Response to return as called "traverse" and as analogous to answer in civil proceedings; petition as properly treated as traverse by stipulation or acquiescence. In re Saunders (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 1033, 1047, 88 Cal. Rptr. 633, 472 P.2d 921

Petitioner as allowed to except to the sufficiency of return in procedure analogous to demurrer. In re Saunders (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 1033, 1048, 88 Cal. Rptr. 633, 472 P.2d 921

New matter alleged in traverse (or petition) as deemed denied and required to be proved by party alleging it, petitioner. In re Saunders (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 1033, 1047-1048, 88 Cal. Rptr. 633, 472 P.2d 921 ; In re Egan (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 323, 149 P.2d 693 , cert. denied, 323 U.S. 785, 65 S. Ct. 272, 89 L. Ed. 626

Relief sought of habeas corpus as properly granted without hearing on factual issues where return acknowledges or admits allegations in petition or traverse which, if true, justify relief sought. In re Saunders (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 1033, 1048, 88 Cal. Rptr. 633, 472 P.2d 921

Respondent as not required to file, in addition to return, pleading denying affirmative allegations of traverse (or petition where treated as traverse). In re Masching (1953) 41 Cal. 2d 530, 533, 261 P.2d 251

Function of petition for writ of habeas corpus as to obtain writ. In re Egan (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 323, 330, 149 P.2d 693 , cert. denied, 323 U.S. 785, 65 S. Ct. 272, 89 L. Ed. 626

Where petition is treated as traverse, petition as having same effect as traverse. In re Egan (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 323, 330, 149 P.2d 693 , cert. denied, 323 U.S. 785, 65 S. Ct. 272, 89 L. Ed. 626

Allegations of petition for writ of habeas corpus brought by mother of an illegitimate child to regain custody of child from third parties. In re Croze (1956) 145 Cal. App. 2d 492, 493-494, 302 P.2d 595

Petition of mother of children for writ of habeas corpus for their custody as properly denied when merits of case can be more thoroughly considered and proper determination made on hearing of petition for custody modification in superior court. In re Elliott (1953) 115 Cal. App. 2d 536, 538, 254 P.2d 135

Appellate court as granting writ of habeas corpus when lower court improperly decided that it had jurisdiction to grant warrant in lieu of writ of habeas corpus to father of child to gain its custody from mother in one county, when mother, resident of another county, had already filed petition for guardianship of child, who resided with her, in county of her residence. In re Kosh (1951) 105 Cal. App. 2d 418, 421-425, 233 P.2d 598

When one California county had exclusive jurisdiction of issue of custody of child, issuance of warrant in lieu of writ of habeas corpus by another California county as within that court's jurisdiction only for purposes of ordering child brought before court for its protection. In re Kosh (1951) 105 Cal. App. 2d 418, 425, 233 P.2d 598

Respondent to writ of habeas corpus who wishes to attack validity of sister state decree of custody on grounds that there was no jurisdiction over the child as required to allege affirmatively lack of jurisdiction. In re Kyle (1947) 77 Cal. App. 2d 634, 640, 176 P.2d 96

Pleading sister state decree valid on its face awarding custody to petitioner for writ of habeas corpus as sufficient to overcome a demurrer on ground that petition did not allege that sister state court had jurisdiction to render the judgment. In re Kyle (1947) 77 Cal. App. 2d 634, 636, 176 P.2d 96

Demurrer to return to writ of habeas corpus as admitting material facts alleged in return to be true for purposes of determining sufficiency of return. In re Landry (1943) 61 Cal. App. 2d 230, 233, 142 P.2d 432

When petition is, by stipulation, deemed a traverse to return, petition that fails to deny allegations of return as possibly admitting those allegations, but such stipulation as possibly construed to provide that allegations of return should be deemed denied. In re De Leon (1943) 59 Cal. App. 2d 510, 513, 139 P.2d 109

[b] Proper Court

Territorial restrictions on jurisdiction of superior courts to entertain petitions for and grant relief in habeas corpus matters that existed prior to 1966, pursuant to Cal. Const., Art VI, § 5, as eliminated by Cal. Const., Art VI, § 10, which provided only that superior courts and their judges have original jurisdiction in habeas corpus proceedings. Griggs v. Superior Court (1976) 16 Cal. 3d 341, 346, 128 Cal. Rptr. 223, 546 P.2d 727

Appellate as well as superior courts as having jurisdiction to issue writ of habeas corpus. In re Richard M. (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 783, 789, 122 Cal. Rptr. 531, 537 P.2d 363

When factual questions are involved, petitioner as generally required to seek relief first in superior court by habeas corpus rather than in an appellate court. In re Richard M. (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 783, 789, 122 Cal. Rptr. 531, 537 P.2d 363 ; In re Wren (1957) 48 Cal. 2d 159, 165, 308 P.2d 329

Where an appellate court makes an order to show cause returnable before superior court and superior court denies writ, petitioner as entitled to again apply to appellate court, which will make an independent examination of evidence taken in superior court. In re Hochberg (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 870, 874 n.2, 87 Cal. Rptr. 681, 471 P.2d 1

Referee's findings of fact as not binding on appellate court but as entitled to great weight when supported by ample, credible evi dence. In re Branch (1969) 70 Cal. 2d 200, 203 n. 1, 74 Cal. Rptr. 238, 449 P.2d 174

Appellate courts as commonly appointing a referee when disputed questions of fact exist on writ of habeas corpus. In re Mooney (1937) 10 Cal. 2d 1, 15, 73 P.2d 554 , cert. denied, 305 U.S. 598, 59 S. Ct. 61, 83 L. Ed. 379

Cal. Const., Art VI, § 10 as granting identical original jurisdiction in habeas corpus proceedings to both court of appeal and superior courts, so that both court of appeal and superior court have statewide jurisdiction. In re Van Heflin (1976) 58 Cal. App. 3d 131, 135, 128 Cal. Rptr. 257

[c] Orders and Hearing

Petitioner normally bears burden of proving facts on which claim for relief is based, but if possibility that increased or additional charges violating due process supporting charge of prosecutorial vindictiveness is at issue, petitioner only needs to demonstrate facts giving rise to presumption of vindictiveness at which time, even on habeas corpus, burden shifts to people to rebut presumption. In re Bower (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 865, 872, 215 Cal. Rptr. 267, 700 P.2d 1269

Although not expressly provided for by statute, order to show cause as developed by courts as appropriate means by which to initiate hearing and disposition of petition for writ of habeas corpus on behalf of person in custody without bringing petitioner before court. In re Lawler (1979) 23 Cal. 3d 190, 194, 151 Cal. Rptr. 833, 588 P.2d 1257

Court as permitted to dispose of petition without evidentiary hearing when there are no disputed material factual allegations. In re Lawler (1979) 23 Cal. 3d 190, 194, 151 Cal. Rptr. 833, 588 P.2d 1257

Courts as having developed practice of ordering custodian t o show cause why relief sought by writ of habeas corpus should not be granted. In re Hochberg (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 870, 874 n.2, 87 Cal. Rptr. 681, 471 P.2d 1

When appellate court makes a writ or order to show cause returnable before lower court, appellate court as instituting proceeding in which issues of fact are both framed and decided. In re Hochberg (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 870, 875-876 n.4, 87 Cal. Rptr. 681, 471 P.2d 1

When appellate court issues writ or order to show cause returnable before lower court, appellate court's preliminary determination that petitioner has stated grounds which if proved would entitle him or her to habeas corpus relief as not equivalent to final appellate court decision on questions of law in favor of petitioner. In re Hochberg (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 870, 875-876 n. 4, 87 Cal. Rptr. 681, 471 P.2d 1

Court as able to appoint referee to conduct a hearing when an order to show cause why writ should not issue is made returnable before appellate court. In re Hochberg (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 870, 874 n.2, 87 Cal. Rptr. 681, 471 P.2d 1

County counsel is required under Welf. & Inst. Code § 5114 to appear and present certification allegations in habeas corpus hearings since hearings are independent review of allegations set forth in certification notice. St. Joseph Hospital v. Kuyper (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 1086, 1089-1090, 194 Cal. Rptr. 876

Superior Court as having jurisdiction to entertain an application for writ of habeas corpus for purpose of obtaining custody of minor child. Rose v. Superior Court (1948) 86 Cal. App. 2d 173, 177, 194 P.2d 568

When the issue of whether or not petitioner for writ of habeas corpus, parent of child, is fit person to have custody is before trial court pursuant to pending proceeding for letters of guardianship by proposed adoptive parents who have custody of child, appellate court as properly refusing to issue writ since issue is best determined by trial court. In re Martin (1947) 79 Cal. App. 2d 584, 587, 180 P.2d 383

[6] Release From State Hospital

Writ of habeas corpus as denied when regional center supported release of developmentally disabled person from state hospital to community placement, but person, family, and hospital director were opposed, and when evidence supported that person was able to make competent choice regarding living arrangement. In re Borgogna (1981) 121 Cal. App. 3d 937, 940-949, 175 Cal. Rptr. 588

25-292 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 292.60

§ 292.60 Petitioner's Checklist

NOTE:
The following checklist is illustrative only of the basic points which counsel for a petitioner in a proceeding for writ of habeas corpus should cover.

[1] Facts to Be Ascertained

NOTE:
Not all of the following facts will be ascertainable from the client in the initial interview. Subsequent interviews may be required or it may be necessary to ascertain the facts from other persons.

1. Facts relating to petitioner.

a. Name, address, and telephone number of petitioner and relationship of petitioner, if any, to person in whose behalf relief is sought.

b. Name and address of place where petitioner or person in whose behalf the writ is sought is confined, and, where appropriate, restrictions from which he or she seeks relief.

c. Name and title of person or persons having custody of petitioner or other person. If the name of the person is now known, description of the person by title or other designation.

d. Name and address of court under whose process, if any, petitioner is confined or restrained, together with the case or action number in that court, and the proceedings which have occurred in that court to date, including any judgments or orders made, by date and terms.

e. Whether any appeal has been taken and, if so, the title, the court, and the case number on appeal; the current status or result of the appeal; and the date of judgment on appeal, if any, and citation to written opinion of court, if any, published in official reports.

f. Whether any other applications, petitions, or motions have been filed by petitioner or on his or her behalf in regard to the same detention now complained of and, if so, the title, the court, and the case of the proceedings; the result of the proceedings; and the date of any judgment or order in such proceedings; including citation to written opinions of court, if any, published in official reports.

g. Names of counsel, in any, who represented petitioner or person in whose behalf relief is now sought at each stage of the proceeding leading to commitment or custody complained of and on appeal on other later remedies.

2. Facts relating to respondents.

a. Any threats or other indications that respondent will remove petitioner or the person in whose behalf the writs is sought from the jurisdiction of the court or that petitioner will suffer irreparable harm, indicating the need to proceed for a warrant in lieu of writ of habeas corpus [see Penal Code §§ 1497-1500]. See § 292.60[6].

b. In the case of a child custody proceeding, the length of time the child has been in the custody of respondent; whether respondent is providing the child with a stable home; the relationship of respondent to the child, if any [see Civ. Code § 4600]; the fitness or unfitness of respondent to have custody and control of the child; and how respondent obtained custody or possession of the child.

[2] Preliminary Determinations

1. Grounds for writ of habeas corpus. See discussions in §§ 292.11, 292.46[2], 292.26, and 292.27.

2. The proper court for filing the petition. See discussion in § 292.46[5][b]; see also § 292.80-292.85.

3. Whether the applicant or some other person in his or her behalf will sign and verify the petition.

[3] Essential Allegations of the Petition

NOTE:

Counsel should first determine whether the Judicial Council of California Form of Petition for Release From or Modification of Custody should be used. If so, it is the usual practice for counsel to prepare a petition setting forth all relevant material required by the Judicial Council form but prepared entirely by counsel. See § 292.81 and 292.81.5.

A petition for a writ of habeas corpus must allege the following [see § 292.80]:

1. Name of the person unlawfully restrained [Penal Code § 1474];

2. That the person is restrained of his or her liberty or, if the person is a minor child, that he or she is wrongfully in the custody of respondent [Penal Code § 1474];

3. The name and position of the person or officer by whom the person is restrained [Penal Code § 1474];

4. The place of the restraint, including its address and name, if any [Penal Code § 1474];

5. The relationship of petitioner to the person restrained, if appropriate [see In re Harrell (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 675, 689, 87 Cal. Rptr. 504, 470 P.2d 640] ;

6. The illegality of the restraint or of the conditions of confinement and supporting facts [Penal Code § 1474; In re Kyle (1947) 77 Cal. App. 2d 634, 639, 176 P.2d 96] ;

7. What proper custody would be in petitioner's case, if appropriate or, if the petition is in behalf of a child, why custody should vest in petitioner;

8. That petitioner has no other plain, adequate, and speedy remedy, where appropriate [In re Wallace (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 289, 292, 90 Cal. Rptr. 176, 475 P.2d 208] ;

9. Exhaustion of administrative remedies, if required and if any are available [In re Muszalski (1975) 52 Cal. App. 3d 500, 503-504, 125 Cal. Rptr. 286] ;

10. Whether or not prior application for the writ has been made with regard to the same restraint and custody and, if so, a statement of all proceedings had on prior applications, including final orders on appeal or otherwise [Penal Code § 1475]; and

11. If the writ is sought in the first instance in a court of appeal or the Supreme Court, the reason why it was not first sought in the superior court [In re Hillery (1962) 202 Cal. App. 2d 293, 294, 20 Cal. Rptr. 759] .

[4] Preparation of Petition and Supporting Documents

1. Prepare petition as described in §§ 292.80-292.84.

2. Prepare copies as required. See §§ 292.80-292.84.

3. Have the petition signed and verified by the petitioner [Penal Code §§ 1474, 1474(3)].

4. Serve copies of the petition as required. See §§ 292.80-292.84.

5. Present the original petition and appropriate copies to the clerk of the court for filing, together with proof of service when service is required. No fee may be charged in proceedings on habeas corpus [Gov. Code § 6101].

6. Where time and circumstances allow, present with the petition a memorandum of points and authorities supporting the granting of the relief sought in the petition. See California Points and Authorities, Ch. 110, Habeas Corpus .

7. Request the clerk to present the petition and supporting documents to the court or judge and to obtain and order granting the writ. See § 292.87.

[5] Issuance of Writ or of Order to Show Cause

NOTE:

The petition may be summarily denied by the court [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 4.551(a)(4)(b)], in which case an order is prepared and entered by the court. A copy of this order will be delivered to the attorney for petitioner. Any superior court order denying a petition for a writ of habeas corpus must contain a brief statement of the reasons for the denial. An order only declaring the petition to be "denied" is insufficient [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 4.551(g)].

1. Time limit for acting on petition.

If the petition is filed in superior court, the court must rule on the petition within 60 days after it is filed, either by issuing an order to show cause, denying the petition, or requesting an informal response [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 4.551(a)(3)(A), (a)(4)]. If the court fails to rule on the petition within 60 days of its filing, the petitioner may file a notice and request for a ruling [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 4.551(a)(3)(B)]. The 60-day time limit apparently does not apply when the petition is filed in an appellate court.

2. Issuance of writ. See § 292.14.

Any court or judge authorized to grant the writ must grant the writ without delay if it appears that the writ should be issued [Penal Code § 1476]. The writ will be served on respondent by the sheriff or marshall without delay, unless the writ is directed to the sheriff or other ministerial officer of the court out of which it issues, in which case it must be delivered by the clerk to the officer without delay [Penal Code § 1478]. If the person to whom the writ is directed cannot be found, or refuses admittance to the officer or person serving or delivering the writ, the writ may be served or delivered by leaving it at the residence of the person to whom it is directed, or by affixing it to some conspicuous place on the outside either of his or her dwelling house or the place where the party is confined or under restraint [Penal Code § 1478]. No fee may be cha rged in proceedings on habeas corpus [Gov. Code § 6101].

3. Issuance of order to show cause. See § 292.15.

The court will generally issue an order to show cause that is prepared by the court itself; however, when petitioner is represented by counsel, counsel may be directed to serve the order and a copy of the petition on respondent.

4. Request for Informal Response. See § 292.13[4].

Before passing on a petition filed in superior court, the court may request an informal response from the respondent or real party in interest, or from the custodian of any record pertaining to the petitioner's case [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 4.551(b)(1)]. A copy of the request and any response must be sent to the petitioner, who will be given 15 days to reply to the response [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 4.551(b)(2)]. Within 45 days after receipt of the informal response, the court must issue an order to show cause or deny the petition [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 4.551(a)(5)].

See generally § 292.90-292.92 and § 292.16.

[7] Receipt of Return to Writ by Petitioner

Counsel for petitioner should examine the return to determine whether it contains any material facts or matters that petitioner should deny or controvert [Penal Code § 1484]. See § 292.93-292.95.

[8] Traverse

1. Prepare the traverse to the return [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.386(d)(2); see also § 292.95] in the same number of copies required for the petition. See § 292.80-292.84.

2. Serve copies of the traverse as required for the petition (see § 292.80-292.84) and present the original and any required copies, together with proof of service, if required, to the clerk of the court for filing [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.386(d)(4)].

3. If an order to show cause has been issued by a superior court, the traverse (or "denial," as it is called in the California Rules of Court) must be served on respondent and filed with the court within 30 days after service and filing of the return [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 4.551(e)].

4. In a court of appeal or the Supreme Court, unless the court orders otherwise, file the traverse within 30 days after filing of the return [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.386(d)(1)].

[9] Hearing

Attend the hearing at the time and place fixed by the court and present oral argument and evidence in support of the requested relief.

§ 292.61 Respondent's Checklist

NOTE:
The following checklist is illustrative only of the basic points that counsel for a respondent in a habeas corpus proceeding should cover.

[1] Facts to Be Ascertained

NOTE:
Not all of the following facts will be ascertainable from the client in the initial interview. Subsequent interviews may be required, or it may be necessary to ascertain the facts from others, including the petitioner.

1. Facts relating to respondent.

a. Name, address, and telephone number of respondent.

b. Capacity of respondent (individual, public entity, private hospital, incorporated or not, or other).

c. Additional facts related to respondent's right to retain custody of petitioner or other person in whose behalf the writ is sought, including court orders, commitment documents, or, if the person is a child in the custody of person not the natural parents, whether the child has been living with respondents in a wholesome and stable environment [see Fam. Code § 3040(a)(2)], or whether the respondent is the natural or presumed parent of the child [Fam. Code §§ 3010, 7611].

2. Facts required for the return.

a. Date, manner, and place of service of the writ, and by whom served.

b. Contents of the petition.

c. Facts regarding lawfulness of petitioner's confinement or respondent's right to custody, including, but not limited to, the following:
(1) Valid court orders pertaining to the confinement or custody.

(2) Adherence to statutory procedures pertaining to the confinement or custody.

(3) In child custody cases, facts showing that respondent's continued custody of child is in child's best interests under statutory standards [see generally Fam. Code § 3000 et seq.; Ch. 223, Dissolution of Marriage: Child Custody; Ch. 394, Parent and Child].

(4) Other facts responding to the factual allegations of the petition [see People v. Duvall (1995) 9 Cal. 4th 464, 476, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 259, 886 P.2d 1252 ; see also § 292.17[2][b]].

[2] Essential Allegations of the Return

The essential allegations of a return [see Forms 13, 14] to a petition for a writ of habeas corpus are:

1. Whether or not respondent has the person in custody or under his or her power or restraint [Penal Code § 1480(1)].

2. If respondent has the party in custody, or under his or her restraint, the authority and cause of that imprisonment or restraint [Penal Code § 1480(2)].

3. Facts tending to establish the legality of the petitioner's detention, including allegations that specifically respond to the allegations of the petition that form the basis of the petitioner's claim that the confinement is unlawful [People v. Duvall (1995) 9 Cal. 4th 464, 476, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 259, 886 P.2d 1252 ; People v. Romero, (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 728, 738, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 270, 883 P.2d 388 ; In re Saunders (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 1033, 1047, 88 Cal. Rptr. 633, 472 P.2d 921 ; see § 292.17[2][b]]. NOTE: A return consisting solely of general denials of the allegations of the petition is generally insufficient [see People v. Duvall (1995) 9 Cal. 4th 464, 479-481, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 259, 886 P.2d 1252 ; In re Lewallen (1979) 23 Cal. 3d 274, 278 n.2, 152 Cal. Rptr. 528, 590 P.2d 383] . Any material allegation of the petition not controverted by the return is deemed admitted for purposes of the habeas corpus proceeding [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 4.551(d)].

4. Documentary evidence, affidavits, or other materials that will enable the court to determine which issues are truly disputed [People v. Duvall (1995) 9 Cal. 4th 464, 476, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 259, 886 P.2d 1252 ; In re Lewallen (1979) 23 Cal. 3d 274, 278 n.2, 152 Cal. Rptr. 528, 590 P.2d 383] .

5. If the person on whom the writ is served has transferred custody of the party to another person, the following information [Penal Code § 1480(4)]:

a. The name of the transferee.

b. The time and place of transfer.

c. The cause and authority for the transfer.

6. In child custody cases, facts showing that respondent's continued custody of child is in child's best interests under statutory standards [see generally Fam. Code § 3000 et seq.; Ch. 223, Dissolution of Marriage: Child Custody; Ch. 394, Parent and Child].

[3] Draft and Prepare Return

1. Format [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.386(c)]. See § 292.60[4].

2. Copies [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.386(b)(2)]. See § 292.60[4].

3. If the party is detained by virtue of any writ, warrant, or other written authority, a copy of the written authority must be annexed to the return, and the original produced and exhibited to the court or judge on the hearing of the return [Penal Code § 1480(3)].

4. Have the return signed and verified by respondent [Penal Code § 1480(5)].

5. Serve and present the return for filing [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.386(b)(1)].

6. If time and circumstances allow, present with the return a memorandum supporting the position of respondent and opposing the granting of the relief sought by petitioner. See generally California Points and Authorities, Ch. 110, Habeas Corpus (Matthew Bender).

7. Obtain the original of any writ, warrant, or other written authority by virtue of which petitioner is detained to be produced and exhibited to the court or judge on the hearing of the return [Penal Code § 1480(3)].

[4] Hearing

1. Attend the hearing at the time and place fixed by the court and present oral argument and evidence in opposition to the relief requested by petitioner.

2. Produce the originals of any writs, warrants, or other written authority, by virtue of which the party is detained, for the court or judge at the hearing on the return [see Penal Code § 1480(3)].

3. Produce the body of petitioner or the person in whose behalf the writ was sought before the court, if ordered in the writ or other process, at the time and place specified by the court in the writ or process.

CAUTION:

Cal. Judicial Council form MC-275 must be used for a petition for a writ of habeas corpus. There are two exceptions to this requirement: One is that for good cause, the court may accept for filing a petition that is not on the Judicial Council form. The other exception is that a petition submitted by an attorney need not be on the Judicial Council form [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 4.551(a)(1), (2); for an illustration of that form, see § 292.81]. It is recommended that the Judicial Council form be used rather than this form in any event.

[2] Use of Form

This general form of petition is for use in a proceeding to obtain the writ of habeas corpus to inquire into the cause of the custody or detention of the person in whose behalf the petition is brought or of the petitioner [Penal Code § 1473].

For discussion of the various situations in which a petition for writ of habeas corpus may be used, particularly with respect to civil commitments rather than criminal detentions, see the Introduction [see, e.g., discussion § 292.27].

For a form of petition for use to enforce a child custody order, see § 292.85. For a form of petition for use to recover custody of a child from a person who is not entitled to custody, see § 292.86.

[3] Allegations

This petition alleges:

- The name of the person unlawfully restrained (Paragraph 1) [Penal Code § 1474].
- That the person is restrained of his or her liberty (Paragraph 1) [Penal Code § 1474].
- The name and position of the officer or person by whom he/she is restrained (Paragraph 1) [Penal Code § 1474].
- The place of the restraint (Paragraph 1) [Penal Code § 1474].
- The relationship of the petitioner to the person restrained, if appropriate (Paragraph 2).
- The cause or pretext of the restraint (Paragraph 3) [Penal Code § 1473].
- The illegality of the restraint and supporting facts (Paragraph 4) [Penal Code § 1474].
- Why custody should vest in petitioner, if appropriate (Paragraph 5).
- That petitioner has no other plain, adequate, and speedy remedy, when appropriate (Paragraph 6) [In re Wallace (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 289, 292, 90 Cal. Rptr. 176, 475 P.2d 208] .
- Exhaustion of administrative remedies, when appropriate (Paragraph 7) [In re Muszalski (1975) 52 Cal. App. 3d 500, 503-508, 125 Cal. Rptr. 286] .
- That a prior application for the writ has or has not been made with regard to the same restraint and, if so, a statement of all proceedings had on prior applications, including final orders on appeal or otherwise (Paragraph 8) [Penal Code § 1475].

[4] Points and Authorities

This petition is not required to be accompanied by points and authorities supporting it. The better practice, however, when time and circumstances allow, is to include points and authorities supporting the granting of the writ in general and supporting the allegation that the commitment or detention alleged is illegal.

[5] Signing and Verification

The petition must be signed by the party for whose relief it is intended or some person in his or her behalf [Penal Code § 1474] and must be verified by the oath or affirmation of the party making the application [Penal Code §§ 1474(3), 1475].

[6] Copies

The following copies of the petition should be prepared:

(1) Original for filing;

(2) Copy for service on the district attorney where the person is held in custody by an officer of the court or a peace officer or is held for violation of an ordinance;

(3) Copy for service on the city attorney where a city ordinance violation is involved;

(4) Copy for client;

(5) Copy for office file; and

[7] Service

When the person applying for the writ is held in custody by an officer of a court or by a peace officer, a copy of the petition must be served on the district attorney of the county in which the person applying is held in custody at least 24 hours before the time at which the writ is made returnable, and no application for the writ can be heard without proof of service in cases where service is required [Penal Code § 1475]. Normal practice would seem to indicate that in a case not covered by the above rule a copy of the petition should be served on counsel for respondent or on the person in charge of the facility or institution, if any, in which petitioner is held. An order to show cause issued in lieu of the writ (see § 292.89) may direct service of the petition and the order to show cause on the opposing parties.

[8] Endorsement

Any court or judge authorized to grant the writ, to whom a petition is presented, must endorse on the petition the hour and date of its presentation and the hour and date of the granting or denial of the writ [Penal Code § 1476].

[9] Jurisdiction and Venue

Superior courts and their judges have original jurisdiction in habeas corpus proceedings [Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10]. Territorial limits on the jurisdiction of the superior courts to entertain petitions and grant relief in habeas corpus proceedings were eliminated by the constitutional revision of 1966 which eliminated the express provision that superior courts could act only within their respective counties. However, the court must determine whether to hear the matter on the merits or transfer it to a court better situated to conduct an evidentiary hearing should that be necessary [Griggs v. Superior Court (1976) 16 Cal. 3d 341, 344-347, 128 Cal. Rptr. 223, 546 P.2d 727] .

A habeas corpus petition filed in superior court generally must be heard and resolved in the court in which it is filed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 4.552(a); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 4.552(d) (petition filed in superior court must be decided by single judge and must not be considered by appellate division of superior court)]. However, the superior court in which the petition is filed must determine, based on the allegations of the petition, whether the matter should be heard by it or by the superior court of another county [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 4.552(b)(1)]. If the court determines that the matter may be more properly heard by the superior court of another county, it may nonetheless retain jurisdiction in the matter; or it may, without first determining whether a prima facie case for relief exists, order the matter transferred to the other county [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 4.552(b)(2)]. A transfer may be ordered in the following circumstances [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 4.552(b)(2)]:

(1) If the petition challenges the terms of a judgment, the matter may be transferred to the county in which judgment was rendered. However, transfer is mandatory if the petition challenges the denial of parole or the petitioner's suitability for parole and is filed in a superior court other than the court that rendered the underlying judgment. In such a case the court must transfer the matter before determining whether the petition states a prima facie case for relief, and the court must specify in the order of transfer the reason for the transfer [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 4.552(c); see In re Roberts (2005) 36 Cal. 4th 575,

(2) If the petition challenges the conditions of an inmate's confinement, it may be transferred to the county in which the petitioner is confined [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 4.552(b)(2)(B) (change in institution of confinement that effects change in conditions of confinement may constitute good cause to deny petition)].

The transferring court must specify in the order of transfer the reason for the transfer [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 4.552(b)(3)]. If the receiving court determines that the reason for the transfer is inapplicable, the receiving court must, within 30 days after receiving the case, order the case returned to the transferring court, which must then resolve the matter [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 4.552(b)(4)].

[10] Prayer

The prayer should indicate the precise relief sought, since a court that has issued the writ of habeas corpus is not limited to either discharging petitioner from or remanding petitioner to custody, but may dispose of petitioner as the justice of the case may require [In re Crow (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 613, 619, 94 Cal. Rptr. 254, 483 P.2d 1206] .

[11] Time Limit for Acting on Petition

The superior court must rule on a habeas corpus petition within 60 days after it is filed, either by issuing an order to show cause, denying the petition, or requesting an informal response [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 4.551(a)(3)(A), (a)(4); see § 292.87-292.89]. If the court fails to rule on the petition within 60 days of its filing, the petitioner may file a notice and request for a ruling [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 4.551(a)(3)(B); see § 292.13[3]].

[2] Use of Form

A petition for a writ of habeas corpus must be on this form of petition, adopted by the Judicial Council [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.380(a), 4.551(a)(1)]. This requirement does not apply, however, to a petition submitted by an attorney [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.380(b), 4.551(a)(2)].

For a form of petition for writ of habeas corpus for use in cases involving institutional confinement under state court process, when the petition is drafted and submitted by an attorney, see § 292.82.

For good cause, a court may accept for filing a petition that is not on the Judicial Council form. However, a petition that is not on the Judicial Council form must comply with statutory requirements [see Penal Code § 1474] and must contain the pertinent information specified in the Judicial Council form, including the information required regarding other petitions, motions, or applications filed in any court with respect to the conviction, commitment, or issue [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 4.551(a)(2)].

This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

[3] Prayer

The attorney may wish to add to this approved form a prayer indicating the precise relief sought by petitioner. Since the court that issued the writ of habeas corpus is not limited to either discharging the petitioner from or remanding the petitioner to custody, but may dispose of petitioner as the justice of the case may require [In re Crow (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 613, 619, 94 Cal. Rptr. 254, 483 P.2d 1206] , the prayer should indicate the precise relief sought.

[4] Supporting Memorandum

Although a supporting memorandum is not required in support of the petition [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.380(b)], a memorandum supporting the allegations of the petition and the propriety of the relief sought may be of value, particularly when the petition and attached documents will be used as traverse to the return to the writ or the order to show cause [see § 292.18]. Any supporting documents accompanying the petition must comply with Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(c)(1), (2) [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.384(b)(3)].

[5] Signing and Verification by Petitioner

In general, an application for a writ, although prepared by another, should be signed, verified, and filed by the inmate seeking relief. The courts will generally refuse to entertain a petition made by an inmate other than the one for whom relief is sought. Only in very exceptional circumstances will a "next friend" application be entertained, and the complaint must in that case set forth some reason or explanation satisfactory to the court showing why the detained person does not sign and verify the petition and who the "next friend" is [In re Harrell (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 675, 689, 87 Cal. Rptr. 504, 470 P.2d 640] .

[2] Use of Form

This form of petition is for use by an attorney representing a petitioner who seeks to obtain release from, or modifications of the conditions of, custody in a state or local penal institution, hospital, narcotics treatment facility, or other institution [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.384(a)(1) see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 4.551(a)(2)]. If the petitioner is proceeding without representation, he or she should use California Judicial Council Form MC-275 [see § 292.81], unless the court for good cause accepts the filing of a petition that is not on the Judicial Council form [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.380(a) see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 4.551(a)(1)].

[3] Institutional Confinement Under State Court Process

[a] Petition Submitted on Other Than Judicial Council Form

California Judicial Council Form MC-275 ordinarily must be used for a petition for a writ of habeas corpus, unless the petition is submitted by an attorney or the court for good cause accepts the filing of a petition that is not on the Judicial Council form [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.380(a), 8.384(a)(1)]. A petition that is not on the Judicial Council form must contain the information requested in that form [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.384(a)(1)]. This form allows for inclusion of the pertinent information specified in the Judicial Council form, which is set out in § 292.81.

[b] Filing of Non-Conforming Petition on Good Cause

For good cause, the court may permit a petitioner proceeding without representation to file a petition that is not on the Judicial Council form [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.380(a) see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 4.551(a)(1)]. A petitioner who modifies this form to proceed without an attorney should therefore include an explanation of why the Judicial Council form has not been used.

[4] Allegations

This petition alleges pertinent information specified in Cal. Judicial Council Form MC-275, seeking relief from a civil (rather than criminal) commitment:

- Information related to the custody (Paragraphs 1-3; see Cal. Judicial Council Form MC-275, Introductory Paragraph, Paragraphs 1-3).

- Information related to the proceedings in the trial court (Paragraph 5-7; see Cal. Judicial Council Form MC-275, Paragraphs 3-5).

- The expected release date (Paragraph 8; see Cal. Judicial Council Form MC-275, Paragraph 3, h).

- Information regarding representation in the trial court (Paragraphs 9; see Cal. Judicial Council Form MC-275, Paragraph 3, i).

- Grounds and facts on which the petition is based (Paragraphs 10 and 11; see Cal. Judicial Council Form MC-275, Paragraph 6).

- Information related to prior review (Paragraphs 12-15; see Cal. Judicial Council Form MC-275, Paragraphs 8-11).

- Information related to any previously filed any petitions, applications, or motions (Paragraph 16; see Cal. Judicial Council Form MC-275, Paragraphs 12-14).

- Explanation of any delay in discovering and raising the claimed grounds for relief (Paragraph 17; see Cal. Judicial Council Form MC-275, Paragraphs 15).

- Information regarding current representation (Paragraph 18; see Cal. Judicial Council Form MC-275, Paragraph 16).

- Explanation of any matters pending (Paragraph 19; see Cal. Judicial Council Form MC-275, Paragraph 17).

- If petition might lawfully have been made to a lower court, statement of circumstances justifying application to present court (Paragraph 20; see Cal. Judicial Council Form MC-275, Paragraph 18).

See § 292.81 for additional discussion of these allegations.

[5] Supporting Memorandum

This petition is not required to be accompanied by a supporting memorandum. The better practice, however, when time and circumstances permit, is to include a memorandum supporting the granting of the writ in general and supporting the allegation that the detention alleged is illegal or that the conditions of the detention are illegal.

[6] Signing and Verification

This petition must be signed by the party for whose relief it is intended or some person in his or her behalf [Penal Code § 1474] and must be verified by the oath or affirmation of the party making the application [Penal Code §§ 1474(3), 1475].

PETITION FOR WRIT OF HABEAS CORPUS [AND MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES]

TO THE HONORABLE PRESIDING JUSTICE AND ASSOCIATE JUSTICES OF THE COURT OF APPEAL OF THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA:

Petitioner alleges:

[Allegation where writ is first sought in appellate court: This petition was not filed in the superior court because _____ (specify)].

CAUTION:

California Judicial Council Form MC-275 [see § 292.81] ordinarily must be used for a petition for a writ of habeas corpus if the petitioner seeks release from, or modifications of the conditions of, custody in a state or local penal institution, hospital, narcotics treatment facility, or other institution. However, the Judicial Council form need not be used if the petition is submitted by an attorney or the court for good cause accepts the filing of a petition that is not on the Judicial Council form [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.380(a), 8.384(a)(1)].

This form of caption and allegation is for use in adapting the petition for writ of habeas corpus set out in § 292.80 for use in a court of appeal.

[3] Allegations

The allegation of the reasons why the petition is not filed with the superior court is required if the petition is filed in the first instance with the court of appeal rather than the superior court. The court of appeal has discretion to deny the writ on the ground that application was not made to the lower court if no extraordinary reason exists for action by the court of appeal [In re Hillery (1962) 202 Cal. App. 2d 293, 294, 20 Cal. Rptr. 759] .

[4] Copies

The following copies of the petition should be prepared:

(1) Original, plus one set of any separately bound supporting documents, for filing with court of appeal [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.44(b)(2), (3), (5), 8.380(c), 8.384(c)];

(2) Unless petitioner is proceeding without an attorney, four additional copies for filing with court of appeal [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.44(b)(3), (5), 8.384(c)];

(3) Copy for service on district attorney, if required [Penal Code § 1475];

(4) Copy for service on city attorney, if required [Penal Code § 1475];

(5) Office copy;

(6) Copy for client, if desired; and

[5] Format

The petition must conform to Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.204(b), which mandates the binding, print size, margins, and form of headings for appellate briefs [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.40; for further discussion, see Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs]. Although the rule requiring an index of contents and table of authorities in an appellate brief does not apply to a writ petition, this form of petition includes these useful features [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.10(7), 8.204(a)(1)].

The cover of the petition in this form is in the format required for a printed petition [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.204(b)(10)]. The cover of any writ petition should be red, so far as practicable [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.40(b)(1)].

For other format requirements that may be imposed by particular courts of appeal, counsel should contact the court's staff attorney who handles petitions for writs of habeas corpus.

[6] State Constitution

Supreme Court, courts of appeal, and superior courts as having original jurisdiction in habeas corpus proceedings. Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10

[7] State Statutes

When writ may be issued by superior court, court of appeal, or Supreme Court after writ has been granted and denied by lower court. Penal Code § 1475

Where writ returnable. Penal Code § 1508

[8] California Rules of Court

Form and filing of petition filed with appellate courts. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.40

When use of Judicial Council form is required. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.380(a), 8.384(a)(1)

Recycled paper required for briefs or other paper filed with reviewing court or served on other parties. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.204(b)

Reviewing court as permitted, before passing on petition for writ of habeas corpus, to order custodian of record to produce record and file it with clerk of reviewing court or to request informal response from respondent; requirements of informal response. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.385(a),(b)

In re _____ [name in capital letters] on Habeas Corpus.	))))	NO. _____

PETITION FOR WRIT OF HABEAS CORPUS [AND SUPPORTING MEMORANDUM]

TO THE HONORABLE CHIEF JUSTICE AND ASSOCIATE JUSTICES OF THE SUPREME COURT OF THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA:

[Allegation where writ is first sought in the Supreme Court: This petition was not filed in the superior court or court of appeal because _____ (specify)].

CAUTION:

California Judicial Council Form MC-275 [see § 292.81] ordinarily must be used for a petition for a writ of habeas corpus if the petitioner seeks release from, or modifications of the conditions of, custody in a state or local penal institution, hospital, narcotics treatment facility, or other institution. However, the Judicial Council form need not be used if the petition is submitted by an attorney or the court for good cause accepts the filing of a petition that is not on the Judicial Council form [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.380(a), 8.384(a)(1)].

[2] Use of Form

This form of caption and allegation is for use in adapting the petition for writ of habeas corpus in § 292.80 for use in the Supreme Court.

[3] Allegations

The allegation of the reasons why the petition is not filed with the superior court or with a court of appeal is required when the petition is filed in the first instance with the Supreme Court rather than with one of the appellate courts or a superior court. The Supreme Court has discretion to deny the writ on the ground that application was not made to a lower court where no extraordinary reason exists for action by it [see In re Hillery (1962) 202 Cal. App. 2d 293, 294, 20 Cal. Rptr. 759] .

[4] Copies

The following copies of the petition should be prepared:

- Original for filing with the Supreme Court.
- Ten copies for filing with the Supreme Court, plus an original and two copies of any supporting document accompanying the petition, unless the Court orders otherwise [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.44(b)(2), (3), 8.380(c), 8.384(c)].
- Copy for service on district attorney, if required [Penal Code § 1475].
- Copy for service on city attorney, if required [Penal Code § 1475].
- Office copy.
- Copy for client, if desired.
- Additional copies as desired.

[5] Format

The petition must conform to Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.204(b), which mandates the binding, print size, margins, and form of headings for appellate briefs [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.40; for further discussion, see Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs].

The cover of the petition in the form is in the format required for a printed petition [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.204(b)(10)]. The cover of any writ petition should be red, so far as practicable [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.40(b)(1)]. A petition for writ of habeas corpus filed with the Supreme Court is usually presented to the court in the form of a brief, with a statement of the facts of the case and with argument, and should usually be accompanied by points and authorities.

§ 292.85 Petition for Writ of Habeas Corpus [Penal Code § 1474]--To Enforce Child Custody Order

[1] FORM Petition for Writ of Habeas Corpus [Penal Code § 1474]--To Enforce Child Custody Order

[Caption and address. See § 292.80, 3, or 4 as appropriate.]

Petitioner alleges:

1. Petitioner is the _____ [relationship] of _____ [name], on whose behalf this petition is brought, a minor child of petitioner and respondent herein [or other as appropriate]. The child is a boy/girl, born on _____ [date], and is now _____ years of age.

2. Petitioner is at this time entitled to the physical custody and possession of the above-named child.

3. On _____ [date], in the _____ [specify] Court of _____ [state], _____ County, in an action entitled _____ [specify], the Honorable _____ [name], Judge of the above-named court, made an order awarding custody of the child to petitioner herein and ordering that respondent deliver the child to the custody of petitioner herein, a copy of which order is attached, marked Exhibit A, and incorporated herein.

4. _____ [Allege facts showing unlawful detention of the child by respondent, e.g., Prior to, and on _____ [date], when the above-described order was entered, respondent _____ (name) had physical custody and possession of the child at his/her home located at _____ (address), _____ (city), _____ County, California. On that date, petitioner appeared at the home of respondent with _____ (name and position, e.g., police officer _____ [name], Badge No. _____ [specify], of the police department of _____ California) and served on respondent a certified copy of the attached order and demanded that respondent deliver possession of the child to him/her, but respondent then refused and still refuses to deliver the child to petitioner herein and still keeps physical possession of the child at the above-named address].

5. _____ [Allege further circumstances, e.g., At that time, respondent herein ordered petitioner herein to leave his/her property and stated in the presence of the police officer and petitioner that he/she did not intend to obey the court order attached].

6. [Allegation of previous applications. See § 292.80, Paragraph 8.]

7. [Allegation of no speedy and adequate remedy at law. See § 292.80, Paragraph 6.]

8. [Allegation of reasons why appellate court should issue writ on first application, if appropriate. See § 292.83.]

WHEREFORE, petitioner prays judgment as follows:

1. That a writ of habeas corpus issue directed to respondent _____[name], commanding him/her to produce the body of _____ [name of child] before the court at the time and place designated in the writ;

2. That respondent show cause, if any exists, why the child is detained by respondent and not delivered to petitioner as of right;

3. That the child be taken from respondent and delivered to the custody of petitioner; and

4. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

This form of petition is for use in a proceeding for the writ of habeas corpus to obtain custody of a child pursuant to a valid court order, when the child is withheld by one not entitled under the order to custody.

[3] Allegations

The petition alleges:

- The relationship of the petitioner to the child whose custody is in question (Paragraph 1).

- That petitioner is entitled to custody of the child (Paragraphs 2, 3) [In re Richard M. (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 783, 789, 122 Cal. Rptr. 531, 537 P.2d 363 ; In re Croze (1956) 145 Cal. App. 2d 492, 495, 302 P.2d 595] .

- Illegal detention of the child by respondent (Paragraphs 4, 5) [Penal Code §§ 1473, 1474(2)].

- The place of illegal detention and name of person detaining child, if known (Paragraph 4) [Penal Code § 1474(1)].

[2] Use of Form

This form of order directs the writ of habeas corpus to issue. It is for use in a proceeding for writ of habeas corpus when the court grants the writ and when there is no printed superior court form available in the county. Many counties have printed forms for the order granting the writ and for the writ itself. The courts of appeal and Supreme Court draft their own orders. Counsel may wish to include this form of order if it will be used, at the end of the petition; if so, the fact of inclusion would be properly indicated in the caption.

This form of writ of habeas corpus is for use where the writ has been granted in a county which does not use a printed form of writ of habeas corpus supplied by the county clerk or court. Counsel should determine local practice before drafting such a writ. The courts of appeal and Supreme Court frequently grant an order to show cause why the writ should not issue rather than granting the writ itself. Many superior courts, especially in counties in which there are large state prisons and, therefore, many habeas corpus filings, have developed a similar practice [In re Hochberg (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 870, 874 n.2, 87 Cal. Rptr. 681, 471 P.2d 1] . When a court of appeal or the Supreme Court grants the writ rather than an order to show cause, the court will draft the writ.

The writ may be issued on any day or at any time [Penal Code § 1502]. It must be issued by the clerk of the court and sealed with the seal of the court [Penal Code § 1503]. The writ must be directed to the person having custody of the person on whose behalf the application for the writ was made and must command him or her to have the body of the person before the court or judge before whom the writ is returnable at the time and place specified in the writ [Penal Code § 1477].

[3] Service

The writ may be served on any day or at any time [Penal Code § 1502]. If the writ is directed to the sheriff or other ministerial officer of the court out of which it issues, it must be delivered by the clerk to the officer without delay, as other writs are delivered for service. If it is directed to any other person, it must be delivered to the sheriff or marshall and be served by him or her on the person to whom it is directed by delivering a copy to him or her without delay. The officer serving the writ must make his or her return of service on the original to the court of issuance. If the person to whom the writ is directed cannot be found or refuses service, the writ may be served or delivered by leaving it at the residence of the person to whom it is directed, or by affixing it to some conspicuous place on the outside of either his or her dwelling house or of the place where the party is confined or under restraint [Penal Code § 1478]. The writ must be served forthwith [Penal Code § 1503].

[4] Formal Defects in Writ

No writ of habeas corpus can be disobeyed for defect of form if it sufficiently appears from the writ in whose custody or under whose restraint the party imprisoned or restrained is, the officer or person detaining him or her, and the court or judge before whom he or she is to be brought [Penal Code § 1495].

[5] State Statutes

No fee as allowed to be charged for performance of services on writ of habeas corpus. Gov. Code § 6101

Court as required to grant the writ without delay where it appears it ought to issue. Penal Code § 1476

Contents of writ. Penal Code § 1477

No writ as allowed to be disobeyed for defect in form. Penal Code § 1495

Writ as allowed to be issued and served on any day or at any time. Penal Code § 1502

Writ as required to be issued by clerk, sealed with the seal of the court, and served and returned forthwith. Penal Code § 1503

Action for damages for disobedience of writ. Penal Code § 1505

Court as required either to release person being certified for intensive treatment who applies for judicial review by habeas corpus or to order an evidentiary hearing to be held, within two judicial days after the petition is filed. Welf. & Inst. Code § 5276

[6] Decisions

Courts of appeal, Supreme Court, and superior courts in some counties in which a large number of petitions for the writ are filed as having developed the practice of issuing an order to show cause why the writ should not be granted, instead of the writ. In re Hochberg (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 870, 874 n.2, 87 Cal. Rptr. 681, 471 P.2d 1

[2] Use of Form

This form of order to show cause is for use in a proceeding for a writ of habeas corpus in which the judge issues an order to show cause why the writ of habeas corpus should not be granted rather than directly issuing the writ [see *In re Hochberg (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 870, 873-874 n.2, 87 Cal. to show cause in § 292.15.

The superior court or appellate court issuing the order to show cause will normally use a printed form. Counsel should ascertain the relevant local or appellate procedures.

However, on _____ [date] at _____ [place], I transferred custody and control of [petitioner] _____ [name] to _____ [name of new custodian]. The transfer of custody was made by authority of _____ [specify authority for transfer], because _____ [specify reason for transfer].

[OR, if respondent never had custody of petitioner or person on whose behalf petition was filed]

2. I do not now have, nor have I at any time in the past had, custody or control of [petitioner] _____ [name].

[CONTINUE]

3. _____ [Allege facts justifying and showing the legality of the custody or restraint, or of the manner of custody or restraint, as appropriate, and showing that respondent is the proper person to have custody of the person for whom the writ or other process was issued, e.g., I have custody of _____ (name) by virtue of a judgment rendered by the _____ Court of the State of _____. A certified copy of the judgment is attached as Exhibit A and incorporated herein].

4. _____ [Allege additional facts that specifically respond to the allegations of the petition that form the basis of the petitioner's claim that the confinement is unlawful].

[ADD, if specific facts needed to respond to the allegations of the petition are unavailable to respondent]

5. The petition in this proceeding [also] alleges [in part] as follows: _____ [set forth allegation(s) that respondent wishes to respond to].

6. Based on the information that I currently have, I believe that this/these allegation(s) are untrue because _____ [set forth reasons why respondent believes in good faith that allegations are not true].

7. In order to [fully] respond to this/these allegation(s), I need the following [additional] information: _____ [specify]. This information is not readily available to me at this time because _____ [specify reasons why information is not available to respondent].

8. I have made the following efforts to obtain this information: _____ [specify steps taken to obtain information].

[CONTINUE]

WHEREFORE, I respectfully request that the court enter judgment as follows:

1. That the relief sought in the petition for writ of habeas corpus be denied; and

2. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.
Dated: _____.

Respectfully submitted,

VERIFICATION

I, _____ [name], am the respondent in the above-entitled proceeding. I have read the foregoing return and know its contents. The same is true of my own knowledge, except as to those matters that are therein stated on information and belief, and as to those matters, I believe it to be true.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

[2] Use of Form

This form of return is for use in responding to any of the following:

- A writ of habeas corpus [see Penal Code § 1480].

- An order to show cause (OSC) issued in lieu of a writ of habeas corpus [see People v. Duvall (1995) 9 Cal. 4th 464, 475-476, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 259, 886 P.2d 1252 ; In re Saunders (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 1033, 1047, 88 Cal. Rptr. 633, 472 P.2d 921] .

- A warrant issued in lieu of a writ of habeas corpus [see Penal Code § 1500].

The return should allege facts tending to establish the legality of the challenged detention and is analogous to the complaint in a civil proceeding [In re Saunders (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 1033, 1047, 88 Cal. Rptr. 633, 472 P.2d 921 ; see People v. Duvall (1995) 9 Cal. 4th 464, 476, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 259, 886 P.2d 1252] . The return should also deny any material allegations of the petition that are not true, since any material allegation of the petition that is not controverted by the return is deemed admitted for purposes of the habeas corpus proceeding [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 4.551(d)]. When the return acknowledges or admits allegations in the petition or traverse, that, if true, justify the relief sought, the relief may be properly granted without a hearing on the factual issues [In re Saunders (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 1033, 1048, 88 Cal. Rptr. 633, 472 P.2d 921 ; see People v. Duvall (1995) 9 Cal. 4th 464, 477, 479, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 259, 886 P.2d 1252] .

[3] Allegations

This return alleges:

- The service or delivery of the writ, OSC, or warrant (Alternative Paragraphs 1).

- Whether or not the respondent presently has the person in his or her custody, or whether respondent previously had the person in custody, but subsequently transferred custody to another person, and if so, the name of the transferee and the time, place, reason, and authority for the transfer (Alternative Paragraphs 2) [see Penal Code § 1480(1), (4)].

- Facts regarding the authority and justification for the custody or restraint, incorporating any written authority for the custody or restraint by reference (Paragraph 3) [see Penal Code § 1480(2), (3)].

- Any additional facts that specifically respond to the allegations of the petition that form the basis of the petitioner's claim that the confinement is unlawful (Paragraph 4) [see People v. Duvall (1995) 9 Cal. 4th 464, 476, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 259, 886 P.2d 1252 ; People v. Romero, (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 728, 738, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 270, 883 P.2d 388] .

- If specific facts needed to respond to some of the allegations of the petition are presently unavailable to respondent (Optional Paragraphs 5-8) [see People v. Duvall (1995) 9 Cal. 4th 464, 485, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 259, 886 P.2d 1252] :

  - The nature of the additional information needed.

  - The reasons why the additional information is presently unavailable to respondent.

  - The steps taken by respondent to obtain the additional information.

  - The reasons why respondent believes in good faith that the specified facts alleged in the petition are untrue.

For further discussion of the required contents of the return, see § 292.17[2].

[4] Signature and Verification

The return must be signed by the party making the return and, except when the party making the return is a public officer making the return in his or her official capacity, verified under oath [Penal Code § 1480(5)].

The form of verification is governed by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 446 and 2015.5. For discussion, see Ch. 572, Verification .

[5] Accompanying Documents; Points and Authorities

If the party is detained by virtue of any writ, warrant, or other written authority, a copy of the writing must be annexed to the return. The original must be produced and exhibited to the court or judge at the hearing of the return [Penal Code § 1480(3)]. The return should also, when appropriate, provide documentary evidence, affidavits, or other materials that will enable the court to determine which issues are truly disputed [People v. Duvall (1995) 9 Cal. 4th 464, 476, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 259, 886 P.2d 1252 ; In re Lewallen (1979) 23 Cal. 3d 274, 278 n.2, 152 Cal. Rptr. 528, 590 P.2d 383] .

It is also good practice to prepare a memorandum of points and authorities supporting the legality of custody by respondent and the denial of the relief sought to accompany the foregoing return. For forms of points and authorities supporting a return to a writ of habeas corpus or OSC, see California Points and Authorities, Ch. 110, Habeas Corpus (Matthew Bender).

§ 292.94 Allegation--Return to Writ of Habeas Corpus [Penal Code § 1480]--Custody of Child

[1] FORM Allegation--Return to Writ of Habeas Corpus [Penal Code § 1480]--Custody of Child

1. Respondent, who now has custody and physi cal possession of the child _____ [name], has such custody by virtue of the fact that the child _____ [name] was placed in the custody of respondent by _____ [specify, e.g., petitioner, the child's _____ (specify, e.g., mother), on _____ with instructions that the child be raised as one of respondent's family]. This child has been, and now is, in the custody of respondent and has been, and now is, living in respondent's home in a wholesome and stable environment. During the period of the last _____ years, the child has resided in the home of respondent. Respondent is a fit and suitable person to have custody of the child, and the best interests of the child require that his/her custody remain with respondent.

[2. Petitioner has abandoned the child who is the subject of this writ and has refused the custody of the child, as appears from the following instances in which petitioner _____ (specify).]

3. _____ [If petitioner is parent, allege: An award of custody of the child to petitioner would be detrimental to the child or if petitioner is not parent, allege: Petitioner is an unfit person to care for and have the custody of the child who is the subject of this writ, because _____ (specify facts known to respondent, if appropriate) (Respondent attaches and incorporates Exhibits A- _____, the declarations of _____ (name) and _____ (name) in support of his/her contentions.)].

[2] Use of Form

These allegations are for use in a return to a writ of habeas corpus seeking custody of a child who is in the custody and possession of respondent. The allegations state facts showing how respondent obtained custody of the child, that respondent is a fit and proper person to retain custody, that the child's best interests require continued custody with respondent, and that respondent is a person in whose home the child has been living in a wholesome and stable environment [Fam. Code § 3040(a)(2)].

Before the court makes any order awarding custody to a person or persons other than a parent, without the consent of the parents, it must make a finding that an award of custody to a parent would be detrimental to the child and the award to a nonparent is required to serve the best interests of the child. Allegations that parental custody would be detrimental to the child, other than a statement of ultimate fact, may not appear in the pleadings [Fam. Code § 3041].

For full discussion of standards governing child custody orders, see Ch. 223, Dissolution of Marriage: Child Custody , and Ch. 394, Parent and Child ,

[3] Points and Authorities and Declarations

Respondent should attach supporting declarations and submit the foregoing return supported by points and authorities.

[4] State Statutes

Order of preference, and award to nonparent of custody of a child. Fam. Code § 3040 et seq.

Mother and father of minor child as equally entitled to custody. Fam. Code § 3010

Uniform Parentage Act. Fam. Code §§ 7600 et seq.

[5] Decisions

Court's grant of the writ of habeas corpus returning custody of the child to the natural parent from third parties is proper, when the natural parent is a fit parent. In re Miller (1966) 244 Cal. App. 2d 454, 459, 53 Cal. Rptr. 211

[Verification. See § 292.80.]

[2] Use of Form

This form of traverse is for use in answering the return to a writ of habeas corpus or the return to an order to show cause or to a warrant issued in lieu of the writ. In the traverse, the petitioner may deny or controvert any of the material facts or matters set forth in the return, may except to the sufficiency of the return, or may allege any fact to show either that his or her imprisonment or detention is unlawful or that he or she is otherwise entitled to discharge [Penal Code § 1484]. Any material allegation of the return that is not denied in the traverse is deemed admitted for purposes of the habeas corpus proceeding [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 4.551(e)]. The court or judge must on the response to the return (the traverse) proceed in a summary way to hear such proof as may be produced against the imprisonment or detention and in favor of it, and to dispose of the party as the justice of the case requires [Penal Code § 1484].

[3] Petition Treated as Traverse

By stipulation or acquiescence, the petition for the writ may be treated as a traverse to the return [In re Saunders (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 1033, 1047, 88 Cal. Rptr. 633, 472 P.2d 921 ; see People v. Duvall (1995) 9 Cal. 4th 464, 477, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 259, 886 P.2d 1252] , in which case the petition and its allegations have the same effect as if they were in the traverse [In re Egan (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 323, 330, 149 P.2d 693 , cert. denied, 323 U.S. 785] . It is the general practice for the parties to stipulate at the hearing that the petition may be treated as a traverse. [In re Strafford (1958) 160 Cal. App. 2d 110, 113, 324 P.2d 967] .

When the petition is deemed a traverse to the return, the danger exists that a petition that fails to deny the specific allegations of the return will admit those allegations not so denied [In re De Leon (1943) 59 Cal. App. 2d 510, 513, 139 P.2d 109] . Counsel should be aware of this possible danger when deciding whether to have the petition treated as a traverse by stipulation or to file a prepared traverse to the return.

[4] Traverse as Answer

The traverse to the return is analogous to the answer in a civil proceeding [In re Saunders (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 1033, 1047, 88 Cal. Rptr. 633, 472 P.2d 921] . The petitioner may deny or controvert any of the material facts or matters set forth in the return or may allege any fact to show either that his or her imprisonment or detention is unlawful or that he or she is entitled to discharge [Penal Code § 1484].

A simple general denial of the allegations of the return is arguably inadequate as a traverse because the return, to which the traverse is an answer, must be verified [Penal Code § 1480(5)], and because the filing of a verified complaint in a civil action, to which the return is analogous [see In re Saunders (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 1033, 1047, 88 Cal. Rptr. 633, 472 P.2d 921] , precludes the filing of a general denial for the answer [see Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30]. By analogy to a civil action, the traverse, as the answer to the return, should not consist of a general denial.

[5] Traverse as Demurrer

When traversing the return to the writ, the petitioner may also except to the sufficiency of the return in a procedure analogous to a demurrer [Penal Code § 1484; In re Saunders (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 1033, 1048, 88 Cal. Rptr. 633, 472 P.2d 921 ; see People v. Duvall (1995) 9 Cal. 4th 464, 477, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 259, 886 P.2d 1252] .

[6] Time Limit for Filing Traverse to Return

In superior court, if an order to show cause has been issued, the traverse (or "denial," as it is called in the California Rules of Court) must be served on respondent and filed with the court within 30 days after service and filing of the return to the order to show cause [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 4.551(e)]. It is unclear whether this time limit applies when the writ has been issued, rather than an order to show cause.

Because the return must be verified [see Penal Code § 1480(5)], it appears that the traverse must also be verified, by analogy to the rule applicable to answers to verified complaints in civil actions in superior court [see Code Civ. Proc. § 446(a); for discussion, see Ch. 572, Verification].

[8] Points and Authorities and Other Documents

The traverse should be accompanied by a memorandum of points and authorities that supports the contentions raised in opposition to the return and the petitioner's right to the relief requested. Other documents, such as declarations, court orders, and judgments should be attached and incorporated as necessary.

For points and authorities supporting a traverse to a return to a writ of habeas corpus or OSC, see California Points and Authorities, Ch. 110, Habeas Corpus (Matthew Bender).

[9] State Statutes

Time limit for filing traverse in superior court. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 4.551(e)

[11] Decisions

Response to return is called "traverse" and is analogous to answer in civil proceeding; petition properly treated as traverse by stipulation or acquiescence. In re Saunders (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 1033, 1047, 88 Cal. Rptr. 633, 472 P.2d 921

Petitioner allowed to except to sufficiency of return in proceeding like demurrer. In re Saunders (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 1033, 1048, 88 Cal. Rptr. 633, 472 P.2d 921

New matter alleged in traverse deemed denied and required to be proved by petitioner. In re Saunders (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 1033, 1047-1048, 88 Cal. Rptr. 633, 472 P.2d 921

Parties generally stipulating at hearing that petition be treated as traverse. In re Stafford (1958) 160 Cal. App. 2d 110, 113, 324 P.2d 967

Demurrer to return to writ of habeas corpus admits material facts alleged in return for purposes of determining the sufficiency of return. In re Landry (1943) 61 Cal. App. 2d 230, 233, 142 P.2d 432

When petition deemed a traverse to the return by stipulation, petition that fails to deny the specific allegations of return may possibly be construed as admitting those allegations not so denied, but stipulation may be construed to provide that the allegations of the return be deemed denied. In re De Leon (1943) 59 Cal. App. 2d 510, 513, 139 P.2d 109

[1] FORM Declaration [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5] of Attorney for Order of Attachment [Penal Code § 1479]--Proceedings on Disobedience of Writ of Habeas Corpus

[Caption. See Forms 1, 4.]

I, _____ [name], declare:

I am the attorney of petitioner herein.

On _____ [date], in the _____ [court] of the State of California, by the Honorable _____ [name of judge or justice], an order granting a writ of habeas corpus to petitioner was duly made. The writ of habeas corpus was served on _____ [name and position of person having custody] by _____ [name and position], on _____ [date], at _____ [time], wherein it was commanded that the person on whom the writ was served have the body of _____ [petitioner or other person] before this court on _____ [date], at _____ [time], together with the time and cause of the restraint and detention of _____ [petitioner or other person].

Respondent has neglected and refused to obey the writ of habeas corpus and has not produced the body of _____ [petitioner or other person] nor made a return to the writ within the time allowed, notwithstanding respondent's knowledge of the writ and his/her ability to comply with it.

This disobedience on the part of respondent has been willful and with intent to frustrate the processes of the above court and to deprive petitioner of the benefits of the writ of habeas corpus.

WHEREFORE, I pray that an Order of Attachment be issued out of this court, commanding the _____ [sheriff or coronor] to apprehend _____ [name], respondent, and bring him/her immediately before this court and show cause why he/she should not be committed to _____ [specify name of jail] until he/she makes due return to the writ or is otherwise legally discharged.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

It appears to the court, on reading and filing the declaration of _____ [name], that _____ [name], respondent herein, is in contempt of this court in that he/she has not obeyed the command of the writ of habeas corpus granted by the court and duly served on respondent. Therefore,

IT IS HEREBY ORDERED that a warrant of attachment issue, pursuant to the provisions of Section 1479 of the Penal Code, to bring _____ [name], respondent, before this court on _____ [date], at _____ [time], to answer charge and to show cause why he/she should not be committed to _____[specify name of jail] until he/she makes due return to the writ or is otherwise legally discharged.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that a copy of the declaration of _____ [name] be served on _____ [name], respondent, at the time of his/her arrest under the warrant.
Dated: _____.

_____ [signature]

Judge

[2] Use of Form

The foregoing order that a warrant of attachment issue is for use in proceedings on disobedience of the writ of habeas corpus. Many courts will have their own printed forms of order or will issue and draft their own orders. Counsel should determine local or appellate practice before drafting the foregoing order.

[Caption. See § 292.80.]

THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA,

To the _____ [Sheriff or Coronor] of _____ County, California, Greetings:

YOU ARE HEREBY COMMANDED, forthwith, to attach the body of _____ [name] and bring him/her before the _____ [court], State of California, to answer for a contempt of court for failure to obey a writ of habeas corpus heretofore issued by this court in the above-entitled proceeding, as per mandate of this court.

Given under my hand, with the seal of this court affixed this day of _____ [date].

BY ORDER OF COURT

Judge

[2] Use of Form

The foregoing form of warrant of attachment is for use in a proceeding for writ of habeas corpus on disobedience of the writ by respondent. Many counties and the appellate courts will have their own printed forms of warrant on which they will issue the warrant of attachment. The attorney should determine local or appellate practice before drafting this warrant.

§ 292.99 Complaint for Damages for Disobedience of Writ of Habeas Corpus [Penal Code § 1505]

[1] FORM Complaint for Damages for Disobedience of Writ of Habeas Corpus [Penal Code § 1505]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Petitioner,	)	NO. _____
vs.	)	COMPLAINT FOR DAMAGES FOR DISOBEDI-
_____ [name],	)	ENCE OF WRIT
Respondent.	)	OF HABEAS CORPUS
	)	Amount demanded does not exceed $10,000
	)	[Limited Civil Case]

Plaintiff alleges:

1. The cause of action herein stated arose in _____ County, California, wherein defendant _____ [specify acts in disobedience of the writ of habeas corpus].

2. [Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that at all times herein-mentioned defendant _____ (name) was authorized and empowered by defendant _____ (name of principal) to act and did act as the agent of defendant _____ (principal), and each and all of the things herein alleged to have been done by him/her were done in the capacity of and as agent for defendant _____ (principal).]

3. On _____ [date], in the _____ Court of the State of California [in the County of _____], Honorable _____ [judge or justice] presiding, an order was duly made granting a writ of habeas corpus to plaintiff, directed to defendant _____ [name] herein.

4. On _____ [date], the above-alleged writ of habeas corpus was served on defendant by _____ [name], wherein it was commanded that the respondent named in the writ have the body of plaintiff herein before the court named in the writ on _____ [date], at _____ [time], together with the time and cause of the restraint and detention. A copy of the writ is attached as Exhibit A and incorporated herein.

5. Defendant neglected and refused to obey the attached writ of habeas corpus and did not produce the body of plaintiff before the court at the time and place as commanded by the writ, and defendant neglected and refused to make a return to the writ within the time allowed, notwithstanding defendant's knowledge of the writ and his/her ability to comply with the writ.

6. The disobedience of defendant to the writ has been willful on the part of defendant and with intent to frustrate the processes of the court and to deprive plaintiff of the benefits of the writ of habeas corpus.

7. Plaintiff brings this action under the provisions of Section 1505 of the Penal Code.

8. As a consequence of defendant's wrongful acts, plaintiff has been damaged in the sum of _____.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment as follows:

1. For damages in the sum of _____; and

2. For other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

_____ [firm name, if any]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Plaintiff

[Verification, if desired. See § 292.80.]

[2] Use of Form

This form of complaint is for use in an action for damages for failure to obey the writ of habeas corpus. If the person to whom a writ of habeas corpus is directed refuses obedience to the command of the writ, he or she forfeits and pays to the person aggrieved a sum not exceeding $10,000, to be recovered in any court of competent jurisdiction [Penal Code § 1505].

[3] Jurisdiction and Venue

The superior court has jurisdiction of unlimited civil cases as well as limited civil cases (i.e., actions in which, generally, the amount in controversy, exclusive of interest, is $25,000 or less) [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(1)]. In a limited civil case, the caption must identify the case as a limited civil case and must state whether the demand exceeds or does not exceed $10,000 [Code Civ. Proc. § 422.30(b); Gov. Code § 70613(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(9),(10)].

The county in which the case or some part of it arose is the proper county, subject to the power of the courts to transfer actions, for the trial of an action for the recovery of a penalty or forfeiture imposed by statute [Code Civ. Proc. § 393(a)]. and, therefore, for an action pursuant to Penal Code § 1505 [Ah Fong v. Sternes (1889) 79 Cal. 30, 31-32, 21 P. 381] .

[4] Statute of Limitations

An action on a statute for a forfeiture or penalty, when the action is given to an individual, or to an individual and the state, must be commenced within one year [Code Civ. Proc. § 340(a)].

[5] Verification

Verification of this complaint is not required, and because the action is a limited civil case, verification of the complaint will not require the defendant to verify the answer [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446], or preclude a general denial unless the cause of action is a claim assigned to a third party for collection [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion of the effect that verifying a complaint has on the answer, see Ch. 26, Answers .

This chapter discusses court orders that prohibit harassment and that restrain persons from acts of workplace or domestic violence. Part II discusses the substantive legal requirements for obtaining temporary restraining orders and injunctions against civil harassment (subpt. A), workplace violence (subpt. B), and domestic violence (subpt. C) [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 527.6, 527.8; Fam. Code § 6200 et seq.]. Part III contains a research guide, and Part IV provides forms.

Although not reproduced in this chapter, the Judicial Council's Instructions for Orders Prohibiting Domestic Violence [Cal. Judicial Council Form DV-150] and Instructions for Petitions to Prohibit Workplace Violence [Cal. Judicial Council Form WV-150] may be helpful to persons who are applying for domestic violence or workplace violence orders without the assistance of counsel. The Instructions may be obtained from any county clerk or on the California Courts web site. Judicial Council Form CH-150, Can a Civil Harassment Restraining Order Help Me, and Judicial Council Form CH-151, How Can I Answer a Request for Orders to Stop Harassment, may be helpful to persons who are applying for, or responding to a request for, civil harassment restraining orders. These forms may also be obtained from any county clerk or on the California Courts web site.

Chapter 293 HARASSMENT AND DOMESTIC VIOLENCE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Civil Harassment

§ 293.11 Civil Harassment and Related Remedies Distinguished

The Code of Civil Procedure and Family Code provide a number of remedies for victims of harassment or domestic violence. When an aggrieved person seeks to obtain direct relief against the offending party, the remedies provided under Code Civ. Proc. § 527.6 (the general civil harassment statute) and under Fam. Code § 6200 et seq. (the Domestic Violence Prevention Act) must be reviewed for their applicability, as discussed immediately below. In addition, if actual or threatened violence against a person in the workplace is involved, an employer may seek to obtain injunctive relief against the offending party under Code Civ. Proc. § 527.8 to prevent the occurrence or reoccurrence of such violence, as discussed in subpt. B.

In bringing a direct action, the person seeking relief must initially identify whether the general harassment statute (Code Civ. Proc. § 527.6) or the Domestic Violence Prevention Act (Fam. Code § 6200 et seq.) applies. A person may seek restraining orders prohibiting harassment under Civ. Code § 527.6 when relief is not available under the Domestic Violence Prevention Act (Fam. Code § 6200 et seq.) or the Fair Debt Collections Practices Act (see Civ. Code § 1788 et seq.) [Code Civ. Proc. § 527.6(k)]. A person must seek relief under the Fair Debt Collections Practices Act, not Code Civ. Proc. § 527.6, when the offending party is a debt collector or claims that a debt is owed [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1788 et seq.]. Furthermore, relief must be sought under the Domestic Violence Prevention Act, not Civ. Code § 527.6, when the party seeking relief and the offending party:

- Are married, formerly married or related by blood, marriage or adoption;
- Are living together or have lived together;
- Have had a dating or engagement relationship; or
- Have a minor child in common who is the subject of an action under the Uniform Parentage Act (Fam. Code § 7600 et seq.) [see Fam. Code § 6221 (application of Domestic Violence Prevention Act)]. See discussion in subpt. C., below.

In addition, a person must seek relief under the Domestic Violence Prevention Act, not Civ. Code § 527.6, when he or she is:

- A child who is a juvenile court dependent;

- A child of a party to an action under the Domestic Violence Prevention Act; or

- A child who is the subject of an action under the Uniform Parentage Act and whose male parent is his or her presumed father [see Fam. Code § 6221 (application of Domestic Violence Prevention Act)]. See discussion in subpt. C., below.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Civil Harassment

§ 293.12 Harassment Defined

Harassment, for the purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 527.6, is unlawful violence, a credible threat of violence, or a knowing and willful course of conduct directed at a specific person that seriously alarms, annoys, or harasses the person, and that serves no legitimate purpose. The course of conduct must be such as would cause a reasonable person to suffer substantial emotional distress, and it must actually cause substantial emotional distress to the petitioner [Code Civ. Proc. § 527.6(b); Huntingdon Life Sciences, Inc. v. Stop Huntingdon Animal Cruelty USA, Inc. (2005) 129 Cal. App. 4th 1228, 1257-1258, 29 Cal. Rptr. 3d 521 (liability is based on defendant's credible threats of violence and defendant's lack of intent to actually carry out threats is immaterial)]. Code Civ. Proc. § 527.6 does not define "substantial emotional distress," but it may be properly compared to "severe emotional distress" in the tort context of intentional infliction of emotional distress. In that context, "severe emotional distress" means highly unpleasant mental suffering or anguish from socially unacceptable conduct, which entails such intense, enduring, and nontrivial emotional distress that no reasonable person in a civilized society should be expected to endure it. Therefore, not all actions that give rise to some emotional distress will constitute conduct that "cause[s] a reasonable person to suffer substantial emotional distress" within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 527.6, particularly if the distress is but transitory in nature [see Schild v. Rubin (1991) 232 Cal. App. 3d 755, 762-763, 283 Cal. Rptr. 533] .

As used in harassment statute, "unlawful violence" is any assault or battery, or stalking as prohibited by Penal Code § 646.9, but does not include lawful acts of self defense or defense of others. "Credible threat of violence" is a knowing and willful statement or course of conduct that would place a reasonable person in fear for his or her safety, or for the safety of that person's immediate family, and that serves no legitimate purpose [Code Civ. Proc. § 527.6(b)].

A course of conduct is a pattern of conduct composed of a series of acts over time, however short, evidencing a continuity of purpose, includingfollowing or stalking an individual, making harassing telephone calls, or sending harassing correspondence by any means, including, but not limited to, the use of public or private mail, fax, or computer e-mail [Code Civ. Proc. § 527.6(b)]. The course of conduct must be ongoing at the time the injunction is sought [Volpicelli v. Jared Sydney Torrance Memorial Hosp. (1980) 109 Cal. App. 3d 242, 251, 167 Cal. Rptr. 610] .

A single incident of harassment is not a course of conduct [Leydon v. Alexander (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 1, 4, 260

Cal. Rptr. 253] . Moreover, constitutionally protected activity, such as the right to petition administrative, executive, or judicial agencies, is not included within the meaning of a course of conduct [Code Civ. Proc. § 527.6(b); see, e.g., Leydon v. Alexander (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 1, 5, 260 Cal. Rptr. 253 ; Smith v. Silvey (1983) 149 Cal. App. 3d 400, 406-407, 197 Cal. Rptr. 15] .

In addition, conduct that is outside the definition of "harassment" cannot be enjoined under the summary procedures of Code Civ. Proc. § 527.6 even if it might ultimately be enjoined under normal injunctive procedures after full development of the facts and law. This statute is not intended to supplant normal injunctive procedures applicable to cases concerning conduct other than "harassment" as defined in the statute [Byers v. Cathcart (1997) 57 Cal. App. 4th 805, 811-812, 67 Cal. Rptr. 2d 398] .

A lesser standard of proof is required to show harassment in a proceeding for civil harassment than is required to show a criminal threat under Penal Code § 422, which specifies that the threat must be so unequivocal, unconditional, immediate, and specific as to convey a gravity of purpose and an immediate prospect of the execution of a crime resulting in death or great bodily injury [Brekke v. Wills (2005) 125 Cal. App. 4th 1400, 1413, 23 Cal. Rptr. 3d 609] .

§ 293.13 Relief Available

A person who has suffered harassment may seek a temporary restraining order and an injunction prohibiting harassment [Code Civ. Proc. § 527.6(a)]. In certain cases in which harassment takes place in the context of stalking, an emergency protective order is also potentially available, as discussed in § 293.54 [see Fam. Code § 6274; Penal Code § 646.91]. The summary procedures of Code Civ. Proc. § 527.6 only apply to natural persons, not to corporations, partnerships, or other entities [Huntingdon Life Sciences, Inc. v. Stop Huntingdon Animal Cruelty USA, Inc. (2005) 129 Cal. App. 4th 1228, 1258, 29 Cal. Rptr. 3d 521 ; Diamond View Limited v. Herz (1986) 180 Cal. App. 3d 612, 616-617, 225 Cal. Rptr. 651] .

Special rules apply to minor children who seek or oppose an order prohibiting harassment, with respect to the need for appointment of a guardian ad litem, as discussed in § 293.52[2][b] [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 372(b), 374, 374.5].

§ 293.14 Petition for Relief and Response

A person who seeks an injunction to prohibit harassment must file a petition [see Code Civ. Proc. § 527.6(c)] in the superior court with proper venue [see Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a); see § 293.100].

The defendant may file a response that explains, excuses, justifies, or denies the alleged harassment, or may file a cross complaint [see Code Civ. Proc. § 527.6(d)]. The response must be filed and delivered to the plaintiff or plaintiff's attorney no later than 48 hours before the hearing [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1152(d); see § 293.103]. If the defendant seeks an injunction against the plaintiff or a mutual injunction, a cross complaint must be filed and served. A statement in the response that the defendant would not object to a mutual injunction on the court's own motion is insufficient to meet due process requirements [Kobey v. Morton (1991) 228 Cal. App. 3d 1055, 1060, 278 Cal. Rptr. 530] . If the defendant wishes to obtain an injunction against the plaintiff, the defendant must file a cross-complaint seeking injunctive relief and present clear and convincing evidence of harassment by the plaintiff [Nora v. Kaddo (2004) 116 Cal. App. 4th 1026, 1029, 10 Cal. Rptr. 3d 862] .

A defendant may also file a special motion to strike under Code Civ. Proc. § 425.16, challenging the petition for injunctive relief; such a motion may not be used, however, to challenge an application for an interim restraining order issued pending a hearing on the petition for injunctive relief [City of Los Angeles v. Animal Defense League (2006) 135 Cal. App. 4th 606, 37 Cal. Rptr. 3d 632 ; Thomas v. Quintero (2005) 126 Cal. App. 4th 635, 643, 646-653, 24 Cal. Rptr. 3d 619] .

A malicious prosecution action cannot be based on an unsuccessful civil harassment petition. The defendant's remedy is to seek sanctions for the filing of a frivolous petition [Siam v. Kizilbash (2005) 130 Cal. App. 4th 1563, 1567, 1571-1574, 31 Cal. Rptr. 3d 368] .

§ 293.15 Seeking Pendente Lite Relief

[1] Application for and Issuance of Temporary Restraining Order

[a] Application

In the same petition requesting an injunction to prohibit harassment, a plaintiff may also seek a temporary restraining order [see Code Civ. Proc. § 527.6(c); see § 293.100[1]]. Unless otherwise ordered, no memorandum of points and authorities is required [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1150(b)].

[b] Issuance of Order

The plaintiff may obtain a temporary restraining order in accordance with the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 527, except to the extent that Code Civ. Proc. § 527.6 provides a rule that is inconsistent with Code Civ. Proc. § 527. Code Civ. Proc. § 527 authorizes the granting of an injunction at any time before judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 527.6(c)]. A temporary restraining order may be issued, with or without notice, on the basis of an affidavit (or declaration under penalty of perjury [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) that, to the satisfaction of the court, shows reasonable proof that (1) the respondent is harassing the petitioner, and (2) great or irreparable harm would result to the petitioner if the harassment is not restrained [Code Civ. Proc. § 527.6(c)].

In the discretion of the court, and on a showing of good cause, a temporary restraining order issued under Code Civ. Proc. § 527.6 may include other named family or household members who reside with the petitioner [Code Civ. Proc. § 527.6(c)].

The order must prohibit the defendant from taking any action to obtain the address or location of the plaintiff or the plaintiff's family members, caretakers, or guardian, unless there is good cause not to make this order [Code Civ. Proc. § 527.10(a)].

[2] Duration of Temporary Restraining Order

A temporary restraining order issued under Code Civ. Proc. § 527.6 remains in effect, at the court's discretion, for no longer than 15 days, or, if the court extends the time for hearing under Code Civ. Proc. § 527.6(d), not to exceed 22 days, unless otherwise modified or terminated by the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 527.6(c)].

§ 293.16 Service of Papers

[1] In General

On the filing of a petition for an injunction under Code Civ. Proc. § 527.6, the respondent must be personally served with a copy of the petition and any temporary restraining order [Code Civ. Proc. § 527.6(g); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1152(c)], the notice of hearing of the petition [Code Civ. Proc. § 527.6(g)], and the order to show cause [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1152(c)]. Service must be made at least five days before the hearing. The court may for good cause, on motion of the applicant or on its own motion, shorten the time for service on the opposing party [Code Civ. Proc. § 527.6(g)].

Service must be made in the manner provided by law for personal service ofsummons in civil actions [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1152(c)]. For additional discussion of procedural requirements for service in civil harassment actions and of papers that must be served, see § 293.100[2]. For discussion of personal service of summons in civil actions, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers .

[2] Service by Law Enforcement Officer at Scene of Incident

An injunctive order issued under Code Civ. Proc. § 527.6 must, on the plaintiff's request, be served on the defendant, whether or not the defendant has been taken into custody, by any law enforcement officer who is present at the scene of reported harassment involving the parties to the proceeding. The plaintiff must provide the officer with an endorsed copy of the order and a proof of service that the officer must complete and send to the issuing court [Code Civ. Proc. § 527.6(h)]. In addition, on receiving information at the scene of an incident of harassment that a protective order has been issued under Code Civ. Proc. § 527.6, or that a person who has been taken into custody is the subject of such an order, if the protected person cannot produce a certified copy of the order, a law enforcement officer must immediately attempt to verify the existence of the order. If the law enforcement officer determines that a protective order has been issued, but not served, the officer must immediately notify the defendant of the terms of the order and at that time also enforce the order. Verbal (that is, oral) notice of the terms of the order will constitute service of the order and is sufficient notice for the purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 527.6, and for the purposes of Penal Code §§ 273.6 and 12021(g) (governing punishment for violation of court order and for possession of firearm while subject to protective order) [

Code Civ. Proc. § 527.6(h)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Civil Harassment

25-293 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 293.17

§ 293.17 Hearing and Order

[1] Timing and Scope of Hearing

A hearing on the petition for an injunction against harassment sought under Code Civ. Proc. § 527.6 must be held within 15 days after the petition is filed, or, if good cause appears to the court, within 22 days from the date the temporary restraining order is issued [Code Civ. Proc. § 527.6(d); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1152(a)]. At the hearing, the judge must receive any testimony that is relevant and may make an independent inquiry [Code Civ. Proc. § 527.6(d); Nora v. Kaddo (2004) 116 Cal. App. 4th 1026, 1028-1029, 10 Cal. Rptr. 3d 862 (judge must allow parties to present testimony if they desire to do so)].

The judge may not grant the defendant's oral request at the hearing for mutual restraining orders. If the defendant wishes to obtain an injunction against the plaintiff, the defendant must file a cross-complaint seeking injunctive relief and present clear and convincing evidence of harassment by the plaintiff [Nora v. Kaddo (2004) 116 Cal. App. 4th 1026, 1029, 10 Cal. Rptr. 3d 862] .

[2] Representation by Counsel

Either party may be represented by private counsel or may appear on his or her own (i.e., the party's own) behalf [Code Civ. Proc. § 527.6(e)].

[3] Support Persons

A support person may accompany a party in court if there are allegations or threats of domestic violence. If the party is not represented by an attorney, the support person may sit with the party at the table generally reserved for the party and the party's attorney [Code Civ. Proc. § 527.6(f)].

The support person is present to provide moral and emotional support for a party who alleges that he or she is a victim of domestic violence. The support person is not present as a legal adviser and may not give legal advice. The support person assists the party who alleges he or she is a victim of domestic violence in feeling more confident that he or she will not be injured or threatened by the other person during the proceedings when the party who alleges he or she is a victim of domestic violence and the other party must be present in close proximity. Nothing precludes the court from exercising its discretion to remove the support person from the courtroom if the court believes the support person is prompting, swaying, or influencing the party assisted by the support person [Code Civ. Proc. § 527.6(f)].

[4] Evidence Required

If the court finds clear and convincing evidence that unlawful harassment exists, it must issue an injunction prohibiting the harassment [Code Civ. Proc. § 527.6(d)].

[5] No Undertaking Generally Required

A court, on granting an injunction, must generally order the applicant for the injunction to post an undertaking pending a hearing on the merits of the action [see Code Civ. Proc. § 529(a); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1150]. However, as discussed hereafter, it appears that an undertaking will not be routinely required in connection with injunctions against harassment because of the nature of the proceeding and relief afforded.

The Code of Civil Procedure's general undertaking requirement contains express exemptions for certain persons, including, among others, spouses in marital dissolution or legal separation proceedings, and applicants for orders under Fam. Code § 6200 et seq. (the Domestic Violence Prevention Act, discussed in Part II, below). Significantly, applicants for injunctions against harassment are not among those exempted by statute [see Code Civ. Proc. § 529(b)]. A literal construction of the harassment and undertaking statutes could lead to the conclusion that, because harassment injunctions are not expresslyexempted, the undertaking requirements automatically apply [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 527.6, 529].

However, several reasons may be advanced against this interpretation, and the more appropriate view appears to be that, while the court has the authority to order an undertaking on granting an injunction against harassment, none is necessarily required in such actions. In support of this view are the following reasons: (1) the scheme underlying the harassment injunction does not appear to contemplate that an undertaking should routinely be required given the type of relief afforded, which consists largely of restraints on personal conduct that are arguably similar to those under the Domestic Violence Prevention Act, applicants for which are exempt from the undertaking requirement [see Code Civ. Proc. § 529(b)]; (2) the injunctive relief involved is not such that the restrained person would normally suffer monetary damages (apart from any emotional hardship) as a result of complying with the injunction; and (3) the Judicial Council forms of Notice of Hearing and Temporary Restraining Order [§ 293.101[1]] and Restraining Order After Hearing to Stop Harassment [§ 293.104[1]] make no reference to an undertaking. Note, however, that the Judicial Council response form [§ 293.103[1]] permits the respondent to request that a court order attorney fees and costs, as well as "additional relief as may be proper" [see § 293.103[1]. Counsel should also keep in mind that the reported decisions have not ruled on this issue, and it thus remains subject to further judicial or statutory clarification.

For further discussion of undertakings in connection with injunctions, see Ch. 303, Injunctions .

[6] Duration of Injunction

An injunction issued pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 527.6 cannot last more than three years. At any time within the three months before the expiration of the injunction, the plaintiff may apply for a renewal of the injunction by filing a new petition for an injunction under Code Civ. Proc. § 527.6 [Code Civ. Proc. § 527.6(d)].

The injunction may be issued for a shorter period than three years. For example, a court that issued an injunction on the request of the mother of a 16-year-old daughter, requiring the daughter's 15-year-old boyfriend to stay away from the daughter, provided that the injunction would expire on the daughter's 18th birthday [Brekke v. Wills (2005) 125 Cal.

App. 4th 1400, 1415, 23 Cal. Rptr. 3d 609] .

Note also that the Code of Civil Procedure provides for the modification or dissolution of an injunction or temporary restraining order based on a showing of a material change in the facts or law on which the injunction or order was granted, or that the ends of justice would be served by modifying or dissolving the injunction or order [Code Civ. Proc. § 533].

[7] Registration With Law Enforcement Agencies

The court must order the plaintiff or the plaintiff's attorney to deliver a copy of each temporary restraining order or injunction, or modification or termination thereof, to the law enforcement agencies within the court's discretion as requested by the plaintiff. The copy should be transmitted by the close of the business day on which the order was granted. Each appropriate law enforcement agency must make available information as to the existence and current status of these orders to law enforcement officers who respond to the scene of reported harassment [Code Civ. Proc. § 527.6(h)]. For discussion of service of an order under Code Civ. Proc. § 527.6 by a law enforcement officer who is present at the scene of a reported incident of harassment, see § 293.16[2].

[8] Costs and Attorney's Fees

The prevailing party in any action brought under Code Civ. Proc. § 527.6 may be awarded court costs and attorney's fees, if any [Code Civ. Proc. § 527.6(i)]. A party who successfully seeks an injunction is the prevailing party even if the injunction is mutually binding against both parties [see Elster v. Friedman (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 1439, 1443-1444, 260 Cal. Rptr. 148] . A court may award attorney's fees to a prevailing defendant even if the action was not frivolous or brought in bad faith [Krug v. Maschmeier (2009) 172 Cal. App. 4th 796, 798, 91 Cal. Rptr. 3d 452] .

[9] Prohibition Against Firearms

A person who is subject to a protective order issued under Code Civ. Proc. § 527.6 is prohibited from owning, possessing, purchasing, receiving, or attempting to purchase or receive a firearm while the protective order is in effect [Code Civ. Proc. § 527.6(k)(1)]. The court must order the person to relinquish any firearms he or she owns or possesses in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. § 527.9 [Code Civ. Proc. § 527.6(k)(2)]. A person who owns, possesses, purchases, or receives, or attempts to purchase or receive a firearm while the protective order is in effect is guilty of a public offense punishable by imprisonment or a fine, or both under Penal Code § 12021(g) [Code Civ. Proc. § 527.6(k)(3)].

Proc. § 527.6(j)*; Penal Code § 273.6(a); see also Penal Code §§ 868.5 (attendance of persons for support of prosecuting witness), 1387(a)(3) (exception to double jeopardy if complaining witness fails to appear)]. [a] Grounds for Relief

Any employer, whose employee has suffered unlawful violence or a credible threat of violence from any individual that can reasonably be construed to be carried out or to have been carried out at the workplace, may seek a temporary restraining order and an injunction on behalf of the employee and, at the court's discretion, any number of other employees at the workplace, and, if appropriate, other employees at other workplaces of the employer [Code Civ. Proc. § 527.8(a)]. Thus, unlike the general civil harassment statute, which provides a right of action to an aggrieved individual who has experienced actual or threatened harassment, Code Civ. Proc. § 527.8 provides for an employer to take legal action on behalf of an employee [compare Code Civ. Proc. § 527.6 with Code Civ. Proc. § 527.8; see § 293.11].

An injunction under Code Civ. Proc. § 527.8 may only be issued against individuals, not against groups, associations, or corporate entities [City of Los Angeles v. Animal Defense League (2006) 135 Cal. App. 4th 606, 37 Cal. Rptr. 3d 632] .

For definitions of "employer," "employee," and related terms, see [2], below.

[b] Other Duties of Employer Unaffected

Although Code Civ. Proc. § 527.8 provides a right of action to an employer to seek injunctive relief on behalf of an employee, nothing in that section may be construed as expanding, diminishing, altering, or modifying the duty, if any, of an employer to provide a safe workplace for employees and other persons [Code Civ. Proc. § 527.8(k)].

[2] Definitions

Code Civ. Proc. § 527.8 sets forth definitions of key terms used within that statute. "Employer" and "employee" mean persons defined in Lab. Code § 350. "Employer" also includes a federal agency, the state, a state agency, a city, county, or district, and a private, public, or quasi-public corporation, or any public agency thereof or therein. "Employee" also includes the members of boards of directors of private, public, and quasi-public corporations and elected and appointed public officers."Employee," for purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 527.8 only, also includes a volunteer or independent contractor who performs services for the employer at the employer's worksite [Code Civ. Proc. § 527.8(d)].

In addition, under Code Civ. Proc. § 527.8, "unlawful violence" is any assault or battery, or stalking as prohibited in Penal Code § 646.9, but does not include lawful acts of self-defense or defense of others. "Credible threat of violence" is a knowing and willful statement or course of conduct that would place a reasonable person in fear for his or her safety, or the safety of his or her immediate family, and that serves no legitimate purpose. "Course of conduct" is a pattern of conduct composed of a series of acts over a period of time, however short, evidencing a continuity of purpose, including following or stalking an employee to or from the place of work; entering the workplace; following an employee during hours of employment; making telephone calls to an employee; or sending correspondence to an employee by any means, including, but not limited to, the use of the public or private mails, interoffice mail, fax, or computer e-mail [Code Civ. Proc. § 527.8(b)]. These definitions closely parallel those used in the context of civil harassment [see Code Civ. Proc. § 527.6(b); § 293.12].

Nothing in Code Civ. Proc. § 527.8, however, is to be construed as permitting a court to issue a temporary restraining order or injunction prohibiting speech or other activities that are constitutionally protected, or otherwise protected by Code Civ. Proc. § 527.3 (relating to labor disputes) or any other provision of law [Code Civ. Proc. § 527.8(c)].

§ 293.32 Petition for Relief and Response

[1] Application for and Issuance of Temporary Restraining Order

A employer who seeks to obtain injunctive relief against workplace violence on behalf of an employee must file a petition in the superior court with proper venue [Code Civ. Proc. § 527.8(e); see Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a)]. In addition, on filing the petition, a plaintiff may obtain a temporary restraining order in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. § 527(a), if the plaintiff also files an affidavit (or declaration) that, to the satisfaction of the court, shows reasonable proof that (1) an employee has suffered unlawful violence or a credible threat of violence by the defendant, and (2) great or irreparable harm would result to an employee [Code Civ. Proc. § 527.8(e); see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5 (declaration requirements)]. In the discretion of the court, and on a showing of good cause, a temporary restraining order issued under this Code Civ. Proc. § 527.8 may include other named family or household members who reside with the employee, or other persons employed at his or her workplace or workplaces [Code Civ. Proc. § 527.8(e)].

A defendant may file a response that explains, excuses, justifies, or denies the alleged unlawful violence or credible threats of violence or may file a cross-complaint under Code Civ. Proc. § 527.8 [Code Civ. Proc. § 527.8(f)]. A defendant may also file a special motion to strike under Code Civ. Proc. § 425.16, challenging the petition for injunctive relief; such a motion may not be used, however, to challenge an application for an interim restraining order issued pending a hearing on the petition for injunctive relief [City of Los Angeles v. Animal Defense League (2006) 135 Cal. App. 4th 606, 37 Cal. Rptr. 3d 632] .

No filing fee is required to be paid at the time of filing a petition or response relating to an injunction against workplace violence [see Code Civ. Proc. § 527(h)]. However, it appears that a court may order a party to pay fees [see Cal. Judicial Council Form WV-100 (noting that court may require fee payment if petition is unfounded)].

The temporary restraining order or injunction must prohibit the defendant from taking any action to obtain the address or location of the plaintiff or the plaintiff's family members, caretakers, or guardian, unless there is good cause not to make this order [Code Civ. Proc. § 527.10(a)].

A temporary restraining order or injunction relating to harassment or domestic violence issued by a court under Code Civ. Proc. § 527.8 must be issued on Judicial Council forms that have been approved by the California Department of Justice (DOJ) [see Fam. Code § 6380(i)]. However, a failure to strictly comply with the forms requirement does not, by itself, make the order or injunction unenforceable [see Code Civ. Proc. § 527.8(m)].

For Judicial Council forms of petition, response, and order to show cause (with temporary restraining order) and related instructions, see §§ 293.130 -293.132 [see Cal. Judicial Council Forms WV-100, WV-110, WV-120].

[2] Duration of Temporary Restraining Order

A temporary restraining order granted under Code Civ. Proc. § 527.8 will remain in effect, at the court's discretion, for a period not to exceed 15 days, unless otherwise modified or terminated by the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 527.8(e)].

§ 293.33 Service of Papers

On the filing of a petition for an injunction under *Code Civ. Service must be made at least five days before the hearing. The court may, for good cause, on motion of the plaintiff or on its own motion, shorten the time for service on the defendant [Code Civ. Proc. § 527.8(h); see Cal. Judicial Council Form WV-120 (providing for service of blank response form); § 293.132[2] (comments to form)]. 25-293 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 293.34

§ 293.34 Hearing and Order

[1] Timing and Scope of Hearing

A hearing must be held within 15 days of the filing of a petition for injunctive relief against workplace harassment. At the hearing, the judge must receive any testimony that is relevant, and may make an independent inquiry. Moreover, if the defendant is a current employee of the employer that is requesting the injunction, the judge must receive evidence concerning that employer's decision to retain, terminate, or otherwise discipline the defendant [Code Civ. Proc. § 527.8(f)].

[2] Representation by Counsel

In a matter coming within Code Civ. Proc. § 527.8, a party may choose to either appear pro se (self-represented), or to appear through private counsel [see Code Civ. Proc. § 527.8(g)].

[3] Evidence Required

At a hearing on a petition against workplace violence, a judge must find by clear and convincing evidence that the defendant engaged in unlawful violence or made a credible threat of violence in order to issue injunction issue prohibiting such activity or threats [Code Civ. Proc. § 527.8(f)]. The petitioner must also establish a nexus between the unlawful violence or credible threat of violence and his or her workplace [City of Los Angeles v. Animal Defense League (2006) 135 Cal. App. 4th 606, 37 Cal. Rptr. 3d 632] .

[4] No Undertaking Generally Required

Despite the general rule that a court, on granting an injunction, must order the applicant for the injunction to post an undertaking pending a hearing on the merits of the action [see Code Civ. Proc. § 529(a); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1150], it appears that an undertaking will not be routinely required in connection with injunctions against workplace violence because of the nature of the proceedingand relief afforded. For related discussion, see § 293.17[5].

[5] Duration of Injunction

An injunction issued pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 527.8 has a duration of not more than three years. At any time within the three months before the expiration of the injunction, the plaintiff may apply for a renewal of the injunction by filing a new petition for an injunction [Code Civ. Proc. § 527.8(f)].

[6] Registration With Law Enforcement Agencies

A court that issue a temporary restraining order or injunction against workplace violence must order the plaintiff, or the attorney for the plaintiff, to deliver a copy of each temporary restraining order or injunction, or modification or termination thereof, by the close of the business day on which the order was granted, to the law enforcement agencies within the court's discretion as are requested by the plaintiff [Code Civ. Proc. § 527.8(i)(1)].

Each appropriate law enforcement agency must make available information as to the existence and current status of these orders to law enforcement officers responding to the scene of reported unlawful violence or a credible threat of violence [Code Civ. Proc. § 527.8(i)(1)].

Procedures for service of the order on the defendant are specified by statute [see Code Civ. Proc. § 527.8(i)(2)-(4)].

In addition, information on any temporary restraining order or injunction relating to harassment or domestic violence issued by a court under Code Civ. Proc. § 527.8 must be transmitted to the Department of Justice in accordance with Fam. Code § 6380(b) [Code Civ. Proc. § 527.8(o)].

[7] Prohibition Against Firearms

A person who is subject to a protective order issued under Code Civ. Proc. § 527.8 is prohibited from owning, possessing, purchasing, receiving, or attempting to purchase or receive, a firearm while the protective order is in effect [Code Civ. Proc. § 527.8(j)(1)]. The court must order the person to relinquish any firearms he or she owns or possesses in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. § 527.9 [Code Civ. Proc. § 527.8(j)(2)]. A person who owns, possesses, purchases, or receives, or attempts to purchase or receive, a firearm while the protective order is in effect is guilty of a public offense punishable by imprisonment or a fine, or both under Penal Code § 12021(g) [Code Civ. Proc. § 527.8(j)(3)].

1. Domestic Violence Prevention Act

§ 293.51 Definitions

Domestic violence orders under the Domestic Violence Prevention Act (DVPA) are designed to prevent the recurrence of broadly defined acts of "abuse" against victims, including former or separated spouses or cohabitants, and to resolve their underlying causes [Fam. Code §§ 6211(a), (b), 6220; Keith R. v. Superior Court (2009) 174 Cal. App. 4th 1047, 1054, 96 Cal. Rptr. 3d 298] . These orders are broader than civil harassment orders and do not require as high a burden of proof [Keith R. v. Superior Court (2009) 174 Cal. App. 4th 1047, 1054, 96 Cal. Rptr. 3d 298] .

"Abuse," as used in the DVPA, means intentionally or recklessly causing or attempting to cause bodily injury, committing sexual assault, or placing another person in reasonable apprehension of imminent serious bodily injury to himself or herself or another [Fam. Code § 6203(a)-(c)]. "Abuse" additionally includes engaging in any behavior that has been or could be enjoined pursuant to Fam. Code § 6320 [Fam. Code § 6203(d)]. Fam. Code § 6320 authorizes injunctive relief against a wide array of abusive conduct, from physical attack, threats, and stalking, to annoying telephone calls, vandalism, and similar actions, as discussed in § 293.53[1]. An applicant is not required to allege actual infliction of physical injury or assault to be entitled to a restraining order [In re Marriage of Nadkarni (2009) 173 Cal. App. 4th 1483, 1494, 93 Cal. Rptr. 3d 723 ; Conness v. Satram (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 197, 202, 18 Cal. Rptr. 3d 577] . Nonviolent conduct, such as contacting the applicant and disturbing the applicant's peace can constitute abuse, which can include accessing, reading, and publicly disclosing the applicant's confidential e-mails [In re Marriage of Nadkarni (2009) 173 Cal. App. 4th 1483, 1494, 93 Cal. Rptr. 3d 723] .

"Domestic violence" means abuse perpetrated against any of the following persons:

1. A spouse, former spouse;

2. A cohabitant or former cohabitant [see Fam. Code § 6209];

3. A person with whom the respondent is having or has had a dating or engagement relationship [Fam. Code § 6210 (defining "dating relationship"); Oriola v Thaler (2000) 84 Cal. App. 4th 397, 100 Cal.

Rptr. 2d 822 (defining "dating relationship")];

4. A person with whom the respondent has had a child, where the presumption applies that the male parent is the father of the child of the female parent [see Fam. Code § 7600 et seq. (Uniform Parentage Act)];

5. A child of a party or a child who is the subject of an action under theUniform Parentage Act, where the presumption applies that the male parent is the father of the child to be protected [see Fam. Code § 7600 et seq.]; or

6. Any other person related by consanguinity or affinity within the second degree [Fam. Code § 6211].

"Cohabitant" means a person who resides regularly in the household. "Former cohabitant" means a person who formerly resided regularly in the household [Fam. Code § 6209]. The term "cohabitant" does not include, however, persons who simply sublet different rooms in a common home, if they otherwise are not part of the same household or do not have some close interpersonal relationship, such as, for example, a romantic attachment. Although the DVPA has a broad protective purpose, it does not cover such a residential arrangement, which might exist purely by happenstance [O'Kane v. Irvine (1996) 47 Cal. App. 4th 207, 209, 212, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 549] .

25-293 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 293.52

§ 293.52 Relief Available in General

[1] Types of Orders

[a] Protective Orders in General

The Domestic Violence Prevention Act authorizes a court to issue protective orders and emergency protective orders [Fam. Code §§ 6250, 6320 et seq., 6340]. A "protective order" means an order that includes specific restraining orders, whether issued ex aparte, after notice and hearing, or in a judgment [Fam. Code § 6218; see Fam. Code §§ 6218, 6320, 6321, 6322]. An emergency protective order is a protective order issued by a judicial officer on the request of an law enforcement officer who believes there is an immediate and present danger of domestic violence or child abuse as defined by the Act [see Fam. Code § 6250 et seq.; see also Fam. Code §§ 6203, 6211]. These remedies are in addition to any other remedies, either civil or criminal, that may be available to petitioner [Fam. Code § 6227].

[b] Limitations on Custody Orders

Although child custody and visitation orders are among those that a court may grant in DVPA proceedings [see Fam. Code §§ 6323, 6340], such orders may only be granted to a party who has established a parent and child relationship under Fam. Code § 6323(a)(2) [Fam. Code § 6323(a)(1); Gonzalez v. Munoz (2007) 156 Cal. App. 4th 413, 422-423, 67 Cal. Rptr. 3d 317] . A party may establish a parent and child relationship for that purpose only by offering proof of the following [Fam. Code § 6323(a)(2)(B)]:

1. The party gave birth to the child;

2. The child is conclusively presumed to be a child of the marriage between the parties under Fam. Code § 7540, or a court has determined that the party is the child's parent under Fam. Code § 7541;

3. Legal adoption or pending legal adoption of the child by the party;

4. The party has signed a valid voluntary declaration of paternity, which has been in effect more than 60 days before issuance of the restraining order, and the declaration has not been rescinded or set aside;

5. A determination by the juvenile court that there is a parent and child relationship between the party offering the proof and the child;

6. A determination of paternity made in a proceeding brought under Fam. Code § 17404 [see Fam. Code § 3021(g)];

7. The party has been determined to be the child's parent in a proceeding under the Uniform Parentage Act (UPA--Fam. Code §§ 7600-7730); or

8. Both parties stipulate, in writing or on the record, for purposes of this proceeding that they are the child's parents.

In determining the child's best interests and in order to limit the child's exposure to potential domestic violence and to ensure the safety of all family members, if the party who has obtained the restraining order has established a parent and child relationship and the other party has not done so, the court may award temporary sole legal and physical custody to the party to whom the restraining order was issued and may order no visitation to the other party pending the establishment of a parent and child relationship [Fam. Code § 6323(a)(2)(A)]. A court may make custody and visitation orders under the Uniform Parentage Act, after notice and a hearing, when a party who has requested custody or visitation has not established a parent and child relationship but has taken steps to do so by filing an action under the UPA [Fam. Code § 6346].

A domestic violence order under the DVPA is not a permanent custody determination. Although a finding of domestic violence changes the burden of persuasion as to the best-interest test, it does not eliminate the best-interest requirement [Keith R. v. Superior Court (2009) 174 Cal. App. 4th 1047, 1054, 96 Cal. Rptr. 3d 298] .

For related discussion of custody and visitation orders in DVPA proceedings, see §§ 293.53[1], 293.55[1].

[c] Data Base Search Required

Before a hearing on the issuance or denial of a protective order, the court must ensure that a search is (or has been) conducted to determine if the subject of the proposed order (1) has any prior criminal conviction for a violent felony specified in Penal Code § 667.5 or a serious felony specified in Penal Code § 1192.7; (2) has any misdemeanor conviction involving domestic violence, weapons, or other violence; (3) has any outstanding warrant; (4) is currently on parole or probation; or (5) has any prior restraining order or any violation of a prior restraining order [Fam. Code § 6306(a)]. The court must consider any such information obtained as a result of the search [Fam. Code § 6306(b)(1)].

A search must be conducted of all records and data bases readily available andreasonably accessible to the court, including, but not limited to (1) the Violent Crime Information Network (VCIN), (2) the Supervised Release File, (3) state summary criminal history information maintained by the Department of Justice under Penal Code § 11105, (4) the FBI's nationwide data base, and (5) locally maintained criminal history records or data bases [Fam. Code § 6306(a)]. A record or data base need not be searched if the information available in that record or data base can be obtained by a search conducted in another record or data base [Fam. Code § 6306(a)]. The court may not consider information obtained as a result of the search that does not involve a conviction as described above [Fam. Code § 6306(b)(2)].

After ruling, the court must advise the parties that they may request the foregoing information on which the court relied, and must admonish the party seeking the order that it is unlawful, under Penal Code §§ 11142 and 13303, to willfully release the information except as authorized by law [Fam. Code § 6306(c)(1)]. On a party's request, the court must release the information to the party or the party's attorney [Fam. Code § 6306(c)(2)]. The party seeking the order may release the information to his or her attorney, court personnel, and court-appointed mediators for the purpose of seeking judicial review of the court's order or for purposes of court proceedings under Welf. & Inst. Code § 213.5 [Fam. Code § 6306(c)(3)].

Any information obtained as a result of the search that the court relies on must be maintained in a confidential case file and may not become part of the public file in the proceeding or any other civil proceeding [Fam. Code § 6306(d)]. The contents of the confidential case file may be disclosed to the court-appointed mediator assigned to the case or to a child custody evaluator appointed by the court under Fam. Code § 3111 or Evid. Code § 730 [Fam. Code § 6306(d)]. All court-appointed mediators and child custody evaluators who receive information from the search are subject to, and must comply with, the California Law Enforcement Telecommunications System policies, practices, and procedures adopted under Gov. Code § 15160 [Fam. Code § 6306(d)].

If the results of the search indicate that there is an outstanding warrant against the subject of the order, the court must order the clerk of the court to immediately notify, by the most effective means available, appropriate law enforcement officials of the issuance and contents of any protective order and of any other information obtained through the search that the court determines is appropriate [Fam. Code § 6306(e)]. The law enforcement officials so notified must take all actions necessary to execute any outstanding warrants or any other actions with respect to the restrained person, as appropriate and as soon as practicable [Fam. Code § 6306(e)].

If the results of the search indicate that the subject of the order is currently on parole or probation, the court must order the clerk of the court to immediately notify, by the most effective means available, the appropriate parole or probation officer of the issuance and contents of any protective order issued by the court and of any other information obtained through the search that the court determines is appropriate [Fam. Code § 6306(f)]. This officer must take all actions necessary to revoke any parole or probation, or any other actions, with respect to the restrained person, as appropriate and as soon as practicable [Fam. Code § 6306(f)].

A court need not delay granting an application for an order that the court may otherwise grant without the information resulting from a data base search [Fam. Code § 6306(g)]. If the court finds that a protective order should be granted based on the affidavit presented with the petition, the court may issue the protective order and then ensure that a data base search is conducted before the hearing [Fam. Code § 6306(g)].

[2] Who May Apply for Order

[a] Abuse Victims in General

A protective order may be granted to any person specified in Fam. Code § 6211 (see § 293.51) against whom abuse is perpetrated [Fam. Code § 6301(a); see Fam. Code § 6203 (defining "abuse")]. The right to petition for relief may not be denied because the petitioner has vacated the household to avoid abuse. If the parties are married, the fact that no petition for legal separation, nullity of marriage, or dissolution of marriage has been filed is not a basis for denial of the petition for a temporary restraining order against domestic violence [Fam. Code § 6301(b); see Quintana v. Guijosa (2003) 107 Cal. App. 4th 1077, 1078-1080, 132 Cal. Rptr. 2d 538 (judge improperly denied wife's request for protective order against husband on ground she was not entitled to protection because children were in Mexico; case decided on facts irrelevant to DVPA; reversed and remanded)].

[b] Minors

In general, a minor for whom a guardian has not otherwise been appointed may appear of record in a civil action or proceeding only by a guardian ad litem [see Code Civ. Proc. § 372(a); Ch. 291, Guardians Ad Litem]. However, special rules govern the ability of minors to seek or oppose protective orders pertaining to harassment or domestic violence. A minor 12 years of age or older may appear in court without a guardian, counsel, or guardian ad litem, for the purpose of requesting or opposing a request for any of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 372(b)(1)]:

1. An injunction or temporary restraining order or both to prohibit harassment pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 527.6;

2. An injunction or temporary restraining order or both against violence ora credible threat of violence in the workplace pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 527.8;

3. A protective order pursuant to Fam. Code § 6200 et seq.; or

4. A protective order pursuant to Fam. Code §§ 7710, 7720.

However, in the discretion of the court, or on motion, the court may appoint a guardian ad litem to assist a minor aged 12 or over in obtaining or opposing the above orders, but it must first consider reasonable objections by the minor to the appointment of specific individuals, and the appointment must not delay the issuance or denial of the order being sought. In making the appointment, the court must consider whether the minor and the guardian have divergent interests [Code Civ. Proc. § 372(b)(1); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1153].

If the court issues a injunction or protective order under this authority with respect to a minor aged 12 or older who initially appeared in court seeking an order without a guardian or guardian ad litem, and that minor lives with a parent or guardian, the court must send a copy of the order to at least one parent or guardian designated by the minor, unless, in the discretion of the court, notification of a parent or guardian would be contrary to the best interest of the minor. The court is not required to send the order to more than one parent or guardian [Code Civ. Proc. § 372(b)(2)].

If the minor is under 12 years of age, he or she can appear in court without counsel in order to request or oppose any of the orders listed above, but only if accompanied by a duly appointed and acting guardian ad litem. As in the case of older minors for whom a guardian ad litem is appointed, in appointing a guardian ad litem for a minor under age 12, a court must consider whether the minor and the guardian have divergent interests [Code Civ. Proc. § 374; see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1153].

If a minor (of any age) previously has been declared a dependent child or ward of the juvenile court, the juvenile court with jurisdiction over the minor must hear the minor's application for or opposition to the granting of any of the orders set forth above. When there has been no dependency or wardship established over the minor, the matter will be heard in the court that is otherwise assigned to hear those proceedings [Code Civ. Proc. § 374.5].

[3] Jurisdiction and Venue

The Act does not specify which court has jurisdiction and venue to grant a protective order. Nevertheless, the superior court has express jurisdiction in proceedings under the Family Code [Fam. Code § 200], and proceedings under the Act come within the Family Code's provisions [Fam. Code § 6200 et seq.].

Venue is determined under Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a). See Ch. 221, Dissolution of Marriage: Procedure , for a detailed discussion of venue.

[4] Filing Fees

No filing fee is required for an application, a responsive pleading, or an order to show cause that seeks to obtain, modify, or enforce a protective order or other order authorized by the DVPA when the request for the other order is necessary to obtain or give effect to a protective order [Fam. Code § 6222]. There is also no filing fee for a subpoena filed in connection with the application, responsive pleading, or order to show cause [Fam. Code § 6222].

[5] Relief From Meeting With Abuser

A party who has been subjected to domestic violence may obtain relief from having to meet with the other party for court-ordered custody investigations [Fam. Code § 3110 et seq.], mediation [Fam. Code § 3175 et seq.], or parent counseling [Fam. Code § 3192; cf. Fam. Code § 3170(b) (requiring separate protocol for handling domestic violence cases by Family Court Services)]. Court-ordered custody investigations and mediation sessions sessions must be held separately at separate times if (1) there has been a history of domestic violence between the parties [Fam. Code §§ 3113, 3181(a); see Fam. Code § 6211 ("domestic violence" defined); see also discussion in § 293.51]; or (2) there is a protective order against domestic violence in effect [Fam. Code §§ 3113, 3181(a); see Fam. Code §§ 2045(b), 6320, 6321, 7710]. The party who is protected by the restraining order or who alleges a history of domestic violence must make the request for separate custody investigations and separate mediation sessions [Fam. Code §§ 3113, 3181(a)]. If no restraining order is in effect, this request must be made by written declaration under penalty of perjury [Fam. Code §§ 3113, 3181(a)].

Parent counseling sessions may be held separately at separate times if there is a history of abuse by either parent against the child or by one parent against the other parent and a protective order against domestic violence is in effect [Fam. Code § 3192; see Fam. Code §§ 2045(b), 6223, 6318, 6320, 6321, 6323, 7710]. If the court orders separate counseling, each party must bear the cost of his or her own counseling unless there is good cause for a different apportionment. The costs associated with a minor child participating in counseling must be apportioned in accordance with Fam. Code § 4062 [Fam. Code § 3192].

[6] Support Person

A special statute permits a "support person" to accompany a petitioning or responding party to any proceeding to obtain a protective order. As stated in the statute, the role of a "support person" is to provide moral and emotional support for a person who alleges that he or she is a victim of domestic violence. The support person assists the party in feeling more confident that he or she will notbe injured or threatened by the other party during proceedings in which the person and the other party must be present in close proximity. A party may select any individual to act as a support person, and this person is not required to have any certification, training, or other special qualifications [Fam. Code § 6303(a)].

When the party who is accompanied by a support person is not represented by an attorney, the support person may sit with the party at the table that is generally reserved for the party and the party's attorney [Fam. Code § 6303(b), (d)]. A support person may not act as a legal advisor, however, and must not give legal advice [Fam. Code § 6303(a)]. A court may exercise its discretion to remove a person from the courtroom whom it believes is prompting, swaying, or influencing the party protected by the order, or when it would be in the interests of justice to do so [Fam. Code § 6303(e)].

If a court has issued a protective order, a support person may accompany a party protected by the order during any mediation session held pursuant to a proceeding for dissolution of marriage, nullity of marriage, legal separation, an action for exclusive custody, or a proceeding to determine custody or visitation under the DVPA [Fam. Code § 6200 et seq.] or the Uniform Parentage Act [Fam. Code § 6303(c); see Fam. Code § 7600 et seq.].

[7] Need for Interpreter and Translation of Orders

In any action or proceeding under the DVPA, the Uniform Parentage Act [see Fam. Code §§ 6200 et seq., 7600 et seq.], or for dissolution or nullity of marriage or legal separation of the parties in which a protective order has been granted or is being sought under Fam. Code § 6221 and in which a party does not proficiently speak or understand English, and that party is present, an interpreter must be present to interpret the proceedings for that party, and to assist communication between the party and his or her attorney [Evid. Code § 755(a)]. The interpreter must be certified in accordance with the Government Code, unless the court in its discretion appoints a noncertified interpreter. When an interpreter is required under the above provisions, the court must not commence proceedings until the interpreter is present and situated near the party and his or her attorney [Evid. Code § 755(a), (c)].

However, a court may issue an ex parte order under Fam. Code §§ 2045, 6320 et seq., and 7710, without the presence of an interpreter [Evid. Code § 755(a)]. Furthermore, even when an interpreter is otherwise required under Evid. Code § 755, the court is not prohibited from doing any of the following [Evid. Code § 755(c)]:

1. Issuing an order when the necessity for the order outweighs the necessity for an interpreter;

2. Extending the duration of a previously issued temporary order if an interpreter is not readily available; or

3. Issuing a permanent order when a party who requires an interpreter fails to make appropriate arrangements for an interpreter after receiving proper notice of the hearing with information about obtaining an interpreter.

The requirement of having an interpreter present does not preclude the presence of any other person to assist a party [Evid. Code § 755(d); see [6], above].

The fees of interpreters utilized under the above requirements must be paid as provided under the Government Code. However, these fees must be waived for a party who needs an interpreter and appears in forma pauperis [Evid. Code § 755(b); see Gov. Code §§ 68092, 68630-68641].

Los Angeles and two other counties are participating in a pilot project under which, in any child custody proceeding, including mediation and certain other proceedings, the court must appoint an interpreter, at court expense, to interpret proceedings if (1) one or both of parties cannot participate fully in proceeding due to lack of English proficiency, and (2) the party needing an interpreter appears in forma pauperis or the court otherwise determines that the parties are financially unable to pay for interpreter. Statute provides exceptions for issuing or continuing urgent orders, and for the failure of a needy party to properly arrange for an interpreter after proper notice of availability [see Fam. Code § 3032].

Apart from the above provisions, courts may provide an unofficial translation of a domestic violence order in a language other than English [Code Civ. Proc. § 185(a)]. The Judicial Council must also make available to all courts translations of domestic violence protective order forms in languages other than English, as the Judicial Council deems appropriate [Code Civ. Proc. § 185(b)].

[8] Prohibition Against Firearms

[a] Purchasing or Receiving Firearms

Any person who purchases or receives, or attempts to purchase or receive, a firearm knowing that he or she is subject to a protective order as defined by Fam. Code § 6218 or Penal Code § 136.2, or a temporary restraining order or injunction issued pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. §§ 527.6 or 527.8, is guilty of a public offense punishable by imprisonment or fine or both [Fam. Code § 6389(a); Penal Code § 12021(g)(1)]. This does not apply unless the copy of the restraining order personally served on the person against whom the restraining order is issued contains a notice in bold print containing the both of the following, or a court has provided actual verbal notice of the firearm prohibition and penalty as provided in Fam. Code § 6304 [Penal Code § 12021(g)]:

1. A statement that the person is prohibited from purchasing or receiving orattempting to purchase or receive a firearm.

2. A specification of the penalties for violating Penal Code § 12021(g).

Whenever a court grants a protective order in a proceeding where both parties are present, the court must inform the parties of this prohibition and the penalty for violating it [Fam. Code § 6304].

[b] Owning or Possessing Firearms

Any person subject to a protective order as defined in Fam. Code § 6218 may not own, possess, purchase, or receive a firearm while subject to that order [see Fam. Code 6389(a)]. On the issuance of a protective order, the court must order the respondent to relinquish any firearm in his or her immediate possession or control, or subject to his or her immediate possession or control [Fam. Code § 6389(c)(1)]. The respondent must immediately surrender the firearm in a safe manner, on the request of any law enforcement officer, to the control of the officer, after being served with the protective order. If no request is made by a law enforcement officer, the respondent must relinquish the firearm within 24 hours of being served with the order, by either surrendering it in a safe manner to the control of local law enforcement officials or by selling the firearm to a licensed gun dealer [Fam. Code § 6389(c)(2)]. The law enforcement officer or licensed gun dealer taking possession of the firearm must issue a receipt to the respondent at the time of relinquishment. The respondent must file with the court, within 48 hours after being served with the protective order, the receipt showing that the firearm was surrendered to a local law enforcement agency or sold to a licensed gun dealer. A failure to file a receipt in a timely manner constitutes a violation of the protective order [Fam. Code § 6389(c)(2)]. A relinquishment order may last for the duration of the order or for a shorter time period specified by the court [Fam. Code § 6389(g)].

On all forms providing notice that a protective order has been requested or granted, the Judicial Council must include a notice that, on service of the order, the respondent must be ordered to relinquish possession or control of any firearms, and may not purchase or receive, or attempt to purchase or receive, any firearms for a period not to exceed the duration of the restraining order [Fam. Code § 6389(b)].

For a related discussion, see § 293.53[4].

Every person who owns or possesses a firearm knowing that he or she is prohibited from owning or possessing a firearm by the provisions of a protective order as defined in Fam. Code § 6218 or Penal Code § 136.2, or a temporary restraining order or injunction issued pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. §§ 527.6 or 527.8, is guilty of a public offense punishable by imprisonment, a fine, or both [Fam. Code § 6389(a)]. This does not apply unless a copy of the restraining order personally served on the person against whom the restraining order is issued contains a notice in bold print stating both of the following, or a court has provided actual verbal notice of thefirearm prohibition and penalty as provided in Fam. Code § 6304 [Penal Code § 12021(g)(2)]:

1. Stating that the person is prohibited from owning or possessing or attempting to own or possess a firearm.

2. Specifying the penalties for violating Penal Code § 12021(g)].

The Judicial Council must provide notice on all protective orders that the respondent is prohibited from owning, possessing, purchasing, or receiving a firearm while the protective order is in effect and that the firearm must be relinquished to the local law enforcement agency for that jurisdiction or sold to a licensed gun dealer, and that proof of surrender or sale must be filed within a specified time of receipt of the order. The order must also state on its face the expiration date for relinquishment [Penal Code § 12021(g)(3)]. If probation is granted on conviction of a violation of Penal Code § 12021(g), the court must impose probation consistent with the provisions of Penal Code § 1203.097, providing for batter's treatment programs [Penal Code § 12021(g)(4)].

A court may allow a peace officer who is subject to a domestic violence protective order to continue to carry a firearm, after a psychological evaluation, on a finding by a preponderance of the evidence that the officer poses no threat of harm, and that the officer needs the weapon in the performance of his or her duties [Fam. Code § 6389(h)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Domestic Violence Prevention Act and Related Remedies
1. Domestic Violence Prevention Act

25-293 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 293.53

§ 293.53 Ex Parte Protective Orders Issued by Court

[1] Available Orders

Under the DVPA, a protective order may be granted without notice to restrain any person in order to prevent a recurrence of domestic violence and ensure a separation of the persons involved, if an affidavit (or declaration [see Code Civ. Proc. 2015.5]), or, if necessary, an affidavit and any additional information provided to the court under Fam. Code § 6306, shows, to a court's satisfaction, reasonable proof of a past act or acts of abuse [Fam. Code § 6300]. No protective order will be granted without notice to the opposite party, however, unless it appears from the supporting facts that great or irreparable injury would result to the applicant before the matter can be heard on notice [Fam. Code §§ 241, 6320 et seq.]. For discussion of electronic data base searches that a court must perform pursuant to Fam. Code § 6306 before issuing or denying a protective order, see § 293.52[1][c].

A court may issue ex parte any of the following protective orders [see Fam. Code § 6320 et seq.]:

1. An order enjoining a party from contacting; molesting; attacking; striking; stalking; threatening; sexually assaulting; battering; harassing; telephoning; destroying personal property of; contacting, either directly or indirectly, by mail or otherwise; coming within a specified distance of or disturbing the peace of the other party and in the discretion of the court, on a showing of good cause, of other named family and household members [see Fam. Code § 6320(a); see also Penal Code § 653(m)];

2. An order excluding a party from the family dwelling; the dwelling of the other party; the common dwelling of both parties; or the dwelling of the person who has care, custody, and control of a child to be protected from domestic violence for the period of time and on the conditions the court determines, regardless of which party holds legal or equitable title or is the lessee of the dwelling [see Fam. Code § 6321];

3. An order enjoining a party from specified behavior that the court determines is necessary to effectuate orders under Fam. Code §§ 6320 or 6321 [see (1)-(2), above];

4. Subject to Fam. Code § 3064 (general showing for granting an ex parte custody order), an order establishing temporary custody of children and visitation rights with respect to a child, concerning whom the moving party has established a parent-child relationship as prescribed by the Family Code (see § 293.52[1][b]) [Fam. Code § 6323; Gonzalez v. Munoz (2007) 156 Cal. App. 4th 413, 422-423, 67 Cal. Rptr. 3d 317] ;

5. An order determining temporary use and control of the parties' property [Fam. Code § 6324]; and

6. An order restraining a married person from specified acts in relation to community, quasi-community, and separate property [Fam. Code § 6324; see Fam. Code § 2045; see also Ch. 221, Dissolution of Marriage: Procedure].

The order must also prohibit the enjoined party from taking any action to obtain the address or location of a protected party or a protected party's family members, caretakers, or guardians, unless there is good cause not to make this order [Fam. Code § 6322.7].

On a showing of good cause, the court may include in a protective order a grant to the petitioner of the exclusive care, possession, or control of any animal owned, possessed, leased, kept, or held by either the petitioner or the respondent or a minor child residing in the residence or household of either the petitioner or the respondent [Fam. Code § 6320(b)]. The court may order the respondent to stay away from the animal and forbid the respondent from taking, transferring, encumbering, concealing, harming, or otherwise disposing of the animal [Fam. Code § 6320(b)].

When allegations of domestic violence have been made and a protective or restraining order is in effect, a court may impose ex parte certain specific conditions on custody or visitation including orders for precise arrangements for transfer of the child to ensure safety of all family members, and orders to prevent disclosure of the shelter or confidential location where the parent is staying; determining whether any custody or visitation must be supervised, suspended, or denied altogether [see Fam. Code §§ 3031(b), (c), 3100, 6323(b), (c); see also Fam. Code § 3030 (prohibition on granting custody or visitation when person convicted of specified offenses, including murdering other parent)].

In addition, in proceedings under the Uniform Interstate Family Support Act (UIFSA-- Fam. Code § 4900 et seq.), a court may issue an ex parte order prohibiting disclosure of the address or other identifying information of a party, child, parent, guardian, or other caretaker of a child [Fam. Code § 6322.5; see Fam. Code §§ 4926, 4977]. For a complete discussion of UIFSA, see Ch. 260, Family Law Enforcement: Foreign Judgments .

Finally, in accordance with federal law, on the request of a victim of domestic violence who is seeking a domestic violence restraining order, a judge issuing the order may include a provision in the order that permits the victim to record any prohibited communication made to the victim by the perpetrator [Penal Code § 633.6(a); see Penal Code § 633.6(b) (Judicial Council must amend its domestic violence prevention application and order forms to incorporate this provision)].

[2] Additional Showing for Dwelling Exclusion

The court may issue an ex parte protective order excluding one party from a residence or dwelling only if the affidavit in support of the application for the order affirmatively shows facts sufficient for the court to ascertain that the petitioner has a right under color of law to possession of the premises [Fam. Code § 6321(b)(1)].

[3] Mutual Orders

The court may grant mutual orders enjoining the parties from specific acts of abuse as described in Fam. Code § 6320. A mutual restraining order may be issued, however, only if (a) both parties personally appear and each party presents written evidence of abuse or domestic violence, and (b) the court makes detailed findings of fact indicating that both parties acted primarily as aggressors and that neither party acted primarily in self-defense [Fam. Code § 6305; see Fam. Code §§ 6203, 6211 (defining "abuse" and "domestic violence," respectively); Conness v. Satram (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 197, 204, 18 Cal. Rptr. 3d 577 (written findings are necessary to ensure that mutual restraints are imposed only after court carefully considers evidence by court)]. A court that does not make these detailed findings acts in excess of its jurisdiction by entering a mutual restraining order [Monterroso v. Moran (2006) 135 Cal. App. 4th 732, 37 Cal. Rptr. 3d 694] .

[4] Prohibition Against Purchase or Receipt of Firearms

When making a protective order [see Fam. Code §§ 6218, 6320, 6321, 6322], where both parties are present in court, the court must inform both the petitioner and respondent of the terms of the order, including notice that the respondent is prohibited from owning, possessing, purchasing or receiving to attempting to purchase or receive a firearm, and include notice of the penalty for violation [Fam. Code § 6304; see PenalCode § 12021(g)]. This prohibition is enforceable if thecourt provides actual verbal notice of the prohibition and the penalty for violation [Penal Code § 12021(g); see Fam. Code § 6304] or if the restraining order personally served on the restrained party contains a notice in bold print stating the prohibition and specifying the penalties for violation [Penal Code § 12021(g)]. The prohibition does not apply, however, with respect to a firearm received as part of a community property disposition. Violation of the prohibition is a public offense punishable by imprisonment, a fine, or both [Penal Code § 12021(g)].

A person subject to a protective order as defined by Fam. Code § 6218, including ex parte protective orders, may not own or possess a firearm while that protective order is in effect when an order to relinquish firearms is issued by the court pursuant to Fam. Code § 6389 [Fam. Code § 6389(a)].

For further discussion of provisions prohibiting a respondent from purchasing, receiving, owning, or possessing firearms, see § 293.52[8].

[5] Order to Show Cause

If a protective order of the kind described in Fam. Code § 240 is issued, it must be made returnable on an order requiring cause to be shown why a permanent order should not be granted [see § 293.132 (order to show cause)]. Unless the parties expressly stipulate to a continuance, the matter must be heard on the earliest day that the business of the court will permit, but not later than 20 days or, if good cause appears to the court, 25 days from the date the temporary restraining order is granted [Fam. Code § 242(a)].

At least five days prior to the hearing--if the order was issued without notice pending the hearing--the petitioner must have personally served on the opposing party [see Fam. Code § 243(b)] a copy of the order to show cause and temporary restraining order, an application and declaration, a blank responsive declaration, and any other items that the court may require [see Fam. Code § 243(b); §§ 293.150[1], 293.151[1], 293.153[1]]. If the order was issued with notice pending the hearing, the applicant must have served on the respondent the above documents at least 15 days before the hearing [Fam. Code § 243(c)]. The court may, on petitioner's or its own motion, shorten the time for service of the order to show cause on the respondent [Fam. Code § 243(f)]. There is a rebuttable presumption that the proof of service was signed on the date of service [Fam. Code § 6383(c)].

If the restrained person receives actual notice of the existence and substance of the order through personal appearance in court to hear the terms of the order from the court, no additional proof of service is required for enforcement [Fam. Code § 6384]. The face of the order must indicate that both parties were personally present, and a statement to that effect must be included on the temporary restraining order [Fam. Code § 6385(a); see § 293.132].

If a law enforcement officer is present at the scene of reported domestic violence (at which the respondent is still present), the petitioner can request that the officer personally serve the respondent with the temporary restraining order, and thereby obtain enforcement of the order as of the time of its service [see Fam. Code § 6383; see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1296.10]. If the petitioner requests service on the respondent at the scene, the officer must do so whether or not the respondent is taken into custody [Fam. Code § 6383(a)]. A petitioner who requests service by the officer must provide the officer with a copy of the order and a proof of service form [see Cal. Judicial Council Form DV-200], which the officer must complete and transmit to the court [see Fam. Code § 6383].

If a petitioner protected by a TRO cannot produce an endorsed copy of the order, the officer must immediately contact the Department of Justice Domestic Violence Protective Order Registry to verify the existence of the order. If an order has been issued, but not served, the officer must immediately verbally notify the respondent of the terms of the order and advise the respondent to go to the locate court to obtain a copy of the order containing its full terms and conditions [Fam. Code § 6383(d), (e); see also Fam. Code § 6380 (requires counties to establish procedure for electronic transmission of data to statewide registry of domestic violence protective orders by July 1, 1996)]. Verbal notice of the terms of the order by the officer is sufficient notice to and service on the respondent. Furthermore, no additional proof of service is required for enforcement [Fam. Code § 6385(a)]. For further explanation of the enforcement of orders, see § 293.56.

[6] Reissuance of Protective Order

On the filing of an affidavit by the petitioner that the respondent could not be served on time, the court may reissue any ex parte protective order previously issued pursuant to Fam. Code § 6320 et seq. and dissolved by the court for failure to serve the respondent. Any order so reissued under Fam. Code § 245 must state on its face the date of the order's expiration. No fee will be charged for the reissuance unless the order was previously dissolved three times [Fam. Code § 245].

§ 293.54 Ex Parte Emergency Protective Orders Requested by Peace Officers

[1] Persons Authorized to Issue Orders

A designated judicial officer may orally issue emergency protective orders against domestic violence at the request of certain peace officers, regardless of whether the court is in session [see Fam. Code §§ 6241, 6250]. A "judicial officer" includes a judge, commissioner, or referee [Fam. Code §§ 6240(a), 6241]. A "law enforcement officer" means a police or sheriff's officer, or any of several other categories of peace officers [see Fam. Code § 6240(b) (which, inaddition to police and sheriff's officers, includes peace officers of certain other public agencies and organizations); see also Penal Code § 830.2]. The presiding judge in the superior court of each county must designate at least one judge, commissioner, or referee to be reasonably available at all times to issue emergency protective orders, either orally, by telephone, or otherwise [Fam. Code § 6241].

[2] Available Emergency Protective Orders

The order may consist of any of the protective orders set forth in Fam. Code § 6218 [Fam. Code § 6252(a); see Fam. Code §§ 6320 (enjoining specific acts of abuse), Fam. Code § 6321 (excluding a person from a dwelling), and Fam Code § 6322 (enjoining other specified behavior necessary to effectuate other orders)]. The order also may determine the temporary care and control of (1) any minor child who is in danger of being abducted [Fam. Code § 6252(d)], (2) any minor children of the endangered person and the person against whom the order is sought [Fam. Code § 6252(b)], and (3) an endangered child and any other minor children in the family or household with the parent or guardian of the endagered child who is not a restrained party [Fam. Code § 6252(c); see Welf. & Inst. Code § 213.5]. The order must also prohibit the enjoined party from taking any action to obtain the address or location of a protected party or a protected party's family members, caretakers, or guardians, unless there is good cause not to make this order [Fam. Code § 6252.5]. Finally, in order to prevent the occurrence or reoccurrence of stalking, the order may include a civil harassment or workplace violence protective order [Fam. Code § 6274; Penal Code § 646.91(a), (d); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 527.6, 527.8]. The order must be issued without prejudice to any party [Fam. Code § 6255].

The availability of an emergency protective order is not affected by the fact that the endangered person has vacated the household to avoid abuse [Fam. Code § 6254].

[3] Grounds and Findings for Issuance

A judicial officer may issue an ex parte emergency protective order upon the request of a law enforcement officer [Fam. Code § 6250]. A "judicial officer" includes a designated judge, commissioner, or referee [Fam. Code §§ 6240(a), 6241]. A "law enforcement officer" means a police or sheriff's officer or other peace officer as set forth by statute [Fam. Code § 6240(b); see Penal Code § 830.2(g)].

The judicial officer may issue an ex parte emergency protective order when a law enforcement officer asserts reasonable grounds to believe any of the following [Fam. Code §§ 6250, 6274; Penal Code § 646.91]:

1. A person is in immediate and present danger of domestic violence, based on a recent incident of abuse or threat of abuse by the person against whom the order is sought.

2. A child is immediate and present danger of abuse by a family or household member, based on an allegation of a recent incident of abuse or threat of abuse by the family or household member.

3. A child is in immediate and present danger of being abducted by a parent or relative, based on a reasonable belief that a person has the intent to abduct or flee with the child from the jurisdiction, or based on an allegation of a recent threat to abduct or flee with the child from the jurisdiction.

4. A person is in immediate and present danger of stalking, based on that person's allegation that he or she has been willfully, maliciously, and repeatedly followed or harassed by another person who has made a credible threat with the intent of placing the person who is the target of the threat in reasonable fear for his or her safety, or the safety of his or her immediate family.

The judicial officer must specifically find that reasonable grounds have been asserted to believe that an immediate and present danger of domestic violence exists or that a child is in immediate and present danger of abuse or abduction, and that an emergency protective order is necessary to prevent the occurrence or recurrence of domestic violence, child abuse, or child abduction [Fam. Code § 6251]. In the case of orders to prevent stalking, the judicial officer must specifically find that (1) reasonable grounds have been asserted to believe that an immediate and present danger of stalking, as defined in Penal Code § 646.9 exists, and (2) an emergency protective order is necessary to prevent the occurrence or reoccurrence of the stalking activity [Penal Code § 646.91(c)]. For a form of application for emergency protective order and the emergency protective order, see § 293.156[1].

[4] Requirements for Emergency Protective Order

The law enforcement officer requesting the emergency protective order must reduce it to writing and sign it [Fam. Code § 6270]. The contents of the order are prescribed by statute [Fam. Code § 6253].

The Judicial Council prescribes the form of all orders and other documents required under the Domestic Violence Prevention Act, and must promulgate forms and instructions for applying for these orders [see Fam. Code § 6226]. The officer who requests the emergency protective order must carry copies of the order while on duty [Fam. Code § 6273].

For a form of emergency protective order, see § 293.156[1].

[5] Service on Protected and Restrained Parties

The emergency protective order must be served on the restrained party by the law enforcement officer who requested it if the restrained party can reasonably be located [Fam. Code § 6271(a)]. A copy must be given to the protected party [Fam. Code § 6271(b)]. A copy must also be filed with the court as soon as practicable after issuance [Fam. Code § 6271(c)].

[6] Enforcement

A law enforcement officer must use every reasonable means to enforce an emergency protective order [Fam. Code § 6272(a)]. Officers who act pursuant to this subdivision are not held civilly or criminally liable if the action is in good faith with regard to the order [Fam. Code § 6272(b)].

[7] Expiration

An emergency protective order expires (1) at the close of judicial business on the fifth court day following the day of its issuance, or (2) on the seventh calendar day following the day of its issuance, whichever is earlier [Fam. Code § 6256].

[8] Ex Parte Emergency Protective Order for Endangered Child

A judicial officer designated pursuant to Fam. Code § 6241 may issue an ex parte emergency protective order if a law enforcement officer asserts reasonable grounds to believe that a child is in immediate and present danger of abuse by a family or household member, or of abduction by a parent or relative. The assertion must be based on an allegation of a recent incident of abuse or threat of abuse by that family or household member [Fam. Code § 6250(b)], or based on a reasonable belief that a person has an intent to abduct the child or flee with the child from the jurisdiction (or based on an allegation of a recent threat to do so), respectively [Fam. Code § 6250(c)].

The procedure for issuance and enforcement is the same as for ex parte emergency protective orders for domestic violence [see Fam. Code § 6250 et seq.; see [4], above]. However, the order must contain a statement that incorporates the provisions of Fam. Code § 6253(e), (f), in addition to that required for a domestic violence emergency protective order [Fam. Code § 6253(e)].

In addition, to service on a restrained party, a copy of the order must be given to any parent or legal guardian of the child who is not a restrained party, if he or she can be reasonably located, or to a person having temporary custody of the child [Fam. Code § 6271(a), (b)]. A copy must also be filed with the court as soon as practicable after issuance [Fam. Code § 6271(c)].

In addition to the orders available under Fam. Code § 6218, the order may consist of any of the orders authorized in Welf. & Inst. Code § 213.5. It may require placement of the temporary care and control of the endangered child and any other minor children in the family or household with the child's parent or legal guardian who is not restrained [Fam. Code § 6252(c)]. The order may also determine the temporary care and control of any minor children of the endangered person and the person against whom the order is sought [Fam. Code § 6252(b)], as well as the temporary care and control of any minor who is in danger of being abducted [Fam. Code § 6252(d)].

The order must expire no later than the close of business on the second day of judicial business following the day of its issuance, and it must be issued without prejudice to any party Welf. & Inst. Code § 213.5 sets forth orders that may be issued during the pendency of any proceeding to declare a child to be a dependent of the court [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 213.5(a)]. Other restraining orders also are authorized during dependency proceedings [see, e.g., Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 304, 362.4 (when child has been adjudged dependent of court or on termination of dependency jurisdiction when a minor is under age 18 and other statutory requirements are met)]. For further discussion of restraining orders that may be authorized in connection with dependency proceedings, see Ch. 328, Juvenile Courts: Dependency Proceedings .

[1] Generally

A protective order may be granted upon notice and hearing, to restrain any person based on an affidavit (or declaration [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) or, if necessary, an affidavit and any additional information provided to the court under Fam. Code § 6306, which, to the satisfaction of the court, shows reasonable proof of a past act or acts of abuse. The purpose of the protective order is to prevent a recurrence of domestic violence and to assure a period of separation of the persons involved for a period sufficient to enable these persons to seek a resolution of the causes of the violence [Fam. Code §§ 6220, 6300; see Gdowski v. Gdowski (2009) 175 Cal. App. 4th 128, 136, 95 Cal. Rptr. 3d 799 (Fam. Code § 6300 requires showing of past abuse, not threat of future harm, and court may issue protective order simply on basis of affidavit showing past abuse)]. For discussion of electronic data base searches that a court must perform pursuant to Fam. Code § 6306 before issuing or denying a protective order, see § 293.52[1][c].

The protective order may be granted to any person described in Fam. Code § 6211 [Fam. Code § 6301(a); see § 293.51]. The right to petition for relief may not be denied because petitioner has vacated the household to avoid abuse. If the parties are married, the fact that no petition for legal separation, nullity of marriage, or dissolution of marriage has been filed is no basis for denial of the petition for a temporary restraining order against domestic violence [Fam. Code § 6301(b), (c)].

The court may also grant a mutual protective order enjoining specified personalconduct. A mutual protective order may be issued only if both parties personally appear and each party presents written evidence of abuse or domestic violence as defined in Fam. Code § 6320. However, written evidence is not required if both parties agree that the requirement shall not apply [see Fam. Code § 6305].

The petition, the temporary order, and the order after a hearing will be valid and enforceable without explicitly stating the address or place of residence, school, or employment of the petitioner, or the place where the petitioner's child is provided child care services or attends school [Fam. Code § 6225].

When the protective order is sought with notice, the petitioner must have personally served on the opposing party a copy of the application and declaration, the order to show cause and temporary restraining order, a blank responsive declaration, and any other supporting papers filed with the court [see §§ 293.150 -293.153]. Service must be made in the manner provided by law for personal service of summons in civil actions. For discussion of personal service of summons in civil actions, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers .

The respondent is entitled as a matter of right to a continuance of the hearing on the petitioner's request for a permanent protective order when the temporary protective order was issued without notice; the respondent does not have a right to an automatic continuance of the hearing if the court issued the TRO only after notice was given to the respondent [Fam. Code § 243(e); Ross v. Figueroa (2006) 139 Cal. App. 4th 856, 863, 43 Cal. Rptr. 3d 289] .

After notice and a hearing, the court may issue any of the following orders:

- Ex parte orders enjoining specific acts of abuse [see Fam. Code § 6320] or specific behavior necessary to effectuate other orders [Fam. Code § 6322]. When determining whether to make such an order, the court must consider whether the failure to make the order may jeopardize the safety of the petitioner and the children for whom the custody or visitation orders are sought [Fam. Code § 6340(a)].

- If there is a minor child of the petitioner and the respondent, an order determining the temporary custody or visitaion of the child, provided that the moving party has established a parent-child relationship as provided by Fam. Code § 6323(a) (see § 293.52[1][b]) [Fam. Code § 6323(a)(1)].

- An order excluding one party from the common dwelling of both parties or from the dwelling of the other party, but only on a finding that physical or emotional harm would otherwise result to the other party, any person under the care, custody, or control of the other party, or any minor child of the parties or of the other party [Fam. Code §§ 6321, 6340(b)].

- If a presumption exists that the respondent is the natural father of any minor child pursuant to Fam. Code § 7611, and the child is in the petitioner's custody, an order that a party pay any amount necessary for the support and maintenance of the child, if the order would otherwise be authorized in an action brought pursuant to Fam. Code § 7600 et seq. (Uniform Parentage Act) and provided that the order is without prejudice in the action [Fam. Code § 6341(a); see generally Ch. 412, Paternity]. When determining whether to make such an order, the court must consider whether the failure to make the order may jeopardize the safety of the petitioner and the children for whom child support is requested, including safety concerns related to the financial needs of the petitioner and the children [Fam. Code § 6341(a), (b)].

- An order that the respondent pay spousal support if the parties are married to each other and no spousal support order exists. When determining whether to make such an order, the court must consider whether the failure to make the order may jeopardize the safety of the petitioner, including safety concerns related to the financial needs of the petitioner. This order is without prejudice in a proceeding for dissolution, nullity, or legal separation [Fam. Code § 6341(c), (d)].

- An order that restitution be paid to the petitioner for loss of earnings and out-of-pocket expenses including, but not limited to, expenses for medical care and temporary housing, incurred as a direct result of the abuse inflicted by the respondent or any actual physical injuries sustained from the abuse [Fam. Code § 6342(a)(1)].

- An order that restitution be paid by the petitioner for out-of-pocket expenses incurred by a party as a result of an ex parte order that is found by the court to have been issued on facts shown at a noticed hearing to be insufficient to support the order [Fam. Code § 6342(a)(2)].

- An order that restitution be paid by the respondent to any public or private agency for the reasonable cost of providing services to the petitioner required as a direct result of the abuse inflicted by the respondent or any actual injuries sustained therefrom [Fam. Code § 6342(a)(3)].

- An order requiring the restrained party to participate in batterer's treatment counseling [Fam. Code § 6343(a)].

- An order for the payment of attorney's fees and costs of the prevailing party [Fam. Code § 6344(a)]. If the petitioner is the prevailing party and cannot afford to pay for the attorney's fees and costs, the court must, if appropriate based on the parties' respective abilities to pay, order that the respondent pay the petitioner's attorney's fees and costs for commencing and maintaining the proceeding. Whether the respondent should be ordered to pay the prevailing petitioner's attorney's fees and costs, and theamount to be paid, must be determined based on the parties' respective incomes and needs, and any factors that affect their respective abilities to pay [Fam. Code § 6344(b)].

In addition, in accordance with federal law, on the request of a victim of domestic violence who is seeking a domestic violence restraining order, a judge issuing the order may include a provision in the order that permits the victim to record any prohibited communication made to the victim by the perpetrator [Penal Code § 633.6(a); see Penal Code § 633.6(b) (Judicial Council must amend its domestic violence prevention application and order forms to incorporate this provision)].

After notice and a hearing, the court may order the restrained party to participate in a batterer's program approved by the probation department as provided in Penal Code § 1203.097 [Fam. Code § 6343(a)]. In consultation with local domestic violence shelter and programs, the courts are required to develop a resource list of referrals to appropriate community domestic violence programs and services to be provided to each applicant for an order under this statute [Fam. Code § 6343(b)].

If a request for separate counseling is made by a party who alleges domestic violence (in a written declaration under penalty of perjury) or who is protected by the order, the parties must participate in counseling separately and at separate times, provided that there has been a history of domestic violence between the parties, or if a protective order is in effect [Fam. Code § 6343(b)].

The court may grant a mutual order enjoining the parties from contacting, molesting, attacking, striking, stalking, threatening, sexually assaulting, battering, harassing, telephoning, contacting repeatedly by mail with the intent to annoy or harass, destroying personal property, or disturbing the peace of the other party, and, in the discretion of the court, on a showing of good cause, of other named family or household members [Fam. Code §§ 6305, 6320, 6340; see Penal Code § 653(m)]. A mutual restraining order may be issued, however, only if (a) both parties personally appear and each party presents written evidence of abuse or domestic violence, and (b) the court makes detailed findings of fact indicating that both parties acted primarily as aggressors and that neither party acted primarily in self-defense [Fam. Code §§ 2047(b), 6305; Conness v. Satram (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 197, 204, 18 Cal. Rptr. 3d 577 (written findings are necessary to ensure that mutual restraints are imposed only after court carefully considers evidence); see § 293.53[3]].

As part of a protective order issued under Fam. Code § 6340 [see Fam. Code §§ 6318, 6320-6323], the court may prohibit the restrained party from owning, possessing, purchasing or receiving, or attempting to purchase or receive a firearm [Penal Code § 12021(g); see § 293.53[4]]. If both parties are present in court and the court includes this prohibition in the protective order, the court is required to inform the parties of the terms of the order, the firearm prohibition, and the penalty for violation [Fam. Code § 6304].

[2] Duration of Order

The duration of orders issued under the DVPA after notice and a hearing depends on the type of order. Subject to the court's discretion, personal conduct, stay-away, and residence exclusion orders may not exceed three years in duration, subject to termination or modification by further order of the court either on written stipulation filed with the court or on the motion of a party. These orders may be renewed, on the request of a party, either for three years or permanently, without a showing of any further abuse since the issuance of the original order, subject to termination or modification by further order of the court either on written stipulation filed with the court or on the motion of a party [Fam. Code § 6345(a)].

The duration of any other DVPA orders that are also issued after notice and a hearing, including, but not limited to, orders for custody, visitation, support, and disposition of property is governed by the law relating to those specific subjects [Fam. Code § 6345(b)].

The failure to state the expiration date on the face of the court order creates an order with a duration of three years from the date of issuance [Fam. Code § 6345(c)].

When a restrained party applies for termination of the order, that party has the burden of showing by a preponderance of the evidence that (1) there has been a material change in the facts on which the order was issued, (2) the law on which the order was issued has changed, or (3) the ends of justice would be served by terminating the order [Loeffler v. Medina (2009) 174 Cal. App. 4th 1495, 1504, 95 Cal. Rptr. 3d 343 (court must apply standards applicable to motions to dissolve injunctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 533)]. The court has the discretion to determine that the changed circumstances alleged by the restrained party are not material and, therefore, do not present a reason for terminating the order [Loeffler v. Medina (2009) 174 Cal. App. 4th 1495, 1506, 95 Cal. Rptr. 3d 343] . It may also award attorney's fees and costs under Fam. Code § 6344(a) to the party who prevails in defeating an application to terminate the order [Loeffler v. Medina (2009) 174 Cal. App. 4th 1495, 1508, 95 Cal. Rptr. 3d 343] .

