25-302 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 302.14

§ 302.14 Initiative and Referendum Distinguished

Both the power of initiative and the power of referendum allow the voters of the state to bypass the law-making power of their elected legislative bodies. The difference between the two is as follows: the power of referendum is the right of the people to adopt or reject any act or measure thathas been passed by a legislative body and that, in most cases, would without action on the part of the electors become a law. Thus, the referendum process allows the voters to veto statutes and ordinances enacted by their elected legislative bodies before those laws become effective. Enactment is not a quality of the referendum. That is, referenda do not enact law and may not address certain subjects. In contrast, the power of initiative is the right of the electorate to legislate on any subject; that is, to enact laws [Santa Clara County Local Transportation Authority v. Guardino (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 220, 241, 253, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 207, 902 P2d 225 ; Referendum Committee v. City of Hermosa Beach (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 152, 157-158, 229 Cal. Rptr. 51 ; see City of Westminster v. County of Orange (1988) 204 Cal. App. 3d 623, 627, 251 Cal. Rptr. 511] .

Unlike with the power of referendum, the California constitution does not limit the subject matter of direct legislation that may be proposed by initiative [Santa Clara County Local Transportation Authority v. Guardino (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 220, 253, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 207, 902 P.2d 225 ; for constitutional limitations concerning the power of referendum, see discussion under § 302.12[4]]. Moreover, the repeal of an already effective ordinance is an exercise of the initiative power [Santa Clara County Local Transportation Authority v. Guardino (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 220, 242, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 207, 902 P.2d 225] . To the extent that the initiative is the constitutional power of the electors to propose, adopt, or reject statutes, it is generally coextensive with the power of the Legislature to enact statutes [Santa Clara County Local Transportation Authority v. Guardino (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 220, 253, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 207, 902 P.2d 225] .

Essentially, the procedure is the same whether the proceeding concerns initiative or referendum. There is a series of steps to be taken before an election is held; the proponents must complete the bulk of these and the rest is done by government officials.

At the state level, the first step is to submit the text of the proposed measure to the Attorney General, along with a request for preparation of a circulating title and summary of the proposed measure [Elec. Code § 9001(a)]. The Attorney General will prepare the circulating title and summary [Elec. Code §§ 9004(a), 9006(a)] and will send a copy, together with a copy of the text of the proposed measure, to the Legislature [Elec. Code § 9007]. A copy of the circulating title and summary will also be sent to the proponents [Elec. Code §§ 9004(b), 9006(b)], who must include the circulating title and summary in the petition [Elec. Code §§ 9008, 9012]. The appropriate committees of each house of the Legislature may hold public hearings on the subject of the proposed measure. However, the Legislature has no authority to alter the measure or prevent it from appearing on the ballot [Elec. Code § 9007].

At the local level, the first step is for the proponents of a countywide or citywide initiative measure to file, with the county or city elections official (1) notice of their intention to circulate the petition, and (2) a copy of the proposed measure with a request that the county counsel or city attorney prepare a ballot title for and a summary of the measure. The county counsel or city attorney will prepare the ballot title and summary, and the elections official will, in turn, transmit them to the proponents [see Elec. Code §§ 9103, 9105, 9202, 9203]. The proponents may, under certain statutorily specified conditions, initiate mandate proceedings to amend the ballot title, the summary, or both [see Elec. Code §§ 9106, 9204]. Once the ballot title and summary are obtained, and are acceptable to the proponents, the next step is for the proponents to give notice of their intention to circulate the petition [see Elec. Code §§ 9103, 9202].

After completing any prescribed preliminary steps, the proponents must solicit and obtain a certain minimum number of signatures on the petition and then file the petition with the appropriate elections official within a statutorily specified time. The numbers and time periods vary [see Cal. Const., art. II, §§ 8(b), 9(b); Elec. Code §§ 336, 9107 et seq., 9142, 9144, 9207, 9208, 9214, 9215, 9236, 9237, 9310, 9340, 9341; Gov. Code §§ 34452, 34459, 34460].

The proponents of a state or local initiative or referendum measure may withdraw the measure at any time before filing the petition with the appropriate elections official if legislative approval of matters embraced in the measure has been secured as a result of good faith bargaining between competing interests [Elec. Code § 9604(a)]. Withdrawal of a state initiative or referendum measure is effective on receipt by the Secretary of State of a written notice of withdrawal signed by all proponents of the measure [Elec. Code § 9604(b)]. Withdrawal of a local measure is effective on receipt of the notice by the appropriate elections official [Elec. Code § 9604(c)].

Filing the petition is the last step required of the proponents. Thereafter, the appropriate elections official will examine the petition to determine how many "qualified" signatures it contains. If the petition is sufficient, then an election must be scheduled (unless, at a local level, the appropriate legislative body voluntarily takes the action desired by the proponents) [see Elec. Code §§ 9030 et seq., 9113 et seq., 9144 et seq., 9210 et seq., 9239 et seq., 9243, 9310; see also Gov. Code §§ 34452, 34459-34461]. At the local level, the county board of supervisors or the city council may, at its option and before adopting an initiative measure or holding an election, refer the measure to any city or county agency for a report on the impact of the measure on, among other things, the city's or county's general plan [see Elec. Code §§ 9111, 9212].

On certification of an initiative measure for the ballot, copies of the measure and its circulating title and summary are sent to the Senate and Assembly, in which case each house assigns the measure to its appropriate committees. These committees must then hold joint public hearings on the subject of the measure before the date on which it is to be voted on. However, the hearing cannot be held within 30 days before that date. This procedure does not authorize the Legislature to alter the initiative measure or prevent it from appearing on the ballot [Elec. Code § 9034].

Provision is made in the statutes for submission of arguments for and against initiative and referendum measures and for inclusion of the arguments in a voters' pamphlet [see Elec. Code §§ 9060 et seq., 9160 et seq., 9280 et seq., 9295, 9315, 9317, 9380, 9502, 9509, 9600, 9601].

§ 302.16 Privacy Requirements

[1] Legislative Findings and Declarations

The legislature has expressly found and declared [Stats. 2002, ch. 959, § 1]:

- In the Internet age, an individual's voter registration information is in danger of being shared, sold, or borrowed for purposes outside of the strict limits of the law.

- There exists a need to provide greater security for information contained in voter files, which generally may be accessed from the offices of county elections officials, the office of the Secretary of State, commercial vendors, and campaign consultants.

Further, it is the intent of the legislature that a voter be fully informed of the permissible uses of personal information supplied by him/or for the purpose of completing a voter registration affidavit [Elec. Code § 2157.1].

[2] Printed Initiative Petition Requirements and Notices on Voter Registration Cards

In addition to other required contents of a petition or paper for any state or local initiative, the following notices must be placed prior to the portion for voter's signature, printed names, and residence address, in 12-point type:

- "THIS PETITION MAY BE CIRCULATED BY A PAID SIGNATURE GATHERER OR A VOLUNTEER. YOU HAVE THE RIGHT TO ASK." [Elec. Code § 101].

Many circulators of petitions provide voter registration cards alongside the petitions since only registered voters are allowed to sign the petitions [see Elec. Code § 100]. Voter registration cards must now contain [Elec. Code § 2157(5), (6), (7)]:

- In a type size and color of ink that is clearly distinguishable from surrounding text, a statement identical or substantially similar to the following:

> "Certain voters facing life-threatening situations may qualify for confidential voter status. For more information, please contact the Secretary of State's Safe at Home program or visit the Secretary of State's Web site at www.ss.ca.gov." [Publisher's Note: Although the code section containing this prescribed language remains unchanged, the website referred to is now located at http://www.sos.ca.gov/.]

- In a type size and color of ink that is clearly distinguishable from surrounding text, a statement that the use of voter registration information for commercial purposes is a misdemeanor pursuant to Elec. Code § 2194(a), and any suspected misuse shall be reported to the Secretary of State.

- A toll-free fraud hotline telephone number maintained by the Secretary of State that the public may use to report suspected fraudulent activity concerning misuse of voter registration information.

[3] Proponent Requirements and Declarations Before Circulating Initiative Petitions

The proponents of an initiative measure must ensure that any person, company, or other organization that is paid, or who volunteers, to solicit signatures to qualify the proposed measure for the ballot must receive instruction on the requirements and prohibitions imposed by state law with respect to circulation of the petition and signature gathering, with an emphasis on the prohibition on the use of signatures on an initiative petition for a purpose other than qualification of the proposed measure for the ballot [Elec. Code § 9607].

A proponent of an initiative measure must execute and submit, along with the request for a title and summary for the proposed measure, a signed statement that reads as follows [Elec. Code § 9608(a)]:

> I, _____, acknowledge that it is a misdemeanor under state law (Section 18650 of the Elections Code) to knowingly or willfully allow the signatures on an initiative petition to be used for any purpose other than qualification of the proposed measure for the ballot. I certify that I will not knowingly or willfully allow the signatures for this initiative to be used for any purpose other than qualification of the measure for the ballot.

This certification must be kept on file by the agency authorized to prepare the title and summary for the proposed initiative measure for not less than eight months after the certification of the results of the election for which the measure qualified for, or if the measure, for any reason, is not submitted to the voters, eight months after the deadline for submission of the petition to the elections official [Elec. Code § 9608(b)]. Failure to comply with this section does not invalidate any signatures on a state or local initiative petition [Elec. Code § 9608(c)].

Prior to allowing a person to circulate an initiative petition for signatures, the person, company official, or other organizational officer who is in charge of signature gathering must execute and submit to the proponents, a signed statement that reads as follows [Elec. Code § 9609(a)]:

> I, _____, acknowledge that it is a misdemeanor under state law (Section 18650 of the Elections Code) to knowingly or willfully allow the signatures on an initiative petition to be used for any purpose other than qualification of the proposed measure for the ballot. I certify that I will not knowingly or willfully allow the signatures for this initiative to be used for any purpose other than qualification of the measure for the ballot.

This certification must be kept on file by the proponents of the proposed initiative measure for not less than eight months after the certification of the results of the election for which the measure qualified, or if the measure, for any reason, is not submitted to the voters, eight months after the deadline for submission of the petition to the elections official [Elec. Code § 9609(b)]. Failure to comply with this section does not invalidate any signatures on a state or local initiative petition [Elec. Code § 9609(c)].

Prior to soliciting signatures on an initiative petition, a circulator must execute and submit to the person, company official, or other organizational officer who is in charge of signature gathering a signed statement that reads as follows [Elec. Code § 9610(a)]:

> I, _____, acknowledge that it is a misdemeanor under state law (Section 18650 of the Elections Code) to knowingly or willfully allow the signatures on an initiative petition to be used for any purpose other than qualification of the proposed measure for the ballot. I certify that I will not knowingly or willfully allow the signatures for this initiative to be used for any purpose other than qualification of the measure for the ballot.
> Dated this _____ day of _____, 20_____

This certification must be kept on file by the person, company official, or other organizational officer who is in charge of signature gathering for the proposed initiative measure for not less than eight months after the certification of the results of the election for which the measure qualified, or if the measure, for any reason, is not submitted to the voters, eight months after the deadline for submission of the petition to the elections official [Elec. Code § 9610(b)]. This requirement does not apply to unpaid circulators of state or local initiative petitions [Elec. Code § 9610(c)]. Failure to comply with this section does not invalidate any signatures on a state or local initiative petition [Elec. Code § 9610(d)].

[4] Statement Regarding Permissible Uses of Voter Registration Information

In order that a voter be fully informed of the permissible uses of personal information supplied by him or her for the purpose of completing a voter registration affidavit, local elections officials must post on any local elections official Web site relating to voter information, and the Secretary of State must print in the state ballot pamphlet and post on his or her Web site, a statement identical or substantially similar to the following [Elec. Code § 2157.2]:

> "Information on your voter registration affidavit will be used by elections officials to send you official information on the voting process, such as the location of your polling place and the issues and candidates that will appear on the ballot. Commercial use of voter registration information is prohibited by law and is a misdemeanor. Voter information may be provided to a candidate for office, a ballot measure committee, or other person for election, scholarly, journalistic, political, or governmental purposes, as determined by the Secretary of State. Driver's license and social security numbers, or your signature as shown on your voter registration card, cannot be released for these purposes. If you have any questions about the use of voter information or wish to report suspected misuse of such information, please call the Secretary of State's Voter Protection and Assistance Hotline.
> Certain voters facing life-threatening situations may qualify for confidential voter status. For more information, please contact the Secretary of State's Safe At Home program or visit the Secretary of State's Web site at www.ss.ca.gov." § 302.20 Construction of Initiatives

Even though the legislative power is firmly vested in the Legislature, under the state constitution the people have reserved to themselves the powers of initiative and referendum. The power of the initiative has been recognized as one of the most precious rights of the democratic process [Kennedy Wholesale, Inc. v. State Bd. of Equalization (1991) 53 Cal. 3d 245, 250, 279 Cal. Rptr. 325, 806 P.2d 1360] . Therefore, the initiative power, as well as a statute or ordinance enacted by initiative, is required to be liberally construed to promote the democratic process [Amador Valley Joint Union High Sch. Dist. v. State Bd. of Equalization (1978) 22 Cal. 3d 208, 219, 149 Cal. Rptr. 239, 583 P.2d 1281 ; Arvin Union School Dist. v. Ross (1985) 176 Cal. App. 3d 189, 198, 221 Cal. Rptr. 720 ; see Proposition 103 Enforcement Project v. Quackenbush (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 1473, 1486, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 342 ; National Paint & Coatings Assn. v. State of California (1997) 58 Cal. App. 4th 753, 760, 68 Cal. Rptr. 2d 360] .

All presumptions favor the validity of initiative measures and mere doubts to validity are insufficient [Santa Clara County Local Transportation Authority v. Guardino (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 220, 253, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 207, 902 P.2d 225] . Any reasonable doubts must be resolved in favor of the exercise of the initiative power [Kennedy Wholesale, Inc. v. State Bd. of Equalization (1991) 53 Cal. 3d 245, 250, 279 Cal. Rptr. 325, 806 P.2d 1360 ; Estate of Cirone (1984) 153 Cal. App. 3d 199, 205-206, 200 Cal. Rptr. 511 ; see Proposition 103 Enforcement Project v. Quackenbush (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 1473, 1486, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 342] . Such measures must be upheld unless their unconstitutionality clearly, positively, and unmistakably appears [Santa Clara County Local Transportation Authority v. Guardino (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 220, 253, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 207, 902 P.2d 225] . Thus, a court is required, whenever possible, to construe an initiative statute or ordinance to ensure its validity [see, e.g., Lesher Communications, Inc. v. City of Walnut Creek (1990) 52 Cal. 3d 531, 543, 277 Cal. Rptr. 1, 802 P.2d 317] . Moreover, a court in an appropriate case may reform, that is, rewrite, an initiative statute to preserve it against invalidation under the Constitution when the court can say with confidence that (1) it is possible to reform the statute in a manner that closely effectuates policy judgments clearly articulated by the electorate, and (2) the electorate would have preferred the reformed construction to the statute's invalidation [Kopp v. Fair Pol. Practices Com. (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 607, 615, 661-663, 670-671, 685, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 108, 905 P.2d 1248 (court declined to reform portions of Proposition 73)].

Apart from the above, statutes and ordinances adopted by initiative are subject to the same constitutional limitations and rules of construction as are other statutes [Marblehead v. City of San Clemente (1991) 226 Cal. App. 3d 1504, 1508, 277 Cal. Rptr. 550 ; see People v. Rizo (2000) 22 Cal. 4th 681, 685, 94 Cal. Rptr. 2d 375, 996 P.2d 27 (in interpreting voter initiative, appellate court applies same principles that govern statutory construction); Hotel Employees & Restaurant Employees Internat. Union v. Davis (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 585, 602, 88 Cal.Rptr. 2d 56, 981 P.2d 990 (statutory initiative is subject to same state and federal constitutional limitations as are Legislature and statutes which it enacts); see also Rosasco v. Commission on Judicial Performance (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 315, 321-326, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 111 (prospective application of initiative); Yoshioka v. Superior Court (1997) 58 Cal. App. 4th 972, 979-992, 68 Cal. Rptr. 2d 553 (retroactive and prospective application of initiative)]. For example, in the interpretation of initiative measures, legislative intent is tantamount to electoral intent, so that courts are required to construe them in such a way as to give effect to the intent of electorate [see Arvin Union School Dist. v. Ross (1985) 176 Cal. App. 3d 189, 198, 221 Cal. Rptr. 720] . Absent ambiguity, it is presumed that voters intend the meaning apparent on the face of an initiative measure. Therefore, a court may not add to or rewrite an initiative statute or ordinance to conform to an assumed intent that is not apparent in its language [Lesher Communications, Inc. v. City of Walnut Creek (1990) 52 Cal. 3d 531, 543, 277 Cal. Rptr. 1, 802 P.2d 317] . Moreover, as a general rule, it is not the judiciary's function to reweigh findings of legislative fact underlying a legislative enactment and to the extent an initiative measure contains findings made by the people as electors that actually state legislative facts, a court will follow the general rule of deference; however, to the extent such findings do not consist of legislative fact, but of statutory or constitutional interpretation, the general rule of deference is not implicated [Hotel Employees & Restaurant Employees Internat. Union v. Davis (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 585, 610, 88 Cal.Rptr. 2d 56, 981 P.2d 990] . Similarly, in the construction of constitutional provisions enacted by initiative, the intent of the electorate is of paramount consideration. Therefore, a court is required to give words their ordinary meanings in determining the proper interpretation of the provisions [Davis v. City of Berkeley (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 227, 234, 272 Cal. Rptr. 139, 794 P.2d 897] . For discussion of the general rules of statutory interpretation including retroactive application, see Ch. 531, Statutes and Ordinances .

There is a general presumption in law that both the Legislature and the electorate by the initiative process are deemed to be aware of laws in effect at the time they enact new laws and are conclusively presumed to have enacted the new laws in light of existing laws having a direct bearing on them. However, unlike cases in which the lawmakers can be presumed to borrow from existing law to supply omitted meaning to later enactments, the presumption that one legislated with full knowledge of existing law is not conclusive, and not even helpful, in cases when a later enactment directly conflicts with an earlier law [McLaughlin v. State Bd. of Education (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 196, 212-213, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 295] . There are important limitations to the initiative process, one of which is the absence of rigorous legislative review to ensure existing initiative's provisions are consistent with existing laws. Thus, the initiative process itself, particularly when viewed in light of the number of existing laws which may be affected by any new law and which may require amendment or repeal to avoid creating conflicts, makes conflicts between the new law and existing laws virtually inevitable [McLaughlin v. State Bd. of Education (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 196, 212-216, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 295] . Therefore, when an initiative measure conflicts with an earlier law, the court will look to the rules of statutory interpretation that can be brought to bear to resolve the conflict. Courts have developed several applicable interpretative paradigms by which a later-enacted law in conflict with an existing statute may be given effect [McLaughlin v. State Bd. of Education (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 196, 219-224, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 295 (new chapter in California's Education Code created by Proposition 227, the "English Language in Public Schools" initiative statute held to amend Educ. Code § 33050 by implication; several rules discussed in case noted in § 308.82[6][c]; see also Ch. 531, Statutes and Ordinances)].

Statutes, ordinances, and constitutional provisions enacted by initiative have unique construction aids not available in the construction of statutes and ordinances enacted through the representative legislative process. For example, ballot arguments are an available and proper aid in construing statutes, ordinances, and constitutional provisions enacted by initiative [see, e.g., Davis v. City of Berkeley (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 227, 237 n.4, 272 Cal. Rptr. 139, 794 P.2d 897 (construction of constitutional provisions); Long Beach City Employees Ass'n v. City of Long Beach (1986) 41 Cal. 3d 937, 943 n.5, 227 Cal. Rptr. 90, 719 P.2d 660 (construction of statutes and ordinances)]. Thus, when such statutes, ordinances, or constitutional provisions are subject to varying interpretations, evidence of their purpose may be drawn from many sources including the historical context of the statutes, ordinances, or constitutional provisions involved, the ballot arguments favoring the measure, and the general statement of purpose found in the initiative [see Amwest Surety Ins. Co. v. Wilson (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 1243, 1256-1257, 48 Cal. Rptr. 2d 12, 906 P.2d 1112 ; see also People v. Rizo (2000) 22 Cal. 4th 681, 685, 94 Cal. Rptr. 2d 375, 996 P.2d 27 (when language is ambiguous, appellate court refers to other indicia of voters' intent, particularly analysis and arguments contained in official ballot pamphlet); McLaughlin v. State Bd. of Education (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 196, 215-216, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 295 (when statutory language may appear to be unambiguous yet latent ambiguity exists, courts must go behind literal language and analyze intent of law using customary rules of statutory construction or legislative history for guidance; this may include reference to ballot materials in case of initiatives to discern what average voter would understand to be intent of law on which he or she was voting); Professional Engineers v. Wilson (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 1013, 1020, 72 Cal. Rptr.2d 111 (when meaning of words not clear, court may use ballot analysis and arguments presented to voters); Citizens for Responsible Government v. City of Albany (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 1199, 1209 n.1, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 102 (courts may consider analysis and arguments in official ballot pamphlet)]. Ballot titles and summaries are also proper aids in ascertaining the purpose, as well as the voters' intent and understanding, of initiative statutes and ordinances [see, e.g., Lesher Communications, Inc. v. City of Walnut Creek (1990) 52 Cal. 3d 531, 541-543, 277 Cal. Rptr. 1, 802 P.2d 317 ; Legislature v. Deukmejian (1983) 34 Cal. 3d 658, 673 n.14, 194 Cal. Rptr. 781, 669 P.2d 17 ; Professional Engineers v. Wilson (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 1013, 1020, 72 Cal. Rptr.2d 111 (official summary)]. When the language is clear and unambiguous, however, there is no need for construction, nor is it necessary to resort to indicia of the intent of the voters [Jahr v. Casebeer (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 1250, 1254, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 172 ; see McLaughlin v. State Bd. of Education (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 196, 215, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 295 (resort to legislative materials or other external sources is unnecessary)]. However, the court will not presume that the lawmakers intended the literal construction of a law if that construction would result in absurd consequences. In those circumstances, the court must consider extrinsic evidence of the voters intent despite the unambiguous language of the enactment [Woo v. Superior Court (2000) 83 Cal. App. 4th 967, 975, 100 Cal. Rptr. 2d 156] .

It should be noted that under Cal. Const., art II, § 10(c) the Legislature may not amend or repeal an initiative statute without voter approval unless the initiative statute permits amendment or repeal without their approval. It is common for an initiative measure to include a provision authorizing the Legislature to amend the initiative without voter approval only if the amendment furthers the purpose of the initiative [Amwest Surety Ins. Co. v. Wilson (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 1243, 1251, 48 Cal. Rptr. 2d 12, 906 P.2d 1112] . When such a provision exists and the Legislature thereafter amends the initiative statute without voter approval, construction issues can arise [see, e.g., Amwest Surety Ins. Co. v. Wilson (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 1243, 1256-1265, 48 Cal. Rptr. 2d 12, 906 P.2d 1112 (Ins. Code § 1861.135, subsequently repealed in 2004, held invalid because it does not further purposes of Proposition 103); see also People v. Snyder (2000) 22 Cal. 4th 304, 311, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 734, 992 P. 2d 1102 (construing Gov. Code §§ 83116.5 and 91015)]. For discussion of amendment or repeal of an initiative statute or ordinance, see §§ 302.29, 302.30.

2. Initiative

§ 302.21 State Measure

[1] Commencement of Initiative Petition Process

An initiative proceeding for enactment, amendment, or repeal of a state statute or adoption of an amendment to the state constitution may be begun at any time.

The Secretary of State is required to prepare and provide to any person, on request, a pamphlet describing the procedures and requirements for preparing and circulating a statewide initiative measure and for filing sections of the petition, and describing the procedure used in determining and verifying the number of qualified voters who have signed the petition [Elec. Code § 9018].

[2] Circulating Title and Summary

[a] Request for Circulating Title and Summary for State Initiative Measure

Prior to the circulation of any initiative petition for signatures, the text of the proposed measure must be submitted to the Attorney General with a written request that a circulating title and summary of the chief purpose and points of the proposed measure be prepared [see Cal. Const., art II, § 10(d); Costa v. Superior Court (2006) 37 Cal. 4th 986, 1009, 39 Cal. Rptr. 3d 470] . The electors presenting the request are the "proponents" [Elec. Code § 342]. The Attorney General must preserve the written request until after the next general election [Elec. Code § 9001(a)].

Each and every proponent of any proposed initiative measure must, at the time of submitting the text of the proposed measure, provide both (1) an original signed certification stating, "I, [name], declare under penalty of perjury that I am a citizen of the United States, 18 years of age or older, and a resident of [county], California," and (2) public contact information [Elec. Code § 9001(b)].

The proponents of any initiative measure, at the time of submitting the text of the proposed measure to the Attorney General, must pay a fee, which will be placed in a trust fund in the office of the Treasurer and will be refunded to the proponents if the measure qualifies for the ballot within two years from the date the summary is furnished to the proponents. If the measure does not qualify within that period, the fee will be paid into the General Fund of the state [Elec. Code § 9001(c)].

All proposed initiative measures must be submitted to the Attorney General's Initiative Coordinator, located in the Sacramento office, by U.S. Postal Service mail or alternative mail service or personal delivery. Only printed documents will be accepted; facsimile or e-mail delivery will not be accepted [Elec. Code § 9001(d)].

The Attorney General's office will not treat a request for a circulating title and summary as submitted until the foregoing requirements are met [Elec. Code § 9001(e)].

[b] Preparation of Circulating Title and Summary for State Initiative Measure

On receipt of the text of a proposed initiative measure, the Attorney General must prepare a circulating title and summary of the chief purpose and points of the proposed measure [see Elec. Code § 303.5(c)(1)(A)]. The circulating title and summary must not exceed a total of 100 words [see Elec. Code § 303.5(c)(2)]. The Attorney General must also provide a unique numeric identifier for each proposed initiative measure. The circulating title and summary must be prepared in the manner provided for the preparation of ballot titles and summaries in Elec. Code § 9050 et seq., the provisions of which, in regard to the preparation, filing, and settlement of ballot titles and summaries, are applicable to the circulating title and summary [Elec. Code § 9004(a)].

The title and summary need not contain a complete catalogue of all the measure's provisions. They must instead summarize its chief purposes and points [see Cal. Const., art. II, § 10(d); Elec. Code § 9004(a)]. The title and summary prepared by the Attorney General is, as a general rule, presumed to be accurate [see Lungren v. Superior Court (1996) 48 Cal. App. 4th 435, 439, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 690] , and substantial compliance with the chief-purpose-and-points requirement is all that is required [see Amador Valley Joint Union High Sch. Dist. v. State Bd. of Equalization (1978) 22 Cal. 3d 208, 243, 149 Cal. Rptr. 239, 583 P.2d 1281 ; Lungren v. Superior Court (1996) 48 Cal. App. 4th 435, 439-440, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 690 ; Brennan v. Board of Supervisors (1981) 125 Cal. App. 3d 87, 96, 177 Cal. Rptr. 677] .

The Attorney General must provide a copy of the circulating title and summary and its unique numeric identifier to the proponents and to the Secretary of State within 15 days after receipt of the fiscal estimate or opinion prepared by the Department of Finance and the Joint Legislative Budget Committee pursuant to Elec. Code § 9005. The date the copy is delivered or mailed to the proponents is the "official summary date" [Elec. Code § 9004(b)]. (A petition with signatures on a proposed initiative measure must be filed with the county elections official not later than 150 days from the official summary date [Elec. Code § 9014; see § 302.21[4][c]].)

On receipt of the circulating title and summary from the Attorney General, the Secretary of State must, within one business day, (1) notify the proponents and county elections official of each county of the official summary date and (2) provide a copy of the circulating title and summary to each county elections official. This notification must also include a complete schedule showing the maximum filing deadline, and the certification deadline by the counties to the Secretary of State [Elec. Code § 9004(c)].

[c] Compelling Preparation of Circulating Title and Summary

The duty of the Attorney General to prepare a title and summary for a proposed state initiative measure is a ministerial one, and mandate will lie to compel him or her to prepare them when the proposal is in proper form and complies with statutory and constitutional procedural requirements [see Schmitz v. Younger (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 90, 92-93, 145 Cal. Rptr. 517, 577 P.2d 652 ; Warner v. Kenny (1946) 27 Cal. 2d 627, 630-631, 165 P.2d 889] .

