the state ballot pamphlet that is false, misleading, or inconsistent with the Elections Code or Gov. Code § 88000 et seq. [see Elec. Code § 9092]. For discussion of matters involving measure submitted to the voters, see Ch. 302, Initiative, Referendum, and Recall .

[3] Other Possible Uses of Form

By its terms, Elec. Code § 13314 appears to apply to all elections. Thus, the form may be used, for example, to seek relief regarding the following errors:

- The failure to place a candidate's name on a ballot although he or she has fulfilled all procedural requirements for nomination [see § 243.33[3][a]].

- The failure of a public official to provide public notice of offices open for nomination or notice of qualified candidates for an upcoming election [see §§ 243.32, 243.34].

- The wrongful refusal by a public official to accept properly executed nomination documents [see § 243.33[3][a]].

- The failure of the Secretary of State to provide candidates for partisan office with information regarding other candidates for the same office [see Elec. Code § 8121; see § 243.35].

- The failure to remove a candidate's name from a ballot when the candidate has formally withdrawn from an election [see Bordwell v. Williams (1916) 173 Cal. 283, 287, 159 P. 869 (mandate proceeding under Cal. Stats. 1913 ch. 690, § 27, relating to primary election ballots); see Mann v. Superior Court (1986) 181 Cal. App. 3d 372, 375-376, 226 Cal. Rptr. 263 (dictum)].

[4] Essential Allegations

Because the petition may be summarily denied, care must be taken to make certain that no essential allegations are inadvertently omitted. The form alleges:

- The petitioner's citizenship, residency, and capacity as an elector (Paragraph 1) [see Elec. Code § 321 defining "elector")].

- The statute on which the petitioner's application is based (Paragraph 2) [Elec. Code § 13314].

- The capacity of the respondent (Paragraph 3).

- The identity of the real party in interest, if any (Paragraph 4).

- That an error or omission has occurred or is about to occur, or a neglect of duty with regard to the election (Paragraph 5).

- The specific statutory and/or constitutional violation by respondent (Paragraph 7).

- That the remedy sought will not substantially interfere with the conduct of the election (Paragraph 8).

- The petitioner's lack of an adequate legal remedy and the harm that will result unless the court compels the correction of the error or omission or the performance of duty (Paragraph 9).

A copy of the voting material containing alleged errors or omissions may be attached as an exhibit and incorporated by reference (Optional Paragraph 6).

[5] Parties to Action

Any elector may seek a writ of mandate under Elec. Code § 13314 [see Elec. Code § 321 (defining "elector" as any person who is a United States citizen, 18 years of age or older, and a resident of an election precinct at least 15 days prior to an election); compare Elec. Code § 321 with Elec. Code § 359 (defining "voter"); see also § 243.04[6]]. Thus, it would appear that the beneficial interest requirement for a proceeding in mandate (Paragraph 1 of the form) is met by anyone who is an elector as defined in Elec. Code § 321 [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1086; Elec. Code § 13314].

The Secretary of State must be named as a respondent or a real party in interest in the proceeding if it concerns a measure or a candidate described in Elec. Code § 15375 (requiring local officials to send certain election results to the Secretary of State), except for a candidate for judge of the superior court [Elec. Code § 13314(a)(4)]. In any other case, there is no authority regarding who must be made a respondent in a petition for writ of mandate pursuant to Elec. Code § 13314. The accepted practice is that the person with whom the nomination papers for the particular office sought are to be filed should be the respondent [see Elec. Code §§ 8100 (place of filing for direct primary), 10224 (place of filing for municipal election), 10510 (place of filing for district election)]. Thus, if the nomination papers are to be filed with the Secretary of State, then he or she, not the county clerk, should be the named respondent. In that instance, the county clerk's office has served merely as a repository for the nomination documents, which are processed by the county clerk and forwarded to the Secretary of State [see Elec. Code § 8082 (transmittal of nomination documents)]. If the nomination documents are to be filed with the city or county clerk, then he or she should be the named respondent.

In a petition under Elec. Code § 9092 (seeking writ to amend or delete ballot pamphlet copy that is false, misleading, or inconsistent with specified sections of the Elections and Government Codes), the Secretary of State is named as the respondent, and the State Printer and the person or official who authored the copy in question are named as real parties in interest. However, if the Secretary of State initiates the proceeding, the State Printer is named as the respondent [Elec. Code § 9092].

[6] Jurisdiction

The Supreme Court, courts of appeal, superior courts, and their judges have original jurisdiction in proceedings for extraordinary relief in the nature of mandamus [Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10]. However, the Supreme Court exercises its original jurisdiction only in cases in which the issues presented are of great importance and require prompt resolution [Wenke v. Hitchcock (1972) 6 Cal. 3d 746, 750, 100 Cal. Rptr. 290, 493 P.2d 1154] . For discussion of the jurisdiction of superior and appellate courts to issue writs of mandate, see Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition .

[7] Venue

Venue for a proceeding under Elec. Code § 13314 is exclusively in Sacramento County in any of the following cases [Elec. Code § 13314(b)]:

- The Secretary of State is named as a real party in interest or as a respondent;
- A candidate for statewide elective office is named as a party; or
- A statewide measure that is to be placed on the ballot is the subject of the proceeding.

Venue in all other instances of proceeding under Elec. Code § 13314 would appear to be governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 393(b). This section provides that the county in which the cause, or some part of the cause, arose, is the proper county for the trial of an action against a public officer, or person especially appointed to execute the duties of a public officer, for an act he or she did in virtue of the office, or against a person who, by the officer's command or in the officer's aid, does anything touching the duties of the officer. For example, if an Oakland City Council candidate whose nomination papers must be filed with the Oakland City elections official [see Elec. Code § 10224] has been given an incorrect or improper designation on the ballot, the proper county for the trial of the proceeding under Elec. Code § 13314 would appear to be Alameda County.

Venue for a proceeding under Elec. Code § 9092 is exclusively in Sacramento County [Elec. Code § 9092].

[8] Verification Required

A petition for a writ of mandate must be verified [Code Civ. Proc. § 1086; Cal Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(a)(4)] and proof of service of a copy of the petition must accompany the petition when it is offered for filing unless the court allows the writ to issue without notice [Code Civ. Proc. § 1107; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(e); for discussion of methods of serving petition, see Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition].

[9] Memorandum

When the petition is filed in a court of appeal or in the Supreme Court, it must be accompanied by a memorandum [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(a)(5)]. There is no statute or rule specifically requiring the filing of a memorandum with a petition for writ of mandate addressed to a superior court. However, local rules of court might require it. For extensive discussion, see Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition .

[3. The precincts should be recounted in the following order: _____ (specify order of recount).]

[4. All ballots, whether voted or not, and any other relevant material should be examined.]

[5. _____ (If the votes were recorded by means of a punch card voting system or by electronic or electromechanical vote tabulating devices, specify whether the recount should be conducted manually, or by means of the voting system used originally, or both).]
Dated: _____.

[2] Use of Form

The form of request in [1], above, is for use by a voter when requesting a recount of votes cast for candidates for any office, for slates of presidential electors, or for or against any measure [see Elec. Code §§ 15620, 15621].

In a non-statewide election, the request is directed to the elections official responsible for conducting the election in each county in which the recount is sought [Elec. Code § 15620]. In a statewide election, the request is directed to the Secretary of State [Elec. Code § 15621].

[3] Contents of Request

The request must specify on behalf of which candidate, slate of electors, or position on a measure it is filed (Paragraph 1) [Elec. Code §§ 15620, 15621]. In a statewide election, it must also specify the county or counties in which the recount is sought (Paragraph 2) [Elec. Code § 15621].

If desired, the request may (1) prescribe the order in which the precincts are to be counted (Paragraph 3) [Elec. Code § 15622]; (2) state that all ballots, whether voted or not, and any other relevant material should be examined at the recount (Paragraph 4) [Elec. Code § 15630]; and (3) depending on the type of voting system used, prescribe the means by which the recount is to be conducted (Paragraph 5) [Elec. Code § 15627].

Contestant

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use by an elector in contesting the results of an election contest [see Elec. Code § 16400]. Any elector of a county, city, or of a political subdivision of a county or city may contest any election held therein based on any ground set out in Elec. Code § 16100 [see Elec. Code § 321 (defining "elector")]. The contestant need not be a candidate for the office in question [see, e.g., Warden v. Brown (1960) 185 Cal. App. 2d 626, 8 Cal. Rptr. 518] .

For forms alleging specific grounds for contesting an election, see §§ 243.171 -243.174.

[3] Designation of Parties

The person instituting the contest is termed the "contestant." The term "defendant" is used to indicate that person whose election or nomination is contested, or those persons receiving an equal and highest number of votes, other than the contestant, when, in other than primary elections, the body canvassing the returns declares that no one person has received the highest number of votes for the office [Elec. Code § 16002].

[4] Contents of Form

The statement of contest include the following [Elec. Code § 16400]:

- The contestant's name and status as an elector of the district or county in which the contested election was held (Paragraph 1).
- The defendant's name (Paragraph 2).
- The office subject to contest (Paragraph 3).
- The grounds of contest [Elec. Code § 16100] and the section of the Elections Code under which the statement is filed (Paragraph 4) [see §§ 243.171 -243.174 (forms of allegation of grounds)].
- The date of declaration of the result of the election contested (Paragraph 5).

It is sufficient for the contestant to allege that he or she is a qualified elector at the time the statement of contest is filed. An allegation that he or she was a qualified elector at the time of election being contested is not required [Minor v. Kidder (1872) 43 Cal. 229, 231] .

The statement will not be rejected nor proceedings dismissed for want of form if the grounds of contest are alleged with sufficient certainty to advise the defendant of the particular proceeding or cause for which the election is contested [Elec. Code § 16403; Hardeman v. Thomas (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 153, 171, 256 Cal. Rptr. 158] .

Neither an introductory clause nor a prayer is required in a statement of contest [see Norwood v. Kenfield (1866) 30 Cal. 393] .

[5] Verification

The statement of contest must be verified by the contestant pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 446 [Elec. Code § 16401].

[6] Jurisdiction and Venue

Jurisdiction of an election contest is in the superior court [Elec. Code § 16500]. Venue is in the county in which the election was held [see Elec. Code §§ 16100, 16400].

[7] Times for Filing and Placement on Calendar

The times for filing are set out in Elec. Code § 16401. Proceedings in election contests must be placed on the calendar in the order of their date of filing and must be given precedence [Code Civ. Proc. § 35; see § 243.120].

§ 243.171 Allegation of Malconduct of Precinct Board for Use in Statement of Contest of Election [Elec. Code §§ 339, 16100(a), 16400(d)]

[1] FORM Allegation of Malconduct of Precinct Board for Use in Statement of Contest of Election [Elec. Code §§ 339, 16100(a), 16400(d)]

The _____ [precinct board members or election officials] responsible for supervision of the election were guilty of malconduct in that on _____ [date(s) of act(s) constituting malconduct] they _____ [allege malconduct, e.g., (1) caused over 2,000 ballots to be misplaced; (2) were under the influence of alcohol while counting votes; and (3) permitted unauthorized persons in the area where the ballots were being counted]. These irregularities were sufficient to change the election result.

[2] Source of Form

The form of allegation in [1], above, is adapted from the allegation in Enterprise Residents etc. Committee v. Brennan (1978) 22 Cal. 3d 767, 151 Cal. Rptr. 1, 587 P.2d 658 .

[3] Use of Form

The form of allegation in [1], above, is for use in a statement of contest of election to allege the grounds of malconduct by a precinct board or any member thereof [Elec. Code § 16100(a); see Elec. Code § 339 (defining "precinct board")].

The particular act or acts constituting malconduct are set out [see Elec. Code § 16400(d)], and although not specifically required by the Elections Code, the contestant is advised to state the date or dates on which the malconduct occurred [see Procedural Guide, § 243.120 subparagraph (3)].

§ 243.172 Allegation of Election Bribery and Other Offenses Against Elective Franchise for Use in Statement of Contest of Election [Elec. Code §§ 16100(c), 16400, 18000 et seq.]

[1] FORM Allegation of Election Bribery and Other Offenses Against Elective Franchise for Use in Statement of Contest of Election [Elec. Code §§ 16100(c), 16400, 18000 et seq.]

[EITHER]

On or about _____ [date], defendant committed election bribery in violation of Elections Code Sections 16100(c) and 18522 by _____ [allege facts constituting election bribery, e.g., promising _____ (name of elector or precinct board member to whom bribe was offered) that defendant would use his/her influence as a member of the city council to obtain the release from prison of _____ (name), the brother of _____ (name of elector or precinct board member to whom bribe was offered). Defendant made this promise in direct exchange for _____'s (name of elector or precinct board member to whom bribe was offered) vote in the election contested herein].

[AND/OR]

On or about _____ [date], defendant committed election fraud in violation of Elections Code Sections 16100(c) and 18500 by _____ [allege facts constituting election fraud, e.g., going to the homes of _____ (names of elector) and, in the guise of showing them how to vote with a vote by mail ballot, told them to punch numbers _____ and _____ on their vote by mail ballots. Defendant did so, knowing that none of the above-named electors knew how to vote with the vote by mail ballot and knowing that the numbers on the ballot that defendant directed _____ (name of elector) to punch constituted a vote for defendant]. These irregularities were sufficient to change the election result.

[AND/OR]

On or about _____ [date], defendant committed voter coercion in violation of Elections Code Sections 16100(c) and 18540 by _____ [allege facts constituting voter coercion, e.g., intruding on _____ (names of elector) in their homes, telling them to punch numbers _____ and _____ on their vote by mail ballots, and remaining in their presence while they voted. Defendant engaged in these activities even though none of the above-named electors requested any assistance from defendant in voting their vote by mail ballot. None of the above-named electors wanted to vote for defendant, but each did so as a result of being intimidated by the presence of defendant in his or her home]. These irregularities were sufficient to change the election result.

[2] Use of Form

The allegation in [1], above, is for use in a statement of contest of election to allege the grounds that the defendant committed election bribery or other offenses against the elective franchise specified in Elec. Code § 18000 et seq. [Elec. Code § 16100(c)].

For a form of statement of contest in which this allegation may be used and further discussion of the procedures involved in filing a statement of contest, see § 243.170.

[3] Election Bribery

Under Elec. Code § 16100(c), any elector of a county, city, or any political subdivision of either, may contest any election held therein on the ground that the defendant has given to any elector or member of a precinct board any bribe or reward, has offered any bribe or reward for the purpose of procuring his or her election, or has committed any other offense against the elective franchise defined in Elec. Code § 18000 et seq. [Elec. Code § 16100(c)]. Under Elec. Code § 18522, a person cannot, directly or through any other person, pay, lend, or contribute, or offer or promise to pay, lend, or contribute, any money or other valuable consideration to or for any voter or to or for any other person, to either induce the voter to vote, or reward the voter for having voted, at an election for any particular person or measure [see Elec. Code § 18522].

A candidate's promise to perform a valuable service that does not involve the proper administration of the office sought, that is made for the express purpose of inducing a voter to vote for him or her, and that directly benefits the voter, constitutes a promise to pay, lend, or contribute a valuable consideration within the meaning of Elec. Code § 18522 [Stebbins v. White (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 769, 785, 235 Cal. Rptr. 656] . The fact that the promise may not be fulfilled is immaterial to whether the promise is forbidden by Elec. Code § 18522, as long as the promise in exchange for the vote is something of value to the elector at the time the elector votes [Stebbins v. White (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 769, 785, 235 Cal. Rptr. 656] .

[4] Election Fraud

Any person who commits fraud or attempts to commit fraud, and any person who aids or abets fraud, or attempts to aid or abet fraud, in connection with any vote cast, to be cast, or attempted to be cast, is guilty of a felony [Elec. Code § 18500; see also Elec. Code § 16100(c), under [3], above]. Fraud in connection with a vote to be cast can arise when a candidate for office, purportedly showing someone how to vote a vote by mail ballot, only tells the person how to vote the ballot for that candidate [see Stebbins v. White (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 769, 788, 235 Cal. Rptr. 656] .

[5] Voter Coercion

Every person who uses or threatens to use force, violence, or any tactic of coercion or intimidation to induce or compel any other person to vote, or to vote for any particular person or measure, at any election, or because any person voted, or voted for any particular person or measure, at any election, and every person who hires or arranges for another person to engage in these activities, is punishable by imprisonment in the state prison [see Elec. Code § 18540; see also Elec. Code § 16100(c), discussed in [3], above]. Voter coercion can arise in connection with the casting of a vote by mail ballot when a voter does not want to vote for a particular candidate but does so because of the intimidating presence of the candidate when the candidate intrudes on the voter in his or her home, does not ask if the voter desires assistance in voting, and tells the voter what numbers to punch on the voter's vote by mail ballot [see Stebbins v. White (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 769, 788, 235 Cal. Rptr. 656 ; see also Hardeman v. Thomas (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 153, 169-170, 256 Cal. Rptr. 158] .

[6] Allegation That Misconduct Affected Election Results

In a ballot measure election contest based on the bribery ground of Elec. Code § 16100(c), the contestant must plead and prove that the alleged bribery affected the result of the election [Canales v. City of Alviso (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 118, 130, 130 n.5, 89 Cal. Rptr. 601, 474 P.2d 417] .

However, in a candidate election contest based on the bribery ground of Elec. Code § 16100(c), the contestant need neither plead nor prove that the alleged bribery affected the election result [Salazar v. City of Montebello (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 953, 958-960, 235 Cal. Rptr. 708 ; Stebbins v. White (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 769, 790-791, 235 Cal. Rptr. 656] . In a candidate election contest under Elec. Code § 16100(c), based on grounds other than bribery, it appears that the contestant must plead and prove that the alleged misconduct affected the election result [see Salazar v. City of Montebello (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 953, 960, 235 Cal. Rptr. 708 (contest on "other offense" grounds of former Elec. Code § 20021(c) [now see Elec. Code § 16100(c)], in which contestant was expressly required to plead and prove alleged misconduct affected election result when bribery not involved); but see Stebbins v. White (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 769, 790-791, 235 Cal. Rptr. 656 (contest on both bribery and "other offense" grounds of former Elec. Code § 20021(c) [now see Elec. Code § 16100(c)], in which contestants were not required to plead or prove alleged misconduct affected election result)].

[7] Burden of Proof

In election contests based on Elec. Code § 18000 et seq., it is not definitively established whether the contestant bears the burden of proof by clear and convincing evidence or by a preponderance of the evidence [Stebbins v. White (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 769, 784 n.11, 235 Cal. Rptr. 656 (trial court applied clear and convincing proof standard); see Canales v. City of Alviso (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 118, 130 n.5, 89 Cal. Rptr. 601, 474 P.2d 417 (question left open); Pierce v. Harrold (1982) 138 Cal. App. 3d 415, 428, 188 Cal. Rptr. 458 (applicable standard held to be preponderance of the evidence)].

[1] FORM Allegation of Illegal Votes Cast for Use in Statement of Contest of Election [Elec. Code §§ 16100(d), 16400, 16402]

Illegal votes were given to defendant in the following voting precincts, which votes, if taken from him/her, will reduce the number of his/her legal votes below the number of legal votes given to _____ [contestant or some other person] for the same office: _____ [specify precincts].

[2] Use of Form

The form of allegation in [1], above, is for use in a statement of contest of election to allege the grounds that illegal votes were cast [Elec. Code § 16100(d)]. The allegation is appropriate for use as the basis of a ballot measure contest as well as a candidate contest [Canales v. City of Alviso (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 118, 129-130, 89 Cal. Code § 16402].

[4] Service of List of Illegal Votes

When the reception of illegal votes cast is a ground of contest, the contestant must deliver to defendant, at least three days before trial, a written list of alleged illegal votes [Elec. Code § 16402; for a form of list, see § 243.176]. Similarly, if the defendant claims that illegal votes were received for the contestant, he or she must furnish a list to the latter [Garrison v. Rourke (1948) 32 Cal. 2d 430, 442, 196 P.2d 884 (overruled on other grounds in Keane v. Smith (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 932, 939, 95 Cal. Rptr. 197, 485 P.2d 261)].

§ 243.200 California Elections Code 1994 Repeal and Reenactment Disposition Table

[1] Repeal and Reenactment of Elections Code

The Elections Code was repealed, and a new Elections Code was enacted in 1994 [1994 Stats., ch. 920]. The new code reorganized and clarified the Elections Code to facilitate its administration. These changes were intended to have only technical and nonsubstantive effect [1994 Stats., ch. 920, Legislative Counsel's Digest].

This chapter is based on the new code, but for your convenience when dealing with case law that construes repealed code sections, the disposition table in [2], below, shows the correlation of sections from the old Elections Code to the reenacted Elections Code.

Chapter 244 ELEVATORS AND ESCALATORS
PART I. SCOPE

§ 244.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter discusses the duty and care required of elevator and escalator owners, operators, manufacturers, lessors and lessees of premises housing such appliances, lessors and lessees of construction elevators, and maintenance and inspection companies. The chapter includes forms of complaints [see §§ 244.50, 244.59, 244.60] and allegations [see §§ 244.51 -244.58, 244.61] for use in actions against elevator and escalator owners, maintenance and inspection companies, or their agents and employees, for (1) personal injuries, and (2) wrongful death, caused by the negligent operation or maintenance of elevator or escalator equipment. The chapter also contains a cross complaint [see § 244.62] for declaratory relief to determine the question of liability with regard to one of two or more defendants, and a complaint to enjoin the operation of an unsafe elevator [see § 244.63].

Chapter 244 ELEVATORS AND ESCALATORS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

20-244 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 244.10

§ 244.10 Governing Law

[1] Duties and Liabilities

The duties and liabilities imposed on elevator and escalator owners and operators are governed by case law, as supplemented by Civ. Code § 1714(a), defining negligence, and Civ. Code §§ 2096, 2100, and 2168, specifying the duties and liabilities imposed on common carriers.

[2] Employment Safety Laws

Elevators and escalators are extensively regulated under the provisions of Lab. Code §§ 7200-7205 (construction elevators), 7300-7319 (elevators), 7340-7357 (aerial passenger tramways), and 8 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 3000-3113 (elevator and escalator safety orders promulgated by the Division of Industrial Safety [see 8 Cal. Code Reg. § 3000(c)]). These statewide provisions apply to all places of employment as that term is defined in Lab. Code § 6303 [see Lab. Code § 6303; 8 Cal. Code Reg. § 3000(a)]. Although these provisions, with the exception of Lab. Code §§ 7300-7319 [see § 244.16], are particularly designed for the purposes of industrial safety and the protection of employees, they have also been interpreted, in certain instances, to be safeguards for the public generally against injury or loss of life [see Pierson v. Holly Sugar Corp. (1951) 107 Cal. App. 2d 298, 302, 237 P.2d 28] .

Under Lab. Code § 6304.5 prior to its amendment in 1999, evidence of Cal-OSHA regulations was inadmissible in actions against parties other than the employer [see, e.g., Widson v. Int'l Harvester Co. (1984) 153 Cal. App. 3d 45, 52, 200 Cal. Rptr. 136] . However, the 1999 amendments have removed that limitation for injuries occurring after 1999. Under the current version of that statute, if a plaintiff can meet the requirements of Evid. Code § 669, the plaintiff may introduce such evidence to establish a non-employer's negligence, except to impose liability on the State for failure to comply with a mandatory duty [Elsner v. Uveges (2004) 34 Cal. 4th 915, 935-939, 22 Cal. Rptr. 3d 530, 102 P.3d 915 ; see Lab. Code § 6304.5]. To meet the requirements of the negligence per se doctrine codified in Evid. Code § 669, a plaintiff must establish: (1) a violation of a safety order, (2) that the plaintiff is a member of the class designed to be protected by the order, and (3) that the violation was a cause of the plaintiff's injury [see, e.g., Longway v. McCall (1960) 181 Cal. App. 2d 723, 732, 5 Cal. Rptr. 818] . In addition, under amended Lab. Code § 6304.5, safety regulations may be admissible in actions brought by employees of subcontractors against general contractors that retain control of safety conditions only if the general contractor affirmatively contributed to the employee's injuries [Millard

v. Biosources, Inc. (2007) 156 Cal. App. 4th 1338, 1352, 68 Cal. Rptr. 3d 177]. Third-party liability for injuries to employees of subcontractors is discussed in greater detail in Ch. 248, Employer's Liability for Employee's Torts.

Chapter 244 ELEVATORS AND ESCALATORS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

20-244 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 244.11

§ 244.11 Owner's or Possessor's Liability

[1] In General

Those in possession or control of elevators and the premises in which they are located may be liable for personal injuries and death sustained as a result of their negligent operation or maintenance [Ramirez v. Redevelopment Agency (1970) 4 Cal. App. 3d 397, 400, 84 Cal. Rptr. 356 ; Benussi v. Hannah (1921) 53 Cal. App. 243, 247-248, 199 P. 1063] . This rule also applies to those in possession or control of escalators [Vandagriff v. J. C. Penney Co. (1964) 228 Cal. App. 2d 579, 582, 39 Cal. Rptr. 671 ; Hendershott v. Macy's (1958) 158 Cal. App. 2d 324, 327-328, 322 P.2d 596] . The duty is not dependent on legal possession of the premises [Benussi v. Hannah (1921) 53 Cal. App. 243, 247-248, 199 P. 1063] . This duty extends to those who are on the premises even though they may not use the elevator or escalator [see Kataoka v. May Dep't Stores Co. (1943) 60 Cal. App. 2d 177, 181-182, 140 P.2d 467 (child playing at foot of escalator)].

[2] Duty as Nondelegable

The duty of care of an owner or possessor who has control of the premises is, in respect to the maintenance of elevators (and escalators), nondelegable [see Brown v. George Pepperdine Found. (1943) 23 Cal. 2d 256, 259-260, 143 P.2d 929 ; Ramirez v. Redevelopment Agency (1970) 4 Cal. App. 3d 397, 400, 84 Cal. Rptr. 356] . Such an owner or possessor is bound to use the utmost care and diligence in the maintenance of elevators and escalators, and in the fulfillment of this obligation, more than regular and frequent inspections is required. The owner or possessor must use due care in servicing, inspecting, and maintaining the elevator and all the appliances appurtenant thereto [Brown v. George Pepperdine Found. (1943) 23 Cal. 2d 256, 261, 143 P.2d 929] . Lab. Code § 7324.1 makes clear that Lab. Code § 7300 et seq. does not relieve or lessen the liability of one owning, maintaining, or repairing an elevator for personal injury caused by an elevator that is defective. By its own terms, Lab. Code § 7324.1 assumes an elevator may be rendered defective due to maintenance or repair and preserves liability for that defect [Koepnick v. Kashiwa Fudosan America, Inc. (2008) 173 Cal. App. 4th 32, 40, 92 Cal. Rptr. 3d 453] .

If a lessor has relinquished sole control and management of an elevator in a leased building to his or her lessee, the lessee, and not the lessor, must give warning and look out for the safety of the persons using the elevator and is liable for injuries occurring by reason of any negligent maintenance or operation of the elevator [Pfingst v. Mayer (1949) 93

Cal. App. 2d 265, 273, 208 P.2d 1002] . However, if the owner knowingly permits the lessee to violate the law in constructing or altering the premises, the owner may be liable for injuries resulting from violation in allowing the lessee to create a defective condition [Longway v. McCall (1960) 181 Cal. App. 2d 723, 729-731, 5 Cal. Rptr. 818] .

Even when the owner leases the premises, thereby relinquishing possession and control, he or she may be liable in certain cases if the use of the premises is to be public [Goodman v. Harris (1953) 40 Cal. 2d 254, 261, 253 P.2d 447] . However, the lessor's duty with respect to the safety of leased premises does not extend to matters having to do merely with the lessee's management or operation of the premises, which would be safe but for such management or operation, at least if the lessee is in sole actual control [Goodman v. Harris (1953) 40 Cal. 2d 254, 265, 253 P.2d 447] .

Chapter 244 ELEVATORS AND ESCALATORS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

20-244 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 244.12

§ 244.12 Liability for Defect in Manufacturing

The manufacturer of an elevator or escalator may be liable in negligence to an ultimate user for injuries caused by defective design or construction of the appliance if such defect can be disclosed by reasonable inspection or tests [Bateman v. Doughnut Corp. of Am. (1944) 63 Cal. App. 2d 711, 718, 147 P.2d 404] . However, when an elevator is properly installed it is not a dangerous article [Dahms v. General Elevator Co. (1932) 214 Cal. 733, 741, 7 P.2d 1013] unless it is improperly repaired [Dahms v. General Elevator Co. (1932) 214 Cal. 733, 741-742, 7 P.2d 1013] or improperly managed [McCall v. Otis Elevator Co. (1963) 219 Cal. App. 2d 22, 31, 33 Cal. Rptr. 44] . The manufacturer is liable to third persons when, at the time of the injury complained of, he or she retains some control over the appliance causing injury [Dahms v. General Elevator Co. (1932) 214 Cal. 733, 738, 7 P.2d 1013] .

The principles of strict liability which apply when the manufacturer of an article places the article on the market, knowing that it is to be used without inspection for defects, and the article proves to have a defect that causes injury to human beings [see Greenman v. Yuba Power Prods., Inc. (1963) 59 Cal. 2d 57, 62-63, 27 Cal. Rptr. 697, 377 P.2d 897] , has not been applied in California with respect to elevators or escalators. However, there is no reason why these principles should not apply in California. The doctrine of strict liability has been extended to a manufacturer-repairer of a product when the defect resulted from the repair of the product [see Young v. Aro Corp. (1973) 36 Cal. App. 3d 240, 246, 111 Cal. Rptr. 535] . An analogous situation might arise regarding elevators or escalators if the manufacturer of such an appliance also contracts, on sale of the appliance, to install and service it. For an extensive discussion of strict liability, see Ch. 460, Products Liability .

Chapter 244 ELEVATORS AND ESCALATORS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

20-244 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 244.13

§ 244.13 Liability of Serviceperson or Service Company

Those persons with whom the one in possession of the premises contracts for the servicing of elevators or escalators may also be liable to one who is injured as a result of a negligent act or omission in regard to inspection or servicing[Dahms v. General Elevator Co. (1932) 214 Cal. 733, 738-739, 7 P.2d 1013] . The basis of liability is that an independent contractor who engages to supply and keep in repair articles which are reasonably certain to place life and limb in peril if they are negligently prepared or constructed has a duty of care to those who are placed in such peril[Dahms v. General Elevator Co. (1932) 214 Cal. 733, 738-739, 7 P.2d 1013 ; Vandagriff v. J. C. Penney Co. (1964) 228 Cal. App. 2d 579, 583, 39 Cal. Rptr. 671]. A similar duty arises on the part of an inspection company and a certified elevator inspector employed by the company if the company though its inspector fails to discover defects which the company was under an obligation to discover by reason of its contract with the owner or other possessor of the premises and under which it assumed owner's or possessor's duty to keep the elevator or escalator safe for use by persons on the premises [see Barbaria v. Independent Elevator Co. (1956) 139 Cal. App. 2d 474, 483-484, 293 P.2d 855 (holding, however, that because plaintiff failed to allege any contract between the owner and inspection company, or otherwise to present any evidence showing that the company had agreed to assume owner's duty to keep the equipment safe, inspection company and inspector were not liable)]. Thus, in cases where the injury is caused by a defective elevator or escalator, the possessor or the owner of the building, or both, if premises which are to be used by the public are leased, as well as the service person or service company, should be joined as defendants[Brown v. George Pepperdine Found. (1943) 23 Cal. 2d 256, 259-260, 143 P.2d 929 ; Longway v. McCall (1960) 181 Cal. App. 2d 723, 729-730, 5 Cal. Rptr. 818] .

§ 244.14 Liability of Lessor of Chattel

A bailor for hire of a chattel must use reasonable care to make such chattel safe for its intended use or disclose its actual condition to the bailee [McNeal v. Greenberg (1953) 40 Cal. 2d 740, 742, 255 P.2d 810] . Accordingly, one who leases a construction elevator may be liable for injuries caused by such elevator even if the lessee has total possession, operation, and control of the elevator if the injury occurs due to the negligence of the lessor in leasing an elevator without an inspection certificate and without providing proper safety devices, contrary to safety ordinances [Rae v. California Equip. Co. (1939) 12 Cal. 2d 563, 569, 86 P.2d 352] . For a further discussion of the leasing of construction equipment, including elevators, see Ch. 93, Bailments .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

20-244 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 244.15

§ 244.15 Duty of Care

[1] In General

The general duty of care that one in possession or control of an elevator owes to a person on the premises is that contained in Civ. Code § 1714(a). This section states that everyone is responsible, not only for the result of his or her willful acts, but also for an injury occasioned to another by his or her want of ordinary care or skill in the management of his or her property or person, except insofar as the latter has, willfully or by want of ordinary care, brought the injury on himself or herself. This duty is owed to anyone on the premises regardless of whether the person would have been classified as a guest, invitee, or trespasser, as those classifications were used prior to 1968 [see Rowland v. Christian (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 108, 112-120, 70 Cal. Rptr. 97, 443 P.2d 561 (abolishing these common law classifications)]. For a discussion of the principles of negligence generally and the application of those principles to business premises, see Ch. 380, Negligence , and Ch. 421, Premises Liability , respectively.

[2] Standard of Common Carrier as Applicable

Everyone who offers to the public to carry persons, property, or messages, excepting only telegraphic messages, is a common carrier of whatever he or she offers to carry [Civ. Code § 2168]. Both elevators and escalators are considered common carriers [see Champagne v. A. Hamburger & Sons (1915) 169 Cal. 683, 690, 147 P. 954 (elevators); Hendershott v. Macy's (1958) 158 Cal. App. 2d 324, 327, 322 P.2d 596 (escalators)].

A carrier of persons without reward must use ordinary care and diligence for their safe carriage [Civ. Code § 2096]. A carrier of persons for reward must use the utmost care and diligence for their safe carriage, and must provide everything necessary for that purpose, and must exercise to that end a reasonable degree of skill [Civ. Code § 2100]. A carrier of persons for reward is bound to provide vehicles safe and fit for the purposes to which they are put, and is not excused for default in this respect by any degree of care [Civ. Code § 2101]. A carrier of persons for reward must not overcrowd or overload his or her vehicle [Civ. Code § 2102].

Generally, elevators and escalators are carriers of persons for reward. At least when operated in an office building, apartment house, or hotel for the use of tenants and their visitors, the rental paid by the tenants and their visitors is a compensation or reward for which the owner undertakes to carry them and their visitors by elevators [Champagne v.

A. Hamburger & Sons (1915) 169 Cal. 683, 693, 147 P. 954] . Similarly, the reward for use of an elevator operated in a department store is the benefit, advantage, and profit derived from purchasers or prospective purchasers using the elevator in dealing with the store [Champagne v. A. Hamburger & Sons (1915) 169 Cal. 683, 693, 147 P. 954] . For a further discussion of carrier law, see Ch. 106, Buses and Streetcars , and Ch. 109, Carriers .

Thus, an owner of a department store in which an escalator is operating has the duty of a common carrier not only to those patrons who are alert and nimble and adult, but to all of its patrons, with the possible exception of those whose age and infirmity would make any use of moving stairs hazardous. Under the standard of utmost care required of a carrier, the owner must exercise a reasonable degree of skill in making sure that the escalator is constructed, maintained, and operated with the purpose and design to prevent injury to those who are passengers. Inspections and measurements necessary to meet this standard of care should be known to the owner or possessor [see Vandagriff v. J.C. Penney Co. (1964) 228 Cal. App. 2d 579, 582-583, 39 Cal. Rptr. 671] . The common carrierstandard of care is imposed, however, only if the plaintiff was a passenger of the elevator or escalator. If the plaintiff was not using the escalator as a means of transportation when he or she was injured, the duty of care is that which exists in any case of one using business premises, which is to use ordinary care to keep the premises reasonably safe for those whom the owner or possessor should reasonably foresee as using the premises [see Kataoka v. May Dep't Stores Co. (1943) 60 Cal. App. 2d 177, 182, 140 P.2d 467] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

§ 244.16 Injunction to Restrain Operation of Elevator

Whenever any elevator (or escalator, since for the purposes of elevator safety orders regulated by 8 Cal. Code Reg §§ 3000-3113, the term "elevator" includes escalators [see 8 Cal. Code Reg § 3000(c)(8)]) is being operated without a permit as required by Lab. Code § 7301, and is in such condition that its use is dangerous to the life or safety of any person, the Division of Industrial Safety or any person affected thereby may apply for an injunction restraining the operation of the elevator until the condition is corrected.

The proceeding must be brought in the superior court of the county in which the elevator is located. A temporary restraining order may also be granted on proof by certification made by the division that a permit has not been issued, together with the affidavit (or declaration under penalty of perjury [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) of any safety inspector of the division that the operation of the elevator is dangerous to the life or safety of any person. No bond is required from the division in the proceeding [Lab. Code § 7303; see Code Civ. Proc. § 995.220].

Lab. Code §§ 7300-7319 do not apply to elevators under the jurisdiction of the United States government, elevators located in a single-unit private home and not accessible to the public, or elevators located in a multiunit residential building serving not more than two dwelling units and not accessible to the public [Lab. Code § 7317].

§ 244.17 Pleading and Proof; Res Ipsa Loquitur

A general allegation of negligence in the operation or maintenance of an elevator or escalator is sufficient [Champagne v. A. Hamburger & Sons (1915) 169 Cal. 683, 685, 147 P. 954] if facts are alleged which show the acts or omissions which are alleged to have been negligently performed [Guilliams v. Hollywood Hosp. (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 97, 101, 114 P.2d 1] .

The doctrine of res ipsa loquitur is frequently applied in elevator and escalator cases where there is no direct evidence to show the cause of the accident [Worden v. Central Fireproof Bldg. Co. (1916) 172 Cal. 94, 96, 155 P. 839 (applying doctrine in action involving passenger elevator which fell four floors without warning, stating that plaintiff was required to show only that he was injured by the rapid descent and sudden stopping and that the elevator was under defendant's management and control); Vandagriff v. J.C. Penney Co. (1964) 228 Cal. App. 2d 579, 583-584, 39 Cal. Rptr. 671 (applying doctrine in action, involving minor who was sitting down on moving escalator and whose little finger became caught between the steps, to both department store owner and escalator manufacturer which had on-going service contract with store)]. Evid. Code § 646 defines res ipsa loquitur as a presumption affecting the burden of producing evidence [Evid. Code § 646(b)] and sets forth jury instructions relating thereto [Evid. Code § 646(c)]. For a discussion of the statute, see Ch. 380, Negligence .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

20-244 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 244.18

§ 244.18 Negligence of Plaintiff

Negligence of the plaintiff occurs if the plaintiff willfully or by want of ordinary care causes injury to himself or herself [see Civ. Code § 1714(a)]. Such negligence operates to diminish a plaintiff's recovery by the amount the negligence is attributed to the injuries sustained [Li v. Yellow Cab Co. (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 804, 828-829, 119 Cal. Rptr. 858, 532 P.2d 1226] . What constitutes the negligence of a plaintiff in any particular situation depends on the relevant facts [Gregg v. Manufacturers Bldg. Corp. (1933) 134 Cal. App. 147, 154, 25 P.2d 1014 ; McKeon v. Lissner (1927) 87 Cal. App. 371, 373, 262 P. 459] . However, the mere fact that the person using an elevator may be as familiar with its operation as is the person in control of the premises does not necessarily diminish plaintiff's recovery if the elevator is operating defectively [see Miller v. Schell (1957) 149 Cal. App. 2d 346, 350, 308 P.2d 445] .

[1] Care in Servicing Elevators

Care required in servicing, inspecting, and maintaining elevator and appurtenant appliances. Brown v. George Pepperdine Found. (1943) 23 Cal. 2d 256, 261, 143 P.2d 929

Elevator company was not entitled to indemnity from club following escalator accident resulting in a personal injury judgment against both parties to indemnity contract, if judgment against club was based on its nondelegable duty to see that escalator was maintained in good order, whereas judgment against company was based on its own negligence, thus bringing into operation exclusionary clause of indemnity agreement in service contract between the two parties, which freed elevator company from liability for damages except those directly due to its own negligence. Hollywood Turf Club v. Montgomery Elevator Co. (1976) 58 Cal. App. 3d 580, 586-587, 130 Cal. Rptr. 81

Right to file cross complaint for declaratory relief as to indemnity against installer of escalator. J. C. Penney Co. v. Westinghouse Elec. Corp. (1963) 217 Cal. App. 2d 834, 836-838, 32 Cal. Rptr. 172

Lab. Code § 7324.1 makes clear that *Lab. [2] Use of Form

This is a general skeletal form of complaint for damages for personal injuries resulting from negligence in the operation, servicing, or maintenance of an elevator or escalator. It contains three counts based on three separate theories of liability: (1) a breach of the nondelegable, common carrier duty of care owed a passenger in an elevator or escalator by one who possessed or controlled the elevator or escalator and the premises in which it was located [see § 244.11]; (2) a breach of the duty of care owed by an independent contractor who has contracted to inspect, service, or repair an elevator or escalator, thereby assuming the owner's or possessor's duty of care to a passenger, as well as its own independent duty of care based on the foreseeability of any risk of harm to third persons if it negligently inspects, services, or repairs an elevator or escalator; and (3) a breach of the duty of care owed by a manufacturer of a defective elevator or escalator to a passenger. For alternative forms of complaints, see §§ 244.51 through 244.58.

[3] Allegations

This complaint alleges the capacity and residence of the owners, lessees, or any other persons in possession or control of the premises in which the elevator or escalator is located (Paragraphs 1-5, First Count). Such persons have a nondelegable duty to assure the safety of the appliance with regard to its operation, care, and maintenance [Brown v. George Pepperdine Found. (1943) 23 Cal. 2d 256, 260, 143 P.2d 929] .

If the owner was not in actual possession or control, then the owner should still be named as a defendant if: (1) the provisions of a statute or ordinance impose liability on property owners for dangerous conditions [see Longway v. McCall (1960) 181 Cal. App. 2d 723, 729-731, 5 Cal. Rptr. 818] , (2) the use of the elevator or escalator was open to the public [Goodman v. Harris (1953) 40 Cal. 2d 254, 261, 253 P.2d 447] , or (3) the owner knew or was aware of sufficient facts to put the owner inquiry of the actual possessor's negligence (Paragraph 3, First Count).

The First Count of the complaint then alleges the existence of the elevator or escalator (Paragraph 6) and, if appropriate, the defendant who was responsible for its operation (Paragraph 7). A fictitious name allegation should be included (Paragraph 8), if plaintiff is ignorant of the true names of other possible defendants, such as service or inspection company employees [see Code Civ. Proc. § 474].

The First Count sets forth plaintiff's status (Paragraph 9) and, if appropriate, the fact that he or she was a passenger on the elevator or escalator (Paragraph 10). It is essential that plaintiff allege sufficient facts to show that defendant(s) owed him or her a duty of care, but it is no longer essential that plaintiff's status be alleged as a business visitor, licensee, or trespasser [see Rowland v. Christian (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 108, 119-120,443 P.2d 561] . Nevertheless, an allegation and proof that plaintiff was a business visitor and a passenger on the elevator or escalator imposes on defendant owner or possessor the duty of care of a common carrier [see Champagne v. A. Hamburger & Sons (1915) 169 Cal. 683, 690, 147 P. 954 (elevators); Hendershott v. Macy's (1958) 158 Cal. App. 2d 324, 327, 322 P.2d 596 (escalators)].

Finally, the First Count alleges the negligent breach of the defendant's duty to safely operate, service, and maintain the elevator or escalator (Paragraph 10), including the manner in which the plaintiff's injury occurred and the fact that defendant's negligence proximately caused injury to the plaintiff (Paragraph 10), and plaintiff's damages (Paragraphs 11-13) [see Champagne v. A. Hamburger & Sons (1915) 169 Cal. 683, 685, 147 P. 954 ; see Guilliams v. Hollywood Hosp. (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 97, 101, 114 P.2d 1] .

The Second Count of the complaint alleges in pertinent part the capacity and residence of defendant's inspection, service, or maintenance corporation (Paragraphs 2, 3) and its employee defendant elevator or other employee or agent (Paragraph 4); defendants' negligence in inspecting, servicing, or repairing the elevator or escalator (Paragraph 5); the duty of care owed to plaintiff (Paragraph 6); and the fact that the defendants' negligence was a proximate cause of plaintiff's injuries (Paragraph 7) [see Dahms v. General Elevator Co. (1932) 214 Cal. 733, 738-739, 7 P.2d 1013 ; Vandagriff v. J.C. Penney Co. (1964) 228 Cal. App. 2d 579, 583, 39 Cal. Rptr. 671 ; Barbaria v. Independent Elevator Co. (1956) 139 Cal. App. 2d 474, 483-484, 293 P.2d 855] . An allegation of the filing and rejection of a claim against the state based on the negligence of the certified elevator inspector (Paragraph 8) should be included only if a claim is required to be filed under the provisions of Gov. Code § 950.4.

The Third Count of the complaint alleges the capacity and residence of defendant manufacturer (Paragraph 2); its business of manufacturing elevators or escalators (Paragraph 3); the fact that it defectively manufactured the elevator or escalator in or on which plaintiff was foreseeably a passenger (Paragraphs 3-5); and the fact that the defect was a proximate cause of plaintiff's injuries (Paragraph 6) [see Greenman v. Yuba Power Prods., Inc. (1963) 59 Cal. 2d 57, 62-63, 27 Cal. Rptr. 697, 377 P.2d 897] . For a complete discussion of products liability in general and alternative forms for use in alleging the strict liability of a manufacturer, see Ch. 460, Products Liability .

[4] Specifying Amounts of Damages

For the breach of an obligation not arising from contract, the measure of damages, except where otherwise expressly provided by the Civil Code, is the amount that will compensate for all the detriment proximately caused thereby, whether it could have been anticipated or not [Civ. Code § 3333].In an action for damages for personal injury or wrongful death, the amount of actual or punitive damages must not be stated [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b); see Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11 (obtaining statement of damages in wrongful death case)].

[5] Limitation of Action

Because an action for injuries caused by a defective elevator or escalator is an action for the neglect of another, it must be brought within two years (one year, prior to January 1, 2003) after the date of the injury [Code Civ. Proc. § 335.1; see former Code Civ. Proc. § 340(3); Ch. 345, Limitation of Actions, § 345.14].

[6] Verification

Although verification of this complaint is not required [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(a)], verification will require any answer to be verified also, if the action is an unlimited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446]. Verification will also preclude a general denial in an unlimited civil case, and will preclude a general denial in a limited civil case if the action is a claim assigned to a third party for collection [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion, see Ch. 26, Answers .

[7] Costs and Attorney's Fees

The award of costs is governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 1021 et seq. For when costs must or may be award to the prevailing party, see Code Civ. Proc. § 1032(b). Costs may be awarded against the state or public entity or agency or any officer thereof in his or her official capacity on the same basis as against any other party [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1028, 1029; see generally Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees].

[1] FORM Allegations for Use in Complaint for Damages for Personal Injuries Based on Negligence [Civ. Code § 1714(a)]--By Injured Patron Against Department Store for Injuries Caused by Protruding Metal Strip on Escalator Side

1. At all times herein mentioned, defendant in his/her/its department store operated, maintained and controlled power-driven escalators designed and operated for carrying passengers from floor to floor for the convenience of patrons of the store; the construction of these escalators was such that metal strips were placed to cover connections between panels which were installed in either side of the stairs of the escalators; these metal strips were installed at a perpendicular angle to the stairs and are described as extending from the stair of the escalator to the area of the handrail, being approximately _____ inches wide and _____ inches thick; these metal strips are uniformly spaced on either side of the stairs of the escalators on or about every _____ [specify, e.g., third] stair.

2. Plaintiff is informed and believes, and based on such information and belief, alleges that on _____ [date of injury], and for a long time prior thereto, the metal strip, of the nature and type herein described, located on the _____ [descending or ascending] escalator from the _____ floor to the _____ floor of the department store, and on the _____ [specify] side and adjacent to the _____ stair of the escalator, protruded out and was not installed flush to the above-described panels and the defendant knew, or should have known, of the dangerous and defective position of the metal strip on the escalator.

3. On _____ [date of injury], at a time during the business hours of the department store and when plaintiff was therein for the purpose of purchasing goods from defendant, plaintiff was thrust and fell to the stairs of the escalator which _____ [descends or ascends] from the _____ floor to the _____ floor thereof when bundles and parcels which plaintiff was carrying hooked and caught on the protruding metal strip.

4. As a proximate result of the careless and negligent failure of defendant to properly remedy, maintain, and control the dangerously protruding metal strip, though defendant knew or should have known of the dangerous defect, plaintiff suffered grave and serious injury to his/her person.

[2] Use of Form

These allegations may be substituted for Paragraphs 6-10 of the First Count of § 244.50, with the remaining allegations renumbered accordingly, to state a cause of cause of action by a department store patron against a department store owner for damages for injuries sustained due to defendant's failure to remedy a dangerous defect on an escalator.

1. At all times herein mentioned, _____ [specify statute or ordinance or regulation] was in full force and effect and provided that _____ [specify substance or quote statute, ordinance, or regulation in full]. Pursuant to this _____ [statute or ordinance or regulation] defendant owed to plaintiff the duty to _____ [specify, e.g., operate and maintain the _____ (elevator or escalator) in conformity with the _____ (statute or ordinance or regulation) by _____ [specify, e.g., not permitting its operation except by a licensed operator)].

2. On _____ [date plaintiff was injured], and prior thereto, defendant negligently, carelessly, recklessly, and unlawfully, and in violation of the _____ [statute or ordinance or regulation], _____ [specify, e.g., permitted an unlicensed person to operate the elevator].

[2] Use of Form

These allegations are for use in a complaint based on negligence in the operation, care, and maintenance of an escalator or elevator. As discussed in § 244.10[2], this form cannot be used to allege a violation of the state employment laws contained in Lab. Code §§ 7200-7205 (construction elevators) and the regulations [8 Cal. Code Reg §§ 3000-3113] promulgated thereunder, because no part of these laws has any application to, nor may be considered in, nor may be admissible into, evidence in any personal injury or wrongful death action, except as between an employee and his or her own employer [Lab. Code § 6304.5].

These allegations should also be used only if the statute, ordinance, or regulation requires one to exercise a higher degree of care in regard to a particular matter than would be required at common law. If the statute, ordinance, or regulation merely restates the common law duty to use due care it need not be pleaded. It is, in such cases, merely evidentiary.

This form of complaint is for use in a declaratory relief action by a defendant and cross complainant against a cross defendant who had contracted with cross complainant to inspect, maintain, or repair the elevator or escalator in or on which plaintiff was injured. The basis of the declaratory relief action is cross complainant's claim that any damages he or she is required to pay to plaintiff at the conclusion of plaintiff's pending action was a result of cross complainant's passive negligence and cross defendant's active negligence in breaching the contract to inspect, maintain, or repair the elevator or escalator.

This form is for use when plaintiff's action is pending against the cross complainant and the right to indemnity is not expressly provided for in the contract [see Roylance v. Doelger (1962) 57 Cal. 2d 255, 259-262, 19 Cal. Rptr. 7, 368 P.2d 535 (right to indemnity as permitted to be adjudicated in declaratory relief action prior to actual loss)]. For a discussion of express and implied indemnity, forms of complaints for express indemnity, and a form of complaint for implied contractual indemnity for use when plaintiff's action is no longer pending, see Ch. 300, Indemnity and Contribution .

[3] Allegations

This cross complaint alleges: (1) a contract for installation, inspection, servicing, or repairing an elevator or escalator (Paragraphs 3, 4); (2) the filing of plaintiff's action against cross complainant, and, if appropriate, cross defendant (Paragraph 5); (3) defendant's breach or improper performance of the contract (Paragraph 6); (4) the fact that such breach or performance was the sole or active, proximate cause of any damages plaintiff may recover from cross complainant (Paragraphs 6, 9); (5) cross complainant's demand and cross defendant's refusal to defend plaintiff's action and hold cross complainant harmless from any damages plaintiff may recover (Paragraph 7); and (6) the amount of cross complainant's damages (Paragraph 8). A written demand that is not essential to cross complainant's cause of action, but, if included, lessens plaintiff's burden of proof [see Sunset-Sternau Food Co. v. Bonzi (1964) 60 Cal. 2d 834, 844, 36 Cal. Rptr. 741, 389 P.2d 133 ; see also Ch. 300, Indemnity and Contribution].

In addition, the cross complaint must allege facts showing that the subject of the action is a proper matter for declaratory relief under the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 1060, or of some special statue authorizing declaratory relief, or that declaratory relief in the particular fact situation has been held proper by case law. The fact situation suggested in this cross complaint (Paragraph 3) involves a written contract, and hence brings the action within the express provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 1060. Code Civ. Proc. § 1060 does not, however, require that the contract be written, and thus, an action may be brought to determine a controversy based on an oral contract as well [Zimmer v. Gorelnik (1941) 42 Cal. App. 2d 440, 445, 109 P.2d 34] .

An allegation that cross complainant seeks a declaration of his, her, or its rights under the circumstances should be included, as well as an allegation that such declaration is necessary and appropriate at the time (Paragraph 10) under all circumstances to enable cross complainant to ascertain his, her, or its legal position in the premises [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1060, 1061].

The cross complaint must allege the existence of an actual controversy between the parties (Paragraph 9) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1060 (declaratory relief to ascertain status or construe writing); Alturas v. Gloster (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 46, 48, 104 P.2d 810 ; Escondido Mut. Water Co. v. George A. Hillebrecht, Inc. (1966) 241 Cal. App. 2d 410, 412-413, 50 Cal. Rptr. 495] . The pleading requirement may be satisfied by alleging that an actual controversy exists between the parties and setting forth the parties' conflicting contentions (Paragraph 9) showing that an actual justiciable controversy exists. [Code Civ. Proc. § 1060].

For discussion of the procedure, checklists, and forms for obtaining temporary restraining orders and preliminary injunctive relief, as well as discussion of permanent injunctive relief, see Ch. 303, Injunctions .

[3] Allegations

The complaint alleges: (1) the capacity of the defendant (Paragraph 1); (2) the possession, ownership, and control of the elevator by the defendant (Paragraph 2); (3) an optional allegation as to fictitiously named defendants (Paragraph 3); (4) a statement that the elevator was operated without a permit and in a condition dangerous to the life or safety of persons using it (Paragraph 4) [see Lab. Code § 7303]; (5) facts showing that the plaintiff is affected by the unsafe condition of the elevator (Paragraph 5) [see Lab. Code § 7303]; (6) facts showing that the plaintiff has no adequate remedy at law and that the plaintiff will suffer irreparable harm thereby (Paragraph 6) [see Civ. Code § 3422(1), (2); Code Civ. Proc. § 526(a)(2), (4)-(6)]; and (7) a statement that proof of certification that no elevator permit has been issued and an affidavit by a safety inspector that the elevator is in a dangerous condition are attached to the complaint (Paragraph 7) [see Lab. Code § 7303].

[4] Verification

Verification [see Code Civ. Proc. § 446] is required if plaintiff seeks a temporary restraining order or a preliminary injunction on a complaint instead of on affidavit or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5 [see Code Civ. Proc. §

527(a)]. For discussion of the effect of verification of a complaint, see Ch. 26, Answers .

[5] Notice and Certification

A party seeking an ex parte order must notify all parties no later than 10:00 a.m. on the court day before the ex parte appearance, absent a showing of exceptional circumstances that justify a shorter time for notice [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1203(a)]. The notice must specify the nature of the relief to be requested and the date, time, and place for the presentation of the application. The person giving notice must attempt to determine whether the opposing party will appear to oppose the application [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1204(a)].

An ex parte application must be accompanied by a declaration regarding notice that states one of the following [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1204(b); see Code Civ. Proc. § 527(c)(2)]:

- The notice given, including the date, time, manner, and name of the party informed, the relief sought, any response, and whether opposition is expected, and that within the applicable time under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1203, the applicant informed the opposing party where and when the application would be made;

- That the applicant in good faith attempted to inform the opposing party but was unable to do so, specifying the efforts made to inform the opposing party; or

- That, for reasons specified, the applicant should not be required to inform the opposing party.

An ex parte application must state the name, address, and telephone number of any attorney known to the applicant to be an attorney for any party or, if no such attorney is known, the name, address, and telephone number of the party, if known to the applicant [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1202(a)].

For discussion of the procedure and additional forms for obtaining a temporary restraining order, see Ch. 303, Injunctions .

§ 245.10 Governing Statutes

Statutory emancipation of minors is governed by Fam. Code § 7000 et seq., the Emancipation of Minors Law. It was enacted to provide a clear statement defining emancipation and its consequences, and to permit an emancipated minor to obtain a court declaration of his or her status [Fam. Code § 7001].

Chapter 245 EMANCIPATION OF MINORS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

20-245 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 245.11

§ 245.11 Meaning of Emancipation of Minor

Emancipation of a minor is a legal status that results in the termination of some of the rights and obligations that inure to the parent-child relationship. To the extent that a child is emancipated, he or she becomes sui juris, with the same independence as though he or she had reached the age of majority [Jolicoeur v. Mihaly (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 565, 580, 96 Cal. Rptr. 697, 488 P.2d 1 ; see Fam. Code § 7050]. Unlike proceedings that terminate parental rights (see Ch. 12A, Adoptions: Termination of Parental Rights), emancipation leaves the parent-child relationship intact, but terminates those rights and obligations that arise from the relationship only because of the minority of the child.

Many of the kinds of disputes that have brought the question of a minor's emancipation before the court have disappeared with the change of the age of majority from 21 to 18 in 1972 [see Fam. Code §§ 6500, 6502]. Before that time, there was a significant class of children between the ages of 18 and 21 who were, at least to some extent, no longer dependent on parental support nor subject to parental authority. Now that these persons are adults by law, many former emancipation issues have become moot.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

20-245 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 245.12

§ 245.12 Nonstatutory and Statutory Emancipation

Under California case law before 1978, whether a minor was emancipated for a particular purpose depended largely on the particular circumstances of each case, and was ordinarily a question of fact [Martinez v. Southern Pacific Co. (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 244, 253-254, 288 P.2d 868] . Among the ways that emancipation could be proved were the following:

(1) By operation of law on the minor's attaining the age of majority or on the marriage of the minor [see In re Marriage of Phillips (1974) 39 Cal. App. 3d 723, 727, 114 Cal. Rptr. 362 (overruled on other grounds in Ganschow v. Ganschow (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 150, 157 n.7, 120 Cal. Rptr. 865, 534 P.2d 705); see Fam. Code § 7505(b), (c)];

(2) By express agreement of the parents and child [see In re Marriage of Whitney (1977) 71 Cal. App. 3d 179, 183, 139 Cal. Rptr. 324 ; Perkins v. Robertson (1956) 140 Cal. App. 2d 536, 540, 295 P.2d 972] ; or

(3) By implication from the conduct of parents and child having the effect of cutting the parental ties [see In re Marriage of Whitney (1977) 71 Cal. App. 3d 179, 183, 139 Cal. Rptr. 324 ; Perkins v. Robertson (1956) 140 Cal. App. 2d 536, 540, 295 P.2d 972] .

In 1978, the legislature enacted the Emancipation of Minors Act [see Stats. 1978, ch. 1059; former Civ. Code § 60 et seq.], now called the Emancipation of Minors Law [see Fam. Code § 7000]. The legislative purpose of the law is to provide a clear statement of emancipation and its consequences and to permit an emancipated minor to obtain a court declaration of emancipated status [Fam. Code § 7001]. The Emancipation of Minors Law is discussed further under Emancipation of Minors Law, below.

However, the Law was not intended to affect the status of minors who might become emancipated under the case law that was in effect before its enactment [Fam. Code § 7001]. Therefore, even if a minor has no judicial declaration of emancipation, emancipation may still be proved under any of the principles established in the case law. In these cases, the minor may be held emancipated for the purpose or purposes at issue [see Emancipation for Various Purposes, below], which may not necessarily be identical to those specified in the Law. In any case, the minor bears the burden of showing that he or she has in fact been emancipated, whether under statute or the case law, for the purpose at issue [

Evid. Code § 500; Smith v. Smith (1918) 38 Cal. App. 388, 397, 176 P. 382] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

20-245 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 245.13

§ 245.13 Total or Partial Emancipation

Nonstatutory emancipation of a minor may be complete or partial, conditional or absolute [Jolicoeur v. Mihaly (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 565, 580, 96 Cal. Rptr. 697, 488 P.2d 1 ; Perkins v. Robertson (1956) 140 Cal. App. 2d 536, 540, 295 P.2d 972] . If emancipation is implied from the conduct of the parties, it is not necessarily total. For example, a minor child may maintain a separate residence from his or her parents but not manage his or her own financial affairs [see Jolicoeur v. Mihaly (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 565, 580, 96 Cal. Rptr. 697, 488 P.2d 1] . Conversely, a minor may still reside with his or her parents but control his or her own earnings and contribute his or her share of family expenses in the same manner as an adult member of the family [see Martinez v. Southern Pacific Co. (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 244, 253-254, 288 P.2d 868] . In these cases, emancipation is not an all-or-nothing proposition, and a minor may be emancipated for some, but not all, purposes (see § 245.14).

Chapter 245 EMANCIPATION OF MINORS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

20-245 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 245.14

§ 245.14 Emancipation for Various Purposes

[1] Relinquishment of Parental Authority

A parent may relinquish the right to control his or her child [Fam. Code § 7504; see Fam. Code § 7505(b) (parental authority ceases on marriage of child)]. Such a relinquishment may be express or implied, and may constitute partial or complete, or conditional or absolute emancipation. After consenting to the emancipation of a child old enough to work and care for himself or herself, a parent no longer has the right to custody or control of the minor [Jolicoeur v. Mihaly (1971) 5 Cal. 3d. 565, 580, 96 Cal. Rptr. 697, 488 P.2d 1] .