[3] Limitations on Enjoined Parent's Visitation Rights

In making an award of temporary custody of a child pursuant to the Domestic Violence Prevention Act, the court must consider whether visitation should be restricted when an order directed to the child's parent has also been issued pursuant to one of the following:

- Nullity, dissolution and legal separation [Fam. Code § 2049; see Fam. Code § 2049 (injunctions included in judgment), Fam. Code §§ 6218, 6320 (injunction against certain physical conduct), Fam. Code § 6321 (exclusion from family or household dwelling), Fam. Code § 6322 (injunction against behavior as necessary to give effect to other orders)].

- The Uniform Parentage Act [Fam. Code §§ 6218, 6320 (injunction against certain physical conduct), Fam. Code § 6321 (exclusion from family or household dwelling), Fam. Code § 6322 (injunction against behavior as necessary to give effect to other orders), Fam. Code §§ 7710, 7720, 7730 (injunctions included in judgment)].

- The Domestic Violence Prevention Act [Fam. Code § 6320 et seq. (ex parte orders), Fam. Code § 6340 (orders after hearing)].

That is, the court must consider whether the best interests of the child require that any visitation granted to the restrained parent with respect to the child be supervised, suspended, or denied. The authority of the court to limit visitation in these cases to situations in which a third person, specified by the court, is present, is commonly known as "supervised" visitation.

These provisions apply to any protective order issued in connection with:

- A DVPA proceeding [Fam. Code §§ 6320 et seq. (ex parte orders), Fam. Code § 6340 (orders after hearing)].

- A proceeding for marital dissolution, legal separation, or nullity of marriage [Fam. Code § 2045(b); see Fam. Code §§ 2049 (injunctions included in judgment), Fam. Code § 6218, 6320 (injunction against certain physical conduct), Fam. Code § 6321 (exclusion from family or household dwelling), Fam. Code § 6322 (injunction against behavior as necessary to give effect to other orders)],

- A parentage proceeding under the Uniform Parentage Act [Fam. Code §§ 3100(b), 6218, 6320 (injunction against certain physical conduct), Fam. Code § 6321 (exclusion from family or household dwelling), Fam. Code § 6322 (injunction against behavior as necessary to give effect to other orders), Fam. Code §§ 7710, 7720, 7730 (injunctions included in judgment)].

In determining the best interest of the child, the court must consider the factors specified in Fam. Code § 3011, which relate to the child's health, safety, and welfare. For discussion of these factors, see Ch. 221, Dissolution of Marriage: Procedure . The court must also take into account the nature of the acts from which the parent was enjoined and the time that has elapsed since that order. A parent may submit to the court the name of a person that he or she deems suitable to be present during visitation [Fam. Code § 3100(b); see Fam. Code § 6223].

A court may not grant child custody or unsupervised visitation to any person who has committed certain criminal offenses or is required to be registered as a sex offender unless the court finds there is no significant risk to the child [see Fam. Code §§ 3030(a)(1), 3100(b), (c), 3031(a)-(b)]. A court may also not grant child custody or unsupervised visitation to a person if anyone residing in the person's household is required, as a result of a felony conviction in which the victim was a minor, to register as a sex offender under Penal Code § 290, unless the court finds that there is no significant risk to the child and states its reasons in writing or on the record [Fam. Code § 3030(a)(2)]. The child may not be placed in a home in which that person resides, nor be permitted to have unsupervised visitation with that person, unless the court states the reasons for its findings in writing or on the record [Fam. Code § 3030(a)(1), (2)]. The fact that a child is permitted unsupervised contact with a person who is required to register as a sex offender is prima facie evidence that the child is at significant risk. This prima facie evidence constitutes a presumption affecting the burden of producing evidence, but the presumption does not apply if there are factors mitigating against its application, including whether the party seeking custody or visitation is also required, as the result of a felony conviction in which the victim was a minor, to register as a sex offender [Fam. Code § 3030(a)(3)].

A court may not grant custody or visitation to any person who has been convicted of rape under Penal Code § 261 and the child was conceived as a result of that crime [Fam. Code § 3030(b)]. In addition, the court may not grant custody of, or unsupervised visitation with, a child if that person has been convicted of the first degree murder of the child's other parent, unless the court finds that there is no risk to the child's health, safety, and welfare, and sets forth its reasons for its finding in writing or on the record [Fam. Code § 3030(c); see Ch. 223, Dissolution of Marriage: Child Custody].

When visitation is ordered in a case in which domestic violence is alleged and an emergency protective order, protective order, or other restraining order is in effect, the visitation order must specify the time, day, plan, and manner of transfer of the child, in order to preserve consistency with the restraining orders, limit the child's exposure to potential domestic conflict or violence, and ensure the safety of all family members. If a criminal protective order has been issued under Penal Code § 136.2, the visitation order must refer to, and acknowledge the precedence of enforcement of, any appropriate criminal protective order [Fam. Code § 3100(c)]. If one of parties to the proceeding is staying at a domestic violence shelter, the order must designate the time, day, place, and manner of transfer of the child for visitation in a manner that prevents disclosure of the shelter location or other confidential information about where the parent is staying [Fam. Code § 3100(c), (d)].

If a petition requests a determination of temporary custody of a minor child and indicates that the issue is contested [see Fam. Code §§ 3020 et seq., 3060 et seq., 3100], the matter must be set for mediation of the contested issues prior to or concurrent with the setting of the matter for hearing [Fam. Code § 3170; see also Fam. Code § 3140 (circumstances in which child's birth certificate must be submitted to court)].

A party who has been subjected to domestic violence may obtain relief from having to meet with the other party for court-ordered mediation [Fam. Code § 3160 et seq.].

Mediation in domestic violence cases must be handled by Family Court Services in accordance with the protocol adopted by the Judicial Council [Fam. Code § 3170(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.215]. At the time of the hearing on the protective order, the court must give the parties the notice set forth in Fam. Code § 3044(f)--that a domestic violence finding against a party will adversely affect the party in custody determinations--only if the parties are entering into custody mediation [Sabbah v. Sabbah (2007) 151 Cal. App. 4th 818, 823-825, 60 Cal. Rptr. 3d 175].

1. Domestic Violence Prevention Act

§ 293.56 Enforcement of Orders Against Domestic Violence

[1] Notice to Be Printed on Orders

Any order issued pursuant to the Domestic Violence Prevention Act must state on its face the date of expiration of the order and a notice in substantially the following form:

"This order is effective when made. The law enforcement agency shall enforce it immediately on receipt. It is enforceable anywhere in California by any law enforcement agency that has received the order or is shown a copy of the order. If proof of service on the restrained person has not been received, the law enforcement agency shall advise the restrained person of the terms of the order and then shall enforce it" [Fam. Code § 6224; see Fam. Code § 6302 (requiring protective orders to contain notice that court may grant order lasting for up to three years if respondent does not appear)].

NOTE:

This notice requirement has not been amended to reflect Fam. Code § 6381, which provides that a law enforcement agency may also enforce an order under the DPVPA when an officer has verified the existence and contents of an order through the Department of Justice Domestic Violence Protective Order Registry [Fam. Code § 6381(b), (c); see also Fam. Code § 6380(a) (requiring counties to develop procedures for electronically transmitting data on protective orders to the Domestic Violence Protective Order Registry)].

[2] Notification and Authority of Law Enforcement Agencies

Effective January 1, 1995, the Department of Justice must maintain a Domestic Violence Restraining Order System and make specific information regarding registered protective orders, including ex parte protective orders, available to court clerks and law enforcement personel, through computer access, including the California Law Enforcement Telecommunications Systems (CLETS). In turn, court clerks and law enforcement agencies must immediately notify the Department of Justice when any protective order has been issued, served, modified, extended, or terminated. However, each county in California has until July 1, 1996, to establish a procedure for the electronic transmission of the required information to the Department [Fam. Code §§ 6380, 6385; see Fam. Code § 6380(b) (listing types of protective, restraining, injunctive, criminal court, and out-of-state orders concerning which a report must be made to the Registry)]. Pursuant to this requirement, all data with respect to criminal court protective orders issued, modified, extended, or terminated under Penal Code § 136.2, and all data filed with the court on the required Judicial Council forms with respect to protective orders (including their issuance, modification, extension, or termination to which the DVPA applies), must be transmitted by the court or its designee within one business day to law enforcement personnel by either transmitting a physical copy of the order to a local law enforcement agency that is authorized to enter orders into CLETS, or by entering the order into CLETS directly (with California Department of Justice approval) [see Fam. Code § 6380(a); see also Fam. Code § 6380(d) (duty of law enforcement officer or court clerk to notify Department of Justice on receipt of proof of service of service of protective or restraining order within one business day)].

Each law enforcement agency is required to make available to any law enforcement officer responding to the scene of reported domestic violence information concerning the existence, terms, and current status of protective orders issued under DVPA. However, this requirement apparently may be met by making this information available through the statewide registry [see Fam. Code § 6382].

The inability of a law enforcement agency or a court clerk to provide all categories of information required does not delay entry of the information available [see Fam. Code § 6380(b)]. Furthermore, failure to provide the Department of Justice with personal descriptive information on the person restrained as required by Fam. Code § 6385(b) does not invalidate the restraining order [Fam. Code § 6385(b)].

Any law enforcement agency in the state may enforce the terms of a protective order issued under the DVPA if the agency has received a copy of the order or if a law enforcement officer enforcing the order has been shown a copy of the order or has verified the existence and contents of the order through the Domestic Violence Restraining Order System maintained by the Department of Justice [Fam. Code § 6381(b)].

When a court issues or modifies a protective order, it must order the county clerk to provide to the petitioner, without cost, five certified, stamped, and endorsed copies of the order, extension, modification, or termination of the order [Fam. Code § 6387]. Prior law also required the court to order the petitioner to deliver or the county clerk to mail a certified copy of any protective order to specified law enforcement agencies by the close of the business day on which an order, extension, modification, or termination was granted [see former Fam. Code § 6380]. Although this is no longer statutorily required, the Judicial Council forms of Temporary Restraining Order and Notice of Hearing (CLETS--Cal. Judicial Council Form DV-110) [see § 293.151[1]] and Restraining Order After Hearing (CLETS--Cal. Judicial Council Form DV-130) [see § 293.154[1]] still provide for the court to require delivery of protective or restraining orders to law enforcement agencies. A law enforcement agency must enforce a protective order, whether or not it has been registered, if the law enforcement agency has received a copy of the order [see Fam. Code § 6381(b)].

A protective order is enforceable without additional proof of service if bothparties personally appeared at the hearing during which the order was issued. The parties are deemed to have received actual notice of the existence and substance of the order from the court [see Fam. Code § 6384(a); see also Fam. Code § 6380(c)]. The judicial forms for orders must indicate that the parties were present, and the order must contain a statement that no additional proof of service is required [see Fam. Code §§ 6384(b), 6385(a)].

If a person named in a temporary restraining order or emergency protective order is personally served with the order and notice of hearing, but does not appear at the hearing (either in person or by an attorney), and the terms and conditions of the restraining order or protective order issued after the hearing are identical to the previously issued temporary or emergency order (except for its duration), then the restraining order or protective order may be served on the person by first-class mail sent to that person at his or her most current address available to the court [Fam. Code § 6384(a)]. The order must state that the person will be served by mail at the address specified in the order and that if that address is not correct or the person wishes to verify that the temporary or emergency order was made permanent without substantive change, the person should call the clerk of the court [Fam. Code § 6384(b)].

A protective order is also enforceable without additional proof of service if the order was served by a law enforcement officer at the scene of reported domestic violence pursuant to Fam. Code § 6383 [Fam. Code § 6385(a)]. A law enforcement officer responding to the scene of reported domestic violence must attempt to verify the existence of a protective order by contacting the statewide registry of domestic violence protective orders if the protected person cannot provide an endorsed copy of the order [Fam. Code § 6383(d); see also Fam. Code § 6380 (each county required to establish procedure for electronic transmission of data to statewide registry of domestic violence protective orders)].

If the respondent was not present at the hearing where the order was issued [see Fam. Code §§ 6384, 6385(a) (no proof of service required if party personally appeared at hearing)], and the order has not yet been served, the petitioner may request the law enforcement officer who is present at the scene of reported domestic violence to serve the order on the respondent, whether or not the respondent has been taken into custody. The petitioner must provide the officer with an endorsed copy of the order and a proof of service form, which the officer must complete and transmit to the issuing court [Fam. Code § 6383(a), (b)]. There is a rebuttable presumption that the proof of service was signed on the date of service [Fam. Code § 6383(c)]. If a law enforcement officer present at the scene of reported domestic violence is informed that a protective order exists or that a person taken into custody is the respondent to a protective order, and the protected person cannot provide an endorsed copy of the order, the law enforcement officer must contact the statewide registry to verify its existence. If the order has been issued, but not served, the officer must immediately serve the order by verbally notifying the respondent of the terms of the order and advising the respondent to go to the local court to obtain a copy of the order [Fam. Code § 6383]. If the officer accomplishes service in this manner, no additional proof of service is required [Fam. Code §§ 6383(e), 6385(a)].

A peace officer is immune from civil liability for an arrest made under a protective or restraining order that is regular on its face, as long as the officer acted in good faith and had reasonable cause to believe that the person against whom the order was issued had notice of the order and had committed an act in violation of it. This provision does not afford immunity from liability for the unreasonable use of force by a peace officer in enforcing the order. A peace officer may also be immune from liability by virtue of other statutes, including Gov. Code §§ 820.2, 820.4 [Fam. Code § 6383(h)].

When there is more than one civil order regarding the same parties, the peace officer must enforce the order that was issued last. If both civil and criminal orders have been issued, the officer must enforce the criminal order that was issued last, subject to the provisions of Penal Code § 136.2 [Fam. Code § 6383(h)]. Penal Code § 136.2(c) provides that an emergency protective order issued under the DVPA or under Penal Code § 646.91 (issuance of emergency protective order on immediate and present danger of stalking) have precedence in enforcement over any other restraining or protective order, provided the emergency protective order meets specified requirements. Penal Code § 136.2(e)(2) provides that a restraining order or protective order against a defendant issued by a criminal court in a proceeding under Penal Code § 13700 (crime of domestic violence) has precedence in enforcement over any civil court order against the defendant, unless a court issues an emergency protective order under the DVPA or under Penal Code § 646.91. In such event, the emergency protective order has precedence in enforcement over any other restraining or protective order, provided it meets specified requirements [Penal Code § 136.2(e)(2)]. If custody and visitation with respect to the defendant and his or her minor children is ordered after a criminal protective order has been issued, the custody or visitation order must refer to and acknowledge the precedence of enforcement of any appropriate criminal protective order [Penal Code § 136.2(e)(3)].

[3] Willful Violation as Crime

A willful (intentional) and knowing violation of a protective order, as defined in Fam. Code § 6218, is a crime punishable under Penal Code § 273.6 [Fam. Code § 6388; see Penal Code § 868.5 (prosecuting witness entitled to attendance of supporting persons during testimony)]. For further discussion of criminal proceedings against violators, see Erwin, Millman, Monroe, Sevilla, Tarlow, California Criminal Defense Practice (Matthew Bender).

[4] Appointment of Counsel

The court may, in its discretion, appoint counsel to represent the petitioner in any proceeding to enforce the terms of a protective order [see Fam. Code §§ 6218, 6386(a)]. If private counsel is appointed, the court may order the respondent to pay reasonable costs and attorney's fees incurred by the petitioner [Fam. Code § 6386(b)].

[5] Contempt

A district attorney or city attorney may initiate and pursue a court action for contempt against a party for failing to comply with a court order entered under the DVPA [Code Civ. Proc. § 1218(d)]. Any attorney's fees and costs ordered by the court against a party adjudged guilty of contempt is payable to the Office of Emergency Services' account established for the purpose of funding domestic violence shelter service providers under Penal Code § 13823.15(f) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1218(d)].

Notwithstanding any other law, a court may not imprison or otherwise confine or place in custody a victim of domestic violence for contempt when the contempt consists of refusing to testify concerning that domestic violence [Code Civ. Proc. § 1219(b), (c)(2)].

[6] Out-of-State Protection Orders

Enforcement of out-of-state "protection orders" is now governed by the Uniform Interstate Enforcement of Domestic Violence Protection Orders Act, which is set forth in Fam. Code § 6400 et seq. For discussion of enforcement under this Act, see § 293.58.

§ 293.57 Domestic Violence Incident Report

Each state and local law enforcement agency must provide, without charging a fee, one copy of any domestic violence incident report face sheet or a domestic violence incident report, or both, to a victim of domestic violence, or to his or her representative (as defined in Fam. Code § 6228(g)) if the victim is deceased, on request [Fam. Code § 6228(a)]. For purposes of this provision, the term "domestic violence" has the definition given in Fam. Code § 6211 [Fam. Code § 6228(a)]. The victim or the victim's representative must present the law enforcement agency with identification at the time of making the request [Fam. Code § 6228(d), (g)(2)]. If the person making the request is the victim's representative, he or she must also present a certified copy of the death certificate or other satisfactory evidence of the death of the victim at the time a request is made [Fam. Code § 6228(d), (g)(2)].

A copy of the domestic violence incident report face sheet must be made available during regular business hours to a victim of domestic violence or the victim's representative within 48 hours after the victim or representative requests a copy, unless the law enforcement agency informs the victim or representative of the reasons why, for good cause, the face sheet is unavailable. In such event, the law enforcement agency must furnish a copy to the victim or representative within five working days of the victim's request [Fam. Code § 6228(b)].

A copy of the domestic violence incident report must be made available during regular business hours to a victim of domestic violence or his or her representative within five working days after the victim or representative requests a copy, unless the law enforcement agency informs the victim or to the victim's representative of the reasons why, for good cause, the report is unavailable. In such event, the law enforcement agency must furnish a copy to the victim or representative within 10 working days of the victim's request [Fam. Code § 6228(c)].

The domestic violence incident report must note the following [Penal Code § 13730(c)]:

> 1. If the officers who responded to the domestic violence call observed any signs that the alleged abuser was under the influence of alcohol or a controlled substance.

2. If the officers determined if any law enforcement agency had previously responded to a domestic violence call at the same address involving the same alleged abuser or victim.

3. If the officers found it necessary, for the protection of themselves or other persons present, to inquire of the victim, the alleged abuser, or both, if a firearm or other deadly weapon was present at the location. Any firearm or other deadly weapon discovered by an officer at the scene of a domestic violence incident must be confiscated.

For these purposes, a representative of the victim means any of the following [Fam. Code § 6228(g)(1)]:

- The surviving spouse.
- A surviving child of the decedent who has attained 18 years of age.
- A domestic partner, as defined in Fam. Code § 297(a).
- A surviving parent of the decedent.
- A surviving adult relative.
- The public administrator if one has been appointed.

A representative of the victim does not include any person who has been convicted of murder in the first degree [see Penal Code § 189], of the victim, or any person identified in the incident report face sheet as a suspect [Fam. Code § 6228(g)(2)].

§ 293.58 Enforcement of Foreign Protection Orders Under Uniform Interstate Enforcement of Domestic Violence Protection Orders Act

[1] Introduction

A person authorized by California law to seek enforcement of a protection ordermay seek enforcement of a valid foreign protection order in a California tribunal under the Uniform Interstate Enforcement of Domestic Violence Protection Orders Act (the Act) (Fam. Code § 6400 et seq.) [Fam. Code § 6402(a); see Fam. Code § 6401(1) ("foreign protection order" is protection order issued by tribunal of another state), (7) ("state" includes Indian tribe or any branch of United States military with jurisdiction to issue protection orders), (8) ("tribunal" means court, agency, or other entity authorized by law to issue or modify protection orders)]. The Act applies to protection orders issued before January 1, 2002, and to continuing actions for enforcement of foreign protection orders begun before January 1, 2002 [Fam. Code § 6409]. A request for enforcement of a foreign protection order made on or after January 1, 2002, for violations of the order occurring before January 1, 2002, is also governed by the Act [Fam. Code § 6409].

[2] Protection Orders Defined

A "protection order" is an injunction or other order, issued by a tribunal under the domestic violence or family violence laws of the issuing state, to prevent an individual from engaging in violent or threatening acts against, harassment of, contact or communication with, or physical proximity to, another individual [Fam. Code § 6401(5)].

[3] California's Enforcement Responsibilities

A California tribunal must enforce the terms of a foreign protection order, including terms that provide relief that a California tribunal would lack power to provide absent this statutory authority. The tribunal must enforce the order, whether it was obtained by independent action or in another proceeding, if it is an order issued in response to a complaint, petition, or motion filed by or on behalf of an individual seeking protection. In a proceeding to enforce a foreign protection order, the tribunal must follow the California procedures for the enforcement of protection orders [Fam. Code § 6402(a)].

However, a California tribunal may not enforce a foreign protection order issued by a tribunal of a state that does not recognize the standing of a protected individual, that is, an individual protected by a protection order [Fam. Code § 6401(4)] to seek enforcement of the order [Fam. Code § 6402(b)].

A California tribunal must enforce the provisions of a valid foreign protection order that governs child custody and visitation if the order was issued in accordance with the jurisdictional requirements governing the issuance of custody and visitation orders in the issuing state [Fam. Code § 6402(c)]. A California tribunal may not enforce a provision of a foreign protection order with respect to support under the Act [Fam. Code § 6402(d)].

[4] Requirements for Valid Foreign Order

A foreign protection order is valid if it meets all of the following criteria [Fam. Code § 6402(e)]:

1. Identifies the protected individual and the respondent, that is, the individual against whom enforcement of the order is sought [Fam. Code § 6401(6)].

2. Is currently in effect.

3. Was issued by a tribunal that had jurisdiction over the parties and the subject matter under the law of the issuing state.

4. Was issued after the respondent was given reasonable notice and had an opportunity to be heard within a reasonable time after the order was issued, consistent with the respondent's right to due process.

A foreign protection order that is valid on its face is prima facie evidence of its validity [Fam. Code § 6402(f)]. The absence of any of the criteria for validity of a foreign protection order is an affirmative defense in an action seeking enforcement of the order [Fam. Code § 6402(g)].

[5] Enforcement of Mutual Orders

A California tribunal may enforce the provisions of a mutual foreign protection order [Fam. Code § 6401(3) (defining "mutual foreign protection order")] that favors a respondent only if the respondent filed a written pleading seeking a protection order from the tribunal of the issuing state and the tribunal of the issuing state made specific findings in the respondent's favor [Fam. Code § 6402(h)].

[6] Registration of Order in California

Any foreign protection order must, on request of the person in possession of the order, be registered with a court of this state in order to be entered in the Domestic Violence Restraining Order System [Fam. Code § 6404(a)]. There is no fee for the registration of a foreign protection order, and the court clerk must provide all Judicial Council forms required by the Act to a person in possession of a foreign protection order free of charge [Fam. Code § 6404(b)].

[7] Other Remedies Unaffected

A protected individual who pursues remedies under the Act is not precluded from pursuing other legal or equitable remedies against the respondent [Fam. Code § 6406].

[8] Construction of Act to Promote Uniform Application

In applying and construing the Act, courts must give consideration to the needto promote uniformity of the law with respect to its subject matter among states that have also adopted the Act [Fam. Code § 6407].

§ 293.70 Criminal Sanctions for Abuse of Spouse or Cohabitant

[1] Current Spouse or Cohabitant

Along with remedies discussed in this chapter for enjoining domestic violence under the Domestic Violence Prevention Act [see Fam. Code § 6200 et seq.], criminal sanctions also exist. Some of these sanctions are discussed in this chapter in connection with specific domestic violence prevention orders (see §§ 293.52[8], 293.53[6], 293.56[4]). In addition, specific criminal penalties are provided for acts of domestic violence that result in corporal-physical injury to a spouse or unmarried cohabitant. Under Penal Code § 273.5, any person who willfully inflicts corporal injury resulting in a traumatic condition [see Penal Code § 273.5(c)] on any of the following persons is guilty of a felony [Penal Code § 273.5(a); see People v. Vega (1995) 33 Cal. App. 4th 706, 709, 39 Cal. Rptr. 2d 479 ; People v. Gutierrez (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 944, 949-951, 217 Cal. Rptr. 616] :

1. The spouse of the perpetrator;

2. Any person with whom the perpetrator is cohabiting; or

3. The person who is the mother or father of the perpetrator's child.

For purposes of Penal Code § 273.5, the victim and perpetrator need not hold themselves out as husband and wife in order for "cohabitation" to exist. In fact, there is no longer a requirement under the statute that the cohabiting parties even be of the opposite sex [Penal Code § 273.5(a) (version operative January 1, 1995)]. In addition, although the statute provides that a person is considered the father or mother of another person's child--that is, of the perpetrator's child--if the "alleged male parent is presumed the natural father under [Fam. Code §§ 7611, 7612]" [Penal Code § 273.5(d)], the elements needed to establish parentage for criminal culpability are not as rigorous as those to formally establish parentage under the Family Code. Thus, in one court's view, any substantial evidence establishing that the victim is the mother or father of the perpetrator's child is sufficient to sustain a conviction under Penal Code § 273.5, given the diverse purposes of the parentage and criminal statutes [People v. Vega (1995) 33 Cal. App. 4th 706, 709, 39

Cal. Rptr. 2d 479 ; for discussion of establishing parentage under the Family Code, see Ch. 412, Paternity]. In addition, a biological father may be convicted under Penal Code § 273.5 of battering the mother of his child, even if the father's and mother's parental rights over the child were terminated before the offense occurred. The historical fact of paternity is all that is required to justify punishing a father for battering the mother of his child [People v. Mora (1996) 51 Cal. App. 4th 1349, 1356, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 801] .

The Penal Code also contains special provisions for the prosecution of spousal abusers, and treatment programs for batterers [see Penal Code §§ 273.8 et seq., 1000.93 et seq., 1203.097; see People v. Cates (2009) 170 Cal. App. 4th 545, 549-550, 87 Cal. Rptr. 3d 919 (Penal Code § 1203.097 requires court to impose several conditions of probation, including participation in batterer's counseling program, and applies to defendants convicted of any crime of "abuse," as long as victim is person identified in Fam. Code § 6211)]. For further discussion of criminal proceedings related to domestic violence, see California Criminal Defense Practice, Ch. 142 (Matthew Bender).

In a prosecution for domestic violence, the judge may not instruct the jury that it may consider charged domestic violence offenses as evidence of the defendant's criminal propensity in connection with other domestic violence charges joined for trial [People v Quintanilla (2005) 132 Cal. App. 4th 572, 583, 33 Cal. Rptr. 3d 782] .

[2] Noncohabiting Former Spouse and Others

Special criminal sanctions exist for battery against a noncohabiting former spouse, fiance, fiancee, or person with whom the defendant currently has, or previously had, a dating relationship. These sanctions include a fine, imprisonment, or both. Prescribed conditions are imposed if probation is granted, or if the execution of sentence is suspended, including the requirement that a convicted batterer participate in an approved treatment or counseling program [see Penal Code § 243(e); see also Penal Code § 243(f)(11) (defining "dating relationship")].

§ 293.71 Family Code Remedies for Attempted Murder of Spouse

A spouse who is injured as the result of a murder attempt by the other spouse is entitled to an award of 100 percent of the community property interest in the retirement and pension benefits of the injured spouse. In other words, the injured spouse is entitled to retain all of his or her retirement and pension benefits, even if the other spouse would otherwise have a community property interest in the benefits. For this provision to be applicable, the culpable spouse must have been convicted of attempted murder. This remedy is provided in addition to any other that may be available [see Fam. Code § 782.5; Penal Code § 664; see also Fam. Code § 4324 (defining "injured spouse")].

For a complete discussion of this retirement benefits award and related remedies pertaining to attorney's fees and an exemption from paying support to the culpable spouse, see Ch. 222, Dissolution of Marriage: Property Division and Valuation .

§ 293.72 Suit for Damages

[1] Injuries from Domestic Violence Generally

A person who has been injured as the result of domestic violence is not limited to injunctive orders and associated remedies provided under the Family Code, but may also pursue any other available remedy [see Fam. Code § 6227]. In an appropriate case, this could include a civil action for damages [see generally Ch. 177, Damages, § 177.40 et seq.].

However, a special statute of limitations provides that such an action must be commenced within three years from the date of the last act of domestic violence that gave rise to the cause of action, or within three years from the date the plaintiff discovered (or reasonably should have discovered) the injury or illness resulting from the act of domestic violence by the defendant against the plaintiff [Code Civ. Proc. § 340.15].

For a complete discussion of bringing actions for damages, see Ch. 123, Complaints and Cross Complaints , Ch. 177, Damages , § 177.40 et seq., and Levy, Golden & Sacks, California Torts, Ch. 40 et seq. (Matthew Bender).

[2] Tort of Domestic Violence

A person who commits an act of domestic violence on another is liable to that person for damages, including, but not limited to, general damages, special damages, and punitive damages pursuant to Civ. Code § 3294 [Civ. Code § 1708.6(b)]. The court may grant a prevailing plaintiff equitable relief, an injunction, costs, and any other relief the court deems proper, including reasonable attorney's fees [Civ. Code § 1708.6(c)]. The rights and remedies provided in Civ. Code § 1708.6 are in addition to any other rights and remedies provided by law [Civ. Code § 1708.6(d)].

A person is liable for the tort of domestic violence if the plaintiff proves both of the following elements [Civ. Code § 1708.6(a)]:

1. The infliction of injury on the plaintiff resulting from abuse, as defined in Penal Code § 13700(a).

2. The abuse was committed by the defendant, a person having a relationship with the plaintiff as defined in Penal Code § 13700(b).

An action for damages for the tort of domestic violence must be commenced within three years from the date of the last act of domestic violence that gave rise to the cause of action, or within three years from the date the plaintiff discovered or reasonably should have discovered the injury or illness resulting from the act of domestic violence by the defendant against the plaintiff [Civ. Code § 1708.6(e); Code Civ. Proc. § 340.15].

For a complete discussion of actions for damages based on intentional acts, see Ch. 58, Assault and Battery . For discussion of actions for damages generally, see Ch. 123, Complaints and Cross Complaints , Ch. 177, Damages , § 177.40 et seq. For discussion of torts and tort actions generally, see Golden & Sacks, California Torts, Ch. 40 et seq. (Matthew Bender).

[3] Gender Violence

Any person subjected to gender violence may bring a civil action for damages against any responsible party. The plaintiff may seek actual damages, compensatory damages, punitive damages, injunctive relief, any combination of those, or any other appropriate relief. A prevailing plaintiff may also be awarded attorney's fees and costs [Civ. Code § 52.4(a)]. Notwithstanding any other laws that may establish the liability of an employer for the acts of an employee, Civil Code section 52.4 does not establish civil liability of a person because of his or her status as an employer, unless the employer personally committed an act of gender violence [Civ. Code § 52.4(d)]. For these purposes, "gender violence," is a form of sex discrimination and means any of the following [Civ. Code § 52.4(c)]:

1. One or more acts that would constitute a criminal offense under state law that has as an element the use, attempted use, or threatened use of physical force against the person or property of another, committed at least in part based on the gender of the victim, whether or not those acts have resulted in criminal complaints, charges, prosecution, or conviction [for criminal sanctions for abuse of a spouse or cohabitant, see § 293.70].

2. A physical intrusion or physical invasion of a sexual nature under coercive conditions, whether or not those acts have resulted in criminal complaints, charges, prosecution, or conviction.

An action for damages based on gender violence must be commenced within three years of the act, or if the victim was a minor when the act occurred, within eight years after the date the plaintiff attains the age of majority or within three years after the date the plaintiff discovers or reasonably should have discovered the psychological injury or illness occurring after the age of majority that was caused by the act, whichever date occurs later [Civ. Code § 52.4(b)].

For a complete discussion of actions for damages based on intentional acts, see Ch. 58, Assault and Battery . For discussion of actions for damages generally, see Ch. 123, Complaints and Cross Complaints , Ch. 177, Damages , § 177.40 et seq. For discussion of torts and tort actions generally, see Golden & Sacks, California Torts, Ch. 40 et seq. (Matthew Bender).

§ 293.73 Federal Criminal Remedy

The federal Violence Against Women Act of 1994 (VAWA) provides a federalcriminal remedy to punish a person who travels across a state line (or enters or leaves Indian country) "with the intent to injure, harass, or intimidate that person's spouse or intimate partner and who, in the course of or as a result of such travel, intentionally commits a crime of violence and thereby causes bodily injury" to that spouse or intimate partner [see 18 U.S.C. § 2261(a)(1)]. However, a separate portion of the VAWA, which provided a federal civil action to victims of violent crimes that were committed because of gender or on the basis of gender, was found unconstitutional in 2000 by the U.S. Supreme Court [United States v. Morrison (2000) 529 U.S. 598 (holding 42 U.S.C. § 13981 unconstitutional)].

§ 293.74 Denial of Spousal Support to Abusive Spouse

In any dissolution proceeding in which one spouse has been convicted of committing an act of domestic violence against the other spouse within five years before the filing of the dissolution proceeding, or at any time thereafter, there is a rebuttable presumption affecting the burden of proof that an award of temporary or permanent spousal support to the abusive spouse should not be made [Fam. Code § 4325(a)]. The court may consider documented evidence of a convicted spouse's history as a victim of domestic violence perpetrated by the other spouse, or any other factors the court deems just and equitable, as conditions for rebutting the presumption [Fam. Code § 4325(b)]. The presumption may be rebutted by a preponderance of the evidence [Fam. Code § 4325(c)]. The court is not required to consider the factors outlined in Fam. Code § 4320 in making its determination under Fam. Code § 4325 [In re Marriage of Cauley (2006) 138 Cal. App. 4th 1100, 1102, 41 Cal. Rptr. 3d 902] . The presumption of Fam. Code § 4325 applies even when the parties' settlement agreement provides that spousal support is not subject to modification or termination [In re Marriage of Cauley (2006) 138 Cal. App. 4th 1100, 1106-1109, 41 Cal. Rptr. 3d 902] .

In ordering spousal support, the court must consider documented evidence of any history of domestic violence between the parties, including, but not limited to, consideration of emotional distress resulting from domestic violence perpetrated against the supported party by the supporting party, and consideration of any history of violence against the supporting party by the supported party [Fam. Code § 4320(i)]. The criminal conviction of an abusive spouse must be considered in reducing or denying a spousal support award [Fam. Code § 4320(m)]. For additional discussion of factors in determining spousal support, see Ch. 225, Dissolution of Marriage: Spousal Support .

[2] Domestic Violence

Domestic relations exception to diversity jurisdiction (see 28 U.S.C. § 1332) as inapplicable to suit involving alleged torts by former spouse and companion against petitioner's children; domestic relations exception as encompassing only cases involving issuance of divorce, alimony, or child custody decree. Ankenbrandt v. Richards (1992) 504 U.S. 689,

701-704, 112 S. Ct. 2206, 119 L. Ed. 2d 468

State protective services agency as having no duty, as a matter of due process under U.S. Const., amend. XIV, to intervene to protect minor child from violent father, despite agency's prior knowledge of father's abusive behavior and prior removal of child from his custody. DeShaney v. Winnebago County Dep't of Social Servs. (1989) 489 U.S. 189, 195-198

No "special relationship" was properly alleged for purposes of federal due process pursuant to 42 U.S.C. § 1983 between city police agency and woman abused and harassed by estranged husband, despite existence of restraining order and agency's knowledge of order and ongoing violent acts; however, dismissal of entire complaint with prejudice was abuse of discretion when woman could plausibly amend complaint to state equal protection claim. Balistreri v. Pacifica Police Dep't (9th Cir. 1990) 901 F.2d 696, 700-702

When court has issued ex parte custody and visitation orders at request of one party, it must elicit evidence under Fam. Code § 6340(a) as to whether other party can demonstrate parent-child relationship with minor children and, if so, whether earlier custody and visitation orders should be modified to ensure mutual safety of children and party having custody. Gonzalez v. Munoz (2007) 156 Cal. App. 4th 413, 422-423, 67 Cal. Rptr. 3d 317

Named person protected under domestic violence injunctive order as unable validly to effect personal service of order on respondent in action. Caldwell v. Coppola (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 859, 865

[2] Use of Form

This form is an illustrative version of the mandatory Judicial Council form of Request for Orders to Stop Harassment under the civil harassment statutes [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 527.6, 527.9; Cal. Judicial Council Form CH-100]. The form may be obtained from any superior court county clerk. This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

This form of request is for use by the plaintiff to obtain an injunction against harassment [see Code Civ. Proc. § 527.6]. The plaintiff may also use this form to apply for a temporary restraining order prior to the hearing on the injunction. Unless otherwise ordered, no memorandum of points and authorities is required [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1152(b)].

In filing this form, counsel must also include a Judicial Council form of Civil Case Cover Sheet, which is required for statistical purposes in all civil actions, except those filed in small claims court, or filed under the Family Code, Probate Code, or Welfare and Institutions Code. This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Form s, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

At least three copies of the request should be made: an original to file with the court, a copy for each defendant, and a copy for the files of the plaintiff's attorney. A copy may also be made for the plaintiff.

If a temporary restraining order is granted, the plaintiff's attorney should make copies for each law enforcement agency listed in Paragraph 13 and deliver them to the agencies [see Code Civ. Proc. § 527.6(h)].

[3] Service on Defendant

On the filing of a Request for Orders to Stop Harassment under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 527.6, 527.9, the defendant must be personally served with a copy of the request and any Temporary Restraining Order [Code Civ. Proc. § 527.6(g); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1152(c); see § 293.101[1]], the Notice of Hearing of the request--which is incorporated in the request [Code Civ. Proc. § 527.6(g)], and the Order to Show Cause--which is incorporated with the temporary restraining order [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1152(c); see § 293.101[1]]. A blank Judicial Council form of Answer to Request for Orders to Stop Harassment [§ 293.103[1]] must also be served.

Service of these papers must be made at least five days before the hearing. However, the court may for good cause, on motion of the applicant or on its own motion, shorten the time for service on the opposing party[Code Civ. Proc. § 527.6(g)]. For further discussion of orders shortening time, see Ch. 524, Shortening and Extension of Time .

Service must be made in the manner provided by law for personal service of summons in civil actions [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1152(c); see Form 3]. The person who performs service should complete the Judicial Council's approved form of Proof of Personal Service (Civil Harassment) [Cal. Judicial Council Form CH-130; see § 293.102[1]. For discussion of personal service of summons in civil actions, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers .

[4] Filling in Request

In Paragraph 1, the name(s) of each person asking for protection should be set forth. Paragraph 2 should be completed by indicating the defendant's name and identifying information, along with the defendant's home and work address if known. The names of all other persons who need protection should be listed in Paragraph 3, including their ages and relationship to the plaintiff. One of the three boxes in Paragraph 4 should be checked to indicate proper venue for the proceeding. The venue provisions of the Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a) will determine the proper superior court in which to file the application because no action is pending. The Judicial Council seems to be treating the proceeding as a tort action and following the second sentence of Code of Civ. Proc. § 395(b), since Box 4(b) indicates that the action may be filed in the county where defendant caused plaintiff physical or emotional injury.

Paragraph 5 should explain how it came to be that the applicant knows the defendant. The harassment should be described with specificity in Paragraph 6. If more space is needed under this paragraph, the appropriate box may be checked and additional pages appended as Attachment 6.

The appropriate boxes in Paragraphs 7 and 8 should be checked to indicate the orders requested. The appropriate boxes in Paragraph 9 should be checked to indicate whether or not others should also be covered by the requested orders. Paragraph 11 should be completed if other orders are requested.

If a temporary restraining order is requested, Box 12 should be checked, and an explanation should be given concerning why the order is needed before a court hearing. Paragraph 13 should list all law enforcement agencies to receive a copies of orders made as a result of the petition.

Paragraph 14 should be completed to indicate whether or not the applicant has ever requested restraining orders against the defendant. If the defendant cannot be served with the Request and supporting papers at least five days before the hearing, an explanation of the reasons why more time is needed for service mustbe set forth in Paragraph 15. The box in Paragraph 16 should be checked if a waiver of the filing fee is sought. If the applicant is eligible for a waiver of the fee for service of the order, the box in Paragraph 17 should be checked, and a Request and Order for FreeService of Restraining Order (Cal. Judicial Council Form CH-101) should be filed with the petition [see § 293.107]. Paragraph 18 should be checked if attorney's fees and costs are sought, and the costs should be specified.

The form must be signed by both the attorney and the applicant.

[2] Use of Form

This form is an illustrative version of the mandatory Judicial Council form of Notice of Hearing and Temporary Restraining Order (CLETS) under the civil harassment statutes [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 527.6, 527.9; Cal. Judicial Council Form CH-120]. The form may be obtained from any superior court clerk. This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. This form of notice of hearing is for use by plaintiff to notify defendant to appear at the hearing, and of the contents of any temporary restraining order granted until the time of hearing. If desired, plaintiff or his or her attorney may request a temporary restraining order that prohibits harassment prior to the hearing [see Code Civ. Proc. § 527.6(c); § 293.100[1] (Request for Orders to Stop Harassment)].

[3] Procedure When Courts Grants Temporary Restraining Order

If the court grants a temporary restraining order, plaintiff should file the original with the court clerk and have the copies stamped. Plaintiff should make sure that the appropriate law enforcement agencies are notified so that they will enforce the order. In the order, the court will specify who is responsible for delivering a copy of the order and any proof of service to the law enforcement agencies listed in the order. Generally, the court will require plaintiff or plaintiff's attorney to deliver a copy of the order to the appropriate law enforcement agencies [see Code Civ. Proc. § 527.6(h); see also § 293.17[7]].

Plaintiff or plaintiff's attorney should make arrangements to have the defendant personally served with copies of the following: (1) the Request for Orders to Stop Harassment [§ 293.100[1]]; (2) the above notice of hearing and temporary restraining order [see Code Civ. Proc. § 527.6(g)]; and (3) a blank form of the Answer to Request for Orders to Stop Harassment [§ 293.103[1]]. For discussion on personal service and proof of service, see §§ 292.100[2], 293.102[2].

The following copies will be needed: an original to file with the court, a copy for each defendant, a copy for each law enforcement agency that is to be notified if a temporary restraining order is issued, a copy for the files of the plaintiff's attorney, and a copy for the plaintiff, if desired.

[2] Use of Forms

Illustrated are reproductions of the Judicial Council forms of Proof of Personal Service (Civil Harassment) and Proof of Service by Mail (Civil Harassment) [Cal. Judicial Council Forms CH-130, CH-131]. Each form is optional for use, but its use is strongly recommended. These forms may be obtained from any superior court county clerk. These forms are available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

The first illustrated form is for use by plaintiff to prove that the correct forms have been personally served on defendant, as required by Code Civ. Proc. § 527.6(g) and Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1152(c). It should be filled in by the person who completes personal service on defendant, and the original should be filed with the court.

Cal. Judicial Council Form CH-131, the second illustrated form, may be used by a defendant to establish proof of service by mail of the completed response form or other documents.

Judicial Council Form CH-135, What Is "Proof of Service," may be helpful to persons who are applying for civil harassment restraining orders without the assistance of counsel. It explains the requirements for and the mechanics of service. It may be obtained from any county clerk or on the California Courts web site.

[3] When Service Required and Who May Serve

On filing a request for orders to stop harassment under Code Civ. Proc. § 527.6 (civil harassment statute), the defendant must be personally served with a copy of the request [Cal. Judicial Council Form CH-100; see § 293.100[1]] and various other papers, as discussed in § 293.100[2].

Under the law governing personal service in civil actions, service may be made by any person over 18 years of age other than the plaintiff, including a licensed process server, or by the sheriff's department [see Code Civ. Proc. § 414.10]. For further discussion of procedures involved in effecting personal service, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers .

This form is a reproduction of the mandatory Judicial Council form of Answer to Request for Orders to Stop Harassment under the civil harassment statutes [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 527.6, 527.9; Cal. Judicial Council Form CH-110]. The form may be obtained from any superior court county clerk. This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

The answer is for use by defendant to explain, excuse, justify, or deny the alleged harassment [see Code Civ. Proc. § 527.6(d)]. A copy of the answer must be served on plaintiff or plaintiff's attorney no later than 48 hours before the hearing [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1152(d)].

[3] Filling In Answer

Box 3 should be checked if plaintiff requested a restraining order; and the appropriate additional box in that paragraph should be checked to reflect the degree of defendant's consent, if any, to the request. Similarly, Box 4 should be checked if plaintiff requested a stay-away order, and the appropriate additional box should be checked accordingly.

Box 5 should be checked, and the appropriate additional box in that paragraph should also be checked, to indicate that the defendant does not own, possess, or control any firearms; or if the defendant does own, possess, or control any firearms whether or not the defendant consents to the order regarding relinquishment of firearms requested in the

If there are other orders, Box 6 should be checked, and the corresponding Box 6(a), (b), or (c) checked to indicate consent or lack of consent. If Box 6(c) is checked, the specific orders to which defendant consents should be specified.

Paragraph 7 should be filled in if plaintiff has not suffered emotional distress, if a reasonable person in plaintiff's position would not have suffered such distress, or if plaintiff's alleged distress is not the result of defendant's alleged acts [see Code Civ. Proc. § 527.6(b)]. All three boxes may be checked if appropriate.

If the defendant's acts were not intentional, Box 8 should be checked. If the defendant denies doing all or some of the acts alleged in the Request, the appropriate box in Paragraph 9 should be checked, and Paragraphs 10 and 11 should be completed.

Box 12 should be marked to indicate that defendant is not required to pay a fee for filing the answer. However, a fee may be required if the court finds that violence occurred or threats of violence were made. If defendant requests fees or costs [see Code Civ. Proc. § 527.6(i)], Paragraph 13 should so indicate. Box 14 should be checked if the defendant requests other relief.

The form must be signed by both the attorney and the defendant.

This form is for use by plaintiff to set forth the court's injunction prohibiting harassment, after a hearing. If the judge finds by clear and convincing evidence that harassment exists, he or she must issue an injunction prohibiting the harassment [see Code Civ. Proc. § 527.6(d)]. The order should be completed and presented to the judge for his or her signature. After it is signed, it should be filed with the clerk. In the order, the court will require plaintiff or plaintiff's attorney to deliver a copy of the order to the appropriate law enforcement agencies [see Code Civ. Proc. § 527.6(h); see also § 293.17[7]]. If defendant did not appear at the hearing, defendant should be served personally with the copies of the order.

This form is a filled-in reproduction of the Judicial Council's approved form of Reissue Temporary Restraining Order (Civil Harassment) [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 527.6, 527.9; Cal. This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

Primary grounds for seeking a reissuance of the temporary restraining order include the plaintiff's inability to effect service on the defendant as required before the original hearing date, and the continuance of the original hearing because of the parties' referral to dispute resolution services or another mediation provider [see Code Civ. Proc. § 527(d)(5)].

The form should be completed and presented to the judge for signature, after which a copy (an "endorsed-filed" copy) must be attached to the notice of hearing and other papers (as listed in the notice of hearing) and then served on the defendant. As in the case of the original notice of hearing, a copy of the signed order for reissuance of the temporary restraining order (and any proof of service) must be delivered to the law enforcement agency or agencies listed in the original notice of hearing [see Code Civ. Proc. § 527.6(g), (h)]. For related comments on service and copies to prepare, see § 293.100[2].

This form is a reproduction of the approved Judicial Council form of Proof of Firearms Turned In or Sold under the civil harassment statutes [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 527.6, 527.9; Cal. Judicial Council Form CH-145]. This form may be obtained from any superior court clerk. This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

This form is for use by a defendant in a civil harassment action to report to the court that the defendant has sold or turned in any firearms owned or possessed by the defendant.

A defendant who is subject to a protective order under Code Civ. Proc. § 527.6 is prohibited from owning, possessing, purchasing, receiving, or attempting to purchase or receive a firearm while the protective order is in effect [Code Civ. Proc. § 527.6(k)(1)]. The court must order the defendant to relinquish under Code Civ. Proc. § 527.9 any firearms the defendant owns or possesses [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 527.6(k)(2), 527.9(a)].

On the issuance of a protective order, the court must order the defendant to relinquish any firearm in his or her immediate possession or control, or subject to his or her immediate possession or control, within 24 hours of being served with the order, either by surrendering the firearm to the control of local law enforcement officials, or by selling the firearm to a licensed gun dealer [Code Civ. Proc. § 527.9(b)]. The defendant must file with the court a receipt showing that the firearm was surrendered to the local law enforcement agency or sold to a licensed gun dealer within 48 hours after receiving the order [Code Civ. Proc. § 527.9(b)]. This form may be used for this purpose.

Items 1 through 3 and 6 through 8 of the form must be completed by the defendant, who must also sign the form. The form must then be submitted to the law enforcement agency or licensed gun dealer for completion of item 4 or item 5 of the form. The fully completed form is then filed with the court.

[2] Use of Form

This form is an illustration of the mandatory Judicial Council form of Petition for Injunction Prohibiting Violence or Threats of Violence Against Employee (Workplace Violence) and Application for Temporary Restraining Order [Cal. Judicial Council Form WV-100]. This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

This form is for use by an employer in seeking injunctive relief on behalf of its employee, based on the employee having been the victim of actual violence or a credible threat of violence in the workplace [see Code Civ. Proc. § 527.8]. The form permits the plaintiff to seek a temporary restraining order, as well as an injunction after notice and a hearing. A temporary restraining order may only be granted, however, on a showing of reasonable proof that the employee has suffered unlawful violence or a credible threat of violence and that great or irreparable harm will result to the employee unless the order is granted [Code Civ. Proc. § 527.8(e)]. If a temporary restraining order is being sought, the box entitled "Application for Temporary Restraining Order" must be marked below the form title, as well as the box for Item 7, and the boxes in Items 9 and 10 indicating that the application is for an order that would apply "now and [be] effective until the hearing." For additional discussion and a combined form of Order to Show Cause and Temporary Restraining Order (CLETS) that is used in Workplace Violence matters, see § 293.132[1] [see Cal. Judicial Council Form WV-120].

The employer is the plaintiff and must be listed as such in the caption. The employee is to be listed in the caption opposite the word "Employee." The individual who has carried out or threatened workplace violence is the party defendant. Note that if the defendant is also an employee, he or she is still only listed as the defendant, but the status of the defendant as an employee must be disclosed in Item 3 of the petition.

Identifying information for the plaintiff, employee, and the defendant, is to be set forth in Items 1, 2, and 3 of the petition, respectively, with a venue allegation required in Item 4. If the plaintiff has asked, or is asking, for restraining orders against the defendant in another action, this must be disclosed by marking the check-off boxes in Item 5. Item 6 contains check-off boxes that must be marked, as appropriate, to allege the basis for injunctive relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 527.8. As part of Item 6, the plaintiff must set forth facts describing the nature of the harassment. If space on the form is inadequate, an additional page should be attached. If the plaintiff lacks direct knowledge of the underlying facts, an additional declaration (under penalty of perjury) from a person with directknowledge--such as the employee--must be attached. Plaintiff must alsodisclose whether the petition is based on personal knowledge or on the basis of information and belief.

The orders being sought are to be indicated by marking the appropriate check-off boxes. Personal conduct and "stay away" orders are set out in Items 9 and 10. Note that on a showing of good cause, and in the discretion of the court, injunctive relief may be granted not only on behalf of the employee, but on behalf of the employee's family or household members who reside with the employee, or other persons employed at his or her workplace or workplaces [Code Civ. Proc. § 527.8(e)]. Therefore, if orders in favor of family or household members, or co-workers, are requested these should be indicated by marking the boxes designated.

Item 11 sets forth the request for an order prohibiting the defendant from owning or possessing a firearm while the protective order is in effect, and requiring the defendant to relinquish any firearms.

Any associated orders to help implement other orders sought, may be requested by marking the box in Item 12. Orders for notification of law enforcement agencies should be set out in Item 13, and for shortening time for service of the Order to Show Cause (see § 293.132) should be set out in item 14.

If the plaintiff requests costs, Item 15 should be completed. If the plaintiff is not required to pay a filing fee, Item 17 should be checked.

This form is an illustration of the mandatory Judicial Council form of Response to Petition of Employer for Injunction Prohibiting Violence or Threats of Violence Against Employee (Workplace Violence) [Cal. Judicial Council Form WV-110]. This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Form s, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

This form is for use by defendant in an action for injunctive relief against workplace violence to respond to a petition (see § 293.130[1]) filed in that action [see Code Civ. Proc. § 527.8]. Items 1, 2, and 5 of the form contain check-off boxes by which the defendant may indicate whether he or she consents to injunctive orders that have been sought by the plaintiff, or alternatively, whether the defendant consents to some variation on those orders. If the defendant denies doing all of the actions alleged in the petition, the check-off box in item 3.a. should be marked. If the defendant denies doing some, but not all, of the actions alleged, the check-off box in item 3.b. should be marked and the actions specifically denied set forth.

A defendant who claims legal justification or excuse for actions alleged in the petition may state that claim by marking the appropriate check-off boxes in Item 4, and setting forth the reasons why the actions served a legitimate purpose or were constitutionally protected.

In Item 6, the defendant may make a request for an award of costs, and "additional relief as may be proper," as well as for the expenses incurred "as the result of the issuance of a temporary restraining order without sufficient supporting facts."

In Item 7, the defendant may indicate additional reasons why the injunctive relief sought should not be granted. An attached declaration made under penalty of perjury should be appended if the space provided on this form is inadequate for this purpose.

If the defendant is not required to pay a filing fee, Item 8 should be checked.

[2] Use of Form

This form is an illustration of the approved Judicial Council form of Order to Show Cause (Workplace Violence) and Temporary Restraining Order (CLETS) (Workplace Violence) [Cal. Judicial Council Form WV-120]. This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

This form is used to set forth the terms of a temporary restraining order against workplace violence involving a named defendant, as well as to notify the defendant of the time and place of a hearing on an underlying petition against workplace violence [Code Civ. Proc. § 527.8]. A temporary restraining order may be issued only on a showing of reasonable proof of an employee having suffered unlawful violence or a credible threat of violence, and that great or irreparable harm would result to the employee. In the court's discretion, the order may also be made applicable to the employee's family or household members who reside with the employee, on a showing of good cause, or other persons employed at his or her workplace or workplaces [Code Civ. Proc. § 527.8(e); see 293.32[1]].

This form, together with the completed petition (see § 293.130[1]) and a blank response form (see § 293.131[1]), must be personlly served on the defendant [see Code Civ. Proc. § 527.8(h)]. For a form of proof of service that is to be used, see § 293.133[1] [Cal. Judicial Council Form WV-130].

The form is to be completed by the plaintiff, except for the hearing information and times for service and for filing proof of service (Items 2 and 4, filled in, above, for illustration only)--which will be completed by the clerk of the court who assigns show cause hearing dates--and then submitted to the assigned judge for review and signature. The terms of the temporary injunctive order that are directed to the defendant must be set forth in Items 6-10. Law enforcement agencies to whom the plaintiff (or plaintiff's attorney) must deliver a copy of the order and any proof of service of the order, must be specified in Item 13 [see Code Civ. Proc. § 527.8(i)]. If an order shortening time for service of the order to show cause is granted, the check-off box for Item 12 must be marked and terms of that order described in the space provided.

[2] Use of Forms

These forms are illustrations of the approved Judicial Council forms of Proof of Personal Service (Workplace Violence) and Proof of Service of Completed Response (Workplace Violence)--with separate forms for service by mail and by personal delivery) [Cal. Judicial Council Forms WV-130, WV-131, WV-132]. These forms are available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

The first illustrated form, Proof of Personal Service (Workplace Violence) [Cal. Judicial Council Form WV-130], is primarily intended for use to reflect service of the Petition and related moving papers in an action for injunctive relief against workplace violence [see Code Civ. Proc. § 527.8(h); Cal. Judicial Council Forms WV-100, WV-120; §§ 293.130[1] (petition), 293.132[1] (order to show cause and temporary restraining order); see also Cal. Judicial Council Form WV-110 (response, a blank copy of which must also be served on the defendant; § 293.131[1])]. It may, however, be used to reflect personal service of other forms, as indicated in Item 2.

The second illustrated form, Proof of Service of Completed Response (Workplace Violence) [Cal. Judicial Council Form WV-131], is intended for use to reflect service by mail of the Response [see Cal. Judicial Council Form WV-110; § 293.131[1]] and any associated papers on the plaintiff in an action for injunctive relief against workplace violence [Code Civ. Proc. § 527.8]. An unsigned copy of this form must be attached to and served with the other papers served.

The third illustrated form, which bears the same title as the second but a different form number [Cal. Judicial Council

Form WV-132], is also for service of a completed Response to Petition of Employer for Injunction Prohibiting Violence or Threats fo Violence Against Employee [see Cal. Judicial Council Form WV-110]. However, it is designed for use when service by personal delivery of the Response and associated forms has been effected. An unsigned copy of the proof of service form must be attached to and served the other papers served.

This form is used to set forth a court order enjoining workplace violence after a hearing on an underlying petition for an injunction prohibiting such violence [see Code Civ. Proc. § 527.8]. In addition to information about when and where the hearing took place and the persons in attendance (Items 2-4), the form requires a listing of the order's expiration date (Item 1), along with descriptions of the defendant and the protected employee and any other persons (Item 5), the specific injunctive orders (Items 6-8), any other orders (Item 9), and the names and addresses of law enforcement agencies who are to receive a copy of the order and proof of service of the order (Item 10).

An injunction issued under Code Civ. Proc. § 527.8 can be effective up to three years, but any time within three months before the expiration of the injunction, the plaintiff may apply to a renewal by filing a new petition [see Code Civ. Proc. § 527.8(f)].

[2] Use of Form

This form is a reproduction of the approved Judicial Council form of Proof of Sale of Firearms/Turning In of Firearms under the workplace violence statutes [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 527.8, 527.9; Cal. Judicial Council Form EA-145/WV-145]. This form may be obtained from any superior court clerk. This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

This form is for use by a defendant in a workplace violence action to report to the court that the defendant has sold or turned in any firearms owned or possessed by the defendant.

A defendant who is subject to a protective order under Code Civ. Proc. § 527.8 is prohibited from owning, possessing, purchasing, receiving, or attempting to purchase or receive a firearm while the protective order is in effect [Code Civ. Proc. § 527.8(j)(1)]. The court must order the defendant to relinquish under Code Civ. Proc. § 527.9 any firearms the defendant owns or possesses [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 527.8(j)(2), 527.9(a)].

Items 1, 3, and 4 must be completed by the defendant, who must also sign the form. The form must then be submitted to the law enforcement agency or licensed gun dealer for completion of Item 2 of the form. The fully completed form is then filed with the court.

[2] Use of Forms

Illustrated are reproductions of the mandatory forms of Request for Order (Domestic Violence), Child Custody, Visitation, and Support Request and Request for Order: No Travel With Children (Domestic Violence) adopted by the Judicial Council [Cal. Judicial Council Forms DV-100, DV-105, DV-108]. These forms are available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

The Request for Order (DV-100) form is intended for use in obtaining orders restraining domestic violence, including a temporary restraining order. An optional form, Description of Abuse [Cal. Judicial Council Form DV-101], may be attached to the Request for Order form [Cal. Judicial Council Form DV-100], if more space is needed to describe the abuse for which the orders are sought (see Item 22 of Request for Order form). The Child Custody, Visitation, and Support Request form (DV-105) is a mandatory attachment to the application and is intended for use in obtaining related temporary orders for the custody, visitation, or support of children [see Fam. Code § 6200 et seq.]. When this attachment is used, a standard form Declaration under the Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act (Cal. Judicial Council form FL-105) must also be completed and attached. If attorney's fees and costs or child support is being requested, related financial declarations must also be filed and served [see [3], below]. The Request for Order: No Travel With Children [Cal. Judicial Council Form DV-108] is a mandatory attachment to Cal. Judicial Council Form DV-105, Paragraph 13. It can be used to obtain orders restraining or restricting the other parent from traveling with the child.

At least three copies of these forms should be made: an original to file with the court, a copy for the respondent, and a copy for the files of petitioner's attorney. A copy also may be made for the petitioner.

[3] Service on Respondent

Although the statute is not explicit regarding the manner of service, the respondent should be personally served [see Fam. Code §§ 6383, 6384, 6385; see also § 293.152[2]] with copies of all required forms. At a minimum, this would include the illustrated application and declaration, the Order to Show Cause and Temporary Restraining Order [see § 293.151[1]], and a blank copy of the Responsive Declaration (Domestic Violence) [see § 293.153[1]].

If child custody, visitation, or child support is being sought, a completed version of the request illustrated (DV-105) must also be served, along (inthe case of custody or visitation matters) with a completed Declaration under the Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction and Enforcement Act. Completed and blank incomeand expense declarations must also be served when support, attorney's fees and costs, or restitution is sought [see Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-150 (income and expense declaration)]. For illustrations of these forms, see Ch. 221, Dissolution of Marriage: Procedure .

[4] Completion of Forms

[a] Application and Declaration

Paragraphs 1 and 3 should name all persons to be protected by the order. Paragraph 2 should name the person to be restrained and provide the person's date of birth, race, and other personal descriptive information [see Fam. Code §§ 6385(a), 6380(b)]. This information will be provided to the Department of Justice by the court or local law enforcement officials. However, failure to provide it will not invalidate an order [see Fam. Code § 6385(b)]. Paragraph 5 should be filled in if the applicant has been involved in other court actions with the person to be restrained in which restraining orders were issued. If known, the case number and county where that other order was issued should be set forth, with a copy of the order attached.

At least one of the boxes in Paragraph 4 should be checked to indicate the relationship of petitioner and respondent. To obtain an order prohibiting domestic violence, the parties must stand in a relationship specified in Fam. Code § 6211 [see Fam. Code § 6301]. This includes the following: a spouse, former spouse, cohabitant, former cohabitant, any other adult person related by consanguinity or affinity within the second degree, a person with whom the respondent has had a dating or engagement relationship, or a person who is the parent of a child and the presumption applies that the male parent is the father of any child of the female parent pursuant to the Uniform Parentage Act (Fam. Code § 7600 et seq.) [see Fam. Code § 6211; see also Fam. Code § 6209 (defining "cohabitant" and "former cohabitant")]. Paragraph 4 of the form describes the categories in more detail.

If petitioner seeks an order for custody, visitation, or support, he or she must check Paragraph 9 and complete the companion form, Child Custody, Visitation, and Support Request (DV-105), described under [b], below. For additional forms required in such cases, see [3], above.

Paragraphs 6 through 20 should be checked according to the temporary orders sought and whether or not they are requested to be effective in advance of, and until, a hearing [see Fam. Code §§ 6320 et seq., 6340 et seq.]. Paragraph 21 is prechecked for an order requiring the person to be restrained to sell or turn in any guns or firearms he or she has or controls and asks for a description of any use or threatened use of firearms inParagraph 22. Facts in support of the relief requested, and those facts, in particular, that detail incidents of abuse, should be set forth in Paragraph 22. If insufficient room exists on the form to present this information, the Description of Abuse form (DV-101) should be used.

Paragraph 20 may be used to request other orders, including any orders to extend or modify the restraining orders granted at the hearing.

If petitioner requests that time for serving the order to show cause and accompanying papers be lengthened, he or she should check the box in Paragraph 19 and should indicate the number of days desired. Facts supporting this request that are not apparent from the information set out in Paragraph 22 should be listed under Paragraph 19.

Note also that Paragraph 18 is prechecked to waive the fees payable to a law enforcement agency for serving restraining orders on the person to be restrained. If the petitioner is eligible for a waiver of the fee for service of the order, a Request and Order for Free Service of Restraining Order (Cal. Judicial Council Form DV-290) should be filed with the petition.

[b] Attachment for Custody, Visitation, or Support

If the applicant (petitioner) has indicated on the Application and Declaration for Order (DV-100) that he or she is seeking an order for child custody, visitation, or support, the form entitled Child Custody, Visitation, and Support Request (DV-105) must be completed.

Paragraph 3 should be filled out if there is a current custody or visitation order that the requesting person would like changed, including a description of the current and why the change is desired. If no change is desired, Box 4 should be checked and the rest of the form skipped. A copy of the current order should be attached.

Paragraphs 5 and 10 of the attachment contain a variety of possible custody and visitation requests, including a detailed visitation schedule; Paragraphs 11 through 13 contain provisions for supervised visitation, transportation details, and a restraint on removal of the child from the state or specific counties, respectively.

Paragraph 14 may be checked if there is a risk of child abduction by the other parent. If Paragraph 14 is checked, the Judicial Council form of Request for Order: No Travel With Children [Cal. Judicial Council Form DV-108] must be completed and attached. Paragraph 15 of the attachment concerns child support, and requires the petitioner to indicate if he or she is receiving or has applied for public assistance, whether he or she is requesting child support, and whether there is an existing support order he or she wants changed.

For discussion of additional forms that must be filed along with the attachment when custody, visitation, or support are requested, see [3], above.

[c] Request for Order: No Travel With Children

Paragraphs 1 and 2 of the Judicial Council Form of Request for Order: NoTravel With Children [Cal. Judicial Council Form DV-108] ask for the names of the requesting parent and other parent, respectively. Paragraph 3 requests information on where the requesting parent believes the other parent may take the child. In Paragraph 4, the requesting parent must state reasons for why he or she believes the other parent may take the child without permission. Paragraphs 5 to 12 should be checked according to the orders being sought.

[2] Use of Form

This form is an illustration of the mandatory form of Notice of Court Hearing adopted by the Judicial Council of California for use in domestic violence cases [Cal. Judicial Council Form DV-109]. The form may be obtained from any superior court clerk.

This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

When the court has issued a temporary restraining order [see Fam. Code § 240], the matter must be made returnable on an order requiring cause to be shown why the court should not grant a permanent order, on the earliest day that the business of the court will permit, but not later than 20 days or, for good cause, 25 days from the date of the order [Fam. Code § 242(a)]. If a hearing is not held within this time limit, the court may still hear the matter, but the order is not enforceable unless it is reissued under Fam. Code § 245 [Fam. Code § 242(b)].

The court's rulings with respect to temporary restraining orders should be specified in item 4 of the form. Service of the Notice of Court Hearing and related forms must be made as specified in item 5.

This form is an illustration of the mandatory form of Temporary Restraining Order (CLETS) adopted by the Judicial Council of California for use in domestic violence cases [Cal. Judicial Council Form DV-110]. The form may be obtained from any superior court clerk.

This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

This form of temporary restraining order is for use by petitioner in obtaining a temporary restraining order prohibiting domestic violence and related custody, property control, and firearm restriction orders [see Fam. Code §§ 6300, 6320 et seq., 6340 et seq.; see also Fam. Code § 6389(b)].

However, if custody and visitation orders are involved, the box in Paragraph 8 must be marked, and counsel must attach separate Child Custody and Visitation Order and Supervised Visitation Order forms [Cal. Judicial Council Forms DV-140, DV-150]. Illustrations of these forms are set forth in § 293.154[1].

[3] Service

After obtaining the judge's signature on the temporary restraining order and obtaining a hearing date, petitioner should file the original with the court clerk. Petitioner should then have respondent personally served with copies of the order [ see Fam. Code §§ 241-243, 6300, 6301; see also § 293.152[1] (proof of service form)], together with copies of the Request for Order (DV-100), a blank Answer to Temporary Restraining Order (DV-120), and Notice of Court Hearing (DV-109) [see § 293.150A]. In addition, if an order for child custody or visitation is involved, the restrained person must also be served with the Child Custody and Visitation Order and Supervised Visitation Order [Cal. Judicial Council Form DV-140, DV-150], Declaration Under Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction and Enforcement Act (FL-105) Request (DV-105). This latter attachment (DV-105) would also need to be served if child support were being sought [see § 293.150[1]].

Further, if child support, attorney's fees and costs, resititution, or other authorized monetary payment is being sought from the respondent, filled-in and blank versions of the Judicial Council forms of Financial Statement (Simplified) [Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-155] or Income and Expense Declaration [Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-150] must be served.

[4] Notification of Law Enforcement Agency

The form contemplates a continuation of the practice of physically delivering a copy of the order and proof of its service to law enforcmentpersonnel, for entry of the order into the California Law Enforcement Telecommunications System (CLETS) and Domestic Violence Protective Order Registry. In general, if the petitioner is represented by counsel, the court will order counsel to deliver a copy of the order, together with proof of service, to each listed law enforcement agency. An unrepresented petitioner will normally be ordered to deliver the order and proof of service.

However, note that the law enforcement officer or court clerk has a statutory duty to notify the Department of Justice of the proof of service of a protective or restraining order [Fam. Code § 6380(d)]. In addition, all data with respect to criminal court protective orders issued, modified, extended, or terminated under Penal Code § 136.2, and all data filed with the court on the required Judicial Council forms with respect to protective orders (including their issuance, modification, extension, or termination to which the DVPA applies), must be transmitted by "the court or its designee" within one business day to law enforcement personnel by either transmitting a physical copy of the order to a local law enforcement agency that is authorized to enter orders into CLETS, or by entering the order into CLETS directly (with California Department of Justice approval) [Fam. Code § 6380(a)]. These provisions are not referred to in the form, and apparently do not relieve counsel (or the party) from the obligation of delivering a copy of the order and proof of service to the affected law enforcement agencies. For further discussion of the notification of local law enforcement agencies and the Department of Justice, see § 293.56[2].

[5] Number of Copies

The following "endorsed-filed" copies will be needed in addition to an original to file with the court: a copy for the respondent, one copy for each law enforcement agency that the petitioner desires to notify, a copy for the files of the petitioner's attorney, and a copy for the petitioner.

This form is an illustration of the optional form of Waiver of Hearing on Denied Request for Temporary Restraining Order adopted by the Judicial Council of California for use in domestic violence cases [Cal. Judicial Council Form DV-112; see Fam. Code § 6320.5(d)]. The form may be obtained from any superior court clerk.

This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

When the court has denied an ex parte restraining order under Fam. Code § 6320, the petitioner has the option of waiving his or her right to a noticed hearing under Fam. Code § 6320.5(b) [Fam. Code § 6320.5(c)]. A petitioner who waives the right to a noticed hearing is not precluded from refilling a new petition without prejudice at a later time [Fam. Code § 6320.5(c)].

These forms are illustrations of the optional forms of Proof of Service (In Person) and Proof of Service by Mail (CLETS) (Domestic Violence Prevention) approved by the Judicial Council [Cal. Judicial Council Forms DV-200, DV-250]. The form may be obtained from any superior court clerk.

These forms are available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

The forms are designed for use as a declaration of service of pleadings and papers in domestic violence in which a protective or restraining order is being sought (or has been granted). DV-200 is to be used when personal service has been effected, and DV-250 when service was effected by mail. Each form includes check-off boxes listing Judicial Council forms that potentially would be served in these proceedings, along with a check-off box for any "other" forms served that are not listed. Preprinted instructions [DV-210] educate the user as to personal service.

The form should be completed and signed by the person who effected service of a copy of the papers involved--who, necessarily, cannot be a party or someone protected under a court order obtained in the case [see Code. Civ. Proc. § 414.10; Caldwell v. Coppola (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 859, 865, 268 Cal. Rptr. 453 (protected person under restraining order is considered to have status of party for purposes of service of process)]. For a general discussion of service of summons and other documents in civil actions, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers .

[3] Filing Proof of Service

When service has been made and the person serving has completed the Proof of Service, the party must file the original Proof of Service form with the court clerk [see Fam. Code §§ 241, 243(b)]. In addition, counsel (or the party, if the party is unrepresented) should also deliver an "endorsed-filed" copy of the proof of service of any protective or restraining order to each law enforcement or other agency specified in the order. The preprinted orders in check-off boxes in the forms for temporary restraining order and order after hearing still require such delivery [see §§ 293.151[1], 293.154[1]].

Pursuant to statute, the law enforcement officer or court clerk also has a duty "immediately upon receipt of proof of service," to notify the Department of Justice by electronic transmission of service of the order [see Fam. Code. § 6380(d); see also Fam. Code. § 6380(a) (requiring court clerk, or designee, to transmit data on certain criminal court protective orders)].

[4] Number of Copies

The following "endorsed-filed" copies will be needed in addition to an original to file with the court: a copy for the files of the party's attorney, and a copy for theparty. In addition, the petitioner will need one copy for each law enforcement agency that the petitioner desires to notify of the issuance of the restraining order [see Fam. Code § 6380].

[1] FORM Answer to Temporary Restraining Order (Domestic Violence)--Judicial Council Form DV-120 [Fam. Code §§ 6200 et seq.]

This form is an illustration of the mandatory form of Answer to Temporary Restraining Order (Domestic Violence) adopted by the Judicial Council of California [Cal. Judicial Council Form DV-120]. The form may be obtained from any superior court clerk.

These forms are available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

This form of response is for use by a respondent to consent to or oppose orders requested by the petitioner or to request his or her own court orders. In addition to the answer, the respondent may file and serve declarations signed by persons who have personal knowledge of the facts.

After the answer has been filed with the county clerk, a copy must be delivered by mail or by personal delivery to the petitioner or the petitioner's attorney [see Instructions for Orders Prohibiting Domestic Violence]. For a form of proof of service that may be used to show service of the Responsive Declaration and any accompanying forms, see § 293.152[1].

At least three copies of the answer should be made: an original to file with the court, an "endorsed-filed" copy for the petitioner or petitioner's attorney, and a copy for the files of the respondent's attorney. A copy may also be made for the respondent.

[3] Filling in Form

Paragraphs 3-16 should be filled in to indicate whether respondent consents or does not consent to the order requested. If respondent wants to request other child custody or visitation orders, these orders should be indicated by checking Box (c) in Paragraph 6 and Box (b) in Paragraph 7 and stating the content of the order desired. If the respondent agrees to pay the guideline child support, he or she should check Box (b) in Paragraph 8.

If the respondent wants his or her attorney's fees paid if he or she prevails [see Fam. Code § 6344], Paragraph 18(a) should be checked. Paragraph 18(b) should be filled in if the respondent wants petitioner to pay the respondent's out-of-pocket expenses incurred because of an ex parte temporary restraining order issued without sufficient supporting facts [see Fam. Code § 6342(a)(2)].

If additional orders are desired, Paragraph 19 should be checked and a statement attached with "DV-120, Item 19--More Information" at the top. The statement should also include whether the respondent wants any orders to which he or she has consented extended for a period not to exceed three years [see Fam. Code § 6345]. Any supporting information should be included the attached statement as indicated in Paragraph 19.

In addition, the responding party should attach a completed financial declaration if support, fees, restitution, or other payments are at issue. For examples of, and instructions on completing, the Judicial Council forms of Financial Statement (Simplified) [Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-155] and the Income and Expense Declaration [Cal. Judicial Council Forms FL-150], see Ch. 221, Dissolution of Marriage: Procedure .

[2] Use of Forms

These forms are illustrations of the mandatory Judicial Council forms of Restraining Order After Hearing and Child Custody and Visitation Order, Supervised Visitation Order, No Travel with Children Order, Child Support Order,and Other Orders forms for use in domestic violence prevention proceedings [Cal. Judicial Council Forms DV-130, DV-140, DV-145, DV-150, DV-160, DV-170]. These forms may be obtained from the superior court clerk.

These forms are available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

The Restraining Order After Hearing form addresses personal conduct restraints in detail (Paragraph 6), and contains a series of check-off boxes that summarize additional orders by category--with the details of those orders to be set forth in still other, more particularized, forms. Accordingly, if orders for child custody and visitation are made, the boxes for Paragraph 9 should be marked to show that either or both of the following forms are attached: Child Custody and Visitation Order [Cal. Judicial Council Form DV-140], and Supervised Visitation Order [Cal. Judicial Council Form DV-150]. If an order for child support has been made, the boxes for Paragraph 10 should be marked to show that the Child Support Order and Information Sheet on Changing a Child Support Order [Cal. Judicial Council Form DV-160] is attached. If other orders are made, such as orders for property control, debt payment, property restraint attorney's fees and costs, restitution, or other orders, Paragraph 17 should be marked to show that the Other Orders form [Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-170] is attached.

Orders restraining the person from owning, possessing, having, buying or trying to buy, receiving or trying to receive or in any way get a gun or firearm, and requiring the person to turn in or sell guns or firearms are prechecked at Paragraphs 13. An order to require the person to participate in a batterer intervention program should be checked at Paragraph 15. The box in Paragraph 14 should be checked if the court permits the protected person to record prohibited communications from the restrained person.

The Restraining Order form also may be used with the Judicial Council form of Findings and Order After Hearing [Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-340], if the court makes additional orders. For an illustrative version of that form, see Ch. 221, Dissolution of Marriage: Procedure .

When the hearing is completed, the judge will usually announce what orders are granted. The wording on the order should conform to the judge's oral order, and any changes should be made on the order and all copies. The judge may, however, take the matter under submission. In this event, petitioner should complete the Application and Order for Reissuance of Order to Show Cause [see § 293.155[1]] to continue the temporary restraining orders pending a decision.

[3] Delivery to Law Enforcement Agencies

The Restraining Order After Hearing is designed to simplify the task of local law enforcement agencies in recording the issuance of the order and a description of the restrained person in the statewide California Law Enforcement Telecommunications System (CLETS).

These forms are illustrations of the mandatory form of Request to Renew Restraining Order and Notice of Hearing to Renew Restraining Order (CLETS) (Domestic Violence) adopted by the Judicial Council of California foruse in domestic violence cases [Cal. Judicial Council Forms DV-700, DV-710]. The forms may be obtained from any superior court clerk.

These forms are available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

DV-700 is used to request the court to renew a previously issued restraining order, which was issued after a hearing [see Cal. Judicial Council Form DV-130, illustrated at § 293.154[1]]. Information about the restraining order should be entered in Item 3, and the reason for the request should be checked in Item 4.

DV-710 is used to provide notice of the hearing on the request to renew the restraining order. It provides that the current orders stay in effect until the hearing date, as well as informing the person restrained that at the hearing the judge can make the orders permanent. The date and time of the hearing should be indicated in Item 3.

This form is an illustration of the mandatory form of Reissue Notice of Court Hearing and Temporary Restraining Order adopted by the Judicial Council of California for use in domestic violence cases [Cal. Judicial Council Form DV-125].

This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge. This form is also available in several languages other than English (Chinese, Korean, Spanish, and Vietnamese), but the English version is the official one.

This form should be used to continue any temporary restraining orders and to obtain a new hearing date if petitioner has been unable to serve the respondent before the original hearing date. The court may reissue a temporary restraining order on the filing of an affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) that respondent could not be served on time [Fam. Code § 245(a); see Fam. Code § 6326]. For a form for proof of service of the order for reissuance, see § 293.152[1].

The order set forth in this form will expire on the date and time set forth unless otherwise extended by the court. No fees will be charged for issuance of this order unless the order has been dissolved three times previously [see Fam. Code § 245(b), (c)]. Immediately after the order is reissued, the county must notify the Department of Justice, by electronic transmission, of the terms of the reissuance. The information will be placed in the statewide registry of domestic violence protective orders [see Fam. Code §§ 6320, 6340, 6380(f)]. For further discussion, see § 293.56[2].

[3] Number of Copies

The following "endorsed-filed" copies will be needed in addition to an original to file with the court: a copy for the respondent, one copy for each law enforcement agency that the petitioner desires to notify of the reissuance of the order, a copy for the files of petitioner's counsel, and a copy for the petitioner.

[1] FORM Application by Peace Officer for Emergency Protective Order and Emergency Protective Order--Cal. Judicial Council Form 1295.90 [Fam. Code §§ 6250 et seq., 6270 et seq.]

This form is a filled-in reproduction of the mandatory Judicial Council Emergency Protective Order [Cal. Judicial Council Form EPO-001]. This form may be obtained from any county clerk; however, it is for use by law enforcement officers, not by attorneys or parties. Note that this form is also available in several languages other than English (Chinese, Korean, Spanish, and Vietnamese), but the English version remains the official one.

This form may be used to obtain an ex parte emergency protective order against domestic violence, regardless of whether the court is in session [see Fam. Code §§ 6241, 6250 et seq.]. A police officer, sheriff, or other authorized peace officer must assert reasonable grounds to believe that a person is in immediate and present danger of domestic violence. That assertion must be based on the person's allegation of a recent incident of abuse or threat of abuse [see Fam. Code § 6250(a)]. The order may consist of any of the orders set forth in Fam. Code § 6218, as well as a temporary child custody order [see Fam. Code § 6252]. It must be issued without prejudice to any party [see Fam. Code § 6255]. This form also may be used to obtain an emergency protective order against stalking, and may include related orders against civil harassment and workplace violence, based on a peace officer's assertion of reasonable grounds to believe that a person is in immediate and present danger of stalking [see Fam. Code § 6274; Penal Code § 646.91(a), (d)].

Alternatively, this form may be used to obtain an ex parte protective order to prevent child abuse or child abduction. The judge, commissioner, or referee may issue such an order on finding that reasonable grounds have been asserted to believe that a child is in immediate and present danger of abuse or abduction and that the order is necessary to prevent the occurrence or recurrence of abuse or abduction [Fam. Code § 6250(b)].

Although this form is to be used by law enforcement officers, attorneys should be aware of the ex parte emergency order procedure to assist persons who need immediate protection from domestic violence, child abuse, child abduction, or stalking. For further discussion of the procedure, see § 293.54.

[3] Filling Out Form

The law enforcement officer should fill in the application portion of the emergency protective order because, by statute, the officer, not the person to be protected, is authorized to apply for the order [see Fam. Code §§ 6250, 6270].

The portion of the form that contains the order should be completed when the order is issued. The expiration date set forth in the order must not extend beyond the fifth day of judicial business, or the seventh calendar day, following the date of its issue [see Fam. Code § 6256].

[4] Service of Order

The officer must serve the order on the restrained party if he or she canreasonably be located. A copy must be given to the protected party, as well as to any parent or legal guardian of an endangered child who is not a restrained party, if he or she can be reasonably located, or to any person having temporary custody of the endangered child. A copy must also be filed with the court as soon as practicable after issuance [Fam. Code § 6271]. The officer must use every reasonable means to enforce the order [Fam. Code § 6272] and must carry a copy of the requested emergency protective order while on duty [Fam. Code § 6273].

[1] FORM Application For and Appointment of Guardian Ad Litem of Minor--Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-935

This form is an illustrative, filled-in version of the Judicial Council form of Application For and Appointment of Guardian Ad Litem of Minor [Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-935]. It has been approved for optional use in all family law proceedings, except dissolution proceedings, including those brought for the prevention of domestic violence or to determine parentage, and regardless of whether only private individuals or a governmental agency is involved. This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

Page one of the form contains the essential allegations of the application. Paragraph 1 requires that the name and standing of petitioner for the guardian ad litem be listed. In a given case, the petitioner might be the minor, the minor's parent, or another interested person [see Code Civ. Proc. § 372 et seq.]. The name, address, and telephone number of the proposed guardian ad litem must be set out in Paragraph 2. Paragraph 3 requires a statement of the relationship of the proposed guardian ad litem to the minor. Paragraph 4 provides limited space within which to state why appointment of a guardian ad litem is necessary. An attachment should be used if insufficient space on the form exists to explain this. Paragraph 5 consists of a preprinted statement (allegation) that the proposed guardian is fully competent to understand and protect the rights of the minor and has no adverse interest [see Code Civ. Proc. § 372 et seq.].

Two consent statements are set out on page two. The first consists of a general statement of consent to the appointment as guardian ad litem and must be signed by the proposed guardian ad litem.

The second consent statement is entitled "Consent to Guardian by Minor 14 Years of Age or Older. It contains language by which a minor who is a petitioner, and who is at least 14 year of age, nominates an individual as his or her guardian ad litem. If this statement applies, the minor's name and age must be set forth, as well as the name of the proposed guardian--who would be the same person as the nominee listed on page one of the form.

Page two also includes a form of court order, which requires that the minor's name and the name of the guardian ad litem be set forth in the spaces provided. This information should be filled in before submitting the form to the court. The form would ordinarily be submitted on an ex parte basis [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 372(b)(1), 373(a); Sarracino v. Superior Court (1974) 13 Cal. 3d 1, 12-13, 118 Cal. Rptr. 21, 529 P.2d 53] .

This chapter discusses the procedures for making a declared homestead, the procedures to abandon a homestead, the procedures by which a judgment creditor may apply for an order for sale of a dwelling, and the procedures relating to a court hearing on the application. The procedures for the enforcement of a judgment against a dwelling that is personal property are discussed in Ch. 254, Executions and Enforcement of Judgments . The forms in this chapter include:

- A form for making a declaration of homestead [see § 294.100].
- A form for abandonment of a homestead [see § 294.101].
- Forms for proceedings to subject the surplus value of a declared homestead, or a dwelling in which the judgment debtor claims a homestead exemption, to execution [see §§ 294.102-294.109].

For discussion of probate homesteads, see Ch. 449, Probate: Exempt Personal Property and Probate Homesteads .

§ 294.11 Homestead Exemption and Declared Homestead

[1] Compared

Under California law, a homeowner who has had a judgment lien attach to a real property dwelling that is the homeowner's or his or her spouse's actual residence may claim a homestead exemption pursuasnt to Code Civ. Proc. §§ 704.710 and 704.720.

The homestead exemption may be claimed regardless of whether or not the property is a declared homestead as provided by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 704.910-704.995.

The fact that the dwelling is a declared homestead affects the extent to which a judgment lien attaches to the property and the extent to which the proceeds from a voluntary sale of the declared homestead are protected [see § 294.85[6]].

For discussion of declared homesteads, see Subpart B, below; for discussion of homestead exemptions, see Subpart C, below.

The interest of a natural person in a real property dwelling, whether or not it is subject to a declared homestead, cannot be sold to enforce a money judgment without an order by the court for its sale [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.740(a); see § 294.53].

A debtor may have homestead exemption rights, or declared homestead rights, or both, or neither. There is no overlap between these two sets of rights [In re Kelley (B.A.P., 9th Cir. 2003) 300 B.R. 11, 21] .

[2] Homestead in Personal Property

Claims for the homestead exemption of personal property used as a dwelling, such as a mobilehome not attached to land or a boat, that has been levied on are now governed by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 703.510-703.610 [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.740(b)]. Personal property may not be made a declared homestead [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 704.910(a), (c), 704.920]. For discussion and forms relating to execution and sale of property generally, see Ch. 254, Executions and Enforcement of Judgments .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. In General

25-294 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 294.12

§ 294.12 Purpose and Policy Underlying Homestead Law

[1] Purpose

The California Constitution requires the Legislature to enact laws to protect a certain portion of the homestead and other property of all heads of families from forced sale [Cal. Const., art. XX, § 1.5]. The Legislature has implemented the constitutional requirement with the homestead exemption provisions as enacted in Code Civ. Proc. § 704.710 et seq. The courts have upheld the constitutionality of previously enacted homestead statutes based on the constitutional requirement [see Taylor v. Madigan (1975) 53 Cal. App. 3d 943, 951-961, 126 Cal. Rptr. 376 ; see also San Diego County Carpenters Group v. Lorea (1980) 112 Cal. App. 3d 221, 225, 169 Cal. Rptr. 157] .

[2] Policy

The policy underlying all homestead legislation is to provide a place where family members may reside and enjoy the comforts of a home, free from any anxiety that it may be taken from them against their will, either because of their own necessity or improvidence, or from the importunity of their creditors [see Estate of Kachigian (1942) 20 Cal. 2d 787, 791, 128 P.2d 865 ; Estate of Vannucci (1980) 103 Cal. App. 3d 175, 180, 163 Cal. Rptr. 11] .

[3] Liberal Construction

The courts have ruled that the homestead laws, as previously enacted, were to be given a most liberal construction in order to advance their beneficial objects and to carry out the manifest purpose of the Legislature [see Estate of Kachigian (1942) 20 Cal. 2d 787, 791, 128 P.2d 865 ; Schoenfeld v. Norberg (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 755, 764, 90 Cal. Rptr. 47] . For discussion relating to the rule of liberal construction as applied to the declaration creating a homestead, see § 294.34.

§ 294.13 Homestead and Bankruptcy Law

The State of California has not authorized the use of the exemptions provided for in 11 U.S.C. § 522(d) [Civ. Proc. Code § 703.130; In re Watts (9th Cir. 2002) 298 F.3d 1077, 1080 ; In re Rabin (B.A.P., 9th Cir. 2006) 359 B.R. 242, 245 ; In re Rolland (Bankr., C.D. Cal. 2004) 317 B.R. 402, 412] . Consequently, those residents of California who file bankruptcy are limited to the exemptions allowable to California residents under non-bankruptcy law [In re Rabin (B.A.P., 9th Cir. 2006) 359 B.R. 242, 245] . As such, in bankruptcy actions, the federal courts decide the merits of state exemptions, but the validity of the claimed state exemption is controlled by the applicable California law [In re Kelley (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2003) 300 B.R. 11, 16 ; In re La Fortune (9th Cir. 1981) 652 F.2d 842, 846] .

Declared homestead rights to not apply to forced sales in a bankruptcy proceeding [In re Kelley (B.A.P., 9th Cir. 2003) 300 B.R. 11, 20-21] .

In contrast, California's homestead exemption applies in cases of forced sales in bankruptcy cases [In re Kelley (B.A.P., 9th Cir. 2003) 300 B.R. 11, 19] , which occurs upon the filing of a bankruptcy petition [In re Kelley (B.A.P., 9th Cir. 2003) 300 B.R. 11, 17 ; In re Pike (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 1999) 243 B.R. 66, 70] .

25-294 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 294.30

§ 294.30 Definitions

[1] Declared Homestead

The term "declared homestead" means a dwelling described in a homestead declaration [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.910(a)].

[2] Declared Homestead Owner

The term "declared homestead owner" includes both the owner of an interest in the declared homestead who is named as a declared homestead owner in a homestead declaration recorded pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 704.910 et seq. and the declarant and his or her spouse who is named in a declaration of homestead recorded prior to July 1, 1983, pursuant to former Civ. Code §§ 1237-1304 [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.910(b)]. By extension, a declared homestead owner may also include a surviving spouse or member of the declared homestead owner's family to whom the owner's interest in a dwelling passes on his or her death [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.995; see § 294.35[6]].

[3] Dwelling

The term "dwelling," as used in relation to declared homesteads, means any interest in real property, (whether present or future, vested or contingent, legal or equitable), that is a "dwelling" as defined in Code Civ. Proc. § 704.710 [see § 294.50[1]]. The term does not include a leasehold estate with an unexpired term of less than two years or the interest of a beneficiary of a trust [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.910(c)].

[4] Homestead Declaration

The term "homestead declaration" includes both a homestead declaration recorded pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 704.910 et seq. and a declaration of homestead recorded prior to July 1, 1983, pursuant to former Civ. Code §§ 1237-1304 [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.910(d)].

[5] Spouse

The term "spouse," as used in relation to a declared homestead, does not include a married person following entry of a judgment decreeing legal separation of the parties, or an interlocutory judgment of dissolution of the marriage, unless the married persons still reside together in the same dwelling [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.910(e); see Code Civ. Proc. § 704.710(d)].

§ 294.31 Creation of Declared Homestead

An owner of a dwelling in which the owner or his or her spouse resides may declare a homestead on the dwelling by recording a homestead declaration pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 704.910 et seq. in the county recorder's office in the county in which the dwelling is located [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.920]. From that time on, the dwelling is a declared homestead unless the facts claimed in the declaration were not true at the time the declaration was made and recorded [see Rich v. Ervin (1948) 86 Cal. App. 2d 386, 392, 194 P.2d 809] . If the validity of a declared homestead is at issue, the truth of recitals contained in the declaration of homestead must be proved by independent evidence [see Valley Title Co. v. Parish Egg Basket, Inc. (1973) 31 Cal. App. 3d 776, 779, 107 Cal. Rptr. 717] .

The contents of the homestead declaration are prescribed by Code Civ. Proc. § 704.930(a). For a form of homestead declaration, see § 294.100.

§ 294.33 Property Constituting Declared Homestead

As discussed in § 294.50[1], a dwelling for purposes of a declared homestead must be real property [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.910(c)]. Thus, a boat, a mobilehome not attached to land, or an unexpired leasehold of less than two years, which may qualify as a dwelling for the purposes of a homestead exemption under Code Civ. Proc. § 704.710 et seq., cannot be a declared homestead. For a discussion of property that may be the subject of a homestead exemption, see § 294.53. In addition, a dwelling cannot qualify as a homestead unless the judgment debtor or the debtor's spouse resides in the dwelling [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.920].

§ 294.34 Liberal Construction of Declarations

The courts have applied the rule of liberal construction to a declaration of homestead in construing the terms of the writing [see Viotti v. Giomi (1964) 230 Cal. App. 2d 730, 736, 41 Cal. Rptr. 345 ; Oktanski v. Burn (1956) 138 Cal. App. 2d 419, 421, 291 P.2d 954] . As a result, declarations that may contain minor defects or discrepancies but that also contain the facts or the essence of the statutory requirements have been upheld [Johnson v. Brauner (1955) 131 Cal. App. 2d 713, 716-719, 281 P.2d 50] . Declarations that omit some of the vital information required by the homestead declaration statute, however, such as failing to describe the homestead property, have been declared invalid [Jackson v. Menick (9th Cir. 1958) 260 F.2d 563, 564] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Declared Homesteads

25-294 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 294.35

§ 294.35 Effect of Declared Homestead

[1] Protections Extended by Recordation

From and after the time the declaration of homestead is recorded, the homestead dwelling is a declared homestead [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.920]. Recordation of a homestead declaration, however, is not a prerequisite to claiming the homestead exemption, and does not affect the amount of the exemption, or the right of levy pursuant to a writ of execution [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.970]. A homestead declaration recorded under former Civ. Code §§ 1262-1305 is effective as an exemption from creditors only as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 704.910 et seq. [Code Civ. Proc. § 694.090].

Recordation of a homestead declaration extends several protections to the declared homestead. A declared homestead limits the extent to which a subsequently recorded judgment lien, other than a judgment lien based on a judgment for child or spousal support, will attach to the declared homestead. When there is a declared homestead, a judgment lien will attach only to the surplus value of the property over the amount of the homestead exemption set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 704.730 plus the amount of all liens and encumbrances on the declared homestead at the time the abstract of judgment is recorded to create the judgment lien [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.950; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 487.025(b)]. For further discussion of the application of Code Civ. Proc. § 704.950, see § 294.36.

Recordation of a declared homestead also provides an advantage for a judgment debtor at any future hearing in which a judgment creditor seeks to challenge the existence or amount of a homestead exemption in that the judgment creditor has the burden of proof at the hearing [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.780(a)(1); § 294.54[4]].

[2] Amount of Declared Homestead Exemption

The amount of a declared homestead exemption is the same as the general homestead exemption discussed in § 294.52 [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 704.950(c), 704.730]. If a homestead declaration is recorded prior to the operative date of any amendment to Code Civ. Proc. § 704.730 that increases the amount of the homestead exemption, the amount of a declared homestead exemption is increased by the same amount. However, if a judgment creditor has obtained a lien on a declared homestead prior to the operative date of any such amendment increasing the exemption amount, the amount of the declared homestead exemption remains the amount in effect at the time the lien attached [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.965].

[3] Proceeds From Sale of Homestead

Proceeds from the voluntary sale of a declared homestead are also exempt in the amount of the homestead exemption for a period of six months after the date of the sale [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.960(a)].

Illustrative Case:

In specific performance action on a contract for sale of real estate, a court may not order payment of successful seller's attorney fees directly from seller's purchase price, because under Code Civ. Proc. § 704.950, the award constitutes a judgment lien that is subordinate to prior existing liens and to the homestead exemption [Behniwal v. Mix (2007) 147 Cal. App. 4th 621, 636, 54 Cal. Rptr. 3d 427] .

Moreover, if the proceeds from a sale of the homestead are invested in a new dwelling within six months after the date of the voluntary sale, the new dwelling may be selected as a declared homestead by recording a homestead declaration within the applicable six-month period and the declaration will have the same effect as if it had been recorded at the time the prior homestead declaration was recorded [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.960(b)]. Similarly, if proceeds of an execution sale or of insurance or other indemnification for damage or destruction of the homestead are invested in a new dwelling and if a new homestead declaration is recorded within six months, the new dwelling will be deemed a declared homestead as of the date of the prior homestead declaration [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.960(b)].

[4] Conveyance of Homestead

The homestead declaration does not restrict or limit any right to convey the declared homestead [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.940]. A married person's right to convey or transfer community property is governed by Civ. Code § 5100 et seq. (repealed and replaced by Fam. Code § 720 et seq., operative January 1, 1994), and by Code Civ. Proc. § 872.210(b).

[5] Encumbrance of Homestead

The homestead declaration does not restrict or limit any right to encumber the declared homestead [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.940]. The homestead statutes are designed to protect the value of the homestead from judgment liens, but they do not impair the right of a declared homestead owner to encumber the homestead with consensual liens, such as a deed of trust securing a promissory note executed by the declared homestead owner [Smith v. James A. Merrill, Inc. (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 94, 102, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 108] .

It is well settled that, if a declared homestead owner defaults on a debt secured by a consensual lien, the homestead is not protected from a nonjudicial foreclosure, that is, the homestead laws cannot be used to prevent a private sale pursuant to a power of sale conferred by the trust deed or mortgage securing the debt, as distinguished from preventing an execution of judgment sale [see Code Civ. Proc. § 703.010(b)].

One court of appeal decision has indicated, however, that the homestead exemption may nevertheless affect distribution of proceeds after a nonjudicial foreclosure [see Smith v. James A. Merrill, Inc. (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 94, 101-102, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 108] . Under the law applicable to nonjudicial foreclosure sales, the proceeds of such a sale are applied first to the costs of the sale and payment of the debts secured by senior encumbrances up to and including the debt secured by the trust deed under which the sale is held. Excess proceeds, if any, are then applied, first, to pay off any junior liens or encumbrances. Lastly, the remaining excess, if any, goes to the trustor or defaulting homeowner [see Civ. Code § 2924k(a)]. The court of appeal in Smith held that, in the event of a nonjudicial foreclosure of a declared homestead, Code Civ. Proc. § 704.950(c) applies to reduce the amount of a junior judgment lien when determining the amount of remaining proceeds, if any, that the holder of that junior judgment lien should receive under Civ. Code § 2924k(a) [see Smith v. James A. Merrill, Inc. (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 94, 102, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 108] .

ILLUSTRATION:

Determining Amount of Junior Judgment Lien After Private Sale. Homeowners recorded a homestead declaration in 1981. In 1983, Creditors A recorded a second trust deed securing a promissory note executed by homeowners for $18,000. In 1987, Creditors B recorded the abstract of a judgment obtained against homeowners for $65,000; apparently they made no attempt to execute the judgment lien. Creditors C and D later recorded third and fourth trust deeds, respectively, securing subsequent promissory notes executed by homeowners. In 1995, homeowners defaulted on the note secured by the second deed of trust, and Creditors A commenced nonjudicial foreclosure proceedings under their second trust deed. After the private sale, $55,000 remained after paying off the costs of sale and the first and second trust deed.

Creditors C and D brought an action for declaratory relief against Creditor B, to determine how the remaining $55,000 should be distributed under Civ. Code § 2924k(a). The trial court ruled that Creditor B, as a judgment lienholder senior to Creditors C and D, was entitled to all the remaining proceeds. The court of appeal reversed, holding that a judgment lien attached to the property in favor of Creditors B when they recorded the abstract of their judgment, but the amount of that lien was determined by reference to Code Civ. Proc. § 704.950(c), that is, the amount of judgment lien was reduced by the amount of the applicable homestead as determined under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 704.730 and 704.965 [§ 294.35[2]]. The court acknowledged that this could result in lienholders otherwise junior to a judgment creditor, in this case Creditors C and D, obtaining priority over the judgment creditor to extent the judgment lien was reduced, but this did not alter the court's conclusion: the homestead exemption was meant to protect the value of the homestead from judgment creditors, such as Creditors B, and if homeowners had not chosen, as was their right, to further encumber their property with the consensual liens obtained by Creditors C and D, the homeowners themselves would have received the proceeds remaining from the private sale [see Smith v. James A. Merrill, Inc. (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 94, 96-98, 100-102, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 108 (Fourth Dist., Div. One)] .

The decision in Smith, above, conflicts with an earlier decision of another panel of the court of appeal in Spencer v. Lowery (1991) 235 Cal. App. 3d 1636, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 795 . In Spenser, homeowners who had defaulted on a secured note attempted to claim the homestead exemption under Code Civ. Proc. § 704.720(b) so that they, rather that a junior judgment lienholder who would otherwise have priority, would receive the excess proceeds of the sale under Civ. Code § 2924k(a). The court in Spenser held the homeowners could not claim the homestead exemption under Code Civ. Proc. § 704.720(b) in a nonjudicial foreclosure sale, reasoning that the plain language of Code Civ. Proc. § 704.720(b) and related statutes limited the use of the homestead exemption to proceedings involving executions of money judgments or attachments [Spencer v. Lowery (1991) 235 Cal. App. 3d 1636, 1638-1639, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 795 (First Dist., Div. Five)] .

The court in Smith distinguished the earlier decision in Spenser on the ground that Spenser involved an attempt by defaulting homeowners to claim the homestead exemption under Code Civ. Proc. § 704.720(b), whereas Smith involved a determination of the extent to which a junior judgment lienholder was entitled to excess proceeds of a private sale under Civ. Code § 2924k(a) [Smith v. James a. Merrill, Inc. (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 94, 101, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 108] . This distinction does not appear to be a sound one, however. While the court in Smith did not apply the homestead exemption pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 704.720(b), it did, in effect, apply the homestead exemption by holding that Code Civ. Proc. § 704.950(c) should be used on remand to reduce the amount of the junior lienholder's lien by the amount of the applicable homestead exemption. The amount that the judgment lienholder in Smith could not recover because of application of Code Civ. Proc. § 704.950(c) was to go instead to junior encumbrancers who would not otherwise have had priority under Civ. Code § 2924k(a). Also, as the court in Smith acknowledged, this amount would have gone to the homeowners under Civ. Code § 2924k(a) if the homeowners had not chosen to further encumber their homestead with the third and fourth trust deeds that were junior to the judgment lien [see Smith v. James a. Merrill, Inc. (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 94, 102, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 108] . What the court in Smith did not expressly acknowledge was that, had there been no junior encumbrancers and the excess had gone to the defaulting homeowners, it would have gone to them just as if they had sucessfully claimed the homestead exemption. The practical result in Smith was thus the opposite of that in Spenser: with respect to entitlement to excess proceeds under Civ. Code § 2924k(a), the judgment lien in Spenser was given priority over the homeowners (and junior encumbrances had there been any), but the judgment lien in Smith in effect lost priority to the extent of the applicable homestead amount, and the amount thus lost went instead to junior encumbrances (or to the homeowner had there been no junior encumbrances).

It is arguable that, of the two decisions, Spenser is the better reasoned. The court in Spenser, unlike the court in Smith, considered and applied the more general language of Code Civ. Proc. § 703.010, which provides that the homestead exemptions "do not apply" in a proceeding "for the foreclosure of a mortgage [or] deed of trust," nor in a proceeding to enforce a lien or encumbrance other than those created under the judgment lien law of Code Civ. Proc. § 695.010 et seq. or the attachment law of Code Civ. Proc. § 481.010 et seq. [Code Civ. Proc. § 703.010(b); see also § 294.51]. Under the plain language of Code Civ. Proc. § 703.010(b), it would appear that the homestead exemption should not be applied in any manner in a nonjudicial foreclosure sale, whether by application of Code Civ. Proc. § 704.720(b), Code Civ. Proc. § 704.950(c), or other related provision.

Finding Smith and Spenser to be factually distinguishable and any inconsistency between them to be "more imagined than real," one court of appeal held that the trial court erred in refusing to acknowledge the declared homestead exemption afforded by Code Civ. Proc. § 704.720(c) with regard to the allocation of a post-trustee's-sale surplus fund [Title Trust Deed Service Co. v. Pearson (2005) 132 Cal. App. 4th 168, 178-179, 33 Cal. Rptr. 3d 311] . The homeowner had executed a deed of trust encumbering the property and had not repaid the loan, but after encumbering the property had recorded a declaration of homestead. Thereafter, a default judgment on an unrelated matter was entered against the homeowner and the homeowner executed deeds of trust to secure indemnifications to obtain the release of two women charged with crimes. The trustee on the deed of trust conducted a nonjudicial foreclosure sale. After paying the creditor and costs, the trustee filed an interpleader to ascertain whether to give the surplus funds to the homeowner, to satisfy the default judgment against the homeowner, and/or to satisfy the bail indemnifications incurred by the homeowner. The trial court denied the homeowner's motion to amend his answer to include the declared homestead, finding that under Spenser, because the proceeds of the sale were not exempt from execution to satisfy a money judgment, the surplus proceeds were not exempt and the proposed affirmative defense would fail as a matter of law, and awarded the surplus to satisfy the default judgment and bail indemnifications. The Court of Appeal distinguished between the automatic homestead and the declared homestead, finding that the declared homestead provides greater rights than the automatic homestead. The declared homestead provides protection from a voluntary sale; judgment liens only attach to the equity in excess of consensual liens; and the protections of the declared homestead survive the death of the homestead owner. The proceeds from a voluntary sale may be reinvested within six months, allowing the debtor to invest in another residence. The automatic homestead only entitles the debtor to protection from a forced execution sale. A judgment lien, which is created by the recording of an abstract of judgment, only attaches to the equity in the property above and beyond the recorded homestead exemption and any preexisting liens on the property [Title Trust Deed Service Co. v. Pearson (2005) 132 Cal. App. 4th 168, 174-175, 33 Cal. Rptr. 3d 311] . The court held that Smith trumped Spenser because Smith arose in the context of a declared homestead, and concluded that wherea declared homestead has been recorded before a judgment lien attached, Code Civ. Proc. § 704.950(c) incorporates the homestead exemption as part of its formula for determining the amount of the judgment lien [Title Trust Deed Service Co. v. Pearson (2005) 132 Cal. App. 4th 168, 175-178, 33 Cal. Rptr. 3d 311] .

[6] Protection From Liens After Death of Declared Homestead Owner

The protection of the declared homestead from any creditor having an attachment lien, execution lien, or judgment lien on the dwelling continues after the death of the declared homestead owner if, at the time of his or her death, the dwelling was the principal dwelling of one or more of the following persons to whom all or part of the decedent's interest passes [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.995(a)]:

- The surviving spouse of the decedent; and/or
- A member of the decedent's family.

The protection of the declared homestead provided by Code Civ. Proc. § 704.995(a) continues regardless of whether or not the decedent was the sole owner of the declared homestead or owned the declared homestead with the surviving spouse or family member. It also continues regardless of whether or not the surviving spouse or family member was a declared homestead owner at the time of the decedent's death [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.995(b)].

The amount of the homestead exemption is determined pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 704.730 depending on the circumstances of the case at the time the amount is required to be determined [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.995(c)].

B. Declared Homesteads

§ 294.36 Extent Declared Homestead Is Not Protected From Judgment Lien

[1] Support Orders; Surplus Equity

A judgment lien generally does not attach to a declared homestead when the homestead declaration was recorded before the lien, and when the judgment debtor or his or her spouse is the declared homestead owner. There are two situations, however, in which a declared homestead is not protected from a judgment lien [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.950(a)]:

- A declared homestead is not protected from a judgment lien created under Code Civ. Proc. § 697.320 for child, family, or spousal support [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.950(b); for discussion and forms relating to such liens, see Ch. 258, Family Law Enforcement: General Enforcement Principles and Remedies, § 258.51].

- A judgment lien attaches to a declared homestead in the amount of any surplus equity, that is, any surplus over the total of (1) all liens and encumbrances recorded prior to the judgment lien and (2) the homestead exemption [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.950(c); Fidelity National Title Insurance Co. v. Schroeder (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 834, 843-844, 101 Cal. Rptr. 3d 854 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 487.025(b) (prejudgment writ of attachment attaches similarly to surplus equity in declared homestead); see also § 294.36[2]].

Homestead protection is not lost by the failure of the property owner to claim the homestead exemption at a hearing on an attachment [Martin v. Aboyan (1983) 148 Cal. App. 3d 826, 830-832, 196 Cal. Rptr. 266] .

[2] Surplus Equity Accruing After Judgment Lien Is Recorded

If, when a judgment lien is recorded, there is no "surplus equity" as determined under Code Civ. Proc. § 704.950(c) [see § 294.36[1]], the judgment lien may not be enforced to any extent [see also §§ 294.53, 294.56].

There is some conflict, however, concerning the extent to which a judgment creditor may reach surplus equity (that is, value in the property that exceeds the sum of all senior encumbrances plus the amount of the applicable homestead exemption) when a surplus develops at some time after a judgment lien is created by recordation of the abstract of judgment. The Ninth Circuit, in the context of a bankruptcy proceeding, interpreted Code Civ. Proc. § 704.950(c) to mean that, if there was no surplus equity as determined at the time a judgment lien is recorded, the lien not only does not attach to the declared homestead at that time, but cannot attach to it thereafter [In re Jones (9th Cir. 1997) 106 F.3d 923, 927] .

In Teaman v. Wilkinson (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 1259, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 705 , a California court of appeal rejected the Ninth Circuit's interpretation of Code Civ. Proc. § 704.950(c), concluding that it would lead to unfair results that the Legislature could not have intended. For example, if two creditors obtain judgments against a declared homestead owner at around the same time, and one records the judgment immediately when there no surplus equity, whereas the other records later when there is a surplus, the latter but not the former may recover, even if there is enough surplus to satisfy both. The court also noted that judgment liens continue for 10 years and may be renewed [Code Civ. Proc. § 697.310(b)], and that, if a homestead is not subject to judicial sale because of lack of surplus equity, it is not thereafter subject to sale on application by the same creditor for a period of one year, implying that the creditor may reapply after the lapse of a year [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.800(a)]. Construing Code Civ. Proc. § 704.950(c) in light of these related provisions, the court in Teaman concluded that, even if a judgment lien does not attach initially because of lack of surplus equity, it may nevertheless attach later, when and if a surplus develops, and that the judgment creditor may subsequently reach that surplus consistent with provisions such as Code Civ. Proc. §§ 697.310(b) and Code Civ. Proc. § 704.800(a) [Teaman v. Wilkinson (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 1259, 1264-1266, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 705] .

Another court of appeal decision took an approach different from both Jones and Teaman. In Smith v. James A. Merrill, Inc. (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 94, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 108 , the court considered Code Civ. Proc. § 704.950(c) in the context of the distribution of proceeds following a nonjudicial foreclosure [§ 294.35[5]]. The court in Smith disagreed with the Teaman decision to the extent that it suggested that a lien does not attach to a declared homestead until surplus equity develops. The court noted that this it could be difficult to determine when surplus developed, and hence when a lien finally attached, because, in order to know when a surplus exists, it is necessary to know to the amount of applicable homestead exemption, but this amount, under Code Civ. Proc. § 704.965, is sometimes dependent on when the judgment liens attaches [see § 294.35[2]]. To avoid this difficulty, the court construed Code Civ. Proc. § 704.950(c) to mean that a judgment lien attaches when the abstract of judgment is recorded, but the amount of the lien is limited to the amount of surplus, if any, at the time the judgment creditor attempts to enforce the lien judgment [see Smith v. James A. Merrill, Inc. (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 94, 100-102, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 108] .

Under the approach of either Teaman or Smith, it appears that a judgment creditor may successfully execute against surplus equity in a declared homestead when it develops after the judgment lien is recorded. Either of these decisions is more likely to be followed than the Ninth Circuit's decision in Jones.

If, however, the declared homestead owner transfers the declared homestead property to a third party buyer, and at the time of transfer there is no surplus equity, the judgment lien may not thereafter be enforced against that property and against the third party buyer [Teaman v. Wilkinson (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 1259, 1267-1269, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 705] . On the other hand, it may be possible for the judgment creditor to reach surplus equity from the seller, when the seller takes the proceeds of a sale and reinvests them within six months into another declared homestead [see § 294.35[3]], and that other declared homestead subsequently develops surplus equity [Teaman v. Wilkinson (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 1259, 1269 n.6, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 705] .

B. Declared Homesteads

§ 294.37 Abandonment of Declared Homestead

[1] By Declaration

A declared homestead may be abandoned, whether recorded pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 704.910 et seq. or to former Civ. Code §§ 1243, 1243.5, and 1244, by a declaration of abandonment [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.980(a)].

[2] Execution and Acknowledgment

The declaration of abandonment must be executed and acknowledged in the manner of an acknowledgment of a conveyance of real property by either a declared homestead owner or by a person authorized to act on his or her behalf. In the latter event, the authorized person must state that he or she has the authority to act on behalf of the declared homestead owner and state the source of the authority [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.980(b)].

[3] Abandonment Limited to Declarant's Interest

The declaration of abandonment will not affect the declared homestead of any person other than the declared homestead owner named in the declaration of abandonment [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.980(c)]. For example, if one spouse continues to live in a declared homestead after dissolution of the marriage, the other spouse may abandon the declared homestead and establish a new one. In that case, the abandonment would not affect the right of the former spouse who continued to live in the previously created homestead to retain the dwelling as his or her declared homestead if he or she owns an interest in the dwelling [see Annual Report, 16 Cal. L. Revision Comm'n Reports 2137 (1982)].

[4] By Operation of Law

A declared homestead is abandoned by operation of law as to a declared homestead owner if the declared homestead owner, or a person authorized to act on his or her behalf, executes, acknowledges, and records a new homestead declaration on different property. The abandonment would affect only the declarant named in the new homestead declaration [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.990(a)].

If, however, a new homestead declaration includes property described in a previously recorded homestead declaration, then to the extent that that declaration is still valid, the new homestead declaration will not be considered an abandonment of the prior declared homestead [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.990(b); see also Ray v. Valdez (1959) 175 Cal. App. 2d 502, 506-507, 346 P.2d 464] .

C. Homestead Exemption

§ 294.50 Definitions

[1] Dwelling

The term "dwelling," as used in relation to homestead exemptions, means a place where a person actually resides. It includes, but is not limited to, a house or mobilehome, together with the outbuildings and the land on which they are situated; a boat or other waterborne vessel; a condominium, as defined in Civ. Code § 783; a planned development, as defined in Bus. & Prof. Code § 11003; a stock cooperative, as defined in Bus. & Prof. Code § 11003.2; and a community apartment project, as defined in Bus. & Prof. Code § 11004 [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.710(a)].

[2] Family Unit

The term "family unit," as used in relation to homestead exemptions, means the judgment debtor and his or her spouse if they reside together in the homestead, or the judgment debtor or his or her spouse and at least one other of the following persons who he or she cares for or maintains in the homestead [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.710(b)]:

- A minor child or grandchild of the judgment debtor, of his or her spouse, or of a deceased or former spouse;
- A minor brother or sister of the judgment debtor or his or her spouse, or a minor child of a deceased brother or sister of either spouse;
- The parent or grandparent of the judgment debtor, of his or her spouse, or of a deceased spouse;
- An unmarried child, brother, or sister of either spouse who has attained the age of majority and is unable to take care of or support himself or herself.

[3] Homestead

The term "homestead," as used in relation to homestead exemptions, means the principal dwelling in which the judgment debtor or the judgment debtor's spouse resided on the date the judgment creditor's lien attached to the dwelling, and in which the judgment debtor or the judgment debtor's spouse resided continuously thereafter until the date of the court determination that the dwelling is a homestead. Homestead also means the dwelling acquired with the use of exempt proceeds from the sale, damage, or destruction of a homestead as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 704.720 [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.710(c); see California Coastal Commission v. Allen (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 322, 329-331, 83 Cal. Rptr. 3d 906 (continuous residence requirement for a principal dwelling exemption not met when defendant resided elsewhere while retaining right to be temporarily present in room on property); see § 294.35[3]].

Even though Code Civ. Proc. § 704.710(c) states that the owner of property is entitled to the automatic homestead exemption for property that he or she owns and resides in on the date a judgment lien attaches, the Court of Appeal for the Second Appellate District, Division Three has ruled that after-acquired property purchased with funds not arising from the sale of a declared homestead to which a prior judgment lien attaches at purchase under Code Civ. Proc. § 697.340(b) is not entitled to the automatic homestead exemption even if the purchaser has resided continuously in the property since the date of purchase [SBAM Partners v. Wang (2008) 164 Cal. App. 4th 903, 911-913, 79 Cal. Rptr. 3d 752] .

[4] Spouse

The term "spouse," as used in relation to homestead exemptions, does not include a married person, following entry of a judgment decreeing legal separation of the parties, or an interlocutory judgment of dissolution of the marriage, unless the married persons still reside together in the same dwelling [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.710(d)].

C. Homestead Exemption

§ 294.51 Nature of Homestead Exemption

[1] In General

The homestead exemption has no effect on liens created voluntarily by property owners or on claims of creditors secured by liens with priority over the homestead declaration. The exemption ensures that insolvent debtors and their families are not rendered homeless by virtue of an involuntary sale of the residential property they occupy. The homestead law is not designed to protect creditors, but to protect the home against the judgment debtor's creditors. This strong public policy requires courts to adopt a liberal construction of the law and facts to promote the beneficial purposes of the homestead legislation to benefit the debtor [Amin v. Khazindar (2003) 112 Cal. App. 4th 582, 588, 5 Cal. Rptr. 3d 224 , citing 5 Miller & Starr, California Real Estate § 13.43 (3d ed. 1996); Code Civ. Proc. § 703.010(a)].

The homestead exemption applies to any interest of the judgment debtor in a homestead [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.720(a); see also Annual Report, 16 Cal. L. Revision Comm'n Reports 2133 (1982)] and to all procedures for enforcement of a money judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 703.010(a)]. The exemption does not apply if the judgment to be enforced is for the foreclosure of a mortgage, deed of trust, or other lien or encumbrance on the property other than enforcement or attachment liens [Code Civ. Proc. § 703.010(b); see also § 294.35[5]].

A judgment debtor or his or her spouse may claim a homestead exemption regardless of whether or not the dwelling is a declared homestead [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 704.710(c), 704.720(a); see also Annual Report, 16 Cal. L. Revision Comm'n Reports 2132-2133 (1982)]. However, the declared homestead provides greater rights than the automatic homestead. The declared homestead provides protection from a voluntary sale; judgment liens only attach to the equity in excess of consensual liens; and the protections of the declared homestead survive the death of the homestead owner. The proceeds from a voluntary sale may be reinvested within six months, thus allowing the debtor to invest in another residence. On the other hand, the automatic homestead only entitles the debtor to protection from a forced execution sale [In re Mulch (Bankr. N.D. Cal. 1995) 182 B.R. 569, 573 ; Fidelity National Title Insurance Co. v. Schroeder (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 834, 843-844, 101 Cal. Rptr. 3d 854 ; Amin v. Khazindar (2003) 112 Cal. App. 4th 582, 588, 5 Cal. Rptr. 3d 224 ; accord, In re Kelley (B.A.P., 9th Cir. 2003) 300 B.R. 11, 19-20] .

A homestead declaration recorded prior to July 1, 1983, pursuant to former Civ. Code §§ 1237-1304, is effective as an exemption from a judgment creditor only to the extent provided under Code Civ. Proc. § 704.910 et seq. [Code Civ. Proc. § 694.090].

[2] Proceeds From Sale of Dwelling

Proceeds from a dwelling sold at an execution sale, or from insurance or other indemnification for damaged or destroyed property, or from the sale of the property for public use, are exempt in the amount prescribed by Code Civ. Proc. § 704.730 for a period of six months from the time the proceeds are actually received by the judgment debtor. If the proceeds in the amount of the homestead exemption are used to acquire a new dwelling within the six month period, the new dwelling also constitutes a homestead if it is the principal dwelling in which the judgment debtor or the judgment debtor's spouse resided continuously from the date of acquisition until the date the court determines that the dwelling is a homestead, whether or not an abstract or certified copy of a judgment was recorded to create a judgment lien before the dwelling was acquired [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.710(c)]. If, however, a judgment debtor receives exempt proceeds but, rather than reinvesting in a replacement dwelling within the six month period, applies a homestead exemption to other property owned by the judgment debtor or the judgment debtor's spouse, the proceeds cease to be exempt [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.720(b)]. This provision should be compared to the right of a declared homestead owner to apply the proceeds from either a voluntary or execution sale, or the proceeds from insurance or other indemnification for damaged or destroyed property, to a new declared homestead within the six-month period [see Code Civ. Proc. § 704.960; see also § 294.35[3]].

[3] Spouses Residing in Separate Homesteads

If the judgment debtor and his or her spouse reside in separate homesteads, only the homestead of one of the spouses is exempt, and only the proceeds of the exempt homestead are exempt [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.720(c)]. The spouses may select which of the homesteads is exempt. If they are unable to agree, however, the court determines which homestead is exempt [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 703.110, 704.930; see also legislative comments to Code Civ. Proc. § 704.720].

[4] Separated or Former Spouse Residing in Homestead

If a judgment debtor is not currently residing in the homestead, but his or her separated or former spouse continues to reside in or exercise control over possession of the homestead, the judgment debtor continues to be entitled to an exemption until entry of a judgment or other legally enforceable agreement dividing the community property between the judgment debtor and the separated or former spouse, or until a later time period as specified by court order. However, the judgment debtor is not entitled to more than one exempt homestead [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.720(d)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Homestead Exemption

25-294 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 294.52

§ 294.52 Amount of Homestead Exemption

A judgment debtor may claim a homestead exemption in the amount of $50,000 [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.730(a)(1)]. If the judgment debtor or his or her spouse who resides in the homestead is, at the time of the attempted sale of the homestead, a member of a family unit, he or she is entitled to an exemption in the amount of $75,000. There must, however, be at least one member of the family unit who owns no interest in the homestead, or whose only interest in the homestead is a community property interest with the judgment debtor [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.730(a)(2)]. The Ninth Circuit has ruled that domestic partners registered with the State of California's Domestic Partnership Registry pursuant to the Domestic Partner Rights and Responsibilities Act, Fam. Code § 297.5, are limited to a single homestead exemption pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 703.110, as are married couples. They are not entitled to the full $75,000 homestead exemption each under Code Civ. Proc. § 704.730(a)(2), because the homestead exemption rights of registrants are identical to those of people who are married [Rabin v. Schoenmann (In re Rabin) (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2006) 359 B.R. 242, 248-249] . In other words, under California law, couples with formally joined economic interests, whether as spouses or registrants, are limited to a single homestead exemption [Rabin v. Schoenmann (In re Rabin) (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2006) 359 B.R. 242, 248 n. 11 (noting anomaly that debtors with common interests in homestead property who are neither married nor registered domestic partners might each be entitled to a $75,000 exemption)].

The amount of exemption is increased to $150,000 if the judgment debtor or his or her spouse who resides in the homestead is, at the time of the attempted sale of the homestead [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.730(a)(3)]:

- 65 years of age or older;
- Physically or mentally disabled and, as a result of that disability, unable to engage in substantial gainful employment; or
- 55 years of age or older with a gross annual income of not more than $15,000, or if married, a gross annual income, including the gross annual income of his or her spouse, of not more than $20,000 and the sale is an involuntary sale.

There is a rebuttable presumption affecting the burden of proof that a person receiving disability insurance benefit payments under Title II or supplemental security income payments under Title XVI of the federal Social Security Act satisfies the requirements of physical or mental disability as to his or her inability to engage in substantial gainful employment [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.730(a)(2)]. A creditor facing the presumption has the burden of proof to show that the homestead claimant had the ability to [In re Rolland (Bankr., C.D. Cal. 2004) 317 B.R. 402, 420] :

- Perform meaningful mental or physical work-related activity,
- In a competitive or self-employed position,
- That normally results in pay or profit.

For purposes of the third listed basis for the highest exemption amount, the federal courts have applied the definition of "gross annual income" set forth in Fam. Code § 4058(a)(2), which allows sole business proprietors to deduct the costs of product and legitimate expenses from gross receipts of the business to retain the maximum homestead amount. In applying this definition, the Court must first examine the context in which the debtor's income is derived, and then determine what reductions, if any, are appropriate [In re Bush (Bankr., S.D. Cal. 2006) 346 B.R. 207, 209-210 ; In re Shelley (B.A.P., 9th Cir. 1995) 184 B.R. 356, 360 , aff'd without op., (9th Cir. 1997) 109 F.3d 639] . However, a homestead claimant is not entitled to deduct passive losses from an "S" corporation from his or her annual income [In re Sweitzer (Bankr. C.D. Cal. 2005) 332 B.R. 614, 615, 618] .

If the judgment debtor or his or her spouse both qualify for an exemption in the homestead, the homestead exemption cannot exceed the amount specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 704.730(a)(2) or (3), whether or not the spouses are jointly obligated on the judgment and whether or not the homestead consists of community or separate property or both. If both spouses are entitled to a homestead exemption, the exemption of proceeds of the homestead are to be apportioned between the spouses on the basis of their proportionate interests in the homestead [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.730(b)]. This provision is intended to preclude the exemption of unduly large amounts and the inequitable application of exemptions that might occur because of the variety of ways that spouses can hold property and attempt to qualify for increased exemptions [see Annual Report, 16 Cal. L. Revision Comm'n Reports 2085 (1982)].

§ 294.53 Application for Order for Sale of Dwelling

[1] In General

Generally, when a judgment creditor seeks to enforce a money judgment on a natural person's interest in a real property dwelling, whether a declared homestead or not, he or she must first obtain a court order for the sale of the dwelling pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 704.710 et seq. [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.740(a); California Coastal Com. v. Allen (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 322, 329, 83 Cal. Rptr. 3d 906 (exemption not available when property was transferred to corporation); see Wells Fargo Financial Leasing, Inc. v. D & M Cabinets (2009) 177 Cal. App. 4th 59, 67-69, 99 Cal. Rptr. 3d 97 (judgment creditor, seeking to sell occupied dwelling to collect judgment, may not bypass Code Civ. Proc. § 704.740 because sale is conducted by receiver)]. If, however, the dwelling is personal property, such as an unattached mobilehome, housetrailer, or houseboat, or the dwelling is a leasehold estate in real property with an unexpired term of less than two years at the time of levy, a court order for sale is not required. An exemption claim as to such property must be made and determined as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 703.510 et seq. [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.740(b); see also Health & Safety Code §§ 18008, 18551(e) (provisions governing mobile homes)]. For a discussion of exemption claims under Code Civ. Proc. § 703.510 et seq., see Ch. 254, Executions and Enforcement of Judgments .

[2] Notice to Judgment Creditor

Promptly after the judgment creditor has caused a real property dwelling, other than one described in Code Civ. Proc. § 704.740(b), to be levied on, the levying officer must serve notice on the creditor that the levy has been made and that the property will be released unless he or she applies for an order for sale and files a copy of the application with the levying officer within 20 days [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.750(a)]. For discussion of filing and service of writs, notices, and other papers, see Ch. 254, Executions and Enforcement of Judgments . For a form for an application for an order for sale of a dwelling and a discussion of the contents of the application required by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 704, 760, see § 294.102.

[3] Dwelling Located in Another County

If the dwelling is located in a county other than the county in which the judgment was rendered, the judgment creditor must apply to the superior court of the county where the dwelling is located and file with the application an abstract of judgment in the form prescribed by Code Civ. Proc. § 674, or, in the case of a judgment described in Code Civ. Proc. § 697.320 (for spousal or child support, or against health care provider for periodic payments), a certified copy of the judgment. The judgment creditor must pay the filing fee for a motion provided in Gov. Code Section 70617(a) [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.750(b)]. A judgment lien on real property also may be created under Code Civ. Proc. § 697.320(a) by recording an abstract of judgment.

[1] Setting

After the judgment creditor has filed the application for an order for sale, the court must set a time and place for hearing and must order the judgment debtor to show cause why an order for sale should not be made in accordance with the application. The hearing must be set no later than 45 days after the application is filed, or such later time as the court orders on a showing of good cause [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.770(a)].

[2] Notice of Hearing

The judgment creditor, no later than 30 days before the time set for hearing, must serve on the judgment debtor a copy of the order to show cause, a copy of the judgment creditor's application, and a copy of the notice of the hearing in the form prescribed by the Judicial Council [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.770(b)(1); see § 294.104].

[3] Service of Papers

Service must be made either personally or by mail [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.770(b)(1)]. In addition, the judgment creditor must personally serve a copy of each of the required documents on an occupant of the dwelling in question. If there is no occupant present at the time service is attempted, a copy of each document must be posted in a conspicuous place at the dwelling [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.770(b)(2)].

If service is by mail, the period of notice is extended five days if the place of address is in California, ten days if the place of address is outside California but within the United States, or twenty days if the place of address is outside the United States [see Code Civ. Proc. § 684.120(a), (b)]. For discussion of filing and service of writs, notices, and other papers, see Ch. 254, Executions and Enforcement of Judgments .

[4] Burden of Proof

If the records of the county tax assessor indicate that there is a current homeowner's [see Rev. & Tax. Code § 218] or disabled veteran's [see Rev. & Tax. Code § 205.5] exemption for the dwelling claimed by the judgment debtor or his or her spouse, the judgment creditor has the burden of proof that the dwelling is not a homestead. On the other hand, if the records indicate that there is no current claim of a homestead exemption or disabled veteran's exemption by the judgment debtor or his or her spouse, the burden of proof that the dwelling is a homestead is on the person who claims that the dwelling is a homestead [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.780(a)]. If the application states the amount of the homestead exemption, the person claiming the exemption has the burden of proof that the claimed amount is other than the amount stated in the application [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.780(a)(2)].

[5] Appointment of Appraiser

The court may appoint a qualified appraiser to assist the court in determining the fair market value of the dwelling. If the court appoints an appraiser, it must fix the compensation of the appraiser in a reasonable amount, not to exceed similar fees for similar services in the community in which the dwelling is located [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.780(d)].

[6] Order for Sale of Dwelling

Before the court may order a sale of a dwelling involving real property, it must determine whether or not the dwelling is exempt. The court shall then make an order for sale of the dwelling subject to the homestead exemption, unless it determines that the sale of the dwelling would not be likely to produce a bid sufficient to satisfy any part of the amount due on the judgment pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 704.800 [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.780(b); see § 294.85[11]]. If the court determines that the dwelling is exempt, the court shall also determine the amount of the homestead exemption and the fair market value of the dwelling. The order for sale of the dwelling subject to the homestead exemption shall specify the amount of the proceeds of the sale that is to be distributed to each person having a lien or encumbrance on the dwelling and must also include the name and address of each person holding a lien or encumbrance [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.780(b)]. After the order for sale is obtained, the dwelling may be sold as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 701.510 et seq. If the court determines that the dwelling is not exempt, the court shall make an order for sale of the property in the manner provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 701.510 et seq. [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.780(b)]. For a form of order for the sale of a dwelling, see § 294.105. For discussion, forms, and procedures relating to the sale of a dwelling pursuant to court order, see Ch. 254, Executions and Enforcement of Judgments, § 254.40 et seq.

When the court has granted the application for order for sale, the court clerk must transmit a certified copy of the order to the levying officer. In the event that the court making the order is not the court in which the judgment was entered, the clerk must send the certified copy to the clerk of the court in which it was entered [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.780(c)].

[1] Service of Order

If neither the judgment debtor, the debtor's spouse, nor his or her attorney appeared at the hearing, the judgment creditor must serve a copy of the order and a notice of the order, personally or by mail, on the judgment debtor and his or her spouse. The judgment creditor must also serve a copy and notice of the order personally on an occupant of the dwelling, or if there is no occupant present at the time service is attempted, the judgment creditor must post a copy of the order and notice in a conspicuous place at the dwelling. The service of notice must be made no later than 10 days after the date of the order in the form prescribed by the Judicial Council [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.790(a), (b); see § 294.106]. Proof of service and of any posting of the order must be filed with the court and with the levying officer. Failure to comply with these provisions vitiates the order and the dwelling may not be sold [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.790(c)]. For discussion of filing and service of notices, see § 294.54[3].

[2] Second Hearing

If, within 10 days after service of notice of the order, the judgment debtor or his or her spouse files a declaration with the levying officer stating that the absence of the judgment debtor or his or her spouse or attorney was due to mistake, inadvertance, surprise, or excusable neglect and that he or she wishes to assert the homestead exemption, the levying officer must transmit the declaration immediately to the court that ordered the sale [see § 294.108]. On receipt of the declaration, the court must set a time and place for hearing to determine whether the order of the court should be modified. The time set for the hearing must be no later than 20 days after receipt of the declaration. The court clerk is responsible for providing prompt notice of the hearing to be given to the parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.790].

The homestead may not be sold if no bid is received at the court-ordered sale that exeeds the amount of the homestead exemption plus any additional amount necessary to satisfy all liens and encumbrances on the property, including but not limited to any attachment or judgment lien. In this event, the homestead property is released and cannot be subjected to a court order for sale on subsequent application by the same judgment creditor for a period of one year [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.800(a); see Rourke v. Troy (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 880, 883-886, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 660 ("all liens and encumbrances" for these purposes includes all liens senior to the lien of the executing judgment creditor, but does not include the judgment creditor's lien)].

If no bid is received at the court-ordered sale of a homestead that is 90 percent or more of the fair maket value as determined by the court during the hearing on the application for order for sale (§ 294.54[6]), the homestead may not be sold unless the court, on motion of the judgment creditor, does one of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.800(b)]:

- Grants permission to accept the highest bid that exceeds the minimum bid requirement of Code Civ. Proc. § 704.800(a);

- Makes a new order for sale of the homestead.

(1) To the discharge of all liens and encumbrances, if any, on the property;

(2) To the judgment debtor in the amount of any applicable exemption of proceeds as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 704.720 [see §§ 294.51, 294.52];

(3) To the levying office for reimbursement of his or her costs for which an advance was not made;

(4) To the judgment creditor to satisfy his or her judgment, costs, and interest accrued; and

§ 294.60 Payment of Costs

The judgment creditor is entitled to recover reasonable costs incurred in proceedings under the provisions governing homestead exemptions, except when no bid is received at a court-ordered sale of a homestead that exceeds the amount of the homestead exemption plus any additional amount necessary to satisfy any liens or encumbrances on the property, in which case he or she is not entitled to recover costs [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.840].

§ 294.63 Preventive Measures by Judgment Debtor

Under the former statutes governing homestead exemptions, the judgment debtor, in addition to appearing and claiming the exemption at the hearing on the writ of execution, could take separate preventive measures to contest the writ and levy of execution on the homestead property. Among the remedies available were a motion to quash the writ and vacate the levy of execution, injunctive relief, and an action to quiet title. These remedies may no longer be necessary in most cases, however, since under the new provisions of the homestead exemption statutes, an early resolution of the exemption question is provided. In addition, any cloud on the title resulting when the property is levied on but an order for sale is not diligently pursued will be promptly cleared since the judgment creditor has only a 20-day period in which to apply for the order and to file the copy of the application [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 704.750-704.790; see also §§ 294.53-294.55]. For discussion of preventive measures that can be used by the judgment debtor in relation to preventing an order for sale of property, generally, see Ch. 254, Executions and Enforcement of Judgments, § 254.40 et seq.

PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

§ 294.85 Decisions

[1] Abandonment of Homestead

Property settlement agreement prepared in connection with divorce proceeds is ineffective as declaration of abandomnent of homestead. Estate of Teel (1949) 34 Cal. 2d 349, 352, 210 P.2d 1

Sale of portion of land other than that in which dwelling located does not constitute abandonment of homestead. Ray v. Valdez (1959) 175 Cal. App. 2d 502, 506, 346 P.2d 464

Homestead is not abandoned by conveyance made for purpose of avoiding creditors. Oppenheim v. Goodley (1957) 148 Cal. App. 2d 325, 327, 306 P.2d 944

[2] Advertising of Homestead Filing Services

Bus. & Prof. Code § 17537.6, prohibiting untrue or misleading statements in advertising a homestead filing service, does not violate First Amendment rights, is not unconstitutionally vague, and does not violate due process. People v. Morse (1993) 21 Cal. App. 4th 259, 265-271, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 816

[2A] Amount of Homestead Exemption

When debtor's Schedule C on his 2005 tax return shows gross receipts of $31,879 and expenses of $ 28,018, debtor's return shows his business income was $3,861 and adjusted gross income of $3,588, and debtor declared that his earnings for 2005, appropriate year for calculating his gross annual income, arose solely from the operation of his sole proprietorship and that he had no carry forward losses or ownership interests in any "S" corporations and no further losses to offset his business income, debtor's primary source of income was from his sole proprietorship and, even though that income was from performance of services, the debtor is entitled to reduce from gross receipts those

"expenditures required for the operation of the business." In re Bush (Bankr., S.D. Cal. 2006) 346 B.R. 207, 210

Homestead exemption claimants were not entitled to exemption under CCP § 704.730(a)(3)(B), based on disability, because their bankruptcy schedules, signed under penalty of perjury pursuant to Fed. R. Bankr. P. 1008, admitted that the wife could derive income from self-employment in a meaningful work-related activity at the time of bankruptcy, and those statements were judicial admissions; thus, the trustee met her burden of proof that the debtors were not entitled to the exemption. In re Rolland (Bankr., C.D. Cal. 2004) 317 B.R. 402, 420

Homestead exemption claimant failed to sustain the burden of showing satisfactory evidence that he was unable to engage in substantial gainful employment as claimed under Code Civ. Proc. § 704.730(a)(3)(B). Cal-Western Reconveyance Corp. v. Reed (2007) 152 Cal. App. 4th 1308, 1323, 62 Cal. Rptr. 3d 244

[3] Attachment

Excess value of homestead property is subject to attachment; attachment levied before transfer of property is charges grantee with notice that title is subject to right of judgment creditor to reach excess value of property through statutory proceedings governing execution and sale of homestead property. Marelli v. Keating (1929) 208 Cal. 528, 530-531, 282 P. 793

[4] Constitutional Authorization for Homestead Exemption

Cal. Const., art. XX, § 1.5, authorizes Legislature to enact homestead exemptions to protect homesteads from forced sale. Lee v. Brown (1976) 18 Cal. 3d 110, 113, 132 Cal. Rptr. 649, 553 P.2d 1121

[5] Creation of Homestead

Rights of homestead claimant is created by fulfilling two requirements: (1) recording of valid homestead declaration in accordance with statutory provisions, and (2) actual, present existence of facts claimed in the declaration. Rich v. Ervin (1948) 86 Cal. App. 2d 386, 392, 194 P.2d 809

When validity of homestead is at issue, truth of facts contained in homestead declaration is required to be proved by independent evidence. Valley Title Co. v. Parish Egg Basket, Inc. (1973) 31 Cal. App. 3d 776, 779, 107 Cal. Rptr. 717

Declared homestead rights do not apply to forced sales in a bankruptcy proceeding. In re Kelley (B.A.P., 9th Cir. 2003) 300 B.R. 11, 20-21

Recording declaration of homestead by judgment debtor does not automatically entitle debtor to homestead exemption set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 704.730. In re Kelley (B.A.P., 9th Cir. 2003) 300 B.R. 11, 19-20 ; In re Anderson (9th Cir. 1987) 824 F.2d 754, 758-759

Reference to Code Civ. Proc. § 704.730 in Code Civ. Proc. § 704.950 does not incorporate all benefits of Article 4 (Code Civ. Proc. § 704.710 et seq.) into Article 5 (Code Civ. Proc. § 704.910 et seq.); reference is only shorthand method of giving added protection to Article 4 dwelling exemption by further exempting it from judicial liens. In re Kelley (B.A.P., 9th Cir. 2003) 300 B.R. 11, 19-20 ; In re Anderson (9th Cir. 1987) 824 F.2d 754, 759

In interpleader action by trustee of deed of trust after nonjudicial foreclosure sale to distribute surplus proceeds, trial court erred in refusing to acknowledge declared homestead exemption afforded by Code Civ. Proc. § 704.720(c) by denying homeowner's motion to amend answer to include the declared homestead, when judgment lien created by recording of abstract of judgment, only attached to equity in property above and beyond recorded homestead exemption and any preexisting liens on property. Title Trust Deed Service Co. v. Pearson (2005) 132 Cal. App. 4th 168, 174-179, 33 Cal. Rptr. 3d 311

[7] Execution on Homestead

When defrauded creditor whose money has been used to purchase homestead property attaches homestead, right of defrauded creditor is paramount to that of homestead owner, and that property is not exempt from execution or sale. Stoner v. Walsh (1972) 24 Cal. App. 3d 938, 943, 101 Cal. Rptr. 485

When homestead property is subject to execution sale for debts of one spouse only, that spouse is entitled to claim full benefit of homestead exemption applicable on his or her one-half interest in home. Schoenfeld v. Norberg (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 755, 764-765, 90 Cal. Rptr. 47

If levy is on community property, entirety as subject to execution for one spouse's debt. Schoenfeld v. Norberg (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 755, 760, 90 Cal. Rptr. 47

Requirement of minimum bid in court-ordered sale of homestead as designed to protect interest of homestead debtor and not that of the judgment creditor. Van Bogaert v. Avery (1969) 271 Cal. App. 2d 492, 497, 76 Cal. Rptr. 608

[8] Fraudulent Conveyance of Homestead

When property is homesteaded after fraudulent conveyance, homestead has no effect because fraudulent conveyance was void as to grantor's creditors. Nicolos v. Grover (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 858, 861, 231 Cal. Rptr. 79

Principles of fraudulent conveyances as not applying to declarations of homestead, and fact that debtor filed declaration of homestead to hinder and delay creditors as not affecting validity of declaration. Wells Fargo Bank v. PAL Investments, Inc. (1979) 96 Cal. App. 3d 431, 434-438, 157 Cal. Rptr. 818 ; Putnam Sand & Gravel Co. v. Albers (1971) 14 Cal. App. 3d 722 ; Oppenheim v. Goodley (1957) 148 Cal. App. 2d 325, 327-329, 306 P.2d 944

[9] Joint Tenancy and Tenancy in Common

Debtor's transmutation of his community property, marital home, to joint tenancy did not forfeit his homestead rights under CCP § 704.720(a), so transfer did not constitute fraudulent transfer in that respect. In re Osborn (2006) 346 B.R. 204, 206

Homesteads are capable of being claimed on property held in tenancy in common and joint tenancy Estate of Kachigian (1942) 20 Cal. 2d 787, 791, 128 P.2d 865

Spouse is able to unilaterally convert joint tenancy to tenancy in common by conveyance to self directly or through strawman even though property is declared by both spouses to be their homestead; homestead as not affected by such conveyance. Estate of Grigsby (1982) 134 Cal. App. 3d 611, 618, 184 Cal. Rptr. 886

Fact that spouses took title in real property in joint tenancy as not conclusive evidence that property held in joint tenancy; if it could be shown that parties intended to hold property as community property, that intent would prevail. Schoenfeld v. Norberg (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 755, 764, 90 Cal. Rptr. 47

Homestead claimant of property held in joint tenancy or tenancy in common as acquiring only those rights of occupancy that he or she had before creation of homestead, and cotenant's rights as in no way affected. Squibb v. Squibb (1961) 190 Cal. App. 2d 766, 769, 12 Cal. Rptr. 346

When only one spouse's interest in homestead is subject to sale pursuant to provision for execution on homestead, sale as severing spouse's interest with only debtor spouse's interest passing to purchaser and other spouse becoming tenant in common with new owner. Strangman v. Duke (1956) 140 Cal. App. 2d 185, 188, 295 P.2d 12

[10] Liberal Construction

Homestead exemption available to judgment debtors, under CCP § 704.730, is more generous than exemption that applies to debtors in bankruptcy. In re Watts (9th Cir. 2002) 298 F3d 1077, 1080

Homestead laws are given most liberal construction in order to advance their beneficial objects and to carry out the manifest purpose of Legislature. Estate of Kachigian (1942) 20 Cal. 2d 787, 791, 128 P.2d 865 ; Estate of Vannucci (1980) 103 Cal. App. 3d 175, 180, 163 Cal. Rptr. 11 ; Bonner v. Superior Court (1976) 63 Cal. App. 3d 156, 163, 133 Cal. Rptr. 592 ; Schoenfeld v. Norberg (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 755, 764, 90 Cal. Rptr. 47

[b] Of Homestead Declaration

Rule of liberal construction of homestead declarations is applicable in case of inaccurate description of homestead property as ten-room dwelling when in fact it consisted of two five-room flats. Viotti v. Giomi (1964) 230 Cal. App. 2d 730, 736, 41 Cal. Rptr. 345

Grammatical error in declaration does not invalidate declaration of homestead when it was clear what declarants were referring to. Clausseneus v. Anderson (1963) 216 Cal. App. 2d 171, 176, 30 Cal. Rptr. 772

Declaration of homestead is valid when complete except for omission of statement that declaration was made for joint benefit of declarant and her spouse, since statutory provisions substantially complied with and declaration fulfilled purpose of law. Johnson v. Brauner (1955) 131 Cal. App. 2d 713, 723, 281 P.2d 50

[c] Not Applied

Homestead declaration that lacked description of homestead property is invalid for failure to meet statutory requirements. Jackson v. Menick (9th Cir. 1958) 260 F.2d 563, 564

Homestead declaration is invalid for failing to meet statutory requirement of description of property when declaration described property "Lot 104" when in fact homestead was on Lot 204. Esten v. Cheek (9th Cir. 1958) 254 F.2d 667, 669-671

Liberal construction of law and facts does not mean the trial court is at liberty to apply exemption in absence of satisfactory evidence that debtor was unable to engage in substantial gainful employment as claimed under Code Civ. Proc. § 704.730(a)(3)(B). Cal-Western Reconveyance Corp. v. Reed (2007) 152 Cal. App. 4th 1308, 1323, 62 Cal. Rptr. 3d 244

Homestead is invalid when facts contained in homestead declaration found to be false. Rich v. Ervin (1948) 86 Cal. App. 2d 386, 387-394, 194 P.2d 809

[11] Minimum Bid Required at Sale

"All liens and encumbrances," for purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 704.800(a), includes all liens senior to the lien of the executing judgment creditor, but does not include the judgment creditor's lien. Rourke v. Troy (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 880, 883-886, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 660

[12] Priority of Liens and Judgments

Execution lien takes priority over homestead declaration recorded later; however, court nevertheless required to apply homestead exemption when declaration was filed in response to application for order of sale that established that property in question was a homestead. Kahn v. Berman (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 1499, 1508-1509, 244 Cal. Rptr. 575

Proceeds of sale of homestead defined as those payable to seller; consequently, real estate commissions for sale of property are not proceeds and are properly deducted from amount received from sale before proceeds are to be distributed. Ortale v. Mulhern (1976) 58 Cal. App. 3d 861, 864, 130 Cal. Rptr. 277

Judgment lien does not take priority over prior recorded homestead declaration; consequently, prior recorded homestead has precedence over tax lien which has force and effect of judgment lien. Curtis v. County of Kern (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 704, 706, 113 Cal. Rptr. 41

[13] Property Subject to Homestead

Occupation by homestead owner of one part of homestead property and renting out remainder is not inconsistent with homestead. Estate of Levy (1904) 141 Cal. 646, 647-653, 75 P. 301 (apartment house); Bodden v. Community Nat'l Bank (1969) 271 Cal. App. 2d 432, 434-436, 76 Cal. Rptr. 278 (lot containing two houses with common yard and right of way); Oktanski v. Burn (1956) 138 Cal. App. 2d 419, 422, 291 P.2d 954 (duplex)

Homestead is capable of being declared on property that is less than a fee interest. Blackburn v. Drake (1963) 211 Cal. App. 2d 806, 818-819, 27 Cal. Rptr. 651 (mere possession); Breeden v. Smith (1953) 120 Cal. App. 2d 62, 65-66, 260 P.2d 185 (full equitable interest); Arighi v. Rule & Sons (1940) 41 Cal. App. 2d 852, 855, 107 P.2d 970 (life estate); Estate of Reid (1938) 26 Cal. App. 2d 362, 366, 79 P.2d 451 (completed contract to purchase)

[14] Reinvestment of Homestead Proceeds

General purpose of exemption period for proceeds from sale of homestead is to give owner time to move family to another home with retention of protection from forced sale. Thorsby v. Babcock (1950) 36 Cal. 2d 202, 205, 222 P.2d 863 ; Chase v. Bank of America (1964) 227 Cal. App. 2d 259, 262-264, 38 Cal. Rptr. 567

Statutory six-month exemption period for proceeds of sale of homestead commences from time judgment debtor has access to funds. Thorsby v. Babcock (1950) 36 Cal. 2d 202, 204-206, 222 P.2d 863

[15] Res Judicata

Trial court did not err in applying res judicata to bar assertion of homestead in action for breach of contract, negligent misrepresentation and fraud, cancellation of quitclaim deed and quieting of title, where defendant had recorded no homestead when complaint was filed, in answering complaint defendant did not assert homestead interest, either recorded or statutory, fact that defendant contended she no longer had title did not mean court was precluded from finding transfers from plaintiff to defendant and then to third party had been fraudulent, and once jury returned verdict finding defendant had breached her contract, committed negligent misrepresentations and committed fraud in the transaction by having her name placed on blank quit claim deed, there was more than distinct possibility transactions might be set aside; where in three weeks between verdict and trial on equity issues, defendant still did not record homestead or attempt to amend her answer to assert statutory homestead exemption should trial court, sitting as court of equity, determine transaction should be set aside and defendant was still owner; and where, although defendant was not required to actually record homestead under Code Civ. Proc. § 704.920 and assertion of automatic homestead pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 704.720 would have sufficed, and assertion of homestead interest might have presented defendant with tactical problems due to her assertion she had sold property to third party, she was not legally barred from asserting what would have been inconsistent defense. Because no homestead was recorded, assertion of automatic homestead interest would have required court to make findings concerning value of property, amount of homestead, and whether exemption even applied, and because partition sale amounted to "forced sale" under homestead laws, facts necessarily should have been litigated to arrive at complete disposition of all issues related to property, and because defendant did not raise issue of homestead at trial, she was later barred from raising it. Further, case was not normal forced-sale situation in which interests in property had not been previously litigated and homesteader could file homestead declaration to defeat otherwise legitimate claims of creditors to extent permitted by homestead law, but because of prior equitable action in which rights to property were asserted, defendant should have asserted her residential homestead at that time, and some form of homestead existed at time of partition action and should have been asserted so that trial court could determine priority of liens and appropriate amount to be set aside for homestead. Amin v. Khazindar (2003) 112 Cal. App. 4th 582, 588-592, 5 Cal. Rptr. 3d 224

[16] Residence Requirement

Current California homestead laws do not give debtors a homestead exemption to protect equity in house that is not their primary residence. In re Kelley (B.A.P., 9th Cir. 2003) 300 B.R. 11, 19-20 ; In re Anderson (9th Cir. 1987) 824 F.2d 754, 760

Tenant is required to have bona fide intention to make dwelling his or her permanent residence in order for homestead declaration to be valid. Bullis v. Staniford (1918) 178 Cal. 40, 40-46, 171 P. 1064 ; Michelman v. Frye (1965) 238 Cal. App. 2d 698, 704-705, 48 Cal. Rptr. 142 ; Ellsworth v. Marshall (1961) 196 Cal. App. 2d 471, 474-477, 16 Cal. Rptr. 588

[17] Retroactivity of Changes in Homestead Laws

Retroactive enforcement of new Enforcement of Judgments Act does not violate federal and state contract clauses. In re Anderson (9th Cir. 1987) 824 F.2d 754, 761

Enactment of Code Civ. Proc. § 704.950(c), which changed law so that declaration of homestead no longer exempted property from preexisting judgment lien, is applicable retroactively to case in which former Civ. Code § 1245 had barred plaintiff from attempting to levy on property second time, so that prior action was not res judicata and judgment debtor's home, which had been exempt from execution under former law, was now subject to levy after enactment of new legislation. Stoffel v. Dutton (1985) 175 Cal. App. 3d 1185, 1187-1189, 221 Cal. Rptr. 346

[18] Sale of Homestead

Code Civ. Proc. § 704.740, which prohibits sale of "dwelling" except pursuant to court order, does not trump or negate Code Civ. Proc. § 701.680, which makes sale of property after levy absolute. Gonzalez v. Toews, 111 Cal. App. 4th 977, 981, 4 Cal. Rptr. 3d 434

Requirement of minimum bid in execution sale is designed to protect interest of homestead debtor and that of his or her judgment creditor. Van Bogaert v. Avery (1969) 271 Cal. App. 2d 492, 497, 76 Cal. Rptr. 608

CAUTION:

The above form of declaration must be acknowledged [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.930(c)]. It is not clear whether or not the declaration must be verified. The homestead declaration must include a statement that the facts stated in the declaration are known to be true as of the personal knowledge of the person executing and acknowledging the homestead declaration; however Code Civ. Proc. § 704.930(c) does not expressly require that the statement be made under penalty of perjury [compare Code Civ. Proc. § 704.930(c) with Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5*]. The verification in the above form satisfies the requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5.