[d] Fiscal Estimate or Opinion by Department of Finance and Joint Legislative Budget Committee

The Attorney General, in preparing a circulating title and summary for a proposed initiative measure, must include in the circulating title and summary either an estimate of the amount of any increase or decrease in revenues or costs to the state or local government or an opinion as to whether or not a substantial net change in state or local finances would result if the proposed initiative is adopted [Elec. Code § 9005(a)].

The estimate must be made jointly by the Department of Finance and the Joint Legislative Budget Committee, who must deliver the estimate to the Attorney General so that he or she may include the estimate in the circulating title and summary prepared by him or her [Elec. Code § 9005(b)]. The estimate must be delivered to the Attorney General within 25 working days from the date of receipt of the final version of the proposed initiative measure from the Attorney General, unless, in the opinion of both the Department of Finance and the Joint Legislative Budget Committee, a reasonable estimate of the net impact of the proposed initiative measure cannot be prepared within the 25-day period. In the latter case, the Department of Finance and the Joint Legislative Budget Committee must, within the 25-day period, give the Attorney General their opinion as to whether or not a substantial net change in state or local finances would result if the proposed initiative measure is adopted [Elec. Code § 9005(c)].

Any statement of fiscal impact prepared by the Legislative Analyst pursuant to Gov. Code § 12172(b) (requiring the Secretary of State to obtain a statement of fiscal impact from the Legislative Analyst, on the request of the proponents of an initiative measure) may be used by the Department of Finance and the Joint Legislative Budget Committee in the preparation of the fiscal estimate or the opinion [Elec. Code § 9005(d)].

The 100-word limit for the circulating title and summary prepared by the Attorney General [see Elec. Code § 9004(a); § 302.21[2][b]] is exclusive of the financial estimate or opinion, which is required in addition to (not as part of) the title and summary [Elec. Code § 303.5(c)(2); Holmes v. Jones (2000) 83 Cal. App. 4th 882, 888, 890, 100 Cal. Rptr. 2d 138] .

The Attorney General must provide a copy of the title and summary to the Secretary of State within 15 days after receipt of the final version of a proposed initiative measure, or, if a fiscal estimate or opinion is to be included, then within 15 days after receipt of the fiscal estimate or opinion prepared by the Department of Finance and the Joint Legislative Budget Committee pursuant to Elec. Code § 9005 [Elec. Code § 9002(a)].

If, during that 15-day period, the proponents of the proposed initiative measure submit amendments, other than technical and nonsubstantive amendments, to the final version of the measure, the Attorney General must provide a copy of the title and summary to the Secretary of State within 15 days after receipt of the amendments [Elec. Code § 9002(a)]. An amendment must be submitted with a signed request by all of the proponents to prepare a circulating title and summary using the amended language [Elec. Code § 9002(b)]. The amendment must be submitted to the Attorney General's Initiative Coordinator, located in the Sacramento office, by U.S. Postal Service mail or alternative mail service or personal delivery. Only printed documents will be accepted; facsimile or e-mail delivery will not be accepted [Elec. Code § 9002(c)].

[f] State Initiative Measure Proposed by Attorney General

In the event that the Attorney General is a proponent of a proposed measure, the circulating title and summary of the chief purpose and points of the proposed measure, including an estimate or opinion on the financial impact of the measure, must be prepared by the Legislative Counsel, and the other duties of the Attorney General specified in Elec. Code § 9001 et seq. with respect to the circulating title and ballot title and summary and an estimate of the financial effect of the measure must be performed by the Legislative Counsel [Elec. Code § 9003].

[3] Legislative Hearings on Proposed State Initiative Measure

Immediately on the preparation of the circulating title and summary of a proposed initiative measure, the Attorney General must forthwith transmit copies of the text of the measure and the circulating title and summary to the Senate and the Assembly. The appropriate committees of each house may hold public hearings on the subject of the measure. However, the Legislature has no authority to alter the measure or prevent it from appearing on the ballot [Elec. Code § 9007].

[4] State Initiative Petition

[a] Format of Petition for State Initiative Measure

Any petition for a proposed initiative measure may be presented in sections, but each section must contain a full and correct copy of the circulating title and summary and text of the proposed measure. The text of the proposed measure must be printed in type not smaller than 8 points [Elec. Code § 9012].

A space at least one inch wide shall be left blank across the top of each page of every initiative petition and after the name of each voter who has signed the petition for the use of the county elections official in verifying the petition [Elec. Code § 9013].

Every proposed initiative measure, prior to circulation, must have placed across the top of the petition, in 12-point or larger roman boldface type, the following [Elec. Code § 9008]:

- The circulating title and summary prepared by the Attorney General, which is to be (1) placed on each section of the petition preceding the text of the measure and (2) preceded there by the following statement: "Initiative measure to be submitted directly to the voters," and (3) placed on each page of the petition on which signatures are to appear; and

- The Attorney General's unique numeric identifier, which is to be placed before the circulating title and summary on each page where the circulating title and summary appears.

The purpose of particularly requiring the title and summary to be on the petition is to inform the voters of exactly what is proposed to be put on the ballot and thus to protect voters from being misled, by disclosing the chief purposes and points of the proposed measure [Lesher Communications, Inc. v. City of Walnut Creek (1990) 52 Cal. 3d 531, 542, 277 Cal. Rptr. 1, 802 P.2d 317 ; see City of Irvine v. Irvine Citizens Against Overdevelopment (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 868, 878, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 797] .

The heading of an initiative petition must be in substantially the following form [Elec. Code § 9009]:Initiative Measure to Be Submitted Directly to the Voters

Initiative Measure to Be Submitted Directly to the Voters

The Attorney General of California has prepared the following circulating title and summary of the chief purpose and points of the proposed measure:

[Here set forth the unique numeric identifier provided by the Attorney General and circulating title and summary prepared by the Attorney General.]

To the Honorable Secretary of State of California

We, the undersigned, registered, qualified voters of California, residents of _____ County [or City and County], hereby propose amendments to the Constitution of California [or the _____ Code, relating to _____ ,] and petition the Secretary of State to submit the same to the voters of California for their adoption or rejection at the next succeeding general election or at any special statewide election held prior to that general election or as otherwise provided by law. The proposed constitutional [or statutory] amendments [full title and text of the measure] read as follows:

Specified notices in 12-point type must be printed on the petition regarding paid signature gatherers and signature privacy rights [Elec. Code § 101]. For the text of these notices and discussion of other privacy rights, see § 302.16[2].

[b] Circulation of State Initiative Petition

A petition for a proposed initiative measure may not be circulated for signatures before the official summary date [Elec. Code § 9014]. The official summary date is the date a circulating title and summary of a proposed initiative measure is delivered or mailed by the Attorney General to the proponents of the proposed measure [Elec. Code §§ 336, 9004(b); see § 302.21[2][b]].

Prior to the circulation of a petition, the proponents must:

- Ensure that all signature gatherers receive instruction on the requirements and prohibitions of state law, with an emphasis on prohibited use of signatures [Elec. Code § 9607];

- Submit a signed statement to the state acknowledging criminal penalties for misuse of signatures and certification that the signatures will not be misused [Elec. Code § 9608(a)];

- Have the organizational officer in charge of signature-gathering sign a statement acknowledging criminal penalties for misuse of signatures and certification that the signatures will not be misused [Elec. Code § 9609(a)]; and

- Have the all circulators sign a statement acknowledging criminal penalties for misuse of signatures and certification that the signatures will not be misused [Elec. Code § 9610(a)].

For the text of the required statements, file retention periods, and other privacy requirements, see § 302.16[3].

The petition may be circulated in sections [see Elec. Code § 9012] simultaneously in some or all of the several counties, which is the usual practice. For discussion of the requirement that title, summary, and text appear on each section, see § 302.21[4][a]].

A person who is a voter or who is qualified to register to vote in California may circulate the petition anywhere within the state. Each section of the petition must bear the name of a county or city and county, and only qualified registered voters of that county or city and county may sign that section [Elec. Code § 9021].

Slight discrepancies between the version submitted to the Attorney General [see § 302.21[2][a]] and the version circulated for signature may be permissible if the discrepancies do not mislead the public or otherwise frustrate or undermine the purposes underlying any of the applicable constitutional or statutory provisions or threaten the integrity of the electoral process [Costa v. Superior Court (2006) 37 Cal. 4th 986, 1028, 39 Cal. Rptr. 3d 470 ; cf. MHC Financing Limited Partnership Two v. City of Santee (2005) 125 Cal. App. 4th 1372, 1389, 23 Cal. Rptr. 3d 622 (discussion of other defects)].

Each section of the petition must have attached to it the declaration of the person soliciting the signatures, setting forth the information required by Elec. Code § 104 [Elec. Code § 9022(a)]. The circulator must certify to the content of the declaration and meet other execution requirements [Elec. Code § 9022(b)]. The declaration probably need not be attached until after circulation, but it must be attached before filing, of the petition [see Elec. Code § 104]. The declaration has evidentiary effect as specified in Elec. Code § 9022(b).

In the case of a statute proposed to be enacted, amended, or repealed by initiative petition, the petition must be signed by a number of electors equal to at least 5 percent of the votes for all candidates for Governor at the last preceding gubernatorial election. In the case of a constitutional amendment proposed by initiative petition, the petition must be signed by a number of electors equal to at least 8 percent of the votes for all candidates for Governor at the last preceding gubernatorial election [Cal. Const., art. II, § 8(b); see Elec. Code § 321 (elector defined)].

[c] Filing of State Initiative Petition

Officers required by law to receive or file in their offices any initiative petition must not receive or file any initiative petition not in conformity with Elec. Code § 9001 et seq. [Elec. Code § 9015]. A petition with signatures on a proposed initiative measure must be filed with the county elections official not later than 150 days from the official summary date, and no county elections official may accept a petition on the proposed initiative measure after that period [Elec. Code § 9014].

The state constitution requires the petition to be presented to the Secretary of State [see Cal. Const., art. II, § 8(b)]. Presentation is accomplished by a series of steps [see Elec. Code §§ 9030-9033] that begins with the filing of the sections of the petition with the several county elections officials; all sections that were circulated in a given county are filed all at once with the elections official of that county. Once filed, no petition section may be amended except by order of a court of competent jurisdiction [Elec. Code § 9030(a)]. Filings may occur in separate counties at different times, but all sections of the petition that the proponents wish to file must be filed with the appropriate county elections officials not later than 150 days from the official summary date [Elec. Code § 9014]. The official summary date is discussed in § 302.21[2][b].

It is not clear whether the 150-day period begins with the official summary date or with the following day. Rules of construction would support either view; therefore, the safer course for the proponents is to consider that the period begins with the official summary date. The period ends on the 150th day thereafter, counting consecutively every day. In a leap year [see Gov. Code § 6802], February 29th is considered a separate day, and is to be counted, if it falls in the 150-day period [see Sanguinetti v. Sanguinetti (1937) 9 Cal. 2d 95, 97-98, 69 P.2d 845] . If the 150th day is a holiday [see Gov. Code § 6700 et seq.] or for another reason is a day when the county elections official's office is not open for business, the last day for filing is the next preceding day when the office is open, since the statute requires filing "not later than" the 150th day and specifically enjoins elections officials from accepting any petition after expiration of the 150-day period [see Elec. Code § 9014; see also Steele v. Bartlett (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 573, 574, 116 P.2d 780] . If the election official's office is actually open on the last day for filing, at a time when the office might lawfully be closed, and the petition sections are then presented for filing, the elections official must accept them [see Cosgriff v. Board of Election Comm'rs (1907) 151 Cal. 407, 410, 91 P. 98] .

[5] State Ballot Pamphlet

The Secretary of State is required to prepare a state ballot pamphlet [Elec. Code § 9081]. Provisions relating to its content and other requirements are contained in Elec. Code § 9080 et seq. Elec. Code §§ 9084-9093, inclusive, are a restatement of and are to be construed in conformity with Gov. Code §§ 88001-88007, inclusive [Elec. Code § 9080].

The ballot pamphlet must contain several items concerning each ballot initiative measure, including the official summary prepared by the Attorney General [Elec. Code § 9086; see Lungren v. Superior Court (1996) 48 Cal. App. 4th 435, 439, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 690] .

[b] Objection to Ballot Pamphlet

Under Elec. Code § 9092, the Secretary of State, not less than 20 days before he or she submits the copy of the ballot pamphlet to the state printer, must make the copy available for public examination. Any elector may seek a writ of mandate requiring any copy to be amended or deleted from the ballot pamphlet. A writ of mandate will only issue on clear and convincing proof that the copy in question is false, misleading, or inconsistent with the requirements of the Election Code or Gov. Code §§ 88000-88007, and that issuance of the writ will not substantially interfere with the printing and distribution of the ballot pamphlet as required by law [Elec. Code § 9092; see Gov. Code § 88006; Lungren v. Superior Court (1996) 48 Cal. App. 4th 435, 439, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 690] .

Venue for a proceeding under Elec. Code § 9092 is exclusively in Sacramento County. The Secretary of State must be named as a respondent and the State Printer and the person or official who authored the copy in question must be named as real parties in interest. If the Secretary of State initiates the proceeding, the State Printer must be named as a respondent [Elec. Code § 9092].

Thus, for example, in Lungren v. Superior Court (1996) 48 Cal. App. 4th 435, 439, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 690 , opponents of Proposition 209 asserted the ballot title and ballot label [see Elec. Code § 303 (formerly section 13281)] provided by the Attorney General were misleading in that they failed to describe Proposition 209's true purpose, which they argued was to prohibit affirmative action by state and local government. The superior court entered judgment commanding the Attorney General to revise the ballot title and ballot label to reflect that the chief purpose of the measure is to prohibit affirmative action programs by public entities that are inconsistent with the prohibition in the measure. The court of appeal, however, issued a peremptory writ of mandate directing the superior court to vacate its judgment, holding that by essentially repeating the operative language of Proposition 209 the Attorney General complied with the mandate of Elec. Code § 9051 and former section 9052 that the Attorney General provide the electorate with a true and impartial statement of the purpose of the measure. The superior court was not authorized to require more [Lungren v. Superior Court (1996) 48 Cal. App. 4th 435, 443, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 690].

[6] Submission of State Initiative Measure to Voters

If the measure qualifies for the ballot, it must be submitted to the voters at the next general election held at least 131 days after the measure qualifies. Alternatively, the measure may be submitted to the voters at a special statewide election held before the general election at which it would otherwise be required to appear on the ballot, provided the special election is held at least 131 days after the measure qualifies [Cal. Const., art. II, § 8(c); Elec. Code §§ 9016, 9017; see Elec. Code §§ 324, 356 ("general election" and "special election" defined); see also Brosnahan v. Eu (1982) 31 Cal. 3d 1, 15 n.1, 181 Cal. Rptr. 100, 641 P.2d 200 (dissent noting that whether initiative measure may be presented at primary election, in view of constitutional and statutory requirement that it be presented at general election, has never been resolved by court)].

§ 302.22 County Ordinance Measure

[1] Commencement of Initiative Petition Process

An initiative proceeding for adoption of a county ordinance may be begun at any time.

[2] Filing of Notice of Intention to Circulate County Initiative Petition

Before the proponents may begin to circulate an initiative petition and solicit signatures on it, they must file with the county elections official a notice of their intention to circulate the petition. The notice of intention must be accompanied by the written text of the initiative and a request that a ballot title and summary be prepared [Elec. Code § 9103(a)]. The notice may include a printed statement stating the reason for the proposed petition [Elec. Code § 9104]. The notice must meet form and content requirements [see Elec. Code § 9104]. A signed statement acknowledging the privacy rights of the signatures to be gathered, and acknowledgment of criminal penalties for violation, also must accompany the request [Elec. Code § 9608(a)]. For a copy of the required statement and discussion of other privacy requirements, see § 302.16[3].

The purpose of the notice of intention and the optional statement of reasons is to give the signers of the petition notice of the purpose of the proposed initiative [see Lesher Communications, Inc. v. City of Walnut Creek (1990) 52 Cal. 3d 531, 542, 277 Cal. Rptr. 1, 802 P.2d 317] . Thispurpose is further facilitated by the requirements that the notice be published [see § 302.22[4]] and that it appear on the petition when the petition is circulated for signatures [see § 302.22[5]].

Any person filing a notice of intention with the county elections official must pay a fee. The amount of the fee is set by the board of supervisors but may not exceed a statutorily specified maximum. The fee is refunded to the filer if, within one year of the date of filing the notice, the county elections official certifies the sufficiency of the petition [Elec. Code § 9103(b)].

[3] County Initiative Ballot Title and Summary

[a] Preparation and Content Requirements

The county elections official must immediately transmit a copy of any proposed measure to the county counsel. Within 15 days after the proposed measure is filed, the county counsel must provide and return to the county elections official a ballot title and summary for the proposed measure. The ballot title may differ from any other title of the proposed measure and must express in 500 words or less the purpose of the proposed measure. In providing the ballot title, the county counsel must give a true and impartial statement of the purpose of the proposed measure in such language that the ballot title will be neither an argument nor likely to create prejudice, for or against the proposed measure [Elec. Code § 9105(a)].

As in the case of the notice of intention, the purpose of the required ballot title and summary is to give both petition signers and voters notice of the purpose of the proposed measure [see Lesher Communications, Inc. v. City of Walnut Creek (1990) 52 Cal. 3d 531, 542, 277 Cal. Rptr. 1, 802 P.2d 317] . This purpose is further facilitated by the requirements that the title and summary be published [see Elec. Code § 9105(b), discussed in § 302.22[4]] and that it appear on the petition as circulated [see Elec. Code § 9108, discussed in § 302.22[5]].

The county elections official must furnish a copy of the ballot title and summary to the proponents of the proposed measure [Elec. Code § 9105(b)].

Because the initiative power is limited to the adoption or rejection of actual legislation, a proposed measure that did not contain any such legislation would be beyond the scope of the initiative power, and it would be proper for a county counsel to seek and be granted relief from the duty to prepare a ballot title and summary for such a measure [see Widders v. Furchtenicht (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 769, 776 n.6, 785, 84 Cal. Rptr. 3d 428 (Elec. Code § 9105(a) prescribes same duties for county counsel that Elec. Code § 9203(a) prescribes for city attorney, in essentially identical words; city attorney was not required to prepare ballot titles and summaries for two proposed measures); see also § 302.24[4][a] (discussion of city attorney's duties respecting preparation of ballot title and summary)].

[b] Compelling Amendment of County Initiative Ballot Title or Summary

If the proponent of the ballot measure deems the ballot title or summary to be false, misleading, or inconsistent with the requirements of Elec. Code § 9105 [see [a], above], he or she may, on receipt of a copy of the ballot title and summary prepared by the county counsel, seek a writ of mandate requiring the ballot title or summary to be amended [see Elec. Code § 9106].

After the county counsel has prepared the title and summary under Elec. Code § 9105, only a proponent of the initiative has standing during the prequalification phase to seek an order requiring the county counsel to amend that title and summary; a voter who opposes a proposed countywide initiative is unable to prevent proponents of the initiative from collecting the signatures needed to qualify it for the ballot based on a contention that the title and summary of the initiative prepared by a county counsel is not impartial or accurate [Songstad v. Superior Court of Orange County (2001) 93 Cal. App. 4th 1202, 1208, 113 Cal. Rptr. 2d 729] .

[4] Publication of County Initiative Notice of Intention and Ballot Title and Summary

The proponents must, before circulating the petition, publish the Notice of Intention and the ballot title and summary of the proposed measure in a newspaper of general circulation published in that county. They must then file proof of publication with the elections official [Elec. Code § 9105(b)].

[5] County Initiative Petition

Specified notices in 12-point type must be printed on the petition regarding paid signature gatherers and signature privacy rights [Elec. Code § 101]. For the text of these notices and discussion of other privacy rights, see § 302.16[2].

The ballot title and summary prepared by the county counsel must appear on each section of the petition in accordance with the specifications of Elec. Code §§ 9105(c) and 9108. The notice of intention must also appear on each section of the petition [Elec. Code § 9108]. The text of the measure must be printed in type no smaller than specified in Elec. Code § 9150(c) and the heading of the proposed measure must be in substantially the same form as that set forth in Elec. Code § 9105(c).

An affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) of the person circulating the petition must be attached to each section of the petition. It must be substantially in the same form as set forth in Elec. Code § 104 [Elec. Code § 9109]. The affidavit probably need not be attached until after circulation, but before filing, of the petition [see Elec. Code § 104].

[b] Circulation of County Initiative Petition

Prior to the circulation of a petition, the proponent must:

- Ensure that all signature gatherers receive instruction on the requirements and prohibitions of state law, with an emphasis on prohibited use of signatures [Elec. Code § 9607].

- Submit a signed statement acknowledging criminal penalties for misuse of signatures and certification that the signatures will not be misused [Elec. Code § 9608(a)].

- Have the organizational officer in charge of signature gathering sign a statement acknowledging criminal penalties for misuse of signatures and certification that the signatures will not be misused [Elec. Code § 9609(a)].

- Have the all circulators sign a statement acknowledging criminal penalties for misuse of signatures and certification that the signatures will not be misused [Elec. Code § 9610(a)].

For the text of the required statements, file retention periods, and other privacy requirements, see § 302.16[3].

The proponents may begin circulating the petitions among the voters of the county for signatures by any registered voter of the county after publication of the title and summary prepared by the county counsel [Elec. Code § 9108]. The petition may be circulated in sections [see Elec. Code §§ 9101, 9113] simultaneously throughout the county, which is the usual practice.

The petition must be signed by a number of voters equal to at least 10 percent of the entire vote cast in the county for all candidates for Governor at the last preceding gubernatorial election [see Elec. Code § 9118]. A "voter" is any elector who is registered under the provisions of the Elections Code [Elec. Code § 359]. An "elector" is any person who is a United States citizen 18 years of age or older and a resident of an election precinct at least 15 days before an election [Elec. Code § 321]. The "last preceding gubernatorial election" is defined as the last gubernatorial election that precedes the publication of the notice of intention to circulate the initiative petition [see Elec. Code §§ 9116, 9118].

Signatures must be obtained and the petition presented to the county elections official for filing within 180 days from the date of receipt of the ballot title and summary, or after termination of any action for a writ of mandate to amend the ballot title, summary or both, and, if applicable, after receipt of an amended title, summary, or both, whichever occurs later [Elec. Code § 9110].

[c] Filing of County Initiative Petition

The petition must be filed either by the proponents or by any person or persons authorized by the proponents in writing. All sections of the petition must be filed at one time, and any sections of the petition not so filed will be void for all purposes. Once filed, no petition section may be amended except by court order [Elec. Code § 9113].

A writ of mandate will lie to compel the county elections official to accept and process an initiative petition presented for filing, when all statutory and constitutional procedural and substantive requirements surrounding the petition have been met. For a form of petition for a writ of mandate ordering a county elections official to accept and process an initiative petition presented for filing, see § 302.91.

Once the proponents have filed the petition, the county elections official has 30 days (excluding Saturdays, Sundays, and holidays) from the filing date within which to examine the petition and verify the signatures. If the petition is found insufficient, no further action is taken. However, the failure to secure sufficient signatures does not preclude the filing of a new petition on the same subject at a later date. If the petition is found sufficient, the elections official must certify the results of the examination to the board of supervisors at the next regular meeting of the board [Elec. Code §§ 9114, 9115].

[6] Submission of County Initiative Measure to Voters

If the measure qualifies for the ballot, and (1) the board of supervisors does not adopt the proposed ordinance without alteration at the regular meeting at which the certification of the petition is presented, or within 10 days after it is submitted, or (2) if a report under Elec. Code § 9111 has been ordered at the regular meeting at the time certification of the petition is requested and the board of supervisors, when the report is presented to it, does not adopt the ordinance within 10 days, the measure must be submitted to the voters [Elec. Code §§ 9116, 9118]. The board of supervisors has a mandatory and ministerial duty to submit the measure to the voters under these circumstances, unless it has been directed to do otherwise on court order after a compelling showing that a proper case has been established for interfering with the initiative power [Citizens Against a New Jail v. Board of Supervisors (1976) 63 Cal. App. 3d 559, 561, 134 Cal. Rptr. 36 (decided under former Elec. Code § 3711; now see Elec. Code § 9118)].

With regard to submitting the measure to the voters, both the type and timing of the election to be held are subject to the requirements and conditions of Elec. Code §§ 1405, 9116, 9118. Paramount among these conditions is the number of signatures on the petition [see Elec. Code §§ 9116, 9118].

§ 302.23 County Charter Measure

Any proposal to enact, amend, or otherwise revise a county charter by initiative petition may be submitted to the board of supervisors. Any such proposal is subject to the provisions of Elec. Code § 9100 et seq., which govern initiative proceedings for the adoption of county ordinances [see § 302.22]. Nothing in Elec. Code § 9100 et seq., however, allows a board of supervisors to enact, amend, or otherwise revise a county charter without submitting the proposal to the voters [Elec. Code § 9102; see also Cal. Const., art. XI, § 3(b), (c) (amendment or repeal may be proposed by initiative; election to draft or revise may be required by initiative; discussed in § 302.25)].

§ 302.24 City Ordinance Measure

[1] Application of Statutory Initiative Process

[a] To Charter City

Except as discussed in the next paragraph, the statutes governing initiative proceedings respecting city ordinances [Elec. Code § 9200 et seq.] do not apply to any cities with charters that provide for the direct initiation of ordinances by the voters [Elec. Code § 9247; see Cal. Const., art. II, § 11; see also Cal. Const., art. XI, § 3 (authorization for city charters)].

The initiative process in charter cities with these kinds of provisions in their charters is governed by the city charter rather than by statute. However, a city may adopt the state provisions by incorporating them into its charter [see Billig v. Voges (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 962, 965, 273 Cal. Rptr. 91] .

[b] To Specified Ordinances in Charter or General Law City

Elec. Code § 9200 et seq. is also inapplicable to proceedings for the improvement of streets in or rights-of-way owned by cities, the opening or closing of streets, the changing of grades, or the performance of other work, all or some of the cost of which is to be borne by special assessments on real property [Elec. Code § 9247].

[2] Commencement of City Initiative Petition Process

An initiative proceeding for adoption of an ordinance in any incorporated, that is, general law, city [see Elec. Code § 9200] or in any charter city whose charter incorporates the pertinent state statutes [see Billig v. Voges (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 962, 965, 273 Cal. Rptr. 91] may be begun at any time.

[3] Filing of Notice of Intention to Circulate City Initiative Petition

Before the proponents may circulate an initiative petition and solicit signatures on it, they must file with the city elections official a notice of their intention to circulate the petition. The notice of intention must be accompanied by the written text of the initiative and may be accompanied by a written statement, not in excess of 500 words, setting forth the reasons for the proposed petition [see Elec. Code § 9202(a)].

The notice must be signed by at least one, but not more than three, proponents, and must be in substantially the same form as that set forth in Elec. Code § 9202(a).

The purpose of the notice of intention is to give the petition signers and voters notice of the purpose of the proposed initiative measure [Lesher Communications, Inc. v. City of Walnut Creek (1990) 52 Cal. 3d 531, 542, 277 Cal. Rptr. 1, 802 P.2d 317] . This purpose is further facilitated by the requirements that the notice of intention be published or posted before circulation of the petition [see Elec. Code § 9205; see also [5], below] and that the notice appear on the petition when circulated [see Elec. Code §§ 9203(b), 9207; see also [6], below].

Any person filing a notice of intention with the city elections official must pay a fee. The amount of the fee is set by the legislative body of the city, but cannot exceed a statutory maximum. The fee is to be refunded to the filer if, within one year of the date of filing the notice of intent, the elections official certifies the sufficiency of the petition [Elec. Code § 9202(b)].

[4] City Initiative Ballot Title and Summary

[a] Request, Preparation, and Content Requirements

Before circulating the petition, the proponents must also file a request with the city elections official that a ballot title and summary of the measure be prepared by the city attorney. The request must be accompanied by the address of the person filing the proposed measure [Elec. Code § 9203(a)]. It is probably best to file this request at the same time the notice of intention is filed, because both this request and the notice require a copy of the measure to be filed with the elections official [see Elec. Code §§ 9202(a), 9203(a)]. On receipt of the request, the elections official must immediately transmit a copy of the proposed measure to the city attorney [Elec. Code § 9203(a)]. A signed statement acknowledging the privacy rights of the signatures to be gathered, and acknowledgment of criminal penalties for violation, also must accompany the request [Elec. Code § 9608(a)]. For a copy of the required statement and discussion of other privacy requirements, see § 302.16[3].