[2] Termination of Parental Duty of Support

In general, when a child attains the age of majority, the parental duty of support terminates [see Fam. Code § 3900]. Circumstances under which the duty of support continues as to an adult child [see, e.g., Fam. Code § 3901], are discussed in Ch. 224, Dissolution of Marriage: Child Support .

However, parents are obligated to support even an adult child who is incapacitated from earning a living and without sufficient means [Fam. Code § 3910(a)]. By analogy, it has been found that the parental duty of support extends to an otherwise emancipated minor who is unable to support himself or herself [see Bryant v. Swoap (1975) 48 Cal. App. 3d 431, 436-439, 121 Cal. Rptr. 867 (divorced minor who was emancipated by marriage can be dependent child for purposes of AFDC eligibility)].

Further, if emancipation occurs through express agreement or by implication, it has been argued that the parents' relinquishment of custody and control over the child is effective insofar as parental rights are concerned, but is not effective to relieve the parents of the burden of legal duties. Thus, emancipation by an express agreement or implied from conduct should not terminate the minor's right to support from his or her parents [see County of Alameda v. Kaiser (1965) 238 Cal. App. 2d 815, 816-817, 48 Cal. Rptr. 343] .

Whether emancipation is total or partial, a parent may reassume or continue the obligation to support a child through the execution of a binding contractual agreement [see Fam. Code § 3901(b)]. If the agreement is based on sufficient consideration, the contractual obligation will be enforced regardless of the legal duties that would otherwise be imposed on the parent [Kamper v. Waldon (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 718, 720-721, 112 P.2d 1 ; see Bryant v. Swoap (1975) 48 Cal. App. 3d 431, 439, 121 Cal. Rptr. 867] .

[3] Child's Right to Earnings

The parents of an unemancipated minor are entitled to his or her earnings [Fam. Code § 7500(a)]. However, a parent may relinquish that right to the minor [Fam. Code § 7504]. and partial or complete emancipation effects a relinquishment [Slater v. California State Auto. Asso. (1962) 200 Cal. App. 2d 375, 376-377, 19 Cal. Rptr. 290] .

Even if a minor child is living with his or her parents, he or she may be emancipated to the extent of having a right to his or her own earnings. Facts such as the minor's contributing to the support of the household and occupying a position equal to the parents in the family unit imply that the minor is at least partially emancipated [see Martinez v. Southern Pacific Co. (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 244, 253-254, 288 P.2d 868] .

[4] Child's Residence

In general, a parent entitled to the custody of a child has the right to determine the child's residence [Fam. Code § 7501; Gov. Code § 244(d), (e)]. However, a fully emancipated minor has the right to determine his or her own residence, and a child may be partially emancipated for the purpose of acquiring a separate residence or domicile from a parent [Jolicoeur v. Mihaly (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 565, 579-581, 96 Cal. Rptr. 697, 488 P.2d 1 (minors living apart from parents entitled to register to vote in jurisdiction of residence); see Lev v. College of Marin (1971) 22 Cal. App. 3d 488, 490-491, 99 Cal. Rptr. 476 (emancipated minors entitled to attend community college where they reside)].

Whether a minor has been emancipated for residential purposes is ordinarily a question of fact. Establishment of a separate abode, with the express or implied consent of the parent, is evidence of such emancipation [Jolicoeur v. Mihaly (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 565, 581, 96 Cal. Rptr. 697, 488 P.2d 1] .

[5] Medical Emancipation

The Legislature has enacted a number of so-called "medical emancipation" statutes, each of which has designated a general category of minors who, although not legally emancipated for all purposes, nonetheless are authorized to obtain medical, surgical, or hospital care in all contexts, without parental consent [Am. Acad. of Pediatrics v. Lungren (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 307, 315, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 210] . Under a "general medical emancipation statute" [Am. Acad. of Pediatrics v. Lungren (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 307, 316, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 210] , a minor 15 years of age or older who is living separate and apart from his or her parents or legal guardian, whether with or without the consent of a parent or guardian and regardless of the duration of such separate residence, and who is managing his or her own financial affairs, regardless of the source of his or her income, may consent to any hospital, medical, or surgical care without parental approval [Fam. Code § 6922 (formerly Civ. Code § 34.6)].

California has also enacted a variety of "limited medical emancipation" statutes [Am. Acad. of Pediatrics v. Lungren (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 307, 316, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 210] . Thus, an unmarried pregnant minor, without parental consent, may obtain hospital, medical, and surgical care related to pregnancy [Fam. Code § 6925 (formerly Civ. Code § 34.5)]. Furthermore, a minor, 12 years of age or older, may obtain, without parental consent, medical care related to the diagnosis or treatment of any infectious, contagious, or communicable disease, including a sexually transmitted disease [Fam. Code § 6926 (formerly Civ. Code § 34.7)]. Likewise, a minor, 12 years of age or older, may obtain, without parental consent, medical care related to the diagnosis and treatment of rape [Fam. Code § 6927 (formerly Civ. Code § 34.8)]. A minor of any age may obtain, without parental consent, medical care relating to sexual assault [Fam. Code § 6928 (formerly Civ. Code § 34.9)]. A minor, 12 years old or older, without parental consent, may obtain medical care and counseling relating to the diagnosis and treatment of a drug or alcohol related problem [Fam. Code § 6929 (formerly Civ. Code § 34.10)]. Finally, a minor, 12 years of age or older, may obtain, without parental consent, mental health treatment or counseling on an outpatient basis [Fam. Code § 6924 (formerly Civ. Code § 25.9)].

For discussion of minor's capacity to consent, see Ch. 365, Minors: Contract Actions . For discussion of abortion, see Ch. 4, Abortion and Birth Control Methods .

Chapter 245 EMANCIPATION OF MINORS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

20-245 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 245.15

§ 245.15 Emancipation of Minors Law

[1] Objectives

The Emancipation of Minors Law [Fam. Code § 7000 et seq.] addresses three major aspects of emancipation [see Fam. Code § 7001]. First, it provides a clear statement of who is an emancipated minor [see Fam. Code § 7002, discussed under § 245.15[3] below]. Second, it delineates the legal significance of this statutory emancipated status [see Fam. Code § 7050, discussed under § 245.15[6] below]. Third, it provides for a procedure by which a minor may obtain a declaration of emancipation [see Fam. Code § 7120 et seq., discussed under § 245.15[9] below].

[2] Statutory Emancipated Status

Any person under the age of 18 years who comes within the following description is emancipated [Fam. Code § 7002]:

(1) The person has entered into a valid marriage, whether or not the marriage has been dissolved;

(2) The person is on active duty with any of the armed forces of the United States; or

(3) The person has received a declaration of emancipation under Fam. Code § 7122.

The first two categories simply confirm emancipated status to persons previously recognized as emancipated for all purposes [see Fam. Code §§ 6950, 7505(b)]. The third category incorporates some of the factors that might establish partial or complete emancipation under prior case law [see Fam. Code § 7120(b), discussed under § 245.15[3] below].

[3] Minors Entitled to Petition for Emancipation

Only a minor seeking emancipation may file a petition for a declaration of emancipation [Fam. Code § 7120(a); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1370(a)]. The minor must allege and prove all of the following facts [Fam. Code § 7120(b)]:

(1) The minor is at least 14 years of age;

(2) The minor willingly lives separate and apart from the minor's parents or guardian with the consent or acquiescence of the minor's parents or guardian [Bonnie P. v. Superior Court (2005) 134 Cal. App. 4th 1249, 1260, 37 Cal. Rptr. 3d 77 (arguable parental failure to adequately provide for minor does not constitute parental consent or acquiescence to minor's living apart from parents; parental neglect may be basis for invoking jurisdiction of juvenile court with respect to dependency proceeding, but is not statutory basis for emancipation under Fam. Code § 7120];

(3) The minor is managing his or her own financial affairs [Bonnie P. v. Superior Court (2005) 134 Cal. App. 4th 1249, 1258 n.6, 37 Cal. Rptr. 3d 77 (unclear whether minor must be independently managing his or her finances, i.e., personally earning salary or wages, or whether minor may be sufficiently supported by others to satisfy this criterion)]; and

(4) The source of the minor's income is not derived from any activity declared to be a crime by California law or the laws of the United States.

For an example of the Judicial Council form for use as a petition for emancipation, see § 245.50.

To prove management of financial affairs, the minor must complete and attach an income and expense declaration [Fam. Code § 7120(b)(3) (as amended effective Jan. 1, 2005, requires income and expense declaration as provided in Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-150); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1370(a) (requires income and expense declaration specially designed for use in emancipation matters, as provided in Cal. Judicial Council Form MC-306); see comments to see § 245.52, below].

It does not appear that the minor must be financially independent; all that is required is that the minor manage his or her own financial affairs [Fam. Code § 7120(b)(3); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1370(d) (inability to pay filing fee is not proof of statutory standard)]. The source of the minor's support precludes emancipation only if it is from criminal activity [see Fam. Code § 7120(b)(4)] or public assistance [see Fam. Code § 7130(b)]. It would seem that the minor may receive support from any other source, including parental contributions, trust fund payments, or the assistance of friends or relatives.

[4] Notice and Other Procedures

Before a petition for a declaration of emancipation is heard, such notice as the court determines is reasonable must be given to the minor's parents,guardian, or other person entitled to the custody of the minor, or proof must be made to the court that their addresses are unknown or that for other reasons the notice cannot be given [Fam. Code § 7121(a)]. The clerk of the court must also give notice of the proceeding to the local child support agency of the county in which the matter is to be heard. If the minor is a ward of the court, notice must be given to the probation department, and if the child is a dependent child of the court, notice must be given to the county welfare department [Fam. Code § 7121(b)].

The notice must include a form whereby the minor's parents, guardian, or other person entitled to the custody of the minor may consent in writing to the petitioner's emancipation [Fam. Code § 7121(c)]. The notice must also include a warning that a court may void or rescind the declaration of emancipation and the parents may become liable for support and medical insurance coverage for the child [Fam. Code § 7121(c); see Fam. Code §§ 4000 et seq., 17400, 17402, 17404, 17422]. The Judicial Council form for use to give notice of a petition for emancipation is set forth in see § 245.51.

If the court finds that all notice and consent requirements have been met or waived, and that emancipation is not contrary to the best interests of the minor, the court may grant the petition without a hearing. The presiding judge of each superior court must develop a protocol for the screening, evaluation, or investigation of petitions [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1370(e)].

Within 30 days from the filing of the petition, the court must either grant the petition, deny the petition, or set a hearing to be conducted within 30 days thereafter. The clerk must immediately provide the minor with an endorsed-filed copy of the court's order [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1370(f)]. If the court orders the matter set for hearing, the clerk must notify the district attorney of the time and date of the hearing. The minor is responsible for giving notice to all other persons to whom the court requires notice [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1370(g)].

At the hearing on the petition, any witnesses must be sworn [Bonnie P. v. Superior Court (2005) 134 Cal. App. 4th 1249, 1254-1258, 37 Cal. Rptr. 3d 77] .

[5] Purposes for Which Minor Is Considered as Adult

Emancipation under the provisions of the Law terminates the parental right to control the minor and the minor's earnings and the parental duty of support [Fam. Code § 7050(a), (b)]. An emancipated minor is also considered an adult and no longer subject to juvenile court dependency law [Fam. Code § 7050(c); see Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 300, 601]. However, an emancipated minor may still be treated as a minor and subjected to the jurisdiction of the juvenile court with regard to criminal conduct [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 602].

Emancipation ends all vicarious or imputed liability of the minor's parents or guardian for the minor's acts. It does not terminate any vicarious liability arising under the Vehicle Code or from an agency relationship [Fam. Code § 7050(d)].

An emancipated minor is also considered an adult with regard to the capacity to do any of the following [Fam. Code § 7050(e)]:

(1) To consent to medical, dental, or psychiatric care, without parental consent, knowledge, or liability [Fam. Code § 7050(e)(1)]. This provision terminates parental responsibility for the costs of the care [see 57 Ops. Cal. Atty. Gen. 28, 29-30 (1974)] ;

(2) To enter into a binding contract and to give a delegation of power [Fam. Code § 7050(e)(2)]. Emancipation therefore terminates the minor's right to disaffirm contracts on any ground not available to other adults. Minors' contracts are discussed in Ch. 365, Minors: Contract Actions ;

(3) To buy, sell, lease, encumber, exchange, or transfer any interest in real or personal property, including, but not limited to, shares of stock in a domestic or foreign corporation or a membership in a nonprofit corporation [Fam. Code § 7050(e)(3); see Fam. Code § 6701];

(4) To sue and be sued in his or her own name [Fam. Code § 7050(e)(4)]. Thus, appointment of a guardian ad litem or guardian of the estate [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 372, 373] is not required to prosecute or defend a law suit on behalf of or against an emancipated minor; however, upon emancipation, a minor loses the benefit of tolling of statutes of limitation for minors [W. Shield Investigations & Sec. Consultants v. Superior Court (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 935, 949-950, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 612] ;

(5) To compromise, settle, arbitrate, or otherwise adjust a claim, action, or proceeding by or against the minor [Fam. Code § 7050(e)(5)];

(6) To make or revoke a will [Fam. Code § 7050(e)(6)];

(7) To make a gift, outright or in trust [Fam. Code § 7050(e)(7)];

(8) To convey or release contingent or expectant interests in property, including marital property rights and any right of survivorship incident to joint tenancy, and consent to a transfer, encumbrance, or gift of marital property [Fam. Code §

7050(e)(8)];

(9) To exercise or release his or her powers as donee of a power of appointment unless the creating instrument otherwise provides [Fam. Code § 7050(e)(9)];

(10) To create for his or her benefit or for the benefit of others a revocable or irrevocable trust [Fam. Code § 7050(e)(10)];

(11) To revoke a revocable trust [Fam. Code § 7050(e)(11)];

(12) To elect to take under or against a will [Fam. Code § 7050(e)(12)];

(13) To renounce or disclaim any interest acquired by testate or intestate succession or by inter vivos transfer, including exercising the right to surrender the right to revoke a revocable trust [Fam. Code § 7050(e)(13)];

(14) To make an election or election and agreement referred to in Prob Code §§ 13502 and 13503, regarding a surviving spouse's right to community or quasi-community property [see Fam. Code § 7050(e)(14)];

(15) To establish his or her own residence [Fam. Code § 7050(e)(15)];

(16) To apply for a work permit under Section 49110 of the Education Code without the request of the parents [Fam. Code § 7050(e)(16)];

(17) To enroll in any school or college [Fam. Code § 7050(e)(17)].

[6] Insurance Contracts

An insurance contract entered into by an emancipated minor has the same effect as if it were entered into by an adult. With respect to such a contract, the minor has the same rights, duties, and liabilities as an adult [Fam. Code § 7051].

[7] Corporate Ownership Interests and Other Property Interests

With respect to any shares of stock in a domestic or foreign corporation held by an emancipated minor, any membership in a nonprofit corporation held by an emancipated minor, or any other property held by an emancipated minor, the minor may do all of the following [Fam. Code § 7052]:

(1) Vote in person, and give proxies to exercise any voting rights, with respect to such shares or memberships or property;

(2) Waive notice of any meeting or give consent to the holding of any meeting; and

(3) Authorize, ratify, approve or confirm any action that could be taken by shareholders, members, or property owners.

[8] Receipt of Public Benefits

The issuance of a declaration of emancipation does not entitle the minor to any benefits under Division 9 of the Welfare and Institutions Code [Welf. & Inst. Code § 10000 et seq.] that would not otherwise accrue to an emancipated minor [Fam. Code § 7111]. However, even if an emancipated minor is otherwise entitled, receipt of public benefits may be evidence that a minor is indigent and has no means of support, thereby constituting grounds for rescission of the declaration of emancipation [see Fam. Code § 7130(b), discussed under § 245.15[12] below].

[9] Issuance of Declaration of Emancipation; Standards and Effect

The court must grant a declaration of emancipation if it finds that the required allegations in the petition are true and that emancipation would not be contrary to the minor's best interests [Fam. Code § 7122(a)]. A declaration is considered conclusive evidence that the minor is emancipated [Fam. Code § 7122(c)].

The Judicial Council form of Petition for Declaration of Emancipation [see see § 245.50] includes a section in which the court may issue its declaration on determining that no notice is required and that the matter may proceed without hearing [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1370(e) (court maygrant petition without hearing)]. It also contains a section for a court order denying the petition if it can be determined from the face of the petition that the petitioner fails to meet the statutory requirements. The Judicial Council form for use as a Declaration of Emancipation after hearing is set forth in see § 245.53.

[10] Review by Writ of Mandate

If the minor's petition for a declaration of emancipation is denied, the minor may seek review of the denial by filing a petition for a writ of mandate [Fam. Code § 7123(a)]. If the petition is sustained, the parents or guardian have the right to file a petition for writ of mandate if they have appeared in the proceeding and opposed the granting of the petition [Fam. Code § 7123(b)].

[11] Identification Cards and Information

On application of a minor declared emancipated by the court, the Department of Motor Vehicles must enter identifying information in its law enforcement computer network. The fact of emancipation must be stated on the department's identification card issued to the emancipated minor [Fam. Code § 7140]. A person who, in good faith, has examined a minor's identification card and relies on a minor's representation that the minor is emancipated, has the same rights and obligations as if the minor were in fact emancipated at the time of the representation [Fam. Code § 7141]. No public entity or employee is liable for any loss or injury resulting directly or indirectly from false or inaccurate information contained in the Department of Motor Vehicles records system or identification cards [Fam. Code § 7142].

For an example of the Judicial Council form of application to the Department of Motor Vehicles, see § 245.54.

[12] Voiding or Rescinding of Declaration

A declaration of emancipation obtained by fraud or by the withholding of material information is voidable [Fam. Code § 7130(a)]. A declaration of emancipation may be rescinded on the ground that the minor is indigent and has no means of support [Fam. Code § 7132(a)]. The minor may be considered indigent if his or her only source of income is from public assistance benefits [Fam. Code § 7132(b)].

A petition to void a declaration of emancipation may be filed in the court that made the declaration by any person or by any public or private agency [Fam. Code § 7131]. A petition for rescission may be filed by the minor declared emancipated, by the minor's conservator, or by the district attorney of the county in which the minor resides. The petition must be filed in the county in which the minor or the conservator resides [Fam. Code § 7132(a)].

Reasonable notice of a petition to void or rescind a declaration of emancipation must be given to the minor's parents or guardian, or proof made to the court that their addresses are unknown, or that for other reason notice cannot be given [Fam. Code § 7133(a)]. The notice to parents must state that if the declaration of emancipation is voided or rescinded, the parents may be liable to provide support and medical insurance coverage for the child [Fam. Code § 7133(b); see Fam. Code § 4000 et seq.; see also Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 11350, 11350.1, 11475.1, 11490]. No liability will accrue to any parent or guardian until the parent or guardian is given actual notice [Fam. Code § 7133(c)]. From the statutory language, it is not clear if a parent who does not receive actual notice of the effect of rescission until after rescission is then liable for the support of the minor.

In ruling on a petition to rescind, the court must consider the impact of the rescission on the minor. Before granting rescission, the court must find that it will not be contrary to the best interests of the minor [Fam. Code § 7132(b)].

If the petition is sustained, the court must issue an order voiding or rescinding the declaration of emancipation, which must be filed by the clerk of the court [Fam. Code § 7134]. If the minor's residence has changed since the declaration was issued, so that the court of a different county has jurisdiction over a petition for rescission, the order of rescission should also be filed in the county where the declaration was issued and filed. Also, notice of the rescission must be sent immediately to the Department of Motor Vehicles, which must remove the information in its law enforcement computer network and invalidate any identification card issued showing the fact of emancipation [Fam. Code § 7143; see Fam. Code § 7140, discussed under § 245.15[11] above].

Voiding or rescinding a declaration of emancipation does not alter any contractual obligations or rights or any property rights or interests that arose during the period when the declaration was in effect [Fam. Code § 7135]. It also cannot affect the status of the minor under decisional case law any more than the original declaration of emancipation could have that effect [see Fam. Code § 7001]. That is, if the statutory declaration of emancipation is no longer effective, the minor may nonetheless be emancipated for some purposes under the prior nonstatutory standards [see discussion in § 245.14].

[2] Use of Form

This form is the Judicial Council form (MC-300) for use by a minor to commence proceedings for a declaration of emancipation. Because this form is "adopted" rather than "approved" by the Judicial Council, its use is mandatory [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1370(a); see also Introductory Statement to California Rules of Court; Gov. Code § 68511]. This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

The Judicial Council has promulgated these forms to be suitable for use by minors acting as their own counsel [see Fam. Code § 7110]. Evidently the Legislature contemplated that the minor does not have to appear through a guardian ad litem [see Code Civ. Proc. § 372].

[3] Jurisdiction and Venue

The petition is to be filed in the superior court of the county in which the minor resides or is temporarily domiciled [Fam. Code § 7120(a)]. The minor must be able to provide a verifiable residence address [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1370(a)]. The petition must be filed and heard in the juvenile court, or other superior court department so designated by local rule or by order of the presiding judge [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1370(b) (petition to emancipate child who is dependent or ward of juvenile court must be filed in juvenile court)].

[4] Contents

This form contains the required allegations [see Fam. Code § 7120, discussed in § 245.15[3] above]; an order prescribing notice [see Fam. Code § 7120, discussed in § 245.15[4], above]; a declaration of emancipation if no notice is required; an order denying the petition if the court determines from the face of the petition that the petitioner is not entitled to emancipation; and a clerk's certification. A completed income and expense declaration must be attached [Fam. Code § 7120(b)(3); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1370(a) (requires income and expense declaration specially designed for use in emancipation matters, as provided in Cal. Judicial Council Form MC-306); see comments to see § 245.52, below].

[5] Filing Fee

Unless waived, the petitioning minor must pay the filing fee. However, the ability or inability to pay the fee is not in and of itself evidence of the financial responsibility of the minor as required for emancipation [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1370(d)].

[2] Use of Form

This form is the Judicial Council form (MC-305) for use to give notice of a hearing on a petition for a declaration of emancipation of a minor [see Fam. Code § 7133, discussed in § 245.15[4], above]. Because this form is "adopted" rather than "approved" by the Judicial Council, its use is mandatory [see Introductory Statement to California Rules of Court; see also Gov. Code § 68511]. [3] Contents

This form contains a warning to parents, required by statute [see Fam. Code § 7133(b)] that the declaration may be rescinded. In this case, the parental duty of support will be reimposed. The form also contains a section in which any person entitled to notice may waive notice and consent to a declaration of emancipation without a hearing.

[2] Use of Form

This form is the Judicial Council form of Income and Expense Declaration for use in emancipation proceedings [Cal. Judicial Council Form MC-306]. It is a mandatory form, adopted for use by all courts, that is specially designed to be completed and attached to the petition in an emancipation proceeding[Cal. Judicial Council Form MC-306; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1370]. Fam. Code § 7120(b)(3) requires an income and expense declaration to be attached to the emancipation petition. Counsel should attach this specialized income and expense form (Cal. Judicial Council Form MC-306) to the petition, instead of the more elaborate, dissolution-oriented, family law income and expense form (Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-150).

The foregoing form is the Judicial Council form (MC-310) for use as a declaration of emancipation if the matter was contested and determined after hearing. Because this form is "adopted" rather than "approved" by the Judicial Council, its use is mandatory [see Introductory Statement to California Rules of Court; see also Gov. Code § 68511]. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

The form calls for the emancipated minor to identify the date of his declaration of emancipation and the name and court of the judge who issued it. A copy of the declaration must be attached.

On receipt of the application, the Department of Motor Vehicles will enter identifying information in its law enforcement computer network and will state the fact of emancipation on the identification card issued to the minor [Fam. Code § 7140].

Chapter 246 EMERGENCY VEHICLES
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

20-246 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 246.12

§ 246.12 Liability for Negligent Operation of Emergency Vehicles

[1] Public Entities Generally

A public entity is liable for death or injury to person or property proximately caused by a negligent or wrongful act or omission in the operation of any motor vehicle by an employee of the public entity acting within the scope of his or her employment [Veh. Code § 17001; see also Veh. Code § 17000 (defining "employee," "employment," and "public entity")]. The public entity can be liable under Veh. Code § 17001 even if the public employee is immune; neither Gov. Code § 815.2(b) nor Gov. Code § 845.8 apply to immunize entities from liability under § 17001 [Thomas v. City of Richmond (1995) 9 Cal. 4th 1154, 1158-1159, 40 Cal. Rptr. 2d 442, 892 P.2d 1185 (Gov. Code § 845.8 inapplicable); Brummett v. County of Sacramento (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 880, 883-885, 148 Cal. Rptr. 361, 582 P.2d 952 (Gov. Code § 815.2(b) inapplicable)].

Under Veh. Code §§ 17001, it is not sufficient that a motor vehicle somehow be involved in the series of events that results in the injury; instead, the vehicle must be in a state of being at work or in the exercise of some specific function by performing work or producing effects at the time and place the injury is inflicted. Accordingly, where police shot and killed a suspect well after a police vehicular pursuit concluded (after the police stopped and exited their cars and chased the suspect on foot), neither the individual officers nor the public entity may be held civilly liable for the suspect's death based on the manner in which the officers conducted the vehicular pursuit [Hernandez v. City of Pomona (2009) 46 Cal. 4th 501, 517, 94 Cal. Rptr. 3d 1, 207 P.3d 506] .

A public entity is also liable for death or injury to person or property to the same extent as a private person under the provisions of the Vehicle Code imposing liability on owners of vehicles for injury or damage caused by permissive users [Veh. Code § 17002; see Veh. Code § 17150 et seq. (concerning liability of vehicle owners for injuries caused by permissive users)]. If the liability is based solely on the ownership of the vehicle, and not on the act or omission of a public employee acting in the scope of his or her employment, the liability is limited to the amount provided in Veh. Code § 17151 [see Cal. L. Revision Comm'n Comment to Veh. Code § 17002]. In addition, the provisions of Gov. Code §§ 825-825.6 take precedence over the subrogation rights given to private owners by Veh. Code § 17153 [see Veh. Code § 17002; Cal. L. Revision Comm'n Comment to Veh. Code § 17002].

For discussion of liabilities and immunities of public entities generally, see Ch. 464, Public Entities and Officers: California Tort Claims Act ; for discussion of vicarious liabilities of vehicle owners generally, see Ch. 82, Automobiles: Causes of Action § 82.16.

[2] Emergency Rescue Personnel Immunity

In contrast to Veh. Code § 17001, to encourage public entities and emergency rescue personnel to provide emergency services, Health & Safety Code § 1799.107 provides that neither a public entity nor emergency rescue personnel shall be liable for any injury caused by an action taken by the emergency rescue personnel acting within the scope of their employment to provide emergency services, unless the action taken was performed in bad faith or in a grossly negligent manner [Health & Safety Code § 1799.107(b)]. An action taken when providing emergency services is presumed to have been performed in good faith and without gross negligence, and that presumption affects the burden of proof [Health & Safety Code § 1799.107(c)].

Health & Safety Code § 1799.107 states that its provisions apply except as provided in Veh. Code §§ 17000-17004.5 [Health & Safety Code § 1799.107(b)]. The relationship between Health & Safety Code § 1799.107(b) and the Vehicle Code sections imposing liability on public entities is unclear. One possible rationale could be that Veh. Code § 17001 applies when the wrongful act or omission occurs when an emergency vehicle is being operated, while Health & Safety Code § 1799.107 provides a qualified immunity when other emergency services are being provided. This distinction seems inconsistent with the definition of "emergency services" in Health & Safety Code § 1799.107, however, which includes rescue procedures and transportation [Health & Safety Code § 1799.107(e)]. On the other hand, transportation in this context might be construed as meaning transportation in other than a motor vehicle, for example in a helicopter, so that Veh. Code § 17001 could still apply to emergency vehicle operation]. This section provides that a public entity is liable for death or injury to person or property proximately caused by a negligent or wrongful act or omission in the operation of any motor vehicle by an employee of the public entity acting within the scope of his or her employment. The section follows the provisions of the California Tort Claims Act [Gov. Code §§ 810-996.6] by imposing liability on a public entity regardless of whether the tort was a negligent or intentional tort and, to the extent that the term "servant" describes a narrower classification of persons than the term "agent," by resticting liability to the former class of persons [Cal. L. Revision Comm'n Comment to Veh. Code § 17001].

Health & Safety Code § 1799.107 unambiguously applies to 911 emergency dispatching [Eastburn v. Regional Fire Protection Authority (2003) 31 Cal. 4th 1175, 1184, 7 Cal. Rptr. 3d 552, 80 P.3d 656] .

[3] Public Entity's Immunity for Police Pursuits

[a] In General

Neither a public entity nor a public employee is liable for any injury caused by an escaping or escaped prisoner, an escaping or escaped arrested person, or a person resisting arrest [Gov. Code § 845.8(b)]. Although this provision is stated broadly, courts have interpreted the scope of this immunity to be limited by Veh. Code § 17001 (discussed in § 246.12[1]) [Thomas v. City of Richmond (1995) 9 Cal. 4th 1154, 1159, 40 Cal. Rptr. 2d 442, 892 P.2d 1185] . Thus, Gov. Code § 845.8 does not provide immunity to public entities for liability that is predicated on Veh. Code § 17001 [Thomas v. City of Richmond (1995) 9 Cal. 4th 1154, 1165, 40 Cal. Rptr. 2d 442, 892 P.2d 1185 ; see § 246.60].

[b] Written Pursuit Policy Immunity

A much broader immunity is available to public entities under Veh. Code § 17004.7, which was enacted with the intent of encouraging public employers of peace officers to adopt express safe pursuit guidelines [see Weiner v. City of San Diego (1991) 229 Cal. App. 3d 1203, 1209, 280 Cal. Rptr. 818] . Effective July 1, 2007, a public agency that adopts and promulgates a written policy on vehicular pursuits that meets specified criteria, and provides regular and periodic training on vehicular pursuits on an annual basis, is immune from liability for civil damages for personal injury, death, or property damage resulting from the collision of a vehicle being operated by an actual or suspected violator of the law who is being, has been, or believes he or she is being or has been, pursued in a motor vehicle by a peace officer employed by the public agency [Veh. Code § 17004.7(b)(1), (g)]. The adoption of a vehicle pursuit policy is discretionary, and if adopted, the immunity provided is in addition to any other immunity that may be provided by law [Veh. Code § 17004.7(a)].

Similar statutory immunity was provided prior to July 1, 2007, although the earlier version of the statute did not impose either a promulgation or training requirement on the public agency, and it imposed less detailed substantive criteria on the adopted policy [see former Veh. Code § 17004.7(b), (c); see also Ketchum v. State of Cal. (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 957, 966-970, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 152 (policy adopted by CHP held to provide adequate pursuit guidelines under prior statute)].

"Promulgation" of a written policy under the 2007 provisions includes, but is not limited to, a requirement that all peace officers employed by the public agency certify in writing that they have received, read, and understand the policy [Veh. Code § 17004.7(b)(2)]. The failure of an individual officer to sign a certification, however, may not be used to impose liability on an individual officer or a public entity [Veh. Code § 17004.7(b)(2)]. "Regular and periodic training" means annual training that includes, at a minimum, coverage of each of the subjects and policy elements set forth below, and that complies, at a minimum, with the training guidelines established pursuant to Pen. Code § 13519.8 [Veh. Code § 17004.7(d)].

To be entitled to immunity under the 2007 statute, the pursuit policy must meet the following minimum standards [Veh. Code § 17004.7(c)]:

- The policy must determine under what circumstances to initiate a pursuit. The policy must define a "pursuit," articulate the reasons for which a pursuit is authorized, and identify the issues that should be considered in reaching the decision to pursue. It should also address the importance of protecting the public and balancing the known or reasonably suspected offense, and the apparent need for immediate capture against the risks to peace officers, innocent motorists, and others to protect the public.

- The policy must determine the total number of law enforcement vehicles authorized to participate in a pursuit. It must establish the authorized number of law enforcement units and supervisors who may be involved in a pursuit, describe the responsibility of each authorized unit and the role of each peace officer and supervisor, and specify if and when additional units are authorized.

- The policy must determine the communication procedures to be followed during a pursuit. It must specify pursuit coordination and control procedures and determine assignment of communications responsibility by unit and organizational entity.

- The policy must determine the role of the supervisor in managing and controlling a pursuit. Supervisory responsibility must include management and control of a pursuit, assessment of risk factors associated with a pursuit, and when to terminate a pursuit.

- The policy must determine driving tactics and the circumstances under which the tactics may be appropriate.

- The policy must determine authorized pursuit intervention tactics. Pursuit intervention tactics include, but are not limited to, blocking, ramming, boxing, and roadblock procedures. The policy must specify under what circumstances and conditions each approved tactic is authorized to be used.

- The policy must determine the factors to be considered by a peace officer and supervisor in determining speeds throughout a pursuit. Evaluation must take into consideration public safety, peace officer safety, and safety of the occupants in a fleeing vehicle.

- The policy must determine the role of air support, where available. Air support must include coordinating the activities of resources on the ground, reporting on the progress of a pursuit, and providing peace officers and supervisors with information to evaluate whether or not to continue the pursuit.

- The policy must determine when to terminate or discontinue a pursuit. Factors to be considered include, but are not limited to, all of the following: (1) Ongoing evaluation of risk to the public or pursuing peace officer; (2) The protection of the public, given the known or reasonably suspected offense and apparent need for immediate capture against the risks to the public and peace officers; (3) Vehicular or pedestrian traffic safety and volume; (4) Weather conditions; (5) Traffic conditions; (6) Speeds; (7) Availability of air support; (8) Procedures when an offender is identified and may be apprehended at a later time or when the location of the pursuit vehicle is no longer known.

- The policy must determine procedures for apprehending an offender following a pursuit. Safety of the public and peace officers during the law enforcement effort to capture an offender shall be an important factor.

- The policy must determine effective coordination, management, and control of interjurisdictional pursuits. The policy must include, but not be limited to, all of the following: (1) Supervisory control and management of a pursuit that enters another jurisdiction; (2) Communications and notifications among the agencies involved; (3) Involvement in another jurisdiction's pursuit; (4) Roles and responsibilities of units and coordination, management, and control at the termination of an interjurisdictional pursuit.

- The policy must provide for reporting and postpursuit analysis as required by Vehicle Code Section 14602.1. It must establish the level and procedures of postpursuit analysis, review, and feedback and establish procedures for written postpursuit review and followup.

These pursuit policy requirements are minimum policy standards and do not limit an agency from adopting additional policy requirements [Veh. Code § 17004.7(e)]. These provisions do not preclude the adoption of a policy that limits or restricts pursuits [Veh. Code § 17004.7(e)]. At trial, the determination of whether a public agency has complied with these pursuit policy requirements, or with the training requirements, is a question of law for the court [Veh. Code § 17004.7(f)].

This immunity provision is not limited to situations in which the police officer chases a suspect in a car. Despite statutory language in Veh. Code § 17004.7 protecting police officers who chase suspects "in" rather than "on" motor vehicles, immunity is also available to police officers who used a motorcycle in the chase [McGee v. City of Laguna Beach (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 537, 543, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 506] .

The statute uses the terms "public entity" and "public agency" interchangeably, and both terms include a city [Alcala v. City of Corcoran (2007) 147 Cal. App. 4th 666, 671, 53 Cal. Rptr. 3d 908] . A written policy on police pursuits that is promulgated by a city's police chief qualifies under Veh. Code § 17004.7, since a police department is a public agency and a public entity. The policy need not be approved by the police commissioner or the city council. A pursuit policy ordered into effect by a city's chief of police is, within the meaning of Veh. Code § 17004.7, a policy adopted by the city [Brumer v. City of Los Angeles (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 983, 987, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 515; see also Alcala v. City of Corcoran (2007) 147 Cal. App. 4th 666, 674, 53 Cal. Rptr. 3d 908 (police chief's conduct was sufficient to establish that policy was formally adopted)] .

The extent to which a public agency's policy on police pursuits was followed in the particular pursuit is irrelevant. If the policy meets the statutory requirements of Veh. Code § 17004.7, immunity results [Nguyen v. City of Westminster (2002) 103 Cal. App. 4th 1161, 1167, 127 Cal. Rptr. 2d 388 ; Brumer v. City of Los Angeles (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 983, 987, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 515] . The public entity need not prove that during a particular chase its policy was actually practiced by the pursuing officer [Kishida v. State of California (1991) 229 Cal. App. 3d 329, 335-337, 280 Cal. Rptr. 62 (legislature's use of "adopt" shows that focus is on entity's conduct, rather than officer's); see also Weiner v. City of San Diego (1991) 229 Cal. App. 3d 1203, 1210-1211, 280 Cal. Rptr. 818 (reaching same result, and analyzing whether particular policy complied with statute)].

The immunity of Veh. Code § 17004.7 applies even when the injury is sustained when the pursuing officer deliberately rams his or her car into the pursued vehicle in an attempt to disable it [Weaver v. State of California (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 188, 200, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 571] .

Immunity under Veh. Code § 17004.7 applied in a case in which a suspect's motorcycle crashed to the ground while fleeing from police, resulting in the death of a passenger on the motorcycle, who jumped or was thrown off the crashing motorcycle and was immediately struck by the pursuing police vehicle. Under these circumstances, the passenger's act of jumping or falling off the crashing motorcycle resulted from the collision of the motorcycle with the ground, as did the passenger's immediate impact with the pursuing police vehicle [Lewis v. County of Sacramento (2001) 93 Cal. App. 4th 107, 120-121, 113 Cal. Rptr. 2d 90] . Immunity also applied under the statute in a case in which a vehicle being pursued struck a trash dumpster, which in turn struck a bystander, causing serious injury and eventually death [Nguyen v. City of Westminster (2002) 103 Cal. App. 4th 1161, 1168, 127 Cal. Rptr. 2d 388] .

[4] Private Owner's Liability

A private owner's liability for the operation of an emergency vehicle is determined in a manner similar to that used in determining a public entity's liability. Liability may arise by virtue of the fact that the vehicle was driven with the express or implied permission of the owner, as provided in Veh. Code § 17150. That section provides that a private owner of a motor vehicle, including an ambulance or other emergency vehicle, is liable for death or injury to person or property resulting from a negligent or wrongful act or omission in the operation of the vehicle by any person using it with the permission, express or implied, of the owner [see Veh. Code § 17150]. The owner has a right of subrogation against the operator of the vehicle [Veh. Code § 17153]. Liability may also arise because the operator was the agent or ostensible agent of the owner [see Civ. Code §§ 2334, 2338; see also Ch. 427, Principal and Agent].

An owner of a private emergency vehicle is immune from liability for civil damages resulting from training programs in emergency medical services, regardless of whether or not an actual emergency is involved. Health & Safety Code § 1799.100 provides immunity from liability for civil damages to public or private organizations that sponsor, authorize, support, finance, or supervise the training or certification of people in emergency medical services [Duckett v. Pistoresi Ambulance Service, Inc. (1993) 19 Cal. App. 4th 1525, 1534-1539, 24 Cal. Rptr. 2d 304] . Effective January 1, 2009, Health & Safety Code § 1799.100 also provides similar civil immunity from liability for improper training for local agencies, state or local government entities, and private businesses or nonprofit organizations included on the statewide emergency services registry established under Gov. Code § 8588.2 that voluntarily and without expectation and receipt of compensation donate services, goods, labor, equipment, resources, or dispensaries or other facilities in compliance with Gov. Code § 8588.2 [Health & Safety Code § 1799.100].

[5] Immunity of Privately Maintained Fire Departments

One exception to the general rule of liability of a private owner of a negligently driven emergency vehicle is made for certain private firms or corporations which maintain fire departments and are accorded immunity similar to that given public employees under Veh. Code § 17004 [Veh. Code § 17004.5; see also Health & Safety Code §§ 13636(b), 14095, 14455.5].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

20-246 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 246.13

§ 246.13 Determination of Standard of Care

[1] Exemption Generally

With respect to emergency vehicles, a public entity's and private person's liability under Veh. Code § 17001, 17002, and 17150 is subject to the provisions of Veh. Code §§ 21055 and 21056. Thus, although the provisions of the Vehicle Code applicable to other drivers on the highways apply to the drivers of authorized emergency vehicles [see Veh. Code § 21052], the driver of an authorized emergency vehicle is exempted from compliance with many of these provisions while responding to an emergencey call under the conditions set forth in Veh. Code § 21055 [see discussion under § 246.13[3]].

[2] Conditions of Exemption

The conditions for the application of an exemption from the rules of the road discussed under § 246.13[3] require that [Veh. Code § 21055]:

- The vehicle be driven in response to an emergency call, engaged in rescue operations, used in the immediate pursuit of an actual or suspected violator of the law or be responding to, but not returning from, a fire alarm; and

- The driver of the vehicle sound a siren as may be reasonably necessary and the vehicle display a lighted red lamp visible from the front as a warning to other drivers and pedestrians.

The exemptions will apply even if an emergency did not in fact exist at the time, if the driver reasonably believed that an emergency existed [Gallup v. Sparks-Mundo Engineering Co. (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 1, 5, 271 P.2d 34] .

[3] Enumerated Exemptions

Under the conditions set out in § 246.13[2], Veh. Code § 21055 exempts the driver of an authorized emergency vehicle from compliance with the Vehicle Code provisions relating to the following subjects:

- Traffic signs, signals, and markings [Veh. Code § 21350 et seq.].
- Driving on right side of road, overtaking, and passing [Veh. Code § 21650 et seq.].
- Right-of-way [Veh. Code § 21800 et seq.; see Veh. Code § 21406 (duty of drivers and pedestrians to yield right-of-way to emergency vehicles sounding siren and exhibiting visible red light in front of vehicle)].
- Pedestrians' rights and duties [Veh. Code § 21950 et seq.].
- Turning, stopping, and use of signals [Veh. Code § 22100 et seq.].
- Speed laws [Veh. Code § 22348 et seq.].
- Special stop requirements [Veh. Code § 22450 et seq.].
- Stopping, standing, and parking [Veh. Code § 22500 et seq.].
- Removal of parked and abandoned vehicles [Veh. Code § 22650 et seq.].
- Speed laws for off-highway vehicles [Veh. Code § 38305 et seq.].
- Turning and starting of off-highway vehicles [Veh. Code § 38312 et seq.].

[4] Standard of Care if Exemption Applies

If an exemption under Veh. Code § 21055 does apply, it does not relieve the driver of an emergency vehicle from the duty to drive with due regard for the safety of all persons using the highway, nor does it protect the driver from the consequences of an arbitrary exercise of the privileges granted in that section [Veh. Code § 21056; see Veh. Code § 21807 (duty of drivers and pedestrians to yield right-of-way under Veh. Code § 21806 as not relieving emergency vehicle driver from duty of driving with due regard for safety of persons and property)].

A public entity or private owner is thus liable under Veh. Code § 21056 despite the fact that the operator of the vehicle was exempted from compliance with a particular provision of the Vehicle Code, and in the case of a public entity, despite the fact that the operator was immune from liabliity under Veh. Code § 17004 [see discussion under § 246.13[6]], if the operator drove in such a manner as to impose on others an unreasonable risk of harm [Brummett v. Sacramento County (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 880, 886, 148 Cal. Rptr. 361, 582 P.2d 952] .

This standard of care applies, however, only if the action of driving the emergency vehicle is deemed a ministerial act and not discretionary. For example, in the case of a police car, the initial decision to pursue another vehicle is considered the result of a discretionary act and, as such, is entitled to immunity under the provisions of Gov. Code § 820.2. That is, the trial court cannot inquire into the police officer's judgment and exercise of discretion in pursuing the other vehicle. However, the actual pursuit is the implementation of this discretionary decision and, as such, is ministerial, imposing on the police officers a duty of care to the general public [Gibson v. Pasadena (1978) 83 Cal. App. 3d 651, 659-663, 148 Cal. Rptr. 68 ; (holding that plaintiff's complaint had sufficiently alleged that conduct complained of was ministerial act); see Bratt v. City & County of San Francisco (1975) 50 Cal. App. 3d 550, 554, 123 Cal. Rptr. 774 (affirming judgment of nonsuit in action where negligence was alleged in police officer's decision to give high speed chase rather than in officer's execution of that decision); see also Reenders v. Ontario (1977) 68 Cal. App. 3d 1045, 1054, 137 Cal. Rptr. 736 (not clearly considering ministerial-discretionary distinction, but affirming motion for summary judgment and holding that police officers were not negligent as a matter of law when police officers were pursuing suspect who was already operating vehicle on public streets in reckless and dangerous manner); but see Brummett v. Sacramento County (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 880, 887, 148 Cal. Rptr. 361, 582 P.2d 952 (failing to mention ministerial-discretionary distinction in reversing summary judgment for defendant county and holding that evidence of extreme speed of police vehicles, officer's lack of awareness of color of light at itersection, and instructions on when to discontinue pursuit were sufficient to require jury to weigh facts)].

[5] Standard of Care if Exemption Does Not Apply

Other than the limitation on liability of emergency vehicle operators in connection with the acts or omissions of a rescue team under Veh. Code § 165.5 [see discussion under § 246.13[7]], there is no blanket exemption of emergency vehicles from the rules of the road other than those specifically enumerated in Veh. Code § 21055.

If an exemption does not apply because it is not specifically enumerated, the degree of care which is imposed is that which is consistent with the exercise of ordinary prudence in all the prevailing circumstances, including that of the emergency [Torres v. Los Angeles (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 35, 51, 22 Cal. Rptr. 866, 372 P.2d 906] .

If an exemption does not apply because the conditions for the application of an exemption were not satisfied under Veh. Code § 21055 [see discussion under § 246.13[2]], then the exemptions are forfeited [Sparks v. Compton (1976) 64 Cal. App. 3d 592, 596, 134 Cal. Rptr. 684] . In such a case, the common law standard of care determines the liability of the operation. The fact that the driver was responding to an emergency call in an authorized emergency vehicle may not be considered [Grant v. Petronella (1975) 50 Cal. App. 3d 281, 289, 123 Cal. Rptr. 399] . Police officers engaged in a pursuit are under a general duty to exercise due care for the safety of others, and a trier of fact may conclude that the failure to flash red lights or sound a siren to alert innocent parties to the approaching danger violated that duty [City of Sacramento v. Superior Court (1982) 131 Cal. App. 3d 395, 403-406, 182 Cal. Rptr. 443] .

[6] Public Entity's Liability Unaffected by Employee's Immunity

The public entity's liability is not affected by the fact that the driver of the emergency vehicle is immune from civil liability as provided in Veh. Code § 17004 [see discussion under § 246.14]. Gov. Code § 815.2, providing generally for the immunity of a public entity from liability for the torts of its employee within the scope of employment when the employee is immune, is subject to the provisions of Veh. Code § 17001, and does not affect the liability imposed by that section [Brummett v. County of Sacramento (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 880, 885, 148 Cal. Rptr. 361, 582 P.2d 952 ; see also Gibson v. Pasadena (1978) 83 Cal. App. 3d 651, 656, 659, 148 Cal. Rptr. 68] .

Furthermore, Gov. Code § 845.8, which provides, in part, that neither a public entity nor a public employee is liable for injury caused by a person resisting arrest, does not immunize a public entity from liability under Veh. Code § 17001 for the negligent operation of an emergency vehicle. Therefore, although the public employee is not liable under Veh. Code § 17004 or Gov. Code § 845.8 for damages resulting from operation of an authorized emergency vehicle in the immediate pursuit of an actual or suspected law violator, the employing entity may be liable under Veh. Code § 17001 if the entity has adopted a written policy on vehicular pursuits as required by Veh. Code § 17004.7 [Thomas v. City of Richmond (1995) 9 Cal. 4th 1154, 1158-1159, 1162, 40 Cal. Rptr. 2d 442, 892 P.2d 1185] .

The public entity's liability under Veh. Code § 17001 extends to actions brought by a fleeing suspect based on the pursuers' alleged negligence, as well as to action by innocent third parties [Thomas v. City of Richmond (1995) 9 Cal. 4th 1154, 1164-1165, 40 Cal. Rptr. 2d 442, 892 P.2d 1185 (suspect fleeing on foot struck by pursuing police car; disapproving Hooper v. City of Chula Vista (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 442, 454-457, 260 Cal. Rptr. 495 , to extent Hooper distinguished between third parties and suspect); cf. Veh. Code § 17004.7 (immunizing public entities from liability to third parties injured by pursued vehicle under certain circumstances); for further discussion of public entity immunity for police pursuits, see § 246.12[3]].

[7] Public Entity's Liability for Acts or Omissions of Rescue Teams

No act or omission of any rescue team operating in conjunction with an authorized emergency vehicle, while attempting in good faith to resuscitate any person who is in immediate danger of loss of life, will impose any liability on the rescue team or the owners or operators of the emergency vehicle. Such a rescue team is defined as a special group of doctors, nurses, volunteers, or employees of the owners or operators of the emergency vehicle who have been trained in cardiopulmonary resuscitation and have been designated by the owners or operators of the vehicle to attempt to resuscitate persons in case of emergency. The owners or operators are not relieved of any duty to train the rescue team or to maintain the equipment used by such a team [Veh. Code § 165.5].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

20-246 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 246.14

§ 246.14 Liability of Operators of Emergency Vehicles

[1] Employees of Public Entities

A public employee is not liable for civil damages on account of personal injury to or death of any person or damage to property resulting from the operation in the line of duty of an authorized emergency vehicle in the following instances [Veh. Code § 17004]:

- While responding to an emergency call,
- When in the immediate pursuit of an actual or suspected violator of the law, or
- When responding to, but not on returning from, a fire alarm or other emergency call.

In applying this immunity to police pursuit cases, the language of Veh. Code § 17004 is clear and unambiguous and immunizes the public employee even if negligence in the course of the pursuit is alleged [Cruz v. Briseno (2000) 22 Cal. 4th 568, 572, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 715, 994 P.2d 986 (sheriff's deputy was immune despite failing to turn on lights and siren while pursuing speeding vehicle)]. Also, an emergency is not required to exist in fact if the driver reasonably believed in the existence of an emergency [see Gallup v. Sparks-Mundo Eng'g Co. (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 1, 5, 271 P.2d 34] .

There is also a qualified immunity from liability for the provision of emergency services by emergency rescue personnel acting within the scope of their employment [Health & Safety Code § 1799.107(b); see § 246.12[1]]. "Emergency rescue personnel" means any person who is an officer, employee, or member of a fire department or fire protection or firefighting agency of the federal government, the State of California, a city, county, city and county, district, or other public or municipal corporation or political subdivision of California, whether the person is a volunteer or partly paid or fully paid, while he or she is actually engaged in providing emergency services [Health & Safety Code § 1799.107(d)].

As discussed above, the immunity of a public employee under Veh. Code § 17004 does not affect the liability of a public entity. Even though the driver was exempted from a rule of the road, if he or she injured someone in violation of his or her duty to have due regard for the safety of that person under Veh. Code § 21056, the employee would be immune, but the public entity would not. The immunity from liability provided in Health & Safety Code § 1799.107, however, expressly applies to the public entity, as well as to emergency rescue personnel [Health & Safety Code § 1799.107(b)].

[2] Employees of Private Owners

An employee of an authorized, privately owned emergency vehicle, not being a public employee, is not entitled to the immunity from liability provided public employees under Veh. Code § 17004. Therefore, it appears that the employee's liability for the negligent operation of an emergency vehicle is the same as that of a public entity [see discussion under § 246.12]. In any action against a private owner of an ambulance or other emergency vehicle, the operator of the vehicle must be made a party defendant if personal jurisdiction over him or her can be obtained in any manner [Veh. Code § 17152]. The owner of the vehicle may recover from the operator the total of any judgment and costs recovered against the owner [Veh. Code § 17153].

An employee of a privately owned emergency vehicle service is immune from liability for civil damages resulting from training programs in emergency medical services, regardless of whether or not an actual emergency is involved. Health & Safety Code § 1799.100 provides immunity from liability for civil damages to public or private organizations that sponsor, authorize, support, finance, or supervise the training or certification of people in emergency medical services [Duckett v. Pistoresi Ambulance Service, Inc. (1993) 19 Cal. App. 4th 1525, 1534-1539, 24 Cal. Rptr. 2d 304] . Effective January 1, 2009, Health & Safety Code § 1799.100 also provides similar civil immunity from liability for improper training for local agencies, state or local government entities, and private businesses or nonprofit organizations included on the statewide emergency services registry established under Gov. Code § 8588.2 that voluntarily and without expectation and receipt of compensation donate services, goods, labor, equipment, resources, or dispensaries or other facilities in compliance with Gov. Code § 8588.2 [Health & Safety Code § 1799.100].

[3] Exemption of Physician From Speed Laws

Of course, if the vehicle is an authorized emergency vehicle as defined in Veh. Code § 165.5 [see discussion under § 246.30[2]], the operator, and hence the owner, is entitled to the provisions exempting the operation of the vehicle from the rules of the road as enumerated in Veh. Code § 21055 [see discussions under § 246.13[2], [3]]. In addition, a private physician who is not driving an emergency vehicle is exempt from certain speed laws provided in Veh. Code §§ 22351 and 22352 if he or she is traveling in response to an emergency call and the vehicle he or she is using displays an insignia approved by the Department of the California Highway Patrol indicating that the vehicle is owned by licensed physician. As is the case with opera tors of emergency vehicles, the physician still has a duty to drive with due regard for the safety of others [Veh. Code § 21058].

Chapter 246 EMERGENCY VEHICLES
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

20-246 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 246.15

§ 246.15 Liability for Costs of Emergency Response

Pursuant to legislation passed in 2004, any person who intentionally, knowingly, and willfully enters into any area that is closed or has been closed to the public by competent authority for any reason, or an area that a reasonable person under the circumstances should have known was closed to the public, is liable for the expenses of an emergency response required to search for or rescue that person, or, if the person was operating a vehicle, any of the person's passengers, plus the expenses for the removal of any inoperable vehicle [Gov. Code § 53159(b)]. Posting a sign, placing a barricade or a restraining or retaining wall, roping off an area, or any other device is deemed to be a sufficient indication that an area is closed to the public due to a danger of injury, for the public's safety, or for any other reason [Gov. Code § 53159(b)].

In addition, a person who drives a vehicle on a public street or highway that is temporarily covered by a rise in water level, including groundwater or overflow of water because of flooding, and that is barricaded by any of the means already described above, is liable for the expenses of any emergency response required to remove the driver, any passenger in an inoperable vehicle, or the vehicle itself [Gov. Code § 53159(c)].

The expenses that may be recovered from a person are capped at $12,000 per incident [Gov. Code § 53155]. Costs that may be recovered include reasonable and necessary costs directly incurred by a public agency, for-profit entity, or not-for-profit entity making an appropriate emergency response to an incident. These costs may include the cost of providing police, firefighting, search and rescue, and emergency medical services at the scene of an incident, as well as salaries of the persons who respond to the incident, but do not include charges assessed by an ambulance service [Gov. Code § 53159(a)(1)].

Unless otherwise provided by law, these reimbursement provisions apply to all persons, regardless of whether they are on foot, skis or snowshoes, or operating a motor vehicle, bicycle, vessel, watercraft, raft, snowmobile, all-terrain vehicle, or any other boat or vehicle of any description [Gov. Code § 53159(d)]. However, these provisions do not apply to: (1) a person who is authorized to be in the closed area by the landowner, lessor, or manager of the closed area; (2) any federal, state, or local government official who is in the closed area as part of his or her official duty; (3) any public utility performing services consistent with its public purpose; (4) any person acting in concert with a government authorized search or rescue; or (5) a person who was attempting to rescue another person or an animal [Gov. Code §

A debt for reimbursement under these provisions may be collected proportionately by the public agencies, for-profit entities, and not-for-profit entities that incur the expenses. Liability imposed under these provisions is in addition to, and not in limitation of, any other liability, fines, or fees that are imposed by law [Gov. Code § 53159(g)]. Although the parent or parents of a minor child who has violated these provisions may be responsible for the debt, the liability may not otherwise be imposed on the family, heirs, or assigns of the person who has intentionally, knowingly, and willfully entered the closed area [Gov. Code § 53159(f)].

In addition, beginning in 2007, any person 18 years old or older who is convicted of making a false police report in violation of Pen. Code § 148.3 can be held liable for the expense of any appropriate emergency response that proximately results from the false report [Gov. Code § 53153.5(a)]. A public agency is entitled to satisfaction of any judgment for expenses under this provision after any victims or other persons injured by the incident are compensated for their injuries and after any medical provider liens are satisfied [Gov. Code § 53153.5(b)].

§ 246.16 Application of MICRA to Emergency Medical Technicians

Although the issue was not always clear [see Canister v. Emergency Ambulance Service, Inc. (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 388, 396-402, 72 Cal. Rptr. 3d 792], the court of appeal has held that the Medical Injury Compensation Reform Act of 1975 (MICRA) applies to actions against paramedics and other emergency medical technicians licensed under Health & Safety Code § 1797 et seq. if the cause of action is based on professional negligence [Canister v. Emergency Ambulance Service, Inc. (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 388, 400-403, 72 Cal. Rptr. 3d 792]. For these purposes, negligence in the operation of an ambulance when transporting a patient to or from a medical facility is included under the term "professional negligence" [Canister v. Emergency Ambulance Service, Inc. (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 388, 404, 72 Cal. Rptr. 3d 792].

MICRA is codified in a series of statutes affecting the introduction of evidence at trial [see Civ. Code § 3333.1; Canister v. Emergency Ambulance Service, Inc. (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 388, 408, 72 Cal. Rptr. 3d 792], the amount of noneconomic damages that may be recovered [see Civ. Code § 3333.2], the limitations period for bringing suit [see Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5], pre-filing notice [see Code Civ. Proc. § 364], periodic payment of damages [see Code Civ. Proc. § 667.7], arbitration agreements [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1295], and attorney contingency fee agreements [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 6146].

Application of these MICRA provisions in actions against health care providers is discussed generally in Ch. 295, Hospitals, and Ch. 415, Physicians: Medical Malpractice.

PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

20-246 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 246.32

§ 246.32 Decisions

[1] Evidence

In wrongful death action, police department bulletins giving advice on operation of vehicle under emergency conditions were admissible on issues of standard of care applicable to police officer, officer's negligence, and decendent's lack of contributory negligence. Dillenbeck v. Los Angeles (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 472, 477-484, 72 Cal. Rptr. 321, 446 P.2d 129

In action against ambulance company by patient injured when gurney was dropped, ordinance requiring that certificated attendants accompany ambulance was not admissible to show negligence because ordinance not intended to protect against complained of injury. Boie-Hansen v. Sisters of Charity (1957) 152 Cal. App. 2d 845, 847-848, 314 P.2d 189

[2] Liability of Public Entity

Veh. Code § 17001 provides public entity liability for employee negligence in operation of vehicle despite immunity of employee under Veh. Code § 17004 and general policy of derivative immunity under Gov. Code § 815.2. Brummett v. County of Sacramento (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 880, 883-885, 148 Cal. Rptr. 361, 582 P.2d 952

Failure of driver of emergency vehicle to give warning by red light and siren was forfeiture of exemptions. Sparks v. Compton (1976) 64 Cal. App. 3d 592, 596, 134 Cal. Rptr. 684

Employer was exempt from liability for negligence of driver attributable to failure to comply with specified traffic laws, but not exempt from liabilty for negligence attributable to driver's failure to maintain standard of care imposed by common law. Torres v. Los Angeles (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 35, 45, 22 Cal. Rptr. 866, 372 P.2d 906

Public entity not liable for delay in transporting decedent to hospital. Greenberg v. County of Los Angeles (1952) 113 Cal. App. 2d 389, 391-392, 248 P.2d 74

Collision of emergency vehicle with building, caused by defective brakes and driver's relaxation of vigilance, was outside scope of statutory exemptions and rendered public employer liable for damages. Peerless Laundry Serv. v. City of Los Angeles (1952) 109 Cal. App. 2d 703, 706-707, 241 P.2d 269

[3] Police Officers and Vehicles

In applying Veh. Code § 17004 to police pursuit cases, statutory language is clear and unambiguous and immunizes public employee even if negligence in course of pursuit is alleged; sheriff's deputy was immune despite failing to turn on lights and siren while pursuing speeding vehicle. Cruz v. Briseno (2000) 22 Cal. 4th 568, 572, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 715, 994 P.2d 986

Negligent or reckless conduct by defendant was no basis for recovery by police officer who is presumably adequately compensated for knowingly and voluntarily confronting hazard created by defendant's conduct. Hubbard v. Boelt (1980) 28 Cal. 3d 480, 484-485, 169 Cal. Rptr. 706, 620 P.2d 156 ; Ries v. Lee (1981) 115 Cal. App. 3d 332, 334-335, 171 Cal. Rptr. 296

Police officers in patrol cars in active pursuit of suspected bank robber as immunized from liability for accident resulting from high speed chase. Brummett v. County of Sacramento (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 880, 883, 148 Cal. Rptr. 361, 582 P.2d 952

Police officer who was passenger in police vehicle struck while in line of duty was not barred from recovery of damages due to contributory negligence of driver of police vehicle. Witt v. Jackson (1961) 57 Cal. 2d 57, 67-68, 17 Cal. Rptr. 369, 366 P.2d 641

Whether or not a vehicle is driven in response to emergency call as depending on nature of call received and situation presented to mind of driver and not depending on whether or not there is emergency in fact. Gallup v. Sparks-Mundo Eng'g Co. (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 1, 5, 271 P.2d 34

Veh. Code § 21055 was inapplicable when defendant's pre-trial admissions established that officer was not responding to emergency that exempted officer from obeying traffic laws at time of collision. Monroy v. City of Los Angeles (2008) 164 Cal. App. 4th 248, 258-261, 78 Cal. Rptr. 3d 738

Although immunity under Veh. Code § 17004.7 requires that adopted police pursuit policy control and channel officer's discretion by providing objective standards by which to evaluate whether pursuit should be initiated or terminated, policy adopted by CHP provided adequate guidelines for justification, initiation, and termination of pursuit. Ketchum v. State of California (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 957, 966-970, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 152

Written policy on police pursuits promulgated by city's police chief qualified under Veh. Code § 17004.7, because police department is public agency and public entity; extent to which policy on police pursuits was implemented in general and was followed in particular pursuit is irrelevant; policy that contained guidelines for determining when vehicular pursuit is justified did not require list of manifest perils. Brumer v. City of Los Angeles (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 983, 987-988, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 515

Police officers in patrol vehicles in active pursuit of speeding motorist in residential neighborhood are immune from liability under Veh. Code § 17004 and Gov. Code § 845.8 for injuries to third persons caused by pursued vehicle despite liability of employing police agency under Veh. Code § 17001. City of San Jose v. Superior Court (1985) 166 Cal. App. 3d 695, 698, 701

Issue of liability of owner and operator of private vehicle in collision with police vehicle responding to emergency call presented factual question as to whether police officer operated vehicle in manner giving rise to exemptions granted by Veh. Code § 21055 and imposing on defendant driver duty to yield right-of-way. Mulligan v. West Coast Fast Freight (1957) 151 Cal. App. 2d 791, 795, 312 P.2d 59

[4] Standard of Care

Manner of pursuit by immigration officers did not expose third parties to unreasonable risk of harm, as defined by California law, if pursuit was initiated on flat stretch of freeway rather than on surface streets, freeway traffic was light, road was dry, suspect did not make sudden lane changes prior to crash, and officers had duty to attempt to apprehend suspected smuggler of aliens. Cimo v. I.N.S. (9th Cir. 1994) 16 F. 3d 1039, 1041-1042

Fire department permitted to recover for damages to fire truck resulting from collision with automobile while responding to call from another district to assist in extinguishing fire. Fruitridge Fire Dist. v. Judge (1966) 64 Cal. 2d 423, 425-426, 50 Cal. Rptr. 457, 412 P.2d 801

Whether vehicle is driven in response to emergency call depends on nature of call received and situation presented to mind of driver and not on whether emergency in fact exists. Gallup v. Sparks-Mundo Eng'g Co. (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 1, 5, 271 P.2d 34

If driver of emergency vehicle does not activate red light and siren, common law standard of care governs conduct, and determination of negligence does not include consideration of fact that driver was responding to emergency call in authorized emergency vehicle. Grant v. Petronella (1975) 50 Cal. App. 3d 281, 289, 123 Cal. Rptr. 399

[2] Use of Form

This form of complaint is for use in an action by a driver or passenger in a private vehicle against a public entity and its employees or other persons for personal injuries sustained in a collision with an authorized emergency vehicle negligently operated by either an employee of the public entity or a driver operating with the public entity's consent. The public employee should be named only if there is a factual question concerning whether or not the employee was responding to an emergency call, since if the employee was, he or she would be immune from liability [see Veh. Code § 17004; see § 246.59].