[2] Use of Form

The foregoing form of a declaration of homestead may be used by an owner of property or by his or her spouse to designate the dwelling in which the owner or spouse actually resides as a homestead [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.930]. The declaration may also be used by a husband and wife to declare themselves homestead owners or by a conservator or guardian of the person or estate of the homestead owner or his/her spouse [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.930(a), (b)].

[3] Contents of Homestead Declaration

The homestead declaration should contain everything required by Code Civ. Proc. § 704.930. The declaration must include the name of the declared homestead owner (Paragraph 1), a description of the declared homestead (Paragraphs 3, 4), and a statement that the declared homestead is the principal dwelling of the declared homestead owner or his/her spouse, and that the homestead owner, or spouse, actually resides in the declared homestead on the date the homestead declaration is recorded (Paragraph 5) [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.930(a)]. If the declarant is the guardian or conservator of the homestead owner or his or her spouse or is acting under a power of attorney or other authority, the declarant must state that he/she is acting on behalf of the homestead owner or his/her spouse, and the source of that authority (Paragraph 6) [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.930(c)].

[4] Acknowledgment

In order for a declared homestead to be established, the declaration of homestead must be executed and acknowledged in the same manner as an acknowledgment of a conveyance of real property [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.930(b); see Civ. Code §§ 1188, 1189; see also § 294.32]. For a discussion of acknowledgments generally, see Ch. 9, Acknowledgments .

[5] Recording

The declaration of homestead must be recorded in the office of the recorder of the county in which the dwelling is located. From and after the time of recording, the dwelling is a declared homestead [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.920]. When properly recorded, the declaration is prima facie evidence of the facts contained within the declaration, and conclusive evidence in favor of a purchaser or encumbrancer in good faith and for a valuable consideration [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.940].

[6] Selection of Property

The property selected for a declared homestead may be any interest in real property, whether present or future, vested or contingent, legal or equitable, that is a "dwelling" [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 704.710, 704.910]. The interest may be in community property, held by the spouses or others as tenants in common or in joint tenancy, or in separate property of the spouses [for further discussion, see § 294.33].

[a] Creation of Homestead

When validity of homestead at issue, truth of facts contained in homestead declaration as required to be proved by independent evidence. Valley Title Co. v. Parish Egg Basket, Inc. (1973) 31 Cal. App. 3d 776, 779, 107 Cal. Rptr. 717

Rights of homestead claimant as created by fulfilling two requirements: (1) recording of valid homestead declaration in accordance with statutory provisions, and (2) actual present existence of the facts claimed in declaration. Rich v. Ervin (1948) 86 Cal. App. 2d 386, 392, 194 P.2d 809

[b] Liberal Construction of Homestead Declaration

Rule of liberal construction of homestead declarations as applicable in case of inaccurate description of homestead property as ten-room dwelling when in fact it consisted of two five-room flats. Viotti v. Giomi (1964) 230 Cal. App. 2d 730, 736, 41 Cal. Rptr. 345

Grammatical error in declaration as not invalidating homestead declaration when it was clear what declarants were referring to. Clausseneus v. Anderson (1963) 216 Cal. App. 2d 171, 176, 30 Cal. Rptr. 772

Declaration of homestead as valid when complete except for statement that declaration was made for joint benefit of declarant and her spouse, since statutory provisions substantially complied with and declaration fulfilled purpose of law. Johnson v. Brauner (1955) 131 Cal. App. 2d 713, 723, 281 P.2d 50

[c] Invalid Homesteads

Homestead as invalid when facts contained in homestead declaration found to be false. Rich v. Ervin (1948) 86 Cal. App. 2d 386, 387-394, 194 P.2d 809

Homestead declaration as invalid for failing to meet statutory requirement of description of property when declaration described property "Lot 104" when in fact homestead was on Lot 204. Esten v. Cheek (9th Cir. 1958) 254 F.2d 667, 669-671

[d] Residence Requirement

Declarant as required to have bona fide intention to make dwelling his/her permanent residence in order for homestead declaration to be valid. Bullis v. Staniford (1918) 178 Cal. 40, 40-46, 171 P. 1064 ; Michelman v. Frye (1965) 238 Cal. App. 2d 698, 704-705, 48 Cal. Rptr. 142 ; *Ellsworth v. Marshall (1961) 196 Cal. App. 2d 471, 474-477, 16 Cal. § 294.101 Declaration of Abandonment of Homestead [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.980]

[1] FORM Declaration of Abandonment of Homestead [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.980]

DECLARATION OF ABANDONMENT OF HOMESTEAD

I/We, _____ [name or names of spouses], hereby declare:

I/We hereby abandon the homestead previously declared by _____ [me/us or state name of original declarant] on _____ [date], on the dwelling and premises located in _____ [city], _____ County, State of California, and more particularly described as follows: _____ [describe property, e.g.,

Lot 48 of Tract 1960, filed for record on November 22, 1963, in Book 35 of maps at page 43.

The property is more commonly known as 118 Avalon Street, San Francisco, California]. The declaration of homestead was recorded on _____ [date], in Book _____, Page _____, of the _____ records of _____ County, California.

[As _____ (_____ (guardian or conservator) of the (person and/or estate) or attorney in fact on behalf or specify ot her authority) of _____ (name of declared homestead owner(s)) and having been authorized to act on behalf of _____ (name) in connection with this declaration of abandonment of homestead by _____ (specify source of authority, e.g., the power of attorney recited and described in an instrument executed on _____ (date of signature of power of attorney rather than date of acknowledgment) and recorded (as Instrument No. _____) in Book 16, Page 09, Official Records of Alameda County, California)].

[Acknowledgment. See § 294.100.]

[2] Use of Form

The foregoing form of a declaration of abandonment of homestead may be used by a declared homestead owner to abandon a previous declaration of homestead. A declared homestead, whether recorded pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 704.910 et seq. or to former Civ. Code §§ 1237-1304, may be abandoned in this manner [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.980(a)]. If the declaration of abandonment is executed and acknowledged by a person authorized to act on behalf of a declared homestead owner, the declaration must contain a statement that the person has authority to act on behalf of the declared homestead owner and the source of the persons authority [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.980(b)]. The declaration of abandonment affects only the declared homestead of the owner named in the declation of abandonment and does not affect the declared homestead of any other person who may have an interest in the same property [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.980(c)]. For further discussion of abandonment of a declared homestead, see § 294.37.

[2] Use of Form

This form of application is for use by a judgment creditor to obtain a court order for sale of a dwelling pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 704.740. A copy should be made for service on the judgment debtor [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.770(b)]. An order for sale must be obtained in order to sell the interest of a natural person in a real property dwelling to enforce a money judgment unless the judgment debtor has only a leasehold estate with an unexpired term of less than two years at the time of the levy on the property [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.740].

[3] Contents of Application

The application must include a statement of whether or not the records of the county tax assessor indicate that there is a current homeowner's exemption under Rev. & Tax. Code § 218 or a disabled veterans's exemption under Rev. & Tax. Code § 205.5 for the person or persons who claimed the exemption (Paragraph 5) [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.760(a)].

The application must also contain a statement, which may be based on information and belief, whether or not the dwelling is a homestead, and if so, the amount of the homestead exemption, and a statement whether or not the records of the county indicate that a homestead declaration was recorded by the judgment debtor and/or his/her spouse relating to the dwelling that is the subject of the application (Paragraph 7) [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.760(b)].

Finally, the application must contain the amount of any liens or encumbrances on the dwelling, the name of each person having a lien or encumbrance on the dwelling, and the address of the person used by the county recorder for the return of the instrument creating his/her lien or encumbrance after recording (Paragraph 8) [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.760(c)].

[4] Time for Making Application

Within 20 days after the judgment creditor has been served with notice that the levying officer has levied on the dwelling, the judgment creditor must apply to the court for an order for sale of the dwelling and file a copy of the application with the levying officer. Failure to timely file the copy of the application for the order for sale will result in the levying officer's release of the dwelling [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.750(a)].

[5] Judgment Rendered in Another County

If the dwelling which is the subject of the application for order for sale is located in a county other than the one in which the judgment was rendered, the judgment creditor must apply to the superior court of the county where the dwelling is located [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.750(b)(1)].

The judgment creditor must also file with the application an abstract of judgment in the form prescribed by Code Civ. Proc. § 674 or, if the judgment was one described under Code Civ. Proc. § 697.320 (for spousal or child support, or against health care provider for periodic payments), a certified copy of the judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.750(b)(2)].

In addition, the judgment creditor must pay the filing fee for a motion provided in Gov. Code § 70617(a) [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.750(b)(3)].

The application must be verified [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.760; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5].

In action to enforce a judgment rendered in county number one, superior court in county number two may rule that the county number one judgment is void as defense to enforcement in county number two. Accordingly, where former client who had received default judgment in one county's superior court instituted new action to collect more than year later in another county's superior court, that was new proceeding pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. §§ 704.750(b), 392(a)(2), and it created forum for attorney the default judgment was entered against to challenge judgment as void. *Levine v. Smith (2006) 145 Cal. [2] Use of Form

The foregoing form of an order to show cause is for use by a judgment creditor in conjunction with a form of application to obtain an order for the sale of a dwelling to enforce a money judgment as set forth in § 294.102. The court must issue such an order to show cause on receiving the application by a judgment creditor for order for sale of a real property dwelling [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.770]. Counsel will either fill in the blanks for the time and place of hearing, or leave them blank, depending on local custom and practice. The original order should be deposited with the clerk when the application is filed.

[3] Service

Copies of the foregoing order to show cause, the application for the order of sale [see § 294.102], and an informative notice of the hearing [see § 294.104], must be served on the judgment debtor at least 30 days before the hearing on the application. The judgment creditor must serve the above-mentioned documents either personally or by mail [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.770(b)(1)]. In addition, the judgment creditor must personally serve a copy of each of the documents on an occupant of the dwelling in question. If there is no occupant present at the time service is attempted, a copy of each document must be posted in a conspicuous place at the dwelling [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.770(b)(2)].

[2] Use of Form

This form of order for the sale of a dwelling is for use by a judgment creditor in conjunction with the application for order for sale of a dwelling set forth in § 294.102 and the order to show cause why the application for the order should not be granted set forth in § 294.103.

The form includes a determination either that the property is not subject to a homestead exemption or as to the amount of the exemption and the market value of the property [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.780(b)]. The form also includes an order that the property be sold in the manner provided by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 701.510-701.680, for use if the dwelling is determined not to be exempt [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.780(b)]. For use if the court determines that the dwelling is exempt, the form includes an order specifying the amount and priority of the proceeds of the sale that is to be distributed to each person having a lien or encumbrance on the dwelling along with the name and address of each person having a lien or encumbrance [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 704.780(b), 704.850]. The foregoing form also includes an order precluding sale of the dwelling when no bid on the dwelling exceeds the amount of the homestead exemption plus any additional amounts necessary to satisfy all liens and encumbrances on the dwelling, or if there is no bid that is 90 percent or more of the fair market value of the dwelling as determined by the court [see Code Civ. Proc. § 704.800]. Subject to Code Civ. Proc. §§ 704.710-704.850, the sale is governed by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 701.510-701.680 [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.780(b)]. For discussion of the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 704.710-704.850 relating to the sale of the dwelling, see §§ 294.53-294.60.

For discussion and forms relating to sales under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 701.510-701.680, see Ch. 254, Executions and Enforcement of Judgments, § 254.40 et seq.

[3] When Judgment Debtor Owns Less than Full Interest

If the judgment debtor owns the dwelling as a joint tenant or tenant in common, or he/she has a leasehold or other interest less than a fee interest, only the interest of the judgment debtor in the dwelling, and not the dwelling may be sold [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.820; see § 294.57].

[4] Costs of Proceeding

The judgment creditor may recover reasonable costs incurred in a proceeding to obtain a court order for the sale of a dwelling. If no bid is re ceived at the court-ordered sale of the homestead that exceeds the aggregate amount of the homestead exemption and any additional amounts necessary to satisfy all liens and encumbrances, however, the judgment creditor will not be entitled to recover any of his/her costs [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.840].

[2] Use of Form

This form is an illustrative reproduction of the declaration for rehearing on homestead exemption approved for use by the Judicial Council [Cal. Judicial Council Form EJ-182; see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1.30 et seq.]. It is for optional use by a judgment creditor to give the judgment debtor notice that a default order has been entered against the debtor for the sale of a dwelling in which the debtor has an interest. The form is also for use by the judgment debtor as a declaration to obtain a rehearing on the judgment creditor's application for the order.

This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

The notice and declaration must accompany a copy of the court order of sale as set forth in § 294.105 when the order was granted by default at a hearing in which neither the judgment debtor, his/her spouse, nor the attorney for either of them appeared [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.790(a)]. The judgment creditor must personally or by mail serve a copy of the order [see § 294.105] and the foregoing form of notice to the judgment debtor or spouse within 10 days after the date of the order of sale. The judgment creditor must also personally serve on the occupant of the dwelling, or if there is no occupant present at the time service is attempted, must post a copy of the order and notice in a conspicuous place at the dwelling [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.790(b)].

For a fillable version of this form in electronic format, see LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexis.com/forms.

[3] Second Hearing

Within 10 days after service of the notice of the order, the judgment debtor or spouse may file with the levying officer the foregoing form of declaration that absence of the judgment debtor and his/her spouse or of the attorney of either of them from the hearing, was due to mistake, inadvertance, surprise, or excusable neglect, and that the judgment debtor or spouse wishes to assert the homestead exemption. In that event, the levying officer must transmit the declaration forthwith to the court. On receipt of the declaration, the court must set a time and place for hearing to determine whether the order of the court should be modified. The time set for the second hearing must be no later than 20 days after receipt of the declaration [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.790(d)].

[2] Use of Form

This notice of motion is for use by a judgment creditor to obtain a court order granting permission to the levying officer to accept the highest bid that exceeds the amount of the homestead exemption plus any additional amount necessary to satisfy all liens and encumbrances that may be on the affected property. It is for use when the sale cannot be otherwise completed because no bid was received that exceeded 90 percent of the fair market value of the dwelling determined by the court in the order for sale pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 704.780 [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.800(b)]. Counsel should consult local court practice to determine whether the motion must be a noticed motion or may be made ex parte.

[3] Decisions

"All liens and encumbrances," for purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 704.800(a), includes all liens senior to the lien of the executing judgment creditor, but does not include the judgment creditor's lien. Rourke v. Troy (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 880, 883-886, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 660

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

§ 295.11 Hospital Defined

As used in this chapter, the term "hospital" refers primarily to:

- A "general acute care hospital," as defined in Health & Safety Code § 1250(a) in conjunction with statutes requiring and governing the licensing of health facilities [Health & Safety Code §§ 1250-1339.50]:

A health facility having a duly constituted governing body with overall administrative and professional responsibility and an organized medical staff that provides 24-hour inpatient care, including the following basic services: medical, nursing, surgical, anesthesia, laboratory, radiology, pharmacy, and dietary services. A general acute care hospital may include more than one physical plant maintained and operated on separate premises as provided in Health & Safety Code § 1250.8.

- A "special hospital," as defined in Health & Safety Code § 1250(f):

A health facility having a duly constituted governing body with overall administrative and professional responsibility and an organized medical or dental staff that provides inpatient or outpatient care in dentistry or maternity.

As used in this chapter, the term "hospital" refers only peripherally to an "acute psychiatric hospital," as defined in Health & Safety Code § 1250(b):

A health facility having a duly constituted governing body with overall administrative and professional responsibility and an organized medical staff that provides 24-hour inpatient care for mentally disordered, incompetent, or other patients referred to in Division 5 (commencing with Section 5000) or Division 6 (commencing with Section 6000) of the Welfare and Institutions Code, including the following basic services: medical, nursing, rehabilitative, pharmacy, and dietary services.

For full discussion and forms relating to acute psychiatric hospitals and the treatment and commitment of mentally disordered persons, see Ch. 304, Insane and Other Incompetent Persons .

[1] Operation by Public Entity or Private Party

Under its police power, the state may form and operate hospitals [see Jardine v. City of Pasadena (1926) 199 Cal. 64, 68, 248 P. 225 (police power of city to maintain hospital, subject to general laws, as broad as that possessed by legislature)] and the state may authorize the formation and operation of hospitals by political subdivisions of the state [Paso Robles War Mem'l Hosp. Dist. v. Negley (1946) 29 Cal. 2d 203, 204-205, 173 P.2d 813] . Accordingly, the state maintains hospitals for the mentally disordered [Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 7200-7375], hospitals for the mentally retarded [Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 7500-7518], and neuropsychiatric institutes [Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 7600-7700]. The state has provided for the maintenance of hospitals by cities [Gov. Code §§ 37650-37660], by counties [Health & Safety Code §§ 1440-1475], and by local hospital districts [Health & Safety Code §§ 32000-32492].

Private individuals, corporations, partnerships, and associations may also form and operate hospitals, subject to reasonable regulation by the state within the scope of its police power [Ex parte Whitwell (1893) 98 Cal. 73, 78-80, 32 P. 870 ; see Health & Safety Code §§ 19, 1265]. Under Health & Safety Code § 32500 et seq., a hospital may be founded, endowed, and maintained by a trustee pursuant to a written grant of property. See generally Ch. 61, Associations and Clubs , Ch. 160, Corporations: Capacity , and Ch. 400, Partnerships: Governing Statutes , through Ch. 406, Partnerships: Dissolution ; see also California Legal Forms, vols. 1-4, Business and Nonprofit Organizations (Matthew Bender).

[2] Licensing

Since any facility, place, or building which is organized, maintained, and operated for the diagnosis, care, and treatment of mental or physical human illness may not be operated without a license issued by the Department of Health, both public and private hospitals must comply with the licensing requirements and procedures contained in Health & Safety Code § 1250 et seq. [Health & Safety Code §§ 1250, 1253, 1298]. The only institutions exempted from the operation of these statutes are (1) facilities for the care and treatment of the sick that are conducted by and for adherents of any recognized religious group depending on prayer or spiritual means for healing in the practice of its religion, (2) hotels or similar places that furnish only board and room to their guests, and (3) institutions supplying board and room only, provided that the Department of Health determines that no resident requires any element of medical care, and any community care facility as defined in Health and Safety Code § 1502 [Health & Safety Code § 1270].

A license to operate a hospital is issued by the Department of Health after the person or entity wishing the license files a verified application accompanied by the required fee, and the department determines that the applicant has complied with all applicable statutes and regulations [Health & Safety Code §§ 1265, 1266, 1268], including Health & Safety Code § 1265.8 (compliance with the requirements of Health & Safety Code § 129675 et seq. for hospital building construction), Health & Safety Code § 1318 (filing of surety bond conditioned on the health facility's honest handling of patients' money), Health & Safety Code § 1253.2 (notice requirements for constructing or converting nursing facility or intermediate care facility), and Health & Safety Code §§ 1276 through 1277 (compliance with State Building Standards Code and other state department regulations prescribing standards for the hospital's physical plant, services, and staffing with duly qualified licensed personnel). The application may be denied if the applicant or an officer, a diretor, the person in charge, or a shareholder with a beneficial interest exceeding 10 percent has been convicted of a crime that is substantially related to the qualifications or duties of the applicant, or to the functions of the business for which the license is to be issued [Health & Safety Code §§ 1265.1, 1265.2].

If the application is denied, the department must give immediate written notice of the denial to the applicant, who may petition the department for a hearing under Gov. Code § 11500 et seq. within 20 days after the department mails the notice [Health & Safety Code § 1269; see Ch. 471B, Licensing by Public Agencies , and Ch. 473, Public Agency Adjudication , through Ch. 473H, Alternative Procedures for Agency Decisions].

Once issued, a license to operate a hospital is effective for one year or, in the case of a hospital that is found not to have been in violation of any statutory or regulatory requirements during the preceding licensing period, two years [Health & Safety Code § 1267]. In the case of a health facility specified in Health & Safety Code § 1250(a) or (b) (acute care and acute psychiatric hospitals, respectively), however, the license may be issued for three years if the facility is found to have been in substantial compliance with statutory requirements, regulations, or standards during the preceding license period [Health & Safety Code § 1267]. The license may be suspended or revoked pursuant to the procedures in Gov. Code § 11500 et seq. for violations of statutory or regulatory requirements, for aiding, abetting, or permitting such violations, or for conduct in operating the licensed facility which is inimical to the public health, morals, welfare, or safety [Health & Safety Code § 1294; see Ch. 471B, Licensing by Public Agencies]. A license may also be revoked on the conviction of the licensee, or of an officer, a director, the person in charge, or a 10 percent or more shareholder of the licensee, for a crime that is substantially related to the qualifications or duties of the licensee, or to functions of the business for which the license was issued [Health & Safety Code § 1294; see Health & Safety Code §§ 1265.1(b), 1265.2]. Interference with the enforcement of the provisions of Health & Safety Code §§ 1250-1339.50 is punishable as a misdemeanor [see Health & Safety Code § 1293.2].

To secure compliance with, or to prevent violation of, the licensing statutes and regulations, the department may, upon proper identification, enter and inspect any building or premises at any reasonable time [Health & Safety Code § 1278]. In addition, the department must inspect licensed facilities periodically [Health & Safety Code § 1279] and, when necessary, may contract for the performance of such inspections by outside personnel such as the California Medical Association Committee on Medical Staff Surveys [Health & Safety Code § 1282]. The department must accept, consider, and resolve written appeals by a licensee or health facility administrator of findings made on the inspection of a health facility [Health & Safety Code § 1280.5]. Violations of the licensing statutes and regulations are subject to criminal penalty [Health & Safety Code § 1290] or injunction [Health & Safety Code § 1291].

[3] Provisional Licensing

Except for general acute care hospitals and acute psychiatric hospitals, if a health facility or applicant for a license has not been previously licensed pursuant to Health & Safety Code §§ 1250-1339.50, the state department may only provisionally license the facility pursuant to Health & Safety Code § 1437, which provides that the provisional license shall terminate six months from the date of issuance. Within 30 days of the termination of the provisional license, the state department must give the facility a full and complete inspection, and if the facility meets all applicable requirements for licensure, a regular license must be issued. If the health facility does not meet the licensure requirements but has made substantial progress towards meeting them, as determined by the state department, the initial provisional license must be renewed for six months. If the state department determines that there has not been substantial progress towards meeting licensure requirements at the time of the first full inspection, or, if the department determines on its inspection made within 30 days of the termination of a renewed provisional license that there is lack of full compliance with the requirements, no further license may be issued. An applicant for a provisional license to operate a health facility may contest denial of provisional licensing by filing a statement of issues, as provided in Gov. Code § 11504, and the proceedings to review the denial will be conducted pursuant to Gov. Code § 11500 et seq. The department must not apply less stringent criteria when granting a provisonal license than it applies when granting a permanent license [Health & Safety Code § 1437].

The state department may issue to a health facility, other than an acute care hospital or an acute psychiatric hospital, a provisional license pursuant to Health & Safety Code § 1268.5, which provides that the provisional license shall expire not later than six months after the date of issuance, or at such earlier time as determined by the state department at the time of issuance, and may not be renewed [Health & Safety Code § 1268.5(a), (b)]. The department may issue the provisional license if [Health & Safety Code § 1268.5(a)]:

- The facility and the applicant substantially meet the standards specified by Health & Safety Code §§ 1250-1339.50, as well as any applicable regulations;

- No violations of those provisions or regulations exists in the facility which jeopardizes the health or safety of patients; and

- The applicant has adopted a plan for correction of any existing violations which is satisfactory to the department.

The state department cannot apply less stringent criteria when granting a provisonal license than it applies when granting a permanent license [Health & Safety Code § 1268.5(c) (the stated objective of this provision is to provide continuity of Medi-Cal reimbursement when ownership of a skilled nursing or intermediate care facility is transferred)].

At the end of the provisional license period, the state department must assess the facility's full compliance with licensure requirements. The state department may extend a provisional license for no more than six months from the time of the extension for one of the following purposes [Health & Safety Code § 1268.5(b)]:

- Requiring the facility's full compliance with a plan of correction, which includes time frames, as specified by the state department.

- Allowing the provisional licensee to comply with Health & Safety Code § 1336.2, governing the requirements for the transfer of patients due to a change in licensing or operational status.

- Providing for a change of ownership.

- Instituting a receivership of the facility.

The length of the extension period is determined by the state department at the time the extension is issued [Health & Safety Code § 1268.5(b)].

[4] Internal Hospital Organization

If a licensed hospital has five or more physicians and surgeons on its medical staff, its board of directors is required to establish rules to govern the operation of the hospital, including provisions for the following:

- The organization of physicians and surgeons permitted to practice in the hospital into a formal medical staff with appropriate officers and bylaws and staff appointments on an annual or biennial basis.

- The restriction of membership on the medical staff to physicians, surgeons, and other licensed practitioners who are competent in their respective fields, worthy in character, and professionally ethical.

- The self-government of the medical staff with respect to professional work performed in the hospital and periodic meetings of the medical staff to review and analyze their clinical experience.

- The maintenance of adequate and accurate medical records for all patients [Bus. & Prof. Code § 2392.5].

If a licensed hospital has less than five physicians and surgeons on its medical staff, the hospital's board of directors is required to establish rules to govern the operation of the hospital, including provisions for the following:

- The restriction of membership on the medical staff to physicians, surgeons, and other licensed practitioners who are competent in their respective fields, worthy in character, and professionally ethical.

- The maintenance of adequate and accurate medical records for all patients [Bus. & Prof. Code § 2392.6].

The Division of Medical Quality or the Senior Assistant Attorney General of the Health Care Quality Enforcement Section may inspect a licensed hospital or require written reports from the hospital to determine if the hospital is complying with the requirements of Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 2392.5 and 2392.6 [Bus. & Prof. Code § 2226]. For provisions requiring a licensed hospital to report to the Department of Health when the staff privileges of a licensed practitioner are denied, revoked, or suspended, and to request such reports prior to granting or renewing staff privileges, see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 805 and 805.5. For reports of medical malpractice judgments that an insurer or a licensed hospital must make to the Department of Health, see Health & Safety Code §§ 1305-1308.

The decision of a hospital board to exclude a medical professional from practice in the hospital is subject to judicial review if the medical professional complains. The appropriate form of complaint is a petition for a writ of mandate [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1085; for discussion of proceeding for writ and appropriate forms, see Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition], citing either or both of the following grounds for relief:

- The hospital board did not follow basically fair procedure [see Pinsker v. Pacific Coast Soc'y of Orthodontists (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 541, 549-557, 116 Cal. Rptr. 245, 526 P.2d 253] .

- The board's findings are not supported by evidence.

Generally, the court's consideration of the evidentiary issue is limited to determining whether or not the findings are supported by substantial evidence. However, if the medical professional alleges discrimination in violation of Health & Safety Code § 1316 (prohibiting discrimination on the basis of certain distinctions between medical degrees) and makes a preliminary showing of substantial evidence in support of the allegation, the courtmay exercise its independent judgment on the evidence with respect to the allegation, that is, the court may determine whether or not the findings of the board are supported by the weight of the evidence [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(d)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

§ 295.13 Tort Liability

[1] Medical Malpractice Defined

"Medical malpractice" is a term that encompasses all acts in the provision of medical services and care that may give rise to tort liability. It has been described as a departure from the proper standards of medical practice [Waters v. Bourhis (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 424, 433-434 n. 8, 220 Cal. Rptr. 666, 709 P.2d 469] . As such, it is a broader term than professional negligence [see [2], below]. Medical malpractice may arise both from medical services that were negligently rendered (professional negligence) and from those that were unnecessary or unauthorized, the traditional grounds for a battery cause of action against a health care provider [Noble v. Superior Court (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 1189, 1192-1193, 237 Cal. Rptr. 38 ; Baker v. Sadick (1984) 162 Cal. App. 3d 618, 622-627, 208 Cal. Rptr. 676] . The difference between the two terms may be important in determining which procedures under MICRA must be followed in a given action [see, e.g., Herrera v. Superior Court (1984) 158 Cal. App. 3d 255, 259-263, 204 Cal. Rptr. 553 (arbitration requirements of MICRA apply to all medical malpractice causes of action including intentional torts, whereas notice of intention and statute of limitations provisions apply only to professional negligence)].

[2] Professional Negligence Under MICRA

The Medical Injury Compensation Reform Act of 1975 (MICRA) was passed by the legislature in response to a perceived statewide crisis in the availability and cost of medical malpractice insurance [see Stats. 1975, chs. 1, 2, 2d Ex. Sess.]. MICRA enacted or amended several statutes governing procedural aspects of actions for professional negligence against health care providers, including limitations on attorney's fees [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 6146], evidence of collateral sources [see Civ. Code § 3333.1], limitations on recovery of damages for noneconomic losses [see Civ. Code § 3333.2], the statute of limitations [see Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5], a special requirement of a 90-day notice period before commencement of the action [see Code Civ. Proc. § 364], allowance of periodic payments of future damages [see Code Civ. Proc. § 667.7], and rules regarding the arbitration of medical malpractice claims [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1295]. These particular provisions of MICRA are considered in detail in Ch. 415, Physicians: Medical Malpractice.

"Health care providers" within MICRA include health facilities that are licensed under Division 2 of the Health and Safety Code, which includelicensed hospitals [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6146(c)(2); Civ. Code §§ 3333.1(c)(1), 3333.2(c)(1); Code Civ. Proc. §§ 340.5(1), 364(f)(1), 667.7(e)(3), 1295(g)(1)].

"Professional negligence" as used in MICRA means negligent acts or omissions in the rendering of professional services that are the proximate cause of a personal injury or wrongful death. The services must be within the scope of services for which the provider is licensed and not within any restriction imposed by the licensing agency or licensed hospital [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6146(c)(3); Civ. Code §§ 3333.1(c)(2), 3333.2(c)(2); Code Civ. Proc. §§ 340.5(2), 364(f)(2), 667.7(e)(3), 1295(g)(2)]. For these purposes, "personal injury" covers only injury that impairs the well-being or mental or physical health of the plaintiff, and the term does not cover purely economic injury [Vazquez de Mercado v. Superior Court (2007) 148 Cal. App. 4th 711, 715-716, 55 Cal. Rptr. 3d 889] .

"Professional negligence" as it applies to the activities of a hospital has been broadly construed by the courts. It encompasses the duty to recognize the condition of patients under its care and to take appropriate measures for their safety. It encompasses the duty of a hospital to provide a safe environment within which diagnosis, treatment, and recovery can be carried out. Thus, if an unsafe condition on the hospital's premises causes injury to a patient as a result of the hospital's negligence, there is a breach of the hospital's duty as a hospital, which constitutes professional negligence [Murillo v. Good Samaritan Hosp. (1979) 99 Cal. App. 3d 50, 56-57, 160 Cal. Rptr. 33 , disapproved on other grounds, Flowers v. Torrance Memorial Hosp. Medical Center (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 992 , (involving failure to raise patient's bed rail at night, and criticizing Gopaul v. Herrick Memorial Hosp. (1974) 38 Cal. App. 3d 1002, 113 Cal. Rptr. 811 , disapproved on other grounds, Flowers v. Torrance Memorial Hosp. Medical Center (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 992 , 142 a pre-MICRA case that held that the negligent act of allowing a patient to fall off of a gurney was ordinary rather than professional negligence); see Taylor v. U.S. (9th Cir. 1987) 821 F.2d 1428, 1432 (following Murrillo in holding that disconnection of ventilator from patient is professional negligence of hospital regardless of whether caused by incorrect decision of physician or bump of janitor's broom); see also Williams v. Superior Court (1994) 30 Cal. App. 4th 318, 324, 36 Cal. Rptr. 2d 112 (failure of hospital to warn non-employee phlebotomist of danger to her from patient was governed by MICRA professional negligence standards and was not question of ordinary negligence)]. A tort claim based on failure to supervise or protect the safety of a patient in a hospital or other health care facility is an action for professional negligence within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5(2), and not an action for ordinary negligence [Bellamy v. Appellate Department (1996) 50 Cal. App. 4th 797, 809, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 894 (following Murillo)]. Therefore, it is probable that all injuries to patients that arise from negligent acts of hospital personnel on the premises constitute professional rather than ordinary negligence.

Although the distinction between professional and ordinary negligence is relevant for purposes of determining the applicability of MICRA, it has no bearing on the substantive standard of conduct governing a hospital's actions. A hospital's medical expertise and skill is merely a factor that affects the standard of care governing a negligence action, and a single set of facts therefore cannot give rise to separate and distinct claims for ordinary and professional negligence [Flowers v. Torrance Memorial Hosp. Medical Center (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 992, 998, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 685, 884 P.2d 142] .

Depending on the cause of action being asserted and the history and purpose of the particular statutory provision being applied, MICRA may not be applicable to a cause of action alleging an intentional tort against a health care provider [see Unruh-Haxton v. Regents of University of California (2008) 162 Cal. App. 4th 343, 353, 76 Cal. Rptr. 3d 146]. In one case, for example, plaintiffs brought suit after doctors in a fertility clinic allegedly stole human genetic materials from plaintiffs, such as eggs that had been frozen for future use, and sold the materials without authorization. The court of appeal held that the statute of limitations provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5, enacted as part of MICRA, did not apply to plaintiffs' causes of action alleging the intentional torts of fraud, intentional infliction of emotional distress, and conversion. The court, noting that the Legislature had specifically limited application of Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5 to occasions of "professional negligence," concluded that the intentional and malicious conduct alleged by plaintiffs was qualitatively different from mere negligence [Unruh-Haxton v. Regents of University of California (2008) 162 Cal. App. 4th 343, 355-356, 76 Cal. Rptr. 3d 146].

For a form of complaint for damages for personal injuries based on professional negligence, see § 295.51.

[3] For Defective Equipment and Supplies

A hospital is liable for injuries of its patients resulting from the hospital's breach of its duty to exercise ordinary care in furnishing equipment and supplies suitable for their intended use and commensurate with the requirements of patients' cases [Welsh v. Mercy Hosp. (1944) 65 Cal. App. 2d 473, 478-479, 151 P.2d 17 ; see Carrasco v. Bankoff (1963) 220 Cal. App. 2d 230, 33 Cal. Rptr. 673 (hospital's liability based partially on failure of physician employed by hospital to transfer patient to another hospital having equipment required for proper treatment of patient); see also 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 70701(a)(4) (duty of licensed hospital's governing body to provide appropriate physical resources and personnel required by patients)].

A hospital is not required to anticipate the misuse of hospital supplies by trained personnel and it is not liable for injuries of patients sustained when physicians or nurses employed by the patients use hospital supplies that they should know are unfit for treatment of patients [Payne v. Santa Barbara Cottage Hosp. (1934) 2 Cal. App. 2d 270, 271, 273, 37 P.2d 1061] . Nor is a hospital liable for patients' injuries on the basis of a failure to maintain its equipment in good working order if no evidence establishes a causal connection between the injuries and equipment malfunctions [Huffman v. Lindquist (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 465, 480, 234 P.2d 34] .

Furthermore, a hospital cannot be held responsible under a theory of strict liability in tort or breach of warranty for defective products that it supplies and that cause injury to patients during treatment. As with persons who sell their services for the guidance of others in economic, financial, and personal affairs, a hospital is burdened only with a duty of reasonable performance under the circumstances; the basis of the hospital's liability, if any, for defective products supplied in the course of the hospital's primary function of providing medical services is limited to negligence or intentional misconduct [Shepard v. Alexian Brothers Hosp. (1973) 33 Cal. App. 3d 606, 613-614, 109 Cal. Rptr. 132 (blood transfusion as service rather than sale under Health & Safety Code § 1606); Silverhart v. Mount Zion Hospital (1971) 20 Cal. App. 3d 1022, 1028, 98 Cal. Rptr. 187 (hospital as consumer rather than seller of surgical needle which broke during operation); see also San Diego Hosp. Assn. v. Superior Court (1994)30 Cal. App. 4th 8, 16-17 (hospital as not strictly liable to staff physician for defective laser that injured doctor while performing surgery)]. For an allegation of defective equipment and supplies to use in a complaint, see § 295.57.

[4] For Inadequate Maintenance of Premises

A hospital may be liable as an occupier of property for failure to maintain the hospital premises in a safe condition [Owens v. White Memorial Hosp. (1956) 138 Cal. App. 2d 634, 639, 292 P.2d 288 (hospital liable for injury to patient's visitor by defective bed rail); for further discussion, see Ch. 421, Premises Liability ,].

If a hospital has patients who are known to have diminished mental capacities, it must do more to protect such patients than expected of an ordinary landowner. For example, an alcoholic rehabilitation hospital must safeguard its patients from conditions on the premises, including fixtures, that by reason of the patients' particular incapacities may become dangerous to their life or health [Emerick v. Raleigh Hills Hospital (1982) 133 Cal. App. 3d 575, 581-582, 184 Cal. Rptr. 92] . For further discussion of the scope of a hospital's duty to attend adequately to its patients, see [5][b], below. For an allegation of the hospital's failure to protect disabled patient from conditions on premises, see § 295.55.

[5] For Inadequate Attendance of Patients

[a] Duty

If a hospital undertakes to care for a person as a patient while the person is receiving medical treatment in its facilities, the hospital becomes obligated, under general tort principles or by virtue of an express or implied contract, to exercise reasonable care under the circumstances for the person's protection [Guilliams v. Hollywood Hosp. (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 97, 99, 114 P.2d 1 ; Goff v. Doctors General Hosp. (1958) 166 Cal. App. 2d 314, 318, 333 P.2d 29] . The hospital is held to have breached this obligation when it carelessly fails to furnish a patient with adequate services and care in accord with its undertaking [Guilliams v. Hollywood Hosp. (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 97, 103, 114 P.2d 1] , when it fails to exercise due care in determining the qualifications of its employees for the duties to which they are assigned [England v. Hospital of Good Samaritan (1936) 16 Cal. App. 2d 640, 644, 61 P.2d 48] , or when the negligence of its employees in caring for a patient within the scope of their employment is imputed to the hospital under the doctrine of respondeat superior [Sherman v. Hartman (1955) 137 Cal. App. 2d 589, 600-601, 290 P.2d 894] . A patient may recover damages from a hospital in an action in tort for ordinary negligence [Harding v. Liberty Hosp. Corp. (1918) 177 Cal. 520, 522-524, 171 P. 98 (no cause of action for breach of contract); see Meier v. Ross General Hosp. (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 420, 433, 71 Cal. Rptr. 903, 445 P.2d 519 (hospital employee's conduct which involved no aspect of medical treatment as ordinary negligence rather than medical malpractice)] if the patient has sustained injuries as a proximate result of a breach by the hospital of its duty of protection [Morand v. Seaside Memorial Hosp. (1953) 121 Cal. App. 2d 745, 746, 264 P.2d 96 (nonliability of hospital for injuries of patient which were not proximately caused by hospital employee's negligence in treating patient)]. However, a hospital's medical expertise and skill is merely a factor that affects the standard of care governing a negligence action; thus, a single set of facts cannot give rise to separate and distinct claims for ordinary and professional negligence [Flowers v. Torrance Memorial Hospital Medical Center (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 992, 998, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 685, 884 P.2d 142] .

[b] Scope of Duty

The amount of care and diligence that a hospital is required to exercise for the safety of a patient is that reasonably required by the known condition of the patient in proportion to the capacity of the patient to care for himself or herself [Wood v. Samaritan Institution (1945) 26 Cal. 2d 847, 851, 161 P.2d 556 ; Gin Non Louie v. Chinese Hosp. Ass'n (1967) 249 Cal. App. 2d 774, 789, 57 Cal. Rptr. 906] . Thus, a hospital, through its personnel, is responsible for observing and knowing a patient's condition [Rice v. California Lutheran Hosp. (1945) 27 Cal. 2d 296, 302, 163 P.2d 860 (duty to know patient's confused state of mind and weakened physical condition); for allegation of failure to safeguard disabled or immature patient, see § 295.54; Valentin v. La Societe Francaise (1946) 76 Cal. App. 2d 1, 6, 9, 172 P.2d 359 (duty to observe patient during recovery from operation); for allegation of inadequate attendance to patient's needs, see § 295.51], for following the orders of physicians in caring for patients and accurately maintaining patients' medical charts [Cline v. Lund (1973) 31 Cal. App. 3d 755, 763, 107 Cal. Rptr. 629 ; see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 2392.5 and 2392.6 (requirement that licensed hospital maintain adequate and accurate medical records for patients); for allegation for failure to follow physician's orders for patient's care, see § 295.52; for allegation of failure to maintain medical records, see § 295.56], and for taking such measures as reasonably appear necessary to guard against foreseeable risks of harm [Wood v. Samaritan Institution (1945) 26 Cal. 2d 847, 852, 161 P.2d 556 (duty to take measures to preclude mentally disturbed patient from harming himself); for a complaint alleging failure to protect mental patient from self-inflicted harm, see § 295.58; Goff v. Doctors General Hospital (1958) 166 Cal. App. 2d 314, 318-319, 333 P.2d 29 (patient's worsening condition requiring nurses to inform patient's physician or, in absence of prompt and adequate treatment by physician, hospit al administrator); for allegation of failure to notify physician of patient's worsening condition, see § 295.56; Thomas v. Seaside Memorial Hosp. (1947) 80 Cal. App. 2d 841, 848, 183 P.2d 288 (duty to provide continuous observation of infant by skilled nurse in view of infant's inability to complain of symptoms); forcomplaint by minor and parents against hospital based on professional negligence, see § 295.60]. However, a hospital is not an insurer of a patient's safety and is not obligated to protect a patient against risks that a reasonable person under the circumstances would not have anticipated [McDonald v. Foster Memorial Hosp. (1959) 170 Cal. App. 2d 85, 95-97, 338 P.2d 607 , disaproved on other grounds, Siverson v. Weber (1962) 57 Cal. 2d 834, 22 Cal. Rptr. 337, 372 P.2d 97 ; Valentin v. La Societe Francaise (1946) 76 Cal. App. 2d 1, 6, 9, 172 P.2d 359 (question of fact for the jury whether hospital exercised reasonable care under circumstances)]. Moreover, the duty to take measures to prevent a patient's commission of suicide does not extend beyond the patient's unconditional release [Katona v. County of Los Angeles (1985) 172 Cal. App. 3d 53, 59, 218 Cal. Rptr. 19] .

[c] Measured by Community Standard

A hospital's duty to protect patients is also measured by the degree of care, skill, and diligence generally used by hospitals in the community under similar circumstances and required by the express or implied contract of the hospital's undertaking [Wood v. Samaritan Institution (1945) 26 Cal. 2d 847, 851, 161 P.2d 556] to the extent that the customary practice of hospitals in the community is not itself negligent [Leonard v. Watsonville Community Hosp. (1956) 47 Cal. 2d 509, 519-520, 305 P.2d 36] or does not violate an applicable statute or regulation [McDonald v. Foster Memorial Hospital (1959) 170 Cal. App. 2d 85, 93, 338 P.2d 607 , disapproved on other grounds, Siverson v. Weber (1962) 57 Cal. 2d 834].

[6] Effect of Violation of Statute

[a] In General

Statutes, ordinances, and regulations also play a role in establishing the standard of care owed by a hospital to its patients. Under Evid. Code § 669, which codifies common law principles, the negligence of a hospital with respect to a patient is presumed if the hospital's violation of a statute, ordinance, or regulation promulgated by a public entity proximately results in the patient's injury or death, the patient is a member of a class of persons for whose protection the statute, ordinance, or regulation was adopted, and the patient's injury or death was the type of harm that the statute, ordinance, or regulation was designed to prevent [see Cade v. Mid-City Hosp. Corp. (1975) 45 Cal. App. 3d 589, 598, 119 Cal. Rptr. 571 (negligence per se instruction properly refused when regulation governing administration of medication by hospital employees was not designed to protect against patient's kind of injury); see also Derrick v. Ontario Community Hosp. (1975) 47 Cal. App. 3d 145, 152, 120 Cal. Rptr. 566 (hospital's potential liability to nonpatient for failure to report patient's communicable disease to local health officer in violation of Health & Safety Code § 120245)]. In this connection, see the Department of Health regulations contained in 22 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 70001-71667, prescribing standards for the facilities, equipment, and staffing of licensed hospitals.

[b] Failure to Provide Emergency Services

A licensed health care facility that maintains and operates an emergency department to provide emergency services to the public must provide emergency services and care to any person who requests the services or care, or for whom the services or care is requested, for any condition in which the person is in danger of loss of life, serious injury, or illness. The requirement applies if the facility has appropriate facilities and qualified personnel available to provide the services or care [Health & Safety Code § 1317(a)]. Emergency care or services must be rendered without first questioning the patient or any other person as to his or her ability to pay. However, the patient, or his or her legally responsible relative or guardian, must execute an agreement to pay or otherwise supply insurance or credit information promptly after the services are rendered [Health & Safety Code § 1317(d)].

The provision of emergency services and care may not be based on or affected by the person's ethnicity, citizenship, age, preexisting medical condition, insurance status, economic status, or ability to pay for medical services, or any other characteristic listed or defined in Civ. Code § 51(b) or (e), except to the extent that a circumstance such as age, sex, preexisting medical condition, or physical or mental disability is medically significant to the provision of appropriate medical care to the patient [Health & Safety Code § 1317(b)].

A health care facility and its employees are not liable in any action arising out of a refusal to render emergency services or care if the refusal is based on the determination, exercising reasonable care, that the person is not suffering from an emergency medical condition, or that the health facility does not have the appropriate facilities or qualified personnel available to render the services [Health & Safety Code § 1317(c)]. If a health care facility does not maintain an emergency department, its employees must nevertheless exercise reasonable care to determine whether an emergency exists. They must direct the person seeking emergency treatment to a nearby facility that can render the needed services, and must assist the person in obtaining the services, including transportation services, in every way reasonable under the circumstances [Health & Safety Code § 1317(e)]. The need for continuing dialysis treatment for chronic end stage renal disease is not emergency condition so as to require mandated emergency service under section 1317 [Payton v. Weaver (1982) 131 Cal. App. 3d 38, 45-47, 182 Cal. Rptr. 225] .

For a form of allegations that may be included in a complaint for personal injury or wrongful death due to a failure to provide emergency services, see § 295.62.

[c] Transfer for Nonmedical Reasons

A hospital may not transfer a person who needs emergency services and care to another hospital for any nonmedical reason, such as the person's inability to pay for any emergency service or care, unless each of the following conditions are met:

- The person must have been examined and evaluated by a physician and surgeon, including any necessary consultation prior to transfer.

- The person must have been provided with emergency services and care so that it can be determined, within reasonable medical probability, that the transfer or delay caused by the transfer will not create a medical hazard to the person.

- A physician and surgeon at the transferring hospital must have notified the receiving hospital, obtained consent to the transfer by a physician and surgeon at the receiving hospital, and obtained confirmation by the receiving hospital that the person meets the hospital's admissions criteria relating to appropriate bed, personnel, and equipment necessary to treat the person.

- The transferring hospital must have provided for the appropriate personnel and equipment that a reasonable and prudent physician and surgeon in the same or similar locality exercising ordinary care would use to effect the transfer.

- All the person's pertinent medical records and copies of all the appropriate diagnostic test results that are reasonably available must have been transferred with the person.

- The records that are transferred with the person must have included a "Transfer Summary" signed by the transferring physician and surgeon that contains relevant transfer information, including at least the following: the patient's name, address, sex, race, age, insurance status, and medical condition; the name and address of the transferring physician and surgeon or emergency department personnel authorizing the transfer; the time and date that the person was first presented at the transferring hospital; the name of the physician and surgeon at the receiving hospital consenting to the transfer and the time and date of the consent; the time and date of the transfer; the reason for the transfer; and the declaration of the signor that the signor is assured, within reasonable medical probability, that the transfer creates no medical hazard to the patient.

- The transfer conforms with regulations that prescribe minimum protocols for patient transfers [Health & Safety Code § 1317.2(a)-(g)].

The above requirements do not apply to a transfer of a patient for medical reasons or to a transfer or discharge of a patient if the patient or his or her representative requests it and gives informed consent for it against medical advice [Health & Safety Code § 1317.2(h), (i)].

A violation of the limitations on patient transfer may result in the imposition of a fine, or revocation or suspension of the hospital's license [see Health & Safety Code § 1317.6]. Also, any person who suffers personal harm as a result of an improper transfer for nonmedical reasons may recover damages, reasonable attorney's fees, and other appropriate relief in a civil action against the transferring hospital [Health & Safety Code § 1317.6(j)]. Whether such an action is separate from an action for professional negligence under MICRA, so that MICRA requirements would not apply, is not entirely resolved [see [2], above].

However, the cap on noneconomic damages provided in MICRA by Civ. Code § 3333.2 does apply to a claim for failure to provide stabilizing treatment brought under an analogous federal statute, which, as discussed in [d], below, is designed generally to prevent hospitals that have entered into Medicare provider agreements from inappropriately transferring or refusing to treat patients requiring emergency medical treatment [Barris v. County of Los Angeles (1999) 20 Cal. 4th 101, 109, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 145, 972 P.2d 966 ; see 42 U.S.C.S. § 1395dd]. In the case so holding, the California Supreme Court's conclusion that these claims are "based on professional negligence," and therefore subject to the provisions of Civ. Code § 3333.2, would seem equally applicable to actions brought under the state statutes, at least if the state claims are also based on the failure to provide stabilizing treatment prior to transfer [see Barris v. County of Los Angeles (1999) 20 Cal. 4th 101, 110, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 145, 972 P.2d 966] .

For a form of allegations that may be included in a complaint for personal injury or wrongful death due to an improper transfer for nonmedical reasons, see § 295.63.

[d] Emergency Medical Treatment and Active Labor Act

The federal Emergency Medical Treatment and Active Labor Act (42 U.S.C.S. § 1395dd), which was signed into law as part of the Consolidated Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1985 (COBRA), also provides an enforcement mechanism to deter the practice of those hospitals which, despite being capable of providing the needed medical care, send patients to other facilities or turn patients away because the patients are unable to pay [see Reid v. Indianapolis Osteopathic Medical Hosp. (S.D. Ind. 1989) 709 F. Supp. 853, 853-854] .

The Act generally provides that if any individual, whether or not that person is eligible for Medicare benefits, comes to a hospital and the hospital determines that the individual has an emergency medical condition or is in active labor, the hospital must provide either further medical examination and treatment as may be required to stabilize the condition or treatment for the labor, or provide a transfer in accordance with the restrictions under the Act [see 42 U.S.C.S. § 1395dd(a), (b), (e)].

There may not be a transfer of a patient with an unstabilized emergency medical condition unless (1) either the patient (or a legally responsible person acting on the patient's behalf) requests a transfer, or a physician (or other qualified medical personnel when a physician is not readily available in the emergency department) has signed a certification that, based on the reasonable risks and benefits to the patient, and based on the information available at the time, the medical benefits reasonably expected from the provision of appropriate medical treatment at another medical facility outweigh the increased risks to the individual's medical condition from effecting the transfer; and (2) the transfer is an "appropriate transfer" within the meaning of the statute [see 42 U.S.C.S. § 1395dd(c); see also 42 U.S.C.S. § 1395dd(e)(4)(b) (defining "stabilized")].

Any individual who suffers personal harm as a direct result of a "participating hospital's" violation of the Act may, in a civil action against the participating hospital, obtain those damages available for personal injury under the law of the state in which the hospital is located, and such equitable relief as is appropriate [42 U.S.C.S. § 1395dd(d)(3)(A); see also Bryant v. Riddle Mem'l Hosp. (E.D. Pa. 1988) 689 F. Supp. 490, 492-493 (dicta citing legislative history supporting concurrent jurisdiction of state courts to hear and decide actions brought under the Act); for allegation of unauthorized transfer for nonmedical reasons, see § 295.63]. A "participating hospital" is a hospital that has entered into a Medicare provider agreement under 42 U.S.C.S. § 1395cc [42 U.S.C.S. § 1395dd(e)(3)]. As noted in [c], above, the $250,000 cap on noneconomic damages provided by Civ. Code § 3333.2 applies to a claim for failure to provide stabilizing treatment brought under the Act [Barris v. County of Los Angeles (1999) 20 Cal. 4th 101, 116-117, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 145, 972

A hospital that has knowingly and willfully, or negligently, failed to meet the requirements of the Act may also be subject to termination or suspension of its Medicare provider agreement; a participating hospital may incur civil penalties of not more than $50,000 per violation if it knowingly violates the Act; and the responsible physician may receive sanctions [see 42 U.S.C.S. § 1395dd(d)(1)-(2)].

[7] Under Doctrine of Respondeat Superior

Under the doctrine of respondeat superior, a hospital may be liable for the injuries of a patient sustained as a proximate result of improper medical treatment by a physician or nurse who is an employee of the hospital acting within the scope of his or her employment [Rice v. California Lutheran Hospital (1945) 27 Cal. 2d 296, 304, 163 P.2d 860 (negligence); Inderbitzen v. Lane Hosp. (1932) 124 Cal. App. 462, 468, 12 P.2d 744 (battery based on unauthorized medical treatment)]. Thus, when a physician or nurse as a salaried employee of the hospital treats a patient pursuant to an agreement between the patient and the hospital for medical services, the malpractice of the physician or nurse is generally imputed to the hospital [Brown v. La Societe Francaise De Bienfaisance Mutuelle (1903) 138 Cal. 475, 476, 71 P. 516 ; see Jacoves v. United Merchandising Corp. (1992) 9 Cal. App. 4th 88, 103-104, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 468] . In contrast, when medical personnel are directly employed by a patient and merely use hospital facilities to treat the patient, the personnel are considered to be independent contractors, and the hospital is not liable for their malpractice under the respondeat superior theory [Mayers v. Litow (1957) 154 Cal. App. 2d 413, 418, 316 P.2d 351 (physician using hospital facilities in accordance with medical staff privileges as independent contractor of hospital); see also Lab. Code § 2750.6 (rebuttable presumption that physician under contract to primary care clinic is independant contractor)]. The hospital may be liable for the acts of an independent contractor, however, based on its corporate negligence [see Elam v. College Park Hosp. (1982) 132 Cal. App. 3d 332, 340-342, 183 Cal. Rptr. 156 , discussed under [9], below].

In addition, a hospital will also incur liability for the tortious acts of medical personnel who are actually independent contractors if a patient does not directly employ the personnel and the hospital causes the patient to reasonably believe that such personnel are hospital employees; in such a case, the agency of the personnel for the hospital is a question for the trier of fact [Seneris v. Haas (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 811, 831-832, 291 P.2d 915 (ostensible agency of anesthetist practicing at defendant hospital); Hedlund v. Sutter Med. Serv. Co. (1942) 51 Cal. App. 2d 327, 331, 124 P.2d 878 (estoppel of hospital from denying agency of medical technician employed by independent physician who rented offices in hospital); see Ch. 427, Principal and Agent].

A finding of ostensible agency generally requires conduct by the hospital that would cause a reasonable person to believe that the physician was an agent of the hospital, as well as the patient's reliance on that apparent agency relationship [Mejia v. Cmty. Hosp. of San Bernardino (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 1448, 1453, 122 Cal. Rptr. 2d 233] . However, hospitals are generally deemed to hold themselves out as the provider of services unless they give the patient notice to the contrary, and the patient is generally presumed to have looked to the hospital for care unless the patient was treated by his or her personal physician. Therefore, absent some reason for the patient to know that the physician was not the agent of the hospital, ostensible agency is usually inferred [Mejia v. Cmty. Hosp. of San Bernardino (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 1448, 1454-1455, 122 Cal. Rptr. 2d 233 ; see, e.g., Ermoian v. Desert Hospital (2007) 152 Cal. App. 4th 475, 506-516, 61 Cal. Rptr. 3d 754 (physicians were ostensible agents of hospital as matter of law, although neither physicians nor other hospital staff were found negligent)]. In addition, the fact that the patient had not met or even known about the involvement of the negligent physician at the time is irrelevant to the issue of ostensible agency [Mejia v. Cmty. Hosp. of San Bernardino (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 1448, 1458-1459, 122 Cal. Rptr. 2d 233] .

For a complaint for personal injuries against a hospital and its employees, see § 295.59. For discussion of the standard of care applicable in actions for the malpractice of medical personnel and forms for use in such actions, see Ch. 415, Physicians: Medical Malpractice .

[8] Under Borrowed Servant Doctrine

If hospital employees act under the special supervision and control of an independent physician during a medical procedure directed by the phyician, they become the temporary agents of the physician, and their negligence is imputed to the physician rather than to the hospital [Ybarra v. Spangard (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 486, 492, 154 P.2d 687] . However, when, in the course of performing routine duties assumed by the hospital for the care of a patient, hospital employees merely carry out the orders of an independent physician who has general charge of the diagnosis and treatment received by the patient, the employees remain subject to the direction and control of the hospital, and the hospital retains liability for their negligence [Rice v. California Lutheran Hospital (1945) 27 Cal. 2d 296, 304, 163 P.2d 860 (physician's order that hospital employees serve tea to patient during patient's recovery from operation within scope of hospital's duty to care for patient); Sherman v. Hartman (1955) 137 Cal. App. 2d 589, 595-597, 290 P.2d 894 (supervision of patient during blood transfusion as routine matter of patient care provided by hospital even though transfusion was ordered by patient's physician)].

[9] For Corporate Negligence

A licensed hospital is required to restrict membership on its medical staff to licensed practitioners, competent in their respective fields, and worthy in character and in professional ethics [Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 2392.5-2392.6]. In addition, under Health & Safety Code § 1250 and the regulations promulgated by the Department of Health for the facilities, equipment, and staffing of licensed hospitals [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 70001 et seq.], the governing body of a hospital has overall administrative and professional responsibility for medical staff appointments and for the periodic review of medical staff members' qualifications to competently perform the procedures for which they are given staff privileges [22 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 70005, 70701, 71035, 71501]. The organized medical staff of the hospital, in turn, is responsible to the governing body for the fitness, adequacy, and quality of the medical care rendered to patients in the hospital and must institute procedures for evaluating staff appointments, ensuring that appropriate practices are followed in the various departments of the hospital, and requiring consultations among staff members [22 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 70703, 71503].

Under the general principles of negligence embodied in Civ. Code § 1714(a), a hospital corporation may be directly liable for the negligence of independent physicians and surgeons who, as members of the medical staff, utilize hospital facilities but are neither employees nor agents of the hospital. Liability arises from the hospital's breach of its duty to protect patients from harm and to act with reasonable prudence in their care. In accordance with the statutory authority recognizing hospital accountability for the quality of medical care provided to patients, this duty of careencompasses the responsibility to establish and implement adequate staff competency screening and review procedures. A failure to adequately supervise the competence of staff physicians is held to create an unreasonable risk of harm to the patients, and any patient injury caused by staff incompetence is therefore directly actionable against the hospital [see Elam v. College Park Hosp. (1982) 132 Cal. App. 3d 332, 340-342, 183 Cal. Rptr. 156] .

Civ. Code § 3333.2, limiting recovery for noneconomic losses to $250,000 in any action for injury against a health care provider based on professional negligence, applies to an action based on breach of a hospital's duty to exercise reasonable care in reviewing the competence of its medical staff [Bell v. Sharp Cabrillo Hosp. (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 1034, 1051, 260 Cal. Rptr. 886] .

In connection with the use of hospital records to prove that a hospital had knowledge of a medical staff member's incompetence prior to the member's injury of a patient, see § 295.23, below.

[10] For Rescue Team Misconduct

No hospital licensed pursuant to Health & Safety Code § 1250 et seq., its officers, staff members, nurses, or employees and no federal, state, or county government is liable for the acts or omissions of any rescue team established by the hospital, by the federal, state, or county government, or by the Regents of the University of California while the rescue team is attempting to resuscitate any person in immediate danger of loss of life if good faith is exercised [Health & Safety Code § 1317]. The hospital is not thereby relieved, however, of any obligation otherwise existing under law to designate and train members of a rescue team or to provide and maintain equipment for use by the team [Health & Safety Code § 1317]. "Rescue team" means a special group of physicians and surgeons, nurses, and hospital employees who have been trained in cardiopulmonary resuscitation and have been designated by the hospital to attempt, in cases of emergency, to resuscitate persons who are in immediate danger of loss of life [Health & Safety Code § 1317]; see Lowry v. Henry Mayo Newhall Memorial Hospital (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 188, 192-195, 229 Cal. Rptr. 620 .

[11] For Failure to Preserve Records

Providers of health services that are licensed pursuant to Health & Safety Code § 1253 (as well as those licensed pursuant to Health & Safety Code § 1205 (clinics), 1575 (adult day health care), or 1726 (home health agencies)) have an obligation, if the licensee ceases operation, to preserve records for a minimum of seven years following discharge of the patient [Health & Safety Code § 25259(a)]. Failure to do so subjects the licensee to tort liability for resulting injuries [Health & Safety Code § 25259(b)].

Licensed clinical laboratories that provide cytology services must, if the licensee ceases operation, preserve records, cytology slides, and cell blocks as prescribed in Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 1271(g) and 1274 [Bus. & Prof. Code § 1271.1; see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 1271(g) (requiring preservation of slides and cell blocks for five years, and cytology reports for 10 years), 1274 (requiring preservation of copies of corrected reports of smear evaluations for 10 years)]. Failure to do so subjects the licensee to tort liability for resulting injuries [Bus. & Prof. Code § 1271.1(b)]. For further discussion, see § 295.23[3][m].

[12] For Detention of Patient for Nonpayment of Bill

No patient shall be detained in a health facility solely for the nonpayment of a bill [Health & Safety Code § 1285(a); see Health & Safety Code § 1285(d) (detention as a misdemeanor)]. "Detained" means the intentional confinement of a patient in a health facility without authorization of the patient or such other person as may be authorized to provide consent to such care on behalf of the patient [Health & Safety Code § 1285(b)].

Any person who is detained in a health facility solely for the nonpayment of a bill has a cause of action against the health facility for the detention, which may be brought by the person detained or that person's parent, guardian, conservator, or other legal representative. The action may be brought against the health facility, proprietor, lessee or their agents, or against any person, corporation, association, or directors thereof. In the action, any person so detained has a right to recover general and punitive damages, court costs, and reasonable attorney's fees actually incurred, and such other relief as the court in its discretion may allow [Health & Safety Code § 1285(c)].

[13] For Loss of Property of Deceased Patient

A hospital operator has the same liability for losses of or injuries to personal property as a depositary for hire [Civ. Code § 1859]. For general discussion of depositaries for hire, see Ch. 93, Bailments . For discussion of Civ. Code § 1859, see Ch. 297, Hotels and Motels . For discussion of the duties of long-term health care facilities to safeguard the property of patients, see Ch. 351, Long-term Health and Residential Care .

In regard to the personal property of a deceased patient, a hospital will not be liable for loss or damage to the property caused by the person to whom the property is delivered if, in delivering the property, the hospital complied with the requirements of Prob. Code § 330 [Prob. Code § 330(f)]. Prob. Code § 330 allows a hospital to deliver the tangible personal property of the decedent in its possession, including keys to the decedent's residence, to the decedent's surviving spouse, relative, or conservator or guardian of the estate acting in that capacity at the time of death [Prob.

Code § 330(a)]. The hospital, however, must not deliver the property if there is reason to believe that there is a dispute over the right to possession of the decedent's property [Prob. Code § 330(b)]. The hospital must require reasonable proof of the status and identity of the person to whom the property is delivered [Prob. Code § 330(c); see also Prob. Code § 13104(d) (listing documents that may be used to determine person's identity)]. In addition, the hospital must, for three years, maintain a record of the property delivered and the status and identity of the person to whom the property is delivered [Prob. Code § 330(d)].

[14] For Retaliation for Patient Complaints

A health facility may not discriminate or retaliate in any manner against any patient or employee of the health facility because that patient or employee, or any other person, has presented a grievance or complaint, or has initiated or cooperated in any investigation or proceeding of any governmental entity, relating to the care, services, or conditions of that facility [Health & Safety Code § 1278.5(b)(1)].

A health facility that violates this provision is subject to a civil penalty of not more than twenty-five thousand dollars ($25,000) [Health & Safety Code § 1278.5(b)(2)]. This civil penalty is assessed and recovered through the same administrative process set forth in Health & Safety Code § 1417 et seq., which governs long-term health care facilities [Health & Safety Code § 1278.5(b)(2)]. Furthermore, any person who willfully violates this provision is guilty of a misdemeanor punishable by a fine of not more than twenty thousand dollars ($20,000) [Health & Safety Code § 1278.5(f)].

§ 295.14 Defenses to Tort Liability

[1] Negligence of Patient

A plaintiff's recovery for injuries proximately resulting from the negligence of hospital personnel in caring for the plaintiff while he or she was a patient in a hospital may be reduced to the extent that the plaintiff negligently contributed to his or her own injuries [see Li v. Yellow Cab Co. (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 804, 828-829, 119 Cal. Rptr. 858, 532 P.2d 1226 (comparative negligence established)].

It is generally a question for the trier of fact whether the plaintiff was in such a physical or mental condition at the time of injury that he or she was incapable of exercising ordinary care for his or her own safety [Rice v. California Lutheran Hosp. (1945) 27 Cal. 2d 296, 303, 163 P.2d 860 (patient's weakened physical and confused mental condition following surgery); Welker v. Scripps Clinic & Research Found. (1961) 196 Cal. App. 2d 338, 343, 16 Cal. Rptr. 538 (patient under influence of drugs); DeMartini v. Alexander Sanitarium, Inc. (1961) 192 Cal. App. 2d 442, 447-448, 13 Cal. Rptr. 564 (mentally disturbed patient)]. If uncontradicted evidence shows that the plaintiff was totally irrational at the time of injury, a court may find that the plaintiff was incapable of negligence as a matter of law [DeMartini v. Alexander Sanitarium, Inc. (1961) 192 Cal. App. 2d 442, 447-448, 13 Cal. Rptr. 564] .

[2] No Liability for Following Competent Patient's Instruction

A person of adult years and in sound mind has the right, in the exercise of control over his or her own body, to determine whether or not to submit to lawful medical treatment [Bartling v. Superior Court (1984) 163 Cal. App. 3d 186, 193-195, 209 Cal. Rptr. 220] . Neither criminal nor civil liability will attach to treating physicians and hospitals who comply with a competent adult's decision to refuse treatment. Treating physicians and hospitals should be free to act according to the patient's instruction without fear of liability and without advance court approval [Bartling v. Superior Court (1984) 163 Cal. App. 3d 186, 197, 209 Cal. Rptr. 220] . Indeed, a hospital or physician may be subject to civil liability for failure to comply with a competent adult patient's instruction to terminate life sustaining treatment [see Bartling v. Glendale Adventist Medical Center (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 961, 966-967, 229 Cal. Rptr. 360 (action dismissed because hospital's legal right to follow patient's instruction was not clear at time of patient's hospitalization)]. For a discussion of physician immunity under the Health Care Decisions Law, see Ch. 415, Physicians: Medical Malpractice .

[3] Good Faith Reliance on Health Care Decision

[a] Nonliability

Subject to any limitations stated in a durable power of attorney for health care, and subject to certain Probate Code provisions, which are discussed below, a health care provider is not subject to criminal prosecution, civil liability, or professional disciplinary action for relying on a health care decision of a patient's attorney-in-fact under certain circumstances.

For complete discussion of durable powers of attorney, see Ch. 427, Principal and Agent .

[b] Changes in Applicable Law Effective July 1, 2000

The Health Care Decisions Law [Prob. Code § 4600 et seq.], effective July 1, 2000, repealed, revised, and renumbered many provisions regarding durable powers of attorney for health care under the Power of Attorney Law. For example, until July 1, 2000, the limitations of reliance on a health care decision are found in Probate Code §§ 4722, 4723, 4724, 4725, and 4726. On or after July 1, 2000, the limitations are found in Probate Code §§ 4680-4690. Also, until July 1, 2000, the definition of "health care decision" can be found at Prob. Code § 4612. On or after July 1, 2000, the definition can be found at Prob. Code § 4617.

[c] Requirements for Nonliability Applicable Before July 1, 2000

Until July 1, 2000, a health care provider is not subject to criminal prosecution, civil liability, or professional disciplinary action, if the health care provider relies on a health care decision and both of the following requirements are satisfied [Prob. Code § 4750(a)]:

- The health care provider believes in good faith that the attorney-in-fact who made the decision is authorized under Prob. Code § 4700 et seq. to make that decision; and

- The health care provider believes in good faith that the decision is not inconsistent with the desires of the patient as expressed in the durable power of attorney for health care or otherwise made known to the health care provider, and, if the decision is to withhold or withdraw health care necessary to keep the patient alive, the health care provider has made a good faith effort to determine the desires of the patient to the extent that the patient is able to convey those desires to the health care provider and the results of the efforts are made a part of the patient's medical records.

However, even if these requirements are met, a health care provider may be subject to criminal prosecution, civil liability, or professional disciplinary action for relying on a health care decision to the same extent as would be the case if the patient, having had the capacity to give informed consent, had made the health care decision on his or her own behalf under like circumstances [Prob. Code § 4750(a)].

Nothing in Prob. Code § 4700 et seq. authorizes a health care provider to do anything illegal [Prob. Code § 4750(b)]. Notwithstanding the health care decision of the attorney-in-fact designated by a durable power of attorney for health care, the health care provider is not subject to criminal prosecution, civil liability, or professional disciplinary action for failing to withdraw health care necessary to keep the patient alive [Prob. Code § 4750(c)].

[d] Requirements for Nonliability Applicable on or After July 1, 2000

On or after July 1, 2000, a health care provider acting in good faith and in accordance with generally accepted health care standards applicable to the health care provider is not subject to civil or criminal liability or to discipline for unprofessional conduct for any actions in compliance with the Health Care Decisions Law, including, but not limited to, any of the following [Probate Code § 4740]:

- Complying with a health care decision of a person apparently having authority to make a health care decision for a patient, including a decision to withhold or withdraw health care;

- Declining to comply with a health care decision of a person based on a belief that the person then lacked authority to make that decision;

- Complying with an advance health care directive and assuming that the directive was valid when made and had not been revoked or terminated; and

- Declining to comply with an individual health care instruction or health care decision, in accordance with Probate Code §§ 4734-4736.

Nothing in the Health Care Decisions Law affects the validity of any durable power of attorney for health care executed on a printed form that was valid under the prior law, regardless of whether the execution occurred before, on, or after July 1, 2000 [Prob. Code § 4665(e)].

[4] Periods of Limitation

[a] In General

If an action for personal injury or death is based on the failure of a hospital to exercise ordinary care in providing facilities, equipment, or attendants commensurate with the condition and needs of a patient, the action will be barred unless it is commenced within within two years (one year, prior to January 1, 2003) after the commission of the negligence [Code Civ. Proc. § 335.1; Gopaul v. Herrick Mem. Hosp. (1974) 38 Cal. App. 3d 1002, 1007, 113 Cal. Rptr. 811 , disapproved on other grounds, Flowers v. Torrance Mem. Hosp. Med. Ctr. (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 992 ; see former Code Civ. Proc. § 340(3); Ch. 345, Limitation of Actions, § 345.14].

If an action for personal injury or death is based on negligent medical treatment of a patient by a hospital licensed pursuant to Health & Safety Code § 1250 et seq. and the negligence was committed within the course and scope of professional services for which the hospital is licensed and which are not within any restriction imposed by the licensing agency or the hospital, the action will be barred unless it is commenced within three years after the date of the injury or one year after the plaintiff discovers, or through the use of reasonable diligence should have discovered, the injury, whichever occurs first [Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5]. In wrongful death actions, the word "injury" as used in Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5 has been interpreted to refer to the death of the person [Gomez v. Valley View Sanitorium (1978) 87 Cal. App. 3d 507, 509, 151 Cal. Rptr. 97 , disapproved on other grounds, Woods v. Young (1991) 53 Cal. 3d 315, 328]. In no event may the time for commencement of the action exceed three years unless the three-year period is tolled for any of the following reasons: (1) on proof of fraud, (2) intentional concealment, or (3) the presence of a foreign object in the body of the injured person that has no therapeutic or diagnostic purpose or effect [Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5; see Sanchez v. South Hoover Hospital (1976) 18 Cal. 3d 93, 95, 132 Cal. Rptr. 657, 553 P.2d 1129 (inapplicability of tolling provisions to one-year period); see also Wallace v. Hibner (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 1042, 1047, 217 Cal. Rptr. 748 (foreign body exception applies only to medically inserted objects)].

Prior to the enactment of Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5 in 1970, all personal injury or death actions based on medical malpractice were governed by former Code Civ. Proc. § 340(3) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 335.1 (two-year statute of limitations)), subject to the judicial qualification that the limitation period did not commence to run until the plaintiff discovered, or through the use of reasonable diligence should have discovered, the tortious injury [Huysman v. Kirsch (1936) 6 Cal. 2d 302, 312, 57 P.2d 908 ; Weinstock v. Eissler (1964) 224 Cal. App. 2d 212, 226-227, 36 Cal. Rptr. 537] . This judicial discovery rule was modified by the enactment of Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5 insofar as no action governed by the statute may be brought after three years, whether or not the tortious injury has been discovered during this time [Blake v. Wernette (1976) 129 Cal. Rptr. 426 ; but see Hills v. Aronsohn (1984) 152 Cal. App. 3d 753, 760-762, 762 n.7, 199 Cal. Rptr. 816 (three-year period runs not from date of wrongful act, but from date that damaging effect of act becomes reasonably apparent to plaintiff)]. It has not been decided whether the discovery rule imposed on former ode Civ. Proc. § 340(3) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 335.1 (two-year statute of limitations)) prior to 1970 still applies to medical malpractice suits that fall outside the scope of Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5 and remain subject to Code Civ. Proc. § 335.1 (see former Code Civ. Proc. § 340(3)) by implication, such as personal injury or death actions based on a battery arising from unauthorized medical treatment of a patient by hospital employees or personal injury or death actions based on the professional negligence of a hospital during the rendition of medical services for which the hospital is not licensed or which are within a restriction imposed by the licensing authority or the hospital.

For discussion and forms relating to statutes of limitations as an affirmative defense or a ground of demurrer, as well as discussion and forms relating to the necessity of pleading facts in a complaint tolling the limitation period when the complaint shows on its face that the period has run, see Ch. 345, Limitation of Actions , and Ch. 415, Physicians: Medical Malpractice .

[b] Action Brought by Minor

If a negligence action against a hospital for personal injury or death is brought by a minor, it must be commenced within three years of the alleged wrongful act, except in the case of a minor under the full age of six years, in which case the action must be brought within three years or prior to his or her eighth birthday, whichever provides the longer period. The limitation period for minors is tolled by collusion or fraud on the part of a parent or guardian of the minor and a hospital or its insurer in failing to bring an action on behalf of the injured minor [Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5].

The period of limitation applicable to minors does not run until the minor's parent or guardian has discovered, or through the use of reasonable diligence would be expected to discover, the injury and its negligent cause [Kite v. Campbell (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 793, 803, 191 Cal. Rptr. 363 , overruled on other grounds, Young v. Haines (1986) 41 Cal. 3d 883].

For discussion of special rules that may apply to a medical malpractice action brought by a minor against a public hospital, see [c], below. For discussion of the special accrual rule applicable to a minor's medical malpractice claim against a governmental defendant, see [7], below.

[c] Action Against Public Hospital

If the action is against a public hospital, both Gov. Code § 945.6 (statute of limitations for actions against public entities under the Tort Claims Act) and Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5 (statute of limitations for medical malpractice actions) apply with equal force. Thus, for example, if the plaintiff files a claim under the Tort Claims Act against the hospital, and the plaintiff receives notice of rejection of that claim pursuant to Gov. Code § 913, a court action must be filed within six months or the action will be barred under Gov. Code § 945.6, even though the action is filed within the one-year limitation period of Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5 [Anson v. County of Merced (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 1195, 1199, 1202, 249 Cal. Rptr. 457] . Similarly, a plaintiff suing a public entity hospital for malpractice must meet the three-year limitations period of Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5, and failure to do so will provide a limitations defense for the defendant even if the plaintiff's action is otherwise timely under the Government Claims Act [Roberts v. County of Los Angeles (2009) 175 Cal. App. 4th 474, 481, 96 Cal. Rptr. 3d 60].

If the malpractice plaintiff is a minor and a timely claim has been filed with and rejected by the public entity, the six-month period for filing a medical malpractice action under Gov. Code § 945.6 applies even though a longer period for bringing the action against a non-public health care provider might be allowed under Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5 [Martell v. Antelope Valley Hospital Medical Center (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 978, 981-983 ; see [b], above]. In one case, for example, a tort action brought on behalf of a minor was untimely when brought over seven years after the claim against the public entity was filed and rejected, even though the action may have been timely under Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5 and even though the plaintiffs had earlier filed a timely action that had later been dismissed without prejudice [Martell v. Antelope Valley Hospital Medical Center (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 978, 981-983 .

[5] Charitable Immunity

A private hospital may no longer claim immunity from liability for the negligent injury of a patient by its employees on the basis of its status as a charitable institution [Malloy v. Fong (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 356, 366, 232 P.2d 241 ; see Tunkl v. Regents of University of California (1963) 60 Cal. 2d 92, 103-104, 32 Cal. Rptr. 33, 383 P.2d 441 (reaffirming Malloy holding in hospital context)].

[6] Governmental Immunity

[a] In General

Under the California Tort Claims Act [Gov. Code § 810 et seq.], a public entity engaging in medical or hospital activities has a limited immunity from liability in tort. For discussion, a procedural guide, and forms relating to tort actions against public entities and employees in general, see Ch. 464, Public Entities and Officers: California Tort Claims Act . For discussion and forms relating to tort liabilities and immunities of a public entity in connection with medical and hospital functions under the Welfare and Institutions Code, see Ch. 304, Insane and Other Incompetent Persons, § 304.110 et seq.

[b] Liability

Like other public entities in California, a public entity that operates or maintains a medical facility [Gov. Code § 854] or a mental institution [Gov. Code §§ 854.2, 854.3] or that otherwise engages in medical, hospital, and public health activities is generally liable for the negligent or wrongful conduct of one of its employees within the scope of his or her employment if the employee's conduct would have given rise to a cause of action against the employee [Gov. Code § 815.2(a); see Gov. Code § 820(a) (subject to statutory exception, liability of public employee as coextensive with that of private person)]. This general liability is incorporated by implication in a number of statutes dealing specifically with public entities engaging in medical, hospital, and public health functions: Gov. Code §§ 855.6 (liability for torts in connection with examinations or diagnoses performed for treatment purposes), 855.8(b)-(d) (liability for negligent or wrongful act in prescribing or administering treatment for mental illness or addiction), 856(b), (c) (liability for negligent or wrongful act in carrying out either determination to confine or release person for mental illness or addiction or determination of terms and conditions of such confinement) [see Hernandez v. State of California (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 895, 899, 90 Cal. Rptr. 205 (purpose of Gov. Code §§ 855.6, 855.8(c), 856(c) to protect patient under confinement from medical malpractice and mistreatment)].

A public entity may be liable independently of its employee's negligent or wrongful act for an injury proximately caused by its failure to discharge a mandatory duty imposed by a statute or administrative regulation that is designed to protect against the injury unless the entity establishes that it exercised reasonable diligence to discharge the duty [Gov. Code § 815.6]. In addition, a public entity engaging in medical, hospital, and public health activities is liable for an injury proximately resulting from its noncompliance with statutes and regulations prescribing minimum standards for equipment, personnel, or facilities [promulgated by the State Department of Health Services, Social Services, Developmental Services, or Mental Health Gov. Code § 855] and from its noncompliance with statutes imposing a duty to admit persons to public health facilities [Gov. Code § 856.4] unless the entity establishes that it exercised reasonable diligence to comply. For allegations of a complaint based on a public entity's failure to discharge a mandatory duty, see Ch. 464, Public Entities and Officers: California Tort Claims Act .

[c] Immunity

Like other public entities in California, a public entity engaging in medical, hospital, and public health functions is generally not liable for the negligent or wrongful conduct of one of its employees when the employee is immune from liability [Gov. Code § 815.2(b)]. Thus, the entity shares the immunity of a public employee for injury resulting from a discretionary act or omission within the scope of his or her employment [Gov. Code § 820.2; see Tarasoff v. Regents of University of California (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 425, 131 Cal. Rptr. 14, 31, 551 P.2d 334 (characterizing therapist's duty to warn foreseeable victim of patient's violent tendencies as ministerial administrative act outside scope of Gov. Code § 820.2 immunity rather than discretionary basic policy decision)]. Similarly, the entity is not liable for its employee's decision to take or omit measures to prevent or control communicable disease [Gov. Code § 855.4(a)]; its employee's diagnosis or failure to diagnose or prescribe treatment for mental illness or addiction [Gov. Code § 855.8(a); Fish v. Regents of Univ. of Cal. (1966) 246 Cal. App. 2d 327, 331, 333, 54 Cal. Rptr. 656] ; its employee's determination, in accordance with applicable statutes, to confine a person for mental illness or addiction, to define the terms and conditions of such confinement, or to release the person from confinement [Gov. Code § 856(a); Tarasoff v. Regents of University of California (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 425, 131 Cal. Rptr. 14, 31-32, 551 P.2d 334] ; or its employee's failure to admit a person to a public medical facility when the employee is not under a mandatory duty to admit the person [Gov. Code § 856.4].

In addition, a public entity engaging in medical, hospital, and public health functions has qualified immunity from liability under the Tort Claims Act (Gov. Code § 810 et seq.) in several specific situations. The entity and its employees are not liable for an injury resulting from interference with the right of an inmate of a medical facility to obtain a judicial determination or review of the legality of his or her confinement unless the interference is intentional and unjustifiable and a determination has been made that the confinement was illegal [Gov. Code § 855.2]. The entity and its employees are not liable for a failure to make an adequate physical or mental examination to determine whether a person has a physical or mental condition that would constitute a public health or safety hazard unless the person under examination is negligently injured in the course of the examination [see Gov. Code § 855.6 and Law Revision Commission Comment thereto]. The entity and its employees are not liable for injury to, wrongful death of, or injury caused by an escaping or escaped person who has been confined for mental illness or addiction unless the injury results from an employee's actual fraud, corruption, or actual malice, or from an employee's negligent or wrongful act in recapturing a mental patient [Gov. Code § 856.2]. Finally, under Gov. Code § 854.8(a), (c), the entity is not liable for an injury to an inpatient or for an injury proximately caused by a patient of a mental institution unless (1) the injury results from a failure to comply with minimum statutory and regulatory standards for equipment, personnel, or facilities under Gov. Code § 855, (2) the injury involves an intentional and unjustified interference with a patient's right to obtain a judicial review or determination of his or her confinement under Gov. Code § 855.2, (3) the entity would be liable for the negligent operation of a motor vehicle under Veh. Code § 17001, or (4) the entity would be liable for a failure to maintain its property in a safe condition under Gov. Code § 830 et seq. Under Gov. Code § 854.8(d), however, a public employee remains liable for injury resulting from a negligent or wrongful act in caring for a mental patient, and the entity may be derivatively liable insofar as the entity must indemnify an employee legally practicing a healingart for a judgment based on malpractice within the scope of his or her employment and the entity may indemnify other employees who negligently injure mental patients in their care [County of Los Angeles v. Superior Court (1965) 62 Cal. 2d 839, 843-844, 44 Cal. Rptr. 796, 402 P.2d 868] .

[7] Failure to File Claim Against Public Entity

Before a person may bring suit against a public entity and its employees for personal injuries sustained as a patient in a hospital operated and maintained by the entity, a claim for damages must be presented to and partially or totally rejected by the entity [Gov. Code §§ 945.4, 950.2-950.6].

Subject to late claim relief [Gov. Code §§ 911.4, 946.6], the claim must be presented within six months after the accrual of the action under the statute of limitations that otherwise applies to the action [Gov. Code §§ 901, 911.2; see Whitfield v. Roth (1974) 10 Cal. 3d 874, 883-885, 112 Cal. Rptr. 540, 519 P.2d 588 (decided under former Gov. Code § 911.2, which prescribed 100-day period)]. A special accrual rule applies, however, in the case of a minor's medical malpractice cause of action against a governmental defendant. With respect to medical malpractice actions, Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5 (discussed in [4], above) provides different dates of accrual for minors and adults; for minors, the cause of action accrues on the date of the "alleged wrongful act," whereas an adult's cause of action accrues on either the "date of injury" or on the date when the plaintiff discovers or, through the use of reasonable diligence, should have discovered, the injury [Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5]. One court of appeal has held that Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5, as applied to determine the date of accrual for calculating the six-month claim period under Gov. Code § 911.2, unconstitutionally discriminates against minors, since a minor's cause of action will typically accrue earlier than an adult's similar cause of action [Torres v. County of Los Angeles (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 325, 334, 257 Cal. Rptr. 211] . For purposes of the tort claim statutes, a minor's medical malpractice cause of action against a government defendant will accrue not on the date of the alleged wrongful act, but when the minor's parent or guardian knew or should have kno wn through the exercise of reasonable diligence that a negligent wrongful act of medical care caused the child's injuries [Torres v. County of Los Angeles (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 325, 335, 257 Cal. Rptr. 211] .

Claims must be directed to the public entity in compliance with Gov. Code § 915. The statute prescribes several methods of presentation, including personal delivery or mailing of the claim to the clerk, secretary, or auditor of the appropriate public entity [Gov. Code § 915(a)]. Presentation of a claim to a public hospital's legal department is not one of the prescribed methods, and does not satisfy the statute's requirements, even under a "substantial compliance" theory [Life v. County of Los Angeles (1991) 227 Cal. App. 3d 894, 899-900, 278 Cal. Rptr. 196 ; but see Gov. Code § 915(d) (misdirected claim "actually received" by clerk, secretary, auditor, or board of public entity within time prescribed for presentation is duly presented)].

When an injured party timely files a claim with a government entity and another party also injured by the same event seeks to pursue a suit against the government entity without filing a separate claim, the second injured party may not rely on the claim filed by the original claimant if the injury suffered by the second injured party was separate and distinct [Nguyen v. Los Angeles County Harbor/UCLA Medical Center (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 729, 733-734, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 709] . For example, if a minor bringing an action for medical malpractice against a county hospital makes a tort claim, the minor's parents cannot rely on the tort claim when bringing a subsequent action for emotional injuries as witnesses to the minor's injuries and for emotional injuries and economic damages as direct victims of the county's negligence [Nguyen v. Los Angeles County Harbor/UCLA Medical Center (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 729, 734, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 709] .

A complaint that fails to show compliance with the claims procedure or facts establishing excuse, waiver, or estoppel, is subject to a general demurrer [Dias v. Eden Township Hospital Dist. (1962) 57 Cal. 2d 502, 503-504, 20 Cal. Rptr. 630, 370 P.2d 334 ; for related discussion and forms of points and authorities in support of and in opposition to such demurrers, see California Points and Authorities, Ch. 196, Public Entities (Matthew Bender)] or an affirmative defense in the answer based on noncompliance with the claims procedure [Gonzales v. Brennan (1965) 238 Cal. App. 2d 69, 76, 47 Cal. Rptr. 501] .

Summary judgment in favor of the public entity defendant may also be proper if the undisputed evidence demonstrates that the plaintiff did not comply with the claims procedure [see Life v. County of Los Angeles (1991) 227 Cal. App. 3d 894, 898, 902, 278 Cal. Rptr. 196] .

A plaintiff suing a public entity hospital for malpractice must also meet the three-year limitations period of Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5, and failure to do so will provide a limitations defense for the defendant even if the plaintiff's action is otherwise timely under the Government Claims Act [Roberts v. County of Los Angeles (2009) 175 Cal. App. 4th 474, 481, 96 Cal. Rptr. 3d 60].

For a procedural guide and forms relating to the filing of claims against public entities, see Ch. 464, Public Entities and Officers: California Tort Claims Act .

[8] Contractual Exculpation Invalid

A patient's agreement to release a hospital from liability for future negligent or wrongful acts, executed as a condition of the patient's admission to the hospital, is invalid under Civ. Code § 1668 as contrary to public policy, and the hospital may not use such an agreement to prevent the patient from bringing an action against the hospital for injuries resulting from negligent treatment of the patient by the hospital's employees [Tunkl v. Regents of University of California (1963) 60 Cal. 2d 92, 94, 32 Cal. Rptr. 33, 383 P.2d 441] .

[9] Arbitration Agreement

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 1295, a contract between a hospital licensed pursuant to Health & Safety Code § 1250 et seq. and a patient for medical services may contain a provision for arbitration of any dispute concerning the hospital's negligence in rendering professional services for which the hospital is licensed and which are not within any restriction imposed by the licensing agency or the hospital, provided the arbitration provision conforms to language mandated by Code Civ. Proc. § 1295 and the contract contains a boldface notice of the provision above the patient's signature line. Such a provision governs all controversies between the hospital and the patient with respect to the medical services covered by the contract unless or until the provision is rescinded by written notice within 30 days of signature [Code Civ. Proc. § 1295(c); Madden v. Kaiser Foundation Hospitals (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 699, 706-709, 131 Cal. Rptr. 882, 552 P.2d 1178] or unless the provision is determined to constitute an unenforceable adhesion contract [Wheeler v. St. Joseph Hospital (1976) 63 Cal. App. 3d 345, 357-362, 133 Cal. Rptr. 775] . The United States Supreme Court's decision in Allied-Bruce Terminix Companies, Inc. v. Dobson [(1995) 513 U.S. 265, 115 S. Ct. 834, 130 L. Ed. 2d 753 (Federal Arbitration Act preempts state law that seeks to invalidate arbitration agreements)] throws into question whether a contract lacking the warning required by Code Civ. Proc. § 1295(c) is unenforceable. For further discussion, see Ch. 32, Contractual Arbitration: Agreements and Compelling Arbitration .

Agents and fiduciaries may bind their principals or beneficiaries to agree to arbitration [see, e.g., Madden v. Kaiser Foundation Hospitals (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 699, 709, 131 Cal. Rptr. 882, 552 P.2d 1178 (patient as bound by signature of agent)]. If the patient is a minor child, a parent may bind both the child and the other parent to arbitrate claims related to medical service for the child [see Bolanos v. Khalatian (1991) 231 Cal. App. 3d 1586, 1591, 283 Cal. Rptr. 209 (mother, by signing agreement, bound unborn child and child's nonsignatory father)].

California's appellate courts are in disagreement over whether a person before his or her death may legally bind other family members to arbitrate subsequent wrongful death claims. One line of cases holds that an enforceable agreement requiring the arbitration of claims, if covering the tortious act that is the basis of the wrongful death action, requires that the wrongful death action be submitted to arbitration even if the plaintiffs were not signatories to the arbitration agreement [see, e.g., Herbert v. Superior Court (1985) 169 Cal. App. 3d 718, 722-727, 215 Cal. Rptr. 477 ; Hawkins v. Superior Court (1979) 89 Cal. App. 3d 413, 416-419, 152 Cal. Rptr. 491]. However, another line of cases holds that, while a person may have the authority to bind minor children to arbitrate claims brought after the person's death, a person does not generally have the authority to bind a spouse or adult children to arbitrate his or her claims, including wrongful death claims [see, e.g., Ruiz v. Podolsky (2009) 175 Cal. App. 4th 227, 238-247, 95 Cal. Rptr. 3d 828 (review granted Oct. 14, 2009; adult children not bound); Rhodes v. California Hospital Medical Center (1978) 76 Cal. App. 3d 606, 608-610, 143 Cal. Rptr. 59 (spouse not bound); see also Baker v. Birnbaum (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 288, 291-294, 248 Cal. Rptr. 336 (husband's loss of consortium claim not subject to arbitration)]. Those cases note that a wrongful death action in California is separate and distinct from any cause of action that the decedent may have had had he or she survived, and a decedent generally has no authority to bind adult family members to arbitrate their personal claims [see, e.g., Ruiz v. Podolsky (2009) 175 Cal. App. 4th 227, 238-247, 95 Cal. Rptr. 3d 828 (review granted Oct. 14, 2009)]. The issue is currently pending before the California Supreme Court [see Ruiz v. Podolsky (2009) 175 Cal. App. 4th 227, 95 Cal. Rptr. 3d 828 (review granted Oct. 14, 2009)].

As noted above, in order to allow a patient sufficient time to confirm that a waiver of the right to a jury trial is made knowingly and voluntarily, Code Civ. Proc. § 1295(c) requires that the patient be given 30 days after signing the agreement to decide whether to rescind an agreement to arbitrate [Code Civ. Proc. § 1295(c)]. However, if the patient dies within this 30-day period, the agreement to arbitrate will generally be unenforceable as the person signing the agreement did not have the full statutory period to reconsider whether to rescind [Rodriguez v. Superior Court (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 1461, 1469-1470, 98 Cal. Rptr. 3d 728]. Although not entirely settled, an exception to that rule might be available if an arbitration agreement expressly provides a procedure for rescission on behalf of a nonpatient minor child who might otherwise be bound by a parent's signature. Thus, for example, if an agreement expressly states that a guardian appointed for a minor child following the death of the child's parent may exercise the right to rescind, the arbitration agreement might be enforceable in the event the child's guardian does not timely exercise this right. Under those circumstances, the equitable tolling doctrine might be used to extend the time for the guardian to act to exclude any period before the guardian was appointed, as well as any additional time between the appointment and the time the guardian learned or reasonably should have learned of the arbitration agreement [see Rodriguez v. Superior Court (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 1461, 1472, 98 Cal. Rptr. 3d 728].

Arbitration agreements involving hospitals that are exempt from the mandatory language requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 1295 may be strictly construed against the drafting party [Victoria v. Superior Court (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 734, 740-747, 222 Cal. Rptr. 1, 710 P.2d 833 (sexual assault by hospital employee on patient outside scope of arbitration provision requiring arbitration of all claims "arising from rendition or failure to render services")].

Arbitration agreements are not necessarily bound by the limits of Civ. Code § 3333.2(b), which places a $250,000 cap on noneconomic damages in medical malpractice suits. The Fourth Appellate District Court of Appeal has held that Civ. Code § 3333.2 does not preclude an arbitration award of punitive damages when the patient's claim is based on fraud, willful neglect, and malicious acts. Punitive damages that may be asserted in court may also be asserted under the arbitration clauses in Code Civ. Proc. § 1295(a) and (b) when the issue is submitted by the patient or with the consent of both parties [Baker v. Sadick (1984) 162 Cal. App. 3d 618, 626-627, 208 Cal. Rptr. 676] . The First Appellate District has gone even further and has held that unless specifically required under the terms of the arbitration agreement to act in conformity with rules of law, an arbitration award may be based on broad principles of justice and equity, without regard to any limit imposed by Civ. Code § 3333.2(b), and generally will be immune from judicial review [Nogueiro v. Kaiser Foundation Hospitals (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 1192, 1194-1195, 250 Cal. Rptr. 478] .

For discussion and forms relating to the stay or dismissal of an action based on an agreement containing a clause to arbitrate disputes arising out of the agreement, see Ch. 32, Contractual Arbitration: Agreements and Compelling Arbitration .

[10] Claims Arising Under Medicare Act

If a claim brought against a health care provider or health maintenance organization arises under the Federal Medicare Act [see 42 U.S.C.S. § 1395 et seq.], that claim must first go through a multilevel administrative review process in accordance with the regulations of the Secretary of Health and Human Services, after which judicial review may be pursued in federal district court [see 42 U.S.C.S. §§ 405(g), 1395ff(b); 42 C.F.R. § 405.701 et seq.; McCall v. PacifiCare of Cal., Inc. (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 412, 416-417, 106 Cal. Rptr. 2d 271, 21 P.3d 1189] . A claim "arises under" the Medicare Act if both the standing and substantive basis for the presentation of the claim is the Medicare Act or if the claim is "inextricable intertwined" with a claim for Medicare benefits [Heckler v. Ringer (1984) 466 U.S. 602, 615, 104 S. Ct. 2013, 80 L. Ed. 2d 622 ; McCall v. PacifiCare of Cal., Inc. (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 412, 417, 106 Cal. Rptr. 2d 271, 21 P.3d 1189] . However, a claim that is "wholly collateral" to a claim for benefits under the Act is not subject to the administrative process, and a claimant need not exhaust administrative remedies if the claimant makes a colorable showing that an erroneous denial of benefits would cause injury that could not be remedied by the later payment of benefits [Heckler v. Ringer (1984) 466 U.S. 602, 618, 104 S. Ct. 2013, 80 L. Ed. 2d 622 ; McCall v. PacifiCare of Cal., Inc. (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 412, 417-418, 106 Cal. Rptr. 2d 271, 21 P.3d 1189] .

Because the Medicare Act provides for reimbursement of covered claims for services that are reasonable and necessary to diagnose or treat of illness or injury, a claim that, at bottom, seeks reimbursement or payment for medical services is "inextricably intertwined" with a Medicare claim and is subject to the Medicare administrative process [McCall v. PacifiCare of Cal., Inc. (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 412, 425, 106 Cal. Rptr. 2d 271, 21 P.3d 1189] . However, a Medicare provider may violate state common law or statutory duties owed to Medicare beneficiaries in a way that is unrelated to Medicare coverage determinations. A claim under state law that does not seek such reimbursement or payment under the Act, but only incidentally refers to a denial of benefits, is not preempted by the Medicare procedures [McCall v. PacifiCare of Cal., Inc. (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 412, 425, 106 Cal. Rptr. 2d 271, 21 P.3d 1189] .

For example, a health care provider may negligently fail to use ordinary care in treating a Medicare beneficiary, fail to advise the beneficiary properly about his or her condition or appropriate treatment options, whether or not those treatment options are covered by Medicare, or fail to provide appropriate referrals to a specialist. Thus, without regard to the issue of coverage under the Act, a beneficiary may be prevented from seeking appropriate treatment even at his or her own expense. Claims brought under state law for these negligent acts or omissions, none of which necessarily implicates a coverage determination or falls within the scope of the Medicare administrative review process, are not preempted [McCall v. PacifiCare of Cal., Inc. (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 412, 425-426, 106 Cal. Rptr. 2d 271, 21 P.3d 1189 (disapproving Redmond v. Secure Horizons, PacifiCare, Inc. (1997) 60 Cal. App. 4th 96, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 174 , overruled in part, McCall v. PacifiCare of California, Inc., 25 Cal. 4th 412); see also Zolezzi v. PacifiCare of California (2003) 105 Cal. App. 4th 573, 585-587, 129 Cal. Rptr. 2d 526 (application of state arbitration disclosure statute to dispute between patient and health care plan regarding plan's failure to authorize surgery was not preempted)].

[11] Immunity for Detention and Release of Person With Mental Disorder

A licensed general acute care hospital (as defined in Health & Safety Code § 1250(a)) or licensed acute psychiatric hospital (as defined in Health & Safety Code § 1250(b)) that is not a county-designated facility pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code § 5150, licensed professional staff of those hospitals, or any physician and surgeon, providing emergency medical services in any department of those hospitals to a person at the hospital cannot be held civilly or criminally liable for detaining a person if all of the following conditions exist during the detention [Health & Safety Code § 1799.111(a)]:

1. In the opinion of the treating physician and surgeon, or a clinical psychologist with the medical staff privileges, clinical privileges, or professional responsibilities provided in Health & Safety Code § 1316.5, the person, as a result of a mental disorder, cannot be safely released from the hospital because he or she presents a danger to himself or herself, or others, or is gravely disabled. For these purposes, "gravely disabled" means an inability to provide for his or her basic personal needs for food, clothing, or shelter.

2. The hospital staff, treating physician and surgeon, or appropriate licensed mental health professional have made and documented repeated unsuccessful efforts to find appropriate mental health treatment for the person. Telephone calls or other contacts required under this paragraph must commence at the earliest possible time when the treating physician and surgeon has determined the time at which the person will be medically stable for transfer. In no case shall the required contacts begin after the time when the person becomes medically stable for transfer.

3. The person is not detained beyond 24 hours.

4. There is probable cause for the detention.

If the person is detained beyond eight hours, but less than 24 hours, this immunity is only available if both of the following additional conditions are met [Health & Safety Code § 1799.111(b)]:

1. A discharge or transfer for appropriate evaluation or treatment for the person has been delayed because of the need for continuous and ongoing care, observation, or treatment that the hospital is providing.

2. In the opinion of the treating physician and surgeon, or a clinical psychologist with the medical staff privileges or professional responsibilities provided for in Health & Safety Code § 1316.5, the person, as a result of a mental disorder, is still a danger to himself or herself, or others, or is gravely disabled.

Following a detention of up to 24 hours under the provisions described above, the same hospitals and personnel cannot be held civilly or criminally liable for the actions of a detained person after that person's release from hospital detention, if all of the following conditions exist during the detention [Health & Safety Code § 1799.111(c)]:

1. The person has not been admitted to a licensed general acute care hospital or a licensed acute psychiatric hospital for evaluation and treatment pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code § 5150.

2. The release is authorized by a physician and surgeon or a clinical psychologist with the medical staff privileges or professional responsibilities provided for in Health & Safety Code § 1316.5, who determines, based on a face-to-face examination of the person detained, that the person does not present a danger to himself or herself or others and is not gravely disabled. In order for this paragraph to apply to a clinical psychologist, he or she must have a collaborative treatment relationship with the physician and surgeon. The clinical psychologist may authorize the release of the person from detention, but only after he or she has consulted with the physician and surgeon. In the event of a clinical or professional disagreement regarding the release of a person subject to detention, the detention must be maintained unless the hospital's medical director overrules the decision of the physician and surgeon opposing the release. Both the physician and surgeon and the clinical psychologist must enter their findings, concerns, or objections in the person's medical record.

This immunity does not affect the responsibility of a general acute care hospital or an acute psychiatric hospital to comply with all state laws and regulations pertaining to the use of seclusion and restraint and psychiatric medications for psychiatric patients [Health & Safety Code § 1799.111(d)]. In addition, these provisions do not limit any existing duties for psychotherapists contained in Civ. Code § 43.92, which are discussed in Ch. 304, Insane and Other Incompetent Persons [Health & Safety Code § 1799.111(f)].

Persons detained under these provisions retain their legal rights regarding consent for medical treatment [Health & Safety Code § 1799.111(d)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

25-295 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 295.15

§ 295.15 Notice of Intention to Commence Action

[1] In General

When a plaintiff sues a health care provider for professional negligence, the plaintiff must give the defendant at least 90 days prior notice of his or her intention to commence the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 364(a)] unless the defendant is identified by a fictitious name in the complaint pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 474 [Code Civ. Proc. § 364(e)]. For the purpose of this notice requirement, the term "health care provider" includes, among others, licensed medical personnel and hospitals licensed as health facilities under Health & Safety Code § 1250 et seq. [Code Civ. Proc. § 364(f)(1)]; "professional negligence" means a negligent act or omission by a health care provider in the rendering of professional services, which act or omission is the proximate cause of a personal injury or wrongful death, provided that such services are within the scope of services for which the provider is licensed and are not within any restriction imposed by the licensing agency or hospital [Code Civ. Proc. § 364(f)(2)].

Although no particular form of notice is required, the notice must inform the defendant of the legal basis of the plaintiff's claim and the type of loss sustained, including with specificity the nature of the injuries suffered [Code Civ. Proc. § 364(b); for a form of notice of intention to commence action, see § 295.50].

The notice may be served in the manner prescribed by Code Civ. Proc. § 1010 et seq. [Code Civ. Proc. § 364(c)]. If it is served in the last 90 days of the applicable period of limitation, the statute of limitations is tolled for 90 days [see Russell v. Stanford University Hospital (1997) 15 Cal. 4th 783, 791, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d 97, 937 P.2d 640 (three-year statute of limitations); Woods v. Young (1991) 53 Cal. 3d 315, 328, 279 Cal. Rptr. 613, 807 P.2d 455] . The effect of the 90-day notice period on the statute of limitations is further discussed in Ch. 415, Physicians: Medical Malpractice .

Failure to comply with the notice requirement of Code Civ. Proc. § 364 does not invalidate any proceedings of any court in California, nor does it affect the jurisdiction of the court to render a judgment. However, failure to comply with the notice requirement by an attorney at law is grounds for professional discipline [Code Civ. Proc. § 365]. Because failure to comply with the notice requirement is not jurisdictional, the failure to allege each injury suffered in the notice does not prevent a plaintiff from including that injury as a basis for a cause of action in the lawsuit subsequently filed, so long as the cause of action is not otherwise barred by the statute of limitations [Edwards v. Superior Court (2001)

The notice provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 364 do not apply in battery actions. Thus, a plaintiff may not extend the one-year statute of limitations for battery by filing a notice within 90 days of the statute's expiration [see Noble v. Superior Court (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 1189, 1192-1194, 237 Cal. Rptr. 38 (action against physician)].

[2] Notice to Public Entity

The filing of the notice of intention pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 364 does not constitute the filing of a claim against a public entity, at least when the notice of intention does not include or set forth any of the matters required by Gov. Code § 910 to be enumerated on the face of a claim [see Lutz v. Tri-City Hospital (1986) 179 Cal. App. 3d 807, 812-813, 224 Cal. Rptr. 787 (notice did not constitute filing of late claim for purposes of requiring response within 45 days to avoids waiver of right to contest lateness of claim under Gov. Code § 911.3)]. Nevertheless, a notice pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 364 not meeting the requirements of Gov. Code § 910 constitutes a "claim as presented" if it alerts the public entity to a claim for monetary damages and an impending lawsuit [Phillips v. Desert Hospital Dist. (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 699, 709, 263 Cal. Rptr. 119, 780 P.2d 349] . As such, the notice triggers an obligation on the part of the public entity to notify the plaintiff of any defects and provide the plaintiff with an opportunity to file a claim meeting statutory requirements [Phillips v. Desert Hospital Dist. (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 699, 709, 263 Cal. Rptr. 119, 780 P.2d 349 ; see Gov. Code §§ 910.8 (requiring public entity to notify plaintiff if claim is substantively deficient), 911.3(a) (requiring public entity to notify claimant if claim is filed late)]. If the public entity fails to provide this notice, the entity waives any defenses based on defects in the "claim as presented" [Gov. Code §§ 911, 911.3(b); see Phillips v. Desert Hospital Dist. (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 699, 711, 263 Cal. Rptr. 119, 780 P.2d 349] .

For general discussion of claim requirements under the Tort Claims Act, see Ch. 464, Public Entities and Officers: California Tort Claims Act .

§ 295.16 Actions by Minors

A civil action to recover damages for wrongful death or personal injury is entitled to preference on the motion of any party to the action who is under the age of 14 years unless the court finds that the party does not have a substantial interest in the case as a whole [Code Civ. Proc. § 36(b)]. On the granting of a motion for preference under Code Civ. Proc. § 36(b), a party in an action based on a health care provider's alleged professional negligence, as defined in Code Civ. Proc. § 364, must receive a trial date not sooner than six months and not later than nine months from the date that the motion is granted [Code Civ. Proc. § 36(g)]. For a form of complaint by a minor and parents against a hospital and its employees, see § 295.60.

Prior to January 1, 1989, in any action for damages arising out of the professional negligence of specified health care providers, including physicians and surgeons, a complaint was demurrable and the plaintiff's attorney was subject to discipline unless counsel complied with former Code Civ. Proc. § 411.30 [see Stats. 1986, ch. 247], which required the filing of a certificate of merit or other certificate as specified.

Former Code Civ. Proc. § 411.30 was repealed by its own terms on January 1, 1989 [see former Code Civ. Proc. § 411.30(j)]. As of January 1, 2003, no provision analogous to former Code Civ. Proc. § 411.30 had been added to the Code of Civil Procedure.

§ 295.18 Damages

[1] In General

In an action by a patient against a hospital for negligently inflicted injuries, as in all actions based on negligence, the general measure of damages is the amount which will compensate the plaintiff for all the detriment proximately caused by the defendant's breach of duty, whether or not such detriment could have been anticipated [Civ. Code § 3333]. When a plaintiff sues a health care provider for professional negligence, however, plaintiff's recovery is subject to special treatment under the provisions of Civ. Code §§ 3333.1 and 3333.2 and Code Civ. Proc. § 667.7, which sections do not apply to other negligence actions. For the purposes of these statutes, the term "professional negligence" means negligent conduct by a health care provider in rendering professional services which proximately causes injury and wrongful death, provided that such services are within the scope of services for which the provider is licensed and are not within any restriction imposed by the licensing authority or the hospital [Civ. Code §§ 3333.1(c)(2), 3333.2(c)(2); Code Civ. Proc. § 667.7(e)(4); see Bell v. Sharp Cabrillo Hospital (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 1034, 1051, 260 Cal. Rptr. 886 (hospital's breach of its duty to exercise reasonable care in reviewing competency of its staff physicians as "professional negligence")], and the term "health care provider" includes, among others, licensed medical personnel and hospitals licensed as health facilities under Health & Safety Code §§ 1250-1339.50 [Civ. Code §§ 3333.1(c)(1), 3333.2(c)(1); Code Civ. Proc. § 667.7(e)(3)].

Under Civ. Code § 3333.1(a), the defendant may introduce evidence of any amount payable as a benefit to the plaintiff as a result of his or her injury pursuant to the United States Social Security Act, any state or federal income disability or worker's compensation act, any health, sickness, or income-disability insurance, accident insurance, and any contract or agreement of any group, organization, partnership, or corporation to provide, pay for, or reimburse the cost of medical, hospital, dental, or other health care services. If the defendant elects to introduce such evidence, the plaintiff may introduce evidence of any amount which the plaintiff has paid or contributed to secure his or her right to any insurance benefits concerning which the defendant has introduced evidence. No source of collateral benefits introduced pursuant to Civ. Code § 3333.1(a) may recover any amount against the plaintiff nor may it be subrogated to the rights of the plaintiff against a defendant [Civ. Code § 3333.1(b)]. However, some benefit providers, such as the Medi-Cal program, have a statutory right to recover from third-party tortfeasors [see, e.g., Hernandez v. California Hospital Medical Center (2000) 78 Cal. App. 4th 498, 506, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 97] . For further discussion of these lien rights, see Ch. 177, Damages, § 177.40 et seq.

A defendant's evidence of collateral benefits presented pursuant to Civ. Code § 3333.1, even collateral payment of all damages, does not constitute summary judgment proof that the plaintiff sustained no damages such that the plaintiff may not prosecute the action. Instead, it is for the jury to decide how to apply the evidence of collateral payments when calculating damages [Hernandez v. California Hospital Medical Center (2000) 78 Cal. App. 4th 498, 506, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 97] .

Although evidence of the amount of any insurance or disability benefits received by the plaintiff is admissible under Civ. Code § 3333.1, that statute does not provide a right to introduce evidence of the taxability of those benefits. Allowing this type of evidence would invite undue jury speculation on how tax liability might affect the plaintiff's future income [Cox. v. Superior Court (2002) 98 Cal. App. 4th 670, 675, 120 Cal. Rptr. 2d 45] .

Under Civ. Code § 3333.2, the plaintiff may not recover more than $250,000 for noneconomic or nonpecuniary losses such as pain, suffering, inconvenience, physical impairment, or disfigurement. Civ. Code § 1431.2(a) requires noneconomic damages in actions for personal injury and wrongful death to be apportioned severally, according to comparative fault, between multiple defendants. For defendants whose liability is limited by MICRA, the $250,000 cap on noneconomic damages under Civ. Code § 3333.2 must be applied to a noneconomic damage award before the reduction of those damages based on comparative fault under Civ. Code § 1431.2 [Gilman v. Beverly California Corp. (1991) 231 Cal. App. 3d 121, 126-130, 283 Cal. Rptr. 17] . However, in adjusting damages to account for the comparative fault of nonparties who are not subject to MICRA, a noneconomic damages award should be reduced prior to applying the $250,000 cap [Francies v. Kapla (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 1381, 1387-1389, 26 Cal. Rptr. 3d 501] .

The $250,000 limit on noneconomic damages applies to an action for equitable indemnity brought against a hospital by a third party [Western Steamship Lines, Inc. v. San Pedro General Hospital (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 100, 111, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 263] . Therefore, the damage cap applied in an action against a hospital by a ship owner, in which the owner had settled a maritime worker's claim for substandard medical care by the ship's medical staff prior and sought equitable indemnity against the hospital, where the worker was subsequently admitted and incurred aggravation of his injuries [Western Steamship Lines, Inc. v. San Pedro General Hospital (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 100, 111, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 263] .

In addition, if an employer entity, such as a medical partnership group, is vicariously liable for the professional malpractice of a physician employed by the entity, the cap on noneconomic damages applies to any damages awarded against the employer [Lathrop v. HealthCare Partners Med. Group (2004) 114 Cal. App. 4th 1412, 1424, 8 Cal. Rptr. 3d 668] . Under the doctrine of respondeat superior, regardless of whether the employee is also sued, the vicarious liability of the employer is wholly derived from the liability of the employee, and any defenses available to the employee also inure to the benefit of the employer [Lathrop v. HealthCare Partners Med. Group (2004) 114 Cal. App. 4th 1412, 1423, 8 Cal. Rptr. 3d 668] .

[2] Future Damages

Code Civ. Proc. § 667.7 provides a procedure by which either party to an action in which the award equals or exceeds $50,000 in future damages may secure a judgment in a superior court ordering that money damages or its equivalent in future damages of the judgment creditor be paid in whole or in part by periodic payments rather than by lump-sum payment. Future damages subject to this procedure include damages for future medical treatment, care, or custody, loss of future earnings, loss of bodily function, or future pain and suffering of the judgment creditor [Code Civ. Proc. § 667.7(e)(1); see Fein v. Permanente Medical Group (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 137, 155-178, 211 Cal. Rptr. 368, 695 P.2d 665 (upholding constitutionality of Civ. Code §§ 3333.1, 3333.2; periodic payments as mandatory under Code Civ. Proc. § 667.7)].

A court is not required to order periodic payments of damages for future loss of earnings attributable to the period by which plaintiff's life expectancy was diminished as a result of defendant's negligence [Hurlbut v. Sonora Community Hospital (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 388, 405-406, 254 Cal. Rptr. 840] . A party's request for periodic payment of future damages pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 667.7 must be made prior to the entry of any judgment in the action [Craven v. Crout (1985) 163 Cal. App. 3d 779, 784, 209 Cal. Rptr. 649] . If the defendant has put the plaintiff on notice at the pleading stage of his or her intention to seek periodic future damages, and the trial court has instructed the jury to designate the portion of the damages that was attributable to future damages, a formal request for periodic payment of future damages may be made following delivery of the verdict [see Gorman v. Leftwich (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 141, 152, 266 Cal. Rptr. 671] . A jury award of lump sum damages in a malpractice award cannot be modified by the court to allow periodic payment of future damages under Code Civ. Proc. § 667.7 when the jury has not identified the amount of damages subject to periodic payment, and the defendant's request for periodic payment was not made until after the judgment was entered [Craven v. Crout (1985) 163 Cal. App. 3d 779, 783-785, 209 Cal. Rptr. 649] . See Ch. 415, Physicians: Medical Malpractice , for discussion and forms relating to the procedure for securing a judgment for periodic payment of future damages.

[3] Punitive Damages

No claim for punitive damages against a health care provider may be included in a complaint or other pleading unless the court enters an order allowing an amended pleading that includes a claim for punitive damages to be filed [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.13]. The court may allow the filing of an amended pleading claiming punitive damages on a motion by the party seeking the amended pleading and on the basis of the supporting and opposing affidavits presented that the plaintiff has established that there is a substantial probability that the plaintiff will prevail on the claim pursuant to Civ. Code § 3294 [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.13].

In determining whether a plaintiff has satisfied this standard, a trial court may not independently assess the evidence supporting the punitive damage claim in order to determine whether the claim should go to the jury. Rather, the statutory standard is met if the plaintiff states a viable claim for punitive damages and shows that the claim is supported by competent, admissible evidence [College Hospital, Inc. v. Superior Court (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 704, 719, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 898, 882 P.2d 894] . The court shall not grant a motion allowing the filing of an amended pleading that includes a claim for punitive damages if the motion for such an order is not filed within two years after the complaint or initial pleading is filed or not less than nine months before the date the matter is first set for trial, whichever is earlier [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.13(a); see Code Civ. Proc. § 425.13(b) (definition of health care provider)]. For a general discussion of the availability of punitive damages, see Ch. 177, Damages . For further discussion and forms for obtaining an order under Code Civ. Proc. § 425.13, see Ch. 415, Physicians: Medical Malpractice .

§ 295.19 Security for Costs

In an action against a licensed hospital for injuries resulting from the negligent performance of professional services or the performance of professional services without consent by a medical practitioner in the employ of the hospital, the defendant may, within six months after service of summons, move the court for an order, on notice to plaintiff and all defendants having appeared in the action and hearing, requiring plaintiff to furnish an undertaking in a sum not to exceed $500 as security for costs which may be awarded against plaintiff. The motion must be supported by affidavit (or declaration under penalty of perjury [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) showing that the claim against defendant is frivolous. Any other defendant having appeared in the action and within 30 days after receipt of notice may join with the moving party requesting an order as to such additional defendant. The failure of any defendant to join with the moving party precludes each such defendant from subsequently requesting such order [Code Civ. Proc. § 1029.6(a)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

25-295 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 295.20

§ 295.20 Hearing, Order, and Limitation on Amount

[1] Filing Undertaking

At the hearing on the motion, the court is required to order plaintiff to file an undertaking if defendant shows to the satisfaction of the court that (1) plaintiff would not suffer undue economic hardship in filing the undertaking or making the deposit, and (2) there is no reasonable possibility that plaintiff has a cause of action against each named defendant with respect to whom plaintiff would otherwise be required to file the undertaking [Code Civ. Proc. § 1029.6(a)].

A determination by the court that an undertaking either shall or shall not be furnished, or shall be furnished to one or more defendants and not to others, shall not be deemed a determination of any one or more issues in the action or of the merits thereof [Code Civ. Proc. § 1029.6(a)]. When more than one such defendant is named, the undertaking must be increased to an extent not exceeding $500 for each additional defendant in whose favor the undertaking is ordered, not to exceed the total of $1,000 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1029.6(c)].

The action as to such defendant or defendants must be dismissed unless the undertaking required is furnished within such reasonable time as may be fixed by the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 1029.6(a)].

The undertaking must be in writing [see Code Civ. Proc. § 995.320(a)] and must be executed by two or more sufficient personal sureties or by one sufficient admitted surety insurer or by any combination of sufficient personal sureties and admitted surety insurers [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.310]. For discussion of procedures under the Bond and Undertaking Law (Code Civ. Proc. §§ 995.010-996.560) generally and related forms, see Ch. 538, Suretyship, Bonds, and Undertakings, § 538.40 et seq.

[2] Award of Costs

On dismissal of the action or the award of judgment to defendant, the court must require plaintiff to pay defendant's court costs. Any sureties shall be liable for such costs in an amount not to exceed the sum of $500 or the amount of the undertaking, whichever is less, for each defendant with respect to whom the sureties have executed an undertaking. If plaintiff prevails in the action against any defendant with respect to whom the undertaking has been filed, such defendant must pay to plaintiff the costs incurred in defending the motion for dismissal authorized by Code Civ. Proc. §

1029.6 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1029.6(d)].

[3] Summary Judgment

A defendant filing a motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 1029.6 or joining with a party making such motion is precluded from subsequently filing a motion for summary judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 1029.6(e)], and a defendant filing a motion for summary judgment is precluded from subsequently filing a motion for an undertaking, or joining with a party making such motion [Code Civ. Proc. § 1029.6(f)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

§ 295.21 Attorney's Fees

An attorney may not contract for, or collect, a contingency fee for representing any person seeking damages in connection with an action for injury or damage against a health care provider based on such person's alleged professional negligence in excess of the following limits [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6146(a)]:

- Forty percent of the first $50,000 recovered;
- Thirty-three and one-third percent of the next $50,000 recovered;
- Twenty-five percent of the next $500,000 recovered; and
- Fifteen percent of any amount on which the recovery exceeds $600,000.

These limitations apply regardless of whether the recovery is by settlement, arbitration, or judgment, or whether the person for whom the recovery is made is a responsible adult, an infant, or a person of unsound mind [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6146(a)]. A trial court does not have the power to award extraordinary attorney's fees under Bus. & Prof. Code § 6146 [Hathaway v. Baldwin Park Community Hospital (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 1247, 1253, 231 Cal. Rptr. 334] . Furthermore, a client may not waive the provisions of Bus. & Prof. Code § 6146 by agreeing to pay fees in excess of the statutory limits [Fineberg v. Harney & Moore (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 1049, 1055, 255 Cal. Rptr. 299] . An attorney who obtains a waiver of the statutory fee limits from a client knowing that a waiver is illegal may be subject to an action for malpractice, for fraud, or to recover money had and received [see Schultz v. Harney (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th 1611, 1620-1624, 33 Cal. Rptr. 2d 276 (although attorney's actions were taken before court adjudication that waiver of statutory limits was ineffectual, client had malpractice cause of action against attorney for getting waiver from client, as well as action to recover money had and received, and, although not pleaded properly, fraud cause of action may also have been available)].

An attorney representing several plaintiffs in a wrongful death case based on professional negligence must apply the fee scale in Bus. & Prof. Code § 6146(a) to the judgment as a whole. The attorney may not compute fees separately on each plaintiff's share of the award [Yates v. Law Offices of Samuel Shore (1991) 229 Cal. App. 3d 583, 590, 280 Cal. Rptr.

Bus. & Prof. Code § 6146 fixes the maximum allowable contingent fee for a medical malpractice action as a whole, including an appeal, and the limitation may not be avoided by charging separate fees for segments of the case or by charging both contingent and hourly fees [see Yates v. Law Offices of Samuel Shore (1991) 229 Cal. App. 3d 583, 591-592, 280 Cal. Rptr. 316 (attorney is prohibited from charging in excess of statutory formula for hourly fees of attorney associated to handle appeal)].

The 1987 amendment to Bus. & Prof. Code § 6146, which increased the maximum contingency fee in medical malpractice lawsuits resulting in recoveries greater than $200,000, operates prospectively only. The original 1975 version of Bus. & Prof. Code § 6146, not the 1987 amendment, sets the maximum fee in cases in which the contingency fee agreement for legal representation was entered into before the effective date of the 1987 amendment (January 1, 1988), even if settlement and fee distribution took place after the effective date of the amendment [Wienholz v. Kaiser Foundation Hospitals (1989) 217 Cal. App. 3d 1501, 1503, 267 Cal. Rptr. 1 ; see also former Bus. & Prof. Code § 6146 (allowing straight 10 percent on recoveries over $200,000)].

The constitutionality of the contingency fee limitations of Bus. & Prof. Code § 6146 has been upheld by the California Supreme Court, which rejected the contentions that the limitations constituted a denial of due process, violation of equal protection, or violation of the separation of powers doctrine [Roa v. Lodi Medical Group, Inc. (1985) 37 Cal. 3d 920, 933, 211 Cal. Rptr. 77, 695 P.2d 164 ; see also Fineberg v. Harney & Moore (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 1049, 1054-1055, 255 Cal. Rptr. 299 (Bus. & Prof. Code § 6146 does not deprive client of right to counsel)].

A contingency-fee contract for representation against a health care provider in an action for professional negligence must contain a statement of the maximum limits set forth by Bus. & Prof. Code § 6146, and must also state that the attorney and client may negotiate a lower rate [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6147(a)(5)]. If this information is omitted, the contract is voidable at the plaintiff's option. If the option is exercised, the attorney may collect a reasonable fee [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6147(b)]. For a discussion of other requirements applying to contingency-fee contracts, see Ch. 72, Attorney Practice and Ethics .

For the purpose of Bus. & Prof. Code § 6146(a), the term "health care provider" includes, among others, licensed medical personnel and hospitals licensed as health facilities under Health & Safety Code §§ 1250-1339.50 [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6146(c)(2)]; "professional negligence" means a negligent act or omission by a health care provider in the rendering of professional services, which act or omission is the proximate cause of a personal injury or wrongful death, provided that such services are within the scope of services for which the provider is licensed and are not within any restriction imposed by the licensing agency or hospital [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6146(c)(3)]; the term "recovered" means the net sum recovered after deducting any disbursements or costs incurred in connection with prosecution or settlement of the claim. Costs of medical care incurred by the plaintiff and the attorney's office-overhead costs or charges are not deductible disbursements or costs for such purpose [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6146(c)(1)].

If periodic payments are awarded to the plaintiff pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 667.7 (see § 295.18, above), the court must place a total value on these payments based upon the projected life expectancy of the plaintiff and include this amount in computing the total award from which attorney's fees are calculated under this section [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6146(b)]. The appropriate measure of the recovery, for purposes of determining the contingent fee, is the present value of the future periodic payments, not the arithmetic sum of all future payments required by the award [Schneider v. Kaiser Foundation Hospitals (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 1311, 1314, 1320, 264 Cal. Rptr. 227 , disapproved on other grounds, Moncharsh v. Heily & Blase (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 1]. If the future periodic payments are to be made from an annuity purchased by the defendant from a third-party insurance company, the cost of this annuity to the defendant typically is the best measure of present value [see Schneider v. Kaiser Foundation Hospitals (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 1311, 1314, 1319-1320, 264 Cal. Rptr. 227 , disapproved on other grounds, Moncharsh v. Heily & Blase (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 1].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

§ 295.22 Res Ipsa Loquitur

[1] Creation of the Presumption

[a] In General

In an action by a patient against a hospital for negligently inflicted injuries, a presumption that the defendant's negligence proximately caused the plaintiff's injury arises under the doctrine of res ipsa loquitur when the plaintiff establishes that (1) his or her injury is of a kind which does not ordinarily occur in the absence of someone's negligence, (2) the injury was caused by an agency or instrumentality in the exclusive control of the defendant, and (3) no voluntary conduct on the plaintiff's part was a responsible cause of the injury [Vistica v. Presbyterian Hospital (1967) 67 Cal. 2d 465, 469-470, 62 Cal. Rptr. 577, 432 P.2d 193 ; Cline v. Lund (1973) 31 Cal. App. 3d 755, 761, 107 Cal. Rptr. 629] . Alternatively stated, a plaintiff is entitled to the benefit of a res ipsa presumption against the defendant when it can be said, in light of past experience, that his or her injury was more probably than not the result of someone's negligence and that the defendant was probably the person responsible [Rimmele v. Northridge Hosp. Foundation (1975) 46 Cal. App. 3d 123, 129, 120 Cal. Rptr. 39] .

[b] Pleading

A plaintiff may invoke the doctrine of res ipsa loquitur at trial if his or her complaint contains a general allegation of the defendant's negligence. A charging allegation is considered general rather than specific even though specific matters in connection with the plaintiff's injury are pleaded if the allegation shows the plaintiff's ignorance of the underlying cause of or the specific acts resulting in his or her injury or if the allegation notifies the defendant that he or she must meet an inference of negligence arising from the specific acts or omissions charged [Sherman v. Hartman (1955) 137 Cal. App. 2d 589, 597-599, 290 P.2d 894] .

A form of complaint that may be used to in an action in which res ipsa loquitur will be an issue, see § 295.61.

[c] Effect of Proving Specific Acts of Negligence

The introduction of evidence of specific acts of negligence does not deprive a plaintiff of the benefit of the doctrine of res ipsa loquitur unless the facts as to the cause of the accident and the care exercised by the defendant are shown as a matter of law [Gin Non Louie v. Chinese Hospital Ass'n (1967) 249 Cal. App. 2d 774, 795, 57 Cal. Rptr. 906] .

[d] Probability of Defendant's Negligence

To establish that his or her injury is probably the result of the defendant's negligence, a plaintiff may rely on common knowledge, expert testimony, or both [Seneris v. Haas (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 811, 824-825, 291 P.2d 915] . Expert testimony is required when the plaintiff's injury occurs in the course of medical treatment involving the exercise of professional judgment which can only be assessed in the light of scientific opinion but not when the plaintiff's injury occurs in the course of medical treatment which is within the common knowledge of laymen or when the conduct allegedly causing the injury is not inextricably bound up with medical treatment [Meier v. Ross Gen. Hosp. (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 420, 429-431, 71 Cal. Rptr. 903, 445 P.2d 519] .

Evidence that a plaintiff's injury is a rare but inherent risk of a particular medical treatment undergone by the plaintiff is insufficient by itself to prove that the injury was probably caused by negligence [see, e.g., Curtis v. Santa Clara Valley Med. Ctr. (2003) 110 Cal. App. 4th 796, 802-803, 2 Cal. Rptr. 3d 73 (expert testimony required to establish that defendants were negligent during spinal surgery, because plaintiff's resulting blindness was known, albeit rare, complication that can occur from such surgery)]. However, evidence that the plaintiff's injury is a known risk of a medical treatment which rarely occurs when due care is exercised coupled with evidence of specific acts of negligence by the defendant may afford reasonable grounds, under the particular facts of a case, for believing that the injury was more probably than not the result of the defendant's negligence [Quintal v. Laurel Grove Hospital (1964) 62 Cal. 2d 154, 165-166, 41 Cal. Rptr. 577, 397 P.2d 161 ; Cline v. Lund (1973) 31 Cal. App. 3d 755, 763, 107 Cal. Rptr. 629 ; compare Clemens v. Regents of University of California (1970) 8 Cal. App. 3d 1, 12, 87 Cal. Rptr. 108 (res ipsa instruction inapplicable under facts of case despite evidence that injury was unusual result of treatment coupled with evidence of defendant's negligence)].

The res ipsa loquitur doctrine is often invoked if a plaintiff's injuries were apparently caused while the plaintiff was under anesthesia, which can make it difficult for the plaintiff to produce evidence of the exact cause of the injury. Even under those circumstances, however, a plaintiff may be required to produce some expert testimony that his or her injuries were probably caused by events that took place while the plaintiff was unconscious, rather than caused by some other unrelated event or etiology, in order to succeed under the res ipsa loquitur doctrine [see, e.g., Elcome v. Chin (2003) 110 Cal. App. 4th 310, 320-321, 1 Cal. Rptr. 3d 631] .

[e] Defendant's Control

When a plaintiff's injury during medical treatment raises an inference of negligence as the proximate cause of the injury but the plaintiff is unable to identify the particular instrumentality or person in control of the instrumentality which caused the injury because the plaintiff was unconscious at the time of the injury, the plaintiff is entitled to invoke the res ipsa presumption against all persons who had actual control or the right to control the plaintiff's body or an instrumentality which might have caused the injury [Ybarra v. Spangard (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 486, 492-494, 154 P.2d 687 ; see Oldis v. La Societe Francaise (1955) 130 Cal. App. 2d 461, 463-465, 279 P.2d 184 (rule applied when patient could not reasonably have known cause of injury because he was suffering great pain and was drugged); but see Elcome v. Chin (2003) 110 Cal. App. 4th 310, 320-321, 1 Cal. Rptr. 3d 631 (expert testimony may be required to establish probability of negligence of those in control as cause of injury)].

A surgeon cannot escape application of the res ipsa loquitur doctrine by arguing that a nurse assisting with surgery was responsible for violating a duty that is ultimately the responsibility of the surgeon. For example, a surgeon has a nondelegable duty to ensure that all sponges and other foreign objects are removed from a patient before a surgery is completed [Baumgardner v. Yusuf (2006) 144 Cal. App. 4th 1381, 1393-1395, 51 Cal. Rptr. 3d 277] . Because the surgeon has responsibility to control the details of a surgery, application of the res ipsa loquitur doctrine is appropriate in a suit against the surgeon when a sponge or other foreign object is inadvertently left in a patient's body after surgery [Baumgardner v. Yusuf (2006) 144 Cal. App. 4th 1381, 1390-1392, 51 Cal. Rptr. 3d 277] . Although a hospital's own protocol may place responsibility for monitoring this part of the surgery on the hospital's nursing staff, the surgeon remains responsible for ensuring that no foreign objects are left in a patient even if the surgeon checks with the nursing staff before completing the surgery [Baumgardner v. Yusuf (2006) 144 Cal. App. 4th 1381, 1399, 51 Cal. Rptr. 3d 277] .

[f] Plaintiff's Participation

A plaintiff may properly rely on res ipsa loquitur even though he or she has participated in the events leading to the injury if the evidence excludes his or her conduct as a responsible cause [Meier v. Ross Gen. Hosp. (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 420, 427, 71 Cal. Rptr. 903, 445 P.2d 519 (patient's actions excluded as responsible cause of injury by evidence that hospital was obligated to protect patient against such actions)].

[2] Operation of Presumption

When the evidence relating to the facts conditioning the application of res ipsa loquitur is conflicting or subject to different inferences but the plaintiff has produced sufficient evidence to permit the trier of fact to draw the inference that the defendant's negligence probably caused the plaintiff's injuries, a conditional res ipsa presumption arises: before applying the presumption against the defendant, the trier of fact must determine that the conditional facts are established by a preponderance of the evidence [see Evid. Code § 646 and Law Revision Commission Comment thereto; Seneris v. Haas (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 811, 826-827, 291 P.2d 915 ; see Rimmele v. Northridge Hosp. Foundation (1975) 46 Cal. App. 3d 123, 130-131, 120 Cal. Rptr. 39 (prejudicial error to instruct jury to determine existence of conditional facts established as matter of law as well as conditional facts the existence of which was disputed)].

If the facts giving rise to the res ipsa presumption are found to exist, either by the trier of fact or by the court as a matter of law, the trier of fact is required to find that plaintiff's injuries resulted from defendant's negligence unless the defendant comes forward with evidence sufficient to support a finding that he or she was not negligent or that any negligence on his or her part was not a proximate cause of plaintiff's injury [see Evid. Code § 646 and Law Revision Commission Comment thereto; Dierman v. Providence Hosp. (1947) 31 Cal. 2d 290, 295, 188 P.2d 12] . Since the doctrine of res ipsa loquitur is a presumption affecting the burden of producing evidence [Evid. Code § 646(b)], upon the introduction of such rebuttal evidence by defendant, the res ipsa presumption is dispelled as a matter of law [Evid. Code § 604; see Evid. Code § 646 and Law Revision Commission Comment thereto; Slater v. Kehoe (1974) 38 Cal. App. 3d 819, 833, 113 Cal. Rptr. 790] . In such a case, the trier of fact may usually use the established facts supporting the dispelled presumption as circumstantial evidence on which to base an inference of the defendant's negligence [see Evid. Code §§ 604, 646 and Law Revision Commission Comments thereto; Slater v. Kehoe (1974) 38 Cal. App. 3d 819, 833, 113 Cal. Rptr. 790] , an inference which must be weighed against the other evidence in the case when the trier of fact is determining whether plaintiff's injury was more probably than not the result of defendant's negligence [see Evid. Code § 646 and Law Revision Commission Comment thereto]. If, however, the defendant's evidence which dispels the res ipsa presumption is clear, positive, uncontradicted, and of such a nature that it cannot be rationally disbelieved, an inference of the defendant's negligence is dispelled as a matter of law [Leonard v. Watsonville Community Hosp. (1956) 47 Cal. 2d 509, 518, 305 P.2d 36] .

Chapter 295 HOSPITALS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

25-295 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 295.23

§ 295.23 Hospital Records

[1] Discovery

The statutes governing the discovery of hospital records in civil actions include Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1985 (subpoena duces tecum for production of documents or other tangible things at deposition on oral examination), 2019 (notice to party to produce documents or other tangible things at deposition on oral examination), and 2031 (motion for party to produce documents or other tangible things for inspection or copying). For procedural guides and forms related to these methods of discovery, see Ch. 195, Discovery: Inspection of Tangible Evidence and Ch. 535, Subpoena . For discussion of Welf. & Inst. Code § 5328, which governs the release of records of patients receiving services for mental disorders under Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 5000-7518, see Ch. 304, Insane and Other Incompetent Persons .

[2] Discovery by Attorney Before Commencing Action

Evid. Code § 1158 permits an attorney to inspect or copy the records of a patient in the custody or control of a licensed hospital before filing an action whenever the attorney presents a written authorization signed by the patient, the guardian or conservator of an adult patient, the parent or guardian of a minor patient, or the personal representative or heir of a deceased patient. Failure to make such records available within five days after presentation of the written authorization may subject the hospital to liability for all reasonable expenses, including attorney's fees, incurred in any proceeding to enforce the attorney's right to inspect and copy the records [Evid. Code § 1158]. A patient may file a civil action to enforce this statute if the hospital fails to make records available under the conditions prescribed by the statute [Thornburg v. El Centro Reg'l Med. Ctr. (2006) 143 Cal. App. 4th 198, 204-205, 48 Cal. Rptr. 3d 840 (private action allowed if hospital charged much higher fees than statute permitted)]. For discussion and forms relating to the presentation of a request for a patient's records pursuant to Evid. Code § 1158 and suggested methods of enforcing such a request, see DeMeo, California Deposition and Discovery Practice, § 2.01(22) (Matthew Bender).

All reasonable costs incurred by the hospital in making patient records available pursuant to Evid. Code § 1158 may be charged against the person whose written authorization required the availability of those records. Reasonable costs include, but are not limited to, 10 cents per page for standard reproduction of standard documents, 20 cents per page for copying documents from microfilm, actual costs for reproduction of documents requiring special processing, reasonable clerical costs in locating and making the records available to be billed at the maximum rate of $16 per hour per person, actual postage charges, and actual costs charged to the witness by a third person for the retrieval and return of records held by that third person. When the records are delivered to the attorney or the attorney's representative for inspection or photocopying at the record custodian's place of business, the only fee for complying with the authorization shall not exceed $15, plus actual costs, if any, charged to the record custodian by a third person for retrieval and return of records held offsite by the third person [Evid. Code § 1158].

No copying may be performed by the medical provider or its agent when the requesting attorney has employed a professional photocopier or anyone identified in Bus. & Prof. Code § 22451 as his or her representative to obtain or review the records on behalf of the attorney. The presentation of the authorization by the agent on behalf of the attorney is sufficient proof that the agent is the attorney's representative [Evid. Code § 1158].

[3] Patient Access to Health Records

[a] Right to Access

Every person having ultimate responsibility for decisions respecting his or her own health care also possesses a concomitant right of access to complete information respecting his or her condition and care provided. Similarly, persons having responsibility for decisions respecting the health care of others should, in general, have access to information on the patient's condition and care. Therefore, the legislature has enacted Health & Safety Code § 123100 et seq. to establish procedures for providing access to health care records or summaries of them by patients and by those persons having responsibility for decisions respecting the health care of others [Health & Safety Code § 123100].

[b] Definitions

The following definitions apply in Health & Safety Code § 123100 et seq. regarding patient access to health records.

"Health care provider" means any of the following [Health & Safety Code § 123100(a)]:

- A health facility licensed pursuant to Health & Safety Code § 1250 et seq.
- A clinic licensed pursuant to Health & Safety Code § 1200 et seq.
- A home health agency licensed pursuant to Health & Safety Code § 1725 et seq.
- A physician and surgeon licensed pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code § 2000 et seq. or pursuant to the Osteopathic Act.
- A podiatrist licensed pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code § 2460 et seq.
- A dentist licensed pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code § 1600 et seq.
- A psychologist licensed pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code § 2900 et seq.
- An optometrist licensed pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code § 3000 et seq.
- A chiropractor licensed pursuant to the Chiropractic Initiative Act (Stats. 1923, p. lxxxviii).
- A marriage, family, and child counselor licensed pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code § 4980 et seq.
- A clinical social worker licensed pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code § 4900 et seq.

The term "patient records" means records in any form or medium maintained by, or in the custody or control of, a health care provider relating to the health history, diagnosis, or condition of a patient, or relating to treatment provided or proposed to be provided to the patient. Patient records include only records pertaining to the patient requesting the records or whose representative requests the records. The term does notinclude information given in confidence to a health care provider by a person other than another health care provider or the patient, and such material may be removed from any records prior to inspection or copying under Health & Safety Code § 123110 or 123115. The term also does not include information contained in aggregate form, such as indices, registers, or logs [Health & Safety Code § 123100(d)].

The term "mental health records" means patient records, or discrete portions thereof, specifically relating to evaluation or treatment of a mental disorder. Mental health records include, but are not limited to, all alcohol and drug abuse records [Health & Safety Code § 123105(b)].

The term "alcohol and drug abuse records" means patient records, or discrete portions thereof, specifically relating to evaluation and treatment of alcoholism or drug abuse [Health & Safety Code § 123105(f)].

The term "patient" means a patient or former patient of a health care provider [Health & Safety Code § 123105(c)].

The term "patient's representative" or "representative" means a parent or the guardian of a minor who is a patient, or the guardian or conservator of the person of an adult patient, or the beneficiary or personal representative of a deceased patient [Health & Safety Code § 123105(e)]. The term also includes an agent under a power of attorney for health care, to the extent necessary for the agent to fulfill his or her duties under Prob. Code § 4600 et seq. [Health & Safety Code § 123105(e)(3)].

[c] Request to Inspect and Copy Patient Records

Despite Welf. & Inst. Code § 5328 (confidentiality of mental health records; see discussion in Ch. 304, Insane and Other Incompetent Persons , and except as provided in Health & Safety Code §§ 123115 (see [e] and [f], below) and 123120 (see [l], below), any adult patient of a health care provide, any minor patient authorized by law to consent to medical treatment, and any patient representative is entitled to inspect patient records on presenting to the health care provider a written request therefor and on payment of reasonable clerical costs incurred in locating and making the records available. A patient who is a minor, however, is entitled to inspect patient records pertaining only to health care of a type for which the minor is lawfully authorized to consent [Health & Safety Code § 123110(a); for discussion of minor's authority to consent to medical care, see Ch. 366, Minors: Court Consent for Medical Care or Enlistment]. A health care provider must permit the inspection during business hours within five working days after receipt of the written request. The inspection must be conducted by the patient or patient's representative requesting the inspection, who may be accompanied by one other person of his or her choosing [Health & Safety Code § 123110(a)].

Additionally, any patient or patient's representative is entitled to copies of all or any portion of the patient records that he or she has a right to inspect, on presenting a written request to the health care provider specifying the records to be copied, together with a fee to defray the cost of copying. The fee must not exceed $0.25 per page or $0.50 per page for records that are copied from microfilm and any additional reasonable clerical costs incurred in making the records available. The health care provider must ensure that the copies are transmitted within 15 days after receiving the written request [Health & Safety Code § 123110(b)].

Any patient, former patient, or the patient's representative is entitled to a copy, at no charge, of the relevant portion of the patient's records, upon presenting to the provider a written request and proof that the records are needed to support an appeal regarding eligibility for a public benefit program [Health & Safety Code § 123110(d)(1)]. Although a patient is not limited to a single request, the patient or patient's representative is entitled to no more than one copy of any relevant portion of the patient's record free of charge [Health & Safety Code § 123110(d)(2)]. If the patient's appeal regarding eligibility for a public benefit program is successful, the hospital or other health care provider may bill the patient, at the statutory specified rates, for the copies of the medical records previously provided free of charge [Health & Safety Code § 123110(e)].

Copies of X-rays or tracings derived from electrocardiography, electroencephalography, or electromyography need not be provided to the patient or patient's representative under Health & Safety Code § 123110, if the original X-rays or tracings are transmitted to another health care provider on written request of the patient or patient's representative and within 15 days after receipt of the request. The request must specify the name and address of the health care provider to whom the records are to be delivered. All reasonable costs, not exceeding actual cost, incurred by a health care provider in providing copies pursuant to Health & Safety Code § 123110(c) may be charged to the patient or representative requesting the copies [Health & Safety Code § 123110(c)]. In addition, a health care provider may establish reasonable conditions, including a reasonable deposit fee, to ensure the return of original X-rays transmitted to another health care provider, unless the conditions discriminate on the basis of, or in a manner related to, the license of the provider to which the X-rays are transmitted [Health & Safety Code § 123110(h)].

A health care provider may require reasonable verification of identity prior to permitting inspection or copying of patient records, provided the requirements are not used oppressively or discriminatorily to frustrate or delay compliance with Health & Safety Code § 123110. Additionally, a health care provider is not required to retain records longer than required by applicable statutes or administrative regulations [Health & Safety Code § 123110(g)].

[d] Summary of Health Records

A health care provider may prepare a summary of the record, according to the requirements of Health & Safety Code § 123130, for inspection and copying by a patient. If the provider chooses to prepare the summary rather than allowing access to the entire record, he or she must make the summary available to the patient within 10 working days from the date of the patient's request. However, if more time is needed because the record is of extraordinary length or because the patient was discharged from a licensed health facility within the last 10 days, the health care provider must notify the patient of this fact and the date that the summary will be completed, but in no case shall more than 30 days elapse between the request by the patient and the delivery of the summary [Health & Safety Code § 123130(a)].

In preparing the summary of the record, the health care provider is not obligated to include information that is not contained in the original record [Health & Safety Code § 123130(a)]. However, the summary must contain a list of all current medications prescribed, including dosage, and any sensitivities or allergies to medications recorded by the provider [Health & Safety Code § 123130(d)]. A provider may confer with the patient in an attempt to clarify the patient's purpose and goal in obtaining his or her record. If, as a consequence, the patient requests information about only certain injuries, illnesses or episodes, the provider is not required to prepare the summary for other than the injuries, illnesses, or episodes so requested by the patient. The summary must contain for each injury, illness, or episode any information included in the record relative to the following [Health & Safety Code § 123130(b)]:

- Chief complaint or complaints including pertinent history.
- Findings from consultations and referrals to other health care providers.
- Diagnosis, when determined.
- Treatment plan and regimen including medications prescribed.
- Progress of the treatment.

- Prognosis including significant continuing problems or conditions.

- Pertinent reports of diagnostic procedures and tests and all discharge summaries.

- Objective findings from the most recent physical examination, such as blood pressure, weight, and actual values from routine laboratory tests.

Health & Safety Code § 123130 does not require any medical records to be written or maintained in any manner not otherwise required by law [Health & Safety Code § 123130(c)]. Health & Safety Code § 123110(c), pertaining to copies of specified X-rays or tracings, is applicable whether or not the health care provider elects to prepare a summary of the record [Health & Safety Code § 123130(e)].

