A parent who has requested or is receiving support enforcement services from the local child support agency may take independent action to modify a support order made under Family Code Section 17404 while support enforcement services are being provided by the agency. The parent must serve the agency with notice of any action filed to modify the support order, and must provide the agency with a copy of the modified order within 15 calendar days after it is issued [Fam. Code § 17404(f)(1)].

[3] Enforcement of Support Order

A parent who has requested or is receiving support enforcement services from the local child support agency may take independent action to enforce a support order made under Family Code Section 17404 while these services are being provided, as long as the agency consents in writing [Fam. Code § 17404(f)(2)]. At least 30 days before filing the action, the parent must provide the agency with written notice of intent to file an enforcement action, describing the type of action the parent intends to file. Within 30 days after receiving the notice, the agency must either provide written consent for the parent to proceed or notify the parent that the agency objects to the parent's proposed action. The agency may object only if it is currently using an administrative or judicial method to enforce the support obligation or if the proposed action would interfere with an investigation the agency is conducting. If the agency does not respond to the parent's notice within 30 days, the agency is deemed to have given consent to the parent's proposed action [Fam. Code § 17404(f)(2)].

[4] Order That Support Payments Be Made to Local Child Support Agency

If the parent who filed the action has requested or is receiving support enforcement services, the court must order that all payments of support be made to the local child support agency unless the agency has terminated support enforcement services by case closure as provided by state and federal law [Fam. Code § 17404(f)(3)]. Any order obtained by a parent before support enforcement services are terminated is voidable on the agency's motion if it did not receive proper notice of the parent's action [Fam. Code § 17404(f)(3)].

A "parent who is receiving support enforcement services" includes a parent who has assigned his or her rights to support under Welfare and Institutions Code Section 11477 [Fam. Code § 17404(h)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
G. Civil Enforcement by Local Child Support Agencies

§ 259.155 Judgment by Stipulation With Support Agency

In any case in which the local child support agency has undertaken enforcement of support, it may enter into an agreement with the noncustodial parent on behalf of a minor child or children, a spouse, or former spouse, for the entry of a judgment without action determining paternity, if applicable, and for periodic child and spousal support payments based on the noncustodial parent's reasonable ability to pay or, if for spousal support, an amount previously ordered by a court of competent jurisdiction [Fam. Code § 17416(a)]. Such an agreement may be executed before the birth of the child and may provide that judgment is not to be entered until after the child's birth [Fam. Code § 17416(a)].

Judgment based on such an agreement may be entered only if the noncustodial parent is represented by legal counsel who signs a certificate as specified by statute [Fam. Code § 17416(b)(1)], or a judge determines that the noncustodial parent has willingly, knowingly, and intelligently waived his or her due process rights in agreeing to the entry of the judgment [Fam. Code § 17416(b)(2)].

These requirements for a stipulated judgment were added to the statute authorizing an agreement for the entry of a judgment of paternity after the former statute was held unconstitutional because it authorized entry of judgment without a finding that the noncustodial parent understood and waived his or her right to notice and to a hearing to contest the issue of paternity [see County of Los Angeles v. Soto (1984) 35 Cal. 3d 483, 486 n.2, 489, 198 Cal. Rptr. 779, 674 P.2d 750 ; County of Ventura v. Castro (1979) 93 Cal. App. 3d 462, 472-473, 156 Cal. Rptr. 66] . A judgment entered under the former statute is not void and is not rendered involuntary because the current requirements of advice were not followed; however, a judgment is invalid if the noncustodial parent establishes that he or she was in fact unaware of the consequences of the agreement or of the fact that he or she waived his or her rights by executing the agreement, and that he or she would not have executed the agreement had he or she been aware of these matters [County of Los Angeles v. Soto (1984) 35 Cal. 3d 483, 489-492, 198 Cal. Rptr. 779, 674 P.2d 750] .

The requirements discussed above also apply to stipulated judgments for support or paternity based on an agreement between an unrepresented defendant and the local child support agency. The stipulated judgment is voidable if an unrepresented defendant can establish that he or she was not advised by the support agency of the right to trial on the question of paternity and ability to support and that he was unaware of these rights and would not otherwise have executed the agreement [County of Los Angeles v. Castro (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 899, 904, 207 Cal. Rptr. 15] . The requirement for an on-the-record waiver of the right to counsel does not apply in the case of a default judgment in which the defendant was given proper notice of the right to counsel [County of Mendocino v. Ted S. (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 1202, 1207, 266 Cal. Rptr. 452 (default judgment distinguished from stipulated judgment as resulting from defendant's choice not to appear rather than from unequal bargaining position)].

On the agency's request, the clerk must set the matter for hearing by the court. The hearing must be held within 10 days after the clerk receives the request [Fam. Code § 17416(d)].

The agreement between the agency and the defendant must be filed by the clerk, together with any certificate of the attorney or finding of the court. If the statutory requirements are satisfied, the court must enter judgment without action [Fam. Code § 17416(c)]. A judgment for support entered in this manner is subject to the Family Code's provisions for enforcement by the local child support agency, and may be enforced by any means through which any other judgment for support may be enforced [Fam. Code § 17416(c)].

The local child support agency must effect service of a copy of the judgment on the person who signed the agreement for entry of the judgment and must notify that person in writing of the right to seek modification of the amount of child support on a showing of changed circumstances [Fam. Code § 17416(e)].

An order for child support included in a judgment entered in this manner may be modified or revoked in accordance with relevant provisions of the Family Code [see Ch. 260, Family Law Enforcement: Foreign Judgments]. The court may also modify the order to make the support payments payable to a different person [Fam. Code § 17416(f)].

The Judicial Council form of Stipulation for Judgment and Judgment is set forth in § 259.258.

§ 259.156 Related Support Enforcement Procedures

[1] Recording Abstract of Judgment and Substitution of Payee

Notwithstanding any other provision of law, if a support obligation is being enforced by a local child support agency, the agency may file and record an abstract of judgment [see Fam. Code § 4506] and substitute the office and address of the agency designated to receive support payments for the address of the party to whom support was ordered to be paid [Fam. Code § 4506.1]. If an abstract of judgment has previously been recorded by the support obligee or by a different governmental agency, the local child support agency may file and record a substitution of payee [Fam. Code § 4506.2(a)]. A substitution of payee may also be filed if the support agency has previously recorded an abstract of judgment, but then ceases enforcement of a support obligation at the request of the obligee [Fam. Code § 4502.6(b)]. The recorded substitution of payee does not affect the priorities created by earlier recordations of support judgments or abstracts of support judgments [Fam. Code § 4502.6(d)].

The Judicial Council has developed a single form that combines the substitution of payee, a notice directing payment of support to the support agency [see Fam. Code §§ 4200, 4201, discussed in § 259.133], and a notice that support has been assigned to the agency [Fam. Code § 4506.3; see Welf. & Inst. Code § 11477; see also § 259.270 (form)].

[2] Levy by Local Child Support Agency

If any support obligor is delinquent in the payment of support for at least 30 days and the local child support agency is enforcing the support obligation under Family Code Section 17400, the agency may collect the delinquency or enforce any lien by levy served on all persons having in their possession, or who will have in their possession or under their control any credits or personal property belonging to the obligor, or who owe any debt to the obligor at the time they receive the notice of levy [Fam. Code § 17522(a)]. The agency may issue a levy for a support obligation that has accrued under a court order or judgment if the obligor had notice of the accrued support arrearage and did not make a timely request for review [Fam. Code § 17522(b); see Fam. Code § 17522(c) (notice requirements); Fam. Code § 17522(d) (request for review)].

Any person on whom a levy has been served, who has in his or her possession or under his or her control any credits or personal property belonging to the delinquent support obligor or owing any debts to the delinquent support obligor at the time of receipt of the levy, must surrender the credits or property to the local child support agency or pay to the agency the amount of any debt owing to the obligor within 10 days of service of the levy [Fam. Code § 17522(e)]. Such a person must also surrender any credits or personal property belonging to the delinquent support obligor or the amount of any debt owing to the obligor that comes into his or her possession or control within one year of receipt of notice of the levy, within 10 days of coming into possession or control of the credits, property, or debt [Fam. Code § 17522(e)]. Any person who surrenders any credits or personal property or pays the debts owing to the delinquent support obligor to the local child support agency is discharged from any obligation or liability to the obligor to the extent of the amount paid as a result of the levy [Fam. Code § 17522(f)].

Any person who is served with a levy and who fails or refuses to surrender any credits or other personal property, or pay any debts owing to the delinquent support obligor, is liable in his or her own person or estate to the local child support agency in an amount equal to the value of the credits or other personal property, or in the amount of the levy up to the amount specified in the levy [Fam. Code § 17522(h)]. If any amount required to be paid under a levy is not paid when due, the local child support agency may issue a warrant for enforcement of the lien and for collection of any amount required to be paid to the agency [Fam. Code § 17522(i)].

A support obligor's bank account is exempt from levy by a local child support agency under Fam. Code § 17450(c)(2) when the obligor's sole income is from Social Security disability insurance benefits [In re Marriage of Hopkins (2009) 173 Cal. App. 4th 281, 285-292, 92 Cal. Rptr. 3d 570].

[3] Lien for Support

Notwithstanding any other provision of law, if a support obligor is delinquent in the payment of support and the local child support agency is enforcing the support obligation under Family Code Section 17400 or Section 17402, a lien for child support arises against the obligor's personal property by operation of law for all amounts of overdue support, regardless of whether the amounts have been adjudicated or otherwise determined [Fam. Code § 17523(a)(1); see Fam. Code § 17523(c)(3) (child support lien attaches to obligor's personal property that is subject to attachment by a judgment lien under Code Civ. Proc. § 697.530)]. Such a lien also arises when either a court having continuing jurisdiction or the local child support agency determines that the support obligor owes a specific amount of arrearages [Fam. Code § 17523(a)(2)]. A child support obligor is delinquent in the payment of support when he or she has failed to make payment equal to one month's support obligation [Fam. Code § 17523(c)(2)].

The lien for child support is perfected by filing a notice of child support lien with the Secretary of State under Code of Civil Procedure Section 697.510 [Fam. Code § 17523(b), (c)(1) (form of notice)]. Once filed, the child support lien has the same priority, force, and effect as a judgment lien on personal property under Code of Civil Procedure Section 697.510 et seq. [Fam. Code § 17523(b)].

A personal property lien for child support arising in another state may be enforced in the same manner and to the same extent as a lien arising in this state [Fam. Code § 17523(f)].

[4] "Seek Work" Order

A court may require a parent who is in default of a child support order to submit documentation showing that the parent has actually looked for work [see Fam. Code § 4505(a)]. On proper notice, the court has the discretion to impose an employment efforts order on the support obligee, as well as on the support obligor, who is the parent in default [Barron v. Superior Court (2009) 173 Cal. App. 4th 293, 298-300, 92 Cal. Rptr. 3d 394 (court should not have refused to consider support obligee's participation in CalWORKS welfare-to-work program)].

A claim of mistaken identity may be filed with the local child support agency by any person who claims that support enforcement actions have been wrongly taken against the person, or the person's wages or assets, on the basis of an order or judgment naming a different person [Fam. Code § 17530(a), (b)]. The claim must include verifiable information or documentation to establish that the person against whom the enforcement actions have been taken is not the person named in the support order or judgment. The agency must resolve a claim of mistaken identity in the same manner and time frames provided for resolution of a complaint under Fam. Code § 17800 [Fam. Code § 17530(b)].

If the agency determines that a claim of mistaken identity is meritorious, or if the court enters an order relieving a defendant from default under Family Code Section 17433 on the basis of mistaken identity, the agency must take immediate steps necessary to terminate all enforcement activities concerning the claimant, that is, the agency must return to the claimant any assets seized, terminate any levying activities or attachment or assignment orders, release any license renewal or application being withheld under Fam. Code § 17520, return any sums paid to any government agency (but not sums paid directly to the support obligee), and ensure that all other enforcement agencies and entities cease further actions against the claimant [Fam. Code § 17530(c)]. The agency must also provide the claimant with a statement certifying that the claimant is not the support obligor named in the support order or judgment. This statement is prima facie evidence of the claimant's identity in any subsequent enforcement proceedings or actions with respect to the support order or judgment [Fam. Code § 17530(c)].

If the agency rejects a claim, or if the agency, after finding a claim to be meritorious, fails to take any of the remedial steps provided in Family Code Section 17530(d), the claimant may file an action with the superior court to establish his or her mistaken identity or to obtain the prescribed remedies, or both [Fam. Code § 17530(d)].

Filing a false claim of mistaken identity is a misdemeanor [Fam. Code § 17530(e)].

§ 259.158 Enforcement of Spousal Support

[1] Federally Mandated Enforcement Program

Spousal support may also be enforced by the local child support agency under California's state plan for enforcement of child support, which is required as condition for the state's receipt of federal welfare funds [see 42 U.S.C. §§ 602(a)(2), 654, 666; Fam. Code § 17400 et seq.]. Under Fam. Code § 17400(a), the local child support agency "shall take appropriate action, including criminal action in cooperation with district attorneys, to establish, modify, and enforce child support and, when appropriate, enforce spousal support orders when the child is receiving public assistance, including Medi-Cal, and when requested, shall take the same actions on behalf of a child who is not receiving public assistance, including Medi-Cal."

The local child support agency may enforce only spousal support orders already established by a court of competent jurisdiction; it may not bring an action or a motion to establish the obligation in the first instance [Fam. Code § 17400(a)]. However, the agency may appear in response to a motion brought by the obligor parent to decrease an existing spousal support order if there are children residing with the obligee and the agency is also enforcing a related child support obligation owed to the obligee by the same obligor [Fam. Code § 17400(h)(4); see 42 U.S.C. § 654(a)(4)(B)(ii) (state must make spousal support collection services available to persons not receiving benefits under the Personal Responsibility and Work Opportunity Reconciliation Act, but only if support obligation with respect to child is being enforced under plan); cf. Fam. Code § 17604(a)(2) (state plan concerning spousal support applies only to spousal support included in child support order)].

Nothing in Fam. Code § 17400 limits the ability of a local child support agency to secure and enforce spousal support orders as authorized under any other provision of law [Fam. Code § 17400(g)(6)].

[2] Procedural Limitations

In any action to enforce a spousal support order, the action may be pled in the name of the county in the same manner as an action to establish a child support obligation. The same restrictions on joinder of actions, coordination of actions, and cross complaints, and delay because of the pendency of any other action also apply [Fam. Code § 17404]. These procedural limitations are discussed in § 259.153[4].

Either party may initiate an independent proceeding to litigate the issues of support, custody, visitation, or protective orders [See § 259.154]. In that event, any support, custody, visitation, or protective order issued by the court in an action under Fam. Code § 17404 must be filed in the other independent action, and continues in effect until modified by a subsequent court order. To the extent that orders conflict, the court order issued last supersedes all other orders and is binding on all parties in that action. [Fam. Code § 17404(d)].

§ 259.159 Registration of Support-Related Orders From Other Counties

[1] Right of Support Agency or Obligee to Register Order

[a] Registration in General

A local child support agency ("the local child support agency"), or an obligee may register an order for support or earnings withholding, or both, that has been obtained in another California county [Fam. Code § 5600(a)]. The orders may be registered in any county in which the obligor, the obligee, or the child resides, or in any county in which the obligor has income, assets, or property [Fam. Code § 5600(b)].

This discussion focuses on local child support agency registration of such orders. However, because individual obligees are also permitted to register them, reference to individuals is also made and procedures summarized (see [b], below). For Judicial Council forms of the registration statement that may be used by a private individual and a support agency, respectively, see § 259.269.

The Family Code clarifies that an obligee may register an out-of-county support or earnings withholding order (or both) in the court of another California county in the manner, with the effect, and for the purposes set forth in Fam. Code § 5600 et seq. [Fam. Code § 5600(b)]. The procedures to be used by an obligee in registering such orders are essentially the same as those used by the local child support agency (see [2], below), except as set forth in Fam. Code § 5602. That section clarifies that the obligee must prepare, sign, and file the required registration statement, which must be verified, along with the other required documentation. Filing of these materials in the court of the other (nonlocal) county constitutes registration. No filing fee is to be charged by the registering court [Fam. Code § 5602(a), (b)].

On registration, the court clerk must promptly send the obligor notice of the registration, together with a copy of the registered support order and the post office address of the obligee, in accordance with the procedures specified in Fam. Code § 5602(c).

[2] Support Agency Procedures

When the local child support agency is responsible for enforcing a support order under Fam. Code § 17400, the agency may register a support order made in another county by utilizing the procedures in Fam. Code § 5602, or by filing all of the following in the superior court of the county where the agency is located [Fam. Code § 5601(a)]:

- An endorsed-filed copy of the most recent support order (or a copy of it);

- A statement of arrearages, including an accounting of amounts ordered and paid each month, together with any added costs, attorney's fees, and interest; and

- A statement prepared by the support agency that shows the agency's post office address, the obligor's last known place of residence or post office address, the obligor's most recent address set forth in the licensing records of the Department of Motor Vehicles, and a list of other states and counties in this state that are known to the support agency in which the original support order and any modifications are registered.

The filing of these documents constitutes registration of the support order [Fam. Code § 5601(b)].

Promptly on registration, the local child support agency must serve the obligor with copies of the documents in compliance with the requirements of Code of Civ. Proc. § 1013 or in any other manner provided by law [Fam. Code § 5601(c)].

In addition, on registration, the clerk of the court must forward a notice of registration to the courts in other counties and states in which the original support order and any modifications were issued or registered. No further proceedings concerning the obligor's support obligations may be filed in these other counties [Fam. Code § 5601(e)].

These procedures may also be used to register support or wage and earnings assignment orders of other California jurisdictions that have been registered previously for purposes of enforcement under the (now former) Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act [former Fam. Code §§ 4800 et seq.] in another California county. The local child support agency may register such an order by filing an endorsed-filed copy of it and any subsequent orders, including procedural amendments [Fam. Code § 5601(f); cf. Fam. Code § 5604 (effect of prior determination of paternity)].

The Judicial Council is required to develop forms to be used in these proceedings [Fam. Code § 5601(g)].

[3] Motion to Vacate Registration

An obligor has 20 days after service of notice of the registration of a California support order in which to file a noticed motion requesting the court to vacate the registration or for other relief. If the obligor does not file the motion within this 20-day period, the registered support order and all documents filed in connection with the registration are confirmed [Fam. Code § 5603(a)].

The obligor must serve a copy of the motion, personally or by first-class mail, on the office of the local child support agency, the private attorney representing the obligee, or the obligee representing himself or herself who filed the request for registration of the order. Such service must be made not less than 15 days before the date of the hearing on the motion. If service is by mail, Code of Civ. Proc. § 1013 applies [Fam. Code § 5603(a)].

In such a proceeding, cross-complaints and joinder or coordination of actions are not permitted. Claims or defenses are strictly limited to the obligor's identity, the validity of the support order, and the accuracy of the obligee's statement of the amount of support remaining unpaid unless the amount has been established previously by a judgment or order [Fam. Code § 5603(a)]. At the hearing, the obligor may present only matters that the obligor could assert as defenses in an action to enforce a support judgment [Fam. Code § 5603(b)].

Any party may introduce into evidence copies of any pleadings, documents, or orders that have been filed in the original court or other courts in which the support order has been registered or modified. Certified copies of the documents are not required unless a party objects to the authenticity or accuracy of a document. In such event, the party who is asserting the document's authenticity must obtain a certified copy of it [Fam. Code § 5601(d)].

If the obligor shows, and the court finds, than an appeal from the support order is pending or that a stay of execution has been granted, the court must stay enforcement of the order until the appeal is concluded, the time for appeal has expired, or the order is vacated, on satisfactory proof that the obligor has furnished security for payment of the support ordered. If the obligor shows, and the court finds, any ground on which enforcement of the order may be stayed, the court must stay enforcement of the order for an appropriate period if the obligor furnishes security for payment of support [Fam. Code § 5603(b)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
G. Civil Enforcement by Local Child Support Agencies

§ 259.160 Enforcement

[1] Duties of Department of Child Support Services and Local Child Support Agencies

A child support delinquency need not be referred to the Department for collection if a jurisdiction outside California is enforcing the support order [Fam. Code § 17453(i)].

If a child support delinquency exists at the time a case is opened by the local child support agency, the responsibility for the collection of the child support delinquency must be submitted to the Department no later than 30 days after receipt of the case by the local child support agency [Fam. Code § 17500(d)].

When a local child support agency submits a delinquency to the Department of Child Support Services pursuant to Fam. Code § 17500(c), the amount of the delinquency will be collected by the department in any manner authorized under state or federal law [Fam. Code § 17450(b)(1)]. Any compensation, fee, commission, expense, or any other fee for service incurred by the Department in the collection of a child support delinquency will not be an obligation of, or collected from, the obligated parent [Fam. Code § 17450(b)(2)]. For these purposes, "child support delinquency" means a delinquency as defined in Fam. Code § 17500(c) [Fam. Code § 17450(a)(1)]. "Earnings" include the items described in Fam. Code § 5206 [Fam. Code § 17450(a)(2)].

The Department may return or allow a local child support agency to retain a child support delinquency for a specified purpose for collection when the Department determines that the return or retention of the delinquency for the specified purpose will enhance the collectibility of the delinquency [Fam. Code § 17450(c)(1)]. The Department will establish a process for a local child support agency to request and be allowed to withdraw, rescind, or otherwise recall the submittal of an account that has been submitted [Fam. Code § 17450(c)(1)].

If an obligor is disabled, meets the federal Supplemental Security Income resource test, and is receiving Supplemental Security Income/State Supplementary Payments (SSI/SSP), or, but for excess income as described in federal regulations [20 C.F.R. § 416.1100 et seq.], would be eligible to receive as SSI/SSP [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 12200], and the obligor has supplied the local child support agency with proof of eligibility for, and, if applicable, receipt of, SSI/SSP or Social Security Disability Insurance benefits, the child support delinquency will not be referred to the Department for collection. If it is referred, it will be withdrawn, rescinded, or otherwise recalled from the Department by the local child support agency [Fam. Code § 17450(c)(2)]. The Department will not take any collection action, or if the local child support agency has already taken collection action, will cease collection actions in the case of a disabled obligor when the delinquency is withdrawn, rescinded, or otherwise recalled by the local child support agency in accordance with the established process [Fam. Code § 17450(c)(2)].

It is the intent of the Legislature that when the California Child Support Automation System (CCSAS) is fully operational, any statutes that should be modified based upon the status of the system will be revised. During the development and implementation of CCSAS, the department, as the Title IV-D agency, may, through appropriate interagency agreement, delegate any and all of the functions or procedures specified in Family Code Section 17450 et seq. to the Franchise Tax Board [Fam. Code § 17450(d)]. The Franchise Tax Board will perform those functions or procedures as specified in Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 19271-19275, inclusive, until such time as the director, by letter to the executive officer of the Franchise Tax Board, revokes the delegation of Title IV-D functions, and those sections of the Revenue and Taxation Code will be effective for these purposes until the revocation of delegation to the Franchise Tax Board [Fam. Code § 17450(d)].

Consistent with the development and implementation of the California Child Support Automation System (CCSAS), the Franchise Tax Board and the Department of Child Support Services will enter into a letter of agreement and an interagency agreement whereby the Department assumes responsibility for collection of child support delinquencies and the Financial Institution Data Match System [Fam. Code § 17450(e); for discussion of the Financial Institution Data Match System, see [2], below].

Subject to state and federal privacy and information security laws, the Franchise Tax Board will make tax return information available to the Department, upon request, for the purpose of collecting child support delinquencies referred to the Department [Fam. Code § 17452(a)]. For these purposes, the Franchise Tax Board will incur no obligation or liability to any person arising from any of the following [Fam. Code § 17452(b):

(1) Furnishing information to the Department as required by Fam. Code § 17452.

(2) Failing to disclose to a taxpayer or accountholder that the name, address, social security number, or other taxpayer identification number or other identifying information of that person was included in the data exchange with the Department.

(3) Any other action taken in good faith to comply with the requirements of Fam. Code § 17452.

It is the intent of the Legislature that any provision of income tax return information by the Franchise Tax Board to the Department will be done in accordance with the privacy and confidential information laws of California and the United States, and to the satisfaction of the Franchise Tax Board [Fam. Code § 17452(c)].

[2] Financial Institution Data Match System

The Department of Child Support Services, in coordination with financial institutions doing business in California, will operate a Financial Institution Data Match System utilizing automated data exchanges to the maximum extent feasible. The Financial Institution Data Match System will be implemented and maintained pursuant to guidelines prescribed by the Department. These guidelines will include a structure by which financial institutions, or their designated data-processing agents, receive from the Department the file or files of past-due support obligors, so that the institution can match with its own list of accountholders to identify past-due support obligor accountholders at the institution [Fam. Code § 17453(a)]. To the extent allowed by the federal Personal Responsibility and Work Opportunity Reconciliation Act of 1996 (P.L. 104-193), the guidelines will include an option by which financial institutions without the technical ability to process the data exchange, or without the ability to employ a third-party data processor to process the data exchange, may forward to the Department a list of all accountholders and their social security numbers, so that the Department can match that list with the file or files of past-due support obligors [Fam. Code § 17453(a)].

The Financial Institution Data Match System will not be subject to any limitation in Gov. Code § 7460 et seq., governing governmental access to financial records [Fam. Code § 17453(b)]. However, any use of the information for any purpose other than the enforcement and collection of a child support delinquency, as set forth in Fam. Code § 17450, is a violation of Fam. Code § 17212, protecting individual rights of privacy [Fam. Code § 17453(b)].

Until implementation of the California Child Support Automation System, each county must compile a file of support obligors with judgments and orders that are being enforced by local child support agencies pursuant to Fam. Code § 17400, and who are past due in the payment of their support obligations. The file must be compiled, updated, and forwarded to the Department of Child Support Services, in accordance with the guidelines prescribed by the Department [Fam. Code § 17453(c)(1)]. The Department will compile a file of obligors with support arrearages from requests made by other states for administrative enforcement in interstate cases, in accordance with federal requirements [Fam. Code § 17453(c)(2); see 42 U.S.C. § 666(a)(14)]. The file must include, to the extent possible, the obligor's address [Fam. Code § 17453(c)(2)].

To effectuate the Financial Institution Data Match System, financial institutions subject to Fam. Code § 17453 must do all of the following [Fam. Code § 17453(d)]:

> (1) Provide to the Department on a quarterly basis, the name, record address and other addresses, social security number or other taxpayer identification number, and other identifying information for each noncustodial parent who maintains an account at the institution and who owes past-due support, as identified by the department by name and social security number or other taxpayer identification number.
> (2) In response to a notice or order to withhold issued by the department, withhold from any accounts of the obligor the amount of any past-due support stated on the notice or order and transmit the amount to the department in accordance Fam. Code § 17454 [but see Fam. Code § 17453(j)].

Unless otherwise required by applicable law, a financial institution furnishing a report or providing information to the department pursuant to Fam. Code § 17453 may not disclose to a depositor, accountholder, codepositor, or coaccountholder, that the name, address, social security number, or other taxpayer identification number or other identifying information of that person has been received from, or furnished to, the Department [Fam. Code § 17453(e)].

A financial institution will incur no obligation or liability to any person arising from any of the following [Fam. Code § 17453(f)]:

> (2) Failing to disclose to a depositor, accountholder, codepositor, or coaccountholder, that the name, address, social security number, or other taxpayer identification number or other identifying information of that person was included in the data exchange with the Department required by Fam. Code § 17453.
> (3) Withholding or transmitting any assets in response to a notice or order to withhold issued by the Department as a result of the data exchange. However, this does not preclude any liability that may result if the financial institution does not comply with Fam. Code § 17456(b).

With respect to files compiled until implementation of the California Child Support Automation System [see Fam. Code § 17453(c)(1)], the Department will forward to the counties, in accordance with guidelines prescribed by the Department, information obtained from the financial institutions pursuant to Fam. Code § 17453. No county may use the information for directly levying on any account. Each county must keep the information confidential as provided by Fam. Code § 17212 [Fam. Code § 17453(g)(1)]. With respect to files compiled by the Department for interstate purposes [see Fam. Code § 17453(c)(2)], the amount collected by the Department will be deposited and distributed to the referring state [Fam. Code § 17453(g)(2); see Fam. Code § 17458].

For noncustodial parents owing past-due support for which there is a match [see Fam. Code § 17453(d)(1)], the amount past due as indicated on the file or files at the time of the match will be a delinquency for the purposes of the department taking any collection action pursuant to Fam. Code § 17454 [Fam. Code § 17453(h)].

Each county must notify the Department upon the occurrence of the following circumstances with respect to an obligor of past-due support [Fam. Code § 17453(j)(1)]:

> (A) A court has ordered an obligor to make scheduled payments on a child support arrearages obligation and the obligor is in compliance with that order.
> (B) An earnings assignment order or an order/notice to withhold income that includes an amount for past-due support has been served on the obligated parent's employer and earnings are being withheld pursuant to the earnings assignment order or an order/notice to withhold income.
> (C) At least 50 percent of the obligated parent's earnings are being withheld for support.

Notwithstanding Code Civ. Proc. § 704.070, if any of these conditions exist, the assets of an obligor held by a financial institution are subject to levy [Fam. Code § 17453(j)(2); see Fam. Code § 17453(d)(2)]. However, the first $3,500 of an obligor's assets are exempt from collection without the obligor having to file a claim of exemption [Fam. Code § 17453(j)(2)]. Furthermore, an obligor may apply for a claim of exemption pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 703.510 et seq. for an amount that is less than or equal to the total amount levied. The sole basis for a claim of exemption must be the financial hardship for the obligor and the obligor's dependents [Fam. Code § 17453(j)(3)]. For the purposes of a claim of exemption, Code Civ. Proc. § 688.030 will not apply [Fam. Code § 17453(j)(4)]. For these claims of exemption, the local child support agency responsible for enforcement of the obligor's child support order is the levying officer [see Code Civ. Proc. § 703.510 et seq.], except for the release of property [Fam. Code § 17453(j)(5); see Code Civ. Proc. § 703.580(e)]. The local child support agency must notify the Department within two business days of the receipt of a claim of exemption from an obligor. The Department will direct the financial institution subject to the order to withhold to hold any funds subject to the order pending notification by the Department to remit or release the amounts held [Fam. Code § 17453(j)(6)]. The superior court in the county in which the local child support agency enforcing the support obligation is located has jurisdiction to determine the amount of exemption. The court must consider the needs of the obligor, the obligee, and all persons the obligor is required to support, and all other relevant circumstances in determining whether to allow any exemption. The court must give effect to its determination by an order specifying the extent to which the amount levied is exempt [Fam. Code § 17453(j)(7)]. Within two business days of receipt of an endorsed copy of a court order issued pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 703.580(e), the local child support agency must provide the Department with a copy of the order. The Department will instruct the financial institution to remit or release the obligor's funds in accordance with the court's order [Fam. Code § 17453(j)(8)].

Out of any money received from the federal government for the purpose of reimbursing financial institutions for their actual and reasonable costs incurred in complying with Fam. Code § 17453, the state will reimburse those institutions. To the extent that money is not provided by the federal government for that purpose, the state will not reimburse financial institutions for their costs in complying with § 17453 [Fam. Code § 17453(k)].

> (1) "Account" means any demand deposit account, share or share draft account, checking or negotiable withdrawal order account, savings account, time deposit account, or a money market mutual fund account, whether or not the account bears interest.

At least 45 days before sending a notice to withhold, the Department must request that a depository institution provide the Department with a designated address for receiving notices to withhold [Fam. Code § 17454(a)]. Once the depository institution has specified a designated address, the Department must send all notices to that address unless the depository institution provides notification of another address. The department must send all notices to withhold to a new designated address 30 days after notification [Fam. Code § 17454(b)]. If a notice to withhold is mailed to the branch where the account is located or principal banking office, the depository institution will be liable for a failure to withhold only to the extent that the accounts can be identified in information normally maintained at that location in the ordinary course of business [Fam. Code § 17454(c)].

The Department may by notice, served by magnetic media, electronic transmission, or other electronic technology, require any depository institution that the department, in its sole discretion, has reason to believe may have in its possession, or under its control, any credits or other personal property or other things of value, belonging to a child support obligor, to withhold, from the credits or other personal property or other things of value, the amount of any child support delinquency, and interest, due from an obligor and transmit that amount withheld to the Department at the times that it may designate, but not less than 10 business days from receipt of the notice [Fam. Code § 17454(d); for definition of "depository institution," see 12 U.S.C. § 461(b)(1)(A)]. The notice must state the amount due from the obligor and be delivered or transmitted to the branch or office reported, or other address designated by that depository institution for purposes of the Department serving notice by magnetic media, electronic transmission, or other electronic technology [Fam. Code § 17454(d)]. For these purposes, the term "address" includes telephone or modem number, facsimile number, or any other number designated by the depository institution to receive data by electronic means [Fam. Code § 17454(d)].

Any person required to withhold and transmit any amount pursuant to Fam. Code § 17450 et seq. must comply with the requirement without resort to any legal or equitable action in a court of law or equity [Fam. Code § 17456(a)]. Any person paying the Department any amount required by it to be withheld is not liable to the person from whom withheld unless the amount withheld is refunded to the withholding agent [Fam. Code § 17456(a)]. However, if a depository institution withholds and pays to the Department any moneys held in a deposit account in which the delinquent obligor and another person or persons have an interest, or in an account held in the name of a third party or parties in which the delinquent obligor is ultimately determined to have no interest, the depository institution paying those moneys to the Department is not liable to any of the persons who have an interest in the account, unless the amount withheld is refunded to the withholding agent [Fam. Code § 17456(a)]. In the case of a deposit account or accounts for which the notice to withhold applies, the depository institution must send a notice by first-class mail to each person named on the account or accounts included in the notice from the Department, provided that a current address for each person is available to the institution [Fam. Code § 17456(b)]. This notice must inform each person the reason for the hold placed on the account or accounts, the amount subject to being withheld, and the date by which this amount is to be remitted to the Department [Fam. Code § 17456(b)]. An institution may assess the account or accounts of each person receiving this notice a reasonable service charge not to exceed $3 [Fam. Code § 17456(b)].

As necessary, the Department will seek reciprocal agreements with other states to improve its ability to collect child support payments from out-of-state obligated parents on behalf of custodial parents residing in California [Fam. Code § 17460(a)]. The Department may pursue agreements with the Internal Revenue Service, as permitted by federal law, to improve collections of child support delinquencies from out-of-state obligated parents through cooperative agreements with the service [Fam. Code § 17460(a)].

The California Child Support Automation System [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 10080 et seq.] will, for these purposes, include the capacity to interface and exchange information, if feasible, with the Internal Revenue Service, to enable the immediate reporting and tracking of obligated parent information [Fam. Code § 17460(b)].

Each local child support agency must maintain a complaint resolution process [Fam. Code § 17800]. The Department of Child Support Services is responsible for issuing uniform forms and procedures for local child support agencies to use in resolving complaints from parents [Fam. Code § 17800]. Each local agency is responsible for establishing the required process [Fam. Code § 17804]. Any complaint must be made within 90 days after the complainant knew or should have known of the child support action which is the subject of the complaint [Fam. Code § 17800]. The agency must provide a written resolution of the complaint within 30 days after its receipt, but the time for resolution may be extended an additional 30 days in accordance with regulations [Fam. Code § 17800].

A parent who is dissatisfied with the local child support agency's resolution of the complaint must be afforded an opportunity for a state hearing when any one or more of the following actions or failures to take action by the agency is claimed [Fam. Code § 17801(a)]:

1. An application for child support services has been denied or has not been acted on within the required time frame;

2. The child support services case has not been acted on, in violation of state or federal law or regulation, or department letter ruling, or has not yet been acted on within the required time frame;

3. Child support collections have not been distributed or have been distributed or disbursed incorrectly, or the amount of child support arrears (as calculated by the agency) is inaccurate; or

4. The agency's decision to close a child support case.

The local child support agency must provide specified information to parents about child support service hearings [Fam. Code § 17401.5].

Before requesting a hearing, the parent must exhaust the complaint resolution process required by Fam. Code § 17800, unless the local child support agency fails to submit a written resolution of the complaint with 30 days of its receipt [Fam. Code § 17801(b)]. In such event, the parent may request a hearing. [Fam. Code § 17801(b)].

Any request for a hearing must be made within 90 days after receiving written notice of resolution of the complaint, or within 90 days after the complaint is made if no written notice of resolution is provided within the 30-day period [Fam. Code § 17801(c)]. The hearing must be set to begin within 30 days after the request is filed [Fam. Code § 17801(d)]. All parties must be given written notice of the time and place of the hearing no later than 10 days before the hearing [Fam. Code § 17801(d)]. A final decision must be rendered within 20 working days of the hearing [Fam. Code § 17801(d)]. The local child support agency and the Franchise Tax Board must comply with and execute this decision [Fam. Code § 17801(h)]. A parent who is dissatisfied with the decision may file a petition for review with the superior court within one year after receiving notice of the decision [Fam. Code § 17803].

The pendency of a child support service hearing does not affect the obligation to comply with an existing child support order [Fam. Code § 17801(f)]. Any child support determination that is subject to the jurisdiction of the superior court and that is required by law to be addressed by motion, order to show cause, or appeal under the Family Code may not be the subject of a state hearing under Fam. Code § 17801 [Fam. Code § 17801(g)].

§ 259.175 Decisions

[1] Attorney's Fees

Denial of attorney's fees in enforcement proceeding without hearing was erroneous when record did not indicate that court considered respective incomes and needs of parties. In re Marriage of Popenhager (1979) 99 Cal. App. 3d 514, 525-526, 160 Cal. Rptr. 379

Reasonableness of order for attorney's fees incurred in enforcing spousal support order in judgment is within sound discretion of trial court. In re Marriage of Millet (1974) 41 Cal. App. 3d 729, 731, 116 Cal. Rptr. 390

[2] Civil Enforcement Methods

District attorney is authorized by former Welf. & Inst. Code § 11475.1 (see now Fam. Code § 17400 et seq.) to oppose modification of child and spousal support order on behalf of spouse not receiving public assistance. Worth v. Superior Court (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 1150, 1154-1155, 255 Cal. Rptr. 304

[3] Death of Obligor

Divorce judgment ordering husband to maintain wife as beneficiary on specific amount of life insurance for benefit of minor children of parties is enforceable against husband during his lifetime by contempt proceedings or by suit for specific performance and, when he failed to comply with order, named his estate as beneficiary, and died, was enforceable against his executors who held proceeds as constructive trustees. Cramer v. Biddison (1968) 257 Cal. App. 2d 720, 724-725, 65 Cal. Rptr. 624

Obligation for child support continues after death of obligor and extends to estate. Franklin Life Ins. Co. v. Kitchens (1967) 249 Cal. App. 2d 623, 631, 635, 57 Cal. Rptr. 652

Father's obligation to support minor child that is fixed by divorce decree or property settlement agreement does not cease on father's death but survives as charge against estate. Newhall v. Newhall (1964) 227 Cal. App. 2d 800, 806, 39 Cal. Rptr. 144

[4] Execution

Adult children have no standing to enforce by execution accrued child support arrearages because custodial parent is beneficiary of execution action after children reach majority. In re Marriage of Utigard (1981) 126 Cal. App. 3d 133, 137, 143, 178 Cal. Rptr. 546

[5] Earnings Withholding (Garnishment) for Support

[a] Equitable Division of Earnings

Equitable division of earnings between first and second families is proper when earnings not exempt. Rankins v. Rankins (1942) 52 Cal. App. 2d 231, 234-235, 126 P.2d 125

[b] Orders Enforceable

Disability pension covered by ERISA is subject to garnishment under state law for spousal support judgment. In re Marriage of Williams (1985) 163 Cal. App. 3d 753, 764, 768, 209 Cal. Rptr. 827

[6] Payment of Support to Court-Designated Officer

Former Civ. Code § 4801.7 (now see Fam. Code § 4351) did not authorize district attorney to defend recipient spouse in action for reduction or termination of spousal support, in contrast to action to enforce support order. In re Marriage of Brown (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 491, 495-496, 234 Cal. Rptr. 535

Requirement of former Civ. Code § 4702(a) (now see Fam. Code § 4200) that court order payment of child support to county clerk (designated county officer), is part of federal-state procedure to ensure reimbursement to taxpayers by absent fathers; but does not authorize court to require indigent custodial mothers to partially reimburse county for welfare payments as condition of entry of dissolution judgment. In re Marriage of Sanabia (1979) 95 Cal. App. 3d 483, 486, 157 Cal. Rptr. 56

District attorney was empowered under former Civ. Code § 4702 (now see Fam. Code § 4200) to appear on behalf of minor child and child's mother in proceeding to enforce support order when child support was ordered payable to county probation department and mother had assigned rights to receive support to county. In re Marriage of Guardino (1979) 95 Cal. App. 3d 77, 85-86, 156 Cal. Rptr. 883

Court that ordered payments of child support to trustee under former Civ. Code § 4702(a) (now see Fam. Code § 4200) when custodial mother was receiving AFDC properly refused to order that trustee pay any part of support payments into educational trust fund, rather than paying entire amount to county as required by statute. In re Marriage of Simmons (1977) 72 Cal. App. 3d 205, 207-208, 139 Cal. Rptr. 832

[7] Setoff Rights

Whether parent should be given credit for child support payments made contrary to provisions of court order is within sound discretion of trial court. In re Marriage of Utigard (1981) 126 Cal. App. 3d 133, 145, 178 Cal. Rptr. 546

Equity prohibits mother from collecting child support arrearages from father that accrued during time when child, with consent of mother, was permanently living with father. Jackson v. Jackson (1975) 51 Cal. App. 3d 363, 368, 124 Cal. Rptr. 101

Effect of substituted payments (i.e., payments made directly to child or on behalf of child instead of to custodial parent) on enforceability of child support order. Spivey v. Furtado (1966) 242 Cal. App. 2d 259, 264-267, 51 Cal. Rptr. 362

[8] Tax Refund Intercepts

State income tax refund intercept program for delinquent child support meets constitutional requirements of due process. Wightman v. Franchise Tax Board (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 966, 978, 249 Cal. Rptr. 207

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is an illustrative, filled-in version of the Application for Earnings Withholding Order form adopted by the Judicial Council for mandatory use [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 681.030(b), 706.120; Cal. Judicial Council Form WG-001]. This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

The form is for use by a judgment creditor to apply for an earnings withholding order for support. The application may be made when a writ of execution has been issued to the county in which the judgment debtor's employer is to be served, and 180 days have not elapsed from the date the writ was issued [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 706.102(a), 706.108(a); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 699.530(b)]. The levying officer must promptly issue the earnings withholding order [Code Civ. Proc. § 706.102(a); see Code Civ. Proc. § 706.030(a) (defining "withholding order for support"); § 259.191 (form)].

[3] Contents of Application

The application must be executed under oath and must contain the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 706.121(a)-(g)]:

- The name, last known address, and, if known, the social security number of the judgment debtor;
- The name and address of the judgment creditor;

- The court where the judgment was entered and the date of entry;
- The date of issuance of the writ to the county where the earnings withholding order is sought;
- The total amount required to satisfy the order on the day of issuance;
- The name and address of the employer; and
- The name and address of the person to whom the withheld money is to be paid by the levying officer.

Although the form does not contain a direction that the creditor's address be set forth, as required by Code Civ. Proc. § 706.121(b), the better practice would be to type the address after the creditor's name in Paragraph 1. Additionally, although the form does not have a space to include the date the writ of execution was issued, it is deemed to comply with Code Civ. Proc. § 706.121(d) [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 681.030(b), 706.120].

[4] Filing Application

The application may be filed with the levying officer in the county to which the writ of execution has been issued [Code Civ. Proc. § 706.102(a)], or it may be delivered to a registered process server [Code Civ. Proc. § 706.108(a)]. The officer or process server must then issue an earnings withholding order [see § 259.191].

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is an illustrative, filled-in version of the Earnings Withholding Order for Support form adopted by the Judicial Council for mandatory use [Code Civ. Proc. § 706.120; Cal. Judicial Council Form WG-004]. This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

The form is for use by a levying officer or a registered process server. If a writ of execution has been issued to the county in which the judgment debtor's employer is located and 180 days have not expired since the writ issued, the levying officer or registered process server, after receiving an application for an earnings withholding order [see § 259.190], must order the withholding or earnings of a judgment debtor in spousal or child support cases [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 706.030(a), 706.108(a); see Code Civ. Proc. § 699.530(b)]. Counsel should consult with a levying officer or registered process server in his or her county to determine if local practice requires the officer or server to complete this form.

[3] Service of Order

Service of the order on the employer may be made by personal delivery or by registered or certified mail, postage prepaid, with return receipt requested [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 415.10, 415.20, 706.101(b)], and may be made by either the levying officer or a registered process server [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 706.103(a), 706.108(a)]. The following papers are required to be served on the employer [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 706.103(a), (b), 706.108(c)]:

- The original and one copy of the earnings withholding order;
- The form for the employer's return;
- The notice to employee of the earnings withholding order; and
- A copy of the employer's instructions referred to in Code Civ. Proc. § 706.127 (included on the reverse of the current form), unless the Judicial Council prescribes otherwise.

For discussion and illustrative forms listed in (2) and (3), above, see Ch. 276, Garnishment .

[4] Instructions to Employer

The reverse side of the form contains Employer's Instructions. The levying officer must serve the form on the debtor spouse's employer, who must give notice to the employee and begin withholding his or her earnings. The instructions set out the employer's duties and include information on the computation of the permissible amounts to be withheld and warnings regarding violations of the garnishment laws set out in Code Civ. Proc. § 706.010 et seq.

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use in giving notice of intent to seek an earnings assignment order in the event of a default in child or spousal support payments [see Fam. Code § 5252(b); Fam. Code § 5253 (issuance of earnings assignment support order on receipt of application for assignment)]. The form should be used with regard to a pre-July 1, 1990, support order, or order modifying support, that does not contain an earnings assignment, as a prerequisite to seeking an earnings assignment if the obligor is in default in an amount equal to one month's payment [Fam. Code §§ 5250, 5252(a); see also Fam. Code §§ 5230(b), 5251 (alternative procedure by notice of motion or order to show cause), all discussed in § 259.56].

[3] When Notice of Intent May Be Given

The obligee need not wait for the obligor to default on the support obligation before giving the notice set out in this form. The notice may be given at any time, including at the time of filing a petition or complaint in which support is requested, or at any subsequent time [Fam. Code § 5252(b)]. The notice must be given, however, at least 15 days before filing an application for an earnings assignment order [Fam. Code § 5252(b); see § 259.201]. The obligor may, at any time, waive the requirement that this notice be given [Fam. Code § 5252(b)].

[4] Service of Notice

This notice must be served on the obligor by first-class mail, postage prepaid, or by personal service. Service must be at least 15 days prior to the filing of an application for an earnings assignment [Fam. Code § 5252(b)].

[2] Source of Form

The form in [1], above, is an illustrative reproduction of the mandatory form of Ex Parte Application for Earnings Assignment Order (Family Law) adopted for use by the Judicial Council [Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-430]. This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

[3] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use as an ex parte application for an order to obtain an earnings assignment against a person who is in arrears in payments on a child, spousal, or family support order [see Lang v. Superior Court (1984) 153 Cal. App. 3d 510, 516, 200 Cal. Rptr. 526 (local rule requiring that application for wage assignment for payments on child support arrearages and for attorney's fees to obtain payments be issued only on noticed motion, rather than on ex parte application, was in conflict with former Civ. Code § 4701 and former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1285.65)]. As an alternative to proceeding ex parte, the obligee may proceed by noticed motion or order to show cause [Fam. Code §§ 5230(b), 5251]. The form is for use with regard to a pre-July 1, 1990, support order on which the court has not previously issued an earnings assignment order [see Fam. Code §§ 5230(b), 5250-5253]. With regard to any support order issued or modified after that date, an earnings assignment order must be issued at the time when the support order is made [see Fam. Code § 5230]. However, to account for situations in which no earnings assignment order has actually been issued for support ordered on or after July 1, 1990, the form may also be used with respect to such (July 1, 1990, or later) orders. The form also permits a request for modification of an existing wage and earnings assignment order.

[4] Filling Out Form

For support ordered before July 1, 1990, the application must allege that the obligor is in default in support payments in a sum equal to the amount of support payable for one month or for any other occurrence specified by the court in the support order (Paragraph 3) [Fam. Code § 5252(a)].

In addition, for support ordered before July 1, 1990, the applicant must also allege the giving of written notice of intent to seek an earnings assignment in the event of default (Paragraph 3) [see Fam. Code § 5252(b)]. For a form of notice of intent, see § 259.200.

For support orders issued on or after July 1, 1990, the form contains a checkoff box in Paragraph 4 that permits the applicant to indicate that an earnings assignment order has not been issued for support ordered after that date. Paragraph (6) of the form permits the applicant to seek a modification of an existing earnings assignment order. Counsel should mark the check-off boxes applicable to the situation or, if none apply, explain the basis for the modification under the box marked "other."

For discussion of particular problems with the use of an earnings assignment to collect arrearages and attorney's fees, see § 259.202[4].

[5] Verification

The application must be signed under penalty of perjury by the obligee [Fam. Code § 5252(a)].

[6] Income and Expense Declaration

An application for an assignment to pay arrearages or attorney's fees should be accompanied by a completed Income and Expense Declaration in support of the monthly payment requested, unless a current form is on file [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 5.118(b), 5.128 (declaration required when "relevant"); Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-150; for a form of income and expense declaration, see Ch. 221, Dissolution of Marriage: Procedure].

[7] Attorney's Fees

Absent good cause to the contrary, the court, on determining an ability to pay, must award reasonable attorney's fees to a custodial parent or a supported spouse in any action to enforce an existing order for child or spousal support [Fam. Code § 3557].

[2] Source of Form

The form in [1], above, is an illustrative reproduction of the mandatory Judicial Council form of Earnings Assignment Order for Spousal or Partner Support (Family Law) [Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-435]. This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

The form in [1], above, is for use as an assignment of salary or wages for spousal support to order an employer to withhold a portion of the earnings of its employee and to pay the amounts withheld as directed by the order [see 15 U.S.C. §§ 1672, 1673 (restrictions on wage garnishment)]. It may be used as either an initial earnings assignment order [see Fam. Code §§ 5230(b), 5250-5253 (application for earnings assignment for support orders first issued or modified before July 1, 1990, for which court did not issue earnings assignment)], or an order modifying a prior earnings assignment when the underlying spousal support order has been modified [see Fam. Code § 5230(a)]. The order operates as an assignment and is binding on any existing or future employer of the obligor on whom a copy of it is served [Fam. Code § 5231; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 706.031 (priority of earnings assignment for support)].

Instructions to the employer payor and information for the employee obligor appear on the reverse side of the form. An earnings assignment order for support must be issued, and is effective and enforceable, notwithstanding the absence of the name, address, or other identifying information about the obligor's employer or the inclusion of incorrect information about the [Fam. Code § 5230(b)].

On and after January 1, 2000, the federal form entitled Order/Notice to Withhold Income for Child Support [Judicial Council forms FL-195/FL-196, OMB Form No. 0970-0154] is to be used for a wage and earnings assignment order for child support. That form is set forth at § 259.263.

[4] Computation of Arrearages

An earnings assignment order must include an amount to be paid toward the liquidation of any arrearage [Fam. Code § 5230(b)]. Therefore, the form in [1], above, may be used as an order to withhold amounts from earnings to be applied to arrearages in addition to the ongoing monthly support obligation. There is a problem, however, with use of an earnings assignment to collect arrearages, particularly if the obligee is proceeding ex parte under Fam. Code § 5252 for support orders issued or modified before July 1, 1990. In the order, the court must set forth the total amount of the arrearages (line 1(b)). Under the applicable statute, however, arrearages are to be computed on the basis of payments owed and unpaid on the date when the obligor has been given notice of the order of assignment [Fam. Code § 5239]. Thus, the amount of arrearages apparently cannot be computed until a date subsequent to when the order is issued. Until this procedure is clarified by legislation or rules, counsel should check with the court clerk for local practice, and may wish to collect arrearages by way of an earnings withholding order (garnishment) [see § 259.30 et seq.] instead of an earnings assignment.

[5] Copies to Prepare

The following copies should be prepared:

- Original for filing with court clerk;
- One copy for the employer to retain;
- A second copy to be delivered to the employer for transmission to the employee;
- A third copy for any court or county official who is to receive and pay over the funds; and
- Additional copy for service by party securing order on employee's attorney or employee if he or she has no attorney.

§ 259.204 Stay or Termination of Stay of Service of Earnings Assignment Order [Fam. Code § 5260, 5261]--Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-455

[2] Source of Form

The form in [1], above, is an illustrative reproduction of the mandatory form of Stay or Termination of Stay of Service of Earnings Assignment Order, adopted by the Judicial Council [Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-455]. This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

[3] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, may be used either by a support obligor to request a court order staying service of an earnings assignment order [Fam. Code § 5260], or by a support obligee to request an order terminating such a stay [Fam. Code § 5261]. For discussion of the grounds for a stay of service, see the discussion in § 259.55[1]. For discussion of the grounds for termination of the stay of service, see the discussion in § 259.55[2].

[4] Hearing Requirements

Although there is no express statutory requirement for a hearing on an application for a stay of service, it is implied by the lack of any express authority to proceed ex parte [see Fam. Code § 5260]. The form reproduced in [1], above, states that if the application is made separately from a hearing on support, the obligor must notice a hearing (see Notice before item 1 in Application for Stay). Thus, the probable legislative assumption is that the obligor should request a stay at the time of the hearing at which a support order might be entered. Therefore, the obligor should be prepared to make a showing of good cause or alternative arrangement of the parties for stay of service at that time, and the obligee should be placed on notice in some manner of the obligor's intention to request a stay of service.

If the obligee applies for termination of the stay on the ground of arrearages, no hearing is required, and the stay terminates by operation of law on the filing of the declaration [Fam. Code § 5261(a), (b)]. If the obligee seeks termination of the stay on any other ground, the form states that a hearing is required (see item 3 in Application for Termination of Stay). This may reasonably be inferred from the statutory language, which provides that the obligee must establish that good cause no longer exists [see Fam. Code § 5261(a); see also Fam. Code § 5260(b)(1) (conditions for good cause)].

[5] Filling Out Form if Cash or Cash Bond Is to Be Posted

The form in [1], above, has been filled out to represent the situation in which the obligor will request stay of service at the hearing in which the support obligation is initially established. In that case, the exact amount of support to be ordered may be unknown, so the form has been modified to reflect the fact that no support order is currently outstanding at the time the form is filed and served (line 2).

[2] Use of Forms

The forms in [1], above, are reproductions of the mandatory Judicial Council forms of Declaration of Payment History and Attachment to Declaration of Payment History [Cal. Judicial Council Forms FL-420, FL-421]. These forms are available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

These forms are used in proceedings to enforce orders for child, spousal, or family support to show the extent to which an obligor is in arrears in making payments under the order involved. They will ordinarily be attached to other forms that together comprise the notice of motion or order to show cause being brought to enforce the support order [see, e.g., Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-650 (statement for registration of foreign support order)]. In particular, the Attachment form generally should be completed whenever the arrearages declaration is used to show a detailed breakdown of the arrearage components. It appears that the forms may also be used by a support obligor to present the obligor's own statement of arrearages.

[2] Use of Forms

The forms in [1], above, are illustrated versions of the approved Judicial Council forms of Qualified Domestic Relations Order for Support (Earnings Assignment Order for Support), and Attachment to Qualified Domestic Relations Order for Support [Cal. Judicial Council Forms FL-460, FL-461]. These forms are available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

The first illustrated form (Qualified Domestic Relations Order for Support) is intended for use as an earnings assignment order for support with respect to a support obligor's benefits under an employee benefit plan that is subject to the provisions of the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 (ERISA-- 29 U.S.C. § 1000 et seq.) [Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-460].

The second illustrated form (Attachment to Qualified Domestic Relations Order for Support), is a statement of confidential identifying information regarding the obligor/employee and a spousal or family"alternate payee" [Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-461]. The Attachment must be completed and served on the employee benefit plan along with a copy of the order.

A qualified domestic relations order (QDRO) may be used to enforce orders (including provisions of court-approved property settlement agreements) for child, spousal or family support, or marital property rights with respect to a spouse, former spouse, child, or other dependent of a participant in an ERISA-governed employee benefit plan [see 29 U.S.C. § 1056(d)(3)(B); discussed in § 259.11[8][a]].

[3] Contents of Order

The Qualified Domestic Relations Order for Support form addresses several possible payout situations of benefits under the plan: monthly or other periodic payments (Item 1); a lump sum distribution (Item 3); and benefits that are not currently in "pay status," but that have been applied for by the support obligor (Item 5). The form notes that if benefits are not yet in pay status and the obligor has neither applied for them, and does not apply for them within 90 days after the plan receives the order, the plan has no obligation to withhold benefits. But, in that event, the plan would have to send prompt written notice to the alternate payee advising that no benefits are currently available for distribution and specifying the earliest date on which the support obligor could begin receiving benefits under the plan if her or she terminated employment (Item 5(b)).

Note that this Qualified Domestic Relations Order for Support form also includes a temporary restraining order (Item 13). The order provides that during any period in which the status of the order as a QDRO is being determined by the plan, or for such further period as may be ordered by the court, the plan is restrained from making a distribution to the support obligor ("participant") or his or her beneficiary (other than a beneficiary under another QDRO) of any amount that would have been payable during that period to any alternate payee named in the order if it had been determined to be a QDRO. The temporary restraining order would not, however, remain in effect for more than 18 months (see Item 13). Page 4 of the form contains definitions and further instructions concerning the form.

For a full discussion of requirements for, and use of QDROs, see Ch. 222, Dissolution of Marriage: Property Division and Valuation .

[2] Source of Forms

These forms are reproductions of the mandatory Judicial Council forms of Order to Show Cause (Family Law) [Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-300], and of Application for Order and Supporting Declaration [Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-310]. These forms are available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

[3] Use of Forms

These forms are for use by a person entitled to receive court-ordered child support payments when seeking an order for deposit of the parent-obligor's assets in order to secure future support payments [see Fam. Code § 4610]. An order for deposit of assets for security may be obtained on an order to show cause [Fam. Code § 4610(a); see Cal. Judicial Council Form 1285; see also § 259.221]. The form of Application for Order and Supporting Declaration may also be used as an attachment to a Notice of Motion [Fam. Code § 4610(a); see Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-301 (form of notice of motion and proof of service by mail)].

[4] Filling Out Forms

The relief requested may be indicated on the Order to Show Cause by checking the box labeled "Other" and specifying that the desired order is for deposit to secure child support payments. On the Application for Order and Supporting Declaration, item 9 allows for requests for unusual relief.

[5] Declaration

Evidentiary facts in support of the request for an order for deposit should be set forth in the space provided at item 10. When additional pages are required for the declaration, the Judicial Council form of Additional Page may be attached [Cal. Judicial Council Form MC-020]. No memorandum of points and authorities need be filed unless required by the court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.118(a)]. Therefore, the declarations should be specific and should contain no hearsay but instead be made by the person or persons having personal knowledge of the facts. The declaration or declarations must be signed under penalty of perjury by the person or county officer to whom support has been ordered to have been paid [Fam. Code § 4610(a)]. A declaration must state at a minimum that the obligor-parent is in arrears in payment in a sum equal to the amount of 60 days of payments [Fam. Code § 4610(a)].

The court is required to order a deposit for security if it determines that one of the conditions specified by statute exist, such as the fact that the parent-obligor is not receiving a salary subject to an assignment but has other income, or his or her job history shows that an earnings assignment would be difficult to enforce [Fam. Code § 4613; see discussion at § 259.84]. In some jurisdictions in which orders to show cause are generally submitted on pleadings, declarations, and offers of proof, counsel should prepare declarations in lieu of testimony in support of the existence of the conditions for a deposit for security. In those jurisdictions in which testimony is allowed only in hearings for pendente lite relief, counsel should ascertain before filing the declaration whether the matter may be specifically assigned for evidentiary hearing and, if not, prepare adequate declarations, or documents authenticated by declaration, showing the necessary facts.

The following papers should be attached:

- A copy of the child support order to be enforced. Although the court file will contain a copy of the order, it may be attached to the Application and Order to Show Cause as a convenience to the judge.

- A blank copy of Responsive Declaration to Order to Show Cause or Notice of Motion (Family Law) [Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-320], a blank copy of Income and Expense Declaration (Family Law) [Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-150], and a blank copy of Property Declaration (Family Law) [Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-160; for a form of responsive declaration, and forms of income and expense and property declarations, see Ch. 221, Dissolution of Marriage: Procedure] in the same number of copies and for same distribution as Application for Order and Supporting Declaration [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.118(b); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.128].

- Declaration by counsel, if required by local rules, to support an award of attorney's fees.

- Completed financial declaration, if petitioner requests attorney's fees, or when otherwise relevant to the relief requested [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 5.118(b), 5.128].

[7] Number of Copies

Once the judge has signed the order to show cause, the following copies should be made:

- For service on the parent-obligor.

- For service on opposing counsel, if any.

- For filing after service with the original proof of service attached.

- For the client.
- For counsel's own file.

[8] Service

A conformed copy of the signed order to show cause, together with the application and supporting declaration and all accompanying papers must be served at least 16 court days before the time set for the hearing, with an additional 5 days if service is by mail [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1003, 1005, 1013a; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.10(b)]. Following service of these papers, the original proof of service will be filed with the court. Counsel may use the Judicial Council form DV-140, adopted for use in general family law, domestic violence, and parentage proceedings, an illustrative version of which is set forth in Ch. 293, Harassment and Domestic Violence . For general discussion of proof of service, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers .

If a final judgment has been entered in the proceeding, the order and accompanying papers must be served on the obligor-parent and not on his or her attorney of record [Fam. Code § 215]. If a final judgment has not been entered, service should be on opposing counsel or on the obligor-parent if he or she is unrepresented [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.10(b)].

§ 259.221 Order for Deposit of Assets to Secure Future Child Support Payments [Fam. Code § 4610(a)]--Attachment to Order After Hearing--Cal. Judicial Council Form MC-020

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is an illustrative, filled-in reproduction of the optional Judicial Council form of additional page to attach to any other Judicial Council form [Cal. Judicial Council Form MC-020]. The form may be used after hearing on an order to show cause if the court has ordered the parent-obligor to deposit certain assets as security for future child support payments [see Fam. Code § 4610(a); see also discussion at § 259.80 et seq. and § 259.220[3] -[8]]. This additional page, containing the language of the order, must be attached to the mandatory Judicial Council form of Findings and Order After Hearing [see Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-341]. An illustrative reproduction of that form is set forth in Ch. 224, Dissolution of Marriage: Child Support . On the Findings and Order After Hearing form, item 8, which allows for the attachment of orders other than those listed on the form, should be checked.

Blank copies of the Findings and Order After Hearing and the form of Additional Page are available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge. Blank forms may also be procured from the court clerk's office.

[3] Contents of Order

The order the court issues must require the parent obligated for support to deposit assets in order secure future payments with the district attorney, other county officer, or trustee designated by the court [Fam. Code § 4610(a); see Fam. Code § 4601]. The order will specify a time within which the obligor-parent must make reasonable efforts either to cure the default in child support payments or to comply with a court-approved payment plan, and if payments continue in the arrears, the deposited assets may be used to satisfy the support obligation [see Fam. Code § 4630(a); see also discussion § 259.87].

[4] Preparation of Order

Because the court will ordinarily direct counsel to prepare a formal order, counsel should note the exact wording of the order at the time that the judge gives it from the bench. After completing this form, counsel should as a courtesy send an unsigned copy, with a return, stamped envelope, to opposing counsel (or to the parent-obligor, if unrepresented) to sign and return as conforming to the order made in open court. Counsel can then present the order to the judge for his or her signature. Counsel should consult local rules of court to determine whether this procedure is mandatory.

[5] Filing and Service

The signed form of Findings and Order After Hearing should be presented to the clerk for filing, along with a proof of service of the order on counsel for the parent-obligor. If the order provides for service on the district attorney, county officer, or trustee designated by court to receive the deposit of assets, it is recommended that these officials should also be served and the appropriate proofs of service filed [see Fam. Code § 4601].

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is an illustration of the mandatory Judicial Council form for use as an order for a child support security deposit of money and evidence of deposit [see Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-400]. This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

The form has been adopted under Fam. Code § 4550 et seq., which provides for a deposit of money, before delinquency, to secure future child support payments [cf. Fam. Code § 4600 et seq. (providing for deposit of assets to secure future child support payments)]. The language of the form closely tracks the requirements of Fam. Code §§ 4560, 4561, and 4562.

The order is to be signed by the court and then presented to the financial institution where the account will be established. An officer of the institution should complete the Evidence of Deposit. The original of the form then should be filed with the court, and a copy mailed to the person entitled to receive payment. A copy should also be served on the obligor.

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is an illustrated version of the mandatory Judicial Council form intended for use as an application and order for disbursement from a child support security deposit and evidence of deposit [see Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-401]. This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

The form has been adopted under Fam. Code § 4550 et seq., which provides for a deposit of money, before delinquency, to secure future child support payments [cf. Fam. Code § 4600 et seq. (providing for deposit of assets to secure future child support payments)]. The language of the form closely tracks the requirements of Fam. Code § 4570, providing for disbursal of the funds.

[3] Service

The court must immediately order a disbursal from the child support security account on receipt of a verified application that support is 10 or more days late [see Fam. Code § 4570(a)]. The statute requires that the court cause a copy of the verified application, as well as its order to disburse and replenish funds, to be served on the obligor [Fam. Code § 4571]. It does not appear to require that a copy of the application be served before the order is signed. Nevertheless, the face of the form states that a copy of the application must be served on the obligor and proof of its service be attached to the original that is filed with the court. This procedure would appear to require that a copy of the application be served on the obligor before the order is presented for the court's signature. After the order is signed, the court must cause a copy to be served on the depository institution at which the child support security deposit is maintained and on any district attorney with jurisdiction over the case [Fam. Code § 4572]. For further discussion, see § 259.103.

Judge of the Superior Court

The form in [1], above, is for use as an order requiring child support payments to be made to a county officer designated by the court pursuant to Fam. Code §§ 4200-4203. Fam. Code § 4200 provides for mandatory payments, while Fam. Code § 4201 provides for permissive payments to a county officer designated by the court. Fam. Code § 4202 specifies that, when the parties reside in different counties, the court may direct payments to be made to an officer of the county where the custodial parent resides. For further discussion, see § 259.133[1].

With appropriate modification, this form may also be used as an attachment to the Judicial Council form of Findings and Order After Hearing, as prescribed by Cal. Judicial Council Form 1296.31. Use of that form is described for family law proceedings in Ch. 221, Dissolution of Marriage: Procedure, and a copy of that form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

Some courts have adopted forms directing payment to a county officer designated by the court, and the office of the court clerk should be consulted to determine whether a particular court has adopted its own form.

[3] Application for Order

Fam. Code §§ 4200-4203 fail to specify the procedure for applying for the order or who may apply, and the Judicial Council has not adopted rules or specific forms for proceedings under those sections. When the court is required by statute to order payment of child support to a court-designated county officer [see Fam. Code § 4200 (parent receiving welfare for maintenance of child for whom support may be ordered)], it apparently may make the order without any formal request [see Fam. Code § 4200].

However, when payment to a court-designated county officer is permissive [see Fam. Code §§ 4201 (support order, in general), 4202 (parents residing in different counties)] it is unclear whether the court may make the order without prior notice to the obligated party.

Therefore, except when the court is required to direct payment to the designated county officer [see Fam. Code § 4200(a)], it is recommended that application for the order be made by noticed motion or order to show cause, with supporting documentation, general forms of which are discussed in Ch. 221, Dissolution of Marriage: Procedure .

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is an illustrative version of the mandatory Judicial Council form used to give a support obligor notice of delinquency in child support payments [see Fam. Code § 4722; Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-485]. This notice must be served on the obligor by the obligee as a condition precedent to attaching a 6-percent penalty on the overdue amount under the procedure set forth in Fam. Code §§ 4720-4733 [see Fam. Code §§ 4722, 4727 (penalties)]. For further discussion, see § 259.131[1].

This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

[3] Contents

The form in [1], above, meets the statutory requirements for a notice of delinquency under Fam. Code § 4723. The notice must state the amount that the child support obligor is in arrears and set forth the installments of support due, the amounts, if any, that have been paid, and the balance due [Fam. Code § 4723(b)(1), (2)]. It must also state that any unpaid installment of child support will incur a penalty of six percent of the unpaid support per month until paid, to a maximum of 72 percent of the original amount of the unpaid support, unless the support arrearage is paid within 30 days of the date of service of the notice of delinquency [Fam. Code § 4723(b)(3)]. The notice must be signed under penalty of perjury by the support obligee [Fam. Code § 4723(a)].

[4] Service

The notice of delinquency may be served personally or by certified mail, or in any manner provided for service of summons [Fam. Code § 4724]. For discussion of service of summons [see Code Civ. Proc. § 413.10 et seq.], see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers .

The Judicial Council form of notice also indicates that a blank form of Application to Determine Arrearages [see Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-490, illustrated in § 259.234] and blank Notice of Motion [see Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-301, illustrated in § 258.121] should also be served on the support obligor.

The form in [1], above, is an illustrative version of the mandatory Judicial Council form of Application to Determine Arrearages, for use by a support obligor who has been served with a notice of delinquency under Fam. Code § 4722 (§ 259.233) [see Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-490]. Unless the obligor files and serves a motion to determine arrearages and to show cause why a penalty should not be imposed, a 6-percent penalty will be imposed on the amount of unpaid support shown in the notice [Fam. Code §§ 4722, 4726, 4727]. The form is designed to be attached to a Judicial Council form of notice of motion or order to show cause. [3] Contents

The form in [1], above, meets the statutory requirements for requesting judicial review of license denial under Fam. Code § 17520(k). The applicant must state the date the agency denied the release and which license the applicant was unable to obtain as a result of the denial. The applicant must also state the grounds on which the judicial review is being sought. The court must hold an evidentiary hearing within 20 calendar days of the filing of the request for judicial review [see Fam. Code § 17520(k)].

[4] Service of Notice

Page two of the form contains a mandatory Judicial Council form of Proof of Service [Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-670]. Notice must be served by the applicant on the local child support agency responsible for the denial within seven calendar days of the filing of the petition. Service may be made by personal delivery or by first-class mail, postage prepaid, to the agency's last known address [see Fam. Code § 17520(k)(3)].

[3] Use of Forms

The forms illustrated in [1]-[2], above, are the Judicial Council forms of Summons and Complaint or Supplemental Complaint Regarding Parental Obligations [Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-600], and Declaration for Amended Proposed Judgment [Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-616]. Because these forms are "adopted" by the Judicial Council rather than "approved," their use is mandatory [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1.31; Gov. Code § 68511]. These forme are available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

These forms are for use by a county, through its local child support agency, in bringing a proceeding for reimbursement of public benefits provided on behalf of a child [see Fam. Code § 17402], or to establish paternity, if necessary, and to obtain or modify a child support order, whether or not the child is receiving public assistance [see Fam. Code § 17400 et seq.]. Private counsel will encounter these forms if retained to represent the defendant.

For further discussion of proceedings brought by the local child support agency, see § 259.150 et seq. For discussion and forms for use in a proceeding to establish parentage brought by one parent against an alleged parent under the Uniform Parentage Act, see Ch. 412, Paternity .

[4] Contents of Complaint Form

The Judicial Council's governmental form of Summons and Complaint or Supplemental Complaint Regarding Parental Obligations [Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-600; see [1], above], is for use in actions by the local child support agency filed on or after July 1, 1997. The form may be used both to establish an initial support order as well as to establish support after an action has been filed, apparently including a proceeding for marital dissolution or legal separation [see Fam. Code §§ 2330.1, 3651]. The form also combines a summons, and contains an expanded statement of rights and responsibilities directed to both the named party defendant (or respondent) and the other parent of the child regarding whom support and a declaration of paternity are sought. The form also contains a special notice regarding the use of court commissioners in hearing the matter, in compliance with current law. By court rule, a proposed judgment must be attached to the form, and not filed-endorsed separately [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.325(e)].

[5] Declaration for Amended Proposed Judgment

The Judicial Council's governmental form of Declaration for Amended Proposed Judgment, is for use in local child support agency enforcement actions [Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-616; see [2], above]. The form is used in advance of a judgment in the case to seek a different support order than that originally sought in the local child support agency's complaint. It sets forth the details of when the original complaint and summons were filed and the amount of support originally sought, along with the allegation that, subsequent to that time, either the obligor's income has become unknown or additional income information has been received that would result in a different support order. The form also includes a proof of service, and contemplates that an amended proposed judgment will be attached. By court rule, an amended proposed judgment submitted for filing must be attached to the declaration form, along with a proof of service by mail, if appropriate, as opposed to separately filing the amended proposed judgment [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.325(e)].

[2] Use of Form

The form set forth in [1], above, is the mandatory Judicial Council form of Notice and Acknowledgment of Receipt (Governmental) [Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-605]. It is adopted for use when a summons is served by mail in a governmental support proceeding. Two copies of the Notice and Acknowledgment form should be mailed (by first-class or airmail, postage prepaid) to the person to be served, along with a copy of the summons and complaint [Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-600], a proposed judgment [Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-630], a blank answer [Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-610], and a return envelope addressed to the sender (postage prepaid) [Code Civ. Proc. § 415.30(a); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.110]. Service of the summons is deemed complete on the date signed by the defendant, if the acknowledgment is afterwards returned to the sender and filed with the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 415.30(a)]. Proof of service includes the form acknowledgment of receipt of summons or other written acknowledgment of receipt of summons satisfactory to the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 417.10(b)].

The form may also be used to serve a copy of the summons with standard restraining orders, along with an order to show cause [Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-300] and a blank responsive declaration [Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-320], or along with a completed and a blank income and expense declaration [Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-150]. The form may also be used to serve other documents (item 3). This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

[2] Use of Forms

The following Judicial Council forms are set forth in [1], above:

- Request to Enter Default Judgment (Governmental) [Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-620], for use in actions filed on or after July 1, 1997.

- Declaration for Default or Uncontested Judgment [Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-697].

Because those forms are "adopted" by the Judicial Council rather than "approved," their use is mandatory [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1.31; Gov. Code § 68511]. This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

If an answer has not been received from the defendant within the 30-day response period after service, the local child support agency can file a Request to Enter Default. The Request forms illustrated contain allegations concerning the defendant's failure to answer, and concerning the absence of protections for military personnel under federal law. The clerk will fill in the box at the bottom of the page when the request is either granted or rejected. If it is rejected, the clerk must state the reason.

The agency may file a Declaration for Default or Uncontested Judgment along with the Request for Default. The declaration states, at Item 4, that the agency is only seeking the relief requested in the complaint as originally filed or amended. If a default has already been entered, the Declaration may be filed in support of a proposed Judgment Establishing Parental Relationship and Child Support (see § 259.259[1]). In either case, if the agency is seeking child support or health insurance, a proposed Judgment should be attached (see item 5) to the Declaration.

[2] Use of Forms

The form set forth in [1], above, is an illustrative reproduction of the Judicial Council's form of Answer to Complaint or Supplemental Complaint Regarding Parental Obligations (Governmental) [Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-610]. It includes a reproduction of the Judicial Council's Information Sheet for Service of Process (Governmental) [Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-611]. The Answer form is "adopted" by the Judicial Council, and its use is mandatory; the Information Sheet is "approved" by the Judicial Council, and its use is optional [see Introductory Statement to California Rules of Court; Gov. Code § 68511]. These forms are available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

In response to the local child support agency's filing of the underlying paternity action, counsel should complete the Answer form and any necessary attachments. The original version of these documents must be filed with the court clerk within 30 days of service of the complaint [see Code Civ. Proc. § 412.20(a)(3)]. Note that the answer form incorporates a proof of service declaration on the second page, which should be signed by the person who effects service on the local child support agency. The Information Sheet for Service of Process (Governmental) provides guidance on completion of the proof of service declaration [Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-611]. If the other parent of the child who is the subject of the action is a party, that person must also be served with the answer and a separate declaration of service should be completed and filed.

If the defendant disputes the amount of support being sought, a financial declaration should be completed and attached to the answer. The defendant should use either the standard Income and Expense Declaration and its attachments or, if appropriate, the Financial Statement (Simplified) form [Cal. Judicial Council Forms FL-150, FL-155].

[3] Disputing Paternity

Paragraph 1 should list all of the children set forth in the complaint and specify whether or not paternity is contested. Often, the alleged father will not be able to definitely state whether or not he is the father. In such cases the "no" box should be checked, and "(unknown)" may be entered following "no." Even if the defendant is reasonably certain that he is the father, paternity should be denied, and the issue should be resolved by stipulating to blood tests. If he stipulates to paternity and later evidence indicates that there is some doubt, the judgment in the agency's action will be res judicata on the issue [County of Los Angeles v. Soto (1984) 35 Cal. 3rd 483, 488, 198 Cal. Rptr. 779, 674 P.2d 750 ; see Guardianship of Claralyn S. (1983)148 Cal. App. 3d 81, 85, 195 Cal. Rptr. 646] . Determination of parentage is the subject of Ch. 412, Paternity .

[4] Other Defenses

Item 4 of the Answer form affords the defendant the opportunity to set forth any additional defenses or objections to the action. Because the issues are limited to parentage and support [see Fam. Code §§ 17400, 17404], few other defenses will be applicable. Nevertheless, there are some possible defenses that might be raised, such as, for example:

1. The support amount should be limited by the defendant's ability to pay.

2. The children were living with the defendant for part of the time covered by the complaint.

3. The defendant paid some support during the time covered by the complaint and is entitled to credit for the amounts paid.

4. The defendant was receiving public benefits for part of the time covered by the complaint and had no ability to pay during those periods.

5. The defendant was unemployed, had no income, and had no ability to pay for part of the time covered by the complaint.

An attachment [see Judicial Council Form MC-020], entitled Additional page, which may be attached to any form, will likely be needed, given the lack of space provided on the forms.

The amount of child support to be ordered will be determined under the statewide uniform child support guideline [Fam. Code §§ 4050 et seq., 17400 et seq.], and it is probably not necessary to set forth factors that will affect the amount of support under the guideline as defenses. Nevertheless, the defendant may want to deny the existence of certain factors that would be relevant under the guideline in order to frame the issues for resolution. For example, if the complaint alleges that the child has special medical needs [see Fam. Code § 4057(b)(5)(C)], the defendant may deny that there are in fact such needs. The statewide uniform child support guideline is discussed in Ch. 224, Dissolution of Marriage: Child Support ..

Also, regarding reimbursement of public assistance benefits, a statute of limitations defense may be asserted if more than three years of reimbursement is requested in the complaint [see Code Civ. Proc. § 338(a); In re Marriage of Hyon & Kirschner (1991) 231 Cal. App. 3d 449, 454, 282 Cal. Rptr. 408] .

[2] Use of Forms

The forms set forth in [1], above, are illustrative reproductions of the Judicial Council forms of Notice and Motion (Governmental) [Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-680] and Request for Order and Supporting Declaration (Governmental) [Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-684], for use in government child support proceedings. These forms are designed for use under Fam. Code § 17400 et seq., which provides that a judgment in a local child support agency proceeding for reimbursement of public benefits or to establish paternity and a child support order may be rendered pursuant to a noticed motion, which must inform the defendant that in order to exercise his or her right to trial, he or she must appear at the hearing on the motion [Fam. Code § 17404(b)].

Because these forms are "adopted" by the Judicial Council rather than "approved," their use is mandatory [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1.31; Gov. Code § 68511]. These forms are available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

[3] Hearing on Paternity

If paternity is disputed, the first stage in a county proceeding will be the determination of paternity. The agency may notice a hearing using these forms with an order for blood testing attached (line 3d). The hearing must then be continued to a date no more that 90 days from the date of service of the summons. A temporary support order may be issued pending determination of paternity [see Fam. Code § 17404]. For further discussion of temporary support orders in paternity proceedings, see Ch. 412, Paternity .

Usually the parties stipulate to blood or DNA testing, and if the defendant is excluded, the case ends. If testing shows a high probability of paternity, the defendant will either stipulate to paternity or the matter will be heard by the court. There is no right to a jury trial on the issue of paternity in a county child support enforcement proceeding [County of Sutter v. Davis (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 319, 322-332, 285 Cal. Rptr. 736 ; County of Butte v. Superior Court (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 555, 557-559, 258 Cal. Rptr. 516 ; County of El Dorado v. Schneider (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 1263, 1278-1283, 237 Cal. Rptr. 51] . This form may be used by either side to set a hearing for the determination of paternity after test results are available. The form may also be used to obtain orders shortening time for service or hearing, restraining orders against transfers of specific property, or other orders (lines 5 through 8).

[4] Hearing on Child Support

If paternity is established, the matter proceeds to a determination of the amount of child support to be ordered. The child support proceeding must be referred out to a child support commissioner in most cases [see Fam. Code §§ 4251(a), 4252(b)(7), discussed in § 259.253[4][o]].

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is an illustrative version of the Judicial Council form of Response to Governmental Notice of Motion or Order to Show Cause [see Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-685]. Because this form is "adopted" by the Judicial Council rather than "approved," its use is mandatory [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1.31; Gov. Code § 68511]. This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

The defendant fills in the response to correspond to the support agency's requests in the form of Request for Order and Supporting Declaration (see § 259.254). In line 1, defendant either acknowledges or continues to contest his paternity of the children.

If paternity is determined, by stipulation or after hearing, the child support order will be made according to the provisions of the statewide uniform child support guideline [see Fam. Code § 4050 et seq.]. In most cases, the "order requested" is merely the statement on line 2 of the Request for Order, that child support be based on the guideline. There is no basis on which to oppose such an order, so box 2a may be checked. However, if the Request sets forth any particular dollar amount, or any specific factors that the county alleges should be considered in determining guideline support, then box 2b may also be checked and the appropriate contrary order be entered. Box 2b may also be used to set forth any specific factor that the defendant claims should reduce the amount of support that would be due under the guideline. The guideline is considered in detail in Ch. 224, Dissolution of Marriage: Child Support .

Line 7 provides space for the defendant to state the facts supporting his position on all disputed issues. If this space is inadequate, the defendant should check the box indicating that the facts are contained in an attached declaration. Judicial Council Form for Attached Declaration [Cal. Judicial Council Form MC 031] should be used.

[2] Use of Form

This form is an illustrative reproduction of the mandatory Judicial Council form of Stipulation and Order. [Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-625]. This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

Line 1a indicates that the matter was resolved by stipulation, without an actual court appearance. Thus, the parties may use this form if they reach an agreement without having a hearing.

[3] Identification of Parties

The "appearances" boxes in line 1b may seem confusing. In a support agency initiated proceeding, the county is the plaintiff [Fam. Code § 17404(a)], and the agency represents the "public interest," not the custodial parent or the child [Fam. Code § 17406(a)]. Thus, it would appear at first blush to be in error to provide for separate appearances by the plaintiff/petitioner and also by the agency.

However, the agency may provide child support enforcement services on behalf of a child who is not receiving public assistance [Fam. Code § 17400(a)]. A custodial parent who is receiving these support enforcement services from the support agency and who is not currently receiving public assistance on her or his own behalf or on behalf of a child must be asked to execute, or consent to, any stipulation establishing or modifying a support order in any action in which that person is named as a party, before the stipulation is filed [Fam. Code § 17406(j)]. The form (and the Judicial Council) seems to contemplate that in such a case, the proceeding will actually be brought by the custodial parent, possibly even with private counsel, and the agency will provide supporting services.

The form provides a space in the caption to set forth the name of the "other parent," and includes both an optional check-off box to show joinder of that parent as a party (3 l) and separate signature lines for that parent and his or her attorney by which to join in the stipulation.

[4] Child Support Provisions

Line 3d of the form sets forth the court's actual support order. A child support order may take many forms, not all of which will fit within the structure of this form. The form contains language by which a stipulation can be made to an amount other than as calculated under the guideline (line 3b(1)). For child support provisions for use in agreements, see Kirkland, Lurvey & Richmond California Family Law Rractice And Procedure 2d Ed., Vol. 6, Ch. 214 (Matthew Bender).

The form in [1], above, does not contain provisions with which to make all of the findings required under the statewide uniform child support guideline [see Fam. Code §§ 4056, 4072]. It would seem to be appropriate, perhaps even essential, to use the Judicial Council form of Child Support Extended Information Attachment [Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-342] with this form. An example of this form is set forth in Ch. 224, Dissolution of Marriage: Child Support . At a minimum, a printout of the data generated by a computer software support program should be attached, and this is provided for in line 3c of the form.

The form provides for an order for child support arrears. However, it does not specifically provide for an order for reimbursement of public benefits under Fam. Code § 17402. If this form is used to stipulate to a reimbursement order, it should be made clear that the order is in this nature and not an order for the payment of arrearages under a prior child support order. An order for reimbursement of public benefits may be entered on line 3m of the form.

This form requires both parents to complete the Judicial Council's Child Support Case Registry Form [Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-191]. In addition, the following Judicial Council forms must be attached to the form (apart from items that otherwise may be ordered attached): Notice of Rights and Responsibilities [Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-192] and Information Sheet on Changing a Child Support Order [Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-192, side 2].

The form is prepared by one of the parties following the hearing in a county-initiated child support proceeding. The contents and structure of the form are parallel to the Judicial Council Stipulation and Order form (see § 259.256). For discussion of important concerns in the use of the form, see § 259.256[2] -[5].

The order requires both parents to complete the Judicial Council's Child Support Case Registry Form [Cal. [2] Use of Form

The form set forth in [1], above, a reproduction of the Short Form Order After Hearing (Governmental) [Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-688], approved by the Judicial Council for optional use in governmental child support proceedings. The form is designed for use under Fam. Code §§ 17400 (local child support agency operations), 17402 (obligation of noncustodial parent to county), 17404 (civil procedure and pleadings), and 17406 (actions involving paternity or support). The purpose of the form is to provide a simplified order after hearing for cases that have been continued for further hearing [see Judicial Council Family and Juvenile Law Advisory Committee Report (August 24, 2001)].

Note that Line 3(d) provides a box to be checked to suspend current child support until further order of the court, but that the court retains jurisdiction to order support retroactive to the date when the support obligor becomes employed or able to pay support. This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. [2] Use of Form

The form set out in [1], above, is an illustrative reproduction of the Judicial Council form entitled Stipulation for Judgment or Supplemental Judgment Regarding Parental Obligations and Judgment (Governmental) [Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-615]. Because the form is "adopted," rather than "approved," its use is mandatory with respect to the actions to which it applies [see Introductory Statement to California Rules of Court; Gov. Code § 68511].

The form appears to be designed to meet the requirements of former Welfare and Institutions Code Section 11476.1, the precursor statute to Fam. Code § 17404.

The form is prepared by one of the parties, usually the local child support agency, and submitted to the judge for signature. The contents and structure of the form are similar to the Judicial Council forms of Stipulation and Order (see § 259.256) and Order After Hearing (see § 259.257).

Note that the form [Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-615] includes signature lines for the parent who is the obligee of the support order and that parent's attorney, as well as for the obligor parent and that parent's attorney, and the support agency representative. Box 3(o) of the form should be marked (and the obligee parent's name inserted) if that parent was not a party to the proceeding before to execution of the stipulation.

This form requires both parents to complete the Judicial Council's Child Support Case Registry Form [Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-191] and to deliver or mail it to the support agency within 10 days of the date of the judgment; and to notify the agency of any change in the information within 10 days of the change by submitting an updated form. In addition, the following Judicial Council forms must be attached to the second version of the form (apart from items that otherwise may be ordered attached): Notice of Rights and Responsibilities [Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-192] and Information Sheet on Changing a Child Support Order [Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-192 side 2].

The question of the significance of a judgment in an agency-initiated action, as opposed to an order, requires some attention of counsel. As child support is always modifiable prospectively [Fam. Code § 3651(a)], there is no real significance to a "judgment" to pay future child support. However, it would seem that the defendant's paternity or nonpaternity must be resolved in a final judgment [cf. Fam. Code § 7636 (effect of judgment in Uniform Parentage Act proceeding)] which would then be afforded res judicata effect [see County of Los Angeles v. Soto (1984) 35 Cal. 3rd 483, 488, 198 Cal. Rptr. 779, 674 P.2d 750 ; Guardianship of Claralyn S. (1983) 148 Cal. App. 3d 81, 85, 195 Cal. Rptr. 646] .

Another area in which the effect of a final judgment should be considered is with regard to any arrearages under a prior child support order. Such a determination would be res judicata as to the amount of unpaid support for the specified past period [see In re Marriage of Taylor (1981) 122 Cal. App. 3d 209, 214, 175 Cal. Rptr. 716] , and should foreclose any future claim that a different amount is due for support during that period. The form is somewhat ambiguous in this area. The form provides space to indicate payments to be made for "past periods" and these periods can be specified (line 3f). This apparently refers to arrearages but does not use that specific term. Line 3g contains the advisement that if the form is being used as a judgment on a supplemental complaint (which is one possible use of the form), it does not "modify or supersede any prior judgment or order for support or arrearages, unless specifically provided"). Given these ambiguities, it is suggested that arrearages be set forth in the areas of the forms described above, and that the check-off box entitled "Other" (line 3(p)) may be used to clarify that arrearages to be paid are as set forth in those areas, and are to be paid under a specific prior order (that is described by the person filling in the form). Alternatively, mark the box entitled "Other" and set forth the arrearages under that heading or by an attachment, describing the prior order, the period of time covered, the total amount of support due under the order, the amount remaining unpaid, the details of payments, and the child with respect to whom the order applies.

A similar area of concern is any provision for reimbursement of public benefits provided on behalf of the children under Fam. Code § 17402. Although the form was intended for use under former Welf. & Inst. Code § 11350, the reimbursement statute repealed in 1999, there is no specific language anywhere on the form that sets forth a judgment or order for reimbursement. If this form is used in a reimbursement context, the reimbursement order should be set forth under the box provided for "Other" orders (line 3(p)). It should be specific as to the period of time covered and the amount of benefits provided during the time that is covered by the order. It should state that the order represents a determination of the defendant's ability to pay support for the period at issue [see Fam. Code § 17402 former Welf. & Inst. Code § 11350(a)(2), (c); In re Marriage of Hyon & Kirschner (1991) 231 Cal. App. 3d 449, 454, 282 Cal. Rptr. 408] .

The form set forth in [1], above, is an illustrative reproduction of the Judicial Council form entitled Judgment Regarding Parental Obligations (Governmental) [Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-630]. Because the form is "adopted," rather than "approved," its use is mandatory with respect to actions to which it applies [see Introductory Statement to California Rules of Court; Gov. Code § 68511]. This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

This form may be used not only as an original judgment, but also as an amended or supplemental judgment by marking the appropriate boxes in the caption. In addition, it has been designed so that the support agency can serve it on the defendant (as a proposed judgment) at the time of serving the summons and complaint, so that if the defendant defaults the judgment can be entered as proposed. This form also provides an opportunity to list the support obligee (denominated the "other parent," in the usual context of the form) and to join that parent as a party to the proceeding.

The form requires the parents to notify the local child support agency in writing within 10 days of any change in residence or employment. The Judicial Council form Notice of Rights and Responsibilities--Health Care Costs and Reimbursement Procedures and Information Sheet on Changing a Child Support Order [Judicial Council Form FL-192] must also be attached.

One of the parties, usually the support agency representative, will prepare the form, and submit it to the judge for signature after opposing counsel has reviewed it as to form and content. For a related discussion of important concerns in the use of such a form, see § 259.258[2] -[3].

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is the Judicial Council's form that may be used for preparation of the court minutes of the hearing in a support enforcement proceeding. It may also be used in place of Cal. Judicial Council Forms FL-615 [see § 259.258], FL-625 [see § 259.256], FL-665 [see § 259.275], and FL-687 [see § 259.257]. If this form is used as both the court minutes and as an alternative to one of these other forms, an additional form of order need not be prepared. § 259.260 Governmental Parentage and Child Support Proceeding [Fam. Code § 17400 et seq.]--Request for Judicial Determination of Support Arrearages--Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-676

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is an illustrated version of the Judicial Council's mandatory form of Request for Judicial Determination of Support Arrearages (Governmental) [Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-676]. The form is designed to be used by a support obligor to obtain a hearing to contest the amount of support arrearages that the county claims the obligor owes. This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

The form contemplates that the obligor will attach both a statement of the amount of the arrearage that the county support agency claims is owed, as well as the obligor's own statement. The agency s statement will likely have appeared in the accusatory pleading against the obligor, and a copy of that pleading can be appended and labeled as an attachment. Regarding the obligor's own statement of the arrearage, it appears that the obligor could prepare a statement in the form of an attachment on the Judicial Council's form of Attached Declaration, or by completing the Judicial Council forms of Declaration of Support Arrearage and Attachment to Declaration of Support Arrearage [Cal. Judicial Council Forms FL-420, FL-421]. An information sheet describing completion of the form, along with filing and service, is set out as page 3 of the form.

The form in [1], above, is an illustrated version of the Judicial Council's mandatory form of Notice of Entry of Judgment and Certificate of Service by Mail (Governmental) [Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-635]. The form is designed to be used by the local support agency to notify a party to a support action of the entry of a judgment in the action-whether by default or otherwise. It includes space for a court clerk's certificate of mailing. Unless the practice of the court is otherwise, it would be expected that the requesting party complete the names and addresses of the persons to whom the notice is to be sent, as well as providing preaddressed (and postage paid) envelopes for this purpose. This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

The form contemplates that a copy of the judgment that has been entered will be attached to the notice. The form contains a preprinted notice advising that if the support agency does not know the extent of the obligor's earnings, the obligor will be presumed to earn the minimum wage, at 40 hours per week, as provided by state law. It also notifies the recipient that if the support order is based on the obligor's presumed income, the obligor can move to set aside the support provisions of the judgment, so long as the motion is filed no later than one year from the date the first support collection (under the judgment) is made. For a related form of motion, see § 259.262.

The form in [1], above, is an illustrative version of the Judicial Council's mandatory form of Notice and Motion to Cancel (Set Aside) Support Order Based on Presumed Income and Proposed Answer (Governmental) [Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-640]. The form is designed to be used by a support obligor to move to set aside a support order that was based on a presumed amount of income of the obligor, in an action brought by the local child support agency. This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

The form contemplates that the obligor will attach a completed Answer to Complaint or Supplemental Complaint Regarding Parental Obligations (see § 259.253), along with either the standard Income and Expense Declaration (and related forms), or, if the obligor's circumstances warrant, the Financial Statement Simplified form [Cal. Judicial Council Forms FL-150, FL-155, FL-610]. An information sheet describing completion of the form, along with filing and service, is set out as page 3 of the form.

The forms in [1], above, are illustrative versions of the federally mandated forms of Income Withholding Order/Notice for Support (FL-195/FL-196), adopted for mandatory use by the Judicial Council, with California modifications. This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

Page 1 of the form provides areas to fill in regarding employer and employee/obligor information, identification of minor children who are the subject of a support order, whether enrollment in health insurance coverage for the children is required, amounts of current and past-due (or other) support, and remittance information. It is necessary to set forth the employer's federal identification number on the form, and if some type of electronic funds transfer is contemplated for remittance of the payment, the bank account number, bank routing code, and any FIPS code must be listed.

Page 2 of the form contains additional information for employers and other withholders. As indicated in the employer's instructions, the employer or other withholder must provide a copy of the form to the employee, along with a blank form of Request for Hearing Regarding Earnings Assignment [Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-450; § 259.264] within a 10-day time period. Extensive preprinted instructions on filling out the form are also illustrated above at the end of the form. [2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is an illustrative version of the Judicial Council's mandatory form of Request for Hearing Regarding Notice of Earnings Assignment (Governmental) [Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-450]. The form is designed to permit a support obligor to request a hearing to set aside an earnings assignment order (including an Interstate Order/Notice to Withhold Income for Child Support) or to modify the amount of the assignment. Detailed instructions concerning completion and filing of the form are set out as page 3 of the form. This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. [2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is an illustrative version of the Judicial Council's mandatory form of Notice to Local Child Support Agency of Intent to Take Independent Action to Enforce Support Order (Governmental) [Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-645]. The form may be used by a person who is receiving support enforcement services from the local child support agency to notify the agency of that person's intention to independently enforce a support order. This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

The form instructions, reproduced as page 3 of the form, indicate that the person giving notice must wait at least 30 days before filing an independent enforcement action to permit the agency to respond to the notice, and that if the agency objects within that time period, the independent action cannot summarily, at least, go forward. If the district attorney or agency consents to the action or fails to timely object, the independent action may be filed, so long as this is done within 180 days of the date that the original notice was provided to the agency. The original of the notice should be retained by the person giving notice so that it may be included as part of the papers filed with the independent action. A declaration of mailing of the notice to the agency is included on page 2 of the form.

For an illustrative response to the notice, see § 259.268.

The form in [1], above, is an illustrative version of the Judicial Council's mandatory form of Response of Local Child Support Agency to Notice of Intent to Take Independent Action to Enforce Support Order (Governmental) [Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-646]. The form is used by a child support agency to respond to a private citizen's (support obligee's) notice of intent to commence an independent support enforcement action. This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

The agency has 30 days from the effective mailing date of the notice (see § 259.268) in which to make a written response by using this form. The form provides check-off boxes by which the agency can either consent or object to the independent enforcement action proposed. It also incorporates a declaration of mailing that is cast as service by mail (although the term "proof of service" is not used).

[2] Use of Forms

Illustrated in , above, are two versions of the Judicial Council form of Statement for Registration of California Support Order, for use, respectively, by individuals and by a support enforcement agency [Cal. Judicial Council Forms FL-440, FL-650; see Cal. Fam. Code §§ 5601, 5602]. The first version, for use by private individuals [Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-440], has been "approved" for optional use. The second version, for use by governmental agencies [Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-650], has been "adopted" and therefore is mandatory for such agencies to use.

Also illustrated in [1], above, is the Judicial Council's mandatory form of Notice of Registration of California Support Order [Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-651], which appears to be for use by the registering and receiving courts only. It appears that its intended use is for court clerks to notify courts in other California counties and states in which the original order for support and any modifications were issued or registered of the registration of the order by the district attorney [see Fam. Code § 5601(e)]. These forms are available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

With respect to registration by private persons, the Family Code clarifies that an obligee may register an out-of-county support or earnings withholding order (or both) in the court of another California county in the manner, with the effect, and for the purposes set forth in Fam. Code § 5600 et seq. [Fam. Code § 5600(b)]. No filing fee is to be charged by the registering court [Fam. Code § 5602(a), (b)]. On registration, the court clerk must promptly send the obligor notice of the registration, together with a copy of the registered support order and the post office address of the obligee, in accordance with the procedures specified in Fam. Code § 5602(c). For further discussion of the procedures associated with registration, see § 259.159. See also Ch. 260, Family Law Enforcement: Foreign Judgments .

The form in [1], above, is a reproduction of the Judicial Council form of Notice Regarding Payment of Support, which has been adopted for mandatory use by local child support agencies in support enforcement actions [Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-632; see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.360]. The form combines a substitution of payee, a notice directing payment of support to the local child support agency, and a notice that support has been assigned to the agency [see Fam. Code §§ 4200, 4201, 4204, 4506.3; Welf & Inst. Code § 11477]. This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

When a local child support agency is providing services as required by Fam. Code § 17400, the agency may appear in any action or proceeding that it did not initiate by giving this notice to all parties that it is providing services under Title IV-D of the Social Security Act [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.360].

The name, address, and telephone number of the county child support agency and the name of the attorney of record is sufficient for any papers filed by the agency [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.320]. The name of the deputy or assistant district attorney or attorney of the child support agency, who is not the attorney of record, and the State Bar number of the attorney or record or any of his or her assistants is not required [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.320].

The local child support agency must file the original of the notice in the action or proceeding with proof of service by mail on the parties [Fam. Code § 4204; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.360]. On service and filing of the notice, the court may not require the agency to file any other notice or pleading before the agency appears in the action or proceeding [Cal.

The form in [1], above, is a reproduction of the Judicial Council form of Ex Parte Motion by Local Child Support Agency and Declaration for Joinder of Other Parent, which has been adopted for mandatory use in agency support enforcement actions [Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-660]. This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

The form combines an ex parte application and court order, and is designed to be used by a local child support agency to join a parent to the proceeding who has requested or is receiving support enforcement services from the agency, and who has requested joinder. This parent is denominated the "Other Parent" in the caption of the form. A preprinted notice on the form advises that once joinder is ordered, either parent may raise issues concerning "support, custody, visitation, and restraining orders" but not concerning other matters.

For a related form designed for use if a noticed motion is made for joinder of the other parent, see § 259.272.

The form in [1], above, is a reproduction of the Judicial Council form of Notice of Motion and Declaration for Joinder of Other Parent in Governmental Action, which has been approved for use in support enforcement actions [Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-661]. Because the form has been "approved" rather than "adopted," its use is optional. This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

The form may be used by a local child support agency, the defendant support obligor, or the parent who has requested or is receiving support enforcement services from the agency (denominated the "Other Parent") to move to join that "other parent" as a party to the proceeding. If the joinder motion is granted, either parent may raise issues concerning "support, custody, visitation, and restraining orders" but not concerning other matters. The form includes a proof of service declaration (page 3) and detailed instructions for completion (pages 4-5).

The form in [1], above, is a reproduction of the Judicial Council form of Responsive Declaration to Motion for Joinder of Other Parent-Consent Order of Joinder, which has been adopted for mandatory use in support enforcement actions [Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-662]. This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

The form is designed for use by a local child support agency, defendant support obligor, or a parent who has requested or is receiving support enforcement services from the agency (denominated the "Other Parent") to respond to an application to join that "other parent" as a party to the proceeding. If agreement to joinder is the response (Paragraph 1-a), and there are no objections to joinder from another respondent, the court may utilize the consent order set forth on page 2 of the form to order joinder. For an alternative form of stipulation and order for joinder, see § 259.274.

If the respondent disagrees with joinder (Paragraph 1-b), he or she should also set forth any reasons why the statements contained in the application for joinder [see § 259.272] are incorrect or insufficient (Paragraph 3). Paragraph 2 of the form should also be completed to indicate whether there are any other family law cases pending between the parties. The form also incorporates a proof of service declaration (page 3) and detailed instructions for completion (page 4).

The form in [1], above, is a reproduction of the Judicial Council form of Stipulation and Order for Joinder of Other Parent, which has been adopted for mandatory use in support enforcement actions [Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-663]. This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

The form is designed to permit a local child support agency, defendant support obligor, and a parent who has requested or is receiving support enforcement services from the agency (denominated the "Other Parent") to agree to the joinder of that "other parent" as a party to the proceeding, without the need for a hearing on the issue. Once joined, either parent may raise issues concerning "support, custody, visitation, and restraining orders" but not concerning other matters. The form includes a preprinted order for joinder that is based on the stipulation (page 1) along with detailed instructions for its completion (page 2).

This form is an illustration of the mandatory Judicial Council form of Findings and Recommendation of Commissioner, for use in child support proceedings involving the local child support agency in which the matter has been referred to a commissioner for hearing [Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-665; see Fam. Code § 4251].

This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

The form has been adopted for use in setting forth a commissioner's findings and recommended order with respect to the payment of child support, including arrearages, and in making related orders, such as an order to maintain health insurance coverage for a child. If one of the parties has objected to a commissioner hearing the matter, the hearing may go forward, but the objecting party's name must be listed in Paragraph 1, along with the name of the commissioner, and the objector has 10 court days (from the date of the recommended order) to file a notice of objection to the recommended order [Fam. Code § 4251(c)]. For a form of notice, see § 259.276.

This form requires both parents to complete the Judicial Council's Child Support Case Registry Form [Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-191] and to deliver or mail it to the local support agency within 10 days of the date of the judgment; and to notify the agency of any change in the information within 10 days of the change by submitting an updated form. In addition, the following Judicial Council forms must be attached to the form (apart from items that otherwise may be ordered attached): Notice of Rights and Responsibilities [Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-192] and Information Sheet on Changing a Child Support Order [Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-192 side 2].

Because the form is designed to be manually delivered or mailed to the parties by the court clerk, the names and addresses of the parties should be completed on the last page of the form, which contains a clerk's certificate of mailing or service. Sufficient copies of the form and its attachments must be provided to the clerk, along with postage paid, preaddressed envelopes, for this purpose.

The form in [1], above, is an illustrative version of the mandatory Judicial Council form of Notice of Objection, for use in child support proceedings involving the local child support agency in which the matter has been referred to a commissioner for hearing [Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-666; see Fam. Code § 4251]. This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

The form would be used by a party who objected to a commissioner hearing the matter, and who therefore also objects to the findings and recommendations of that commissioner and who wishes to have the matter set for a new hearing before a judge. The form must be filed with the clerk of the court where the commissioner's findings and recommendations were made within 10 court days of the date that the order was made [see Fam. Code § 4251(c)].

The form does not make reference to service of the form on any of the other parties, so it is unclear whether service is actually required. However, it is suggested that counsel for the objecting party serve a copy of the notice form by mail on the other parties (and attach a proof of service by mail to it).

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is an illustrative version of the mandatory Judicial Council form of Review of Commissioner's Findings of Fact and Recommendation, for use in child support proceedings involving the local child support agency in which the matter has been referred to a commissioner for hearing [Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-667; see Fam. Code § 4251]. This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

The form is designed to permit a judge to either ratify a commissioner's recommended order or to set the matter for a new hearing. In general, in the absence of an error in the recommended order, that order will be ratified unless one of the parties has timely objected to it (see § 259.276) [see Fam. Code § 4251(c)]. Even if a new hearing is ordered and scheduled (see Paragraph 4(c)), the court must issue a temporary order, which should be set forth in Paragraph 4(d), or in an attachment.

Once signed by the judge, the clerk of the court will mail a copy of the form to each of the parties. Accordingly, the names and addresses of the parties should be completed on the last page of the form, which contains a clerk's certificate of mailing. Sufficient copies of the form must be provided to the clerk, along with postage paid, preaddressed envelopes, for this purpose.

The form in [1], above, is the Judicial Council form Stipulation and Order Waiving Unassigned Arrears [Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-626] for use by a person to whom past support arrearages are owed to waive those arrearages. It was approved by the Judicial Council for optional use. This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

The parties have the right to have the local child support agency review and audit the amount due, including all amounts ordered, all payments, and all credits, and if they are not satisfied with the agency's audit, they have the right to have a court hearing to determine the amount due [Fam. Code § 17526; for discussion, see § 259.153[7]]. The stipulation does not waive the right to collect Aid arrears, i.e., past-due child support belonging to the county in exchange for receipt of public assistance benefits, or the right to future child support. The stipulation also does not affect any current child support orders, which remain in full force and effect.

The form in [1], above, is the mandatory Judicial Council form Request for Telephone Appearance (Governmental) [Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-679; see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.324(e)(3)]. This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis[(R)] Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

This form may be used by a party, an attorney, a witness, a parent who has not been joined to the action, or a representative of a local child support agency or government agency to request the court's permission to appear and testify by telephone at any hearing or conference related to an action for child support when the local child support agency is providing services under title IV-D of the Social Security Act [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.324(c), (e)(1)]. The local child support agency may request a telephone appearance on behalf of a party, a parent, or a witness when the agency is appearing in the support action [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.324(e)(1)]. Any such request must be filed at least 12 court days before the hearing, and must be served on the other parties, the local child support agency, and attorneys (if any) by personal delivery, fax, express mail, or other means reasonably calculated to ensure delivery by the close of the next business day [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.324(e)(2)].

Chapter 260 FAMILY LAW ENFORCEMENT: FOREIGN JUDGMENTS
PART I. SCOPE

§ 260.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter concerns the establishment, enforcement, and modification of foreign judgments and orders arising from marital litigation in other states and foreign countries. The chapter discusses the following:

- Validity of sister-state family judgments and orders [see §§ 260.10 -260.25].

- General principles of establishing a foreign judgment, other than one for support or custody, in California [see §§ 260.50 -260.54].

- Jurisdiction to make or modify a child support order under the federal Full Faith and Credit for Child Support Orders Act (FFCCSOA) [28 U.S.C. § 1338B; see §§ 260.60 -260.67].

- Enforcement and modification of support obligations and orders under the Uniform Interstate Family Support Act (UISFA) [Fam. Code § 4900 et seq.], which has replaced the Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act (URESA) [former Fam. Code § 4800 et seq.] effective January 1, 1998, as the jurisdictional and procedural scheme governing interstate support enforcement [see §§ 260.80 -260.175].

- Interstate custody enforcement under the Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction and Enforcement Act (UCCJEA) [Fam. Code § 3400 et seq.], which became operative January 1, 2000, in California [Stats. 1999, ch. 867], replacing the former Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act (UCCJA) [see §§ 260.200 -260.212].

- General remedies against international child abduction under the Hague Convention on International Child Abduction [see 53 Fed. Reg. 23608 (1988) ; 1980 Hague Convention, art. 41; § 260.250 et seq.].

§ 260.11 Jurisdiction Based on One Spouse's Domicile in Decree State

As long as one party before the court in a dissolution proceeding is domiciled within a state, a court of that state has jurisdiction to terminate the marriage, whether or not it was the state of matrimonial domicile at any time, and whether or not the court obtained personal jurisdiction over the nonresident spouse [Williams v. North Carolina (1942) 317 U.S. 287, 296-301, 63 S. Ct. 207, 87 L. Ed. 279] . Ex parte divorce is an exception to the rule that a court must have personal jurisdiction over a party before it may adjudicate his or her substantive rights. However, due process requires something more than mere presence of one party within a jurisdiction before that party may invoke the legal process of the forum to force an absent spouse to defend his or her marital status in that forum [Whealton v. Whealton (1967) 67 Cal. 2d 656, 661, 63 Cal. Rptr. 291, 432 P.2d 979] . Therefore, a party must have a bona fide domicile within the decree state, and the jurisdictional fact of a party's actual domicile within the decree state may be collaterally attacked. A party asserting the invalidity of the foreign decree has the burden of proving lack of domicile [Williams v. North Carolina (1945) 325 U.S. 226, 232-239, 65 S. Ct. 1092, 89 L. Ed. 1577] .

For cases addressing collateral attack on a sister-state divorce decree based on lack of jurisdiction, see § 260.304[2] [but see cases collected at § 260.304[9]]. Jurisdiction to grant a judgment of dissolution in California is discussed in Ch. 221, Dissolution of Marriage: Procedure . Collateral attack on a sister-state divorce decree based on lack of a bona fide domicile is discussed in Kirkland, Lurvey, and Richmond, California Family Law Practice and Procedure, 2d ed., Ch. 150 (Matthew Bender).

A. Validity of Sister-State Family Law Judgments and Orders
1. Decrees of Divorce

§ 260.12 Possible Jurisdiction if Neither Spouse Is Domiciled in Decree State

It has been the rule that if neither spouse has a bona fide domicile in the decree state when a decree of divorce or dissolution of marriage was made, the decree is not entitled to full faith and credit in any other state [Bell v. Bell (1901) 181 U.S. 175, 177, 21 S. Ct. 551, 45 L. Ed. 804] , at least if it was granted on constructive service [Williams v. North Carolina (1942) 317 U.S. 287, 291, 63 S. Ct. 207, 87 L. Ed. 279] . This rule is said to reflect the due process considerations involved in adjudicating rights of an absent party in an inconvenient forum; it also reflects the interests of the states in regulating the marital status of their domiciliaries and limits forum shopping for self-serving substantive divorce law [Whealton v. Whealton (1967) 67 Cal. 2d 656, 659-660, 63 Cal. Rptr. 291, 432 P.2d 979] .

The historical view of the domicile requirement was that it was based on the legal fiction that the marital status was a res that was present at the permanent home of either spouse. As such, it gave the court in rem jurisdiction to dissolve the marriage [see Whealton v. Whealton (1967) 67 Cal. 2d 656, 661, 63 Cal. Rptr. 291, 432 P.2d 979] , and it appeared to be an absolute condition precedent in all cases. In an older case [Crouch v. Crouch (1946) 28 Cal. 2d 243, 169 P.2d 897] , the California Supreme Court stated that a decree of divorce may always be attacked on the ground that the foreign court had no jurisdiction because the petitioning party had not established a bona fide domicile. The court went on to state, in dicta, that a decree based on either personal or constructive service, or even on personal appearance, may be attacked on this ground [Crouch v. Crouch (1946) 28 Cal. 2d 243, 250, 169 P.2d 897 ; see also Aldabe v. Aldabe (1962) 209 Cal. App. 2d 453, 465-466, 26 Cal. Rptr. 208] .

Subsequent United States Supreme Court decisions have now eroded the view that domicile is an absolute requirement for subject matter jurisdiction, such that it may not be conferred on a court by consent, waiver, or estoppel [see In re Marriage of Ben-Yehoshua (1979) 91 Cal. App. 3d 259, 263, 154 Cal. Rptr. 80] . If the defendant spouse appeared in the proceedings and contested the issue of domicile, or appeared and admitted a valid domicile, or was personally served in the decree state [see, e.g., Burnham v. Superior Court of Cal. (1990) 495 U.S. 604, 607-608, 619, 110 S. Ct. 2105, 109 L. Ed. 2d 631 , discussed in Ch. 221, Dissolution of Marriage: Procedure , and in Ch. 324, Jurisdiction: Subject Matter], the subsequent decree is entitled to full faith and credit and may not be attacked [see Cook v. Cook (1951) 342 U.S. 126, 127-128, 72 S. Ct. 157 (and cases cited therein); see also Whealton v. Whealton (1967) 67 Cal.

2d 656, 663, 63 Cal. Rptr. 291, 432 P.2d 979 (stating, in dicta, that when both parties are before the court, it is questionable whether domicile is an indispensable prerequisite for jurisdiction)]. The same is true if the defendant appeared and had the opportunity to contest domicile, even if the issue was not actually raised [Sherrer v. Sherrer (1948) 334 U.S. 343, 348, 68 S. Ct. 1087 ; Heuer v. Heuer (1949) 33 Cal. 2d 268, 271, 201 P.2d 385] . Further, the emerging modern view is that all jurisdiction should be based on concepts of fundamental fairness, and that the traditional labels of in rem, quasi in rem, and in personam jurisdiction are meaningless because they do not compel particular results [see Shaffer v. Heitner (1977) 433 U.S. 186, 196-206, 97 S. Ct. 2569, 53 L. Ed. 2d 683 (quasi in rem jurisdiction insufficient to give state jurisdiction over defendant who otherwise lacks minimum contacts with state); Whealton v. Whealton (1967) 67 Cal. 2d 656, 661 n.3, 63 Cal. Rptr. 291, 432 P.2d 979] .

All assertions of state court jurisdiction must be evaluated according to whether there are sufficient minimum contacts among the state, the defendant, and the litigation to guarantee that maintenance of the suit does not offend traditional notions of fair play and substantial justice [Shaffer v. Heitner (1977) 433 U.S. 186, 196-206, 97 S. Ct. 2569, 53 L. Ed. 2d 683] . In this regard, there might be sufficient divorce jurisdiction if the defendant has, or has had, the requisite minimum contacts with the decree state, even if neither spouse is domiciled in the state at the time of the decree [see, e.g., Aldabe v. Aldabe (1962) 209 Cal. App. 2d 453, 457-458, 26 Cal. Rptr. 208 (parties lived on ranch overlapping California and Nevada; structures were all in California, but they had many contacts with Nevada including vehicle and voter registration; court held that husband's domicile was in California based solely on location of house and denied full faith and credit to Nevada decree)]. If so, the law would be that personal jurisdiction is not required if a valid domicile is established [Whealton v. Whealton (1967) 67 Cal. 2d 656, 661, 63 Cal. Rptr. 291, 432 P.2d 979] , and that a valid domicile is not required if personal jurisdiction can be validly attained, whether by personal service or on the basis of minimum contacts.

Chapter 260 FAMILY LAW ENFORCEMENT: FOREIGN JUDGMENTS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Validity of Sister-State Family Law Judgments and Orders
1. Decrees of Divorce

§ 260.13 Uniform Divorce Recognition Act

The Uniform Divorce Recognition Act [Fam. Code § 2090 et seq.] provides that a divorce obtained in another jurisdiction is of no force or effect in California if both parties to the marriage were domiciled in California at the time the foreign divorce proceeding was commenced [Fam. Code § 2091]. The Act has been enacted by only a few states in addition to California [see text preceding former Code Civ. Proc. § 5000 in West's Annotated Civil Code (1983)]. The Act appears to have been drafted on the assumption that domicile is a required condition precedent in all cases to assume divorce jurisdiction. However, the application of the Act is limited by the full faith and credit clause of the United States Constitution [Fam. Code § 2093; see U.S. Const., art. IV, § 1]. If a sister state has another constitutionally permissible basis for jurisdiction besides domicile, such as perhaps personal jurisdiction over both parties obtained by the consent of one and personal service on the other [see Burnham v. Superior Court of Cal. (1990) 495 U.S. 604, 607-608, 619, 110 S. Ct. 2105, 109 L. Ed. 2d 631] , California would probably be required by the constraints of the full faith and credit clause, to give full faith and credit to the judgment, the domicile requirements of the Uniform Act notwithstanding [see Fam. Code § 2093].

Under the Uniform Act, either of the following factors is prima facie evidence that a person was domiciled in California at the time of commencing a divorce proceeding in another state [Fam. Code § 2092]:

- The fact that he or she was domiciled in California within 12 months before the commencement of the divorce proceeding and resumed residence in California within 18 months after leaving the other state; or

- The fact that he or she maintained a place of residence within California at all times after leaving this state and then returned.

If a statute provides that a fact or group of facts is prima facie evidence of another fact, it establishes a rebuttable presumption [Evid. Code § 602]. Every rebuttable presumption is either a presumption affecting the burden of producing evidence or a presumption affecting the burden of proof [Evid. Code § 601]. The rebuttable presumption raised by proving either of the two factual situations listed above is apparently a presumption affecting the burden of producing evidence. Thus, if the party challenging the validity of the foreign divorce decree proves either of the above facts, the burden of producing evidence apparently shifts to the person defending the bona fides of the domicile on which the foreign court's divorce jurisdiction was based [see Herczog v. Herczog (1960) 186 Cal. App. 2d 318, 322, 9 Cal. Rptr. 5] .

It has been argued that the above provision of the Uniform Divorce Recognition Act violates the full faith and credit clause by shifting the burden of proof from the person attacking an ex parte foreign judgment to the person defending its validity [Note, Foreign Divorce Recognition in California, 16 Hastings L.J. 121, 127-128 (1964)]. The full faith and credit clause requires that a sister-state judgment be presumed valid, and that the burden of proving the decree invalid is on the assailant [Williams v. North Carolina (1945) 325 U.S. 226, 233-234, 65 S. Ct. 1092, 89 L. Ed. 1577] . This constitutional argument does not appear to have been raised, successfully or otherwise, in any reported case. At the very least, however, proof of either set of facts specified in the Uniform Act (California domicile immediately before and after foreign proceeding or California residence during foreign proceeding) provides evidence that will support other evidence adduced by the party challenging the bona fides of domicile allegedly established in the foreign divorce jurisdiction [see Sohnlein v. Winchell (1964) 230 Cal. App. 2d 508, 510-511, 41 Cal. Rptr. 145] .

A. Validity of Sister-State Family Law Judgments and Orders
1. Decrees of Divorce

§ 260.14 Divisible Divorce

The term "divisible divorce" has been applied to divorce proceedings conducted without personal jurisdiction over the respondent-spouse. In these proceedings, the court has jurisdiction based on the petitioner's domicile to terminate the marital status [see § 260.11]. However, it cannot adjudicate any of the incidents of marriage that require personal jurisdiction over the absent spouse, and any such part of a judgment is not entitled to full faith and credit [Estin v. Estin (1948) 334 U.S. 541, 548-549, 68 S. Ct. 1213, 92 L. Ed. 1561] .

Thus, without personal jurisdiction over the obligor spouse, a court cannot impose, modify, or terminate orders for the support of either party or their children [see Estin v. Estin (1948) 334 U.S. 541, 548, 68 S. Ct. 1213, 92 L. Ed. 1561 ; Hudson v. Hudson (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 735, 742-743, 344 P.2d 295 ; Perry v. Perry (1953) 119 Cal. App. 2d 461, 463, 259 P.2d 953] . As a consequence, if an ex parte foreign divorce has terminated the parties' marital status without fixing support rights, these matters can be determined in a separate subsequent action in California, if personal jurisdiction can be obtained over the former spouse whose rights will be affected [see Hudson v. Hudson (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 735, 745, 344 P.2d 295 ; see also Weber v. Superior Court (1960) 53 Cal. 2d 403, 405-406, 2 Cal. Rptr. 9] . Conversely, if another state has proper jurisdiction over support and property issues but has not been asked to terminate the marriage of the parties, a California court may assume jurisdiction for the limited purpose of terminating the marriage, assuming California properly has jurisdiction for that purpose [see In re Marriage of Gray (1988) 204 Cal. App. 3d 1239, 1248-1254, 251 Cal. Rptr. 846 (legal separation granted in foreign state, dissolution action allowed in California)].

1. Decrees of Divorce

§ 260.15 Concurrent Jurisdiction and Multiple Judgments

Courts in two states may have concurrent jurisdiction to terminate a marriage. If a prior action is pending in another state, California may stay or abate its proceeding. However, the determination is discretionary, not mandatory. Factors that may be considered include comity, the prevention of multiple and vexatious litigation, judicial economy, the interests of the forum, and the convenience of the parties [Leadford v. Leadford (1992) 6 Cal. App. 4th 571, 574-575, 8 Cal. Rptr. 2d 9 ; see In re Marriage of Gray (1988) 204 Cal. App. 3d 1239, 1249-1251, 251 Cal. Rptr. 846 (rule of jurisdictional priority does not necessarily control if countervailing policies apply); see also Farmland Irrigation Co. v. Dopplmaier (1957) 48 Cal. 2d 208, 215, 308 P.2d 732] .

A judgment rendered in one state will not be recognized or enforced in another state if an inconsistent, but valid, judgment is subsequently rendered in another action between the parties and if the earlier judgment is superseded by the later judgment under the law of the state where the later judgment was rendered. This is the case even if the court that rendered the later judgment denied full faith and credit to the first judgment or made other errors of fact or law. The rationale for this rule is based on principles of full faith and credit and res judicata. The losing party is precluded from attacking the later inconsistent judgment if he or she has not sought appellate review of that judgment [In re Marriage of Hanley (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 1109, 1117-1118, 245 Cal. Rptr. 441 , disapproved on other grounds, Leadford v. Leadford (1992) 6 Cal. App. 4th 571, 575, 8 Cal. Rptr. 2d 9] .

§ 260.20 Annulment

It has been held in California that California has jurisdiction to annul a marriage contracted elsewhere if one party to the marriage is domiciled in this state, and that personal service on the other party is not required [Bing Gee v. Chan Lai Yung Gee (1949) 89 Cal. App. 2d 877, 883, 202 P.2d 360] . However, in an annulment matter, the applicable law is that of the state in which the marriage was contracted. That law will be applied by the court in whatever state the action for annulment is brought. Therefore, domicile of a party, which may be necessary for jurisdiction in a divorce or dissolution proceeding (see §§ 260.11 and 260.12, above), is not a prerequisite for jurisdiction in an annulment matter. If a court has personal jurisdiction over both parties, it may determine the nullity of a marriage regardless of the parties' domiciles [Whealton v. Whealton (1967) 67 Cal. 2d 656, 664, 63 Cal. Rptr. 291, 432 P.2d 979] .

§ 260.21 Spousal Support

A valid decree of spousal support (often called alimony under the laws of states other than California) requires personal jurisdiction over the payor spouse [Perry v. Perry (1953) 119 Cal. App. 2d 461, 463-464, 259 P.2d 953] . However, full faith and credit requires recognition and enforcement of a sister-state spousal support decree only to the extent to which it is enforceable in the place where it was rendered. Thus, only past installments that have accrued and are not subject to modification by the originating court are recognized in California as entitled to full faith and credit [Biewend v. Biewend (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 108, 110, 109 P.2d 701 ; In re Marriage of Murray (2002) 101 Cal. App. 4th 581, 597, 124 Cal. Rptr. 2d 342] .

Past obligations that may be modified retroactively and future obligations, whether or not prospectively modifiable, are not entitled to full faith and credit [Worthley v. Worthley (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 465, 468, 283 P.2d 19] , because a modifiable award of support is viewed as lacking the requisite finality to compel recognition and enforcement under the full faith and credit clause [see Petersen v. Petersen (1972) 24 Cal. App. 3d 201, 206, 100 Cal. Rptr. 822] . These obligations may be enforced under principles of comity, however, if personal jurisdiction over the paying spouse is obtained in California [Worthley v. Worthley (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 465, 473-474, 283 P.2d 19 ; Petersen v. Petersen (1972) 24 Cal. App. 3d 201, 206, 100 Cal. Rptr. 822] . The establishment, modification, and enforcement of a valid foreign support order in California is discussed in § 260.150 et seq.

§ 260.22 Child Support

A child support order made consistently with the provisions of the federal Full Faith and Credit for Child Support Orders Act (FFCCSOA) is entitled to full faith and credit, and must be enforced according to its terms, and cannot be modified by a court of another state except as provided in that Act [28 U.S.C. § 1738B(a)]. FFCCSOA preempts state law regarding child support jurisdiction to the extent that it is inconsistent with FFCCSOA [Kilroy v. Superior Court (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 793, 800-806, 63 Cal.Rptr. 2d 390 (FFCCSOA applied without any consideration of potentially conflicting provisions of URESA); In re Marriage of Lurie (1995) 33 Cal. App. 4th 658, 673-676, 39 Cal. Rptr. 2d 835 (court found no different result under FFCCSOA, but implicit in its holding is view that had FFCCSOA yielded different result, that result would be required); cf. People v. Superior Court (Smolin) (1986) 41 Cal. 3d 758, 770, 225 Cal. Rptr. 438, 716 P.2d 991 , reversed, other grounds, State of California v. Superior Court (1987) 482 U.S. 400, 107 S. Ct. 2433, 96 L. Ed. 2d 332 (federal Parental Kidnapping Prevention Act, 28 U.S.C. § 1738A, preempts state child custody jurisdiction law to extent it is inconsistent)].

Under FFCCSOA, a state's child support order is valid and entitled to full faith and credit if (1) the court that made the order has both subject matter jurisdiction and personal jurisdiction over the contestants under its own law; and (2) reasonable notice and opportunity to be heard is given to the contestants [28 U.S.C. § 1738B(c); see 28 U.S.C. § 1738B(b) (contestants include parents, other parties, and any public assignee)]. Once a state court makes a valid child support order, that court has continuing, exclusive jurisdiction over the order as long as the state is the child's state or the residence of any contestant, unless the court of another state validly modifies the order as provided by FFCCSOA [28 U.S.C. § 1738B(d)]. The modification rules under FFCCSOA [see 28 U.S.C. § 1738B(e)], the Uniform Interstate Family Support Act (UIFSA) [see Fam. Code § 4900 et seq.], and the establishment, modification, and enforcement of a valid foreign support order in California generally are discussed in § 260.140 et seq.

[1] Judgment Affecting Real Property

A court of one state cannot directly affect or determine the title to land in another. However, a court that has personal jurisdiction over the parties can compel the execution of a conveyance in the form required by the law of the situs [Rozan v. Rozan (1957) 49 Cal. 2d 322, 330-331, 317 P.2d 11] . Therefore, California may adjudicate rights to land located in another state [In re Marriage of Economou (1990) 224 Cal. App. 3d 1466, 1479-1480, 274 Cal. Rptr. 473] , and California will recognize the decree of a court of another state that directs a conveyance of California real estate [Rozan v. Rozan (1957) 49 Cal. 2d 322, 330-331, 317 P.2d 11 ; Farley v. Farley (1964) 227 Cal. App. 2d 1, 6, 38 Cal. Rptr. 357 , cert. denied, 379 U.S. 945] . A subsequent action in the situs state is required to effect any change in the title to the land there [In re Marriage of Economou (1990) 224 Cal. App. 3d 1466, 1480-1481, 274 Cal. Rptr. 473] .

However, to be entitled to full faith and credit in California the decree must be valid and not subject to collateral attack in the rendering state. If, under its own law, a state does not have jurisdiction to adjudicate the rights of parties to land in another state, a judgment that purports to do so is void for lack of jurisdiction, and is not entitled to full faith and credit in California [Barber v. Barber (1958) 51 Cal. 2d 244, 247, 331 P.2d 628 ; Farley v. Farley (1964) 227 Cal. App. 2d 1, 6, 38 Cal. Rptr. 357 , cert. denied, 379 U.S. 945] . If a state has ex parte jurisdiction to dissolve a marriage based on the domicile of one party and there is real property at issue located within the state, the law is unsettled. The traditional rule gave the court jurisdiction to determine the rights of both parties if [Title etc. Restoration Co. v. Kerrigan (1906) 150 Cal. 289, 308, 88 P. 356 ; see In re Marriage of Leff (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 630, 645, 102 Cal. Rptr. 195] :

- It had personal jurisdiction over one party;
- It had subject-matter jurisdiction because of the location of the property; and
- Notice to the absent spouse met the standards of constitutional due process.

However, in Shaffer v. Heitner [Shaffer v. Heitner (1977) 433 U.S. 186, 97 S. Ct. 2569, 53 L. Ed. 2d 683] , the United States Supreme Court held that a state court was without jurisdiction to determine the rights of a nonresident, nonappearing party to personal property located within the state unless that party had sufficient minimum contacts with the state to ensure that maintenance of the suit did not offend traditional notions of fair play and substantial justice. In other words, personal jurisdiction over one party and subject-matter jurisdiction over personal property would not support a decree entitled to full faith and credit in California if the absent party had no connection with the rendering situs [Shaffer v. Heitner (1977) 433 U.S. 186, 212, 97 S.Ct. 2569, 53 L. Ed. 2d 683] .

The applicability of Shaffer to real property is unclear. It is quite possible that the physical location of land might by itself constitute an adequate contact with the rendering situs; the Court pointed out that when claims to real property are the source of the underlying dispute of the parties, it would be unusual for the state where property is located not to have jurisdiction [Shaffer v. Heitner (1977) 433 U.S. 186, 207-208, 97 S. Ct. 2569, 53 L. Ed. 2d 683 ; see also concurring opinion of Powell, J., 433 U.S. 186, 217, 97 S. Ct. 2569, 53 L. Ed. 2d 683] .

[2] Judgment Affecting Tangible Personal Property

Tangible personal property is subject to the same rules as real property [see [1], above], with one notable difference: the decision of the United States Supreme Court in Shaffer v. Heitner [Shaffer v. Heitner (1977) 433 U.S. 186, 213-217, 97 S. Ct. 2569, 53 L. Ed. 2d 683] clearly applies, and California is therefore not required to recognize an ex parte decree that purports to dispose of personal property located in the foreign state unless the absent party's contacts with the situs of the decree represent the type of minimum contacts that are required to obtain in personam jurisdiction over a defendant properly served with a summons outside of California.

[3] Judgment Affecting Intangible Personal Property

Intangible personal property is subject to the same rules as tangible personal property [see [2], above], but with an added complication related to determination of the property's location. If the efficacy of a foreign ex parte decree to dispose of intangible personal property is challenged in California litigation, the California court will determine the location of the property according to the totality of contacts that it had with the jurisdiction where the decree was rendered [In re Marriage of Leff (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 630, 646, 102 Cal. Rptr. 195] . Because these are the same considerations used to determine the fairness of asserting jurisdiction over the property of an absent defendant [Shaffer v. Heitner (1977) 433 U.S. 186, 213-217, 97 S. Ct. 2569, 53 L. Ed. 2d 683] , it appears that in the case of intangible personal property the issues of assigning a situs to the property and determining the fairness of litigating the rights of an absent party should be resolved by the same analysis.

A money judgment, such as a judgment for a sum to achieve an equal distribution of community property, is valid and entitled to full faith and credit if the court obtained personal jurisdiction over the judgment debtor in accordance with constitutional standards of due process [Shaffer v. Heitner (1977) 433 U.S. 186, 213-217, 97 S. Ct. 2569, 53 L. Ed. 2d 683] . The Sister States Money-Judgments Act (SSMJA) [*Code Civ. § 260.50 Governing Law

Establishment of a sister-state judgments as a California judgment is generally governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 1913. Other statutory regimes permit establishment of specific types of judgments for enforcement purposes, such as the Uniform Interstate Family Support Act (UIFSA) [Fam. Code § 4900 et seq.], discussed in § 260.80 et seq., the Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction and Enforcement Act (UCCJEA), discussed in § 260.200 et seq., and the Sister State Money-Judgments Act (SSMJA) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.10 et seq.], discussed in Ch. 318, Judgments .

Proof of a sister-state or foreign country judgment is governed by Evid. Code § 1530. Venue in a proceeding to enforce a child support obligation is governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a).

§ 260.51 Establishment of Foreign Judgment in California

[1] By Civil Action

Subject to certain exceptions regarding fiduciaries [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1913(b)], Code Civ. Proc. § 1913(a) provides that the effect of a judicial record of another state is the same as in California except that it can only be enforced in California by an action or special proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 1913(a)]. A judgment is a judicial record within the meaning of this section [Little v. Stevens (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 112, 113, 99 Cal. Rptr. 885] .

Therefore, a foreign judgment (one entered by any jurisdiction other than California, including sister states, the territories of the United States, and foreign countries) may be established in California by filing a civil action for that purpose [Hamilton v. Superior Court of San Mateo County (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 418, 422, 112 Cal. Rptr. 450 ; see Leverett v. Superior Court (1963) 222 Cal. App. 2d 126, 131, 34 Cal. Rptr. 784] . When it is so established, it becomes a California judgment for purposes of enforcement in California [Hamilton v. Superior Court of San Mateo County (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 418, 422, 112 Cal. Rptr. 450] .

The general civil action to establish a foreign judgment is becoming less common because there are more specific statutory procedures to enforce foreign family-law-related judgments in California. Foreign support obligations and orders must be enforced under the Uniform Interstate Family Support Act (UISFA) [Fam. Code § 4900 et seq.] because of its jurisdictional rules (§ 260.80 et seq). Therefore, use of the general civil complaint under Code Civ. Proc. § 1913 is essentially limited to the enforcement of family law money judgments for amounts other than support.

The Sister State Money-Judgments Act (SSMJA) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.10 et seq.] also provides a special procedure to establish and enforce out-of-state money judgments. For further discussion of the SSMJA, see Ch. 318, Judgments .

The Uniform Foreign-Country Money Judgments Recognition Act [Code Civ. Proc. § 1713 et seq.] is appropriate for enforcing judgments made in foreign countries. It applies to foreign-country judgments that grant or deny recovery of a sum of money and that are final, conclusive, and enforceable under the law of the foreign country [Code Civ. Proc. § 1715(a); see Manco Contracting Co. (W.L.L.) v. Bezdikian (2008) 45 Cal. 4th 192, 195-196, 201-203, 85 Cal. Rptr. 3d 233 (California court must look to foreign country's law to determine finality and conclusiveness of money judgment)]. The Act does not apply to a foreign-country judgment for divorce, support, or maintenance, or other judgment rendered in connection with domestic relations [Code Civ. Proc. § 1715(b)(3)(A); see In re Marriage of Lyustiger (2009) 177 Cal. App. 4th 1367, 1369, 1374-1377, 99 Cal. Rptr. 3d 922 (orders of British domestic relations court requiring husband to pay wife's attorney's fees were deemed orders for support and thus not enforceable under former Uniform Foreign Money-Judgments Recognition Act)]. However, such a judgment may be recognized by a California court under principles of comity or otherwise [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1715(b)(3)(B), 1723].

[2] Venue

A civil action to establish a foreign judgment is transitory and may be brought in any county in the state [Hamilton v. Superior Court of San Mateo County (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 418, 422, 112 Cal. Rptr. 450] . However, in a proceeding to enforce an obligation of child support, the county in which the child resides is the proper county for trial of the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a)].

[1] Sister State Judgments

The existence and contents of a sister state judgment may be proved by producing a copy of the judgment that is attested to or certified as correct by the public employee (usually the clerk of the rendering court) who has legal custody of the judgment [see Evid. Code § 1530(a)(2)]. The attested or certified copy provides prima facie evidence of the existence and contents of the judgment [Evid. Code § 1530(a)].

[2] Foreign Country Judgments

The existence and contents of a foreign country judgment may be proved by producing a copy of the judgment that is attested to as correct by a person having authority to make the attestation. The attestation must be accompanied by a final statement certifying the genuineness of the signature and the official position of either [Evid. Code § 1530(a)(3)]:

- The person who attested the copy as a correct copy; or
- Any foreign official who has certified either the genuineness of the signature and official position of the person actually attesting the copy.

The final certificate must be made by a secretary of a United States embassy or legation, by one of certain United States consular officials, or by a diplomatic or consular official of the foreign country in question assigned or accredited to the United States [Evid. Code § 1530(a)(3)]. After reasonable opportunity has been given to all parties to investigate the authenticity and accuracy of the purported judgment, the court may, for good cause shown [Evid. Code § 1530(a)(3)]:

- Admit an attested copy without a final statement; or
- Permit the judgment to be evidenced by an attested summary without a final statement.

The attested copy of the foreign judgment provides prima facie evidence of the existence and contents of the judgment [

§ 260.53 Interstate Enforcement of Support

[1] Historical Overview of Statutory Schemes

The problem of the enforcement of support obligations, particularly child support, across state lines is one that has become increasingly troublesome as society has become more mobile. The need for a uniform nationwide procedure to enforce the support orders of one state in the courts of another state where the obligor is subject to process has been recognized for quite some time. The Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act (URESA) was originally enacted by California in 1953. In 1968, the National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws revised the uniform act. California enacted the revisions in 1970 under the title of "The Revised Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act of 1968" (RURESA) [see former Code Civ. Proc. § 1650; Stats. 1970, ch. 1126]. Additional 1974 amendments to URESA/RURESA added a procedure for enforcement of support awards by registration [see former Code Civ. Proc. § 1697 et seq.; Stats. 1974, ch. 80].

In 1988, the National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws (NCCUSL) formed a drafting committee to revise URESA to reflect the dramatic changes in child support that had taken place since the prior revisions of 1968 and 1974. After an initial draft making some minor changes to URESA, the committee decided that URESA should be replaced in its entirety by a system based on significantly different concepts. The result was the first draft of the Uniform Interstate Family Support Act (UIFSA), which was completed in 1993.