[3] Allegations

This complaint alleges (1) facts giving rise to defendants' duty of care (Paragraphs 5-8); (2) breach of such duty by defendants (Paragraph 9) [Civ. Code § 1714(a); see Ch. 380, Negligence]; (3) general damages (Paragraph 10) and special damages (Paragraphs 11, 12) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b); see Ch. 177, Damages]; and (4) filing and rejection of plaintiff's claim (Paragraph 13) [Gov. Code § 945.4; see Ch. 464, Public Entities and Officers: California Tort Claims Act]. Paragraph 9 contains bracketed language for use in alleging that the defendant's emergency vehicle was not sounding its siren or adequately displaying its red light. Such allegations may be added, but the public entity would appear to have the burden of raising the conditions for the application of an exemption under Veh. Code § 21055 [see § 246.58].

[4] Jurisdiction

The superior court has jurisdiction of the action, which will be classified as an unlimited civil case unless the amount in controversy, exclusive of interest, is $25,000 or less, in which case it will be classified as a limited civil case [Cal. Const. art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(1)].

In limited civil cases, the caption must identify the case as a limited civil case and must state whether the demand exceeds or does not exceed $10,000 [Code Civ. Proc. § 422.30(b); Gov. Code § 70613(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(9), (10)].

[5] Venue

Generally, in an action involving death or injury to person or personal property, either the county where the injury occurred or the county in which all or some of the defendants reside is a proper venue [Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a)]. An action against a local public entity to recover for injury to person or property caused by the negligence of the entity or its employees must be tried in the county in which the entity is situated if the injury occurred there [Code Civ. Proc. § 394(a)]. If the defendant is the state, the proper court for trial of the action is a court of competent jurisdiction in the county where the injury occurred [Gov. Code § 955.2].

[6] Verification

A public entity need not verify its answer even though the complaint is verified [see Code Civ. Proc. § 446]. The verification of a complaint against a public entity does, however, preclude a general denial in an unlimited civil case and in some limited civil cases [see Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)].

[7] Specifying Amount of Damages

In an action to recover damages for personal injury or wrongful death, the complaint must not state the amount of actual or punitive damages demanded for this cause of action [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)].

Otherwise, the amounts claimed as damages for anything other than personal injury or wrongful death (for example, property damage) must be alleged [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)] or an equivalent statement must be included, for example, a statement that the damages for a particular loss or harm sustained [see Civ. Code §§ 3281, 3282] are not known and that leave will be sought to amend the complaint to state the exact amount when ascertained. If this is done, counsel must remember to seek leave to amend the complaint to so state before judgment.

For discussion of and forms for requesting and stating the amount of damages sought when they are not stated in the complaint, see Ch. 177, Damages , and Ch. 205, Defaults and Default Judgments [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 425.11, 425.115].

[8] Filing Claim With Public Entity

By the provisions of Gov. Code §§ 905 and 945.4, no suit for damages may be brought against a public entity in any action, except a specified few, until a written claim is presented to the governing board of the entity (or to the State Board of Control if the state is the defendant) and the board has acted on it or is deemed by the operation of law to have rejected it. Generally, such a claim must be presented no later than six months after accrual of the cause of action [Gov. Code § 911.2; but see Gov. Code § 911.4]. The statute of limitations depends on whether the public entity gives notice of rejection of plaintiff's claim. If notice is given, the statute of limitations is six months; if not, the statute of limitations is two years from the accrual of the cause of action [Gov. Code § 945.6; see Glorietta Foods, Inc. v. City of San Jose (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 835, 836, 195 Cal. Rptr. 355] .

For a discussion and forms for use in filing such a claim, see Ch. 464, Public Entities and Officers: California Tort Claims Act .

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--Exemption From Vehicle Code Provisions by Reason of Response to Emergency Call [Veh. Code § 21055]

At the time of the accident mentioned in plaintiff's complaint, defendant's vehicle was an authorized emergency vehicle being driven and operated by _____ [name of employee] _____ [in response to an emergency call or while engaged in rescue operations or in the immediate pursuit of a(n) _____ (actual or suspected) violator of the law or in response to a fire alarm]. A [siren on the vehicle was being loudly and continuously sounded by its driver, a] lighted red lamp was being displayed on the vehicle[,] and such lamp was visible from the front of the vehicle.

[2] Use of Form

This form of defense is for use by a public or private employer in an answer when the complaint alleges negligence of an employee based on a violation of traffic regulations and the accident complained of occurred while the employee was operating an authorized emergency vehicle in response to an emergency, with the siren sounding, if it was resonably necesary, and the red light on the vehicle operating.

§ 246.59 Affirmative Defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--Immunity of Public Employee by Reason of Response to Emergency Call [Veh. Code § 17004]

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--Immunity of Public Employee by Reason of Response to Emergency Call [Veh. Code § 17004]

At the time of the accident mentioned in plaintiff's com plaint, defendant was an employee of _____ [name of public entity employing defendant]. The vehicle alleged in plaintiff's complaint to have been driven by defendant at that time was an authorized emergency vehicle that was being operated by defendant in the line of duty while _____ [he/she was responding to an emergency call or he/she was in immediate pursuit of a(n) _____ (actual or suspected) violator of the law or he/she was responding to a fire alarm or he/she was engaged in rescue operations]. The alleged accident and whatever damage, if any, was sustained by plaintiff by reason thereof, resulted from defendant's operation of such emergency vehicle.

[2] Use of Form

This form of defense is for use by a public employee in an answer when the accident complained of occurred while the employee was operating an authorized emergency vehicle in the line of duty while responding to an emergency call, pursuing an actual or suspected violator of the law, responding to a fire alarm or engaging in rescue operations. When these facts are apparent on the face of plaintiff's complaint or from any matter of which the court may or must take judicial notice, defendant may generally demur to the complaint. For a discussion, procedures, and forms of general demurrer, see Ch. 206, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings .

§ 246.60 Affirmative Defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--Immunity of Public Employee or Public Entity for Injury to Fleeing Suspect [Gov. Code § 845.8]

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--Immunity of Public Employee or Public Entity for Injury to Fleeing Suspect [Gov. Code § 845.8]

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that:

1. Defendant _____ (name of public entity) is a _____ [public entity or public employee] within the meaning of Section 845.8 of the Government Code.

2. At the time of the accident mentioned in plaintiff's complaint, _____ [plaintiff or plaintiff's decedent] was a suspected violator of the law, and was resisting _____ [arrest or detention] by fleeing from the pursuit of _____ [defendant or _____ (name of employee(s)), (a) police officer(s)].

3. Whatever injury, if any, sustained by _____ [plaintiff or plaintiff's decedent] as a result of the accident, was caused by _____ [plaintiff or plaintiff's decedent] resisting _____ [arrest or detention].

[2] Use of Form

This form of defense is for use by a public employee or public entity when the complaint alleges personal injury or death resulting from a police pursuit, and the plaintiff or the plaintiff's decedent was the subject of the police pursuit. If the public agency has adopted a written policy on vehicular pursuits that complies with the provisions of Veh. Code § 17004.7, counsel may, as an alternative, use the affirmative defense provided in see § 246.61.

[3] Immunity for Injury to Fleeing Suspect

Gov. Code § 845.8(b) provides that neither a public entity nor a public employee is liable for any injury caused by an escaping or escaped prisoner, an escaping or escaped arrested person, or a person resisting arrest. Veh. Code § 17001, however, provides that a public entity is liable for death or injury to person or property proximately caused by a negligent or wrongful act or omission in the operation of any motor vehicle by an employee of the public entity acting within the scope of his or her employment. The California Supreme Court has held that Gov. Code § 845.8 does not provide immunity to public entities for liability that is predicated on Veh. Code § 17001 [Thomas v. City of Richmond (1995) 9 Cal. 4th 1154, 1165, 40 Cal. Rptr. 2d 442, 892 P.2d 1185] . The Court rejected the distinction, relied on in at least one court of appeal opinion, between actions by injured third parties on the one hand and persons injured while fleeing on the other hand, on the ground that nothing in the statute permits such a distinction [Thomas v. City of Richmond (1995) 9 Cal. 4th 1154, 1165, 40 Cal. Rptr. 2d 442, 892 P.2d 1185 (disapproving Hooper v. City of Chula Vista (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 442, 260 Cal. Rptr. 495 to extent of inconsistency)].

1. Defendant _____ (name of driver of vehicle that caused damage to plaintiff), at the time of the accident mentioned in plaintiff's complaint, was suspected of having violated the law and _____ [was or believed he/she was or had been] under pursuit by peace officers employed by defendant _____ [name of public agency] in a motor vehicle.

2. A copy of the policy is attached hereto as Exhibit "_____" and made a part hereof.

[2] Use of Form

This form of defense is for use by a public agency in an answer when the complaint alleges that personal injuries, death, or property damage resulted from the collision of a vehicle under police pursuit, and the collision occurred on or after January 1, 1988. The immunity applies if the driver of the vehicle under pursuit was an actual or suspected violator of the law who was, or believed he or she was, being pursued by a peace officer in a motor vehicle [*Veh. Chapter 247 EMINENT DOMAIN AND INVERSE CONDEMNATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Eminent Domain
1. Introduction

20-247 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 247.10

§ 247.10 Eminent Domain Law, Generally

[1] Governing Statutes

Provisions governing exercise of the right of eminent domain are set forth in the Eminent Domain Law [Code Civ. Proc. § 1230.010 et seq.]. Except as otherwise provided by statute, the power of eminent domain may be exercised only as provided in that law [Code Civ. Proc. § 1230.020].

[2] Rules of Practice

The rules of practice that govern civil actions generally apply to eminent domain proceedings except as otherwise provided in the Eminent Domain Law [Code Civ. Proc. § 1230.040]. These general rules of practice mainly are found in Code Civ. Proc. § 307 et seq. However, additional provisions in other portions of the Code of Civil Procedure and many nonstatutory rules of procedure that apply to civil actions generally also may apply to eminent domain proceedings [Assembly Legislative Committee Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 1230.040].

According to the Assembly Legislative Committee Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 1230.040, although an eminent domain proceeding is a special proceeding of a civil nature and not a civil action, the fact that a provision of the Code of Civil Procedure utilizes the term "action" rather than "proceeding," or the fact that a provision has not been applied to other special proceedings, does not preclude its applicability in eminent domain proceedings [see Harrington v. Superior Court (1924) 194 Cal. 185, 191, 228 P. 15 (condemnation proceeding as special proceeding)].

[3] Jurisdiction of Public Utilities Commission

The Eminent Domain Law does not affect any other statute granting jurisdiction over any issue in eminent domain proceedings to the Public Utilities Commission (hereinafter referred to as the "PUC") [Code Civ. Proc. § 1230.060]. The PUC has concurrent jurisdiction over certain eminent domain proceedings [see, e.g., Pub. Util. Code § 1403 (local public entities permitted to petition PUC to acquire public utility property under eminent domain proceedings)] and exclusive jurisdiction over other areas [see, e.g., Pub. Util. Code § 1201 (railroad crossings); see also Northwestern

Pac. R.R. Co. v. Superior Court (1949) 34 Cal. 2d 454, 458, 211 P.2d 571] . In addition, the Legislature may give specific grants of jurisdiction to the PUC over certain issues involved in particular eminent domain acquisitions [see, e.g., Pub. Util. Code § 30503 (PUC is required to review acquisitions of railroad property by So. Cal. Rapid Transit Dist.); see also Cal. L. Rev. Comm'n Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 1230.060].

Chapter 247 EMINENT DOMAIN AND INVERSE CONDEMNATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Eminent Domain
1. Introduction

20-247 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 247.12

§ 247.12 Nature and Source of Eminent Domain Power

Eminent domain is the power of government to take private property for public use. Because the power is inherent in the sovereignty of the state [County of San Diego v. Miller (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 684, 687, 119 Cal. Rptr. 491, 532 P.2d 139], state and federal constitutional provisions merely place limitations on its exercise [People v. Chevalier (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 299, 304, 340 P.2d 598]. The California Constitution vests exercise of the power in the legislature, which can take private property against the will of the owner only for public use and only after just compensation to the owner has been paid or secured [Cal. Const., art. I, § 19(a); University of So. Cal. v. Robbins (1934) 1 Cal. App. 2d 523, 525, 37 P.2d 163 , cert. denied, 295 U.S. 738 ; see U.S. Const., amends. V, XIV (property may not be taken without just compensation and due process); see also CACI No. 3500 (California Judicial Council jury instruction on right of eminent domain)].

In 2008, Cal. Const., art. I, § 19 was amended through the initiative process [Proposition 99 (effective June 4, 2008)] to expressly prohibit government agencies from using eminent domain to take an owner-occupied home to transfer it to another private owner or developer [Cal. Const., Art. 1, § 19(b) ("The State and local governments are prohibited from acquiring by eminent domain an owner-occupied residence for the purpose of conveying it to a private person"); see Cal. Const., Art. 1, § 19(e) ("conveyance," "local government," "owner-occupied residence," "person," "public work or improvement" and "state" defined)]. Proposition 99 was enacted in response to Kelo v. City of New London (2005) 545 U.S. 469, 125 S. Ct. 2655, 162 L. Ed. 2d 439 , which held that it was permissible for a city to use eminent domain to take a private residence in Connecticut for the purpose of economic development [see Proposition 99, § 1(c) (effective June 4, 2008)]. However, the prohibition adopted in Proposition 99 does not apply when state or local government exercises the power of eminent domain for the purpose of protecting public health and safety; preventing serious, repeated criminal activity; responding to an emergency; or remedying environmental contamination that poses a threat to public health and safety. Furthermore, it does not apply when state or local government exercises the power of eminent domain for the purpose of acquiring private property for a public work or improvement [Cal. Const., art I, § 19(c) and (d) (as amended by Proposition 99, June 4, 2008)]. The amendments made by Proposition 99 do not apply to the acquisition of real property if the initial written offer to purchase the property was made on or before the date on which this initiative becomes effective, and a resolution of necessity to acquire the real property by eminent domain was adopted on or before 180 days after that date [Proposition 99, § 7 (effective June 4, 2008)].

Except as restricted and controlled by these requirements, the power of the legislature to take private property is unlimited, and its determination to do so is conclusive. Whether the use is public and whether proper compensation has been made are judicial questions, the final determination of which rests with the courts. All other questions involved in the taking of private property are of a legislative nature [People v. Chevalier (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 299, 304, 340 P.2d 598].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Eminent Domain
1. Introduction

20-247 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 247.13

§ 247.13 Acquisition of Property by Other Means

[1] Discretion in Exercise of Power

Nothing in the Eminent Domain Law requires that the eminent domain power be exercised to acquire property necessary for public use. The decision as to the means of acquisition is left to the discretion of the person acquiring the property [Code Civ. Proc. § 1230.030; see Code Civ. Proc. § 1235.160 (defining person authorized to acquire property)]. Any public entity authorized to acquire property for a particular use by eminent domain may also acquire the property for such use by grant, subject, however, to any other statute relating to the acquisition of property [Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.130; see, e.g., Gov. Code § 15854 (acquisition of property under Property Acquisition Law may be by condemnation)].

[2] Use of Police Power

Damages inflicted on property by administrative or legislative regulation are generally noncompensable under the police power doctrine. When private property is directly taken or damaged, the police power doctrine of noncompensable loss applies only in emergency situations when damage to property is inflicted by the government due to public necessity and to avert impending peril [Holtz v. Superior Court (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 296, 305, 90 Cal. Rptr. 345, 475 P.2d 441] .

An "emergency" is an unforeseen situation calling for immediate action; it is not synonymous with expediency, convenience, or best interests, and it imports more than merely a general public need. "Emergency" comprehends a situation of grave character and serious moment, and is evidenced by an imminent and substantial threat to public health or safety [Los Osos Valley Associates v. City of San Luis Obispo (1994) 30 Cal. App. 4th 1670, 1681, 36 Cal. Rptr. 2d 758 , citing Sonoma County Organization etc. Employees v. County of Sonoma (1991) 1 Cal. App. 4th 267, 276-277, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 850] . Examples of emergency situations are the demolition of all or parts of buildings to prevent the spread of a fire, or the destruction of diseased animals, rotten fruit, or infected trees when life or health is jeopardized [Holtz v. Superior Court (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 296, 305 n.10, 90 Cal. Rptr. 345, 475 P.2d 441 ; Hunter v. Adams (1960) 180 Cal. App. 2d 511, 524, 4 Cal. Rptr. 776] .

Police power must be exercised properly and reasonably [People v. K. Sakai Co. (1976) 56 Cal. App. 3d 531, 538, 128 Cal. Rptr. 536] . In determining whether the doctrine of eminent domain or police power is applicable in a particular situation, the facts must be examined to determine whether or not the action was essential or reasonably necessary to safeguard the public health, safety, or morals. If the injury was the result of legitimate governmental action, reasonably taken for the public good and for no other purpose, and reasonably necessary to serve a public purpose for the general welfare, the action is a proper exercise of police power. If, however, the taking or damaging is not essential to the general welfare, or is not prompted by so great a necessity, it comes within the doctrine of eminent domain and cannot be justified without proper compensation to the owner [Hunter v. Adams (1960) 180 Cal. App. 2d 511, 523, 4 Cal. Rptr. 776] .

§ 247.14 Judicial Council of California Civil Jury Instructions (CACI)

In 2003, the California Judicial Council released a comprehensive set of civil jury instructions--the Judicial Council of California Civil Jury Instructions ("CACI") (LexisNexis Matthew Bender, Official Publisher). CACI includes jury instructions on many areas of law, including eminent domain. The eminent domain instructions address a variety of topics, for example, fair market value, severance damages, and precondemnation damages [see CACI, 3500 Series]. CACI is approved by the Judicial Council as the "official instructions for use" in California [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.1050(a)]. Their use is strongly encouraged [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.1050(e)].

2. The Power to Take

20-247 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 247.30

§ 247.30 Parties Authorized to Exercise Power

[1] Statutory Grant of Power, in General

Only persons authorized by statute may exercise the power of eminent domain to acquire property for a particular use [Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.020; for definition of person, see § 247.11[1]].

A local public entity may use eminent domain only to acquire property within its territorial limits except when the eminent domain power is expressly granted to the entity by statute or necessarily implied as an incident of one of its other statutory powers [Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.050; see § 247.52].

A statutory grant of the eminent domain power must be indicated by express terms or by clear implication from the powers expressly given. Any reasonable doubt concerning the existence of the power is resolved against the entity. However, a statute granting the power of eminent domain should be construed so as to effectuate, not to defeat, the purpose for which it was enacted [Golden Gate Bridge etc. Dist. v. Muzzi (1978) 83 Cal. App. 3d 707, 712, 148 Cal. Rptr. 197 ; Skreden v. Superior Court (1975) 54 Cal. App. 3d 114, 117, 126 Cal. Rptr. 411 ; see People ex rel. Dept. of Transportation v. Sullivan (1978) 78 Cal. App. 3d 120, 122, 144 Cal. Rptr. 100 (condemnation of land adjoining state highway is permitted when property was sought to provide secure slope adjoining highway predictably subject to future slides and to provide access for repair work)]. Whether or not an entity has the power to condemn is a jurisdictional issue that may be raised by writ of prohibition [Skreden v. Superior Court (1975) 54 Cal. App. 3d 114, 116 n. 1, 126 Cal. Rptr. 411] .

[2] State Agencies

With a few exceptions, the State Public Works Board is the only state agency that may exercise the power of eminent domain to acquire property needed by any state agency for any state purpose or function [Gov. Code § 15855(a); see Gov. Code § 15850 et seq. (Property Acquisition Law) (authorizes State Public Works Board to exercise power of eminent domain)]. Other state agencies having their own independent right to exercise the power of eminent domain are the following:

- Department of Transportation (authority to acquire property for aeronautics, state highways, and toll bridge purposes) [Pub. Util. Code § 21633; Sts. & Hy. Code §§ 102, 30100];

- Department of Water Resources (authority to acquire property for state dam and water projects) [Water Code §§ 250, 11575];

- State Lands Commission (authority to acquire property for access to public land and for oil and gas production) [Pub. Res. Code §§ 6210.9, 6808];

- State Reclamation Board (condemnation for Sacramento and San Joaquin Drainage Districts) [Water Code § 8593];

- Regents of the University of California [Educ. Code § 92040; Cal. Const., art. XI, § 9]; and

- Department of Fish and Game (authority to acquire property for access roads and rights-of-way to coastal waters used for fishing, subject to Wildlife Conservation Board authorization; actual acquisition made by State Public Works Board) [Fish & Game Code § 1348; Gov. Code § 15855(b)].

[3] Special Districts

The majority of California's more than 2,000 special districts consisting of over 160 different types are authorized to exercise the power of eminent domain to acquire property necessary for their purposes and objectives. Because there are so many special districts, it is not practical to include a summary of the condemnation powers of each. An attorney dealing with a particular special district should refer to the specific statute governing that district. These statutes were amended to conform to the Eminent Domain Law, thus eliminating provisions that would have duplicated or been inconsistent with the general provisions of the Eminent Domain Law.

[4] Cities and Counties

Gov. Code § 25350.5 permits the board of supervisors of any county to acquire by eminent domain any property necessary to carry out any of the county's powers or functions. However, this broad grant of power may be subject to specific limitations [see, e.g., Penal Code § 4106 (land may not be acquired for industrial farm outside county without consent of affected county)]. On the other hand, a statute authorizing the acquisition of property by means not specifically including eminent domain does not preclude the use of eminent domain under Gov. Code § 25350.5 [see, e.g., Pub. Res. Code § 5157 (county may acquire land for recreational purposes); Cal. L. Rev. Comm'n Comment to Gov. Code § 25350.5].

Similarly, Gov. Code § 37350.5 permits a city to use eminent domain to acquire any property necessary to carry out its powers or functions. Because these powers and functions may be determined by city charter as well as by statute, an attorney dealing with condemnation at the city level should consult any charter as well as any relevant statutes to determine if the city is authorized to condemn property for the stated purpose [see Cal. L. Rev. Comm'n Comment to Gov. Code § 37350.5].

Under some circumstances, specific limitations may be imposed on the exercise of a city's power of eminent domain [see Gov. Code § 37353(c) (existing golf courses may not be acquired by eminent domain for golf course purposes)]. However, according to the Cal. L. Rev. Comm'n Comment to Gov. Code § 37350.5, a statute specifically authorizing a city to acquire property by means not specifically including eminent domain does not preclude the use of eminent domain under Gov. Code § 37350.5.

[5] School Districts

The governing board of any school district and community college district may acquire by eminent domain any property necessary to carry out its powers or functions [Educ. Code § 35270.5].

[6] Private Persons and Quasi-Public Entities

Some types of quasi-public entities have the authority to condemn for certain public uses. Quasi-public entities include [Code Civ. Proc. § 1245.320]:

- Educational institutions of collegiate grade not conducted for profit [Educ. Code § 94500];
- Nonprofit hospitals [Health & Safety Code § 127050];
- Cemetery authorities [Health & Safety Code § 8501];
- Land chest corporations [Health & Safety Code § 35167; see 1998 Stats., ch. 173, § 2 (repealer of Community Land Chest Law [Health & Safety Code § 35100 et seq.] effective January 1, 1999, but former provisions continue to apply to land chest corporations formed before that date)]; and
- Mutual water companies [Pub. Util. Code § 2729].

A quasi-public entity may also be a real property owner who seeks to acquire an appurtenant easement for utility service [Code Civ. Proc. § 1245.325(a)]. This provision allowing a private person to condemn an easement for utility purposes is constitutional because the standard is not vague and there is a public use requirement [L & M Professional Consultants, Inc. v. Ferreira (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 1038, 1048-1053, 194 Cal. Rptr. 695] . A quasi-public entity may also be an owner of real property who needs access to adjacent or nearby property to repair or reconstruct land or improvements [Code Civ. Proc. § 1245.326(a); see Civ. Code § 1002; see also § 247.280].

Private persons have no authority to condemn property for any purpose, except in specified situations. For example, private persons may not condemn property for sewer easements but they may request the appropriate public entity to undertake condemnation on their behalf for a sewer [Health & Safety Code § 4967].

[7] Joint Exercise of Power

Two or more public agencies may agree to exercise their respective powers to eminent domain jointly, whether or not possessed in common, for the acquisition of property as a single parcel [Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.140(b)]. A public agency, in this context, is the federal government or any federal department or agency, the State of California, an adjoining state or any state department or agency, a county, county board of education, city, public corporation, public district, regional transportation commission of California or another state, or any joint powers authority formed by any of these agencies [Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.140(a); Gov. Code § 6500]. The power may be exercised not only when the particular parcel is needed for a joint project but also when each of the agencies requires a portion of the parcel for its own purposes [Cal. L. Rev. Comm'n Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.140]. The agreement must be entered into and performed pursuant to Gov. Code § 6500 et seq. (joint exercise of powers) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.140(b)].

Cities may create a separate "joint powers agency" and delegate their eminent domain powers to that agency [Gov. Code § 6502; Burbank-Glendale-Pasadena Airport Authority v. Hensler (2000) 83 Cal. App. 4th 556, 564, 99 Cal. Rptr. 2d 729] . For example, the cities of Burbank, Glendale, and Pasadena were able to form a joint airport authority and delegate their individual eminent domain powers to acquire property for an airport to the airport authority through a Joint Powers Agreement [see Burbank-Glendale-Pasadena Airport Authority v. Hensler (2000) 83 Cal. App. 4th 556,

564, 99 Cal. Rptr. 2d 729] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

2. The Power to Take

20-247 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 247.31

§ 247.31 Public Use

[1] Requirement of Public Use

Property may be acquired by eminent domain only for a public use [Cal. Const., art. I, § 19; Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.010; People v. Chevalier (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 299, 304, 340 P.2d 598] . A public use is one that concerns the whole community as distinguished from a particular individual or particular number of individuals or that promotes the general interest in its relation to any legitimate object of government. A public use is not limited to matters of mere business necessity and ordinary convenience, but may extend to matters of public health, recreation, and enjoyment [Housing Authority v. Dockweiler (1939) 14 Cal. 2d 437, 450, 94 P.2d 794] . It is not necessary that each and every individual member of society have the same degree of interest in the use, or be personally or directly affected by it [Gilmer v. A Certain Tract of Land (1861) 18 Cal. 229, 251 ; Frustuck v. City of Fairfax (1963) 212 Cal. App. 2d 345, 358, 28 Cal. Rptr. 357 ; see Bauer v. County of Ventura (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 276, 284, 289 P.2d 1] .

Thus, the character of the use and not its extent, determines the question of public use [Stratford Irrigation Dist. v. Empire Water Co. (1941) 44 Cal. App. 2d 61, 67, 111 P.2d 957 ; see Unocal California Pipeline Co. v. Conway (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 331, 335, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 429 (holding that pipeline corporation that had as its only customer its parent company was public utility and thus had power of eminent domain; determinative issue is not number or type of customers, but whether property has been dedicated to public use)]. That is, a use may be public even though all persons within the area cannot enjoy it, if all who are capable of enjoying it have an equal right to do so [San Joaquin & Kings River Canal & Irrigation Co. v. Stevinson (1912) 164 Cal. 221, 229, 128 P. 924] .

The acquisition of a football franchise may be an appropriate municipal function and thus such acquisition is not, as a matter of law, a non-public use; the issue is a factual one for the trial court [City of Oakland v. Oakland Raiders (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 60, 70-74, 183 Cal. Rptr. 673, 646 P.2d 835] .

In the absence of a legislative declaration [see § 247.31[2]], whether, in any individual case, the use is a public use is determined from the facts and circumstances of that case [University of Southern California v. Robbins (1934) 1 Cal.

App. 2d 523, 526, 37 P.2d 163] .

The United States Supreme Court has held that economic development constitutes a "public use" within the meaning of the Takings Clause of the Fifth Amendment [Kelo v. City of New London (2005) 545 U.S. 469, 125 S. Ct. 2655, 162 L. Ed. 2d 439]. However, states may impose "public use" requirements that are stricter than the federal baseline. In 2008, Cal. Const., art. I, § 19, which gives state and local government the power of eminent domain, was amended through the initiative process [Proposition 99 (effective June 4, 2008)] to expressly prohibit government agencies from using eminent domain to take an owner-occupied home to transfer it to another private owner or developer [Proposition 99, § 1 (effective June 4, 2008); see § 247.12]. Proposition 99 was enacted in response to Kelo v. City of New London (2005) 545 U.S. 469, 125 S. Ct. 2655, 162 L. Ed. 2d 439 [see Proposition 99, §§ 1(b), 2 (effective June 4, 2008)]. Furthermore, under California's redevelopment law, a governmental entity may take land for economic development purposes only in blighted areas [Health & Safety Code § 33030 et seq.; see Redevelopment Agency of Chula Vista v. Rados Bros. (2002) 95 Cal. App. 4th 309, 314, 115 Cal. Rptr. 2d 234].

[2] Legislative Declaration of Public Use

When the Legislature provides by statute that a use, purpose, object, or function is one for which the power of eminent domain may be exercised, this action is a legislative declaration that the use, purpose, object, or function is public [Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.010].

Thus, ordinarily a taking by a public entity or public utility does not present a public use issue since the property sought to be taken is usually devoted to a purpose that is declared to be a public use by statute and history indicates that there is little likelihood that a court will declare the use not to be a public one [see California Real Estate Law & Practice, Ch. 501, The Power to Take, § 501.40 (Matthew Bender); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1250.360(b) (stated purpose is not public use as grounds for objection to right to take); People v. Chevalier (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 299, 304, 340 P.2d 598 ; University of Southern California v. Robbins (1934) 1 Cal. App. 2d 523, 526, 37 P.2d 163] . A court will interfere with this declaration only if it clearly appears to be erroneous and without reasonable foundation [Housing Authority v. Dockweiler (1939) 14 Cal. 2d 437, 449-450, 94 P.2d 794 ; Pacific Tel. & Tel. Co. v. Redevelopment Agency (1977) 75 Cal. App. 3d 957, 969-970, 142 Cal. Rptr. 584 ; see People ex rel. Dep't Public Works v. Superior Court (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 206, 210, 65 Cal. Rptr. 342, 436 P.2d 342] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Eminent Domain
2. The Power to Take

20-247 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 247.32

§ 247.32 Public Necessity Required

[1] Elements

A condemnor may not exercise the power of eminent domain unless he or she establishes that (1) the public interest and necessity require the project; (2) the project is planned or located in the manner that will be most compatible with the greatest public good and the least private injury; and (3) the property sought to be acquired is necessary for the project [Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.030]. The word "project" is intended to apply to any type of public use regardless of whether the use is active (requiring construction of an improvement) or passive (requiring appropriation of property in unimproved condition). The term "public interest and necessity" encompasses all aspects of the public good, including, but not limited to, social, economic, environmental, and aesthetic considerations [Senate Legislative Committee Comment of Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.030].

[2] Resolution of Necessity

[a] Adoption of Resolution

A public entity may establish a public necessity for the taking of property by the adoption of a resolution of necessity. The governing body of a public entity must adopt such a resolution by a vote of two thirds of its members, or by a greater vote as required by statute, charter, or ordinance, in order to exercise the power of eminent domain [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1240.040, 1245.220, 1245.240; see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1245.210-1245.270 (laws governing resolutions of necessity); Gov. Code § 67542 (unanimous vote required of board of San Francisco Bay Area Transportation Terminal Authority)]. The governing body of a local public entity is the entity's legislative body as specified by statute [Code Civ. Proc. § 1245.310(a); Assembly Legislative Committee Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 1245.310; see, e.g., Gov. Code § 23005 (board of supervisors governs county)]. When a separate redevelopment agency has been established by the local legislative body, the members of the redevelopment agency constitute the governing body and legislative body of the redevelopment agency [Long Beach Community Redevelopment Agency v. Morgan (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 1047, 1053-1056, 18 Cal. Rptr. 2d 100] . For the definition of "governing body" when the taking is by other districts, departments, and bodies, see Code Civ. Proc. § 1245.210.

The resolution of necessity cannot be adopted unless the public entity's governing body has given notice and a reasonable opportunity to appear and be heard on the matters referred to in Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.030 (requirement of public necessity) to specified persons whose property is to be acquired [Code Civ. Proc. § 1245.235(a)].

Before adopting a resolution of necessity and initiating negotiations, a public entity must establish an amount it believes to be fair compensation, make an offer based on that amount to the property owner, and provide the owner with a written statement of, and summary of the basis for, the amount [Gov. Code § 7267.1]. Failure to provide the written statement is a basis for dismissal of an eminent domain proceeding [City of San Jose v. Great Oaks Water Co. (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 1005, 1011-1013, 237 Cal. Rptr. 845] .

[b] Contents of Resolution

The resolution of necessity is an administrative determination that the statutory prerequisites for taking particular property have been met. It must (1) generally state the public use for which the property is to be taken; (2) refer to the statute authorizing the public entity to acquire the property by eminent domain; (3) describe the general location and extent of the property to be taken in sufficient detail for reasonable identification; (4) state that either the offer required by Gov. Code § 7267.2 has been made to the owner or owners of record or the offer has not been made because the owner cannot be located with reasonable diligence [Code Civ. Proc. § 1245.230(a), (b)]; and (5) include a declaration that the governing body of the public entity has found and determined the matters required by Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.030 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1245.230].

The resolution of necessity must contain additional statements if the property is (1) sought for a future use [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1240.220(b),1240.250(b)]; (2) substitute property to be exchanged for necessary property [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1240.320(b), 1240.330(b), 1240.350(b)]; (3) excess property [Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.420]; (4) sought for a more compatible use [Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.510]; or (5) sought for a more necessary public use [Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.610]. For discussions of these types of property, see §§ 247.50 -247.58.

The Eminent Domain Law requires that the local governing entity identify a "project" with a public purpose before it undertakes to condemn private property. The proposed project must be described in the resolution of necessity, which is the fundamental predicate to the entire condemnation process [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1240.010, 1240.030; City of Stockton v. Marina Towers LLC (2009) 171 Cal. App. 4th 93, 107, 88 Cal. Rptr. 3d 909]. In one case, the project description in resolutions of necessity adopted by a city for the acquisitions of two parcels was so vague, uncertain, and sweeping in scope that it failed to specify the "public use" for which the city sought acquisition of the property. This crucial defect fatally flawed the condemnation process and the city had no right to take the property [City of Stockton v. Marina Towers LLC (2009) 171 Cal. App. 4th 93, 114-115, 88 Cal. Rptr. 3d 909].

[c] Effect of Resolution

Except as otherwise provided by statute, the resolution of necessity conclusively establishes the matters referred to in Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.030 (element of public necessity) in all takings (1) by local public entities where the property taken is entirely within the boundaries of the condemning entity, and (2) by state entities regardless of the location of the property taken [Code Civ. Proc. § 1245.250(a); Senate Legislative Committee Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 1245.250]. However, if the taking is by a local public entity and the property is not located entirely within the entity's boundaries, the resolution only creates a presumption affecting the burden of producing evidence that the matters referred to in Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.030 are true [Code Civ. Proc. § 1245.250(b)]. Consequently, when the property is outside the territorial limits of a local public entity, since the resolution is not conclusive, necessity and location are justiciable issues [Carlsbad v. Wight (1963) 221 Cal. App. 2d 756, 761, 34 Cal. Rptr. 820 ; see Los Angeles v. Keck (1971) 14 Cal. App. 3d 920, 925, 92 Cal. Rptr. 599] . Also, if the taking is by a local public entity other than a sanitary district exercising the powers of a county water district and the property is electric, gas, or water public utility property, the resolution of necessity creates a rebuttable presumption affecting the burden of proof that the matters referred to in Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.030 are true [Code Civ. Proc. § 1245.250(b)].

If the resolution was adopted or its contents were influenced by a gross abuse of discretion by the governing body, the evidentiary effect given the resolution by Code Civ. Proc. § 1245.250, but not the validity of the resolution, may be attacked [Code Civ. Proc. § 1245.255(b); Senate Legislative Committee Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 1245.255]. If the defendant establishes that the resolution of necessity was invalidly adopted and, thus, is not entitled to its ordinary conclusive effect, the burden of proving the elements for a particular taking rests on the governmental agency [Redevelopment Agency v. Norm's Slauson (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 1121, 1127-1129, 219 Cal. Rptr. 365] .

A resolution of necessity does not meet the necessary requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 1245.210 et seq. if the defendant establishes by a preponderance of the evidence that a member of the governing body who voted in favor of the resolution received or agreed to receive a bribe involving adoption of the resolution and, but for the vote of the bribed member of the governing body, the resolution would not otherwise have been adopted [Code Civ. Proc. § 1245.270(a); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1245.270(b) (establishing fact of receipt or agreement to receive bribe)].

[3] Judicial Review

[a] Methods

Any person having an interest in the property described in a resolution of necessity may obtain judicial review of the resolution's validity by either (1) petition for writ of mandate pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1085 before the commencement of the eminent domain proceeding or (2) objection to the right to take pursuant to the Eminent Domain Law after commencement of the proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 1245.255(a)]. A court having jurisdiction of a mandate proceeding must order the proceeding to be dismissed without prejudice, on motion of any party, when an eminent domain proceeding is commenced, unless it determines that dismissal is not in the interest of justice [Code Civ. Proc. § 1245.255(a)].

According to the Senate Legislative Committee Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 1245.255, the validity of a resolution of necessity may be challenged by other means and is subject to review under other principles of law such as declaratory relief and injunction. In the case of a conflict of interest, the resolution's validity is also subject to attack under the Political Reform Act of 1974, which extends standing to seek injunctive relief from a resolution of necessity to any person residing in the jurisdiction [Gov. Code § 91003(b); see Kunec v. Brea Redevelopment Agency (1997) 55 Cal. App. 4th 511, 517, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d 143] . At least one court has expressed doubt whether the Political Reform Act actually requires condemnees to be residents of the jurisdiction where the affected property is located as a prerequisite to challenging the validity of a resolution [see Kunec v. Brea Redevelopment Agency (1997) 55 Cal. App. 4th 511, 517, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d 143 (dicta)].

[b] Scope of Review

A valid resolution precludes or limits judicial review only of the matters relating to public necessity specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.030 [see § 247.32[2][c]], but does not affect the right of a condemnee to challenge a taking on the ground that the project is not an authorized public use or on the ground that the condemnor does not intend to put the property to its declared public purpose [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1240.010, 1250.360; see also Santa Cruz County Redevelopment Agency v. Izant (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 141, 152, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 366 (property owner's right to trial on allegations that stated purpose was not public use, that primary purpose of taking was for private benefit of adjacent bank, and that agency did not intend to devote property to stated purpose)]. Similarly, the resolution does not affect the right of a defendant to contest the right to take his or her property on specific statutory grounds provided in the Eminent Domain Law [see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1240.230 (taking for future use), 1240.420 (excess condemnation), 1240.520 (taking for compatible use), 1240.620 (taking for more necessary public use)]. The property owner also may attack the validity of the resolution itself [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1245.270 (resolution adopted as result of bribe)]. Finally, the condemnor must demonstrate its compliance with any other requirements and regulations governing the institution of public projects [see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. § 1245.235 (requirement of notice and opportunity to be heard); Senate Legislative Review Committee Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 1245.250].

The proper standard of review is the Code Civ. Proc. § 1085 "gross abuse of discretion" standard. Therefore, the agency is not required to make specific findings of fact. A statement that the property is being acquired to eliminate blight and for redevelopment is sufficient [Anaheim Redevelopment Agency v. Dusek (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 249, 258-264, 239 Cal. Rptr. 319] .

Judicial review of the resolution of necessity by ordinary mandamus on the ground of abuse of discretion is limited to examining the proceedings to determine whether adoption of the resolution by the public entity's governing body was arbitrary, capricious, or entirely lacking in evidentiary support and whether the governing body failed to follow the procedure and to give the required notice [Senate Legislative Committee Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 1245.255; see Pitts v. Perluss (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 824, 833, 27 Cal. Rptr. 19, 377 P.2d 83 ; Brock v. Superior Court (1952) 109 Cal. App. 2d 594, 605, 241 P.2d 283] . The burden of proof as to the invalidity of the resolution of necessity is on the defendant, and, on appeal, the scope of review is whether or not there is substantial evidence to support the resolution [Huntington Park Redevelopment Agency v. Duncan (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 17, 25-27, 190 Cal. Rptr. 744] .

[4] Rescission of Resolution and Adoption of New Resolution

When the defendant establishes either (1) that the resolution was adopted or its contents were influenced or affected by a gross abuse of discretion of the governing body, or (2) that, by a preponderance of the evidence, a member of the governing body whose vote was essential to the passage of the resolution agreed to receive a bribe, the governing body may rescind the resolution and adopt a new one as to the same property subject to the same consequences as a conditional dismissal of the proceeding under Code Civ. Proc. § 1260.120 (objections to right to take) [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1245.255(c), 1245.270(c); see § 247.32[2]].

[4A] When New Resolution or Resolution Reauthorizing Original Use Is Required

A public entity is prohibited from using property that is subject to a resolution of necessity for any use other than the public use stated in the resolution, unless the entity first adopts a new resolution finding that the public interest and necessity support using the property for a new stated public use when the property was acquired after January 1, 2007, and the property was acquired [Code Civ. Proc. § 1245.245(a), (e)]:

- Pursuant to eminent domain;
- Following adoption of a resolution of necessity for the property; or
- Before adoption of a resolution of necessity for the property, but after written notice that the public entity may take the property by eminent domain.

In addition, property acquired by a public entity that is subject to a resolution of necessity and is not used for the public use stated in the resolution within 10 years of the resolution's adoption must be sold unless the governing body adopts another resolution that either (1) authorizes another, different, public use, or (2) reauthorizes the existing stated public use [Code Civ. Proc. § 1245.245(b)].

In either case, the new or reauthorized resolution, unless a greater vote is required by statute, charter, or ordinance, must be adopted by a vote of two-thirds of all the members of the public entity's governing body, not just a majority of those present [Code Civ. Proc. § 1245.245(a), (b)].

[5] Resolution by Quasi-Public Entity

A quasi-public entity may not commence an eminent domain proceeding unless the legislative body has adopted, by two-thirds vote of its members, a resolution consenting to it [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1245.330, 1245.360]. The quasi-public entity must obtain the consent of the legislative body of each city or county in which it seeks to condemn property [Senate Legislative Committee Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 1245.330]. "Legislative body" means both (1) the legislative body of each city within whose boundaries the property sought to be taken is located, and (2) if the property is not within city boundaries, the legislative body of each county within whose boundaries the property is located [Code Civ. Proc. § 1245.310].

The adoption of the resolution does not relieve the quasi-public entity from satisfying the requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.030 or any other legal requirements, such as environmental impact reports [Code Civ. Proc. § 1245.380].

[6] Contents of Resolution of Consent

The resolution of consent must (1) state generally the public use for which the property is to be taken and refer to the statute authorizing the quasi-public entity to acquire the property by eminent domain; (2) describe the general location and extent of the property to enable reasonable identification; and (3) declare both that the legislative body has found and determined the public necessity for the proposed project as required by Code Civ. Proc. § 1245.340 and that the hardship to the quasi-public entity if the taking were not permitted outweighs any hardship to the owners of such property [Code Civ. Proc. § 1245.340].

If an owner of real property wants to acquire an appurtenant easement pursuant to Civ. Code § 1001 (utility service easement), the resolution must contain a declaration that the legislative body has found and determined that (1) there is a great necessity for the taking; (2) the location of the easement gives the most reasonable service to the property to which it is appurtenant, with the least damage to the burdened property; and (3) the hardship to the owner of the appurtenant property, if the taking is not permitted, clearly outweighs any hardship to the owner of the burdened property [Code Civ. Proc. § 1245.325(b)].

If an owner of real property wants to acquire the temporary right of access to adjoining or adjacent property to repair or reconstruct land or improvements, the resolution must contain a declaration that (1) there is a necessity to do the repair or reconstruction work and there is a great necessity to enter on the adjacent or nearby property to do the work because it cannot be done safely without entry, or the cost of performing the work without entry would be substantially higher and the property without repair or reconstruction adversely affects the surrounding community; (2) the right to enter on the adjacent or nearby land will be exercised in a manner that provides the least damage to the property and the least inconvenience or annoyance to the occupants or owners of the property, consistent with satisfactory completion of the repair or reconstruction work; and (3) the hardship to the person seeking to exercise the power of eminent domain, if that power is not exercised, clearly outweighs any hardship to the owner or occupant of the adjacent or nearby property [Civ. Code § 1002(a); Code Civ. Proc. § 1245.326(b)].

[7] Hearing

The legislative body may refuse to consent to the acquisition with or without a hearing, but it may adopt the resolution only after it has held a hearing at which persons whose property is to be acquired have had a reasonable opportunity to appear and be heard [Code Civ. Proc. § 1245.350(a); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1245.350(b) (notice requirements)].

[8] Adoption Does Not Affect City or County's Liability

The adoption of the resolution of consent does not make the city or county liable for any damages caused by the acquisition of the property or by the project for which it is acquired [Code Civ. Proc. § 1245.390].

A public entity must offer a one-year leaseback agreement to the owner of any property acquired after January 1, 2007, when the property is acquired (1) pursuant to eminent domain; (2) following adoption of a resolution of necessity for the property [see § 247.32[2]]; or (3) before adoption of a resolution of necessity, but after written notice that the public entity could take the property by eminent domain, unless the entity states in writing that development or redevelopment of the property is scheduled to begin within two years of its acquisition. The leaseback offer is not required if the public entity states in writing that a leaseback would create or allow the continuation of a public nuisance to the surrounding community [Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.615(a), (b); see 2006 Stats., ch 602, § 4 (effective date)]. The leaseback is subject to the property owner's compliance with specified conditions, including payment of fair market rents [Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.615(a), (c)].

§ 247.50 Interest That May Be Acquired

Except as limited by statute, any person authorized to use eminent domain to acquire property for a particular use may acquire any interest in the property necessary for that use [Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.110(a); for definitions of "interest" and "property," see § 247.11[5], [7]]. Acquirable interests include submerged lands, rights of any nature in water, subsurface rights, airspace rights, flowage or flooding easements, aircraft noise or operation easements, right of temporary occupancy, public utility facilities and franchises, and franchises to collect tolls on a bridge or highway [Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.110(a)]. A public entity's resolution of necessity [see § 247.32[2]] may be conclusive evidence of the necessity for the acquisition of the particular interest in the property [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1245.250].

Since personal property may be acquired by eminent domain [Code Civ. Proc. § 1235.170], a public entity is not precluded from acquiring a sports franchise if it can establish that the acquisition is for a public use [City of Oakland v. Oakland Raiders (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 60, 64-70, 183 Cal. Rptr. 673, 646 P.2d 835] .

If a statute authorizes the acquisition of specific interests in or types of property, Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.110 does not expand the scope or the authority granted [Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.110(b)]. Thus, if an interest in property authorized to be taken is limited by the statutory grant, such as a statute that authorizes acquisition of an easement only, an attempt to take an interest in the property other than that permitted by the statute is precluded [Cal. L. Rev. Comm'n Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.110].

§ 247.51 Requirement That Property Be Necessary and Effective for Proposed Purpose

The power of eminent domain may be exercised to acquire property necessary to carry out and make effective the principal purpose involved. Consequently, a condemnor may protect the attractiveness, safety, or usefulness of a public work or improvement from deleterious conditions or uses by condemning a fee or any lesser interest necessary for protective purposes. A taking for this purpose is a public use [Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.120(a); Cal. L. Rev. Comm'n Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.120; see People ex rel. Dep't Public Works v. Lagiss (1963) 223 Cal. App. 2d 23, 43, 35 Cal. Rptr. 554] .

A condemnation for protective purposes may be challenged on the ground that the condemnor does not actually intend to use the property for protective purposes whether or not a resolution of necessity has been adopted [Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.120; see People ex rel. Dep't Public Works v. Lagiss (1963) 223 Cal. App. 2d 23, 39, 35 Cal. Rptr. 554] .

Subject to any applicable procedures governing the disposition of property and to any reservations or restrictions that are necessary to protect or preserve the attractiveness, safety, and usefulness of the project, the property may be acquired with the intent to sell, lease, exchange, or otherwise dispose of it or an interest in it [Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.120(b)]. Thus, to protect a public work or improvement from detrimental uses on adjoining property, the condemnor may acquire the fee or some other interest and then, if the condemnor desires, lease, sell, exchange, or otherwise dispose of the property to some other public entity or a private person subject to carefully specified permitted uses [Cal. L. Rev. Comm'n Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.120].

§ 247.52 Extraterritorial Condemnation

A local public entity may acquire property outside its limits by eminent domain when the power is expressly granted by statute or necessarily implied as an incident of one of its other statutory powers [Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.050; North Sacramento v. Citizens Util. Co. (1961) 192 Cal. App. 2d 482, 486, 13 Cal. Rptr. 538 (plaintiff impliedly authorized to condemn portion of defendant's water system outside plaintiff's territorial limits when plaintiff had power to provide water service to persons both within and without its boundaries)].

Purposes for which extraterritorial condemnation is expressly authorized include water, gas, or electric supply purposes, or airport, drainage, or sewer purposes if the entity can acquire property for the purposes for which the property is to be acquired [Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.125]. The authority to acquire for extraterritorial purposes does not apply if a statute restricts a particular local public entity's condemnation power to property within its boundaries [see, e.g., Pub. Util. Code § 30503 (So. Cal. Rapid Transit Dist. permitted to acquire property only within its boundaries)]. Some statutes authorizing extraterritorial condemnation require the consent of the governing body of the jurisdiction in which the property to be taken is located [see, e.g., Health & Safety Code §§ 6514 (sanitary districts), 7147 (small craft harbor districts)].

The exercise of extraterritorial condemnation is significantly limited in that the resolution of necessity of a local public entity is not conclusive where the property to be taken is outside its boundaries [Code Civ. Proc. § 1245.250(b)]. Consequently, the question of whether the proposed project is necessary is a justiciable issue in the condemnation proceeding [Legislative Committee Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 1245.250; see Los Angeles v. Keck (1971) 14 Cal. App. 3d 920, 925, 92 Cal. Rptr. 599 (court is required to determine necessity of taking particular land when city seeks to condemn land outside its corporate limits); see also § 247.32[2]].

Although the final determination is for the trial court, the Supreme Court has indicated that the territorial restriction may not apply to personal property such as a football franchise and that, even if it is applicable, a football franchise is within the territory of the city where it plays [City of Oakland v. Oakland Raiders (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 60, 74-75, 183 Cal. Rptr. 673, 646 P.2d 835] .

Extraterritorial condemnation for environmental mitigation purposes is not impliedly necessary when, under the California Environmental Quality Act [Pub. Res. Code § 21000 et seq.], the project can be completed without condemnation by a finding that the mitigation is not feasible [Kenneth Mebane Ranches v. Superior Court (1992) 10 Cal. App. 4th 276, 12 Cal. Rptr. 2d 562] .

20-247 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 247.53

§ 247.53 Acquisition of Remnants

[1] "Remnant" Defined

Whenever a public entity's acquisition of part of a larger parcel of property will leave a remnant, the public entity may acquire the remnant by eminent domain in accordance with the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1240.410-1240.430 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.410(b)]. A "remnant" is a remainder or portion thereof that will be left in such size, shape, or condition as to be of little market value [Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.410(a)]. It may be physical [see Kern County High School Dist, v. McDonald (1919) 180 Cal. 7, 16, 179 P. 180] or financial [People ex rel. Department of Public Works v. Superior Court of Merced County (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 206, 212-213, 65 Cal. Rptr. 342, 436 P.2d 342 (54-acre landlocked parcel is financial remnant since severance damages might equal its value as landlocked parcel)].

[2] Determination of "Little Market Value"

The "little market value" concept contained in the definition of "remnant" is flexible, and whether the excess property may be taken depends on the circumstances of each case. Examples of situations in which the project results in the excess property having relatively little market value include where: (1) it will be totally landlocked and no physical solution will be practical; (2) it will be reduced below the minimum zoning limits for building purposes and it is not reasonably probable that there will be a zoning change; (3) it will be of significant value to only one or a few persons such as adjoining landowners; or (4) it will be landlocked and have primarily a speculative value dependent on access being provided when adjacent land is developed and the time when the adjacent land will be developed is unclear. Consequently, the test the court applies in determining whether a remainder or portion thereof is a remnant is an objective one of marketability and market value, generally of the excess property [Cal. L. Rev. Comm'n Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.410; see People ex rel. Dep't Public Works v. Superior Court (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 206, 212-213, 65 Cal. Rptr. 342, 436 P.2d 342 ; see also Gov. Code § 7267.7 (acquisition of entire property to avoid uneconomic remnant by public entity involved in relocation assistance)].

A usable and generally salable piece of property is neither a physical nor financial remnant even though its highest and best use has been downgraded by its severance or a serious controversy exists as to its best use and value after severance

[see, e.g., La Mesa v. Tweed & Gambrell Mill (1956) 146 Cal. App. 2d 762, 778-779, 304 P.2d 803] . In addition, a public entity cannot take excess property to (1) avoid the cost and inconvenience of litigating the issue of damages, (2) preclude the payment of damages, (3) coerce the condemnee to accept whatever price the condemnor offers for the property actually needed for the public project, or (4) recoup damages or unrecognized benefits by speculating as to the future market for the property not actually devoted to the public project [Cal. L. Rev. Comm'n Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.410; see People ex rel. Dep't Public Works v. Superior Court (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 206, 213-214, 65 Cal. Rptr. 342, 436 P.2d 342] .

[3] Remnant Not Acquirable if Means to Prevent Remnant Exist

Property may not be acquired as a remnant if the defendant proves that the public entity has a reasonable, practicable, and economically sound means to prevent the remnant [Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.410(c)]. For example, if the condemnee can demonstrate that the public entity can provide substitute access or take other steps to prevent a remnant, the condemnee can prevent the public entity's acquisition of the excess property. To be economically sound, the proposed solution must reduce the overall cost to the condemnor of the taking so that the total of the cost of the solution, the compensation paid for the part taken, and the damages to the remainder is less than the amount that would be required to be paid if the entire parcel were taken. Moreover, the court should consider questions of maintenance, hardship to third persons, potential dangers, risk of tort liability, and similar matters in determining if the solution is reasonable and practicable. If the physical solution might interfere with or impair the public project, it is not reasonable. If the proposed solution is reasonable, practicable, and economically sound, the damages to the remainder must be computed, taking into account the extent to which the solution will avoid or reduce them [Cal. L. Rev. Comm'n Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.410; see Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.450 (compensation for injury to remainder)].

[4] Burden of Proof

The adoption of a resolution of necessity gives rise to the presumption that the taking of the property as a remnant is authorized under Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.410. This presumption affects the burden of producing evidence [Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.420]. However, the burden of proving the facts that bring the case within Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.410 is on the plaintiff [Cal. L. Rev. Comm'n Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.420].

[5] Disposition of Property Taken

On taking a remnant, the public entity may sell, lease, exchange, or otherwise dispose of it and credit the money rescued to the funds available for acquiring the property for the public work or improvement [Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.430].

§ 247.54 Acquisition of Remainders With Owner's Consent

A public entity that acquires part of a larger parcel, leaving the remainder or a portion of the remainder in such size, shape, or condition as to be of little value to its owner or so as to give rise to a claim for severance or other damages, may acquire the remainder, or a portion of the remainder, by any means, including eminent domain, expressly consented to by the owner [Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.150]. Since exercise of the authority depends on the consent and concurrence of the property owner, acquisition is authorized whenever the remainder would have little value to its owner rather than having little market value to another owner [Cal. L. Rev. Comm'n Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.150].

For authority to condemn a structure located in part on property that is not sought to be taken when the parties are unable to agree, see Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.270 (court order on motion of any party that entire improvement be acquired).

§ 247.55 Acquisition for Future Use

[1] By Owner's Consent

Any public entity authorized to acquire property for a particular use by eminent domain may acquire property to be put to that use in the future by any means expressly consented to by its owner, including by eminent domain [Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.240].

[2] By Eminent Domain

Property may be acquired by eminent domain for a particular future use provided there is a reasonable probability that its date of use will be within seven years from the date the complaint is filed or within a reasonably longer period [Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.220(a)]. When property is taken pursuant to the Federal Aid Highway Act of 1973 [23 U.S.C. § 101 et seq.], a date of use within 10 years from the date the complaint is filed is reasonable [Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.250(a)]. The date of use is the date when the property is devoted to the use or when construction is started on the project for which the property is taken with the intent to complete the project within a reasonable time. Periods of delay caused by extraordinary litigation or by failure to obtain a necessary permit or agreement from a public entity are not included in determining the date [Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.210]. The power to condemn for future use may also be granted in other specific statutes, subject to the general provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.220 [see, e.g., Sts. & Hy. Code § 104.6 (future highway needs); Water Code § 258 (future state dam and water purposes)].

[3] Burden of Proof

If the defendant objects to the taking, he or she has the burden of proving there is no reasonable probability that the date of use will be within seven years (10 years if taking is pursuant to Federal Aid Highway Act of 1973 [23 U.S.C. § 101 et seq.]) from the date the complaint was filed unless the complaint states an estimated date of use that is more than seven years from the filing date [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1240.230(a), (b), 1240.250(c)]. If the complaint states an estimated date of use of more than seven years or if the defendant proves that there is no reasonable probability that the date of use will be within seven years (or 10 years), the plaintiff has the burden of proving that there is a reasonable probability that the property will be used within a reasonable time [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1240.230(c), 1240.250(c); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.220(a)].

§ 247.56 Substitute Condemnation

[1] Conditions on Acquiring and Exchanging Substitute Property

A condemnor authorized to acquire property for a particular use may acquire other "substitute" property and exchange the substitute property for the property that is needed (necessary property) if: (1) the owner of the necessary property agrees in writing to the exchange; (2) the necessary property (property that is wanted by condemnor) is devoted to or held for some public use and the property owner will devote the substitute property to the same public use; and (3) the owner of the necessary property is authorized to exercise the power of eminent domain to acquire property for the use to which the substitute property will be put [Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.320(a)].

Since a public entity can condemn property to be exchanged only when the person with whom the property is to be exchanged has agreed in writing to the exchange and could himself or herself have condemned the property, the same end can be reached no matter which party to the exchange exercises the power of condemnation. When the owner of the property that is needed by the public entity does not have the power to condemn the substitute property for the use contemplated, the public entity must rely on the authority granted by another statute [see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.330 (relocation of public use); Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.350 (acquisition of additional property); Assembly Legislative Committee Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.320].

[2] Relocation of Public Use

If necessary property is devoted to public use, a condemnor may acquire substitute property in its own name, relocate on the substitute property the public use to which the necessary property is devoted, and then convey the substitute property to the owner of the necessary property if: (1) a court order or judgment in an eminent domain proceeding, or an agreement with the necessary property owner, requires the entity to relocate the public use to which the necessary property is devoted and thereafter to convey the property on which the public use has been relocated to the owner of the necessary property; (2) the substitute property is necessary for compliance with the court order, judgment, or agreement; and (3) the owner of the necessary property will devote the substitute property to the public use being displaced from the necessary property [Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.330(a); see Pub. Util. Code § 861 (granting PUC jurisdiction in certain controversies arising under Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.330 when public entity is special law water district)]. Property also may be acquired for relocation of a public use by gift, purchase, or other means [Cal. L. Rev. Comm'n Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.330; see Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.130].