The health care provider may charge no more than a reasonable fee based on actual time and cost for the preparation of the summary. The cost must be based on a computation of the actual time spent preparing the summary for availability to the patient or the patient's representative. It is the legislature's intent that summaries of records be made available at the lowest possible cost to the patient [Health & Safety Code § 123130(f)].

[e] Minor's Patient Records

A minor's representative is not entitled to inspect or obtain copies of the minor's patient records when the minor has a right to inspect the records under Health & Safety Code § 123110 [see § 295.23[3][c]], or when the health care provider determines that access to the patient records requested by the representative would have a detrimental effect on the provider's professional relationship with the minor patient. Similarly, a minor's representative is not entitled to access to the minor's records if the health care provider determines that such access would have a detrimental effect on the provider's professional relationship with the minor or on the minor's physical safety or psychological well-being [Health & Safety Code § 123115(a)(2)]. The decision of the health care provider as to whether or not a minor's records are available for inspection or copying under Health & Safety Code § 123115 does not attach any liability to the provider, unless the decision is found to be in bad faith [Health & Safety Code § 123115(a)].

[f] Mental Health Records

When a health care provider determines there is a substantial risk of significant adverse or detrimental consequences to a patient in seeing or receiving a copy of mental health records requested by the patient, the provider may decline to permit inspection or provide copies of the records to the patient, subject to the following conditions [Health & Safety Code § 123115(b)]:

- The health care provider must make a written record, to be included with the mental health records requested, noting the date of the request and explaining the provider's reason for refusing to permit inspection or provide copies thereof, including a description of the specific adverse or detrimental consequences to the patient that the provider anticipates would occur if inspection or copying were permitted.

- The health care provider must permit inspection by, or provide copies of, the mental health records to a licensed physician and surgeon, licensed psychologist, licensed marriage and family therapist, or licensed social worker designated by request of the patient.

- The health care provider must inform the patient of the provider's refusal to permit him or her to inspect or obtain copies of the requested records, and must inform the patient of the right to require the provider to permit inspection by, or provide copies to, a licensed physician and surgeon, licensed psychologist, licensed marriage and family therapist, or licensed clinical social worker designated by a written authorization of the patient.

- The health care provider must indicate in the mental health records of the patient whether or not a request was made under Health & Safety Code § 123115(b)(2) (Paragraph 2, above).

- The person to whom the records are provided for inspection or copying may not permit inspection or copying by the patient.

[g] Alcohol and Drug Abuse Records

A health care provider is not required to permit inspection or provide copies of alcohol and drug abuse records when prohibited, or in a manner prohibited, by 42 U.S.C.S. §§ 290dd-3, 290ee-3 or by regulations adopted pursuant to these federal laws. Alcohol and drug abuse records subject to such federal laws are also subject to Health & Safety Code § 123100 et seq., to the extent that such federal laws do not prohibit disclosure of the records. All other alcohol and drug abuse records are fully subject to Health & Safety Code § 123100 et seq. [Health & Safety Code § 123125(a)].

[h] Clinical Laboratory Test Results

Notwithstanding any other provision of law, a health care professional at whose request a test is performed must, on a written or oral request of a patient who is the subject of a clinical laboratory test, provide the patient with the results of the test in plain language conveyed in the manner deemed most appropriate by the health care professional who requested the test. The reported test results must be recorded in the patient's medical records and reported to the patient within a reasonable time period after the test results are received at the offices of the health care professional who requested the test [Health & Safety Code § 123148].

[i] Communicable Disease Records

A health care provider is not required to permit inspection or provide copies of records or portions of records when prohibited, or in a manner prohibited, by existing law respecting the confidentiality of information regarding communicable disease carriers [Health & Safety Code § 123125(b)].

[j] Withholding Records Due to Unpaid Bill

A health care provider is prohibited from withholding patient records or summaries of patient records because of an unpaid bill for health care services. Any health care provider who willfully withholds patient records or summaries of patient records because of an unpaid bill for health care services will be subject to the sanctions specified in Health & Safety Code § 123110(i), which is discussed in § 295.23[3][n] [Health & Safety Code § 123110(j)].

[k] Nonliability for Disclosure or Quality of Records

A health care provider is not liable to the patient or any other person for any consequences that result from disclosure of patient records as required by Health & Safety Code § 123100 et seq. A provider is also not liable for the quality of his or her records or the copies provided in excess of existing law and regulations adopted pursuant thereto with respect to the quality of medical records [Health & Safety Code § 123110(h)].

[l] Action to Enforce Health Care Provider's Obligations

Any patient or representative aggrieved by a violation of Health & Safety Code § 123110 may, in addition to any other remedy provided by law, bring an action against the health care provider to enforce the obligations prescribed by that provision. Any judgment rendered in the action may, in the discretion of the court, include an award of costs and reasonable attorney's fees to the prevailing party [Health & Safety Code § 123120]. For a complaint to enforce the health care provider's obligation to permit inspection and transmittal of records to patient, see § 295.65.

[m] Action for Damages for Failure to Preserve Records

Providers of health services that are licensed pursuant to Health & Safety Code § 1253 (as well as those licensed pursuant to Health & Safety Code §§ 1205 (clinics), 1575 (adult day health care), or 123145 (home health agencies)) have an obligation, if the licensee ceases operation, to preserve records for a minimum of seven years following discharge of the patient. The records of unemancipated minors must be kept at least one year after the minor has reached the age of 18, and in any case, not less than seven years [Health & Safety Code § 123145(a)].

The Department of Health Services or any person injured as a result of the licensee's abandonment of health records may bring an action in a proper court for the amount of damage suffered as a result [Health & Safety Code § 123145(b)]. If the licensee is a corporation or partnership that is dissolved, the person injured may take action against that corporation's or partnership's principal officers of record at the time of dissolution [Health & Safety Code § 123145(b)]. "Abandoned" in this context means violating Health & Safety Code § 123145(a) and leaving patients treated by the licensee without access to medical information to which they are entitled pursuant to Health & Safety Code § 123110 [Health & Safety Code § 123145(c); see § 295.23[3][c]].

Licensed clinical laboratories that provide cytology services must preserve records, reports, cytology slides, and cell blocks for a time period prescribed by statute [Bus. & Prof. Code § 1271.1(a); see § 295.12[11]]. Any person injured as a result of a licensee's abandonment of cytological records may bring an action in any court of competent jurisdiction for the amount of any damages suffered as a result [Bus. & Prof. Code § 1271.1(b)]. "Abandoned" in this context means violating Bus. & Prof. Code § 1271.1(a) and leaving patients and physicians and surgeons without access to information to which they are entitled pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code § 1250 et seq. [Bus. & Prof. Code § 1271.1(c)(1)]. In the event the licensee was a corporation or partnership that has been dissolved, the person injured may bring an action against that corporation's or partnership's principal officers of record at the time of the dissolution [Bus. & Prof. Code § 1271.1(b); see also Bus. & Prof. Code § 1271.1(c)(2) (defining "principal officers")].

For an allegation to use in a complaint against a health care provider for failure to maintain medical records, see § 295.53.

[n] Willful Violation by Health Care Provider

Any health care provider described in Health & Safety Code § 123105(a) (licensed physician and surgeon, podiatrist, dentist, psychologist, optometrist, chiropractor, marriage and family, physical therapist, clinical social worker, or occupational therapist) who willfully violates Health & Safety Code § 123100 et seq. is guilty of unprofessional conduct. Any health care provider described in Health & Safety Code § 123105(a) (licensed health facility, clinic, or home health agency) who willfully violates Health & Safety Code § 123100 et seq. is guilty of an infraction punishable by a fine of not more than $100. The state agency, board, or commission that issued the health care provider's professional or institutional license must consider the violation as grounds for disciplinary action with respect to the licensure, including suspension or revocation of the license or certificate [Health & Safety Code § 123110(i)].

[o] Patient's Rights Under Related Provisions of Law

Health & Safety Code § 123100 et seq. do not supersede any rights that a patient or representative might otherwise have or exercise under Evid. Code § 1158 or any other provision of law [Health & Safety Code § 123110(g); for discussion of Evid. Code § 1158, see § 295.23[2]]. Additionally, the Information Practices Act of 1977 (Civ. Code § 1798 et seq.) prevails over these sections with respect to records maintained by a state agency [Health & Safety Code § 123140]. For a discussion of the Information Practices Act, see Ch. 429, Privacy, § 429.60 et seq.

Except as otherwise provided by law, Health & Safety Code § 123100 et seq. cannot be construed to increase access to individual patient records by any person, firm, association, organization, partnership, business trust, company, corporation, or municipal or other public corporation, or government officer or agency. Therefore, these sections do not do any of the following [Health & Safety Code § 123135]:

- Relieve employers of the requirements of the Confidentiality of Medical Information Act (Civ. Code § 56 et seq.) [see Ch. 429, Privacy, § 429.60 et seq].

- Relieve any person subject to the provisions of the Insurance Information and Privacy Protection Act (Ins. Code § 791 et seq.) from the requirements of that act.

- Relieve government agencies of the requirements of the Information Practices Act of 1977 (Civ. Code § 1798 et seq.) [see Ch. 429, Privacy, § 429.60 et seq.].

[4] Immunity of Medical Staff Committee Records

The written records of in-hospital medical and dental staff committees that study the reduction of morbidity or mortality are subject to discovery [Evid. Code § 1156(a)]. However, insofar as such records contain information concerning patients that is privileged under Evid. Code §§ 994 (confidential communication between patient and physician) and 1014 (confidential communication between patient and psychotherapist), the identity of patients may not be discovered without the consent of such patients [Evid. Code § 1156(b)].

Records and proceedings of the following committees are generally not subject to discovery:

- Organized committees of medical, medical-dental, podiatric, registered dietitian, psychological, marriage and family therapy, licensed clinical social work, or veterinary staffs in hospitals, or of a peer review body, as defined in Bus. & Prof. Code § 805, having the responsibility of evaluation and improvement of the quality of care rendered in the hospital, or for that peer review body [Evid. Code § 1157(a)].

- Organized review committees of local medical, dental, dental hygenist, chiropractic, podiatric, registered dietitian, acupuncture, or veterinary societies, or review committees of state or local psychological, marriage and family therapy, or clinical social work associations or societies, having the responsibility of evaluation and improvement of the quality of care [Evid. Code § 1157(a)].

- Organized committees of any nonprofit medical care foundation or professional standards review organization that make available professional competence to review health care services with respect to medical necessity, quality of care, or economic justification of charges or level of care [Evid. Code § 1157.5].

- Committees established under Welf. & Inst. Code § 4070 having responsibility of evaluation and improvement of the quality of mental health care rendered in county operated or contracted mental health facilities [Evid. Code § 1157.6]; and

- Committees established by a local governmental agency to monitor, evaluate, and report on the necessity, quality, and level of specialty health services that are provided by a general acute care hospital that has been designated by that governmental agency as qualified to render specialty health care services [Evid. Code § 1157.7; see County of San Diego v. Superior Court (1986) 176 Cal. App. 3d 1009, 1021-1022, 222 Cal. Rptr. 484 (Evid. Code § 1157.7 not applicable to general acute care hospital that was never designated as qualified to render specialty health care services; hospital denied designation of regional trauma center may discover raw data available to committee making designation decision)].

In addition, the identities of evaluating committee members are privileged under Evid. Code § 1157. The identities of the evaluators may not be discovered, even though this may limit the liability of an individual plaintiff to discover relevant and admissible information [Cedars-SinaiMedical Center v. Superior Court (1993) 12 Cal. App. 4th 579, 588-589, 16 Cal. Rptr. 2d 253] .

To be protected under Evid. Code § 1157(a), a medical staff committee need not be composed entirely of physicians and is not limited to peer review, so long as its purpose and function is the evaluation and improvement of quality of care [see Santa Rosa Memorial Hospital v. Superior Court (1985) 174 Cal. App. 3d 711, 717-721, 220 Cal. Rptr. 236 (infection control committee with majority of personnel not physicians)]. The fact that a medical staff committee consists of all of the physicians who are members of a department's staff, rather than some of them, does not destroy the privilege under Evid. Code § 1157 [County of Los Angeles v. Superior Court (1990) 224 Cal. App. 3d 1446, 1454, 274 Cal. Rptr. 712] . Nor does the privilege require that written minutes of committee meetings be taken [County of Los Angeles v. Superior Court (1990) 224 Cal. App. 3d 1446, 1453, 274 Cal. Rptr. 712] .

No person in attendance at a meeting of any of these committees may be required to testify as to what transpired at that meeting, except as provided in Evid. Code § 1157(c), and (d), discussed below [Evid. Code §§ 1157(b), 1157.5-1157.7]. However, Evid. Code § 1157 does not preclude a hospital medical review staff committee member from testifying voluntarily about proceedings of the committee [West Covina Hospital v. Superior Court (1986) 41 Cal. 3d 846, 851, 855, 226 Cal. Rptr. 132, 718 P.2d 119] .

The prohibition against discovery of the records and proceedings of the committees described in Evid. Code § 1157(a) applies only to discovery in a civil action or proceeding. These records and proceedings are subject to discovery in a criminal action [People v. Superior Court (Memorial Medical Center) (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 363, 381, 286 Cal. Rptr. 478 ("criminal action" includes a proceeding under Penal Code § 1524 to issue a search warrant)]. Evid. Code § 1157(e), therefore, is to be construed as a legislative clarification that prior amendments to Evid. Code § 1157 are not intended to affect the statute's applicability [People v. Superior Court (Memorial Medical Center) (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 363, 381, 386-387, 286 Cal. Rptr. 478] .

These prohibitions against discovery do not apply (1) to the statements made by any person in attendance at a meeting of any of those committees who is a party to an action or proceeding the subject matter of which was reviewed at that meeting; (2) to any person requesting hospital staff privileges; (3) in any action against an insurance carrier alleging bad faith by the carrier in refusing to accept a settlement offer within the policy limits; (4) to medical, dental, dental hygienist, podiatric, dietetic, psychological, veterinary, acupuncture, or chiropractic society committees whose membership exceeds 10 percent of that of the society; or (5) to any committee if any person serves on that committee when his or her own conduct or practice is being reviewed [Evid. Code §§ 1157(c), (d), 1157.5-1157.7].

The first and second of these exceptions to the prohibition of discovery do not apply to medical malpractice actions; they were designed merely to set aside the immunity and permit discovery in suits by doctors claiming wrongful or arbitrary exclusion from hospital staff privileges [West Covina Hospital v. Superior Court (1984) 153 Cal. App. 3d 134, 137, 200 Cal. Rptr. 162 (involving pretrial discovery and first exception); Schulz v. Superior Court (1977) 66 Cal. App. 3d 440, 446, 136 Cal. Rptr. 67 (same); Roseville Community Hospital v. Superior Court (1977) 70 Cal. App. 3d 809, 813-816, 139 Cal. Rptr. 170 (involving pretrial discovery and second exception); Matchett v. Superior Court (1974) 40 Cal. App. 3d 623, 629-630, 115 Cal. Rptr. 317 (same)]. In addition, the second exception does not apply in damage actions for past restrictions on hospital staff privileges [California Eye Institute v. Superior Court (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 1477, 1481, 264 Cal. Rptr. 83] . Moreover, the fourth exception applies only to a review committee of a local health related society and not to hospital staff committees [West Covina Hospital v. Superior Court (1984) 153 Cal. App. 3d 134, 138, 200 Cal. Rptr. 162] .

Thus, in an action by a patient against a doctor for malpractice and against a hospital for negligently appointing and retaining the doctor on its staff, Evid. Code § 1157 bars the patient from discovering the records of medical staff committees of the hospital whose functions are found to involve the evaluation and improvement of the quality of care rendered by the hospital [Matchett v. Superior Court (1974) 40 Cal. App. 3d 623, 631, 115 Cal. Rptr. 317] . Moreover, the spirit and intent of Evid. Code § 1157, in furthering the objectivity of peer investigations conducted by staff committees, negates the imposition of a duty on a medical proctor to take affirmative action to assist or protect a patient who suffers injuries during an operation performed by other surgeons [Clarke v. Hoek (1985) 174 Cal. App. 3d 208, 221, 219 Cal. Rptr. 845 ; see Ch. 380, Negligence].

Although protection from discovery under Evid. Code §§ 1157-1157.7 does not amount to a privilege [see Covell v. Superior Court (1984) 159 Cal. App. 3d 39, 42, 205 Cal. Rptr. 371 (distinguishing evidence excluded or affected by extrinsic policies under Evid. Code § 1100 et seq. from matters privileged under Evid. Code § 900 et seq.)], it operates in much the same way, immunizing material from discovery even though it is otherwise material and relevant [see, e.g., Mt. Diablo Hospital Medical Center v. Superior Court (1984) 158 Cal. App. 3d 344, 346-347, 204 Cal. Rptr. 626] . For example, although hospital peer review committee records may be protected from discovery by Evid. Code § 1157(a), those records may still be reviewed by an investigator for the California Department of Health Services (DHS) in the course of an investigation into an incident that is also the basis for a medical malpractice suit [see, e.g., Fox v. Kramer (2000) 22 Cal. 4th 531, 540, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 497, 994 P.2d 343] . However, peer review committee records do not lose their immunity from discovery simply because they are used in such an investigation. Therefore, malpractice plaintiffs in one case were precluded from compelling the testimony of a DHS investigator who relied on hospital peer review committee records in forming his opinion and drafting a preliminary report of his investigation [Fox v. Kramer (2000) 22 Cal. 4th 531, 540-543, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 497, 994 P.2d 343] . In that case, the plaintiffs were also prevented from introducing the investigator's preliminary report into evidence, despite the fact that the DHS produced an edited version in response to a request from plaintiffs, because the protection from discovery belongs to the hospital and the hospital did not waive the protection merely by cooperating with the DHS investigation, which it was legally required to do [Fox v. Kramer (2000) 22 Cal. 4th 531, 540, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 497, 994 P.2d 343] .

Evid. Code § 1157 does not prevent the patient from discovering the hospital's administrative files pertaining to the selection and retention of the doctor whose negligence caused the patient's injury if those portions of the files reflecting the nondiscoverable committee proceedings are excluded [Matchett v. Superior Court (1974) 40 Cal. App. 3d 623, 628, 115 Cal. Rptr. 317] . Thus, to protect both parties, there must be an in camera hearing by the trial court, reviewing each item of evidence requested and acting on those portions of the pretrial discovery motion that are directed only at hospital administration files not resulting from any investigation conducted by an advisory board [Saddleback Community Hospital v. Superior Court (1984) 158 Cal. App. 3d 206, 209, 204 Cal. Rptr. 598 (in camera inspection of hospital files as required to insure that unprotected administration records contain no staff records protected under Evid. Code § 1157)]. An in camera inspection is also necessary whenever the protection of Evid. Code § 1157 is not facially apparent, to insure that a defendant hospital is not in effect avoiding disclosure of nonprotected administrative records by placing them in the possession of members of protected medical staff committees, in order to avoid corporate liability under the rule announced in Elam v. College Park Hospital (1982) 132 Cal. App. 3d 332, 183 Cal. Rptr. 156 (discussed under § 295.13[9], above) [see Santa Rosa Memorial Hospital v. Superior Court (1985) 174 Cal. App. 3d 711, 721-730, 220 Cal. Rptr. 236 ; see also Mt. Diablo Hospital Dist. v. Superior Court (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 30, 35, 227 Cal. Rptr. 790 (in camera hearing not necessary because information was clearly within Evid. Code § 1157 protection)].

Evid. Code § 1157 protects only the records and proceedings of physician evaluations conducted by hospital staff committees; it does not prevent disclosure of whether or not a staff committee did or did not conduct an evaluation of a certain physician [Brown v. Superior Court (1985) 168 Cal. App. 3d 489, 496, 501-502, 214 Cal. Rptr. 266] . Similarly, it does not bar discovery of whether or not a hospital required a certain physician to carry malpractice insurance [Brown v. Superior Court (1985) 168 Cal. App. 3d 489, 496, 502-503, 214 Cal. Rptr. 266] . Nor does Evid. Code § 1157 prevent disclosure that an investigation of a drug was conducted by a hospital [Mt. Diablo Hospital Dist.

v. Superior Court (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 30, 35 n.6, 227 Cal. Rptr. 790] .

The burden of establishing entitlement to nondisclosure under Evid. Code § 1157 is on the hospital or other party seeking to resist discovery [Brown v. Superior Court (1985) 168 Cal. App. 3d 489, 500-501, 214 Cal. Rptr. 266] .

[5] Admissibility

[a] Hearsay Exceptions

When hospital records are offered to prove the truth of the facts stated therein, they are hearsay [see Evid. Code § 1200]. They are, however, admissible in evidence as business records under the exception provided by Evid. Code §§ 1270 and 1271 insofar as they document acts, events, or conditions within the personal knowledge of the entrant or the entrant's informant and the following foundation is laid:

- The records were made in the regular course of hospital business.
- The records were made at or near the time of the acts, conditions, or events recorded.
- The custodian or other qualified witness testifies to their identity and the mode of their preparation.
- The sources of information and method and time of preparation indicate their trustworthiness [see Loper v. Morrison (1944) 23 Cal. 2d 600, 608, 145 P.2d 1 (deciding admissibility of hospital records under statute preceding and substantially the same as Evid. Code §§ 1270, 1271)].

See the discussion of Evid. Code § 1560 et seq. under [6], below, for a procedure by which the foundation for the admission of hospital records under Evid. Code §§ 1270 and 1271 may be laid.

Any portion of hospital records that contain histories of patients given to medical personnel by the patients or third persons on their behalves are not admissible under Evid. Code §§ 1270 and 1271 [People v. Williams (1960) 187 Cal. App. 2d 355, 363-365, 9 Cal. Rptr. 722] . It is unclear whether reports of medical personnel in hospital records that diagnose the conditions of patients are also inadmissible under Evid. Code §§ 1270 and 1271 [see People v. Reyes (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 486, 502-503, 116 Cal. Rptr. 217, 526 P.2d 225 (distinguishing diagnoses which state opinions from those which state facts); see also People v. O'Tremba (1970) 4 Cal. App. 3d 524, 528-529, 84 Cal. Rptr. 336 (discussing conflicting cases)]. In any event, patients' histories and medical diagnoses reported in hospital records may be admitted into evidence under some other exception to the hearsay rule or for the limited purpose of showing part of the information on which an expert witness based his treatment of a patient [Springer v. Reimers (1970) 4 Cal. App. 3d 325, 338-340, 84 Cal. Rptr. 486 ; Rosener v. Larson (1967) 255 Cal. App. 2d 871, 878, 63 Cal. Rptr. 782] .

If hospital records are offered under Evid. Code §§ 1270 and 1271 against a patient who is a defendant in an action, the patient may exercise his privilege under Evid. Code § 996 (confidential communications between patient and physician) to exclude the records [Carlton v. Superior Court (1968) 261 Cal. App. 2d 282, 290, 67 Cal. Rptr. 568] .

[b] As Writings

Hospital records are writings [see Evid. Code § 250] that must be authenticated before either the records or secondary evidence of their contents may be admitted into evidence [see Evid. Code §§ 1400, 1401]. In addition, if hospital records are offered to prove their contents, the secondary evidence rule applies, requiring the use of the original records if either: (1) a genuine dispute exists concerning material terms of the writing, and justice requires the exclusion of the secondary evidence; or (2) admission of the secondary evidence would be unfair [see Evid. Code § 1521]. See [6], below, for a procedure that authenticates and makes copies of hospital records admissible.

[6] Admission Based on Custodian's Affidavit

The admission of copies of hospital records into evidence at any proceeding in which testimony can be compelled may be secured by compliance with the procedure set forth in Evid. Code §§ 1560-1566 unless the hospital is a party or the place where the cause of action is alleged to have arisen [Evid. Code §§ 1560(b), 1566].

The procedure involves the service of a subpoena duces tecum on the custodian of the records or other qualified witness for the production of specified records. Within five days after receipt of the subpoena in any criminal action, within 15 days after receipt of the subpoena in any civil action, or within the time agreed on by the party who served the subpoena and the custodian or other qualified witness, the custodian or other qualified witness must deliver by mail or otherwise a true, legible, and durable copy of all the records described in the subpoena to the clerk of court or to the judge if there be no clerk or to such other person as described in Code Civ. Proc. § 2026.010(d) [Evid. Code § 1560(b)]. The copy of the records must be sealed and addressed as prescribed by the statute [Evid. Code § 1560(c)]. The copy of the records must be accompanied by an affidavit stating that (1) the affiant is the duly authorized custodian of the records or other qualified witness and has authority to certify the records, (2) the copy is a true copy of all the records described in the subpoena duces tecum, or pursuant to Evid. Code § 1560(e) the records were delivered to the party's attorney, the attorney's representative, or a deposition officer as defined in Code Civ. Proc. § 2020.420, for copying at the custodian's or witness' place of business, and (3) the records were prepared by the personnel of the hospital in the ordinary course of business at or near the time of the act, condition, or event recorded [Evid. Code §§ 1560-1561]. If the hospital has none or only part of the records described in the subpoena, the custodian or other qualified witness must so state in the affidavit [Evid. Code § 1561(b)].

A hospital that is neither a party to an action nor the place where any cause of action arose may demand payment of its costs in producing subpoenaed records [Evid. Code § 1563].

The personal attendance of the custodian of the records or other qualified witness and the production of the original records may be required by service of a subpoena duces tecum that contains language prescribed by Evid. Code § 1564 requiring such attendance and production. In the absence of this language in the subpoena, however, the copy of the records is admissible in evidence if the original records would be admissible in evidence if the custodian had been present and testified to the matters stated in the affidavit, and if the requirements of Evid. Code § 1271((business records as evidence) have been met. The affidavit is admissible as evidence of the matters stated therein pursuant to Evid. Code § 1561, and the matters so stated are presumed true [Evid. Code § 1562].

Unless the parties to the proceeding otherwise agree or the sealed records are returned to a witness who is required to appear personally, the records are not opened until the time of the proceeding, on the direction of the judge or officer in charge, and in the presence of all parties who have appeared at the proceeding. Records that are original documents and are not introduced in evidence or required as part of the record must be returned to the person from whom or entity from which they were received. Records that are copies may be destroyed [Evid. Code § 1560(d)].

As an alternative to the procedures described in Evid. Code § 1560(b),(c), and (d), the subpoenaing party may direct the witness to make the records available for inspection or copying by the party's attorney, the attorney's representative, or a deposition officer as defined in Code Civ. Proc. § 2020.420, at the business address of the witness under reasonable conditions during normal business hours. It is the responsibility of the attorney's representative to deliver any copy of the records as directed in the subpena [Evid. Code § 1560(e)].

For a procedural guide and forms relating to the procedure set forth in Evid. Code § 1560 et seq., see Ch. 535, Subpoena

[7] Inadmissibility of Medical Staff Committee Records

The written records of in-hospital medical and dental staff committees that study the reduction of morbidity or mortality are not admissible as evidence in any administrative proceeding or any action other than a criminal action [Evid. Code § 1156(a), (d)]. The exclusion of such records, however, does not affect the admissibility of the original medical or dental records of any patient [Evid. Code § 1156(c)].

For discussion of the immunity of medical and dental staff committee proceedings and records from discovery or admission into evidence, see § 295.23[4].

In malpractice action for leaving sponge in patient's abdomen, trial court's granting of hospital's motion for judgment notwithstanding verdict on theory that doctor solely liable for nurse's negligence under borrowed servant doctrine as erroneous since determination of agency was question of fact for jury. Truhitte v French Hospital (1982) 128 Cal. App. 3d 332, 348, 180 Cal. Rptr. 152

Liability of hospital rather than physician in charge of patient's care for negligence of hospital employees in performing routine matters of patient care unless employees are under physician's special supervision and control or unless physician selected employees. Sherman v. Hartman (1955) 137 Cal. App. 2d 589, 595-597, 290 P.2d 894

[ii] Liability for Malpractice in General

Hospital's refusal to provide rape victim, during emergency care following rape, with information concerning and access to "morning after pill" contraceptive as possibly constituting actionable malpractice; such refusal, however, as not constituting basis for declaratory or injunctive relief. Brownfield v. Daniel Freeman Marina Hospital (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 405, 414, 256 Cal. Rptr. 240

Health & Safety Code § 123420(c) (formerly Health & Safety Code § 25955(c)), providing that no nonprofit hospital organized or operated by religious organization will be liable for refusal to provide abortion services, as not immunizing hospital for failure or refusal to provide information about morning after pill contraceptive to rape victims. Brownfield v. Daniel Freeman Marina Hospital (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 405, 413, 256 Cal. Rptr. 240

[d] Respondeat Superior

Agency relationship between hospital and physician using hospital facilities as independent contractor as question of fact for jury; liability of hospital for negligence of independent physician when physician is found to be ostensible agent of hospital. Quintal v. Laurel Grove Hospital (1964) 62 Cal. 2d 154, 167-168, 397 P.2d 161 ; Seneris v. Haas (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 811, 831-832, 291 P.2d 915 ; Hedlund v. Sutter Med. Serv. Co. (1942) 51 Cal. App. 2d 327, 331, 124 P.2d 878 (estoppel of hospital to deny agency of medical technician)

Liability of hospital under doctrine of respondeat superior for medical malpractice of physicians and nurses resulting in injuries to patient when physicians and nurses are hospital employees acting within scope of their employment and pursuant to contract for medical services between hospital and patient. Cavero v. Franklin Gen. Benevolent Soc'y (1950) 36 Cal. 2d 301, 308, 223 P.2d 471 (anesthetist's negligence); Rice v. California Lutheran Hospital (1945) 27 Cal. 2d 296, 304, 163 P.2d 860 ; Bellandi v. App. 2d 1, 6, 172 P.2d 359

Summary judgment as improper if conflicting expert opinions demonstrate that triable issues of fact exist with respect to whether hospital exercised reasonable degree of skill, knowledge, and care ordinarily exercised by medical care providers under similar circumstances in their professional community. Jacoves v. United Merchandising Corp. (1992) 9 Cal. App. 4th 88, 106, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 468

Customary practice of hospitals in community as evidence of degree of care, skill, and diligence required of particular hospital in caring for patient to extent custom does not violate applicable statute. McDonald v. Foster Memorial Hospital (1959) 170 Cal. App. 2d 85, 93, 338 P.2d 607 , disapproved on other grounds, Siverson v. Weber (1962) 57 Cal. 2d 834

[ii] Corporate Negligence

Hospital in corporate status as liable for punitive damages based on acts of employee if it had advance knowledge of employee's unfitness, authorized or ratified wrongful conduct, and personal culpability was present. Grieves v. Superior Court (1984) 157 Cal. App. 3d 159, 167, 203 Cal. Rptr. 556

Hospital as liable for negligence of medical staff when it failed to adequately screen, review, and continuously evaluate staff members. Elam v. College Park Hospital (1982) 132 Cal. App. 3d 332, 345-346, 183 Cal. Rptr. 156

Liability of hospital for patient's injuries resulting from malpractice of physician on its medical staff when hospital appoints physician without adequately determining physician's professional qualifications. Joiner v. Mitchell County Hosp. Auth. (1971) 125 Ga. App. 1, 186 S.E.2d 307 , aff'd, 229 Ga. 140, 189 S.E.2d 412 (1972)

Liability of hospital for patient's injuries resulting from malpractice of physician on its medical staff when hospital fails to review treatment rendered by physician to patient and trained hospital personnel fail to bring worsening condition of patient to attention of hospital administration so that consultation can be secured as required by hospital's bylaws, licensing regulation, and hospital accreditation standards. Darling v. Charleston Community Memorial Hosp. (1965) 33 Ill. 2d 326, 211 N.E.2d 253 , cert. denied, 383 U.S. 946 (1966)

Liability of hospital for negligence of nurses in failing to report patient's worsening condition to attending physician, and on physician's inaction, to advise hospital administration so that adequate measures for patient's safety could be taken. Goff v. Doctors General Hospital (1958) 166 Cal. App. 2d 314, 318-320, 333 P.2d 29

[iii] Negligence Per Se

Hospital's failure to report patient's communicable disease to local health officer in violation of former Health & Safety Code § 3125 (now see Health & Safety Code § 120245) as basis for hospital's liability to nonpatient who contracted disease as proximate result of hospital's statutory violation. Derrick v. Ontario Community Hospital (1975) 47 Cal. App. 3d 145, 152, 120 Cal. Rptr. 566

Propriety of trial court's refusal to give negligence per se instruction when patient's injury was not type which regulation was intended to prevent and violation of regulation may not have been proximate cause of patient's injury. Cade v. Mid-City Hosp. Corp. (1975) 45 Cal. App. 3d 589, 598, 119 Cal. Rptr. 571 (regulation dictating that hospital personnel administer medication to patients only upon physician's orders)

Administration of prescribed drugs by unlicensed nurses in violation of statute as insufficient to impose liability on hospital for patient's injuries during fall from bed in absence of proximate causal connection between injuries and violation of licensing statute. McDonald v. Foster Memorial Hospital (1959) 170 Cal. App. 2d 85, 93-94, 338 P.2d 607 , disaproved on other grounds, Siverson v. Weber (1962) 57 Cal. 2d 834, 22 Cal. Rptr. 337, 372 P.2d 97

[iv] Patient's Condition

Duty of hospital to anticipate hazards arising from patient's known condition and to take reasonable precautions to prevent their occurrence. Meier v. Ross General Hospital (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 420, 424, 71 Cal. Rptr. 903, 445 P.2d 519 (failure to guard against patient's suicidal tendencies); Rice v. California Lutheran Hospital (1945) 27 Cal. 2d 296, 302, 163 P.2d 860 (hot tea served to patient in weakened condition without safeguards against spillage); Gin Non Louie v. Chinese Hospital Ass'n (1967) 249 Cal. App. 2d 774, 791-792, 57 Cal. Rptr. 906 (failure to obtain medical treatment required by patient's condition); Valentin v. La Societe Francaise (1946) 76 Cal. App. 2d 1, 6, 9, 172 P.2d 359 (same)

Duty of hospital to exercise such reasonable care for patient's safety as known condition of patient requires but not to insure patient's safety by guarding against risks which reasonable person under circumstances would not anticipate. Rice v. California Lutheran Hospital (1945) 27 Cal. 2d 296, 299, 163 P.2d 860 ; Wood v. Samaritan Institution (1945) 26 Cal. 2d 847, 852, 161 P.2d 556 ; DeMartini v. Alexander Sanitarium, Inc. (1961) 192 Cal. App. 2d 442, 449, 13 Cal. Rptr. 564

Duty of hospital to observe and know condition of patient. Rice v. California Lutheran Hospital (1945) 27 Cal. 2d 296, 302, 163 P.2d 860 ; Mundt v. Alta Bates Hospital (1963) 223 Cal. App. 2d 413, 423-424, 35 Cal. Rptr. 848 ; Valentin v. La Societe Francaise (1946) 76 Cal. App. 2d 1, 6, 9, 172 P.2d 359

Negligent postoperative care of patient by hospital in failing to follow physician's order, failing to notify physician of significant change in patient's condition, and failing to accurately keep patient's chart. Cline v. Lund (1973) 31 Cal. App. 3d 755, 763, 107 Cal. Rptr. 629

Duty of hospital to exercise such reasonable care for patient's safety as known condition of patient requires in proportion to patient's ability to care for his or her own safety. Gin Non Louie v. Chinese Hospital Ass'n (1967) 249 Cal. App. 2d 774, 789, 57 Cal. Rptr. 906 ; Thomas v. Seaside Memorial Hospital (1947) 80 Cal. App. 2d 841, 848, 183 P.2d 288 ; Valentin v. La Societe Francaise (1946) 76 Cal. App. 2d 1, 5, 172 P.2d 359

Question of fact for jury whether hospital has exercised reasonable care for patient's safety under circumstances of case. Gin Non Louie v. Chinese Hospital Ass'n (1967) 249 Cal. App. 2d 774, 789, 57 Cal. Rptr. 906 ; Valentin v. La Societe Francaise (1946) 76 Cal. App. 2d 1, 5, 172 P.2d 359

[2] Blood Banks

Blood bank as health care provider subject to provisions of Medical Injury Compensation Reform Act (MICRA) because of blood bank's status as "health dispensary" licensed pursuant to Health & Safety Code § 1200 et seq. Coe v. Superior Court (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 48, 53, 269 Cal. Rptr. 368

[3] Damages

Limitation of noneconomic damages under Civ. Code § 3333.2 as applicable in action brought under Federal Tort Claims Act against United States Army hospital, even though hospital was not licensed by state of California. Taylor v. United States (9th Cir. 1987) 821 F.2d 1428, 1431-1432 Cap on noneconomic damages provided by Civ. Code § 3333.2 as applicable to claim for failure to provide stabilizing treatment brought under federal Emergency Medical Treatment and Active Labor Act, 42 U.S.C.S. § 1395dd. Barris v. County of Los Angeles (1999) 20 Cal. 4th 101, 116-117, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 145, 972 P.2d 966

Threshold requirement for punitive damage claims against health care providers under Code Civ. Proc. § 425.13 as requiring plaintiff to show that claim is supported by competent, admissible evidence, but as not giving trial court authority to assess evidence independently. College Hospital Inc. v. Superior Court (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 704, 719, 722-727, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 898, 882 P.2d 894

Hospital as not subject to liability for punitive damages based on acts that fell outside scope of physician's employment and were not ratified by hospital. College Hospital Inc. v. Superior Court (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 704, 719, 722-727, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 898, 882 P.2d 894

Ceiling of $250,000 on noneconomic damages in medical malpractice actions under Civ. Code § 3333.2 as applicable to action for equitable indemnity brought against hospital by third party. Western Steamship Lines, Inc. v. San Pedro General Hospital (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 100, 111, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 263

Civ. Code § 3333.1(b), precluding collateral source that has provided medical expenses to plaintiff in medical malpractice case from obtaining reimbursement from medical malpractice defendant, as not unconstitutional as applied to city barred from seeking reimbursement for worker's compensation benefits paid to policeman who suffered heart attack while on duty and who subsequently sued hospital and doctors for negligently causing brain damage during heart surgery. Barme v. Wood (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 174, 179-182, 207 Cal. Rptr. 816, 689 P.2d 446

Imposition of Medi-Cal lien by State Department of Health Services for costs of treatment furnished to plaintiffs as not prohibited by Civ. Code § 3333.1, relating to admissibility of evidence and recovery of amount payable to plaintiff from certain collateral sources in personal injury actions against health care providers. Brown v. Stewart (1982) 129 Cal. App. 3d 331, 333-340, 181 Cal. Rptr. 112

[4] Defenses

[a] Arbitration Agreement

Validity of arbitration provision in contract for medical care. Madden v. Kaiser Foundation Hospitals (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 699, 706-709, 131 Cal. Rptr. 882, 552 P.2d 1178

Failure by signatory to read arbitration agreement as not making agreement invalid, in absence of fraud, coercion, or excusable neglect. Bolanos v. Khalatian (1991) 231 Cal. App. 3d 1586, 1590, 283 Cal. Rptr. 209

Malpractice plaintiff, who had asserted rights and benefits under group prepaid health plan after she had apparently withdrawn from plan, as estopped from denying application of binding arbitration required by health plan; medical provider as not required to challenge and examine continuing eligibility of each purportedly covered member to maintain arbitration rights. Avina v. Cigna Healthplans of California (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 1, 3, 259 Cal. Rptr. 105

Coverage of arbitration agreement entered into pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1295 as not only extending to particular treatment contracted for at time agreement was signed, but also to later follow-up treatment performed pursuant to implied-in-fact contract between physician and patient. Hilleary v. Garvin (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 322, 326-327, 238 Cal. Rptr. 247

Physician as not having burden under Code Civ. Proc. § 1295 to accompany arbitration agreement with contract delineating specific course of treatment to be administered; physician as not having burden under Code Civ. Proc. § 1295 to renew arbitration agreement each time there is variation in treatment or ailment. Hilleary v. Garvin (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 322, 326, 238 Cal. Rptr. 247

Uncommunicated subjective intent of patient as irrelevant to determination of arbitration agreement's coverage; applicable test as whether reasonable person would, from conduct of parties, determine there was mutual agreement. Hilleary v. Garvin (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 322, 327, 238 Cal. Rptr. 247

Arbitration agreement in contract with organization exempt from requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 1295(a)-(c) under Code Civ. Proc. § 1295(f) as enforceable if notice requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 1295(f) complied with; such agreement as binding on heirs not party to contract if agreement so provides. Herbert v. Superior Court (1985) 169 Cal. App. 3d 718, 725-727, 215 Cal. Rptr. 477

Requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 1295 regarding language of medical service arbitration contracts as mandatory, allowing contract to be set aside if its language does not comply with statute, and, in medical malpractice actions, preempts general provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.2, which set aside arbitration agreement only if grounds exist for revocation of contract. Rosenfield v. Superior Court (1983) 143 Cal. App. 3d 198, 202, 191 Cal. Rptr. 611

Arbitration agreement signed by Spanish-speaking woman in emergency room was not necessarily binding, although it complied with Code Civ. Proc. § 1295; Code Civ. Proc. § 1295 as allowing limited challenge to arbitration agreement based on coercion or lack of knowledge and understanding of agreement's provisions. Ramirez v. Superior Court (1980) 103 Cal. App. 3d 746, 755, 163 Cal. Rptr. 223

Code Civ. Proc. § 1295(f) exempting health care service plan contracts negotiated to contain arbitration agreement from requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 1295(a)-(c) as not denying equal protection by distinguishing between persons signing individual medical care contracts and those enrolling in group plans because these groups are not similarly situated. Dinong v. Superior Court (1980) 102 Cal. App. 3d 845, 852-853, 162 Cal. Rptr. 606

Defendant's health care plan, although not specifically exempted from notice requirements by Code Civ. Proc. § 1295(f) (exempting health care service plan contracts negotiated to contain arbitration agreement) as exempt from notice requirement where failure to be explicitly excluded from Code Civ. Proc. § 1295(b) arose from transferring of responsibility from one state bureaucracy to another and from complexity and scope of malpractice insurance crises legislation. Dinong v. Superior Court (1980) 102 Cal. App. 3d 845, 851, 162 Cal. Rptr. 606

Arbitration clause in hospital admission form as unenforceable adhesion contract. Wheeler v. St. Joseph Hospital

(1976) 63 Cal. App. 3d 345, 357-362, 133 Cal. Rptr. 775

[b] Charitable Immunity

Invalidation of charitable institution's immunity from liability caused by employees of institution. Malloy v. Fong (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 356, 366, 232 P.2d 241 ; see Tunkl v. Regents of University of California (1963) 60 Cal. 2d 92, 103-104, 32 Cal. Rptr. 33, 383 P.2d 441 (reaffirming Malloy holding in hospital context)

[c] Child Abuse Reporting

Immunity of health care provider under Penal Code § 11172(a) from civil liability for making report required or authorized by Child Abuse and Neglect Reporting Act (Penal Code § 11164 et seq.) as absolute; immunity as encompassing activity by reporter after initial report is made. Ferraro v. Chadwick (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 86, 91-92, 95, 270 Cal. Rptr. 379

[d] Contractual Exculpation

Invalidity under Civ. Code § 1668 of patient's agreement to release hospital from future negligent or wrongful acts of hospital's employees. Tunkl v. Regents of University of California (1963) 60 Cal. 2d 92, 94, 32 Cal. Rptr. 33, 383 P.2d 441

[e] Failure to File Claim Against Public Entity

Time period within which plaintiff must present claim for injuries to public entity as condition precedent to commencing suit against entity. Whitfield v. Roth (1974) 10 Cal. 3d 874, 883-885, 112 Cal. Rptr. 540, 519 P.2d 588 ; Wozniak v. Peninsula Hospital (1969) 1 Cal. App. 3d 716, 723, 82 Cal. Rptr. 84

Complaint against public entity which fails to show compliance with claims procedure as subject to general demurrer. Dias v. Eden Township Hospital Dist. (1962) 57 Cal. 2d 502, 503-504, 20 Cal. Rptr. 630, 370 P.2d 334

Showing required of petitioner seeking relief from claims requirement under Gov. Code § 946.6 based on mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect as same as required under Code Civ. Proc. § 473; not every mistake as excusing default. Shank v. County of Los Angeles (1983) 139 Cal. App. 3d 152, 156-157, 188 Cal. Rptr. 644

Requirement of filing claim with public entity prior to commencing action as inapplicable when public entity failed to file informational statement with Secretary of State pursuant to Gov. Code § 53051. Banfield v. Sierra View Local Dist. Hospital (1981) 124 Cal. App. 3d 444, 456, 177 Cal. Rptr. 290 (disapproved on other grounds in Woods v. Young (1991) 53 Cal. 3d 315, 328 n.4, 279 Cal. Rptr. 613, 807 P.2d 455)

Affirmative defense based on noncompliance of plaintiff with claims procedure. Gonzales v. Brennan (1965) 238 Cal. App. 2d 69, 71, 47 Cal. Rptr. 501

[f] Governmental Immunity

Immunity of state and state hospital employees under Gov. Code § 856 from liability for failure to confine person under applicable statutes for mental illness; liability of state and employees for failure to warn foreseeable victim of patient's violent tendencies, which warning constitutes ministerial act outside scope of Gov. Code § 820.2 immunity for injuries resulting from discretionary acts of public employees. Tarasoff v. Regents of University of California (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 425, 131 Cal. Rptr. 14, 31, 551 P.2d 334

Direct liability of county hospital employees and derivative liability of county under Gov. Code § 854.8 for injuries to mental patient as result of negligent care. County of Los Angeles v. Superior Court (1965) 62 Cal. 2d 839, 843-844, 44 Cal. Rptr. 796, 402 P.2d 868

Hospital's compliance with minimum legal standards for equipment personnel, or facilities, relating to immunity exception under Gov. Code § 855(a), as issue of fact not resolvable on motion for nonsuit. Baber v. Napa State Hospital (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 213, 220, 257 Cal. Rptr. 55

Public entity immunity of Gov. Code § 856.2 for escape of person confined for mental illness as applying to hospital. Los Angeles County-U.S.C.S. Medical Center v. Superior Court (1984) 155 Cal. App. 3d 454, 460-463, 202 Cal. Rptr. 222

Immunity of state and state mental hospital employees under Gov. Code § 855.8(a) from liability for injuries of third person resulting from negligent diagnosis and treatment of inmate. Hernandez v. State of California (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 895, 897, 90 Cal. Rptr. 205

Immunity of state and state mental hospital employees under Gov. Code § 856(a)(3) from liability for injuries to third persons resulting from unwarranted release of inmate in dangerous condition. Hernandez v. State of California (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 895, 899, 90 Cal. Rptr. 205

Immunity of county under Gov. Code § 854.8 from liability for injuries suffered by patient during unsuccessful suicide attempt after patient's release from county hospital by hospital employees who had knowledge of patient's history of suicide attempts but who took no precautions to prevent further attempts by patient. Goff v. County of Los Angeles (1967) 254 Cal. App. 2d 45, 49-52, 61 Cal. Rptr. 840

Immunity of county and county hospital physician from liability under Gov. Code § 855.8 for diagnosing mental illness. Fish v. Regents of Univ. of Cal. (1966) 246 Cal. App. 2d 327, 331, 333, 54 Cal. Rptr. 656

Immunity of county hospital under Gov. Code § 854.8 from liability for death of mental patient caused by another patient whose actions hospital employees negligently failed to control. Moxon v. County of Kern (1965) 233 Cal. App. 2d 393, 396, 43 Cal. Rptr. 481

[g] Negligence of Patient

Reduction of plaintiff's recovery for injuries proximately resulting from defendant's negligence to extent that plaintiff negligently contributed to his or her own injuries. Li v. Yellow Cab Co. (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 804, 828-829, 119 Cal. Rptr. 858, 532 P.2d 1226

Weakened physical and confused mental condition of patient following surgery and medication as circumstances to be considered by trier of fact in determining whether patient negligently contributed to his or her injuries or acted as person of ordinary prudence. Rice v. California Lutheran Hospital (1945) 27 Cal. 2d 296, 303, 163 P.2d 860

Question of fact for jury whether patient was in such mental condition that he or she did not know significance of his or her acts and was not capable of caring for his or her own safety. Gin Non Louie v. Chinese Hospital Ass'n (1967) 249 Cal. App. 2d 774, 794, 57 Cal. Rptr. 906 (delirious patient); Miraglia v. Callison (1964) 226 Cal. App. 2d 177, 187, 37 Cal. Rptr. 837 (drugged patient); Welker v. Scripps Clinic & Research Found. (1961) 196 Cal. App. 2d 338, 343, 16

Cal. Rptr. 538 (drugged patient); DeMartini v. Alexander Sanitarium, Inc. (1961) 192 Cal. App. 2d 442, 447-448, 13 Cal. Rptr. 564 (mentally disturbed patient)

Incapacity of patient for negligence as matter of law where evidence shows that patient was totally devoid of reason at time of injury. DeMartini v. Alexander Sanitarium, Inc. (1961) 192 Cal. App. 2d 442, 447-448, 13 Cal. Rptr. 564

Question of fact for trier of fact whether patient negligently contributed to her injuries in getting out of bed in darkness contrary to instructions of hospital personnel. Ault v. Ross General Hospital (1951) 105 Cal. App. 2d 78, 79, 232 P.2d 528

[h] Periods of Limitation

Differing accrual dates for malpractice actions brought by minors and those brought by adults as violating constitutional right to equal protection; minor's malpractice claim as accruing on date of injury. Katz v. Children's Hospital of Orange County (9th Cir. 1994) 28 F.3d 1520, 1529, 1533

Statute of limitations applicable to health care providers under Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5 as tolled for 90 days when plaintiff gives 90-day notice of intent to sue required by Code Civ. Proc. § 364 in last 90 days of period of limitation. Woods v. Young (1991) 53 Cal. 3d 315, 328, 279 Cal. Rptr. 613, 807 P.2d 455

Whether plaintiff is minor or adult under Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5 as determined by his or her age at time of wrongful act. Steketee v. Lintz, Williams & Rothberg (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 46, 52-53, 210 Cal. Rptr. 781, 694 P.2d 1153

Tolling provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5 as applicable to three-year but not alternative one-year limitation period of Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5 for personal injury or death action based on professional negligence of hospital or medical practitioner. Sanchez v. South Hoover Hospital (1976) 18 Cal. 3d 93, 95, 132 Cal. Rptr. 657, 553 P.2d 1129

Applicability of one-year limitation period of former Code Civ. Proc. § 340(3) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 335.1 (two-year limitation period beginning in 2003)) to actions based on medical malpractice with judicial qualification that period did not commence to run until plaintiff's actual or constructive discovery of tortious injury. Huysman v. Kirsch (1936) 6 Cal. 2d 302, 312, 57 P.2d 908 ; Weinstock v. Eissler (1964) 224 Cal. App. 2d 212, 226-227, 36 Cal. Rptr. 537 (prior to enactment of Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5 for actions based on professional negligence of health care provider)

Limitation period as not extended by 90 days under Code Civ. Proc. § 364(d) regarding unnamed physicians if plaintiff has actual knowledge of identities of physicians, but gives notice under Code Civ. Proc. § 364(a) only to hospital when medical care was provided. Godwin v. City of Bellflower (1992) 5 Cal. App. 4th 1625, 1632, 7 Cal. Rptr. 2d 524

Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5 as not relieving litigant of complying with time limits and requirements imposed by Government Tort Claims Act. Torres v. County of Los Angeles (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 325, 333, 257 Cal. Rptr. 211

Statutory period for medical malpractice claim by minor against public entity (Gov. Code § 911.2) as commencing when minor's parent or guardian knew or should have known through exercise or reasonable diligence that negligent wrongful act of medical malpractice caused child's injuries. Torres v. County of Los Angeles (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 325, 335, 257 Cal. Rptr. 211

In malpractice action arising from injuries caused by plaintiff's use of intrauterine birth control device (IUD), one-year statute of limitations as commencing to run when plaintiff had reasonable suspicion that she had been harmed by defendant physician's prescribed use of IUD. Rose v. Fife (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 760, 768-770, 255 Cal. Rptr. 440

Reasonableness of plaintiff's belated discovery of defendant's negligence as question of law when reasonable minds can only draw one conclusion from evidence. Rose v. Fife (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 760, 770, 255 Cal. Rptr. 440

Foreign body exception of Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5 as delaying start of medical malpractice statute of limitations until patient discovers or through reasonable diligence would have discovered foreign body itself and its role as negligent cause of his or her suffering. Ashworth v. Memorial Hospital of Long Beach (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 1046, 1051, 1062, 254 Cal. Rptr. 104

Tolling under foreign body exception of Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5 as continuing even though plaintiff filed earlier action, dismissed without prejudice, based on other forms of malpractice occurring during same medical treatment. Ashworth v. Memorial Hospital (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 1046, 1051, 1063-1064, 254 Cal. Rptr. 104

Medical malpractice action against county hospital brought after claim rejected under Gov. Code § 913 as required to be filed within six-month limitation period of Gov. Code § 945.6, even though action is filed within one-year limitation period of Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5 for medical malpractice actions. Anson v. County of Merced (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 1195, 1199, 1202, 249 Cal. Rptr. 457

Tolling provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 364(d) as not applying to one-year limitation period of former Code Civ. Proc. § 340(3) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 335.1 (two-year limitation period beginning in 2003)). Noble v. Superior Court (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 1189, 1192-1194, 237 Cal. Rptr. 38

Foreign-body exception of Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5 as applicable only to medically inserted objects that have no therapeutic or diagnostic purpose and that are left in patient's body. Wallace v. Hibner (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 1042, 1047, 217 Cal. Rptr. 748

Medical malpractice action as required to satisfy both limitation periods under Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5; action as barred either if brought more than one year after plaintiff becomes aware of physical manifestation of injury and its negligent cause, or if brought more than three years after plaintiff becomes aware of physical manifestation of injury regardless of awareness of negligent cause, except when one or more of three specified exceptions apply to toll three-year period. Hills v. Aronsohn (1984) 152 Cal. App. 3d 753, 757-762, 758 n.3, 199 Cal. Rptr. 816

Silicone intentionally injected into plaintiff for therapeutic purpose, with her consent, as not tolling three-year limitation period in Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5; "foreign body" exception in that section as operative when defendant negligently leaves nontherapeutic foreign body in plaintiff's person without plaintiff's awareness. Hills v. Aronsohn (1984) 152 Cal. App. 3d 753, 763-765, 199 Cal. Rptr. 816

Three-year period of Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5 as not commenced in action by minor until parent or guardian discovers, or through use of reasonable diligence would be expected to discover, injury and its negligent cause. Kite v. Campbell (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 793, 803, 191 Cal. Rptr. 363 , overruled on other grounds, Young v. Haines (1986) 41 Cal. 3d 883, 226 Cal. Rptr. 547, 718 P.2d 909

Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5, rather than former Civ. Code § 29 (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 340.4), as applicable to minor's cause of action for prenatal medical malpractice. Knox v. Superior Court (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 782, 786, 189 Cal. Rptr. 800

In medical malpractice action, plaintiff's incompetence, aside from minority, does not toll three-year statutory period of limitation. Fogarty v. Superior Court (1981) 117 Cal. App. 3d 316, 320, 172 Cal. Rptr. 594

Personal injury action based on professional negligence of health care provider as barred after three-year limitation period of Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5 has run, whether or not plaintiff's injury is discovered during this period. Blake v.

Wernette (1976) 57 Cal. App. 3d 656, 660, 129 Cal. Rptr. 426

Applicability of one-year limitations period of former Code Civ. Proc. § 340(3) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 335.1 (two-year limitations period beginning in 2003)) to personal injury action based on hospital's ordinary negligence in caring for patient; applicability of limitation period for professional malpractice when hospital fails to exercise skill, prudence, and diligence in performance of professional and fiduciary duties. Gopaul v. Herrick Memorial Hosp. (1974) 38 Cal. App. 3d 1002, 1007, 113 Cal. Rptr. 811 , disapproved on other grounds, Flowers v. Torrance Memorial Hospital Medical Center (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 992, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 685, 884 P.2d 142

[5] Emergency Medical Services

Because proper standard of care in medical malpractice action is standard existing at time alleged malpractice occurred, requirement of Health & Safety Code § 1799.110(c) that testifying medical expert have substantial experience in emergency medical coverage within "last five years" is measured from date of alleged malpractice, not from date of trial. Petrou v. S. Coast Emergency Group (2004) 119 Cal. App. 4th 1090, 1094, 15 Cal. Rptr. 3d 64 .

Health & Safety Code § 1799.110 as not applicable to action against hospital when there was no allegation of negligent care by emergency room physician, but instead involved claim that hospital failed to provide essential hospital services of back-up surgical team and anesthesiologist. Baxter v. Alexian Brothers Hospital (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 722, 262 Cal. Rptr. 867

Health & Safety Code § 1799.110(c), allowing medical testimony only from physicians and surgeons with substantial professional acute care hospital emergency department experience within past five years, as applicable to action against hospital for damages involving negligence alleged to have been committed by hospital emergency room physician providing emergency care, whether or not physician has been named as defendant. Jutzi v. County of Los Angeles (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 637, 651, 242 Cal. Rptr. 74

[6] Formation and Operation

Formation and operation of hospitals within power of state and its political subdivisions. Paso Robles War Mem'l Hosp. Dist. v. Negley (1946) 29 Cal. 2d 203, 204-205, 173 P.2d 813 ; Jardine v. Pasadena (1926) 199 Cal. 64, 68, 248 P. 225

State Department of Health Services as empowered under Health and Safety Code to promulgate informed consent regulations governing sterilization operations for hospitals. California Medical Assn. v. Lackner (1981) 124 Cal. App. 3d 28, 39, 177 Cal. Rptr. 188

Disclosure of financial information by hospital, required by former Health & Safety Code § 442(a), as valid exercise of state's police power, and as not violating constitutional rights to privacy [U.S. Const., amend. XIV; Cal. Const., art. I, § 1]. Wilson v. California Health Facilities Com. (1980) 110 Cal. App. 3d 317, 321, 167 Cal. Rptr. 801

Under Health & Safety Code § 32110, officers, directors, and managers of private nonprofit or private proprietary hospitals as ineligible to serve on public hospital board of directors if both hospitals serve same area. Franzblau v. Monardo (1980) 108 Cal. App. 3d 522, 528, 166 Cal. Rptr. 610

[7] Hospital Records

Limited admissibility of medical diagnoses of patients' conditions contained in hospital records. People v. Reyes

(1974) 12 Cal. 3d 486, 502-504, 116 Cal. Rptr. 217, 526 P.2d 225 ; People v. O'Tremba (1970) 4 Cal. App. 3d 524, 528-529, 84 Cal. Rptr. 336 ; Springer v. Reimers (1970) 4 Cal. App. 3d 325, 338-340, 84 Cal. Rptr. 486

Admissibility of hospital records as proof of facts contained in records under exception to hearsay rule for business records. Loper v. Morrison (1944) 23 Cal. 2d 600, 607-609, 145 P.2d 1 ; Springer v. Reimers (1970) 4 Cal. App. 3d 325, 338, 84 Cal. Rptr. 486

Damages action by physician for past restrictions of staff privileges as not constituting action by "any person requesting hospital staff privileges" within exception under Evid. Code § 1157(c) to general statutory immunity from discovery of records of hospital staff review committee. California Eye Institute v. Superior Court (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 1477, 1481, 264 Cal. Rptr. 83

In malpractice action combined with products liability action alleging drug defect, minutes of medical staff committee formed to evaluate and approve standards for granting physician privileges to use that new drug as treatment at hospital as within protection of Evid. Code § 1157. Mt. Diablo Hospital Dist. v. Superior Court (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 30, 34-35, 227 Cal. Rptr. 790

Evid. Code § 1157 as denying potential medical malpractice plaintiffs access to proceedings and records of hospital medical staff committees and preserving access rights of individual physician denied staff privileges. County of San Diego v. Superior Court (1986) 176 Cal. App. 3d 1009, 1022, 222 Cal. Rptr. 484

When defendant hospital in malpractice action seeks to avoid disclosure of medical staff records under Evid. Code § 1157(a), in camera inspection as necessary whenever protection is not facially apparent to ensure that hospital is not in effect avoiding disclosure of nonprotected administrative records by placing them in the possession of members of protected medical staff committees. Santa Rosa Memorial Hospital v. Superior Court (1985) 174 Cal. App. 3d 711, 721-730, 220 Cal. Rptr. 236

Evid. Code § 1157 as representing legislature's choice between competing public concerns and as embracing goal of medical staff candor at cost of impairing plaintiff's access to evidence. Mt. Diablo Hospital Medical Center v. Superior Court (1984) 158 Cal. App. 3d 344, 347, 204 Cal. Rptr. 626

In camera hearing by trial court as required to determine that hospital records do not contain reference to proceedings immune under Evid. Code § 1157 and to determine exception to privacy privilege. Saddleback Community Hospital v. Superior Court (1984) 158 Cal. App. 3d 206, 209, 204 Cal. Rptr. 598

Collective bargaining agreement provision that governed injury grievance of football player but was silent on production of records as not depriving state court of jurisdiction to enforce discovery of medical records under Evid. Code § 1158 despite fact that football industry is subject to federal law. National Football League Management Council v. Superior Court (1983) 138 Cal. App. 3d 895, 899, 188 Cal. Rptr. 337

Under Evid. Code § 1157, discoverability of hospital's administrative files but nondiscoverability of records of hospital's medical staff committees charged with evaluation and improvement of quality of patient care rendered in hospital. Matchett v. Superior Court (1974) 40 Cal. App. 3d 623, 628, 631, 115 Cal. Rptr. 317

Use of procedure set forth in Evid. Code §§ 1560-1566 to establish foundation for admission of hospital records under Evid. Code §§ 1270, 1271 for proof of facts contained in records. People v. Blagg (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 598, 609-610, 73 Cal. Rptr. 93

Nondiscoverability and nonadmissibility of information privileged under Evid. Code § 996 (confidential patient-physician communications) in hospital records. Carlton v. Superior Court (1968) 261 Cal. App. 2d 282, 290,

67 Cal. Rptr. 568

Limited admissibility of hospital records containing patients' histories under exception to hearsay rule for business records. People v. Williams (1960) 187 Cal. App. 2d 355, 364-366, 9 Cal. Rptr. 722

[8] Joint Tortfeasors

[a] Affiliation With Medical School

In action by county hospital against medical school for indemnification for losses on malpractice claim, when school was affiliated with hospital in order to train hospital's residents, and resident-trainees were negligent, school as liable for half of judgment as joint tortfeasor. County of Riverside v. Loma Linda University (1981) 118 Cal. App. 3d 300, 314-319, 173 Cal. Rptr. 371

[9] Psychologists

Hospital that admits clinical psychologists to its staff as able to permit such psychologists to take primary responsibility for admission, diagnosis, treatment, and discharge of their patients; Health and Safety Code § 1316.5 as allowing hospital to permit clinical psychologists on its staff to provide psychological services within the legal s cope of their licensure, without physician supervision and without discriminatory restrictions. California Ass'n of Psychology Providers v. Rank (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 1, 14, 21, 270 Cal. Rptr. 796, 793 P.2d 2

[10] Res Ipsa Loquitur

[a] Conditions of Doctrine

Applicability of res ipsa loquitur to wrongful death action based on hospital's failure to adequately supervise mental patient with suicidal tendencies. Meier v. Ross Gen. Hosp. (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 420, 424, 71 Cal. Rptr. 903, 445 P.2d 519 ; Vistica v. Presbyterian Hospital & Medical Center, Inc. (1967) 67 Cal. 2d 465, 470, 62 Cal. Rptr. 577, 432 P.2d 193

Propriety of conditional res ipsa loquitur instruction when evidence excludes patient's voluntary actions as responsible cause of patient's injury. Meier v. Ross Gen. Hosp. (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 420, 427, 71 Cal. Rptr. 903, 445 P.2d 519

Applicability of res ipsa loquitur where it can be said, in light of past experience, that plaintiff's injuries were more probably than not result of someone's negligence and that defendant was probably person responsible. Quintal v. Laurel Grove Hospital (1964) 62 Cal. 2d 154, 164-166, 41 Cal. Rptr. 577, 397 P.2d 161 ; Davis v. Memorial Hospital (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 815, 817, 26 Cal. Rptr. 633, 376 P.2d 561 ; Seneris v. Haas (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 811, 824, 291 P.2d 915 ; Crawford v. County of Sacramento (1966) 239 Cal. App. 2d 791, 797, 49 Cal. Rptr. 115

Application of res ipsa loquitur in action to recover damages for negligence when plaintiff establishes following basic facts: (1) injury is kind which ordinarily does not occur in absence of someone's negligence, (2) injury was caused by agency or instrumentality in defendant's control, and (3) injury was not due to any voluntary action or contribution on part of plaintiff which was responsible cause of injury. Seneris v. Haas (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 811, 823, 291 P.2d 915 ; Ybarra v. Spangard (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 486, 489, 154 P.2d 687 ; Sanchez v. Bay General Hosp. (1981) 116 Cal. App. 3d 776, 786-789, 172 Cal. Rptr. 342 ; Cline v. Lund (1973) 31 Cal. App. 3d 755, 761, 107 Cal. Rptr. 629

Superior knowledge of defendant with respect to circumstances and cause of plaintiff's injury as factor to be considered in determining applicability of res ipsa loquitur. Seneris v. Haas (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 811, 825, 291 P.2d 915

[b] Contribution of Patient to Injury

Exclusion of patient's voluntary actions as responsible cause of patient's injury when evidence establishes that hospital having physical care and control of patient owed patient duty of protection from dangers inherent in patient's actions. Meier v. Ross General Hospital (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 420, 427, 71 Cal. Rptr. 903, 445 P.2d 519 ; Vistica v. Presbyterian Hospital (1967) 67 Cal. 2d 465, 470, 62 Cal. Rptr. 577, 432 P.2d 193

Patient as able to rely on res ipsa loquitur even though he or she participated in events leading up to accident, if patient's conduct was not primary cause of accident. Emerick v. Raleigh Hills Hospital (1982) 133 Cal. App. 3d 575, 584, 184 Cal. Rptr. 92

[c] Defendant's Control

Applicability of res ipsa loquitur against all persons who had control of or right to control patient's body or instrumentality which might have caused patient's injury during medical treatment or procedure when occurrence of injury raises inference of negligence but patient is unable to identify instrumentality within control of particular person which caused injury because patient was unconscious at time. Leonard v. Watsonville Community Hosp. (1956) 47 Cal. 2d 509, 514, 305 P.2d 36 ; Seneris v. Haas (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 811, 825-826, 291 P.2d 915 ; Ybarra v. Spangard (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 486, 492-494, 154 P.2d 687 ; Gin Non Louie v. Chinese Hospital Ass'n (1967) 249 Cal. App. 2d 774, 794-795, 57 Cal. Rptr. 906 ; Ragusano v. Civic Center Hospital Foundation (1962) 199 Cal. App. 2d 586, 596, 19 Cal. Rptr. 118

Inapplicability of res ipsa loquitur against defendant who had no control of instrumentality causing patient's injury. Ware v. Culp (1937) 24 Cal. App. 2d 22, 31-32, 74 P.2d 283

[d] Defendant's Negligence as Probable Cause

Requirement of expert testimony to establish defendant's negligence as cause of patient's injuries when such injuries occurred during medical treatment involving exercise of professional judgment which can only be assessed in light of scientific opinion; no requirement of expert testimony when injuries occurred during medical treatment within common knowledge of lay persons or when cause of injuries was not inextricably bound up with course of medical treatment. Meier v. Ross General Hospital (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 420, 429-431, 71 Cal. Rptr. 903, 445 P.2d 519 ; Davis v. Memorial Hospital (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 815, 817, 26 Cal. Rptr. 633, 376 P.2d 561 ; Seneris v. Haas (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 811, 824-825, 291 P.2d 915 ; Cavero v. Franklin Gen. Benevolent Soc'y (1950) 36 Cal. 2d 301, 311, 223 P.2d 471 ; Cline v. Lund (1973) 31 Cal. App. 3d 755, 763, 107 Cal. Rptr. 629

Applicability of res ipsa loquitur when reasonable basis for believing that patient's injuries were probably caused by negligence is established by evidence that (1) injuries are known risk of medical treatment or procedure which rarely occurs when due care is exercised and (2) specific acts by defendant indicating negligence, even though such acts may not constitute sufficient evidence to prove either defendant's lack of due care or proximate causation. Quintal v. Laurel Grove Hospital (1964) 62 Cal. 2d 154, 165-166, 41 Cal. Rptr. 577, 397 P.2d 161 ; Cline v. Lund (1973) 31 Cal. App. 3d 755, 763, 107 Cal. Rptr. 629

Evidence that patient's injury is rare but inherent risk of medical treatment or procedure as insufficient to prove that injury was probably caused by negligence of persons administering treatment or procedure. Siverson v. Weber (1962) 57 Cal. 2d 834, 836, 22 Cal. Rptr. 337, 372 P.2d 97 ; Salgo v. Leland Stanford Jr. Univ. Bd. of Trs. (1957) 154 Cal.

App. 2d 560, 571, 317 P.2d 170

[e] Effect of Proving Specific Acts

Applicability of res ipsa loquitur despite evidence of specific acts of negligence by defendant unless such evidence establishes cause of injury and care exercised by defendant as matter of law. Gin Non Louie v. Chinese Hospital Ass'n (1967) 249 Cal. App. 2d 774, 795, 57 Cal. Rptr. 906

[f] Operation of Doctrine

Propriety of conditional res ipsa loquitur instruction when evidence relating to facts conditioning application of res ipsa is conflicting or subject to different inferences so long as plaintiff has produced sufficient evidence to permit jury to draw inference of defendant's negligence; question of fact for jury whether factual conditions of res ipsa exist and whether res ipsa may be applied. Quintal v. Laurel Grove Hospital (1964) 62 Cal. 2d 154, 166, 41 Cal. Rptr. 577, 397 P.2d 161 ; Davis v. Memorial Hospital (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 815, 817-818, 26 Cal. Rptr. 633, 376 P.2d 561 ; Seneris v. Haas (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 811, 826-827, 291 P.2d 915 ; Gin Non Louie v. Chinese Hospital Ass'n (1967) 249 Cal. App. 2d 774, 794, 57 Cal. Rptr. 906

Inference of defendant's negligence arising under doctrine of res ipsa loquitur dispelled as matter of law by clear, positive, uncontradicted evidence which cannot be rationally disbelieved. Leonard v. Watsonville Community Hosp. (1956) 47 Cal. 2d 509, 518, 305 P.2d 36 ; Oldis v. La Societe Francaise (1955) 130 Cal. App. 2d 461, 470, 279 P.2d 184

Applicability of res ipsa loquitur presumption when plaintiff's evidence establishes defendant's negligence as probable cause of injury even though other causes are not excluded and are reasonably inferrable from other evidence. Seneris v. Haas (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 811, 826, 291 P.2d 915 ; Cline v. Lund (1973) 31 Cal. App. 3d 755, 764, 107 Cal. Rptr. 629

Rebuttal of res ipsa loquitur presumption by defendant with evidence sufficient to support finding that (1) defendant exercised such care that injury could not have resulted from his or her lack of care or (2) injury was proximately caused by factors other than defendant's negligence. Dierman v. Providence Hosp. (1947) 31 Cal. 2d 290, 295, 188 P.2d 12 ; Oldis v. La Societe Francaise (1955) 130 Cal. App. 2d 461, 469, 279 P.2d 184

Preconditions for application of res ipsa loquitur as satisfied when bathroom sink in hospital collapsed under patient's pressure. Emerick v. Raleigh Hills Hospital (1982) 133 Cal. App. 3d 575, 585, 184 Cal. Rptr. 92

Res ipsa loquitur as presumption affecting burden of producing evidence, requiring trier of fact to find that plaintiff's injuries resulted from defendant's negligence unless defendant comes forward with evidence that would support contrary finding. Rimmele v. Northridge Hosp. Foundation (1975) 46 Cal. App. 3d 123, 129, 120 Cal. Rptr. 39 ; Cline v. Lund (1973) 31 Cal. App. 3d 755, 761-762, 107 Cal. Rptr. 629

[g] Pleading

General allegation of defendant's negligence in complaint as sufficient to invoke doctrine of res ipsa loquitur. Guilliams v. Hollywood Hospital (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 97, 102, 114 P.2d 1 ; Sherman v. Hartman (1955) 137 Cal. App. 2d 589, 597-599, 290 P.2d 894

Allegation of defendant's negligence in complaint as general rather than specific when allegation shows plaintiff's ignorance of underlying cause of or specific acts resulting in injury. Sherman v. Hartman (1955) 137 Cal. App. 2d

589, 597-599, 290 P.2d 894 ; Foster v. Delgrave (1954) 129 Cal. App. 2d 525, 527, 277 P.2d 408

[11] Residential Care Facilities

Residential care facilities licensed pursuant to Health & Safety Code § 1502, although incidentally providing some medical services, as neither "health dispensaries" subject to application of MICRA limits on damages nor "clinics" or "health facilities," because provisions of § 1502 apply to facilities that provide primarily nonmedical care. Kotler v. Alma Lodge (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 1381, 1390-1395, 74 Cal. Rptr. 2d 721

[12] Small Claims Action Against Malpractice Plaintiff

When health care provider sues party in small claims court, and party has malpractice claim against health care provider exceeding jurisdictional amount in small claims court, party as entitled to continuance of action, to allow compliance with Code Civ. Proc. § 364 and former Code Civ. Proc. § 116.8(b) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 116.390). Clark v. Superior Court (1980) 113 Cal. App. 3d 865, 869, 169 Cal. Rptr. 898

[13] Termination or Refusal of Treatment

State as able to apply clear and convincing evidence standard of proof in proceedings in which guardian seeks to discontinue nutrition and hydration of person diagnosed in persistent vegetative state. Cruzan v. Director, Mo. Health Dept. (1990) 497 U.S. 261, 284, 110 S. Ct. 2841, 111 L. Ed. 2d 224

Competent, nonterminally ill adult patient as having constitutionally based right to refuse and/or to terminate medical treatment. Bartling v. Glendale Adventist Medical Center (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 97, 99, 102, 228 Cal. Rptr. 847

Adult patient of sound mind as having right to refuse any medical treatment or service, even when treatment may save or prolong patient's life. Bouvia v. Superior Court (1986) 179 Cal. App. 3d 1127, 1137, 225 Cal. Rptr. 297

Right of adult patient of sound mind to refuse medical treatment as basic and fundamental and as part of right of privacy protected by both California and federal Constitutions. Bouvia v. Superior Court (1986) 179 Cal. App. 3d 1127, 1137, 225 Cal. Rptr. 297 (citing Cal. Const., art. I, § 1; *Griswold v. Connecticut (1965) 381 U.S. 479, 484, 85 S. Ct. 1678, 14 L. § 295.50 Notice of Intention to Commence Action Against Health Care Provider [Code Civ. Proc. § 364]

[1] FORM Notice of Intention to Commence Action Against Health Care Provider [Code Civ. Proc. § 364]

_____ [name and address of defendant health care provider]:

You are hereby notified that _____ [name of plaintiff] intends to file an action against you for professional negligence. The legal basis of this action will be that _____ [specify basis, e.g., defendant(s) _____ (name (s)) negligently transfused plaintiff with incompatible blood]. Plaintiff will allege and prove that he/she sustained the following losses and injuries as a proximate result of the aforementioned professional negligence: _____ [specify plaintiff's losses and injuries].

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Plaintiff

[2] Use of Form

The notice in [1], above, is an example of the notice that a plaintiff must serve on a health care provider prior to filing an action based on professional negligence against the provider unless the provider is identified by a fictitious name in the complaint pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 474 [Code Civ. Proc. § 364(a), (e)]. The term "health care provider" includes, among others, licensed medical personnel and hospitals licensed pursuant to Health & Safety Code §§ 1250-1319 [Code Civ. Proc. § 364(f)(1)].

The term "professional negligence" means a negligent act or omission to act by a health care provider in the rendering of professional services, which act or omission is the proximate cause of a personal injury or wrongful death, provided that such services are within the scope of services for which the provider is licensed and which are not within any restriction imposed by the licensing agency or licensed hospital [Code Civ. Proc. § 364(f)(2)].

For discussion of the notice requirement and its relationship to the claim requirement if a defendant is a public entity, see § 295.15.

[3] Contents of Form

Although no particular form of notice is required, the notice must notify the defendant of the legal basis of the plaintiff's claim and the type of loss sustained, including with specificity the nature of the injuries suffered [Code Civ. Proc. § 364(b)]. For further discussion of the notice of intention to commence action, see § 295.15.

[4] Service of Notice

The notice may be served in the manner prescribed by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1010-1020 [Code Civ. Proc. § 364(c)]. It must be served within 90 days prior to commencement of plaintiff's action [Code Civ. Proc. § 364(a)]. If the notice is served within 90 days of the expiration of the applicable statute of limitations, the time for the commencement of the action is extended 90 days from the service of the notice [Code Civ. Proc. § 364(d)].

[5] Effect of Failure to Serve Notice

Failure to comply with the notice requirement of Code Civ. Proc. § 364 does not invalidate any proceedings of any court in California, nor does it affect the jurisdiction of the court to render a judgment. However, failure to comply with the notice requirement by an attorney at law is grounds for professional discipline. The State Bar of California must investigate and take appropriate action in any such cases brought to its attention [Code Civ. Proc. § 365].

Because failure to comply with the notice requirement is not jurisdictional, the failure to allege each injury suffered in the notice does not prevent a plaintiff from including that injury as a basis for a cause of action in the lawsuit subsequently filed, so long as the cause of action is not otherwise barred by the statute of limitations [Edwards v. Superior Court (2001) 93 Cal. App. 4th 172, 180, 112 Cal. Rptr. 2d 838] .

Plaintiff alleges:

[EITHER]

1. At all times herein mentioned, defendant _____ [name of private hospital corporation] was, and is, a corporation duly organized and existing under the laws of the State of California [with its principal place of business in _____ (city), _____ County, California].

[OR]

1. At all times herein mentioned, defendant City of _____ was, and is, a municipal corporation duly organized and existing under the laws of the State of California [and situated in the County of _____].

[OR]

1. At all times herein mentioned, defendant _____ Hospital District was, and is, a local hospital district duly organized and existing under the Local Hospital District Law of the State of California [and situated in _____ County, California].

[OR]

1. At all times herein mentioned, defendant County of _____ was, and is, a county and political subdivision of the State of California, duly organized and existing under the laws of the State of California [or allege other capacity and residence].

[CONTINUE]

2. At all times herein mentioned, defendant _____ [name of hospital employee] was, and is, a resident of _____ [city], _____ County, California [or allege other capacity and residence].

3. [Plaintiff is ignorant of the true names and capacities of defendants sued herein as DOES I-_____, inclusive, and therefore sues these defendants by such fictitious names. Plaintiff will amend this complaint to allege their true names and capacities when ascertained. (Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that each of the fictitiously named defendants is negligently responsible in some manner for the occurrences herein alleged, and that plaintiff's injuries as herein alleged were proximately caused by the negligence hereinafter alleged.)]

4. At all times herein mentioned, defendant _____ [specify, i.e., corporation or city or hospital district or county] owned, operated, and maintained a hospital known as _____ [name of hospital] in _____ [city], _____ County, California, pursuant to a license duly issued by the California State Department of Health.

5. At all times herein mentioned, defendants _____ [names of hospital employees] [and defendants DOES I-_____] were the agents and employees of defendant _____ [name of hospital operator], and in doing the things herein mentioned, were acting within the course and scope of their authority as such agents and employees with the consent of their codefendant.

6. On or about _____ [date], plaintiff entered the hospital for the purpose of _____ [specify medical treatment or procedure, e.g., undergoing surgery]. At that time, defendants, and each of them, undertook to provide plaintiff with such care and attendance as plaintiff might require while he/she was a patient in the hospital.

7. On or about _____ [date], while plaintiff was a patient in the hospital, defendants, and each of them, negligently and carelessly _____ [specify failure to adequately attend to plaintiff's safety, e.g., failed to raise the safety rails on plaintiff's bed while plaintiff was recovering consciousness following the administration of anesthesia and surgery, although defendants, and each of them, knew, or in the exercise of reasonable care for plaintiff's safety should have known, that plaintiff was likely to fall from bed while under the influence of anesthesia unless the safety rails were raised].

8. As a proximate result of the negligence of defendants, and each of them, plaintiff _____ [specify result of defendants' failure to attend to plaintiff's safety, e.g., fell from bed] and suffered the injuries hereinafter alleged.

9. As a proximate result of the negligence of defendants, and each of them, plaintiff was hurt and injured in his/her health, strength, and activity, sustaining injury to his/her body and shock to his/her nervous system and person, all of which injuries have caused, and continue to cause, plaintiff great mental, physical, and nervous pain and suffering. [Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that such injuries will result in some permanent disability to him/her.] As a result of such injuries, plaintiff has suffered general damages.

10. As a further proximate result of the negligence of defendants, and each of them, plaintiff has been required to expend money and incur obligations, and will continue to expend money and incur obligations, for medical services, X rays, drugs, and sundries reasonably required in the treatment and relief of the injuries herein alleged. Plaintiff has been damaged thereby.

11. As a further proximate result of the negligence of defendants, and each of them, plaintiff was prevented from attending to his/her usual occupation as a[n] _____ [state occupation] _____ [for a period of _____ (specify) or to the date of the filing of this complaint] and thereby lost earnings.

12. [On or about _____ (date), plaintiff presented to _____ (name of governmental entity) by _____ (delivering or mailing) a claim to the _____ (clerk or secretary or auditor) for the injuries, disability, losses, and damages suffered and incurred by him/her by reason of the above-described occurrence, all in compliance with the requirements of Section 905 of the Government Code. A copy of the claim is attached hereto as Exhibit A and made a part hereof.]

13. [On or about _____ (date), _____ (name of governmental entity) _____ (rejected the claim in its entirety or allowed the claim in the amount of $_____ and rejected it as to the remainder or failed to act on the claim within the period of 45 days after its presentation, and the claim was thus deemed rejected, under the provisions of Section 912.4 of the Government Code, at the expiration of the 45-day period, to wit, on _____ (date)).]

14. Plaintiff gave notice to defendant on _____ [date], of intention to commence this action. [A copy of the notice is attached hereto as Exhibit A and made a part hereof.]

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendants, and each of them, as follows:

1. For general damages according to proof;

2. For medical and related expenses according to proof;

3. For loss of earnings according to proof;

4. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

5. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

The complaint in [1], above, may be used by a hospital patient in an action based on professional negligence to recover damages for personal injuries resulting from inadequate care and attendance by hospital employees.

The complaint may be used in an action under the Federal Tort Claims Act [28 U.S.C.S. §§ 1346(b), 2671-2680] against a hospital operated by the federal government if appropriate allegations of federal district court jurisdiction and compliance with federal claim procedures prior to commencing suit are included. For a jurisdictional allegation, see Ch. 265, Federal Courts: Jurisdiction and Removal . For general discussion of pleading and practice under the Federal Tort Claims Act, see Moore's Federal Practice Forms (3rd ed. Matthew Bender); for related forms, see Frumer and Hall, Bender's Federal Practice Forms, Vol. 1, Allegations of Jurisdiction--Particular Federal Question, and Vol. 1A, Complaints--Federal Tort Claims Act.

[3] Allegations

The complaint alleges:

- A patient-hospital relationship from which a duty of protection owed to the plaintiff by the defendants can be inferred (Paragraphs 4-6).

- The defendants' negligent conduct breaching this duty (Paragraph 7).

- Injury to the plaintiff as a proximate result of the defendants' breach (Paragraph 8).

- Damages resulting from the injury (Paragraphs 9-11).

- The filing of a claim with a public entity and its rejection (Paragraphs 12, 13). This allegation must be included in the complaint if the defendant hospital is operated by a public entity and the hospital employees are public employees [see Gov. Code §§ 945.4, 950.2-950.6].

This complaint also includes a statement that notice of intention to commence action has been given to all defendants (Paragraph 14). Ninety days' prior notice is required [Code Civ. Proc. § 364(a); see also § 295.51[4]].

[4] Applicability of MICRA

This complaint alleges professional negligence against the defendant hospital. Therefore, the requirements of the Medical Injury Compensation Reform Act of 1975 (MICRA) apply [see Murillo v. Good Samaritan Hospital (1979) 99 Cal. App. 3d 50, 56-57, 160 Cal. Rptr. 33 , disapproved on other grounds, Flowers v. Torrance Memorial Hospital Medical Center (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 992, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 685, 884 P.2d 142 ; see also § 295.13[2]].

MICRA's requirements include limitations on attorney's fees [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 6146], allowance of evidence of collateral sources [see Civ. Code § 3333.1], limitations on recovery of damages for noneconomic losses [see Civ. Code § 3333.2], a special statute of limitations [see Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5], a special requirement of a 90-day notice period before commencement of the action [see Code Civ. Proc. § 364; for a form of notice, see § 295.50], allowance of periodic payments of future damages [see Code Civ. Proc. § 667.7], and arbitration provisions [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1295].

[5] Duty of Protection

A hospital owes each of its patients a duty of protection; that is, it must exercise such reasonable care for a patient's safety as the patient's known condition requires, and it is liable for personal injuries of the patient caused by its failure to do so [Rice v. California Lutheran Hospital (1945) 27 Cal. 2d 296, 299, 163 P.2d 860] , either directly when the hospital fails to furnish adequate care and competent attendants in accordance with its undertaking [Guilliams v. Hollywood Hospital (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 97, 103, 114 P.2d 1 ; England v. Hospital of Good Samaritan (1936) 16 Cal. App. 2d 640, 644, 61 P.2d 48] or vicariously when hospital employees negligently care for a patient within the scope of their employment [Sherman v. Hartman (1955) 137 Cal. App. 2d 589, 600-601, 290 P.2d 894] . See §§ 295.52-295.57 for specific allegations of breaches by a hospital of its duty of protection.

[6] Verification

Although verification of this complaint is not required [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(a)], verification will require any answer to be verified in an unlimited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446]. Verification will also preclude a general denial in an unimited civil case, and will preclude a general denial even in a limited civil case when the action is a claim assigned to a third party for collection [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion see Ch. 26, Answers .

A public entity need not verify its answer even though the complaint is verified [see Code Civ. Proc. § 446]. The verification of a complaint against a public entity does, however, preclude a general denial in superior court and some limited civil cases [see Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)].

[7] Specifying Amount of Damages

In an action to recover damages for personal injury or wrongful death, the complaint must not state the amount of actual or punitive damages demanded [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)].

Otherwise, the amounts claimed as damages for anything other than personal injury or wrongful death (for example, property damage) must be alleged [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)] or an equivalent statement must be included, for example, a statement that the damages for a particular loss or harm sustained [see Civ. Code §§ 3281, 3282] are not known and that leave will be sought to amend the complaint to state the exact amount when ascertained. If this is done, counsel must remember to seek leave to amend the complaint to so state before judgment.

No claim for punitive damages may state an amount sought regardless of the nature of the case [Civ. Code § 3295(e)].

For discussion of and forms for requesting and stating the amount of damages sought when they are not stated in the complaint, see Ch. 177, Damages , and Ch. 205, Defaults and Default Judgments [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 425.11, 425.115].

[8] Venue

In an action for personal injury resulting from a wrongful act or negligence, either the county where the injury occurs or the county where the defendants, or some of them, reside at the commencement of the action is a proper county for the trial of the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 395]. If venue is based on the situs of the wrongful act or negligence, then the allegations of defendants' residence in Paragraphs 1 and 2 are not necessary.

Although defendants, and each of them, had undertaken to provide plaintiff with all the care and attendance that plaintiff might require in connection with the medical treatment plaintiff was undergoing as a patient in the hospital, and although defendants, and each of them, knew, or in the exercise of ordinary care should have known, that plaintiff's safety depended on such care and attendance, defendants, and each of them, negligently and carelessly failed to follow the orders of plaintiff's physician, _____ [specify omission, e.g., by taking plaintiff's blood pressure every hour rather than every half-hour as prescribed].

[2] Use of Form

The allegation in [1], above, may be incorporated as Paragraph 7 of the complaint set forth in § 295.51[1]. It may be used when hospital employees negligently fail to care for a patient in accordance with the orders of the patient's attending physician and the patient suffers injuries as a result. PART IV. FORMS

25-295 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 295.53

§ 295.53 Allegation--Failure to Maintain Medical Records

[1] FORM Allegation--Failure to Maintain Medical Records

Although defendants, and each of them, knew, or in the exercise of ordinary care should have known, that plaintiff's safety required them to maintain accurate records of plaintiff's condition, medication, and treatment while plaintiff was a patient in the hospital, defendants, and each of them, negligently and unlawfully _____ [specify, e.g., failed to record the administration of morphine to plaintiff] and, as a proximate result of this negligence, _____ [specify, e.g., plaintiff was given an overdose of morphine].

[2] Use of Form

The allegation in [1], above, may be incorporated as Paragraph 7 of the complaint set forth in § 295.51[1]. It may be used when hospital employees negligently fail to maintain accurate records of a patient's condition, medication, and treatment, and the patient is injured as a result.

[3] Duty to Maintain Accurate Records

The maintenance of accurate medical records is not only an aspect of the duty of protection owed by a hospital to a patient [see Cline v. Lund (1973) 31 Cal. App. 3d 755, 763, 107 Cal. Rptr. 629 (negligence of hospital in failing to keep accurate patient record)] but also a requirement imposed by Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 2282(d) and 2283(b) and by 22 Cal. Code Reg §§ 70747-70751 and 71547-71551 on all hospitals in conjunction with their licensing by the Department of Health [see Health & Safety Code §§ 1276, 1277]. Accordingly, a hospital's negligence with respect to a patient will be presumed under Evid. Code § 669 if the patient is injured as a proximate result of the hospital's failure to maintain accurate records for the patient, if the court determines that (1) the patient is a member of the class of persons whom 22 Cal. Code Reg §§ 70747-70751 and 71547-71551 were intended to protect and (2) the patient's injuries are of the kind which 22 Cal. Code Reg §§ 70747-70751 and 71547-71551 were designed to prevent, and if the hospital fails to rebut the presumption with proof that its failure to maintain accurate records in accord with 22 Cal. Code Reg §§ 70747-70751 and 71547-71551 was reasonable under the circumstances. Similarly, a public entity operating a hospital pursuant to a license issued by the Department of Health will be liable for a patient's injuries proximately resulting from its noncompliance with such regulations unless the entity pleads and proves as an affirmative defense that it exercised reasonable diligence to comply [Gov. Code §§ 815.6, 855] or that it is immune from liability under another statute [see Hernandez v. State of California (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 895, 899, 90 Cal. Rptr. 205 (nonliability of state and its employees under Gov. Code § 856 for negligence in maintaining mental patient's records)].

If the health care provider, licensed under Health & Safety Code § 1205 (clinics), 1253 (health facilities), 1575 (adult day health care), or 1726 (home health agencies) has ceased operation but failed to preserve the records for a minimum of seven years following discharge of the patient, and has left the patient without access to medical information to which he or she is entitled pursuant to Health & Safety Code § 123110, the person injured as a result may bring an action in a proper court for the amount of damage suffered, pursuant to Health & Safety Code § 123145(b) [Health & Safety Code § 123145]. If the patient is an unemancipated minor, the action may be brought if the licensee failed to preserve the records for at least one year after the minor has reached the age of 18, and in any case, not less than seven years [Health & Safety Code § 123145(a), (b)].

If the licensee is a corporation or partnership that is dissolved, the person injured may take action against that corporation's or partnership's principle officers of record at the time of dissolution [Health & Safety Code § 123145(b)]. For further discussion, see § 295.23[3][m].

[4] Pleading Violation of Statute in Negligence Actions

Since the violation of a statute, ordinance, or regulation which establishes or confirms a standard of care is merely a form of proof in an action based on negligence that a defendant breached the duty which he or she owed to the plaintiff, the existence and violation of a statute, ordinance, or regulation need not be pleaded in the complaint and may be introduced at trial under a general allegation of the defendant's negligence [Karl v. C.A. Reed Lumber Co. (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 358, 361, 79 Cal. Rptr. 852] . In fact, an allegation pleading the statute, ordinance, or regulation may be stricken from the complaint as unnecessary surplusage [Jackson v. Hardy (1945) 70 Cal. App. 2d 6, 12, 160 P.2d 161] . However, when a statute, ordinance, or regulation imposes a duty on a defendant which he or she would not otherwise have, the terms of the law and the fact that it was in force at the time of its violation by the defendant should be alleged [Brotemarkle v. Snyder (1950) 99 Cal. App. 2d 388, 390, 221 P.2d 992] . For further discussion and an allegation of the violation of a statute or ordinance, see Ch. 531, Statutes and Ordinances .

§ 295.54 Allegation--Failure to Safeguard Disabled or Immature Patient

[1] FORM Allegation--Failure to Safeguard Disabled or Immature Patient

Defendants, and each of them, knew, or in the exercise of ordinary care for plaintiff's safety should have known, that plaintiff _____ [specify circumstance of plaintiff's condition requiring special attention of hospital employees, e.g., was under the influence of drugs or had greatly impaired eyesight or had just undergone shock treatment or was in a greatly weakened physical and mental condition following surgery or was a child] and was not capable of exercising reasonable care for his/her own safety. Nevertheless, defendants, and each of them, negligently and carelessly _____ [specify failure of hospital employees to take special precautions for plaintiff's safety, e.g., failed to raise the guard rails on plaintiff's bed or failed to use reasonable restraints to subdue plaintiff or left a stool which plaintiff could not see next to plaintiff's bed without warning plaintiff of its presence or left a poisonous solution which plaintiff was likely to mistake for drinking water within plaintiff's reach or served hot tea to plaintiff without providing any special facility to assist plaintiff in drinking or failed to provide continuous skilled nursing to monitor plaintiff's critical condition] and failed to take other precautions for plaintiff's safety. As a proximate result of this negligence, plaintiff _____ [specify, e.g., fell out of bed or tripped over the stool or was poisoned or spilled the tea on himself/herself or smothered] and sustained the injuries hereinafter alleged.

[2] Use of Form

The allegation in [1], above, may be incorporated as Paragraph 7 of the complaint in § 295.51[1]. It may be used when hospital employees fail to exercise the special care and attention required by a specific mental or physical disability of a patient, and the patient is injured as a result. The amount of care which a hospital must exercise for a patient's safety is proportional to the patient's ability to care for himself or herself [Valentin v. La Societe Francaise (1946) 76 Cal. App. 2d 1, 5, 172 P.2d 359] . Thus, hospital personnel are responsible for observing the condition of a patient [Rice v. California Lutheran Hospital (1945) 27 Cal. 2d 296, 302, 163 P.2d 860] and providing special care to guard against hazards created by a specific disability of the patient [Thomas v. Seaside Memorial Hosp. (1947) 80 Cal. App. 2d 841, 848, 183 P.2d 288 ; for more discussion, see § 295.13[5]].

Nevertheless, defendants, and each of them, negligently and carelessly _____ [specify failure of hospital to adequately protect plaintiff from conditions on premises, e.g., installed the sink in the bathroom used by plaintiff so that it could not withstand reasonable, foreseeable pressure without collapsing] and failed to take other precautions for pla intiff's safety.

The allegation in [1], above, may be incorporated as Paragraph 7 of the complaint in § 295.51[1]. It may be used when a hospital fails to take special precautions to protect a patient from conditions on the premises required by a specific mental disability of the patient, and the patient is injured as a result. This form is adapted from the facts in Emerick v. Raleigh Hills Hospital (1982) 133 Cal. App. 3d 575, 184 Cal. Rptr. 92 . For further discussion, see § 295.13[4].

On or about _____ [date], plaintiff _____ [specify symptoms of condition requiring prompt medical treatment, e.g., began to experience extreme difficulty breathing]. Although defendants, and each of them, knew, or in the exercise of reasonable care for plaintiff's safety should have known, that plaintiff's condition was deteriorating and reaching a critical state that required immediate medical attention, defendants, and each of them, negligently and carelessly failed to [promptly] notify plaintiff's physician of such fact or to take other prompt and adequate measures to safeguard plaintiff.

[2] Use of Form

The allegation in [1], above, may be incorporated as Paragraph 7 of the complaint in § 295.51[1]. It may be used when hospital employees fail to promptly obtain medical attention and treatment for a patient, and the patient is injured as a result.

[3] Duty to Procure Necessary Treatment

The procurement of necessary medical treatment for a hospital patient is another aspect of a hospital's duty to exercise such reasonable care for a patient's safety as the known condition of the patient requires, that is, hospital personnel must employ such agencies as appear reasonably necessary to protect the patient [Valentin v. La Societe Francaise (1946) 76 Cal. App. 2d 1, 5, 172 P.2d 359] . For further discussion, see § 295.13[5][b].

25-295 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 295.57

§ 295.57 Allegation--Defective Equipment and Supplies

[1] FORM Allegation--Defective Equipment and Supplies

Defendants, and each of them, negligently and carelessly _____ [specify lack of necessary equipment or supplies, furnishing of unsuitable equipment or supplies, or malfunction of equipment required for plaintiff's care and treatment, e.g., failed to maintain or otherwise obtain the skin-grafting equipment which they knew or should have known was necessary for the proper treatment of plaintiff's third-degree burns or supplied applicators for surgical dressings which they knew or should have known were unfit for such purpose and dangerous to the patients, including plaintiff, for whom they were used or failed to keep in good working order the equipment (owned and) maintained by the hospital for the resuscitation of patients, including plaintiff, in emergencies].

[2] Use of Form

The allegation in [1], above, may be incorporated as Paragraph 7 of the complaint set forth in § 295.51[1]. It may be used when a hospital fails to provide equipment or supplies, or provides unfit or malfunctioning equipment or supplies, for the care and treatment of a patient, and the patient is injured as a result.

[3] Duty to Furnish Suitable Equipment and Supplies

A hospital owes a patient a duty to exercise ordinary care in furnishing equipment and supplies suitable for their intended use and commensurate with the requirements of the patient's case [Welsh v. Mercy Hospital (1944) 65 Cal. App. 2d 473, 478-479, 151 P.2d 17] . In addition, in conjunction with the licensing of hospitals by the Department of Health under Health & Safety Code § 1250 et seq., a variety of department regulations contained in 22 Cal. Code Reg §§ 70001-71667 prescribe minimum standards for hospital equipment, and 22 Cal. Code Reg §§ 70701(a)(4) and 71501(a)(3) require the governing bodies of licensed hospitals to provide appropriate physical resources and personnel required to meet the needs of patients. Thus, a hospital's negligence with respect to a patient will be presumed under Evid. Code § 669 if the patient is injured as a proximate result of the hospital's failure to maintain equipment and supplies in accordance with the Department of Health regulations, if the court determines that (1) the patient is a member of the class of persons whom the regulations were intended to protect and (2) the patient's injuries are of the kind which the regulations were designed to prevent, and if the hospital fails to rebut the presumption with proof that its failure to maintain equipment and supplies in accordance with department regulations was reasonable under the circumstances. Similarly, a public entity operating a hospital pursuant to a license issued by the Department of Health will be liable for a patient's injuries proximately resulting from its noncompliance with department regulations for equipment and supplies unless the entity pleads and proves as an affirmative defense that it exercised reasonable diligence to comply [Gov. Code §§ 815.6, 855].

[4] Inapplicability of Strict Liability

A hospital cannot be held responsible under a theory of strict liability in tort or breach of warranty for defective products which it supplies and which cause injury to patients during treatment. Like persons who sell their services for the guidance of others in economic, financial, and personal affairs, a hospital is burdened only with a duty of reasonable performance under the circumstances. The basis of the hospital's liability, if any, for defective products supplied in the course of the hospital's primary function of providing medical services is limited to negligence or intentional misconduct [Shepard v. Alexian Brothers Hosp. (1973) 33 Cal. App. 3d 606, 610-615, 109 Cal. Rptr. 132] . For further discussion, see § 295.13[3].

Attorney for Plaintiff(s)

[Verification, if desired. See § 295.51[1].]

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is a complaint against a hospital and its employees for the wrongful death of a patient who committed suicide when the employees failed to adequately supervise that patient. When the death of a person is caused by the wrongful act or negligence of another, certain persons, or a personal representative on their behalf, may bring an action for damages against the person causing the death and any other person responsible (or against the personal representatives of such persons) [Code Civ. Proc. § 377.60].

If the plaintiff is a minor, a guardian ad litem must be appointed for the purposes of the action, unless the minor already has a guardian [see Code Civ. Proc. § 372]. For discussion and forms relating to appointment of a guardian ad litem generally, see Ch. 291, Guardians ad Litem .

[3] Duty to Protect Mental Patient

The duty of care imposed on a hospital with respect to its patients extends to safeguarding the patients from dangers due to mental incapacity [Wood v. Samaritan Institution (1945) 26 Cal. 2d 847, 852, 161 P.2d 556] . Thus, if those charged with the care and treatment of a mentally disturbed patient know of facts from which they could reasonably conclude that the patient is likely to harm himself or herself in the absence of preclusive measures, they must use reasonable care under the circumstances to prevent such harm [Meier v. Ross Gen. Hosp. (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 420, 424, 71 Cal. Rptr. 903, 445 P.2d 519] . For further discussion, see § 295.13[5][b].

[4] Allegations

The complaint alleges:

- The basis for plaintiff's entitlement to bring the action (Paragraph 1) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 377.60].

- A patient-hospital relationship from which a duty of protection owed to the decedent by the defendants can be inferred (Paragraphs 7-9).

- The defendants' negligent conduct breaching this duty and proximately causing decedent's death (Paragraph 10).

- Damages proximately resulting to plaintiffs from the death of the decedent (Paragraphs 11-13) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 377.61].

[5] Applicability of MICRA

This complaint alleges professional negligence against the defendant hospital. Therefore, the requirements of the Medical Injury Compensation Reform Act of 1975 (MICRA) apply [see Murillo v. Good Samaritan Hospital (1979) 99 Cal. App. 3d 50, 56-57, 160 Cal. Rptr. 33 , disapproved on other grounds, Flowers v. Torrance Memorial Hospital Medical Center (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 992, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 685, 884 P.2d 142 ; see also § 295.13[2]].

MICRA's requirements include limitations on attorney's fees [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 6146], allowance of evidence of collateral sources [see Civ. Code § 3333.1], limitations on recovery of damages for noneconomic losses [see Civ. Code § 3333.2], a special statute of limitations [see Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5], a special requirement of a 90-day notice period before commencement of the action [see Code Civ. Proc. § 364; for a fomr of notice, see § 295.50], allowance of periodic payments of future damages [see Code Civ. Proc. § 667.7], and arbitration provisions [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1295].

These particular provisions of MICRA are discussed in detail in Ch. 415, Physicians: Medical Malpractice .

[6] Wrongful Death and Survival Actions

When the death of a person is caused by the wrongful act or neglect of another, certain specified persons, or the decedent's personal representative on their behalf, may maintain an action for damages against the wrongdoer, or in case of the death of such wrongdoer, against the wrongdoer's personal representatives, whether the wrongdoer dies before or after the decedent. If any other person is responsible for the wrongful act or neglect causing the death of the decedent, the action may also be maintained against such other person, or in case of his or her death, against his or her personal representatives [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 377.40, 377.60].

Code Civ. Proc. § 377.60 permits the decedent's surviving spouse, children, and issue of deceased children to bring a wrongful death action without qualification, and permits others to bring an action under specified circumstances. For forms of allegations establishing that specific classes of persons are entitled to bring a wrongful death action, including allegations that are required of plaintiffs who are not the decedent's surviving spouse, children, or issue of deceased children, see Ch. 181, Death and Survival Actions .

In a wrongful death action, damages may be awarded that, under all the circumstances of the case, may be just, but may not include damages recoverable under Code Civ. Proc. § 377.34 (survival actions). The court must determine the respective rights in an award of the persons entitled to assert the cause of action [Code Civ. Proc. § 377.61].

An action under Code Civ. Proc § 377.30 (survival actions) may be joined with a wrongful death action arising out of the same wrongful act or neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 377.62(a)]. In addition, a wrongful death action and a survival action under Code Civ. Proc § 377.31 (survival of pending actions) arising out of the same wrongful act or neglect may be consolidated for trial as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 1048 [Code Civ. Proc. § 377.62(b)].

[2] Use of Form

The complaint in [1], above, may be used by a hospital patient against a hospital and physicians employed by the hospital in an action based on negligence to recover damages for personal injuries resulting from improper medical care. The form may be used in an action under the Federal Tort Claims Act [28 U.S.C.S. §§ 1346(b), 2671-2680] against a hospital operated by the federal government if appropriate allegations of federal district court jurisdiction and compliance with federal claim procedures prior to commencing suit are alleged. For a jurisdictional allegation, see Ch. 265, Federal Courts: Jurisdiction and Removal . For general discussion of pleading and practice under the Federal Tort Claims Act, see Moore's Federal Practice (3d ed. Matthew Bender); for related forms, see Frumer and Hall, Bender's Federal Practice Forms, Vol. 1, Allegations of Jurisdiction--Particular Federal Question, and Vol. 1A, Complaints--Federal Tort Claims Act. (Matthew Bender).

[3] Applicability of MICRA

This complaint alleges professional negligence against the defendant hospital. Therefore, the requirements of the Medical Injury Compensation Reform Act of 1975 (MICRA) apply [see Murillo v. Good Samaritan Hospital (1979) 99 Cal. App. 3d 50, 56-57, 160 Cal. Rptr. 33 , disapproved on other grounds, Flowers v. Torrance Memorial Hospital Medical Center (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 992, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 685, 884 P.2d 142 ; see also § 295.13[2]].

MICRA's requirements include limitations on attorney's fees [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 6146], allowance of evidence of collateral sources [see Civ. Code § 3333.1], limitations on recovery of damages for noneconomic losses [see Civ. Code § 3333.2], a special statute of limitations [see Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5], a special requirement of a 90-day notice period before commencement of the action [see Code Civ. Proc. § 364; for a form of notice, see § 295.50], allowance of periodic payments of future damages [see Code Civ. Proc. § 667.7], and arbitration provisions [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1295].

[4] Liability of Hospital for Treatment by Medical Personnel

A hospital is liable for the malpractice of physicians, nurses, or other medical personnel who treat a patient as salaried employees of the hospital pursuant to an agreement between the hospital and the patient for medical services [Brown v. La Societe Francaise De Bienfaisance Mutuelle (1903) 138 Cal. 475, 476, 71 P. 516] . Traditionally, a hospital is not liable for the malpractice of medical personnel who are directly employed by the patient and who use hospital facilities to treat the patient in accordance with their privileges as members of the hospital's medical staff since such personnel are considered to be independent contractors [Mayers v. Litow (1957) 154 Cal. App. 2d 413, 418, 316 P.2d 351 ; but see discussion in § 295.64]. Nevertheless, under an estoppel or ostensible agency theory, a hospital may be liable for the malpractice of medical personnel who are actually independent contractors if a patient does not directly employ the personnel and the hospital causes the patient to believe reasonably that such personnel are hospital employees [Seneris v. Haas (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 811, 831, 832, 291 P.2d 915] .

For further discussion, see § 295.13[7]. For discussion of ostensible agency and the liability of an employer for the torts of an independent contractor, see Ch. 427, Principal and Agent .

[5] Allegations

The complaint alleges:

- Acts from which a duty of care owed by defendants to plaintiff may be inferred--that is, the professional status of the defendant physicians in the employ of the defendant hospital and the admission of the plaintiff to the defendant hospital to receive medical services as a patient (Paragraphs 4-6).

- The defendants' negligent conduct breaching this duty and proximately resulting in injuries to the plaintiff (Paragraph 7).

- Damages resulting from the injury (Paragraphs 8-10).

- The filing of a claim with a public entity and its rejection by the entity (Paragraphs 12, 13). This allegation must be included in the complaint if the defendant hospital is operated by a public entity and the physicians employed by the hospital are public employees [see Gov. Code §§ 945.4, 950.2-950.6].

FIRST CAUSE OF ACTION FOR NEGLIGENCE BY PLAINTIFF _____ [name of minor] AGAINST ALL DEFENDANTS

Plaintiff _____ [name of minor], a minor, through his/her guardian [ad litem], alleges:

1. Plaintiff _____ [name of mother] is the mother and plaintiff _____ [name of father] is the father of plaintiff _____ [name of minor], a minor born on _____ [date

].

2. For the purpose of this action, plaintiff _____ [name of guardian] was duly appointed by the above-entitled court, and now is guardian [ad litem] of plaintiff _____ [name of minor] and brings this action on his/her own behalf and on behalf of plaintiff _____ [name of minor].

3-4. [Capacity and residence of defendants. See § 295.51[1], Paragraphs 1, 2.]

5. [Fictitious name allegation, if appropriate. See § 295.51[1], Paragraph 3.]

6. [Control and management of licensed hospital by defendant hospital operator. See § 295.51[1], Paragraph 4.]

7-8. [Allegations of agency of hospital employees, including allegation of professional status of physicians employed by hospital. See § 295.51[1], Paragraph 5 and § 253.59, Paragraph 5.]

9. At all times herein mentioned, defendants _____ [names of nurses employed by hospital] [and defendants DOES I-_____], and each of them, were duly licensed registered nurses in the State of California, employed by _____ [name of hospital operator] as such at said hospital and acting within the course and scope of such employment with the permission and consent of their codefendant.

10. Prior to and on or about _____ [date], plaintiff _____ [name of mother] was pregnant with plaintiff _____ [name of minor]. At approximately _____ [time] on that date, plaintiff _____ [name of mother] commenced labor and went to the hospital where she was admitted as a patient for the delivery of plaintiff _____ [name of minor].

11. Defendants, and each of them, so negligently and unskillfully treated, attended, and cared for plaintiff _____ [name of mother] while she was a patient in the hospital and so negligently, carelessly, and unskillfully delivered plaintiff _____ [name of minor] that, as a proximate result thereof, plaintiff _____ [name of minor] sustained serious personal injuries, including but not limited to _____ [specify, e.g., brain damage] all to plaintiff's damage [in the sum of $_____]. [Plaintiff _____ (name of minor) is informed and believes and on such information and belief alleges that those injuries are of a permanent nature and will result in his/her permanent and total disability, to plaintiff's further damage.]

12. As a further proximate result of the negligence of defendants, and each of them, and of the resulting injuries, plaintiff _____ [name of minor] is informed and believes and thereon alleges that he/she will be obliged to incur expenses for medical care and hospitalization for an indefinite period in the future and to pay other expenses in the treatment and relief of his/her injuries in an amount unknown to him/her at present; when the same has been ascertained, plaintiff _____ [name of minor] will seek leave to amend this complaint to so state.

13. Plaintiff gave notice to defendant on _____ [date], of intention to commence this action. [A copy of the notice is attached hereto as Exhibit A and made a part hereof.]

SECOND CAUSE OF ACTION FOR NEGLIGENCE BY PLAINTIFF _____ [names of parents] AGAINST ALL DEFENDANTS

Plaintiffs _____ [names of parents] allege:

14. Plaintiffs _____ [names of parents] refer to Paragraphs 1, 3 through 11, and 13 of the First Cause of Action and make them a part hereof by reference.

15. As a proximate result of the negligence of defendants, and each of them, and the resulting injuries of plaintiff _____ [name of minor], plaintiffs _____ [names of parents] were compelled to, and did, incur expenses for medical and surgical attention, hospitalization, nursing, medication, and incidentals for plaintiff _____ [name of minor].

WHEREFORE, plaintiffs pray judgment against defendants, and each of them, as follows:

On the FIRST CAUSE OF ACTION:

1. For general damages;

2. For future medical and related expenses;

On the SECOND CAUSE OF ACTION:

3. For medical and related expenses incurred as a result of injuries to plaintiff _____ [name of minor];

On all CAUSES OF ACTION:

4. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

5. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

The complaint in [1], above, may be used in an action based on negligence by a minor and his or her parents against a hospital and its employees to recover damages resulting from injuries to the minor before and during birth.

[3] Applicability of MICRA

This complaint alleges professional negligence against the defendant hospital. Therefore, the requirements of the Medical Injury Compensation Reform Act of 1975 (MICRA) apply [see Murillo v. Good Samaritan Hospital (1979) 99 Cal. App. 3d 50, 56-57, 160 Cal. Rptr. 33 , disapproved on other grounds, Flowers v. Torrance Memorial Hospital Medical Center (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 992, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 685, 884 P.2d 142 ; see also § 295.13[2]].

MICRA's requirements include limitations on attorney's fees [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 6146], allowance of evidence of collateral sources [see Civ. Code § 3333.1], limitations on recovery of damages for noneconomic losses [see Civ. Code § 3333.2], a special statute of limitations [see Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5], a special requirement of a 90-day notice period before commencement of the action [see Code Civ. Proc. § 364; for a form of notice, see § 295.50], allowance of periodic payments of future damages [see Code Civ. Proc. § 667.7], and arbitration provisions [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1295].

[4] Action by Parents

Parents may maintain an action for injury to an unmarried child caused by the wrongful act or neglect of another [Code Civ. Proc. § 376]. Their damages in such an action include medical expenses incurred until trial [Bauman v. San Francisco (1940) 42 Cal. App. 2d 144, 161, 108 P.2d 989] , loss of the minor's earning capacity during minority [Richmond v. Moore (1930) 103 Cal. App. 173, 182, 284 P. 681] , and loss of the minor's earnings and services during minority [Girard v. Irvine (1929) 97 Cal. App. 377, 380, 275 P. 840] . The parent's cause of action does not include recovery for the loss of affection and society of the child because a parent has no cause of action in negligence to recover damages for loss of filial consortium [Baxter v. Superior Court (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 461, 466, 138 Cal. Rptr. 315, 563 P.2d 871] .

[5] Action of Minor

A minor may enforce his or her rights in a civil action in the same manner as a person of full legal age except that he or she must appear by a guardian [Fam. Code § 6601; Code Civ. Proc. § 372]. An unborn child is deemed an existing person so far as it is necessary for its interests in the event of its subsequent birth, but any action by or on behalf of a minor for injuries before or during birth must be brought within six years of the minor's birth [Civ. Code § 43.1; Code Civ. Proc. § 340.4].

In actions for prenatal medical malpractice against a health care provider, however, the shorter period of limitation under Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5 (limitation period for minor's action against health care provider as three years or, if minor is under age of six, as three years or prior to minor's eighth birthday, whichever provides a longer period) is applicable. Although both Code Civ. Proc. §§ 340.4 and 340.5 are by their words applicable to actions for prenatal medical malpractice, Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5 is the later and more specific prescription and is an integral part of an interrelated, comprehensive legislative scheme relating to medical malpractice claims (Medical Injury Compensation Reform Act). Therefore, Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5 supplants Civ. Code § 43.1 in medical malpractice actions [Knox v. Superior Court (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 782, 786, 189 Cal. Rptr. 800 ; but see Anson v. County of Merced (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 1195, 1199, 1202, 249 Cal. Rptr. 457 (in action against public hospital, both Gov. Code § 945.6 (statute of limitations for actions against public entities under Torts Claims Act) and Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5 (statute of limitations for medical malpractice actions) apply with equal force, thus plaintiff who receives notice of rejection of claim pursuant to Gov. Code § 913 must file action within shorter six-month period of Gov. Code § 945.6)].

In an action for personal injuries, a minor may recover for pain and suffering [Capelouto v. Kaiser Foundation Hosp. (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 889, 895, 103 Cal. Rptr. 856, 500 P.2d 880] , loss of future earning capacity as a person of legal age [Girard v. Irvine (1929) 97 Cal. App. 377, 386, 275 P. 840] , and future medical expenses [Apodaca v. Haworth (1962) 206 Cal. App. 2d 209, 217, 23 Cal. Rptr. 461] . Although loss of earning capacity during minority and medical expenses incurred prior to trial are usually recoverable by the minor's parents rather than the minor (see discussion under [4], above), if the parents or one of them as guardian ad litem for the minor pleads such damages in the minor's cause of action, the parents will be held to have waived their right to such recovery [Bauman v. San Francisco (1940) 42 Cal. App. 2d 144, 160-161, 108 P.2d 989 (medical expenses); Girard v. Irvine (1929) 97 Cal. App. 377, 386, 275 P.

840 (loss of earning capacity during minority)], and the minor may recover such damages instead [Morningred v. Golden State Co. (1961) 196 Cal. App. 2d 130, 138-139, 16 Cal. Rptr. 219] . As a practical matter, some attorneys prefer to seek medical expenses in the minor's cause of action rather than include a separate cause of action by the parents.

For further discussion on actions by minors, see §§ 295.14[4][b], 295.16.

Rptr. 2d 685, 884 P.2d 142* ; see also § 295.13[2]].

MICRA's requirements include limitations on attorney's fees [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 6146], allowance of evidence of collateral sources [see Civ. Code § 3333.1], limitations on recovery of damages for noneconomic losses [see Civ. Code § 3333.2], a special statute of limitations [see Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5], a special requirement of a 90-day notice period before commencement of the action [see Code Civ. Proc. § 364; for a form of notice, see § 295.50], allowance of periodic payments of future damages [see Code Civ. Proc. § 667.7], and arbitration provisions [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1295].

[4] Res Ipsa Loquitur

Traditionally, a plaintiff is entitled to a presumption under the doctrine of res ipsa loquitur that the defendant's negligence proximately caused the plaintiff's injuries when the plaintiff establishes that (1) his or her injuries are of a kind which do not ordinarily occur in the absence of someone's negligence, (2) the injuries were caused by an agency or instrumentality in the exclusive control of the defendant, and (3) no voluntary conduct on the plaintiff's part was a responsible cause of the injuries [Vistica v. Presbyterian Hospital (1967) 67 Cal. 2d 465, 469-470, 62 Cal. Rptr. 577, 432 P.2d 193] . However, when a plaintiff's injuries during medical treatment raise an inference of negligence as the proximate cause of the injuries but the plaintiff is unable to identify the particular instrumentality or person in control of the instrumentality that caused the injuries because the plaintiff was unconscious at the time, the plaintiff is entitled to invoke the res ipsa presumption against all persons who had actual control or the right to control the plaintiff's body or an instrumentality that might have caused the injuries [Ybarra v. Spangard (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 486, 492-494, 154 P.2d 687 ; but see Elcome v. Chin (2003) 110 Cal. App. 4th 310, 320-321, 1 Cal. Rptr. 3d 631 (expert testimony may be required to establish probability of negligence of those in control as cause of injury)]. For further discussion of the operation and application of the doctrine of res ipsa loquitur in medical malpractice cases, see §§ 295.22, 295.41[15], 295.43[10].

§ 295.62 Allegations--Refusal to Render Emergency Medical Services or Assistance [Health & Safety Code § 1317]

[1] FORM Allegations--Refusal to Render Emergency Medical Services or Assistance [Health & Safety Code § 1317]

1. [At all times herein mentioned, a specifically designated area of the hospital was fully equipped and staffed with physicians and nurses for the provision of emergency medical services to any member of the public who came to the hospital with urgent medical problems.]

2. On or about _____ [date], _____ [plaintiff or decedent] _____ [was brought or came] to [the emergency room of] the hospital for treatment of _____ [specify emergency condition, e.g., severe chest pains].

[EITHER]

3. Defendant, acting through his/her/its agents and employees, unlawfully refused to examine or treat _____ [plaintiff or decedent] because of _____ [plaintiff's or decedent's] _____ [specify protected characteristic, e.g., citizenship or insurance status or preexisting medical condition] in that _____ [specify facts showing refusal to render emergency services was based on protected characteristic].

[OR]

3. Defendant, acting through his/her/its agents and employees, unlawfully refused to examine or treat _____ [plaintiff or decedent] in any way until _____ [plaintiff or decedent or a legally responsible relative or _____ (plaintiff's or decedent's) guardian] gave proof of ability and willingness to pay for such examination and treatment.

[OR]

3. Defendant, acting through his/her/its agents and employees, examined _____ [plaintiff or decedent] but negligently failed to determine that _____ [plaintiff or decedent] was threatened with _____ [specify serious illness or injury or death] and to immediately provide such medical treatment or care as he/she required.

[OR, if hospital lacks appropriate facilities and available personnel or does not maintain emergency medical service]

3. Defendant, acting through his/her/its agents and employees, negligently failed to direct and assist _____ [plaintiff or decedent] to a nearby facility where he/she might have received the emergency medical care that defendant knew, or in the exercise of reasonable care should have determined, was necessary to prevent _____ [specify serious illness or injury or death] of _____ [plaintiff or decedent].

[CONTINUE]

4. As a proximate result of defendant's _____ [unlawful refusal to provide _____ (plaintiff or decedent) or negligent failure to provide _____(plaintiff or decedent) or negligent failure to assist _____ (plaintiff or decedent) in obtaining] necessary emergency medical services, and as a proximate result of the delay that defendant's _____ [unlawful refusal or negligence] caused _____ [plaintiff or decedent] to incur in obtaining necessary medical treatment, _____ [plaintiff or decedent] _____ [sustained the injuries hereinafter alleged or died].

[2] Use of Form

The allegations in [1], above, may be used in a complaint for personal injuries or wrongful death if a hospital wrongfully refuses to render emergency medical care or, lacking appropriate facilities and available personnel, fails to assist a person needing emergency medical care in obtaining it elsewhere. These allegations may be inserted into the complaint in § 295.59[1] as the substantive allegations of negligence against the hospital and its employee physicians.

[3] Applicability of MICRA

These allegations allege professional negligence against the defendant hospital. Therefore, the requirements of the Medical Injury Compensation Reform Act of 1975 (MICRA) should apply [see Murillo v. Good Samaritan Hospital (1979) 99 Cal. App. 3d 50, 56-57, 160 Cal. Rptr. 33 , disapproved on other grounds, Flowers v. Torrance Memorial Hospital Medical Center (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 992, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 685, 884 P.2d 142 ; see also § 295.13[2]].

MICRA's requirements include limitations on attorney's fees [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 6146], allowance of evidence of collateral sources [see Civ. Code § 3333.1], limitations on recovery of damages for noneconomic losses [see Civ. Code § 3333.2], a special statute of limitations [see Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5], a special requirement of a 90-day notice period before commencement of the action [see Code Civ. Proc. § 364; for a form of notice, see § 295.50], allowance of periodic payments of future damages [see Code Civ. Proc. § 667.7], and arbitration provisions [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1295].

[4] Duty to Provide Emergency Services

A licensed hospital that maintains and operates a department providing emergency services to the public must provide such services on request to any person in danger of loss of life or serious illness or injury if the hospital has appropriate facilities and qualified personnel available, but the hospital will not be liable in any action arising out of a refusal to render emergency medical services if the refusal is based on the determination, exercising reasonable care, that the person is not suffering from an emergency medical condition, or that the health facility does not have the appropriate facilities or qualified personnel available to render those services [Health & Safety Code § 1317(a), (c)].

If a licensed hospital does not maintain an emergency department, its employees must nevertheless exercise reasonable care to determine whether an emergency exists and must assist the person seeking emergency care in every way reasonable under the circumstances to a nearby facility which can render the needed services [Health & Safety Code § 1317(e)].

The provision of emergency services and care must not be based on or affected by the patient's ethnicity, citizenship, age, preexisting medical condition, insurance status, economic status, or ability to pay for medical services or any other characteristic listed or defined in Civ. Code § 51(b) or (e), except to the extent that a circumstance such as age, sex, preexisting medical condition, or physical or mental disability is medically significant to the provision of appropriate medical care to the patient [Health & Safety Code § 1317(b)]. In addition, emergency services and care must be rendered without first questioning the patient or any other person as to his or her ability to pay [Health & Safety Code § 1317(d)]. However, the patient or his or her legally responsible relative or guardian can be required to execute an agreement to pay for the services or otherwise supply insurance or credit information promptly after the services are rendered [Health & Safety Code § 1317(d)].

For more discussion on a hospital's duty of care to provide emergency services, see § 295.13[6][b]. For a listing of allegations which are essential to a complaint for personal injuries based on negligence, see discussion in §§ 295.51[3], 295.59[5], as well as Ch. 380, Negligence . § 295.63 Allegation--Unauthorized Transfer for Nonmedical Reasons [Health & Safety Code §§ 1317.2, 1317.6(j)]

[1] FORM Allegation--Unauthorized Transfer for Nonmedical Reasons [Health & Safety Code §§ 1317.2, 1317.6(j)]

1. On or about _____ [date], _____ [plaintiff or decedent] _____ [was brought or came] to the hospital for treatment of _____ [specify condition, e.g., a gunshot wound to the chest area].

2. Thereafter, _____ [plaintiff or decedent] received emergency medical treatment at defendant hospital consisting of the following: _____ [specify, e.g., cleaning the wound].

3. Thereafter, _____ [plaintiff or decedent] was transferred from defendant hospital to _____ [name of receiving hospital] and transported there by means of _____ [specify, e.g., taxicab].

4. Plaintiff is informed and believes, and on that basis alleges, that this transfer was for a nonmedical reason in that _____ [specify, e.g., agents of defendant hospital learned that _____ (plaintiff or decedent) had no medical insurance and was otherwise without financial resources and unable to pay for medical treatment and services and therefore determined that he/she should be transferred].

5. This nonmedical transfer was in violation of the duty owed to _____ [plaintiff or decedent] by defendant hospital under Health and Safety Code Section 1317.2 in that _____ [specify reason, e.g., defendant hospital through its agents and employees did not determine, within a reasonable medical probability, that the delay caused by the transfer would not create a medical hazard to _____ (plaintiff or decedent)].

6. As a proximate result of these acts and this breach of duty by defendant hospital, _____ [plaintiff or decedent] _____ [specify harm, e.g., died while in transit to the receiving hospital from the gunshot wound for which he/she sought treatment at defendant hospital].

[Continue with allegations regarding damages. See § 295.51[1].]

7. In addition to amounts recoverable for damages, _____ [plaintiff or decedent] is entitled to recover reasonable attorney's fees under the authority of Health and Safety Code Section 1317.6(j).

[2] Use of Form

The allegations in [1], above, may be used in a complaint for personal injury or wrongful death if a hospital wrongfully transfers a patient for a nonmedical reason in violation of the requirements of Health & Safety Code § 1317.2 [see Health & Safety Code § 1317.6(j)]. These allegations may be inserted into the form in § 295.59 as the substantive allegations of negligence against the hospital and its employee physicians.

[3] Applicability of MICRA

This allegation alleges professional negligence against the defendant hospital. Therefore, the requirements of the Medical Injury Compensation Reform Act of 1975 (MICRA) should apply [see Murillo v. Good Samaritan Hospital (1979) 99 Cal. App. 3d 50, 56-57, 160 Cal. Rptr. 33 , disapproved on other grounds, Flowers v. Torrance Memorial Hospital Medical Center (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 992, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 685, 884 P.2d 142 ; see also § 295.13[2]; but see [5], below].

MICRA's requirements include limitations on attorney's fees [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 6146], allowance of evidence of collateral sources [see Civ. Code § 3333.1], limitations on recovery of damages for noneconomic losses [see Civ. Code § 3333.2], a special statute of limitations [see Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5], a special requirement of a 90-day notice period before commencement of the action [see Code Civ. Proc. § 364; for a form of notice, see § 295.50], allowance of periodic payments of future damages [see Code Civ. Proc. § 667.7], and arbitration provisions [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1295].

[4] Hospital's Duties With Regard to Nonmedical Transfer

This form sets forth as an example of an improper nonmedical transfer one for which it was not determined, within a reasonable medical probability, that the transfer would not create a medical hazard to the person transferred [see Health & Safety Code § 1317.2(b)]. Other possible grounds are the following:

- If there was no examination or evaluation, including necessary consultations with specialists, prior to the transfer [see Health & Safety Code § 1317.2(a)].

- If the receiving hospital was not notified of the transfer or did not consent [see Health & Safety Code § 1317.2(c)].

- If the transferring hospital did not provide the appropriate personnel or equipment in effecting the transfer [see Health & Safety Code § 1317.2(d)].

- If the pertinent medical records and test results were not transferred with the person [see Health & Safety Code § 1317.2(e)].

For further discussion, see § 295.13[6][c].

[5] Statutory Cause of Action

Any person who suffers personal harm as a result of an improper transfer for nonmedical reasons may recover damages, reasonable attorney's fees, and other appropriate relief in a civil action against the transferring hospital [Health & Safety Code § 1317.6(j)]. A violation of the statute may also establish a lack of due care in an action based on professional negligence [see Evid. Code § 669(a); Cade v. Mid-City Hosp. Corp. (1975) 45 Cal. App. 3d 589, 598, 119 Cal. Rptr. 571 ; see also § 295.13[6]].

Nothing in the law suggests that a violation of the statute alone, absent some injury to the plaintiff resulting from the violation, is sufficient to establish a cause of action. For example, the failure to transmit the required Transfer Summary [see Health & Safety Code § 1317.2(f)] would not appear to be actionable unless the plaintiff could connect the lack of a summary to his or her injury.

An unresolved issue is whether a cause of action under Health & Safety Code § 1317.6(j) is one for professional negligence within the meaning of MICRA so that the requirements and limitations of MICRA attach [see [3], above]. The acts that give rise to the cause of action under the statute would almost certainly be characterized as professional negligence as defined in MICRA [see Barris v. County of Los Angeles (1999) 20 Cal. 4th 101, 110, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 145, 972 P.2d 966 ; Murillo v. Good Samaritan Hospital (1979) 99 Cal. App. 3d 50, 56-57, 160 Cal. Rptr. 33 , disapproved on other grounds, Flowers v. Torrance Memorial Hospital Medical Center (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 992, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 685, 884 P.2d 142 ; see also § 295.13[2]]. The contrary argument is that by establishing an express statutory cause of action, the legislature intended to give the injured party an additional remedy unencumbered by the otherwise-applicable requirements of a medical malpractice or professional negligence action [see Health & Safety Code § 1317.6(j) (provisions are in addition to and do not limit the availability of other remedies)].

However, the cap on noneconomic damages provided in MICRA by Civ. Code § 3333.2 does apply to a claim for failure to provide stabilizing treatment brought under an analogous federal statute, which, as discussed in § 295.13[6][d], in the Introduction, is designed generally to prevent hospitals that have entered into Medicare provider agreements from inappropriately transferring or refusing to treat patients requiring emergency medical treatment [Barris v. County of Los Angeles (1999) 20 Cal. 4th 101, 109, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 145, 972 P.2d 966 ; see 42 U.S.C.S. § 1395dd]. In the case so holding, the California Supreme Court's conclusion that these claims are "based on professional negligence," and therefore subject to the provisions of Civ. Code § 3333.2, would seem equally applicable to actions brought under the state statutes, at least if the state claims are also based on the failure to provide stabilizing treatment prior to transfer [see Barris v. County of Los Angeles (1999) 20 Cal. 4th 101, 110, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 145, 972 P.2d 966] .

[2] Use of Form

The complaint in [1], above, may be used in an action based on professional negligence by a patient against a hospital and its governing body to recover damages for personal injuries resulting from improper medical treatment by a physician on the hospital's medical staff whose competence and performance have not been adequately determined and reviewed by the governing body.

[3] Applicability of MICRA

This complaint alleges professional negligence against the defendant hospital. Therefore, the requirements of the Medical Injury Compensation Reform Act of 1975 (MICRA) should apply [see Murillo v. Good Samaritan Hospital (1979) 99 Cal. App. 3d 50, 56-57, 160 Cal. Rptr. 33 , disapproved on other grounds, Flowers v. Torrance Memorial Hospital Medical Center (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 992, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 685, 884 P.2d 142 ; see also § 295.13[2]].

MICRA's requirements include limitations on attorney's fees [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 6146], allowance of evidence of collateral sources [see Civ. Code § 3333.1], limitations on recovery of damages for noneconomic losses [see Civ. Code § 3333.2; Bell v. Sharp Cabrillo Hospital (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 1034, 1051, 260 Cal. Rptr. 886] , a special statute of limitations [see Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5], a special requirement of a 90-day notice period before commencement of the action [see Code Civ. Proc. § 364; for a form of notice, see § 295.50], allowance of periodic payments of future damages [see Code Civ. Proc. § 667.7], and arbitration provisions [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1295].

[4] Duty to Determine and Review Competence of Staff

A licensed hospital is required to restrict membership on its medical staff to licensed practitioners, competent in their respective fields, and worthy in character and in professional ethics [Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 2282(b), 2283(a)]. In addition, under Health & Safety Code § 1250 and 22 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 70005, 70701, 71035, and 71501, the governing body of a licensed hospital has overall administrative and professional responsibility for medical staff appointments and for the the periodic review of medical staff members' qualifications to competently perform the procedures for which they are given staff privileges. Because of these statutory and regulatory duties, a hospital can be liable to a patient for the negligence of a member of its medical staff, if the hospital's failure to ensure the competence of its medical staff through selection and review creates an unreasonable risk of harm to its patients [see Hay v. Scripps Memorial Hospital (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 753, 761, 228 Cal. Rptr. 413 ; Elam v. College Park Hospital (1983) 132 Cal. App. 3d 332, 346-347, 183 Cal. Rptr. 156] . Although Evid. Code § 1157 limits discovery from medical staff committees, it does not create a bar against introduction of evidence, and does not prevent a plaintiff from otherwise discovering relevant evidence that can establish such a cause of action [see Alexander v. Superior Court (1993) 5 Cal. 4th 1218, 1223-1224 n.4, 23 Cal. Rptr. 2d 397, 859 P.2d 96 ; Webman v. Little Co. of Mary Hosp. (1995) 39 Cal. App. 4th 592, 599, 46 Cal. Rptr. 2d 90] .

[5] Allegations

The complaint alleges:

- Acts from which a duty of care owed by defendants to plaintiff may be inferred, i.e., the defendant governing body's responsibility for evaluating the competence of medical staff members, the status of the plaintiff's physician as a medical staff member, and the plaintiff's status as a patient in the defendant hospital (Paragraphs 6-8).

- The defendants' negligent conduct breaching this duty (Paragraph 9).

- Injuries and damages proximately resulting from the defendants' breach (Paragraphs 10-13).

- The filing of a claim with a public entity and its rejection by the netity (Paragraphs 14, 15). This allegation must be included in the complaint if the defendant hospital is operated by a public entity [see Gov. Code § 945.5].

§ 295.65 Complaint to Permit Inspection and to Obtain Copies of Patient Records--By Patient or Patient's Representative Against Health Care Provider [Health & Safety Code § 123120]

[1] FORM Complaint to Permit Inspection and to Obtain Copies of Patient Records--By Patient or Patient's Representative Against Health Care Provider [Health & Safety Code § 123120]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)
vs.	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	COMPLAINT TO PERMIT INSPECTION [AND Defendant.	)	PERMIT COPIES] OF PATIENT RECORDS

Plaintiff alleges:

[EITHER]

1. Plaintiff is a [former] patient of _____ [name], defendant.

[OR]

1. Plaintiff is the _____ [father or mother or guardian] of _____ [name], a minor child of the age of _____ who is a [former] patient of _____ [name], defendant.

[OR]

1. Plaintiff is the _____ [guardian or conservator] of the person of _____ [name], an adult and a [former] patient of _____ [name], defendant.

[CONTINUE]

2. Defendant _____ [name] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a _____ [describe capacity as health care provider, e.g., health facility licensed pursuant to Health & Safety Code Sections 1250-1339.50] with his/her/its principal place of business in _____ [city], _____ County, California [or allege residence or other basis of venue as appropriate].

3. On or about _____ [date], plaintiff presented to defendant a written request to inspect patient records relating to _____ [name or plaintiff] pursuant to Health and Safety Code Section 123110(a). The request was presented to defendant by _____ [specify manner by which request was presented, e.g., delivering it by hand to defendant at his/her/its principal place of business at _____ (specify address)]. At the time of presenting the request, plaintiff offered to pay, and is still prepared to pay, the reasonable clerical costs incurred in locating and making the records available. [A copy of the request is attached hereto as Exhibit A and made a part hereof.]

[4. On or about _____ (date), plaintiff presented to defendant a written request for copies of _____ (all or a portion) of the patient records relating to _____ (name or plaintiff) pursuant to Health and Safety Code Section 123110(b). At the time of presenting the request, plaintiff offered to pay, and is still prepared to pay, any fees allowed by Section 123110(b) to defray the cost of copying and any additional reasonable clerical costs incurred in making the records available. (The request was included in the written request to inspect plaintiff's patient records, attached hereto as Exhibit A or The request, a copy of which is attached hereto as Exhibit B and made a part hereof, was presented to defendant by _____ (specify manner by which request was presented).)]

[5. On or about _____ (date), plaintiff presented to defendant, pursuant to Health and Safety Code Section 123110(c), a written request to transmit copies of _____ (all or designated) _____ (X rays or tracings derived from _____ (electrocardiography or electroencephalography or electromyography)) to _____ (name of other health care provider). Defendant did not transmit the above-described original X rays or tracings to _____ (name of other health care provider) within 15 days after receipt of the request. At the time plaintiff presented the request, plaintiff offered to pay, and is still prepared to pay, all reasonable costs, not exceeding actual costs, that defendant may incur in providing copies. Further, plaintiff offered to meet, and is still prepared to meet, all reasonable conditions set by defendant to ensure the return of original X rays transmitted to another health care provider. (The request was included in the written request to inspect plaintiff's patient records, attached hereto as Exhibit A or The request, a copy of which is attached hereto as Exhibit B and made a part hereof, was presented to defendant by _____ (specify manner by which request was presented).)]

6. Defendant refused, and continues to refuse, plaintiff permission to inspect the patient records. [Defendant also refused, and continues to refuse, _____ (to transmit to plaintiff copies of the patient records which were requested to be copied and/or to transmit to _____ (name of other health care provider) copies of _____ (X rays and/or tracings) which were requested to be transmitted).]

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendant as follows:

1. For an order requiring defendant to permit plaintiff to inspect the patient records of _____ [name or plaintiff] that are maintained by, or are in the custody or control of, defendant;

[2. For an order requiring defendant to provide to plaintiff copies of the patient records of _____ (name or plaintiff) that are specified in plaintiff's written request for copies;]

[3. For an order requiring defendant to transmit to _____ (name of other health care provider) copies of the _____ (X-rays and/or tracings) that are specified in plaintiff's written request for transmittal;]

4. For attorney's fees in the sum of $_____;

5. For costs of the suit herein incurred; and

6. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Plaintiff _____ [name]

[Verification, if desired. See § 295.51[1].]

[2] Use of Form

The complaint in [1], above, may be used by a patient or a patient's representative in an action against a health care provider to enforce the obligations of the health care provider as prescribed in Health & Safety Code § 123110 to permit inspection, to provide copies of the patient's health care records, or to transmit copies of X-rays or tracings to another health care provider. Such an action may be brought in addition to any other remedy provided by law [Health & Safety Code § 123120; see § 295.23[3][b]]. For example, it appears that the patient may also seek damages for the negligent or bad faith refusal of the health care provider to permit inspection or provide copies of the patient's records [see Civ. Code §§ 1714(a), 3333; see also § 295.23[3][l]].

[3] Allegations

The complaint alleges the following:

- Plaintiff's capacity as a patient or former patient, or as a patient's representative (Paragraph 1) [see Health & Safety Code § 123105(c),(e)].

- Defendant's capacity as a health care provider (Paragraph 2) [see Health & Safety Code § 123105(a)].

- A venue allegation (Paragraph 2) [see [4], below].

- Plaintiff's presentation to defendant of a written request to inspect the patient records and plaintiff's offer to pay clerical costs involved in making the records available (Paragraph 3) [see Health & Safety Code § 123110(a)].

- Plaintiff's optional presentation to defendant of a written request for copies of the patient records and plaintiff's offer to pay copying fees and reasonable clerical costs (Paragraph 4) [see Health & Safety Code § 123110(b)].

- Plaintiff's optional presentation to defendant of a written request to transmit copies of X-rays or tracings to another health care provider and plaintiff's preparedness to pay all reasonable costs in providing the copies (Paragraph 5) [see Health & Safety Code § 123110(c)].

- Defendant's continuing refusal to permit inspection of the records pursuant to Health & Safety Code § 123110(a), to provide copies of the records pursuant to Health & Safety Code § 123110(b), or to transmit copies of X-rays or tracings to another health care provider pursuant to Health & Safety Code § 123110(c) (Paragraph 6).

For a discussion of the time period within which the health care provider must permit inspection or provide copies, see § 295.23[3][c].

[4] Venue

Health & Safety Code § 123120 does not contain a venue provision for actions to enforce the obligations of health care providers. It appears that general venue provisions would apply [see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. §§ 395(a) (action against individual), 395.2 (action against unincorporated association), 395.5 (action against corporation or association); see also Ch. 571, Venue].

[5] Jurisdiction

Health & Safety Code § 123120 does not specify which court has subject matter jurisdiction over an action to enforce the obligations of a health care provider to permit inspection or provide copies of patient records. Code Civ. Proc. § 86 does not identify sucn an action as a limited civil case. Thus, it appears that the superior court has original jurisdiction over the action as an unlimited civil case [see Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10].

[6] Attorney's Fees and Costs

Any judgment rendered in an action against a health care provider to enforce its obligations under Health & Safety Code § 123110 may, in the court's discretion, include an award of costs and reasonable attorney's fees to the prevailing party [Health & Safety Code § 123120].

PART I. SCOPE

§ 297.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter discusses and contains forms for use in personal injury actions and in actions to recover damages for loss of or injury to personal property by guests against innkeepers when the injury or loss arises from the negligent operation and maintenance of the hotel or motel premises. The forms are:

- Complaints and allegations for use in alleging personal injuries to a guest or the visitor of a guest on hotel or motel premises [see §§ 297.60-297.64].

- Complaint and allegation for wrongful death of a guest [see §§ 297.65-297.66].

- Complaint for assault and battery by one guest on another [see § 297.67].

- Complaint for loss of a guest's personal property on the hotel or motel premises [see § 297.68].

- Affirmative defenses an innkeeper might assert against a guest alleging personal injuries or loss of or injury to personal property [see §§ 297.76, 297.77].

The chapter also discusses and actions by an innkeeper to enforce a lien against a guest's personal property to satisfy charges due. Related forms are:

- Complaint for damages for breach of an oral contract for charges due an innkeeper [see § 297.69].

- Forms for use in proceedings for issuance of a writ of possession of baggage or other property [see § 297.70-297.74].

- Notice of a public auction by an inkeeper to satisfy charges [see § 297.75].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

25-297 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 297.11

§ 297.11 Definitions

[1] Inn and Hotel

An "inn" is a public house of entertainment [Pinkerton v. Woodward (1867) 33 Cal. 557, 596] where all transient persons who choose to visit it will be received and entertained as guests for compensation [see Fay v. Pacific Improv. Co. (1892) 93 Cal. 253, 259, 28 P. 943] .

In general, the terms "inn" and "hotel" may be used interchangeably [see Fay v. Pacific Improv. Co. (1892) 93 Cal. 253, 259, 28 P. 943] . However, a distinction is sometimes drawn between the two terms in that an inn is said to be for transient guest only, while a hotel accommodates both transients and those whose stay is of a more definite nature [Piluso v. Spencer (1918) 36 Cal. App. 416, 421, 172 P. 412]. The fact that many of the guests are not transients, but occupy their rooms on a monthly basis does not alter the nature of a place as a hotel [People v. Vaughan (1944) 65 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 844, 852, 150 P.2d 964]. A "hotel" includes all those portions of the premises which provide for refreshment, comfort, and entertainment for guests and which are operated by and under the management of the hotel [see Berall v. Squaw Valley Lodge of Tahoe (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 540, 544, 11 Cal. Rptr. 316 (lodge adjacent to sleeping dormitories as part of hotel)].

[2] Boarding House Distinguished

A "hotel" or "inn" is distinguished from a "boarding house" in that the former is open to receiving all guests, whereas the latter selects boarders and terms of accommodation, contracts specifically with each customer, and usually arranges for longer periods of stay [see Fay v. Pacific Improv. Co. (1892) 93 Cal. 253, 259, 28 P. 943] .

[3] Motel

Webster's Seventh New Collegiate Dictionary defines a "motel" as a building or group of buildings used as a hotel in which the rooms are directly accessible from an outdoor parking area. Although there are no California cases directly on point, in other states, a "motel" has been regarded as legally constituting an inn or hotel [Juengel v. Glendale (Mo.1942) 164 S.W. 2d 610, 613] , and the proprietor of such a place has been held subject to the duties and liabilities of an innkeeper [Langford v. Vandaveer (Ky. 1953) 254 S.W.2d 498, 500 ; see also Sala v. Christensen (1958) 167

Cal. App. 2d 580, 582-583, 334 P.2d 944] .

[4] Innkeeper

An "innkeeper" is one who is responsible for the supervision and maintenance of a hotel or similar establishment offering public accommodation [see Fay v. Pacific Improv. Co. (1892) 93 Cal. 253, 260, 28 P. 943] .

[5] Guest and Lodger

[a] Temporary Stay While Premises Remain Under Control and Supervision of Owner

A "guest" of an inn or hotel is one who receives accommodations or entertainment therein, usually for compensation [Goldstein v. Healy (1921) 187 Cal. 206, 210, 201 P. 462] . A guest usually enjoys only a temporary stay and receives no price reduction for the accommodations, whereas a "boarder" or "lodger" usually contracts for a longer definite period of stay and often pays a lower rate than that charged the transient guest [see Fay v. Pacific Improv. Co. (1892) 93 Cal. 253, 261, 28 P. 943] .

A person who rents a room is a guest or lodger if the premises are under the direct control and supervision of the owner who furnishes and attends to the room [Stowe v. Fritzie Hotels, Inc. (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 416, 421, 282 P.2d 890 ; Green v. Watson (1964) 224 Cal. App. 2d 184, 190, 36 Cal. Rptr. 362] . Control and supervision by the owner is demonstrated when he or she retains the key to the room and has access to it for caretaking purposes, furnishes linens and maid service, cleans hallways and removes garbage, and provides light, water, heat, and telephone service [Roberts v. Casey (1939) 36 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 767, 772, 93 P.2d 654 ; but see Zavalney v. Donovan (1945) 70 Cal. App. 2d 182, 185-186, 160 P.2d 558 (owner's supplying linen and some janitor service did not create relationship of innkeeper-guest when parties intended relationship to be that of landlord-tenant)].

[b] Tenant Distinguished

The chief distinction between a guest or lodger and a tenant lies in the character of possession of the premises [see Green v. Watson (1964) 224 Cal. App. 2d 184, 190, 36 Cal. Rptr. 362] . That is, a guest or lodger has only the right to use the premises, subject to the owner's retention of control and right of access, whereas a tenant has exclusive legal possession of the premises and is responsible for their care and condition [see Stowe v. Fritzie Hotels, Inc. (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 416, 421, 282 P.2d 890 (occupant was a guest or lodger); see Green v. Watson (1964) 224 Cal. App. 2d 184, 190, 36 Cal. Rptr. 362 (status of occupant was a question of fact for jury)].

Factors which suggest that an occupant is a tenant include payment by the tenant of a designated monthly rent or a lower weekly rental rate [Green v. Watson (1964) 224 Cal. App. 2d 184, 190-191, 36 Cal. Rptr. 362 ; Zavalney v. Donovan (1945) 70 Cal. App. 2d 182, 185-186, 160 P.2d 558] , the performance of the maid's work or housework by the occupant [Green v. Watson (1964) 224 Cal. App. 2d 184, 190-191, 36 Cal. Rptr. 362 ; Zavalney v. Donovan (1945) 70 Cal. App. 2d 182, 185-186, 160 P.2d 558] , the rental of a distinct unit having its own kitchen and bathroom rather than the sharing of these facilities with other units [Roberts v. Casey (1939) 36 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 767, 772, 36 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 767, 93 P.2d 654] , and payment of the same amount of rent for a unit without regard to the number of occupants therein [Roberts v. Casey (1939) 36 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 767, 772, 93 P.2d 654] .

§ 297.12 Innkeeper

[1] Guest Relationship

The relationship of innkeeper to guest is established when one presents himself or herself to the world as an innkeeper, receives travelers as guests, and solicits the continuance of their patronage. In turn, the traveler relies on these representations and goes to the establishment to receive entertainment and accommodations [Pinkerton v. Woodward (1867) 33 Cal. 557, 597, 91 Am. Dec. 657] .

[2] Landlord-Tenant Relationship Distinguished

The distinction between the relationship of an innkeeper to a guest and a landlord to a tenant has been important historically in that an innkeeper, who retains possession of control of the premises, owes a duty to a guest or lodger to maintain the premises in reasonably safe condition at all times [see Stowe v. Fritzie Hotels, Inc. (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 416, 420-421, 282 P.2d 890 (lodger injured when lamp fell on him); see Wallace v. Speier (1943) 60 Cal. App. 2d 387, 391, 140 P.2d 900 (guest injured when fell in hotel shower which was in state of disrepair)]. On the other hand, a landlord ordinarily had no duty of care with respect to the condition of the premises after exclusive possession was given to the tenant who then became responsible [see Stowe v. Fritzie Hotels, Inc. (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 416, 421, 282 P.2d 890] .