Most states abandoned URESA and enacted UIFSA within the next several years. As a result of the experiences of those states, the NCCUSL promulgated and approved further amendments to UIFSA on July 18, 1996. UIFSA is considered in detail in § 260.80 et seq.

Meanwhile, Congress enacted the Full Faith and Credit for Child Support Orders Act (FFCCSOA), effective October 20, 1994 (see § 260.60 et seq.). FFCCSOA essentially took the jurisdictional rules of UIFSA and imposed them on the states, whether or not they had enacted UIFSA. Congress then made enactment of UIFSA by January 1, 1998 mandatory on the states as a condition of receiving federal funds for the enforcement of child support [42 U.S.C. § 666(f); see 42 U.S.C. § 609(a)(8)]. California then enacted UIFSA, effective January 1, 1998 [see Fam. Code § 4900 et seq.; Stats. 1997, ch. 194].

[2] Jurisdictional Effect of FFCCSOA and UIFSA on Other Law

UIFSA provides that its remedies are cumulative and do not affect the availability of remedies under other state law [Fam. Code § 4903]. Nevertheless, this provision is severely limited by the fact that, unlike URESA, UIFSA and FFCCSOA contain significant limitations on the jurisdiction of a state to make or modify a support order [see 28 U.S.C. § 1738B; Fam. Code § 4905 et seq.]. Therefore, unless the jurisdictional rules of these statutes have been met, California courts are without jurisdiction to make or modify a spousal or child support order. The effect is that all interstate support enforcement proceedings should be brought under UIFSA rather than the general civil action authorized by Civ. Code § 1913.

§ 260.54 Child Support Jurisdiction Compared to Child Custody Jurisdiction

While there are certainly strong public policy reasons why child custody issues and child support issues should always be litigated in the same forum, this has not been the state of the law under URESA and is not the state of the law under FFCCSOA and UIFSA. While there are some parallels between the child support jurisdictional rules of FFCCSOA and UIFSA and the child custody jurisdictional rules of the Parental Kidnaping Prevention Act (PKPA) [28 U.S.C. § 1738A] and the Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction and Enforcement Act (UCCJA) [Fam. Code § 3400 et seq.] there remain some significant differences.

One fundamental difference is that child support jurisdiction requires personal jurisdiction over the respondent-obligor [see 28 U.S.C. § 1738B(c)(1)(B); Fam. Code § 4905]. In contrast, the PKPA and UCCJEA are subject matter jurisdiction statutes only; it is not necessary to have personal jurisdiction over a parent or child if the requirements of those statutes have otherwise been met [In re Marriage of Leonard (1981) 122 Cal. App. 3d 443, 459, 175 Cal. Rptr. 903 (criticized on other grounds in Kumar v. Superior Court (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 689, 699 n.12, 186 Cal. Rptr. 772, 652 P.2d 1003)].

ILLUSTRATION:

Mother gives birth to child in California. Father lives in North Carolina. California has child custody jurisdiction under both the PKPA and UCCJEA because it is the child's home state [28 U.S.C. § 1738A(b)(4), (c)(2); Fam. Code § 3402(g), 3421(a)(1)]. However, California cannot establish paternity and make a child support order unless it can obtain personal jurisdiction over the father under the long-arm provisions of UIFSA [28 U.S.C. § 1738B(c)(1)(B); see Fam. Code § 4905].

In case of multiple filings, UIFSA gives priority to a child's home state [see Fam. Code § 4908, discussed in § 260.92], but that state must still be able to exercise personal jurisdiction over the respondent [see 28 U.S.C. § 1738B(c)(1)(B); Fam. Code § 4905 (UIFSA long-arm statute), discussed in § 260.90[1]].

Conversely, even though a responding state under UIFSA may have personal jurisdiction over the respondent, it will not be able to exercise child custody jurisdiction unless the requirements of the PKPA and UCCJEA are also met. In the illustration above, if the mother initiates paternity and support proceedings in North Carolina because she cannot obtain personal jurisdiction over the father in California, the father may not invoke child custody jurisdiction in North Carolina to obtain visitation rights. California is the child's home state, and the PKPA requires that child custody determinations be made in the child's home state [see 28 U.S.C. § 1738A(c)(2)].

Both the PKPA and FFCCSOA include the concept of continuing, exclusive jurisdiction, as does the more recent UCCJEA; that is, that the court that makes a valid order retains jurisdiction to the exclusion of other courts as long as the child or a parent continues to reside there [28 U.S.C. §§ 1738A(d), 1738B(d), discussed in § 260.65]. However, each statute provides different exceptions to this rule. Under the PKPA, a state that otherwise has continuing, exclusive jurisdiction may decline to exercise its jurisdiction and cede jurisdiction to another state [28 U.S.C. § 1738A(f)(2)]. However, there is no right of the parties to waive the continuing, exclusive child custody jurisdiction of the decree state. Under FFCCSOA and UIFSA, each individual contestant may file a written consent to transfer continuing, exclusive child support jurisdiction to a new state [28 U.S.C. § 1738B(e)(2); Fam. Code §§ 4909(a)(2), 4960(a)(2)], but there is no right of a court to decline to exercise its continuing, exclusive child support jurisdiction and transfer jurisdiction to another state.

ILLUSTRATION:

Parents were divorced in North Carolina, and father was given primary physical custody of child. Father and child moved to California. North Carolina has continuing, exclusive jurisdiction as to both custody and support under PKPA, UCCJEA, and FFCCSOA as long as the mother continues to reside there. The North Carolina court may relinquish child custody jurisdiction to California without the consent of the mother; however, it must retain its child support jurisdiction unless the mother consents to jurisdiction in California. In contrast, even if the mother consents to child support jurisdiction in California, the North Carolina court may, but need not, relinquish its child custody jurisdiction.

§ 260.61 Purposes of FFCCSOA

The federal Full Faith and Credit for Child Support Orders Act (FFCCSOA) [see 28 U.S.C. § 1738B; Pub. L. No. 103-383], signed by the president on October 20, 1994, and effective as of that date [see In re Marriage of Lurie (1995) 33 Cal. App. 4th 658, 673, 39 Cal. Rptr. 2d 835 (also noting general rule that federal statutes operate retroactively to apply to appeals pending on effective date)], establishes national standards under which state courts are to determine their jurisdiction to issue child support orders and the effect to be given by each state to child support orders issued by the courts of other states [see Pub. L. No. 103-383, § (2)(b)]. The purposes of FFCCSOA are (1) to facilitate the enforcement of child support orders among the states; (2) to discourage continuing interstate controversies over child support in the interest of greater financial stability and secure family relationships for the child; and (3) to avoid jurisdictional competition and conflict among state courts in the establishment of child support orders [see Pub. L. No. 103-383, § (2)(c)]. If an order is validly made under FFCCSOA, it must be afforded full faith and credit by all other states, it must be enforced according to its terms, and it cannot be modified except as provided in FFCCSOA [28 U.S.C. § 1738B(a)].

FCCSOA is constitutional and must be enforced in California courts under the Supremacy and Full Faith and Credit clauses of the U.S. Constitution [Kilroy v. Superior Court (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 793, 808-820, 63 Cal.Rptr. 2d 390] .

§ 260.62 Congressional Findings

In enacting FFCCSOA, Congress made the following findings with regard to the need for the Act [see Pub. L. No. 103-383, § (2)(a); see also In re Marriage of Lurie (1995) 33 Cal. App. 4th 658, 673-674, 39 Cal. Rptr. 2d 835] :

1. There is a large and growing number of child support cases annually involving disputes between parents who reside in different states;

2. The laws by which the courts of different jurisdictions determine their authority to establish child support orders are not uniform;

3. Those laws, along with the limits imposed by the federal system on the authority of each state to take certain actions outside its own boundaries, do the following:

a. Encourage noncustodial parents to relocate outside the states where their children and the custodial parents reside to avoid the jurisdiction of the courts of such states, resulting in an increase in the amount of interstate travel and communication required to establish and collect on child support orders and a burden on custodial parents that is expensive, time consuming, and disruptive of occupations and commercial activity;

b. Contribute to the pressing problem of relatively low levels of child support payments in interstate cases and to inequities in child support payments levels that are based solely on the noncustodial parent's choice of residence;

c. Encourage a disregard of court orders resulting in massive arrearages nationwide;

d. Allow noncustodial parents to avoid the payment of regularly scheduled child support payments for extensive periods of time, resulting in substantial hardship for the children for whom support is due and for their custodians; and

e. Lead to the excessive relitigation of cases and to the establishment of conflicting orders by the courts of various jurisdictions, resulting in confusion, waste of judicial resources, disrespect for the courts, and a diminution of public confidence in the rule of law.

4. Among the results of the conditions described are the following:

a. The failure of the courts of the states to give full faith and credit to the judicial proceedings of the other states;

b. The deprivation of rights of liberty and property without due process of law;

c. Burdens on commerce among the States; and

d. Harm to the welfare of children and their parents and other custodians.

§ 260.63 Preemption of State Law

FFCCSOA preempts state law regarding child support jurisdiction to the extent that it is inconsistent with FFCCSOA [see Kilroy v. Superior Court (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 793, 800-806, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 390 (FFCCSOA applied without any consideration of potentially conflicting provisions of URESA); In re Marriage of Lurie (1995) 33 Cal. App. 4th 658, 673-676, 39 Cal. Rptr. 2d 835 (court found no different result under FFCCSOA, but implicit in its holding is view that had FFCCSOA yielded different result, that result would be required); cf. People v. Superior Court (Smolin) (1986) 41 Cal. 3d 758, 770, 225 Cal. Rptr. 438, 716 P.2d 991 , reversed, other grounds, State of California v. Superior Court (1987) 482 U.S. 400, 107 S. Ct. 2433, 96 L. Ed. 2d 332 (federal Parental Kidnaping Prevention Act, 28 U.S.C. § 1738A, preempts state child custody jurisdiction law to extent it is inconsistent)].

There were major jurisdictional differences between FFCCSOA and the former Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act (URESA) [former Fam. Code § 4800 et seq.], particularly in their modification provisions. Therefore, orders that were validly made under URESA are subject to reexamination under FFCCSOA [see 28 U.S.C. § 1738B(f), discussed in § 260.65]. The jurisdictional rules of FFCCSOA conform to those of current California law, the Uniform Interstate Family Support Act (UIFSA) [Fam. Code § 4900 et seq.; see discussion in § 260.91]. However, there may be an issue of preemption with regard to the choice-of-law provisions of FFCCSOA and UIFSA. For discussion see §§ 260.67 and 260.118.

§ 260.64 General Child Support Jurisdiction

Under FFCCSOA, a state's child support order is valid and entitled to full faith and credit if (1) the court that makes the order has both subject matter jurisdiction and personal jurisdiction over the contestants under its own state law; and (2) reasonable notice and opportunity to be heard is given to the contestants [28 U.S.C. § 1738B(c); see 28 U.S.C. § 1738B(b) (contestants include parents, other parties, and any public assignee)].

The full faith and credit provision of the FFCCSOA [28 U.S.C. § 1738B] is constitutional under U.S. Const., art. I, § 8, cl. 3 (congressional power to regulate interstate commerce), because child support payments between parents in different states substantially affect interstate commerce [Harding v. Harding (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 626, 633-636, 121 Cal. Rptr. 2d 450 (provision also does not violate U.S. Const., 10th Amend--powers not conferred on federal government by Constitution reserved to states)].

Once a state court makes a valid child support order, that court has continuing, exclusive jurisdiction over the order as long as the state is the child's state or the residence of any individual contestant [28 U.S.C. § 1738B(d); see Kilroy v. Superior Court (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 793, 805-806, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 390] . That continuing jurisdiction precludes another state's modification of the order except as specifically provided under FFCCSOA [28 U.S.C. § 1738B(a)(2), (d)]. "Modification" under FFCCSOA means a change in a child support order that affects the amount, scope, or duration of the order and modifies, replaces, supersedes, or otherwise is made subsequent to the child support order [28 U.S.C. § 1738B(b)].

By contrast, the setting-off of a prior child support arrearage under a California order has been held not to be an impermissible modification of an out-of-state judgment for child support arrears. In that case, it was found simply to be a determination concerning the manner of enforcing the out-of-state judgment [Keith G. v. Suzanne H. (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 1440, 1447 (order at issue did not violate either FFCCSOA or more general constitutional principle of full faith and credit)].

Under FFCCSOA's modification rules, one state's court may modify another state's child support order only if [28 U.S.C. § 1738B(e)]:

1. The court has jurisdiction to make such a child support order in that the party seeking modification has registered the order in a state with jurisdiction over the nonmovant for the purpose of modification [28 U.S.C. § 1738B(e)(1); see 28 U.S.C. § 1738B(i)]; and

a. The court of the other state no longer has continuing, exclusive jurisdiction of the child support order because that state no longer is the child's state or the residence of any individual contestant [see, e.g., In re Marriage of Lurie (1995) 33 Cal. App. 4th 658,

675, 39 Cal. Rptr. 2d 835] ; or

b. Each individual contestant has filed written consent to that court's making the modification and assuming continuing, exclusive jurisdiction over the order.

A court of a State that no longer has continuing, exclusive jurisdiction of a child support order may still enforce the order with respect to nonmodifiable obligations and unsatisfied obligations that accrued before the date on which a court of another state validly modified the order [28 U.S.C. § 1738B(g)].

C. Enforcement of Support
1. Interstate Child Support Jurisdiction Under FFCCSOA

§ 260.66 Recognition of Child Support Orders

If one or more child support orders have been issued with regard to an obligor and a child, FFCCSOA sets forth rules to determine which order to recognize for purposes of continuing, exclusive jurisdiction [28 U.S.C. § 1738B(f)]. The order that is recognized under these rules then becomes the one entitled to continuing, exclusive jurisdiction [28 U.S.C. § 1738B(f)(5)].

If only one court has issued a child support order, that order must be recognized [28 U.S.C. § 1738B(f)(1)]. This provision suggests that if there is only one outstanding child support order, that order is valid whether or not the order was made by a court with proper jurisdiction under FFCCSOA, and thus immune from collateral attack for want of jurisdiction. However, FFCCSOA also provides that states must enforce foreign child support orders "made consistent with this section" [28 U.S.C. § 1738B(a)(1)], which suggests that "recognition" under FFCCSOA does not necessarily imbue the order with validity if the issuing court lacked jurisdiction under any provision of FFCCSOA.

If two or more courts have issued child support orders for the same obligor and child, and only one of the courts would have continuing, exclusive jurisdiction under FFCCSOA, the order of that court must be recognized [28 U.S.C. § 1738B(f)(2)]. However, if more than one court would have exclusive continuing jurisdiction, an order issued by a court in the current home state of the child [see 28 U.S.C. § 1738B(b) ("child's home state" means state in which child lived with parent or person acting as parent for at least six consecutive months immediately preceding time of filing of a petition or comparable pleading for support; or if child is less than six months old, state in which child lived from birth with any of them)], must be recognized. If the child's current home state is not one of the decree states, then most recently issued order must be recognized [28 U.S.C. § 1738B(f)(3)].

It is not readily apparent how more than one court could possess "exclusive" jurisdiction. What is probably contemplated is that under URESA, support orders from more than one state were possible. Each decree state might still be the state of residence of one individual contestant. This provision would then set forth a rule for determining the priority of multiple valid URESA orders. For further discussion, see § 260.94.

If none of the courts would have continuing, exclusive jurisdiction, then the court having jurisdiction over the parties may issue its own support order, which then must be recognized [28 U.S.C. § 1738B(f)(4)].

The Uniform Interstate Family Support Act (UIFSA) contains a procedure for obtaining a declaration as to which support order is entitled to recognition under these same rules [see Fam. Code § 4911]. For discussion, see § 260.94[2]. For a form for use to bring a motion for determination of the order entitled to recognition under UIFSA, see § 260.332.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Enforcement of Support
1. Interstate Child Support Jurisdiction Under FFCCSOA

22-260 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 260.67

§ 260.67 Choice of Law

[1] Statutory Rules Under FFCCSOA

In general, the law of the forum state applies in any proceeding to establish, modify, or enforce a child support order [28 U.S.C. § 1738B(h)(1)]. However, the law of the state that issued an order applies in interpreting the order. Interpreting the order includes determining the duration of current payments and other obligations of support [28 U.S.C. § 1738B(h)(2)]. Also, in a proceeding to enforce arrears under a child support order, the court must apply the statute of limitation of either the forum state or the state of the court that issued the order, whichever statute provides the longer period of limitation [28 U.S.C. § 1738B(h)(3); see Fam. Code § 4953(b), discussed in § 260.118[3] (same rule under UIFSA)]. Because California has no limitation period for the enforcement of support [see Fam. Code § 291(a), (b); Trend v. Bell (1997) 57 Cal. App. 4th 1092, 1096-1098, 68 Cal. Rptr. 2d 54] , support arrearages will always be enforceable in a California interstate proceeding.

[2] Duration of Duty of Support; Age of Majority

Under the choice-of-law rules of FFCCSOA, it is clear that if a second state is only enforcing a child support order of another state, it must apply the rules governing the duration of the duty of support, including the age of majority, of the state that issued the order [28 U.S.C. § 1738B(h)(2) (law of original decree state applies in interpreting order, and interpreting order includes determining duration of current payments and other obligations of support)]. The second phrase defining "interpreting" to include durational rules was added by Congress in its 1996 amendments to FFCCSOA]. What is not clear is whether it must also retain the decree state's rules if it has jurisdiction to modify the order after the decree state has lost its continuing, exclusive jurisdiction.

It may certainly be argued that once a new state acquires modification jurisdiction, it is no longer interpreting the prior order, but making a new one. In this case, the forum state should apply its own law, including its durational rules and age of majority. Therefore, if a new state has modification jurisdiction, a party should be able to obtain either an extension or an early termination of support by registering the order and moving to modify it in another state that has different duration rules or a different age of majority [see In re Marriage of Lurie (1995) 33 Cal. App. 4th 658, 673-676, 39 Cal. Rptr. 2d 835 (construing FFCCSOA prior to its 1996 amendments, as permitting California, as forum state, to terminate a duty of support when child turned 18, even though duty extended to age 21 under law of New York, the decree state)]. This result, however, is in conflict with the Uniform Interstate Family Support Act (UIFSA), which prohibits a modifying state from modifying any provision of the order that would not be modifiable in the issuing state [see Fam. Code § 4960(c), discussed in § 260.118[2]].

To construe FFCCSOA so as to conform it to UIFSA, It might be argued that before a state may modify a child support order of another state, it must first interpret the order. Thus, FFCCSOA would require that in this interpretation, the durational rules and the age of majority of the decree state must be applied. Under this view, the modifying court is not writing with a clean slate, but is limited to changing only those aspects of the order that are not within the realm of "interpretation" as defined in FFCCSOA. From a public-policy perspective, parents should not be able to forum shop for a different duration of support other than the one that was originally imposed on them by the court and laws of their original decree state.

[3] Amount of Support

In a proceeding for an initial support order, FFCCSOA would require the amount of child support to be computed under the child support guideline of the forum state, regardless of whether or not it is the state of the child's residence [see 28 U.S.C. § 1738B(h)(1); cf. In re Marriage of Angoco & San Nicolas (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th 1527, 1532-1533, 33 Cal. Rptr. 2d 305] . However, FFCCSOA would seem to clearly foreclose the ability of an obligee parent to obtain an upward modification of support simply because the obligor parent is now domiciled in a jurisdiction with higher child support guidelines [see In re Marriage of Angoco & San Nicolas (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th 1527, 1532-1533, 33 Cal. Rptr. 2d 305] . As long as the custodial parent and the child remain in the decree state, that state has continuing exclusive jurisdiction, and the state of the obligor's domicile has no jurisdiction to enter any modification or subsequent order [see 28 U.S.C. § 1738B(e), discussed in § 260.65]. Thus, there can only be a modification proceeding in a new state if the child and both parents (or parties) have left the decree state (or if the noncustodial parent will give written consent to jurisdiction in his or her new state of domicile) [see 28 U.S.C. § 1738B(e)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Counsel representing obligors in UIFSA actions need to be particularly wary of the consent exception. Do not confuse personal jurisdiction with modification jurisdiction under FFCCSOA. Obviously, the jurisdiction of the obligor's domicile has personal jurisdiction over him or her, but it may not have FFCCSOA jurisdiction. Don't execute a consent to the court's jurisdiction proposed by the obligee or district attorney without considering all choice-of-law issues and discussing them with your client.
Commentary by the Publisher's Editorial Staff

If the decree state has lost its continuing, exclusive jurisdiction, modification proceedings may be brought in the state of the obligor's domicile, or in the state of the obligee's and child's domicile if personal jurisdiction over the obligor can be obtained there [see 28 U.S.C. § 1738B(c)(1)(B), (e)(1); see also In re Marriage of Lurie (1995) 33 Cal. App. 4th 658, 673-676, 39 Cal. Rptr. 2d 835] . In such a case, it would appear that FFCCSOA requires that child support be computed under the guideline in effect in the forum state [see 28 U.S.C. § 1738B(h)(1); cf. Fam. Code § 4917(b), 4953, discussed in § 260.118[1] (under UIFSA, law of issuing state governs amount of support)].

PRACTICE TIP:

While computing support under the guideline of the forum state makes complete sense if all of the parties are now domiciled there, in other situations it permits both parties to forum shop in search of the most favorable guideline. For example, consider Marriage of Angoco and San Nicolas, noted above. Mother and child were domiciled in Guam, a low-support jurisdiction, while father was domiciled in California, arguably a high-support jurisdiction, at least in this case. Suppose that the existing child support order had been issued in another state that had lost its continuing, exclusive jurisdiction because everybody had moved away. Father could initiate modification proceedings in Guam, while mother could initiate them in California. FFCCSOA does not address the potential jurisdictional conflict in this case, and the forum shopping, race to the courthouse, and potential for multiple conflicting orders are just what the statute is supposed to deter. Commentary by the Publisher's Editorial Staff

The legislature has revised various provisions of UIFSA [Stats. 2002, ch. 349], but these revisions will not become operative before July 1, 2004, at the earliest, and only if (1) Congress amends 42 U.S.C. § 666(f) to statutorily require or authorize, in connection with the approval of state plans for purposes of federal funding, the adoption of UIFSA as promulgated by the National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws in 2001, or (2) the federal office of Child Support Enforcement or the Secretary of Health and Human Services approves, either generally or with specific application to California, a waiver, exemption, finding, or other indicia of regulatory approval of UIFSA, as promulgated by the National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws in 2001, in connection with the approval of state plans for purposes of federal funding [Stats. 2002, ch. 349, § 47]. In general, the revisions address personal jurisdiction, simultaneous proceedings, jurisdiction to modify support orders, and determinations of paternity and the controlling child support order. They also transfer specified enforcement responsibilities from the Attorney General to the Department of Child Support Enforcement. These revisions will be included in a subsequent release for this publication if they become operative.

§ 260.81 Federal Compulsion For UIFSA

As noted in the historical discussion (§ 260.53[1]), the Uniform Interstate Family Support Act is a uniform act that must be enacted by the states as a condition of receiving federal child support enforcement funds [see 42 U.S.C. § 666(f)]. Further, UIFSA must be enacted as "approved by the American Bar Association on February 9, 1993, and as in effect on August 22, 1996, including any amendments officially adopted as of such date by the National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws" [42 U.S.C. § 666(f)]. This language would seem to preclude states from adopting their own additions to or modifications of UIFSA. Hence, although UIFSA is state law, it is subject to the political process of the state only at the cost of a loss of significant federal funds [42 U.S.C. § 609(a)(8)].

2. UIFSA: Introduction

§ 260.82 General Structure of UIFSA

UIFSA is a complete replacement for the Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act, which had previously been in force in all of the states, including California [see former Fam. Code § 4800 et seq.]. Unlike URESA, UIFSA contains jurisdictional rules designed to ensure that only one state at a time has jurisdiction to address child support, whether in the context of making an initial child support order or of modifying the order of another state [see Fam. Code § 4905 et seq.; discussions in §§ 260.91 and 260.98]. UIFSA also includes a mechanism for obtaining a support order in an interstate proceeding if no such order is in place [Fam. Code § 4935, discussed in § 260.96[1]], below]; procedures for enforcing income-withholding orders in other states without judicial proceedings [see Fam. Code § 4940 et seq., discussed in § 260.140 et seq.]; and registration procedures for the enforcement of the support order of one state in another [see Fam. Code § 4950 et seq., discussed in § 260.150 et seq.]. UIFSA also expressly authorizes determination of parentage in proceedings under it [see Fam. Code § 4965, discussed in § 260.97, below] and provides procedures for interstate extradition for criminal failure to provide support see Fam. Code §§ 4970, 4971, discussed in § 260.170 et seq.].

UIFSA may perhaps best be seen as the union of the jurisdictional principles of the Full Faith and Credit for Child Support Orders Act (FFCCSOA) [compare Fam. Code § 4905 et seq. with 28 U.S.C. § 1738B; see § 260.60 et seq.] with the registration procedure for interstate orders in URESA [compare Fam. Code § 4950 et seq. with former Fam. Code § 4848 et seq.].

2. UIFSA: Introduction

§ 260.83 UIFSA Compared to FFCCSOA

There is little practical difference between UIFSA and the Full Faith and Credit for Child Support Orders Act (FFCCSOA) [28 U.S.C. § 1738B; see § 260.60 et seq.]. FFCCSOA is a federal statute that implements the Full Faith and Credit Clause of the federal Constitution [U.S. Const., art. IV, § I]. UIFSA is state law, albeit, state law that is federally compelled [see 42 U.S.C. § 666(f); see § 260.53[1]]. FFCCSOA addresses jurisdiction only, while UIFSA includes jurisdictional rules within a complete procedural scheme for addressing support orders in an interstate context. However, the jurisdictional rules of both statutes are the same. Both present the concept of continuing, exclusive jurisdiction as a vehicle for ensuring that only one state at a time has jurisdiction to make or modify a child support order, and both provide the same rules for determining the state with continuing, exclusive jurisdiction [compare 28 U.S.C. § 1738B(e), discussed in § 260.65 with Fam. Code § 4909, discussed in § 260.91]. Further, both provide the same rules for determining which of multiple child support orders for the same obligor and children is entitled to recognition [compare 28 U.S.C. § 1738B(f), discussed in § 260.66 with Fam. Code § 4911, discussed in § 260.94].

One possible issue concerns the choice-of-law provisions of the two statutes [compare 28 U.S.C. § 1738B(h) with Fam. Code §§ 4917, 4953]. For further discussion of this issue, see §§ 260.67 and 260.118.

2. UIFSA: Introduction

22-260 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 260.84

§ 260.84 UIFSA Compared to URESA

[1] Limits on State Court Subject Matter Jurisdiction

The principal difference between UIFSA and the Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act (URESA), which it replaced, is that UIFSA limits state court jurisdiction to enter and modify child support orders, while URESA did not. Under URESA, once a support order was registered in another state, the order essentially was converted into an order of the state of registration. It was subject to the same procedures, defenses, and proceedings for reopening, vacating, or staying as a support order of the registering state [former Fam. Code § 4853(a)]. Under this approach, the registering state could modify the order once it was properly before its courts for enforcement [see former Fam. Code § 4845(a); In re Marriage of Aron (1990) 224 Cal. App. 3d 1086, 1095-1096, 274 Cal. Rptr. 357 (modification permitted in subsequent proceedings on writ of execution to enforce registered judgment)].

This situation gave rise to the question of "supersession." Under URESA, the general rule was that a modification of another states support order did not nullify (supersede) the prior order unless otherwise specifically provided by the modifying court [former Fam. Code § 4840]. Therefore, unless supersession was found, the original order was still enforceable in the state that rendered it, even though only the modification would be enforceable in the second state. It was not uncommon for the courts of the decree state to refuse to construe the modification as a supersession and to enforce the original order according to its terms [see, e.g., In re Marriage of Ward (1994) 29 Cal. App. 4th 1452, 1456-1457, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 32 (California refused to find supersession by Colorado court that modified California order; found California order to still be enforceable according to its terms)].

The primary focus of UIFSA is to avoid this type of situation. Under the concept of continuing, exclusive jurisdiction, only one state at a time has jurisdiction to make or modify a child support order [see Fam. Code § 4909, discussed in § 260.91, below]. The registering state may enforce another state's child support order, but may not modify the order unless the decree state has lost its continuing, exclusive jurisdiction [see Fam. Code §§ 4959, 4960, discussed in § 260.98, below]. As with FFCCSOA (see § 260.65), continuing, exclusive jurisdiction is lost only after both parents and the child no longer reside in the decree state, or if all parties consent to jurisdiction in the registering state [Fam. Code §

[2] Personal Jurisdiction; Long-Arm Statute

UIFSA includes a statute that specifies when the court of one state may exercise personal jurisdiction over a child support obligor who is domiciled in another state [see Fam. Code § 4905, discussed in § 260.90, below]. URESA did not address any aspect of personal jurisdiction.

[3] Interstate Transfer of Evidence and Discovery

UIFSA includes provisions streamlining the receipt of evidence across state lines by use of modern technology [see Fam. Code § 4930, discussed in § 260.119, below]. It also provides for interstate assistance in obtaining discovery [see Fam. Code § 4932, discussed in § 260.120, below]. URESA had no similar provisions.

[4] Private Counsel and Attorney Fees

UIFSA expressly authorizes any individual to employ private counsel for representation in UIFSA proceedings [see Fam. Code § 4923, discussed in § 260.121, below]. It does not, however, expressly address the appointment of counsel to represent the child. URESA provided expressly that privately retained counsel could represent an obligee in any proceeding under it [former Fam. Code § 4805]. It did not specifically address the obligor's right to employ counsel, though such a right was presumed and provided in California.

URESA provided that no party could obtain attorney fees from the other except on a showing of bad faith [former Fam. Code § 4803(b); see In re Marriage of Hubner (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 660, 669-670, 252 Cal. Rptr. 428] . UIFSA provides for attorney fees to the obligee as prevailing party, but not against the obligee except as provided by other law [see Fam. Code § 4927(b), discussed in § 260.121, below].

[5] Nonjudicial Enforcement of Income-Withholding Orders

UIFSA provides for the enforcement of income-withholding orders by service on an employer in another state without the necessity of registration or of any judicial procedure whatsoever [Fam. Code § 4940; see § 260.140 et seq.]. Under URESA, an income-withholding order was enforceable through the registration procedure [former Fam. Code § 4849; see former Fam. Code § 4802(p) ("foreign support order" defined as including foreign order for assignment of wages for satisfaction of support order)].

[6] Proceeding By Complaint or Registration

URESA included two means of proceeding; by complaint [see former Fam. Code § 4824 et seq.] and by registration [see former Fam. Code § 4848 et seq.]. An obligee seeking enforcement in California of an existing support order could proceed by either complaint or registration [see former Fam. Code §§ 4822, 4848]. However, if a duty of support had not been reduced to a judgment or order, the obligee had to seek enforcement of that duty by complaint rather than by registration, because the registration procedure was limited to enforcing duties of support based on existing orders [see former Fam. Code § 4848]. The complaint procedure was somewhat cumbersome, with steps that followed those in a traditional civil action.

UIFSA retains the essential structure of URESA's registration procedure for existing orders [see Fam. Code § 4850 et seq.; see § 260.150 et seq.], but does not include a complaint procedure. If there is currently no support order in place, UIFSA does provide for the establishment of an initial support order [see Fam. Code § 4935, discussed in § 260.96[1]; see also Fam. Code § 4901(c) ("duty of support" is obligation imposed or imposable by law to provide support for a child, spouse, or former spouse, including an unsatisfied obligation to provide support)]. But whatever remedy is sought, any proceeding under UIFSA is commenced by the filing of a petition, either in the initiating state for forwarding to the responding state, or in any state in which the court can obtain personal jurisdiction over the respondent [see Fam. Code § 4915(b), (c), discussed in § 260.112, below]. The same form of petition is to be used, regardless of the nature of the proceeding or the particular remedy sought [see Fam. Code § 4926, discussed at § 260.113, below; see also § 260.312 (Uniform Support Petition)].

Further, any individual may initiate any proceeding under UIFSA [see Fam. Code § 4915(c), discussed at § 260.112, below]. Under URESA, only an obligee could seek its remedies, and only through the auspices of a governmental support enforcement agency [see former Fam. Code §§ 4825, 4852].

§ 260.85 UIFSA Compared to SSMJA

The Sister State Money-Judgments Act (SSMJA) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1710 et seq.; see Ch. 318, Judgments] provides a method of filing a general civil action for establishing an out-of-state money judgment as a judgment enforceable in California [see Epps v Russell (1976) 62 Cal. App. 3d 201, 203, 133 Cal. Rptr. 30] . However, the SSMJA is not available to enforce sister state support orders as defined in Fam. Code § 155 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.10(c)].

Fam. Code § 155 defines a support order as "a judgment or order of support in favor of an obligee, whether temporary or final, or subject to modification, termination, or remission, regardless of the kind of action or proceeding in which it is entered." This is still the definition of "support order" that was found in URESA [compare Fam. Code § 155 with former Fam. Code § 4802(k); see also former Code Civ. Proc. § 1653(k)].

There is conflicting case law on what constituted a "support order" for purposes of URESA. One line held that a sister state judgment ordering payment of support arrearages was a support order and enforceable under the URESA registration procedures, and therefore not enforceable under SSMJA, even if it was a nonmodifiable final judgment for a liquidated sum of money [Morris v. Cohen (1983) 149 Cal. App. 3d 507, 513-514, 196 Cal. Rptr. 834 ; see Neuman v. Barbera (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 437, 442, 210 Cal. Rptr. 556] . However, at least two other appellate courts held that a support order under URESA did not include a judgment for a liquidated amount of arrearages; and because such a money judgment is constitutionally entitled to full faith and credit in other states, it must also be so entitled in California [Liebow v. Superior Court (1981) 120 Cal. App. 3d 573, 580-581, 175 Cal. Rptr. 26 ; Fishman v. Fishman (1981) 117 Cal. App. 3d 815, 822-823, 173 Cal. Rptr. 59] .

The definition of a "support order" under UIFSA expressly encompasses arrearages and reimbursement [Fam. Code § 4901(u), discussed in § 260.174]. Therefore, should the reference in the SSMJA be construed as referring to UIFSA rather than the old URESA definition in Fam. Code § 155, or should Fam. Code § 155 be amended to bring it into conformity with UIFSA, the former view would prevail, and support arrearages would not be enforceable under SSMJA.

§ 260.90 Personal Jurisdiction

[1] Bases for Personal Jurisdiction Over Nonresident

UIFSA contains a long-arm statute the broadly extends personal jurisdiction over nonresidents in support proceedings. In any proceeding to establish, enforce, or modify a support order or to determine parentage, a California court may exercise personal jurisdiction over a nonresident individual or the individual's guardian or conservator if any of the following apply [Fam. Code § 4905]:

1. The individual is personally served with notice within this state.

2. The individual submits to the jurisdiction of this state by consent, by entering a general appearance, or by filing a responsive document having the effect of waiving any contest to personal jurisdiction.

3. The individual resided with the child in this state.

4. The individual resided in this state and provided prenatal expenses or support for the child.

5. The child resides in this state as a result of the acts or directives of the individual.

6. The individual engaged in sexual intercourse in this state and the child may have been conceived by that act of intercourse [see also Fam. Code § 7620(a) (same provision in Uniform Parentage Act; see Ch. 412, Paternity].

7. The individual has filed a declaration of paternity under Fam. Code § 7570 et seq. (see Ch. 412, Paternity).

8. There is any other basis consistent with the California and United States Constitutions for the exercise of personal jurisdiction. The constitutional limitations on the exercise of personal jurisdiction are discussed in Ch. 323, Jurisdiction: Personal .

[2] Procedure When Exercising Jurisdiction Over Nonresident

The intent of UIFSA's long-arm statute is to reduce the need for interstate proceedings under UIFSA. If California as a forum state can exercise personal jurisdiction over a nonresident parent, then it may not be necessary to initiate proceedings designed to bind the respondent parent in another state. In this sense, a proceeding involving a nonresident parent over whom long-arm jurisdiction is exercised under UIFSA is a UIFSA proceeding in only a limited sense. While the discovery and evidentiary provisions of UIFSA may be used [see Fam. Code §§ 4930, 4932, discussed in §§ 260.119 and 260.120, below], in all other respects, UIFSA procedures do not apply. A California court is to apply its own procedural and substantive law, including the rules on choice of law other than those of UIFSA [Fam. Code § 4906].

3. UIFSA: Jurisdictional Provisions

22-260 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 260.91

§ 260.91 Continuing, Exclusive Jurisdiction

[1] Basic Concept

As with the Full Faith and Credit for Child Support Orders Act (FFCCSOA) [28 U.S.C. § 1738B; see § 260.60 et seq.], the central jurisdictional feature of UIFSA is the concept of continuing, exclusive jurisdiction. Under UIFSA, a court that makes a valid child support order retains exclusive jurisdiction to modify the order as long as the requirements for continuing, exclusive jurisdiction remain fulfilled. The court of another state may enforce a child support order registered in that state, but may not modify it unless the decree state has lost its continuing, exclusive jurisdiction [Fam. Code § 4959; see Fam. Code § 4960 and discussion at § 260.98, below].

[2] Non-UIFSA Jurisdictional Requirements

The first requirement for continuing, exclusive jurisdiction is that the order must be made consistent with California law [Fam. Code § 4909(a), (f)]. Thus, any jurisdictional requirements that are imposed by California law other than UIFSA must also be met. Hence, there must be personal jurisdiction over all parties (see § 260.90), and the order must be made in some proceeding in which the court has subject matter jurisdiction over support orders. Jurisdiction to order child support is discussed in Ch. 394, Parent and Child and jurisdiction to order spousal support is discussed in Ch. 225, Dissolution of Marriage: Spousal Support .

[3] California's Continuing, Exclusive Jurisdiction Over Its Child Support Orders

If a California court has jurisdiction to make a child support order, it has continuing, exclusive jurisdiction [Fam. Code § 4909(a)]:

1. As long as California remains the residence of the obligor, the individual obligee, or the child for whose benefit the support order is issued; or

2. Until all of the parties who are individuals have filed written consents with the California court for a tribunal of another state to modify the order and assume continuing, exclusive jurisdiction.

Simply stated, the state that makes a child support order retains the exclusive jurisdiction to modify that order until either all of the parties have left the state or have consented to transfer jurisdiction to another state [see Stone v. Davis (2007) 148 Cal. App. 4th 596, 601-602, 55 Cal. Rptr. 3d 833 (written consent filed with issuing court is required to transfer continuing, exclusive jurisdiction to another state, and parties' actions in filing matters in another state does not establish their consent to other state's gaining continuing, exclusive jurisdiction)].

[4] California's Continuing, Exclusive Jurisdiction Over Its Spousal Support Orders

If a California court has jurisdiction to make a spousal support order, it has continuing, exclusive jurisdiction over the order throughout the existence of the support obligation. A California court may not modify a spousal support order issued by a tribunal of another state having continuing, exclusive jurisdiction over that order under the law of that state [Fam. Code § 4909(f); see Lundahl v. Telford (2004) 116 Cal. App. 4th 305, 312-318, 9 Cal. Rptr. 3d 902 (under UIFSA, spousal support obligor who seeks modification of support order issued by another state must make modification motion in that state)]. Thus, there is effectively no longer any right for one court to modify a spousal support order made by the court of another state [see Fam. Code § 4910(c) (If California lacks continuing, exclusive jurisdiction over spousal support order, it may not serve as responding tribunal to modify spousal support order of another state)]. Neither loss of contacts with the decree state nor consent constitute grounds for a new state to assume jurisdiction over spousal support. The decree state will always have "continuing, exclusive jurisdiction over that order under the law of that state" because that state is essentially compelled by federal law to have enacted UIFSA, and therefore, will have continuing, exclusive jurisdiction over the order throughout the existence of the support obligation [Fam. Code § 4909(f)].

[5] Loss of Continuing, Exclusive Child Support Jurisdiction to Another State

A court that validly modifies the child support order of another state under UIFSA becomes the tribunal of continuing, exclusive jurisdiction [Fam. Code § 4960(d)]. Therefore, if a California child support order is modified by a tribunal of another state under UIFSA or a law substantially similar to UIFSA, California loses its continuing, exclusive jurisdiction [Fam. Code § 4909(b), (c)]. On registration, California must recognize the modifying order of the other state for purposes of enforcement [Fam. Code § 4961], and it may no longer modify the order [Fam. Code § 4909(b)]. This statute appears to be poorly worded. It states that California "may not exercise its continuing jurisdiction to modify the order if the order has been modified by a tribunal of another state pursuant to this chapter or a law substantially similar to this chapter." But the order may be modified by the other state under UIFSA only if California has lost its continuing, exclusive jurisdiction [see Fam. Code §§ 4959, 4960 (UIFSA §§ 610, 611)]. Therefore, California no longer will have any continuing jurisdiction to modify the order.

Also, if a California support order is validly modified by another state, California's enforcement jurisdiction is limited. California may still entertain enforcement proceedings with regard to the order, but it may only [Fam. Code §§ 4909(c), 4961]:

1. Enforce the order that was modified as to amounts that accrued before the modification;

2. Enforce only nonmodifiable aspects of that order; and

3. Provide other appropriate relief for violations of that order that occurred before the effective date of the modification.

In other words, once another state assumes continuing, exclusive jurisdiction because the parties have all either left California or consented to jurisdiction in another state, California's modification jurisdiction is lost and its enforcement jurisdiction is limited to those matters expressly provided for by UIFSA.

[6] California's Recognition of Continuing, Exclusive Jurisdiction of Another State

California courts must recognize the continuing, exclusive jurisdiction of a tribunal of another state that has issued a child support order under UIFSA or a law substantially similar to UIFSA [Fam. Code § 4909(d)]. This recognition means that California may not modify the order, even if it is registered for enforcement in California, unless the decree state has lost its continuing, exclusive jurisdiction [Fam. Code § 4959; see Fam. Code § 4960 and discussion in § 260.98, below].

[7] Effect of Temporary Child Support Order

If addressing child support in the first instance, a California court may issue a temporary support order on a showing of probable paternity [see Fam. Code § 4935(b), discussed in § 260.96[2], below]. However, a temporary support order issued ex parte or pending resolution of a jurisdictional conflict does not create continuing, exclusive jurisdiction in the issuing state [Fam. Code § 4909(e)].

§ 260.92 Simultaneous Proceedings for Initial Child Support Order in Two or More States

Under UIFSA, it is possible for more than one state to have personal jurisdiction to address child support in the first instance.

ILLUSTRATION:

Mother and father met in California, had a relationship here, and a child was conceived here. Father then moved to North Carolina. Mother traveled to North Carolina with the child and they all lived there together for a few months. Mother and child subsequently returned to California. Under UIFSA, both California and North Carolina have long-arm jurisdiction over the nonresident parent; California because the child was conceived there, and North Carolina because the nonresident parent cohabited with the child there [see Fam. Code § 4905(a)(3), (6)]. Consequently, under UIFSA, child support proceedings may be initiated in either state.

If proceedings are initiated in more than one state, UIFSA provides a preference for the child's home state if there is one [see Fam. Code § 4908(a)(3)]. The child's home state is the state in which a child lived with a parent or a person acting as parent for at least six consecutive months immediately preceding the time of filing of a petition or comparable pleading for support. In the case of a child who is less than six months old, the state in which the child lived from birth with any parent or person acting as parent is the home state. A period of temporary absence of any of them is counted as part of the six-month or other period [Fam. Code § 4901(d)]. However, in order for the home-state preference to apply to exclude the jurisdiction of any other state in which proceedings were commenced earlier, the home-state proceeding must be filed before the expiration of the time allowed in the other state for filing a responsive pleading challenging the exercise of jurisdiction by that state [Fam. Code § 4908(a)(1)], and the contesting party must timely challenge the exercise of jurisdiction in the other state [Fam. Code § 4908(a)(2); see In re Marriage of Newman (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 846, 851, 95 Cal. Rptr. 2d 691 (Fam. Code § 4908(a)(2) does not divest California court from making spousal or child support order even if dissolution is pending in or has been granted by another state and California spouse has not challenged that state's jurisdiction, as long as out-of-state case did not raise support issue)]. If all of these conditions have been met, the state in which proceedings were first initiated may not exercise jurisdiction to establish a support order and must cede jurisdiction to the child's home state [Fam. Code § 4908(b)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Note that in the illustration above, there may be no home state. California will not become the child's home state until after six monthshave passed after the mother's and child's return. Hence, is important for the mother to win the race to the court house and file first. Even if California is the child's home state, if the father files first in North Carolina and no challenge is made to jurisdiction there, the North Carolina order is valid, and North Carolina will be the state of continuing, exclusive jurisdiction even though the child remains with the mother in California. Hence, it is extremely important for the home-state parent to move quickly to challenge jurisdiction in the other state. Commentary by the Publisher's Editorial Staff

A California court may serve as an initiating tribunal to request a tribunal of another state to enforce or modify a support order issued in that state [Fam. Code § 4910(a); see Fam. Code § 4901(h), (i) (definitions of "initiating state" and "initiating tribunal"); see also discussion at § 260.111]. A California court that has continuing, exclusive jurisdiction over a support order may act as a responding tribunal to enforce or modify the order [Fam. Code § 4910(b); *see Fam. If a party subject to the continuing, exclusive jurisdiction of the issuing state no longer resides there, in subsequent proceedings the tribunal may receive evidence from another state and obtain discovery through a tribunal of another state [Fam. Code § 4910(b); see Fam. Code §§ 4930, 4932, discussed at §§ 260.119 and 260.120, below ; *see also Fam. 22-260 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 260.94

§ 260.94 Recognition of Controlling Child Support Order

[1] Rules for Determining Which Order Controls

If a proceeding is brought under UIFSA and only one tribunal has issued a child support order, the order of that tribunal controls and must be so recognized [Fam. Code § 4911(a)]. This recognition presumes that the issuing tribunal had jurisdiction [see Fam. Code § 4952(c), discussed in § 260.151 (California court must recognize and enforce registered order if issuing tribunal had jurisdiction); see also 28 U.S.C. § 1738B(a), discussed in § 260.64 (order made in violation of jurisdiction rules of FFCCSOA need not be extended full faith and credit in other states)].

If two or more child support orders have been issued by California or another state with regard to the same obligor and child, California must apply the following rules in determining which order to recognize for purposes of continuing, exclusive jurisdiction [Fam. Code § 4911(b)]:

1. If only one of the tribunals would have continuing, exclusive jurisdiction under UIFSA, the order of that tribunal controls and must be so recognized.

2. If more than one of the tribunals would have continuing, exclusive jurisdiction under UIFSA, an order issued by a tribunal in the current home state of the child controls and shall be so recognized. But if an order has not been issued in the current home state of the child, the order most recently issued controls and shall be so recognized.

3. If none of the tribunals would have continuing, exclusive jurisdiction under UIFSA, and California has jurisdiction over the parties shall issue, it must issue a child support order, which controls and must be so recognized.

The second situation above raises some difficulties. Under UIFSA, it is impossible for more than one state to have continuing, exclusive jurisdiction (see § 260.91[1], above). Hence, this rule and its preference for the home state and secondary preference for the most recent order would never come into play. However, this rule is somewhat unartfully addressed to the possibility that under URESA, more than one state may have issued a valid child support order for the same obligor and child (see § 260.83) and each state remains the current domicile of one parent. In this situation, it might be said that under UIFSA, each state has some claim to continuing, exclusive jurisdiction [see Sampson, Uniform Interstate Family Support Act, Unofficial Annotations to UIFSA § 207, pp. 123-124]. Even in this situation, it really can't be said that both states actually have continuing, exclusive jurisdiction under UIFSA. Applying the rules of UIFSA and FFCCSOA, the jurisdiction of the second state to issue an order would depend on whether the first state had lost jurisdiction. If not, a court could find the second order to be invalid, that is, that that state would not have continuing, exclusive jurisdiction under UIFSA. And if the second order was issued after October 20, 1994, the effective date of FFCCSOA, it is clearly invalid and not entitled to full faith and credit (see § 260.64).

ILLUSTRATION:

Father, mother, and child all lived in North Carolina. The parents separated, and a child support order was issued by a North Carolina court. Father then moved to California, where mother registered her North Carolina order under URESA and obtained a modification increasing support to the California guideline level, which was permitted under URESA [see In re Marriage of Angoco & San Nicolas (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th 1527, 33 Cal. Rptr. 2d 305] . The North Carolina order is to be recognized under UIFSA as long as it is still the child's home state. If the child no longer is domiciled in North Carolina, then the California order is to be recognized because it is the more recent order.

If there were multiple orders from California and one or more other states for the same obligor and child, amounts collected and credited for a particular period under a support order issued by a tribunal of another state must be credited against the amounts accruing or accrued for the same period under the California support order [Fam. Code § 4913].

[2] Motion to Determine Controlling Order

If two or more child support orders have been issued for the same obligor and child and if the obligor or the individual obligee resides in California, a party may request a California court to determine which order controls and must be so recognized. The request must be accompanied by a certified copy of every support order in effect. The requesting party must give notice of the request to each party whose rights may be affected by the determination [Fam. Code § 4911(c)]. For a form for use to bring a motion for determination of the order entitled to recognition under UIFSA, see § 260.313.

The state that issued the order that is determined to be the controlling order is the one that then must be viewed as having continuing, exclusive jurisdiction [Fam. Code § 4911(d)]. In making the determination, or in issuing a new child support order if no state is determined to have continuing, exclusive jurisdiction [see Fam. Code § 4911(b)(3)], the California court must state in that order the basis on which it made its determination [Fam. Code § 4911(e)].

Within 30 days after issuance of an order determining the identity of the controlling order, the party obtaining the order must file a certified copy of it with each tribunal that issued or registered an earlier order of child support. A party who obtains the order and fails to file a certified copy is subject to appropriate sanctions by a tribunal in which the issue of failure to file arises. However, the failure to file does not affect the validity or enforceability of the controlling order [Fam. Code § 4911(f)].

§ 260.96 Jurisdiction to Issue Initial Support Order

[1] When California May Issue Initial Order

Under Fam. Code § 4935, if a support order entitled to recognition under UIFSA (see § 260.94) has not been issued, California, as responding state, may issue a support order only if the individual seeking the order resides in another state or the support enforcement agency seeking the order is located in another state [Fam. Code § 4935(a)]. On finding, after notice and opportunity to be heard, that an obligor owes a duty of support, the court must issue a support order directed to the obligor and may issue any other orders authorized under UIFSA [Fam. Code § 4935(c); see Fam. Code § 4919, discussed in § 260.115, below].

At first glance, Section 4935 might seem to foreclose the possibility of a party obtaining a support order in his or her own jurisdiction of domicile. However, it must be read in concert with the long-arm personal jurisdiction provisions [see Fam. Code § 4905, discussed at § 260.90[1]]. Section 4935 applies only if there is no basis for obtaining personal jurisdiction over the opposing party in one's home state. Otherwise, the long-arm statute would serve no purpose. As such, Section 4935 merely states a rule that if there is no basis for long-arm jurisdiction, one cannot bring a UIFSA proceeding for an initial support order in one's home state.

[2] Temporary Support Order

A California court in addressing a petition for an initial support order may issue a temporary child support order if any of the following conditions apply [Fam. Code § 4935(b)]:

1. The respondent has signed a verified statement acknowledging parentage.

2. The respondent has been determined by or pursuant to law to be the parent.

3. There is other clear and convincing evidence that the respondent is the child's parent.

§ 260.98 Modification Jurisdiction

[1] On Motion by Nonresident Petitioner

Unless all of the individual parties are now living in California [see Fam. Code § 4962, discussed at [2], below], after a child support order issued in another state has been registered in California (see § 260.150), the California court may modify that order after notice and hearing it finds that one of the following requirements is met [Fam. Code § 4960(a)]:

> 1. The child, the individual obligee, and the obligor do not reside in the issuing state, a petitioner who is a not a California resident seeks modification, and the respondent is subject to the personal jurisdiction in California; or
> 2. The child, or an individual party is subject to personal jurisdiction in California, and all of the parties who are individuals have filed written consents in the issuing tribunal for a California court to modify the support order and assume continuing, exclusive jurisdiction over the order. However, if the issuing state is a foreign jurisdiction that has not enacted a law or established procedure substantially similar to the procedures under UIFSA, the consent otherwise required of an individual residing in California is not required for California to assume jurisdiction to modify the child support order. A consent that is signed by the parties' attorneys, but not by the parties themselves, is valid and enforceable [Knabe v. Brister (2007) 154 Cal. App. 4th 1316, 1324, 65 Cal. Rptr. 3d 493].

Thus, modification jurisdiction requires establishing that the decree state has lost its continuing, exclusive jurisdiction either because no party continues to reside there or by the consent of all parties (§ 260.91) [see In re Marriage of Amezquita & Archuleta (2002) 101 Cal. App. 4th 1415, 1419-1422, 124 Cal. Rptr. 2d 887 (California court did not have jurisdiction over support obligor for purposes of modifying out-of-state child support order, based on obligor's assignment to active military duty in California; obligor was resident and domiciliary of state that issued order and, thus, that state retained continuing, exclusive jurisdiction over child support)]. However, it additionally requires that the party seeking modification not be a California resident. Hence, a California resident may not register a support order from another state in California as a way of obtaining a modification of the order as long as at least one party remains a resident of a state other than California.

[2] All Individual Parties in California

If all of the individual parties now reside in California and the child does not reside in the issuing state, a California court state has jurisdiction to enforce and to modify the issuing state's child support order in a proceeding to register that order [Fam. Code § 4962(a)]. A California court that exercises jurisdiction under these circumstances must apply the general principles of Article 1 of UIFSA [see Fam. Code § 4900 et seq.], the jurisdictional rules of Article 2 of UIFSA [see Fam. Code § 4905 et seq.], and California procedural and substantive law to the proceeding for enforcement or modification. UIFSA Articles 3, 4, 5, 7, and 8 do not apply [Fam. Code § 4962(b)].

[3] Modification Limited by Law of Issuing State

A California court may not modify any aspect of a child support order that may not be modified under the law of the issuing state. If two or more tribunals have issued child support orders for the same obligor and child, the order that controls and must be so recognized [see Fam. Code § 4911, discussed at § 260.94] establishes the aspects of the support order that are nonmodifiable [Fam. Code § 4960(c)].

Participation by a petitioner in a proceeding before a responding tribunal, whether in person, by private attorney, or through services provided by the support enforcement agency, does not confer personal jurisdiction over the petitioner in another proceeding [Fam. Code § 4928(a)]. A petitioner is not amenable to service of civil process while physically present in this state to participate in a UIFSA proceeding [Fam. Code § 4928(b)]. However, this immunity does not extend to civil litigation based on acts unrelated to a UIFSA proceeding committed by a party while present in California to participate in the proceeding [*Fam. [1] Authorized Proceedings

1. Establishment of an initial order for spousal support or child support [see Fam. Code § 4935; (UIFSA Art. 4), discussed at § 260.96[1]];

2. Enforcement of a support order and income-withholding order of another state without registration [see Fam. Code § 4940 et seq. (UIFSA Art. 5), discussed at § 260.140 et seq.];

3. Registration of an order for spousal support or child support of another state for enforcement [see Fam. Code § 4950 et seq. (UIFSA Art. 6), discussed at § 260.150 et seq.];

4. Modification of an order for child support or spousal support issued by a California court [see Fam. Code § 4905 et seq. (UIFSA Art. 2)];

5. Registration in California of an order for child support of another state for modification in California [see Fam. Code § 4950 et seq. (UIFSA Art. 6), discussed at § 260.98];

6. Determination of parentage [see Fam. Code § 4965 (UIFSA Art. 7), discussed at § 260.97];

7. Assertion of jurisdiction by a state over nonresidents [see Fam. Code § 4905 (UIFSA Art. 2), discussed at § 260.90].

Except as otherwise provided in UIFSA, the general procedures in Article 3 of UIFSA (and in § 260.110 et seq.) [see Fam. Code § 4915 et seq. (UIFSA Art. 3)] apply to all of the above proceedings [Fam. Code § 4915(a)].

[2] Proceedings by Public Entity for Reimbursement of Public Benefits

Note that it is not clear whether a proceeding by a public entity for reimbursement of public benefits extended on behalf of a child is a proceeding authorized under UIFSA [cf. former Fam. Code § 4821 (authority under URESA of state or county to secure reimbursement of support furnished on behalf of child); In re Marriage of Hyon & Kirschner (1991) 231 Cal. App. 3d 449, 455, 282 Cal. Rptr. 408 (under URESA, court could order obligor to reimburse public entity for benefits provided to the child without violating rule against retroactive modification of support)]. UIFSA's definition of "obligee" includes a state or political subdivision to which the rights under a duty of support or support order have been assigned or that has independent claims based on financial assistance provided to an individual obligee [Fam. Code § 4901(l)(2); see § 260.173]. Therefore, it would seem that the drafters of UIFSA intended to grant rights to political entities holding assignments of support rights on account of the granting of public benefits.

The problem is that they did not expressly grant those rights in the enumeration of UIFSA proceedings in Fam. Code § 4915. Of the proceedings therein set forth, it would seem that public benefits reimbursement could only possibly be a proceeding for the establishment of an order for child support order under Fam. Code § 4935 [Fam. Code § 4915(b)(1)]. Section 4935 provides that the court may issue a support order if the support enforcement agency seeking the order is located in another state. The question is whether an order for reimbursement of public benefits is such a "support order." Under UIFSA, a "support order" is one for the benefit of a child, spouse, or former spouse that provides for monetary support, health care, arrearages, or reimbursement [Fam. Code § 4901(u), discussed in § 260.174]. While the reference to "reimbursement" might encompass reimbursement of public benefits (it might be construed as referring to reimbursement to the individual obligee of particular costs incurred on behalf of the child), it may be questioned whether such an order is one "for the benefit" of the child.

UIFSA provides for the involvement of at least two states in support proceedings. Like URESA, these states are called the initiating and responding states. An initiating state is a state from which a proceeding is forwarded or in which a proceeding is filed for forwarding to a responding state [Fam. Code § 4901(i); see Fam. Code § 4901(j) ("initiating tribunal" means the authorized tribunal in an initiating state)]. A responding state is a state in which a proceeding is filed or to which a proceeding is forwarded for filing from an initiating state [Fam. Code § 4901(p); see Fam. Code § 4901(q) ("responding tribunal" means the authorized tribunal in a responding state)]. An initiating or responding tribunal is the authorized tribunal in the initiating or responding state [Fam. Code § 4901(h),(o)].

A tribunal is a court, administrative agency, or quasi-judicial entity authorized to establish, enforce, or modify support orders or to determine parentage [Fam. Code § 4901(v)]. In California, the tribunal of the state is the superior court [Fam. Code § 4902; see Fam. Code § 4907 (California superior court may serve as an initiating tribunal to forward proceedings to another state and as a responding tribunal for proceedings initiated in another state)].

§ 260.112 Commencement of Proceeding

An individual who believes that he or she is owed a duty of support by a person domiciled in another state may commence a proceeding authorized under UIFSA by filing a petition in his or her home state (as initiating tribunal) for forwarding to the alleged obligor's state of domicile (as responding tribunal) or by filing a petition or a comparable pleading directly in a tribunal of any state that has or can obtain personal jurisdiction over the respondent. UIFSA proceedings may also be initiated by a support enforcement agency (see § 260.122, below) [Fam. Code § 4915(c)]. If there is already a support order in place from another state, the order may be registered for enforcement in California. Registration is the filing of a support order or paternity judgment in any California superior court in which enforcement is sought [Fam. Code § 4901(n); see Fam. Code § 4901(o) "registering tribunal" is tribunal in which a support order is registered)]. A minor parent, or a guardian or other legal representative of a minor parent, may maintain a proceeding on behalf of or for the benefit of the minor's child [Fam. Code § 4916].

If a petition or comparable pleading is received by an inappropriate California tribunal, it must forward the pleading and accompanying documents to an appropriate tribunal in California or another state and notify the petitioner of where and when the pleading was sent [Fam. Code § 4920]. For further discussion of when a proceeding is required to be transferred, see § 260.116.

[1] General Requirements for Petition and Supporting Documents

A petitioner seeking to establish or modify a support order or to determine parentage in a proceeding under this chapter must verify the petition. Unless otherwise ordered [see Fam. Code § 4926, discussed below], the petition or accompanying documents must provide, so far as known, the name, residential address, and social security numbers of the obligor and the obligee, and the name, sex, residential address, social security number, and date of birth of each child for whom support is sought. The petition must be accompanied by a certified copy of any support order in effect. The petition may include any other information that may assist in locating or identifying the respondent [Fam. Code § 4925(a)]. The petition must specify the relief sought [Fam. Code § 4925(b)].

On a finding that the health, safety, or liberty of a party or child would be unreasonably put at risk by the disclosure of identifying information, or if an existing order so provides, a tribunal must order that the address of the child or party or other identifying information not be disclosed in a pleading or other document filed in a UIFSA proceeding. The finding may be made ex parte [Fam. Code § 4926].

The petition and accompanying documents must conform substantially with the requirements imposed by the forms mandated by federal law for use in cases filed by a support enforcement agency [Fam. Code § 4925(b)]. All UIFSA forms approved by either the National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws or the United States Department of Human Services are adopted by the Judicial Council by the Rules of Court for use in family law and other support actions in California [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.27]. For forms promulgated by the United States Department of Health and Human Services, see § 260.310. The use of forms adopted by the Judicial Council is mandatory [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Introductory Statement; see also Forms at §§ 260.311-260.319].

[2] Issuance and Service of Summons or Order to Show Cause

If a petition or comparable pleading under the UIFSA is filed in a California court, the local child support agency or petitioner may request the issuance of a summons or may request the court to issue an order requiring the respondent to appear personally at a specified time and place to show cause why an order should not be issued as prayed in the petition or comparable pleading on file [Fam. Code § 5000(a)]. If a summons is issued, the local child support agency or petitioner must cause a copy of the summons, petition, and other documents to be served on the respondent according to law [Fam. Code § 5000(b)]. If an order to show cause is issued, a copy of the order, the petition, and other documents must be served on the respondent at least 15 days before the hearing [Fam. Code § 5000(c)]. The petition or pleading served on the respondent must be accompanied by a blank responsive form that permits the respondent to answer the petition and raise any defenses by checking applicable boxes. It must also be accompanied by a blank income and expense declaration or simplified financial statement, with instructions for completing the forms [Fam. Code § 5000(d)].

[3] Service on Respondent of Proposed Judgment

In an action under UIFSA, prosecuted by the local child support agency or the attorney general that is initiated by service of summons and petition or other comparable pleading, the respondent may also be served with a proposed judgment that is consistent with the relief sought in the petition or pleading [Fam. Code § 5002(a)]. If the respondent's income or income history is unknown to the agency, it may serve a form of proposed judgment with the petition and other documents on the respondent, informing the respondent that income will be presumed in the amount of the minimum wage, at 40 hours per week, established by the Industrial Welfare Commission pursuant to Lab. Code § 1182.11, unless information about the respondent's income is provided to the court. The respondent must also receive notice that the proposed judgment will become effective if he or she fails to file a response with the court within 30 days after service [Fam. Code § 5002(a)].

Note, however, that, if a judgment under UIFSA was obtained on the basis of presumed income [see Fam. Code § 5002], the court may set aside that part of the judgment or order concerning the amount of child support to be paid, as provided under Fam. Code § 17432 [Fam. Code § 5002(b)].

§ 260.114 California's Duties as Initiating Tribunal

On the filing of a UIFSA petition, California as the initiating state must forward three copies of the petition and its accompanying documents to the responding tribunal or appropriate support enforcement agency in the responding state [Fam. Code § 4818(a)(1)]. If, however, the identity of the responding tribunal is unknown, the pleadings may be forwarded to the state information agency of the responding state with a request that they be forwarded to the appropriate tribunal and that receipt be acknowledged [Fam. Code § 4918(a)(2)].

If a responding state has not enacted UIFSA or a law or procedure substantially similar to UIFSA, California may issue a certificate or other document and make findings required by the law of the responding state. If the responding state is a foreign jurisdiction, the California court may specify the amount of support sought and provide other documents necessary to satisfy the requirements of the responding state [Fam. Code § 4918(b)].

§ 260.115 California's Duties as Responding Tribunal

When a California superior court as responding tribunal receives a petition or comparable pleading from an initiating tribunal, or when a UIFSA proceeding is initiated directly in a California superior court [Fam. Code § 4915(c), discussed at § 260.112, above], it must cause the petition or pleading to be filed and notify the petitioner of where and when it was filed [Fam. Code § 4919(a)]. To the extent otherwise authorized by law, a California court as responding tribunal may do one or more of the following [Fam. Code § 4919(b)]:

1. Issue or enforce a support order, modify a child support order, or render a judgment to determine parentage.

2. Order an obligor to comply with a support order, specifying the amount and the manner of compliance.

3. Order income withholding.

4. Determine the amount of any arrearages, and specify a method of payment.

5. Enforce orders by civil or criminal contempt, or both.

6. Set aside property for satisfaction of the support order.

7. Place liens and order execution on the obligor's property.

8. Order an obligor to keep the tribunal informed of the obligor's current residential address, telephone number, employer, address of employment, and telephone number at the place of employment.

9. Issue a bench warrant for an obligor who has failed after proper notice to appear at a hearing ordered by the tribunal and enter the bench warrant in any local and state computer systems for criminal warrants.

10. Order the obligor to seek appropriate employment by specified methods.

11. Award reasonable attorney's fees and other fees and costs.

12. Grant any other available remedy.

The court must include in a support order issued under UIFSA, or in the documents accompanying the order, the calculations on which the support order is based [Fam. Code § 4919(c)]. It must send a copy of the order to the petitioner, respondent, and initiating tribunal, if any [Fam. Code § 4919(e)].

§ 260.116 Transfer of Proceeding

If before filing, a petition or comparable pleading under the UIFSA is received by the local child support agency or the superior court and the county in which it is received is not the appropriate jurisdiction for trial of the action, the court or agency must forward the pleadings and any accompanying documents to the appropriate court in California or to the jurisdiction of another state, without filing the pleadings or order of the court, and must notify the petitioner, the California Central Registry, and the local child support agency of the receiving county where and when the pleading was sent [Fam. Code § 5001(a)].

If, after a petition or comparable pleading is filed, it appears that the respondent is not or is no longer a resident of the county in which the action has been filed, on ex parte application by the local child support agency or the petitioner, the court must transfer the action to the appropriate court in California or to the appropriate jurisdiction of another state, and must notify the petitioner, the respondent, the California Central Registry, and the local child support agency of the receiving county where and when the pleading was sent [Fam. Code § 5001(b)]. However, if the respondent becomes a resident of another county or jurisdiction after an action or registered order under UIFSA has been filed, the action may remain in the county where the action was filed until the action is completed [Fam. Code § 5001(e)].

If, after entry of an order by a California court on an action filed under UIFSA or an order of another state registered in a court of this state for enforcement or modification under UIFSA, it appears that the respondent is not or is no longer a resident of the county in which the foreign order has been registered, on ex parte application by the local child support agency of the transferring or receiving county or of the petitioner, the court must transfer the registered order and all documents subsequently filed in the action to the appropriate California court [Fam. Code § 5001(c)]. The court must notify the petitioner, the respondent, the California Central Registry, and the local child support agency of the transferring and receiving county where and when the registered order and all other appropriate documents were sent. Transfer of certified copies of these documents is sufficient [Fam. Code § 5001(c)]. However, if the respondent becomes a resident of another county or jurisdiction after an action or registered order under UIFSA has been filed, the action may remain in the county where the action was filed until the action is completed [Fam. Code § 5001(e)].

If, in an action initiated in a California court under UIFSA or a predecessor law for interstate enforcement of support, the petitioner is no longer a resident of the county in which the action has been filed, on ex parte application by the petitioner or the district attorney, the court must transfer the action to the appropriate California court and notify the responding jurisdiction where and when the action was transferred [Fam. Code § 5001(d)].

[1] Interference With Visitation and Child Concealment

A responding tribunal may not condition the payment of a support order issued under UIFSA on compliance by a party with provisions for visitation [Fam. Code § 4919(d)]. The term "compliance with visitation" is a change from URESA, which provided that a duty of support was unaffected by "interference" with rights of custody or visitation" [see former Fam. Code § 4845(b)].

In In re Marriage of Damico [In re Marriage of Damico (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 673, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 787, 872 P.2d 126] , the California Supreme Court distinguished between interference with visitation on the one hand, and child concealment on the other, and allowed an estoppel defense as to arrearages of child support that accrued during periods of actual concealment if the concealment continued until the child reached the age of majority [In re Marriage of Damico (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 673, 678, 682-685, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 787, 872 P.2d 126] . This raises the possibility of some defense to arrearages under UIFSA based on child concealment.

However, in In re Marriage of Comer [In re Marriage of Comer (1996) 14 Cal. 4th 504, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 155, 927 P.2d 265] , the Court clarified that a custodial parent's concealment that ends while the child is still a minor does not constitute a defense to an action brought on behalf of the child against the noncustodial parent for child support arrearages. The Court further held that if a custodial parent has obtained public assistance payments for the child and has assigned the right to child support arrearages to the public entity providing the assistance, the conduct of the custodial parent in concealing the child from the other parent does not estop the public entity from seeking child support arrearages, or reimbursement for public assistance payments, from the noncustodial parent [In re Marriage of Comer (1996) 14 Cal. 4th 504, 510, 515 n.4, 517, 529, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 155, 927 P.2d 265 (disapproving, to extent inconsistent, a group of appellate decisions set forth in footnote 4 of opinion; and specifically disapproving In re Marriage of Smith (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 196, 257 Cal. Rptr. 47 , to extent inconsistent); see Willmer v. Willmer (2006) 144 Cal. App. 4th 951, 963, 51 Cal. Rptr. 3d 10 (following Comer and rejecting support obligor's claims that because obligee secreted herself and their child in Germany and then waited for him to leave Germany to begin proceedings against him estopped obligee from enforcing German support judgment)]. Thus, the scope of any possible defense is extremely limited.

If there has been no prior determination of parentage, either the petitioner or the respondent may be adjudged the parent of a particular child in a UIFSA proceeding. California may serve as either the initiating or responding state for a determination of parentage [Fam. Code § 4965(a)]. If California is the responding tribunal, it must apply the Uniform Parentage Act [see Fam. Code § 7600 et seq.] its own procedural and substantive law, and its rules for choice of law [Fam. Code § 4965(b)]. However, a party whose parentage of a child has been previously determined by or pursuant to law may not plead nonparentage as a defense to a proceeding under UIFSA [Fam. Code § 4929].

Determination of parentage in California under the Uniform Parentage Act is the subject of Ch. 412, Paternity . For more in-depth consideration of the scientific proof of parentage, see Vitek, Disputed Paternity Proceedings (5th ed. Matthew Bender). For additional consideration of determination of parentage under UIFSA, see Disputed Paternity Proceedings ch. 7, (Matthew Bender).

[3] Lack of Jurisdiction in Issuing Court

Except as otherwise provided in Article 6 of UIFSA [see Fam. Code § 4950 et seq.; see § 260.90 et seq.], a California court must recognize and enforce a registered order only if the issuing tribunal had jurisdiction [Fam. Code § 4952(c); see § 260.151, below]. The jurisdictional invalidity of a registered order may be raised as a defense to enforcement of the order under UIFSA [see Sampson, Uniform Interstate Family Support Act, Unofficial Annotations to UIFSA § 606, p. 156]. Therefore, California is not required to recognize and enforce a registered support order that was made by a state that lacked personal jurisdiction over a party, subject matter jurisdiction under FFCCSOA [see 28 U.S.C. § 1738B(a), discussed at § 260.64, above (full faith and credit required only for orders made consistent with FFCCSOA)], subject matter jurisdiction under UIFSA, or any other aspect of jurisdiction required by its own law [cf. In re Marriage of Nosbisch (1992) 5 Cal. App. 4th 629, 633, 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 817 (collateral attack of judgment under URESA); see § 260.91[1], above].

C. Enforcement of Support
4. UIFSA: Proceedings and Procedures

22-260 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 260.118

§ 260.118 Choice of Law

[1] When California Law Applies; Enforcement of Registered Order

Except as otherwise provided in UIFSA, a California court as responding tribunal must:

1. Apply its own procedural and substantive law, including the rules on choice of law, generally applicable to similar proceedings originating in California and may exercise all powers and provide all remedies available in those proceedings [Fam. Code § 4917(a)]; and

2. Determine the duty of support and the amount payable in accordance with the California law and support guidelines [Fam. Code § 4917(b); see Fam. Code § 4901(k) ("law" under UIFSA includes decisional and statutory law and rules and regulations having force of law); see also Scott v. Superior Court (1984) 156 Cal. App. 3d 577, 584-586, 202 Cal. Rptr. 920 (in California URESA proceeding seeking support from California-domiciled father for New York-domiciled adult child, California law imposing duty to support adult indigent child was to be applied even though law of New York imposed no such duty)].

UIFSA, however, also provides that in the registration and enforcement of a support order, the law of the issuing state governs the nature, extent, amount, and duration of current payments and other obligations of support and the payment of arrearages under the order [Fam. Code § 4953(a)]. An "issuing state" is one in which a tribunal issues a support order or renders a judgment determining parentage [Fam. Code § 4901(i)]. Therefore, if California is only enforcing a registered order of another state, it cannot apply its own law on the duration of support. For example, it may not apply its lower age of majority to deny enforcement to an order that requires support to be paid to age 21, thereby effectively terminating support at age 18 [cf. In re Marriage of Taylor (1981) 122 Cal. App. 3d 209, 212-215, 175 Cal. Rptr. 716 (same result under URESA)]. Similarly, when a court of the issuing state has determined that the support order is void, California must give full faith and credit to this determination that the order is no longer enforceable, and may not register the order [Scheuerman v. Hauk (2004) 116 Cal. App. 4th 1140, 1144-1146, 11 Cal. Rptr. 3d 125 (order unenforceable because statute of limitations of issuing state had expired, even though under California law order would have been enforceable)].

[2] In Modification Proceedings

If the issuing state has lost its continuing, exclusive jurisdiction and California has jurisdiction to make or modify a child support order, the general rule applies; that is, that California is to apply its own law and may raise or lower support to the amount provided by the California uniform child support guideline [see Fam. Code § 4917; see also In re Marriage of Crosby and Grooms (2004) 116 Cal. App. 4th 201, 207-209, 10 Cal. Rptr. 3d 146 (California law applied to modification of Idaho child support order)]. However, a California court may not modify any aspect of a child support order that may not be modified under the law of the issuing state [Fam. Code § 4960(c)]. For example, if child support was ordered through age 21 in accordance with the law of the issuing state, and California law generally ends the support obligation at age 18, any modification of the order by a California court may not affect the duration of support to age 21 [see Sampson, Uniform Interstate Family Support Act, Unofficial Annotations to UIFSA § 611, p. 164-165].

ILLUSTRATION:

Parents were divorced in New York, which was the state of marital domicile. The child support order provided for support until the child reaches the age of majority, which in New York is 21 years. Both parents and the child subsequently leave New York and father settles in California, where the age of majority is 18 years [Fam. Code § 6500]. Mother registers her New York order in California, and moves for modification of support to increase the amount. Father requests termination of support because the child is now 18. California has jurisdiction to modify the order under UIFSA because New York has lost its continuing, exclusive jurisdiction in that no party continues to reside there [Fam. Code § 4909(a)(1); see § 260.91[5], above]. Under UIFSA, because New York could not entertain a motion to modify the order to reduce the support obligation from the legal limit of 21 years to 18 years, California is similarly so prohibited. California may adjust the amount of support up or down, but it may not shorten the duration of the duty of support [Fam. Code §§ 4917(b), 4960(c); see In re Marriage of Chester (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 1624, 1629-1636, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 717 . (reaching this result under URESA); cf. In re Marriage of Lurie (1995) 33 Cal. App. 4th 658, 673-676, 39 Cal. Rptr. 2d 835 (reaching opposite result under URESA and FFCCSOA); see also Sampson, Uniform Interstate Family Support Act, Unofficial Annotations to UIFSA § 611, p. 164-165, n. 161 (expressly noting that purpose of UIFSA § 611(c) is to reverse the majority position reached by state court under URESA, that a modifying court may apply its own durational rules)].

It must be noted, however, that this result might possibly be in conflict with the Full Faith and Credit for Child Support Orders Act (FFCCSOA). FFCCSOA, as amended in 1996, provides that the law of the state that issued an order applies in interpreting the order, and that interpreting the order includes determining the duration of current payments and other obligations of support [28 U.S.C. § 1738B(h)(2)]. FFCCSOA is clearly in conformance with UIFSA with regard to registration proceedings for enforcement only [see Fam. Code § 4953(a); see § 260.118[1], above]. What is not clear under FFCCSOA is whether or not in a modification proceeding in a new state after the original decree state has lost its continuing, exclusive jurisdiction, the court is "interpreting" the prior order. If so, the original decree state's durational rules and age of majority must be applied, and there is no conflict between UIFSA and FFCCSOA. However, if not, FFCCSOA otherwise requires the law of the forum state to be applied [28 U.S.C. § 1738B(h)(1)], and FFCCSOA, as federal law, would preempt any conflicting provisions of UIFSA [see In re Marriage of Lurie (1995) 33 Cal. App. 4th 658, 673-676, 39 Cal. Rptr. 2d 835 (construing FFCCSOA before 1996 amendments as allowing California, as modifying state, to apply its own durational law)]. For further discussion of FFCCSOA's choice-of-law provisions regarding duration and amount of support, see §§ 260.67[2] and*[3]*.

[3] Statute of Limitation on Arrearages

In a proceeding for arrearages under UIFSA, the California statute of limitation or that of the issuing state, whichever is longer, applies [Fam. Code § 4953(b)]. Because since January 1, 1993, California has had no statute of limitation on the collection of arrearages [see Fam. Code §§ 291(a),(b), 4502 (judgment for support is enforceable until paid in full)], there is effectively no statute of limitation for the collection of arrearages for any support order registered and enforced in California. Thus, it would appear that anytime a support obligor moves to California, support arrearages may be enforced, no matter how long they may have been barred under the law of the issuing state [see Trend v. Bell (1997) 57 Cal. App. 4th 1092, 1096-1098, 68 Cal. Rptr. 2d 54 (obligor moved to California years after support obligation terminated; court found that under prior California law that provided a ten-year limitation period, period was tolled because the obligor was outside of California; hence, claim was not barred when law was amended to remove limitation period as of January 1, 1993)].

[4] Parentage

In a proceeding in California as the responding state in which parentage is at issue, a California court must apply the Uniform Parentage Act [see Fam. Code § 7600 et seq.; Ch. 412, Paternity]. California procedural and substantive law, and California rules on choice of law [Fam. Code § 4965(b)].

§ 260.119 Evidence

[1] Receipt of Documents, Records and Testimony

Because the petitioner is not required to be physically present in the responding tribunal for the establishment, enforcement, or modification of a support order or the rendition of a judgment determining parentage [Fam. Code § 4930(a)], UIFSA contains a number of rules designed to streamline the process of resolving interstate support enforcement issues. These rules allow the courts to take advantage of components of modern technology.

A verified petition, affidavit, document substantially complying with federally mandated forms, and a document incorporated by reference in any of them, not excluded under the hearsay rule if given in person, is admissible in evidence if given under oath by a party or witness residing in another state [Fam. Code § 4930(b)]. Also, a copy of the record of child support payments certified as a true copy of the original by the custodian of the record may be forwarded to a responding tribunal. The copy is evidence of facts asserted in it, and is admissible to show whether payments were made [Fam. Code § 4930(c)]. Copies of bills for testing for parentage, and for prenatal and postnatal health care of the mother and child, furnished to the adverse party at least 10 days before trial, are admissible in evidence to prove the amount of the charges billed and that the charges were reasonable, necessary, and customary [Fam. Code § 4930(d)].

Documentary evidence that is transmitted from another state to a California court by telephone, telecopier, or other means that do not provide an original writing may not be excluded from evidence on an objection based on the means of transmission [Fam. Code § 4930(e)]. Thus, documents may be received by fax and admitted into evidence.

In a UIFSA proceeding, a California court may permit a party or witness residing in another state to be deposed or to testify by telephone, audiovisual means, or other electronic means at a designated tribunal or other location in that state. California must cooperate with tribunals of other states in designating an appropriate location for the deposition or testimony [Fam. Code § 4930(f)].

[2] Privileges

If a party called to testify at a civil hearing under UIFSA refuses to answer on the ground that the testimony may be self-incriminating, the trier of fact may draw an adverse inference from the refusal [Fam. Code § 4930(g)]. Also, a privilege against disclosure of communications between spouses and the defense of immunity based on the relationship of husband and wife or parent and child do not apply in a UIFSA proceeding [Fam. Code § 4930(h), (i)].

§ 260.120 Interstate Judicial Communication and Assistance With Discovery

A California court may communicate with a tribunal of another state in writing, or by telephone or other means, to obtain information concerning the laws of that state, the legal effect of a judgment, decree, or order of that tribunal, and the status of a proceeding in the other state. And a California court may furnish similar information by similar means to a tribunal of another state [Fam. Code § 4931].

A California court may also do both of the following [Fam. Code § 4932]:

1. Request a tribunal of another state to assist in obtaining discovery.

2. On request, compel a person over whom it has jurisdiction to respond to a discovery order issued by a tribunal of another state.

§ 260.121 Representation by Counsel; Fees, and Costs

An individual may employ private counsel to represent him or her in proceedings authorized by UIFSA [Fam. Code § 4923]. UIFSA does not specifically provide for the appointment of counsel to represent a child.

The petitioner may not be required to pay a filing fee or other costs in a UIFSA proceeding [Fam. Code § 4927(a)]. If an obligee prevails, a responding tribunal may assess against an obligor filing fees, reasonable attorney's fees, other costs, and necessary travel and other reasonable expenses incurred by the obligee and the obligee's witnesses [Fam. Code § 4927(b)]. What constitutes "prevailing" is not defined.

A tribunal may not assess fees, costs, or expenses against the obligee or the support enforcement agency of either the initiating or the responding state, except as provided by other law [see, e.g., Fam. Code § 271 (attorney fees may be awarded in the nature of sanctions for improper litigation conduct)]. Attorney's fees may be taxed as costs, and may be ordered paid directly to the attorney, who may enforce the order in the attorney's own name. Payment of support owed to the obligee has priority over fees, costs, and expenses [Fam. Code § 4927(b)].

A tribunal must order the payment of costs and reasonable attorney's fees if it determines that a hearing was requested primarily for delay. In a proceeding for the registration and enforcement of an order [see Fam. Code § 4950 et seq. (UIFSA Art. 6)], a hearing is presumed to have been requested primarily for delay if a registered support order is confirmed or enforced without change [Fam. Code § 4927(c)].

§ 260.122 Duties of Public Officers and Agencies

[1] Support Enforcement Agency

[a] Duties Expressed in UIFSA

Under UIFSA, A "support enforcement agency" means a public official or agency authorized to do any of the following [Fam. Code § 4901(t)]:

1. Seek enforcement of support orders or laws relating to the duty of support.

2. Seek establishment or modification child support.

3. Seek determinations of parentage.

4. Locate obligors or their assets.

In California, the district attorney offices of the counties and local child support agencies are the state's support enforcement agencies [see Fam. Code § 17400 et seq., discussed in Ch. 259, Family Law Enforcement: Special Remedies for Support Enforcement].

A California support enforcement agency, on request, must provide services to a petitioner in a UIFSA proceeding [Fam. Code § 4921(a)]. In providing services, the agency must do all of the following [Fam. Code § 4921(b)]:

1. Take all steps necessary to enable an appropriate California court state or tribunal of another state to obtain jurisdiction over the respondent.

2. Request an appropriate tribunal to set a date, time, and place for a hearing.

3. Make a reasonable effort to obtain all relevant information, including information as to income and property of the parties.

4. Within 14 days, exclusive of Saturdays, Sundays, and legal holidays, after receipt of a written notice from an initiating, responding, or registering tribunal, send a copy of the notice to the petitioner.

5. Within 14 days, exclusive of Saturdays, Sundays, and legal holidays, after receipt of a written communication from the respondent or the respondent's attorney, send a copy of the communication to the petitioner.

6. Notify the petitioner if jurisdiction over the respondent cannot be obtained.

7. Perform the acts required by Fam. Code § 4978.

A support enforcement agency providing services to a petitioner must also do the following [Fam. Code § 4978]:

1. Inform the petitioner of the requirement that the pleadings contain identifying information about the petitioner and the child, including a residential address, unless an order of nondisclosure is granted under Fam. Code §§ 4926, 4977;

2. Inform the petitioner of the right to seek an order of nondisclosure and provide information about how that order may be obtained;

3. Inform the petitioner that the agency must seek an order of nondisclosure on the petitioner's behalf if he or she has previously obtained a protective or restraining order or has been granted a good cause exception from cooperation requirements under Welf. & Inst. Code § 11477.04, and instruct the petitioner to notify the agency of any such order or exception;

4. Seek an order of nondisclosure under Fam. Code §§ 4926, 4977 if the petitioner informs the agency that he or she has obtained a protective or restraining order or has been granted a good cause exception from cooperation requirements under Welf. & Inst. Code § 11477.04.

[b] Duties to Petitioner Under Support Enforcement Statutes; Compromise and Settlement of Claim

UIFSA does not create or negate a relationship of attorney and client or other fiduciary relationship between a support enforcement agency or the attorney for the agency and the individual being assisted by the agency [Fam. Code § 4921(c)]. In California, by statute no such attorney-client relationship exists [see Fam. Code § 17406(a), discussed in Ch. 259, Family Law Enforcement: Special Remedies for Support Enforcement].

Nevertheless, Fam. Code § 17406 sets forth specific duties that a district attorney or other local child support agency owes to a person requesting child support enforcement services. One of these is the duty to obtain the consent of the person being served to any stipulated order or judgment establishing or modifying a support order, if the person is not currently receiving public assistance [Fam. Code § 17406(j)]. It has been held that this provision and duty apply to a petitioner being served by a California district attorney in a URESA proceeding [Carlson v. Eassa (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 684, 695, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 884] . The court found generally that the child support enforcement provisions of the support enforcement statutes were intended to apply in the interstate context, and based its decision in part on the public policy underlying the need for efficient and fair interstate enforcement procedures [Carlson v. Eassa (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 684, 695, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 884 (risk of delay in obtaining signature of custodial parent is far outweighed by necessity of resolving support issues in a balanced and thoughtful manner; whether parent lives in same county, another county, or more distant state should not be basis for bypassing these considerations)]. Therefore, a similar result might be anticipated under UIFSA with regard to settlement, and also with regard to other duties imposed on the support agencies under the support enforcement statutes.

PRACTICE TIP:

The court in Carlson v. Eassa found that the consent requirement of former Welf. & Inst. Code § 11478.2(j) (now see Fam. Code § 17406) applied to proceedings under the former URESA. Under UIFSA, an even better argument might be that there is nothing in UIFSA that grants a support enforcement agency any authority to compromise and settle a claim without the consent of the petitioning parent. Only through an assignment of rights, as is required on a grant of public benefits, would a support enforcement agency acquire the authority to settle the parent's claim. Commentary by the Publisher's Editorial Staff

[2] Attorney General; As State Information Agency

If the Attorney General determines that the support enforcement agency is neglecting or refusing to provide services to an individual, the Attorney General may order the agency to perform its duties under UIFSA or may provide those services directly to the individual [Fam. Code § 4922].

The Attorney General's office is also the state information agency under UIFSA [Fam. Code § 4924(a)]. As such, it must do all of the following [Fam. Code § 4924(b)]:

1. Compile and maintain a current list, including addresses, of the California tribunals that have jurisdiction under UIFSA and any California support enforcement agencies and transmit a copy to the state information agency of every other state.

2. Maintain a register of tribunals and support enforcement agencies received from other states.

3. Forward to the appropriate tribunal in the place in California in which the individual obligee or the obligor resides, or in which the obligor's property is believed to be located, all documents concerning a proceeding under UIFSA received from an initiating tribunal or the state information agency of the initiating state.

4. Obtain information concerning the location of the obligor and the obligor's property within California not exempt from execution, by such means as postal verification and federal or state locator services, examination of telephone directories, requests for the obligor's address from employers, and examination of governmental records, including, to the extent not prohibited by other law, those relating to real property, vital statistics, law enforcement, taxation, motor vehicles, driver's licenses, and social security.

Under the former URESA, if the Attorney General believed that a support order or a support-related order was erroneous and presented a question of law warranting an appeal in the public interest, he or she could pursue the appeal in a California appellate court or cause the appeal to be taken in the state that issued the order [former Fam. Code § 4847]. There is no similar express statutory authorization for the Attorney General to pursue appeals under UIFSA.

Code § 4946(a)*]. On receipt of the documents, the support enforcement agency, without initially seeking to register the order, must consider and, if appropriate, use any administrative procedure authorized by California law to enforce the orders. If the obligor does not contest administrative enforcement, the order need not be registered. If the obligor contests the validity or administrative enforcement of the order, the support enforcement agency must register the order under UIFSA [Fam. Code § 4947].

Code § 5210*, discussed in Ch. 259, Family Law Enforcement: Special Remedies for Support Enforcement] without first filing a petition or comparable pleading or registering the order with a California court [*Fam. Except as otherwise provided in UIFSA [Fam. Code §§ 4941(d), 4942, discussed in § 260.143, below], the employer must withhold and distribute the funds as directed in the withholding order by complying with terms of the order which specify any of the following [Fam. Code § 4941(c)]:

1. The duration and the amount of periodic payments of current child support, stated as a sum certain.

2. The person or agency designated to receive payments and the address to which the payments are to be forwarded.

3. Medical support, whether in the form of periodic cash payment, stated as a sum certain, or ordering the obligor to provide health insurance coverage for the child under a policy available through the obligor's employment.

4. The amount of periodic payments of fees and costs for a support enforcement agency, the issuing tribunal, and the obligee's attorney, stated as sums certain.

5. The amount of periodic payments of arrearages and interest on arrearages, stated as sums certain.

However, the employer must comply with the law of the state of the obligor's principal place of employment for withholding from income with respect to any of the following [Fam. Code § 4941(d)]:

1. The employer's fee for processing an income-withholding order.

2. The maximum amount permitted to be withheld from the obligor's income.

3. The times within which the employer must implement the withholding order and forward the child support payment.

§ 260.145 Contest by Obligor

An obligor may contest the validity or enforcement of an income-withholding order issued in another state and received directly by a California employer in the same manner as if the order had been issued by a tribunal of this state [Fam. Code § 4945(a); see Fam. Code § 5270 (motion to quash earnings assignment order)]. UIFSA's choice-of-law provisions apply to the contest [Fam. Code § 4945(a); see Fam. Code § 4953; see § 260.118, above].

To contest the validity or enforcement of an income withholding order, the obligor must first file a completed request for hearing, with a copy of the income withholding order attached [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.335(b); Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-450; see Ch. 259, Family Law Enforcement: Special Remedies for Support Enforcement]. No fee is to be charged to file the request for hearing [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.335(c)].

The obligor must give notice of the contest to (1) a support enforcement agency providing services to the obligee; (2) each employer that has directly received an income-withholding order; and (3) the person or agency designated to receive payments in the income-withholding order or, if no person or agency is designated, to the obligee [Fam. Code § 4945(b)]. By court rule, however, the actual notice is sent by the court clerk after the hearing is scheduled, using postage paid, preaddressed envelopes that the obligor is required to furnish the clerk [*Cal. Any later proceedings filed in the same court that involve the same parties and are filed under UIFSA must utilize the same file number as that created for the request for hearing [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.335].

§ 260.150 Procedure for Registration of Order for Enforcement in California

A support order or an income-withholding order issued by a tribunal of another state may be registered in California for enforcement [Fam. Code § 4950]. Registration in California is accomplished by sending the following documents and information to the appropriate California court [Fam. Code § 4951(a)]:

1. A letter of transmittal to the court requesting registration and enforcement.

2. Two copies, including one certified copy, of all orders to be registered, including any modification of an order.

3. A sworn statement by the party seeking registration or a certified statement by the custodian of the records showing the amount of any arrearage.

4. The name of the obligor and, if known:

a. The obligor's address and social security number;

b. The name and address of the obligor's employer and any other source of income of the obligor; and

c. A description and the location of property of the obligor in this state not exempt from execution.

5. The name and address of the obligee and, if applicable, the agency or person to whom support payments are to be remitted.

On receipt of a request for registration, the registering tribunal must cause the order to be filed as a foreign judgment, together with one copy of the documents and information, regardless of their form [Fam. Code § 4951(b)]. The order is registered when the order is filed in the registering court in California [Fam. Code § 4952(a)].

A petition or comparable pleading seeking a remedy that must be affirmatively sought under other California law may be filed at the same time as the request for registration or later. The pleading must specify the grounds for the remedy sought [Fam. Code § 4951(c)].

§ 260.151 Effect of Registration for Enforcement

A registered order issued in another state is enforceable in the same manner and is subject to the same procedures as an order issued by a California court [Fam. Code § 4952(b); but see Codoni v. Codoni (2002) 103 Cal. App. 4th 18, 23, 126 Cal. Rptr. 2d 423 (registration of foreign support order in county does not give county authority to enforce order, unless registration includes request for enforcement services)]. However, except as otherwise provided in Article 6 of UIFSA, a California court must recognize and enforce a registered order (but may not modify it) only if the issuing tribunal had jurisdiction [Fam. Code § 4952(c); see § 260.117[3], above].

§ 260.152 Notice of Registration of Order

When a support order or income-withholding order issued in another state is registered, the registering tribunal must notify the nonregistering party. The notice must be accompanied by a copy of the registered order and the documents and relevant information accompanying the order [Fam. Code § 4954(a)]. The notice must inform the nonregistering party [Fam. Code § 4954(b)]:

1. That a registered order is enforceable as of the date of registration in the same manner as an order issued by a California court;

2. That a hearing to contest the validity or enforcement of the registered order must be requested within 20 days after notice;

3. That failure to contest the validity or enforcement of the registered order in a timely manner will result in confirmation of the order and enforcement of the order and the alleged arrearages and precludes further contest of that order with respect to any matter that could have been asserted; and

4. Of the amount of any alleged arrearages.

On registration of an income-withholding order for enforcement, the registering tribunal must notify the obligor's employer as provided in California earnings assignment statutes [Fam. Code § 4954(c); see Fam. Code § 5200 et seq. (earnings assignment orders discussed in Ch. 259, Family Law Enforcement: Special Remedies for Support Enforcement)].

§ 260.153 Procedure to Contest Validity or Enforcement of Registered Order

A nonregistering party seeking to contest the validity or enforcement of a registered order in California must request a hearing within 20 days after notice of the registration. The nonregistering party may seek to vacate the registration, to assert any defense to an allegation of noncompliance with the registered order, or to contest the remedies being sought or the amount of any alleged arrearages [Fam. Code § 4955(a); see Fam. Code § 4956, discussed in § 260.154, below (defenses to registration and enforcement)]. For a form for use in moving to vacate registration of an order under UIFSA, see § 260.313.

If the nonregistering party fails to contest the validity or enforcement of the registered order in a timely manner, the order is confirmed by operation of law [Fam. Code § 4955(b)]. If a nonregistering party requests a hearing to contest the validity or enforcement of the registered order, the registering court must schedule the matter for hearing and give notice to the parties of the date, time, and place of the hearing [Fam. Code § 4955(c)].

§ 260.154 Respondent's Contest of Registration or Enforcement

A party contesting the validity or enforcement of a registered order or seeking to vacate the registration has the burden of proving one or more of the following defenses [Fam. Code § 4956(a)]:

1. The issuing tribunal lacked personal jurisdiction over the contesting party; see Willmer v. Willmer (2006) 144 Cal. App. 4th 951, 958-961, 51 Cal. Rptr. 3d 10 (obligor failed to meet burden of proving that German court lacked jurisdiction over him based on its service on him by publication).

2. The order was obtained by fraud.

3. The order has been vacated, suspended, or modified by a later order.

4. The issuing tribunal has stayed the order pending appeal.

5. There is a defense under California law to the remedy sought (for example, the respondent might assert a de facto change of custody during the period for which arrearages are alleged) [see In re Marriage of Okum (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 176, 182, 240 Cal. Rptr. 458] .

6. Full or partial payment has been made.

7. The statute of limitation precludes enforcement of some or all of the arrearages [see Fam. Code §§ 291(a),(b), 4502, 4953; see § 260.118[3], above (there is no limitation on the enforcement of child support arrearages in California, and California law applies)].

In addition, defenses that are generally available under UIFSA may presumably be raised (see § 260.117, above), including nonpaternity if not previously adjudicated [see Fam. Code §§ 4929, 4965; see § 260.117[2], above], lack of subject matter jurisdiction in the issuing court [Fam. Code § 4952(c); see § 260.117[3], above], and perhaps child concealment under some limited circumstances [see In re Marriage of Comer (1996) 14 Cal. 4th 504, 510, 515 n.4, 517, 529, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 155, 927 P.2d 265 ; discussed in § 260.117[1], above].

If a party presents evidence establishing a full or partial defense, the court may stay enforcement of the registered order, continue the proceeding to permit production of additional relevant evidence, and issue other appropriate orders. An uncontested portion of the registered order may be enforced by all remedies available under California law [Fam. Code § 4956(b)]. If the contesting party does not establish a defense to the validity or enforcement of the order, the registering tribunal must issue an order confirming the order [Fam. Code § 4956(c)].

§ 260.155 Responsive Pleadings Raising Other Issues

Under URESA as enacted in California, at a hearing on a motion to vacate a registered order, there could be no joinder of actions, coordination of actions, or cross complaints. The claims or defenses were limited strictly to the identity of the obligor, the validity of the underlying foreign order, and the accuracy of the obligee's statement of the amount of support remaining unpaid [see former Fam. Code § 4853(b)]. The obligor could present only matters that would be available as defenses in an action to enforce a California support judgment [see former Fam. Code § 4853(c); see also In re Marriage of Aron (1990) 224 Cal. App. 3d 1086, 1095, 274 Cal. Rptr. 357 (dissolution, custody, and visitation could not be considered)].

There is no similar provision in UIFSA. Therefore, it would seem that at least theoretically, a respondent might attempt to raise custody and visitation issues in a response to a UIFSA registration, provided the court has child custody jurisdiction, which requires neither personal jurisdiction nor child support jurisdiction under UIFSA [see § 260.54].

Whether the courts will actually allow a party to raise issues unrelated to the enforcement of the registered order remains to be seen. There is indication that the drafters of UIFSA believed that they had foreclosed consideration of visitation issues in a UIFSA proceeding by providing that the responding court may not condition the payment of support on compliance with visitation [see Sampson, Uniform Interstate Family Support Act, Unofficial Annotations to UIFSA § 305, p. 132 n. 93 (under UIFSA § 305(d), Fam. Code § 4919(d), visitation issues are explicitly severed from support issues)]. While this provision may foreclose raising visitation issues as a defense to nonpayment of support [see § 260.117[1]], it does not really foreclose asserting modification of custody or visitation in response to a UIFSA proceeding.

However, if personal jurisdiction over the petitioner is required in order to receive particular relief and it is not otherwise obtainable, participation in a UIFSA proceeding by registering an order does not provide any basis for acquiring personal jurisdiction over the registering party [see Fam. Code § 4928; see § 260.99]. Therefore, it would not be possible to raise any claim requiring personal jurisdiction over the petitioner, such as the imposition of a property-related monetary obligation, in response to a UIFSA registration.

§ 260.156 Res Judicata Effect of Confirmed Order

Confirmation of a registered order, whether by operation of law or after notice and hearing, precludes further contest of the order with respect to any matter that could have been asserted at the time of registration [Fam. Code § 4957]. Thus, a party is collaterally estopped from relitigating any matter that could have been asserted in a contest to registration, including the amount of arrearages alleged to be due under the order [see Fam. Code § 4956(a)(6)]. A nonregistering obligee is not precluded, however, from objecting to an understatement of the arrears after registration, because this is a matter that could not have been asserted at the time of registration [de Leon v. Jenkins (2006) 143 Cal. App. 4th 118, 123-126, 49 Cal. Rptr. 3d 145].

§ 260.157 Registration of Child Support Order of Another State for Modification

A party or support enforcement agency seeking to modify, or to modify and enforce, a child support order issued in another state must register that order in California in the same manner as otherwise provided in UIFSA (see § 260.150, above). A petition for modification may be filed at the same time as a request for registration, or later. The pleading must specify the grounds for modification [Fam. Code § 4958; cf. Marriage of Lurie (1995) 33 Cal. App. 4th 658, 662, 39 Cal. Rptr. 2d 835 (under URESA, modification was seen as separate procedural step after order was registered and registration was confirmed)].

Once registered for modification, a California court may enforce a child support order of another state in the same manner as if the order had been issued by a California court. However, the registered order may be modified only if California has modification jurisdiction [Fam. Code § 4959]. For further discussion, see § 260.98, above.

Modification of a registered child support order is subject to the same requirements, procedures, and defenses that apply to the modification of an order issued by a California court, and the order may be enforced and satisfied in the same manner [Fam. Code § 4960(b)].

§ 260.170 Interstate Rendition

The Governor of the state may demand that the Governor of another state surrender an individual found in the other state who is charged criminally in this state with having failed to provide for the support of an obligee [Fam. Code § 4970(b)(1)]. On the demand by the Governor of another state, the Governor of California must surrender an individual found in California who is charged criminally in the other state with having failed to provide for the support of an obligee [Fam. Code § 4970(b)(2)]. The "Governor" includes an individual performing the functions of Governor or the executive authority of the state of California [Fam. Code § 4970(a)]. A provision for extradition of individuals not inconsistent with UIFSA applies to the demand even if the individual whose surrender is demanded was not in the demanding state when the crime was allegedly committed and has not fled from that state [Fam. Code § 4970(c)].

Before making a demand that the Governor of another state surrender an individual charged criminally in California with having failed to provide for the support of an obligee, the California Governor may require a California prosecutor to demonstrate that at least 60 days previously, the obligee had initiated proceedings for support under UIFSA or that the proceeding would be of no avail [Fam. Code § 4971(a)]. If, under UIFSA or a law substantially similar to UIFSA, URESA, or RURESA, the Governor of another state makes a demand that the California Governor surrender an individual charged criminally in that state with having failed to provide for the support of a child or other individual to whom a duty of support is owed, the California Governor may require a prosecutor to investigate the demand and report whether a proceeding for support has been initiated or would be effective. If it appears that a proceeding would be effective but has not been initiated, the Governor may delay honoring the demand for a reasonable time to permit the initiation of a proceeding [Fam. Code § 4971(b)].

If a proceeding for support has been initiated and the individual whose rendition is demanded prevails, the Governor may decline to honor the demand. If the petitioner prevails and the individual whose rendition is demanded is subject to a support order, the Governor may decline to honor the demand if the individual is complying with the support order [Fam. Code § 4971(c)].

A "state" within the meaning of UIFSA is a state of the United States, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, the United States Virgin Islands, or any territory or insular possession subject to the jurisdiction of the United States. The term "state" also includes both of the following [Fam. Code § 4901(s)(2)]:

1. An Indian tribe.

2. A foreign jurisdiction that has enacted a law or established procedures for issuance and enforcement of support orders which are substantially similar to the procedures under UIFSA, URESA, or RURESA.

The California Attorney General may declare that a foreign jurisdiction is a reciprocating state for purposes of establishing and enforcing support obligations if he or she is satisfied that reciprocal provisions will be made by a foreign jurisdiction for the establishment of support orders for obliges in California or for enforcement of support orders made within this state [Fam. Code § 5005; see Willmer v. Willmer (2006) 144 Cal. App. 4th 951, 956, 51 Cal. Rptr. 3d 10 (Attorney General has declared that Germany is reciprocating state)].

Unlike URESA, there is no reciprocity requirement other than that for foreign jurisdictions [see former Fam. Code § 4802(j)].

1. Who owes or is alleged to owe a duty of support;

2. Who is alleged but has not been adjudicated to be a parent of a child; or

3. Who is liable under a support order.

An "Obligee" means any of the following [Fam. Code § 4901(l)]:

1. An individual to whom a duty of support is, or is alleged to be, owed or in whose favor a support order has been issued or a judgment determining parentage has been rendered.

2. A state or political subdivision to which the rights under a duty of support or support order have been assigned or which has independent claims based on financial assistance provided to an individual obligee.

3. An individual seeking a judgment determining parentage of the individual's child.

A "child support order" is a support order for a child, including a child who has attained the age of majority under the law of the issuing state [Fam. Code § 4901(b)].

A "child" is an individual, whether over or under the age of majority, who is, or is alleged to be, owed a duty of support by the individual's parent or who is, or is alleged to be, the beneficiary of a support order directed to the parent [Fam. Code § 4901(a)].

1. Enforcement Under UCCJEA

§ 260.200 Governing Statutes and Overview of UCCJEA

[1] Governing Statutes

Interstate custody and visitation enforcement in California is governed by the Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction and Enforcement Act (UCCJEA--Fam. Code § 3400 et seq.), and in particular, Fam. Code § 3441 et seq. within that Act. The federal Parental Kidnapping Prevention Act (28 U.S.C. § 1738A) preempts state law on the issue of interstate jurisdiction to render a valid custody decree. California's enactment of the UCCJEA, however, makes the necessity of invoking the PKPA less likely, because of the substantial conformity between the two acts.

[2] Overview of Enforcement Under UCCJEA

The Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction and Enforcement Act, [Fam. Code § 3400 et seq.] or UCCJEA, became operative in California on January 1, 2000 [Stats. 1999, ch. 867] with only a few variations from the model act [see UCCJEA, 9 Uniform Laws Annotated 647 (1999)] that was promulgated by the National Council of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws in 1997. Unlike its predecessor, the former Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act, [former Fam. Code § 3400 et seq.] or UCCJA, the UCCJEA sets forth uniform procedures and remedies for the interstate enforcement of custody and visitation orders that have been validly entered under the jurisdictional provisions of the UCCJEA [see Fam. Code § 3421 et seq.] by state courts [Commissioner's Prefatory Note to UCCJEA, 9 Uniform Laws Annotated 652 (1999)].

First, the UCCJEA [Fam. Code § 3400 et seq.] provides a procedure for interstate registration of child custody determinations. This allows a party, for example, to ascertain in advance whether a custody determination will be recognized, before sending a child out of state for visitation [Commissioner's Prefatory Note to UCCJEA, 9 Uniform Laws Annotated 653 (1999); see Fam. Code § 3445; see § 260.203]. Second, the UCCJEA includes a procedure for interstate enforcement of child custody determinations, written along the lines of habeas corpus, that basically limits the scope of an enforcing court's inquiry to whether the court that issued the custody determination had jurisdiction and complied with due process [Commissioner's Prefatory Note to UCCJEA, 9 Uniform Laws Annotated 653 (1999); see Fam. Code § 3448; see § 260.206]. Third, the UCCJEA provides a procedure for temporary interstate enforcement of visitation provisions of child custody determinations [see Fam. Code § 3444; see § 260.202].

Additionally, the UCCJEA authorizes California courts to use its enforcement provisions [see Fam. Code § 3441 et seq.] to enforce orders for the return of a child that are made under the Hague Convention (see § 260.250 et seq.) on international child abduction as if the orders were child custody determinations [Fam. Code § 3442].

[3] Definitions of Special Terms Under UCCJEA

[a] Petitioner

For purposes of UCCJEA enforcement, a "petitioner" is a person [Fam. Code § 3441(a)]:

1. Who seeks enforcement of an order for return of a child under the Hague Convention (see § 260.250 et seq.) on international child abduction; or

2. Who seeks enforcement of a child custody determination.

[b] Respondent

For purposes of UCCJEA enforcement, a "respondent" is a person [Fam. Code § 3441(b)]:

1. Against whom a proceeding has been commenced for enforcement of an order for return of a child under the Hague Convention (see § 260.250 et seq.) on international child abduction; or

2. Against whom a proceeding has been commenced for enforcement of a child custody determination.

[4] Uniformity of Application and Construction; Severability; Applicability to Motion Pending at Enactment

The UCCJEA must be applied and construed with consideration given to the need to promote uniformity of the law with respect to the subject of interstate child custody jurisdiction among the states that enact it [Fam. Code § 3461]. If any provision of the UCCJEA or its application to any person or circumstance is held invalid, the invalidity does not affect other provisions or applications of the UCCJEA that can be given effect without the invalid provision or application [Fam. Code § 3462].

A motion or request for relief made in a custody proceeding or to enforce a custody determination that was commenced before the effective date of the UCCJEA is governed by the law in effect at the time the motion or request was made [Fam. Code § 3465]. Because a child custody proceeding lasts throughout a child's minority, a motion for custody modification that is filed before January 1, 2000 will be governed by prior law (the UCCJA), [see former Fam. Code § 3400 et seq.] but a motion filed after January 1, 2000, will be governed by the UCCJEA [Commissioner's Comment to UCCJEA § 405, 9 Uniform Laws Annotated 706 (1999); see Fam. Code § 3400 et seq.].

[5] Compatibility With Parental Kidnapping Prevention Act

The federal Parental Kidnapping Prevention Act (PKPA--28 U.S.C. § 1738A) controls child custody jurisdiction in interstate conflicts. If the jurisdiction assumed by a California court making a custody determination is consistent with the PKPA, its decree is entitled to full faith and credit in all other states, and must be enforced according to its terms by the courts of other states [28 U.S.C. § 1738A(a)].

In addition, the PKPA preempts state law, including a state's version of the UCCJA, to the extent that it conflicts with the PKPA, on the issue of jurisdiction by a state to render a valid custody decree [People v. Superior Court (Smolin)

(1986) 41 Cal. 3d 758, 770, 225 Cal. Rptr. 438, 716 P.2d 991 , reversed, on other grounds, California v. Superior Court of California (1987) 482 U.S. 400, 107 S. Ct. 2433, 96 L. Ed. 2d 332 ; Wallace v. Superior Court (1993) 15 Cal. App. 4th 1182, 1184, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 157] . However, California's enactment of the UCCJEA (and simultaneous repeal of the former UCCJA) now brings California law into substantial conformity with the PKPA on both the issues of custody jurisdiction and enforcement [see 28 U.S.C. § 1738A(a), (c); Fam. Code §§ 3423, 3443, 3446]. Thus, there is less likelihood of a PKPA preemption issue when California courts proceed under the UCCJEA. For discussion of differences between the current UCCJEA and the former UCCJA, and the PKPA, see Ch. 394, Parent and Child .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
D. Interstate Custody Enforcement
1. Enforcement Under UCCJEA

22-260 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 260.201

§ 260.201 Sister-State Custody Orders Entitled to Recognition and Enforcement

In general, a California court must accord full faith and credit to an order issued by another state, and consistent with the UCCJEA must enforce a child custody determination by a court of another state unless the order has been vacated, stayed, or modified by a court having UCCJEA jurisdiction [Fam. Code § 3453; see Fam. Code § 3421 et seq.].

Specifically, a California court must recognize and enforce a child custody determination made by a court of another state if [Fam. Code § 3444(a)]:

> 1. The other court exercised jurisdiction in substantial conformity with the UCCJEA; [see Fam. Code § 3400 et seq.] or
> 2. The child custody determination was made under factual circumstances meeting the jurisdictional standards of the UCCJEA [see Fam. Code § 3400 et seq.] and the determination has not been modified under the UCCJEA [see Fam. Code § 3400 et seq.].

A state court's duty to enforce is generally the same under the UCCJEA [see Fam. Code § 3400 et seq.] and the former UCCJA [see former Fam. Code § 3400 et seq.]. However, unlike the former law, the UCCJEA provisions that require enforcement and limit modification of another state's child custody determination are now consistent with those of the PKPA [Commissioner's Comment to UCCJEA § 303, 9 Uniform Laws Annotated 690 (1999); see 28 U.S.C. § 1738A(a)]. Thus, a child custody determination made under the UCCJA that is enforceable under the PKPA will likewise be enforceable under the UCCJEA, and a determination made under the UCCJA that is not enforceable under the PKPA will likewise not be enforceable under the UCCJEA [Commissioner's Comment to UCCJEA § 303, 9 Uniform Laws Annotated 690 (1999)].

For example, a child custody determination made under the former UCCJA that used "significant connection" jurisdiction when a "home state" existed will not be enforceable under either the PKPA or the UCCJEA, even though "significant connection" jurisdiction is one of the four concurrent bases of UCCJA jurisdiction [Commissioner's Comment to UCCJEA § 303, 9 Uniform Laws Annotated 690 (1999)]. PKPA policy strongly discourages a state from exercising its concurrent "significant connection" jurisdiction under the UCCJA when another state could exercise "home state" jurisdiction [Commissioner's Comment to UCCJEA § 303, 9 Uniform Laws Annotated 690 (1999)].

A California court may utilize any remedy available under California law to enforce a child custody determination made by a court of another state [Fam. Code § 3443(b)]. Although a child custody determination made by a court of another state remains a determination of that state, the determination is enforced in the same manner as a California child custody determination [Commissioner's Comment to UCCJEA § 303, 9 Uniform Laws Annotated 690-691 (1999)].

Also, the remedies provided in the UCCJEA enforcement provisions [see Fam. Code § 3441 et seq.] are cumulative and do not affect the availability of other remedies to enforce a child custody determination [Fam. Code § 3443(b)]. Normally, UCCJEA remedies will be used to enforce a custody determination, but any other remedies available under California law, such as citation for contempt of court, may be employed to ensure that a child custody determination is obeyed [Commissioner's Comment to UCCJEA § 303, 9 Uniform Laws Annotated 690 (1999)].

22-260 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 260.202

§ 260.202 Temporary Enforcement of Sister-State Visitation Orders

A California court that lacks jurisdiction to modify a child custody determination may issue a temporary order enforcing either [Fam. Code § 3444(a)]:

1. A visitation schedule made by a court of another state.

2. The visitation provisions of a child custody determination made by another state that does not provide for a specific visitation schedule.

A temporary order that implements a visitation schedule provided in a child custody determination may include make-up, or substitute, visitation [Commissioner's Comment to UCCJEA § 304, 9 Uniform Laws Annotated 691 (1999)]. A temporary order that implements visitation under a child custody determination that does not provide a schedule may substitute a specific visitation schedule for such general provisions as "reasonable and seasonable" visitation [Commissioner's Comment to UCCJEA § 304, 9 Uniform Laws Annotated 691 (1999)].

However, a court without UCCJEA jurisdiction cannot provide for a permanent change in visitation [Commissioner's Comment to UCCJEA § 304, 9 Uniform Laws Annotated 691 (1999)]. Thus, requests for permanent changes must be addressed to the court with exclusive, continuing jurisdiction [see Fam. Code § 3422] or modification jurisdiction [see Fam. Code § 3423] under the UCCJEA [Commissioner's Comment to UCCJEA § 304, 9 Uniform Laws Annotated 691 (1999)].

If a California court makes a temporary order enforcing visitation under a child custody determination that does not provide a visitation schedule [see Fam. Code § 3444(a)(2)], the court must specify in the order a period that it considers adequate to allow the petitioner to obtain an order from the court with UCCJEA jurisdiction [Fam. Code § 3444(b); see Fam. Code § 3421 et seq. (criteria for UCCJEA jurisdiction)]. The temporary order remains in effect until the petitioner obtains an order from the other court or until the specified period expires [Fam. Code § 3444(b)].

[1] In General

The UCCJEA procedure for registration of child custody determinations, which parallels that for registration of child support orders under UIFSA (see § 260.150 et seq.) can be used by pro se and other litigants to either immediately seek enforcement, or to predetermine the enforceability of any custody determination [Commissioner's Comment to UCCJEA § 305, 9 Uniform Laws Annotated 693 (1999)]. Registration of a custody determination without any accompanying request for enforcement is permitted, and this can be of significant assistance in international cases. For example, a custodial parent under a foreign custody order can receive an advance determination of whether the foreign order will be recognized and enforced before sending a child to the United States for visitation [Commissioner's Comment to UCCJEA § 305, 9 Uniform Laws Annotated 693 (1999); see 1996 Hague Convention, art. 26 (signatory nations must provide procedure for advance determination of enforceability of custody orders);§ 260.250 et seq.].

[2] Request for Registration of Custody Order

A child custody determination [see Fam. Code § 3402(c) (definition of "child custody determination")] issued by a court of another state may be registered in California, with or without a simultaneous request for enforcement, by sending the following documents and information to the appropriate California court [Fam. Code § 3445]:

1. A letter or other document requesting registration (see Ch. 394, Parent and Child);

2. Two copies, including one certified copy, of the order sought to be registered;

3. A sworn statement by the person seeking registration that the order has not been modified; and

4. The names and addresses of the person seeking registration, and of any parent or person acting as a parent [see Fam. Code § 3402(m) (definition of "person acting as a parent")] who has been awarded custody or visitation in the determination sought to be registered, unless confidentiality is statutorily required [see Fam. Code § 3429] because of allegations of domestic violence or child abuse.

[3] Action by Court on Receipt of Registration Request

[a] Filing Sister-State Custody Order as Foreign Judgment

On receipt of the request for registration that meets the requirements set forth in [2], above, the registering California court must cause the child custody determination to be filed as a foreign judgment, together with one copy of the accompanying documents and information, regardless of their form [Fam. Code § 3445(b)(1)]. The registering court must also issue a special notice, as set forth in [b], below [Fam. Code § 3445(b)(2)].

[b] Notice by Court

After a California court has received a qualifying request to register a sister-state custody determination as a foreign judgment (see [2], above), the court must serve notice on the persons named in the request, and provide them with an opportunity to contest the registration [Fam. Code § 3445(b)(2)].

The notice served by the registering court must state that [Fam. Code § 3445(c)]:

1. A registered child custody determination is enforceable as of the date of the registration in the same manner as a custody determination issued by a California court;

2. A hearing to contest the validity of the registered determination must be requested within 20 days after service of notice; and

3. Failure to contest the registration will result in confirmation of the child custody determination and preclude further contest with respect to any matter that could have been asserted.

[4] Contest of Registration

Any person seeking to contest the validity of a registered child custody determination must request a hearing within 20 days after service of the notice [Fam. Code § 3445(d)]. At the hearing, the court must confirm the registered order unless the person contesting registration establishes one of the following [Fam. Code § 3445(d)]:

1. That the court issuing the custody determination did not have jurisdiction under the UCCJEA [see Fam. Code § 3421 et seq.];

2. That the child custody determination sought to be registered has been vacated, stayed, or modified by a court having jurisdiction under the UCCJEA [see Fam. Code § 3421 et seq.]; or

3. That the person contesting registration was entitled to notice, but notice was not given according to UCCJEA standards for notice to persons outside the state [see Fam. Code § 3408] in the proceedings before the court that issued the child custody order for which registration is being sought.

[5] Confirmation of Registration

If no timely request for a hearing to contest the validity of the registration is made, then registration of the child custody determination is confirmed as a matter of law [Fam. Code § 3445(e)]. The person requesting registration and all persons served must be notified of the confirmation [Fam. Code § 3445(e)].

Confirmation of a registered child custody determination, whether by operation of law or after notice and hearing, precludes further contest of the determination with respect to any matter that could have been asserted at the time of registration [Fam. Code § 3445(f)].

§ 260.204 Ability to Enforce and Modify Registered Order

A California court may grant any relief normally available under California law to enforce a registered child custody determination made by a court of another state [Fam. Code § 3446(a)]. Thus, although a registered custody order remains an order of the issuing state, the order can be enforced as if it were a California order [Commissioner's Comment to UCCJEA § 306, 9 Uniform Laws Annotated 693 (1999)].

A California court must recognize and enforce, and may not modify except in accordance with the jurisdictional provisions of the UCCJEA, [Fam. Code § 3421 et seq.] a registered child custody determination made by a court of another state [Fam. Code § 3446(b)]. Thus, in order for a California court to modify a registered custody order, California must have modification jurisdiction under the UCCJEA [see Fam. Code §§ 3423, 3446; Commissioner's Comment to UCCJEA § 306, 9 Uniform Laws Annotated 693 (1999)]. For related discussion and a form for modification of a registered order, see Ch. 394, Parent and Child .

§ 260.205 Procedure When Simultaneous Enforcement and Modification Proceedings Exist

If a proceeding for UCCJEA enforcement of a child custody determination is commenced in a California court, and the court learns that a proceeding to modify the determination is pending in another state court that has UCCJEA jurisdiction to modify the determination [see Fam. Code § 3421 et seq.], then the enforcing California court must immediately communicate with the modifying court [Fam. Code § 3447]. According to a Commissioner's comment, the enforcement proceeding generally will take precedence over the modification proceeding, but the courts must communicate immediately to avoid duplicative litigation [Commissioner's Comment to UCCJEA § 307, 9 Uniform Laws Annotated 694 (1999) (noting that PKPA requires enforcement of child custody determinations made under PKPA)].

The proceeding for enforcement will continue unless the California court, after consultation with the modifying court, stays or dismisses the enforcement proceeding [Fam. Code § 3447]. The courts may decide that either the enforcement proceeding or the modification proceeding should go forward, but the ultimate decision rests with the court having exclusive, continuing UCCJEA jurisdiction [Commissioner's Comment to UCCJEA § 307, 9 Uniform Laws Annotated 694 (1999); see Fam. Code § 3422]. If neither court has exclusive, continuing jurisdiction, then the ultimate decision rests with the court that has UCCJEA modification jurisdiction [Commissioner's Comment to UCCJEA § 307, 9 Uniform Laws Annotated 694 (1999); see Fam. Code § 3423]. The court with exclusive, continuing jurisdiction (or, in some cases, with modification jurisdiction) may enjoin the parties from continuing with the enforcement proceeding, if the court determines that an enforcement proceeding should be stayed or dismissed, and the enforcing court does not comply [Commissioner's Comment to UCCJEA § 307, 9 Uniform Laws Annotated 694 (1999)].

D. Interstate Custody Enforcement
1. Enforcement Under UCCJEA

22-260 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 260.206

§ 260.206 Procedure to Enforce Custody Order

[1] In General

The UCCJEA provides a summary procedure for production of the child, based on habeas corpus, as the normal remedy for enforcement of a sister state child custody determination [Commissioner's Comment to UCCJEA § 308, 9 Uniform Laws Annotated 695 (1999)]. The procedure is commenced through the filing of a petition, as described in [2], below.

[2] Petition for Enforcement of Custody Order

A person seeking enforcement of a sister-state custody order may bring an enforcement proceeding by verified petition under the provisions of Fam. Code § 3448. For a form of petition, including verification, see § 260.350[1]. A certified copy (or a copy of a certified copy) of each custody order to be enforced, and of any order confirming registration of a custody order, must be attached to the petition [Fam. Code § 3448(a)]. The petition must state all of the following [Fam. Code § 3448(b)]:

1. Whether the court that issued the child custody determination identified the jurisdictional basis it relied on when exercising jurisdiction; and, if so, what the basis was.

2. Whether the determination for which enforcement is sought has been vacated, stayed, or modified by a court whose decision must be enforced under the UCCJEA; and, if so, the identity of the court, the case number, and the nature of the proceeding.

3. Whether any proceeding has been commenced that could affect the current proceeding, including proceedings relating to domestic violence, protective orders, termination of parental rights, and adoptions; and, if so, the identity of the court, the case number, and the nature of the proceeding.

4. The present physical address of the child and the respondent, if known.

5. Whether relief in addition to the immediate physical custody of the child and attorney's fees is sought, including a request for assistance from law enforcement officials; [see § 260.211] and, if so, the relief sought.

6. If the child custody determination has been registered and confirmed, [see Fam. Code § 3445; see § 260.203] the date and place of registration.

The petition is intended to provide the court with as much information as possible, and the petitioner is responsible for informing the court of all proceedings that could affect the enforcement action [Commissioner's Comment to UCCJEA § 308, 9 Uniform Laws Annotated 695 (1999)]. The phrase "procedure relating to domestic violence" is intended to include criminal prosecutions for child abuse or domestic violence as well as proceedings for protective orders [Commissioner's Comment to UCCJEA § 308, 9 Uniform Laws Annotated 695 (1999)].

[3] Order for Respondent's Appearance on Filing Petition

When the petition is filed, the court must order the respondent to appear in person with or without the child at a hearing [Fam. Code § 3448(c)]. The hearing must be held on the next judicial day after service of the order to appear, unless that date is impossible; in that event, it must be held on the first judicial day possible [Fam. Code § 3448(c)]. The term "first judicial day" means the next day when a judge is at the courthouse [Commissioner's Comment to UCCJEA § 308, 9 Uniform Laws Annotated 695 (1999)]. At the petitioner's request, the court may extend the hearing date [Fam. Code § 3448(c)]. The court may also enter any order necessary to ensure the safety of the parties and the child at this time [Fam. Code § 3448(c)].

The order for the respondent to appear must state [Fam. Code § 3448(d)]:

1. The time and place of the hearing;

2. That, at the hearing, the court will order that the petitioner may take immediate physical custody of the child, as well as ordering the payment of fees, costs, and expenses [see Fam. Code § 3542], and may schedule a hearing to determine whether further relief is appropriate, unless the respondent appears and establishes either of the following:

a. That the child custody determination has not been registered and confirmed as provided by Fam. Code § 3445, and that all of the following are true: (i) the issuing court lacked jurisdiction under the UCCJEA, [see Fam. Code § 3421 et seq.]; (ii) the child custody determination has been vacated, stayed, or modified by a court with UCCJEA jurisdiction, [see Fam. Code § 3421 et seq.]; and (iii) the respondent was entitled to notice, but notice was not given notice according to the UCCJEA notice requirements [see Fam. Code § 3408] in the proceedings before the court that issued the custody order for which enforcement is sought; or

b. That the child custody determination was registered and confirmed [see Fam. Code § 3448(d)(2) (referring, possibly in error, to Fam. Code § 3444, concerning temporary enforcement, instead of to Fam. Code § 3445, which concerns registration); see also Commissioner's Comment to UCCJEA § 308, 9 Uniform Laws Annotated 695-696 (1999)], but has been vacated, stayed, or modified by a court with UCCJEA jurisdiction [see Fam. Code § 3421 et seq.].

[4] Service of Petition and Order to Appear

Unless a warrant to take immediate physical custody of the child is issued, so that notice is temporarily waived by the court [see Fam. Code § 3451], the respondent and any person who has physical custody of the child must be served with the petition for enforcement and the order to appear [Fam. Code § 3449]. Service may be by any method authorized by California law [Fam. Code § 3449].

[5] Hearing for Enforcement of Custody Order

[a] Issuance of Temporary Order to Prevent Child's Endangerment

At the enforcement hearing, the court may issue a temporary, emergency order in appropriate circumstances, for example, if the child would be endangered by enforcement of a custody or visitation order [Fam. Code § 3450(a); Commissioner's Comment to UCCJEA § 310, 9 Uniform Laws Annotated 697 (1999); see Fam. Code § 3424].

[b] Order for Immediate Physical Custody of Child; Defenses

In the absence of circumstances requiring the issuance of a temporary, emergency order for custody, the court, on finding that the petitioner is entitled to custody, must order that the petitioner may take immediate physical custody of the child [Fam. Code § 3450(a)]. A Commissioner's comment explains that a court must enforce a custody determination that complies with either the PKPA [see 28 U.S.C. § 1738A(a)] or the jurisdictional provisions of the UCCJEA [see Fam. Code § 3421 et seq.], and the certified copy of the custody determination is prima facie evidence that the issuing court had jurisdiction to issue the order entitling the petitioner to custody [Commissioner's Comment to UCCJEA § 310, 9 Uniform Laws Annotated 697 (1999)].

However, the court will not enforce the order entitling the petitioner to custody if the respondent appears and establishes either of the following [Fam. Code § 3450(a)]:

> 1. That the child custody determination has not been registered and confirmed under Fam. Code § 3445 and that one of the following is true: (i) the issuing court lacked UCCJEA jurisdiction [see Fam. Code § 3421 et seq.]; (ii) the child custody determination for which enforcement is sought has been vacated, stayed, or modified by a court with UCCJEA jurisdiction [see Fam. Code § 3421 et seq.]; or (iii) the respondent was entitled to notice, but notice was not given according to UCCJEA standards for notice [see Fam. Code § 3408] in the proceedings before the court that issued the child custody determination to be enforced; or
> 2. That the child-custody determination to be enforced was registered and confirmed under Fam. Code § 3445, but has been vacated, stayed, or modified by a court with UCCJEA jurisdiction [see Fam. Code § 3421 et seq.].

It is a defense to enforcement of a child custody determination that another jurisdiction has issued a custody determination that must be enforced under the UCCJEA [see Fam. Code § 3421 et seq.]. For example, if one state court has based its original custody determination on "significant connections" under the UCCJA [see former Fam. Code § 3403(a)(2)] and another court has rendered an original custody determination based on "home state" jurisdiction under the UCCJA, [see former Fam. Code § 3403(a)(1)] then both the UCCJEA [see Fam. Code § 3421 et seq.] and the PKPA mandate that the "home state" determination be enforced [Commissioner's Comment to UCCJEA § 310, 9 Uniform Laws Annotated 697 (1999); see Fam. Code § 3450(a)(1)(A)].

The defense of lack of notice under UCCJEA standards [see Fam. Code § 3408] is the same as the defense would be under the law of the state that issued the notice in the proceedings that resulted in the contested custody determination [Commissioner's Comment to UCCJEA § 310, 9 Uniform Laws Annotated 697 (1999); see Fam. Code § 3450(a)(1)(C)]. Thus, if the defense of lack of notice would not be available under state law if the respondent purposely hid from the petitioner, deliberately avoided service, or elected not to participate in the custody proceedings, then the defense would not be available under the UCCJEA [Commissioner's Comment to UCCJEA § 310, 9 Uniform Laws Annotated 697 (1999)].

[6] Award of Fees; Grant of Additional Relief

At the enforcement hearing, the court must award the fees, costs, and expenses authorized by the UCCJEA [Fam. Code § 3450(b); see Fam. Code § 3452; see § 260.208]. The court may grant additional relief, including a request for the assistance of law enforcement officials [see Fam. Code § 3455; see § 260.211], and may set a further hearing to determine whether additional relief is appropriate [Fam. Code § 3450(b)].

[7] Effect of Testimonial Privileges

If a party called to testify refuses to answer on the ground that the testimony may be self-incriminating, then the court may draw an adverse inference from the refusal [Fam. Code § 3450(c)]. Neither the privilege against disclosure of communications between spouses nor the defense of immunity based on the husband/wife or parent/child relationship may be invoked in a UCCJEA enforcement proceeding [Fam. Code § 3540(d)]. These rules parallel the UIFSA [see § 260.119] procedures in child support proceedings [Commissioner's Comment to UCCJEA § 310, 9 Uniform Laws Annotated 698 (1999)].

§ 260.207 Procedure for Warrant to Take Custody of Child

[1] Verified Application

When filing a petition for enforcement of a child custody determination, the petitioner may also file a verified application for a warrant to take physical custody of the child, if the child is imminently likely to suffer serious physical harm or to be removed from California [Fam. Code § 3451(a); see for a form, see § 260.351[1]]. The application for the warrant must include the statements required by Fam. Code § 3448(b) for a petition for enforcement of a child custody determination [Fam. Code § 3451(b); see § 260.206[2]].

[2] Grounds for Issuance of Warrant

If the court finds, after hearing the testimony of the petitioner or other witness, that the child is imminently likely to suffer serious physical harm or to be removed from California, then the court may issue a warrant to take physical custody of the child [Fam. Code § 3451(b)]. When there is reason to believe that the child will be harmed or removed once the respondent learns of the enforcement proceeding, the court should temporarily waive the UCCJEA notice requirements [see Fam. Code § 3448(c)] and issue the custody warrant [Commissioner's Comment to UCCJEA § 311, 9 Uniform Laws Annotated 698-699 (1999)]. Circumstances in which issuance of a warrant may be appropriate include situations in which the respondent is hiding the child, abusing the child, a flight risk, or involved in a criminal proceeding [Commissioner's Comment to UCCJEA § 311, 9 Uniform Laws Annotated 699 (1999)]. For related orders the court may make in aid of protecting the child, see [5]-[6], below.

[3] Testimony

Testimony may be heard in person, by telephone, or by any means acceptable under California law [Commissioner's Comment to UCCJEA § 311, 9 Uniform Laws Annotated 699 (1999)].

[4] Contents of Warrant

A warrant to take physical custody of a child must do all of the following [Fam. Code § 3451(c)]:

1. Recite the facts on which a conclusion of imminent serious physical harm or removal from California is based.

2. Direct law enforcement officers to take physical custody of the child immediately.

3. Provide for the placement of the child pending final relief.

[5] Service of Warrant and Removal of Child

The respondent must be served with the petition, warrant, and order immediately after the child is taken into physical custody [Fam. Code § 3451(d)].

A warrant to take physical custody of a child is enforceable throughout California [Fam. Code § 3451(e)]. If the court finds, after hearing the testimony of the petitioner or other witness, that a less intrusive remedy is not effective, the court may authorize law enforcement officers to enter private property to take physical custody of the child. If required by exigent circumstances of the case, the court may authorize law enforcement officers to make a forcible entry at any hour [Fam. Code § 3451(e)].

[6] Placement of Child

The court may impose conditions on the placement of a child to ensure the appearance of the child and the child's custodian [Fam. Code § 3451(f)]. The court may use whatever means are available under California law, such as surrender of a passport, or cash bonds [Commissioner's Comment to UCCJEA § 311, 9 Uniform Laws Annotated 699 (1999)].

[7] Timing of Hearing in Relation to Service of Warrant

The petition for enforcement of the child custody determination must be heard on the next judicial day after the warrant to take physical custody of the child is executed, unless that date is impossible. In that event, the court must hold the enforcement hearing on the first judicial day possible [Fam. Code § 3451(b)].

§ 260.208 Award of Costs, Fees, and Expenses

The court must award the prevailing party, including a state, necessary and reasonable expenses incurred by or on behalf of the party, unless the party from whom fees or expenses are sought establishes that the award would be clearly inappropriate [Fam. Code § 3452(a); see also Fam. Code § 3 (award of district attorney costs); see § 260.211[3]]. Necessary and reasonable expenses include costs, communication expenses, attorney's fees, investigative fees, expenses for witnesses, travel expenses, and child care during the course of the proceedings [Fam. Code § 3452(a)].

The term "prevailing party" is defined according to California law [Commissioner's Comment to UCCJEA § 312, 9 Uniform Laws Annotated 700 (1999)]. According to a Commissioner's comment, normally the court will award fees and costs, as incurred by both private persons and public officials, against the nonprevailing party [Commissioner's Comment to UCCJEA § 312, 9 Uniform Laws Annotated 700 (1999)]. The UCCJEA implements the policies of the PKPA [Commissioner's Comment to UCCJEA § 312, 9 Uniform Laws Annotated 700 (1999); see Pub. L. 96-611 § 8(c)].

The court may not assess fees, costs, or expenses against a state unless authorized by law other than the UCCJEA [Fam. Code § 3452(b)].

§ 260.209 Appeal of Enforcement Order

An appeal may be taken from a final order in a proceeding under the UCCJEA enforcement provisions [see Fam. Code § 3421 et seq.] in accordance with expedited appellate procedures in other civil cases. Unless the court enters a temporary emergency order [see Fam. Code § 3424], the enforcing court may not stay an order enforcing a child custody determination pending appeal.

According to a Commissioner's comment, absent an emergency, a court should not stay an enforcement order, because that would defeat the purpose of having a quick enforcement procedure [Commissioner's Comment to UCCJEA § 314, 9 Uniform Laws Annotated 701 (1999)]. Appellate courts are generally favorable toward extraordinary writ petitions as a way of obtaining timely review of interstate child custody determinations [see Zenide v. Superior Court (1994) 22 Cal. App. 4th 1287, 1293, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 703 (decided under UCCJEA's predecessor statute, UCCJA (former Fam. Code § 3400 et seq.)].

[1] District Attorney

In a UCCJEA enforcement case [see Fam. Code § 3441 et seq.], or in a case involving the Hague Convention on International Child Abduction (see § 260.250 et seq.), a district attorney is authorized to proceed in accordance with California family law procedures for locating a missing party or child [Fam. Code § 3455(a); see Fam. Code § 3130 et seq.]. The district attorney acts on behalf of the court and may not represent any party [Fam. Code § 3455(b)].

Note that, in this regard, the California UCCJEA differs from the model UCCJEA, because the Legislature elected to retain California law, rather than adopt the model UCCJEA provisions governing the role of a prosecutor or public official in locating a child, obtaining a child's return, or enforcing a child custody determination [see Fam. Code § 3455(a); cf. UCCJEA § 315(a), 9 Uniform Laws Annotated 701 (1999)].

[2] Law Enforcement Officer

At the request of a district attorney acting under the UCCJEA, [see Fam. Code § 3455] a law enforcement officer may take any lawful action reasonably necessary to locate a child or a party, or to assist the district attorney with UCCJEA responsibilities [Fam. Code § 3456].

[3] Assessment of Expenses and Costs

The court may assess all direct expenses and costs incurred by a district attorney acting under the UCCJEA enforcement provisions [see Fam. Code §§ 3455, 3456], in accordance with the California procedure for payment of district attorney expenses in locating a missing party or child [Fam. Code § 3457; see Fam. Code § 3134 (payment of expenses); see also Fam. Code § 3452; for discussion of award of fees and costs under UCCJEA, see § 260.208].

Note that, in this regard, the California UCCJEA differs from the model UCCJEA, which authorizes a court to assess a public official's direct costs and expenses against a respondent who is not the prevailing party [see Fam. Code § 3457;

cf. UCCJEA § 317, 9 Uniform Laws Annotated 701 (1999) (assessment of expenses against nonprevailing respondent)].

2. Remedies Under Hague Convention on International Child Abduction

§ 260.250 Overview of Hague Convention and Implementing Legislation

On July 1, 1988, the Convention on Civil Aspects of International Child Abduction, originally made at The Hague, Netherlands, on October 25, 1980, became operative in the United States [see 53 Fed. Reg. 23608 (1988) ; 1980 Hague Convention, art. 43]. Federal implementing legislation was enacted in 1988 [see 42 U.S.C. § 11601 et seq.], and interim federal regulations have been adopted [see 22 C.F.R. §§ 94.1-94.8].