[3] Additional Property for Utility Service or Access

To restore property deprived of utility service or access to a public road due to condemnation of surrounding property and to avoid claims of substantial severance damage, a condemnor is authorized to condemn additional property that is reasonably necessary and appropriate (after taking into account any hardship to the owner of the additional property) to provide utility service or road access to the noncondemned and deprived property [Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.350].

Since the condemnors' authority to provide utility service or access is discretionary, when the condemnor does not use its authority, a property owner has no right to force the condemnor to do so but instead is limited to the recovery of damages except as provided by Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.410(c) (circumstances under which remnant may not be acquired) [Assembly Legislative Committee Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.350].

§ 247.57 Condemnation for Compatible Use

[1] Acquisition May Not Unreasonably Interfere With Public Use

An authorized person may condemn property already appropriated to public use if the proposed use will not unreasonably interfere with or impair the present public use as it then exists or may reasonably be expected to exist in the future [Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.510; see Code Civ. Proc. § 1235.180 (property appropriated for public use means property either already in use for public purpose or set aside for specific public purpose with intent to use it for such purpose within reasonable time)]. The existing use is not displaced by the second proposed use, but instead the property is jointly used when the second use does not unreasonably interfere with the existing use. Property that is statutorily exempt from condemnation cannot be condemned for compatible use [Cal. L. Rev. Comm'n Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.510].

The authority to condemn for compatible use is independent of the authority to condemn property for a more necessary public use [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1240.610-1240.700; see § 247.58]. If the plaintiff is uncertain of its authority to condemn for a more necessary public use, it may proceed under both Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1240.610-1240.700 (more necessary public use) and Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.510 (compatible use). According to the Cal. L. Rev. Comm'n Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.510, inconsistent allegations in this situation are proper.

According to the Cal. L. Rev. Comm'n Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.510, condemnation for compatible use has no effect on the respective rights of the owner of the underlying fee and any easement holders to compensation for the additional burdens imposed by a condemnor exercising the authority to acquire the property for compatible use. In such a situation, if the plaintiff does not make the owner of the underlying fee or easement holder a party to the eminent domain proceeding, the owner or easement holder may either appear as a defendant in the eminent domain proceeding or bring a separate inverse condemnation action [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1250.230 (appearance of person with legal or equitable interest as defendant); People ex rel. Dep't Public Works v. Schultz Co. (1954) 123 Cal. App. 2d 925, 935, 268 P.2d 117 (damages not necessarily included in issues of condemnation action are recoverable in subsequent action)].

[2] Burden of Proof

If the defendant objects to a taking for compatible use, he or she has the burden of proving that his or her property is appropriated to public use. If the defendant so proves, the plaintiff then has the burden of proving that its proposed use will not unreasonably interfere with or impair the public use as it then exists or may reasonably be expected to exist in the future [Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.520; see Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.510; Los Angeles v. Los Angeles Pac. Co. (1916) 31 Cal. App. 100, 115, 159 P. 992] .

[3] Terms and Conditions

When property is taken for compatible use, the parties must make an agreement determining the terms and conditions on which the property is taken and the manner and extent of its use by each of the parties. Unless otherwise provided by statute, if the parties are unable to agree, the court fixes the terms and conditions and the manner and extent of its use [Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.530(a); see Pub. Util. Code §§ 1201, 1202 (PUC has exclusive jurisdiction to determine and regulate railroad crossings)]. According to the Cal. L. Rev. Comm'n Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.530, the terms and conditions should include a provision specifying how any liability arising out of the compatible use is to be borne.

If the court finds that the use in the manner proposed by plaintiff would not satisfy the statutory requirements, the court must further determine whether these requirements could be satisfied by fixing terms and conditions on which the property may be taken. If the court determines that the requirements could be so satisfied, it will permit the plaintiff to take the property on those terms and conditions and prescribe the manner and extent of its use by each of the parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.530(b)]. In its Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.530, the Cal. L. Rev. Comm'n stated that, if the court refuses to approve the joint use as proposed because of a particular feature, the court must specify in what respect the proposed joint use fails to satisfy the statutory requirements, and, when possible, specify any modifications that are necessary to satisfy the requirements.

When property is taken for compatible use, the court may order any necessary removal or relocation of structures or improvements if no significant alteration of the use to which the property is appropriated is required. Unless otherwise provided by statute, all costs and damages that result from the relocation or removal must be paid by the plaintiff [Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.530(c)].

§ 247.58 Condemnation for More Necessary Public Use

[1] Availability

Any person authorized to condemn property may acquire property appropriated to public use if the property is sought for a more necessary public use than that to which it already is appropriated [Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.610].

[2] Burden of Proof

If the defendant objects to the taking, he or she has the burden of proving that his or her property is appropriated to public use. If the defendant does so, the plaintiff then has the burden of proving that its use is a more necessary public use [Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.620; see Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.610].

[3] State Use as More Necessary Public Use

Subject to several qualifications, when property has been appropriated to public use by any person other than the state, the use by the state for the same or any other public use is presumed to be more necessary than that to which the property already is appropriated. Furthermore, if the property has been appropriated to public use by the state, this use is more necessary than any use to which the property might be put by any other person. These presumptions affect the burden of proof [Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.640; see Evid. Code §§ 605, 606]. This rule of state supremacy includes not only state acquisitions under the Property Acquisition Law (Gov. Code § 15853 et seq.) but also acquisitions under any other authority such as by the Department of Water Resources and the Department of Transportation [Senate Legislative Committee Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.640].

Specific exemptions and qualifications to the rule of state supremacy include the presumption that park use is more necessary than highway use and the requirement that the Department of Transportation obtain county consent before taking property for memorials [Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.680; Sts. & Hy. Code § 155]. Additionally, property appropriated to public use by the state may be taken for common use when compatible with the appropriated use, and the prior user, under appropriate circumstances, may be permitted to continue his or her use jointly with the more necessary state use [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1240.510, 1240.630].

[4] Public Entity's Use as More Necessary Use

When property has been appropriated to public use by any person other than a public entity, the same or any other use by a public entity is more necessary than that to which the property has already been appropriated. Moreover, when a public entity has appropriated property to public use, that use is more necessary than any use to which the property may be put by any person other than a public entity. Nevertheless, when property appropriated to a public use is electric, gas, or water public utility property that the public entity intends to put to the same use, the presumption of a more necessary use is a rebuttable presumption affecting the burden of proof, unless the acquiring public entity is a sanitary district exercising the powers of a county water district [Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.650]. Property taken for public use by a public entity may be taken for common use by another person if the use is compatible with the appropriated public use [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.510; see also § 247.57].

The preference for use by public entities is not merely one of public ownership over private ownership for the same use, but includes any use. For example, a public entity may condemn the easement of a privately owned public utility not merely to perpetuate the utility use in public ownership but also to provide some separate and distinct use. Specific exceptions to the rule of public supremacy may be provided by statute [Cal. L. Rev. Comm'n Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.650].

[5] Use by Local Public Entity

A local public entity's public use of property appropriated by it is presumed to be more necessary than any use to which the property might be put by any other local public entity [Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.660]. This presumption affects the burden of producing evidence and is only for purposes of displacement of one user by another. Any local public entity may take property of any other public entity for joint use when the uses are compatible [Senate Legislative Committee Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.660; see San Diego v. Cuyamaca Water Co. (1930) 209 Cal. 152, 162-163, 287 P. 496 , cert. denied, 282 U.S. 863 ; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.510].

[6] Property Preserved in Natural Condition or Appropriated for Parks or Similar Uses

Property that has been appropriated and used exclusively for the preservation of native plants or animals under the conditions specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.670(b) is presumed to have been appropriated for the best and most necessary public use, subject to the possibility that it may be appropriated for a state highway [Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.670(a)]. This presumption affects the burden of proof [Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.670(b)]. A similar presumption arises under Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.680, subject to the possibility of appropriation for state highway, or city or county road, street, or highway purposes, if property is appropriated to public use as (1) a state or local park, open space, or recreation area; (2) a wildlife or waterfowl management area as provided in Fish & Game Code § 1525; (3) a registered historic site; or (4) an ecological reserve as provided in Fish & Game Code §§ 1580-1584. When such property is sought to be acquired for state highway purposes within 120 days after the California Highway Commission or other appropriating entity has published in a newspaper of general circulation pursuant to Gov. Code § 6061 and delivered to the owner of the property a written notice that a proposed route or an adopted route includes such property, the owner must file and serve a declaratory relief action to determine the question of which public use is the best and most necessary one [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1240.690(a), (b), 1240.700]. Otherwise, the right to bring the action is waived and the presumptions arising under these sections do not apply [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1240.690(d)(1), 1240.700(c)(1)]. In addition, if the action is brought, any resolution of necessity of the highway commission is not conclusive evidence of the matters relating to public necessity in Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.030 which must be established to acquire property in eminent domain [Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.690(c)].

[7] Continuation of Prior Public Use

A defendant is entitled to continue the public use to which the property is appropriated if it will not unreasonably interfere with, impair, or require a significant alteration of the more necessary public use as it is then planned, exists, or may reasonably be expected to exist in the future [Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.630(a)]. This test is comparable to that for compatible public uses [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.510; see also § 247.57].

If the defendant objects to the taking on the ground that he or she is entitled to continue the public use to which the property is appropriated, on motion of either party, the court must determine whether he or she is entitled to do so. If the court determines that the defendant is so entitled, the parties must make an agreement determining the terms and conditions on which the use may continue and on which the property taken by plaintiff is acquired, and the manner and extent of the property's use by each of the parties. If the parties cannot agree, the court will fix the terms and conditions and the manner and extent of the property's use by the parties, except as otherwise provided by statute [Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.630(b)].

Proc. § 1245.010*]. There is no time limitation on entry and, although appraisal and suitability studies generally precede the commencement of an eminent domain proceeding, they may be performed after the proceeding starts [Cal. 20-247 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 247.71

§ 247.71 Prerequisites to Entry

If entry on property and preliminary activities will subject the condemnor to liability for damages or interference with the possession or use of the property, the person, before making entry and undertaking these activities, should secure either (1) the written consent of the owner to enter on the latter's property, and to undertake the activities, or (2) an order for entry from the superior court [Code Civ. Proc. § 1245.020]. According to the Cal. L. Rev. Comm'n Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 1245.020, if the entry and activities on the property will involve only trivial injuries to the property and inconsequential interference with the owner's possession and use, neither the owner's permission nor a court order is required.

The condemnor may obtain an order for entry by petitioning the superior court [see § 247.270], and by giving to the owner of the property the prior notice [see § 247.271] required by the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 1245.030(a)]. After notice has been given, the court will determine the purpose for the entry, the nature and scope of the activities reasonably necessary to accomplish the purpose and order the deposit of the probable amount of compensation to be paid to the property owner for the actual damage to the property and interference with its possession and use [Code Civ. Proc. § 1245.030(b), (c); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1245.040 (modification of order)].

§ 247.72 Action for Damages or for Interference With Use or Possession

[1] Recovery for "Actual" Damages

If the entry and activities on the property cause "actual damage" to or substantial interference with the possession or use of the property, whether or not a claim has been presented in compliance with Gov. Code §§ 900-935.6 (claims against public entities), the owner may recover for the damage or interference in a civil action or by application to the court under Code Civ. Proc. § 1245.060(c) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1245.060(a); see § 247.275]. According to the Cal. L. Rev. Comm'n Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 1245.060, the term "actual damages" is intended to preclude recovery of merely nominal or constructive damages not based on physical injury to property. Similarly, the term "substantial interference" excludes liability for minimal annoyance or interference that does not seriously impinge on or impair possession and use of the property [see Jacobsen v. Superior Ct. (1923) 192 Cal. 319, 329, 219 P. 986] .

If funds are on deposit, the owner may apply to the court for a determination and award of the amount the owner is entitled to recover and an order that the amount be paid out of the funds on deposit. If the deposit is insufficient to pay the full amount of the award, the court will enter judgment for the unpaid portion [Code Civ. Proc. § 1245.060(c); see §§ 247.275 -247.277].

The prevailing claimant in an action or proceeding for damages or interference with use and possession of property is awarded costs and, if the court finds that any of the following occurred, the litigation expenses the claimant incurred in the proceedings involving precondemnation activities [Code Civ. Proc. § 1245.060(b); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1245.010-1245.060]:

- The entry was unlawful;

- The entry was lawful but the activities on the property were abusive or lacking in due regard for the owner's interests;

- There was a substantial failure to comply with the terms of an order made under Code Civ. Proc. § 1245.030 or 1245.040 (see §§ 247.71, 247.270 -247.274).

[2] Effect of Filing Eminent Domain Proceeding

The property owner probably will bring an action for damage to or interference with the possession or use of his or her property arising from precondemnation activities only when no eminent domain proceeding is filed and no taking has occurred so that the only injury to the owner was the damage to or interference with the use or possession of the property directly arising from the precondemnation activities. According to the Cal. L. Rev. Comm'n Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 1245.060, if an eminent domain proceeding eventually is filed to take the property to which the damage occurred, or a portion of that property, the claim for damage must be made by cross complaint in the eminent domain proceeding, or it will be barred [see Klopping v. Whittier (1972) 8 Cal. 3d 39, 58, 104 Cal. Rptr. 1, 500 P.2d 1345 ; Code Civ. Proc. § 426.70] unless damages were obtained earlier by application to the court under Code Civ. Proc. § 1245.060(c).

§ 247.90 Commencement of Proceeding

An eminent domain proceeding is commenced by filing a complaint with the court, which thereby confers subject matter jurisdiction on that court [Code Civ. Proc. § 1250.110; Cal. L. Rev. Comm'n Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 1250.110; see Bayle-Lacoste & Co. v. Superior Court (1941) 46 Cal. App. 2d 636, 642, 116 P.2d 458] . For a general form of complaint in eminent domain, see § 247.279.

All eminent domain proceedings must be commenced and prosecuted in the superior court, except as otherwise provided by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1230.060 (eminent domain proceedings by PUC) and 1273.010-1273.050 (arbitration) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1250.010; see also Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10]. The court in which the proceeding is brought has the exclusive power to determine the right to possession of the property involved, as between the plaintiff and the defendant [Code Civ. Proc. § 1230.050].

Each person seeking to take property by eminent domain must be named as plaintiff in the complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 1250.210].

The plaintiff must name in the complaint as defendants, by their real names, all persons who appear of record or are known by the plaintiff to have or claim an interest in the property described in the complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 1250.220(a)]. Additionally, the plaintiff may name as defendants "all persons unknown claiming an interest in the property" [Code Civ. Proc. § 1250.220(c)]. For a general form of complaint and discussion of persons to be named as defendants, see § 247.279.

After filing the complaint and paying all applicable fees, the plaintiff may have the clerk issue one or more summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 412.10]. Except where process is served by publication, the form and content of the summons are the same as in civil actions generally [*Code Civ. § 247.93 Service of Process

[1] General Provisions Apply

The general provisions for service of process apply to eminent domain proceedings [Code Civ. Proc. § 1230.040]. When the state is a defendant, the summons and complaint must be served on the Attorney General [Code Civ. Proc. § 1250.140]. A property owner may bring an action in inverse condemnation against the plaintiff condemnor if it has not diligently attempted to serve the complaint and summons on the owners within six months of filing suit [Code Civ. Proc. § 1245.260(a)]. For discussion and forms relating to service of process, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers .

[2] Service by Publication

The general rules for service by publication in Code Civ. Proc. § 415.50 (service by publication permitted when party to be served cannot be served with reasonable diligence in another manner) apply in an eminent domain proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 1230.040]. When process in an eminent domain proceeding is to be served by publication, the publication must describe the property sought to be taken in a manner reasonably calculated to give persons with an interest in the property actual notice of the pending proceeding. However, the publication may name only the defendants to be served by it and describe only the property in which the defendants to be served have or claim interests [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1250.120(b), 1250.125]. When the court orders service by publication, it also must order the plaintiff (1) to post a copy of the summons and complaint on the property sought to be taken, and (2) if not already recorded, to record a notice of the proceeding's pendency in the manner provided by Code Civ. Proc. § 1250.150 [see § 247.94]. According to the Cal. L. Rev. Comm'n Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 1250.130, the court should give appropriate directions as to the manner of posting, such as the location and the number of copies [see Code Civ. Proc. § 413.30]. The posting and recording must be done within 10 days after the date of the order [Code Civ. Proc. § 1250.130].

When service of the summons is by publication, a judgment based on failure to appear and answer is conclusive against the named defendants only with respect to the property described in the publication [Code Civ. Proc. § 1250.125(b)]. Notwithstanding Code Civ. Proc. § 1250.125(b), a defendant who did not receive the offer because the owner could not be located with reasonable diligence, who was served by publication, and who failed to appear, may contest the amount of compensation within one year of the judgment and for good cause shown, in which case that issue must be litigated [Code Civ. Proc. § 1250.125(c)].

§ 247.94 Recording Lis Pendens

At the time the proceeding is commenced, that is, when the complaint is filed, the plaintiff must record a notice of the pendency of the proceeding in the county recorder's office of any county in which property described in the complaint is located [Code Civ. Proc. § 1250.150; see § 247.286]. When the notice is recorded, it provides constructive notice of the pendency of the action to all subsequent transferees from a named defendant who are thus bound by any judgment in the eminent domain proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.24; Civ. Code § 1214; Albertson v. Raboff (1956) 46 Cal. 2d 375, 379, 295 P.2d 405 ; Drinkhouse v. Spring Valley Water Works (1890) 87 Cal. 253, 255-256, 25 P. 420 ; Cal. L. Rev. Comm'n Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 1250.150]. Failure to file a lis pendens does not deprive the court of subject matter jurisdiction, but a transferee of the property is not bound by the judgment unless he or she is made a party to the proceeding [Assembly Legislative Committee Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 1250.150; see Bensley v. Mountain Lake Water Co. (1859) 13 Cal. 306 ; Patten-Blinn Lumber Co. v. Francis (1958) 166 Cal. App. 2d 196, 200-201, 333 P.2d 255] .

§ 247.95 Appearance of Person Claiming Interest in Property

An eminent domain proceeding is in the nature of an action in rem. Therefore, any person not named in the complaint who claims a legal or equitable interest in the property described in the complaint may appear in the proceeding as a defendant by filing an answer [Code Civ. Proc. § 1250.230; Harrington v. Superior Court (1924) 194 Cal. 185, 189, 228 P. 15 ; San Bernardino etc. Water Dist. v. Gage Canal Co. (1964) 226 Cal. App. 2d 206, 210, 37 Cal. Rptr. 856] . Any person who does participate by making a general appearance is bound by the judgment [Harrington v. Superior Court (1924) 194 Cal. 185, 188-189, 228 P. 15] .

Lessees, holders of deeds of trust, and assignees of the proceeds of the award are permitted to intervene [see, respectively, Bayle-Lacoste & Co. v. Superior Court (1941) 46 Cal. App. 2d 636, 640-641, 116 P.2d 458 ; City of Vallejo v. Superior Court (1926) 199 Cal. 408, 416-417, 249 P. 1084 ; Los Angeles v. Dawson (1934) 139 Cal. App. 480, 482-483, 34 P.2d 236] . The beneficiaries of a naked trust are persons interested in the property and are entitled to intervene [Anderson v. Superior Court (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 112, 115-116, 190 Cal. Rptr. 646] . Third parties who would not be affected by the adjudication of either title or compensation in the proceeding, however, do not have the right to participate [see Alhambra v. Jacob Bean Realty Co. (1934) 138 Cal. App. 251, 252, 31 P.2d 1052 (owners of adjacent land); San Joaquin & Kings River Canal & Irrigation Co., Inc. v. Stevinson (1912) 164 Cal. 221, 235-237, 240-242, 128 P. 924 (owners of upstream land); Riverside v. Malloch (1964) 226 Cal. App. 2d 204, 205, 37 Cal. Rptr. 862 (stockholders in company from which property sought to be acquired)]. Similarly, a condemnor seeking to acquire property already the subject of a proceeding by another person should not be allowed to intervene. Instead, the condemnor should file a separate proceeding and move to consolidate the actions [Senate Legislative Committee Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 1250.230; but see San Bernardino etc. Water Dist. v. Gage Canal Co. (1964) 226 Cal. App. 2d 206, 213, 37 Cal. Rptr. 856 (decided under former law)].

[1] Grounds May Be Inconsistent; Waiver

A defendant may object to the plaintiff condemnor's right to take by demurrer or answer on one or more of the grounds authorized by Code Civ. Proc. § 1250.360 or 1250.370. The grounds may be inconsistent [Code Civ. Proc. § 1250.350]. Objections not raised by demurrer or answer are waived [Code Civ. Proc. § 1250.345; see Cal. L. Rev. Comm'n Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 1250.350]. The demurrer or answer must state the specific ground on which the objection is taken and, if the objection is made by answer, the specific facts on which the objection is based [Code Civ. Proc. § 1250.350].

An objection to the right to take that is not encompassed in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1250.360, 1250.370, such as a challenge based on the Political Reform Act (Gov. Code § 81000 et seq.), may not be made by demurrer or answer; it must be made by cross-complaint [San Bernardino County Flood Control Dist. v. Grabowski (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 885, 894-896, 252 Cal. Rptr. 676] .

[2] General Grounds

Pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1250.360, a condemnee, regardless of whether the plaintiff has adopted a resolution of necessity may object to the right to take on the following grounds:

- The plaintiff is not authorized by statute to exercise the power of eminent domain for the purpose stated in the complaint;
- The stated purpose is not a public use;
- The plaintiff does not intend to devote the property described in the complaint to the stated purpose;
- There is no reasonable probability that the plaintiff will devote the described property to the stated purpose within seven years, or 10 years when the property is taken pursuant to the Federal Aid Highway Act of 1973 [23 U.S.C. § 101 et seq.] or any longer period that is reasonable;

- The described property is not subject to acquisition by the power of eminent domain for the stated purpose;

- Plaintiff seeks to acquire the described property pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.410 (excess condemnation), 1240.510 (condemnation for compatible use), or 1240.610 (condemnation for more necessary public use), but the acquisition does not satisfy the requirements of those provisions;

- Plaintiff seeks to acquire the described property pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.610 (condemnation for more necessary public use), but the defendant has the right under Code Civ. Proc. § 1240.630 to continue the public use to which the property is appropriated as a joint use; or

- Any other ground provided by law, such as when federal or state constitutional grounds for objection exist or when prerequisites to condemnation are located in other codes and therefore not contained in the Eminent Domain Law [see Cal. L. Rev. Comm'n Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 1250.360; see, e.g., Health & Safety Code § 127050 (certain requirements are required to be satisfied before nonprofit hospital may exercise right of eminent domain)].

Failure to comply with CEQA before adopting the resolution of necessity may be raised as a defense by either answer or cross complaint [Burbank-Glendale-Pasadena Airport Authority v. Hensler (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 577, 591-594, 284 Cal. Rptr. 498] .

[3] Additional Grounds if Resolution Not Adopted

In addition to the general grounds listed in Code Civ. Proc. § 1250.360 when the plaintiff is not a public entity or when the plaintiff is a public entity but has not adopted a resolution of necessity or the resolution is not conclusive, the defendant may object to plaintiff's right to take on the following grounds [Code Civ. Proc. § 1250.370]:

- The plaintiff is a public entity and has not adopted a resolution of necessity satisfying the requirements of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1245.210-1245.270;

- The public interest and necessity do not require the proposed project;

- The proposed project is not planned or located in the manner that will be most compatible with the greatest public good and the least private injury;

- The property described in the complaint is not necessary for the proposed project; or

- he plaintiff is a quasi-public entity within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 1245.320 and has not satisfied the requirements of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1245.310-1245.390 (consent of relevant local public entities required).

[4] Determination of Right to Take

When objections to the right to take are raised, unless the court orders otherwise, they must be heard and determined before the determination of the issue of compensation [Code Civ. Proc. § 1260.110(a)]. On motion of any party, after notice and hearing, the court may specially set objections for trial [Code Civ. Proc. § 1260.110(b)]. Thus, disposition of the right to take is generally a prerequisite to trial of the issue of just compensation. However, according to the Cal. L.

Rev. Comm'n Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 1260.110, activities such as depositions and other discovery are not thereby precluded. Additionally, the court may order a different order of trial [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1048; see also Los Angeles v. Keck (1971) 14 Cal. App. 3d 920, 923-924, 92 Cal. Rptr. 599 (parties stipulated as to compensation and limited trial to issues of public use and necessity)].

[5] Hearing and Order on Objections

After hearing and determining all objections to the right to take, the court must order that the plaintiff has the right to condemn the property described in the complaint if it so determines [Code Civ. Proc. § 1260.120(a), (b)]. If it determines that the plaintiff does not have the right to take, it must order either immediate dismissal of the proceeding as to that property or conditional dismissal unless the plaintiff takes the corrective and remedial action prescribed by the court. The order may impose any limitations and conditions that the court determines to be just, including requiring that plaintiff pay defendant all or part of the reasonable litigation expenses necessarily incurred by the defendant because of the plaintiff's failure or omission which constitutes the basis of the objection to the right to take [Code Civ. Proc. § 1260.120(c)]. If the complaint alleges alternative grounds for condemnation, a finding requiring dismissal as to one ground does not preclude a finding of a right to take on another ground, and the proceeding may continue to be prosecuted on that basis [Cal. L. Rev. Comm'n Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 1260.120].

§ 247.97 Cross Complaints

The provisions of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 426.10-426.70, which govern compulsory cross complaints in civil actions, apply to eminent domain proceedings [Code Civ. Proc. § 426.70(a)]. Consequently, a defendant must assert a related cause of action as a cross complaint against the plaintiff in the eminent domain action or it is barred [Klopping v. Whittier (1972) 8 Cal. 3d 39, 58, 104 Cal. Rptr. 1, 500 P.2d 1345 ; see Cal. L. Rev. Comm'n Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 426.70; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 426.30 (related cause of action waived if not alleged in cross complaint); for the manner in which to assert precondemnation damages, see § 247.288 (sample allegations in answer to complaint in eminent domain)]. The party asserting the related cause of action in a cross complaint does not need to have presented a claim in compliance with Gov. Code §§ 900-935.6 (claims against public entities) to the plaintiff in the original eminent domain proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 426.70(b)]. Actions against third parties are not affected by this provision, however, and neither are any relevant statutes of limitations [Cal. L. Rev. Comm'n Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 426.70].

Permissive cross complaints are not authorized in eminent domain actions [Code Civ. Proc. § 428.10(a)]; but a defendant may file a cross complaint for any cause of action against any person who asserts a claim, right, or interest in the property sought to be taken [Code Civ. Proc. § 428.10(b); see People v. Buellton Dev. Co. (1943) 58 Cal. App. 2d 178, 189-190, 136 P.2d 793 (cross complaint related to easement owned by other defendant in property to be condemned was proper)].

§ 247.99 Amended and Supplemental Pleadings

Subject to Code Civ. Proc. § 1250.340(a)].

However, a public entity may add to the complaint additional property sought to be taken in the proceeding only if it has adopted a resolution of necessity for the new property [Code Civ. Proc. § 1250.340(b); see § 247.32[2]]. Similarly, property previously sought to be taken may be deleted from the complaint only if the plaintiff has followed the procedure for partial abandonment of the proceeding as to that property [*Code Civ. If they are compatible, the court must permit the proceeding to continue with the plaintiffs acting jointly and must apportion the obligation to pay any award in the proceeding in proportion to the use, damage and benefits attributable to each plaintiff [Code Civ. Proc. § 1260.020].

If the uses are not all compatible, the court must determine which use is the more necessary public use and permit the plaintiff alleging that use, along with any other plaintiffs alleging compatible public uses, to continue the proceeding. The court must dismiss the proceeding as to the other plaintiffs [Code Civ. Proc. § 1260.020(b)].

[1] Service of Written Notice

The plaintiff may wholly or partially abandon the proceedings at any time after the complaint is filed or during the 30 days after final judgment by serving on the defendant and filing in court a written notice of abandonment [Code Civ. Proc. § 1268.510(a); see § 247.292 (sample notice); see also § 247.148[4] (arbitration)].

If the proceeding is abandoned after judgment, the defendant is not entitled to interest on the judgment until the date of the dismissal [People ex rel. Dept. of Transportation v. Union Pacific Land Resources Corp. (1986) 179 Cal. App. 3d 307, 313-316, 224 Cal. Rptr. 487] .

[2] Setting Aside Abandonment

The court, on motion made within 30 days after filing of the notice to abandon, may set aside the abandonment if (1) the moving party's position has been substantially changed to his or her detriment in justifiable reliance on the proceeding and (2) the party cannot be restored to substantially the same position as if the proceeding had not been commenced [Code Civ. Proc. § 1268.510(b); see §§ 247.293 (notice of motion), 247.294 (order); *see also Torrance v. Superior Court (1976) 16 Cal. 3d 195, 206-207, 127 Cal. If the court denies the motion to set aside the abandonment, or no motion to set aside is filed, on the expiration of the time for filing such a motion, the court, on motion of any party, must enter judgment wholly or partially dismissing the proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 1268.510(c)].

Chapter 247 EMINENT DOMAIN AND INVERSE CONDEMNATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Eminent Domain
5. Procedure in Eminent Domain Proceedings

20-247 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 247.103

§ 247.103 Discovery

[1] In General

The Eminent Domain Law contains provisions relating to discovery and exchange of valuation data [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1258.010-1258.300]. These provisions supplement and do not replace, restrict, or prevent the use of general discovery procedures, nor do they limit the matters that are discoverable in eminent domain proceedings [Code Civ. Proc. § 1258.010]. Additionally, these provisions do not make admissible any evidence that is not otherwise admissible, nor do they permit a witness to base an opinion on any matter that is not a proper basis for such an opinion [Code Civ. Proc. § 1258.030]. For discussion and forms for use in proceedings under the general pretrial discovery statutes [Code Civ. Proc. § 2016.010 et seq.], see Ch. 190, Depositions and Discovery .

Notwithstanding any other statute or any court rule relating to discovery, proceedings under Code Civ. Proc. § 1258.020(b), regarding the exchange of expert witness lists and statements of valuation data, may take place without a court order and may continue until 20 days before the day set for trial of the issue of compensation [Code Civ. Proc. § 1258.020(a); see § 247.103[2]]. For additional discussion of discovery in eminent domain proceedings, see California Real Estate Law & Practice, Ch. 506, Trial Preparation and Discovery, §§ 506.30 -506.50 (Matthew Bender).

[2] Exchange of Valuation Data

The provisions of the Eminent Domain Law governing exchange of valuation data [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1258.210-1258.300] apply only when invoked by a party and do not apply in any county that has provided an adequate substitute procedure [Code Civ. Proc. § 1258.300; see, e.g., Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 16.0].

[3] Procedure

Not later than the 10th day after the trial date has been selected, or later by court order made on noticed motion and a showing of good cause, any party may file and serve on any other party to the proceeding a demand to exchange lists of expert witnesses and statements of valuation data [Code Civ. Proc. § 1258.210(a); see § 247.298]. The demand must describe the property to which it relates by reference to the complaint or otherwise. It also must include a statement requiring the lists and statements to be served and deposited with the court clerk not later than the specified date of exchange and explaining that failure to do so constitutes a waiver of the party's right in its case in chief to call unlisted expert witnesses or to introduce any matter required to be, but not, set forth in the statements of valuation data [Code Civ. Proc. § 1258.210(b)].

For these purposes, the specified "date of exchange" is one of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 1258.220]:

- The date to which the party who served the demand and the party on whom the demand was served agree;

- In the absence of an agreed date, a date not earlier than nine months after commencement of the proceeding and not later than 90 days before commencement of trial on the compensation issue; or

- A date set by the court on noticed motion of either party establishing good cause.

When the lists and statements are deposited with the court clerk, an entry is made in the register of actions for each list and statement, but the lists and statements themselves are not filed [Code Civ. Proc. § 1258.230(b); see Gov. Code § 69845 (maintenance of register)]. The clerk, however, will make them available to the court when the trial commences and return them to the parties or counsel when the trial concludes, unless the court orders otherwise. If the court orders that they be retained, they may be destroyed later, or otherwise disposed of, in accordance with the provisions governing the destruction or disposition of exhibits introduced in the trial [Code Civ. Proc. § 1258.230(b); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1952-1952.3 (destruction or disposition of exhibits in civil cases)].

[4] Discovery From Party to Exchange

A party to an exchange of lists of expert witnesses and statements of valuation data, after the time of the exchange, may obtain discovery from the other party to the exchange and from any person listed by that party as an expert witness. However, the court, on noticed motion by the person subject to discovery, may make any order that justice requires to protect that person from annoyance, embarrassment, or oppression [Code Civ. Proc. § 1258.020(c)]. For a discussion of protective orders generally, see Ch. 190, Depositions and Discovery .

[5] List of Expert Witnesses

The list of expert witnesses must include the name, business or residence address, and business, occupation, or profession of each person intended to be called by the party as an expert witness and a statement of the subject matter to which his or her testimony relates [Code Civ. Proc. § 1258.240]. According to the Cal. L. Rev. Comm'n Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 1258.240, only the subject matter of the testimony is to be stated and not its particulars, and statements such as "valuation testimony," and "existence of oil on subject property" are sufficient. Normal discovery techniques can be used to obtain more information about the opinion and the supporting factual data [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1258.010 (use of discovery procedures), 1258.020 (further discovery after exchange); Gov. Code § 68092.5 (costs of deposition of expert witness)].

[6] Valuation Statements

A statement of valuation data must be exchanged for each person the party intends to call as a witness to testify to his or her opinion as to any of the following matters: (1) the value of the property being taken; (2) the amount of the damage to the remainder of the larger parcel from which the property is taken; (3) the amount of the benefit to the remainder; and (4) the amount of any other compensation required to be paid [Code Civ. Proc. § 1258.250]. Parties must exchange statements of property owners who will testify as to value as well as statements of experts, such as appraisers, who will testify as expert witnesses [Padre Dam Municipal Water Dist. v. Burkhardt (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 988, 992, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 506] , including experts who will testify on the issue of the value of lost goodwill [City of Fresno v. Harrison (1984) 154 Cal. App. 3d 296, 301-303, 201 Cal. Rptr. 219] .

The statement must give the name and business or residence address of the witness and include a statement of whether the witness will testify to an opinion as to any of the matters specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 1258.250 (see above). As to each matter on which the witness will give an opinion, the statement must set forth what the opinion is and the extent to which it is based on any of the following items [Code Civ. Proc. § 1258.260(a), (b)]:

- The interest being valued;
- The date of valuation used by the witness;
- The highest and best use of the property;
- The applicable zoning and the witness's opinion as to the possibility of zoning change;
- The sales, contracts to sell and purchase, and leases supporting the opinion;
- The cost of reproduction or replacement of the existing improvements on the property, the depreciation or obsolescence the improvements have suffered, and the method of calculation used to determine depreciation;
- The gross income from the property, the deductions from gross income, and the resulting net income; the reasonable net rental value attributable to the land and existing improvements thereon, and the estimated gross rental income and deductions therefrom on which the reasonable net rental value is computed; the rate of capitalization used; and the value indicated by the capitalization;
- If the property is part of a larger parcel, a description of the larger parcel and its value; and
- If the opinion concerns loss of goodwill, the method used to determine the loss and a summary of the supporting data.

When the witness's opinion is based on sales, contracts to sell and purchase, and leases, the statement must give the following information with respect to each sale, contract, or lease [Code Civ. Proc. § 1258.260(b)]:

- The names and business or residence addresses, if known, of the parties to the transaction;
- The location of the property involved;
- The date of the transaction;
- If recorded, the date of recording and the volume and page or other identification of the transaction's record;
- The price and other terms and circumstances of the transaction or, if the document is available for inspection by the adverse party, a statement of the place where and the times when it is available for inspection; and
- The total area and shape of the property subject to the transaction.

If the witness's opinion is based entirely or mainly on another person's opinion, the statement must include (1) the name and business or residence address of the other person, (2) that person's business, occupation, or profession, and (3) a statement of the subject matter of the opinion [Code Civ. Proc. § 1258.260(c)]. It must also include a statement signed by the witness that the witness has read the statement and that it fairly and correctly states his or her opinions and knowledge as to the matters stated in it [Code Civ. Proc. § 1258.260(d)]. This signed statement does not need to be included when an appraisal report prepared by the witness and including the information required to be included in a statement of valuation data is used as a statement of valuation data [Code Civ. Proc. § 1258.260(e)].

[7] Omission of Witness's Name or Data

A party who is required to exchange lists of expert witnesses and statements of valuation data must give written notice to the parties on whom the lists and statements were served if, after service, that party (1) decides to call an expert witness not included in the list to testify on direct examination during his or her case in chief; (2) decides to have a witness during the case in chief testify as to any opinion or data required to be listed in the statement of valuation data for that witness but that was not listed; and (3) discovers that any data required to be listed in a statement of valuation data was not listed [Code Civ. Proc. § 1258.270(a), (b); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1258.270(b) (notice required to include information specified in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1258.240, 1258.260)]. If the notice is given after the trial has started, it need not be in writing [Code Civ. Proc. § 1258.270(b)].

Generally, if a party who has served a list of expert witnesses and statements of valuation data objects, the serving party cannot call an expert to testify if the information required to be included in the list was not included. Additionally, such a party cannot call a witness to testify to his or her opinion on any matter listed in Code Civ. Proc. § 1258.250 unless a statement of valuation for that witness was served. Finally, a witness called by a party required to serve statements of valuation data on the objecting party cannot testify as to any opinion or data required to be, but not, listed in the valuation statement unless the testimony is merely an explanation or elaboration of data so listed [Code Civ. Proc. § 1258.280]. This limitation applies only to the calling of a witness, or the presentation of testimony during the case in chief of the party calling the witness or presenting the testimony. Thus, a party is not precluded from calling a witness in rebuttal or having a witness give rebuttal testimony that is otherwise proper [Cal. L. Rev. Comm'n Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 1258.280].

The court may permit a party to call a witness or permit a witness to testify to an opinion or data on direct examination during a party's case in chief although the witness, opinion, or data was required to be but was not included in the party's list of expert witnesses or statements of valuation data. This permission may be granted only if the court finds that (1) the party made a good-faith effort to comply with the statutory requirements of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1258.210-1258.260, (2) the party complied with Code Civ. Proc. § 1258.270 (additional witnesses and data), and (3) by the date of exchange the party (a) would not have decided to call the witness or have discovered or listed the opinion or data in the exercise of reasonable diligence, or (b) failed to decide to call the witness or to discover or list the opinion or data through mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 1258.290(a)]. The court may impose terms as may be just, such as continuing the trial for a reasonable period of time and awarding costs and litigation expenses [Code Civ. Proc. § 1258.290(b)]. The court should take into account the extent to which the opposing party has relied on the list of expert witnesses and statements of valuation data and will be prejudiced if the witness is called or the testimony of the opinion or data is given [Code Civ. Proc. § 1258.290(b); Padre Dam Municipal Water Dist. v. Burkhardt (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 988, 994-995, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 506] .

§ 247.104 Early Resolution of Legal Issues Affecting Valuation

If there is a dispute between the plaintiff and defendant over an evidentiary or other legal issue affecting the determination of compensation, either party may move the court for a ruling on the issue. The motion must be made not later than 60 days before commencement of trial on the compensation issue. It must be heard by the assigned trial judge. If necessitated by the court's ruling on the motion, the court may postpone the date for the parties' final offer and demand, and the date of trial for a period that is sufficient to enable the parties to engage in further proceedings before trial [Code Civ. Proc. § 1260.040].

Use of this procedure is limited to resolution of legal issues that may affect compensation, such as what constitutes the larger parcel, or the probability of a zoning change; it may not be used to ascertain just compensation. The procedure does not preclude the use of other procedures that may be utilized for the same purpose, including bifurcation of issues and control of the order of proof pursuant to statute, or other pretrial procedures pursuant to court rule [Cal. L. Rev. Comm'n Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 1260.040].

In Dina v. People ex rel. Dept. of Transportation (2007) 151 Cal. App. 4th 1029, 60 Cal. Rptr. 3d 559 , an inverse condemnation action, the court of appeal held that the trial court may determine the legal issue of liability pursuant to the motion procedure set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 1260.040 [Dina v. People ex rel. Dept. of Transportation (2007) 151 Cal. App. 4th 1029, 1043, 60 Cal. Rptr. 3d 559] . The court construed Code Civ. Proc. § 1260.040 as authorizing the Department of Transportation to move for a ruling on liability in that case because it was a legal issue affecting the determination of compensation. The court reasoned that construing Section 1260.040 broadly to permit the court to determine the legal issue of liability in an inverse condemnation action comported with the purpose of the bill in which Section 1260.040 was enacted [Stats. 2001, ch. 248, § 9] to "facilitate resolution of condemnation cases without trial" [Dina v. People ex rel. Dept. of Transportation (2007) 151 Cal. App. 4th 1029, 1043, 60 Cal. App. 3d 559] .

§ 247.105 Alternative Dispute Resolution Encouraged

The parties have the option to seek to resolve any dispute related to an eminent domain proceeding by agreeing to any of the following forms of alternative dispute resolution (ADR) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1250.420]:

- Mediation using any mediation technique [see Cal. L. Rev. Comm'n Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 1250.420];

- Binding arbitration pursuant to the statutory provisions governing arbitration of compensation in acquisitions of property for public use [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1273.010 et seq.; see also § 247.148]; or

- Nonbinding arbitration.

If the parties agree to nonbinding arbitration, the arbitrator's decision will be final unless, within 30 days after the decision has been served, a party files a motion for trial. If the ensuing judgment is not more favorable to the moving party, the court must order that party to pay to the other parties the following nonrefundable costs and fees, unless the court makes a written finding that imposing costs and fees would create a substantial economic hardship to the extent that the imposition would not be in the interest of justice [Code Civ. Proc. § 1250.420(c)(1)-(3)]:

- All costs specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 1033.5 incurred from the time the moving party elected to go to trial;

- The reasonable costs of the services of expert witnesses who are not regular employees of any party, incurred from the time the moving party elected to go to trial; and

- The arbitrator's costs.

If the parties agree to pursue a form of ADR, either party may move the court to postpone the date of trial for a period that appears to be adequate to resolve the dispute by ADR. The court should grant the motion if [Code Civ. Proc. § 1250.430(a)-(c)]:

- The parties are actively engaged in ADR;
- The parties appear to be making progress toward resolving the dispute without need for trial; and
- The parties agree that additional time is desirable for purposes of ADR.

§ 247.106 Settlement Offers

[1] Final Offer and Demand

At least 20 days before the date of trial, the plaintiff must file with the court and serve on the defendant its final offer of compensation in the proceeding and the defendant must file and serve on the plaintiff his or her final demand for compensation. The offer and demand must include all compensation in the proceeding, including any compensation for loss of goodwill, and must state whether interest and costs are included. This offer and demand will be the only ones considered by the court in determining any entitlement to litigation expenses. The offer and demand must be served in the manner prescribed by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1010-1020 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1250.410(a); see §§ 247.306 (plaintiff's final offer), 247.307 (defendant's final demand)]. The demand is timely made if it is made more than 30 days before the actual date of trial, not before the original trial date [Community Redevelopment Agency v. Matkin (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 1087, 1094-1097, 272 Cal. Rptr. 1] .

The term "compensation" means compensation for the property taken, severance damage, and any other consequential damage, but does not include ordinary costs or interest on the award for prejudgment possession by the condemnor [Coachella Valley County Water Dist. v. Dreyfuss (1979) 91 Cal. App. 3d 949, 953-954, 154 Cal. Rptr. 467 ; see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1268.310, 1268.710].

To encourage settlement, the "final offer" is not limited to an offer made in the final pretrial and settlement conference order, but is the last written offer made at least 30 days before trial even if an earlier offer was labeled the final offer or demand [Los Angeles Unified Sch. Dist. v. C.F. Bolster Co. (1978) 81 Cal. App. 3d 906, 912, 146 Cal. Rptr. 789 (decided under former law comparable to Code Civ. Proc. § 1250.410)].

A final demand made without time limitation and being unrevised, unrevoked, and not superseded by any other final demand is subject to acceptance at any time before commencement of trial [San Diego Gas & Electric Co. v. Moreland Investment Co. (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 1151, 1156-1157, 231 Cal. Rptr. 274] .

[2] Unreasonable Offer by Plaintiff

If the court, on motion of the defendant made within 30 days after entry of judgment, finds that the plaintiff's offer was unreasonable and that defendant's demand was reasonable viewed in the light of the evidence admitted and the compensation awarded in the proceeding, the costs allowed pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1268.710 must include the defendant's litigation expenses [Code Civ. Proc. § 1250.410(b); see People ex rel. Dept. of Transportation v. Societa Di Unione E Beneficenza Italiana (1978) 87 Cal. App. 3d 14, 23, 150 Cal. Rptr. 706 (reasonableness depending on good faith, care, and accuracy in determining amounts of offer and demand, and on monetary amounts or percentage of difference)]. The 30-day period to file the motion to include litigation expenses begins on entry of judgment, not on the date notice of entry of judgment is mailed or served. A court may grant relief for late filing, however, if there is substantial compliance with the 30-day requirement and the opposing party is not prejudiced [Poway Unified School Dist. v. Chow (1995) 39 Cal. App. 4th 1478, 1483-1485, 46 Cal. Rptr. 2d 651] .

Litigation expenses are the party's reasonable attorneys' fees and costs, including reasonable expert witness and appraiser fees [Code Civ. Proc. § 1250.410(e)]. In determining the amount of litigation expenses, the court must consider all of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 1250.410(c); see, e.g., §§ 247.325 (notice of motion), 247.326 (supporting declaration)]:

- The offer required to be made before adopting the resolution of necessity [see Gov. Code § 7267.2];
- Any deposit made by the plaintiff; and
- Any other written offers and demands filed and served before or during trial.

A formal, timely demand for compensation is a prerequisite to recovery of litigation expenses unless the parties stipulate to a less formal communication or waive the 30-day period [City of San Leandro v. Highsmith (1981) 123 Cal. App. 3d 146, 153-155, 176 Cal. Rptr. 412] .

§ 247.107 Deposit of Probable Compensation

[1] In General

At any time before entry of judgment, the plaintiff may deposit with the State Treasury the probable amount of compensation that will be awarded in the proceeding, based on an appraisal [Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.010(a)]. The deposit may be made whether or not the plaintiff applies for an order for possession or intends to do so [Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.010(a); see also § 247.110]. When there are several properties joined in the proceeding, the plaintiff may make a deposit as to any of the properties, but need not make a deposit as to all of them [Cal. L. Rev. Comm'n Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.010].

By making a deposit, the plaintiff does not waive his or her right to appeal from the judgment, move to abandon, or request a new trial [Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.080].

On entry of judgment, a deposit of probable compensation is deemed to be a deposit made pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1268.110 (postjudgment deposit of award) [Cal. L. Rev. Comm'n Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.010].

[2] Prerequisites to Making Deposit

Before making the deposit, the plaintiff must have an expert qualified to express an opinion as to the value of the property (1) make an appraisal of the property, and (2) prepare a written statement of, or summary of the basis for, the appraisal [Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.010(b)]. The statement or summary must be sufficiently detailed to indicate clearly the basis for the appraisal, including, but not limited to, the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.010(b)(2)(A)-(C)]:

- The highest and best use on which the appraisal is based;
- If the appraisal is based on market data, the principal transactions supporting the appraisal; and
- If the appraisal includes compensation for damages to the remainder, the compensation for the property and for damages to the remainder separately stated, and the calculations and a narrative explanation supporting the compensation, including any offsetting benefits.

The last requirement that the statement or summary include details relating to damages to the remainder applies equally in a situation when no compensation for damages to the remainder is provided due to a complete offset by benefits to the remainder. The expert may be either a member of the condemnor's appraisal staff or an independent appraiser [Cal. L. Rev. Comm'n Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.010].

On noticed motion, or on ex parte application in an emergency, a court may permit the plaintiff to make a deposit without prior compliance with the expert appraisal requirement if the plaintiff presents facts by affidavit showing that (1) good cause exists for permitting an immediate deposit to be made, (2) an adequate appraisal has not been completed and cannot reasonably be prepared before making the deposit, and (3) the amount of the deposit to be made is not less than the probable amount of compensation that the plaintiff, in good faith, estimates will be awarded in the proceeding. In its order, the court must require the plaintiff to comply with the appraisal requirements within a reasonable time, to be specified in the order, and also must require that any additional amount of compensation shown by the appraisal be deposited within that time [Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.010(c)].

[3] Notice of Deposit

The notice of deposit must state that a deposit has been made and the date and the amount of deposit. The plaintiff must serve a notice of deposit on all parties who have appeared in the proceedings and file with the court a proof of service together with the notice of deposit. The notice of deposit must also be served on all parties who appear thereafter on their appearance [Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.020(a); see § 247.300 (form of notice)]. Service must be made in the manner provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.450 for service of an order for possession [Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.020(a); see § 247.113[2][b]].

The notice of deposit must be accompanied by the written statement or summary of the basis for the appraisal [see § 247.107[2]]. However, if the plaintiff obtained a court order deferring completion of the written statement or summary, the plaintiff must include with the notice of deposit a copy of all affidavits on which the order was based, and on completion of the written statement or summary, must serve the statement or summary on all the parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.020(c)].

[4] Redetermination of Amount of Deposit

At any time after a deposit has been made, the court, on motion of the plaintiff or of any party having an interest in the property for which the deposit was made, must determine or redetermine whether the amount deposited is the probable amount of compensation that will be awarded in the proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.030(a)]. The motion must be supported with detail that is sufficient to indicate clearly the basis for the motion, including, but not limited to, the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.030(a)(1)-(3)]:

- The date of valuation, highest and best use, and applicable zoning of the property;

- The principal transactions, reproduction or replacement cost analysis, or capitalization analysis, supporting the motion; and

- The compensation for the property and for damages to the remainder separately stated, and the calculations and a narrative explanation supporting the compensation, including any offsetting benefits.

From the property owner's point of view, however, making a motion for an increase in the amount of the deposit is not usually worth the time and expense of the hearing unless the property owner has an urgent need for additional funds and it can be demonstrated that the deposit is grossly inadequate [see California Real Estate Law & Practice, Ch. 505, Prejudgment Possession, § 505.03 (Matthew Bender)].

The plaintiff, at any time, may increase the amount deposited without making a motion to do so. In such a case, notice of the increase must be served as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.020(a) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.030(f); see § 247.163[2]].

If the plaintiff has not taken possession of the property and the court determines that the probable amount of compensation exceeds the amount deposited, the court may order the plaintiff to increase the deposit or may deny the plaintiff possession of the property until the amount deposited has been increased to the amount specified in the order [Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.030(b)].

If the plaintiff has taken possession of the property and the court determines that the probable amount of compensation exceeds the amount deposited, the court must order the amount deposited to be increased to the amount determined to be the probable amount. If the deposit is not increased within 30 days from the date of the court's order, or a longer time as the court may have allowed at the time it made the order, the defendant may serve on the plaintiff a notice of election to treat such failure as an abandonment of the proceeding. If the plaintiff does not cure its failure within 10 days after receipt of the notice, the court, on the defendant's motion, must enter judgment dismissing the proceeding and awarding the defendant litigation expenses and damages as provided in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1268.610 and 1268.620 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.030(c); for further discussion of abandonment, see § 247.101].

A trial court has jurisdiction under Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.030 to order an increase in deposit after the filing of a notice of appeal. The phrase "at any time" as used in the statute is not limited to "any time before judgment." In addition, the trial court must require an increase in deposit when a plaintiff who has obtained prejudgment possession appeals a judgment in excess of its deposit of probable compensation. However, the trial court must provide the plaintiff with an opportunity to request a period longer than 30 days to increase the deposit [Whittier Redevelopment Agency v. Oceanic Arts (1995) 33 Cal. App. 4th 1052, 1058-1060, 39 Cal. Rptr. 2d 396] .

The Whittier court agreed with the result but not the reasoning of People ex rel. Dept. of Transportation v. Zivelonghi (1986) 181 Cal. App. 3d 1035, 1045-1046, 226 Cal. Rptr. 748 , which held that Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.030 only applies to deposits for purposes of acquiring and retaining possession before judgment is entered, but that the trial court may require an increase in deposit on appeal pursuant to its inherent powers [Whittier Redevelopment Agency v. Oceanic Arts (1995) 33 Cal. App. 4th 1052, 1058, 39 Cal. Rptr. 2d 396] . The Zivelonghi court also held that the deposit may not include a probable award of litigation expenses [People ex rel. Dept. of Transportation v. Zivelonghi (1986) 181 Cal. App. 3d 1035, 1044-1046, 226 Cal. Rptr. 748] .

If the defendant has withdrawn any amount of the deposit, the court may not determine or redetermine the probable amount of compensation to be less than the total amount already withdrawn although it may determine that the probable compensation is greater than the amount withdrawn [Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.030(d)]. After final determination of the amounts to be awarded in the proceeding, any excessive withdrawal may be recovered [Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.280].

If the court determines that the amount deposited is greater than the probable amount of compensation, it may permit the plaintiff to withdraw the excess not already withdrawn by the defendant [Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.030(e)].

§ 247.108 Deposit Required on Demand of Homeowner

[1] In General

When the plaintiff has not made a prejudgment deposit and the property to be taken includes a dwelling containing not more than two residential units and the dwelling or one of its units is occupied by the defendant as his or her residence, that defendant may serve notice on the plaintiff requiring a deposit of the probable amount of compensation that will be awarded in the proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.040(a); see § 247.301]. The notice must be served as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.020(a) [see § 247.163[1]] and must specify a date (not earlier than 30 days after the date the notice is served) by which the defendant wants the deposit to be made [Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.040(a), (f)]. Service of the notice constitutes a waiver by operation of law, conditioned on the plaintiff's subsequent deposit, of all claims and defenses in favor of the defendant except his or her claim for greater compensation [Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.040(e)]. The notice may not be served after entry of judgment, unless the judgment is reversed, vacated, or set aside and no other judgment has been entered at the time the notice is served [Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.040(g)].

The defendant may withdraw the deposit as provided in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1255.210-1255.280 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.040(f); see §§ 247.302 -247.305; for a discussion of recovery of interest on the deposit, see § 247.171[3]].

[2] Order for Possession

If the plaintiff deposits the probable amount of compensation, pursuant to a homeowner's demand, on or before the date specified by the defendant, the plaintiff may obtain an order for possession authorizing the plaintiff to take possession of the property 30 days after the deposit date specified by the defendant or any later date that the plaintiff may request [Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.040(b); see §§ 247.308, 247.308A, 247.309].

In lieu of depositing the money with the State Treasury as provided in *Code Civ. Money deposited in the State Treasury must be held, invested, deposited, and disbursed in the manner specified in Gov. Code § 16429, and interest earned or other increment derived from its investment must be apportioned and disbursed in the manner specified by that code section. As between the parties to the proceeding, money deposited remains at the risk of the plaintiff until paid or made payable to the defendant by order of the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.070].

§ 247.111 Motion to Invest

[1] In General

Before entry of judgment, a defendant who has an interest in the property for which a deposit has been made, on notice to the other parties to theproceeding, may move the court to have all of the deposit invested for the benefit of the defendants [Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.075(a)]. At the hearing on the motion, the court must consider the interest of the parties and the effect that investment would have on them, including whether any of the parties would be prejudiced by the investment. A factor that might be taken into consideration is the interest of a defendant who has a bona fide objection to the right to take that would be waived under Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.260 (withdrawal of deposit waives most claims and defenses) [Cal. L. Rev. Comm'n Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.075].

If the court, in its discretion, finds that the interests of justice will be served, it may grant the motion, subject to appropriate terms and conditions [Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.075(b)]. In making an order for investment, the court should consider the length of commitment of investment or provision for withdrawal by individual defendants from the lump-sum investment when necessary for relocation. Similarly, the court may impose the risk of loss on the defendant requesting the investment in an appropriate case [Cal. L. Rev. Comm'n Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.070].

The court must specify the method of investment, and it must be limited to United States government obligations or interest-bearing accounts in an institution whose accounts are insured by an agency of the federal government [Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.075(c)]. However, the lump sum may be invested in an amount greater than is insured by an agency of the federal government if the institution in which it is invested carries such insured accounts [Cal. L. Rev. Comm'n Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.075].

The investment of the deposit has the same consequences as if the deposit has been withdrawn under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1255.010-1255.480 [see § 247.112], including waiver of defenses, subjection to possession by the condemnor, and cessation of the condemnor's liability for interest [Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.075(d); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1255.260, 1268.320, respectively].

[2] Evidence

The amount deposited or withdrawn may not be given in evidence or referred to in the trial on the issue of compensation [Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.060(a)].

At trial, an appraisal report, written statement and summary of an appraisal, or other statement made in connection with a deposit or withdrawal may not be considered to be an admission of any party [Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.060(b)]. The person who made the report, written statement and summary, or other statement may not be called by any other party to give an opinion as to compensation at the trial on that issue over the objection of the party at whose request the report or statement was made. If the person who prepared the report or statement is called as a witness to give an opinion as to compensation, the report, statement and summary, or other statement may be used for impeachment purposes [Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.060(c)].

§ 247.112 Withdrawal of Deposit of Probable Compensation

[1] Application for Withdrawal

Before entry of judgment, any defendant may apply to the court for the withdrawal of all or any portion of the amount deposited by plaintiff [Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.210; see § 247.302]. After entry of judgment, deposits may be withdrawn pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1268.140 [see §§ 247.163[5], 247.317]. Unless objections to the withdrawal are made [see § 247.112[2]], the court must order the amount requested in the application, or the portion of that amount to which the applicant is entitled paid to the applicant [Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.220]. No withdrawal may be ordered until 20 days have elapsed from the date the application was served on plaintiff or such longer time as may be required for the expiration of all objections [Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.230(a)].

[2] Objections to Withdrawal

[a] Grounds for Withdrawal, Generally

Within 20 days after an application was served on it, plaintiff may file objections to the withdrawal on any one or more of the following grounds [Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.230(b); see § 247.304]:

- Other parties to the proceeding are known or believed to have interests in the property;
- An undertaking should be filed by the applicant as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.240 or 1255.250 [see § 247.112[3], [4]]; or
- The amount of the undertaking filed by the applicant or his or her sureties is insufficient.

If any party objects to the withdrawal, or if the plaintiff so requests, the court must determine, after a hearing, the amounts to be withdrawn, if any, and by whom [Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.230(d)].

[b] Objection on Ground of Other Interested Parties

If an objection is filed on the ground that other parties are known to or believed to have interests in the property, the plaintiff must serve or attempt to serve on the other parties a notice that they may appear within 10 days after service and object to the withdrawal. The notice must advise those parties that their failure to object will result in a waiver of any rights against the plaintiff to the extent of the amount withdrawn and it must be served in the manner provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.450 for service of an order for possession [Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.230(c); see § 247.303].

The plaintiff must also file, and serve on the applicant, a report setting forth (1) the names of the parties on whom the notice was served and the dates of service, and (2) the names and last known addresses of the other parties who are known or believed to have interests in the property but who were not so served [Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.230(c)].

The applicant may serve any parties whom the plaintiff is unable to serve [Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.230(c)].

[c] Effect of Service

Parties served in the manner provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.450 have no claim against the plaintiff for compensation to the extent of the amount withdrawn by all applicants. However, plaintiff remains liable to parties having an interest of record who were not served, but, if such liability is enforced, the plaintiff is subrogated to the rights of the parties under Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.280 (excess amount withdrawn) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.230(c)].

[3] Security When Conflicting Claims

If the court determines that an applicant is entitled to withdraw any portion of a deposit that another party claims or to which another person may be entitled, the court may require the applicant to file an undertaking before withdrawing such portion. The undertaking must secure payment to the party or person of any amount withdrawn that exceeds the amount to which the applicant is entitled as finally determined in the proceeding, together with interest as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.280. If withdrawal is permitted, notwithstanding the lack of personal service of the application for withdrawal on any party to the proceeding, the court may also require that the undertaking indemnify the plaintiff against any liability it may incur under Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.230. The undertaking must be in the amount fixed by the court, but if it is executed by an admitted surety insurer, this amount should not exceed the portion claimed by the adverse claimant or appearing to belong to another person. If the undertaking is executed by two or more sufficient sureties, the amount must not exceed double such portion [Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.240(a)].

The undertaking must be executed by two or more sufficient personal sureties, by one admitted surety insurer, or by any combination of sufficient personal sureties and admitted surety insurers [see Code Civ. Proc. § 995.310]. For further discussion of bonds and undertakings and related forms, see Ch. 538, Suretyship, Bonds, and Undertakings .

If the undertaking is required primarily because of an issue as to title between the applicant and another party or person, the applicant filing the undertaking is not entitled to recover the premium reasonably paid for the undertaking as a part of the recoverable costs in the eminent domain proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.240(b); see Code Civ. Proc. § 995.250].

[4] Security When Amount Withdrawn Exceeds Original Deposit

If the amount originally deposited is increased pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.030 and the total amount sought to be withdrawn exceeds the amount of the original deposit, the applicant, or each applicant if there are two or more, must file an undertaking. The undertaking must be in the plaintiff's favor and must secure repayment of any amount withdrawn that exceeds the amount to which the applicant is entitled as finally determined in the eminent domain proceeding, together with interest as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.280 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.250(a)].

If executed by an admitted surety insurer, the undertaking must be in the amount by which the total amount to be withdrawn exceeds the amount originally deposited. If the undertaking is executed by two or more sufficient sureties, the undertaking must be in double that amount, but the maximum amount that may be recovered from the sureties is the amount by which the total amount to be withdrawn exceeds the amount originally deposited [Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.250(a)].

The undertaking must be executed by two or more sufficient personal sureties, by one admitted surety insurer, or by any combination of sufficient personal sureties and admitted surety insurers [see Code Civ. Proc. § 995.310]. For further discussion of bonds and undertakings and related forms, see Ch. 538, Suretyship, Bonds, and Undertakings .

If there are two or more applicants, the applicants, instead of filing separate undertakings, may jointly file a single undertaking [Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.250(b)].