The continued importance of this historical distinction between the relationship of an innkeeper to a guest and a landlord to a tenant is doubtful in light of a recent holding that the common-law rules regarding the liability of a landlord for an accident on his or her leased premises have been superceded by Civ. Code § 1714(a) [see Brennan v. Cockrell Inv., Inc. (1973)35 Cal. App. 3d 796, 802, 111 Cal. Rptr. 122] . Applying the rationale of Rowland v. Christian (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 108, 70 Cal. Rptr. 97, 443 P.2d 561 , the Brennan court held that no public policy required that an exception to Civ. Code § 1714(a) be made for landlords not in possession when they are sued by their tenants [Brennan v. Cockrell Inv., Inc. (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 796, 800, 111 Cal. Rptr. 122] . It therefore reversed a jury verdict in the landlord's favor because the jury had been instructed that ordinarily the owner of premises leased to a tenant is not liable for any injury to the tenant that results from a dangerous condition which existed when the tenant took possession and the trial court refused the instruction stating that he was under a duty to exercise ordinary care in the management of the premises [Brennan v. Cockrell Inv., Inc. (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 796, 799, 801, 111 Cal. Rptr. 122] .

§ 297.13 Defective Condition of Premises

[1] Duty of Innkeeper

Traditionally, an innkeeper has been considered a possessor of land whose liability to one coming onto the premises has been controlled by the status of the entrant. In general, a guest of a hotel, motel, or similar establishment has been considered a business visitor who is entitled to receive that degree of care applicable to an invitee [see Sala v. Christensen (1958) 167 Cal. App. 2d 580, 582-583, 334 P.2d 944 (motel guest stepped into hole on grounds and fell); see Trembley v. Capital Co. (1949) 89 Cal. App. 2d 606, 608-609, 201 P.2d 398 (hotel guest gashed wrist when porcelain shower handle crumbled in hand)]. The status of the visitor of a guest has also been that of an invitee [Goldstein v. Healy (1921) 187 Cal. 206, 211, 201 P. 462 (visitor of hotel guest injured when fell 20 feet to ground after railing around platform broke)] and his or her visit is subject to reasonable regulations imposed by the manager [Goldstein v. Healy (1921) 187 Cal. 206, 210-211, 201 P. 462] .

In Rowland v. Christian (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 108, 119, 70 Cal. Rptr. 97, 443 P.2d 561 , the Supreme Court departed from the traditional rules governing the liability of the owners and occupiers of land and held that the test to be applied to the liability of the possessor of land in accordance with Section 1714 of the Civil Code is whether in the management of his or her property he or she has acted as a reasonable person in view of the probability of injury to others, and although the plaintiff's status as a trespasser, licensee, or invitee may in the light of the facts giving rise to such status have some bearing on the question of liability, the status is not determinative. Although the Rowland case involved a licensee, the test has been applied in the context of a business invitee [see Beauchamp v. Los Gatos Golf Course (1969) 273 Cal. App. 2d 20, 25-38, 77 Cal. Rptr. 914 (golfer sued for injuries sustained when fell while walking across concrete surface)]. In that case, the court noted, however, that the term "invitee" has not been abandoned, nor have the terms "trespasser" and "licensee." In the minds of the jury, whether a possessor of the premises has acted as a reasonable person toward a plaintiff, in view of the probability of injury to him or her, will tend to involve the circumstances under which he or she came upon defendant's land; and the probability of exposure of plaintiff and others of his or her class to the risk of injury; as well as whether the condition itself presented an unreasonable risk of harm, in view of the foreseeable use of the property. In turn, that reinvolves the degree to which those on the property could be expected to be there, and the use they could be expected to make of the premises. In this, there is a wide difference between a trespasser, who actually may be forbidden the use of the property, and an invitee, invited or urged to be there [

Beauchamp v. Los Gatos Golf Course (1969) 273 Cal. App. 2d 20, 25, 77 Cal. Rptr. 914 (dictum)].

The court further noted that short of an absolute liability, which may arise independently of negligence or want of it, the legal duties declared to exist in favor of the invitee upon the premises have been the highest judicially imposed upon the possessor of land. The court did not believe they have been jettisoned by Rowland v. Christian. Likewise, it did not believe that such established decisional principles have been abandoned and freewheeling by the triers of fact substituted in their stead. If guidelines are withdrawn from juries relative to the invitor and invitee, proof of fault might tend to consist of the fact of plaintiff's injury and defendant's ability to pay, assumed to exist since a reasonably prudent person would be silly not to have insurance. If withdrawal of such guidelines expanded the discretion of juries on the one hand, it would limit pro tanto the power of the court to control abuses on the other, for want of yardsticks applicable to appropriate categories of situations. The citizen would be at a loss to learn factually just what the law demands of him or her as a landowner. The diversity of jury decisions on like facts, plaintiff by plaintiff, and defendant by defendant, might well work inequality before the law [Beauchamp v. Los Gatos Golf Course (1969) 273 Cal. App. 2d 20, 26, 77 Cal. Rptr. 914 (dictum)].

After study and reflection, the court was persuaded that the legal duties announced in relation to the invitor-invitee relationship are generally consonant with Civil Code § 1714 and that Rowland v. Christian does not generally abrogate the decisions declaring the substantive duties of the possessor of land to invitees nor those establishing the correlative rights and duties of invitees [Beauchamp v. Los Gatos Golf Course (1969) 273 Cal. App. 2d 20, 26, 27, 77 Cal. Rptr. 914 (dictum)].

[2] Scope of Duty

In cases decided prior to the Rowland and Beauchamp, decisions courts held that an innkeeper, as a possessor of land, must use ordinary care to maintain the premises in reasonably safe condition for a guest [Stowe v. Fritzie Hotels, Inc. (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 416, 420-421, 282 P.2d 890 ; Wallace v. Speier (1943) 60 Cal. App. 2d 387, 391, 140 P.2d 900 ; Koppelman v. Ambassador Hotel Co. (1939) 35 Cal. App. 2d 537, 540, 96 P.2d 196] that this includes a duty to inspect the premises to discover any latent defects [Stowe v. Fritzie Hotels, Inc. (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 416, 424, 282 P.2d 890 (innkeeper knew or could have known about top-heavy lamp which fell and injured guest); Crawford v. Pacific States Sav. & L. Co. (1937) 22 Cal. App. 2d 448, 449, 71 P.2d 333 (innkeeper had no actual or constructive knowledge of water on lavatory floor where guest slipped and fell)] followed by such repair, safeguard, and warning as is reasonably necessary for protection of the guest under the circumstances [Sala v. Christensen (1958) 167 Cal. App. 2d 580, 582-583, 334 P.2d 944 (innkeeper gave no warning about hole into which guest fell on motel premises); Wallace v. Speier (1943) 60 Cal. App. 2d 387, 391-392, 140 P.2d 900 (innkeeper failed to inspect and repair shower fixture which broke in guest's hand)].

In other cases decided prior to the Rowland and Beauchamp decisions courts held that an innkeeper's duty to use ordinary care to maintain the premises in reasonably safe condition includes any means of ingress or egress which reasonably appears to have been provided for a guest [see Sala v. Christensen (1958) 167 Cal. App. 2d 580, 582-583, 334 P.2d 944 (sidewalks and pathways connecting motel units); Staudinger v. Whitlock (1952) 111 Cal. App. 2d 288, 292, 244 P.2d 414 (stairway)] as well as other parts of the premises [Koppelman v. Ambassador Hotel Co. (1939) 35 Cal. App. 2d 537, 540, 96 P.2d 196 (defendant company had bank on lower floor; plaintiff entered with intent to bank, was distracted by crowd which she followed along corridor where she tripped over timber on floor); McStay v. Citizens Nat'l Trust & Sav. Bank (1935) 5 Cal. App. 2d 595, 599, 43 P.2d 560 (platform overlooking hotel dining room)].

[3] Patent Defect

In cases decided prior to the Rowland and Beauchamp decisions, courts held that an innkeeper's duty does not extend to a guest or an invitee of a guest for an injury sustained as a result of a patent defect [Allred v. Orth (1929) 206 Cal. 494, 496, 274 P. 955 (defect not patent where injured party unfamiliar with premises); Goldstein v. Healy (1921) 187

Cal. 206, 211, 201 P. 462 (defect not patent where unknown to injured party prior to fall)]. For discussion of comparative negligence, by which damages awarded are diminished in proportion to the amount of negligence attributable to the person recovering, see § 297.17[1], below.

[4] Reasonable Inspection

In cases decided prior to the Rowland and Beauchamp decisions, courts held that an innkeeper's duty does not extend to a guest or an invitee of a guest for an injury sustained as a result of an unknown defect which could not have been discovered by reasonable inspection [Trembley v. Capital Co. (1949) 89 Cal. App. 2d 606, 608, 201 P.2d 398 (defect in shower handle could not have been discovered); Adams v. Dow Hotel (1938) 25 Cal. App. 2d 51, 54, 76 P.2d 210 (inspection of hot water faucet had disclosed no defect)].

§ 297.14 Duty to Protect Guests From Dangerous Activity

In addition to keeping the premises in reasonably safe physical condition, an innkeeper has a duty to protect guests from injury, annoyance, and mistreatment by third parties on the premises [see Slawinski v. Mocettini (1963) 217 Cal. App. 2d 192, 196, 31 Cal. Rptr. 613 (patron of tavern died of gunshot wound); Kingen v. Weyant (1957) 148 Cal. App. 2d 656, 661, 307 P.2d 369 (patron of tavern incurred injuries in fight)].

However, an innkeeper is not an insurer of the guest's safety [see Slawinski v. Mocettini (1963) 217 Cal. App. 2d 192, 196, 31 Cal. Rptr. 613 ; Kingen v. Weyant (1957) 148 Cal. App. 2d 656, 661, 307 P.2d 369] and incurs liability only when he or she negligently receives or harbors persons of known violent or vicious propensities who will probably assault or otherwise mistreat a guest [Rahmel v. Lehndorff (1904) 142 Cal. 681, 684, 76 P. 659 (hotel guest assaulted and beaten by dining-room waiter while seated at dining table)].

An innkeeper may discharge his or her duty by giving warning adequate to enable a guest to avoid harm from a third party on the premises or by otherwise protecting a guest against such harm [see Taylor v. Centennial Bowl (1966) 65 Cal. 2d 114, 124, 52 Cal. Rptr. 561, 416 P.2d 793 (insufficient warning given where patron of bowling alley stabbed in parking lot subsequent to repeated offensive behavior by attacker inside)].

§ 297.15 Violation of Statute

The common-law presumption of negligence which arises from an act or failure to act below a statutory standard is codified in Evid. Code § 669. That section contains two parts.

The first part provides that the failure of a person to exercise due care is presumed if: (1) he or she violates a statute, ordinance, or regulation of a public entity; (2) the violation proximately caused death or injury to persons or property; (3) the death or injury resulted from an occurrence of the nature which the statute, ordinance, or regulation was designed to prevent; and (4) the person suffering the death or the injury to his or her person or property was one of the class of persons for whose protection the statute, ordinance, or regulation was adopted [Evid. Code § 669(a)].

The second part provides that the presumption may be rebutted by proof that: (1) the person violating the statute, ordinance, or regulation did what might reasonably be expected of a person of ordinary prudence, acting under similar circumstances, who desired to comply with the law; or (2) the person violating the statute, ordinance, or regulation was a child and exercised the degree of care ordinarily exercised by persons of his or her maturity, intelligence, and capacity under similar circumstances, but the presumption may not be rebutted by such proof if the violation occurred in the course of an activity normally engaged in only by adults and requiring adult qualifications [Evid. Code § 669(b)].

Under the common-law principles identical to these codified principles, it was held that the trial court committed reversible error in refusing to give an instruction on the necessity for artificial lighting in hotels as required by former Health & Safety Code § 17819 [Berall v. Squaw Valley Lodge of Tahoe (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 540, 545, 11 Cal. Rptr. 316 (action by guest against lodge owner for injuries sustained in fall in corridor leading to one of shops in main building)].

[1] Accident Caused by Instrumentality in Defendant's Control

The doctrine of res ipsa loquitur is applicable in a case where an accident is of a type which ordinarily does not occur unless someone has been negligent, the accident was caused by an agency or instrumentality within the control of the defendant, and plaintiff's conduct did not contribute to the accident [Vistica v. Presbyterian Hospital (1967) 67 Cal. 2d 465, 469, 62 Cal. Rptr. 577, 432 P.2d 193 (action for wrongful death of mentally ill patient confined in psychiatric ward of defendant hospital)].

Alleging specific acts of negligence does not deprive a plaintiff of the applicability of the doctrine of res ipsa loquitur [Mintzer v. Wilson (1937) 21 Cal. App. 2d 85, 89, 68 P.2d 370] .

[2] Effect

The application of the doctrine creates an inference of negligence on the part of the innkeeper [Mintzer v. Wilson (1937) 21 Cal. App. 2d 85, 88, 68 P.2d 370] . The inference which it raises shifts the burden of going forward with the evidence to the innkeeper, who is required to rebut the inference with evidence sufficient to offset or balance it [see Mintzer v. Wilson (1937) 21 Cal. App. 2d 85, 90-91, 68 P.2d 370] .

[3] When Not Applied

Res ipsa loquitur is not applicable in a case where a pedestrian was struckby a chair thrown from a hotel window to the sidewalk [Larson v. St. Francis Hotel (1948) 83 Cal. App. 2d 210, 211-214, 188 P.2d 513] because the hotel did not have exclusive control of its furniture and such an accident was not one that ordinarily would not happen without the negligence of the party charged [Larson v. St. Francis Hotel (1948) 83 Cal. App. 2d 210, 212, 188 P.2d 513 ; cf. Mintzer v. Wilson (1937) 21 Cal. App. 2d 85, 88, 68 P.2d 370 (res ipsa loquitur doctrine was held to apply in a case where a hotel guest was injured when a large piece of ceiling plaster fell on her while she slept in her room)]. Nor does the doctrine apply in a case where a resident died in a fire in the hotel where she lived [Snyder v. Hollingbery (1956) 141 Cal. App. 2d 520, 521, 297 P.2d 485] . Even though control over the hotel by the innkeeper could be established, it could not reasonably be concluded either that the accident was of a kind which did not normally occur in the absence of negligence or that the accident was not due to any voluntary action on the part of the plaintiff [Snyder v. Hollingbery (1956) 141 Cal. App. 2d 520, 527-528, 297 P.2d 485] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

25-297 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 297.17

§ 297.17 Defenses to Negligence Action

[1] Negligence of Plaintiff

The defense of contributory negligence has been invalidated in California and replaced with a system of comparative negligence in which the fundamental purpose to assign responsbility and liability for damage in direct proportion to the amount of negligence of each of the parties. Thus, in all actions for negligence resulting in injury to person or property, the contributory negligence of the person injured does not bar recovery, but the damages awarded are diminished in proportion to the amount of negligence attributable to the person recovering [Li v. Yellow Cab Co. (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 804, 829, 119 Cal. Rptr. 858, 532 P.2d 1226 (automobile accident case)].

Prior cases involving contributory negligence are, however, instructive insofar as they illustrate negligent conduct of plaintiffs. Thus, cases decided under former law which held that a plaintiff who, as an employee of a hotel, fell down an open stairwell after proceeding in the dark [Robinson v. King (1952) 113 Cal. App. 2d 455, 457, 248 P.2d 477] or a plaintiff who, after meeting a friend for lunch, tripped and fell over a stack of planks which presented an obvious danger in the hotel lobby [Dixon v. St. Francis Hotel Corp. (1969) 271 Cal. App. 2d 739, 743, 77 Cal. Rptr. 201] were negligent are still valid under comparative negligence, even though a plaintiff's recovery will depend on the amount of fault attributable to plaintiff and the amount attributable to the innkeeper.

[2] Asumption of Risk

The doctrine of assumption of risk, in light of the adoption of comparative fault principles, is analyzed in terms of "primary assumption of risk" and "secondary assumption of risk" [Knight v. Jewett (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 296, 309, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 2, 834 P.2d 696] .

Primary assumption of risk describes the situation in which the defendant, by virtue of the nature of the activity and the parties' relationship to the activity, owes no legal duty to protect the plaintiff from the particular risk of harm that caused the injury; the doctrine operates as a complete bar to the plaintiff's recovery [Knight v. Jewett (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 296, 314-315, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 2, 834 P.2d 696] . Under this analysis, assumption of risk is an absolute defense only if public policy dictates that the class of which the defendant is a member should owe no duty of care to the class of which the plaintiff is a member in relation to the activity in which they are involved [Harrold v. Rolling J Ranch (1993) 19

Cal. App. 4th 578, 584, 23 Cal. Rptr. 2d 671] .

Secondary assumption of risk involves the situation in which the defendant owes a duty of care to the plaintiff but the plaintiff proceeds to encounter a known risk imposed by the defendant's breach of duty. In this situation, the doctrine is merged into the comparative fault scheme and the trier of fact, in apportioning the loss resulting from the injury, may consider the relative responsibility of the parties [Knight v. Jewett (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 296, 315, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 2, 834 P.2d 696] .

If a property owner breachs the duty to eliminate a dangerous condition on his or her property, and a plaintiff is injured when knownly encountering the dangerous condition, secondary assumption of risk applies, and comparative negligence principles determines the relative fault of the parties [Curties v. Hill Top Developers, Inc. (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 1651, 1656, 18 Cal. Rptr. 2d 445 (tenant slip and fall on sloping lawn in apartment complex)].

For discussion of assumption of the risk, see Ch. 380, Negligence .

§ 297.18 Liability Based Upon Express Warranty

A hotel guest who is injured on the premises may recover from the innkeeper for breach of an express warranty [Stowe v. Fritzie Hotels, Inc. (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 416, 423, 282 P.2d 890 ; Shattuck v. St. Francis Hotel & Apts. (1936) 7 Cal. 2d 358, 360-361, 60 P.2d 855] . Thus, when an innkeeper expressly warrants or represents to a guest that a furnishing is safe and may be used for the purpose for which it was intended, a guest who relies on such representation and is subsequently injured may recover from the innkeeper who is liable for all damages incurred as a result of the defective condition of the furnishing [Stowe v. Fritzie Hotels, Inc. (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 416, 423, 282 P.2d 890 (lodger injured when top-heavy lamp fell on him); Shattuck v. St. Francis Hotel & Apts. (1936) 7 Cal. 2d 358, 360-361, 60 P.2d 855 (occupant injured when bed frame fell on her)]. Actual knowledge by the innkeeper of the defective condition is not required because an occupant who receives assurances that the furnishings are safe has a right to assume the innkeeper knew or could have known that the furnishings were free from any fault inconsistent with the proper use and enjoyment of the room [see Shattuck v. St. Francis Hotel & Apts. (1936) 7 Cal. 2d 358, 360-361, 60 P.2d 855] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

25-297 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 297.19

§ 297.19 Loss of or Injury to Property on Premises

[1] Inkeeper as Depositary for Hire

The liability of an innkeeper or hotel keeper for losses of or injuries to a guest's personal property is that of a depositary for hire [see Civ. Code § 1859; see also Federal Ins. Co. v. Beverly Hills Hotel Corp. (1962) 202 Cal. App. 2d 120, 123-124, 20 Cal. Rptr. 502 ; Muehlebach v. Paso Robles Springs Hotel, (1924) 65 Cal. App. 634, 640, 225 P. 19] .

A depositary for hire only incurs liability for the loss or injury if it is the result of his or her own the negligence or dishonesty or that of his or her employee [see Civ. Code § 1852; see also Gardner v. Jonathan Club (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 343, 347-348, 217 P.2d 961 ; Federal Ins. Co. v. Beverly Hills Hotel Corp. (1962) 202 Cal. App. 2d 120, 127-128, 20 Cal. Rptr. 502 (insurance company's subrogation action against hotel unsuccessful; hotel not negligent or dishonest in case in which guest's mink and jewelry were missing from room)].

The innkeeper's liability is further limited by Civ. Code § 1860, relating to liability when guests fail to deposit money, jewelry, or other valuables in an available safe [see [3][a], below] and by the fact that both Civ. Code §§ 1859 and 1860, having a common purpose, must be read together [Gardner v. Jonathan Club (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 343, 350, 217 P.2d 961 ; Federal Ins. Co. v. Beverly Hills Hotel Corp. (1962) 202 Cal. App. 2d 120, 124, 20 Cal. Rptr. 502 ; Robert Altman, Inc. v. Biltmore Hotel (1961) 190 Cal. App. 2d 274, 279, 11 Cal. Rptr. 838] .

For a discussion of liability of depositaries for hire generally, see Ch. 93, Bailments .

[2] Fixed Sum Liability

Civ. Code § 1859 limits an innkeeper's liability for loss of or injury to all personal property which a guest brings into a hotel or inn [Gardner v. Jonathan Club (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 343, 351, 217 P.2d 961] (money) and all personal property of any kind which remains in the guest's room [Federal Ins. Co. v. Beverly Hills Hotel Corp. (1962) 202 Cal. App. 2d 120, 127, 20 Cal. Rptr. 502 (mink coat and jewelry)].

There are dollar limits on maximum liability in the aggregate, for various specific items, and for all other personal property of any kind, which apply unless the innkeeper has consented in writing with the owner to assume a greater liability [Civ. Code § 1859]. The limits are:

- Aggregate: $1000.
- Each trunk and its contents: $500.
- Each valise or traveling bad and its contents: $250.
- Each box, bundle, or package and its contents: $250.
- All other personal property of any kind: $250.

An innkeeper's liability for negligence as a depositary for hire is limited to the amounts specified in Civ. Code § 1859 unless he or she consents in writing to greater liability [see Federal Ins. Co. v. Beverly Hills Hotel Corp. (1962) 202 Cal. App. 2d 120, 127-128, 20 Cal. Rptr. 502] .

[3] Exemption From Liability

[a] Guest Does Not Have Property Deposited in Available Safe

Civ. Code § 1860 affords an innkeeper additional protection against liability for loss of a guest's personal property. Section 1860 provides that if an innkeeper or hotel keeper keeps a fireproof safe and personally informs the guests or posts printed notice that he or she will not be liable for valuables such as money, jewelry, documents, furs, fur coats, and fur garments, unless placed in the safe, the innkeeper escapes liability for loss of or injury to articles not deposited with him or her [Civ. Code § 1860; see also Gardner v. Jonathan Club (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 343, 350-351, 217 P.2d 961 (money); Federal Ins. Co. v. Beverly Hills Hotel Corp. (1962) 202 Cal. App. 2d 120, 124, 20 Cal. Rptr. 502 (fur coat and jewelry)].

However, Section 1860 does not absolve an innkeeper of negligence so far as his or her own acts contribute to the loss [Civ. Code § 1860].

To create a deposit of valuables within the meaning of Civ. Code § 1860, a guest must make known to an innkeeper that the articles are of unusual value. Thus, a guest may not rely on the mere appearance of his or her baggage as giving information to the innkeeper that it contains valuables and is being deposited with him or her as such [Providence Washington Ins. Co. v. Hotel Marysville, Inc. (1943) 60 Cal. App. 2d 338, 344-345, 140 P.2d 698 (no deposit by guest who delivered baggage containing jewelry to bell boy and merely assented to bell boy's inquiry whether they should be placed in hotel safe)].

[b] Limitation of Liability as to Items Received for Deposit in Safe

After exempting from liability an innkeeper who does not receive a guest's valuables for deposit in the hotel safe [see [1], above], Civ. Code § 1860 goes on to limit an innkeeper's liability when a guest does deposit valuables with him or her for safekeeping [see Civ. Code § 1860]. Section 1860 provides in part that an innkeeper is not liable, except so far as his or her own acts contribute thereto, for any loss of or injury to a guest's valuables, if not deposited with him or her to be placed in the safe, nor in any case for more than $500 for any or all such property of any individual guest or lodger, unless the innkeeper has given a written receipt for the property to the guest or lodger [Civ. Code § 1860]. The legislative intent in enacting the section was to limit the amount that a guest, who deposits property with the innkeeper for safekeeping, can recover unless the guest is given a written receipt [see Gardner v. Jonathan Club (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 343, 217 P.2d 961 (action to recover money deposited with innkeeper for safekeeping); Ricketts v. Morehead Co., Inc. (1954) 122 Cal. App. 2d 948, 954, 265 P.2d 963 (action to recover money and jewelry deposited for safekeeping)].

To recover more than the statutorily specified sum, a guest's receipt must be a "receipt in writing" within the meaning of Civ. Code § 1860. Such a receipt must be for specific goods of a declared value [see Gardner v. Jonathan Club (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 343, 350-353, 217 P.2d 961 (claim check was not receipt within contemplation of Civ. Code § 1860); Robert Altman, Inc. v. Biltmore Hotel (1961) 190 Cal. App. 2d 274, 279, 11 Cal. Rptr. 838 (no receipt within contemplation of Civ. Code § 1860); for discussion, see [4], below].

The limitation of liability afforded the innkeeper with regard to articles that have been placed in a safe in the innkeeper's possession is not restricted to the period of time in which the articles are actually inside the hotel safe. Thus, Civ. Code § 1860 applied to a situation in which valuables had been deposited in the safe, were subsequently withdrawn by the guest, and were stolen from the guest as the guest checked out of the hotel. Because the innkeeper had not agreed in writing to assume a greater liability, it was held to be liable for the amount allowed by statute, and no more [Nagashima v. Hyatt Wilshire Corp. (1991) 228 Cal. App. 3d 1006, 1011, 279 Cal. Rptr. 265] .

The statutorily specified sum is not a guaranteed minimum recovery. A plaintiff must prove that the deposited property was worth that much and that the innkeeper was informed or had reason to know that fact before the specified sum can be recovered [Gardner v. Jonathan Club (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 343, 350, 217 P.2d 961 (question did not arise where defendant waived requirement of proof by moving for summary judgment)].

[4] Agreement to Assume Increased Liability

[a] Rationale

The theory behind Civ. Code §§ 1859, 1860 is that should a guest wish protection in excess of the statutory limitation, he or she must declare the value of his or her property to give the innkeeper an opportunity to confirm the estimate of value. The innkeeper can then refuse to assume the greater liability or, if he or she assumes it, take proper precautions for the protection of the property. Liability in excess of the statutory limitation is thus based on an innkeeper's agreement to assume it [Gardner v. Jonathan Club (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 343, 350, 217 P.2d 961 (innkeeper assumed no greater liability; statutory limit applied); Robert Altman, Inc. v. Biltmore Hotel (1961) 190 Cal. App. 2d 274, 280, 11 Cal. Rptr. 838 (innkeeper assumed no greater liability; guest limited to statutory maximum recovery for loss of jewelry cases worth over $80,000)].

[b] Written Assumption of Liability

To impose liability in excess of the statutory limit on the innkeeper, Civ. Code § 1859 requires that the innkeeper have "consented in writing" while Civ. Code § 1860 requires that the guest have received a "receipt in writing" [Civ. Code §§ 1859, 1860].

The reason is clear for this variation in terms. Civ. Code § 1859 refers to the property of guests remaining in their possession in the rooms of the inn or hotel while Civ. Code § 1860 refers to articles placed in the safe in the possession of the innkeeper. One ordinarily gives a receipt for goods delivered into his or her possession but not for goods remaining in the possession of another. As to articles remaining in a guest's possession, therefore, the legislature required written consent on the part of the innkeeper to assume a greater liability; as to articles deposited in the safe, a written receipt for specific goods of a declared value in excess of the statutory limitation is the equivalent of the written assumption of a greater liability [Gardner v. Jonathan Club (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 343, 351, 217 P.2d 961] . This construction is clearly consistent with the provision of Civ. Code § 1840 which limits the liability of a bailee to the apparent value of an article unless the depositor informs him or her that it has greater value [Gardner v. Jonathan Club (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 343, 351, 217 P.2d 961] .

[c] Written Receipt Imposing Liability

The requirement in Civ. Code § 1860 that a guest receive a "receipt in writing" for personal property deposited with an innkeeper for safekeeping contemplates an acknowledgment by the innkeeper that a specific item was received with an awareness of its nature and value [Gardner v. Jonathan Club (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 343, 352, 217 P.2d 961 (disapproving definition of "receipt in writing" as "some evidence of the ownership, delivery, and identity of the baggage" as suggested in Greer v. Los Angeles Athletic Club (1927) 84 Cal. App. 272, 274-278, 258 P. 155)]. Thus, an identification check given to a guest as a means of identifying an envelope deposited for safekeeping was not a "receipt in writing" since the clerk was not informed about the contents of the envelope or their value [see Gardner v. Jonathan Club (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 343, 352, 217 P.2d 961] . Nor did a parcel check satisfy the requirement for a "receipt in writing" when it was given to a guest who deposited jewelry cases in the hotel safe without disclosing their value to the hotel [Robert Altman, Inc. v. Biltmore Hotel (1961) 190 Cal. App. 2d 274, 279, 11 Cal. Rptr. 838] .

The Altman case, above, raises some question if there is, in fact, any protection offered a guest in declaring value and receiving a special receipt for property deposited with an innkeeper. The hotel involved had made its own rule to the effect that its employees should not inquire as to the value of articles that were presented for deposit and that they should not accept articles for deposit if the guest made a declaration of value greater than the statutory limitation [see Robert Altman, Inc. v. Biltmore Hotel (1961) 190 Cal. App. 2d 274, 280, 11 Cal. Rptr. 838] . Appellant had contended that, in so doing, the hotel had waived the benefit of the limitation of liability prescribed by Civ. Code § 1860 [Robert Altman, Inc. v. Biltmore Hotel (1961) 190 Cal. App. 2d 274, 280, 11 Cal. Rptr. 838] . But the court held that the hotel was under no duty to inquire as to the value of the property, nor had it waived the benefit of the limitation of liability prescribed by Civ. Code § 1860 [Robert Altman, Inc. v. Biltmore Hotel (1961) 190 Cal. App. 2d 274, 280, 11 Cal. Rptr. 838] , and it cited the Gardner decision, above, for the proposition that an innkeeper can "refuse to assume greater liability" [Robert Altman, Inc. v. Biltmore Hotel (1961) 190 Cal. App. 2d 274, 279, 11 Cal. Rptr. 838] .

[5] Limitation Period on Actions for Recovery or Conversion of Personal Property

All civil actions for the recovery or conversion of personal property, wearing apparel, trunks, valises, or baggage alleged to have been left at a hotel, hospital, rest home, sanitarium, boarding house, lodging house, furnished apartment house, or furnished bungalow court must be begun within 90 days from and after the date of the departure of the owner of that personal property from the premises [Code Civ. Proc. § 341a; see Pawn v. Wall (1928) 88 Cal. App. 597, 598, 600, 264 P. 268] .

The term "personal property" as used in Code Civ. Proc. § 341a is restricted to things of a nature similar to or consistent with the items enumerated in the statute [Martin v. Holiday Inns, Inc. (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 1434, 1437-1438, 245 Cal. Rptr. 717 (truck and trailer not "personal property" within meaning of statute)].

Code Civ. Proc. § 341a has been narrowly construed to apply only to those actions expressly mentioned, that is, actions for "recovery" and "conversion" [see Taylor v. Forte Hotels International (1991) 235 Cal. App. 3d 1119, 1126-1127, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 189] . Thus, it does not apply to actions based on negligence or breach of contract [Taylor v. Forte Hotels International (1991) 235 Cal. App. 3d 1119, 1126-1127, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 189 ; see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 338(c) (three-year period for negligence resulting in damage to property), 339(1) (two-year period action on agreement not founded on instrument in writing)].

For further discussion relating to statutes of limitations generally, see Ch. 345, Limitation of Actions . For discussion and forms of complaint relating to an action for conversion generally, see Ch. 150, Conversion .

[6] Vicarious Liability

An innkeeper, like other employers, is liable for the tortious acts of his or her servants or employees if these acts are committed within the scope of their employment [see Muehlebach v. Paso Robles Springs Hotel (1924) 65 Cal. App. 634, 648, 225 P. 19] .

This rule applies to losses resulting from theft by employees as well as to losses resulting from negligence [see Muehlebach v. Paso Robles Springs Hotel (1924) 65 Cal. App. 634, 645, 225 P. 19 (innkeeper liable for theft by clerk of jewelry delivered by guest to be deposited in hotel safe)]. If a loss results from a theft by an employee acting within the scope of his or her employment, the statutory limitations as set forth in Civ. Code §§ 1859, 1860 will apply to limit an innkeeper's liability [see Gardner v. Jonathan Club (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 343, 349, 217 P.2d 961] . And, because a hotel corporation can only act through its employees, the liability of the corporation and its managers is one and the same [Ricketts v. Morehead Co., Inc. (1954) 122 Cal. App. 2d 948, 953-954, 265 P.2d 963 (action against hotel corporation and comanagers of hotel for loss of guest's money and jewelry deposited for safekeeping)].

For further discussion and forms relating to the vicarious liability of employers generally, see Ch. 248, Employer's Liability for Employee's Torts ."

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

25-297 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 297.20

§ 297.20 Innkeeper's Lien

[1] Lien Defined

A lien is a charge imposed in some mode other than by a transfer in trust upon specific property by which it is made security for the performance of an act [Civ. Code § 2872; Code Civ. Proc. § 1180].

[2] Nature of Innkeeper's Lien

An innkeeper's lien is given as security for general charges for services provided for a guest. Thus, every keeper of a hotel, motel, or inn has a lien on the baggage and other property belonging to, or legally under the control of, a guest or lodger in such hotel, etc., for charges for accommodations, extras, advances, and the costs of enforcing the lien [Civ. Code § 1861].

[3] Enforcement

[a] Availability and Method

An innkeeper has a right to possession of a guest's or lodger's baggage and other property pursuant to the writ of possession provided for in Civ. Code § 1861.1 et seq. during the pendency of any proceedings brought to recover the money or charges owed the innkeeper [see §§ 297.70-297.74 and Comments thereto].

The innkeeper's lien may be enforced, however, only after final judgment in the action or proceeding [Civ. Code § 1861]. If the final judgment is not paid within 30 days, the innkeeper may sell the baggage and property at public auction, after publication of notice of the sale pursuant to Gov. Code § 6061 and 15 days mailed notice to the guest [Civ. Code § 1861.24].

Civ. Code §§ 1861.1-1861.27 were enacted in 1979 [see Stats. 1979, ch. 964] to afford a defendant in the innkeepers' action a hearing prior to the issuance of a writ of possession, except in those circumstances where the property is not necessary for the support of the defendant or his or her family and is in immediate danger of becoming unavailable to levee. These sections were an attempt to remedy the due process questions raised under the former statutory procedure which did not permit such a hearing [see Sniadach v. Family Finance Corp. (1969) 395 U.S. 337, 340-342, 23 L. Ed. 2d 349, 89 S. Ct. 1820 ; Klim v. Jones (N.D. Cal. 1970) 315 F. Supp. 109, 122 (California Innkeeper's Lien Law in former Civ. Code § 1861 was unconstitutional under Sniadach since it affected mostly those who were either financially embarrassed or of extremely limited means and was not conditioned by sufficient procedural due process safeguards)].

[b] Property Owned by Third Party

If any baggage or property retained by the innkeeper does not belong to the guest, lodger, tenant, or border who incurred the charges or indebtedness secured thereby, at the time when such charges or indebtedness were incurred, and if the hotel, motel, inn, boarding or lodginghouse keeper entitled to the lien receives notice of that fact at any time before the sale of the baggage or property, then such baggage and property is not subject to lien [Civ. Code § 1861].

When property taken is claimed by third person, the rules and proceedings applicable in cases of third-party claims under the Enforcement of Judgment Law apply [Civ. Code § 1861.25; see Code Civ. Proc. § 720.010 et seq.; for discussion, see Ch. 254, Executions and Enforcement of Judgments].

[4] Distribution of Residue of Proceeds

After satisfying the lien out of the proceeds of the sale, together with reasonable costs incurred, the innkeeper must, upon demand within 30 days after the sale, pay the residue of the proceeds to the guest or lodger. If no such demand is made, the innkeeper must pay the residue into the treasury of the county in which the sale took place. If the residue is not claimed within one year, it goes into the county's general fund. The sale is a perpetual bar against the innkeeper for damages [Civ. Code § 1861.24].

[5] Exemptions

Any property which is exempt from enforcement of judgment under the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure is not subject to the innkeeper's lien [Civ. Code § 1861; see Code Civ. Proc. § 703.010 et seq.; for discussion, see Ch. 254, Executions and Enforcement of Judgments].

§ 297.21 Personal Property Left on Premises

[1] Abandoned Property

A procedure for the release or sale of personal property which remains on the premises after a tenancy has terminated and the premises have been vacated by the guest is provided by Civ. Code §§ 1980-1991 [Civ. Code § 1981(a)]. If the requirements of these sections are not satisfied, they do not affect the rights and liabilities of the innkeeper, former guest, or any other person [Civ. Code § 1981(e)].

For a discussion of the procedure and forms which may be adapted for use in the disposition by an innkeeper of a guest's personal property which remains on the premises after the premises have been vacated by the guest, see Ch. 332, Landlord and Tenant: The Tenancy . Civ. Code § 1980-1991 do not apply when Civ. Code §§ 2081-2081.6 applies [Civ. Code § 1981(b)]. Section 2081 et seq. applies with respect to property received by an inkeeper for transportation or safekeeping that goes unclaimed. For discussion and forms, see Ch. 355, Lost and Unclaimed Property .

[2] Lost Property

Personal property the innkeeper reasonably believes to have been lost is to be disposed of pursuant to Civ. Code §§ 2080-2080.9. The innkeeper is not liable to the owner of the property if he or she complies with those statutes. If the appropriate police or sheriff's department refuses to accept such lost property, the innkeeper may dispose of the property pursuant to Civ. Code §§ 1980-1991, discussed in [1], above [Civ. Code § 1982].

§ 297.43 Decisions

[1] Allegations Required for Negligence Action

Necessary allegations to state cause of action based on negligence against innkeeper by injured guest. Stowe v. Fritzie Hotels, Inc. (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 416, 420-422, 282 P.2d 890

[2] Defective Condition of Premises

[a] Duty of Innkeeper

Common-law distinctions between guests, invitees, and trespassers as to duty owed abolished; liability predicated on ordinary negligence under Civ. Code § 1714, a civil law, not a common-law principle. Rowland v. Christian (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 108, 112-120, 70 Cal. Rptr. 97, 443 P.2d 561

Application of principle of Rowland v. Christian in context of business invitee. Beauchamp v. Los Gatos Golf Course (1969) 273 Cal. App. 2d 20, 25-38, 77 Cal. Rptr. 914

Guest is invitee. Sala v. Christensen (1958) 167 Cal. App. 2d 580, 582-583, 334 P.2d 944 ; Trembley v. Capital Co. (1949) 89 Cal. App. 2d 606, 608-609, 201 P.2d 398 (cases decided prior to Rowland v. Christian)

Invitation to use premises is inferred when there is a common interest or mutual advantage. Koppelman v. Ambassador Hotel Co. (1939) 35 Cal. App. 2d 537, 540, 96 P.2d 196 (case decided prior to Rowland v. Christian)

Innkeeper is not absolutely liable for injuries suffered by guest, but owes duty to maintain hotel premises in reasonably safe condition. Stowe v. Fritzie Hotels, Inc. (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 416, 420-421, 282 P.2d 890 ; Wallace v. Speier (1943) 60 Cal. App. 2d 387, 391, 140 P.2d 900 ; Koppelman v. Ambassador Hotel Co. (1939) 35 Cal. App. 2d 537, 540, 96 P.2d 196 (cases decided prior to Rowland v. Christian)

Innkeeper has duty to make reasonable inspection of premises to discover defects not known. Wallace v. Speier (1943) 60 Cal. App. 2d 387, 391-392, 140 P.2d 900

Innkeeper's duty includes warning guest against and repairing latent defects on premises. Sala v. Christensen (1958) 167 Cal. App. 2d 580, 582-583, 334 P.2d 944 ; Wallace v. Speier (1943) 60 Cal. App. 2d 387, 391-392, 140 P.2d 900

Duty to maintain premises in reasonably safe condition includes duty to repair fixtures on the premises. Wallace v. Speier (1943) 60 Cal. App. 2d 387, 391-392, 140 P.2d 900

Innkeeper is liable despite fact that fixture was properly installed originally. Wallace v. Speier (1943) 60 Cal. App. 2d 387, 391, 140 P.2d 900

[b] Patent Defect

Guest at hotel or invitee of guest is not entitled to recover when injury arises from patent defect. Goldstein v. Healy (1921) 187 Cal. 206, 211, 201 P. 462 (decisions prior to Rowland v. Christian, Beauchamp v. Los Gatos Golf Course, and Li v. Yellow Cab Co.)

Allegation that decayed condition of railing was "unknown" to plaintiff was sufficient declaration that condition was latent. Goldstein v. Healy (1921) 187 Cal. 206, 211, 201 P. 462

[c] Reasonable Inspection

Innkeeper not liable for injury sustained by guest as result of unknown defect which could not have been discovered by reasonable inspection. Trembley v. Capital Co. (1949) 89 Cal. App. 2d 606, 608, 201 P.2d 398 ; Adams v. Dow Hotel (1938) 25 Cal. App. 2d 51, 54, 76 P.2d 210

Though innkeeper had no actual knowledge of latent defect which caused guest's injury, duty of due care required inspection to discover defective condition. Adams v. Dow Hotel (1938) 25 Cal. App. 2d 51, 54, 76 P.2d 210

[d] Scope of Innkeeper's Duty

Innkeeper's duty to use ordinary care to maintain premises in reasonably safe condition extends to include any means of ingress or egress which reasonably appears to have been provided for guest. Sala v. Christensen (1958) 167 Cal. App. 2d 580, 582-583, 334 P.2d 944 ; Staudinger v. Whitlock (1952) 111 Cal. App. 2d 288, 292, 244 P.2d 414 (cases decided prior to Rowland v. Christian)

Innkeeper's duty of ordinary care extends to other parts of premises. Koppelman v. Ambassador Hotel Co. (1939) 35 Cal. App. 2d 537, 540, 96 P.2d 196 ; McStay v. Citizens Nat'l Trust & Sav. Bank (1935) 5 Cal. App. 2d 595, 599, 43 P.2d 560 (cases decided prior to Rowland v. Christian)

Person who enters hotel with intent to visit bank therein is invitee who may conclude that invitation extends to corridors outside bank. Koppelman v. Ambassador Hotel Co. (1939) 35 Cal. App. 2d 537, 544, 96 P.2d 196

Motel guest had status of invitee at time she incurred injuries by falling in hole near pathway which connected motel units. Sala v. Christensen (1958) 167 Cal. App. 2d 580, 582-583, 334 P.2d 944

Liability of innkeeper to one who enters hotel as invitee depends on scope of invitation. McStay v. Citizens Nat'l

Trust & Sav. Bank (1935) 5 Cal. App. 2d 595, 599-600, 43 P.2d 560

[3] Defenses to Negligence Action

Employee on hotel premises was negligent when he fell down open stairwell while proceeding in darkness. Robinson v. King (1952) 113 Cal. App. 2d 455, 457, 248 P.2d 477

Obviousness of danger presented by planks which were stacked in corner of hotel lobby negated foreseeability of injury by defendants necessary to establish negligence and established negligence on part of plaintiff who tripped and fell. Dixon v. St. Francis Hotel Corp. (1969) 271 Cal. App. 2d 739, 743, 77 Cal. Rptr. 201

In action for wrongful death of minors by drowning in motel pool, burden of proving proximate cause did not shift to defendant on basis of evidence of failure to provide rope barrier; instructions on negligence of minors and parent were proper. Smith v. Americania Motor Lodge (1974) 39 Cal. App. 3d 1, 6-9, 113 Cal. Rptr. 771

Motel guest who suffered injuries upon falling in hole was not contributorily negligent in using unlighted path rather than illuminated sidewalk around building. Sala v. Christensen (1958) 167 Cal. App. 2d 580, 583, 334 P.2d 944

Motel guest who was not aware of hazard did not acting unreasonably in assuming that there was nothing of a dangerous character on premises. Sala v. Christensen (1958) 167 Cal. App. 2d 580, 583, 334 P.2d 944

[4] Definitions

[a] Guest and Lodger

Guest or lodger is one renting premises which remain under direct control and supervision of owner who furnishes and attends to them and who retains keys to them. Stowe v. Fritzie Hotels, Inc. (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 416, 421, 282 P.2d 890

Guest of inn or hotel defined is one who receives accommodations or entertainment therein, usually for compensation. Goldstein v. Healy (1921) 187 Cal. 206, 210, 201 P. 462

Guest is distinguished from boarder or lodger in that guest enjoys temporary stays and receives no price reduction for accommodations, whereas boarder of lodger ordinarily contracts for longer definite period, often at lower rate than that charged transient guest. Fay v. Pacific Improv. Co. (1892) 93 Cal. 253, 261, 28 P. 943

One possessing characteristics of guest does not becoming boarder or lodger merely because he or she proposed to remain a given number of days, or ascertained price to be charged for entertainment, or paid in advance for part or all of accommodations or entertainment. Pinkerton v. Woodward (1867) 33 Cal. 557, 597-598, 91 Am Dec 657

Renter of room is guest or lodger not tenant where building known as "hotel" was under control and supervision of plaintiff who furnished and attended to rooms and retained keys thereto. Erwin v. San Diego (1952) 112 Cal. App. 2d 213, 217, 246 P.2d 105

[b] Tenant Distinguished

Renter is tenant, not guest or lodger, where she rented premises for designated sum per month and did own housework; fact that owner supplied linen and some janitor service and delivered mail did not creating relation of innkeeper and guest as matter of law where it appeared that parties intended relation of landlord and tenant. Zavalney v. Donovan

(1945) 70 Cal. App. 2d 182, 185-186, 160 P.2d 558

[c] Inn or Hotel

"Inn" is house which is held out to public as place where all transient persons who come will be received and entertained as guests for compensation. Fay v. Pacific Improv. Co. (1892) 93 Cal. 253, 259, 28 P. 943

Terms "inn" and "hotel" are interchangeable. Fay v. Pacific Improv. Co. (1892) 93 Cal. 253, 259, 28 P. 943

"Inn" is public house of entertainment for all who choose to visit it. Pinkerton v. Woodward (1867) 33 Cal. 557, 596, 91 Am Dec 657

Term "hotel" as used in former Health & Safety Code §§ 17819 and 15020 was intended to apply to all portions of hotel premises operated by and under management of hotel which were provided for refreshment, comfort, and entertainment of guests. Berall v. Squaw Valley Lodge of Tahoe (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 540, 544, 11 Cal. Rptr. 316

Distinction sometimes drawn between "inn" and "hotel" in that "inn" is said to be for transient guests only, while "hotel" accommodates both transients and those whose stay is more indefinite. Piluso v. Spencer (1918) 36 Cal. App. 416, 421, 172 P. 412

Character of place as ordinary hotel as not necessarily altered by fact that many of guests are not transients and that some of them occupy their rooms on monthly basis. People v. Vaughan (1944) 65 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 844, 852, 65 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 844, 150 P.2d 964

[d] Boarding House Distinguished

"Inn" or "hotel" distinguished from "boarding house" in that keeper of inn receives all who frequent it while keeper of boarding house reserves choice of comers and terms of accommodation, contracts specifically with each customer, and usually arranges for long periods of stay and definite abode. Fay v. Pacific Improv. Co. (1892) 93 Cal. 253, 259, 28 P. 943

[e] Innkeeper

Innkeeper is one who supervises and maintains hotel. Fay v. Pacific Improv. Co. (1892) 93 Cal. 253, 260, 28 P. 943

[5] Duty to Protect From Dangerous Activity on Premises

Proprietor has duty to protect patrons from injury, annoyance, and mistreatment, but is not insurer of safety. Slawinski v. Mocettini (1963) 217 Cal. App. 2d 192, 196, 31 Cal. Rptr. 613 ; Kingen v. Weyant (1957) 148 Cal. App. 2d 656, 661, 307 P.2d 369

Proprietor is liable to patron injured by another guest only when he or she negligently receives or harbors guest of known violent or viscious propensities. Slawinski v. Mocettini (1963) 217 Cal. App. 2d 192, 196, 31 Cal. Rptr. 613 ; Kingen v. Weyant (1957) 148 Cal. App. 2d 656, 661, 307 P.2d 369

Innkeeper is not negligent unless he or she admits to hotel or permits to remain there a person of known violent and disorderly propensities who will probably assault or otherwise mistreat guests. Rahmel v. Lehndorff (1904) 142 Cal.

681, 684, 76 P. 659

Landowner or possessor as required to exercise reasonable care to give warning adequate to enable visitor to avoid harm from third party on premises, or otherwise to protect visitor against it. Taylor v. Centennial Bowl (1966) 65 Cal. 2d 114, 124, 52 Cal. Rptr. 561, 416 P.2d 793

Proprietor has no duty to protect tenant from other tenant when proprietor has no advance warning of other tenant's dangerous propensities; noise complaints against tenant do not put hotel proprietor on notice that tenant would be dangerous. Gray v. Kircher (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 1069, 1074-1075, 236 Cal. Rptr. 891

[6] Express Warranty

Express warranty is stated when innkeeper represents to guest that furnishing is safe and may be used for purpose for which intended, and guest, who relies on representation, is subsequently injured as result of defective condition of furnishing. Stowe v. Fritzie Hotels, Inc. (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 416, 423, 282 P.2d 890 ; Shattuck v. St. Francis Hotel & Apts. (1936) 7 Cal. 2d 358, 360-361, 60 P.2d 855

Occupant who receives assurances that furnishings are safe has right to assume management knew or and had means of knowing that everything required for ordinary use was free from any fault inconsistent with proper use and enjoyment of room; actual knowledge by management not required. Shattuck v. St. Francis Hotel & Apts. (1936) 7 Cal. 2d 358, 360-361, 60 P.2d 855

Fact that word "warrant" is not used in conversation between manager of hotel and occupant is immaterial. Shattuck v. St. Francis Hotel & Apts. (1936) 7 Cal. 2d 358, 361, 60 P.2d 855

Necessary allegations to state cause of action based on breach of express warranty against innkeeper by injured guest. Stowe v. Fritzie Hotels, Inc. (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 416, 423, 282 P.2d 890

Where owner orally represented and warranted furnishing to be safe, owner assumed duty to have premises in safe condition at time they were rented; allegation that furnishing was in unsafe and dangerous condition sufficiently stated breach of duty. Stowe v. Fritzie Hotels, Inc. (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 416, 423, 282 P.2d 890

[7] Innkeeper as Depositary for Hire

[a] Limited Liability Under Civil Code §§ 1859 and 1860

Civ. Code §§ 1859 and 1860 relieve innkeeper of burden of common-law liability as insurer and establish liability as that of depositary for hire. Federal Ins. Co. v. Beverly Hills Hotel Corp. (1962) 202 Cal. App. 2d 120, 123-124, 20 Cal. Rptr. 502 ; Muehlebach v. Paso Robles Springs Hotel (1924) 65 Cal. App. 634, 640, 225 P. 19

Imposition of liability on innkeeper for loss of property of guests requires that loss be caused by innkeeper's own negligence or dishonesty or that of employees. Gardner v. Jonathan Club (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 343, 347-348, 217 P.2d 961

Hotel operator, who was neither negligent nor dishonest, is not liable for theft of jewelry and mink coat stolen from hotel room of guest, where guest made no attempt to deposit jewelry and coat with hotel, made no declaration of their value to hotel, made no attempt to obtain receipt therefor, and there was no consent in writing by hotel operator to undertake additional liability. Federal Ins. Co. v. Beverly Hills Hotel Corp. (1962) 202 Cal. App. 2d 120, 127-128, 20 Cal. Rptr. 502 (applying Code Civ. Proc. § 1859)

Civ. Code §§ 1859, 1860 are designed to cover innkeeper's liability for all articles of personal property carried by guests; those two sections have common purpose and must be read together. Gardner v. Jonathan Club (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 343, 350, 217 P.2d 961 ; Federal Ins. Co. v. Beverly Hills Hotel Corp. (1962) 202 Cal. App. 2d 120, 124, 20 Cal. Rptr. 502 ; Robert Altman, Inc. v. Biltmore Hotel (1961) 190 Cal. App. 2d 274, 279, 11 Cal. Rptr. 838

[b] Agreement to Assume Increased Liability

[i] Written Agreement Required

For protection in excess of statutory limitation, guest must declare value of property to give innkeeper opportunity to confirm estimate of value; liability in excess of statutory limitation is based on innkeeper's written agreement to assume it. Gardner v. Jonathan Club (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 343, 350-351, 217 P.2d 961 ; Robert Altman, Inc. v. Biltmore Hotel (1961) 190 Cal. App. 2d 274, 280, 11 Cal. Rptr. 838

Even if innkeeper was negligent as to care of guest's property, liability limited is set forth in Civ. Code § 1859 unless innkeeper consented in writing to assume greater liability. Providence Washington Ins. Co. v. Hotel Marysville, Inc. (1943) 60 Cal. App. 2d 338, 343, 140 P.2d 698

Where goods remain in guest's possession, Civ. Code § 1859 requires written consent on part of innkeeper to assume greater liability. Gardner v. Jonathan Club (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 343, 351, 217 P.2d 961

"Receipt in writing" exception to Civ. Code § 1860 requires same acknowledgment of greater liability by innkeeper as that required by "written consent" in Civ. Code § 1859. Gardner v. Jonathan Club (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 343, 351, 217 P.2d 961

Civ. Code § 1840 limits liability of bailee to apparent value of article unless depositor informs him or her that it has greater value. Gardner v. Jonathan Club (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 343, 351, 217 P.2d 961

[ii] Written Receipt Imposing Liability

Satisfaction of requirement of "receipt in writing" under Civ. Code § 1860 necessitates an acknowledgment by innkeeper that specific item was received with awareness of its nature and value. Gardner v. Jonathan Club (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 343, 352, 217 P.2d 961 ; Robert Altman, Inc. v. Biltmore Hotel (1961) 190 Cal. App. 2d 274, 279, 11 Cal. Rptr. 838

Requirement for "receipt in writing" is not satisfied by mere acknowledgment of an envelope received without knowledge or information of its contents or their value. Gardner v. Jonathan Club (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 343, 352, 217 P.2d 961

Identification check by which guest could prove title to envelope was not receipt within meaning of Civ. Code § 1860; recovery thus limited to $250. Gardner v. Jonathan Club (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 343, 350, 217 P.2d 961

Parcel checks which were given hotel guests who deposited jewel cases in hotel vault, without disclosing their value to hotel, and which bore no declaration of value, were not being "receipts" within Civ. Code § 1860. Robert Altman, Inc. v. Biltmore Hotel (1961) 190 Cal. App. 2d 274, 279, 11 Cal. Rptr. 838

Hotel employee's testimony, in action for loss of deposited valuables, that depositors' checks were "receipts" that would increase hotel's liability was legal conclusion which did not bind hotel. Robert Altman, Inc. v. Biltmore Hotel (1961)

190 Cal. App. 2d 274, 280, 11 Cal. Rptr. 838

Innkeeper did not "consenting in writing" to assume greater liability within meaning of Civ. Code § 1859 or give "receipt in writing" within meaning of Civ. Code § 1860 merely by giving baggage checks evidencing receipt of baggage. Providence Washington Ins. Co. v. Hotel Marysville, Inc. (1943) 60 Cal. App. 2d 338, 346-348, 140 P.2d 698

Hotel's directing employees not to inquire as to value of articles presented for deposit, and not to accept articles if guest should make declaration of value, does not constitute waiver of Civ. Code § 1860 limiting liability for loss of property of undisclosed value. Robert Altman, Inc. v. Biltmore Hotel (1961) 190 Cal. App. 2d 274, 280, 11 Cal. Rptr. 838

Hotel is under no duty to make inquiry as to value of articles deposited for safekeeping in hotel safe. Robert Altman, Inc. v. Biltmore Hotel (1961) 190 Cal. App. 2d 274, 280, 11 Cal. Rptr. 838

[c] Burden of Proof

Burden of proof rests on bailee to explain failure to redeliver bailor's property if bailor alleges and proves deposit of property with bailee, demand therefor, and failure of bailee to redeliver. Gardner v. Jonathan Club (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 343, 348, 217 P.2d 961

[d] Exemption From Liability

[i] Guest Does Not Have Property Deposited in Available Safe

Civ. Code § 1860 frees innkeeper from all liability if he or she keeps fireproof safe and gives notice of its availability, and if guest does not then deposit property for safekeeping. Gardner v. Jonathan Club (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 343, 350-351, 217 P.2d 961 ; Federal Ins. Co. v. Beverly Hills Hotel Corp. (1962) 202 Cal. App. 2d 120, 124, 20 Cal. Rptr. 502

Civ. Code § 1860 relates to small articles of unusual value that are easily lost or misplaced. Gardner v. Jonathan Club (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 343, 350-351, 217 P.2d 961 ; Federal Ins. Co. v. Beverly Hills Hotel Corp. (1962) 202 Cal. App. 2d 120, 125, 20 Cal. Rptr. 502

Guest did not deposit jewelry cases within meaning of Civ. Code § 1860 where guest did not make known to anyone that they contained other than ordinary baggage. Providence Washington Ins. Co. v. Hotel Marysville, Inc. (1943) 60 Cal. App. 2d 338, 344-345, 140 P.2d 698

Civ. Code § 1860 creates no liability, but expresses only a limitation of liability as established in Civ. Code § 1859. Federal Ins. Co. v. Beverly Hills Hotel Corp. (1962) 202 Cal. App. 2d 120, 124, 20 Cal. Rptr. 502

[ii] Limitation of Liability as to Items Received for Deposit in Safe

Innkeeper is not liable pursuant to Civ. Code § 1860 unless guest deposited property with hotel to be placed in safe and then not for more than $250 unless guest was given receipt in writing. Providence Washington Ins. Co. v. Hotel Marysville, Inc. (1943) 60 Cal. App. 2d 338, 343, 140 P.2d 698

Civ. Code § 1860 limits amount hotel guest can recover, where hotel keeps fireproof safe and gives due notice thereof, to sum of $250 unless guest is given written receipt. Gardner v. Jonathan Club (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 343, 350, 217 P.2d

961 ; Ricketts v. Morehead Co., Inc. (1954) 122 Cal. App. 2d 948, 954, 265 P.2d 963

Guest's recovery for lost property is limited to $250 if "receipt" is not written receipt within meaning of Civ. Code § 1860. Gardner v. Jonathan Club (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 343, 352-353, 217 P.2d 961 ; Robert Altman, Inc. v. Biltmore Hotel (1961) 190 Cal. App. 2d 274, 279, 11 Cal. Rptr. 838

To recover $250 in case where property deposited in hotel safe is lost, plaintiff must prove deposited property was worth that much and that innkeeper was informed or had reason to know that fact. Gardner v. Jonathan Club (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 343, 350, 217 P.2d 961

[e] Fixed Sum Liability

Innkeeper is liable as bailee for hire pursuant to Civ. Code § 1859 if loss or injury to property in guest's room was caused by innkeeper's negligence or dishonesty; absent written consent to greater liability, innkeeper is liable for only amounts specified in Civ. Code § 1859. Federal Ins. Co. v. Beverly Hills Hotel Corp. (1962) 202 Cal. App. 2d 120, 127-128, 20 Cal. Rptr. 502

Liability of innkeeper as set forth in Civ. Code § 1859 is limited to specific sums for certain articles unless innkeeper executes written consent to assume greater liability. Federal Ins. Co. v. Beverly Hills Hotel Corp. (1962) 202 Cal. App. 2d 120, 124, 20 Cal. Rptr. 502

[8] Innkeeper-Guest Relationship

[a] Characteristics of Relationship

Relationship of innkeeper and guest is created where person presents self to world as innkeeper, receives travelers as guests, and solicits continuance of their patronage; traveler, relying on such representations, goes to house to receive entertainment. Pinkerton v. Woodward (1867) 33 Cal. 557, 597

Relationship of proprietor and lodger is demonstrated by facts that owner retains keys to all apartments, has regular access to them for caretaking purposes, furnishes and launders linen, furnishes regular maid service, cleans hallways, carpets, and windows, attends to removal of garbage, and furnishes light, water, heat, and telephone service. Roberts v. Casey (1939) 36 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 767, 772, 93 P.2d 654

[b] Landlord-Tenant Relationship Distinguished

Distinction exists between position of hotel keeper or lodging housekeeper with relation to guest or lodger and that of landlord with relation to tenant; mere guest or lodger is not a tenant. Roberts v. Casey (1939) 36 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 767, 771, 93 P.2d 654

Relationship of landlord and tenant is demonstrated by facts that there are no common kitchens, dining rooms, toilets, or bathrooms, that the suites each have these various facilities, that each suite is distinct unit, and that rent for suite is the same without regard to number of occupants. Roberts v. Casey (1939) 36 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 767, 772, 93 P.2d 654

Rental of motel unit at lower weekly rate than customary and fact that guests did work usually performed by maid was indicative that relationship was more that of landlord and tenant than lodger and proprietor. Green v. Watson (1964) 224 Cal. App. 2d 184, 190-191, 36 Cal. Rptr. 362

"Lodger" has only right to use of premises, subject to landlord's retention of control and right of access; "tenant" has exclusive legal possession of premises and is responsible for their care and condition. Stowe v. Fritzie Hotels, Inc. (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 416, 421, 282 P.2d 890 ; Green v. Watson (1964) 224 Cal. App. 2d 184, 190, 36 Cal. Rptr. 362

Landlord ordinarily has no duty of care with respect to condition of premises after exclusive possession is given to tenant. Stowe v. Fritzie Hotels, Inc. (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 416, 421, 282 P.2d 890

[9] Innkeeper's Lien

Hotel keeper was not guilty of oppression in changing lock on door to one of housekeeping apartments during absence of its occupant in order to protect lien on occupant's personal property. Treesh v. Stone (1921) 51 Cal. App. 708, 711, 197 P. 425

Right of innkeeper to enter premises to assume possession of property to which right to possession exists pursuant to lien law. Van Dorn v. Couch (1937) 21 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 749, 754-756, 64 P.2d 1197 (involving lien under Civ. Code 1861a)

[10] Outdoor Signs

Bus. & Prof. Code § 17564 relating to outdoor signs on motels but not hotels held unconstitutional. Gawzner Corp. v. Minier (1975) 46 Cal. App. 3d 777, 791, 120 Cal. Rptr. 344

[11] Vicarious Liability

Innkeeper is liable for tortious acts of servant. Muehlebach v. Paso Robles Springs Hotel (1924) 65 Cal. App. 634, 648, 225 P. 19

Civ. Code § 1860 does not exempt innkeeper from liability to third persons for own wrongs or wrongs of servant committed in and as part of transaction of business of principal. Muehlebach v. Paso Robles Springs Hotel (1924) 65 Cal. App. 634, 648, 225 P. 19

Civ. Code §§ 1859 and 1860 apply to losses resulting from theft by employees as to losses from negligence. Gardner v. Jonathan Club (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 343, 349, 217 P.2d 961

Innkeeper is not liable for malicious tort of employee on guest committed outside scope of employee's employment. Rahmel v. Lehndorff (1904) 142 Cal. 681, 683, 76 P. 659

Tort of employee which resulted from dispute arising out of employment is one committed within scope of employment; employer was not liable however, where employee's injury was inflicted out of personal malice. Monty v. Orlandi (1959) 169 Cal. App. 2d 620, 623, 337 P.2d 861

Liability of hotel corporations and managers for tortious acts of employees are one and same. Ricketts v. Morehead Co., Inc. (1954) 122 Cal. App. 2d 948, 953-954, 265 P.2d 963

[12] Res Ipsa Loquitur

[a] Nature of Doctrine

Doctrine of res ipsa loquitur applies where accident is of type which ordinarily does not occur unless someone has been negligent, accident was caused by agency or instrumentality within control of defendant, and plaintiff's conduct did not contribute to accident. Vistica v. Presbyterian Hospital (1967) 67 Cal. 2d 465, 469, 62 Cal. Rptr. 577, 432 P.2d 193

Allegations of specific acts of negligence does not deprive plaintiff of benefit of doctrine of res ipsa loquitur. Mintzer v. Wilson (1937) 21 Cal. App. 2d 85, 89, 68 P.2d 370

Inference of negligence created by application of doctrine constitutes evidence to be weighed by jury. Mintzer v. Wilson (1937) 21 Cal. App. 2d 85, 90-91, 68 P.2d 370

Doctrine applies even though more than one inference may be drawn from facts; issue of defendant's negligence is question of fact for jury. Mintzer v. Wilson (1937) 21 Cal. App. 2d 85, 89-90, 68 P.2d 370

[b] Effect

Inference of negligence raised by application of doctrine of res ipsa loquitur shifts burden of going forward with evidence to defendant. Mintzer v. Wilson (1937) 21 Cal. App. 2d 85, 90-91, 68 P.2d 370

[c] When Applied

Doctrine was applied to establish inference of negligence when guest was injured by plaster which fell from hotel room ceiling. Mintzer v. Wilson (1937) 21 Cal. App. 2d 85, 88, 68 P.2d 370

[d] When Not Applied

Doctrine was not applicable in case where hotel did not have exclusive control of furniture and where accident was not one that ordinarily would not happen without negligence of party charged. Larson v. St. Francis Hotel (1948) 83 Cal. App. 2d 210, 212, 188 P.2d 513 (chair thrown from hotel window)

Admission that defendant operated hotel at time is not admission of control and management of hotel furniture so as to warrant application of doctrine. Larson v. St. Francis Hotel (1948) 83 Cal. App. 2d 210, 214, 188 P.2d 513

Doctrine was not applicable in case where even though control over hotel by innkeeper could be established, it could not reasonably be concluded that accident was of kind which did not normally occur in absence of negligence or that it was not due to any voluntary action on part of plaintiff. Snyder v. Hollingbery (1956) 141 Cal. App. 2d 520, 527-528, 297 P.2d 485 (hotel fire)

[13] Right to Exclude

Proprietor of hotel may exclude persons who desire to go from room to room for purpose of talking with guests and distributing printed matter to them. People v. Vaughan (1944) 65 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 844, 852-853, 150 P.2d 964

Guaranty of freedom of speech, press, and religion do not entitle any person to go into hotel or lodging house, over proprietor's objection, and disturb peace of guests by knocking on doors of rooms to preach gospel and distribute religious literature. People v. Vaughan (1944) 65 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 844, 853, 150 P.2d 964

Proprietor of hotel is not permitted to expel guest because of guest's alleged "anti-gay" philosophy; hotel owners are prohibited under Civ. Code § 51 (Unruh Civil Rights Act) from isolating guests according to perceived social or political philosophies. Gray v. Kircher (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 1069, 1075, 236 Cal. Rptr. 891

[14] Violation of Statute

Standard of conduct of reasonable person is established by act of legislature; violation of statute is negligence if plaintiff is one of class of persons whom statute was designed to protect and harm which ensued was of type statute designed to prevent. Berall v. Squaw Valley Lodge of Tahoe (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 540, 544, 11 Cal. Rptr. 316

Court erred in refusing to give instruction on necessity for artificial lighting in apartment houses and hotels as required by former Health & Safety Code § 17819. Berall v. Squaw Valley Lodge of Tahoe (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 540, 545, 11 Cal. Rptr. 316

Innkeeper was not negligent per se where former Health & Safety Code § 16900 [see now Health & Safety Code §§ 19881, 19882 (making sale of new or used unvented heater a misdemeanor)] did not deem use of unvented heater unlawful. Brandwein v. Rodriguez (1955) 133 Cal. App. 2d 433, 436-437, 284 P.2d 130

[15] Visitor of Guest

Guest has right to invite persons to visit inn for lawful purposes, at proper times, and subject to reasonable restrictions and regulations. Goldstein v. Healy (1921) 187 Cal. 206, 210-211, 201 P. 462

_____ [name(s)],	)	(Negligence)
Defendants(s).	)	[Amount demanded _____
	)	(exceeds or does not exceed) $10,000]

Plaintiff alleges:

[EITHER]

1. Defendant _____ [name of corporate owner-innkeeper] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a corporation duly organized and existing under the laws of the State of California, with its principal place of business in _____ [city], _____ County, California [or allege other capacity].

[OR]

1. Defendant _____ [name of individual owner-innkeeper] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a resident of _____ [city], _____ County, California [or allege other capacity and residence].

2. Plaintiff is ignorant of the true names and capacities of defendants sued herein as DOES I-_____, inclusive, and therefore sues these defendants by such fictitious names. Plaintiff will amend this complaint to allege their true names and capacities when ascertained. (Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that each of such fictitiously named defendants is negligently responsible in some manner for the occurrences herein alleged, and that plaintiff's injuries as alleged herein were proximately caused by such negligence.)]

3. At all times mentioned in this complaint, defendant _____ [name of corporate or individual owner-innkeeper] owned, operated, maintained, and controlled a certain _____ [specify, e.g., building or group of buildings] commonly known as the _____ [name of hotel or motel], located at _____ [address] in _____ [city], _____ County, California.

4. [At all times herein mentioned, defendant _____ (name of manager) was the agent and employee of his/her codefendant and in doing all of the things mentioned in this complaint was acting within the scope of his/her authority and employment as such agent and employee and with the permission and consent of his/her codefendant.]

5. On or about _____ [date], _____ [name of plaintiff] was a guest at _____ [name of hotel or motel], occupying room _____ [number of room] for which he/she paid $_____ [amount of rent paid] to _____ [name of individual owner-innkeeper or manager].

6. At or about _____ [time], plaintiff guest began to _____ [specify, e.g., take a shower in room _____ (number of room). When plaintiff turned on the hot water, the faucet assembly came off of the wall and plaintiff was burned by scalding water which spurted out. In his/her attempt to extricate himself/herself and escape from the stream of scalding hot water, plaintiff slipped and fell in the bathtub with great force and violence, causing plaintiff to sustain severe and painful injuries as alleged below].

7. Defendant [s, and each of them,] negligently and carelessly failed to maintain the premises in a reasonably safe condition in that _____ [specify, e.g., the defective shower equipment caused severe and painful injuries to the plaintiff as stated above]. Defendant[s, and each of them,] knew or should have known, that the _____ [specify, e.g., faucet assembly] was in defective condition, and they negligently, carelessly, and recklessly failed to inspect and repair it or warn plaintiff of the defect therein.

8. As a proximate result of the negligence of defendant[s, and each of them,] plaintiff was hurt and injured in his/her health, strength, and activity, sustaining injury to his/her body and shock and injury to his/her nervous system and person, all of which injuries have caused and continue to cause plaintiff great mental, physical, and nervous pain and suffering and plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that such injuries will result in some permanent disability to him/her. As a result of such injuries, plaintiff has suffered general damage according to proof.

9. As a further proximate result of the negligence of defendant[s, and each of them,] plaintiff has incurred and will continue to incur medical and related expenses.

10. At the time of the events described in this complaint, plaintiff was gainfully employed as _____ [state occupation]. As a further proximate result of the negligence of defendant [s, and each of them,] as alleged in this complaint, plaintiff was prevented from attending to his/her usual occupation for the period of _____ [specify], all to his/her loss of earnings. Furthermore, plaintiff's future earning capacity has been diminished and impaired [by an unknown amount to be proved at trial].

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendant[s, and each of them,] as follows:

1. For general damages according to proof;

2. For medical and related expenses according to proof;

3. For loss of earnings according to proof;

4. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

5. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

This complaint is for damages for use by a guest to bring an action for personal injuries based on negligence against an innkeeper where the guest was injured because of a defective condition in his or her hotel or motel room. The form is based on the complaint filed in Wallace v. Speier (1943) 60 Cal. App. 2d 387, 140 P.2d 900 .

[3] Allegations

This complaint alleges:

- The existence of the innkeeper-guest relationship (Paragraph 5) [Stowe v. Fritzie Hotels, Inc. (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 416, 421, 282 P.2d 890] .

- Negligence on the part of defendant innkeeper (Paragraphs 6 and 7) [Stowe v. Fritzie Hotels, Inc. (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 416, 422, 282 P.2d 890] .

- Injury resulting to the guest (Paragraph 8).

- Damages (Paragraphs 8-10) [Civ. Code § 3333].

Although Rowland v. Christian (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 108, 70 Cal. Rptr. 97, 443 P.2d 561 abolished common-law distinctions between guests, invitees, and trespassers as to the duty owed by a possessor of land and held that liability is predicated on ordinary negligence under Civ. Code § 1714, Rowland v. Christian does not generally abrogate the decisions declaring the substantive duties of the possessor of land to invitees nor those establishing the correlative rights and duties of invitees [see Beauchamp v. Los Gatos Golf Course (1969) 273 Cal. App. 2d 20, 25-38, 77 Cal. Rptr. 914 (application of principle of Rowland v. Christian in context of business invitee); see also § 297.13].

[4] Verification

Although verification of this complaint is not required [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(a)], verification will require any answer to be verified if the action is an unlimited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446]. Verification will also preclude a general denial in an unlimited civil case, and will preclude a general denial even in a limited civil case when the action is a claim assigned to a third party for collection [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion of how verifying a complaint affects the answer, see Ch. 26, Answers .

[5] Specification of Damages

In an action to recover damages for personal injury or wrongful death, the complaint must not state the amount of actual or punitive damages demanded [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)].

Otherwise, the amounts claimed as damages for anything other than personal injury or wrongful death (for example, property damage) must be alleged [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)] or an equivalent statement must be included, for example, a statement that the damages for a particular loss or harm sustained [see Civ. Code §§ 3281, 3282] are not known and that leave will be sought to amend the complaint to state the exact amount when ascertained. If this is done, counsel must remember to seek leave to amend the complaint to so state before judgment.

No claim for punitive damages may state an amount sought regardless of the nature of the case or whether it is a limited civil case [Civ. Code § 3295(e)].

For discussion of and forms for requesting and stating the amount of damages sought when they are not stated in the complaint, see Ch. 177, Damages , and Ch. 205, Defaults and Default Judgments [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 425.11, 425.115].

§ 297.61 Allegations--Guest Injured When Struck by Plaster Which Fell From Ceiling in Hotel or Motel Room

[1] FORM Allegations--Guest Injured When Struck by Plaster Which Fell From Ceiling in Hotel or Motel Room

1. On or about _____ [date], _____ [name of plaintiff] was a guest at _____ [name of hotel or motel], occupying room _____ [number of room] for which he/she paid $_____ [amount of rent paid] to _____ [name of individual owner-innkeeper or manager].

2. At or about _____ [time], plaintiff-guest was _____ [describe activity, e.g., asleep in bed] in room _____ [number of room]. At that time, a piece of plaster about _____ [describe size, e.g., 2'x 1'] fell from the ceiling in the _____ [specify, e.g., bedroom] and struck plaintiff on the _____ [describe, e.g., head and shoulders or lower torso] causing plaintiff to sustain severe and painful injuries as alleged below.

3. Defendant[s, and each of them,] negligently and carelessly failed to maintain the premises in a reasonably safe condition in that a piece of plaster fell from the ceiling, struck plaintiff, and caused severe and painful injuries as mentioned above. Defendant[s, and each of them,] knew or should have known, that the ceiling was in defective condition, and they negligently, carelessly, and recklessly failed to inspect and repair it or warn plaintiff of the defect therein.

[2] Use of Form

The allegations in [1], above, are for use in a complaint in an action by a guest who was injured when a piece of plaster from the ceiling of the hotel or motel room fell and struck him or her [see Mintzer v. Wilson (1937) 21 Cal. App. 2d 85, 88, 68 P.2d 370 , see also Evid. Code § 646 (res ipsa loquitur)].

25-297 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 297.62

§ 297.62 Allegations--Guest Injured by Fall in Hole on Portion of Hotel or Motel Premises Used for Ingress and Egress

[1] FORM Allegations--Guest Injured by Fall in Hole on Portion of Hotel or Motel Premises Used for Ingress and Egress

1. At all times mentioned in this complaint, defendants owned, provided, maintained, operated, and controlled the _____ [specify area, e.g., sidewalks and pathways connecting the _____ (motel units or hotel buildings)] for the use of anyone lawfully upon the premises, including plaintiff, as a means of ingress and egress.

2. On or about _____ [date], _____ [name of plaintiff] was a guest at _____ [name of hotel or motel], occupying room _____ [number of room] for which he/she paid $_____ [amount of rent paid] to _____ [name of individual owner-keeper or manager].

3. At or about _____ [time], plaintiff-guest left his/her motel unit with the intention of _____ [specify, e.g., visting a friend who was staying in a nearby unit. A gravel path, illuminated only by indirect light which came from the sides of the building, connected the units. When he/she stepped around the corner of the building, walking toward the gravel path, he/she stepped into an uncovered access hole, fell to the ground, and sustained the severe and painful injuries alleged below. The access hole extended along the building for _____ (number of feet) and was approximately _____ (number of inches) in depth].

4. Defendant[s, and each of them,] carelessly and negligently owned, operated, maintained, and controlled _____ [specify area, e.g., the sidewalks and pathways connecting the _____ (motel units or hotel buildings)] so that the area was dangerous and unsafe for use by guests, including plaintiff, and did not warn guests of the dangerous condition, thereby proximately causing plaintiff to sustain the injuries and damages described below.

[2] Use of Form

The allegations in [1], above, are for use in a complaint in an action by a guest who was injured when he or she fell into a hole near a pathway used for ingress and egress to a hotel or motel [see Sala v. Christensen (1958) 167 Cal. App. 2d 580, 582-583, 334 P.2d 944] .

§ 297.63 Allegations--Visitor of Guest Injured by Fall to Ground Through Rotten Railing

[1] FORM Allegations--Visitor of Guest Injured by Fall to Ground Through Rotten Railing

1. On or about _____ [date], _____ [name of plaintiff] was a guest at _____ [name of hotel or motel], occupying living quarters for which he/she paid $_____ [amount of rent paid] to _____ [name of sole owner-innkeeper or manager]. _____ [Name of plaintiff] had come to the _____ [hotel or motel] to visit _____ [name of guest] at his/her invitation and request.

2. Defendant[s, and each of them,] maintained as part of the summer resort and _____ [hotel or motel], as living quarters for its guests and their visitors, a tent set on a wooden platform. In order to prevent guests or visitors on the platform from falling, and to protect persons who were on the platform, defendant(s) had erected, placed, and maintained on the outer edge of it _____ [describe, e.g., a railing made of wood about three to four inches in diameter] which was fastened upon the platform about _____ [describe, e.g., three to four feet above the floor of the platform by means of timbers and braces].

3. On or about _____ [date], at or about _____ [time], plaintiff was present on the platform at the invitation and request of _____ [name of guest]. Plaintiff was _____ [describe activity, e.g., standing and talking to _____ (name of guest) with his/her back to the railing and with hands resting lightly on it as protection against falling over and off].

4. Defendant[s, and each of them,] had so negligently and carelessly failed to maintain the premises in a reasonably safe condition that the wooden railing was in a state of rottenness and decomposition. As a proximate result of defendant's(s') negligence and carelessness, the railing gave way and broke, causing plaintiff to fall a distance of _____ [number of feet] to the ground and causing plaintiff to strike his/her _____ [specify, e.g., head and shoulders] and to sustain severe and painful injuries as alleged below. Defendant(s) knew, or should have known, that the railing was in defective condition, and had negligently, carelessly, and recklessly failed to inspect and repair it or warn plaintiff of the defect therein.

[2] Use of Form

The allegations in [1], above, are for use in a complaint in an action by visitor of guest who was injured when he/she fell through a rotten railing [see Goldstein v. Healy (1921) 187 Cal. 206, 210-211, 201 P. 462 (guest has right to invite persons to visit inn for lawful purposes, at proper times, and subject to reasonable restrictions and regulations)].

§ 297.64 Allegations--Guest Injured When Knocked to Ground by Employee Pushing Luggage Cart

[1] FORM Allegations--Guest Injured When Knocked to Ground by Employee Pushing Luggage Cart

1. At all times mentioned, defendant _____ [name of employee] was employed by defendant _____ [name of corporate or individual owner-innkeeper] in the capacity of _____[specify type of job, e.g., bellhop] and was the agent and employee of his/her codefendant and, in doing all of the things mentioned in this complaint, was acting within the scope of his/her authority and employment as such agent and employee and with the permission and consent of his/her codefendant.

2. On or about _____ [date], at or about _____ [time], plaintiff was _____ [describe location in hotel or motel, e.g., standing in the lobby of the _____ (hotel or motel) at or near the entrance to the elevators]. At that time and place, defendant _____ [type of employee, e.g., bellhop], acting within the scope and course of his/her employment and agency as _____ [specify, e.g., a bellhop], propelled a luggage cart across the lobby toward the elevators near which plaintiff was standing.

3. Defendant _____ [name of bellhop or other employee] negligently and carelessly failed to warn members of the public in the lobby, including plaintiff, concerning the approach of the cart. Defendant failed to take proper precautions while operating the cart and negligently and carelessly operated and propelled the cart so as to cause it to strike plaintiff, knock him/her to the floor of the lobby, and cause the severe and painful injuries alleged below.

[2] Use of Form

The allegations in [1], above, are for use in a complaint in an action by a guest against an innkeeper and his/her employee when the guest was knocked down and injured by a luggage cart operated by the employee.

[2] Use of Form

The complaint for damages for wrongful death in [1], above, is for use by the persons who are authorized to bring a cause of action under Code Civ. Proc. § 377.60 [see [6], below] against an innkeeper who negligently failed to maintain a gas heater in a hotel or motel room [see Brandwein v. Rodriguez (1955) 133 Cal. App. 2d 433, 436-437, 284 P.2d 130 (innkeeper was not negligent per se because former Health & Safety Code § 16900 (now see Health & Safety Code §§ 19881, 19882, making sale of new or used unvented heater a misdemeanor did not make use of unvented heater unlawful)].

The form is based on the complaint filed in Brandwein v. Rodriguez (1955) 133 Cal. App. 2d 433, 284 P.2d 130 .

[3] Allegations

The complaint alleges the following:

- The plaintiff's relationship to the decedent (Paragraph 1) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 377.60; for discussion, see [6], below].

- The existence of the innkeeper-guest relationship (Paragraph 6) [see Stowe v. Fritzie Hotels, Inc. (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 416, 421, 282 P.2d 890] .

- Negligence on the part of defendant innkeeper (Paragraph 7) [see Brandwein v. Rodriguez (1955) 133 Cal. App. 2d 433, 435-437, 284 P.2d 130] .

- The death of decedent as a proximate result of negligence of the innkeeper (Paragraph 8) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 377.60].

- Damages (Paragraphs 9-11) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 377.61].

[4] Specification of Damages

In an action to recover damages for personal injury or wrongful death, the complaint must not state the amount of actual or punitive damages demanded [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)].

Otherwise, the amounts claimed as damages for anything other than personal injury or wrongful death (for example, property damage) must be alleged [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)] or an equivalent statement must be included, for example, a statement that the damages for a particular loss or harm sustained [see Civ. Code §§ 3281, 3282] are not known and that leave will be sought to amend the complaint to state the exact amount when ascertained. If this is done, counsel must remember to seek leave to amend the complaint to so state before judgment.

For discussion of and forms for requesting and stating the amount of damages sought when they are not stated in the complaint, see Ch. 177, Damages , and Ch. 205, Defaults and Default Judgments [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 425.11, 425.115].

No claim for punitive damages may state an amount sought regardless of the nature of the case or whether it is a limited civil case [Civ. Code § 3295(e)]. Punitive damages generally are not recoverable in a wrongful death action [see Ford Motor Co. v. Superior Court (1981) 120 Cal. App. 3d 748, 751-753, 175 Cal. Rptr. 39] . For discussion regarding when punitive damages may be recovered in such cases, see Ch. 181, Death and Survival Actions .

[5] Wrongful Death and Survival Actions

A cause of action for the death of a person caused by the wrongful act or neglect of another may be asserted by the persons listed in Code Civ. Proc. § 377.60 [see [6], below]. If the defendant is deceased, the cause of action survives and may be asserted against the decedent's personal representative [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 377.20, 377.40, 377.60]. Damages may be awarded that, under all the circumstances of the case, may be just, but may not include damages recoverable under Code Civ. Proc. § 377.34 (survival actions) [Code Civ. Proc. § 377.61].

A survival action may be joined with a wrongful death action arising out of the same wrongful act or neglect [see Code Civ. Proc. § 377.62(a)]. A wrongful death action and an action under Code Civ. Proc. § 377.31 (continuation of action by plaintiff's personal representive or successor in interest after plaintiff's death) that arises out of the same wrongful act or neglect may be consolidated for trial as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 1048 [Code Civ. Proc. § 377.62(a)]. For discussion and forms relating to consolidation generally, see Ch. 125, Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions .

[6] Who May Bring Wrongful Death Action

The persons who may assert a cause of action for the death of a person caused by the wrongful act or neglect of another are the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 377.60; see Ch. 181, Death and Survival Actions]:

- The decedent's surviving spouse, domestic partner, children, and issue of deceased children, or, if there is no surviving issue of the decedent, the persons, including the surviving spouse, who would be entitled to the property of the decedent by intestate succession;

- Whether or not qualified under subparagraph (a), above, if they were dependent on the decedent, the putative spouse, children of the putative spouse, stepchildren, or parents; and

- A minor, whether or not qualified under subparagraph (a) or (b), above, if, at the time of the decedent's death, the minor resided for the previous 180 days in the decedent's household and was dependent on the decedent for one half or more of the minor's support.

In addition, a cause of action for wrongful death may be asserted by the personal representative on behalf the persons described above [Code Civ. Proc. § 377.60].

[7] Cross References

For discussion of wrongful death actions and a form of complaint with which the decedent's personal representative may bring an action, see Ch. 181, Death and Survival Actions .

§ 297.66 Allegations--Guest's Death Caused by Asphyxiation Due to Inadequate Fire Escapes in Hotel

[1] FORM Allegations--Guest's Death Caused by Asphyxiation Due to Inadequate Fire Escapes in Hotel

1. On or about _____ [date], decedent was a guest at _____[name of hotel], occupying room _____ [number of room] located on the _____ [number of floor] floor of the building and for which decedent had paid advance rent of $_____ [amount of rent paid] for a period of _____ [number of days] to _____ [name of individual owner-innkeeper or manager].

2. Defendant[s, and each of them,] carelessly and negligently maintained and operated the _____ [name of hotel] building, in that he/she/they neglected and failed to provide adequate and proper fire escapes from the buildings, or adequate and sufficient artificial light in the hallways and public passageways, and in that he/she/they negligently and carelessly barred and obstructed the way to fire escapes from the building.

3. On or about _____ [date], at or about the hour of _____ [time], while decedent was _____ [describe activity, e.g., sleeping], a fire began in the _____ [name of hotel] premises and spread rapidly through the building. As a proximate result of the carelessness and negligence of defendant[s, and each of them,] in the maintenance and operation of the hotel, as mentioned above, decedent was prevented from making his/her escape from the building, and while attempting to make his/her escape, and to save his/her life, decedent was overcome by smoke and asphyxiated and died.

[2] Use of Form

The allegations in [1], above, are for use in a complaint in a wrongful death action brought by a decedent guest's heirs against an innkeeper who negligently failed to maintain adequate fire escapes in a hotel [see Roxas v. Gogna (1940) 41 Cal. App. 2d 234, 241, 106 P.2d 227] .

3. [Defendant's ownership of hotel or motel. See § 297.60[1], Paragraph 3.]

4. [Agency allegation. See § 297.60[1], Paragraph 4.]

5. On or about _____ [date], _____ [name of plaintiff] and _____ [name of assailant guest] were guests at _____ [name of hotel or motel]. Plaintiff occupied room _____ [room number], for which plaintiff paid $_____ [amount of rent paid] to _____ [name of individual owner-innkeeper or manager]. _____ [Name of assailant guest] occupied room _____ [room number].

6. At all times mentioned in this complaint, _____ [name of assailant guest] was _____ [describe, e.g., mentally deranged or obstreperously drunk] and a person of violent, vicious, and dangerous character and disposition. At all times mentioned, defendant[s, and each of them] knew or in the exercise of reasonable care, should have known, that the presence of _____ [name of assailant guest] in the _____ [hotel or motel] would constitute a danger and hazard to guests at the _____ [hotel or motel], but carelessly and negligently failed to take reasonable precautions to prevent an assault by _____ [name of assailant guest] on plaintiff on the _____ [hotel or motel] premises.

7. On or about _____ [date], while plaintiff was _____ [describe activity, e.g., sitting in the lobby writing post cards], defendant[s, and each of them,] so negligently and carelessly operated, managed, and controlled the _____ [hotel or motel] as to permit the _____ [assailant guest] to enter the premises, to remain therein for _____ [length of time assailant was present] and to attack and stab plaintiff in a brutal and unprovoked manner, thereby proximately causing injuries and damages to plaintiff as alleged below.

8. [Injuries and damages. See § 297.60, Paragraphs 8-10.]

SECOND CAUSE OF ACTION
(Assault and Battery; Against _____ [name of assailant])

1. Plaintiff refers to and herein incorporates Paragraphs 1-5, inclusive, of the First Cause of Action.

2. Defendant _____ [name of assailant] is and at all times mentioned was a resident of _____ County, California.

3. On or about _____ [date], at _____ [name of hotel or motel] in _____ [city], California, while plaintiff was _____ [describe activity, e.g., sitting in the lobby writing post cards], _____ [name of defendant assailant] entered the premises and assaulted and battered plaintiff by _____ [specify e.g., threatening to stab plaintiff and then violently stabbing him/her in and about the neck and shoulders] in a brutal and unprovoked manner.

4. By reason of the acts of defendant _____ [name of assailant] as alleged above, plaintiff was placed in great fear for his/her life and physical well being.

5. By reason of the wrongful and malicious acts of defendant _____ [name of defendant assailant] and of the fright caused plaintiff, plaintiff has suffered extreme and severe mental anguish and physical pain and has been injured in mind and body as follows: _____ [describe], all to plaintiff's damage.

6. By reason of the wrongful and malicious acts of defendant _____ [name of assailant], plaintiff was required to and did expend money and incur obligations for medical services, drugs, and sundries reasonably required in the treatment and relief of the _____ (emotional disturbance or injuries or both) he/she sustained.

7. By reason of the wrongful acts of defendant _____ [name of assailant], plaintiff was prevented from attending to his/her usual _____ [occupation or profession] as a _____ [specify] and thereby lost earnings. Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges, that he/she will thereby be prevented from attending to his/her usual _____ [occupation or profession] for a period in the future which he/she cannot now ascertain, and will thereby sustain further loss of earnings.

8. The defendant's acts were willful, wanton, malicious, and oppressive and justify the awarding of exemplary and punitive damages.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendants, and each of them, as follows:

On the FIRST CAUSE OF ACTION against innkeeper:

1. For general damages;

2. For medical and related expenses according to proof;

3. For loss of earnings according to proof;

On the SECOND CAUSE OF ACTION against assailant:

4. For general damages;

5. For medical and related expenses according to proof;

6. For loss of earnings according to proof;

7. For exemplary and punitive damages.

On all CAUSES OF ACTION:

8. For costs of suit herein incurred.

9. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

This complaint is for compensatory, exemplary, and punitive damages based on negligence and assault and battery brought by a guest against an innkeeper and an assailant where the plaintiff guest was injured as a result of an assault on him or her by another guest [see Civ. Code § 43(right of protection from bodily restraint or harm)].

[3] Allegations of Assault and Battery

A cause of action for battery should allege a willful and unlawful use of force or violence on the person of another (Paragraph 3) [Penal Code § 242; Bartosh v. Banning (1967) 251 Cal. App. 2d 378, 386, 59 Cal. Rptr. 382] , injury (Paragraphs 4, 5) [see Civ. Code § 3281], and damages (Paragraphs 7-8) [see Civ. Code §§ 3294 (exemplary and punitive damages), 3333 (compensatory damages)].

3. [Defendant's ownership of hotel or motel. See § 297.60[1], Paragraph 3.]

4. [Agency allegation. See § 297.60[1], Paragraph 4.]

5. On or about _____ [date], _____ [name of plaintiff] was a guest at _____ [name of hotel or motel], occupying room _____ [number of room] for which he/she paid $_____ [amount of rent paid] to _____ [name of individual owner-innkeeper or manager].

6. At all times mentioned, plaintiff was the owner of a _____ [describe article which was the subject of bailment, e.g., a leather sample case containing jewelry].

7. On or about _____ [date], and while a guest of the _____ [hotel or motel], plaintiff deposited the _____ [describe article which was the subject of bailment, e.g., leather sample case containing jewelry] with defendant _____ [name of individual owner-innkeeper or manager] for safekeeping in defendant's safe.

8. At the time of depositing the _____ [specify, e.g., jewelry case] with defendant _____ [name of individual owner-innkeeper or manager], plaintiff declared to defendant the value of the _____ [specify, e.g., jewelry case] to be $_____.

9. At the time of depositing the _____ [specify, e.g., jewelry case] with defendant _____ [name], plaintiff received from defendant for the property a receipt in writing, a copy of which is attached as Exhibit A and made a part hereof. Defendant thereby consented in writing to assume liability for property of the value of $_____ [amount for which liability was assumed]. As a part of the contract contained in the receipt, defendant promised to redeliver the property on the presentation of the receipt.

10. On or about _____ [date], at or about _____ [time], plaintiff presented the written receipt to defendant _____ [name] and made demand on the defendant for the return of the _____ [specify, e.g., jewelry case] but defendant was negligent and careless in failing to take precautions customary and usual in the _____ [hotel or motel] business to safeguard plaintiff guest's property and as a result defendant failed and refused to redeliver and return the _____ [specify, e.g., jewelry case] to plaintiff, and still fails and refuses to do so.

11. As a direct and proximate result of the negligence and carelessness of defendant [s, and each of them,] and of the loss proximately caused, the _____ [specify, e.g., jewelry case] became wholly lost to plaintiff to his/her damage in the sum of $_____.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendant [s, and each of them,] as follows:

1. For damages in the sum of $_____;

2. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

3. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

This complaint is for damages for loss of personal property based on Civ. Code § 1860 brought by a guest against an innkeeper as a depositary for hire in a case where the guest deposits valuables with the innkeeper in a fireproof safe, and because of the innkeeper's negligence, he or she fails to return the valuables to the guest on his or her demand.

Because the inkeeper's liability is restricted to $500 unless the innkeeper gives the guest a written receipt for the property accepting greater liability [see Civ. Code § 1860; Gardner v. Jonathan Club (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 343, 350-352, 217 P.2d 961 ; for discussion, see 297.19[3][b], [4]], this complaint is for use only when damages exceed the specified limit and the innkeeper has consented to a greater liability. When the limitation applies, the plaintiff should seek recovery in small claims court. For a discussion of the procedures involved and for forms of papers filed, see Ch. 526, Small Claims .

[3] Allegations

The complaint alleges:

- Defendant's status as innkeeper with duty of ordinary care as depositary for hire to safeguard guest's personal property (Paragraph 3) [see Civ. Code §§ 1714(a), 1852, 1860].

- Plaintiff's status as a paying guest (Paragraph 5) [see Gardner v. Jonathan Club (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 343, 347-348, 217 P.2d 961] .

- That plaintiff owned and deposited with defendant articles declared to be of unusual value for safe keeping in defendant's fire proof safe (Paragraphs 6-8) [see Gardner v. Jonathan Club (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 343, 353, 217 P.2d 961 ; Providence Washington Ins. Co. v. Hotel Marysville, Inc. (1943) 60 Cal. App. 2d 338, 344, 140 P.2d 698] .

- That defendant gave plaintiff a receipt in writing for the article (Paragraph 9) [Robert Altman, Inc. v. Biltmore Hotel (1961) 190 Cal. App. 2d 274, 279, 11 Cal. Rptr. 838] .

- That plaintiff demanded the return of the article (Paragraph 10) [Gardner v. Jonathan Club (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 343, 348, 217 P.2d 961] .

- That defendant's failure to redeliver article to plaintiff was proximately caused by defendant's negligence (Paragraphs 10 and 11) [see Gardner v. Jonathan Club (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 343, 349, 217

P.2d 961] .

- Damages (Paragraph 11).

[4] Interest on Lost Property

When a guest sues for damages for failure of an innkeeper to return property deposited for safekeeping, the plaintiff, having established a right to recover judgment, is entitled to interest from the date of his or her demand for the return of the property [see Civ. Code § 3287; see also Greer v. Los Angeles Athletic Club (1927) 84 Cal. App. 272, 286-287, 258 P. 155 (disapproved on another point in Gardner v. Jonathan Club (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 343, 352, 217 P.2d 961)].

1. Plaintiff _____[name] hereby applies for a writ of possession [ex parte], pursuant to Civil Code Section 1861.5, on the following property: _____ [general description of the property, e.g., a small suitcase containing two woolen suits], valued at _____ [statement of property value].

2. _____ [State basis for claim, e.g., From _____ (date), until _____ (date), _____ (name of guest) was a lodger at _____ (name of hotel) and the rent due and unpaid for that time was the sum of $_____ (amount of rent due and owing)].

3. Plaintiff _____ [name] is an innkeeper within the meaning of Civil Code Section 1861.1 and under Civil Code Section 1861 has a lien on the baggage of defendant _____ [name of guest] for the proper charges due from defendant as described above. Plaintiff has filed an action to recover such sum and is entitled under Civil Code Section 1861 to take possession of the property pursuant to a writ of possession.

[4. If the writ is being applied for ex parte, add: This application for a writ of possession of the above-described property is hereby made ex parte because:

(a) The property is not necessary for the support of defendant or his/her family;

(b) There is an immediate danger that the property will become unavailable to levy by reason of being _____ (transferred or concealed or removed from the state or removed from the premises of the _____ (motel or hotel or inn or boardinghouse) or substantially impaired in value by _____ (acts of destruction or failure to take care of the property in a reasonable manner)), since _____ (state basis for belief in unavailability of property, e.g., defendant _____ (name) has threatened to remove the baggage from the hotel premises). (c) There is probable validity for plaintiff's claim in this action in that _____ (specify).]

[5. If a temporary restraining order is sought, add: Plaintiff hereby also applies for a temporary restraining order prohibiting defendant from (doing any and all of the following): _____ (transferring any interest in the property described above by sale, pledge, or grant of security interest, or otherwise disposing of or encumbering the property; and/or concealing or otherwise removing the property in such a manner as to make it less available to seizure by the levying officer; and/or impairing the value of the property either by acts of destruction or by failure to care for the property in a reasonable manner). (_____ (Specify precautions, if needed).) Such an order is necessary in that _____ (state grounds justifying issuance of temporary restraining order).]

[6. If temporary restraining order is sought ex parte, add: This temporary restraining order is hereby sought ex parte since:

(a) There is an immediate danger that the above-described property may become unavailable to levy by reason of being _____ (transferred or concealed or removed or substantially impaired in value);

(b) There is a probable validity that plaintiff will prevail in this action in that _____ (specify); and

[2] Use of Form

The application in [1], above, may be used by an innkeeper to obtain a writ of possession of a guest's or tenant's baggage or other property pursuant to Civ. Code § 1861.5 and, if desired, a temporary restraining order. The application may be filed by the plaintiff at the time of filing a complaint for recovery of the money or charges owed by the defendant [see § 297.74] or at any time thereafter.

A writ of possession is generally issued only after a hearing on a noticed motion [for related forms, see § 297.71-297.73], although it may also be issued ex parte. A temporary restraining order may be applied for at or after the time plaintiff files the application for a writ of possession, and it may be applied for ex parte [see the discussion under 297.70[4], below].

The court will not issue a writ of possession or a temporary restraining order until the plaintiff has filed with the court a written undertaking [Civ. Code § 1861.21; see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 995.310, 995.320].

[3] Contents of Application

The contents of an application for a writ of possession are specified in Civ. Code §§ 1861.5 and 1861.6 (ex parte application). The application includes [Civ. Code § 1861.5]:

- A showing of the basis of the plaintiff's claim, including a showing that the plaintiff is entitled to possession of the property claimed pursuant to an innkeeper's lien.
- A general description of the property and a statement of its value.
- A statement of the amount of money claimed to be owed by the guest, lodger, tenant, or boarder.

[4] Procedure for Obtaining Writ

[a] After Hearing on Noticed Motion

A writ of possession is generally issued after a hearing on a noticed motion [Civ. Code § 1861.6]. Prior to this hearing, the defendant should be served with a copy of the summons and complaint [see § 297.69], notice of application and hearing [see § 297.71], and a copy of the application and any affidavit filed in support of it [Civ. Code § 1861.7].

Once a hearing is held and the writ issued, the levying officer may levy on the property. At the time of levy, the levying officer will deliver to the person in possession of the property a copy of the writ of possession, with a copy of the plaintiff's undertaking attached [Civ. Code § 1861.18(a); see § 297.73]. If no one is in possession of the property at the time of levy, the levying officer should subsequently serve the writ and attached undertaking on the defendant [Civ. Code § 1861.18(b)].

For a discussion of the seizure of the property by the levying officer and the procedures to be followed by plaintiff, defendant, and the levying officer in regard to and following such seizure, see § 297.73[4] et seq.

[b] Ex Parte Issuance of Writ

If the writ is to be issued ex parte, the application must also include a showing that [Civ. Code § 1861.6]:

- The property is not necessary for the support of the defendant or his/her family.

- There is an immediate danger that the property will become unavailable to levy by reason of being transferred, concealed, or removed from the premises of the motel, hotel, inn, boardinghouse, or lodginghouse, or will become substantially impaired in value by acts of destruction or by failure to take care of the property in a reasonable manner.

- The ex parte issuance of a writ of possession is necessary to protect the property.

- There is probable validity for the plaintiff's claim.

If an ex parte writ has been issued, a copy of the summons and complaint, a copy of the application for issuance of the writ and any supporting affidavit, and a notice informing defendant of his or her rights must be served on defendant [Civ. Code § 1861.6; see Civ. Code § 1861.8 (contents of notice); for a form of notice of application and hearing that may be adapted to give notice after ex parte issuance of a writ, see § 297.73]. Section 1861.6 also requires service of these papers on any other person required by Civ. Code § 1861.8 to be served with a writ of possession, but Section 1861.8 does not appear to require service on anyone other than the defendant. The reference may be intended to refer to Civ. Code § 1861.18, which requires delivery of the writ to the person in possession of the property, or if no one is in possession of the property, requires service on the defendant.

A defendant whose property has been taken pursuant to an ex parte writ of possession may make a noticed motion for an order that the writ be quashed and any property levied on pursuant to the writ be released. Pending the hearing of the defendant's application, the court may order that delivery pursuant to Civ. Code § 1861.19 of any property previously levied on be stayed. If, after hearing, the court determines that plaintiff is not entitled to a writ of possession, the court will quash the writ and order the release and redelivery of any property previously levied on, and the award of damages to defendant for any damages sustained by the defendant which were proximately caused by the levy and the loss of possession of the property pursuant to such levy [Civ. Code § 1861.6].

[c] Temporary Restraining Order

At or after the time he or she files an application for a writ of possession the plaintiff may apply for a temporary restraining order. The application must contain a statement of the grounds justifying the issuance of a temporary restraining order, and it may issue ex parte if:

- The plaintiff establishes the probable validity of his or her claim and entitlement to possession of the property pursuant to the innkeeper's lien [Civ. Code § 1861];

- The plaintiff has provided an undertaking as required by Civ. Code § 1861.21; and

- The plaintiff has established the probable validity that there is an immediate danger that the property claimed will become unavailable to levy [Civ. Code § 1861.16].

The application should be verified in either case. The practical use of a temporary restraining order rather than an ex parte issuance of the writ of possession seems limited to those situations in which the property is necessary for the support of the defendant or his or her family and ex parte issuance of the writ could therefore be unavailable [see Civ. Code §§ 1861.6, 1861.16].

If at the hearing on the issuance of the writ of possession the court determines that the plaintiff is not entitled to a writ of possession, the court will dissolve the temporary restraining order; otherwise, the court may issue a preliminary injunction to remain in effect until the property claimed is seized pursuant to the writ of possession [Civ. Code § 1861.16(c)].

[2] Use of Form

The notice of application and hearing in [1], above, is to be used by a plaintiff innkeeper to inform the defendant of his or her application for a writ of possession of defendant's baggage or other property in all cases in which the requirements for an ex parte issuance of the writ are not established [Civ. Code § 1861.6].

[3] Contents

The contents of the notice of application and hearing are specified in Civ. Code § 1861.8. The notice must inform the defendant of all of the following:

- The hearing will be held at a place and at a time to be specified in the notice, on plaintiff's application for writ of possession.

- The writ will be issued if the court finds that the plaintiff's claim has probable validity and the other requirements for issue in the writ are established. The hearing is not for the purpose of determining whether the claim is actually valid; such determination will be made in subsequent proceedings in the action.

- If the defendant desires to oppose the issuance of the writ, he or she should file with the court either an affidavit providing evidence sufficient to defeat the plaintiff's right to issuance of the writ, or an undertaking to stay the delivery of the property.

- The notice should also contain the following statement in 10-point bold type: IF YOU BELIEVE THE PLAINTIFF MAY NOT BE ENTITLED TO POSSESSION OF THE PROPERTY CLAIMED, YOU MAY WISH TO SEEK THE ADVICE OF AN ATTORNEY. SUCH ATTORNEY SHOULD BE CONSULTED PROMPTLY SO THAT HE OR SHE MAY ASSIST YOU BEFORE THE TIME SET

FOR THE HEARING.

[4] Service of Papers Prior to Hearing

Prior to the hearing required by Civ. Code § 1861.6(a) and referred to in this Notice of Application and Hearing, the defendant must be served with, in addition to this notice, (a) a copy of the summons and complaint and (b) a copy of the application and any affidavit filed in support of it [Civ. Code § 1861.7].

[5] Filing of Affidavits and Points and Authorities

Each party should file with the court and serve on the other party any affidavits and points and authorities intended to be relied on at the hearing. At the hearing, the court will then make its determination on the basis of the pleadings and other papers in the record, although, on good cause shown, it may receive and consider additional evidence and authority produced at the hearing, or continue the hearing for the production of additional evidence and the filing of other affidavits or points and authorities [Civ. Code § 1861.9].

[6] Liability of Plaintiff

If the plaintiff fails to recover judgment in the action, he or she must redeliver the property to the defendant, and be liable for all damages sustained by the defendant which are proximately caused by operation of the temporary restraining order and preliminary injunction, if any, the levy of the writ of possession, and the loss of possession of the property pursuant to the levy of the writ of possession [Civ. Code § 1861.15].

[2] Use of Form

The order for a writ of possession in [1], above, is used when the court has found that plaintiff has established the probable validity of his or her claim to possession of the property of the tenant, boarder, or lodger; that the property which is described in the application for the writ is located on the premises of the motel, hotel, boardinghouse or lodginghouse; and that plaintiff has provided an undertaking as required by Civ. Code § 1861.21 [Civ. Code § 1861.10]. For a discussion of when the order may be issued ex parte see § 297.70[2] et seq., see also Civ. Code § 1861.6.

[3] Requirement of Written Undertaking

The court may not issue a writ of possession until the plaintiff has filed with the court a written undertaking. The undertaking must provide that the sureties are bound to the defendant in an amount not less than twice the value of the property as determined by the court, for the return of the property to the defendant, if the return thereof is ordered, and for the payment to him or her of any sum he or she may recover against the plaintiff [Civ. Code § 1861.21].

The undertaking must be executed by two or more sufficient personal sureties or by one sufficient admitted surety insurer or by any combination of sufficient personal sureties and admitted surety insurers [see Code Civ. Proc. § 995.310]. It must be in writing and signed by the sureties under oath [see Code Civ. Proc. § 995.320].

NOTICE TO DEFENDANT

You have the right to except to the plaintiff's undertaking, a copy of which undertaking is attached to this writ, or to obtain the delivery of the property by filing an undertaking as prescribed by Section 1861.22 of the Civil Code.

[2] Use of Form

The writ of possession in [1], above, may be used to direct the levying officer within whose jurisdiction defendant's baggage or other property is located to levy on the property and hold it until it is released or sold pursuant to Civ. Code § 1861.19.

[3] Contents

The contents of the writ of possession are specified in Civ. Code § 1861.12. The writ of possession must meet the following requirements:

- Be directed to the levying officer within whose jurisdiction the property is located.

- Generally describe the property to be seized.

- Specify the apartment, motel, or other boarding premises that may be entered to take possession of the property, or some part of it.

- Direct the levying officer to levy on the property pursuant to Civ. Code § 1861.18 if found on the described premises, and to retain it in his custody until released or sold pursuant to Civ. Code § 1861.19.

- Inform the defendant that he or she has the right to except to the plaintiff's undertaking, a copy of which should be attached to the writ, or to obtain the delivery of the property by filing an undertaking as prescribed by Civ. Code § 1861.22.

[4] Ex Parte Issuance of Writ of Possession

Any defendant whose property has been taken pursuant to a writ issued ex parte may apply for an order that the writ be quashed and any property levied on pursuant to the writ be released. The application should be made by noticed motion [Civ. Code § 1861.6(b)]. For a discussion of the procedure involved in ex parte issuance of a writ of possession, see § 297.70[2] et seq..

[5] Plaintiff's Failure to Recover Judgment

If the plaintiff fails to recover judgment in the action, he or she must redeliver the seized property to the defendant. He or she will be held liable for all damages sustained by the defendant which were proximately caused by operation of the temporary restraining order and preliminary injunction, if any, the levy of the writ of possession, and the loss of possession of the property pursuant to the levy of the writ of possession [Civ. Code § 1861.15].

[6] Seizure of Property by Levying Officer

At the time of levy, the levying officer will deliver to the person in possession of the property a copy of this writ of possession, with a copy of the plaintiff's undertaking attached. If no one is in possession of the property at the time of levy, the levying officer will subsequently serve the writ and attached undertaking on the defendant. [Civ. Code § 1861.18].

After the levying officer takes possession of the property pursuant to this writ of possession, he or she must keep the property in a secure place, and, if notice of the filing of an undertaking for redelivery or notice of exception to the plaintiff's sureties is not received by the levying officer within 10 days, he or she shall then deliver the property to the plaintiff [Civ. Code § 1861.19].

[7] Defendant's Undertaking for Redelivery

The defendant may prevent the plaintiff from taking possession of property, pursuant to a writ of possession, or may regain possession of property so taken, by filing with the court in which the action was brought an undertaking in an amount equal to the amount of the plaintiff's undertaking required by Civ. Code § 1861.21 [Civ. Code § 1861.22(a)].

[8] Exception to Plaintiff's Sureties

The defendant may object to the plaintiff's sureties not later than 10 days after levy of the writ of possession by filing with the court in which the action was brought a Notice of Exception to Sureties and mailing a copy ofthe notice to the levying officer and to the plaintiff. If the plaintiff's sureties fail to justify at the time and place appointed or do not qualify, the court will vacate the writ of possession and any temporary restraining order or preliminary injunction and, if levy was occurred, order the levying officer or the plaintiff to return the property to the plaintiff [Civ. Code § 1821.23].

[1] FORM Proceedings for Issuance of Writ of Possession of Baggage or Other Property--Temporary Restraining Order

[Caption. As on papers previously filed in action.]

1. The application of plaintiff _____ [name] for a temporary restraining order having been considered by the court, the court finds the following:

(a) Plaintiff has filed an undertaking as required by Civ. Code § 1861.21;

(b) The plaintiff has established the probable validity of his/her claim and entitlement to possession of the property described below, pursuant to an innkeepers' lien: _____ [general description of the property, e.g., a small suitcase containing two wool suits];

(c) The plaintiff has established the probable validity that there is an immedite danger that the property claimed may become _____ [either unavailable to levy by being _____ [transferred or concealed or removed) or substantially impaired in value].

2. THEREFORE, IT IS ORDERED that defendant _____ [name] is restrained from doing the following: _____

a. Transferring any interest by sale, pledge, or grant of security interest, or otherwise disposing of or encumbering the following property: _____ (general description of property).

[AND/OR]

b. Concealing or otherwise removing the following property in such manner as to make it less available to seizure by the levying officer: _____ (general description of property).

[AND/OR]

c. Impairing the value of the followng property: _____ (general description of property) either by acts of destruction or by failure to care for the property in a reasonable manner, including but not limited to the following acts: _____.

3. It is further ordered that the clerk of this court attach a copy of plaintiff's undertaking to this order.

4. It is further ordered that this order shall have no force or effect after _____ [date].
Dated: _____ [date]

_____ [signature]

_____ [name of Judge]

[2] Use of Form

The order in [1], above, is for use in temporarily restraining a defendant from taking certain actions with respect to certain baggage or other property which is the subject of an innkeeper's lien action [Civ. Code §§ 1861.16(a), (b)].

[3] Contents

In the discretion of the court, the temporary restraining order may prohibit the defendant from doing any or all of the following [Civ. Code § 1861.17]:

- Transferring any interest in the property by sale, pledge, or grant of security interest, or otherwise disposing of, or encumbering, the property.

- Concealing or otherwise removing the property in such a manner as to make it less available to seizure by the levying officer.

- Impairing the value of the property either by acts of destruction or by failure to care for the property in a reasonable manner.

[4] Termination of Temporary Restraining Order

If at the hearing on the issuance of the writ of possession the court determines that the plaintiff is not entitled to a writ of possession, the court will dissolve any temporary restraining order. If a writ of possession is issued, the court may issue a preliminary injunction to remain in effect until the property claimed is seized pursuant to the writ [Civ. Code § 1861.16(c)]. For a discussion of the ex parte issuance of a temporary restraining order, see § 297.70.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

§ 299.10 Application of Identity Proceeding

When a person changes his or her name after acquiring title to real property and then conveys the property without setting forth the name in which he or she derived title, the recorded conveyance does not constitute constructive notice of its contents to subsequent purchasers and encumbrancers, even though the conveyance is valid between the parties and those with notice of it [Civ. Code § 1096; see Puccetti v. Girola (1942) 20 Cal. 2d 574, 576, 128 P.2d 13 (applying Civ. Code § 1096 to deed by corporate grantor after change of corporate name); but see 1947 amendment of Civ. Code § 1096 (repudiating holding of Puccetti insofar as corporate deed was invalidated for failure to recite name in which corporate grantor acquired property)]. Furthermore, when real property is transferred under a name substantially different from the name in which the property is held of record, the recorded chain of title of the property is broken, and the title is unmarketable [Benson v. Shotwell (1890) 87 Cal. 49, 56-57, 25 P. 249] . See generally, California Real Estate Law And Practice, Ch. 80, Deeds and Transfer of Title (Matthew Bender).

To correct such defects in a title, if property is acquired or stands of record in the name of a person who heretofore or hereafter transfers the property under a name other than or different from the name in which the property is acquired or stands of record, a proceeding is authorized to adjudicate and determine the identity of the person in whose name the property is acquired or stands of record and the person who transfers the property [Code Civ. Proc. § 770.020]. As used above, the term "acquired" means received or taken by conveyance, judgment, decree, or otherwise [Code Civ. Proc. § 770.010(a)]. "Property" means any right, title, or interest in or lien on real property or part thereof [Code Civ. Proc. § 770.010(b)]. "Subsequent owner" means the person to whom property is transferred whether as owner, part owner, or otherwise, or the successors in interest of the person, and includes a distributee of the estate of a decedent [Code Civ. Proc. § 770.010(c)]. "Transfer" means voluntary or involuntary transfer and includes a conveyance, reconveyance, satisfaction of a lien, or divestment by judgment, decree, or otherwise. The probate of the estate of a decedent and entry of the decree of distribution is a transfer [Code Civ. Proc. § 770.010(d)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

§ 299.11 Correction Deed as Substitute

Title companies generally consider a grantor who appears under different names in a chain of title to real property sufficiently identified and title to the property marketable without an identity adjudication if a correction deed from the grantor, showing the name under which he or she acquired title, is recorded [see California Legal Forms, Ch. 26A, Title Insurance; Ch. 27, Deeds and Recording (Matthew Bender); see also Puccetti v. Girola (1942) 20 Cal. 2d 574, 576, 128 P.2d 13 (reformation of deed to show name in which grantor acquired title as alternative to adjudication of grantor's identity)]. Contrary to this title company practice, however, one court has held that a correction deed is inadequate to establish the identity of a grantor with the record owner of property and therefore inadequate to render title to the property marketable [Peckham v. Stewart (1893) 97 Cal. 147, 153-154, 31 P. 928] . Reviewing this discrepancy between practice and law, one text concludes that while an identity adjudication may be the only way to establish marketable title to property which a grantor has conveyed under a different name than the name in which he or she acquired the property, a correction deed constitutes constructive notice to subsequent purchasers and encumbrancers of a conveyance by such a grantor and is adequate when marketability of title is not an important business consideration [Ogden's Revised California Real Property Law (Cal CEB 1974), Vol. 1, Ch. 3, Transfer by Deed, § 3.22].

For discussion and forms relating to actions for the cancellation or reformation of deeds, see Ch. 107, Cancellation of Instruments , Ch. 189, Deeds , and Ch. 488, Reformation of Instruments . For discussion of the recordation of correction deeds, see California Real Estate Law And Practice, Ch. 82, Recording of Instruments (Matthew Bender).

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

25-299 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 299.12

§ 299.12 Procedure

[1] Petition; Notice; Answer

Any subsequent owner [see Code Civ. Proc. § 770.010(c) (definition)] may obtain an adjudication of the identity of a person in the recorded chain of title to the property by filing a verified petition [Code Civ. Proc. § 770.040(a); see §§ 299.50, 299.51] in the superior court of the county where the property or some part of it is situated [Code Civ. Proc. § 770.030]. When the petition is filed, the clerk must set the petition for hearing by the court; the petitioner must cause notices of the time and place of the hearing [see § 299.54] to be posted at the courthouse of the county where the proceeding is pending and in a conspicuous place on the property described in the petition at least 10 days before the hearing [Code Civ. Proc. § 770.060]. Any person interested in the property may answer the petition at any time before the date fixed for the hearing [Code Civ. Proc. § 770.040(a)].

[2] Decree

At the hearing, in accordance with proof offered by the petitioner and any person answering the petition, the court must make and enter a decree [see § 299.56] determining the identity of the persons named in the petition [Code Civ. Proc. § 770.070(a)]. Any aggrieved party may appeal such a decree [Code Civ. Proc. § 770.070(b)]. After the decree becomes final, it constitutes prima facie evidence of the matters determined, and the identity of the persons described in the decree is presumed to be that stated in the decree [Code Civ. Proc. § 770.080(a)]. A certified copy of the decree must be recorded in the office of the county recorder of every county in which any part of the property is situated [Code Civ. Proc. § 770.080(b)].

[2] Use of Form

This form may be used by a successor in interest of a person who acquired and transferred real property under different names to obtain an adjudication of the identity of the person [see Code Civ. Proc. § 770.020]. If the person whose identity is sought is not an immediate predecessor in interest of the petitioner, allegations of intervening transfers must be added to complete the chain of title to petitioner's property [Code Civ. Proc. § 770.050(b)].

[3] Caption

The petition should be entitled "In the matter of the determination of the identity of _____" naming all the persons sought to be identified [Code Civ. Proc. § 770.050(b)].

[4] Allegations

The petition must include all of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 770.050(b)]:

- A statement of the petitioner's interest in the property.
- A particular description of the property.
- The name or names of the person or persons sought to be identified, setting out the name and a reference to the record of the transaction under which the property was acquired or stands of record and the name and a reference to the record of the transaction under which the property was transferred or stands of record, that the names are the names of the same person, and that the transfers affect the petitioner's title to the real property.
- A prayer that the identity of the persons be established.

[5] Joinder

As many persons sought to be identified as appear of record in the chain of title to the property may be joined in one petition or proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 770.050(c)].

[6] Jurisdiction and Venue

The petition must be filed in the superior court of the county where the real property described in the petition, or some part of it, is situated [Code Civ. Proc. § 770.030].

[7] Verification

The petition must be verified [Code Civ. Proc. § 770.050(a)].

[2] Use of Form

This form is a notice of the time and place of a hearing to determine the identity of persons. It is substantially similar to the form set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 770.060(c). When a petition to determine identity is filed and the court clerk has set the petition for hearing, a petitioner must cause notice of the time and place of the hearing to be posted at the courthouse of the county where the proceeding is pending, as well as in a conspicuous place on the property described in the petition, at least 10 days before the hearing [Code Civ. Proc. § 770.060(b)].

[3] Answer

Any person interested in the property described in a petition for the determination of identity may answer the petition and deny any of the matters contained in the petition at any time before the date fixed for the hearing [Code Civ. Proc. § 770.040(b)]. For discussion and forms for answers generally, see Ch. 26, Answers .

Proc. § 1013a* (proof of service of papers by mail) or 417.10 (proof of service of summons) would appear to be sufficient. The declaration, together with the original or a true copy of the notice of hearing, is filed after posting with the clerk of the court in which the proceeding is pending [Code Civ. Proc. § 1010].

[3] Affidavit or Declaration

An affidavit may be used to prove service of summons, notice, or other paper in an action or special proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 2009]. A declaration under penalty of perjury may be used in lieu of an affidavit [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5].

Judge of the Superior Court

[2] Use of Form

This form is a decree that may be used in a proceeding to determine identity. After the decree becomes final, it constitutes prima facie evidence of the matters determined, and the identity of the persons named in the decree is presumed to be that stated in the decree [Code Civ. Proc. § 770.080(a)].

[3] Requirement of Recordation

A certified copy of the decree must be recorded in the office of the county recorder of every county in which any part of the property is situated [Code Civ. Proc. § 770.080(b)].

[4] Appeal

Any aggrieved party may take an appeal from a decree to determine identity [Code Civ. Proc. § 770.070(b)].

Chapter 300 INDEMNITY AND CONTRIBUTION
PART I. SCOPE

§ 300.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter discusses express contractual indemnity and includes forms relating to actions based on express indemnity agreements [see §§ 300.171-300.173]. It also includes a form of notice and request for defense for use by an indemnitee to notify an indemnitor of an action pending against the indemnitee for an implied or express indemnified matter [see § 300.170]. For discussion of insurance contracts, see Ch. 308, Insurance . For discussion of bonds and other forms of sureties, see Ch. 538, Suretyship, Bonds, and Undertakings .

This chapter also discusses comparative indemnity (also known as implied equitable indemnity) among multiple tortfeasors. Included are forms of a cross complaint for partial or full comparative indemnity [see §§ 300.190, 300.191]; a complaint for implied contractual indemnity and an allegation to be used in such a complaint with regard to defective auto repairs [see §§ 300.192 and 300.193]; a notice of motion for an order awarding attorney fees in an action for comparative indemnity [see § 300.194]; an order granting the motion [see § 300.195]; a notice of motion for a determination of the good faith of a settlement issue [see § 300.196] and supporting declarations [see §§ 300.198, 300.199]; an order making the determination [see § 300.200]; a petition for writ of mandate to review the trial court's determination of the good faith issue [see § 300.201]; and a petition for writ of mandate to challenge the binding effect of the trial court's determination of the good faith issue on the ground that such a binding effect would violate due process [see § 300.202].

This chapter also discusses contribution among joint nontort obligors and judgment debtors. Included is a form of complaint for contribution against joint or joint and several obligors [see § 300.220]. Also included are forms of a notice of motion [see § 300.221], a declaration [see § 300.222], and an order for contribution from a nontort judgment debtor [see § 300.223]. The relationship of contribution and tort law is discussed in § 300.60 et seq.

Chapter 300 INDEMNITY AND CONTRIBUTION
PART I. SCOPE

25-300 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 300.02

§ 300.02 Overview

[1] Terms

The terms of an indemnity agreement determine the scope of the indemnitee's right to indemnification and the indemnitor's obligation to indemnify [Tulare Co. Power Co. v. Pacific Sur. Co. (1919) 43 Cal. App. 315, 327, 185 P. 399] . These terms are construed, like any other contract, with the objective of determining and effectuating the actual intention of the parties to the agreement, so far as the intention is ascertainable and lawful [City of Los Angeles v. Japan Air Lines Co., Ltd. (1974) 41 Cal. App. 3d 416, 428, 116 Cal. Rptr. 69] . In no case will a court interpret the terms of an indemnity agreement in a manner that would obligate an indemnitor to protect an indemnitee against loss or liability outside the expressed intention of their agreement [Southern Cal. Gas Co. v. Ventura Pipe Line Constr. Co. (1957) 150 Cal. App. 2d 253, 257-259, 309 P.2d 849] .

[2] Construction

The construction of indemnity agreements is governed by the same rules used in the construction of contracts generally; no artificial rules apply [Gribaldo, Jacobs, Jones & Assocs. v. Agrippina Versicherunges A.G. (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 434, 442, 91 Cal. Rptr. 6, 476 P.2d 406 ; see Civ. Code §§ 1635-1661 (interpretation of contracts); Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1856-1864 (construction of written instruments); see generally Ch. 140, Contracts]. For example, an indemnity agreement must be construed as a whole: the meaning of any particular part must be determined from a consideration of the entire agreement and its general intent, giving effect to all parts of the agreement if possible [Indenco, Inc. v. Evans (1962) 201 Cal. App. 2d 369, 374, 20 Cal. Rptr. 90] . Although extrinsic evidence is not admissible to add to, detract from, or vary the terms of a written indemnity agreement, a court may consider evidence of the circumstances surrounding the making of the agreement to ascertain the meaning that the parties attributed to the agreement at its execution, and this evidence is admissible to prove a meaning of which a term is reasonably susceptible [Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. v. G. W. Thomas Drayage & Rigging Co. (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 33, 39-41, 69 Cal. Rptr. 561, 442 P.2d 641] . Ambiguities that cannot be resolved by extrinsic evidence must be strictly construed against the party preparing the agreement [County of Alameda v. Southern Pac. Co. (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 479, 488, 11 Cal. Rptr. 751, 360 P.2d 327 ; Weaver v. Grunbaum (1939) 31 Cal. App. 2d 42, 49, 87 P.2d 406] .

The provisions of Civ. Code § 2778, defining the scope of indemnification rights and obligations, are regarded as parts of every indemnity agreement unless the agreement expresses a contrary intention [Gribaldo, Jacobs, Jones & Assocs. v. Agrippina Versicherunges A.G. (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 434, 442, 91 Cal. Rptr. 6, 476 P.2d 406] . These statutory provisions are discussed in § 300.111[3][a].

[3] Liability Imposed by Law

An obligation to indemnify does not accrue in the absence of an obligation validly imposed on the indemnitee by law [United States Fid. & Guar. Co. v. More (1909) 155 Cal. 415, 418, 101 P. 302 ; see Civ. Code § 2772 (defining indemnity as protection against legal consequences of conduct)]. Thus, no indemnification is available for payments made "voluntarily," that is, without the compulsion of an existing legal liability [Southern Cal. Gas Co. v. Ventura Pipe Line Constr. Co. (1957) 150 Cal. App. 2d 253, 257, 309 P.2d 849] or for a liability incurred as a result of the indemnitee's fraud [see Bachman v. Independence Indem. Co. (1931) 112 Cal. App. 465, 480-481, 297 P. 110] or as a result of the indemnitee's failureto raise a complete defense [Easton v. Boston Inv. Co. (1921) 51 Cal. App. 246, 250, 196 P. 796 ; see Civ. Code § 2778(7) (judgment against indemnitee as inconclusive against indemnitor if indemnitee failed to raise good defense)]. However, an indemnitee is not required to establish his or her legal liability by defending an action to judgment [Eva v. Andersen (1913) 166 Cal. 420, 424-425, 137 P. 16] or by prosecuting an appeal of the judgment to termination [Thomas v. Layer (1920) 48 Cal. App. 199, 202-203, 191 P. 949] . Nor does an indemnitee for damages voluntarily incur liability and forfeit a right of indemnity therefor by waiving a procedural defense to a claim for the damages [Nicholson-Brown, Inc. v. City of San Jose (1976) 62 Cal. App. 3d 526, 536, 133 Cal. Rptr. 159] .

Statutes create either conclusive or presumptive effect of a judgment against an indemnitee under certain circumstances [see Civ. Code § 2778(5)-(7)]. For discussion, see § 300.40[1].

[4] Indemnified Risks Under Agreement

The intention expressed by the parties to an indemnity agreement determines the particular risks against which the indemnitor is obligated to protect the indemnitee [Rossmoor Sanitation, Inc. v. Pylon, Inc. (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 622, 633, 119 Cal. Rptr. 449, 532 P.2d 97] . For example, the expressed intention of the parties controls whether the indemnitor must indemnify the indemnitee for liability arising from injuries to the indemnitor's employees as well as to other persons [Herman Christensen & Sons, Inc. v. Paris Plastering Co. (1976) 61 Cal. App. 3d 237, 246-247, 132 Cal. Rptr. 86 ; see Lab. Code § 3864 (requiring written indemnity agreement to require employer to indemnify for injuries to employees)]; for losses arising from damage to the indemnitee's property as well as from damage to property of third persons [Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. v. G. W. Thomas Drayage & Rigging Co. (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 33, 36-41, 69 Cal. Rptr. 561, 442 P.2d 641] ; for losses arising from the indemnitee's contractual undertakings as well as from tort liabilities [Southern Cal. Gas Co. v. Ventura Pipe Line Constr. Co. (1957) 150 Cal. App. 2d 253, 259, 309 P.2d 849] ; for liabilities arising at a particular time [Lincoln v. Narom Dev. Co. (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 619, 627, 89 Cal. Rptr. 128] or in a particular place [Hollander v. Wilson Estate Co. (1932) 214 Cal. 582, 585, 7 P.2d 177] ; or for losses arising from personal injuries caused by particular persons [Baldwin Contracting Co. v. Winston Steel Works, Inc. (1965) 236 Cal. App. 2d 565, 576, 46 Cal. Rptr. 421] or by particular conduct [San Diego Gas & Elec. Co. v. Davey Tree Surgery Co. (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 1096, 1101-1102, 96 Cal. Rptr. 889] .

Similarly, the express intention of the parties to an indemnity agreement determines whether the indemnitor is obligated to protect the indemnitee against a risk of liability or against a risk of loss resulting from liability [see Fernandez v. Tormey (1898) 121 Cal. 515, 519-520, 53 P. 1119 ; see also § 300.31]. In general, an indemnity agreement against "claims" evidences an indemnity against loss [Gribaldo, Jacobs, Jones & Assocs. v. Agrippina Versicherunges A.G. (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 434, 446-447, 91 Cal. Rptr. 6, 476 P.2d 406] .

A right to indemnity may depend on the occurrence of any condition precedent established by the terms of an indemnity agreement unless, as in the case of other contracts, the indemnitor's conduct excuses the condition [Weaver v.

Grunbaum (1939) 31 Cal. App. 2d 42, 50-51, 87 P.2d 406] . In the absence of a contrary provision in the agreement, however, the obligation to indemnify does not depend on a demand by the indemnitee that the indemnitor perform the obligation [Thomas v. Layer (1920) 48 Cal. App. 199, 201-202, 191 P. 949] or the indemnitor's notification of and opportunity to defend an action against the indemnitee for an indemnified matter.

Civ. Code § 2775 is also relevant to a determination of the risks covered by an indemnity agreement. That statute provides that an agreement to indemnify against the acts of a certain person applies not only to his or her acts and their consequences but also to those of his or her agents.

[5] Indemnitee's Negligence

[a] In General

Certain special rules of construction have been adopted by the courts with regard to a provision of an indemnity agreement that purports to relieve the indemnitee of responsibility for its own negligence. In general, a contract of indemnity that purports to relieve the indemnitee from the results of a failure to exercise ordinary care should be strictly construed against the indemnitee, and will not be held to provide indemnity unless so expressed in clear and unequivocal terms [Goldman v. Ecco-Phoenix Elec. Corp. (1964) 62 Cal. 2d 40, 44, 41 Cal. Rptr. 73, 396 P.2d 377 ; Maryland Cas. Co. v. Bailey & Sons, Inc. (1995) 35 Cal. App. 4th 856, 866, 41 Cal. Rptr. 2d 519] .

This general rule has led to a corollary that a "general" indemnity agreement does not provide for indemnity against liability or loss caused by the indemnitee's "active" negligence. A general indemnity agreement is one that does not expressly state that damage caused by the indemnitee's negligence is included in the indemnity coverage [Jimenez v. Pacific W. Constr. Co. (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 102, 114, 229 Cal. Rptr. 575 ; see Vinnell Co. v. Pacific Elec. Ry. Co. (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 411, 415, 340 P.2d 604 ; see also Maryland Cas. Co. v. Bailey & Sons, Inc. (1995) 35 Cal. App. 4th 856, 865-866, 41 Cal. Rptr. 2d 519 (general indemnity agreement also referred to as "Type II" indemnity agreement, following labels set forth in MacDonald & Kruse, Inc. v. San Jose Steel Co. (1972) 29 Cal. App. 3d 413, 420, 105 Cal. Rptr. 725)]. For the meaning of "active" negligence, see § 300.02[5][b].

Under these rules, the following language has been held to be general andinsufficient to impose indemnity for active negligence: "from all claims for damages to persons," "in any suit at law," and "from any cause whatsoever" [Rossmoor Sanitation, Inc. v. Pylon, Inc. (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 622, 628-629, 119 Cal. Rptr. 449, 532 P.2d 97 ; see Morgan v. Stubblefield (1972) 6 Cal. 3d 606, 626, 100 Cal. Rptr. 1, 493 P.2d 465 ("from all claims for damages to persons"); Markley v. Beagle (1967) 66 Cal. 2d 951, 962, 59 Cal. Rptr. 809, 429 P.2d 129 ("in any suit at law"); MacDonald & Kruse, Inc. v. San Jose Steel Co. (1972) 29 Cal. App. 3d 413, 422-423, 105 Cal. Rptr. 725 ("from any cause whatsoever"); see also MacDonald & Kruse, Inc. v. San Jose Steel Co. (1972) 29 Cal. App. 3d 413, 422-423, 105 Cal. Rptr. 725 (additional examples)]. However, a clause that provides for indemnity "except for loss caused solely by the negligence of the indemnitee" is not a general clause. It is not silent with respect to the issue of the indemnitee's negligence and, therefore, provides for indemnity for loss resulting from the combined negligence of the indemnitor and the indemnitee, whether the indemnitee's negligence is characterized as active or passive [Ralph M. Parsons Co. v. Combustion Equip. Assocs., Inc. (1985) 172 Cal. App. 3d 211, 220, 218 Cal. Rptr. 170 ; C.I. Eng'rs & Constructors, Inc. v. Johnson & Turner Painting Co. (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 1011, 1014-1018, 189 Cal. Rptr. 824] .

The California Supreme Court has on several occasions reaffirmed the rule that an indemnity clause that does not address itself to the issue of an indemnitee's negligence is a general indemnity clause, which may be construed to provide indemnity for a loss resulting in part from an indemnitee's passive negligence but not active negligence [Gonzales v. R. J. Novick Constr. Co. (1978) 20 Cal. 3d 798, 809-810, 144 Cal. Rptr. 408, 575 P.2d 1190 ; Rossmoor Sanitation, Inc. v. Pylon, Inc. (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 622, 628, 119 Cal. Rptr. 449, 532 P.2d 97 ; see Markley v. Beagle (1967) 66 Cal. 2d 951, 962, 59 Cal. Rptr. 809, 429 P.2d 129] . However, the Court has made it clear that the above rule is simply one in aid of construction of the agreement, and that the determination of whether an indemnity clause is general or specific, or whether negligence is active or passive, is never wholly dispositive. The ultimate question is the intent of the parties [see Rossmoor Sanitation, Inc. v. Pylon, Inc. (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 622, 632-633, 119 Cal. Rptr. 449, 532 P.2d 97 ; see also Morton Thiokol, Inc. v. Metal Bldg. Alteration Co. (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 1025, 1030, 238 Cal. Rptr. 722] .

Thus, indemnity for the indemnitee's active negligence is not precluded under an indemnity clause that does not expressly provide for indemnity in the case of the indemnitee's negligence if the parties intended that the agreement allow the recovery [Schackman v. Universal Pictures Co. (1967) 255 Cal. App. 2d 857, 860, 63 Cal. Rptr. 607] . Such a clause protects an indemnitee from liability for injuries sustained as a result of the indemnitee's negligence if the circumstances of the loss were within the contemplation of the parties as one of the obvious risks against which the indemnitee sought to be covered and it reasonably could be concluded that the parties knowingly bargained for the very protection at issue [Harvey Mach. Co. v. Hatzel & Buehler, Inc. (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 445, 448, 6 Cal. Rptr. 284, 353 P.2d 924 ; Ralph M. Parsons Co. v. Combustion Equip. Assocs., Inc. (1985) 172 Cal. App. 3d 211, 220-221, 218 Cal. Rptr. 170 ; Schackman v. Universal Pictures Co. (1967) 255 Cal. App. 2d 857, 862, 63 Cal. Rptr. 607] .

[b] Active and Passive Negligence

An indemnitee who participates in some manner in the conduct or omission that caused the injury, beyond the mere failure to perform a duty imposed by law, is actively negligent and therefore is usually not entitled to indemnity under a general indemnity agreement [Morgan v. Stubblefield (1972) 6 Cal. 3d 606, 625, 100 Cal. Rptr. 1, 493 P.2d 465 ; MacDonald & Kruse, Inc. v. San Jose Steel Co. (1972) 29 Cal. App. 3d 413, 419-420, 105 Cal. Rptr. 725 ; see § 300.01[3]]. Active negligence may consist of the actual connection with an act or omission of another by knowledge of or acquiescence in the act or omission [Jimenez v. Pacific W. Constr. Co. (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 102, 112, 229 Cal. Rptr. 575 ; see King v. Timber Structures, Inc. (1966) 240 Cal. App. 2d 178, 182, 184-185, 49 Cal. Rptr. 414] . Strict liability is equated with active negligence for purposes of construing an indemnification agreement [Widson v. International Harvester Co. (1984) 153 Cal. App. 3d 45, 59-60, 200 Cal. Rptr. 136 ; see Price v. Shell Oil Co. (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 245, 256-258, 85 Cal. Rptr. 178, 466 P.2d 722] . For a form of complaint for declaratory relief, alleging that the indemnitor under a contract of indemnity is not obligated because the indemnitee was actively negligent, see § 300.172.

Passive negligence is the failure to perform a duty of care imposed by law, but in which there is no participation with another in any affirmative act of negligence that is the proximate cause of the injury to a third person [Rossmoor Sanitation, Inc. v. Pylon, Inc. (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 622, 629, 119 Cal. Rptr. 449, 532 P.2d 97 ; Jimenez v. Pacific W. Constr. Co. (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 102, 112, 229 Cal. Rptr. 575] . Mere nonfeasance, such as a failure to discover a dangerous condition, is passive negligence and does not preclude indemnity under a general indemnity clause [Markley v. Beagle (1967) 66 Cal. 2d 951, 962, 59 Cal. Rptr. 809, 429 P.2d 129] . For example, a failure to act in fulfillment of a duty of care that devolves on an indemnitee by law as the owner or occupier of land is passive negligence [Harvey Mach. Co. v. Hatzel & Buehler, Inc. (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 445, 448, 6 Cal. Rptr. 284, 353 P.2d 924] .

However, the failure to perform a duty created by virtue of the party's status is not always considered passive negligence. In one case, for example, a general contractor had responsibility for workplace safety due to its status as the general contractor, even though that responsibility was shared with subcontractors under their contractual agreements. Because the general contractor specifically assumed responsibility for eliminating the known danger of holes left in a roof by a subcontractor after the subcontractor failed to correct the dangerous condition, the general contractor engaged in active negligence when it failed to ensure that theholes were covered and marked appropriately. Because the indemnity agreement with the subcontractor did not specifically cover the general contractor's own negligence, indemnity was inappropriate [McCrary Constr. Co. v. Metal Deck Specialists, Inc. (2005) 133 Cal. App. 4th 1528, 1540-1541, 35 Cal. Rptr. 3d 624] .

Whether negligence is to be characterized as active or passive is based on the circumstances of each case and presents a question for the trier of fact unless the evidence is so clear and undisputable that reasonable persons could not disagree [Rossmoor Sanitation, Inc. v. Pylon, Inc. (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 622, 629, 119 Cal. Rptr. 449, 532 P.2d 97] .

[6] Proportional Contractual Indemnity

The legal principles surrounding the issue of indemnity for the indemnitee's own negligence [see § 300.01[3]], such as general indemnity clauses and active and passive negligence, all arose within the context of contractual indemnity being an all-or-nothing matter; that is, either a total shift of liability or no shift [see Rodriguez v. McDonnell Douglas Corp. (1978) 87 Cal. App. 3d 626, 676, 151 Cal. Rptr. 399 . Nevertheless, arguments that contractual indemnity should be reconsidered in light of the emerging principles of comparative negligence and comparative indemnity have not met with success [see, e.g., Regional Steel Corp. v. Superior Court (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 525, 528, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 417] . However, a 1994 case may have opened the door to the possible development of a doctrine of "proportional contractual indemnity" [see Hernandez v. Badger Constr. Equip. Co. (1994) 28 Cal. App. 4th 1791, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 732] .

The case involved an indemnity provision in an equipment lease that provided indemnity to the lessor only for liability incurred on account of the lessee's negligence; it did not provide for any right of indemnity for liability for the lessor's own negligence [see Hernandez v. Badger Constr. Equip. Co. (1994) 28 Cal. App. 4th 1791, 1818 n.21, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 732] . The equipment caused injury, and the both parties were assessed shares of comparative negligence. The appellate court construed the agreement under contract principles as requiring the lessee to indemnify the lessor for the portion of the lessor's liability attributable to the lessee's fault (emphasis added). It further held that the lessee was not entitled to indemnity from the lessor for the portion of its liability attributable to its own negligence [Hernandez v. Badger Constr. Equip. Co. (1994) 28 Cal. App. 4th 1791, 1818 n.21, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 732] .

Whether Hernandez has any relevance beyond its facts remains to be seen. It rests solely on contractual interpretation of a fairly nontypical indemnity agreement, which did not purport to create any right of indemnity for the indemnitee's own negligence.

§ 300.10 Governing Law

Civ. Code §§ 2772-2784.5 govern the interpretation of indemnity agreements. Express indemnity agreements are also governed by Civ. Code §§ 1549-1701, the statutes applicable to contracts generally. Public policy limitations on contracts for indemnity are set forth in Civ. Code §§ 1668 (contracts exempting one from liability for fraud, willful injury, or violation of law), 2773 (agreement to indemnify against unlawful act), 2782 (construction contracts), and 2784.5 (hauling, trucking, or cartage contracts).

A general right of contribution among joint obligors is provided for in Civ. Code § 1432. Contribution among joint judgment debtors is governed by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 875-883]. Contribution among judgment debtors other than joint tortfeasors is governed by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 881-883.

Contribution among joint tortfeasor judgment debtors is governed by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 875-880. However, some of these statutes [see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. §§ 875, 876] predate the California Supreme Court decisions adopting the doctrines of comparative negligence [see Li v. Yellow Cab Co. (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 804, 119 Cal. Rptr. 858, 532 P.2d 1226] and comparative equitable indemnity [see American Motorcycle Ass'n v. Superior Court (1978) 20 Cal. 3d 578, 146 Cal. Rptr. 182, 578 P.2d 899] . The continuing validity of these statutes is questionable to the extent that they conflict with principles of comparative negligence and comparative indemnity [see Safeway Stores, Inc. v. Nest-Kart (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 322, 327-328, 146 Cal. Rptr. 550, 579 P.2d 441 ; see also, § 300.13]. The effect of a release of one of two or more joint debtors on contribution rights is stated in Civ. Code § 1543.

The Fair Responsibility Act of 1986 (Proposition 51) [see § 300.63[3]], which abolished the rule of joint and several liability with regard to certain "noneconomic" damages, is found in Civ. Code §§ 1431.1-1431.5.

The right of implied equitable (or comparative) indemnity is a judicially created doctrine. For discussion of the development of this doctrine, see § 300.60 et seq.

§ 300.11 Indemnity Defined

Indemnity may be defined generally as an obligation resting on one party, the indemnitor, to make good a loss or damage that another party, the indemnitee, has incurred [Regional Steel Corp. v. Superior Court (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 525, 528, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 417 ; Phoenix Ins. Co. v. United States Fire Ins. Co. (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 1511, 1525-1526, 235 Cal. Rptr. 185 ; Sammer v. Ball (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 607, 610, 91 Cal. Rptr. 121] . Indemnity is defined by statute as a contract by which one engages to save another from a legal consequence of the conduct of one of the parties, or of some other person [Civ. Code § 2772].

Indemnity may arise from either of two general sources. First, it may arise by virtue of express contractual language establishing a duty in one party to save another harmless if specified circumstances occur (see § 300.30 et seq.). Second, it may find its source in equitable considerations brought into play by contractual language not specifically dealing with indemnification or by the equities of the particular case (see § 300.60 et seq.) [Bay Dev., Ltd. v. Superior Court (1990) 50 Cal. 3d 1012, 1032-1033, 269 Cal. Rptr. 720, 791 P.2d 290 ; E. L. White, Inc. v. City of Huntington Beach (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 497, 506-507, 146 Cal. Rptr. 614, 579 P.2d 505] . If there is an express indemnity agreement, its provisions, rather than the equitable principles behind comparative indemnity, govern the scope of any duty to indemnify [Regional Steel Corp. v. Superior Court (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 525, 529, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 417] .

§ 300.12 Contribution Defined

The term contribution as used in this chapter means the sharing of a loss or payment among several parties, and the right of one who has discharged a common liability to recover from another party who is also liable the portion of the total payment that the latter ought to pay or bear, based on an equal division of the total payment among all of the liable parties. This aspect of contribution is discussed in § 300.90 et seq.

Code Civ. Proc. § 875 also provides for a right of "contribution" among two or more defendants held jointly liable in a tort action, if one of the tortfeasors has, by payment, discharged more than his or her pro rata share of the joint judgment [see Code Civ. Proc. § 875(a), (c)]. However, this statutory right of pro rata contribution among tortfeasors has essentially been superseded by the judicially created doctrine of comparative indemnity, under which one tortfeasor may seek partial indemnity from another tortfeasor liable for the same tort in proportion to the latter's comparative fault [see American Motorcycle Ass'n v. Superior Court (1978) 20 Cal. 3d 578, 598-604, 146 Cal. Rptr. 182, 578 P.2d 899]

§ 300.13 Indemnity and Contribution Distinguished

Indemnity may operate either to effect a complete shift of loss from the indemnitee to the indemnitor or to effect a partial shifting of loss according to the respective shares of comparative fault of the various tortfeasors [Far W. Fin. Corp. v. D & S Co. (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 796, 808, 251 Cal. Rptr. 202, 760 P.2d 399] . In contrast, contribution generally distributes a loss equally among all who are liable, each bearing a pro rata share [Herrero v. Atkinson (1964) 227 Cal. App. 2d 69, 73, 38 Cal. Rptr. 490] . For example, if there are two judgment debtors, under general principles of contribution, each would ultimately pay half of the judgment [see Code Civ. Proc. § 876; § 300.90 et seq.]. Under indemnity, the loss would either be entirely shifted from one to the other, or each would bear the percentage of the loss that corresponded to that defendant's percentage of fault as found by the trier of fact [Far W. Fin. Corp. v. D & S Co. (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 796, 808, 251 Cal. Rptr. 202, 760 P.2d 399 ; see § 300.30 et seq., § 300.60 et seq.]

Contribution is a right that continues to apply to nontort judgment debtors [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 881-883; see also § 300.90 et seq.]. Before the decision in American Motorcycle Ass'n v. Superior Court (1978) 20 Cal. 3d 578, 146 Cal. Rptr. 182, 578 P.2d 899 , a right of contribution existed among tort, as well as nontort, judgment debtors [see, e.g., Caterpillar Tractor Co. v. Teledyne Indus., Inc. (1975) 53 Cal. App. 3d 693, 698-699, 126 Cal. Rptr. 455] . California statutes continue to provide for a right of contribution among joint tortfeasors [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 875-878; see also § 300.10], but after American Motorcycle, most courts have construed the word "contribution" in these statutes as now referring to the right of comparative indemnity created by the California Supreme Court in that case [see Safeway Stores, Inc. v. Nest-Kart (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 322, 327-328, 146 Cal. Rptr. 550, 579 P.2d 441] . Courts have essentially ignored Code Civ. Proc. § 876(a), which continues to provide for pro rata contribution among tortfeasor judgment debtors. However, at least two courts have found that Code Civ. Proc. § 876(a) continues to provide for a pro rata distribution of loss among tortfeasors [see Coca-Cola Bottling Co. v. Lucky Stores, Inc. (1992) 11 Cal. App. 4th 1372, 1378-1381, 14 Cal. Rptr. 2d 673 ; Lamberton v. Rhodes-Jamieson (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 748, 750-755, 245 Cal. Rptr. 162] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. In General

25-300 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 300.14

§ 300.14 Joint and Several Liability

Indemnity and contribution are interconnected with the doctrines of joint, several, and joint and several liability [see Civ. Code § 1430]. Indeed, there can be no indemnity without joint and several liability by the prospective indemnitor and indemnitee [Fieldstone Co. v. Briggs Plumbing Prods., Inc. (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 357, 367, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 701 (manufacturers of inexpensive bathroom sinks not liable for indemnity in action to recoup costs of replacing prematurely rusted sinks, because defendants were not liable for plaintiff's economic damages under either strict liability or negligence theory)]. If defendants are jointly and severally liable for an obligation, the plaintiff may collect his or her entire damages from any one of them. The defendants are then left to principles of indemnity or contribution in order to apportion ultimate liability among themselves [see American Motorcycle Ass'n v. Superior Court (1978) 20 Cal. 3d 578, 586-590, 146 Cal. Rptr. 182, 578 P.2d 899] .