The convention establishes legal rights and procedures for the return of a child wrongfully removed to, or retained in, a country other than the child's habitual place of residence [see 42 U.S.C. § 11601(a)(4); see also Friedrich v. Friedrich (6th Cir. 1993) 983 F.2d 1396, 1400-1402 (construing "habitual residence" as where child actually lives, not where parent may have legal domicile)]. However, it applies only to children under age 16 [1980 Hague Convention, art. 4].

The convention aims to protect children internationally from the harmful effects of their wrongful removal or retention, and to establish procedures to ensure their prompt return to the state of their habitual residence [Shalit v. Coppe (9th Cir. 1999) 182 F.3d 1124, 1127] . A child's removal is wrongful under the Convention only if the parent seeking the child's return possesses custody rights [1980 Hague Convention, art. 3; see Gonzalez v. Gutierrez (2002) 311 F.3d 942, 955-956, 973 (father having only access rights to children could not compel their return to Mexico under Hague Convention, and ne exeat clause in foreign custody agreement did not confer "rights of custody" on parent who only had access rights)]. The dual objectives of the convention are to secure the prompt return of children who are wrongfully removed or retained, and to ensure that rights of custody and access under the law of one contracting state are effectively respected in the other contracting states. One of the paramount purposes of the convention is to restore the statue quo and deter parents from crossing international borders to search for a more sympathetic court [Shalit v. Coppe (9th Cir. 1999) 182 F.3d 1124, 1127] .

In construing the Hague Convention, fact analysis plays a particularly important role in determining the "habitual residence" of a child. This is because if a child is alleged to have been wrongfully removed from, or retained in, a country by a parent, a court must determine whether that child had become a habitual resident of the country where he or she was residing with the then custodial parent immediately prior to the wrongful removal or retention. Because the necessary fact-finding regarding "habitual residence" is not specifically defined under the Convention, case law has looked to numerous facts and circumstances to determine whether a child was habitually resident in a particular country [see generally Mozes v. Mozes (9th Cir. 2001) 239 F.3d 1067, 1071-1072] .

Note that if a court determines from all available evidence that the parent petitioning for return of a child has already agreed to abandon the child's prior habitual residence, then no unlawful retention has occurred and the Convention does not intervene [see Mozes v. Mozes (9th Cir. 2001) 239 F.3d 1067, 1076-1078] . Similarly, if the parent petitioning for return has consented to or subsequently acquiesced to the child's retention or removal, then the Convention does not intervene [42 U.S.C. § 11603(e)(2)(B); Hague Convention, art. 13; Gonzalez-Caballero v. Mena (9th Cir. 2001) 251 F.3d 789, 793] .

The Convention is in effect between the United States and the following countries:

- Argentina.
- Australia.
- Austria.
- The Bahamas.

2. Remedies Under Hague Convention on International Child Abduction

§ 260.251 General Remedies Under Convention

The Hague Convention sets forth both judicial and administrative remedies to secure the return of a child who has been wrongfully removed to, or retained in, a country that has signed the convention, and to obtain rights of access (visitation) with the child [see 1980 Hague Convention, art. 1]. The judicial remedies involve bringing a civil action in the country in which the child is physically present [see 1980 Hague Convention, arts. 11-12]. The administrative remedies contemplate use of a "central authority" in each signatory country, which is charged with assisting in the collection and exchange of information about the child's whereabouts, securing the voluntary return of the child, and providing information about applicable law [1980 Hague Convention, arts. 6-10]. These remedies may be used separately or together, in addition to any other remedies provided by the law of the involved countries [see 42 U.S.C. § 11603(h); 1980 Hague Convention, arts. 11, 12, 29].

The Convention does not technically require that the child be returned to the country of habitual residence, although in the classic abduction case this will occur. If the petitioner-parent has moved, the child will be returned to the petitioner, not the country of habitual residence [Gaudin v. Remis (9th Cir. 2002) 282 F.3d 1178] . However, because the Convention presumes that the petitioner is located in a different country from that of the abductor and the child, such that multiple countries could potentially make a custody determination, the Convention cannot be invoked when the petitioning parent moves permanently to the same country in which the abductor and the children are located [Gaudin v. Remis (9th Cir. 2002) 282 F.3d 1178, 1183] .

The return of the child pursuant to civil proceedings under the Hague Convention does not foreclose criminal prosecution of a parent under the International Parental Kidnapping Crime Act of 1993 [18 U.S.C. § 1204; see United States v. Ventre (9th Cir. 2003) 338 F.3d 1047, 1051-1054 (district court had jurisdiction to accept father's guilty plea under IPKCA after child was returned to United States from Italy)].

§ 260.252 Court Actions in United States

State courts and United States District Courts have concurrent original jurisdiction of actions arising under the Hague Convention [42 U.S.C. § 11603(a)]. Anyone seeking to initiate judicial proceedings under the Convention may file a petition for relief in any court that has jurisdiction and that is authorized to exercise jurisdiction where the child is located when the petition is filed [see 42 U.S.C. § 11603(b); cf. In re Marriage of Condon (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 533, 556, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 33 (U.S. citizen filed action in Australia, where child was located, and obtained order that child be returned to California)].

Courts may determine only rights under the Convention and not the merits of any underlying child custody claims [see 42 U.S.C. §§ 11601(b)(4), 11603(d); 1980 Hague Convention, art. 19; see, e.g., Gaudin v. Remis (9th Cir. 2002) 282 F.3d 1178, 1182 (Hague Convention does not extend to custody determinations but simply restores preabduction status quo by allowing for return of wrongfully abducted child); Gonzalez-Caballero v. Mena (9th Cir. 2001) 251 F.3d 789, 794 (unwed Panamanian mother's right of return extinguished by her consent or acquiescence to child's removal to United States by American father)]. The court may only determine whether the removal or retention of the child was wrongful under the law of the child's habitual residence, and, if so, order the return of the child to the place of habitual residence for the court there to decide the merits of the custody dispute, unless the alleged abductor can establish a permissible defense [Shalit v. Coppe (9th Cir. 1999) 182 F.3d 1124, 1128] . The convention's references to the "law of the State in which the child was habitually resident" is purposefully broad, and is not limited to internal or domestic law, but includes the conflict of law rules of the state of habitual residence [Shalit v. Coppe (9th Cir. 1999) 182 F.3d 1124, 1128-1129] . Courts may take measures under state or federal law to protect the child's well-being or to prevent his or her further removal or concealment pending a final disposition of the petition, but may not order a child removed from a person having physical control of the child unless the applicale requirements of state law are satisfied [see 42 U.S.C. § 11604].

§ 260.253 Role of U.S. Central Authority

Alternatively, or in addition, a person seeking relief under the Convention may apply for assistance to the Central Authority in the United States. The Office of Citizens' Consular Services in the Bureau of Consular Affairs, a subdivision of the State Department, has been designated to serve in that capacity. Any "person, institution, or other body" may apply to the Office of Citizens Consular Services for assistance [22 C.F.R. §§ 94.2, 94.5].

If a child has been abducted to the United States, this office must, in part, do the following [see 22 C.F.R. §§ 94.5, 94.6]:

- Confirm (or determine) the child's whereabouts.
- Ascertain the child's welfare.
- Attempt to obtain a voluntary agreement for visitation or the child's return.
- Assist applicants in obtaining information about legal representation.
- Provide information, on request, to foreign central authorities about the status of the case and applicable law.
- Consult with appropriate agencies about possible arrangements for temporary care or return travel for the child.

Separate rules govern the office's responsibilities if a child has been abducted from the United States [see 22 C.F.R. § 94.7]. Among the resources available to the office is the federal Parental Locator Service. The office is required to resort to that service before seeking information from other government agencies [see 42 U.S.C. § 11608(d)].

PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

§ 260.305 Decisions

NOTE:

The following cases were decided under the former Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act of 1968 (URESA-former Civ. Code § 4800 et seq.), which has been replaced with the Uniform Interstate Family Support Act (UIFSA-Fam. Code § 4900 et seq.), operative January 1, 1998 [see Stats. 1997, ch. 194].

[1] Choice of Law

Out-of-state judgment for child support arrearages is enforceable under RURESA, and not Sister-State Money Judgments Act (Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.10 et seq.), because legislature intended that all foreign support orders be enforced under RURESA. Neuman v. Barbera (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 437, 442-443, 210 Cal. Rptr. 556

Law of state in which support obligation originated is judicially noticed and applied by California courts. Petersen v. Petersen (1972) 24 Cal. App. 3d 201, 205, 100 Cal. Rptr. 822

After foreign divorce judgment is established as California judgment, California law applies to determine change of circumstances to justify modification. Petersen v. Petersen (1972) 24 Cal. App. 3d 201, 205, 100 Cal. Rptr. 822

Validity and effect of sister state divorce judgment is governed by laws of that state. Rall v. Lovell (1951) 105 Cal. App. 2d 507, 510, 233 P.2d 681

Law of state where divorce judgment was rendered and by which its effect is to be determined must be established as a fact, though effect of law when proved is question of fact for the court. Rall v. Lovell (1951) 105 Cal. App. 2d 507, 510, 233 P.2d 681

[2] Collateral Attack

Collateral impeachment of foreign divorce decree by extrinsic evidence in California action is proper to show that foreign court did not have jurisdiction over parties or subject matter. Crouch v. Crouch (1946) 28 Cal. 2d 243,

249-251, 169 P.2d 897

Extrinsic evidence is admissible to show that foreign dissolution judgment is void in fact although not void on face for lack of jurisdiction. Hammell v. Britton (1941) 19 Cal. 2d 72, 81, 119 P.2d 333

When divorce decree rendered in sister state is offered in evidence as to bar to asserted right, court may inquire into jurisdiction of sister state court that rendered decree; if jurisdictional defect does not appear on face of record, presumption of jurisdiction is conclusive; divorce decree of sister state may be impeached collaterally by extrinsic evidence and reexamination of jurisdiction of sister state is in effect trial de novo on that issue. In re Marriage of Leff (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 630, 636, 102 Cal. Rptr. 195

Foreign divorce decree is not entitled to full faith and credit when neither party was domiciled in divorce state and attacking party was not served within that jurisdiction and did not appear in action. Carmichael v. Carmichael (1963) 216 Cal. App. 2d 674, 678, 31 Cal. Rptr. 514

[3] Declaratory Relief Action

Declaratory relief action is proper to test validity of foreign divorce. Klinker v. Klinker (1955) 132 Cal. App. 2d 687, 283 P.2d 83

[4] Defenses to Enforcement Action

[a] Interference With Visitation

Even if custodial parent did conceal child, strong public policy requires noncustodial parent to reimburse state agency for AFDC payments made to custodial parent. In re Marriage of Kelley (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 613, 620, 231 Cal. Rptr. 6 (no finding of concealment)

Active concealment of child by custodial parent is distinguished from "interference with rights of visitation" noted in former Code Civ. Proc. § 1694 (then former Fam. Code § 4845), so that "active concealment" is allowed as defense to enforcement of support award for arrearages accrued during period of concealment. Solberg v. Wenker (1985) 163 Cal. App. 3d 475, 480-481, 209 Cal. Rptr. 545

[b] Statute of Limitations

Obligor may raise defense of California statute of limitations against enforcement of sister-state judgment despite fact that judgment was final and for liquidated sum. Morris v. Cohen (1983) 149 Cal. App. 3d 507, 514-517, 196 Cal. Rptr. 834

[5] Domicile

Determination of issue of domicile when person maintains two residences depends to great extent on person's intention as manifested by acts and declarations. In re Marriage of Leff (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 630, 642, 102 Cal. Rptr. 195

Bona fide domicile in sister state necessary to support foreign divorce decree is question of fact. In re Marriage of Leff (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 630, 641, 102 Cal. Rptr. 195

[6] Enforcement of Established Judgment

1975 Texas judgment awarding wife 22.5 percent of husband's military retirement benefit is entitled to enforcement in California despite 1981 United States Supreme Court decision precluding award of federal military retirement pay to nonearning spouse because Texas judgment was final, and thus res judicata and entitled to full faith and credit, before decision issued. Tyus v. Tyus (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 789, 795, 206 Cal. Rptr. 817

Foreign judgment is enforceable in this state only by an action. Hamilton v. Superior Court of San Mateo County (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 418, 422, 112 Cal. Rptr 450

Sister state divorce judgment established as foreign judgment, in full force and effect, becomes California judgment for purposes of enforcement in this state. Hamilton v. Superior Court of San Mateo County (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 418, 422, 112 Cal. Rptr 450

Foreign judgment established as judgment of this state is enforceable by contempt proceeding, by execution, and by proceedings supplemental to execution. Leverett v. Superior Court (1963) 222 Cal App. 2d 126, 133, 34 Cal. Rptr. 784

[7] Establishing Sister State Judgments in California

Court has jurisdiction to modify custody order in action to establish foreign judgment as California judgment, but does not have jurisdiction to modify child support payments unless it has personal jurisdiction over defendant. Kulko v. Superior Court (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 514, 520, 138 Cal. Rptr. 586, 564 P.2d 353 (holding that under facts of case, trial court had personal jurisdiction over nonresident, nondomiciliary defendant and reversed on this point by United States Supreme Court in Kulko v. Superior Court (1978) 436 U.S. 84, 98 S. Ct. 1690, 56 L. Ed. 2d 132, 147 , reh'g denied, 438 U.S. 908

Establishing foreign divorce decree as California judgment is unnecessary when decree makes no provision for support and neither party actually seeks to enforce or modify it in any manner. Knodel v. Knodel (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 752, 760 n.10, 122 Cal. Rptr. 521, 537 P.2d 353

Action to establish and enforce sister state judgment is proper. Lewis v. Lewis (1957) 49 Cal. 2d 389, 317 P.2d 987 (separate maintenance); Worthley v. Worthley (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 465, 283 P.2d 19 (separate maintenance); Biewend v. Biewend (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 108, 109 P.2d 701 (divorce)

Trial court properly established Georgia decree as California judgment, modified child support provisions, and set child support arrearages. In re Marriage of Hattis (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 1162, 1171, 242 Cal. Rptr. 410

[8] Filing Application

Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.15(a) of SSMJA (Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.10 et seq.), providing that judgment creditor may apply for entry of judgment based on sister state judgment by filing application in California court, does not require that application be filed by attorney. Kessler v. Kessler (1983) 141 Cal. App. 3d 94, 97-98, 190 Cal. Rptr. 109 (New York conservator for obligee wife, although not a California attorney, allowed to file application in California to enter New York judgment for delinquent spousal support against California resident husband)

[9] Full Faith and Credit

Full faith and credit clause requires that judgment for alimony that cannot be modified under law of rendering state cannot be modified elsewhere. Elkind v. Byck (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 453, 459-460, 67 Cal. Rptr. 404, 439 P.2d 316

Regarding accrued installments not subject modification by court rendering original order, order for payment of money as alimony rendered by court of competent jurisdiction must be recognized by all other states under full faith and credit clause of United States Constitution. Lewis v. Lewis (1957) 49 Cal. 2d 389, 395, 317 P.2d 987

Valid dissolution judgment rendered by court of competent jurisdiction in one state is accorded full faith and credit by every other court in United States. Biewend v. Biewend (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 108, 111-112, 109 P.2d 701

Full faith and credit bars defendant from collaterally attacking sister state divorce decree on jurisdictional grounds when defendant participated in divorce proceedings and was accorded full opportunity to contest jurisdictional issues and when foreign decree is not susceptible to such collateral attack in courts of state which rendered it. In re Marriage of Leff (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 630, 637, 102 Cal. Rptr. 195

Court of one state has no legal right to annul, vacate, or set aside foreign judgment. In re Marriage of Leff (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 630, 635, 102 Cal. Rptr. 195

Before California must give full faith and credit to sister state divorce decree, two conditions are required: (1) decree must be one not susceptible to collateral attack in courts of state that rendered it, and (2) there must be participation by party aggrieved under circumstances which have afforded party full opportunity to contest jurisdictional issues. Aldabe v. Aldabe (1962) 209 Cal. App. 2d 453, 469-470, 26 Cal. Rptr. 208

[10] Jurisdiction

Act of nonresident, nondomiciliary father in sending child to California pursuant to child's wishes to live with mother, was insufficient contact with California under due process clause to permit California to exercise in personam jurisdiction over father to increase child support, in mother's California action to establish foreign divorce decree as California judgment and modify judgment as established to gain custody of children and increase amount of child support originally awarded. Kulko v. Superior Court (1978) 436 U.S. 84, 98 S. Ct. 1690, 56 L. Ed. 2d 132, 137 , reh'g denied, 438 U.S. 908 (reversing Kulko v. Superior Court (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 514, 138 Cal. Rptr. 586, 564 P.2d 353 , and pointing out that mother could seek child support increase by suing father in father's state of residence or by proceeding pursuant to (now former) Revised Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act of 1968 because foreign state has comparable statutory procedure (Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act, former Fam. Code § 4800 et seq.))

[11] Modification of Original Order

[a] Between Different States

California courts must afford defendant opportunity to litigate issue of modification of foreign support decree. Worthley v. Worthley (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 465, 472, 283 P.2d 19

Despite apparent prohibition of former Code Civ. Proc. § 1694 (former Fam. Code § 4845), California court may modify Ohio judgment and condition payment of support on custodial parent's compliance with visitation provisions, because Ohio permits such modification. Creed v. Schultz (1983) 148 Cal. App. 3d 733, 741-742, 196 Cal. Rptr. 252

Decree of dissolution rendered in Michigan requiring one parent alone to support children does not abrogate support duty of other parent; state agency providing support to children is entitled to seek reimbursement from other parent under former RURESA (URESA, former Fam. Code § 4800 et seq.). Carr v. Marshman (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d

Support provision of Arizona marital settlement agreement is enforceable in California after registration of Arizona dissolution decree if agreement was merged into decree under Arizona law. In re Marriage of Alper (1981) 116 Cal. App. 3d 925, 928-929, 172 Cal. Rptr. 402

Reciprocal support order does not supersede support provisions of original judgment, when no request for modification was made and reciprocal order did not specifically refer to intent to modify. In re Marriage of Popenhager (1979) 99 Cal. App. 3d 514, 521, 160 Cal. Rptr. 379

[b] Between California Counties

Child support order entered in dissolution proceeding in one county of California may be modified by court in another county when order has been properly registered pursuant to former Code Civ. Proc. § 1697(b) (former Fam. Code § 4848(b)). In re Marriage of Straeck (1984) 156 Cal. App. 3d 617, 621, 203 Cal. Rptr. 69

Portion of judgment awarding attorney's fees in dissolution proceeding does not constitute "support order" within meaning of former Code Civ. Proc. § 1653(k) (former Fam. Code § 155), and therefore is enforceable under Sister-State Money Judgment Act (Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.10 et seq.) and not former RURESA (see URESA, former Fam. Code § 4800 et seq.). Fishman v. Fishman (1981) 117 Cal. App. 3d 815, 821-823, 173 Cal. Rptr. 59

[12] Pendente Lite Orders

Award by California trial court for support pendente lite was proper in action to establish foreign judgment for alimony and attorney's fees. Hood v. Hood (1962) 211 Cal. App. 2d 332, 27 Cal. Rptr. 47

[13] URESA

[a] Applicability of Act

Out-of-state judgment for child support arrearages was enforceable under former RURESA, and not the SSMJA, because Legislature intended that all foreign support orders be enforced under RURESA. Neuman v. Barbera (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 437, 442-443, 210 Cal. Rptr. 556 Money judgment based on delinquent spousal and child support, and enforceable by execution in sister state, constituted "support order" within meaning of URESA, and therefore was enforceable under former URESA, construed within context of SSMJA. Morris v. Cohen (1983) 149 Cal. App. 3d 507, 513- 514, 196 Cal. Rptr 834 (criticizing contrary holding in Liebow v. Superior Court (1981) 120 Cal. App. 3d 573, 579-581, 175 Cal. Rptr. 26)

Although initially enacted to enforce support obligations of deserting fathers, URESA applied to any situation in which there was breach of duty of support. Carr v. Marshman (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 1117, 1119, 195 Cal. Rptr. 603

Although father had been awarded custody and ordered to provide for children's support on dissolution of marriage, when his whereabouts were unknown, State of Florida, properly brought URESA action in California against obligor mother, and California court properly ordered mother to reimburse Florida for future welfare funds that Florida would be obliged to pay for support of children who were living in Florida with paternal grandmother. State of Florida ex rel. Dep't of Health & Rehabilitative Services v. Vernon (1982) 138 Cal. App. 3d 827, 829-831, 188 Cal. Rptr. 322

Money judgment based on delinquent alimony and enforceable by execution in sister state was not "support order"

within meaning of former Code Civ. Proc. § 1653(k) (URESA), and was thus enforceable under SSMJA. Liebow v. Superior Court (1981) 120 Cal. App. 3d 573, 579-581, 175 Cal. Rptr. 26 (criticized in Morris v. Cohen (1983) 149 Cal. App. 3d 507, 513-514, 196 Cal. Rptr 834)

Portion of judgment awarding attorney's fees in dissolution proceeding did not constitute "support order" within meaning of former Code Civ. Proc. § 1653(k) (URESA), and was thus enforceable under SSMJA. Fishman v. Fishman (1981) 117 Cal. App. 3d 815, 821-823, 173 Cal. Rptr. 59 (criticized in Neuman v. Barbera (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 437, 441-442, 210 Cal. Rptr. 556)

[b] Child Support

Order for child support by rendering state is not dispositive of welfare of child for all time and in all states; states share power over parent-child relationship to extent of obligor's presence in each. Elkind v. Byck (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 453, 459-460, 67 Cal. Rptr. 404, 439 P.2d 316

[c] Constitutionality

Obligor is not entitled to jury trial in proceeding under URESA when issue is amount of support to be paid; privilege against self-incrimination is not applicable in civil proceeding. Reynolds v. Reynolds (1978) 86 Cal. App. 3d 732, 734-735, 150 Cal. Rptr. 423

Provisions of URESA are not vague and unconstitutional, and not violative of equal protection of laws. Harmon v. Harmon (1958) 160 Cal. App. 2d 47, 53-54, 324 P.2d 901

Classification of certain persons as being entitled to support under URESA is reasonable and has fair and substantial relation to object of law; therefore, URESA was not violative of equal protection of laws. Smith v. Smith (1954) 125 Cal. App. 2d 154, 169, 270 P.2d 613

[d] Purpose of Act

Purpose of former URESA was to provide person in one state with expeditious means to secure support from person in another state who was legally liable for such support. Scott v. Superior Court (1984) 156 Cal. App. 3d 577, 585, 202 Cal. Rptr. 920 ; Banks v. McMorris (1975) 47 Cal. App. 3d 723, 728, 121 Cal. Rptr. 185

URESA was designed to enable a dependent in one state to secure money for support from a person residing in another state who was legally liable for the support of the dependent. Clark v. Clark (1966) 246 Cal. App. 2d 619, 622, 54 Cal. Rptr. 875

URESA provided means for enforcing child or spousal support obligations of obligors located outside the jurisdiction in which the dependent spouse or children were present. Mehrstein v. Mehrstein (1966) 245 Cal. App. 2d 646, 648, 54 Cal. Rptr. 65

[14] Venue

Foreign judgment is not a "final judgment" within meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 397.5, relating to change of venue after final judgment, until established as domestic judgment. Hamilton v. Superior Court of San Mateo County (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 418, 425, 112 Cal. Rptr. 450

Venue of action to establish foreign judgment as California judgment is governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 395.
Hamilton v. Superior Court of San Mateo County (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 418, 422, 112 Cal. Rptr. 450

The form in [1], above, sets forth a listing of the United States Department of Health and Human Services (DHHS) forms that are needed in the various proceedings that may be brought under the Uniform Interstate Family Support Act (UIFSA). The left column lists the various possible proceedings that might be initiated or remedies that might be sought, and the right column indicates the forms that are for use for the indicated proceeding or remedy. DHHS forms have been adopted by Rules of Court for use in California [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.27].

The form in [1], above, is an illustrative, filled-in version of the approved Judicial Council form of Notice of Registration of Out-of-State Support Order, for use in proceedings to enforce out-of-state support and income withholding orders [Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-570; see Fam. Code §§ 4952, 4954]. This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

According to the form, the support obligor can contest the validity or enforcement of the registered order by requesting a hearing within 25 days of the mailing date of the notice, using the Judicial Council form of Request for Hearing Regarding Registration of Support Order, which is set forth at § 260.312[1] [see Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-575]. This time period, set by statute at "20 days after notice," is apparently extended to 21 court days because notice is being given by mail to an addressee within California [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1005(b), 1013(a); Fam. Code §§ 4954(b)(2), 4955(a)].

[3] Additional Items to Be Supplied to Court Clerk

The Notice of Registration of Out-of-State Support Order is designed to be mailed to the support obligor by the court clerk, with a copy to the child support agency, if that agency is involved in the case. Thus, a sufficient number of the following items should be should be submitted to the court clerk for this purpose:

- Preaddressed mailing envelopes (with postage prepaid).

- Copies of the completed form Notice of Registration of Out-of-State Support Order.
- Copies of the out-of-state order.
- Copies of the registration statement for the order.

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is an illustrative, filled-in version of the mandatory Judicial Council form of Request for Hearing Regarding Registration of Support Order [Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-575]. This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

This form may be used by a support obligor (or someone alleged to be a support obligor) to obtain a hearing for the purpose of contesting the validity or enforcement of an out-of-state or California support order (including an order for income withholding) that has been registered in California [see Fam. Code §§ 4954(b)(2), 4955(a), 5603]. The most common grounds for vacation of the registered order are set out in Paragraph 2 of the form, and counsel should mark the check-off box or boxes that apply. For discussion of the grounds for vacating registration, see § 260.154. For discussion of other defenses under the Uniform Interstate Family Law Act (UIFSA-Fam. Code § 4900 et seq.), see § 260.117.

The completed form must be filed with the court clerk, after obtaining a hearing date from the clerk. Depending on local practice, that date will either be filled in directly by the clerk, or by counsel after the date is set (see Paragraph 1). Preaddressed, and postage paid, envelopes, along with sufficient copies of the completed form, must also be presented to the court clerk for mailing to the parties-whose names and addresses must be set forth on page two of the form.

For a form of statement to register a California support order, see Ch. 259, Family Law Enforcement: Special Remedies for Support Enforcement, § 259.369. See also § 260.330[2] -[3].

§ 260.313 Declaration Supporting Motion for Determination of Controlling Order

[1] FORM Declaration Supporting Motion for Determination of Controlling Order

_____[name], states as follows:

1. I am a resident of the state of California, currently residing at _____[address].

2. _____ [Set forth party status with regard to UIFSA proceedings, e.g., I am the Petitioner in this proceeding under the Uniform Interstate Family Support Act (UIFSA), Family Code Section 4900 et seq. for the registration of a support order from the state of Ohio].

3. _____ [Set forth details of first support order, e.g., I am the child support obligor under an order issued _____ (date) by the Court of Common Pleas of Stark County, Ohio in case number _____, an action for paternity under Ohio Law, entitled Brown v. Black. Under this order, I am required to pay child support to _____ (name of obligee) for the benefit of _____ (name(s) of child or children)]. A certified copy of this order is set forth as Attachment A to this Application for Order and Supporting Declaration.

4. _____ [Set forth details of second support order, e.g., I am also the support obligor under an order issued _____ (date) by the Superior Court of California, County of Alameda, in case number _____, a proceeding for registration and modification of the above-noted Ohio order under the Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act (URESA), former Family Code Section 4800 et seq. Under this order, I am required to pay child support to the same obligee for the benefit of the same child as under the Ohio order]. A certified copy of this order is set forth as Attachment B to this Application for Order and Supporting Declaration.

5. _____ [Set forth any grounds for challenging the jurisdiction of either of the courts that made a prior order, e.g., At the time when the California court exercised jurisdiction to modify the Ohio order, it did not have, and could not assume continuing, exclusive jurisdiction as required by UIFSA because the obligee and child were then still domiciled in the State of Ohio. Therefore, California was without jurisdiction to modify the Ohio order].

[EITHER, if priority is based on child's home state]

6. _____ [Set forth claim for priority of one order or the other based on the child's home state, e.g., Even if it is determined that the California court acted within its jurisdiction, the Ohio order is the order entitled to recognition as the sole controlling order under UIFSA because Ohio remains the home state of the child. The child lives there with his mother, the obligee under both the Ohio and California orders, and has lived there for at least six consecutive months preceding the filing of this motion].

[OR, if there is no order from home state, and priority is based on timing of orders]

6. _____ [If child's current home state is not one of issuing states of the orders at issue, set forth claim that most recent order controls, e.g., The California order is the order entitled to recognition as the sole controlling order under UIFSA because neither Ohio nor California is the child's home state, and the California order is the one issued most recently].

[CONTINUE]

7. _____ [Set forth relief requested, e.g., Based on the above-stated facts, I request an order of this court that the Ohio order is the controlling order and must be recognized as such under the Uniform Interstate Family Support Act, and that the California order is of no further force and effect, and is not entitled to recognition or enforcement in this or any other state or jurisdiction].

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is a sample declaration in support of a motion to determine which of multiple support orders issued for the same obligor and child is the controlling order that is entitled to recognition. Under the Uniform Interstate Family Support Act (UIFSA), only one such order may be in place at any time [see Fam. Code § 4911 (discussed in § 260.94)]. However, under the now-repealed Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act (URESA), it was possible for there to be multiple valid orders in place for the same obligor and child. UIFSA contains priorities to determine which of multiple URESA orders in the one that is entitled to recognition and enforcement [see Fam. Code § 4911(b)].

UIFSA also contains a procedure for determining which is the controlling order. If two or more child support orders have been issued for the same obligor and child and if the obligor or the individual obligee resides in California, a party may request a California court to determine which order controls and must be so recognized. The request must be accompanied by a certified copy of every support order in effect. The requesting party must give notice of the request to each party whose rights may be affected by the determination [Fam. Code § 4911(c)]. Because California is to apply its own procedural law in UIFSA proceedings [Fam. Code § 4917(a); see § 260.118[1]], a party requesting a determination of the controlling order would proceed by Notice of Motion [see Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-301] or Order to Show Cause [see Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-300]. The Judicial Council Form of Application for Order and Supporting Declaration [Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-310] should be used. Examples of these Judicial Council forms are set forth in Ch. 221, Dissolution of Marriage: Procedure . For an illustration and discussion of the Department of Health and Human Services form of UIFSA Notice of Determination of Controlling Order, see*§ 260.319*.

The form is designed for use by governmental agencies or private parties to set up a hearing to obtain either initial court orders or to modify existing orders in a proceeding under the Uniform Interstate Family Support Act (UIFSA-Fam. Code § 4900 et seq.).

For general discussion of serving orders to show cause in family law matters, see Ch. 221, Dissolution of Marriage: Procedure .

[3] Contents of and Attachments to Form

The show cause order is directed to the respondent, whose name is to be listed in Paragraph 1 of the form. Hearing information should be set forth in Paragraph 2.

Although not specified by the form, it appears that the moving party may use the Judicial Council form of Application for Order and Supporting Declaration (Family Law-Uniform Parentage) [see Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-310] to apply for the orders being sought, and the Judicial Council form of Temporary Orders (Family Law-Uniform Parentage) [see Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-305] to describe any orders granted pending a hearing that are not on the face of the Order to Show Cause form [see Fam. Code §§ 4906, 4917(a) (use of California procedural and substantive law)]. For illustrative filled-in versions of those forms, see Ch. 221, Dissolution of Marriage: Procedure . In addition, a specialized form of ex parte application and order has been adopted for use in obtaining an order of nondisclosure of a party's or child's address or other identifying information [see Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-511, illustrated in § 260.317].

Paragraph 3 of this Order to Show Cause form provides a series of checkoff boxes by which to indicate the various forms that are to be served along with this form. For example, if the Uniform Support Petition has not yet been served on the respondent, that Petition, the General Testimony form, and any associated forms may be ordered served on the respondent with this Order to Show Cause form. In addition, appropriate blank responsive and financial declaration forms may be ordered served [see, e.g., Cal. Judicial Council Forms FL-150, FL-155, FL-320, FL-520]. In modification situations, a copy of the most recent support order should be attached and the checkoff box marked.

If the court grants an order shortening time for service or hearing, the details of this order are to be set forth in Paragraph 4 of this form. Paragraph 4 also provides checkoff boxes by which to indicate the granting of any temporary or other orders.

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is an illustrative, filled-in version of the mandatory Judicial Council form of Response to Uniform Support Petition (UIFSA), for use by a respondent in a proceeding under the Uniform Interstate Family Support Act (UIFSA-Fam. Code § 4900 et seq.) [Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-520]. This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

The form permits the respondent:

- To admit or deny parentage of the children for whom support is at issue in the proceeding (Paragraph 1).
- To request genetic testing (Paragraph 2).
- To agree or disagree with the support being sought (Paragraph 3).
- To agree or disagree with other court orders requested (Paragraph 4).
- To request a court hearing (Paragraph 5).

Any voluntary declaration of paternity signed by the parents should be attached, and the associated checkoff box (Paragraph 1.b.) marked.

In addition, a respondent who objects to the amount of support requested may (but is not required to, for purposes of filing the form) attach a completed Income and Expense Declaration or Financial Statement (Simplified) [see Cal. Judicial Council Forms FL-150, FL-155]. It would appear that the financial declaration actually should be attached if the respondent admits parentage and only objects to the amount of support that has been requested--in contrast to opposing support because he or she denies being a parent.

Paragraph 6 of the form contains spaces in which the respondent must list his or her address and telephone number(s) for purposes of receipt of all official notices. The respondent must also notify the court and opposing parties of any changes to this information.

The original of the Response form must be filed with the court within 30 days of the date of service of the Uniform Support Petition. A copy of the Response must first be served on the other parties and the proof of service information completed on page two of the Response, before filing the original form with the court.

The form is intended to be used to obtain, ex parte, a court order requiring the nondisclosure of the address or other identifying information of a party or child in a proceeding under the Uniform Interstate Family Support Act (UIFSA-Fam. Code § 4900 et seq.) [see Fam. Code § 4926]. The basis for the order is a finding by the court that the health, safety, freedom of movement, or physical or emotional well-being of the applicant or the applicant's child would be unreasonably put at risk by the disclosure of identifying information in the pleadings or other documents filed in the proceeding [see Fam. Code §§ 4926, 4977]. Fam. Code § 4977 provides for the order to be sought by a "child, parent, guardian or other caretaker of a child, or party."

[3] Contents of Form

Except when the child support agency is the applicant, the applicant's name must be listed in Paragraph 1, along with the name of the protected person-that is, the person who is the subject of the nondisclosure order (which, in many cases, will be the same as the applicant). If the child support agency files the application, Paragraph 2 should be completed. In Paragraph 3, the mailing address of the protected person for service of process must be set forth. This designated address must not be that of a governmental agency unless the agency has first consented in writing to the designation [see Fam. Code § 4977(b)]. In Paragraph 4, the applicant must set forth facts supporting issuance of the nondisclosure order. An attached declaration may be used if there is insufficient space on the form in which to provide the details.

The court's findings and order are set out in Paragraphs 5 et seq. If the order for nondisclosure is granted, a copy is to be served on the other party (and the agency if it is not the applicant) by first-class mail [see Fam. Code § 4977(b)]. The order will not expire until further order of the court, issued after a hearing on a noticed motion brought by the other party [see Fam. Code § 4977(c)].

A notice on the form provides that "use of this ex parte application and order will require that the UIFSA petition in this matter be initiated in the California court in which this application is submitted pursuant to Fam. Code §§ 4907 and 4918." For discussion of the UIFSA Order to Show Cause, see §§ 260.315[2], [3].

This form is an illustration of the mandatory Judicial Council form of Judgment Regarding Parental Obligations (UIFSA) [Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-530]. This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

This form is for use in setting forth the terms of a judgment concerning support obligations for children in the context of a proceeding under the Uniform Interstate Family Support Act (UIFSA-- Fam. Code § 4900 et seq.). The form may be used either to reflect the terms of a proposed or actual judgment. If the form is used as a proposed judgment, the checkoff box in Paragraph 1(a) should be marked. That paragraph advises the respondent that if he or she fails to file a response within 30 days of being served with Summons (§ 260.314) and the Uniform Support Petition (§ 260.310), the proposed judgment will become legally binding. However, if the form is used as the actual judgment, the checkoff box in Paragraph 1(b) should be marked.

Additional checkoff boxes on the form provide for setting out:

- The nature of the proceeding, parties' appearances, and who is to pay support (Paragraph 2);
- The basis for the support order (Paragraphs 3-5); and
- The identity of the child or children for whom support is to be paid, the finding that the respondent is a parent of that child or children, amounts of current and past due support to be paid and related payment details (Paragraph 6).

The form includes a provision for issuance of an earnings assignment order (Paragraph 6(f)), as well as orders to provide and maintain health insurance (Paragraph 6(g)), and for the parent ordered to pay support to pay costs (Paragraph 6(l)). Orders not otherwise preprinted on the form may be set forth in Paragraph 6(m).

[2] Use of Form

Set forth in [1], above, is a filled-in, illustrative version of the mandatory Judicial Council form of Ex Parte Application for Transfer and Order (UIFSA) [Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-560]. This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

This form is for use by a petitioner or local child support agency to apply ex parte for an order transferring a proceeding brought under the Uniform Interstate Family Law Act (Fam. Code § 4900 et seq.) to another county within California. The application is based on the ground that the petitioner, the respondent (or both of these individuals) reside elsewhere than the county in which a UIFSA petition has been filed, an order has been entered, or in which another state's order has been registered [see Fam. Code § 5001]. It requires that the applicant identify the California county where the absent party or parties now reside, and name the tribunal to which the transfer should be made--typically, the superior court of the new county of the absent party's residence.

If the court grants the transfer order, the court clerk will send copies of the order to the parties and support agencies. Therefore, counsel should plan on providing multiple copies and preaddressed, stamped envelopes to the clerk for this purpose.

§ 260.350 Petition to Enforce Sister-State Custody Order

[1] FORM Petition to Enforce Sister-State Custody Order

Jurisdiction to Determine Custody and Visitation

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Petitioner,	)	NO. _____
vs.	)	PETITION TO ENFORCE SISTER-STATE CUS-
_____ [name],	)	TODY ORDER
Respondent	)	[Fam. Code § 3448]

Petitioner alleges:

1. Petitioner _____[name] is the _____ [e.g., mother] of the _____[name of child], a minor, born _____[date], in _____[place of birth], and currently residing at _____[specify address of child's actual location, if known].

2. Respondent, _____[name] is the _____ [e.g., father] of the above-named child, and is currently residing at _____[specify respondent's address, if known].

3. Petitioner and respondent were married at the times of the child's conception and birth. Thereafter, they were divorced by a decree of _____[name and state of court] dated _____. The child was determined to be a child of the marriage in the decree of divorce, and custody and visitation of the child were provided for in the decree as further described hereafter.

4. After the parties' divorce, petitioner and the child permanently left the state of _____[decree state], and moved to California on _____[date]. California has been the continuous residence and domicile of the child since that time.

5. Respondent has continued to reside in _____[decree state]. Therefore, _____[decree state] has exclusive, continuing jurisdiction under the Parental Kidnapping Prevention Act (Title 28 United States Code, Section 1738A(d)), and the Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction and Enforcement Act (Section 3422 of the California Family Code).

6. Under the above decree of divorce, _____ [specify custody and visitation provisions of decree, e.g., petitioner was granted primary physical custody of the child, subject to respondent's right to exercise "reasonable" visitation. Respondent's visitation rights are not further expressed or enumerated]. A certified copy of the decree is attached to this petition.

7. The court that issued the above decree of divorce _____ [specify whether court identified jurisdictional basis that it relied on, and if so, what it was, e.g., identified "home state" jurisdiction under the Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction and Enforcement Act as the jurisdictional basis that it relied on when exercising jurisdiction].

8. The custody order to be enforced in the above divorce decree _____ [specify whether custody order has been vacated, stayed, or modified, and if so, identify the court, case number, and nature of the proceeding, e.g., has not been vacated, stayed, or modified to date].

9. _____ [Specify whether any proceedings have been commenced that could affect the current proceeding, and if so, identify the court, case number, and the nature of the proceeding, e.g., No proceedings relating to domestic violence, protective orders, termination of parental rights, adoption, or other matters have been commenced that could affect the current proceeding].

10. On _____[date], at _____[place of registration], the above divorce decree was registered and confirmed as a child custody determination under Section 3445 of the California Family Code. A certified copy of the order confirming registration is attached to this petition.

11. _____ [Specify facts supporting need for enforcement of custody decree, e.g., Respondent called petitioner and requested that the child visit him in _____ (name of state) for a period of two months during summer vacation. Petitioner granted the request, but respondent did not return the child to California after the two-month visitation period expired. Petitioner requests an order that requires respondent to return the child to petitioner's custody on or before _____ (date)].

12. Petitioner requests a reasonable award of necessary costs, fees, and expenses as authorized under Section 3452 of the California Family Code. Respondent has the ability to pay such an award.

13. _____ [Specify any relief sought in addition to immediate custody of child and fees, costs, and expenses, e.g., Petitioner requests the assistance of the district attorney in locating and returning the child to petitioner's custody].

14. A completed declaration under the Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction and Enforcement Act is attached.

WHEREFORE, Petitioner prays judgment as follows:

1. For an order enforcing the _____[decree state] custody order of _____[date], to provide _____ [specify, e.g., that petitioner may take immediate physical custody of the child, and that respondent will immediately return the child to California];

2. For an order requiring respondent to pay the cost of airfare from _____[state of Respondent's residence] to California;

3. For reasonable attorney's fees;

4. For costs of suit herein incurred;

5. _____ [Specify any other relief sought in the body of the petiion, e.g., For an order requiring the district attorney to proceed in accordance with Section 3130 et seq. of the California Family Code to locate respondent and the child, and to return the child to petitioner's custody].

6. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

VERIFICATION

I, _____[name], am the Petitioner in this matter. I have read the foregoing petition and know the contents thereof. The same is true of my own knowledge, except as to those matters that are therein alleged on information and belief, and as to those matters, I believe it to be true.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

The form in [1], above, is a sample petition for California enforcement of an out-of-state child custody determination under the Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction and Enforcement Act [Fam. Code § 3400 et seq.] and Parental Kidnapping Prevention Act [28 U.S.C. § 1738A]. The petition is authorized under Fam. Code § 3448. For discussion of the required contents of the petition, see § 260.206[2] [see Fam. Code § 3448(b)].

For purposes of illustration, the allegations of this form assume that the child's parents are divorced, and one of them continues to reside in the state that made the child custody determination (the "decree state"). The child and one parent now live in California, and that parent wants to enforce the custodial arrangement. Given this scenario, the other state court retains custody jurisdiction because one parent still resides in the other state, and because the other state court has not made a determination that significant connections with the other state no longer exist [see Fam. Code § 3422].

A certified copy of the custody decree (that is, of the divorce decree containing the custody order) should be attached to the petition, although statute also permits attachment of a "copy of a certified copy" [Fam. Code § 3448(a)].

This form also assumes that the sister-state custody order has been registered and confirmed in California (without opposition) under Fam. Code § 3445, and therefore, the form provides for the petitioner to list the date and place of registration. It appears, however, that formal registration of the sister-state child custody determination is not required for enforcement, and if no registration has taken place, this should be stated in the petition [see, e.g., Fam. Code § 3448(b)(6)].

The petition for enforcement must be verified [Fam. Code § 3448(a)]. As with any petition involving custody or visitation, a completed UCCJEA declaration (see Ch. 221, Dissolution of Marriage: Procedure) should be attached [see Fam. Code §§ 3400 et seq., 3429]. For further discussion of jurisdiction under the PKPA and UCCJEA, see Ch 394, Parent and Child .

For a form of declaration in support of the issuance of a warrant for the immediate custody of a child, see § 260.351.

[1] FORM--Declaration in Support of Application for Warrant to Take Physical Custody of Child Declaration in Support of Application for Warrant to Take Physical Custody of Child

1. I, _____[name], am the _____ [petitioner or respondent] in this matter and _____ [specify relationship, e.g., father] of the child, _____[name of child], whose custody is the subject of these proceedings. I am a resident of the state of _____[name of state]. _____ [Describe custody award, e.g., I was awarded the primary physical custody of the child by decree rendered by a court of the state of on _____ (decree state), on _____ (date)].

2. _____ [Specify facts supporting issuance of custody warrant on basis of imminent likelihood of serious physical harm or removal from California, e.g., On _____ (date), Respondent took the child from school and fled to California without informing me of her California address. I have located respondent and the child with the help of private investigators. Respondent is living with the child in an apartment, and has not enrolled the child in school. On two previous occasions, respondent has taken the child without permission, in violation of the custody order that I now seek to enforce, and has secreted herself and the child for several weeks. Respondent has never voluntarily returned the child, but has only relinquished the child after being located by me].

3. As shown by these facts, the child is imminently likely to _____ [suffer serious physical harm or be removed from California]. A warrant to take immediate custody of the child pursuant to Section 3451 of the California Family Code is required for the child's protection.

[2] FORM--Order for Warrant to Take Physical Custody of Child Order for Warrant to Take Physical Custody of Child

THE COURT FINDS:

1. That _____ [Party in violation of custody order, e.g., Respondent], _____[name], has _____ [recite factual findings, e.g., removed _____ (name of child), a minor, born _____ (date) from the lawful custody of _____ (specify other party, e.g., petitioner), _____ (name), on three separate occasions, without permission and in violation of a child custody order entered on _____ (date) by a court of competent jurisdiction of the state of _____ (name of state); that on each occasion respondent has secreted the child and herself until she was located by petitioner; that Respondent has never voluntarily relinquished the child after secreting the child; and that respondent is presently living in California with the child after removing the child without permission from the child's school in _____ (name of state).]

2. That _____[name of child] is imminently likely to _____ [suffer serious physical harm or be removed from California].

THEREFORE, THE COURT ORDERS: that a warrant to take immediate physical custody of _____[name of child] shall immediately issue pursuant to Section 3451 of the California Family Code. The warrant is enforceable throughout California and may be executed by any peace officer in the performance of his or her duties as a sworn officer.

_____ [signature]

[3] Use of Forms

The forms in [1] and*[2], above,* are for use in applying for a warrant to take physical custody of a child who is likely to immediately suffer serious physical harm or be removed from the state [see Fam. Code § 3451(a)].

The form in [1], above, is a declaration of facts describing the need for the child custody warrant. The form in [2], above, is a sample order issuing the warrant on the basis of the declaration.

The premise of these forms is that the state that entered the initial child custody determination has exclusive and continuing jurisdiction, but that California has been asked to enforce the custody order [see Fam. Code §§ 3422, 3448]. The forms assume that the noncustodial parent has abducted the child from the decree state, and is expected to flee with the child if given advance notice of a child custody enforcement hearing [see Fam. Code § 3448(d)]. For further discussion of enforcement procedures, see § 260.206.

The application for a child custody warrant should be filed with the petition for enforcement of the child custody order [Fam. Code § 3451]. The declaration must be verified [Fam. Code § 3451(a)]. For a form of verification, see §

260.350[1].

For all declarations supporting family law motions, it is recommended that the Judicial Council form for Attached Declaration [Cal. Judicial Council Form MC-031] be used and attached to the Application for Order and Supporting Declaration form. The Judicial Council form for Additional Page [Cal. Judicial Council Form MC-020] may be used to attach orders to the Findings and Order After Hearing form that do not appear on the face of that form, such as the order in [2], above.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. General Provisions

22-264 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 264.10

§ 264.10 Fax Filing and Service

[1] Authorization

Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 2.300-2.306 govern the filing and service of papers by fax. The Judicial Council adopted the rules under the authority of the Code of Civil Procedure [see former Code Civ. Proc. § 1012.5 (fax pilot project--repealed effective January 1, 2002 (Stats 2001, ch. 115)] and under the Council's constitutional power to adopt court rules [see Cal. Const., art. VI, § 6]. Code Civ. Proc. § 1010.5 also authorizes the Judicial Council to adopt rules regarding filing of papers by fax, both directly with the courts and through third parties. The rules may provide that the fax document constitutes an original document [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1010.5].

[2] Statewide Applicability

Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 2.300-2.306, referred to below as the fax rules, apply to fax filing and service in civil, probate, and family law proceedings in all trial courts [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.300(a)].

These rules do not apply to juvenile court proceedings [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.300(a); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.522 (rule governing fax filing in juvenile courts)].

[3] Papers Excluded From Fax Rules

[a] Service of Summons and Other Opening Papers

The fax rules do not affect the requirements for personal or substituted service of the summons and complaint or any other opening paper [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 2.300, 2.306(a) (discussed under [b], below), 2.300(6), 2.301(5), 2.306 (rules authorizing "service of papers," but not service of summons, by fax)].

[b] Documents Carrying Original Seal of Court

A court may not issue by fax any document that is intended to carry the original seal of the court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule

2.300(c); see also discussion under [a], above]. However, a court may serve any notice by fax in the same manner that litigants may serve papers by fax [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.306(c); see also discussion in § 264.40 et seq. below].

[c] Wills, Codicils, Bonds, and Undertakings

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. General Provisions

22-264 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 264.11

§ 264.11 Definitions

[1] Fax Transmission

"Fax transmission" means the transmission of a copy of a document by a system that encodes a document into electrical signals, transmits these electrical signals over a telephone line, and reconstructs the signals to print a duplicate of the original document at the receiving end [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.301(2)].

[2] Fax Machine

"Fax machine" means a machine that can send, in regular resolution, a facsimile transmission using the international standard for scanning, coding, and transmission established for Group 3 machines by the Consultative Committee of International Telegraphy and Telephone of the International Telecommunications Union (CCITT). "Fax machine" includes, a fax modem that is connected to a personal computer [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.301(3) (also citing, with respect to the applicable international standard, CCITT Red Book, Recommendations T.4 and T.30, vol. VII, Facsimile VII.3 (Malaga-Torremolinos, 1984) (U.N. Bookstore Code ITU 6731)].

[3] Fax Filing

"Fax filing" or "filing by fax" means the fax transmission of a document to a court that accepts such documents [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.301(4)].

[4] Service by Fax

"Service by fax" means the transmission of a document to a party or the attorney for a party under the fax rules [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.301(5)].

[5] Transmission Record

"Transmission record" means the document printed by the sending fax machine stating the telephone number of the receiving machine, the number of pages sent, the transmission time and date, and an indication of errors in transmission [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.301(6)].

[6] Fax

"Fax" is an abbreviation for "facsimile," and refers, as indicated by the context, to facsimile transmission or to a document so transmitted [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.301(1)].

[7] Fax Filing Agency

"Fax filing agency" means an entity that receives documents by fax for processing and filing with the court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.301(7)].

A document used for transmitting a fax must comply with Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.100 et seq. form or format of papers [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.302; but see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.20(a) (preempting local rules relating to, among other things, the form and format of papers)]. For discussion and forms relating to format requirements of motions generally, see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders ; see also discussion and forms in specific substantive or procedural articles relating to the particular proceeding or action in which the paper is to be filed.

Any exhibit that exceeds 81/2 by 11 inches must be reduced to not more than 81/2 by 11 inches before it is transmitted. The court may require the filing party to file the original of an exhibit that the party has filed by fax [Cal. Rules of Ct, Rule 2.302].

For discussion of additional format requirements applicable under the fax rules, see § 264.23. For discussion relating to the format preparation of papers transmitted by fax to a fax filing agency for eventual filing with the court, see § 264.20.

§ 264.20 Filing Through Fax Filing Agency

[1] Duties of Agency

A party may transmit a document by fax to a fax filing agency for filing with any trial court. The fax filing agency acts as an agent of the filing party and not as an agent of the court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.303(a); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.301(7) (defining fax filing agency; discussed in § 264.11[7])].

A fax filing agency that receives documents for filing must prepare the document so that it complies with Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.100 et seq. and any other requirements for filing with the court. In addition, the agency must physically transport the document to the court, file the document with the court, and pay any applicable filing fee [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.303(b); for discussion of format of papers, see § 264.13].

Except as otherwise provided in the fax rules, a fax filing agency must keepconfidential all documents transmitted to it [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.303(d)].

By filing a document with the court, a fax filing agency certifies that it has complied with the fax rules and that the document filed is the full and unaltered fax-produced document received by the agency. The agency is not required to give any additional certification [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.303(e)].

[2] Requirement of Advance Arrangements

A fax filing agency is not required to accept papers for filing unless appropriate arrangements for payment of filing fees and service charges have been made by the transmitting party before the papers are transmitted to the fax filing agency. If an agency received document from a party with whom it does not have prior arrangements, the agency may discard the document without notice to the sender [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.303(c)].

§ 264.25 When Fax Filing Deemed Completed

There is no single statewide time limit in the rules for deeming a fax filing complete. Rather, the matter is left to the practice of each court as embodied in its local rules governing the deadlines for filing. Each court determines when it accepts documents for filing, and may apply those deadlines created by its existing rules to filings made by fax [Rosenberg v. Superior Court (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 897, 900, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 803 (Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.306(g) requires only that service by fax be complete by 5 p.m. or be deemed served on the next court day; rule does not encompass filing by fax)]. Code Civ. Proc. § 1010.6(a)(3), relating to electronic filing, does provide that papers filed after the close of business are deemed filed the next day. For discussion of electronic filing and service under section 1010.6, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers, § 518.40 et seq.

If a document transmitted to the court by fax machine is not filed with the court because of an error in the transmission of the document to the court, that was unknown to the sending party, or because of a failure by the court to process the document on receipt, the sending party may move the court for an order directing that the document be filed nunc pro tunc. The motion must be accompanied by the transmission record (discussed under § 264.24) and a proof of transmission in the form set out in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.304(d) [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.304(d)]. For a form of motion for an order directing nunc pro tunc filing under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.304(d), including a form a proof of transmission, see § 264.61.

§ 264.27 Payment of Filing Fees

[1] Payment by Charge Card

A court may permit the use of credit cards, debit cards, or electronic funds transfers under Gov. Code § 6159(b) if approved by the Judicial Council. [see Gov. Code § 6159(c); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.304(e)(1)]. When a paper to be filed by fax requires a filing fee, that paper must include on the fax cover sheet (discussed under § 264.22, above), the credit or debit card account number to which the fees may be charged, the signature of the cardholder authorizing the charging of the fees, and the expiration date of the credit or debit card [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.304(e)(1)].

The amount charged is the applicable filing fee plus any fee or discount imposed by the card issuer or draft purchaser [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.304(e)(3)].

Before it accepts a fax filing charged to a credit or credit card, a court may seek authorization from the company that issued the card. If the charge is not approved by the issuing company, the court may reject the filing of the paper [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.304(e)(2)]. If the court accepts a paper for filing and the charge is later rejected by the issuing company, the court may proceed according to Code Civ. Proc. § 411.20 relating to returned checks [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.304(e)(2)]. For discussion of Section 411.20, see Ch. 123, Complaints and Cross Complaints .

[2] Payment on Account

If the court so provides in its local rule establishing a direct filing program, an account may be used to pay fees for documents filed by fax by an attorney or party who has established the account with the court before filing any paper by fax that requires a filing fee [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.304(f)]. The court may require a deposit in advance of an amount not to exceed $1,000 or the court may agree to bill the attorney not more often than monthly [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.304(f)].

[1] In General

A party who files or serves a signed document by fax represents that the original signed document is in the party's possession or control [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.305(a)].

Notwithstanding any provision of law to the contrary, including Evid. Code §§ 255 and 260 (defining the terms "original" and "duplicate" for purposes of the Evidence Code), a signature produced by fax transmission is deemed to be an original [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.305(d)].

[2] Demand for Inspection of Original Signed Document

At any time after filing or service of a signed fax document, any other party may serve a demand for production of the original physically signed document. The demand must be served on all other parties but not filed with the court. [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.305(b)].

If a demand for production of the original signed document is made, the parties must arrange a meeting at which the original signed document can be examined [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.305(c)].

§ 264.41 Fax Service of Papers by Parties

[1] Consent by Written Agreement

Service by fax is permitted only if the parties agree and a written confirmation of that agreement is made [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.306(a)(1)]. Any notice or other document must be transmitted to a fax machine maintained by the person on whom it is served at the fax machine telephone numberas last given by that person on any document that the party has filed in the case and served on the party making service [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.306(a)(2)].

Inclusion of a fax number in the attorney identification information in the upper left corner of a paper filed with a court does not constitute consent to service by fax unless otherwise provided by law [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(1)].

[2] Availability of Fax Machine

A party or attorney agreeing to accept service by fax must make his or her fax machine generally available for receipt of served documents between 9:00 a.m. and 5:00 p.m. on days that are not court holidays under Code Civ. Proc. § 136. This rule, however, does not prevent the party or attorney from sending other documents by fax or providing for normal repair and maintenance of the fax machine during these hours [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.306(f)].

[3] Service Lists

In a case in which the parties have agreed to service by fax, the plaintiff or petitioner named first in the complaint or petition, in addition to its responsibilities under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.254, must maintain a current list of the parties that includes their fax numbers for service of notice on each party [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.306(b)(1)(A)] and furnish a copy of the list on request to any party or the court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.306(b)(1)(B)] .

In a case in which the parties have agreed to service by fax, each party, in addition to its responsibilities under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.254, must furnish the first-named plaintiff or petitioner with the party's current fax number for service of notice when it first appears in the action [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.306(b)(2)(A)]. If the party serves an order, notice, or pleading on a party that has not yet appeared in the action, that party must serve a copy of the service list at the same time that the order, notice, or pleading is served [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.306(b)(2)(B)].

§ 264.43 Extension of Time Periods When Service Is by Fax

Service by fax is complete on transmission [see § 264.42], but any period of notice and any right or duty to do any act or make any response within any period or on a date certain after the service of the document, which period or date is prescribed by statute or rule of court, is extended by two days. If service is governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b), the extension is two calendar days; if governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 1013(e) and/or Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.306(d), the extension is two court days [compare Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b) with Code Civ. Proc. § 1013(e); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.306(d)].

Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b) applies to the notices listed in Section 1005(a), and to all other proceedings under the Code of Civil Procedure in which notice is required and no other time or method is prescribed by law or by court or judge [Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(a)].

When Section 1005(b) applies, Code Civ. Proc. § 1013(e) does not [Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b)]. In addition, Section 1013(e) provides that the extension does not apply to the following to extend the time for filing:

- Notice of intent to move for a new trial.
- Notice of intent to move to vacate a judgment pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 663a.
- Notice of appeal.

Otherwise, the Section 1013 extension applies absent a specific exception provided for by other statute or rule of court [Code Civ. Proc. § 1013(e); cf. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.306(d)].

- A statement that the document was sent by fax transmission and that the transmission was reported as complete and without error must be used instead of the statement that the envelope was sealed and deposited in the mail with postage fully prepaid [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.306(h)(3)];

- A copy of the transmission report must be attached to the proof of service and the proof of service must declare that the transmission report was properly issued by the sending fax machine [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.306(h)(4)]; and

- Service of papers by fax is ineffective if the transmission does not fully conform to the provisions of Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.306 [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.306(h)(5)].

Thus, it appears that, with the foregoing exceptions, proof of service by fax may be made by a nonattorney as described under Code Civ. Proc. § 1013a(1) or (3) [see § 264.63], by an attorney as prescribed by Code Civ. Proc. § 1013a(2) [see § 264.64], and by a clerk of a court of record as prescribed by Code Civ. Proc. § 1013a(4). For discussion and forms relating to proof of service of papers generally under Code Civ. Proc. § 1013a, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers .

[1] FORM Facsimile Transmission Cover Sheet [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.304(b)]--Judicial Council Form MC-005

The form is for use by a party filing a paper with a court by fax transmission [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 2.304(b)]. For discussion of this mandatory form [Cal. Rule of Ct., Rule 1.31], see § 264.22.

The form should only be used in courts that have, by local rule, provided for direct filing by fax pursuant to Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.304(a).

The form must be used in any county which permits direct filing to the court by fax [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.304(b)].

This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

[3] Filing Fees

The cover sheet requires the filing party to provide information concerning the payment of filing fees. If the court so provides in its local rule establishing a direct fax filing program, an account may be used, as in this example, to pay fees for documents filed by fax by an attorney or party who has established the account with the court before filing any paper by fax that requires a filing fee [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.304(f)]. The court may require a deposit in advance of an amount not to exceed $1,000 or the court may agree to bill the attorney not more often than monthly [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.304(f)]. In addition, credit cards, debit cards, electronic fund transfers, or debit accounts may be used to charge filing fees on fax filings made directly with the court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.304(e)(1)].

For discussion of filing fees, see §§ 264.27 and 264.28.

PROOF OF TRANSMISSION

I, _____ [name], declare:

At the time of transmission, I was at least 18 years of age and not a party to this legal proceeding. On _____ [date], at _____ [time], I transmitted to the _____ [identify court] the following documents by fax machine under Rule 2.304 of the California Rules of Court: _____ [specify documents transmitted]. The court's fax telephone number that I used was _____ [specify number used]. The fax machine I used complied with Rule 2.301 of the California Rules of Court and no error was reported by the machine. Pursuant to Rule 2.304 of the California Rules of Court, I caused the machine to print a transmission record of the transmission, a copy of which is attached to this declaration.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.
Dated: _____.

_____ [signature]

[Attach printed transmission record.]

[2] Use of Form

The form of notice of motion and proof of transmission set out in [1], above, is for use in seeking an order directing the filing of a paper nunc pro tunc, when a prior attempted facsimile filing has failed either (1) because of an error in the transmission of the document to the court that was unknown to the sending party or (2) because of a failure by the court to process the facsimile filing when the filing was received [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.304(d)].

The form should only be used in courts that have, by local rule, provided for direct filing by fax pursuant to Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.304(a).

For a form of proposed order granting the motion, see § 264.62.

[3] Proof of Transmission

The notice of motion contains a proof of transmission in the form as required under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.304(d).

[4] Transmission Record

The motion for an order filing a document nunc pro tunc must be accompanied by the transmission record of the attempted transmission [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.304(d)]. The transmission record is the document printed by the sending facsimile machine that states the telephone number of the receiving machine, the number of pages sent, the transmission time and date, and an indication of errorsin transmission [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 2.301(6)]. Apparently, a copy of the transmission record is sufficient [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.304(d) (form of proof of transmission referring to "copy of" transmission record); but see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.304(d) (stating that the "motion must be accompanied by the transmission record")].

[5] Memorandum

A memorandum must be filed and a copy served with the motion [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1112, 3.1113; see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1005(b), 1010]. For discussion and general forms, see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities .

[2] Use of Form

The form set out in [1], above, is for use to prove service by fax transmission of one or more papers by a person other than an active member of the State Bar or a court clerk [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1013a(1); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.306(h)]. The form should only be used in courts that have, by local rule, provided for direct filing by fax pursuant to Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.304(a).

[3] Declaration Under Penalty of Perjury

Proof of service by fax transmission by a person other than an active member of the State Bar or a court clerk is required to be made by affidavit [Code Civ. Proc. § 1013a(1); see Code Civ. Proc. § 2009 (use of affidavit to prove service of papers)] or declaration under penalty of perjury [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5].

False proof of service constitutes perjury [Penal Code §§ 27(b), 118].

The affidavit (or declaration [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) of service by mail must set forth the exact title of the document served and filed in the cause. It must show the name and residence or business address of the person making the service, that he or she is a resident of or employed in the county from which the transmission was sent, that he or she is over the age of 18 years and not a party to the cause, and the time and date of transmittal [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1013a(1)].

In addition, the affidavit or declaration must show the sending fax machine telephone number, and the name and fax machine number of the person served. The declaration must also state that the document was transmitted by fax transmission and that the transmission was reported as complete and without error [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.306(h)(3)].

[5] Transmission Report

A copy of the transmission report must be attached to the proof of service [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.306(h)(4)].

[2] Use of Form

The form set out in [1], above, is for use to prove service of one or more papers by fax transmission, by an active member of the State Bar [Code Civ. Proc. § 1013a(2)]. The form should only be used in courts that have, by local rule, provided for direct filing by fax pursuant to Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.304(a).

An attorney's certificate of service is not required to be made by affidavit or otherwise sworn to and, hence, is not executed under penalty of perjury [cf. Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.3 (certificate of sheriff, marshal, or superior court clerk has same force as affidavit)]. Nevertheless, a willfully false proofof service would constitute a violation of the attorney's oath to discharge the duties of an attorney to the best of his or her knowledge and ability [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6067] and of the duty not to mislead the judge or any judicial officer by any artifice or false statement of fact or law [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068(d)] and, hence, would subject the attorney to possible suspension or disbarment [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6103].

[3] Contents

The certificate of service must set forth the exact title of the documents served and filed in the cause. It must show the name and business address of the person making the service, that he or she is an active member of the State Bar of California, and that he or she is not a party to the cause [Code Civ. Proc. § 1013a(2)]. For additional discussion relating to the contents, see § 264.63[2] et seq.

Chapter 265 FEDERAL COURTS: JURISDICTION AND REMOVAL
PART I. SCOPE

§ 265.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter discusses and contains forms related to:

- An overview of the grounds for federal court jurisdiction and of the federal courts in California [see §§ 265.10 -265.12].
- Federal question jurisdiction [see § 265.14].
- Diversity of citizenship jurisdiction, including in class actions [see § 265.15].
- Other topics related to the jurisdiction of federal courts [see §§ 265.16 -165.20].
- Removal of civil actions from state court to federal district court [see §§ 265.30 -265.40].

The forms relating to jurisdiction are:

- Jurisdictional allegations for use in federal courts in cases in which jurisdiction is based on diversity of citizenship [see §§ 265.80 -265.92].
- Jurisdictional allegation for a general federal question [see § 265.93].
- Jurisdictional allegations for particular federal questions [see §§ 265.94 -265.141].
- A notice of motion, motion to dismiss for lack of subject matter jurisdiction and accompanying form of order [see §§ 265.142 -265.145].

§ 265.13 Federal Jurisdiction Required to Be Pleaded

Federal courts are courts of limited jurisdiction [Grace v. American Central Ins. Co. (1883) 109 U.S. 278, 283, 3 S. Ct. 207, 27 L. Ed. 932] . They are empowered to act only in those specific instances authorized by Congress [McGlynn v. Employers Commercial Union Ins. Co. of America (D.P.R. 1974) 386 F. Supp. 774, 776-777] and only when such a basis for federal jurisdiction is shown in the complaint [Schaedler v. Reading Eagle Publication, Inc. (3d Cir. 1967) 370 F.2d 795, 799] . Therefore, unless governed by specific provisions applicable to special proceedings [see Fed. R. Civ. P., Rules 1, 81], in any suit of a civil nature whether cognizable as a case at law or in equity, a pleading that sets forth a claim for relief, whether an original claim, counterclaim, cross claim, or a third-party claim, must contain a short and plain statement of the grounds on which the court's jurisdiction depends, unless the court already has jurisdictionand the claim needs no new grounds of jurisdiction to support it [Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 8(a)(1)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Jurisdiction

22-265 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 265.14

§ 265.14 Federal Question Jurisdiction

[1] In General

The federal district courts have original jurisdiction of all civil actions arising under the Constitution, laws, or treaties of the United States [28 U.S.C.S. § 1331]. An action "arises under" federal law if the complaint presents a substantial dispute over the effect of a federal law and the result turns on the federal question. Usually, federal law creates the cause of action, but a case may also "arise under" federal law if vindication of a right under state law turns on a construction of federal law [Berg v. Leason (9th Cir. 1994) 32 F.3d 422, 423 (citing Merrell Dow Pharmaceuticals v. Thompson (1986) 478 U.S. 804, 808, 106 S. Ct. 3229, 92 L. Ed. 2d 650)]. On the other hand, a federal district court does not have subject matter jurisdiction to hear a direct appeal from the final judgment of a state court under this statute [District of Columbia Court of Appeals v. Feldman (1983) 460 U.S. 462, 483, 103 S. Ct. 1303, 75 L. Ed. 2d 206 ; Noel v. Hall (9th Cir. 2003) 341 F.3d 1148, 1154 (allegation of legal error)].

In addition to the general federal question jurisdiction conferred on the federal courts by 28 U.S.C.S. § 1331, federal question jurisdiction may also be conferred on district courts by specific statutes. When it is clear that an action involves a federal question arising under a particular statute, then jurisdiction is conferred on the district court, and there is no additional requirement that general federal question jurisdiction under 28 U.S.C.S. § 1331 be alleged. In such a case, any additional allegation of federal court jurisdiction may be stricken from the pleading because the code sections conferring particular and general federal question jurisdiction are independent and mutually exclusive [see American Amusement Co. v. Ludwig (D. Minn. 1949) 82 F. Supp. 265, 266-267] . Thus, in actions arising under a special jurisdictional statute such as suits under the patent, copyright, and trademark laws [28 U.S.C.S. § 1338; see, e.g., Landmark Screens, LLC v. Morgan, Lewis & Bockius, LLP (2010) 183 Cal. App. 4th 238, 244, 107 Cal. Rptr. 3d 373 (dismissing for lack of jurisdiction over patent law issues arising from legal malpriactice claim)] or in actions arising out of the violation of laws regulating interstate commerce [28 U.S.C.S. § 1337], jurisdiction is conferred on the district courts by pleading the particular act and alleging that the action arises thereunder [see Technical Tape Corp. v. Minnesota Mining & Mfg. Co. (2d Cir. 1952) 200 F.2d 876, 876-877 ; American Amusement Co. v. Ludwig (D. Minn. 1949) 82 F. Supp. 265, 266] .

Federal jurisdiction is also conferred when either the United States or an agency whose congressional charter authorizes it to bring suit in federal court is the plaintiff [28 U.S.C.S. § 1345]. Federal jurisdiction may also be available when Congressional charters authorize certain agencies to "sue or be sued" in federal court [see, e.g., 12 U.S.C.S. § 1441a(a)(5)(J) (Resolution Trust Corporation); 12 U.S.C.S. § 1819(b)(2)(B) (Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation); 28 U.S.C.S. § 2679 (Federal Employees Liability Reform and Tort Compensation Act of 1988); 36 U.S.C.S. § 300105(a)(5) (American Red Cross); see also American Red Cross v. S.G. (1992) 505 U.S. 247, 112 S. Ct. 2465, 2471-2472, 120 L. Ed. 2d 201, 212 (grant of original jurisdiction must be specific as to federal courts)].

However, it should be noted that regardless of whether jurisdiction is conferred on a district court by 28 U.S.C.S. § 1331 or some particular federal statute, if the facts giving the court jurisdiction are set forth in the complaint, the statutory provision conferring jurisdiction need not be specifically pleaded [Williams v. United States (9th Cir. 1969) 405 F.2d 951, 954] .

[2] Sufficiency of Allegation

When the jurisdiction of a district court has been invoked on the sole ground that the cause involves a federal question, it is not enough to allege that questions of a federal character arise in the case; in addition, it must plainly appear that the averments attempting to bring the case within federal jurisdiction are real and substantial [Blumenstock Bros. Advertising Agency v. Curtis Pub. Co. (1919) 252 U.S. 436, 441, 40 S. Ct. 385, 64 L. Ed. 649] . Moreover, a suggestion of one party that the other will or may set up a claim under the Constitution or laws of the United States does not make the suit one arising under the Constitution or those laws. The claim for relief itself must present a federal question unaided either by anything alleged in anticipation of avoidance of defenses which may be interposed by another party or by a petition for removal [Skelly Oil Co. v. Phillips Petroleum Co. (1949) 339 U.S. 667, 672, 70 S. Ct. 876, 94 L. Ed. 1194] .

[3] Abstention or Deferral

Federal and state courts often exercise concurrent jurisdiction over the same subject matter. When that happens, a federal court generally need neither abstain (that is, dismiss the case before it) nor defer to the state proceedings (that is, withhold action until the state proceedings have concluded). In rare circumstances, however, principles of federalism and comity dictate otherwise [Growe v. Emison (1993) 507 U.S. 25, 32, 113 S. Ct. 1075, 122 L. Ed. 2d 388] . Whether a case meets the requirements of a particular abstention doctrine is a question of law that a federal court will review de novo [Mission Oaks Mobile Home Park v. City of Hollister (9th Cir. 1993) 989 F.2d 359, 360 , cert. denied, 127 L. Ed. 2d 373 (1994)] .

For example, abstention has been found necessary when the federal action raises difficult questions of state law bearing on important matters of state policy, or when federal jurisdiction has been invoked to restrain ongoing state criminal proceedings [see Colorado River Water Cons. Dist. v. U.S. (1976) 424 U.S. 800, 814-817, 96 S. Ct. 1236, 47 L. Ed. 2d 483] . Deferral has been required when (1) the complaint touches a sensitive area of social policy on which the federal courts ought not enter unless there is no open alternative to its adjudication; (2) such constitutional adjudication plainly can be avoided if a definitive ruling on the state issue would terminate the controversy; and (3) the possibly determinative issue of state law is doubtful [see Railroad Commission of Texas v. Pullman Co. (1941)312 U.S. 496, 498-501, 61 S. Ct. 643, 85 L. Ed. 971 ; Almodovar v. Reiner (9th Cir. 1987) 832 F.2d 1138, 1140 ; see also 40235 Washington Street Corp. v. Lusardi (9th Cir. 1992) 976 F.2d 587, 588] . However, Pullman abstention is appropriate only when the state statute is sufficiently uncertain that it is clearly subject to a limiting construction or interpretation that would save it from invalidation [Yniguez v. Arizonans for Official English (9th Cir. 1995) 42 F.3d 1217, 1227 ; Lind v. Grimmer (9th Cir. 1994) 30 F.3d 1115, 1121 , cert. denied sub nom Wang v. Lind, 513 U.S. 1111 (1995) (citing Harman v. Forssenius (1965) 380 U.S. 528, 534-535, 85 S. Ct. 1177, 14 L. Ed. 2d 50)].

Deferral is also appropriate when the case involves a local issue arising out of a complex regulatory scheme [see Burford v. Sun Oil Co. (1943) 319 U.S. 315, 332, 63 S. Ct. 1098, 87 L. Ed. 1424 ; Hotel Employees v. Nevada Gaming Com'n (9th Cir. 1993) 984 F.2d 1507, 1512] and will impact and unduly burden the state regulatory scheme [Hawthorne Sav. F.S.B. v. Reliance Ins. Co. (9th Cir. 2005) 421 F.3d 835, 848 (as amended) (federal court interpretation of California law concerning whether to defer to insurance insolvency proceedings in other states would not be unduly burdensome)]. A somewhat different deferral test applies in declaratory relief cases [see Brillhart v. Excess Ins. Co. (1942) 316 U.S. 491, 495, 62 S. Ct. 1173, 86 L. Ed. 1620 ; 40235 Washington Street Corp. v. Lusardi (9th Cir. 1992) 976 F.2d 587, 588] .

While there is no absolute rule to this effect, abstention is generally disfavored in First Amendment cases and in cases in which there is potential federal preemption of state law [see, e.g., Sycuan Band of Mission Indians v. Roache (9th Cir. 1995) 54 F.3d 535, 541 (abstention not appropriate when, despite state interest in enforcement, the matter is subject to exclusive federal jurisdiction); Yniguez v. Arizonans for Official English (9th Cir. 1995) 42 F.3d 1217, 1227 (First Amendment); Bud Antle, Inc. v. Barbosa (9th Cir. 1994) 35 F.3d 1355, 1365-1366 , modified on other grounds 35 F.3d 1355, 45 F.3d 1261 (1995) (important state interest not implicated because federal law preempted and state court would be acting beyond its jurisdiction to adjudicate the claim); Lind v. Grimmer (9th Cir. 1994) 30 F.3d 1115, 1121 , cert. denied sub nom Wang v. Lind 513 U.S. 1111 (1995) (actual issue not substance of state law but rather its abridgement of freedom of expression granted by First Amendment); cf. Almodovar v. Reiner (9th Cir. 1987) 832 F.2d 1138, 1140-1141 (First Amendment case, but involved state statute susceptible of a limiting construction)].

Although the Pullman doctrine has been referred to as a form of "abstention," it is preferrable to speak of Pullman "deferral" to highlight the distinction between those circumstances that require dismissal of a suit and those that require postponing consideration of its merits [Growe v. Emison (1993) 507 U.S. 25, 32 n.1, 113 S. Ct. 1075, 122 L. Ed. 2d 388] . The Pullman doctrine is a narrow exception to the district court's duty to decide cases that are properly before it. A district court that abstains under Pullman must dismiss the state-law claim and stay its proceedings on the constitutional question until a state court has resolved the state issue. A district court has no discretion to abstain if the abstention requirements are not met [Cedar Shake & Shingle Bur. v. City of Los Angeles (9th Cir. 1993) 997 F.2d 620, 622] .

The principle that federal courts should under certain circumstances abstain in favor of ongoing state proceedings was enunciated in Younger v. Harris (1971) 401 U.S. 37, 43, 91 S. Ct. 746, 27 L. Ed. 2d 669 . Although Younger involved state criminal proceedings, its holding has been extended to other proceedings that are judicial in nature [Ohio Civil Rights Comm'n v. Dayton Schools (1986) 477 U.S. 619, 627, 106 S. Ct. 2718, 91 L. Ed. 2d 512 ; San Jose Silicon Valley Chamber of Commerce Political Action Comm. v. City of San Jose (9th Cir. 2008) 546 F.3d 1087, 1092 ("state civil actions and state administrative proceedings"); Bud Antle, Inc. v. Barbosa (9th Cir. 1994) 35 F.3d 1355, 1365 , modified on other grounds 35 F.3d 1355, 45 F.3d 1261 (1995)]. In addressing Younger abstention issues, federal district courts must exercise jurisdiction except when specific legal standards are met, and may not exercise jurisdiction when those standards are met. There is no discretion vested in the district courts to do otherwise [San Jose Silicon Valley Chamber of Commerce Political Action Comm. v. City of San Jose (9th Cir. 2008) 546 F.3d 1087, 1092] . Accordingly, the limited circumstances in which abstention by federal courts is appropriate remain the exception rather than the rule [San Jose Silicon Valley Chamber of Commerce Political Action Com. v. City of San Jose (9th C ir.2008) 546 F.3d 1087, 1092] . For Younger abstention to be required, three elements are necessary: (1) ongoing state proceedings; (2) implicating important state interests; (3) that afford the plaintiff the opportunity to raise the constitutional claims [Agriesti v. MGM Grand Hotels, Inc. (9th Cir. 1995) 53 F.3d 1000, 1001] . While there are only three "threshold elements" to application of Younger, there is a vital and indispensable fourth element: The policies behind the Younger doctrine must be implicated by the actions requested of the federal court; once the three aforementioned elements are satisfied, the court does not automatically abstain, but abstains only if there is a Younger-based reason to abstain, i.e., if the court's action would enjoin, or have the practical effect of enjoining, ongoing state court proceedings [AmerisourceBergen Corp. v. Roden (9th Cir. 2007) 495 F.3d 1143, 1149]. An exception to this general rule applies if there is a showing of bad faith, harassment, or some other extraordinary circumstance that would make abstention inappropriate [see Middlesex County Ethics Comm. v. Garden State Bar

Ass'n (1982) 457 U.S. 423, 435, 437, 102 S. Ct. 2515, 73 L. Ed. 2d 116 ; San Jose Silicon Valley Chamber of Commerce Political Action Comm. v. City of San Jose (9th Cir. 2008) 546 F.3d 1087, 1092]. For purposes of Younger abstention, there is no principled distinction between finality of judgments for purposes of appellate review and finality of state-initiated proceedings [San Jose Silicon Valley Chamber of Commerce Political Action Comm. v. City of San Jose (9th Cir. 2008) 546 F.3d 1087, 1093 (administrative proceeding)].

Questions of deferral may also arise among the federal courts when a case that will adequately address a party's claims is already pending. In this situation, "the general principle is to avoid duplicative litigation," and advance judicial economy [Colorado River Water Cons. Dist. v. U.S. (1976) 424 U.S. 800, 817, 96 S. Ct. 1236, 47 L. Ed. 2d 483 ; O'Neill v. U.S. (9th Cir. 1995) 50 F.3d 677, 688] . Those circumstances are "exceedingly rare," because the existence of a substantial doubt as to the adequacy of the state court action to address a party's claims precludes the granting of a stay [Smith v. Central Ariz. Water Cons. Dist. (9th Cir. 2005) 418 F.3d 1028, 1033 (stay properly denied)].

For a detailed discussion of the abstention doctrine, see Moore's Federal Practice, Ch. 122 (3rd ed. Matthew Bender).

[4] Preemption

Complete preemption of state law by a federal statute provides exclusive federal question jurisdiction [Hall v. North American Van Lines, Inc. (9th Cir. 2007) 476 F.3d 683, 687-688 (claim, but not necessarily relief, must arise under federal law); see Atkins v. Praxair Inc. (9th Cir. 2006) 182 Fed. Appx. 724 , 726, (federal question jurisdiction based on Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974, 29 U.S.C.S. § 1001, et seq., preemption of state law claims that "relate to" an employee benefit plan under ERISA)]. Partial preemption of state law by a federal law provides federal question jurisdiction over claims based on the subject of preemption [see Peralta v. Hispanic Bus., Inc. (9th Cir. 2005) 419 F.3d 1064, 1068-1069 (federal question jurisdiction based on Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974, 29 U.S.C.S. § 1001, et seq., preemption of state law claims that "relate to" an employee benefit plan under ERISA)].

On the other hand, reverse preemption provisions in federal statutes bar federal question jurisdiction [see Qwest Corp. v. City of Surprise (9th Cir. 2006) 434 F.3d 1176, 1184 (federal Tax Injunction Act bars federal subject matter jurisdiction to enjoin state tax collection)].

Similarly, the existence of a defense based upon federal law is insufficient to support jurisdiction [Hall v. North American Van Lines, Inc. (9th Cir. 2007) 476 F.3d 683, 687 ; Wayne v. DHL Worldwide Express (9th Cir. 2002) 294 F.3d 1179, 1183] .

For discussion of preemption as a basis for removal to federal court, see § 265.33[2][d]. For discussion of determining whether and to what extent a federal law preempts state law, see § 531.91.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Jurisdiction

22-265 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 265.15

§ 265.15 Diversity of Citizenship Jurisdiction

[1] In General

The federal district courts have original jurisdiction of all civil actions in which the matter in controversy exceeds the sum or value of $75,000, exclusive of interest and costs, and the action is between: (1) citizens of different states; (2) citizens of a state and citizens or subjects of a foreign state; (3) citizens of different states and in which foreign states or citizens or subjects thereof are additional parties; and (4) a foreign state (defined in 28 U.S.C.S. § 1603(a)) as plaintiff and citizens of a state or of different states [28 U.S.C.S. § 1332(a); see Pub. L. No. 100-702, § 201, 102 Stat. 4646 (former $50,000 jurisdictional minimum applies to actions commenced prior to January 19, 1997)].

The amount-in-controversy requirement excludes only "interest and costs" and therefore includes attorney's fees as well as any other sums that would be paid to a party as a result of judgment [Guglielmino v. McKee Foods Corp. (9th Cir. 2007) 506 F.3d 696, 700-701 (attorney fees and back payments of health benefits and taxes)].

For the purposes of diversity and removal jurisdiction, an alien admitted to the United States for permanent residence is deemed a citizen of the state in which he or she is domiciled [28 U.S.C.S. § 1332(a) (applicable to civil actions commenced or removed on or after May 18, 1989)]. For the same purposes, the legal representative of the estate of a decedent is deemed to be a citizen only of the same state as the decedent, and the legal representative of an infant or incompetent is a citizen only of the same state as the infant or incompetent [28 U.S.C.S. § 1332(c)(2) (applicable to civil actions commenced or removed on or after May 18, 1989)].

No diversity jurisdiction is conferred on a district court under 28 U.S.C.S. § 1332 in a case involving citizens of different states unless proper and complete allegations of diversity of citizenship are made showing that no plaintiff is a citizen of the same state as any of the defendants; that is, each plaintiff must be able to sue each defendant [see Treinies v. Sunshine Mining Co. (1939) 308 U.S. 66, 71, 60 S. Ct. 44, 84 L. Ed. 85 ; Fifty Associates v. Prudential Ins. Co. of America (9th Cir. 1970) 446 F.2d 1187, 1190 ; Potter's Photographic Applications Co. v. Ealing Corporation (E.D. N.Y. 1968) 292 F. Supp. 92, 107, 1968 Trade Cas. (CCH) P72622] . Diversity of citizenship is assessed at the time the action is filed. Once established, diversity jurisdiction is not defeated by the addition of a nondiverse party who was not an indispensable party at the time the complaint was filed [Mattel, Inc. v. Bryant (9th Cir. 2006) 446 F.3d 1011, 1013 (intervenor not indispensible); Freeport-McMoRan Inc. v. K. N. Energy (1991) 498 U.S. 426, 428, 111 S. Ct. 858, 112 L. Ed. 2d 951] .

Under the court-made "domestic relations exception" to diversity jurisdiction, federal courts will not exercise diversity jurisdiction in cases involving the issuance of a divorce, alimony, or child custody decree. This exception, however, does not apply to a tort action between former spouses or to an action seeking to enforce an alimony decree rendered by a state court [Ankenbrandt v. Richards (1992) 504 U.S. 689, 703-704, 112 S. Ct. 2206, 119 L. Ed. 2d 468 (tort); Barber v. Barber (1859) 16 L. Ed. 226, 21 How. 582 (enforcement)].

Under the court-made "probate exception" to diversity jurisdiction, federal courts will not exercise diversity jurisdiction in cases involving probate of a will or administration of an estate. However, federal courts of equity do have jurisdiction to entertain suits in favor of creditors, legatees and heirs and other claimants against a decedent's estate to establish their claims so long as the federal court does not interfere with the probate proceedings or assume general jurisdiction of the probate or control of the property in the custody of the state court [Marshall v. Marshall (2006) 547 U.S. 293, 126 S. Ct. 1735 ; 126 S. Ct. 1735, 164 L. Ed. 2d 480, 497] .

[2] Improper Joinder

A district court does not have jurisdiction of a civil action in which any party, by assignment or otherwise, has been improperly or collusively joined to invoke the jurisdiction of the court [28 U.S.C.S. § 1359]. Although motive alone is irrelevant in determining whether a party has been improperly or collusively joined, if a nominal party who has no real or substantial interest in the dispute or controversy is designated simply for the purpose of creating diversity of citizenship, such a party has been improperly or collusively named [McSparran v. Weist (3rd Cir. 1968) 402 F.2d 867, 873, 875] . In addition, if a party has been improperly joined as a plaintiff or defendant to the action in order to create diversity jurisdiction, the court will look beyond the pleadings, arrange the parties according to their sides in the dispute, and, if necessary, dismiss the action for want of jurisdiction [Smith v. Sperling (1957) 354 U.S. 91, 99-100, 77 S. Ct. 1112, 1 L. Ed. 2d 1205 ; Dawson v. Columbia Ave. Sav. Fund, Safe Deposit, Title, & Trust Co. (1905) 197 U.S. 178, 180, 25 S. Ct. 420, 49 L. Ed. 713] .

Sanctions may be imposed against an attorney for failing to conduct a reasonable investigation of a client's domicile before filing a diversity action [Hendrix v. Naphtal (9th Cir. 1992) 971 F.2d 398, 399-400] .

[3] Fictitious Defendants

Inclusion of fictitious defendants in a complaint originally filed in federal court destroys diversity jurisdiction [Garter-Bare Co. v. Munsingwear, Inc. (9th Cir. 1980) 650 F.2d 975, 981 ; Molnar v. National BroadcastingCompany (9th Cir. 1956) 231 F.2d 684, 685-686 ; compare 28 U.S.C.S. § 1441(a) (fictitiously named defendants are disregarded for purposes of removal); for further discussion of removal, see § 265.30 et seq.].

When a fictitious defendant allegation has been used, diversity jurisdiction may be restored if the fictitious defendants are subsequently dismissed, or if the fictitious defendants have not been served when the trial begins [Preaseau v. Prudential Ins. Co. (9th Cir. 1979) 591 F.2d 74, 75-76 (dismissal of fictitious defendants); Southern Pacific Co. v. Haight (9th Cir. 1942) 126 F.2d 900, 903-904 , cert. denied 317 U.S. 676 (nonservice of fictitious defendants)].

[4] Corporations

For the purposes of diversity and removal jurisdiction, a corporation is deemed a citizen of any state by which it has been incorporated and of the state where it has its principal place of business [28 U.S.C.S. § 1332(c)(1)]. However, in any direct action against the insurer of a policy or contract of liability insurance, whether incorporated or unincorporated, to which action the insured is not joined as a party defendant, that insurer is deemed a citizen of the state in which the insured is a citizen, as well as of any state by which the insurer has been incorporated and of the state where it has its principal place of business [28 U.S.C.S. § 1332(c)(1) (applicable to civil actions commenced or removed on or after May 18, 1989)]. Unless the cause of action brought against the insurer is of such a nature that liability could be imposed against the insured, the action is not considered a direct action under the diversity statute [Searles v. Cincinnati Ins. Co. (9th Cir. 1993) 998 F.2d 728, 729] .

Allegations of diversity jurisdiction in an action in which a corporation is a party must contain both the place of incorporation and the principal place of business of the corporate party [Moore v. Sylvania Elec. Prod., Inc. (3rd Cir. 1972) 454 F.2d 81, 84 n.1]. "Principal place of business" is best read as referring to the place where a corporation's officers direct, control, and coordinate the corporation's activities. It is normally be the place where the corporation maintains its headquarters, provided that the headquarters is the actual center of direction, control, and coordination, i.e., the "nerve center," and not simply an office where the corporation holds its board meetings [The Hertz Corp. v. Friend (2010) -- U.S. --,130 S. Ct. 1181, 175 L. Ed. 2d 1029, 1041-1042 ; see Breitman v. May Co. California (9th Cir. 1994) 37 F.3d 562, 564 (citing Industrial Techtronics, Inc. v. Aero Alloy (9th Cir. 1990) 912 F.2d 1090, 1092)] . A bare allegation that a corporation is a citizen of a certain state without such additional allegations is considered a mere conclusion of law and is insufficient to confer diversity jurisdiction on the district court [Fifty Associates v. Prudential Ins. Co. of America (9th Cir. 1970) 446 F.2d 1187, 1190] .

[5] Limited Partnerships and Limited Liability Companies

For the purposes of diversity and removal jurisdiction, a limited partnership is not in its own right a "citizen" of the state that created it [Carden v. Arkoma Associates (1990) 494 U.S. 185, 187, 192-196, 110 S. Ct. 1015, 108 L. Ed. 2d 157] . A federal court must look to the citizenship of the general partners and the limited partners to determine whether there is complete diversity [Carden v. Arkoma Associates (1990) 494 U.S. 185, 187, 192-196, 110 S. Ct. 1015, 108 L. Ed. 2d 157, 163] . The same rule applies to limited liability companies [Johnson v. Columbia Props. Anchorage, LP (9th Cir. 2006) 437 F.3d 894, 899] .

[6] Class Actions

[a] Minimal Diversity

[i] In General

The Class Action Fairness Act of 2005 (CAFA), which applies to all actions commenced on or after February 18, 2005 [Progressive West Insurance Co. v. Preciado (9th Cir. 2007) 479 F.3d 1014, 1016 (cross complaint filed on February 17, 2005, and subsequently amended not subject to CAFA); Bush v. Cheaptickets, Inc. (9th Cir. 2005) 425 F.3d 683, 686-687 (complaint filed on February 17, 2005 not subject to CAFA)], provides special rules for diversity jurisdiction in class actions. The CAFA adds a new subsection (d) to the diversity statute, U.S.C.S. § 1332 providing for federal jurisdiction based on "minimal diversity." Under the new subsection, federal district courts have jurisdiction over any class action in which: (1) the matter in controversy exceeds $5 million, and (2) any member of a plaintiff class and any defendant are citizens of different states [U.S.C.S. § 1332(d)(2)]. A defendant seeking removal in an action in which the plaintiff's complaint prays for relief in an amount below the jurisdiction amount must prove with "legal certainty" that the amount in controversy is satisfied [Lowdermilk v. United States Bank Nat. Ass'n (9th Cir. 2007) 479 F.3d 994, 998-1003 (defendant failed to meet burden of proof)]. Attorney fees are included in the amount in controversy for determining federal class action jurisdiction if an award of fees is authorized by statute [Lowdermilk v. United States Bank Nat. Ass'n (9th Cir. 2007) 479 F.3d 994, 1000] .

Jurisdiction is also present where any member of the plaintiff class is a foreign state or a citizen or subject of a foreign state and any defendant is a citizen of a U.S. state, and where any member of the plaintiff class is a citizen of a U.S. state and any defendant is a foreign state or a citizen or subject of a foreign state [U.S.C.S. § 1332(d)(2)].

Prior to the enactment of the CAFA, courts did not enjoy diversity jurisdiction over class actions unless there was complete diversity of citizenship between all named representatives of the plaintiff class and all defendants [see State Farm Fire & Casualty Co. v. Tashire (1967) 386 U.S. 523, 87 S Ct 1199, 18 L Ed2d 270] .

For purposes of determining diversity jurisdiction, citizenship of the members of the plaintiff class is determined as of the date of filing the complaint or amended complaint [U.S.C.S. § 1332(d)(7)].

[ii] Exceptions

The CAFA contains some exceptions to the rule of "minimal diversity" [Serrano v. 180 Connect Inc. (9th Cir. 2007) 478 F.3d 1018, 1023 (provisions set forth in § 1332(d)(3), (4) are exceptions to jurisdiction)]:

- Minimal diversity jurisdiction is unavailable in a class action in which the primary defendants are states, state officials, or other government entities due to 11th Amendment considerations [28 U.S.C.S. § 1332(d)(5); for discussion of the 11th Amendment as it pertains to federal jurisdiction, see § 265.18].

- Minimal diversity jurisdiction is unavailable in a class action in which there are fewer than 100 members of all proposed plaintiff classes in the aggregate [28 U.S.C.S. § 1332(d)(5)].

- Minimal diversity jurisdiction is unavailable in a class action in which two-thirds or more of the members of all proposed plaintiff classes in the aggregate, and the primary defendants, are citizens of the state in which the action was originally filed [28 U.S.C.S. § 1332(d)(4)(B)].

- Minimal diversity jurisdiction is unavailable in a class action in which more than two-thirds of the members of all proposed plaintiff classes in the aggregate are citizens of the state in which the action was originally filed; at least one defendant from whom significant relief is sought and whose alleged conduct forms a significant basis for the claims asserted by the proposed plaintiff class is a citizen of the state in which the action was originally filed; principal injuries resulting from the alleged conduct or any related conduct of each defendant were incurred in the state in which the action was originally filed; and during the three years preceding the filing of the class action, no other class action has been filed asserting the same or similar factual allegations against any of the defendants on behalf of the same or other persons [U.S.C.S. § 1332(d)(4)(A)].

- Minimal diversity jurisdiction is unavailable in certain class actions pertaining to the Securities Act of 1933 and to corporations' and business enterprises' governance [28 U.S.C.S. § 1332(d)(9)].

The objecting party bears the burden of proof as to the applicability of an express statutory exception [Serrano v. 180 Connect Inc. (9th Cir. 2007) 478 F.3d 1018, 1023-1024 (applied to 28 U.S.C.S. § 1332(d)(3), (4)) (disapproving Lao v. Wickes Furniture Co., Inc. (C.D. Cal. 2006) 455 F. Supp. 2d 1045)].

Additionally, a court has discretion to decline to exercise minimal diversity jurisdiction if more than one-third but less than two-thirds of the members of all proposed plaintiff classes in the aggregate, and the primary defendants, are citizens of the state in which the action was originally filed [28 U.S.C.S. § 1332(d)(3)].

[b] "Mass Actions"

A "mass action" is any civil action in which monetary relief claims of 100 or more people are proposed to be tried jointly on the ground that the plaintiffs' claims involve common questions of law or fact [28 U.S.C.S. § 1332(d)(11)(A)]. A mass action is treated as a class action for purposes of diversity jurisdiction except that diversity jurisdiction does not exist over any plaintiff whose individual claim does not satisfy the $75,000 jurisdiction minimum for diversity jurisdiction [28 U.S.C.S. § 1332(d)(11)(A); Abrego Abrego v. The Dow Chem. Co. (9th Cir. 2006) 443 F.3d 676, 686-690 (no individual claim satisfied $75,000 minimum)].

A mass action does not include any civil action in which any of the following is true [28 U.S.C.S. § 1332(d)(11)(B)(ii)]:

- All of the claims arise from an alleged event or occurrence in the state in which the action was filed, with the allegedly resulting injuries in that state or in states contiguous to that state.

- The claims are joined on motion fo a defendant.

- All claims in the action are asserted on behalf of the general public (and not on behalf of individual claimants or members of a purported class) pursuant to a state statute specifically authorizing such an action.

- The claims have been consolidated or coordinated solely for pretrial proceedings.

[7] Pleading Jurisdictional Amount

[a] In General

In any action in which the jurisdiction of the federal court is based on diversity of citizenship, the matter in controversy must exceed, exclusive of interest and costs, the sum or value of $75,000 [see 28 U.S.C.S. § 1332(a) (effective January 19, 1997)]. As with other jurisdictional matters, the amount in controversy must be specifically alleged [see Century Southwest Cable Television, Inc. v. CIIF Associates (9th Cir. 1994) 33 F.3d 1068, 1071] . Generally, the sum claimed by the plaintiff in his or her prayer for relief controls if the claim is apparently made in good faith [St. Paul Mercury Indem. Co. v. Red Cab Co. (1938) 303 U.S. 283, 288-289, 58 S. Ct. 586, 82 L. Ed. 845] , unless the rest of the complaint qualifies or detracts from the claimed sum so that it cannot be said that jurisdiction appears on the face of the complaint taken as a whole [KVOS, Inc. v. Associated Press (1936) 299 U.S. 269, 277, 57 S. Ct. 197, 81 L. Ed. 183] .

It must appear to a legal certainty that the claim is really for less than the jurisdictional amount to justify dismissal [St. Paul Mercury Indem. Co. v. Red Cab Co. (1938) 303 U.S. 283, 288-289, 58 S. Ct. 586, 82 L. Ed. 845] . The subsequent inability of the plaintiff to recover an amount adequate to give the court jurisdiction does not in itself show his or her bad faith [St. Paul Mercury Indem. Co. v. Red Cab Co. (1938) 303 U.S. 283, 289, 58 S. Ct. 586, 82 L. Ed. 845] . However, except when express provision therefor is otherwise made in a statute of the United States, when the plaintiff is finally adjudged to be entitled to recover less than the sum or value of $75,000, computed without regard to any setoff or counterclaim to which the defendant may be adjudged to be entitled, and exclusive of interests and costs, the district court may deny costs to the plaintiff and, in addition, may impose costs on the plaintiff [28 U.S.C.S. § 1332(b)].

[b] Joinder of Claims and Parties

A single plaintiff is permitted to aggregate his or her claims for relief in order to satisfy the jurisdictional amount requirement, even though such claims are separate and distinct [see Lemmon v. Cedar Point, Inc. (6th Cir. 1969) 406 F.2d 94, 96] . Two or more plaintiffs may not, however, combine separate and distinct claims in a single suit in order to satisfy the requisite jurisdictional amount unless such plaintiffs have united to enforce a single title or right in which they have a common and undivided interest [Pinel v. Pinel (1916) 240 U.S. 594, 596, 36 S. Ct. 416, 60 L. Ed. 817 ; see Snow v. Ford Motor Co. (9th Cir. 1977) 561 F.2d 787, 789-790 (class members not permitted to aggregate separate and distinct claims for relief to satisfy jurisdictional amount)]. A plaintiff also may not combine his or her claimwith the defendant's compulsory counterclaim in order to satisfy the jurisdictional amount when the defendant has objected from the beginning to the federal court's assumption of jurisdiction over the plaintiff's main action on the ground that the amount in controversy in that action was insufficient [Motorists Mutual Ins. Co. v. Simpson (7th Cir. 1968) 404 F.2d 511, 514] . For discussion of aggregating claims in class or mass actions, see § 265.15[6].

[c] Objection by Defendant

A court is not bound to dismiss an action on a defendant's motion that is based solely on an alleged insufficient pleading of the amount in controversy if the pleading taken as a whole sufficiently alleges the requisite jurisdictional amount. However, when the allegations regarding the amount in controversy are challenged by the defendant in an appropriate manner, the plaintiff must support them by competent proof [KVOS, Inc. v. Associated Press (1936) 299 U.S. 269, 278, 57 S. Ct. 197, 81 L. Ed. 183 (motion to dismiss for failure to allege requisite jurisdictional amount reciting facts in opposition to plaintiff's jurisdictional allegation)].

Chapter 265 FEDERAL COURTS: JURISDICTION AND REMOVAL
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Jurisdiction

22-265 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 265.16

§ 265.16 "Case or Controversy" Requirement

[1] In General

Article III of the United States Constitution confers jurisdiction only over actual "cases" and "controversies" (also referred to as "justiciable" cases), effectively prohibiting federal courts from rendering advisory opinions [S.E.C. v. Medical Committee for Human Rights (1972) 404 U.S. 403, 407, 92 S. Ct. 577, 30 L. Ed. 2d 560 ; Muskrat v. United States (1911) 219 U.S. 346, 362, 31 S. Ct. 250, 55 L. Ed. 246] . The application of the following three basic doctrines enables the federal courts to safeguard this aspect of their jurisdiction:

- Standing (whether the parties bringing the suit are appropriate to seek redress for the alleged injury).
- Ripeness (whether the case is based upon concrete, as distinguished from hypothetical facts).
- Mootness (whether resolution of the issues or redress of the rights of the parties has been rendered unnecessary or inappropriate by subsequent events).

A fourth, more obscure doctrine related to justiciability prohibits courts from resolving "political questions" that would require consideration of policy issues that are more properly the province of the legislative or executive branch.

[2] Standing of Parties

For a party to have standing to bring a suit in federal court, that party must have suffered an injury in fact that is concrete and particularized, not conjective or hypothetical, that is fairly traceable to the challenged action of the defendant, and that is likely to be redressed by a favorable decision by the court [Lujan v. Defenders of Wildlife (1992) 504 U.S. 555, 112 S. Ct. 2130, 119 L. Ed. 2d 351, 364 ; Nuclear Information and Resource Service v. Nuclear Regulatory Comm. (9th Cir. 2006) 457 F.3d 941, 950 (procedural injury can satisfy the requirements for standing)]. Under certain circumstances, it is permissible to raise the rights of third persons, but only when those whose rights have been impaired cannot defend their rights themselves [see, e.g., Griswold v. Connecticut (1965) 381 U.S. 479, 481, 85 S. Ct. 1678, 14 L. Ed. 2d 510 (physicians could raise privacy rights of married couples who would be denied contraceptives if challenged statute enforced); Barrows v. Jackson (1953) 346 U.S. 249, 258-259, 73 S. Ct. 1031, 97 L. Ed. 1586 (party to restrictive covenant barring non-Caucasians from property ownership could raise Fourteenth Amendment rights of those persons)].

When the federal cause of action is statutory, the plaintiff must also meet a prudential standing test. The prudential standing analysis examines whether the plaintiff has been granted a right to sue by the statute under which he or she brings suit [Doran v. 7-Eleven, Inc. (9th Cir. 2007) 506 F.3d 1191, 1201 (ADA plaintiff who has Article III standing as a result of at least one barrier at a place of public accommodation may, in one suit, permissibly challenge all barriers in that public accommodation that are related to his or her specific disability); Ashley Creek Phosphate Co. v. Norton (9th Cir. 2005) 420 F.3d 934, 939-940 (standing provision of Administrative Procedures Act, 5 U.S.C.S. § 702, requires that the interest sought to be protected be arguably within the zone of interests protected or regulated by the statute on which the claim is based)].

When a plaintiff states an overbreadth claim under the First Amendment, the court suspends the prudential standing doctrine because of the special nature of the risk to expressive rights. While the prudential standing doctrine typically prevents the court from hearing lawsuits on the basis of injuries to non-parties, the overbreadth doctrine operates as a narrow exception permitting the lawsuit to proceed on the basis of a judicial prediction or assumption that the statute's very existence may cause others not before the court to refrain from constitutionally protected speech or expression [Get Outdoors II, LLC v. City of San Diego (9th Cir. 2007) 506 F.3d 886, 891].

[3] Ripeness of Controversy

The doctrine of ripeness is applied to prevent a case from being decided prematurely or on a hypothetical basis. Litigation is required to be based on actual issues between the parties [see United Public Workers of America (C.I.O.) v. Mitchell (1947) 330 U.S. 75, 90-91, 67 S. Ct. 556, 91 L. Ed. 754] . This aspect of ripeness is considered in a two prong test: (1) the fitness of the issues for judicial decision; and (2) the hardship to the parties of withholding court consideration [Manufactured Home Cmtys., Inc. v. City of San Jose (9th Cir. 2005) 420 F.3d 1022, 1033] . However, a declaratory judgment is often available in cases in which resolution would otherwise have to await potential violation of a legal standard and the attendant consequences before the issues could be resolved. Common examples are declaratory actions by insurance carriers to determine the availability of coverage [see Maryland Casualty Co. v. Pacific Coal & Oil Co. (1941) 312 U.S. 270, 273-274, 61 S. Ct. 510, 85 L. Ed. 826] and challenges to criminal statutes prior to a potential violator's being subjected to arrest and prosecution see Steffel v. Thompson (1974) 415 U.S. 452, 459, 94 S. Ct. 1209, 39 L. Ed. 2d 505] . While a substantive due process violation by the government is complete as soon as the government action occurs, the mere existence of a statute that may or may not ever be applied to plaintiffs is insufficient to create a ripe case or controversy [Action Apt. Ass'n v. Santa Monica Rent Control Opinion Bd. (9th Cir. 2007) 509 F.3d 1020, 1026-1027]. The basic question is whether the facts alleged, under the circumstances, show a substantial controversy between parties having adverse legal interests, of sufficient immediacy and reality to warrant a declaratory judgment [Maryland Casualty Co. v. Pacific Coal & Oil Co. (1941) 312 U.S. 270, 273, 61 S. Ct. 510, 85 L. Ed. 826] .

[4] Mootness of Claims

[a] General Rule

A case or issue is considered moot if it "has lost its character as a present, live controversy of the kind that must exist if [a court is] to avoid advisory opinions on abstract propositions of law" [Lindquist v. Idaho State Bd. of Corrections (9th Cir. 1985) 776 F.2d 851, 853-854 (quoting Connolly v. Pension Benefit Guaranty Corp. (9th Cir. 1982) 673 F.2d 1110, 1113)] . Stated another way, a claim is moot when "the issues are no longer 'live' or the parties lack a legally cognizable interest in the outcome" [Shoshone-Bannock Tribes v. Fish & Game Com'n, Idaho (9th Cir. 1994) 42 F.3d 1278, 1281 (quoting Murphy v. Hunt (1982) 455 U.S. 478, 481, 102 S. Ct. 1181, 71 L. Ed. 2d 353)]. An actual controversy must exist at all stages of review, not just when the complaint is filed [Alvarez v. Smith (2009) -- U.S. --

130 S. Ct. 576, 580, 175 L. Ed. 2d 447] . Accordingly, mootness is a jurisdictional defect that renders the court unable to proceed and may be raised at any time during the pendency of the litigation by either a party or by the court sua sponte [see Barilla v. Ervin (9th Cir. 1989) 886 F.2d 1514, 1519] .

Mootness is a question of law that appellate courts review de novo [Suter v. Goedert (9th Cir. 2007) 504 F.3d 982, 985].

[b] Exceptions Allowing Hearing of Otherwise Moot Claims

The following two principal exceptions to the mootness doctrine allow cases or issues that have otherwise been rendered moot to be resolved by the federal courts [Native Village of Noatak v. Blatchford (9th Cir. 1994) 38 F.3d 1505, 1509] :

- Cases involving fact patterns that are capable of repetition, yet evading review.

- Cases in which the defendant has voluntarily ceased the questioned conduct or practice, but is free to resume it at any time.

Two elements must be established for a case to be considered "capable of repetition but evading review." First, the injury suffered by the plaintiff must be one that is so limited in duration that it cannot be fully litigated prior to the cessation or expiration of the circumstances giving rise to the claim [see Roe v. Wade (1973) 410 U.S. 113, 125, 93 S. Ct. 705, 35 L. Ed. 2d 147 ; Barilla v. Ervin (9th Cir. 1989) 886 F.2d 1514, 1519] . Second, there must be a reasonable expectation that the same complaining party would be subject to the same action in the future [Weinstein v. Bradford (1975) 423 U.S. 147, 149, 96 S. Ct. 347, 46 L. Ed. 2d 350 ; Barilla v. Ervin (9th Cir. 1989) 886 F.2d 1514, 1519] .

When there is a voluntary cessation of the complained-of conduct by a defendant, but the conduct is capable of being resumed at any time, a case is not generally considered moot [United States v. W.T. Grant Co. (1953) 345 U.S. 629, 632-633, 73 S. Ct. 894, 97 L. Ed. 1303 ; Lindquist v. Idaho State Bd. of Corrections (9th Cir. 1985) 776 F.2d 851, 854] . However, a case may be moot if there is no reasonable expectation that the alleged violation will resume and intervening relief or events have irrevocably eradicated the effect of the alleged violation [Lindquist v. Idaho State Bd. of Corrections (9th Cir. 1985) 776 F.2d 851, 854 (citing County of Los Angeles v. Davis (1979) 440 U.S. 625, 631, 99 S. Ct. 1379, 59 L. Ed. 2d 642)]. Amendment or repeal of an offending statute or regulation generally renders a case or issue moot despite the technical ability of the legislative or regulatory body to reenact the questioned provision [Native Village of Noatak v. Blatchford (9th Cir. 1994) 38 F.3d 1505, 1510 (citing Burke v. Barnes (1987) 479 U.S. 361, 363, 107 S. Ct. 734, 93 L. Ed. 2d 732)]. Exceptions are rare, and involve situations in which the statute is virtually certain to be reenacted [City of Mesquite v. Aladdin's Castle, Inc. (1982) 455 U.S. 283, 289 & n.11, 102 S. Ct. 1070, 71 L. Ed. 2d 152 (city had expressly stated that the offending statute would be reenacted if the case was dismissed as moot); Native Village of Noatak v. Blatchford (9th Cir.1994) 38 F.3d 1505, 1510] . Mootness of the substantive issues while the case is on review will not deprive the court of authority to enter such orders as are necessary to finally dispose of the suit, however [U.S. Bancorp v. Bonner Mall (1994) 513 U.S. 18, 115 S. Ct. 386, 130 L. Ed. 2d 233, 239-240] .

Chapter 265 FEDERAL COURTS: JURISDICTION AND REMOVAL
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Jurisdiction

22-265 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 265.17

§ 265.17 Supplemental Jurisdiction

[1] Relation to Pendent and Ancillary Jurisdiction Generally

Before Congress enacted the Judicial Improvements Act of 1990 (Pub. L. No. 101-650), the district court's power to adjudicate claims that presented no independent ground for federal jurisdiction derived solely from the common law doctrines of "pendent" jurisdiction, which included "pendent party" jurisdiction and "ancillary" jurisdiction. These doctrines allowed a federal court to hear claims over which it had no original jurisdiction, as defined by 28 U.S.C.S. §§ 1331 (federal question jurisdiction) and 1332 (diversity jurisdiction), if those claims were connected in certain ways to other claims that did fall within the court's original jurisdiction. Pendent and ancillary jurisdiction were distinct from the special type of removal jurisdiction codified in 28 U.S.C.S. § 1441(c) [see discussion in § 265.36], which permits removal of state-law claims if the case also includes a separate and independent, and therefore unrelated, claim falling within the court's original federal question jurisdiction [see 28 U.S.C.S. § 1441(c)].

The Judicial Improvements Act of 1990 (Pub. L. No. 101-650), which took effect on December 1, 1990, generally retains the common law test for pendent jurisdiction over state-law claims raised in an original complaint, permits pendent party jurisdiction in federal-question cases in abrogation of Finley v. United States (1989) 490 U.S. 545, 109 S. Ct. 2003, 104 L. Ed. 2d. 593 , and restricts ancillary jurisdiction over claims and parties added by plaintiffs in ongoing diversity actions [see Pub. L. No. 101-650, § 310].

[2] Over Pendent State-Law Claims Raised in Original Complaint

Under the doctrine of pendent jurisdiction enunciated in United Mine Workers v. Gibbs (1966) 383 U.S. 715, 86 S. Ct. 1130, 16 L. Ed. 2d 218 , a federal court had jurisdiction over the state-law claims in an action if the federal-law claims and state-law claims in the case derived from a common nucleus of operative fact and were such that a plaintiff would ordinarily be expected to try them all in one judicial proceeding [Carnegie-Mellon Univ. v. Cohill (1988) 484 U.S. 343, 349, 108 S. Ct. 614, 98 L. Ed. 2d 720 ; United Mine Workers v. Gibbs (1966) 383 U.S. 715, 725, 86 S. Ct. 1130, 16 L. Ed 2d 218] . The Gibbs Court reasoned that U.S. Const., art. III, § 2 contains a grant of judicial power to decide any claim arising under the Constitution, federal laws, or treaties. Therefore, pendent jurisdiction over a state claim exists when the relationship between the federal claim and the state claim permits the conclusion that the entire action before the court comprises but one constitutional "case" [United Mine Workers v. Gibbs (1966) 383 U.S. 715, 725, 86 S. Ct. 1130, 16 L. Ed 2d 218] .

28 U.S.C.S. § 1367, enacted as part of the Judicial Improvements Act of 1990 [see Pub. L. No. 101-650, § 310], now provides that in any civil action over which a district court has original jurisdiction, the court has supplemental jurisdiction over all other claims that are so related to claims in the action within the court's original jurisdiction that they form part of the same case or controversy under Article III of the United States Constitution [28 U.S.C.S. § 1367(a)]. The district courts have this supplemental jurisdiction except when a federal statute expressly provides otherwise [28 U.S.C.S. § 1367(a)]. Because the Gibbs test for pendent jurisdiction was based on the "case" requirement of Article III, it appears that the same test applies to supplemental jurisdiction under 28 U.S.C.S. § 1367: a district court can hear state-law claims if the state-law and federal-law claims in a case derive from a common nucleus of operative fact and are such that a plaintiff would ordinarily be expected to try them all in one judicial proceeding.

Under Gibbs, the exercise of pendent jurisdiction was discretionary and the district court had to weigh the values of judicial economy, convenience, fairness, and comity between the federal and state judiciary in order to decide whether to hear the pendent state-law claims [see Carnegie-Mellon Univ. v. Cohill (1988) 484 U.S. 343, 349-350, 108 S. Ct. 614, 98 L. Ed. 2d 720 ; United Mine Workers v. Gibbs (1966) 383 U.S. 715, 726-727, 86 S. Ct. 1130, 16 L. Ed 2d 218] . 28 U.S.C.S. § 1367 now sets forth explicit criteria for the exercise of that discretion. The court may decline to exercise its supplemental jurisdiction over a claim if one of the following conditions exists [28 U.S.C.S. § 1367(c)]:

(1) The claim raises a novel or complex issue of state law, including the law of the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, and any territory or possession of the United States [see 28 U.S.C.S. § 1367(e) "state" defined)];

(2) The claim substantially predominates over the claim or claims over which the court has original jurisdiction;

(3) The court has dismissed all the claims over which it has original jurisdiction; or

(4) In exceptional circumstances, there are other compelling reasons for declining jurisdiction.

A district court with power to hear state law claims has discretion to keep, or decline to keep, them under the conditions set out in the statute [Acri v. Varian Assocs., 114 F.3d 999, 1000 (9th Cir. 1997) (en banc)]. The Ninth Circuit applies the Gibbs-test factors to the district court's exercise of discretion in cases falling within one of the aforementioned circumstances [see Satey v. JPMorgan Chase Co. (9th Cir. 2008) 521 F.3d 1087, 1091 (all federal claims dismissed)].

If the court chooses to decline to exercise its supplemental jurisdiction over a state-law claim, the limitations period for the claims is tolled while the claim is pending and for a period of 30 days after it is dismissed, unless state law provides for a longer tolling period. The same tolling provision applies to any other claim in the same action that is voluntarily dismissed at the same time as or after the dismissal of the state-law claim [see 28 U.S.C.S. § 1367(d)].

Although one Ninth Circuit case suggests remand of the state law claim(s) is proper even though the case was originally filed in the district court [see Brady v. Brown (9th Cir. 1995) 51 F.3d 810, 816] , the more logical rule is that remand is unavailable for claims never filed in or removed from state court [Misischia v. Pirie (9th Cir. 1995) 60 F.3d 626, 631] .

[3] Over State-Law Claims Involving Pendent Parties

Before the enactment of the Judicial Improvements Act of 1990, the theory of "pendent party" jurisdiction was rejected by both the Ninth Circuit and the United States Supreme Court. A district court had no jurisdiction over a plaintiff's state-law claims, whether or not they shared a common nucleus of operative facts with federal-law claims in the case, if the state-law claims required for their resolution the joinder of a party or parties for whom no independent basis of jurisdiction existed [see Finley v. United States (1989) 490 U.S. 545, 548-549, 551, 556, 109 S. Ct. 2003, 104 L. Ed. 2d 593 ; Ayala v. U.S. (9th Cir.1977) 550 F.2d 1196, 1198] . Under the theory of "ancillary" jurisdiction, however, the courts did adjudicate state-law claims brought by defending parties in an ongoing action through such procedures as compulsory counterclaims, impleader, cross claims, or intervention as of right [see Owen Equipment & Erection Co. v. Kroger (1978) 437 U.S. 365, 375 n.18, 376, 98 S. Ct. 2396, 57 L. Ed. 2d 274 ; see also discussion in § 265.17[4]].

28 U.S.C.S. § 1367(a), enacted as part of the Judicial Improvements Act of 1990, now provides that supplemental jurisdiction, defined as jurisdiction over all claims that are so related to claims within the court's original jurisdiction that they form part of the same "case" or controversy, extends to claims involving the joinder or intervention of additional parties [28 U.S.C.S. § 1367(a); for discussion of "case" requirement, see § 265.17[2]]. This abrogates Finley and longstanding law in the Ninth Circuit.

If the district court's original jurisdiction is based on diversity of citizenship rather than on the existence of a federal question, it appears that supplemental jurisdiction cannot be invoked to permit the joinder or intervention of additional parties [see 28 U.S.C.S. § 1367(a) (supplemental jurisdiction is based on claims forming part of same "case")]. Therefore, the Supreme Court's rejection of pendent party jurisdiction still applies in a diversity case if the addition of a new, nondiverse party would destroy complete diversity and there is no other independent basis for federal jurisdiction [see Owen Equipment & Erection Co. v. Kroger (1978) 437 U.S. 365, 376, 98 S. Ct. 2396, 57 L. Ed. 2d 274 (disallowing plaintiff's state-law cause of action against citizen of same state in diversity case)]. For discussion of diversity requirements, see § 265.15 .

[4] Over Ancillary Claims and Parties Added to Ongoing Action

Before the enactment of the Judicial Improvements Act of 1990, "ancillary" jurisdiction typically involved claims raised in an ongoing federal action by a defendant or another person whose rights might be lost irretrievably if the claim could not be raised in the action. Such a claim fell within the district court's jurisdiction if it had a logical dependence on the original complaint [Owen Equipment & Erection Co. v. Kroger (1978) 437 U.S. 365, 375-376, 98 S. Ct. 2396, 57 L. Ed. 2d 274] . The exercise of ancillary jurisdiction was upheld in situations involving compulsory counterclaims, impleader, cross claims, or intervention as of right [see Owen Equipment & Erection Co. v. Kroger (1978) 437 U.S. 365, 375 n.18, 376, 98 S. Ct. 2396, 57 L. Ed. 2d 274 ; Aldinger v. Howard (1976) 427 U.S. 1, 11, 96 S. Ct. 2413, 49 L. Ed. 2d 276 (intervention); Danner v. Himmelfarb (9th Cir. 1988) 858 F. 2d 515, 521 (defendant's cross claim against codefendant)]. Ancillary jurisdiction also extended to subsequent suits brought to effectuate a federal court's judgment in the principal action [see Aldinger v. Howard (1976) 427 U.S. 1, 11 n.7, 96 S. Ct. 2413, 49 L. Ed. 2d 276] .

28 U.S.C.S. § 1367(b), enacted as part of the Judicial Improvements Act of 1990, now limits federal jurisdiction over certain ancillary actions brought by plaintiffs in diversity cases. In any civil action of which the district court has original jurisdiction founded solely on 28 U.S.C.S. § 1332 (diversity jurisdiction) [discussed in § 265.15], the district court does not have supplemental jurisdiction over the following types of claims if the exercise of jurisdiction would destroy diversity or otherwise be inconsistent with the jurisdictional requirements of 28 U.S.C.S. § 1332 [28 U.S.C.S. § 1367(b)]:

(1) Claims by plaintiff against persons made parties under the following:

(a) Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 14 (claim against third party who is or may be liable for all or part of claim asserted against party in main action);

(b) Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 20 (permissive joinder when asserted right to relief arises out of same transaction or occurrence and common question of law or fact exists); or

(c) Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 24 (intervention of right when necessary to protect third party's interest in property or transaction that is subject of main action; permissive intervention when claim and main action have common question of law or fact);

(2) Claims by persons proposed to intervene as plaintiffs under Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 19 (compulsory joinder of persons needed for just adjudication); or

(3) Claims by persons seeking to intervene as plaintiffs under Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 24 (intervention of right when necessary to protect third party's interest in property or transaction that is subject of main action;permissive intervention when claim and main action have common question of law or fact).

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Jurisdiction

22-265 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 265.18

§ 265.18 Eleventh Amendment Bar to Certain Suits Against States

[1] In General

The Eleventh Amendment of the United States Constitution provides that "[t]he Judicial power of the United States shall not be construed to extend to any suit in law or equity, commenced or prosecuted against one of the United States by Citizens of another State, or by Citizens or subjects of any foreign State" [U.S. Const., amend. XI]. The Eleventh Amendment has been construed not just as a limitation on federal court jurisdiction, but as a recognition of a state's sovereign immunity from suit, and has been construed to render states immune from suit by their own citizens, as well as by citizens of another state [see, e.g., Pennhurst State School & Hosp. v. Halderman (1984) 465 U.S. 89, 98, 104 S. Ct. 900, 79 L. Ed. 2d 67 ; Edelman v. Jordan (1974) 415 U.S. 651, 662-663, 94 S. Ct. 1347, 39 L. Ed. 2d 662 ; Native Village of Noatak v. Blatchford (9th Cir. 1994) 38 F.3d 1505, 1511] . Its protection extends under certain circumstances to state agencies and instrumentalities, and to state officials acting in their official capacities [see, e.g., Florida Dept. of State v. Treasure Salvors, Inc. (1982) 458 U.S. 670, 684, 102 S. Ct. 3304, 73 L. Ed. 2d 1057 (state agencies); Han v. U.S. Dept. of Justice (9th Cir. 1995) 45 F.3d 333, 338 (state officials); Almond Hill School v. U.S. Dept. of Agriculture (9th Cir. 1985) 768 F.2d 1030, 1034-1035 (state agencies)]. Eleventh Amendment immunity is a jurisdictional matter that may be raised at any time during the pendency of the litigation by either a party or the court [see Edelman v. Jordan (1974) 415 U.S. 651, 677-678, 94 S. Ct. 1347, 39 L. Ed. 2d 662] , but, unlike subject matter jurisdiction, may be waived [see discussion in § 265.18[4][b]].

The Eleventh Amendment was adopted in response to states' fears that federal courts would require them to pay Revolutionary War debts out of their state treasuries [Hess v. Port Authority Trans-Hudson (1994) 513 U.S. 30, 115 S. Ct. 394, 130 L. Ed. 2d 245, 255] , and to this day the potential vulnerability of the state treasury to pay federal court judgments remains the most salient factor in determining whether Eleventh Amendment immunity is available [see, e.g., Hess v. Port Authority Trans-Hudson (1994) 513 U.S. 30, 115 S. Ct. 394, 130 L. Ed. 2d 245, 260-261 (whether entity is an agency of a state for Eleventh Amendment purposes largely dependent on whether state funds would be the source of any judgment); Native Village of Noatak v. Blatchford (9th Cir. 1994) 38 F.3d 1505, 1512 (claims against state officials ultimately seeking payment from state treasury barred by Eleventh Amendment)].

Eleventh Amendment protection extends only to actions in which the relief sought is retrospective or compensatory in nature and does not barsuits seeking only prospective, injunctive, or declaratory relief [see, e.g., Edelman v. Jordan (1974) 415 U.S. 651, 664-667, 94 S. Ct. 1347, 39 L. Ed. 2d 662 ; Native Village of Noatak v. Blatchford (9th Cir. 1994) 38 F.3d 1505, 1511-1512 ; Ulaleo v. Paty (9th Cir. 1990) 902 F.2d 1395, 1398 (citing Ex parte Young (1908) 209 U.S. 123, 28 S. Ct. 441, 52 L. Ed. 714)]. In determining whether the relief sought is prospective or retroactive, the courts will look to the substance of the remedy sought, and not the form in which the claim is made [see Native Village of Noatak v. Blatchford (9th Cir. 1994) 38 F.3d. 1505, 1512 (citing Papasan v. Allain (1986) 478 U.S. 265, 279, 106 S. Ct. 2932, 92 L. Ed. 2d 209 ; Ulaleo v. Paty (9th Cir. 1990) 902 F.2d 1395, 1399] . For instance, in one case, the Ninth Circuit emphasized that the overriding question in determining whether the remedy sought is prospective, rather than in the nature of damages or reparations, is whether the relief is to remedy future or past wrongs. "An injunction that will in practical effect require payment of funds out of the state treasury is nonetheless permissible if it requires only that officials conform their future actions to federal law" [Coeur d'Alene Tribe of Idaho v. State of Idaho (9th Cir. 1994) 42 F.3d 1244, 1252 (emphasis added; citing Quern v. Jordan (1979) 440 U.S. 332, 337, 99 S. Ct. 1139, 59 L. Ed. 358)] or if "payment of state funds ... [is] a necessary consequence of compliance in the future" and is merely ancillary to the prospective relief granted [Edelman v. Jordan (1974) 415 U.S. 651, 667-668, 94 S. Ct. 1347, 39 L. Ed. 2d 662] .

[2] Application to State Agencies

Agencies, instrumentalities, and arms of the state (collectively "state agencies") are entitled to Eleventh Amendment immunity on the same basis as are the states themselves [see, e.g., Florida Dept. of State v. Treasure Salvors, Inc. (1982) 458 U.S. 670, 684, 102 S. Ct. 3304, 73 L. Ed. 2d 1057 ; Franceschi v. Schwartz (9th Cir. 1995) 57 F.3d 828, 831 (per curiam)]. Whether an entity is a state agency for *Eleventh Amendment*purposes will depend on the state law creating the agency, including the degree of autonomy granted the agency and the degree of control retained by the state [see Lake Country Estates v. Tahoe Planning Agcy. (1979) 440 U.S. 391, 401, 99 S. Ct. 1171, 59 L. Ed. 2d 401 ; cf. Hess v. Port Authority Trans-Hudson (1994) 513 U.S. 30, 115 S. Ct. 394, 130 L. Ed. 2d 245, 260-261 (control of agency by state not dispositive)]. However, the overriding factor in assessing the availability of *Eleventh Amendment*immunity to a state agency is whether any recovery against the agency would be payable from the state treasury, i.e., whether the state is the real party in interest [see, e.g., Hess v. Port Authority Trans-Hudson (1994) 513 U.S. 30, 115 S. Ct. 394, 130 L. Ed. 2d 245, 260-261 ; Alaska Cargo Transport, Inc. v. Alaska R.R. Corp. (9th Cir. 1993) 5 F.3d 378, 380] . Applying this analysis, municipalities, counties, and municipal agencies are generally found not to be state agencies [see Mt. Healthy City Board of Educ. v. Doyle (1977) 429 U.S. 274, 280, 97 S. Ct. 568, 50 L. Ed. 2d 471] . A California school district and county office of education are arms of the state for purposes of Eleventh Amendment sovereign immunity [Stoner v. Santa Clara County Office of Educ. (9th Cir. 2007) 502 F.3d 1116, 1122 (qui tam action under False Claims Act, 31 U.S.C.S. § 3729 et seq.)].

[3] Application to State Officials

Absolute immunity of state officials under the Eleventh Amendment extends only to a very limited class of officials, including the governor [Alaska v. EEOC (9th Cir. 2007) 508 F.3d 476, 477], legislators carrying out their legislative functions, and judges carrying out their judicial functions. Other state officials may be held personally liable under federal law for actions taken in their official capacities [Hafer v. Melo (1991) 502 U.S. 21, 27-31, 112 S. Ct. 358, 116 L. Ed. 2d 301 (other state officials subject to liability under 42 U.S.C. § 1983); Stoner v. Santa Clara County Office of Educ. (9th Cir. 2007) 502 F.3d 1116, 1124-1125 (qui tam action under False Claims Act, 31 U.S.C.S. § 3729 et seq.)].

Under the doctrine of Ex Parte Young and its progeny, state officials acting under an allegedly unconstitutional statute or in an unauthorized manner are acting individually and not in their official capacities, and can be sued "as any other tortfeasor" under the theory that a state cannot act in a manner violative of federal law and, therefore, cannot authorize its officials to do so [see Ex Parte Young (1908) 209 U.S. 123, 159-160, 28 S. Ct. 441, 52 L. Ed. 714 ; see also Han v. U.S. Dept. of Justice (9th Cir. 1995) 45 F.3d 333, 338 ; Ulaleo v. Paty (9th Cir. 1990) 902 F. 2d 1395, 1398] .

However, this doctrine only applies to suits for prospective relief, such as an injunction or declaratory judgment, because if money judgments against the officials would have to be paid out of the state treasury, the state is the real party in interest [Ford Motor Co. v. Treasury Department (1945) 323 U.S. 459, 464, 65 S. Ct. 347, 89 L. Ed. 389 ; Almond Hill School v. U.S. Dept. of Agriculture (9th Cir. 1985, 768 F.2d 1030, 1033)] .

A distinction is drawn between allegation of violation of federal rights under color of state law by state officials and mere violation of state law not implicating federal rights. Conduct under authority of state law that violates no federal right is "merely tortious," and does not implicate an Eleventh Amendment analysis. The test of whether federal rights are implicated can be met by the adequate allegation of an ongoing violation of a federal right [Wilbur v. Locke (9th Cir. 2005) 423 F.3d 1101, 1111 (ongoing violation properly alleged); Coeur d'Alene Tribe of Idaho v. State of Idaho (9th Cir. 1994) 42 F.3d 1244, 1251] , and the possibility that the state official may eventually prevail on the merits does not confer Eleventh Amendment immunity [Scheuer v. Rhodes (1974) 416 U.S. 232, 238, 94 S. Ct. 1683, 40 L. Ed. 2d 90] .

[4] Exceptions

[a] In General

The two major exceptions to Eleventh Amendment immunity are (1) waiver by a state, and (2) abrogation of immunity by Congressional action under the enforcement provisions of the Constitution [see, e.g., Atascadero State Hospital v. Scanlon (1985) 473 U.S. 234, 238, 105 S. Ct. 3142, 87 L. Ed. 2d 171 ; Micomonaco v. State of Washington (9th Cir. 1995) 45 F.3d 316, 319] . Immunity against suits by the United States or sister states is deemed to have been surrendered in the "plan of convention" based on principles of comity and federal supremacy [see Blatchford v. Native Village of Noatak (1991) 501 U.S. 775, 780-782, 111 S. Ct. 2578, 115 L. Ed. 2d 686 ; South Dakota v. North Carolina (1904) 192 U.S. 286, 317, 24 S. Ct. 269, 48 L. Ed. 448] .

[b] Waiver by States

A state's waiver of its Eleventh Amendment privileges of immunity must be unequivocal, expressly stated, or inferred by overwhelming implication [see generally Atascadero State Hospital v. Scanlon (1985) 473 U.S. 234, 239-240, 105 S. Ct. 3142, 87 L. Ed. 2d 171 ; Pennhurst State School & Hosp. v. Halderman (1984) 465 U.S. 89, 99, 104 S. Ct. 900, 79 L. Ed. 2d 67] . The waiver must be specific as to lawsuits in federal court [Atascadero State Hospital v. Scanlon (1985) 473 U.S. 234, 241, 105 S. Ct. 3142, 87 L. Ed. 2d 171 ; Pennhurst State School & Hosp. v. Halderman (1984) 465 U.S. 89, 99, 104 S. Ct. 900, 79 L. Ed. 2d 67] ; a waiver of state court immunity is not necessarily coextensive with a waiver of Eleventh Amendment immunity [Dept. of Health v. Florida Nursing Home Assn. (1981) 450 U.S. 147, 149, 150, 101 S. Ct. 1032, 67 L. Ed. 2d 132 ; Coeur d'Alene Tribe of Idaho v. State of Idaho (9th Cir. 1994) 42 F.3d 1244, 1249 (citing Edelman v. Jordan (1974) 415 U.S. 651, 677 n.19, 94 S. Ct. 1347, 39 L. Ed. 2d 662)]. A state may also waive its immunity in specific cases by appearing and defending a lawsuit on its merits [Fordyce v. City of Seattle (9th Cir. 1995) 55 F.3d 436, 441] .

[c] Abrogation by Congressional Action

Congressional abrogation of *Eleventh Amendment*immunity occurs when suits against the states are authorized by clear statutory language under the enforcement provision of the Constitution or its amendments [see, e.g., Fitzpatrick v. Bitzer (1976) 427 U.S. 445, 456, 96 S. Ct. 2666, 49 L. Ed. 2d 614 (Fourteenth Amendment); Parden v. Terminal R. of Alabama Docks Dept. (1964) 377 U.S. 184, 192, 84 S. Ct. 1207, 12 L. Ed. 2d 233 (Commerce Clause)]. The "Congressional abrogation" exception still involves an element of waiver by the states; by empowering Congress to regulate by ratifying a Constitutional amendment or by entering statehood, the states have surrendered a portion of their sovereignty [see, e.g., Fitzpatrick v. Bitzer (1976) 427 U.S. 445, 456, 96 S. Ct. 2666, 49 L. Ed. 2d 614 , (states waived their Eleventh Amendment defense when assenting to adoption of the Fourteenth Amendment); Parden v. Terminal R. of Alabama Docks Dept. (1964) 377 U.S. 184, 192, 84 S. Ct. 1207, 12 L. Ed. 2d 233 (by empowering Congress to regulate interstate commerce, the states necessarily surrendered that portion of their sovereignty that would interfere with that regulation)].

To determine when Congress has validly abrogated state immunity under the Eleventh Amendment, a court must resolve two predicate questions [Alaska v. U.S. (9th Cir. 2009) 564 F.3d 1062, 1066] :

- Whether Congress unequivocally expressed its intent to abrogate; and
- If so, whether Congress acted pursuant to a valid grant of constitutional authority.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Jurisdiction

22-265 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 265.19

§ 265.19 Raising Lack of Federal Jurisdiction

A defense of lack of jurisdiction over the subject matter to a claim for relief in any pleading, whether a claim, counterclaim, cross claim, or third-party claim, may either be asserted in the responsive pleading thereto, if one is required by the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, or, at the option of the pleader, be made by motion [Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 12(b)(1)]. However, a defect in the subject matter jurisdiction of the federal court is such a fundamental defect that a challenge to the court's jurisdiction is not waivable [see Savarese v. Edrick Transfer & Storage, Inc. (9th Cir. 1975) 513 F.2d 140, 142 n.1]. To determine whether subject matter jurisdiction exists, the court may consider extra-pleading material, including affidavits or any other evidence properly before the court [St. Clair v. City of Chico (9th Cir. 1989) 880 F.2d 199, 201 , cert. denied, 493 U.S. 993, 110 S. Ct. 541, 107 L. Ed. 2d 539 (1989)] . Such determinations are questions of law subject to de novo review [American International Enterprises, Inc. v. Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (9th Cir. 1993) 3 F.3d 1263, 1266 ; see Nike, Inc. v. Comercial Iberica De Exclusivas Deportivas (9th Cir. 1994) 20 F.3d 987, 990 ; North Star Alaska v. U.S. (9th Cir. 1993) 9 F.3d 1430, 1432] . A court must dismiss the action whenever it appears by suggestion of the parties or otherwise that the court lacks jurisdiction of the subject matter [Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 12(h)(3)]. Thus, whether raised on the court's own motion or on the motion of a party to the action, dismissal of an action for lack of subject matter jurisdiction is always timely and permissible, regardless of whether it be made at the trial court level [see In re Union Nat'l Bank & Trust Co. of Souderton, Pa. (E.D. Pa. 1968) 287 F. Supp. 431, 433] or at the appellate court level [see Louisville & N.R. Co. v. Mottley (1908) 211 U.S. 149, 152, 29 S. Ct. 42, 53 L. Ed. 126] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Federal Subject Matter Jurisdiction. There are non-constitutional grounds on which the federal district court may dismiss a suit before considering the existence of federal subject matter jurisdiction. These include jurisdictional grounds that are discretionary, such as pendent jurisdiction [see § 265.17] or Younger abstention [see § 265.14[3]], grounds of prudential standing, such as statutory standing, and grounds that are "logically antecedent to the existence of any Article III issues," such as class certification under Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 23, and the demand pleading requirements of Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 23.1 for derivative actions [see Potter v. Hughes (9th Cir. 2008) 546 F.3d 1051, 1055 (derivative action)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Jurisdiction

§ 265.20 Amending Jurisdictional Allegations

Defective allegations of jurisdiction may be amended in the trial or appellate court [28 U.S.C.S. § 1653]. An amendment to establish jurisdiction is broadly permitted under 28 U.S.C.S. § 1653 in order to avoid dismissal on technical grounds [Miller v. Davis (6th Cir. 1974) 507 F.2d 308, 311 (permitting amendment to allege diversity jurisdiction when allegation was erroneously based on nonjurisdictional federal statute)]. However, 28 U.S.C.S. § 1653 only addresses incorrect statements about jurisdiction when jurisdiction actually exists; it does not extend to defects in the jurisdictional facts themselves [Newman-Green, Inc. v. Alfonzo-Larrain (1989) 490 U.S. 826, 830-831, 109 S. Ct. 2218, 104 L. Ed. 2d 893] . Therefore, for example, a district court may permit a plaintiff to amend a defective jurisdictional allegation if the court had subject matter jurisdiction over the action at the time the action was commenced. However, if the court did not have jurisdiction over the claims alleged in the original complaint, then the court's order granting leave to amend the complaint would be a nullity [Morongo Band of Mission Indians v. Cal. St. Bd. of Equal. (9th Cir. 1988) 858 F.2d 1376, 1380-1381 , cert. denied, 488 U.S. 1006 (1989) (not permitting amendment when case did not arise under federal law)].