Within 15 days after the proposed measure is filed, the city attorney must provide, and return to the elections official, a ballot title for and summary of the proposed measure. The ballot title may differ from any other title of the proposed measure but must express, in 500 words or less, the purpose of the proposed measure. In providing the ballot title, the city attorney must give a true and impartial statement of the purpose of the proposed measure in such language that the ballot title is neither an argument, nor likely to create prejudice, for or against the proposed measure [Elec. Code § 9203(a)].

As in the case of the notice of intention, the purpose underlying the ballot title and summary requirement is to give notice to petition signers and voters of the purpose of the proposed measure [Lesher Communications, Inc. v. City of Walnut Creek (1990) 52 Cal. 3d 531, 542, 277 Cal. Rptr. 1, 802 P.2d 317] . This purpose is further facilitated by the requirements that the title and summary be published or posted prior to circulation of the petition [see Elec. Code § 9205; see also § 302.24[5]], and that they appear on the petition as circulated [see Elec. Code §§ 9203(b), 9207; see also § 302.24[6]].

The elections official must then furnish a copy of the ballot title and summary to the person filing the proposed measure [Elec. Code § 9203(b)].

The city attorney may conclude that the proposed measure does not in fact propose legislation and that, therefore, the proposed measure is outside the scope of the initiative power as conferred by the constitution. On this ground, the city attorney may sue for a declaratory judgment vindicating that conclusion and authorizing the city attorney to decline to prepare a ballot title and summary. As the duty to prepare a ballot title and summary is ministerial, the city attorney is obliged to perform that duty unless and until a court determines that the duty does not exist, on the ground of constitutional violation asserted by the city attorney or on some other ground. The statutory 15-day period for performing that duty [Elec. Code § 9203(a)] is not a deadline for filing the declaratory relief complaint; the action will be timely if commenced with reasonable promptness in the circumstances. In practice, as numerous cases have shown, a city attorney could instead simply arrogate the judicial function and refuse to prepare a ballot title and summary on the basis of asserted unconstitutionality, or on some other ground. The city attorney could then wait for the proponent to sue for a writ of mandate compelling the city attorney to prepare a ballot title and summary, and a successful defense could be based on the ground that was asserted for refusing to do it [Widders v. Furchtenicht (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 769, 776-779, 785, 84 Cal. Rptr. 3d 428 (instead of proposing actual legislation to be enacted, two proposed measures merely stated policies and directed city council to enact unspecified laws pursuant to those policies; neither measure purported to amend or revise any element of city's general plan or municipal code; because initiative power is limited to adoption or rejection of actual legislation, and those proposed measures did not contain any such legislation, it was proper for city attorney to seek and be granted relief from duty to prepare ballot titles and summaries for those measures)].

[b] Compelling Amendment of City Initiative Ballot Title or Summary

If the proponent of the ballot measure deems the ballot title or summary to be false, misleading, or inconsistent with the requirements of Elec. Code § 9203 [see § 302.24[4][a]], he or she may, on receipt of a copy of the ballot title and summary prepared by the city attorney, seek a writ of mandate requiring the ballot title or summary to be amended [see Elec. Code § 9204].

For a form of petition for a writ of mandate requiring the amendment of a ballot title or summary, see § 302.92.

[5] Publication and Posting of City Initiative Notice of Intention, Ballot Title, and Summary

The notice, together with the title and summary of the proposed measure prepared by the city attorney, must be published or posted, or both, in accordance with the requirements of Elec. Code § 9205 [see Elec. Code § 9205].

Substantial compliance with these publication and posting requirements is insufficient. The requirements must be strictly complied with prior to circulation of the petition [Ibarra v. City of Carson (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 90, 95, 99-100, 262 Cal. Rptr. 485] . The city elections official will not count signatures obtained before compliance for purposes of ballot qualification [Ibarra v. City of Carson (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 90, 95, 262 Cal. Rptr. 485] .

Within 10 days after the date of publication or posting, or both, the proponents must file with the city elections official a copy of the notice and ballot title and summary as published and/or posted [Elec. Code § 9206]. The copy must be accompanied by an affidavit of a representative of the newspaper in which the notice, title, and summary were published. If the notice, title, and summary were posted, the copy must be accompanied by the affidavit of a voter of the city. Each affidavit must certify to the fact of publication or posting. If the notice, title, and summary are both published and posted, two affidavits must be filed: one each from a representative of the newspaper of publication and a city voter, certifying, respectively, to the fact that the notice was published and posted [Elec. Code § 9206].

[6] City Initiative Petition

privacy rights [Elec. Code § 101]. For the text of these notices and discussion of other privacy rights, see § 302.16[2].

Before circulation of the petition, the person proposing the measure must place the ballot title and summary prepared by the city attorney, as well as the notice of intention, on each section of the petition [see Elec. Code §§ 9203(b), 9207]. The ballot title must be located, and in type size, as specified in Elec. Code § 9203(b). Similarly, the text of the measure must be set out in the required type size [see Elec. Code §§ 9201, 9203(b)]. A heading of the proposed measure must also appear in substantially the same form as that set forth in Elec. Code § 9203(b).

The purpose of the full text requirement is to provide sufficient information so that registered voters can intelligently evaluate whether to sign the initiative petition and to avoid confusion [Mervyn's v. Reyes (1998) 69 Cal. App. 4th 93, 99, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 148 (petition held invalid for violating full text requirement of Elec. Code § 9201)]. Referendum petitions are subject to similar requirements [Mervyn's v. Reyes (1998) 69 Cal. App. 4th 93, 99, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 148 ; for discussion of the full text requirement concerning referendum, see § 302.45[4][a]].

Additionally, each section of the petition must have attached to it the declaration of the person soliciting the signatures. The declaration must be in substantially the same form as that set forth in Elec. Code § 9022 [see § 302.21[4][a]]. The declaration must meet the additional and/or alternative content requirements of Elec. Code § 9209 [see Elec. Code § 9209]. The declaration probably need not be attached until after circulation, but before filing, of the petition [see Elec. Code §§ 104, 9022].

A city elections official has a ministerial duty to place all initiative measures that comply with formal requirements on the ballot. On the other hand, a city elections official has a duty to reject a duly signed initiative petition that has been circulated without the notice of intention on any of the circulated petition sections [Myers v. Patterson (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 130, 136-138, 241 Cal. Rptr. 751 (decided under former Elec. Code § 4005 (now see Elec. Code § 9207); substantial compliance with requirement not established)].

Pursuant to Elec. Code § 9201, an initiative petition does not have to contain all the information an informed voter would want, only the text of the measure proposed to be enacted. Where passage of an initiative would affect a city's general plan, Elec. Code § 9201 does not require the initiative petition to include the text of every plan, law, or ordinance the measure might affect [We Care-- Santa Paula v. Herrera (2006) 139 Cal. App. 4th 387, 390-391, 42 Cal. Rptr. 3d 577] .

[b] Circulation of City Initiative Petition

Prior to the circulation of a petition, the proponent must:

- Ensure that all signature gatherers receive instruction on the requirements and prohibitions of state law, with an emphasis on prohibited use of signatures [Elec. Code § 9607].

- Submit a signed statement acknowledging criminal penalties for misuse of signatures and certification that the signatures will not be misused [Elec. Code § 9608(a)].

- Have the organizational officer in charge of signature gathering sign a statement acknowledging criminal penalties for misuse of signatures and certification that the signatures will not be misused [Elec. Code § 9609(a)].

- Have the all circulators sign a statement acknowledging criminal penalties for misuse of signatures and certification that the signatures will not be misused [Elec. Code § 9610(a)].

For the text of the required statements, file retention periods, and other privacy requirements, see § 302.16[3].

The proponents may begin circulating the petitions among the voters of the city for signature by any registered voter of the city after publication and/or posting of the notice of intention, title, and summary [Elec. Code § 9207]. The petition may be circulated in sections [see Elec. Code §§ 9201, 9208] simultaneously throughout the city, which is the usual practice.

Except when a city charter otherwise provides [see Cal. Const., art. II, § 11; Elec. Code § 9247], and except when the governing statutes do not apply [see Elec. Code § 9247], an initiative petition that proposes the adoption of a city ordinance must be signed by at least 10 percent of the voters according to the last report of registration by the county elections official to the Secretary of State pursuant to Elec. Code § 2187 (voter registration reports required to be submitted by county elections officials to Secretary of State), effective at the time of publication of the notice of intention to circulate the petition. In a city with 1,000 or fewer voters, the initiative petition will be sufficient if it is signed by 100 voters or 25 percent of the voters, whichever is less [Elec. Code § 9215; see Elec. Code § 359 ("voter" defined)].

Signatures on petitions and sections of petitions must be secured, and the petition, together with all its sections, filed within 180 days from the date of receipt of the title and summary, or after termination of any action for a writ of mandate to amend the ballot title, summary or both, and, if applicable, after receipt of an amended title, summary, or both, whichever occurs later [Elec. Code § 9208].

[c] Filing of City Initiative Petition

The petition must be filed in the office of the elections official during normal posted office hours by the proponents or by any person or persons authorized in writing by the proponents. All sections of the petition must be filed at one time [Elec. Code §§ 9208, 9210]. If the petitions are not filed within the time permitted, they will be void for all purposes [Elec. Code§ 9208]. Once filed, a petition section may be amended only by court order [see Elec. Code § 9210].

[7] Submission of City Initiative Measure to Voters

If the measure qualifies for the ballot, and (1) the legislative body of the city does not adopt the proposed ordinance without alteration at the regular meeting at which the certification of the petition is presented, or within 10 days after it is submitted, or (2) if a report under Elec. Code § 9212 has been ordered at the regular meeting at the time certification of the petition is requested and the legislative body, when the report is presented to it, does not adopt the ordinance within 10 days, the measure must be submitted to the voters [Elec. Code §§ 9214, 9215; see Elec. Code § 9216]. Mandate will lie to compel the city's legislative body to either adopt the proposed ordinance without alteration or submit it to the voters [Blotter v. Farrell (1954) 42 Cal. 2d 804, 812-813, 270 P.2d 481] .

With regard to submitting the measure to the voters, both the type and timing of the election to be held are subject to the requirements and conditions of Elec. Code §§ 1405, 9214, 9215, and 9218. Paramount among these conditions is a specified minimum percentage of voters' signatures on the petition. [see Elec. Code §§ 9214, 9215].

[8] Use of Public Funds in Campaign

In the absence of clear and unmistakable language (in a pertinent constitutional provision, statute, charter provision, or ordinance) specifically authorizing a public entity to expend public funds for campaign activities or materials in connection with an initiative measure, the entity lacks authority to make such expenditures [Vargas v. City of Salinas (2009) 46 Cal. 4th 1, 24, 92 Cal. Rptr. 3d 286, 205 P.3d 207] . However, a public entity could legitimately spend general funds for informational purposes, so as to provide the public with a fair presentation of relevant information relating to an initiative measure [Stanson v. Mott (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 206, 221, 130 Cal. Rptr. 697, 551 P.2d 1] . When public funds have been spent (or will be spent) on activities in connection with an initiative measure, and there is no sufficient specific authorization, the question of whether the expenditure was (or would be) lawful turns on whether the activities fall within the category of informational activities that may be funded through general appropriations or, instead, constitute campaign activities that may not be paid for by public funds in the absence of such explicit authorization [Vargas v. City of Salinas (2009) 46 Cal. 4th 1, 34-35, 92 Cal. Rptr. 3d 286, 205 P.3d 207] . Moreover, the proscription against unauthorized campaign activity does not preclude a governmental entity from publicly expressing an opinion with regard to the merits of a proposed ballot measure and the impact on the entity that passage or defeat of the measure is likely to have, as long as the entity does not expend public funds to mount a campaign on the measure [Vargas v. City of Salinas (2009) 46 Cal. 4th 1, 36-38, 92 Cal. Rptr. 3d 286, 205 P.3d 207 (city council had authority to decide, in advance of election, which services would be cut if revenue-reducing measure were to be adopted, and then to inform city's residents of council's decision; in posting on city's website detailed minutes of all city council meetings relating to council's action, along with detailed and analytical reports prepared by various municipal departments and presented by department officials at city council meetings, city engaged in permissible informational activity rather than campaign activity; providing summary in one-page document that could be obtained on request at city clerk's office also was permissible, as was mailing newsletter, which described proposed cuts in services, to city residents soon before election)].

In many instances the distinction between campaign activities and informational activities is quite evident. Sometimes, however, the line between unauthorized campaign expenditures and authorized informational activities is not so clear, and then the determination of the propriety or impropriety of the expenditure depends on a careful consideration of the style, tenor, and timing of the communicative activity being funded [Stanson v. Mott (1976) 17 Cal.3d 206, 221-222,130 Cal. Rptr. 697, 551 P.2d 1] . Even when a publication or communication imparts useful information and does not expressly advocate a vote for or against a specific ballot measure, the expenditure of public funds to prepare or distribute the publication or communication is improper if the style, tenor, and timing of it demonstrate that it constitutes traditional campaign activity [Vargas v. City of Salinas (2009) 46 Cal. 4th 1, 27, 92 Cal. Rptr. 3d 286, 205 P.3d 207] . Moreover, the circumstance that in some instances it may be necessary to consider the style, tenor, and timing of a communication or activity, so as to determine whether, from an objective standpoint, the communication or activity realistically constitutes campaign activity rather than informational material, does not render the distinction between campaign activities and informational activities impermissibly vague [Vargas v. City of Salinas (2009) 46 Cal. 4th 1, 33-34, 92 Cal. Rptr. 3d 286, 205 P.3d 207] . Thus, a court could conclude that a public entity's activities relating to an initiative measure are more properly characterized as providing information than as campaigning when (1) the information conveyed generally involved past and present pertinent facts--for instance, regarding a measure to repeal a city tax: how the original tax was enacted, what proportion of the budget was produced by the tax, and how the city council had voted to modify the budget if the tax were repealed; (2) the communications avoided argumentative or inflammatory rhetoric and did not urge voters to vote in a particular manner or to take other actions in support of or in opposition to the measure; and (3) the information provided and the manner in which it was disseminated were consistent with established practice regarding the communication media, such as use of the entity's website and regular circulation of the entity's official newsletter [Vargas v. City of Salinas (2009) 46 Cal. 4th 1, 40, 92 Cal. Rptr. 3d 286, 205 P.3d 207] .

A statute provides that an officer, employee, or consultant of a local agency may not expend or authorize the expenditure of any of the funds of the local agency to support or oppose the approval or rejection of a ballot measure, or the election or defeat of a candidate, by the voters [Gov. Code § 54964(a)]. This refers to a payment of public funds for communications that expressly advocate the approval or rejection of a clearly identified ballot measure, or the election or defeat of a clearly identified candidate, by the voters [Gov. Code § 54964(b)(3) (definition of expenditure)]. However, the statute does not affirmatively authorize or permit a municipality or other local agency to expend public funds on a communication, provided that it does not expressly advocate the approval or rejection of a ballot measure; rather, the statute simply prohibits a municipality's use of public funds for communications that expressly advocate such a position. In other words, nothing in the statute purports to grant authority to a local agency or its officers or employees to use public funds to pay for communications or activities that would constitute campaign activities, provided the communications do not "expressly advocate" the approval or rejection of a ballot measure or candidate [Vargas v.

City of Salinas (2009) 46 Cal. 4th 1, 29, 92 Cal. Rptr. 3d 286, 205 P.3d 207] . On the other hand, the statute does not prohibit the expenditure of public funds by local agencies to propose, draft, or sponsor a ballot measure, including expenditures to marshal support for placing the measure on the ballot, or to inform the public of need for a sales or use tax or bond offering to provide revenue to pay for public improvements [Santa Barbara County Coalition Against Auto. Subsidies v. Santa Barbara County Ass'n of Gov'ts (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 1229, 1242, 84 Cal. Rptr. 3d 714] .

That statute also provides that it does not prohibit the expenditure of local agency funds to provide information to the public about the possible effects of a ballot measure on the activities, operations, or policies of the local agency, if both of the following conditions are met: (1) the informational activities are not otherwise prohibited by California law, and (2) the information provided constitutes an accurate, fair, and impartial presentation of relevant facts to aid the voters in reaching an informed judgment regarding the ballot measure [Gov. Code § 54964(c)]. This is merely an exception to the statute's general prohibition, above, for communications that satisfy the two specified conditions; this does not purport to be an affirmative grant of authority to local entities to expend funds for communications that fall within its purview [Vargas v. City of Salinas (2009) 46 Cal. 4th 1, 29-30, 92 Cal. Rptr. 3d 286, 205 P.3d 207] .

[1] Initiative for Election to Form Charter Commission

[a] General Steps

The enactment, amendment, or repeal of a city charter, or of a city and county charter, may be proposed by initiative petition for an election to establish a charter commission [see Cal. Const., art. XI, § 3(c); Gov. Code § 34450]. Alternatively, the governing body of the city or city and county may call an election to form a charter commission [see Cal. Const., art. XI, § 3(c); Gov. Code §§ 34450, 34452-34458].

When the enactment, amendment, or repeal is proposed by initiative petition, a two-step election process ensues. The first step entails placing on the ballot, by initiative petition, the questions of (1) whether to draft or revise the charter and (2) whom to elect as members of a charter commission to do the actual drafting or revising [see Cal. Const., art. XI, § 3(c); Gov. Code §§ 34452, 34453]. Assuming the measure receives a majority affirmative response to the first question, the second step entails the drafting or revising of a proposed charter by the elected charter commissioners, filing it in the office of the clerk of the governing body of the city or city and county, and then submitting the proposed charter to the voters for their approval at a subsequent, second election [see Gov. Code §§ 34453, 34455, 34457]. Thus, the proposed charter is never itself thesubject of the initiative petition; the final election to approve the proposed charter results from the actions of the charter commission [see Gov. Code § 34452 et seq.].

As an alternative to the initiative process to establish a charter commission, a city or city and county charter may also be amended or repealed pursuant to Elec. Code § 9255 et seq. [Gov. Code § 34450]. For discussion of the initiative procedure under the Elections Code, see § 302.25[2].

[b] Petition and Election

There is no requirement that the initiative process for the election of charter commissioners be commenced at a particular time. There is also no requirement that the proponents give any notice of their intentions to circulate the petition, or that they take any other preliminary steps before circulating the petition and soliciting signatures on it. In addition, there is no time limit for filing a petition that proposes the election of charter commissioners [see Gov. Code § 34452(a)].

The petition must be signed by not less than 15 percent of the registered voters of the city or city and county. The petition also must be verified by the authority having charge of the registration records of the city, or city and county. If the petition satisfies these requirements, the governing body must call a regular election for one of the dates set forth in Elec. Code § 1000 (regular election dates) and consolidate the election pursuant to Elec. Code § 10403, if necessary, with any statewide election being held on that date [Gov. Code § 34452(a)].

At the election, the voters vote first on the question whether a charter commission should be elected to propose a new charter and, secondly, for the candidates for the office of charter commissioner [Gov. Code § 34453]. (Presumably, the first question is worded differently if the proposal is to revise an existing charter rather than to adopt a new charter.) The charter commission candidates are nominated as provided in Gov. Code § 34454. They are not nominated by initiative petition [see Gov. Code § 34454].

If the first question receives less than a majority of the votes of the qualified voters voting on the measure, then no charter commission is deemed to have been elected. If, however, the first question receives a majority of the votes of the qualified voters voting on the measure, then the 15 candidates for the office of charter commissioner receiving the highest number of votes must organize as a charter commission [Gov. Code § 34453]. The elected commissioners must then propose a charter and may propose amendments to a charter, which is filed in the office of the clerk of the governing body of the city or city and county, and subsequently submitted to the voters [Gov. Code §§ 34455, 34457].

[2] Initiative for Election to Adopt Proposed Charter Amendments

[a] Availability and Commencement of Process

The amendment or repeal of a city charter, or of a city and county charter, may be proposed directly by initiative petition [see Cal. Const., art. XI, § 3(b); Elec. Code § 9255(a)(3), (4); Gov. Code § 34450]. Alternatively, amendment or repeal may be proposed directly by the governing body of the city or city and county [see Gov. Code § 34458]. A charter commission elected or appointed by the governing body may also propose a charter, or a charter commission may submit a charter pursuant to Gov. Code § 34455 [Elec. Code § 9255(a)(1); see Gov. Code § 34452; see also § [1], above]. The following discussion focuses on the initiative process to amend or repeal a city or city and county charter pursuant to Elec. Code § 9255 et seq.

The initiative process for amendment or repeal can be begun at any time.

[b] Notice of Intention to Circulate Petition, Ballot Title, and Summary

Before circulating a charter amendment initiative petition for signatures, the petition's proponents are subject to the same precirculation requirements as are proponents of an initiative petition to adopt a city ordinance [Elec. Code § 9256]. Thus, the proponents of the charter amendment petition must file with the city elections official both a notice of their intention to circulate the petition and a written text of the proposed amendment [Elec. Code § 9256; see Elec. Code § 9202, discussed in § 302.24[3]]. They must also file with the elections official a request that the city attorney prepare a ballot title for and a summary of their proposed amendment [Elec. Code § 9256; see Elec. Code § 9203, discussed in § 302.24[4][a]]. They have the right to seek a writ of mandate ordering amendment of the ballot title or the summary if either, or both, do not meet certain statutorily specified conditions [Elec. Code § 9256; see Elec. Code §§ 9203, 9204, discussed in § 302.24[4][b]; see also § 302.92, form of petition for writ of mandate by proponent of initiative against county counsel or city attorney for false, misleading, or not impartial ballot title or summary]. A signed statement acknowledging the privacy rights of the signatures to be gathered, and acknowledgment of criminal penalties for violation, also must accompany the request [Elec. Code § 9608(a)]. For a copy of the required statement and discussion of other privacy requirements, see § 302.16[3]. Finally, they must publish or post, or publish and post, the notice of intention and the ballot title and summary, and file affidavits of proof of such publication and/or posting with the city elections official [Elec. Code § 9256; see Elec. Code §§ 9205, 9206, discussed in § 302.24[5]].

[c] Contents of Charter Amendment Initiative Petition

Specified notices in 12-point type must be printed on the petition regarding paid signature gatherers and signature privacy rights [Elec. Code § 101]. For the text of these notices and discussion of other privacy rights, see § 302.16[2].

Each section of the petition must bear a copy of the notice of intention and the title and ballot summary [Elec. Code § 9256; see Elec. Code § 9207]. The petition must set forth the full text of the proposed amendment [Elec. Code §§ 9257, 9262]. The petition must be in substantially the same form as that set forth in Elec. Code § 9260 and must meet the format requirements of Elec. Code §§ 9262 and 9263 [Elec. Code § 9260; see Elec. Code §§ 9262, 9263].

The affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) of the person soliciting the signatures must be attached to each section of the petition. The affidavit (or declaration) must be substantially in the form set forth in Elec. Code § 9022 (declaration of circulator of state initiative petition) and must comply with the requirements of Elec. Code §§ 104 (partial required contents of circulator's declaration) and 9209 (declaration of circulator of city initiative petition) [Elec. Code § 9261]. The declarations may probably be attached after circulation, but before filing, of the petition [see Elec. Code §§ 104, 9022].

[d] Circulation of Charter Amendment Initiative Petition

Prior to the circulation of a petition, the proponent must:

- Ensure that all signature gatherers receive instruction on the requirements and prohibitions of state law, with an emphasis on prohibited use of signatures [Elec. Code § 9607].

- Submit a signed statement acknowledging criminal penalties for misuse of signatures and certification that the signatures will not be misused [Elec. Code § 9608(a)].

- Have the organizational officer in charge of signature gathering sign a statement acknowledging criminal penalties for misuse of signatures and certification that the signatures will not be misused [Elec. Code § 9609(a)].

- Have the all circulators sign a statement acknowledging criminal penalties for misuse of signatures and certification that the signatures will not be misused [Elec. Code § 9610(a)].

For the text of the required statements, file retention periods, and other privacy requirements, see § 302.16[3].

The petition may be circulated in sections, which is the usual manner of circulation [see Elec. Code § 9258]. Each signer must sign it in the manner prescribed by Elec. Code § 9020 (manner of signature on statewide initiative or referendum petition) [Elec. Code § 9259]. A voter maywithdraw his or her signature from a petition in the manner prescribed in Elec. Code § 9602 (manner of withdrawing signature from initiative or referendum petition) [Elec. Code § 9264].

A petition proposing an amendment to or a repeal of a city charter must be signed by 15 percent of the registered voters of the city [Elec. Code § 9255(a)(3); see Elec. Code § 359 ("voter" defined)]. A petition proposing an amendment to or a repeal of a city and county charter must be signed by 10 percent of the registered voters of the city and county [Elec.

Code § 9255(a)(4); see Elec. Code § 359 ("voter" defined)].

[e] Filing of Charter Amendment Initiative Petition

The petition must be filed not more than 200 days after the date on which the notice of intent to circulate was published or posted, or both. It is filed with the elections official by the proponents, or by any person or persons authorized in writing by the proponents. All sections of the petition must be filed at one time. No petition section submitted subsequently may be accepted by the elections official [Elec. Code § 9265]. Petitions that do not substantially conform to the form requirements of Elec. Code §§ 9255 et seq. will not be accepted for filing by the elections official [Elec. Code § 9267].

[f] Submission of Charter Amendment Initiative Measure to Voters

If the petition is signed by the minimum number of registered voters required by Elec. Code § 9255(a)(3), (4), (c), the proposal must be submitted to the voters at either a special election called for that purpose, at any established municipal election date, or at any established election date set forth in Elec. Code § 1000, as long as there are at least 88 days before the election [Elec. Code § 9255(a)].

The two statutes governing initiatives to repeal or amend city charters, Elec. Code § 9255 and Elec. Code § 1415, have no maximum time limits. Nothing in them requires a city council to order the election at the next available opportunity. Indeed, the fact that each statute allows options in election dates refutes that idea [Jeffrey v. Superior Court (2002) 102 Cal. App. 4th 1, 3-6, 125 Cal. Rptr. 2d 175] .

[3] Effect of Voter Approval of Conflicting Measures

If provisions of two or more measures approved at the same election conflict, those of the measure receiving the highest affirmative vote prevail [Cal. Const., art. XI, § 3(d)].

[4] Submission to Secretary of State After Election and Publication

On completion of the canvass of votes after the election, the elections official submits the adopted measures to the Secretary of State [see Elec.Code § 9269]. If the vote is in favor of the measure, then the charter proposal, amendment, or repeal is deemed to be ratified, but cannot take effect until it is accepted and filed by the Secretary of State [Gov. Code §§ 34459, 34460; see Cal. Const., art. XI, § 3(a)]. A charter proposal, amendment, or repeal by the voters that is submitted to the Secretary of State by the elections official in compliance with the provisions of Gov. Code § 34450 et seq. must be accepted and filed by the Secretary of State [Gov. Code § 34461].

The charter proposal, amendment, or repeal must then be published in the official state statutes. A county charter adopted pursuant to Cal. Const., art. XI, § 3(a), supersedes all laws inconsistent with that charter, and also supersedes any existing charter. The provisions of a charter are the law of the state and have the force and effect of legislative enactments [Cal. Const., art. XI, § 3(a); Gov. Code § 34461].

After a charter proposal, amendment, or repeal is accepted and filed by the Secretary of State, the courts must take judicial notice of it [Gov. Code § 34461].

25-302 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 302.26

§ 302.26 District Ordinance Measure

[1] Application of Initiative Process

As a general rule, district ordinances may be enacted by initiative petition pursuant to Elec. Code § 9300 et seq. [Elec. Code § 9300]. For the purposes of the availability of the initiative under Elec. Code § 9300 et seq., "district" includes any regional agency that has the power to tax, to regulate land use, or to condemn and purchase land [Elec. Code § 317].

However, the initiative is unavailable to the following types of districts [Elec. Code § 9300]:

- An irrigation district;
- A district formed under a law that does not provide a procedure for elections;
- A district formed under a law that does not provide for action by ordinance (a school district is an example of this type of district);
- A district governed by an election procedure that permits voters, in electing the district's directors or trustees, to cast more than one vote per voter; or
- A district in which the directors are empowered to cast more than one vote per director when acting on any matter.