In contrast, if defendants are severally liable only, an obligation is divided among them in proportion to their liability, the plaintiff then being entitled to collect from each only the part that corresponds to the liability of each [see Douglas v. Bergere (1949) 94 Cal. App. 2d 267, 270, 210 P.2d 727] . Joint liability only (as opposed to joint and several liability) is a concept that has little or no application under current law, and statutory reference to "joint liability" should probably be read as referring to joint and several liability, as opposed to several liability only.

There are various statutory rules and presumptions concerning joint and several liability. An obligation imposed on several persons, or a right created in favor of several persons, is presumed to be joint and not several [see Civ. Code § 1431]. However, with regard to tortfeasors, this rule has been modified very substantially by the Fair Responsibility Act of 1986 (Proposition 51), which eliminated joint and several liability for "noneconomic" damages [see Civ. Code §§ 1431.1-1431.5; see also § 300.60 et seq.].

Under contract law, if all the parties who unite in a promise receive some benefit from the consideration, whether past or present, their promise is presumed to be joint and several [Civ. Code § 1659]. However, a promise made in the singular number but executed by several persons is presumed to be joint and several [Civ. Code § 1660].

One who indemnifies another against an act to be done by the latter is liable jointly with the person indemnified, and separately to every person injured by the act [Civ. Code § 2777]. Ramifications of this rule are discussed in § 300.30 et seq., with regard to express indemnity agreements, and in § 300.60 et seq. with regard to implied contractual indemnity. Under the Uniform Commercial Code, two or more persons who sign a negotiable instrument are jointly and severally liable unless the instrument specifies otherwise [Com. Code § 3116(a)].

§ 300.15 Proceedings to Determine Indemnity and Contribution Rights

Any party may obtain a determination of indemnity rights by filing a cross complaint for declaratory relief in an action brought by a third party [People ex rel. Dep't of Transp. v. Superior Court (1980) 26 Cal. 3d 744, 758-760, 163 Cal. Rptr. 585, 608 P.2d 673 ; see Valley Circle Estates v. VTN Consol., Inc. (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 604, 612, 189 Cal. Rptr. 871, 659 P.2d 1160 (noting that proper form of cross compliant for indemnity is one for declaratory relief); Rimington v. General Accident Group of Ins. Cos. (1962) 205 Cal. App. 2d 394, 397, 23 Cal. Rptr. 40 (express indemnity by cross complaint); Code Civ. Proc. §§ 428.10 (permissive cross complaints), 1060 (declaratory relief)]. However, this right to seek indemnity by cross complaint does not alter the general rule that indemnity rights do not accrue until the indemnitee suffers actual loss by incurring liability or paying a claim. Therefore, an indemnitee may also enforce indemnity rights in a subsequent action after paying the claim [E. L. White, Inc. v. City of Huntington Beach (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 497, 506, 146 Cal. Rptr. 614, 579 P.2d 505 ; see Mascarin Prof'l Pharmacy v. Hart (1970) 13 Cal. App. 3d 462, 464, 91 Cal. Rptr. 560] . A party may also bring a separate action for a declaratory judgment as to contractual indemnity rights [Indenco, Inc. v. Evans (1962) 201 Cal. App. 2d 369, 373, 374, 20 Cal. Rptr. 90] . For discussion and forms relating to the filing of complaints and cross complaints for declaratory relief, see Ch. 123, Complaints and Cross Complaints and Ch. 182, Declaratory Relief .

Contribution may be sought before judgment by an action under Civ. Code § 1432 [see, e.g., Burstein v. Zelman (1960) 182 Cal. App. 2d 1, 5 Cal. Rptr. 829] . It may also be sought by postjudgment motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 883. For further discussion, see § 300.90 et seq.

B. Express Contractual Indemnity

25-300 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 300.31

§ 300.31 Definition and Nature of Express Indemnity Agreements

An express indemnity is a contractual agreement by which one party engages to save another from the legal consequences of conduct by one of the parties or some other person [Civ. Code § 2772]. Such an agreement may be used to provide protection against loss or liability caused by personal injury, property damage, or financial obligations occurring in connection with the performance of a business transaction, such as a land sale [Lincoln v. Narom Dev. Co. (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 619, 626-627, 89 Cal. Rptr. 128] , an equipment lease [Price v. Shell Oil Co. (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 245, 256, 85 Cal. Rptr. 178, 466 P.2d 722] , a construction contract [Rossmoor Sanitation, Inc. v. Pylon, Inc. (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 622, 628-633, 119 Cal. Rptr. 449, 532 P.2d 97] , or a suretyship arrangement [Fidelity & Deposit Co. v. Whitson (1960) 187 Cal. App. 2d 751, 754-758, 10 Cal. Rptr. 6] .

Historically, a valid contract for indemnity has effected a total shift of liability from the indemnitee to the indemnitor. Principles of comparative negligence [see § 300.60 et seq.] do not apply [Rodriguez v. McDonnell Douglas Corp. (1978) 87 Cal. App. 3d 626, 676, 151 Cal. Rptr. 399 ; see Regional Steel Corp. v. Superior Court (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 525, 529, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 417] . However, a recent case has introduced the concept of "proportional contractual indemnity" for the first time [see Hernandez v. Badger Constr. Equip. Co. (1994) 28 Cal. App. 4th 1791, 1818-1823, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 732] . For further discussion, see § 300.01[6]. It has also been the rule that the indemnity rights of the indemnitee under the contract are not affected by any settlement entered into by the indemnitor with the party suffering the loss [C.L. Peck Contractors v. Superior Court (1984) 159 Cal. App. 3d 828, 834, 205 Cal. Rptr. 754 ; see Bay Dev., Ltd. v. Superior Court (1990) 50 Cal. 3d 1012, 1028-1035, 269 Cal. Rptr. 720, 791 P.2d 290] . For discussion of settlements among tortfeasors, see § 300.60 et seq.

An indemnity agreement may provide protection against the occurrence of an event or against the consequences of an event. If an indemnitor promises to hold an indemnitee harmless from some specified event, such as an indebtedness, another's breach of contract, or a tort liability, the indemnity agreement is classified as one against liability, and the obligation to indemnify arises when the event occurs [Eva v. Andersen (1913) 166 Cal. 420, 423, 137 P. 16] . If an indemnitor promises to hold an indemnitee harmless from the consequences of some specified event, the indemnity agreement is classified as one against loss or damage, and the obligation to indemnify arises when the indemnitee sustains actual loss from the event [Gribaldo, Jacobs, Jones & Assocs. v. Agrippina Versicherunges A.G. (1970) 3

Cal. 3d 434, 446-447, 91 Cal. Rptr. 6, 476 P.2d 406] . In essence, the distinction between an indemnity against liability and an indemnity against loss is the difference between an agreement to prevent loss or its cause and an agreement to reimburse for loss sustained [White v. Fratt (1859) 13 Cal. 521, 524] .

Because an indemnity agreement is basically a contract, it is subject to all the requirements applicable to contracts in general [see Branson v. Sun Diamond Growers (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 327, 347, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 314 (permitting claims of oral indemnity contract and implied-in-fact indemnity contract)]. For discussion of such requirements as well as forms of complaints and defenses related to actions based on contract, see Ch. 140, Contracts . For a form for a complaint to enforce an express contract of indemnity, see § 300.171.

B. Express Contractual Indemnity

25-300 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 300.32

§ 300.32 Indemnity Distinguished From Other Contracts

[1] Suretyship

A surety or guarantor is one who promises to answer for the debt, default, or miscarriage of another [Civ. Code § 2787]. An indemnitor undertakes to protect the promisee against liability to a third person or loss resulting from liability [Civ. Code § 2772; see § 300.31], whereas a surety or guarantor undertakes to protect his or her promisee against loss or damage resulting from the failure of a third person to carry out obligations owed to the promisee [Somers v. United States Fid. & Guar. Co., (1923) 191 Cal. 542, 547, 217 P. 746] . Thus, an indemnity agreement is an original or independent agreement requiring only two parties; a contract of surety or guaranty is a secondary obligation collateral to some principal or substantive liability and requires three parties, that is, a surety, a principal obligor, and a promisee or obligee [Somers v. United States Fid. & Guar. Co., (1923) 191 Cal. 542, 547, 217 P. 746 ; see generally California Legal Forms, Ch. 79 (Matthew Bender)].

For discussion and forms related to actions involving suretyship, contracts, and guaranties, see Ch. 538, Suretyship, Bonds, and Undertakings .

[2] Insurance

Insurance is a contract by which one party, the insurer, undertakes to indemnify another, the insured, against loss, damage, or liability arising from a contingent or unknown event [Ins. Code §§ 22, 23]. Thus, an insurance contract is a type of indemnity insofar as it involves one party's assumption, by a legally binding arrangement, of a risk that may subject another party to loss [California Physicians' Serv. v. Garrison (1946) 28 Cal. 2d 790, 804, 172 P.2d 4 ; see Herrick Corp. v. Canadian Ins. Co. (1994) 29 Cal. App. 4th 753, 763, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 844] . However, insurance policies and contractual indemnity arise from very different economic fundamentals. An indemnity contract is in the nature of a promise to stand behind specifically identifiable work; insurance policies, on the other hand, cover generally defined sets of risks in exchange for a premium having some relationship to those risks [Herrick Corp. v. Canadian Ins. Co. (1994) 29 Cal. App. 4th 753, 763, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 844] . Indemnity is usually unlimited in amount, but limited to a given project; insurance is limited liability, but indifferent to the project [Herrick Corp. v. Canadian Ins. Co. (1994) 29 Cal. App. 4th 753, 765, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 844] .

Further, insurance is highly regulated by the Insurance Code, which does not apply to other indemnity agreements. For this reason, insurance law should not be relied on to determine the rights of parties to other indemnity contracts [see Smoketree-Lake Murray, Ltd. v. Mills Concrete Constr. Co. (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 1724, 1737 n.8, 286 Cal. Rptr. 435] . For example, a contractual indemnitor is not subject to a claim for equitable contribution from an insurer who has insured a risk that is also within the scope of the indemnity agreement [Herrick Corp. v. Canadian Ins. Co. (1994) 29 Cal. App. 4th 753, 765, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 844] .

For discussion of the law applicable to insurance contracts and forms relating to actions involving such contracts, see Ch. 308, Insurance .

§ 300.33 Indemnification of Illegal Acts Barred

An agreement to indemnify a person against the consequences of performing an act in the future is void if the person, at the time of performance, knows that the act is unlawful [Civ. Code § 2773]. This statutory rule, which is intended to prevent the encouragement of illegal conduct by indemnity agreements [Lemat Corp. v. American Basketball Ass'n (1975) 51 Cal. App. 3d 267, 279, 124 Cal. Rptr. 388] , accords with the general rule that a contract is void and unenforceable to the extent that its purpose is unlawful, that is, contrary to an express provision of law, the policy of express law, or good morals [see Buffendeau v. Brooks (1865) 28 Cal. 641, 642-644 (unenforceability of agreement indemnifying sheriff for sale of property in violation of injunction); see also Civ. Code §§ 1598, 1599, 1667; but see Smoketree-Lake Murray, Ltd. v. Mills Concrete Constr. Co. (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 1724, 1741-1742, 286 Cal. Rptr. 435 (indemnity agreement not unenforcable because of indemnitee's collateral fraud if damages giving rise to right of indemnity are not due to fraud)]. See generally Ch. 140, Contracts , or discussion and forms relating to the defense of illegality in contract actions.

An agreement may validly provide indemnity against the consequences of an illegal future act, however, if the parties to the agreement do not have actual knowledge of the illegality at the time they enter into the agreement and the indemnified act is performed in good faith and without improper motivation [Stark v. Raney (1861) 18 Cal. 622, 624 ; Lemat Corp. v. American Basketball Ass'n (1975) 51 Cal. App. 3d 267, 279-280, 124 Cal. Rptr. 388] . In addition, an agreement may validly provide indemnity against the consequences of any past act except a felony, even if the act was known to be wrongful [Civ. Code § 2774].

B. Express Contractual Indemnity

25-300 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 300.34

§ 300.34 Indemnification for Negligent Acts

[1] Generally Allowed

With certain exceptions [§§ 300.34[2], 300.34[3]], an indemnity agreement may validly provide protection against an indemnitee's own negligent acts [Goldman v. Ecco-Phoenix Elec. Corp. (1964) 62 Cal. 2d 40, 44, 41 Cal. Rptr. 73, 396 P.2d 377] . An indemnity agreement against an indemnitee's negligence is not contrary to public policy because negligence is only an undesirable incident of the agreement, not a result induced by the agreement [John E. Branagh & Sons v. Witcosky (1966) 242 Cal. App. 2d 835, 839-841, 51 Cal. Rptr. 844] . Furthermore, although Civ. Code § 1668, which makes unlawful any contract that exempts person from responsibility for fraud, injury to person or property, or violation of law, may bar indemnification for an indemnitee's intentional torts by invalidating any contract that exempts a person from responsibility for willful personal injury, injury to property, or willful or negligent violation of law [see Davidson v. Welch (1969) 270 Cal. App. 2d 220, 235, 75 Cal. Rptr. 676 (court's assumption arguendo); but see Lemat Corp. v. American Basketball Ass'n (1975) 51 Cal. App. 3d 267, 278, 124 Cal. Rptr. 388 (Civ. Code § 1668 does not apply to indemnity agreements)], the statute does not apply to an indemnity agreement against negligence [Goldman v. Ecco-Phoenix Elec. Corp. (1964) 62 Cal. 2d 40, 48-49, 41 Cal. Rptr. 73, 396 P.2d 377] . Unlike the true exculpatory agreement at which Civ. Code § 1668 is directed and by which the promisee seeks to avoid liability for damages that the promisor may suffer as a result of the promisee's negligence, an indemnity agreement against an indemnitee's negligence does not relieve the indemnitee of responsibility to the injured party; it merely transfers the burden to the indemnitor, who has agreed to provide financial protection under the circumstances [John E. Branagh & Sons v. Witcosky (1966) 242 Cal. App. 2d 835, 838, 51 Cal. Rptr. 844 ; see Smoketree-Lake Murray, Ltd. v. Mills Concrete Constr. Co. (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 1724, 1735 n.6, 286 Cal. Rptr. 435 ; No Oil, Inc. v. City of Los Angeles (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 223, 250-252, 242 Cal. Rptr. 37] .

The vast majority of express indemnity cases arise from provisions in commercial contracts viewed as the product of arms-length negotiations between commercial entities and usually involve the allocation of responsibility for loss among the parties' respective insurance carriers [see Guy F. Atkinson Co. v. Schatz (1980) 102 Cal. App. 3d 351, 356] . In this context, courts are generally reluctant to disregard a commercial agreement reached by business entities regarding the allocation of loss, at least if the allocation involves only the economic loss sustained by the parties [see, e.g., CAZA Drilling (Cal.), Inc. v. TEG Oil & Gas U.S.A., Inc. (2006) 142 Cal. App. 4th 453, 475, 48 Cal. Rptr. 3d 271] . The public policy considerations are different if the indemnity clause is inserted in a preprinted contract of adhesion in a noncommercial context, such as a residential lease or a consumer contract.

For discussion of the construction of indemnity agreements that purport to relieve the indemnitee of responsibility for its own negligence, see § 300.02[5][a], [b].

[2] Statutory Exception for Construction Contracts

There is a statutory exception applicable to construction contracts that limits indemnity for a party's own negligence. Except as provided in Civ. Code §§ 2782.1, 2782.2, 2782.5, and 2782.6, all provisions, clauses, covenants, or agreements contained in, collateral to, or affecting any construction contract are against public policy, void, and unenforceable if they purport to indemnify the promisee against liability for damages for death or bodily injury to persons, injury to property, or any other loss, damage, or expense arising from the sole negligence or willful misconduct of the promisee, or the promisee's agents, servants, or independent contractors who are directly responsible to the promisee, or for defects in design furnished by such persons [Civ. Code § 2782(a); see also Civ. Code §§ 2783 (construction contract defined), 2784 (design defect defined)]. Civ.Code § 2782(a) does not, however, affect the validity of any insurance contract, workers' compensation contract, or agreement issued by an admitted insurer as defined by the Insurance Code [Civ. Code § 2782(a)]. In addition, all provisions, clauses, covenants, or agreements contained in, collateral to, or affecting any construction contract with a public agency that purport to impose on a contractor, or relieve a public agency from, liability for the active negligence of the public agency are void and unenforceable [Civ. Code § 2782(b)].

"Sole negligence" means that, as between the parties to the indemnity agreement, the promisee was solely negligent. The negligence of the plaintiff or of other third parties is immaterial [Southern Pac. Transp. Co. v. Sandyland Protective Ass'n (1990) 224 Cal. App. 3d 1494, 1498-1499, 274 Cal. Rptr. 626] . Further, the statute has been held not to prohibit indemnification for aloss that is not due to the indemnitee's sole negligence or sole willful misconduct [see Smoketree-Lake Murray, Ltd. v. Mills Concrete Constr. Co. (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 1724, 1737-1738, 286 Cal. Rptr. 435 (emphasis added; loss due to negligence of both indemnitor and indemnitee is indemnifiable despite indemnitee's misrepresentations to party suffering loss)]. However, the amount to be indemnified may not include damages paid because of willful misconduct [see Smoketree-Lake Murray, Ltd. v. Mills Concrete Constr. Co. (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 1724, 1741-1742, 286 Cal. Rptr. 435] .

There are several statutory exceptions to Civ. Code § 2782, providing that in specified situations indemnity or other risk allocation agreements in construction contracts are not violative of public policy. Civ. Code § 2782 does not prevent a contractor responsible for the performance of a construction contract from indemnifying fully a person, firm, corporation, state, or other agency for whose account the construction contract is not being performed but who, as an accommodation, enters into an agreement with the contractor permitting the contractor to enter on or adjacent to its property for the purpose of performing the construction contract for others [Civ. Code § 2782.1].

Civ. Code § 2782 does not prevent a party to a construction contract and the owner or other party for whose account the contract is being performed from negotiating and expressly agreeing with respect to the allocation, release, liquidation, exclusion, or limitation as between the parties of any liability (a) for design defects, or (b) of the promisee to the promisor arising out of or relating to the construction contract [Civ. Code § 2782.5]. The word "negotiate" in Civ. Code § 2782.5 simply means that each party had an opportunity to accept, reject, or modify the provision. If the parties had such an opportunity, the provision is valid even if there is no actual discussion regarding the provision, which was simply proposed and accepted. Whether the parties had that ability or right depends on a consideration of all the facts surrounding the transaction, including but not limited to whether the parties were of relative equal bargaining power and whether it was an arm's length transaction [Markborough Cal., Inc. v. Superior Court (1991) 227 Cal. App. 3d 705, 714-715, 277 Cal. Rptr. 919] . There is no affirmative duty to specifically advise the other party of the inclusion of a limitation of liability clause in the contract, or to inform the other party of the risks involved in the project [Markborough Cal., Inc. v. Superior Court (1991) 227 Cal. App. 3d 705, 277 Cal. Rptr. 919] .

Civ. Code § 2782 does not prevent an agreement to indemnify a professional engineer against liability for the negligence (but not the willful misconduct) of the engineer, or the engineer's agents or employees, in providing inspection services to plants or other facilities if all the criteria of Civ. Code § 2782.2(a)(1)-(5) are met [Civ. Code § 2782.2].

Civ. Code § 2782 does not prevent an agreement, other than an agreement by a public entity, to indemnify a professional engineer or geologist from liability for damages in excess of $250,000 that are caused by the sole negligence (but not gross negligence or willful misconduct) of the engineer or geologist in providing certain professional services with regard to hazardous materials cleanup [see Civ. Code § 2782.6].

For residential construction contracts entered into after January 1, 2006, provisions, clauses, covenants, and agreements contained in, collateral to, or affecting the construction contract and any amendments to the contract that purport to indemnify or defend the builder by a subcontractor against liability for claims of construction defects are unenforceable to the extent that the claims arise out of, pertain to, or relate to the negligence of the builder, or the builder's other agents, servants, or independent contractors who are directly responsible to the builder, or for defects in design furnished by those persons, or to the extent the claims do not arise out of, pertain to, or relate to the scope of work in the written agreement between the parties [Civ. Code § 2782(c) (as amended effective January 1, 2006)].

This provision may not be waived or modified by contractual agreement, act, or omission of the parties, although contractual provisions, clauses, covenants, or agreements not expressly prohibited are reserved to the agreement of the parties [Civ. Code § 2782(c) (as amended effective January 1, 2006)]. In addition, a subcontractor and builder may mutually agree to the timing or immediacy of a defense and provisions for reimbursement of defense costs and fees, so long as that agreement, on final resolution of the claims, does not waive or modify the provisions described above [Civ. Code § 2782(d) (as amended effective January 1, 2006)]. Finally, Civ. Code § 2782(c) does not affect the obligations of an insurance carrier under Presley Homes, Inc. v. American States Ins. Co. (2001) 90 Cal. App. 4th 571, 108 Cal. Rptr. 2d 686 , nor does it affect a builder's or subcontractor's obligations under Civ. Code § 910 et seq. [see Civ. Code § 2782(d) (as amended effective January 1, 2006)].

For construction contracts or amendments entered into on or after January 1, 2009, these provisions have been expanded to apply to agreements that purport to insure or indemnify the builder or a general contractor or other contractor not affiliated with the builder [see Civ. Code § 2782(c) (as amended effective January 1, 2009)]. In addition, the 2009 amendments also provide that a subcontractor owes no defense or indemnity for a construction defect claim unless and until the builder or contractor provides a written tender of the claim to the subcontractor, which has the same force and effect as a notice of commencement of a legal proceeding [Civ. Code § 2782(d) (as amended effective January 1, 2009)]. Upon tender of a written claim, the subcontractor has theoption of either (1) defending the claim with counsel of its choice and maintaining control of the defense for any claim to which its defense obligation applies, or (2) allowing the builder or contractor to provide its own defense and paying, within 30 days of receipt of an invoice, a reasonable allocated share of the builder's or contractor's defense fees and costs on an ongoing basis during pendency of the claim [see Civ. Code § 2782(d)(1), (2) (as amended effective January 1, 2009)].

Failure of a subcontractor to meet its defense obligations adequately and timely under the first option may result in a claim against the subcontractor for compensatory and consequential damages and reasonable attorney's fees, and a failure to timely perform its obligations under the second option may result in a claim for compensatory and consequential damages, as well as for interest on defense and indemnity costs and reasonable attorney's fees incurred to recover from the subcontractor [see Civ. Code § 2782(e) (as amended effective January 1, 2009)]. Conversely, if, upon request by a subcontractor, a builder or general contractor that provides its own defense does not reallocate defense fees to subcontractors within 30 days following final resolution of the claim, the subcontractor has the right to pursue a claim against the builder or contractor for any resulting compensatory and consequential damages, as well as for interest on the fees and the subcontractor's reasonable attorney's fees incurred in pursuing the claim [see Civ. Code § 2782(e) (as amended effective January 1, 2009)]. In addition, these provisions protect the right of a builder, general contractor, or subcontractor to seek equitable indemnity for any claim covered by the provisions, including equitable indemnity from a supplier, design professional, or product manufacturer [Civ. Code § 2782(f), (g) (as amended effective January 1, 2009)].

For contracts or contractual amendments made after 2006 between a public agency and a design professional such as an architect, landscape architect, professional engineer, or land surveyor, agreements purporting to require the design professional to indemnify the public agency are unenforceable, except to the extent that the design professional agrees to be held liable for the design professional's own negligence, recklessness, or willful misconduct [Civ. Code § 2782.8(a)-(c)].

[3] Statutory Exception for Hauling, Trucking, or Cartage Contracts

There is also a statutory exception applicable to certain contracts for the transporation of goods that limits indemnity for a party's own negligence. Under Civ. Code § 2784.5, any provision, promise, agreement, clause, or covenant contained in, collateral to, or affecting any hauling, trucking, or cartage contract or agreement is against public policy, void, and unenforceable if it purports to indemnify the promisee against liability for damages for (1) death or bodily injury, (2) injury to property, or (3) any other damage or expense arising under (1) or (2), that are caused by the sole negligence or willful misconduct of the promisee, agents, and servants of the promisee, or independent contractors directly responsible to the promisee [Civ. Code § 2784.5]. Civ. Code § 2784.5 does not apply, however, if the promisee's agents, servants, and independent contractors are acting under the direct supervision and control of the promisor, and the statute does not affect the validity of any insurance contract, workers' compensation contract, or agreement issued by an admitted insurer as defined by Ins. Code §§ 23 and 24, or insurance effected by surplus-line brokers under Ins. Code §§ 1760-1780 [Civ. Code § 2784.5].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Express Contractual Indemnity

25-300 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 300.35

§ 300.35 Parties Entitled to Indemnification

In general, the only persons entitled to indemnification under an indemnity agreement are the indemnitee, someone in the indemnitee's right such as an assignee or a subrogee, and someone for whose benefit the agreement was expressly made [Van Der v. Hoof v. Chambon (1932) 121 Cal. App. 118, 130-131, 8 P.2d 925] . An agreement to indemnify several persons applies to each unless a contrary intention appears from the agreement [Civ. Code § 2776].

In certain situations, even an indemnitee will not be entitled to indemnification. For example, an unlicensed general contractor's express indemnity claims against negligent subcontractors may be precluded by Bus. & Prof. Code § 7031, which bars a person from suing in a California court to recover compensation for any act or contract that requires a California contractor's license, unless the person alleges and proves that he or she was licensed at all times during the performance [see Ranchwood Cmtys. Limited P'ship v. Jim Beat Constr. Co. (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 1397, 1404, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 386] , superseded by statute on other grounds as stated in White v. Cridlebaugh (2009) 178 Cal. App. 4th 506, 520-521, 100 Cal. Rptr. 3d 434 .

As in the case of other contracts, express third-party beneficiaries may enforce the agreement, but incidental beneficiaries of an indemnity agreement may not [Civ. Code § 1559; American Home Ins. Co. v. Travelers Indem. Co. (1981) 122 Cal. App. 3d 951, 967, 175 Cal. Rptr. 826 ; Southern Cal. Gas Co. v. ABC Constr. Co. (1962) 204 Cal. App. 2d 747, 752, 22 Cal. Rptr. 540] . Thus, unless an indemnity agreement or an applicable statute or ordinance clearly creates an obligation on the part of the indemnitor in favor of a person who is not a party to the agreement, such a person cannot recover from the indemnitor for damages that he or she has sustained, even though the person has an action against the indemnitee for the damages, the indemnitor appears in defense of the indemnitee during the action, and the indemnitee is entitled to indemnification for loss or liability resulting from the action [Van Der v. Hoof v. Chambon (1932) 121 Cal. App. 118, 130-131, 8 P.2d 925] . Civ. Code § 2777, which provides that an indemnitee and an indemnitor are jointly and severally liable to every person injured by an indemnified act of the indemnitee, only restates the common law rule applicable to an indemnitor whose agreement to indemnify has induced the indemnitee to commit an act that caused the injury; the statute does not directly obligate an indemnitor to a person whose injury occurred without the indemnitor's contribution [Treloar v. Keil & Hannon (1918) 36 Cal. App. 159, 168, 171 P. 823] .

An insurance company that satisfies a loss or liability incurred by its insured is subrogated to any rights of indemnity for the loss or liability that its insured may have by virtue of an indemnity agreement [Rossmoor Sanitation, Inc. v. Pylon, Inc. (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 622, 633-634, 119 Cal. Rptr. 449, 532 P.2d 97 ; see Bank of W. v. Valley Nat'l Bank of Ariz. (9th Cir. 1994) 41 F.3d 471, 480] . For discussion and forms related to subrogation, see Ch. 308, Insurance , and Ch. 536, Subrogation.

B. Express Contractual Indemnity

§ 300.36 Indemnitor's Duty to Defend

An indemnitor under an express indemnity agreement is bound, on the request of the indemnitee, to defend actions or proceedings brought against the latter in respect to thematters embraced in the agreement [Civ. Code § 2778(4)]. Whether an action or proceeding involves a matter against which an indemnitor is obligated to defend under an indemnity agreement depends not on whether the bare allegations of the complaint against the indemnitee state a cause of action against which the agreement provides protection, but on whether the broad charge of the complaint presents the potentiality of a judgment indemnified by the agreement [Davidson v. Welch (1969) 270 Cal. App. 2d 220, 233-234, 75 Cal. Rptr. 676] .

Unless the indemnity agreement provides otherwise, Civ. Code § 2778(4) effectively places in every indemnity contract a duty on the part of the indemnitor to assume the indemnitee's defense, if tendered, against all claims embraced by the indemnity agreement. This duty arises immediately upon a proper tender of defense by the indemnitee and does not first require a determination of whether indemnity is actually owed. Thus, this duty to defend does not depend on the outcome of the litigation for which defense is tendered [Crawford v. Weather Shield Mfg. Inc. (2008) 44 Cal. 4th 541, 557-558, 79 Cal. Rptr. 3d 721, 187 P.3d 424]. Moreover, it is not necessary that the underlying complaint allege negligence specifically on the part of the indemnitor in order to trigger a duty to defend on the part of that indemnitor. It is sufficient that the complaint describe factual circumstances that suggest the possible negligence of the indemnitor, and the indemnitee then specify in a cross-complaint or otherwise that at least some of the damage would have been caused by the indemnitor's negligence [UDC-Universal Development, L.P. v. CH2M Hill (2010) 181 Cal. App. 4th 10, 21, 103 Cal. Rptr. 3d 684] .

An indemnitor who refuses to provide a defense without a contractual basis for such refusal may subsequently owe damages in the form of reimbursement of defense costs to the indemnitee, regardless of whether the indemnitor is found liable for indemnity under the agreement [Crawford v. Weather Shield Mfg. Inc. (2008) 44 Cal. 4th 541, 557-558, 79 Cal. Rptr. 3d 721, 187 P.3d 424].

An indemnitee is always entitled to conduct its own defense rather than to rely on a defense provided by an express indemnitor [Civ. Code § 2778(4)]. For discussion asto whether the indemnitee is entitled to recover its attorney's fees and costs incurred in conducting its own defense, see § 300.41[2]. For a form for the indemnitee's notice of action and request to defend, to be given to the indemnitor, see § 300.170.

An indemnity contract is not construed in the same manner as an insurance policy with regard to the duty to defend because it is not necessarily an adhesion contract as is an insurance policy [Regan Roofing Co. v. Superior Court (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 425, 436, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 413 disapproved on other grounds in Crawford v. Weather Shield Mfg. Inc. (2008) 44 Cal. 4th 541, 565, 79 Cal. Rptr. 3d 721, 187 P.3d 424] . For discussion of the related issue of a liability insurer's duty to defend third-party claims against its insured, see Ch. 308, Insurance, § 308.110

§ 300.37 Accrual of Express Indemnification Rights

In the absence of a contrary provision in an indemnity contract, the time at which an obligation to indemnify accrues depends on whether or not the contract provides protection against liability or against loss [see § 300.31]. An obligation to hold an indemnitee harmless from a particular liability accrues as soon as the indemnitee incurs the liability [Civ. Code § 2778(1)]; the indemnitee is entitled to indemnification, for example, on the entry of a judgment fixing an indemnified liability [Showers v. Wadsworth (1889) 81 Cal. 270, 272-273, 22 P. 663] or on the contraction of an indemnified debt [Eva v. Andersen (1913) 166 Cal. 420, 423, 137 P. 16] without satisfying the liability or debt.

An obligation to protect an indemnitee from a particular loss, in contrast, accrues only when the indemnitee pays a legal obligation [Civ. Code § 2778(2); Gribaldo, Jacobs, Jones & Assocs. v. Agrippina Versicherunges A.G. (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 434, 446-447, 91 Cal. Rptr. 6, 476 P.2d 406] or otherwise sustains actual loss within the scope of an indemnity agreement [Weaver v. Grunbaum (1939) 31 Cal. App. 2d 42, 49-50, 87 P.2d 406 (loss on corporate securities sustained on corporation's insolvency)]. In the absence of such a loss, neither the indemnitee nor an express beneficiary of the agreement can recover from the indemnitor [Treloar v. Keil & Hannon (1918) 36 Cal. App. 159, 168-169, 171 P. 823] .

§ 300.40 Collateral Estoppel

[1] Effect of Indemnitee's Notice of Suit and Request to Defend

An indemnitor is not liable for payments made voluntarily by the indemnitee, that is, without the compulsion of an existing legal liability [Southern Cal. Gas Co. v. Ventura Pipe Line Constr. Co. (1957) 150 Cal. App. 2d 253, 257, 309 P.2d 849 ; see § 300.60 et seq. regarding the relationship between voluntary payment rule and settlement]. However, if, after request, an indemnitor neglects to defend the indemnitee in an action brought against the indemnitee, a recovery suffered by the indemnitee in good faith is conclusive of its liability against the indemnitor [Civ. Code § 2778(5)].

Notice of the action must be given within a reasonable time before trial, must inform the indemnitor of its responsibility with respect to the action's defense, and must indicate the consequences of a failure to defend [see Bendix-Westinghouse Auto. Air Brake Co. v. Swan Rubber Co. (1976) 55 Cal. App. 3d 256, 260-262, 127 Cal. Rptr. 571] . If the indemnitor does not receive reasonable notice of the action or proceeding against the indemnitee or is not allowed to control its defense, judgment against the indemnitee is only presumptive against the indemnitor [Civ. Code § 2778(6)]. A stipulation that a judgment against the indemnitee is conclusive against the indemnitor is inapplicable if the indemnitee has a good defense on the merits that, by want of ordinary care, the indemnitee failed to establish in the action [Civ. Code § 2778(7)].

Only recoveries by judgment against the indemnitee are "conclusive" for purposes of Civ. Code § 2778(5). An indemnitee who settles without a trial must show that the liability is covered by the contract, that liability existed, and the extent thereof. The settlement is presumptive evidence of liability and amount, but may be overcome by proof from the indemnitor that the settlement was unreasonable [Peter Culley & Assocs. v. Superior Court (1992) 10 Cal. App. 4th 1484, 1495-1497, 13 Cal. Rptr. 2d 624 ; see also Mel Clayton Ford v. Ford Motor Co. (2002) 104 Cal. App. 4th 46, 56-60, 127 Cal. Rptr. 2d 759] . If the settlement includes payment for both indemnified claims and non-indemnified claims, allocation of the settlement amount is an essential part of the claim for contractual indemnity, and the indemnitor has a right to a jury determination of allocation [Collins Dev. Co. v. D. J. Plastering, Inc. (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 771, 777, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 83 (trial court committed reversible error by determining allocation on basis of post-trial briefs)].

The good-faith requirement in the statute means that the proposed indemnitee must have actually presented a defense and be actually subject to liability under the judgment. The indemnitee cannot stipulate to liability in exchange for a covenant not to execute and then bind a proposed indemnitor on the judgment [Aero-Crete, Inc. v. Superior Court (1993) 21 Cal. App. 4th 203, 210-212, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 804] .

There are other specific statutes that also create the conclusive liability of an indemnitee if the indemnitor has been given notice of the action. If an officer or other person seasonably notifies an indemnitor on a bond or covenant of an action against the officer or person for an act indemnified by the bond or covenant and permits the indemnitor to defend the action, the judgment recovered in the action is conclusiveagainst the indemnitor. The indemnitee-defendant may then move, on five days' notice, for judgment against the indemnitor on the bond or covenant for the amount recovered and costs. The indemnitee must prove the bond or covenant, notice to the indemnitor, and permission to defend [Code Civ. Proc. § 1055]. Whether the term "covenant" in this statute includes an indemnity agreement other than a surety [see § 300.32[1]] is not clear. The procedure appears to have been seldom, if ever, used in situations other than involving undertakings [see, e.g., Culley v. Cochran (1930) 107 Cal. App. 525, 290 P. 484] .

Also, an intermediate purchaser of goods, sued for breach of warranty or another obligation for which his or her seller is answerable, may bind the seller by the result of the suit by giving the seller a written notice of the litigation tendering the defense of the suit to the seller and indicating that the seller will bebound by facts adjudicated in the suit in a subsequent suit by the purchaser against the seller [Com. Code § 2607(5)(a)].

[2] Determinations of Negligence

Principles of collateral estoppel may bar a party to an indemnity agreement from relitigating negligence issues that were determined in a prior action that determined the indemnitee's liability, in an indemnity action on the contract. An indemnitee who was found to have been actively negligent [see § 300.132[2][b]] in a prior action (or in a prior proceeding within the same action) is collaterally estopped from relitigating in the indemnity action the issue of the characterization of its negligence as active or passive [see Burlingame Motor Co. v. Peninsula Activities, Inc. (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 656, 663-664, 93 Cal. Rptr. 376 ; King v. Timber Structures, Inc. (1966) 240 Cal. App. 2d 178, 182, 183, 49 Cal. Rptr. 414] . Also, a determination in a prior action to which the indemnitor was a party that the indemnitor was negligent bars relitigation of any element of its negligence in a subsequent action on an indemnity agreement [see San Diego Gas & Elec. Co. v. Davey Tree Surgery Co. (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 1096, 1101, 96 Cal. Rptr. 889] .

See Ch. 491, Res Judicata , for discussion of and forms generally related to the doctrine of collateral estoppel.

[3] Subsequent Action on Contract

A party to a contract may be collaterally estopped from litigating matters that were determined in a prior indemnity action arising from the agreement. However, the indemnitee's complete performance of all terms and conditions of the contract is not a condition precedent to an action for contractual indemnity. All that is required is that the indemnitee have performed that portion of the contract that gives rise to the indemnification claim. The indemnitor may elect not to defend the indemnity action and still seek contract damages for the indemnitee's breach of the contract that is unrelated to the loss from which the indemnity rights arose [Four Star Elec., Inc. v. F & H Constr. (1992) 7 Cal. App. 4th 1375, 1379-1383, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1] .

Chapter 300 INDEMNITY AND CONTRIBUTION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Express Contractual Indemnity

25-300 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 300.41

§ 300.41 Amount of Indemnity

[1] In General

Recovery under an indemnity agreement against liability is measured by the amount of the indemnitee's liability [see Civ. Code § 2778(1)]. Recovery under an indemnity agreement against loss is measured by the amount of the actual loss sustained by the indemnitee [Civ. Code § 2778(2); Gribaldo, Jacobs, Jones & Assocs. v. Agrippina Versicherunges A.G. (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 434, 446-447, 91 Cal. Rptr. 6, 476 P.2d 406] .

[2] Attorney's Fees and Costs

[a] Incurred in Defending Against Liability

Indemnity for loss or liability under an express agreement encompasses the costs that an indemnitee has incurred in good faith and in the exercise of reasonable discretion in defending an action giving rise to the loss or liability [Civ. Code § 2778(3); Graves v. Moore (1881) 58 Cal. 435, 439] . Thus, an indemnitor is bound, on the indemnitee's request, to defend actions or proceedings brought against the indemnitee in respect to matters covered by the indemnity agreement [Civ. Code § 2778(4); see § 300.36].

Costs of defense include attorney's fees, court costs, and other expenditures necessary to an effectual defense [Showers v. Wadsworth (1889) 81 Cal. 270, 274, 22 P. 663 ; Tulare Co. Power Co. v. Pacific Sur. Co. (1919) 43 Cal. App. 315, 329, 185 P. 399] . The indemnitee's recovery of costs is limited either to the amount of the indemnitee's actual expenditures or to the amount that a court determines to be reasonable, whichever amount is less [Walsh v. Hooker & Fay (1963) 212 Cal. App. 2d 450, 462, 28 Cal. Rptr. 16] . The fact that the indemnitee's insurer has actually paid the costs of the defense does not relieve the indemnitor of the obligation [Bank of W. v. Valley Nat'l Bank of Ariz. (9th Cir. 1994) 41 F.3d 471, 480 ; see § 300.35 regarding a subrogated insurer's right to indemnity].

An indemnitee who is entitled to a defense at the expense of an indemnitor may conduct its own defense if it prefers [Civ. Code § 2778(4)]. However, an indemnitor is only liable for the indemnitee's costs of defense incurred in good faith and in the exercise of reasonable discretion [Civ. Code § 2778(3)]. Absent some contractual privilege to do so or some showing of sufficient justification or need, the indemnitee may not refuse to join in or cooperate with the indemnitor's defense and still recover its separate and redundant attorney's fees and costs. The indemnitee may not recover attorney's fees for its own participation in the defense if the intervention is not required by the terms of the agreement and was wholly voluntary and gratuitous [Buchalter v. Levin (1967) 252 Cal. App. 2d 367, 371-374, 60 Cal. Rptr. 369 ; see Goodman v. Severin (1969) 274 Cal. App. 2d 885, 897, 79 Cal. Rptr. 555] . However, if the indemnitor does not offer to provide a defense, the fact that the indemnitee provides its own defense without first tendering defense of the action to the indemnitor will not preclude the indemnitee from recovering its defense costs, at least in the absence of language in the indemnity agreement that demonstrates a contrary intent [City of Watsonville v. Corrigan (2007) 149 Cal. App. 4th 1542, 1548-1552, 58 Cal. Rptr. 3d 458] .

If an indemnitor is properly notified of an action brought against the indemnitee by a third-party and does not defend the action, thus causing the indemnitee to incur the costs and attorney's fees necessary in presenting its own defense, the costs are considered to have been incurred in good faith and in the exercise of reasonable discretion, and may be recovered from the indemnitor [Buchalter v. Levin (1967) 252 Cal. App. 2d 367, 371, 60 Cal. Rptr. 369 ; see County of San Joaquin v. Stockton Swim Club (1974) 42 Cal. App. 3d 968, 973, 117 Cal. Rptr. 300]. It is of no import if the indemnitee is never adjudged to be liable to the plaintiff in the underlying action [United States Elevator Corp. v. Pacific Inv. Co. (1994) 30 Cal. App. 4th 122, 126-129, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 382 (indemnitor rejected tendered defense, but obtained release of indemnitee under settlement)], nor if the indemnitor is never found liable for indemnity under the agreement [Crawford v. Weather Shield Mfg. Inc. (2008) 44 Cal. 4th 541, 557-558, 79 Cal. Rptr. 3d 721, 187 P.3d 424]. An indemnitee is also justified in rejecting the indemnitor's tendered defense and conducting its own defense at the indemnitor's expense if there is a conflict of interest between the parties and the defense provided by the indemnitor is not fully protective of the indemnitee's interests [see Safeway Stores, Inc. v. Massachusetts Bonding & Ins. Co. (1962) 202 Cal. App. 2d 99, 114-116, 20 Cal. Rptr. 820] .

[b] Incurred in Enforcing Indemnity Agreement

The majority view appears to be that the costs that an indemnitee incurs in prosecuting an action for indemnity against an indemnitor are not part of the loss or liability for which an indemnitee may be entitled to recover under an express agreement. Therefore, these costs may not be recovered by an indemnitee [Otis Elevator Co. v. Toda Constr. (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th 559, 563-566, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 404 ; Isthmian Lines, Inc. v. Schirmer Stevedoring Co. (1967) 255 Cal. App. 2d 607, 609, 63 Cal. Rptr. 458 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 1021 (attorney's fees not recoverable unless specifically provided for by statute)] unless the indemnity agreement provides for their recovery [Fidelity & Deposit Co. v. Whitson (1960) 187 Cal. App. 2d 751, 759, 10 Cal. Rptr. 6 ; see Hillman v. Leland E. Burns, Inc. (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 860, 869-870, 257 Cal. Rptr. 535 ; County of San Joaquin v. Stockton Swim Club (1974) 42 Cal. App. 3d 968, 974, 117 Cal. Rptr. 300 (absent provision in indemnity agreement, attorneys' fees not allowed on successful appeal establishing indemnity)]. There is authority to the contrary, however, permitting recovery of costs and attorney's fees incurred in the prosecution of the indemnification claim, including fees and costs incurred on appeal [see De Witt v. Western Pac. R.R. Co. (9th Cir. 1983) 719 F.2d 1448, 1452-1453 ; Nicholson-Brown, Inc. v. City of San Jose (1976) 62 Cal. App. 3d 526, 537, 133 Cal. Rptr. 159 (disapproved on other grounds in Bullis v. Security Pac. Nat'l Bank (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 801, 815 n.18, 148 Cal. Rptr. 22, 582 P.2d 109); Schackman v. Universal Pictures Co. (1967) 255 Cal. App. 2d 857, 863, 63 Cal. Rptr. 607] .

[3] Interest

Under Civ. Code § 3287(a), every person who has a right to recover damages certain or capable of being made certain by calculation, which right to recover vests in the person on a particular day, is entitled to interest on those damages from that day. Accordingly, an indemnitee who incurs a liability that is indemnified under an agreement against liability is entitled to interest on the amount of the liability from the day on which the liability becomes fixed by a final judgment or by other means [Hertzka & Knowles v. Salter (1970) 6 Cal. App. 3d 325, 339-340, 86 Cal. Rptr. 23] . An indemnitee who sustains an actual loss that is indemnified under an agreement against loss is entitled to interest on the amount of the loss from the day that the loss is sustained by the payment of a legal obligation [Tulare Co. Power Co. v. Pacific Sur. Co. (1919) 43 Cal. App. 315, 329, 185 P. 399] .

C. Comparative Indemnity Among Tortfeasors

25-300 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 300.60

§ 300.60 Governing Law

Comparative indemnity among multiple tortfeasors is governed primarily by case law, principally American Motorcycle Ass'n v. Superior Court (1978) 20 Cal. 3d 578, 599, 146 Cal. Rptr. 182, 578 P.2d 899 . The effect of a release, dismissal, or covenant not to sue on the right to comparative indemnity is covered by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 877 and 877.6.

A right of "contribution" among joint tortfeasor judgment debtors is stated in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 875, 876, 878-880. However, statutory pro rata contribution has been largely subsumed by comparative indemnity principles [see Safeway Stores, Inc. v. Nest-Kart (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 322, 327-333, 146 Cal. Rptr. 550, 579 P.2d 441 ; American Motorcycle Ass'n v. Superior Court (1978) 20 Cal. 3d 578, 599-604, 146 Cal. Rptr. 182, 578 P.2d 899] .

The Fair Responsibility Act of 1986 (Proposition 51), modifying joint and several liability, is codified at Civ. Code §§ 1431.1-1431.5.

Chapter 300 INDEMNITY AND CONTRIBUTION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Comparative Indemnity Among Tortfeasors

25-300 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 300.61

§ 300.61 Implied Equitable (Comparative) Indemnity

[1] General Principle

Implied equitable indemnity (hereafter, comparative indemnity; see § 300.61[3]) is a method of apportioning liability among those who are responsible for another's personal injury or property damage [see American Motorcycle Ass'n v. Superior Court (1978) 20 Cal. 3d 578, 599-604, 146 Cal. Rptr. 182, 578 P.2d 899 ; see § 300.61[2]].

At a minimum, equitable indemnity requires a determination of fault on the part of the alleged indemnitor. In the absence of a contractual agreement between the parties concerning allocation of fault, a court determination that neither party was at fault precludes either from obtaining indemnity against the other [City of Huntington Beach v. City of Westminster (1997) 57 Cal App. 4th 220, 225, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 826] . Comparative indemnity is based on the comparative fault principles enunciated in Li v. Yellow Cab Co. (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 804, 119 Cal. Rptr. 858, 532 P.2d 1226 . Comparative fault involves an allocation of fault by the trier of fact forthe plaintiff's injuries. A total of 100 percent of the fault must be distributed among all tortfeasors, including parties and nonparties, and also to the plaintiff for his or her own comparative negligence, if any [American Motorcycle Ass'n v. Superior Court (1978) 20 Cal. 3d 578, 589 n.2, 146 Cal. Rptr. 182, 578 P.2d 899 ; see Bly-Magee v. Budget Rent-A-Car Corp. (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 318, 325-326, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 330 ; BAJI No. 16.72, Question 8 (7th ed.)]. Comparative indemnity is then based on the percentage of comparative fault that a tortfeasor is assigned. For example, a tortfeasor who is allocated 25 percent of the comparative fault but who has paid 50 percent of the plaintiff's damages has a general right to comparative indemnity from other tortfeasors for half of the payment, subject to the limitations explained elsewhere in this chapter.

[2] Development of Indemnity Theory in Tort Actions

The allocation of damages among multiple tortfeasors was historically analyzed in terms of two mutually exclusive doctrines: contribution and equitable indemnity (also sometimes called implied indemnity or implied equitable indemnity). In traditional terms, contribution provided that liability be shared by tortfeasors who were jointly liable for the same tort, whereas indemnity covered situations in which one party who was liable for a tort was able to shift the loss entirely to another party. Implied equitable indemnity was an all-or-nothing doctrine that provided a right to total indemnity (1) in favor of a passively negligent tortfeasor against an actively negligent or at fault tortfeasor who was primarily responsible for the damage to the plaintiff, and (2) in favor of a secondarily liable person (who was not a tortfeasor at all, but only vicariously or derivatively liable) against a primarily liable person (the actual tortfeasor). If both tortfeasors were actively negligent or at fault, there was no right of indemnity between them, so that if the injured party settled with or recovered a judgment against one active tortfeasor, that tortfeasor could not recover any part of the amount he or she paid to the injured party from another active tortfeasor [see American Motorcycle Ass'n v. Superior Court (1978) 20 Cal. 3d 578, 591-592, 146 Cal. Rptr. 182, 578 P.2d 899 (tracing development of doctrines of contribution and indemnity)].

Prior to 1958, the doctrine that "the law will not aid a wrongdoer" prevailed, and there was no right to contribution in California. If one of several tortfeasors against whom a joint and several judgment was rendered paid an entire judgment against them, he or she was not able to exact any share of payment from his or her cotortfeasor judgment debtors [see, e.g., Byron Jackson Co. v. Woods (1940) 41 Cal. App. 2d 777, 783, 107 P.2d 639] . Total indemnity was the only method available for shifting liability from one jointly liable party to another.

In 1957, Code Civ. Proc. §§ 875-877, 878 were enacted to provide for a right of contribution among joint tortfeasors. Under these provisions, each joint tortfeasor against whom a joint and several judgment was rendered was ultimately liable only for his or her pro rata share of the judgment (divided among the number of joint judgment debtor tortfeasors in equal shares), and, if one defendant satisfied more than his or her pro rata share of the judgment, the tortfeasor judgment debtor who had paid an amount in excess of his or her pro rata share could recover judgment for the excess amount under the law of contribution from his or her cojudgment debtors [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 875, 876, 878]. However, under the law at that time, if a plaintiff failed to sue one or more of the joint tortfeasors, there was no way the defendant tortfeasors could compel their joinder or bring them into the action by cross complaint. The result was that the tortfeasors sued would be liable to plaintiff for the full amount of the judgment rendered, and there was no way they could obtain contribution from the nonsued joint tortfeasors.

In 1975, California abandoned contributory negligence as a complete bar to a plaintiff's recovery, and adopted in its place comparative negligence based on principles of comparative fault. Under comparative negligence, a plaintiff's recovery is reduced only by the percentage that reflects the proportion of his or her fault [see Li v. Yellow Cab Co. (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 804, 813, 119 Cal. Rptr. 858, 532 P.2d 1226] . With the advent of comparative fault principles, further changes in the doctrines of contribution and equitable indemnity followed.

In 1978, in American Motorcycle Ass'n v. Superior Court (1978) 20 Cal. 3d 578, 591, 598, 146 Cal. Rptr. 182, 578 P.2d 899 , the California Supreme Court modified the equitable indemnity doctrine to permit a concurrent tortfeasor to obtain partial indemnity from other concurrent tortfeasors on a comparative fault basis. Under the comparative fault approach, a tortfeasor is only ultimately liable for damages based on his or her percentage of fault in causing plaintiff's damages [see § 300.61[1]]. The common law doctrine of comparative indemnity has, in effect, superseded statutory pro rata contribution among tortfeasors [see Safeway Stores, Inc. v. Nest-Kart (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 322, 327-328, 146 Cal. Rptr. 550, 579 P.2d 441 ; American Motorcycle Ass'n v. Superior Court (1978) 20 Cal. 3d 578, 599-605, 146 Cal. Rptr. 182, 578 P.2d 899 ; see also § 300.74].

[3] Nomenclature

Nomenclature for the right created by American Motorcycle has been a cumbersome matter. However, the California Supreme Court has made it reasonably clear that there are only two indemnity doctrines in California. One is express contractual indemnity [see § 300.30 et seq.]. The other may be called "implied" indemnity, "equitable" indemnity, or "comparative" indemnity, or any combination of these terms [see Bay Dev., Ltd. v. Superior Court (1990) 50 Cal. 3d 1012, 1028-1035, 269 Cal. Rptr. 720, 791 P.2d 290 ; Far W. Fin. Corp. v. D & S Co. (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 796, 808, 251 Cal. Rptr. 202, 760 P.2d 399] .

Under California law, a right of indemnity is either express or implied [see Rossmoor Sanitation, Inc. v. Pylon, Inc.

(1975) 13 Cal. 3d 622, 628, 119 Cal. Rptr. 449, 532 P.2d 97]. In Bay Dev., Ltd. v. Superior Court (1990) 50 Cal. 3d 1012, 1028-1035, 269 Cal. Rptr. 720, 791 P.2d 290 , the California Supreme Court clarified that all implied indemnity finds its source in equitable considerations brought into play either by contractual language not specifically dealing with indemnification or by the equities of the particular case. That is, all implied indemnity, including implied contractual indemnity, is equitable indemnity [see § 300.61[5]]). In Far W. Fin. Corp. v. D & S Co. (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 796, 808, 251 Cal. Rptr. 202, 760 P.2d 399 , the Court held that there were not two separate equitable indemnity doctrines in California, one for partial and the other for total indemnity, but a single "comparative indemnity" doctrine, which permits partial indemnification on a comparative fault basis or a total shift of liability, depending on the facts and circumstances of a given case [see § 300.61[4]]. Thus, the Court appears to prefer "comparative indemnity" to describe the doctrine, and this term will be the principal one used in this chapter.

After American Motorcycle, there has also been a tendency to interchange the terms "indemnity" and "contribution" with reference to apportionment of fault on a comparative basis [see, e.g., Far W. Fin. Corp. v. D & S Co. (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 796, 801, 251 Cal. Rptr. 202, 760 P.2d 399 (cross complaint for "partial contribution"); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 877.6(c) (referring to "equitable comparative contribution")]. This probably occurs because of the Court's holding in American Motorcycle that Code Civ. Proc. § 877(b), which provides that a good faith settlement extinguishes contribution rights, also extinguishes any claim for comparative indemnity [American Motorcycle Ass'n v. Superior Court (1978) 20 Cal. 3d 578, 603-604, 146 Cal. Rptr. 182, 578 P.2d 899 ; see § 300.73[4]]. Nevertheless, the two doctrines remain distinct [see § 300.13], and an apportionment of tort liability according to comparative fault is made under principles of indemnity and not of contribution [see Code Civ. Proc. § 876 (contribution is equal division of liability among all tortfeasors)].

[4] Total Indemnity

Prior to the adoption of comparative fault principles in California, a right of implied equitable indemnity shifted the entire loss from one tortfeasor to another, regardless of whether both were joined as defendants by the injured plaintiff. It was not available if the fault of each party was equal in grade and similar in character [Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co. v. Lan Franco (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 881, 886, 73 Cal. Rptr. 660] . Thus, total equitable indemnity was allowed if, as between two tortfeasors, the liability of one for a tort loss was secondary and based on passive misconduct and the liability of the other was primary and based on active misconduct [Aerojet Gen. Corp. v. D. Zelinsky & Sons (1967) 249 Cal. App. 2d 604, 607, 57 Cal. Rptr. 701] . Secondary liability, in contrast to primary liability, was founded on a fault that was constructive or imputed as a result of some legal relation, some positive rule of common or statutory law, or a failure to discover or correct a dangerous condition caused by the act of the one primarily responsible [Angelus Assocs. Corp. v. Neonex Leisure Prods., Inc. (1985) 167 Cal. App. 3d 532, 535-536, 213 Cal. Rptr. 403 ; Bill Loeper Ford v. Hites (1975) 47 Cal. App. 3d 828, 832, 121 Cal. Rptr. 131 ; Cobb v. Southern Pac. Co. (1967) 251 Cal. App. 2d 929, 933, 59 Cal. Rptr. 916] .

The "all-or-nothing" rule of implied equitable indemnity was modified by the California Supreme Court in American Motorcycle Ass'n v. Superior Court (1978) 20 Cal. 3d 578, 591, 146 Cal. Rptr. 182, 578 P.2d 899 , to permit partial equitable indemnity on a comparative fault basis if both defendants are partially at fault in causing the plaintiff's harm. However, under comparative indemnity, the trier of fact may still determine that the facts and equities in a particular case support a complete shifting of loss from one tortfeasor to another, that is, that one party bears 100 percent of the fault and another bears none [see Far W. Fin. Corp. v. D & S Co. (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 796, 808, 812-813, 251 Cal. Rptr. 202, 760 P.2d 399] . Therefore, total loss-shifting may be justified in cases of vicarious liability [see E. L. White, Inc. v. City of Huntington Beach (1982) 138 Cal. App. 3d 366, 376, 187 Cal. Rptr. 879] , superseded by statute on other grounds as stated in Black Diamond Asphalt, Inc. v. Superior Court (2003) 114 Cal. App. 4th 109, 7 Cal. Rptr. 3d 466 ; implied contractual indemnity [see Bay Dev., Ltd. v. Superior Court (1990) 50 Cal. 3d 1012, 1034-1035, 269 Cal. Rptr. 720, 791 P.2d 290 ; see also § 300.61[5]]; indemnity implied from a license with a public entity [see City & County of San Francisco v. Ho Sing (1958) 51 Cal. 2d 127, 130, 138, 330 P.2d 802 ; County of Alameda v. Southern Pac. Co. (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 479, 484, 11 Cal. (1956) 46 Cal. 2d 423, 428, 296 P.2d 801 (indemnity from employee to employer); see also Ch. 248, Employer's Liability for Employee's Torts]; and indemnity from an intentional tortfeasor to a negligent tortfeasor [see Cicone v. URS Corp. (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 194, 212-213, 227 Cal. Rptr. 887] .

Even if a total shift of loss may be appropriate, the indemnitee's equitable indemnity claim does not differ in its fundamental nature from other comparative indemnity claims [Far W. Fin. Corp. v. D & S Co. (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 796, 808, 251 Cal. Rptr. 202, 760 P.2d 399] . Therefore, a tort defendant who has entered into a good faith settlement within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 877.6(c) is absolved of any further liability for all equitable indemnity claims, including claims seeking total equitable indemnity [Far W. Fin. Corp. v. D & S Co. (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 796, 800, 817 ; see § 300.73[4]].

[5] Implied Contractual Indemnity

Implied contractual indemnity is a form of equitable indemnity in which the equitable considerations are brought into play by contractual language not specifically dealing with indemnification [Bay Dev., Ltd. v. Superior Court (1990) 50 Cal. 3d 1012, 1029, 269 Cal. Rptr. 720, 791 P.2d 290 ; E. L. White, Inc. v. City of Huntington Beach (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 497, 506-507, 146 Cal. Rptr. 614, 579 P.2d 505] . Implied contractual indemnity is based on the premise that a contractual obligation to perform carries with it an implied agreement to indemnify and to discharge foreseeable damages resulting from negligent performance [Bear Creek Planning Comm. v. Title Ins. & Trust Co. (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 1227, 1237, 211 Cal. Rptr. 172 , disapproved on other grounds, Bay Dev., Ltd. v. Superior Court (1990) 50 Cal. 3d 1012, 1032 n.12, 269 Cal. Rptr. 720, 791 P.2d 290 ; see West v. Superior Court (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th 1625, 1633, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 409 (reaffirming language of Bear Creek after Bay Development)]. Thus, if A incurs liability to P solely because of B's negligent performance of a contractual obligation owed by B to A, A may recover total indemnity from B for the damages that A must pay to P [see, e.g., Bear Creek Planning Comm. v. Title Ins. & Trust Co. (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 1227, 1237, 1240-1243, 211 Cal. Rptr. 172 , disapproved on other grounds, Bay Dev., Ltd. v. Superior Court (1990) 50 Cal. 3d 1012, 1032 n.12, 269 Cal. Rptr. 720, 791 P.2d 290 (homeowners' association may recover total indemnity from title company for liability incurred because of title company's negligent failure to record deed restrictions); Great W. Furniture Co. v. Porter Corp. (1965) 238 Cal. App. 2d 502, 517, 48 Cal. Rptr. 76 ; Alisal Sanitary Dist. v. Kennedy (1960) 180 Cal. App. 2d 69, 78-79, 4 Cal. Rptr. 379] .

The California Supreme Court has reaffirmed that, under appropriate facts, total indemnity is available to one who incurs liability to a third party solely because of another's breach of a contractual duty [Bay Dev., Ltd. v. Superior Court (1990) 50 Cal. 3d 1012, 1034-1035, 269 Cal. Rptr. 720, 791 P.2d 290 ; see Far W. Fin. Corp. v. D & S Co. (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 796, 808, 251 Cal. Rptr. 202, 760 P.2d 399 (in comparative indemnity action based on implied equitable principles, trier of fact may determine that facts and equities of the case support complete shifting of loss from one tortfeasor to another); § 300.61[4]]. However, implied contractual indemnity cannot be recovered from a party whose settlement with the tort victim is confirmed as in good faith under Code of Civil Procedure Section 877.6 [Bay Dev., Ltd. v. Superior Court (1990) 50 Cal. 3d 1012, 1028-1035, 269 Cal. Rptr. 720, 791 P.2d 290 ; see § 300.73[4]]. Whether the facts of a particular case require a complete shifting of the loss is to be determined at the good faith hearing [see West v. Superior Court (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th 1625, 1635-1637, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 409 , as discussed in § 300.73[5][c]]. For a form for a complaint for implied contractual indemnity, see § 300.192.

In Bay Development, the Court broadly stated that, as a form of equitable indemnity, implied contractual indemnity is subject to the rules governing equitable indemnity [Bay Dev., Ltd. v. Superior Court (1990) 50 Cal. 3d 1012, 1033, 269 Cal. Rptr. 720, 791 P.2d 290] . Thus, if the trier of fact apportions fault between the two parties under comparative fault principles, there are no further implied contractual indemnity rights by which one party may shift the loss entirely to the other [Kramer v. Cedu Found., Inc. (1979) 93 Cal. App. 3d 1, 12-13, 155 Cal. Rptr. 552 ; see Stratton v. Peat, Marwick, Mitchell & Co. (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 286, 290-291, 235 Cal. Rptr. 374 ; IRM Corp. v. Carlson (1986) 179 Cal. App. 3d 94, 109-110, 224 Cal. Rptr. 438] . Similarly, in a subsequent case, the Supreme Court held that as with any claim for equitable indemnity, in a claim for implied contractual indemnity, the alleged indemnitor does not owe indemnity for liability imposed on the indemnitee if the indemnitor cannot be held liable directly to the injured third party, as, for example, when the indemnitor is statutorily immune from liability to the injured third party [Prince v. Pacific Gas & Electric Co. (2009) 45 Cal. 4th 1151, 1165, 90 Cal. Rptr. 3d 732, 202 P.3d 1115 (utility's immunity from liability to tort victim under recreational use immunity of Civ. Code § 846 prevented landowner from obtaining implied contractual indemnity from utility for landowner's liability to victim); see generally § 300.63].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Comparative Indemnity Among Tortfeasors

25-300 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 300.62

§ 300.62 Conduct Compared

[1] Strict Liability

Comparative indemnity rights are not limited to codefendants who are both alleged to be liable to the plaintiff on a negligence theory. A right of comparative indemnity exists between a defendant who is alleged to have been negligent and another whose liability rests on a theory of strict liability [Safeway Stores, Inc. v. Nest-Kart (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 322, 331-332, 146 Cal. Rptr. 550, 579 P.2d 441 ; Yamaha Motor Corp. v. Paseman (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 958, 966-971, 268 Cal. Rptr. 514 (comparative indemnity allowed between strictly liable manufacturer, and consumer-purchaser who allegedly was negligent in maintaining product)]. Thus, comparative fault principles govern a claim for indemnity made by a strictly liable defendant against joint tortfeasors whose liability is based on negligence [Expressions at Rancho Niguel Ass'n v. Ahmanson Devs., Inc. (2001) 86 Cal. App. 4th 1135, 1140-1143, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 895 (comparative fault, rather than principles of joint and several liability, governs indemnification of strictly liable tortfeasors by negligent tortfeasor for amounts paid to settle plaintiffs' claims)]. Comparative indemnity is also available among defendants, each of whom is alleged to be liable to the plaintiff on a strict liability theory [GEM Developers v. Hallcraft Homes of San Diego, Inc. (1989) 213 Cal. App. 3d 419, 425-430, 261 Cal. Rptr. 626 ; Gentry Constr. Co. v. Superior Court (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 177, 180-183, 260 Cal. Rptr. 421] .

[2] Willful Misconduct and Intentional Conduct

Willful or reckless misconduct may be compared with any other kind of negligence, and therefore, rights of comparative indemnity exist both in favor of and against the reckless tortfeasor [see Allen v. Sundean (1982) 137 Cal. App. 3d 216, 225-226, 186 Cal. Rptr. 863 ; Southern Pac. Transp. Co. v. State of California (1981) 115 Cal. App. 3d 116, 121, 171 Cal. Rptr. 187 ; Sorensen v. Allred (1980) 112 Cal. App. 3d 717, 723, 169 Cal. Rptr. 441] . However, there is a split in authority regarding an intentional tortfeasor's ability to obtain indemnity under any circumstances. It has been held that an intentional tortfeasor has no right of indemnity [Allen v. Sundean (1982) 137 Cal. App. 3d 216, 226-227, 186 Cal. Rptr. 863 ; see Heiner v. Kmart Corp. (2000) 84 Cal. App. 4th 335, 348-350, 100 Cal. Rptr. 2d 854 (although defendant waived argument, court concluded comparative fault was inapplicable to battery claim)]. At least one court, however, has retreated from this position, allowing one intentional tortfeasor whose conduct was deemed far less egregious to obtain indemnity from a concurrent intentional tortfeasor [see Baird v. Jones (1993) 21 Cal. App. 4th 684, 690-693, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 232 ; see also Weidenfeller v. Star & Garter (1991) 1 Cal. App. 4th 1, 5-7, 2 Cal. Rptr. 2d 14] . A negligent tortfeasor may seek total indemnity from an intentional cotortfeasor [Cicone v. URS Corp. (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 194, 211-213, 227 Cal. Rptr. 887 (involving alleged negligent reliance on another's fraud)].

[3] Vicarious Liability

Historically, the conduct of an employer or principal who is only vicariously liable has not been compared with that of his or her employee or agent that gave rise to the liability. The employee or agent is assigned a percentage of comparative fault, and the employer or principal is jointly and severally liable for the employee's or agent's share [see Code Civ. Proc. § 876(b) (applicable to pro rata contribution); Far W. Fin. Corp. v. D & S Co. (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 796, 819, 251 Cal. Rptr. 202, 760 P.2d 399 (Kaufman, J., dissenting)]. However, there is a suggestion from the California Supreme Court that this approach is incorrect and that vicarious liability is as amenable to comparison as is strict liability [see Far W. Fin. Corp. v. D & S Co. (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 796, 812-814, 813 n.13, 251 Cal. Rptr. 202, 760 P.2d 399 ; see also Mayhugh v. County of Orange (1983) 141 Cal. App. 3d 763, 764-767, 190 Cal. Rptr. 537 (good faith settlement with active tortfeasor does not release vicariously liable party); but see Srithong v. Total Inv. Co. (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 721, 726-728, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 672 ; Rashtian v. BRAC-BH, Inc. (1992) 9 Cal. App. 4th 1847, 1854, 12 Cal. Rptr. 2d 411 ; Miller v. Stouffer (1992) 9 Cal. App. 4th 70, 84-85, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 454 (all treating vicarious liability as involving single share of comparative negligence for which actively negligent and vicarious liable parties are jointly and severally liable, and all refusing to apply Proposition 51 to situation); see generally § 300.63[3]].

Civ. Code § 1714.1, which imposes vicarious liability on a parent for the willful misconduct of a child up to a maximum statutory amount, has been construed to inure not only to the benefit of an injured person, but also to the benefit of other tortfeasors. Therefore, a joint tortfeasor may join the parents and child as defendants and obtain equitable indemnity in the form of a reduction in liability up to the statutory amount, whether or not the plaintiff has proceeded against the child [Curry v. Superior Court (1993) 20 Cal. App. 4th 180, 183-189, 24 Cal. Rptr. 2d 495] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Comparative Indemnity Among Tortfeasors

25-300 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 300.63

§ 300.63 Requirement of Joint and Several Liability

[1] In General

Comparative indemnity is available only among tortfeasors who are jointly and severally liable to the plaintiff [GEM Developers v. Hallcraft Homes of San Diego, Inc. (1989) 213 Cal. App. 3d 419, 430, 261 Cal. Rptr. 626 ; Woodward-Gizienski & Assocs. v. Geotechnical Exploration, Inc. (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 64, 68-69, 255 Cal. Rptr. 800 ; Munoz v. Davis (1983) 141 Cal. App. 3d 420, 425, 190 Cal. Rptr. 400 ; see § 300.14]. However, the term "joint tortfeasor" has been broadly defined with regard to indemnity rights. It extends to any transaction that rests on related facts, either concurrent or successive, joint or several, that legally creates a detriment compensable against multiple actors [Yamaha Motor Corp. v. Paseman (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 958, 964-965, 268 Cal. Rptr. 514 (persons who have negligently maintained and repaired defective product may be jointly and severally liable with manufacturer); GEM Developers v. Hallcraft Homes of San Diego, Inc. (1989) 213 Cal. App. 3d 419, 431, 261 Cal. Rptr. 626] .

Parties are not jointly and severally liable, and thus there is no right of comparative indemnity between them, if either the indemnitee or the indemnitor is determined to have no liability to the tort victim [see Woodward-Gizienski & Assocs. v. Geotechnical Exploration, Inc. (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 64, 68, 255 Cal. Rptr. 800 (indemnitee not liable for damages paid for which indemnity was sought); Allis-Chalmers Corp. v. Superior Court (1985) 168 Cal. App. 3d 1155, 1157-1159, 214 Cal. Rptr. 615 (no indemnity because indemnitor was determined by pretrial motion to not be liable to victim); see also § 300.65]. Thus, an indemnitor that can establish that it owed no duty to the tort victim cannot be liable to a cotortfeasor for compartive indemnity [Seamen's Bank v. Superior Court (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 1485, 1491-1492, 236 Cal. Rptr. 31 ; Munoz v. Davis (1983) 141 Cal. App. 3d 420, 425-427, 190 Cal. Rptr. 400] . Even if the claim is brought as one for implied contractual indemnity, which is still equitable in nature [see § 300.61[5]], the alleged indemnitor does not owe indemnity for liability imposed on the indemnitee if the indemnitor cannot be held liable directly to the injured third party, as, for example, when the indemnitor is statutorily immune from liability to the injured third party [Prince v. Pacific Gas & Electric Co. (2009) 45 Cal. 4th 1151, 1165, 90 Cal. Rptr. 3d 732, 202 P.3d 1115 (utility's immunity from liability to tort victim under recreational use immunity of Civ. Code § 846 prevented landowner from obtaining implied contractual indemnity from utility for landowner's liability to victim)].

Similarly, if the only duties allegedly violated by the indemnitor are contractual duties owed to the tort victim, and if the indemnitor had no contractual relationship with the tortfeasor and there is no other basis for holding the indemnitor liable in tort, the indemnitor cannot be liable for comparative indemnity to the tortfeasor [BFGC Architects Planners, Inc. v. Forcum/Mackey Constr., Inc. (2004) 119 Cal. App. 4th 848, 852-853, 14 Cal. Rptr. 3d 721 ; see also Stop Loss Ins. Brokers, Inc. v. Brown & Toland Medical Group (2006) 143 Cal. App. 4th 1036, 1040-1044, 49 Cal. Rptr. 3d 609] .

However, rights of indemnity between tortfeasors do not require the existence of any duty from the indemnitor to the indemnitee [Jaffe v. Huxley Architecture (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 1188, 1192, 246 Cal. Rptr. 432 ; see GEM Developers v. Hallcraft Homes of San Diego, Inc. (1989) 213 Cal. App. 3d 419, 429 n.2, 261 Cal. Rptr. 626 ; see also Yamaha Motor Corp. v. Paseman (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 958, 969, 268 Cal. Rptr. 514] .

There is a possible exception to this rule in situations in which the right to indemnity arises from an agent's negligent performance of a duty to a principal that causes the principal to incur liability to a third party [see, e.g., Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. v. Haslam (1994) 29 Cal. App. 4th 1347, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 135] . In these situations, it is questionable whether joint and several liability to the tort victim is actually required, although no court has yet expressly rejected it [cf. Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. v. Haslam (1994) 29 Cal. App. 4th 1347, 1356, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 135 (agent was liable for indemnity because breached duties owed directly to principal, which caused loss to principal; whether or not agent owed any duty to tort victim was irrelevant because it was not breach of any such duty that formed basis of liability)].

[2] Subsequent Tortfeasors

An original tortfeasor may be jointly and severally liable with a subsequent tortfeasor whose negligence aggravated the injury [see Blecker v. Wolbart (1985) 167 Cal. App. 3d 1195, 1200-1202, 213 Cal. Rptr. 781] . However, the imposition of joint and several liability under these circumstances requires a two-step duty analysis. First, there must be a duty on the part of the original tortfeasor toward the tort victim to establish the original tort. Then, there must also be a duty on the part of the original tortfeasor toward the victim with regard to the aggravated injury because of the acts of the subsequent tortfeasor. Such a duty usually requires a foreseeability analysis; that is, might the orginal tortfeasor foresee that the subsequent tort might occur [see Munoz v. Davis (1983) 141 Cal. App. 3d 420, 426-428, 190 Cal. Rptr. 400] .

The above test has been applied to subsequent medical malpractice and subsequent legal malpractice with opposite results. Subject to limitations on liability for noneconomic damages imposed by Proposition 51 [see Henry v. Superior Court (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 440, 455, 72 Cal. Rptr. 3d 808 ; Marina Emergency Med. Group v. Superior Court (2000) 84 Cal. App. 4th 435, 439-441, 100 Cal. Rptr. 2d 866 ; see also § 300.63[3][d]], an original tortfeasor is liable for the damages caused by subsequent negligent medical treatment as a matter of law and may seek indemnity from the subsequent medical tortfeasor [Blecker v. Wolbart (1985) 167 Cal. App. 3d 1195, 1200, 213 Cal. Rptr. 781 ; Niles v. City of San Rafael (1974) 42 Cal. App. 3d 230, 237-240, 116 Cal. Rptr. 733 ; Herrero v. Atkinson (1964) 227 Cal. App. 2d 69, 74-77, 38 Cal. Rptr. 490 ; see Ash v. Mortensen (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 654, 657, 150 P.2d 876] . One court has held, however, that there is no joint and several liability between an original tortfeasor and a subsequent legal malpractice tortfeasor, because the subsequent legal malpractice is not foreseeable to the original tortfeasor [Munoz v. Davis (1983) 141 Cal. App. 3d 420, 426-428, 190 Cal. Rptr. 400] .

Although an original tortfeasor may be liable for all damages proximately caused, including those caused by the subsequent tortfeasor, the subsequent tortfeasor is liable only for the aggravation of damages caused by the subsequent tort. Therefore, an apportionment is required by the trier of fact between the amount of damages attributable to the original injury and the amount of damages caused by the subsequent malpractice [Niles v. City of San Rafael (1974) 42 Cal. App. 3d 230, 240, 116 Cal. Rptr. 733] .

The original tortfeasor is entitled to indemnity from the subsequent tortfeasor with regard to the damages attributed to the aggravation [Niles v. City of San Rafael (1974) 42 Cal. App. 3d 230, 237-240, 116 Cal. Rptr. 733 ; Herrero v.

Atkinson (1964) 227 Cal. App. 2d 69, 74-77, 38 Cal. Rptr. 490] . The subsequent tortfeasor has no right to recover indemnity from the original tortfeasor because the subsequent tortfeasor has no liability for the original injuries [see Munoz v. Davis (1983) 141 Cal. App. 3d 420, 429, 190 Cal. Rptr. 400] . However, the subsequent tortfeasor should have the sameright as the original tortfeasor to obtain comparative indemnity with regard to the damages attributed to aggravation [see Blecker v. Wolbart (1985) 167 Cal. App. 3d 1195, 1203-1204, 213 Cal. Rptr. 781 ; but see Munoz v. Davis (1983) 141 Cal. App. 3d 420, 429, 190 Cal. Rptr. 400 (dicta stating that comparative indemnity is never available to a subsequent tortfeasor from an original tortfeasor because the subsequent tortfeasor is not liable for the original injury)].

In determining indemnity rights with regard to aggravation of injury, the respective conduct of the tortfeasors and not the extent of the injuries caused by each must be considered by the trier of fact in ascertaining fault. Under comparative negligence, it is for the trier of fact to consider the respective degree of fault as between the conduct of the original and successive tortfeasors, not the extent of the plaintiff's injuries before and after the subsequent tort [Blecker v. Wolbart (1985) 167 Cal. App. 3d 1195, 1203-1204, 213 Cal. Rptr. 781] .

[a] Generally

Prior to enactment of the Fair Responsibility Act of 1986 (Proposition 51), in actions against two or more tortfeasors for damages for the same indivisible injury in which the plaintiff prevailed, a single judgment for the full amount of damages was ordinarily entered against the defendant tortfeasors jointly. However, each of the joint tortfeasors was severally, that is, individually, liable for the entire judgment [Kemp v. Barnett (1976) 62 Cal. App. 3d 245, 248, 132 Cal. Rptr. 823] . Hence, once a judgment was rendered against two or more tortfeasors jointly, the plaintiff could rely on their several liability and satisfy the judgment in full against either or any one of them [Code Civ. Proc. § 875(g)]. The satisfaction of the judgment by one or more of them extinguished the obligation and discharged the liability of all of them to the plaintiff [Kemp v. Barnett (1976) 62 Cal. App. 3d 245, 248, 132 Cal. Rptr. 823] .

The Fair Responsibility Act of 1986 (Proposition 51, Civ. Code §§ 1431-1431.5), the so-called "deep pockets" initiative, adopted June 3, 1986, and effective June 4, 1986, has significantly modified the doctrine of joint and several liability in actions for personal injury, property damage, or wrongful death when comparative fault principles apply. The Act has created two classifications of damages and has made the joint-and-several-liability doctrine apply to one kind of damages but not to the other. Under the act, cotortfeasors remain jointly liable for a plaintiff's "economic" damages; however, they are severally liable only, according to their percentage of fault, for a plaintiff's "noneconomic" damages. A separate judgment for that several-only liability is then entered against each defendant for the defendant's proportionate share of noneconomic damages [Civ. Code § 1431.2(a)].

"Economic damages" are defined as objectively verifiable monetary losses, including medical expenses, loss of earnings, burial costs, loss of use of property, costs of repair or replacement, costs of obtaining substitute domestic services, loss of employment, and loss of business or employment opportunities [Civ. Code § 1431.2(b)(1)]. "Noneconomic damages" are defined as subjective, nonmonetary losses, including, but not limited to, pain, suffering, inconvenience, mental suffering, emotional distress, loss of society and companionship, loss of consortium, injury to reputation, and humiliation [Civ. Code § 1431.2(b)(2); see Hernandez v. Badger Constr. Equip. Co. (1994) 28 Cal. App. 4th 1791, 1810-1811, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 732 (applying Proposition 51 to claim for loss of consortium)].

If Proposition 51 applies, a tortfeasor who settles claims against a plaintiff may obtain comparative indemnity from other tortfeasors only with regard to the amount of the settlement that represents the plaintiff's economic damages [Union Pac. Corp. v. Wengert (2000) 79 Cal. App. 4th 1444, 1447-1449, 95 Cal. Rptr. 2d 68] . Non-settling defendants have a right to litigate or settle their own liabilities to a plaintiff for noneconomic damages, because liability among tortfeasors for those damages is several only [Union Pac. Corp. v. Wengert (2000) 79 Cal. App. 4th 1444, 1450-1451,

95 Cal. Rptr. 2d 68 ; see Civ. Code § 1431.2(a)]. For further discussion of issues involved if one or more defendants have settled, including the potential effects of Proposition 51, see § 300.73.

[b] Prospective Application

Proposition 51 is prospective only and does not apply to causes of action that accrued prior to the June 4, 1986, effective date of the initiative measure [Evangelatos v. Superior Court (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 1188, 1193-1194, 1205, 246 Cal. Rptr. 629, 753 P.2d 585] .

In a case subsequent to Evangelatos, the California Supreme Court considered the issue of when a plaintiff's cause of action for asbestos-related latent injuries should be deemed to have accrued for the specific and limited purpose of determining whether the provisions of Proposition 51 could be prospectively applied to plaintiff's case, consistent with the holding in Evangelatos. The Supreme Court ruled that a cause of action for damages arising from a latent and progressive disease such as asbestos-related lung cancer is deemed to have accrued for Proposition 51 purposes if the plaintiff was diagnosed with the disease for which damages are sought, or otherwise discovered the asbestos-related illness or injuries prior to the June 4, 1986, effective date of Proposition 51. According to the Court, a rule that looks to the earliest of diagnosis of the harm or disease, or plaintiff's awareness or discovery of manifested symptoms, for the limited purpose of determining whether the tort reform measures of Proposition 51 can fairly be applied prospectively to the plaintiff's lawsuit, furthers the purposes of the tort reform measures, and ensures that no party suffers detriment as a result of an actual and reasonable reliance on pre-Proposition 51 law [Buttram v. Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp. (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 520, 540, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 438, 941 P.2d 71 (rejecting "appreciable harm" test adopted by the Court of Appeal)].

[c] Actions to Which Proposition 51 Applies

[i] Personal Injury Actions

Proposition 51 applies to any action for personal injury, based on principles of comparative fault [see Civ. Code § 1431.2(a)].

It is unresolved whether the term "actions for personal injury," as used in Proposition 51, encompasses cases involving solely non-bodily injuries, for example, defamation or infliction of emotional distress. In other contexts, courts have held that the term "personal injury" is not limited to bodily injury [see, e.g., Roemer v. C.I.R. (9th Cir. 1983) 716 F.2d 693, 697-700 (defamation is personal injury)]. It clearly applies to an action for loss of consortium arising from bodily injury to a spouse [Hernandez v. Badger Constr. Equip. Co. (1994) 28 Cal. App. 4th 1791, 1810-1811, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 732 ; see Civ. Code § 1431.2(b)(2)]. One court of appeal has held that it does not apply to a malpractice claim against an attorney [Brandon G. v. Gray (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 29, 39, 3 Cal. Rptr. 3d 330 (action to recover monetary value of claim lost due to attorney's failure to press meritorious claim within requisite time period was not action for "personal injury, property damage, or wrongful death")]. A subsequent court of appeal opinion rejected such a broad rule, however, and held that Civ. Code § 1431.2 could be applied to an attorney malpractice action that seeks primarily noneconomic damages, such as damages for emotional distress caused when a criminal defense attorney's malpractice resulted in his client's criminal conviction [Ovando v. County of Los Angeles (2008) 159 Cal. App. 4th 42, 73-74, 71 Cal. Rptr. 3d 415].

[ii] Property Damage

Proposition 51 applies to any action for property damage, based on principles of comparative fault [see Civ. Code § 1431.2(a)]. It therefore presumably applies to actions for tortious injury to property alone, without accompanying personal injury.

[iii] Wrongful Death

Proposition 51 applies to any action for wrongful death, based on principles of comparative fault [see Civ. Code § 1431.2(a)].

[iv] Loss of Consortium

Proposition 51 applies to any action for loss of consortium arising from bodily injury to a spouse, based on principles of comparative fault [Hernandez v. Badger Constr. Equip. Co. (1994) 28 Cal. App. 4th 1791, 1810-1811, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 732 ; see Civ. Code § 1431.2(b)(2)].

[v] Products Liability

Proposition 51 may apply to an action for strict products liability, based on principles of comparative fault, at least when the plaintiff's harm was caused by multiple products and the evidence provides a basis to allocate liability for noneconomic damages between the different defective products [Wilson v. John Crane, Inc. (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 847, 859, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 240 ; Arena v. Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp. (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 1178, 1192, 74 Cal. Rptr. 2d 580 ; see Civ. Code § 1431.2(a); Daly v. General Motors Corp. (1978) 20 Cal. 3d 725, 742, 144 Cal. Rptr. 380, 575 P.2d 1162 ; see also § 300.62[1]].

Proposition 51 has no application in a strict product liability case, however, when the plaintiff's injuries are caused solely by a single defective product and all of the defendants are in the same chain of distribution. A strictly liable defendant may not reduce or eliminate its responsibility to the plaintiff for damages caused by a defective product by shifting blame to others in the product's chain of distribution. When a defendant's joint and several liability is based not on his or her own negligence, but rather on vicarious liability, the defendant cannot invoke Proposition 51 to reduce or eliminate responsibility for a plaintiff's noneconomic damages [Bostick v. Flex Equipment Co., Inc. (2007) 147 Cal. App. 4th 80, 95, 54 Cal. Rptr. 3d 28 ; Wimberly v. Derby Cycle Corp. (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 618, 623, 629, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 532 ; cf. Garcia v. Duro Dyne Corp. (2007) 156 Cal. App. 4th 92, 102-104, 67 Cal. Rptr. 3d 100 (chain-of-distribution allocation denied when evidence provided no basis for determining amount of harm caused by any specific product)].

[vi] Application of Comparative Fault Principles

Principles of comparative fault apply not only between negligent tortfeasors, but also between negligent tortfeasors and tortfeasors who committed acts of willful misconduct [Allen v. Sundean (1982) 137 Cal. App. 3d 216, 225-226, 186 Cal. Rptr. 863 ; Sorensen v. Allred (1980) 112 Cal. App. 3d 717, 725, 169 Cal. Rptr. 441 ; see § 300.62[2]]. The principles also apply between negligent and strictly liable tortfeasors [Daly v. General Motors Corp. (1978) 20 Cal. 3d 725, 742, 144 Cal. Rptr. 380, 575 P.2d 1162 ; see § 300.62[1]]. Proposition 51 generally applies whenever at least two defendants were independently acting tortfeasors with fault to compare [Bayer-Bel v. Litovsky (2008) 159 Cal. App. 4th 396, 400, 71 Cal. Rptr. 3d 518 (Proposition 51 applied when one defendant was negligent driver of car and another negligently entrusted vehicle to unlicensed driver)].

Before Proposition 51, principles of comparative fault were held not to apply between negligence and intentional tortious conduct. An intentional tortfeasor could not obtain indemnity from a negligent tortfeasor [see Allen v. Sundean (1982) 137 Cal. App. 3d 216, 225-227, 186 Cal. Rptr. 863] or raise the plaintiff's comparative negligence as an affirmative defense [see Godfrey v. Steinpress (1982) 128 Cal. App. 3d 154, 176, 180 Cal. Rptr. 95] .

Consistent with these principles, court of appeal opinions that have addressed the issue under Proposition 51 have concluded that an intentional tortfeasor is not entitled to apportionment of liability for noneconomic damages if the negligence of another contributed to the injury, regardless of whether the negligent person is the plaintiff or a third-party tortfeasor [Thomas v. Duggins Constr. Co., Inc. (2006) 139 Cal. App. 4th 1105, 1112-1113, 44 Cal. Rptr.

3d 66 (intentional tortfeasor not entitled to apportionment for negligence of co-tortfeasors); see Heiner v. Kmart Corp. (2000) 84 Cal. App. 4th 335, 348-350, 100 Cal. Rptr. 2d 854 (in dicta, suggesting contributory negligence of plaintiff would not reduce liability of intentional tortfeasor)].

Conversely, a negligent defendant is entitled to apportionment under Proposition 51 if a third-party's intentional misconduct also contributed to causing the injury [Weidenfeller v. Star & Garter (1991) 1 Cal. App. 4th 1, 5-7, 2 Cal. Rptr. 2d 14 ; see also Martin v. United States (9th Cir. 1992) 984 F.2d 1033, 1039-1040 (liability for noneconomic damages of party based on negligent supervision of child must be reduced by proportion of fault attributable to person who abducted and raped child)].

[d] Comparing Fault of Absent Tortfeasors

A defendant's liability for noneconomic damages under Proposition 51 is limited bythe comparative fault of all those responsible for the plaintiff's injuries, not merely the fault of the defendants who are present in the action [DaFonte v. Up-Right, Inc. (1992) 2 Cal. 4th 593, 601-604, 7 Cal. Rptr. 2d 238, 828 P.2d 140 (comparative fault of plaintiff's employer, immune from suit because of workers' compensation, must be included); see also Hernandez v. Badger Const. Equip. Co. (1994) 28 Cal. App. 4th 1791, 1804-1810, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 732 (employer immune from liability under federal Longshore Act)]. Thus, Proposition 51 prevents a plaintiff from recovering noneconomic damages from any tortfeasor in excess of the tortfeasor's comparative share, regardless of whether another tortfeasor might be insolvent, immune from suit, or otherwise absent from the litigation [see Da Fonte v. Up-Right, Inc. (1992) 2 Cal. 4th 593, 601-604, 7 Cal. Rptr. 2d 238, 828 P.2d 140 ; Taylor v. John Crane, Inc. (2003) 113 Cal. App. 4th 1063, 1071, 6 Cal. Rptr. 3d 695 (no error to reduce noneconomic damages based on fault allocated to nondefendant U.S. Navy, even though Navy may have been immune from liability); see also § 300.72].

However, a statute that precludes direct liability on the ground that a specific conduct does not breach a duty and therefore is not a tort also precludes indirect assignment of comparative "fault" or responsibilities for purposes of Proposition 51 [see Richards v. Owens-Ill., Inc. (1997) 14 Cal. 4th 985, 1001, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 103, 928 P.2d 1181 (Civ. Code § 1714.45, precluding liability against tobacco suppliers, also precludes apportionment of fault to those suppliers in action against other parties)]. Thus, for example, when no statutory basis exists for imposing liability on a public entity, no percentage of fault can be attributed to a public entity regardless of whether the entity is named as a defendant in the suit [Munoz v. City of Union City (2007) 148 Cal. App. 4th 173, 182, 55 Cal. Rptr. 3d 393] .

Despite the rule that a public entity cannot be apportioned a share of liability in the absence of a statutory basis for imposing liability, one court of appeal opinion held that public employees could be apportioned a share of liability even though they were personally immune from liability under Gov. Code § 821.6. The court noted that Gov. Code § 821.6, which provides immunity to public employees for prosecutorial actions even if committed maliciously and without probable cause, reflects no legislative determination that an immune employee has breached no legal duty and bears no "fault" for any injury caused [Ovando v. County of Los Angeles (2008) 159 Cal. App. 4th 42, 71-72, 71 Cal. Rptr. 3d 415].

Although these principles are generally applied in the context of statutory provisions, at least one court of appeal opinion has applied these principles to a case involving a common law doctrine that shielded a party from liability [Ford v. Polaris Indus., Inc. (2006) 139 Cal. App. 4th 755, 778-779, 43 Cal. Rptr. 3d 215] . In that particular case, the court of appeal held that a product manufacturer liable for a product defect could not reduce its liability by pointing to the fault of the product owner, who was not the injured party. The court had already held that under the primary assumption of risk doctrine, the product owner owed no duty of care to the injured party. Using the distinction created by the Supreme Court, the court of appeal held that because the owner of the product owed no duty of care to the injured party, the owner could not be assigned any fault for purposes of reducing the liability of the product manufacturer [Ford v. Polaris Indus., Inc. (2006) 139 Cal. App. 4th 755, 778-779, 43 Cal. Rptr. 3d 215] .

If only one defendant remains in an action and desires to limit its own share of responsibility, that defendant bears the burden of offering evidence that another person or entity is partly responsible for the damages caused to plaintiff [Kellogg v. Asbestos Corp. Ltd. (1996) 41 Cal. App. 4th 1397, 1408, 49 Cal. Rptr. 2d 256 ; see also Aetna Health Plans of Cal., Inc. v. Yucaipa-Calimesa Joint Unified Sch. Dist. (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 1175, 1193, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 672 (because only noneconomic damages were at issue, insurer could not seek equitable contribution or indemnity from other insurer for latter's share of responsibility, although first insurer had right to present evidence of latter's responsibility to limit own liability for damages)]. A defendant seeking an offset for noneconomic damages attributable to another person must propose a special verdict requesting this allocation or the issue is waived [Kitzig v. Nordquist (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 1384, 1398, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 762] .

If a defendant seeks to add a nonparty to a special verdict form as a joint tortfeasor, the defendant bears the burden of providing substantial evidence that the nonparty was at fault, which requires evidence that the nonparty violated the applicable standard of care. Evidence that the nonparty merely contributed to the injury, without evidence that the nonparty's conduct fell below the applicable standard of care, is insufficient [Wilson v. Ritto (2003) 105 Cal. App. 4th 361, 367-370, 129 Cal. Rptr. 2d 336 (defendant in medical malpractice action failed to show that other doctor's conduct fell below medical standard of care)].

If the only remaining defendant is the original tortfeasor and that defendant seeks to introduce evidence of a subsequent tortfeasor's aggravating negligence, that defendant must be allowed to introduce such evidence to allow the jury to limit the original tortfeasor's liability to only his or her proportionate share of any noneconomic damages that may be recoverable [Henry v. Superior Court (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 440, 446, 72 Cal. Rptr. 3d 808 ; Marina Emergency Med. Group v. Superior Court (2000) 84 Cal. App. 4th 435, 439-441, 100 Cal. Rptr. 2d 866] . This is the rule under Proposition 51 even in cases in which the subsequent tortious conduct is medical malpractice, despite the general rule that an original tortfeasor is liable for damages caused by subsequent medical malpractice that occurs during treatment for the original injury [Henry v. Superior Court (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 440, 455, 461, 72 Cal. Rptr. 3d 808 (basis for original tortfeasor's liability was premises liability); Marina Emergency Med. Group v. Superior Court (2000) 84 Cal. App. 4th 435, 439-441, 100 Cal. Rptr. 2d 866 (basis for both original and subsequent tortfeasors' liability was medical malpractice); see § 300.63[2]].

Although an apportionment of noneconomic damages between tortfeasors is generally required under Proposition 51, if a defendant is liable for his or her own negligence in aggravating an injury caused by an earlier tortfeasor [see § 300.63[2]], an apportionment is not required if the plaintiff has already settled with the earlier tortfeasor and the jury was instructed to award damages against the defendant attributable only to the defendant's conduct in aggravating the initial injuries [see Kitzig v. Nordquist (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 1384, 1402, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 762] .

[e] Effect of Receipt of Workers' Compensation Benefits

Before Proposition 51, if an employer who was immune from suit [see § 300.63[3][d]] was at fault in causing harm to a plaintiff-employee, and if plaintiff obtained a judgment against a third-party tortfeasor, the judgment against that party was reduced by the proportionate amount attributable to the employer's negligence up to the amount of the workers' compensation benefits paid [see Aceves v. Regal Pale Brewing Co. (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 502, 512, 156 Cal. Rptr. 41, 595 P.2d 619] . Under Proposition 51, the negligent third party is liable for the full amount of the plaintiff's economic damages, but only for its comparative share of the plaintiff's noneconomic damages [Da Fonte v. Up-Right, Inc. (1992) 2 Cal. 4th 593, 601-604, 7 Cal. Rptr. 2d 238, 828 P.2d 140] . Because workers' compensation benefits are designed to cover economic loss, the amount of any deduction allowed on account of workers compensation benefits is applied against the amount of the judgment that is compensation for economic damages [see Hernandez v. Badger Constr. Equip. Co. (1994) 28 Cal. App. 4th 1791, 1810 n.17, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 732] . Otherwise, the negligent third party would be paying less than its comparative share of the plaintiff's noneconomic damages [see Da Fonte v. Up-Right, Inc. (1992) 2 Cal. 4th 593, 604, 7 Cal. Rptr. 2d 238, 828 P.2d 140] .

It is also unlikely that Proposition 51 will affect the right of an employer to obtain reimbursement for workers' compensation benefits paid to an injured employee. Under the law before Proposition 51, an employer was entitled to reimbursement from a responsible third-party tortfeasor for workers' compensation payments made to the employee. The amount of reimbursement was limited to the amount that exceeded the employer's proportional share of the employee's total damages [see Johnson v. Cayman Dev. Co. (1980) 108 Cal. App. 3d 977, 983-984, 167 Cal. Rptr. 29] . It would appear that because workers' compensation payments cover economic loss, the employer is still entitled to reimbursement [cf. Hernandez v. Badger Constr. Equip. Co. (1994) 28 Cal. App. 4th 1791, 1803, 1823-1826, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 732 (employer recovered full amount of worker's compensation benefits paid under federal Longshore Act without reduction for its comparative share of negligence)]. In addition, it is certainly arguable that any change in the reimbursement rules that reduced the amount of reimbursement to which an employer was entitled would run afoul of Civ. Code § 1431.3, which provides that nothing contained in Proposition 51 is intended in any way to alter the law of immunity. For further discussion of an employer's right to reimbursement for workers' compensation benefits, see Ch. 577, Workers' Compensation .

[f] Vicarious Liability Doctrine Not Abrogated

Proposition 51 does not abrogate the doctrine of vicarious liability. If the law imposes vicarious liability on one party for the conduct of another, they remain jointly and severally liable for both economic and noneconomic damages [Srithong v. Total Inv. Co. (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 721, 726-728, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 672 (vicarious liability of hirer for conduct of independent contractor); Rashtian v. BRAC-BH, Inc. (1992) 9 Cal. App. 4th 1847, 1854, 12 Cal. Rptr. 2d 411 (statutory vicarious liablity of vehicle owner for conduct of driver under Veh. Code § 17150); Miller v. Stouffer (1992) 9 Cal. App. 4th 70, 84, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 454 (employer-employee respondeat superior vicarious liability)]. Thus, for example, Proposition 51 does not limit the vicarious liability of the hirer of an independent contractor when the hirer's liability is based on the nondelegable duty doctrine [Koepnick v. Kashiwa Fudosan America, Inc. (2009) 173 Cal. App. 4th 32, 35, 92 Cal. Rptr. 3d 453 ; Srithong v. Total Inv. Co. (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 721, 726-728, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 672] .

If a party is both liable for its own conduct and also vicariously liable for the conduct of another, the party is liable for both it's own percentage of comparative negligence and the percentage of the party for whose conduct it is vicariously liable [Srithong v. Total Inv. Co. (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 721, 725, 728, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 672 (jury found lessor's comparative fault to be 5 percent and roofer's share to be 95 percent; but lessor was vicariously liable for conduct of roofer, so lessor was liable for 100 percent of damages)].

In addition, because no apportionment is permitted to an intentional tortfeasor under Proposition 51 [see § 300.63[3][c][vi]], a party who is vicariously liable for an intentional tort may be liable for all of the plaintiff's noneconomic damages [Thomas v. Duggins Constr. Co., Inc. (2006) 139 Cal. App. 4th 1105, 1113, 44 Cal. Rptr. 3d 66] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Comparative Indemnity Among Tortfeasors

25-300 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 300.64

§ 300.64 Limitations on Recovery

[1] Public Policy and Equitable Considerations

A right of comparative indemnity may be denied if there are strong public policy reasons for not permitting it [Western S.S. Lines, Inc. v. San Pedro Peninsula Hosp. (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 100, 109-110, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 263, 876 P.2d 1062 ; Munoz v. Davis (1983) 141 Cal. App. 3d 420, 429, 190 Cal. Rptr. 400] . Public policy precludes an attorney who is sued for legal malpractice for having missed a statute of limitations from seeking indemnity from the original tortfeasor [Munoz v. Davis (1983) 141 Cal. App. 3d 420, 429-430, 190 Cal. Rptr. 400] . Public policy also prohibits an action for indemnity against the attorney who is representing the tort victim because such an action intrudes on the attorney-client relationship [Lewis v. Purvin (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 1208, 1214-1217, 256 Cal. Rptr. 827 ; see Goldfisher v. Superior Court (1982) 133 Cal. App. 3d 12, 22-23, 183 Cal. Rptr. 609] . The ordinary rules of comparative indemnity do not apply if the claim for indemnity is made against an attorney, is based on a breach of the attorney's duty to his or her client, and is brought by an adverse party in litigation that is the same as or related to that in which the alleged professional negligence occurred [California State Auto. Ass'n Inter-Ins. Bureau v. Bales (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 227, 230, 270 Cal. Rptr. 421] .

Indemnity rights are also limited by general equitable principles. Equitable indemnification is a matter of fairness. In the great majority of cases, equity and fairness call for an apportionment of loss among wrongdoers in proportion to their relative culpability, rather than by placing the entire loss on one of them. Butbecause indemnification is an equitable doctrine existing only to correct potential injustice, it has no utility if there is no such potential [Jaffe v. Huxley Architecture (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 1188, 1191-1192, 246 Cal. Rptr. 432] .

[2] Employer Immunity

Under Lab. Code § 3864, the employer of a person who is injured as the result of the joint negligence of the employer and a third party is not required to indemnify the third party in the absence of a written agreement, executed by the employer and the third party prior to the employee's injury, providing for such indemnity [Nielsen Constr. Co. v. International Iron Prods. (1993) 18 Cal. App. 4th 863, 866-869, 22 Cal. Rptr. 2d 497 ; City of Oakland v. Delcon Assocs. (1985) 168 Cal. App. 3d 1126, 1128, 214 Cal. Rptr. 734 ; see also Western S.S. Lines, Inc. v. San Pedro

Peninsula Hosp. (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 100, 113, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 263, 876 P.2d 1062 (discussing history of statute)]. Nor is the employer's public liability insurer or workers' compensation insurer required to indemnify the third party in the absence of such an agreement [Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. v. Morse (1970) 6 Cal. App. 3d 707, 712-713, 86 Cal. Rptr. 7] . The same rule applies if an employee is injured as the result of the joint negligence of a coemployee and a third party. The third party cannot, in the absence of an express written indemnity agreement, recover under the doctrine of equitable indemnity from the coemployee and the employees' employer the amount it paid in settlement of the injured employee's claim. Such a recovery would frustrate the legislative purpose of Lab. Code § 3601, which bars the injured employee from suing the coemployee for ordinary negligence within the course and scope of employment in order to maintain the employer's liability for employee injuries at the level established by the Workers' Compensation Law [Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. v. Morse (1970) 6 Cal. App. 3d 707, 713-715, 86 Cal. Rptr. 7] .

Lab. Code § 3864 insulates an employer from any liability for comparative indemnity [see American Motorcycle Ass'n v. Superior Court (1978) 20 Cal. 3d 578, 607 n.9, 146 Cal. Rptr. 182, 578 P.2d 899 ; see also City of Oakland v. Delcon Assocs. (1985) 168 Cal. App. 3d 1126, 1128-1129, 214 Cal. Rptr. 734 ; E. B. Wills Co. v. Superior Court (1976) 56 Cal. App. 3d 650, 654, 128 Cal. Rptr. 541] . However, there are a number of situations in which an employee is authorized to bring a civil action against an employer, and, in those cases, a third party is not barred from seeking indemnity from the employer [Chase Chem. Co. v. Hartford Accident & Indem. Co. (1984) 159 Cal. App. 3d 229, 238, 205 Cal. Rptr. 469] .

Even though an employer is generally immune from liability for indemnity, a joint tortfeasor may assert the employer's comparative negligence as a partial defense. The trier of fact is then to determine the comparative negligence of the plaintiff and all tortfeasors, including the employer, and the nonemployer defendants are entitled to certain reductions based on workers' compensation benefits paid [Associated Constr. & Eng'g Co. v. Workers' Comp. Appeals Bd. (1978) 22 Cal. 3d 829, 840-847, 150 Cal. Rptr. 888, 587 P.2d 684] and under Proposition 51 [DaFonte v. Up-Right, Inc. (1992) 2 Cal. 4th 593, 596]. It has been held that employer may not be joined as a cross defendant in the employee's third-party action by cross complaint for declaratory relief [C.J.L. Constr., Inc. v. Universal Plumbing (1993) 18 Cal. App. 4th 376, 388-392, 22 Cal. Rptr. 2d 360 ; but see Del Monte Corp. v. Superior Court (1982) 127 Cal. App. 3d 1049, 1053-1055, 179 Cal. Rptr. 855] . However, nonemployer defendants may avail themselves of all discovery rights provided with regard to nonparties in order to extablish the employer's comparative negligence [C.J.L. Constr., Inc. v. Universal Plumbing (1993) 18 Cal. App. 4th 376, 392, 22 Cal. Rptr. 2d 360] .

For situations in which an employee may sue his or her employer, and for discussion and forms relating to actions against third-party tortfeasors by injured employees and their employers and the employer's insurers who have paid workers' compensation to the injured employees, see Ch. 577, Workers' Compensation .

[3] MICRA Limitation

MICRA, the Medical Injury Compensation Reform Act of 1975, limits the size of any award for noneconomic damages in an action against a health care provider based on professional negligence to $250,000 [Civ. Code § 3333.2]. The California Supreme Court has held that this limitation applies in an action for comparative indemnity against a health care provider [Western S.S. Lines, Inc. v. San Pedro Peninsula Hosp. (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 100, 107-117, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 263, 876 P.2d 1062] . Thus, if one tortfeasor attempts to recover comparative indemity from a concurrent tortfeasor who is a medical professional, the amount of indemnity that may be recovered on account of noneconomic damages paid to the plaintiff may not exceed the MICRA limit [Western S.S. Lines, Inc. v. San Pedro Peninsula Hosp. (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 100, 116, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 263, 876 P.2d 1062] .

This rule is based in part on the public-policy limitation to the right to indemnity [see § 300.64[1]]. The public policy behind MICRA, to control the cost of medical malpractice insurance, requires that an indemnitee not be allowed to impose liability on a medical professional beyond that which would have been recoverable by the plaintiff on the underlying claim [Western S.S. Lines, Inc. v. San Pedro Peninsula Hosp. (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 100, 109-114, 32 Cal.

Rptr. 2d 263, 876 P.2d 1062] .

The limitation is further supported by the rule that there can be no indemnity without liability. Indemnity is subject to whatever immunities or limitations on liability that would otherwise be available to the indemnitor in a direct actionbrought by the tort victim [Western S.S. Lines, Inc. v. San Pedro Peninsula Hosp. (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 100, 114-115, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 263, 876 P.2d 1062] .

The case in which the MICRA rule was enunciated involved liability imposed on the indemnitee under federal maritime law [see Western S.S. Lines, Inc. v. San Pedro Peninsula Hosp. (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 100, 105 n.1, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 263, 876 P.2d 1062] . The rule may have no or limited applicability with regard to liability imposed under California law. Under Proposition 51, joint tortfeasors are no longer jointly liable for noneconomic damages in any case, whether or not MICRA applies [Civ. Code § 1431.2; see § 300.63[3]]. Therefore, one tortfeasor will not have been required to pay another tortfeasor's share of noneconomic damages, and there will be no rights of indemnity with regard to noneconomic damages. For further discussion and consideration of possible exceptions to this rule with regard to certain settlements, see Levy, Golden, Sacks & Chapin, California Torts vol. 5, Ch. 74 (Matthew Bender).

MICRA is considered in detail in Ch. 414, Physicians: Medical Malpractice .

[4] Payments Made by Tortfeasor's Insurer

If a tortfeasor's insurer has made a payment to the underlying plaintiff on behalf of the insured, that tortfeasor, in seeking equitable indemnity from a co-tortfeasor, may only seek indemnity for those amounts actually paid out of the tortfeasor's own pocket, in proportion to the allocation of fault between the tortfeasors. The tortfeasor may not seek indemnity for the amounts paid by the insurer, although the tortfeasor may seek indemnity for the amount of any deductible that the tortfeasor was required to pay under the insurance policy. A contrary rule would essentially allow the tortfeasor seeking indemnity to benefit financially from the tortfeasor's own wrongdoing [Miller v. Ellis (2002) 103 Cal. App. 4th 373, 380-382, 126 Cal. Rptr. 2d 667] .

C. Comparative Indemnity Among Tortfeasors

25-300 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 300.65

§ 300.65 Collateral Estoppel

The right of a codefendant to seek comparative indemnity may be precluded by determinations of liability between the plaintiff and defendant. If a defendant is determined to have no liability to the plaintiff in pretrial proceedings, such as on a motion to dismiss or for summary judgment, rights of comparative indemnity against that defendant may be precluded by collateral estoppel. Collateral estoppel applies to a cross complaint for indemnity if (1) the issue decided in the prior adjudication was identical; (2) there is a final judgment on the merits; and (3) the party against whom collateral estoppel is raised was a party or in privity with a party to the prior adjudication [Columbus Line, Inc. v. Gray Line Sight-Seeing Cos. Associated, Inc. (1981) 120 Cal. App. 3d 622, 628-631, 174 Cal. Rptr. 527] .

In addition, collateral estoppel applies to bar a cross complaint for indemnity if the cross defendant was dismissed from the action based on facts deemed admitted from a failure of the plaintiff to answer a request for admissions [Allis-Chalmers Corp. v. Superior Court (1985) 168 Cal. App. 3d 1155, 1157-1159, 214 Cal. Rptr. 615] . However, collateral estoppel does not apply if the plaintiff's complaint and the defendant's cross complaint for comparative indemnity assert different theories of liability. In such a case, there has been no prior determination of the issue of liability on which comparative indemnity is sought [Frank v. State of California (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 488, 491-495, 252 Cal. Rptr. 410] .

Equitable principles may prohibit reliance on collateral estoppel "offensively," that is, to establish a right to indemnity, rather than "defensively," that is, to escape liability for indemnity. A defendant who is dismissed from an action after prevailing on a pretrial motion may not be able to rely on collateral estoppel to recover a settlement amount paid to the plaintiff in consideration of dismissal of appeal of the judgment of dismissal [White Motor Corp. v. Teresinski (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 754, 763-764, 263 Cal. Rptr. 26] .

For further discussion of res judicata and collateral estoppel, see Ch. 491, Res Judicata .

C. Comparative Indemnity Among Tortfeasors

25-300 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 300.66

§ 300.66 Procedures for Obtaining Comparative Indemnity

A defendant tortfeasor may normally seek comparative equitable indemnity in one of two ways:

- Filing a cross complaint for declaratory relief concerning the right to indemnity against the indemnitor in the action brought by plaintiff, whether or not the indemnitor is already a party to the action [Valley Circle Estates v. VTN Consol., Inc. (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 604, 612, 189 Cal. Rptr. 871, 659 P.2d 1160 ; American Motorcycle Ass'n v. Superior Court (1978) 20 Cal. 3d 578, 607, 146 Cal. Rptr. 182, 578 P.2d 899 ; see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 86(a)(7)(A), 428.10(b), 428.70, 1060; see §§ 300.190, 300.191]; or

- Filing an independent action for indemnity against the indemnitor after conclusion of the original plaintiff's action [County of Riverside v. Loma Linda Univ. (1981) 118 Cal. App. 3d 300, 315-316, 173 Cal. Rptr. 371] .

Of the two, courts have recommended the cross complaint procedure as representing the more orderly and expeditious resolution of the controversy [Shepard & Morgan v. Lee & Daniel, Inc. (1982) 31 Cal. 3d 256, 261, 182 Cal. Rptr. 351, 643 P.2d 968 ; E. L. White, Inc. v. City of Huntington Beach (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 497, 506, 146 Cal. Rptr. 614, 579 P.2d 505] . If a cross complaint is filed in the plaintiff's action, the trial court may postpone the trial of the indemnityquestion [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1048(b)] if it believes postponement is appropriate to avoid unduly complicating the plaintiff's suit [American Motorcycle Ass'n v. Superior Court (1978) 20 Cal. 3d 578, 584, 146 Cal. Rptr. 182, 578 P.2d 899 ; see also Paragon Real Estate Group of San Francisco, Inc. v. Hansen (2009) 178 Cal. App. 4th 177, 182-183, 100 Cal. Rptr. 3d 234 (error for trial court to sustain demurrer to cross-complaint filed by one defendant against another named defendant merely because apportionment issues could be resolved in plaintiff's action)]. If trial of the damages and liability issues is by jury, defense counsel should request that special verdicts [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 624, 625] be submitted to the jury directing it to apportion fault or negligence on a percentage basis. For a discussion of general and special verdicts, see Ch. 322, Juries and Verdicts .

A third possible procedure for obtaining comparative indemnity is pursuant to a postjudgment motion for "contribution among tortfeasors" under Code Civ. Proc. § 878 [see § 300.203]. It is not clear, however, that this statute will be construed to refer to comparative indemnity rather than to the pre-American Motorcycle contribution doctrine requiring pro rata rather than comparative allocation of liability and loss [see Code Civ. Proc. § 876(a)]. For further discussion, see § 300.74.

§ 300.67 Accrual of Cause of Action

[1] In General

Except as otherwise provided by statute, a cause of action for comparative indemnity does not accrue until the party seeking indemnity has suffered actual loss through payment of either a judgment or settlement [Valley Circle Estates v. VTN Consol., Inc. (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 604, 611, 189 Cal. Rptr. 871, 659 P.2d 1160 ; E. L. White, Inc. v. City of Huntington Beach (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 497, 506, 146 Cal. Rptr. 614, 579 P.2d 505 ; City of San Diego v. U.S. Gypsum Co. (1994) 30 Cal. App. 4th 575, 587-588, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 876 ; see Carrier Corp. v. Detrex Corp. (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 1522, 1527-1529, 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 565 (cause of action for indemnity under express or implied warranty in sales contract accrues when loss is incurred, not on date of delivery under Com. Code § 2725)]. Hence, the statute of limitations does not begin to run until that time, and any action for indemnity filed prior to that time would be premature. However, a cross complaint for declaratory relief concerning the cross complainant's right to total or partial equitable indemnity from the cross defendant for any judgment that may be rendered against the cross complainant on plaintiff's complaint may be filed in the plaintiff's action [see § 300.66]. Thus, a cross complaint for declaratory relief filed in the action giving rise to a right to indemnity is proper and always timely if the complaint was timely filed as to the cross complainant [see Valley Circle Estates v. VTN Consol., Inc. (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 604, 611-612, 189 Cal. Rptr. 871, 659 P.2d 1160] . This is true even though an action by the original plaintiff against the indemnitor may be barred by the statute of limitations [see Watts v. Crocker-Citizens Nat'l Bank (1982) 132 Cal. App. 3d 516, 524, 183 Cal. Rptr. 304 ; see also West v. Superior Court (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th 1625, 1631, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 409] .

[2] Against Public Entity

The date on which a cause of action for equitable or partial equitable indemnity against a public entity accrues is the date on which a defendant is served with the complaint giving rise to the defendant's claim for indemnity against the public entity [Gov. Code § 901]. The accrual date is not subject to a late discovery rule [Greyhound Lines, Inc. v. County of Santa Clara (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 480, 484-488, 231 Cal. Rptr. 702] . For discussion of whether a defendant seeking comparative indemnity from a public entity is required to file a claim with the entity, see § 300.68.

§ 300.68 Claims Against Public Entity

A defendant who files a pleading for comparative indemnity from a public entity that is not previously a party to the plaintiff's action must first file a claim with the entity pursuant to Gov. Code § 900 et seq. [Krainock v. Superior Court (1990) 216 Cal. App. 3d 1473, 265 Cal. Rptr. 715 ; State of California v. Superior Court (1983) 143 Cal. App. 3d 754, 756-757, 761, 192 Cal. Rptr. 198] . For a discussion of the procedure and forms for use in filing a claim against a public entity, see Ch. 464, Public Entities and Officers: California Tort Claims Act .

If the public entity has rejected a claim and is a defendant in the plaintiff's action, no claim is required as a condition to seeking comparative indemnity from the public entity if all of the following conditions are met: (1) the public entity first pleads for comparative indemnity from the cotortfeasor, who then responds with its own pleading for comparative indemnity against the public entity; (2) the pleading for comparative indemnity arises out of the same transaction or event forming the basis of the plaintiff's claim against the public entity; and (3) the pleading seeks only to destroy or diminish the plaintiff's recovery under indemnity principles, but seeks no other affirmative relief from the public entity [Krainock v. Superior Court (1990) 216 Cal. App. 3d 1473, 1478, 265 Cal. Rptr. 715] .

Even though actions for indemnity do not typically accrue for statute of limitations purposes until payment of a judgment or settlement [see § 300.67[1]], a tortfeasor may assign a cause of action for equitable indemnity for the contingent damages it faces as a result of litigation. In addition, as long as the assignment carries with it the burden to prove liability and damages, a court may properly award damages directly to an assignee of an indemnity cause of action [Fleck v. Bollinger Home Corp. (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 926, 933, 935, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 407] .

§ 300.70 Statute of Limitations for Comparative Indemnity

[1] In General

The statute of limitations that applies to a cause of action for comparative indemnity is not entirely resolved. Prior to American Motorcycle Ass'n v. Superior Court (1978) 20 Cal. 3d 578, 146 Cal. Rptr. 182, 578 P.2d 899 [see §§ 300.61[1], 300.61[2]], courts had held that a right of implied indemnity rested on implied contract, and that therefore the two-year limitation period of Code Civ. Proc. § 339(1) applied, even if the cause of action giving rise to the liability was in tort [Pacific Employers Ins. Co. v. Hartford Accident & Indem. Co. (9th Cir. 1955) 228 F.2d 365, 373 (construing California law); see Sunset-Sternau Food Co. v. Bonzi (1964) 60 Cal. 2d 834, 843, 36 Cal. Rptr. 741, 389 P.2d 133 (involving implied indemnity between principal and agent for contract liability)]. Since American Motorcycle, many courts have ruled on when a cause of action for comparative indemnity accrues [see § 300.67[1]], but none has expressly held what statute of limitations applies.

In an equitable indemnity action brought by an insurance company against physicians being sued for medical malpractice, the California Supreme Court applied the general personal injury limitations period of former Code Civ. Proc. § 340(3) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 335.1) [see Preferred Risk Mut. Ins. Co. v. Reiswig (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 208, 213-218, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 187, 980 P.2d 895] . In that case, however, both parties to the appeal conceded that the limitations period of former Code Civ. Proc. § 340(3) was the applicable limitations period, rather than the MICRA limitations period of Code of Civil Proc. § 340.5 [Preferred Risk Mut. Ins. Co. v. Reiswig (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 208, 213, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 187, 980 P.2d 895] . Although the Supreme Court agreed, without providing analysis, that Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5 was inapplicable to the case before it [Preferred Risk Mut. Ins. Co. v. Reiswig (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 208, 213 n.2, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 187, 980 P.2d 895] , the Court did not otherwise specifically address the general applicability of former Code Civ. Proc. § 340(3) to actions for equitable indemnity. The Court did hold, however, that a non-MICRA statute of limitations applied in an equitable indemnity action against a health care provider may be tolled for 90 days pursuant to the notice provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 364(d), if the claim for indemnity is based on the health care provider's professional negligence [Preferred Risk Mut. Ins. Co. v. Reiswig (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 208, 218, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 187, 980 P.2d 895] . MICRA is discussed in detail in Ch. 414, Physicians: Medical Malpractice .

In a case involving a federal employer's right to indemnity for personal injury to an employee, one court of appeal opinion assumed, without deciding, that the limitations period of former Code Civ. Proc. § 340(3) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 335.1) applied. The court in that case stated that the statute of limitations applicable to a cause of action for indemnity may vary depending on the basis for the claim [see Southern Pac. Transp. Co. v. Ohbayashi Am. Corp. (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 233, 238-239, 195 Cal. Rptr. 63] . The dearth of authority on the point is probably due to the common practice of seeking comparative indemnity by cross complaint for declaratory relief in the underlying action before the cause of action even accrues [see § 300.66].

Prior to the decision in Bay Dev., Ltd. v. Superior Court (1990) 50 Cal. 3d 1012, 269 Cal. Rptr. 720, 791 P.2d 290 , one court held that a cause of action based on implied contractual indemnity was subject to the four-year limitation period of Code Civ. Proc. § 337(1) applicable to actions founded on a written contract [Nomellini Constr. Co. v. Harris (1969) 272 Cal. App. 2d 352, 360-362, 77 Cal. Rptr. 361] . The continued validity of this holding is questionable in light of Bay Development, in which the California Supreme Court held that implied contractual indemnity is a form of equitable indemnity, subject to the rules governing equitable indemnity and not those governing express contractual indemnity [Bay Dev., Ltd. v. Superior Court (1990) 50 Cal. 3d 1012, 1033, 269 Cal. Rptr. 720, 791 P.2d 290 ; see § 300.61[5]; but see Carrier Corp. v. Detrex Corp. (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 1522, 1530, 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 565 (parties "conceded" that action for indemnity arising from breach of warranty in sales contract was governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 337(1); unclear from facts whether right of indemnity was express or implied)].

[2] For Injury From Deficient Planning or Construction of Improvement to Realty

The four-year limitation period of Code Civ. Proc. § 337.1 applies to a cause of action for comparative indemnity arising from liability based on a patent deficiency resulting from activities associated with construction of an improvement to real property [Wagner v. State of California (1978) 86 Cal. App. 3d 922, 927-928, 150 Cal. Rptr. 489] . The cause of action accrues at the time of substantial completion of the project [Code Civ. Proc. § 337.1(a)]. The limitation period applies to liability for wrongful death or personal injury, as well as to other damages [Code Civ. Proc. § 337.1(a)(3)].

[3] For Damages for Latent Deficiencies in Real Property

No action, including an action for indemnity, may be brought to recover damages from any person, or the surety of a person, who develops real property or performs or furnishes the design, specifications, surveying, planning, supervision, testing, observation of construction, or construction of an improvement to real property more than 10 years after the substantial completion of the development or improvement for any (1) latent deficiency in the design, specification, surveying, planning, supervision, or observation of construction or construction of an improvement to, or survey of, real property; or (2) injury to real or personal property arising out of any such latent deficiency [Code Civ. Proc. § 337.15(a)]. However, this statute of limitations applies only to suits for damages for the deficiency itself; it does not apply to actions, including actions for indemnity, arising from liability for wrongful death or personal injury against the persons specified in the statute [Martinez v. Traubner (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 755, 758-761, 187 Cal. Rptr. 251, 653 P.2d 1046 ; Grimmer v. Harbor Towers (1982) 133 Cal. App. 3d 88, 92-94, 183 Cal. Rptr. 634] .

A cross complaint for indemnity may be filed pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 428.10(b) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 428.70] in an action that has been brought within the time period set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 337.15(a) even though the cross complaint for indemnity is filed after expiration of the 10-year period [Code Civ. Proc. § 337.15(c); Tech-Bilt, Inc. v. Woodward-Clyde & Assocs. (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 488, 492, 213 Cal. Rptr. 256, 698 P.2d 159] . Thus, a defendant who is timely sued under Code Civ. Proc. § 337.15(a) may, under Code Civ. Proc. § 337.15(c), file a cross complaint for indemnity against a third party who could not otherwise be reached by a direct action for indemnity filed by the defendant, or by a direct suit for damages filed by the plaintiff [Valley Circle Estates v. VTN Consol., Inc. (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 604, 609, 189 Cal. Rptr. 871, 659 P.2d 1160] . The cross complaint for indemnity must arise from the same transaction, occurrence, or series of transactions or occurrences as the original action [Code Civ. Proc. § 428.10(b); see

Code Civ. Proc. § 337.15(c)]. However, a cross complaint for indemnity is almost, by definition, transactionally related to the claims asserted by the plaintiff because the claim depends on the allegation that the same harm for which the plaintiff seeks to hold the defendant liable is attributable, in part, to the acts of the cross defendant. An indemnity action seeks to apportion among the parties the precise liability claimed by the plaintiff in the main action; therefore, it necessarily arises out of the same occurrence or series of occurrences as asserted by the plaintiff [Time for Living, Inc. v. Guy Hatfield Homes/All Am. Dev. Co. (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 30, 39, 280 Cal. Rptr. 904] .

If both the cross complainant and cross defendant performed work on the same development or improvement, their respective labors arise from the same transaction. There may be situations, however, in which work by each on the same property might be viewed as involving distinct developments or improvements. In such a case, there is no transactional relation, and one may not cross complain for indemnity against the other under Code Civ. Proc. § 337.15(c) [Time for Living, Inc. v. Guy Hatfield Homes/All Am. Dev. Co. (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 30, 39-41, 280 Cal. Rptr. 904 ; see Sandy v. Superior Court (1988) 201 Cal. App. 3d 1277, 1284, 247 Cal. Rptr. 677 (contractor sued for negligence in conversion of apartment building to condominiums cannot cross complain for indemnity against original architect of building, because original building and condominium conversion were different developments or improvements)]. Whether work was performed on the same development or improvement is essentially a question of fact [Time for Living, Inc. v. Guy Hatfield Homes/All Am. Dev. Co. (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 30, 39-41, 280 Cal. Rptr. 904] .

If the underlying action is not filed within the 10-year period specified by Code Civ. Proc. § 337.15(a), the existence of a tolling agreement between the plaintiff and the defendant in the underlying action does not extend the time period for filing a cross-complaint for indemnity against a third party [FNB Mortgage Corp. v. Pacific Gen. Group (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 1116, 1130-1131, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 841] .

In addition, the 10-year period is not subject to equitable tolling if a defendant or cross-defendant promises to make repairs [Lantzy v. Centex Homes (2003) 31 Cal. 4th 363, 367, 2 Cal. Rptr. 3d 655, 73 P.3d 517 ; FNB Mortgage Corp. v. Pacific Gen. Group (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 1116, 1131-1134, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 841] . However, a defendant may be equitably estopped from asserting the statute of limitations in the following circumstances [Lantzy v. Centex Homes (2003) 31 Cal. 4th 363, 384, 2 Cal. Rptr. 3d 655, 73 P.3d 517] :

- The defendant induces the plaintiff to refrain from filing suit within the 10-year period with promises of repair;
- The plaintiff reasonably relies on these promises;
- The representations prove false after the limitations period has expired; and
- The plaintiff proceeds diligently once the truth is known.

The 10-year limitations period also does not apply to cases involving willful misconduct or fraudulent concealment [Code Civ. Proc. § 337.15(f)]. In this context, the term "willful misconduct" includes not only intentional wrongdoing, but also negligence that constitutes reckless disregard for the rights of others [Felburg v. Don Wilson Builders (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 383, 391, 191 Cal. Rptr. 92]. This willful-misconduct exemption may be applied to cross-complaints for indemnity, and a cross-complainant may incorporate by reference the allegations of willful misconduct found in the complaint without specifically repeating those allegations in the cross-complaint [Pine Terrace Apartments, L.P. v. Windscape, LLC (2009) 170 Cal. App. 4th 1, 4, 87 Cal. Rptr. 3d 630].

A general contractor cannot avoid application of this willful misconduct exception by claiming to be ignorant of misconduct committed by subcontractors, at least if the evidence supports a reasonable inference that the contractor knew, or should have known through reasonable oversight of the construction, that subcontractors were engaging in willful misconduct that would result in a latent defect [Acosta v. Glenfed Dev. Corp. (2005) 128 Cal. App. 4th 1278, 1296-1302, 28 Cal. Rptr. 3d 92].

Because willful misconduct is an exception to the affirmative defense of the 10-year limitations period, the plaintiff bears the burden of alleging and proving that misconduct [Acosta v. Glenfed Dev. Corp. (2005) 128 Cal. App. 4th 1278, 1293, 28 Cal. Rptr. 3d 92] , and if the 10-year limitations period appears to apply, the pleadings must allege fraud or willful misconduct in order to prevent Code Civ. Proc. § 337.15 from barring commencement of the action [see Felburg v. Don Wilson Builders (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 383, 391, 191 Cal. Rptr. 92].

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 356, if the commencement of an action is stayed by injunction or statutory prohibition, the time limited for the commencement of the action does not include the time of the injunction or statutory prohibition. However, because Code Civ. Proc. § 337.15 is technically a statute of repose, not a statute of limitations, Code Civ. Proc. § 356 does not extend the 10-year period, at least if theinjunction or statutory prohibition ends prior to the running of the 10-year period [Inco Dev. Corp. v. Superior Court (2005) 131 Cal. App. 4th 1014, 1021-1022, 31 Cal. Rptr. 3d 872 (bankruptcy stay that ended prior to expiration 10-year period imposed by Code Civ. Proc. § 337.15 did not extend period)].

25-300 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 300.71

§ 300.71 Attorney's Fees and Costs

[1] Prevailing Indemnitee

After reviewing the evidence in the principal case, the court may, on motion, award attorney's fees to a person who prevails on a claim for implied indemnity if the court finds that: (1) the indemnitee, through the tort of the indemnitor, has been required to act in the protection of the indemnitee's interest by bringing anaction against or defending an action by a third person; (2) the indemnitor was properly notified of the demand to bring the action or provide the defense and did not avail itself of the opportunity to do so; and (3) the trier of fact determined that the indemnitee was without fault in the principal case that is the basis for the action in indemnity or that the indemnitee had a final judgment entered in his or her favor granting a summary judgment, a nonsuit, or a directed verdict [Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.6; see Bear Creek Planning Comm. v. Title Ins. & Trust Co. (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 1227, 1244-1246, 1248-1249, 211 Cal. Rptr. 172 , disapproved on other grounds, Bay Dev., Ltd. v. Superior Court (1990) 50 Cal. 3d 1012, 1032 n.12, 269 Cal. Rptr. 720, 791 P.2d 290] . For forms for a motion and order under Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.6 for attorney's fees, see §§ 300.194 and 300.195.

If a faultless defendant prevails in the underlying action, and therefore does not have occasion to prevail on a cross complaint for indemnity against the party at fault, the defendant is still entitled to seek attorney's fees under Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.6. In such a case, the defendant is deemed to have "prevailed on a claim for indemnity" [Uniroyal Chem. Co. v. American Vanguard Corp. (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 285, 295-296, 249 Cal. Rptr. 787 ; see Bay Dev., Ltd. v. Superior Court (1990) 50 Cal. 3d 1012, 1026-1027, 269 Cal. Rptr. 720, 791 P.2d 290] . This rule presupposes that a valid claim for indemnity would have existed, however. A faultless defendant who cannot show a right to indemnification from the party at fault cannot recover attorney's fees under Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.6 [Watson v. Department of Transp. (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 885, 890, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 594 (rejecting claim that faultless driver forced to defend action brought by another driver had right to indemnity from co-defendant Caltrans)].

The reference in Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.6 to the "principal case" does not necessarily mean the original action brought by a plaintiff. Instead, this reference is to the action that caused the innocent indemnitee to defend itself and thereby incur attorney fees, as distinguished from the indemnitee's action for indemnity in which the Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.6

fees are sought [Wilson, McCall & Daoro v. American Qualified Plans, Inc. (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 1030, 1036, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 192] . For example, in one case, the "principal case" for purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.6 was a cross complaint brought against an innocent indemnitee by a defendant in a tort action in which the innocent indemnitee was not otherwise named as a party. The court of appeal in that case ruled that the innocent indemnitee had a right to seek fees under Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.6 from another defendant in the original tort action who had refused to defend the innocent indemnitee when defense of the cross complaint had been tendered [Wilson, McCall & Daoro v. American Qualified Plans, Inc. (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 1030, 1036-1037, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 192 (noting that cross complaint is separate pleading, based on independent cause of action)].

Even if the statutory requirements are not all met, attorney's fees may be awarded under the "tort of another" doctrine to a cross complainant who receives total indemnity from a cross defendant on a cross complaint for indemnity. Under this doctrine, one who has been required by the tort of another to act in the protection of his or her interests by bringing or defending an action against a third person is entitled to recover compensation for attorney's fees incurred as an element of damages, not as attorney's fees as such [Prentice v. North Am. Title Guar. Corp (1963) 59 Cal. 2d 618, 620, 30 Cal. Rptr. 821, 381 P.2d 645 ; Heckert v. MacDonald (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 832, 836-838, 256 Cal. Rptr. 369] . For further discussion of the "tort of another" doctrine, see Ch. 177, Damages, § 177.40 et seq.

Agency law also provides for a right of attorney's fees to an agent who is entitled to indemnity from a principal. Unless otherwise agreed, a principal must indemnify an agent who is not barred by the illegality of his or her conduct for the expense of defending an action brought by a third party because of the agent's authorized conduct. The right to indemnity for costs and attorney's fees exists whether or not either principal or agent is found to be liable to the third party [Fidelity Mortgage Tr. Serv., Inc. v. Ridgegate E. Homeowners Ass'n (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th 503, 509-511, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 521 ; see Restatement (Second) of Agency § 439]. Further, the agent need not have tendered its defense of the action as an absolute prerequisite to indemnification. The agent's failure to notify the principal merely requires that the agent prove that he or she made a reasonable defense [Sunset-Sternau Food Co. v. Bonzi (1964) 60 Cal. 2d 834, 844, 36 Cal. Rptr. 741, 389 P.2d 133 ; Fidelity Mortgage Tr. Serv., Inc. v. Ridgegate E. Homeowners Ass'n (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th 503, 511, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 521 ; see Restatement (Second) of Agency § 438].

Recovery of costs by a prevailing party is authorized by Code Civ. Proc. § 1032(b). For the meaning of "prevailing party," a discussion of costs, and forms for use in securing an award of costs, see Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees, § 174.10 et seq.

[2] Prevailing Indemnitor on Motion for Summary Judgment or Nonsuit

In a proceeding for indemnity or contribution in any civil action, the court, on motion of the defendant or cross defendant made prior to the discharge of the jury or entry of judgment, must, at the time of granting the defendant's or cross defendant's motion for summary judgment, motion for directed verdict, motion for judgment under Code Civ. Proc. § 631.8, or nonsuit dismissing the moving party other than the plaintiff, petitioner, cross complainant, or intervenor, or at a later time set forth by Judicial Council rule, determine whether or not the plaintiff, petitioner, cross complainant, or intervenor brought the proceeding with reasonable cause and in the good faith belief that there was a justiciable controversyunder the facts and law that warranted the filing of the complaint, petition, cross complaint, or complaint in intervention. If the court determines that the proceeding was not brought in good faith and with reasonable cause, the amount of defense costs reasonably and necessarily incurred by the party or parties opposing the proceeding must be determined, and the court must render judgment in favor of that party or parties in that amount, in addition to those costs normally awarded to the prevailing party [Code Civ. Proc. § 1038(a), (c), (d)]. An award of costs, however, may be made only on notice contained in a party's papers and an opportunity to be heard [Code Civ. Proc. § 1038(a)]. Once it is determined that the action was not brought in good faith and with reasonable cause, Code Civ. Proc. § 1038 mandates that the amount of defense costs be determined and awarded to the moving party [see Dudman v. State of California (1983) 145 Cal. App. 3d 617, 620, 193 Cal. Rptr. 500 (decided before 1989 amendment to Code Civ. Proc. § 1038(a) that added requirement of notice and opportunity to be heard)].

"Defense costs" include reasonable attorney's fees, expert-witness fees, and the expenses of services of experts, advisers, and consultants in defense of the proceeding, if those costs are reasonably and necessarily incurred in defending the proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 1038(b)].

A party making a motion for defense costs waives any right to seek damages for malicious prosecution, but a failure to make the motion is not to be deemed a waiver of the right to pursue a malicious prosecution action [Code Civ. Proc. § 1038(c)]. For a discussion and forms of complaints for malicious prosecution, see Ch. 357, Malicious Prosecution and Abuse of Process .

§ 300.72 Apportionment of Shortfall

A shortfall with regard to who must pay the plaintiff's damages may be created if one or more tortfeasors is "absent" from the litigation in some sense. Most commonly, a shortfall results from the economic absence of an insolvent or judgment-proof defendant [see, e.g., Paradise Valley Hosp. v. Schlossman (1983) 143 Cal. App. 3d 87, 93, 191 Cal. Rptr. 531] . However, a tortfeasor may also be beyond the personal jurisdiction of the court. A pretrial good faith settlement may also create a shortfall if the settling party settled for less than the amount for which it would have been liable under the trier of fact's determination of comparative fault and damages [see, e.g., Espinoza v. Machonga (1992) 9 Cal. App. 4th 268, 270-277, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 498 ; Sagadin v. Ripper (1985) 175 Cal. App. 3d 1141, 1173-1174, 221 Cal. Rptr. 675] .

Prior to the enactment of the Fair Responsibility Act of 1986 [Civ. Code § 1431.1 et seq.; see § 300.63[3]], the following rules were developed to determine the effect of a shortfall: (1) if one tortfeasor defendant is insolvent, that tortfeasor's shortfall is shared proportionately by the solvent defendants according to their comparative fault as though the insolvent person had originally not participated in the action [Paradise Valley Hosp. v. Schlossman (1983) 143 Cal. App. 3d 87, 93, 191 Cal. Rptr. 531] ; (2) although a contributorily negligent plaintiff's recovery is reduced by the amount of his or her fault, his or her recovery is not further reduced to share in any shortfall resulting from the insolvency of a joint tortfeasor defendant; and (3) a cross defendant joint tortfeasor's contributory share is proportionately increased to compensate for the shortfall along with the other tortfeasors, even though that cross defendant is also a plaintiff [Ambriz v. Kress (1983) 148 Cal. App. 3d 963, 969, 196 Cal. Rptr. 417 (recovery of plaintiff who was 20-percent negligent is not reduced to account for insolvency of one defendant; however, her proportionate responsibility for damages suffered by husband and son as proportionately increased to account for share of insolvent defendant's liability to them)]. These rules have been held to apply as well to a shortfall caused by the good faith settlement of a cotortfeasor. The shortfall was shared by the other cotortfeasors in proportion to their comparative fault [Lyly & Sons Trucking Co. v. State of California (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 353, 355, 357-359, 195 Cal. Rptr. 116] . For a discussion of the effect of a good faith settlement by a cotortfeasor, see § 300.73[3].

These rules have been modified by the Fair Responsibility Act of 1986 (Civ. Code § 1431 et seq.) [see § 300.63[3]], also known as Proposition 51, at least to the extent of requiring that the percentage of noneconomic damages assessed against a joint tortfeasor according to his or her fault be the several, that is, separate, liability of that defendant and not the liability of his or her codefendants. Hence, on the insolvency of a cotortfeasor judgment debtor, for example, any shortfall in the noneconomic damages assessed against that tortfeasor at trial will not be apportioned among the cotortfeasor judgment debtors. On the other hand, any shortfall in the economic damages for which the insolvent tortfeasor is liable will continue to be apportioned among the cotortfeasor judgment debtors according to their proportionate liability [see Civ. Code § 1431]. Thus, under the Act, plaintiff will be able to recover from the solvent defendants the full amount of economic damages to which he or she is entitled under the joint and several judgment, but will have to suffer the full loss of the noneconomic damages awarded against an insolvent defendant. For the effect of a tortfeasor's good faith settlement on the liability of a cotortfeasor judgment debtor for the same tort, see § 300.73[3].

C. Comparative Indemnity Among Tortfeasors

25-300 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 300.73

§ 300.73 Good-Faith Settlement or Dismissal of Fewer Than All Tortfeasors

[1] General Considerations

In multiparty cases in which settlement is contemplated with fewer than all defendants, the parties must consider the impact of the settlement on theirrespective rights to further recovery, and the potential for other liabilities. These considerations must also take into account the modification of the doctrine by Proposition 51, the Fair Responsibility Act of 1986 [Civ. Code § 1431.1 et seq.; see § 300.63[3]].

Code Civ. Proc. § 877 provides the basic framework for handling settlements in multiparty litigation [see American Motorcycle Ass'n v. Superior Court (1978) 20 Cal. 3d 578, 604, 146 Cal. Rptr. 182, 578 P.2d 899 (extending statute to encompass newly created remedy of comparative indemnity)]. Under this statute, a release, a dismissal with or without prejudice, or a covenant not to sue given in good faith before verdict or judgment to one or more of a number of tortfeasors claimed to be liable for the same tort, or to one or more other co-obligors, has the following effects: (1) it does not discharge any nonsettling defendant from liability unless its terms so provide [Code Civ. Proc. § 877(a)]; (2) the value of the settlement is credited against any judgment entered after trial against the nonsettling defendants [Code Civ. Proc. § 877; see § 300.73[3]]; and (3) the settling defendant is no longer subject to claims for comparative indemnity from the nonsettling defendants [Code Civ. Proc. § 877(b); see § 300.73[4]].

These results depend on a judicial determination that the settlement was entered into in "good faith" [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 877, 877.6; see § 300.73[5]]. Any party to the action is entitled to a hearing on the issue of the good faith of a settlement entered into by the plaintiff or other claimant and one or more defendants [Code Civ. Proc. § 877.6; see § 300.73[7]]. This language limits the scope of the statute to settlements involving a plaintiff or other claimant. Settlements entered into among tortfeasors apportioning their own liability are outside of the statute, and a judicial determination that such a settlement is in good faith does not give it the effect otherwise provided by Code Civ. Proc. § 877 [Arizona Pipeline Co. v. Superior Court (1994) 22 Cal. App. 4th 33, 42, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 118 (settlement of all but one tortfeasor in declaratory relief action brought to determine their respective liabilities and indemnity rights did not affect nonsettling tortfeasor's indemnity rights)].

Before the passage of Proposition 51 in 1986, the plaintiff could take advantage of the defendants' joint and several liability for all damages, and recover the amount by which the damages exceeded any settlements from any solvent defendant who was found liable at trial, regardless of that defendant's comparative share of liability. Comparative indemnity rights then existed only against or among the nonsettleing defendants, any recourse against the settling defendants for indemnity having been eliminated by the good faith settlement.

Although Code Civ. Proc. §§ 877 and 877.6 still provide for this system, its operation has been significantly affected by Proposition 51's elimination of joint and several liability for noneconomic damages [see Civ. Code § 1431.2]. In actions covered by Proposition 51, plaintiffs who settle with one joint tortfeasor can no longer make up the difference between the compensable noneconomic damages and settlement amounts from other joint tortfeasors after trial because a party against whom a judgment is entered will only be severally liable for his or her comparative share of noneconomic damages [see Civ. Code § 1431.2]. Further, the amount by which a judgment against the nonsettling defendants is reduced on account of a settlement does not include amounts paid on account of the settling defendant's several-only liability for noneconomic damages [Espinoza v. Machonga (1992) 9 Cal. App. 4th 268, 271-277, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 498] . This issue is discussed in § 300.73[3][e].

Finally, although Proposition 51 does not affect a settling defendant's protection from indemnity claims, it does raise issues concerning what indemnity rights a settling defendant may retain against nonsettling defendants. A settling defendant may not be able to obtain indemnity to the extent that the settlement is for the plaintiff's noneconomic damages. This issue is discussed in § 300.73[4][b].

A judicial determination that a settlement is not in good faith does not necessarily invalidate the settlement unless the settlement agreement itself so provides [see Killian v. Millard (1991) 228 Cal. App. 3d 1601, 1607 n.2, 279 Cal. Rptr. 877 ; Rankin v. Curtis (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 939, 949-951, 228 Cal. Rptr. 753 (Staniforth, Acting P.J., dissenting); see also Skulnick v. Roberts Express, Inc. (1992) 2 Cal. App. 4th 884, 887, 3 Cal. Rptr. 2d 597 (example of settlement agreement contingent on finding of good faith)]. Rather, the effect is that the settling defendants will not be afforded protection from subsequent indemnity claims by nonsettling defendants [see Killian v. Millard (1991) 228 Cal. App. 3d 1601, 1607 n.2, 279 Cal. Rptr. 877] .

[2] Scope of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 877 and 877.6

By its terms, Code Civ. Proc. § 877 applies to tortfeasors claimed to be liable for the same tort, or to one or more other co-obligors mutually subject to contribution rights. It does not apply to co-obligors who have expressly agreed in writing to an apportionment of liability for losses or claims among themselves, and to contract debts if the contract was made before January 1, 1988 [Code Civ. Proc. § 877(c), (d)]. Code Civ. Proc. § 877.6 applies to "joint tortfeasors or co-obligors on a contract debt" [Code Civ. Proc. § 877.6(a)(1)]. The statutes apply not only to personal injury actions, but to tort actions arising out of commercial transactions as well [Kohn v. Superior Court (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 323, 332, 191 Cal. Rptr. 78] .

"Tortfeasors liable for the same tort," as used in Code Civ. Proc. § 877, encompasses joint, concurrent, and successive tortfeasors as those terms have traditionally been understood. The broader term was designed to eliminate any distinctions among them that might exist [see Mesler v. Bragg Mgmt. Co. (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 290, 302, 216 Cal. Rptr. 443, 702 P.2d 601 ; Turcon Construction, Inc. v. Norton-Villiers Ltd. (1983) 139 Cal. App. 3d 280, 283, 188 Cal. Rptr. 580 (construing "joint tortfeasors" as used in Code Civ. Proc. § 877.6 to mean joint, concurrent, and successive tortfeasors); see also May v. Miller (1991) 228 Cal. App. 3d 404, 409-410, 278 Cal. Rptr. 341] .

An insurer that provides coverage to an alleged or actual tortfeasor steps into the shoes of the insured and therefore is entitled to no greater rights than the insured and is subject to the same defenses that may be asserted against the insured. Thus, an insurer that settles a claim asserted against its insured stemming from allegedly actionable conduct by the insured cannot pursue equitable indemnity from other tortfeasors in the action who also settle in good faith with the plaintiff [Mid-Century Ins. Exch. v. Daimler-Chrysler Corp. (2001) 93 Cal. App. 4th 310, 315-316, 112 Cal. Rptr. 2d 880] .

"Co-obligors on a contract debt" does not encompass primary insurers of the same risk because their respective obligations are not joint, but rather arise out of separate contracts. Therefore, a settlement paid by one insurer, whether or not it is determined to be in good faith, cannot defeat the equitable contribution rights of another insurer under insurance law principles [Herrick Corp. v. Canadian Ins. Co. (1994) 29 Cal. App. 4th 753, 759-761, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 844 ; Hartford Accident & Indem. Co. v. Superior Court (1994) 29 Cal. App. 4th 435, 440 n.4, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 520] . There is a division of authority as to whether the term includes primary and excess insurers of the same risk [compare Pacific Estates, Inc. v. Superior Court (1993) 13 Cal. App. 4th 1561, 1571, 17 Cal. Rptr. 2d 434 ; with Diamond Heights Homeowners Ass'n v. National Am. Ins. Co. (1991) 227 Cal. App. 3d 563, 582, 277 Cal. Rptr. 906] . In addition, Code Civ. Proc. § 877.6 is not the correct mechanism for a workers' compensation insurer seeking to protect its subrogation rights to seek a determination that a settlement entered into by an injured employee and a third-party tortfeasor was made in bad faith [BaileyReliance Ins. Co. (2000) 79 Cal. App. 4th 449, 457-458, 94 Cal. Rptr. 2d 149] .

Code Civ. Proc. § 877 makes no distinction between the primary and secondary or vicarious liability of tortfeasors. Consequently, as in the case of concurrent tortfeasors, a nonsettling vicariously liable defendant is not released from liability to the plaintiff by a settlement between the plaintiff and the directly liable defendant [see Lopez v. Blecher (1983) 143 Cal. App. 3d 736, 738-740, 192 Cal. Rptr. 190 (settlement by primarily liable driver of vehicle that struck plaintiff does not terminate action against vicariously liable owner of another vehicle); Mayhugh v. County of Orange (1983) 141 Cal. App. 3d 763, 764-767, 190 Cal. Rptr. 537 (settlement by employee does not terminate action against vicariously liable employer)]. Similarly, a plaintiff may proceed against a parent corporation as the "alter ego" of its subsidiary after settling with the subsidiary [Mesler v. Bragg Mgmt. Co. (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 290, 297-306, 216 Cal. Rptr. 443, 702 P.2d 601] .

Code Civ. Proc. § 877.6 will apply in an action in which the injured party has actually named the tortfeasors as defendants, even if equitable indemnity claims are not pursued [Bob Parrett Constr., Inc. v. Superior Court (2006) 140 Cal. App. 4th 1180, 1187, 45 Cal. Rptr. 3d 250] . Moreover, there is no requirement that there must have even been a single lawsuit in which the injured party sued the joint tortfeasors [Bob Parrett Constr., Inc. v. Superior Court (2006) 140 Cal. App. 4th 1180, 1187, 45 Cal. Rptr. 3d 250] .

If an indemnity action is brought in California following settlement of an underlying tort action brought in another state, a good faith determination of the out-of-state settlement may be made in the California indemnity action pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. §§ 877 and 877.6 [Nutrition Now, Inc. v. Superior Court (2003) 105 Cal. App. 4th 209, 213, 129 Cal. Rptr. 2d 266] .

Code Civ. Proc. §§ 877 and 877.6 apply only to settlements entered into before a verdict or judgment has been reached in the case. The statutes have no application to a settlement or compromise reached after a judgment has been entered [Jhaveri v. Teitelbaum (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 740, 750, 98 Cal. Rptr. 3d 268]. Even without application of these statutes, however, through application of equitable principles, if one joint tortfeasor satisfies a judgment in full or in part, the judgment creditor cannot obtain a double recovery by collecting the same amounts from another of the joint tortfeasors [Jhaveri v. Teitelbaum (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 740, 753-754, 98 Cal. Rptr. 3d 268].