§ 265.30 Governing Law

The removal of civil actions from state courts to federal district courts is governed by 28 U.S.C.S. §§ 1441-1452. The removal of claims related to bankruptcy cases is specifically governed by 28 U.S.C.S. § 1452.

Removal of a criminal prosecution appears to follow the general removal procedure for civil actions. Formerly removal of civil actions required the posting of a bond, while criminal actions did not [see former 28 U.S.C.S. § 1446(d) (civil action bond requirement), repealed in 1988; see generally Moore's Federal Practice, § 107 App. 08[2] (3rd ed. Matthew Bender)]. However, criminal actions are subject to the additional provisions of 28 U.S.C.S. § 1446(c) and (e).

The removal statutes and court decisions are intended to have uniform nationwide application. They are construed as setting up national criteria, irrespective of local law, for determining in what instances suits are to be removed from state to federal courts [Grubbs v. General Electric Credit Corp. (1972) 405 U.S. 699, 705, 92 S. Ct. 1344, 31 L. Ed. 2d 612] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Removal of Causes

22-265 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 265.31

§ 265.31 Availability of Removal

[1] Actions Removable

Except as otherwise expressly provided by Congress, any civil action brought in a state court of which the federal district courts have original jurisdiction may be removed by the defendant to the federal district court for the district and division embracing the place where that action is pending [28 U.S.C.S. § 1441(a)]. If the civil action is founded on a claim or right arising under the Constitution, treaties, or laws of the United States, the action is removable without regard to the citizenship or residence of the parties [for discussion of federal question jurisdiction, see § 265.14]. If the civil action is not so founded, the action is removable only if none of the parties in interest properly joined and served as defendants is a citizen of the state in which that action is brought [28 U.S.C.S. § 1441(b); for discussion of diversity jurisdiction, see § 265.34]. The citizenship of defendants sued under fictitious names is disregarded for purposes of removal [28 U.S.C.S. § 1441(a)].

Any civil action brought in a state court against a foreign state may be removed by the foreign state to the district court of the United States for the district and division embracing the place where that action is pending [28 U.S.C.S. § 1441(d); see 28 U.S.C.S. § 1603(a) (definition of foreign state)].

For purposes of removal, the term "civil action" appears to encompass civil proceedings, and the fact that a case involves a special proceeding rather than a civil action should not preclude removal [see, e.g., Drainage Dist. No. 19 v. Chicago, M. & St. P. Ry. Co. (W.D. Mo. 1912) 198 F. 253 (assessment proceeding); Katz v. Herschel Mfg. Co. (C.D. Neb. 1902) 198 F. 253 (unlawful detainer proceeding); see also Moore's Federal Practice, § 107.12 (3rd ed. Matthew Bender)].

[2] Actions Not Removable

Certain civil actions in any state court are not removable to any federal district court. For example, neither an action against a railroad or its receivers or trustees arising under 45 U.S.C.S. §§ 51-60, nor an action arising under the state worker's compensation laws, is removable [see 28 U.S.C.S. § 1445(a), (c), respectively]. Nor is an action against a carrier or its receivers or trustees to recover damages for delay, loss, or injury of shipments arising under 49 U.S.C.S. §

11706 or 14706, unless the matter in controversy exceeds $75,000, exclusive of interest and costs [28 U.S.C.S. § 1445(b)].

[3] Removal in Specified Actions

A civil action brought in state court against the United States or any of its agencies or any officer (or person acting under that officer) of the United States or any of its agencies, sued in either official or individual capacity for any act under color of office, or a property holder whose title is derived from a federal officer when the action affects the validity of a federal law, an officer of the federal judiciary, or a member of Congress may be removed by the defendant to the district court of the United States for the district and division embracing the place where that action is pending [28 U.S.C.S. § 1442(a)]. A defendant who is a federal officer seeking removal under 28 U.S.C.S. § 1442(a) must demonstrate that the defendant is a "person" within the meaning of the statute; there is a causal nexus between the defendant's actions, taken pursuant to a federal officer's directions, and plaintiff's claims; and the defendant can assert a "colorable federal defense" [Jefferson County v. Acker (1999) 527 U.S. 423, 431, 119 S. Ct. 2069, 144 L. Ed. 2d 408 (under 28 U.S.C.S. § 1442(a)(3) concerning actions against officers of federal courts); Durham v. Lockheed Martin Corp. (9th Cir. 2006) 445 F.3d 1247, 1251 (under 28 U.S.C.S. § 1442(a)(1) concerning actions against federal officers generally)]. This rule is an exception to the general rule that an anticipated or actual federal defense generally does not qualify a case for removal [Jefferson County v. Acker (1999) 527 U.S. 423, 431, 119 S. Ct. 2069, 144 L. Ed. 2d 408] . The right of removal created by this provision is absolute for conduct performed under color of federal office, and the policy favoring removal should not be frustrated by a narrow, grudging interpretation of the statutory language [Medical Dev. Int'l v. Cal. Dep't of Corr. & Rehab. (9th Cir. 2009) 585 F.3d 1211, 1216] .

A personal action brought in any state court by an alien against a federal civil officer who is not a resident of that state when jurisdiction was obtained by personal service may be removed to the federal district court for the district and division in which the defendant was served with process [28 U.S.C.S. § 1442(b)].

Pending cases rendered subject to original federal jurisdiction by the substitution or joinder of an agency with regard to which Congress has granted the capacity to "sue or be sued" in federal court may be removable on the substitution or joinder of that party, even if the case is already on appeal in state court [Resolution Trust Corp. v. Bayside Developers (9th Cir. 1994) 43 F.3d 1230, 1236-1237 ; Resolution Trust Corp. v. BVS Development, Inc. (9th Cir. 1994) 42 F.3d 1206, 1211] .

Removal of actions against members of the armed forces is governed by 28 U.S.C.S. § 1442a. Additional types of actions that have specific provisions are civil rights cases and foreclosure actions against the United States [see 28 U.S.C.S. §§ 1443, 1444, respectively].

Upon the Attorney General's certification under 28 U.S.C.S. § 2679, Federal Employees Liability Reform and Tort Compensation Act of 1988, that the federal employee was acting within the scope of his or her employment, filed in a case alleging liability of an individual federal employee, the U.S. government is substituted as the defendant and the case is removed to federal court [28 U.S.C.S. § 2679(d)(2); Osborn v. Haley (2007) - 549 U.S.225, (230) 127 S. Ct. 881, 166 L. Ed. 2d 819 , (once removed under 28 U.S.C.S. § 2679(d)(2), district court may not remand to state court)].

The Securities Litigation Uniform Standards Act of 1998 (SLUSA), 15 U.S.C.S. § 78bb(f)(1), authorizes removal and dismissal of actions involving covered securities based on the allegations in the complaint and does not require any additional evidentiary showing from either party. The propriety of removal is determined solely on the basis of the pleadings filed in state court. The court may permit the defendant to support removal by supplementing the pleadings with additional evidence of SLUSA's applicability, no authority requires that a district court must consider additional evidence from the plaintiff on a motion to remand [U.S. Mortg., Inc. v. Saxton, 494 F.3d 833, 842 (9th Cir. 2007)]. The elements of preemption under SLUSA, 15 U.S.C.S. § 78bb(f)(2), are: (1) the class action is a "covered" class action, and it alleges; (2) state and common law claims; (3) a misrepresentation or omission of material fact; (4) the misrepresentations or omissions at issue were "in connection with" the purchase or sale of a security under 15 U.S.C.S. § 78bb(f)(1)(A); and (5) the action involves "covered securities" within the meaning of 15 U.S.C.S. § 78bb(f)(5)(E) [U.S. Mortg., Inc. v. Saxton (9th Cir. 2007) 494 F.3d 833, 843-844].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Removal of Causes

22-265 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 265.32

§ 265.32 Right of Removal

[1] Statutory Right

The right of removal from the state courts to the federal courts is statutory. A suit commenced in a state court must remain there until cause is shown under some act of Congress for its transfer [Self v. General Motors Corp. (9th Cir. 1978) 588 F.2d 655, 657] . Removal jurisdiction cannot be conferred on federal courts by consent of the parties [see American Fire & Cas. Co. v. Finn (1951) 341 U.S. 6, 17-18, 18 n.17, 71 S. Ct. 534, 95 L. Ed. 702 ; Othman v. Globe Indem. Co. (9th Cir. 1985) 759 F.2d 1458, 1460 n.2 , overruled on other grounds in Bryant v. Ford Motor Co. (9th Cir. 1987) 844 F.2d 602, 605 (Bryant abrogated by amendment of 28 U.S.C.S. § 1441(a))].

[2] Original Jurisdiction of Federal Court

A suit may be removed to federal district court only if the action is subject to the district court's original jurisdiction [28 U.S.C.S. § 1441(a)]. Federal district courts have original federal jurisdiction of actions arising under the Constitution, laws, or treaties of the United States [28 U.S.C.S. § 1331 (original jurisdiction of district courts); Sullivan v. First Affiliated Securities, Inc. (9th Cir. 1987) 813 F.2d 1368, 1371 , cert. denied, 484 U.S. 850 ; see § 265.14]. They also have original jurisdiction of diversity suits brought between citizens of different states when the matter in controversy exceeds $75,000, exclusive of interests and costs [28 U.S.C.S. § 1332; for discussion of diversity as a basis of removal, see § 265.34[1]]. Although the 28 U.S.C.S. § 1441(a) reference to original jurisdiction mainly involves 28 U.S.C.S. § 1331 or 1332, that reference is as broad as the grant of original federal jurisdiction [see Moore's Federal Practice, § 107.14 (3rd ed. Matthew Bender)]. Federal district courts also have original jurisdiction as provided in 28 U.S.C.S. §§ 1333 et seq., and in actions involving specific federal agencies as provided by statute [see, e.g., 12 U.S.C.S. § 1441(a)(l) (Resolution Trust Corporation); 12 U.S.C.S. § 1819(b)(2)(B) (Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation)].

[3] Burden of Proof

The burden of establishing federal jurisdiction is placed on the party seeking removal. The removal statute is strictly construed against removal jurisdiction [Sullivan v. First Affiliated Securities, Inc. (9th Cir. 1987) 813 F.2d 1368, 1371 , cert. denied, 484 U.S. 850; see also Abrego Abrego v. The Dow Chem. Co. (9th Cir. 2006) 443 F.3d 676, 683-686

(burden of proof unchanged under Class Action Fairness Act of 2005, 28 U.S.C.S. § 1453(b))] . Placing a strict burden on the party seeking removal reflects the notion that a plaintiff should be free to decide what law he or she will rely on [Carpenters Southern Cal. Admin. v. Majestic Housing (9th Cir. 1984) 743 F.2d 1341, 1343-1344 ; see Karambelas v. Hughes Aircraft Co. (9th Cir. 1993) 992 F.2d 971, 974 (party can base removal on facts developed at deposition); see also discussion in § 265.37[1][a]].

When a complaint filed in state court alleges on its face an amount in controversy sufficient to meet the federal jurisdictional threshold, such requirement is presumptively satisfied unless it appears to a "legal certainty" that the plaintiff cannot actually recover that amount [Guglielmino v. McKee Foods Corp. (9th Cir. 2007) 506 F.3d 696, 699 ; Sanchez v. Monumental Life Ins. Co. (9th Cir. 1996) 102 F.3d 398, 402].

If the amount of damages plaintiff seeks is unclear, the defendant seeking removal bears the burden of proving by a preponderance of the evidence the facts supporting federal jurisdiction, including the jurisdictional amount [Guglielmino v. McKee Foods Corp. (9th Cir. 2007) 506 F.3d 696, 699 (variance between sections of complaint warranted application of this standard); Gaus v. Miles, Inc. (9th Cir. 1992) 980 F.2d 564, 566-567] .

[4] Waiver of Right of Removal

Only clear and unequivocal waivers will defeat a party's right to remove to federal court. A defendant can, however, make such affirmative use of the processes of a state court as to constitute waiver or estoppel of any right of removal. What acts legally constitute waiver are not always clear, but acts performed before removability becomes apparent will not constitute waiver [California Republican Party v. Mercier (C.D. Cal. 1986) 652 F. Supp. 928, 931 ; see Moore's Federal Practice, § 107.18 (3rd ed. Matthew Bender)]. The filing of a permissive counterclaim or third-party complaint does constitute waiver, as does the seeking of a continuance in an unlawful detainer proceeding [see California Republican Party v. Mercier (C.D. Cal. 1986) 652 F. Supp. 928, 931-932] . Although there is some authority that filing an answer in the state court also constitutes a waiver [see, e.g., Vendetti v. Schuster (W.D. Pa. 1965) 242 F. Supp. 746, 754 ; General Phoenix Corp. v. Malyon (S.D. N.Y. 1949) 88 F. Supp. 502, 503] , the better view appears to be that such a filing does not result in waiver, at least if the notice of removal itself is timely filed [see Haun v. Retail Credit Co. (W.D. Pa. 1976) 420 F. Supp. 859, 864 ; Moore's Federal Practice, § 107.18 (3rd ed. Matthew Bender)]. Similarly, moving to dismiss or quash service or filing a demurrer has been held not to result in a waiver [see Polizzi v. Cowles Magazines, Inc. (1952) 345 U.S. 663, 664, 73 S. Ct. 900, 97 L. Ed. 1331 (motion to dismiss or quash); Hildreth v. General Instrument, Inc. (D. S.C. 1966) 258 F. Supp. 29, 30-31 (demurrer)]. Nevertheless, waiver will be strictly applied when removal occurs close to the time of trial in the state action [California Republican Party v. Mercier (C.D. Cal. 1986) 652 F. Supp. 928, 931-932] .

In a case where removal first became available during the pendency of an appeal due to the substitution of the Resolution Trust Corporation for an insolvent financial institution, the RTC's filing of a petition for rehearing concurrently with its notice of removal did not constitute waiver of the right to remove the action. The court held that the petition for rehearing was a defensive action required to prevent the automatic entry of judgment and did not manifest an intent to litigate in state court [Resolution Trust Corp. v. Bayside Developers (9th Cir. 1994) 43 F.3d 1230, 1240] .

Chapter 265 FEDERAL COURTS: JURISDICTION AND REMOVAL
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Removal of Causes

22-265 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 265.33

§ 265.33 Federal Question

[1] Arises Under Federal Law

Federal question jurisdiction involves a right or immunity created by the Constitution or laws of the United States as raised by the plaintiff's cause of action [see 28 U.S.C.S. § 1441(a), (b); Takeda v. Northwestern Nat. Life Ins. Co. (9th Cir. 1985) 765 F.2d 815, 821-822 ; for further discussion, see § 265.31[1], above]. If a federal law does not provide a private right of action, then a state law action based on its violation does not raise a substantial federal question [see Merrell Dow Pharmaceuticals v. Thompson (1986) 478 U.S. 804, 813-814, 106 S. Ct. 3229, 92 L. Ed. 2d 650 ; see also Utley v. Varian Associates, Inc. (9th Cir. 1987) 811 F.2d 1279, 1283, 1286 , cert. denied 484 U.S. 824 (executive order)]. For a form of allegation of federal jurisdiction as a ground for removal, see § 265.161. For additional general discussion of federal jurisdiction, see § 265.12.

[2] "Well-Pleaded Complaint" Rule

[a] In General

Whether a case is one arising under the Constitution, a law, or a treaty of the United States to satisfy the requirements of 28 U.S.C.S. § 1331 must be determined from what necessarily appears in the plaintiff's statement of his or her own claim in the complaint, bill, or declaration, unaided by anything alleged in anticipation of avoidance of defenses that the defendant may interpose. Thus, a federal court does not have original jurisdiction over a case in which the complaint presents a state-law cause of action, but also asserts that federal law deprives the defendant of a defense he or she may raise, or that a federal defense that may be raised by the defendant is insufficient to defeat the claim. A defendant may not remove a case to federal court unless the plaintiff's complaint establishes that the case arises under federal law. A right or immunity created by the Constitution, laws, or treaties of the United States must be an essential element of the plaintiff's cause of action. This requirement has been termed the "well-pleaded complaint" rule [Franchise Tax Bd. v. Laborers Vac. Trust (1983) 463 U.S. 1, 9-11, 103 S. Ct. 2841, 77 L. Ed. 2d 420 ; Ramirez v. Fox Television Station, Inc. (9th Cir. 1993) 998 F.2d 743, 747 ; Carpenters Southern Cal. Admin. v. Majestic Housing (9th Cir. 1984) 743 F.2d 1341, 1344] . Accordingly, a plaintiff cannot, merely by injecting a federal question into an action that asserts what is plainly a state-law claim, transform the action into one arising under federal law, thereby selecting the forum in which the claim shall be litigated [Karambelas v. Hughes Aircraft Co. (9th Cir. 1993) 992 F.2d 971, 974] . Conversely, the presence of underlying federal issues does not create jurisdiction over a well-pleaded state law claim [Hall v. North American Van Lines, Inc. (9th Cir. 2007) 476 F.3d 683, 687] .

The "well-pleaded complaint" rule does not apply to removal by a federal officer under 28 U.S.C.S. § 1442(a) [Durham v. Lockheed Martin Corp. (9th Cir. 2006) 445 F.3d 1247, 1253 (citing Jefferson County v. Acker (1999) 527 U.S. 423, 431, 119 S. Ct. 2069, 144 L. Ed. 2d 408)] or to cases in which federal jurisdiction is afforded under a separate and independent jurisdictional grant [American Red Cross v. S.G. (1992) 505 U.S. 247, 112 S. Ct. 2465, 2472, 120 L. Ed. 2d 201] .

[b] Plaintiff as Master of Complaint

Normally, the existence of federal jurisdiction on removal must be determined from the face of the plaintiff's complaint. As master of the complaint, the plaintiff should be free to frame and pursue his or her theory of pleading. When an area of law is regulated by both federal and state law, if the federal law does not preempt all state regulation, federal jurisdiction is not preferred. The plaintiff has the prerogative of determining the theory of his or her action and, so long as fraud is not involved, may defeat removal to the federal courts by avoiding allegations that provide a basis for the assertion of federal jurisdiction [Salveson v. Western States Bankcard Ass'n (9th Cir. 1984) 731 F.2d 1423, 1426-1427] . Thus, a suit brought on a state statute does not automatically arise under the laws or the Constitution of the United States because the act complained of is prohibited thereby [Garibaldi v. Lucky Food Stores, Inc. (9th Cir. 1984) 726 F.2d 1367, 1370 , cert. denied, 471 U.S. 1099 (1985)] . It should be noted, however, that a plaintiff choosing to pursue only a state action in state court, despite the availability of a federal cause of action, may be precluded from raising the parallel federal action in any future proceedings by the doctrine of res judicata [Williams v. Caterpillar Tractor Co. (9th Cir. 1986) 786 F.2d 928, 933 , aff'd 482 U.S. 386, 107 S. Ct. 2425, 96 L. Ed. 2d 318, 326 (1987)] .

[c] Artful Pleading Exception

One important exception to the well-pleaded complaint rule arises when the claim, although ostensibly asserted under state law, is in fact a federal law claim, but by artful pleading is misrepresented in order to defeat the defendant's right to a federal forum [Salveson v. Western States Bankcard Ass'n (9th Cir. 1984) 731 F.2d 1423, 1426-1427] . Essentially this exception renders a case removable, regardless of the pleading, if the only remedy available to the plaintiff is federal, and the state court necessarily must look to federal law in passing on the claim [Sullivan v. First Affiliated Securities, Inc. (9th Cir. 1987) 813 F.2d 1368, 1372 , cert. denied, 484 U.S. 850] . The federal law need not afford the same remedies as state law to support removal [Hyles v. Mensing (9th Cir. 1988) 849 F.2d 1213, 1215] .

The artful pleading doctrine is a narrow exception to the straightforward rules of removal jurisdiction, and will be applied only if the particular conduct complained of is governed exclusively by federal law [Sullivan v. First Affiliated Securities, Inc. (9th Cir. 1987) 813 F.2d 1368, 1372 , cert. denied sub nom. First Alliance Sec. v. Sullivan, 98 L. Ed. 2d 106] . By its very nature, resolution of the artful pleading issue requires looking outside the facts of the complaint [Salveson v. Western States Bankcard Ass'n (9th Cir. 1984) 731 F.2d 1423, 1427] . Looking beyond the actual complaint is particularly appropriate when the central federal claim is inseparable from the state law theory, and when the question of federal jurisdiction turns on the out-of-state status of the parties and the interstate nature of the transactions involved [T.O.C., Inc. v. United Artists Theatre Circuit (ND Cal. 1986) 631 F. Supp. 832, 834] .

One corollary of the well-pleaded complaint rule developed in case law is that Congress may so completely preempt a particular area that any civil complaint raising this select group of claims is necessarily federal in character. Whether or not federal law has completely preempted state law depends on whether the preemptive force of the federal statute is so powerful as to displace entirely any state cause of action. If so, then any such suit is purely a creature of federal law, notwithstanding the fact that state law would provide a cause of action in the absence of the federal statute [see Caterpillar v. Williams (1987) 482 U.S. 386, 107 S. Ct. 2425, 96 L. Ed. 2d 318, 327-328 ; Metropolitan Life Ins. Co. v. Taylor (1987) 481 U.S. 58, 107 S. Ct. 1542, 95 L. Ed. 2d 55, 63] . In areas in which federal law completely preempts state law, a claim purportedly based on state law is considered to be a federal claim from its inception, so that such claims are considered to have arisen under federal law for the purposes of removal [Hall v. North American Van Lines, Inc. (9th Cir. 2007) 476 F.3d 683, 688 (removal for complete preemption is instance of artful pleading rule); Miles v. Okun (9th Cir. 2005) 430 F.3d 1083, 1088]. Removal is proper under the complete preemption doctrine only when Congress intended the federal cause of action to be exclusive [Beneficial Nat'l Bank v. Anderson (2003) 539 U.S. 1, 8-9 & n.5, 123 S. Ct. 2058, 156 L. Ed. 2d 1 (exclusive jurisdiction by complete exemption of usury claims against national banks under 12 U.S.C.S. §§ 85, 86); Miles v. Okun (9th Cir. 2005) 430 F.3d 1083, 1088 (11 U.S.C.S. § 303(i) provides exclusive cause of action for damages resulting from filing of involuntary bankruptcy petition)].

Complete preemption is the exception rather than the rule, and has been found in a limited number of cases [see Caterpillar Inc. v. Williams (1987) 482 U.S. 386, 107 S. Ct. 2425, 96 L. Ed. 2d 318, 327-328, 328 n. 8]. The test for complete preemption is "whether Congress clearly manifested an intent to convert state law claims into federal question claims" [Ansley v. Ameriquest Mortgage Co. (9th Cir. 2003) 340 F.3d 858, 862] . Among the most prominent cases of complete preemption are the following: Metropolitan Life Ins. Co. v. Taylor (1987) 481 U.S. 58, 107 S. Ct. 1542, 95 L. Ed. 2d 55, 65 (state contract and tort claims for improper processing of disability claim and wrongful termination completely preempted by and within civil enforcement provisions of ERISA (29 U.S.C.S. § 1001)); Oneida Indian Nation v. County of Oneida (1974) 414 U.S. 661, 675, 94 S. Ct. 772, 39 L. Ed. 2d 73 (state law complaint alleging right of possession to Indian tribal lands completely preempted); and Avco Corp. v. Aero Lodge, I.A.M. & A.W. (1968) 390 U.S. 557, 559-561, 88 S. Ct. 1235, 20 L. Ed. 2d 126 (state law action to enforce collective bargaining contracts completely preempted by § 301 of Labor Management Relations Act (29 U.S.C.S. § 185(a)).

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Removal of Causes

22-265 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 265.34

§ 265.34 Diversity Jurisdiction

[1] In General

Diversity jurisdiction exists when the civil action involves citizens of different states and the matter in controversy exceeds $75,000, exclusive of interests and costs [28 U.S.C.S. § 1332(a)]. The citizenship of a corporation is its state of incorporation and the state where its principal place of business is located [28 U.S.C.S. §§ 1332(c), 1441(b)]. For a form of allegation of diversity of citizenship as a ground for removal, see § 265.162. For additional general discussion of diversity jurisdiction, see § 265.15.

Diversity cases are removable only if no party in interest, properly joined as a defendant, is a citizen of the state in which the action is brought [28 U.S.C.S. § 1441(b); Motor Vehicle Cas. Co. v. Russian, Etc. (N.D. Cal. 1981) 538 F. Supp. 488, 491 n.5]. When an action is removed on the basis of diversity, the requisite diversity must exist both when the action is filed in state court and when the defendant petitions for removal [Miller v. Grgurich (9th Cir. 1985) 763 F.2d 372, 373 ; Strasser v. KLM Royal Dutch Airlines (C.D. Cal. 1986) 631 F. Supp. 1254, 1256 ; for discussion of how plaintiff's actions may affect diversity, see § 265.35[3], below]. A court may dismiss nondiverse defendants in order to preserve jurisdiction if they are not indispensable parties [Othman v. Globe Indem. Co. (9th Cir. 1985) 759 F.2d 1458, 1463 , overruled on other grounds in Bryant v. Ford Motor Co. (9th Cir. 1987) 844 F.2d 602, 605 (Bryant abrogated by amendment of 28 U.S.C.S. § 1441(a))]. Federal diversity jurisdiction is not defeated when there is a legitimate controversy between diverse citizens and aliens are additional parties [Transure, Inc. v. Marsh and McLennan, Inc. (9th Cir. 1985) 766 F.2d 1297, 1298 ; see 28 U.S.C.S. § 1332(a)(3)].

Removal is not improper because of the existence or the possibility of the existence of an unnamed party with an interest [Lincoln Property Co. v. Roche (2005) 546 U.S. 81 126 S. Ct. 606, 163 L. Ed. 2d 415, 421] .

[2] Fictitious Defendants

For purposes of removal, the citizenship of defendants sued under fictitious names shall be disregarded [28 U.S.C.S. § 1441(a) (as amended November 19, 1988)].

Prior to the 1988 amendment of 28 U.S.C.S. § 1441(a), the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals in Bryant v. Ford Motor Co. (9th Cir. 1987) 844 F.2d 602 held that the presence of Doe defendants destroyed diversity and precluded removal, and that if a defendant attempted to remove a case prior to the dismissal or unequivocal abandonment of all Doe defendants, the district court was required to remand the case to state court [Bryant v. Ford Motor Co. (9th Cir. 1987) 844 F.2d 602, 605-606] . Before Bryant, the general rule was that the presence of fictitiously named defendants, or Doe defendants, defeated diversity jurisdiction, and removal was not possible [Bryant v. Ford Motor Co. (9th Cir. 1987) 844 F.2d 602, 605] . However, there were many exceptions to that general rule [Bryant v. Ford Motor Co. (9th Cir. 1987) 844 F.2d 602, 605] , including the following: (1) when the named defendants proved that the Doe defendants were wholly fictitious [see, e.g., Grigg v. Southern Pacific Co. (9th Cir. 1957) 246 F.2d 613, 619] ; (2) when the complaint contained no charging allegations against the Doe defendants [see, e.g., Chism v. National Heritage Life Ins. Co. (9th Cir. 1985) 637 F.2d 1328, 1330] ; and (3) when the Doe defendants were not indispensable parties [see, e.g., Othman v. Globe Indem. Co. (9th Cir. 1985) 759 F.2d 1458, 1463] .

The 1988 amendment of 28 U.S.C.S. § 1441(a) applies retroactively to cases pending on November 19, 1988 [Kruso v. International Telephone & Telegraph Corp. (9th Cir. 1989) 872 F.2d 1416, 1424-1425] . As a result, it appears that 28 U.S.C.S. § 1441(a) applies to those cases already pending in state court that could not previously be removed because of the Bryant decision and to cases pending in federal court that under Bryant would have been remanded to state court.

[3] Class Actions

The Class Action Fairness Act of 2005 added a new provision to the removal statutes. 28 U.S.C.S. § 1453 authorizes removal by any defendant without consent of the other defendants [28 U.S.C.S. § 1453(b)]. Removal shall be in accordance with 28 U.S.C.S. § 1446, except that the usual one-year limit on removal is inapplicable to class actions [28 U.S.C.S. § 1453(b)].

For further discussion of diversity jurisdiction in class and mass actions, see § 265.15[6].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Removal of Causes

22-265 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 265.35

§ 265.35 Joinder of Parties

[1] Fraudulent Joinder

Normally in an action that is sought to be removed the district court must take the plaintiff's pleadings as it finds them. But when a colorable claim of fraudulent joinder of parties is raised, the court may look beyond the pleadings to determine if the joinder, although fair on its face, is a sham or fraudulent device to prevent removal. In so doing, the court may pierce the pleadings, consider the entire record, and determine the basis of joinder by any means available. If the joinder of a nondiverse defendant is shown to be only a fraudulent device to prevent removal, the court may disregard the joinder and retain jurisdiction [Lewis v. Time Inc. (E.D. Cal. 1979) 83 F.R.D. 455, 460 , aff'd 710 F.2d 549, 550 (1983)] .

Fraudulent joinder is a term of art, and does not reflect on the integrity of the plaintiff or counsel. It is merely the rubric applied when a court finds either that no cause of action is stated against the nondiverse defendant, or in fact no cause of action exists. A joinder is fraudulent if there is no real intention to get a joint judgment, and there is no colorable ground for so claiming. Doubt arising from merely inartful, ambiguous, or technically defective pleadings should be resolved in favor of remand. Additionally, a fraudulent joinder claim ordinarily must be capable of summary determination [Lewis v. Time Inc. (E.D. Cal. 1979) 83 F.R.D. 455, 460 , aff'd 710 F.2d 549, 550 (1983)] . For a form that includes an allegation of fraudulent joinder of parties for use in a notice of removal, see § 265.162.

Different considerations apply in an action implicating First Amendment rights. The proper course when a strong claim of fraudulent joinder is made in such a case is for the court to retain jurisdiction without prejudice to the plaintiff's right to move for remand at any point in the litigation when it can be demonstrated that the cause of action that is assertedly without substance is in fact a viable claim [Lewis v. Time Inc. (E.D. Cal. 1979) 83 F.R.D. 455, 462 , aff'd 710 F.2d 549, 550 (1983)] .

[2] Joinder After Removal

If the plaintiff seeks to amend the original complaint through the joinder of an additional defendant after the case has been removed to federal court, he or she must obtain leave of the court or the written consent of the defendant [Desert

Empire Bank v. Ins. Co. of N. America (9th Cir. 1980) 623 F.2d 1371, 1374-1375 ; see Fed. R. Civ. P., Rules 15, 20]. If there is an attempt to join a necessary, non-diverse party after the case has been removed to federal court, the district court has the following options [28 U.S.C.S. § 1447(e); Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 19; Yniques v. Cabral (9th Cir. 1993) 985 F.2d 1031, 1035] :

(1) Deem the party "indispensable" and dismiss the case;

(2) Deem the party not indispensable and continue its jurisdiction over the lawsuit without joinder; or

(3) Allow joinder and remand the case to state court.

The district court, however, does not have the option of authorizing joinder and then dismissing the case [Yniques v. Cabral (9th Cir. 1993) 985 F.2d 1031, 1035] .

[3] Voluntary-Involuntary Rule

When diversity of citizenship is the basis for removal, diversity must exist both when the action is filed in state court and when the defendant petitions for removal [Strasser v. KLM Royal Dutch Airlines (C.D. Cal. 1986) 631 F. Supp. 1254, 1256] . The voluntary-involuntary rule, an important exception to this rule, requires that a suit remain in state court unless a voluntary act of the plaintiff brings about a change that renders the case removable [Self v. General Motors Corp. (9th Cir. 1978) 588 F.2d 655, 657 ; see Bertha v. Beech Aircraft Corp. (C.D. Cal. 1987) 674 F. Supp. 24, 25-26] . The result of this exception is that federal jurisdiction will lie whenever dismissal of nondiverse defendants results from the plaintiff's voluntary act, even though diversity was lacking when the action was originally filed in state court. This serves to nullify the danger that a plaintiff might join a nondiverse defendant merely to defeat jurisdiction, and then dismiss the suit concerning that defendant [see Strasser v. KLM Royal Dutch Airlines (C.D. Cal. 1986) 631 F. Supp. 1254, 1256] .

Thus, a voluntary termination of the case against the resident defendant, such as a voluntary dismissal, discontinuance, or other abandonment of the action by the plaintiff, allows for removal of the action on the remaining defendant's request [Schmidt v. Capitol Life Ins. Co. (N.D. Cal. 1986) 626 F. Supp. 1315, 1318] . However, an involuntary termination of the case against the resident defendant, such as a summary judgment or other dimissal on the merits, over the plaintiff's objection, does not support removal [Strasser v. KLM Royal Dutch Airlines (C.D. Cal. 1986) 631 F. Supp. 1254, 1256] . Any case removed to the federal court that fails to satisfy this voluntary-involuntary test must be remanded for lack of federal subject matter jurisdiction. No action, much less inaction, by either party can confer federal subject matter jurisdiction [Strasser v. KLM Royal Dutch Airlines (C.D. Cal. 1986) 631 F. Supp. 1254, 1257-1258] .

The voluntary-involuntary rule also applies to actions arising under federal law. Thus, if a case is transformed into an action arising under federal law not by the voluntary action of the plaintiff, but instead by action of a defendant, the action is not removable and must remain in state court [People of State of Cal. v. Keating (9th Cir. 1993) 986 F.2d 346, 348 (defendant filed third-party claim under federal law against Resolution Trust Corporation; but only RTC had right to remove under 12 U.S.C.S. § 1441a(l)(3) exemption)].

Whenever a separate and independent claim or cause of action within the court's federal question jurisdiction is joined with one or more otherwise nonremovable claims or causes of action, the entire case may be removed. The district court may determine all issues in the case or, in its discretion, may remand all matters in which state law predominates [28 U.S.C.S. § 1441(c); see 28 U.S.C.S. § 1331 (federal question jurisdiction), discussed in § 265.14[1]]. Before Congress enacted the Judicial Improvements Act of 1990 (Pub. L. No. 101-650), diversity jurisdiction over the separate and independent claim was also a ground for removing the entire case to federal court, and the court had the discretion to remand the claims over which it had no diversity jurisdiction [see former 28 U.S.C.S. § 1441(c)]. By limiting removal to those cases in which the anchoring claim involves a federal question, the Act significantly restricts the doctrine of removal based on federal jurisdiction over a separate and independent claim. For a form of allegation of a separate and independent claim for use in a notice of removal, see § 265.165. For a form of motion to sever claims and remand an action, see § 265.170. For an order granting severance and remand, see § 265.171.

When there is a single wrong to the plaintiff, for which relief is sought, arising from an interlocked series of transactions, there is no separate and independent claim or cause of action under 28 U.S.C.S. § 1441(c) [American Fire & Cas. Co. v. Finn (1951) 341 U.S. 6, 13-14, 71 S. Ct. 534, 95 L. Ed. 702 ; Motor Vehicle Cas. Co. v. Russian, Etc. (N.D. Cal. 1981) 538 F. Supp. 488, 494] . The plaintiff's pleading controls in the federal court's determination whether or not the claim is separate and independent [American Fire & Cas. Co. v. Finn (1951) 341 U.S. 6, 14, 71 S. Ct. 534, 95 L. Ed. 702] . Additionally, the court does not focus on whether there was a single primary right involved, but whether the various claims involve a single wrong to the plaintiff [Boggs v. Lewis (9th Cir. 1988) 863 F.2d 662, 664-665 (negligence claim against driver and bad faith refusal to settle claim against insurer were separate and independent under state law, involved substantially different facts and transactions, and sought markedly different relief); Motor Vehicle Cas. Co. v. Russian, Etc. (N.D. Cal. 1981) 538 F. Supp. 488, 494] . An appeal is not a separate and independent claim; rather, it is a continuation of the same action commenced in the trial court [Resolution Trust Corp. v. Bayside Developers (9th Cir. 1994) 43 F.3d 1230, 1240] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Removal of Causes

22-265 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 265.37

§ 265.37 Effect of Removal

[1] Jurisdiction Acquired by District Court

[a] In General

The filing of the notice of removal and bond (bond requirement contained in former 28 U.S.C.S. § 1446(d) was repealed in 1988), the provision of written notice to all adverse parties, and the filing of a copy of the notice with the state court effects removal immediately [28 U.S.C.S. § 1446(d)].

Once a notice of removal is filed, the district court will determine whether federal jurisdiction can be invoked, either by diversity or federal question [Schroeder v. Trans World Airlines, Inc. (9th Cir. 1983) 702 F.2d 189, 191] . Although the removability of an action must be judged by the pleadings at the time of removal, the court can consider a plaintiff's subsequent attempt to amend the complaint as relating to his or her true intent at the time the action was removed [Green v. Mutual of Omaha (N.D. Cal. 1982) 550 F. Supp. 815, 818 ; for discussion of the burden of proof, see § 265.32[3], above]. The notice of removal, including supporting affidavits, may be used to clarify the action in determining whether it raises a federal question or diversity jurisdiction [Bright v. Bechtel Petroleum, Inc. (9th Cir. 1986) 780 F.2d 766, 769, 769 n.3 ; Schroeder v. Trans World Airlines, Inc. (9th Cir. 1983) 702 F.2d 189, 191] .

Ordinarily, when a case has been properly removed, federal jurisdiction is not defeated by later changes or developments in the suit, such as changes in citizenship, parties, the amount involved, or the cause of action pleaded [Williams v. Costco Wholesale Corp. (9th Cir. 2006) 471 F.3d 975, 976 (no amended notice of removal is necessary); Lopez v. General Motors Corp. (9th Cir. 1983) 697 F.2d 1328, 1332] . However, a notable exception to this rule involves the destruction of diversity caused by the joinder of an indispensable party. Thus, when the district court finds a necessary party was not joined and that person should be joined, if that person's citizenship destroys diversity jurisdiction, the case may be remanded to state court [Takeda v. Northwestern Nat. Life Ins. Co. (9th Cir. 1985) 765 F.2d 815, 819-821 ; see Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 19 (joinder of necessary parties)]. For discussion of the procedures for remanding a proceeding back to state court, see § 265.40[1].

[b] District Court's Jurisdiction Is Not Derivative

The district court to which an action is removed is not precluded from hearing and determining any claim in that action because the state court from which that action is removed did not have jurisdiction over that claim [28 U.S.C.S. § 1441(e)].

[c] Pendent State-Law Claims

On removal, a federal court has the power to hear the entire case, including state-law claims sharing a common nucleus of operative facts with the federal-claim claims in the case, by exercising its supplemental jurisdiction, known before the enactment of the Judicial Improvements Act of 1990 (Pub. L. No. 101-650) as "pendent" jurisdiction [see 28 U.S.C.S. § 1367 (supplemental jurisdiction); Bale v. General Telephone Co. of California (9th Cir. 1986) 795 F. 2d 775, 778 (removal of pendent state claims); see also discussion in § 265.17[1]]. Supplemental jurisdiction is discretionary, however, and the district court may decline to exercise it [Carnegie-Mellon Univ. v. Cohill (1988) 484 U.S. 343, 350, 357, 108 S. Ct. 614, 98 L. Ed. 2d 720] . If the court determines that pendent state-law claims properly belong in state court, it may either dismiss the state-law claims without prejudice, allowing the plaintiff to refile an action in state court, or may remand the state-law claims to the state court [see Carnegie-Mellon Univ. v. Cohill (1988) 484 U.S. 343, 350-351, 357, 108 S. Ct. 614, 98 L. Ed. 2d 720] . For a discussion of 28 U.S.C.S. § 1367(c), which sets forth the factors to be considered by the court in deciding whether to exercise its supplemental jurisdiction, see § 265.17[2].

Remand to the state court, rather than dismissal of state-law claims without prejudice, may be particularly appropriate when the applicable state statute of limitations has expired, foreclosing the plaintiff from filing a new action in state court [see Carnegie-Mellon Univ. v. Cohill (1988) 484 U.S. 343, 352-353, 357, 108 S. Ct. 614, 98 L. Ed. 2d 720] . If the court chooses to dismiss the state-law claims, however, the limitations period for those claims is tolled while the claims are pending and for a period of 30 days after they are dismissed, unless state law provides for a longer tolling period. The same tolling provision applies to any other claim in the same action that is voluntarily dismissed at the same time as or after the dismissal of the state-law claims [see 28 U.S.C.S. § 1367(d)].

[2] Termination of State Court Jurisdiction

Removal of a civil action from a state court to a federal court operates as a literal removal of the action from the state court and terminates that court's jurisdiction to proceed in the action. Thereafter the federal court has exclusive jurisdiction and may conduct proceedings accordingly, although, if federal jurisdiction is subsequently found wanting, the federal court must remand the action to the state court of origin. The state courtmay resume its first-instance jurisdiction if, and only if, there is a remand of the action to it from the federal court. If the federal court dismisses the action rather than remanding it, there is no action in which the state court can resume jurisdiction. The state court will exceed its jurisdiction if it permits further proceedings in the action after the federal court has dismissed the action [Sugimoto v. Exportadora de Sal, S.A. de C.V. (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 165, 168, 284 Cal. Rptr. 275 ; Allstate Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1982) 132 Cal. App. 3d 670, 674-676, 183 Cal. Rptr. 330 ; see 28 U.S.C.S. § 1446(d) (filing copy of notice of removal with state court clerk effects removal unless and until case is remanded)]. After removal, a state court lacks jurisdiction even to dismiss the case without prejudice [Sugimoto v. Exportadora de Sal, S.A. de C.V. (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 165, 168, 284 Cal. Rptr. 275] .

In keeping with the exclusive nature of the federal court's jurisdiction on removal, subsequent actions in the state court involving the same claims will not be allowed. For example, injunctive relief enjoining prosecution of a state action was appropriate in one case after the plaintiff unsuccessfully moved to remand an action back to the state court, and then filed a second state court action alleging the same claims raised in federal action [see Takeda v. Northwestern Nat. Life Ins. Co. (9th Cir. 1985) 765 F.2d 815, 817-818] .

It appears, however, that the removal procedure may not be used to exploit the plaintiff's inability to proceed in state court. Thus, when a case is ultimately remanded back to the state court, it appears that the filing of a notice of removal may toll the deadline for appealing from certain state court orders [see Strasser v. KLM Royal Dutch Airlines (C.D. Cal. 1986) 631 F. Supp. 1254, 1257 (appeal from summary judgment)].

[3] Impact of Proceedings in State Court

The federal rules apply after removal and neither add to nor abrogate what has been done in the state court prior to removal. The federal court takes the case as it finds it on removal and treats everything that occurred in the state court as if it had taken place in federal court [Butner v. Neustadter (9th Cir. 1963) 324 F.2d 783, 785 ; see Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 81(c)]. Thus, a default judgment entered in the state court is not set aside as a matter of law on removal to the district court. Instead, it must be regarded as valid unless and until the district court sets it aside [Butner v. Neustadter (9th Cir. 1963) 324 F.2d 783, 785-786] ; Resolution Trust Corp v. Bayside Developers (9th Cir. 1994) 43 F.3d 1230, 1238 (district court determined that it sat as though reviewing California Court of Appeal's decision and addressed a motion for new trial on the merits)]. A state court's denial of summary judgment, however, does not preclude the federal court from revisiting the issue after removal [Crane v. The Arizona Republic (9th Cir. 1992) 972 F.2d 1511, 1516 n.3].

[4] Judicial Review of Removal

Removal of a case from state to federal court is a question of federal subject matter jurisdiction that is reviewable de novo by the federal court of appeals [Ramirez v. Fox Television Station, Inc. (9th Cir. 1993) 998 F.2d 743, 747 ; Williams v. Caterpillar Tractor Co. (9th Cir. 1986) 786 F.2d 928, 930 , aff'd 482 U.S. 386, 391, 107 S. Ct. 2425, 96 L. Ed. 2d 318 (1987) (appeal from judgment following removal of action and subsequent dismissal)].

If a case is removed without objection (for example, if the plaintiff did not make a motion to remand), tried on its merits, and judgment is entered by the district court, the issue in subsequent proceedings on appeal is not whether the case was properly removed, but whether the federal district court would have had original jurisdiction of the case had it been filed in that court [Grubbs v. General Electric Credit Corp. (1972) 405 U.S. 699, 702, 92 S. Ct. 1344, 31 L. Ed. 2d 612 ; Harper v. San Diego Transit Corp. (9th Cir. 1985) 764 F.2d 663, 666 n.1].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Removal of Causes

22-265 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 265.38

§ 265.38 Procedure for Removal

[1] Notice of Removal

A defendant or defendants desiring to remove any civil action from a state court must file in the district court of the United States for the district and division within which that action is pending a notice of removal signed pursuant to Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 11, and containing a short and plain statement of the grounds for removal, together with a copy of all process, pleadings, and orders served on him or her in that action [28 U.S.C.S. § 1446(a)]. For a form of notice of removal, see § 265.160. The civil removal statute has no requirement that all grounds for removal be listed in the notice [Williams v. Costco Wholesale Corp. (9th Cir. 2006) 471 F.3d 975, 976 (if original complaint supports federal jurisdiction on both diversity and federal question grounds, defendant is not required to list both grounds in notice of removal)].

Although formerly a bond was required to accompany the notice of removal, the bond requirement was deleted in 1988 [see former 28 U.S.C.S. § 1441(d); see also § 265.39[2]]. The notice need not be accompanied by discovery documents such as interrogatories and notices of depositions, or other discovery requests [Visicorp v. Software Arts, Inc. (N.D. Cal. 1983) 575 F. Supp. 1528, 1531] .

[2] Joinder of Defendants

[a] Generally

When there is more than one defendant, removal may not be had unless all the defendants file or join in a notice of removal [Varney v. Johns-Manville Corp. (N.D. Cal. 1987) 653 F. Supp. 839, 840 n.1]. However, the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals does not require the joinder of a defendant who has not been served; the defendants who have been served can remove by themselves. Thus, the failure to include defendants, who had never been served, in the notice of removal does not preclude removal [Salveson v. Western States Bankcard Ass'n (9th Cir. 1984) 731 F.2d 1423, 1429] . For further discussion of who must join in notices of removal, see Moore's Federal Practice, § 107.30 (3rd ed. Matthew Bender).

Proper joinder of the defendants may involve some troublesome distinctions concerning nominal or formal parties, and proper, necessary, and indispensable parties. Federal law, not state law or characterization by parties, determines who is the plaintiff and who is the defendant for removal purposes [Chicago, R.I. & P.R. Co. v. Stude (1953) 346 U.S. 574, 580, 74 S. Ct. 290, 98 L. Ed. 317 ; for additional discussion, see Moore's Federal Practice, § 107.30 (3rd ed. Matthew Bender)].

Removal under 28 U.S.C.S. § 1442(a) represents an exception to the general rule that all defendants must join in the removal petition. Given that the federal officer is the only one entitled to remove under § 1442, the officer can remove without other defendants joining in the petition, and the entire case is removed to the federal court [Ely Valley Mines, Inc. v. Hartford Accident & Indem. Co. (9th Cir. 1981) 644 F.2d 1310, 1315] .

[b] Class Action Rules

Under the Class Action Fairness Act of 2005 any defendant may remove the action to federal court without consent of the other defendants [28 U.S.C.S. § 1453(b)]. Removal must be in accordance with 28 U.S.C.S. § 1446, except that the usual one-year limit on removal is inapplicable to class actions [28 U.S.C.S. § 1453(b)].

For further discussion of diversity jurisdiction in class and mass actions, see § 265.15[6].

[3] Deadline for Filing Notice of Removal

[a] Action Initially Removable

The notice of removal must be filed within 30 days after the receipt by the defendant, through service or otherwise, of a copy of the initial pleading setting forth the claim for relief on which that action or proceeding is based, or within 30 days after the service of summons on the defendant if that initial pleading has then been filed in court and is not required to be served on the defendant, whichever period is shorter [28 U.S.C.S. § 1446(b); see Blankenberg v. Commercial Ins. Co. of Newark, N.J. (N.D. Cal. 1987) 655 F. Supp. 223, 225] . In some cases, the particular statute authorizing removal may specify the time limits for filing notices of removal [see, e.g., 12 U.S.C.S. § 1441a(l)(3)(A), 12 U.S.C.S. § 1819(b)(2)(B)].

The thirty-day time period for removal starts to run from defendant's receipt of the initial pleading only when that pleading affirmatively reveals on its face the facts necessary for federal court jurisdiction [Harris v. Bankers Life & Casualty Co. (9th Cir. 2005) 425 F.3d 689, 690-691 (statement of party's residency, rather than citizenship, and not at time of filing of action, in initial complaint was insufficient to ascertain diversity)]. Parties are not charged with notice of removability until they've received a paper that gives them enough information to remove [Durham v. Lockheed Martin Corp. (9th Cir. 2006) 445 F.3d 1247, 1251] .

[b] Action Subsequently Becomes Removable

If the case stated by the initial pleading is not removable, a notice of removal may be filed within 30 days after receipt by the defendant, through service or otherwise, of a copy of an amended pleading, motion, order, or other paper from which it may first be ascertained that the case is one thatis or has become removable, except that a case may not be removed on the basis of diversity jurisdiction conferred by 28 U.S.C.S. § 1332 more than one year after commencement of the action [28 U.S.C.S. § 1446(b); Harris v. Bankers Life & Casualty Co. (9th Cir. 2005) 425 F.3d 689, 694 (facts in initial complaint insufficient to establish diversity)]. The papers that trigger the 30-day period of 28 U.S.C.S. § 1446(b) are limited to papers in the case. Thus, when an action was not removable when filed, but subsequently became removable by a statutory amendment, that amendment is not within the parameters of 28 U.S.C.S. § 1446(b), and the defendant will not be permitted to remove the case [Chen v. China Airlines Ltd. (N.D. Cal. 1989) 713 F. Supp. 1322, 1323 ; but see Resolution Trust Corp. v. Bayside Developers (9th Cir. 1995) 43 F.3d 1230, 1234-1235 (although amendment to 12 U.S.C.S. § 1441a(l), providing that RTC need not be formally substituted into a case to remove the case, was enacted during pendency of action, the amendment was considered procedural and not substantive, and could be applied)].

When the voluntary dismissal or abandonment of a resident defendant creates complete diversity between the parties to state proceedings, the nonresident defendant may remove the case to federal court within 30 days of the dismissal or abandon ment. The defendant need not speculate on or anticipate an abandonment from the plaintiff's expressions of intent or other equivocal action. Rather, the defendant is entitled to await affirmative and certain action by a plaintiff confirming that abandonment before exercising the right of removal [Schmidt v. Capitol Life Ins. Co. (N.D. Cal. 1986) 626 F. Supp. 1315, 1318 ; see 28 U.S.C.S. § 1446(b)].

Similarly, a nonresident defendant is under no obligation to investigate the status of resident codefendants as to facts bearing on whether plaintiff will abandon claims against the codefendants [Harris v. Bankers Life & Casualty Co. (9th Cir. 2005) 425 F.3d 689, 696-697 ("clue" in complaint that nonresident defendant could have used to determine that resident codefendant was dead does not run period for filing removal)].

[c] Effect of Multiple Defendants

When there is more than one defendant, and the defendants receive notice of the removability of the case at different times, the 30-day filing requirement of 28 U.S.C.S. § 1446(b) begins when one defendant receives notice that the case has become removable. This is consistent with the requirement that the statute be strictly interpreted against permitting removal [Varney v. Johns-Manville Corp. (N.D. Cal. 1987) 653 F. Supp. 839, 840] .

However, a separate 30-day filing period begins to run upon the service of papers sufficient to establish the right to removal in cases against federal officers under 28 U.S.C.S. § 1442(a), regardless of the officer's knowledge of other grounds for removal [Durham v. Lockheed Martin Corp. (9th Cir. 2006) 445 F.3d 1247, 1253 (denial of removal was improper)].

[d] Waiver of Objection to Untimely Notice of Removal

The right to raise the issue of the untimeliness of the defendant's notice of removal may be waived. Thus, a plaintiff who appears repeatedly before the district court before raising the timeliness objection waives that right [Meadows v. Bicrodyne Corp. (9th Cir. 1986) 785 F.2d 670, 672] .

[4] Notice to Adverse Parties

Promptly after the filing of the notice of removal and bond (bond requirement contained in former 28 U.S.C.S. § 1446(d) was repealed in 1988), the defendant must give written notice of them to all adverse parties andmust file a copy of the notice with the clerk of the state court, which shall effect the removal. The state court will proceed no further in the case [28 U.S.C.S. § 1446(d)]. For a form of notice of filing of the notice of removal and bond, see § 265.166.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Removal of Causes

22-265 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 265.39

§ 265.39 Procedure After Removal

[1] Orders, Process, and Records

In any case removed from a state court, the district court may issue all necessary orders and process to bring before it all proper parties whether served by process issued by the state court or otherwise [28 U.S.C.S. § 1447(a)]. It may require the party seeking removal to file with its clerk copies of all records and proceedings in the state court or may cause the same to be brought before it by writ of certiorari issued to the state court [28 U.S.C.S. § 1447(b)]. For a form for use in obtaining a state clerk's certificate on the transcript of record, see § 265.167.

In all cases removed to any federal district court in which any one or more of the defendants has not been served with process, the service has not been perfected prior to removal, or the process served proves to be defective, that process or service may be completed or new process issued in the same manner as in cases originally filed in that district court [28 U.S.C.S. § 1448]. Section 1448 does not deprive any defendant on whom process is served after removal of his or her right to move to remand the case [28 U.S.C.S. § 1448].

When a party is entitled to copies of the records and proceedings in state court, to be used in any district court, and the clerk of that state court, on demand and the tender of the legal fees, fails to deliver certified copies, the district court may, on affidavit reciting those facts, direct that record to be supplied by affidavit or otherwise. Thereupon those proceedings, trial, and judgment may be had in that district court, and all such process awarded, as if certified copies had been filed in the district court [28 U.S.C.S. § 1449].

[2] Attachment, Bond, or Order in State Court

Whenever any action is removed from a state court to a federal district court, any attachment or sequestration of the goods or estate of the defendant in that action in the state court will hold the goods or estate to answer the final judgment or decree in the same manner as they would have been held to answer final judgment or decree had it been rendered by the state court [28 U.S.C.S. § 1450]. Similarly, all bonds, undertakings, or security given by either party in an action prior to its removal will remain valid and effectual notwithstanding that removal [28 U.S.C.S. § 1450; see also Ch. 538, Suretyship, Bonds, and Undertakings]. All injunctions, orders, and other proceedings had in an action prior to its removal willremain in full force and effect until dissolved or modified by the district court [28 U.S.C.S. § 1450].

[3] Application of Federal Rules

[a] In General

The Federal Rules of Civil Procedure apply to civil actions removed to the federal district courts and govern procedure after removal. Repleading is not necessary unless the court orders it [Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 81(c)].

[b] Timing of Answer

In a removed action in which the defendant has not answered, the defendant must answer or present other available defenses or objections within 20 days after the receipt through service or otherwise of a copy of the initial pleading, within 20 days after the service of summons on the initial pleading, then filed, or within 5 days after the filing of the notice of removal, whichever period is longest [see Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 81(c)].

[c] Demand for Jury Trial

If at the time of removal all necessary pleadings have been served, a party entitled to trial by jury will be accorded it, if the party's demand for a jury trial is served within 10 days after the notice of removal is filed if the party is the defendant. If that party is not the defendant, that demand must be served within 10 days after service on the party of the notice of the filing of the notice of removal [see Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 81(c); see, e.g., Tushner v. United States Dist. Court (9th Cir. 1987) 829 F.2d 853, 854-856 (calculation of time period for filing jury demand in removed case)]. A party who, prior to removal, made an express demand for trial by jury in accordance with state law, need not make a demand after removal. If the applicable state law does not require the parties to make express demands for a jury trial, they need not make demands after removal unless the court directs that they do so within a specified time if they desire to claim trial by jury. The court may make this demand on its own motion and must do so as a matter of course at the re quest of any party. The failure of a party to make demand as directed constitutes a waiver of trial by jury [see Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 81(c)].

[4] Limitation Period for Naming Fictitious Defendants

Code Civ. Proc. §§ 474 and 583.210 operate to extend the statute of limitations in situations in which an identified defendant may be substituted in for a previously named fictitious defendant in a removed action; the timeliness of the claim is not determined by Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 15(c) [Lindley v. General Elec. Co. (9th Cir. 1986) 780 F.2d 797, 799-801 , cert. denied 476 U.S. 1186 (period of limitation extended three years from commencement of action to discovery of Doe's identity and service of summons)].

Chapter 265 FEDERAL COURTS: JURISDICTION AND REMOVAL
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Removal of Causes

22-265 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 265.40

§ 265.40 Procedure for Remand

A case removed from state court to federal court may be remanded back to the state court only in accordance with 28 U.S.C.S. § 1447 [Thermtron Products, Inc. v. Hermansdorfer (1976) 423 U.S. 336, 345-346, 96 S. Ct. 584, 46 L. Ed. 2d 542] . A narrow exception to this rule exists with regard to any claim that is both independently nonremovable and separate and independent from the claim providing the basis for removal; such a claim may be remanded in the court's discretion [28 U.S.C.S. § 1441(c); see Carnegie-Mellon Univ. v. Cohill (1988) 484 U.S. 343, 354-356, 108 S. Ct. 614, 98 L. Ed. 2d 720, 732-734 ; see discussion in § 265.36, above]. Remand may occur any time before final judgment [28 U.S.C.S. § 1447(c)].

The proper procedure for challenging removal is by motion to remand, which puts in issue the validity of the grounds for the removal itself [Societa Anonima Lucchese, Etc. v. Catania S. Corp. (D. Mass. 1977) 440 F. Supp. 461, 463 ; see also discussion in [4], below]. A motion to remand the case on the basis of any defect other than lack of subject matter jurisdiction must be made within 30 days after the filing of the notice of removal [28 U.S.C.S. § 1447(c)].

Although generally the motion for remand is made by the party who initially brought the action in state court, the party who filed the notice of removal also may move for remand [see American Fire & Cas. Co. v. Finn (1951) 341 U.S. 6, 17-18, 71 S. Ct. 534, 95 L. Ed. 702] . Additionally, the federal district court may sua sponte remand an action [see 28 U.S.C.S. § 1447(c)]. Indeed, when there is a lack of federal jurisdiction the district court to which an action is removed has an immediate and continuing duty to remand the case on its own motion [Strasser v. KLM Royal Dutch Airlines (C.D. Cal. 1986) 631 F. Supp. 1254, 1258] . Nevertheless, the district court may not remand a case sua sponte on procedural grounds after the 30-day period to remand has expired [Lively v. Wild Oats Markets, Inc. (2006) 456 F.3d 933, 939-942 (review of remand ordered on basis of violation of forum defendant rule in 28 U.S.C.S. § 1441(b) is subject to 30-day limit in 28 U.S.C.S. § 1447(c); sua sponte remand was improper); Maniar v. Federal Deposit Ins. Corp. (9th Cir. 1992) 979 F.2d 782, 785-786 (untimely removal is a procedural rather than a jurisdictional defect)].

For a form of motion to remand an action, see § 265.168. For a form of motion to sever and remand separate claims, see

[2] Grounds for Remand

If at any time before final judgment it appears that the district court lacks subject matter jurisdiction, the case will be remanded [28 U.S.C.S. § 1447(c); for further discussion of federal jurisdiction, see § 265.32[2]]. A case may also be remanded on the basis of any defect in the removal procedure [28 U.S.C.S. § 1447(c)].

Where plaintiff moves to remand and it is unclear or ambiguous from the face of a state--court complaint whether the requisite amount in controversy is pled, the removing defendant bears the burden of establishing, by a preponderance of the evidence, that the amount in controversy exceeds the jurisdictional amount. Under this burden, the defendant must provide evidence establishing that it is more likely than not that the amount in controversy exceeds that amount [Guglielmino v. McKee Foods Corp. (9th Cir. 2007) 506 F.3d 696, 701].

An otherwise properly removed action may not be remanded because the district court considers the federal docket too crowded, and a court that remands an action for that reason will have exceeded its authority in remanding on grounds not permitted by the controlling statute [Thermtron Products, Inc. v. Hermansdorfer (1976) 423 U.S. 336, 344-345, 96 S. Ct. 584, 46 L. Ed. 2d 542] .

Under the principles of Thermtron, a federal court with jurisdiction over a removed case may not remand it on discretionary grounds. Abstention is a judicially created doctrine; its application is discretionary. Thus, when abstention, rather than a ground in 28 U.S.C.S. § 1447(c), is the basis of a remand, the remand is in error [Ryan v. State Bd. of Elections of State of Ill. (7th Cir. 1981) 661 F.2d 1130, 1133-1134] . Nevertheless, after removal of a case has been effected, a federal district court arguably may invoke principles of abstention or deferral while retaining jurisdiction in any situation when they would apply in a case within the court's original jurisdiction [see Moore's Federal Practice, §§ 107.31, 107.41 (3rd ed. Matthew Bender)]. For further discussion of when a federal court may abstain from or defer hearing a case, see § 265.14[3].

[3] Remand Order

A certified copy of the order of remand will be mailed by the clerk of the district court to the clerk of the state court. The state court may thereupon proceed with the case [28 U.S.C.S. § 1447(c)]. For a form of order granting a remand, see § 265.169. For a form of order granting severance and remand, see § 265.171.

A remand order ends the federal court's jurisdiction [Seedman v. United States Dist. Court (9th Cir. 1988) 837 F.2d 413, 414 (second removal petition does not "reinvest" jurisdiction in federal district court); Pelleport Investors v. Budco Quality Theatres (9th Cir. 1984) 741 F.2d 273, 279 n. 3]. Such an order is res judicata and constitutes collateral estoppel in a subsequent proceeding for removal when the identical parties and identical issues of fact and law are involved [see Mertan v. E.R. Squibb & Sons, Inc. (C.D. Cal. 1980) 581 F. Supp. 751, 753] .

[4] Costs

On remand, the court may require the payment of just costs and any actual expenses, including attorney's fees, incurred as a result of the removal [28 U.S.C.S. § 1447(c)]; The determination of when costs may be awarded must balance the desire to deter removals sought for the purpose of prolonging litigation and imposing costs on the opposing party, and the right to remove as a general matter, when the statutory criteria are satisfied. The standard for awarding fees should turn on the reasonableness of the removal. Absent unusual circumstances, courts may award attorney's fees only where the removing party lacked an objectively reasonable basis for seeking removal. Conversely, when an objectively reasonable basis exists, fees should be denied [Martin v. Franklin Cap. Corp. (2005) 546 U.S. 132, 141, 126 S. Ct. 704, 163 L. Ed. 2d 547] .

An award of fees pursuant to 28 U.S.C.S. § 1447(c) is collateral to the decision to remand. Thus, the district court retains jurisdiction after a remand to entertain a plaintiff's motion for attorney's fees [Moore v. Permanente Medical Group, Inc. (9th Cir. 1992) 981 F.2d 443, 445, 448] .

A party is well advised to seek a remand when it appears removal is improper or the court is without jurisdiction, because failure to do so may result in a reduction of the costs ultimately awarded. For example, in one case in which the defendant removed the action because it presented federal law issues, yet once in federal court argued against its jurisdiction and moved to dismiss the federal claims and to remand the state law causes of action, the court found that the defendant's removal merited an award of costs. However, the court also found that the plaintiff had failed to attempt to remand the action to state court, and thus reduced the costs awarded to the plaintiff [Johnson v. Smith (N.D. Cal. 1986) 630 F. Supp. 1, 5-6] .

Similarly, a plaintiff's own acts in the state court action may affect the availability of costs. For example, in another case the action was improperly removed because the removal petition (now notice of removal) was not timely filed, but the plaintiff's motion for costs was still denied. The court reasoned that the defendants had presented a plausible argument regarding the timeliness of the petition and the plaintiff failed to notify all the defendants of the dismissal of the defendant that created the complete diversity of citizenship, thereby creating confusion regarding the commencement of the 30-day filing limit [Varney v. Johns-Manville Corp. (N.D. Cal. 1987) 653 F. Supp. 839, 840-841] .

When there is no change of parties or issues following the remand of an action to state court on the ground of lack of diversity, a subsequent notice of removal is a misuse of process that warrants an award of costs to the plaintiff and the plaintiff's counsel, as well as to the state court, for the necessary and reasonable expenses incurred because of the unwarranted delay in trial and the forced preparation of opposing pleadings caused by the defendant's oppressive and futile actions [Mertan v. E.R. Squibb & Sons, Inc. (C.D. Cal. 1980) 581 F. Supp. 751, 753] .

A decision to grant costs under 28 U.S.C.S. § 1447(c) is reviewed under the standard of abuse of discretion and will be overturned if it is based on an erroneous determination of law [Durham v. Lockheed Martin Corp. (9th Cir. 2006) 445 F.3d 1247, 1250] .

[5] Review

[a] When Available

[i] Motion Denied

The district court's order denying a motion to remand an action to state court is reviewable [see Sullivan v. First Affiliated Securities, Inc. (9th Cir. 1987) 813 F.2d 1368, 1370 , cert. denied 98 L. Ed. 2d 106] . It appears review may be by an interlocutory appeal of the order denying remand [see Sullivan v. First Affiliated Securities, Inc. (9th Cir. 1987) 813 F.2d 1368, 1370 , cert. denied 98 L. Ed. 2d 106] , or by an appeal after final judgment [see Carpenters Southern Cal. Admin. v. Majestic Housing (9th Cir. 1984) 743 F.2d 1341, 1343 (review after summary judgment); Salveson v. Western States Bankcard Ass'n (9th Cir. 1984) 731 F.2d 1423, 1426 (review after dismissal)].

[ii] Motion Granted

An order remanding a case to the state court from which it was removed is not reviewable on appeal or otherwise, with certain exceptions. First, an order remanding a case to the state court from which it was removed pursuant to 28 U.S.C.S. § 1443 (civil rights case) is reviewable by appeal or otherwise [28 U.S.C.S. § 1447(d)]. Only remands based on grounds specified in 1447(c) are immune from review under 1447(d) [Quackenbush v. Allstate Insurance Co. (1996) 517 U.S. 706, 712, 116 S. Ct. 1712, 135 L. Ed. 2d 1] . Specifically, review of a district court's characterization of its remand as resting upon lack of subject matter jurisdiction, to the extent it is permissible at all, is limited to confirming that that characterization was colorable [Powerex Corp. v. Reliant Energy Services (2007) 551 U.S. 224, 127 S. Ct. 2411, 2418, 168 L. Ed. 2d 112]. Second, an order remanding a class action to state court is reviewable if an application is made to the court of appeals within seven court [see Amalgamated Transit Union Local 1309, AFL-CIO v. Laidlaw Transit Servs., Inc. (9th Cir. 2005) 435 F.3d 1140, 1146 (applying Fed. R. App. P., Rule 26(a)(2))] days after the entry of the order [28 U.S.C.S. § 1453(c)(1); Amalgamated Transit Union Local 1309, AFL-CIO v. Laidlaw Transit Servs., Inc. (9th Cir. 2005) 435 F.3d 1140, 1146 (intent of Congress was to require filing of application within 7 days of entry of remand); Bush v. Cheaptickets, Inc. (9th Cir. 2005) 425 F.3d 683, 685 (appeal filed on the seventh day after entry of order is timely)].

A remand order based on the district court's application of the abstention doctrine does not fall into either category of remand order described in section 1447(c), because it is not based on lack of subject matter jurisdiction or defects in removal procedure, and it is therefore subject to review [Quackenbush v. Allstate Insurance Co. (1996) 517 U.S. 706, 712, 116 S. Ct. 1712, 135 L. Ed. 2d 1] . By the same token, a federal district court's remand after declining supplemental jurisdiction under 28 U.S.C.S. § 1367(c)(3) is appealable under 28 U.S.C.S. § 1291 rather than subject to review by mandamus under 28 U.S.C.S. § 1651 [California Dep't of Water Resources v. Powerex Corp. (9th Cir. 2008) 533 F.3d 1087, 1095-1096 (overruling prior contrary rulings)]. Similarly, a remand order based on events subsequent to removal, which caused the district court to lose jurisdiction, is subject to review, because the remand was not taken for one of the grounds listed in 28 U.S.C.S. § 1447(c) [Reddam v. KPMG LLP (9th Cir. 2006) 457 F.3d 1054, 1058-1059 (designated arbitration organization declined jurisdiction)]. Likewise, the violation of the forum defendant rule contained in 28 U.S.C.S. § 1441(b) is not jurisdictional, and therefore review of a remand ordered on the basis of such a violation is not barred by 28 U.S.C.S. § 1447(d) [Lively v. Wild Oats Markets, Inc. (2006) 456 F.3d 933, 939-942] .

An appellate court has jurisdiction to decide whether a district court has the power to issue a remand order, although the appellate court cannot examine whether a particular exercise of power was proper [Northern California District Council of Laborers v. Pittsburg-Des Moines Steel Co. (9th Cir. 1995) 69 F.3d 1034, 1037-1038 ; see Thermtron Products, Inc. v. Hermansdorfer (1976) 423 U.S. 336, 351-352, 96 S. Ct. 584, 46 L. Ed. 2d 542 (decided under prior version of section 1447(c))]. For example, failure to comply with the 30-day time limit deprives the district court of power to order remand on the basis of a defect in removal procedure, and a remand order based on a procedural defect that was not raised within the 30-day period may be vacated by the appellate court [Northern California District Council of Laborers v. Pittsburg-Des Moines Steel Co. (9th Cir. 1995) 69 F.3d 1034, 1038 ; Maniar v. FDIC (9th Cir. 1992) 979 F.2d 782, 786] .

The policy underlying the general nonreviewability of 28 U.S.C.S. § 1447(d) is to prevent delay by protracted litigation over jurisdictional issues. Thus, the district court is the final arbiter of whether it has jurisdiction to hear the case. However, when a district court bypasses the jurisdictional arguments and reaches the merits of the case, the policy is inapplicable, and review is possible. For example, remand based on a forum selection clause is subject to review, because denial of review would deprive the defendant of the right to appeal the court's decision on the substantive issue of the validity of the clause [Pelleport Investors v. Budco Quality Theatres (9th Cir. 1984) 741 F.2d 273, 276-277 ; see Clorox v. U.S. Dist. Ct. for N.D. of California (9th Cir. 1985) 779 F.2d 517, 519-521] . Similarly, a remand based on the overcrowded condition of the federal docket is not within the grounds of 28 U.S.C.S. § 1447(c), and such a remand is reviewable [Thermtron Products, Inc. v. Hermansdorfer (1976) 423 U.S. 336, 344-345, 96 S. Ct. 584, 46 L. Ed. 2d 542] .

[b] Means of Obtaining Review

When an order granting remand is subject to review, as discussed in § 265.40[5][a], above, the proper method for obtaining review is to appeal the order [Quackenbush v. Allstate Insurance Co. (1996) 517 U.S. 706, 714-715, 116 S. Ct. 1712, 135 L. Ed. 2d 1 (disavowing statement in Thermtron Products, Inc. v. Hermansdorfer (1976) 423 U.S. 336, 352-353, 96 S. Ct. 584, 46 L. Ed. 2d 542 , that review is available only by mandamus)]. As a discretionary appeal, the appeal of the remand of a class action under 28 U.S.C.S. § 1453(c)(1) requires the permission of the court of appeals, which must be applied for in accordance with Fed. R. App. P., Rule 5 [Amalgamated Transit Union Local 1309, AFL-CIO v. Laidlaw Transit Servs., Inc. (9th Cir. 2005) 435 F.3d 1140, 1145] .

Occasionally, the issues of removal and remand may be inseparable from another issue. For example, when an action is removed to district court and that court enjoins the prosecution of a parallel state action, the propriety of the underlying removal is intertwined with the propriety of the granting of the injunction. Thus, the refusal to remand is an issue properly reviewable on an appeal of the propriety of the preliminary injunction [Takeda v. Northwestern Nat. Life Ins. Co. (9th Cir. 1985) 765 F.2d 815, 818] .

[c] Standard of Review

The standard of review in determining whether the district court erred in denying remand to the state court is whether the case was properly removed to the federal court under 28 U.S.C.S. § 1441 in the first instance. The court will strictly construe the removal statute against removal jurisdiction [Takeda v. Northwestern Nat. Life Ins. Co. (9th Cir. 1985) 765 F.2d 815, 818 ; Salveson v. Western States Bankcard Ass'n (9th Cir. 1984) 731 F. 2d 1423, 1426 ; see Karambelas v. Hughes Aircraft Company (9th Cir. 1993) 992 F.2d 971, 973 (if party makes no motion to remand case to state court, question is not whether removal was proper, but whether federal court would have had original jurisdiction had case been filed in that court)]. Because 28 U.S.C.S. § 1441 authorizes removal of any action based on a claim or right arising under federal law, the question on review thus becomes whether the district court correctly concluded that the plaintiff's claim arose under federal law [Carpenters Southern Cal. Admin. v. Majestic Housing (9th Cir. 1984) 743 F.2d 1341, 1343] . That question is reviewed de novo [Sullivan v. First Affiliated Securities, Inc. (9th Cir. 1987) 813 F.2d 1368, 1371 , cert. denied sub nom. First Alliance Sec. v. Sullivan 98 L. Ed. 2d 106] .

When an order granting remand is reviewable [see discussion in [b], above], apparently the district court's order should not be overturned unless it was clearly erroneous as a matter of law [see Survival Sys. v. U.S. Dist. Ct. for S.D. Cal. (9th Cir. 1987) 825 F.2d 1416, 1419 n.2 , cert. denied, 484 U.S. 1042 (1988)] . The type of review depends on the nature of the decisions made in the remand order [Sever v. Alaska Pulp Corp. (9th Cir. 1992) 978 F.2d 1529, 1539] .

The standard for reviewing an award of attorney's fees under 28 U.S.C.S. § 1447(c) is whether the district court abused its discretion [Moore v. Permanente Medical Group, Inc. (9th Cir. 1992) 981 F.2d 443, 447-448] .

A. Jurisdiction

22-265 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 265.52

§ 265.52 Federal Rules of Civil Procedure

Pleading setting forth claim for relief must contain short and plain statement of grounds on which court's jurisdiction depends, unless court already has jurisdiction and claim needs no new grounds of jurisdiction to support it. Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 8(a)(1)

Defense of lack of subject matter jurisdiction may be asserted either in responsive pleading or by motion. Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 12(b)(1)

Dismissal of action when court lacks jurisdiction of subject matter. Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 12(h)(3)

Unincorporated association or partnership having no capacity to sue or be sued as permitted to sue or be sued in its common name in federal courts for purpose of enforcing for or against it a substantive right existing under Constitution or laws of United States. Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 17(b)

Capacity or authority of party to sue or be sued in representative capacity as required to be alleged in order to show jurisdiction of court. Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 9(b)

Executor, administrator, guardian, bailee, trustee of express trust, party with whom or in whose name contract has been made for benefit of another, or party authorized by statute as permitted to sue in his or her own name without joining party for whose benefit action is brought. Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 17(a)

Interpleader. Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 22

PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE
A. Jurisdiction

22-265 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 265.54

§ 265.54 Decisions

[1] Amending of Jurisdictional Allegations

Amendment of incorrect jurisdictional allegation permitted only when jurisdiction does in fact exist. Newman-Green, Inc. v. Alfonzo-Larrain (1989) 490 U.S. 826, 830-831, 109 S. Ct. 2218, 104 L. Ed. 2d 893

[2] Ancillary Jurisdiction

State claim raised in ongoing federal action by defendant, or by another person whose rights might be lost irretrievably if claim cannot be raised in action, falls within federal court's ancillary jurisdiction if claim has logical dependence on original complaint. Owen Equipment & Erection Co. v. Kroger (1978) 437 U.S. 365, 375-376, 98 S. Ct. 2396, 57 L. Ed. 2d 274

Federal court extends jurisdiction to encompass ancillary disputes whenever complete justice may be done thereby. Consolo v. Federal Maritime Comm'n (1966) 383 U.S. 607, 617 n.14, 86 S. Ct. 1018, 16 L. Ed. 2d 131

[3] Case or Controversy

[a] Mootness

When injury suffered by plaintiff is limited in duration and there is a reasonable expectation that plaintiff will be subject to same action in the future, case is "capable of repetition yet evading review," and not moot. Roe v. Wade (1973) 410 U.S. 113, 125, 93 S. Ct. 705, 35 L. Ed. 2d 147

Amendment or repeal of a statute generally moots the action challenging it. Native Village of Noatak v. Blatchford (9th Cir. 1994) 38 F.3d 1505, 1510

[b] Ripeness

Person challenging constitutionality of criminal statute did not have to first violate the statute and risk arrest and prosecution for case to be ripe for review. Steffel v. Thompson (1974) 415 U.S. 452, 459, 94 S. Ct. 1209, 39 L. Ed. 2d 505

Declaratory relief action to determine existence of insurance coverage not barred by doctrine of ripeness. Maryland Casualty Co. v. Pacific Coal & Oil Co. (1941) 312 U.S. 270, 273-274, 61 S. Ct. 510, 85 L. Ed. 826

Without a more fully developed factual record, including evidence of some real threat of enforcement of canons for judicial candidates, and without a showing that withholding federal adjudication would have imposed hardship on plaintiff, the district court should have declined jurisdiction for lack of a justiciable case or controversy. Given that the constitutional challenges were not ripe, the appellate court vacated the district court's order and judgment and remanded with instructions to dismiss. Alaska Right to Life v. Feldman (9th Cir. 2007) 504 F.3d 840, 851-852

An as-applied taking claim is ripe only if the landowner can establish that (1) the government entity charged with implementing the regulations has reached a final decision regarding the application of the regulations to the property at issue, and (2) the landowner has sought compensation through the procedures the state has provided for doing so. Vacation Vill., Inc. v. Clark County (9th Cir. 2007) 497 F.3d 902, 912

[c] Standing

Assignee of claim has standing under Lujan's standards for Article III jurisdiction. Sprint Communs. Co., L.P. v. APCC Servs. (2008) 554 U.S. 269, 128 S. Ct. 2531, 171 L. Ed. 2d 424, 431, 437

General criteria for dismissing action for lack of standing. Lujan v. Defenders of Wildlife (1992) 504 U.S. 555, 112 S. Ct. 2130, 2136, 119 L. Ed. 2d 351

Physician challenging statute limiting distribution of contraceptives could assert constitutional privacy rights of couples denied access to the contraceptives. Griswold v. Connecticut (1965) 381 U.S. 479, 481, 85 S. Ct. 1678, 14 L. Ed. 2d 510

Party to restrictive race covenant who sold property in violation of covenant could also assert Fourteenth Amendment rights of non-Caucasian potential homebuyers. Barrows v. Jackson (1953) 346 U.S. 249, 258-259, 73 S. Ct. 1031, 97 L. Ed. 1586

As to Lujan's requirement that a plaintiff's injury be actual or imminent, a disabled individual who is currently deterred from patronizing a public accommodation due to a defendant's failure to comply with the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) has suffered "actual injury." Doran v. 7-Eleven, Inc. (9th Cir. 2007) 506 F.3d 1191, 1196

A plaintiff has standing to challenge barriers in a public accommodation under the Americans With Disabilities Act when he or she has actually encountered those barriers. A plaintiff may challenge barriers not personally encountered if those barriers have deterred the plaintiff from patronizing the public accommodation. Skaff v. Meridien N. Am. Beverly Hills, LLC (9th Cir. 2007) 506 F.3d 832, 838

To establish Article III standing, a litigant must show that the allegedly unlawful conduct caused him to suffer an actual or imminent injury--not a hypothetical, conjectural, or abstract injury--that a favorable decision would likely redress. United States v. Lazarenko (9th Cir. 2006) 469 F.3d 815, 822

To show a concrete and particularized interest, environmental plaintiffs must allege that they will suffer harm by virtue of their geographic proximity to and use of areas that will be affected by the agency's policy. Nuclear Information and Resource Service v. Nuclear Regulatory Comm. (9th Cir. 2006) 457 F.3d 941, 953

[4] Choice of Law as Separate Issue

Choice-of-law concerns are separate from jurisdictional questions, and arise only after jurisdiction is established and should not complicate or distort jurisdictional inquiry. Keeton v. Hustler Magazine, Inc. (1984) 465 U.S. 770, 778, 104 S. Ct. 1473, 79 L. Ed. 2d 790

[5] Diversity of Citizenship Jurisdiction

[a] In General

State law limiting the availability of the class action based on the relief sought did not apply under federal diversity jurisdiction. Shady Grove Orthopedic Assocs., P.A. v. Allstate Ins. Co. (2010) -- U.S. --, 130 S. Ct. 1431, 176 L. Ed. 2d 311, 318-319

When jurisdiction is based on diversity of citizenship, court lacks power to entertain claim against third-party defendant when action was dismissed as to primary defendant and both plaintiff and third-party defendant were citizens of same state. Owen Equipment & Erection Co. v. Kroger (1978) 437 U.S. 365, 376-377, 98 S. Ct. 2396, 57 L. Ed. 2d 274

In cases in which jurisdiction is based on diversity of citizenship, all parties on one side must be of diverse citizenship to those on other side. Treinies v. Sunshine Mining Co. (1939) 308 U.S. 66, 71, 60 S. Ct. 44, 84 L. Ed. 85

California State Board of Equalization, as agency of state for assessing and collecting state taxes, has no "citizenship" for purposes of diversity jurisdiction under 28 U.S.C.S. § 1332 or interpleader under 28 U.S.C.S. § 1335, which requires diversity of citizenship. Morongo Band of M. Indians v. Cal. St. Bd. of Equal. (9th Cir. 1988) 849 F.2d 1197, 1200

District court's abstention from exercising diversity jurisdiction because of subsequent parallel state actions held to be abuse of discretion because there was no possibility of fragmentation of case between federal and state courts, issues before district court had been fully briefed and were ripe for resolution, state proceedings had been stayed, and no significant question of state law or sensitive area of state policy was involved. Mobil Oil Corp. v. City of Long Beach (9th Cir. 1985) 772 F.2d 534, 541-543

Diversity of citizenship destroyed by joinder under Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 19, of employer as necessary party in action by employee against provider ofgroup medical insurance to employer's company. Takeda v. Northwestern Nat. Life Ins. Co. (9th Cir. 1985) 765 F.2d 815, 819-821

Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 19(a)(2), required joinder of child in parent's action because child had interest relating to subject of action and was so situated that disposition of action in his absence could impair or impede his ability to protect that interest. Aguilar v. Los Angeles County (9th Cir. 1985) 751 F.2d 1089, 1091-1094

Federal court as having jurisdiction over cases when domestic relations issues are implicated only tangentially; court as able to exercise discretion to decline jurisdiction when issues are closely related to domestic relations exception, and comity and policy counsel against federal court intervention. Fern v. Turman (9th Cir. 1984) 736 F.2d 1367, 1370

When jurisdiction of district court is based on diversity of citizenship, pleading Doe defendants in complaint destroys that jurisdiction. Garter-Bare Co. v. Munsingwear, Inc. (9th Cir. 1980) 650 F.2d 975, 981

Permissive joinder properly allowed when defendant joined was proper party to litigation but diversity jurisdiction was destroyed because party defendant's residence was state of plaintiff bank's incorporation. Desert Empire Bank v. Ins. Co. of N. America (9th Cir. 1980) 623 F.2d 1371, 1374

Citizenship of each member of unincorporated association or partnership as required to be alleged regardless of fact that under state law such entity is capable of suing or being sued. Fifty Associates v. Prudential Ins. Co. of America (9th Cir. 1970) 446 F.2d 1187, 1190 (applying rule to partnerships)

Citizenship of bankrupt as determinative and that of trustee as immaterial. Bush v. Elliott (1906) 202 U.S. 477, 484, 26 S. Ct. 668, 50 L. Ed. 1114

In passing on presence of diversity jurisdiction, court as required to consider citizenship of real party in interest. Fernandez-Cerra v. Commercial Ins. Co. of Newark (D. P.R. 1972) 344 F. Supp. 314, 317

In cases where one party represents another, nature of representation, as defined by state law, as required to be studied to determine whether representing party is real party in interest or nominal beneficiary party. Fernandez-Cerra v. Commercial Ins. Co. of Newark (D. P.R. 1972) 344 F. Supp. 314, 317

Federal court as not having jurisdiction to entertain suit in which both plaintiff and defendant are aliens. Dassigienis v. Cosmos Carriers & Trading Corp. (2d Cir. 1971) 442 F.2d 1016, 1017

Alien required to aver that he or she is subject or citizen of foreign state. Blair Holdings Corp. v. Rubenstein (S.D. N.Y. 1954) 122 F. Supp. 602, 603

Actual service of process on diverse defendants as required to confer subject matter jurisdiction under 28 U.S.C.S. § 1335. Cripps v. Life Ins. Co. of North America (9th Cir. 1992) 980 F. 2d 1261, 1265-1266

Subject matter jurisdiction under interpleader as unavailable to settle rent money dispute involving California Indian tribe, member of that tribe, and California State Board of Equalization; no diversity of citizenship between tribe and tribal member, and state agency as not having "citizenship" for purposes of diversity jurisdiction under 28 U.S.C.S. § 1332 and interpleader. Morongo Band of M. Indians v. Cal. St. Bd. of Equal. (9th Cir. 1988) 849 F.2d 1197, 1200

Reverse preemption provisions in federal statutes not barring federal diversity jurisdiction. Hawthorne Sav. F.S.B. v. Reliance Ins. Co. (9th Cir. 2005) 421 F.3d 835, 842-844

[b] Corporations

Petitioner's unchallenged declaration suggests that corporation's center of direction, control, and coordination, its "nerve center," and its corporate headquarters are one and the same, and they are located in New Jersey, not in California. The Hertz Corp. v. Friend (2010) -- U.S. --, 130 S. Ct. 1181, 175 L. Ed. 2d 1029, 1044

Corporation's principal place of business to be determined by application of "operations" or "nerve center" test. Breitman v. May Company California (9th Cir. 1994) 37 F.3d 562, 564

Allegations of diversity jurisdiction in action in which corporation is party are required to contain both place of incorporation and principal place of business. Moore v. Sylvania Elec. Prod., Inc. (3rd Cir. 1972) 454 F.2d 81, 84 n.1

Allegations of diversity jurisdiction, in case in which corporation is party, are required to show manner corporation is citizen. Fifty Associates v. Prudential Ins. Co. of America (9th Cir. 1970) 446 F.2d 1187, 1190

A national bank is located for the purpose of qualification for diversity jurisdiction in the State designated in its articles of association as its main office. Wachovia Bank, National Association v. Schmidt (2006) 546 U.S. 303, 307, 126 S. Ct. 941, 163 L. Ed. 2d 797

[c] Improper Joinder

Court permitted to look beyond pleadings and arrange parties according to actual sides in dispute. Dawson v. Columbia Ave. Sav. Fund, Safe Deposit, Title, & Trust Co. (1905) 197 U.S. 178, 180 25 S. Ct. 420, 49 L. Ed. 713

If nominal party having no real or substantial interest in dispute is designated simply for purpose of creating diversity of jurisdiction, such party as having been improperly joined. McSparran v. Weist (3d Cir. 1968) 402 F.2d 867, 873

Motive is relevant in determining whether party has been improperly joined to invoke jurisdiction of federal court. McSparran v. Weist (3d Cir. 1968) 402 F.2d 867, 874

[6] Eleventh Amendment

[a] General Immunity From Federal Suit

Potential vulnerability of state treasury to pay federal court judgments is the most salient factor in determining whether *Eleventh Amendment*immunity is available. Hess v. Port Authority Trans-Hudson (1994) 513 U.S. 30, 115 S. Ct. 394, 130 L. Ed. 2d 245, 260-261

Eleventh Amendment immunity is available only in actions in which the relief sought is compensatory or retrospective in nature; the test is whether the relief will remedy future or past wrongs. Coeur d'Alene Tribe of Idaho v. State of Idaho (9th Cir. 1994) 42 F.3d 1244, 1252

[b] Exceptions to Eleventh Amendment Immunity

The two major exceptions to Eleventh Amendment Immunity are waiver by a state and abrogation of immunity by Congressional action under the enforcement provisions of the Constitution. Atascadero State Hospital v. Scanlon (1985) 473 U.S. 234, 238, 105 S. Ct. 3142, 87 L. Ed. 2d 171 Government Employee Rights Act's provision, 42 U.S.C.S. § 2000e-5(g)(1), makes congressional intent to abrogate state sovereign immunity unmistakably clear, in that it expressly covers state employees, and expressly gives them a right to collect damages payable by the employer, the state. Alaska v. U.S. (9th Cir. 2009) 564 F.3d 1062, 1066

[c] State Agencies

Overriding factor in determining whether Eleventh Amendment immunity is available to a state agency is whether any recovery against the agency would be payable from the state treasury; i.e., whether the state is the real party in interest. Hess v. Port Authority Trans-Hudson (1994) 513 U.S. 30, 115 S. Ct. 394, 130 L. Ed. 2d 245, 260-261

[d] State Officials

State officials acting under an unconstitutional statute or in an unauthorized manner are acting individually and not in their officials capacities on the theory that a state cannot act in an unconstitutional manner and, hence, cannot authorize its officials to do so. Ex Parte Young (1909) 209 U.S. 123, 159-160, 28 S. Ct. 441, 52 L. Ed. 714

[7] Federal Jurisdiction Required to Be Pleaded

Case cognizable in federal trial court, in absence of diversity of citizenship, unless it appears from face of complaint that determination of suit depends on question of federal law. Pan American Pac. Corp. v. Superior Court (1961) 366 U.S. 656, 663, 81 S. Ct. 1303, 6 L. Ed. 2d 584

Federal courts are courts of limited jurisdiction. Grace v. American Central Ins. Co. (1883) 109 U.S. 278, 283, 3 S. Ct. 207, 27 L. Ed. 932

Failure to present specific basis for federal jurisdiction in complaint is not fatal when facts alleged are sufficient to support jurisdiction. L.A. Branch NAACP v. L.A. Unified School Dist. (9th Cir. 1983) 714 F.2d 946, 951 , cert. denied, 467 U.S. 1209 (1984)

[8] Federal Question Jurisdiction

Complaint alleging violation of federal statute as element of state cause of action, when Congress has determined that no private federal cause of action exists for violation, does not state claim "arising under the Constitution, laws, or treaties of the United States" under 28 U.S.C.S. § 1331. Merrell Dow Pharmaceuticals v. Thompson (1986) 478 U.S. 804, 817, 106 S. Ct. 3229, 92 L. Ed. 2d 650, 664

In suit involving jurisdiction based on federal question, plaintiff's claim must present federal question unaided by anything alleged in anticipation of avoidance of defenses that defendant may interpose. Skelly Oil Co. v. Phillips Petroleum Co. (1949) 339 U.S. 667, 672, 70 S. Ct. 876, 94 L. Ed. 1194

In causes involving federal question jurisdiction, averments of complaint attempting to bring case within federal jurisdiction must be real and substantial. Blumenstock Bros. Advertising Agency v. Curtis Pub. Co. (1919) 252 U.S. 436, 440, 40 S. Ct. 385, 64 L. Ed. 649

Malicious prosecution action brought after successful defense of federal securities and racketeering charges did not present a federal question because task of deciding whether underlying federal claims had been legally tenable did not raise a substantial question of federal law. Berg v. Leason (9th Cir. 1994) 32 F.3d 422, 425

When declaratory judgment plaintiff asserts claim that is in nature of defense to threatened or pending action, character of threatened or pending action determines whether federal question jurisdiction exists with regard to declaratory judgment action; if declaratory judgment defendant could have brought coercive action in federal court to enforce its rights, jurisdiction exists for declaratory relief. Levin Metals Corp. v. Parr-Richmond Terminal Co. (9th Cir. 1986) 799 F.2d 1312, 1315

Suit challenging city's interpretation of ordinance is not forbidden appeal of state court final judgment under Rooker-Feldman doctrine. Manufactured Home Cmtys., Inc. v. City of San Jose (2005) 420 F.3d 1022, 1029-1030

Specific statutes may grant jurisdictional exceptions to the Rooker-Feldman doctrine doctrine. Doe v. Mann (2005) 415 F.3d 1038, 1043

Jurisdiction on basis of claim arising under laws of United States is not established by assertion of federal preemption defense to claims arising under state law. Fern v. Turman (9th Cir. 1984) 736 F.2d 1367, 1368-1369 (court applied domestic relations exception to diversity jurisdiction)

Erroneous discharge and union's breach of duty entitle employees to remedy against both union and employer. Hines v. Anchor Motor Freight, Inc. (1976) 424 U.S. 554, 572, 96 S. Ct. 1048, 47 L. Ed. 2d 231

Pleading multiple bases of federal court jurisdiction as permitted. Technical Tape Corp. v. Minnesota Mining & Mfg. Co. (2d Cir. 1952) 200 F.2d 876, 877-878

General subject matter jurisdiction of federal court not narrowed by Safe Drinking Water Act, *42 U.S.C.S. § 300g-3(b)(2)*1453(c)(1). United States v. Alisal Water Corp. (9th Cir. 2005) 431 F.3d 643, 651

Jurisdiction of action to rescind sale and recover consideration under 15 U.S.C.S. § 77v(a) irrespective of citizenship of parties or amount in controversy. Deckert v. Independence Shares Corp. (1940) 311 U.S. 282, 289-290, 61 S. Ct. 229, 85 L. Ed. 189

Federal Employers' Liability Act creates cause of action against state-owned railroad enforceable in state court. Hilton v. S.C. Pub. R. Com. (1991) 502 U.S. 197, 112 S. Ct. 560, 116 L. Ed. 2d 560, 567, 572

Jurisdiction, where no diversity of citizenship, as dependent on Federal Employers' Liability Act even though act complained of constitutes violation of Safety Appliance Act. Jacobson v. New York, New Haven & Hartford Co. (1st Cir. 1953) 206 F.2d 153, 158

Federal district court has concurrent jurisdiction with United States Claims Court over Tucker Act claims and mixed-Tucker Act claims not exceeding $10,000, but Federal Circuit and not Ninth Circuit has exclusive jurisdiction over appeal. Brant v. Cleveland Nat. Forest Service (9th Cir. 1988) 843 F.2d 1222, 1223-1224

Suit to recover value of property taken by government as founded either on Constitution or on implied promise to pay. United States v. Dickinson (1947) 331 U.S. 745, 747, 67 S. Ct. 1382, 91 L. Ed. 1789

Jurisdictional amount as required to be alleged in suit by or against corporation incorporated by Act of Congress and of which United States is more than one-half owner. Federal Intermediate Credit Bank v. Mitchell (1927) 277 U.S. 213, 214, 48 S. Ct. 114, 72 L. Ed. 854

Jurisdiction under 28 U.S.C.S. § 1353 is not available for dispute over rent due on lease of Indian allotment, because complaint assumed validity of Indian's interest in allotment and authority to enter into lease with respect to that interest. Morongo Band of Mission Indians v. Cal. St. Bd. of Equal. (9th Cir. 1988) 849 F.2d 1197, 1201

Operation of Attorney General's certification invoking 28 U.S.C.S. § 2679, Federal Employees Liability Reform and Tort Compensation Act of 1988, upon federal jurisdiction over individual federal employee. Osborn v. Haley (2007) 549 U.S. 225, 127 S. Ct. 881, 166 L. Ed. 2d 819

California Elections Commission proceeding was ongoing for purposes of Younger abstention, in that while the commission had determined violation, it had not yet ascertained the applicable fine, so the federal district court was required to abstain under the four Younger principles. San Jose Silicon Valley Chamber of Commerce Political Action Comm. v. City of San Jose (9th Cir. 2008) 546 F.3d 1087, 1092

California court of appeal could exercise jurisdiction over case concerning assignment of patent royalties, even if the affirmative defense of the invalidity of the patent itself was raised. Applera Corp. v. MP Biomedicals, LLC (2009) 173 Cal. App. 4th 769, 785, 93 Cal. Rptr. 3d 178

Inventor's claim for damages for having to defend the reexamination of patents during which he was unable to enforce his patent rights arose under federal patent laws and therefore was subject to the exclusive jurisdiction of the federal courts under 28 U.S.C. § 1338. Lockwood v. Sheppard, Mullin, Richter & Hampton (2009) 173 Cal. App. 4th 675, 687 93 Cal. Rptr. 3d 220

[9] Forum Selection Clause

Federal court jurisdiction is not precluded by forum selection clause (in contract between New Jersey corporation and Delaware corporation operating in California) that states "courts of California, County of Orange, shall have jurisdiction over any action at law relating to ... this contract"; clause is permissive, not mandatory. Hunt-Wesson Foods, Inc. v. Supreme Oil Co. (9th Cir. 1987) 817 F.2d 75, 77

District court was in error in assuming that state and federal courts would have had jurisdiction in absence of forum selection clause when there were insufficient contacts with California to confer jurisdiction over New Jersey corporation; when forum selection clause is permissive, not mandatory, federal district court errs in remanding to state court. Hunt-Wesson Foods, Inc. v. Supreme Oil Co. (9th Cir. 1987) 817 F.2d 75, 77-78

[10] Grounds for Federal Jurisdiction

Federal courts have only the power that is authorized by U.S. Const., art. III, and statutes enacted by Congress pursuant to that article. Bender v. Williamsport Area School Dist. (1986) 475 U.S. 534, 541, 106 S. Ct. 1326, 89 L. Ed. 2d 501

Federal rules of civil procedure do not create or withdraw federal jurisdiction. Owen Equipment & Erection Co. v. Kroger (1978) 437 U.S. 365, 370, 98 S. Ct. 2396, 57 L. Ed. 2d 274

States have no power to enlarge or contract federal jurisdiction, however extensive their power to create and define substantive rights. BNSF Rail. Co. v.O'Dea (9th Cir. 2009) 572 F.3d 785, 788-789 ; Duchek v. Jacobi (9th Cir. 1981) 646 F. 2d 415, 417-419

Federal courts are empowered to act only in those specific instances authorized by Congress. McGlynn v. Employers Commercial Union Ins. Co. of America (D.P.R. 1974) 386 F. Supp. 774, 776-777

[11] Pendent Jurisdiction

District court has jurisdiction over state-law claims in action if federal-law claims and state-law claims in action derive from common nucleus of operative fact and are such that plaintiff would ordinarily be expected to try them all in one judicial proceeding. Carnegie-Mellon Univ. v. Cohill (1988) 484 U.S. 343, 349, 108 S. Ct. 614, 98 L. Ed. 2d 720

If state and federal claims derive from common nucleus of operative fact, or, without regard to federal and state character, claims are such that they would ordinarily be brought in single proceeding, then, assuming substantiality of federal issues, court may exercise its pendent jurisdiction to hear both federal and state claims. United Mine Workers v. Gibbs (1966) 383 U.S. 715, 725, 726, 86 S. Ct. 1130, 16 L. Ed. 2d 218

No separate and independent claim or cause of action under 28 U.S.C.S. § 1441(c) as occurring when there is single wrong to plaintiff, for which relief is sought, arising from interlocked series of transactions. American Fire & Cas. Co. v. Finn (1951) 341 U.S. 6, 13-14, 71 S. Ct. 534, 95 L. Ed. 702

Refusal to exercise supplemental jurisdiction in case raising novel issues of state law. Manufactured Home Cmtys., Inc. v. City of San Jose (2005) 420 F.3d 1022, 1034

Dismissal of pendent state constitutional claims authorized when they raised novel questions of state law and court had already dismissed federalconstitutional claims. Harris v. Joint School District No. 241 (9th Cir. 1994) 41 F.3d 447, 449

Pendent jurisdiction depends on federal court's jurisdiction over one claim, to which second, nonfederal claim may be appended; without federal claim on which to append related state cause of action, federal court has no basis for asserting jurisdiction. Aragon v. Federated Dept. Stores, Inc. (9th Cir. 1985) 750 F.2d 1447, 1457-1458

Federal court's refusal to exercise its power to assume pendent jurisdiction requires dismissal of state claims; court is unable to decline to exercise its power for purposes of jurisdiction and assert its power for purposes of ordering dismissed claims to arbitration. Kehr v. Smith Barney, Harris Upham & Co., Inc. (9th Cir. 1984) 736 F.2d 1283, 1287

Pendent jurisdiction existed over state claims of fraud and malpractice against class attorneys, deriving from common operative fact with federal claims, when jurisdiction over claims of fraud in earlier settlement existed. Valerio v. Boise Cascade Corp. (9th Cir. 1981) 645 F.2d 699, 700

[12] Amount

[a] In General

Sum claimed by plaintiff in prayer for relief controls for purposes of determining requisite jurisdictional amount if claim is apparently made in good faith. St. Paul Mercury Indem. Co. v. Red Cab Co. (1937) 303 U.S. 283, 288-289, 58 S. Ct. 586, 82 L. Ed. 845

Dismissal of action for failure to allege requisite jurisdictional amount permitted only when it appears to legal certainty that claim is really for less than jurisdictional amount. St. Paul Mercury Indem. Co. v. Red Cab Co. (1937) 303 U.S. 283, 288-289, 58 S. Ct. 586, 82 L. Ed. 845

Inability of plaintiff to recover amount adequate to give court jurisdiction does not in itself show bad faith. St. Paul Mercury Indem. Co. v. Red Cab Co. (1937) 303 U.S. 283, 289, 58 S. Ct. 586, 82 L. Ed. 845

Failure to allege jurisdictional amount deprives court of diversity jurisdiction. Century Southwest Cable Television, Inc. v. CIIF Associates (9th Cir. 1994) 33 F.3d 1068 1071

Parties permitted to aggregate all claims over which court would independently have jurisdiction but for jurisdictional amount requirement; single plaintiff is able to aggregate as many claims as he or she has against single diverse defendant in order to meet jurisdictional amount, even if no single claim reaches that amount; plaintiff may aggregate several federal question claims against single defendant in order to reach jurisdictional amount; right of aggregation exists even when one claim is based on diversity of citizenship and one or more on presence of federal question. Hunter v. United Van Lines (9th Cir. 1984) 746 F.2d 635, 650

[b] Joinder of Claims and Parties

Multiple-party plaintiffs not permitted to combine separate and distinct claims in single suit in order to satisfy requisite jurisdictional amount unlessplaintiffs have joined to enforce single title or right in which they have common and undivided interest. Pinel v. Pinel (1916) 240 U.S. 594, 596, 36 S. Ct. 416, 60 L. Ed. 817

Claims of minority shareholders of telephone company against majority shareholders for breach of fiduciary duty were common and undivided interest under California law that could therefore be aggregated to satisfy jurisdictional amount. Eagle v. American Tel. and Tel. Co. (9th Cir. 1985) 769 F.2d 541, 545-547

Plaintiffs in class action not permitted to aggregate claims or combine potential attorney's fees to meet jurisdictional amount requirement. Goldberg v. CPC Intern., Inc. (9th Cir. 1982) 678 F.2d 1365, 1367

Plaintiff permitted to aggregate causes of action in order to satisfy jurisdictional amount requirement. Lemmon v. Cedar Point, Inc. (6th Cir. 1969) 406 F.2d 94, 96

Plaintiff not permitted to combine claim with defendant's compulsory counterclaim if defendant has properly objected to court's jurisdiction. Motorists Mutual Ins. Co. v. Simpson (7th Cir. 1968) 404 F.2d 511, 514

[c] Objection by Defendant

Plaintiff has burden of proof when jurisdiction of court challenged by defendant in answer. KVOS, Inc. v. Associated Press (1936) 299 U.S. 269, 278, 57 S. Ct. 197, 81 L. Ed. 183

[13] Raising Lack of Jurisdiction

Dismissal of action for lack of subject matter jurisdiction always timely and permissible. Louisville & N.R. Co. v. Mottley (1908) 211 U.S. 149, 152, 29 S. Ct. 42, 53 L. Ed. 126 (appellate court); In re Union Nat'l Bank & Trust Co. of Souderton, Pa. (E.D. Pa. 1968) 287 F. Supp. 431, 433 (trial court)

Federal jurisdiction not created by aggregating state-law claim with federal claim that does not meet jurisdictional amount requirement--even if state-law claim arises out of same nucleus of operative facts as federal claim. Hunter v. United Van Lines (9th Cir. 1984) 746 F.2d 635, 652

Challenge to court's jurisdiction is not waivable. Savarese v. Edrick Transfer & Storage, Inc. (9th Cir. 1975) 513 F.2d 140, 142 n.1

Challenge to district court's subject matter jurisdiction as not waivable and when made as required to be considered by court. Savarese v. Edrick Transfer & Storage, Inc. (9th Cir. 1975) 513 F.2d 140, 142 n. 1

Burden of proving jurisdiction of district court as resting with the party alleging it. McNutt v. General Motors Acceptance Corp. (1935) 298 U.S. 178, 189, 56 S. Ct. 780, 80 L. Ed. 1135

Motion to dismiss for lack of subject matter jurisdiction as always timely and permissible. In re Union Nat'l Bank & Trust Co. of Souderton, Pa. (E.D. Pa. 1968) 287 F. Supp. 431, 433

B. Removal of Causes

22-265 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 265.64

§ 265.64 Decisions

[1] Actions Removable

Only state court actions that originally could have been filed in federal court as removable to federal court. Caterpillar Inc. v. Williams (1987) 482 U.S. 386, 107 S. Ct. 2425, 96 L. Ed. 2d 318, 327

Complaint alleging violation of federal statute as element of state cause of action, when there is no private, federal cause of action for violation of federal statute, as not stating claim arising under Constitution, laws, or treaties of United States and removal of cause of action to federal court is improper. Merrell Dow Pharmaceuticals v. Thompson (1986) 478 U.S. 804, 817, 106 S. Ct. 3229, 92 L. Ed. 2d 650

[2] Artful Pleading

Artful pleading doctrine as invoked only in exceptional circumstances. Redwood Theatres, Inc. v. Festival Enterprises (9th Cir. 1990) 908 F.2d 477, 479

When prior federal judgment was grounded in state rather than federal law, res judicata as no basis for removal of subsequent state claims arising out of same facts. Ultramar America, Ltd. v. Dwelle (9th Cir. 1990) 900 F.2d 1412, 1417

Artful pleading doctrine as not justifying removal on basis of facts not alleged in complaint. Caterpillar v. Williams (1987) 482 U.S. 386, 107 S. Ct. 2425, 96 L. Ed. 2d 318, 330

Complaint omitting allegations of federal law that are essential to establishment of plaintiff's claim as artfully pleaded; court as properly recharacterizing artfully pleaded complaint as though it had been well pleaded. Paige v. Henry J. Kaiser Co. (9th Cir. 1987) 826 F.2d 857, 860-861

Artful pleading doctrine as not basis for denying remand of state law action that had been filed shortly before federal action alleging substantially samefacts, since state law claims were not barred by res judicata or preempted. Sullivan v. First Affiliated Securities, Inc. (9th Cir. 1987) 813 F.2d 1368, 1376 , cert. denied sub nom. First Alliance Sec. v. Sullivan, 98 L. Ed. 2d 106

If state claim is found on removal to be artfully pleaded federal claim that was previously before federal court and was dismissed, res judicata as applicable and case should be dismissed. Salveson v. Western States Bankcard Ass'n (9th Cir. 1984) 731 F.2d 1423, 1432

[3] Diversity

Appropriateness of petition for removal alleging diversity as close question when petition was filed after trial against nondiverse defendant was bifurcated from trial against diverse defendant, but was neither frivolous nor legally unreasonable so as to warrant sanctions under Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 11. Lemos v. Fencl (9th Cir. 1987) 828 F.2d 616, 618-619

Removal based on diversity of citizenship as proper even though plaintiffs and original corporate defendant were all residents of California, when principal creditor of corporation with which bankrupt original corporate defendant merged was resident of another state. Meadows v. Bicrodyne Corp. (9th Cir. 1986) 785 F.2d 670, 671-672

Voluntary-involuntary rule as requiring that suit remain in state court unless voluntary act of plaintiff brings about change rendering case removable. Self v. General Motors Corp. (9th Cir. 1978) 588 F.2d 655, 657

Personal injury action brought by California resident in state court against California citizen and out-of-state corporation as not removable to federal court after final judgment against California defendant; plaintiff as neither dismissing nor discontinuing case against that defendant voluntarily or otherwise. Self v. General Motors Corp. (9th Cir. 1978) 588 F.2d 655, 660

Joinder of nondiverse defendants as fraudulent if pleadings do not minimally satisfy state pleading requirements, if in fact no cause of action exists, or there is no intention to secure joint judgment. Lewis v. Time Inc. (E.D. Cal. 1979) 83 F.R.D. 455, 465 , aff'd 710 F.2d 549, 550 (1983)

[4] Effect of Removal

Removal of civil action as according exclusive jurisdiction in federal court; state court as unable to resume jurisdiction of case unless case is remanded. Allstate Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1982) 132 Cal. App. 3d 670, 674-675, 183 Cal. Rptr. 330

[5] Federal Question

Question whether claim arises under federal law as determined by complaint; defense that raises federal question as inadequate to confer federal jurisdiction. Merrell Dow Pharmaceuticals v. Thompson (1986) 478 U.S. 804, 808, 106 S. Ct. 3229, 92 L. Ed. 2d 650

Federal jurisdiction sufficient for removal as not created by defendant pleading counter-claim presenting federal question. Takeda v. Northwestern Nat. Life Ins. Co. (9th Cir. 1985) 765 F.2d 815, 821-822

[6] Pendent State Claims

District court as having discretion to remand removed case involving pendent claims on proper determination that retaining jurisdiction would be inappropriate, such as when all federal law claims have dropped out of action and only pendent state law claims remain. Carnegie-Mellon Univ. v. Cohill (1988) 484 U.S. 343, 350-351, 357, 108 S. Ct. 614, 98 L. Ed. 2d 720

Federal court as acquiring jurisdiction over pendent state law claims when it acquires jurisdiction on removal; dismissal of federal claim as not depriving federal court of power to adjudicate remaining pendent state claims. Bright v. Bechtel Petroleum, Inc. (9th Cir. 1986) 780 F.2d 766, 771

[7] Preemption

Federal preemption as ordinarily raised as defense to allegations in complaint; case as not removable to federal court on basis of federal defense, including defense of preemption, even if defense is anticipated in complaint, and even if both parties concede that federal defense is the only question truly at issue. Caterpillar Inc. v. Williams (1987) 482 U.S. 386, 392-393, 107 S. Ct. 2425, 96 L. Ed. 2d 318, 327

Fact that defendant might ultimately prove that plaintiff's claims are preempted as not establishing that they are removable. Caterpillar v. Williams (1987) 482 U.S. 386, 398, 107 S. Ct. 2425, 96 L. Ed. 2d 318

State common law action, preempted by and within civil enforcement provisions of ERISA (29 U.S.C.S. § 1001), as arising under federal law and removable to federal court. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co. v. Taylor (1987) 481 U.S. 58, 107 S. Ct. 1542, 95 L. Ed. 2d 55, 60-65

When federal law completely preempts state law claim and supplants it with federal claim, state law claim as removable to federal court even if federal law fails to provide plaintiff with remedies available under state law or if federal defense completely bars federal claim. Young v. Anthony's Fish Grottos, Inc. (9th Cir. 1987) 830 F.2d 993, 998-999

Carmack Amendment, 49 U.S.C.S. § 14706, is the exclusive cause of action for contract claims alleging delay, loss, failure to deliver or damage to property by interstate carriers, and thus provides a basis for removal of completely preempted state-law cause of action. Hall v. North American Van Lines, Inc. (9th Cir. 2007) 476 F.3d 683, 687-688

[8] Remand

The bar on review of remand to state court for lack of federal subject matter jurisdiction contained in 28 U.S.C.S. § 1447(d) is applicable to a suit removed under the Foreign Sovereign Immunities Act of 1976, 28 U.S.C.S. § 1441(d). Powerex Corp. v. Reliant Energy Services, Inc. (2007)551U.S.224, 127 S. Ct. 2411, 2419-2421, 168 L. Ed. 2d 112

Once an action alleging liability of an individual federal employee is removed to federal court upon the Attorney General's certification under 28 U.S.C.S. § 2679, Federal Employees Liability Reform and Tort Compensation Act of 1988, that the federal employee was acting within the scope of his or her employment, federal district court may not remand to state court.28 U.S.C.S. § 2679(d)(2); Osborn v. Haley (2007) 549 U.S. 225, 127 S. Ct. 881, 166 L. Ed. 2d 819

Completely preempted contract claim presenting a federal question as constituting grounds for properly denying motion to remand. Hall v. North American Van Lines, Inc. (9th Cir. 2007) 476 F.3d 683, 687-688

Remand of action outside the scope of complete preemption by § 301 of the Labor Management Relations Act as error.

Ward v. Circus Circus Casinos, Inc. (9th Cir. 2007) 473 F.3d 994, 999

Amendment of complaint after removal in manner giving diversity jurisdiction precluding remand after dismissal of sole claim in original complaint giving federal question jurisdiction. Williams v. Costco Wholesale Corp. (9th Cir. 2006) 471 F.3d 975, 977

Remand order based on defendant's waiver of right of removal by participation in state court action as within bounds of 28 U.S.C.S. § 1447(c) and as not reviewable by appeal or otherwise; remand order based on untimeliness of removal as similarly not reviewable. Schmitt v. Insurance Co. of North America (9th Cir. 1988) 845 F.2d 1546, 1551

28 U.S.C.S. § 1447(d) as barring review of remand orders by appeal or mandamus, even if district court's decision that under 28 U.S.C.S. § 1447(c), removal was improvident and without jurisdiction, was erroneous. Kunzi v. Pan American World Airways, Inc. (9th Cir. 1987) 833 F.2d 1291, 1293

Once basis for removal jurisdiction is dropped from proceedings, federal court as possessing power to hear remaining state claims, although not obliged to exercise that power; district court as having discretion to remand rest of action to state court from which it was removed. Price v. PSA, Inc. (9th Cir. 1987) 829 F.2d 871, 876

When only issue decided by remand order is jurisdictional issue, e.g., that claim was state claim and not artfully pled federal claim, remand order as not reviewable on appeal as substantive decision, and only avenue of review available as by mandamus. Survival Sys. v. U.S. Dist. Ct. for S.D. Cal. (9th Cir. 1987) 825 F.2d 1416, 1418

28 U.S.C.S. § 1447(d) as barring review of only those remand orders that are based on lack of jurisdiction; § 1447(d) as not foreclosing review of remand order based on resolution of merits of some matter of substantive law apart from any jurisdictional decision. Clorox v. U.S. Dist. Ct. for N.D. of California (9th Cir. 1985) 779 F.2d 517, 520

Procedural defect of failure to obtain consent of all defendants as basis for denying review of remand order under 28 U.S.C.S. § 1447(d) for any grounds listed in 28 U.S.C.S. § 1447(c). Aguon-Schulte v. Guam Election Comm. (2006) 469 F.3d 1236, 1240-1241

[9] Removal Jurisdiction

Federal district court as authorized to impose sanctions under Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 11, even if district court is later determined to be without subject-matter jurisdiction to hear removed action and case is remanded to state court. Willy v. Coastal Corp. (1992) 503 U.S. 131, 112 S. Ct. 1076, 117 L. Ed. 2d 280, 285-286, 290

The requirement in 28 U.S.C.S. § 1442(a) of "any act under color of such office" is construed as requiring a causal connection between the charged conduct and the official authority. That connection is established where the challenged conduct involves actions entrusted to a receiver in his or her capacity as receiver. Medical Dev. Int'l v. Cal. Dep't of Corr. & Rehab. (9th Cir. 2009) 585 F.3d 1211, 1216

Jurisdictional requirement as met when district court has jurisdiction over all parties to render judgment; prevailing party in original two-sided litigation as not required to show that there was also jurisdiction regarding virtually unrelated claims that state court had permitted to be joined in same lawsuit. Grubbs v. General Electric Credit Corp. (1972) 405 U.S. 699, 705-706, 92 S. Ct. 1344, 31 L. Ed. 2d 612

Party seeking removal as bearing burden of establishing federal jurisdiction. Miller v. Grgurich (9th Cir. 1985) 763 F.2d 372, 373

Party invoking removal statute as having burden of establishing jurisdiction; removal statute as strictly construed against removal jurisdiction. Salveson v. Western States Bankcard Asso. (9th Cir. 1984) 731 F.2d 1423, 1426, 1984-1 Trade Cas. (CCH) P65974

[10] Removal Procedure

Process, pleadings, and orders served that must be filed with removal petition as not including discovery and discovery requests from state court action. Visicorp v. Software Arts, Inc. (N.D. Cal. 1983) 575 F. Supp. 1528, 1531

Right to remove state court case to federal court as limited to defendants; plaintiff as not permitted to accomplish removal by re filing of state court complaint. American Intern. Underwriters v. Continental Ins. (9th Cir. 1988) 843 F.2d 1253, 1260-1261

"Or otherwise" language of 28 U.S.C.S. § 1446(b) as pertaining only to those states that allow plaintiff to commence suit without filing or serving initial pleading immediately; "or otherwise" as not meaning that receipt of initial pleading without proper service will trigger removal period. Thomason v. Republic Ins. Co. (E.D. Cal. 1986) 630 F. Supp. 331, 333-334

Removal petition as timely filed even though petition was not made within 30 days of receipt of copy of initial pleading, when defendant was not properly served and never received equivalent of service. Thomason v. Republic Ins. Co. (E.D. Cal. 1986) 630 F. Supp. 331, 334

Unless agreement specifies otherwise, refusal of designated arbitration organization to accept jurisdiction under Convention on the Recognition and Enforcement of Foreign Arbitral Awards does not eliminate basis for federal jurisdiction [Reddam v. KPMG LLP (9th Cir. 2006) 457 F.3d 1054, 1058]

[11] Well-Pleaded Complaint

Well-pleaded complaint rule does not apply to questions of jurisdiction under statutory independent jurisdictional grant. American Nat'l Red Cross v. S.G. (1992) 505 U.S. 247, 112 S. Ct. 2465, 2472, 120 L. Ed. 201

Presence or absence of federal jurisdiction as governed by well-pleaded complaint rule; well-pleaded complaint rule as providing that federal jurisdiction exists only when federal question is presented on face of complaint. Caterpillar Inc. v. Williams (1987) 482 U.S. 386, 107 S. Ct. 2425, 96 L. Ed. 2d 318, 327

Presence or absence of federal-question jurisdiction is governed by well-pleaded complaint rule; well-pleaded complaint rule as providing that federal jurisdiction exists only when federal question is presented on face of complaint. Hall v. North American Van Lines, Inc. (9th Cir. 2007) 476 F.3d 683, 687

Well-pleaded complaint rule as basic principle marking boundaries of federal question jurisdiction of federal district courts. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co. v. Taylor (1987) 481 U.S. 58, 107 S. Ct. 1542, 95 L. Ed. 2d 55, 63

Although plaintiff is master to decide what law to rely on, independent corollary of well-pleaded complaint rule as establishing that plaintiff is unable to defeat removal by omitting to plead necessary federal questions in complaint. Franchise Tax Bd. v. Laborers Vac. Trust (1983) 463 U.S. 1, 22, 103 S. Ct. 2841, 77 L. Ed. 2d 420

PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

§ 265.70 Party Seeking Removal

[1] Preliminary Determinations

NOTE:
The following procedural guide deals with removal of general civil actions. It does not address removal in criminal cases, civil actions involving federal officers or members of the armed forces, or actions dealing with civil rights or bankruptcy.

☐ Determine if action is within original jurisdiction of district court [see 28 U.S.C.S. §§ 1331-1365, 1441(a); see § 265.12].

☐ Grounds for federal jurisdiction:

☐ Federal question involves claim or right arising out of Constitution, treaties, or laws of United States [see 28 U.S.C.S. § 1441(b); see § 265.12].

☐ Diversity of citizenship [see 28 U.S.C.S. §§ 1332(a), 1441(b); see § 265.15]:

☐ No defendant is citizen of California.

☐ Matter in controversy exceeds $75,000, exclusive of interests and costs.

☐ Special "minimal diversity" rules for class or mass actions [see § 265.15[6]].

☐ Determine if action joins nonremovable claim or cause of action with separate and independent claim or cause of action within district court's federal question jurisdiction [see 28 U.S.C.S. § 1441(c); see § 265.36].

☐ Determine if action is not removable [see 28 U.S.C.S. § 1445; see § 265.31[2]].

☐ Certain acts such as filing permissive counterclaim or third-party complaint may waive right to remove [see § 265.32[4]].

[2] Preparing and Filing Notice of Removal

☐ Obtain consent from all other defendants [see § 265.38[2]].

☐ Time for filing notice of removal.

☐ When case stated by initial pleading is removable, notice of removal must be filed within the shorter period of following [see 28 U.S.C.S. § 1446(b); see § 265.38[3][a]]:

☐ 30 days after receipt, through service or otherwise, of copy of initial pleading setting forth claim for relief on which state court action is based, or

☐ 30 days after service of summons if initial pleading has then been filed in court and is not required to be served.

☐ When case stated by initial pleading is not removable, notice of removal must be filed as follows [see § 265.38[3][b]]:

☐ Within 30 days after receipt, through service or otherwise, of copy of amended pleading, motion, order, or other paper from which it may first be ascertained that case is or has become removable, except that a case may not be removed on the basis of jurisdiction conferred by 28 U.S.C.S. § 1332 more than one year after commencement of the action [see 28 U.S.C.S. § 1446(b)], or ☐ Within 30 days of dismissal or abandonment of any California defendant.

☐ When there are multiple defendants, and they receive notice of removability at different times, 30-day filing period begins with first notice [see § 265.38[3][c]].

☐ File in United States district court for district and division where action is pending [see 28 U.S.C.S. § 1446(a); FORMS: §§ 265.160-265.165].

☐ File copy of all process, pleadings, and orders served in state court action [28 U.S.C.S. § 1446(a)].

☐ Notice to adverse parties and state court.

☐ Promptly after filing notice of removal, give written notice to all adverse parties [see 28 U.S.C.S. § 1446(d); FORM: § 265.166].

☐ At same time, file copy of notice of removal with state court clerk.

☐ File copies of all state court records and proceedings with district court clerk [see 28 U.S.C.S. § 1447(b); FORM: § 265.167]; or ☐ Prepare form of writ of certiorari for district court to issue to state court to obtain those records and proceedings [see 28 U.S.C.S. § 1447(b)].

☐ If state court clerk, on demand and tender of legal fees, fails to deliver certified copies of its records and proceedings, prepare affidavit for district court reciting those facts, and directing that record to be supplied by affidavit or otherwise [28 U.S.C.S. § 1449].

☐ Any attachment or sequestration of goods or estate in state court action will hold those goods or estate to answer final judgment in same manner in district court. All bonds, undertakings, or security given prior removal will remain valid and effectual after removal [see 28 U.S.C.S. § 1450].

[3] Preparing and Filing Motion to Enjoin State Court Proceedings

☐ Removal provides district court with exclusive jurisdiction and prohibits further proceedings in state court [see § 265.37[2]].

☐ Prepare, file, and serve notice of motion and points and authorities to enjoin state court proceedings [see Fed. R. Civ. P., Rules 5, 7(b), 11 (general motion procedures)].

[4] Opposing Motion for Remand

☐ Preliminary determinations.

☐ Remand is only appropriate when the district court lacks subject matter jurisdiction, or when there is a defect in the removal procedure [see 28 U.S.C.S. § 1447(c); see § 265.40[2]].

☐ When nonremovable and separate and independent claim is joined with claim within district court's federal question jurisdiction [see 28 U.S.C.S. § 1441(c); see § 265.36].

☐ Prepare, file, and serve papers opposing motion for remand [see Fed. R. Civ. P., Rules 5, 7(b), 11 (general motion procedures)].

☐ If motion for remand is granted on grounds other than those of 28 U.S.C.S. § 1447(c), seek review if appropriate [see § 265.40[5]].

PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

22-265 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 265.71

§ 265.71 Party Opposing Removal

[1] Preliminary Determinations

☐ Remand on the ground that the district court lacks subject matter jurisdiction is available any time before final judgment [see 28 U.S.C.S. § 1447(c); see § 265.40[2]; for form of motion to remand action, see § 265.168].

☐ A motion to remand on the basis of any defect in the removal procedure must be made within 30 days after the filing of the notice of removal [see 28 U.S.C.S. § 1447(c); see § 265.40[2]; for form of motion to remand action, see § 265.168].

☐ Remand of pendent state law claims is available when federal claims have been eliminated [see § 265.37[1][c]].

[2] Preparing and Filing Motion to Remand Removed Action

☐ Prepare, file, and serve notice of motion and points and authorities [see Fed. R. Civ. P., Rules 5, 7(b), 11 (general motion procedures)].

☐ Request award of just costs and any actual expenses, including attorney's fees [28 U.S.C.S. § 1447(c); see § 265.40[4]].

☐ Prepare remand order for court's signature. After certified copy of order is mailed by district court clerk to state court clerk, state court may proceed with case [28 U.S.C.S. § 1447(c); see § 265.40[3]; FORM: § 265.169].

☐ If motion for remand is denied, seek review if appropriate [see § 265.40[5]].

[3] Preparing and Filing Motion to Sever and Remand

Nonremovable and separate and independent claim may be severed from claim providing basis for removal [see 28 U.S.C.S. § 1441(c); see the Introduction under Separate and Independent Claim; FORMS: §§ 265.170-265.171]. For steps involved in preparation and review of motion, see Paragraph II(A)(2), (5).

[1] FORM Allegation of Jurisdiction [Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 8(a)(1)]--Diversity of Citizen--Corporations [28 U.S.C.S. § 1332(a)(1), (c)(1)]

Plaintiff is a corporation incorporated under the laws of the State of _____, having its principal place of business in the State of _____. Defendant is a corporation incorporated under the laws of the State of _____[name of state other than state in which plaintiff is incorporated or has its principal place of business], having its principal place of business in a state other than the State of _____[name of state other than state in which plaintiff is incorporated or has its principal place of business].

[2] Use of Form

This allegation is for use by a plaintiff corporation in a complaint filed in federal district court to allege diversity of citizenship as the ground of federal jurisdiction. A corporation is a citizen of any state by which it has been incorporated and of the state where it has its principal place of business [28 U.S.C.S. § 1332(c)]. However, certain exceptions apply in any direct action against an insurer when the insured is not joined as a party defendant [28 U.S.C.S. § 1332(c)(1) (applicable to civil actions commenced or removed on or after May 18, 1989); see § 265.15[4]].

[2] Use of Form

The notice of motion and motion, above, is for use in a federal court action in which the plaintiff has invoked the jurisdiction of the court in his or her complaint [see Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 8(a)(1)] on the diversity of the citizenship of the parties [see 28 U.S.C.S. § 1332(a)(1)]. Counsel should consult the appropriate local district court rule before using the foregoing form since some courts require or prefer that a notice of motion and motion be separate documents. Local rules may also vary as to which accompanying papers are required.

The defense of lack of subject matter jurisdiction may be contained in the answer or made by motion [Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 12(b)(1)]. Dismissal of the action is proper whenever it appears that court lacks jurisdiction over subject matter [Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 12(h)(2)].

To the Judges of the United States District Court for the _____ District of California, _____ Division:

The notice of removal of _____[name] [, by and with the written consent of the other defendant(s) herein,] respectfully shows:

1. On _____[date], an action was commenced against defendant in the Superior Court of California, County of _____, No. _____, entitled _____[name], Plaintiff vs. _____[name], Defendant.

2. On _____[date], service was made on defendant of a summons and complaint, copies of which are annexed to this notice. _____[No further proceedings have been had in the state court action or list and attach all other process, pleadings, and orders.]

3. The above-described action is a civil action of which this court has original jurisdiction under the provisions of United States Code, Title _____, Section _____, and is one that may be removed to this court by defendant, pursuant to _____[United States Code, Title 28, Section 1441 or other appropriate reference], according to the following facts: _____[set out short and plain statements of facts for each ground that entitle defendant to removal; see, e.g., §§ 265.161 -265.164 for allegations of grounds for removal].

[4. Defendant files herewith a bond with good and sufficient surety conditioned that it will pay all costs and disbursements incurred by reason of the removal proceedings hereby brought, should it be determined that this action is not removable or is improperly removed.]

[5. Defendant(s) _____ (name(s)), and its/their attorney(s), join in and consent to the removal of this cause to the United States District Court for the _____ District of California, _____ Division.]

WHEREFORE, defendant prays that the above action now pending against him/her/it in the Superior Court of California, County of _____, be removed therefrom to this Court.

[2] Use of Form

The form of notice of removal, above, is for use by the defendant in an action brought in state court to remove that action to federal court. A defendant desiring to remove any civil action from a state court must file in the district court of the United States for the district and division within which that action is pending a notice of removal signed pursuant to Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 11 and containing a short and plain statement of the grounds for removal, together with a copy of all process, pleadings, and orders served on him or her in that action [28 U.S.C.S. § 1446(a) (term "removal petition" changed to "notice of removal" in 1988 without major substantive change); see discussion in § 265.39]. For sample allegations of grounds for removal for use in Paragraph 3 of the foregoing form, see §§ 265.161 -265.164.

[3] Signature Requirement

Every notice of removal of a party represented by an attorney must be signed by at least one attorney in the attorney's individual name, and include a statement of that attorney's address. A party who is not represented by an attorney must sign his or her notice of removal and include his or her address. The notice need not be verified or accompanied by affidavit. The signature of an attorney or party constitutes a certificate by the signer that he or she has read the notice of removal, that to the best of the signer's knowledge, information, and belief formed after reasonable inquiry it is well grounded in fact and is warranted by existing law or a good faith argument for the extension, modification, or reversal of existing law, and that it is not interposed for any improper purpose. If a notice of removal is not signed, it will be stricken unless it is signed promptly after the omission is called to the attention of the party seeking removal. If a notice of removal is signed in violation of Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 11, the court, on motion or on its own initiative, shall impose on the person who signed it, a represented party, or both, an appropriate sanction, which may include an order to pay to the other party the amount of the reasonable expenses incurred because of the filing of the notice of removal, including a reasonable attorney's fee [see 28 U.S.C.S. § 1446(a); Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 11].

[4] Filing Requirements

The notice of removal must be filed within 30 days after receipt by the defendant, by service or otherwise, of a copy of the initial pleading setting forth the claim for relief on which the action or proceeding is based, or within 30 days after the service of summons on the defendant if the initial pleading has been filed in court and is not required to be served on the defendant, whichever period is shorter [28 U.S.C.S. § 1446(b); for further discussion, see § 265.38[3]].

[5] When Removal Complete

Giving prompt written notice of the notice of removal to the adverse parties and filing of a copy of the notice with the clerk of the state court will effect removal [28 U.S.C.S. § 1446(d); for a form of notice, see § 265.166]. If it appears that the district court lacks subject matter jurisdiction, remand may occur at any time before final judgment. If remand is based on any defect in the removal procedure, a motion to remand must be made within 30 days after the filing of the notice of removal [see 28 U.S.C.S. § 1447(c); see § 265.40[2]; for form of motion to remand action, see § 265.168].

§ 265.162 Allegation of Ground for Removal--Diversity of Citizenship [28 U.S.C.S. §§ 1332, 144,(b)]--In General

[1] FORM Allegation of Ground for Removal--Diversity of Citizenship [28 U.S.C.S. §§ 1332, 144,(b)]--In General

The above-described action is a civil action of which this court has original jurisdiction under the provisions of Title 28, Section 1332 of the United States Code, and is one that may be removed to this court by defendant, pursuant to Title 28, Section 1441 of the United States Code, in that it is a civil action wherein the matter in controversy exceeds the sum or value of $75,000, exclusive of interest and costs, and is between citizens of different states.

[EITHER, if individual plaintiff and individual defendant]

Plaintiff _____[name], at the time this action was commenced, was and still is a citizen of the State of _____. Defendant _____[name], at the time this action was commenced, was and still is a citizen of the State of _____, and was not and is not a citizen of the State of California, wherein this action was brought.

[OR, if individual plaintiff and corporate defendant]

Plaintiff _____[name], at the time this action was commenced, was and still is a citizen of the State of _____. Defendant _____[name], at the time this action was commenced, was and still is a corporation incorporated under the laws of the State of _____, with its principal place of business in the State of _____, and was not and is not incorporated under the laws of the State of California, wherein this action was brought.

[2] Use of Form

The form of allegation, above, is for use by a defendant in a state court action in his or her notice of removal of the action to a federal court based on diversity of citizenship. When using this allegation, it should be substituted for Paragraph 3 of the notice of removal in § 265.160.

Any civil action of which the district courts have original jurisdiction is removable if none of the parties in interest properly joined and served as defendants is a citizen of California [28 U.S.C.S. § 1441(b)]. For purposes of removal, the citizenship of defendants sued under fictitious names is disregarded [28 U.S.C.S. § 1441(a)]. The district courts have original jurisdiction of all civil actions when the matter in controversy exceeds the sum or value of $75,000, exclusive of interest and costs, and is between citizens of different states [28 U.S.C.S. § 1332(a); see § 265.15].

[EITHER, if plaintiff or defendant is nominal party]

_____[Plaintiff or Defendant] _____[name] is not a necessary party to this action, but is only a formal party without any interest in the action, _____[in whose favor or against whom] no substantial relief _____[is sought or can be granted].

[OR, if parties should be realigned]

Defendant _____[name], at the time this action was commenced, was and still is a citizen of the State of _____. The interest of that defendant in this action is identical with that of plaintiff _____[name] in that his/her interest is _____ [set forth interest briefly, e.g., that the alleged lease between _____ (name) and _____ (name) be declared valid and enforceable against this defendant]; and therefore defendant _____[name] should be aligned as a party plaintiff.

[OR, if improper joinder contrary to allegations in complaint]

Plaintiff has fraudulently and improperly joined defendant _____[name] as codefendant, in that, contrary to the allegations of the complaint herein, that defendant _____[set forth basis of improper joinder, e.g., was not present with defendant in the automobile owned and operated by defendant at the time of the collision complained of, and did not have control of it, and did not, in any manner or degree, contribute to plaintiff's damage either by his own negligence or joint negligence with defendant, all of which was, or readily might have been, known by plaintiff or his counsel] and plaintiff fraudulently and improperly joined _____[name] as a sham defendant for the sole purpose of avoiding and defeating the removal of this action to the United States District Court.

[OR, if improper joinder appears from face of complaint]

Plaintiff has fraudulently and improperly joined defendant _____[name] as codefendant, in that the complaint shows on its face that _____ [set forth basis of improper joinder, e.g., plaintiff has neither alleged, nor has, a claim or cause of action against this defendant on account of _____ (describe events in question), and whatever claim or cause of action plaintiff may have by reason of _____ (describe events in question) is against defendant _____ (name) alone], and that defendant _____[name of codefendant] is a sham defendant, joined by plaintiff as a codefendant for the sole purpose of avoiding and defeating the removal of this action to the United States District Court.

[2] Use of Form

The allegations, above, are for use by a defendant in a state court action in his or her notice of removal of that action to a federal court based on diversity of citizenship. The purpose of each allegation is to demonstrate that there is diverse citizenship, even though diversity does not appear on the face of the complaint. When using these allegations, they should be combined at the end of the appropriate allegation in Form 92 relating to diversity jurisdiction generally, and then be substituted for Paragraph 3 of the notice of removal in § 265.160.

[1] FORM Allegation of Ground for Removal--Diversity of Citizenship [28 U.S.C.S. §§ 1332, 144(b)]--Class Action

The above-described action is a civil action of which this court has original jurisdiction under the provisions of Title 28, Section 1332(d) of the United States Code, and is one that may be removed to this court by defendant, pursuant to Title 28, Section 1453(b) of the United States Code, in that it is a class action wherein the matter in controversy exceeds the sum or value of $5 million, exclusive of interest and costs, and in which a member of the plaintiff class and a defendant are citizens of different states.

Plaintiff _____[name], a member of the plaintiff class, at the time this action was commenced, was and still is a citizen of the State of _____. Defendant _____[name], at the time this action was commenced, was and still is a citizen of the State of _____, and was not and is not a citizen of the State of California, wherein this action was brought.

[2] Use of Form

The form of allegation, above, is for use by a defendant in a state court class action in his or her notice of removal of the action to a federal court based on minimal diversity of citizenship. When using this allegation, it should be substituted for Paragraph 3 of the notice of removal in § 265.160.

Under the Class Action Fairness Act, a class action is removable by a single defendant, without the consent of the other defendants, if (1) the amount in controversy exceeds $5 million, and (2) any member of a plaintiff class and any defendant are citizens of different states [28 U.S.C.S. §§ 1332(d), 1453(b)]. For discussion of the new class action rules, see § 265.15[6]. For discussion of removal in class action cases, see § 265.34[3].

[1] FORM Allegation of Ground for Removal--Separate and Independent Claim or Cause of Action Removable if Sued on Alone [28 U.S.C.S. § 1441(c)]

In the above-entitled action, plaintiff _____[name] alleges against defendant _____[name] a separate and independent claim or cause of action in that _____[set forth nature of claim or cause of action to show that it is separate and independent from other claims or causes of action that have been joined]. If sued on alone, that claim or cause of action would be one over which this court has original jurisdiction under the provisions of Section 1331 of Title 28 of the United States Code because it arises under _____[cite to specific article or amendment of United States Constitution, section of federal law, or article of treaty]. By virtue of the provisions of Section 1441(c) of Title 28 of the United States Code, this entire case is one that may be removed to this court.

[2] Use of Form

The allegation, above, is for use by a defendant in a state court action in his or her notice of removal when otherwise nonremovable claims or causes of action in the case are joined with a separate and independent claim or cause of action that raises a federal question. When using this allegation, it should be substituted for Paragraph 3 of the form of notice of removal in § 265.160.

Whenever a separate and independent claim or cause of action within the court's federal question jurisdiction is joined with one or more otherwise nonremovable claims or causes of action, the entire case may be removed and the district court may determine all issues in the case [28 U.S.C.S. § 1441(c); see 28 U.S.C.S. § 1331 (federal question jurisdiction), discussed in § 265.14[1], above]. [2] Use of Form

The combined form of notice of motion and motion, above, is for use by the plaintiff in the underlying state action to move the federal court to remand back to state court a case that was previously removed to federal court. The alternative clauses set forth different grounds for remand. When appropriate, more than one ground may be used. When the ground for remand is any defect in the removal procedure, the motion must be made within 30 days after the filing of the notice of removal. If the ground for remand is that the district court lacks subject matter jurisdiction, the motion may be made any time before final judgment [see 28 U.S.C.S. § 1447(c); see § 265.40].