The applicant filing the undertaking may recover the premium reasonably paid for the undertaking [see Code Civ. Proc. § 995.250]. The plaintiff may waive the undertaking or may, in writing, consent to an undertaking in an amount less than the amount required by Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.250(a) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 995.230].

[5] Effect of Withdrawal

The receipt of any money withdrawn pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1255.010-1255.480 constitutes a waiver by operation of law of all claims and defenses in favor of the persons receiving the payment, except a claim for greater compensation [Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.260].

In addition to the defendant's waiver of claims and defenses other than the claim to greater compensation, withdrawal of the deposit also entitles the plaintiff to an order for possession [Cal. L. Rev. Comm'n Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.260; see People ex rel. Dep't of Public Works v. Gutierrez (1962) 207 Cal. App. 2d 759, 764, 24 Cal. Rptr. 781] .

Any amount withdrawn is credited on the judgment in the eminent domain proceeding [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1268.010].

[6] Liability for Excess Payment

Any amount withdrawn in excess of the amount to which the party is entitled as finally determined in the eminent domain proceeding must be paid to the parties entitled to it, and the court will enter judgment accordingly [Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.280(a)].

The judgment will not include interest except in the following cases: (1) if the amount is to be paid to another defendant, the judgment will include interest from the date it was withdrawn by the defendant; (2) if the amount originally deposited by the plaintiff was increased pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.030 on motion of the party obligated to repay, the judgment will include interest from the date of withdrawal of any amount that is attributable to the increase and that is to be repaid to the plaintiff [Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.280(b)].

If the judgment is not paid within 30 days after its entry, the court, on motion, may enter judgment against the sureties, if any, for the amount of the judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.280(c)].

The court, in its discretion and with such security as it deems appropriate, may grant a party obligated to repay an excess payment a stay of execution for any amount to be paid to a plaintiff [Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.280(d)]. Appropriate security may be simply recordation of an abstract of judgment [Cal. L. Rev. Comm'n Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.280]. The stay cannot be for longer than one year following entry of judgment for repayment of an excess withdrawal [Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.280(d)]. The stay is available only as against amounts to be repaid to a plaintiff. Moreover, because execution has been stayed, interest will accrue during the period of the stay regardless of the means by which the excess was obtained [Cal. L. Rev. Comm'n Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.280; see Bellflower City School Dist. v. Skaggs (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 278, 282, 339 P.2d 848] .

§ 247.113 Possession Before Judgment

[1] Motion for Order

[a] Contents of Motion

When the complaint has been filed, or any time thereafter, and before entry of judgment, the plaintiff may move the court for an order for possession, demonstrating that (1) it is entitled to take the property by eminent domain, and (2) it has made a deposit of probable compensation [Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.410(a); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.010 et seq.; see also § 247.308 (notice of motion form)].

[b] Service of Motion and Hearing Date

The plaintiff must serve a copy of the motion on the record owner of the property as well as on any occupants. If the property is unoccupied, the hearing may be held not less than 60 days after service on the record owner. If the property is lawfully occupied by a person living there, or by a farm or business operation, the hearing may be held not less than 90 days after service [Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.410(b)].

[c] Procedure When Notice Is Opposed

Any defendant or occupant who opposes the motion must serve written opposition on the plaintiff and file the opposition with the court within 30 days after the plaintiff's motion was served [Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.410(c); see § 247.308A (form of opposition to motion)]. If the written opposition asserts a hardship, it must be supported by a declaration signed under penalty of perjury stating facts supporting the hardship [Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.410(c)].

Once the hearing has been held and after considering the relevant facts and the opposition, the court may make an order for possession only if it finds that [Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.410(d)(2)]:

- The plaintiff is entitled to take the property by eminent domain;

- The plaintiff has deposited an amount with the court that meets the statutory just compensation requirements [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.010 et seq.];

- There is an overriding need for the plaintiff to possess the property before final judgment is issued, and the plaintiff will suffer a substantial hardship if the motion is denied; and

- The hardship to the plaintiff if possession is denied outweighs the hardship to the defendant or occupant if possession is granted.

[d] Procedure When Notice Is Unopposed

If no opposition to the plaintiff's motion for possession is filed within 30 days after service on each defendant and occupant, the court will issue an order of possession if it finds that [Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.410(d)(1)]:

- The plaintiff is entitled to take the property by eminent domain; and

- The plaintiff has deposited an amount with the court that meets the statutory just compensation requirements [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.010 et seq.].

[2] Order of Possession

[a] Contents of Order

The court's order of possession must [Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.460; see § 247.309 (sample order)]:

- Recite that it has been made under Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.460;

- Describe the property to be acquired, which may be by reference to the description in the complaint; and

- State the date after which the plaintiff is authorized to take possession.

[b] Service of Order

A copy of the order for possession must be served on the record owner of the property and on any occupants [Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.450(b)]. The "record owner" is the owner of the legal or equitable title to the fee or any lesser interest in property as shown by recorded deeds or other recorded instruments [Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.450(a)].

If the property is lawfully occupied by a person dwelling on it or by a farm or business operation, service must be made not less than 30 days before the time possession is to be taken. In all other cases, service must be made not less than 10 days before the time of taking possession. Service may be made with or following service of summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.450(b)]. However, when the record owner cannot be located, the court may, for good cause shown on ex parte application, authorize the plaintiff to take possession of unoccupied property without serving a copy of the order for possession on the record owner [Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.450(e)].

Service of the order for possession must be made by personal service except that [Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.450(d)]:

- If the person to be served has previously appeared or been served with summons in the proceeding, the order may be served on that person and his or her attorney of record, if any, by mail; or

- If the person to be served resides out of the state, or has departed from the state, or cannot with due diligence be found within the state, the order may be served by registered or certified mail addressed to the person at his or her last known address.

A single service on, or mailing to, one of several persons having a common business or residence address is sufficient [Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.450(f)]. In this context, "address" refers to a single residential unit or place of business rather than to several such units or places that may happen to have the same street or post office address. For example, each apartment is regarded as having a separate address although the entire apartment house may have a single street address [Assembly Legislative Committee Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.450].

[c] Vacating Order

If an order for possession before judgment has been made under Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.410 and the court subsequently determines that the statutory conditions for issuance of the order have not been satisfied, the court must vacate the order [Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.440].

[3] Ex Parte Application by Utility for Emergency Order of Possession

A court may issue an order of possession on the ex parte application by a water, wastewater, gas, electric, or telephone utility if the court finds that [Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.410(e)(1)]:

- An emergency exists and as a consequence the utility has an urgent need for possession of the property; and

- An emergency order of possession will not displace or unreasonably affect any person in actual and lawful possession of the property to be taken or the larger parcel of which it is a part.

The requisite urgent need includes, but is not limited to, a need to protect public health and safety, or a need affecting reliability of the utility's service [Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.410(e)(1)].

Any defendant or occupant of the property may move for relief from an emergency order of possession within 30 days after the order was served. The court may then modify, stay, or vacate the order after considering the relevant facts, any objections raised, and on completion of any requested hearing [Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.410(e)(2)].

[4] Effects of Order for Possession

The most important effect of an order for possession before judgment is that it entitles the plaintiff to take possession of the property on a specified date [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.410]. However, the compensation awarded in the proceeding begins to draw interest from the date after which the plaintiff is authorized to take possession of the property as stated in the order for possession [Code Civ. Proc. § 1268.310(c); see People ex rel. DOT v. Southern California Edison Co. (2000) 22 Cal. 4th 791, 94 Cal. Rptr. 2d 609, 996 P.2d 711] . When theplaintiff obtains an order of possession but the deposit of probable compensation is less than the final judgment, the plaintiff is liable for market rate interest on the difference [Redevelopment Agency v. Gilmore (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 790, 798-802, 214 Cal. Rptr. 904, 700 P.2d 794 ; for discussion of the constitutional basis and definition of market rate interest, see § 247.171[2]; for discussion of offsets against interest, see § 247.171[5]].

By taking possession of the property, the plaintiff does not waive the right to appeal from the judgment, the right to move to abandon, or the right to request a new trial [Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.470].

[5] Enforcement of Order

The court has the power to enforce an order for possession by appropriate process and the plaintiff is entitled to such enforcement as a matter of right [Code Civ. Proc. § 1230.050; see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1255.410-1255.480 (orders for possession before judgment)].

§ 247.130 Constitutional Requirement of Just Compensation

Both the United States and California Constitutions require the payment of just compensation for a taking of private property for public use [U.S. Const., Amend. V; Cal. Const., art. I, § 19; see U.S. Const., Amend. XIV (prohibition against state's deprivation of property without due process of law)], and the Eminent Domain Law provides that the owner of property acquired by eminent domain is entitled to compensation under the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1263.010-1263.770 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.010(a)].

The Eminent Domain Law provisions do not affect any rights the owner of property acquired by eminent domain may have under any other statute [Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.010(b); see, e.g., Gov. Code § 7260 et seq. (relocation assistance)], and they do not limit any compensation that may be required by Cal. Const., art. I, § 19 (" just compensation" clause). Conversely, the " just compensation" clause of the state constitution does not limit the compensation required by the Eminent Domain Law. Compensation under the law of inverse condemnation is determined by judicial development and not by these statutes [Cal. L. Rev. Comm'n Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.010].

The California Constitution requires that compensation be paid before the taking; therefore, an injunction that is in effect a temporary transfer of personal property to a city is improper [Griswold v. City of Needles (1992) 6 Cal. App. 4th 1881, 1891-1896, 8 Cal. Rptr. 2d 753] .

§ 247.131 Purpose of Just Compensation

The purpose of just compensation is to reimburse the owner for the property interest taken and to place the owner in as good a position pecuniarily as if the property had not been taken. Consequently, it is measured by what the owner has lost, rather than what the condemnor has gained [*People ex rel. Dept. of Transportation v. Southern Pac. Transportation Co. (1978) 84 Cal. § 247.132 Prohibition Against Double Recovery

When two or more statutes provide compensation for the same loss, the person entitled to compensation may be paid only once for that loss [Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.010(b)]. Thus, a person who suffers a business loss is not entitled to compensation for the loss under both Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.510 (loss of goodwill) and Gov. Code § 7262(c) (relocation or in lieu payment). The prohibition against double recovery does not limit compensation under different statutes for separate and distinct losses such as the fair market value of property taken, injury to the remainder, moving expenses, and court costs [Cal. L. Rev. Comm'n Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.010].

§ 247.133 Accrual of Right to Compensation

The right to compensation generally accrues at the date of filing the complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.020]. However, exceptions to this rule have been created by case law.

A person whose lease expires after the commencement of the action but before the trial of the proceeding and whose possession during the term of the lease is not disturbed is not entitled to participate in a condemnation award [People ex rel. Dep't of Public Works v. Hartley (1963) 214 Cal. App. 2d 378, 379-380, 29 Cal. Rptr. 502 (holding that tenant did not suffer any loss due to eminent domain proceedings since he enjoyed full term of lease without disturbance from condemnor)]. However, if the condemnor takes possession of the property before trial, the fact that a lease expires beforethe judgment is entered does not affect the tenant's right to compensation for the taking of the leasehold interest [People ex rel. Dept. of Water Resources v. Gianni (1972) 29 Cal. App. 3d 151, 155-156, 105 Cal. Rptr. 248] .

A right to compensation may accrue even though an eminent domain proceeding is never filed, such as in the situation when a condemnor acquires property by negotiation and terminates a lease [Concrete Serv. Co. v. California ex rel. Dep't of Public Works (1969) 274 Cal. App. 2d 142, 148-149, 78 Cal. Rptr. 923 ; see Redevelopment Agency v. Diamond Properties (1969) 271 Cal. App. 2d 315, 319-320, 76 Cal. Rptr. 269 (tenant originally occupying property under lease permitting tenant to remove trade fixtures at end of lease but after expiration of lease was occupying premises under month-to-month tenancy when summons was issued as condemnee with respect to trade fixtures)].

§ 247.134 Date of Valuation

[1] In General

The date of valuation is (1) the date of deposit of probable compensation [Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.110]; (2) the date of commencement of the proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.120]; or (3) the commencement of the trial [Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.130; see CACI Nos. 3501, 3502, 3505 (California Judicial Council jury instructions on "fair market value," "highest and best use," and "date of valuation," respectively)].

[2] Determined by Deposit

Unless an earlier date of valuation applies, the date of valuation is the date on which the plaintiff deposited with the court the amount of probable compensation or the amount of the award [Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.110(a); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1255.010-1255.080, 1268.110-1268.170]. However, if the plaintiff fails to deposit an additional amount of probable compensation within the time period allowed when the court determines an increase is necessary, no deposit is deemed to have been made for the purpose of determining the date of valuation [Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.110(b); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.030].

Consequently, the plaintiff may establish a date of valuation no later than the date it makes an adequate deposit. Although the date of valuation may be earlier than the date of deposit or an earlier date of valuation may be shifted to the date of deposit [see § 247.134[3] -[5]], a valuation date established by a deposit cannot be shifted to a later date [Assembly Legislative Committee Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.110].

When a deposit of probable compensation is made in a "quick take" proceeding, in which the condemnor applies for a prejudgment order for possession on a deposit of probable compensation for the owner [Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.410 et seq.], and the trial court determines that the deposit equals or exceeds the probable amount of the owner's just compensation, the property must be valued on the date of the deposit [Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.110; Mt. San Jacinto Comm. College Dist. v. Superior Court (2007) 40 Cal. 4th 648, 666, 54 Cal. Rptr. 3d 752, 151 P.3d 1166] . The waiver rule of Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.260 [see § 247.112[5]], which requires a condemnee to waive its statutory right to litigate the issue of the condemnor's right to take in the event the condemnee withdraws the deposited funds, does not deprive a condemnee of just compensation. As long as a probable compensation deposit based on such valuation remains available to the property owner for "prompt release," the imposition of a waiver of the right to challenge the validity of the taking if the owner elects to withdraw the deposit does not undermine the constitutionality of the statutory scheme nor the Legislature's chosen method of valuation [Mt. San Jacinto Comm. College Dist. v. Superior Court (2007) 40 Cal. 4th 648, 666, 54 Cal. Rptr. 3d 752, 151 P.3d 1166] .

The date of valuation is the date of deposit despite the lack of a judicial determination that the deposit was adequate. Once the agency has deposited its estimate of probable compensation and supported that estimate with expert appraisals and a written summary of the basis for the appraisal, it is not required to make any further motion seeking a determination that deposit was adequate [Redevelopment Agency of the City of San Diego v. Mesdaq (2007) 154 Cal. App. 4th 1111, 1124-1125, 65 Cal. Rptr. 3d 372] .

[3] Determined by Commencement of Proceedings

If the issue of compensation is brought to trial within one year after the proceeding is commenced, the date of valuation is the date of commencement of the proceeding, that is, the date the complaint is filed [Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.120; see Code Civ. Proc. § 1250.110].

[4] Determined by Commencement of Trial

Subject to Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.110 [see § 247.134[1]], if the issue of compensation is not brought to trial within one year after commencement of the proceeding, the date of valuation is the date of the commencement of trial [Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.130; see Evid. Code § 12(b) (trial is commenced when first witness is sworn or first exhibit is admitted into evidence)].

However, when the delay in bringing the issue of compensation to trial is caused by the defendant, the valuation date remains the date the proceeding commenced [Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.130], except when the delay is caused by the court in ruling on a defendant's motion [see Santa Maria v. Alco-Pacific Enterprises, Inc. (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 477, 481, 72 Cal. Rptr. 204 (change of venue)].

[5] When Mistrial Declared or New Trial Ordered

Subject to Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.110 [see § 247.134[1]], if a mistrial is declared, or a new trial is ordered by the trial or appellate court, and the retrial or new trial is not commenced within one year after the complaint is filed, the date of valuation is the date that the new trial or retrial is commenced, unless the court, declaring the mistrial or ordering the new trial, orders a different valuation date [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1263.140 (new trial), 1263.180 (mistrial)]. The plaintiff, however, may make a postjudgment deposit thus precluding a valuation date later than the date of the deposit [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.110].

[6] Stipulation

The parties may stipulate to a valuation date that is different than that provided by the Code of Civil Procedure [State of California ex rel. Dept. of Water Resources v. Clark (1973) 33 Cal. App. 3d 463, 468, 109 Cal. Rptr. 39] .

[7] Trial Court Discretion to Set Date of Valuation

A trial court has inherent power to set a valuation date other than the date specified by statute [Saratoga Fire Protection Dist. v. Hackett (2002) 97 Cal. App. 4th 895, 906, 118 Cal. Rptr. 2d 696] . The constitutional requirement of "just compensation" requires the payment of fair market value to the defendant in an eminent domain action [see § 247.135[1]]. Thus, when the parties agreed that the value of the property increased substantially between the date of valuation (the filing of the complaint, because the action came to trial within one year) and the date of trial, the trial court erred in excluding evidence as to the increase in the property's value [Saratoga Fire Protection Dist. v. Hackett (2002) 97 Cal. App. 4th 895, 905-906, 118 Cal. Rptr. 2d 696] .

In another case, the trial court did not err in changing the date of valuation from the date probable compensation was deposited [Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.110] to the date of trial [San Diego Metropolitan Transit Development Board v. RV Communities (2007) 158 Cal. App. 4th 313, 327, 69 Cal. Rptr. 3d 705]. The condemnor's own appraiser testified that the amount deposited should have been $300,300 rather than the $79,357 that was deposited. Thus, the change in valuation date did not contravene the statutory scheme because the amount deposited fell short of "probable compensation" [San Diego Metropolitan Transit Development Board v. RV Communities (2007) 158 Cal. App. 4th 313, 331-332, 69 Cal. Rptr. 3d 705]. Furthermore, the court properly changed the date of valuation to the date of trial to satisfy the constitutional requirement of just compensation. Because a landowner is permanently deprived of all rights in condemned property when the condemnor deposits probable compensation and obtains early possession of the property, a constitutional taking occurs at that time. A motion to increase the amount of the deposit pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.030 would not provide an adequate remedy. A delay in the payment of the correct amount of probable compensation after the condemnor obtains possession of condemned property in a rapidly inflating real estate market denies the condemnee the full equivalent of the property's value paid contemporaneously with the taking and, thus, the ability to invest the money paid in other property of equal value in the same market. A delayed increase of the deposit with no change in the date of valuation would not have satisfied the constitutional requirement of just compensation because the amount of the increased deposit would have been insufficient to buy comparable other property in the current market [San Diego Metropolitan Transit Development Board v. RV Communities (2007) 158 Cal. App. 4th 313, 332, 69 Cal. Rptr. 3d 705].

§ 247.135 Measure of Compensation

[1] Fair Market Value

The measure of the compensation to be awarded is the fair market value of the property taken [Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.310]. Fair market value is defined as the highest price on the date of valuation that would be agreed to by a seller who is willing to sell but under no necessity or obligation to do so and by a buyer who is ready, willing, and able to buy but under no particular necessity for doing so, each dealing with the other with full knowledge of all the uses and purposes for which the property is reasonably adaptable and available [Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.320(a); see Merced Irrigation Dist. v. Woolstenhulme (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 478, 488, 93 Cal. Rptr. 833, 483 P.2d 1 ; Sacramento S. R. Co. v. Heilbron (1909) 156 Cal. 408, 409, 104 P. 979 ; Evid. Code §§ 810-824 (evidence admissible to prove fair market value); see also CACI No. 3501 (California Judicial Council jury instruction on "fair market value")]. In determining the market value the evidence need not show the existence of an actual seller and buyer or an actual market, but instead may show potential sellers and buyers in a potential market [South Bay Irr. Dist. v. California-American Water Co. (1976) 61 Cal. App. 3d 944, 970 .

In determining the amount of compensation due a property owner, a jury must consider facts discovered between the date of valuation and the date of trial that tend to reduce the property's fair market value [San Diego County Water Authority v. Mireiter (1993) 18 Cal. App. 4th 1808, 23 Cal. Rptr. 2d 455] . In this case, the court held that Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.320, which defines "fair market value" as "the highest price on the date of valuation that would be agreed to by a seller ... and a buyer ... each dealing with the other with full knowledge of all uses and purposes for which the property is reasonably adaptable and available," necessarily implies that such information must be taken into account.

If there is no relevant, comparable market for property taken, such as in the case of special use properties including schools, churches, and cemeteries, the fair market value is its value on the date of valuation as determined by any just and equitable method of valuation [Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.320(b); see Evid. Code § 823; People ex rel. Dept. of Transportation v. Southern Pac. Transportation Co. (1978) 84 Cal. App. 3d 315, 325, 148 Cal. Rptr. 535 (rules for determining just compensation are procedural so that, if rigid application produces injustice, court is required to deviate from rule)].

Valuation evidence based on a use that is uniquely governmental, such as a detention facility, is not admissible; valuation must be based on the value of the property in the private marketplace [County of San Diego v. Rancho Vista Del Mar (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 1046, 1060-1065, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 675] . However, the value of underground aggregate could be considered in establishing the market value of property condemned for a flood control project. Unlike a prison, mining and use of aggregate are not uniquely governmental uses. The fact that the aggregate was extracted to provide a basin for the flood control project did not change its intrinsic value to the private sector for building material [Ventura County Flood Control Dist. v. Campbell (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 211, 221, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 725] .

[2] Nonprofit Special Use Property

A just and equitable method for determining the value of nonprofit special use property for which there is no relevant, comparable market is the cost of purchasing land and the reasonable cost of making it suitable for the conduct of the same nonprofit special use, together with the costs of constructing similar improvements [Evid. Code § 824(a)]. "Nonprofit special use property" is property that is operated for a special, nonprofit, tax-exempt use, such as a school, church, cemetery, hospital, or similar property but is not public utility property [Code Civ. Proc. § 1235.155].

A witness providing opinion testimony on the value of nonprofit special use property for which there is no relevant, comparable market must base his or her opinion on the value of reproducing the improvements without taking into consideration any depreciation or obsolescence of the improvements [Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.321; Evid. Code § 824(b)].

This method of valuation does not apply to proceedings commenced by a public entity or public utility to acquire real property for the use of water, sewer, electricity, telephone, natural gas, or flood control facilities or for rights of way, when those acquisitions neither require removal or destruction of existing improvements nor render the property unfit for the owner's present or proposed use [Evid. Code § 824(c)].

[3] Exclusions From Fair Market Value

The fair market value of the property taken does not include any increase or decrease in the value of the property that is attributable to any of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.330]:

- The project for which the property is taken;
- The eminent domain proceeding in which the property is taken; and
- Any preliminary actions of the plaintiff relating to the taking of the property [see Gov. Code § 7267.2 and 42 U.S.C. § 4651(3) for state and federal provisions applicable to offers for voluntary acquisition of property; see also CACI Nos. 3504, 3505 (related California Judicial Council jury instructions)].

Changes in value caused by a project other than the one for which the property is taken, however, even though the two projects may be related, must be taken into account in valuing the property [People ex rel. Dep'tof Public Works v. Cramer (1971) 14 Cal. App. 3d 513, 520, 92 Cal. Rptr. 401 (property taken for building second freeway is permitted to be enhanced in value by construction of original freeway because it was not probable that property would be included in original freeway condemnation)]. Moreover, if property is affected by a project and subsequently the project's scope is changed or expanded to include that property, the property should be valued as affected by the original project up to the time it became reasonably probable that the land would be included [Merced Irrigation Dist. v. Woolstenhulme

Additionally, benefits of government activities, reflected in market value, compose part of just compensation for land, including activities paid for or instituted by the government [Merced Irrigation Dist. v. Woolstenhulme (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 478, 493, 93 Cal. Rptr. 833, 483 P.2d 1 ; see, e.g., People ex rel. Dep't of Public Works v. Donovan (1962) 57 Cal. 2d 346, 352-354, 19 Cal. Rptr. 473, 369 P.2d 1 (reasonable probability of zoning change is factor in compensation)].

20-247 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 247.136

§ 247.136 Compensation for Improvements

[1] Determining Value Generally

All improvements pertaining to realty must be taken into account in determining compensation despite the right or obligation of a tenant to remove the improvement at the expiration of his or her term [Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.210; see CACI No. 3506 (related California Judicial Council jury instruction)]. Thus, property enhanced by improvements receives the enhanced value and property decreased in value by improvements suffers the decreased value [Cal. L. Rev. Comm'n Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.210]. For a discussion of and forms relating to fixtures and improvements, see Ch. 332, Landlord and Tenant: The Tenancy .

Losses on personal property that is not an improvement pertaining to the realty may be recoverable under the relocation assistance provisions [see, e.g., Gov. Code § 7262].

If the condemnation directly causes a reduction in value of personal property on the premises, the loss is recoverable in the eminent domain action. An example of such a loss is the condemnation of a yard containing a number of used cars to be used for parts. Because the cars could not be moved, they had to be sold as scrap rather than for parts and, thus, were worth substantially less. The owner was entitled to the difference in value [Baldwin Park Redevelopment Agency v. Irving (1984) 156 Cal. App. 3d 428, 434-438, 202 Cal. Rptr. 792] .

[2] Machinery and Equipment as Improvements

The term "improvements pertaining to the realty" includes any machinery or equipment installed for use on property taken by eminent domain, or on the remainder if the property is part of a larger parcel, that cannot be removed without a substantial economic loss or without substantial damage to the property on which it is installed, regardless of the method of installation [Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.205(a)]. In determining whether or not particular property can be removed "without a substantial economic loss," the value of the property in place considered as part of the realty should be compared with its value if it were removed and sold [Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.205(b); see BAJI No. 11.72.5 (compensation for machinery or equipment)].

[3] Disagreement Over Character of Improvements on Property

If there is a dispute between plaintiff and defendant as to whether or not particular property is an improvement pertaining to the realty, either party, not later than 30 days before the date specified in an order for possession of the property, may move the court for a determination of whether the property is an improvement pertaining to the realty [Code Civ. Proc. § 1260.030(a)]. The motion must be heard not sooner than 10 days and not later than 20 days after service of notice of the motion. At the hearing, the court may consider any relevant evidence, including a view of the premises and property, in making its determinations [Code Civ. Proc. § 1260.030(b)].

[4] Condemnor Aquires Title to Improvement

If property is classifed as an improvement pertaining to the realty, and if it is located on the property taken, it must be taken and paid for by the condemnor of the realty. Consequently, the condemnor acquires title to the improvements rather than merely paying for loss of value on removal and has the right to realize any salvage value the improvements may have and must bear the resultant burden. When improvements are located on the remainder, severance damages may be recovered [Senate Legislative Committee Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.205].

[5] Removed or Destroyed Improvements

[a] Removal or Destruction by Specified Date

Improvements pertaining to the realty are not a factor in determining compensation when they are removed or destroyed before the earliest of the following dates [Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.230(a)]:

- The date the plaintiff takes title to the property;
- The date the plaintiff takes possession of the property; or
- If the defendant moves from the property pursuant to an order for possession, the date specified in the order, except that if the defendant moves before that date and gives the plaintiff written notice, the date 24 hours after notice is received by the plaintiff.

If removal or destruction of improvements before any of these dates decreases the property's value below its improved condition, the property is valued accordingly. Conversely, if removal or destruction increases the value over the property's improved condition, the property receives the increased value [Cal. L. Rev. Comm'n Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.230].

[b] Removal or Destruction by Defendant

Improvements that are removed or destroyed by the defendant at any time are not taken into account in determining compensation. Even when the defendant removes or destroys them after the risk of loss has shifted to the plaintiff. Damage resulting to remaining property from the removal or destruction must be considered to the extent that it reduces the value of the remaining property [Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.230(b)].

A plaintiff may bring an independent action against the defendant for conversion when removal or destruction occurs after valuation of the property. However, according to the Cal. L. Rev. Comm'n Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.230, a defendant may be able to remove improvements pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.260 without being responsible for the damage to the structure caused by the removal [see § 247.136[7]].

[6] Improvements Made After Service of Summons

Improvements pertaining to the realty made after the date of service of summons are not taken into account in determining compensation unless (1) the improvement is one required to be made by a public utility to its utility system [see Citizens Utilities Co. v. Superior Court of Santa Cruz County (1963) 59 Cal. 2d 805, 811, 31 Cal. Rptr. 316, 382 P.2d 356] ; (2) the improvement is one made with the plaintiff's written consent; or (3) the improvement is one authorized to be made by a court order issued after a noticed hearing and on a finding by the court that the hardship to the defendant of not permitting the improvement outweighs the hardship to the plaintiff of permitting the improvement. In its order, the court may limit the extent to which the improvement must be taken into account in determining compensation [Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.240; see CACI No. 3506 (related California Judicial Council Jury Instruction) (improvements made after service of summons); see also Mt. San Jacinto Community College Dist. v. Superior Court (2004) 117 Cal. App. 4th 98, 11 Cal. Rptr. 3d 465 (property owner who made improvements to property after it was served with summons in eminent domain action and who failed to seek advance court approval for improvements could not sue condemning public entity in inverse condemnation for value of improvements)].

Additionally, if subsequent improvements are necessary to protect the public from risk of injury or to protect partially installed machinery or equipment from damage, their cost may be recoverable as a separate item of compensation [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.620; see also § 247.136[10]].

[7] Removal of Improvements

The owner of improvements pertaining to realty has the option of converting them to personalty and receiving the moving costs for them instead of receiving compensation for the improvements themselves. If the owner exercises this option, he or she must serve written notice of the election on the plaintiff within 60 days after service of summons [see Gov. Code § 7262 (moving expenses for personal property)]. If the plaintiff, in response, does not serve on the owner written notice of refusal to allow removal of the improvements within 30 days after receiving the owner's notice, the owner may remove the improvements and must be compensated for their reasonable removal and relocation cost not exceeding the market value of the improvements. When removal will damage the structure in which the improvements are located, the defendant must cause no more damage than is reasonably necessary and the structure must be valued as if the removal had not damaged it [Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.260].

[8] Improvements Located Partially on Property Taken

When an improvement pertaining to the realty is located in part on property taken and in part on property not taken, the court, on motion of any party and a determination that justice so requires, may direct the plaintiff to acquire the entire improvement together with an easement or other interest reasonably necessary for the demolition, removal, or relocation of the improvement [Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.270].

[9] Harvesting and Marketing of Crops

The acquisition of property by eminent domain does not prevent the defendant from harvesting and marketing crops planted before or after the service of summons. If the plaintiff takes possession of the property at a time that prevents the defendant from harvesting and marketing, the fair market value of the crops in place when the plaintiff is authorized to take possession of the property is included in the compensation awarded for the property taken [Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.250(a)]. The plaintiff, however, may obtain a court order precluding the defendant from planting crops after service of summons, in which case compensation must include an amount for the loss caused by limiting the defendant's right to use the property [Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.250(b)].

[10] Partially Constructed or Installed Improvement

When the summons is served during the construction of an improvement or the installation of machinery or equipment and the property owner thereby ceases construction or installation, the owner must be compensated for expenses reasonably incurred for work necessary for either of the following purposes: (1) to protect against the risk of injury to persons or to other property created by the uncompleted improvement; or (2) to protect the partially installed machinery or equipment from damage, deterioration, or vandalism [Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.620(a)]. Except in the case of an emergency, this compensation is not recoverable unless the work was preceded by notice to the plaintiff [Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.620(b)].

The plaintiff and the property owner may agree to the amount of compensation payable or that the plaintiff will perform the necessary work [Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.620(b)].

The court, in determining the amount of compensation to be awarded, should consider if the plaintiff, after receiving notice, objected to the necessity or reasonablness of the expenses to be incurred. However, plaintiff's failure to object does not prejudice its right subsequently to show that the work was not necessary or that the expense was not reasonable [Cal. L. Rev. Comm'n Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.620].

[11] Relocation of Structure or Work on Property Not Taken

A public entity and the condemnee may agree that the entity will (1) relocate any structure for the condemnee if relocation is likely to reduce the amount of compensation otherwise payable to the condemnee by an amount equal to or greater than the cost of relocation; or (2) carry out any work for the condemnee on property not taken, including work on any structure, if that work is likely to reduce the amount of compensation otherwise payable by an amount equal to or greater than the cost of the work [Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.610].

[12] Loss of Goodwill

[a] Required Elements and Burden of Proof

A defendant who is the owner of a business conducted on the property taken, or on the remainder if the property is part of a larger parcel, must be compensated for loss of goodwill if he or she proves all of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.510(a); see CACI No. 3513 (California Judicial Council jury instruction on "goodwill")]:

- The loss is caused by the taking of the property or the injury to the remainder;

- The loss cannot reasonably be prevented by a relocation of the business or by taking steps and adopting procedures that a reasonably prudent person would take and adopt in preserving the goodwill;

- Compensation for the loss will not be included in payments under Gov. Code § 7262 (compensation for displaced persons) [see, e.g., Redevelopment Agency v. Arvey Corp. (1992) 3 Cal. App. 4th 1357, 1362-1364, 5 Cal. Rptr. 2d 161 (defendant must establish that moving expenses are not compensable under Gov. Code § 7262, not that expenses have not yet been paid)]; and

- Compensation for the loss will not be duplicated in the compensation otherwise awarded to the owner.

The term "goodwill" consists of the benefits that accrue to a business as a result of its location, reputation for dependability, skill or quality, and any other circumstances resulting in probable retention of old or acquisition of new patronage [Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.510(b)].

If a public entity and property owner enter into a leaseback agreement pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.615 [see § 247.33], the leaseback may not be a factor in determining goodwill, and no additional goodwill can accrue during the lease [Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.510(c); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.615(c)(5)].

Lack of a written lease does not mean that the business owner does not have a legal interest in the property entitling it to compensation for goodwill. The statute provides for goodwill compensation to "the owner of a business conducted on the property taken ..." [Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.510(a)]. The statute contains no requirement that the real property interest be taken from the business owner for the business owner to be entitled to compensation, just that the taking cause a loss to the owner of a business conducted on the property that was taken. Thus, business owners who occupied property under a month-to-month lease were not precluded from asserting a claim for loss of goodwill based on a school district's acquisition of the property by eminent domain [Los Angeles Unified School District v. Pulgarin (2009) 175 Cal. App. 4th 101, 106, 95 Cal. Rptr. 3d 527].

Loss of goodwill includes loss of lower rent at the condemned location. This liberal interpretation of the statute is required by its remedial nature [People ex rel. Dep't of Transp. v. Muller (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 263, 270, 203 Cal. Rptr. 772, 681 P.2d 1340] .

Because the determination of loss of goodwill is governed by the general rules of evidence and not by the special rules relating to valuation in eminent domain, the provisions of Evid. Code §§ 817 and 819 restricting admissibility of business income for the determination of value, damage, and benefit do not limit admissibility of income from a business for the determination of loss of goodwill [see Cal. L. Rev. Comm'n Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.510; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.520 (condemnee required to make state tax returns available to court)]. Contrary to the general rule set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 1260.210 governing burden of proof relating to compensation, the owner of a business has the burden of proof on the issue of whether he or she is entitled to compensation for loss of goodwill [Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.510(a)].

Because the owner has the burden of proof as to the existence of goodwill, the agency can argue that there is no competent evidence to support a finding of goodwill in the absence of expert testimony [Redevelopment Agency v. Thrifty Oil Co. (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 469, 474-476, 5 Cal. Rptr. 2d 687] .

A restaurant franchisor who was the subtenant of the premises and who owned trade secrets and the trade name, but who was expressly not engaged in a partnership, joint venture, or agency relationship with the franchisee, was not the owner of the business and therefore was not entitled to compensation for loss of goodwill [Redevelopment Agency v. International House of Pancakes, Inc. (1992) 9 Cal. App. 4th 1343, 1350-1352, 12 Cal. Rptr. 2d 358] .

Although the owner must establish the elements described above to obtain compensation for loss of goodwill, neither party has the burden of proof as to the amount of compensation [Code Civ. Proc. § 1260.210(b); Redevelopment Agency v. Metropolitan Theatres Corp. (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 808, 811-812, 263 Cal. Rptr. 637] . In fact, an instruction that the owner has the burden of proof as to the amount of goodwill is error [People ex rel. Dept. of Transportation v. Salami (1991) 2 Cal. App. 4th 37, 44-46, 2 Cal. Rptr. 2d 833] .

[b] Methods for Valuing Goodwill

There is no single method required for valuing goodwill. Valuation methods differ with the nature of the business and the purpose for which the evaluation is conducted. Goodwill may be measured by the capitalized value of the net income or profits of a business or some similar method of calculating present value of anticipated profits [People ex rel. Dept. of Transportation v. Leslie (1997) 55 Cal. App. 4th 918, 922-923, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d 252 ; see People ex rel. Dep't of Transportation v. Muller (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 263, 271, 681 P.2d 1340] . One permissible method is "excess income" valuation [People ex rel. Dep't of Transp. v. Muller (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 263, 272, 203 Cal. Rptr. 772, 681 P.2d 1340] . When a taking causes a defendant to relocate his or her business to a location with a higher rent, the excess income method is a proper measure of damages for loss of goodwill, capitalizing the value of profits lost as a result of the higher rent [People ex rel. Dep't of Transp. v. Muller (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 263, 268-272, 203 Cal. Rptr. 772, 681 P.2d 1340] . Muller did not address the question of recovery of a leasehold bonus value. This issue was addressed in another case in which the court concluded that a clause in a commercial lease mandated a conclusion that leasehold bonus value be deducted from the award of goodwill [New Haven Unified School Dist. v. Taco Bell Corp. (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 1473, 1480-1483, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 469] .

The excess income method is also appropriate when the taking causes loss of income from a business located in a blighted area. In that case, a proper measure of damages for loss of goodwill is capitalization of the excess income of the business using a capitalization rate derived from a fair market value analysis [Community Development Com. v. Asaro (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 1297, 1303-1306, 261 Cal. Rptr. 231] .

A "cost to create" approach is a permissible means by which to value goodwill when a nascent business has not yet experienced excess profits, but clearly has goodwill within the meaning of the statute and experiences a total loss of goodwill due to condemnation of the property on which the business is operated [Inglewood Redevelopment Agency v. Aklilu (2007) 153 Cal. App. 4th 1095, 1102, 64 Cal. Rptr. 3d 519 (valuing lost goodwill as amount owner had spent to build up business)].

Although no single method exists to value goodwill and the courts have not prescribed rigid and unvarying rules for determining that value, the evidence must legitimately establish some value. Calculating isolated increased expenses without establishing the existence of actual pre-taking goodwill and comparing its value with post-taking goodwill is an inappropriate methodology for evaluating loss of goodwill [City of San Diego v. Sobke (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 379, 396, 398-399, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 9] .

§ 247.137 Precondemnation Damages

A condemnee may recover for damages resulting from an unreasonable delay by a condemnor in bringing an eminent domain action if the condemnor acted improperly either by unreasonably delaying the action following an announcement of intent to condemn or by other unreasonable conduct before condemnation resulting in a diminution of the property's market value [Klopping v. City of Whittier (1972) 8 Cal. 3d 39, 51-52, 104 Cal. Rptr. 1, 500 P.2d 1345 ; see People ex rel. Dept. Pub. Wks. v. Peninsula Enterprises, Inc. (1979) 91 Cal. App. 3d 332, 357, 153 Cal. Rptr. 895 (recovery of precondemnation damages requires showing of unreasonable delay or other unreasonable conduct but not both); see also CACI No. 3509 (California Judicial Council jury instruction on precondemnation damages)]. These damages compensate the condemnee for his or her loss of use or enjoyment of his or her adversely affected property during the precondemnation period [City of Los Angeles v. Monahan (1976) 55 Cal. App. 3d 846, 852, 127 Cal. Rptr. 763 ; see Stone v. City of Los Angeles (1975) 51 Cal. App. 3d 987, 993, 124 Cal. Rptr. 822 (condemnees recovered rents lost during period of unreasonable delay because of knowledge of pending project)]. However, when a condemnor takes possession prematurely, the owner may not recover damages for lost rental value up to the time the property was actually needed [County of Los Angeles v. Smith (1976) 55 Cal. App. 3d 749, 756, 127 Cal. Rptr. 666] .

§ 247.138 Effect of Condemnation on Holders of Lesser Property Interests

[1] Leases

The parties to a lease may provide in the lease for the effect of condemnation of the property subject to the lease [Code Civ. Proc. § 1265.160; see, e.g., United States v. 1,377 Acres of Land (9th Cir. 2003) 352 F.3d 1259 (analyzing results of contractual provisions in two different restaurant leases)]. If no provision is made, the following rules apply.

When all the property subject to a lease is acquired for public use, the lease terminates [Code Civ. Proc. § 1265.110; see City of Pasadena v. Porter (1927) 201 Cal. 381, 387, 257 P. 526] . This rule does not apply when property is acquired by a public entity by purchase unless the conduct of the acquiring entity is the substantial equivalent of condemnation and fairness requires applying the section to the purchase [Peter Kiewit Sons' Co. v. Richmond Redevelopment Agency (1986) 178 Cal. App. 3d 435, 441-442, 223 Cal. Rptr. 728] . If only part of the property is acquired for public use, the lease terminates as to the part taken but remains in force as to the remainder, and the rent reserved in the lease that is allocable to the part taken is extinguished [Code Civ. Proc. § 1265.120]. However, the court, on petition of any party to the lease, may terminate it if the court determines that an essential part of the property subject to the lease is taken or that the remainder of the property is no longer suitable for the purposes of the lease [Code Civ. Proc. § 1265.130].

A lease provision that declares that the lease will terminate if all the property subject to the lease is acquired for public use does not deprive the tenant of any right it may have to compensation for the taking of the leasehold or other property because such a provision is merely declarative of the generally applicable rules of the Eminent Domain Law described above [City of Vista v. Fielder (1996) 13 Cal. 4th 612, 618, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 861, 919 P.2d 151] .

[2] Time of Termination

[a] In General

The lease terminates entirely or partially at the earlier of (1) the time title to the property is taken by the person putting it to the public use, or (2) the time the plaintiff is authorized to take possession as stated in an order for possession [

Code Civ. Proc. § 1265.140].

[b] Remedies of Tenant Not Affected

Despite partial or total termination of a lease, a tenant may recover compensation for the value of the leasehold interest and for any of his or her property taken in the eminent domain proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 1265.150; Cal. L. Rev. Comm'n Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 1265.150].

[3] Liens

A lien is a mortgage, deed of trust, or other security interest in property, whether arising from contract, statute, common law, or equity [Code Civ. Proc. § 1265.210]. If property acquired by eminent domain is encumbered by a lien and the indebtedness secured by it is not due when judgment is entered, the amount of the indebtedness, at plaintiff's option, may be deducted from the judgment and the lien continued until the indebtedness is paid [Code Civ. Proc. § 1265.220]. The indebtedness may be deducted from the judgment even after the amount of the judgment has been deposited in court but before it has been withdrawn by the defendant [People v. Cheda (1957) 154 Cal. App. 2d 531, 533-534, 317 P.2d 145] . However, the amount of property taxes for which the plaintiff is liable as between plaintiff and defendant may not be deducted from the judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 1265.220].

When the condemned property is being purchased on a land sales contract and the seller subsequently executes a promissory note secured by a trust deed on the property, the beneficiary under the trust deed is entitled only to an amount representing the seller's interest in the contract. The purchaser is entitled to the balance of the condemnation proceeds [Alhambra Redevelopment Agency v. Transamerica Financial Services (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 1370, 1375-1379, 261 Cal. Rptr. 248] .

The amount payable to the lienholder must not include any penalty for prepayment [Code Civ. Proc. § 1265.240; see Cal. L. Rev. Comm'n Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 1265.240 (code section is applicable to all penalties, including, but not limited to, those under mortgages, deeds of trust, contracts of sale, and redemption premiums under Sts. & Hy. Code §§ 6447, 6464)].

If property acquired by eminent domain is encumbered by the lien of a fixed lien special assessment or of a bond representing such an assessment, the lien amount must be paid to the lienholder from the award orwithheld from the award for payment pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1265.220 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1265.250(b)(1); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1265.250(a)(1) (fixed lien special assessment defined)]. When there is a partial taking of the property, the amount of the lien prescribed in Code Civ. Proc. § 1265.225 must be paid to the lienholder from the award, or at the lienholder's option, any applicable statutory procedure for segregation and apportionment of the lien may be invoked and the amount apportioned to the part taken must be paid to the lienholder from the award [Code Civ. Proc. § 1265.250(b)(2)].

If property acquired by eminent domain is encumbered by the lien of a special annual assessment, the amount of the lien prorated to but not including the date of apportionment determined pursuant to Rev. & Tax. Code § 5082 (date of apportionment), must be paid to the lienholder from the award [Code Civ. Proc. § 1265.250(c)(1); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1265.250(a)(2) (special annual assessment defined)]. When there is a partial taking, the lien amount, reduced by the amount for which the plaintiff is liable, must be paid to the lienholder from the award. As between plaintiff and defendant, the plaintiff is liable for the amount of the lien allocable to the part taken for the current assessment year, determined in the same manner and by the same method as the assessment amount on the property for the current assessment year was determined, prorated from and including the date of apportionment determined pursuant to Rev. & Tax. Code § 5082 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1265.250(c)(2)].

A note secured by a deed of trust on the condemned property must be paid from the award even though an action on the note is barred by the statute of limitations [Carson Redevelopment Agency v. Adam (1982) 136 Cal. App. 3d 608,

611-613, 186 Cal. Rptr. 615] .

For a discussion of and forms relating to liens generally, see Ch. 342, Liens and Wage Preferences .

[4] Allocation Between Lienholder and Owner in Partial Taking

When there is a partial taking of property encumbered by a lien, the lienholder shares in the award only to the extent the court finds necessary to prevent the impairment of its security despite any contrary agreement entered into when the indebtedness on which the lien is based was created [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1265.225(a); People ex rel. Dept. of Transportation v. Redwood Baseline, Ltd. (1978) 84 Cal. App. 3d 662, 670-671, 149 Cal. Rptr. 11] . The lien continues on the part of the property not taken as security for the unpaid portion of the indebtedness [Code Civ. Proc. § 1265.225(a)].

The parties, however, may subsequently agree at any time after the proceeding commences that some or all of the award is to be apportioned to the lienholder [Code Civ. Proc. § 1265.225(b)], such as when the award will be sufficient to discharge the indebtedness on which the lien is based [Cal. L. Rev. Comm'n Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 1265.225].

[5] Allocation Among Lienholders in Partial Taking

When property encumbered by a lien is partially taken and that part or some of it is also encumbered by a junior lien extending to only a portion of the property encumbered by the senior lien, the part of the condemnation award available to the lienholders may be adjusted so that both the senior and junior lienholders will retain security interests proportionate to those existing before the taking. If both liens cannot be paid in full from the award, it will be allocated initially to pay the full amount of the senior lien with any balance to the junior lien. At that time the court will determine the adequacy of the remaining property to secure the junior lien. If it determines that the junior lienholder's security is disproportionately low, the court may make adjustments to the initial allocation to place the junior lienholder in the same relative position as before the taking if the adjustment preserves the proportional security of the senior lienholder [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1265.230(a), (c), (d); Cal. L. Rev. Comm'n Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 1265.230; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1265.230(b) (security is impaired when lienholder's security remaining after taking is of less value proportionately to remaining indebtedness than security's value before taking was in proportion to indebtedness secured thereby)].

The amounts allocated to the senior and junior lienholders are the amounts of indebtedness owing to them that are secured by their respective liens on the property taken. Any other indebtedness owing to them is not considered as secured by the property taken. If the plaintiff elects to have the amount of indebtedness deducted from the judgment, the amount that is deducted is determined to be the amount of the indebtedness and the lien continues until that amount is paid [Code Civ. Proc. § 1265.230(e)].

§ 247.139 Future Interests

[1] Compensation for Violation of Use Restriction

Contingent future interests based on the use restriction may be compensated for when the acquisition of property violates the restriction. If violation of the restriction was reasonably imminent, the owner of the contingent future interest is entitled to compensation for the interest's value [Code Civ. Proc. § 1265.410(a)(1); see Rest. Prop., § 53, comment c (reasonably imminent test)]. If violation of the restriction was not reasonably imminent but the benefit of the restriction was appurtenant to other property, the owner of the future interest may be compensated to the extent that the failure to comply with the use restriction damages the dominant premises to which the restriction was appurtenant and which he or she owned [Code Civ. Proc. § 1265.410(a)(2)]. Consideration of the effect of the condemnation proceedings is precluded when determining whether a violation of a use restriction is reasonably imminent, except when (1) the condemnor is also the grantee of the present interest, (2) the condemnationof the future interest will not divest the condemnor of its present interest in the land, and (3) it is not the fact of the condemnation that prevents the grantee/condemnor from continuing to use the land in conformance with the use restriction, but rather the grantee/condemnor's own voluntary choice [City of Palm Springs v. Living Desert Reserve (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 613, 626-627, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 859] .

If the acquisition violates a use restriction coupled with a contingent future interest granting a right to possession of the property on violation of the use restriction but the contingent future interest is not compensable under Code Civ. Proc. § 1265.410(a) (see above), and if the restriction requires that the property be devoted to a particular charitable or public use, the compensation for the property must be devoted to the same or a similar use coupled with the same contingent future interest [Code Civ. Proc. § 1265.410(b)]. The term "public use" includes all uses, including public utility purposes, for which the power of eminent domain might be exercised [Cal. L. Rev. Comm'n Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 1265.410].

Because the value of the fee owner's interest in the property is diminished to the extent of the value of the contingent future interest, the award for the value of the property must be so apportioned [Cal. L. Rev. Comm'n Comment to Code

Civ. Proc. § 1265.410; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1260.220 (procedure when there are divided interests)].

If a fee simple determinable has reverted automatically because the event creating the possibility of reverter has already occurred before commencement of eminent domain proceedings, the holders of the reversionary interest are entitled to the entire compensation for the taking of the property because they are the owners of the property [see McDougall v. Palo Alto etc. School Dist. (1963) 212 Cal. App. 2d 422, 431-440, 28 Cal. Rptr. 37] .

[2] Property Subject to Life Tenancy

If property acquired for public use is subject to a life tenancy, the life tenant or any other person having an interest in the property may petition the court, which may provide an equitable solution by ordering any of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 1265.420]:

- An apportionment and distribution of the award based on the value of the interest of the life tenant and remainderman;

- The compensation to be used to purchase comparable property to be held subject to the life tenancy;

- The compensation to be held in trust and invested and the income (and principal to the extent permitted by the instrument creating the life tenancy) to be distributed to the life tenant for the remainder of the tenancy; or

- Any other arrangement that is equitable under the circumstances.

20-247 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 247.140

§ 247.140 Compensation for Injury to Remainder

[1] Determination of Injury

When the property taken is part of a larger parcel, compensation or severance damages must be awarded for any injury to the remainder [Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.410(a); see CACI Nos. 3511, 3512 (California Judicial Council jury instructions on severance damages)]. This compensation consists of the amount of the damage less the amount of the benefit to the remainder. If the amount of the benefit equals or exceeds the amount of the damage, no compensation is awarded. Any excess amount must be deducted from the compensation awarded for the loss of goodwill, if any, but cannot be deducted from any other compensation required to be awarded by the Eminent Domain Law [Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.410(b)].

The term "severance damages" is simply a shorthand term describing the diminution in the market value of the remaining property as a result of a taking and, hence, of describing the compensation for the property owner's loss [Metropolitan Water Dist. v. Campus Crusade for Christ, Inc. (2007) 41 Cal. 4th 954, 973, 62 Cal. Rptr. 3d 623, 161 P.3d 1175] . The property owner bears the burden of producing evidence tending to show the diminution in market value but the jury then decides what effect (if any) the evidence, taken "as a whole," may have on the value of the property [Metropolitan Water Dist. v. Campus Crusade for Christ, Inc. (2007) 41 Cal. 4th 954, 973, 62 Cal. Rptr. 3d 623, 161 P.3d 1175 ; Code Civ. Proc. § 1260.210(a)]. The fact finder must then ascertain the value of the property before and after the taking and fix the amount of compensation without assigning a burden of persuasion to either party [Metropolitan Water Dist. v. Campus Crusade for Christ, Inc. (2007) 41 Cal. 4th 954, 974, 62 Cal. Rptr. 3d 623 P.3d; Code Civ. Proc. § 1260.210(b)].

[2] Damage and Benefit Defined

Damage to the remainder is any damage caused to the remainder by either or both of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.420]:

- The severance of the remainder from the part taken; and/or

- The construction and use of plaintiff's project in the manner proposed, whether or not the damage is caused by a portion of the project located on the part taken.

Thus, damages to the remainder caused by the project may be recovered regardless of the precise location of the damage-causing portion of the project if the damages are otherwise compensable [Cal. L. Rev. Comm'n Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.420].

Severance damages are not required to be paid for every diminution in value of property caused by a public improvement. They must be based on real physical disturbance of a property right and a decrease in market value of the property rather than on remote possibilities that are highly speculative and conjectural [Ventura County Flood Control Dist. v. Security First Nat. Bank (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 996, 1002, 93 Cal. Rptr. 653] . Thus, mere infringement of a property owner's personal pleasure or enjoyment, or damage causing only inconvenience of rendering private property less desirable for certain purposes, is not compensable [Eachus v. Los Angeles etc. Ry. Co. (1894) 103 Cal. 614, 617, 37 P. 750 ; see BAJI No. 11.86 (elements not included in severance damages)]. When a city condemned portions of properties used for plant nurseries, damages for economic loss to business assets based on accelerated residential development resulting from the project were not recoverable; such damages were not caused by the construction or use of the project nor were they the result of the condemnatory act in and of itself [City of Carlsbad v. Rudvalis (2003) 109 Cal. App. 4th 667, 680-686, 135 Cal. Rptr. 2d 194] .

Severance damages have been recovered for (1) loss of access, ingress, or egress [People v. Ricciardi (1943) 23 Cal. 2d 390, 403, 144 P.2d 799 ; Rose v. State of California (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 713, 727-729, 123 P.2d 505 (impairment of access from building of subway)]; (2) impaired visibility to and from a highway [People v. Ricciardi (1943) 23 Cal. 2d 390, 404, 144 P.2d 799 (underpass obstructing highway traveler's view of defendants' property)]; and (3) loss of view [Pierpont Inn, Inc. v. State of California (1969) 70 Cal. 2d 282, 294-295, 74 Cal. Rptr. 521, 449 P.2d 737 (overruled on other grounds in Los Angeles County Metropolitan Transportation Authority v. Continental Development Corp. (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 694, 698-699, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 630, 941 P.2d 809)]. Severance damages also have been recovered for (1) the limited use of the property remaining after condemnation [San Bernardino County Flood Control Dist. v. Sweet (1967) 255 Cal. App. 2d 889, 902, 63 Cal. Rptr. 640] ; (2) increased danger of flooding [Colusa & Hamilton R. Co. v. Leonard (1917) 176 Cal. 109, 114, 167 P. 878] ; (3) loss of a windbreak [Ventura County Flood Control Dist. v. Security First Nat. Bank (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 996, 1001, 93 Cal. Rptr. 653] ; and (4) noise resulting from acquisition of an air easement for use by aircraft [City of Oakland v. Nutter (1970) 13 Cal. App. 3d 752, 758, 764, 92 Cal. Rptr. 347] .

Severance damages were also recoverable when the market value of the remainder was lowered because the state had the right to use the adjacent strip taken for purposes other than those involved in a street widening [City of Salinas v. Homer (1980) 106 Cal. App. 3d 307, 310-314, 165 Cal. Rptr. 65] . In another case, severance damages were properly awarded for the diminution of the value of the remainder based on people's fears of the effects of electromagnetic projections that would emanate from an easement for an electromagnetic power line. The truth or lack of truth of the basis for the fears was held to be irrelevant [San Diego Gas & Electric Co. v. Daley (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 1334, 1346-1348, 253 Cal. Rptr. 144] .

Benefit to the remainder is any benefit caused by the construction and use of the project for which the property is taken in the manner proposed by the plaintiff, whether or not the benefit is caused by the part of the project located on the property taken [Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.430]. All reasonably certain, immediate, and nonspeculative benefits may be offset against severance damages. The long-standing distinction between general and special benefits, pursuant to which only special benefits could be offset against severance damages, has been overruled. Thus, in determining a defendant's entitlement to severance damages, the jury must consider competent evidence that is relevant to any conditions caused by the project that affect the remainder property's fair market value, provided that evidence is neither conjectural nor speculative [Los Angeles County Metropolitan Transportation Authority v. Continental Development Corp. (1997) 16

Cal. 4th 694, 699, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 630, 941 P.2d 809 (overruling Beveridge v. Lewis (1902) 137 Cal. 619, 623-624, 70 P. 1083)]. For further discussion of evidence of benefits that may offset severance damages, see the condemnation practice handbook in California Real Estate Law and Practice, Ch. 508, Evidence: General, § 508.27 (Matthew Bender).

[3] Computing Damage and Benefits to Remainder

[a] Amount Must Reflect Delays

The value of the remainder on the date of valuation, excluding prior changes in value as prescribed by Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.330 (exclusions from fair market value), is the base from which the amount of any damage and any benefit to the remainder is determined [Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.440(b)].

The amount of any damage and any benefit to the remainder must reflect any delay in the time when the damage or benefit caused by the construction and use of the project in the manner proposed by the plaintiff will actually be realized [Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.440(a); see Metropolitan Water Dist. v. Campus Crusade for Christ, Inc. (2007) 41 Cal. 4th 954, 975, 62 Cal. Rptr. 3d 623, 161 P.3d 1175 (mere fact of delay associated with construction of water pipeline on condemned portion of property did not, without more, entitle property owner to temporary severance damages relating to the financing or marketing of the property; however, on remand owner would have opportunity to create appropriate record to support claim for damages from actual injury suffered during construction)]. If there is a subsequent change in plans so that the damage and benefit do not occur in the manner the plaintiff proposed, the property owner may recover any additional damage in a subsequent action [People v. Adamson (1953) 118 Cal. App. 2d 714, 722, 258 P.2d 1020 ; see People ex rel. Department of Public Works v. Ayon (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 217, 229, 5 Cal. Rptr. 151, 352 P.2d 519] . Similarly, a defendant cannot avoid benefits accruing to his or her property from the project by selling the benefited parcel after the proceeding has commenced [People ex rel. Dept. Pub. Wks. v. Simon Newman Co. (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 398, 404, 112 Cal. Rptr. 298 (benefits are required to be offset against severance damage even though condemnee had agreed with federal agency before commencement of action to dispose of lands benefited and did not own those lands on date of trial, which was also valuation date)].

[b] Compensation Based on Project as Proposed

Compensation for injury to the remainder must be based on the project as proposed. Any features of the project that mitigate the damage or provide benefit to the remainder, including, but not limited to, easements, crossings, underpasses, access roads, fencing, drainage facilities, and cattle guards, must be taken into account in determining the compensation for injury to the remainder [Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.450]. The cost of fencing, cattle guards, and crossings is an element of damage only if lack of them would damage the remainder. If the fencing, cattle guards, or crossings are to be supplied by the plaintiff as part of its proposed project, this fact should be taken into consideration in determining any damage to the remainder [Cal. L. Rev. Comm'n Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.450].

If the plaintiff has no specific proposal for the manner of construction and use of the project, damages will be assessed on the basis of the most injurious lawful use reasonably possible [People ex rel. Dep't Pub. Wks. v. Silveira (1965) 236 Cal. App. 2d 604, 622, 46 Cal. Rptr. 260] .

[4] Larger Parcel Required

[a] Unity of Property Generally

Severance damages may not be awarded unless the property taken is part of a larger parcel. What constitutes a larger parcel is a question of law for determination by the court [People ex rel. Dept. Pub. Wks. v. International Tel. & Tel. Corp. (1972) 22 Cal. App. 3d 829, 833, 99 Cal. Rptr. 836] .

To be part of a larger parcel, unity of the property must be shown, and three elements are necessary for unity of property: (1) unity of title, (2) unity of use, and (3) usually, contiguity [City of Los Angeles v. Wolfe (1971) 6 Cal. 3d 326, 330, 99 Cal. Rptr. 21, 491 P.2d 813] . The three unities must exist on the date the complaint is filed [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.020; People ex rel. Dept. Pub. Wks. v. Simon Newman Co. (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 398, 403-406, 112 Cal. Rptr. 298 (under previous law providing that right to compensation accrued at date summons was issued, issue of larger parcel also determined on that date)].

[b] Unity of Title

Unity of title exists if the property taken and the remainder are owned by the same party. It also exists between parcels when the defendant owns one parcel and is the equitable owner of the others through exercise of an option to purchase [County of Santa Clara v. Curtner (1966) 245 Cal. App. 2d 730, 737, 54 Cal. Rptr. 257] . It can be created by separate owners of contiguous parcels through contractual agreement [see People ex rel. Dep't Pub. Wks. v. Nyrin (1967) 256 Cal. App. 2d 288, 295, 63 Cal. Rptr. 905] .

Unity of title also exists if the property is owned by a partnership although record title of different portions of the parcel are in the names of the partners [Stockton v. Ellingwood (1929) 96 Cal. App. 708, 744-745, 275 P. 228] . However, the fact that property is used for partnership purposes does not create unity of title when different tracts are held in the names of individual partners [People ex rel. Dep't Pub. Wks. v. Dickinson (1964) 230 Cal. App. 2d 932, 934, 41 Cal. Rptr. 427] .

[c] Unity of Use

Unity of use is a connection or relation of adaptation, convenience, and actual and permanent use that makes the enjoyment of the parcel taken reasonably and substantially necessary to the remaining parcels, in the most advantageous and profitable manner in the business for which they are used. It does not exist when the condemned parcel and the remaining parcel are used separately, but it may exist even though some of the property is not used [People ex rel. Dep't Pub. Wks. v. Nyrin (1967) 256 Cal. App. 2d 288, 294-295, 63 Cal. Rptr. 905 ; see People v. Thompson (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 13, 26, 271 P.2d 507] .