[3] Effect on Judgment Against Nonsettling Defendants

[a] Generally

Except as modified by the Equal Responsibility Act of 1986 (Proposition 51) [see Civ. Code § 1431.1-1431.5; see also § 300.73[3][e]], a release, dismissal, or covenant not to sue or to enforce judgment, given in good faith before verdict or judgment by an injured party to one or more of a number of tortfeasors claimed to be liable for the same tort, reduces the injured party's claims against the other tortfeasors by the amount stipulated in the settlement or by the amount of consideration paid, whichever is greater [Code Civ. Proc. § 877(a)]. The reduction of plaintiff's claim against the other tortfeasors is not measured by the settling tortfeasor's proportionate responsibility for the injury but by the amount stipulated or paid [American Motorcycle Ass'n v. Superior Court (1978) 20 Cal. 3d 578, 604, 146 Cal. Rptr. 182, 578 P.2d 899] . A stipulation of the amount that the settling defendant actually owes is not the same as a stipulation of the amount of the consideration paid in settlement, nor is it a stipulation of the amount to be set off against the claims of the other defendants [Federal Sav. & Loan Ins. Corp. v. Butler (9th Cir. 1990) 904 F.2d 505, 513 ; see Arbuthnot v. Relocation Realty Serv. Corp. (1991) 227 Cal. App. 3d 682, 688, 278 Cal. Rptr. 135 (amount of stipulated default judgment that was not to be enforced pursuant to settlement agreement is not stipulated amount by which liability of other defendants is to be reduced)].

The reduction of an award against other tortfeasors under Code Civ. Proc. § 877(a) is normally applied in one of two ways: either by the jury after evidence is submitted to it of the settlement, with instructions to reduce the award by the amount paid in settlement; or by the court if the settlement is not presented to the jury [May v. Miller (1991) 228 Cal. App. 3d 404, 409, 278 Cal. Rptr. 341] . If thejury is informed of the settlement but not specifically instructed to reduce its judgment against nonsettling tortfeasors, the court has broad discretion to apply Code Civ. Proc. § 877(a) to reduce the judgment by the amount of the settlement [May v. Miller (1991) 228 Cal. App. 3d 404, 410-411, 278 Cal. Rptr. 341] . If the plaintiff is found to have been comparatively negligent, the total damages are first reduced by the percentage of fault attributed to the plaintiff; then the reduction for the settlement is made [Lemos v. Eichel (1978) 83 Cal. App. 3d 110, 118-119, 147 Cal. Rptr. 603] . The court is not to reduce the amount of the settlement to be credited against any future judgment at the good-faith settlement confirmation hearing based on its estimation of comparative fault of the settling and nonsettling defendants [Erreca's v. Superior Court (1993) 19 Cal. App. 4th 1475, 1500-1502, 24 Cal. Rptr. 2d 156] .

If the fact and amount of a settlement credit are undisputed and the action against a nonsettling defendant is adjudicated by an arbitrator, the credit need not be applied by the arbitrator and may be applied by a trial court when rendering judgment. While the better practice would be to secure an offset credit before the judgment is issued, if the offset is greater than the amount of the arbitrator's award and the defendant has not previously brought the credit to the attention of the trial court, the nonsettling defendant may use a motion to compel acknowledgment of satisfaction of judgment under Code Civ. Proc. § 724.050(d) to effectively achieve the offset [Wade v. Schrader (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 1039, 1048-1049, 85 Cal. Rptr. 3d 865] .

The "claims" to which an offset may be applied are claims of liability for damages. The term does not extend to costs that may be awarded to a prevailing party after a claim for liability has been adjudicated, unless the plaintiff's agreement with the settling tortfeasor specifically covers the costs of pursuing the action against the remaining defendant [Reed v. Wilson (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 439, 444-446, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 510] .

An offset credit may be applied only for settlement money actually paid to plaintiff by settling defendants and should not be applied for settlement amounts plaintiff has not yet received and may never receive. However, the trial court should reserve jurisdiction to calculate and award offsets in the event that plaintiff is paid additional settlement amounts in the future [Garcia v. Duro Dyne Corp. (2007) 156 Cal. App. 4th 92, 100-101, 67 Cal. Rptr. 3d 100] .

If a settling tortfeasor paid more than it would have been required to pay under the jury's apportionment of fault and finding of damages, the entire amount of the settlement is still deducted from the judgment against the other defendants. The balance of the judgment is apportioned to the other defendants according to the jury's apportionment of comparative fault [Bracket v. State of California (1986) 180 Cal. App. 3d 1171, 1175-1177, 226 Cal. Rptr. 1] , and the settling tortfeasor is entitled to indemnity from the nonsettling defendants for the amount of its overpayment [see American Bankers Ins. Co. v. Avco-Lycoming Div. (1979) 97 Cal. App. 3d 732, 736, 159 Cal. Rptr. 70] . Furthermore, a settling tortfeasor who overpays may assign its comparative indemnity claims to the plaintiff. This may result in the plaintiff's recovery of more than the total amount of damages awarded in the litigation, but does not expose the nonsettling defendants to any greater degree of liability [Bush v. Superior Court (1992) 10 Cal. App. 4th 1374, 1385-1386, 13 Cal. Rptr. 2d 382] . A nonsettling defendant is entitled to a setoff for a settlement under Code Civ. Proc. § 877, even if the trier of fact determines that the settling defendant had no fault for the plaintiff's injuries [McComber v. Wells (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 512, 517, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 376] .

If a nonsettling defendant has countersued the plaintiff and both parties are found liable, as, for example, if both parties are found liable and awarded damages to each other for breach of contract, the proper procedure is for the court to offset the jury's damage awards against each other, just as if there had been no settlement, and then to apply the settlement credit toward any amount that the nonsettling defendant might still owe [Brawley v. J.C. Interiors, Inc. (2008) 161 Cal. App. 4th 1126, 1134, 74 Cal. Rptr. 3d 832].

In the case of a structured settlement calling for future periodic payments by a settling tortfeasor, the injured party's award is reduced by the future payments discounted to their present cash value, not by the total dollar amount of the future payments [Franck v. Polaris E-Z Go Div. of Textron, Inc. (1984) 157 Cal. App. 3d 1107, 1116-1121, 204 Cal. Rptr. 321 ; see Seymour v. Summa Vista Cinema, Inc. (9th Cir. 1987) 809 F.2d 1385, 1389, 1390 (deduction of discounted value of note taken in settlement with joint tortfeasor as proper when discount reflects probability of nonpayment; also stating that federal and California law reach same result)].

[b] Valuing and Crediting Nonmonetary Consideration

If a settlement involves nonmonetary consideration, the consideration must be valued and offset against any judgment against other defendants [Armstrong World Indus., Inc. v. Superior Court (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 951, 955-957, 264 Cal. Rptr. 39] . Nonmonetary consideration that has been found subject to evaluation and credit includes assignment of the settling defendant's indemnity rights against the nonsettling defendants [Regan Roofing Co. v. Superior Court (1994) 21 Cal. App. 4th 1685, 1711, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 62 ; Erreca's v. Superior Court (1993) 19 Cal. App. 4th 1475, 1496, 24 Cal. Rptr. 2d 156 ; Bush v. Superior Court (1992) 10 Cal. App. 4th 1374, 1380-1381, 13 Cal. Rptr. 2d 382] ; assignment of a settling defendant's rights against its insurer [Southern Cal. Gas Co. v. Superior Court (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 1030, 1034-1037, 232 Cal. Rptr. 320] ; assignment of rights against an employer [Arbuthnot v. Relocation Realty Serv. Corp. (1991) 227 Cal. App. 3d 682, 688-690, 278 Cal. Rptr. 135] ; and waiver of litigation costs [Armstrong World Indus., Inc. v. Superior Court (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 951, 955-957, 264 Cal. Rptr. 39] . An offset credit may be applied for waiver of litigation costs by settling defendants even if it is undisputed that those settling defendants would have prevailed had they proceeded to trial [Garcia v. Duro Dyne Corp. (2007) 156 Cal. App. 4th 92, 105-106, 67 Cal. Rptr. 3d 100] .

The valuation must be made in good faith, and should be part of the confirmation process [Arbuthnot v. Relocation Realty Serv. Corp. (1991) 227 Cal. App. 3d 682, 689-690, 278 Cal. Rptr. 135] . Valuation generally should take place at the settlement stage, even if the nonmonetary consideration involves an assignment of rights that may eventually be reduced to an exact amount in a judgment. Valuation as of the time of settlement allows the court to fully evaluate the good faith of the overall settlement asof that time [Erreca's v. Superior Court (1993) 19 Cal. App. 4th 1475, 1498-1499, 24 Cal. Rptr. 2d 156] . Valuation may be deferred if it is not necessary to the good-faith determination [Aero-Crete, Inc. v. Superior Court (1993) 21 Cal. App. 4th 203, 209, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 804 (involving settlement with judgment-proof defendants conceded to be unconnected to actual liability)].

The settling parties bear the burden of establishing the value of a nonmonetary settlement [Arbuthnot v. Relocation Realty Serv. Corp. (1991) 227 Cal. App. 3d 682, 689-690, 278 Cal. Rptr. 135] . They have the most knowledge of the value of the various claims that they are attempting to settle, and they can best allocate settlement proceeds among those various claims, subject to court approval. They must carry the burden of determining the value of the settlement, including each of its component parts [Erreca's v. Superior Court (1993) 19 Cal. App. 4th 1475, 1491, 1498, 24 Cal. Rptr. 2d 156] . Even if making a valuation is difficult, a trial court must require a valuation of nonmonetary settlement elements to make a good faith determination [Brehm Cmtys. v. Superior Court (2001) 88 Cal. App. 4th 730, 736-737, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 918 ; see, e.g., Franklin Mint Co. v. Superior Court (2005) 130 Cal. App. 4th 1550, 1558-1561, 31 Cal. Rptr. 3d 319 (despite difficulty of placing value on settlement that had settling defendant putting $25 million in escrow for distribution to charities in name of both plaintiff and defendant, valuation of intangible benefits to parties required)].

The value placed on a settling defendant's assignment to the plaintiff of indemnity rights against nonsettling defendants is a complex matter. It has been held that a good faith value must be credited for offset against any judgment obtained against the nonsettling defendants [Regan Roofing Co. v. Superior Court (1994) 21 Cal. App. 4th 1685, 1710-1715, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 62 ; Erreca's v. Superior Court (1993) 19 Cal. App. 4th 1475, 1502-1505, 24 Cal. Rptr. 2d 156] . Although a plaintiff under this scenario might ultimately receive more than the total judgment entered, it is not considered a double recovery [Regan Roofing Co. v. Superior Court (1994) 21 Cal. App. 4th 1685, 1711-1713, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 62 ; Bush v. Superior Court (1992) 10 Cal. App. 4th 1374, 1385-1387, 13 Cal. Rptr. 2d 382] . Rather the settling defendant is electing to risk paying more than its actual comparative share by surrendering rather than pursuing its indemnity rights. This may be the prudent course if the value of those rights is speculative at the time of settlement [Erreca's v. Superior Court (1993) 19 Cal. App. 4th 1475, 1502-1505, 24 Cal. Rptr. 2d 156] .

[c] Allocation of Settlement

In a typical case involving a single plaintiff and multiple defendants, each tortfeasor's potential liability is based on the same injury to the plaintiff. Therefore, any settlement by one defendant will offset any judgment against the other tortfeasors, and no allocation of the settlement (other than that required under Proposition 51 [see § 300.73[3][e]] is required [Alcal Roofing & Insulation v. Superior Court (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 1121, 1124, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 844] . However, multiparty litigation does not always fit this pattern. In some cases, the amount of the offset is uncertain for reasons such as (1) the settlement covers multiple plaintiffs or causes of action with different damages; (2) a sliding scale is used, and payments by the settling defendants are contingent on the degree of plaintiff's success against the nonsettling defendants [see § 300.73[10]]; (3) the amount of the settlement is clouded by the inclusion of noncash consideration into the settlement; and/or (4) the settlement covers seperate claims for seperate injuries, not all of which would be attributable to the conduct of the remaining defendants [Alcal Roofing & Insulation v. Superior Court (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 1121, 1124, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 844] . Additionally, the settlement may involve payment of both economic and noneconomic damages, for which the remaining defendants have different liability under Proposition 51 [see Regan Roofing Co. v. Superior Court (1994) 21 Cal. App. 4th 1685, 1705-1708, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 62 ; see also Civ. Code § 1431.2]. Finally a portion of the settlement may be allocated to costs and expenses of litigation [see Regan Roofing Co. v. Superior Court (1994) 21 Cal. App. 4th 1685, 1708-1710, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 62] .

In a situation in which the cash amount of the settlement is not determinative of the amount of the offset with regard to any remaining defendant, the settling parties must include an allocation or a valuation in their agreement [Alcal Roofing & Insulation v. Superior Court (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 1121, 1124-1125, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 844] . This allocation or valuation is then subject to the requirement that it be made in good faith, committed to the discretion of the court in the good-faith settlement approval process [Regan Roofing Co. v. Superior Court (1994) 21 Cal. App. 4th 1685, 1701, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 62 ; Erreca's v. Superior Court (1993) 19 Cal. App. 4th 1475, 1489, 24 Cal. Rptr. 2d 156 ; see § 300.73[5]]. If found to be in good faith, the allocation is effective to determine the amount of setoff available to the nonsettling defendants [see Regan Roofing Co. v. Superior Court (1994) 21 Cal. App. 4th 1685, 1703, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 62] .

In a complex multiparty case, a trial court may make an initial allocation when making the determination that a settlement is made in good faith, only to change the allocation based on evidence produced at trial against non-settling defendants. For example, if the evidence produced at trial shows that the defendants should not be held liable for one claimed category of damage, settlement amounts initially allocated to compensate for that type of damage may be allocated by the trial court to other categories of damage [El Escorial Owners' Assn. v. DLC Plastering, Inc. (2007)

[d] Effect on Rights of Nonsettling Defendants

A settlement that has the objective of abridging a non-settling defendant's indemnification claims and insurance coverage may not be considered to be in good faith [Bobrow/Thomas & Assocs. v. Superior Court (1996) 50 Cal. App. 4th 1654, 58 Cal. Rptr. 2d 626 (settlement could not be confirmed without full explanation of how agreement would affect action against non-settling defendant, and requirement that plaintiff make firm commitment to limit its recovery against non-settling defendant)].

[e] Special Problems Under Proposition 51

A good faith settlement reduces the claims against nonsettling tortfeasors by the amount deemed to be the consideration for the settlement [Code Civ. Proc. § 877(a)]. However, the Fair Responsibility Act of 1986 (Proposition 51) [Civ. Code §§ 1431.1-1431.5] created uncertainty concerning the manner in which the settlement amount is to be apportioned and credited against judgments that are subsequently entered against nonsettling defendants. This uncertainty has now been addressed and perhaps resolved by the courts [see Conrad v. Ball Corp. (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 439, 443, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 441 ; Regan Roofing Co. v. Superior Court (1994) 21 Cal. App. 4th 1685, 1705-1708, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 62 ; Espinoza v. Machonga (1992) 9 Cal. App. 4th 268, 271-277, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 498] .

Such an apportionment is required because under Proposition 51, settling and nonsettling defendants are jointly liable only for the plaintiff's economic damages, and each defendant is only severably liable for its comparative share of the plaintiff's noneconomic damages [see Civ. Code § 1431.2(a)]. Thus, a reduction of one defendant's comparative share of noneconomic damages by an amount that represents noneconomic damages paid by another defendant violates the purpose of Proposition 51 [Hoch v. Allied-Signal, Inc. (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 48, 62-68 ; see Civ. Code § 1431.1]. Only a joint and several judgment for economic damages may be reduced on account of a prior settlement, and then only to the extent that the settlement represents compensation for the plaintiff's economic damages [Conrad v. Ball Corp. (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 439, 443, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 441 ; Regan Roofing Co. v. Superior Court (1994) 21 Cal. App. 4th 1685, 1705-1708, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 62 ; Espinoza v. Machonga (1992) 9 Cal. App. 4th 268, 271-277, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 498] .

For example, suppose that P sues A, B, and C, for personal injuries. Before trial, C pays $50,000 to P in a settlement that is confirmed as having been made in good faith, and C is released from all liability. P proceeds to trial against A and B. The jury awards $100,000 economic damages and $100,000 noneconomic damages and apportions fault 25 percent to A, 25 percent to B, and 50 percent to C. As required by Proposition 51, several judgments are entered against both A and B, each for $25,000 (25 percent of $100,000) [see Civ. Code § 1431.2(a)]. A joint judgment must also be entered against A and B for P's economic damages, but A and B are entitled to a reduction of the $100,000 amount of economic damages to reflect the settlement [Code Civ. Proc. § 877(a)]. The amount of the reduction depends on the amount of the settlement that is allocated to economic damages [Espinoza v. Machonga (1992) 9 Cal. App. 4th 268, 271-277, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 498] .

Proposition 51 and Code Civ. Proc. § 877 are both silent on the manner of apportionment, and several approaches are possible. First, the parties to the settlement may stipulate to an apportionment and the stipulation may be enforced as long as it was made in good faith [Regan Roofing Co. v. Superior Court (1994) 21 Cal. App. 4th 1685, 1706-1708, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 62] . A high apportionment to economic damages favors the settling defendant by preserving greater indemnity rights, while a high apportionment to noneconomic damages favors the plaintiff by assuring payment of damages that are not recoverable from other defendants. Thus, an apportionment made by the parties might be presumed to reflect the give and take of arms-length bargaining [Regan Roofing Co. v. Superior Court (1994) 21 Cal. App. 4th 1685, 1708, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 62 ; see Espinoza v. Machonga (1992) 9 Cal. App. 4th 268, 275-276, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 498] . Whether the parties' allocation of a settlement entirely to economic damages or entirely to noneconomic damages might be made in good faith under particular facts is problematical.

Another possible approach is to defer the question until such time as there is a trial involving the nonsettling defendants, and then to apportion the settlement between economic and noneconomic damages in the same ratio that the jury apportioned its award of damages. In the above example, the settlement amount of $50,000 would be apportioned in a 1:1 ratio, allocating $25,000 to economic damages and $25,000 to noneconomic damages. The amount allocated to economic damages would be subtracted from the jury's award of economic damages ($100,000 minus $25,000), and a joint and several judgment would be entered against A and B for the balance ($75,000). P could collect from either or both, but under indemnity principles, A and B would each ultimately be responsible for half of this amount [see Sagadin v. Ripper (1985) 175 Cal. App. 3d 1141, 1173-1174, 221 Cal. Rptr. 675] . This approach was approved by the first appellate court to be confronted with the issue [Espinoza v. Machonga (1992) 9 Cal. App. 4th 268, 271-277, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 498] .

One court has held that the settling parties must apportion the settlement between economic and noneconomic damages in order for the court to be able to determine if it is in good faith [Alcal Roofing & Insulation v. Superior Court (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 1121, 1129, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 844 ; see also Erreca's v. Superior Court (1993) 19 Cal. App. 4th 1475, 1488, 24 Cal. Rptr. 2d 156] . However, in another case, the court declined to impose such a requirement. Rather, it noted that allocation of a settlement amount between economic and noneconomic damages by the parties, subject to good faith confirmation, was one possible approach, but that the issue was unresolved [Espinoza v. Machonga (1992) 9 Cal. App. 4th 268, 275-276, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 498 ; see also Conrad v. Ball Corp. (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 439, 443, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 441 (also refusing to impose allocation requirement on settling parties)].

Subsequently, the court confirmed just such an allocation as being in good faith, but did not suggest that allocation is required in all instances [Regan Roofing Co. v. Superior Court (1994) 21 Cal. App. 4th 1685, 1705-1708, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 62] . Thus it appears that both approaches are perfectly valid under Proposition 51; good faith allocation by the parties, and deferral and allocation in the proportions found by the trier of fact. In the absence of a prior determination that a pre-trial settlement allocation was made in good faith, assuming that a court may properly allocate a settlement between economic and noneconomic damages in a proportion different from that determined by the trier of fact, the burden of proving that a different allocation is appropriate would be on the party seeking a different allocation [see Ehret v. Congoleum Corp. (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 1308, 1320-1322, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 363 (plaintiffs unsuccessfully seeking different allocation failed to provide evidence of settlement allocation terms, if any)].

In yet another case, settlements were reached with some defendants in an asbestos exposure case that included a release of liability on all personal injury claims by the exposed person, loss of consortium claims brought by his wife, and any wrongful death claims that might be brought in the future by the children of the exposed person. At trial against the lone nonsettling defendant, the parties and the court were faced with the issue of how much of the settlement amount to apportion to the release of potential wrongful death claims, which were not part of the trial, and how to allocate between economic and noneconomic damages. Relying on principles from earlier cases, the court of appeal held that if a jury awards economic damages to an injured plaintiff as well as loss of consortium damages to the plaintiff's spouse, and there are pre-verdict settlements that include these damages, the trial court must apply the ratios established by the jury's verdict to apportion the settlement amounts between economic and noneconomic damages, including the jury's relative valuation of the loss of consortium claim [Hackett v. John Crane, Inc. (2002) 98 Cal. App. 4th 1233, 1244, 120 Cal. Rptr. 2d 662] .

The court also held that the trial court retains discretion to determine what portion of the settlements to allocate to noneconomic damages claims that are covered by the settlements but not adjudicated by the jury, including any potential wrongful death claims that might be brought [Hackett v. John Crane, Inc. (2002) 98 Cal. App. 4th 1233, 1245, 120 Cal. Rptr. 2d 662] . In the absence of a pre-trial finding that the settlement was reached in good faith, an allocation of non-adjudicated claims by the trial court requires the plaintiff to present to the court evidence of the reasonableness of the proposed allocation, including evidence of a rational basis for the allocation and that the allocation was reached in an atmosphere of appropriate adverseness with the settling parties [Jones v. John Crane, Inc. (2005) 132 Cal. App. 4th 990, 1008-1011, 35 Cal. Rptr. 3d 144] .

Another approach that avoided allocation was accepted by the court in a wrongful death action [Hoch v. Allied-Signal, Inc. (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 48, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 615] . In that case, the plaintiffs settled with three defendants without allocation between economic and economic damages. They then proceeded to trial against the remaining defendant on noneconomic damages only. A several-only judgment was entered on the jury's verdict for that defendant's comparative share of the total noneconomic damages found. No part of the judgment was subject to reduction on account of the settlement because the settling defendant's had no liability for the judgment. The court found no difficulty with the fact that the plaintiffs' total recovery by settlement and judgment exceeded the total damages found by the jury. Such a possibility has always been present in multi-party settlement situations. The fact that the settling defendants prefer to settle rather than risk trial in no way prejudices the nonsettling defendant, who pays only its comparative share of noneconomic damages [Hoch v. Allied-Signal, Inc. (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 48, 62-68, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 615] . Further, although the court did not mention it, the settlement could have included economic damages, which were not before the jury. If there were any economic damages, the plaintiffs elected to recover them entirely by way of settlement.

Whether or not the settlement is apportioned, any subsequent judgment against a sole nonsettling defendant must be apportioned between economic and noneconomic damages. Otherwise, there is no basis from which to conclude the amount of damages for which the settling and nonsettling defendants are jointly and severally liable and subject to a potential reduction on account of the settlement. The nonsettling defendant waives any right to reduction by failing to propose an appropriate special verdict [Conrad v. Ball Corp. (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 439, 443-445, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 441] .

[4] Effect on Indemnity and Contribution Rights

[a] Generally

A good-faith settlement discharges the settling tortfeasor from all liability for comparative indemnity to any other parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 877(b)]. The statutory language refers to liability for "contribution" rather than indemnity. However, the California Supreme Court expanded the term "contribution" as used in the statute to encompass the remedy of comparative indemnity that was created in the case [American Motorcycle Ass'n v. Superior Court (1978) 20 Cal. 3d 578, 604, 146 Cal. Rptr. 182, 578 P.2d 899] . The rule barring comparative indemnity claims against tortfeasors who settle in good faith has also been codified in Code Civ. Proc. § 877.6, which provides that a determination by the court that the settlement was made in good faith bars any other joint tortfeasor from any further claims against the settling tortfeasor for "equitable comparative contribution" or partial or comparative negligence based on comparative negligence or comparative fault [Code Civ. Proc. § 877.6(c)].

This rule bars claims for comparative indemnity based on comparative fault against those joint tortfeasors who settled before liability was established by jury verdict or judgment. It does not bar claims settled after judgment was entered or after a jury has made a final determination regarding liability [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 877, 877.6(a); compare Price Pfister, Inc. v. William Lyon Co. (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 1643, 1647-1650, 18 Cal. Rptr. 2d 437 (settlement made after jury found one defendant liable, but before determining amount of damages in bifurcated trial is within Code Civ. Proc. § 877; cross defendant's liability was not determined by jury); with Southern Cal. White Trucks v. Teresinski (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 1393, 1403-1408, 236 Cal. Rptr. 159 (settlement made after judgment on jury verdict was vacated did not come within Code Civ. Proc. § 877, and court's action in vacating judgment that was entered before settlement did not convert settlement into one made "before judgment"); and Be v. Western Truck Exch. (1997) 55 Cal. App. 4th 1139, 1148, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d 527] .

Subject to possible limitatons imposed by Proposition 51 [see § 300.73[4][b], a settling defendant may recover comparative indemnity from a nonsettling tortfeasor [Bolamperti v. Larco Mfg. (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 249, 251-255, 210 Cal. Rptr. 155 ; Teachers Ins. Co. v. Smith (1982) 128 Cal. App. 3d 862, 866, 180 Cal. Rptr. 701 ; American Bankers Ins. Co. v. Avco-Lycoming Div. (1979) 97 Cal. App. 3d 732, 738, 159 Cal. Rptr. 70 ; see Far W. Fin. Corp. v. D & S Co. (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 796, 801-802, 251 Cal. Rptr. 202, 760 P.2d 399] . It does not matter whether the settling party was originally sued by the plaintiff or was brought into the action as a cross defendant for indemnity [Widson v. International Harvester Co. (1984) 153 Cal. App. 3d 45, 57, 200 Cal. Rptr. 136] . However, the potential indemnitor may defeat the claim by subsequently entering into a good-faith settlement with the original plaintiff, as long as the settlement is made before verdict or judgment in the underlying action [see Regal Recovery Agency, Inc. v. Superior Court (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 693, 695, 255 Cal. Rptr. 34 (determination of good faith may be made in subsequent action for indemnity as well as in original action; action had been dismissed afterlast settlement)]. Moreover, if a potential indemnitor subsequently enters into a good-faith settlement with the plaintiff, the earlier-settling tortfeasor may be bound by the good-faith determination even though that tortfeasor was not actually a party to the action at the time of the judicial determination of good faith, so long as that tortfeasor had notice of, and an opportunity to be heard at, the good-faith settlement hearing [Britz, Inc. v. Dow Chem. Co. (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 177, 184, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 188 ; see generally § 300.73[7][b]].

Because an earlier-settling tortfeasor may be barred from seeking indemnity from a later-settling tortfeasor on a finding that the later settlement was in good faith, the insurer for the first tortfeasor, who may have settled within policy limits on behalf of its insured in anticipation of seeking indemnity from another tortfeasor, is also barred from seeking indemnity by a good-faith settlement determination. Code Civ. Proc. § 877.6 applies under these circumstances even if there is technically no "nonsettling defendant" left in the action, and even if the later-settling defendant was not a named defendant when the insurer settled [Wilshire Ins. Co. v. Tuff Boy Holding, Inc. (2001) 86 Cal. App. 4th 627, 638-644, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 480] .

The settling defendant is not required to first prove that the amount paid in settlement exceeded the settling defendant's proportionate share as a condition on seeking indemnity [Gross v. Allen (1994) 22 Cal. App. 4th 354, 360-361, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 429] . Conversely, the proposed indemnitor is not bound by the settlement amount as the measure of the plaintiff's damages, even if the settlement has been found to be in good faith. The indemnitor may attempt to prove that the damages were less than the settlement, and consequently, that its liability for indemnity is less than the amount claimed based on the settlement [Western S.S. Lines, Inc. v. San Pedro Peninsula Hosp. (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 100, 118-119, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 263, 876 P.2d 1062] . This rule is inapplicable if the comparative liability of both the indemnitor and indemnitee was determined by the trier of fact in the underlying action, and the indemnitor was a party to that action [see Western S.S. Lines, Inc. v. San Pedro Peninsula Hosp. (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 100, 118, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 263, 876 P.2d 1062] .

If there is a contract that expressly provides for indemnity rights between codefendants [see § 300.30 et seq.], a good-faith settlement by the contract indemnitor does not defeat a nonsettling indemnitee's right to express contractual indemnity [Bay Dev., Ltd. v. Superior Court (1990) 50 Cal. 3d 1012, 1019, 1032, 269 Cal. Rptr. 720, 791 P.2d 290 ; C.L. Peck Contractors v. Superior Court (1984) 159 Cal. App. 3d 828, 834, 205 Cal. Rptr. 754] . Similarly, an indemnity claim based on statute survives a good-faith settlement by the statutory indemnitor [Kantor v. Housing Auth. (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 424, 430-431, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 695 (indemnity claim under Gov. Code § 825, which provides for public entity's indemnification of employee or former employee)].

Claims for total indemnity and implied contractual indemnity are barred by a good-faith settlement under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 877 and 877.6(c) [Bay Dev., Ltd. v. Superior Court (1990) 50 Cal. 3d 1012, 1028-1035, 269 Cal. Rptr. 720, 791 P.2d 290 ; Far W. Fin. Corp. v. D & S Co. (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 796, 800, 817, 251 Cal. Rptr. 202, 760 P.2d 399] . The California Supreme Court has held that a claim for total indemnity is not conceptually different from a claim for partial, comparative indemnity, but is rather just one end of the spectrum of comparative-indemnity apportionment possibilities [Far W. Fin. Corp. v. D & S Co. (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 796, 809, 251 Cal. Rptr. 202, 760 P.2d 399 ; see § 300.61[4]]. The Court has also held that implied contractual indemnity is merely a form of equitable indemnity, subject to the rules governing equitable indemnity [Bay Dev., Ltd. v. Superior Court (1990) 50 Cal. 3d 1012, 1033, 269 Cal.

Rptr. 720, 791 P.2d 290 ; see § 300.61[5]]. The rights of a defendant asserting that its liability is vicarious only, or that it is liable only because of the settling defendant's breach of contract, may be protected at the hearing at which the good faith of the proposed settlement is determined [see Bay Dev., Ltd. v. Superior Court (1990) 50 Cal. 3d 1012, 1034-1035, 269 Cal. Rptr. 720, 791 P.2d 290 ; Far W. Fin. Corp. v. D & S Co. (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 796, 814-817, 251 Cal. Rptr. 202, 760 P.2d 399] .

A good-faith settlement bars claims that are in essence claims for comparative indemnity, no matter how the claim is pleaded [see, e.g., Ratcliff Architects v. Vanir Constr. Mgmt., Inc. (2001) 88 Cal. App. 4th 595, 607, 106 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1 (negligence cross-claim brought by architect against construction manager who settled in good faith with school district was barred, because claim was essentially for indemnification); see also Gackstetter v. Frawley (2006) 135 Cal. App. 4th 1257, 1274-1279, 38 Cal. Rptr. 3d 333] . If the claims between joint tortfeasors are identical to those made by the plaintiffs, of if the damages sought by the joint tortfeasors are those that the court would consider in determining the proportionate liability of a settling tortfeasor, the claims are for indemnity, even if couched in affirmative language. On the other hand, a claim by a joint tortfeasor that seeks neither indemnity nor contribution, and that the court would not contemplate in determining the proportionate liability of the settling tortfeasor is not a claim for indemnity, and hence, survives a good-faith settlement [Cal-Jones Props. v. Evans Pac. Corp (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 324, 328, 264 Cal. Rptr. 737 (claim of one alleged tortfeasor against another for breach of fiduciary duty determined to be claim for indemnity)]. However, the claimant must show that the potential liability of the defendant or cross defendant is based on damages for direct injury to the claimant, not on damages incurred as a result of the claimant's liability to a third party [cf. Cal-Jones Props. v. Evans Pac. Corp (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 324, 328, 264 Cal. Rptr. 737 (cross complaint was barred by good-faith settlement because all damages were incurred due to claimant's liability to plaintiff in underlying action)].

A settling defendant whose indemnity rights are defeated by a subsequent verdict of nonliability of a nonsettling defendant has standing to appeal from the judgment denying indemnity, even if the jury also exonerated the settling defendant. On appeal, the settling defendant may assert errors of law in instructing the jury with regard to the standards by which the nonsettling defendant's liability should have been measured [Tatum v. Armor Elevator Co. (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 1315, 1317-1318, 1321, 250 Cal. Rptr. 775] .

[b] Under Proposition 51

Proposition 51, the Fair Responsibility Act of 1986 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1431.1 et seq.; see § 300.63[3]] has created a number of uncertainties with regard to the interaction and mathematics of settlements and indemnity rights. Uncertainty arises because comparative indemnity is available only among tortfeasors who are jointly and severally liable to the plaintiff [GEM Developers v. Hallcraft Homes of San Diego, Inc. (1989) 213 Cal. App. 3d 419, 430, 261 Cal. Rptr. 626 ; see § 300.63], but Proposition 51 eliminates joint and several liability for noneconomic damages [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1431.2(a)]. The simple view is that Proposition 51 eliminates indemnity rights with regard to noneconomic damages, and to some extent, this is undoubtedly correct. However, the policies behind settling multi-party tort litigation suggest that some exceptions may be found.

A settlement may create one of several situations that raise different issues under Proposition 51. First, the settling defendant may decide to make the plaintiff whole, paying an amount that is sufficient to cause the plaintiff to dismiss against all parties, but preserving the settling defendant's rights of indemnity against other tortfeasors [see, e.g., Gross v. Allen (1994) 22 Cal. App. 4th 354, 360-361, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 429 ; American Bankers Ins. Co. v. Avco-Lycoming Div. (1979) 97 Cal. App. 3d 732, 734, 159 Cal. Rptr. 70] . In this situation, the issue is whether Proposition 51 limits the settling defendant's indemnity rights in any way. The court of appeal has held that Proposition 51 applies to such settlements and that the settling tortfeasor may obtain indemnity from other tortfeasors only with regard to the amount of the settlement that represents the plaintiff's economic damages [Union Pac. Corp. v. Wengert (2000) 79 Cal. App. 4th 1444, 1447-1449, 95 Cal. Rptr. 2d 68] .

More commonly, a settlement involves a release of the settling defendant only, and the plaintiff proceeds to trial against the nonsettling defendants. At trial, the finder of fact makes an apportionment of comparative fault among all tortfeasors, including the settling defendant, and determines the plaintiff's economic and noneconomic damages [see BAJI No. 16.72 (7th ed.)]. Usually, the amount of the settlement is less than what the settling defendant would have paid under the jury's apportionment of fault and damages awarded, meaning that neither the settling or nonsettling defendants have any indemnity rights against each other (assuming that the settlement is found to be in good faith) [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 877(b), 877.6(c)].

Occasionally, however, a defendant may pay an amount in settlement that proves to be more than its comparative share under the apportionment of fault found subsequently by the trier of fact [see, e.g., Bracket v. State of California (1986) 180 Cal. App. 3d 1171, 1174, 226 Cal. Rptr. 1] . In this case, the settling defendant retains indemnity rights against the nonsettling defendants [see Bolamperti v. Larco Mfg. (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 249, 251-255, 210 Cal. Rptr. 155] , although as noted above, Proposition 51 limits the right of the settling defendant to recover indemnity to that amount of the overpayment that is apportioned to economic damages [Union Pac. Corp. v. Wengert (2000) 79 Cal. App. 4th 1444, 1447-1449, 95 Cal. Rptr. 2d 68] .

For detailed consideration of the problems concerning good-faith settlements, indemnity rights, and Proposition 51, the public policies involved, and possible resolutions, see Levy, Golden & Sacks, California Torts, Ch. 74 (Matthew Bender).

[5] The "Good Faith" Requirement

[a] Purpose

A settlement must have been made in "good faith" in order to discharge a settling tortfeasor from liability for comparative indemnity [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 877, 877.6(c); Tech-Bilt, Inc. v. Woodward-Clyde & Assocs. (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 488, 492-493, 213 Cal. Rptr. 256, 698 P.2d 159] . The California Supreme Court has stated that the formulation of a precise definition of "good faith" is neither possible nor practicable. However, the term as originally used by the Legislature in Code Civ. Proc. § 877 incorporates by reference the general equitable principle of contribution law that frowns on unfair settlements, including those that are so poorly related to the value of the case that they impose a potentially disproportionate cost on nonsettling defendants [Tech-Bilt, Inc. v. Woodward-Clyde & Assocs. (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 488, 495, 213 Cal. Rptr. 256, 698 P.2d 159 ; see River Garden Farms, Inc. v. Superior Court (1972) 26 Cal. App. 3d 986, 997, 103 Cal. Rptr. 498] . The subsequent use of the term in Code Civ. Proc. § 877.6, relating to the judicial determination that a settlement is in good faith [see § 300.93[2]], refers back to its meaning in Code Civ. Proc. § 877 [Tech-Bilt, Inc. v. Woodward-Clyde & Assocs. (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 488, 496, 213 Cal. Rptr. 256, 698 P.2d 159] .

The dual purposes behind Civ. Code § 877 are equitable sharing of liability among multiple tortfeasors and encouragement of settlement. In applying the good faith standard, both objectives must be accomodated, and neither statutory goal may be applied to defeat the other. If the policy of encouraging settlement is permitted to overwhelm equitable financial sharing, the possibilities of unfairtactics are multiplied [Tech-Bilt, Inc. v. Woodward-Clyde & Assocs. (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 488, 494, 213 Cal. Rptr. 256, 698 P.2d 159] . Equitable sharing isaccomplished, in the absence of rights of comparative indemnity, only if the nonsettling defendants obtain a reasonable reduction in their ultimate liability to the plaintiff under Civ. Code § 877(a) [see Abbott Ford, Inc. v. Superior Court (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 858, 873, 239 Cal. Rptr. 626, 741 P.2d 124 ; see § 300.73[3]].

Thus, the good faith requirement establishes a duty relationship among the plaintiff, the settling defendant, and any nonsettling defendants [River Garden Farms, Inc. v. Superior Court (1972) 26 Cal. App. 3d 986, 999, 103 Cal. Rptr. 498] . Its purpose is primarily to protect the interests of the nonsettling defendants [see Southern Cal. Gas Co. v. Superior Court (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 1030, 1036, 232 Cal. Rptr. 320] . Nonsettling tortfeasors are barred from seeking comparative indemnity from settling defendants only if the settling parties acted in good faith with respect to them. Good faith of the dismissal alone is not sufficient. The dismissal must represent a settlement that is a good faith determination of relative liabilities. Only in this situation are both policies behind Code Civ. Proc. § 877 furthered [Tech-Bilt, Inc. v. Woodward-Clyde & Assocs. (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 488, 496-497, 213 Cal. Rptr. 256, 698 P.2d 159] .

Thus, for example, a settlement made solely to remove a deep-pocket defendant from the case because of the experts it could produce and the skilled trial attorneys it could retain, is not made in good faith consideration of the relevant liability of all parties [see Commercial Union Ins. Co. v. Ford Motor Co. (9th Cir. 1981) 640 F.2d 210, 213-214] . Similarly, good faith may be lacking if the plaintiff's counsel dismisses one defendant as part of a strategy to bring an action against the insurer of a codefendant for bad faith refusal to settle [Greshko v. County of Los Angeles (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 822, 835-836, 239 Cal. Rptr. 846] . However, a settlement that requires a settling defendant to participate and be represented at trial may be found in good faith if the purpose is simply to deprive the remaining defendants of the trial tactic of using the "empty chair" to ascribe fault to an actor who is not there to defend him or herself and the nature and terms of the settlement will be disclosed to the jury to avoid bias [Everman v. Superior Court (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 466, 470-471, 473, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 176] .

[b] Tech-Bilt Factors

The landmark California Supreme Court decision that established the parameters of the inquiry into whether a settlement is in good faith is Tech-Bilt, Inc. v. Woodward-Clyde & Assocs. (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 488, 213 Cal. Rptr. 256, 698 P.2d 159 . Under Tech-Bilt, the ultimate test to determine whether a settlement is not made in good faith is whether the settlement is grossly disproportionate to what a reasonable person at the time of settlement would estimate the settlor's liability to be [City of Grand Terrace v. Superior Court (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 1251, 1262, 238 Cal. Rptr. 119 ; see Tech-Bilt, Inc. v. Woodward-Clyde & Assocs. (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 488, 499, 213 Cal. Rptr. 256, 698 P.2d 159] .

In making this determination, the court must take into account a number of factors. These factors include a rough approximation of plaintiff's total recovery and the settlor's proportionate liability; the amount paid in settlement; the allocation of settlement proceeds among the plaintiffs in multiplaintiff cases; and a recognition that a settlor should pay less in settlement than he or she would if found liable after a trial. Other relevant considerations include the financial conditions and insurance policy limits of settling defendants and the existence of any collusion, fraud, or tortious conduct aimed to injure the interests of nonsettling defendants. Finally, practical considerations obviously require that the evaluation be made on the basis of information available at the time of settlement. A defendant's settlement figure must not be grossly disproportionate to what a reasonable person, at the time of the settlement, would estimate the settling defendant's liability to be. The party asserting the lack of good faith, who has the burden of proof on that issue [see Code Civ. Proc. § 877.6(d)], should be permitted to demonstrate, if he or she can, that the settlement is so far "out of the ballpark" in relation to these factors as to be inconsistent with the equitable objectives of the statute. Such a demonstration would establish that the proposed settlement was not a "settlement made in good faith" within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 877.6 [Tech-Bilt, Inc. v. Woodward-Clyde & Assocs. (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 488, 499-500, 213 Cal. Rptr. 256, 698 P.2d 159 ; see Long Beach Memorial Medical Center v. Superior Court (2009) 172 Cal. App. 4th 865, 874-876, 91 Cal. Rptr. 3d 494 (good-faith determination reversed when settlement amount was only $200,000 on $8,000,000 claim, although evidence suggested that settling defendant was substantially responsible for injury, amount was only 10 percent of insurance limits, and settlement appeared calculated only to curtail co-tortfeasors' more substantial indemnity rights); Abbott Ford, Inc. v. Superior Court (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 858, 871-875, 239 Cal. Rptr. 626, 741 P.2d 124 ; Barth-Wittmore Ins. v. H. R. Murphy Enters., Inc. (1985) 169 Cal. App. 3d 124, 131-132, 214 Cal. Rptr. 894] .

Bad faith is not established simply by a showing that a settling defendant paid less than his or her theoretical proportionate or fair share based on a reasonable projection of plaintiff's damages and the settling defendant's comparative fault. Such a rule would unduly discourage settlements because damages are often speculative and the probability of legal liability for them is often uncertain or remote [Tech-Bilt, Inc. v. Woodward-Clyde & Assocs. (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 488, 499, 213 Cal. Rptr. 256, 698 P.2d 159] . However, the determination of the defendant's potential range of liability may not be based on an error of law [Minnesota Mining & Mfg. Co. v. Superior Court (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 1025, 1028-1029, 253 Cal. Rptr. 908 ; see § 300.73[7][c]].

A particular settlement may be in good faith even if it is for a sum grossly disproportionate to the damages prayed for in the complaint, if it is not disproportionate to what the trial court might have considered the probablerecovery of the plaintiff from the settling joint tortfeasor [Kohn v. Superior Court (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 323, 327-328, 191 Cal. Rptr. 78 ; see Tech-Bilt, Inc. v. Woodward-Clyde & Assocs. (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 488, 501], and even if the claimant's damages are obviously great and the liability for them is certain, a disproportionately low settlement figure is often reasonable in the case of a relatively insolvent and uninsured, or underinsured, joint tortfeasor [Tech-Bilt, Inc. v. Woodward-Clyde & Assocs. (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 488, 499, 213 Cal. Rptr. 256, 698 P.2d 159 ; see Stambaugh v. Superior Court (1976) 62 Cal. App. 3d 231, 238, 132 Cal. Rptr. 843 ; see also Aero-Crete, Inc. v. Superior Court (1993) 21 Cal. App. 4th 203, 207-209, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 804 (in case of corporate defendant without assets, burden is on nonsettling parties to pierce corporate vail to show dismissal of individual shareholders is not in good faith)]. In such a case, a settlement for the defendant's liability insurance policy limits may be approved as in good faith [see County of Los Angeles v. Guerrero (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 1149, 1156-1158, 257 Cal. Rptr. 787 ; Schmid v. Superior Court (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 1244, 1248-1249, 253 Cal. Rptr. 137] . An insurer's denial of coverage may be considered, and the court may hear arguments concerning coverage issues. Even if the there is a possibility that coverage can be established, the court may still approve the settlement on determining that no insurance is available for settlement purposes [see North County Contractor's Ass'n v. Touchstone Ins. Servs. (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th 1085, 1092-1094] .

When determining the good faith of a settlement, the court must consider not only the settling defendant's potential liability to the plaintiff, but also the settling defendant's proportionate share of culpability. For example, if a defendant has a pre-existing contract with the plaintiff under which the defendant's liability will be limited to a specified amount, the fact that the defendant settles for the amount specified in the limitation of liability clause will not necessarily justify a finding that the settlement was in good faith. If the settling defendant's proportionate share of culpability is vastly disproportionate to the settlement amount, given the potential damages, the court should deny the good-faith motion, although the settling defendant may still ultimately be protected from further liability pursuant to the limitation of liability clause [TSI Seismic Tenant Space, Inc. v. Superior Court (2007) 149 Cal. App. 4th 159, 166-168, 56 Cal. Rptr. 3d 751] .

In testing the good faith of a settlement, the court may rely on its own personal experience and on experts in the field. Represented by knowledgeable counsel, settlement negotiators can predict with some assurance whether a settlement is within the range permitted by the criterion of good faith. The danger that a low settlement violates the good faith provision will not impart uncertainty as long as the parties behave fairly and the courts maintain a realistic awareness of settlement imponderables [Tech-Bilt, Inc. v. Woodward-Clyde & Assocs. (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 488, 500-501, 213 Cal. Rptr. 256, 698 P.2d 159 ; see River Garden Farms, Inc. v. Superior Court (1972) 26 Cal. App. 3d 986, 998, 103 Cal. Rptr. 498] .

[c] Claim for Total Indemnity

Additional concerns are involved in the good faith determination if a nonsettling defendant claims to be entitled to total indemnity from the settling defendant under some legal theory such as vicarious or derivative liability [see, e.g., Far W. Fin. Corp. v. D & S Co. (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 796, 814-817, 251 Cal. Rptr. 202, 760 P.2d 399 ; see also § 300.61[4]] or implied contractual indemnity, in which the nonsettling defendant alleges that it is liable to the plaintiff only because the settling defendant breached a contractual duty owed to the nonsettling defendant [see, e.g., Bay Dev., Ltd. v. Superior Court (1990) 50 Cal. 3d 1012, 1034-1035, 269 Cal. Rptr. 720, 791 P.2d 290 ; see also § 300.61[5]]. Unless it involves a dismissal of the prospective indemnitee, a good faith settlement between the plaintiff and the prospective indemnitor leaves the indemnitee to face the plaintiff without any recourse to shift the loss to the indemnitor. Therefore, the indemnitee must be prepared to present the facts that justify or require a total shift of the loss to the indemnitor at the good faith hearing in opposition to the settlement [see Bay Dev., Ltd. v. Superior Court (1990) 50 Cal. 3d 1012, 1034-1035, 269 Cal. Rptr. 720, 791 P.2d 290 (implied contractual indemnity); Far W. Fin. Corp. v. D & S Co. (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 796, 814-817, 251 Cal. Rptr. 202, 760 P.2d 399 (vicarious liability)]. If the settlement does not require the more culpable tortfeasor to bear its fair share of the loss, the court can find that it is not in good faith [Far W. Fin. Corp. v. D & S Co. (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 796, 815, 251 Cal. Rptr. 202, 760 P.2d 399 ; see Toyota Motor Sales U.S.A., Inc. v. Superior Court (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 864, 869-870, 269 Cal. Rptr. 647 (if actively negligent party has insufficient financial resources to compensate plaintiff completely, vicariously liable party may be expected to make up difference)].

Although the court must consider and protect the interests of nonsettling defendants who are only vicariously liable in making the good faith determination, it need not require dismissal of the vicariously liable party in every case. A nonsettling tortfeasor may be left to bear some portion of the plaintiff's loss, even in situations in which had the indemnity claim gone to trial, the trier of fact might have concluded that the equities supported a total shifting of loss. This result follows from Tech-Bilt's recognition: (1) that a settlement may be found to be in good faith, even if the settling tortfeasor does not pay a sum precisely commensurate with its proportionate share of liability; and (2) that it is appropriate that a settling defendant pay less in settlement than it would if it were found liable after trial. In this regard, however, a nonsettling vicariously or derivatively liable tortfeasor is in exactly the same position as any other minimally culpable tortfeasor, and the minor departure from a theoretically precise allocation of loss that the statute sanctions is simply the price thatnonsettling defendants uniformly bear to promote the settlement of litigation [Far W. Fin. Corp. v. D & S Co. (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 796, 816-817, 251 Cal. Rptr. 202, 760 P.2d 399] .

In evaluating the settling defendant's potential proportionate liability for the purposes of determining good faith, the trial court must take into account any contractual relationship between the settling and nonsettling defendants and must consider how each party's performance of its contractual obligations relates to its share of liability. Thus, if the court finds that the settling defendant rather than the nonsettling defendant is primarily responsible for the plaintiff's damages because the loss is largely attributable to the settling defendant's failure to fulfill its contractual obligations properly, the court should find the settlement in good faith only if the settlement requires the settling defendant to bear an appropriate share of the damages and leaves the nonsettling defendant with a remaining liability that is not grossly disproportionate to its own responsibility for the loss. Indeed, if the court concludes that the nonsettling defendant's liability to the plaintiff is wholly attributable to the settling defendant's contractual breach, the court may decline to find a settlement in good faith unless the settlement provides for the dismissal of the action against the nonsettling defendant. This obligation serves to ensure that a nonsettling defendant will receive the benefit of the substantive loss-allocation principles embodied in the implied contractual indemnity doctrine [Bay Dev., Ltd. v. Superior Court (1990) 50 Cal. 3d 1012, 1034-1035, 269 Cal. Rptr. 720, 791 P.2d 290 ; see West v. Superior Court (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th 1625, 1635-1637, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 409 (nonliability of settling indemnitor to plaintiff because of statute of limitations bar was not dispositive on good faith of cost-waiver-only settlement because purpose of settlement was to defeat indemnitee's claim for implied contractual indemnity based on indemnitor's breach of duty to perform under contract)].

[6] Voluntary-Payment Limitation

There is a rule, far more often stated than applied, that a party who voluntarily pays a loss is not entitled to seek indemnity [see Aetna Life & Cas. Co. v. Ford Motor Co. (1975) 50 Cal. App. 3d 49, 54, 122 Cal. Rptr. 852] . A volunteer has been defined as a mere stranger or intermeddler who has no interest to protect and no moral or legal obligation to pay [see Mullin Lumber Co. v. Chandler (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 1127, 1133, 230 Cal. Rptr. 122] .

However, the voluntary-payment rule presents little, if any, impediment to settlement. A party who settles in good faith under a reasonable belief that it is necessary to his or her protection is entitled to indemnity, even if it later develops that he or she had no interest to protect. The public-policy considerations underlying multiparty tort litigation are: (1) the maximization of recovery to the injured party; (2) settlement of the injured party's claim; and (3) equitable apportionment of liability among concurrent tortfeasors. These policies would be seriously impaired if a settling defendant were required to prove its own fault before seeking indemnity against others alleged to have contributed to the plaintiff's injury [Mullin Lumber Co. v. Chandler (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 1127, 1131-1134, 230 Cal. Rptr. 122 ; see White Motor Corp. v. Teresinski (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 754, 764, 263 Cal. Rptr. 26 (settlement paid by party who had been dismissed from action in consideration of dropped appeal is not voluntary payment); State Farm & Cas. Co. v. Cooperative of Am. Physicians, Inc. (1984) 163 Cal. App. 3d 199, 203-204, 209 Cal. Rptr. 251 (settlement paid by premises liability insurer with duty to defend but who disputed coverage with professional liability insurer is not voluntary payment); Teachers Ins. Co. v. Smith (1982) 128 Cal. App. 3d 862, 864-866, 180 Cal. Rptr. 701 (insurer may settle and then allege insured's nonliability in independent action for indemnity); see also Carrier Corp. v. Detrex Corp. (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 1522, 1529-1530, 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 565 (indemnity appropriate for cost of corrective action taken to comply with environmental abatement and clean-up order issued by state; no need for indemnitee to wait to be sued); Aetna Life & Cas. Co. v. Ford Motor Co. (1975) 50 Cal. App. 3d 49, 52-53, 122 Cal. Rptr. 852 ; Mabie & Mintz v. B & E Installers (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 491, 496-497, 101 Cal. Rptr. 919 ; Great W. Furniture Co. v. Porter Corp. (1965) 238 Cal. App. 2d 502, 512, 48 Cal. Rptr. 76] .

If the voluntary payment rule has any applicability to settlement, it is to the area of a settlement involving payment of damages that the law does not recognize as compensible [see Mullin Lumber Co. v. Chandler (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 1127, 1134, 230 Cal. Rptr. 122 (giving example of settlement that encompassed payment for loss of parental consortium, a ground of recovery not recognized under California law)]. One court appears to have applied a voluntary-payment limitation on this ground. In the case, the court held that a settling defendant could not recover indemnity with regard to a settlement that included its payment of an alleged excessive cost of repairs because, under California law, the settling defendant was liable only for the reasonable cost of repairs. However, the court framed its holding in terms of a lack of joint and several liability for the amount of the settlement that represented the excessive cost, rather than as involving a voluntary payment [see Woodward-Gizienski & Assocs. v. Geotechnical Exploration, Inc. (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 64, 68, 255 Cal. Rptr. 800 ; see also § 300.63[1]].

[7] Judicial Determination of Good Faith

[a] Procedures to Obtain Determination

Any party to an action in which it is alleged that two or more parties are joint tortfeasors (or co-obligors on a contract) [see § 300.90 et seq.] is entitled to a hearing on the issue of the good faith of a settlement entered into by the plaintiff or other claimant and one or more alleged tortfeasors [Code Civ. Proc. § 877.6(a)(1)]. The term "joint tortfeasor" as used in this statute refers to all tortfeasors joined in a single action, regardless of whether their acts were contemporaneous or successive [Turcon Constr. Inc. v. Norton-Villiers, Ltd. (1983) 139 Cal. App. 3d 280, 283, 188 Cal. Rptr. 580 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 877 (using term "tortfeasors claimed to be liable for same tort")].

A party seeking a determination that a settlement is in good faith may proceed by noticed hearing, or under some circumstances, by notice and application [see Code Civ. Proc. § 877.6(a)]. If a hearing is desired or required, notice of a motion to confirm a good faith settlement [see § 300.196] must be given in the manner provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b) [Code Civ. Proc. § 877.6(a)(1); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(a)(5); see also § 300.196]. On a showing of good cause, the court may shorten the time for giving the required notice to permit the determination of the issue to be made before the commencement of the trial of the action, or before the verdict or judgment if settlement is made after the trial has commenced [Code Civ. Proc. § 877.6(a)].

As an alternative to a noticed hearing, a settling party may give notice of settlement to all parties and to the court, together with an application for determination of good faith settlement and a proposed order. The application must indicate the settling parties, and the basis, terms, and amount of the settlement [Code Civ. Proc. § 877.6(a)(2)].

Within 25 days after the mailing of the notice, application, and proposed order, or within 20 days after personal service, a nonsettling party may file a notice of motion to contest the good faith of the settlement. If none of the nonsettling parties files such a motion, the court may approve the settlement. The notice by a nonsettling party must be given as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b) [see § 300.196]. This procedure is not available if the settlement agreement includes a confidentiality agreement regarding the case or the terms of the settlement [Code Civ. Proc. § 877.6(a)(2)]. For a form for an application and proposed order under Code Civ. Proc. § 877.6(a)(2), see § 300.196.1.

A petition for a determination of the good faith of a settlement may only be made to a trial court, not to the court of appeal [Lopez v. Jarrett (2001) 89 Cal. App. 4th 1298, 1299, 106 Cal. Rptr. 2d 829] .

[b] Effect of Lack of Notice

Counsel for a settling defendant should ensure that all tortfeasors who might conceivably be liable to the plaintiff for the injury alleged are parties to the action by complaint or cross complaint at the time of settlement, or at least by the time of the good faith hearing under Code Civ. Proc. § 877.6. Due process [see U.S. Const. amend. XIV; Cal. Const. art. I, § 17] requires that a tortfeasor who is not yet a party but whose potential liability is known, or reasonably should have been known, to the settling parties must have an opportunity to be heard on the good faith of a prior settlement [Singer Co. v. Superior Court (1986) 179 Cal. App. 3d 875, 881, 890-893, 225 Cal. Rptr. 159 (vacating order finding settlement to be in good faith)]. Once the tortfeasor is made a party, it is entitled to a new good faith hearing. The tortfeasor may engage in limited discovery to elicit the evidence relevant to the determination of good faith that was available at the time of settlement, whether or not the evidence was actually presented [Singer Co. v. Superior Court (1986) 179 Cal. App. 3d 875, 881, 895, 225 Cal. Rptr. 159 ; but see Rankin v. Curtis (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 939, 950-951, 228 Cal. Rptr. 753 (Staniforth, Acting P.J., dissenting; excluded party should have no right to challenge good faith determination as between settling parties; rather, appropriate remedy should simply be to not bar excluded party's indemnity rights)]. For a form for a writ of mandate to challenge a good faith determition by a party without notice, see § 300.202.

Notice and an opportunity to be heard will bind an alleged joint tortfeasor to a good-faith settlement determination even if the party to be bound was not actually a party to the action at the time of the judicial determination of good faith [Britz, Inc. v. Dow Chem. Co. (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 177, 184, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 188] .

[c] Good Faith as Question of Fact

Whether a settlement is in good faith is a question of fact to be determined by the trial court based on the evidentiary material presented to it [City of Grand Terrace v. Superior Court (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 1251, 1263-1264, 238 Cal. Rptr. 119 ; Barth-Wittmore Ins. v. H. R. Murphy Enters., Inc. (1985) 169 Cal. App. 3d 124, 131, 214 Cal. Rptr. 894] . A party seeking confirmation of the good faith of a settlement must, at minimum, explain the following to the court and to all other parties [see Alcal Roofing & Insulation v. Superior Court (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 1121, 1129, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 844] :

- Who has settled with whom;
- The dollar amount of each settlement;
- If any settlement is allocated and how it is allocated between issues, parties, or both; and
- What nonmonetary consideration has been included and how the parties to settlement value that nonmonetary consideration [see Brehm Cmtys. v. Superior Court (2001) 88 Cal. App. 4th 730, 736-737, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 918 (even if making valuation is difficult, trial court must require valuation of nonmonetary settlement elements to make good faith determination)].

As a question of fact, the issue cannot be determined on a motion for summary judgment [Northrop Corp. v. Stinson

Sales Corp. (1984) 151 Cal. App. 3d 653, 657-658, 199 Cal. Rptr. 16] . Nor can it be raised for the first time on appeal [City of Sacramento v. Gemsch Inv. Co. (1981) 115 Cal. App. 3d 869, 878, 171 Cal. Rptr. 764] . Any factual determinations made on contested issues of liability or damages are tentative and solely for the purpose of evaluating the good faith of a proposed settlement as of the date of evaluation. A party is not precluded from presenting additional evidence on the issue at trial [Toyota Motor Sales U.S.A., Inc. v. Superior Court (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 864, 878 n.9, 269 Cal. Rptr. 647] .

Although a question of fact, good faith depends, in part, on a defendant's potential liability [see § 300.73[5][b]], which may turn on a question of law. In such a case, the court must correctly resolve the legal issue in order to make the factual good-faith determination [see Minnesota Mining & Mfg. Co. v. Superior Court (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 1025, 1028-1029, 253 Cal. Rptr. 908] . Therefore, the court must examine the legal theories under which the defendant may be liable in order to determine if there is a reasonable likelihood that the settling defendant faces substantial liability [see, e.g., Gehl Brothers Mfg. Co. v. Superior Court (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 178, 184-186, 228 Cal. Rptr. 19]. For example, if a defendant's potential liability is vicarious only, depending on whether or not an active tortfeasor is the settling defendant's employee, the court must properly resolve the employment issue as a matter of law (assuming no dispute of fact) in determining whether the settlement is in good faith [see Toyota Motor Sales U.S.A., Inc. v. Superior Court (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 864, 870-878, 269 Cal. Rptr. 647] .

[d] No Right to Jury Trial

A good faith settlement confirmation hearing under Code Civ. Proc. § 877.6 is equitable in nature and not an action at law. Therefore, a jury trial is neither authorized by the statute nor constitutionally required [Widson v. International Harvester Co. (1984) 153 Cal. App. 3d 45, 56-57, 200 Cal. Rptr. 136] .

[e] Burden of Proof

The burden of proving the settlement rests on the settling party. Once the settlement is shown, the burden of proof shifts to the nonsettling tortfeasor to show that the settlement was not made in good faith [Code Civ. Proc. § 877.6(d); City of Grand Terrace v. Superior Court (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 1251, 1261, 238 Cal. Rptr. 119 ; Ford Motor Co. v. Schultz (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 941, 944 n.1, 195 Cal. Rptr. 470 ; Fisher v. Superior Court (1980) 103 Cal. App. 3d 434, 447, 163 Cal. Rptr. 47] . For discussion of how each party may meet its burden of proof, see § 300.73[7][f].

[f] Use of Affidavits and Other Evidence

The good faith issue may be determined by the court on the basis of affidavits (or declarations under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) served with the notice of motion and the counteraffidavits (or counterdeclarations) filed in response to them. The court may, in its discretion, receive other evidence at the hearing [Code Civ. Proc. § 877.6(b)].

If the motion is made by a nonsettling tortfeasor, it seems that the supporting declarations should set forth evidentiary facts within the declarant's knowledge [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2002(1), 2003, 2009, 2015.5; Evid. Code § 702] negating the existence of good faith; that is, they would have to address the Tech-Bilt factors [see Tech-Bilt, Inc. v. Woodward-Clyde & Assocs. (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 488, 499-500, 213 Cal. Rptr. 256, 698 P.2d 159 ; see generally §§ 300.73[5][b], 300.199]. This may require completion of formal discovery to secure the necessary facts [see § 300.73[7][g]].

On the other hand, if the motion is made by the settling tortfeasor, a mere showing of the settlement, the amount of the settlement, and perhaps the basis for the settlement is all that is required to be shown in the supporting papers, and would, in the case of an uncontested motion, support an order determining that the settlement was made in good faith [see City of Grand Terrace v. Superior Court (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 1251, 1257, 1258, 1262, 238 Cal. Rptr. 119 ; see also § 300.198]. One court has noted that: (1) hundreds of motions by settling parties for good faith determinations are presented for trial court approval each year, and that the overwhelming majority are unopposed and granted summarily by the court; (2) at the time of filing, the moving party in many cases does not know if a contest will develop; and (3) if each motion required a full recital by declaration or affidavit setting forth a complete factual response to all of the Tech-Bilt factors, literally thousands of attorney hours would be consumed and inch-thick motions would have to be read and considered by trial courts in an exercise that would waste valuable judicial and legal time and clients' resources [City of Grand Terrace v. Superior Court (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 1251, 1261, 238 Cal. Rptr. 119] .

A nonsettling tortfeasor who contests the motion should file declarations showing a lack of good faith. This in turn may require the moving party to file responsive counterdeclarations to negate the showing [City of Grand Terrace v. Superior Court (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 1251, 1262, 238 Cal. Rptr. 119] .

If the settlement is contested, the trial court's consideration of the settlement agreement and its relationship to the entire litigation must proceed on a sufficient evidentiary basis to enable the court to consider and evaluate the various aspects of the settlement. Therefore, the declarations or other evidence should provide the court with the facts necessary to evaluate the settlement in terms of the Tech-Bilt factors. Without a sufficient evidentiary basis, it is impossible for a court to exercise its discretion in an appropriate fashion [City of Grand Terrace v. Superior Court (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 1251, 1263, 238 Cal. Rptr. 119] .

A party may not both seek confirmation of a settlement agreement, and withhold it from nonsettling defendants on grounds of confidentiality. However, the agreement need not be executed and presented to the court as long as all of the parties are timely advised of the important terms of the settlement [Alcal Roofing & Insulation v. Superior Court (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 1121, 1127, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 844] . At a minimum, a party seeking confirmation of a settlement should explain to the court and to all other parties (1) who has settled with whom; (2) the dollar amount of each settlement; (3) if any settlement is allocated and how it is allocated between issues and/or parties; and (4) what nonmonetary consideration has been included and how the parties to the settlement value the nonmonetary consideration [Alcal Roofing & Insulation v. Superior Court (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 1121, 1129, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 844] . Additionally, a party seeking confirmation must set forth the evidentiary basis of any allocations and valuations made, and must demonstrate that the allocation was reached in a sufficiently adversarial manner to justify the presumption that a reasonable valuation was reached[Erreca's v. Superior Court (1993) 19 Cal. App. 4th 1475, 1495-1496, 24 Cal. Rptr. 2d 156] .

In the case of a settlement involving the dismissal of one defendant, based on plaintiff's assessment that the defendant was not liable, a declaration of the party opposing the settlement may establish the settling defendant's liability if it is based on a proper factual foundation. To establish nonliability, and thus good faith, in such a situation, the supporting affidavits of the plaintiff and settling defendant must present the factual basis for the determination of that defendant's nonliability. The plaintiff's counsel's conclusory declaration of the settling defendant's nonliability is insufficient to establish that the settlement represents a good faith approximation of that defendant's proportionate share of liability [Greshko v. County of Los Angeles (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 822, 834-835, 239 Cal. Rptr. 846] .

The attorney of a nonsettling defendant is not, as a general rule, subject to deposition on the issue of whether that attorney's bad faith impeded the settlement process, thus justifying a lower than normal settlement amount [Spectra-Physics, Inc. v. Superior Court (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 1487, 1493-1498, 244 Cal. Rptr. 258] .

[g] Continuances and Discovery

In many instances the defendant who objects to the settlement does not possess sufficient factual information at the time of the hearing to carry the burden of proof that the settlement was not made in good faith. In such a case, it is appropriate for the objector to move for a continuance of the hearing, if necessary, for the purpose of gathering sufficient facts. The process might include further formal discovery to support the statutory burden of proof [Code Civ. Proc. § 877.6(d)] regarding all potentially applicable Tech-Bilt factors [City of Grand Terrace v. Superior Court (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 1251, 1265, 238 Cal. Rptr. 119 ; see Tech-Bilt, Inc. v. Woodward-Clyde & Assocs. (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 488, 499-500, 213 Cal. Rptr. 256, 698 P.2d 159 ; see generally § 300.73[5][b]]. This rule applies to all contested good faith settlement hearings, no matter which of the Tech-Bilt factors are in issue. This process could necessarily lead to motions for further discovery, additional declarations and counterdeclarations by the parties, and a delay in the proceedings; however, this procedure will ensure that the expanded scope of the hearing dictated by Tech-Bilt will be followed, the evidence will be intelligently assessed, and the objectives of Tech-Bilt will be attained [City of Grand Terrace v. Superior Court (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 1251, 1265, 238 Cal. Rptr. 119] .

[h] Referral to Special Master

Potential problems arise if the same judge conducts extensive settlement negotiations and then passes on the good faith of the settlement at the confirmation hearing. A judge who hears a settlement proceeding is not automatically barred from hearing a good faith settlement motion. However, a judge should not preside over extensive settlement negotiations that produce tentative resolutions of complex issues, particularly if not all parties are represented, and then also hear the confirmation motion [Erreca's v. Superior Court (1993) 19 Cal. App. 4th 1475, 1493, 24 Cal. Rptr. 2d 156] .

For this reason, it may be prudent to refer complex settlement negotiations arising out of a settlement conference to a special master. The master is an officer of the court who is assumed to be acting independently. The master makes a report on settlement matters to the court, and the court is then free to exercise its independent judgment by accepting or rejecting it [Erreca's v. Superior Court (1993) 19 Cal. App. 4th 1475, 1493, 24 Cal. Rptr. 2d 156] .

[8] Procedure to Dismiss Indemnity Claim on Finding of Good Faith Settlement

Code Civ. Proc. §§ 877 and 877.6 provide for the discharge of the settling party from comparative indemnity claims of the determination that the settlement is in good faith [see § 300.73[4]]. Neither statute, however, specifies a procedure by which the discharge or bar may be implemented as between the settling and nonsettling tortfeasors. Other provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure, nevertheless, provide mechanisms by which the good faith settlor may obtain dismissal of actions or cross complaints for comparative indemnity.

One method is to move for summary judgment under Code Civ. Proc. § 437c, either contemporaneously with or following the hearing determining the good faith of the settlement [City of Grand Terrace v. Superior Court (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 1251, 1266, 238 Cal. Rptr. 119 ; Shane v. Superior Court (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 1237, 1245, 207 Cal. Rptr. 210 ; for discussion, a procedural checklist, and forms for moving for summary judgment, see Ch. 537, Summary Judgment]. Another approach is a motion for judgment on the pleadings or, if the indemnity claim is not yet at issue, a general demurrer, in either case invoking judicial notice of the good faith settlement determination that bars the claim [City of Grand Terrace v. Superior Court (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 1251, 1266, 238 Cal. Rptr. 119 ; Shane v. Superior Court (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 1237, 1245, 207 Cal. Rptr. 210 ; see Ch. 206, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings].

In addition, some courts have granted simple motions to dismiss cross complaints for indemnity immediately on determining the cross defendant's settlement was in good faith [Greshko v. County of Los Angeles (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 822, 830, 239 Cal. Rptr. 846 ; City of Grand Terrace v. Superior Court (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 1251, 1266, 238 Cal. Rptr. 119 ; Shane v. Superior Court (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 1237, 1246, 207 Cal. Rptr. 210 ; see Turcon Constr., Inc. v. Norton-Villiers, Ltd. (1983) 139 Cal. App. 3d 280, 282, 188 Cal. Rptr. 580 ; see Ch. 212, Dismissal]. Although trial courts are not technically empowered by Code Civ. Proc. § 877.6 to dismiss complaints or cross complaints against a settling tortfeasor at the time of the hearing on the good faith settlement issue, at least one court has stated that, if properly noticed, the good faith determination and the dismissal can be handled at one appearance [IRM Corp. v. Carlson (1986) 179 Cal. App. 3d 94, 103 n.6, 224 Cal. Rptr. 438] . Other courts have suggested that employment of a distinct procedure to adjudicate the effect of a judicially determined good faith settlement on a pending action or claim not only is procedurally necessary but also focuses the court's attention distinctly on two completely different substantive questions--whether the settlement was in good faith and whether the claim sought to be dismissed is of such a nature as to be barred by a good faith settlement [Housing Group v. Superior Court (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 549, 553, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 460 ; City of Grand Terrace v. Superior Court (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 1251, 1266-1267, 238 Cal. Rptr. 119 ; Shane v. Superior Court (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 1237, 1246, 207 Cal. Rptr. 210] .

A claim for indemnity may only be dismissed by the court in before which it is pending. A determination in one action that a settlement is in good faith may not be followed by an order in that action that a claim for indemnity in a different action is barred. A motion must be made in the second action for determination of the effect of the settlement in the first action [Shane v. Superior Court (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 1237, 1246, 1250-1252, 207 Cal. Rptr. 210] . Similarly, a determination that a settlement between the parties was in good faith may not be followed by an order that a claim for indemnity arising from liability to different parties is barred [Housing Group v. Superior Court (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 549, 553, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 460] .

The fact that a settling tortfeasor neither needs nor seeks protection from claims for contribution or indemnity under Code Civ. Proc. § 877.6(c) does not prevent use of the hearing procedure under Code Civ. Proc. § 877.6 to secure a determination of the good faith of a settlement [Barth-Wittmore Ins. v. H. R. Murphy Enters., Inc. (1985) 169 Cal. App. 3d 124, 135, 214 Cal. Rptr. 894] .

[9] Review of Determination

A determination that a settlement was made in good faith is an interlocutory decree and is not immediately appealable [Chernett v. Jacques (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 69, 71, 248 Cal. Rptr. 63 ; Barth-Wittmore Ins. v. H. R. Murphy Enters., Inc. (1985) 169 Cal. App. 3d 124, 130, 214 Cal. Rptr. 894] . However, any party aggrieved by the trial court's determination that a settlement was made with or without good faith may petition the proper court for a writ of mandate [see § 300.201] to obtain a review of the determination [Code Civ. Proc. § 877.6(e); see Abbott Ford, Inc. v. Superior Court (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 858, 868, 239 Cal. Rptr. 626, 741 P.2d 124 (mandate would have issued had case not been fully settled by parties pending Supreme Court review); City of Grand Terrace v. Superior Court (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 1251, 1255, 1267-1268, 238 Cal. Rptr. 119 (peremptory writ of mandate issued); Barth-Wittmore Ins. v. H. R. Murphy Enters., Inc. (1985) 169 Cal. App. 3d 124, 130-131, 214 Cal. Rptr. 894 (treating appeal from trial court's determination that settlement was made in good faith, filed before effective date of Code Civ. Proc. § 877.6(e), as petition for writ of mandate to review determination)]. The review by writ may encompass the order or judgment dismissing the indemnity claim because of the good-faith determination, but such review is not compelled by Code Civ. Proc. § 877.6(e) [Housing Group v. Superior Court (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 549, 552, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 460] .

The petition must be filed within 20 days after service of written notice of the determination, or within such additional time, not exceeding 20 days, as the trial court may allow [Code Civ. Proc. § 877.6(e)]. The reviewing court must, within 30 days of the receipt of all materials to be filed by the parties, determine whether it will hear the writ and notify the parties of the determination [Code Civ. Proc. § 877.6(e)(1)]. If the court grants a hearing on the writ, the hearing must be given special precedence over all other civil matters on the court's calendar except those matters to which equal or greater calendar precedence is granted by law [Code Civ. Proc. § 877.6(e)(2)]. The running of any time period after which the action would be subject to dismissal pursuant to former Code Civ. Proc. § 583 (now see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 583.110-583.430) is tolled during the review period [Code Civ. Proc. § 877.6(e)(3)].

If the issue was tried on declarations, the general rule on appeal applies; that is, the declarations favoring the contention of the prevailing party establish not only the facts stated in them but also all facts that reasonably may be inferred from them. If there is substantial conflict in the facts stated, a determination of the controverted facts by the trial court will not be disturbed by a reviewing court [Barth-Wittmore Ins. v. H. R. Murphy Enters., Inc. (1985) 169 Cal. App. 3d 124, 133, 214 Cal. Rptr. 894] .

In addition to the statutory writ procedure discussed above, under the appropriate circumstances a party may also challenge a determination of good faith on postjudgment appeal from a final order, such as an order of dismissal or judgment in an indemnity action [Maryland Cas. Co. v. Andreini & Co. (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 1413, 1415-1416, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 752 ; see Chernett v. Jacques (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 69, 71, 248 Cal. Rptr. 63 ; Barth-Wittmore Ins. v. H.R. Murphy Enters., Inc. (1985) 169 Cal. App. 3d 124, 130, 214 Cal. Rptr. 894] . For example, a party who has previously applied unsuccessfully for a writ of mandate may subsequently challenge a good-faith determination on postjudgment appeal [Wilshire Ins. Co. v. Tuff Boy Holding, Inc. (2001) 86 Cal. App. 4th 627, 636-637, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 480 ; Maryland Cas. Co. v. Andreini & Co. (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 1413, 1415-1416, 1425 n.13, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 752] . However, a party may not forgo the writ procedures discussed above entirely and wait toattack the determination for the first time on appeal from a final judgment following trial of a plaintiff's claims against the nonsettling defendants [O'Hearn v. Hillcrest Gym & Fitness Ctr., Inc. (2004) 115 Cal. App. 4th 491, 499, 9 Cal. Rptr. 3d 342 ; Main Fiber Prods., Inc. v. Morgan & Franz Ins. Agency (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 1130, 1136-1137, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 108] .

A party challenging the legality or appropriateness of applying Sections 877 and 877.6 in the first place, such as a party that argues that the claim does not involve "joint tortfeasors" or "co-obligors on a contract debt," may pursue the challenge by way of appeal [Rohr Indus., Inc. v. First State Ins. Co. (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 1480, 1486, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 872] .

[10] Sliding Scale Recovery Agreement

[a] Defined

A sliding scale agreement, known in the legal literature and in other jurisdictions as a "Mary Carter agreement," and occasionally referred to as a "Gallagher covenant" or "guaranteed verdict agreement" [see Abbott Ford, Inc. v. Superior Court (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 858, 863 n.1, 869 n.9, 239 Cal. Rptr. 626, 741 P.2d 124] , is an agreement or covenant between a plaintiff and one or more, but not all, alleged tortfeasor defendants limiting the liability of the agreeing tortfeasor defendants to an amount dependent on the amount of recovery that the plaintiff is able to recover from the nonsettling defendants. These agreements include, but are not limited to, agreements within the scope of Code Civ. Proc. § 877 [see § 300.73[4]] and agreements in the form of a loan from the agreeing tortfeasor defendant to the plaintiff or plaintiffs, which loan is repayable in whole or in part from any ultimate recovery against nonsettling defendants [Code Civ. Proc. § 877.5(b)].

[b] Validity

Whether a particular sliding scale agreement is valid depends on the facts of the case. This is so because (1) the variety of contractual arrangements that fall within the general rubric of sliding scale agreements is enormous and, although in all such agreements the defendant's ultimate liability to the plaintiff is dependent at least in part on the amount of money the plaintiff recovers from the nonsettling defendants, the agreements may include a virtually unlimited number of additional provisions; (2) the content and effect of the sliding scale provision itself and the factual background against which the agreement is negotiated frequently vary significantly from case to case; and (3) the agreements may have a variety of effects at different stages of the litigation process--discovery, settlement, trial, or appeal. Consequently, analysis of the validity of a sliding scale agreement requires close attention to the specific provisions of the agreement itself, the factual setting in which the agreement is entered into, and the agreement's effect on the particular aspect of the judicial process at issue [Abbott Ford, Inc. v. Superior Court (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 858, 870-871, 239 Cal. Rptr. 626, 741 P.2d 124] .

[c] Disclosure Requirement

Parties entering into a sliding scale recovery agreement or covenant must promptly inform the court in which the action is pending of the existence of the agreement or covenant and its terms and provisions [Code Civ. Proc. § 877.5(a)(1)]. If the action is based on acts or omissions occurring on or after January 1, 1988, a sliding scale recovery agreement is not effective unless, at least 72 hours prior to entering into the agreement, a notice of intent to enter into an agreement has been served on all nonsignatory defendant tortfeasors [Code Civ. Proc. § 877.5(c); see Stats. 1987, ch. 1202, § 2]. On a showing of good cause, however, the court may allow a shorter time. The failure to comply with the notice requirements does not constitute good cause to delay commencement of trial [Code Civ. Proc. § 877.5(c)].

If the action is tried before a jury and a defendant who is a party to the agreement is a witness, the court will, on motion of a party, disclose the existence and content of the agreement or covenant to the jury, unless the court finds that disclosure will create substantial danger of undue prejudice, of confusing the issues, or of misleading the jury. However, the disclosure must be no more than necessary to be sure that the jury understands (1) the essential nature of the agreement, but not including the amount paid, or any contingency; and (2) the possibility that the agreement may bias the testimony of the alleged tortfeasor who entered into the agreement [Code Civ. Proc. § 877.5(a)(2); Moreno v. Sayre (1984) 162 Cal. App. 3d 116, 125-126, 208 Cal. Rptr. 444] . If the action is based on acts or omissions occurring on or after January 1, 1988, the disclosure to the jury must be no more than necessary to inform the jury of the possibility that the agreement may bias the testimony of the witness [Code Civ. Proc. § 877.5(a)(2); see Stats. 1987, ch. 1202, § 2].

The participation of settling defendants at trial does not deprive the nonsettling defendants of a fair trial as long as the nature of their interest is fully disclosed to the jury [Alcala Co. v. Superior Court (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 1308, 1318, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 349] .

[d] Good Faith Requirement

[i] In General

A sliding scale settlement may be confirmed as in good faith under Code Civ. Proc. § 877.6, and the confirmation has the same effect as with good faith settlements generally [see §§ 300.73[3], 300.73[4]]. To meet its burden of proof that the settlement is not in good faith [see § 300.73[7][e]], a nonsettling defendant is entitled to discover all of the provisions of the agreement [J. Allen Radford Co. v. Superior Court (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 1418, 1423-1424, 265 Cal. Rptr. 535] .

If a sliding scale agreement is to relieve the settling defendant of any liability for comparative indemnity to the other defendants in the action, it must be entered into in good faith [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 877, 877.6(a), (c)]. In this regard, the good faith standards enunciated in Tech-Bilt, Inc. v. Woodward-Clyde & Assocs. (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 488, 213 Cal. Rptr. 256, 698 P.2d 159 , apply [see § 300.73[5][b]]. Therefore, to be made in good faith, the agreement must satisfy the dual goals of fair apportionment of the loss and encouragement of settlement [see Abbott Ford, Inc. v. Superior Court (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 858, 871-875, 886-887, 239 Cal. Rptr. 626, 741 P.2d 124] . To satisfy the statutory objective of fair apportionment of loss [see § 300.73[10][d][ii]], the "consideration" paid by a defendant who enters into a sliding scale agreement must fall within the Tech-Bilt "ballpark," and the plaintiffs' claims against the remaining defendants must be reduced by the amount of the "consideration paid" by the settling defendant [see Code Civ. Proc. § 877(a)]. Any unreasonable or bad faith conduct of the nonsettling defendants that impeded the settlement process and led to the sliding scale agreement may be taken into account in determining whether or not the agreement meets the good faith standard. However, any provision that purports to give the settling defendant a veto over subsequent settlements is valid only if it is limited to settlements that would leave the earlier settling defendant to bear more than his or her fair share of liability for the plaintiff's damages [Abbott Ford, Inc. v. Superior Court (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 858, 886-887, 239 Cal. Rptr. 626, 741 P.2d 124 ; see § 300.73[10][d][iii] regarding the policies regarding provisions granting such a "veto" power].

[ii] Apportionment of Loss

Under the terms of Code Civ. Proc. § 877, a good faith settlement has two interrelated consequences: (1) it discharges the settling tortfeasor from all liability to other defendants for comparative indemnity, and (2) it reduces the plaintiff's claims against the other defendants by the amount of consideration paid for it [see §§ 300.73[3], 300.73[4]]. A sliding scale agreement should satisfy the apportionment-of-loss requirement if the court finds that the settling defendant, by entering into a sliding scale agreement, has realistically paid a "consideration" that is within the Tech-Bilt "ballpark" and if the nonsettling defendants obtain a reduction in the plaintiff's claims against them in an amount equal to that consideration [Abbott Ford, Inc. v. Superior Court (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 858, 876-877, 239 Cal. Rptr. 626, 741 P.2d 124] . Accordingly, the analysis of whether a sliding scale agreement conflicts with the fair-apportionment objective lies in "the amount of consideration" that is attributed to the settling defendant as the "payment" for his or her release from liability by entering into the agreement. As the agreement is given by the settling defendant in exchange for the plaintiff's release and for the immunity from comparative indemnity claims of the nonsettling cotortfeasors, the exchange is assumed to be equal [Abbott Ford, Inc. v. Superior Court (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 858, 878, 239 Cal. Rptr. 626, 741 P.2d 124] . Focusing not on what the settling defendant gave up, but rather on what he or she received, results in a simple application of the Tech-Bilt rules [Abbott Ford, Inc. v. Superior Court (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 858, 878, 239 Cal. Rptr. 626, 741 P.2d 124] .

The burden of establishing the monetary value of the sliding scale agreement is on the parties to the agreement. A joint valuation by the plaintiff and the settling defendant should generally produce a reasonable valuation. Once the parties to the agreement have declared its value, a nonsettling defendant can either (1) accept that value and attempt to show that the settlement is not in good faith because the assigned value is not within the settling defendant's Tech-Bilt "ballpark" or (2) attempt to prove that the parties' assigned value is too low and that a greater reduction in plaintiff's claims against the remaining defendants is actually warranted [Abbott Ford, Inc. v. Superior Court (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 858, 879, 239 Cal. Rptr. 626, 741 P.2d 124] .

The parties' valuation of sliding-scale consideration paid to a settling plaintiff must be supported by specific evidence, declaration, or opinion, and a good faith determination that accepts a low valuation may be reversed on appeal if the parties provided no meaningful evidence to support the low valuation [United Servs. Auto. Ass'n v. Superior Court (2001) 93 Cal. App. 4th 633, 642-645, 113 Cal. Rptr. 2d 328 (reversing good faith determination that accepted parties' decision to value total consideration at amount of noncontingent payment, but placed no value on $3.5 million contingent payment)].

[iii] Encouragement of Settlement

A prime value in encouraging settlement lies in removing the case from the judicial system. This occurs only if all claims relating to the loss are settled [Tech-Bilt, Inc. v. Woodward-Clyde & Assocs. (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 488, 500, 213 Cal. Rptr. 256, 698 P.2d 159 ; see Abbott Ford, Inc. v. Superior Court (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 858, 880, 239 Cal. Rptr. 626, 741 P.2d 124] . To the extent that a sliding scale agreement may deter unreasonable nonparticipation by recalcitrant defendants in settlement negotiations, the agreement furthers the settlement goal [Abbott Ford, Inc. v. Superior Court (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 858, 881-882, 239 Cal. Rptr. 626, 741 P.2d 124] . Conversely, if the agreement interferes with the ability of the nonparticipating defendants to settle the remainder of the litigation, it may conflict with the public policy favoring full settlement and may frequently result in unnecessary trials. An example is an agreement that grants the settling defendant an open-ended veto power over any subsequent settlement that would affect the settling defendant's ultimate out-of-pocket costs under the guaranty agreement, rather than over subsequent settlements that are unfairly low and that would result in the settling defendant's bearing an ultimate out-of-pocket costhigher than his or her fair share of plaintiff's damages. Accordingly, to be valid and enforceable, such a veto provision must, by its terms, be confined to those subsequent settlements that will require the earlier settling defendant to bear more than his or her fair "ballpark" share of damages [Abbott Ford, Inc. v. Superior Court (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 858, 882, 883, 239 Cal. Rptr. 626, 741 P.2d 124] .

In Abbott Ford, the Supreme Court declined, on the ground the issue was not raised in the trial court or addressed in the briefs on appeal, to rule on whether the potential antisettlement effect of a sliding scale agreement that established a high guaranty figure and mandated that the proceeds of any subsequent settlement up to the guaranty figure be credited in toto to the earlier settling defendant, thereby effectively eliminating any incentive plaintiff may have had to settle with the remaining defendants within a range commensurate with those defendants' fair share of responsibility, was sufficient in itself to warrant a finding that the agreement was not a good faith settlement for the purposes of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 877 and 877.6. The Court nevertheless noted that the settling parties may be able to obviate such a challenge in the future by providing some mechanism for the sharing of subsequent settlement proceeds between the earlier settling defendant and the plaintiff, thereby assuring that the plaintiff retains at least some incentive to entertain reasonable settlement offers from the remaining defendants [Abbott Ford, Inc. v. Superior Court (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 858, 884, 239 Cal. Rptr. 626, 741 P.2d 124] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Comparative Indemnity Among Tortfeasors

25-300 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 300.74

§ 300.74 Statutory Pro Rata Contribution Among Tortfeasors

Code Civ. Proc. §§ 875, 876, and 878-880, enacted in 1957, provide for a right of contribution if a money judgment has been rendered jointly against two or more defendants in a tort action [see Code Civ. Proc. § 875(a)]. The contribution statutes provide for pro rata (that is, equal) sharing of tort damages assessed against multiple defendants [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 875(c), 876(a)].

The system of equal allocation of damages among joint tortfeasors, as provided for in the contribution statutes, has essentially been superseded by the subsequently developed judicial rule of comparative indemnity, under which damages imposed against joint tortfeasors are allocated on the basis of the tortfeasors' comparative fault [see Safeway Stores, Inc. v. Nest-Kart (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 322, 327-328, 146 Cal. Rptr. 550, 579 P.2d 441 ; American Motorcycle Ass'n v. Superior Court (1978) 20 Cal. 3d 578, 599-604, 146 Cal. Rptr. 182, 578 P.2d 899] . The California Supreme Court has held that California's prior statutes providing for a right of contribution among tortfeasors do not preclude development of a common law system of partial equitable indemnity based on comparative fault [American Motorcycle Ass'n v. Superior Court (1978) 20 Cal. 3d 578, 604, 146 Cal. Rptr. 182, 578 P.2d 899] . Subsequent decisions have followed this view and construed the term "contribution" in prior statutes as now referring to the rule of comparative indemnity as created in American Motorcycle [see, e.g., Safeway Stores, Inc. v. Nest-Kart (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 322, 327-328, 334, 146 Cal. Rptr. 550, 579 P.2d 441 (reversing trial court judgment apportioning damages on pro rata basis and remanding the case for allocation on basis of comparative fault); see also Ambriz v. Kress (1983) 148 Cal. App. 3d 963, 969-970, 196 Cal. Rptr. 417 ; Paradise Valley Hosp. v. Schlossman (1983) 143 Cal. App. 3d 87, 91-93, 191 Cal. Rptr. 531] . These courts have essentially ignored Code Civ. Proc. § 876(a), which states that a joint tortfeasor's pro rata share of a judgment is determined by dividing the entire judgment equally among all tortfeasors, because the contribution statutes predate comparative negligence [see Paradise Valley Hosp. v. Schlossman (1983) 143 Cal. App. 3d 87, 92, 191 Cal. Rptr. 531] . One court, however, has refused to ignore this rule and has denied contribution to a defendant whose payment did not exceed its pro rata share under an equal division, although it did exceed its percentage share under comparative fault [see Lamberton v. Rhodes-Jamieson (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 748, 750-755, 245 Cal. Rptr. 162] .

For a form for a motion for postjudgment contribution under Code Civ. Proc. § 878, see*§ 300.203*.

D. Contribution Among Nontort Obligors and Judgment Debtors

25-300 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 300.91

§ 300.91 Contribution Among Joint Nontort Obligors

[1] Basis of Right

Except as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 877 [see § 300.93[1]], if a party to a joint or joint and several obligation (that is, an obligation creating joint liability among several persons) satisfies more than his or her share of the obligation, he or she may require a proportionate contribution from all the parties to the obligation [Civ. Code § 1432]. This right to contribution is an outgrowth of the doctrine of implied-at-law covenants, and it is based on the principle of equity that a joint obligor who has paid money that in equity and good conscience should be paid by another should be reimbursed therefor [see Pacific Freight Lines v. Pioneer Express Co. (1940) 39 Cal. App. 2d 609, 614, 103 P.2d 1056 ; Jackson v. Lacy (1940) 37 Cal. App. 2d 551, 559, 100 P.2d 313] . A party who has paid all or part of a joint obligation is thus entitled to bring suit against his or her co-obligors for reimbursement for the amount that he or she has paid above his or her legitimate share [Arp v. Blake (1923) 63 Cal. App. 362, 366, 218 P. 773] .

This potential right to contribution among joint obligors concerns only the rights of joint obligors, however, and has no effect on the obligee or creditor suing for payment. If the obligation is joint and several, the creditor may sue one or more of the obligors as he or she desires and as is permitted under the statutory provisions on joinder of parties [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 379, 389; see also Ch. 395, Parties]. Following payment of a debt by an obligor, however, a right to contribution arises and the obligor may seek reimbursement from his or her co-obligors, regardless of whether they were joined in the original action by the creditor [Tucker v. Nicholson (1938) 12 Cal. 2d 427, 433, 84 P.2d 1045] .

[2] Amount of Contribution

Generally, a joint obligor who pays more than his or her share of an obligation may require a proportionate contribution from all parties to the obligation [Civ. Code § 1432]. Joint obligors are presumed to be equally liable on the obligation. If no apportionment of joint liability is dictated by the terms of some underlying agreement, such as a partnership agreement, the due proportion of the liability of the several judgment debtors must be calculated on a pro rata basis [Young v. Rosenthal (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 96, 130, 260 Cal. Rptr. 369 ; see Bunker v. Osborn (1901) 132 Cal. 480, 482, 64 P. 853 ; cf. Code Civ. Proc. § 876(a) (pro rata share of joint tortfeasors is determined by dividing entire judgment equally among all who are liable)]. For example, if one of two obligors on a note pays the entire amount due, he or she is entitled to contribution of one half that amount from a co-obligor.

If contribution is not attainable from a joint obligor by reason of his or her insolvency, the loss arising from his or her lack of payment is born proportionately by the solvent co-obligors, thus increasing the proportionate share owed by each [Tucker v. Nicholson (1938) 12 Cal. 2d 427, 433-434, 84 P.2d 1045] .

[3] Limitations on Right to Contribution

The right to contribution arises only after a joint obligor has paid more than his or her proportionate share of an obligation [Civ. Code § 1432; cf. Code Civ. Proc. § 883(a) (joint judgment debtor may move for contribution after judgment is entered but before it is satisfied); see generally § 300.92[2]]. Therefore, an obligor who has paid nothing on an obligation cannot recover from his or her co-obligors their proportionate share of the obligation, and an obligor who has paid no more than his or her proportionate share cannot claim contribution. In either case, it is irrelevant that a co-obligor has paid nothing or less than his or her proportionate share [Hosking v. Spartan Props., Inc. (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 152, 157, 79 Cal. Rptr. 893 ; Jackson v. Lacy (1940) 37 Cal. App. 2d 551, 559, 100 P.2d 313] .

The right to contribution is also not available to a party who has partially or completely paid an obligation if he or she was not legally obligated to make the payment. The right to contribution, in other words, cannot be based on voluntary payment of a debt [Newberry v. Evans (1926) 76 Cal. App. 492, 509, 245 P. 227] . Furthermore, the right to contribution is not available to a party who incidentally confers a benefit on another party who has made no agreement concerning financial responsibility for the improvements [Major-Blakeney Corp. v. Jenkins (1953) 121 Cal. App. 2d 325, 340, 341, 263 P.2d 655 ; see Restatement of Restitution § 106].

[4] Release of Joint Nontort Obligor

A release given by a creditor to one of two or more joint obligor does not extinguish the debts of the other obligors, unless they are mere guarantors. Except as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 877 [see § 300.93[1]], such a release also does not affect the right of the debtors to seek contribution from the released obligor[Civ. Code § 1543]. Thus, a joint obligor who accepts a release has, in effect, consented to both a continuation of the liability of his or her co-obligors on an obligation, and a continuation of his or her own liability for contribution [Lovetro v. Steers (1965) 234 Cal. App. 2d 461, 477, 44 Cal. Rptr. 604 ; Williams v. Reed (1952) 113 Cal. App. 2d 195, 202, 248 P.2d 147] .

[5] Cosureties

A surety or guarantor, on satisfying an obligation of a principle, may bring suit against one or more of his or her cosureties for contribution without regard to the order of time in which they became sureties [Civ. Code § 2848; see also Civ. Code § 2787 (abolishing distinction between sureties and guarantors)]. The cosurety or guarantor, on paying more than his or her proportionate share of an obligation, may thus sue one or more of his or her cosureties under Civ. Code § 2848 based on the theory of an implied contract that they would share the burden equally and hold each responsible for an aliquot part of the debt based on the whole number of sureties [Williams v. Riehl (1899) 127 Cal. 365, 371, 59 P. 762 ; Overholser v. Glynn (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 800, 807, 73 Cal. Rptr. 628] .

[6] Statute of Limitations

The statute of limitations begins to run in an action for contribution on payment of a debt by the party seeking to enforce his or her rights [Arp v. Blake (1923) 63 Cal. App. 362, 367, 218 P. 773] . The action is controlled by the two-year statute of limitations for actions not founded on instruments in writing and thus must be brought within two years from the date of payment [Code Civ. Proc. § 339; Manuel v. Hicks Iron Works (1932) 216 Cal. 459, 461, 14 P.2d 756 ; see also Hurlbut v. Quigley (1919) 180 Cal. 265, 271, 180 P. 613 (cause of action for contribution against cosurety accrues when surety pays more than his or her share of debt, not when contract establishing cosurety relationship is executed)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
D. Contribution Among Nontort Obligors and Judgment Debtors

25-300 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 300.92

§ 300.92 Contribution Among Joint Nontort Judgment Debtors

[1] Basis of Right

In any action against several defendants, judgment may be given against one or more of them [Code Civ. Proc. § 578]. If two or more nontort judgment debtors are jointly liable on a money judgment, one of them who has satisfied more than his or her due proportion of the judgment, whether voluntarily or through enforcement procedures, may compel contribution from another judgment debtor who has satisfied less than his or her due proportion of the judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 882(a); see § 300.151[3][a]]. A joint judgment debtor paying more than his or her proportionate share of a judgment may thus obtain proportionate contribution from those jointly liable with him or her by bringing suit against one or more joint judgment debtor on an implied contract to share the burden fairly [Woolley v. Seijo (1964) 224 Cal. App. 2d 615, 621-622, 36 Cal. Rptr. 762] . Contribution rights under Code Civ. Proc. § 882 are available with regard to any final order on a collateral matter directing the payment of money [Young v. Rosenthal (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 96, 128-129, 260 Cal. Rptr. 369 (applicable to order of sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5)]. The amount of a judgment of contribution is not to be reduced by setoffs arising from obligations between the judgment debtors. Moreover, if the judgment of contribution does not resolve those obligations, the parties may proceed on them in another action, such as one for dissolution of partnership and an accounting [Security Pac. Nat'l Bank v. Lyons (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 706, 710-712, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 623] .

[2] Procedure for Seeking Contribution

A judgment debtor may apply on noticed motion to the court that entered the judgment for an order determining liability for contribution or repayment, at any time before the judgment is satisfied in full or within 30 days thereafter [Code Civ. Proc. § 883(a)]. The order determining liability for contribution or repayment entitles the judgment debtor to the benefit of the judgment to enforce the liability, including every remedy that the judgment creditor has against the persons liable, to the extent of the liability [Code Civ. Proc. § 883(b)].

[3] Alternate Remedy of Assignment

The right to demand contribution provided by Code Civ. Proc. § 883 is not the only remedy available to a judgment debtor who has paid more than his or her share of a judgment. Code Civ. Proc. § 883 does not limit any other remedy that a judgment debtor entitled to contribution or repayment may have [Code Civ. Proc. § 883(c)]. If a debtor who has paid a joint judgment is unable to seek contribution under Code Civ. Proc. § 883 and chooses not to proceed under that section, he or she may take an assignment of the original obligation from the obligor-judgment creditor. Because the debt has already been paid and extinguished, the obligor-judgment creditor has nothing of legal value to assign, and the judgment debtor, as assignee, gets no legal rights in the obligation. The assignee judgment-debtor does, however, acquire equitable rights in the assigned obligation with which to force his or her joint judgment debtors to pay their share of the judgment [Tucker v. Nicholson (1938) 12 Cal. 2d 427, 430, 84 P.2d 1045] .

[4] Cosureties

If a judgment is based on an obligation of one judgment debtor as surety for another and the surety satisfies the judgment or any part of it, whether voluntarily or through enforcement procedures, the surety may compel repayment from the principal [Code Civ. Proc. § 882(b)]. Repayment from the principal may be enforced by means of Code Civ. Proc. § 883 [see Code Civ. Proc. § 883(a)].

§ 300.93 Settlement or Dismissal of One of Two or More Co-Obligors

[1] Effect on Parties

A release, dismissal, or covenant not to sue or to enforce judgment given in good faith before verdict or judgment to one or more of a number of co-obligors mutually subject to contribution rights does not discharge any other co-obligor from liability unless its terms so provide. However, it does, except as noted below, reduce the injured party's claim against the other co-obligors by the amount stipulated in the settlement or by the amount of consideration paid, whichever is greater [Code Civ. Proc. § 877(a)].

A good faith settlement discharges the co-obligor to whom it was given from all liability for contribution to any other co-obligor [Code Civ. Proc. § 877(b)]. It also bars any other co-obligor from any further claims against the settling co-obligor for equitable comparative contribution, or partial or comparative indemnity based on comparative negligence or comparative fault [Code Civ. Proc. § 877.6(c)].

Code Civ. Proc. § 877 does not apply to co-obligors who have expressly agreed in writing to an apportionment of liability for losses or claims among themselves [Code Civ. Proc. § 877(c)]. Neither does Code Civ. Proc. § 877 apply to a release, a dismissal (with or without prejudice), or a covenant not to sue or not to enforce judgment given to a co-obligor on an alleged contract debt when the contract was made prior to January 1, 1988 [Code Civ. Proc. § 877(d)].

For further discussion of good faith settlements, see § 300.73.

[2] Hearing on Good Faith Issue

Any party to an action in which it is alleged that two or more parties are co-obligors on a contract debt is entitled to a hearing on the issue of the good faith of a settlement entered into by the plaintiff or other claimant and by one or more alleged co-obligors [Code Civ. Proc. § 877.6(a)].

The rules governing proceedings to determine good faith under Code Civ. Proc. § 877.6 are the same for joint tortfeasors and co-obligors [see Code Civ. Proc. § 877.6]. For a discussion of Code Civ. Proc. § 877.6 proceedings in relation to settlements by joint tortfeasor defendants (which discussion is generally applicable to settlements by co-obligor defendants), see § 300.73. The forms in §§ 300.196-300.202 may be adapted in proceedings to determine the good faith of a settlement by a co-obligor.

[a] Distinguished From Other Contracts

Indemnity agreement as contract by which one party engages to save another from legal consequences of conduct by one of them or some other person. Civ. Code § 2772

Surety or guarantor as one who promises to answer for debt, default, or miscarriage ofanother. Civ. Code § 2787

Insurance as contract by which one party undertakes to indemnify another against loss, damage, or liability arising from contingent or unknown event. Ins. Code §§ 22, 23

[b] Legality

Invalidity of contract exempting person from responsibility for fraud, willful personal or property injury, or willful or negligent violation of law. Civ. Code § 1668

Agreement to indemnify person against future act as void if person knows that act is unlawful at time of doing it. Civ. Code § 2773

Validity of agreement to indemnify person against past wrongful act other than felony. Civ. Code § 2774

Invalidity of indemnity provision in construction contract (as defined in Civ. Code § 2783) providing for indemnification of promisee for damages resulting from death, injury to person or property, or any other loss, damage, or expense arising from sole negligence or willful misconduct of promisee or promissee's agents, servants, or independent contractors who are directly responsible to promisee, or for defects in design furnished by such persons and exceptions. Civ. Code § 2782(a)

Invalidity of indemnity provision in construction contract imposing on contractor, or relieving public agency from, liability for public agency's active negligence. Civ. Code § 2782(b)

Invalidity of provisions, clauses, covenants, and agreements contained in, collateral to, or affecting residential construction contracts and any amendments that purport to indemnify or insure builder or general contractor or other contractor not affiliated with builder by subcontractor against liability for claims of construction defects, to extent claims arise out of, pertain to, or relate to negligence of builder or contractor or their agents. Civ. Code § 2782(c)

Validity of agreement providing for indemnification of person or agency which permits use of its property for performance of construction contract (as defined in Civ. Code § 2783) for others. Civ. Code § 2782.1

Validity of agreement to indemnify professional engineer against liability for negligence (but not willful misconduct) when specified criteria are met. Civ. Code § 2782.2

Validity of agreement providing for allocation, release, liquidation, exclusion, or limitation as between parties of any liability for design defects or of promisee to promisor arising out of or relating to construction contract. Civ. Code § 2782.5

Validity of agreement, other than agreement by public entity, to indemnify professional engineer or geologist from liability for damages in excess of $250,000 that are caused by sole negligence (but not gross negligence or willful misconduct) of engineer or geologist in providing certain professional services with regard to hazardous materials cleanup. Civ. Code § 2782.6

Construction contract as written or oral agreement for performance of any portion of, any act collateral to, or any service reasonably related to construction, surveying, design, specification, alteration, repair, improvement, maintenance, removal of, or demolition of any building, highway, road, parking facility, bridge, railroad, airport, pier or dock, excavation or other structure, or development or improvement to real or personal property. Civ. Code § 2783

Design defect as condition that renders movable or immovable structure, equipment, machinery, or similar object that is constructed substantially in accord with its design either dangerous for use or wholly or partially inherently unfit for its intended use. Civ. Code § 2784

Invalidity of indemnity provision in hauling, trucking, or cartage contract that provides for indemnification of promisee against liability for damages resulting from death, personal or property injury, and their consequences that are caused by the sole negligence or willful misconduct of promisee, agents or servants of promisee, or independent contractors directly responsible to promisee, unless agents, servants, or independent contractors are under direct supervision and control of promisor. Civ. Code § 2784.5

[c] Scope of Indemnitor's Obligation

Right of person for whose benefit parties expressly contract to enforce contract before parties rescind it. Civ. Code § 1559

Rules for interpretation of contracts and construction of written instruments. Civ. Code §§ 1635-1661; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1856-1864

Agreement to indemnify against acts of certain person applies not only to person's acts and their consequences but also to those of his or her agents. Civ. Code § 2775

Agreement to indemnify several persons is agreement to indemnify each unless contrary intention appears. Civ. Code § 2776

Indemnitor against act to be done by another is jointly liable with indemnitee and separately liable to every person injured by act. Civ. Code § 2777

Duty of indemnitor to defend, on indemnitee's request, action against indemnitee with respect to matters covered by indemnity agreement; right of indemnitee to conduct defense if indemnitee so chooses. Civ. Code § 2778(4)

[5] Methods of Enforcing Indemnity Rights

Jurisdiction of cross complaint for declaration of right to indemnity with respect to relief demanded by complaint or cross complaint in action or proceeding that is otherwise a limited civil case. *Code Civ. 25-300 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 300.111

§ 300.111 Decisions

[1] Amount of Indemnity

[a] Attorney's Fees and Costs

Express provision of indemnity agreement entitling indemnitee to recovery for attorney's fees incurred in prosecuting action for indemnity against indemnitor. Tunstead v. Nixdorf (1889) 80 Cal. 647, 652, 22 P. 472 ; Iverson v. Spang Indus., Inc. (1975) 45 Cal. App. 3d 303, 314, 119 Cal. Rptr. 399 ; Fidelity & Deposit Co. v. Whitson (1960) 187 Cal. App. 2d 751, 759, 10 Cal. Rptr. 6

Indemnitee's costs of defending suit involving matter indemnified by agreement is part of damage or one of legal consequences for which indemnitee is entitled to indemnification. Graves v. Moore (1881) 58 Cal. 435, 439 ; Stark v. Raney (1861) 18 Cal. 622, 625

If indemnity contract authorizes recovery of attorney's fees when one party brings action to enforce indemnity, prevailing indemnitor may recover attorney's fees from indemnitee under Civ. Code § 1717 rule of reciprocity; amount recovered may include fees incurred by indemnitor in proving that indemnitor was not negligent, if such showing was required to defeat claim of indemnity. Baldwin Builders v. Coast Plastering Corp. (2005) 125 Cal. App. 4th 1339, 1346, 1348, 24 Cal. Rptr. 3d 9

Civ. Code § 1717 does not provide for indemnitor's reciprocal right to attorney's fees under general indemnity provision. Carr Business Enterprises, Inc. v. City of Chowchilla (2008) 166 Cal. App. 4th 14, 23, 82 Cal. Rptr. 3d 128 ; Myers Building Indus., Ltd. v. Interface Techn., Inc. (1993) 13 Cal. App. 4th 949, 967, 17 Cal. Rptr. 2d 242 ; Meininger v. Larwin-N. Cal., Inc. (1976) 63 Cal. App. 3d 82, 85, 135 Cal. Rptr. 1

Express provision of indemnity agreement permitting indemnitee to recover costs of defending action involving indemnified matter even though indemnitee sustains no loss or liability, is result of action. County of San Joaquin v. Stockton Swim Club (1974) 42 Cal. App. 3d 968, 973, 117 Cal. Rptr. 300 ; Central Sur. & Ins. Corp. v. Foley (1962)

204 Cal. App. 2d 738, 741-743, 22 Cal. Rptr. 504

For recovery of attorney's fees incurred in defense of action involving indemnified matter, indemnitee must specially plead and prove actual expenditures for fees. Eichler Homes, Inc. v. Anderson (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 224, 234-235, 87 Cal. Rptr. 893 ; Walsh v. Hooker & Fay (1963) 212 Cal. App. 2d 450, 462-463, 28 Cal. Rptr. 16

Indemnitee's recovery from indemnitor for attorney's fees incurred in defense of action involving indemnified matter is limited either to amount of actual expenditures or to amount fixed by court as reasonable, whichever amount is less. Walsh v. Hooker & Fay (1963) 212 Cal. App. 2d 450, 462, 28 Cal. Rptr. 16

Costs of defense that indemnitee incurs as result of indemnitor's refusal to defend, on indemnitee's request, action against indemnitee with respect to indemnified matter are costs incurred in good faith and in exercise of reasonable discretion, which indemnitee may recover from indemnitor under Civ. Code § 2778(3). Security Bldg. & Loan Ass'n v. Maryland Cas. Co. (1935) 6 Cal. App. 2d 77, 79-80, 44 P.2d 370

In absence of contractual provision therefor, indemnitee not entitled to recover costs of defending action involving matter covered by indemnity agreement if indemnitor defends action on indemnitee's behalf; indemnitee's costs of defense are voluntary and gratuitous. Tulare Co. Power Co. v. Pacific Sur. Co. (1919) 43 Cal. App. 315, 185 P. 399

[b] Interest

Right of indemnity against liability includes right to recover interest on amount of liability from date when liability is fixed. Hertzka & Knowles v. Salter (1970) 6 Cal. App. 3d 325, 339-340, 86 Cal. Rptr. 23

Right of indemnity against loss includes right to recover interest on amount of loss from date when loss is sustained. Tulare Co. Power Co. v. Pacific Sur. Co. (1919) 43 Cal. App. 315, 329, 185 P. 399

[2] Effect of Prior Adjudication

[a] On Indemnitor With Notice

Judgment against indemnitee in action involving matter covered by indemnity agreement as conclusive evidence of indemnitee's right to recover amount of such judgment from indemnitor in subsequent action on indemnity agreement if indemnitor had notice of and opportunity to defend action in which judgment was rendered. Parra v. Traeger (1931) 214 Cal. 535, 538, 6 P.2d 941 ; Showers v. Wadsworth (1889) 81 Cal. 270, 273-274, 22 P. 663 ; Dutil v. Pacheco (1863) 21 Cal. 438, 442 ; Lamb v. Belt Cas. Co. (1935) 3 Cal. App. 2d 624, 631, 40 P.2d 311

Indemnitor bound by judgment rendered against indemnitee in action involving matter covered by indemnity agreement, even though indemnitee discharged indemnitor from defense of action, if discharge was justified by indemnitor's refusal to take measures necessary to effective defense. Showers v. Wadsworth (1889) 81 Cal. 270, 274, 22 P. 663

Settlement by indemnitee in action involving matter covered by indemnity agreement as presumptive evidence of liability and amount; but presumption as overcome if indemnitor establishes that settlement was unreasonable. Peter Culley & Assocs. v. Superior Court (1992) 10 Cal. App. 4th 1484, 1495-1497, 13 Cal. Rptr. 2d 624

Substantive adequacy of indemnitee's notice to indemnitor of action against indemnitee with respect to indemnified matters as prerequisite of binding indemnitor by judgment in such action. Sampson v. Ohleyer (1863) 22 Cal. 200, 208 ; Bendix-Westinghouse Auto. v. Air Brake Co. v. Swan Rubber Co. (1976) 55 Cal. App. 3d 256, 261-262, 127 Cal.

Rptr. 571 (notice for vouching-in seller under Com. Code § 2607(5)(a)); Pezel v. Yerex (1922) 56 Cal. App. 304, 309, 205 P. 475

Indemnitor with opportunity to defend action in which judgment is rendered against indemnitee for matter covered by indemnitee agreement as conclusively bound by factual determinations essential to judgment in subsequent action by party who recovered judgment against indemnitee and who, pursuant to right given by indemnity agreement, sues indemnitor for amount of judgment. Bonfils v. Pacific Auto. Ins. Co. (1958) 165 Cal. App. 2d 152, 162-163, 331 P.2d 766

[b] On Indemnitor Without Notice

Indemnitor as bound by judgment rendered against indemnitee in action involving matter covered by indemnity agreement, whether or not indemnitor had notice of and opportunity to defend action, if indemnity agreement so provides and judgment was not obtained by fraud or collusion. Kruger v. California Highway Indem. Exch. (1927) 201 Cal. 672, 678-680, 258 P. 602

Validity of provision in indemnity agreement that establishes evidentiary effect of indemnitee's settlement of claim covered by indemnity agreement in action by indemnitee to recover amount of settlement from indemnitor. Anchor Cas. Co. v. Strube (1963) 221 Cal. App. 2d 29, 33-34, 34 Cal. Rptr. 295 ; Fidelity & Deposit Co. v. Whitson (1960) 187 Cal. App. 2d 751, 757-758, 10 Cal. Rptr. 6

Indemnitee's settlement of action involving matter covered by indemnity agreement as presumptive evidence of existence and amount of indemnitee's liability for settlement, which presumption is subject to being overcome by proof in action by indemnitee to recover for settlement from indemnitor. Fidelity & Deposit Co. v. Whitson (1960) 187 Cal. App. 2d 751, 757-758, 10 Cal. Rptr. 6

[3] Express Indemnity

[a] Accrual of Express Indemnification Rights

Accrual of indemnitee's right to recovery under indemnity agreement without indemnitor's notice of and opportunity to defend against claim giving rise to liability for which indemnification is sought. Eva v. Andersen (1913) 166 Cal. 420, 424-425, 137 P. 16

Accrual of indemnitee's right to recovery under indemnity contract against liability when indemnitee incurs legal liability or obligation, even though indemnitee has sustained no actual loss. Eva v. Andersen (1913) 166 Cal. 420, 423, 137 P. 16 ; Showers v. Wadsworth (1889) 81 Cal. 270, 272-273, 22 P. 663 ; Alberts v. American Cas. Co. (1948) 88 Cal. App. 2d 891, 899, 200 P.2d 37 ; Thomas v. Layer (1920) 48 Cal. App. 199, 202-203, 191 P. 949

As prescribed by Civ. Code § 2778(2), accrual of indemnitee's right to recovery under indemnity contract against loss as occurring when indemnitee actually suffers loss by being compelled to pay legal obligation. Fernandez v. Tormey (1898) 121 Cal. 515, 518-519, 53 P. 1119 ; Oaks v. Scheifferly (1887) 74 Cal. 478, 480, 16 P. 252 ; Thode v. McAmis (1950) 96 Cal. App. 2d 833, 836, 216 P.2d 548 ; Alberts v. American Cas. Co. (1948) 88 Cal. App. 2d 891, 899, 200 P.2d 37 ; Ramey v. Hopkins (1934) 138 Cal. App. 685, 689, 33 P.2d 443

Accrual of indemnitee's right to recovery under indemnity contract against both liability and loss either when indemnitee becomes liable or when indemnitee sustains actual loss. Oaks v. Scheifferly (1887) 74 Cal. 478, 480-481, 16 P. 252 ; Alberts v. American Cas. Co. (1948) 88 Cal. App. 2d 891, 899, 200 P.2d 37 ; Globe Indem. Co. v. Larkin (1944) 62 Cal. App. 2d 891, 894, 145 P.2d 633

Right of indemnity under Lab. Code § 3864 (providing that, if action prosecuted by employee, employer, or both jointly against third person for injuries to employee results in judgment against third person, or settlement by third person, employer shall have no liability to reimburse or hold third person harmless on judgment or settlement in absence of written agreement to do so executed prior to injury) as not arising unless written indemnity agreement is executed, that is, in writing and signed by the parties, prior to injury giving rise to liability. Lockheed Missiles & Space Co. v. Gilmore Indus., Inc. (1982) 135 Cal. App. 3d 556, 559, 185 Cal. Rptr. 409

Accrual of indemnitee's right to recovery under indemnity contract against loss when loss becomes definite; inapplicability of requirement of Civ. Code § 2778(2) that indemnitee sustain loss by payment of legal obligation if requirement would defeat purpose of indemnity contract. Weaver v. Grunbaum (1939) 31 Cal. App. 2d 42, 49-50, 87 P.2d 406 (loss on corporate securities established by corporation's insolvency); Adler v. Sawyer (1919) 40 Cal. App. 778, 782, 181 P. 817 (loss on promissory note established by determination of note's unenforceability)

Accrual of indemnitee's right to recovery under indemnity agreement as dependent on occurrence of condition precedent established by agreement unless indemnitor's conduct excuses condition. Weaver v. Grunbaum (1939) 31 Cal. App. 2d 42, 50-51, 87 P.2d 406

Accrual of indemnitee's right to recovery under indemnity agreement without indemnitee demanding that indemnitor perform obligation to indemnify. Thomas v. Layer (1920) 48 Cal. App. 199, 201-202, 191 P. 949

[b] Definitions

Indemnity against liability as agreement to prevent loss or other harm; indemnity against loss as agreement to reimburse for loss. White v. Fratt (1859) 13 Cal. 521, 524

Indemnity against liability as agreement to hold indemnitee harmless from specified event; indemnity against loss as agreement to protect indemnitee from consequences of event. Alberts v. American Cas. Co. (1948) 88 Cal. App. 2d 891, 899, 900, 200 P.2d 37 ; Ramey v. Hopkins (1934) 138 Cal. App. 685, 689, 33 P.2d 443

[c] Distinction From Other Contracts

Insurance contract as type of indemnity agreement by which one party assumes another's risk of loss as well as means of distributing such risk among group ofpersons. California Physicians' Serv. v. Garrison (1946) 28 Cal. 2d 790, 804, 172 P.2d 4

Indemnity contract distinguished from suretyship and guaranty. Somers v. United States Fid. & Guar. Co., (1923) 191 Cal. 542, 547, 217 P. 746

[d] Requirement of Legal Liability

Indemnitee's settlement of claim without adjudication as affecting indemnitee's burden of proving legal liability for settlement in action on indemnity agreement to recover for loss or liability resulting from settlement but as not establishing that indemnitee incurred loss or liability voluntarily. Eva v. Andersen (1913) 166 Cal. 420, 424-425, 137 P. 16 ; Fidelity & Deposit Co. v. Whitson (1960) 187 Cal. App. 2d 751, 757, 10 Cal. Rptr. 6 ; Carpenter Paper Co. v. Kellogg (1952) 114 Cal. App. 2d 640, 651, 251 P.2d 40

Voluntariness of loss or liability for which indemnitee seeks recovery under indemnity agreement as not established by indemnitee's failure to assert statute of limitations in defense of action that resulted in loss or liability; statute of limitation as personal or procedural defense, which may be waived by party entitled to assert it. Eva v. Andersen (1913) 166 Cal. 420, 424, 137 P. 16 ; Nicholson-Brown, Inc. v. City of San Jose (1976) 62 Cal. App. 3d 526, 536, 133 Cal. Rptr. 159 ; Fidelity & Deposit Co. v. Whitson (1960) 187 Cal. App. 2d 751, 758, 10 Cal. Rptr. 6

No right of indemnification under indemnity contract for losses incurred voluntarily without legal compulsion. United States Fid. & Guar. Co. v. More (1909) 155 Cal. 415, 418, 101 P. 302 ; Southern Cal. Gas Co. v. Ventura Pipe Line Constr. Co. (1957) 150 Cal. App. 2d 253, 257, 309 P.2d 849 ; Carpenter Paper Co. v. Kellogg (1952) 114 Cal. App. 2d 640, 651, 251 P.2d 40

No right to indemnification under indemnity contract for liability imposed by judgment in action to which indemnitee failed to raise available defense. Easton v. Boston Inv. Co. (1921) 51 Cal. App. 246, 250, 196 P. 796

No requirement that indemnitee fully prosecute appeal from judgment before seeking recovery under indemnity agreement for liability or loss resulting from judgment; indemnitee's failure to appeal as not establishing that indemnitee sustained liability or loss voluntarily rather than as matter of legal necessity. Thomas v. Layer (1920) 48 Cal. App. 199, 202-203, 191 P. 949

[e] Scope of Indemnitor's Obligation

[i] In General

Provisions of Civ. Code § 2778, defining scope of obligation to indemnify, as part of every indemnity agreement unless contrary intention appears in agreement. Gribaldo, Jacobs, Jones & Assocs. v. Agrippina Versicherunges A.G. (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 434, 442, 91 Cal. Rptr. 6, 476 P.2d 406

Construction of indemnity agreements under rules that govern construction of other contracts with view to determining actual intention of parties. Gribaldo, Jacobs, Jones & Assocs. v. Agrippina Versicherunges A.G. (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 434, 442, 91 Cal. Rptr. 6, 476 P.2d 406 ; Herman Christensen & Sons, Inc. v. Paris Plastering Co. (1976) 61 Cal. App. 3d 237, 245, 132 Cal. Rptr. 86 ; City of Los Angeles v. Japan Air Lines Co., Ltd. (1974) 41 Cal. App. 3d 416, 428, 116 Cal. Rptr. 69 ; Charles D. Warner & Sons, Inc. v. Seilon, Inc. (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 612, 619, 112 Cal. Rptr. 425

Admissibility of extrinsic evidence to explain meaning of written indemnity agreement. Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. v. G. W. Thomas Drayage & Rigging Co. (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 33, 39-40, 69 Cal. Rptr. 561, 442 P.2d 641 ; Davidson v. Welch (1969) 270 Cal. App. 2d 220, 230-231, 75 Cal. Rptr. 676

Expressed intention of parties to indemnity agreement as determining particular risks against which agreement obligates indemnitor to protect indemnitee. Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. v. G. W. Thomas Drayage & Rigging Co. (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 33, 36-41, 69 Cal. Rptr. 561, 442 P.2d 641 ; Herman Christensen & Sons, Inc. v. Paris Plastering Co. (1976) 61 Cal. App. 3d 237, 246-247, 132 Cal. Rptr. 86

Strict construction of ambiguity in indemnity agreement against party preparing agreement. County of Alameda v. Southern Pac. Co. (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 479, 488, 11 Cal. Rptr. 751, 360 P.2d 327

Expressed intention of parties to indemnity agreement as determining whether indemnitor is obligated to indemnify indemnitee against liability or loss. Fernandez v. Tormey (1898) 121 Cal. 515, 519-520, 53 P. 1119 ; Alberts v. American Cas. Co. (1948) 88 Cal. App. 2d 891, 900, 200 P.2d 37

Determination of meaning of portion of indemnity agreement by construction of agreement in its entirety. Kwikset

Locks v. Stewart Commissaries (1964) 225 Cal. App. 2d 146, 149, 37 Cal. Rptr. 248 ; Indenco, Inc. v. Evans (1962) 201 Cal. App. 2d 369, 374, 20 Cal. Rptr. 90

Scope of express obligation to indemnify as determined by terms of indemnity agreement. Southern Cal. Gas Co. v. Ventura Pipe Line Constr. Co. (1957) 150 Cal. App. 2d 253, 257-259, 309 P.2d 849 ; Tulare Co. Power Co. v. Pacific Sur. Co. (1919) 43 Cal. App. 315, 327, 185 P. 399

No requirement that ambiguity in indemnity agreement be construed against party preparing agreement if ambiguity can be resolved with extrinsic evidence. Weaver v. Grunbaum (1939) 31 Cal. App. 2d 42, 49, 87 P.2d 406

[ii] Indemnitor's Obligation to Defend

Obligation of indemnitor under Civ. Code § 2778(4) to defend, on request, actions or proceedings against indemnitee with respect to matters covered by indemnity agreement as excluded or modified by terms of agreement expressing contrary intention. Gribaldo, Jacobs, Jones & Assocs. v. Agrippina Versicherunges A.G. (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 434, 448, 91 Cal. Rptr. 6, 476 P.2d 406

Indemnitor's obligation to defend actions against indemnitee with respect to matters covered by indemnity agreement as including all steps necessary to effective defense. Showers v. Wadsworth (1889) 81 Cal. 270, 274, 22 P. 663

[iii] Involving Indemnitee's Negligence

Agreement purporting to release, indemnify, or exculpate party who prepared it from liability for that party's own negligence or tortious conduct as invalid for failing tobe clear, explicit, and comprehensible in each of its essential details. Ferrell v. Southern Nev. Off-Road Enthusiasts, Ltd. (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 309, 318, 195 Cal. Rptr. 90

Recovery under type II indemnity clause (allowing for recovery for indemnitee's passive negligence) as improper when indemnitee was actively negligent as a matter of law. Armco Steel Corp. v. Roy H. Cox Co. (1980) 103 Cal. App. 3d 929, 936, 163 Cal. Rptr. 330 (holding of active negligence based on jury verdict in action originally brought by injured employee against indemnitee)

General contractor as not entitled to indemnification from subcontractor when general contractor was responsible for creating dangerous condition, and when subcontractor's negligence consisted at most in its employees performing work in area exposed to dangerous condition created by general contractor. Guy F. Atkinson Co. v. Schatz (1980) 102 Cal. App. 3d 351, 358-359, 161 Cal. Rptr. 436 (agreement provided for indemnification unless loss was due solely to general contractor's negligence)

General indemnity clause that provides only that indemnitor is to indemnify indemnitee for indemnitee's liabilities caused by indemnitor as not to be construed to mean that indemnitor is not obligated to pay for losses caused in part by indemnitee's passive negligence. Rodriguez v. McDonnell Douglas Corp. (1978) 87 Cal. App. 3d 626, 673-674, 151 Cal. Rptr. 399 (construction in MacDonald & Kruse, Inc. v. San Jose Steel Co. (1972) 29 Cal. App. 3d 413, 420-421, 105 Cal. Rptr. 725 , as untenable in light of Rossmoor Sanitation, Inc. v. Pylon, Inc. (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 622, 628-629, 119 Cal. Rptr. 449, 532 P.2d 97 , and cases relied on therein)

Indemnification under general indemnity agreement for losses to which indemnitee's passive negligence contributed; passive negligence as mere nonfeasance of duty imposed by law or failure to discover dangerous condition of property. Herman Christensen & Sons, Inc. v. Paris Plastering Co. (1976) 61 Cal. App. 3d 237, 249-250, 251-252, 132 Cal. Rptr. 86 (general contractor's breach of duty to provide safe work place by failing to discover defective rail fastening on scaffold furnished to subcontractor); Hollywood Turf Club v. Montgomery Elevator Co. (1976) 58 Cal. App. 3d 580,

586-587, 130 Cal. Rptr. 81 (owner's breach of nondelegable duty to maintain escalator on premises in good order); Southern Pac. Co. v. Unarco Indus., Inc. (1974) 42 Cal. App. 3d 142, 148-149, 116 Cal. Rptr. 847 (railroad's delay in replacing defective pin suspending car door); MacDonald & Kruse, Inc. v. San Jose Steel Co. (1972) 29 Cal. App. 3d 413, 425-426, 105 Cal. Rptr. 725 (state's failure to require safety precautions for overpass construction by general contractor); J. A. Payton v. Kuhn-Murphy, Inc. (1967) 253 Cal. App. 2d 278, 282-283, 61 Cal. Rptr. 575 (general contractor's failure to discover or prevent subcontractor's dangerous performance of work); Kwikset Locks v. Stewart Commissaries (1964) 225 Cal. App. 2d 146, 150-152, 37 Cal. Rptr. 248 (owner's failure to maintain safe premises); Pacific Tel. & Tel. Co. v. Chick (1962) 202 Cal. App. 2d 708, 712, 716, 21 Cal. Rptr. 326 (utility's failure to perform nondelegable duty imposed by county ordinance during highway excavation performed by independent contractor)

Question as unsettled whether indemnification is available for loss or liability to which indemnitee's passive or active negligence contributed when indemnity agreement expressly makes indemnitor responsible for loss or liability caused by indemnitor but does not mention loss or liability caused by persons other than indemnitor. Herman Christensen & Sons, Inc. v. Paris Plastering Co. (1976) 61 Cal. App. 3d 237, 250, 132 Cal. Rptr. 86 (indemnification of passively negligent indemnitee under such agreement); Western Contracting Corp. v. Southwest Steel Rolling Mills, Inc. (1976) 58 Cal. App. 3d 532, 539-541, 129 Cal. Rptr. 782 (any negligent contribution to liability by indemnitee as bar to indemnification)

Indemnification for loss to which indemnitee's active negligence contributed if indemnity agreement expressly provides protection against loss occasioned by concurrent negligence of indemnitee and indemnitor. San Diego Gas & Elec. Co. v. Davey Tree Surgery Co. (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 1096, 1103, 96 Cal. Rptr. 889 ; John E. Branagh & Sons v. Witcosky (1966) 242 Cal. App. 2d 835, 839, 842, 51 Cal. Rptr. 844

Under agreement that does not expressly provide for indemnification for losses to which indemnitee's negligence has contributed, right of indemnity as available for such losses, notwithstanding rule of strict construction of indemnity agreement against indemnitee who seeks indemnity against his or her own negligence, if consideration of agreement's language and circumstances surrounding execution of agreement and occurrence of losses indicates that losses were risk against which indemnitee sought protection and parties knowingly bargained for such protection. Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co. v. James Stewart Co. (1966) 246 Cal. App. 2d 821, 831, 55 Cal. Rptr. 316 ; Rosendahl Corp. v. H.K. Ferguson Co. (1962) 211 Cal. App. 2d 313, 317, 27 Cal. Rptr. 56 ; Indenco, Inc. v. Evans (1962) 201 Cal. App. 2d 369, 376, 20 Cal. Rptr. 90 ; County of Los Angeles v. Cox Bros. Constr. Co. (1961) 195 Cal. App. 2d 836, 842, 16 Cal. Rptr. 250

No indemnification under general indemnity agreement for losses to which indemnitee's active negligence contributed; active negligence as personal participation in negligent conduct, knowledge and acquiescence in negligent conduct, or failure to perform duty assumed by contract. Baldwin Contracting Co. v. Winston Steel Works, Inc. (1965) 236 Cal. App. 2d 565, 573-576, 46 Cal. Rptr. 421

[iv] Parties Entitled to Indemnification

Subrogation of insurance company to express or implied indemnification rights of its insured. Rossmoor Sanitation, Inc. v. Pylon, Inc. (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 622, 633-634, 119 Cal. Rptr. 449, 532 P.2d 97 (express indemnity); Continental Cas. Co. v. Phoenix Constr. Co. (1956) 46 Cal. 2d 423, 428-429, 296 P.2d 801 (implied indemnity)

Person who is not party to indemnity agreement as not entitled to enforce agreement against indemnitor unless parties to agreement express intention that indemnitor's obligation under agreement directly inure to such person's benefit. Goff v. Ladd (1911) 161 Cal. 257, 259-260, 118 P. 792 ; Thode v. McAmis (1950) 96 Cal. App. 2d 833, 836-839, 216 P.2d 548 (construing indemnity aspect of surety's bond); Van Der v. Hoof v. Chambon (1932) 121 Cal. App. 118, 130-131, 8 P.2d 925

When one joint venturer cross complained against subcontractor of other joint venturer seeking indemnity in main personal injury action between subcontractor's employee and joint venturers, express indemnity clause in contract between subcon tractor and other joint venturer as not applicable to cross complainant when parties to subcontract intended that term "contractor" in indemnity clause refer only to contracting joint venturer and not cross complainant. Leo F. Piazza Paving Co. v. Foundation Constructors, Inc. (1981) 128 Cal. App. 3d 583, 592-593, 177 Cal. Rptr. 268

Under Civ. Code § 1559, incidental beneficiary of indemnity agreement as not entitled to enforce agreement against indemnitor. American Home Ins. Co. v. Travelers Indem. Co. (1981) 122 Cal. App. 3d 951, 967, 175 Cal. Rptr. 826 ; Southern Cal. Gas Co. v. ABC Constr. Co. (1962) 204 Cal. App. 2d 747, 752, 22 Cal. Rptr. 540

Persons entitled to indemnification under indemnity agreement as indemnitee, someone in indemnitee's right, and express beneficiary of agreement. Van Der v. Hoof v. Chambon (1932) 121 Cal. App. 118, 130-131, 8 P.2d 925

No obligation of indemnitor under Civ. Code § 2777 to person injured by indemnified act of indemnitee if indemnity agreement did not induce indemnitee's injurious act. Treloar v. Keil & Hannon (1918) 36 Cal. App. 159, 168, 171 P. 823

[f] Validity of Indemnity Agreement

Illegality and unenforceability of agreement for indemnification against violation of law. Buffendeau v. Brooks (1865) 28 Cal. 641, 644 (sheriff's sale in violation of injunction)

Validity of indemnity agreement against future unlawful act if indemnified act is done without improper motive or actual knowledge that the act is illegal. Stark v. Raney (1861) 18 Cal. 622, 624 (indemnification for unintentional trespass while enforcing legal right); Lemat Corp. v. American Basketball Ass'n (1975) 51 Cal. App. 3d 267, 279-280, 124 Cal. Rptr. 388 (indemnification for indemnitee's unknowing interference with contractual rights of basketball association when contracting services of association's player)

Commercial entities as entitled to contract to limit liability as between themselves or otherwise to allocate risk of doing business; requirements of agreement exculpating one party from liability to the other for negligence or indemnity. Philippine Airlines, Inc. v. McDonnell Douglas Corp. (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 234, 236-243, 234 Cal. Rptr. 423

Inapplicability of Civ. Code § 2782, barring indemnity provisions in construction contracts against loss and liability arising from indemnitee's sole negligence, to indemnity provisions executed prior to enactment of Civ. Code § 2782 in 1967. Western Contracting Corp. v. Southwest Steel Rolling Mills, Inc. (1976) 58 Cal. App. 3d 532, 538-539 n. 2, 129 Cal. Rptr. 782

Validity of agreement encompassing indemnity against indemnitee's negligence, either ordinary or arising from violation of law, if agreement does not induce such negligence. Southern Pac. Co. v. Unarco Indus., Inc. (1974) 42 Cal. App. 3d 142, 149, 116 Cal. Rptr. 847 ; John E. Branagh & Sons v. Witcosky (1966) 242 Cal. App. 2d 835, 839-841, 51 Cal. Rptr. 844

Invalidity of agreement for indemnification of intentional torts. Davidson v. Welch (1969) 270 Cal. App. 2d 220, 235, 75 Cal. Rptr. 676

Invalidity of indemnity agreement the purpose of which is contrary to public policy. Tischhauser v. Jarvis (1928) 95 Cal. App. 524, 528-529, 273 P. 66

[4] Methods of Enforcing Indemnity Rights

Indemnification for future losses under indemnity agreement as not concluded by judgment for indemnification of present losses and declaration of present and future indemnity rights under agreement. Southern Counties Gas Co. v. Ventura Pipeline Constr. Co. (1971) 19 Cal. App. 3d 372, 381-382, 96 Cal. Rptr. 825

Propriety of original action for declaration of express indemnification rights with respect to liability or loss that may arise from separate, pending action. Indenco, Inc. v. Evans (1962) 201 Cal. App. 2d 369, 374, 20 Cal. Rptr. 90

Defendant's cross complaint for declaratory relief against codefendant or stranger to action as appropriate method of adjudicating claim for express indemnity. Atherley v. MacDonald, Young & Nelson (1955) 135 Cal. App. 2d 383, 386-387, 287 P.2d 529

B. Comparative Indemnity Among Tortfeasors

25-300 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 300.132

§ 300.132 Decisions

[1] Attorney's Fees and Costs

Award of attorney's fees under Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.6 as precluded by good faith settlement in which plaintiff has released defendant against whom fee award would have been sought. Reliance Elec. Co. v. Superior Court (1986) 190 Cal. App. 3d 369, 375, 237 Cal. Rptr. 1

[2] Comparative Indemnity

[a] Accrual of Cause of Action

Tort defendant's equitable indemnity action as separate and distinct from plaintiff's tort action; indemnity action, unlike plaintiff's claim, as not accruing for statute of limitations purposes when original accident occurs, but at time tort defendant pays judgment or settlement as to which he or she is entitled to indemnity. Watts v. Crocker-Citizens Nat'l Bank (1982) 132 Cal. App. 3d 516, 524, 183 Cal. Rptr. 304

Accrual of implied indemnity right when indemnitee sustains actual loss by paying legal obligation that arises out of events justifying indemnification. Sunset-Sternau Food Co. v. Bonzi (1964) 60 Cal. 2d 834, 843-844, 36 Cal. Rptr. 741, 389 P.2d 133 3; General Brewing Corp. v. Clark (1968) 264 Cal. App. 2d 518, 519-520, 70 Cal. Rptr. 907

[b] Active and Passive Negligence

Partial indemnity among concurrent tortfeasors as allowed on comparative fault basis without regard to whether negligence of party was active or passive. Easton v. Strassburger (1984) 152 Cal. App. 3d 90, 109-111, 199 Cal. Rptr. 383

[c] Assignment of Cause of Action

Overpaying settler's claims for equitable indemnity against nonsettling defendants as assignable to plaintiff despite potential that plaintiff may recover more than total amount of damages awarded in litigation. Bush v. Superior Court (1992) 10 Cal. App. 4th 1374, 1387-1388, 13 Cal. Rptr. 2d 382

Cause of action for equitable indemnity as not stated if, by terms of settlement in which settling tortfeasors assigned their equitable crossclaim to plaintiff in return for covenant not to execute on any judgment against them, settling tortfeasors could not as matter of law suffer any loss through payment to plaintiff. Christian v. County of Los Angeles (1986) 176 Cal. App. 3d 466, 471-472, 222 Cal. Rptr. 76

[d] Equitable Nature of Doctrine

Duty to indemnify as arising, and indemnity as allowed, in those fact situations in which in equity and good conscience burden of judgment should be shifted from shoulders of person seeking indemnity to one from whom indemnity is sought; right as depending on principle that everyone is responsible for consequences of his or her own wrong, and, if others have been compelled to pay damages which ought to have been paid by wrongdoer, they may recover from him or her; thus, determination of whether or not indemnity should be allowed as required of necessity to depend on facts of each case. County of San Mateo v. Berney (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 1489, 1492-1493, 245 Cal. Rptr. 738

Equity as key ingredient in equitable indemnity; defendant as not having cause of action for comparative indemnity against victim of defendant's tort. Seamen's Bank v. Superior Court (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 1485, 1492-1493, 236 Cal. Rptr. 31

Cross complaint for comparative indemnity between joint tortfeasors as equitable action. Miller v. American Honda Motor Co. (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 1014, 1020, 229 Cal. Rptr. 523

[e] From Dissolved Corporations

Corporation that acted as subcontractor as subject to cross complaint by general contractor for indemnity in owner's suit filed only against general contractor prior to dissolution and based on construction defects that were known prior to dissolution; for purposes of Corp. Code § 2011(a) general contractor's claim for indemnity as cause of action arising before dissolution. Allen v. Southland Plumbing, Inc. (1988) 201 Cal. App. 3d 60, 63-65, 246 Cal. Rptr. 860

[f] From Employee or Agent

Right of employer or principal to indemnification by employee or agent for legal liability to person injured as result of unauthorized negligent act of employee or agent; basis of right as distinction between primary liability of employee or agent and secondary liability of employer or principal under doctrine of respondeat superior. Continental Cas. Co. v. Phoenix Constr. Co. (1956) 46 Cal. 2d 423, 428-429, 296 P.2d 801 ; United States Fire Ins. Co. v. National Union Fire Ins. Co. (1980) 107 Cal. App. 3d 456, 467, 165 Cal Rptr 726 ; Davidson v. Welch (1969) 270 Cal. App. 2d 220, 226, 75 Cal. Rptr. 676 ; Lewis Ave. Parent Teachers' Ass'n v. Hussey (1967) 250 Cal. App. 2d 232, 236, 58 Cal. Rptr. 499 ; Herrero v. Atkinson (1964) 227 Cal. App. 2d 69, 77, 38 Cal. Rptr. 490 ; Walsh v. Hooker & Fay (1963) 212 Cal. App. 2d 450, 462, 28 Cal. Rptr. 16

Employer as having no right to indemnification by employee for legal liability to third person based on employee's tortious conduct when employer participated in tortious conduct by authorizing, directing, or ratifying such conduct. Davidson v. Welch (1969) 270 Cal. App. 2d 220, 226-227, 75 Cal. Rptr. 676 ; Cahill Bros., Inc. v. Clementina Co. (1962) 208 Cal. App. 2d 367, 388, 25 Cal. Rptr. 301

[g] From Employer or Principal

Right of agent who becomes personally liable for performance of contract that he or she has undertaken to secure in his or her own name for principal as entitled to hold principal for indemnity for damages sustained because of principal's breach of that contract. Sunset-Sternau Food Co. v. Bonzi (1964) 60 Cal. 2d 834, 837, 36 Cal. Rptr. 741, 389 P.2d 133

Lab. Code § 4558(d) as providing only for contribution on pro rata basis, and not for comparative indemnity, from employer of employee injured because of employer's knowing removal of or failure to install point-of-operation guard on power press. E. W. Bliss Co. v. Superior Court (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 1254, 1257-1259, 258 Cal. Rptr. 783

Purpose of Lab. Code § 3864 (action by employer, employee, or both against third party tortfeasor for injury to employee and barring liability of employer to third person) as being to eliminate employer's liability for comparative indemnity if its employee is injured during course and scope of employment because of negligence or partial negligence of third party. City of Oakland v. Delcon Assocs. (1985) 168 Cal. App. 3d 1126, 1128-1129, 214 Cal. Rptr. 734

In personal injury action brought by state mental hospital employee against manufacturer and seller of allegedly defective truck in which seller cross complained for indemnity against manufacturer of truck and against state as owner of truck, state as not required to indemnify seller by reason of Lab. Code § 3864, which precludes third party from seeking indemnity or contribution from injured employee's employer. Angelus Chevrolet v. State of California (1981) 115 Cal. App. 3d 995, 998-1004, 171 Cal. Rptr. 801

Lab. Code § 3864, which precludes third-party tortfeasor from seeking indemnity or contribution from injured employee's employer, as not violating equal protection in protecting employers from liability for comparative indemnity. Alameda Tank Co. v. Starkist Foods, Inc. (1980) 103 Cal. App. 3d 428, 432, 162 Cal. Rptr. 924

Lab. Code § 3864 as normally precluding third-party tortfeasor from obtaining indemnification from employer for injury to employee within scope of employment, even if employer's negligence was concurrent cause of injury. Commercial Standard Title Co. v. Superior Court (1979) 92 Cal. App. 3d 934, 940, 155 Cal. Rptr. 393

Written agreement between employer of injured employee and third-party tortfeasor providing indemnity against claims for injuries to persons without expressly mentioning indemnity against claims for injuries to employees as sufficient under Lab. Code § 3864 to permit indemnification action against employer by tortfeasor for judgment that injured employee recovered against tortfeasor. Herman Christensen & Sons, Inc. v. Paris Plastering Co. (1976) 61 Cal. App. 3d 237, 246, 132 Cal. Rptr. 86

Lab. Code § 3864 as insulating employer from liability for equitable indemnification of third-party tortfeasor sued by employee injured as result of joint negligence of employer and third party. E. B. Wills Co. v. Superior Court (1976) 56 Cal. App. 3d 650, 654, 128 Cal. Rptr. 541

Action against employer of injured employee by third-party tortfeasor seeking indemnity for judgment recovered by employee against tortfeasor as required by Lab. Code § 3864 to be based on written indemnity agreement executed by tortfeasor and employer prior to employee's injuries. Burlingame Motor Co. v. Peninsula Activities, Inc. (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 656, 662, 93 Cal. Rptr. 376 ; San Francisco Examiner Div., Hearst Publ'g Co., Inc. v. Sweat (1967) 248 Cal. App. 2d 493, 497-498, 56 Cal. Rptr. 711

Neither employer nor employer's public liability insurer nor workers' compensation insurer as required to indemnify third-party tortfeasor for injury to employee in absence of written agreement, executed by employer and third party prior to employee's injury, providing for indemnity. Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. v. Morse (1970) 6 Cal. App. 3d 707, 711,

713, 86 Cal. Rptr. 7 (insurer); San Francisco Examiner Div., Hearst Publ'g Co., Inc. v. Sweat (1967) 248 Cal. App. 2d 493, 497, 56 Cal. Rptr. 711 (employer)

[h] From Joint Venturer or Partner

Rule giving employer right of indemnity against negligent employee who subjects employer to vicarious liability as equally applicable if negligent party is partner and subjects partnership to vicarious liability. United States Fire Ins. Co. v. National Union Fire Ins. Co. (1980) 107 Cal. App. 3d 456, 468, 165 Cal. Rptr. 726

Joint venturer or partner as having right to indemnification by other joint venturer or partner for liability to third person based on vicarious responsibility for wrongful conduct of other, but not for liability based on direct participation in wrongful conduct. Cahill Bros., Inc. v. Clementina Co. (1962) 208 Cal. App. 2d 367, 388, 25 Cal. Rptr. 301

[i] From Subsequent Attorney

Public policy considerations as precluding cross complaint for indemnity by attorney against subsequent attorney bringing legal malpractice action on behalf of client, even though subsequent attorney's alleged negligence occurred concurrently with defendant's in course of representation of client and not with regard to malpractice action. Lewis v. Purvin (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 1208, 1214-1217, 256 Cal. Rptr. 827

Prohibition on cross complaints by defendant predecessor attorneys for equitable indemnity against successor attorneys as not inconsistent with or violative of right to contribution provided in Civ. Code § 1432. Holland v. Thacher (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 924, 936, 245 Cal. Rptr. 247

Court's refusal to allow attorney sued for attorney malpractice to cross complain against successor attorney for equitable indemnity as not denying attorney equal protection or due process. Holland v. Thacher (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 924, 935, 245 Cal. Rptr. 247

Attorney sued for malpractice by former client as barred from cross complaining for indemnity against successor attorney hired to assist client in limiting injury caused by original attorney; original attorney as having option, in lieu of seeking indemnity, of asserting successor attorney's negligence as affirmative defense. Holland v. Thacher (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 924, 929-935, 245 Cal. Rptr. 247

Attorney as liable for equitable indemnity when plaintiff restauranteur sued lessor in tort and contract for failure to provide outdoor dining area as promised in lease; although lessor and lessee retained attorney after lease was signed, attorney's negligent defense against third party's suit to enjoin construction of dining area as partly responsible for plaintiff's damages. Considine Co. v. Shadle, Hunt & Hagar (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 760, 767-768, 232 Cal. Rptr. 250

If two attorneys, not in privity, successively represented same client in prior action, first attorney sued for malpractice as prohibited by public policy from maintaining claim for equitable, or partial equitable, indemnity against second attorney on alleged ground that client's damages were actually caused or exacerbated by second attorney. Goldfisher v. Superior Court (1982) 133 Cal. App. 3d 12, 21-23, 183 Cal. Rptr. 609

Attorney sued by former client for malpractice as permitted to cross complain for partial indemnity against client's second attorney whose negligence as a matter of law contributed to client's loss. Parker v. Morton (1981) 117 Cal. App. 3d 751, 755-767, 173 Cal. Rptr. 197 (distinguishing prior cases holding attorney sued by former client for malpractice may not cross complain against client's successor attorney who is retained to extricate client from situation created by first attorney when second attorney's alleged negligence consisted of choice of alternative remedies requiring exercise of professional judgment)

Lawyer sued by former client for professional negligence as not permitted to cross complain for partial equitable indemnity against client's second lawyer who was retained to extricate client from situation created by alleged negligence of first lawyer; rule as applying whether or not person seeking indemnification was a lawyer. Gibson, Dunn & Crutcher v. Superior Court (1979) 94 Cal. App. 3d 347, 349, 352, 156 Cal. Rptr. 326

Attorney whose malpractice (failure to advise client entering land-exchange transaction to obtain title insurance respecting parcel to be acquired) contributed to client's injury as not a "joint" tortfeasor with title company (liable for negligent failure to report encumbrance on parcel client acquired), at least for purpose of titlecompany's claim for equitable indemnity from attorney. Commercial Standard Title Co. v. Superior Court (1979) 92 Cal. App. 3d 934, 938-946, 155 Cal. Rptr. 393

[j] From Subsequent Tortfeasor

General rule as being that subsequent tortfeasor who by his or her negligence exacerbates damage suffered by already injured party may be named as cross defendant for proportionate indemnity by party whose negligence caused original injury and who may be held liable to injured party for all of injured party's damages including those that resulted from subsequent negligence. Parker v. Morton (1981) 117 Cal. App. 3d 751, 756, 173 Cal. Rptr. 197

[k] Implied Contractural Indemnity

Implied contractual indemnity as predicated on indemnitor's breach of contract, with agreement to indemnify foreseeable damages resulting to plaintiff from defendant's performance of contract as what is implied; investment letter in nature of disclosure statement as not meeting Civ. Code § 1549 definition of contract and as not serving as basis for implied contractual indemnity action. Seamen's Bank v. Superior Court (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 1485, 1493-1494, 236 Cal. Rptr. 31

City ordinance as not creating right of implied contractual indemnity between city and adjacent owners, in case of slip and fall on city sidewalk, when ordinance required adjacent owner to repair sidewalk and city to inspect and maintain trees and to repair dangerous conditions of which it had notice. City of Sacramento v. Gemsch Inv. Co. (1981) 115 Cal. App. 3d 869, 874-875, 171 Cal. Rptr. 764

No right of implied contractual indemnity for indemnitee's contractual liability to third person as result of indemnitor's negligent performance of contractual duties owed to indemnitee when indemnitee actively participates in indemnitor's negligent performance. Harold A. Newman Co. v. Nero (1973) 31 Cal. App. 3d 490, 498, 107 Cal. Rptr. 464

Under federal maritime law, substandard performance of maritime contract, in breach of implied warranty of workmanlike and safe performance, as basis of obligation to indemnify shipowner for personal injury liability resulting from breach unless shipowner's negligence or ship's unseaworthiness prevent or seriously handicap safe performance of contract. Standard Oil Co. v. Intrepid, Inc. (1972) 26 Cal. App. 3d 135, 139-140, 102 Cal. Rptr. 604 ; Marincovich v. Oriana, Inc. (1970) 13 Cal. App. 3d 146, 160-161, 91 Cal. Rptr. 417

Right of implied contractual indemnity for contractual liability to another that is primarily and ultimately caused by indemnitor's breach of contractual duties owed to indemnitee. Nomellini Constr. Co. v. Harris (1969) 272 Cal. App. 2d 352, 359, 77 Cal. Rptr. 361

Right of implied contractual indemnity for tort liability resulting from indemnitor's breach of contractual duties owed to indemnitee; basis of right as implied agreement of indemnitor to indemnify indemnitee for liability to another proximately caused by indemnitor's negligent performance of contractual duties. Muth v. Urricelqui (1967) 251 Cal. App. 2d 901, 907-908, 60 Cal. Rptr. 166 ; Ferrel v. Vegetable Oil Prods. Co. (1966) 247 Cal. App. 2d 117, 120, 124-125, 55 Cal. Rptr. 589 ; Ralke Co. v. Esquire Bldg. Maint. Co. (1966) 246 Cal. App. 2d 141, 143-144, 54 Cal. Rptr. 556 ; Great W. Furniture Co. v. Porter Corp. (1965) 238 Cal. App. 2d 502, 516-518, 48 Cal. Rptr. 76 ; Montgomery Ward & Co. v. KPIX Westinghouse Broad. Co. (1962) 198 Cal. App. 2d 759, 760-761, 18 Cal. Rptr. 341 ; Alisal Sanitary Dist. v. Kennedy (1960) 180 Cal. App. 2d 69, 79, 4 Cal. Rptr. 379 ; De La Forest v. Yandle (1959) 171 Cal. App. 2d 59, 60-61, 340 P.2d 52 ; San Francisco Unified Sch. Dist. v. Cal. Bldg. Maint. Co. (1958) 162 Cal. App. 2d 434, 448-449, 328 P.2d 785 , superseded by statute as stated in Prince v. Pacific Gas & Electric Co. (2009) 45 Cal. 4th 1151, 1167, 90 Cal. Rptr. 3d 732, 202 P.3d 1115

[l] Intentional Torts

In cross complaint for comparative indemnity, entire liability for losses may be shifted from neglingent tortfeasor to intentional tortfeasor; partial indemnity as applicable between negligent tortfeasors. Cicone v. URS Corp. (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 194, 211-212, 227 Cal. Rptr. 887

Joint tortfeasor as not entitled to partial, or comparative, indemnity if tort was intentional. Allen v. Sundean (1982) 137 Cal. App. 3d 216, 226-227, 186 Cal. Rptr. 863

[m] Prejudgment Interest

In action for indemnity, indemnitee as entitled to prejudgment interest from date underlying personal injury judgment was paid. E. L. White, Inc. v. City of Huntington Beach (1982) 138 Cal. App. 3d 366, 377, 187 Cal. Rptr. 879 , superseded by statute on other grounds as stated in Black Diamond Asphalt, Inc. v. Superior Court (2003) 114 Cal. App. 4th 109, 7 Cal. Rptr. 3d 466

[n] Public Entities

City as entitled to partial indemnity from title company in action by property owner against lessee, title company, and city and its recorder for slander of title and negligence arising from recordation of nonrecordable memorandum of agreement; law as creating no substantive distinctions between private and governmental defendants for purposes of comparative indemnity. Seeley v. Seymour (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 844, 862-863, 237 Cal. Rptr. 282

[o] Willful Misconduct

Description of party's negligence as willful misconduct as not barring party's right to partial indemnity from joint tortfeasor whose conduct is described as simple negligence. Southern Pac. Transp. Co. v. State of California (1981) 115 Cal. App. 3d 116, 118, 121, 171 Cal. Rptr. 187

[3] Implied Total Equitable Indemnity

NOTE:

The principles of the cases set forth below predate the adoption of comparative indemnity in American Motorcycle Ass'n v. Superior Court (1978) 20 Cal. 3d 578, 599, 146 Cal. Rptr. 182, 578 P.2d 899 , but would appear to have some continuing vitality under current law.