[2] Commencement of District Initiative Petition Process

An initiative proceeding for adoption of an ordinance in any of certain kinds of districts [see Elec. Code §§ 317, 9300] may be commenced at any time.

[3] Publication and Posting of Notice of Intention to Circulate District Initiative Petition and Statement of Reasons

Before circulating an initiative petition, the proponents of the measure must publish and/or post a notice of intention, accompanied by a printed statement of the reasons for the proposed petition that is not to exceed 500 words. The notice must be signed by at least one, but not more than five, proponents, and must be in substantially the same form as set forth in Elec. Code § 9302 [Elec. Code § 9302]. The notice and statement must then be published in a newspaper or posted in the district, or both, as required by Elec. Code § 9303.

The purpose of the notice of intention and statement of reasons is to give the petition signers and voters notice of the purpose of the proposed initiative measure [see Lesher Communications, Inc. v. City of Walnut Creek (1990) 52 Cal. 3d 531, 542, 277 Cal. Rptr. 1, 802 P.2d 317] . This purpose is further facilitated by the requirements that the notice of intention be published or posted prior to circulation of the petition [see Elec. Code § 9303] and that the notice and statement appear on the petition when circulated [see Elec. Code § 9305; see also [5], below].

Contrary to the case of county and city initiative petitions, there is no statutory requirement that the notice of intention be filed with the district elections official before publication and/or posting. Prior filing may be strongly recommended by the district elections official.

[4] Filing of Notice and Statement and Proof of Publication and Posting

Within 10 days of the date of the publication and/or posting of the notice and statement, the proponents of the district measure must file with the district elections official a copy of the notice and statement as published and/or posted. With the notice and statement, the proponents must file an affidavit or declaration of a representative of the newspaper in which the notice was published, or if the notice was posted, an affidavit or declaration of a voter of the district, certifying to the fact of publication or posting [Elec. Code § 9304].

[5] District Initiative Petition

Specified notices in 12-point type must be printed on the petition regarding paid signature gatherers and signature privacy rights [Elec. Code § 101]. For the text of these notices and discussion of other privacy rights, see § 302.16[2].

Each section of the petition must bear a copy of the notice of intention and statement [Elec. Code § 9305].

An affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) of the person who solicited the signatures must be attached to each section of the petition. The affidavit must be in substantially the same form as that set forth in Elec. Code § 9022, and must include the additional and/or alternative contents set forth in Elec. Code § 9307 [Elec. Code § 9307; see Elec. Code §§ 104 (form and content of circulators' declarations), 9022 (governing contents, certification, and evidentiary effect of declaration of circulator of state initiative petition)]. The affidavit probably need not be attached until after circulation, but before filing, of the petition [see Elec. Code §§ 104, 9022].

[b] Initiative Petition

Prior to the circulation of a petition, the proponent must:

- Ensure that all signature gatherers receive instruction on the requirements and prohibitions of state law, with an emphasis on prohibited use of signatures [Elec. Code § 9607].

- Submit a signed statement acknowledging criminal penalties for misuse of signatures and certification that the signatures will not be misused [Elec. Code § 9608(a)].

- Have the organizational officer in charge of signature gathering sign a statement acknowledging criminal penalties for misuse of signatures and certification that the signatures will not be misused [Elec. Code § 9609(a)].

- Have the all circulators sign a statement acknowledging criminal penalties for misuse of signatures and certification that the signatures will not be misused [Elec. Code § 9610(a)].

For the text of the required statements, file retention periods, and other privacy requirements, see § 302.16[3].

The petition may be circulated among the voters of the district after the publication or posting, or both, of the notice of intention and statement [Elec. Code § 9305].

Signatures must be obtained and the petition filed within 180 from the date of publication and/or posting of the notice of intention and statement [Elec. Code § 9306].

The petition must be signed by not less than 10 percent of the registered voters in the district if the total number of registered voters in the district is less than 500,000. The petition must be signed by not less than 5 percent of the registered voters in the district if the total number of registered voters in the district is 500,000 or more [Elec. Code § 9310(a); see Elec. Code §§ 359 ("voter" defined), 9305 (requiring signatures of "registered" voters)]. The number of registered voters is calculated as of the time of the last report of registration by the county elections official to the Secretary of State made before publication or posting of the notice of intention to circulate the petition [Elec. Code § 9310(b)].

[c] Filing of District Initiative Petition

The signed petitions and sections thereof must be filed within 180 days from the date of publication or posting (or both) of the notice of intention and statement; a petition that does not meet this deadline is void for all purposes [Elec. Code § 9306]. Given the consequences of a failure to comply with this somewhat ambiguous time limitation, the proponents should compute the final date to file the petition using the most conservative view of the statute [see § 302.21[4][c]].

[6] Submission of District Initiative Measure to Voters

If the measure qualifies for the ballot, and the district board does not adopt the proposed ordinance without alteration either at the regular meeting at which the certification of the petition is presented, or within 10 days after it is presented, the measure must be submitted to the voters [Elec. Code §§ 9310, 9311].

With regard to such nonadopted measures, if the petition contains a request that the ordinance be submitted immediately to a vote at a special election, the district board must immediately order that the ordinance be submitted to the voters without alteration under Elec. Code § 1405(a) [Elec. Code § 9310(a)(2)]. If the petition, however, does not request a special election, the district board must submit the ordinance to the voters, without alteration, under Elec. Code § 1405(b), unless the ordinance petitioned for is required to be, or for some reason is, submitted to the voters at a special election under Elec. Code § 1405(a) [Elec. Code § 9311(b); see also Elec. Code §§ 348, 356 (defining "regular" and "special" elections)].

The Legislature may amend or repeal an initiative statute by another statute that becomes effective only when approved by the electors, unless the initiative statute permits amendment or repeal without their approval [Cal. Const., art. II, § 10(c); In re Oluwa (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 439, 445-446, 255 Cal. Rptr. 35 ; see Proposition 103 Enforcement Project v. Quackenbush (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 1473, 1483-1484, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 342 (legislature may amend initiative statute only if voters specifically provide for that power, and subject to any conditions voters attached to that power)]. The purpose of California's constitutional limitation on the legislature's power to amend initiative statutes is to protect the people's initiative powers by precluding the legislature from undoing what the people have done, without the electorate's consent [Proposition 103 Enforcement Project v. Quackenbush (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 1473,1484, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 342] . Thus, amendments which may conflict with the subject matter of initiative measures must be accomplished by popular vote, as opposed to legislatively enacted statutes, when the original initiative does not provide otherwise [see Proposition 103 Enforcement Project v. Quackenbush (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 1473, 1483-1485, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 342] .

An amendment is any change of the scope or effect of an existing statute or ordinance, whether by addition, omission, or substitution of provisions, that does not wholly terminate its existence, whether by an act purporting to amend, repeal, revise, or supplement, or by an act independent and original in form [Mobilepark West Homeowners Assn. v. Escondido Mobilepark West (1995) 35 Cal. App. 4th 32, 40, 41 Cal. Rptr. 2d 393 ; Franchise Tax Bd. v. Cory (1978) 80 Cal. App 3d 772, 776-777, 145 Cal. Rptr. 819] . A statute that adds to or takes away from an existing statute is considered an amendment. Moreover, an amendment of an initiative may be accomplished by some action other than the subsequent enactment of a statute; the question is whether the action in question adds to or takes away from the initiative [Proposition 103 Enforcement Project v. Quackenbush (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 1473, 1485, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 342] .

Whether an act amends existing law is not determined solely by the title, or by statements in the new act that it amends existing law. Rather, one must examine and compare the provisions of the new law with existing law. If the aim of the act is to clarify or correct uncertainties that arose from the enforcement of the existing law, or to reach situations that were not covered by the original statute, the act is amendatory, even though in its working it does not purport to amend the language of the prior act [Mobilepark West Homeowners Assn. v. Escondido Mobilepark West (1995) 35 Cal. App. 4th 32, 40, 41 Cal. Rptr. 2d 393 ; see also Lesher Communications, Inc. v. City of Walnut Creek (1990) 52 Cal. 3d 531, 540 n.8, 277 Cal. Rptr. 1, 802 P.2d 317] .

For discussion relating to the interpretation of legislative acts generally, see Ch. 531, Statutes and Ordinances .

Initiatives commonly include a provision authorizing the Legislature to amend the intitiative without voter approval only if the amendment furthers the purpose of the initiative [Amwest Surety Ins. Co. v. Wilson (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 1243, 1251, 48 Cal. Rptr. 2d 12, 906 P.2d 1112 ; see Proposition 103 Enforcement Project v. Quackenbush (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 1473, 1490, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 342] . In determining whether an amendment by the Legislature is valid under such a provision, the court will start with the presumption that the Legislature acted within the scope of its authority and will uphold the amendment if, by any reasonable construction, it can be said that the statute furthers the purposes of the initiative [Amwest Surety Ins. Co. v. Wilson (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 1243, 1256, 48 Cal. Rptr. 2d 12, 906 P.2d 1112 (holding amendment invalid)]. The court is guided by, but not limited to, the general statement of purpose found in the initiative when discerning the initiative purposes so as to determine whether a legislative amendment furthers its purpose and thus is valid [Proposition 103 Enforcement Project v. Quackenbush (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 1473, 1490, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 342 (repeal and reenactment of Ins. Code § 769.2 did not further purposes of Proposition 103 was beyond legislature's power)]. For discussion of construction aids available to help ascertain initiative's purpose, see § 302.20.

Once a portion of an initiative has been held unconstitutional and severable, that portion is void and has been stricken from the initiative. The legislature cannot thereafter amend something that no longer exists [see Proposition 103 Enforcement Project v. Quackenbush (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 1473, 1488-1489, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 342] .

[2] Of Initiative Ordinance

An ordinance proposed by initiative petition and adopted either by the board of supervisors, the city's legislative body, or the district board without submission to the voters or by the voters can be amended or repealed only by a vote of the people, unless provision is otherwise made in the original ordinance [Elec. Code §§ 9125 (county), 9217 (city), 9323 (district)]. Statutes relating to county and district initiative ordinances expressly provide that in all other respects, a county or district ordinance proposed by initiative petition and adopted has the same force and effect as any ordinance adopted by the board of supervisors or the district board [Elec. Code §§ 9125 (county), 9323 (district)].

For discussion relating to whether an act constitutes an amendment of an initiative measure, see [1], above.

§ 302.40 Nature of Referendum

The referendum is the power of the electors to approve or reject all or parts of state statutes or local ordinances [see Cal. Const., art. II, §§ 9(a), 11, and art. IV, § 1; Hopping v. Council of City of Richmond (1915) 170 Cal. 605, 609-610, 150 P. 977 ; see Empire Waste Management v. Town of Windsor (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 714, 717, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 262 (referendum is means by which electorate may approve or reject measures passed by legislative body); see also § 302.03]. Thus, the referendum places before the voters one discrete issue. Because the expression of the voters' will is direct, there is no need to rely on representatives to articulate the voters' opinions [see Southern Cal. Rapid Transit Dist. v. Bolen (1992) 1 Cal. 4th 654, 670-671, 3 Cal. Rptr. 2d 843, 822 P.2d 875 (issue-specific nature of special-benefit assessment district referendum and fact that vote on it would be direct expression of voter opinion enables court to analyze whether approval or rejection of referendum has disproportionate impact on identifiable group of voters for purposes of equal protection)]. The statute or ordinance may come before the electorate for approval or rejection in two ways. The Legislature or the local governing body may refer the statute or the ordinance to the electorate directly without a petition [see Elec. Code §§ 9040 et seq. (state statute), 9140, 9342 (county and district ordinances, respectively)]. Alternatively, the electorate may petition the Legislature or the local governing body to refer the statute or the ordinance to the electorate [Cal. Const., art. II, § 9(b); Elec. Code §§ 9000 et seq. (state statute), 9144 (county ordinance), 9237 (city ordinance), 9340 (district ordinance)]. This subpart addresses the procedures governing the exercise of the right of state and local voters to petition for referendum.

Legislation affording the people the right to repeal legislation, like legislation affording the people the right to initiate legislation or recall public officials, is to be given the same liberal construction as that extended to election statutes generally [Reites v. Wilkerson (1950) 99 Cal. App. 2d 500, 503, 222 P.2d 81 ; see Wilcox v. Enstad (1981) 122 Cal. App. 3d 641, 651, 176 Cal. Rptr. 560] .

The scope of the referendum power is generally coextensive with the scope of legislative authority. Any legislative decision made by a representative body is subject to referendum. Some specific subjects, however, are constitutionally and statutorily exempted from the scope of state or local referenda (see Cal. Const., art. II, § 9(a); Elec. Code § 9247) [Empire Waste Management v. Town of Windsor (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 714, 717, n.1, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 262] . Moreover, a referendum may review only legislative decisions, but not matters that are strictly executive or administrative [Empire Waste Management v. Town of Windsor (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 714, 717 n.1, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 262] . For further discussion of limitations on the scope of the referendum power, see § 302.12.

§ 302.42 State Referendum Measure

[1] Commencement of Petition Process

A referendum proceeding respecting a statute or part of a statute may be begun at any time, even before the statute is enacted. There is no specific prohibition against beginning a referendum proceeding before the statute in question has been enacted, such as while the bill to enact it is pending when it becomes evident that the bill will pass the Legislature and that the Governor will sign it (or, at least, will not veto it). Opponents of a pending bill, if they intend to start a referendum proceeding in the event the bill passes and becomes a law, should not overlook this point. As explained below, if they wait until the statute is enacted, they might have as little as 59 days (or less) in which to circulate their petition and obtain the minimum required number of signatures.

[2] Circulating Title and Summary

[a] Request for Circulating Title and Summary for State Referendum

Prior to the circulation of any referendum petition for signatures, the text of the proposed measure must be submitted to the Attorney General with a written request that a circulating title and summary of the chief purpose and points of the proposed measure be prepared [see Cal. Const., art II, § 10(d)]. The electors presenting the request are the "proponents" [Elec. Code § 342]. The Attorney General must preserve the written request until after the next general election [Elec. Code § 9001(a)].

All referenda must be submitted to the Attorney General's Initiative Coordinator, located in the Sacramento office, by U.S. Postal Service mail or alternative mail service or personal delivery. Only printed documents will be accepted; facsimile or e-mail delivery will not be accepted [Elec. Code § 9001(d)].

The Attorney General's office will not treat a request for a circulating title and summary as submitted until the foregoing requirements are met [Elec. Code § 9001(e)].

[b] Preparation of Circulating Title and Summary for State Referendum

On receipt of the text of a proposed referendum, the Attorney General must prepare a circulating title and summary of the chief purpose and points of the proposed statute at issue [see Elec. Code § 303.5(c)(1)(B)]. The circulating title and summary must not exceed a total of 100 words [see Elec. Code § 303.5(c)(2)]. No fiscal analysis is required be included [Elec. Code § 9006(a)].

The Attorney General must provide a copy of the circulating title and summary of the proposed referendum to the proponents and to the Secretary of State within 10 days after receipt of the proposed referendum [Elec. Code § 9006(b)].

On receipt of the circulating title and summary from the Attorney General, the Secretary of State must, within one business day, (1) notify the proponents and county elections official of each county of the official summary date and (2) provide a copy of the circulating title and summary to each county elections official. This notification must also include a complete schedule showing the maximum filing deadline, and the certification deadline by the counties to the Secretary of State [Elec. Code § 9006(c)].

[c] Compelling Preparation of Circulating Title and Summary

The duty of the Attorney General to prepare a title and summary for a proposed state referendum measure is a ministerial one, and mandate will lie to compel him or her to prepare them when the proposal is in proper form and complies with statutory and constitutional procedural requirements [cf. Schmitz v. Younger (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 90, 92-93, 145 Cal. Rptr. 517, 577 P.2d 652 (so holding with respect to preparation of title and summary for initiative measure)].

[3] Legislative Hearings on Proposed State Referendum Measure

Immediately on the preparation of the circulating title and summary of a referendum measure, the Attorney General must forthwith transmit copies of the text of the measure and the circulating title and summary to the Senate and the Assembly. The appropriate committees of each house may hold public hearings on the subject of the measure. However, the Legislature has no authority to alter the measure or prevent it from appearing on the ballot [Elec. Code § 9007].

[4] State Referendum Petition

[a] Format of Petition for State Referendum

Any petition for a referendum may be presented in sections, but each section must contain a full and correct copy of the circulating title and summary and text of the proposed measure. The text of the proposed measure must be printed in type not smaller than 8 points [Elec. Code § 9012].

A space at least one inch wide shall be left blank across the top of each page of every referendum petition and after the name of each voter who has signed the petition for the use of the county elections official in verifying the petition [Elec. Code § 9013].

Across the top of each page of a referendum petition must be printed in 12-point boldface type the following: 'Referendum Against an Act Passed by the Legislature' [Elec. Code § 9010].

Across the top of each page after the first page of every referendum petition or section of a referendum petition, which is prepared and circulated, must be printed in 18-point gothic type a short title, in 20 words or less, showing the nature of the petition and the subject to which it relates. A space at least one inch wide must be left blank at the top of each page and after each name, for the use of the county elections official, in verifying the petition [Elec. Code § 9011].

[b] Circulation of State Referendum Petition

A petition for a referendum may not be circulated for signatures before the official summary date [Elec. Code § 9014]. The official summary date is not defined by statute but probably is the date a circulating title and summary of the proposed referendum is delivered or mailed by the Attorney General to the proponents of the referendum [cf. Elec. Code § 336 (so providing with respect to proposed initiative measure); see § 302.42[2][b]].

The petition may be circulated in sections [see Elec. Code § 9012] simultaneously in some or all of the several counties, which is the usual practice.

A person who is a voter or who is qualified to register to vote in California may circulate the petition anywhere within the state. Each section of the petition must bear the name of a county or city and county, and only qualified registered voters of that county or city and county may sign that section [Elec. Code § 9021].

Each section of the petition must have attached to it the declaration of the person soliciting the signatures, setting forth the information required by Elec. Code § 104 [Elec. Code § 9022(a)]. The circulator must certify to the content of the declaration and meet other execution requirements [Elec. Code § 9022(b)]. The declaration probably need not be attached until after circulation, but it must be attached before filing, of the petition [see Elec. Code § 104]. The declaration has evidentiary effect as specified in Elec. Code § 9022(b).

The petition must be signed by electors equal in number to at least 5 percent of the votes for all candidates for Governor in the last preceding gubernatorial election [see Cal. Const., art. II, § 9(b); see also Elec. Code § 321 (elector defined)].

[c] Filing of State Referendum Petition

Officers required by law to receive or file in their offices any referendum petition must not receive or file any referendum petition not in conformity with Elec. Code § 9001 et seq. [Elec. Code § 9015]. A petition for a proposed referendum measure must be filed with the county elections officials not later than 90 days from the date the legislative bill was chaptered by the Secretary of State, and a county elections official must not accept a petition for the proposed referendum after that period [Elec. Code § 9014].

The petition must be presented to the Secretary of State within 90 days after the enactment date of the statute. In the case of a statute enacted by a bill passed by the Legislature on or before the date the Legislature adjourns for a joint recess to reconvene in the second calendar year of the biennium of the legislative session, and in the possession of the Governor after that date, the petition may not be presented on or after January 1 next following the enactment date unless a copy of the petition is submitted to the Attorney General for preparation of a ballot title and summary before January 1 [Cal. Const., art. II, § 9(b)].

Presentation of the petition to the Secretary of State is accomplished by a series of steps [see Elec. Code § 9030 et seq.], of which the proponents perform only the first step of filing the petition and its sections with the several county elections officials. All sections circulated in a given county, and that the proponents wish to file, must be filed at the same time with the elections official of that county [Elec. Code § 9030(a)]. Filings may occur in separate counties at different times. However, all sections of the petition that the proponents wish to file must, as a practical matter, be filed with the appropriate county elections officials well before the expiration of the 90-day period prescribed in the Constitution. Once filed, no petition section may be amended except by court order [Elec. Code § 9030(a)].

A petition is deemed filed with the Secretary of State on the date of the receipt by the Secretary of State of one or more certificates from one or more county elections officials showing the petition to be signed by the requisite number of voters [Elec. Code § 9033]. Unless that date is within 90 days after the enactment date of the statute in question, the referendum proceeding will fail [see Cal. Const., art. II, § 9(b)]. Therefore, if the proponents begin a referendum proceeding after the statute in question is enacted, they might in fact have only 59 days (or less) in which to circulate the petition and obtain the minimum required number of signatures.

The 90-day period is measured from the day following the enactment date, counting that day as the first. The period ends on the 90th day thereafter, counting consecutively every day. In a leap year, February 29 is considered a separate day, and is counted if it falls in the 90-day period [see Sanguinetti v. Sanguinetti (1937) 9 Cal. 2d 95, 97-98, 69 P.2d 845] . It is not clear what the consequence would be if the 90th day is a holiday [see Gov. Code § 6700 et seq.] and the last necessary elections official's certificate is received by the Secretary of State on the following day or two days later. It is also unclear when an elections official's certificate will be deemed received by the Secretary of State, which could become troublesome in view of the fact that all of the several elections officials are likely to mail their certificates at different times.

The enactment date of a statute is the date when the bill embodying it becomes a law, irrespective of the statute's effective or operative date. A bill becomes a law when the Governor signs it or, if he or she omits to sign it and does not veto it, on the day after expiration of the period during which he or she might have vetoed it [see Cal. Const., art. IV, § 10; County of Orange v. Flournoy (1974) 42 Cal. App. 3d 908, 912-913, 117 Cal. Rptr. 224] .

[5] Submission of State Referendum Measure to Voters

If a referendum measure qualifies for the ballot, it must be submitted to the voters at the next general election held at least 31 days (rather than 131 days as in the case of an initiative measure [see Cal. Const., art. II, § 8(c)]) after the measure qualifies [Cal. Const., art. II, § 9(c); see Elec. Code § 324 ("general election" defined)]. If for any reason the measure is not submitted to the voters at the next succeeding statewide election, that failure will not prevent its submission at a succeeding statewide election [Elec. Code § 9017; see Elec. Code §§ 357 ("statewide election" defined), 1200 (statewide general election date)].

Alternatively, the measure may be submitted to the voters at a special statewide election held before the general election at which it would otherwise be required to appear on the ballot [Cal. Const., art. II, § 9(c); see Elec. Code § 356 ("special election" defined)].

The filing of a valid referendum challenging a statute normally stays implementation of the statute until after a vote by the electorate [Assembly v. Deukmejian (1982) 30 Cal. 3d 638, 656, 180 Cal. Rptr. 297, 639 P.2d 939] . If a referendum petition is filed against a part of a statute, the remainder is not delayed from going into effect [Cal. Const., art. II, § 10(a)].

[7] Amendment or Repeal of Referendum Statute

The Legislature may amend or repeal referendum statutes [Cal. Const., art. II, § 10(c)].

[8] Effective Date of Referendum Statute

A referendum statute approved by a majority of votes takes effect the day after the election, unless the measure provides otherwise [Cal. Const., art. II, § 10(a)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Initiative and Referendum
3. Referendum

25-302 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 302.43

§ 302.43 County Measure

[1] Commencement of Referendum Petition Process

The referendum petition process respecting all or part of a county ordinance must be commenced before the effective date of the ordinance in question [see Elec. Code § 9144; see also Mapstead v. Anchundo (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 246, 259, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 602] , and the petition must be filed with the county elections official before that date [see Elec. Code §§ 9144, 9146; see also Elec. Code §§ 9113-9115, discussed in § 302.22[5][c]].

The referendum petition must be circulated during the 30 days following passage of ordinance in question. Signatures collected prior to passage of the ordinance will not be counted [see Mapstead v. Anchundo (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 246, 258-260, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 602 (requiring registrar to count signatures that according to circulator's declaration had been collected too early, when petition revealed clerical error and showed that signatures were collected within required time period)].

[2] Effective Date of County Ordinance

Except for an ordinance granting a franchise, the following county ordinances take effect immediately [Elec. Code § 9141(a); Gov. Code § 25123; Ortiz v. Board of Supervisors (1980) 107 Cal. App. 3d 866, 873, 166 Cal. Rptr. 100] :

- Those calling or otherwise relating to an election;
- Those specifically required by law to take immediate effect;
- Those fixing the amount of money to be raised by taxation or the rate of taxes to be levied; and
- Those for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health, or safety; these types of ordinances must contain a declaration of the facts constituting the necessity and must be passed by a four-fifths vote of the board of supervisors.

All other ordinances, including ordinances granting a franchise, become effective 30 days from and after the date of final passage [Elec. Code § 9141(b); Gov. Code § 25123; see Kuhs v. Superior Court (1988) 201 Cal. App. 3d 966, 973-974, 247 Cal. Rptr. 544 (construing former Elec. Code § 3751 to mean "30 days after the date of final passage"; statute subsequently amended in 1989 consistent with this construction [see now Elec. Code § 9141])].

Regardless of the above, however, ordinances authorizing the issuance of revenue bonds by a county as part of a joint powers entity pursuant to Gov. Code § 6547 do not take effect for 60 days [Elec. Code § 9142(a)]. Similarly, ordinances or parts of ordinances that change supervisorial salaries become effective 60 days from the date of final passage [Elec. Code § 9143].

The date of final passage (or adoption [see Gov. Code § 25123.5], which is the same thing) has no connection with the effective or operative date and is, apparently, the date on which the last act is done that is necessary to make the ordinance a law [see Solomon v. Alexander (1911) 161 Cal. 23, 25-28, 118 P. 217] .

Even if the date of final passage or adoption can be easily determined, there still may be some doubt as to which is the effective date. When time is measured "from the date" of an event, that date might or might not be included in the period measured; rules of construction vary [see, e.g., Mapstead v. Anchundo (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 246, 258-259, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 602 (construing Gov. Code § 9114 concerning validity of signatures on referendum petition; ordinance before court passed on February 6, and 30-day qualifying period was from February 7 through March 7)]. When time is measured "after" an event, the date of that event would logically be excluded from the period measured. The safest course for proponents of a referendum is to assume that the critical period begins with the date of final passage counted as the first day and runs without interruption to and including the thirtieth or sixtieth day thereafter, which day should be considered the effective date of an ordinance that does not take effect immediately. In a leap year, February 29 is considered a separate day, and is counted, if it falls within the period [see Sanguinetti v. Sanguinetti (1937) 9 Cal. 2d 95, 97-98, 69 P.2d 845] .

[3] Conduct of County Referendum Petition Process

With a few exceptions discussed below, the provisions of the Elections Code relating to the form of petitions, the duties of the county elections official, and the manner of holding elections when an ordinance is proposed by initiative petition govern the procedure on referenda petitions filed against ordinances [see Elec. Code § 9146]. These provisions are set out in Elec. Code § 9100 et seq. and are discussed in § 302.22. They include the requirements of filing and publishing a notice of intention to circulate the petition and of obtaining a ballot title and summary from the county counsel [see Elec. Code §§ 9103-9105]. They also include the petition content requirement that the ballot title and summary appear on the petition [see Elec. Code § 9105(c)].

An exception is that the heading of a proposed referendum measure must be in substantially the same form as that set forth in Elec. Code § 9147(a). Additionally, each section of the petition must contain the title and text of the ordinance or the portion of the ordinance that is the subject of the referendum [Elec. Code § 9147(b)].

Specified privacy requirements were added to the Elections Code effective January 1, 2003 [2002 Cal. stats 959]. For "initiative measures," statements are required to be filed acknowledging the privacy rights of the signatures to be gathered, and acknowledgment of criminal penalties for violation; and these statements must accompany the request for preparation of the official title and summary [Elec. Code § 9608(a)]. Whether these requirements are extended to "referendum measures" remains to be seen, but the prudent course of action for proponents would be to follow these privacy requirements. For discussion of these privacy requirements, see § 302.16.

[4] Required Number of Signatures on County Referendum Petition

The referendum petition must be signed by voters of the county equal in number to at least 10 percent of the entire vote cast within the county for all candidates for Governor at the last preceding gubernatorial election [Elec. Code § 9144; see Elec. Code § 359 ("voter" defined)]. Elec. Code § 9144 has been construed to require that no less than 10 percent of the entire electorate who voted at the last gubernatorial general election support a referendum measure before the legislative process can be subverted [Sylva v. Board of Supervisors (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 648, 654, 256 Cal. Rptr. 138] . Signatures that do not include the voter's residence are not counted as valid [Elec. Code §§ 100, 105; Mapstead v. Anchundo (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 246, 261-264, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 602 (signatures listing post office boxes or mailing addresses rather than residence addresses or other descriptions of place of residence were invalid)].