Counsel should consult the appropriate local district court rules before using the form since some courts may require a particular format for the moving papers [see, e.g., U.S. Dist. Ct., So. Dist. of Cal., Rule 7.1; U.S. Dist. Ct., No. Dist. of Cal., Rules 7-2(b)]. The motion should be supported by briefs and memoranda [see, e.g., U.S. Dist. Ct., Cen. Dist. of Cal., Rule 7.5.1; U.S. Dist. Ct., No. Dist. of Cal., Rules 7-2(b)]. Factual contentions raised in the motion must be supported by affidavits or declarations [see U.S. Dist. Ct., Cen. Dist. of Cal., Rule 7.5.2; U.S. Dist. Ct., East. Dist. of Cal., Rule 43-140, 78-230(i); U.S. Dist. Ct., No. Dist. of Cal., Rules 7-2(d), 7-5; U.S. Dist. Ct., So. Dist. of Cal., Rule 7.1(f)].

For the related form of order granting remand, see § 265.169.

[2] Use of Form

The combined form of notice of motion and motion, above, is for use by a plaintiff, after the action has been removed under 28 U.S.C.S. § 1441(c), to sever his or her state claims from another plaintiff's federal claims and remand the state claims to state court. When otherwise nonremovable claims are removed to federal court because a separate and independent claim involving a federal question was joined in the same action, the district court has the discretion to remand all matters in which state law predominates [see 28 U.S.C.S. § 1441(c), discussed in § 265.36].

For discussion of how a court determines whether a claim or cause of action arises under federal or state law, see § 265.33[2].

For related form of order, see § 265.171. For Notice of Motion and Motion to Remand Removed Action, see § 265.168.

The rights and obligations of coterminous owners of fences are governed by Civ. Code §§ 801(14) and 841(2). A spite fence is defined as a private nuisance in Civ. Code § 841.4, and the statutes governing nuisances generally are contained in Civ. Code §§ 3479-3503 and in Code Civ. Proc. § 731. The standards to which a fence must conform in grazing counties are set forth in Food & Agric. Code § 17121. Criminal sanctions are imposed for the willful destruction of fences in Penal Code § 602(h). The duty of railroads to build fences to avert injury to domestic animals is governed by Pub. Util. Code §§ 7626-7631.

Chapter 266 FENCES
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

22-266 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 266.13

§ 266.13 Liability for Injury Caused by Fences

[1] No Duty to Construct Fence

A landowner has no duty to construct a fence to enclose his or her property [see Loveland v. Gardner (1889) 79 Cal. 317, 320, 21 P. 766] unless that duty has been established by agreement [Brenot v. Southern P. R. Co. (1927) 202 Cal. 630, 636-637, 262 P. 732] or by statute [see, e.g., Pub. Util. Code § 7626 (requiring railroad corporation to erect and maintain good and sufficient fence on both sides of its tracks)].

[2] Duty to Persons on Premises

Civ. Code § 1714(a) provides that everyone is responsible, not only for the result of his or her willful acts, but also for an injury occasioned to another by his or her want of ordinary care or skill in the management of his or her property or person, except so far as the latter has, willfully or by want of ordinary care, brought the injury upon himself or herself. In Rowland v. Christian (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 108, 70 Cal. Rptr. 97, 443 P.2d 561 , the Supreme Court departed from the traditional rules governing the liability of the owners and occupiers of land. It held that Civ. Code § 1714, rather than plaintiff's status as a trespasser, licensee, or invitee, controlled the liability of tenants for injuries to their social guests, even though a plaintiff's status could have some bearing on the question of liability [Rowland v. Christian (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 108, 119, 70 Cal. Rptr. 97, 443 P.2d 561 ; see also Carlson v. Ross (1969) 271 Cal. App. 2d 29, 32, 76 Cal. Rptr. 209 (landowner incurred liability for injury to social guest on premises by application of test set forth in Rowland v. Christian, above)]. The test has also been applied in a case involving a business invitee [Beauchamp v. Los Gatos Golf Course (1969) 273 Cal. App. 2d 20, 25-38, 77 Cal. Rptr. 914] .

The Court stated that in the absence of a statutory provision declaring an exception to the fundamental principles enunciated by Civ. Code § 1714, no exception should be made unless clearly supported by public policy [Rowland v. Christian (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 108, 112, 70 Cal. Rptr. 97, 443 P.2d 561] . It decided that no public policy required that an exception be carved out of the statute for tenants in possession when they were sued by their guests [see Rowland v. Christian (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 108, 119-120, 70 Cal. Rptr. 97, 443 P.2d 561] .

Although the Supreme Court has not held expressly that the rule of Rowland v. Christian applies in landlord-tenant cases, it has so indicated in dictum [see Mark v. Pacific Gas & Electric Co. (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 170, 183, 101 Cal. Rptr.

908, 496 P.2d 1276] . In addition, a court of appeal has held that the common-law rules regarding the liability of a landlord for an accident on the leased premises have been superseded by Civ. Code § 1714 [Brennan v. Cockrell Investments, Inc. (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 796, 802, 111 Cal. Rptr. 122] .

For a form of complaint for use by a person injured by a fence while on defendant's property, see § 266.40.

[3] Duty to Persons off Premises

An owner or possessor of land is liable to persons off the premises for creating or maintaining dangerous artificial conditions or for permitting dangerous disrepair [Coates v. Chinn (1958) 51 Cal. 2d 304, 308, 332 P.2d 289 (plaintiff's car struck eucalyptus limb on highway on rainy night; defendant planted tree alongside highway with knowledge of tendency of large limbs to fall); Wisher v. Fowler (1970) 7 Cal. App. 3d 225, 228, 86 Cal. Rptr. 582 (falling tree); Potter v. Empress Theatre Co. (1949) 91 Cal.App. 2d 4, 12, 204 P.2d 120 (defendant negligently allowed theater marquee to stand without proper support; plaintiff injured when marquee fell)]. Thus, once a fence has been constructed and maintenance has been undertaken, a duty arises to exercise reasonable care to prevent the fence from becoming dangerous [see Loveland v. Gardner (1889) 79 Cal. 317, 320, 21 P. 766] . For example, a person who has constructed and maintains a barbed-wire fence in a negligent manner, allowing barbed wire to hang loosely from the fence, is liable for injuries occasioned thereby to the domestic animals of others [Loveland v. Gardner (1889) 79 Cal. 317, 320-321, 21 P. 766] .

The liability of a defendant who negligently constructed and maintains a barbed-wire fence is not dependent on the question of whether or not the fence comes up to the legislative standard of a lawful fence as set forth in former Pol. Code § 19(23) (now see Food & Agric. Code § 17121), which defines a lawful fence as any fence which is good, strong, substantial, and sufficient to prevent the ingress and egress of livestock [Loveland v. Gardner (1889) 79 Cal. 317, 320, 21 P. 766] . Nevertheless, in determining whether a fence is adequate, the trial court may consider the definition of a "good and substantial" wire fence and a "lawful fence" as described by former Agric. Code §§ 403 and 412 (now see Food & Agric. Code § 17121) [Summers v. Parker (1953) 119 Cal. App. 2d 214, 216, 259 P.2d 59 (passing motorist sustained personal injuries when automobile collided with defendant's steer which was lying in highway having strayed through defendant's fence)]. For a discussion of the presumption of negligence that arises from a violation of a statute or ordinance, see [4], below. For a form of complaint for use by a motorist injured in a collision with defendant's livestock that escaped through a defective fence, see § 266.42.

Because it is the duty of a landowner to exercise reasonable care to prevent a fence from becoming dangerous [Loveland v. Gardner (1889) 79 Cal. 317, 320, 21 P. 766] , it is no defense that the fence was constructed entirely on defendant's land if it was negligently constructed and maintained [Loveland v. Gardner (1889) 79 Cal. 317, 320, 21 P. 766] . It is also not a defense that the property was used for a lawful purpose [Loveland v. Gardner (1889) 79 Cal. 317, 321, 21 P. 766] .

For a form of complaint for use by a person injured by defendant's fence though not on defendant's property, see § 266.41.

[4] Violation of Statute

The common-law presumption of negligence that arises from the violation of a statute or ordinance is codified in Evid. Code § 669, which contains two parts. The first part provides that the failure of a person to exercise due care is presumed if all of the following apply [Evid. Code § 669(a)]:

- The person violated a statute, ordinance, or regulation of a public entity.
- The violation proximately caused death or injury to person or property.

- The death or injury resulted from an occurrence the nature of which the statute, ordinance, or regulation was designed to prevent.

- The person suffering the death or the injury to his or her person or property was one of the class of persons for whose protection the statute, ordinance, or regulation was adopted.

The second part provides that the presumption may be rebutted by proof of either of the following [Evid. Code § 669(b)]:

- That the person violating the statute, ordinance, or regulation did what might reasonably be expected of a person of ordinary prudence, acting under similar circumstances, who desired to comply with the law.

- That the person violating the statute, ordinance, or regulation was a child and exercised the degree of care ordinarily exercised by persons of his or her maturity, intelligence, and capacity under similar circumstances. The presumption may not be rebutted by proof of this degree of care if the violation occurred in the course of an activity normally engaged in only by adults and requiring adult qualifications.

§ 266.14 Criminal Liability for Destroying Fence

Destruction of a fence in violation of former Penal Code § 602(8) (now see Penal Code § 602(h)) subjects a person to criminal liability for trespass, a misdemeanor [Messick v. Superior Court (1922) 57 Cal. App. 340, 341-342, 207 P. 58] . However, a person who tears down a fence in good faith and with a reasonable belief in his or her legal right to do so, does not incur any criminal liability [Seabridge v. McAdam (1895) 108 Cal. 345, 349, 41 P. 409] .

§ 266.15 Civil Liability for Damaging Fence

[1] Damage as Trespass

A trespass to real and personal property is committed when an adjoining landowner enters the property of a neighbor and destroys a fence attached to the neighbor's property [McCormick v. Appleton (1964) 225 Cal. App. 2d 591, 595, 37 Cal. Rptr. 544] .

An owner of a fence may bring a civil action for damages for the wrongful removal [Morrissey v. Morrissey (1923) 191 Cal. 782, 783, 218 P. 396] or for the willful and wanton destruction of a fence [McCormick v. Appleton(1964) 225 Cal. App. 2d 591, 597-598, 37 Cal. Rptr. 544] . For a form of complaint for use by a landowner to recover for the intentional and willful destruction of his or her fence, see § 266.50.

[2] Measure of Damages

The measure of damages for destruction of a fence is the amount that will compensate a party for the value of the property at the time of its destruction [Hancock v. George R. Curtis Paving Co. (1931) 114 Cal. App. 624, 628, 300 P. 65 ; see also Givens v. Markall (1942) 51 Cal. App. 2d 374, 381, 124 P.2d 839 (when fixture destroyed has substantial independent value, measure of damages is value of fixture)]. However, if the fixture which is destroyed has no substantial value apart from that of the land, the measure of damages is the diminution of the value of the land [Wilmerton v. Morton (1946) 74 Cal. App. 2d 891, 897, 169 P.2d 992] .

When an adjoining landowner wrongfully removes a preexisting boundary fence, Civ. Code § 841, which requires coterminous owners equally to maintain fences between them unless one of them chooses to let the land lie without fencing, will not be applied to reduce the damages owed [McCormick v. Appleton (1964) 225 Cal. App. 2d 591, 595-596, 37 Cal. Rptr. 544 ;see also § 266.17].

[3] Injunctive Relief

When an adjoining landowner is willfully and wantonly destroying a boundary fence, an injunction may issue in addition to the recovery of both compensatory and punitive damages [McCormick v. Appleton (1964) 225 Cal. App.

2d 591, 597, 37 Cal. Rptr. 544] . However, no injunction will issue to restrain the commission of a trespass if the plaintiff has a complete and adequate remedy at law, as in a situation in which the defendant tore down plaintiff's fences and entered plaintiff's property under claim of right [Leach v. Day (1865), 645-646] . For a form of complaint for use to recover compensatory and punitive damages in this situation, see § 266.50.

Chapter 266 FENCES
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

22-266 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 266.16

§ 266.16 Fences as Encroachments

[1] Encroachment as Trespass or Nuisance

The erection of a fence by a defendant on a portion of an adjoining landowner's property is an encroachment [Oertel v. Copley (1957) 152 Cal. App. 2d 287, 291, 313 P.2d 105] . An encroachment on an adjoining tract of land constitutes a trespass [see Rankin v. DeBare (1928) 205 Cal. 639, 641, 271 P. 1050] , while an encroachment into the airspace above the land constitutes a nuisance [Kafka v. Bozio (1923) 191 Cal. 746, 750, 218 P. 753 ; Case v. Sisich (1929) 97 Cal. App. 106, 110, 275 P. 492] .

[2] Injunctive Relief

When injunctive relief is sought in a case involving a fence that is an encroachment, a court may either grant an injunction or apply the doctrine of balancing of conveniences to deny injunctive relief and compel the plaintiff to accept damages instead [Fairrington v. Dyke Water Co. (1958) 50 Cal. 2d 198, 201, 323 P.2d 1001 (encroaching sign); City of Dunsmuir v. Silva (1957) 154 Cal. App. 2d 825, 827, 317 P.2d 653 (encroaching building); Oertel v. Copley (1957) 152 Cal. App. 2d 287, 290, 313 P.2d 105 (defendant erected fence on plaintiff's land in reliance on owner's promise to deed area to defendant)]. When a plaintiff is compelled to accept damages, the court may exercise its discretion and protect the defendant by granting an easement over the area on which the fence is encroaching [see Oertel v. Copley (1957) 152 Cal. App. 2d 287, 292, 313 P.2d 105] .

When an injunction is granted compelling a party to remove an encroaching fence, the injunction is mandatory in form [Kettenhofen v. Superior Court (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 189, 191, 10 Cal. Rptr. 356, 358 P.2d 684] . Generally, an injunction will issue to prevent a wrongful act if the continuance of which will, in time, ripen into an easement and deprive plaintiff of the use of his or her property or some part of it [Fairrington v. Dyke Water Co. (1958) 50 Cal. 2d 198, 201, 323 P.2d 1001 (encroaching sign); City of Dunsmuir v. Silva (1957) 154 Cal. App. 2d 825, 827, 317 P.2d 653 (encroaching building)]. However, if the encroachment causes injury so slight as to bring it within the maxim de minimis non curat lex (i.e., "the law does not concern itself about trifles") [see Rothaermel v. Amerige (1921) 55 Cal. App. 273, 276, 203 P. 833 ; see also Black's Law Dictionary 388 (5th ed. 1979)] because the encroachment was innocently made and the cost of removing it would be great compared to the inconvenience caused plaintiff by continuance of the encroachment, the court may, in its discretion, deny the injunction and compel the plaintiff to accept damages [Oertel v. Copley (1957) 152 Cal. App. 2d 287, 290, 313 P.2d 105 (defendant erected fence on plaintiff's land in reliance on owner's promise to deed area to defendant)]. This rule is often cited as the doctrine of balancing of conveniences [see Fairrington v. Dyke Water Co. (1958) 50 Cal. 2d 198, 200, 323 P.2d 1001 (encroaching building); Christensen v. Tucker (1952) 114 Cal. App. 2d 554, 562-564, 250 P.2d 660 (encroaching driveway, badminton court, and fence)].

For forms of complaint for use by a landowner to enjoin the construction of a fence on his or her property or to compel the removal of a fence that has already been constructed on his or her property, see § 266.51 or § 266.52, respectively.

[3] Balancing Conveniences

Christensen v. Tucker (1952) 114 Cal. App. 2d 554, 250 P.2d 660 concerned an action to compel removal of several encroachments, one of which was a wire fence constructed on a cement abutment. The court of appeal commented that in order to deny the injunction, three major factors must be present [Christensen v. Tucker (1952) 114 Cal. App. 2d 554, 562-563, 250 P.2d 660] :

- Defendant must be innocent; the encroachment must not be the result of defendant's willful act, and perhaps not the result of defendant's negligence. In this same connection, the court should weigh plaintiff's conduct to ascertain if he or she is in any way responsible for the situation.

- Plaintiff must not suffer irreparable injury by the encroachment. If the plaintiff does suffer irreparable injury, the injunction should be granted regardless of the injury to defendant, except, perhaps, when the rights of the public will be adversely affected.

- The hardship to defendant, if the injunction were granted instead, must be greatly disproportionate to the hardship caused plaintiff by the continuance of the encroachment; this disproportionate hardship must clearly appear in the evidence and must be proved by the defendant.

When a court balances conveniences to determine that an injunction, otherwise warranted, should be withheld, its action approaches an exercise of the right of eminent domain in favor of a private person. Thus, proof of irreparable injury to the defendant is a necessary element of a defense based on balancing of conveniences. Deprivation of a substantial benefit to defendant as a result of an injunction falls short of imposition of substantial hardship [Fairrington v. Dyke Water Co. (1958) 50 Cal. 2d 198, 200, 323 P.2d 1001] .

When the court applies the doctrine of balancing of conveniences and awards plaintiff damages in lieu of an injunction, it is within its power to protect the defendant in the use of an encroaching fence by granting defendant an easement [Oertel v. Copley (1957) 152 Cal. App. 2d 287, 292, 313 P.2d 105 ; see Christensen v. Tucker (1952) 114 Cal. App. 2d 554, 562-563, 250 P.2d 660] . For a form of affirmative defense based on balancing conveniences for use in response to a complaint for injunction to compel removal of the fence, see § 266.53.

Chapter 266 FENCES
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

22-266 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 266.17

§ 266.17 Contribution for Division Fence

Coterminous owners are mutually bound to maintain equally the fences between them unless one of them chooses to let his or her land lie without fencing [Civ. Code § 841(2)]. Where one of the owners makes that choice and then afterwards decides to enclose his or her land, that owner must refund to the other owner a just proportion of the value, at that time, of any division fence which was made by the latter [Civ. Code § 841(2)]. In addition, the right of having the whole of a division fence maintained by one owner may be acquired as an easement [Civ. Code § 801(14)].

A landowner who is entitled to a contribution from an adjoining landowner may enforce his or her right to contribution by a civil action [Reusche v. Milhorn (1933) 218 Cal. 696, 697-698, 24 P.2d 792 ; Gonzales v. Wasson (1876) 51 Cal. 295, 298 (coterminous landowner recovered half the value of a division fence previously constructed by him from defendant who used the fence to enclose his own land)]. In order for a landowner to be entitled to bring an action for contribution against an adjoining landowner, it is not necessary that the fences used by the adjoining landowner to complete the enclosure of his or her own land be lawful fences within the meaning of the former Fence Acts of 1885 and 1860 (now Food & Agric. Code § 17121) [Meade v. Watson (1885) 67 Cal. 591, 594, 8 P. 311] , that the adjoining landowner construct fences at places where natural barriers exist, or that the adjoining landowner completely enclose the land [Gonzales v. Wasson (1876) 51 Cal. 295, 298] . But in order to recover a just proportion of the value of the division fence, it is necessary for the landowner to prove his or her construction of the division fence, to establish its value at the time of the enclosure, and to make a demand for value from the defendant [Meade v. Watson (1885) 67 Cal. 591, 595, 8 P. 311] . For a form of complaint for use to recover proportionate cost of construction of a division fence, see § 266.70.

Civ. Code § 841 is not available by way of defense or mitigation to reduce damages owed by an adjoining landowner who wrongfully removed a preexisting boundary fence [McCormick v. Appleton (1964) 225 Cal. App. 2d 591, 595-596, 37 Cal. Rptr. 544] .

For a form of complaint to recover a proportion of the cost of a boundary fence from plaintiff's adjoining landowner, see § 266.70.

Chapter 266 FENCES
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

22-266 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 266.18

§ 266.18 Fences as Nuisances

[1] Spite Fences Over 10 Feet in Height

Any fence or other structure in the nature of a fence which unnecessarily exceeds 10 feet in height and which is maliciously erected or maintained for the purpose of annoying the owner or occupant of adjoining property is a private nuisance [Civ. Code § 841.4]. Any owner or occupant of adjoining property who is injured either in his or her comfort or in the enjoyment of his or her estate by that nuisance may enforce the remediesagainst its continuance prescribed in Civ. Code §§ 3501-3503 (relief against private nuisances) [Civ. Code § 841.4].

[2] Fences Less Than 10 Feet in Height

Even though a fence under 10 feet in height is not a spite fence as defined by statute, it may still be a nuisance if it is constructed with a malicious intent [Griffin v. Northridge (1944) 67 Cal. App. 2d 69, 75, 153 P.2d 800] and if the usefulness of the fence to the defendants is subordinate and incidental [Hutcherson v. Alexander (1968) 264 Cal. App. 2d 126, 132, 70 Cal. Rptr. 366 (fence erected between competing businesses for purpose of annoying competitor and hiding business from view)]. Thus, even a lawful use of one's property constitutes a nuisance if it is part of a general scheme to annoy a neighbor and if the main purpose of the use is to prevent a neighbor's reasonable enjoyment of his or her property [Zimmer v. Dykstra (1974) 39 Cal. App. 3d 422, 438, 114 Cal. Rptr. 380 (fence erected to block neighbor's use of prescriptive easement)].

[3] Injunctive Relief or Damages

In order for plaintiff to obtain injunctive relief against the builder of a spite fence, a malicious intent must be the motive in building the spite fence, and the usefulness of the structure must be clearly subordinate and incidental [Haehlen v. Wilson (1936) 11 Cal. App. 2d 437, 441-442, 54 P.2d 62 (erection of six and one-half foot fence to protect property from trespassers was lawful use of land not constituting private nuisance); Taliaferro v. Salyer (1958) 162 Cal. App. 2d 685, 690, 328 P.2d 799 (maintenance of six-foot division fence on owner's property was not a private nuisance)]. It should be noted, though, that courts will not establish aesthetic standards to which builders of fences must conform. Thus, no injunction is available to require removal of an ugly or untidy fence [Haehlen v. Wilson (1936) 11 Cal. App. 2d 437, 441, 54 P.2d 62] .

An owner or occupant of land is entitled to compensation for annoyance, discomfort, and inconvenience caused by a nuisance on adjoining property [Griffin v. Northridge (1944) 67 Cal. App. 2d 69, 73, 153 P.2d 800 (fence under 10 feet in height as nuisance)]. In addition to injunctive relief to compel an adjoining landowner to remove a fence, compensatory damages and, if the defendant acts maliciously in constructing a fence, punitive damages may be recovered [Zimmer v. Dykstra (1974) 39 Cal. App. 3d 422, 437-438, 114 Cal. Rptr. 380 ; Hutcherson v. Alexander (1968) 264 Cal. App. 2d 126, 135-136, 70 Cal. Rptr. 366] .

For further discussion of nuisances and a complaint against an adjoining landowner for maintenance of a spite fence, see Ch. 391, Nuisance .

22-266 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 266.32

§ 266.32 Decisions

[1] Civil Liability for Damaging Fence

[a] In General

Civil action for damages for wrongful removal of fence. Morrissey v. Morrissey (1923) 191 Cal. 782, 783, 218 P. 396

Trespass to real and personal property as committed when adjoining landowner enters property of neighbor and destroys fence. McCormick v. Appleton (1964) 225 Cal. App. 2d 591, 595, 37 Cal. Rptr. 544

[b] Injunctive Relief

Destruction of fence and entry onto property of plaintiff is trespass for which remedy at law deemed adequate and no injunctive relief granted. Leach v. Day (1865) 27 Cal. 644, 27 Cal. 643, 645-646

Right to injunctive relief and compensatory and punitive damages for trespass to real and personal property for willful and wanton destruction of boundary fence. McCormick v. Appleton (1964) 225 Cal. App. 2d 591, 597-598, 37 Cal. Rptr. 544

[c] Measure of Damages

Civ. Code § 841, requiring coterminous owners equally to maintain fences between them unless one chooses to let land lie without fencing, does not apply to reduce damages owed by adjoining landowner who wrongfully removes preexisting boundary fence. McCormick v. Appleton (1964) 225 Cal. App. 2d 591, 595-596, 37 Cal. Rptr. 544

Measure of damages for destruction of fixture that has no substantial value apart from that of land is diminution of value of land. Wilmerton v. Morton (1946) 74 Cal. App. 2d 891, 897, 169 P.2d 992

Measure of damages is value of fixture destroyed when it has substantial independent value. Givens v. Markall (1942) 51 Cal. App. 2d 374, 381, 124 P.2d 839

Measure of damages for destruction of fence is amount that will compensate party for value of property at time of destruction. Hancock v. George R. Curtis Paving Co. (1931) 114 Cal. App. 624, 628, 300 P. 65

[2] Contribution for Division Fence

Right to action for contribution for division fence. Reusche v. Milhorn (1933) 218 Cal. 696, 697-698, 24 P.2d 792 ; Meade v. Watson (1885) 67 Cal. 591, 593, 8 P. 311 ; Gonzales v. Wasson (1876) 51 Cal. 295, 298

Action to recover part of cost of division fence involves title to real property. Reusche v. Milhorn (1933) 218 Cal. 696, 697, 24 P.2d 792

Fences used by defendant to complete enclosure need not be lawful fences within the meaning of former Fence Acts of 1885 and 1860 (now see Food & Agric. Code § 17121). Meade v. Watson (1885) 67 Cal. 591, 594, 8 P. 311

Landowner must prove construction, establish value, and demand value from defendant in order to recover contribution for division fence. Meade v. Watson (1885) 67 Cal. 591, 595, 8 P. 311

Payment for partition fence is recoverable although defendant's land not completely enclosed and although no fences constructed at places where natural barriers exist. Gonzales v. Wasson (1876) 51 Cal. 295, 298

[3] Criminal Liability for Destroying Fence

No probable cause to charge person with crime of maliciously tearing down fence if act was done in good faith and with reasonable belief in legal right to do so. Seabridge v. McAdam (1895) 108 Cal. 345, 349, 41 P. 409

Trespass to fence is misdemeanor if fence was destroyed in violation of former Penal Code § 602(8) (now see Penal Code § 602(h)). Messick v. Superior Court (1922) 57 Cal. App. 340, 341-342, 207 P. 58

[4] Definitions

Natural barrier is fence for purpose of recovering contribution for division fence. Gonzales v. Wasson (1876) 51 Cal. 295, 298 ; Comerford v. Dupuy (1861) 17 Cal. 308, 309

[5] Fences as Encroachments

[a] Encroachment as Trespass or Nuisance

Encroachment constitutes trespass. Rankin v. DeBare (1928) 205 Cal. 639, 641, 271 P. 1050

Encroachment on airspace above adjoining land is nuisance rather than trespass. Kafka v. Bozio (1923) 191 Cal. 746, 750, 218 P. 753 ; Case v. Sisich (1929) 97 Cal. App. 106, 110, 275 P. 492

Erection of fence by defendant on portion of adjoining landowner's property is encroachment; action for injunctive relief and damages is justified. Oertel v. Copley (1957) 152 Cal. App. 2d 287, 291-292, 313 P.2d 105

[b] Injunctive Relief; Balancing Conveniences

Injunction compelling party to remove fence is mandatory injunction. Kettenhofen v. Superior Court (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 189, 191, 10 Cal. Rptr. 356, 358 P.2d 684

Injunction may be issued to prevent encroachment from ripening into easement. Fairrington v. Dyke Water Co. (1958) 50 Cal. 2d 198, 201, 323 P.2d 1001 ; City of Dunsmuir v. Silva (1957) 154 Cal. App. 2d 825, 827, 317 P.2d 653

Irreparable injury to defendant if injunction imposed is necessary element in balancing of conveniences defense. Fairrington v. Dyke Water Co. (1958) 50 Cal. 2d 198, 200, 323 P.2d 1001

Mandatory injunction will be denied and plaintiff will be required to accept damages if encroachment does not cause irreparable injury, was innocently made, and cost of removal is great compared to inconvenience caused. Oertel v. Copley (1957) 152 Cal. App. 2d 287, 290, 313 P.2d 105 ; Christensen v. Tucker (1952) 114 Cal. App. 2d 554, 559, 250 P.2d 660

Court of equity has power to protect defendants in use of encroaching fence, incident to balancing of conveniences and awarding plaintiffs damages for encroachment, by granting defendants' easement. Oertel v. Copley (1957) 152 Cal. App. 2d 287, 292, 313 P.2d 105 ; see Christensen v. Tucker (1952) 114 Cal. App. 2d 554, 563, 250 P.2d 660

Necessary elements of doctrine of balancing of conveniences. Christensen v. Tucker (1952) 114 Cal. App. 2d 554, 562-563, 250 P.2d 660

Mandatory injunction to compel adjoining owner to remove encroachment causing no appreciable damage will be denied if adequate remedy at law exists. Rothaermel v. Amerige (1921) 55 Cal. App. 273, 276, 203 P. 833

[6] Fences as Nuisance

[a] Fences Less Than 10 Feet

Even lawful use of one's property constitutes nuisance if it is part of general scheme to annoy neighbor and main purpose of use is preventing neighbor's reasonable enjoyment of his or her property. Zimmer v. Dykstra (1974) 39 Cal. App. 3d 422, 438, 114 Cal. Rptr. 380 ; Hutcherson v. Alexander (1968) 264 Cal. App. 2d 126, 130, 70 Cal. Rptr. 366

Fence under 10 feet in height is a nuisance, even though not a spite fence as defined by statute, if it was constructed with malicious intent, interfered with adjoining landowner's full enjoyment of home, and usefulness to defendants was subordinate and incidental. Hutcherson v. Alexander (1968) 264 Cal. App. 2d 126, 132, 70 Cal. Rptr. 366

Erection of fence between properties or competing businesses for main purpose of annoying competitor and hiding business from view from public street is nuisance. Hutcherson v. Alexander (1968) 264 Cal. App. 2d 126, 130, 70 Cal. Rptr. 366

Maintenance of six-foot division fence on one's own property does not constitute private nuisance. Taliaferro v. Salyer (1958) 162 Cal. App. 2d 685, 690, 328 P.2d 799

Fence not 10 feet in height is a nuisance if constructed with malicious intent. Griffin v. Northridge (1944) 67 Cal. App. 2d 69, 75, 153 P.2d 800

Erection of fence six and one-half feet in height, to protect property from trespassers, is not unusual or unlawful.

Haehlen v. Wilson (1936) 11 Cal. App. 2d 437, 441, 54 P.2d 62

Courts will not set up aesthetic standards to which fence builders must conform; no relief will be granted if plaintiff alleges only that fence or wall has ugly or untidy appearance. Haehlen v. Wilson (1936) 11 Cal. App. 2d 437, 441, 54 P.2d 62

[b] Injunctive Relief and Damages

Plaintiff is entitled to punitive damages when defendant acts maliciously in constructing fence. Zimmer v. Dykstra (1974) 39 Cal. App. 3d 422, 438, 114 Cal. Rptr. 380

Remedies for nuisance include injunctive relief and compensatory and punitive damages. Hutcherson v. Alexander (1968) 264 Cal. App. 2d 126, 135-136, 70 Cal. Rptr. 366

Owner of residence occupied as home is entitled to compensation for annoyance, discomfort, and inconvenience caused by nuisance on adjoining property. Griffin v. Northridge (1944) 67 Cal. App. 2d 69, 73, 153 P.2d 800

Compensation for nuisance will not be denied because it is not continuous. Griffin v. Northridge (1944) 67 Cal. App. 2d 69, 76, 153 P.2d 800

Single intentional trespass on rights of another justifies award of punitive damages. Griffin v. Northridge (1944) 67 Cal. App. 2d 69, 76, 153 P.2d 800

Malicious intent must be motive in building fence and usefulness of structure must be clearly subordinate and incidental for injunctive relief to lie. Haehlen v. Wilson (1936) 11 Cal. App. 2d 437, 441-442, 54 P.2d 62

[7] Fence Over Easement

Defendant's erection of fence did not extinguish prescriptive easement acquired by plaintiffs. Zimmer v. Dykstra (1974) 39 Cal. App. 3d 422, 435-437, 114 Cal. Rptr. 380

Injunction issues to compel adjoining landowner to remove fence blocking ingress and egress over prescriptive easement. Zimmer v. Dykstra (1974) 39 Cal. App. 3d 422, 437-438, 114 Cal. Rptr. 380

Erection of fence by holder of prescriptive easement does not extinguish easement. Zimmer v. Dykstra (1974) 39 Cal. App. 3d 422, 434-435, 114 Cal. Rptr. 380

[8] Jurisdiction

Action for contribution for division fence involves title to real property and vests original jurisdiction in superior court and appellate jurisdiction in Supreme Court. Reusche v. Milhorn (1933) 218 Cal. 696, 697, 24 P.2d 792

Jurisdiction is conferred on superior court when right to title or possession of real property a material issue. Morrissey v. Morrissey (1923) 191 Cal. 782, 784, 218 P. 396

[9] Liability for Injury Caused by Fences

[a] Duty to Persons off Premises

Owner or possessor of land is liable for creating or maintaining dangerous artificial conditions or for permitting dangerous disrepair. Coates v. Chinn (1958) 51 Cal. 2d 304, 308, 332 P.2d 289 ; Wisher v. Fowler (1970) 7 Cal. App. 3d 225, 228-229, 86 Cal. Rptr. 582 ; Potter v. Empress Theatre Co. (1949) 91 Cal. App. 2d 4, 12, 204 P.2d 120

Having constructed and undertaken to maintain fence, landowner has duty to exercise reasonable care to prevent fence from becoming dangerous. Loveland v. Gardner (1889) 79 Cal. 317, 320, 21 P. 766

Construction of fence entirely on defendant's land is no defense if negligently constructed and maintained. Loveland v. Gardner (1889) 79 Cal. 317, 320, 21 P. 766

Lawful use of property is no defense when fence negligently constructed and maintained. Loveland v. Gardner (1889) 79 Cal. 317, 321, 21 P. 766

Plaintiff is entitled to recover damages for injury sustained by domestic animals as proximate result of defendant's negligent construction and maintenance of fence. Loveland v. Gardner (1889) 79 Cal. 317, 320-321, 21 P. 766

Liability for negligently constructing and maintaining fence does not depend on whether fence met statutory standard as set forth in former Pol. Code § 19(23) (now see Food & Agric. Code § 17121). Loveland v. Gardner (1889) 79 Cal. 317, 320, 21 P. 766

Court may consider definition of "good and substantial" wire fence and "lawful fence" as described by statutes (former Agric. Code §§ 403, 412, now see Food & Agric. Code § 17121) in determining liability for negligently maintained fence. Summers v. Parker (1953) 119 Cal. App. 2d 214, 216, 259 P.2d 59

[b] Duty to Persons on Premises

Civ. Code § 1714, rather than plaintiff's status as trespasser, licensee, or invitee determines liability of tenants for injuries to their social guests even though that status may have some bearing on liability. Rowland v. Christian (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 108, 119, 70 Cal. Rptr. 97, 443 P.2d 561

Civ. Code § 1714 supersedes Common-law rules regarding liability of landlord for accident on leased premises. Brennan v. Cockrell Investments, Inc. (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 796, 800, 111 Cal. Rptr. 122

Principles of Rowland v. Christian apply to determine landowner's liability for injury to social guest on premises. Carlson v. Ross (1969) 271 Cal. App. 2d 29, 32, 76 Cal. Rptr. 209

[c] No Duty of Landowner to Construct Fence

Duty to construct and maintain fence established by agreement. Brenot v. Southern P. R. Co. (1927) 202 Cal. 630, 636-637, 262 P. 732

Landowner has no duty to construct fence. Loveland v. Gardner (1889) 79 Cal. 317, 320, 21 P. 766

[d] Violation of Statute

Statutory standard may be higher than "reasonable person" standard, creating liability for violation of statute when none existed at common law. Sierra-Bay Fed. Land Bank Assn. v. Superior Court (1991) 227 Cal. App. 3d 318,

333-336, 277 Cal. Rptr. 753

Risk can be assumed even when defendant's negligence is presumed. King v. Magnolia Homeowners Assn. (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 1312, 1316, 253 Cal. Rptr. 140

[10] Type of Property

Fence is fixture constituting part of realty. Morrissey v. Morrissey (1923) 191 Cal. 782, 783, 218 P. 396

Fence is personal property rather than fixture if it is not attached to soil. Pennybecker v. McDougal (1874) 48 Cal. 160, 164

Improvement, such as fence on public land, is part of realty. Collins v. Bartlett (1872) 44 Cal. 371, 383

§ 266.40 Complaint for Damages for Personal Injuries Based on Negligence by Person on Premises Against Owner--Person Injured by Collapsing Fence

[1] FORM Complaint for Damages for Personal Injuries Based on Negligence by Person on Premises Against Owner--Person Injured by Collapsing Fence

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

[or other as appropriate]

_____ [name],	)	NO. _____
Plaintiff,	)	COMPLAINT FOR DAMAGES
vs.	)	(Negligence)
_____ [name(s)], [and DOES I	)	[Amount demanded _____
through _____,] Defendant(s).	)	(exceeds or does not exceed) $10,000]
	)	[LIMITED CIVIL CASE]

Plaintiff alleges:

1. Defendant _____ [name] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, the owner and in possession and control of that real property situated in _____ County, known as _____ [address], _____ [city], California, and more particularly described as follows: _____ [give legal description].

[2. Plaintiff is ignorant of the true names and capacities of defendants sued herein as DOES I-_____, inclusive, and therefore sues these defendants by these fictitious names. Plaintiff will amend this complaint to allege their true names and capacities when ascertained. (Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that each of the fictitiously named defendants is negligently responsible in some manner for the occurrences herein alleged, and that plaintiff's injuries and damages as herein alleged were proximately caused by those defendants.)]

[3. At all times herein mentioned, defendants _____ (names) were the agents and employees of the remaining defendants, and in doing the things herein alleged, were acting within the course and scope of that agency and employment.]

4. Defendant _____ [name] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, the owner and in possession and control of a fence constructed of _____ [specify, e.g., wood or brick] which was about _____ [number]feet in length and _____ [number] feet in height located on the above-described real property.

5. On or about _____ [date], and prior to that time, defendant negligently and carelessly maintained the fence in a defective and dangerous condition in that _____ [describe, e.g., it leaned severely to one side and had begun to fall apart]. Defendant knew, or in the exercise of reasonable care should have known, that the maintenance of the fence in that dangerous condition created an unreasonable risk of injury to persons lawfully on defendant's premises, and that the fence was likely to collapse and injure someone.

6. On the above-mentioned date, plaintiff was lawfully on defendant's premises for the purpose of _____ [state purpose, e.g., a social visit or selling magazines] when, as a proximate result of defendant's negligence and carelessness in maintaining the fence, it collapsed and struck plaintiff violently on his/her _____ [identify area of injury, e.g., right forehead, right shoulder, and right arm] causing plaintiff to sustain severe and painful injuries as hereinafter alleged.

7. As a proximate result of the negligence of defendant[s, and each of them], plaintiff was hurt and injured in his/her health, strength, and activity, sustaining bodily injury and shock and injury to his/her nervous system and person. All of these injuries have caused, and continue to cause, plaintiff great mental, physical, and nervous pain and suffering. [Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that these injuries will result in some permanent disability to him/her]. As a result of these injuries, plaintiff has suffered general damage [in the amount of $_____].

8. As a [further] proximate result of the negligence of defendant[s, and each of them], plaintiff has incurred, and will continue to incur, medical and related expenses. [The full amount of these expenses is not known to plaintiff at this time, and plaintiff will move to amend this complaint to state the amount of these expenses when the amount becomes known to him/her, or on proof of the amount.]

[EITHER]

9. As a further proximate result of the negligence of defendant[s, and each of them], plaintiff was prevented from attending to his/her usual occupation as a _____ [state occupation] at a _____ [wage or salary] of $_____ per _____ [week or month] _____ [for a period of _____ (specify) or from the date of his/her injury to the date of the filing of this complaint] and thereby lost earnings [to his/her damage _____ (in the sum of $_____ or in an as yet unascertained amount. Plaintiff will seek to amend this complaint at when he/she has ascertained the amount of lost earnings)].

[OR]

9. As a further proximate result of the negligence of defendant[s, and each of them], plaintiff's earning capacity has been greatly and impaired, both in the past and present, and will likely continue to be impaired in the future. [The exact amount of damage from plaintiff's lost earning capacity is not known to plaintiff at this time, and plaintiff will move to amend this complaint to state the amount when it becomes known to him/her, or on proof of that amount.]

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment as follows:

1. For general damages [in the sum of $_____];

2. For medical and related expenses [according to proof];

3. For loss of earnings [_____ (in the sum of $_____ or according to proof)];

4. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

5. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

VERIFICATION

I, _____ [name], am the plaintiff in the above-entitled action. I have read the foregoing complaint and know the contents thereof. The same is true of my own knowledge, except as to those matters which are therein alleged on information and belief, and as to those matters, I believe it to be true.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is a complaint to recover damages for personal injuries, and is for use by a person who was injured by a collapsing fence while on defendant's premises. It is based on negligence [Civ. Code § 1714(a)]. For discussion of the duty owed by an owner or occupier of real property to persons on the premises, see § 266.13[2].

[3] Allegations

The complaint in [1], above, alleges (1) defendant's ownership of property on which fence is situated (Paragraphs 1, 4); (2) defendant's possession and control of the fence (Paragraph 4) [Loveland v. Gardner (1889) 79 Cal. 317, 321, 21 P. 766 ; see also Rowland v. Christian (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 108, 119, 70 Cal. Rptr. 97, 443 P.2d 561] ; (3) defendant's breach of his or herduty to reasonably care for and maintain the fence (Paragraph 5); (4) personal injuries proximately caused by that breach (Paragraph 6); and (5) damages (Paragraphs 7-9) [Civ. Code § 3333].

[4] Jurisdiction and Venue

The superior court has jurisdiction of the action, which will be classified as an unlimited civil case unless the amount in controversy, exclusive of interest, is $25,000 or less, in which case it will be classified as a limited civil case [Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(8)]. When title or right to possession is to be tried, or permanent injunctive relief is sought, the case will be classified as an unlimited civil case [see Code Civ. Proc. § 88].

In limited civil cases, the first page of the first paper must state that it is a limited civil case and whether the amount demanded exceeds or does not exceed $10,000 [Code Civ. Proc. § 422.30(b); Gov. Code § 70613(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(9), (10)].

In an action for injury to the person or to personal property from a wrongful act or negligence, either the county where the injury occurs or the county where the defendants, or some of them, reside at the commencement of the action is a proper county for the trial of the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a)].

[5] Verification

Although verification of this complaint is not required [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(a)], verification will require any answer to be verified in an unlimited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446]. Verification will also preclude the defendant from using a general denial in an unlimited civil case, and will preclude a general denial in a limited civil case if the action is a claim assigned to a third party for collection [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion, see Ch. 26, Answers .

[6] Specification of Damages

If an action is brought to recover actual or punitive damages for personal injury or wrongful death, the amount demanded must not be stated, but the complaint must comply with Code Civ. Proc. § 422.30, and, in a limited civil case, with Gov. Code § 70613(b) [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)].

Otherwise, the amounts claimed as damages must be alleged [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(a)(2)] or an equivalent statement must be included, for example, a statement that the damages for a particular loss or harm sustained [see Civ. Code §§ 3281, 3282] are not known and that leave will be sought to amend the complaint to state the exact amount when ascertained. If this is done, counsel must remember to seek leave to amend the complaint to so state before judgment.

For discussion of and forms for requesting and stating the amount of damages sought when they are not stated in the complaint, see Ch. 177, Damages , and Ch. 205, Defaults and Default Judgments [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 425.11, 425.115].

[7] Statute of Limitations

The statute of limitations for actions for personal injury, other than assault, battery, or wrongful injury or death, is one year [Code Civ. Proc. § 340(c)]. The statute of limitations is two years for an action for assault, battery, or injury to, or the death of, an individual caused by the wrongful act or neglect of another [Code Civ. Proc. § 335.1].

[1] FORM Complaint for Damages for Personal Injuries Based on Negligence by Passing Pedestrian Against Owner--Pedestrian Injured at Night by Barbed-Wire Fence Protruding Onto Sidewalk

[Caption. See § 266.40[1].]

Plaintiff alleges:

1. [Allegation as to defendant's ownership and control of real property. See § 266.40[1], Paragraph 1.]

[2. Fictitious name allegation, if appropriate. See § 266.40[1], Paragraph 2.]

[3. Agency allegation, if appropriate. See § 266.40[1], Paragraph 3.]

4. Defendant _____ [name] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, the owner and in possession and control of a barbed-wire fence which was about _____ [number] feet in length and _____ [number] feet in height located on the above-described property. Defendant has maintained, and continues to maintain, the barbed-wire fence which separates his/her premises from the sidewalk of _____ [name of street] which runs adjacent to the premises on the _____ [specify direction] side thereof.

5. On or about _____ [date], and prior to that time, defendant negligently and carelessly maintained the barbed-wire fence in that _____ [describe, e.g., he/she allowed a portion of the fence, for a distance of approximately _____ (number) of feet, to become and remain unfastened from the fence post and to protrude onto the sidewalk for a distance of approximately _____ (number) of inches].

6. On the above-mentioned date, and prior to that time, defendant further negligently and carelessly maintained the premises in that he/she failed to give any warning to pedestrians using the sidewalk of the condition of the barbed-wire fence, and it presented a danger to those using the sidewalk and passing by the premises.

7. On the above-mentioned date at _____ [time of night], plaintiff _____ [name] was passing by defendant's premises as a pedestrian on the sidewalk. As a proximate result of the negligence of defendant in maintaining the barbed-wire fence and premises in the above-described condition, and in failing to give any warning of the danger to passing pedestrians, and, particularly as a result of defendant's negligence and carelessness in not warning pedestrians passing by in the nighttime, plaintiff struck the barbed-wire fence and sustained severe and painful injuries as hereinafter alleged.

8. [Injuries. See § 266.40[1], Paragraph 7.]

9. [Damages for medical expenses. See § 266.40[1], Paragraph 8.]

10. [Damages for lost earnings. See § 266.40[1], Paragraphs 9.]

[2] Use of Form

This form is a complaint for use in an action by a pedestrian against an owner or occupier of real property to recover damages sustained when the pedestrian was walking on a sidewalk and struck a barbed-wire fence that protruded from the property onto the sidewalk. The complaint is based on negligence [Civ. Code § 1714(a)]. For discussion of the duty owed by an owner or possessor of real property to persons on the premises, see § 266.13[3].

For discussion of jurisdiction, venue, and statute of limitations applicable to this type of action, see § 266.40[4], [7].

[3] Allegations

The complaint alleges (1) defendant's possession, control, and maintenance of the fence (Paragraph 4) [Loveland v. Gardner (1889) 79 Cal. 317, 321, 21 P. 766 ; see also Rowland v. Christian (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 108, 119, 70 Cal. Rptr. 97, 443 P.2d 561] ; (2) defendant's breach of his or her duty to reasonably care for and maintain the fence, including a description of the dangerous condition into which it had fallen (Paragraph 5); (3) defendant's failure to warn of the dangerous condition of the fence (Paragraph 6); and (4) that plaintiff suffered personal injuries as a proximate result of defendant's failure to maintain the fence or warn of its dangerous condition (Paragraph 7) [see Barlow v. Los Angeles County Flood Control Dist. (1950) 96 Cal. App. 2d 979, 984-985, 216 P.2d 903 (dangerous excavation near public street)].

[1] FORM Complaint for Property Damage and Damages for Personal Injuries Based on Negligence by Automobile Owner-Operator Against Ranch Owner--Collision With Livestock Which Escaped Through a Defective Fence

Plaintiff alleges:

1. Defendant _____ [name] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, the owner and in possession and control of that real property situated in _____ County, California, known as the _____ [name of ranch or farm], and more particularly described as follows: _____ [give legal description]. The _____ [name of ranch or farm] has a frontage of _____ [number] _____ [feet or miles] on the _____ [direction] side of _____ [name or number of highway].

[2. Fictitious name allegation, if appropriate. See § 266.40[1], Paragraph 2.]

4. Defendant _____ [name] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, the owner and in possession and control of a _____ [specify type of fence, e.g., barbed-wire] fence which was about _____ [number] feet in length and _____ [number] feet in height located on the above-described property. Defendant has maintained, and continues to maintain, the _____ [specify type of fence, e.g., barbed-wire] fence which separates his/her premises from _____ [name or number of highway], which runs adjacent to the premises as described above.

5. On or about _____ [date], and prior to that time, defendant negligently and carelessly maintained the _____ [specify type of fence, e.g., barbed-wire] fence in that _____ [describe, e.g., he/she allowed the wires to hang loose and free from the posts, some posts were rotted and partly burned through, and several posts rested on the surface of the ground and were not imbedded therein].

6. At all times herein mentioned plaintiff _____ [name] was, and is, the owner of a certain _____ [specify year, make, model] automobile, California License No. _____.

7. On the above-mentioned date, at or about the hour of _____ _____.M., plaintiff was operating the above-mentioned automobile traveling _____ [direction] on _____ [name or number of highway], toward the town of _____ in _____ County.

8. Defendant at that time, and at all times prior thereto, had so negligently and carelessly maintained the _____ [specify type of fence, e.g., barbed-wire] fence that a _____ [specify type of livestock, e.g., steer] had escaped through the defective fence from defendant's _____ [ranch or farm] where it had been placed for _____ [describe, e.g., pasturage] and was lying on the highway, directly in the pathway of plaintiff's oncoming automobile, thus causing plaintiff to collide with the _____ [specify type of livestock, e.g., steer] and to sustain severe and painful injuries and damages as hereinafter alleged.

9. [Injuries. See § 266.40[1], Paragraph 7.]

10. [Damages for medical expenses. See § 266.40[1], Paragraph 8.]

11. [Damages for lost earnings. See § 266.40[1], Paragraph 9.]

12. Immediately prior to, and at the time of the collision, plaintiff's _____ [specify make] automobile was in good mechanical condition. As a further proximate result of the negligence of defendant as herein alleged, plaintiff's automobile was damaged and depreciated to the extent of $ _____, which sum is a reasonable amount for the necessary repairs to the automobile.

13. As a further proximate result of the negligence of defendant as herein alleged, plaintiff lost the use of his/her _____ [make] automobile for a period of _____ [number] days, and was damaged thereby in the sum of $_____.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment [against defendants, and each of them,] as follows:

1. For general damages [in the sum of $_____];

2. For medical and related expenses [according to proof];

3. For loss of earnings _____ [in the sum of $ _____ or according to proof];

4. For repairs to plaintiff's automobile in the sum of $ _____;

5. For loss of use of that automobile in the sum of $ _____;

6. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

7. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[Verification, if desired. See § 266.40[1] .]

[2] Use of Form

This form is a complaint for use by an automobile owner who has been injured, and whose automobile has been damaged, in a collision with livestock which escaped onto the highway through a defective fence [see Food & Agric. Code § 16902 (one who controls livestock must not permit it to stray unaccompanied on highway)]. The complaint is based on negligence and seeks recovery of damages for injuries to plaintiff's person and property from the owner of the fence. For discussion of jurisdiction and venue, see § 266.40[4].

[3] Allegations

The form alleges (1) defendant's ownership of a ranch abutting the highway (Paragraph 1); (2) defendant's ownership, control, and maintenance of the fence separating his or her ranch from the highway (Paragraph 4) [see Food & Agric. Code § 17121 (lawful fence is one sufficient to prevent ingress and egress of livestock)]; (3) defendant's negligence in failing to maintain the fence, and a description of the condition into which the fence had deteriorated (Paragraphs 5, 8); (4) plaintiff's ownership of the automobile and a description of it (Paragraph 6); (5) where and in which direction plaintiff was traveling at the time of the accident (Paragraph 7); (6) the accident and injuries sustained by plaintiff (Paragraph 8); and (7) the damage sustained to plaintiff's automobile (Paragraphs 12, 13) [see Summers v. Parker (1953) 119 Cal. App. 2d 214, 217, 259 P.2d 59] . Plaintiff is not required to prove the exact spot at which livestock escaped from defendant's property to recover damages [Summers v. Parker (1953) 119 Cal. App. 2d 214, 217, 259 P.2d 59] , but in an action involving a collision between livestock and a motor vehicle, there is no presumption of negligence on the part of the livestock's owner [Food & Agric. Code § 16904].

[4] Statute of Limitations

Actions for injury to personal property must be brought within three years [Code Civ. Proc. § 338(c)]. Actions for personal injury caused by the negligence of another must be brought within one year [Code Civ. Proc. § 340(c)]. However, the statute of limitations is two years for an action for assault, battery, or injury to, or the death of, an individual caused by the wrongful act or neglect of another [Code Civ. Proc. § 335.1].

[3. Agency allegation, if appropriate. See § 266.40[1], Paragraph 3.]

4. At all times herein mentioned, plaintiff _____ [name] was, and now is, the owner of real property situated at _____ [address] in _____ [city], _____ County, California, and on which real property was located a certain _____ [specify type, e.g., wooden or wire] fence which was approximately _____ [number] feet in length and _____ [number] feet in height.

5. At all times herein mentioned, defendant _____ [name], was the owner of a certain _____ [specify year, make, model] automobile, California License No. _____.

6. On or about _____ [date], at or about the hour of _____ [time], defendant negligently, carelessly, and unlawfully owned, maintained, operated, and drove the _____ [specify make] automobile on _____ [street], a public street and highway which is adjacent to the premises of plaintiff, so as to proximately cause the automobile to leave that street and run into and on the premises of plaintiff and to collide with the _____ [specify type, e.g., wooden or wire] fence, causing _____ [describe damage to fence, e.g., the boards in the fence to break and the posts of the fence to collapse].

7. As a proximate result of the negligence of defendant, plaintiff was damaged as follows: _____ [describe reasonable value of expenditures for repairs or replacement of fence].

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment as follows:

1. For damages to plaintiff's fence in the sum of $_____;

[2] Use of Form

This form is a complaint for use by the owner of a fence against an automobile owner to recover for damage to the fence resulting from negligent operation of the automobile. For discussion of civil liability for damaging a fence, see § 266.15.

[3] Allegations

The complaint alleges:

- Plaintiff's ownership of real property on which the fence is situated (Paragraph 4).
- Defendant's ownership of a motor vehicle (Paragraph 5) [Veh. Code § 17150].
- Defendant's breach of a duty of care (Paragraph 6).
- Injury to real property caused by defendant's negligence (Paragraph 6).
- Damages (Paragraph 7) [Civ. Code § 3333;see also § 266.15[2]].

[4] Jurisdiction

The superior court has jurisdiction of the action, which will be classified as an unlimited civil case unless the amount in controversy, exclusive of interest, is $25,000 or less, in which case it will be classified as a limited civil case [Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(8)]. When title or right to possession is to be tried, or permanent injunctive relief is sought, the case will be classified as an unlimited civil case [see Code Civ. Proc. § 88].

In limited civil cases, the first page of the first paper must state that it is a limited civil case and whether the amount demanded exceeds or does not exceed $10,000 [Code Civ. Proc. § 422.30(b); Gov. Code § 70613(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(9), (10)].

[5] Venue

Subject to the power of the court to transfer actions and proceedings as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 392 et seq., the superior court in the county where the subject real property, or some part of it, is situated is the proper court for the trial of actions for the recovery of real property, or of an estate or interest in the property, or for the determination, in any form, of that right or interest, and for injuries to real property [Code Civ. Proc. § 392(a)(1)].

[6] Statute of Limitations

Actions for trespass on or injury to real property must be brought within three years [Code Civ. Proc. § 338(b)].

Plaintiff,	)	COMPLAINT FOR DAMAGES
vs.	)	(Trespass)
_____ [name(s)], [and DOES I	)	[Amount demanded _____
through _____,] Defendant(s).	)	(exceeds or does not exceed) $10,000]

Plaintiff alleges:

1. Plaintiff _____ [name] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, the owner and in possession and control of that real property situated in _____ County, known as _____ [address], _____ [city], California, and more particularly described as follows: _____ [give legal description]. Located on plaintiff's property is a _____ [specify type of fence, e.g., wooden or brick or wire] fence which is approximately _____ [number] feet in length and _____ [number] feet in height.

2. [Allegation of defendant's ownership and control of real property. See § 266.40[1], Paragraph 1.]

3. The above-described properties of plaintiff and defendant adjoin each other at plaintiff's _____ [ specify direction, e.g., north] and defendant's _____ [specify direction, e.g., south] boundaries.

[5. Agency allegation, if appropriate. See § 266.40[1], Paragraph 3.]

6. On or about _____ [date], defendant entered onto plaintiff's property and willfully and intentionally, with intent to injure plaintiff and his/her property, destroyed plaintiff's _____ [specify type of fence, e.g., wooden or brick or wire] fence by _____ [describe acts of destruction, e.g., burning it to the ground or striking it repeatedly with a bulldozer or pulling it from the ground]. Defendant knew he/she was on plaintiff's property and had no good-faith belief that he/she had a right to be there.

7. As a proximate result of defendant's willful and intentional destruction of plaintiff's fence as described above, plaintiff was forced to construct a new fence on the property and to expend $_____ for _____ [specify, e.g., materials] and $_____ for _____[specify, e.g., labor], totaling damages in the sum of $_____.

8. In destroying plaintiff's _____ [specify type of fence, e.g., wooden or brick or wire] fence, defendant acted maliciously and oppressively toward plaintiff in that _____ [specify, e.g., at all times prior to, during, and after defendant destroyed plaintiff's fence, he/she knew that the fence was located on plaintiff's property as herein described, but in disregard of plaintiff's rights, defendant entered the property and destroyed the fence]. Plaintiff therefore is entitled to punitive damages.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment as follows:

1. For general damages in the sum of $_____;

2. For punitive damages;

3. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

4. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

The form of complaint at [1], above, is for use by a landowner in an action based on trespass to recover compensatory and punitive damages from an adjoining landowner who willfully and intentionally destroyed a fence on the landowner's property [see McCormick v. Appleton (1964) 225 Cal. App. 2d 591, 595, 597-598, 37 Cal. Rptr. 544 ; see also Penal Code § 602(h) (trespass to fence is misdemeanor); Penal Code § 602.2 (applicability of trespass ordinance or resolution to land enclosed by fence)].

For discussion of civil liability for damaging a fence, see § 266.15.

For discussion of jurisdiction, venue, and the statute of limitations applicable to this action, see § 266.43[4] -[6].

[3] Allegations

The complaint in [1], above, alleges:

- Possession by plaintiff of the real property on which the alleged trespass was committed (Paragraph 1) [Gomez v. Reed (1918) 178 Cal. 759, 763, 174 P. 658 ; Demartin v. Albert (1885) 68 Cal. 277, 279, 9 P. 157] .

- Unlawful entry or invasion of plaintiff's rights by the defendant (Paragraph 6) [see Morgan v. French (1945) 70 Cal. App. 2d 785, 788-790, 161 P.2d 800] .

- Consequent damages (Paragraph 7) [Civ. Code § 3333; Gomez v. Reed (1918) 178 Cal. 759, 763, 174 P. 658 ; Demartin v. Albert (1885) 68 Cal. 277, 279, 9 P. 157] .

- Facts entitling plaintiff to punitive damages (Paragraph 8) [Civ. Code § 3294].

§ 266.51 Complaint for Temporary Restraining Order and Preliminary Injunction and for Permanent Injunction to Restrain Construction of Fence and for Compensatory Damages by Landowner Against Defendant Constructing Fence on Landowner's Property

[1] FORM Complaint for Temporary Restraining Order and Preliminary Injunction and for Permanent Injunction to Restrain Construction of Fence and for Compensatory Damages by Landowner Against Defendant Constructing Fence on Landowner's Property

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)	NO. _____
vs.	)	COMPLAINT FOR TEMPORARY RESTRAINING
_____ [name(s)], [and DOES I	)	ORDER, PRELIMINARY INJUNCTION, PER-through _____,] Defendant(s).	)	MANENT INJUNCTION, AND DAMAGES

Plaintiff alleges:

1. Plaintiff _____ [name] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, the owner and in possession and control of that real property situated in _____ County, known as _____ [address], _____ [city], California, and more particularly described as follows: _____ [give legal description].

2. Defendant is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a resident of _____ County, California [or allege other capacity and residence of defendant].

[4. Agency allegation, if appropriate. See § 266.40[1], Paragraph 3.]

5. On or about _____ [date], defendant, without the consent of plaintiff, willfully and intentionally entered on plaintiff's land, began to construct, and continues to construct, a _____ [specify type of fence, e.g., wooden or brick] fence near the _____ [specify direction, e.g., north or south] side of plaintiff's premises, thereby blocking plaintiff's use of a strip of land _____ [number] feet by _____ [number] feet in dimension, and further preventing plaintiff free ingress and egress to the side door of the dwelling house situated on plaintiff's property.

6. Although plaintiff has notified defendant that the fence is being constructed on plaintiff's property, defendant continues to construct thefence and further threatens to _____ [describe threatened act, e.g., build a brick barbeque on the above-mentioned strip of land], thus permanently depriving plaintiff of the free use and enjoyment of the property.

7. If defendant continues to construct the fence as threatened and finishes its construction, plaintiff will suffer irreparable injury in that _____ [state reasons, e.g., ingress and egress to the side door of plaintiff's dwelling house will be permanently blocked and plaintiff will be deprived of the free use and enjoyment of the strip of land as described above or defendant's continued use of plaintiff's property will ripen into a prescriptive easement]. Defendant's behavior thus will necessitate that plaintiff bring a multiplicity of actions in order to protect his/her rights.

8. Plaintiff has no adequate remedy at law in that pecuniary compensation will not afford adequate relief for the loss of the free use and enjoyment of plaintiff's property.

9. As a further proximate result of defendant's conduct as described above, _____ [describe any damages to plaintiff's person or property to date]. [Plaintiff will continue to be damaged in this manner so long as defendant's conduct continues. The full amount of damage is not now known to plaintiff, and plaintiff will amend this complaint to state the full amount when it becomes known, or upon proof thereof.]

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment as follows:

1. For an order requiring defendant to show cause, if any exists, why he/she should not be enjoined as hereinafter set forth, during the pendency of this action;

2. For a temporary restraining order, a preliminary injunction, and a permanent injunction, all enjoining defendant from continuing to construct the fence as described above;

3. For damages in the sum of $_____, plus damages in such further sums as may be sustained and as are ascertained before final judgment herein;

4. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

5. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

The form of complaint in [1], above, is for use by a landowner to obtain a temporary restraining order, a preliminary injunction, and a permanent injunction to restrain a defendant from constructing, and continuing to construct, a fence on the landowner's property [Civ. Code § 3420 et seq.; Code Civ. Proc. § 525 et seq.; see discussion at § 266.16]. The complaint also seeks compensatory damages.

For discussion, procedural checklist, and additional forms necessary in order to obtain a temporary restraining order or preliminary injunction, see Ch. 303, Injunctions .

[3] Allegations

The complaint in [1], above, alleges: (1) plaintiff's ownership of the land on which the fence is being constructed (Paragraph 1); (2) defendant's willful and intentional conduct which interferes with plaintiff's rights (Paragraph 5); (3) defendant's threat to continue the conduct which interferes with plaintiff's rights (Paragraph 6) [Code Civ. Proc. § 526]; (4) defendant's conduct as causing irreparable injury to plaintiff (Paragraph 7) [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 526, 527(c)(1); see also City of Dunsmuir v. Silva (1957) 154 Cal. App. 2d 825, 827, 317 P.2d 653 (injunctive relief is appropriate to prevent wrongful act if continuance of that act will ripen into easement and deprive plaintiff of use of property or some part of it)]; (5) the fact that plaintiff has no adequate remedy at law (Paragraph 8) [Code Civ. Proc. § 526]; and (6) damages (Paragraph 9) [Civ. Code § 3333].

For discussion of the limitation period applicable to an action involving trespass on or injury to real property, see § 266.43[6].

[4] Jurisdiction

Because the complaint seeks permanent injunctive relief, the action is in thejurisdiction of the superior court and is may not be a limited civil case except as otherwise authorized by statute [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(8), 580(b)(2)]. When title or right to possessionis to be tried, the case will be classified as an unlimited civil case [see Code Civ. Proc. § 88].

Venue for an action involving real property or an interest therein is discussed at § 266.43[5].

[5] Verification

Verification [Code Civ. Proc. § 446] is required if plaintiff seeks a temporary restraining order or a preliminary injunction on a complaint instead of on affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 527(a)]. If relying on a verified complaint instead of affidavits (or declarations), counsel must plead evidentiary facts that would entitle plaintiff to the relief sought [see E.H. Renzel Co. v. Warehousemen's Union (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 369, 373, 106 P.2d 1 ; Finnie v. Town of Tiburon (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 1, 15, 244 Cal. Rptr. 581] . For discussion, a procedural checklist, and additional forms necessary in order to obtain a temporary restraining order or preliminary injunction, see Ch. 303, Injunctions .

Otherwise, verification is not required, but verification of the complaint requires the defendant to file a verified answer [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446] and precludes use of a general denial [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion of the effect that verifying a complaint has on the answer, see Ch. 26, Answers .

[6] Certification re Notice

When a temporary restraining order is sought without formal notice, the applicant or the applicant's attorney is required to certify to the court under oath that [Code Civ. Proc. § 527(c)(2)]:

- Within a reasonable time prior to the application he or she informed the opposing party (or his or her attorney, if any) at what time and where the application would be made; or

- He or she in good faith attempted to inform the opposing party (or attorney) but was unable to do so, specifying the efforts made to do so; or

- For reasons specified he or she should not be required to inform the opposing party (or attorney).

The requirement for certification as to notice does not apply to an order issued under the Family Code [Code Civ. Proc. § 527(g)].

[7] Showing Requirements for ex Parte Temporary Restraining Order

If a temporary restraining order is to be granted ex parte, it must appear from facts shown by the verified complaint, or by the affidavit or declaration, that great or irreparable injury would result to the applicant before the matter can be heard on notice [Code Civ. Proc. § 527(c)(1)].

Plaintiff alleges:

FIRST COUNT
(Willful Trespass)

1. Plaintiff _____ [name] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, the owner and in possession and control of that real property situated in _____ County, known as _____ [address], _____ [city], California, and more particularly described as follows: _____ [give legal description].

2. Defendant _____ [name] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, the owner and in possession and control of that real property situated in _____ County, known as _____ [address], _____ [city], California, and more particularly described as follows: _____ [give legal description].

3. The above-described properties of plaintiff and defendant adjoin each other at plaintiff's _____ [specify direction, e.g., north] and defendant's _____ [specify direction, e.g., south] boundaries.

[5. Agency allegation, if appropriate. See § 266.40[1], Paragraph 3.]

6. On or about _____ [date], defendant caused a certain _____ [specify type of fence, e.g., wooden or brick] fence to be constructed, running in a _____ [state direction, e.g., northerly-southerly] direction, for a distance of _____ [number] feet in length, and standingentirely on the property of the plaintiff. That fence encroaches and trespasses on plaintiff's property by extending over the above-mentioned boundary between plaintiff's and defendant's properties and onto plaintiff's land without plaintiff's consent.

7. Defendant willfully and intentionally caused that fence to encroach on plaintiff's property as described above and knew that he/she was building on plaintiff's property without any good-faith belief that he/she had a right to do so.

8. The area of plaintiff's land blocked off by defendant's fence is approximately _____ [number] square feet. The value of the use of that area of land is $_____ per _____ [specify, e.g., month]. As a proximate result of this encroachment plaintiff has suffered, and will continue to suffer, damages for the loss of use of that area in the sum of $_____ per _____ [specify, e.g., month] as long as the encroachment remains on his/her land.

9. In causing the fence to encroach on plaintiff's property, defendant acted maliciously and oppressively toward plaintiff in that _____ [state reasons, e.g., at all times prior to, during, and after defendant caused the fence to encroach on plaintiff's property defendant had knowledge of the location of the above-mentioned common boundary line and that the fence would and did encroach on plaintiff's property as described above, but in disregard of plaintiff's rights defendant caused the fence to be built and maintained in such a manner that it encroaches on plaintiff's property]. Plaintiff therefore claims punitive damages.

10. Unless defendant is compelled to remove the encroachment from plaintiff's land, plaintiff will suffer irreparable injury in that _____ [specify, e.g., a continuation of such encroachment will ripen into a prescriptive easement].

SECOND COUNT
(Negligent Trespass)

11. Plaintiff incorporates herein Paragraphs 1-6, inclusive, and 10 of his/her First Count.

12. In causing the fence to encroach on plaintiff's property as described above, defendant acted negligently and carelessly and in complete disregard of the true location of the boundary line between plaintiff's and defendant's properties.

13. As a proximate result of the negligence and the resulting trespass, plaintiff has suffered damages from the loss of use of the property encroached on in the sum of $_____.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment as follows:

1. For a permanent injunction compelling defendant to remove the encroachment described herein from plaintiff's property and to restore plaintiff's property to its condition immediately prior to the encroachment;

2. For general damages in the sum of $_____;

3. For punitive damages;

4. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

5. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[Verification, if desired. See § 266.40[1].]

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is a complaint for use by a landowner to seek a permanent injunction to compel removal of an encroaching fence and for damages against an adjoining landowner [see Kettenhofen v. Superior Court (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 189, 191, 10 Cal. Rptr. 356, 358 P.2d 684 ; Oertel v. Copley (1957) 152 Cal. App. 2d 287, 291-292, 313 P.2d 105 ; see discussion at § 266.16]. The complaint has two counts:

- The First Count alleges that the encroachment was placed on plaintiff's property willfully and intentionally (First Count, Paragraph 7) [see Brown Derby Hollywood Corp. v. Hatton (1964) 61 Cal. 2d 855, 858-859, 40 Cal. Rptr. 848, 395 P.2d 896 (right to injunction when encroachment is willful)].

- The Second Count alleges, in the alternative, that the encroachment was placed on plaintiff's property negligently (Second Count, Paragraph 12) [see Christensen v. Tucker (1952) 114 Cal. App. 2d 554, 564, 250 P.2d 660 (right to injunction when encroachment was negligent)].

Jurisdiction for this type of action is discussed at § 266.51[3]]. Applicable venue is discussed at § 266.43[5].

[3] Allegations

Both counts allege (1) plaintiff's ownership of the land on which the fence was built (Paragraph 1); (2) defendant's status as owner of adjoining property (Paragraphs 2, 3); (3) that defendant built the fence on plaintiff's property (Paragraph 6); (4) when defendant built the fence [see Code Civ. Proc. § 338(b) (three-year limitation period for trespass on or injury to real property)]; and (5) that at all times during the building of that fence, defendant knew (First Count, Paragraph 9), or should have known (Second Count, Paragraph 12) that he or she had no right to do so.

As a ground for injunction under Code Civ. Proc. § 526(a)(2), the complaint alleges that continuance of the encroachment will cause plaintiff irreparable injury (First Count, Paragraph 10) [see Fairrington v. DykeWater Co. (1958) 50 Cal. 2d 198, 201, 323 P.2d 1001 (equity will enjoin any act which, if continuous, will give rise to an easement)]. See generally Ch. 550, Trespass .

If there is a dispute over title to the area of the encroachment, a second cause of action could be joined to quiet title thereto [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 427.10 (permissive joinder of causes of action), 760.010 et seq. (quiet title action), and Ch. 482, Quieting Title]. For a form of complaint doing just that, see § 266.60.

[4] Verification

Verification [Code Civ. Proc. § 446] is required if plaintiff seeks a temporary restraining order or a preliminary injunction on a complaint instead of on affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 527(a)]. If relying on a verified complaint instead of affidavits (or declarations), counsel must plead evidentiary facts that would entitle plaintiff to the relief sought [see E.H. Renzel Co. v. Warehousemen's Union (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 369, 373, 106 P.2d 1 ; Finnie v. Town of Tiburon (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 1, 15, 244 Cal. Rptr. 581] . For discussion, a procedural checklist, and additional forms necessary in order to obtain a temporary restraining order or preliminary injunction, see Ch. 303, Injunctions .

Otherwise, verification is not required, but verification of the complaint requires the defendant to file a verified answer [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446] and precludes use of a general denial [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion of the effect that verifying a complaint has on the answer, see Ch. 26, Answers .

[5] Jurisdiction

Because the complaint seeks permanent injunctive relief, the action is in the jurisdiction of the superior court and may not be a limited civil case except as otherwise authorized by statute [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(8), 580(b)(2)]. When title or right to possession is to be tried, the case will be classified as an unlimited civil case [see Code Civ. Proc. § 88].

§ 266.53 Affirmative Defense to Complaint Seeking Permanent Injunction to Compel Removal of Encroaching Fence--Based on Balancing of Conveniences

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense to Complaint Seeking Permanent Injunction to Compel Removal of Encroaching Fence--Based on Balancing of Conveniences

AS A SEPARATE [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g, FIRST)] AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action,state: TO THE _____ (specify number, e.g, SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that:

1. In constructing a _____ [specify type of fence, e.g., wooden or brick] fence on plaintiff's land as alleged in the complaint in this action, defendant acted innocently, in good faith, and in the belief that the portion of property encroached on belonged to defendant. Prior to causing the encroachment, defendant relied on information from a surveyor licensed by the State of California and from maps and boundary descriptions showing that the land belonged to defendant. Plaintiff did not at any time until subsequent to completion of the encroachment object to its existence, nor did he/she inform defendant that the subject land belonged to plaintiff.

2. _____ [Set forth facts showing that hardship to defendant if injunction is granted would be greatly disproportionate to hardship to plaintiff if injunction is denied, e.g., The cost of removal of the encroachment would be $_____, which greatly exceeds any damage to plaintiff's property caused by its continuance. The encroachment does not seriously interfere with plaintiff's use or enjoyment of his/her property, whereas its removal will cause defendant's property to become unsightly and would substantially limit defendant's use and enjoyment of his/her land and property in the following respects: _____ (specify)].

3. Plaintiff will not suffer irreparable injury as a result of the continued presence of the encroachment in that _____ [set forth supporting facts, e.g., the presence of the encroachment enhances the value of plaintiff's property and has not caused, nor will it cause, depreciation of its saleable value, nor does it limit or preclude any present or future use of plaintiff's property].

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is an affirmative defense for use in an action seeking an injunction to compel removal of an encroachment in the form of a fence, when defendant neither intentionally nor negligently placed the fence on plaintiff's property, but believed he or she owned the land in question. By this affirmative defense based on the doctrine of balancing of conveniences, defendant seeks to limit plaintiff to pecuniary compensation because of the relative hardship to defendant in removing the encroachment [see Fairrington v. Dyke Water Co. (1958) 50 Cal. 2d 198, 200,323 P.2d 1001 ; Christensen v. Tucker (1952) 114 Cal. App. 2d 554, 562-563, 250 P.2d 660] . This defense is discussed at § 266.16[3].

[3] Allegations

The defense alleges (1) defendant's innocence (Paragraph 1); (2) the disproportionate hardship to defendant if he or she is compelled to remove the encroachment (Paragraph 2) [see Fairrington v. Dyke Water Co. (1958) 50 Cal. 2d 198, 200, 323 P.2d 1001 (irreparable hardship to defendant if injunction imposed is necessary element in maintaining defense of balancing of conveniences)]; and (3) the absence of irreparable injury to plaintiff if the encroachment is permitted to continue (Paragraph 3) [see Christensen v. Tucker (1952) 114 Cal. App. 2d 554, 562-563, 250 P.2d 660 (leading case); Brown Derby Hollywood Corp. v. Hatton (1964) 61 Cal. 2d 855, 858, 40 Cal. Rptr. 848, 395 P.2d 896] .

[4] Affirmative Relief

Affirmative relief may be sought in conjunction with this defense, by way of cross complaint [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 425.10 (contents of cross complaint), 431.30(c) (affirmative relief may not be claimed by way of answer)] to protect defendant in his or her continued use of the encroachment. That relief has frequently been in the form of an easement granted by the court [see Oertel v. Copley (1957) 152 Cal. App. 2d 287, 292, 313 P.2d 105 ; see Christensen v. Tucker (1952) 114 Cal. App. 2d 554, 563, 250 P.2d 660 ;see generally Ch. 13, Adverse Possession], but may not exceed what is reasonably necessary to protect defendant [Christensen v. Tucker (1952) 114 Cal. App. 2d 554, 563, 250 P.2d 660 (holding that court should have awarded easement instead of fee title to encroached land)].

_____ [name(s) of known defendant(s)] [if unknown defendants are included, add:; and all persons unknown, claiming any legal or equitable right, title, estate, lien, or interest in the property described in the complaint adverse to plaintiff's title, or any cloud on plaintiff's title thereto] [; and DOES I-_____, inclusive],	)	COMPLAINT TO ESTABLISH BOUNDARY AND QUIET TITLE, AND FOR DAMAGES AND INJUNCTION
Defendant(s).	)

Plaintiff alleges:

FIRST CAUSE OF ACTION
(Quiet Title)

1.-3. [Allegations of ownership of respective adjoining properties by plaintiff and defendant. See § 266.52[1], Paragraphs 1-3, adding to allegations of Paragraphs 1 and 2 the street address or common designation, if any, of the property.]

[4. Defendants DOES I-_____, inclusive, are sued herein under fictitious names. Their true names and capacities are unknown to plaintiff. When their true names and capacities are ascertained, plaintiff will amend this complaint by inserting their true names and capacities herein. Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that each of these fictitiously named defendants claim some right, title, estate, lien, or interest in the above-described property adverse to plaintiff's title; that each of them isresponsible in some manner for the wrongful conduct herein alleged; and that their claims, and each of them, constitute a cloud on plaintiff's title to that property.]

5. The basis of plaintiff's title is _____ [describe basis of plaintiff's title, e.g., a deed from _____ (name of grantor) granting the above-described property in fee simple to plaintiff dated _____, and recorded in the Official Records of the County of _____, Book/Reel _____, page/image _____].

6. Defendant(s) claims/claim some right, title, estate, lien, or interest in and to the lands of plaintiff described above, or a portion thereof, and dispute and deny that the true and correct boundary line between their respective properties runs as follows: _____ [set forth legal description of boundary line which plaintiff believes to be correct], but to the contrary, contend that the true and correct boundary line between their respective lands runs as follows: _____ [set forth legal description of boundary line which defendant(s) claims/claim to be correct].

7. Plaintiff is seeking to quiet title against the claims of defendant(s) as follows: defendant(s) _____ [name(s) of the named defendant(s)], who claims/claim some right, title, estate, lien, or interest in and to the lands of plaintiff hereinbefore described, based on the purported boundary described in Paragraph 6 [continue with whichever are applicable:; the claims of the successor defendants described in Paragraph _____; the claims of all unknown defendants described in Paragraph 8, whether or not the claim or cloud is known to plaintiff; and the unknown, uncertain, or contingent claim, if any, of _____ (name) more fully described in Paragraph 9]. Defendant's/Defendants' claim(s) is/are without any right whatever, and defendant(s) is/are without any right, title, estate, lien, or interest whatever in the above-mentioned real property or any part thereof [except the following: _____ (set forth any adverse claims of which plaintiff admits the validity, e.g., the utility easement held by Pacific Gas and Electric Company)].

[8. If "all persons unknown" are named as defendants, allege: The defendants herein named as "all persons unknown, claiming any legal or equitable right, title, estate, lien, or interest in the property described in the complaint adverse to plaintiff's title, or any cloud on plaintiff's title thereto" (hereinafter sometimes referred to as "the unknown defendants") are unknown to plaintiff. These unknown defendants, and each of them, claim some right, title, estate, lien, or interest in the above-described property adverse to plaintiff's title; and their claims, and each of them, constitute a cloud on plaintiff's title to that property.]

[9. If the claim of a named defendant is unknown, uncertain, or contingent, allege: The claim of _____ (name of defendant) is _____ (unknown or uncertain or contingent). (If the lack of knowledge, uncertainty, or contingency is caused by a transfer to an unborn or unascertained person or class member, or by a transfer in the form of a contingent remainder, vested remainder subject to defeasance, executory interest, or similar disposition, allege: _____ (Name), age _____, is the person who would be entitled to an adverse claim if _____ (describe contingency) had occurred prior to the commencement of this action.) (If this person is subject to a legal disability, allege: This person is subject to _____ (specify legal disability).)]

10. Plaintiff seeks to quiet title as of _____ [date]. [If the date is a date other than the date the complaint is filed, allege why a determination as of that date is sought.]

SECOND CAUSE OF ACTION
(Willful Trespass)

11. Plaintiff incorporates herein the allegations of Paragraphs 1 through _____ [3 or, if fictitious name allegation is appropriate: 4], inclusive, of the First Cause of Action.

[12. Agency allegation, if appropriate. See § 266.40[1], Paragraph 3.]

13. On or about _____ [date], defendant(s) _____ [name(s) of known defendant(s)] unlawfully, and with force and violence, entered plaintiff's property and constructed a _____ [specify type of fence, e.g., wooden or brick] fence on the land, disturbed plaintiff in the use and occupation of the land, and prevented plaintiff from enjoying the land as he/she otherwise would have done. At all times since _____ [date], defendant(s) has/have maintained, and continues/continue to maintain, the fence and to encroach on the property of plaintiff, all to plaintiff's damage in the sum of $_____.

THIRD CAUSE OF ACTION
(Injunction)

14. Plaintiff incorporates herein the allegations of Paragraphs 1 through _____ [3 or, if fictitious name allegation is appropriate: 4], inclusive, of the First Cause of Action and Paragraph 13 of the Second Cause of Action.

[15. Agency allegation, if appropriate. See § 266.40[1], Paragraph 3.]

16. Defendant(s) _____ [name(s) of known defendant(s)] has/have threatened to maintain the fence and to oppose, with force and violence, the removal of the fence by plaintiff and has/have stated that if plaintiff removes the fence, defendant(s) will reconstruct the fence at the place where it now exists as often as plaintiff removes it, thus permanently depriving plaintiff of the use and enjoyment of plaintiff's property. Plaintiff fears that defendant(s) will carry out the above-described threats unless restrained by this court. If defendant(s) continue/continues the encroachment, he/she/they will cause plaintiff irreparable injury in that _____ [specify, e.g., a continuation of such encroachment will ripen into a prescriptive easement], and defendant(s) will harass, vex, and annoyplaintiff, requiring plaintiff to bring a multiplicity of actions to protect his/her rights.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment as follows:

On the FIRST CAUSE OF ACTION:

1. That defendant(s) be required to set forth each and every claim he/she/they may assert in and to plaintiff's lands and to the location of the boundary line set out above;

2. That this court adjudge the true and correct location of the boundary line;

3. That plaintiff's title in and to his/her lands be quieted and that it be adjudged that plaintiff is the owner in fee simple and entitled to the possession of the lands, that the true and correct location of the boundary line between plaintiff's land and defendant's/defendants' land is as described in this complaint, and that the defendant(s) has/have no right, title, estate, lien, or interest in or to the land of plaintiff, or any portion thereof;

4. That the defendant(s) (, and each of them,) be forever enjoined and restrained from claiming or asserting any claim or interest in or to plaintiff's land, or any portion thereof, and from questioning, distributing, or interfering with the boundary line hereinbefore set out in this complaint, or attempting so to do;

On the SECOND CAUSE OF ACTION:

5. For general damages in the sum of $_____;

On the THIRD CAUSE OF ACTION:

6. For judgment that defendant(s), his/her/their agents, attorneys, and all persons claiming by or under him/her/them, subsequent to the filing of this action, be perpetually enjoined and restrained from maintaining the fence on the land of plaintiff, and from allowing the fence to remain on the property of plaintiff, or in any manner interfering with the use or occupation thereof by plaintiff;

On all CAUSES OF ACTION:

7. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

8. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[Verification. See § 266.40[1].]

The form of complaint in [1], above, is for use to establish a boundary line and to quiet title to the properties involved when there is a dispute between adjoining landowners over the location of the boundary line (First Cause of Action) [see generally Ch. 482, Quieting Title]; to recover damages for a fence constructed by the adjoining owner on the plaintiff's property (Second Cause of Action); and to enjoin the adjoining owner from further maintenance of the fence (Third Cause of Action) [see discussion at § 266.16 and forms at §§ 266.51, 266.52].

In drafting the complaint for injunctive relief, it is assumed that counsel will be filing affidavits [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5 (declarations)] in support of the allegations in the complaint. If the complaint will not be so supported, counsel must plead evidentiary facts that would entitle plaintiff to the relief sought [see E. H. Renzel Co. v. Warehousemen's Union (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 369, 373, 106 P.2d 1 ; Finnie v. Town of Tiburon (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 1, 15, 244 Cal. Rptr. 581] . In addition, if no affidavits are prepared, the compliant will have to be verified [see Code Civ. Proc. § 527]. For discussion, forms, and a procedural checklist regarding the requirements for obtaining injunctions, see Ch. 303, Injunctions .

A plaintiff who intends to name unknown persons as defendants in the quiet title cause of action may wish to obtain a title report before commencing the action, because an examination of the record title and an inspection of the property will be necessary [see Code Civ. Proc. § 762.060(b)]. Also, the court may order plaintiff to obtain a title report and keep it available for inspection and copying by the parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 762.040(b)].

[3] Required Allegations

Plaintiff in quiet title action must prove title in himself or herself superior to that of defendant, rather than relying on any weakness in defendant's title [Gerhard v. Stephens (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 864, 918, 69 Cal. Rptr. 612, 442 P.2d 692] . By statute, a quiet title complaint must include the following allegations:

(1) A description of the property that is the subject of the action (Paragraphs 1-3). In the case of tangible personal property, the description must include its usual location. In the case of real property, the description must include both its legal description and its street address or common designation, if any [Code Civ. Proc. § 761.020(a)].

(2) The title of the plaintiff as to which a determination is sought and the basis of the title (Paragraphs 1, 3, 5-6). If the title is based on adverse possession, the complaint must allege the specific facts constituting the adverse possession [Code Civ. Proc. § 761.020(b);see also Ch. 13, Adverse Possession].

(3) The adverse claims to the title of the plaintiff against which a determination is sought (Paragraphs 6-9). If the plaintiff admits the validity of any adverse claim, the complaint must so state [Code Civ. Proc. § 762.060(c)]. If the claim or the share or quantity of the claim of a person required to be named as a defendant is unknown, uncertain, or contingent, theplaintiff must so state in the complaint. If the lack of knowledge, uncertainty, or contingency is caused by a transfer to an unborn or unascertained person or class member, or by a transfer in the form of a contingent remainder, vested remainder subject to defeasance, executory interest, or similar disposition, the plaintiff must also state in the complaint, so far as is known to the plaintiff, the name, age, and legal disability, if any, of the person in being who would be entitled to the claim had the contingency on which the claim depends occurred prior to the commencement of the action (Paragraph 9) [Code Civ. Proc. § 762.020(b)].

(4) The date as of which the determination is sought (Paragraph 10). If the determination is sought as of date other than the date the complaint is filed, the complaint must include a statement of the reasons why a determination as of that date is sought [Code Civ. Proc. § 761.020(d)].

(5) A prayer for the determination of the title of the plaintiff against the adverse claims [Code Civ. Proc. § 761.020(e)].

The allegations of the Second and Third Causes of Action, for removal of the fence and injunction, parallel those used in § 266.52[1] and discussed at § 266.52[3].

[4] Who Must Be Made Defendants

[a] Persons Claiming Interest in Property

The plaintiff must name as defendants the persons having adverse claims to the title of the plaintiff against which a determination is sought [Code Civ. Proc. § 762.010]. If the name of a person required to be named as a defendant is not known to plaintiff, the plaintiff must so state in the complaint and must name as parties all persons unknown in the manner described in [5], below [Code Civ. Proc. § 762.020(a)].

The court on its own motion may, and on motion of any party must, make such orders as appear appropriate for joinder of any additional parties who are necessary or proper [Code Civ. Proc. § 762.040(a)].

[b] Representatives and Heirs of Deceased Claimants

If a person required to be named as a defendant is dead and the plaintiff knows of a personal representative, the plaintiff must join the personal representative [Code Civ. Proc. § 762.030(a)]. If a person required to be named as a defendant is dead, or is believed by the plaintiff to be dead, and the plaintiff knows of no personal representative, the plaintiff must state these facts in an affidavit filed with the complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 762.030(b)(1);see generally Ch. 15, Affidavits, Certificates, and Declarations]. If it is stated in the affidavit that such person is dead, the plaintiff may join as defendants "the testate and intestate successors of _____ (name of deceased person), deceased, and all persons claiming by, through, or under such decedent," naming them in that manner [Code Civ. Proc. § 762.030(b)(2)].

If a person required to be named as a defendant is believed by plaintiff to be deceased, the person believed to be deceased may be named as a defendant as may that person's successors. The successors must be denominated as follows: "the testate and intestate successors of _____ (name of person believed to be deceased), believed to be deceased, and all persons claiming by, through, or under such person" [Code Civ. Proc. § 762.030(b)(3)].

The complaint at [1], above, does not contain any allegations regarding defendants who are personal representatives [Code Civ. Proc. § 762.030(a)] or heirs and intestate or testate successors [Code Civ. Proc. § 762.030(b)] of persons known or believed by the plaintiff to be deceased. If those defendants are necessary in your particular situation, use the appropriate allegations from Ch. 482, Quieting Title.

[5] Unknown Defendants

In addition to the persons required to be named as defendants in the action, the plaintiff may name as defendants "all persons unknown, claiming any legal or equitable right, title, estate, lien, or interest in the property described in the complaint adverse to plaintiff's title, or any cloud upon plaintiff's title thereto," naming them in that manner (Paragraph 8) [Code Civ. Proc. § 762.060(a)]. If unknown defendants are named, the plaintiff must name as defendants the persons having adverse claims that are of record or known to the plaintiff or reasonably apparent from an inspection of the property [Code Civ. Proc. § 762.060(b)]. Naming unknown defendants and serving them by publication [see discussion at [8], below] will entitle the plaintiff to an in rem judgment against all persons known and unknown who were parties to the action, and all persons not parties to the action and unknown to plaintiff who had a claim that was not recorded when the lis pendens was filed [Code Civ. Proc. § 764.030; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 764.045 (further limitation on judgment)], except that a person who is in open and actual possession of the property cannot be named as an unknown defendant [Code Civ. Proc. § 763.010(c)].

Some practitioners also additionally designate testate and intestate successors and "all persons unknown" as DOES. That is not recommended because it differs from the statutory language of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 762.030(b)(2), (3) and 762.060, by which those defendants are to be designated, and because it may limit the in rem effect of the judgment by limiting the number of adverse claimants in those classes [see Code Civ. Proc. § 763.030(b)]. Fictitious defendants may be named as DOES pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 474 [see Code Civ. Proc. § 760.060 (rules governing civil actions generally as applicable in quiet title actions unless they are inconsistent with quiet title provisions)].

A quiet title complaint must be verified [Code Civ. Proc. § 761.020].

[7] Jurisdiction and Venue

Quiet title actions are in the jurisdiction of the superior court and are not limited civil cases [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86, 580(b)(3), 760.040(a)]. Subject to the power of the court to transfer actions, the proper county for the trial of an action to quiet title to real property is the county in which the real property, or some of it, is located [Code Civ. Proc. § 760.050(a)].

[8] Service of Summons

The form, content, and manner of the service of summons in quiet title actions is the same as in civil actions generally [Code Civ. Proc. § 763.010(a)]. If unknown defendants are named, there must also be service by publication and posting [Code Civ. Proc. § 763.010(b)]. The requirements for service by publication and posting are discussed in Ch. 482, Quieting Title . The procedure for service of summons is set forth in Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers .

[9] Lis Pendens

Immediately on the commencement of a quiet title action by filing the complaint, the plaintiff must file a lis pendens in the office of the county recorder of each county in which any real property described in the complaint is located [Code Civ. Proc. § 761.010(a)]. The lis pendens gives constructive notice of the pendency of the action to subsequent purchasers or encumbrancers [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.24]. For forms of lis pendens, see Ch. 348, Lis Pendens .

[10] Statutes of Limitations

No action for the recovery of real property, or for the recovery of the possession thereof, can be maintained, unless it appears that the plaintiff, or his or her ancestor, predecessor, or grantor, was seized or possessed of the property in question, within five years before the commencement of the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 318]. Additionally, no cause of action or defense arising out of the title to real property or to rents or profits out of real property is effectual unless it appears that the person prosecuting the action or making the defense, or under whose title the action is prosecuted or the defense is made, or the ancestor, predecessor, or grantor of such person was seized or possessed of the premises within five years before the commencement of the act in respect to which that action is prosecuted or defense made [Code Civ. Proc. § 319].

Actions for trespass on or injury to real property are to be brought within three years [Code Civ. Proc. § 338(b)].

8. On or about _____ [date], defendant first made use of plaintiff's previously constructed division fence as described above when defendant began to enclose his/her lands as follows: _____ [describe manner in which fence was constructed and material used, e.g., two neighbors and one hired worker enclosed defendant's land with brick fence in two days]. Plaintiff's division fence was made a part of the enclosure as follows: _____ [describe, e.g., defendant constructed brick fences on three sides of his/her property and joined the fences at either end of plaintiff's previously constructed cinder block division fence, in order to form a complete enclosure].

9. At the time when defendant made use of plaintiff's division fence to complete the enclosure of defendant's land, the fence which forms the boundary between the properties of plaintiff and defendant was valued at $_____, a sum which represents the _____ [specify, e.g., cost of repair or cost of replacement]. Defendant's just proportion of that value is the sum of $_____. _____ [Allege facts to establish just proportion].

10. On or about _____ [date], after defendant used the division fence constructed by plaintiff to complete the enclosure of defendant's land, plaintiff made _____ [specify manner of demand, e.g., a written] demand of defendant that defendant pay plaintiff a just proportion of the value of the division fence at the time defendant made use of it. Defendant refused then, and refuses now, to pay plaintiff the defendant's just proportionate share of the value of the fence, or any part thereof. A true and correct copy of the demand is attached hereto as Exhibit A and made a part hereof.

1. For recovery of defendant's just proportion of the value of the above-described fence, a sum of $_____;

2. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

3. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

This form of complaint is for use by a landowner against an adjoining landowner to recover a proportionate part of the construction cost of a division fence constructed by the landowner when the adjoining landowner later made use of the division fence to enclose his or her land [see § 266.17; Meade v. Watson (1885) 67 Cal. 591, 592, 594, 8 P. 311 ; Gonzales v. Wasson (1876) 51 Cal. 295, 298 (payment for partition fence is recoverable even though defendant's land is not completely enclosed)].

[3] Allegations

The complaint alleges: (1) ownership by plaintiff and defendant of adjoining property sharing a coterminous boundary (Paragraphs 1-3); (2) plaintiff's construction of a division fence (Paragraph 6) [see Meade v. Watson (1885) 67 Cal. 591, 595, 8 P. 311 (plaintiff is required to prove construction, establish value, and demand value from defendant to recover contribution for division fence)]; (3) defendant's later use of division fence to enclose defendant's land (Paragraph 8) [see Civ. Code § 841(2)]; (4) value of division fence at time of use by defendant (Paragraph 9) [Meade v. Watson (1885) 67 Cal. 591, 595, 8 P. 311] ; and (5) plaintiff's demand of defendant for a just proportion of fence's value (Paragraph 10) [Meade v. Watson (1885) 67 Cal. 591, 595, 8 P. 311] .

[4] Jurisdiction

The superior court has jurisdiction of the action, which will be classified as an unlimited civil case unless the amount in controversy, exclusive of interest, is $25,000 or less, in which case it will be classified as a limited civil case [Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(8)]. When title or right to possession is to be tried, or permanent injunctive relief is sought, the case will be classified as an unlimited civil case [see Code Civ. Proc. § 88].

In limited civil cases, the first page of the first paper must state that it is a limited civil case and whether the amount demanded exceeds or does not exceed $10,000 [Code Civ. Proc. § 422.30(b); Gov. Code § 70613(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(9), (10)].

[5] Statute of Limitations

An action on a liability created by statute, other than a penalty or forfeiture, must be brought within three years[Code Civ. Proc. § 338(a)].

PART I. SCOPE

22-267 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 267.03

§ 267.03 Governing Law

Liability for negligence is governed generally by Civ. Code §§ 1708 (duty to abstain from injuring person or property of another), 1714(a) (liability for negligent acts or omissions), and Civ. Code § 3333 (measure of damages for proximately caused detriment).

Misdemeanor penalties for acts relating to or concerning fires are provided for in Health & Safety Code §§ 13000-13006.5. The liability to the owner of property for damages due to fires is governed by Health & Safety Code § 13007 (negligently set or attended fires), Health & Safety Code § 13008 (negligently permitting fire to escape to the lands of another), and Health & Safety Code §§ 13009 and 13009.1 (costs incurred by public or private entity to fight fire on any public or private property).

Although liability for many negligent acts resulting in fire damage to property of another may be predicated specifically on Health & Safety Code §§ 13007 and 13008, many cases proceed upon general negligence principles [see, e.g., Eberhard v. Bruhn (1970) 13 Cal. App. 3d 836, 838, 91 Cal. Rptr. 915] , particularly because Health & Safety Code §§ 13007 and 13008 relate only to property damage and do not cover injuries to persons [see Health & Safety Code §§ 13007, 13008; Eberhard v. Bruhn (1970) 13 Cal. App. 3d 836, 838, 91 Cal. Rptr. 915 (recovery for property damage and personal injuries sought on general negligence principles)].

Activities relating to forests and forestry that are specifically prohibited are covered in Pub. Res. Code § 4411 et seq.

Chapter 267 FIRES
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

22-267 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 267.10

§ 267.10 Duty to Prevent Fire Damage Generally

Any person who personally or through another willfully, negligently, or in violation of law, allows fire to be set to, or allows a fire kindled or attended by him or her to escape to, the property of another, whether privately or publicly owned, is liable to the owner of the property for any damages to the property caused by the fire [Health & Safety Code § 13007].

Liability under Health & Safety Code § 13007 may result from either of the following [County of Ventura v. Southern Cal. Edison Co. (1948) 85 Cal. App. 2d 529, 532, 193 P.2d 512] :

- A finding that a fire was caused by defendant's direct and affirmative act of setting it, which either was negligence in itself or was done in a negligent manner; or

- Defendant's knowledge of the operative facts accompanied by acquiescence in, or abstinence from preventing, the occurrence of the particular act or event, if defendant had a duty and power to prevent that occurrence.

The second situation is illustrated by County of Ventura v. Southern Cal. Edison Co. (1948) 85 Cal. App. 2d 529, 532-533, 193 P.2d 512 . In that case, the defendant power company was found liable for damages resulting from a fire caused by the negligent construction and maintenance of transmission and telephone lines because the company, charged with knowledge of the condition of its equipment, took no steps to prevent the occurrence of fire that was a reasonably foreseeable consequence of the condition of those lines.

Health and Safety Code § 13007 permits recovery for "any damages to the property." It is generally accepted that a person may recover lost profits for property damage caused by negligence [see J'Aire Corp. v. Gregory (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 799, 803-804, 157 Cal. Rptr. 407, 598 P.2d 60] . The statute has been liberally construed to place no restrictions on the type of property damage that is compensable. Thus, loss of profits from a business connected to property that is negligently damaged by a set fire is a form of property damage, and is compensable under the general rule [McKay v. State of California (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 937, 939-940, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 771 (Department of Forestry and Fire Prevention liable for loss of profits resulting from fire damage to plaintiff's fruit trees and retail produce facility from controlled-burn fire on adjacent property)].

For a general form of complaint for use when a fire is negligently started or permitted to occur, see § 267.50[1]. For forms of allegations for use when a fire was started as a result of negligence cigarette smoking, or as a result of use of certain appliances near accumulated combustible materials, see §§ 267.59 and 267.60, respectively.

Volume 22: Explosives thru Food-Chs. 256-268
Chapter 267 FIRES
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

22-267 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 267.11

§ 267.11 Duty of Landowner

[1] Reasonable Use of Property

The possessor of land is required to make reasonable use of his or her premises that causes no unreasonable harm to those in the vicinity, either by reason of the character of the use itself or because of the manner in which it is conducted [Reid & Sibell v. Gilmore & Edwards Co. (1955) 134 Cal. App. 2d 60, 65-66, 285 P.2d 364] .

The test of permissible use of one's land is whether the act or use was a reasonable exercise of the dominion that the owner of the property has by virtue of his or her ownership, having regard to all affected interests and public policy [Reid & Sibell v. Gilmore & Edwards Co. (1955) 134 Cal. App. 2d 60, 66, 285 P.2d 364] . Thus, the rule that the reasonableness of the use of land by an adjoining landowner must be determined according to the circumstances of each case is applicable to creation of unreasonable fire risks; if the owner of premises allows them to remain in such a condition as to constitute a danger to other property in case of fire, this negligence will make him or her liable for damages to that other property by an accidental fire starting on his or her premises, even if he or she has no connection with the fire's origin [Reid & Sibell v. Gilmore & Edwards Co. (1955) 134 Cal. App. 2d 60, 66-67, 285 P.2d 364 ; see Scally v. Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 806, 817, 100 Cal. Rptr. 501 (citing Reid for the proposition that property owners are under an independent duty to prevent the accumulation of inflammable material on their premises)].

Even the presence of a forest ranger who directs and supervises the setting and control of fires does not necessarily relieve defendants of the duty imposed by law of exercising due diligence to avoid damage to the property of others [Leuteneker v. Fisher (1957) 155 Cal. App. 2d 33, 35, 317 P.2d 143] .

For a form of complaint for damages for personal injuries based on negligence against a landowner for negligent burning, see § 267.56[1]. For a form of complaint by a tenant against a landlord for permitting a defective boiler to remain on the premises, see § 267.58[1] For a complaint by an independent contractor against a building owner for representing that it was safe to discharge rubbish into an incinerator, see § 267.57[1].

[2] For Escaping Fire

Any person who allows any fire burning on his or her property to escape to the property of another, whether privately or publicly owned, without exercising due diligence to control that fire, is liable to the owner of the other property for the damages to the property caused by the fire [Health & Safety Code § 13008; see City of Los Angeles v. Shpegel-Dimsey, Inc. (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 1009, 1019, 244 Cal. Rptr. 507] . If the plaintiff has been damaged by a fire spreading to his or her land from the land of another, he or she may recover if he or she can show negligence on the part of the defendant either in starting or in controlling the fire. That is, if the plaintiff can prove that the defendant either initially set the fire in a negligent manner, or that the defendant negligently allowed a properly set fire to spread beyond his or her own lands, and that the plaintiff has thereby suffered damages, then the defendant will be liable for those damages [Sampson v. Hughes (1905) 147 Cal. 62, 64, 81 P. 292 ; see also City of Los Angeles v. Shpegel-Dimsey, Inc. (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 1009, 1019, 244 Cal. Rptr. 507 (Health & Safety Code § 13008 provides a basis for the recovery of damages for injury caused to the property, but nothing more); but see Robinson v. United States (E.D. Cal 2001) 175 F. Supp. 2d 1215 (homeowners, whose property was destroyed by a fire that started as a prescribed fire on federal property but that spread, were not limited to recovery for property damages under Health & Safety Code §§ 13007 and 13008, and where plaintiffs assert rights under common law, the statutory remedies provided by sections 13007 and 13008 will be read as supplementing rather than supplanting plaintiffs' recovery under the common law)].

In addition, a negligent invasion by fire that damages real property constitutes a trespass [Elton v. Anheuser-Busch Beverage Group, Inc. (1996) 50 Cal. App. 4th 1301, 1307, 58 Cal. Rptr. 2d 303 ; for discussion of trespass, see Ch. 550, Trespass]. If the land trespassed on is under cultivation or intended or used for raising livestock, attorney's fees would be available under Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.9 [see Elton v. Anheuser-Busch Beverage Group, Inc. (1996) 50 Cal. App. 4th 1301, 1307-1308, 58 Cal. Rptr. 2d 303] .

A defendant is not liable if the fire was started lawfully and with due care and subsequently spread to the lands of another despite the defendant's due diligence in attempting to confine it [Garnier v. Porter (1891) 90 Cal. 105, 108-109, 27 P. 55] .

For a form of complaint by a property owner against the federal government in United States District Court under the Federal Tort Claims Act for damages caused by a forest fire that was negligently set and permitted to escape, see § 267.61[1].

[3] Power Company

An electric company has the duty to make its electrical wires safe under all the exigencies created by the surrounding circumstances [Scally v. Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 806, 815, 100 Cal. Rptr. 501 ; Lozano v. Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. (1945) 70 Cal. App. 2d 415, 422, 161 P.2d 74] . The duty is an alternative one, either to insulate the wires or to locate them where they will be comparatively harmless [Scally v. Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 806, 815-816, 100 Cal. Rptr. 501 ; Polk v. City of Los Angeles (1945) 26 Cal. 2d 519, 527, 159 P.2d 931] .

Conformity to general custom of power companies in maintaining power lines does not excuse a defendant from liability unless that practice is consistent with due care under the circumstances [Scally v. Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 806, 816, 100 Cal. Rptr. 501 ; Polk v. City of Los Angeles (1945) 26 Cal. 2d 519, 529, 159 P.2d 931] . Similarly, if a duty to insulate exists, the factor of expense or inconvenience will not excuse compliance with the duty [Scally v. Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 806, 816, 100 Cal. Rptr. 501] .

The duty of safe design, construction, operation, and maintenance of electrical facilities and rights-of-way also includes preventing trees and other vegetation from growing close enough to electrical transmission lines to create a danger of their coming in contact with the line and causing a fire [Scally v. Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 806, 818, 100 Cal. Rptr. 501] .

[4] Railroad

A railroad has no independent duty to keep the right-of-way free from combustible material. A railroad company is liable for failing to use due care to keep the right-of-way clear of flammable material only if the cause of the fire was due to some act or omission of the railroad company itself, such as sparks from a locomotive [Scally v. Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 806, 817, 100 Cal. Rptr. 501 (dictum)].

§ 267.12 Liability of Lessee to Lessor for Fire

A lessee may be liable to his or her lessor for the destruction of the leased premises by fire, if the lessee's storage of articles on the premises is the proximate cause of that destruction. The lessee is liable if the storage violated the restrictions of the lease or if the premises were leased for the storage of specified articles but the lessee, without the lessor's authorization, stored other items that were more dangerous and combustible [*Gentleman v. 22-267 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 267.13

§ 267.13 Causation

The plaintiff must show by a preponderance of the evidence that the negligence of the defendant was the proximate cause of the fire. That the defendant's negligence could possibly have been the cause is not sufficient. The proof must raise a reasonable inference that the negligence complained of was the proximate cause of the injury [Hill v. Matthews Paint Co. (1957) 149 Cal. App. 2d 714, 724, 308 P.2d 865] . Such proof may be wholly circumstantial; direct evidence is not required to establish the cause of the fire [New Zealand Ins. Co. v. Brown (1952) 110 Cal. App. 2d 411, 413, 242 P.2d 674] . Alleging that the cause of the fire is a violation of a statute or ordinance presents a question of fact for the finder of fact [Reid & Sibell v. Gilmore & Edwards Co. (1955) 134 Cal. App. 2d 60, 72, 285 P.2d 364] .

Recovery for damages caused by a fire does not require a showing that the fire was directly communicated to the property destroyed. Recovery is allowed for a fire that burns across intervening lands before reaching the property involved if there was no superseding cause between the origin of the fire and the loss complained of. Time and distance do not affect the issue of a defendant's liability except as to the question of proximate cause. Generally a fire, however far it may go, is one continuous fire and is the proximate cause of all the injuries and damage it may produce in its destructive march, whether it goes to abutting property or several miles [Osborn v. City of Whittier (1951) 103 Cal. App. 2d 609, 617-618, 230 P.2d 132] .

Also, the defendant's negligence need not be the sole proximate cause of the plaintiff's injuries; it is sufficient that it be one of the contributing causes thereof [Reid & Sibell v. Gilmore & Edwards Co. (1955) 134 Cal. App. 2d 60, 65, 285 P.2d 364] . If an injury is produced by the concurrent effect of two separate wrongful acts, each is the proximate cause of the injury [Vedder v. County of Imperial (1974) 36 Cal. App. 3d 654, 660, 111 Cal. Rptr. 728] . Thus, one who negligently stores gasoline and other highly combustible chemicals on his or her property or knowingly permits such negligent storage may be liable to others for a fire-incurred loss even though the fire was actually started by the negligent conduct of others [Vedder v. County of Imperial (1974) 36 Cal. App. 3d 654, 660, 111 Cal. Rptr. 728] . Obviously, the storage of materials that are highly flammable but not self-igniting will cause harm only if a fire occurs. However, the happening of the very event the likelihood of which made the actor's conduct negligent and subjects the actor to liability, cannot relieve the actor from liability. If the spreading of a fire by a chemical was foreseeable, the negligent storage of that chemical will give rise to liability despite the defendant's lack of responsibility for the original fire [see Reid & Sibell v. Gilmore & Edwards Co. (1955) 134 Cal. App. 2d 60, 65, 285 P.2d 364] .

§ 267.14 Res Ipsa Loquitur

Res ipsa loquitur applies if an accident is of such a nature that it can be said, in the light of past experience, that it probably was the result of negligence by someone and that the defendant is probably the person who is responsible. Fire damage cases have no peculiar characteristics isolating them from res ipsa loquitur [Greening v. General Air-Conditioning Corp. (1965) 233 Cal. App. 2d 545, 552, 43 Cal. Rptr. 662 ; see Seeley v. Combs (1966) 65 Cal. 2d 127, 133, 52 Cal. Rptr. 578, 416 P.2d 810 (citing Greening favorably)].

The doctrine of res ipsa loquitur has been applied to forest fire damage that occurred while defendant's tractor was being operated without a spark arrester [see Roddiscraft, Inc. v. Skelton Logging Co. (1963) 212 Cal. App. 2d 784, 803-804, 28 Cal. Rptr. 277] and to fire damage suits involving combustible liquid fuels [see Ward v. Silveria (1951) 102 Cal. App. 2d 114, 118, 226 P.2d 732 ; Roselip v. Raisch (1946) 73 Cal. App. 2d 125, 134-136, 166 P.2d 340] . It has been approved in support of a plaintiff whose property was burned when a sagging electric power cable came within arcing distance of vegetation [see Phillips v. Southern Cal. Edison Co., Ltd. (1937) 23 Cal. App. 2d 222, 225, 72 P.2d 769] . Similarly, a court has sustained an inference of negligence when defendant's electrician worked on the wiring of a sign that started to smoke and burn shortly thereafter; the court observed that fires do not normally occur from electric wiring that is properly installed and maintained [see Alhambra Bowl, Inc. v. Ledbetter Sign Co. (1963) 211 Cal. App. 2d 777, 781, 27 Cal. Rptr. 680] .

§ 267.15 "Fireman's" Rule

[1] Bar to Recovery for Injuries

Under the common law "fireman's" rule, a publicly employed firefighter has no cause of action against a person whose negligence causes a fire in which the firefighter is injured. This rule applies whether or not the injury occurred on the negligent person's premises. Furthermore, it applies whether or not the injured person was a paid firefighter, if the duties for which that person was trained specifically included fighting fires [Baker v. Superior Court (1982) 129 Cal. App. 3d 710, 716-717, 181 Cal. Rptr. 311 (rule applicable to "volunteer" firefighters paid $5 per call); Giorgi v. Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 355, 358, 360, 72 Cal. Rptr. 119 ; see Neighbarger v. Irwin Indus., Inc. (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 532, 544, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 630, 882 P.2d 347 (rule based on employment by public, not amount or fact of compensation); Hubbard v. Boelt (1980) 28 Cal. 3d 480, 484-485, 169 Cal. Rptr. 706, 620 P.2d 156 (rule extends to both negligent and reckless conduct); Scott v. E. L. Yeager Constr. Co. (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 1190, 1196, 91 Cal. Rptr. 232 (declining to distinguish between active and passive negligence in applying rule); see also Bay Area Rapid Transit v. Superior Court (1980) 113 Cal. App. 3d 1018, 1022, 170 Cal. Rptr. 390 (rule applicable despite allegations that injuries would have been avoidable had rescue apparatus functioned properly)].

In California, the "fireman's" rule applies not only to firefighters but also to police officers and other public safety personnel [Hubbard v. Boelt (1980) 28 Cal. 3d 480, 483-484, 169 Cal. Rptr. 706, 620 P.2d 156 ; Walters v. Sloan (1977) 20 Cal. 3d 199, 202, 142 Cal. Rptr. 152, 571 P.2d 609 ; Seibert Sec. Servs., Inc. v. Superior Court (1993) 18 Cal. App. 4th 394, 405, 22 Cal. Rptr. 2d 514 ; see also City of Oceanside v. Superior Court (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 269, 279-280, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 621 (publicly employed lifeguard); Kelhi v. Fitzpatrick (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 1149, 1157, 31 Cal. Rptr. 2d 182 (highway patrol officer)].

For further discussion of the "fireman's" rule, see Ch. 380, Negligence , and Ch. 421, Premises Liability .

[2] Rule Not Applicable to Private Safety Employees

The California Supreme Court has distinguished between publicly employed firefighters and private safety employees, holding that the "fireman's" rule does not preclude a private safety employee from stating a cause of action against a third party, who is not his or her employer, for injuries caused by that third party's negligence in starting a fire [

Neighbarger v. Irwin Indus., Inc. (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 532, 534-535, 547, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 630, 882 P.2d 347] .

The Court reasoned that by establishing public fire departments and taxing themselves to pay for their services, the public in effect has purchased exoneration from their duty of care towards the firefighters employed by those departments and does not have to pay twice, through both taxation and individual liability, for those services [Neighbarger v. Irwin Indus., Inc. (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 532, 543, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 630, 882 P.2d 347] .

In contrast, a defendant whose negligence injures private safety employees employed by another does not have the same relationship with those private safety employees as a member of the public has with publicly employed firefighters, because the defendant has not paid in any way to be relieved of the duty of care owed toward the private employees. Another consideration supporting the distinction between publicly employed firefighters and private safety employees is that actions by publicly employed firefighters would involve costly litigation over subrogation that would ultimately be financed by the public and that would not benefit the firefighter, who receives retirement or workers' compensation benefits, whereas actions by private safety employees shift the loss from the innocent employees and their employer to the third party whose negligence caused the injuries [Neighbarger v. Irwin Indus., Inc. (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 532, 543, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 630, 882 P.2d 347] .

A third distinction is that the public good is best served by a quick response to fires without questions about the fire's cause, which warrants eliminating the public's duty of care to publicly employed firefighters, but no similar concern justifies eliminating the duty of care owed by third parties to private safety employees [Neighbarger v. Irwin Indus., Inc. (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 532, 544, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 630, 882 P.2d 347] .

[3] Exception to Rule for Independent Act of Misconduct

The "fireman's" rule does not bar recovery, however, for injuries sustained as a result of conduct that is independent of the act that created the need for the presence of the firefighter or police officer. A possessor of premises is therefore liable for failing to warn of a known, hidden danger on the premises or for misrepresenting the nature of the risk [Lipson v. Superior Court (1982) 31 Cal. 3d 362, 378, 182 Cal. Rptr. 629, 644 P.2d 822 (misrepresenting nature of toxic chemicals); Donohue v. San Francisco Hous. Auth. (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 658, 663, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 148 (firefighter slipping and falling on wet steps while inspecting building for fire code violations); Bartholomew v. Klingler Co. (1975) 53 Cal. App. 3d 975, 978, 126 Cal. Rptr. 191 (firefighter falling through defectively maintained roof while fighting fire)]. The rationale for this exception is that firefighters or police officers who suffer injury in this situation are in the same position as anyone venturing onto the premises. Their occupations compel them to face felons or fires, not faulty fences, and they have had no special training to deal with the cause of their injury [Seibert Sec. Servs., Inc. v. Superior Court (1993) 18 Cal. App. 4th 394, 407, 22 Cal. Rptr. 2d 514 ; Malo v. Willis (1981) 126 Cal. App. 3d 543, 548-549, 178 Cal. Rptr. 774 ; see City of Sacramento v. Superior Court (1982) 131 Cal. App. 3d 395, 401, 182 Cal. Rptr. 443] .

For further discussion of exceptions to the "fireman's" rule, see Ch. 380, Negligence .

[4] Exceptions to Rule Under Civ. Code § 1714.9

Civ. Code § 1714.9 provides that notwithstanding statutory or decisional law to the contrary, any person is responsible not only for the results of that person's willful acts causing injury to a peace officer, firefighter, or any emergency medical personnel employed by a public entity, but is also responsible for any injury occasioned to that person by the want of ordinary care or skill in the management of the person's property or person, in any of the following situations [Civ. Code § 1714.9(a)]:

- The conduct causing injury occurs after the person knows or should have known of the presence of the peace officer, firefighter, or emergency medical personnel.

- The conduct causing injury violates a statute, ordinance, or regulation, and the conduct causing injury was itself not the event that precipitated either the response or presence of the peace officer, firefighter, or emergency medical personnel.

- The conduct causing injury was intended to injure the peace officer, firefighter, or emergency medical personnel.

- The conduct causing the injury is arson as defined by Penal Code § 451.

Although Civ. Code § 1714.9 uses the phrase "that person" to refer both to the person willfully injuring a peace officer, a firefighter, or emergency medical personnel, as well as to the person injured by negligence, it was intended to create, and has been applied as creating, an exception to the "fireman's" rule for both willful and negligent acts that fall into any of its four categories [see, e.g., Seibert Sec. Servs., Inc. v. Superior Court (1993) 18 Cal. App. 4th 394, 408-410, 22 Cal. Rptr. 2d 514 (stating rule but concluding that rule was inapplicable under facts of case); Gibb v. Stetson (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 1008, 1014-1016, 245 Cal. Rptr. 283 ; City of Redlands v. Sorensen (1985) 176 Cal. App. 3d 202, 208-211, 221 Cal. Rptr. 728] .

Conduct occurring after a defendant knew or should have known of the presence of a peace officer, a firefighter, or emergency medical personnel does not include conduct that occurs before the peace officer, firefighter, or emergency medical personnel have undertaken their duties [Seibert Sec. Servs., Inc. v. Superior Court (1993) 18 Cal. App. 4th 394, 408-409, 22 Cal. Rptr. 2d 514 ; see also Kelhi v. Fitzpatrick (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 1149, 1158, 1160, 31 Cal. Rptr. 2d 182 (highway patrolman fortuitously present at scene of accident cannot invoke Civ. Code § 1714.9 exception because negligent conduct occurred before officer responded to the risk created by accident)].

Civ. Code § 1714.9(a)(1) does not apply to create liability when a peace officer, firefighter, or emergency medical personnel has been negligently injured by a fellow public safety member employed by a different public safety agency, when both were jointly engaged in the discharge of their responsibilities [Calatayud v. State of California (1998) 18 Cal. 4th 1057, 1072, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 202 . 959 P.2d 360] . For these purposes, joint engagement between public service agencies does not require formal coordination between the agencies. It is sufficient that the officers from one agency were trying to assist officers from the other in their official duties [McElroy v. State of California (2002) 100 Cal. App. 4th 546, 548-549, 122 Cal. Rptr. 2d 612] .

The additional liability created by Civ. Code § 1714.9 does not preclude reduction of an award of damages because of the comparative fault of the peace officer or firefighter causing the injury [Civ. Code § 1714.9(b)]. In addition, the liability imposed by Civ. Code § 1714.9 does not apply to an employer of a peace officer, a firefighter, or emergency service personnel [Civ. Code § 1714.9(d)]. The employer of a firefighter, a peace officer, or emergency medical personnel may, however, be subrogated to the rights granted by Civ. Code § 1714.9 to the extent of the workers' compensation benefits and other liabilities of the employer, including all salary, wage, pension, or other emolument paid to the employee or the employee's dependents [Civ. Code § 1714.9(c)].

The liability provided by Civ. Code § 1714.9(a)(1) for injury-causing conduct occurring after the person knows or should have known of the presence of the peace officer, firefighter, or emergency medical personnel, does not apply if the injury is caused by the negligence of another public safety member employed by a different public safety agency while the public safety personnel were jointly engaged in the discharge of their responsibilities [Calatayud v. State of California (1998) 18 Cal. 4th 1057, 1064, 1072, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 202, 959 P.2d 360] . The court of appeal has extended this rationale to preclude application under these circumstances of the common law independent acts exception as well [City of Oceanside v. Superior Court (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 269, 280-283, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 621 ; see also § 267.15[3]].

Civ. Code § 1714.9(a)(1) does not apply when a public safety officer attends an employer-required, job-related training course and is injured during the course of that training, and section 1714.9(a)(3) does not apply where there is no evidence that defendants intended to injure plaintiff [Hamilton v. Martinelli & Associates (2003) 110 Cal. App. 4th 1012, 1029, 2 Cal. Rptr. 3d 168].

22-267 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 267.16

§ 267.16 Immunity of Public Entities

[1] General Rule of Nonliability

The general rule in California is that a public entity is not liable for an injury arising out of an act or omission of the public entity or a public employee or any other person except as otherwise provided by statute [Gov. Code § 815(a)]. Moreover, the liability of a public entity established by Gov. Code § 814 et seq. is subject to any immunity of the public entity provided by statute, including Gov. Code § 814 et seq., and is subject to any defense that would be available to the public entity if it were a private person [Gov. Code § 815(b)]. Statutes conferring governmental immunity must be strictly construed and such immunity should not be decreed unless the Legislature has clearly provided for it [Baldwin v. State of California (1972) 6 Cal. 3d 424, 435-436, 99 Cal. Rptr. 145, 491 P.2d 1121] .

[2] Immunity for Providing Emergency Services

Neither a public enitity nor emergency rescue personnel shall be liable for any injury caused by an action taken by emergency rescue personnel acting withing the scope of their employment to provide emergency services, unless the action taken was performed in bad faith or in a grossly negligent manner. However, there can be liability under Veh. Code § 17001 et seq. (operation of motor vehicles) [Health & Safety Code § 1799.107(b)]. For this purpose, it is presumed that the action taken when providing emergency services was performed in good faith and without gross negligence. This presumption affects the burden of proof [Health & Safety Code § 1799.107(c)].

"Emergency rescue personnel" means any person who is an officer, employee, or member of a fire department or fire protection or firefighting agency of the federal government, the State of California, a city, county, city and county, district, or other public or municipal corporation or political subdivision of California, or of a private fire department, whether the person is a volunteer or partly paid or fully paid, while he or she is actually engaged in providing emergency services [Health & Safety Code § 1799.107(d)]. "Emergency services" include, but are not limited to, first aid and medical services, rescue procedures and transportation, or other related activities necessary to insure the health or safety of a person in imminent peril [Health & Safety Code § 1799.107(e)].

[3] Exception for Fire Damage Caused by Dangerous Condition on Property

Except as provided by statute, a public entity is liable for injury caused by a dangerous condition of its property if the plaintiff establishes that certain conditions existed at the time of the injury [see Gov. Code § 835]. To state a cause of action against a public entity under Gov. Code § 835, a plaintiff must plead that [Vedder v. County of Imperial (1974) 36 Cal. App. 3d 654, 659, 111 Cal. Rptr. 728] :

- A dangerous condition existed on the public property at the time of the injury;
- The dangerous condition proximately caused the injury;
- The dangerous condition created a reasonably foreseeable risk of the kind of injury sustained; and
- The public entity had actual or constructive notice of the dangerous condition of the property in sufficient time to have taken measures to protect against the dangerous condition.

For a general discussion and form for such a cause of action, see Ch. 464, Public Entities and Officers: California Tort Claims Act .

A public entity may be liable under Gov. Code § 835 for damages resulting from fire when the dangerous condition consisted of the county's knowingly permitting a tenant to negligently store gasoline or other highly combustible materials on its property. Such liability is possible regardless of the fact that the fire itself was initially started through the negligence of a third person [see Vedder v. County of Imperial (1974) 36 Cal. App. 3d 654, 659-660, 111 Cal. Rptr. 728] .

In the Vedder decision, the defendant county was alleged to have knowingly acquiesced in the storage of combustible chemicals by the tenant, thus creating a severe fire risk. It was further alleged that the county had knowledge that there was insufficient fire fighting equipment to prevent or control chemical fires, and that as a result of the defendant's permitting this dangerous condition to exist on its property, and the negligence of the nonpublic defendants in starting the fire, the plaintiff was damaged by the ensuing fire. The court held that the plaintiff had alleged the elements necessary to state a cause of action against the county under Gov. Code § 835 with sufficient particularity to withstand the test of a general demurrer [see Vedder v. County of Imperial (1974) 36 Cal. App. 3d 654, 660, 111 Cal. Rptr. 728] .

[4] For Fire Protection Services or Equipment

Neither a public entity nor a public employee is liable for failure to establish a fire department or otherwise to provide fire protection service [Gov. Code § 850]. Neither a public entity that has undertaken to provide fire protection service, nor an employee of such public entity, is liable for any injury resulting from the failure to provide or maintain sufficient personnel, equipment, or other fire protection facilities [Gov. Code § 850.2]. Gov. Code §§ 850 and 850.2 are designed to provide immunity to a public entity from the consequences which might otherwise result from its political decision to provide, or not to provide, fire protection to the public generally, and the extent to which such fire protection is in fact provided.

Gov. Code §§ 850 and 850.2 should not be applied to allow a public entity to escape responsibility for damages resulting from its failure to provide fire protection on property which it owns and manages itself, particularly where it has permitted a dangerous fire condition to exist on the property. In that situation, lack of fire protection is a proper factor to be considered as contributing to the existence of a dangerous condition on the property [Vedder v. County of Imperial (1974) 36 Cal. App. 3d 654, 660-661, 111 Cal. Rptr. 728 (holding sections not applicable to case where tenant of county stored highly combustible chemicals on the property with the knowledge of the county)]. Nor is a public entity or its employee, acting within the scope of his employment, liable for any injury resulting from the condition of fire protection, fire fighting equipment, or facilities, or (except as provided in Veh. Code § 17000 et seq.) for any injury caused in fighting fires [Gov. Code § 850.4]. This immunity extends to injuries suffered by a firefighter who is not an employee of the governmental entity, but who is injured while engaging in firefighting activities [State of California v. Superior Court (2001) 87 Cal. App. 4th 1409, 1413, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 499 (privately-employed pilot engaged in firefighting activities)]. The immunity provided in Gov. Code § 850.4, however, does not extend to nonfirefighting situations [Lewis v. Mendocino Fire Prot. Dist. (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 345, 346-347, 190 Cal. Rptr. 883 (no immunity from liability for injuries caused in removing fallen tree from person)].

Any member of an organized fire department, fire protection district, or other fire fighting unit of either the state or any political subdivision, any employee of the Department of Forestry, or any other public employee when acting in the scope of his or her employment, may transport or arrange for the transportation of any person injured by a fire, or by a fire protection operation, to a physician and surgeon or hospital if the injured person does not object to such transportation. Neither a public entity nor a public employee is liable for any injury suffered by the injured person as a result of or in connection with such transportation for any medical, ambulance, or hospital bills incurred by or in behalf of the injured person or for any other damages, but a public employee is liable for injury proximately caused by his or her willful misconduct in transporting the injured person or arranging for such transportation [Gov. Code § 850.8].

In a case in which the Department of Forestry and Fire Protection sought to recover its costs in fighting a brush fire from real parties in interest, the affirmative defenses of comparative negligence or failure to mitigate damages were not available to real parties; real parties were not allowed to challenge the reasonableness of the methods the Department used (or did not use) to fight the fire [People ex rel. Grijalva v. Superior Court (2008) 159 Cal. App. 4th 1072, 1077, 72 Cal. Rptr. 3d 53].

§ 267.17 Water Companies

[1] General Immunity

No water corporation which has undertaken to provide fire protection service, nor any employee of such corporation acting in the course and scope of his or her employment, is liable for any death or injury to a person or damage to or loss of property resulting from failure to provide or maintain an adequate water supply or pressure, or any equipment or other fire protection facility or service; however, such immunity from liability must not exceed that of a public agency or any of its employees, as the case may be, under similar circumstances [Pub. Util. Code § 774; see Stuart v. Crestview Mut. Water Co. (1973) 34 Cal. App. 3d 802, 808 n. 5, 110 Cal. Rptr. 543 (indicating in dictum that it is arguable that mutual water companies, as defined in Pub. Util. Code §§ 2705, 2725, do not fall within this immunity grant)]. Moreover, although there are several rational attacks on water company immunity that can be made, California case law immunized water companies from civil liability for loss by fire due to failure to maintain their systems properly [Stuart v. Crestview Mut. Water Co. (1973) 34 Cal. App. 3d 802, 806-807, 110 Cal. Rptr. 543 (indicating that the record of the case adequately presents the issue for Supreme Court consideration); see Heieck & Moran v. City of Modesto (1966) 64 Cal. 2d 229, 233, 49 Cal. Rptr. 377, 411 P.2d 105 (discussing public entity immunity under Gov. Code §§ 850.2, 850.4)].

[2] Liability Through Contract

A water company will not be liable under contract for failure to provide the required water for fire fighting purposes unless the contract specifically undertakes to supply water for that purpose [Niehaus Bros. Co. v. Contra Costa Water Co. (1911) 159 Cal. 305, 322-323, 113 P. 375 ; Lainer Invs. v. Department of Water & Power (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 1, 9-10, 215 Cal. Rptr. 812] . A water company is not liable for damages resulting from failure to supply water for a particular use in the absence of a specific undertaking to supply water for that use [Stuart v. Crestview Mut. Water Co. (1973) 34 Cal. App. 3d 802, 808-809, 110 Cal. Rptr. 543 ; see Gelhaus v. Nevada Irrigation Dist. (1955) 43 Cal. 2d 779, 782, 278 P.2d 689] .

A water company's liability for a consumer's loss resulting from fire can only be created by an express private contract whereby the water company agrees to furnish water as a protection against fire. It is only where the contract calls for water service for the purposes of extinguishing fires that loss of the premises by fire may be compensated in damages as having been reasonably supposed to have been within the contemplation of the parties [Luis v. Orcutt Town Water Co. (1962) 204 Cal. App. 2d 433, 438-439, 22 Cal. Rptr. 389] .

[3] Designers and Engineers

The immunity conferred on water companies is strictly defined and does not extend to all water suppliers or persons who assume some role in establishing a water system [Stuart v. Crestview Mut. Water Co. (1973) 34 Cal. App. 3d 802, 810, 110 Cal. Rptr. 543] . Negligence in the design, engineering, construction, and maintenance of a water system can be the basis of an action against a developer and/or engineers. However, while a developer may be held strictly liable for a defective water system, even when the system was not on the plaintiffs' properties, engineers or others who render a professional service cannot be held liable on such a theory. This is an application of the general rule that when the primary objective of a transaction is to obtain services, the doctrines of implied warranty and strict liability do not apply [Stuart v. Crestview Mut. Water Co. (1973) 110 Cal. Rptr. 543] . When a plaintiff proves negligence on the part of a developer, engineer, etc., but a water company's acts or omission were a superseding cause, the plaintiff cannot recover [Stuart v. Crestview Mut. Water Co. (1973) 34 Cal. App. 3d 802, 810 n.8, 110 Cal. Rptr. 543 (dictum)].

22-267 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 267.18

§ 267.18 Fire Suppression Costs

[1] Recoverable as Damages

An action to recover fire suppression costs not incurred in protecting one's own property is a creature of statute. Hence, the right to recover all fire suppression costs resulting from negligence in allowing a fire to spread is strictly limited to that provided in Health & Safety Code § 13009 [City of Los Angeles v. Shpegel-Dimsey, Inc. (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 1009, 1020, 244 Cal. Rptr. 507 (rejecting city's contention that it had a right to recover fire suppression costs pursuant to common law)].

The following persons who are responsible for a fire are liable for the fire suppression costs incurred in fighting the fire and for the cost of providing rescue or emergency medical services; and those costs will be a charge against that person [Health & Safety Code § 13009(a)]:

- Any person who negligently, or in violation of the law, sets a fire, allows a fire to be set, or allows a fire kindled or attended by him or her to escape onto any public or private property;

- Any person other than a mortgagee, who, being in actual possession of a structure, fails or refuses to correct, within the time allotted for correction, despite having the right to do so, a fire hazard prohibited by law, for which a public agency properly has issued a notice of violation; or

- Any person, including a mortgagee, who, having an obligation under other provisions of law to correct a fire hazard prohibited by law, for which a public agency has properly issued a notice of violation, fails or refuses to correct the violation within the time allotted for correction, despite having the right to do so.

The charge constitutes a debt of such person, and is collectible by the person, or by the federal, state, county, public, or private agency incurring such expenses in the same manner as in the case of an obligation under a contract, expressed or implied [Health & Safety Code § 13009(a); City of Los Angeles v. Shpegel-Dimsey, Inc. (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 1009, 1019 & n.2, 244 Cal. Rptr. 507 (decided under pre-1988 wording of Health & Safety Code § 13009 and holding 1987 amendment of that statute is prospective only, as there is nothing in amendment indicating legislative intent that it apply retrospectively and in view of principle that retrospective imposition of increased liabilities is to be carefully avoided); see People v. Southern Cal. Edison Co. (1976) 56 Cal. App. 3d 593, 603, 128 Cal. Rptr. 697 (holding that an action to recover fire suppression costs is a creature of statute and that the amount when determined is collectible in the same manner as in the case of an obligation under contract)].

Health & Safety Code § 13009(a), however, merely provides a method whereby fire suppression costs might be recovered, which is governed by the procedure applicable to a suit on a contract, express or implied, and does not constitute a declaration that the recovery sounds in contract instead of tort [People v. Zegras (1946) 29 Cal. 2d 67, 68-69, 172 P.2d 883 ; Globe Indem. Co. v. State of California (1974) 43 Cal. App. 3d 745, 749, 118 Cal. Rptr. 75] . The state may recover for fire suppression costs [Giorgi v. Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 355, 360, 72 Cal. Rptr. 119] . Absent any statute, one protecting his or her own property has the right to recover fire suppression costs from the wrongdoer [Globe Indem. Co. v. State of California (1974) 43 Cal. App. 3d 745, 749, 118 Cal. Rptr. 75] .

Furthermore, any person liable under Health & Safety Code § 13009(a) is also liable for investigative, reporting, and accounting costs, and for the costs of collecting any funds pursuant to Health & Safety Code § 13009 [Health & Safety Code § 13009.1(a)]. In a proceeding to recover these costs, any testimony, admission, or other statement made by the defendant, or any evidence derived therefrom, cannot be admitted or otherwise used in any criminal proceeding arising out of the same conduct [Health & Safety Code § 13009.1(d)].

For forms of complaint for recovery of expenses incurred in fighting fire, see §§ 267.54, 267.55.

[2] Measure of Damages

Health & Safety Code § 13009(a) is a compensatory statute for expenses incurred in fighting fires and is not intended to exact pecuniary punishment or a penalty against a person or entity liable under the statute [People v. Southern Cal. Edison Co. (1976) 56 Cal. App. 3d 593, 604, 128 Cal. Rptr. 697] . However, the statute gives no direction as to whether contract or tort principles are applicable in fixing the amount of such expenses nor as to the manner in which expenses constituting the statutory debt are to be determined [Globe Indem. Co. v. State of California (1974) 43 Cal. App. 3d 745, 749, 118 Cal. Rptr. 75] . Consequently, the general statutory provisions and case law governing compensatory damages must be read in conjunction with Health & Safety Code § 13009(a) in measuring the expenses incurred in fighting fires [People v. Southern Cal. Edison Co. (1976) 56 Cal. App. 3d 593, 604, 128 Cal. Rptr. 697] .

The law of compensatory damages is based on the principle that a person who is injured must be justly compensated therefor to a degree commensurate with the injury sustained by him or her [Civ. Code §§ 3281, 3282; People v. Southern Cal. Edison Co. (1976) 56 Cal. App. 3d 593, 604, 128 Cal. Rptr. 697] . Civ. Code § 3359 provides that an award of compensatory damages must in every instance be reasonable and that, whenever an obligation of any kind apparently creates, contrary to substantial justice, a right to recover unconscionable and grossly oppressive damages, no more than reasonable damages can be recovered by virtue of that obligation [People v. Southern Cal. Edison Co. (1976) 56 Cal. App. 3d 593, 604, 128 Cal. Rptr. 697] .

In the light of these principles, the proper measure for determining expenses incurred for fighting fires pursuant to Health & Safety Code § 13009(a) requires that [People v. Southern Cal. Edison Co. (1976) 56 Cal. App. 3d 593, 605, 128 Cal. Rptr. 697] :

- The expenses claimed be incurred in fighting the fire;
- The expenses be the proximate result of defendant's wrongful conduct; and

- The expenses be reasonably incurred.

A public entity's own negligence in fighting a fire or in failing to minimize its firefighting costs cannot be used to reduce the entity's recovery of firefighting costs. The Government Code provides public entities with immunity from direct liability for damages caused by negligence in fighting fires, and this immunity also prevents a defendant from utilizing the affirmative defenses of comparative fault and failure to mitigate to reduce his or her own liability for fire suppression costs [People ex rel. Grijalva v. Superior Court (2008) 159 Cal. App. 4th 1072, 1078, 72 Cal. Rptr. 3d 53 ; see Gov. Code §§ 850, 850.2, 850.5].

Health & Safety Code § 13009.1 authorizes recovery of the cost of investigating and making any reports with respect to the fire and the costs related to accounting for that fire and the collection of any funds pursuant to Health & Safety Code § 13009, including, but not limited to, the administrative costs of operating a fire suppression cost recovery program. Liability for accounting and collection costs is limited to the actual amount expended attributable to the fire. The court has discretion in awarding these costs. Plaintiffs bear the burden of proving by a preponderance of the evidence the liability of defendant for costs and the amount of costs recoverable. The liability constitutes a debt of the person liable and is collectible by the person, or by the federal, state, county, public, or private agency incurring these costs, in the same manner as an obligation under an express or implied contract [Health & Safety Code § 13009.1(a)-(c), (e)]. These provisions do not create a right to attorney's fees by the party seeking to recover fire suppression costs or by a party who successfully defends against such an action [Dep't of Forestry & Fire Prot. v. LeBrock (2002) 96 Cal. App. 4th 1137, 1140-1142, 117 Cal. Rptr. 2d 790] .

Plaintiff may recover the cost of providing rescue and emergency services in addition to the expense of fighting the fire [see Health & Safety Code § 13009(a)].