The unity of use generally must be presently existing and not merely possible [People v. Ocean Shore Railroad (1948) 32 Cal. 2d 406, 424, 196 P.2d 570] . For example, while it did not exist between three commonly owned adjacent parcels each containing a separate dwelling, although all three lots could probably have been developed jointly for commercial purposes [City of Menlo Park v. Artino (1957) 151 Cal. App. 2d 261, 269-270, 311 P.2d 135] , the Supreme Court has relaxed this requirement. Unity of use may be prospective if a property owner establishes that there is a reasonable probability that all of the contiguous commonly owned lots are or will be available for development or use as an integrated economic unit in the reasonably foreseeable future [City of San Diego v. Neumann (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 738, 756, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 480, 863 P.2d 725] . The Supreme Court stated that "... as a matter of economic reality, the development potential of contiguous properties in common ownership endowed them with a value, considered as a whole, greater than the sum of their parts" [City of San Diego v. Neumann (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 738, 753-754, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 480, 863 P.2d 725] . Based on the assumption that severance damages compensate owners for the government's impairment of the integrity of his or her property, and the acknowledgement of the economic fact that contiguous property held in common ownership but devoted to separate uses may nonetheless be valued by the market for an integrated use, the Supreme Court concluded that owners must be given an opportunity to demonstrate the injury that will result from the loss of a development opportunity [City of San Diego v. Neumann (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 738, 755-756, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 480, 863 P.2d 725] .

[d] Contiguity

Physical contiguity or contact is generally essential for unity of property. However, there may be constructive or legal contiguity when the parcels are physically separate if there is unity of ownership, reasonable physical proximity of the parcels, and strong unity of use with lawful means of access [City of Los Angeles v. Wolfe (1971) 6 Cal. 3d 326, 335, 338, 99 Cal. Rptr. 21, 491 P.2d 813 (constructive contiguity as existing between two parcels when one was being used for required parking for other parcel although parcels were separated by private property)].

20-247 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 247.142

§ 247.142 Total Amount Permitted to Be Determined First

[1] Determining Respective Rights of Defendants

The plaintiff may require that the amount of compensation be determined first as between plaintiff and all defendants claiming an interest in the property. Afterwards, in the same proceeding, the trier of fact must determine the respective rights of the defendants in and to the amount of compensation awarded and must apportion the award accordingly. However, a defendant's right to present, during the first stage of the proceeding, evidence of the value of, or injury to, the property or the defendant's interest in the property is not limited by this provision. In addition, the right of a defendant to present evidence during the second stage of the proceeding is not affected by the failure to exercise the right to present evidence during the first stage of the proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 1260.220(b); see generally §§ 247.312, 247.313].

[2] Separate Assessments

The trier of fact, as far as practicable, should make separate assessments of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 1260.230; see CACI No. 3512; BAJI No. 11.96 (separate assessment of elements of compensation)]:

- The compensation for the property taken as required by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1263.310-1263.330;

- When the property acquired is part of a larger parcel, the amount of the damage, if any, and the benefit, if any, to the remainder as required by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1263.410-1263.450 [see § 247.140]; and

- The compensation for loss of goodwill, if any, as required by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1263.510-1263.530 [see § 247.136[12][a]].

[3] Unknown or Deceased Defendants

When any unknown or deceased persons or their heirs and devisees have been properly joined as defendants but have not appeared either personally or by a personal representative, the court must determine (1) the extent of these defendants' interests in the property taken or in the remainder if the property taken is part of a larger parcel, and (2) the compensation to be awarded for these interests. The court may determine the extent and value of the interests of all these defendants in the aggregate without apportionment among them. In the case of deceased persons, the court must determine only the extent and value of the decedent's interest and not the extent and value of the separate interests of the heirs and devisees in the decedent's interest [Code Civ. Proc. § 1260.240].

§ 247.144 Proof of Value

The fair market value of property can be proven only by opinion evidence of valuation witnesses [Evid. Code § 813(a); People ex rel. Dept. Pub. Wks. v. Peninsula Enterprises, Inc. (1979) 91 Cal. App. 3d 332, 348, 153 Cal. Rptr. 895 ; see CACI No. 3515 (opinion of witnesses as to value)]. These witnesses are (1) witnesses qualified to express these opinions; (2) the owner or the spouse of the owner of the property or property interest being valued including, but not limited to, the person entitled to possession of the property and either party in an action or proceeding to determine the ownership of the property between the parties if the court determines that it would not be in the interest of efficient administration of justice to determine the issue of ownership before the admission of the party's opinion; and (3) an officer, regular employee, or partner designated by a corporation, partnership, or unincorporated association that owns the property or property interest being valued if the designee is knowledgeable as to the value of the property or property interest [Evid. Code § 813(a), (c)].

The property being valued may be viewed or other admissible evidence may be admitted, including that concerning the nature and condition of the property and the character of the improvement proposed to be constructed by the plaintiff, for the limited purpose of enabling the court, jury, or referee to understand and weigh the testimony given by the valuation witnesses [Evid. Code § 813(b)].

§ 247.145 Basis for Opinion

A witness may base his or her opinion as to the value of property only on matter perceived by or personally known to the witness or made known to him or her at or before the hearing, whether or not admissible. The matter must be of a type that reasonably may be relied on by an expert in forming an opinion as to the value of property unless a witness is precluded by law from using this material as an opinion base [Evid. Code § 814; see Evid. Code §§ 815-821 (matters on which witness may base opinion); BAJI No. 11.82 (evidence of matters relied on)].

In County Sanitation Dist. v. Watson Land Co. (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 1268, 22 Cal. Rptr. 2d 117 , the trial court excluded the valuation opinion testimony of defendant's expert witness because the witness "did not follow the well-established methodology for valuing easements in condemnation proceedings" [County Sanitation Dist. v. Watson Land Co. (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 1268, 1281, 22 Cal. Rptr. 2d 117] . The court of appeal held that, because defendant's witness "valued the easement based on a hypothetical income stream from unrelated license agreements and not based on the diminution in value of the fee" and "derived his severance damages by arbitrarily apportioning to severance a percentage (50 percent) of the total value of the easement determined by capitalizing the income from the six unrelated license agreements," the trial court did not abuse its discretion by granting plaintiff's motions in limine to exclude the opinion testimony [County Sanitation Dist. v. Watson Land Co. (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 1268, 1281-1283, 22 Cal. Rptr. 2d 117] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Counsel should be certain that retained experts are using readily accepted methods of valuation. The failure to do so could result in proceeding to trial without any expert witnesses!

In County Sanitation, the trial court denied plaintiff's request for a trial continuance so that a new valuation opinion could be obtained. The appellate court upheld this decision, noting the following: (1) the delay associated with defendant's search for a new expert, production of a new valuation opinion, and related discovery would be significant; (2) defendant was on notice that plaintiff would seek to exclude the opinion of defendant's expert; (3) deposition testimony indicated that defendant's expert relied on "improper considerations"; and (4) defendant could have employed another expert to offer additional valuation testimony [County Sanitation Dist. v. Watson Land Co. (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 1268, 1283, 22 Cal. Rptr. 2d 117] .

§ 247.146 Inadmissible Matters

The following matters are inadmissible as evidence and must not be taken into account as bases for an opinion as to the value of property [Evid. Code § 822(a)]:

- The price or other terms and circumstances of a property acquisition if the acquisition was for a public use for which the property could have been taken by eminent domain; except the price or other terms or circumstances are not excluded if they relate to the valuation of all or part of a water system [see Pub. Util. Code § 240 ("water system" defined)].

- The price at which an offer or option to purchase or lease the property being valued or any other property was made, or the price at which the property was optioned, offered, or listed for sale and lease, except that an option, offer, or listing may be introduced by a party as an admission of another party to the proceeding.

- The value of any property as assessed for taxation purposes or the amount of taxes that may be due on the property but actual or estimated taxes may be considered in determining the reasonable net rental value attributable to the property being valued.

- An opinion as to the value of any property other than that being valued.

- The influence on the value of the property being valued of any noncompensable items of value, damage, or injury.

- The capitalized value of the income or rental from any property other than that being valued.

§ 247.147 Methods of Determining Market Value

Appraisers of property generally use a combination of three methods to reach the market value of real estate. These methods are (1) the "reproduction cost" or "replacement cost" approach based on the current cost of reproducing or replacing the property less depreciation from all sources [Evid. Code § 820]; (2) the "market data" or "comparable sales" approach or value indicated by recent sales of comparable properties in the market [Evid. Code §§ 815, 816]; and (3) the "income" or "capitalization" approach, or the value which the property's net earning power will support based on the capitalization of net income [Evid. Code §§ 817-819; State ex rel. State Public Works Board v. Stevenson (1970) 5 Cal. App. 3d 60, 63, 84 Cal. Rptr. 742 ; see South Bay Irr. Dist. v. California-American Water Co. (1976) 61 Cal. App. 3d 944, 975, 979, 133 Cal. Rptr. 166 , cert. dismissed, 434 U.S. 801 (1977) ; see also Evid. Code §§ 818-820].

For a detailed discussion of these methods of valuing real property, see California Real Estate Law & Practice, Ch. 508, Evidence: General (Matthew Bender).

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

20-247 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 247.148

§ 247.148 Arbitration of Compensation

[1] Agreement to Arbitrate

The public entity and the property owner may agree to arbitrate rather than litigate compensation issues whether or not an eminent domain proceeding has been commenced to acquire the property [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1273.010(a), 1273.030(b)]. The effect and enforceability of such an agreement is not impaired or defeated by the contention or by proof of any party to the agreement that the party acquiring the property lacks the power or capacity to take property by eminent domain [Code Civ. Proc. § 1273.030(d)]. The procedure is voluntary and the parties are not precluded from entering into an arbitration agreement under Code Civ. Proc. § 1280 et seq., the general arbitration statutes [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1273.010-1273.050; for discussion and forms relating to the general arbitration statutes, see Ch. 32, Contractual Arbitration: Agreements and Compelling Arbitration].

When property has already been appropriated to a public use, the person authorized to compromise or settle the claim arising from a taking or damaging of the property for another public use has the authority to enter into an arbitration agreement [Code Civ. Proc. § 1273.010(b); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1273.010(c) ("person" means governing body authorized to acquire property for public entity or to compromise or settle claims for taking or damaging entity's property)].

[2] Payment of Expenses

The condemnor must pay all the expenses and fees of the neutral arbitrator and the statutory fees and mileage of all witnesses subpoenaed in the arbitration, plus any other expenses incurred or approved by the arbitrator. However, the condemnor is not required to pay attorney's fees, expert witness fees, or other expenses incurred by other parties for their own benefit [Code Civ. Proc. § 1273.020(a)], unless the arbitration agreement requires the payment of these fees, in which case the amount is determined in the arbitration proceeding unless the agreement prescribes otherwise [Code Civ. Proc. § 1273.020(b)]. These expenses and fees may be paid from funds available for the acquisition of the property or from other funds for this purpose [Code Civ. Proc. § 1273.020(c)].

[3] Exceptions to General Arbitration Statutes

Except as specifically provided by the Eminent Domain Law, the general arbitration statutes contained in Code Civ. Proc. § 1280 et seq. govern arbitration agreements to determine compensation [Code Civ. Proc. § 1273.030(a)]. One exception is that, if an eminent domain proceeding to acquire the property has been commenced, any petition or response relating to the arbitration must be filed and determined in the proceeding in the superior court in the county in which all or any part of the property is located [Code Civ. Proc. § 1273.030(b), (e)].

An agreement to arbitrate compensation does not waive or restrict any persons' power to commence and prosecute an eminent domain proceeding, including the taking of possession before judgment, except that, on motion of a party, the court must stay the determination of compensation until any petition for an order to arbitrate is determined and if arbitration is ordered, until arbitration is completed [Code Civ. Proc. § 1273.030(c)]. The parties may agree that the condemnor will not take possession of the property before the award in the arbitration proceeding [Cal. L. Rev. Comm'n Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 1273.030].

[4] Abandonment of Proceeding

The arbitration agreement may specify the terms and conditions under which the condemnor may abandon the acquisition, the arbitration proceeding, and any eminent domain proceeding that has been, or might be, filed. Unless the agreement states that the acquisition cannot be abandoned, the acquisition, arbitration proceeding, and eminent domain proceeding may be abandoned at any time before the time for filing and serving a petition or response to vacate an arbitration award under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1288, 1288.2, and 1290.6 (generally 100 days after service of award) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1273.040(a)].

If the proceeding is abandoned after the arbitration agreement has been executed, the condemnee is entitled to recover (1) all expenses reasonably and necessarily incurred in preparing for, and during, the arbitration and any judicial proceedings relating to the property's acquisition, and in any subsequent judicial proceedings relating to the acquisition; and (2) reasonable attorney's fees, appraisal fees, and fees for the services of other experts when the fees were reasonably and necessarily incurred to protect the condemnee's interests in connection with the acquisition of the property. Unless the agreement provides otherwise, the amount of these expenses and fees are determined by arbitration in accordance with the agreement [Code Civ. Proc. § 1273.040(b)].

[5] Recording Arbitration Agreement

To provide constructive notice to subsequent purchasers and lienors, an agreement to arbitrate compensation may be acknowledged and recorded, and rerecorded, in the same manner and with the same effect as a conveyance of real property except that two years after the date the agreement is recorded, or rerecorded, the record ceases to be notice to any person for any purpose [Code Civ. Proc. § 1273.050(a)].

Instead of recording the agreement, a memorandum of the agreement that has been executed by the parties to the agreement may be recorded. The memorandum must contain at least (1) the names of the parties to the agreement, (2) a description of the property, and (3) a statement that an arbitration agreement affecting the property has been entered. When the memorandum has been acknowledged and recorded in the same manner as a conveyance of real property, it has the same effect as if the agreement itself were recorded [Code Civ. Proc. § 1273.050(b)].

A recorded agreement or memorandum makes the filing of an eminent domain proceeding solely to obtain the effect of a lis pendens unnecessary [Cal. L. Rev. Comm'n Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 1273.050].

"Judgment," as used in the Eminent Domain Law, is the judgment determining the right to take property by eminent domain and fixing the amount of compensation to be paid by the plaintiff [Code Civ. Proc. § 1235.130].

A judgment becomes final when all possibility of direct attack by appeal, motion for a new trial, or motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 663 to vacate the judgment has been exhausted [Code Civ. Proc. § 1235.120].

A judgment rendered in an eminent domain proceeding is binding and conclusive on all persons properly named and properly served [Code Civ. Proc. § 1250.220(d)]. Unknown persons who were named as defendants and properly served by publication are bound by the judgment [see § 247.93[2]].

The judgment bars all claims for past, present, or future damages that are reasonably foreseeable at the time the judgment was entered [Ellena v. State of California (1977) 69 Cal. App. 3d 245, 254, 138 Cal. Rptr. 110] .

§ 247.162 Payment of Judgment

The plaintiff in a condemnation proceeding must pay the full amount required by the judgment not later than 30 days after final judgment, or 30 days after the conclusion of any other court proceedings, including any federal court proceedings, commenced by the defendant challenging the judgment or any of the condemnation proceedings, whichever date is later. Payment must be made by either or both of the following methods: (1) paying the defendant directly, with any amount previously withdrawn by defendant from the deposit of probable compensation being credited; and/or (2) by depositing the money with the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 1268.010(a), (b)(1); for discussion of deposit, see § 247.163].

On entry of judgment, a deposit of probable compensation made before judgment is deemed a deposit made after judgment pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1268.110 if the full amount required by the judgment is deposited or paid [Code Civ. Proc. § 1268.010(b)(2)].

7. Judgment and Postjudgment Procedures

20-247 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 247.163

§ 247.163 Deposit of Award After Judgment

[1] Time and Amount of Deposit

At any time after entry of judgment, the plaintiff may deposit with the court the full amount of the condemnation award with any interest then due, less any amounts previously paid directly to the defendants or deposited before judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 1268.110(a)].

A deposit may be made regardless of whether or not an appeal has been taken or a motion to vacate or set aside the judgment has been made. However, a deposit may not be made after the judgment has been reversed, vacated, or set aside [Code Civ. Proc. § 1268.110(b)]. Any amount deposited on a judgment that is later reversed, vacated, or set aside is deemed to be made before judgment and is governed by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1255.010-1255.080 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1268.110(c)].

If after entry of judgment but before apportionment of the award, the defendants are unable to agree as to the withdrawal of all or a portion of any amount deposited, the court, on motion of any defendant, must order that the amount deposited be invested in United States government obligations or interest-bearing accounts in an institution whose accounts are insured by an agency of the federal government for the benefit of the defendants. The defendants are entitled to the interest earned in proportion to the amount of the award they receive when the award is apportioned [Code Civ. Proc. § 1268.150(b); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1268.320 (interest ceases to accrue on judgment when deposit made)].

[2] Notice of Deposit

If the deposit is made before apportionment of the award, the plaintiff must serve notice to all parties who have appeared in the proceeding. If the deposit is made after apportionment, the plaintiff must serve notice to all of the parties to the proceeding having an interest in the deposit as determined by the order apportioning the award [Code Civ. Proc. § 1268.120]. The notice of deposit must state that a deposit has been made and the date and the amount of the deposit. Service must be made in the same manner as an order for possession and service of an order for possession under Code Civ. Proc. § 1268.220 can be considered as a notice of deposit [Code Civ. Proc. § 1268.120].

[3] Deposit of Award in State or County Treasury

When money is deposited after judgment, the court must order it to be deposited in the State Treasury, or, if the plaintiff files a written request with the deposit, in the county treasury. The money deposited remains at the plaintiff's risk until paid or made payable to the defendant by court order [Code Civ. Proc. § 1268.150(a)].

Money deposited in the State Treasury is held in the Condemnation Deposits Fund, which also includes all interest earned or other increment derived from the money's investment [Gov. Code § 16429(a)]. The money should be invested according to the provisions of Gov. Code §§ 16470-16476 (special fund investments) [Gov. Code § 16429(b); see Gov. Code § 16429(c) (apportionment of interest)].

[4] Increase in Deposit

The court, on motion of any defendant, may order the plaintiff to deposit an additonal amount if it determines that more money is necessary to secure payment of any further compensation, costs, or interest recoverable in the proceeding, including enhanced damages that a defendant may recover on reversal and order for a new trial [Code Civ. Proc. § 1268.130; People ex rel. Dep't Public Wks. v. Loop (1958) 161 Cal. App. 2d 466, 473, 326 P.2d 902] . After the court has made such an order, any party may move for an order increasing or decreasing the additional amount. A defendant cannot withdraw any of the additional amount unless it is determined that he or she is entitled to recover that amount in the proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 1268.130].

[5] Withdrawal of Deposit

After entry of judgment, whether or not the plaintiff has applied for an order for possession, any defendant having an interest in the property for which the deposit was made may obtain a court order entitling the defendant to be paid after he or she files either a satisfaction of the judgment or a receipt for the money that constitutes a waiver of all claims and defenses except a claim for greater compensation [Code Civ. Proc. § 1268.140(a); see § 247.315].

If the award has not been apportioned when the application is made, the applicant for withdrawal must give notice of the application to all other defendants who have appeared in the proceeding and who have an interest in the property. If the award had been apportioned, the applicant must give notice to the other defendants as required by the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 1268.140(b)].

If a party objects to a proposed withdrawal, the court, in its discretion, may require the applicant for withdrawal to file an undertaking similar to those required for withdrawal of a deposit before entry of judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 1268.140(c); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.240].

If the judgment is reversed, vacated, or set aside, a defendant may withdraw a deposit only by following the procedures provided for withdrawing deposits before entry of judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 1268.140(d); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1255.210-1255.280; see also § 247.112].

[6] Repayment of Excess Withdrawal

If a party withdraws more than the amount to which he or she is entitled as finally determined in the proceeding, including any determination on retrial [see City of Downey v. Johnson (1978) 79 Cal. App. 3d 970, 974, 145 Cal. Rptr. 298 (construing former Code Civ. Proc. § 1254(g), now Code Civ. Proc. § 1268.160)], he or she must pay the excess amount to the parties entitled to it, and the court must enter judgment accordingly [Code Civ. Proc. § 1268.160(a)]. The repayment does not include interest if it is paid to the plaintiff, but any amount paid to a defendant includes legal interest from the date of its withdrawal [Code Civ. Proc. § 1268.160(b)].

If the excess amount withdrawn is not paid to the party entitled to it within 30 days after entry of the judgment to do so, the court may enter judgment against the sureties for the amount of the judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 1268.160(c)].

The court, in its discretion and with appropriate security, may grant a party obligated to repay an excess withdrawal a stay of execution for any amount to be paid to a plaintiff for not more than one year following entry of judgment ordering the repayment [Code Civ. Proc. § 1268.160(d)]. Interest accrues during the stay [Cal. L. Rev. Comm'n Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 1268.160(d)].

[7] No Waiver by Deposit

By making a deposit after judgment, the plaintiff does not waive the right to appeal from the judgment, the right to move to abandon, or the right to request a new trial [Code Civ. Proc. § 1268.170].

§ 247.164 Failure to Pay Judgment

If a plaintiff who is a public entity does not pay the judgment within 30 days after final judgment, the defendant may enforce the judgment as provided in Gov. Code § 810 et seq. (claims and actions against public entities and public employees) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1268.020(a)(1); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1268.020(d) (public entity does not include Regents of University of California)]. If a plaintiff who is not a public entity does not pay the judgment within 30 days after final judgment, the defendant may enforce the judgment as in a civil case [Code Civ. Proc. § 1268.020(a)(2); for discussion and forms relating to execution, see Ch. 254, Executions and Enforcement of Judgments]. Alternatively, the defendant, without attempting to use the remedy provided by Code Civ. Proc. § 1268.020(a), may elect to obtain a dismissal of the condemnation proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 1268.020(b), (c); see §§ 247.319 -247.321]. Before obtaining a dismissal, the defendant must show that the plaintiff failed to pay the judgment as required, that the defendant has filed in court and served on the plaintiff a written notice of the plaintiff's failure to pay as required, and that the plaintiff has failed for 20 days after service of the notice to pay the judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 1268.020(b)].

As described above, when the plaintiff fails to pay the judgment within the 30-day period, the defendant has the choice of enforcing the judgment or obtaining a dismissal of the proceeding. When the plaintiff's failure to pay the judgment is due to its insolvency, the plaintiff may not preempt the defendant's right to elect to dismiss by seeking a motion to pay the judgment in installments under Gov. Code § 970.6, which provides general procedures for payment of claims for money or damages against local public entities and specifically allows for spreading payments over a 10-year period [see Community Redevelopment Agency v. Force Electronics (1997) 55 Cal. App. 4th 622, 630-632, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d 209] .

§ 247.165 Possession After Judgment

[1] Order for Possession

The plaintiff, if not in possession of the property to be taken when judgment is entered, may apply ex parte to the court for an order for possession. The court must authorize the plaintiff to take possession of the property pending the litigation's conclusion if the judgment determines that the plaintiff is entitled to take the property and the plaintiff has paid to or deposited for the defendants at least the amount of the award together with the interest then due on the award [Code Civ. Proc. § 1268.210(a); see § 247.314; see also City of Los Angeles v. Decker (1976) 61 Cal. App. 3d 444, 449, 132 Cal. Rptr. 188 (prerequisites to issuance of writ of execution for immediate occupancy pursuant to former Code Civ. Proc. § 1254 (now Code Civ. Proc. § 1268.210), as not altered by passage of Relocation Assistance Act (Gov. Code § 7260 et seq.))]. The plaintiff is entitled to enforcement of this order as a matter of right [Code Civ. Proc. § 1230.050(b)]. This order for possession is appealable [S.F. Unified School Dist. v. Hong Mow (1954) 123 Cal. App. 2d 668, 670, 267 P.2d 349]. Plaintiff does not need to have paid or deposited the amount of the award, plus interest, if the parties have stipulated otherwise [Southern Cal. Gas Co. v. Joseph W. Wolfskill Co. (1963) 212 Cal. App. 2d 882, 889, 28 Cal. Rptr. 345] .

The court's order must state the date after which the plaintiff is authorized to take possession of the property. When a deposit has been made, the order must so state and give the date and amount of the deposit [Code Civ. Proc. § 1268.210(b)].

If the judgment has been reversed, vacated, or set aside, the plaintiff may obtain possession only by using procedures for obtaining possession before entry of judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 1268.210(c)]. However, possession can be obtained despite a pending appeal because an order for possession can be obtained any time after judgment has been entered [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1268.210(a)].

[2] Service of Order for Possession

The plaintiff must serve a copy of the order for possession on each defendant and his or her attorney either personally or by mail, at least 10 days before the date possession is to be taken. If the property is lawfully occupied by a person living on it, or by a farm or business operation, service must be 30 days before the date possession is to be taken [Code Civ. Proc § 1268.220(a)]. However, under the relocation assistance laws, no person lawfully occupying real property can be required to move from a dwelling or move a business or farm operation without at least 90 days' written notice from the condemnor of the date by which the move is required [Gov. Code § 7267.3].

A single service or mailing to one of several persons having a common business or residence address is sufficient [Code Civ. Proc. § 1268.220(b); see discussion of the term "address" in § 247.113[2][b]].

[3] No Waiver of Rights

By taking possession pursuant to an order for possession, the plaintiff does not waive the right to appeal from the judgment, the right to move to abandon, or the right to request a new trial [Code Civ. Proc. § 1268.230].

The order must describe the property taken and identify the judgment authorizing the taking [Code Civ. Proc. § 1268.030(b)].

The party who applied for the order must serve notice on all other parties affected by it. After the order has been granted, any party affected by it may record a certified copy in the office of the recorder of the county in which the property is located and must serve notice of recordation on all other parties affected by the order. If the condemnation is dismissed with regard to defendant's property for any reason or the final judgment states that plaintiff cannot acquire the property after the defendant moved from the property in compliance with an order or agreement for possession or in reasonable contemplation of its taking by the plaintiff, the court must order the plaintiff to deliver possession of the property to the persons entitled to it and pay all damages proximately caused by the proceeding and its dismissal as to that property [Code Civ. Proc. § 1268.620]. These damages include damages for temporary interference with the operation of a business [Cal. L. Rev. Comm'n Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 1268.620; see Heimann v. City of Los Angeles (1947) 30 Cal. 2d 746, 755-756, 185 P.2d 597 (temporary damage caused by delay and loss of use of property due to obstructions) (overruled on other grounds in *County of Los Angeles v. Damages are not available when throughout a proceeding the defendant continues to exercise control over the property and derives substantial income from it [see Los Angeles Unified Sch. Dist. v. Proc. § 1268.410; see Cal. L. Rev. Comm'n Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 1268.410]. The "date of apportionment" is the earliest of the following dates: (1) the date the conveyance to the acquiring entity or the final order of condemnation is recorded; (2) the date of actual possession by the acquiring entity; or (3) the date on or after which the acquiring entity may take possession as authorized by an order for possession or by a declaration of taking [Rev. & Tax. Code § 5082].

The property taxes are not collectible if it appears that the property is being acquired by a public entity [Code Civ. Proc. § 1268.420(a)(1); Rev. & Tax. Code § 5081]. If acquisition of the property will not make it exempt, the taxes are collectible from the plaintiff from the date of apportionment [Code Civ. Proc. § 1268.420(a)(2)]. However, if the proceeding is later dismissed or abandoned, any unpaid taxes are awarded to the defendant and are collected from the award or, if unpaid for any reason, from the defendant [Code Civ. Proc. § 1268.420(b); Cal. L. Rev. Comm'n Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 1268.420].

For further discussion of property taxes, see California Real Estate Law & Practice, Ch. 510, Judgment and Postjudgment, §§ 510.15 -510.17 (Matthew Bender).

[2] Refund of Taxes Paid by Condemnee

If the condemnor took possession of the property before judgment, and the condemnee has paid any property taxes for which the condemnor is liable, the condemnee should claim reimbursement on his or her cost bill. If the condemnor did not take possession before judgment, the condemnee should claim the taxes from the condemnor not later than 30 days after the condemnor took title to the property [Code Civ. Proc. § 1268.430(a), (b)].

§ 247.169 Litigation Expenses

[1] Defined

Litigation expenses include all expenses reasonably and necessarily incurred in the proceeding in preparing for trial, during trial, and in any subsequent judicial proceedings [Code Civ. Proc. § 1268.610(a)]. They include reasonable attorney's fees, appraisal fees, and fees for the service of other experts, whether the fees were incurred for services rendered before or after the complaint was filed [Code Civ. Proc. § 1235.140(b); see § 247.170 (distinguishing between "costs" and "fees")]. However, litigation expenses do not include time and expenses of the owner in preparing to testify, even if the owner qualifies as an expert [County of Madera v. Forrester (1981) 115 Cal. App. 3d 57, 60-62, 170 Cal. Rptr. 896] . For further discussion of attorney's fees, see Chapter 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees . For discussion of the use of contingent fee agreements in condemnation proceedings, see Ch. 72, Attorney Practice and Ethics .

[2] When Defendant May Recover

Because the constitutional requirement for just compensation does not compel a condemnor to pay a condemnee's litigation expenses, these expenses are recoverable only when required by statute [County of Los Angeles v. Ortiz (1971) 6 Cal. 3d 141, 145, 98 Cal. Rptr. 454, 490 P.2d 1142 ; Los Angeles County v. Kranz (1977) 65 Cal. App. 3d 656, 658, 135 Cal. Rptr. 473 (interpreting former Code Civ. Proc. § 1249.3, now Code Civ. Proc. § 1250.410)].

The Eminent Domain Law provides for the recovery of litigation expenses in the following situations:

- When plaintiff entered the property to perform tests or expenses but the entry was unlawful; when the entry was lawful but the activities on the property were abusive or lacking in due regard for the owner's interests; or when the plaintiff failed substantially to comply with the terms of an order made under Code Civ. Proc. § 1245.030 or 1245.040 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1245.060(b)].

- To implement a disclaimer by the defendant [Code Civ. Proc. § 1250.325].

- When the complaint has been amended or supplemented and the expenses would not have been incurred if the proceeding as originally commenced had been the same as the proceeding following the amendment or supplement [Code Civ. Proc. § 1250.340(a)].

- When the plaintiff's settlement offer was unreasonable and the defendant's offer was reasonable [Code Civ. Proc. § 1250.410(b); Coachella Valley County Water Dist. v. Dreyfuss (1979) 91 Cal. App. 3d 949, 956-957, 154 Cal. Rptr. 467 (condemnee was entitled to litigation expenses when condemnor did not accept defendant's final demanduntil trial started because right to recover does not depend on compensation being determined at trial); County of Los Angeles v. Kranz (1977) 65 Cal. App. 3d 656, 660, 135 Cal. Rptr. 473 (condemnees were entitled to award of litigation expenses and attorney's and appraiser's fees when condemnor's final offer was less than 80 percent of jury verdict; and offer ignored condemnee's expert's appraisal); see Glendale Redevelopment Agency v. Parks (1993) 18 Cal. App. 4th 1409, 23 Cal. Rptr. 2d 14 (trial court properly refused to award litigation expenses when final offer was 89 percent of award, and evidence showed that redevelopment agency considered defendant's appraisal, raised its initial offer, and acted reasonably)].

- If the plaintiff does not increase its prejudgment deposit as ordered by the court and the defendant elects to treat the failure as an abandonment of the proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.030(c)].

- As a term or condition on which a party may call a witness or permit a witness to testify to an opinion or data on direct examination when the witness, opinion, or data was not included in the party's list of expert witnesses or statements of valuation data as required by statute [Code Civ. Proc. § 1258.290(a)].

- As a condition to the plaintiff being permitted to take corrective and remedial action so that it has the right to take the property sought [Code Civ. Proc. § 1260.120(c)].

- When the proceeding is wholly or partly dismissed for any reason [Code Civ. Proc. § 1268.610(a)(1); see Temple City Redevelopment Agency v. Bayside Drive Limited Partnership (2007) 146 Cal. App. 4th 1555, 1559-1560, 53 Cal. Rptr. 3d 728 (defendant in eminent domain proceeding who was dismissed because it sold the property while action was pending was entitled to litigation expenses under Code Civ. Proc. § 1268.610(a)(1))].

- When, according to the final judgment, plaintiff is not permitted to acquire the property sought to be taken [Code Civ. Proc. § 1268.610(a)(2)].

When there is a partial dismissal or a final judgment that the plaintiff cannot take part of the property originally sought to be acquired, or a dismissal of one or more plaintiffs pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1260.020 (determination of more necessary public use when proceedings to acquire same property are consolidated), the court must award to the defendant only those litigation expenses that would not have been incurred if the property sought to be acquired following the dismissal or judgment had been the property originally sought to be acquired [Code Civ. Proc. § 1268.610(b)]. If the plaintiff files a notice of abandonment or request for dismissal as to a particular defendant, and the court determines that the defendant did not own or have any interest in the property that the plaintiff sought to acquire, the litigation expenses awarded to that defendant are limited to those expenses incurred up to the time the notice of abandonment or request for dismissal was filed [Code Civ. Proc. § 1268.610(c)].

Litigation expenses awarded when the proceeding is wholly or partly dismissed or when the final judgment is that the plaintiff cannot take the property sought by it must be claimed in and by a cost bill to be prepared, served, filed, and taxed as in a civil action. If the proceeding is dismissed on motion of the plaintiff, the cost bill must be filed within 30 days after notice of entry of judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 1268.610(d); for discussion of cost bills, see Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees].

§ 247.170 Costs

Requiring the defendant to pay any of his or her reasonable costs, including those on appeal, would reduce the just compensation constitutionally required to be awarded by a sum equal to that paid by defendant for the costs [City of Los Angeles v. Ricards (1973) 10 Cal. 3d 385, 390, 110 Cal. Rptr. 489, 515 P.2d 585] . Consequently, a defendant is allowed his or her costs, including the costs of determining the apportionment of the award made pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1260.220(b) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1268.710]. The defendant is also allowed costs on appeal whether or not he or she is the prevailing party, unless either the court otherwise orders or the appeal involves issues between defendants [Code Civ. Proc. § 1268.720; see Pacific Gas & Electric Co. v. Zuckerman (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 1113, 1147-1148, 234 Cal. Rptr. 630 (in absence of special circumstances, costs must be awarded to defendant on appeal)]. The costs of determining any issue as to title between two or more defendants is borne by the defendants in the proportion directed by the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 1268.710]. Additionally, defendants with a single, unified interest may be allowed only a single cost bill [Assembly Legislative Committee Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 1268.710; see City of Downey v. Gonzales (1968) 262 Cal. App. 2d 563, 568-569, 69 Cal. Rptr. 34] .

The term "costs" as used in the eminent domain statutes refers only to ordinary costs of suit, such as sheriff's and jury fees, and not to the fees of experts or attorneys. Consequently, fees for daily court attendance and mileage of expert witnesses called by the prevailing party are allowed as costs, but fees paid to witnesses as experts and expenses incurred in preparing maps and making surveys before trial are not allowed [County of Los Angeles v. Ortiz (1971) 6 Cal. 3d 141, 144, 98 Cal. Rptr. 454, 490 P.2d 1142 ; People v. Bowman (1959) 173 Cal. App. 2d 416, 418, 343 P.2d 267 ; see Assembly Legislative Committee Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 1268.710]. This rule regarding payment of fees of an expert witness does not apply when the trial court has appointed the expert, an order has been secured from the court before trial, or the fees are recoverable as litigation expenses [People v. Bowman (1959) 173 Cal. App. 2d 416, 418, 343 P.2d 267 ; see § 247.169[1]].

§ 247.171 Interest

[1] Accrual

The compensation awarded in an eminent domain proceeding draws interest from the earliest of the following dates: (1) the date of entry of judgment; (2) the date the plaintiff takes possession of the property; or (3) the date after which the plaintiff is authorized to take possession of the property as stated in an order for possession [Code Civ. Proc. § 1268.310; see People ex rel. DOT v. Southern California Edison Co. (2000) 22 Cal. 4th 791, 797-798, 94 Cal. Rptr. 2d 609, 996 P.2d 711] . The amount of interest is assessed by the court, not the jury [Code Civ. Proc. § 1268.340]. Interest from the date of possession may include interest from the date of constructive taking when the owner establishes that precondemnation activities amounted to a constructive taking before the condemnation proceeding [People ex rel. Dept. of Transportation v. Gardella Square (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 559, 572-574, 246 Cal. Rptr. 139] .

The California Supreme Court declined to apply Code Civ. Proc. § 1268.310 to a case in which an eminent domain proceeding was filed 25 years after the Department of Transportation, pursuant to agreement between the parties, took possession of the property on which a freeway was built. The Court declined to apply § 1268.310 because (1) an interest award accrued since the date of possession would greatly exceed the amount required for just compensation, (2) the agreement between the parties indefinitely postponed the determination of compensation, and (3) Southern California Edison, the property owner, was familiar with condemnation law and did not act diligently to request the Department of Transportation to institute eminent domain proceedings [People ex rel. DOT v. Southern California Edison Co. (2000) 22 Cal. 4th 791, 798-804, 94 Cal. Rptr. 2d 609, 996 P.2d 711] .

The term "judgment" refers to the judgment determining the right to take the property by eminent domain and fixing the amount of compensation to be paid by the plaintiff, sometimes referred to as the interlocutory judgment. The judgment does not need to be final before interest commences to accrue because the interlocutory judgment gives the plaintiff the right to take the property and fixes defendant's right to compensation for the taking [Bellflower City School Dist. v. Skaggs (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 278, 280-281, 339 P.2d 848] .

[2] Rate of Interest

The rate of interest payable for each six-month period, or fraction thereof, for which interest is due, is the apportionment rate for the immediately preceding six-month period [Code Civ. Proc. § 1268.350(b)]. The "apportionment rate" means the apportionment rate calculated by the Controller as the rate of earnings by the Surplus Money Investment Fund for each calendar quarter [Code Civ. Proc. § 1268.350(a)]. The interest payable for each calendar quarter draws interest computed as described above, in each succeeding calendar quarter for which interest is due [Code Civ. Proc. § 1268.360]. Each district office of the Department of Transportation must quote the apportionment rate to any person on request [Code Civ. Proc. § 1268.350(c)].

This provision was added in 1986 in response to the California Supreme Court's holding that the state and federal constitution require that interest be paid at the market rate rather than at the legal rate [see Redevelopment Agency v. Gilmore (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 790, 798-802, 214 Cal. Rptr. 904, 700 P.2d 794] .

If a public agency makes a deposit of probable compensation and it is not immediately withdrawn by the landowner, the landowner is only entitled to the statutory rate of interest on the deposit, not to the market rate [Redevelopment Agency v. Erganian (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 166, 170-172, 259 Cal. Rptr. 213] .

[3] Exceptions to Accrual

If the plaintiff makes a deposit of probable compensation pursuant to a demand by a homeowner under the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.040, interest on the amount deposited does not accrue if the deposit is made on or before the date specified by defendant. However, on motion and good cause shown by the plaintiff, if the deposit is not made on or before that date or the date specified by the court, interest accrues from the date specified by the defendant or the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.040(c)]. If the plaintiff makes a deposit after that date, interest stops accruing on the date that the amount is withdrawn by the person entitled to it [Code Civ. Proc. § 1268.320(a)].

If the plaintiff abandons the proceeding after a homeowner has made a demand for deposit, the interest may be recovered as costs in the manner provided for the recovery of litigation expenses under Code Civ. Proc. § 1268.610. If, in the proceeding, the court or a jury verdict eventually determines the compensation that would have been awarded to the defendant, the interest is computed on the amount of the award. If no such determination is ever made, interest is computed on the probable amount of compensation as determined by the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.040(d)].

If the lessor of property subject to a leasehold interest demands that plaintiff make a deposit of probable compensation but plaintiff fails to make the deposit, interest on the award accrues from the date the deposit should have been made, but it is offset by the lessor's net rental profits [Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.050].

[4] Date Interest Ceases to Accrue

Compensation awarded in the proceeding stops drawing interest at the earliest of the following dates [Code Civ. Proc. § 1268.320]:

- As to any amount of probable compensation deposited before judgment pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1255.010-1255.080, the date the amount is withdrawn by the person entitled to it;

- As to the amount of the award deposited after judgment pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1268.110-1268.710, the date of the deposit; or

- As to any amount paid to the person entitled to it, the date of the payment.

If a prejudgment deposit has been made and the deposit is not withdrawn, interest continues to accrue on entry of judgment unless the amount of the deposit is in the full amount awarded in the judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 1268.320(b); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1268.010(b)(2) (prejudgment deposit deemed postjudgment deposit on entry of award); Cal. L. Rev. Comm'n Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 1268.320]. If the prejudgment deposit is not in the full amount required by the judgment, interest ceases to accrue when an amount sufficient to bring it up to the full amount of the judgment is added [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1268.110(a) (postjudgment deposit required to be full amount of judgment less amounts previously deposited), 1268.320(b); see Cal. L. Rev. Comm'n Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 1268.320]. When a postjudgment deposit for the full amount of the judgment is made, interest stops accruing only if the deposit was made in accordance with statutory requirements, was made for the defendant, and is withdrawable by defendant [Burbank v. Nordahl (1962) 199 Cal. App. 2d 311, 321, 18 Cal. Rptr. 710 (decided under former Code Civ. Proc. § 1254)].

Although a defendant may not withdraw a postjudgment deposit without waiving his or her right to appeal on any grounds other than the adequacy of compensation, the provision that interest ceases to accrue on an award when a postjudgment deposit is made is constitutional. However, when the postjudgment deposit is deposited with the county treasurer who puts it in an interest-bearing account, the defendant in entitled to the interest earned on the amount during his or her appeal [Redevelopment Agency v. Goodman (1975) 53 Cal. App. 3d 424, 430-431, 434-435, 125 Cal. Rptr. 818 ; Code Civ. Proc. § 1268.140(a)].

[5] Offsets Against Interest

If the defendant continues in actual possession of the property after interest begins to accrue, the value of the defendant's possession that is presumed to be the legal rate of interest on the compensation awarded is offset against the interest. This presumption affects the burden of proof [Code Civ. Proc. § 1268.330(a)]. Similarly, if the defendant, receives rents or other income from the property attributable to the period after interest begins to accrue, the net amount of the rents and other income is offset against the interest [Code Civ. Proc. § 1268.330(b)]. However, these offsets are not made when a demand for a prejudgment deposit has been made by a homeowner [Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.040(c)].

B. Inverse Condemnation

20-247 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 247.190

§ 247.190 Inverse Condemnation Defined; Differences Between Inverse Condemnation and Eminent Domain

Inverse condemnation is an invasion or appropriation by a public entity of some valuable property right that a landowner possesses that directly and specially affects the landowner to his or her injury [Selby Realty Co. v. City of San Buenaventura (1973) 10 Cal. 3d 110, 119-120, 109 Cal. Rptr. 799, 514 P.2d 111] .

Inverse condemnation is one of the two basic procedural devices for enforcing the rule of Cal. Const., art. I, § 19, that private property may not be taken or damaged for public use without just compensation having first been made to the owner. The other procedural device is eminent domain, which is discussed in Part A. One significant difference between the two procedures is that in eminent domain, the public authority takes the initiative, whereas in inverse condemnation, the property owner commences the litigation [Klopping v. City of Whittier (1972) 8 Cal. 3d 39, 43, 104 Cal. Rptr. 1, 500 P.2d 1345] . Another important difference is that in eminent domain litigation, the focus is usually limited to the amount of compensation owed the property owner; in an inverse condemnation action, before the compensation issue is even reached, the property owner must establish that the public entity has, in fact, taken or damaged his or her property [San Diego Gas & Electric Co. v. Superior Court (1996) 13 Cal. 4th 893, 939-940, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 724, 920 P.2d 669 ; Beaty v. Imperial Irrigation Dist. (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 897, 903].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Inverse Condemnation

20-247 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 247.191

§ 247.191 Relationship to Tort

A public entity's liability in inverse condemnation does not depend on or derive from statutory or common law tort doctrines. Liability is based on the construction, as a matter of interpretation and policy, of the constitutional provision requiring just compensation for taking or damaging property [Holtz v. Superior Court (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 296, 303, 90 Cal. Rptr. 345, 475 P.2d 441] . Conduct that amounts to negligence, however, can support inverse condemnation liability [Barham v. Southern California Edison Co. (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 744, 755, 88 Cal. Rptr. 2d 424 ; see Marshall v. Department of Water & Power (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 1124, 268 Cal. Rptr. 559 (recovery for property consumed by brush fire resulting from downed power cables); Aetna Life & Casualty Co. v. City of Los Angeles (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 865, 216 Cal. Rptr. 831 (recovery for property consumed by brush fire resulting from arching power cables)].

To avoid application of the bar of the Tort Claims Act [Gov. Code § 810 et seq.], however, the inverse condemnation claim must be based on damage caused by dangers inherent in the functioning of the public improvement as deliberately conceived, altered, and maintained. If the claim is for an injury caused by an exercise of the police power, or by negligence in the routine operation of the improvement that is not related to its function as conceived, it will be barred [Pacific Bell v. City of San Diego (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 596, 602-607, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 897 ; *see Customer Co. v. City of Sacramento (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 368, 381-382, 41 Cal. Because inverse condemnation actions are grounded in the constitutional proscription against taking or damaging without just compensation, such an action may be maintained even though the defendant does not have statutory authority to exercise affirmative eminent domain powers to accomplish the same result as the relief sought [*Baker v. 20-247 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 247.193

§ 247.193 Elements of Cause of Action for Inverse Condemnation

[1] Taking or Damaging

Compensation is required when property has been taken or damaged [Cal. Const., art. I, § 19]. Taking or damaging is the invasion or appropriation of a valuable property right [Selby Realty Co. v. City of San Buenaventura (1973) 10 Cal. 3d 110, 119, 109 Cal. Rptr. 799, 514 P.2d 111] . The determination of whether or not there has been a compensable taking or damaging depends on whether or not the owner of the damaged property, if uncompensated, would contribute more than a proper share to the public undertaking. In other words, the underlying purpose of the constitutional provision requiring compensation is to distribute evenly throughout the community the loss inflicted on the individual. A contrary policy consideration is that compensation too freely allowed will seriously impede, if not stop, beneficial public improvements because of the greatly increased cost [Varjabedian v. City of Madera (1977) 20 Cal. 3d 285, 296, 142 Cal. Rptr. 429, 572 P.2d 43] .

In Border Business Park, Inc. v. City of San Diego, the court of appeal reversed an inverse condemnation award of $63.5 million to a business park [Border Business Park, Inc. v. City of San Diego (2006) 142 Cal. App. 4th 1538, 1548, 49 Cal. Rptr. 3d 259] . The court held that the evidence was insufficient as a matter of law to support a finding of inverse condemnation on the basis that the city's failed plans to construct an airport in the vicinity substantially interfered with sales of property within the business park and diminished the value of the property. Although the trial court had awarded damages under a Klopping theory [see Klopping v. Whittier (1972) 8 Cal. 3d 39, 43, 104 Cal. Rptr. 1, 500 P.2d 1345 (condemnee may recover damages resulting from unreasonable delay by condemnor in bringing eminent domain action), discussed in § 243.137], the court of appeal concluded that it did not have to decide whether the city's conduct was unreasonable or oppressive within the meaning of Klopping, because the plaintiff failed to adduce any evidence that the city's announcements concerning the proposed airport subjected it to direct and special injury [Border Business Park, Inc. v. City of San Diego (2006) 142 Cal. App. 4th 1538, 1548, 49 Cal. Rptr. 3d 259 ; see Selby Realty Co. v. City of San Buenaventura (1973) 10 Cal. 3d 110, 119-120, 109 Cal. Rptr. 799, 514 P.2d 111 (to prevail on claim of inverse condemnation "there must be an invasion or an appropriation of some valuable property right which the landowner possesses and the invasion or appropriation must directly and specially affect the landowner to his injury")].

An interesting, but unsuccessful, argument in support of an alleged taking was advanced in Moerman v. State of California (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 452, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 329 . Plaintiff alleged that the state had relocated tule elk that had damaged his property. It was uncontested that, in accordance with legislative directive, the State Department of Fish and Game had instituted a program of relocating tule elk to their native ranges. The majority of the tule elk were released approximately 14 miles from plaintiff's property between four and six years before plaintiff observed approximately 50 elk on his property damaging fences and eating crops meant for his livestock [Moerman v. State of California (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 452, 455, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 329] .

Plaintiff conceded that courts have generally held that government agencies are not responsible for damages caused by wild animals, but contended that the state had exhibited control or possession of the tule elk and was, therefore, responsible for the presence of tule elk on his property and the damage caused by the elk. Plaintiff argued that the state's alleged interference with the use and enjoyment of his property amounted to a taking entitling him to compensation of approximately $100,000 [Moerman v. State of California (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 452, 455-456, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 329] .

The trial court granted defendants' motion for summary judgment and concluded that tule elk were wild animals, that the state had exercised no control over them since their relocation, and that the relocation did not change their status as wild animals [Moerman v. State of California (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 452, 456, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 329] . The appellate court affirmed the trial court, finding that "there has been no physical taking of [plaintiff's] property as the tule elk are not instrumentalities of the state nor are they controlled by the state." The court further noted that the state's relocation plan allowed some hunting of the elk. While the court acknowledged that it would be difficult for plaintiff to exclude the elk without harming them, plaintiff did have opportunities to mitigate the damage to his property [Moerman v. State of California (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 452, 459, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 329] .

When a public entity's conduct results in an intangible intrusion onto the plaintiff's property that does not physically damage the property, the question whether there has been a "taking or damaging" of the property sufficient to support an inverse condemnation action is more difficult. In these circumstances, the plaintiff must allege that the intrusion has resulted in a burden on the property that is direct, substantial, and peculiar to the property itself [San Diego Gas & Electric Co. v. Superior Court (1996) 13 Cal. 4th 893, 940, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 724, 920 P.2d 669 ; Varjabedian v. City of Madera (1977) 20 Cal. 3d 285, 298, 142 Cal. Rptr. 429, 572 P.2d 43] . This test has been applied by various courts in inverse condemnation actions based on such intangible intrusions as (1) nauseous gases from a sewage treatment facility flowing directly onto a plaintiff's land [see Varjabedian v. City of Madera (1977) 20 Cal. 3d 285, 298, 142 Cal. Rptr. 429, 572 P.2d 43] ; (2) electric and magnetic fields emitted from electric power lines adjacent to the plaintiffs' property [see San Diego Gas & Electric Co. v. Superior Court (1996) 13 Cal. 4th 893, 942-943, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 724, 920 P.2d 669] ; (3) jet aircraft noise from a nearby municipal airport [see Aaron v. City of Los Angeles (1974) 40 Cal. App. 3d 471, 493, 115 Cal. Rptr. 162 ; see § 247.256[10]]; and (4) traffic noise, dust, and loss of air and light due to freeway construction [see Harding v. State ex rel. Dep't of Transportation (1984) 159 Cal. App. 3d 359, 367, 205 Cal. Rptr. 561] .

[2] Protectable Property Interests

For inverse condemnation purposes, the term "property" has a broad definition. It is not used in the nontechnical sense of the physical thing with respect to which the citizen exercises rights recognized by law. Instead, it denotes the group of rights inherent in the citizen's relation to the physical thing, such as the right to possess, use, and dispose of it [Agins v. Tiburon (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 266, 273, 157 Cal. Rptr. 372, 598 P.2d 25 , aff'd, 447 U.S. 255, 100 S. Ct. 2138, 65 L. Ed. 2d 106 (1980)] . Thus, the taking of a building restriction in a deed by condemning the burdened land requires compensation to the owner of the adjacent land in whose favor the building restriction runs [Southern Cal. Edison Co. v. Bourgerie (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 169, 172-175, 107 Cal. Rptr. 76, 507 P.2d 964] . Also, the taking of tangible personal property, as well as real property, requires compensation [Eli v. California (1975) 46 Cal. App. 3d 233, 235, 120 Cal. Rptr. 63] .

However, to be a protectable property interest and therefore compensable in an inverse condemnation proceeding, the interest must be more substantial than a mere unilateral expectation of continued rights or benefits, such as the hope that a 50-year lease to operate a golf course, which had expired naturally, would be renewed. Without a vested, legally enforceable property interest, there is no basis for compensation in an inverse condemnation proceeding for loss of future business [San Diego Metro. Transit Dev. Bd. v. Handlery Hotel, Inc. (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 517, 532, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 473] . Similarly, the taking of a license or privilege that is unenforceable against the owner of the property does not require compensation [Belmont County Water Dist. v. State of California (1976) 65 Cal. App. 3d 13, 19, 135 Cal. Rptr. 163] . Nor is freedom from competition a compensable property right; therefore, a public entity's commencement of a bus line competing with plaintiff's bus line did not require compensation [Peerless Stages Inc. v. Santa Cruz Met. Transit Dist. (1977) 67 Cal. App. 3d 343, 347, 136 Cal. Rptr. 567] .

[3] Public Use

A taking is not compensable unless it is for a public use [Cal. Const., art. I, § 19]. Inverse condemnation is a remedy only for an injury to private property resulting from a deliberate act undertaken to fulfill the public objects of a project as a whole. Neither negligent acts committed during the routine day-to-day operation of a public improvement, nor negligence in the routine operations having no relation to the function of the project as conceived, gives rise to an inverse condemnation claim [Bauer v. County of Ventura (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 276, 286-287, 289 P.2d 1] . However, the property damaged or destroyed need not be devoted to a public use; the damage need only be caused by a public project. Thus, when the state's flood control project caused water to discharge and destroy plaintiff's vehicles, the state was held liable in inverse condemnation [Sutfin v. State of California (1968) 261 Cal. App. 2d 50, 54-57, 67 Cal. Rptr. 665] .

A taking may be held to be for public use, even though the improvement was not constructed by a public entity, if the improvement was approved or accepted by the public entity, such as streets or drains constructed by a private developer but accepted or approved by the public entity [Heimann v. Los Angeles (1947) 30 Cal. 2d 746, 756-757, 185 P.2d 597 ; see Marin v. City of San Rafael (1980) 111 Cal. App. 3d 591, 595, 168 Cal. Rptr. 750 (storm drain constructed by developer caused damage) (overruled on other grounds in County of Los Angeles v. Faus [1957] 48 Cal. 2d 672, 679, 312 P.2d 680)].

[4] Substantial Causation Test

To establish the required causal connection between a public improvement and a plaintiff's damages, there must be a showing of a substantial cause-and-effect relationship excluding the possibility that other forces alone produced the injury [Belair v. Riverside County Flood Control Dist. (1988) 47 Cal. 3d 550, 559, 253 Cal. Rptr. 693, 764 P.2d 1070] . When independently generated forces not induced by the public improvement, such as a rainstorm, contribute to the injury, proximate cause is established if the public improvement constitutes a substantial concurring cause of the injury (i.e., if the injury occurred in substantial part because the improvement failed to function as it was intended) [Belair v. Riverside County Flood Control Dist. (1988) 47 Cal. 3d 550, 559-560, 253 Cal. Rptr. 693, 764 P.2d 1070] .

The public improvement would cease to be a substantial contributing factor, however, if it could be shown that the damage would have occurred even if the project had operated perfectly (i.e., if a storm exceeds a flood control project's design capacity). Such an extraordinary cause would constitute an intervening cause that supersedes the public improvement in the chain of causation [Belair v. Riverside County Flood Control Dist. (1988) 47 Cal. 3d 550, 560, 253 Cal. Rptr. 693, 764 P.2d 1070] .

This substantial cause requirement was set forth in 1988 by the California Supreme Court. The original rule had been that recovery could be had when physical injuries had proximately caused the damage [Albers v. County of Los Angeles (1965) 62 Cal. 2d 250, 263-264, 42 Cal. Rptr. 89, 398 P.2d 129] . The Court had subsequently recognized that greater precision came from stating the test in terms of substantial cause [Holtz v. Superior Court (1970) 3 Cal. 3d

296, 304, 90 Cal. Rptr. 345, 475 P.2d 441] . The substantial causation test had been adopted by several courts of appeal [Blau v. City of Los Angeles (1973) 32 Cal. App. 3d 77, 84-85, 107 Cal. Rptr. 727 ; Ingram v. Redondo Beach (1973) 45 Cal. App. 3d 628, 633-634, 119 Cal. Rptr. 688] .

[5] Damages

If the taking or damaging by the public entity did not cause any economic injury, the owner is only entitled to nominal damages. This rule was applied when a temporary impairment of access did not damage the owner because the property was being held for sale and was not sold during the period in which the access was impaired [see City of Los Angeles v. Ricards (1973) 10 Cal. 3d 385, 389-390, 110 Cal. Rptr. 489, 515 P.2d 585] . For a discussion of the measure of damages in an action for inverse condemnation, see § 247.202.

An insurer can also file a separate action for subrogation after the insured has recovered in inverse condemnation to recover payments made under the policy [*Travelers Indem. Co. v. 20-247 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 247.195

§ 247.195 Liability for Impairment of Lateral or Subjacent Support

When the activities of a public entity damage plaintiff's real property by taking away or impairing its lateral or subjacent support, the entity is liable regardless of the foreseeability of the damage, even if a private person would not be liable for the same activities. Thus, a public entity was held liable when its excavation adjacent to plaintiff's property caused damage by impairing its lateral support, even though a private party might have had a statutory defense in similar circumstances [Holtz v. Superior Court (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 296, 300-304, 90 Cal. Rptr. 345, 475 P.2d 441] . Similarly, a public entity was held liable when its road-building activities caused a major landslide that damaged plaintiff's property, even though the landslide was not foreseeable [Albers v. County of Los Angeles (1965) 62 Cal. 2d 250, 262-264, 42 Cal. Rptr. 89, 398 P.2d 129] .

In another case, plaintiff brought an action for inverse condemnation against the city, alleging that the city's groundwater extraction program had caused subsidence, resulting in damage to plaintiff's property. The trial court rejected the city's affirmative defense that it was immune from liability for inverse condemnation under its police powers due to an emergency created by a drought. The court of appeal affirmed, holding that the city's removal of subjacent support worked a physical taking for which compensation was required. In so holding, the court found that the exception to compensation for damages inflicted in accordance with the proper exercise of the emergency police power was inapplicable. The court found that the city had chosen to use a combination of mild conservation measures and the damaging groundwater pumping over a period of years. Further, the city never declared an emergency under the Emergency Services Act, nor did it require more stringent conservation measures of its citizens [Los Osos Valley Associates v. City of San Luis Obispo (1994) 30 Cal. App. 4th. 1670, 1680-1681, 36 Cal. Rptr. 2d 758] .

§ 247.196 Liability for Airport Noise

A public entity that owns and operates an airport is liable for a taking or damaging of property if the owner of property in the vicinity of the airport can show a measurable reduction in market value resulting from the operation of the airport in such manner that the noise from aircraft using the airport causes a substantial interference with the use and enjoyment of the property. The interference must be sufficiently direct and peculiar that the owner, if uncompensated, would pay more than a fair share to the public undertaking. The public entity is liable even though the airspace above the property has not been invaded [*Aaron v. City of Los Angeles (1974) 40 Cal. App. 3d 471, 484, 115 Cal. 20-247 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 247.197

§ 247.197 Liability for Unreasonable Precondemnation Delay

[1] Common Law Liability

A property owner is entitled to damages in inverse condemnation if the public authority acted improperly either by unreasonably delaying an eminent domain action following an announcement of intent to condemn or by other unreasonable conduct before the condemnation, if such action caused the property to suffer a diminution in market value [Klopping v. Whittier (1972) 8 Cal. 3d 39, 52-54, 104 Cal. Rptr. 1, 500 P.2d 1345] . Damages have been recovered when a city delayed commencing a condemnation proceeding for 29 months after it had announced an intent to condemn [Stone v. City of Los Angeles (1975) 51 Cal. App. 3d 987, 993, 124 Cal. Rptr. 822] , and when the public entity did not pass a resolution to condemn until three years after first indicating to plaintiff that his property would be acquired [People ex rel. Dep't Pub. Wks. v. Peninsula Enterprises, Inc. (1979) 91 Cal. App. 3d 332, 353-357, 153 Cal. Rptr. 895] . Similarly, an award of damages for the entire value of certain property was upheld when (1) the defendant redevelopment agency's plan contemplated taking the property; (2) the agency entered into an option contract with a developer to develop the property; (3) the existence of the plan and the option caused diminution in the value of the property, loss of tenants, and impaired its salability; and (4) the agency subsequently decided not to take the property. The court awarded the owner the entire value of the property and ordered that the property be deeded to the agency on payment [Richmond Elks Hall Ass'n v. Richmond Redevelopment (9th Cir. 1977) 561 F.2d 1327, 1329-1331] .

A city was held liable for unreasonable precondemnation delay for doing the following after having decided to purchase the property: unreasonably dragging out the negotiations, progressively reducing its offers, and unreasonably delaying commencement of the eminent domain action. However, the city was not liable for the entire value of the property because the city's activities did not amount to a complete taking; the city was only liable for the loss of market value, which may be measured by the loss of the reasonable value of the use of the property [Taper v. City of Long Beach (1982) 129 Cal. App. 3d 590, 610-614, 181 Cal. Rptr. 169] .

A business owner was not entitled to recover as Klopping damages the expenses incurred in purchasing and maintaining a new location for an ongoing business for the purpose of mitigating an anticipated loss of goodwill when the existing location was to be condemned [see Barthelemy v. Orange County Flood Control (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 558, 561,

568-572, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 575] .

[2] Statutory Liability for Failure to Commence Eminent Domain Proceeding After Resolution of Necessity Adopted

If a public entity has adopted a resolution of necessity but has not commenced an eminent domain proceeding to acquire the property within six months after the date the resolution was adopted, or has commenced a proceeding but has not attempted diligently to serve the complaint and the summons within six months after the proceeding was commenced, the property owner, by an action in inverse condemnation, may (1) require the public entity to take the property and pay compensation for it, and/or (2) recover damages from the public entity for any interference with the possession and use of the property resulting from the resolution's adoption [Code Civ. Proc. § 1245.260(a); see § 247.344]. Service by mail pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 415.30 constitutes a diligent attempt at service [Code Civ. Proc. § 1245.260(a)]. One attempted service by mail is sufficient to constitute a diligent attempt [State of California v. Western Natural Rubber, Inc. (1991) 235 Cal. App. 3d 1495, 1500-1502, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 495] .