When the ordinance under attack authorizes the issuance of revenue bonds by a county that is part of a joint powers entity pursuant to Gov. Code § 6547, the number of signatures required is different and is governed by Elec. Code § 9142. For discussion of this signature requirement, see § 302.47.

[5] Filing of County Referendum Petition

By filing the referendum petition with the county elections official, the proponents take the only step they need toward presentation of the petition to the board of supervisors. As previously noted [see [1], above], the petition must be filed before the effective date of the ordinance in question [see Elec. Code § 9144]. No statute prohibits filing a petition before the ordinance has been adopted. Therefore, it is arguable that an ordinance that takes effect immediately may be subject to a referendum by filing a petition before the date of final passage (adoption). Indeed, it would follow that any referendum petition may be filed before the ordinance in question has been adopted, and that filing would not be premature but would be effective for all purposes. On the other hand, the courts are likely to be reluctant to take this view [see, e.g., Hopping v. Council of City of Richmond (1915) 170 Cal. 605, 609-610, 150 P. 977 (analogizing local referendum power to statewide referendum power); see also Cal. Const., art. II, § 9(a) (limiting statewide referendum power and excluding urgency statutes, which take effect immediately); Mapstead v. Anchundo (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 246, 258-260, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 602 (referendum petition required to be circulated during 30 days following passage of ordinance in question)].

If the last day for filing is a holiday [see Gov. Code § 6700 et seq.] or for another reason is a day when the elections official's office is not open for business, the last day for filing becomes the next preceding day when the elections official's office is open since the statute requires filing before the effective date of the ordinance [see Elec. Code § 9144; see also Steele v. Bartlett (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 573, 574, 116 P.2d 780] . If the elections official's office is actually open on the last day for filing, at a time when the office might lawfully be closed, and the petition is then presented for filing, the elections official must accept it [see Cosgriff v. Board of Election Comm'rs (1907) 151 Cal. 407, 410, 91 P. 98] .

A writ of mandate will lie to compel the county elections official to accept and process a referendum petition presented for filing, when all statutory and constitutional procedural and substantive requirements surrounding the petition have been met. For a form for a petition for a writ of mandate ordering a county elections official to accept and process a referendum petition presented for filing, see § 302.91.

[6] Effect of Referendum Petition on County Ordinance

Presentation of a referendum petition to the board of supervisors suspends the ordinance in protest of which the petition has been drawn up [Elec. Code § 9144; see Mapstead v. Anchundo (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 246, 273, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 602 ; see also In re Stratham (1920) 45 Cal. App. 436, 439-440, 187 P. 986 (when municipal ordinance has been suspended by referendum petition and then has been repealed, city council may not subsequently enact another ordinance that is in all essential features like repealed ordinance); § 302.45[6]].

[7] Submission of County Referendum Measure to Voters

When the county elections official timely certifies the referendum petition to the board of supervisors, the supervisors must reconsider the ordinance. If the supervisors do not entirely repeal the ordinance, they must submit the ordinance to the voters at the next regularly scheduled county election occurring not less than 88 days after the date of the order or at a special election called for that purpose not less than 88 days after the date of the order [Elec. Code § 9145; see Mapstead v. Anchundo (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 246, 273, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 602] .

[8] Effective Date of County Referendum Ordinance

If the ordinance is submitted to the electorate, it does not become effective unless and until a majority of the voters vote in favor of it [Elec. Code § 9145; see Mapstead v. Anchundo (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 246, 273, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 602] .

§ 302.44 County Legislative Act Undertaken by Resolution

The right of referendum is available to county electors to attack county resolutions constituting legislative acts (as opposed to other resolutions, for example, those constituting administrative acts) [Midway Orchards v. County of Butte (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 765, 782, 269 Cal. Rptr. 796] . Although there is no legislative provision for referenda procedures to attack legislative acts accomplished by county resolution, the state constitution provides that referendum power is reserved to the people, and case law holds that the power reserved to the citizens of the state is identical to the powers reserved to the citizens of cities, towns, and counties [Midway Orchards v. County of Butte (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 765, 777, 777 n.28, 269 Cal. Rptr. 796 ; see Cal. Const., art. II, §§ 9(a), 11; art. IV, § 1]. This constitutional provision is self-executing, so that the power of referendum may be exercised even in the absence of facilitating legislation [MidwayOrchards v. County of Butte (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 765, 777-778, 269 Cal. Rptr. 796] . Moreover, the failure of the Legislature to enact implementing legislation, amounting to a denial of constitutionally protected rights, may be remedied by the courts [Midway Orchards v. County of Butte (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 765, 778, 269 Cal. Rptr. 796 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 187 (granting courts all means necessary to exercise of their jurisdiction)].

The procedures under Elec. Code § 9140 et seq., specifically applicable to referenda to attack an ordinance, also apply to referenda to attack a resolution that constitutes a legislative act, such as one adopting or amending a county general plan [Midway Orchards v. County of Butte (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 765, 773, 779, 269 Cal. Rptr. 796 ; see § 302.43]. Consequently, resolutions subject to referenda are not effective until 30 days from the date of their enactment [Midway Orchards v. County of Butte (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 765, 779, 269 Cal. Rptr. 796] .

§ 302.45 City Measure

[1] Application of Referendum Statutes

Except as discussed below, the statutes governing referendum proceedings respecting city ordinances [Elec. Code § 9235 et seq.] do not apply to any cities with charters that provide for the direct initiation of ordinances by the voters [Elec. Code § 9247; see Cal. Const., art. II, § 11; see also Cal. Const., art. XI, § 3 (authorization for city charters)].

The referendum process in charter cities with these kinds of provisions in their charters is governed by the city charter rather than by statute [Elec. Code § 9247; see Cal. Const., art. II, § 11]. However, a city may adopt the state provisions by incorporating them into its charter [see Billig v. Voges (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 962, 965-966, 273 Cal. Rptr. 91] .

[b] To Specified Ordinances in Charter or General Law

Elec. Code § 9235 et seq. are also inapplicable to proceedings for the improvement of streets in or rights-of-way owned by cities, the opening or closing of streets, the changing of grades, or the doing of other work, all or some of the cost of which is to be borne by special assessments on real property [Elec. Code § 9247].

[2] Commencement of City Referendum Petition Process

A referendum proceeding respecting a city ordinance or part of a city ordinance may not be begun before the ordinance has been adopted. The petition must be filed with the city elections official within 30 days of the date the adopted ordinance is attested by the city clerk or secretary to the legislative body [see Elec. Code § 9237]. Therefore, the petition process must be begun and completed within that 30-day period. Because there is no requirement that the proponents give any notice of their intention to circulate the petition, or that they take any other preliminary steps before circulating the petition and obtaining signatures on it, the proceeding is begun by circulating the petition.

The date of adoption has no connection with the effective or operative date and is, apparently, the date on which the last act is done that is necessary to make the ordinance a law [see Elec. Code § 9245; Solomon v. Alexander (1911) 161 Cal. 23, 25-28, 118 P. 217] . The effective date of a city ordinance appears to be immaterial. If the statutes are applied as written, a city ordinance taking effect immediately can be the subject of a referendum proceeding, if a proper petition is filed within 30 days from the date of the adoption of the ordinance.

[3] Effective Date of General Law City Ordinance

A general law city ordinance usually becomes effective 30 days from and after the date of its final passage. The exceptions to this rule are as follows [Elec. Code § 9235]:

- An ordinance calling or otherwise relating to an election;

- An ordinance for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health, or safety, that contains a declaration of, and the facts constituting, its urgency, and that is passed by a four-fifths vote of the city council;

- An ordinance relating to street improvement proceedings; and

- Any other ordinance governed by particular provisions of state law prescribing the manner of their passage and adoption.

Regardless of the above, ordinances authorizing the issuance of revenue bonds by a city as part of a joint powers entity pursuant to Gov. Code § 6547 do not take effect for 60 days [Elec. Code § 9142].

[4] City Referendum Petition

The referendum petition must meet the form and content requirements of Elec. Code § 9238. Among these are the requirements that each section of the petition contain the identifying number or title and the text of the ordinance or portion of the ordinance that is the subject of the referendum [Elec. Code § 9238(b); see Hebard v. Bybee (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 1331, 1338, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 352 ; Nelson v. Carlson (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 732, 737-740, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 485] . With regard to the identifying number or title requirement, although each section of the referendum petition may include the number and text of the ordinance, with no title, by choosing to include both the number and title of the ordinance, there is a duty to provide both of them correctly to the voters who would rely on the accuracy of the materials presented [Hebard v. Bybee (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 1331, 1338, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 352] . An incomplete title that creates confusion regarding the ordinance does not substantially comply with the requirements of Elec. Code § 9238 [see Hebard v. Bybee (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 1331, 1334, 1339-1341, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 352 (petition sections containing misstated title neither technically nor substantially complied with Election Code requirements)].

The requirement that each section of the petition contain the text of the ordinance or the portion of the ordinance that is the subject of the referendum has been construed to mean that each section of the petition must contain the exact wording of the challenged ordinance. The requirement is not met by including only part of the text (even if that part is the only objectionable part of the text), and this defect is not cured by including a summary of the omitted text (even if the summary is one that had been officially published for the purpose of informing voters) [Billig v. Voges (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 962, 967-968, 273 Cal. Rptr. 91 (opponents of 22-page ordinance, which comprised three sections, submitted referendum petition that was insufficient because it included only texts of two objectionable sections plus only one of three exhibits, together with city council's summary of ordinance that had been published in newspaper)].

The required "text" generally must include documents that are physically attached as exhibits to, or incorporated by reference into, the ordinance in question, but more than that is not required in a referendum petition unless the "text" as so defined would be affirmatively misleading [Lin v. City of Pleasanton (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 408, 417, 419-420, -- Cal. Rptr. 3d -- (referendum petition contained text of planning ordinance, two exhibits that were attached to and incorporated by reference into that ordinance, and exhibit to one of those two exhibits incorporated by reference into ordinance; no documents that were attached to or specifically incorporated into ordinance were omitted; referendum petition satisfied plain language of Elec. Code § 9238(b) "text" requirement; inclusion of copy of development plan adopted by that ordinance was not required because development plan was not included in text of that ordinance, was not attached as exhibit to it, and was not expressly incorporated by reference into it, and "text" of ordinance that was provided in this case was not rendered misleading by omission of development plan)]. Moreover, a document is not incorporated by reference for this purpose unless it is explicitly incorporated; that is, the purpose of referencing that document must be to make it part of the text of the ordinance. A mere cross reference, inserted for the purpose of rendering the text sensible, does not have the effect of incorporating the referenced document [Lin v. City of Pleasanton (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 408, 417, 421-422, -- Cal. Rptr. 3d -- (text of planning ordinance was that city council "Approves Case PUD-33, the application of James Tong, Charter Properties, for Planned Unit Development (PUD) development plan approval ... subject to the conditions shown on Exhibit B, attached here and incorporated herein by this reference"; this text incorporated that exhibit but did not incorporate development plan, which was referenced merely for contextual clarity)].

On the other hand, it is not always necessary to include all documents that happen to be attached to the challenged ordinance or incorporated into it by reference. The rule is, rather, that when a central purpose of the ordinance is to adopt and enact into law the contents of an incorporated or attached document, a referendum petition on the ordinance does not satisfy the Elec. Code § 9238(b) "text" requirement unless the referendum petition includes a copy of that document [Defend Bayview Hunters Point Com. v. City & County of San Francisco (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 846, 858, 84 Cal. Rptr. 3d 486 (referendum petition, which included copy of challenged 13-page ordinance, did not satisfy "text" requirement of Elec. Code § 9238(b) because petition did not include copy of 57 page redevelopment plan that had been incorporated by reference into ordinance when it was adopted; incorporating language was, 'By this reference, the Redevelopment Plan, a copy of which is on file with the Clerk ... is incorporated in and made a part of this Ordinance with the same force and effect as though set forth fully herein'; trial court found that petition signers could not have discerned meaning of ordinance except by referring to incorporated redevelopment plan); accord, Lin v. City of Pleasanton (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 408, 417, 420 n.4, -- Cal. Rptr. 3d --] .

The circulator's declaration required by Elec. Code § 9238(c) probably need not be attached until after circulation, but before filing, of the petition [see Elec. Code §§ 104, 9022, 9238].

[b] Circulation of City Referendum Petition

For "initiative measures," statements are required to be filed acknowledging the privacy rights of the signatures to be gathered, and acknowledgment of criminal penalties for violation. These statements must be completed before petitions are circulated [Elec. Code § 9608-9610]. Whether these requirements are extended to "referendum measures" remains to be seen, but the prudent course of action for proponents would be to follow these privacy requirements. For discussion of these privacy requirements, see § 302.16.

The referendum petition may be circulated in sections, which is the usual practice [see Elec. Code §§ 9238, 9242].

The proponents have a maximum of 30 days within which to circulate the petition [see Elec. Code § 9242; see also § 302.45[2]]. It is unclear when the 30-day period begins and ends. The safest course for the proponents is to assume that the period begins with the date of adoption, which is counted as the first day, and runs without interruption to and including the 30th day thereafter. In a leap year, February 29 is considered a separate day, and is counted, if it falls within the period [see Sanguinetti v. Sanguinetti (1937) 9 Cal. 2d 95, 97-98, 69 P.2d 845] .

A city ordinance that prohibits counting of signatures gathered by a person who is not a resident and registered voter within the city does not violate the free speech rights of the party seeking to qualify the referendum for the ballot, or the party's right to challenge local government through referendum [Browne v. Russell (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th 1116, 1120-1121, 1125, 33 Cal. Rptr. 2d 29] .

[c] Required Number of Signatures on City Referendum Petition

In a city with more than 1,000 registered voters, the petition must be signed by at least 10 percent of the voters of the city according to the county elections official's last official report of registration to the Secretary of State. In a city with 1,000 or fewer registered voters, the petition must be signed by not less than 25 percent of the voters or 100 voters, whichever is the lesser [Elec. Code § 9237; see Elec. Code § 359 ("voter" defined)].

A signature is subject to being disqualified if the voter did not personally write out identifying information as required by Elec. Code § 100, which prescribes that the voter, at the time of signing the petition, "shall... personally affix his or her printed name, and place of residence, giving street and number, and if no street or number exists, then a designation of the place of residence which will enable the location to be readily ascertained." However, a voter who is unable to "personally affix" the required information may request another person to print the voter's name and place of residence in the appropriate spaces on the petition, but the voter must personally affix his or her mark or signature in the appropriate space on the petition, and that act by the voter must be witnessed by one person "by subscribing his or her name thereon" [Elec. Code § 100.5]. The witness's signature must be near the voter's mark or signature. In the event of noncompliance with these requirements, an assisted signature must be disqualified; and the deficiency cannot be cured by trying to construe Elec. Code § 100.5 in such a way that the signature could be taken as being validated by the required declaration of the petition circulator [see Elec. Code § 104] that is attached to each sheet of signatures [Friends of Bay Meadows v. City of San Mateo (2007) 157 Cal. App. 4th 1175, 1179, 1189-1191, 68 Cal. Rptr. 3d 916].

When the ordinance under attack is one that authorizes the issuance of revenue bonds by a city that is part of a joint powers entity pursuant to Gov. Code § 6547, the number of signatures required is different and is governed by Elec. Code § 9236. This signature requirement is discussed in § 302.47.

[5] Filing of City Referendum Petition

The petition must be filed within 30 days from the date of adoption of the ordinance. Any petition not filed within that time is void for all purposes [Elec. Code § 9242]. All sections of the petition must be filed simultaneously with the city elections official [Elec. Code §§ 9237, 9239, 9242].

If the last day for filing is a holiday [see Gov. Code § 6700 et seq.], or for another reason is a day when the elections official's office is not open for business, the petition should be filed on the next preceding day when the elections official's office is open, notwithstanding the rule in Gov. Code § 6800 (holiday as excluded from a period if it is the last day). The applicability of that rule in such a case is uncertain. If the elections official's office is actually open on the last day for filing, at a time when the office might lawfully be closed, and the petition is then presented for filing, the elections official must accept it [see Cosgriff v. Board of Election Comm'rs (1907) 151 Cal. 407, 410, 91 P. 98] .

Once the proponents have filed the petition, the county elections official has 30 days (excluding Saturdays, Sundays, and holidays) from the filing date within which to examine the petition and verify the signatures. If the petition is found insufficient, no further action is taken. However, the failure to secure sufficient signatures does not preclude the filing of a new petition on the same subject at a later date. If the petition is found sufficient, the elections official certifies the results of the examination to the legislative body of the city at the next regular meeting of the body [Elec. Code §§ 9239, 9240; see Elec. Code §§ 9114, 9115, 9210].

A city elections official has the ministerial duty to reject and refuse to process the petition if it is facially procedurally invalid [see Billig v. Voges (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 962, 968-969, 273 Cal. Rptr. 91] . Conversely, a writ of mandate will lie to compel the city elections official to accept and process a referendum petition presented for filing, when all statutory and constitutional procedural and substantive requirements surrounding the petition have been met. For a form for a petition for a writ of mandate ordering a city elections official to accept and process a referendum petition presented for filing, see § 302.91.

The effective date of an ordinance is suspended if the petition, containing the requisite number of signatures, is filed with the city elections official within 30 days of the date the adopted ordinance is attested by the city clerk or secretary to the legislative body [Elec. Code § 9237].

When an ordinance has been suspended by a referendum petition and then has been repealed by the city council, the council may not subsequently enact another ordinance that is in all essential features like the repealed ordinance. The council may, however, deal further with the subject of the suspended ordinance by enacting an ordinance essentially different from the referred ordinance, avoiding the objections made to that ordinance. If this is done, and not in bad faith nor with intent to evade the effect of the referendum petition, then the second ordinance will not be held invalid for this cause [In re Stratham (1920) 45 Cal. App. 436, 439-440, 187 P. 986 ; cf. Elec. Code § 9241 (referred ordinance "shall not again be enacted by the [municipal] legislative body for a period of one year after the date of its repeal by the legislative body")]. This principle (sometimes called the Stratham rule) applies equally to both general law cities and charter cities [Rubalcava v. Martinez (2007) 158 Cal. App. 4th 563, 570, 70 Cal. Rptr. 3d 225].

If a referendum measure qualifies for the ballot, and the city elections official certifies the results to the legislative body of the city, the legislative body must reconsider the ordinance [Elec. Code § 9237; see Elec. Code § 9240]. If the legislative body does not entirely repeal the ordinance against which the petition is filed, it must submit the measure to the voters at a regular or special election, as necessary, within the time frame set forth in Elec. Code § 9241 [see Elec. Code § 9241].

The legislative body of the city has a mandatory duty to either repeal the challenged ordinance or to submit the ordinance to referendum unless directed to do so by court order on a compelling showing that a proper case has been established for interfering with the referendum power [deBottari v. City Council (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 1204, 1209, 217 Cal. Rptr. 790] .

[8] Effective Date of City Referendum Ordinance

The ordinance does not become effective until a majority of the voters voting on it vote in favor of it. If the legislative body repeals the ordinance or submits it to the voters and a majority of the voters voting on it do not vote in favor of it, the ordinance cannot again be enacted by the legislative body for a period of one year after the date of its repeal by the legislative body or disapproval by the voters [Elec. Code § 9241]. The function of the stay provision in Elec. Code § 9241 is to enforce the electorate's power to approve or reject measures provisionally adopted by the legislature before they take effect [Lindelli v. Town of San Anselmo (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 1099, 1109, 4 Cal. Rptr. 3d 453] .

The right of the voters to petition for referendum on legislative acts of a district is available in any district that is a local public entity as defined by Gov. Code § 900.4 and to which Elec. Code § 9300 applies [Elec. Code § 9340]. For discussion of Elec. Code § 9300, see § 302.26[1].

The right of district voters to petition for referendum is available in the same manner and subject to the same rules as apply to counties under Elec. Code § 9141 et seq. These rules are discussed in § 302.43. All computations referred to and all county officers mentioned in those code sections, however, are to be construed to refer to comparable computations and officers of any given district [Elec. Code § 9340].

District ordinances authorizing the issuance of revenue bonds by a district as part of a joint powers entity pursuant to Gov. Code § 6547 do not take effect for 60 days [Elec. Code § 9341(a)]. When the ordinance under attack is one authorizing the issuance of revenue bonds by the district as part of the joint powers entity, the number of signatures on the petition is governed by Elec. Code § 9341 [see § 302.47].

§ 302.47 Required Number of Signatures on Referendum Petition Against Ordinance Pursuant to Joint Powers Agreement

A referendum petition against an ordinance authorizing the issuance of revenue bonds by a county, city, school district, special district, or other local agency that is part of a joint powers entity pursuant to Gov. Code § 6547 has its own signature requirements. When the number of votes cast for all candidates for Governor at the last preceding gubernatorial election within the boundaries of the county, city, school district, special district, or local agency that is part of the entity exceeds 500,000, the petition must be signed by at least 5 percent of the entire vote cast within the boundaries of the county, city, school district, special district, or local agency for all candidates for Governor at the last preceding gubernatorial election. When the number of votes is less than 500,000, the petition must be signed by at least 10 percent of the entire vote cast within the boundaries of the county, city, school district, special district, or other local agency for all candidates for Governor at the last preceding gubernatorial election [Elec. Code §§ 9142(b) (county), 9236 (city), 9341(b) (district)].

State constitutional provisions governing recall are set forth in Cal. Const., art. II, §§ 13-19. The Legislature has plenary power to provide for circulation, filing, and certification of petitions, nomination of candidates to succeed recalled officers, and recall elections, respecting both state and local officers [see Cal. Const., art. II, §§ 16, 19]. However, the Legislature cannot provide laws respecting recall of local officers that contravene county, city, or city and county charter provisions on the same subject [see Cal. Const., art. II, § 19].

Statutes governing recall are set forth in Elec. Code § 11000 et seq. These statutes govern the recall of state and local elective officers. They do not supersede the provisions of a city, county, or city and county charter, or of ordinances adopted pursuant to such a charter, relating to recall [Elec. Code § 11000]. A charter may, however, incorporate by reference all or some of the statutory provisions governing recall and render them applicable under the charter [see, e.g., Muehleisen v. Forward (1935) 4 Cal. 2d 17, 20, 46 P.2d 969] .

§ 302.62 Construction of Recalls

Legislation affording the people the right to recall public officials, like legislation affording the people the right to initiate and repeal legislation, is to be given the same liberal construction as that extended to election statutes generally [Reites v. Wilkerson (1950) 99 Cal. App. 2d 500, 503, 222 P.2d 81 ; see Wilcox v. Enstad (1981) 122 Cal. App. 3d 641, 651, 176 Cal. Rptr. 560] . Specifically, recall legislation is to be liberally construed to enable citizens to exercise their rights of recall [Hartman v. Kenyon (1991) 227 Cal. App. 3d 413, 420, 277 Cal. Rptr. 765 ; see Moore v. City Council (1966) 244 Cal. App. 2d 892, 901, 53 Cal. Rptr. 603] . However, this rule of statutory construction does not permit the courts to enlarge the scope of a procedural statute when the statutory provisions are clear [Hartman v. Kenyon (1991) 227 Cal. App. 3d 413, 420, 277 Cal. Rptr. 765 (elections official lacked authority under former Elec. Code §§ 44, 27210 [now see Elec. Code §§ 104, 11220] to accept amended circulator declarations); Wilcox v. Enstad (1981) 122 Cal. App. 3d 641, 651, 176 Cal. Rptr. 560 (elections official lacked authority under former Elec. Code § 27215 [now see Elec. Code § 11225] to permit petition to be supplemented with additional signatures)].

§ 302.63 Definitions

[1] Elections Official

In the case of the recall of elective officers of a county, school district, county board of education, community college district, or resident voting district, and of judges of trial courts the term "elections official" means the county elections official including, but not necessarily limited to, a county clerk [Elec. Code § 11000 et seq.]. In the case of the recall of elective officers of a city, "elections official" means the city elections official including, but not necessarily limited to, a city clerk. In the case of the recall of elective officers of a landowner voting district or any district in which, at a regular election, candidate's nomination papers are filed with the secretary of the governing board, "elections official" means the secretary of the governing board [Elec. Code § 11002].

[2] Electoral Jurisdiction

For the purposes of Elec. Code § 11000 et seq., "electoral jurisdiction" means the area within which the voters reside who are qualified to vote for the officer sought to be recalled [Elec. Code § 322].

[3] Governing Board

For the purposes of Elec. Code § 11000 et seq., "governing board" means a city council, the board of supervisors of a county, the board of trustees of a school district or community college district, or the legislative body of a special district, as the context requires. In the case of the recall of a trial court judge, "governing board" means the board of supervisors [Elec. Code § 11003].

[4] Judge

For the purposes of Elec. Code § 11000 et seq., judges of courts of appeal are considered state officers, and judges of trial courts are considered county officers [Elec. Code § 11001].

[5] Local Officer

For the purposes of Elec. Code § 11000 et seq., a "local officer" is an elective officer of a city, county, school district, community college district, or special district, or a judge of a trial court [Elec. Code § 11004]. It appears that the term "local officer" specifically includes elected officers of school districts [see Board of Education v. Superior Court (1979) 93 Cal. App. 3d 578, 585, 155 Cal. Rptr. 839 (recall available to remove school district's elective officers)].

Recall is applicable to elective officers of the state and of all counties, cities, school districts, county boards of education, community college districts, and special districts. Recall is also applicable to judges of courts of appeal and trial courts [see Elec. Code § 11000]. All officers to whom recall is applicable are subject to recall even if they hold office as the result of appointment either in lieu of election or to fill a vacancy [see Elec. Code § 11006].

Recall is accomplished by the voters at a recall election [see § 302.73]. The proponents of the recall petition for the election. The election is held if the petition is filed with the appropriate official [see Elec. Code §§ 11102-11103 (recall of state officer), 11220, 11222 (recall of local officer)] within the required time period [see Elec. Code § 11220], is certified to bear the minimum required number of signatures [see Elec. Code §§ 11107-11110, 11222-11227], and otherwise qualifies. If the petition qualifies, a recall election is scheduled [see Elec. Code §§ 11110, 11240, 11242; see also Cal. Const. art. II, § 15]. At the election, the voters vote first on whether to recall the subject officer and then, depending on the electoral jurisdiction, either to choose a successor or authorize the governing body of the jurisdiction either to appoint a successor or hold a special election for the electorate to choose a successor.

In the event the petition is certified as lacking the minimum required number of signatures, the petition signatures may be examined in accordance with Gov. Code § 6253.5 and thus the proponents of the petition and the proponent's representatives as designated by the proponents in writing may examine the petition to determine which signatures were disqualified and to determine the reasons for disqualification [Elec. Code § 11301; Gov. Code § 6253.5]. The filing of an insufficient petition in no way precludes the later filing of another petition against the same officer [Elec. Code § 11300]. For further discussion of an insufficient petition, see § 302.71[5][b].

Recall petitions are generally kept on file for eight months and then may be destroyed [see Elec. Code § 17400]. Public access to the petitions is restricted, however [see Elec. Code § 17400(c); Gov. Code § 6253.5].

In other words, anyone eligible to vote for a candidate for the office in question, if an election were currently held, is entitled to propose recall of the incumbent.

25-302 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 302.67

§ 302.67 Commencement of Recall Petition Process

[1] Recall of State Officer

Proceedings to recall a state officer may be begun as soon as the officer takes office.

If a state officer is the subject of a recall election and is not recalled, recall proceedings may not be begun again concerning that officer until six months have passed after the recall election [Cal. Const. art. II, § 18].

If recall of the Governor or Secretary of State is initiated, the recall duties of that office will be performed by the Lieutenant Governor or the Controller, respectively [Cal. Const., art. II, § 17].

[2] Recall of Local Officer

Recall proceedings may not be commenced against an officer of a city, county, special district, school district, community college district, or county board of education in any of the following circumstances [Elec. Code § 11007; see also § 302.100 (form for complaint to enjoin untimely commencement of recall proceedings)]:

- The officer has not held office during the current term for more than 90 days.
- A recall election has been determined in the officer's favor within the last six months.
- The officer's term of office ends within six months or less.