[3] Inapplicability of Civ. Code § 3346 to Fires

Civ. Code § 3346 provides for the measure of damages for casual or involuntary trespass against trees, timber, or underwood on the land of another. In Gould v. Madonna (1970) 5 Cal. App. 3d 404, 406, 85 Cal. Rptr. 457 , the court found no California case in which Civ. Code § 3346 has been applied to the negligent spreading of fire, nor any case determining that such spreading constituted a trespass. The court held Civ. Code § 3346 not to be applicable to the case at hand based on the statutory history of the section that demonstrated a legislative intention that only actual damages be recoverable for injury caused by negligently set fires. That history indicated that the Legislature has set up a statutory scheme concerning timber fires that is completely separate from the scheme to meet the situation of cutting or other types of injury to timber contemplated by Civ. Code § 3346 [see Gould v. Madonna (1970) 5 Cal. App. 3d 404, 407, 85 Cal. Rptr. 457 ; see County of Ventura v. Southern Cal. Edison Co. (1948) 85 Cal. App. 2d 529, 534, 193 P.2d 512 (liability for fire suppression expenses replaced treble damages that were formerly recoverable)].

§ 267.19 Recovery of Cleanup Costs From Burning of Hazardous Substances

Those expenses of an emergency response necessary to protect the public from a real and imminent threat to health and safety, which are incurred by a public agency to confine, prevent, or mitigate the release, escape, or burning of hazardous substances, are a charge against any person whose negligence caused the incident if evacuation beyond the property where the incident originates is necessary to prevent loss of life or injury or the incident results in the spread of fire posing a real and imminent threat to public health and safety beyond the property of origin [Health & Safety Code § 13009.6(a)(1)]. If the negligence causing the incident occurs in the course of the person's employment, the charge created against the person is also a charge against his or her employer [Health & Safety Code § 13009.6(a)(3)].

"Hazardous substance," as used in Health & Safety Code § 13009.6(a)(1), means any hazardous substance listed in Health & Safety Code § 25316 [Health & Safety Code § 13009.6(c)]. "Mitigation" includes actions by a public agency to monitor or model ambient levels of airborne hazardous substances for the purpose of determining or assisting in the determination of whether or not to evacuate areas around the property where the incident originates [Health & Safety Code § 13009.6(d)].

Expenses reimbursable to a public agency under Health & Safety Code § 13009.6 are a debt of the person liable and are collectible in the same way as a contractual obligation [Health & Safety Code § 13009.6(a)(2)]. The amount of any reimbursement for eligible costs received by a public agency pursuant to Health & Safety Code § 25300 et seq. must be deducted from any amount otherwise recoverable [Health & Safety Code § 13009.6(b)].

An action to recover the expenses may be joined with any civil action for penalties, fines, injunction, or other relief brought against the responsible person or employer, or both, arising out of the same incident [Health & Safety Code § 13009.6(a)(5)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

§ 267.20 Negligence as Matter of Law

When a statute is intended to protect the class of persons in which the plaintiff is included against the risk of the type of harm he or she has sustained, a violation of the statute gives rise to a presumption of negligence [Evid. Code § 669; Courtell v. McEachen (1959) 51 Cal. 2d 448, 459, 334 P.2d 870 ; see generally Ch. 380, Negligence]. However, this presumption does not arise if the type of harm that occurred was not one that the statute was designed to prevent [Wawanesa Mut. Ins. Co. v. Matlock (1997) 60 Cal. App. 4th 583, 587, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 512 (minor held not to be negligent per se for having provided a pack of cigarettes to another minor, who dropped a cigarette and started a fire; statute making it illegal to furnish tobacco to minors was designed to prevent early addiction to tobacco, not to prevent fires)].

The presumption of negligence may be rebutted by evidence establishing a reasonable justification or excuse for disobeying the statute [Ewing v. Balan (1959) 168 Cal. App. 2d 619, 622, 336 P.2d 561 (violation of Health & Safety Code § 16905, requiring gas appliances to be maintained in good repair, that resulted in explosion and fire as raising the presumption)]. The person who has violated the statute has the burden of showing that he or she did what might reasonably be expected of a person of ordinary prudence, acting under similar circumstances, who desired to comply with the law [Roddiscraft, Inc. v. Skelton Logging Co. (1963) 212 Cal. App. 2d 784, 801, 804, 28 Cal. Rptr. 277] . Thus, when the unexcused violation of a fire safety statute resulted in the very harm the statute was designed to protect against, the violator was found negligent as a matter of law [Travelers Indem. Co. v. Titus (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 515, 517, 71 Cal. Rptr. 490] .

§ 267.21 Defense of Plaintiff's Negligence

The defense of contributory negligence has been invalidated in California and replaced with a system of comparative negligence in which the fundamental purpose is to assign responsibility and liability for damage in direct proportion to the negligence of each of the parties. Thus, in all actions for negligence resulting in injury to person or property, the contributory negligence of the person injured does not bar recovery, but the damages awarded are diminished in proportion to the amount of negligence attributable to the person recovering [Li v. Yellow Cab Co. (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 804, 828-829, 119 Cal. Rptr. 858, 532 P.2d 1226 ; see generally Ch. 380, Negligence].

In analyzing assumption of risk in light of the adoption of the comparative negligence doctrine [Li v. Yellow Cab Co. (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 804, 824-825, 829, 119 Cal. Rptr. 858, 532 P.2d 1226] , the Supreme Court has distinguished between two separate types of implied assumption of risk [Knight v. Jewett (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 296, 314-315, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 2, 834 P.2d 696 ; see also Ford v. Gouin (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 339, 342, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 30, 834 P.2d 724] . Under "primary assumption of risk," by virtue of the nature of the activity and the parties' relationship to the activity, the defendant owes no legal duty to protect the plaintiff from the particular risk of harm that caused the injury. In such a case, the doctrine operates as a complete bar to the plaintiff's recovery [Knight v. Jewett (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 296, 314-315, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 2, 834 P.2d 696] . Under "secondary assumption of risk," the defendant does owe a duty of care to the plaintiff, but the plaintiff proceeds to encounter a known risk imposed by the defendant's breach of duty. In this situation, the doctrine is merged into the comparative fault scheme, and the trier of fact, in apportioning the loss resulting from the injury, may consider the relative responsibility of the parties [Knight v. Jewett (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 296, 314-315, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 2, 834 P.2d 696] .

The Supreme Court has not yet ruled on the proper analysis of implied assumption of risk in the context of actions arising from the negligent setting or control of fires that result in property damage or personal injury to others. It appears, however, that the Court in Knight rejected any approach that considers whether the plaintiff was reasonable in assuming a risk, or whether there was a voluntary acceptance of a specific, known, and appreciated risk. Rather, a court would consider the nature of the activity and the parties' relationship to the activity [see Knight v. Jewett (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 296, 312-313, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 2, 834 P.2d 696] . If the nature of the activity and the relationship of the parties is such that the plaintiff "did not consent to negligent conduct or agree to excuse [the defendant] from liability in the event of such negligence" a defendant may be found to have breached a duty of care, and a plaintiff's choice to encounter the risk of such negligence would only permit an apportionment of damages under secondary assumption of risk, rather than a complete bar to recovery under primary assumption of risk [Knight v. Jewett (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 296, 314-316, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 2, 834 P.2d 696] .

The Court in Knight did discuss the "firefighter's rule" as an example of primary assumption of the risk, in that the person who set the fire owed no duty to any firefighter and therefore cannot be liable to the firefighter even if it could be concluded that the firefighter acted unreasonably in encountering the risk [see Knight v. Jewett (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 296, 309-310 n.5, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 2, 834 P.2d 696 ; see also discussion in § 267.15].

For complete discussion of assumption of the risk, see Ch. 380, Negligence .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

22-267 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 267.23

§ 267.23 Nuisance

A person who creates or allows the existence of a dangerous condition on its property may be liable to others for a fire-incurred loss even though the fire was actually started by the negligent conduct of others. This is also true if the defendant allows the existence of a public nuisance. When an injury is produced by the concurrent effect of two separate wrongful acts, each is a proximate cause of the injury [Vedder v. County of Imperial (1974) 36 Cal. App. 3d 654, 660-661, 111 Cal. Rptr. 728] .

A public entity can be subject to liability for fire damages resulting from a dangerous condition on its property or from a fire hazard constituting a public nuisance [Vedder v. County of Imperial (1974) 36 Cal. App. 3d 654, 660-661, 111 Cal. Rptr. 728] .

Gov. Code § 815 does not bar nuisance actions against public entities to the extent that those actions are founded on Civ. Code §§ 3479-3481, which define public and private nuisances [Nestle v. City of Santa Monica (1972) 6 Cal. 3d 920, 937, 101 Cal. Rptr. 568, 496 P.2d 480] . A fire hazard constitutes a public nuisance [Vedder v. County of Imperial (1974) 36 Cal. App. 3d 654, 661, 111 Cal. Rptr. 728] .

For a discussion of actions based on nuisance generally, see Ch. 391, Nuisance .

PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

22-267 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 267.33

§ 267.33 Decisions

[1] Strict Liability

Doctrine of strict liability is applicable when injury results to person as proximate result of defect in design of residential building and installation of appliance in accordance with such design. Hyman v. Gordon (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 769, 772-774, 111 Cal. Rptr. 262 (child sustained injuries from fire when gasoline came into contact with pilot light and burners of water heater in garage)

[2] Warranty

Manufacturer of flammable substance or one which gives off flammable fumes is strictly liable if label fails to give appropriate warning to purchasing public. Crane v. Sears, Roebuck & Co. (1963) 218 Cal. App. 2d 855, 859-861, 32 Cal. Rptr. 754

[3] Negligence as Matter of Law

When ordinance or statute is intended to protect certain class from particular risk of harm, violation of that statute or ordinance is per se breach of duty, absent excuse or justification for violation. City of Los Angeles v. Shpegel-Dimsey, Inc. (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 1009, 1021, 244 Cal. Rptr. 507

Violation of fire safety statue resulting in very harm statute designed to protect against establishes negligence as matter of law. Travelers Indem. Co. v. Titus (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 515, 517, 71 Cal. Rptr. 490

Where penal statute establishes standard of care, and when violation of statute is proximate cause of kind of injury to member of protected class it was designed to protect, violator is presumed negligent. Ewing v. Balan (1959) 168 Cal. App. 2d 619, 622, 336 P.2d 561 (violation of Health & Safety Code § 16905 resulting in fire)

[4] Negligent Acts

Defendant is liable for damages caused by fire either negligently set or negligently permitted to spread. Sampson v. Hughes (1905) 147 Cal. 62, 64

Social host defendant is immune from liability under Civ. Code § 1714(c) for plaintiff's injuries caused by fire from burning cigarette, to extent those injuries were caused by guests' consumption of alcohol furnished by defendant; to extent plaintiff's injuries were not caused by guest's consumption of alcohol, defendant is not liable under negligence theory as matter of law for failure to supervise sober adult guests who smoked cigarettes. Biles v. Richter (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 325, 329, 253 Cal. Rptr. 414

Either lack of due care or violation of industrial safety order [8 Cal. Code Reg § 4150] is basis for liability for negligent starting of fire. Eberhard v. Bruhn (1970) 13 Cal. App. 3d 836, 839, 91 Cal. Rptr. 915

[5] Duty of Landowner

[a] Generally

Common-law distinctions as to duty owed between guests, invitees, and trespassers are abolished and liability is predicated on ordinary negligence under provisions of Civ. Code § 1714, a civil law, and not a common-law, principle. Rowland v. Christian (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 108, 112-120, 70 Cal. Rptr. 97, 443 P.2d 561

Liability of landowner for injuries to child caused by outdoor fire. Courtell v. McEachen (1959) 51 Cal. 2d 448, 454-460, 334 P.2d 870

Landowner is not liable for fire damage to property of another when fire was lawfully started with due care and subsequently spread to lands of another despite defendant's due diligence in attempting to confine it. Garnier v. Porter (1891) 90 Cal. 105, 108-109, 27 P. 55

Health & Safety Code §§ 13007 and 13008 establishes basis of fire liability but not standard of care for landowner. People v. Southern Pac. Co. (1983) 139 Cal. App. 3d 627, 633, 188 Cal. Rptr. 913

Electric company is under duty to make its electrical wires safe under all exigencies created by surrounding circumstances. Scally v. Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 806, 815, 100 Cal. Rptr. 501 (dictum)

Property owners are under independent duty to prevent accumulation of flammable material on their premises. Scally v. Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 806, 817, 100 Cal. Rptr. 501

Cases as holding that railroad under no independent duty to keep right-of-way free of combustible material. Scally v. Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 806, 817, 100 Cal. Rptr. 501

Liability of landlord to tenant for destruction of property by fire caused by defective gas water heater. Ewing v. Balan (1959) 168 Cal. App. 2d 619, 621-623, 336 P.2d 561

Duty of landowner to make reasonable use of premises. Reid & Sibell v. Gilmore & Edwards Co. (1955) 134 Cal. App. 2d 60, 65-66, 285 P.2d 364

Presence of forest ranger directing and supervising controlled fires does not necessarily relieve defendants of duty of exercising due diligence to avoid damage to property of others. Leuteneker v. Fisher (1957) 155 Cal. App. 2d 33, 35, 317 P.2d 143

Liability for storing flammables in excessive amounts in violation of local ordinance. Reid & Sibell v. Gilmore & Edwards Co. (1955) 134 Cal. App. 2d 60, 70-72, 285 P.2d 364

Two classifications of acts that give rise to liability under Health & Safety Code § 13007 (liability for negligent starting or handling of fire): first, liability based on affirmative acts; or second, liability predicated on knowing acquiescence in occurrence leading to fire when duty and power to prevent it existed. County of Ventura v. Southern Cal. Edison Co. (1948) 85 Cal. App. 2d 529, 539-540, 193 P.2d 512

[b] Power Company

Electric company is under duty to make its electrical wires safe under all exigencies created by surrounding circumstances. Scally v. Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 806, 815, 100 Cal. Rptr. 501 ; Lozano v. Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. (1945) 70 Cal. App. 2d 415, 422, 161 P.2d 74

Duty to make electrical wires safe is alternative one, either to insulate wires or to so locate them as to make them comparatively harmless. Scally v. Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 806, 815-816, 100 Cal. Rptr. 501 ; Polk v. City of Los Angeles (1945) 26 Cal. 2d 519, 527, 159 P.2d 931

Court's jury instruction errors in negligence damage action arising out of fire allegedly caused by allowing power line to come into contact with tree are harmless. Scally v. Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 806, 821, 100 Cal. Rptr. 501

[c] Railroad

Cases holding that railroad is under no independent duty to keep right-of-way free from combustible material. Scally v. Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 806, 817, 100 Cal. Rptr. 501

[6] Public Entities

[a] Generally

United States as not subject to liability for firefighting expenses voluntarily incurred and unrelated to any claim of damage to property under Federal Torts Claims Act (28 U.S.C. §§ 1346(b), 2671-2680), regardless of whether claim sounds in tort or contract. California v. United States (N.D. Cal 1961) 195 F. Supp. 793, 794 , aff'd, 307 F.2d 941

State is never permitted to sue in tort in its political or governmental capacity, although as owner of property, it may resort to same tort actions as any individual proprietor to recover for injuries to property. City of Los Angeles v. Shpegel-Dimsey, Inc. (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 1009, 1018, 244 Cal. Rptr. 507

Recovery of punitive damages by, or against (see Gov. Code § 818), public entities is not authorized; reasons for rule. City of Los Angeles v. Shpegel-Dimsey, Inc. (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 1009, 1023-1026, 244 Cal. Rptr. 507

[b] Liability of Public Entities

Statutes conferring governmental immunity are strictly construed. Baldwin v. State of California (1972) 6 Cal. 3d 424, 435-436, 99 Cal. Rptr. 145, 491 P.2d 1121

Where Department of Forestry and Fire Protection sought to recover its costs in fighting a brush fire from real parties in interest, the affirmative defenses of comparative negligence or failure to mitigate damages were not available to real parties; real parties were not allowed to challenge the reasonableness of the methods the Department used (or did not use) to fight the fire. People ex rel. Grijalva v. Superior Court (2008) 159 Cal. App. 4th 1072, 1077, 72 Cal. Rptr. 3d 53

Immunity provided by Gov. Code § 850.4 is affirmative defense required to be pled and proved or deemed waived. McMahan's of Santa Monica v. City of Santa Monica (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 683, 689, 194 Cal. Rptr. 582

Valve in city water system used to fight fires is part of city fire protection facilities, and city immune from liability under Gov. Code §§ 850.2 and 850.4 for damages caused by valve's improper closure. New Hampshire Ins. Co. v. City of Madera (1983) 144 Cal. App. 3d 298, 304-305, 192 Cal. Rptr. 548

City's adoption of Uniform Fire Code does not create mandatory duty under Gov. Code § 815.6 to keep water system operating given § 2.108 of Fire Code precluding creation of liability for acts taken under Code. New Hampshire Ins. Co. v. City of Madera (1983) 144 Cal. App. 3d 298, 306-307, 192 Cal. Rptr. 548

Fire district is not immune from liability under Gov. Code § 850.4 for negligent injury to person during nonfirefighting rescue. Lewis v. Mendocino Fire Prot. Dist. (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 345, 346-347, 190 Cal. Rptr. 883

Complaint alleging that city fire captain negligently caused escaping gas to ignite and explode, injuring plaintiff, is not barred by Gov. Code § 850.4 (providing that public entity is immune from liability for injuries caused in fighting fires). Potter v. City of Oceanside (1981) 114 Cal. App. 3d 564, 566, 170 Cal. Rptr. 753

Complaint for damages for injury to lessee's property by airport fire is not subject to general demurrer by defendant entity when it charges nonpublic entity with negligent conduct in starting fire and public entity defendant with permitting dangerous condition of storage of gasoline and other highly combustible chemicals on its property without fire protection, with notice of such condition, and alleges such dangerous condition to be nuisance. Vedder v. County of Imperial (1974) 36 Cal. App. 3d 654, 658-661, 111 Cal. Rptr. 728

State is not liable for damages arising out of arson committed by prisoner released by state [Gov. Code § 845.8(a)] under rehabilitation program notwithstanding allegations of ministerial negligence. State of California v. Superior Court (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 1023, 1025-1026, 112 Cal. Rptr. 706

Requirements for stating cause of action under Gov. Code § 835. Vedder v. County of Imperial (1974) 36 Cal. App. 3d 654, 659, 111 Cal. Rptr. 728

Nonliability of state for injuries sustained by minor burned by sitting in hot coals concealed by sand on public beach although state through its agents had knowledge that people had been burned a number of times by hot coals on the beach but had neither actual nor constructive notice of the existence of the particular hot coals in which minor sat. State v. Superior Court of San Mateo County (1968) 263 Cal. App. 2d 396, 399-400, 69 Cal. Rptr. 683

[7] Liability of Water Company

In action against city water company by building owner and tenants for damages sustained when fire service connection installed by water department at owner's request and subject to ordinance rates failed to operate because of faulty installation, water department is not liable unless parties contracted with express purpose of providing fire protection and service provided was not available to community in general except on basis of specific contract; payment for such special service is necessarily more than mere fee to cover costs of installation and ordinary ordinance rates for supply of water. Lainer Invs. v. Department of Water & Power (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 1, 14-15, 215 Cal. Rptr. 812

California law immunizes water companies from civil liability for loss by fire due to failure to maintain their systems properly. Stuart v. Crestview Mut. Water Co. (1973) 34 Cal. App. 3d 802, 806-807, 110 Cal. Rptr. 543 (indicating that record of case adequately presents issue for Supreme Court consideration)

Property owners suffering fire damage states cause of action for negligence against developers and engineers of water system. Stuart v. Crestview Mut. Water Co. (1973) 34 Cal. App. 3d 802, 809-810, 110 Cal. Rptr. 543

Express private contract whereby water company agrees to furnish water as protection against fire as leading to liability for failure to provide such water. Luis v. Orcutt Town Water Co. (1962) 204 Cal. App. 2d 433, 438-439, 22 Cal. Rptr. 389

[8] Causation

Since a party can only be liable under Health & Safety Code §§ 13007, 13009, and 13009.1 if its wrongful conduct was the proximate cause of defendant's harm and the issue of causation remained for trial, summary judgment on the United States' claims against a public utility that allegedly started a forest fire when a squirrel had an unfortunate encounter with an electrical transformer near a hydroelectric power generation facility was not appropriate. United States v. Southern Cal. Edison Co. (E.D. Cal. 2006) 413 F. Supp. 2d 1101

Defendant's work train crew's attempts to suppress fire are not within meaning of word "attended" under Health & Safety Code § 13007; "attended" more likely refers to controlled fires such as burning operations. People v. Southern Pac. Co. (1983) 139 Cal. App. 3d 627, 638, 188 Cal. Rptr. 913

Proof requires reasonable inference that negligence complained of was proximate cause of injury. Hill v. Matthews Paint Co. (1957) 149 Cal. App. 2d 714, 724, 308 P.2d 865

Circumstantial evidence of cause of fire is sufficient to raise inference of causation; direct proof is not required. New Zealand Ins. Co. v. Brown (1952) 110 Cal. App. 2d 411, 413, 242 P.2d 674

Time and distance between start of fire and its communication to plaintiff's property does not affect question of defendant's liability except as to question of proximate cause. Osborn v. City of Whittier (1951) 103 Cal. App. 2d 609, 617-618, 230 P.2d 132

If injury produced by concurrent effect of two separate wrongful acts, each is proximate cause of injury. Vedder v. County of Imperial (1974) 36 Cal. App. 3d 654, 660, 111 Cal. Rptr. 728

[9] Damages

Where railroad company work crew ignited a fire while repairing a rail in a national forest, the government was entitled to recover its damages for all timber destroyed, not just timber located in areas where logging was not prohibited. The government's damages were not limited to diminution of market value of the property because no real estate market value existed; rather, the government was entitled to full compensation for all of its damages, including value of the timber destroyed, reforestation costs due to damage to the soil and for young growth, pre-merchantable trees destroyed by the fire, and damages for loss of habitat and other loss of the burned land during the period of growth. Reforestation costs between $24 million and $33 million were not excessive in relation to alleged damages of $121 million inflicted on the land, and were not too speculative as a matter of law. United States v. Union Pac. R.R. Co. (E.D. Cal. 2008) 565 F.Supp. 2d 1136

Homeowners, whose property was destroyed by a fire that started as a prescribed fire on federal property but that spread, were not limited to recovery for property damages under Health & Safety Code §§ 13007 and 13008, and where plaintiffs assert rights under common law, the statutory remedies provided by sections 13007 and 13008 will be read as supplementing rather than supplanting plaintiffs' recovery under the common law. Robinson v. United States (E.D. Cal. 2001) 175 F. Supp. 2d 1215

Health and Safety Code § 13007 as liberally construed to place no restrictions on type of property damage that is compensable; hence, loss of profits from business connected to property that is negligently damaged by set fire as compensable. McKay v. State of California (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 937, 939-940, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 771

Plaintiff whose property was damaged by fire caused by defendant's negligent storage of plastics materials is entitled to recover for all injury to property proximately caused by defendant's negligence, including not only cost of repairs, but also recovery for inconvenience caused by injury or loss of use. City of Los Angeles v. Shpegel-Dimsey, Inc. (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 1009, 1022-1023, 244 Cal. Rptr. 507

Jury instructions allowing award to plaintiffs of both fair market value of timber destroyed and cost of reforestation are proper when fire destroyed trees and damaged soil and plaintiff required by law to replant, because these are separate injuries. People v. Southern Pac. Co. (1983) 139 Cal. App. 3d 627, 634-635, 188 Cal. Rptr. 913

Negligent spreading of fire is not a trespass within meaning of Civ. Code § 3346, relating to damages for trespass. Gould v. Madonna (1970) 5 Cal. App. 3d 404, 406, 85 Cal. Rptr. 457

Damages for negligently allowing fire to spread to land of another are governed by Health & Safety Code § 13007, authorizing recovery of actual damages, rather than Civ. Code § 3346(a), authorizing treble and double damages for wrongful injuries to timber, trees, or underwood on land of another. Gould v. Madonna (1970) 5 Cal. App. 3d 404, 406-407, 85 Cal. Rptr. 457

[10] Fire Suppression Costs

[a] Generally

United States is not subject to liability for firefighting expenses voluntarily incurred and unrelated to any claim of damage to property under Federal Tort Claims Act, regardless of whether claim sounds in tort or contract. People v. United States (N.D. Cal. 1961) 195 F. Supp. 793, 794 , aff'd, 307 F.2d 941

Health & Safety Code § 13009 does not constitute declaration that recovery sounds in contract instead of tort. People v. Zegras (1946) 29 Cal. 2d 67, 68-69, 172 P.2d 883

Liability for firefighting expenses under former Health & Safety Code § 13009 is limited to situations in which liability for property damage exists under Health & Safety Code § 13007. People v. Southern Pac. Co. (1983) 139 Cal. App. 3d 627, 637-639, 188 Cal. Rptr. 913 (limited in effect by 1987 amendments to Health & Safety Code § 13009)

Proper measure for determining "expense" incurred for fighting fires pursuant to Health & Safety Code § 13009 as requiring that (1) expenses claimed be incurred in fighting fire; (2) expenses be proximate result of defendant's wrongful conduct; and (3) expenses be reasonably incurred. People v. Southern Cal. Edison Co. (1976) 56 Cal. App. 3d 593, 605, 128 Cal. Rptr. 697

Absent statute, one protecting his or her own property has right to recover fire suppression costs from wrongdoer.

Globe Indem. Co. v. State of California (1974) 43 Cal. App. 3d 745, 749, 118 Cal. Rptr. 75

Right of state to recover fire suppression costs against one who negligently caused forest fire is expressly provided by Health & Safety Code § 13009. Giorgi v. Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 355, 360, 72 Cal. Rptr. 119

Right of public entity to recover fire suppression expenses. People v. Wilson (1966) 240 Cal. App. 2d 574, 576-577, 49 Cal. Rptr. 792

Nonliability for fire suppression expenses under Health & Safety Code §§ 13007-13009 when negligently set or controlled fire confined to defendant's land and does not escape to land of another. People v. Williams (1963) 222 Cal. App. 2d 152, 154-156, 34 Cal. Rptr. 806

Code Civ. Proc. § 339(1) is applicable statute of limitations for action involving fire suppression costs. People v. Wilson (1966) 240 Cal. App. 2d 574, 576, 49 Cal. Rptr. 792 (two years)

[b] Measure of Damages

Regular payroll expenses of firefighting employees, and interest from date of demand for payment, are properly recovered under Health & Safety Code § 13009. People v. Southern Pac. Co. (1983) 139 Cal. App. 3d 627, 639-641, 188 Cal. Rptr. 913

Proper measure for determining expense incurred for fighting fires pursuant to Health & Safety Code § 13009 requires that: (1) expenses claimed be incurred in fighting fire; (2) expenses be proximate result of defendant's wrongful conduct; and (3) expenses be reasonably incurred. People v. Southern Cal. Edison Co. (1976) 56 Cal. App. 3d 593, 605, 128 Cal. Rptr. 697

[11] Fireman's Rule

"Fireman's" rule is not applicable to bar recovery by private safety employees injured in fire negligently started by employees of third party; by establishing public fire departments and taxing themselves to pay for their services, public in effect is purchasing exoneration from duty of care and not required to pay twice, through taxation and individual liability, for those services; in contrast, defendant whose negligence injures private safety employees employed by another does not have same relationship with those private safety employees is member of public has with publicly-employed firefighters, because defendant has not paid in any way to be relieved of duty of care owed toward private employees. Neighbarger v. Irwin Indus., Inc. (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 532, 539-547, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 630, 882 P.2d 347

"Fireman's" rule is not separate concept, but example of application of assumption of risk doctrine set forth in Knight v. Jewett (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 296, 313, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 2, 834 P.2d 696 ; proper basis for rule is not plaintiff's voluntary acceptance of known risk of injury in course of employment, but rather public policy determination that person who negligently starts fire does not owe duty of care to protect responding firefighter from very danger that requires firefighter's presence. Neighbarger v. Irwin Indus., Inc. (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 532, 538, 541-542, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 630, 882 P.2d 347 .

Fireman's rule is not applicable merely because firefighter or police officer encountered risk that caused injuries by chance rather than by being summoned to scene by radio call. Kelhi v. Fitzpatrick (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 1149, 1152, 1158-1159, 31 Cal. Rptr. 2d 182

Treating with chemical spills is traditionally within scope of firefighter's ordinary duties, and fireman's rule applicable so long as danger present is of type ordinarily associated with handling of potentially dangerous chemicals. Rowland v. Shell Oil Co. (1986) 179 Cal. App. 3d 399, 404-405, 224 Cal. Rptr. 547

Fireman's rule does not encompass intentional torts directed specifically against firefighter or police officer while he or she is trying to perform his or her duties after being called to the scene. Krueger v. City of Anaheim (1982) 130 Cal. App. 3d 166, 168-169, 181 Cal. Rptr. 631

Paid fireman has no cause of action against one whose passive negligence caused fire in which he or she was injured. Giorgi v. Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 355, 360, 72 Cal. Rptr. 119

[12] Defenses

[a] Assumption of Risk

Assumption of risk when plaintiff agrees to relieve defendant of obligation of reasonable conduct is not merged into comparative negligence system. Li v. Yellow Cab Co. (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 804, 824-825, 119 Cal. Rptr. 858, 532 P.2d 1226

Assumption of risk when plaintiff unreasonably undertakes to encounter specific known risk imposed by defendant's negligence is merged into comparative negligence system. Li v. Yellow Cab Co. (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 804, 824-825, 119 Cal. Rptr. 858, 532 P.2d 1226

Defense of assumption of risk is inapplicable when action is based on violation of safety law intended to protect class of which plaintiff is member; benefit of safety orders extends to general public in places of employment and to homeowner's property when he or she contracts to have work done on his or her property (fire in homeowner's kitchen caused by violation of former 8 Cal. Code Reg § 4150 relating to providing adequate fire extinguishing facilities when flammable liquids are used). Eberhard v. Bruhn (1970) 13 Cal. App. 3d 836, 839, 91 Cal. Rptr. 915

[b] Negligence of Plaintiff

Defense of contributory negligence is invalidated in California and replaced with system of comparative negligence; purpose of comparative negligence system as to assign liability for damage in direct proportion to negligence of each of parties. Li v. Yellow Cab Co. (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 804, 828-829, 119 Cal. Rptr. 858, 532 P.2d 1226

Tenant who burns waste in incinerator constructed and maintained in violation of provisions of Pub. Res. Code § 4446 is negligent as matter of law when unattended fire escapes from incinerator and burns landlord's buildings; landlord's insurer, which paid loss, is barred from recovery in subrogation against tenant on ground of landlord's contributory negligence consisting of his or her having maintained incinerator in violation of law. Travelers Indem. Co. v. Titus (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 515, 517-519, 71 Cal. Rptr. 490

Negligence established when flammable debris exploded after plaintiff dumped rubbish into incinerator which defendant had assured contained no live flame. Freeman v. Nickerson (1946) 77 Cal. App. 2d 40, 46, 174 P.2d 688

[13] Proof

Jury instruction is proper when trial court instructed jury pursuant to Pub. Res. Code § 4435 that if it found fire originated from operation or use of defendant's railroad equipment, the jury must find defendant negligent, unless persuaded otherwise by preponderance of evidence. People v. Southern Pac. Co. (1983) 139 Cal. App. 3d 627, 632-634, 188 Cal. Rptr. 913

Fire chief with long experience with fires is qualified as expert witness to testify as to origin of fire. Alhambra Bowl, Inc. v. Ledbetter Sign Co. (1963) 211 Cal. App. 2d 777, 780, 27 Cal. Rptr. 680

Admissibility of evidence as to prior fires in arson prosecution. People v. Maler (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 973, 978-981, 100 Cal. Rptr. 650

[14] Res Ipsa Loquitur

Applicability of doctrine of res ipsa loquitur when fire erupted in hay barn after defendant had backed his truck into small area of barn surrounded on three sides by readily combustible dry hay stacked to rafters, cutting off air circulation. Seeley v. Combs (1966) 65 Cal. 2d 127, 130-133, 52 Cal. Rptr. 578, 416 P.2d 810

In action by building owner against lessee for damages caused by fire in lessee's premises, plaintiff is entitled to conditional res ipsa loquitur instructions when only probable causes of fire were lessee's overloading circuits or negligent installation by contractor employed by lessee. Pappas v. Carson (1975) 50 Cal. App. 3d 261, 268-269, 123 Cal. Rptr. 343

Application of res ipsa loquitur in action involving forest fire. Roddiscraft, Inc. v. Skelton Logging Co. (1963) 212 Cal. App. 2d 784, 793-805, 28 Cal. Rptr. 277

[15] Insurance

Subrogation by insurance company to recover payments to lessors of building on account of fire damage. Agricultural Ins. Co. v. Smith (1968) 262 Cal. App. 2d 772, 777-779, 69 Cal. Rptr. 50

[16] Nuisance

Maintenance of fire hazard sufficiently extreme to menace public health and safety constitutes public nuisance within meaning of Civ. Code § 3480; when such condition exists, public entity has right to summarily abate nuisance, particularly in face of emergency. City of Los Angeles v. Shpegel-Dimsey, Inc. (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 1009, 1017, 244 Cal. Rptr. 507

Gov. Code § 815 (immunity of public entity) does not bar nuisance actions against public entities to extent such actions are founded on Civ. Code §§ 3479-3481, which define public and private nuisances. Vedder v. County of Imperial (1974) 36 Cal. App. 3d 654, 661, 111 Cal. Rptr. 728

Fire hazard is public nuisance. County of San Diego v. Carlstrom (1961) 196 Cal. App. 2d 485, 491, 16 Cal. Rptr. 667 ; People v. Oliver (1948) 86 Cal. App. 2d 885, 889, 195 P.2d 926

Plaintiff alleges:

1. Defendant _____ [name] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a resident of _____ County, California.

[2. Plaintiff is ignorant of the true names and capacities of defendants sued herein as Does I-_____, inclusive, and therefore sues these defendants by such fictitious names. Plaintiff will amend this complaint to allege their true names and capacities when ascertained. (Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges, that each of the fictitiously named defendants is negligently responsible in some manner for the occurrences herein alleged, and that plaintiff's injuries as herein alleged were proximately caused by that negligence.)]

[3. Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that at all times herein mentioned each of the defendants was the agent and employee of each of the remaining defendants, and in doing the things hereinafter alleged, was acting within the course and scope of such agency.]

4. At all times herein mentioned, plaintiff was the owner of that certain building and lot located at _____ [address], _____ [city], _____County, California [, and carrying on therein the business of _____ (specify, e.g., a retail grocery store)].

5. [On or about _____ [date], plaintiff had stored on the premises items of _____ (personal property or inventory) (used in connection with that business), to wit: _____ (specify property, e.g., foodstuffs and dry goods); as a proximate result of the fire, hereinafter complained of, the _____ (personal property or inventory) was _____ (damaged or completely destroyed).]

6. On or about _____ [date], at or about _____ [time], defendant _____ [name] negligently and carelessly caused and permitted a fire to _____ [be set or escape] to plaintiff's premises.

7. As a proximate result of the negligence of defendant[s, and each of them], [and the fire resulting therefrom,] plaintiff's real property at _____ [address], _____ [city], _____ County, California, was _____ [describe damage, e.g., destroyed beyond repair, all to plaintiff's damage in the sum of $_____ or damaged]. [If property was not destroyed, add: Plaintiff has expended $_____ for repair of such property, which is a reasonable sum for such repair.]

8. [Before the fire, the _____ (personal property or inventory) of plaintiff was of a reasonable market value of $_____. By reason of the destruction of the personal property caused by the fire, the reasonable market value of the _____ (personal property or inventory) after the fire was $_____. Plaintiff was thereby damaged in the sum of $_____.]

9. [As a proximate result of the fire and the consequent loss of his/her premises by reason of the negligence of defendant(s, and each of them), plaintiff was unable to carry on his/her business for a period of _____ (specify) and was obliged to move his/her place of business to another location; as a result of being unable to carry on his/her business and as a result of this dislocation of his/her business, plaintiff sustained further losses in the total sum of $_____; (the items making up that sum of $_____ are set forth in Exhibit A, which is attached hereto and made a part hereof).]

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment as follows:

1. For general damages in the sum of $_____;

2. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

3. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

This form of complaint is for use in an action to recover for damages to personal or real property resulting from the negligent starting or controlling of fire. This kind of action may be brought under Health & Safety Code § 13007, or it may be brought based on general negligence principles [see, e.g., Eberhard v. Bruhn (1970) 13 Cal. App. 3d 836, 838, 91 Cal. Rptr. 915] .

However, if personal injuries are involved, Health & Safety Code § 13007 will not provide a basis for recovery for those injuries because that section addresses itself only to the issue of property damage [see Health & Safety Code § 13007].

A negligent invasion by fire that causes damage to real property also constitutes a trespass [Elton v. Anheuser-Busch Beverage Group, Inc. (1996) 50 Cal. App. 4th 1301, 1307, 58 Cal. Rptr. 2d 303] . For discussion of trespass, and forms for alleging trespass, see Ch. 550, Trespass .

For discussion of the duty to prevent fire damage generally, see §§ 267.10, 267.11.

[3] Allegations

A complaint for property damage caused by fire should allege facts showing:

- Description of the property damaged or destroyed and plaintiff's ownership or interest therein (Paragraphs 4, 5).
- Defendant's negligence in setting the fire or in permitting it to spread to the property of another (Paragraph 6).
- Damage to plaintiff's property (Paragraphs 5, 7).
- Defendant's negligence in setting the fire was the proximate cause of the damage (Paragraphs 5, 7).
- Plaintiff was damaged in a certain sum thereby (Paragraphs 7-9).

[4] Verification

Although verification of this complaint is not required, verification will require any answer to be verified also, if the action is in the superior court and is not a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446]. Verification will also preclude a general denial except in a limited civil case, and will preclude a general denial even in a limited civil case when the action is a claim assigned to a third party for collection [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion see Ch. 26, Answers .

[2] Use of Form

This form of complaint is for use in an action by a lessor against a lessee to recover for damages to real property resulting from the negligent maintenance of the premises in violation of Health & Safety Code § 13001 and a city ordinance.

For additional discussion, including comments relating to actions under Health & Safety Code § 13007, verification of the complaint, and additional cross references, see § 267.50.

For discussion of a lessee's liability to a lessor for fire, see § 267.12.

[3] Allegations

A complaint for property damage caused by negligent violation of a statute or city ordinance should allege facts showing:

- The violation of the code section or local ordinance (Paragraphs 7, 8);
- That such violations proximately caused the damage or injuries complained of (Paragraphs 6, 7).

[2] Use of Form

This form of complaint is for use in an action by a building occupant against a business owner for damages to personal property resulting from the defendant's negligently permitting a fire set on his or her property to spread to the premises of plaintiff. Although this type of situation is arguably covered by Health & Safety Code§ 13007, Health & Safety Code § 13008 specifically addresses itself to the problem of spreading fires. Hence, this form can be used by itself to state a cause of action or in conjunction with previous forms as an independent count.

For additional discussion, including comments relating to verification of the complaint, as well as additional cross references, see § 267.50.

For discussion of a lessee's liability to a lessor for fire, see § 267.12.

[2] Use of Form

This form of complaint is for use in an action to recover expenses incurred in fighting a fire on public or private property and for the cost of providing rescue or emergency medical services pursuant to Health & Safety Code § 13009.

The form may also be used to recover the costs of investigating and making any reports regarding the fire and of accounting for the fire and of the collection of any funds pursuant to Health & Safety Code § 13009, including, but not limited to, the administrative costs of operating a fire suppression cost recovery program. This latter liability is limited to the actual amount expended attributable to the fire [Health & Safety Code § 13009.1(a)(1), (2)]. Neither a party seeking to recover fire suppression costs nor a party who successfully defends against such an action has a right to recover attorney's fees [Dep't of Forestry & Fire Prot. v. LeBrock (2002) 96 Cal. App. 4th 1137, 1140-1142, 117 Cal. Rptr. 2d 790] .

The form may provide a basis for an independent cause of action, or it may be joined as a count in a complaint for recovery of damages to property.

For additional discussion, including comments relating to verification of the complaint, as well as cross references, see § 267.50.

For discussion of fire suppression costs as damages, see § 267.18.

This form of complaint is for use by a person, or by the federal, state, county, public, or private agency incurring fire supression, rescue, and/or emergency medical costs to bring an action to recover those costs.

The action may be brought against a person [see Health & Safety Code § 13009(a)]:

- Other than a mortgagee, who, being in actual possession of a structure, fails or refuses to correct, within the time allotted for correction, despite having the right to do so, a fire hazard prohibited by law, for which a public agency properly has issued a notice of violation; or

- Including a mortgagee, who, having an obligation under other provisions of law to correct a fire hazard prohibited by law, for which a public agency has properly issued a notice of violation, fails or refuses to correct the hazard within the time allotted for correction, despite having the right to do so.

The action may also be used to recover the costs of investigating and making any reports regarding the fire, and of accounting for the fire, and of the collection of any funds pursuant to Health & Safety Code § 13009, including, but not limited to, the administrative costs of operating a fire suppression cost recovery program [Health & Safety Code § 13009.1]. Neither a party seeking to recover fire suppression costs nor a party who successfully defends against such an action has a right to recover attorney's fees [Dep't of Forestry & Fire Prot. v. LeBrock (2002) 96 Cal. App. 4th 1137, 1140-1142, 117 Cal. Rptr. 2d 790] .

For additional discussion, including comments relating to verification of the complaint, as well as cross references, see § 267.50.

For further discussion of fire suppression costs as damages, see § 267.18.

[3] Allegations

This form alleges:

- The defendant's status as a person in actual possession of premises, other than a mortgagee, or as a person, including a mortgagee, having an obligation under law to correct a fire hazard on premises (Paragraph 4).

- The issuance of a notice of violation relating to a fire hazard by a public agency (Paragraph 5).

- That the defendant failed or refused to correct the violation within the allotted time, despite having the right to do so (Paragraph 6).

- That a fire resulted from the hazard (Paragraph 7).

- That the plaintiff incurred fire supression expenses (Paragraph 8).

- An optional allegation, that the plaintiff incurred rescue and/or emergency medical expenses (Paragraph 9) [see Health & Safety Code § 13009(a)].

It also includes an optional allegation that the plaintiff incurred costs for investigation and reporting related to the fire and for collecting the amounts due under Health & Safety Code § 13009 [see Health & Safety Code § 13009.1].

[Verification, if desired. See § 267.50[1].]

[2] Use of Form

This form of complaint is for use in an action to recover damages for personal injuries sustained as a result of a landowner's negligent burning. When the plaintiff also seeks to recover for damages to real property, this complaint may join, with minor modifications, a second count in the format prescribed by §§ 267.50[1] or 267.52[1].

For additional discussion, including comments relating to verification of the complaint, as well as cross references, see § 267.50.

For discussion of a landowner's duty to make reasonable use of his or her property, see § 267.11[1].

[3] Allegations

A complaint for recovery of damages for personal injuries caused by fire should allege facts showing:

- Defendant's duty owed to plaintiff (Paragraphs 4, 5).
- Breach of that duty (Paragraph 6).
- Plaintiff's injuries were proximately caused by defendant's negligence (Paragraph 6).
- Plaintiff's damages (Paragraphs 7-10).

[4] Specification of Damages

In an action to recover damages for personal injury or wrongful death, the complaint must not state the amount of actual or punitive damages demanded for this cause of action [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)].

Otherwise, the amounts claimed as damages for anything other than personal injury or wrongful death (for example, property damage) must be alleged [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)] or an equivalent statement must be included, for example, a statement that the damages for a particular loss or harm sustained [see Civ. Code §§ 3281, 3282] are not known and that leave will be sought to amend the complaint to state the exact amount when ascertained. If this is done, counsel must remember to seek leave to amend the complaint to so state before judgment.

No claim for punitive damages may state an amount sought regardless of the nature of the case [Civ. Code § 3295(e)].

For discussion of and forms for requesting and stating the amount of damages sought when they are not stated in the complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 425.11, 425.115], see Ch. 177, Damages , and Ch. 205, Defaults and Default Judgments .

[1] FORM Complaint for Damages to Property and Personal Injuries Based on Negligence--By Independent Contractor Against Building Owner--Representation That Incinerator Was Safe to Discharge Rubbish Into

[Caption. See § 267.50[1].]

Plaintiff alleges:

1. [Capacity and residence of defendant. See § 267.50, Paragraph 1.]

2. [Fictitious name allegation, if appropriate. See § 267.50[1], Paragraph 2.]

3. [Agency allegation, if appropriate. See § 267.50[1], Paragraph 3.]

4. On _____ [date], and prior thereto, plaintiff was engaged in the business of _____ [describe, e.g., laying, installing, repairing, and refinishing hardwood floors] and was operating his/her business at _____ [address] in _____ [city], _____ County, California.

5. Prior to _____ [date], plaintiff had entered into a[n] [oral] contract with defendant wherein plaintiff, for an agreed compensation, was to _____ [describe the duties plaintiff was to perform under the contract, e.g., install and finish certain hardwood floors] at _____ [location where work was to be performed]. Pursuant to that contract, plaintiff, prior to _____ [date], entered on the premises for the purpose of fulfilling the terms of his/her agreement. In connection with the performance of the contract _____ [continue description of duties and events leading up to injury, e.g., to smooth the hardwood floors that plaintiff installed in the apartment, it was necessary for plaintiff to and he/she did use a sanding machine, which use produced an accumulation of wood sawdust and fine shavings, which are generally known to be highly combustible and flammable]. As the rubbish accumulated, plaintiff, prior to _____ [date], asked defendant what disposition should be made of it and then and there stated to defendant that the material was highly combustible and flammable. Defendant advised plaintiff to dispose of the accumulation by discharging same into a certain chute, which led to an incinerator on the premises. Defendant did then and there carelessly and negligently advise plaintiff that no fire was built in the incinerator and that it was safe to discharge the accumulation into the incinerator [chute] at any time.

6. The accumulation of rubbish constituted a highly dangerous, explosive, combustible, and flammable mixture, which fact was known to defendant at the time he/she advised the discharge into the incinerator [chute].

7. Thereafter and on _____ [date], plaintiff, relying on the statements of defendant and believing that no fire had been built in the incinerator, discharged into the incinerator [chute a certain quantity of the rubbish. In truth and in fact, on _____ [date], defendant had built a fire in the incinerator, which fact was unknown to plaintiff. On throwing the mixture into the incinerator [chute], the mixture then and there exploded with great force and violence, caught fire, and burned.

8. As a proximate result of the carelessness and negligence of defendant and of the resulting explosion and fire, the burning mixture was caused to be thrown on the body of plaintiff, causing him/her serious personal injuries, to wit: _____ [describe injuries].

[2] Use of Form

This form of complaint is for use by a property owner against the federal government to recover for damages to property resulting from a forest fire negligently set and permitted to escape to plaintiff's property.

[3] Contents of Complaint

Every pleading shall contain a caption setting forth the name of the court, the title of the action, the file number, and a designation of the nature of the pleading as set forth in Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 7(a) (permissible pleadings in federal district courts). In a complaint, the title of the action must include the names of all the parties [Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 10(a)].

A pleading setting forth a claim for relief shall contain a short statement of the grounds on which federal court jurisdiction is based, a short and plain statement of the claim showing that the pleader is entitled to relief, and a demand for judgment for relief [Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 8(a)]. There are no technical forms of pleading, but each averment must be simple, concise, and direct [Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 8(e)].

All averments of a claim shall be made in numbered paragraphs, each containing a statement of a single set of circumstances, and each separate claim shall be stated in a separate count [Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 10(b)].

[4] Verification

Except when otherwise specifically provided by rule or statute, pleadings in federal district courts need not be verified or accompanied by affidavit [Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 11].

[5] Signature

Every pleading of a party represented by an attorney shall be signed by at least one attorney of record in his individual name, whose address shall be stated. A party who is not represented by an attorney shall sign his pleading and state his address. The signature of an attorney or party constitutes a certificate by him that he has read the pleading; that to the best of his or her knowledge, information, and belief formed after reasonable inquiry it is well grounded in fact and is warranted by existing law or a good faith argument for the extension, modification, or reversal of existing law, and that it is not interposed for any improper purpose, such as to harass or to cause unnecessary delay or needless increase in the cost of litigation [Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 11(a)].

If a pleading, motion, or other paper is not signed, it shall be stricken unless it is signed promptly after the omission is called to the attention of the pleader or movant. If a pleading, motion, or other paper is signed in violation of this rule, the court, on motion or on its own initiative, shall impose on the person who signed it, a represented party, or both, an appropriate sanction, which may include an order to pay to the other party or parties the amount of the reasonable expenses incurred because of the filing of the pleading, motion, or other paper, including a reasonable attorney's fee [Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 11(a)].

[6] No Trial by Jury

An action brought against the United States under 28 U.S.C. § 1346(b) must be tried by the court without a jury [28 U.S.C. § 2402].

§ 268.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter discusses the governmental regulation of the manufacture, sale, and distribution of food products and the theories of liability on which civil actions for damages arising from the use or consumption of defective food products may be based. Immunities from liability for certain charitable food donations are also discussed.

This chapter includes forms of complaints:

- By a purchaser against a manufacturer and a retailer for damages caused by consuming a defective, packaged food product [see § 268.50].

- By a diner against a restaurant for damages caused by consuming an unwholesome meal prepared by the restaurant [see § 268.51].

- By a purchaser against a manufacturer and retailer for damages caused by a breach of an express warranty pertaining to a food product [see § 268.52].

The chapter also provides alternative forms of allegations of negligence [see §§ 268.53, 268.54] and of breach of an implied warranty of fitness for human consumption [see §§ 268.55 -268.57].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

22-268 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 268.11

§ 268.11 Statutory Regulation of Food Products

[1] In General

The production, distribution, and sale of food products are regulated by federal, state, and local laws. Such regulation of food products to conserve and protect the health of its citizens is a legitimate exercise of police power [Lewis Food Co. v. State of California (1952) 110 Cal. App. 2d 759, 762, 243 P.2d 802] .

[2] State Statutes

The Sherman Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Law (Health & Safety Code § 109875 et seq.) generally regulates the production and sale of food in the State of California [see Health & Safety Code § 110425 et seq. (general provisions applicable to foods)]. Particular groups or types of foods are covered under various provisions of the Health and Safety Code and the Food and Agriculture Code [see, e.g., Food & Agric. Code §§ 32501 et seq. (Milk and Milk Products Act of 1947), 40501 et seq. (certification, processing and canning, and canned foods), 42501 et seq. (fruit, nut, and vegetable standards)].

[3] Constitutionality of State Statutes

Unless the objectives of a state or local law under attack are clearly erroneous and without reasonable foundation, the law is to be upheld, not struck down [Lewis Food Co. v. State of California (1952) 110 Cal. App. 2d 759, 762, 243 P.2d 802] . To determine the constitutionality of a police power statute, a court must first look at the purposes of the regulation; secondly, it must ascertain whether the statute in question is related in a reasonable fashion to those purposes [Tip Top Foods, Inc. v. Lyng (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 533, 541, 104 Cal. Rptr. 718] . For example, recordkeeping requirements imposed on manufacturers of imitation milk products have been upheld as a constitutional exercise of police power since they serve the purpose of aiding in tracing dangerous and contaminated products if a particular batch of a product should be defectively manufactured [Tip Top Foods, Inc. v. Lyng (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 533, 543, 104 Cal. Rptr. 718 ; Coffee-Rich, Inc. v. Fielder (1972) 1972 Trade Cas. (CCH) P74186, 27 Cal. App. 3d 792, 812-813, 104 Cal. Rptr. 252] .

Similarly, labeling and informational requirements that have been imposed on manufacturers and distributors of products have been upheld since they are reasonably related to the statutory purposes of preventing deception and protecting public health [see In re Bear (1932) 216 Cal. 536, 541-542, 15 P.2d 489 ; Tip Top Foods, Inc. v. Lyng (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 533, 544-548, 104 Cal. Rptr. 718] .

On the other hand, a state statute that provided that no imitation milk products could be used at any penal institution or in any state-supported charitable institution was determined to be unconstitutional since there was nothing to indicate that this provision was reasonably necessary to promote public health and safety or the general welfare of the community [Coffee-Rich, Inc. v. Fielder (1972) 1972 Trade Cas. (CCH) P74186, 27 Cal. App. 3d 792, 811, 104 Cal. Rptr. 252 (declaring former Food & Agric. Code § 38904 unconstitutional)].

[4] Federal Laws; Preemption

The production and sale of food and food products are also the subject of a substantial body of federal legislation. In some situations, both federal and state authorities may exercise authority over a particular type of food. For example, the California Legislature may impose more demanding standards on the quality of avocados imported into the state than the federal standards regulating the maturity of avocados that may pass in interstate commerce since the maturity of avocados is not a subject of exclusive federal regulation and the state has a legitimate interest in the protection of the public against fraud and deception in the sale of food products at the retail level [Florida Avocado Growers v. Paul (1963) 373 U.S. 132, 142-144, 83 S. Ct. 1210, 10 L. Ed. 2d 248] . In other situations, federal legislation will preempt state legislation, and state officials must comply with the requirements of the federal laws. For example, in the federal Wholesome Meat Act of 1967, Congress left no doubt that only its provisions are applicable to the mislabeling or misbranding of meat. The enforcement of inconsistent California laws on this subject exceeded the concurrent enforcement rights of the state and its officers [see Jones v. Rath Packing Co. (1977) 430 U.S. 519, 530-532, 97 S. Ct. 1305, 51 L. Ed. 2d 604] .

Chapter 268 FOOD
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

22-268 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 268.12

§ 268.12 Enforcement of State Statutes

[1] In General

The Attorney General, any district attorney, or any city attorney to whom the Department of Health reports any violation of the Sherman Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Law (Health & Safety Code § 109875 et seq.) can begin appropriate proceedings in the proper court [Health & Safety Code § 111840]. The Department of Health, however, is not required to institute proceedings if it believes that the public interest will be adequately served in the circumstances by a suitable written notice or warning [Health & Safety Code § 111845].

[2] Embargo and Seizure

An authorized agent of the State Department of Health who finds, or who has probable cause to believe, that any food is adulterated, misbranded, or falsely advertised or that the sale of any food would be in violation of the Sherman Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Law may affix to the food a tag or other appropriate marking. The agent gives notice that the food is, or is suspected of being, adulterated, misbranded, or falsely advertised, or that the sale of the food would be in violation of the food laws. No person may remove or dispose of the tagged food unless permission for removal or disposal has been given by an authorized agent of the Department of Public Health or by a court [Health & Safety Code §§ 111860, 111865]. If there is reasonable cause to believe that the embargo will be violated, an authorized agent may remove the food to a place of safekeeping [Health & Safety Code § 111875]. When an agent finds that the food is not in violation of the food laws, he or she will remove the tag or other markings [Health & Safety Code § 111870].

[3] Condemnation

An agent of the State Department of Health who finds any meat, meat products, seafoods, poultry, vegetable, fruit, or other food that is unsound or that contains any filthy, decomposed, or putrid substance, or that may be poisonous or deleterious to health or otherwise unsafe, may declare the food to be a nuisance. After this action, the department, or its authorized agent, will condemn or destroy the food or render it unsalable as human food by decharacterization [Health & Safety Code § 111890]. The Department of Health then will commence proceedings for condemnation of the food in the superior court that has jurisdiction over the food [see Health & Safety Code § 111880]. If the court finds that the food is in violation of the laws, the food must be destroyed after entry of judgment at the expense of the owner or claimant [Health & Safety Code § 111885]. Any superior court of this state may condemn any food, drug, device, or cosmetic under provisions of this part. In the absence of an order, the food, drug, device, or cosmetic may be destroyed under the supervision of an authorized agent of the department who has the written consent of the owner, his or her attorney, or authorized representative [Health & Safety Code § 111895].

The food need not necessarily be injurious to health in order to be condemned. The authorities may condemn if the food is decomposed, and no requirement exists that the decomposition must be to such an extent that consumption of the article would be injurious to health. Also, there is not any requirement that the article be unfit for food. The laws are aimed not only at preventing the manufacture and sale of contaminated and harmful foods, but are also aimed at preventing fraud in the sale and manufacture of the food. For example, in one situation, cases of candy were condemned despite a showing that the candies were not harmful to human health. Since the label "Life Savers" stands for a certain quality and type of goods, to place the label on stale candy that has lost its flavoring was to misrepresent or misbrand the product within the meaning of the applicable code sections [People v. 748 Cases of Life Saver Candy (1949) 94 Cal. App. 2d 599, 605-608, 211 P.2d 383 (decided under former Health & Safety Code §§ 26459, 26470(3), 26472(3), 26490, 26563); now see Health & Safety Code § 110745].

[4] Reclamation of Food

If the adulteration or misbranding can be corrected by proper labeling or processing of the food or if the false advertisement can be corrected and all provisions of the law complied with, the court may order that the food be delivered to the owner or claimant to be brought into compliance. Before such delivery, all costs, fees, and expenses in connection with the embargo must be paid and a bond posted. An agent of the Department of Health will supervise the compliance procedure, and the owner must bear the expense of such supervision. The bond will be discharged when the court finds that the food is no longer in violation of the laws and that all of the expenses of the supervision have been paid [Health & Safety Code § 111885].

[5] Injunctions, Fines, and Civil Penalties

The Attorney General or any district attorney, on behalf of the Department of Health, may bring an action in superior court to grant a temporary or permanent injunction restraining any person from violating any provision of the Sherman Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Law. Any proceeding must conform to Code Civ. Proc. § 525 et seq., dealing with permanent and temporary injunctions, except that the department will not be required to allege facts necessary to show, or tending to show, lack of adequate remedy at law or irreparable damage or loss [Health & Safety Code § 111900]. See generally Ch. 303, Injunctions for a more detailed discussion of the procedure for obtaining an injunction. In addition to injunctive relief, the court may impose as a civil penalty damages in the maximum amount of $1,000 for each day the violation is continued [Health & Safety Code § 111915]. On finding a violation, the court must also award to the department all reasonable costs, including for storage and testing, incurred by the department in investigating and prosecuting the action. The reasonableness of the costs is to be determined by the court [Health & Safety Code § 111905].

The State Department of Health is authorized to issue and serve a complaint against a person that it concludes, after reasonable examination, has violated any of the Sherman Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Law provisions or related regulations [Health & Safety Code § 111855(a), (c); see also Health & Safety Code §§ 108900, 112260, 111940 et seq. (similar provisions for certain hazardous substances)]. If the alleged violator does not file a notice of defense, the department may issue an order setting civil penalties [Health & Safety Code § 111855(d)], which may not exceed $1,000 per day [Health & Safety Code § 111855(b)]. The order is not subject to review by any court or agency [Health & Safety Code § 111855(d)].

If a notice of defense is filed, a department hearing officer must conduct a hearing within 90 days after the department receives the notice of defense [Health & Safety Code § 111855(d)]. On finding that the person has committed violations, the officer may impose civil penalties [Health & Safety Code § 111855(a), (f)].

An order setting civil penalties made after a hearing becomes effective and final on issuance, must be served on the person who was served with the complaint, and is reviewable by a petition for writ of mandate made to the superior court within 30 days after the person is served with a copy of the decision [Health & Safety Code § 111855(f), (g); see generally Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5]. The court must uphold the administrative decision if the decision is based on substantial evidence in the whole record. The filing of the writ will not stay any corrective action required by the decision or the accrual of any penalties assessed [Health & Safety Code § 111855(g)]. This remedy is in addition to, and does not supersede or limit, any other civil or criminal remedies, and the court may grant any appropriate relief within its jurisdiction [Health & Safety Code § 111855(g), (h)]. For general discussion of administrative hearings and mandate proceedings for judicial review of administrative decisions and forms for use in such proceedings, see Ch. 473, Public Agency Adjudication , through Ch. 474C, Procedures in Reviewing Agency Decisions .

Chapter 268 FOOD
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

22-268 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 268.13

§ 268.13 Packaged Foods and Their Containers

[1] Strict Liability

A manufacturer is strictly liable in tort if an article it places on the market and knows will be used without inspection for defects proves to have a defect that causes injury to a person [Greenman v. Yuba Power Products, Inc. (1963) 59 Cal. 2d 57, 62, 27 Cal. Rptr. 697, 377 P.2d 897 (defective power tool)]. Under the strict products liability theory, manufacturers and suppliers of defective products are liable for injuries caused by those defects, regardless of whether or not they were negligent in designing, manufacturing, or distributing the products [Jimenez v. Superior Court (2002) 29 Cal. 4th 473, 477, 127 Cal. Rptr. 2d 614, 58 P.3d 450] .

The strict liability theory appears to be applicable to defective food products and their containers manufactured, processed, or distributed by retailers and manufacturers. For discussion and forms of products liability generally, see Ch. 460, Products Liability .

Strict liability cannot be based on the presence of a substance natural to the food [Ford v. Miller Meat Co. (1994) 28 Cal. App. 4th 1196,1201-1202, 33 Cal. Rptr. 2d 899 (bone fragment in packaged hamburger is natural substance, relying on Mexicali Rose v. Superior Court (1992) 1 Cal. 4th 617, 4 Cal. Rptr. 2d 145, 822 P.2d 1292 , which involved restaurant food)].

Moreover, manufacturers and sellers are not strictly liable for injuries or death caused by a common consumer product intended for personal consumption if the product is inherently unsafe and, with the ordinary knowledge common to the community, is known to be unsafe by the ordinary consumer who consumes the product [see Civ. Code § 1714.45]. For further discussion, see [5], below.

For a form of complaint for damages against a manufacturer or retailer for injuries caused by defective food or food containers, based on strict liability, negligence, and breach of implied warranties, see § 268.50.

[2] Breach of Implied Warranty

[a] In General

Damages for injuries caused by defective food may also be sought on a theory of breach of implied warranty. Unless excluded or modified, a warranty that goods will be merchantable is implied in a contract for their sale if the seller is a merchant with respect to goods of that kind [Com. Code § 2314(1)]. To be merchantable, goods must be at least fit for the ordinary purposes for which such goods are used [Com. Code § 2314(2)(c)]. The implied warranty that the food is fit for human consumption extends to every consumer of food [Klein v. Duchess Sandwich Co., Ltd. (1939) 14 Cal. 2d 272, 284, 93 P.2d 799 ; Kassouf v. Lee Bros., Inc. (1962) 209 Cal. App. 2d 568, 573, 26 Cal. Rptr. 276 (both decided under former Com. Code § 1735; now see Com. Code § 2314)].

Examples of cases in which a breach of implied warranty was found include:

- A wrapped sandwich that contained maggots [Klein v. Duchess Sandwich Co., Ltd. (1939) 14 Cal. 2d 272, 282, 93 P.2d 799 (decided under former Com. Code § 1735; now see Com. Code § 2314)].

- Salami that contained trichinae [Vaccarezza v. Sanguinetti (1945) 71 Cal. App. 2d 687, 689-691, 163 P.2d 470 (decided under former Com. Code § 1735; now see Com. Code § 2314)].

- A chocolate bar that was covered with worms and webbing [Kassouf v. Lee Bros., Inc. (1962) 209 Cal. App. 2d 568, 571-573, 26 Cal. Rptr. 276 (decided under former Com. Code § 1735; now see Com. Code § 2314)].

- A bottle of soda that contained a cleaning brush [Medeiros v. Coca-Cola Bottling Co. (1943) 57 Cal. App. 2d 707, 714-715, 135 P.2d 676 (decided under former Com. Code § 1735; now see Com. Code § 2314)].

The implied warranty of merchantability extends to the packaging or other material that contains the food. For example, if a milk bottle is so defective that it breaks under normal handling, it is not fit for the ordinary use for which it was intended, and the delivery of such a defective bottle constitutes a breach of an implied warranty [Vassallo v. Sabatte Land Co. (1963) 212 Cal. App. 2d 11, 16, 27 Cal. Rptr. 814 (decided under former Com. Code § 1735; now see Com. Code § 2314); but see Trust v. Arden Farms Co. (1958) 50 Cal. 2d 217, 221-223, 324 P.2d 583 (decided under former Com. Code § 1735; now see Com. Code § 2314)].

Breach of implied warranty cannot, however, be based on the presence of a substance natural to the food [Ford v. Miller Meat Co. (1994) 28 Cal. App. 4th 1196, 1201-1202, 33 Cal. Rptr. 2d 899 (bone fragment in packaged hamburger is natural substance, relying on Mexicali Rose v. Superior Court (1992) 1 Cal. 4th 617, 4 Cal. Rptr. 2d 145, 822 P.2d 1292 , which involved restaurant food)].

Manufacturers and sellers are not liable under an implied warranty theory for injuries or death caused by a common consumer product intended for personal consumption if the product is inherently unsafe and is known to be unsafe by the ordinary consumer who consumes the product with the ordinary knowledge common to the community [see Civ. Code § 1714.45]. For further discussion, see [5] below.

For a form of complaint for damages against a manufacturer or retailer for injuries caused by defective food or food containers, based on strict liability, negligence, and breach of implied warranties, see § 268.50.

For further general discussion of liability for breach of implied warranties, see Ch. 460, Products Liability , and Ch. 500, Sales and Secured Transactions .

[b] Notice of Breach

When goods have been accepted, the buyer must, within a reasonable time after he or she discovers or should have discovered any breach of an implied warranty, notify the seller of the breach or be barred from any remedy [Com. Code § 2607(3)(A)]. Notwithstanding the arguments that the purpose of notice in food actions is to afford the seller an opportunity to make good the defective article and that this cannot be done if the food has been consumed, the requirement of notice has been applied to the sale of foods on the theory that the purpose of notice is to advise the seller that he must meet a claim for damages. The law requires that the seller have an early warning [Whitfield v. Jessup (1948) 31 Cal. 2d 826, 830, 193 P.2d 1 (decided under former Com. Code § 1735; now see Com. Code § 2314)].

The question of what constitutes a reasonable time under Com. Code § 2607(3)(A) for the giving of notice is usually a question of fact for the jury [Los Angeles Nut House v. Holiday Hardware Corp. (9th Cir. 1987) 825 F.2d 1351, 1354 (applying California law)].

[c] Privity Unnecessary

Privity of contract is not necessary in sales of food since the implied warranty of fitness is intended not only for the benefit of the immediate buyer but also for the benefit of the ultimate consumer. To allow recovery by a third person who consumed unwholesome food purchased by another would not impose a greater burden either on the manufacturer or on the immediate seller of the food since the implied warranty that the food is for the purpose for which it was intended, human consumption, is extended to every consumer [Klein v. Duchess Sandwich Co., Ltd. (1939) 14 Cal. 2d 272, 284, 93 P.2d 799 (decided under former Com. Code § 1735; now see Com. Code § 2314)].

[d] Proof of Breach of Implied Warranty

To establish a breach of implied warranty, the preponderance of the evidence must show that the product was defective when it left the defendant and was sold to the plaintiff [Trust v. Arden Farms Co. (1958) 50 Cal. 2d 217, 223, 324 P.2d 583 ; Tidlund v. Seven Up Bottling Co. (1957) 154 Cal. App. 2d 663, 666, 316 P.2d 656] . Thus, if a plaintiff fails to show that the condition of a defective container did not change after it left the possession of the manufacturer, recovery is denied [Trust v. Arden Farms Co. (1958) 50 Cal. 2d 217, 221-223, 324 P.2d 583 (milk bottle handled at least once during three days it sat in plaintiff's refrigerator and was accessible to three children in house)].

[e] Plaintiff's Negligence Not a Defense

The breach of an implied warranty imposes an absolute liability on the manufacturer and seller, regardless of any negligent actions by a plaintiff. If the negligence of the plaintiff was a factor instead of having an implied affirmation that the food is reasonably fit for human consumption, plaintiff will have an affirmation only that it was fit to be consumed in the exercise of ordinary care [Kassouf v. Lee Bros., Inc. (1962) 209 Cal. App. 2d 568, 572-573, 26 Cal. Rptr. 276 (decided under former Com. Code § 1735; now see Com. Code § 2314)].

[3] Express Warranty

Any affirmation of fact or promise made by the seller to the buyer that relates to the goods and becomes part of the basis of the bargain creates an express warranty that the goods will conform to the affirmation or promise [Com. Code § 2313(1)(a)]. Similarly, any description of the goods that is made part of the basis of the bargain creates an express warranty that the goods will conform to the description [Com. Code § 2313(1)(b)].

Any representation on which a buyer relies as to special quality made by a seller to induce a sale is a warranty, especially if inspection by the buyer is not possible and the seller knows the quality of the goods and the buyer does not. Generally, the courts will construe liberally in favor of the buyer any language used by the seller in making affirmations respecting the quality of his goods and to enlarge the responsibility of the seller to construe every affirmation by him or her to be a warranty if such construction is at all reasonable [see Hauter v. Zogarts (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 104, 112-113, 120 Cal. Rptr. 681, 534 P.2d 377 (statement that game contained completely safe ball that would not hit player); Lane

v. C. A. Swanson & Sons (1955) 130 Cal. App. 2d 210, 214-215, 278 P.2d 723 (can label stated contents were "boned chicken")].

For a form of complaint for damages against a manufacturer or retailer for injuries caused by breach of an express warranty pertaining to a food product, see § 268.52.

For further general discussion of liability for breach of express warranties, see Ch. 460, Products Liability , and Ch. 500, Sales and Secured Transactions .

[4] Negligence

[a] In General

Damages for injuries caused by defective food or defective food containers may also be predicated on a theory of negligence [see generally Civ. Code § 1714(a)]. Examples of cases in which damages for negligence were upheld include a prepared and wrapped sandwich that contained maggots [Klein v. Duchess Sandwich Co., Ltd. (1939) 14 Cal. 2d 272, 275-276, 93 P.2d 799] and a soda bottle that contained a decayed mouse [Moss v. Coca Cola Bottling Co. (1951) 103 Cal. App. 2d 380, 382, 229 P.2d 802] . Note, however, that manufacturers and sellers are not liable on a negligence theory for injuries or death caused by a common consumer product intended for personal consumption if the product is inherently unsafe and is known to be unsafe by the ordinary consumer who consumes the product, with the ordinary knowledge common to the community [see Civ. Code § 1714.45]. For further discussion, see [5] below.

For a form of complaint for damages against a manufacturer or retailer for injuries caused by defective food or food containers, based on strict liability, negligence, and breach of implied warranties, see § 268.50.

For further general discussion of liability for negligence, see Ch. 460, Products Liability , and Ch. 380, Negligence .

[b] Res Ipsa Loquitur

The doctrine of res ipsa loquitur, a presumption affecting the burden of producing evidence [Evid. Code § 646], has been applied to defective food and container actions.

For example, after showing that defendant bottling company had exclusive control of the charging and inspection of bottles, plaintiffs have taken advantage of res ipsa loquitur and recovered damages for injuries suffered when a soda bottle exploded in the plaintiff's hand [Escola v. Coca Cola Bottling Co. (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 453, 461, 150 P.2d 436] and when a plaintiff obtained a soft drink from a vending machine that contained a dead mouse [Paul v. Rodgers Bottling Co. (1960) 183 Cal. App. 2d 680, 685, 6 Cal. Rptr. 867] .

A plaintiff might be able to rely on res ipsa loquitur if a bone fragment in ground meat were of a size that could not remain after the grinding process, but if the bone particle is so tiny it could come through the grinding process, the presence of the fragment cannot be attributed to lack of due care, and negligence can not be established [Ford v. Miller Meat Co. (1994) 28 Cal. App. 4th 1196, 1203, 33 Cal. Rptr. 2d 899 (bone fragment in packaged hamburger too small to be basis of liability)].

For a detailed discussion of the doctrine of res ipsa loquitur, see Ch. 380, Negligence .

[5] Limitation on Liability for Inherently Unsafe Products

A manufacturer or seller is not liable in a products liability action for injuries or death caused by a common consumer product intended for personal consumption if the product is inherently unsafe and is known to be unsafe by the ordinary consumer who consumes the product, with the ordinary knowledge common to the community [Civ. Code § 1714.45(a) ]. "Common consumer product" means items such as sugar, castor oil, alcohol, tobacco, or butter that are identified in the Restatement (Second) of Torts § 402A, comment i [Civ. Code § 1714.45(a)(2)].

The statutory limitation on liability for inherently unsafe products bars actions premised on inherently unsafe qualities of some foods (for example, to recover damages for illnesses caused by high cholestterol), but not actions for injuries caused by harmful foreign substances found in a containor of food. In addition, the limitation does not exempt tobacco manufacturers and their successors from liability for the manufacture and sale of tobacco products [Civ Code § 1714.45(g)]. For further discussion, see Ch. 460, Products Liability , and J. Cotchett & R. Cartwright, eds., California Products Liability Actions, Ch.2 (Matthew Bender rev. ed.)].

Chapter 268 FOOD
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

22-268 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 268.14

§ 268.14 Food Services

[1] Strict Liability

A plaintiff has no cause of action in strict liability if the injury-producing substance is natural to the preparation of the food served; in such a situation, it can be said that the substance was reasonably expected by its very nature, and the food cannot be determined defective [Mexicali Rose v. Superior Court (1992) 1 Cal. 4th 617, 630-631, 4 Cal. Rptr. 2d 145, 822 P.2d 1292 (chicken bone in chicken enchilada)]. However, if the injury-causing substance is foreign to the food served, a cause of action in strict liability can be stated, and the trier of fact will determine whether the substance (1) could be reasonably expected by the average consumer, and (2) rendered the food defective [Mexicali Rose v. Superior Court (1992) 1 Cal. 4th 617, 631, 4 Cal. Rptr. 2d 145, 822 P.2d 1292] .

Strict liability for failure to warn also applies to restaurants in the context of food allergies. A restaurant may be strictly liable for failing to warn customers about additives in the food served. The product added, which itself may not be defective, may be defective because of inadequate warnings [Livingston v. Marie Callenders, Inc. (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 830, 838, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 528] . In that situation, a defendant may be liable if its product contained an ingredient to which a substantial number of the population is allergic, the ingredient is one whose danger is not generally known, or if known is not one which the customer would reasonably expect to find in the product, and the defendant knew or should have known that the ingredient was present and was dangerous [Livingston v. Marie Callenders, Inc. (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 830, 839, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 528] .

For a form of complaint for damages against a restaurant or other eating establishment for injuries caused by serving defective food, see § 268.51.

[2] Breach of Implied Warranty

The serving for value of food or drink to be consumed either on the premises or elsewhere is a sale subject to the Uniform Commercial Code [Com. Code § 2314(1)]. As a necessary incident to such a sale, there exists an implied warranty that imposes on the restaurant operator the obligation to furnish food reasonably fit for human consumption. If a patron suffers injury as a result of eating food that is not reasonably fit for human consumption, the restaurant operator is liable for damages [Mix v. Ingersoll Candy Co. (1936) 6 Cal. 2d 674, 680, 59 P.2d 144 (decided under former Com.

Code § 1735; now see Com. Code § 2314)]. For example, it has been deemed reversible error for a trial court to deny plaintiff the right to raise breach of an implied warranty as a theory of liability when glass was found in her meal [Goetten v. Owl Drug Co. (1936) 6 Cal. 2d 683, 685-688, 59 P.2d 142 (decided under former Com. Code § 1735; now see Com. Code § 2314)].

Liability under a theory of implied warranty is precluded if the injury-producing substance is natural to the preparation of the food served; in such a situation, it can be said that the substance was reasonably expected by its very nature, and the food cannot be determined unfit [Mexicali Rose v. Superior Court (1992) 1 Cal. 4th 617, 630-631, 4 Cal. Rptr. 2d 145, 822 P.2d 1292 (chicken bones in chicken enchilada); see Mix v. Ingersoll Candy Co. (1936) 6 Cal. 2d 674, 682, 59 P.2d 144 (bones in meat pie; decided under former Com. Code § 1735: now see Com. Code § 2314); Lamb v. Hill (1952) 112 Cal. App. 2d 41, 42, 245 P.2d 316 (decided under former Com. Code § 1735; now see Com. Code § 2314)]. However, if the injury-causing substance is foreign to the food served, a cause of action for breach of the implied warranty can be stated, and the trier of fact will determine whether the substance (1) could be reasonably expected by the average consumer and (2) rendered the food unfit [Mexicali Rose v. Superior Court (1992) 1 Cal. 4th 617, 631, 4 Cal. Rptr. 2d 145, 822 P.2d 1292] .

The notice requirements involved in the implied warranty theory of recovery [see Com. Code § 2607(3)(A)] must be met if an action is commenced for damages resulting from defective food service [see discussion under § 268.13[2][b], above].

For a form of complaint for damages against a restaurant or other eating establishment for injuries caused by breach of implied warranty in connection with food service, see § 268.51.

[3] Negligence

Restaurants have also been held liable for damages caused by negligent food preparation that resulted in the service of unwholesome or injurious foods [see, e.g., Goetten v. Owl Drug Co. (1936) 6 Cal. 2d 683, 687, 59 P.2d 142 ; Mix v. Ingersoll Candy Co. (1936) 6 Cal. 2d 674, 682-683, 59 P.2d 144 ; see generally Civ. Code § 1714(a)]. A plaintiff injured by a substance in his or her food, whether the substance is natural or foreign to the food served, may recover under a negligence theory if the presence of the substance was due to a restaurant operator's failure to exercise due care in food preparation [Mexicali Rose v. Superior Court (1992) 1 Cal. 4th 617, 632-633, 4 Cal. Rptr. 2d 145, 822 P.2d 1292 (overruling Mix v. Ingersoll Candy Co. (1936) 6 Cal. 2d 674, 59 P.2d 144 , to the extent that it precluded negligence cause of action for injury caused by substances natural to preparation of food served)]. For discussion and forms concerning negligence, see Ch. 380, Negligence .

For a form of complaint for damages against a restaurant or other eating establishment for injuries caused by negligence in the preparation or service of food, see § 268.51.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

22-268 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 268.15

§ 268.15 Donations by Food Facility to Food Bank

[1] In General

Any food facility may donate, free of charge, food to a food bank or to any other nonprofit charitable organization for distribution to persons free of charge [Health & Safety Code § 114432; see Health & Safety Code § 113841; Rev. & Tax. Code § 214 (nonprofit charitable organization defined)]. For the purposes of Health & Safety Code § 114432 et seq., "food bank" means a surplus food collection and distribution system operated and established to assist in bringing donated food to nonprofit charitable organizations and to individuals for the purpose of reducing hunger and meeting nutritional needs [Health & Safety Code § 113783].

[2] Limitations on Liability Regarding Food Donations

[a] Food Facility

No food facility that donates food as permitted by Health & Safety Code § 114432 et seq. is subject to civil or criminal liability or penalty for violation of any laws, regulations, or ordinances regulating the labeling or packaging of the donated product or, with respect to any other laws, regulations, or ordinances, for a violation occurring after the time of the donation [Health & Safety Code § 114433].

No food facility that donates any food that is fit for human consumption at the time it was donated to a nonprofit charitable organization or a food bank is liable for any damage or injury resulting from the consumption of the donated food, except with regard to injury resulting from negligence or a willful act in the preparation or handling of donated food [Civ. Code § 1714.25(a)]. The immunity from civil liability under Civ. Code § 1714.25(a) applies regardless of compliance with any laws, regulations, or ordinances regulating the packaging or labeling of food and regardless of compliance with any laws, regulations, or ordinances regulating the storage or handling of the food by the donee after the donation of the food [Civ. Code § 1714.25(a)].

[b] Nonprofit Charitable Organization or Food Bank

A nonprofit charitable organization (as defined in Health & Safety Code § 113841) or a food bank (as defined in Health & Safety Code § 113783) that, in good faith, receives and distributes without charge food that is fit for human consumption at the time it was distributed is not liable for an injury or death due to the food unless the injury or death is a direct result of the negligence, recklessness, or intentional misconduct of the organization [Civ. Code § 1714.25(b) (limitation), (c) (definitions)].

[3] Additional Immunities

The immunities provided in Health & Safety Code § 114432 et seq. and by Civ. Code § 1714.25 are in addition to any other immunities provided by law, including those provided by Food & Agric. Code §§ 58501-58509 [Health & Safety Code § 114434; see Food & Agric. Code § 58505, discussed under § 268.16[2][a] below].

§ 268.16 Donations of Agricultural Products to Nonprofit Charitable Organization

[1] In General

Any person engaged in the business of processing, distributing, or selling any agricultural product may donate, free of charge, any product that is in a condition that it may be used as food for human beings, to a nonprofit charitable organization within California [Food & Agric. Code § 58502(a); see Food & Agric. Code § 58501(c); Rev. & Tax. Code § 214 (nonprofit charitable organization defined)]. An "agricultural product" is any fowl, animal, vegetable, or other stuff, product, or article that is customary food, or that is proper for food, for human beings [Food & Agric. Code § 58501(a)].

[2] Liability in Connection With Agricultural Donations

[a] Limitation Regarding County Agency or Donor

No county or county agency established pursuant to the California Food Bank Act of 1984 (Food & Agric. Code §§ 58501-58509) and no person who donates any agricultural product is liable for any injury, including, but not limited to, injury resulting from the ingesting of the product, as a result of any act, or the omission of any act, in connection with donating any product pursuant to the Act, except with regard to any injury resulting from gross negligence or a willful act [Food & Agric. Code § 58505].

[b] Liability of Nonprofit Charitable Organization

Nothing in the California Food Bank Act of 1984 (Food & Agric. Code §§ 58501-58509) relieves any nonprofit charitable organization from any liability for any injury, including, but not limited to, injury resulting from the ingesting of the agricultural product, as a result of receiving, accepting, gathering, or removing any agriculatural product donated under the Act [Food & Agric. Code § 58506].

	)	(exceeds or does not exceed) $10,000]
		[LIMITED CIVIL CASE]

Plaintiff alleges:

FIRST COUNT
(Breach of Warranty)

1. Defendant _____ [name of manufacturer] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, _____ [a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of California or a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of _____ and authorized to do business and doing business in California], with its principal place of business in _____ [city], _____ County, California.

2. Defendant _____ [name of manufacturer] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, engaged in the _____ [specify activity, e.g., manufacture or processing or canning or selling] of foods for sale to and use by members of the general public, and plaintiff is informed and believes, and thereon alleges, that, as part of its business, defendant _____ [specify, e.g., manufactured or processed or canned or sold] the _____ [specify defective or harmful food, e.g., can of fruit] hereinafter referred to.

3. Defendant _____ [name of retailer] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a corporation duly organized and existing under the laws of the State of California, with its principal place of business at _____ [address], _____ [city], California.

4. Defendant _____ [name of retailer] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, engaged in the retail business of selling foods for human consumption by the general public.

[5. Plaintiff is ignorant of the true names and capacities of defendants sued herein as DOES I-_____, inclusive, and therefore sues these defendants by such fictitious names. Plaintiff will amend this complaint to allege their true names and capacities when ascertained. (Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that each of the fictitiously named defendants is responsible in some manner for the occurrences herein alleged, and that the harm to plaintiff as herein alleged was proximately caused by such conduct of defendants.)]

6. At all times herein mentioned, defendants, and each of them, intended that the _____ [specify type of food, e.g., can of fruit] distributed by them was to be used for human consumption.

7. On or about _____ [date], plaintiff bought from defendant _____ [name of retailer] at its store located at _____ [address] the _____ [specify type of food, e.g., can of fruit] and paid the required purchase price. The _____ [specify, e.g., can] bore the label of, and had been manufactured and processed by, defendant _____ [name of manufacturer].

8. On or about _____ [date], plaintiff opened the _____ [specify type of food, e.g., can of fruit] and proceeded to _____ [specify, e.g., eat] it. After having consumed a portion of the _____ [specify type of food, e.g., can of fruit] plaintiff discovered _____ [specify defect, e.g., that it contained a hazardous foreign substance, namely, metallic slivers].

9. At all times herein mentioned, defendants, and each of them, warranted to the general public and to plaintiff in particular that the _____ [specify type of food, e.g., can of fruit] was fit for human consumption.

10. Defendants, and each of them, breached their implied warranty when they offered for sale to the general public, and sold to plaintiff in particular, the _____ [specify type of food, e.g., can of fruit] in that _____ [specify defect that breach of warranty, e.g., it contained metallic slivers], which rendered the product unfit for human consumption. Plaintiff had purchased and consumed the _____ [specify, e.g., can of fruit] in reliance on the implied warranty breached by defendants.

11. Before the discovery by plaintiff, he/she did not know the dangerous and unhealthful condition of the _____ [specify type of food, e.g., can of fruit], but he/she reasonably believed it to be safe, pure, and fit for human consumption.

12. Within a reasonable time after the discovery by plaintiff of the breach of the implied warranty by defendants _____ [name of manufacturer] and _____ [name of retailer], plaintiff advised defendants in writing of the breach of warranty.

13. As a proximate result of consuming the harmful and defective _____ [specify type of food and defect, e.g., can of fruit and some of the metallic slivers contained in it], plaintiff suffered _____ [describe personal injuries, e.g., nausea, vomiting, and serious and permanent injuries to his/her health, strength, and activity] and was caused to suffer extreme physical and mental pain, all to plaintiff's general damage [in the sum of $_____].

14. As a further and proximate result of consuming the harmful and defective _____ [specify type of food, e.g., can of fruit], plaintiff was required to and did employ _____ [specify, e.g., physicians and surgeons or other medical personnel] to examine, treat, and care for him/her [and incurred additional expenses for hospital bills and other incidental medical expenses]. [Plaintiff is informed and believes, and thereon alleges, that, as a proximate result of the defect and injuries described above, plaintiff will be required to incur additional medical expenses (in the sum of $_____).]

15. As a further proximate result of consuming the harmful and defective _____ [specify type of food, e.g., can of fruit] described above, plaintiff was prevented from attending to his/her usual _____ [occupation or profession]. [Plaintiff is informed and believes, and thereon alleges, that he/she will continue to be prevented from attending to his/her usual _____ (occupation or profession) for a period in the future that cannot now be ascertained and will thereby sustain further loss of earnings.]

16. Plaintiff refers to Paragraphs 1 through 8 and 13 through 15 of the First Count and incorporates them herein by reference.

17. Because defendant _____ [name of manufacturer] was engaged in the business of _____ [specify activity, e.g., manufacturing or processing or canning or selling] of food and because defendant _____ [name of retailer] was engaged in the sale and distribution of food to the general public, each defendant owed a duty to the general public and to plaintiff in particular to use reasonable care to see that the products sold by them were fit for human consumption.

18. Defendants, and each of them, neglected to use reasonable care in the manufacture, processing, preparation, and sale of the _____ [specify type of food, e.g., can of fruit] described above, and, as a proximate result of their negligence and carelessness, _____ [describe defect, e.g., metallic slivers were present in the _____ (specify type of food, e.g., can of fruit) purchased and partially eaten by plaintiff].

THIRD COUNT
(Strict Liability)

19. Plaintiff refers to Paragraphs 1 through 8 and 13 through 15 of the First Count and incorporates them herein by reference.

20. Defendants, and each of them, at all times herein mentioned knew that the defective food products would be purchased and used without inspection for defects by the purchaser or user.

21. At the time of plaintiff's purchase, the _____ [specify type of food, e.g., can of fruit] was defective in that _____ [specify nature of defect, e.g., it contained a hazardous foreign substance, namely, metallic slivers]. This defect rendered the product hazardous and unfit for human consumption.

22. Plaintiff neither knew nor had reason to know at the time of his/her purchase or at any time prior to the _____ [accident or occurrence] described above that the product hereinabove described was defective.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendants, and each of them, as follows:

1. For general damages according to proof [or if a limited civil case, in the sum of $_____];

2. For medical and related expenses according to proof;

3. For loss of earnings according to proof;

4. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

5. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

The form of complaint in [1], above, is for use by a plaintiff who sues a manufacturer and retailer to recover damages [Civ. Code § 3333] for injuries suffered from consumption of a defective food product. For alternative forms of allegations of negligence [Civ. Code § 1714(a)] or breach of warranty pertaining to packaged foods that may be used in particular circumstances, see §§ 268.53 -268.57.

In an appropriate case, counsel may wish to combine this form with a cause of action for breach of express warranty, as shown in § 268.52.

[3] Allegations

This complaint alleges that defendants:

- Have breached the implied warranty that the food is fit for human consumption (First Count, Paragraphs 6-12) [see Com. Code § 2314; Kassouf v. Lee Bros., Inc. (1962) 209 Cal. App. 2d 568, 571-573, 26 Cal. Rptr. 276 (decided under former Com. Code § 1735; now see Com. Code § 2314)];

- Were negligent in the manufacture, processing, sale, and distribution of the food product (Second Count, Paragraphs 17, 18) [see Civ. Code § 1714(a); Klein v. Duchess Sandwich Co., Ltd. (1939) 14 Cal. 2d 272, 275-276, 93 P.2d 799] ; and

- Are strictly liable in tort for the manufacture and sale of a defective and harmful food product (Third Count, Paragraphs 20-22) [see generally Vandermark v. Ford Motor Co. (1964) 61 Cal. 2d 256, 261, 37 Cal. Rptr. 896, 391 P.2d 168 (defective automobile); Greenman v. Yuba Power Prods., Inc. (1963) 59 Cal. 2d 57, 62, 27 Cal. Rptr. 697, 377 P.2d 897 (defective power tool)].

[4] Specification of Damages

In a superior court action that is not a limited civil case, brought to recover damages for personal injury or wrongful death, the complaint must not state the amount of actual or punitive damages demanded for this cause of action [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)]. The defendant may at any time request a statement setting forth the nature and amount of damages being sought [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11(b)].

Otherwise, the amounts claimed as damages must be alleged [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(a)(2)] or an equivalent statement must be included, for example, a statement that the damages for a particular loss or harm sustained [see Civ. Code §§ 3281, 3282] are not known and that leave will be sought to amend the complaint to state the exact amount when ascertained. Then counsel must remember to seek leave to amend the complaint.

No claim for punitive damages may state an amount sought regardless of the nature of the case or whether it is a limited civil case [Civ. Code § 3295(e)].

For discussion of and forms for requesting and stating the amount of damages sought when they are not stated in the complaint, see Ch. 177, Damages, § 177.40 et seq., and Ch. 205, Defaults and Default Judgments [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 425.11, 425.115].

[5] Verification

Although verification of this complaint is not required [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(a)], verification will require any answer to be verified also, if the action is in the superior court and is not a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446]. Verification will also preclude a general denial except in a limited civil case, and will preclude a general denial even in a limited civil case when the action is a claim assigned to a third party for collection [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion see Ch. 26, Answers .

PART IV. FORM

22-268 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 268.51

§ 268.51 Complaint for Damages [Civ. Code § 3333] for Personal Injuries Based on Breach of Implied Warranty [Com. Code § 2314(1)], Negligence [Civ. Code § 1714(a)], and Strict Liability in Tort--By Diner Against Restaurant--Harmful Foreign Substance in Prepared Food

[1] FORM Complaint for Damages [Civ. Code § 3333] for Personal Injuries Based on Breach of Implied Warranty [Com. Code § 2314(1)], Negligence [Civ. Code § 1714(a)], and Strict Liability in Tort--By Diner Against Restaurant--Harmful Foreign Substance in Prepared Food

[Caption. See § 268.50.]

Plaintiff alleges:

FIRST COUNT
(Breach of Warranty)

1. Defendant(s) _____ [name(s)] is/are, and at all times herein mentioned was/were, a(n) _____ [specify type of business of entity, e.g., individual or partnership] doing business as _____ [name of restaurant or establishment that serves food], located at _____ [address] in _____ [city], _____ County, California.

[2. Fictitious name allegation, if appropriate. See § 268.50, First Count, Paragraph 5.]

3. On or about _____ [date], defendant(s) owned and operated the restaurant located at _____ [address], known as _____ [name of restaurant], where he/she/it/they solicited the patronage of members of the public and prepared and sold food to customers for consumption [on the premises].

4. At all times herein mentioned and prior to _____ [date of occurrence], defendant(s) enjoyed a general reputation in the locality for serving good quality and wholesome food. Defendant(s) impliedly warranted to the public and to plaintiff that the foods served to the public and plaintiff in particular were clean, wholesome, and free from harmful and injurious foreign substances and were reasonably fit for human consumption.

5. On or about _____ [date of occurrence], in reliance on the warranties of defendant(s) and in reliance on the skill, experience, and judgment of defendant(s) in the selection, preparation, and service of foods, and for each of these reasons, plaintiff entered the _____ [specify, e.g., restaurant] and ordered _____ [type of meal or particular food] [for immediate consumption on the premises]. _____ [Type of meal or particular food] was served to plaintiff. Plaintiff then ate the meal served by defendant and paid the price charged by defendant.

6. The _____ [type of meal or particular food] was/were not clean, wholesome, and free from harmful or injurious foreign substances but instead contained hazardous and unhealthful foreign substances[, namely, _____ (identify foreign substance, if known)] and was in other respects unfit for human consumption. Plaintiff could not determine the condition of the _____ [type of meal or particular food] by reasonable inspection and did not know the true condition of the food when served to him/her by defendant(s) and consumed by plaintiff.

7. As a direct and proximate result of plaintiff eating the _____ [type of meal or particular food], plaintiff _____ [specify injury suffered, e.g., became violently ill within one hour after consumption of the meal and suffered injuries and damages as are more particularly set forth below].

8. After discovery by plaintiff of the breach of warranty of defendant(s), and within a reasonable time, plaintiff in writing advised defendant(s) of his/her/its/their breach of warranty.

9-11. [Damage allegations. See § 268.50, First Count, Paragraphs 13-15.]

(Negligence)

12. Plaintiff refers to Paragraphs 1 through 4 and 9 through 11 of the First Count and incorporates them herein by reference.

13. Because defendant(s) was/were engaged in the business of preparation, selling, and service of food to the general public, he/she/it/they owed a duty to the general public, and to plaintiff in particular, to use reasonable care to see that food sold by him/her/it/them was free from harmful foreign substances and was otherwise fit for human consumption.

14. Defendant(s) failed and neglected to use reasonable care in the preparation and selling of the _____ [type of meal or particular food], and, as a proximate result of his/her/its/their negligence and carelessness, plaintiff was served an unwholesome, unhealthful, and hazardous _____ [type of meal or particular food], which plaintiff purchased and consumed.

THIRD COUNT
(Strict Liability)

15. Plaintiff refers to Paragraphs 1 through 4 and 9 through 11 of the First Count and incorporates them herein by reference.

16. Defendant(s) knew that the food, including _____ [type of meal or particular food], served by him/her/it/them to his/her/its/their customers would be purchased for consumption by members of the public and would be consumed without inspection for defects therein.

17. On or about _____ [date], plaintiff entered the restaurant of defendant(s) and purchased _____ [type of meal or particular food] [for immediate consumption on the premises].

18. The _____ [type of meal or particular food] which was served to plaintiff was defective in that _____ [describe defect].

19. At all times herein mentioned, plaintiff neither knew nor had reason to know of the existence of the foregoing described defect, and at the time and place mentioned above consumed the defective _____ [type of meal or particular food], proximately causing the injuries described above.

[Verification, if desired. See § 268.50.]

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is a general complaint for damages [Civ. Code § 3333] for personal injuries suffered by a patron of a restaurant or other eating establishment who suffers personal injuries from the consumption of prepared food containing a harmful foreign substance. For a form of allegation involving breach of warranty based on service of prepared food that was spoiled or otherwise unwholesome, see § 268.57.

[3] Allegations

The complaint alleges that the defendants

- Have breached the implied warranty that the food is fit for human consumption (First Count, Paragraphs 3-8) [see Com. Code § 2314(1); Goetten v. Owl Drug Co. (1936) 6 Cal. 2d 683, 685-688, 59 P.2d 142 (decided under former Com. Code § 1735; now see Com. Code § 2314)];

- Were negligent in the preparation of food (Second Count, Paragraphs 13, 14) [see Civ. Code § 1714(a); Goetten v. Owl Drug Co. (1936) 6 Cal. 2d 683, 685-688, 59 P.2d 142 (decided under former Com. Code § 1735; now see Com. Code § 2314)]; and

- Are strictly liable in tort for the preparation and sale of defective food (Third Count, Paragraphs 16-19) [see Vandermark v. Ford Motor Co. (1964) 61 Cal. 2d 256, 261, 37 Cal. Rptr. 896, 391 P.2d 168 (defective automobile); Greenman v. Yuba Power Products, Inc. (1963) 59 Cal. 2d 57, 62, 27 Cal. Rptr. 697, 377 P.2d 897 (defective power tool)], or for the failure to warn in the context of allergies [Livingston v. Marie Callenders, Inc. (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 830, 839, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 528 (food additive)].

Plaintiff alleges:

1-4. [Capacity and residence of defendants. See § 268.50, First Count, Paragraphs 1-4.]

[5. Fictitious name allegation, if appropriate. See § 268.50, First Count, Paragraph 5.]

6. At all times herein mentioned, defendant _____ [name of manufacturer] was engaged in the business of _____ [specify, e.g., manufacturing or processing or canning or distributing] food products in general and _____ [specify, e.g., cans of boned chicken meat] in particular.

7. At all times herein mentioned, defendant _____ [name of retailer] was engaged in the business of selling food products in general and _____ [specify, e.g., cans of boned chicken meat] in particular to members of the general public.

8. At all times herein mentioned, defendants, and each of them, represented to the public, including plaintiff, by means of _____ [specify media, e.g., newspaper, magazine, television, and radio advertisements] that defendant _____'s [name of manufacturer] _____ [specify, e.g., cans of boned chicken meat] _____ [specify representations, e.g., were completely free from bones]. [On or about _____ (date), plaintiff read the advertisement by defendants, and each of them, in _____ (name of newspaper or magazine), which expressly warranted that defendant _____'s (name of manufacturer) _____ (specify warranty, e.g., cans of boned chicken meat were completely free from bones).]

9. On or about _____ [date], plaintiff bought from defendant _____ [name of retailer] at its store located at _____ [address], a certain _____ [specify, e.g., can of bone chicken meat] and paid the required purchase price. The _____ [specify, e.g., can] bore the label of defendant _____ [name of manufacturer] and indicated that it had been manufactured and processed by defendant _____ [name of manufacturer]. The label expressly warranted that the contents _____ [specify, e.g., were completely free from bones in that it stated that the contents were "boned chicken meat."]

[10. When purchasing the _____ (specify, e.g., can of boned chicken meat), plaintiff relied on the express warranties of defendants, and each of them, as represented _____ (specify, e.g., in the above-mentioned newspaper advertisement and on the label of the can).]

11. Defendants breached their express warranties regarding the above-described _____ [specify product, e.g., cans of chicken meat] when they offered for sale to the general public and to plaintiff _____ [specify, e.g., cans of boned chicken meat that did contain bones]. On or about _____ [date], plaintiff opened the above-mentioned _____ [specify, e.g., can of chicken meat] and proceeded to consume its contents. After _____ [specify, e.g., eating] a portion, plaintiff discovered _____ [specify breach of warranty, e.g., a bone in the chicken meat, which caught in plaintiff's throat].

12. As a proximate result of the _____ [specify, e.g., chicken bone caught in plaintiff's throat], in violation of defendants' express warranties, plaintiff suffered the following injuries: _____ [specify injuries]. The described injuries caused plaintiff to sustain general damages [in the sum of $_____].

13. As a further proximate result of the _____ [specify, e.g., chicken bone], plaintiff was compelled to and did employ physicians and surgeons and other medical personnel. [Plaintiff was required to secure X rays and hospital and nursing care.] [Plaintiff is informed and believes and on information and belief states that he/she will require additional medical care.]

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is a complaint for damages [Civ. Code § 3333] for personal injuries arising out of the breach of an express warranty [Com. Code § 2313(1)(a), (b)] given by a manufacturer or seller in which the warranty has stated that the goods will conform to a certain description or promise.

In an appropriate case, counsel may wish to combine this form with causes of action for breach of implied warranty, negligence, and strict liability, as set forth in the complaint in § 268.50.

[3] Allegations

The foregoing form alleges that plaintiff, in reliance on the express warranty given on the label of the container of a food product and through advertisements in the media, purchased and consumed a certain food product and thereupon found that the defendants had breached the express warranty since the food did not conform to the description on the label and in the advertisements (Paragraphs 8-11) [see Com. Code § 2313(1)(a), (b); Lane v. C. A. Swanson & Sons (1955) 130 Cal. App. 2d 210, 214-215, 278 P.2d 723] .

Counsel may wish to omit optional Paragraph 10. Under the basis of bargain criteria of Com. Code § 2313, it is not necessary that plaintiff prove reliance. A warranty statement made by the seller is presumptively part of the basis of the bargain and the burden rests on the seller to prove that the resulting bargain does not rest at all on the representation [Keith v. Buchanan (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 13, 23, 220 Cal. Rptr. 392] .

§ 268.53 Allegations of Negligence [Civ. Code § 1714(a)]--Exploding Bottle

[1] FORM Allegations of Negligence [Civ. Code § 1714(a)]--Exploding Bottle

1. Because defendants were engaged in the business of manufacturing, processing, bottling, selling, and distributing of glass bottles of _____ [specify, e.g., catsup], they owed a duty to the general public, and to plaintiff in particular, to use reasonable care to see that the containers sold by them were fit for safe use and that the food products contained therein were fit for human consumption.

2. Defendants breached that duty of reasonable care when they so negligently and carelessly manufactured, processed, bottled, sold, and distributed a glass bottle of _____ [specify, e.g., catsup] that the container exploded _____ [specify, e.g., in the hands of plaintiff], causing him/her to sustain serious injuries.

[2] Use of Form

The form of allegation in [1], above, alleges that defendants were negligent in the preparation and bottling of a food product and caused the container to explode [see Vassallo v. Sabatte Land Co. (1963) 212 Cal. App. 2d 11, 16, 27 Cal. Rptr. 814 (decided under former Com. Code § 1735; now see Com. Code § 2314)]. With appropriate modifications, the form may be used for allegations of breach of implied warranty and a strict liability [see § 268.50, see also Evid. Code § 646]. In an appropriate case, it may be substituted for Paragraphs 17 and 18, in the Second Count of the complaint set out in § 268.50.

1. Because defendants were engaged in the business of _____ [specify activity, e.g., manufacturing, bottling, packaging, selling, and distributing] food and beverages in general, and _____ [specify particular food product, e.g., bottled beverages] in particular, to members of the general public, they owed a duty to the general public and to plaintiff in particular to use reasonable care to see that the products sold by them were free from harmful foreign substances and otherwise fit for human consumption.

2. Defendants breached that duty by so negligently and carelessly _____ [specify activity, e.g., manufacturing, bottling, packaging, selling, and distributing] its products as to a allow _____ [specify foreign substance, e.g., a dead rodent] to enter and become packaged in _____ [specify food product, e.g., a bottled beverage] bearing defendant's label that was purchased and partially consumed by plaintiff. Plaintiff did not know and had no reason to know before consuming _____ [specify food product, e.g., the bottled beverage] that it contained _____ [specify foreign substance, e.g., a dead rodent].

[2] Use of Form

The form of allegation in [1], above, is for use in a complaint against a manufacturer and retailer for negligent manufacture, processing, sale, and distribution of a packaged food or beverage product that contained a harmful foreign substance. With appropriate modifications, the form may be used for allegations of breach of implied warranty and strict liability [see § 268.50]. In an appropriate case, it may be substituted for Paragraphs 17 and 18, in the Second Count of the complaint set out in § 268.50.

[1] FORM Allegations of Breach of Implied Warranty of Fitness for Human Consumption [Com. Code § 2314]--Identified Harmful Foreign Substance in Container of Packaged Food

1. Defendant warranted to plaintiff that the _____ [specify packaged food product, e.g., can of fruit cocktail] sold by him/her to plaintiff was wholesome, free from foreign substances, and otherwise fit for human consumption. In reliance on the implied warranty, plaintiff purchased and ate the _____ [specify food product, e.g., fruit cocktail].

2. The _____ [specify food product, e.g., fruit cocktail] was not clean, wholesome, and free from harmful or injurious foreign substances and was not reasonably fit for human consumption, as warranted. On the contrary, it was unclean and unwholesome since it contained _____ [specify, e.g., a small hard stone], and it was wholly unfit for human consumption. Plaintiff did not know or have any reasonable means of knowing at the time he/she purchased and ate the _____ [specify food product, e.g., fruit cocktail] that the same was unclean, unwholesome, contained _____ [specify, e.g., a small hard stone], and was unfit for human consumption, but he/she believed the _____ [specify, e.g., fruit cocktail] was pure and fit for human consumption.

[2] Use of Form

The form of allegation in [1], above, is for damages arising from a breach of the implied warranty of fitness for human consumption for injuries caused by the presence of an identified harmful foreign substance in a packaged food or beverage product. With appropriate modifications, the form may be used for allegations of negligence and strict liability [see § 268.50]. In an appropriate case, these allegations may be substituted for Paragraphs 9-11, in the First Count of the complaint set out in § 268.50.

1. At the time of the purchase of _____ [specify packaged food product, e.g., the can of tuna] from defendant by plaintiff, defendant warranted that the contents of _____ [specify packaged food product, e.g., the can of tuna] were wholesome, free of harmful foreign substances, and otherwise fit for human consumption.

2. [Plaintiff is informed and believed and thereon alleges that] [D]efendant breached that implied warranty in that the _____ [specify packaged food product, e.g., can of tuna] sold by defendant to plaintiff was in fact unwholesome and contained harmful foreign substances that rendered it unfit for human consumption. At the time that plaintiff purchased the _____ [specify packaged food product, e.g., can of tuna] and at the time that he/she _____[partially] consumed its contents, plaintiff believed it to be fit for human consumption and was unaware and had no reason to know that it contained harmful foreign substances.

[2] Use of Form

The form of allegation in [1], above, is for damages arising from a breach of implied warranty to fitness for human consumption for injuries caused by the presence of unidentified foreign or dangerous matter in a packaged food or beverage product. With appropriate modifications, the form may be used for allegations of negligence and strict liability [see § 268.50]. In an appropriate case, these allegations may be substituted for Paragraphs 9-11, in the First Count of the complaint set out in § 268.50.

Chapter 269 FRAUD AND DECEIT
PART I. SCOPE

23-269 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 269.01

§ 269.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter discusses actions at law for damages based on the tort of deceit or on the existence of constructive fraud. It includes the Judicial Council form of fraud cause of action attached to the Judicial Council form of complaint for personal injury, property damage, or wrongful death [§ 269.90], forms of complaints for damages for fraud and deceit based on intentional misrepresentation [§ 269.91], on negligent misrepresentation [§ 269.92], on suppression of fact [§ 269.93], on a promise made without the intention to perform it [§ 269.94]; various forms concerning misrepresentations about real property [§ 269.95-269.98]; a form for fraud in the sale of personal property [§ 269.99]; a form concerning misrepresentations in the sale of a business [§ 269.100]; a form concerning fraud and deceit of a real estate broker in concealing and suppressing a fact from the client [§ 269.101]; a form concerning the constructive fraud of an employee in obtaining money from the employer's account without authorization [§ 269.102]; and a form of an allegation extending the statute of limitations for an action for damages for fraud and deceit on grounds of reasonable failure to discover the fraud [§ 269.103].

This chapter does not include forms or an extended discussion of remedies for fraud other than damages although fraud may also be the basis for equitable relief. For discussion of other types of relief predicated on fraud, see Ch. 7, Accounting, Action For , Ch. 8, Accounts Stated and Open Accounts , Ch. 25, Annulment (Nullity) of Marriage and Related Spousal Rights , Ch. 107, Cancellation of Instruments , Ch., 121, Common Counts , Ch. 140, Contracts , Ch. 150, Conversion , Ch. 205, Defaults and Default Judgments , Ch. 215, Duress, Menace, Fraud, Undue Influence, and Mistake , Ch. 488, Reformation of Instruments , Ch. 490, Rescission and Restitution , and Ch. 560, Trusts: Express, Public, Charitable, and Totten Trusts .

Chapter 269 FRAUD AND DECEIT
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

23-269 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 269.11

§ 269.11 Definitions

[1] Fraud

In its broad and general sense, the concept of fraud includes anything that is intended to deceive, including all statements, acts, concealments, and omissions involving a breach of legal or equitable duty, trust, or confidence that results in injury to one who justifiably relies thereon [Ach v. Finkelstein (1968) 264 Cal. App. 2d 667, 674, 70 Cal. Rptr. 472] . More particularly, a fraudulent misrepresentation is one made with the knowledge that it is or may be untrue, and with the intention that the person to whom it is made act in reliance on it [Wilke v. Coinway, Inc. (1967) 257 Cal. App. 2d 126, 136, 64 Cal. Rptr. 845] . But fraud occurs in so many situations that it is difficult to define, and each case must be considered on its own facts [see Estate of Arbuckle (1950) 98 Cal. App. 2d 562, 568, 220 P.2d 950] .

[2] Deceit

A deceit can be: (1) the suggestion, as a fact, of something that is not true, by one who does not believe it to be true; (2) the assertion, as a fact, of something that is not true, by one who has no reasonable ground for believing it to be true; (3) the suppression of a fact, by one who is bound to disclose it, or who gives information or other facts that are likely to mislead for want of communication of that fact; or (4) a promise, made without any intention of performing it [Civ. Code § 1710].

Chapter 269 FRAUD AND DECEIT
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

23-269 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 269.12

§ 269.12 Fraud and Deceit Distinguished

Under the Civil Code, "fraud" and "deceit" are technically two distinct concepts. "Fraud" refers to one of the bases for rescission of a contract based on lack of valid consent [see Civ. Code §§ 1566, 1567(3), 1689(b)(1)]. "Deceit" refers to the basis for the tort cause of action for damages [see Civ. Code §§ 1709, 1710]. Nevertheless, the courts frequently use the terms interchangeably to refer to the common-law tort cause of action for fraud or deceit [see, e.g., Gold v. Los Angeles Democratic League (1975) 49 Cal. App. 3d 365, 374, 122 Cal. Rptr. 732 ; City Bank of San Diego v. Ramage (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 570, 588, 72 Cal. Rptr. 273] .

The practical distinction is not between the terms "fraud" and "deceit" but between the use of Civ. Code § 1572 and Civ. Code § 1710 as the basis for determining the existence of fraud or deceit. Reliance on Civ. Code § 1572 is appropriate if misrepresentation is asserted as a defense to enforcement of a contract. Civ. Code §§ 1709 and 1710 are applicable if a misrepresentation or false promise is asserted as the basis for recovery of tort damages [see Bezaire v. Fidelity & Deposit Co. (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 888, 892, 91 Cal. Rptr. 142] . The elements that are necessary to show fraud or deceit for the purpose of the tort remedy and for the purpose of showing that there was no valid consent to a contract are, however, very similar [South Tahoe Gas Co. v. Hofmann Land Improvement Co. (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 750, 765, 102 Cal. Rptr. 286] .

§ 269.13 Elements

The elements of deceit are (1) a false representation or concealment of a material fact (or, in some cases, an opinion) susceptible of knowledge, (2) made with knowledge of its falsity or without sufficient knowledge on the subject to warrant a representation, (3) with the intent to induce the person to whom it is made to act on it, (4) and an act by that person in justifiable reliance on the representation, (5) to that person's damage [South Tahoe Gas Co. v. Hofmann Land Improvement Co. (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 750, 765, 102 Cal. Rptr. 286 ; Balfour, Guthrie & Co. v. Hansen (1964) 227 Cal. App. 2d 173, 192-193, 38 Cal. Rptr. 525] .

Chapter 269 FRAUD AND DECEIT
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

23-269 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 269.14

§ 269.14 Types of Misrepresentations

[1] Knowingly False Statements

A statement of fact that is not true suggested by one who does not believe it to be true constitutes deceit [Civ. Code § 1710(1)]. In other words, a material and knowingly false representation can support one of the elements of deceit [see Block v. Tobin (1975) 45 Cal. App. 3d 214, 219, 119 Cal. Rptr. 288] .

[2] Negligent Misrepresentations

"Negligent misrepresentation" is a basis of tort recovery separate and distinct from the tort of negligence; it is a form of the tort of deceit [Bily v. Arthur Young & Co. (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 370, 407, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 51, 834 P.2d 745 ; see Civ. Code § 1710(2)]. A cause of action for deceit may be based on a misrepresentation that was not known to be false, but that was made by one who had no reasonable ground for believing it to be true [Civ. Code §§ 1709, 1710(2); Gagne v. Bertran (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 481, 487-488, 275 P.2d 15 ; Wilke v. Coinway, Inc. (1967) 257 Cal. App. 2d 126, 136, 64 Cal. Rptr. 845 ; see Bily v. Arthur Young & Co. (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 370, 407-408, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 51, 834 P.2d 745] . An objectively reasonable basis for an inaccurate belief, however, is sufficient to protect the person making the representation from liability. For example, if a landowner has an objectively reasonable basis for an inaccurate belief concerning the location of boundaries or area, the landowner has not breached his or her duty to be informed regarding such matters before making a representation regarding the location of the property [Quality Wash Group V, Ltd. v. Hallak (1996) 50 Cal. App. 4th 1687, 1696-1697, 58 Cal. Rptr. 2d 592] . If a person asserts that a thing is true within that person's personal knowledge, or makes a statement as of his or her own knowledge, or makes such an absolute, unqualified, and positive statement that implies knowledge on his or her part, although in fact the person has no knowledge whether that assertion is true or false, and the person's statement proves to be false, that person is as culpable as if he or she had willfully asserted something to be true that he or she knew to be false, and is equally guilty of fraud [Howell v. Courtesy Chevrolet, Inc. (1971) 16 Cal. App. 3d 391, 402, 94 Cal. Rptr. 33] .

A false representation must be a positive assertion, because the tort of deceit based on negligent misrepresentation does not apply to implied statements [Evan F. v. Hughson United Methodist Church (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 828, 841 n.2, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 748 ; Yanase v. Automobile Club of S. Cal. (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 468, 473 ; cf. Byrum v. Brand (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 926, 941-942, 268 Cal. Rptr. 609 (no cause of action stated because defendant had neither made untrue statements nor actively concealed or suppressed any such facts; court appeared to leave open question whether nondisclosure of known, material facts could be sufficient assertion)]. However, a cause of action for negligence may be based on a negligent failure to disclose a material fact if there is a duty of care to disclose such a fact [see, e.g., OCM Principal Opportunities Fund, L.P. v. CIBC World Markets Corp. (2007) 157 Cal. App. 4th 835, 855, 68 Cal. Rptr. 3d 828 (investment bank could be liable for known material omissions in offering memorandum issued in support of sale of securities); Newhall Land & Farming Co. v. Superior Court (1993) 19 Cal. App. 4th 334, 349, 23 Cal. Rptr. 2d 377 (cause of action stated for negligent failure to disclose soil contamination that materially affected value of property)].

To be actionable, the representation must be of a past or existing material fact. A representation is not normally actionable as a negligent misrepresentation if it is merely an expression of opinion as to a future fact or occurrence [Neu-Visions Sports, Inc. v. Soren/McAdam/Bartells (2000) 86 Cal. App. 4th 303, 309-310, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 159 ; see generally § 269.17].

A cause of action for negligent misrepresentation has been recognized only if either (1) information is conveyed in a commercial setting for a business purpose, or (2) providing false information poses a risk of and results in physical harm to a person or property [Friedman v. Merck & Co.(2003) 107 Cal. App. 4th 454, 477, 131 Cal. Rptr. 2d 885] . For a discussion of a cause of action for negligent misrepresentation involving a risk of physical harm, see Ch. 380, Negligence .

[3] Suppression or Nondisclosure of Fact

Fraud and deceit may consist of the suppression of a fact by one who is bound to disclose it or who gives information of other facts that are likely to mislead for want of communication of that fact [Civ. Code § 1710(3); People v. Highland Fed. Sav. & Loan (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 1692, 1718, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 555 (concealment of fact is not actionable under Civ. Code § 1710 unless defendant is under duty to disclose); Stevens v. Superior Court (1986) 180 Cal. App. 3d 605, 608-610, 225 Cal. Rptr. 624 ; Outboard Marine Corp. v. Superior Court (1975) 52 Cal. App. 3d 30, 37, 124 Cal. Rptr. 852] . If concealment of a material fact is calculated to induce a false belief, the distinction between active concealment and affirmative misrepresentation is not significant. Both are fraudulent, and an active concealment has the same force and effect as a representation that is positive in form [Outboard Marine Corp. v. Superior Court (1975) 52 Cal. App. 3d 30, 37, 124 Cal. Rptr. 852] .

The duty to disclose facts arises if a person undertakes to speak, so that the speaker is bound not only to tell the truth but also not to suppress or conceal facts within speaker's knowledge that materially qualify those stated, because one who speaks at all must make a full and fair disclosure [Brownlee v. Vang (1965) 235 Cal. App. 2d 465, 477, 45 Cal. Rptr. 458] . For example, the vendor of property who voluntarily speaks concerning the property may not conceal any information within the vendor's knowledge bearing materially on the subject about which the vendor speaks [McCue v. Bruce Enterprises, Inc. (1964) 228 Cal. App. 2d 21, 27-28, 39 Cal. Rptr. 125] . Additionally, if the seller of property knows of facts materially affecting the value or desirability of the property, which are known or accessible only to him, and also knows that these facts are not known to, or within the reach of diligent attention of the buyer, the seller is under a duty to disclose these facts to the buyer [Newhall Land & Farming Co. v. Superior Court (1993) 19 Cal. App. 4th 334, 349, 23 Cal. Rptr. 2d 377 ; Prichard v. Reitz (1986) 178 Cal. App. 3d 465, 468-469, 223 Cal. Rptr. 734 ; see Snelson v. Ondulando Highlands Corp. (1970) 5 Cal. App. 3d 243, 251, 84 Cal. Rptr. 800 (action for rescission)]. This duty to disclose can extend to a duty to disclose lawsuits affecting the property's value or desirability, even lawsuits that are past and settled, and the issue of whether an undisclosed matter is of sufficient materiality to have affected the value or desirability of the property is a question of fact [Calemine v. Samuelson (2009) 171 Cal. App. 4th 153, 165-166, 89 Cal. Rptr. 3d 495]. If a beneficiary under a deed of trust is selling property pursuant to a power of sale, he or she may owe a common law duty to the prospective buyers to disclose known facts materially affecting the value of the property [Karoutas v. HomeFed Bank (1991) 232 Cal. App. 3d 767, 771, 775, 283 Cal. Rptr. 809 (court of appeal reversed general demurrer without leave to amend; complaint had alleged facts sufficient to raise common-law duty to disclose)].

However, a real estate agent's duty to disclose is limited to those facts discovered in a diligent visual inspection. For example, an agent has no duty to ask a homeowner's association about construction defects in the common area of a planned unit development [Padgett v. Phariss (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 1270, 1284, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 373] .

The existence of a fiduciary relationship such as that between a stockbroker and his or her customers [see Black v. Shearson, Hammill & Co. (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 362, 367-368, 72 Cal. Rptr. 157] , title insurance company and client [see Moe v. Transamerica Title Ins. Co. (1971) 21 Cal. App. 3d 289, 306, 98 Cal. Rptr. 547] , attorney and client [see Day v. Rosenthal (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 1125, 1159, 217 Cal. Rptr. 89] , or any principal-agent relationship [see St. James Armenian Church of L.A. v. Kurkjian (1975) 47 Cal. App. 3d 547, 551, 121 Cal. Rptr. 214] also gives rise to a duty to disclose material facts [LiMandri v. Judkins (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 326, 336-337, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 539] so that the suppression or concealment of a material fact by the fiduciary constitutes actionable fraud [Moe v. Transamerica Title Ins. Co. (1971) 21 Cal. App. 3d 289, 306, 98 Cal. Rptr. 547] .

For a discussion of constructive fraud, which also arises from the failure of a fiduciary to disclose a material fact, see § 269.22.

[4] Duty to Third Persons

The writer of a letter of recommendation owes to third persons a duty not to misrepresent the facts in describing the qualifications and character of a former employee, if making these misrepresentations would present a substantial, foreseeable risk of physical injury to third persons [Randi W. v. Muroc Joint Unified Sch. Dist. (1997) 14 Cal. 4th 1066, 1081, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 263, 929 P.2d 582] . However, if there is no resulting physical injury or special relationship between the parties, the writer of a letter of recommendation has no duty of care extending to third persons for misrepresentations made concerning former employees [Randi W. v. Muroc Joint Unified Sch. Dist. (1997) 14 Cal. 4th 1066, 1081, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 263, 929 P.2d 582] .

The Court relied on Restatement (Second) of Torts §§ 310 (regarding intentional conduct) and 311 (regarding negligent conduct), as well as its analysis of whether a duty of care should be imposed for the benefit of third persons. In deciding that the Restatement principles should be followed and a duty imposed, the Court emphasized that the foreseeability of harm, the link between the conduct and the injury, the moral blame attributable to the conduct, the availability of insurance or alternative courses of conduct, and public policy considerations on balance supported the imposition of the duty [Randi W. v. Muroc Joint Unified Sch. Dist. (1997) 14 Cal. 4th 1066, 1076-1081, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 263, 929 P.2d 582] .

The Court also noted that Civ. Code § 47(c) may well give rise to a defense in some actions involving letters of reference; however, in dictum (because that section applies only to communications made on request of prospective employers, a situation not present in the case before the Court) the Court noted that the statute was primarily intended to provide employers with a defense in an action by the former employee, not to insulate employers from all tort liability arising from employment disclosures [Randi W. v. Muroc Joint Unified Sch. Dist. (1997) 14 Cal. 4th 1066, 1080-1081, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 263, 929 P.2d 582] . For discussion of the defenses afforded by Civ. Code § 47, see Ch. 340, Libel and Slander .

[5] Promise Without Intention to Perform

[a] Actionable Promises

Deceit may consist of a promise, made without any intention of performing it [see Civ. Code § 1710(4)], and such a promise is actionable if the other party relies on it as an inducement [Brockway v. Heilman (1967) 250 Cal. App. 2d 807, 811, 58 Cal. Rptr. 772] . Since a promise to do something necessarily implies the intention to perform, if that intention is absent, there is an implied misrepresentation of the fact of that intention [Meyer v. Ford Motor Co. (1969)

275 Cal. App. 2d 90, 103, 79 Cal. Rptr. 816] . The promise, to constitute fraud, must be made in bad faith and without intent to perform and must touch a substantive part of the consideration moving the party with whom the promisor is dealing [Harazim v. Lynam (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 127, 133, 72 Cal. Rptr. 670] . In addition, the defendant must not have intended to perform the promise at the time it was made [O'Mary v. Mitsubishi Elecs. Am., Inc.(1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 563, 579, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 389 (fraud action properly dismissed if laid off employee offered no evidence to show that employer had no intent to perform promise of lifetime employment at time promise was made); Kett v. Graeser (1966) 241 Cal. App. 2d 571, 573, 50 Cal. Rptr. 727] .

In contrast, a declaration of intention, although in the nature of a promise, made in good faith, without intention to deceive, and in the honest expectation that it will be fulfilled, even though it is not carried out, does not constitute fraud. The essence of an action for deceit based on a promise made without any intention of performing it is the lack of intent, at the time of making the promise, to perform it. The mere failure to perform a promise made in good faith does not constitute fraud [Church of Merciful Saviour v. Volunteers of Am. (1960) 184 Cal. App. 2d 851, 859, 8 Cal. Rptr. 48] . Furthermore, the subsequent failure to perform a promise does not give rise to any inference that the defendant did not intend to perform when he or she made the promise. Though fraudulent intent must often be established by circumstantial evidence, something more than nonperformance is required to prove the defendant's intent not to perform [Tenzer v. Superscope, Inc. (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 18, 30, 216 Cal. Rptr. 130, 702 P.2d 212 (disapproving Santoro v. Carbone (1972) 22 Cal. App. 3d 721, 728, 99 Cal. Rptr. 488 and other cases holding that inference is created by failure to perform); Magpali v. Farmers Group, Inc. (1996) 48 Cal. App. 4th 471, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 225] . Fraudulent intent may be inferred from such circumstances as the defendant's failure to even attempt performance the issue of fraudulent intent is one for the trier of fact [Locke v. Warner Bros., Inc. (1997) 57 Cal. App. 4th 354, 368, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 921 (based on evidence that film studio had expressed an absolute unwillingness to work with actress, trier of fact reasonably could infer that studio never intended to give the actresses' movie proposals a good faith evaluation)]. The issue of fraudulent intent is one for the trier of fact [Locke v. Warner Bros., Inc. (1997) 57 Cal. App. 4th 354, 368, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 921] .

[b] Effect of Statute of Frauds

An action for fraud may be maintained even if the allegedly fraudulent promise is unenforceable as a contract due to the statute of frauds, although proof in such an action is subject to the problems discussed under § 269.14[5][a] [Tenzer v. Superscope, Inc. (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 18, 29-31, 216 Cal. Rptr. 130, 702 P.2d 212 (overruling Kroger v. Baur (1941) 46 Cal. App. 2d 801, 803, 117 P.2d 50 and progeny)]. In addition, in some instances, an oral collateral promise may have been made by the defendant to induce the plaintiff to enter into a contract required by the statute of frauds to be in writing [Kett v. Graeser (1966) 241 Cal. App. 2d 571, 573, 50 Cal. Rptr. 727] . However, a licensed real estate broker may not bring an action for fraud based on an alleged oral promise to pay a commission, because a licensed broker is presumed to know about the statute of frauds; his or her reliance on such an oral promise is therefore unreasonable as a matter of law [Phillippe v. Shapell Indus. (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 1247, 1270, 241 Cal. Rptr. 22, 743 P.2d 1279 ; American Int'l Enters., Inc. v. Federal Deposit Ins. Corp. (9th Cir. 1993) 3 F.3d 1263, 1270 (applying California law)].

[c] Effect of Parol Evidence Rule

Generally, the tort action for fraud cannot be used to circumvent the effect of the parol evidence rule. That is, the plaintiff cannot seek to vary the terms of an agreement containing a merger clause by bringing an action for the tort of fraud rather than for breach of contract and allege that the nonperformance of the oral promise was the nonperformance of a promise made without the intent to perform. If the plaintiff can show that the promise concerned a collateral matter and was made to induce the plaintiff to enter the contract, however, the plaintiff may recover damages from a defendant who has made an oral promise without the intent to perform despite the existence of a merger clause in the main contract [Kett v. Graeser (1966) 241 Cal. App. 2d 571, 574-575, 50 Cal. Rptr. 727 ; see, e.g., Agosta v. Astor (2004) 120 Cal. App. 4th 596, 606-607, 15 Cal. Rptr. 3d 565 (fraudulent inducement to change employment was actionable, even though "at-will" employment provision in written contract precluded tort recovery for termination of employment)].

A written contractual provision that no other representations were made will not necessarily preclude a fraud action based on representations that were not included in the written agreement [Ron Greenspan Volkswagen v. Ford Motor Land Dev. Corp. (1995) 32 Cal. App. 4th 985, 987-989, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 783] .

A written contractual provision that no other representations were made will not necessarily preclude a fraud action based on representations that were not included in the written agreement [Ron Greenspan Volkswagen v. Ford Motor Land Dev. Corp. (1995) 32 Cal. App. 4th 985, 987-989, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 783] .

Fraud in obtaining an instrument [Vogelsang v. Wolpert (1964) 227 Cal. App. 2d 102, 122, 38 Cal. Rptr. 440] or in inducing a party to enter into a contract by a material false promise may be shown by parol evidence [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1856(g)]. Evidence of an oral promise consistent with the written agreement is admissible under the parol evidence rule, while evidence of an oral promise at variance with the written agreement is not [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1856(a)]. Thus, Code Civ. Proc. § 1856(g), embodying the so-called fraud exception to the parol evidence rule, does not apply to promissory fraud if the evidence in question is offered to show a promise that contradicts an integrated written agreement. Unless the false promise is either independent of or consistent with the written instrument, evidence of the false promise is not admissible [Wang v. Massey Chevrolet (2002) 97 Cal. App. 4th 856, 873-876, 118 Cal. Rptr. 2d 770 ; Alling v. Universal Mfg. Corp. (1992) 5 Cal. App. 4th 1412, 1436-1437, 7 Cal. Rptr. 2d 718 ; see Brinderson-Newberg v. Pacific Erectors (9th Cir. 1992) 971 F.2d 272, 280-281] , cert. denied, 507 U.S. 914 . However, that rule only bars evidence of false promises. For example, parol evidence of a misrepresentation of fact concerning the content of an agreement, made at the time of signing, is admissible to void a contract [Pacific State Bank v. Greene (2003) 110 Cal. App. 4th 375, 378-380, 1 Cal. Rptr. 3d 739] .

§ 269.15 Actual Reliance

[1] General Rule

To state a cause of action for deceit based on a misrepresentation, a plaintiff must plead and prove that he or she actually relied on the misrepresentation [Mirkin v. Wasserman (1993) 5 Cal. 4th 1082, 1088, 1091-1093, 23 Cal. Rptr. 2d 101, 858 P.2d 568 ; see also Bay Summit Cmty. Ass'n v. Shell Oil Co. (1996) 51 Cal. App. 4th 762, 767, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 322 (failure to prove actual reliance precluded fraud cause of action)].

Forbearance, or the decision not to exercise a right or power, is sufficient to fulfill the element of reliance necessary to state a cause of action for fraud or negligent misrepresentation [Small v. Fritz Cos., Inc. (2003) 30 Cal. 4th 167, 174, 132 Cal. Rptr. 2d 490, 65 P.3d 1255] . In one case, for example, the California Supreme Court recognized the right of stock investors to bring a common law action for fraud or negligent misrepresentation based on false statements or reports issued by corporate directors that induced the holders of that company's stock to decide not to sell the stock, although a plaintiff in such an action must plead actual reliance with specificity to state a cause of action [Small v. Fritz Cos., Inc. (2003) 30 Cal. 4th 167, 171, 132 Cal. Rptr. 2d 490, 65 P.3d 1255] . Actual reliance may be shown, for example, with allegations that if plaintiff had read a truthful account of the corporation's financial status, the plaintiff would have sold a specified amount of stock on a specified date [Small v. Fritz Cos., Inc. (2003) 30 Cal. 4th 167, 184, 132 Cal. Rptr. 2d 490, 65 P.3d 1255] . However, federal law preempts class action suits alleging fraud or misrepresentation in connection with the sale or purchase of securities, including actionable conduct that induces a decision to hold already-purchased securities, if those suits are brought in the name of 50 or more class members [Merrill Lynch v. Dabit (2006) 547 U.S. 71 (preemption based on Securities Litigation Uniform Standards Act of 1998, codified at 15 U.S.C.S. § 78bb(f)(1)(A))].

[2] Effect of Lack of Communication of Representation to Plaintiff

Because the plaintiff must have actually relied on the misrepresentation in order to state a cause of action for deceit, there is generally no liability if the plaintiff never heard or read the misrepresentation before entering into the transaction [see Mirkin v. Wasserman (1993) 5 Cal. 4th 1082, 1088, 1091-1100, 23 Cal. Rptr. 2d 101, 858 P.2d 568 ; Suarez v. Life Ins. Co. of N. Am. (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 1396, 1408, 254 Cal. Rptr. 377 ; see also Edmunds v. Valley Circle Estates (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 1290, 1301-1304, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 701 (selling partner as unable to rely on buying partner's statement of intention regarding resale if selling partner's decision to sell predated statement)]. An exception exists if the representation was made to a person acting as an agent of the plaintiff, even if that person does not repeat the misrepresentation to the plaintiff [see Mirkin v. Wasserman (1993) 5 Cal. 4th 1082, 1097-1098, 23 Cal. Rptr. 2d 101, 858 P.2d 568 ; see also Grinnell v. Charles Pfizer & Co. (1969) 274 Cal. App. 2d 424, 441, 79 Cal. Rptr. 369 (patients permitted to sue pharmaceutical firms on basis of misrepresentations communicated to physicians on theory that physicians had acted as patients' agents); Toole v. Richardson-Merrell, Inc. (1967) 251 Cal. App. 2d 689, 707, 60 Cal. Rptr. 398 (same); Roberts v. Salot (1958) 166 Cal. App. 2d 294, 301, 333 P.2d 232 (property owner permitted to sue lender for misrepresentations made to owner's agent)]. Another exception exists if a misrepresentation in an employment letter of recommendation presents a substantial, foreseeable risk of physical injury to a third person, and a third person is injured as a result. In such a case, it is sufficient that the employer relied on the misrepresentation; the injured third person need not have [Randi W. v. Muroc Joint Unified Sch. Dist. (1997) 14 Cal. 4th 1066, 1085, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 263, 929 P.2d 582] . For further discussion, see § 269.24[2].

In one case, the California Supreme Court permitted a class action by parents suing for alleged false representations contained in television advertisements directed at children, even though it was conceded that many of the parents had not actually heard the misrepresentations, nor had the children literally repeated them to the parents [see Committee on Children's Television, Inc. v. General Foods Corp. (1983) 35 Cal. 3d 197, 219, 197 Cal. Rptr. 783, 673 P.2d 660] , superseded by statute as stated in Gartin v. S&M NuTec LLC, 245 F.R.D. 429, 2007 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 38050 . In a later case, the Court interpreted this decision as merely standing for the proposition that "children cannot be expected to convey representations about products with precision," andas not dispensing with the requirement that the representation be communicated to and relied on by the plaintiff [Mirkin v. Wasserman (1993) 5 Cal. 4th 1082, 1098-1099, 23 Cal. Rptr. 2d 101, 858 P.2d 568] . However, communication and reliance may be shown with evidence that the plaintiff was influenced by widespread advertising targeted at a group of which the plaintiff was a member, even if the plaintiff cannot specify that any particular advertisement or statement was made directly to him or her or that the plaintiff relied on any one advertisement [Bullock v. Philip Morris USA, Inc. (2008) 159 Cal. App. 4th 655, 676, 71 Cal. Rptr. 3d 775 ; Boeken v. Philip Morris, Inc. (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 1640, 1660-1661, 26 Cal. Rptr. 3d 638] .

[3] "Fraud-on-Market" Doctrine Inapplicable to Common-Law Fraud Actions

The "fraud-on-the-market" doctrine used in actions under federal and state securities laws does not apply to common-law fraud actions. The "fraud-on-the-market" doctrine allows persons who purchase or sell securities at a price affected by a misrepresentation to sue the person who made the misrepresentation, even if the buyer or seller never actually heard or relied on the misrepresentation [see Mirkin v. Wasserman (1993) 5 Cal. 4th 1082, 1100-1108, 23 Cal. Rptr. 2d 101, 858 P.2d 568] . As noted in § 269.15[1], however, subject to federal preemption of class actions with 50 or more class plaintiffs, the California Supreme Court has subsequently recognized the right of stock investors to bring a common law action for fraud or negligent misrepresentation based on false statements or reports issued by corporate directors that induced the holders of that company's stock to decide not to sell the stock, although a plaintiff in such an action must plead actual reliance with specificity to state a cause of action [Small v. Fritz Cos., Inc. (2003) 30 Cal. 4th 167, 171, 132 Cal. Rptr. 2d 490, 65 P.3d 1255] .

Chapter 269 FRAUD AND DECEIT
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

23-269 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 269.16

§ 269.16 Justifiable Reliance

[1] Subjective Test

The test for determining justifiability of reliance is whether the person claiming reliance was justified in believing the representation in the light of his or her own knowledge and experience [Gray v. Don Miller & Assocs., Inc. (1984) 35 Cal. 3d 498, 503, 198 Cal. Rptr. 551, 674 P.2d 253] .

The plaintiff is not held to the standard of precaution or minimum knowledge of the hypothetical reasonable person. The plaintiff will be denied recovery only if the plaintiff's conduct is manifestly unreasonable in the light of the plaintiff's own intelligence or information. It must be shown that the plaintiff put faith in representations that were "preposterous" or "shown by facts within [his or her] observation to be so patently and obviously false that [the plaintiff] must have closed [his or her] eyes to avoid discovery of the truth." Even in the case of a mere negligent misrepresentation, a plaintiff is not barred unless the plaintiff's conduct, in the light of the plaintiff's own information and intelligence, is preposterous and irrational [Hartong v. Partake, Inc. (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 942, 964-965, 72 Cal. Rptr. 722 ; see Atari Corp. v. Ernst & Whinney (9th Cir. 1992) 981 F.2d 1025, 1030-1031] .

[2] Effect of Plaintiff's Knowledge of Defendant's Untrustworthiness

A plaintiff who in fact had a generalized distrust of the defendant's honesty or who actually mistrusted the defendant's statements with regard to the fraudulent transaction may be unable to show the required justifiable and reasonable reliance on the defendant's statements [see Julrik Prods., Inc. v. Chester (1974) 38 Cal. App. 3d 807, 810, 113 Cal. Rptr. 527] . Actual reliance is present only when the plaintiff acts based on belief in the truth of defendant's representations. A plaintiff who suspects that defendant's claims are false and acts based on that suspicion with the intent to sue for fraud if plaintiff's suspicions turn out to be true has not actually relied on the truth of defendant's misrepresentations [Buckland v. Threshold Enterprises, Ltd. (2007) 155 Cal. App. 4th 798, 808, 66 Cal. Rptr. 3d 543] . Thus, for example, a consumer who purchases a product with the belief that the manufacturer has falsely represented the product in its advertising cannot show actual reliance when purchasing the product with the specific intent to sue if the advertising does turn out to be false [Buckland v. Threshold Enterprises, Ltd. (2007) 155 Cal. App. 4th 798, 808-809, 66 Cal. Rptr. 3d 543] . In the case of fraud by omission, the plaintiff's requisite belief is in the material completeness of the defendant's representations [Buckland v. Threshold Enterprises, Ltd. (2007) 155 Cal. App. 4th

798, 808, 66 Cal. Rptr. 3d 543] .

If a plaintiff learns that one representation by a defendant is false, the plaintiff may not assume other representations by the defendant were true [Roland v. Hubenka (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 215, 225, 90 Cal. Rptr. 490 ; see American Air Equip., Inc. v. Pacific Employers Ins. Co. (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 322, 328, 112 Cal. Rptr. 366] .