Presenting a claim against the public entity under Gov. Code § 900 et seq. is not a prerequisite to commencement or maintenance of the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 1245.260(b)].

If the public entity commences an eminent domain proceeding or rescinds the resolution before the property owner brings suit, the property owner is precluded from bringing an action under Code Civ. Proc. § 1245.260, but still has the right to bring an inverse condemnation action based on Cal. Const., art. I, § 19 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1245.260(c); Cal. L. Revision Comm'n Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 1245.260; San Diego Metropolitan Transit Development Board v. RV Communities (2007) 158 Cal. App. 4th 313, 338, 69 Cal. Rptr. 3d 705].

After the property owner has commenced the action, the public entity may rescind the resolution and abandon the taking of the property only under the same circumstances and subject to the same conditions and consequences as abandonment of an eminent domain proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 1245.260(d); see § 247.101]. However, commencement of the action does not affect any authority the public entity has to commence an eminent domain proceeding, take possession of the property pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1255.410 et seq., or abandon the eminent domain proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 1245.260(e)].

Instead of bringing an action under Code Civ. Proc. § 1245.260(a), or if a period of more than one year and six months has passed since the resolution of necessity was adopted, the property owner may obtain a writ of mandate to compel the public entity to rescind the resolution of necessity or to commence an eminent domain proceeding to acquire the property within such time as the court deems appropriate [Code Civ. Proc. § 1245.260(f); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1245.260(b) (period of limitation); see also § 247.345].

[3] Limitations on Right to Recover

Planning designations of property, such as including property in proposed streets or proposed parks in a general plan, are not sufficient to support a cause of action for inverse condemnation. If such a cause of action were to be recognized, the process of planning would either grind to a halt or result in meaningless generalizations [Selby Realty Co. v. San Buenaventura (1973) 10 Cal. 3d 110, 119-121, 109 Cal. Rptr. 799, 514 P.2d 111 , 514 P.2d 111 (streets); Rancho La Costa v. County of San Diego (1980) 111 Cal. App. 3d 54, 60-66, 168 Cal. Rptr. 491 (parks)].

Precondemnation delay damages are also not authorized if the delay is reasonable, such as a delay required to obtain funding, to follow statutory procedures, and to hold a required bond election, or a delay for a public hearing and special election [Briggs v. State of California (1979) 98 Cal. App. 3d 190, 204-207, 159 Cal. Rptr. 390 (funding and election); Toso v. City of Santa Barbara (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 934, 952-953, 162 Cal. Rptr. 210 (hearing and election)].

An owner of undeveloped land is not damaged by a delay if the property could not have been rented [City of Los Angeles v. Lowensohn (1976) 54 Cal. App. 3d 625, 636, 127 Cal. Rptr. 417] . Nor is such a landowner damaged by delay if the undeveloped property was being held for speculative purposes and not for immediate sale [Los Angeles v. Waller (1979) 90 Cal. App. 3d 766, 779-780, 154 Cal. Rptr. 12] . Finally, a landowner may not recover for precondemnation delay when the value of the property increased during the delay period [City and County of San Francisco v. Golden Gate Heights Investments (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 1203, 1212-1213, 18 Cal. Rptr. 2d 467] .

[4] Procedure for Seeking Precondemnation Delay Damages

If an eminent domain action is brought by the public entity, precondemnation delay damages should be sought in that action as part of the condemnation award. A judgment in the eminent domain action bars a later action for delay damages [Klopping v. City of Whittier (1972) 8 Cal. 3d 39, 58, 104 Cal. Rptr. 1, 500 P.2d 1345].

Before revision of the Eminent Domain Law, cases held that inverse condemnation damages had to be sought in the answer to the eminent domain action [Richmond Redevelopment Agency v. Western Title Guaranty Co. (1975) 48 Cal. App. 3d 343, 350, 122 Cal. Rptr. 434 ; see People ex rel. Dept. Pub. Wks. v. Peninsula Enterprises, Inc. (1979) 91 Cal. App. 3d 332, 353, 153 Cal. Rptr. 895]. However, such damages now must be sought by cross-complaint. Under the current statutory scheme, the only requirement that damages be specifically claimed by answer to an eminent domain complaint is that when the defendant seeks compensation for loss of goodwill, the answer must specifically state that the defendant claims compensation under Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.510, but the amount of such damage does not have to be alleged [Code Civ. Proc. § 1250.320; San Diego Metropolitan Transit Development Board v. RV Communities (2007) 158 Cal. App. 4th 313, 335, 69 Cal. Rptr. 3d 705].

A claim for damages for delay may not be raised as a part of the cost bill after the public entity has abandoned the action; it must be raised by separate action or by answer in the eminent domain action [State of California v. Meyer (1985) 174 Cal. App. 3d 1061, 1068-1072, 220 Cal. Rptr. 884] .

§ 247.198 Liability for Impairment of Right of Access to Public Streets

[1] Interference Must Be Substantial

A property owner has a cause of action in inverse condemnation if the public entity's activities impair access to the general system of public streets. However, not every interference with access to the street on which his or her property abuts is compensable; the interference must be substantial [Breidert v. Southern Pac. Co. (1964) 61 Cal. 2d 659, 663-664, 39 Cal. Rptr. 903, 394 P.2d 719] . If the basic right of direct access to the adjacent street and the through traffic on it is not affected, a public agency may enact and enforce reasonable and proper traffic regulation without payment of compensation, even though such regulation may impede the convenience with which ingress and egress may be accomplished and may necessitate circuity of travel to reach a given destination. In the proper exercise of police power, a public entity may do many things that are not compensable, such as constructing a traffic island, installing permanent dividing strips, painting double lines, or making a street one-way [People v. Ayon (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 217, 223-224, 5 Cal. Rptr. 151, 352 P.2d 519] .

Indirect impairment of access by cutting off access to the general street system at one of the next intersecting streets may require compensation, but only if the resulting impairment is substantial [Breidert v. Southern Pac. Co. (1964) 61 Cal. 2d 659, 664-667, 39 Cal. Rptr. 903, 394 P.2d 719] .

Major changes to streets involving the addition of public rail lines and corresponding changes and improvements may not constitute inverse condemnation. When a public transportation agency installed rail lines directly in front of commercial property and the rail lines (1) made curbside traffic and parking no longer available, (2) turned the street in front of a previously two-way street into a one-way street, and (3) with the corresponding installation of a pedestrian guard rail and raised concrete traffic separators, made the future construction of a driveway onto the plaintiffs' property impossible, there was no substantial impairment of access [Brumer v. Los Angeles County Metropolitan Transportation Authority (1995) 36 Cal. App. 4th 1738, 1748-1750, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 314] . The court of appeal noted that an abutting owner does not have the right to insist that a street be left in its original condition, and, therefore, substantial impairment will only be found when construction built directly on a portion of a road cuts off a direct access from an abutting property; or when a major change in the grade of the road, such as construction of highway underpasses, overpasses, and freeway off ramps, prevents direct access to a property abutting the new construction [Brumer v. Los Angeles County Metropolitan Transportation Authority (1995) 36 Cal. App. 4th 1738, 1746, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 314] .

In another case, a transit line was constructed in the center of the street on which plaintiff's property was located. The project included the related installation of concrete berms adjacent and parallel to the rail line. As a result, direct vehicular access to and from the plaintiff's land was made unavailable from and to the southbound traffic lanes of the street. Existing direct vehicular access to and from the plaintiff's property remained available from and to the northbound traffic lanes of the street, from making left or U-turns on the street, and from a nearby avenue. The trial court found that there was no compensable impairment of access. The court of appeal affirmed, noting that, under current law, the conclusion drawn from the many cases is that compensable access impairment exists if there is a "substantial" impairment of access to the abutting street and from there to the general system of public streets. To determine that issue, the trial court is required to compare the access available to the particular property before and after the impairment and then decide if the impairment is substantial. Because of the factual nature of the inquiry, which is unique to each property, the trial court's determination of substantial impairment is a determination to be sustained if supported by substantial evidence [San Diego Metropolitan Transit Development Bd. v. Price Co. (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 1541, 1546-1548, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 705] .

[2] Examples of Impairment of Access

When direct access from a parcel of property to a street is impaired, the owner is entitled to compensation. Examples of impairment of direct access include the following:

- Substantial reduction in frontage on the road [People v. Loop (1954) 127 Cal. App. 2d 786, 802-804, 274 P.2d 885] .

- Change in grade that impairs access [Anderson v. State (1943) 61 Cal. App. 2d 140, 143, 142 P.2d 88] .

- Construction of a freeway, underpass, or overpass that cuts off direct access to the road [People v. Ricciardi (1943) 23 Cal. 2d 390, 403, 144 P.2d 799 (underpass); Goycoolea v. Los Angeles (1962) 207 Cal. App. 2d 729, 733-735, 24 Cal. Rptr. 719 (overpass); Blumenstein v. Long Beach (1956) 143 Cal. App. 2d 264, 267-269, 299 P.2d 347 (freeway)].

[3] No Substantial Impairment of Access

The following situations have been held not to constitute a substantial impairment of direct access:

- Traffic congestion caused by the rerouting of truck traffic to the Mexico border that never completely prevented ingress or egress to plaintiff's business park; interference with access that merely requires greater "circuity of travel" is not compensable [Border Business Park, Inc. v. City of San Diego (2006) 142 Cal. App. 4th 1538, 1556-1557, 49 Cal. Rptr. 3d 259] .

- Installation of rail lines by a public transportation agency, when the project made the street one-way, caused the loss of one curbside parking space, and made the future construction of a driveway onto the plaintiffs' property impossible [Brumer v. Los Angeles County Metropolitan Transportation Authority (1995) 36 Cal. App. 4th 1738, 1748-1750, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 314 ; see Perrin v. Los Angeles County Transportation Com. (1996) 42 Cal. App. 4th 1807, 1812-1815, 50 Cal. Rptr. 2d 488 ; San Diego Metropolitan Transit Development Bd. v. Price Co. (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 1541, 1546-1548, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 705] .

- Change of the adjoining road from a highway to frontage road because of the construction of a freeway [People ex rel. Dep't of Pub. Wks. v. Becker (1968) 262 Cal. App. 2d 634, 638-642, 69 Cal. Rptr. 110] .

- Diversion of traffic from the highway running past plaintiff's business by construction of a freeway [Holloway v. Purcell (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 220, 230, 217 P.2d 665] .

- Increase in flow of traffic on the street abutting plaintiff's property [City of Berkeley v. Von Adelung (1963) 214 Cal. App. 2d 791, 792-793, 29 Cal. Rptr. 802] .

- Closing of three streets that required plaintiff to travel one third of a mile further to reach the general street system [People ex rel. Dep't of Public Works v. Wasserman (1966) 240 Cal. App. 2d 716, 728-730, 50 Cal. Rptr. 95] .

- Lack of access to a freeway when the property did not have access to the road before it was made into a freeway [Schnider v. State of California (1952) 38 Cal. 2d 439, 442-443, 241 P.2d 1] .

[4] Temporary Loss of Access

Substantial temporary impairment of access by a public entity entitles a property owner to compensation for the reduction in use or rental value of the property for the period of impairment [Jones v. People ex rel. Dep't of Transp. (1978) 22 Cal. 3d 144, 154-156, 148 Cal. Rptr. 640, 583 P.2d 165] . However, temporary loss of access is not compensable if it causes no damage, for instance, if the property was being held for sale and was not sold during the period in which access was impaired [City of Los Angeles v. Ricards (1973) 10 Cal. 3d 385, 388-390, 110 Cal. Rptr. 489, 515 P.2d 585] .

Although temporary impairment by construction work has been held to be noncompensable [Orpheum Building Co. v. San Francisco Bay Area Rapid Transit Dist. (1978) 80 Cal. App. 3d 863, 869-870, 146 Cal. Rptr. 5] , the law does allow recovery for interference with access when the interference is both substantial and unnecessary [Liontos v. County Sanitation Dists. (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 726, 732-733, 72 Cal. Rptr. 2d 107 (triable issues of fact concerning actual extent, necessity of, and substantiality of impairment of access to plaintiff's restaurant when road construction was halted but barriers and heavy equipment remained in place for nine-month period)].

§ 247.199 Liability for Impairment of View and Access to Light and Air

The owner of property abutting on a public road has a right to light and air from the road and is entitled to compensation if that right is taken [People v. Symons (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 855, 860, 9 Cal. Rptr. 363, 357 P.2d 451 (superseded by statute on another point; see Cal. L. Rev. Comm'n Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.420)]. The owner also has an easement of reasonable view of the property from the road and must be compensated for its loss [People v. Ricciardi (1943) 23 Cal. 2d 390, 404, 144 P.2d 799] .

If there is unique damage to plaintiff's property from dust, debris, and highway noise from the construction of an adjacent freeway, plaintiff can recover whether or not the property abuts the property taken [*Harding v. § 247.200 Liability for Water Damage

[1] Diversion From Natural Watercourses or Artificial Channels

Diversion of water from its natural course resulting in damage to adjacent property may subject a public entity to liability for inverse condemnation [Bauer v. County of Ventura (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 276, 283, 289 P.2d 1] . A public agency also may be liable for diversion from a channel artificially made by private persons, when the channel has existed for a long time and has been relied on by adjacent landowners [Clement v. State Reclamation Board (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 628, 638-639, 220 P.2d 897] .

[2] Flood Waters

[a] Requirement of Unreasonable Conduct

A public entity that undertakes construction or operation of a flood control project is liable only for unreasonable conduct. Thus, when the public entity's design, construction, or maintenance of a flood control project is shown to have posed an unreasonable risk of harm to the plaintiffs, and the unreasonable design, construction, or maintenance constituted a substantial cause of the damage, plaintiffs may recover regardless of the fact that the project's purpose is to contain the "common enemy" of floodwaters. Because the standard is unreasonable conduct, the fact that a flood control measure fails is not sufficient, standing alone, to impose liability [Belair v. Riverside County Flood Control Dist. (1988) 47 Cal. 3d 550, 559-560, 253 Cal. Rptr. 693, 764 P.2d 1070 ; see Bunch v. Coachella Valley Water Dist. (1997) 15 Cal. 4th 432, 447-454, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 89, 935 P.2d 796 (relying on Belair); Arreola v. Monterey County (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 722, 738-739, 122 Cal. Rptr. 2d 38 ; Paterno v. State (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 68, 82-83, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 754] .

In the case of alleged shoddy maintenance, it is the plan of maintenance that must be unreasonable to establish liability. Poor execution of a maintenance plan does not result in a taking [Paterno v. State (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 68, 86-87, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 754 ; see Paterno v. State (2003) 113 Cal. App. 4th 998, 1012-1015, 6 Cal. Rptr. 3d 854 (state liable for damage resulting from failure of levee in Sacramento River Delta, based on unreasonable plan within Sacramento River Flood Control Project, which accepted levee as built without any measures to ensure it met design standards); compare Tilton v. Reclamation Dist. No. 800 (2006) 142 Cal. App. 4th 848, 859, 48 Cal. Rptr. 3d 366 (owners of homes situated on top of "urban levee" failed to state inverse condemnation cause of action against reclamation district based on levee's failure, because owners failed to show that levee failures were integrally connected with flawed plan for those levees and/or flawed construction, rather than negligent or inadequate operation and maintenance)].

This requirement of unreasonable conduct was established in 1988 by the California Supreme Court. It refused to apply the "common enemy" doctrine applicable to private flood control measures to public entities. The common enemy doctrine provides that a private upper land owner may take measures to protect his or her land from the common enemy of flood waters and not be liable for damage to downstream owners [Clement v. State Reclamation Board (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 628, 635-636, 220 P.2d 897] .

[b] Factors Governing Determination Regarding Reasonableness

Factors to be applied in determining the reasonableness of the public entity's conduct are [Locklin v. City of Lafayette (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 327, 368-369, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 613, 867 P.2d 724 ; see Bunch v. Coachella Valley Water Dist. (1997) 15 Cal. 4th 432, 446, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 89, 935 P.2d 796 (relying on these factors)]:

- The overall public purpose being served by the improvement project.
- The degree to which the plaintiff's loss is offset by reciprocal benefits.
- The availability to the public entity of feasible alternatives with lower risks.
- The severity of the plaintiff's damage in relation to risk-bearing capabilities.
- The extent to which damage of the kind sustained by plaintiff is generally considered as a normal risk of land ownership.
- The degree to which similar damage is distributed at large over other beneficiaries of the project or is peculiar only to the plaintiff.

When applying these factors, a trial court is reviewing executive and legislative choices, and can impose liability as provided by the California Constitution. The power to impose liability must be wielded with respect for the coordinate branches of government, however, and the trial court must defer to debatable choices made by those other branches [Paterno v. State (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 68, 83-84, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 754] . The above factors contemplate that the inquiry into "reasonable" design, construction, operation, and maintenance is not limited to whether the system's technical specifications, intended capacities, materials, workmanship, and repairs were adequate under all the circumstances, but also includes a determination whether, all things considered, the system should not have diverted, and thus reallocated, the risks of periodic or sudden flooding as it was designed to do [Bunch v. Coachella Valley Water Dist. (1997) 15 Cal. 4th 432, 446 n.3, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 89, 935 P.2d 796] . Fiscal constraints on the public entity are a relevant consideration in the overall balancing test and reasonableness determination [Bunch v. Coachella Valley Water Dist. (1997) 15 Cal. 4th 432, 452, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 89, 935 P.2d 796] . These factors for determining reasonableness apply retroactively to cases on appeal when Bunch and Locklin were decided [Paterno v. State (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 68, 84, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 754] .

[c] Scope and Applicability of Reasonableness Rule

The reasonableness rule was developed in the context of flood control improvements along natural watercourses, but the California Supreme Court has determined that it should also apply to a case in which a public entity has diverted and rechanneled water using a flood control system of dikes and levees, and the dikes and levees fail in a rainstorm, causing damage to properties historically subject to flooding [Bunch v. Coachella Valley Water Dist. (1997) 15 Cal. 4th 432, 447, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 89, 935 P.2d 796 ; see also Paterno v. State (2003) 113 Cal. App. 4th 998, 1003-1004, 6 Cal. Rptr. 3d 854 (state liable for damage resulting from failure of levee in Sacramento River Delta)]. In so holding, the Court derived from Belair, and from the above Locklin factors, "the principle that compensation in cases involving the failure of flood control improvements to protect property adequately against historic peridoic flooding should rest not on antiquated notions of fault, or common law labels defining the type of waters requiring flood control measures, but rather on the balancing of interests" required by Cal. Const., art. I, § 19, and reflected in the Belair/Locklin test [Bunch v. Coachella Valley Water Dist. (1997) 15 Cal. 4th 432, 451, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 89, 935 P.2d 796] .

The reasonableness rule does not apply if governmental flood control works cause flooding by intentionally diverting water to upstream private property that was not historically subject to flooding, in order to protect lower-lying land. The use of private property not historically subject to flooding as a retention basin to provide flood protection to other property exacts from the owners whose property was flooded a contribution in excess of their proper share to the public undertaking, and there is no reason to put these property owners to the task of proving the governmental entity acted unreasonably to recover in inverse condemnation [Akins v. State of California (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 1, 28-29, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 314 ; see Arreola v. Monterey County (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 722, 753, 122 Cal. Rptr. 2d 38 (state strictly liable when design of highway overpass caused obstruction of floodwaters); Odello Brothers v. County of Monterey (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 778, 791-792, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 903 (reasonableness rule inapplicable when county deliberately flooded plaintiffs' property to save other property from flooding; emergency exception did not bar liability when county had prior knowledge of flood threat and would have had to condemn plaintiffs' property if it had implemented flood control plan)].

[d] Additional Limitations on Liability

A public entity has no duty to protect private persons from flood waters and is not liable if its efforts to do so are insufficient [Tri-Chem, Inc. v. Los Angeles County Flood Control Dist. (1976) 60 Cal. App. 3d 306, 310-312, 132 Cal. Rptr. 142] . Thus, if flood control improvements do not subject property to any flooding in addition to that which would have occurred without the improvement, the entity is not liable for flood damage. Furthermore, an entity is not liable because flood control improvements do not provide the same degree of protection to all property owners in the area [Shaeffer v. State of California (1972) 22 Cal. App. 3d 1017, 1020-1021, 99 Cal. Rptr. 861 (overruled on other grounds in County of San Diego v. Miller (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 684, 693, 119 Cal. Rptr. 491, 532 P.2d 139)].

In addition, a reclamation district that cut breaches in a levee during an emergency caused by torrential rains, resulting in the flooding of plaintiffs' property, was immune from liability under the Emergency Services Act. The district's actions in cutting the levee appeared both reasonable and focused on the primary goal of ensuring public safety in a time of crisis [Thousand Trails, Inc. v. California Reclamation Dist. Number 17 (2004) 124 Cal. App. 4th 450, 461, 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 196 ; see Gov. Code § 8550 et seq.].

[3] Surface Water

Surface water is water diffused over the surface of land, or contained in depressions therein, resulting from rain, snow, or that which rises to the surface in springs. It is distinguished from water flowing in a fixed channel or a river or in a lake. An owner of an upper or dominant estate is entitled to discharge surface waters from his or her land as the water naturally flows. However, the landowner's conduct in using or altering the property in a manner that affects the discharge of surface waters is subject to a test of reasonableness. In addition, the lower landowner has a duty to take reasonable precautions to avoid or reduce any actual or potential injury from the flow of surface waters. If the actions of both upper and lower landowners are reasonable and necessary, liability must be borne by the upper landowner who changes a natural system of drainage, in accordance with the traditional civil law rule applicable to damage from surface water runoff [Locklin v. City of Lafayette (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 327, 351-352, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 613, 867 P.2d 724 ; Keys v. Romley (1966) 64 Cal. 2d 396, 405-409, 50 Cal. Rptr. 273, 412 P.2d 529] .

This rule applies to public entities in tort actions [Locklin v. City of Lafayette (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 327, 337-338, 367, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 613, 867 P.2d 724] . The reasonableness rule has also been applied by courts of appeal in inverse condemnation actions [see Burrows v. State of California (1968) 260 Cal. App. 2d 29, 32-33, 66 Cal. Rptr. 868 ; Yue v. City of Auburn (1992) 3 Cal. App. 4th 751, 760-761, 4 Cal. Rptr. 2d 653] . Although the Supreme Court has held that the reasonableness rule applies in inverse condemnation actions involving the drainage of surface waters to natural watercourses, and that it also applies in all cases involving damage from flood control facilities, it has not directly addressed whether the reasonableness rule or strict liability applies in inverse condemnation actions for damage from the discharge of surface waters from upper to lower property when a flood control project is not involved [see Bunch v. Coachella Valley Water Dist. (1997) 15 Cal. 4th 432, 454, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 89, 935 P.2d 796 ; Locklin v. City of Lafayette (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 327, 367, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 613, 867 P.2d 724] . One court of appeal has suggested that a rule of strict liability for a public entity's physical damage to private property should be applied to surface water damage cases, regardless of the reasonableness of the entity's actions. The court, however, decided the case without ruling on the point [see Sheffet v. County of Los Angeles (1970) 3 Cal. App. 3d 720, 732-734, 84 Cal. Rptr. 11] .

[4] Drainage of Surface Waters to Natural Watercourse

A public entity may be liable in tort and inverse condemnation for damage to private property caused by the manner in which surface water runoff from its property is discharged into a natural watercourse [Locklin v. City of Lafayette (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 327, 337-338, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 613, 867 P.2d 724] . A reasonableness test applies to determine liability. A public entity may be liable in inverse condemnation only if its conduct posed an unreasonable risk of harm to the plaintiff and that unreasonable conduct was a substantial cause of the damage to the plaintiff's property. Reasonableness is to be determined by balancing the public benefit and the private damage in each case [Locklin v. City of Lafayette (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 327, 367, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 613, 867 P.2d 724] . Only damage caused by the public agency's improvements may be compensated. Thus, when the cause of damage is claimed to be the addition of surface water runoff from public improvements to a streamflow, the public entity is liable only for the proportionate amount of damage caused by its actions [Locklin v. City of Lafayette (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 327, 368, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 613, 867 P.2d 724] .

A public entity may also be liable in inverse condemnation for damage caused by public improvements constructed in or on a natural watercourse for the purpose of improving surface water drainage, subject to the reasonableness test [Locklin v. City of Lafayette (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 327, 367, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 613, 867 P.2d 724] .

[5] Seepage From Irrigation Ditches

A public entity is strictly liable in inverse condemnation for damage to land caused by seepage of water from canals of an irrigation district that was constructed and maintained to supply water for public use [Powers Farms v. Consolidated Irr. Dist. (1941) 19 Cal. 2d 123, 126, 119 P.2d 717] .

[6] Water Delivery System Failure

Ordinarily, an inverse condemnation plaintiff, whose claim is based on flood damage caused by a public improvement, is required to show that the public entity acted unreasonably [see § 247.200[2][a]]. This requirement does not apply, however, if damage was caused by a burst pipe or some other failure of a water delivery system when the system, as designed and constructed, presented inherent risks of damage to private property, and the inherent risks materialized and caused damage [Pacific Bell v. City of San Diego (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 596, 607-609, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 897 ; see House v. L.A. County Flood Control Dist. (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 384, 396, 153 P.2d 950] . In Pacific Bell v. City of San Diego, a city's water delivery system was deliberately designed, constructed, and maintained without any method or program for monitoring the inevitable deterioration of cast iron pipes. When a pipe burst because of corrosion and caused damage to a Pacific Bell facility, the court determined that the city, rather than Pacific Bell, should bear the costs of flooding damage from the burst pipe because the city had no method or program for monitoring the inevitable deterioration of its cast iron pipes other than waiting for a pipe to break. The court found that the city's decision to install a system without monitoring capabilities and to use a "wait until it breaks" method for detecting deterioration may have been reasonable because the costs of a prophylactic approach may have outweighed its benefits. However, because the undertaking of the water delivery system project at a lower cost created some risk, however slight, of damage to Pacific Bell's property, it was proper to require the city to bear the loss when damage did occur. Consistent with the fundamental policy underlying inverse condemnation, the court found that the burden associated with the city's cost-saving approach should be spread to the community benefitting from lower water rates rather than imposing the entire cost on those property owners placed in harm's way by the city's program [Pacific Bell v. City of San Diego (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 596, 607-610, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 897 ; see Holtz v. Superior Court (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 296, 303, 311, 90 Cal. Rptr. 345, 475 P.2d 441 ; McMahan's of Santa Monica v. City of Santa Monica (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 683, 696-698, 194 Cal. Rptr. 582] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Inverse Condemnation

20-247 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 247.201

§ 247.201 Liability for Land Use Regulation

[1] Regulatory Actions Requiring Compensation

The United States Supreme Court has held that there are two categories of regulatory action requiring compensation [see generally Lingle v. Chevron U.S.A. Inc. (2005) 544 U.S. 528, 125 S. Ct. 2074, 2081, 161 L. Ed. 2d 876] :

- Regulations that compel the property owner to suffer a physical invasion of property [see Loretto v. Teleprompter Manhattan CATV Corp. (1982) 458 U.S. 419, 434-435, 441, 102 S. Ct. 3164, 73 L. Ed. 2d 868] ; and

- Regulations that deny all economically beneficial or productive use of the property [see Agins v. Tiburon (1980) 447 U.S. 255, 260-263, 100 S. Ct. 2138, 65 L. Ed. 2d 106] .

There is ample justification for finding a taking when all economic use is taken from the property. In such an extraordinary case, it is hard to justify the argument that the Legislature is simply adjusting economic burdens. In addition, regulations requiring that land be left in a natural state carry a risk that private property is being pressed into public service under the guise of mitigating public harm. But, requiring compensation for a taking of all economic use does not preclude less restrictive government regulation [Lucas v. S.C. Coastal Council (1992) 505 U.S. 1003, 1015-1020, 112 S. Ct. 2886, 120 L. Ed. 2d 798] .

[2] No Compensation if Limitations on Title

If a state seeks to sustain regulation that deprives land of all economically beneficial use, it must resist compensation only if the logically antecedent inquiry into the nature of the owner's estate shows that the proscribed use was not a part of the title to begin with. Limitations that deprive the owner of all economic use without compensation must inhere in the title itself, in the restrictions that background principles of the state's law of property and nuisance already place on land ownership. The regulation must do no more than duplicate the result that could have been achieved in the courts by adjacent landowners under the law of private nuisance or by the state under the law of public nuisance. As an example, the owner of a lake bed would not be entitled to compensation if he or she is denied a permit to engage in landfill that would flood adjacent land [Lucas v. S.C. Coastal Council (1992) 505 U.S. 1003, 1027-1029, 112 S. Ct. 2886, 120 L. Ed. 2d 798] .

Nevertheless, when a regulation goes beyond what the relevant background principles would dictate, compensation must be paid. The inquiry will entail analysis of the degree of harm to public lands, the social value of the claimant's activities, and the relative ease with which the harm can be avoided. To justify no compensation, the state must do as it would in a common law action for public nuisance--that is, identify background principles of nuisance and property law that prohibit the uses that it seeks to proscribe. Only on such a showing may the state claim that, in proscribing all beneficial uses, the regulation takes nothing [Lucas v. S.C. Coastal Council (1992) 505 U.S. 1003, 1028-1029, 112 S. Ct. 2886, 120 L. Ed. 2d 798] .

A regulation that otherwise would be unconstitutional absent compensation is not transformed into a "background principle of state law" merely because title to the property has passed to a new owner. Thus, the fact that regulations prohibiting development of wetlands existed at the time plaintiff took title to the property did not bar plaintiff's takings claim based on the state's denial of a development permit for wetlands on the property [Palazzolo v. Rhode Island (2001) 533 U.S. 606, 121 S. Ct. 2448, 150 L. Ed. 2d 592] .

[3] Compensation for Temporary Taking That Deprives All Use

Compensation must be paid for a temporary taking by regulation that deprived the landowner of all use of the land during the period the regulation was in effect. For example, the United States Supreme Court has held that invalidation of an interim flood control regulation that denied the owner of all use of its property without payment of fair value for the use of the property during the period the regulation was in effect would be a constitutionally insufficient remedy. The Court limited its holding to the facts presented, and expressly stated that it was not dealing with the quite different questions that would arise in the case of normal delays in obtaining building permits, changes in zoning ordinances, variances, and the like. It also stressed that, once a court determines that a taking has occurred, the government retains the whole range of options already available, that is, to amend the regulation, to withdraw it, or to exercise eminent domain [First Lutheran Church v. Los Angeles County (1987) 482 U.S. 304, 310-311, 314-322, 107 S. Ct. 2378, 96 L. Ed. 2d 250] .

On remand in First English Evangelical Lutheran Church, however, the appellate court held that the interim ordinance did not constitute a taking, because it was passed to protect the public interest in saving lives from future floods and because it did not deprive the owner of all use of the property in that it only prohibited the reconstruction of destroyed buildings, but allowed camping and agricultural uses. The interim ordinance was not an unconstitutional temporary taking because it was necessary to preserve the status quo for a reasonable time to determine the proper measures to be taken to protect public safety [First English Evangelical Lutheran Church v. County of Los Angeles (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 1353, 1365-1373, 258 Cal. Rptr. 893 ; see also Moore v. City of Costa Mesa (9th Cir. 1989) 886 F.2d 260, 264 (temporary taking resulting from invalid condition that 10 percent of property be dedicated was not compensable in inverse condemnation, because only small portion of property was temporarily taken and remainder was always in use by landowner)].

A legally erroneous decision of a government agency during the development approval process resulting in delay does not necessarily amount to a temporary taking of property [Landgate, Inc. v. California Coastal Com. (1998) 17 Cal. 4th 1006, 1020, 1021, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 841, 953 P.2d 1188] . If the error is of a particular constitutional type--the passage and enforcement of a law or regulation that deprives property of all value--then such an error is a compensable taking. However, government land use regulations and decisions that, despite their ultimately determined statutory defects, are part of a reasonable regulatory process designed to advance legitimate governmental interests are not takings of property [Landgate, Inc. v. California Coastal Com. (1998) 17 Cal. 4th 1006, 1021, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 841, 953 P.2d 1188] . In Landgate Inc. v. California Coastal Com., the plaintiff failed to show that the Coastal Commission's delay in approving its development application was due to anything other than a bona fide dispute over the legality of a lot line adjustment and the Coastal Commission's jurisdictional authority over the adjustment. The California Supreme Court held that the delay was an incident of property ownership and not a taking of property [Landgate, Inc. v. California Coastal Com. (1998) 17 Cal. 4th 1006, 1020, 1031, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 841, 953 P.2d 1188] .

The Fourth Appellate District distinguished Landgate in a case in which it held that a delay in issuing a demolition permit for a fire-damaged hotel constituted a temporary regulatory taking, when the delay was caused by the city's enforcement of restrictions in its residential hotel ordinance despite the prohibitions of the Ellis Act [Gov. Code § 7060 et seq. (allowing landlords to go out of business by withdrawing their rental units from the market, provided the landlords comply with the Act's requirements)]. The city's attempt to enforce its residential hotel ordinance in violation of the Ellis Act was so unreasonable from a legal standpoint as to be arbitrary, was not in furtherance of any legitimate governmental objective, and was for no other purpose than to delay any development other than for a single-room-occupancy hotel [Ali v. City of Los Angeles (1999) 77 Cal. App. 4th 246, 254-255, 91 Cal. Rptr. 2d 458] .

City of Monterey v. Del Monte Dunes at Monterey, Inc., was the first published decision in which a California local government was actually ordered to pay money damages for a temporary regulatory taking. The Del Monte Dunes Court affirmed a federal court jury award of $1.45 million against the City of Monterey as damages from a temporary regulatory taking [City of Monterey v. Del Monte Dunes at Monterey, Inc. (1999) 526 U.S. 687, 720-723, 119 S. Ct. 1624, 143 L. Ed. 2d 882 (action filed under federal Civil Rights Act [42 U.S.C. § 1983])]. The unique circumstances of the case, however, may not necessarily foreshadow a dramatic increase in these verdicts. The landowners in the case had sought approval for the development of a 37-acre, ocean-front parcel, which was zoned for multi-family residential development. The city imposed more rigorous demands each of the five times it rejected the owners' proposals. Based on these facts, the U.S. Supreme Court (1) rejected the city's claim that the Ninth Circuit had erroneously adopted a legal standard for regulatory takings liability that allows juries to second-guess public land use policy [City of Monterey v. Del Monte Dunes at Monterey, Inc. (1999) 526 U.S. 687, 704-707, 119 S. Ct. 1624, 143 L. Ed. 2d 882] , and (2) held it was proper to submit the issue of the city's liability to a jury [City of Monterey v. Del Monte Dunes at Monterey, Inc. (1999) 526 U.S. 687, 721, 119 S. Ct. 1624, 143 L. Ed. 2d 882] .

[4] Nexus Required Between Restriction and Public Purpose

Although a development permit under a zoning ordinance may include conditions that would be considered a public taking of private property if not attached to the permit, there must be a nexus between the prohibition or restriction on the landowner and the public purpose advanced as a justification for the prohibition. In Nollan v. California Coastal Comm'n (1987) 483 U.S. 825, 107 S. Ct. 3141, 97 L. Ed. 2d 677 , the U.S. Supreme Court held that the government may demand an easement as a condition for granting a development permit that the government would be entitled to deny, so long as the exaction would substantially advance the same government interest that would furnish a valid ground for denial of the permit. Thus, in Nollan it was an unconstitutional taking for the California Coastal Commission to condition a coastal permit on the applicants' giving an easement for public access along the beach between their sea wall and the mean high tide mark because that easement would not reduce obstacles to public access to or viewing of the beach, which was the interest advanced by the Commission [Nollan v. California Coastal Comm'n (1987) 483 U.S. 825, 834-837, 107 S. Ct. 3141, 97 L. Ed. 2d 677 (suggesting that requiring an easement from the street to the beach or for a view point might have been so related to the stated governmental interest as to have been a valid condition)]. The Nollan nexus requirement, however, is only applicable to possessory takings, not to regulatory takings [Blue Jeans Equities West v. City and County of San Francisco (1992) 3 Cal. App. 4th 164, 168-171, 4 Cal. Rptr. 2d 114 (distinguished in Ehrlich v. City of Culver City (1996) 12 Cal. 4th 854, 875-876, 50 Cal. Rptr. 2d 242, 911 P.2d 429); see Lingle v. Chevron U.S.A. Inc. (2005) 544 U.S. 528, 125 S. Ct. 2074, 2086, 161 L. Ed. 2d 876 ; Monterey v. Del Monte Dunes at Monterey, Ltd. (1999) 526 U.S. 687, 702, 119 S. Ct. 1624, 143 L. Ed. 2d 882 (heightened standard has not been extended beyond context of exactions)].

The Nollan decision was clarified by the Supreme Court in Dolan v. City of Tigard (1994) 512 U.S. 374, 114 S. Ct. 2309, 129 L. Ed. 2d 304 , a case in which the Court explained that in determining whether a regulatory condition on a building permit operates as an unconstitutional taking, trial courts must first determine whether there is an "essential nexus" between a legitimate state interest and the permit conditions. The second step is to determine whether the degree of exactions demanded by the permit bears a sufficient relationship to the proposed development's impact. The adequacy of the relationship was defined by the court as a "rough proportionality" test. No precise mathematical calculation is required, but there must be some type of individualized determination that the required dedication is related both in nature and extent to the impact of the proposed development [Dolan v. City of Tigard (1994) 512 U.S. 374, 386-391, 114 S. Ct. 2309, 129 L. Ed. 2d 304] .

In Lingle v. Chevron U.S.A. Inc. (2005) 544 U.S. 528, 125 S. Ct. 2074, 161 L. Ed. 2d 876 , the Supreme Court explained that the rule articulated in Nollan and Dolan is not whether the exaction would substantially advance some legitimate state interest but rather whether the exaction would substantially advance the same interests that land use authorities asserted would allow them to deny the permit altogether. The Supreme Court reiterated that Nollan and Dolan involved a special application of the "doctrine of unconstitutional conditions," under which "the government may not require a person to give up a constitutional right--here the right to receive just compensation when property is taken for a public use--in exchange for a discretionary benefit conferred by the government where the benefit has little or no relationship to the property" [Lingle v. Chevron U.S.A. Inc. (2005) 544 U.S. 528, 125 S. Ct. 2074, 2086-2087, 161 L. Ed. 2d 876 , citing Dolan v. City of Tigard (1994) 512 U.S. 374, 385, 114 S. Ct. 2309, 129 L. Ed. 2d 304] . It noted that the Supreme Court has not applied this standard outside the context of exactions [Lingle v. Chevron U.S.A. Inc. (2005) 544 U.S. 538, 125 S. Ct. 2074, 2086, 161 L. Ed. 2d 876 , citing Monterey v. Del Monte Dunes at Monterey, Ltd. (1999) 526 U.S. 687, 709, 119 S. Ct. 1624, 143 L. Ed. 2d 882 ; see also Action Apartment Association v. City of Santa Monica (2008) 166 Cal. App. 4th 456, 471, 82 Cal. Rptr. 3d 722 (Lingle did not abrogate rule that Nollan/Dolan nexus and rough proportionality test applies only in context of judicial review of individual adjudicative land use decisions)].

[5] Development Fees Imposed on Individual and Discretionary Basis

A clear majority of the California Supreme Court has determined that the heightened scrutiny of development conditions required by the U.S. Supreme Court's Nollan and Dolan opinions [see Nollan v. California Coastal Comm'n (1987) 483 U.S. 825, 107 S. Ct. 3141, 97 L. Ed. 2d 677 and Dolan v. City of Tigard (1994) 512 U.S. 374, 114 S. Ct. 2309, 129 L. Ed. 2d 304 , discussed in § 247.201[4]] applies to development conditions that require payment of a monetary fee (rather than requiring possessory dedication), at least in cases where the governmental conditions requiring monetary exactions are imposed on an individual and discretionary basis, rather than generally or ministerially [Ehrlich v. City of Culver City (1996) 12 Cal. 4th 854, 875-876, 50 Cal. Rptr. 2d 242, 911 P.2d 429 , cert. denied, 519 U.S. 929] . A plurality of the Court reached its conclusion within the statutory framework of the Mitigation Fee Act [Gov. Code § 66000 et seq.], which requires a local regulatory authority to demonstrate a "reasonable relationship" between the proposed use of a development fee, or other monetary exaction, and both the type of development project and the need for the public facility and the type of development project on which the fee is imposed [Gov. Code § 66001(a)(3), (4)]. The local agency must also determine how there is a reasonable relationship between the amount of the fee and the cost of the public facility or portion of the public facility attributable to the development on which the fee is imposed [Gov. Code § 66001(b)]. The plurality interpreted the "reasonable relationship" standard of the Mitigation Fee Act as embodying the Nollan/Dolan test, which requires the local permitting authority to prove (1) an essential nexus or relationship between the permit condition, i.e., payment of the development fee, and the public impact of the proposed development, and (2) a "rough proportionality" between the magnitude of the development fee and the effects of the proposed development [Ehrlich v. City of Culver City (1996) 12 Cal. 4th 854, 881-885, 50 Cal. Rptr. 2d 242, 911 P.2d 429 , cert. denied, 519 U.S. 929] .

Since Ehrlich, the California Supreme Court has held that a provision in a hotel conversion ordinance requiring payment of an in lieu fee as a condition of converting residential hotel rooms to tourist use was not subject to the heightened scrutiny standard. The fee was "generally applicable" because it applied to every residential hotel in the city, and the responsible city agency had no discretion with regard to the fee's imposition or size [San Remo Hotel LP v.

City and County of San Francisco (2002) 27 Cal. 4th 643, 668-669, 117 Cal. Rptr. 2d 269, 41 P.3d 87] . In another case, the court of appeal determined that school development fees, which may be levied by school districts to fund school facilities when a development project will have an impact on the capacity of local schools, fall within the category of development fees that are imposed generally or ministerially and therefore are not subject to the heightened scrutiny standards [see Loyola Marymount University v. Los Angeles Unified School Dist. (1996) 45 Cal. App. 4th 1256, 1270-1271, 53 Cal. Rptr. 2d 424] .

[6] Development Moratoria

A temporary development moratorium does not constitute a per se taking of property requiring compensation under the Takings Clause [Tahoe-Sierra Preservation Council, Inc. v. Tahoe Regional Planning Agency (2002) 535 U.S. 302, 122 S. Ct. 1465, 1476, 152 L. Ed. 2d 517 ; see Lucas v. South Carolina Coastal Council (1992) 505 U.S. 1003, 1015, 112 S. Ct. 2886, 120 L. Ed. 2d 798 (compensation is required when regulation deprives owner of virtually "all economically beneficial uses" of his or her land); Monks v. City of Rancho Palos Verdes (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 263, 309, 84 Cal. Rptr. 3d 75 (city resolution implementing moratorium on construction in ancient landslide area deprived plaintiffs' property in that area of all economically beneficial use and therefore effected permanent taking)]. A fee simple estate may not be rendered valueless by a temporary prohibition on economic use, because the property will recover value as soon as the prohibition is lifted [Tahoe-Sierra Preservation Council, Inc. v. Tahoe Regional Planning Agency (2002) 535 U.S. 302, 122 S. Ct. 1465, 1484, 152 L. Ed. 2d 517] . Thus, the factors set forth in Penn Central Transp. Co. v. City of New York [Penn Central Transp. Co. v. City of New York (1978) 438 U.S. 104, 98 S. Ct. 2646, 57 L. Ed. 2d 631] provide the proper framework for determining whether a taking has occurred [Tahoe-Sierra Preservation Council, Inc. v. Tahoe Regional Planning Agency (2002) 535 U.S. 302, 122 S. Ct. 1465, 1483-1484, 152 L. Ed. 2d 517] . The Penn Central factors to be considered in determining whether a regulation effects a taking are the following [Penn Central Transp. Co. v. City of New York (1978) 438 U.S. 104, 124, 98 S. Ct. 2646, 57 L. Ed. 2d 631] :

- The economic impact of a regulation on the claimant;
- The extent to which the regulation has interfered with distinct investment-backed expectations; and
- The character of the governmental action.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Inverse Condemnation

20-247 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 247.202

§ 247.202 Measure of Damages

[1] Market Value

The basic measure of damages in an inverse condemnation action is the fair market value of the property taken [Federal Oil Co. v. City of Culver City (1960) 179 Cal. App. 2d 93, 97, 3 Cal. Rptr. 519] . If property is damaged rather than taken, the owner is entitled to recover the decrease in market value of the damaged property [Olson v. County of Shasta (1970) 5 Cal. App. 3d 336, 340-342, 85 Cal. Rptr. 77] . The measure of damage for a store's damaged merchandise is the wholesale value of the merchandise, not the retail value. An award of retail value would result in a windfall to the store [McMahan's of Santa Monica v. City of Santa Monica (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 683, 699-701, 194 Cal. Rptr. 582] . Other measures of damages, however, may also be proper in inverse condemnation actions, as discussed below.

[2] Cost of Cure Damages

Cost of cure evidence is relevant in determining reduction of market value, but cost of cure damages are generally not recoverable separately and are only admissible as evidence of reduction in market value [Olson v. County of Shasta (1970) 5 Cal. App. 3d 336, 342, 85 Cal. Rptr. 77] . However, diminution of value is not to be applied as inflexibly as a measure of recovery in inverse condemnation actions. For example, an award of cost of cure damages was held to be proper when defendant's action increased the flow of water on plaintiff's property, which increased the cost of plaintiff's required flood control measures, because the increased costs had to be expended to develop the property and evidence of decrease in market value would have been of little value in assessing plaintiff's damages [Amador Valley Investors v. City of Livermore (1974) 43 Cal. App. 3d 483, 494, 117 Cal. Rptr. 749] .

[3] Costs of Mitigating Damage

Because an owner whose property is being taken or damaged by a public entity must take reasonable steps to mitigate the loss, the owner is entitled to recover expenses that were incurred reasonably and in good faith in an effort to minimize the loss [Albers v. County of Los Angeles (1965) 62 Cal. 2d 250, 269-272, 42 Cal. Rptr. 89, 398 P.2d 129] . To establish that mitigation efforts were reasonable and in good faith, a property owner need not prove that "but for" its efforts the property would have been damaged [CUNA Mutual Life Ins. Co. v. Los Angeles County Metropolitan Transp. Auth. (2003) 108 Cal. App. 4th 382, 395, 133 Cal. Rptr. 2d 470] . Thus, the owner of a historic theater building who took action to underpin the front porch of the building to avoid anticipated damage from construction of an underground metro station located just beyond the building's northeast corner was not required to prove actual or prospective damage to recover mitigation costs in an inverse condemnation action [CUNA Mutual Life Ins. Co. v. Los Angeles County Metropolitan Transp. Auth. (2003) 108 Cal. App. 4th 382, 395, 133 Cal. Rptr. 2d 470] .

[4] Goodwill

When the California Legislature enacted the statute allowing recovery for loss of goodwill in eminent domain actions [Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.510; Stats. 1975, ch. 1275], it also enacted Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.530, which provides that the statute allowing recovery for loss of business goodwill in eminent domain proceedings is not intended to deal with compensation for inverse condemnation claims for temporary interference with or interruption of business [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.530]. The matter of recovery for these business losses was left to continuing case law [Cal. L. Rev. Comm'n Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.530]. Noting that Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.510 states that it is not intended to deal with goodwill in inverse condemnation actions, the Court of Appeal in a subsequent case further noted that the Legislature did not intend to deny an inverse condemnee the compensation that could be recovered by any other business owner whose business is taken for a public purpose. In light of the Legislature's express provision for direct condemnees, the court concluded, as a matter of "judicial development of the law," that goodwill is compensable in an inverse condemnation action to the same extent and with the same limitations as recovery based on § 1263.510 [Chhour v. Community Redevelopment Agency (1996) 46 Cal. App. 4th 273, 282, 53 Cal. Rptr. 2d 585] .

Whether a proceeding is in eminent domain or inverse condemnation, only an owner of a business conducted on the real property taken may claim compensation for loss of goodwill. In an inverse condemnation proceeding, the holder of a long-term lease to operate a golf course that had expired by its own terms could not sustain a claim for loss of goodwill because when the lease expired the business of operating the golf course ceased. Successive short-term lease extensions culminating with a month-to-month tenancy terminable on seven days' notice merely operated to define the length of time the leaseholder could reasonably expect to remain in the business of operating the golf course [see San Diego Metro. Transit Dev. Bd. v. Handlery Hotel, Inc. (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 517, 537-538, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 473] .

[5] Loss of Rentals

When a public entity is liable for unreasonable precondemnation delay, one measure of these damages is the loss of rental value during the period of delay [Klopping v. Whittier (1972) 8 Cal. 3d 39, 53-54, 104 Cal. Rptr. 1, 500 P.2d 1345] .

When property is taken by inverse condemnation, the valuation of the property taken is at the date of the trial, not the date of the taking. The owner is entitled to any increase in value between the date of taking and the time of trial [*Mehl v. People ex rel. Dep't of Pub. Wks. (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 710, 719-720, 119 Cal. B. Inverse Condemnation

20-247 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 247.204

§ 247.204 Jury Trial

[1] Eminent Domain Actions in General

The right to a jury trial on the issue of just compensation is guaranteed by Cal. Const., art. I, § 19. All other issues must be tried by the court. Therefore, even when liability is a completely factual issue, it will be determined by the court [Marshall v. Department of Water & Power (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 1124, 1139-1141, 268 Cal. Rptr. 559] .

[2] Proceedings Under 42 U.S.C. § 1983 (Federal Civil Rights Act)

In an inverse condemnation proceeding brought under 42 U.S.C. § 1983 against a city for deprivation of civil rights resulting from a refusal to allow land to be developed, the United States Supreme Court found there was a right to a jury trial on the issues of liability and whether the challenged land use decision substantially advanced public interests [City of Monterey v. Del Monte Dunes at Monterey, Inc. (1999) 526 U.S. 687, 715-721, 119 S. Ct. 1624, 143 L. Ed. 2d 882] . The case involved a 37.6-acre, ocean-front parcel in Monterey. After the city imposed more rigorous demands each of the five times it rejected applications to develop the land, the owners commenced suit under § 1983. The Court found it was proper to submit to the jury the questions of liability regarding the regulatory takings claim. Although § 1983 does not itself confer the jury right, the Seventh Amendment does, and the owners' § 1983 suit was an action at law under the Seventh Amendment [City of Monterey v. Del Monte Dunes at Monterey, Inc. (1999) 526 U.S. 687, 716, 119 S. Ct. 1624, 143 L. Ed. 2d 882] . It then determined that the particular liability issue under consideration--whether the city's decision to reject the development plan bore a reasonable relationship to the city's proffered justifications--was proper for the jury to determine [City of Monterey v. Del Monte Dunes at Monterey, Inc. (1999) 526 U.S. 687, 721, 119 S. Ct. 1624, 143 L. Ed. 2d 882] .

The Del Monte Dunes Court noted the limitations of its holding. It did not address the jury's role in an ordinary inverse condemnation suit. Further, a federal court cannot entertain a takings claim under § 1983 unless the complaining owner has been denied an adequate post-deprivation remedy. At the time of the city's actions, California did not provide a compensatory remedy for temporary regulatory takings, but California now provides a facially adequate procedure for obtaining just compensation for temporary takings such as the one at issue [City of Monterey v. Del Monte Dunes at Monterey, Inc. (1999) 526 U.S. 687, 721, 119 S. Ct. 1624, 143 L. Ed. 2d 882] .

20-247 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 247.205

§ 247.205 Costs and Attorney's Fees

[1] Right to Reimbursement

The recovery of litigation expenses in inverse condemnation cases was broadened by the amendment in 1995 of Code Civ. Proc. § 1036. Under the revised provision, in any inverse condemnation proceeding, the court in rendering judgment for the plaintiff by awarding compensation, or the attorney representing the public entity who effects a settlement of the proceeding, must determine and award or allow to the plaintiff, as a part of the judgment or settlement, a sum that will, in the opinion of the court, reimburse the plaintiff for reasonable costs, disbursements, and expenses, including reasonable attorney's, appraisal, and engineering fees actually incurred because of the proceeding in the trial court or in any appellate proceeding in which the plaintiff prevails on any issue in the proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 1036].

By providing that attorney's fees are recoverable on appeal if the plaintiff prevails on any issue in the appellate proceeding, the revised statutory provision abrogated the contrary ruling in Holtz v. San Francisco Bay Area Rapid Transit Dist. (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 648, 658-659 [see Stats. 1995, ch. 181, § 2]. The 1995 amendment also expressly provided for the first time that the plaintiff may recover litigation expenses in any inverse condemnation proceeding when the plaintiff is successful. This changed the rule of some cases decided under the earlier version of § 1036, which held that litigation expenses were recoverable only when the taking was of an interest in real property. Thus, damages could not be awarded for unreasonable precondemnation delay [see, e.g., Stone v. City of Los Angeles (1975) 51 Cal. App. 3d 987, 997-998, 124 Cal. Rptr. 822] .

The right to litigation expenses under Code Civ. Proc. § 1036 includes the right to recover for support services, such as secretarial and paralegal [Salton Bay Marina, Inc. v. Imperial Irrigation Dist. (1985) 172 Cal. App. 3d 914, 950-951, 218 Cal. Rptr. 839] . It also includes the right to litigation expenses incurred in recovering damages to personal property when incident to an inverse action for real property damage [Imperial Cattle Co. v. Imperial Irrigation Dist. (1985) 167 Cal. App. 3d 263, 277, 213 Cal. Rptr. 622] .

The phrase in Code Civ. Proc. § 1036 allowing recovery of litigation expenses "because of that proceeding" authorizes litigation expenses in the inverse condemnation action and in any proceeding arising from the inverse condemnation action. Thus, inverse condemnees may recover their litigation expenses when the public agency's conduct requires them to bring a proceeding to enforce the underlying inverse condemnation judgment [Downen's, Inc. v. City of Hawaiian Gardens Redevelopment Agency (2001) 86 Cal. App. 4th 856, 862, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 644] . However, the Legislature's inclusion of the words "disbursements" and "expenses" in Code Civ. Proc. § 1036 did not expand the range of recoverable costs, disbursements, and expenses beyond the ordinary costs recoverable under Code Civ. Proc. § 1033.5. The words "disbursements" and "expenses" have meanings that are the same as, or at least substantially similar to, the word "costs." Therefore the phrase "costs, disbursements, and expenses" in Code Civ. Proc. § 1036 does not have a broader meaning than the word "costs" [Ferrell v. County of San Diego (2001) 90 Cal. App. 4th 537, 543, 108 Cal. Rptr. 2d 681 (no recovery of postage, telephone charges, or photocopying expenses)].

When a person brings an action in inverse condemnation and loses, he or she is not constitutionally entitled to costs [City of Los Angeles v. Ricards (1973) 10 Cal. 3d 385, 391, 110 Cal. Rptr. 489, 515 P.2d 585] , and the public entity may recover its costs [Smith v. County of Los Angeles (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 266, 296-297, 262 Cal. Rptr. 754] .

Although Code Civ. Proc. § 998, dealing with statutory settlement offers in ordinary civil litigation [see Ch. 520, Settlement and Release], does not apply to eminent domain proceedings [Code Civ. Proc. § 998(g)], one court has held that inverse condemnation actions are not the equivalent of eminent domain proceedings and that litigation expenses may be awarded the defendant under Code Civ. Proc. § 998 in inverse condemnation cases when the plaintiff is unsuccessful [Goebel v. City of Santa Barbara (2001) 92 Cal. App. 4th 549, 558-559, 111 Cal. Rptr. 2d 901] .

[2] Calculation of Attorney's Fees

In calculating the attorney's fees, the starting point must be a calculation of the attorney's services in terms of the time he or she has expended on the case [Salton Bay Marina, Inc. v. Imperial Irrigation Dist. (1985) 172 Cal. App. 3d 914, 953-954, 218 Cal. Rptr. 839 ; Aetna Life & Casualty Co. v. City of Los Angeles (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 865, 881, 216 Cal. Rptr. 831] . Additional factors to consider are the nature of the litigation, contingent nature of the award, difficulty, amount involved, skill required in its handling, skill employed, attention given, success or failure of attorneys' efforts, attorneys' skill and learning, including experience in the particular type of work demanded, and novelty of the theories presented. Factors enumerated in cases dealing with a fee award under the private attorney general theory may also be considered [Salton Bay Marina, Inc. v. Imperial Irrigation Dist. (1985) 172 Cal. App. 3d 914, 957-958, 218 Cal. Rptr. 839 ; see Aetna Life & Casualty Co. v. City of Los Angeles (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 865, 880-881, 216 Cal. Rptr. 831] .

Some cases have regarded the existence of a contingent fee contract as either irrelevant or as only one factor to consider when determining a reasonable attorney's fee [Salton Bay Marina, Inc. v. Imperial Irrigation Dist. (1985) 172 Cal. App. 3d 914, 953, 218 Cal. Rptr. 839 (criticizing Glendora Community Redevelopment Agency v. Demeter (1984) 155 Cal. App. 3d 465, 202 Cal. Rptr. 389 , which awarded attorney's fees based on contingency fee arrangement found reasonable in light of other factors considered); see Aetna Life & Casualty Co. v. City of Los Angeles (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 865, 880-881, 216 Cal. Rptr. 831 (award of 20 percent based on contingency fee agreement and calculated on top of gross award already including an amount for attorney's fees also figured at 20 percent was excessive and improper)]. However, in a later case the court reversed an award of fees and remanded the action for the plaintiff to present evidence of the amount of fees she was actually obligated to pay under her contingency fee agreement [Andre v. City of West Sacramento (2001) 92 Cal. App. 4th 532, 538, 111 Cal. Rptr. 2d 891] . The court explained that under the reasoning of Salton Bay Marina, the court must first determine what fees were actually incurred, and then must assess whether these fees were reasonable. In other words, the fees actually incurred are a ceiling to any fee award. Fees may be reduced because they are unreasonable and pose an unnecessary burden on public funds, but they cannot be increased beyond what was "actually incurred" [Andre v. City of West Sacramento (2001) 92 Cal. App. 4th 532, 537, 111 Cal. Rptr. 2d 891] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Inverse Condemnation

20-247 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 247.206

§ 247.206 Interest

A plaintiff in an inverse condemnation action is entitled to interest on the judgment from the date of the taking rather than from the date of the judgment. Without this interest, plaintiff would not receive full compensation for the taking [Youngblood v. Los Angeles County Flood Control Dist. (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 603, 611-612, 15 Cal. Rptr. 904, 364 P.2d 840] . However, when the taking occurs over a period of time, interest should be awarded from the date that the taking became appreciable, not from the date of the first incursion on plaintiff's property. Thus, when freeway construction caused drainage onto plaintiff's land but the damage was not appreciable until four years later, interest should have been awarded from the date the damage became appreciable, not from the date of construction [Mehl v. People ex rel. Dep't of Public Works (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 710, 720, 119 Cal. Rptr. 625, 532 P.2d 489] .

When the damages are measured by costs of repair and the property has been valued at the date of trial, interest should only be awarded from the date of trial; the plaintiff is not entitled to interest on money not yet spent [Leaf v. City of San Mateo (1984) 150 Cal. App. 3d 1184, 1191-1193, 198 Cal. Rptr. 447] .

Interest must be computed at the apportionment rate for the immediately preceding six-month period [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1268.311, 1268.350(b)]. The "apportionment rate" means the apportionment rate calculated by the Controller as the rate of earnings by the Surplus Money Investment Fund for each calendar quarter [Code Civ. Proc. § 1268.350(a)]. The interest payable for each calendar quarter draws interest computed as described above, in each succeeding calendar quarter for which interest is due [Code Civ. Proc. § 1268.360]. Each district office of the Department of Transportation must quote the apportionment rate to any person on request [Code Civ. Proc. § 1268.350(c)].

The "floating" apportionment interest rate formula defined and established in Code Civ. Proc. § 1268.350 establishes a "floor" for postjudgment interest. In a condemnation case, the trial court must independently determine the extant market rate of interest and then apply the higher of (1) that market rate of interest, or (2) the legislatively created apportionment interest rate set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 1268.350. The apportionment interest rate earned by the state on its Surplus Money Investment Fund is itself independent evidence of market rates of interest upon which a trial court may rely in independently determining extant market rates of interest [People ex rel. Dep't of Transp. v. Diversified Properties Co. III (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 429, 448-451, 17 Cal. Rptr. 2d 676] .

B. Inverse Condemnation

20-247 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 247.207

§ 247.207 When Separate Action Required

When an eminent domain action has been dismissed by the public entity, a separate action for unreasonable precondemnation delay damages must be brought [Redevelopment Agency v. Heller (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 517, 521-522, 246 Cal. Rptr. 160]. If the condemnation proceeding goes to final judgment, precondemnation delay damages should be sought as a part of the eminent domain award. A judgment in the eminent domain action bars a later action for delay damages [Klopping v. City of Whittier (1972) 8 Cal. 3d 39, 58, 104 Cal. Rptr. 1, 500 P.2d 1345 ; Redevelopment Agency v. Contra Costa Theatre, Inc. (1982) 135 Cal. App. 3d 73, 79, 185 Cal. Rptr. 159].