This prohibition does not apply to recall proceedings instituted against an officer who has been appointed to office by the city's governing body pursuant to Elec. Code § 10229 when no person had been nominated to fill the vacancy [see Elec. Code § 11007].

When the city or county clerk is the officer sought to be recalled, his or her duties are to be performed by some other person designated by the governing board [Elec. Code § 11201].

[3] Measuring Time Periods

For coverage of some of the problems arising in the measurement of the various time periods prescribed by statute, see § 302.21[4][c]. In general, the safest course for the proponents is to assume that the applicable period begins with the date of the determining event and runs without interruption. Proponents should note that a period measured in months refers to calendar months, unless the contrary is specified [see Gov. Code § 6804].

§ 302.68 Notice of Intention to Circulate Recall Petition

[1] Contents

Proceedings are commenced for the recall of any elective officer, including any officer appointed in lieu of election or to fill a vacancy, by the service, filing, and publication or posting of a notice of intention to circulate a recall petition [Elec. Code § 11006; see Hartman v. Kenyon (1991) 227 Cal. App. 3d 413, 417, 277 Cal. Rptr. 765] .

The contents of the notice are set forth in Elec. Code § 11020. They include, among other things, a requirement that the proponents include in the notice a statement of the reasons for the proposed recall. They also include a requirement that the provisions of Elec. Code § 11023, permitting the officer sought to be recalled to file an answer to the statement in the notice, be set forth therein [see Elec. Code § 11020].

Even though Elec. Code § 11020 sets forth certain form and content requirements for the statement of reasons for the recall, the statement is intended solely for the information of the voters. Therefore, no insufficiency in its form or substance is to affect the validity of the election proceedings [Elec. Code § 11024]. Furthermore, in the case of state officers, sufficiency of reason for recall is not reviewable [Cal. Const. art. II, § 14(a)].

[2] Service and Filing

A copy of the notice must be served, by personal delivery or certified mail, on the officer sought to be recalled. The original of the notice must then be filed, within seven days of service, together with an affidavit of the time and manner of service, with the clerk in the case of the proposed recall of a local officer, with the Secretary of State in the case of the proposed recall of a state officer, or with the Controller in the case of the proposed recall of the Secretary of State. A separate notice of intention must be filed for each officer sought to be recalled [Elec. Code § 11021; see Cal. Const. art. II, § 17; Hartman v. Kenyon (1991) 227 Cal. App. 3d 413, 417, 277 Cal. Rptr. 765] .

[3] Publication, Posting, and Proof

After service and filing, a copy of the notice must be published or posted. The copy of the notice, as published or posted, need not include the provisions of Elec. Code § 11023 (see [1], above) [Elec. Code § 11022]. A copy of the notice must be published at the proponent's expense pursuant to Gov. Code § 6061 [Elec. Code § 11022].

Publication is required unless there is no newspaper of general circulation able to provide timely publication in the jurisdiction of the officer sought to be recalled. If publication is not possible, the notice must be posted in at least three public places within the jurisdiction of the officer to be recalled [Elec. Code § 11022].

The publication or posting of the notice cannot be dispensed with. An unpublished or unposted petition is invalid and cannot qualify as a recall petition. The filing by the clerk of a petition that does not conform to the publication or posting requirements of Elec. Code § 11022 would be a useless and idle act, because it would require the clerk to examine signatures from an invalid petition rather than a petition that subsequently may be found insufficient [Moore v. City Council (1966) 244 Cal. App. 2d 892, 899-900, 53 Cal. Rptr. 603 ; see § 302.71[5] (filing of petition)].

The proponents will be required to submit proof of publication or an affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) of posting of the notice, as the case may be, to the elections official in the case of the proposed recall of a local officer, the Secretary of State in the case of the proposed recall of a state officer, or the Controller in the case of the proposed recall of the Secretary of State. The proof or affidavit (or declaration) must be filed with the elections official, Secretary of State, or Controller within 10 days after the officer sought to be recalled has filed an answer to the notice, if in fact he or she has answered. If he or she has not answered, then the proof or affidavit (or declaration) must be filed with the elections official, Secretary of State, or Controller within 10 days after the expiration of the seven-day period within which he or she could have answered [Elec. Code § 11042(a); see Elec. Code § 11023(a),(b); see also Cal. Const. art. II, § 17]. In effect, unless the officer sought to be recalled has obtained an extension of time within which to file his or her answer, the time period for filing proof of publication or an affidavit (or declaration) of posting of the notice of intention is within 17 days after the filing of the notice of intention [see Elec. Code §§ 11023, 11042(a)].

The proponents must file proof of publication or the affidavit (or declaration) of posting at the same time that they submit blank copies of the proposed recall petition to the elections official, Secretary of State, or Controller for approval before circulation for signatures. For discussion of precirculation approval, see § 302.71[3].

Within seven days after the notice of intention has been filed, the officer sought to be recalled may file an answer to the statement contained in the notice. If the officer is a state officer other than the Secretary of State, the answer is to be filed with the Secretary of State. If the officer is the Secretary of State, the answer is to be filed with the Controller. If the officer is a local officer, the answer is to be filed with the elections official [Elec. Code § 11023(a); see Cal. Const. art. II, § 17].

If the officer chooses to file an answer, he or she must also serve a copy of it, by personal delivery or certified mail, on one of the proponents named in the notice of intention [Elec. Code § 11023(b); see Elec. Code § 11020 (contents of notice of intention)]. Service must be made within seven days after the notice of intention has been filed [Elec. Code § 11023(b)].

Even though Elec. Code § 11023(a) and (c) sets forth certain form and content requirements for the answer, such as that it may not exceed 200 words, the answer is intended solely for the information of the voters. Therefore, no insufficiency in its form or substance is to affect the validity of the election proceedings [Elec. Code § 11024].

B. Recall

25-302 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 302.71

§ 302.71 Recall Petition

[1] Form and Contents

The proponents must use the recall petition format provided by the Secretary of State and available from the county elections official or the Secretary of State [Elec. Code § 11041]. If proponents are seeking to recall more than one officer, separate petitions are necessary to propose the recall of each officer [Elec. Code § 11044]. It should be noted that the Secretary of State must provide to county elections officials a recall petition format for distribution to proponents for a recall. The recall petition format must be made available on request by the county elections official and by the Secretary of State [Elec. Code § 11043.5(a)]. The recall petition made available under Elec. Code § 11043.5(a) must be used by proponents of a recall election [Elec. Code § 11043.5(b)].

Any recall petition must meet the form and content requirements of Elec. Code §§ 11040, 11041, and 11043 [see Elec. Code §§ 11040, 11041, 11043]. Chief among these requirements is that the petition contain a request that an election be called to elect a successor to the officer sought to be recalled [Elec. Code § 11041(a); see Hartman v. Kenyon (1991) 227 Cal. App. 3d 413, 417, 277 Cal. Rptr. 765] . However, if the officer is a justice of the Supreme Court or of a court of appeal as specified in Cal. Const. art. VI, § 16(a), the request must be that the Governor appoint a successor to the officer [see Elec. Code § 11041(a)(1)].

Additionally, the petition must bear a copy of the notice of intention to circulate, together with the statement of grounds for recall. For the purpose of this requirement, the copy of the notice of intention must contain the names of at least 10 recall proponents that appear on the notice of intention and that are selected by the proponents. The election officials shall not require the names of more than 10 proponents to be included as part of the language of the notice of intention [Elec. Code § 11041(a)(2)]. The provisions of Elec. Code § 11023 do not need to be included as part of the language of the notice of intention [see Elec. Code §§ 11023, 11041(a)(2)]. The petition must also bear the answer of the officer sought to be recalled. If the officer has not answered, the petition must so state [see Elec. Code § 11041(a)(3)].

Elec. Code § 11041(b) requires that all petition sections be printed in uniform size and darkness with uniform spacing; this statute requires the use of a uniform typeface in the statement of reasons for the recall and the answer of the recall target. However, even if a petition does not actually comply with Elec. Code § 11041(b), it may be valid under the doctrine of substantial compliance. The purpose of Elec. Code § 11041(b) is to ensure equal emphasis of the statement of the reasons and the answer, and this purpose may be satisfied if neither the statement nor the answers are unduly emphasized [Ruiz v. Sylva (2002) 102 Cal. App. 4th 199, 210-217, 125 Cal. Rptr. 2d 351] .

The federal Voting Rights Act of 1965 imposes specified bilingual or multilingual election requirements on "covered" states and political subdivisions, which are defined as having specified percentages of minority-language citizens of voting age who have limited proficiency in English and whose illiteracy rate is above the national average [see 42 U.S.C. § 1973aa--1a(b)(2)(A)]. With respect to local elections, various counties (and other subdivisions) in California are "covered" subdivisions and so are subject to the requirement that "[w]henever any... [covered] subdivision... provides any registration or voting notices, forms, instructions, assistance, or other materials or information relating to the electoral process, including ballots, it shall provide them in the language of the applicable minority group as well as in the English language" [42 U.S.C. § 1973aa-1a(c)]. However, a recall petition that is initiated, drafted, and circulated by the proponents of the recall, and which therefore cannot be considered to be "provide[d]" by a covered subdivision or by the state, is not subject to this other-language requirement [Padilla v. Lever (9th Cir. 2006) 463 F.3d 1046, 1050-1052 (fact that Elec. Code § 11041 prescribes format and describes required content of recall petition does not mean that state "provides" recall petition, for purposes of this other-language requirement in Voting Rights Act)].

For a form for a complaint to enjoin the circulation of an unlawful petition for recall, see § 302.102.

Each section of the petition must have attached to it a declaration signed by the circulator of that section of the petition, setting forth all of the information required by Elec. Code § 104 [Elec. Code § 11046]. The declaration must include a statement that the circulator is a registered voter in the jurisdiction of the officer sought to be recalled [Elec. Code § 11046]. However, the declaration probably need not be attached until after the petition sections have been circulated [see Elec. Code §§ 104, 11046]. Elec. Code §§ 104, 11046 include certain verification requirements, which must be met. They are not met by purported declarations under penalty of perjury that are neither dated nor subscribed by the circulator of the petition [Dodge v. Free (1973) 32 Cal. App. 3d 436, 444, 108 Cal. Rptr. 311 (construing former Elec. Code § 27203 [see now Elec. Code §§ 104, 11046, containing similar provisions] and Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5)]. The clerk, Secretary of State, or Controller is therefore not authorized to file sections of petitions bearing such defective circulator's declarations [see Dodge v. Free (1973) 32 Cal. App. 3d 436, 444, 446, 108 Cal. Rptr. 311] .

It is an abuse of an election official's authority to determine that recall petitions are insufficient on the basis of minor defects or irregularities in the circulators' declarations that do not affect the validity of the petition itself. The remedy for these minor defects or irregularities is to permit the circulator to amend his or her declaration so that it complies with the law. However, a declaration that affirmatively demonstrates that a petition, or section thereof, was circulated outside the statutorily specified period within which all signatures are to be obtained, or a declaration that fails to state that a petition, or section thereof, was circulated within the statutory period is so irregular or defective as to affect the validity of the petition itself. This is so because signatures that are not obtained within the statutorily specified period cannot be counted [Hartman v. Kenyon (1991) 227 Cal. App. 3d 413, 419, 277 Cal. Rptr. 765] . A declaration exhibiting either of these defects cannot be amended by the filing of supplemental petitions, because the election statutes make no provision for the filing of supplemental petitions after a recall petition has been found insufficient [see Elec. Code §§ 11222, 11225; see also [5], below]. Therefore, an elections official has no statutory authority to accept supplemental petitions proffered after a finding of insufficiency [Hartman v. Kenyon (1991) 227 Cal. App. 3d 413, 419-420, 277 Cal. Rptr. 765] .

[3] Circulation

[a] Prerequisite Approval by Elections Official

No signature may be affixed to a recall petition, and therefore the proponents of the recall may not circulate a petition for signatures, until the elections official in the case of the recall of a local officer, the Controller in the case of the recall of the Secretary of State, or the Secretary of State in the case of the recall of a state officer notifies the proponents that the form and wording of the proposed petition meet the requirements of Elec. Code § 11040 et seq. (form and content of recall petitions) [Elec. Code § 11042(d); see Cal. Const. art. II, § 17; Hartman v. Kenyon (1991) 227 Cal. App. 3d 413, 417, 277 Cal. Rptr. 765] .

The proponents obtain this approval by filing two blank copies of the petition, together with proof of publication or an affidavit (or declaration) of posting of the notice of intention, with the elections official, Controller, or Secretary of State. The blank copies must be filed within 10 days after the officer sought to be recalled has filed an answer, if in fact he or she has answered. If the subject officer has not answered, the blanks must be filed within 10 days after the expiration of the seven-day period within which he or she could have answered [see Elec. Code § 11042(a); Hartman v. Kenyon (1991) 227 Cal. App. 3d 413, 417, 277 Cal. Rptr. 765 ; see also Cal. Const. art. II, § 17]. Unless the subject officer has obtained an extension of time within which to file an answer, the time period within which the proponents must file the blank copies of the petition and the proof of publication or affidavit (or declaration) of posting of the notice is within 17 days after filing the notice of intention, regardless of whether the subject officer has answered the notice [see Elec. §§ 11023(a),(b), 11042; Hartman v. Kenyon (1991) 227 Cal. App. 3d 413, 417, 277 Cal. Rptr. 765] .

Within 10 days of receiving the blank copies, the elections official, Controller, or Secretary of State must notify the proponents in writing of his or her finding relative to the sufficiency of the petition [Elec. Code § 11042(b); see Cal. Const. art II, § 17]. If the finding is that the form and content requirements of Elec. Code § 11040 et seq. are met, then the proponents are free to begin circulating the petition. If the finding is that the requirements are not met, then the elections official, Controller, or Secretary of State must include in the findings a statement as to what alterations in the petition are necessary. The proponents then have 10 days within which to make the corrections and refile two blank copies of the corrected petition. The 10-day correction notification period and the 10-day filing period for corrected petitions may be repeated until the elections official or the Secretary of State finds no alterations are required [Elec. Code § 11042(c); see Hartman v. Kenyon (1991) 227 Cal. App. 3d 413, 417, 277 Cal. Rptr. 765] .

For a form for a complaint to enjoin the premature circulation of a petition for recall, see § 302.101.

[b] Manner and Place

Specified privacy requirements were added to the Elections Code effective January 1, 2003 [2002 Cal. stats 959]. For "initiative measures," statements are required to be filed acknowledging the privacy rights of the signatures to be gathered, and acknowledgment of criminal penalties for violation; and these statements must be completed before petitions are circulated [Elec. Code § 9608-9610]. Whether these requirements are extended to "recall measures" remains to be seen, but the prudent course of action for proponents would be to follow these privacy requirements. For discussion of these privacy requirements, see § 302.16.

The petition may be circulated in sections [see, e.g., Elec. Code § 11040]. Only registered voters of the electoral jurisdiction of the officer sought to be recalled are qualified to circulate or sign a recall petition for that officer [Elec. Code § 11045; see Elec. Code § 359 ("voter" defined)]. When a petition is circulated in more than one county for the recall of an officer, each section of the petition must bear the name of the county in which it is circulated. Only registered voters of that county may sign that petition [Elec. Code § 11047].

Any voter who has signed a recall petition will have his or her signature withdrawn from the petition on filing a written request for withdrawal with the elections official prior to the day the petition section bearing the voter's signature is filed [Elec. Code § 11303].

[c] Time Available

The amount of time the proponents have to circulate the petition is measured from the date the elections official, Controller, or Secretary of State notifies them that the form and wording of the petition meets the pertinent statutory form and content requirements [Elec. Code § 11220(a); see Elec. Code § 11042; [a], above; see also Cal. Const. art. II, § 17]. Signatures not obtained within the statutory time period for circulating the petition may not be counted [Hartman v. Kenyon (1991) 227 Cal. App. 3d 413, 419, 277 Cal. Rptr. 765] . The number of days from that notification date within which the proponents have to circulate and file their petition depends on the number of registered voters in the electoral jurisdiction of the officer sought to be recalled. The number of days available for circulation and filing relative to the number of registered voters in the jurisdiction is as follows [see Elec. Code § 11220(a)]:

Registration	Days
Less than 1,000	40
1,000-4,999	60
5,000-9,999	90
50,000 or more	160

The number of registered voters is the number reported at the last report of registration by the county elections official to the Secretary of State pursuant to Elec. Code § 2187 (summary statement of voter information) and before a finding of the clerk, Controller, or Secretary of State that no alterations are required in the form of the petition pursuant to Elec. Code § 11042 [Elec. Code § 11220(b); see Elec. Code § 11042].

[4] Required Number of Signatures

[a] Recall of State Officer or Judge

A petition to recall a senator, member of the Assembly, member of the Board of Equalization, judge of a court of appeal or trial (superior or municipal) court, must bear signatures of electors equal in number to at least 20 percent of the last vote for the office [Cal. Const. art. II, § 14(b); Elec. Code § 11221(b); see Elec. Code § 321 ("electors" defined); but see Cal. Const. art. II, § 19 (power of Legislature to provide for recall of local officers); Elec. Code §§ 11001 (trial court judges are county officers for recall purposes), 11045 (only registered voters of the electoral jurisdiction of the officer sought to be recalled as entitled to sign recall petition)]. In the case of a judge of a superior or municipal court whose office has never appeared on the ballot since being created, or did not appear on the ballot at its last election pursuant to Elec. Code § 8203 (reelection of incumbent), the Elections Code provides that the 20 percent is based on the number of votes cast within the judicial jurisdiction for the countywide office that had the least number of votes in the most recent general election in the county in which the judge holds office [Elec. Code § 11221(c)(1)]. For these purposes, "countywide office" means an elective office wholly within the county that is voted on throughout the county [Elec. Code § 11221(c)(2)].

A petition to recall any other state officer must be signed by electors equal in number to at least 12 percent of the last vote for the office, with signatures from each of 5 counties equal in number to at least 1 percent of the last previous vote for the office in the county [Cal. Const. art. II, § 14(b); Elec. Code § 11221(c)(1); see Elec. Code § 321 ("elector" defined)].

[b] Recall of Local Officer

A petition to recall an officer of a city, county, school district, community college district, county board of education, or resident voting district must be signed by registered voters equal in number to not less than a specified percentage of the registered voters in the electoral jurisdiction calculated as of the time of the last report of registration by the county elections official to the Secretary of State pursuant to Elec. Code § 2187 (summary statement of voter information) and before a finding by the elections official, Controller, or Secretary of State that no alterations are required in the form of the recall petition pursuant to Elec. Code § 11042 (approval of form and wording of petition) [Elec. Code § 11221(a), (b)]. The specified percentages are as follows [Elec. Code § 11221(a)]:

Registration	Percentage
Less than 1,000	30 percent
1,000-9,999	25 percent
10,000-49,999	20 percent
50,000-99,999	15 percent
100,000 or more	10 percent

A petition to recall an officer of a landowner voting district must be signed by voters owning at least 10 percent of the assessed value of land within the electoral jurisdiction of the officer sought to be recalled [Elec. Code § 11221(d); see Elec. Code § 359 ("voter") defined].

[5] Filing With Elections Official

[a] Petition Found Sufficient

The filing procedures discussed in the following paragraphs apply to petitions to recall both local and state officers. However, some variations on these procedures apply to petitions to recall state officers [see [c], below].

The petition must be filed by the proponents, or by any person or persons authorized, in writing, by a proponent. If the petition was circulated in sections, all sections must be filed at the same time [Elec. Code § 11222(a)].

When the petition is presented for filing, the elections official must first determine the total number of signatures affixed to the petition. If, from this examination, the elections official determines that the number of signatures, prima facie, is equal to or greater than the minimum number of signatures required, then the elections official must accept the petition for filing. The petition is deemed filed on the date of acceptance [Elec. Code § 11222(b); see Hartman v. Kenyon (1991) 227 Cal. App. 3d 413, 418, 277 Cal. Rptr. 765] .

From that date, the elections official then has 30 days (excluding Saturdays, Sundays, and holidays) within which to examine the petition and either verify each signature individually or, if the petition contains more than 500 signatures, verify the signatures by a random-sample method [see Elec. Code §§ 11224, 11225; see Hartman v. Kenyon (1991) 227 Cal. App. 3d 413, 418, 277 Cal. Rptr. 765] . If the petition is found sufficient, then the elections official must notify the proponents of the sufficiency and must certify the results of the examination to the governing board of the electoral jurisdiction at the board's next regular meeting [see Elec. Code §§ 11224(d), 11225(h), 11227]. On a finding of sufficiency, the elections official has a ministerial duty to certify the results to the governing body, and mandate will lie to compel the elections official to perform this duty [see Baroldi v. Denni (1961) 197 Cal. App. 2d 472, 476, 477, 17 Cal. Rptr. 647] . For a form for a petition for a writ of mandate to compel an election official to accept and process a petition for recall, see § 302.104.

[b] Petition Found Insufficient

If the petition is presented for filing and the elections official determines that the number of signatures, prima facie, does not equal or exceed the minimum number of signatures required, then the petition may not be filed. Any section of the petition not so filed is void for all purposes. Any petition not accepted for filing is returned to the proponents [Elec.

Code § 11222(b)].

If a filed petition is found insufficient within the 30-day examination period, then the elections official must notify the proponents of the insufficiency [Elec. Code §§ 11224(c), 11225(f)]. The insufficient petition remains on file [Elec. Code § 11226]. The petition signatures may be examined in accordance with Gov. Code § 6253.5 and thus the proponents of the petition and the proponent's representatives as designated by the proponents in writing may examine the petition in order to determine which signatures were disqualified and the reasons for disqualification [Elec. Code § 11301; Gov. Code § 6253.5; see Hartman v. Kenyon (1991) 227 Cal. App. 3d 413, 418, 277 Cal. Rptr. 765] . The examination must commence not later than 21 days after certification of insufficiency [Gov. Code § 6253.5]. The right to examine the petition after a certification of insufficiency does not, however, confer on the proponents a right to file amended petitions to cure the insufficiency [Hartman v. Kenyon (1991) 227 Cal. App. 3d 413, 420, 277 Cal. Rptr. 765] .

Regardless of the method of signature verification used, the elections official may take no further action on the petition if the number of valid signatures is found insufficient [Elec. Code § 11226]. The elections official is, therefore, under a mandatory duty to take no further action, and a writ of mandate will lie to compel an elections official to desist from taking any further action [see Wilcox v. Enstad (1981) 122 Cal. App. 3d 641, 648, 656, 176 Cal. Rptr. 560 (construing former Elec. Code § 27215 [now see Elec. Code § 11225])]. For a form for a complaint to enjoin an election official from processing an unlawful petition, see § 302.103.

No insufficiency in a petition against any officer bars the later filing of a new petition against that officer [Elec. Code § 11300]. This includes an insufficiency due to the proponents' failure to secure sufficient signatures [see Elec. Code § 11225(g)].

[c] Procedures for Recall of State Officer

In the case of a petition to recall a state officer, each section of the petition must be filed with the elections official of the county for which it was circulated [Elec. Code § 11102]. Each section must be filed by the proponents or by any person or persons authorized, in writing, by a proponent [Elec. Code § 11103]. Unless and until an official investigation proves otherwise, it is presumed that the petition presented contains the signatures of the requisite number of registered voters [Elec. Code § 11101].

Thirty days after the recall has been initiated, and every 30 days thereafter, or more frequently at the elections official's discretion, the election official of each county where a petition has been filed makes a determination of the number of registered voters that have signed the petition [Elec. Code § 11104]. For all practical purposes, of course, the first of these periodic determinations cannot occur until a petition has been presented to a county elections official, even though a recall is considered initiated by the filing, service, and publication or posting of the notice of intention to circulate the petition [see Elec. Code § 11006]. The results of each periodic examination are then forwarded to the Controller in the case of the recall of the Secretary of State, or to the Secretary of State in the case of the recall of any other state officer [see Cal. Const. art. II, § 17; Elec. Code §§ 11107, 11108]. When, as a result of these periodic examinations, the Secretary of State or the Controller determines that the proponents have collected sufficient signatures, he or she certifies that fact to the Governor [Elec. Code § 11109; see Cal. Const. art. II, § 17]. If the Governor is the subject of the recall, certification of the sufficiency of the petitions is made to the Lieutenant Governor [see Cal. Const. art. II, § 17; Elec. Code § 11109].

Within 14 days after the meeting at which the governing body receives the elections official's certificate of the sufficiency of the petition [see § 302.71[5]], the governing body must issue an order stating that an election will be held to determine whether the officer named in the petition will be recalled [Elec. Code § 11240]. If the governing board fails to issue the order within the time specified, the county elections official, within five days, is required to set the election date. If the recall is to be voted on by voters in more than one county, the elections official of the county with the largest number of registered voters who will be voting in the election is required to set the date for holding the election in consultation with the county elections officials of the other counties [Elec. Code § 11241].

The duty of the governing body to call an election when presented with a recall petition, duly certified by the elections official as bearing the signatures of the requisite number of voters, is mandatory, providing the petition is sufficient in form and substance. Mandate will lie to compel the governing body to call an election. However, the governing body may refuse to proceed with the election if the petition is insufficient in form or substance [Cunningham v. City Council (1962) 200 Cal. App. 2d 340, 342, 19 Cal. Rptr 297] .

In the case of the recall of a state officer other than the Governor, on receipt of the Secretary of State's certification of the sufficiency of the petitions (or the Controller's certification if the Secretary of State is the subject of the recall, see Cal. Const. art. II, § 17), the Governor is responsible for publishing notice of the holding of the recall election [Elec. Code § 11110].

In the case of the recall of the Governor, on receipt of the Secretary of State's certification of the sufficiency of the petitions, the Lieutenant Governor is responsible for publishing notice of the holding of the recall election [see Cal. Const. art. II, § 17; Elec. Code § 11110].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Recall

25-302 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 302.73

§ 302.73 Recall Election

[1] Provisions Applicable to Recall of All Officers

The recall election is conducted and canvassed, and the results declared, in substantially the manner provided by law for a regular election for the office [Elec. Code § 11328]. For discussion and forms related to the conduct, canvass, and declaration of the results elections generally, see Ch. 243, Elections .

One election is sufficient for the recall of several officers [Elec. Code § 11329].

[2] Recall of City Officer

In a city recall election, the voters vote not only on whether the officer in question should be recalled but also on whether the successor, if recall is mandated, will be appointed by the legislative body of the city or will be elected by the voters at a special election [see Elec. Code § 11321].

A majority vote in favor of recall renders the office in question vacant [see Elec. Code § 11362]. If an election to fill the vacancy is not favored by the majority of the voters, then the legislative body must at once fill the vacancy by appointment. If an election to fill the vacancy is favored by the majority of the voters, then the legislative body must, at its next regular meeting, call a special election to elect a successor. In lieu of calling a special election, the election to elect a successor may be consolidated with a regular municipal election, if one is upcoming within the time specified by Elec. Code § 11363. Regardless of whether the vacancy is filled by appointment or election, the person elected or appointed holds office only for the unexpired term of the former incumbent [Elec. Code § 11363(a)].

The recalled officer may not be a candidate to succeed himself or herself at a special election held to fill the vacancy created by his or her recall. The recalled officer also may not be appointed by the legislative body to fill the vacancy created by his or her recall. Furthermore, the recalled officer may not be a candidate to fill the vacancy created by another recalled officer on the same governing board [Elec. Code § 11363(b)].

In the case of the recall of a city councillor, if a majority of the voters do not favor a special election to fill the vacancy, and if an appointment would result in a majority of the members of the city council having been appointed, the council is prohibited from filling the vacancy by appointment [Gov. Code §§ 34902, 36512(d)(1)]. Instead, the council can either call an election to fill the vacancy so long as the next regularly established election is at least 114 days later, or fill the vacancy at the next regularly established election date [Gov. Code § 36512(d)(2), (3); see Elec. Code § 11326].

If a majority of the legislative body of the city is recalled simultaneously, special provision is made for electing successors [see Elec. Code § 11364].

[3] Recall of Other Officer

Except in the case of a landowner voting district recall election, the voters in an election to recall a public officer other than a city officer will vote not only on whether the officer in question should be recalled but also on who should be the successor, if recall is mandated [Elec. Code § 11322; see Elec. Code § 11381 (nominations of candidates to succeed recalled incumbent)]. Elec. Code §§ 11320 and 11322 expressly exclude landowner voting districts, and since the repeal of Elec. Code § 27314 in 1977, no statute has provided for the form of a ballot in a landowner voting district recall election.