[3] Effect of Defendant's Assurances

If the plaintiff has only a suspicion of fraud and the defendant lulls the plaintiff into inaction by a false representation, the defendant will not be permitted to assert that the plaintiff lost the right to recover damages by accepting the assurance of the defendant that there was no fraud [Brownlee v. Vang (1965) 235 Cal. App. 2d 465, 474, 45 Cal. Rptr. 458] , or by accepting the defendant's plausible explanation of facts that might otherwise arouse suspicion [Hartong v. Partake, Inc. (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 942, 966, 72 Cal. Rptr. 722] . The plaintiff is not precluded from justifiably relying on later misrepresentations of the defendant if the defendant has corrected the results of the first misrepresentation on request [Shearer v. Cooper (1943) 21 Cal. 2d 695, 701, 134 P.2d 764] .

[4] Effect of Fiduciary or Confidential Relationship

If there is a fiduciary relationship between the plaintiff and the defendant, the plaintiff has the right to rely on representations made to him or her without the duty of further inquiry [Davis v. Kahn (1970) 7 Cal. App. 3d 868, 878, 86 Cal. Rptr. 872 ; see Greenfield v. Insurance Inc. (1971) 19 Cal. App. 3d 803, 811, 97 Cal. Rptr. 164 (insurance agent representing he had obtained coverage that he had not obtained)].

[5] Effect of Defendant's Superior Knowledge

As a general rule, one has a right to rely on statements of material facts essentially connected with the substance of the transaction if he or she is ignorant or inexperienced in regard to the matters about which the material misrepresentations are made and this ignorance is known to the other party, who is also aware that reliance is being placed on those representations and that the facts are not and cannot be expected to be within the first party's knowledge [Hartong v. Partake, Inc. (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 942, 966, 72 Cal. Rptr. 722] . The plaintiff also has the right to rely on representations if he or she lacks equal facilities for learning the truth, such as if the facts are peculiarly within the knowledge of the speaker and are difficult for the hearer to ascertain, or if from the circumstances surrounding the transaction the hearer is forced to rely on the speaker's statements [Meyer v. Ford Motor Co. (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 90, 105, 79 Cal. Rptr. 816] .

[6] Effect of Plaintiff's Independent Investigation or Lack of Investigation

If one is justified in relying, and in fact does rely, on false representations, his or her right of action is not destroyed merely because he or she could have discovered the true facts by investigation or other means. In other words, the plaintiff has no duty to investigate the truth of representations that he or she was justified in relying on [Howell v. Courtesy Chevrolet, Inc. (1971) 16 Cal. App. 3d 391, 403, 94 Cal. Rptr. 33] . Even if the plaintiff has an opportunity to make an inspection or investigation that would reveal the falsity of the defendant's statements to him or her, he or she is not required to make the investigation if the defendant has asserted facts about the subject matter [Storage Servs. v. Oosterbaan (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 498, 508, 262 Cal. Rptr. 689 ; Balfour, Guthrie & Co. v. Hansen (1964) 227 Cal. App. 2d 173, 193, 38 Cal. Rptr. 525] . The fact than an investigation would have revealed the falsity of a misrepresentation will not alone bar recovery, unless the conduct of the plaintiff in the light of the plaintiff's own intelligence and information was manifestly unreasonable [Meyer v. Ford Motor Co. (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 90, 105, 79 Cal. Rptr. 816] .

Even if the plaintiff does make an independent investigation or examination of property, this does not preclude reliance on the defendant's representations if the falsity of the statement is not apparent from an inspection, or the person making the representations has superior knowledge, or the party relying on the investigation is not competent to judge the facts without expert assistance [Snelson v. Ondulando Highlands Corp. (1970) 5 Cal. App. 3d 243, 252, 84 Cal. Rptr. 800 ; Horn v. Guaranty Chevrolet Motors (1969) 270 Cal. App. 2d 477, 482, 75 Cal. Rptr. 871] . In addition, if plaintiff made an attempt to investigate but negligently failed to discover the falsity of the defendant's representations, this negligence will not relieve the defendant from liability for his or her intentional misrepresentations [Manderville v. PCG&S Group, Inc. (2007) 146 Cal. App. 4th 1486, 1502-1503, 55 Cal. Rptr. 3d 59] .

If, however, a party to whom a misrepresentation has been made does make an independent investigation and ascertains that the representation is false, he or she is not justified in relying on the misrepresentation [Mercer v. Elliott (1962) 208 Cal. App. 2d 275, 279, 25 Cal. Rptr. 217 ; but see Kramer v. Musser (1943) 57 Cal. App. 2d 942, 946, 136 P.2d 74 (plaintiff who undertakes investigation as held to knowledge that would have been obtained had plaintiff pursued investigation to its end)].

[7] Effect of Failure to Read Insurance Policy

In cases involving alleged fraudulent misrepresentations concerning insurance coverage, some courts have applied what appears to be an exception to the usual rule that a plaintiff has no duty to investigate the truth of affirmative representations unless the plaintiff is aware of facts indicating the falsity of the representations [see § 269.16[6]]. These courts have held that if an insured receives and accepts an insurance policy, he or she is bound by its terms and cannot thereafter complain that he or she did not read the policy or know its terms. An insured who fails to read or understand the terms of the policy is precluded from claiming justifiable reliance on coverage misrepresentations by a broker or agent if the insured could have ascertained the truth by reading the express terms of the policy [see Hadland v. NN Investors Life Ins. Co. (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 1578, 1586-1589, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 88 ; Hackethal v. National Cas. Co. (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 1102, 1111-1112, 234 Cal. Rptr. 853] .

[8] Effect of Plaintiff's Discovery of True Facts Before Close of Escrow in Real Property Sale

The plaintiff's discovery of the true facts after signing a real property purchase agreement but before the close of escrow does not preclude a finding of justifiable reliance with respect to false representations made by the defendant before the purchase agreement was signed. The plaintiff's reliance at the inception of the agreement is sufficient to support recovery for fraud [Jue v. Smiser (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 312, 313, 316-318, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 242] .

[9] Effect of Plaintiff's Legal Duty to Act in Response to Representations

If misrepresentations trigger actions that are mandated by law on the part of the person to whom the representations are made, then these actions are not taken in reliance on the misrepresentations. In one case, for example, an employer was required by law and by its workers' compensation insurance policy to report any claims to its insurer. Because of this legal requirement, the employer could not demonstrate reliance on an alleged fraudulent claim filed by an employee when it reported the claim to the insurer [Leegin Creative Leather Prods., Inc. v. Diaz (2005) 131 Cal. App. 4th 1517, 1525, 33 Cal. Rptr. 3d 139] .

[10] Constructive Notice Not Applicable

The plaintiff in an action for fraud is not held to constructive notice of a public record that would reveal the true facts [Seeger v. Odell (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 409, 415, 115 P.2d 977] .

[11] Burden of Proof and Evidence

[a] In General

The fact that reliance was not justified is a defense [see Hartong v. Partake, Inc. (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 942, 964-965, 72 Cal. Rptr. 722] , but the plaintiff has the burden of proof on the issue of justifiable reliance [American Air Equip., Inc. v. Pacific Employers Ins. Co. (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 322, 327 n.4, 112 Cal. Rptr. 366] . Whether the plaintiff justifiably relied is generally a question of fact [Meyer v. Ford Motor Co. (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 90, 105, 79 Cal. Rptr. 816] , but it is not necessary to show reliance on a false representation by direct evidence. The fact of reliance on false representations may be inferred from the circumstances attending the transaction, which often afford much stronger and more satisfactory evidence of the inducement that prompted the party defrauded to enter into the contract than his or her direct testimony to the same effect [Vasquez v. Superior Court (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 800, 814, 94 Cal. Rptr. 796, 484 P.2d 964] .

[b] Class Actions

In a class action for fraud, the plaintiff must show that the defendant made false material representations to each member of the class with knowledge of their falsity or an unreasonable belief in their veracity and that these representations were made with intent to and did induce justifiable reliance by each member of the class and that each member of the class suffered damages as a result [see Vasquez v. Superior Court (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 800, 811, 94 Cal. Rptr. 796, 484 P.2d 964] . The representative plaintiff must by common proof show that substantially the same representations were made to each member of the class. One way of showing common representations is to show that the defendant used a standardized sales pitch or brochure [see Occidental Land, Inc. v. Superior Court (1976) 18 Cal. 3d 355, 361-362, 134 Cal. Rptr. 388, 556 P.2d 750] . If representations were in fact made to all the members of a class, a persuasive inference that each of them relied on the representations arises without separate proof of reliance by each individual plaintiff [Collins v. Rocha (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 232, 237, 102 Cal. Rptr. 1, 497 P.2d 225 ; see Mirkin v. Wasserman (1993) 5 Cal. 4th 1082, 1095, 23 Cal. Rptr. 2d 101, 858 P.2d 568] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

23-269 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 269.17

§ 269.17 Opinion and Fact

[1] Opinions Not Actionable

Ordinarily, mere statements of opinion, including legal conclusions drawn from a true statement of facts, are not actionable [see Wilke v. Coinway, Inc. (1967) 257 Cal. App. 2d 126, 136, 64 Cal. Rptr. 845] , and the plaintiff may not show justifiable reliance on mere statements of opinion [Wilke v. Coinway, Inc. (1967) 257 Cal. App. 2d 126, 136, 64 Cal. Rptr. 845] . There is a special type of opinion known as puffing, an exaggerated statement of the opinion of a seller about his or her wares, for which the seller is not held liable [see Hauter v. Zogarts (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 104, 111 n.5, 120 Cal. Rptr. 681, 534 P.2d 377] .

[2] Distinction Between Opinion and Fact

The line between opinion and fact is not distinct. If the opinion is rendered under circumstances such that it may be regarded as amounting to a positive affirmation of fact, it will be treated as a representation of fact for purposes of a deceit action [Mercer v. Elliott (1962) 208 Cal. App. 2d 275, 280, 25 Cal. Rptr. 217] . An assertion that factually describes an important characteristic of a product is not a seller's mere puffing or opinion and is actionable. The courts, in addition, have consistently narrowed the scope of puffing and expanded the liability that flows from broad statements of manufacturers as to the quality of their products. A statement, for example that a product is safe is usually held to be a statement of fact [Hauter v. Zogarts (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 104, 111-113, 120 Cal. Rptr. 681, 534 P.2d 377 ; Continental Airlines, Inc. v. McDonnell Douglas Corp. (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 388, 424, 264 Cal. Rptr. 779] . If there is a reasonable doubt as to whether a particular statement is an expression of opinion or the affirmation of a fact, the determination rests with the trier of fact [Pacesetter Homes, Inc. v. Brodkin (1970) 5 Cal. App. 3d 206, 212, 85 Cal. Rptr. 39] .

[3] Opinions That Are Actionable

An expression of opinion is treated as an actionable misrepresentation if any of the following applies: the one expressing the opinion does not in fact entertain it [Ogier v. Pacific Oil & Gas Corp. (1955) 132 Cal. App. 2d 496, 506, 282 P.2d 574 ; see also Anderson v. Handley (1957) 149 Cal. App. 2d 184, 187, 308 P.2d 368 (expression of opinion as to character or skill of another)]; the opinion amplifies false representations of fact [Harazim v. Lynam (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 127, 133, 72 Cal. Rptr. 670 ; Wilke v. Coinway, Inc. (1967) 257 Cal. App. 2d 126, 136, 64 Cal. Rptr. 845] ; the opinion is expressed in a manner implying a factual basis that does not exist [Harazim v. Lynam (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 127, 133, 72 Cal. Rptr. 670] ; if the opinion is expressed as a fact [Harazim v. Lynam (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 127, 132, 72 Cal. Rptr. 670] ; the opinion is expressed by a party possessing superior knowledge to that of the plaintiff [Bily v. Arthur Young & Co. (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 370, 407-408, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 51, 834 P.2d 745 ; Gagne v. Bertran (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 481, 489, 275 P.2d 15 ; Pacesetter Homes, Inc. v. Brodkin (1970) 5 Cal. App. 3d 206, 211, 85 Cal. Rptr. 39 ; Ogier v. Pacific Oil & Gas Corp. (1955) 132 Cal. App. 2d 496, 506-507, 282 P.2d 574] ; or if there is a fiduciary relationship between the plaintiff and the defendant [Katz v. Feldman (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 500, 504, 100 Cal. Rptr. 367 ; Harazim v. Lynam (1968) 267 App. 2d 127, 133, 72 Cal. Rptr. 670] .

Chapter 269 FRAUD AND DECEIT
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

23-269 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 269.18

§ 269.18 Misrepresentation of Law

[1] General Rule

Absent special circumstances, a misrepresentation of law is not actionable fraud [Bledsoe v. Watson (1973) 30 Cal. App. 3d 105, 110, 106 Cal. Rptr. 197 ; Regus v. Schartkoff (1957) 156 Cal. App. 2d 382, 388, 319 P.2d 721] . That is, a representation of law by a layperson not occupying a confidential relationship toward the one to whom it is addressed and based on facts equally known or accessible to both does not ordinarily justify reliance on the representation [Regus v. Schartkoff (1957) 156 Cal. App. 2d 382, 388, 319 P.2d 721] .

[2] Exceptions

The rule precluding liability for misrepresentations of law has several exceptions. One of the most commonly known and recognized exceptions arises if the parties occupy confidential or fiduciary relations toward one another [see Lynch v. Cruttenden & Co. (1993) 18 Cal. App. 4th 802, 808, 22 Cal. Rptr. 2d 636 ; Katz v. Feldman (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 500, 504, 100 Cal. Rptr. 367 ; Bank of Am. v. Sanchez (1934) 3 Cal. App. 2d 238, 242, 38 P.2d 787] .

This exception is not limited to situations in which there is a formal fiduciary or confidential relationship (for example, an attorney-client relationship). The exception extends to fiduciary or confidential relationships that may arise out of moral, social, domestic, or personal relationships. For example, the existence of friendly relations between the parties during a period of several years may entitle the injured party, in an appropriate case, to place confidence in the integrity and honesty of the other party and in the truth of representations made by the latter regarding a transaction between them [Bank of Am. v. Sanchez (1934) 3 Cal. App. 2d 238, 243, 38 P.2d 787 ; see Lynch v. Cruttenden & Co. (1993) 18 Cal. App. 4th 802, 809, 22 Cal. Rptr. 2d 636 (plaintiffs justified in relying on defendant's representations regarding legal effect of documents signed by them because defendant had obtained control over funds through trust and confidence reposed in defendant as their friend and as purported expert in investments)].

Another exception exists if one who has had superior means of obtaining information possesses a knowledge of the law and thereby gains an unconscionable advantage over another who is ignorant and has not been in a situation to become informed [Orange County Rock Prods. Co. v. Cook Bros. Equip. Co. (1966) 246 Cal. App. 2d 698, 701, 55 Cal. Rptr. 265 ; Regus v. Schartkoff (1957) 156 Cal. App. 2d 382, 388-389, 319 P.2d 721] . An exception also exists if the party expressing the opinion purports to have (or is reasonably believed by the other party to have) expert knowledge concerning the matter [see Seeger v. Odell (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 409, 414, 115 P.2d 977 ; Lynch v. Cruttenden & Co. (1993) 18 Cal. App. 4th 802, 808, 22 Cal. Rptr. 2d 636 ; Regus v. Schartkoff (1957) 156 Cal. App. 2d 382, 388, 319 P.2d 721] .

Chapter 269 FRAUD AND DECEIT
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

23-269 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 269.19

§ 269.19 Intent to Induce Reliance

[1] General Rule

Some cases have implied that an actual intent on the part of the defendant to deceive the plaintiff is a necessary element of the cause of action for deceit [see, e.g., Lesperance v. North Am. Aviation, Inc. (1963) 217 Cal. App. 2d 336, 345, 31 Cal. Rptr. 873] . However, one who deceives another with the intent to induce that other person to alter his or her position to his or her injury or risk is liable for any damages that the other person thereby suffers [Civ. Code § 1709]. The required intent is the intent to induce reliance so that the person defrauded alters his or her position, and is not the intent to defraud [Gagne v. Bertran (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 481, 488 n.5, 275 P.2d 15 ; De Zemplen v. Home Fed. Sav. & Loan Ass'n (1963) 221 Cal. App. 2d 197, 207, 34 Cal. Rptr. 334] . The fact that negligent misrepresentation is made actionable by Civ. Code § 1710(2) further indicates that the intent to induce reliance, rather than the intent to deceive, is the required intent [Hale v. George A. Hormel & Co. (1975) 48 Cal. App. 3d 73, 82-86, 121 Cal. Rptr. 144] .

The defendant's intent to cause the plaintiff to suffer a particular type of damage or harm is not an element of a cause of action for fraud [Lovejoy v. AT&T Corp. (2001) 92 Cal. App. 4th 85, 92-94, 111 Cal. Rptr. 2d 711] .

[2] Inference of Intent

An intent to induce the plaintiff to alter his or her position can be inferred from the fact that the defendant made the representation with knowledge that the plaintiff would act in reliance on it [Gagne v. Bertran (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 481, 488, 275 P.2d 15 ; Eddy v. Sharp (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 858, 864, 245 Cal. Rptr. 211 ; see Civ. Code § 1709], since direct proof of intent is often impossible [Santoro v. Carbone (1972) 22 Cal. App. 3d 721, 728, 99 Cal. Rptr. 488] . For example, an accounting firm that prepares financial reports for a research company for inclusion in a confidential offering memorandum to be communicated to potential investors was found to have known to a substantial certainty that investors would rely on the reports in the course of the transaction [Anderson v. Deloitte & Touche (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 1468, 1477-1478, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 512 (forecasts and underlying assumptions to which reports referred were designed for the specific purpose of attracting investors and could not reasonably be understood to have any other purpose)].

Intent is usually proved by inference from the fact of concealment or from misrepresentation of material facts [Horn v.

Guaranty Chevrolet Motors (1969) 270 Cal. App. 2d 477, 483, 75 Cal. Rptr. 871] .

[3] Intent to Induce Reliance by Public or by Class of Persons

One who commits a deceit with intent to defraud the public or a particular class of persons is deemed to have intended to defraud every individual in that class who is actually misled by the deceit [Civ. Code § 1711]. Thus, liability may be imposed if the representation was intended to be relied on by the public or by a general class of persons that includes the plaintiff; the defendant need not have intended that the representation be relied on by the plaintiff specifically [see Barnhouse v. City of Pinole (1982) 133 Cal. App. 3d 171, 191-192, 183 Cal. Rptr. 881 ; see also Civ. Code § 1711]. However, there is no liability unless the representation was ultimately communicated to and actually relied on by the plaintiff [see Mirkin v. Wasserman (1993) 5 Cal. 4th 1082, 1088-1100, 23 Cal. Rptr. 2d 101, 858 P.2d 568 ; see also § 269.15[2]].

Chapter 269 FRAUD AND DECEIT
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

23-269 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 269.20

§ 269.20 Materiality

In order to constitute actionable fraud, the alleged false representation must be of a material fact [Adkins v. Wyckoff (1957) 152 Cal. App. 2d 684, 689, 313 P.2d 592] . This requirement is related to the requirement that the representation by the defendant must have induced the plaintiff to alter his or her position--that is, that the plaintiff must have actually relied on the defendant's representation [see Sanfran Co. v. Rees Blow Pipe Mfg. Co. (1959) 168 Cal. App. 2d 191, 202, 335 P.2d 995 (causation in misrepresentation cases as frequently presented in terms of reliance and inducement); see also § 269.15[2]]. A fraudulent misrepresentation is not actionable unless the plaintiff's conduct in reliance on the misrepresentation caused the loss for which the plaintiff seeks damages [Bezaire v. Fidelity & Deposit Co. (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 888, 893, 91 Cal. Rptr. 142] . The materiality of the representation and the actual reliance of the plaintiff on the representation are both necessary to show that the damage claimed was sustained by reason of the fraud. The fraud and the damage sustained must have a cause and effect relationship to each other [Hill v. Wrather (1958) 158 Cal. App. 2d 818, 825, 323 P.2d 567] .

To be material, the misrepresentation must be such that the plaintiff would not have acted as the plaintiff did without it [Adkins v. Wyckoff (1957) 152 Cal. App. 2d 684, 689, 313 P.2d 592] . The fact represented or suppressed is deemed material if it relates to a matter of substance and directly affects the purpose for which the deceived party acted [Handley v. Handley (1960) 179 Cal. App. 2d 742, 746, 3 Cal. Rptr. 910 (misrepresentation as ground for annulment of marriage contract)]. Concealment is material if the knowledge suppressed is so important that its mere repression amounts to fraud [Sanfran Co. v. Rees Blow Pipe Mfg. Co. (1959) 168 Cal. App. 2d 191, 205, 335 P.2d 995] . On the other hand, a false representation that cannot affect the intrinsic merits of a business transaction must necessarily be immaterial because reliance on it could not produce injury in a legal sense [Hill v. Wrather (1958) 158 Cal. App. 2d 818, 824-825, 323 P.2d 567] .

The plaintiff will also be unable to show materiality or causation if the plaintiff could have done nothing to improve his or her position if the plaintiff had known initially that the representation was false [Bezaire v. Fidelity & Deposit Co. (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 888, 893, 91 Cal. Rptr. 142] . However, it is unnecessary that the defendant's representations be the sole cause of the damage. If they are a substantial factor in inducing the plaintiff to act, even though the plaintiff also relies in part on the advice of others, reliance and materiality are sufficiently shown [Wennerholm v. Stanford Univ. Sch. of Med. (1942) 20 Cal. 2d 713, 717, 128 P.2d 522 ; Anderson v. Handley (1957) 149 Cal. App. 2d 184, 186-187, 308 P.2d 368] . It is sufficient if the evidence shows that the representation was an inducement to the plaintiff to act without showing that it was the sole inducement [Sanfran Co. v. Rees Blow Pipe Mfg. Co. (1959) 168 Cal. App. 2d 191, 205, 335 P.2d 995] .

§ 269.21 Damage as Element of Cause of Action

Fraud without damage furnishes no ground for action [Wallis v. Farmers Group, Inc. (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 718, 734, 269 Cal. Rptr. 299 , overruled in part by, Dore v. Arnold Worldwide, Inc., 39 Cal. 4th 384 ; South Tahoe Gas Co. v. Hofmann Land Improvement Co. (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 750, 765, 102 Cal. Rptr. 286 ; see Fraker v. Sentry Life Ins. Co. (1993) 19 Cal. App. 4th 276, 285-286, 23 Cal. Rptr. 2d 372] . A plaintiff may recover for fraud only if the plaintiff shows that because of the defendant's misrepresentations, the plaintiff has sustained some pecuniary damage or injury from having been put in a position worse than he or she would have occupied had there been no fraud [R.D. Reeder Lathing Co. v. Cypress Ins. Co. (1970) 3 Cal. App. 3d 995, 999, 84 Cal. Rptr. 98] . The plaintiff must allege and prove the precise amount of damages [Santoro v. Carbone (1972) 22 Cal. App. 3d 721, 728, 99 Cal. Rptr. 488] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

23-269 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 269.22

§ 269.22 Constructive Fraud

[1] Definition

Constructive fraud is (1) any breach of duty by which a person, without an actually fraudulent intent, gains an advantage by misleading another to his or her prejudice, or to the prejudice of anyone claiming under him or her; or (2) any act or omission that the law specially declares to be fraudulent, without respect to actual fraud [Civ. Code § 1573].

In its generic sense, constructive fraud comprises all acts, omissions, and concealments involving a breach of legal or equitable duty, trust, or confidence, and resulting in damage to another person. Constructive fraud exists in cases in which conduct, although not actually fraudulent, ought to be treated as fraud. That is, it exists in situations in which the conduct is a constructive or quasi fraud, and has all the actual consequences and legal effects of actual fraud. Constructive fraud occurs if there is a breach of duty arising from a confidential relationship, that is, a relationship in which trust and confidence is reposed by one person in the integrity and fidelity of another [Barrett v. Bank of Am. (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 1362, 1368-1369, 229 Cal. Rptr. 16 (criticized in Price v. Wells Fargo Bank (1989) 213 Cal. App. 3d 465, 476, 261 Cal. Rptr. 735 to extent it suggests that relationship between bank and loan customer is quasi-fiduciary); Estate of Arbuckle (1950) 98 Cal. App. 2d 562, 568, 220 P.2d 950 ; see also Feeney v. Howard (1889) 79 Cal. 525, 529, 21 P. 984 ; Salahutdin v. Valley of Cal., Inc. (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 555, 562, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 463 ; Guthrie v. Times-Mirror Co. (1975) 51 Cal. App. 3d 879, 889, 124 Cal. Rptr. 577] , with justification [Twomey v. Mitchum, Jones & Templeton, Inc. (1968) 262 Cal. App. 2d 690, 711, 69 Cal. Rptr. 222] .

[2] Presumption of Fraud

If during the existence of the fiduciary relationship one of the parties secures any advantage over the other, the transaction is presumptively fraudulent and the burden is on the party gaining the advantage to show fairness and good faith in all respects. The presumption is evidence and is sufficient to sustain a finding of fraud although there may be direct evidence to the contrary [Boyd v. Bevilacqua (1966) 247 Cal. App. 2d 272, 290-291, 55 Cal. Rptr. 610] .

[3] Breach of Duty of Disclosure

If there is a duty to speak because of a trust or confidential relationship, a failure to do so is considered constructive fraud [Blair v. Mahon (1951) 104 Cal. App. 2d 44, 49, 230 P.2d 832] . Wherever there is a confidential relationship, there is a duty to make full disclosure of all material facts within the agent's or trustee's knowledge relating to the transaction [Montoya v. McLeod (1985) 176 Cal. App. 3d 57, 64, 221 Cal. Rptr. 353 ; Ford v. Cournale (1973) 36 Cal. App. 3d 172, 182, 111 Cal. Rptr. 334] .

Such a duty exists between a real estate broker and his or her client [Salahutdin v. Valley of Cal., Inc. (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 555, 562-563, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 463 ; Ford v. Cournale (1973) 36 Cal. App. 3d 172, 182, 111 Cal. Rptr. 334 ; Kachig v. Boothe (1971) 22 Cal. App. 3d 626, 634-635, 99 Cal. Rptr. 393] ; between a title insurance company and all principals to the escrow and between an escrow officers and all principals to the escrow [Moe v. Transamerica Title Ins. Co. (1971) 21 Cal. App. 3d 289, 306, 98 Cal. Rptr. 547] ; between joint venturers [Davis v. Kahn (1970) 7 Cal. App. 3d 868, 877-878, 86 Cal. Rptr. 872 ; Boyd v. Bevilacqua (1966) 247 Cal. App. 2d 272, 290, 55 Cal. Rptr. 610] ; between spouses negotiating a property settlement agreement [Boeseke v. Boeseke (1974) 10 Cal. 3d 844, 849, 112 Cal. Rptr. 401, 519 P.2d 161 (but duty is qualified in case of spouses); see Fam. Code §§ 721, 1100(e)]; between the executor of an estate and the devisees and legatees [Blair v. Mahon (1951) 104 Cal. App. 2d 44, 49, 230 P.2d 832] ; between the officers, directors, and managers of a corporation and the stockholders [Credit Managers Ass'n of So. Cal. v. Superior Court (1975) 51 Cal. App. 3d 352, 360-361, 124 Cal. Rptr. 242] ; and between any agent and principal [McFate v. Bank of Am. of Cal. (1932) 125 Cal. App. 683, 687, 14 P.2d 146] .

For example, a real estate broker representing a buyer breaches his or her fiduciary duty to the buyer if the broker makes erroneous statements concerning material characteristics of a parcel of property without disclosing that he or she is merely passing on information provided by the seller and that he or she has not independently investigated the truth of those statements. Such a breach of duty may constitute constructive fraud, depending on the circumstances [see Salahutdin v. Valley of Cal., Inc. (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 555, 562-563, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 463] .

[4] Defenses

In an action for constructive fraud, the applicable statute of limitations is Code Civ. Proc. § 338(d), the same statute applicable to actions based on deceit [Agair, Inc. v. Shaeffer (1965) 232 Cal. App. 2d 513, 517-519, 42 Cal. Rptr. 883] . Contributory negligence is not a defense to an action for constructive fraud based on misrepresentations by a fiduciary [Bacon v. Bacon (1907) 150 Cal. 477, 489, 89 P. 317] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

23-269 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 269.23

§ 269.23 Evidence

[1] Burden of Proof

Although some earlier cases assumed that fraud must be proved by clear and convincing evidence, later cases have indicated that fraud need only be proved by a preponderance of the evidence [see Sierra Nat'l Bank v. Brown (1971) 18 Cal. App. 3d 98, 104-106, 95 Cal. Rptr. 742 ; Teledyne Indus., Inc. v. EON Corp. (S.D.N.Y. 1975) 401 F. Supp. 729, 737 (interpreting California law); see also Evid. Code § 115 (except as otherwise provided by law, a party's burden proof requires proof by a preponderance of the evidence)]. However, if "fraud" as defined by Civ. Code § 3294(c)(3) is asserted as a basis for recovery of punitive damages, it must be proven by clear and convincing evidence [Civ. Code § 3294(a); see also § 269.30].

[2] No Presumption; Inference Permitted

Fraud is never presumed [Fowler v. Fowler (1964) 227 Cal. App. 2d 741, 748, 39 Cal. Rptr. 101] . The facts constituting fraud must be determined from the circumstances of each case, and fraud may be proved from direct evidence or inferred from all the circumstances in the case, [Ach v. Finkelstein (1968) 264 Cal. App. 2d 667, 675, 70 Cal. Rptr. 472] . Thus, fraud may be proved by inference and circumstantial evidence [Vogelsang v. Wolpert (1964) 227 Cal. App. 2d 102, 111, 38 Cal. Rptr. 440] because it is often impossible to prove directly. The circumstances surrounding the transaction and the relationship of the parties will often be facts from which fraud may be inferred [Balfour, Guthrie & Co. v. Hansen (1964) 227 Cal. App. 2d 173, 192, 38 Cal. Rptr. 525] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

23-269 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 269.24

§ 269.24 Liability for Misrepresentation Made to Third Party

[1] Relied on by Third Party

Although the plaintiff must ultimately receive and actually rely on the misrepresentation [see § 269.15], it is not necessary that the defendant communicate directly with the plaintiff. The defendant is subject to liability if he or she communicates a fraudulent misrepresentation to a third person with the intention or with reason to expect that it would be repeated to and relied on by the plaintiff or by a class of persons including the plaintiff [see Mirkin v. Wasserman (1993) 5 Cal. 4th 1082, 1095-1097, 23 Cal. Rptr. 2d 101, 858 P.2d 568 (but finding rule inapplicable to facts of case); Barnhouse v. City of Pinole (1982) 133 Cal. App. 3d 171, 191-192, 183 Cal. Rptr. 881 ; Restatement (Second) of Torts § 533].

Having "reason to expect" that a fraudulent misrepresentation will be communicated to and influence a third party requires only knowledge on the part of the person making the misrepresentation such that a reasonable person would conclude that there is a special likelihood that the misrepresentations will induce reliance by third parties. Mere foreseeability that a third party might so rely is insufficient [Geernaert v. Mitchell (1995) 31 Cal. App. 4th 601, 608-609, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 483 (buyers of real property had stated cause of action against sellers once and twice removed by alleging that defendants intended or had reason to expect that misrepresentations would be passed to subsequent buyers)]. To the extent that BAJI No. 12.50 requires actual intent to commit a fraud against a third person in order to incur liability to that third person, it has been disapproved by the court of appeal [Geernaert v. Mitchell (1995) 31 Cal. App. 4th 601, 609 n.3, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 483] .

If the misrepresentation made to the third party is negligent rather than knowingly false, the courts have been somewhat more reluctant to allow recovery to a plaintiff to whom the representation was not directly communicated. Although privity of contract between the plaintiff and the defendant is not a prerequisite to recovery, the courts analyze a number of factors in determining whether the defendant should be held liable, including the extent to which the transaction was intended to affect the plaintiff, the foreseeability of harm to the plaintiff, the degree of certainty that the plaintiff suffered injury, the closeness of the connection between the defendant's conduct and the injury suffered, any moral blame attached to the defendant's conduct, and the policy of preventing future harm [De Zemplen v. Home Fed. Sav. & Loan Ass'n (1963) 221 Cal. App. 2d 197, 206, 34 Cal. Rptr. 334] .

California follows the rule of Restatement (Second) of Torts, § 552(2), regarding negligent misrepresentations made by suppliers of information and evaluations for the use and benefit of others [Bily v. Arthur Young & Co. (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 370, 408-414, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 51, 834 P.2d 745 (auditors)]. Under that rule, liability is limited to the narrow and circumscribed class of persons for whose benefit the representations are made, either in transactions that the supplier of information intends, or knows that the recipient intends, to influence, or in substantially similar transactions [see Restatement (Second) of Torts, § 552(2) & cmt. (j); Bily v. Arthur Young & Co. (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 370, 408-409, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 51, 834 P.2d 745 ; see also Mariani v. Price Waterhouse (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 685, 707-708, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 671 (no evidence that auditor intended to induce guarantors of corporation's debt to rely on results of audit of corporation)]. To support liability under this rule, the plaintiff must have relied on the misrepresentations in his or her capacity as a member of the protected class, rather than in some other capacity [Mariani v. Price Waterhouse (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 685, 705-706, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 671 (auditors had no liability to the plaintiffs as individual guarantors of corporate debt because alleged reliance involved actions in capacity as corporate officers)]. Professional suppliers of information subject to this rule include, but are not limited to, attorneys, accountants, architects, auditors, engineers, and title insurers or abstractors [see Bily v. Arthur Young & Co. (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 370, 410, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 51, 834 P.2d 745] .

Applying this rule, the court of appeal has held that the auditor of an insurance company owes a duty of care not to make negligent misrepresentations to the Insurance Commissioner if the Commissioner is acting in the capacity of representative of policyholders and creditors. The court in that case rejected the auditor's argument that liability to the Commissioner could not be imposed if the auditor lacked knowledge that the report would be supplied to the Commissioner, because filing the report with the Commissioner is mandated by statute, and knowledge of this would be imputed to the auditor [Arthur Andersen v. Superior Court (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 1481, 1506-1507, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 879] .

[2] Letter of Recommendation

The writer of a letter or recommendation owes to third persons a duty not to misrepresent the facts in describing the qualifications and character of a former employee, if making these misrepresentations would present a substantial, foreseeable risk of physical injury to third persons [Randi W. v. Muroc Joint Unified Sch. Dist. (1997) 14 Cal. 4th 1066, 1081, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 263, 929 P.2d 582 ; see § 269.24[1]]. Applying this rule, the California Supreme Court held that former employers' positive recommendations of a person whom the employers knew had been accused of sexually inappropriate behavior toward minors could be the basis of a cause of action by the guardian ad litem of a student that the person allegedly assaulted in the person's subsequent employment at a school [Randi W. v. Muroc Joint Unified Sch. Dist. (1997) 14 Cal. 4th 1066, 1081-1087, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 263, 929 P.2d 582] .

In addressing the reliance element, the Court held that it was sufficient that the plaintiff alleged that the school district that hired the person relied on the former employers' representations in the letters of recommendation, and that the injury resulted from action that the recipient of the defendants' misrepresentation took in reliance on those misrepresentations [Randi W. v. Muroc Joint Unified Sch. Dist. (1997) 14 Cal. 4th 1066, 1085, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 263, 929 P.2d 582] . The Court noted that in such a case, it would be unusual for the person ultimately injured by the employee to be aware of the letters of recommendation, much less actually rely on them [Randi W. v. Muroc Joint Unified Sch. Dist. (1997) 14 Cal. 4th 1066, 1085, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 263, 929 P.2d 582] .

§ 269.25 Liability for Fraud of Agent

If an agent acting within his or her actual or apparent authority gains an advantage by means of fraud, the principal is jointly liable with the agent for damages, even though the principal is innocent of personally participating in the fraud, if the principal accepts and retains the benefits that result from the transaction [Ach v. Finkelstein (1968) 264 Cal. App. 2d 667, 677, 70 Cal. Rptr. 472] . The principal is not permitted to derive any benefit from a transaction that involved the fraud of the principal's agent acting within his or her authority by claiming that the fraud was not authorized by the principal [Balfour, Guthrie & Co. v. Hansen (1964) 227 Cal. App. 2d 173, 192, 38 Cal. Rptr. 525] .

However, a principal is not vicariously liable for fraud if an agent is using the principal to obtain a benefit for the agent and other parties in a transaction in which the principal will ultimately not benefit, and if the plaintiff was one of those other parties and knew that the agent's actions did not arise from the normal conduct of the agent's duties on behalf of the principal, but were designed ultimately to benefit only the individual parties to the transaction [Saks v. Charity Mission Baptist Church (2001) 90 Cal. App. 4th 1116, 1138-1139, 110 Cal. Rptr. 2d 45 (plaintiff knew that church pastor was using church's name only to secure public funding for construction project, after which title for purchased property would be transferred to private partnership that would include plaintiff and pastor as partners)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

23-269 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 269.26

§ 269.26 Public Immunity and Liability

Gov. Code § 822.2 provides that a public employee acting in the scope of his or her employment is not liable for an injury caused by his or her misrepresentation, whether or not such misrepresentation be negligent or intentional, unless the public employee is guilty of actual fraud, corruption, or actual malice. Gov. Code § 818.8 provides that a public entity is not liable for an injury caused by misrepresentation by an employee of the public entity, whether such misrepresentation be negligent or intentional [see Schonfeld v. City of Vallejo (1974) 50 Cal. App. 3d 401, 407, 123 Cal. Rptr. 669] . Fraudulent concealment is within the immunity granted by Gov. Code § 818.8 [Schonfeld v. City of Vallejo (1974) 50 Cal. App. 3d 401, 409, 123 Cal. Rptr. 669 ; but see Michael J. v. Los Angeles County Dept. of Adoptions (1988) 201 Cal. App. 3d 859, 872, 875, 247 Cal. Rptr. 504 (county adoption agency subject to liability for intentional misrepresentation or fraudulent concealment in adoption process)]. The immunity granted by Gov. Code § 818.8 also applies to alleged intentional or negligent interference with economic advantage or business relations that is based on misrepresentation [Los Angeles Equestrian Ctr., Inc. v. City of Los Angeles (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 432, 449-450, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 313] .

Actual fraud for the purpose of Gov. Code § 822.2 does not mean actual fraud as defined by Civ. Code § 1572 or deceit as defined by Civ. Code § 1710. It means that in addition to the elements of common law deceit, the public employee is motivated by corruption or actual malice; that is, the employee has a conscious intent to deceive, vex, annoy, or harm the injured party in that party's business [Schonfeld v. City of Vallejo (1974) 50 Cal. App. 3d 401, 409-410, 123 Cal. Rptr. 669] .

Although tort liability of a public entity for false representations made by a public employee is barred by Gov. Code § 818.8(a), and the public entity is therefore not liable on a tort theory for fraudulent inducements, the public entity is still liable for damages for breach of contract [Warner Constr. Corp. v. Los Angeles (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 285, 293-294, 85 Cal. Rptr. 444, 466 P.2d 996] .

In determining whether the immunity provisions apply, some courts have drawn a distinction between misrepresentations that cause interference with financial or commercial interests and those that cause harm in a social service area, such as adoption placement. For example, in a case involving placement for adoption of a child suffering from a physical disorder, an appellate court held that Gov. Code §§ 818.8 and 822.2 do not immunize a county from liability for intentional misrepresentation or fraudulent concealment of a child's medical condition. It also found that public policy considerations support recognition of a cause of action against a public agency for intentional misrepresentation or fraudulent concealment in the adoption process [Michael J. v. Los Angeles County Dep't of Adoptions (1988) 201 Cal. App. 3d 859, 872, 875, 247 Cal. Rptr. 504] .

Chapter 269 FRAUD AND DECEIT
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

23-269 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 269.27

§ 269.27 Amount of Compensatory Damages

[1] General Rule

One who willfully deceives another with intent to induce him or her to alter his or her position to his or her injury or risk, is liable for any damages that the injured party thereby suffers [Civ. Code § 1709]. Additionally, for the breach of an obligation not arising from a contract, the measure of damages, unless otherwise expressly provided by the Civil Code, is the amount that will compensate for all the detriment proximately caused thereby, whether it could have been anticipated or not [Civ. Code § 3333]. These statutes govern the amount of damages for fraud and deceit, with the exceptions discussed in § 269.27[2] and § 269.27[3]. It appears that if a business deal involving the possible purchase or sale of property is never completed, the measure of damages will be governed by the general Civ. Code §§ 1709 and 3333, rather than by Civ. Code § 3343, which deals with damages from the purchase, sale, or exchange of real property [Block v. Tobin (1975) 45 Cal. App. 3d 214, 220, 119 Cal. Rptr. 288] .

Even under Civ. Code §§ 1709 and 3333, damages are not recoverable if the fact of damage is too remote, speculative, or uncertain. One may recover compensation for time and effort expended in reliance on a defendant's misrepresentation. One may not, however, recover anticipated profits from a business deal if it is uncertain whether, even in the absence of deceit, there would have been any profit at all [Block v. Tobin (1975) 45 Cal. App. 3d 214, 219-220, 119 Cal. Rptr. 288] .

If damages are based on Civ. Code §§ 1709 and 3333 (as distinguished from the "out-of-pocket loss" measure provided by Civ. Code § 3343), damages may be calculated as of the date the plaintiff discovered the fraud, and are not limited to damages as of the date of the transaction [Salahutdin v. Valley of Cal., Inc. (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 555, 568, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 463] .

[2] Sale or Exchange of Property

[a] Statutory Measure of Damages

A person defrauded in the purchase, sale, or exchange of property is entitled to recover the difference between the actual value of that with which the defrauded person parted and the actual value of what the defrauded person received.

However, the defrauded person may not recover any amount measured by the differences between the value of property as represented and the actual value of the property [Civ. Code § 3343(a), (b)(1)]. The defrauded person may also recover additional damages arising from the particular transaction, including [Civ. Code § 3343(a)]:

- Amounts actually and reasonably expended in reliance on the fraud;

- An amount that compensates the defrauded party for loss of use and enjoyment of the property to the extent that such loss was proximately caused by the fraud;

- If the defrauded party has been induced by the fraud to sell or part with the property, an amount that will compensate him or her for profits or other gains that might reasonably have been earned by use of the property had he or she retained it; and

- If the defrauded party has purchased or acquired the property, an amount that will compensate him or her for any loss of profits or other gains that were reasonably anticipated and would have been earned from the use or sale of the property had it possessed the characteristics fraudulently attributed to it by the party committing the fraud; but only if and to the extent that (a) the property was acquired for the purpose of using or reselling it for a profit, (b) the defrauded party reasonably relied on the fraud in anticipating profits, and (c) the loss of profits was proximately caused by the fraud and the reliance on it.

In enacting Civ. Code § 3343(a), the legislature enacted an "out-of-pocket loss" measure of damages, as opposed to the "benefit-of-the-bargain" rule applied in many other jurisdictions, which allows recovery of the difference between the value of the property as represented and the actual value of the property received [see Stout v. Turney (1978) 22 Cal. 3d 718, 725, 150 Cal. Rptr. 637, 586 P.2d 1228 ; Civ. Code § 3343(b)(1); see also Salahutdin v. Valley of Cal., Inc. (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 555, 563-565 & n.6, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 463 ; Housley v. City of Poway (1993) 20 Cal. App. 4th 801, 812-813 & n.9, 24 Cal. Rptr. 2d 554] . However, the plaintiff is not required to allege and prove an "out-of-pocket loss" (that is, a difference between the amount paid for the property and its actual value) in order to recover the consequential or "additional" categories of damages listed in Civ. Code § 3343(a)(1)-(4) [Stout v. Turney (1978) 22 Cal. 3d 718, 727-730, 150 Cal. Rptr. 637, 586 P.2d 1228] .

[b] Recoverability of Lost Profits

If the plaintiff has been defrauded in the sale of the property, additional damages under Civ. Code § 3343(a)(2), (3) (loss of use and enjoyment and loss of profits) are only available if, under the terms of the particular transaction, the seller retained some right to use the property or participate in the profits from the property after transfer or conveyance to the defendant [Channell v. Anthony (1976) 58 Cal. App. 3d 290, 315-318, 129 Cal. Rptr. 704 (management contract giving sellers right to continue to live on and operate farm as sufficient interest)]. Furthermore, if the seller elects to enforce the contract and recover the sale price to which he or she agreed, the seller cannot recover lost profits under Civ. Code § 3343(a)(3); however, the seller may recover lost profits if he or she elects to rescind the sale contract [see Croeni v. Goldstein (1994) 21 Cal. App. 4th 754, 759-760, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 412] .

The provision of Civ. Code § 3343(a)(4) allowing a defrauded buyer to recover profits that would have been earned if the property had the characteristics represented by the seller only applies if the defrauded party actually acquires the property. Thus, in one case, the court of appeal held that it was improper to award profits lost as a result of the defendant's fraudulent breach of a promise to sell a parcel of agricultural property to the plaintiff. The plaintiff in that case had been induced to purchase a note secured by the defendant's property (rather than the property itself) by the defendant's fraudulent promise to sell the property to the plaintiff [see Kenly v. Ukegawa (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 49, 53-56, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 771] .

[c] Rules for Valuation of Property

In applying Civ. Code § 3343, the court will assess damages as of the day on which the fraudulent transaction occurred. The value of the property will be determined as of the date of sale [McCue v. Bruce Enterprises, Inc. (1964) 228 Cal. App. 2d 21, 30-32, 39 Cal. Rptr. 125] . The trier of fact may determine a figure for the correct value of the property that is between the figures offered by the experts for the plaintiff and the defendant [Ach v. Finkelstein (1968) 264 Cal. App. 2d 667, 677-678, 70 Cal. Rptr. 472] .

[d] Mental Distress Damages Not Recoverable

Mental distress is not an element of damages for fraud under Civ. Code § 3343 [Sierra Nat'l Bank v. Brown (1971) 18 Cal. App. 3d 98, 103, 95 Cal. Rptr. 742 ; see In re Marriage of McNeill (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 548, 559, 206 Cal. Rptr. 641] .

[3] Sale of Goods

Remedies for material misrepresentation or fraud in the sale of goods include all remedies available under Com. Code §§ 2101-2724 for nonfraudulent breach [Com. Code § 2721]. Damages available for breach of warranty and other available remedies include the difference between the value of the goods as warranted and their actual value [see Com. Code §§ 2714(2), (3), 2715].Damages may include incidental and consequential damages, including lost profits if the lost profits could not reasonably be prevented through mitigation efforts or otherwise [Green Wood Industrial Co. v. Forceman Internat. Development Group, Inc. (2007) 156 Cal. App. 4th 766, 774, 67 Cal. Rptr. 3d 624 ; see Com. Code § 2715(2)(a)].

This measure of damages is inconsistent with that provided by Civ. Code § 3343 governing damages for fraud in the sale or exchange of property, which provides that nothing in Civ. Code § 3343 will permit the defrauded person to recover any amount measured by the difference between the value of the property as represented and its actual value [Civ. Code § 3343(b)(1)].

Com. Code § 2721 has been described as an exception to Civ. Code § 3343 in that its purpose is to give the defrauded buyer of goods the same remedies as those specified for breach of warranty, and therefore in a proper case to give the buyer the "benefit of the bargain" [Continental Airlines, Inc. v. McDonnell Douglas Corp. (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 388, 430-431, 264 Cal. Rptr. 779] . Inasmuch as the legislature, in enacting Com. Code § 2721, expressed the intent to make fraud remedies in the commercial context as broad as, and coextensive with, remedies applicable in the absence of fraud, one court found it worthy of note that Civ. Code § 3343, the "out-of-pocket" statute, was not repealed despite its sharp conflict with the Commercial Code [see Continental Airlines, Inc. v. McDonnell Douglas Corp. (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 388, 431, 264 Cal. Rptr. 779] .

The term "goods" for the purpose of Com. Code § 2721 means all things, including specially manufactured goods, which are movable at the time of identification to the contract for sale other than the money in which the price is to be paid, investment securities, and things in action. The term also includes the unborn young of animals, growing crops, and other things attached to realty as described in Com. Code § 2107 [Com. Code § 2105].

[4] Breach of Fiduciary Duty

Some court of appeal decisions have held that if there is fraud by a fiduciary, the out-of-pocket loss rule of Civ. Code § 3343 does not apply. Instead, the much broader provisions of Civ. Code §§ 1709 and 3333 are applicable [Salahutdin v. Valley of Cal., Inc. (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 555, 566-568, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 463 ; Simone v. McKee (1956) 142 Cal. App. 2d 307, 315, 298 P.2d 667] . Thus, the fraudulent fiduciary must make good the full amount of the loss of which the fiduciary's breach of faith is the cause [Prince v. Harting (1960) 177 Cal. App. 2d 720, 730-731, 2 Cal. Rptr. 545] .

Although the California Supreme Court has held that only "out-of-pocket loss" may be recovered for negligent misrepresentations by a fiduciary [Alliance Mortgage Co. v. Rothwell (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 1226, 1249-1250, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 352, 900 P.2d 601 ; see also Fragale v. Faulkner (2003) 110 Cal. App. 4th 229, 237, 1 Cal. Rptr. 3d 616] , there is a conflict among court of appeal decisions concerning whether Civ. Code §§ 1709 and 3333 authorize a "benefit-of-the-bargain" measure in cases of fiduciary fraud [compare Fragale v. Faulkner (2003) 110 Cal. App. 4th 229, 237-239, 1 Cal. Rptr. 3d 616 (authorizing "benefit-of-bargain" measure for intentional misrepresentations); Salahutdin v. Valley of Cal., Inc. (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 555, 565-568, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 463 (authorizing "benefit-of-bargain" measure); and Pepitone v. Russo (1976) 64 Cal. App. 3d 685, 688-689, 134 Cal. Rptr. 709 (authorizing "benefit-of-bargain" measure); with Hensley v. McSweeney (2001) 90 Cal. App. 4th 1081, 1085-1086, 109 Cal. Rptr. 2d 489 (Civ. Code § 3333 does not permit "benefit-of-bargain" measure); and Overgaard v. Johnson (1977) 68 Cal. App. 3d 821, 827-828, 137 Cal. Rptr. 412 (Civ. Code § 3333 does not permit "benefit-of-bargain" measure)].

However, even if a defendant is not the plaintiff's fiduciary, the law provides a quasi-contractual remedy to prevent one from being unjustly enriched at the expense of another [see Civ. Code § 2224 (involuntary trust)]. For example, if a real estate broker, who is under a duty of honesty even to a person for whom her or she is not acting as an agent, deceives that person, an obligation will be imposed to repay the money unjustly received on the theory of constructive trust [see Ward v. Taggart (1959) 51 Cal. 2d 736, 741-742, 336 P.2d 534] . For discussion of constructive trusts, see Ch. 561, Trusts: Constructive Trusts .

[5] Fraud Against Secured Creditor

The primary measure of damages for fraud against a secured lender is the extent of the impairment of security, that is, the amount by which the indebtedness exceeds the actual value of the security. A foreclosure sale establishes the actual value of the security. Thus, if the secured property is sold at auction for an amount sufficient to satisfy the indebtedness, there is no impairment of security, and the secured party is not damaged. Any damage suffered thereafter is not a proximate result of the fraudulent transaction [GN Mortgage Corp. v. Fidelity Nat'l Title Ins. Co. (1994) 21 Cal. App. 4th 1802, 1808, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 47] .

This general rule does not apply, however, in an action brought against a party other than the debtor, if the lender alleges not only that the defendant's fraudulent conduct induced the lender to make the loan, but also that the lender justifiably relied on the defendant's misrepresentations when subsequently purchasing the property at foreclosure sale for the full amount of the indebtedness. Under those circumstances, damages would be measured either by the lender's out-of-pocket and consequential losses under Civ. Code § 3343, or under Civ. Code § 3333 if the defendant stood in a fiduciary relationship to the lender [Alliance Mortgage Co. v. Rothwell (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 1226, 1249-1250, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 352, 900 P.2d 601 ; Michelson v. Camp (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 955, 965-969, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 539] .

For discussion of damages as a required element of a fraud cause of action, see § 269.21.

§ 269.29 Interest on Damages

[1] Entitlement if Amount of Damages Is Certain

Prejudgment interest can be proper in a fraud action if damages can be ascertained with certainty [Greenfield v. Insurance Inc. (1971) 19 Cal. App. 3d 803, 813, 97 Cal. Rptr. 164] . To recover interest for prejudgment amounts due the plaintiff need not plead or specially pray for interest [Greenfield v. Insurance Inc. (1971) 19 Cal. App. 3d 803, 813, 97 Cal. Rptr. 164] .

[2] At Jury's Discretion

In an action for breach of an obligation not arising from contract, and in every case of oppression, fraud, or malice, interest may be awarded in the discretion of the jury [Civ. Code § 3288]. Although the statute uses the word "jury," the trial court, if acting as the trier of fact, may award prejudgment interest under the statute [Bullis v. Security Pac. Nat'l Bank (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 801, 814 n.16, 148 Cal. Rptr. 22, 582 P.2d 109 ; Segura v. McBride (1992) 5 Cal. App. 4th 1028, 1040 n.13, 7 Cal. Rptr. 2d 436] . However, in a case tried to a jury, the court may not usurp the discretion conferred on the jury by the statute [Barry v. Raskov (1991) 232 Cal. App. 3d 447, 457, 283 Cal. Rptr. 463] .

Prejudgment interest under Civ. Code § 3288 may be awarded only on a recovery of a specific sum of money or of property subject to specific valuation. It may not be awarded on nonpecuniary damages that are not readily subject to precise calculation, such as the intangible, noneconomic aspects of mental and emotional injury [Greater Westchester Homeowners Ass'n, Inc. v. City of Los Angeles (1979) 26 Cal. 3d 86, 103, 160 Cal. Rptr. 733, 603 P.2d 1329] .

§ 269.30 Punitive Damages

[1] Basis for Recovery

Fraud is a ground for awarding punitive damages [Stevens v. Superior Court (1986) 180 Cal. App. 3d 605, 610, 225 Cal. Rptr. 624 ; Horn v. Guaranty Chevrolet Motors (1969) 270 Cal. App. 2d 477, 484, 75 Cal. Rptr. 871] . "Fraud" as a basis for punitive damages is defined in Civ. Code § 3294(c)(3) as an intentional misrepresentation, deceit, or concealment of a material fact known to the defendant with the intention on the part of the defendant to thereby deprive a person of legal rights or property, or to otherwise cause injury. Because Civ. Code § 3294(c)(3) requires that the misrepresentation, deceit, or concealment be intentional, punitive damages may not be awarded for a negligent misrepresentation [see Reid v. Moskovitz (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 29, 32, 255 Cal. Rptr. 910] .

Although punitive damages can only be awarded in an action for breach of an obligation other than one arising from contract [see Civ. Code § 3294(a)], punitive damages may be awarded in an action for fraudulent inducement to enter into a contract, which is a tort action, not a contract action [Las Palmas Associates v. Las Palmas Center Associates (1991) 235 Cal. App. 3d 1220, 1239, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 301 ; Kuchta v. Allied Builders Corp. (1971) 21 Cal. App. 3d 541, 549, 98 Cal. Rptr. 588] . Punitive damages may also be granted along with rescission [see In re Marriage of McNeill (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 548, 561, 206 Cal. Rptr. 641 ; Horn v. Guaranty Chevrolet Motors (1969) 270 Cal. App. 2d 477, 484, 75 Cal. Rptr. 871] . Punitive damages may also be awarded if fraud accompanies a breach of contract, so long as the conduct constituting the fraud is independent from the conduct constituting the breach of contract [see Robinson Helicopter Co., Inc. v. Dana Corp. (2004) 34 Cal. 4th 979, 990-991, 22 Cal. Rptr. 3d 352, 102 P.3d 268] . By contrast, if the plaintiff waives the fraud damages and sues on the contract, no exemplary damages can be awarded under Civ. Code § 3294. This is also true if the plaintiff elects to sue on a common count [Brockway v. Heilman (1967) 250 Cal. App. 2d 807, 812, 58 Cal. Rptr. 772] .

For additional discussion of punitive damages, see Ch. 177, Damages .

[2] Liability of Employers

An employer will not be liable for punitive damages under Civ. Code § 3294(a) for the fraudulent acts of an employee unless the employer had advance knowledge of the employee's unfitness and employed him or her with conscious disregard for the safety or rights of others, or authorized or ratified the wrongful conduct for which punitive damages are awarded, or was personally guilty of malice, fraud, or oppression. With respect to corporate employers, the employer will not be liable for punitive damages for the acts of an employee unless an officer, director, or managing agent of the corporation had advance knowledge of the unfitness of the employee and employed him or her with conscious disregard of the safety or rights of others, or unless an officer, director, or managing agent authorized or ratified the wrongful act of the employee, or personally committed an act of malice, fraud, or oppression [Civ. Code § 3294(b)].

Chapter 269 FRAUD AND DECEIT
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

23-269 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 269.31

§ 269.31 Defenses

[1] In General

Because the plaintiff in a fraud action has the burden of pleading and proving all the necessary elements that constitute deceit [Hills Transp. Co. v. Southwest Forest Industries, Inc. (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 702, 707-708, 72 Cal. Rptr. 441] , there are few matters that a defendant will need to raise as affirmative defenses. Most defenses to the tort action for deceit are raised by a general denial of one or more of the necessary elements pleaded by the plaintiff. A failure of the plaintiff to plead one or more of the necessary elements may, of course, be challenged by demurrer [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(e)]. For points and authorities supporting demurrers to complaints for fraud, see California Points and Authorities, Ch. 105, Fraud and Deceit (Matthew Bender).

[2] Plaintiff's Negligence

The defense of contributory negligence does not apply to actions for negligent misrepresentation, just as it does not apply to actions for intentional misrepresentation. Justifiable reliance may be shown even if the plaintiff relied under such circumstances as to make it unreasonable to accept the defendant's statement without an independent inquiry or investigation [Howell v. Courtesy Chevrolet, Inc. (1971) 16 Cal. App. 3d 391, 403, 94 Cal. Rptr. 33] . The plaintiff's recovery is not reduced unless the plaintiff's conduct, in the light of the plaintiff's own information and intelligence, is preposterous and irrational [see Hartong v. Partake, Inc. (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 942, 965, 72 Cal. Rptr. 722] . That is, the plaintiff's conduct is not the subject of a strictly objective test [see Godfrey v. Steinpress (1982) 128 Cal. App. 3d 154, 176, 180 Cal. Rptr. 95 ; Howell v. Courtesy Chevrolet, Inc. (1971) 16 Cal. App. 3d 391, 403, 94 Cal. Rptr. 33 ; Wilke v. Coinway, Inc. (1967) 257 Cal. App. 2d 126, 138, 64 Cal. Rptr. 845 ; Vogelsang v. Wolpert (1964) 227 Cal. App. 2d 102, 111-112, 38 Cal. Rptr. 440] .

[3] Lack of Justifiable Reliance

The plaintiff has the burden of proof on the issue of the plaintiff's justifiable reliance on the defendant's representation [American Air Equip., Inc. v. Pacific Employers Ins. Co. (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 322, 327 n.4, 112 Cal. Rptr. 366] . However, evidence of lack of justifiable reliance by the plaintiff is frequently introduced as a defense to an action for deceit [see, e.g., Hartong v. Partake, Inc. (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 942, 964-965, 72 Cal. Rptr. 722] . For discussion of justifiable reliance, see § 269.16.

[4] Statute of Limitations

[a] Applicable Period

If the complaint states a cause of action for fraud, the period of limitation expires at the end of three years after the time when the action accrued, which is the time when the aggrieved party discovered facts constituting the fraud, as provided by Code Civ. Proc. § 338(d) [Sun'N Sand, Inc. v. United Cal. Bank (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 671, 701, 148 Cal. Rptr. 329, 582 P.2d 920 ; Galusha v. Fraser (1918) 178 Cal. 653, 656, 174 P. 311] .

[b] Late Discovery Exception

If it is apparent from the face of the pleading that the statute of limitations has run, in order to avoid the bar of the statute, the plaintiff must state, with particularity, facts, rather than conclusions, that excuse his or her failure to learn of the fraud within the statutory period. The plaintiff must show diligence exercised to discover the facts and must plead and prove facts showing: (1) lack of knowledge; (2) lack of means of obtaining knowledge (in the exercise of reasonable diligence the facts could not have been discovered at an earlier date); and (3) how and when the plaintiff did actually discover the fraud or mistake. Under this rule, constructive or presumed notice is equivalent to knowledge. When the plaintiff has notice or information of circumstances to put a reasonable person on inquiry, or has the opportunity to obtain knowledge from sources open to his or her investigation (such as public records or corporate books), the statute commences to run [Casualty Ins. Co. v. Rees Inv. Co. (1971) 14 Cal. App. 3d 716, 719-720, 92 Cal. Rptr. 857] .

However, if the plaintiff has the right, due to the existence of a fiduciary relationship, to rely on statements of the defendant without further inquiry, the statute of limitations does not run merely because the means of discovery were available, and the plaintiff is not compelled to disprove that the means existed. The plaintiff need only establish facts sufficientto show that he or she made an actual discovery of unknown information within three years before the filing of the action [Davis v. Kahn (1970) 7 Cal. App. 3d 868, 878, 86 Cal. Rptr. 872] . Even if the defendant's status as a fiduciary obviates any duty on the plaintiff's part to inquire into the representations of the defendant, however, a duty of investigation may arise if the plaintiff becomes aware of facts that would make a reasonable person suspicious. If such an awareness is shown to have existed, the plaintiff will be charged with constructive knowledge of matters that would have been revealed by an investigation, and this imputed knowledge can be sufficient to start the running of the statute of limitations of Code Civ. Proc. § 337(3) or Code Civ. Proc. § 338(d) [Miller v. Bechtel Corp. (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 868, 875-876, 191 Cal. Rptr. 619, 663 P.2d 177] .

[5] Statutory Privileges

Under the appropriate circumstances, the statutory privileges of Civ. Code § 47 may be used in defense of a fraud claim. In one case, for example, the court of appeal held that the litigation privilege of Civ. Code § 47(b) applied to defeat a fraud claim alleging that the defendant executed a release of claims with no intention of abiding by the release and then filed federal counterclaims that were covered by the release [Navellier v. Sletten (2003) 106 Cal. App. 4th 763, 771, 131 Cal. Rptr. 2d 201] . For further discussion of these privileges, see Ch. 340, Libel and Slander .

[6] Implied Waiver

A plaintiff claiming to have been induced into signing a contract by fraud or deceit is deemed to have waived a claim for damages for that fraud if, after discovering the fraud, the plaintiff enters into a new agreement with the defendant regarding the same subject matter that supersedes the former agreement and confers significant benefits on the plaintiff [Oakland Raiders v. Oakland-Alameda County Coliseum, Inc. (2006) 144 Cal. App. 4th 1175, 1185, 51 Cal. Rptr. 3d 144 (relying on Schmidt v. Mesmer (1897) 116 Cal. 267, 48 P. 54 , and other cases)]. This rule of implied waiver focuses on the conduct of the plaintiff in entering into a new contract that has the effect of ratifying the original agreement. Thus, waiver may be found despite testimony that the plaintiff did not subjectively intend to waive a claim for fraud, at least when this intent was not made manifest when the subsequent contractual agreement was reached [see Oakland Raiders v. Oakland-Alameda County Coliseum, Inc. (2006) 144 Cal. App. 4th 1175, 1186-1190, 51 Cal. Rptr. 3d 144] .

In one case, for example, the court of appeal held that plaintiff, the Oakland Raiders National Football League team, had waived the right to sue the Oakland-Alameda County Coliseum for fraud in inducing the Raiders in 1995 to sign a long-term agreement to play at the Coliseum. The Raiders' claimed that the Coliseum misrepresented the level of advance season ticket sales, inducing the Raiders to agree to return to Oakland rather than pursue other available options. The court of appeal held that the Raiders had waived the fraud claim, however, because after learning during the 1995 season that season ticket sales were not as high as they had been told, the Raiders subsequently entered into a new contract with the Coliseum in September 1996. This new contract concerned the same subject matter as the previous contract, modified the rights of the parties, conferred significant financial benefits on the Raiders, and otherwise reaffirmed the validity and enforceability of the 1995 agreement [Oakland Raiders v. Oakland-Alameda County Coliseum, Inc. (2006) 144 Cal. App. 4th 1175, 1190-1191, 51 Cal. Rptr. 3d 144] .

While the existence of waiver is generally a question of fact, implied waiver, when based on conduct that is manifestly inconsistent with the intent to enforce a known right, may be determined as a matter of law if the underlying facts are undisputed [Oakland Raiders v. Oakland-Alameda County Coliseum, Inc. (2006) 144 Cal. App. 4th 1175, 1191, 51 Cal. Rptr. 3d 144] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

23-269 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 269.32

§ 269.32 Election of Remedies

If the plaintiff has been induced to enter into a contract by the defendant's fraud, the plaintiff has a choice of either affirming the contract and suing for damages for deceit or rescission of the agreement and restitution of the property exchanged with the defendant. The plaintiff, not the defendant, has the right to election of remedies [Kaluzok v. Brisson (1946) 27 Cal. 2d 760, 763, 167 P.2d 481 ; Brockway v. Heilman (1967) 250 Cal. App. 2d 807, 811, 58 Cal. Rptr. 772] . If the plaintiff elects to stand on the contract and sue for damages, continued performance of the contract does not constitute a waiver of the plaintiff's action for damages. However, courts have stated that if the plaintiff elects not to rescind, the plaintiff must stand toward the other party at arm's length, comply with the contract, and not ask for favors of the other party or offer to perform the contract on conditions the plaintiff has no right to extract or make any new agreement, or the plaintiff will waive the fraud [Bagdasarian v. Gragnon (1948) 31 Cal. 2d 744, 750-752, 192 P.2d 935 ; but see Persson v. Smart Inventions, Inc. (2005) 125 Cal. App. 4th 1141, 1154, 23 Cal. Rptr. 3d 335 (although contract for sale of stock shares contained claims release language, party allowed to affirm contract and sue in tort because fraudulently induced to enter contract)]. The plaintiff may, however, plead and pray in the alternative for rescission and for damages for deceit [see Boeseke v. Boeseke (1967) 255 Cal. App. 2d 848, 852, 63 Cal. Rptr. 651] .

The doctrine of election of remedies applies only if the plaintiff seeks inconsistent remedies in causes of action based on the same set of facts. It therefore does not preclude a plaintiff from pursuing two causes of action, as breach of contract and fraud, if each action arose out of different obligations and different operative facts [Pat Rose Assocs. v. Coombe (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 9, 18, 275 Cal. Rptr. 1] .

§ 269.33 No Cause of Action for Fraud Based on False Representations of Love or Sexual Desire

Civ. Code § 43.4 provides that a fraudulent promise to marry or to cohabit after marriage does not give rise to a cause of action for damages. One court of appeal has held that the public policy behind this statute precludes an action for fraud and deceit based on allegedly false or fraudulent representations of love, passion, or sexual desire, that induced the plaintiff to marry and transfer property to the defendant [see Askew v. Askew (1994) 22 Cal. App. 4th 942, 952-959, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 284] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

23-269 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 269.34

§ 269.34 No Cause of Action for Fraud Based on Termination of Employment

The California Supreme Court has held, on policy grounds, that an employee may not bring a tort cause of action for fraud against his or her employer based on misrepresentations made to effect a termination of employment [Hunter v. Up-Right, Inc. (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 1174, 1178, 1184-1185, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 8, 864 P.2d 88] . The Court indicated, however, that a misrepresentation not aimed at terminating an employee's employment, but instead designed to induce the employee to alter detrimentally his or her position in some other respect may, in some cases, form the basis for a valid fraud claim [Hunter v. Up-Right, Inc. (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 1174, 1185, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 8, 864 P.2d 88] . For further discussion, see Ch. 249, Employment Law: Termination and Discipline .

23-269 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 269.53

§ 269.53 Decisions

[1] Actions Between Partners in Consensual Sexual Relationship

Woman who had abortion based on sexual partner's promise, which he never intended to keep, that he would impregnate her in one year had no cause of action for fraud and deceit; privacy and public policy considerations prevent adjudication of promises and representations between consenting adults regarding their sexual relationship. Perry v. Atkinson (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 14, 18-21, 240 Cal. Rptr. 402

Claims of fraud and negligence against person who engaged in sexual intercourse with plaintiff for failure to disclose venereal disease stated cause of action and were not barred by privacy considerations. Kathleen K. v. Robert B. (1984) 150 Cal. App. 3d 992, 996-997, 198 Cal. Rptr. 273

Allegations that defendant misrepresented to plaintiff prior to engaging in sexual intercourse that he was unable to get anyone pregnant and that plaintiff thereafter suffered ectopic pregnancy leaving her sterile stated cause of action in deceit; right to privacy does not shield sexual relations from judicial scrutiny if privacy used as shield from liability at expense of other party. Barbara A. v. John G. (1983) 145 Cal. App. 3d 369, 385, 193 Cal. Rptr. 422

Claims of fraud and negligent misrepresentation against child's mother for falsely representing that she was taking birth control pills did not state cause of action in tort; privacy and general public policy considerations preclude courts' interference with birth control practices of partners in consensual sexual relationships. Stephen K. v. Roni L. (1980) 105 Cal. App. 3d 640, 645, 164 Cal. Rptr. 618

[2] Actual Reliance

Actual reliance is required element of action for fraud or deceit; plaintiff who never heard or read misrepresentations unable to state cause of action for deceit because California statutory and common law governing tort of fraud or deceit does not incorporate fraud-on-the-market doctrine of federal securities law. Mirkin v. Wasserman (1993) 5 Cal. 4th 1082, 1088, 1095, 1100, 1108, 23 Cal. Rptr. 2d 101, 858 P.2d 568

Insurance agent owed no duty to avoid misrepresenting policy being provided to spouse of insured, as spouse did not rely on any misrepresentations to change his position to his detriment. The MEGA Life & Health Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (2009) 172 Cal. App. 4th 1522, 1530-1532, 92 Cal. Rptr. 3d 399

Plaintiff could not prove actual reliance because defendant sold entire asbestos manufacturing enterprise to successor corporation years before manufacture of asbestos to which plaintiff was exposed. Cadlo v. Owens-Ill., Inc. (2004) 125 Cal. App. 4th 513, 520, 23 Cal. Rptr. 3d 1

Plaintiffs, homeowners and developer, required to prove actual reliance to recover for fraud from defendants who manufactured and sold defective plumbing pipes and system components; misrepresentations made by defendants when marketing products were insufficient, in absence of evidence that plaintiffs actually heard and relied on those misrepresentations. Gawara v. United States Brass Corp. (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 1341, 1348-1359, 74 Cal. Rptr. 2d 663

Plaintiffs unable to establish reliance on defendant insurer's alleged misrepresentations concerning coverage under insurance policy, thus precluding fraud claim against insurer, because plaintiffs' assignors disputed insurer's coverage position rather than relying on it. McLaughlin v. National Union Fire Ins. Co. (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 1132, 1148, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 559

[3] Amount of Compensatory Damages

[a] Breach of Duty

One under duty of honesty who defrauds one for whom he or she is not agent is nevertheless under duty to repay money unjustly received on theory of constructive trust. Ward v. Taggart (1959) 51 Cal. 2d 736, 741-742, 336 P.2d 534

In action by lender who relied on appraisal against real estate appraiser for negligence or fraud in appraising real property by overstating its value, measure of damages is not measure applicable to action for impairment of security but, instead, that provided by Civ. Code §§ 1709, 3333, plus any punitive damages that may be awarded. Foggy v. Ralph F. Clark & Assocs., Inc. (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 1204, 1214, 238 Cal. Rptr. 130

Party permitted to recover consequential damages resulting from his or her acts in reliance on other party's misrepresentations; same damages, however, not permitted to be recovered on different theories. Walker v. Signal Co., Inc. (1978) 84 Cal. App. 3d 982, 995, 149 Cal. Rptr. 119 (plaintiff cannot recover double damages sustained by recovering all compensatory damages under breach of contract theory and additional compensatory damages under fraud theory)

Civ. Code § 3343 not applicable to measure of damages for fraud and deceit between one business partner and another. Prince v. Harting (1960) 177 Cal. App. 2d 720, 730-731, 2 Cal. Rptr. 545

Fraudulent fiduciary required to make good full amount of caused by fiduciary's breach of faith. Prince v. Harting (1960) 177 Cal. App. 2d 720, 730-731, 2 Cal. Rptr. 545

If there is fraud by fiduciary, Civ. Code § 3343 out-of-pocket loss rule for damages is inapplicable; Civ. Code §§ 1709 and 3333 is applicable instead. Simone v. McKee (1956) 142 Cal. App. 2d 307, 315, 298 P.2d 667

[b] General Rule

Anticipated profits is improper measure of damages if it is uncertain whether, in absence of negligent misrepresentation, any profit at all would have been derived. Christiansen v. Roddy (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 780, 790-791, 231 Cal. Rptr. 72

Amount of damages properly reflected great emotional distress and incidental damages resulting from defendant's attempts to enforce contract tainted by fraud. Lewis v. Upton (1984) 151 Cal. App. 3d 232, 237, 198 Cal. Rptr. 494

Damages not recoverable if fact of damage is too remote, speculative, or uncertain. Block v. Tobin (1975) 45 Cal. App. 3d 214, 219-220, 119 Cal. Rptr. 288

Anticipated profits not properly recovered as damages if it is uncertain whether in absence of deceit, any profit at all would have been derived. Block v. Tobin (1975) 45 Cal. App. 3d 214, 220, 119 Cal. Rptr. 288

Plaintiff allowed to recover compensation for time and effort expended in reliance on defendant's misrepresentation. Block v. Tobin (1975) 45 Cal. App. 3d 214, 220, 119 Cal. Rptr. 288

Business deal involving possible purchase or sale of real property that is never completed gives rise to damages for fraud measured by Civ. Code §§ 1709 and 3333 rather than Civ. Code § 3343 dealing with damages for fraud in purchase and sale of property. Block v. Tobin (1975) 45 Cal. App. 3d 214, 220, 119 Cal. Rptr. 288

[c] Loss of Profits

If, due to peculiar nature of defrauded business, profit is delayed rather than totally lost, measure of damages is financial loss in delay in realization of profit rather than total profit temporarily denied by defendant's fraud. Dean W. Knight & Sons, Inc. v. First W. Bank & Trust Co. (1978) 84 Cal. App. 3d 560, 563, 148 Cal. Rptr. 767 (loss of real estate developer's profits caused by defendant's temporarily forcing plaintiff into Chapter XI bankruptcy)

[d] Sale of Goods

In action brought by purchaser of airplane against manufacturer, arising from destruction of airplane caused by defects after airplane had functioned properly some five years after purchase, measure of damages is market value of aircraft at time plaintiff effectively lost use of it (that is, on date of accident); exception to Com. Code § 2714(2), which provides measure of damages for breach of warranty based on time and place of acceptance of goods, is applicable because plaintiff used product for period of time without noticing defect. Continental Airlines, Inc. v. McDonnell Douglas Corp. (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 388, 432-433, 264 Cal. Rptr. 779

[e] Sale or Exchange of Property

In case involving purchase, sale, or exchange of real property, plaintiff not required to show out-of-pocket loss to recover any "additional damage[s]" listed in Civ. Code § 3343. Stout v. Turney (1978) 22 Cal. 3d 718, 729-730, 150 Cal. Rptr. 637, 586 P.2d 1228

In absence of fiduciary relationship between plaintiff and defendant, recovery in tort action for fraud involving purchase or sale of real property is limited to actual damages. Ward v. Taggart (1959) 51 Cal. 2d 736, 741, 336 P.2d 534

Misrepresentation as to acreage of land planted in orange trees is actionable fraud. Morey v. Bovee (1933) 218 Cal.

When plaintiff sold his house in reliance on representations from broker and another seller that plaintiff would simultaneously be able to purchase seller's house, but plaintiff was unable to do so because of undisclosed tax liens on seller's property and was unable to find affordable replacement property in same area due to rapidly escalating housing costs, compensatory damages that included appreciation in value of property plaintiff sold from time he sold it to time of trial were appropriate, because plaintiff would otherwise have held onto own property longer, and harm done to plaintiff was to decrease his buying power in rapidly appreciating housing market. Strebel v. Brenlar Investments, Inc. (2006) 135 Cal. App. 4th 740, 748-750, 37 Cal. Rptr. 3d 699

Under Civ. Code § 3343, property owner who was defrauded into granting right-of-way easement for road construction, which affected additional property to which easement had not been granted, is not entitled to "cost of repair" of additional property affected by construction (that is, cost of restoring it to its condition prior to construction), but is only entitled to value of additional property "taken" for construction. Housley v. City of Poway (1993) 20 Cal. App. 4th 801, 812-813, 24 Cal. Rptr. 2d 554

Vendor's assertion to purchaser of amount of acreage was actionable misrepresentation to purchaser, who did not survey property until one year after purchase; because purchaser acquired property to subdivide and develop, fact that actual value of land was more than price paid did not deprive purchaser of right to damages for loss of anticipated profits pursuant to Civ. Code § 3343(a)(4). Cory v. Villa Props. (1986) 180 Cal. App. 3d 592, 597-598, 601-603, 225 Cal. Rptr. 628

Measure of damages for fraud in real property transaction is historically loss of benefit of bargain, but California has adopted out-of-pocket loss rule by statute in Civ. Code § 3343. Pepper v. Underwood (1975) 48 Cal. App. 3d 698, 706-707, 122 Cal. Rptr. 343 , overruled on other grounds, Stout v. Turney (1978) 22 Cal. 3d 718, 150 Cal. Rptr. 637, 586 P.2d 1228 ; Coleman v. Ladd Ford Co. (1963) 215 Cal. App. 2d 90, 93, 29 Cal. Rptr. 832

Foreclosure is one circumstance to be considered in determining actual out-of-pocket loss under Civ. Code § 3343. Ford v. Cournale (1973) 36 Cal. App. 3d 172, 184, 111 Cal. Rptr. 334

Mental distress is not element of damages for fraud under Civ. Code § 3343. Sierra Nat'l Bank v. Brown (1971) 18 Cal. App. 3d 98, 103, 95 Cal. Rptr. 742

Losses suffered by plaintiff as result of foreclosure were recoverable under Civ. Code § 3343. Burkhouse v. Phillips (1971) 18 Cal. App. 3d 661, 666, 96 Cal. Rptr. 197

Plaintiff allowed to recover damages in sale of property even if there is no difference in price paid for it by plaintiff and actual value of property, if there is evidence that defendant represented that property would produce income that it would not produce. Burkhouse v. Phillips (1971) 18 Cal. App. 3d 661, 665, 96 Cal. Rptr. 197

Person who mitigates damages allowed to recover reasonable cost of doing so, provided that it does not exceed damages prevented or reasonably expected. Hartong v. Partake, Inc. (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 942, 968, 72 Cal. Rptr. 722

Additional damages also included reasonable value of time fruitlessly spent by plaintiff in reliance on representations of defendant. Hartong v. Partake, Inc. (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 942, 969, 72 Cal. Rptr. 722

Question of damages is for trier of fact, who may determine figure for correct value of property that is between figures offered by experts for plaintiff and defendant. Ach v. Finkelstein (1968) 264 Cal. App. 2d 667, 677-678, 70 Cal. Rptr.

Court assesses damages under Civ. Code § 3343 as of day on which fraudulent transaction involving property occurred. McCue v. Bruce Enterprises, Inc. (1964) 228 Cal. App. 2d 21, 30-32, 39 Cal. Rptr. 125

Courts consider circumstances subsequent to time of sale in applying Civ. Code § 3343 to determine actual out-of-pocket loss. Hahn v. Food Serv. Equip. Co. (1963) 220 Cal. App. 2d 412, 416, 33 Cal. Rptr. 851

Loss of time and effort or loss of salary are items of damage proximately caused by fraudulent misrepresentations as inducement to execute lease. Lawson v. Town & Country Shops, Inc. (1958) 159 Cal. App. 2d 196, 205, 323 P.2d 843

Cost of repairs has some probative value on issue of damages, but is not itself measure of damages. Central Mut. Ins. Co. v. Schmidt (1957) 152 Cal. App. 2d 671, 676-677, 313 P.2d 132

[4] Attorney's Fees

Whether phrased as cause of action for fraud or as one for breach of contract, borrower's only injury resulting from bank's three-year delay in turning over to borrower's trustee in bankruptcy assets of borrower that constituted bank's collateral was trustee's attorney's fees necessitated by bankruptcy proceeding; those fees recoverable only in bankruptcy proceeding. Kruse v. Bank of Am. (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 38, 61-62, 248 Cal. Rptr. 217

Person who is required through fraud of another to act in protection of his or her interest by bringing or defending action against third person is entitled to recover compensation for reasonably necessary attorney's fees incurred. Moe v. Transamerica Title Ins. Co. (1971) 21 Cal. App. 3d 289, 303, 98 Cal. Rptr. 547

Attorney's fees incurred in bringing action for fraud are not recoverable. Bezaire v. Fidelity & Deposit Co. (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 888, 892, 91 Cal. Rptr. 142

[5] Constructive Fraud

[a] Allegations Generally

Existence of fiduciary or other confidential relationship between plaintiff and defendant required to be alleged in complaint. Feeney v. Howard (1889) 79 Cal. 525, 529, 21 P. 984

Substantial evidence supported trial court finding that real estate broker committed breach of duty constituting constructive fraud by making affirmative statements to clients concerning size, boundaries, and subdividability of property, knowing these facts to be material to clients, without disclosing that he had not confirmed accuracy of statements. Salahutdin v. Valley of Cal., Inc. (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 555, 563, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 463

Absent either individual duty to plaintiff or personal financial interest in matter, attorney for corporation or for majority of shareholders not liable for conspiracy (along with client) to commit constructive fraud if charge rests on fiduciary duty of disclosure owed only by client. Skarbrevik v. Cohen, England & Whitfield (1991) 231 Cal. App. 3d 692, 711, 282 Cal. Rptr. 627

In constructive fraud action by investor against financial consultant, alleging nondisclosure, special verdict requiring finding of defendant's intentional failure to disclose material facts was reversible error, because theory of breach of fiduciary duty does not require element of intent. Byrum v. Brand (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 926, 938, 268 Cal. Rptr. 609

In action against investment advisor brought by defendant's clients, fiduciary relationship shown by plaintiffs' lack of sophistication concerning investments generally and their personal trust in defendant's professional expertise; breach of fiduciary duty evidenced by defendant's commingling of client funds and omission of facts relating to substantial investment risks; finding of liability for constructive fraud not precluded by absence of specific pleading, because evidence supporting cause of action for alleged actual fraud was substantially same and defendant made no objection to trial brief. Stokes v. Henson (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 187, 194-197, 265 Cal. Rptr. 836

Relationship between stockbroker and client is fiduciary in nature, whether or not client is "sophisticated" with regard to stock trading; stockbroker breached fiduciary duty to client by failing to explain risks of investing employee trust fund proceeds in options trading and by making that type of investment without express, unsolicited orders from client; action brought by trustees of profit-sharing plan against stockbroker for breach of fiduciary duty was not preempted by ERISA (29 U.S.C. § 1144(a)), because suit does not affect plan per se. Duffy v. Cavalier (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 1517, 1533, 264 Cal. Rptr. 740

Between fiduciaries, actual notice is question of fact; distribution of report, which had footnote disclosing separate interest of some partners in assets leased to partnership, at partnership meeting was not sufficient to charge other partners with notice of separate interests or profit on lease. Rosenfeld, Meyer & Susman v. Cohen (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 1035, 1059, 237 Cal. Rptr. 14

Constructive fraud presumed from relation of parties to transaction or circumstances under which it takes place; constructive fraud often existing if parties to contract have special confidential or fiduciary relationship that affords one party power to take undue advantage of other party. Ford v. Shearson Lehman Am. Express, Inc. (1986) 180 Cal. App. 3d 1011, 1020, 225 Cal. Rptr. 895

Causation issue turns on whether or not plaintiff justifiably relied on facts presented; proximate cause of plaintiff's injury is inapplicable concept in cause of action for constructive fraud. Montoya v. McLeod (1985) 176 Cal. App. 3d 57, 65, 221 Cal. Rptr. 353

Breach of duty necessary for constructive fraud defined in Civ. Code § 1573 is required to be breach of duty created by confidential relationship. Guthrie v. Times-Mirror Co. (1975) 51 Cal. App. 3d 879, 889, 124 Cal. Rptr. 577

Confidential relationship giving rise to possible constructive fraud arises whenever trust and confidence is reposed by one person in integrity and fidelity of another. Twomey v. Mitchum, Jones & Templeton, Inc. (1968) 262 Cal. App. 2d 690, 711, 69 Cal. Rptr. 222

Confidential and fiduciary relationship is synonymous in law and exists whenever trust and confidence is reposed by one person in integrity and fidelity of another; existence of confidential relationship precludes one party from participating in profit or advantage resulting from dealings of parties to relationship. Twomey v. Mitchum, Jones & Templeton, Inc. (1968) 262 Cal. App. 2d 690, 708, 69 Cal. Rptr. 222

If during existence of confidential relationship one party gains advantage, burden on that party to show fairness and good faith in all respects. Boyd v. Bevilacqua (1966) 247 Cal. App. 2d 272, 290-291, 55 Cal. Rptr. 610

Constructive fraud actionable even though material misstatements are made without intent to deceive. Cardozo v. Bank of Am. (1953) 116 Cal. App. 2d 833, 839, 254 P.2d 949

Constructive fraud consists of all acts, omissions, and concealments involving breach of legal or equitable duty, trust, or confidence, and resulting in damage to another; constructive fraud exists if conduct, although not actually fraudulent, ought to be treated as fraud; constructive fraud arises from breach of confidential relationship. Estate of Arbuckle

(1950) 98 Cal. App. 2d 562, 568, 220 P.2d 950

[b] Breach of Duty

Contractual choice-of-law provision applicable to all causes of actions, including tort causes of actions for breach of fiduciary duty, arising from or related to contract. Nedlloyd Lines B.V. v. Superior Court (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 459, 464-466, 468-471, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 330, 834 P.2d 1148

One spouse has fiduciary duty to account to other during property settlement negotiation. Boeseke v. Boeseke (1974) 10 Cal. 3d 844, 849, 112 Cal. Rptr. 401, 519 P.2d 161

Managing spouse permitted to protect his or her own interests and assume adverse position despite existence of relationship with other spouse. Boeseke v. Boeseke (1974) 10 Cal. 3d 844, 850, 112 Cal. Rptr. 401, 519 P.2d 161

Auto club had no duty to members concerning safety features of motels listed in Tourbook because intention of Tourbook is to give recommendations on attractions and accommodations; any special relationship between auto club and member using Tourbook was restricted to such listing and rating of accommodation and did not include within its scope matters of neighborhood safety or security measures. Yanase v. Automobile Club of So. Cal. (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 468, 476-478, 260 Cal. Rptr. 513

Law firm liable to third party (mortgage brokerage) for fraudulent misrepresentation because member of firm prepared misleading letter stating that he had reviewed loan documentation and explained terms of loan transaction to client as required by mortgage broker supplying loan to client, but client later sued mortgage broker for fraud because she had not understood terms of loan. Home Budget Loans, Inc. v. Jacoby & Meyers Law Offices (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 1277, 1283-1284, 255 Cal. Rptr. 483

Officers, directors, and managers of corporation have fiduciary obligation to stockholders and creditors and therefore are liable for constructive fraud if they have breached duty to corporation. Credit Managers Assn. v. Superior Court (1975) 51 Cal. App. 3d 352, 360, 124 Cal. Rptr. 242

Real estate broker has same obligation of service and loyalty as does trustee in favor of beneficiary; agent has duty not to misrepresent amount of income to be expected from property and to disclose all material facts. Ford v. Cournale (1973) 36 Cal. App. 3d 172, 182, 111 Cal. Rptr. 334

Material fact required to be disclosed by fiduciary is one that would be likely to affect principal's judgment and whose concealment would lead to principal's injury. Ford v. Cournale (1973) 36 Cal. App. 3d 172, 182, 111 Cal. Rptr. 334

Real estate broker owes his or her principal same duty of undivided service and loyalty as trustee owes to his or her beneficiary, including duty to disclose all material facts. Kachig v. Boothe (1971) 22 Cal. App. 3d 626, 634-635, 99 Cal. Rptr. 393

Title insurance company is trustee as to all principals to escrow; escrow officer has duty to each of principals to act fairly and to disclose any facts affecting principals' interests. Moe v. Transamerica Title Ins. Co. (1971) 21 Cal. App. 3d 289, 306, 98 Cal. Rptr. 547

Joint venture is undertaking by two or more persons jointly to carry out single business enterprise; joint venturers assume status of fiduciaries. Davis v. Kahn (1970) 7 Cal. App. 3d 868, 877-878, 86 Cal. Rptr. 872

Fraud includes failure to speak if there is duty to speak due to existence of confidential relationship. Blair v. Mahon

(1951) 104 Cal. App. 2d 44, 49, 230 P.2d 832

Agent under duty to disclose any interest agent has that is adverse to principal; failure to disclose such interest is constructive fraud. McFate v. Bank of Am. of Cal. (1932) 125 Cal. App. 683, 687, 14 P.2d 146

[c] Defenses

Contributory negligence not defense to constructive fraud. Bacon v. Bacon (1907) 150 Cal. 477, 489, 89 P. 317

In personal injury action, plaintiff has no claim for damages based on allegation that defendant would assert in defense invalid release obtained by fraud or negligent misrepresentation; plaintiff's recourse is to resist defense in that action, not to allege independent cause of action for asserting it; attorney's fees and mental stress resulting from having to disprove adversary's falsely asserted defense are not normally compensable damages. MacCharles v. Bilson (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 954, 957-958, 231 Cal. Rptr. 155

Existence of actual damages is essential element of cause of action for damages for fraud; nonsuit proper because plaintiff failed to show any resulting injury. Downer v. Bramet (1984) 152 Cal. App. 3d 837, 844, 199 Cal. Rptr. 830

Applicable statute of limitations for action for damages for constructive fraud is former Code Civ. Proc. § 338(4) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 338(d)). Agair, Inc. v. Shaeffer (1965) 232 Cal. App. 2d 513, 517-519, 42 Cal. Rptr. 883

[6] Consumers Legal Remedies Act

Complaint for consumer class action filed after effective date of Consumers Legal Remedies Act [Civ. Code §§ 1750-1784] alleging conduct described by Civ. Code § 1770 required to follow procedures specified in that act. Vasquez v. Superior Court (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 800, 818-819, 94 Cal. Rptr. 796, 484 P.2d 964 ; Outboard Marine Corp. v. Superior Court (1975) 52 Cal. App. 3d 30, 37, 124 Cal. Rptr. 852

[7] Damage as Element of Cause of Action

Because payment of money that one is already contractually bound to pay is not money damages in action for fraud, borrower could not claim as damages loan payments made in reliance on lender's promise to renegotiate terms of loan. Auerbach v. Great W. Bank (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 1172, 1185, 88 Cal. Rptr. 2d 718

In fraud/intentional misrepresentation action against alarm company, plaintiff not precluded as matter of law from attempting to prove "causal nexus" between misrepresentation inducing reliance on alarm system and later losses due to criminal acts of third parties; however, nonsuit against plaintiff proper given failure to prove causation at trial. Helm v. K.O.G. Alarm Co. (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 194, 202-203, 5 Cal. Rptr. 2d 615

Purchasers of property, who may have made misleading representations or nondisclosures to obtain loan, not liable for fraud because plaintiff (mortgage guaranty insurer) had suffered no damage; insurer's payment to lender unnecessary because lender had made successful full credit bid on property and therefore was not damaged by any act of purchasers. Commonwealth Mortgage Assurance Co. v. Superior Court (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 508, 520-521, 259 Cal. Rptr. 425

Fraud without damage furnishes no ground for action and no defense to action. South Tahoe Gas Co. v. Hofmann Land Improvement Co., Inc. (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 750, 765, 102 Cal. Rptr. 286 ; McCue v. Bruce Enterprises, Inc. (1964) 228 Cal. App. 2d 21, 30, 39 Cal. Rptr. 125

Plaintiff required to allege and prove precise amount of damages for fraud. Santoro v. Carbone (1972) 22 Cal. App. 3d 721, 728, 99 Cal. Rptr. 488

Plaintiff who has been put in position worse than plaintiff occupied had there been no fraud has cause of action for fraud. R.D. Reeder Lathing Co. v. Cypress Ins. Co. (1970) 3 Cal. App. 3d 995, 999, 84 Cal. Rptr. 98

[8] Defendants

[a] Liability for Fraud of Agent

Brokerage firm liable for employee broker's fraud in inducing securities purchase under federal law, for failure to provide reasonable supervision and training, and under California law, for acts of its agent performed within scope of agent's authority. Seymour v. Summa Vista Cinema, Inc. (9th Cir. 1987) 809 F.2d 1385, 1388 ; see also Alhino v. Starr (1980) 112 Cal. App. 3d 158, 174, 169 Cal. Rptr. 136

Principal liable for agent's fraud if principal places agent in position to defraud. Alhino v. Starr (1980) 112 Cal. App. 3d 158, 174, 169 Cal. Rptr. 136

Principal who puts agent in position that enables agent to commit fraud while apparently acting within his or her authority liable to third person for fraud. Hartong v. Partake, Inc. (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 942, 960, 72 Cal. Rptr. 722

Belief in agent's authority required to be generated by some act or neglect of principal before principal can be held liable. Hartong v. Partake, Inc. (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 942, 960, 72 Cal. Rptr. 722

If agent acting within actual or apparent authority gains advantage by means of fraud, principal is jointly liable with agent for damages. Ach v. Finkelstein (1968) 264 Cal. App. 2d 667, 677, 70 Cal. Rptr. 472

Principal not permitted to derive any benefit from transaction involving fraud of his or her agent by claiming fraud was not authorized by principal. Balfour, Guthrie & Co. v. Hansen (1964) 227 Cal. App. 2d 173, 192, 38 Cal. Rptr. 525

[b] Public Immunity and Liability

Public entity liable for damages for breach of contract despite fact that breach was also fraudulent and suit for fraud would be barred by Gov. Code §§ 818.8 and 822.2. Warner Constr. Corp. v. Los Angeles (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 285, 293-294, 85 Cal. Rptr. 444, 466 P.2d 996

Immunity under Gov. Code § 818.8 is applicable to intentional or negligent interference with economic relationships based on misrepresentations of city's employees. Los Angeles Equestrian Ctr., Inc. v. City of Los Angeles (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 432, 449-450, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 313

Immunity provided governmental entities by Gov. Code § 818.8 for misrepresentation applies not only to intentional misrepresentation and negligent misrepresentation, but also to concealment (that is, suppression of fact). Chevlin v. Los Angeles Cmty. Coll. Dist. (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 382, 390, 260 Cal. Rptr. 628 ; Harshbarger v. City of Colton (1988) 197 Cal. App. 3d 1335, 1343, 243 Cal. Rptr. 463

Gov. Code §§ 818.8, 822.2 does not preclude action against county adoption agency for intentional misrepresentation or fraudulent concealment of adoptee's medical condition as part of adoption process. Michael J. v. Los Angeles County Dept. of Adoptions (1988) 201 Cal. App. 3d 859, 872, 875, 247 Cal. Rptr. 504

Tort actions for misrepresentation made by state employees barred by Tort Claims Act (Gov. Code § 818.8). Seymour v. State of California (1984) 156 Cal. App. 3d 200, 205, 201 Cal. Rptr. 15

Immunity for misrepresentation afforded by Gov. Code § 818.8 does not preclude action seeking liability based on contract. Arthur L. Sachs, Inc. v. City of Oceanside (1984) 151 Cal. App. 3d 315, 320-321, 198 Cal. Rptr. 483

Fraudulent concealment within immunity granted by Gov. Code § 818.8 to public entities for injury caused by misrepresentation of employee. Schonfeld v. City of Vallejo (1974) 50 Cal. App. 3d 401, 409, 123 Cal. Rptr. 669

Actual fraud, for purposes of avoiding immunity granted to public employees by Gov. Code § 822.2 and to public entities by Gov. Code § 818.8 means that public employee is motivated by corruption, or actual malice, that is, has conscious intent to deceive, vex, annoy, or harm injured party. Schonfeld v. City of Vallejo (1974) 50 Cal. App. 3d 401, 409-410, 123 Cal. Rptr. 669

[9] Defenses

[a] Generally

In action by computer hardware broker against manufacturer for fraud, breach of fiduciary duty, and rescission, defendant immune from civil liability based on its good faith cooperation with government in criminal investigation. Caesar Elecs. Inc. v. Andrews (9th Cir. 1990) 905 F.2d 287, 289

Defendant accused of fraud entitled to rely on plaintiff's lack of specific factual allegations, including factually devoid discovery responses, to procure summary judgment. Union Bank v. Superior Court (1995) 31 Cal. App. 4th 573, 576-577, 37 Cal. Rptr 2d 653

In action for fraud, intentional misrepresentation, and conspiracy to interfere with prospective business advantage based on defendants' actions in causing nonfinal judgment and making false statements to trial court in underlying action, dismissal of complaint proper on ground that defendants were absolutely privileged pursuant to Civ. Code § 47(b). Boston v. Nelson (1991) 227 Cal. App. 3d 1502, 1506-1507, 278 Cal. Rptr. 386

Service station operator's claims of violation of covenant of good faith, fraud, and interference with prospective advantage arising from oil company's failure to maintain underlying ground lease were preempted by federal Petroleum Marketing Practices Act (15 U.S.C. § 2806(a)). Mobil Oil Corp. v. Superior Court (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 485, 488-490, 234 Cal. Rptr. 482

Plaintiff has burden of proof on issue of justifiable reliance. American Air Equip., Inc. v. Pacific Employers Ins. Co. (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 322, 327, 112 Cal. Rptr. 366

Defense of contributory negligence not applicable to actions for negligent misrepresentation. Howell v. Courtesy Chevrolet, Inc. (1971) 16 Cal. App. 3d 391, 403, 94 Cal. Rptr. 33

Plaintiff's negligence is defense to action for negligent misrepresentation but is not defense to intentional misrepresentation. Balfour, Guthrie & Co. v. Hansen (1974) 227 Cal. App. 2d 173, 196-198, 38 Cal. Rptr. 525 ; Meyer v. Ford Motor Co. (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 90, 105, 79 Cal. Rptr. 816

Plaintiff has burden of pleading and proving every element that constitutes fraud and deceit. Hills Transp. Co. v. Southwest Forest Industries, Inc. (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 702, 707-708, 72 Cal. Rptr. 441

Negligence of plaintiff is no defense to action for fraud and deceit. Hartong v. Partake, Inc. (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 942, 964-965, 72 Cal. Rptr. 722

Lack of justifiable reliance is defense to action for fraud. Hartong v. Partake, Inc. (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 942, 964-965, 72 Cal. Rptr. 722

Negligence of plaintiff is not defense to intentional tort of fraud; plaintiff not held to standard of caution of reasonable person and exceptionally gullible people allowed to recover from defendant who took advantage of circumstances. Carroll v. Dungey (1963) 223 Cal. App. 2d 247, 256-257, 35 Cal. Rptr. 681

[b] Late Discovery

Plaintiff who asserts fraud claim brought over three years (see Code Civ. Proc. § 338(d)) after commission of fraud required to affirmatively excuse failure to discover fraud within three years after it occurred, by establishing facts showing absence of negligence and absence of actual or presumptive knowledge of facts sufficient to put plaintiff on inquiry. Denholm v. Houghton Mifflin Co. (9th Cir. 1990) 912 F.2d 357, 362

Plaintiff with knowledge of facts sufficient to make reasonable person suspicious is charged with knowledge that would be gained by reasonable investigation despite defendant's status as fiduciary. Miller v. Bechtel Corp. (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 868, 875-876, 191 Cal. Rptr. 619, 663 P.2d 177

Triable issue of fact existed as to when investor had sufficient knowledge of fraud and resulting damage caused by investment principals to trigger running of statute of limitations; mere belief that investment funds had been lost, without more, did not trigger duty to investigate whether actionable fraud occurred. Cleveland v. Internet Specialties West, Inc. (2009) 171 Cal. App. 4th 24, 31-33, 88 Cal. Rptr. 3d 892

Cause of action for negligent misrepresentation accrued only when plaintiff company learned that defendant had misrepresented qualifications of employee accountant provided to plaintiff, rather than when plaintiff earlier learned, or should have learned of, accountant's independent fraud and embezzlement. E-Fab, Inc. v. Accountants, Inc. Services (2007) 153 Cal. App. 4th 1308, 1323, 64 Cal. Rptr. 3d 9

Summary judgment on fraud action based on expiration of statute of limitations was proper because plaintiff discovered injury-producing wrongdoing of some sort almost nine years prior to filing action and inquiry at that time would have led to discovery of fraud. Kline v. Turner (2001) 87 Cal. App. 4th 1369, 1374, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 699

Late discovery exception applicable in fraud action brought against escrow agent who allegedly improperly disbursed escrow funds pursuant to forged amended instructions; plaintiff has no duty to inquire regarding improper disbursal of escrow funds because escrow agent was fiduciary for limited purpose of carrying out escrow instructions. Lee v. Escrow Consultants, Inc. (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 915, 920-922, 259 Cal. Rptr. 117

Action on commercial blanket bond indemnifying against fraudulent acts of employees was timely even though loss on fidelity bonds ordinarily occurs at time of employee's dishonest act, because claim concerned secured loan made because of fraudulent misrepresentations. Pacific-S. Mortgage Trust Co. v. Insurance Co. of N. Am. (1985) 166 Cal. App. 3d 703, 709-713, 212 Cal. Rptr. 754

Plaintiff bringing action eight years after injuries sustained from intrauterine device was barred by statute of limitations from bringing cause of action in personal injury, but not barred from bringing cause of action in fraud that is based on alleged fraudulent representations because plaintiff brought action within three years after discovering allegedly concealed facts pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 338(d). Snow v. A.H. Robins Co. (1985) 165 Cal. App. 3d 120, 130-135,

211 Cal. Rptr. 271

If it is apparent from face of complaint that statute has run, plaintiff required to state in complaint facts excusing plaintiff's failure to learn of fraud within statutory period. Casualty Ins. Co. v. Rees Inv. Co. (1971) 14 Cal. App. 3d 716, 719-720, 92 Cal. Rptr. 857

If statute has otherwise run, plaintiff required to plead and prove facts showing (1) lack of knowledge, (2) lack of means of obtaining knowledge, and (3) how and when plaintiff did actually discover fraud. Casualty Ins. Co. v. Rees Inv. Co. (1971) 14 Cal. App. 3d 716, 719-720, 92 Cal. Rptr. 857

When plaintiff has notice or information of circumstances to put reasonable person on inquiry or has opportunity to obtain knowledge from sources open to plaintiff's investigation, statute commences to run. Casualty Ins. Co. v. Rees Inv. Co. (1971) 14 Cal. App. 3d 716, 719-720, 92 Cal. Rptr. 857

If plaintiff has right to rely on defendant's statements without further inquiry because, for example, they are in confidential relationship, statute does not commence to run merely because means of discovery were open; plaintiff required only to show that plaintiff made actual discovery of unknown information within three years before filing action. Davis v. Kahn (1970) 7 Cal. App. 3d 868, 878, 86 Cal. Rptr. 872

[c] Statute of Limitations

In action brought by seller of in-wall heaters against consumer safety group that certified that heaters were safe for consumer use, statute of limitations began to run when heaters were recalled due to safety issues and plaintiff was required to bear portion of cost of recall. Platt Elec. Supply, Inc. v. EOFF Elec., Inc. (9th Cir. 2008) 522 F.3d 1049, 1055-1056

Statute of limitations tolled by broker's reassurances to client regarding matters relevant to possible misrepresentations; if client relied on broker's advice not to worry or close out position or on promises that broker would monitor client's account, statute of limitations does not begin to run on dates of those promises/reassurances. Vucinich v. Paine, Webber, Jackson & Curtis, Inc. (9th Cir. 1986) 803 F.2d 454, 460

Statute of limitations begins to run when one should have been put on notice of fraud or misrepresentation; tolling of statute of limitations allowed if broker reassures client on concerns relevant to possible misrepresentation. Vucinich v. Paine, Webber, Jackson & Curtis, Inc. (9th Cir. 1984) 739 F.2d 1434, 1436

Period of limitation for fraud expires at end of three years after time action accrued or after discovery of fraud, as provided by former Code Civ. Proc. § 338(4) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 338(d)). Galusha v. Fraser (1918) 178 Cal. 653, 656, 174 P. 311

In action for conspiracy to defraud, allegations supporting tolling of limitations period under delayed discovery rule establish timely filing under Code Civ. Proc. § 338(d); plaintiffs not required additionally to allege tolling under "last overt act doctrine" under Wyatt v. Union Mortgage Co. (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 773, 788, 157 Cal. Rptr. 392, 598 P.2d 45 , because plaintiff is required only to plead either alternative theory. Aaroe v. First Am. Title Ins. Co. (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 124, 128-129, 271 Cal. Rptr. 434

Limitation period on former partners' cause of action against other former partners for fraud based on concealment of profits derived from sale and rental of property to dissolved partnership was postponed by fraudulent concealment, and did not commence until plaintiffs had actual or inquiry notice. Rosenfeld, Meyer & Susman v. Cohen (1987) 191 Cal.

App. 3d 1035, 1059-1060, 237 Cal. Rptr. 14

Between fiduciaries, actual notice is question of fact; distribution of report, which had footnote disclosing separate interest of some partners in assets leased to partnership, at partnership meeting was not sufficient to charge other partners with notice of separate interests or profit on lease. Rosenfeld, Meyer & Susman v. Cohen (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 1035, 1059, 237 Cal. Rptr. 14

Three-year statute of limitations under former Code Civ. Proc. § 338(4) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 338(d)) for civil conspiracy based on fraud commences when last overt act of conspiracy completed. Livett v. F.C. Financial Associates (1981) 124 Cal. App. 3d 413, 418, 177 Cal. Rptr. 411

If gist of action is for fraud, action governed by former Code Civ. Proc. § 338(4) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 338(d)) period of limitation regardless of form of action or relief sought. Turner v. Milstein (1951) 103 Cal. App. 2d 651, 659, 230 P.2d 25

Action for constructive fraud arising from fraudulently inducing one party to breach contract is governed by limitation period of former Code Civ. Proc. § 338(4) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 338(d)). Romano v. Wilbur Ellis & Co. (1947) 82 Cal. App. 2d 670, 674, 186 P.2d 1012

[10] Definitions

Fraud includes anything intended to deceive, including all statements, acts, concealments, and omissions involving breach of legal or equitable duty, trust, or confidence that results in injury to one who justifiably relies. Ach v. Finkelstein (1968) 264 Cal. App. 2d 667, 674, 70 Cal. Rptr. 472

Fraudulent representation is one made with knowledge that it is or may be untrue and with intention that person to whom it is made act in reliance on it. Wilke v. Coinway, Inc. (1967) 257 Cal. App. 2d 126, 136, 64 Cal. Rptr. 845

[11] Election of Remedies

If plaintiff elects to stand on contract and sue for damages, continued performance of contract is not waiver of action for damages; if party elects to rescind, continued performance is possible waiver of right to do so. Bagdasarian v. Gragnon (1948) 31 Cal. 2d 744, 750-752, 192 P.2d 935

Defrauded person has choice of either rescinding contract or affirming contract, retaining property, and suing for damages. Kaluzok v. Brisson (1946) 27 Cal. 2d 760, 763, 167 P.2d 481 ; Brockway v. Heilman (1967) 250 Cal. App. 2d 807, 811, 58 Cal. Rptr. 772

Complaint and proof indicating repeated false representations by automobile seller and dealer that car had been repaired was action in deceit, entitling plaintiff to tort damages, and contract was merely foundational backdrop for action. Sprague v. Frank J. Sanders Lincoln Mercury, Inc. (1981) 120 Cal. App. 3d 412, 419, 174 Cal. Rptr. 608

[12] Elements

Actual reliance required element of action for fraud or deceit. Mirkin v. Wasserman (1993) 5 Cal. 4th 1082, 1088, 1095, 1100, 1108, 23 Cal. Rptr. 2d 101, 858 P.2d 568

Making of misrepresentations to one group intending to influence behavior of ultimate purchasers who are not recipients of original misrepresentation, and succeeding in plan, was sufficient to establish liability for fraud. Committee on Children's Television, Inc. v. General Foods Corp. (1983) 35 Cal. 3d 197, 222, 197 Cal. Rptr. 783, 673 P.2d 660 , superseded by statute as stated in Gartin v. S&M NuTec LLC, 245 F.R.D. 429, 2007 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 38050 (advertising to induce children to influence parents to make purchases)

Plaintiff stockholders failed to raise triable issue of fact as to whether outside directors had knowledge or reason to know of false or fraudulent accounting practices perpetrated in order to manipulate stock price. Bains v. Moores (2009) 172 Cal. App. 4th 445, 459-470, 91 Cal. Rptr. 3d 309

Employer's misrepresentation to trust concerning status of employee for purposes of coverage under employer's group life insurance policy is fraud against insurer if misrepresentation was made to trust with intent that it would be repeated to and acted on by insurer. Pacific Standard Life Ins. Co. v. Tower Indus., Inc. (1992) 9 Cal. App. 4th 1881, 1891, 12 Cal. Rptr. 2d 524

Cause of action for fraud not stated, and triable issue of fact not raised in opposition to summary judgment motion, if there were no allegations of affirmative misrepresentation, intentional conduct, or justifiable reliance. City of Hope Nat'l Med. Ctr. v. Superior Court (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 633, 639 n.3, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 465

Complaint in fraud action against corporation required to specify person who made representations; demurrer properly sustained because of plaintiff's failure to do so. Tarmann v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (1991) 2 Cal. App. 4th 153, 156-158, 2 Cal. Rptr. 2d 861

Contractual or fiduciary duty not required for liability to be found under either intentional fraud or negligent misrepresentation theory. Lacher v. Superior Court (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 1038, 1046-1047, 281 Cal. Rptr. 640

Elements of fraud that give rise to tort action for deceit are (1) misrepresentation, (2) knowledge of falsity, (3) intent to defraud, (4) justifiable reliance, and (5) resulting damage. Hohe v. San Diego Unified Sch. Dist. (1990) 224 Cal. App. 3d 1559, 1565, 274 Cal. Rptr. 647 ; Semore v. Pool (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 1087, 1102, 266 Cal. Rptr. 280 ; Hackethal v. National Cas. Co. (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 1102, 1111, 234 Cal. Rptr. 853

In action based on discrepancies between description of land acreage in property-exchange contract and actual acreage, plaintiff unable to prove fraud because of failure to produce evidence of scienter on part of defendant regarding inaccuracy of contract description or evidence that would put reasonable person on inquiry regarding accuracy. Marvin v. Adams (1990) 224 Cal. App. 3d 956, 963, 274 Cal. Rptr. 308

In employee's action against former employer based on allegedly wrongful termination, cause of action in fraud, based on oral promises of continuing employment that contradicted parties' integrated at-will employment agreement, lacked necessary element of justifiable reliance. Slivinsky v. Watkins-Johnson Co. (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 799, 807, 270 Cal. Rptr. 585

Cause of action for fraud requires clear allegation that each representation was false when made. Stansfield v. Starkey (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 59, 74, 269 Cal. Rptr. 337

In action against manufacturer of mechanical heart valve that was ultimately recalled because of failures resulting in deaths, patient in whom still-functioning valve had been implanted was able to state cause of action in fraud based on misrepresentations regarding valve's propensity to fail, omission of facts showing prior failure, and lack of warnings of serious risk, made with intent to induce plaintiff to choose that valve over valves made by several other manufacturers. Khan v. Shiley Inc. (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 848, 858, 266 Cal. Rptr. 106

In action brought by laid-off employee against employer, alleging several causes of action based on employer's failure to rehire plaintiff, cause of action in fraud lacked element of false representation, because based on statements regarding available positions and plaintiff's status regarding reinstatement that were true when made. Kerr v. Rose (1990) 216 Cal. App. 3d 1551, 1564-1565, 265 Cal. Rptr. 597 , superseded by statute on other grounds as stated in Union Bank v. Superior Court (1995) 31 Cal. App. 4th 573,

Complaint alleging that employer knowingly made false promises that employer would pay commission to plaintiff, that promises were made to induce plaintiff to work for employer, that plaintiff relied on those promises by entering into employment relationship, and that employer failed to pay commissions, was sufficient to withstand demurrer. Douglas v. Superior Court (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 155, 158, 263 Cal. Rptr. 473

Action against insurer, based on false advertising that insurance policy covered loss of use of limbs although in fact only dismemberment of limbs was covered, did not meet elements of fraud action; statements in advertisement were succinct but not actually misleading, and plaintiff's father and not plaintiff was person who had relied on advertisement prior to purchase of policy. Suarez v. Life Ins. Co. of N. Am. (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 1396, 1408, 254 Cal. Rptr. 377

Negligent misrepresentation requires intent to induce plaintiff's reliance; intent to induce plaintiff's reliance is absent if defendant did not know plaintiffs and did not know that plaintiffs would rely on alleged misrepresentation. Christiansen v. Roddy (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 780, 787-788, 231 Cal. Rptr. 72

Justifiable reliance and representation without reasonable belief are elements of negligent misrepresentation. Christiansen v. Roddy (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 780, 788-789, 231 Cal. Rptr. 72

Justifiable reliance is essential element of causes of action for fraud and conspiracy to commit fraud. Chicago Title Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1985) 174 Cal. App. 3d 1142, 1151, 220 Cal. Rptr. 507

Pleadings alleging that medical problems were proximate result of false and fraudulent representations adequately stated cause of action in fraud despite incorporating language from other causes of action asserting that injuries were caused by defendants' negligence. Snow v. A.H. Robins Co. (1985) 165 Cal. App. 3d 120, 131-134, 211 Cal. Rptr. 271

Essential allegations in action against attorney are (1) misrepresentation, (2) knowledge of falsity, (3) intent to defraud, (4) justifiable reliance, and (5) resulting damages, each pleaded with sufficient factual specificity to allow defendant to understand charges. Roberts v. Ball, Hunt, Hart, Brown & Baerwitz (1976) 57 Cal. App. 3d 104, 109, 128 Cal. Rptr. 901

Knowledge of falsity of statement and intent to deceive are not elements of negligent misrepresentation and therefore not element of every cause of action for deceit. Hale v. George A. Hormel & Co. (1975) 48 Cal. App. 3d 73, 82-86, 121 Cal. Rptr. 144

Elements of case of fraud and deceit. South Tahoe Gas Co. v. Hofmann Land Improvement Co. (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 750, 765, 102 Cal. Rptr. 286 ; Collins v. Marvel Land Co. (1970) 13 Cal. App. 3d 34, 44, 91 Cal. Rptr. 291 ; Ach v. Finkelstein (1968) 264 Cal. App. 2d 667, 676, 70 Cal. Rptr. 472 ; Teacher v. Leddel (1966) 247 Cal. App. 2d 95, 97, 55 Cal. Rptr. 271 ; Vogelsang v. Wolpert (1964) 227 Cal. App. 2d 102, 109-110, 38 Cal. Rptr. 440

Necessity of alleging cause and effect relationship between fraud and damages sought in order to show cause of action. Zumbrun v. University of Southern California (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 1, 12, 101 Cal. Rptr. 499

Knowledge of falsity of statement is necessary element of cause of action for deceit. Harazim v. Lynam (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 127, 130, 72 Cal. Rptr. 670 ; Black v. Shearson, Hammill & Co. (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 362, 367, 72 Cal. Rptr. 157 ; Vogelsang v. Wolpert (1964) 227 Cal. App. 2d 102, 109, 38 Cal. Rptr. 440

[13] Evidence

Fraud sometimes required to be shown by clear and convincing evidence. Thompson v. Occidental Life Ins. Co. (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 904, 919, 109 Cal. Rptr. 473, 513 P.2d 353 ; K. King & G. Schuler Corp. v. King (1968) 259 Cal. App. 2d 383, 396, 66 Cal. Rptr. 330

Burden of proof required in fraud case I no more than preponderance of evidence. Sierra Nat'l Bank v. Brown (1971) 18 Cal. App. 3d 98, 104-105, 95 Cal. Rptr. 742

Facts that constitute fraud required to be determined from circumstances of each case. Ach v. Finkelstein (1968) 264 Cal. App. 2d 667, 675, 70 Cal. Rptr. 472

Fraud allowed to be proved from direct evidence or inferred from all circumstances in case. Ach v. Finkelstein (1968) 264 Cal. App. 2d 667, 675, 70 Cal. Rptr. 472

Fraud allowed to be proved from inference and circumstantial evidence. Vogelsang v. Wolpert (1964) 227 Cal. App. 2d 102, 111, 38 Cal. Rptr. 440

Fraud often difficult to prove directly; circumstances surrounding transaction and relationship of parties are facts from which fraud is often inferred. Balfour, Guthrie & Co. v. Hansen (1964) 227 Cal. App. 2d 173, 192, 38 Cal. Rptr. 525

Fraud is odious and therefore never presumed. Fowler v. Fowler (1964) 227 Cal. App. 2d 741, 748, 39 Cal. Rptr. 101

[14] Federal Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organizations Act (RICO)

Misrepresentations by which promoter induced broadcaster to invest in joint venture to acquire and sell rights to telecast fight was not pattern of racketeering activity sufficient to state cause of action under 18 U.S.C. § 1961(5); single scheme or episode sufficient only if circumstances suggest threat of continuing activity. Medallion Television Enters. v. SelecTV of Cal. (9th Cir. 1987) 833 F.2d 1360, 1363-1365

Allegations of mail fraud (18 U.S.C. § 1341) describing intent to defraud and facts as to time, place, and content of alleged mailings was pattern of racketeering activity sufficient to state cause of action under RICO (18 U.S.C. § 1961 et seq.). People v. Highland Fed. Sav. & Loan (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 1692, 1719-1720, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 555

[15] Fraud and Deceit Distinguished

Deceit giving rise to action for damages and fraud vitiating consent to contract both evolved from action on case of deceit; privity of contract originally required. Hale v. George A. Hormel & Co. (1975) 48 Cal. App. 3d 73, 82-86, 121 Cal. Rptr. 144

Elements of tort of fraud and deceit and elements of actual fraud showing no consent to contract are same. South Tahoe Gas Co. v. Hofmann Land Improvements Co. (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 750, 765, 102 Cal. Rptr. 286

False promise or misrepresentation that is basis for action in tort for damages is actionable under Civ. Code §§ 1709 and 1710, rather than Civ. Code § 1572. Bezaire v. Fidelity & Deposit Co. (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 888, 892, 91 Cal. Rptr. 142

[16] Implied Misrepresentations

In action under Civ. Code § 1710 by title company against bank, bank's practice of repeatedly honoring third party's checks payable to title company did not impliedly represent that third party had sufficient funds to cover checks because third party, rather than bank, was responsible for whatever representations were presented to title company through uttering checks. Chicago Title Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1985) 174 Cal. App. 3d 1142, 1156, 220 Cal. Rptr. 507 (noting apparent conflict between California and federal law over whether check constitutes representation, but commenting that conflict was of no concern under facts of this case)

[17] Intent

Intent permissibly established by inference from acts of parties, because direct proof of fraudulent intent often impossible. Continental Airlines, Inc. v. McDonnell Douglas Corp. (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 388, 411-412, 264 Cal. Rptr. 779

Actual fraud occurs if one party to contract intends to deceive another party to contract or to induce another party to enter contract on basis of promise made without any intention of performing it; existence of intent at time of promise is always question of fact. Walter E. Heller W., Inc. v. Tecrim Corp. (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 149, 160-161, 241 Cal. Rptr. 677

[18] Interest on Damages

Constitutional rate of 7 percent is proper prejudgment interest rate applicable to fraud claim. Continental Airlines, Inc. v. McDonnell Douglas Corp. (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 388, 434, 264 Cal. Rptr. 779

Prejudgment interest at rate of 7 percent is proper in action by insured to recover on commercial blanket bond indemnifying against fraudulent acts of employees. Pacific-S. Mortgage Trust Co. v. Insurance Co. of N. Am. (1985) 166 Cal. App. 3d 703, 716, 212 Cal. Rptr. 754

Civ. Code § 3328, providing for recovery of interest on certain damages, as authorizes interest in fraud actions in discretion of trier of fact. Greenfield v. Insurance Inc. (1971) 19 Cal. App. 3d 803, 813, 97 Cal. Rptr. 164

Plaintiff not required to plead or specially pray for interest. Greenfield v. Insurance Inc. (1971) 19 Cal. App. 3d 803, 813, 97 Cal. Rptr. 164

[19] Justifiable Reliance

[a] Burden of Proof and Evidence

Whether plaintiff's reliance on defendant's representations regarding financial condition of company plaintiff contemplated buying was justifiable is measured from moment plaintiff was committed to purchase company's stock, which occurred once plaintiff's obligation to purchase was no longer conditional. Atari Corp. v. Ernst & Whinney (9th Cir. 1992) 981 F.2d 1025, 1029

Reliance on misrepresentation is question of fact for trial court; issue is whether person claiming reliance was justified in believing representation in light of his or her own knowledge and experience. Gray v. Don Miller Assocs., Inc. (1984) 35 Cal. 3d 498, 503, 198 Cal. Rptr. 551, 674 P.2d 253

Reliance not required to be shown by direct evidence; reliance may be inferred from circumstances surrounding transaction. Vasquez v. Superior Court (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 800, 814, 94 Cal. Rptr. 796

Reliance by party to commercial contract on oral representations, despite clause in written agreement that all representations had been included in written agreement, was not unreasonable as matter of law. Ron Greenspan Volkswagen v. Ford Motor (1995) 32 Cal. App. 4th 985, 987-989, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 783

Justifiable reliance decided matter of law if reasonable minds can come to only one conclusion based on facts; reliance not reasonable if attorney who used releases in her practice relied on equestrian instructor's representation that release was meaningless. Guido v. Koopman (1991) 1 Cal. App. 4th 837, 843-844, 2 Cal. Rptr. 2d 437

In fraud action brought by purchaser of airplane against manufacturer, arising from destruction of airplane when broken landing gear ripped away from wing, damaging wing fuel tank and causing fire, defendant's representations that landing gear was designed to break away from wing without rupturing wing fuel tank was material, and plaintiff's reliance on representations was justified; reliance established if representation substantially influenced choice, even though other influences operated as well. Continental Airlines, Inc. v. McDonnell Douglas Corp. (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 388, 425, 264 Cal. Rptr. 779

Borrower's refusal on three separate occasions to pledge ranch as collateral for long-term (construction) financing was further evidence that borrower was not reasonably justified in believing its increased short-term debt would be paid from long-term loan. Kruse v. Bank of Am. (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 38, 56-57, 248 Cal. Rptr. 217

Facts that borrower sought financing elsewhere after bank initially denied long-term financing, that borrower knew loan it sought exceeded bank officer's lending authority, and that regional approval was required, established that borrower's reliance was not justified, despite saccharine comments made by regional bank officer during site visit. Kruse v. Bank of Am. (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 38, 55, 248 Cal. Rptr. 217

Testimony concerning one's own reliance is legally insufficient if that reliance is without justification; plaintiff's misguided belief in statement on which no reasonable person would rely was not justifiable reliance. Kruse v. Bank of Am. (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 38, 54, 248 Cal. Rptr. 217

Whether plaintiff justifiably relied is generally question of fact. Meyer v. Ford Motor Co. (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 90, 105, 79 Cal. Rptr. 816

[b] Class Actions

Plaintiffs alleging fraud in advertising permitted to base cause of action on allegation that they acted in response to advertising campaign, even if they cannot recall specific advertisement that induced behavior desired by advertisers. Committee on Children's Television, Inc. v. General Foods Corp. (1983) 35 Cal. 3d 197, 222, 197 Cal. Rptr. 783, 673 P.2d 660 , superseded by statute as stated in Gartin v. S&M NuTec LLC, 245 F.R.D. 429, 2007 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 38050

If representations were made at same time and place to all class members who act on them at same time, persuasive inference arises that each of them relied on representations. Collins v. Rocha (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 232, 237, 102 Cal. Rptr. 1, 497 P.2d 225

Material misrepresentations made to class members support at least inference of reliance as to entire class. Danzig v. Jack Grynberg & Assocs. (1984) 161 Cal. App. 3d 1128, 1138, 208 Cal. Rptr. 336

Defendant who deceives public by advertisements intended to induce reliance is liable to any individual who reasonably relied on representations. Block v. Tobin (1975) 45 Cal. App. 3d 214, 219, 119 Cal. Rptr. 288

[c] Correction to Initial Misrepresentation

Plaintiff's reliance on defendant's initial misrepresentation was not negated by defendant's later disclosure to plaintiff of truth, if defendant had deceived plaintiff into setting in which plaintiff could be "brainwashed" and rendered incapable of deciding not to act on initial misrepresentation. Molko v. Holy Spirit Ass'n (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 1092, 1108 , superseded by statute as stated in Scheiding v. Dinwiddie Const. Co. (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 64, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 360 .

[d] Defendant Having Superior Knowledge

Plaintiff who lacks equal facilities for learning truth justified in relying on defendant. Meyer v. Ford Motor Co. (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 90, 105, 79 Cal. Rptr. 816

Plaintiff has right to rely on representations if defendant has superior knowledge and knows of plaintiff's ignorance of subject matter. Hartong v. Partake, Inc. (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 942, 966, 72 Cal. Rptr. 722

Reliance on representations not precluded by independent investigation if person making representations has superior knowledge or party relying is not competent to judge facts without expert assistance. Brady v. Carman (1960) 179 Cal. App. 2d 63, 68, 3 Cal. Rptr. 612

Because plaintiff was ignorant of effect of easement on property and defendant was real estate broker with professional knowledge of its effect who gave evasive answers to plaintiff's inquiries, defendant was chargeable with fraud. Brady v. Carman (1960) 179 Cal. App. 2d 63, 68-70, 3 Cal. Rptr. 612

Owner of real estate, in absence of facts to contrary, is presumed to know boundaries and area of his or her land; buyer warranted in relying on representations by owner as to such facts. Nathanson v. Murphy (1955) 132 Cal. App. 2d 363, 369, 282 P.2d 174

Owner of real estate presumed to know boundaries and area of his or her own land. Dohrman v. J. B. Roof, Inc. (1930) 108 Cal. App. 456, 464, 291 P. 879

[e] Fiduciary Relationship of Plaintiff and Defendant

Relationship of seller to buyer not ordinarily vested with fiduciary obligation. Committee on Children's Television, Inc. v. General Foods Corp. (1983) 35 Cal. 3d 197, 222, 197 Cal. Rptr. 783, 673 P.2d 660 , superseded by statute as stated in Gartin v. S&M NuTec LLC, 245 F.R.D. 429, 2007 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 38050

Instruction that one to whom fiduciary relationship is owed has right to rely on representations made by fiduciary without further investigation was error; beneficiary of fiduciary relationship charged with duty to investigate facts of which he or she has actual knowledge. Miller v. Bechtel Corp. (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 868, 875, 191 Cal. Rptr. 619, 663 P.2d 177 ; Kruse v. Bank of Am. (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 38, 55 n.10, 248 Cal. Rptr. 217

Insurance agent liable for damages for fraud because agent represented he had obtained coverage for plaintiff that he had in fact not obtained; plaintiff's reliance justified due to relationship between agent and client despite existence of written policy not showing coverage. Greenfield v. Insurance Inc. (1971) 19 Cal. App. 3d 803, 811, 97 Cal. Rptr. 164

Plaintiff has right to rely on representations made to him or her by defendant who is fiduciary without duty of further inquiry. Davis v. Kahn (1970) 7 Cal. App. 3d 868, 878, 86 Cal. Rptr. 872

[f] Investigation by Plaintiff

Investigation by plaintiff of land did not preclude justifiable reliance if accuracy of defendant's representations could be checked only by experts. Shearer v. Cooper (1943) 21 Cal. 2d 695, 704, 134 P.2d 764

Plaintiff not held to constructive notice of public records that would reveal true facts. Seeger v. Odell (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 409, 415, 115 P.2d 977

Triable issue of fact remained on whether disclaimer in life insurance materials was sufficient to put purchaser on notice that agent's assertions that out-of-pocket premium payments were not required after eleventh year might be false. Broberg v. The Guardian Life Ins. Co. of America (2009) 171 Cal. App. 4th 912, 921-922, 90 Cal. Rptr. 3d 225

Pursuant to Civ. Code § 1668, defendant real estate brokers could not rely on exculpatory clauses in real estate sales contract to avoid liability for intentional misrepresentation or fraud; plaintiffs' failure to thoroughly investigate zoning restrictions prior to purchase was no defense when contract gave them right, but not duty, to investigate. Manderville v. PCG&S Group, Inc. (2007) 146 Cal. App. 4th 1486, 1500-1502, 55 Cal. Rptr. 3d 59

In civil action regarding insurance fraud, in which verdict finding fraud was based on misrepresentation of amount of loss, award for costs of insurer's investigation was reversed on basis of insufficient evidence of actual reliance; insurer had duty to investigate every claim; evidence showed that investigation was not instigated by representations of insured, but rather by normal procedures of investigating every claim. Orient Handel v. United States Fid. & Guar. Co. (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 684, 693-696, 237 Cal. Rptr. 667

Reliance on defense attorney's representations that defendant would pay plaintiff money owed after dismissal, without independent investigation, was not reasonable or justifiable, and therefore precluded recovery for fraud based on defendant's failure to pay after dismissal of suit with prejudice. Wilhelm v. Pray, Price, Williams & Russell (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 1324, 1331-1332, 231 Cal. Rptr. 355

No duty imposed in law to employ means of discovering truth. Howell v. Courtesy Chevrolet, Inc. (1971) 16 Cal. App. 3d 391, 403, 94 Cal. Rptr. 33

Inspection by plaintiff does not prevent justifiable reliance on defendant's statements if falsity of statements is not apparent from inspection, person making representations has superior knowledge, or party relying on investigation is not competent to judge facts without expert assistance. Snelson v. Ondulando Highlands Corp. (1970) 5 Cal. App. 3d 243, 252, 84 Cal. Rptr. 800 ; Horn v. Guaranty Chevrolet Motors (1969) 270 Cal. App. 2d 477, 482, 75 Cal. Rptr. 871

If plaintiff begins investigation, plaintiff's failure to discover truth excused by defendant's superior knowledge of facts, difficulty of ascertaining all of facts, or plaintiff's incompetence to judge facts without expert assistance. Hartong v. Partake, Inc. (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 942, 966, 72 Cal. Rptr. 722

Fact that plaintiff relied to some extent on independent advice does not bar plaintiff's recovery in all cases. Hartong v. Partake, Inc. (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 942, 966, 72 Cal. Rptr. 722

Plaintiff not required to make investigation if defendant has asserted facts about matter. Balfour, Guthrie & Co. v. Hansen (1964) 227 Cal. App. 2d 173, 193, 38 Cal. Rptr. 525

Plaintiff precluded from reliance on defendant's representations only if plaintiff had means at hand for determining truth or falsity of it and resorts to such means. Mercer v. Elliott (1962) 208 Cal. App. 2d 275, 279, 25 Cal. Rptr. 217

Plaintiff who undertook to investigate real property for sale and truth of representations concerning it required to proceed with investigation to its end with diligence and completeness, but not required to employ experts to investigate. Kramer v. Musser (1943) 57 Cal. App. 2d 942, 946-947, 136 P.2d 74

Purchaser who undertakes to make investigation after representation has been made, who has available means of learning truth, and who actually learns facts, is not justified in relying on representation; in absence of these circumstances, purchaser has right to rely on representations of seller. Dohrman v. J. B. Roof, Inc. (1930) 108 Cal. App. 456, 464, 291 P. 879

[g] Plaintiff's Conduct

Licensed real estate broker's reliance on oral promise to pay commission not sufficiently reasonable to support action for fraud. American Int'l Enters., Inc. v. Federal Deposit Ins. Corp. (9th Cir. 1993) 3 F.3d 1263, 1270 (relying on Phillippe v. Shapell Indus. (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 1247, 1270, 241 Cal. Rptr. 22, 743 P.2d 1279)

Reliance on misrepresentations not justifiable because plaintiff's investigation and analysis had uncovered information demonstrating that audited statements plaintiff relied on were patently and obviously false. Atari v. Ernst & Whinney (9th Cir. 1992) 981 F.2d 1025, 1030-1031

Commercial tenant in shopping mall stated cause of action for intentional or negligent misrepresentation when alleging that landlord during negotiations overstated size of rental space by 7.6 percent and understated size of shopping mall by 8.1 percent, resulting in overpayment in rent of $90,000; lease provision stating that parties agreed that sizes were "reasonable approximations," and payments based on sizes stated were not subject to revision, did not preclude plaintiff from showing that sizes were materially and unreasonably inaccurate. McClain v. Octagon Plaza, LLC (2008) 159 Cal. App. 4th 784, 793-797, 71 Cal. Rptr. 3d 885

Lease clause specifying that tenant is not relying on representations about other potential tenants for shopping mall prevented tenant who admitted to reading lease before signing from relying on other such representations without first seeking clarification. Hinesley v. Oakshade Town Ctr. (2005) 135 Cal. App. 4th 289, 302-303, 37 Cal. Rptr. 3d 364

Causal connection between misrepresentation of extent of defendant's right to use trademark and name, and plaintiff's payment of litigation expenses related to dispute with third party over use of name, was too tenuous to support judgment for plaintiff because plaintiff probably would have invested anyway and payment of those litigation expenses was probably not required by investment agreement. Okun v. Morton (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 805, 828-829, 250 Cal. Rptr. 220

Detrimental reliance sometimes unreasonable in light of plaintiff's intelligence and experience. Chicago Title Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1985) 174 Cal. App. 3d 1142, 1151, 220 Cal. Rptr. 507

Justifiable reliance shown even if plaintiff relied under such circumstances as to make it unreasonable for plaintiff to accept defendant's statement without independent inquiry or investigation. Howell v. Courtesy Chevrolet, Inc. (1971) 16 Cal. App. 3d 391, 403, 94 Cal. Rptr. 33

Plaintiff denied recovery only if plaintiff's conduct in relying on defendant was manifestly unreasonable in light of plaintiff's own intelligence and information. Hartong v. Partake, Inc. (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 942, 964-965, 72 Cal. Rptr. 722

Fact that investigation would have revealed falsity of misrepresentation to plaintiff does not bar recovery. Hartong v.