Before revision of the Eminent Domain Law, cases held that inverse condemnation damages had to be sought in the answer to the eminent domain action [see Richmond Redevelopment Agency v. Western Title Guaranty Co. (1975) 48 Cal. App. 3d 343, 350, 122 Cal. Rptr. 434 ; People ex rel. Dept. Pub. Wks. v. Peninsula Enterprises, Inc. (1979) 91 Cal. App. 3d 332, 353, 153 Cal. Rptr. 895]. However, such damages now may be sought by cross-complaint. Under the current statutory scheme, the only requirement that damages be specifically claimed by answer to an eminent domain complaint is that when the defendant seeks compensation for loss of goodwill, the answer must specifically state that the defendant claims compensation under Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.510, but the amount of such damage does not have to be alleged [Code Civ. Proc. § 1250.320; San Diego Metropolitan Transit Development Board v. RV Communities (2007) 158 Cal. App. 4th 313, 335, 69 Cal. Rptr. 3d 705 ; see also Red Mountain LLC v. Fallbrook (2006) 143 Cal. App. 4th 333, 355-356, 48 Cal. Rptr. 3d 875 (eminent domain action did not preclude defendant from pursing inverse condemnation action seeking damages for diminution in value of its land that occurred before agency decided to directly condemn property)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Inverse Condemnation

20-247 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 247.208

§ 247.208 Defenses

[1] Police Power

A public entity's exercise of the police power [Cal. Const., art. XI, § 7] can be a defense to an inverse condemnation action. First, the enactment of zoning and other land use regulation is based on the police power, and thus the defense of the validity of this regulation is based on the police power.

Second, when private property is directly taken or damaged in an emergency situation by the government due to public necessity and to avert impending peril, the damages are noncompensable [Holtz v. Superior Court (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 296, 305, 90 Cal. Rptr. 345, 475 P.2d 441] . For these purposes, an "emergency" is an unforeseen situation calling for immediate action; the term comprehends a situation of grave character and serious moment, and is evidenced by an imminent and substantial threat to public health or safety [Los Osos Valley Associates v. City of San Luis Obispo (1994) 30 Cal. App. 4th 1670, 1681, 36 Cal. Rptr. 2d 758 , citing Sonoma County Organization etc. Employees v. County of Sonoma (1991) 1 Cal. App. 4th 267, 276-277, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 850] . Examples of emergency situations include the demolition of all or parts of buildings to prevent the spread of fire or the destruction of diseased animals or vegetation that jeopardize life or health [Holtz v. Superior Court (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 296, 305 n.10, 90 Cal. Rptr. 345, 475 P.2d 441 ; Hunter v. Adams (1960) 180 Cal. App. 2d 511, 524, 4 Cal. Rptr. 776] .

Third, exercise of the police power defense also applies when a public entity destroys property inadvertently incident to its attempt to protect the public safety. For example, the defense protected the state from liability for damage done to automobiles caused by the state's widespread aerial spraying of harsh chemicals in an attempt to eradicate the medfly [see Farmers Ins. Exchange v. State of California (1985) 175 Cal. App. 3d 494, 501-502, 221 Cal. Rptr. 225] . The exercise of police power defense also protected a reclamation district that cut breaches in a levee in an effort to divert flood water during torrential rains, resulting in the flooding of the plaintiffs' property. The police power exception applied because the district had no prior knowledge that the levee system might fail, and there was no evidence that actions taken by the district before the flooding caused the failure [Thousand Trails, Inc. v. California Reclamation Dist. Number 17 (2004) 124 Cal. App. 4th 450, 463-464, 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 196 ; compare Odello Bros. v. County of Monterey (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 778, 791, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 903 (police power exception inapplicable when county had prior knowledge of flood threat)].

Even though a city can summarily destroy an imminently dangerous building, it is, however, liable for the value of the building if it fails to establish at the trial of the inverse condemnation action that the building was imminently dangerous [Leppo v. City of Petaluma (1971) 20 Cal. App. 3d 711, 716-718, 97 Cal. Rptr. 840] .

[2] Estoppel

When a public entity acquires property by a condemnation action or by accepting a deed from the owner, it is assumed that the owner has received compensation for all reasonably foreseeable damage resulting from the taking. The owner is therefore estopped from claiming damages for any such reasonably foreseeable damages in a later action for inverse condemnation [Reinking v. Orange County (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 1024, 1030, 88 Cal. Rptr. 695] . Thus, when the defense of estoppel is raised, the issue becomes whether or not the damages sought in the inverse condemnation action were foreseeable when the property was acquired. On this issue, it has been held that a landslide was not foreseeable [Albers v. County of Los Angeles (1965) 62 Cal. 2d 250, 265-266, 42 Cal. Rptr. 89, 398 P.2d 129] , but that flood damage to property located in a flood-plain zone was foreseeable [Ellena v. State of California (1977) 69 Cal. App. 3d 245, 255-257, 138 Cal. Rptr. 110] . The foreseeability rule is only applicable when the damage to plaintiff's remaining property is caused by a public project undertaken on land taken from the plaintiff. If the damage to plaintiff's property is caused by a project undertaken on land taken from others, the defense of estoppel is not available [Cox v. State of California (1970) 3 Cal. App. 3d 301, 308-309, 82 Cal. Rptr. 896] .

[3] Failure to Exhaust Administrative Remedies

Failure to exhaust administrative remedies may be a defense to an action for inverse condemnation when, for instance, the property owner fails to seek a variance from the ordinance in question [Pan Pacific Properties, Inc. v. County of Santa Cruz (1978) 81 Cal. App. 3d 244, 249-253, 146 Cal. Rptr. 428] , or fails to seek a building permit to develop allegedly undevelopable property [People ex rel. State Public Works Bd. v. Superior Court (1979) 91 Cal. App. 3d 95, 101-105, 154 Cal. Rptr. 54] .

In an inverse condemnation action, whether or not joined with an action in administrative mandamus [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5] challenging an ordinance or its application to the plaintiff's property, the 90-day statute of limitations period set forth in Gov. Code § 66499.37 is controlling. Therefore, unless the action alleges the existence of a final judgment establishing that there has been a compensable taking of the plaintiff's land, any action to attack, review, set aside, void, or annul the decision of an advisory agency, appeal board, or legislative body concerning a subdivision must be commenced and service of summons effected within 90 days [see Hensler v. City of Glendale (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 1, 7, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 244, 876 P.2d 1043] .

Administrative remedies need not be exhausted when the challenge is to the constitutionality of the act creating the agency involved, because the agency would be unlikely to hold that its creation was unconstitutional [State v. Superior Court of Orange County (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 237, 250-251, 115 Cal. Rptr. 497, 524 P.2d 1281] . Also, administrative remedies need not be exhausted when this action would clearly be futile [Ogo Associates v. Torrance (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 830, 834, 112 Cal. Rptr. 761 (no need to seek variance when ordinance passed to stop project)].

[4] Prematurity of Claim

An essential prerequisite to a claim for regulatory taking is that the claim must be "ripe" for adjudication. This so-called "ripeness doctrine" requires a plaintiff to demonstrate that he or she has both (1) received a final decision regarding the application of the challenged regulations to the subject property from the government entity charged with implementing the regulations, and (2) sought compensation through the administrative procedures provided for doing so [Suitum v. Tahoe Regional Planning Agency (1997) 520 U.S. 725, 733-734, 117 S. Ct. 1659, 137 L. Ed. 2d 980 , citing

Williamson County Regional Planning Comm'n v. Hamilton Bank (1985) 473 U.S. 172, 186, 194, 105 S. Ct. 3108, 87 L. Ed. 2d 126] .

The first requirement follows from the principle that only a regulation that goes too far results in a taking under the Fifth Amendment [see, e.g., MacDonald, Sommer & Frates v. Yolo County (1986) 477 U.S. 340, 348, 106 S. Ct. 2561, 91 L. Ed. 2d 285 ; Lucas v. S.C. Coastal Council (1992) 505 U.S. 1003, 1014-1019, 112 S. Ct. 2886, 120 L. Ed. 2d 798] . For example, a taking claim was not ripe when the defendant had disapproved the plaintiff's revised preliminary plat, but the plaintiff had not sought variances that could have resolved at least some of the defendant's underlying objections to the plat [Williamson County Regional Planning Comm'n v. Hamilton Bank (1985) 473 U.S. 172, 186-191, 105 S. Ct. 3108, 87 L. Ed. 2d 126] . Denial of an informal request for development is not a final adjudication and thus a taking claim was premature [Lake Nacimiento Ranch Co. v. County of San Luis Obispo (9th Cir. 1987) 841 F.2d 872] . However, a takings claim was ripe when it was clear that the plaintiff was barred from engaging in any filling or development activity on wetlands located on the property and an estimate of the value of the uplands portion of the property was undisputed. The ripeness doctrine required the plaintiff to explore development possibilities on the upland parcel only if there was uncertainty as to the land's permitted use, and there was no ambiguity as to the extent of permitted development on the property, either on the wetlands or the uplands [Palazzolo v. Rhode Island (2001) 533 U.S. 606, 632, 121 S. Ct. 2448, 150 L. Ed. 2d 592] .

The second requirement stems from the Fifth Amendment's proviso that only takings without just compensation infringe that Amendment. If an adequate procedure is provided for seeking just compensation, the property owner cannot claim a violation of the Just Compensation Clause until it has used the procedure and been denied just compensation [Suitum v. Tahoe Regional Planning Agency (1997) 520 U.S. 725, 734, 117 S. Ct. 1659, 137 L. Ed. 2d 980 ; see Williamson County Regional Planning Comm'n v. Hamilton Bank (1985) 473 U.S. 172, 186, 194-196, 105 S. Ct. 3108, 87 L. Ed. 2d 126] .

Under the "futility exception," the requirement that a development plan be submitted is excused if it would be an idle and futile act. However, at least one meaningful application must have been made before judicial review is appropriate [Kinzli v. City of Santa Cruz (9th Cir. 1987) 818 F.2d 1449 (holding that plaintiff could not rely on futility exception because its application, abandoned at an early stage, was not meaningful)]. There is a factual issue as to futility when the county acts peremptorily to rezone property to open space in response to a lot-split application [Twain Harte Associates, Ltd. v. County of Tuolumne (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 71, 90-92, 265 Cal. Rptr. 737] .

In Palazzolo v. Rhode Island (2001) 533 U.S. 606, 121 S. Ct. 2448, 150 L. Ed. 2d 592 , the U.S. Supreme Court addressed the scope of Williamson County, discussed above. The Supreme Court explained in Palazzolo that the ripeness holding of Williamson County is not an exhaustion requirement per se. Rather, it is a requirement only that the "land-use authority [be given] an opportunity, using its own reasonable procedures, to decide and explain the reach of a challenged regulation" [Palazzolo v. Rhode Island (2001) 533 U.S. 606, 620, 121 S. Ct. 2448, 150 L. Ed. 2d 592] . The Court stated that "once it becomes clear that the agency lacks the discretion to permit any development, or the permissible uses of the property are known to a reasonable degree of certainty, a takings claim is likely to have ripened" [Palazzolo v. Rhode Island (2001) 533 U.S. 606, 620, 121 S. Ct. 2448, 150 L. Ed. 2d 592] . Palazzolo distinguished Williamson County on the ground that case involved the denial of a large project, leaving the question whether a scaled-back submission or an application for a variance would be accepted. In contrast, it was clear that the land use authority had interpreted its regulations to bar the plaintiff in Palazzolo from engaging in any development activity [Palazzolo v. Rhode Island (2001) 533 U.S. 606, 620, 121 S. Ct. 2448, 150 L. Ed. 2d 592] .

The U.S. Supreme Court has declined to create an exception to the full faith and credit statute [28 U.S.C. § 1738] in order to provide a federal forum for litigants who are precluded from advancing takings claims in federal court until the entry of a final state judgment denying just compensation. Thus, the full faith and credit rule bars relitigation in federal court of issues decided by the state court that are dispositive of the federal takings claims [San Remo Hotel, L.P. v. City and County of San Francisco (2005) 545 U.S. 323, 125 S. Ct. 2491, 2505, 162 L. Ed. 2d 315] . However, plaintiffs are not precluded from raising facial challenges requesting relief other than the provision of "just compensation" directly in federal court, or may reserve their facial claims while pursuing their as-applied claims along with their petition for writ of administrative mandamus in state court [San Remo Hotel, L.P. v. City and County of San Francisco (2005) 545 U.S. 323, 125 S. Ct. 2491, 2506, 162 L. Ed. 2d 315] .

If the claim is based on a federal taking, the property owner must have availed himself or herself of remedies under the Tucker Act [see 28 U.S.C. § 1491(a)] before filing an eminent domain action or the action is premature [Preseault v. ICC (1990) 494 U.S. 1, 11-17, 110 S. Ct. 914, 108 L. Ed. 2d 1] .

[5] Statute of Limitations

The statute of limitations for an action to recover for physical damage to private property under Cal. Const., art. I, § 19, is three years [Code Civ. Proc. § 338(j)]. If the cause of action is not based on physical damage, there is authority that the five-year period required to obtain title by adverse possession [Code Civ. Proc. § 318] is applicable [Frustuck v. City of Fairfax(1963) 212 Cal. App. 2d 345, 373-374, 28 Cal. Rptr. 357] . When an inverse condemnation action is based on continuous and repeated damage to real property, the cause of action does not accrue, and thus the statute of limitations does not begin to run, until the situation has stabilized [Lee v. Los Angeles County Metro. Transit Auth. (2003) 107 Cal. App. 4th 848, 858, 132 Cal. Rptr. 2d 444] .

If the challenge is to the facial validity of a regulation or ordinance, the statute of limitations runs from the date the regulation or ordinance becomes effective. If the challenge is to the application of the regulation to a specific piece of property, the statute of limitations runs from the date the administrative decision became final [see Hensler v. City of Glendale (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 1, 22, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 244, 876 P.2d 1043] .

When the cause of action is based on a regulatory taking, the limitations period is the time for challenging the regulatory action. When the Coastal Commission granted a permit conditioned on an easement for access and the landowner did not challenge the condition by a petition for a writ within the 60-day period for challenging Commission action, a later action in inverse condemnation was barred on res judicata grounds. The administrative decision was final and the permittee's failure to challenge it barred any later action. There is no futility exception to res judicata principles [California Coastal Com. v. Superior Court (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 1488, 1495-1499, 258 Cal. Rptr. 567] . When the claim is that the Coastal Commission's regulatory action was a taking of billboards, the claim must be brought by a petition in administrative mandamus within the time limit for such a petition. A later action is barred by the res judicata doctrine [Patrick Media Group, Inc. v. California Coastal Com. (1992) 9 Cal. App. 4th 592, 606-613, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 824] .

When the action is based on a latent construction defect, the 10-year limitations period of Code Civ. Proc. § 337.15 is applicable [Magnuson-Hoyt v. County of Contra Costa (1991) 228 Cal. App. 3d 139, 142-144, 278 Cal. Rptr. 770] .

[6] Res Judicata

When a property owner brings an action seeking to invalidate interim development regulations and damages and the trial court invalidates the regulations but does not award damages, a second inverse condemnation action for damages is barred by res judicata because the damages could have been awarded in the prior action, which was based on the same primary right [Tensor Group v. City of Glendale (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 154, 160, 17 Cal. Rptr. 2d 639] .

[7] Sovereign Immunity Not a Defense

An action in inverse condemnation is based on constitutional provisions forbidding takings without just compensation [U.S. Const., Amend. V; Cal. Const., art. I, § 19]. Therefore, inverse condemnation actions are not subject to the defense of sovereign immunity or to the other provisions of the Tort Claims Act [Barbaccia v. Santa Clara County (N.D. Cal.

1978) 451 F. Supp. 260, 267 ; see Bacich v. Board of Control (1943) 23 Cal. 2d 343, 346, 144 P.2d 818] .

20-247 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 247.229

§ 247.229 Decisions

[1] Abandonment

Statutory provision authorizing trial court to set aside abandonment was not unconstitutional delegation of municipal functions to judiciary and private person. Torrance v. Superior Court (1976) 16 Cal. 3d 195, 209, 127 Cal. Rptr. 609, 545 P.2d 1313

Condemnee's motion to set aside abandonment filed pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1268.510(b) was properly denied when there was no evidence that condemnee had substantially changed its position to its detriment in justifiable reliance on condemnation proceeding. Los Angeles Unified Sch. Dist. v. Trump Wilshire Assocs. (1996) 42 Cal. App. 4th 1682, 1690-1691, 50 Cal. Rptr. 2d 229

Measure of damages on abandonment by public entity is loss of use of property during period public entity was in possession. County of Madera v. Forrester (1981) 115 Cal. App. 3d 57, 62-64, 170 Cal. Rptr. 896

[2] Attorney's Fees and Litigation Expenses

Mathematical relationship between condemnor's highest offer and award is only one factor that should enter into determination whether to award litigation expenses; trial courts should not find unreasonableness as a matter of law based solely on numerical figures, but should also consider good faith, care, and accuracy in how offer and amount of demand were determined. Los Angeles County Metropolitan Transportation Authority v. Continental Development Corp. (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 694, 720-721, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 630, 941 P.2d 809

Award of attorney's fees on ground plaintiff, by amending complaint, had abandoned its demand for grazing and water rights on land was improper when amendment enlarged original demand in that it sought to acquire fee simple estate in parcel. Merced Irrigation Dist. v. Woolstenhulme (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 478, 505, 93 Cal. Rptr. 833, 483 P.2d 1

Award of litigation expenses was unreasonable when owner demanded amount that was $800,000 more, and five times greater, than amount awarded at trial. County of Contra Costa v. Pinole Point Properties, Inc. (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th 1105, 1115, 33 Cal. Rptr. 2d 38

Award of attorney's fees is not limited to fee based on hourly rate; court is allowed to increase fee based on other factors, including complexity and novelty of litigation, need to act quickly, critical importance of litigation, and result obtained. City of Oakland v. Oakland Raiders (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 78, 83-85, 249 Cal. Rptr. 606

Trial court is not required to set attorney's fees by multiplying the fee based on hours spent by a multiplier of four; fee set based only on hours spent is reasonable. State of California v. Meyer (1985) 174 Cal. App. 3d 1061, 1072-1075, 220 Cal. Rptr. 884

Award of attorney fees under Code Civ. Proc. § 1268.610, based on contingent fee contract, will be upheld if trial court has also considered other factors necessary to determination of reasonable attorney fees. Glendora Community Development Agency v. Demeter (1984) 155 Cal. App. 3d 465, 472-473, 202 Cal. Rptr. 389

Attorney is not entitled to fees under contingent fee contract if condemnation is abandoned but when there is novation of contract before abandonment, attorney is entitled to payment for services performed before abandonment. People ex rel. Dep't Public Works v. Metcalf (1978) 79 Cal. App. 3d 1, 8-9, 144 Cal. Rptr. 657

Defendant was entitled to award of reasonable attorney's fees after abandonment of condemnation action when motions filed by attorney were filed in good-faith belief that they were reasonable and necessary to protect defendant's interest. People ex rel. Dep't Public Works v. Metcalf (1978) 79 Cal. App. 3d 1, 12, 144 Cal. Rptr. 657

[3] Authority to Condemn

Exercise of eminent domain power is appropriate when rationally related to conceivable public purpose. Hawaii Housing Authority v. Midkiff (1984) 467 U.S. 229, 239-244, 104 S. Ct. 2321, 81 L. Ed. 2d 186 (regulation of oligopoly legitimate exercise of state police powers)

Finding that special assessment district for improving private road before dedication to city did not confer "general benefit" on public for assessment purposes did not detract from inherently public nature of project; thus, city properly adopted resolution of necessity condemning easement over portion of defendant's property. City of Saratoga v. Hinz (2004) 115 Cal. App. 4th 1202, 1224, 9 Cal. Rptr. 3d 791

Redevelopment agency did not abuse discretion in adopting resolution of necessity for taking of parcel to be transferred to business to be relocated as part of redevelopment plan; involvement of business did not render proposed taking without a public purpose. Redevelopment Agency v. Rados (2002) 95 Cal. App. 4th 309, 315, 115 Cal. Rptr. 2d 234

Airport authority had power to condemn property when cities delegated eminent domain power to authority through joint powers agreement. Burbank-Glendale-Pasadena Airport Authority v. Hensler (2000) 83 Cal. App. 4th 556, 564, 99 Cal. Rptr. 2d 729

Oil company acquired benefit of right to condemn on transferring ownership of its pipeline system to public utility company regulated by California Public Utilities Commission. Shell Cal. Pipeline Co. v. City of Compton (1995) 35 Cal. App. 4th 1116, 1124, 41 Cal. Rptr. 2d 753

City was precluded from condemning professional football franchise because of burden on interstate commerce. City of Oakland v. Oakland Raiders (1985) 174 Cal. App. 3d 414, 417-422, 220 Cal. Rptr. 153

Railroad acquiring right-of-way pursuant to Stats. 1853, ch. 72, § 28, providing for railroad's acquisition of land by condemnation, was permitted to use property acquired for any purpose railroad deems beneficial. People ex rel. Dept. of Transportation v. Southern Pac. Transportation Co. (1978) 84 Cal. App. 3d 315, 321, 148 Cal. Rptr. 535

Transit authority was permitted to acquire property for disposal of dredged spoils from ferry channel used in its transportation system; fact that subject property did not border on channel did not preclude transit authority's power to condemn. Golden Gate Bridge etc. Dist. v. Muzzi (1978) 83 Cal. App. 3d 707, 713-714, 148 Cal. Rptr. 197

Transit district's power to condemn property for water transportation system implicitly includes power to condemn for mitigation of resulting environmental effects necessitated by authorized activity. Golden Gate Bridge etc. Dist. v. Muzzi (1978) 83 Cal. App. 3d 707, 713, 148 Cal. Rptr. 197

State was permitted to condemn property adjoining state highway where highway was in area subject to earth slides and purpose of condemnation was to provide means of access for future repair work. People ex rel. Dept. of Transportation v. Sullivan (1978) 78 Cal. App. 3d 120, 121-122, 144 Cal. Rptr. 100

Mosquito abatement district had authority to purchase or condemn lands for office and corporation yard purposes. Skreden v. Superior Court (1975) 54 Cal. App. 3d 114, 117, 126 Cal. Rptr. 411

[4] Compensation

[a] Burden of Proof

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 1260.210 stating that neither party bears burden of proof on issue of compensation, standard jury instruction that defendant bears burden of proof on compensation issue is no longer appropriate. City of Los Angeles v. Decker (1977) 18 Cal. 3d 860, 872, 135 Cal. Rptr. 647, 558 P.2d 545

Defendant in condemnation proceeding by city redevelopment agency was not permitted to contend taking of property was not for use authorized by law when public use for which property was sought was community redevelopment and no attack had been made on community redevelopment plan within 60 days of plan's adoption as required by Health & Safety Code § 33500. Redevelopment Agency v. Del-Camp Inv., Inc. (1974) 38 Cal. App. 3d 836, 840-841, 113 Cal. Rptr. 762

[b] Easements

Compensation for taking of easement is measured by loss of value to dominant estate, rather than by benefit to condemnor; if no loss of value, no compensation may be awarded. Redevelopment Agency v. Tobriner (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 1087, 1098-1102, 264 Cal. Rptr. 481

[c] Evidence

If trial court determines there is sufficient evidence of reasonable probability of rezoning to submit issue to jury, it is for the jury to determine whether there was a reasonable probability of rezoning and, if so, its effect on the market value of the property. Metropolitan Water Dist. v. Campus Crusade for Christ, Inc. (2007) 41 Cal. 4th 954, 967, 62 Cal. Rptr. 3d 623, 161 P.3d 1175 Although city's contemplated use of property for airport parking could not be used as basis of valuation, evidence that city had present need for airport parking and that defendant's property was in area suitable for such use was admissible to show highest and best use of property by defendant. City of Los Angeles v. Decker

(1977) 18 Cal. 3d 860, 869, 135 Cal. Rptr. 647, 558 P.2d 545

Admission of evidence of comparable sales of property 30 to 50 miles from condemned property was proper where factors of comparability were considered and property similar to that condemned was scarce in immediate vicinity of property. San Luis Obispo County v. Bailey (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 518, 526, 93 Cal. Rptr. 859, 483 P.2d 27

Trial court properly excluded city's theory that proper method for disregarding influence of freeway project on value of taken property pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1263.330 was to assume project was abandoned on valuation date, and properly admitted property owners' alternative methods of valuation, which (1) disregarded influence of project on value of taken property by assuming project had never been contemplated, and (2) concluded that taken property was enhanced in value by proposed project up until date city adopted project alignment that required condemning taken property. City of San Diego v. Barratt American, Inc. (2005) 128 Cal. App. 4th 917, 938-939, 944-945, 27 Cal. Rptr. 3d 527

Conceptual drawings showing multiple residential development that could be built on property and testimony by expert witnesses concerning such use of property was admissible to show that highest and best use of property was multiple residential development. San Diego Metropolitan Transit Development Board v. RV Communities (2007) 158 Cal. App. 4th 313, 347, 69 Cal. Rptr. 3d 705

Valuation expert's failure to use "zones of value" methodology did not require exclusion of evidence; expert laid proper foundation for methodology of valuing property as a whole for multiple residential use by taking into consideration physical characteristics of dissimilar parts of property but not assigning different values to different parts. San Diego Metropolitan Transit Development Board v. RV Communities (2007) 158 Cal. App. 4th 313, 352-353, 69 Cal. Rptr. 3d 705

Trial court properly excluded evidence of zoning restriction precluding upzoning or development of defendant's property absent approval of highway construction project; zoning and condemning agencies were the same and restriction discriminated against defendant's property to depress its value for a future taking. City of San Diego v. Rancho Penasquitos Partnership (2003) 105 Cal. App. 4th 1013, 1022-1023, 130 Cal. Rptr. 2d 108

Condemnee's construction plans for condemned property are not admissible to show specific land use because fair market value is based on all reasonable available uses; but construction plans may be admissible when offered to show that plan is feasible and therefore should be considered in fixing market value. People v. Tanczos (1996) 42 Cal. App. 4th 1215, 1218-1220, 50 Cal. Rptr. 2d 70

Code Civ. Proc. § 1258.250, which requires parties to exchange valuation statements for each person to be called as valuation witness, applies both to expert appraisers retained by parties and to property owners who will testify as to value. Padre Dam Municipal Water Dist. v. Burkhardt (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 988, 992, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 506

In eminent domain proceeding brought to condemn portion of railroad's right-of-way, former Evid. Code § 822(d) (now see Evid. Code § 822(a)(4)), providing that opinion of value of property may not be based on opinion of value of other property, did not preclude use of cost of reproduction less depreciation method of valuation when other acceptable standards of valuation could not rationally be applied or would not put owner in as good a position as if property had not been taken. People ex rel. Dept. of Transportation v. Southern Pac. Transportation Co. (1978) 84 Cal. App. 3d 315, 325-326, 148 Cal. Rptr. 535

Information discovered after valuation date that decreased value of property must be considered by jury in determining fair market value. San Diego County Water Authority v. Mireiter (1993) 18 Cal. App. 4th 1808, 1811-1818, 23 Cal. Rptr. 2d 455

Valuation of easement taken by capitalization of income from other license agreement was improper; proper method was difference between before and after value of land from which easement was taken. County Sanitation Dist. v. Watson Land Co. (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 1268, 1279-1282, 22 Cal. Rptr. 2d 117

Bankruptcy sale was evidence of value when court determined that sale was freely made. San Diego Gas & Electric Co. v. 3250 Corp. (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 1075, 1083, 252 Cal. Rptr. 853

Use of evidence of rental value was proper when property had been used as quarry, which was only economic use of property, although property was not leased for quarry when taking occurred. People ex rel. Dep't of Water Resources v. Andresen (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 1144, 1160-1164, 238 Cal. Rptr. 826

Compensation is measured by loss to owner and not benefit to taker; award based on appraiser's evidence that relied on adjustments to temporally remote comparable and gave no consideration to more comparable transactions was not just and equitable. Pacific Gas & Electric Co. v. Zuckerman (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 1113, 1127-1136, 234 Cal. Rptr. 630

On issue of value of property in "before condition," when any buyer would have known that any development of the property would be contingent on some flood control project, evidence was not limited to assumption that the project built by the condemnor agency would have to be build, but was admissible on assumption that drainage measures less expensive than those actually installed by condemnor agency could have been build. Coachella Valley Water Dist. v. Western Allied Properties, Inc. (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 969, 974-977, 235 Cal. Rptr. 725

Evidence that access to property remainder was not required by resolution of necessity was admissible in support of severance damages. Coachella Valley Water Dist. v. Western Allied Properties, Inc. (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 969, 978-979, 235 Cal. Rptr. 725

Evidence of probable use that contradicts resolution of necessity is not admissible, such as evidence that jumbo jets may not use airport when resolution would permit them; plaintiff is able to introduce evidence of number of jumbo jets that may use airport. County of San Diego v. Bressi (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 112, 119-120, 229 Cal. Rptr. 44

When easements are taken, compensation is based on reduction in value of dominant estate, not on value of servient estate. Redevelopment Agency v. Tobriner (1984) 153 Cal. App. 3d 367, 370-374, 200 Cal. Rptr. 364

[d] Withdrawal of Deposited Funds

Defendant's consent to mortgage lender's withdraw of deposited funds to pay off his indebtedness waived defendant's objection to right to take. Redevelopment Agency of the City of San Diego v. Mesdaq (2007) 154 Cal. App. 4th 1111, 1140, 65 Cal. Rptr. 3d 372

Withdrawal of deposited funds is not waiver of right to seek greater compensation through inverse condemnation cross-complaint. San Diego Metropolitan Transit Development Board v. RV Communities (2007) 158 Cal. App. 4th 313, 339, 69 Cal. Rptr. 3d 705

[5] Generally

[a] Valuation

Partial loss of access was compensable where parcel, although not used for paved portion of freeway, constituted dirt strip or shoulder paralleling traffic lanes, it was taken as part of freeway right-of-way, and fence was placed on it to act as physical barrier to limited access freeway. People ex rel. Dep't Public Works v. Ramos (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 261, 264,

81 Cal. Rptr. 792, 460 P.2d 992

In quick-take eminent domain proceeding, trial court properly changed date of valuation from date governmental plaintiff deposited probable compensation to date of trial, because it was undisputed that amount of deposit was substantially less than probable amount of just compensation for condemned property. San Diego Metropolitan Transit Development Board v. RV Communities (2007) 158 Cal. App. 4th 313, 327, 69 Cal. Rptr. 3d 705

When water district sought to acquire easement in quick-take eminent domain proceeding, trial court erred in changing date of valuation to date of trial because property owners had adequate remedy for any deficiency in initial deposit of compensation by moving for increase. Eastern Municipal Water District v. Superior Court (2007) 157 Cal. App. 4th 1245, 1254, 69 Cal. Rptr. 3d 314

Closure of freeway offramp resulting in elimination of special benefit for which $20,000 had been deducted from plaintiffs' severance damages did not mean that plaintiffs were now subject to compensation, because rerouting of traffic that originally constituted a special benefit did not result in loss of proprietary right and did not entitle property owner to further compensation. Leonard v. People ex rel. Dept. of Transportation (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 1296, 1300-1301, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 328

When part of parcel would have to be dedicated to be developed, compensation for taking should reflect value in undeveloped state. Contra Costa County Flood Control v. Lone Tree Investments (1992) 7 Cal. App. 4th 930, 934-936, 9 Cal. Rptr. 2d 326

Property suitable for subdivision was not properly valued by estimating what would be market value after subdividing then subtracting construction costs, even if tentative subdivision map was approved. Contra Costa Water Dist. v. Bar-C Properties (1992) 5 Cal. App. 4th 652, 7 Cal. Rptr. 2d 91

Property was properly valued as existing agricultural use, when change to commercial zoning would have required dedication of exact part of property that was being condemned. City of Porterville v. Young (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 1260, 1265-1268, 241 Cal. Rptr. 349

Property properly valued as quarry when quarry used had been dormant until rock needed for use in dam repair and need for rock was basis for state's acquisition; property owner's expectation that rock would be purchased was not expectation of taking and thus valuation as quarry as proper. People ex rel. Dep't of Water Resources v. Andresen (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 1144, 1153-1157, 238 Cal. Rptr. 826

Application of reproduction less depreciation method of valuing condemned property in action brought by state to condemn portion of railroad's right-of-way was not speculative where market data and income approach to valuation were inappropriate because of nature of property taken. People ex rel. Dept. of Transportation v. Southern Pac. Transportation Co. (1978) 84 Cal. App. 3d 315, 326, 148 Cal. Rptr. 535

In eminent domain proceedings brought by state to condemn railroad's right-of-way, just compensation for taking was required to be based on use of property as "transportation corridor" rather than on limited use as double track railroad; fact that railroad did not make full use of right-of-way at time of condemnation action did not preclude it from recovery of compensation based on full use. People ex rel. Dept. of Transportation v. Southern Pac. Transportation Co. (1978) 84 Cal. App. 3d 315, 323, 324, 148 Cal. Rptr. 535

Taking of business's right to enforce payment of accounts receivable was compensable item of damage. South Bay Irr. Dist. v. California-American Water Co. (1976) 61 Cal. App. 3d 944, 1001, 133 Cal. Rptr. 166

Because defendant was entitled to interest on compensation award from date of possession of property, defendant was not entitled, in addition, to damages for loss of reasonable rental value of property up to time property was actually taken because such damages would give defendant double compensation. Los Angeles County v. Smith (1976) 55 Cal. App. 3d 749, 756, 127 Cal. Rptr. 666

When nature of easement taken by condemnation necessitates physical removal of material from dominant estate, value of material taken is included in considering damage to dominant estate. Yuba County Water Agency v. Ingersoll (1975) 45 Cal. App. 3d 452, 455, 119 Cal. Rptr. 444

[b] Precondemnation Damages

Evidence of city's allegedly unreasonable precondemnation activity not admissible at jury trial to show effect activity had on "highest and best use" of property; argument was simply that precondemnation conduct decreased property's market value, which is traditional Klopping claim, and question of whether city acted unreasonably could not be shifted from judge to jury by use of this device. City of Ripon v. Sweetin (2002) 100 Cal. App. 4th 887, 899, 122 Cal. Rptr. 2d 802

Litigation delay arising from condemnor's use of procedural devices available to it as litigant does not subject condemnor to liability for precondemnation damages. People ex rel. Dept. Pub. Wks. v. Peninsula Enterprises, Inc. (1979) 91 Cal. App. 3d 332, 359, 153 Cal. Rptr. 895

Property owner's ability to collect damages for unreasonable precondemnation delay depended on whether conduct of public agency had evolved to point where announcements resulted in special and direct interference with property; type of direct and special interference required for precondemnation damages may occur even in absence of formal resolution of condemnation. People ex rel. Dept. Pub. Wks. v. Peninsula Enterprises, Inc. (1979) 91 Cal. App. 3d 332, 355-356, 153 Cal. Rptr. 895

Developer who permitted option to purchase condemned land to expire was not entitiled to recover "Klopping" precondemnation damages. City of Walnut Creek v. Leadership Housing Systems, Inc. (1977) 73 Cal. App. 3d 611, 619, 140 Cal. Rptr. 690

Fact that plaintiff took possession of defendant's property and destroyed improvements thereon far in advance of plaintiff's construction of planned improvement did not entitle defendant to compensation for rental value up to time property was actually needed. Los Angeles County v. Smith (1976) 55 Cal. App. 3d 749, 756, 127 Cal. Rptr. 666

Announcement that state tentatively planned to construct freeway along route subject to many contingencies and conditions which route bisected property in question did not announce intent to condemn and consequently was not basis for delay damages. Smith v. California (1975) 50 Cal. App. 3d 529, 535-537, 123 Cal. Rptr. 745

[c] Severance Damages

All reasonably certain, immediate, and non-speculative benefits may be offset from severance damages. Los Angeles County Metropolitan Transportation Authority v. Continental Development Corp. (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 694, 717-718, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 630, 941 P.2d 809

Special assessment lien imposed on property to assist in financing construction of public improvement was not to be considered in determining severance damages when imposition of lien was not direct result of taking or of improvement's construction. Baldwin Park v. Stoskus (1972) 8 Cal. 3d 563, 566, 105 Cal. Rptr. 325, 503 P.2d 1333

Trial court abused discretion in permitting property owners to present evidence of hypothetical use to show entitlement to temporary severance damages from construction easement; property owners failed to meet burden of producing evidence that temporary easement substantially interfered with or impaired actual intended use of the property. City of Fremont v. Fisher (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 666, 684-685, 73 Cal. Rptr. 3d 54

Severance damages were limited to those caused by project and did not include expenses in compelling agency to act lawfully. Placer County Water Agency v. Hofman (1985) 165 Cal. App. 3d 890, 896-897, 211 Cal. Rptr. 894

In determining severance damages, evidence as to defendant's loss from accelerated depreciation of fixtures and reduction in expansion possibilities from severance was admissible. City of Commerce v. National Starch & Chem. Corp. (1981) 118 Cal. App. 3d 1, 13-17, 173 Cal. Rptr. 176

Recovery of temporary severance damages in amount of fair rental value of property was improper when there was no physical taking of remainder or impairment for any permissible use other than highest and best use of property for which condemnee received compensation. Orange County Flood Control Dist. v. Sunny Crest Dairy, Inc. (1978) 77 Cal. App. 3d 742, 761-762, 143 Cal. Rptr. 803

No unity of use or contiguity existed when public utility owned two separate systems with separate rate structures in different geographic areas. South Bay Irr. Dist. v. California-American Water Co. (1976) 61 Cal. App. 3d 944, 1002-1003, 133 Cal. Rptr. 166

Severance damages caused by freeway construction and benefits caused by aqueduct construction were not permitted to be offset although condemning agency joined both projects in one action since projects were separate and distinct. People ex rel. Dept. Pub. Wks. v. Simon Newman Co. (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 398, 408, 112 Cal. Rptr. 298

No severance damages as occurred when power lines were to be built since highest and best use of property was cattle ranch and power lines do not affect market value of remainder of that kind of property. Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. v. Parachini (1971) 29 Cal. App. 3d 159, 167, 105 Cal. Rptr. 477

Two parcels did not constitute single larger parcel so as to permit allowance of severance damages where two parcels were used for different purposes, long-standing chain link fence separated properties, and parcels were zoned differently. People ex rel. Dept. Pub. Wks. v. International Tel. & Tel. Corp. (1972) 22 Cal. App. 3d 829, 833-837, 99 Cal. Rptr. 836

Severance damages for impairment or diminution of easement of access were not recoverable when caused by construction or maintenance of improvement located on lands of other persons. People ex rel. Dep't Public Works v. Romano (1971) 18 Cal. App. 3d 63, 69-70, 94 Cal. Rptr. 839

Possibility of joinder of remaining land with other land was relevant to determining amount of severance damages. People ex rel. Dep't Public Works v. Tevelde (1970) 13 Cal. App. 3d 450, 454, 91 Cal. Rptr. 556

Special benefits resulting from entire scheme of improvement were offsetting severance damages. People ex rel. Dep't Public Works v. Home Trust Inv. Co. (1970) 8 Cal. App. 3d 1022, 1028-1029, 87 Cal. Rptr. 722

[6] Interest

No basis for limiting amount of condemnor's right to offset against interest under Code Civ. Proc. § 1268.330 to defendant's actual return from crops grown on land (less than zero) when defendant remained in possession of land; this improperly tied condemnor's right to offset to defendant's ability to make productive use of asset. City of Stockton v. Albert Brocchini Farms, Inc. (2001) 92 Cal. App. 4th 193, 203, 111 Cal. Rptr. 2d 662

Interest does not run on judgment when proceeding later abandoned. People ex rel. Dept. of Transportation v. Union Pacific Land Resources Corp. (1986) 179 Cal. App. 3d 307, 313-316, 224 Cal. Rptr. 487

Defendant was not entitled to prejudgment interest under former Code Civ. Proc. § 1255b(a) (now Code Civ. Proc. § 1268.310) when no taking of possession occurred or was authorized. Los Angeles v. Monahan (1976) 55 Cal. App. 3d 846, 853-854, 127 Cal. Rptr. 763

Where condemnation award was based on condemnor's acceptance of property owner's final demand made under Code Civ. Proc. § 1250.410, property owner was entitiled to recover ordinary costs and interest on award for period of condemnor's prejudgment possession. Coachella Valley County Water Dist. v. Dreyfuss (1979) 91 Cal. App. 3d 949, 955, 154 Cal. Rptr. 467

Order denying interest on condemnation award is appealable. Redevelopment Agency v. Goodman (1975) 53 Cal. App. 3d 424, 429-430, 125 Cal. Rptr. 818

Where parties to condemnation proceeding stipulated that entry agreement was equivalent of order for immediate possession, interest was due from date of entry and defendant was not required to file claim to recover prejudgment interest. People ex rel. Dep't Public Works v. Williams (1973) 30 Cal. App. 3d 980, 981, 106 Cal. Rptr. 795

[7] Notice

Public entity not required under Code Civ. Proc. § 1245.235 to give 15 days' written notice before public hearing on necessity to condemn; notice is adequate if public entity used another procedure that gave reasonable written personal notice and reasonable opportunity to appear and be heard. City of Lincoln v. Barringer (2002) 102 Cal. App. 4th 1211, 1223-1224, 126 Cal. Rptr. 2d 178

[8] Objections to Right to Take

Right of first refusal may not be asserted as objection to right to take; condemnation of land for public purpose does not trigger private party's right of first refusal to purchase property. Campbell v. Alger (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 200, 208, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 696

[9] Property Interests

Claimant is customarily required to show he or she owned property interest taken by state to be constitutionally entitled to compensation. County of San Diego v. Miller (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 684, 687, 119 Cal. Rptr. 491, 532 P.2d 139

Interest held to constitute property for condemnation compensation purposes includes fee interests, leaseholds, easements, rights-of-way, building restrictions, and unexercised options to purchase real property. County of San Diego v. Miller (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 684, 693, 119 Cal. Rptr. 491, 532 P.2d 139

Owners of undeveloped parcel taken by city in eminent domain could not recover for loss of goodwill based on plans to build and sell condominiums because there was no ongoing business on property. City and County of San Francisco v. Coyne (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 1515, 1523-1534, 86 Cal. Rptr. 3d 255

Trial court erred by striking testimony of defendants' expert goodwill valuation witness on grounds that as a matter of law expectation of lease renewal is speculative and cannot provide a foundation for goodwill award; jury should have been allowed to determine whether there was a reasonable probability lease would be renewed. Redevelopment Agency of the City of San Diego v. Attisha (2005) 128 Cal. App. 4th 357, 372-373, 27 Cal. Rptr. 3d 126

Operator of golf course on property condemned for light rail project was not entitled to compensation for loss of business and goodwill when its lease on the property was not renewed because operator lacked legally protectible property interest; reasonable expectation of lease renewal may not be considered as element of value in condemnation proceedings. San Diego Metropolitan Transit Development Bd. v. Handlery Hotel, Inc. (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 517, 532-533, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 473

Broker was not entitled to commission on property for which broker had contract for commission if escrow closed, but that was acquired by eminent domain before escrow closed. City of Turlock v. Paul M. Zagaris, Inc. (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 189, 192-194, 256 Cal. Rptr. 902

[10] Relocation Assistance

Claim for relocation benefits filed eight years after claimant moved from original location and over four years from date agency satisfied inverse condemnation judgment, but within 18 months of when claimant moved into new location, was untimely under 25 Cal. Code. Reg. § 6088 (claims for relocation payments must be submitted within 18 months of date on which claimant receives final payment for the property or date on which claimant moves, whichever is later). Bi-Rite Meat & Provisions Co. v. Redevelopment Agency of the City of Hawaiian Gardens (2007) 156 Cal. App. 4th 1419, 1431, 68 Cal. Rptr. 3d 81

Expiration of lease from public entity to mobilehome park was not acquisition of property by public entity so as to entitle residents to relocation assistance. Stephens v. Perry (1982) 134 Cal. App. 3d 748, 754-757, 184 Cal. Rptr. 701

Relocation benefits provided in Gov. Code § 7262 apply to persons displaced as result of acquisition who are either preacquisition tenants or postacquisition tenants who entered their tenancy without knowledge of acquisition. Cavanaugh v. California (1978) 85 Cal. App. 3d 354, 357, 149 Cal. Rptr. 453

Public entity that permitted tenant to seek relocation damages by complaint for breach of duty and damages and having thereby allowed statute of limitations for filing complaint in administrative mandamus under Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5 to run was not permitted to complain that tenant used wrong procedure. Superior Strut & Hanger Co. v. Port of Oakland (1977) 72 Cal. App. 3d 987, 1001, 140 Cal. Rptr. 515

Trial court properly denying writ of mandate seeking statutory relocation benefits where petitioner never filed written claim for benefits, never requested review by public entity of his eligibility for benefits, and never claimed damages against public agency. Baiza v. Southgate Recreation & Park Dist. (1976) 59 Cal. App. 3d 669, 673-674, 130 Cal. Rptr. 836

[11] Sanctions

Code Civ. Proc. § 575.2 requires that sanctions for failure to comply with local rules, such as exchange of appraisals, be imposed on counsel and not on client when client not at fault. State of California ex rel. Public Works Bd. v. Bragg (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 1018, 1023-1028, 228 Cal. Rptr. 576

[12] Settlement Offers

[a] In General

Owner's settlement offer did not include prejudgment interest for constructive taking before actual taking, and thus did not preclude additional judgment for interest. People ex rel. Dept. of Transportation v. Gardella Square (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 559, 564-569, 246 Cal. Rptr. 139

Failure to make settlement offer was not excused by conflict of interest and precluded award of attorney's fees. Santa Clara Valley Dist. v. Gross (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 1363, 1367-1373, 246 Cal. Rptr. 580

Offer served 33 days before trial but filed 28 days before trial was timely for purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 1250.410. Community Redevelopment Agency v. Krause (1984) 162 Cal. App. 3d 860, 864-865, 209 Cal. Rptr. 1

Former Code Civ. Proc. § 1249.3 (now Code Civ. Proc. § 1250.410), entitling defendant in condemnation proceeding to ligitation costs on condemnor's rejection of reasonable settlement demand, did not make award conditional on demand being kept open through trial. People ex rel. Dept. of Transportation v. Sunshine Canyon, Inc. (1979) 94 Cal. App. 3d 599, 603-604, 156 Cal. Rptr. 552

Code Civ. Proc. § 1250.410 authorized award of litigation expenses where condemnor accepted defendants' demand after trial had commenced but before amount of compensation was determined by trial. Coachella Valley County Water Dist. v. Dreyfuss (1979) 91 Cal. App. 3d 949, 956-957, 154 Cal. Rptr. 467

Purpose of Code Civ. Proc. § 1250.410 is promoting settlement of valuation disputes in eminent domain proceedings and guaranteeing full recompense to landowner in case of unnecessary litigation. California ex rel. Public Works Bd. v. Turner (1979) 90 Cal. App. 3d 33, 38, 153 Cal. Rptr. 156

Offers and demands subsequent to final ones affect only amount of litigation fees and not condemnees's entitlement thereto. Lake County Sanitation Dist. v. Schultz (1978) 85 Cal. App. 3d 658, 666, 149 Cal. Rptr. 717 (decided under prior law comparable to Code Civ. Proc. § 1250.410)

Trial court had discretion to deny attorney's fees although jury awarded amount demanded by property owner and city had refused to pay that amount. Los Angeles v. Canon (1976) 57 Cal. App. 3d 559, 561, 127 Cal. Rptr. 709

[b] Determining Reasonableness and Unreasonableness

Award of litigation expenses to defendant was improper when trial court mistakenly calculated actual and percentage difference between offer and compensation awarded, and improperly focused on conduct of agency's appraiser, rather than on conduct of agency, in evaluating agency's good faith, care and accuracy in formulating its final offer. City of Long Beach Redevelopment Agency v. Morales (2007) 157 Cal. App. 4th 287, 295, 68 Cal. Rptr. 3d 604

Final offer was unreasonable because it was based on nonconforming use required by zoning ordinance to be terminated and was only 74 percent of jury's award. People ex rel. Dept. of Transportation v. Woodson (2001) 93 Cal. App. 4th 954, 961, 113 Cal. Rptr. 2d 559

Court of appeal's survey of results in other cases showed final offers that were 60 percent or less of jury's verdict were generally found to be unreasonable, while offers that are above 85 percent were generally considered to be reasonable per se; final offers that came within the middle range fell within either group depending on other factors, particularly whether government agency was unyielding and extent of good faith, care, and accuracy in method of determining offer and demand. People ex rel. Dept. of Transportation v. Yuki (1995) 31 Cal. App. 4th 1754, 1764, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 616

Trial court was well within its discretion in finding final offer that was 77 percent of jury's verdict was unreasonable because offer (1) was based on unwavering reliance on appraisal that was over $2 million low in its valuation of acquired land, and (2) was incorrect in its evaluation of both severance damages and special benefits. People ex rel. Dept. of Transportation v. Yuki (1995) 31 Cal. App. 4th 1754, 1764, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 616

Award of litigation expenses was unreasonable when owner demanded amount that was $800,000 more, and five times greater, than amount awarded at trial. County of Contra Costa v. Pinole Point Properties, Inc. (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th 1105, 1115, 33 Cal. Rptr. 2d 38

Offer of 89 percent of award coupled with evidence that defendant's appraisal was considered constituted reasonable offer and supported no award of litigation expenses. Glendale Redevelopment Agency v. Parks (1993) 18 Cal. App. 4th 1409, 1415-1418, 23 Cal. Rptr. 2d 14

Offer of less than 30 percent of eventual award was unreasonable as a matter of law; agency's failure to consider owner's appraisal when appraisals were far apart was evidence of failure to act in good faith. San Diego Gas & Electric Co. v. Daley (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 1334, 1352-1353, 253 Cal. Rptr. 144

Even though jury verdict was much higher than appraisal, plaintiff's offer was reasonable when based on credible appraisal and defendant had not offered independent appraisal but only his own testimony of value. County of San Diego v. Woodward (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 82, 90-92, 230 Cal. Rptr. 406

Offer that is conditioned on land being in certain condition after improvements is reasonable. Placer County Water Agency v. Hofman (1985) 165 Cal. App. 3d 890, 898-900, 211 Cal. Rptr. 894

Failure of defendant to have supported demand by reasoned appraiser's report was one basis for concluding that condemnor's offer was reasonable despite verdict substantially larger than offer. City of El Monte v. Ramirez (1982) 128 Cal. App. 3d 1005, 1009-1013, 180 Cal. Rptr. 690

Even though, mathematically, offer was unreasonably low, declaration of plaintiff's attorney established that offer was made in good faith and arrived at with care and accuracy. City of San Leandro v. Highsmith (1981) 123 Cal. App. 3d 146, 156-159, 176 Cal. Rptr. 412

Reasonableness of final offer and demand present factual issues depending not only on percentage of difference in monetary amounts of offer and demand but also on good faith, care, and accuracy in determination of those amounts. Coachella Valley County Water Dist. v. Dreyfuss (1979) 91 Cal. App. 3d 949, 958, 154 Cal. Rptr. 467

Code Civ. Proc. § 1250.410 authorizing litigation costs in eminent domain proceedings does not contain specific criteria permitting single mathematical analysis to determine when settlement offer is either reasonable or unreasonable; general guidelines to be used include (1) amount of difference between offer and compensation awarded, (2) percentage of difference between offer and award, and (3) good faith, care, and accuracy in how amount of offer and amount of demand were determined. California ex rel. Public Works Bd. v. Turner (1979) 90 Cal. App. 3d 33, 37, 153 Cal. Rptr. 156

Trial court properly refused to award litigation expenses under Code Civ. Proc. § 1250.410 where state clearly determined amount of offer with good faith, care, and accuracy although comparison of offer and compensation awarded and percentage differential between offer and award might cast doubt on reasonableness of offer. California ex rel. Public Works Bd. v. Turner (1979) 90 Cal. App. 3d 33, 37, 153 Cal. Rptr. 156

Demand was unreasonable where condemnor had only one day to evaluate it, consider appraisals, and respond with revised written offer. People ex rel. Dept. of Transportation v. Patton Mission Properties (1979) 89 Cal. App. 3d 204, 212-213, 152 Cal. Rptr. 485 (interpreting language of former Code Civ. Proc. § 1249.3 comparable to present Code Civ. Proc. § 1250.410)

[c] Examples of Unreasonable Offers

Settlement offer by public entity was unreasonable when it reserved right to appeal the amount of taking. People v. Zivelonghi (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 187, 191-193, 228 Cal. Rptr. 72

Use of noncomparable properties and refusal to negotiate were evidence of unreasonableness sufficient to award fees even when offer was over 80 percent of judgment. Community Redevelopment Agency v. Krause (1984) 162 Cal. App. 3d 860, 866-867, 209 Cal. Rptr. 1

Offer was unreasonable when less than 50 percent of jury verdict and plaintiff gave little or no weight to theories and findings of defendant's experts in making offer. Redevelopment Agency v. First Christian Church (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 690, 706-707, 189 Cal. Rptr. 749

City's settlement offer was unreasonable where it was less than 60 percent of the value awarded by the jury, was substantially lower in absolute terms ($21,756.50) than the award, and condemnor firmly adhered to its appraisal with no spirit of compromise in contrast to defendants whose demand was considerably below their expert's appraisal. Gardena v. Camp (1977) 70 Cal. App. 3d 252, 257, 138 Cal. Rptr. 656

Condemnor's final offer was unreasonable as matter of law where offer was significantly disproportionate to jury's verdict (approximately 80 percent of verdict), offer was significantly lower than verdict in absolute terms ($16,000), and offer did not take into account substantial difference between opinion of value made by agency's appraisal expert and opinion of value made by property owner's appraisal expert. County of Los Angeles v. Kranz (1977) 65 Cal. App. 3d 656, 659-660, 135 Cal. Rptr. 473

[d] Time Requirement

Thirty-day time limit for filing motion for litigation expenses under Code Civ. Proc. § 1250.410(b) was construed as requiring motion to be made within 30 days after entry of judgment, not 30 days from date notice of entry of judgment is mailed or served. Poway Unified School Dist. v. Chow (1995) 39 Cal. App. 4th 1478, 1483, 46 Cal. Rptr. 2d 651

Thirty-day time limit for filing motion for litigation expenses under Code Civ. Proc. § 1250.410(b) does not preclude court from granting relief for late filing if there is substantial compliance with statute and opposing party is not prejudiced. Poway Unified School Dist. v. Chow (1995) 39 Cal. App. 4th 1478, 1485, 46 Cal. Rptr. 2d 651

Last offer from condemnor before 30 days before trial constitutes final offer; offers and demands made within 30 days of and during trial merely affect amount of litigation expenses that may be awarded under Code Civ. Proc. § 1250.410(b). People ex rel. Dept. of Transportation v. Patton Mission Properties (1979) 89 Cal. App. 3d 204, 212, 152 Cal. Rptr. 485

Thirty-day period in former Code Civ. Proc. § 1249.3 (now Code Civ. Proc. § 1250.410) determined entitlement to litigation expenses and was not intended to cut off all litigation expenses incurred more than 30 days before trial. Lake County Sanitation Dist. v. Schultz (1978) 85 Cal. App. 3d 658, 669, 149 Cal. Rptr. 717 (decided under prior law comparable to Code Civ. Proc. § 1250.410)

Condemnee substantially complied with requirement that demand be filed 30 days before trial where demand was filed on next court day following 30th day before trial and condemnor made no objection to late filing and was, itself, tardy in filing its final offer. Lake County Sanitation Dist. v. Schultz (1978) 85 Cal. App. 3d 658, 662, 149 Cal. Rptr. 717 (decided under prior law comparable to Code Civ. Proc. § 1250.410)

Where both condemnor and condemnee filed final offer and final demand during trial rather than 30 days or more before trial, neither party was capable of obtaining benefits under former Code Civ. Proc. § 1249.3 (now Code Civ. Proc. § 1250.410) and trial court properly denied condemnee costs and expenses. People ex rel. Dept. of Transportation v. Callahan Bros. (1977) 69 Cal. App. 3d 541, 543-544, 138 Cal. Rptr. 239

[e] Trial Court's Findings

Trial court was not required to make express findings as to whether condemnor's settlement offer was unreasonable and defendant's demand was reasonable when ruling on condemnee's motion for litigation costs pursuant to former Code Civ. Proc. § 1249.3 (now Code Civ. Proc. § 1250.410). People ex rel. Dept. of Transportation v. Sunshine Canyon, Inc. (1979) 94 Cal. App. 3d 599, 604, 156 Cal. Rptr. 552

B. Inverse Condemnation

20-247 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 247.256

§ 247.256 Decisions

[1] Class Actions

Class action in inverse condemnation is not proper in action for damages from airport noise because of insufficient community of interest. San Jose v. Superior Court (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 447, 458-463, 115 Cal. Rptr. 797, 525 P.2d 701

[2] Date of Valuation

When valuation of property has increased, value of property taken is determined at date of trial. Leaf v. City of San Mateo (1984) 150 Cal. App. 3d 1184, 1190-1192, 198 Cal. Rptr. 447

[3] Defenses

[a] Estoppel

State's building of drainage system was not foreseeable so as to estop person from whom property was acquired for freeway from bringing later action for damage to remaining property caused by drainage. Mehl v. People (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 710, 716, 119 Cal. Rptr. 625

Landowner was not estopped from bringing inverse condemnation action for subsidence damage to property caused by landfill operations when such subsidence was not foreseeable, despite fact that public entity had earlier acquired right to use property for landfill operations. Reinking v. Orange County (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 1024, 1030-1031, 88 Cal. Rptr. 695

[b] Failure to Exhaust Administrative Remedies

Purchasers of beachfront property subject to offers to dedicate pedestrian and bicycle easement to county could not assert takings claim based on county's decision to accept offers to dedicate; claim was ripe when county exacted offers to dedicate from purchasers' predecessors and predecessors had not pursued state administrative remedies. Daniel v. County of Santa Barbara (9th Cir. 2002) 288 F.3d 375, 381-384

Failure to exhaust administrative remedies was defense when plaintiff did not seek a vested rights exemption from regulatory act. South Coast Regional Com. v. Gordon (1977) 18 Cal. 3d 832, 836-838, 135 Cal. Rptr. 781, 558 P.2d 867

Regulatory taking claim was ripe for adjudication because county issued what amounted to a final decision that it lacked discretion to grant subdivision of plaintiff's property due to presence of wetlands, and permissible use of the property was known to reasonable degree of certainty. Dunn v. County of Santa Barbara (2006) 135 Cal. App. 4th 1281, 1299-1300, 38 Cal. Rptr. 3d 316

Owners of property on which former quarry was located could not state as-applied takings claim based on rezoning of property by county land use initiative, because owners had not made any applications to develop the property. County of Alameda v. Superior Court (2005) 133 Cal. App. 4th 558, 569-571, 34 Cal. Rptr. 3d 895

Takings claim was not ripe when plaintiffs never sought approval for any specific project; fact that city delayed over very lengthy period of time in adopting new plan and zoning for area did not create futility needed to establish ripe takings claim. Calprop Corp. v. City of San Diego (2000) 77 Cal. App. 4th 582, 599-600, 91 Cal. Rptr. 2d 792

Taking claim by developers whose subdivision application was denied was not ripe, and futility exception to exhaustion requirement was not applicable, when zoning ordinance allowed up to three lots on property and developers never submitted application for lower-density project. Toigo v. Town of Ross (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 309, 330-331, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 649

When county required annexation to city for development, failure to apply for annexation precluded inverse condemnation claim. Long Beach Equities, Inc. v. County of Ventura (1991) 231 Cal. App. 3d 1016, 1032-1036, 282 Cal. Rptr. 877

Issues not raised at administrative hearing were not permitted to be raised in action for inverse condemnation. Walnut Creek v. Contra Costa County (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 1012, 1019-1022, 162 Cal. Rptr. 224

Failure to exhaust administrative remedies was defense in inverse condemnation action. People ex rel. State Public Works Bd. v. Superior Court (1979) 91 Cal. App. 3d 95, 99, 101-105, 154 Cal. Rptr. 54

[c] Police Power

Valid regulation of price of cheese was not taking of cheese-making business. Golden Cheese Co. v. Voss (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 727, 736-739, 281 Cal. Rptr. 602

When property owner was given notice of nuisance but failed to correct it, demolition to abate nuisance was not considered to be taking. Duffy v. City of Long Beach (1988) 201 Cal. App. 3d 1352, 1358, 247 Cal. Rptr. 715

[d] Statute of Limitations

Cause of action in inverse condemnation for damage from project not on plaintiff's land but causing damage to plaintiff's land accrues when damage is appreciable to reasonable person. Mehl v. People ex rel. Dep't of Public

Works (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 710, 717, 119 Cal. Rptr. 625, 532 P.2d 489

Action for inverse condemnation based on flooding caused by highway culvert was barred by statute of limitations where property owners knew about damage at time it happened, accepted assertion of the state, county and others that damage was caused by "act of God," and did not make further investigation. Lyles v. State of California (2007) 153 Cal. App. 4th 281, 286, 62 Cal. Rptr. 3d 696

Inverse condemnation action by purchasers of former county landfill whose property was damaged by subsidence barred by statute of limitations forlatent construction defects [Code Civ. Proc. § 337.15]; county's construction and operation of landfill constituted "improvement" within meaning of statute. Gaggero v. County of San Diego (2004) 124 Cal. App. 4th 609, 617, 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 388

Where redevelopment agency purchased property on which store was located and transferred title to third party who negotiated new lease and allowed store to remain until he was ready to develop property, taking occurred when redevelopment agency acquired title, but statute of limitations on store owner's inverse condemnation claim did not begin to run until date new owner took possession of premises. Kong v. City of Hawaiian Gardens Redevelopment Agency (2003) 108 Cal. App. 4th 1028, 134 Cal. Rptr. 2d 260

Applicable statute of limitations in inverse condemnation actions. Williams v. Southern P. R. Co. (1907) 150 Cal. 624, 626-628, 89 P. 599 (three-year statue for injury to real property); Frustuck v. Fairfax (1963) 212 Cal. App. 2d 345, 373-374, 28 Cal. Rptr. 357 (five-year adverse possession statute applicable)

Cause of action for airport noise accrues when noise causes substantial interference with use and enjoyment of property. Aaron v. City of Los Angeles (1974) 40 Cal. App. 3d 471, 492, 115 Cal. Rptr. 162

Cause of action for inverse condemnation accrues when construction complete, not when first trespass occurs. Mosesian v. County of Fresno (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 493, 500-502, 104 Cal. Rptr. 655