No person whose recall is being sought may be a candidate to succeed himself or herself at a recall election. No person whose recall is being sought may be a candidate to succeed any other member of the same governing board whose recall is being sought at the same election [Elec. Code § 11381(c)].

If a majority of the voters favor recall, the subject officer is removed from office on the qualification of the successor [see Elec. Code §§ 11383, 11384], who is the candidate receiving the highest number of votes [Elec. Code § 11385]. If that candidate qualifies within 10 days after receiving his or her certificate of election, he or she serves the remainder of the unexpired term [Elec. Code § 11386]. If he or she fails to qualify within that period, the office to which he or she was elected is vacant and must be filled according to law as in other cases of vacancy [Elec. Code § 11386].

[1] Reimbursement for Expenses

A state officer who is not recalled must be reimbursed by the state for his or her recall election expenses legally and personally incurred [Cal. Const. art. II, § 18]. Reimbursement is available only to state officers and not to local officers [Hickman v. State of California (1971) 19 Cal. App. 3d 1038, 1039, 97 Cal. Rptr. 383 (county assessor not entitled to reimbursement for expenses incurred in defeating recall election)].

[2] Availability of Another Recall

Another recall may not be initiated against the officer until six months after the election [Cal. Const. art. II, § 18].

[1] Availability

[a] Of Initiative

Circulation of state initiative petition involves interactive communication on political change that amounts to core political speech deserving of highest level of protection under U.S. Const. amends. I, XIV. Meyer v. Grant (1988) 486 U.S. 414, 421-422, 108 S. Ct. 1886, 100 L. Ed. 2d 425

Statutes governing local planning [see Gov. Code § 65100 et seq.] do not prevent voters from exercising initiative power under Cal. Const. art. II, § 11, to amend county general plan; Elec. Code § 9111 specifically allows such amendment. DeVita v. County of Napa (1995) 9 Cal. 4th 763, 770-771, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 699, 889 P.2d 1019

Voters in charter city whose power under city charter is equal to board of supervisors to propose, enact, and reject ordinances, acts, and measures may permissibly use initiative process to repeal tax ordinance. Rossi v. Brown (1995) 9 Cal. 4th 688, 712-713, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 363, 889 P.2d 557 (San Francisco)

State's plenary power over matters of statewide concern is sufficient authorization for legislation barring local exercise of initiative and referendum on matters that have been specifically and exclusively delegated to local legislative body. Committee of Seven Thousand v. Superior Court (1988) 45 Cal. 3d 491, 511-512, 247 Cal. Rptr. 362, 754 P.2d 708

In matters of statewide concern, state may preempt entire field of legislation to the exclusion of all local control; in choosing to grant some measure of local control, state has authority to impose procedural restrictions on exercise of power granted, including authority to bar exercise of initiative and referendum. Committee of Seven Thousand v. Superior Court (1988) 45 Cal. 3d 491, 511, 247 Cal. Rptr. 362, 754 P.2d 708

Statutory reference to action by local legislative body, although generally not conclusive on legislative intent, supports inference that intent was to preclude action by initiative or referendum; intent to exclude ballot measures more readily inferred if statute addresses matter of statewide concern rather than purely municipal affair. Committee of Seven

Zoning ordinance is legislative act, no matter what size parcel is, and thus subject to change by initiative. Arnel Development Co. v. City of Costa Mesa (1980) 28 Cal. 3d 511, 515-525, 169 Cal. Rptr. 904, 620 P.2d 565

Administrative negation of otherwise valid planning activities that have not yet been fully carried out pursuant to previously-approved initiative measure is not a valid subject of an initiative measure. Citizens for Jobs and the Economy v. County of Orange (2002) 94 Cal. App. 4th 1311, 1331-1334, 115 Cal. Rptr. 2d 90

Initiative to permit local voters to set county supervisor salaries by initiative is unconstitutional because under clear language of Cal. Const., art. XI, § 1(b), voters are only authorized to challenge county supervisors' salaries by referendum. Jahr v. Casebeer (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 1250, 1254, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 172

Any legislative act may be enacted by initiative and may be subject to referendum regardless whether act is denominated ordinance or resolution; land use decisions by local governing bodies can be challenged by either initiative or referendum. Mervyn's v. Reyes (1998) 69 Cal. App. 4th 93, 100-101, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 148

Zoning ordinances, as well as general plan, may be amended by initiative; initiative measure amending general plan or zoning ordinance is valid so long as reasonable minds might differ as to necessity or propriety of the enactment. Pala Band of Mission Indians v. Board of Supervisors (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 565, 573-574, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 148

When Legislature has enacted statewide policy and assigned particular local body the duty to implement that policy, Legislature thereby places implementation of statewide policy beyond reach of local initiative and referendum. Memorial Hospitals Assn. v. Randol (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 1300, 1313, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 547

A local coastal program that has been submitted to the state Coastal Commission pursuant to The Costal Act of 1976 (Pub. Res. Code § 30000 et seq.) and has been certified may be amended through the initiative process; local coastal program amendments are analogous to general plan amendments as local legislative acts subject to initiative; a statutory scheme does not restrict power of initiative or referendum merely because some elements of statewide concern are present; amendments to local coastal program not preempted by the Coastal Act. San Mateo County Coastal Landowners' Assn. v. County of San Mateo (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 523, 535-539, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 117

Provision of initiative ordinance conditioning annexation of "green belt" property on voter approval of general plan amendment conflicts with state law preemption of annexation law (Gov. Code § 56000 et seq.); ordinance unconstitutional under Cal. Const., art. XI, § 7. L. I. F. E. Committee v. City of Lodi (1989) 213 Cal. App. 3d 1139, 1143-1149, 262 Cal. Rptr. 166

Initiative is not remedy for denial of right to referendum, because referendum suspends effect of ordinance until issue is resolved by voters at next election, whereas initiative does not become effective until passed by voters. Kuhs v. Superior Court (1988) 201 Cal. App. 3d 966, 971, 247 Cal. Rptr. 544

Initiative constitutional amendment (as opposed to statutory initiative measure) is sole means available for people to modify or impinge on freedom of Legislature to exercise its constitutionally granted powers. People's Advocate, Inc. v. Superior Court (1986) 181 Cal. App. 3d 316, 327, 226 Cal. Rptr. 640

Initiative power of electors to propose, adopt, or reject statutes is shared with Legislature and Governor. People's Advocate, Inc. v. Superior Court (1986) 181 Cal. App. 3d 316, 324-325, 226 Cal. Rptr. 640

Powers of initiative reserved to people under Cal. Const., art. IV, § 1, does not include power to regulate internal workings of Legislature. People's Advocate, Inc. v. Superior Court (1986) 181 Cal. App. 3d 316, 327, 226 Cal. Rptr.

Purpose of former Elec. Code § 3711 (now see Elec. Code § 9118) is to preserve right of legislating by initiative on county level, and intent of Legislature in granting solely indirect initiative power to voters at county level (initiative can go before voters only if first presented to county legislative body) creates opportunity to spare expense of public vote. Thompson v. Board of Supervisors (1986) 180 Cal. App. 3d 555, 561, 225 Cal. Rptr. 640

Section of citywide initiative that engrafts impermissible condition on state and local solid waste disposal management is unenforceable and void because legislative area of solid waste disposal management is preempted by former Gov. Code § 66700 et seq. Wiltshire v. Superior Court (1985) 172 Cal. App. 3d 296, 305, 218 Cal. Rptr. 199

Initiative that withdraws power to issue special use permit from city council is impermissible because special use permits are issued or denied in exercise of council's adjudicatory, rather than legislative, powers. Wiltshire v. Superior Court (1985) 172 Cal. App. 3d 296, 303, 218 Cal. Rptr. 199

Initiative power may not be invoked when inevitable effect would be to greatly impair some other governmental power, practical application of which is essential; county ordinance adopted by initiative is therefore invalid when effect was to limit supervisors' power to levy taxes or appropriations for usual expenses of county, contrary to limitation on referendum power imposed by Cal. Const., art. II, § 9. Community Health Assn. v. Board of Supervisors (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 990, 993-996, 194 Cal. Rptr. 557

Initiative is not available to curtail city's power to tax or to contravene state law regarding definition of "special tax" in Cal. Const., art. XIIIA, § 4. City of Atascadero v. Daly (1982) 135 Cal. App. 3d 466, 470, 185 Cal. Rptr. 228

[b] Of Referendum

Under U.S. Const., art. V, process for amending United States Constitution is vested in Congress and state legislatures, and voters of state may not, through exercise of referendum or initiative power, thwart or mandate operation of federal constitutional amendment process. Bramberg v. Jones (1999) 20 Cal. 4th 1045, 1063, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 319, 978 P.2d 1240

Cal. Const., art. XI, § 1(b), neither restricts nor secures local right of referendum on employee compensation decisions; Gov. Code § 25123(e) restricts right of referendum when ordinance that would be subject of referendum specifically relates to implementation of memorandum of understanding between county and its employee associations. Voters for Responsible Retirement v. Board of Supervisors (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 765, 769, 776, 784, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 814, 884 P.2d 645

Power of referendum applies only to legislative acts of local governing body, as distinguished from administrative acts; city council's amendment of land use plan and rezoning of land are legislative acts subject to referendum, even though these acts are also regulated by California Coastal Act (Pub. Res. Code § 30000 et seq.). Yost v. Thomas (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 561, 569-574, 205 Cal. Rptr. 801, 685 P.2d 1152

A city elections official does not have the authority to refuse to certify an initiative petition based on extrinsic evidence relating to the manner of its circulation. An elections official's role in certifying an initiative petition is confined to the ministerial task of examining the four corners of the petition for compliance with submission requirements. Alliance for a Better Downtown Millbrae v. Wade (2003) 108 Cal. App. 4th 123, 133, 133 Cal. Rptr. 2d 249

Any legislative act may be enacted by initiative and may be subject to referendum regardless whether act is denominated ordinance or resolution; land use decisions by local governing bodies can be challenged by either initiative or referendum. Mervyn's v. Reyes (1998) 69 Cal. App. 4th 93, 100-101, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 148

Power of referendum will be found to have been withdrawn when Legislature indicates intent to preempt discretion of local legislative body or when Legislature has sought to delegate legislative power so exclusively to local governing body as to indicate intent to preclude citizens' right of referendum; Pub. Res. Code § 40059, part of Integrated Waste Management Act (Pub. Res. Code § 40000 et seq.), giving governing body of local governmental agency authority to grant exclusive franchise for solid waste handling services held not to deprive local citizens of power to conduct referendum on whether to repeal long-term extension of franchise granted by their municipal council. Empire Waste Management v. Town of Windsor (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 714, 716-719, 723, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 262

Scope of referendum power is generally coextensive with scope of legislative authority; any legislative decision made by representative body is subject to referendum; specific subjects, however, are constitutionally and statutorily exempted from scope of state or local referenda (see Cal. Const., art. II, § 9(a); Elec. Code § 9247); moreover, referendum may review only legislative decisions, but not matters that are strictly executive or administrative. Empire Waste Management v. Town of Windsor (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 714, 717, 717 n.1, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 262

Mere advisory action by local governing body is beyond the reach of referendum process; purpose of referendum is to repeal a lawful enactment by local governing body; purpose of initiative is to enact laws the local governing body could enact; referendum power does not permit establishment of a jury of the electorate to pass on legality of governing body's action; unlawful action is addressed in courts, not in voting booth; rather, referendum permits establishment of legislature of entire electorate to pass on wisdom of action lawfully taken by governing body. Memorial Hospitals Assn. v. Randol (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 1300, 1310-1312, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 547

When Legislature has enacted statewide policy and assigned particular local body the duty to implement that policy, Legislature thereby places implementation of statewide policy beyond reach of initiative and referendum. Memorial Hospitals Assn. v. Randol (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 1300, 1313, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 547

Referendum procedure is available to county citizens to challenge county board resolution amending county general plan; agreement between county and developers is unenforceable because citizens had begun referendum procedures to repeal resolution amending general plan that permitted development under agreement. Midway Orchards v. County of Butte (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 765, 773, 777, 778-782, 269 Cal. Rptr. 796

Referendum process, which allows voters to veto statutes and ordinances duly enacted by their elected legislative bodies before those laws become effective, can seriously disrupt essential governmental functions; before voters are allowed to bypass lawmaking power of their elective bodies, referendum measure must have wide base of public support. Sylva v. Board of Supervisors (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 648, 654, 256 Cal. Rptr. 138

City council's adoption of amendment to development plan formulated under Endangered Species Act (16 U.S.C. § 1531 et seq.) is administrative act not subject to referendum. W. W. Dean & Associates v. City of South San Francisco (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 1368, 1377-1380, 236 Cal. Rptr. 11

Initiative measure that requires voter approval of amendments to city's land use element of general plan, zoning map, or zoning code does not improperly invoke referendum power. Lee v. City of Monterey Park (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 798, 810-812, 219 Cal. Rptr. 309

City council makes required compelling showing that substantive provisions of referendum are clearly invalid, and thus not subject to referendum, if referendum would enact city zoning ordinance that would be invalid as inconsistent with general plan of city. deBottari v. City Council (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 1204, 1210-1213, 217 Cal. Rptr. 790

Referendum is not available to reject city ordinance properly imposing fee or tax on users of utility services. Fenton

v. City of Delano (1984) 162 Cal. App. 3d 400, 404-407, 208 Cal. Rptr. 486

County board of supervisors' action in enacting ordinance imposing criminal sanctions for housing code violations is legislative rather than administrative act and subject to referendum. Merriman v. Board of Supervisors (1983) 138 Cal. App. 3d 889, 893, 188 Cal. Rptr. 343

[2] Filing of Initiative or Referendum

City elections official or other ministerial officer is not authorized to refuse to process referendum based on his or her own decision that subject is not appropriate for submission to voters, even if supported by advice of city attorney. Yost v. Thomas (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 561, 564 n.2, 205 Cal. Rptr. 801, 685 P.2d 1152

Writ of mandate issued to compel registrar of voters to determine sufficiency of initiative petition after filing. Farley v. Healey (1967) 67 Cal. 2d 325, 329, 62 Cal. Rptr. 26, 431 P.2d 650

Requirement to file papers "not later than" specified date is strictly enforced; filing after specified date, even if it is a holiday, is too late. Steele v. Bartlett (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 573, 574, 116 P.2d 780

When February 29 is counted as separate day in measuring period of time. Sanguinetti v. Sanguinetti (1937) 9 Cal. 2d 95, 97-98, 69 P.2d 845

Writ of mandate issued to compel city elections official to accept and process referendum petition presented for filing. Ley v. Dominguez (1931) 212 Cal. 587, 602, 299 P. 713 ; Dwyer v. City Council (1927) 200 Cal. 505, 519, 253 P. 932

Writ of mandate issued to compel county elections official to accept and process referendum petition presented for filing. Perry v. Gross (1916) 172 Cal. 468, 472, 156 P. 1031

Clerk is required to accept papers presented for filing when office actually open, even if on holiday. Cosgriff v. Board of Election Comm'rs (1907) 151 Cal. 407, 410, 91 P. 98

Election officials have ministerial duty to reject initiative petitions that suffer from a substantial, as opposed to technical, statutory defect that directly affects quality of information provided to voters. San Francisco Forty-Niners v. Nishioka (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 637, 644, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 388

Referendum petition must be circulated during 30 days following passage of ordinance in question; 30-day qualifying period for ordinance passed on February 6, 1996, was from February 7 through March 7, 1996. Mapstead v. Anchundo (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 246, 259, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 602

Referendum petition opposing ordinance under former Elec. Code § 3751 [see now Elec. Code § 9141] is timely filed on 30th day after passage, because 30 days, exclusive of day of passage, are required to pass before 30-day type of ordinance is effective. Kuhs v. Superior Court (1988) 201 Cal. App. 3d 966, 974, 247 Cal. Rptr. 544

In mandate proceeding to compel city elections official to accept and process municipal referendum petition, elections official is not estopped from denying validity of petition despite elections official's letter to one proponent stating elections official's belief that petition was valid, when elections official orally informed proponent of official's lack of legal expertise, official provided proponent with copies of applicable Elections Code sections, and no unusual and unique circumstances existed to warrant official's acceptance of defective petition. Creighton v. Reviczky (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 1225, 1233, 217 Cal. Rptr. 834

Writ of mandate issued to compel city elections official to accept and process initiative petition presented for filing. Duran v. Cassidy (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 574, 587-588, 104 Cal. Rptr. 793 ; Bayless v. Limber (1972) 26 Cal. App. 3d 463, 470, 102 Cal. Rptr. 647

Writ of mandate issued to compel city elections official to return defective referendum petition to proponents and to allow them one hour and 36 minutes (time remaining between original filing and closing hour of elections official's office on last day for filing) in which to cure defects. Beck v. Piatt (1972) 24 Cal. App. 3d 611, 617, 101 Cal. Rptr. 236

Writ of mandate issued to compel Secretary of State to accept section of initiative petition presented for filing. Hunt v. Jordan (1934) 139 Cal. App. 200, 202, 36 P.2d 828

Legislative distinction between allowing 60 days to file referendum petitions for ordinances relating to revenue bonds and supervisorial salaries, under former Elec. Code §§ 3751.7, 3752 [see now Elec. Code §§ 9142 and 9143], and allowing 30 days to file referendum petitions for other ordinances, including redistricting, under former Elec. Code § 3751 [see now Elec. Code § 9141], is rationally related to legitimate state end, so that subjecting petitioners to 30-day filing time limit under former Elec. Code § 3751 did not deny petitioners equal protection of laws under U.S. Const. amend. XIV. Thompson v. Board of Supervisors (1986) 180 Cal. App. 3d 555, 564, 225 Cal. Rptr. 640

Enactment date of statute is date it becomes law. County of Orange v. Flournoy (1974) 42 Cal. App. 3d 908, 912-913, 117 Cal. Rptr. 224

[3] Constitutional Amendments

Proposition 225, initiative measure which instructed legislators to propose and support specific congressional term limits amendment to United States Constitution and required ballot in future elections for congressional and state legislative offices to include notice of nonsupport of term limits adjacent to any candidate who failed to support or pledge support for proposed amendment held unconstitutional as violating U.S. Const. art. V amendment process; process for amending constitution under U.S. Const., art. V is vested in Congress and state legislatures, and voters cannot thwart or mandate operation of that process by use of referendum or initiative power; moreover, to extent first two sections of Proposition 225 might be viewed as constituting non-binding advisory measures permissible under U.S. Const. art. V and severable from other provisions of Proposition, those provisions would not constitute valid initiative measure under California Constitution because they do not create law and thus do not adopt statute within meaning of Cal. Const., art. II. Bramberg v. Jones (1999) 20 Cal. 4th 1045, 1048, 1063, 1063 n.19, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 319, 978 P.2d 1240

Initiative process is designed to enact statutes or amend state constitution and is not available to compel Legislature to apply for constitutional convention to propose amendment to federal constitution requiring balanced budget. American Federation of Labor v. Eu (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 687, 694-695, 697-716, 206 Cal. Rptr. 89, 686 P.2d 609

[4] Procedure in General

Slight discrepancies between the version of Proposition 77 submitted to the Attorney General and the version circulated for signature did not mislead the public or otherwise frustrate or undermine the purposes underlying any of the applicable constitutional or statutory provisions or threaten the integrity of the electoral process. Under the particular circumstances presented in this matter, the Court found substantial compliance with the requirements, but narrowly tailored its decision. Costa v. Superior Court (2006) 37 Cal. 4th 986, 1028, 39 Cal. Rptr. 3d 470

Constitutional right reserved by people to submit legislative questions to direct vote of the people is not subject to abridgment by procedural requirements. Referendum Committee v. City of Hermosa Beach (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 152, 161, 229 Cal. Rptr. 51

Environmental impact report is not required when initiative placed on ballot because public entity is not acting or giving approval. Stein v. City of Santa Monica (1980) 110 Cal. App. 3d 458, 460-462, 168 Cal. Rptr. 39

[5] Single-Subject Rule

Provisions of Proposition 21, the Gang Violence and Juvenile Crime Prevention Act of 1998, have the common purpose of addressing the problem of juvenilecrime and gang-related crime. The fact that the measure's three strikes provisions affect adults in addition to juveniles and gang members does not mean that these provisions are not reasonably germane to the purpose of the initiative. Manduley v. Superior Court (2002) 27 Cal. 4th 537, 575-582, 117 Cal. Rptr. 2d 168

In case of challenge based on single-subject rule, pre-election relief not only is permissible in appropriate instances, but is expressly contemplated; thus, when court determines that challengers to initiative measure have demonstrated that there is strong likelihood that initiative violates single-subject rule, it is appropriate to resolve single-subject challenge before election. Senate of the State of Cal. v. Jones (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 1142, 1153-1154, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 810, 988 P.2d 1089

Initiative measure does not violate single-subject rule if, despite its varied collateral effects, all its parts are reasonably germane to each other and to general purpose of object of initiative; single-subject provision does not require that each of provisions of a measure effectively interlock in a functional relationship; it is enough that the various provisions are reasonably related to common theme or purpose. Senate of the State of Cal. v. Jones (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 1142, 1157, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 810, 988 P.2d 1089

When drafters of initiative measure join separate provisions dealing with otherwise unrelated political issues in single initiative, initiative cannot be found to satisfy single-subject rule simply because each provision imposes requirement of voter approval. Senate of the State of Cal. v. Jones (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 1142, 1162-1163, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 810, 988 P.2d 1089

Diversity of provisions of "Crime Victims Justice Reform Act" (Proposition 115) not unconscionably complex or defying ready summary or easy comprehension by even most conscientious and sophisticated voters, because voters' pamphlet sets forth summary of measure, detailed analysis by Legislative Analyst, and complete text of proposed measure, together with customary written arguments and rebuttals, which court assumes that voters duly considered and comprehended. Raven v. Deukmejian (1990) 52 Cal. 3d 336, 349, 276 Cal. Rptr. 326, 801 P.2d 1077

Provisions of Proposition 115 satisfies single subject rule in that provisions were reasonably germane to each other, united to form comprehensive criminal justice reform package, promoted single subject of rights of crime victims, and had unifying theme of abrogating case law that drafters of initiative deemed unduly expansive of criminal defendants' rights. Raven v. Deukmejian (1990) 52 Cal. 3d 336, 347, 349, 276 Cal. Rptr. 326, 801 P.2d 1077

Provisions of "Victims' Bill of Rights" (Proposition 8) reasonably germane and, therefore, satisfy single-subject requirement of Cal. Const. art. II, § 8(d), because each of its several facts bears common concern, "general object," or "general subject," promoting rights of actual or potential crime victims. Brosnahan v. Brown (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 236, 247, 186 Cal. Rptr. 30, 651 P.2d 274

Single-subject requirement for initiative measures [Cal. Const., art. II, § 8(d)] does not apply to, nor does any other constitutional provision, or any statute, impose single-subject requirement concerning, ballot measure sponsored by city council. Hernandez v. County of Los Angeles, 167 Cal. App. 4th 12, 23, 84 Cal. Rptr. 3d 10

Proposition 71, adopted in 2004 general election, which authorized and provided for stem-cell research, did not violate single-subject rule. California Family Bioethics Council, LLC v. California Inst. for Regenerative Medicine (2007) 147 Cal. App. 4th 1319, 1330

Proposition 10, the California Children and Families Act of 1998, which increased the tobacco excise tax for the stated purposes of reducing tobacco use, particularly among teenagers, funded early child development and anti-smoking programs, and created the California Children and Families Commission (CCFC) and local county commissions to administer its statutory mandates, did not violate the single-subject rule because it addressed the separate subjects of early child development and tobacco consumption. All of the provisions of the Act were reasonably germane to the single subject of the improvement of the health of children from prenatal stage to age five. The record included evidence that the health of this demographic group was harmed by tobacco consumption by pregnant women and secondhand smoke. The Act improves children's health by increasing tobacco taxes, which discourages consumption and reduces the harmful effects of tobacco consumption on children, and raises revenue to be spent on improving the health and welfare of young children. California Assn. of Retail Tobacconists v. State of California (2003) 109 Cal. App. 4th 792, 808-814, 135 Cal. Rptr. 2d 224

An initiative entitled "Save Agriculture and Open Space Lands" reasonably and naturally encompasses provisions that will (1) limit a use of the land at issue, such as a landfill, that is incompatible with this title, and (2) promote an activity, such as coordination of solid waste recycling and management, that fosters this title by reducing a cause for encroachment on open space. Consequently, such provisions, even if they may effectively realign agency responsibility for solid waste management, would not mislead a voter as to the measure's purpose, because, like all the provisions in the measure, they are germane to achieving its clearly stated objective of preserving and enhancing specifically defined open space and agricultural lands within the County. Shea Homes Limited Partnership v. County of Alameda (2003) 110 Cal. App. 4th 1246, 1255-1259, 2 Cal. Rptr. 3d 739

Proposition 213 made it clear its primary subject was to limit recovery of noneconomic damages for drivers that break law; this topic can best be described as one unified subject having three integrated parts consisting of drunk drivers, uninsured drivers, and drivers in commission of or fleeing from a felony; the three subparts of this topic are generally germane to electorate's interests of restoring balance to justice system and lowering insurance premiums. Yoshioka v. Superior Court (1997) 58 Cal. App. 4th 972, 992-993, 68 Cal. Rptr. 2d 553

Local initiative measure entitled "Coastal Protection Initiative" that amended local coastal program that had been submitted to state Coastal Commission pursuant to The Costal Act of 1976 (Pub. Resources Code § 30000 et seq.) satisfied single-subject rule; initiative provisions were reasonable germane to one another in that they all dealt with planning and regulation of development in coastal zone to protect coastal resources, including agricultural lands, ecologically significant habitats and scenic values; initiative's stated purposes, including preventing construction of onshore facilities and pipelines for offshore drilling were directed at single general purpose expressed in title: protection of coastal resources. San Mateo County Coastal Landowners' Assn. v. County of San Mateo (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 523, 553-555, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 117

Various provisions of proposed ballot initiative, including those implementing substantive and procedural reform of welfare system, extending time within which Governor must submit budget proposal to Legislature, granting counties discretion in setting general assistance levels, and establishing incentives for school attendance by teenage parents receiving AFDC benefits, are reasonably germane to initiative's overall stated purpose of balancing budget. League of Women Voters v. Eu (1992) 7 Cal. App. 4th 649, 658-667, 9 Cal. Rptr. 2d 416

Initiative does not violate single-subject rule solely because summary provided by attorney general misdescribed it. Insurance Industry Initiative Campaign Com. v. Eu (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 961, 968, 250 Cal. Rptr. 320

Single-subject rule does not require initiative that would repeal existing law to share underlying purpose of law to be repealed; proposed repeal must be germane to purposes and objects of initiative. Insurance Industry Initiative Campaign Com. v. Eu (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 961, 965, 250 Cal. Rptr. 320

Provisions of automobile and liability insurance initiative relating to campaign contributions and conflicts of interest of elected officials receiving contributions are neither reasonably germane nor functionally related to stated general object of measure or to other provisions of measure, and therefore violate single-subject rule. California Trial Lawyers Assn. v. Eu (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 351, 362, 245 Cal. Rptr. 916

[5.1] Separate-Vote Provision

Cal. Const., art. XVIII, § 1, which requires in its second sentence that when the Legislature proposes an amendment of the state Constitution, "[e]ach amendment shall be so prepared and submitted that it can be voted on separately," is a limitation upon legislative power to submit constitutional amendments to the voters, and should be construed consistently with its kindred provision, the single subject provision. The Legislature's proposed submission, in a single constitutional amendment, of two changes to the state Constitution that are not germane to a common theme, purpose, or subject, violated the constitutional separate vote requirement. Irrespective of the constitutionality of an initiative, public officials must perform their ministerial statutory duties to certify the results of an initiative election. City of Santa Monica v. Stewart (2005) 126 Cal. App. 4th 43, 76, 24 Cal. Rptr. 3d 72

A city's failure to either adopt a qualified voter initiative or place it on the ballot within the statutory time periods does not preclude the city from exercising its ministerial and mandatory duty to take such action. MHC Financing Limited Partnership Two v. City of Santee (2005) 125 Cal. App. 4th 1372, 1384, 23 Cal. Rptr. 3d 622