Partake, Inc. (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 942, 964-965, 72 Cal. Rptr. 722

In case of negligent misrepresentation, plaintiff not barred unless plaintiff's conduct, in light of plaintiff's own information and intelligence, is irrational and preposterous. Hartong v. Partake, Inc. (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 942, 964-965, 72 Cal. Rptr. 722

Test of fraudulent representation is its effect on particular mind, whether strong and circumspect mind or weak and relying one. Wilke v. Coinway, Inc. (1967) 257 Cal. App. 2d 126, 138, 64 Cal. Rptr. 845

Credulity of plaintiff not usually defense to action for fraud; fraud not subject of strictly objective test. Vogelsang v. Wolpert (1964) 227 Cal. App. 2d 102, 111-112, 38 Cal. Rptr. 440

[h] Pleading Reliance

Allegations that defendant concealed and removed person who injured plaintiff from area, and that concealment required expenditure of great effort by plaintiff, were merely allegations of damage rather than allegations of change in position amounting to reliance; thus, no fraud cause of action stated. Hepe v. Paknad (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 412, 420, 244 Cal. Rptr. 823

[i] Untrustworthy Defendant

Plaintiff who discovers that defendant has made one false representation not precluded from justifiably relying on other misrepresentations of defendant if defendant corrected results of first representation on request. Shearer v. Cooper (1943) 21 Cal. 2d 695, 701, 134 P.2d 764

Person taking several bad checks in payment from one defendant not justified in relying on worth of any check after first was dishonored. American Air Equip., Inc. v. Pacific Employers Ins. Co. (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 322, 325, 327-328, 112 Cal. Rptr. 366

Plaintiff who learns that one representation by defendant is false is not justified in assuming that other representations by defendant are true. Roland v. Hubenka (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 215, 225, 90 Cal. Rptr. 490

If defendant has made plausible explanation of facts otherwise arousing suspicion, plaintiff not required to investigate further. Hartong v. Partake, Inc. (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 942, 966, 72 Cal. Rptr. 722

Defendant who lulls plaintiff into inaction although plaintiff suspects fraud is not permitted to assert that plaintiff lost right to recover damages by accepting assurance of defendant that there was no fraud. Brownlee v. Vang (1965) 235 Cal. App. 2d 465, 474, 45 Cal. Rptr. 458

Buyer of powerboat who noticed possible discrepancies was justified in relying on assertion of seller concerning boat's engines, because seller reassured buyer. Harper v. Silver (1962) 200 Cal. App. 2d 103, 109, 19 Cal. Rptr. 78

[20] Materiality

Defendant's representations not required to be sole cause of damage; but only required to be substantial factor in inducing plaintiff to act. Wennerholm v. Stanford Univ. Sch. of Med. (1942) 20 Cal. 2d 713, 717, 128 P.2d 522 ; Anderson v. Handley (1957) 149 Cal. App. 2d 184, 186-187

If plaintiff would not have done any differently had plaintiff not relied on defendant's representation, or if plaintiff had no choice and could have done nothing to improve his or her position if plaintiff had not relied on defendant, required conduct of plaintiff is lacking. Bezaire v. Fidelity & Deposit Co. (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 888, 892-893, 91 Cal. Rptr. 142

Representation that induces plaintiff to take risk plaintiff would not otherwise have taken is material fact that induced plaintiff to change position. Kozlowsky v. Westminster Nat'l Bank (1970) 6 Cal. App. 3d 593, 597-598, 86 Cal. Rptr. 52

To show damages, plaintiff required to show that defendants deceived plaintiff with intent to induce plaintiff to alter his or her position to his or her injury or risk and that plaintiff was damaged as result. Meyer v. Ford Motor Co. (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 90, 106, 79 Cal. Rptr. 816

Fact represented or suppressed is deemed material if it relates to matter of substance and directly affects purpose for which deceived party acted. Handley v. Handley (1960) 179 Cal. App. 2d 742, 746, 3 Cal. Rptr. 910

Concealment is material if knowledge suppressed is so important and obviously so well in recollection of party withholding it, that its mere repression amounts to fraud. Sanfran Co. v. Rees Blow Pipe Mfg. Co. (1959) 168 Cal. App. 2d 191, 205, 335 P.2d 995

Misrepresentation or concealment of known fact of fill in lot sold to another is material inducement that works fraud on buyer who is ignorant of fact. Ashburn v. Miller (1958) 161 Cal. App. 2d 71, 79, 326 P.2d 229

Fraud and damage sustained required to have cause and effect relationship to each other. Hill v. Wrather (1958) 158 Cal. App. 2d 818, 825, 323 P.2d 567

False representation that cannot affect intrinsic merits of business transaction is immaterial because reliance on it cannot produce injury in legal sense. Hill v. Wrather (1958) 158 Cal. App. 2d 818, 824-825, 323 P.2d 567

To be material, representation required to be such that plaintiff would not have acted as plaintiff did without it; false representation required to be of material fact. Adkins v. Wyckoff (1957) 152 Cal. App. 2d 684, 689, 313 P.2d 592

Misrepresentation as to acreage of piece of real property constitutes material misrepresentation; sellers who did not have property surveyed did not have sufficient knowledge to make representation as to acreage. Nathanson v. Murphy (1955) 132 Cal. App. 2d 363, 367-368, 282 P.2d 174

Whether existence of fill is material depended on nature and extent of fill; filing of map showing fill and letting of contract for grading by defendant was evidence of defendant's knowledge of extent of fill. Rothstein v. Janss Inv. Corp. (1941) 45 Cal. App. 2d 64, 72-73, 113 P.2d 465

[21] Mental Suffering Damages

Damages for emotional distress not recoverable in fraud action if claim for emotional distress is based on same conduct alleged to show fraud. Kruse v. Bank of Am. (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 38, 67, 248 Cal. Rptr. 217

General damages for mental pain and suffering are recoverable for deceit. Sprague v. Frank J. Sanders Lincoln Mercury, Inc. (1981) 120 Cal. App. 3d 412, 417, 174 Cal. Rptr. 608

[22] Negligent Misrepresentations

Allegations that defendant knew or could have known true facts, that defendant made false statement, and that plaintiff relied on it required to be pleaded in case of negligent misrepresentation. Stowe v. Fritzie Hotels, Inc. (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 416, 423, 282 P.2d 890

Representation to be actionable need not be made with knowledge of falsity, but need only be assertion, as fact, of something that is not true, by one who has no reasonable ground for believing it to be true. Gagne v. Bertran (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 481, 487-488, 275 P.2d 15 ; Muraoka v. Budget Rent-A-Car, Inc. (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 107, 119, 206 Cal. Rptr. 476 ; Wilke v. Coinway, Inc. (1967) 257 Cal. App. 2d 126, 136, 64 Cal. Rptr. 845

Professional who negligently performed soil tests to determine presence of fill and represented that soil was sound although it was not is liable for negligent misrepresentation. Gagne v. Bertran (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 481, 487-489, 275 P.2d 15

Investment bank sued by purchasers of securities for material omissions and "half-truths" contained in offering memorandum, which made numerous representations about established success of issuing company's business strategy and strong prospects going forward, but failed to mention company's recent poor quarter and "channel stuffing" with product that enabled company to inflate financial estimates for upcoming year, were sufficient to support action for negligent misrepresentation. OCM Principal Opportunities Fund, L.P. v. CIBC World Markets Corp. (2007) 157 Cal. App. 4th 835, 855, 68 Cal. Rptr. 3d 828

Stock investors stated causes of action for negligent and intentional misrepresentation against accounting firms by alleging that firms negligently or intentionally inflated value of corporation's assets and value in anticipation of merger with another corporation, knowing that reports and statements would be relied on by other parties such as investors. Murphy v. BDO Seidman, LLP (2003) 113 Cal. App. 4th 687, 695-696, 6 Cal. Rptr. 3d 770

If independent accountant prepares corporation's financial records, in addition to performing audit on records, accountant is not acting as independent auditor and may be liable for negligent misrepresentation to third parties, such as underwriter, who reasonably and foreseeably relied on financial records, audit, or both. Nutmeg Sec., Ltd. v. McGladrey & Pullen (2001) 92 Cal. App. 4th 1435, 1441-1444, 112 Cal. Rptr. 2d 657

False representation required to be positive assertion; tort of negligent misrepresentation does not arise from implied statements. Evan F. v. Hughson United Methodist Church (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 828, 841 n.2, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 748 ; Yanase v. Automobile Club. of So. Cal. (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 468, 473, 476, 260 Cal. Rptr. 513

Cause of action for negligent misrepresentation included within meaning of "fraud" for purposes of Civ. Code § 1668, prohibiting contractual waiver of liability for fraud (as well as willful injury to person or property of another). Blankenheim v. E. F. Hutton & Co. (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 1463, 1472-1473, 266 Cal. Rptr. 593 ; Continental Airlines, Inc. v. McDonnell Douglas Corp. (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 388, 404, 264 Cal. Rptr. 779

"Hold-harmless" agreement between stockbroker and customer violated Civ. Code § 1668, and therefore was ineffective to bar negligent misrepresentation action arising from investment losses. Blankenheim v. E. F. Hutton & Co. (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 1463, 1473, 266 Cal. Rptr. 593

Purported exculpatory clause in sales contract, in which buyer agreed to waive all claims for negligence, was ineffective by reason of Civ. Code § 1668 to bar negligent misrepresentation action alleging defect in airplane. Continental Airlines, Inc. v. McDonnell Douglas Corp. (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 388, 404, 264 Cal. Rptr. 779

Responsibility for negligent misrepresentation rests on existence of legal duty, imposed by contract, statute, or otherwise, owed by defendant to injured person. Eddy v. Sharp (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 858, 864, 245 Cal. Rptr. 211

One party to business transaction under duty to exercise reasonable care to disclose facts basic to transaction to other party, if party knows that other is acting under mistake regarding facts and would reasonably expect disclosure of those facts due to relationship between them, customs of trade, or other objective circumstances. Eddy v. Sharp (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 858, 864, 245 Cal. Rptr. 211

Negligent misrepresentation requires allegation that defendant made false representations honestly believing they were true, but having no reasonable ground for that belief. Wilhelm v. Pray, Price, Williams & Russell (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 1324, 1332-1333, 231 Cal. Rptr. 355

Person who makes statement that implies knowledge on that person's part, although in fact that person has no knowledge whether it is true or false, is guilty of fraud if statement proves to be false. Howell v. Courtesy Chevrolet, Inc. (1971) 16 Cal. App. 3d 391, 402, 94 Cal. Rptr. 33

Elements of cause of action for negligent misrepresentation. Christiansen v. Roddy (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 780, 785-786, 231 Cal. Rptr. 72

Endorser of product for gain liable to purchaser who relies on endorsement in purchasing product and is injured as result, if, as result of defendant's negligence, product was not as represented. Hanberry v. Hearst Corp. (1969) 276 Cal. App. 2d 680, 683, 81 Cal. Rptr. 519

Doctors liable for negligent misrepresentation concerning effectiveness of sterilization operation. Custodio v. Bauer (1967) 251 Cal. App. 2d 303, 314, 314 n. 8, 59 Cal. Rptr. 463

Even person who has no duty to speak has duty to speak truth if he or she does speak; person with no knowledge of facts liable for fraud and negligent misrepresentations made without reasonable grounds for believing them to be true. Balfour, Guthrie & Co. v. Hansen (1964) 227 Cal. App. 2d 173, 192-193, 38 Cal. Rptr. 525

Factors to be considered in determining whether defendant should be liable for negligent misrepresentations to person not in privity with defendant. De Zemplen v. Home Fed. Sav. & Loan Ass'n (1963) 221 Cal. App. 2d 197, 206, 34 Cal. Rptr. 334

[23] Opinion and Fact

An assertion that factually describes important characteristic of product is not seller's mere puffing and is actionable. Hauter v. Zogarts (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 104, 111-113, 120 Cal. Rptr. 681, 534 P.2d 377

Reliance on opinion justified if person making statement holds himself or herself out as expert, person to whom he or she speaks has hired him or her to supply information, and statement implies that person speaking knows facts that justify statement. Gagne v. Bertran (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 481, 489, 275 P.2d 15

Statement of law or opinion made by fiduciary to person in fiduciary relationship is actionable as misrepresentation. Katz v. Feldman (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 500, 504, 100 Cal. Rptr. 367 ; Harazim v. Lynam (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 127, 133, 72 Cal. Rptr. 670

Determination of whether statement is fact or opinion is for trier of fact if there is reasonable doubt. Pacesetter Homes, Inc. v. Brodkin (1970) 5 Cal. App. 3d 206, 212, 85 Cal. Rptr. 39

Opinion treated representation of fact if one expressing it does not in fact believe it to be true, if opinion amplifies false statement of fact, if opinion implies nonexistent factual basis, if opinion is expressed as fact, and if opinion is expressed by defendant having superior knowledge of subject. Pacesetter Homes, Inc. v. Brodkin (1970) 5 Cal. App. 3d 206, 211, 85 Cal. Rptr. 39

Superior knowledge that justifies reliance on statement of opinion means that party has held himself or herself out as particularly knowledgeable or that knowledge assumed to be possessed by defendant is motivation for plaintiff to enter into transaction; more than superior bargaining acumen required. Pacesetter Homes, Inc. v. Brodkin (1970) 5 Cal. App. 3d 206, 212, 85 Cal. Rptr. 39

Opinion misrepresenting facts on which it is based is actionable. Harazim v. Lynam (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 127, 133, 72 Cal. Rptr. 670 ; Wilke v. Coinway, Inc. (1967) 257 Cal. App. 2d 126, 136, 64 Cal. Rptr. 845

Misrepresentations of law by lay persons are insufficient to show actionable misrepresentations; but expressions of opinion are actionable if person making them holds himself or herself out as especially qualified. Harazim v. Lynam (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 127, 132, 72 Cal. Rptr. 670

Opinion actionable if affirmed as fact material to transaction rather than stated as opinion. Harazim v. Lynam (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 127, 132, 72 Cal. Rptr. 670 ; Mercer v. Elliott (1962) 208 Cal. App. 2d 275, 280, 25 Cal. Rptr. 217

Plaintiff not allowed to justifiably rely on mere statements of opinion. Wilke v. Coinway, Inc. (1967) 257 Cal. App. 2d 126, 136, 64 Cal. Rptr. 845

Representations as to value of goods are usually considered representations of opinion and are not actionable; value considered representation of fact if represented as fact. Clar v. Board of Trade (1958) 164 Cal. App. 2d 636, 645, 331 P.2d 89

Expression of opinion as to character and skill of another is not generally actionable, but is actionable if dishonestly made to one entitled to rely on it. Anderson v. Handley (1957) 149 Cal. App. 2d 184, 187, 308 P.2d 368 ; Ogier v. Pacific Oil & Gas Corp. (1955) 132 Cal. App. 2d 496, 506, 282 P.2d 574

Expression of opinion actionable if party making it has superior knowledge or special information. Ogier v. Pacific Oil & Gas Corp. (1955) 132 Cal. App. 2d 496, 506-507, 282 P.2d 574

[24] Pleading Requirements

Facts constituting fraud required to be specifically pleaded so that court can determine whether prima facie case has been alleged. Cooper v. Leslie Salt Co. (1969) 70 Cal. 2d 627, 636, 75 Cal. Rptr. 766, 451 P.2d 406

If plaintiffs relied on representations of defendant in purchasing option and expending sums in preparation for purchase of property, cause of action stated for damages for fraud and deceit. Collins v. Marvel Land Co. (1970) 13 Cal. App. 3d 34, 44, 91 Cal. Rptr. 291

Every element of cause of action for fraud required to be alleged both factually and specifically; policy of liberal construction of pleadings not available to sustain defective complaint for fraud. Goldrich v. Natural Y Surgical Specialties, Inc. (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 772, 782, 31 Cal. Rptr. 2d 162 ; Stansfield v. Starkey (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 59, 73, 269 Cal. Rptr. 337 ; Cooper v. Equity Gen. Ins. (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 1252, 1262, 268 Cal. Rptr. 692

Facts constituting fraud required to be set forth with particularity. La Vista Cemetery Assn. v. American Sav. & Loan Ass'n (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 365, 369, 90 Cal. Rptr. 722 ; Morton v. Loveman (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 712, 720, 73 Cal. Rptr. 623

Legal conclusions of fraud insufficient for complaint and facts constituting fraud required to be pleaded. Lesperance v. North Am. Aviation, Inc. (1963) 217 Cal. App. 2d 336, 344, 31 Cal. Rptr. 873

[25] Potential Plaintiffs

Writer of letter of recommendation owes to third persons duty not to misrepresent facts in describing qualifications and character of former employee, if making these misrepresentations would present substantial, foreseeable risk of physical injury to third persons [Randi W. v. Muroc Joint Unified Sch. Dist. (1997) 14 Cal. 4th 1066, 1081, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 263, 929 P.2d 582 (but no duty absent resulting physical injury or special relationship)].

Privity of contract not required to hold defendant liable for negligent misrepresentations not made directly to plaintiff. De Zemplen v. Home Fed. Sav. & Loan Ass'n (1963) 221 Cal. App. 2d 197, 206, 34 Cal. Rptr. 334

Factors to be considered in determining liability of defendant if negligent misrepresentations were not made directly to plaintiff. De Zemplen v. Home Fed. Sav. & Loan Ass'n (1963) 221 Cal. App. 2d 197, 206, 34 Cal. Rptr. 334

False representation made by one person with intention that it should come to attention of another person and be acted on and that is acted on to that other person's injury gives person so acting same right of relief as if representation had been made to him or her directly. Simone v. McKee (1956) 142 Cal. App. 2d 307, 313-314, 298 P.2d 667 ; Wice v. Schilling (1954) 124 Cal. App. 2d 735, 745, 269 P.2d 231

[26] Products Liability

Plaintiff injured by product that fails to perform as represented may properly combine causes of action for fraud, breach of express and implied warranties, and strict liability in tort based on defective design. Hauter v. Zogarts (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 104, 108, 120 Cal. Rptr. 681, 534 P.2d 377

Absent endorsement or sponsorship for economic gain, publisher of advertisement has no duty to investigate safety of advertised product; thus, no cause of action for fraud or negligent misrepresentation is stated against publisher based on injuries sustained from use of product. Walters v. Seventeen Magazine (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 1119, 1121-1122, 241 Cal. Rptr. 101

Action for fraudulent misrepresentations concerning piece of real property and house on it also included causes of action for rescission based on misrepresentation, negligent design and development of property, strict liability for defective design and manufacture, breach of warranties, failure of consideration, and mistake resulting in damages. Snelson v. Ondulando Highlands Corp. (1970) 5 Cal. App. 3d 243, 249, 84 Cal. Rptr. 800

Endorser of product for profit liable for negligent misrepresentation in endorsing product but not liable on warranty theory or strict liability in tort. Hanberry v. Hearst Corp. (1969) 276 Cal. App. 2d 680, 687, 81 Cal. Rptr. 519

[27] Promise Without Intention to Perform

[a] In General

Failure to perform promise does not create inference that defendant did not intend to perform when defendant made promise; although fraudulent intent often established by circumstantial evidence, something more than mere nonperformance required to prove defendant's intent not to perform. Tenzer v. Superscope, Inc. (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 18, 30, 216 Cal. Rptr. 130, 702 P.2d 212

Promise by real estate broker to buyer to use broker's daughter on loan application for credit purposes, with her name to be removed from title after close of escrow, was actionable fraud because broker had no intention of keeping promise, but was instead using buyer to provide funds for broker's acquisition of property in daughter's name. Warren v. Merrill (2006) 143 Cal. App. 4th 96, 110-111, 49 Cal. Rptr. 3d 122

Airplane manufacturer's representation that fuel tank would not rupture on impact was form of promissory fraud, in action brought by purchaser of airplane arising from destruction of airplane caused by rupture of fuel tank following damage to wing. Continental Airlines, Inc. v. McDonnell Douglas Corp. (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 388, 419 n.20, 264 Cal. Rptr. 779

Fraud based on promise without intention to perform established by buyer's testimony that he had no intention of putting up money to back purchase transaction. Manson v. Reed (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 1493, 1502-1504, 231 Cal. Rptr. 446

In malpractice action brought by sellers of business against their attorney for damages sustained when buyers sued sellers because of business liabilities not recorded on balance sheet, cross complaint by attorney against buyers' attorney stated cause of action for fraud based on allegations that buyers' attorney promised sellers' attorney, without intent to perform, that buyers would accept balance sheet as correct, rather than enforcing agreement's strict warranty that balance sheet was accurate. Cicone v. URS Corp. (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 194, 202-203, 227 Cal. Rptr. 887

Facts necessary for establishing fraud or deceit based on promise without intention to perform. Muraoka v. Budget Rent-A-Car, Inc. (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 107, 119, 206 Cal. Rptr. 476 ; Bondi v. Jewels by Edwar, Ltd. (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 672, 677, 73 Cal. Rptr. 494 ; Fowler v. Fowler (1964) 227 Cal. App. 2d 741, 747-748, 39 Cal. Rptr. 101

Promise implies intention to perform; lack of intention to perform is implied misrepresentation. Meyer v. Ford Motor Co. (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 90, 103, 79 Cal. Rptr. 816

Promise to constitute fraud required to be made in bad faith and without intent to perform, and required to touch substantive part of transaction. Harazim v. Lynam (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 127, 133, 72 Cal. Rptr. 670

Complaint for false promise required to plead facts to show intention of promisor to cause promisee to act in reliance on promise and contemporaneous intention not to perform promise clearly, unequivocally, and with particularity. Hills Transp. Co. v. Southwest Forest Industries, Inc. (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 702, 708, 72 Cal. Rptr. 441

Complaint based on false promise to enter into contract required by statute of frauds to be in writing required to be particularly specific. Hills Transp. Co. v. Southwest Forest Industries, Inc. (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 702, 707, 72 Cal. Rptr. 441

Promise made without intention to perform is actionable if other party relies on it as inducement. Brockway v. Heilman (1967) 250 Cal. App. 2d 807, 811, 58 Cal. Rptr. 772

To be fraudulent, promise required to have been without intent to perform at time it was made. Kett v. Graeser (1966) 241 Cal. App. 2d 571, 573, 50 Cal. Rptr. 727 ; Church of Merciful Saviour v. Volunteers of America, Inc. (1960) 184 Cal. App. 2d 851, 858-860, 8 Cal. Rptr. 48

Mere failure to perform promise made in good faith in absence of confidential relationship between parties is not fraud. Ampuero v. Luce (1945) 68 Cal. App. 2d 811, 817, 157 P.2d 899

[a] Statute of Frauds and Parol Evidence Rule

Licensed real estate broker not permitted to maintain action for fraud based on alleged oral promise to pay commission because licensed broker has presumed knowledge of statute of frauds and his or her reliance on such oral promise is therefore unreasonable as matter of law. American Int'l Enters., Inc. v. Federal Deposit Ins. Corp. (9th Cir. 1993) 3 F.3d 1263, 1270 (applying California law); Phillippe v. Shapell Industries (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 1247, 1270, 241 Cal. Rptr. 22, 743 P.2d 1279

Action for fraud maintainable if allegedly fraudulent promise is unenforceable as contract due to statute of frauds. Tenzer v. Superscope, Inc. (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 18, 29-31, 216 Cal. Rptr. 130, 702 P.2d 212

Evidence of false promise inconsistent with matter covered by written instrument is inadmissible under parol evidence rule; false promise that is independent of or consistent with matters covered by writing is admissible. Continental Airlines, Inc. v. McDonnell Douglas Corp. (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 388, 420-421, 264 Cal. Rptr. 779 ; Coast Bank v. Holmes (1971) 19 Cal. App. 3d 581, 590-591, 97 Cal. Rptr. 30

Plaintiff able to show false oral collateral promise made by defendant to induce plaintiff to enter into contract required to be in writing by statute of frauds. Kett v. Graeser (1966) 241 Cal. App. 2d 571, 573, 50 Cal. Rptr. 727

Fraud in obtaining instrument always allowed to be shown by parol evidence. Vogelsang v. Wolpert (1964) 227 Cal. App. 2d 102, 122, 38 Cal. Rptr. 440

[28] Proximate Cause

Individual shareholder of corporate loan applicant did not state cause of action for fraud against bank that denied loan request; individual's transfer, at bank's request, of controlling interest to person who was borrowing money from bank and reloaning it to plaintiff's corporation was not proximate cause of corporation's inability to arrange financing elsewhere, which in turn led to failure of business, because transfer could have been rescinded after loan application was denied. Kruse v. Bank of Am. (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 38, 62-65, 248 Cal. Rptr. 217

No liability attaches for fraud if only damages suffered by plaintiff were inevitable or resulted from unrelated causes; failure of bank to pay proceeds to borrower's other creditors was not actionable because cause of borrower's loss was self-created indebtedness and proceeds were turned over to borrower's trustee in bankruptcy. Kruse v. Bank of Am. (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 38, 60-62, 248 Cal. Rptr. 217

In case in which one company borrowed from bank to loan funds to second company, in which bank lacked confidence but promised to consider as loan candidate, bank's failure to disclose its lack of confidence to borrower was not proximate cause of borrower's losses to extent that second company repaid borrower. Kruse v. Bank of Am. (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 38, 53-54, 248 Cal. Rptr. 217

[29] Public Policy

Damages sought in action for fraud by nonbiological parent, for developing close relationship with child misrepresented to be his and for performing parental acts, were not damages that should be compensable under law in action for fraud. Nagy v. Nagy (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 1262, 1269-1270, 258 Cal. Rptr. 787

[30] Punitive Damages

[a] Generally

Punitive damages properly awarded to buyer of commercial real estate complex, against developer-seller that leased property after purchase, based on seller's breach of agreement to guarantee rents of tenants. Las Palmas Associates v. Las Palmas Center Associates (1991) 235 Cal. App. 3d 1220, 1255, 1260, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 301 (allowing punitive damages on buyer's cross complaint in declaratory relief action by seller, but reducing amount based on relation to compensatory damages)

Claim for punitive damages was mere incident to causes of action and was not basis for cause of action. Kruse v. Bank of Am. (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 38, 62, 248 Cal. Rptr. 217

Fraud alone is adequate basis under Civ. Code § 3294 for awarding punitive damages. Orient Handel v. United States Fid. & Guar. Co. (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 684, 697, 237 Cal. Rptr. 667 (punitive damages award reversed because finding of fraud reversed); Walker v. Signal Co., Inc. (1978) 84 Cal. App. 3d 982, 996, 149 Cal. Rptr. 119

Pleading of fraud alone is sufficient to seek punitive damages; allegation that fraud was motivated by malicious desire to inflict injury is unnecessary. Stevens v. Superior Court (1986) 180 Cal. App. 3d 605, 610, 225 Cal. Rptr. 624

Punitive damages for fraudulent acts of agents or employees is proper if awarded against parties responsible for fraud, including those parties who ratify fraud after its commission. Walker v. Signal Co., Inc. (1978) 84 Cal. App. 3d 982, 999, 149 Cal. Rptr. 119

Punitive damages properly awarded in action for fraud in inducement to enter contract, which is tort action, although punitive damages may not be awarded in action for breach of contract. Kuchta v. Allied Builders Corp. (1971) 21 Cal. App. 3d 541, 549, 98 Cal. Rptr. 588

Punitive damages properly awarded if necessary allegations are in complaint, listed in pretrial conference order, there is evidence to support them, and verdict assesses compensatory damages and punitive damages separately to show that compensatory damages have been awarded. Sierra Nat'l Bank v. Brown (1971) 18 Cal. App. 3d 98, 103, 95 Cal. Rptr. 742

Punitive damages even in fraud action not recoverable unless there are also actual and substantial compensatory damages. Bezaire v. Fidelity & Deposit Co. (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 888, 892, 91 Cal. Rptr. 142

Fraud alone is ground for awarding punitive damages, and fraud allowed to be either express or implied. Horn v. Guaranty Chevrolet Motors (1969) 270 Cal. App. 2d 477, 484, 75 Cal. Rptr. 871

If plaintiff rescinds contract, waives fraud damages, and sues on contract, or if plaintiff elects to sue on common count, no punitive damages allowed. Brockway v. Heilman (1967) 250 Cal. App. 2d 807, 812, 58 Cal. Rptr. 772

If essence of action is fraud rather than breach of contract as such, exemplary damages properly allowed. Brockway v. Heilman (1967) 250 Cal. App. 2d 807, 812, 58 Cal. Rptr. 772

[b] Liability of Employers

Punitive damages award against brokerage firm whose employee broker defrauded securities purchasers was proper because of firm's own malice as evidenced by its failure to investigate prior suits against broker for similar conduct in reckless disregard of rights of others and failure to supervise or, on basis of firm's ratification of broker' acts, by failure to act when it knew of broker's fraudulent activity. Seymour v. Summa Vista Cinema, Inc. (9th Cir. 1987) 809 F.2d 1385, 1388 (applying California law; see also Krusi v. Bear, Stearns & Co. (1983) 144 Cal. App. 3d 664, 678-689, 192 Cal. Rptr. 793 (reckless disregard theory); Hobbs v. Bateman Eichler, Hill Richards, Inc. (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 174, 193-194, 210 Cal. Rptr. 387 (ratification theory)

Employer not liable in punitive damages for fraudulent acts of agents or employees unless employer has authorized acts, except if employer knowingly ratifies fraud after its commission or if fraud was committed by agent or employee acting in managerial capacity. Kuchta v. Allied Builders Corp. (1971) 21 Cal. App. 3d 541, 549, 98 Cal. Rptr. 588

Punitive damages and interest properly awarded in same case. Vogelsang v. Wolpert (1964) 227 Cal. App. 2d 102, 125, 38 Cal. Rptr. 440

[31] Required Intent

Intent to deceive not essential element of cause of action for deceit; required intent is intent to induce action. Gagne v. Bertran (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 481, 488 n.5, 275 P.2d 15

Intent to induce plaintiff to alter his or her position may be inferred from fact that defendant made representation with knowledge plaintiff would act in reliance on it. Gagne v. Bertran (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 481, 488, 275 P.2d 15

Intent to induce reliance allowed to be established from conduct of parties. Santoro v. Carbone (1972) 22 Cal. App. 3d 721, 728, 99 Cal. Rptr. 488

Intent usually proved by inference from fact of concealment or misrepresentation of material facts. Horn v. Guaranty Chevrolet Motors (1969) 270 Cal. App. 2d 477, 483, 75 Cal. Rptr. 871

[32] Suppression and Failure to Disclose

Executor has fiduciary relationship to all persons having interest in estate; executor's misrepresentation and concealment was extrinsic fraud supporting motion to set aside court's order regarding probate of will. Estate of Sanders (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 607, 616-619, 221 Cal. Rptr. 432, 710 P.2d 232

Credit union not liable for providing summary opinion that customer's creditworthiness was "satisfactory," even though customer maintained almost continuous overdrafts that it eventually covered, because inquiries from other lender were general, couched in form of checklist, and did not seek more specific information. Lease & Rental Mgmt. Corp. v. Arrowhead Cent. Credit Union (2005) 126 Cal. App. 4th 1052, 1061, 24 Cal. Rptr. 3d 483

Corporate president and stockholder, who undertook to provide all relevant financial information about corporation prior to reaching agreement to purchase all shares owned by other stockholder, had duty to disclose new product that corporation was about to sell, even if profits from sales of new product could not be accurately predicted. Persson v. Smart Inventions, Inc. (2005) 125 Cal. App. 4th 1141, 1164-1165, 23 Cal. Rptr. 3d 335

Because attorneys for corporation negotiating merger with second company revealed to shareholders of second company that their client was preparing third-party financing transaction, attorneys could be liable for fraud for intentionally concealing from those shareholders that financing transaction included issuing shares of stock that would seriously dilute value of stock that shareholders would be receiving as part of proposed merger. Vega v. Jones, Day, Reavis & Pogue (2004) 121 Cal. App. 4th 282, 292-294, 17 Cal. Rptr. 3d 26

Pub. Util. Code § 2889.5 imposes several steps of disclosure that phone company must take before changing consumer's telephone service provider, and failure to comply with statutory requirements can constitute fraudulent concealment, even if change is subsequently reflected in consumer's phone bill. Lovejoy v. AT&T Corp. (2004) 119 Cal. App. 4th 151, 158-162, 14 Cal. Rptr. 3d 117

No relationship existed sufficient to impose duty to disclose to plaintiffs that defendants were undercover journalists and that hidden cameras would record conversations in public restaurant to be used as part of televised report on matter of public interest. Wilkins v. National Broad. Co. (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 1066, 1082-1083, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 329

If seller transfers real property to relocation management company with knowledge that property will be resold to future purchaser, seller has duty under Civ. Code § 1102 et seq. and common law to make full disclosure of facts that materially affect value or desirability of property, and duty to disclose runs to ultimate purchaser and not just to relocation management company; relocation management company does not owe buyer duty to investigate or disclose if company has no knowledge of relevant, material facts and lacks knowledge of any misrepresentation made by original sellers. Shapiro v. Sutherland (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 1534, 1546-1550, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 101

Tenants who sought to compel beneficial (nonrecord) owners of subject properties to disclose their ownership did not state cause of action for fraudulent concealment because duty under Civ. Code § 1962 to disclose owners of dwelling applies only to record owners. People v. Highland Fed. Sav. & Loan (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 1692, 1719-1720, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 555 (concealment of fact not actionable under Civ. Code § 1710 unless defendant has duty to disclose)

Elements of fraudulent nondisclosure are: (1) nondisclosure by defendant of facts materially affecting value or desirability of property; (2) defendant's knowledge of facts and plaintiff's ignorance of or inability to ascertain facts; (3) defendant's intention to induce action by plaintiff; (4) inducement of plaintiff to act by reason of nondisclosure; and (5) resulting damage. Continental Airlines, Inc. v. McDonnell Douglas Corp. (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 388, 404, 407-408, 264 Cal. Rptr. 779 (jury instructions omitting elements regarding intent and reliance constituted reversible error); La Jolla Village Homeowners' Ass'n v. Superior Court (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 1131, 1151-1152, 261 Cal. Rptr. 146 (complaint insufficient to establish elements of cause of action)

Circumstances in which nondisclosure or concealment may constitute actionable fraud are: (1) defendant is in fiduciary relationship with plaintiff; (2) defendant had exclusive knowledge of material facts not known to plaintiff; (3) defendant actively conceals material fact from plaintiff; and (4) defendant makes partial representation but suppresses some material facts. Heliotis v. Schuman (1986) 181 Cal. App. 3d 646, 650-651, 226 Cal. Rptr. 509

Cause of action for fraud and deceit was stated because complaint alleged that hospital intentionally concealed from patient that unlicensed, foreign physician was authorized by hospital to function as staff physician without proper medical qualifications and without necessary supervision required by Bus. & Prof. Code § 2112. Stevens v. Superior Court (1986) 180 Cal. App. 3d 605, 610, 225 Cal. Rptr. 624

Real estate owner/broker who intentionally conceals material facts and makes material false representations to purchaser is liable for fraudulent conduct. Prichard v. Reitz (1986) 178 Cal. App. 3d 465, 469, 223 Cal. Rptr. 734

For purposes of Civ. Code § 1710(3), bank owed no common law or statutory duty to disclose, to noncustomer to whom depositor issued checks, bank's suspicions of check kiting scheme involving depositor's accounts, because imposition of duty would result in loss of privacy to depositor, expense, and commercial havoc. Chicago Title Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1985) 174 Cal. App. 3d 1142, 1159, 220 Cal. Rptr. 507

Absent existing duty to volunteer information, and notice of that duty, mere failure to disclose is not fraud; criminal defendant who pleaded guilty to misdemeanor while felony case pending on same facts was not under duty to disclose outstanding felony to court because nothing in record indicated defendant knew that prosecutor did not read instruction in file to object to misdemeanor plea; contention that defendant's fraud abrogated double jeopardy bar to second prosecution was rejected. Crayton v. Superior Court (1985) 165 Cal. App. 3d 443, 447, 451, 211 Cal. Rptr. 605

Seller under duty to disclose facts to buyer if seller knows of facts materially affecting value or desirability of real property that are accessible only to seller and also knows that such facts are not known to, or within reach of diligent attention and observation of, buyer. Reed v. King (1983) 145 Cal. App. 3d 261, 265, 193 Cal. Rptr. 130

Fraud and deceit consist of suppression of fact by one bound to disclose it or by one who gives information or other facts that are likely to mislead for want of communication of that fact. Outboard Marine Corp. v. Superior Court (1975) 52 Cal. App. 3d 30, 37, 124 Cal. Rptr. 852

Duty of disclosure arises from existence of any principal-agent relationship, whether compensated or gratuitous. St. James Armenian Church of Los Angeles v. Kurkjian (1975) 47 Cal. App. 3d 547, 551, 121 Cal. Rptr. 214

Fiduciary relationship gives rise to duty to disclose material facts; to fail to do so is actionable fraud even without active suppression of facts. Moe v. Transamerica Title Ins. Co. (1971) 21 Cal. App. 3d 289, 306, 98 Cal. Rptr. 547 ; Black v. Shearson, Hammill & Co. (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 362, 367-368, 72 Cal. Rptr. 157

Seller of real property knowing of facts materially affecting value or desirability of property is under duty to disclose these facts to buyer. Snelson v. Ondulando Highlands Corp. (1970) 5 Cal. App. 3d 243, 251, 84 Cal. Rptr. 800

Concealment of fact that car offered for sale as new had been stolen and stripped before being reconditioned was deceit. Horn v. Guaranty Chevrolet Motors (1969) 270 Cal. App. 2d 477, 482, 75 Cal. Rptr. 871

Failure to disclose that land is filled was fraud. Oakes v. McCarthy Co. (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 231, 261, 73 Cal. Rptr. 127

Stockbroker has fiduciary duty to his or her customers; existence of conflicting duty to others does not prevent liability to customers. Black v. Shearson, Hammill & Co. (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 362, 367-368, 72 Cal. Rptr. 157

As general rule, seller not in confidential relationship with buyer is not under duty to make full disclosure concerning object being sold. Brownlee v. Vang (1965) 235 Cal. App. 2d 465, 477, 45 Cal. Rptr. 458

Person who undertakes to speak is bound not only to tell truth but not to suppress or conceal facts that materially qualify those stated. Brownlee v. Vang (1965) 235 Cal. App. 2d 465, 477, 45 Cal. Rptr. 458

Vendor who undertakes to speak has duty to make complete disclosure. McCue v. Bruce Enterprises, Inc. (1964) 228 Cal. App. 2d 21, 27-28, 39 Cal. Rptr. 125

Concealment of existence of easement is actionable fraud. Carroll v. Dungey (1963) 223 Cal. App. 2d 247, 250, 35 Cal. Rptr. 681

Facts concealed required to be material facts affecting transaction in order for there to be actionable fraud. Pacific Odorite Corp. v. Gersh (1949) 94 Cal. App. 2d 174, 178, 210 P.2d 318

[33] Venue

In action for damages for tort of deceit, proper venue is county of defendant's residence. Kaluzok v. Brisson (1946) 27 Cal. 2d 760, 764, 167 P.2d 481

Action for fraud triable in county of residence of defendant; even if cause of action for relief in tort is joined with cause of action concerning title to real property, defendant entitled to have action tried in his or her county of residence.
Claycomb v. Caronna (1952) 113 Cal. App. 2d 561, 565-566, 248 P.2d 779

PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

23-269 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 269.70

§ 269.70 Plaintiff's Checklist

NOTE:
The following checklist is illustrative only of the basic points that counsel for a plaintiff in a deceit action should cover.

[1] Facts to Be Ascertained

NOTE:
Not all of the following facts will be ascertainable from the client in the initial interview. Subsequent interviews may be required, or it may be necessary to ascertain the facts from other persons, including the potential defendant, by use of discovery proceedings.

1. Facts relating to the plaintiff:

a. Name, address, and telephone number of the plaintiff.

b. Capacity of the plaintiff, such as minor, adult, corporation, unincorporated association, partner in partnership, or public employee.

c. Additional facts, as desired, relating to the plaintiff's stability and financial solvency such as employment status, prior residences, credit, bank, and personal references.

2. Facts relating to the defendant:

a. Name and address of each potential defendant.

b. Capacity of each potential defendant such as corporation, unincorporated association, agent, employee, public entity, public employer, public employee, licensed professional, or professional corporation.

c. Facts relating to professional status of the defendant. (If the defendant has professional knowledge with regard to the subject matter of the misrepresentations, the defendant may be liable for negligent misrepresentation concerning any statements that prove to be false [see Custodio v. Bauer (1967) 251 Cal. App. 2d 303, 314, 314 n. 8, 59 Cal. Rptr. 463] . The plaintiff will also have a greater right due to the defendant's superior knowledge to justifiably rely on the defendant's statements [see Hartong v. Partake, Inc. (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 942, 966, 72 Cal. Rptr. 722] .)

3. Facts relating to possible confidential or fiduciary relationship between the plaintiff and the defendant. The existence of a confidential or fiduciary relationship will determine whether the plaintiff can bring an action for constructive fraud [see Civ. Code § 1573], in which case it will be unnecessary to show the existence of actual fraud [Estate of Arbuckle (1950) 98 Cal. App. 2d 562, 568, 220 P.2d 950] , and the measure of damages will be the more liberal measure applicable to such actions [see Civ. Code §§ 1709, 3333; Simone v. McKee (1956) 142 Cal. App. 2d 307, 315, 298 P.2d 667 ; see also §§ 269.22, 269.27]. The existence of a confidential or fiduciary relationship will also give rise to a duty on the part of the defendant to disclose material facts to the plaintiff, even in the absence of active suppression or concealment, creating a case of actual fraud and deceit [Moe v. Transamerica Title Ins. Co. (1971) 21 Cal. App. 3d 289, 306, 98 Cal. Rptr. 547 ; see Civ. Code § 1710(3)]. The existence of a fiduciary relationship will also give the plaintiff a right to rely justifiably on representations made by the defendant without the duty of further inquiry [Davis v. Kahn (1970) 7 Cal. App. 3d 868, 878, 86 Cal. Rptr. 872] .

NOTE:

It is not necessary that the relationship between the plaintiff and the defendant be an actual fiduciary relationship. In some cases, the necessary duty can arise from a relationship of actual confidence and trust between the parties [Feeney v. Howard (1889) 79 Cal. 525, 529, 21 P. 984] .

4. In cases involving fraudulent statements:

a. The precise words that were spoken or written by the defendant(s).

b. The actual facts.

c. The date on which the misrepresentation was made.

d. The name of the person making the representation, and, if the person was an employee or officer of a corporation or business, the exact position held by that person. If the defendant is a public employee or entity, whether the misrepresentation was made with actual malice, fraud, or corruption, in the sense of a conscious intent to deceive, vex, annoy, or harm the plaintiff [Schonfeld v. City of Vallejo (1974) 50 Cal. App. 3d 401, 409, 123 Cal. Rptr. 669] .

e. The circumstances surrounding the misrepresentation, such as whether it was made during a business transaction, negotiations for a sale, social occasion, in an advertisement concerning a product, or in another kind of document.

f. If the misrepresentation was intentional or negligent, that is, whether there is evidence that the defendant knew the statement to be false. (In many cases it is advisable to plead counts for both intentional and negligent misrepresentation.)

g. Whether the misrepresentation also concerned the defendant's intention to perform some act in the future, and therefore possibly also was a promise made without the intention to perform it at the time it was made [see Civ. Code § 1710(4)].

5. In cases involving a failure to disclose information that the defendant had a duty to disclose or the suppression of a fact by one who is bound to disclose it or who gives information or other facts that are likely to mislead for want of communication of that fact [Civ. Code § 1710(3)].

a. Whether the defendant had a confidential or fiduciary relationship with the plaintiff, in which case the defendant had a duty to disclose the fact and not merely to refrain from active suppression of the fact, giving rise to an action for constructive fraud [see Civ. Code § 1573].

b. Whether the defendant was, by reason of a confidential or fiduciary relationship or other business or personal relationship between the plaintiff and the defendant, bound to disclose a fact that the defendant suppressed [Civ. Code § 1710(3)]:
I. Was there a fiduciary relationship?

ii. Was the defendant a seller of property aware of facts not known or discoverable by buyer [Snelson v. Ondulando Highlands Corp. (1970) 5 Cal. App. 3d 243, 251, 84 Cal. Rptr. 800] ?

iii. Did the defendant undertake to speak at all concerning the transaction but suppress facts that materially qualified the facts revealed [Brownlee v. Vang (1965) 235 Cal. App. 2d 465, 477, 45 Cal. Rptr. 458] ?

6. Facts relating to justifiable reliance by the plaintiff:

a. Did the plaintiff actually believe the defendant's representations?

b. Did the plaintiff undertake an independent investigation [see Snelson v. Ondulando Highlands Corp. (1970) 5 Cal. App. 3d 243, 252, 84 Cal. Rptr. 800 ; Mercer v. Elliott (1962) 208 Cal. App. 2d 275, 279, 25 Cal. Rptr. 217] ?

c. Did any previous acts of the defendant arouse the reasonable suspicion of the plaintiff [see American Air Equip., Inc. v. Pacific Employers Ins. Co. (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 322, 325, 327-328, 112 Cal. Rptr. 366 ; Roland v. Hubenka (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 215, 255, 90 Cal. Rptr. 490] ?

d. Did seller verbally or through correcting suspected defects reassure the plaintiff as to his or her trustworthiness [Brownlee v. Vang (1965) 235 Cal. App. 2d 465, 474, 45 Cal. Rptr. 458] ?

e. Did the relationship between the plaintiff and the defendant justify the plaintiff's reliance [Davis v. Kahn (1970) 7 Cal. App. 3d 868, 878, 86 Cal. Rptr. 872] ?

7. Facts relating to existence and amount of damages:

a. The relationship between any damages and the plaintiff's reliance on the defendant's fraudulent representations [see R.D. Reeder Lathing Co. v. Cypress Ins. Co. (1970) 3 Cal. App. 3d 995, 999, 84 Cal. Rptr. 98] .

b. If the fraud involved the sale, purchase, or exchange of property [see Civ. Code § 3343]:

I. The difference between the value of the property as represented and its actual value [ see Civ. Code § 3343].

ii. If the property was purchased for profit, loss of reasonably anticipated profits [see Civ. Code § 3343(a)].

iii. Any amounts reasonably expended in reliance on the fraud [see Civ. Code § 3343(a)].

iv. Compensation for loss of use and enjoyment [see Civ. Code § 3343(a)].

v. Other additional damages such as amounts spent in an attempt to mitigate damages [see Hartong v. Partake, Inc. (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 942, 968, 72 Cal. Rptr. 722] and loss of earnings [see Lawson v. Town & Country Shops, Inc. (1958) 159 Cal. App. 2d 196, 205, 323 P.2d 843] .

c. If the fraud involved a breach of duty, an amount that will compensate the plaintiff for any damages suffered [see Civ. Code §§ 1709, 3333].

d. If the fraud involved a situation other than the purchase, sale, or exchange of property, such as an uncompleted business deal, an amount that will compensate the plaintiff for any damages suffered [see Block v. Tobin (1975) 45 Cal. App. 3d 214, 220, 119 Cal. Rptr. 288] .

e. Interest on damages [see Civ. Code § 3288].

f. Punitive damages [see Civ. Code § 3294].

[2] Documents to Be Obtained

NOTE:
Not all of the following documents will be obtained from the client in the first interview. Subsequent interviews may be required, or, if circumstances permit, the documents might be mailed to the attorney. Also, it might be necessary to obtain these documents from persons other than the client.

1. Written misrepresentations: Copies of any written documents, such as contracts, letters, or escrow agreements, containing the fraudulent misrepresentations or promises of the defendant. Misrepresentations may also appear in published advertisements, sales literature, billboards, and other public places, and counsel will want to have copies or photographs of such misrepresentations made immediately.

2. Spoken misrepresentations: Declarations from persons who heard the defendant utter the misrepresentations. Written memoranda concerning these misrepresentations. Tapes of any radio or television broadcasts containing material misrepresentations, if appropriate.

3. Documents showing items and amounts of damages suffered by the plaintiff.

[3] Additional Counts and Causes of Action

1. Facts giving rise to a cause of action for damages for fraud and deceit might also give rise to one or more of the following causes of action, among others, that counsel might want to consider:

a. If a fiduciary has taken a secret profit, in addition to an action for fraudulent concealment of the profit and a count based on any affirmative misrepresentations concerning it, the plaintiff may wish to bring an action for an accounting. For procedure and forms, see Ch. 7, Accounting, Action for.

b. Counsel may wish to waive the tort action and sue on a common count for money had and received [City Bank of San Diego v. Ramage (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 570, 585, 587, 72 Cal. Rptr. 273] . See generally Ch. 121, Common Counts .

c. If the defendant has made fraudulent misrepresentations concerning a consumer product, counsel should consider counts for intentional and negligent misrepresentations and for concealment of facts, and separate causes of action for strict liability in tort, breach of warranty, and negligent design and manufacture [see Hauter v. Zogarts (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 104, 108, 120 Cal. Rptr. 681, 534 P.2d 377 ; Snelson v. Ondulando Highlands Corp. (1970) 5 Cal. App. 3d 243, 249, 84 Cal. Rptr. 800] .

d. If the defendant's fraud was the making of a promise without the intent to perform at the time it was made, the promise may also be a part of a contract that has been breached, giving rise to a cause of action for breach of contract. For discussion and forms for damages for breach of contract, see Ch. 140, Contracts .

e. Fraud may also be the basis for an equitable action for rescission [Santoro v. Carbone (1972) 22 Cal. App. 3d 721, 728-729, 99 Cal. Rptr. 488] . For discussion and forms related to rescission and restitution, see Ch. 490, Rescission and Restitution .

f. Property obtained through fraud and deceit may become the subject of a constructive trust through an equitable proceeding. For discussion and forms related to the imposition of a constructive trust, see Ch. 561, Trusts: Constructive Trusts .

g. If a deed or instrument has been obtained through fraud, the equitable proceeding for cancellation of the instrument or an action to quiet title may be appropriate. For discussion and forms related to such proceedings, see Ch. 107, Cancellation of Instruments and Ch. 482, Quieting Title .

h. If one party to a written agreement has justifiably relied on the other's false representations that the instrument represents the actual agreement between the parties, the defrauded party may have the instrument reformed to reflect the true agreement [see Security-First Nat'l Bank v. Earp (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 774, 777-778, 122 P.2d 900] . For a discussion and form for reformation of instruments, see Ch. 488, Reformation of Instruments .

[4] Essential Allegations for the Complaint

1. If the defendant has made an intentional misrepresentation:

a. The false representation made by the defendant [see Scafidi v. Western Loan & Bldg. Co. (1946) 72 Cal. App. 2d 550, 558, 165 P.2d 260] ;

b. The falsity of the representation made by the defendant [see McDougall v. Roberts (1919) 43 Cal. App. 553, 556, 185 P. 483] . This element is normally shown by allegations of the exact false representation and the actual facts, so that the necessary element of the materiality of the representation is also shown in the complaint [see Adkins v. Wyckoff (1957) 152 Cal. App. 2d 684, 689, 313 P.2d 592] ;

c. The defendant's knowledge of the falsity of the representation [see Civ. Code § 1710(1); Harazim v. Lynam (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 127, 130, 72 Cal. Rptr. 670] ;

d. The defendant's intent to induce the plaintiff to rely and to defraud and deceive the plaintiff [see Mirkin v. Wasserman (1993) 5 Cal. 4th 1082, 1100, 23 Cal. Rptr. 2d 101, 858 P.2d 568 ; Hale v. George A. Hormel & Co. (1975) 48 Cal. App. 3d 73, 82-86, 121 Cal. Rptr. 144] ;

e. Actual and justifiable reliance by the plaintiff [see Harazim v. Lynam (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 127, 130, 72 Cal. Rptr. 670] ;

f. The plaintiff's damage caused by the defendant's representation and the plaintiff's reliance on it [see Zumbrun v. University of Southern California (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 1, 12, 101 Cal. Rptr. 499] .

2. If the defendant has made a negligent misrepresentation, the same allegations are required as in the case of an intentional misrepresentation, except:

a. The defendant need not have been aware of the falsity of the misrepresentation. The plaintiff needs only to allege facts showing that the defendant made the statement without reasonable grounds for believing it to be true [see Civ. Code § 1710(2); Gagne v. Bertran (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 481, 487-488, 275 P.2d 15] .

b. The defendant need not have intended to defraud and deceive the plaintiff. The plaintiff needs only to allege facts showing that the defendant intended to induce action by the plaintiff in reliance on the representation [Gagne v. Bertran (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 481, 488 n. 5, 275 P.2d 15] .

3. If the deceit consists of a failure to disclose or a concealment of a material fact [Civ. Code § 1710(3)]:

a. Facts showing that the defendant was bound to disclose the fact that the defendant suppressed [see Civ. Code § 1710(3)];

b. Information revealed by the defendant that was likely to mislead for want of communication of a fact that the defendant suppressed [see Civ. Code § 1710(3); McCue v. Bruce Enterprises, Inc. (1964) 228 Cal. App. 2d 21, 27-28, 39 Cal. Rptr. 125] ;

c. Justifiable reliance by the plaintiff resulting in damages (see D(1)(e), above).

4. If the defendant has made a promise without the intention to perform it at the time it was made:

a. Promise made by the defendant without the intention to perform it at the time it was made [see Bondi v. Jewels by Edwar, Ltd. (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 672, 677, 73 Cal. Rptr. 494 ; Hills Transp. Co. v. Southwest Forest Industries, Inc. (1968) 266 Cal. App.

2d 702, 707, 72 Cal. Rptr. 441] .

b. Intent of the defendant to induce action by the plaintiff [see Bondi v. Jewels by Edwar, Ltd. (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 672, 677, 73 Cal. Rptr. 494] .

c. Nonperformance of the promise by the defendant [see Bondi v. Jewels by Edwar, Ltd. (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 672, 677, 73 Cal. Rptr. 494] .

d. Justifiable reliance by the plaintiff resulting in damages [see Bondi v. Jewels by Edwar, Ltd. (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 672, 677, 73 Cal. Rptr. 494] .

5. If the action for damages is based on constructive fraud [Civ. Code § 1573]:

a. Fiduciary or confidential relationship between the plaintiff and the defendant [see Feeney v. Howard (1889) 79 Cal. 525, 529, 21 P. 984 ; Guthrie v. Times-Mirror Co. (1975) 51 Cal. App. 3d 879, 889, 124 Cal. Rptr. 577] .

b. A material misstatement, failure to disclose facts, or other breach of duty by the defendant, even in the absence of fraudulent intent to deceive [see Ford v. Cournale (1973) 36 Cal. App. 3d 172, 182, 111 Cal. Rptr. 334 ; Twomey v. Mitchum, Jones & Templeton, Inc. (1968) 262 Cal. App. 2d 690, 707, 69 Cal. Rptr. 222 ; Cardozo v. Bank of Am. (1953) 116 Cal. App. 2d 833, 839, 254 P.2d 949] .

c. Reliance by the plaintiff and resulting damages [see Civ. Code § 1573; Twomey v. Mitchum, Jones & Templeton, Inc. (1968) 262 Cal. App. 2d 690, 710-711, 69 Cal. Rptr. 222] .

NOTE:
Constructive fraud usually involves actual fraud and deceit as well, whether the defendant has misrepresented his or her intention to act as a fiduciary for the plaintiff [see Civ. Code § 1710(4)], concealed a profit that he or she was bound to disclose [Civ. Code § 1710(3)], or misrepresented the amount of a profit obtained on the plaintiff's account or other fact [Civ. Code § 1710(1)].

PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

23-269 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 269.71

§ 269.71 Defendant's Checklist

NOTE:
The following checklist is illustrative only of the basic points that counsel for a defendant in a fraud and deceit action should cover.

[1] Facts to Be Ascertained

NOTE:
Not all of the following facts will be ascertainable from the client in the initial interview. Subsequent interviews may be required or it may be necessary to ascertain the facts from others, including the plaintiff, by use of discovery proceedings.

1. Facts relating to the defendant:

a. Name, address, and telephone number of the defendant.

b. Capacity of the defendant such as corporation, unincorporated association, agent, employee, public entity, public employer, public employee, partner in partnership, or some other capacity.

NOTE:
The defendant's capacity will generally be revealed by the complaint. Nevertheless, counsel will wish to confirm the allegation with his or her client. Of course, if the capacity is not revealed by the complaint, counsel will wish to ascertain it.

c. Additional facts, as desired relating to the defendant's stability and financial solvency such as employment status, prior residences, credit, bank, and personal references.

2. Facts required for the answer:

NOTE:
Counsel should advise his or her client not to discuss the case with any third person.

a. Date, manner, and place of service of the complaint and summons.

b. Allegations of the complaint: Ascertain which of the facts alleged in the complaint are true, which ones are false, and which ones the defendant does not know the truth or falsity of.

[2] Affirmative Defenses

NOTE:
Affirmative defenses can be raised by demurrer, as well as by answer, if they appear on the face of the complaint or from matters of which the court must or may take judicial notice [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10, 430.30]

1. Statute of limitations Code Civ. Proc. § 338(d).

2. Statute of frauds. See Ch. 140, Contracts , and Ch. 530, Statute of Frauds , for discussion and forms relating to this defense. In actions for deceit, the statute of frauds [Civ. Code § 1624] may be used as a defense to an action for a promise made without the intention to perform it [Civ. Code § 1710(4)] if the promise was also contractual. The plaintiff cannot get around the statute of frauds by alleging that the defendant's contractual promise involving an oral contract required to be in writing was a fraudulent promise made without any intention of performing it [Kett v. Graeser (1966) 241 Cal. App. 2d 571, 573, 50 Cal. Rptr. 727 ; but see § 269.14[5][b]].

3. Negligence. Although it is fairly certain that the plaintiff's negligence is not a defense even to a negligently made misrepresentation by the defendant, the defendant may wish to plead facts showing the plaintiff's negligence. This issue is closely connected to that of whether or not the plaintiff's reliance on the defendant's representation was justified [see §§ 269.16 (justifiable reliance), 269.31[2] (plaintiff's negligence)].

4. There are other matters that the defendant's counsel will want to keep in mind that, while not affirmative defenses, counter the plaintiff's case. For example, the defendant will want to show that the plaintiff's reliance on the defendant's statements was not justified or that the plaintiff did not in fact rely on the defendant's representations, as, for example, if the plaintiff made a complete investigation of the subject matter, and learned that the defendant's representations were false [Mercer v. Elliott (1962) 208 Cal. App. 2d 275, 279, 25 Cal. Rptr. 217] .

PART V. FORMS

23-269 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 269.90

§ 269.90 Judicial Council Trial Court Pleading Form [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.12]--Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10] for Damages [Civ. Code §§ 3333, 3343] for Fraud and Deceit [Civ. Code §§ 1709, 1710; Cal. Judicial Council Forms PLD-PI-001, PLD-C-001(3)]

[2] Judicial Council Trial Court Forms

Code Civ. Proc. § 425.12 requires that the Judicial Council develop and approve official forms for use in California trial courts for any complaint, cross complaint, or answer in any action based on personal injury, property damage, wrongful death, unlawful detainer, breach of contract, or fraud. Use of these forms is optional [see Code Civ. Proc. § 425.12].

[3] Use of Form

This complaint may be used in any action for deceit [see Civ. Code §§ 1709, 1710]. It consists of the Judicial Council complaint for personal injury, property damage, or wrongful death to which a Judicial Council fraud cause of action has been attached [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 425.12; Cal. Judicial Council Forms PLD-PI-001, PLD-C-001(3)].

This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

The approved cause of action for fraud is listed with the contracts forms [see Cal. Judicial Council Form PLD-C-001(3)], but any approved cause of action may be attached to any approved form of complaint [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1.45(b)]. Thus, it appears to be appropriate to state a tort cause of action for deceit by filing the fraud cause of action attached to the general complaint for personal injury, property damage, or wrongful death.

The other forms in this chapter contain allegations that may be incorporated into the fraud cause of action, as appropriate.

[4] Filling Out General Complaint

For a detailed explanation for filling out the Judicial Council form of complaint for personal injury, property damage, and wrongful death generally, see the Comments to that form in Ch. 380, Negligence . Information particularly applicable to filling out the complaint form in fraud actions is set out here. For a detailed discussion of filling out the exemplary damages attachment, see the Comments to that form of attachment in Ch. 177, Damages.

In the heading of the complaint form, boxes are provided for designating the type of action being brought. If using the complaint in an action for fraud, counsel should check the box marked "OTHER" and specify fraud as the type of action. In addition, counsel should check the box marked "Other Damages" and specify the types of damages sought, such as compensatory and exemplary in this sample form.

In Paragraph 10., counsel should designate the causes of action attached to the complaint. In an action for fraud, counsel should check box 10.f., "Other", and specify fraud as the cause of action that is attached.

In Paragraph 11., counsel should check box 11.g.,"other damage", and specify the nature of the plaintiff's loss. The additional boxes in Paragraph 11. present specific types of loss that appear to be applicable only in the context of an action for personal injury, property damage, or wrongful death. Thus, the box for "other damage" should be used in a fraud action to avoid any ambiguity [see §§ 269.27, 269.30].

In Paragraph 14., the prayer for relief, counsel should check the appropriate boxes for compensatory damages and punitive damages. The sample form requests both. Attorney's fees incurred in bringing an action for fraud are not recoverable [Bezaire v. Fidelity & Deposit Co. (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 888, 892, 91 Cal. Rptr. 142 ; see § 269.28].

[5] Filling Out Fraud Cause of Action

[a] Heading and Preliminary Information

The fraud cause of action heading should be filled in with the short title of the case, and the number of the cause of action. In addition, counsel should fill in the page number of the cause of action and check the appropriate box stating whether the cause of action is attached to a complaint or cross complaint.

In Paragraph FR-1., counsel should fill in the names of the plaintiff and the defendant and state the date on that the defendant defrauded the plaintiff.

[b] Alleging Deceit

[i] In General

One who willfully deceives another with intent to induce the other to alter his or her position to his or her injury or risk is liable for any damages that the other person thereby suffers [Civ. Code § 1709; see §§ 269.12, 269.13].

[ii] Intentional or Negligent Misrepresentation (Paragraph FR-2.)

Counsel should check the box for Paragraph FR-2. if the action is based on intentional or negligent misrepresentation. This type of deceit includes the suggestion as a fact of something that is not true by one who does not believe it to be true, or the assertion as a fact of something that is not true by one who has no reasonable ground for believing it to be true [Civ. Code § 1710(1), (2); see § 269.14[1], [2]; see also §§ 269.91, 269.92].

In Paragraph FR-2.a., counsel should state the representations of material factthat were made by the defendant. The facts constituting fraud must be specifically pleaded so that the court can determine from the complaint whether or not a prima facie case is alleged [Cooper v. Leslie Salt Co. (1969) 70 Cal. 2d 627, 636, 75 Cal. Rptr. 766, 451 P.2d 406 ; see § 269.91[4]].

Paragraph FR-2.b. states that the representations alleged in Paragraph FR-2.a. were in fact false, and leaves space for counsel to fill in the true facts. If additional space is needed, counsel should state the true facts on an attachment labeled Attachment FR-2.b.

Counsel should check the appropriate box in Paragraph FR-2.c.; stating either that the defendant knew that the representations were false when made, or that the defendant had no reasonable ground for believing that the representations were true. Paragraph FR-2.d., incorporating Paragraph FR-5. (plaintiff's acts induced by the defendant's conduct), contains the remaining allegations necessary to state a cause of action for fraud or deceit.

[iii] Concealment (Paragraph FR-3.)

Counsel should check the box for Paragraph FR-3. if the action is based on concealment or suppression of material facts. Deceit includes the suppression of a fact by one who is bound to disclose it or who gives information of other facts that are likely to mislead for want of communication of the suppressed fact [Civ. Code § 1710(3); see §§ 269.14[3], 269.93].

Paragraph FR-3.a. contains space for alleging the concealed or suppressed material facts; they may be alleged in attachment FR-3.a. instead. The facts should be stated with specificity [see § 269.91[4]]. In Paragraph FR-3.b., counsel should check a box describing the nature of the concealment or suppression. The boxes allow the plaintiff to allege that the defendant concealed or suppressed material facts either (1) that the defendant was bound to disclose or (2) by telling the plaintiff other facts to mislead the plaintiff and prevent the plaintiff from discovering the concealed or suppressed facts. Finally, Paragraph FR-3.c., incorporating Paragraph FR-5., contains the remaining allegations necessary to state a cause of action for fraud or deceit.

[iv] Promise Without Intent to Perform (Paragraph FR-4.)

Counsel should check the box for Paragraph FR-4. if the action is based on a promise made by the defendant without the intent to perform. Deceit includes a promise made without any intention of performing it [Civ. Code § 1710(4); see §§ 269.14[5], 269.94].

In Paragraph FR-4.a., counsel should state the facts showing the defendant's promise about a material matter without any intention of performing it; the facts may be alleged in attachment FR-4.a. instead [see § 269.91[4]]. Paragraph FR-4.b., incorporating Paragraph FR-5., contains the remaining allegations necessary to state a cause of action for fraud or deceit.

[v] Plaintiff's Induced Acts and Damages (Paragraphs FR-5., FR-6.)

Counsel should set out in Paragraph FR-5. the facts showing the plaintiff's acts induced in justifiable reliance on the defendant's conduct. The plaintiff's damages should be stated in Paragraph FR-6. [see §§ 269.16, 269.21]. If Paragraphs FR-5. and FR-6. do not contain sufficient space for the allegations, counsel should state the facts on separate attachments labeled Attachments FR-5. and FR-6.

[c] Other Allegations (Paragraph FR-7.)

The fraud cause of action allows additional space, in Paragraph FR-7., for stating other allegations. Counsel may use this space, for example, to allege a reason for failing to discover fraud before expiration of the three-year statute of limitations [Code Civ. Proc. § 338(d); see § 269.103]. As another example, this sample form states on information and belief that the fictitiously named defendants are liable for the occurrences alleged in the complaint.

[6] Filling Out Exemplary Damages Attachment

General information pertaining to filling out this form is contained in the Comments to this form in Ch. 177, Damages . The following comments discuss this form as it should be used in an action for fraud or deceit.

Fraud alone is a ground for awarding punitive damages, and the fraud may be either express or implied [see Civ. Code § 3294(a), (c)(3); Horn v. Guaranty Chevrolet Motors (1969) 270 Cal. App. 2d 477, 484, 75 Cal. Rptr. 871 ; see also § 269.30; see generally Ch. 177, Damages .]. Therefore, counsel should check the box marked "fraud" in Paragraph EX-1. of the Exemplary Damages Attachment.

In Paragraph EX-2., counsel should state the facts supporting the plaintiff's claim for punitive damages. The sample form alleges that the defendant fraudulently concealed facts concerning the plumbing system in a residence that was sold to the plaintiff. These facts are essentially the same as the allegations set out in Paragraphs FR-2. through FR-6. of the fraud cause of action [see [5], above], because fraud alone will support an award of punitive damages.

In Paragraph EX-3., counsel should check the box for subparagraph b. Although, in an action for deceit, the amount of damages generally must be stated [see Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)], the amount of exemplary damages is "not shown pursuant to Civil Code Section 3295(e)," which applies to claims for exemplary damages in any action in which the trial is commenced on or after January 1, 1988 [Civ. Code § 3295(f)].

[7] Verification

Although verification of this complaint is not required [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(a)], verification will require any answer to be verified in an unlimited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446]. Verification will also preclude the defendant from using a general denial in an unlimited civil case, and will preclude a general denial in a limited civil case if the action is a claim assigned to a third party for collection [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion, see Ch. 26, Answers .

[2] Use of Form

This form of complaint is for use in an action for damages for fraud and deceit based on an intentional misrepresentation of fact by the defendant [Civ. Code § 1710(1)].

[3] Allegations

The complaint alleges:

- The exact false representations made by the defendant (Paragraph 4) [Scafidi v. Western Loan & Bldg. Co. (1946) 72 Cal. App. 2d 550, 558, 165 P.2d 260] ;

- The falsity of the statements and the true facts (Paragraph 5);

- That the defendant knew of the falsity of the representations (Paragraph 6);

- That the misrepresentations were made with the intent to deceive and defraud the plaintiff or the public and with the intent to induce the plaintiff or the public to act (Paragraph 6) [Vasquez v. Superior Court (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 800, 811, 94 Cal. Rptr. 796, 484 P.2d 964 ; Harazim v. Lynam (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 127, 130, 72 Cal. Rptr. 670 ; Civ. Code § 1711];

- Actual and justifiable reliance by the plaintiff on the misrepresentations (Paragraph 7) [see Mirkin v. Wasserman (1993) 5 Cal. 4th 1082, 1088, 1091-1093, 23 Cal. Rptr. 2d 101, 858 P.2d 568 ; Harazim v. Lynam (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 127, 130, 72 Cal. Rptr. 670] ;

- The plaintiff's damage as a result of the defendant's misrepresentations (Paragraph 8) [see Fraker v. Sentry Life Ins. Co. (1993) 19 Cal. App. 4th 276, 285-286, 23 Cal. Rptr. 2d 372 ; Zumbrun v. University of S. Cal. (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 1, 12 ; Lesperance v. North Am. Aviation, Inc. (1963) 217 Cal. App. 2d 336, 345, 31 Cal. Rptr. 873] ; and

- Facts supporting an award of punitive damages (Paragraph 9) [Civ. Code § 3294].

[4] Strict Pleading Requirements

The facts constituting fraud must be specifically pleaded so that the court can determine from the complaint whether a prima facie case is alleged [Cooper v. Leslie Salt Co. (1969) 70 Cal. 2d 627, 636, 75 Cal. Rptr. 766 ; see, e.g., Goldrich v. Natural Y Surgical Specialties, Inc. (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 772, 782-783 (conclusory allegation that defendants made false representations that their product was safe for use in breast surgery and posed no dangerous risks of injury to plaintiff, without indicating specifically what was said by whom or in what manner, lacked the requisite specificity for pleading fraud)]. General allegations are insufficient [Morton v. Loveman (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 712, 720, 73 Cal. Rptr. 623] . Every element of the cause of action for fraud must be alleged in the proper manner, factually and specifically [Lesperance v. North Am. Aviation, Inc. (1963) 217 Cal. App. 2d 336, 344, 31 Cal. Rptr. 873] .

However, if a fraud claim is based on a series of numerous misrepresentations, such as an advertising campaign that is alleged to be misleading, plaintiffs need not allege the specific advertisements the individual plaintiffs relied upon. It is sufficient for the plaintiff to provide a representative selection of the advertisements or other statements to indicate the language upon which the claim is based [Morgan v. AT&T Wireless Services, Inc. (2009) 177 Cal. App. 4th 1235, 1255-1257, 99 Cal. Rptr. 3d 768].

[5] Corporate Defendant

A plaintiff who wishes to charge a corporation with making a fraudulent misrepresentation must allege the name of the person who spoke, that person's authority to speak, to whom he or she spoke, what he or she said or wrote, and when it was said or written [Archuleta v. Grand Lodge of Int'l Ass'n of Machinists (1968) 262 Cal. App. 2d 202, 208-209, 68 Cal. Rptr. 694 ; Gautier v. General Tel. Co. (1965) 234 Cal. App. 2d 302, 308, 44 Cal. Rptr. 404] .

[6] Damages

The amount and type of damages available in an action for deceit will depend on the fact situation involved in the fraudulent transaction. Damages for fraud in the purchase, sale, or exchange of property, for example, are governed by Civ. Code § 3343, with the exception that damages for fraud in the sale or purchase of "goods" as defined in the Commercial Code are governed by Com. Code § 2721. The attorney must ascertain the applicable statute and allege the proper items of general and special damages available under that statute. For a discussion of compensatory damages, see § 269.27.

Punitive damages may also be recoverable in an action for deceit if the defendant's conduct amounts to fraud as defined by Civ. Code § 3294(c)(3) [see Civ. Code § 3294(a)]. Although, in an action for deceit, the amount of damages must generally be stated in the complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)], the amount of punitive damages must not be stated in any action [Civ. Code § 3295(e), (f)]. For further discussion, see § 269.30.

[7] Verification

Although verification of this complaint is not required [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(a)], verification will require any answer to be verified in an unlimited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446]. Verification will also preclude the defendant from using a general denial in an unlimited civil case, and will preclude a general denial in a limited civil case if the action is a claim assigned to a third party for collection [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion see Ch. 26, Answers .

[8] Jurisdiction

The superior court has jurisdiction of the action, which will be classified as an unlimited civil case unless the amount in controversy, exclusive of interest, is $25,000 or less, in which case it will be classified as a limited civil case [Cal. Const. art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(1)].

In limited civil cases, the caption must identify the case as a limited civil case and must state whether the demand exceeds or does not exceed $10,000 [Code Civ. Proc. § 422.30(b); Gov. Code § 70613(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(9), (10)].

[9] Copies

The following copies of this complaint should be prepared:

- Original to be filed with the court;
- One copy together with a copy of the summons to be served on each defendant;
- One copy for the office file;
- One copy for the plaintiff; and
- Other copies as desired.

[1] FORM Allegations for Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10] for Damages for Fraud and Deceit--Negligent Misrepresentation of Fact [Civ. Code § 1710(2)]--General Form

1. When the defendant made these representations, he/she/it had no reasonable ground for believing them to be true in that _____ [specify facts showing defendant's lack of reasonable basis for believing in the truth of the representations].

[EITHER]

2. The defendant made these representations with the intention of inducing the plaintiff to act in reliance on these representations in the manner hereafter alleged, or with the expectation that the plaintiff would so act.

[OR]

2. The defendant made these representations with the intention of inducing members of _____ [the public or specify class of persons of which plaintiff is a member] to act in reliance on these representations in the manner hereafter alleged, or with the expectation that they would so act.

[2] Use of Form

These allegations are for use in an action for damages for deceit based on negligent misrepresentation, i.e., a false misrepresentation made by the defendant without reasonable ground for believing the representation to be true [see Civ. Code § 1710(2)]. The allegations in Paragraphs 1 and 2 of this form may be substituted for the allegations in Paragraph 7 of the complaint set forth in § 269.91, in which case the subsequent paragraphs (Paragraphs 8, 9, and 10) of § 269.91 should be renumbered accordingly.

[2] Use of Form

This complaint is for use in an action for damages for fraud and deceit in which the actionable deceit consists of the suppression of a fact by one who is bound to disclose it or who gives information of other facts that are likely to mislead for want of communication of that fact.

[3] Allegations

This complaint alleges (1) suppression of a fact by one bound to disclose it or who gives information likely to mislead for want of communication of that fact (Paragraph 4) [see Civ. Code § 1710(3)]; (2) intent to induce reliance (Paragraph 5); and (3) actual and justifiable reliance on the actions of the defendant (Paragraph 6).

[2] Use of Form

This complaint is for use in action for damages for fraud and deceit based on a promise made without the intention of performing it. Whenever the facts indicate that there is a promise made without the intent to perform, causes of action may also exist for breach of contract and intentional misrepresentation of fact [see Block v. Tobin (1975) 45 Cal. App. 3d 214, 218-219, 119 Cal. Rptr. 288 ; Bondi v. Jewels by Edwar, Ltd. (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 672, 676-677, 73 Cal. Rptr. 494] .

[3] Allegations

This complaint alleges [see Bondi v. Jewels by Edwar, Ltd. (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 672, 677, 73 Cal. Rptr. 494] :

- A promise made by the defendant concerning a material fact (Paragraph 4).
- That the defendant was without any intention of performing the promise at the time it was made (Paragraph 5).
- That the promise was made with the intent to induce the plaintiff to act in reliance (Paragraph 6).
- That the plaintiff justifiably acted in reliance on the defendant's promise (Paragraph 7).
- That the defendant failed to perform the promise (Paragraph 8).
- Resulting damages (Paragraphs 9, 10).

5. On or about the above-mentioned date, at _____ [address], _____ [city], _____ County, California, defendant _____ [name], with the intent to defraud and deceive the plaintiff and with the intent to induce the plaintiff to purchase the above-described real property for a sum of $_____, represented to the plaintiff that this property _____ [specify, e.g., contained _____ (number) acres of land]. This representation was false, and the defendant knew it to be false at the time he/she made it, and at all times herein mentioned. In fact and truth, the above-described real property _____ [specify, e.g., contained only _____(number) acres of land].

6. The plaintiff did not know that this representation was untrue, but on the other hand, believed it to be true. In reliance on this representation, the plaintiff entered into a contract of purchase and sale of the above-described real property with the defendant, and paid the defendant the sum of $_____ as a purchase price therefor. The contract of sale is attached hereto as Exhibit A and made a part hereof. [2] Use of Form

This complaint is for use in an action for damages for fraud and deceit that involves an intentional misrepresentation made to the purchaser of real property by the seller concerning the acreage contained in the property.

[3] Allegations

This complaint alleges (1) that the defendant was the owner of the property about which the representation was made (Paragraph 4); (2) that the defendant made a false representation as to the number of acres contained in the property, with the intent to induce reliance by the plaintiff, and that the defendant knew of the falsity of the representation (Paragraph 5); (3) the falsity of the representation as shown by the true acreage (Paragraph 5); (4) that the plaintiff did not know the representation was untrue and in fact relied on it in purchasing the property, and that such reliance was justifiable (Paragraph 6); and (5) damages (Paragraphs 7-9) [Civ. Code § 3343].

[4] Venue

In an action for damages for the tort of deceit, the proper venue is the county of the defendant's residence, as provided by Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a). Such an action does not come within the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 392(a)(1), allowing the action to be brought in the county in which the property is situated if the action is for the recovery of real property, because the action for damages for deceit does not determine or affect the title to the real property or any interest in it. The title remains with the plaintiff [Kaluzok v. Brisson (1946) 27 Cal. 2d 760, 764, 167 P.2d 481] .

Generally, an action for fraud is triable in the county of the residence of the defendant and the mere fact that, incidentally, rights in real property may be involved does not change the rule. Furthermore, even if a cause of action for relief in tort is joined with a cause of action concerning the title to real property, the defendant is nevertheless entitled to have the case tried in his or her county of residence [Claycomb v. Caronna (1952) 113 Cal. App. 2d 561, 565-566, 248 P.2d 779] .

The plaintiff alleges:

FIRST COUNT

(Intentional Misrepresentation)

[1. Capacity and residence of the defendant. See § 269.91, Paragraph 1.]

[2. Fictitious name allegation, if appropriate. See § 269.91, Paragraph 3.]

3. At all times herein mentioned, defendant _____ [name] was, and now is, a real estate broker duly licensed as such by the State of Cal., Department of Real Estate.

4. On or about _____ [date], defendant _____ [name] was the owner of the real property located in _____ [city], _____ County, California, and known as _____ [provide legal description or address].

5. At all times herein mentioned, the defendant broker _____ [name] was the agent of the defendant owner _____ [name], and at all times herein mentioned, in doing the things and in making the representations herein alleged, was acting in the course and scope of the agency, and with the knowledge and consent of his/her codefendant.

6. On or about _____ [date], in _____ [city], _____ County, California, the plaintiff entered into a written agreement with the defendants to purchase the above-described property, a copy of which agreement is attached hereto as Exhibit A and made a part hereof.

7. On or about _____ [date], the plaintiff was shown by the defendants a copy of a preliminary title search of the above-described property and noticed from this title search that the property was subject to an easement _____ [describe].

8. The defendant broker _____ [name] then and there falsely represented to the plaintiff that the easement was _____ [specify the false representation as to the harmless nature of the easement or as to its nonexistence, e.g., simply a strip one foot wide and one foot deep along the edge of the property that would at no time obstruct and prevent or effect in any way any construction on the property].

9. The true facts are that the easement _____ [allege the true nature, extent, and effect of the easement that exists, e.g., is 30 feet wide and 16 feet deep, giving the plaintiff little more than the right to cross it, and then only under limited circumstances].

10. The defendants, and each of them, knew when they made these representations concerning the easement to the plaintiff that these representations were false, and the defendants, and each of them, made the representations with the intent to deceive the plaintiff and to induce the plaintiff to take the actions herein alleged, and with the intent to prevent the plaintiff from further inquiring into the effect of the easement across the property.

11. The plaintiff believed these representations of the defendants, and each of them, to be true, and in reliance on these representations the plaintiff was induced to complete the purchase of the above-described real property on _____ [date], would not, at a cost of $_____. The plaintiff would not have purchased the real property herein described and would not have expended the sums herein alleged for improvements on the property if he/she had not relied on these representations by the defendants, and each of them.

12. _____ [Allege facts showing interference with use of the property resulting from the easement, e.g., After the purchase of the above-described property, the plaintiff caused plans to be drawn for a dwelling house, a garage, and driveways to be constructed on this property. On or about _____ (date), the plaintiff began the construction of a dwelling house on the real property in accordance with these plans. Thereafter, on or about _____ (date), _____ (allege acts of owner of easement preventing or hindering construction or other activity on the property)].

13. The above-described property would have a value of $_____, the price paid by the plaintiff to the defendants for the property, only if there were no easement. With the easement as it actually exists, the property has a true value of only $_____.

The plaintiff was obliged to and did spend $_____ for _____ [allege expenses of plaintiff in reliance on defendants' representations, e.g., the construction of a dwelling house on the property before he/she learned of the true nature, extent, and effect of the easement, which prevented completion of the construction]. As a result of the fraud and deceit of the defendants, and each of them, the plaintiff has been damaged in the sum of $_____.

[14. Punitive damages. See § 269.91, Paragraph 9.]

SECOND COUNT

(Negligent Misrepresentation)

1. The plaintiff refers to and incorporates, as though fully set forth herein, Paragraphs 1-9, inclusive, and 11-14, inclusive, of the First Count.

2. The defendants, and each of them, when they made these representations concerning the easement to the plaintiff had no reasonable ground for believing that the representations were true, and the defendants, and each of them, made the representations with the intent to induce the plaintiff to take the actions herein alleged, and with the intent to prevent the plaintiff from further inquiring into the effect of the easement across the property.

THIRD COUNT

(Suppression of Fact)

1. The plaintiff refers to and incorporates, as though fully set forth herein, Paragraphs 1-7, inclusive, 9, and 12-14, inclusive, of the First Count.

2. On or about _____ [date], defendant broker _____ [name] represented to the plaintiff that although an easement existed across the above-described property, it would at no time obstruct or prevent or affect in any way any construction on the property, and the defendants failed to reveal and suppressed the fact that _____ [allege facts showing that the easement was actually an obstruction, e.g., on or about _____ [date], the owner of the easement had prevented the previous owner of the property, defendant _____ (name), from constructing a dwelling house on the property]. The failure to disclose these facts concerning the easement was likely to mislead and did in fact mislead the plaintiff in the light of other representations concerning the easement made by the defendants.

3. The defendants, and each of them, made the failures to disclose and the suppressions of information herein alleged with the intent to induce the plaintiff to act in the manner herein alleged in reliance thereon, and with the intent to prevent the plaintiff from further inquiring into the effect of the easement across the property.

[2] Use of Form

This complaint is for use in an action for damages for fraud and deceit arising from the intentional or negligent misrepresentation and intentional suppression of the nature, extent, and effect of an easement across property to be sold by the seller and the seller's real estate broker. The complaint states alternate theories of recovery: intentional misrepresentation by the defendants, negligent misrepresentation by the defendants, and intentional suppression by the defendants of facts likely to mislead.

[3] Allegations

The First Count of the complaint alleges (1) the false representation concerning the easement by the seller's broker (Paragraph 8), (2) the true facts (Paragraph 9), (3) that the defendants knew of the falsity of the representations and made them with the intent to deceive and induce reliance (Paragraph 10), (4) that the plaintiff in fact relied on the representations in purchasing the property (Paragraph 11), (5) acts of the plaintiff in reliance on the defendants' representations (Paragraph 12), and (6) damages as a result of such reliance (Paragraphs 13, 14) [Civ. Code § 3343]. The Second Count alleges that the defendants made the representations without reasonable grounds for believing them to be true (Paragraph 2) [Civ. Code § 1710(2)]. The Third Count alleges (1) that the defendants failed to disclose and suppressed facts from the plaintiff that were likely to mislead the plaintiff in the light of other representations made by the defendants (Paragraph 2) [Civ. Code § 1710(3)] and (2) that these failures to disclose and suppressions of information were done with the intent to induce the plaintiff's reliance (Paragraph 3).

The plaintiff alleges:

1. The defendant _____ [name of seller] is now, and at all times herein mentioned was, a resident of _____ [city], _____ County, California.

The defendant _____ [name of pest control operator] is now, and at all times herein mentioned was, a duly licensed pest control operator, licensed as such by the State of Cal., Structural Pest Control Board. The defendant _____ [name of pest control operator] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a resident of _____ [city], _____ County, California [or allege other capacity and residence of the defendant, as appropriate].

[2. Fictitious name allegation, if appropriate. See § 269.91, Paragraph 3.]

3. On or about _____ [date], the plaintiff, as buyer, and the defendant _____ [name], as seller, entered into a written agreement for the purchase and sale of a family dwelling and appurtenances located at _____ [address], _____ [city], _____ County, California, for a total purchase price of $_____. A copy of this agreement is attached hereto as Exhibit A and made a part hereof. On or about _____ [date], the plaintiff and the defendant executed written escrow instructions for the purchase and sale of the above-described property at the stated price; a copy of the escrow instructions is attached hereto as Exhibit B and made a part hereof.

4. Both the agreement of purchase and sale and the escrow instructions provided in writing that the defendant _____ [name], as seller, would deposit in escrow a report executed by a licensed termite control operator, determining the true condition of the property in regard to termite infestation, dry rot, and fungi, and further provided in writing that the defendant would pay for all work necessary to place the property in a condition free of these infestations, if found.

5. On or about _____ [date], the defendant _____ [name of seller] falsely represented _____ [allege circumstances and exact language of seller's representation that property was free of termites and other infestations, e.g., that the defendant had been the owner and in personal possession of the property for many years continuously and immediately before the purchase of the property by the plaintiff and was acquainted with the house and that the house was in good condition and had no termite infestation, dry rot, fungi, or other infestations of any kind].

6. At all times herein mentioned, the defendant _____ [name of pest control operator] was the agent of the defendant _____ [name of seller], and at all times herein mentioned, in doing things and in making the representations herein alleged was acting in the course and scope of the agency, and with the knowledge and consent of his/her codefendant. The defendant _____ [name of seller] employed the defendant _____ [name of pest control operator] to inspect the property and to furnish a report showing the condition of the property in regard to termite infestation, dry rot, and fungi, in accordance with the attached contract for purchase and sale, Exhibit A, and the attached escrow instructions, Exhibit B.

7. The defendant _____ [name of pest control operator], with full knowledge of all the foregoing and for the purpose of inducing the plaintiff to purchase the property and do the acts herein alleged, falsely purported to make an inspection of the property to determine the presence or absence of termite infestation, dry rot, and fungi, and furnished and deposited in escrow a written statement signed by the defendant _____ [name of pest control operator], attached hereto as Exhibit C and made a part hereof. The attached report purported to be a true and correct report of the condition of the property in regard to termite infestation, dry rot, and fungi. This statement represented that the defendant _____ [name of pest control operator] had inspected the property and the property was free and clear of any infestation by termites, dry rot, and fungi of any kind, and required no work whatsoever to place the property in a free and clear condition.

8. The true facts are that, at all times herein mentioned and for many years before this time, the property was and had been heavily infested with _____ [state conditions], and had been heavily damaged thereby so that it required extensive repairs and improvements in order to correct these conditions and place the property in a free and clear condition.

9. The representations and statements of the defendant _____ [name of seller] were and are false and were known by him/her to be false at the time they were made. The representations of the defendant _____ [name of pest control operator] were and are false and were known by him/her to be false, since the defendant _____ [name of pest control operator] made no reasonable inspection of the property. These representations were made by the defendants, and each of them, with the intent to induce the plaintiff to rely thereon in doing the acts herein alleged.

10. Immediately after the furnishing of the report of the defendant _____ [name of pest control operator], the plaintiff closed the escrow, performed the agreement of purchase, and took possession of the property. In doing these acts, the plaintiff was acting in reliance on the above-alleged representations of the defendants, and each of them, which he/she believed to be true, and the plaintiff would not have purchased the property except for these representations of the defendants, and each of them. _____ [Allege facts showing justifiable reliance, if necessary, e.g., Although the plaintiff inspected the property, he/she was unable to detect any signs of infestation that in fact existed, and the plaintiff relied on the representations of the defendants, and each of them].

11. On or about _____ [date], immediately on discovering the true condition of the property, the plaintiff repeatedly notified the defendants, and each of them, by letters attached hereto as Exhibit D and made a part hereof, of the true condition of the property and of the work required to place the property in a condition free from infestation; the defendants, and each of them, failed and refused, and continue to fail and refuse, to correct this condition. The plaintiff caused the infestations to be removed and the necessary repairs to be made to the property as a result of the damage done to the property. The reasonable cost of this was a sum of $_____, and the plaintiff was damaged as a result of the acts of the defendant herein alleged in that sum.

[12. Damages. See § 269.95, Paragraph 7.]

[13. Additional damages. See § 269.95, Paragraph 8.]

[2] Use of Form

This complaint is for use in an action for damages for fraud and deceit in which the seller of real property and a pest control operator hired by the seller have falsely represented to the buyer that the property is free of infestation by pests. It alleges intentional misrepresentation by the seller as to the condition of the property and intentional and negligent misrepresentation by the pest control operator.

[3] Allegations

This complaint alleges: (1) the false representation by the seller (Paragraph5); (2) that the pest control operator was the agent of the seller (Paragraph 6); (3) the false representation of the pest control operator, with knowledge that the plaintiff was going to rely on the pest control operator's report (Paragraph 7) [Wice v. Schilling (1954) 124 Cal. App. 2d 735, 745, 269 P.2d 231] ; (4) the actual facts (Paragraph 8); (5) knowledge of the falsity of the representations or that they were made with no reasonable belief in their truth (Paragraph 9) [Civ. Code § 1710(1), (2)]; (6) reliance by the plaintiff (Paragraph 10); and (7) damages (Paragraphs 11-14) [Civ. Code § 3343].

4. On or about _____ [date], the plaintiff and the defendant entered into a contract in writing, attached hereto as Exhibit A and made a part hereof, in which the plaintiff agreed to purchase from the defendant certain improved real property commonly described as _____ [provide address or legal description].

5. On or about _____ [date], and during the negotiations for the above-described contract for purchase and sale, the defendant falsely represented to the plaintiff that _____ [allege misrepresentation concerning fill, e.g., the land to be sold was suitable for the purpose of constructing a dwelling house on it and contained no fill].

6. In fact, the above-described property _____ [allege extent and existence of fill on the land].

7. These representations were made by the defendant with the intent to deceive and defraud the plaintiff and to induce him/her to enter the above-described contract for purchase and sale of the property.

8. The representations made by the defendant were in fact false and were known by the defendant to be false at the time they were made and at all times herein mentioned.

9. The plaintiff relied on these representations by the defendant in entering the above-described agreement for purchase and sale of the property, and the plaintiff would not have entered into the above-described agreement but for the representations of the defendant. The reliance by the plaintiff on these representations by the defendant was justified because _____ [allege justification, e.g., at the time these representations were made, the defendant was in a position of advantage with respect to knowledge of facts concerning the land and its suitability for construction of a building on it, and, more particularly, the defendant knew that the land consisted of a filled-in _____ (specify, e.g., creek bed), which fill had not been suitably prepared for building; the plaintiff could not have discovered by due diligence the existence of this filled condition or of the quality or suitability of the land for building, despite making an inspection of the land by viewing it].

10. These representations by the defendant were a material inducement to the plaintiff to enter into the above-described contract for purchase of the real property and had the plaintiff known that the land the land was in fact _____ [allege extent and type of fill], the plaintiff would not have entered the above-described contract.

11. On or about _____ [date], _____ [allege discovery of fill and resulting damage, e.g., the plaintiff was informed by the contractor whom he/she consulted concerning the construction of a dwelling on the land that the land was in fact unsuitable for building without extensive soil preparation]. As a result thereof and of the defendant's fraud and deceit, the plaintiff was damaged in the sum of $_____, which is the difference between the purchase price of the property and the actual value of the property, which is the sum of only $_____.

[2] Use of Form

This complaint is for use in an action for damages for fraud and deceit in which the vendor of real property has misrepresented the character of the land, specifically that the land does not consist of fill.

[3] Allegations

This complaint alleges: (1) the false representation by the defendant concerning the character of the land (Paragraph 5) [Snelson v. Ondulando Highlands Corp. (1970) 5 Cal. App. 3d 243, 251, 84 Cal. Rptr. 800] ; (2) the true fact of the extent and existence of fill (Paragraph 6); (3) the defendant's intent to defraud and induce reliance by the plaintiff (Paragraph 7) [Civ. Code § 1709]; (4) the defendant's knowledge of the falsity of the representations (Paragraph 8); (5) the plaintiff's reliance and justifiable reliance (Paragraph 9); (6) that the defendant's representations were a material inducement to the plaintiff to enter the contract (Paragraph 10) [Snelson v. Ondulando Highlands Corp. (1970) 5 Cal. App. 3d 243, 251, 84 Cal. Rptr. 800] ; and (7) resulting damages to the plaintiff (Paragraphs 11, 13).

[4] Alternative Theories

The plaintiff in a cause of action concerning misrepresentations as to the character of land may often also state as a theory of recovery the failure of the defendant to disclose the known fact that the land was filled and unsuitable for building [see Snelson v. Ondulando Highlands Corp. (1970) 5 Cal. App. 3d 243, 251, 84 Cal. Rptr. 800 ; Oakes v. McCarthy Co. (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 231, 260-261, 73 Cal. Rptr. 127] .

If the plaintiff seeks an expert opinion from a professional concerning the condition of the soil and is incorrectly informed of its character by the professional, there may also be a cause of action for negligent misrepresentation against the professional for failure to correctly determine the character of the soil [see Gagne v. Bertran (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 481, 487-489, 275 P.2d 15] .

[2] Use of Form

This complaint is for use in an action for damages for fraud and deceit in the sale of personal property.

[3] Allegations

This complaint alleges: (1) a written or oral contract of purchase and sale (Paragraph 4); (2) misrepresentation or concealment of material fact by the defendant (Paragraph 5); (3) the actual facts (Paragraph 6); (4) fraud of the defendant (Paragraph 7) [Civ. Code § 1710(1), (2), (3)]; (5) the defendant's fraudulent intent (Paragraph 8); (6) reliance and justifiable reliance by the plaintiff (Paragraph 9); and (7) damages (Paragraphs 10, 11) [Civ. Code § 3343].

[4] Damages in Cases Involving Sales of Goods

In a fraud action regarding the sale of goods governed by the Commercial Code, Com. Code § 2721, which allows defrauded persons to secure the "benefit of their bargain," in effect supersedes the "out-of-pocket" rule of Civ. Code § 3343, which otherwise applies to fraud actions [Continental Airlines, Inc. v. McDonnell Douglas Corp. (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 388, 431, 264 Cal. Rptr. 779] . Under Com. Code § 2721, remedies for fraud include all remedies available under Com. Code §§ 2101-2724 for nonfraudulent breach.

The term "goods" for the purpose of Com. Code § 2721 means all things, including specially manufactured goods, which are movable at the time of identification to the contract for sale other than the money in which the price is to be paid, investment securities, and things in action. The term also includes the unborn young of animals, growing crops, and other identified things attached to realty as described in Com. Code § 2107 [Com. Code § 2105].

For further discussion of damages, see § 269.27[3].

[5] Alternative Theories of Recovery

If the seller of goods has made a material misrepresentation concerning the goods sold, the plaintiff may have, in addition to a cause of action for fraud and deceit, a cause of action for breach of warranty [see Hauter v. Zogarts (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 104, 114-118, 120 Cal. Rptr. 681, 534 P.2d 377 ; see Com. Code §§ 2313, 2314, 2316; for further discussion, see Ch. 500, Sales and Secured Transactions]. In addition, if personal injuries have resulted from a defective condition of the product sold, the seller will be liable in damages on the theory of strict liability in tort. In some cases, the defective condition causing the injury will be one that the seller warranted against and that the seller represented did not exist [see Hauter v. Zogarts (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 104, 120-121, 120 Cal. Rptr. 681, 534 P.2d 377] . For discussion of strict liability actions, see Ch. 460, Products Liability .

8. The plaintiff believed and relied on these representations by the defendant and was thereby induced to purchase the business with its stock, fixtures, and _____ [specify other appurtenances, if any] and paid the defendant the sum of $_____ for the business. Had it not been for the plaintiff's reliance on the defendant's representations, the plaintiff would not have purchased the business.

9. By reason of the fraud and deceit of the defendant, the plaintiff was required to expend _____ [number] hours of labor on the business, with no compensation, and was thereby damaged in the sum of $_____, the value of the plaintiff's labor thus expended. By reason of the fraud and deceit of the defendant, the plaintiff was further damaged in the sum of $_____, the difference between the price paid for the business and its fair market value of $_____ [or allege other damages, e.g., insolvency and valuelessness of the business].

4. At all times herein mentioned, the defendant _____ [name] was, and now is, a real estate broker duly licensed as such by the State of Cal., Department of Real Estate.

5. On or about _____ [date], the plaintiff was the owner of improved real property, known as _____ [provide address or legal description].

6. On or about _____ [date], the defendant _____ [name of broker] offered to act as agent and broker on behalf of the plaintiff for the purpose of selling the property owned by the plaintiff for the benefit of the plaintiff. Pursuant to this offer by the defendant broker, the plaintiff executed and delivered to the defendant broker a written authorization to sell the property, which authorization is attached hereto as Exhibit A and made a part hereof.

7. On or about _____ [date], the defendant broker informed the plaintiff that the defendant _____ [name or purchaser] had offered to purchase the property for a price of $_____. At the same time, the defendant broker informed the plaintiff that he/she had no other offers in excess of the sum offered by the defendant _____ [name of purchaser] and that this sum was the best price possibly obtainable for the property.

8. Each and every one of these representations made by the defendant broker to the plaintiff was false. [2] Use of Form

This form of complaint is for use in an action for damages for fraud and deceit against a real estate broker and a private person conspiring with the broker to induce the plaintiff to sell property at a lower price than could be obtained, knowing that there exists a higher offer for the property, and obtaining a secret profit by reselling the property to the higher offeror.

[3] Allegations

The complaint alleges (1) capacity of the defendant as a real estate broker (Paragraph 4); (2) that the defendant was the agent of the plaintiff (Paragraph 6) [Simone v. McKee (1956) 142 Cal. App. 2d 307, 312, 298 P.2d 667] ; (3) the nature of the defendant's representation to the plaintiff (Paragraph 7); (4) the falsity of the defendant's representation (Paragraph 8); (5) the defendant's knowledge of the falsity of the representations and concealment of the higher offer (Paragraph 9) [Civ. Code § 1710(1), (3)]; (6) the defendant's intent to induce reliance by the plaintiff (Paragraph 11); (7) the plaintiff's action in reliance and justifiable reliance on the defendants (Paragraph 10); and (8) damages (Paragraphs 11, 12).

[4] Damages

If a fiduciary breaches a duty, and is guilty of fraud, damages for the fraud are governed by Civ. Code §§ 1709 and 3333, rather than by Civ. Code § 3343, even if a sale or exchange of property is involved [Simone v. McKee (1956) 142 Cal. App. 2d 307, 315, 298 P.2d 667 ; see § 269.27[4]].

[3. Fictitious name allegation, if appropriate. See § 269.91, Paragraph 3.]

4. The defendant _____ [name] was the employee of the plaintiff _____ [name] from _____ [date], until _____ [date]. As the plaintiff's employee, the defendant had authority to draw checks on the plaintiff's account at the _____ branch of the _____Bank, located at _____ [address], _____ [city], _____ County, California, account number _____, _____ [as long as no individual check draw exceeded the sum of $_____ or as long as the total amount drawn did not exceed $_____ per _____], which checks were to be used to pay minor business operating expenses incurred by the defendant in the course of his/her employment at the plaintiff's business.

5. By virtue of the defendant's employment by the plaintiff, the defendant owed to the plaintiff a fiduciary duty, and by virtue of the plaintiff's having placed confidence in the fidelity and integrity of the defendant in entrusting the defendant with the authority to draw small sums from the plaintiff's account, a confidential relationship existed at all times herein mentioned between the plaintiff and the defendant.

6. Despite having voluntarily accepted the trust and confidence reposed in him/her by the plaintiff with regard to the plaintiff's funds in the above-described bank account, and in violation of this relationship of trust and confidence, the defendant abused the trust and confidence of the plaintiff by, on the following occasions, withdrawing the following amounts from the bank account of the plaintiff for the defendant's own personal use rather than for the authorized purposes connected with the plaintiff's business: _____ [allege dates and amounts of checks drawn on account]. No part of these sums has been returned by the defendant to the plaintiff, despite the plaintiff's demand therefor.

7. The defendant did the acts herein alleged with the intent to deceive and defraud the plaintiff, and the defendant employed the following devices to conceal from the plaintiff the fact that the defendant had obtained funds from the plaintiff's business bank account for the defendant's own use: _____ [allege acts of concealment]. The defendant did these acts with the intent to induce reliance by the plaintiff in the continuing fidelity of the defendant as an employee entrusted with the plaintiff's funds and access to the plaintiff's bank account.

8. The plaintiff in fact placed confidence and reliance in the defendant until on or about _____ [date], when, through _____ [allege circumstances], the plaintiff discovered the true facts concerning the withdrawals made for the defendant's personal use, as alleged above. The plaintiff reasonably relied on the defendant in view of their long-standing employer-employee relationship.

9. As a result of the fraud of the defendant as herein alleged, the plaintiff has been damaged in the sum of $_____.

[2] Use of Form

This complaint is for use in an action for damages for constructive fraud [Civ. Code § 1573] in which an employee has abused the confidence placed in him or her by his or her employer for the purpose of obtaining money to which the employee is not entitled.

[3] Allegations

This complaint alleges: (1) the existence of a confidential and fiduciary relationship, in which the plaintiff placed trust in the defendant (Paragraphs 4, 5); (2) the breach of duty gaining an advantage to the employee at fault, by misleading the employer to his/her/its prejudice (Paragraph 6) [Civ. Code § 1573(1)]; (3) intent to deceive and defraud the plaintiff through concealment of the facts (Paragraph 7) [Civ. Code § 1710(3); but see Civ. Code § 1573(1) (no such intent required)]; (4) the plaintiff's actual and justifiable reliance on the defendant (Paragraph 8); and (5) damages (Paragraphs 9, 10) [Civ. Code §§ 1709, 3333].

[EITHER]

The fraud and deceit of the defendant as herein alleged was not discovered by the plaintiff until on or about _____ [date], a date within three years before the commencement of this action. The plaintiff could not with due diligence discover the fraud and deceit of the defendant until on or about this date because _____ [specify reasons, e.g., the plaintiff had no way of knowing and could not determine the true condition of the building constructed by the defendant until it began to crack and required repairs].

[OR]

_____ [Allege facts showing existence of fiduciary relationship between the plaintiff and the defendant, and lack of any grounds for suspicion as to fiduciary's representations, e.g., At all times herein mentioned, the defendant was acting as the real estate agent and broker for the plaintiff, pursuant to a written authorization to sell the plaintiff's real property, known as _____ (provide address or legal description), which authorization is attached hereto as Exhibit A and made a part hereof; as the plaintiff's real estate agent and broker, the defendant was acting as agent for the plaintiff with regard to the sale of property herein alleged. The plaintiff was never aware of any facts that made him/her suspicious of the veracity of the defendant's representations, and did not discover the fraud and deceit of the defendant herein alleged until on or about _____ [date less than three years before commencement of the action].

[2] Use of Form

These allegations are for use in an action for damages for fraud and deceit if the three year statute of limitations has expired before the plaintiff has filed the complaint, but the failure to file within the period is excused by the plaintiff's failure to discover the fraud within that period [Code Civ. Proc. § 338(d)].

[2] Use of Form

This form of complaint is for use in an action for damages for fraud and deceit, based on a misrepresentation made in an employment reference that presented a substantial, foreseeable risk of physical injury to third persons, and that in fact resulted in physical injury to a third person [see Randi W. v. Muroc Joint Unified Sch. Dist. (1997) 14 Cal. 4th 1066, 1081, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 263, 929 P.2d 582] . Ordinarily, the allegations in this complaint would be made in conjunction with an action against the employer of the person who actually committed the wrongful act that injured the plaintiff, and against that person if he or she has assets likely to be subject to enforcement.

[3] Allegations

This complaint alleges the following:

- The representations made by the defendant in an employment reference (especially a letter of recommendation) (Paragraph 4).

- The falsity of those representations (Paragraph 5) [see Randi W. v. Muroc Joint Unified Sch. Dist. (1997) 14 Cal. 4th 1066, 1083-1084, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 263, 929 P.2d 582 (positive assertions in reference that failed to disclose known material facts concerning misconduct sufficient to constitute affirmative misrepresentation)].

- The representations presented a substantial, foreseeable risk of physical injury to third persons (Paragraph 6) [Randi W. v. Muroc Joint Unified Sch. Dist. (1997) 14 Cal. 4th 1066, 1081, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 263, 929 P.2d 582] .

- That the misrepresentations were relied on by the person or entity who hired the person who injured the plaintiff (Paragraph 7) [see Randi W. v. Muroc Joint Unified Sch. Dist. (1997) 14 Cal. 4th 1066, 1084-1085, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 263, 929 P.2d 582 (reliance requirement satisfied if recommendation was relied on in hiring; plaintiff need not have relied on misrepresentation)].

- The plaintiff's injury and damages resulting from the hiring of the person (Paragraphs 8 and 9).

Chapter 270 FRAUDULENT CONVEYANCES
PART I. SCOPE

23-270 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 270.01

§ 270.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter discusses and contains forms for use in actions to set aside fraudulent transfers and conveyances and annul fraudulent obligations under the Uniform Fradulent Transfer Act. As used in this part, the term transfer includes conveyances of real property, transfers of personal property, and obligations.

This chapter contains forms of complaints and allegations for use in actions by creditors to set aside fraudulent transfers and annul fraudulent obligations [see §§ 270.190 -270.197], a cross complaint for use by a transferee or obligee in an action to set aside the allegedly fraudulent transfers or obligation for determination of the tranferee's or obligee's right to retain an interest in or lien on the property or to enforce the obligation [see § 270.198], and forms of affirmative defenses for use by transferees or obligees of allegedly fraudulent transfers or obligations in actions to have the transfer or obligation set aside [see §§ 270.199 -270.202].

This chapter also discusses and contains forms for use in actions involving transfers under Civ. Code § 3440 et seq. of personal property made without immediate delivery and an actual change of possession. It includes forms of complaints by a creditor to set aside such a transfer [see § 270.220] and for declaratory relief determining the validity of such a transfer by a purchaser from the transferor [see § 270.221]. It also includes affirmative defenses for use in actions under Civ. Code § 3440 et seq. when transfers of property are made which are excepted from the provisions of Civ. Code § 3440 et seq. [§§ 270.222, 270.223].

This chapter also discusses the notice requirements for bulk sales under Com. Code § 6101 et seq., the various exceptions and alternatives to those requirements, and the consequences of failure to give the notice. Forms in this part include notices [§§ 270.240, 270.241], a complaint to set aside or to recover the value of a bulk sale that was not made in compliance with the notice requirements [see § 270.242], an allegation for use to modify such a complaint when the bulk sale was made by a sale at an auction or was conducted by a liquidator [see § 270.243], and affirmative defenses to such actions [see §§ 270.244 -270.246].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. In General

23-270 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 270.11

§ 270.11 Purpose of Law of Fraudulent Transfers

Generally, the law of fraudulent transfers is designed primarily for the protection of creditors of persons who make such transfers. A creditor pursuing an action or proceeding under Civ. Code § 3439 et seq. (Uniform Fraudulent Transfer Act) or Civ. Code § 3440 et seq. (transfers without delivery and change of possession) has the right to treat property which his or her debtor has fraudulently disposed of as if the debtor still had possession [see Civ. Code § 3518]. Thus, a transfer or obligation which is fraudulent as to a creditor is void as to that creditor [Civ. Code § 3439.07(a)(1); Civ. Code § 3440]. In the case of a bulk sale conducted without required notice, the buyer is liable to the creditor for the amount of its claim that remains unpaid because of the failure to publish or record proper notice [see Com. Code § 6107].

Although a creditor of a transferor in an appropriate fact situation may invoke the three separate laws governing fraudulent conveyances in his or her action to have a conveyance made by his or her debtor declared void [see Aggregates Associated, Inc. v. Packwood (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 580, 587, 589, 592, 25 Cal. Rptr. 545, 375 P.2d 425 ; see also Uniform Commercial Code Comment to former Com. Code § 6101], the object of each of these laws is different. The Uniform Fraudulent Transfer Act is designed to prevent debtors from placing property beyond the reach of their creditors when the property should be legitimately made available to satisfy the creditors' demands [see Chichester v. Mason (1941) 43 Cal. App. 2d 577, 584, 111 P.2d 362 (decided under former Civ. Code §§ 3439, 3442)]. The object of Civ. Code § 3440, making fraudulent transfers of personal property without delivery and actual change of possession, is to prevent the deception of creditors arising out of the ostensible ownership of the property by the transferor who has made a secret transfer of the property [see Dersch v. Thomas (1934) 138 Cal. App. Supp. 785, 789, 30 P.2d 630] . Finally, the object of Com. Code § 6101 et seq. is to prevent merchantswho owe debts from selling out their stock in trade for any price and disappearing with the proceeds of the sale [see Uniform Commercial Code Comment to former Com. Code § 6101].

§ 270.12 Right to Jury Trial

When a creditor sues "to recover a fraudulent conveyance of a determinate sum of money," the creditor has a right under the California Constitution to demand a jury trial on that cause of action [Cal. Const., art. I, § 16; Wisden v. Superior Court (2004) 124 Cal. App. 4th 750, 760, 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 523] . (Note that this holding is based on historical peculiarities of English common law, especially the nature of a common law action for money had and received. This holding does not apply, and the court's reasoning might not be relevant, to an action based on a fraudulent conveyance of personal property or real property.

§ 270.13 Fraud Distinguished

The law governing cases of transfers made in fraud of creditors should be distinguished from that which governs cases of fraud involving misrepresentations. The fraud that entitles a party to rescind a transfer or seek damages arising out of the transfer is based on false representations inducing reliance, whereas a transfer or obligation may be in fraud of creditors because it was a gift by an insolvent donor [Civ. Code § 3439.05; see Judicial Council of California Civil Jury Instructions, CACI No. 4203 (LexisNexis Matthew Bender) (related California Judicial Council jury instruction)], was designed to put the property beyond the reach of creditors [see Civ. Code § 3439.04(a); Judicial Council of California Civil Jury Instructions, CACI Nos. 4200, 4202 (LexisNexis Matthew Bender) (related California Judicial Council jury instructions)], or, in the case of personal property, because it was not followed by immediate delivery [see Civ. Code § 3440; Strong v. Strong (1943) 22 Cal. 2d 540, 547, 140 P.2d 386] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Uniform Fraudulent Transfer Act

23-270 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 270.30

§ 270.30 Governing Law

The Uniform Fraudulent Transfer Act is contained in Civ. Code § 3439 et seq. In addition, Civ. Code § 3439.10 provides that, unless displaced by the provisions of the act, the principles of law and equity, including the law merchant and the law relating to principle and agent, estoppel, laches, fraud, misrepresentation, duress, coercion, mistake, insolvency, or other validating or invalidating cause, supplement its provisions. Therefore, compliance with the Bulk Sales Act [see Com. Code § 6101 et seq.; see also § 270.100 et seq.] does not preclude recovery on a fraudulent transfer claim, as the two acts are not mutually exclusive [see Monastra v. Konica Business Machines, U.S.A., Inc. (1996) 43 Cal. App. 4th 1628, 1639-1640, 51 Cal. Rptr. 2d 528] .

The changes made by the adoption of the California version of the Uniform Fraudulent Transfer Act in 1986 [Stats. 1986, ch. 383] apply only to transfers made or obligations incurred on or after January 1, 1987. As to transfers made or obligations incurred prior to that date, the law in effect at the time the transfer was made or the obligation was incurred applies. Insofar as the provisions of Civ. Code § 3439 et seq. are substantially the same as the provisions of former Civ. Code § 3439 et seq. (which was repealed by Stats. 1986, ch. 383), they are to be construed as restatements and continuations, and not as new enactments [Civ. Code § 3439.12].

However, the Uniform Fraudulent Transfer Act does not supersede or otherwise eliminate common law remedies that existed before the uniform laws went into effect. Rather, the remedies of the UFTA and its predecessor are cumulative to the pre-existing common law remedies [Wisden v. Superior Court (2004) 124 Cal. App. 4th 750, 758, 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 523 ; Cortez v. Vogt (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 917, 929, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 841 ; see Macedo v. Bosio (2001) 86 Cal. App. 4th 1044, 1051, 104 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1] .

The law governing fraudulent transfers was originally adopted in California in 1872. In 1939, California enacted amendments to substantially conform to the 1939 version of the Uniform Fraudulent Conveyance Act (UFCA). The Uniform Fraudulent Transfer Act (UFTA) was adopted in 1984. Except for changes to conform to bankrupcty law and the Uniform Commercial Code, it parallels the Uniform Fraudulent Conveyances Act. In 1986, California adopted the UFTA with certain variations and exceptions. Notably absent from the California version is Section 5 of the Uniform Fraudulent Transfer Act which relates to preferential transfers to insiders, because preferences are allowable under California law [see Civ. Code § 3432 (debtor is allowed to pay one creditor in preference over another)].

In this part, unless otherwise noted, cases decided before 1940 were decided under the California law prior to adoption of the 1939 admendments, and cases decided before 1987 were decided under the California law as it existed after adoption of the 1939 admendments but before enactment of the 1986 amendments.

To the extent that provisions of the bankruptcy code are similar to the California version of the UFTA, cases decided under the bankruptcy code may be persuasive [see, e.g., 11 U.S.C. §§ 101(54) (definition of transfer), 548 (fraudulent transfers)].

§ 270.31 Jury Trial

Because the right to trial by jury existed for common-law fraudulent transfer claims when the California Constitution was adopted in 1850, in California a plaintiff still has a right to trial by jury on a claim for fraudulent transfer [Wisden v. Superior Court (2004) 124 Cal. App. 4th 750, 756-757, 760, 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 523] . This is notwithstanding the fact that the UFTA itself does not provide for trial by jury. The rights established by the UFTA are cumulative to pre-existing rights. Moreover, even if the Legislature had intended to abolish the common-law right of action by adopting the UFTA, it could not thereby dispense with the right to trial by jury [Wisden v. Superior Court (2004) 124 Cal. App. 4th 750, 758, 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 523] . It is of no major consequence if the prayer in plaintiff's complaint does not expressly seek damages, for neither the prayer nor even the form of action pleaded is conclusive; rather the legal or equitable nature of a cause of action is determined by the nature of the rights involved, the mode of relief to be afforded, and the facts of the particular case [Wisden v. Superior Court (2004) 124 Cal. App. 4th 750, 755, 757, 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 523] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Uniform Fraudulent Transfer Act

23-270 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 270.32

§ 270.32 Nature and Purpose of Law of Fraudulent Transfers

The Uniform Fraudulent Transfer Act (Civ. Code § 3439 et seq.) prohibits debtors from making transfers of property in fraud of the rights of their creditors. The Act and its predecessor Civil Code sections [former Civ. Code §§ 3439-3439.12, 3442] have been designed to prevent debtors from placing property beyond the reach of their creditors when that property should legitimately be available for the satisfaction (those such creditors' demands [Chichester v. Mason (1941) 43 Cal. App. 2d 577, 584, 111 P.2d 362 (decided prior to 1939 amendments)]. If a debtor makes a fraudulent transfer within the meaning of the Act, the creditor has the right to have the interest of the debtor in the property transferred at the time of the transfer subjected to the creditor's claim [see Ahmanson Bank & Trust Co. v. Tepper (1969) 269 Cal. App. 2d 333, 343, 74 Cal. Rptr. 774] . Whether his or her claim has matured or remained unmatured, the creditor can elect from several remedies, subject to certain rights of the transferee, including having the transfer or obligation set aside, attaching or levying execution against the asset transferred or its proceeds in the hands of the transferee, enjoining disposition of the asset or its proceeds, appointment of a receiver to take charge of the asset or its proceeds, and other provisional and equitable remedies [Civ. Code § 3439.07].

§ 270.33 Persons Pemitted to Attack Transfer or Obligation

[1] In General

A person may seek the remedies provided under the Uniform Fraudulent Transfer Act only if he or she is a creditor to whom a debt is owed within the meaning of the Act [Civ. Code § 3439.07; see Hansen v. Cramer (1952) 39 Cal. 2d 321, 323, 245 P.2d 1059 ; Pope v. National Aero Fin. Co. (1965) 236 Cal. App. 2d 722, 728, 46 Cal. Rptr. 233] . A creditor is defined as a person having any claim against a debtor and includes an assignee of a general assignment for the benfit of creditors, as defined in Code Civ. Proc. § 493.010 [Civ. Code § 3439.01(c)]. A claim is a right to payment, whether or not the right is reduced to judgment, liquidated, unliquidated, fixed, contingent, matured, unmatured, disputed, undisputed, legal, equitable, secured or unsecured [Civ. Code § 3439.01(b)]. Thus, a creditor need not show that he or she has a specific lien on the property subject to the creditor's claim or that a particular claim has been prosecuted to judgment [Estate of Kalt (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 807, 811, 108 P.2d 401 (decided under pre-1939 law); see Weisenburg v. Cragholm (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 892, 896, 97 Cal. Rptr. 862, 489 P.2d 1126] . For example, in tort actions, because the relationship of debtor and creditor arises the moment the cause of action accrues [Hansen v. Cramer (1952) 39 Cal. 2d 321, 323, 245 P.2d 1059 ; Freeman v. LaMorte (1957) 148 Cal. App. 2d 670, 307 P.2d 734] , a person having a tort claim is not required to prosecute his or her action before seeking a remedy under the Fraudulent Transfer Act [see Hansen v. Cramer (1952) 39 Cal. 2d 321, 323, 245 P.2d 1059] .

However, a creditor may not attack a transfer if the claim against the debtor has been reduced to judgment and the judgment is subsequently reversed. In such a case, if the reversed judgment was the sole basis for the trial court's determination that the plaintiff creditor was a creditor within the meaning of the Uniform Fraudulent Transfer Act, the plaintiff is not entitled to any remedy under the act [Weisenburg v. Cragholm (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 892, 895-896, 97 Cal. Rptr. 862, 489 P.2d 1126] .

[2] Assignee for Benefit of Creditors

An assignee of a general assignment for the benefit of creditors may exercise any or all of the creditors' rights specified in Civ. Code § 3439.07 if they are available to any one or more creditors of the assignor who are beneficiaries of the assignment, and, in that event (1) only to the extent the rights or remedies are so available and (2) only for the benefit of those creditors whose rights are asserted by the assignee [Civ. Code § 3439.07(d); for discussion of Civ. Code § 3439.07, see §§ 270.44, 270.45; for discussion of assignment for benefit of creditors, see Ch. 307, Insolvency].

[3] Trustee in Bankruptcy

A trustee in bankruptcy may assert the rights of a creditor available under applicable law to avoid a fraudulent transfer if there is a creditor holding an unsecured claim that is allowable under 11 U.S.C. § 502 or that is not allowable only under 11 U.S.C. § 502(e) [11 U.S.C. § 544(b); see Collier On Bankruptcy(15th ed), Ch. 544, Trustee as Lien Creditor and as Successor to Certain Purchasers]. Under 11 U.S.C. § 544(b), the trustee may assert California law, which reaches certain transfers that are not avoidable under the bankruptcy code. The bankruptcy code provision with respect to fraudulent transfers allows avoidance only of transfers made within the year prior to the filing of the petition in bankrutpcy; however, certain other transfers, specifically preferences, are voidable under bankruptcy law while they would not be under California law [see 11 U.S.C. §§ 547 (preferences), 548 (fraudulent transfers); see also Collier On Bankruptcy(15th ed), Ch. 547, Preferences; Ch. 548, Fraudulen Transfers and Obligations]. District courts and bankrupcty courts have original but not exclusive jurisdition over actions by trustees to set aside preferences and fraudulent transfers [28 U.S.C. §§ 157(b)(1), (2)(F), (H), 1334, see 28 U.S.C. § 1409(b), (c) (venue)].

[4] Prosecution of Underlying Indebtedness

Since the creditor's claim need not be reduced to judgment, the cause of action on the underlying indebtedness owed to a plaintiff creditor may be adjudicated in the same action as one for setting aside the defendant's fraudulent transfer or obligation [see Ahmanson Bank & Trust Co. v. Tepper (1969) 269 Cal. App. 2d 333, 343, 74 Cal. Rptr. 774 ; Michal v. Adair (1944) 66 Cal. App. 2d 382, 389, 152 P.2d 490] . However, a creditor may set aside a fraudulent transfer or obligation, or attach the fraudulently transferred asset in the hands of the transferee, or seek any of the remedies enumerated at Civ. Code § 3439.07(a)(3), even though his or her claim has not yet matured if the elements necessary for a fraudulent transfer or obligation to be set aside are present [see Civ. Code § 3439.07(a)(1)-(3); Weisenburg v. Cragholm (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 892, 896, 97 Cal. Rptr. 862, 489 P.2d 1126] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Uniform Fraudulent Transfer Act

23-270 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 270.34

§ 270.34 Required Injury to Creditor

[1] In General

Even though a person is a creditor within the meaning of the Uniform Fraudulent Transfer Act, a transfer that may otherwise be in fraud of the creditor may only be attacked if he or she is injured by the transfer [Mehrtash v. Mehrtash (2001) 93 Cal. App. 4th 75, 80, 112 Cal. Rptr. 2d 802 ; Haskins v. Certified Escrow & Mortgage Co. (1950) 96 Cal. App. 2d 688, 691, 216 P.2d 90] . A creditor does not sustain injury unless the transfer or obligation puts beyond his or her reach property which would be subject to the payment of the creditor's debt [Mehrtash v. Mehrtash (2001) 93 Cal. App. 4th 75, 80-81, 112 Cal. Rptr. 2d 802 (plaintiff failed to show she was injured by transfer of heavily mortgaged property when she produced no evidence that value of property could support any net recovery for her in event conveyance were set aside); Haskins v. Certified Escrow & Mortgage Co. (1950) 96 Cal. App. 2d 688, 691, 216 P.2d 90 ; see Costa v. Neves (1938) 12 Cal. 2d 121, 125, 82 P.2d 600] .

When a debtor has transferred property that could be protected by the minimum-bid requirement for a judicial sale of a homestead as defined in Code Civ. Proc. § 704.710 [see § 270.34[3]], a particular creditor can have no cause of action under the UFTA if, taking into account the aggregate amount of all valid liens on the property having priority over that creditor's claim [see Code Civ. Proc. § 3439.01(a)(1) ("asset" subject to UFTA does not include property "to the extent it is encumbered by a valid lien"); see also § 270.34[5]] plus the exemption amount specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 704.730, a judicial sale would not yield any proceeds that could be applied toward satisfaction of that creditor's claim. In such a case, the transfer cannot be fraudulent as to that creditor because that creditor has not in fact been injured [Fidelity Nat'l Title Ins. Co. v. Schroeder (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 834, 845, 101 Cal. Rptr. 3d 854] , even if the debtor had "actual intent to hinder, delay, or defraud any creditor of the debtor" [see Code Civ. Proc. § 3439.04(a)(1) (what is "fraudulent" transfer)]. As to that particular creditor, it is not the transfer, rather it is the effect of Code Civ. Proc. § 704.710 et seq., that puts the property out of reach for payment of the debt [Fidelity Nat'l Title Ins. Co. v. Schroeder (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 834, 845, 101 Cal. Rptr. 3d 854] ; therefore, the creditor has no cause of action to set aside the transfer.

[2] Property Held in Trust

When one who holds property as trustee for another (for example, under a resulting trust) conveys the property to the beneficiary, neither the creditors nor the trustee in bankruptcy of the grantor can attack the conveyance [Owings v. Laugharn (1942) 53 Cal. App. 2d 789, 791 P.2d114; but see In re Lewis W. Shurtleff, Inc. (9th Cir. 1985) 778 F.2d 1416, 1419 (allowing transfer to be set aside by trustee in bankruptcy when alleged constructive trust had not yet been perfected by state court judgment)]. This rule is derived from the rule that the judgment of a creditor is a lien only on the interest of the judgment debtor. Latent equities against the debtor, such as those which arise on a resulting trust, may be asserted against judgment creditor, who as to such equities does not have the status of bona fide purchaser [see McGee v. Allen (1936) 7 Cal. 2d 468, 473, 60 P.2d 1026] . Thus, as to property held in trust by a trustee, a creditor of the trustee has sustained no injury, since he or she has no interest in the property which may be subjected to his or her claim [see Owings v. Laugharn (1942) 53 Cal. App. 2d 789, 791, 128 P.2d 114 ; Zeller v. Knapp (1933) 135 Cal. App. 122, 128, 26 P.2d 704] .

[3] Exempt Property

A transfer is not subject to the UFTA unless the property transferred is an "asset" as defined [Fidelity Nat'l Title Ins. Co. v. Schroeder (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 834, 841, 101 Cal. Rptr. 3d 854] ; and the statutory definition excludes property "to the extent it is generally exempt under nonbankruptcy law" [Code Civ. Proc. § 3439.01(a)(2)]. The term "generally exempt" is merely a recognition that all exemptions are subject to exceptions [Fidelity Nat'l Title Ins. Co. v. Schroeder (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 834, 845 n.7, 101 Cal. Rptr. 3d 854] .

Among the exemptions that could be applicable is the declared-homestead exemption provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 704.910 et seq. [see § 270.34[4]].

The so-called homestead exemption provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 704.710 et seq. is not an exemption of the kind that would exclude property from the definition of "asset" in the UFTA. The purpose of Code Civ. Proc. § 704.710 et seq. is to preclude a judicial sale of a homestead as defined [see Code Civ. Proc. § 704.710(c); see also Ch. 294, Homesteads, § 294.50 et seq.] unless a bid is received that exceeds the sum of all liens and encumbrances plus a specified amount that is described in a code provision as a homestead exemption amount [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 704.720, 704.730, 704.800]. In short, the statutory provisions impose a minimum-bid requirement for a judicial sale of property that meets the statutory definition of a homestead; and if the minimum required bid is not received, the property may not be sold [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 704.720(a), 704.800(a)]. Although "exemption" is used repeatedly in the statutory text, property that could become protected against a judicial sale because of the minimum-bid requirement is not for that reason "exempt under nonbankruptcy law" for purposes of the UFTA. The property can be the subject of a fraudulent transfer [Reddy v. Gonzalez (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 118, 122, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 58] . However, the minimum-bid requirement could have the effect of preventing a creditor from having a cause of action under the UFTA, as discussed in § 270.34[1].

[4] Homesteads

Property cannot be the subject of a fraudulent transfer "to the extent [the property] is generally exempt under nonbankruptcy law" [Code Civ. Proc. § 3439.01(a)(2); see § 270.34[3]]. This exclusion covers property to the extent that it is protected by a declared homestead pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 704.910 et seq. A homestead declaration effectively shields a debtor's dwelling from the reach of judgment creditors in most kinds of cases [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.950(a); Fidelity Nat'l Title Ins. Co. v. Schroeder (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 834, 844, 101 Cal. Rptr. 3d 854] . A homestead declaration provides no protection against certain judgment liens for child, family, or spousal support [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.950(b)]. A judgment lien for any other kind of debt can attach to the debtor's dwelling in spite of a homestead declaration, but the lien can cover only the amount of any surplus over the sum of the aggregate value of all liens having priority plus the value of the declared-homestead exemption [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.950(c)].

That a debtor files a declaration of homestead to hinder and delay his or her creditors does not affect its validity because the very purpose of the homestead law is to protect the property from existing debts [Lucci v. United Credit & Collection Co. (1934) 220 Cal. 492, 496, 31 P.2d 369 ; Putnam Sand & Gravel Co. v. Albers (1971) 14 Cal. App. 3d 722, 725, 92 Cal. Rptr. 636] . For discussion and forms relating to homesteads, see Ch. 294, Homesteads .

[5] Property Subject to Valid Lien

To the extent that property of the debtor is encumbered by a valid lien it would not be available to satisfy a creditor's claim and is therefore excepted from the UFTA's definition of assets of the debtor [Civ. Code § 3439.01(a)(1)]. A lien is a charge against or an interest in property to secure payment of a debt or performance of an obligation, and includes a security interest created by agreement, a judicial lien obtained by legal or equitable process or proceedings, a common-law lien, or a statutory lien [Civ. Code § 3439.01(f)]. A valid lien is one that is effective against the holder of a judicial lien subsequently obtained by legal or equitable process or proceedings [Civ. Code § 3439.01(j)]. The debtor's equity in the collateral remains available to creditors, however.

A lien given by a debtor with actual intent to hinder, delay, or defraud any creditor of the debtor might be valid but nevertheless is fraudulent as to any creditor [Civ. Code § 3439.04(a)(1); see Judicial Council of California Civil Jury Instructions, CACI No. 4200 (LexisNexis Matthew Bender); see also Civ. Code § 3439.04(b) (factors to be considered in determining debtor's actual intent); Judicial Council of California Civil Jury Instructions, CACI No. 4201 (LexisNexis Matthew Bender) (related California Judicial Council jury instruction) and such a lien is voidable except against a person who took in good faith and for a reasonably equivalent value or against any subsequent transferee or obligee [Civ. Code § 3439.08(a); see Judicial Council of California Civil Jury Instructions, CACI No. 4207 (LexisNexis Matthew Bender) (related California Judicial Council jury instruction)].

A lien given by a debtor without receiving a reasonably equivalent value in exchange for the lien could, in the circumstances be, fraudulent as to any creditor [see Civ. Code § 3439.04(a)(2); Judicial Council of California Civil Jury Instructions, CACI No. 4202 (LexisNexis Matthew Bender) (related California Judicial Council jury instruction)]. However, a transfer of the encumbered property through enforcement of the lien would not necessarily be voidable [see Civ. Code § 3439.08(e)(2); Judicial Council of California Civil Jury Instructions, CACI No. 4207 (LexisNexis Matthew Bender) (related California Judicial Council jury instruction); § 270.35[2][b]].

[6] Interest Held in Tenancy by the Entireties

The interest of the debtor in property held in tenancy by the entireties is excluded from the UFTA's definition of assets of the debtor to the extent that the debtor's interest is not subject to process by a creditor holding a claim against only one tenant [Civ. Code § 3439.01(a)(3)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Uniform Fraudulent Transfer Act

23-270 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 270.35

§ 270.35 Transfers and Obligations

[1] In General

A debtor must have actually made a transfer of his or her asset or incurred an obligation before a creditor will be able to invoke any of the remedies provided under the Uniform Fraudulent Transfer Act [see Civ. Code § 3499 et seq.; Menick v. Goldy (1955) 131 Cal. App. 2d 542, 547, 280 P.2d 844 (creditor is required to prove transfer to be entitled to relief)]. "Transfer" means every mode, direct or indirect, absolute or conditional, vouluntary or involuntary, of disposing of or parting with an asset or an interest in an asset, and includes payment of money, release, lease, and creation of a lien or other encumbrance [Civ. Code § 3439.01(i); see Judicial Council of California Civil Jury Instructions, CACI No. 4204 (LexisNexis Matthew Bender) (related California Judicial Council jury instruction)]. Examples of transfers within the meaning of the former Civ. Code § 3439.01 include a payment of money in satisfaction of a gambling debt [see Tokar v. Redman (1956) 138 Cal. App. 2d 350, 354, 291 P.2d 987] , a donee's exercise of a general power of appointment [see Estate of Kalt (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 807, 814, 108 P.2d 401 (decided under law as it existed prior to 1939 amendments)], and, by analogy to the donee's exercise of a general power of appointment, a legatee's renunciation of his or her legacy [see Estate of Kalt (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 807, 814, 108 P.2d 401 (decided under law as it existed prior to 1939 amendments); Estate of Jensen (1972) 26 Cal. App. 3d 474, 480, 102 Cal. Rptr. 617 ; but see Prob. Code § 283 (disclaimer does not constitute fraudulent transfer)]. Although the word transfer is interpreted broadly, it designates only those transactions which, as between the parties, pass, or purport to pass, the title or right of possession to the property. That is, the transfer must be such as would vest the real or apparent ownership of some interest in the transferee [see Scholle v. Finnell (1916) 173 Cal. 372, 377, 159 P. 1179 (conversion of debtor's livestock by son after debtor's acquiesence in commingling of herds did not amount to transfer)].

Based on the policy considerations underlying the Uniform Fraudulent Transfer Act and the Family Code provisions governing dissolution judgments and settlements, the California Supreme Court has held that the Uniform Fraudulent Transfer Act applies to property transfers under marital settlement agreements [Mejia v. Reed (2003) 31 Cal. 4th 657, 669, 3 Cal. Rptr. 3d 390, 74 P.3d 166 (woman whose affair resulted in birth of child sought lien on real property that father of child transferred to his wife in resulting marital dissolution); see Ch. 222, Dissolution of Marriage: Property Division and Valuation].

[2] Transfers That Are Not Voidable

[a] Leases

A transfer by a debtor without receiving a reasonably equivalent value in exchange for the transfer could be, in the circumstances, fraudulent as to any creditor [see Civ. Code § 3439.04(a)(2); Judicial Council of California Civil Jury Instructions, CACI No. 4202 (LexisNexis Matthew Bender) (related California Judicial Council jury instruction)]. However, such a transfer is not voidable if it results from the termination of a lease upon default by the debtor when the termination is pursuant to the lease and applicable law [Civ. Code § 3439.08(e)(1); see Judicial Council of California Civil Jury Instructions, CACI No. 4207 (LexisNexis Matthew Bender) (related California Judicial Council jury instruction)].

[b] Noncollusive Enforcement of Lien

A lien given by a debtor without receiving a reasonably equivalent value in exchange for the lien could be, under the circumstances, fraudulent as to any creditor [see Civ. Code § 3439.04(a)(2); Judicial Council of California Civil Jury Instructions, CACI No. 4202 (LexisNexis Matthew Bender) (related California Judicial Council jury instruction)]. However, a transfer of the encumbered property through enforcement of the lien in a noncollusive manner and in compliance with applicable law (including Division 9 of the Commercial Code) would not be voidable as long as the transfer occurred otherwise than by either a retention of collateral under Com. Code §§ 9620 and 9621 or a voluntary transfer of the collateral by the debtor to the lienor in satisfaction of all or part of the secured obligation [Civ. Code § 3439.08(e)(2); see Judicial Council of California Civil Jury Instructions, CACI No. 4207 (LexisNexis Matthew Bender) (related California Judicial Council jury instruction)].

[3] Change of Beneficiary of Life Insurance Policy

Civ. Code § 3439.08(b) appears to have abrogated prior law regarding the extent to which a debtor/insured's change of beneficiary under a life insurance policy might constitute a fraudulent transfer. Under prior law, the debtor/insured's change of beneficiary under a life insurance policy constituted a fraudulent transfer if the policy proceeds would have been available to satisfy the obligation in question [Headen v. Miller (l983) 141 Cal. App. 3d 169, 175-176, 190 Cal. Rptr. 198 (change of beneficiary from partner to the insured partner's wife found fraudulent because proceeds were a contingent partnership asset)]. However, because Civ. Code § 3439.08(b) now specifies that a creditor is only entitled to recover from the transferee the lesser of value of asset transferred, as of date of transfer, or the amount necessary to satisfy its claim, it appears that a creditor can only reach the nonexempt portion of the lesser of the cash surrender value, the loan value, or the premiums paid [Civ. Code § 3439.08(b), (c); Code Civ. Proc. § 704.100 (exemption for life insurance policy); see Headen v. Miller (l983) 141 Cal. App. 3d 169, 173-175, 190 Cal. Rptr. 198 (discussing prior limits on value reachable by creditor); see also Judicial Council of California Civil Jury Instructions, CACI No. 4207 (LexisNexis Matthew Bender) (related California Judicial Council jury instruction)].

Chapter 270 FRAUDULENT CONVEYANCES
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Uniform Fraudulent Transfer Act

23-270 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 270.36

§ 270.36 Debtor's Retention of Interest in Property

A debtor cannot make a disposition of his or her property that will effectively put the property or the income from the property beyond the reach of his or her creditors if the debtor has still retained the right to use the property or to receive the income from it [see Nelson v. California Trust Co. (1949) 33 Cal. 2d 501, 502, 202 P.2d 1021 (debtor was settlor and beneficiary of spendthrift trust)); McColgan v. Walter Magee, Inc. (1916) 172 Cal. 182, 186, 155 P. 995 (debtor was settlor and beneficiary of spendthrift trust)]. In such a case, although the nominal title to the property may have been transferred to another, the property nevertheless is subject to the debts of its owner on the principle that one cannot be the equitable owner of property and still have it exempt from the owner's debts [Sasaki v. Kai (1942) 56 Cal. App. 2d 406, 410, 133 P.2d 18] . Thus, because the debtor remains the equitable owner, a creditor need not bring an action to set aside a fraudulent transfer, but may attach the transferred asset, or its proceeds, in an action on the underlying claim if attachment would otherwise be available in the action on the underlying claim, in accordance with the Attachment Law, Code Civ. Proc. § 481.010 et seq. [Civ. Code § 3439.07(b)]. Furthermore, once the creditor has obtained a judgment on the underlying debt he or she can levy execution on the asset transferred or its proceeds in the hands of the transferee [Civ. Code § 3439.07(c)].

A creditor attaching or levying on the property in the name of the transferee may also use statutory proceedings in aid of attachment and execution. Those proceedings include examinations of the third party, applications for orders restaining further transfer of the asset, and creditor's suits [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 491.110 et seq. (attachment), 708.010 et seq. (execution); see also Hustead v. Superior Court (1970) 2 Cal. App. 3d 780, 790, 83 Cal. Rptr. 26 (creditor's bill proper only after third party has claimed interest); Wulfjen v. Dolton (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 878, 889-890, 151 P.2d 840 (creditor's bill necessary and proper when third party claims interest); see generally Ch. 62, Attachment , and Ch. 254, Executions and Enforcement of Judgments]. Although actions to set aside fraudulent transfers are sometimes referred to as creditor's bills, the substantive and procedural prerequisites of a creditor's bill under Code Civ. Proc. § 708.210 et seq. are quite different from the substance of and prerequisites necessary to maintain and action to set aside a fraudulent transfer [see Heffernan v. Bennett & Armour (1944) 63 Cal. App. 2d 178, 183-184, 146 P.2d 482 (action to set aside fraudulent transfer prior to obtaining judgment referred to a creditor's bill); see also § 270.45].

In the event of a debtor's putatively fraudulent transfer of the debtor's dwelling, in which the debtor continues to have an interest as the beneficial user of the property--for example, A and B, owning their house together, convey title to B alone, and thereafter A continues to live in the house along with B--a judgment creditor might be foreclosed from pursuing the property in the hands of the transferee because of the minimum-bid requirement for a judicial sale of a homestead as defined in Code Civ. Proc. § 704.710(c), and the creditor also might not have a cause of action under the UFTA to set aside the transfer [see § 270.34[1], [3]]. A creditor in that situation is not necessarily without a judicial remedy, however. If the facts were supportive, the creditor could have a cause of action for a declaratory judgment that the transferee holds title as a resulting trustee for the debtor's benefit [Fidelity Nat'l Title Ins. Co. v. Schroeder (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 834, 847-850, 101 Cal. Rptr. 3d 854] . Thus, the creditor, armed with a judgment lien in one hand and a resulting-trust declaratory judgment in the other hand, could wait until some future date when satisfaction of the creditor's claim through a judicial sale would be possible. For discussion of resulting trusts, see Ch. 562, Trusts: Resulting Trusts .

§ 270.37 When Transfer Occurs

[1] Real Property Other Than Fixtures

With respect to an asset that is real property other than a fixture, a transfer is made when it is so far perfected that a good faith purchaser of the asset from the debtor against whom applicable law permits the transfer to be perfected cannot acquire an interest in the asset that is superior to the interest of the transferee. For purposes of determining when a transfer is made, the interest of a seller or purchaser under a contract for the sale of the asset is considered a real property asset [Civ. Code § 3439.06(a)(1)]. For example, if transferees take possession prior to recordation of a deed, no subsequent purchaser from the debtor can acquire a superior claim, because he or she would have constructive notice of transferees' interest. Thus, the transferees' interest would be perfected by possession [see In re Gulino (9th Cir. 1985) 779 F.2d 546, 550-551 (applying California law to determine what is necessary to perfect transfer)]. The language of Civ. Code § 3439.06(a)(1) is identical with that of 11 U.S.C. § 547(e)(1)(A), which governs time of perfection for purposes of determining whether a transfer made within the 90 days immediately preceeding the filing of a bankrupcty petition may be set aside. Cases decided under 11 U.S.C. § 547(e)(1)(A) therefore may provide guidance in interpreting Civ. Code § 3439.06(a)(1) [see 11 U.S.C. § 547(e)(1)(A)].

If applicable law does not permit the transfer of real property other than a fixture to be perfected as against a good faith purchaser from the debtor as provided in Civ. Code § 3439.06(a), the transfer is made when it becomes effective between the debtor and the transferee [Civ. Code § 3439.06(c)]. A transfer is not made until the debtor has acquired rights in the asset transferred [Civ. Code § 3439.06(d)].

[2] Other Property and Fixtures

With respect to an asset that is not real property or that is a fixture, a transfer is made when it is so far perfected that a creditor on a simple contact cannot acquire a judicial lien otherwise than under the UFTA that is superior to the interest of the transferee [Civ. Code § 3439.06(a)(2)]. If applicable law does not permit the transfer to be perfected as provided in Civ. Code § 3439.06(a), the transfer is made when it becomes effective between the debtor and the transferee [Civ. Code § 3439.06(c)]. A transfer is not made until the debtor has acquired rights in the asset transferred [Civ. Code § 3439.06(d)].

[3] Transferee's Interest Not Perfected Before Commencement of Creditor's Actions

If the applicable law permits the transfer to be perfected as provided in Civ. Code § 3439.06(a) (discussed in § 270.37[1], [2]) and the transfer is not so perfected before the commencement of an action for relief under the UFTA, the transfer is deemed made immediately before the commencement of the action [Civ. Code § 3439.06(b)].