Public entity that incurs liability for injuries by passively failing to maintain street in safe condition as entitled to implied equitable indemnity for such liability fromparty who, while making special use of street, actively created dangerous condition that caused injuries. County of Alameda v. Southern Pac. Co. (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 479, 483-484, 11 Cal. Rptr. 751, 360 P.2d 327 (failure of railroad and abutting property owner to maintain rail crossing which they had built across highway); City & County of San Francisco v. Ho Sing (1958) 51 Cal. 2d 127, 134, 138, 330 P.2d 802 (abutting property owner's failure to maintain sidewalk skylight benefiting owner's property); Reinach v. City & County of San Francisco (1958) 164 Cal. App. 2d 763, 769, 331 P.2d 1006 (failure of gas station lessor and lessee to warn of driveway depression across sidewalk)

Equitable indemnity as historically available in three classes of cases: (1) when court imposed liability without fault; (2) when one tortfeasor's fault was negligible; and (3) when one wrongdoer was less at fault than others. Munoz v. Davis (1983) 141 Cal. App. 3d 420, 423, 190 Cal. Rptr. 400

Indemnity as applying in cases in which one party pays debt for which another is primarily liable and that in equity and good conscience should have been paid by latter party, but as not applying to a volunteer; ultimate determination of whether indemnity should be allowed as depending on circumstances of each case. Aetna Life & Cas. Co. v. Ford Motor Co. (1975) 50 Cal. App. 3d 49, 52-53, 122 Cal. Rptr. 852

Implied equitable indemnification of product distributor by manufacturer for distributor's strict products liability to third person injured by product's defect. Green v. City of Los Angeles (1974) 40 Cal. App. 3d 819, 838-839, 115 Cal. Rptr. 685 (indemnification of purchaser-lessor by seller-reconditioner of defective crane); Fakhoury v. Magner (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 58, 66-67, 101 Cal. Rptr. 473 (indemnification of landlord who leased defective furniture with apartment by seller-assembler of furniture); Pearson Ford Co. v. Ford Motor Co. (1969) 273 Cal. App. 2d 269, 273-274, 78 Cal. Rptr. 279

Right to implied total equitable indemnity as inuring to person who, without active fault on his or her part, has been compelled by reason of some legal obligation or relationship to pay damages that were caused by initial wrongful acts of another and that, in equity and good conscience, wrongdoer ought to pay. Pearson Ford Co. v. Ford Motor Co. (1969) 273 Cal. App. 2d 269, 272, 78 Cal. Rptr. 279 ; Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co. v. Lan Franco (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 881, 885, 73 Cal. Rptr. 660

Right to implied equitable indemnity as dependent on principle that everyone is responsible for consequences of his or her own wrong and as restitutional in nature. Atchison, T. & S. F.. Co. v. Lan Franco (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 881, 886, 73 Cal. Rptr. 660 ; Herrero v. Atkinson (1964) 227 Cal. App. 2d 69, 74, 38 Cal. Rptr. 490

Right to implied indemnity as dependent on equitable considerations and facts of each case. Herrero v. Atkinson (1964) 227 Cal. App. 2d 69, 74, 38 Cal. Rptr. 490 ; Alisal Sanitary Dist. v. Kennedy (1960) 180 Cal. App. 2d 69, 78-80, 4 Cal. Rptr. 379

[4] Indemnity and Contribution Distinguished

Contribution among joint tortfeasors as pro rata allocation of loss among parties in pari delicto; implied total indemnification as shifting entire loss from one party to another who in equity and good conscience should bear it. Standard Oil Co. v. Oil, Chem. and Atomic Workers Int'l Union, AFL-CIO (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 585, 588, 100 Cal. Rptr. 354 ; Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co. v. Lan Franco (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 881, 884-885, 73 Cal. Rptr. 660 ; Herrero v. Atkinson (1964) 227 Cal. App. 2d 69, 74, 38 Cal. Rptr. 490

[5] Inverse Condemnation

Public entity held liable for inverse condemnation caused by contributing actions of third-party subdivision developer as permitted to seek comparative indemnity from developer whose negligent or fraudulent acts were causative factors in damaging or taking of private property, notwithstanding fact that liability for inverse condemnation is not based on tort. County of San Mateo v. Berney (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 1489, 1493-1494, 245 Cal. Rptr. 738

[6] Joint and Several Liability

To state claim for indemnification, defendant as required to allege that same harm for which he or she may be held liable is at least partially attributable to alleged indemnitor; absent some claim of mutual liability for same harm, indemnity as unavailable. Molko v. Holy Spirit Ass'n (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 1092, 1127-1128, 252 Cal. Rptr. 122, 762 P.2d 46

Chemical companies as potentially jointly liable with polluting property owner for nuisance arising from contamination of ground water, based on companies' breach of duty to warn of environmental hazards associated with use of chemicals. Selma Pressure Treating Co. v. Osmose Wood Preserving, Inc. (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 1601, 1620-1624, 271 Cal. Rptr. 596 , distinguished, Johnson v. American Standard, Inc. (2008) 43 Cal. 4th 56

Designer of chemical waste disposal system as potentially jointly liable with polluting property owner for nuisance arising from contamination of ground water. Selma Pressure Treating Co. v. Osmose Wood Preserving, Inc. (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 1601, 1620, 1624, 271 Cal. Rptr. 596 , distinguished, Johnson v. American Standard, Inc. (2008) 43 Cal. 4th 56

Full satisfaction of judgment by one joint tortfeasor as discharging liability of other joint tortfeasors to plaintiff. Burton v. Gardner Motors, Inc. (1981) 117 Cal. App. 3d 426, 431, 172 Cal. Rptr. 647

Contributory wrongdoers, whether joint or concurrent, as ordinarily jointly and severally liable for entire damage; judgment for full amount as rendered against all joint tortfeasors. Kemp v. Barnett (1976) 62 Cal. App. 3d 245, 248, 132 Cal. Rptr. 823

Joint tortfeasor as not injured by failure to join concurrent tortfeasor in action or by grant of new trial to concurrent tortfeasor. Winzler & Kelly v. Superior Court (1975) 48 Cal. App. 3d 385, 391, 393, 122 Cal. Rptr. 259

[7] Settlement or Dismissal of One of Two or More Jointly Liable Parties

[a] Effect on Indemnity Rights of Defendants

Code Civ. Proc. § 877 as mandating that plaintiff in tort action who sues one party asalter ego of corporate subsidiary defendant may proceed against alleged alter ego after settlement with subsidiary. Mesler v. Bragg Mgmt. Co. (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 290, 297-306, 216 Cal. Rptr. 443, 702 P.2d 601

Tortfeasor who has entered into good faith settlement with plaintiff as discharged from any claim for comparative indemnity of concurrent tortfeasor. Mission Ins. Co. v. Hartford Ins. Co. (1984) 155 Cal. App. 3d 1199, 1211, 202 Cal. Rptr. 635

Dismissal given in good faith to alleged tortfeasor prior to judicial determination of liability as discharging that tortfeasor from all liability for contribution or comparative indemnity to any other joint tortfeasor. Northrop Corp. v. Stinson Sales Corp. (1984) 151 Cal. App. 3d 653, 657, 199 Cal. Rptr. 16

Party whose liability is imputed by statute as joint tortfeasor with other parties whose liability is direct for purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 877.6; statute as not distinguishing between parties primarily and secondarily liable. Lopez v.

Blecher (1983) 143 Cal. App. 3d 736, 737-741, 192 Cal. Rptr. 190

Good faith settlement by one or more joint tortfeasors barring any other joint tortfeasor from claiming comparative indemnity against settling tortfeasors under Code Civ. Proc. § 877.6; American Motorcycle Ass'n as available in commercial actions and as not limited to personal injury actions. Kohn v. Superior Court (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 323, 330-332, 191 Cal. Rptr. 78

Code Civ. Proc. § 877(b) (discharging settling tortfeasor from all liability for contribution to other tortfeasors) as applying to comparative indemnity, as well as contribution, in suits in which joint tortfeasors have separately settled with plaintiff. Mill Valley Refuse Co. v. Superior Court (1980) 108 Cal. App. 3d 707, 711, 166 Cal. Rptr. 687

Settlement by one tortfeasor with plaintiff after liability has been established in bifurcated trial as not denying other tortfeasor of right to contribution, since term, "before verdict or judgment," as used in Code Civ. Proc. § 877 (providing that tortfeasor released or dismissed from case in good faith before verdict or judgment is discharged from liability for any contribution to other tortfeasors), must be construed to mean before is established. Halpin v. Superior Court (1971) 14 Cal. App. 3d 530, 543, 92 Cal. Rptr. 329

[b] Effect on Plaintiff's Recovery From Nonsettling Defendants

Reduction of award against nonsettling tortfesasor by discounted value of note taken in settlement with joint tortfeasor as proper when discount reflects probability of nonpayment. Seymour v. Summa Vista Cinema, Inc. (9th Cir. 1987) 809 F.2d 1385, 1389-1390 (stating that federal and California law reach same result)

Code Civ. Proc. § 877(a) as mandating that award against nonsettling joint tortfeasors be reduced only by present cash value of structured settlement calling for periodic future payments. Franck v. Polaris E-Z Go Div. of Textron, Inc. (1984) 157 Cal. App. 3d 1107, 1120, 204 Cal. Rptr. 321

Code Civ. Proc. § 877 as requiring reduction in judgment against nonsettling defendant by amount plaintiff received from settling cotortfeasor. Knox v. County of Los Angeles (1980) 109 Cal. App. 3d 825, 832, 167 Cal. Rptr. 463

Defendants' claim of offset raised after establishment of liability and before judgment as timely under Code Civ. Proc. § 877. Knox v. County of Los Angeles (1980) 109 Cal. App. 3d 825, 834-835, 167 Cal. Rptr. 463

Pro tanto reduction of plaintiff's claim against nonsettling tortfeasors as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 877 as preventing settlements from producing double recoveries by plaintiff in case of single injury caused by joint tortfeasors. Carr v. Cove (1973) 33 Cal. App. 3d 851, 854, 109 Cal. Rptr. 449 ; Wouldridge v. Zimmerman (1971) 21 Cal. App. 3d 656, 658, 98 Cal. Rptr. 778

[c] Good Faith Defined

Actions of attorney of nonsettling defendant in attempting to induce plaintiff to reject other defendant's settlement agreement and enter into similar agreement with his client as not constituting prima facie case of bad faith because proportionate fault of each defendant had not been established and it was possible that settlement underestimated proportionate share of settling defendant's liability. Spectra-Physics, Inc. v. Superior Court (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 1487, 1496-1497, 244 Cal. Rptr. 258

Sliding scale settlement agreement as not made in bad faith, notwithstanding that amounts agreed on were not in line with damages fixed by jury, when trial court conducted extended hearing and considered numerous appropriate factors on fairness issues. Barajas v. USA Petroleum Corp. (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 974, 986-988, 229 Cal. Rptr. 513

Finding that settlement was in good faith under Code Civ. Proc. § 877.6 as possible even though insurer for one settling defendant arguably breached its "good faith" obligations by denying coverage and refusing to negotiate on behalf of one of nonsettling defendants; possible bad faith claim against insurer as irrelevant to issue of whether settling tortfeasor acted in good faith; later action against insurer for bad faith as proper avenue for nonsettling defendant's relief. Rankin v. Curtis (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 939, 944-947, 228 Cal. Rptr. 753

In action for damages for negligence, strict products liability, and breach of warranty against manufacturers of interrelated farm equipment who cofabricated finished product that injured plaintiff, settlement with one manufacturer for less than one percent of potential settlement liability as not meeting Tech-Bilt good faith requirements because such a small settlement would require conclusion that it was "cost of defense settlement" predicated on no liability as a matter of law, and liability devolving on product manufacturer by reason of design defects or failure to warn or provide safety device falls in some proportion on all parties who have mutually participated in designing, assembling, and marketing offending product. Gehl Bros. Mfg. Co. v. Superior Court (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 178, 184-186, 228 Cal. Rptr. 19

Settlement with defendant in order to "clean up pleadings" as improper basis for good faith settlement, but underlying motive of settling with defendant because of belief that defendant bears minimal or no liability for plaintiff's injuries as good faith motive for settlement. Ex-Cell-O Corp. v. Holdener (1986) 181 Cal. App. 3d 25, 32-33, 226 Cal. Rptr. 57

Trial court as having discretion to find settlement to be in good faith even though forsum grossly disproportionate to damages prayed for in complaint if sum is not disproportionate to what court might have considered plaintiff's probable recovery from settling joint tortfeasor. Kohn v. Superior Court (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 323, 327-328, 191 Cal. Rptr. 78

[d] Prejudgment Interest

If some, but not all, of tortfeasors settle with plaintiff, prejudgment interest as not allowed under Civ. Code § 3287(a) because partial settlements do not fix damages and damages are not thereby made certain. Sagadin v. Ripper (1985) 175 Cal. App. 3d 1141, 1175-1176, 221 Cal. Rptr. 675

[e] Public Entities

Code Civ. Proc. § 877, which covers releases given in good faith to one or more of a number of tortfeasors claimed to be liable for same tort, as applicable to governmental entity parties. City of Sacramento v. Gemsch Inv. Co. (1981) 115 Cal. App. 3d 869, 876-877, 171 Cal. Rptr. 764

[f] Standing to Appeal

Defendant who voluntarily settles with plaintiff, pursues cross complaint for equitable indemnity against nonsettling codefendant, then is found at trial not to have contributed to plaintiff's injury, as nevertheless having standing to appeal portion of judgment denying indemnity. Tatum v. Armor Elevator Co. (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 1315, 1317-1318, 1321, 250 Cal. Rptr. 775

[g] Voluntary Payment

Good faith settlement of claim for damages, made in face of apparent liability as not prejudicing right to indemnification for amount paid in settlement. Aetna Life & Cas. Co. v. Ford Motor Co. (1975) 50 Cal. App. 3d 49, 54, 122 Cal. Rptr. 852 ; Mabie & Mintz v. B & E Installers (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 491, 497, 101 Cal. Rptr. 919

No implied indemnification rights for loss that is voluntary rather than compelled by legal obligation. Flying Tiger Lines, Inc. v. Truck Ins. Exch. (1971) 20 Cal. App. 3d 132, 135, 97 Cal. Rptr. 621

4. On or about _____ [date], (in _____ County, California,) plaintiff and defendant entered into a written contract whereby _____ [Allege transaction between plaintiff and defendant creating indemnity agreement, e.g., defendant agreed, in consideration for a payment of $_____ by plaintiff, to furnish and install an elevator in a retail store operated by plaintiff at _____ (specify location)]. As a term and condition of this contract, defendant agreed to indemnify and hold plaintiff harmless from any and all loss, claims, expenses, and liability that plaintiff might sustain at any time as a consequence of _____ [specify scope of indemnity agreement, e.g., any mechanical defects in the elevator]. A copy of this contract is attached hereto as Exhibit A and made a part hereof.

5. _____ [Describe occurrence of damages against which indemnity agreement provides protection, e.g., Thereafter, defendant installed an elevator in plaintiff's store pursuant to the terms of the contract. On or about _____ (date), during normal operation of the elevator in the course of plaintiff's business, the mechanism for braking the motion of the elevator failed to function because of a defective part. As a proximate result, the elevator fell to the basement of plaintiff's store, and a customer of plaintiff's who was riding on the elevator sustained serious personal injuries].

6. On or about _____ [date], _____ [name of person with claim arising from occurrence of indemnified risk] brought an action against plaintiff herein in _____Court, _____ County, California, Action No. _____, to recover _____ [describe nature of claim, e.g., damages for personal injuries sustained as a result of plaintiff's failure to maintain the elevator in plaintiff's store in good working order]. _____ [Either A trial was held in this action, and, despite a good faith and vigorous defense, a judgment was entered against plaintiff on _____ (date), for the sum of $_____ plus costs in the sum of $_____ or Recognizing his/her/its liability for this claim, plaintiff agreed to pay the reasonable sum of $_____ to _____ (name of person with claim arising from occurrence of indemnified risk) in settlement of the action or allege other facts showing and fixing plaintiff's legal liability for consequences of indemnified risk].

[7. _____ (If agreement provides for indemnity against loss rather than liability, allege: On or about _____ (date), _____ (in satisfaction of this judgment or in accord with this settlement), plaintiff paid the sum of $_____ to _____ (name of person with with claim arising from occurrence of indemnified risk).)]

[8. On or about _____ (date), plaintiff gave written notice to defendant of the action commenced by _____ (name of person with claim arising from occurrence of indemnified risk) against plaintiff, requesting defense of the action by defendant and indicating that defendant would be bound under his/her/its agreement of _____ (date) to indemnify plaintiff for any _____ (loss or liability) that plaintiff might sustain as a result of the action. A copy of this notice is attached hereto as Exhibit B and made a part hereof. (Nevertheless, defendant failed to undertake the defense of the action and refused to indemnify plaintiff for any _____ (loss or liability) resulting from the action.)]

[9. _____ (If defendant did not defend action against plaintiff, allege: In _____ (defending or settling) the action of _____ (name of person with claim arising from occurrence of indemnified risk), plaintiff necessarily and reasonably incurred and paid attorney's fees and other legal costs in the sum of $_____).]

10. Plaintiff has performed all the conditions and obligations to be performed on his/her/its part under his/her/its agreement with defendant as heretofore alleged in Paragraph 3 [, except _____ (specify unperformed condition), the performance of which was excused on the ground that _____ (specify)].

11. By reason of the foregoing, plaintiff is entitled to be indemnified by defendant in the sum of $_____, but defendant has not paid any part of this sum to plaintiff.

[12. Plaintiff has incurred, and continues to incur, necessary and reasonable attorney's fees and other legal costs in prosecuting this action against defendant. By the terms of the agreement between plaintiff and defendant, plaintiff is entitled to recover these fees and costs from defendant. Plaintiff does not know the full amount thereof at this time and will move to amend this complaint to state the amount when it becomes known to him/her/it, or on proof thereof.]

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment as follows:

1. For the sum of $_____ as indemnity for the _____ [loss or liability] incurred as alleged above;

[2. For attorney's fees and costs incurred in defending and resolving the claim of _____ (name of injured claimant) in the sum of $_____;]

3. For interest on the sum of $_____ [total of amounts subject to indemnity under agreement] from _____[date];

[4. For attorney's fees and costs herein incurred; and]

5. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

This form is for use as a complaint to recover indemnity under a written indemnity agreement. A separate action for express contractual indemnity (this form) may be initiated only after the indemnitee's liability has been incurred or the indemnitee's loss has been sustained, the time at which the indemnitee's cause of action on the agreement accrues [see Alberts v. American Cas. Co. (1948) 88 Cal. App. 2d 891, 899, 200 P.2d 37] . However, this form may be adapted for use as a cross complaint for declaratory relief if the indemnity agreement is sought to be enforced in the same action in which the liability of the indemnitee is to be determined [see, e.g., Rimington v. General Accident Group of Ins. Cos. (1962) 205 Cal. App. 2d 394, 397, 23 Cal. Rptr. 40 (express indemnity by cross complaint); see also Code Civ. Proc. §§ 428.10 (permissive cross complaints), 1060 (declaratory relief); see generally § 300.15]. For an example of a cross complaint for declaratory relief to determine indemnity rights, see § 300.190 (cross complaint for declaratory relief for comparative indemnity).

Either party to an indemnity agreement may adjudicate its rights under the agreement in a separate action for declaratory relief before the cause of action accrues [Indenco, Inc. v. Evans (1962) 201 Cal. App. 2d 369, 374, 20 Cal. Rptr. 90] . A form of complaint for a declaration of rights and duties under an indemnity agreement is set forth in the form in § 300.172.

This form of complaint may be used by an express third-party beneficiary of an indemnity agreement who has sustained damages indemnified by the agreement [see Civ. Code § 1559; see also Van Der v. Hoof v. Chambon (1932) 121 Cal. App. 118, 130-131, 8 P.2d 925] . In such a case, the complaint should contain an allegation of the plaintiff's third-party beneficiary status. For a general form of complaint by a third-party beneficiary on a contract, see Ch. 140, Contracts .

[3] Allegations

The complaint alleges the following [see Four Star Elec., Inc. v. F & H Constr. (1992) 7 Cal. App. 4th 1375, 1380, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1 ; see also Branson v. Sun Diamond Growers (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 327, 347, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 314] : (1) the indemnity agreement between plaintiff and defendant (Paragraph 4); (2) facts establishing plaintiff's liability or loss resulting from liability within the terms of the indemnity agreement (Paragraphs 5-7); (3) plaintiff's performance of all conditions precedent to recovery under the indemnity agreement (Paragraph 10); (4) the amount of plaintiff's loss or liability (Paragraphs 6, 9, 11); and (5) defendant's failure to indemnify plaintiff in accordance with his or her obligation under the indemnity agreement (Paragraph 11).

The complaint also contains an optional allegation of the defendant's notice ofand opportunity to defend the action against plaintiff that gave rise to plaintiff's indemnity action (Paragraph 8). This allegation is not essential to the complaint because notice and opportunity to defend are not conditions precedent to an action for indemnity [Eva v. Andersen (1913) 166 Cal. 420, 424-425, 137 P. 16] . However, if notice and opportunity to defend were given, the allegation should be included because the plaintiff's burden of proof in the indemnity action is lessened [see Civ. Code § 2778(4)]. For discussion of this point, see §§ 300.36, 300.40[1], and 300.41[2]. For a form of notice, see § 300.170.

If the indemnity agreement on which an action for indemnity is based provides for the recovery of attorney's fees and costs in any action to enforce the agreement, the allegation in Paragraph 11 should be included. For discussion, see § 300.41[2][b].

[4] Venue

An action based on a contractual obligation may be brought in the county where the obligation is to be performed, where the contract was in fact entered into, or where the defendants, or some of them, reside at the commencement of the action [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 395(a), 395.5]. The county where the obligation is incurred is deemed to be the county where it is to be performed unless there is a special contract in writing to the contrary [Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a)]. For further discussion of venue generally, see Ch. 571, Venue .

[5] Verification

Although verification of this complaint is not required [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(a)], verification will require any answer to be verified also, if the action is in the superior court and is not a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446]. Verification will also preclude a general denial except in a limited civil case, and will preclude a general denial even in a limited civil case when the action is a claim assigned to a third party for collection [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion, see Ch. 26, Answers .

Plaintiff alleges:

[1. Allege capacity to sue and residence of plaintiff. See § 300.171, Paragraph 1.]

[2. Allege capacity and domicile of defendant. See § 300.171, Paragraph 2.]

[3. Fictitiously named defendants allegation. See § 300.171, Paragraph 3.]

4. On or about _____ [date], (in _____ County, California,) plaintiff and defendant entered into a written contract, attached hereto as Exhibit A and made a part hereof, whereby _____ [ allege transaction between plaintiff and defendant involving indemnity agreement that does not expressly protect defendant-indemnitee against loss or liability caused by defendant's own negligence, e.g., defendant employed plaintiff to construct a sewage pump station and certain sewer lines in conformity with stated specifications for a development project that defendant had undertaken on its property at _____ (specify location)]. In the agreement, plaintiff promised to indemnify and hold defendant harmless _____ [set forth language of indemnity agreement that establishes scope of plaintiff-indemnitor's duty under agreement, e.g., against all claims for damages to persons or property arising out of the work covered by the agreement (Exhibit A, paragraph _____)]. The agreement did not require plaintiff to indemnity defendant for loss or liability caused, in whole or in part, by defendant's own negligence.

5. _____ [Describe occurrence of loss or liability potentially within terms of indemnity agreement, e.g., Pursuant to the agreement, plaintiff dug a trench for a pipeline on defendant's property according to the specifications provided by defendant and under the direct control and supervision of defendant and its employees and agents. Thereafter, and several persons entered the trench to install the pipe. While these persons were working in the trench, a cave-in occurred and one of them sustained serious injuries.]

6. On or about _____ [date], _____ [name of person sustaining damages] brought an action against defendant herein in _____ Court, _____ County, California, Action No. _____, seeking damages for _____ [describe nature of claim, e.g., personal injuries sustained during a cave-in of a trench dug by plaintiff on defendant's property]. [A trial was held in this action, and a judgment was entered against defendant in the sum of $_____ together with costs in the sum of $_____. Defendant has appealed from that judgment and the appeal is now pending in the Court of Appeal, _____ District, (Division _____,) Civil No. _____].

7. Defendant has demanded that plaintiff indemnify and hold defendant harmless from the _____ [loss or liability] that defendant _____ [has incurred or may incur] with regard to this action pursuant to the terms of the indemnity agreement between the parties (Exhibit A).

8. The _____ [loss or liability] that defendant _____ [has incurred or may incur] as alleged above does not create a duty of indemnity on the part of plaintiff under the agreement because the _____ [loss or liability] was caused, in whole or in part, by defendant's own negligence, in that _____ [specify conduct of defendant-indemnitor that constitutes active negligence, e.g., at all times prior to the event that caused injury, plaintiff and its employees and agents were following the express instructions and specifications of defendant and its employees and agents, with regard to digging the trench that ultimately caved in and caused injury].

9. An actual controversy has arisen and now exists between plaintiff and defendant concerning their respective rights and duties under their written agreement: defendant contends that, by virtue of the agreement, plaintiff is obligated to indemnify and to hold defendant harmless from any and all damages, judgment, or other awards that may be recovered against defendant as a result of _____ [the action or an affirmation of the judgment on appeal]. Plaintiff, on the other hand, contends that the agreement does not obligate him/her/it in any manner with regard to any injury or damages suffered by _____[name of injured person] arising from the events and occurrences as alleged herein, or from any loss or liability incurred by defendant with regard to such injury or damages.

10. Plaintiff desires a judicial determination of the respective rights and duties of plaintiff and defendant under their written agreement and a declaration that plaintiff is not obligated to indemnify defendant in any manner or in any amountwith regard to the events injuries, damages, loss, and liability as herein alleged.

11. Such a declaration is necessary and appropriate at this time in order that plaintiff may ascertain his/her/its rights and duties with respect to the _____ [defense of the action pending against defendant or appeal of the judgment rendered against defendant in the aforementioned action] and the payment of any damages, judgment, or other awards that may be recovered against defendant as a result of _____ [the action or an affirmation of the judgment on appeal].

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendant as follows:

1. For a declaration that the written agreement between plaintiff and defendant does not obligate plaintiff to indemnify defendant against any and all damages, judgment, or other awards that may be recovered against defendant as a result of _____[the action or an affirmation of the judgment on appeal];

2. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

3. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[Verification, if desired. See § 300.171].

[2] Use of Form

This form is for use as a complaint for declaratory relief with regard to the scope of an express indemnity agreement. The complaint is for use by an express indemnitor who contends that there is no duty of indemnity with regard to the underlying liability because the agreement is "general" and does not expressly provide for indemnity if the indemnitee's own "active" negligence is a cause of the loss.

This form may be adapted for used by the indemnitee under the agreement by omitting the allegation that the indemnitee's own negligence caused the liability (Paragraph 7). This allegation may be replaced by an allegation that any negligence of the indemnitee that might have been a cause of the liability was only "passive" negligence. For discussion, see §§ 300.02[5][a] and 300.02[5][b].

The complaint seeks declaratory relief and permits the parties to adjudicate their indemnity rights under an express indemnity agreement with regard to loss or liability that the indemnitee may incur as the result of an action pending against the indemnitee. It may be filed in an independent action [Indenco, Inc. v. Evans (1962) 201 Cal. App. 2d 369, 374, 20 Cal. Rptr. 90] or, with appropriate adaptations, it may be filed as a cross complaint in the action in which the indemnitee is a defendant [see Roylance v. Doelger (1962) 57 Cal. 2d 255, 259-262, 19 Cal. Rptr. 7, 368 P.2d 535 ; see also § 300.15]. For an example of a cross complaint for declaratory relief to determine indemnity rights, see § 300.190 (cross complaint for declaratory relief for comparative indemnity). For additional forms and discussion, see Ch. 123, Complaints and Cross Complaints .

This complaint may not be used once the indemnitee has incurred the liability or sustained the loss for which he or she seeks recovery from the indemnitor. Once the indemnitee's right to recover has accrued, the indemnitee must bring an ordinary action for indemnity rather than an action for declaratory relief [see Mascarin Prof'l Pharmacy v. Hart (1970) 13 Cal. App. 3d 462, 465, 91 Cal. Rptr. 560] .

[3] Allegations

The complaint alleges:

- The indemnity agreement between plaintiff and defendant (Paragraph 4).

- The events or occurrence giving rise to a potential loss or liability for which the defendant-indemnitee may be liable (Paragraphs 5, 6).

- The defendant-indemnitee's contention that the loss or liability is within the scope of the indemnity agreement and its demand that the plaintiff-indemnitor perform under the agreement (Paragraph 7).

- The conduct of the defendant-indemnitee that constitutes its own active negligence and removes the liability or loss from the scope of the indemnity agreement (Paragraph 8).

- An actual controversy between plaintiff and defendant regarding their respective rights and duties under the indemnity agreement (Paragraph 9).

- Plaintiff's request for a judicial determination of rights and duties of indemnity under the agreement and the facts (Paragraph 10).

- The necessity and propriety of such a determination (Paragraph 11).

Plaintiff alleges:

1. Plaintiff is, and at all times herein mentioned was, _____[specify, e.g., a corporation duly organized, existing, and authorized to transact a surety insurance business under the laws of the State of California].

[2. Allege capacity and domicile of defendant. See § 300.171,Paragraph 2.]

3. Defendants DOE 1 through DOE _____, inclusive, are sued herein under fictitious names. Their true names and capacities are unknown to plaintiff. When their true names and capacities are ascertained, plaintiff will amend this complaint by inserting their true names and capacities herein. (Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges, that each of the fictitiously named defendants is responsible in some manner for the occurrences herein alleged, and that plaintiff's damages as herein alleged were proximately caused by those defendants.)

4. On or about _____ [date], _____ [name of principal under suretyship arrangement] and _____ [name of obligee under suretyship arrangement] entered into a written contract under which _____ [name of principal] agreed to _____ [specify nature of contract, e.g., construct a home on the premises of _____ (name of obligee) at _____ (specify location) for the sum of $_____.] A copy of this contract is attached as Exhibit A and made a part hereof.

5. On or about _____ [date], at the request of _____ [name of principal] and defendant _____ [name of third-party indemnitor], plaintiff executed and delivered to _____ [name of obligee] a bond guaranteeing the performance of _____ [name of principal] under the terms of the contract and a bond guaranteeing the payment of all persons supplying labor and materials to _____ [name of principal] during performance. Copies of these bonds are attached as Exhibits B and C and made a part hereof. In consideration for executing these bonds, plaintiff received, among other things, the written promise of defendant _____[name of third-party indemnitor] to indemnify and hold plaintiff harmless from any and all loss, claim, and expense that plaintiff might sustain as a consequence of executing the bonds; a copy of this promise is attached as Exhibit D and made a part hereof.

6. Thereafter, _____ [name of principal] began to perform his/her/its contract with _____ [name of obligee] but by _____ [date], _____ [specify act in default, e.g., was unable to continue] and defaulted on his/her/its obligation under the contract. Plaintiff consequently became bound, under the terms of his/her/its performance bond, to _____ [specify nature of surety's performance, e.g., complete the construction of a home on the premises of _____ (name of obligee)]. In performing these acts, plaintiff was compelled to, and did, pay the sum of $_____.

7. Prior to the default of _____ [name of principal], numerous persons had supplied _____ [name of principal] with materials and labor for the performance of the contract, but _____ [name of principal] had paid none of them. As a result, these persons asserted claims and demands for payment against plaintiff under the terms of his/her/its labor and materials bond, and plaintiff, recognizing his/her/its liability therefor, was compelled to employ counsel and incur costs in investigating, processing, and otherwise settling their claims and demands, sustaining losses in the amount of $_____.

8. Plaintiff has performed all conditions to be performed on his/her/its part under the performance bond and labor and materials bond and under the agreement with defendant [, except _____ (specify unperformed condition(s) and excuse(s) for nonperformance)].

9. By reason of the foregoing, plaintiff is entitled to indemnity from defendant _____ [name of third-party indemnitor] in the sum of $_____, but defendant has not paid any part of this sum to plaintiff.

[2] Use of Form

This form is for use by a surety to recover express indemnity from a third-party indemnitor who has agreed to indemnify the surety for loss incurred due to the nonperformance of a principal under a labor and materials bond. Although this form is for use by a surety, it is not based on the undertaking itself, but rather on an indemnity agreement that is collateral to the undertaking. For discussion of the distinction between suretyship and indemnity, see § 300.32[1]

In addition to a cause of action against the third-party indemnitor, the surety's complaint for indemnity also may incorporate a cause of action against theprincipal debtor under the suretyship arrangement, based either on an indemnity agreement that the principal executed in consideration for the suretyship or on the surety's equitable right, codified under Civ. Code §§ 2779 and 2847, to reimbursement from the principal for the amounts that the surety has been compelled to pay as a result of the principal's default [see Pacific Indem. Co. v. Harper (1939) 14 Cal. 2d 379, 386, 94 P.2d 586] . For a form of complaint by a surety against a principal for reimbursement, see Ch. 538, Suretyship, Bonds, and Undertakings .

[3] Allegations

The complaint alleges: (1) plaintiff's execution of suretyship bonds in conjunction with a principal contract (Paragraph 4) and in consideration for defendant's agreement to indemnify plaintiff against loss incurred as a surety (Paragraph 5); (2) the amounts that plaintiff is compelled to sustain as surety on the principal debtor's default (Paragraphs 6, 7); (3) plaintiff's performance of all conditions precedent under the suretyship agreement and under the indemnity agreement with defendant (Paragraph 8); (4) defendant's noncompliance with its indemnity agreement (Paragraph 9); and (5) the amount of attorney's fees and costs that plaintiff has incurred in prosecuting the indemnity action (Paragraph 10).

1. Cross defendant _____ [name], an individual, is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a resident of _____County, California [or allege other capacity and residence].

2. Cross complainant is ignorant of the true names and capacities of cross defendants sued herein as DOES 1-_____, inclusive, and therefore sues these defendants by such fictitious names. Cross complainant will amend this complaint to allege their true names and capacities when ascertained. Cross complainant is informed and believes and thereon alleges that, if cross complainant is liable to the plaintiff as alleged in the complaint in this action, each of the fictitiously named cross defendants is jointly or jointly and severally liable with cross complainant to the plaintiff for plaintiff's damages as set forth therein. Each reference in this cross complaint to "cross defendant," "cross defendants," or a specifically named cross defendant refers also to all cross defendants sued under fictitious names.

3. On or about _____ [date], plaintiff filed the complaint herein against cross complainant [and cross defendant(s)] seeking damages for _____ [state nature of damages, e.g., personal injuries] that plaintiff allegedly sustained as a result of _____ [summarize plaintiff's cause of action, e.g., cross complainant's alleged negligent operation of a motor vehicle].

4. If plaintiff sustained damages as alleged in his/her complaint, these damages were caused, entirely or in part, by cross defendants as set forth herein.

[In consecutively numbered paragraphs, set forth allegations sufficient to establish each cross defendant's liability to plaintiff, e.g.:]

5. At the time and place alleged in plaintiff's complaint, cross defendant _____ [name] owned and was operating _____ [year, make, and model of motor vehicle, e.g., a 1990 Honda Civic] automobile.

6. At that time and place, cross defendant _____ [name] was negligently operating his/her automobile so as to cause it to strike cross complainant's car from the rear, impelling it forward and causing it to strike plaintiff's car, thereby causing plaintiff's injuries as alleged in the complaint, if plaintiff has, in fact, been so injured.

[CONTINUE]

7. An actual controversy has arisen and now exists between cross complainant and cross defendant in that cross complainant contends, and cross defendant denies, the following:

a. That, as between cross complainant and cross defendant, responsibility, if any, for the damages claimed by plaintiff herein rests entirely or partially on cross defendant; and

b. That, as a result, cross defendant is obligated to partially or fully indemnify cross complainant for any sums that cross complainant may be compelled to pay as the result of any damages, judgment, or other awards recovered by plaintiff against cross complainant.

8. Cross complainant desires a judicial determination of the respective rights and duties of cross complainant and cross defendant with respect to the damages claimed in the complaint of plaintiff herein. In particular, cross complainant desires a declaration of the comparative liability of cross complainant and cross defendant for these damages, and a declaration of cross defendant's responsibility for comparative indemnity to cross complainant for any sums that cross complainant may be compelled to pay and for which cross defendant is determined responsible, entirely or in part.

9. Such a declaration is necessary and appropriate at this time in order that cross complainant may ascertain his/her rights and duties with respect to plaintiff's claim for damages. Furthermore, the claim of plaintiff and the claim of cross complainant arise out of the same transaction, and determination of both in one proceeding is necessary and appropriate in order to avoid the multiplicity of actions that would result if cross complainant is required now to defend against the claim of plaintiff and then bring a separate action against cross defendant for indemnification of sums that cross complainant may be compelled to pay as the result of any damages, judgment, or other awards recovered by plaintiff against cross complainant.

WHEREFORE, cross complainant prays judgment against cross defendant as follows:

1. For a judicial determination of the comparative fault of cross complainant and cross defendant for the damages claimed by plaintiff, if any are found to exist;

2. For a declaration of the amount that cross defendant is obligated to indemnify cross complainant if cross complainant is compelled to pay any sum as the result of any damages, judgment, or other awards recovered by plaintiff against cross complainant;

3. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

4. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

This form of cross complaint is for use by a defendant in an action for damages to adjudicate his or her right to comparative indemnity from a codefendant or a new party for any damages that the defendant may be compelled to pay to the plaintiff as the result of any damages, judgment, or other awards recovered by plaintiff [see American Motorcycle Ass'n v. Superior Court (1978) 20 Cal. 3d 578, 146 Cal. Rptr. 182, 578 P.2d 899] . Alternatively, the defendant may pay the plaintiff's claim, in whole or in part, and then bring an independent action for comparative indemnity [E. L. White, Inc. v. City of Huntington Beach (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 497, 506, 146 Cal. Rptr. 614, 579 P.2d 505] . Once the defendant is actually compelled to pay the damages for which he or she seeks indemnity, declaratory relief is no longer available and the defendant must seek plenary relief in an ordinary action for indemnity [see Mascarin Prof'l Pharmacy v. Hart (1970) 13 Cal. App. 3d 462, 465, 91 Cal. Rptr. 560] .

This cross complaint may not be used if the damages for which indemnity is sought are covered by an express indemnity agreement between the party seeking indemnity and the party from whom indemnity is sought. In such a case, the indemnity action must be based on the indemnity agreement [Rossmoor Sanitation, Inc. v. Pylon, Inc. (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 622, 628, 119 Cal. Rptr. 449, 532 P.2d 97] , and the complaint in § 300.171, modified as a cross complaint, would be appropriate.

This cross complaint may be used if the cross complainant seeks either a partial or a total shift of liability to the cross defendant. There is only a single comparative indemnity doctrine in California, providing for apportionment of liability on a comparative fault basis as the facts and equities of the case may require. Such an apportionment may involve total comparative indemnity in an appropriate case [see Far W. Fin. Corp. v. D & S Co. (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 796, 808, 251 Cal. Rptr. 202, 760 P.2d 399] .

[3] Allegations

This cross complaint first contains general allegations of capacity, residence, and fictitiously named defendants (Paragraphs 1, 2). Then, the plaintiff's cause of action against cross complainant (and cross defendant) is alleged (Paragraph 3). Next, there is a general statement that if plaintiff was damaged as alleged in the complaint, the damages were caused, wholly or in part, by the cross defendant, in other words, that the parties to the cross complaint may be cotortfeasors with regard to plaintiff (Paragraph 4).

Sample paragraphs then follow in which the nature of the cross defendant's liability to the plaintiff is alleged (Paragraphs 5, 6). Such paragraphs may be omitted if all cross defendants were sued by the plaintiff in his or her complaint and cross defendant has no additional facts or theories of recovery to plead other than those alleged by the plaintiff. However, a cross complainant for comparative indemnity should state sufficient facts to plead a cause of action against any new party to the litigation, establishing the new party's liability to the plaintiff. Further, a defendant who is dismissed from plaintiff's action is not necessarily entitled to dismissal from a cross action for comparative indemnity if the cross complaint pleads a different theory of recovery than that alleged by the plaintiff in the complaint [see Frank v. State of California (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 488, 491-495, 252 Cal. Rptr. 410 ; see also § 300.65]. Therefore, any theories of recovery against a tortfeasor that are not alleged by the plaintiff should be alleged in the cross complaint.

Finally, this cross complaint alleges the elements of a cause of action for declaratory relief (Paragraphs 7-9). For further consideration of complaints for declaratory relief, see Ch. 182, Declaratory Relief .

[2] Use of Form

This form is the Judicial Council form for use as a cross complaint for apportionment of fault, indemnification, and declaratory relief [see Code Civ. Proc. § 425.12; Cal. Judicial Council Form PLD-PI-002]. This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

If this form is used to cross complain against a new party, or if the cross complainant wishes to allege theories of recovery against a named defendant that were not alleged by the plaintiff, allegations such as those set forth in Paragraphs 5 and 6 of the form in § 300.190 should be attached.

[3] Filling Out Form

This form is filled out to demonstrate the simple situation of a cross complaint for comparative indemnity between two individual tortfeasors, both of whom are already defendants in the plaintiff's action. By filing such a minimal cross complaint, the cross complainant indicates that he has nothing more to allege with regard to the cross defendant's liability beyond the facts alleged by the plaintiff in the original complaint.

The printed matter of this form asserts three possible causes of action, for "indemnification," "apportionment of fault," and "declaratory relief." The indemnification cause of action is for use to allege a right to total indemnity because the cross complainant is only derivatively liable for the acts of the cross defendant (Paragraph 6). The apportionment-of-fault cause of action is for use to allege a right to partial indemnity under principles of comparative fault (Paragraph 7).

Paragraph 8, the cause of action for declaratory relief, should be included in all cases. The proper form of a cross complaint for comparative indemnity is one for declaratory relief [see Valley Circle Estates v. VTN Consol., Inc. (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 604, 612, 189 Cal. Rptr. 871, 659 P.2d 1160] .

Plaintiff alleges:

1. Plaintiff is, and at all times herein mentioned was, _____[specify capacity and domicile, e.g., a partnership with its principal place of business in _____ (city), _____ County, California, and it has filed and published the fictitious business name statement as required by Sections 17910 through 17917 of the Business and Professions Code].

2. Defendant is, and at all times herein mentioned was, _____ [specify capacity and domicile, e.g., a corporation, organized and existing under the laws of the State of California with its principal place of business in _____ (city), _____ County, California].

3. Defendants DOE 1 through DOE _____, inclusive, are sued herein under fictitious names. Their true names and capacities are unknown to plaintiff. When their true names and capacities are ascertained, plaintiff will amend this complaint by inserting their true names and capacities herein. Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that each of the fictitiously named defendants is responsible in some manner for the occurrences herein alleged and that plaintiff's damages as herein alleged were proximately caused by those defendants. Each reference in this complaint to "defendant," "defendants," or a specifically named defendant refers also to all defendants sued under fictitious names.

4. _____ [Allege contractual relationship between plaintiff and defendant, e.g., On or about _____ (date), plaintiff and defendant entered into a written contract whereby defendant agreed to supply plaintiff with certain steel parts of stated specifications at a cost of $_____ for a fence that plaintiff had undertaken to construct for _____ (name of third person). A copy ofthis contract is attached hereto as Exhibit A and made a part hereof.]

5. _____ [Allege defendant's improper performance of contract and resulting damage, e.g., Defendant failed to deliver the steel parts of the required specifications, and as a result, plaintiff was unable to perform the fencing work for _____ (name of third person) within the time required.]

6. On or about _____ [date], _____ [name of third person sustaining damages as result of defendant's improper contract performance] brought an action against plaintiff herein in _____ Court, _____ County, California, Action No. _____, to recover damages for _____ [describe nature of claim, e.g., plaintiff's failure to perform his/her/its agreement to construct a fence within the time required]. _____[Either A trial was had in this action, and despite a good faith and vigorous defense by plaintiff, a judgment was entered against plaintiff on _____ (date) for the sum of $_____ plus costs in the sum of $_____ or Recognizing his/her/its liability for this claim, plaintiff agreed to pay the reasonable sum of $_____ to _____ (name of third person sustaining damages) in settlement of the action]. By reason of this _____ [judgment or settlement], on or about _____ [date], plaintiff was compelled to, and did, pay the sum of $_____ to _____ [name of third person sustaining damages].

7. The damages recovered by _____ [name of third person damaged by defendant's improper contract performance] against plaintiff were caused primarily and ultimately by defendant's breach of his/her/its contract with plaintiff in _____ [specify nature of defendant's breach, e.g., failing to deliver steel parts of the proper specifications]. Plaintiff's liability for these damages arose, not as a result of any actual fault on his/her/its part, but solely by operation of law, arising from [state constructive, imputed, or passive basis of plaintiff's liability, e.g., defendant's breach that rendered plaintiff unable to perform his/her/its agreement with _____ (name of third person)].

[8. On or about _____ (date), plaintiff gave written notice to defendant of the action for damages commenced by _____ (name of third person damaged by defendant's breach) against plaintiff, requesting the defense of the action by defendant and indicating defendant's primary responsibility for the damages and resultant obligation to indemnify plaintiff for any loss that plaintiff might sustain as a result of the action. A copy of this notice is attached hereto as Exhibit B and made a part hereof. (Nevertheless, defendant failed to undertake the defense of the action and refused to indemnify plaintiff for any loss resulting from the action.)]

[9. If defendant did not defend action against plaintiff, allege attorney's fees and costs expended by plaintiff in defending or settling action. See § 300.171, Paragraph 9.]

10. By reason of the foregoing, plaintiff is entitled to indemnity from defendant in the sum of $_____, but defendant has not paid any part of this sum to plaintiff.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment as follows:

1. For the sum of $_____ as indemnity for the _____ [loss or liability] incurred as alleged above;

[2. For attorney's fees and costs incurred in defending and resolving the claim of _____ (name of injured claimant) in the sum of $_____;]

3. For interest on the sum of $_____ [total of amounts subject to indemnity under agreement] from _____[date];

4. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

_____ [signature]
Attorney for Plaintiff

[Verification, if desired. See § 300.171.]

[2] Use of Form

This form is for use as a complaint to allege a right to total indemnity implied from a contract not specifically providing for a right of indemnity [see Bay Dev., Ltd. v. Superior Court (1990) 50 Cal. 3d 1012, 1029, 269 Cal. Rptr. 720, 791 P.2d 290] . For discussion of the law on which this form is based, see § 300.61[5].

This form may be adapted for use as a cross complaint for declaratory relief to establish a right of implied contractual indemnity by omitting the allegations that the indemnitee (defendant and cross complainant) has already incurred liability and paid the third party (Paragraphs 6 and 7). In their place, the indemnitee should allege that, because of the contractual breach of the indemnitor (cross defendant), the indemnitee may incur liability to a third party in the underlying action. For a form of cross complaint seeking declaratory relief with respect to a right of comparative indemnity, see § 300.190.

This complaint may not be used if the damages for which indemnity is sought are covered by an express indemnity agreement between the indemnitor and indemnitee. In such a case, the indemnity action must be based on the indemnity agreement [Rossmoor Sanitation, Inc. v. Pylon, Inc. (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 622, 628, 119 Cal. Rptr. 449, 532 P.2d 97] , and the complaint set forth in see § 300.171 would be appropriate.

[3] Allegations

The complaint alleges: (1) a contract between plaintiff and defendant (Para graph 4); (2) defendant's breach or improper performance of the contract resulting in damages to a third person (Paragraph 5); (3) plaintiff's legal liability for the damages and the amount of loss resulting from the damages (Paragraphs 6, 9); (4) the imputed, constructive, or passive basis of plaintiff's liability for the damages (Paragraph 7); and (5) defendant's failure to indemnify plaintiff (Paragrap h 10).

The complaint also alleges defendant's notice of and opportunity to defend the action against plaintiff that gave rise to plaintiff's indemnity action (Paragraph 8). This allegation is not essential to the complaint because notice and opportunity to defend are not conditions precedent to an action for indemnity [Sunset-Sternau Food Co. v. Bonzi

(1964) 60 Cal. 2d 834, 844, 36 Cal. Rptr. 741, 389 P.2d 133] . However, if notice and opportunity to defend were given, the allegation should be included because the the indemnitee may then be entitled to recover its attorney's fees incurred in defending the principal action [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.6; see also § 300.71[1]]. For a form of such a notice, see § 300.170.

[1] FORM Allegations in Complaint for Implied Contractual Indemnity--By Automobile Owner Against Automobile Repairer--Owner's Liability for Injuries Resulting From Defective Automobile Repairs

1. At all times herein mentioned, defendant _____[name] operated a garage for the servicing and repair of motor vehicles of the general public at _____ [address], _____ [city], _____ County, California.

2. On or about _____ [date], plaintiff brought a certain _____ [specify year, make, and model] automobile owned by plaintiff to defendant's garage for _____ [describe nature of repairs, e.g., the repair and adjustment of its brakes], and defendant undertook this work for a consideration, which plaintiff agreed to pay.

3. Defendant so negligently and carelessly made these repairs on plaintiff's automobile that _____ [specify defective condition resulting from repair, e.g., the brakes of the automobile were completely incapable of stopping the automobile], and operation of the automobile was dangerous to life and limb. As a proximate result of this negligence, _____ [describe accident and injuries caused by defective repairs, e.g., while plaintiff was operating the automobile on or about _____ (date), along and on _____ (name of street), near _____ (specify intersecting street) in _____ (city), _____ County, California, plaintiff attempted to stop the automobile, but the brakes failed to function, and the automobile violently collided with another vehicle, causing serious personal injuries to its driver].

[4. Allege plaintiff's liability for and payment of damages to injured person. See § 300.192, Paragraph 5.]

5. The damages sustained by _____ [name of injured person] were caused entirely by the negligence of defendant in that he/she _____ [allege defective repair work, e.g., improperly adjusted the brakes on plaintiff's automobile, leaving them in an inadequate condition for the safe operation of the automobile]. Plaintiff's liability for these damages arose solely from plaintiff's failure to perform a nondelegable duty imposed by law on automobile owners to maintain their automobiles in safe working order and not from any actual wrongdoing on plaintiff's part.

[2] Use of Form

This form of allegations may be used in a complaint for implied contractual indemnity by an automobile owner to recover indemnity from an automobile repairer for damages that the owner was legally compelled to pay to a third personwho sustained injury during an accident caused by a defect in the owner's automobile that the repairer had negligently created while performing work on the automobile for the owner. Attorney for Plaintiff _____ [name]

MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES

[Add memorandum of points and authorities supporting motion]

[2] Use of Form

This form is for use by counsel for the successful plaintiff or cross plaintiff in an action for comparative indemnity to notice a motion for an award under Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.6 of attorney's fees incurred in defending or prosecuting a third-party action. To be entitled to an award of attorney's fees under the statute, the indemnitee must have been without fault [Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.6]. Thus, this form may not be used by a party who has been awarded comparative indemnity on any allocation of fault other than 100/0 percent [see Far W. Fin. Corp. v. D & S Co. (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 796, 808, 251 Cal. Rptr. 202, 760 P.2d 399] . For further discussion of Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.6, see § 300.71[1].

[3] Supporting Papers

A declaration should be filed in support of this notice of motion. The declaration should set forth facts showing that defendant or cross defendant was properly notified of a demand by plaintiff or cross plaintiff to bring the action or provide the defense and did not do so. It should then set forth the resolution of the moving party's indemnity claim in such a way as to indicate that the indemnitee was without fault with regard to the liability to the third party. The amount of attorney's fees required to bring or defend the underlying action should also be established. For a general form of declaration, see Ch. 15, Affidavits, Certificates, and Declarations , and Ch. 372, Motions and Orders .

The notice of motion, if made before trial, would be subject to the Civil Law and Motion Rules (Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1100 et seq.) [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1100, 3.1103(a)(1)], and specifically to the format requirements of Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1110, and to the requirement that the notice of motion be accompanied by a memorandum of points and authorities [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a)], complying with the format requirements set out in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(b)-(d). However, regardless of whether the Civil Law and Motion Rules would otherwise apply, the better practice is to accompany the notice of motion with supporting points and authorities to ensure that all applicable law is before the court when it rules on the motion. A sample outline form of memorandum has been provided in this form for that purpose. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 1005, any supporting points and authorities would have to accompany the notice of motion. For discussion and forms, see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities . For forms of memoranda of points and authorities for use on the motion, see California Points and Authorities, Ch. 115, Indemnity and Contribution .

MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES

[Add memorandum of points and authorities supporting motion]

[2] Use of Form

This form of notice of motion is for use by a plaintiff or a settling defendant to secure a court determination that a settlement entered into by the plaintiff and oneor more alleged tortfeasors was made in good faith [see Code Civ. Proc. § 877.6(a)]. Optional language is provided to seek dismissal of a pleading or a portion of a pleading [see Cal. Rules of Court, Rule 3.1382]. The notice of motion must list each party and pleading or portion of each pleading affected by the settlement, and the date on which the affected pleading was filed [Cal. Rules of Court, Rule 3.1382].

A party opposing the settlement may also move for a determination that a settlement is not in good faith [Code Civ. Proc. § 877.6(a)]. This form may be adapted for use by an opposing party by casting the request for a good faith determination as seeking a determination that the settlement was not made in good faith.

If cross complaints have been filed in the action, it should be reflected in the title of the case in the caption of the form. For appropriate forms, see Ch. 108, Captions and Introductions .

A motion made by a proponent of a settlement must set forth the ground of good faith, accompanied by a declaration that sets forth a brief background of the case [see City of Grand Terrace v. Superior Court (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 1251, 1260-1261, 238 Cal. Rptr. 119] . The declaration set forth above includes a paragraph, which may be expanded to several paragraphs if necessary, for this purpose. The notice of motion must also include matter specified in Cal. Rules of Court, Rule 3.1382.

[3] Service and Filing of Papers

Notice of a motion to confirm a good faith settlement must be given in the manner provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b) [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 877.6(a), 1005(a)(5)]. Under this statute, all moving and supporting papers must be served and filed at least 16 court days before the time appointed for the hearing. In addition, if the notice is served by mail, the required 16-day period of notice before the time appointed for the hearing is increased by 5 days if the place of mailing and the place of address are within the State of California, by 10 days if either the place of mailing or the place of address is outside the State of California but within the United States, and by 20 days if either the place of mailing or the place of address is outside the United States, and if the notice is served by facsimile transmission, express mail, or another method of delivery providing for overnight delivery, the required 16-day period of notice before the time appointed for the hearing will be increased by two calendar days [Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b)]. On a showing of good cause, the court may shorten the time for giving the required notice to permit the determination of the issue to be made before the commencement of the trial of the action, or before the verdict or judgment if settlement is made after the trial has commenced [Code Civ. Proc. § 877.6(a); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b) (court or judge may prescribe shorter time)].

Opposing papers must be filed and served at least nine court days, and reply papers at least five court days, before the time appointed for the hearing. All papers opposing a motion and all reply papers must be served by personal delivery, facsimile transmission, express mail or other means reasonably calculated to ensure delivery to other parties not later than the close of the next business day after the time the opposition or reply papers, as applicable, are filed [Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b), (c)]. The provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 1013(a), extending the time within which a right may be exercised or an act may be done when service is made by mail, do not apply [Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b)].

[4] Supporting Papers

The good faith issue may be determined by the court on the basis of affidavits (or declarations under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) served with the "notice of hearing," and any counter-affidavits (counter-declarations) filed in response, or the court may, in its discretion, receive other evidence at the hearing [Code Civ. Proc. § 877.6(b); see City of Grand Terrace v. Superior Court (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 1251, 1261, 238 Cal. Rptr. 119 (requiring supporting declarations in support of motion)]. For forms of supporting and opposing declarations, see §§ 300.198 and 300.199. For the contents of the supporting declarations and counter-declarations, see § 300.73[7][f].

The notice of motion, if made before trial, would be subject to the Civil Law and Motion Rules (Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1100 et seq.) [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1100, 3.1103(a)(1)], and specifically to the format requirements of Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1110, and to the requirement that the notice of motion be accompanied by a memorandum of points and authorities [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a)], complying with the format requirements set out in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(b)-(d). However, regardless of whether the Civil Law and Motion Rules would otherwise apply, the better practice is to accompany the notice of motion with supporting points and authorities to ensure that all applicable law is before the court when it rules on the motion. A sample outline form of memorandum has been provided in this form for that purpose. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 1005, any supporting points and authorities would have to accompany the notice of motion. For discussion and forms, see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities . For forms of memoranda of points and authorities for use on the motion, see California Points and Authorities, Ch. 115, Indemnity and Contribution (Matthew Bender).

To all parties and to their attorneys of record:

Plaintiff _____ [name] and Defendant _____ [name] hereby apply for an order of this court determining that a settlement agreement entered into between them on _____ [date] meets the standards for good faith set forth by the California Supreme Court in Tech-Bilt, Inc. v. Woodward-Clyde & Assocs. (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 488 , and is in good faith within the meaning of Code of Civil Procedure Sections 877 and 877.6. ORDER

The court finds that all notices required by law have been given. _____ [Either Twenty-five days have passed since notice of the above application was mailed to or Twenty days have passed since notice of the above application was personally served on] all of the parties to this action, and no notice of motion for hearing on the application has been filed with this court. The court therefore DETERMINES AND RULES that the settlement between _____ [name of plaintiff] and _____ [name of defendant] entered into on _____[date] is in good faith within the meaning of Code of CivilProcedure Sections 877 and 877.6, and shall have the effect under law as provided by those Sections.

Judge of the_____ Court

[2] Use of Form

This application and proposed order is for use by a plaintiff or a settling defendant to secure a court determination that a settlement entered into by the plaintiff and one or more alleged tortfeasors was made in good faith [see Code Civ. Proc. § 877.6(a)]. In lieu of noticing a hearing for a good faith determination [see § 300.196], a settling party may submit this application and proposed order and give notice to all other parties. The burden of proceeding then shifts to any nonsettling party who objects to the settlement [see § 300.197[4]]. This procedure may not be used if the settlement involves a confidentiality agreement regarding the case or the terms of the settlement [Code Civ. Proc. § 877.6(a)(2)]. For further discussion, see § 300.73[7][a].

[3] Contents of Application and Order

The application must indicate the settling parties, and the basis, terms, and amount of the settlement [Code Civ. Proc. § 877.6(a)(2)]. All nonmonetary consideration for the settlement should be disclosed [see Arbuthnot v. Relocation Realty Serv. Corp. (1991) 227 Cal. App. 3d 682, 689-690, 278 Cal. Rptr. 135 ; see also § 300.73[3]].

The easiest way to meet the disclosure requirement is to attach the settlement agreement as an exhibit to the application, and incorporate it by reference. Failure to attach the agreement might raise the issue of whether there are confidential aspects to the settlement, which would make use of the application procedure inappropriate [see Code Civ. Proc. § 877.6(a)(2)].

The form and content of orders is often the subject of local court rules. These rules should be consulted before submitting the proposed order under Code Civ. Proc. § 877.6(a)(2).

[4] Service of Notice and Response

Notice of settlement, the application, and the proposed order must be given by certified mail, return receipt requested. Proof of service must be filed with the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 877.6(a)(2)].

Within 25 days of the mailing after the notice, application, and proposed order, or within 20 days after personal service, a nonsettling party may file a notice of motion to contest the good faith of the settlement. If no such motion is filed, the court may approve the settlement [Code Civ. Proc. § 877.6(a)(2)]. The forms in*§ 300.196* may be adapted for use by a nonsettling party to notice a motion to oppose confirmation of a settlement as in good faith.

[2] Use of Form

This form of declaration is for use by the settling party for a determination by the court that the settlement was made in good faith [see Code Civ. Proc. § 877.6(b)]. For a form of a declaration opposing the good faith determination, see § 300.199.

Supporting declarations are required only if the good faith of the settlement is to be determined at a hearing. A hearing may either be noticed by a settling party [see Code Civ. Proc. § 877.6(a)(1); see also § 300.196] or by a nonsettling party after receipt of the settling parties' notice of application for an order determining that the settlement is in good faith [see Code Civ. Proc. § 877.6(a)(2); see also § 300.197]. If the settling parties proceed by application and no hearing is noticed by the nonsettling parties, the court may find the settlement to be in good faith without further evidentiary showing [see Code Civ. Proc. § 877.6(a)(2)].

[3] Showing Required

If a motion for a determination that a settlement is made in good faith under Code Civ. Proc. § 877.6 is made by a proponent of the settlement, the supporting declaration need show only that a settlement has been made, the amount of the settlement, a brief background of the case, and, possibly, the basis of the settlement [see City of Grand Terrace v. Superior Court (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 1251, 1260-1261, 238 Cal. Rptr. 119] . If the determination is contested by a nonsettling tortfeasor who files counter-declarations showing the settlement was not made in good faith, the proponent may file responsive counter-declarations to negate that showing [see City of Grand Terrace v. Superior Court (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 1251, 1262, 238 Cal. Rptr. 119 ; see also § 300.73[7]].

5. _____ [Set forth plaintiff's allegations and theories of liability against nonsettling defendant, e.g., As further shown by the complaint in this matter, plaintiff sued _____ (name of nonsettling defendant) under a theory of negligent maintenance of a traffic signal controlling the intersection where the accident giving rise to plaintiff's injuries occurred, alleging that the signal was not functioning properly at the time of the accident.]

6. _____ [Set forth facts showing settling defendant's high degree of culpability, e.g., As shown by the settling defendant's deposition, a copy of the pertinent portion of which is attached hereto as Exhibit A and made a part hereof, immediately before entering the intersection, the settling defendant was distracted by the presence of a police patrol car that he/she thought might stop him/her because he/she had not buckled his/her safety belt, and, at the time he entered the intersection, he/she was trying to "buckle up" and had turned in his/her seat to straighten out the belt, which had become twisted, thereby becoming inattentive to his/her driving and to the traffic control lights.]

7. _____ [Set forth facts showing nonsettling defendant's low degree of culpability, e.g., As shown by the deposition of _____ (name of deponent), a copy of the pertinent portion of which is attached hereto as Exhibit B and made a part hereof, the traffic control signal in question was, in fact, working properly immediately prior to the accident.]

8. _____ [Set forth facts showing extent of plaintiff's injuries, e.g., As shown by the deposition of Dr. _____ (name), a copy of the pertinent portion of which is attached hereto as Exhibit C and made a part hereof, plaintiff has already incurred economic damages of $_____ and is expected to have permanent injuries and disability as a result of the accident giving rise to his cause of action.]

9. Based on the extent of plaintiff's economic damages and projected permanent injuries, and on my experience with the defense of many other actions for personal injury, it is my professional opinion that, assuming that plaintiff will prove his/her case, his/her total damages could run from a low of $_____ to a high of $_____.

10. The amount of the settlement is _____ [less than or only] _____ percent of the low figure.

[11. Although the settlement was in an amount equal to the settling defendant's automobile insurance policy limit, the plaintiff has made no investigation of the settling defendant's personal finances. Declarant is informed and believes and thereon declares that defendant is a person of substantial means, is the owner of substantial property, and is well able to have settled from his/her personal assets in an amount more nearly approximating his proportionate share of liability.]

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

[2] Use of Form

This form of declaration is for use by a nonsettling defendant in opposition to a judicial determination that another defendant's settlement with plaintiff was made in good faith [see Code Civ. Proc. § 877.6]. For a form of a declaration supporting the good faith determination, see § 300.198.

This form may be used in opposition to a settling party's noticed motion for an order determining the settlement to be in good faith [see Code Civ. Proc. § 877.6(a)(1); see also § 300.196]. It may also be used in support of the declarant's noticed motion for an order denying a good faith determination [see Code Civ. Proc. § 877.6(a)(2); see also § 300.197]. If a nonsettling party is served with a notice of settlement, application, and proposed order determining the settlement to be in good faith, it is insufficient to merely file this declaration. The party must notice a hearing on the application within 25 days after the date of mailing or within 20 days after personal service [see Code Civ. Proc. § 877.6(a)(2)].

The fact situation depicted is illustrative only. For the factors to be considered in determining whether the settlement was made in good faith, see § 300.73[5][b].

[3] Evidence

In a contested setting, the trial court's consideration of the settlement agreement and its relationship to the entire litigation must proceed on a sufficient evidentiary basis to enable the court to consider and evaluate the various aspects of the settlement. Because (1) a rough approximation of the settling defendant's proportionate liability, (2) consideration of all other defendants' proportionate liability, and (3) consideration of all other factors that might affect the fairness of the settlement with respect to the nonsettling defendants are required, the affidavits, declarations, or other evidence should provide the court with the facts necessary to evaluate the settlement in terms of the factors contemplated by Tech-Bilt, Inc. v. Woodward-Clyde & Assocs. (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 488, 213 Cal. Rptr. 256, 698 P.2d 159 [see § 300.73[5][b]]. Without the facts, it is impossible for a court in a contested hearing to exercise its discretion in an appropriate fashion [City of Grand Terrace v. Superior Court (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 1251, 1263, 238 Cal. Rptr. 119] .

The burden of proving lack of good faith is on the party asserting it [Code Civ. Proc. § 877.6(d); see § 300.73[7][e]]. Consequently, the supporting declaration or affidavit should set forth evidentiary facts generated by discovery, not merely the declarant's conclusions about what is and what is not good faith [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2002(1), 2003, 2009, 2015.5; Evid. Code § 702]. Argument as to why the amount of the settlement is disproportionate to the settling defendant's probable comparative liability should be set forth in the accompanying memorandum of points and authorities.

This form sets forth: the facts of the settlement (Paragraph 2); the basic allegations of the complaint (Paragraph 3); the specific allegations of the complaint as to the settling defendant (Paragraph 4); the evidence showing a high degree of culpability of the settling defendant (Paragraph 5); the specific allegations of the complaint as to the nonsettling defendant (Paragraph 6); the evidence showing a low degree of culpability of the nonsettling defendant (Paragraph 7); the evidence showing the extent of the plaintiff's injuries (Paragraph 8); the declarant's conclusion, based on experience as an attorney, of the potential range of plaintiff's total damages (Paragraph 9); the mathematical computation of the percent that the settlement bears to the low end of the range of damages (Paragraph 10); and an optional paragraph for use if the settlement is for insurance policy limits alleging insufficient investigation of the settling defendant's other assets from which the judgment could be satisfied (Paragraph 11).

In addition to the affidavits (declarations) and counter-affidavits (counter-declarations) submitted in support of and in opposition to the motion, the court may, in its discretion, receive other evidence at the time of the hearing [Code Civ. Proc. § 877.6(b)].

[2] Use of Form

This form is for use as an order of the trial court's determination whether asettlement was or was not entered into in good faith [see Code Civ. Proc. § 877.6]. It is for use after a noticed hearing to determine the good faith of the settlement, whether the hearing was noticed by a settling party or by a nonsettling party [see Code Civ. Proc. § 877.6(a)]. This form will probably be used after a contested hearing. However, the hearing may have been uncontested if it was required because the settlement included a confidentiality agreement [see Code Civ. Proc. § 877.6(a)(2)]. _____

TO THE HONORABLE COURT OF APPEAL OF THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA, _____ APPELLATE DISTRICT:

Petitioner alleges:

1. Petitioner _____ [name of nonsettling defendant] is the _____ [identify party, e.g., defendant and cross complainant] in an action pending in respondent court entitled _____ [name], Plaintiff, vs. _____ [names], Defendants, and _____ [name], Cross Complainant vs. _____ [name], Cross Defendant, Number _____.

2. Respondent is the Superior Court of the State of California for the County of _____.

3. Real parties in interest are the plaintiff _____[name] and _____ [name of settling defendant], _____ [identify party, e.g., a defendant and the cross defendant] in the action mentioned in Paragraph 1.

4. On or about _____ [date], real party _____ [name], as plaintiff in the action mentioned in Paragraph 1, filed a complaint for _____ [specify, e.g., damages for personal injuries] alleging that petitioner and real party _____ [name of settling defendant] were tortfeasors liable for the same tort that caused injury to plaintiff. A copy of the complaint is attached hereto as Exhibit A and made a part hereof.

5. Thereafter, on or about _____ [date], petitioner filed a cross complaint against real party _____ [name of settling defendant] for a declaration of rights of comparative indemnity as between them with regard to any damagesrecovered by plaintiff pursuant to the complaint. A copy of the cross complaint is attached hereto as Exhibit B and made a part hereof.

6. On or about _____ [date], real parties entered into an agreement with plaintiff by the terms of which agreed _____ [specify, e.g., to pay plaintiff the sum of $_____ in settlement of plaintiff's claim against him/her], and plaintiff agreed to dismiss with prejudice its action as to real party _____ [name of settling defendant].

7. Thereafter, on or about _____ [date], real party _____ [name of moving party] served and filed a notice of motion for a determination as to the good faith of the settlement, together with a supporting declaration under penalty of perjury. A copy of the notice and supporting declaration are attached hereto as Exhibits C and D, respectively, and made a part hereof.

8. Thereafter, petitioner filed a counterdeclaration under penalty of perjury in opposition to the above motion. A copy of this counterdeclaration is attached hereto as Exhibit E and made a part hereof.

9. The hearing was held on _____ [date], the Honorable _____ [name of judge], presiding.

10. The Court determined, on the basis of the supporting declaration and counterdeclaration filed [and _____ (specify any other evidence received at the hearing)], that the settlement was made in good faith. A copy of the court's order is attached hereto as Exhibit F and made a part hereof.

11. The Court abused its discretion in that _____ [specify, e.g., it refused to consider the factors set forth in the counterdeclarations and concluded that, because there was no showing of collusion or fraud between real parties, the settlement was ipso facto made in good faith].

12. The determination is contrary to law in that _____ [specify reasons why trial court's ruling was erroneous, e.g., the figure for which the settlement was made is not within the reasonable range of real party's proportional share of comparative liability for the plaintiff's injuries. The evidence indicates that plaintiff's damages exceed $_____; that the real party defendant's share of comparative fault is no less than _____ percent; and that, therefore, the minimum reasonable settlement amount of real party's liability should be $_____. The settlement amount is so grossly disproportionate to this amount as to be entirely "out of the ballpark" and inconsistent with the equitable objectives of the law].

13. Petitioner has no plain, speedy, and adequate remedy in the ordinary course of law, other than the relief sought in this petition, in that _____ [state specific facts showing absence of an adequate legal remedy such as appeal].

WHEREFORE, petitioner prays:

1. That the court issue an alternative writ of mandate commanding respondent court to vacate and set aside its order determining that the settlement was made in good faith and to enter its order determining that the settlement was not made in good faith, or to show cause before this court at a time specified by court order why it has not done so and why a peremptory writ should not issue;

2. That on the return of the alternative writ and the hearing of the petition, this court issue its peremptory writ of mandate to the same effect except for the order to show cause;

3. For costs of this proceeding; and

4. For such other and further relief as the court deems just and proper.

VERIFICATION

I, _____ [name], am the [attorney for the] petitioner in the above-entitled proceeding. I have read the foregoing petition and know the contents thereof. The same is true of my own knowledge, except as to those matters which are therein alleged on information and belief, and as to those matters, I believe it to be true.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

_____ [date]

CAUTION:

Proof of service on each respondent and real party in interest of a copy of a petition that seeks an alternative writ must accompany the petition when it is offered for filing unless, in its discretion and for good cause, the court grants the writ on ex parte application [Code Civ. Proc. § 1107; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.25(a)(2), 8.486(e); for a discussion of service of the petition, see Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition . The proof of service must name each party represented by each attorney served, and the attorney's telephone number [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.25(a), 8.486(e)(3)]. A petition accompanied by a defective proof of service shall be filed, but if a proper proof of service is not filed within five days, the court may strike the petition or impose a lesser sanction [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(e)(5)]. A petition for writ of mandate filed in a court of appeal must be accompanied by a memorandum [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(a)(5)].

In addition, if a writ petition to an appellate court seeks review of a trial court ruling, it must be accompanied by a record adequate to permit the review, including (1) copies of the order or judgment, (2) all documents and exhibits, (3) any other documents or portions of documents submitted to the trial court that are necessary for a complete understanding of the case and the ruling under review, and (4) a transcript of the oral proceedings that resulted in the ruling under review. In exigent circumstances, the petition may be filed without the listed documents if counsel files a declaration that explains the urgency and the circumstances making the documents unavailable and fairly summarizes their substance. If no transcript is available, counsel must include a declaration explaining why the transcript is unavailable and fairly summarizing the proceedings, or a declaration that the transcript has been ordered, the date it was ordered, and the date it is expected to be filed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(b)(1)-(3); see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(c) (format for documents and exhibits)].

[2] Use of Form

This form of petition for a writ of mandate is designed for filing in a court of appeal to review a superior court determination made under Code Civ. Proc. § 877.6 of the good faith issue of a settlement [Code Civ. Proc. § 877.6(e); see Shane v. Superior Court (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 1237, 1246-1247, 207 Cal. Rptr. 210] .

This form assumes that both tortfeasors were sued by plaintiff in the same action, but this is not required. For example, plaintiff may have sued only one of the tortfeasors and settled with the other. The form may be modified for use in such a case.

This form is designed for use by a nonsettling defendant, as petitioner, to challege a determination that the settlement was, if fact, in good faith. The settling defendant and the plaintiff are the real parties in interest. The form may be adapted for use by the settling parties to challenge a judicial determination that the settlement was not in good faith, in which case the nonsettling defendant is the real party in interest.

[3] Verification and Format Requirements

A petition for writ of mandate must be verified [Code Civ. Proc. § 1086; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(a)(4)]. A petition filed in a court of appeal must also have a red cover [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.40(b)]. The cover must contain the title of the case; the title, trial court number, and court of appeal number of the case; the names of the trial court and each participating trial judge; the name, address, telephone number, and California State Bar number of each attorney filing or joining in the writ; and the name of the party that each attorney on the writ represents [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.204(b)(10)]. For further discussion of the format requirements of a petition for writ of mandate filed in an appellate or a superior court, see Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition .

[4] Allegations

This petition for writ of mandate alleges the following: (1) the identity of the parties vis-a-vis the lower court action giving rise to the mandate proceeding (Paragraphs 1-3); (2) the filing in the lower court action of the plaintiff's complaint seeking damages against the defendants (Paragraph 4); (3) the filing of the cross complaint by one defendant against his or her codefendant for declaratory relief as to the right to comparative indemnity (Paragraph 5); (4) the out-of-court settlement of plaintiff's claim against the cross defendant (Paragraph 6); (5) the service and filing of a notice of hearing on the good faith issue of the settlement, the supporting paper, and the opposing papers (Paragraphs 7, 8); (6) the hearing and the trial court's ruling (Paragraphs 9, 10); (7) the ruling was an abuse of discretion and against the law (Paragraphs 11, 12); and (8) the lack of any remedy at law (Paragraph 13).

TO THE HONORABLE COURT OF APPEAL OF THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA, _____ APPELLATE DISTRICT:

Petitioner alleges:

[1. Status of petitioner in action. See § 300.201, Paragraph 1.]

[2. Status of respondent. See § 300.201, Paragraph 2.]

[3. Status of real parties in interest. See § 300.201, Paragraph 3.]

[4. Description of initial litigation. See § 300.201, Paragraph 4.]

[5. Description of settlement. See § 300.201, Paragraph 6.]

6. Thereafter, on _____ [date], the Superior Court for the County of _____ held a hearing, the Honorable _____ [name of judge] presiding, at which it found the settlement to be in good faith. A copy of all moving papers and the court's determination are attached as Exhibits A through _____ and made a part hereof.

7. At no time before or during the good faith determination hearing was petitioner a part of the ensuing litigation, not having been brought into the litigation by complaint or cross complaint.

8. Petitioner received no notice of the good faith determination hearing, nor was given any opportunity to be heard at that hearing.

9. The potential liability of petitioner was known or reasonably should have been known to the settling parties at the time of the good faith determination hearing, because _____ [specify].

10. On or about _____ [date], after the good faith determination hearing had been concluded and the court's decision had been rendered, petitioner was first brought into the litigation when _____ [describe, e.g., he/she/it was served as a cross defendant in a cross complaint filed by _____ (name of cross complainants). A copy of the cross complaint is attached hereto as Exhibit _____ and made a part hereof].

11. Thereafter, on or about _____ [date], petitioner filed a cross complaint for comparative indemnity against real party _____ [name of settling defendant].

12. On _____ [date], petitioner's cross complaint for comparative indemnity was dismissed on the grounds that the good faith determination of the settlement barred petitioner's claim. A copy of the court's order dismissing the cross complaint is attached as Exhibit _____ to this petition and made a part hereof.

13. The good faith determination does not bar petitioner's cross complaint for partial indemnity and contribution because notice and opportunity of the good faith determination hearing was not afforded petitioner, and therefore petitioner is not bound by the finding of good faith at that hearing and has a right to challenge that finding once petitioner has been brought into the litigation.

[14. On _____ [date], petitioner was denied a request for discovery of evidence relevant to the good faith determination available at the time of settlement. A copy of the denial is attached hereto as Exhibit _____ and made a part hereof.]

[15. Allegation that no plain, speedy, adequate remedy exists. See § 300.201, Paragraph 13.]

WHEREFORE, petitioner prays:

1. That the court issue an alternative writ of mandate commanding respondent court to vacate its order of _____ [date], finding the settlement between the settling parties in good faith and on that basis dismissing petitioner's cross complaint against _____ [name(s)] for comparative indemnity, [and commanding respondent court to allow petitioner (further) discovery of the evidence relevant to the determination of good faith as was available at the time of settlement, whether or not then actually presented, before holding any further hearing to determine the good faith of the settlement,] or to show cause before this court at a time specified by court order why it has not done so and why a peremptory writ should not issue;

2. That on the return of the alternative writ and the hearing of the petition, this court issue its peremptory writ of mandate to the same effect except for the order to show cause;

3. For costs of this proceeding; and

4. For such other and further relief as the court deems just and proper.

[Verification. See § 300.201.]

CAUTION:

A petition for a writ of mandate must be verified [Code Civ. Proc. § 1086]. Proof of service on each respondent and real party in interest of a copy of a petition that seeks an alternative writ must accompany the petition when it is offered for filing unless, in its discretion and for good cause, the court has granted the application for the writ ex parte [Code Civ. Proc. § 1107; for a discussion of serving the petition,see Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition]. The proof of service must name each party represented by each attorney served, and the attorney's telephone number [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.25(a)(2), 8.486(e)(3)]. A petition accompanied by a defective proof of service shall be filed, but if a proper proof of service is not filed within five days, the court may strike the petition or impose a lesser sanction [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(e)(5)]. A petition for writ of mandate filed in a court of appeal must be accompanied by a memorandum [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(a)(5)].

In addition, when a writ petition to an appellate court seeks review of a trial court ruling, it must be accompanied by a record adequate to permit the review, including (1) a copy of the order or judgment from which relief is sought; (2) copies of all documents and exhibits submitted to the trial court supporting and opposing the petitioner's position; (3) copies of all other documents submitted to the trial court that are necessary for a complete understanding of the case; and (4) a transcript of the proceedings below or a declaration that a transcript has been ordered and is expected to be filed on a certain date or, if no transcript is available, an explanation of its unavailability and a summary of the proceedings [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(b)(1), (3); see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(c) (format for documents and exhibits)]. In exigent circumstances, the petition may be filed without the listed documents if counsel files a declaration that explains the urgency and the circumstances making the documents unavailable and fairly summarizes their substance [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(b)(2)].

[2] Use of Form

This form of petition for a writ of mandate is designed for filing in a court of appeal to review a superior court order finding a settlement to be in good faith [see Code Civ. Proc. § 877.6(e)]. This form is for use by a defendant who was not a party to the litigation at the time when the good faith of the settlement was confirmed and who had no notice of and no opportunity to be heard on the issue [see Singer Co. v. Superior Court (1986) 179 Cal. App. 3d 875, 881, 890-893, 225 Cal. Rptr. 159] . Entitlement to the writ is based on constitutional due process requirements [see U.S. Const. amend. XIV; Cal. Const. art. I, § 17; see also § 300.73[7][b]]. An optional paragraph and corresponding prayer are included if petitioner sought but was denied discovery of evidence relevant to the good faith determination [see Singer Co. v. Superior Court (1986) 179 Cal. App. 3d 875, 881, 895-897, 225 Cal. Rptr. 159] .

[3] Appeal as Alternative

This form alleges that the petitioner's cross complaint for comparative indemnity against the settling defendant was dismissed because of the good faith determination (Paragraph 12) [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 877(b), 877.6(c)]. As an alternative, or in addition to seeking mandate to review the good faith determination, the nonsettling defendant might consider an appeal directly from the judgment dismissing the cross complaint. One judge has forcefully argued, albeit in a dissenting opinion, that a party without notice should have no right to challenge a good faith determination as between the settling parties; rather, the appropriate remedy should simply be not to bar the party's indemnity rights against the settling defendant [see Rankin v. Curtis (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 939, 950-951, 228 Cal. Rptr. 753 (Staniforth, Acting P.J., dissenting)].

To defendant _____ [name] and to _____ [name], his/her attorney of record:

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that, on _____[date], at _____ [time], or as soon thereafter as the matter may be heard in [_____ (Department or Division) _____ of] this court, located at _____ [address], _____ [city], defendant _____ [name] will move for a judgment for contribution, based on principles of comparative fault, in his/her favor and against defendant _____ [name], in the amount of $_____. The motion will be made on the grounds that a joint and several judgment for money against the moving party and defendant _____ [name] has been entered in the above-entitled action and that the moving party has paid _____ [the judgment in full or more than his/her equitable comparative share of the judgment based on

Attorney for Defendant _____[name]

[2] Use of Form

This notice of motion is for use by a joint tortfeasor against whom a joint and several judgment for economic damages [see Civ. Code § 1431.2(b)(1)] has been rendered and who has paid all or more than his or her comparative share of the judgment according to the allocation of comparative fault made by the trier of fact. For example, if there are two defendants and they are found to be comparatively at fault in a 70/30 percent ratio, the defendant who is 70 percent at fault may pay the entire joint judgment and then seek comparative "contribution" from the other defendant for 30 percent of the payment under Code Civ. Proc. § 878.

[3] Caution in Using Form

Code Civ. Proc. § 878 is part of California's 1957 contribution statutes, enacted prior to the advent of comparative indemnity in American Motorcycle Ass'n v. Superior Court (1978) 20 Cal. 3d 578, 599, 146 Cal. Rptr. 182, 578 P.2d 899 . Prior to American Motorcycle, contribution among tortfeasors was on a pro rata (equal) basis, not under comparative fault principles, and statutes still so provide [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 875(c), 876(a)]. Thus, if two defendants are jointly liable under a judgment, each would be required to "contribute" 50 percent of judgment, notwithstanding the fact that their comaparative fault might be other than 50/50.

After American Motorcycle, some courts have been willing to construe the word "contribution" in Code Civ. Proc. § 878 to encompass the principle of comparative fault, thus converting the pro rata rule into one of "comparative contribution," a concept indistinguishable from comparative indemnity [see Safeway Stores, Inc. v. Nest-Kart (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 322, 327-328, 334, 146 Cal. Rptr. 550, 579 P.2d 441 ; Ambriz v. Kress (1983) 148 Cal. App. 3d 963, 969-970, 196 Cal. Rptr. 417] . These cases provide authority for the proposition of this form, that a joint tort judgment may be allocated among the judgment debtors on a comparative fault basis by a postjudgment motion for contribution under Code Civ. Proc. § 878.

However, at least one court has rejected this authority and has enforced a pro rata rather than a comparative allocation of responsibility pursuant to a postjudgment motion for contribution. Under this court's view, the statutes that require contribution among tortfeasors to be pro rata rather than comparative are still on the books and should be followed until the legislature removes them [see Lamberton v. Rhodes-Jamieson (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 748, 750-755, 245 Cal. Rptr. 162] . For this reason, use of a postjudgment motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 878 to effect an allocation of responsibility under comparative fault principles is not recommended. Counsel should note, however, that the factual and procedural situation presented in that case was an unusual one, and the court's holding may well be limited to similar facts. For further discussion, see § 300.74.

[4] Procedure

A notice of motion regarding the enforcement of a judgment must beaccompanied by a memorandum of points and authorities [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1103(a)(2), 3.1112(a)(3), 3.1113(a)]. A motion for contribution by a judgment debtor who has paid more than his or her equitable comparative share of a judgment based on comparative negligence or fault would appear to be such a motion.

The notice of motion must also be accompanied by an affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) setting forth any information that the moving party may have regarding the assets of defendants available for satisfaction of the judgment or claim for contribution [Code Civ. Proc. § 878]. A declaration setting forth the particulars of the payment of more than the moving party's equitable comparative share may also be necessary unless the fact of payment already appears in the record [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 875(c), 1010, 2009]. If the fact of payment appears in the record, the notice of motion or the affidavit (declaration) setting forth the cojudgment debtor's assets may request that the court take judicial notice of the record containing that fact [see Evid. Code §§ 452(d), 453].

The notice of the motion is required to be given to all parties in the action, including the plaintiff or plaintiffs, at least 10 days before the hearing [Code Civ. Proc. § 878]. For the manner of serving the notice of motion and supporting papers and proof of service, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers .

[5] Recommended Alternative Procedures

A tortfeasor's right to comparative indemnity from cotortfeasors who are liable for plaintiff's damages would ordinarily be enforced by a cross complaint for declaratory relief regarding the right to indemnity, filed in the underlying tort action [Valley Circle Estates v. VTN Consol., Inc. (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 604, 612, 189 Cal. Rptr. 871, 659 P.2d 1160 ; American Motorcyle Ass'n v. Superior Court (1978) 20 Cal. 3d 578, 584, 607, 146 Cal. Rptr. 182, 578 P.2d 899 ; see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 86(a)(7), 428.10(b), 428.70, 1060; see also § 300.190]. Alternatively, an independent action for comparative indemnity, filed against the indemnitor, after conclusion of the original plaintiff's action and payment of the judgment, may be available [see Shepard & Morgan v. Lee & Daniel, Inc. (1982) 31 Cal. 3d 256, 261, 182 Cal. Rptr. 351, 643 P.2d 968 ; County of Riverside v. Loma Linda Univ. (1981) 118 Cal. App. 3d 300, 315-316, 173 Cal. Rptr. 371] . For the reasons discussed in § 300.203[3], one of these procedures is preferable. For additional discussion, see § 300.66.

[2] Use of Form

This form of declaration is for use in support of a notice of motion seeking a judgment for contribution among joint judgment debtors in a tort action [see Code Civ. Proc. § 878]. This procedure should be used with great caution [see § 300.203[3]].

Payment by the moving party of more than his or her proportionate share (Paragraph 3) is required as a condition to bringing a motion for postjudgment contribution [Code Civ. Proc. § 875(c)]. The declaration sets forth information that the moving party has as to the assets of defendants available for the satisfaction of the judgment or claim for contribution as required by Code Civ. Proc. § 878 (Paragraph 5).

Additionally, the declaration may set forth the fact that the proportionate share of one of the defendants was not paid because of that defendant's absence, such as by insolvency or due to a good faith settlement (Paragraph 4), in which case the moving party may request that that defendant's shortfall be paid by the other defendants and the moving party in proportion to their degree of fault [see Ambriz v. Kress (1983) 148 Cal. App. 3d 963, 971, 196 Cal. Rptr. 417 ; Paradise Valley Hosp. v. Schlossman (1983) 143 Cal. App. 3d 87, 93, 191 Cal. Rptr. 531 ; see also § 300.72].

The motion of defendant _____ [name of moving party] for judgment for contribution among joint tortfeasors under Code of Civil Procedure Section 878 came on regularly for hearing of this court this date. Defendant [name] appeared by counsel _____ [name] and defendant _____ [name] appeared by counsel _____ [name].

The court finds that (1) defendant _____ [name of moving party] is jointly liable with _____ [name of other defendant] for the judgment in this action based on tort in the amount of $_____ [amount of judgment for economic damages]: (2) that the comparative fault of defendant _____ [name of moving party] as found by the trier of fact for the occurrence giving rise to the judgment is _____ percent; (3) that defendant _____'s [name of moving party] comparative share of the joint judgment is therefore the sum of $_____; and (4) that defendant _____ [name of moving party] has, in fact, paid plaintiff the sum of $_____, an amount in excess of his/her comparative share.

THEREFORE, IT IS ORDERED that the defendant _____ [name of moving party] have and recover judgment against defendant _____ [name] for contribution, apportioned according to principles of comprative fault, in the sum of $_____, plus interest at the rate of _____ percent per annum from _____ [date of payment of more than proportionate share].
Dated: _____.

[2] Use of Form

This form of judgment is for use if one tortfeasor judgment debtor is granted postjudgment contribution [see § 300.203] against another tortfeasor judgment debtor. This procedure should be used with great caution [see § 300.203[3]].

This form of judgment sets forth findings as to the moving party defendant's share of comparative fault, proportionate share of the joint judgment for economic damages [see Civ. Code § 1431.2], amount of payment, and amount of contribution. These findings are not required, but are helpful in clarifying that the amount of the judgment should be computed according to principles of comparative fault and not pro rata contribution (see Comments to § 300.203).

[2] Use of Form

This form of complaint is for use in an action for contribution by a party to a joint or joint and several nontort obligation who satisfies more than his or her share of the claim against all [see Civ. Code § 1432]. To recover contribution from a codefendant following a judgment against several nontort obligors, a judgment debtor should not file a complaint, but should use the procedure established in Code Civ. Proc. § 883 [see §§ 300.221-300.223].

This form of complaint may also be used, with minor changes involving the caption and allegations of assignment, as a complaint against joint or joint and several obligors following payment of the obligation by one joint obligor and assignment of the obligation to that obligor by the creditor [see § 300.92[3]].

[3] Allegations

This complaint alleges: (1) the nature of the obligation between the obligee and the plaintiff and defendant (Paragraph 3); (2) facts establishing how plaintiff and defendant became jointly or jointly and severally liable on the obligation (Paragraph 3); (3) the manner in which plaintiff has paid more than his or her share of the obligation (Paragraph 4); (4) the refusal of defendants to pay their share of the obligation (Paragraph 5); (5) the amount of each defendant's pro rata share of the obligation, assuming that all are solvent (Paragraph 5); and (6) an optional allegation on information and belief that one defendant is insolvent, thereby increasing the pro rata share of the solvent defendants (Paragraph 5) [see Tucker v. Nicholson (1938) 12 Cal. 2d 427, 433-434, 84 P.2d 1045] .

[4] Verification

Although verification of this complaint is not required [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(a)(1)], verification will require any answer to be verified also, if the action is in the superior court and is not a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446]. Verification will also preclude a general denial except in a limited civil case, and will preclude a general denial even in a limited civil case when the action is a claim assigned to a third party for collection [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion, see Ch. 26, Answers .

[5] Venue

Although defendants in a contribution action may generally be sued in their place of residence or principal place of business, venue also lies in the county where the defendants' debt was due to the plaintiff and where, accordingly, the liability of defendants to contribute their share of the debt arose [see Pacific Freight Lines v. Pioneer Express Co. (1940) 39 Cal. App. 2d 609, 615, 103 P.2d 1056 (venue of contribution action against corporation)].

[2] Use of Form

This form of notice of motion is for postjudgment use to seek an order determining rights to contribution among multiple nontort obligors who have been found liable to the plaintiff [*see Code Civ. 	)	Location: _____
	)	Judge: _____
	)	Date Action Filed: _____
		Trial Date: _____

I, _____ [name], declare:

I am a defendant in this action.

1. On _____ [date], a joint judgment in the sum of $_____ was rendered against defendants _____ [names] in this action on the plaintiff's _____ [specify obligation].

[EITHER]

2. The amount due from each defendant on the judgment is the sum of $_____ computed according to a pro rata or equal division of the judgment among all judgment debtors.

[OR]

2. The amount due from each defendant is $_____ from defendant _____ [name]; $_____ from defendant _____ [name]; and $_____ from defendant _____ [name]; computed according to _____ [specify method of division required by terms of underlying agreement, e.g., the respective interests of the parties in the partnership that incurred the obligation on which judgment was entered]. A true copy of this _____ [specify document creating other than pro rata obligation, e.g., partnership agreement] is attached as Exhibit A to this declaration and made a part hereof.

[CONTINUE]

[3. On _____ (date), I paid the sum of $_____ to plaintiff in (partial) satisfaction of the judgment, an amount that exceeds my proportionate share of the judgment as set forth in Paragraph 2, above, by the sum of $_____.]

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

_____ [date]

_____ [signature]

[2] Use of Form

This form of declaration is for use with a notice of motion for an order determining liability for contribution among nontort judgment debtors [see § 300.221].

The declaration should set forth the manner in which the judgment is to be divided among the judgment debtors (alternate Paragraphs 2). In the absence of an underlying agreement compelling a different method, the judgment is to be divided equally among all judgment debtors (first alternative Paragraph 2) [see Young v. Rosenthal (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 96, 130, 260 Cal. Rptr. 369] . An unequal division might be required if, for example, the instrument that creates the obligation specifies otherwise, or the parties have agreed among themselves that each is to have a particular interest in the property for which the obligation was incurred (second alternative Paragraph 2) [see, e.g., Tucker v. Nicholson (1938) 12 Cal. 2d 427, 432-434, 84 P.2d 1045 ; Woolley v. Seijo (1964) 224 Cal. App. 2d 615, 621-623, 36 Cal. Rptr. 762] .

The motion of defendant _____ [name of moving party] for an order determining liability for contribution came on regularly for hearing before this court on _____ [date]. Defendant _____ [name] appeared by counsel _____ [name], and defendant _____[name] appeared by counsel _____[name].

On proof made to the satisfaction of the court,

IT IS ORDERED that, as among themselves, the defendant judgment debtors are liable for the judgment in this action, under principles of contribution, in the following amounts:

Defendant _____ [name]: $_____.

Defendant _____ [name]: $_____.

[Defendant _____ (name) has paid the amount of $_____ to the plaintiff in (partial) satisfaction of the judgment, an amount in excess of his/her proportional share; defendant _____ (name) is therefore entitled to contribution from defendant _____ (name) in the amount of $_____, plus $_____ of interest on the payment.]

Judge of the _____ Court

[2] Use of Form

This form is for use as a court order determining the liability of joint nontort judgment debtors for contribution [see Code Civ. Proc. § 882, 883]. The order sets forth the proportionate share of the judgment that each defendant is required to pay [see § 300.222]. If one defendant has paid all or more than his or her proportionate share of the judgment, this order includes a paragraph to set forth the amount of contribution that the paying defendant is entitled to receive from the other defendants.

Chapter 302 INITIATIVE, REFERENDUM, AND RECALL
PART I. SCOPE

25-302 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 302.03

§ 302.03 Definitions

[1] Initiative

At the state level, the initiative is the power of the electors to propose statutes and amendments to the state Constitution and to adopt or reject them [Cal. Const., art. II, § 8(a); see National Paint & Coatings Assn. v. State of California (1997) 58 Cal. App. 4th 753, 760, 68 Cal. Rptr. 2d 360 ; Referendum Committee v. City of Hermosa Beach (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 152, 157 n.4, 229 Cal. Rptr. 51 ; see also Elec. Code § 321 ("elector" defined)].

At local levels, it is the analogous power of county, city, or district voters to adopt ordinances [see Elec. Code §§ 9100, 9200, 9300] and of city voters to adopt, revise, amend, or repeal a city charter [see Gov. Code §§ 34450, 34459].

[2] Referendum

At the state level, the referendum is the power of the electors to approve or reject statutes or parts of statutes [see Cal. Const., art. II, § 9(a); see also Elec. Code § 321 ("elector" defined)].

At local levels, it is the analogous power of county, city, or district voters to approve or reject ordinances [see Elec. Code §§ 9140, 9237, 9340; Hopping v. Council of City of Richmond (1915) 170 Cal. 605, 609-610, 150 P. 977] . City voters may have a referendum power respecting any act of the city government, if they so provide in a charter [see Hopping v. Council of City of Richmond (1915) 170 Cal. 605, 611, 150 P. 977 ; Billig v. Voges (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 962, 965, 273 Cal. Rptr. 91] .

For further distinctions between initiatives and referenda, see § 302.15.

[3] Recall

Recall is the power of the electors to remove an elective officer from office through use of the franchise [Cal. Const., art. II, § 13; see Elec. Code § 321 ("elector" defined)].

The constitution mandates the Legislature to provide for the recall of local officers [see Cal. Const., art. II, § 19]. Cal.

Const., art. II, § 19, does not affect counties and cities whose charters provide for recall, unless those charters provide for recall to be governed by state statutes.

[4] Signature

The term "signature" includes a person's mark if the name of the person affixing the mark is written near the mark by a witness over the age of 18 years designated by the person and the designee subscribes his or her own name as a witness thereto [Elec. Code § 354.5(a)(1)]. A mark attested as provided in Elec. Code § 354.5(a)(1) may serve as a signature for any purpose specified in the Elections Code, including a sworn statement [Elec. Code § 354.5(b)].

Beginning January 1, 2008, a person with a disability, who is unable to write because of the disability, can qualify to use a signature stamp, in lieu of signing or making a mark, for any purpose specified in the Elections Code [see Elec. Code § 354.5(a)(2), (b)-(g)].

25-302 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 302.11

§ 302.11 Governing Law

[1] Constitutional Provisions

The powers of initiative and referendum are reserved to the people in Cal. Const., art. IV, § 1. State constitutional provisions governing initiatives are set forth in Cal. Const., art. II, §§ 8 and 10-12. State constitutional provisions governing referendum are set forth in Cal. Const., art. II, §§ 9-11.

The Constitution also provides for the exercise of initiative and referendum powers by the electors of each city or county under procedures that the Legislature is mandated to provide [see Cal. Const., art. II, §§ 11 (initiative and referendum); see also Elec. Code § 321 ("elector" defined)].

[2] Statutes

Statutes governing the petitioning process of the initiative and referendum are set forth in Elec. Code § 9000 et seq. Use of the initiative power to adopt, revise, amend, or repeal a city charter is also governed by Gov. Code § 34450 et seq.

The Political Reform Act of 1974 (Gov. Code § 81000 et seq.) contains provisions respecting ballot pamphlets [Gov. Code § 88001 et seq.] that are reproduced in Elec. Code § 9084 et seq. [see Elec. Code § 9080] for the sole purpose of having all statutes respecting elections collected at one place. The Political Reform Act of 1974 was not amended to delete Gov. Code § 88001 et seq. because, being an initiative statute, the Act is difficult for the Legislature to amend [see Cal. Const., art. II, § 10(c); Gov. Code § 81012].

Penal statutes respecting initiative and referendum are set forth in Elec. Code § 18600 et seq.

[3] City, County, or City and County Charters

Cal. Const., art. II, § 11, governing initiative and referendum at the local level, does not affect a city with a charter that provides for initiative and referendum. Thus, city charter provisions governing initiative and referendum supersede statutory provisions [see Elec. Code § 9247]. The same is not true in the case of a county charter. However, a charter city can adopt the state provisions, and thereby make them applicable, by incorporating them into its charter [see Billig v. Voges (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 962, 965, 273 Cal. Rptr. 91] .

Amendment, repeal, or revision of a city or county charter, can be proposed by initiative [Cal. Const., art. XI, § 3(b) (amendment, repeal, or revision of a charter can also be proposed by the governing body of the city or county)]. An election to determine whether to draft or revise a charter and elect a charter commission can be required by initiative [Cal. Const., art. XI, § 3(c) (the election can also be required by the governing body of the city or county)].

In any initiative or referendum process, the practitioner is urged to consult the elections official in the affected jurisdiction before commencing the process, to ascertain what local requirements, if any, exist in addition to the statutory requirements to facilitate the process, and what forms, if any, the local jurisdiction requires or recommends to be used.

25-302 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 302.12

§ 302.12 Limitations on Use of Initiative or Referendum

[1] In General

[a] Restricted to Enactment of Laws

Courts liberally construe the initiative and referendum power of the electorate of a city or county whenever it is challenged. If doubts can reasonably be resolved in favor of the use of this reserve power, courts will preserve it. Thus, absent a clear showing of the Legislature's intent to the contrary, legislative decisions of a city council or board of supervisors are subject to initiative or referendum [Voters for Responsible Retirement v. Board of Supervisors (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 765, 777, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 814, 884 P.2d 645 (holding, however, that, under Gov. Code § 25123, ordinance specifically relating to implementation of a memorandum of understanding between a county and its employee associations is not subject to referendum); San Mateo County Coastal Landowners' Assn. v. County of San Mateo (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 523, 537, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 117] . Courts' traditional reluctance to find a limitation on the availability of the powers of initiative and referendum has been described either as a judicial policy of liberally construing the power of initiative and referendum or as a presumption in favor of the power absent a clear showing of legislative intent to the contrary [Empire Waste Management v. Town of Windsor (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 714, 718, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 262] .

However, the electorate's use of the powers of initiative and referendum is not unlimited. These powers do not encompass all possible actions of a legislative body. Rather, they are limited to the adoption or rejection of statutes and ordinances [Marblehead v. City of San Clemente (1991) 226 Cal. App. 3d 1504, 1509, 277 Cal. Rptr. 550] . For example, when an initiative attempts to do something other than enact a statute, such as render an administrative decision, adjudicate a dispute, or declare by resolution the views of the resolving body, then it must be struck down as not within the scope of initiative power reserved by the people [see American Federation of Labor v. Eu (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 687, 714, 206 Cal. Rptr. 89, 686 P.2d 609 ; see also Bramberg v. Jones (1999) 20 Cal. 4th 1045, 1063 n.19, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 319, 978 P.2d 1240 (to extent first two sections of Proposition 225 might be viewed as constituting non-binding advisory measures severable from more explicitly coercive provisions of Proposition, those provisions would not constitute valid initiative measure under California Constitution; measure does not create law and thus does not adopt statute within meaning of Cal. Const., art. II); Empire Waste Management v. Town of Windsor (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 714, 717 n.1, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 262 (referendum may review only legislative decisions, but not matters that are strictly executive or administrative)]. This is so even when the initiative measure is labeled as such because, in determining whether an initiative measure enacts a law, it is the substance, rather than the form, that controls [Marblehead v. City of San Clemente (1991) 226 Cal. App. 3d 1504, 1509, 277 Cal. Rptr. 550 (initiative measure purporting to amend city's general plan was, in reality, a resolution, and therefore invalid)]. Similarly, mere advisory action by a governing body is beyond the reach of the referendum process, that is, it is not subject to repeal by referendum [see Memorial Hospitals Assn. v. Randol (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 1300, 1310-1312, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 547] .

In addition, an initiative or referendum may be held unconstitutional under the federal constitution. For example, under U.S. Const., art. V, the process for amending the United States Constitution is vested in Congress and the state legislatures, and voters may not use the referendum or initiative power to thwart or mandate the operation of the federal constitutional amendment process [Bramberg v. Jones (1999) 20 Cal. 4th 1045, 1048, 1063, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 319, 978 P.2d 1240 (Proposition 225, relating to congressional term limits, held unconstitutional)].

The rights of initiative and referendum reserved to the voters under Cal. Const., art. II, § 11 are co-extensive with the rights reserved to the people of the state as set forth in the state Constitution, unless a local charter gives the voters broader powers. Thus, unless a charter extends the local initiative or referendum power, constitutional limitations on the statewide initiative and referendum powers generally apply to also restrict the power of local voters to vote on countywide initiatives [Pala Band of Mission Indians v. Board of Supervisors (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 565, 581-582, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 148] .

[b] Restriction of Local Power of Referendum Over Matters of Statewide Concern

In matters of statewide concern, the state may if it chooses preempt the entire field to the exclusion of all local control. If the state chooses instead to grant some measure of local control and autonomy, it has the authority to impose procedural restrictions on the exercise of the power granted, including the authority to bar the exercise of the initiative and referendum [Jahr v. Casebeer (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 1250, 1258, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 172 (quoting Committee of Seven Thousand v. Superior Court (1998) 45 Cal. 3d 491, 511, 247 Cal. Rptr. 362, 754 P.2d 708] .

There are two instances in which the power of referendum will be found to have been withdrawn [DeVita v. County of Napa (1995) 9 Cal. 4th 763, 776, 889 P.2d 1019 ; Citizens for Jobs and the Economy v. County of Orange (2002) 94 Cal. App. 4th 1311, 1326, 115 Cal. Rptr. 2d 90 ; Empire Waste Management v. Town of Windsor (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 714, 718, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 262] :

- When there is a definite indication by the Legislature that it intends to preempt the discretion of a local legislative body to legislate.

- When the Legislature, rather than preempt local legislative action, has instead sought to delegate legislative power so exclusively to a local governing body as to indicate its intent to preclude the citizens' otherwise coextensive right of referendum.

In the latter case, the presumption that the people retain the power of referendum is overcome only by a clear showing of legislative intent to make an exclusive grant to the local governing entity. A statute delegating authority to a local "governing body" or "legislative body" supports a weak inference of exclusive delegation while use of more specific terms such as board of supervisors or city council supports a stronger inference of exclusive delegation [Empire Waste Management v. Town of Windsor (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 714, 718, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 262] .

When the statute contains generic language, such as "legislative body," the inquiry then turns on whether and to what extent the statute deals with an issue of statewide concern rather than a purely local one. The mere presence of statewide concerns, however, will not be sufficient to establish restriction of the power of referendum. The court must look at the nature of the state's regulatory interests to determine if they are fundamentally incompatible with the exercise of the right of referendum. Lastly, the court looks at any other indicia of legislative intent to preclude the availability of the power of referendum [Empire Waste Management v. Town of Windsor (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 714, 718-719, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 262] . However, a mechanical consideration of the factors must yield in favor of finding against preclusion of the power of referendum if doubts can reasonably be resolved that preclusion was not the Legislature's intent [Empire Waste Management v. Town of Windsor (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 714, 718-719, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 262] .

[2] Single-Subject Rule

[a] "Reasonably Germane" Test

A constitutional or state statutory initiative measure embracing more than one subject cannot be submitted to voters or have any effect [Cal. Const., art. II, § 8(d)]. This constitutional provision is known as the "single-subject rule." It has been noted that at least one court has assumed that the single subject rule applicable to statewide initiatives applies equally to county initiatives [Pala Band of Mission Indians v. Board of Supervisors (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 565, 582, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 148 , citing San Mateo County Coastal Landowners' Assn. v. County of San Mateo (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 523, 553, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 117] . The single subject rule's primary purpose is to minimize voter confusion and deception [Yoshioka v. Superior Court (1997) 58 Cal. App. 4th 972, 992, 68 Cal. Rptr. 2d 553 ; see Senate of the State of Cal. v. Jones (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 1142, 1156, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 810, 988 P.2d 1089] .

A measure complies with the single-subject rule if its provisions, despite their varied collateral effects, are reasonably germane to one another [Kennedy Wholesale, Inc. v. State Bd. of Equalization (1991) 53 Cal. 3d 245, 253, 279 Cal. Rptr. 325, 806 P.2d 1360 ; Amador Valley Joint Union High Sch. Dist. v. State Bd. of Equalization (1978) 22 Cal. 3d 208, 230, 149 Cal. Rptr. 239, 583 P.2d 1281 ; see Senate of the State of Cal. v. Jones (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 1142, 1157, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 810, 988 P.2d 1089] and to the general purpose or object of the initiative [Raven v. Deukmejian (1990) 52 Cal. 3d 336, 346, 276 Cal. Rptr. 326, 801 P.2d 1077 ; Brosnahan v. Brown (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 236, 245, 186 Cal. Rptr. 30, 651 P.2d 274 ; see Senate of the State of Cal. v. Jones (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 1142, 1157, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 810, 988 P.2d 1089] .

Under this test, the various provisions of an initiative are not required to be interlocking or interdependent [Raven v. Deukmejian (1990) 52 Cal. 3d 336, 349, 276 Cal. Rptr. 326, 801 P.2d 1077 ; Brosnahan v. Brown (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 236, 248-249, 186 Cal. Rptr. 30, 651 P.2d 274] . Additionally, the various provisions of an initiative need not be functionally related to one another; it is enough that the various provisions are reasonably related to a common theme or purpose in furtherance of a common underlying purpose [Senate of the State of Cal. v. Jones (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 1142, 1157, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 810, 988 P.2d 1089 ; Raven v. Deukmejian (1990) 52 Cal. 3d 336, 349, 276 Cal. Rptr. 326, 801 P.2d 1077] . Therefore, review of whether a measure complies with the single-subject rule is not an attempt to predict whether each section will actually further the measure's purpose. It is rather an inquiry into whether the provisions are reasonably germane to the measure's general purpose or objective [Calfarm Ins. Co. v. Deukmejian (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 805, 841-842, 258 Cal. Rptr. 161, 771 P.2d 1247] . In any event, the California Supreme court has stated that a measure complies with the single subject rule if its provisions are either functionally related to one another or are reasonably germane to one another or the objects of the enactment [Harbor v. Deukmejian (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 1078, 1100, 240 Cal. Rptr. 569, 742 P. 2d 1290 ; see San Mateo County Coastal Landowners' Assn. v. County of San Mateo (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 523, 553 fn. 21, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 117 ; League of Women Voters v. Eu (1992) 7 Cal. App. 4th 649, 659, 9 Cal. Rptr. 2d 416 ; see also Chemical Specialties Manufacturers Assn., Inc. v. Deukmejian (1991) 227 Cal. App. 3d 663, 667, 670, 278 Cal. Rptr. 128 (Proposition 105 entitled Public's Right to Know Act, adopted in 1988 by voters, neither functionally related to one another nor reasonably germane to one another or objects of enactment and thus violated single subject rule)].

In ascertaining whether a measure complies with the rule under the "reasonably germane" test, some courts also look to the extent to which a measure's provisions are germane to the measure's general subject as reflected in its title and the field of legislation suggested thereby [see, e.g., Chemical Specialties Manufacturers Assn., Inc. v. Deukmejian (1991) 227 Cal. App. 3d 663, 667, 278 Cal. Rptr. 128 (this may also be considered in determining if provisions functionally related to one another); California Trial Lawyers Assn. v. Eu (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 351, 358, 245 Cal. Rptr. 916 ; see also Perry v. Jordan (1949) 34 Cal. 2d 87, 93, 207 P.2d 47] . This analysis of germaneness is permissible because the "reasonably germane" test as applied to the single-subject rule of Cal. Const., art. II, § 8(d) governing initiative measures is the same test that is applied to the single-subject rule of Cal. Const., art. IV, § 9 governing legislative enactments. The same principles of construction apply to both [Harbor v. Deukmejian (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 1078, 1098, 240 Cal. Rptr. 569, 742 P.2d 1290 ; Perry v. Jordan (1949) 34 Cal. 2d 87, 92-93, 207 P.2d 47] . It should be noted, however, that even though the constitution requires a statute's single subject to be expressed in its title [see Cal. Const., art. IV, § 9], the constitution does not require the same of an initiative measure's single subject [see Cal. Const., art. II, § 8(d); Harbor v. Deukmejian (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 1078, 1098, 240 Cal. Rptr. 569, 742 P.2d 1290] .

The single-subject rule is designed to avoid "logrolling" and voter confusion [Harbor v. Deukmejian (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 1078, 1098, 240 Cal. Rptr. 569, 742 P.2d 1290 ; California Trial Lawyers Assn. v. Eu (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 351, 360-361, 245 Cal. Rptr. 916 (extending protection against confusion to signers of initiative petitions); see also Senate of the State of Cal. v. Jones (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 1142, 1156, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 810, 988 P.2d 1089 (ballot argument in favor of proposed single-subject amendment explained principal purpose of amendment was attempt to avoid confusion of either voters or petition signers and to prevent subversion of electorate's will)]. In the initiative context, logrolling is the practice of combining several proposals in a single ballot measure to obtain a majority of votes for a combined package that would not have been approved if it had been divided into its several proposals and each proposal had been put before the voters as a separate measure [see Harbor v. Deukmejian (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 1078, 1096, 240 Cal. Rptr. 569, 742 P.2d 1290 ; Chemical Specialties Manufacturers Assn., Inc. v. Deukmejian (1991) 227 Cal. App. 3d 663, 672, 278 Cal. Rptr. 128] . Despite this goal, the single-subject rule does not require a showing that each one of a measure's several provisions is capable of gaining voter approval independently of the other provisions [Kennedy Wholesale, Inc. v. State Bd. of Equalization (1991) 53 Cal. 3d 245, 255, 279 Cal. Rptr. 325, 806 P.2d 1360 ; Raven v. Deukmejian (1990) 52 Cal. 3d 336, 349, 276 Cal. Rptr. 326, 801 P.2d 1077] .

The single-subject rule imposes no barrier to the presentation of any subject to the electorate, but simply precludes drafters from combining, in a single initiative, provisions that are not reasonably germane to a common theme or purpose. Unrelated proposals always may be placed before the voters through separate initiative measures, which may be circulated contemporaneously, affording the electorate the choice of approving all, some, or none of the distinct proposals [Senate of the State of Cal. v. Jones (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 1142, 1158, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 810, 988 P.2d 1089] .

[b] Liberal Construction

The "reasonably germane" test for singleness of subject is a liberal test, in keeping with the liberal construction of initiative measures in general. Under the test, courts will sustain initiative constitutional and statutory measures that fairly disclose a reasonable and common sense relationship among their various components in furtherance of a common purpose [see Brosnahan v. Brown (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 236, 253, 186 Cal. Rptr. 30, 651 P.2d 274] .

Examples of initiative measures containing broad, multifaceted, and complex provisions that have been deemed united by a common subject or purpose and therefore sustained by the courts on single-subject grounds include enactment of the following:

- The Jarvis-Gann property taxation initiative [see Amador Valley Joint Union High Sch. Dist. v. State Bd. of Equalization (1978) 22 Cal. 3d 208, 230, 149 Cal. Rptr. 239, 583 P.2d 1281] .

- The Political Reform Act of 1974 [see Fair Political Practices Com. v. Superior Court (1979) 25 Cal. 3d 33, 41, 157 Cal. Rptr. 855, 599 P.2d 46] .

- The "Victims' Bill of Rights" [see Brosnahan v. Brown (1982) 32 Cal.3d 236, 253, 186 Cal. Rptr. 30, 651 P.2d 274] .

- The "Crime Victims Justice Reform Act" [see Raven v. Deukmejian (1990) 52 Cal. 3d 336, 349, 276 Cal. Rptr. 326, 801 P.2d 1077] .

- Proposition 21, the Gang Violence and Juvenile Crime Prevention Act of 1998 [see Manduley v. Superior Court (2002) 27 Cal. 4th 537, 549-556, 117 Cal. Rptr. 2d 168] .

One common (though not indispensable) thread running through all of these measures is that each constitutes a legal "reform" to which the various provisions of each measure have been held germane [see, e.g., Raven v. Deukmejian (1990) 52 Cal. 3d 336, 346-349, 276 Cal. Rptr. 326, 801 P.2d 1077 ; Brosnahan v. Brown (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 236, 245-253, 186 Cal. Rptr. 30, 651 P.2d 274] .

[c] Unduly Diverse Provisions

Despite the liberal interpretation of initiative measures in general and the single-subject rule in particular, initiative proponents are not given blank checks to draft measures containing unduly diverse or extensive provisions bearing no reasonable relationship to each other or to the general object that is sought to be promoted [see Brosnahan v. Brown (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 236, 253, 186 Cal. Rptr. 30, 651 P.2d 274 ; accord Senate of the State of Cal. v. Jones (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 1142, 1157-1158, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 810, 988 P.2d 1089] . Thus, for example, a measure bearing one or more provisions that lack any reasonably discernible nexus between the stated object of the initiative and the provisions in question will not satisfy the rule [see, e.g., California Trial Lawyers Assn. v. Eu (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 351, 359-361, 245 Cal. Rptr. 916 (striking down "Insurance Cost Control Initiative of 1988")].

The single-subject rule is a constitutional safeguard adopted to protect against multifaceted measures of undue scope. For example, the rule forbids joining disparate provisions that appear germane only to subjects of excessive generality such as "government" or "public welfare" [see Brosnahan v. Brown (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 236, 253, 186 Cal. Rptr. 30, 651 P.2d 274] . The number and scope of topics that could be considered germane to such excessively general subjects would essentially obliterate the single-subject requirement [see, e.g., Chemical Specialties Manufacturers Assn., Inc. v. Deukmejian (1991) 227 Cal. App. 3d 663, 670-671, 278 Cal. Rptr. 128 (striking down "Public's Right to Know Act")]. Thus, when a challenged measure designed Proposition 24 embraced at least two distinct subjects, state officers' compensation and reapportionment, and the proponent sought to justify the joinder of these disparate subjects on the theory that because each of the substantive sections of the proposition contained a provision for voter approval, "voter approval" properly could be viewed as the single subject to which all of the measure's provisions were reasonably germane, the court has rejected this argument and held that the proposition violated the single subject rule. When the drafters of an initiative measure join separate provisions dealing with otherwise unrelated political issues in a single initiative, the initiative cannot be found to satisfy the single-subject rule simply because each provision imposes a requirement of voter approval, any more than if each provision contained a remedy for money damages or a remedy for injunctive relief. The circumstance that provisions in an initiative dealing with unrelated subjects happen to make use of a similar remedy, such as public disclosure or voter approval, is not sufficient to find that the disparate provisions are reasonably germane to a single subject for purposes of the single-subject rule [Senate of the State of Cal. v. Jones (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 1142, 1146, 1162-1163, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 810, 988 P.2d 1089] .

[d] Severance Prohibited to Cure Violation

The constitution does not provide for severance in the event that more than one subject is included in a statutory or constitutional initiative measure [see Cal. Const., art II, § 8(d); Harbor v. Deukmejian (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 1078, 1098, 240 Cal. Rptr. 569, 742 P.2d 1290 ; California Trial Lawyers Assn. v. Eu (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 351, 361-362, 245

Cal. Rptr. 916] . In fact, the language and context of Cal. Const. art. II, § 8(d) preclude severance to cure single-subject rule violations [Senate of the State of Cal. v. Jones (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 1142, 1168, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 810, 988 P.2d 1089 (when initiative measure violates single-subject rule, severance is not an available remedy; submission of multisubject measure to electorate precluded); California Trial Lawyers Assn. v. Eu (1988) 245 Cal. Rptr. 916 (declining to exercise severance to cure single-subject rule violation); compare Cal. Const., art II, § 8(d) (initiative measure embracing more than one subject cannot be submitted to electors or have any effect) with Cal. Const., art. IV, § 9 (statute embracing subject not expressed in title is void only as to portion not expressed in title)].

The rationale for the rule of nonseverability is clear. An initiative that violates the single-subject rule contains two or more portions that could be separately enacted, but cannot be combined in one measure. A court finding such a violation has no method of deciding which part of the initiative will take effect [Calfarm Ins. Co. v. Deukmejian (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 805, 836, 258 Cal. Rptr. 161, 771 P.2d 1247] .

Severance of particular parts of an initiative measure has been recognized as permissible in a few cases involving circumstances in which the excised portions were invalid because they conflicted either with substantive federal constitutional protections or prohibitions [see, e.g., Legislature v. Eu (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 492, 534-535, 286 Cal. Rptr. 283, 816 P.2d 1309 (provision of Proposition 140 imposing restrictions on pensions of incumbent legislators severed as unconstitutional impairment of contract under federal and California law); Fair Political Practices Com. v. Superior Court (1979) 25 Cal. 3d 33, 49, 157 Cal. Rptr. 855, 599 P.2d 46 (sections of Political Reform Act of 1974 severed as substantial limitations on exercise of specified First Amendment rights); Santa Barbara Sch. Dist. v. Superior Court (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 315, 332, 118 Cal. Rptr. 637, 530 P.2d 605 (sections of proposition relating to school desegregation severed as unconstitutional and void under United States and California Supreme Court rulings outlawing school segregation; proposition contained severability clause and offending sections were mechanically severable)], or with state constitutional prohibitions [see, e.g., Calfarm Ins. Co. v. Deukmejian (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 805, 835-837, 258 Cal. Rptr. 161, 771 P.2d 1247 (section of initiative measure forming private corporation to represent insurers' interests severed as violative of Cal. Const., art. II, § 12, discussed in [3], below)]. However, these cases have not involved severance for the purpose of curing a single-subject rule violation, even though some of them have successfully rebuffed single-subject rule challenges [see, e.g., Calfarm Ins. Co. v. Deukmejian (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 805, 841-842, 258 Cal. Rptr. 161, 771 P.2d 1247 ; Fair Political Practices Com. v. Superior Court (1979) 25 Cal. 3d 33, 41, 157 Cal. Rptr. 855, 599 P.2d 46] .

[e] Preelection Review

The constitution not only prohibits a statutory or constitutional initiative measure embracing more than one subject from taking effect. It also prohibits submission of such a measure to the electorate [Cal. Const., art. II, § 8(d)]. The general rule governing preelection review of all ballot propositions, including initiative measures, is that absent some clear showing of a proposition's invalidity, it is usually more appropriate to review constitutional and other challenges to a ballot proposition after an election rather than to disrupt the electoral process by reviewing the challenges before the election and thereby possibly preventing the exercise of the people's franchise [Brosnahan v. Eu (1982) 31 Cal. 3d 1, 4, 181 Cal. Rptr. 100, 641 P.2d 200 (declining preelection review of initiative measure challenged on single-subject grounds; measure subsequently upheld on single-subject rule challenge in Brosnahan v. Brown (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 236, 253, 186 Cal. Rptr. 30, 651 P.2d 274); see Senate of the State of Cal. v. Jones (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 1142, 1153, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 810, 988 P.2d 1089] . The general rule applies primarily when a challenge rests on the alleged unconstitutionality of the substance of the proposed initiative. The rule does not preclude preelection review, however, when the challenge is based on a claim, for example, that the proposed measure may not be submitted to the voters because the measure is not legislative in character or because it amounts to a constitutional revision rather than an argument [Senate of the State of Cal. v. Jones (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 1142, 1153, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 810, 988 P.2d 1089] .

In case of a challenge based on the single-subject rule, it is clear from the relevant constitutional provision itself that, in an appropriate instance, preelection relief not only is permissible, but is expressly contemplated. Thus, in view of the explicit language of the single-subject provision of Cal. Const., art II, § 8(d) that specifies that an initiative embracing more than one subject may not be submitted to the electors, when a court determines that the challenges to an initiative measure have demonstrated that there is a strong likelihood that the initiative violates the single-subject rule, it is appropriate to resolve the single-subject challenge before the election [Senate of the State of Cal. v. Jones (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 1142, 1153-1154, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 810, 988 P.2d 1089 ; see, e.g., California Trial Lawyers Assn. v. Eu (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 351, 357, 245 Cal. Rptr. 916 (exercising preelection review of initiative measure presenting palpable transgression of single-subject rule); see also League of Women Voters v. Eu (1992) 7 Cal. App. 4th 649, 658, 9 Cal. Rptr. 2d 416 (reviewing single-subject challenge to initiative measure well in advance of placing measure on ballot)]. Under such circumstances, deferring a decision until after the election not only will defeat the constitutionally contemplated procedure reflected by the language in Cal. Const., art II, § 8(d), but may contribute to an increasing cynicism on the electorate's part with respect to the efficacy of the initiative process [Senate of the State of Cal. v. Jones (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 1142, 1154, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 810, 988 P.2d 1089] .

The general rule set forth in Brosnahan v. Eu (1982) 31 Cal. 3d 1, 641 P.2d 200 recognizing a strong presumption against preelection resolution of a challenge to an initiative measure--is inapplicable to a challenge not based on the alleged unconstitutionality of the substance of the initiative measure but rather on the contention that the measure in question is not the type of measure that may be adopted through the initiative process [Independent Energy Producers Assn. v. McPherson (2006) 38 Cal. 4th 1020, 1024-1025, 44 Cal. Rptr. 3d 644, 136 P.3d 178] . Nonetheless, although preelection resolution of this type of a challenge is not presumptively improper, the challenge at issue in such a case generally will not become moot after an election if the measure is adopted, and thus such a claim reasonably is susceptible to judicial resolution either before or after an election. As a consequence, when such a challenge is brought prior to an election, a court should recognize that the need for an expedited preelection resolution of the claim is less compelling than with regard to the type of claim at issue in Costa v. Superior Court (2006) 37 Cal. 4th 986, 39 Cal. Rptr. 3d 470 , which involved a claim that the initiative failed to comply with a procedural requirement relating to the circulation of the initiative petition. Accordingly, in such a case a court should take into consideration the availability of post-election relief in deciding whether it is preferable to resolve the issue in the often charged and rushed atmosphere of an expedited preelection review, or instead to leave the challenge for resolution with the benefit of the full, unhurried briefing, oral argument, and deliberation that generally will be available after the election [Independent Energy Producers Assn. v. McPherson (2006) 38 Cal. 4th 1020, 1025, 44 Cal. Rptr. 3d 644, 136 P.3d 178] .

In decisions made prior to Independent Energy Producers Assn. v. McPherson (2006) 38 Cal. 4th 1020, 44 Cal. Rptr. 3d 644, 136 P.3d 178 , courts held that if the challenge goes to the electorate's power to adopt the initiative in the first instance, as would a challenge based on a claimed violation of the single-subject rule, preelection review is proper, even absent a clear showing of the measure's invalidity on other grounds [American Federation of Labor v. Eu (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 687, 695-696, 696 n.11, 206 Cal. Rptr. 89, 686 P.2d 609 (exercising preelection review of measure on grounds unrelated to single-subject rule violation)].

Moreover, preelection review of an initiative measure is appropriate when it is clearly shown that the measure is otherwise substantively invalid [Citizens for Responsible Behavior v. Superior Court (1992) 1 Cal. App. 4th 1013, 1019, 2 Cal. Rptr. 2d 648 (upholding city's refusal to place initiative measure on ballot when measure violated Equal Protection Clause of federal and California Constitutions); see Legislature v. Deukmejian (1983) 34 Cal. 3d 658, 665-666, 194 Cal. Rptr. 781, 669 P.2d 17 (exercising preelection review of measure challenged on grounds unrelated to single-subject rule violation); deBottari v. City Council, (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 1204, 1209-1210 ; see also San Francisco Forty-Niners v. Nishioka (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 637, 644-650, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 388 (noncompliance with Election Code can result in initiative's disqualification from ballot; when initiative petition in violation of Elec. Code § 18600 contains misleading assertions of fact that are false beyond dispute, writ may issue to prevent circulation of undisputed falsehoods; rule, however, does not apply to expressions of opinion nor to factual matters that are subject to question or dispute; argument that writ of mandate constitutes unlawful prior restraint of right to free speech under First Amendment of United States Constitution rejected)].

[f] Separate-Vote Provision

In 2006, the California Supreme Court granted review to address an issue of first impression: the proper interpretation of Cal. Const., art. XVIII, § 1, which requires in its second sentence that when the Legislature proposes an amendment of the state Constitution, "[e]ach amendment shall be so prepared and submitted that it can be voted on separately." The court concluded that the separate-vote provision is a limitation upon legislative power to submit constitutional amendments to the voters, and should be construed consistently with its kindred provision, the single subject provision. Thus, the Legislature's proposed submission, in a single constitutional amendment, of two changes to the state Constitution that are not germane to a common theme, purpose, or subject, violated the constitutional separate-vote requirement [Californians for an Open Primary v. McPherson (2006) 38 Cal. 4th 735, 738, 43 Cal. Rptr. 3d 315, 134 P.3d 299] .

[3] Constitutional Amendment or Statute Naming Individual to Office or Naming Corporation to Perform Function

[a] Prohibited

No constitutional amendment, and no statute proposed to the voters by initiative or referred to the voters by the Legislature, that names any individual to hold any office, or names or identifies any private corporation to perform any function or to have any power or duty, can be submitted to the voters or have any effect [Cal. Const., art. II, § 12]. The purpose of this constitutional prohibition is to prevent the initiative from being used to confer special privilege or advantage on specific persons or organizations [see Calfarm Ins. Co. v. Deukmejian (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 805, 832, 832-833, 258 Cal. Rptr. 161, 771 P.2d 1247] . As such, the prohibition is not limited to existing corporate entities [Calfarm Ins. Co. v. Deukmejian (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 805, 833, 258 Cal. Rptr. 161, 771 P.2d 1247] , to "for-profit" corporations as opposed to a nonprofit public benefit corporation [Calfarm Ins. Co. v. Deukmejian (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 805, 834, 258 Cal. Rptr. 161, 771 P.2d 1247] , or to situations in which the initiative describes the subject corporation as performing a public function [Calfarm Ins. Co. v. Deukmejian (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 805, 835, 258 Cal. Rptr. 161, 771 P.2d 1247] . This prohibition applies equally to statewide and local initiatives unless a local charter provides otherwise [Pala Band of Mission Indians v. Board of Supervisors (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 565, 582, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 148 ; cf. Citizens for Responsible Government v. City of Albany (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 1199, 1229-1230, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 102 (declining to extend Pala to land use measure that named developer when land use provisions originated with city council and measure had to be submitted to voters because of earlier initiative measure that required voter approval of future zoning amendments, general plan changes, and development agreements in a waterfront area; measure was not of the type addressed by Cal. Const., art. II, § 12)].

[b] Severance Possible

When a portion of an initiative violates the prohibition, the offending portion must be severed from the initiative, and the remainder can take effect. This rule of severability requires only that the offending statute be severed, and thus precludes severability only within the confines of a particular statute that impermissibly names or identifies a person or private corporation. Severability to this degree is permissible because, by its terms, Cal. Const., art. II, § 12, prohibits a statute in violation of its provisions from being submitted to the voters or having any effect. The question whether the statute can be severed from the balance of the initiative must then be determined by general rules of statutory severability. The rule of severability applicable to initiative statutes in violation of Cal. Const., art. II, § 12, is to be distinguished from the rule of severability applicable to entire initiative measures under the single-subject rule of Cal. Const., art II, § 8(d) (discussed in [2][d], above) [Calfarm Ins. Co. v. Deukmejian (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 805, 835-836, 258 Cal. Rptr. 161, 771 P.2d 1247 (provision of Proposition 103 creating insurance consumers' advocacy corporation violates Cal. Const., art. II, § 12, but not essential to initiative's purpose and structure and therefore is severable); see also Pala Band of Mission Indians v. Board of Supervisors (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 565, 585-587, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 148 (county initiative provision held invalid as violating Cal. Const., art. II, § 12, but remainder of initiative severed and upheld; when initiative contains severability clause, invalid provision severable if it can be separated grammatically, functionally, and volitionally)].

[4] Urgency Legislation, Tax Levies and Appropriations, and Statutes Calling Elections

The power of referendum does not extend to urgency statutes, statutes calling elections, and statutes providing for tax levies or appropriations for usual current expenses of the state [Cal. Const., art. II, § 9(a)]. This constitutional exclusion of specified statutes from the referendum powers extends to local elections [see Santa Clara County Local Transportation Authority v. Guardino (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 220, 239 n.11, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 207, 902 P.2d 225] .

The possibility that the Legislature may on rare occasions foreclose use of the referendum through a declaration of urgency is an inherent feature of California's constitutional system. The framers of the initiative and referendum provisions, and the people in adopting those provisions, deliberately accepted this limitation on use of the referendum power. The existence of this limitation is not a justifiable basis for extending use of the initiative into areas not permitted by the state constitution [Legislature v. Deukmejian (1983) 34 Cal. 3d 658, 680, 194 Cal. Rptr. 781, 669 P.2d 17] .

The initiative power cannot be used as an indirect or b ackhanded technique to invoke the referendum process against a tax ordinances of a general law city [Myers v. City Council of Pismo Beach (1966) 241 Cal. App. 2d 237, 243, 50 Cal. Rptr. 402] . However, not every initiative that would repeal a tax and forbid its future imposition constitutes a backhand referendum. For example, under a city or county charter that excludes tax measures from the referendum power, but does not so restrict the initiative power, the electorate may by initiative repeal a tax if the repeal does not become effective until a subsequent fiscal year [Rossi v. Brown (1995) 9 Cal. 4th 688, 710-711, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 363, 889 P.2d 557 ; see Santa Clara County Local Transportation Authority v. Guardino (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 220, 238-246, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 207, 902 P.2d 225 (voter approval requirement contained in Gov. Code § 53722 as condition precedent before local government may impose special tax held not to constitute a referendum)].

[5] Approval or Rejection of Administrative Acts

The powers of initiative and referendum apply only to acts that are legislative in character, and not to executive or administrative acts. Acts constituting a declaration of public purpose, and making provision for ways and means of accomplishing that purpose, may be generally classified as calling for the exercise of legislative power. Acts of administration are those necessary to carry out legislative policies and purposes already declared by a legislative body. Stated another way, power to be exercised is legislative in nature if it prescribes a new policy or plan. Power to be exercised is administrative in nature if it merely pursues a plan already adopted by the legislative body itself or some power superior to it [see Southwest Diversified, Inc. v. City of Brisbane (1991) 229 Cal. App. 3d 1548, 1555, 280 Cal. Rptr. 869 (construing revision of zoning boundary pursuant to previously adopted procedure as administrative action)].

The acts and resolutions of administrative agencies of the state are not subject to referendum by local electors [Board of Education v. Superior Court (1979) 93 Cal. App. 3d 578, 582, 155 Cal. Rptr. 839] . If the subject is one of statewide concern in which the Legislature has delegated decision-making power not to local voters but to a local council or board as the state's designated agent for local implementation of state policy, the action receives an administrative characterization and is thus outside the scope of the initiative and referendum [Friends of Mount Diablo v. County of Contra Costa (1977) 72 Cal. App. 3d 1006, 1011, 139 Cal. Rptr 469] . An example of a matter of statewide concern is the regulation of the public school system. For purposes of the availability of the initiative and referendum, school districts have become administrative agencies of the state for the local operation of the state school system. The actions of the school districts are therefore administrative rather than legislative and, as such, beyond the purview of the initiative and referendum power [Board of Education v. Superior Court (1979) 93 Cal. App. 3d 578, 581-583, 155 Cal. Rptr. 839] .

[6] State's Lawmaking Power

Neither the Legislature nor the voters may enact a law of a nature that exceeds a limitation on the state's lawmaking power. For example, the voters cannot enact a law that violates the state constitutional requirement of Cal. Const., art. XXI, § 1, limiting reapportionment to once every 10 years, or Cal. Const., art. I, § 2(a), prohibiting any law that restrains or abridges freedom of speech or press [Kennedy Wholesale, Inc. v. State Bd. of Equalization (1991) 53 Cal. 3d 245, 252, 279 Cal. Rptr. 325, 806 P.2d 1360 ; see Legislature v. Deukmejian (1983) 34 Cal. 3d 658, 673, 194 Cal. Rptr. 781, 669 P.2d 17] .

Not every procedural limitation on the Legislature applies to the volers. For example, although Cal. Const., art. XIIIA, § 3 (Proposition 13), requires a two-thirds supermajority for legislative enactment of any state tax enacted for the purpose of increasing revenue [see Cal. Const., art. XIIIA, § 3], that article of the constitution does not limit the voters' power to raise taxes through an initiative statute enacted by a majority of the voters [Kennedy Wholesale, Inc. v. State Bd. of Equalization (1991) 53 Cal. 3d 245, 252, 253, 279 Cal. Rptr. 325, 806 P.2d 1360 (upholding tax on tobacco products enacted by initiative Proposition 99)].

[7] Constitutional Revision

Although the voters can amend the California Constitution by initiative, a revision of the Constitution can only be accomplished by assembling a constitutional convention and obtaining popular ratification or by legislative submission of the measure to the voters [Cal. Const., art. XVIII, §§ 1-4; Legislature v. Eu (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 492, 506, 286 Cal. Rptr. 283, 816 P.2d 1309 ; see Raven v. Deukmejian (1990) 52 Cal. 3d 336, 349, 276 Cal. Rptr. 326, 801 P.2d 1077] .

To determine whether a particular provision of an initiative is an amendment or a revision, a court must analyze the quantitative and qualitative effects of the provision on the constitutional scheme. Substantial changes in either respect could amount to a revision [Legislature v. Eu (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 492, 506, 286 Cal. Rptr. 283, 816 P.2d 1309] . A substantial number of changes in the constitution affecting a host of provisions may result in a quantitative revision, rendering part or all of an initiative measure invalid [see Legislature v. Eu (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 492, 506, 286 Cal. Rptr. 283, 816 P.2d 1309] .

Modifications in the constitution that alter the nature of California's basic governmental plan, such as changes in the state's fundamental structure or the foundational powers of its branches, constitute a qualitative revision [Legislature v. Eu (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 492, 509, 286 Cal. Rptr. 283, 816 P.2d 1309 ; Raven v. Deukmejian (1990) 52 Cal. 3d 336, 350-354, 276 Cal. Rptr. 326, 801 P.2d 1077] . A court will find a qualitative revision if it necessarily or inevitably appears from the face of the challenged provision that the measure will substantially alter the basic governmental framework set forth in the constitution [compare Raven v. Deukmejian (1990) 52 Cal. 3d 336, 350-354, 276 Cal. Rptr. 326, 801 P.2d 1077 (striking down as improper constitutional revision provision of Proposition 115 that would have vested in United States Supreme Court sole power to interpret under California Constitution certain procedural rights of criminal defendants), with Legislature v. Eu (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 492, 506, 286 Cal. Rptr. 283, 816 P.2d 1309 (upholding provisions of Proposition 140 that established term limits for state legislators and various state constitutional officers and imposed specific restrictions on Legislature's budget, because these provisions do not affect either Legislature's fundamental structure or its foundational powers)]. A court is not required to fathom the long-term effects of the provision on the state's basic government plan to decide that a provision is not a qualitative revision [Legislature v. Eu (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 492, 510, 286 Cal. Rptr. 283, 816 P.2d 1309] .

In contrast, even an initiative that makes very significant changes constitutes only an amendment if its changes nonetheless operate functionally within a relatively narrow range of subject matter [Strauss v. Horton (2009) 46 Cal. 4th 364, 428, 93 Cal. Rptr. 3d 591, 207 P.3d 48 (citing Amador Valley Joint Union High Sch. Dist. v. State Bd. of Equalization (1978) 22 Cal. 3d 208, 228, 149 Cal. Rptr. 239, 583 P.2d 1281)].

The question of whether an initiative constitutes an amendment or a revision requires analysis of the statute on its face [Rippon v. Bowen (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 1308, 1319, 73 Cal. Rptr. 3d 421] .

§ 302.13 Conflicting Provisions of Two or More Measures

[1] General Rule

If provisions of two or more measures approved at the same election conflict, those of the measure receiving the highest affirmative vote prevail [Cal. Const., art. II, § 10(b) (applicable to both initiative and referendum measures)]. This rule of construction is not, however, applied at face value and unconditionally. Rather, as shown in the discussion below, application of the rule is tempered by application of the common law rule of construction requiring a court, whenever possible, to construe an initiative statute or ordinance to ensure its validity [Lesher Communications, Inc. v. City of Walnut Creek (1990) 52 Cal. 3d 531, 543, 277 Cal. Rptr. 1, 802 P.2d 317] .

[2] Competing Regulatory Schemes

Initiative ballot measures addressing the same subject are to be examined as a whole and, if they offer conflicting regulatory schemes for governance of that subject, it is the measure receiving the highest affirmative vote that prevails. Absent an express contrary intent in one or more of the initiative measures, no part of any measure receiving a lesser affirmative vote becomes operative [Taxpayers to Limit Campaign Spending v. Fair Pol. Practices Com. (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 744, 767, 274 Cal. Rptr. 787, 799 P.2d 1220 (holding Proposition 73, relating to campaign finance, operative and Proposition 68, relating to the same subject matter and comprising a competing campaign finance regulatory scheme, inoperative)]. Therefore, unless a contrary intent is apparent in the measures, when two or more measures are competing initiatives, either because they are expressly offered as "all-or-nothing" alternatives or because each creates a comprehensive regulatory scheme related to the same subject, Cal. Const., art. II, § 10(b), mandates that only the measure receiving the highest number of affirmative votes be enforced. Neither an administrative or regulatory agency, nor a court, may enforce individual provisions of the measure receiving the lower number of affirmative votes [Taxpayers to Limit Campaign Spending v. Fair Pol. Practices Com. (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 744, 747, 274 Cal. Rptr. 787, 799 P.2d 1220] .

When a court is faced with competing initiative regulatory schemes, the standard rule of statutory construction that requires an attempt to reconcile statutory provisions relating to the same subject matter whenever possible to avoid conflict and give effect to every provision does not apply. Cal. Const., art. II, § 10(b) does not require the court to analyze each provision of the schemes receiving fewer votes to determine which provisions survive, particularly when to do so might result in a regulatory scheme created without any basis for ascertaining whether the electorate understood or intended the resulting scheme. The constitution does not permit a court to engraft onto one regulatory scheme provisions intended to be part of a different scheme [Taxpayers to Limit Campaign Spending v. Fair Pol. Practices Com. (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 744, 764-770, 274 Cal. Rptr. 787, 799 P.2d 1220] .

[3] Complementary or Supplementary Measures

When practicable, a court should construe two or more initiative measures as complementary or supplementary rather than as competing or conflicting, so that the expressed will of the voters is given the greatest possible deference [Yoshisato v. Superior Court (1992) 2 Cal. 4th 978, 988-989, 9 Cal. Rptr. 2d 102, 831 P.2d 327 (provisions of Propositions 114 and 115 were presented to voters as complementary or supplementary measures to amend Penal Code § 190.2)]. In determining whether two initiative measures are complementary or supplementary rather than competing, a court must give due consideration to the intent of the voters [Yoshisato v. Superior Court (1992) 2 Cal. 4th 978, 989, 9 Cal. Rptr. 2d 102, 831 P.2d 327] .

Special analysis of voter intent is required when only selected parts of a statute are amended by the initiative power. Under Cal. Const., art. IV, § 9, if voters make discrete amendments to a portion of the statute, they are compelled also to reenact the entire statute to effectuate the amendments. Thus, the voters are technically deemed to have adopted the unamended portions of the statute, regardless of their actual intent to do so [Yoshisato v. Superior Court (1992) 2 Cal. 4th 978, 989-990, 9 Cal. Rptr. 2d 102, 831 P.2d 327] . Nevertheless, if one initiative amends portions of a statute and, thus, the voters are constitutionally compelled to reenact the entire statute, this does not, in itself, evidence the intent of the voters that the compulsorily reenacted portions of the first initiative prevail overall other provisions of a second initiative enacted by a lesser affirmative vote in the same election. Indeed, if there is no evidence to demonstrate that the first initiative proposed a comprehensive regulatory scheme governing the subject matter of the statute sought to be amended by both initiatives, a court will not interpret voter approval of the first initiative as an indication of the voters' intent to adopt the first initiative as an all-embracing measure that supersedes the provisions of the second initiative. Accordingly, changes made by the second initiative to those portions of the statute that the first initiative merely reenacts without any amendments are operative, even if the first initiative receives more affirmative votes that the second initiative [Yoshisato v. Superior Court (1992) 2 Cal. 4th 978, 989-990, 9 Cal. Rptr. 2d 102, 831 P.2d 327 (because ballot pamphlet information did not demonstrate that Proposition 114 presented comprehensive regulatory scheme governing criminal penalties set forth in Penal Code § 190.2, changes made by Proposition 115 to those provisions of the section that Proposition 114 merely reenacted without any amendments are operative even though Proposition 114 received more affirmative votes than Proposition 115)]. Under these circumstances, a court will give effect to the amendments enacted by both initiatives as long as (1) a "provision-by-provision" comparison of the two measures reveals that each amendment of the second initiative does not conflict with any amendment made to the same provision by the first initiative, and (2) each amendment of the second initiative that cannot be given effect is severable from any other provision of the second initiative [Yoshisato v. Superior Court (1992) 2 Cal. 4th 978, 991, 9 Cal. Rptr. 2d 102, 831 P.2d 327] .

Similarly, when a second initiative makes substantive amendments to provisions of a statute that were compulsorily reenacted by a first initiative with minor, nonsubstantive changes, the two measures are not necessarily conflicting. Under such circumstances, it cannot reasonably be concluded that the voters intended that the provisions as reenacted by the first initiative should prevail over the substantive amendments made by the second initiative unless there is evidence to the contrary [Yoshisato v. Superior Court (1992) 2 Cal. 4th 978, 992, 9 Cal. Rptr. 2d 102, 831 P.2d 327 (substitution of gender neutral language and minor nonsubstantive grammatical change made by Proposition 114 to Penal Code § 190.2 did not supersede substantive amendments to same provisions by Proposition 115, absent evidence of voter intent to adopt Proposition 114 as comprehensive regulatory scheme)].