Writ of mandate issued to compel county elections official to omit initiative measure from ballot. Mueller v. Brown (1963) 221 Cal. App. 2d 319, 328, 34 Cal. Rptr. 474

[b] Redistricting Ordinance

County board of supervisors does not violate former Elec. Code § 35006 [see now Elec. Code § 21506 (prohibiting change in boundaries of supervisorial district between direct primary election and general election)] by passage of initiative redistricting ordinance with effective date between primary and general election, but with operative date after general election. Thompson v. Board of Supervisors (1986) 180 Cal. App. 3d 555, 562, 225 Cal. Rptr. 640

[c] Construction of Initiative

In interpreting voter initiative, appellate court applies same principles that govern statutory construction; court first turns to language of statute, giving word their ordinary meaning; statutory language must also be construed in context of statute as whole and overall statutory scheme; when language is ambiguous, court refers to other indicia of voters' intent, particularly analysis and arguments contained in official ballot pamphlet; if penal statute reasonably susceptible to multiple constructions, court ordinarily adopts construction that is more favorable to offender; rule against interpreting statutory language in a manner that would render some part of statute surplusage is only a guide and will not be used to defeat legislative intent or provide absurd results. People v. Rizo (2000) 22 Cal. 4th 681, 685-687, 94 Cal. Rptr. 2d 375, 996 P.2d 27

Statutory initiative is subject to same state and federal constitutional limitations as are Legislature and statutes which it enacts; statute that is inconsistent with California Constitution is void; statute that is invalid as inconsistent with California Constitution is not ineffective and inoperative to extent that its invalid parts can be severed from any valid ones; invalid part can be severed if, and only if, it is "grammatically, functionally and volitionally separable"; it is "grammatically" severable if it is distinct and separate and, hence can be removed as a whole without affecting wording of any of measure's other provisions; it is "functionally" separable if it is necessary to measure's operation and purpose; and it is "volitionally" separable if it was not of critical importance to measure's enactment; moreover, as general rule, it is not judiciary's function to reweigh findings of legislative fact underlying a legislative enactment and to extent initiative measure contains findings made by people as electors that actually state legislative facts, court will follow the general rule of deference; to extent, however, such findings do not consist of legislative fact, but of statutory orconstitutional interpretation, general rule of deference is not implicated; because Proposition 5, authorizing tribal casino gambling, is in conflict with anticasino provision of Cal Const., art IV, § 19, Proposition 5, except for final sentence of Gov. Code § 98005, held invalid and inoperative; state's consent to suit contained in final sentence of Gov. Code § 98005 held severable from measure's invalid provisions. Hotel Employees & Restaurant Employees Internat. Union v. Davis (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 585, 589, 602, 610, 613-615, 88 Cal.Rptr. 2d 56, 981 P.2d 990

Evidence of purpose of statutes or constitutional amendments enacted by initiative may be drawn from many sources including historical context of statutes or amendments, ballot arguments favoring measure, and general statement of purpose found in initiative. Amwest Surety Ins. Co. v. Wilson (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 1243, 1256-1257, 48 Cal. Rptr. 2d 12, 906 P.2d 1112

Power of court in appropriate case to reform (rewrite) initiative statute to preserve it against invalidation under

Constitution; earlier federal appeal's court judgment affirming federal district court injunction against enforcement of sections of initiative statute based on sections unconstitutionality does not render those sections incapable of reformation by California Supreme court; whether state statute may be reformed or construed in manner that preserves its constitutionality is question of state not federal law; public interest exception to principles of res judicata or collateral estoppel held to apply. Kopp v. Fair Pol. Practices Com. (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 607, 615, 620-622, 661-662, 685, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 108, 905 P2d 1248

Although both initiatives approved by voters, Proposition 73 is effective and Proposition 68 is inoperative, since absent contrary intent, when competing, conflicting initiatives seek to comprehensively regulate same subject, only initiative receiving highest vote becomes operative. Taxpayers to Limit Campaign Spending v. Fair Pol. Practices Com. (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 744, 765, 274 Cal. Rptr. 787, 799 P. 2d 1220

Motive or purpose of drafters of initiative are not relevant to its construction, unless there is reason to conclude that voters were aware of drafters' purpose and believed language of initiative would accomplish it. Taxpayers to Limit Campaign Spending v. Fair Pol. Practices Com. (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 744, 764-765 n.10, 274 Cal. Rptr. 787, 799 P. 2d 1220

Practices adopted and followed by local governments to comply with constitutional amendments adopted by initiative properly considered and given great deference in interpreting initiative. Davis v. City of Berkeley (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 227, 239, 272 Cal. Rptr. 139, 794 P.2d 897

Historical context is proper aid to construction of constitutional amendments adopted by initiative. Davis v. City of Berkeley (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 227, 235, 272 Cal. Rptr. 139, 794 P.2d 897

Power to adopt statutes by initiative is coextensive with legislative power, and statutory initiative is subject to same constitutional limitations and rules of construction as legislative enactments. Building Industry Assn. v. City of Camarillo (1986) 41 Cal. 3d 810, 821, 226 Cal. Rptr. 81, 718 P.2d 68 ; Legislature v. Deukmejian (1983) 34 Cal. 3d 658, 674-676, 194 Cal. Rptr. 781, 669 P.2d 17 ; City of Westminster v. County of Orange (1988) 204 Cal. App. 3d 623, 628, 251 Cal. Rptr. 511

Appellate court construes voter-approved amendment to city charter as court would construe voter-approved amendment to state constitution; court will not presume lawmakers (here, voters) intended literal construction of law if that construction would result in absurd consequences; in those circumstances, court must consider extrinsic evidence of voters' intent despite unambiguous language of enactment; information and arguments contained in official ballot pamphlet may indicate voters' understanding of measure and their intent in passing it; historical context in which provisions was adopted also is relevant; statement of individual legislator (in form of declaration) can properly be consider as evidence of legislative intent as long as statement is reiteration of legislative discussion and events leading up to adoption of proposed amendment rather than merely expression of personal opinion. Woo v. Superior Court (2000) 83 Cal. App. 4th 967, 974-978, 100 Cal. Rptr. 2d 156

Interpretation of statute presents question of law, which appellate court reviews de novo; with regard to more specific question of construing statutory limitation of 100 words for Attorney General's circulating title and summary of proposed initiative measure [see Elec. Code §§ 303.5(c)(2), 9004(a) (formerly section 9002)], standard of review in Epperson v. Jordan (1938) 12 Cal. 2d 61, 82 P.2d 445 adopted; appellate court liberally construes initiative provisions to permit, if possible, electors' exercise of that privilege; court attempts to harmonize different parts of statutory scheme, and to construe language with view toward achieving result that corresponds to legislative intent and avoids absurd or unworkable result. Holmes v. Jones (2000) 83 Cal. App. 4th 882, 888, 891, 100 Cal. Rptr. 2d 138

When words of voter initiative are at least arguably ambiguous, court may look to various canons of statutory construction, compare provisions given to other similar statutes, and examine ballot materials as aids to ascertaining intent of electorate; with regard to Civ. Code § 3333.4, a part of Personal Responsibility Act of 1996, enacted by initiative (Proposition 213), there is no explicit language in ballot materials accompanying Proposition 312, to effect punitive damages should or should not be included in limited recovery provisions of Civ. Code § 3333.4(a); there is, in fact, no mention of punitive damages at all in ballot materials; thus, court reasoned that absence of any reference to limits on punitive damages in ballot materials leads to common sense conclusion that electorate did not intend to deny uninsured motorists right to seek punitive damages in appropriate case; findings and declaration of purposes in ballot materials also supported its conclusion. Nakamura v. Superior Court (2000) 83 Cal. App. 4th 825, 834, 837-838, 100 Cal. Rptr. 2d 97

Initiative measures are subject to same rules and cannons of statutory construction as ordinary enactments; as general rule, absent some clear indication to contrary, any change in law is presumed to have prospective application only; retroactive application cannot be supported by characterizing legislative or constitutional change as merely procedural statute; in truth, distinction relates not so much as to form of statute as to its legal effect; if substantial changes are made, even in statute which might ordinarily be classified as procedural, operation on existing rights would be retroactive because legal effect of past events would be changed, and statute will be construed to operate only in futuro unless legislative intent to contrary clearly appears; question is whether procedural changes made in law have substantial impact of changing legal effect of past events, with unanticipatedconsequences on existing circumstances, rights or reasonable expectations; if so, law must be construed to operate prospectively only unless legislative intent to contrary appears; presumption of prospectivity held to apply to relevant provisions of Cal. Const., art VI, § 18, enacted by voters by Proposition 190 and consequently burden was on appellant to overcome presumption by offering some evidence that drafters of Proposition 190 and voters who enacted it intended retrospective application which appellant failed to do. Rosasco v. Commission on Judicial Performance (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 315, 321-326, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 111

In case of a constitutional provision adopted by voters, their intent governs; in interpreting provision of constitution, court looks to ordinary and common meaning of words used; when constitution, however, contains word with both technical and popular meaning, courts will accord it its popular meaning, unless context suggests, or very nature of subject indicates, that it is employed in its technical sense. Keller v. Chowchilla Water Dist. (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 1006, 1011, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 246

To extent there is any ambiguity as to intent of Proposition 227, the English Language in Public School's initiative that created new chapter in California's Education Code (Chapter), and which requires children in public school who are of "Limited English Proficiency"(LEP) to be taught only in English, subject to right of parents of each affected child to seek waiver from requirement of English-only instruction, legislative history clarifies that Chapter was designed to wrest from school boards and administrators decisionmaking authority for selecting between LEP educational options, and repose this power exclusively in parents of LEP students; thus Chapter is in direct and irreconcilable conflict with Educ. Code § 33050 which generally allows local school districts to apply to the State Board of Education for waivers from program requirements of the Education Code not enumerated in that section; in face of such a positive repugnancy, under well-recognized principles of statutory construction, enactment of Chapter held to amend by implication Educ. Code § 33050 to except these core provisions of Chapter from general waiver process; court reached same result by employing another, but related rule of statutory construction concerning specific statute controlling over general statute when statutes are in conflict; in reaching its holding, court noted there is general presumption in law that both Legislature and electorate by initiative process are deemed aware of laws in effect at time they enact new laws and are conclusively presumed to have enacted new laws in light of existing laws having a direct bearing on them; however, unlike cases where lawmakers can be presumed to borrow from existing law to supply omitted meaning to later enactments, presumption that one legislated with full knowledge of existing law is not conclusive, and not even helpful, in cases when later enactment directly conflicts with an earlier law; when statutory language may appear unambiguous yet latent ambiguity exists, courts must go behind literal language and analyze intent of law using customary rules of statutory construction or legislative history for guidance; this may include reference to ballot materials in case of initiatives to discern what average voter would understand to be intent of law on which he or she was voting; California courts have long recognized that an act adding, new provisions to and affecting application of existing statute in a sense amends statute; an implied amendment is an act that creates an addition, omission, modification or substitution and changes scope or effect of existing statute; wlike related principles of "repealed by implication" and "drafter's oversight," amendments by implication are disfavored but allowed to preserve statutory harmony and effectuate intent of Legislature. McLaughlin v. State Bd. of Education (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 196, 201-202, 212-216, 218-225, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 295

Judicial policy is to liberally construe initiative and referendum power whenever challenged so that right will not be improperly annulled; if doubts can reasonably be resolved in favor of use of this reserve power, courts will preserve it. Mervyn's v. Reyes (1998) 69 Cal. App. 4th 93, 100-101, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 148

When interpreting statute, court attempts to determine legislative intent to effectuate purpose of law; first court reads statute in ordinary way unless special definitions provided; if meaning of words clear, language controls; if meaning of words not clear, court can use interpretative aids; with voter approved enactments, interpretative aids include ballot analysis, official summary, and arguments presented to voters. Professional Engineers v. Wilson (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 1013, 1019-1021, 72 Cal. Rptr.2d 111

Initiatives are subject to same constitutional analysis as statutes. Yoshioka v. Superior Court (1997) 58 Cal. App. 4th 972, 987 n.8, 68 Cal. Rptr. 2d 553

Courts addressing retroactive application of initiatives generally follow two-step analysis; first, court must determine whether initiative has been retroactively applied; if so, court must then decide if people intended that statute be so applied; on finding of intent, initiative may be enacted unless it is prohibited by state or federal constitutional provisions; since initiative before court did not expressly state that it will apply retroactively, court must determine electorate's intent; to determine intent it is best to look at language of initiative itself; retroactive application of Proposition 213 upheld. Yoshioka v. Superior Court (1997) 58 Cal. App. 4th 972, 979-992, 68 Cal. Rptr. 2d 553

Constitutional provision for initiative rests on theory that all power of government ultimately resides in people and thus initiative power is reserved to people, not granted to them; it is duty of court to jealously guard this right of the people; judicial policy is to apply liberal construction to this power whenever it is challenged in order that the right not be improperly annulled; if doubts can reasonably be resolved in favor of use of this reserve power, courts will preserve it. National Paint & Coatings Assn. v. State of California (1997) 58 Cal. App. 4th 753, 760, 68 Cal. Rptr. 2d 360

When a misdemeanor Pen. Code § 113 was inconsistent and incompatible with a later felony Pen. Code § 113 enacted by initiative, the later enacted felony Pen. Code § 113 was held to repeal misdemeanor Pen. Code § 113; when two laws on same subject, passed at different times, are inconsistent with each other, latter act prevails. People v. Bustamante (1997) 57 Cal. App. 4th 693, 701, 67 Cal. Rptr. 2d 295

Words of measure adopted by initiative are required to be understood as words of voters who adopted measure; words are required to be understood in common, popular way and, absent strong and convincing reason to contrary, are not entitled to consideration in technical sense inconsistent with popular meaning. AIU Ins. Co. v. Gillespie (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 1155, 1159, 272 Cal. Rptr. 334

Statute amended by proposition, requiring state plan to establish occupational standards consistent with federal OSHA standards (to avoid federal preemption of state jurisdiction), unambiguously requires inclusion in state plan of statute regarding warnings about carcinogenic chemicals, provided by another proposition; consequently, in mandamus action seeking to order Cal/OSHA Board to include warning provision in state plan, court is not required to examine intent of voters in that regard. California Lab. Federation v. Occupational Safety & Health Stds. Bd. (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 1547, 1556-1557, 271 Cal. Rptr. 310

Severability of statute enacted by initiative is possible and proper when (1) language of statute is mechanically severable, (2) sections to be severed are capable of independent application, and (3) electorate's attention was sufficiently focused on sections to be severed that it would have separately considered and adopted them absent invalid portions. People's Advocate, Inc. v. Superior Court (1986) 181 Cal. App. 3d 316, 330-333, 226 Cal. Rptr. 640

Words of measure adopted by initiative must be read to harmonize with subject matter and with general purpose and object of measure, consistent with measure's language. Arvin Union School Dist. v. Ross (1985) 176 Cal. App. 3d 189, 198, 221 Cal. Rptr. 720

Consideration of official statements made to voters in connection with proposition of law that voters are requested to approve or reject is proper to ascertain intent of electorate. Arvin Union School Dist. v. Ross (1985) 176 Cal. App. 3d 189, 198, 221 Cal. Rptr. 720

When electorate has altered city charter by initiative measure, but terms of amendment are ambiguous when read with existing law, legislative body of city may adopt ordinances that interpret initiative in order to harmonize it with existing law. Creighton v. City of Santa Monica (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 1011, 1021, 207 Cal. Rptr. 78

Initiative repealing inheritance tax with provision for operative date as of date of passage construed to be operative from beginning of election date when measure passed. Estate of Cirone (1984) 153 Cal. App. 3d 199, 202-207, 200 Cal. Rptr. 511

[d] Petition Contents

Elec. Code § 9201 does not require that initiative petition contains all the information an informed voter would want, only the text of the measure proposed to be enacted. Where passage of an initiative would affect a city's general plan, Elec. Code § 9201 does not require the initiative petition to include the text of every plan, law, or ordinance the measure might affect. We Care-- Santa Paula v. Herrera (2006) 139 Cal. App. 4th 387, 390-391, 42 Cal. Rptr. 3d 577

Initiative petition involving land use and city's general plan that violated full text requirement of Elec. Code § 9201 held invalid; purpose of full text requirement is to provide sufficient information so that registered voters can intelligently evaluate whether to sign initiative petition and to avoid confusion; cases finding lack of substantial compliance discussed. Mervyn's v. Reyes (1998) 69 Cal. App. 4th 93, 99-104, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 148

[7] Referendum

[a] In General

Under U.S. Const., art. V, process for amending United States Constitution is vested in Congress and state legislatures, and voters of state may not,through exercise of referendum or initiative power, thwart or mandate operation of federal constitutional amendment process; Proposition 225, initiative measure dealing with congressional term limits, held unconstitutional as violating amendment process authorized under U.S. Const., art. V. Bramberg v. Jones (1999) 20 Cal. 4th 1045, 1063, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 319, 978 P.2d 1240

Referendum is means by which electorate is entitled, as power reserved by it under state Constitution, to approve or reject measures passed by legislative body; scope of referendum power is generally coextensive with scope of legislative authority; any legislative decision made by representative body is subject to referendum; specific subjects, however, are exempted from scope of state or local referenda (see Cal. Const., art. II, § 9(a); Elec. Code § 9247); moreover, referendum may review only legislative decisions, not matters that are strictly executive or administrative. Empire Waste Management v. Town of Windsor (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 714, 717, 717 n.1, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 262

Mere advisory action by local governing body is beyond reach of referendum process; purpose of referendum is to repeal lawful enactment by local governing body; purpose of initiative is to enact laws local governing body could enact; referendum power does not permit establishment of jury of electorate to pass on legality of governing body's action; unlawful action is addressed in courts, not in voting booth; rather, referendum permits establishment of legislature of entire electorate to pass on wisdom of action lawfully taken by governing body. Memorial Hospitals Assn. v. Randol (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 1300, 1310-1312, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 547

When Legislature has enacted statewide policy and assigned particular local body the duty to implement that policy, Legislature thereby places implementation of statewide policy beyond reach of initiative and referendum. Memorial Hospitals Assn. v. Randol (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 1300, 1313, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 547

Function of applicable sections of Elections Code facilitates, rather than limits or restricts, operation of constitutional power of referendum. Lee v. City of Monterey Park (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 798, 812, 219 Cal. Rptr. 309

Procedures to be provided by Legislature to facilitate exercise of referendum power (see Cal. Const. art. II, § 11) do not give Legislature power to enact substantive measures that would extend, restrict, or reduce scope of referendum. Ortiz v. Board of Supervisors (1980) 107 Cal. App. 3d 866, 871, 166 Cal. Rptr. 100

[b] Election

Writ of mandate issued to compel city council to hold election (or repeal ordinance) in consequence of filing of referendum petition. Hopping v. Council of City of Richmond (1915) 170 Cal. 605, 618, 150 P. 977 ; O'Loane v. O'Rourke (1965) 231 Cal. App. 2d 774, 785, 42 Cal. Rptr. 283 ; Reagan v. City of Sausalito (1962) 210 Cal. App. 2d 618, 621, 631, 26 Cal. Rptr. 775

Date of adoption or final passage of ordinance is date of last act done that is necessary to make it law. Solomon v. Alexander (1911) 161 Cal. 23, 25-28, 118 P. 217

Negligence of mayor in mistakenly signing ordinance that authorized special election to amend city charter by referendum is insufficient grounds to challenge validity of ordinance, since signed legislation had already been delivered to city clerk before mayor discovered error and issued subsequent veto. Pulskamp v. Martinez (1992) 2 Cal. App. 4th 854, 861-866, 3 Cal. Rptr. 2d 607

[c] Construction of Referenda

Judicial policy is to liberally construe to initiative and referendum power whenever challenged so that right will not be improperly annulled; if doubts can reasonably be resolved in favor of use of this reserve power, courts will preserve it. Mervyn's v. Reyes (1998) 69 Cal. App. 4th 93, 100-101, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 148

Courts are traditionally reluctant to find limitation on availability of electoral powers; power of referendum will be foun d to have been withdrawn in two instances; first, when there is definite indication by Legislature that it intends to preempt discretion of local legislative body to legislate; second, when Legislature, rather than preempt local legislative action, has instead sought to delegate legislative power so exclusively to local governing body as to indicate its intent to preclude citizens' otherwise coextensive right of referendum. Empire Waste Management v. Town of Windsor (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 714, 718-719, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 262

[d] Petition Contents

Under Elec. Code § 9238(b), although each section of referendum petition may include number and text of ordinance, with no title, by choosing to include both number and title of ordinance, there is duty to provide both of them correctly to voters who would rely on accuracy of materials presented; moreover, incomplete title that creates confusion regarding ordinance does not substantially comply with requirements of Elec. Code § 9238; petition sections containing misstated title neither technically nor substantially complied with Election Code requirements. Hebard v. Bybee (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 1331, 1334, 1338-1341, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 352

Municipal referendum petition is in substantial compliance with content requirements of former Elec. Code § 4052 [see now Elec. Code § 9238] even though petition did not carry required title, when heading of petition set forth briefly and clearly same information as would have title. Hayward Area Planning Assn. v. Superior Court (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 53, 55, 266 Cal. Rptr. 745

Even though language of former Elec. Code § 4052 [see now Elec. Code § 9238] is mandatory, substantial compliance test controls so that technical deficiencies in petitions will not invalidate petitions if they substantially comply with statutory and constitutional requirements; petitions challenging zoning ordinance is not in substantial compliance when petitions failed to apprise prospective signers of precise location of affected real property. Chase v. Brooks (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 657, 663-664, 232 Cal. Rptr. 65

Former Elec. Code § 4052 [see now Elec. Code § 9238] designed to reduce confusion over contents of petitions and to promote full enlightenment of prospective signers of substantive provisions of challenged ordinance to justify expenditure of public funds in placing issue on ballot. Chase v. Brooks (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 657, 662, 232 Cal. Rptr. 65

When municipal referendum petition utterly fails to apprise prospective signers of substantive provisions of ordinance, purpose of former Elec. Code § 4052 [see now Elec. Code § 9238] is frustrated by defective form of petition, and petition is properly refused. Creighton v. Reviczky (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 1225, 1228, 1233-1234, 217 Cal. Rptr. 834

[8] Ballot Arguments

Where a ballot title for a local ballot measure that would increase the number of terms a city council member could serve from two to three was neither false, misleading, nor partial in violation of Elec. Code § 9295, the judiciary was not free to substitute its judgment given its deferential standard of review [Martinez v. Superior Court (2006) 142 Cal. App. 4th 1245, 1248, 48 Cal. Rptr. 3d 660]

Elec. Code § 9295 does not vest the trial court with a wide range of discretion. Instead, relief may be granted only upon clear and convincing evidence that the challenged election material is false or misleading or otherwise inconsistent with the provisions applicable to municipal elections. Horneff v. City & County of San Francisco (2003) 110 Cal. App. 4th 814, 821, 2 Cal. Rptr. 3d 79

Although Elec. Code § 9295 contains no express relevancy requirement, both common sense and the reference to the general requirements of Chapter of the Elections Code would seem to imply some minimal relevancy requirement; but it is indeed a minimal requirement. Huntington Beach City Council v. Superior Court, (2002) 94 Cal. App. 4th 1417, 1428, 115 Cal. Rptr. 2d 439

Trial court abuses discretion in awarding attorney's fees under Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.5 to prevailing party in mandate action under former Elec. Code § 5025 [see Elec. Code § 9295] if changes ordered were (1) de minimis and (2) not required by former Elec. Code § 5025, and therefore did not result in significant benefit to public. Mandicino v.

Maggard (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 1413, 1416-1420, 258 Cal. Rptr. 917 (distinguishing Washburn v. City of Berkeley (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 578, 240 Cal. Rptr. 784)

Deletion of false, misleading, or inconsistent ballot arguments pursuant to former Elec. Code §§ 3795 (county measures), 5025 (city measures) [see now Elec. Code §§ 9190, 9295], and city charter that provides for challenge in front of neutral judicial officer does not impermissibly encroach on free speech rights. Patterson v. Board of Supervisors (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 22, 30-32, 248 Cal. Rptr. 253

Award of attorney's fees under Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.5 to prevailing party in mandate action under former Elec. Code § 5025 [see now Elec. Code § 9295] challenging ballot argument as false and misleading is proper because (1) plaintiffs lacked pecuniary interest in election results and outcome of litigation; (2) substantial benefit accrues to public from successful action under former Elec. Code § 5025; (3) ballot arguments are not privileged within meaning of Civ. Code § 47 (and thus capable of giving rise to award of attorney's fees in action under former Elec. Code § 5025); and (4) award does not violate real party's rights to free speech and petition of government for redress of grievances under U.S. Const., amend. I, and Cal. Const., art. I, § 3, respectively. Washburn v. City of Berkeley (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 578, 584-591, 240 Cal. Rptr. 784

In charter city, charter governs procedures for submission of ballot arguments supporting or opposing initiatives. Gebert v. Patterson (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 868, 872 n.2, 231 Cal. Rptr. 150

[9] Ballot Title and Summary

After the county counsel has prepared the title and summary under Elec. Code § 9105, only a proponent of the initiative has standing during the prequalification phase to seek an order requiring the county counsel to amend that title and summary; a voter who opposes a proposed countywide initiative is not able to prevent proponents of the initiative from collecting the signatures needed to qualify it for the ballot based on a contention that the title and summary of the initiative prepared by a county counsel is not impartial or accurate. Songstad v. Superior Court of Orange County (2001) 93 Cal. App. 4th 1202, 1208, 113 Cal. Rptr. 2d 729

Writ of mandate issued to compel Attorney General to provide official title and summary for proposed initiative measure. Schmitz v. Younger (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 90, 93, 145 Cal. Rptr. 517, 577 P.2d 652 ; Warner v. Kenny (1946) 27 Cal. 2d 627, 631, 165 P.2d 889

Cal. Const., art. XIIIA, § 1(b), states that any "proposition" for certain school-related bonds must include specified accountability requirements, but makes no reference to contents of ballot that will be used in election for voter approval; in any event, statutory requirement for abbreviated statement (not exceeding 75 words) of any measure on ballot [see Elec. Code §§ 9051(b), 13247], would preclude putting those accountability requirements on ballot; therefore, omitting those accountability requirements on ballot for voter approval of bond measure was not error and did not affect validity of election in which measure was approved. Committee for Responsible Sch. Expansion v. Hermosa Beach City Sch. Dist. (2006) 142 Cal. App. 4th 1178, 1187-1191, 48 Cal. Rptr. 3d 705

Substantial compliance with ballot form prescribed by statute is required; government may not take sides in election contests or bestow unfair advantage on one of several competing factions; ballot language held not to substantially comply with statutory form in that it included language overtly favoring partisan position, which implicated interests protected by constitutional guarantee of equal protection and freedom of expression; use of ballot form to favor particular side in election directly conflicts with legislative intent to submit measure to voters in concise and neutral manner. Citizens for Responsible Government v. City of Albany (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 1199, 1224-1228, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 102

By essentially repeating operative language of Proposition 209, Attorney General complied with mandate of Elec. Code § 9051 (and former section 9052) that Attorney General provide electorate with true and impartial statement of purpose of measure. Lungren v. Superior Court (1996) 48 Cal. App. 4th 435, 443, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 690

Requirements for ballot summary under Cal. Const., art. II, § 10(d), and former Elec. Code § 3572 [see now Elec. Code § 9087] satisfied by summary that enumerates "chief points" of initiative measure but does not include discussion of measure's possible effect on constitutional provisions not directly amended. Tinsley v. Superior Court (1983) 150 Cal. App. 3d 90, 107-109, 197 Cal. Rptr. 643

Trial court has authority to examine content of ballot proposition summary to determine if it fairly represents measure it summarizes. Brennan v. Board of Supervisors (1981) 125 Cal. App. 3d 87, 91, 177 Cal. Rptr. 677

[10] Charter Revisions

Cal. Const., art. XIII C, § 3 grants local voters the right to use the initiative power to reduce the rate that a public water district charges for domestic water. However, this constitutional provision does not grant local voters a right to impose a voter approval requirement on all future adjustments of water delivery charges. Because proposed initiative was invalid insofar as it sought to impose a voter approval requirement on future actions by the agency's governing board to increase the existing water rate and other charges or to impose new charges, it was properly withheld from the ballot. Bighorn-Desert View Water Agency v. Verjil (2006) 39 Cal. 4th 205, 220-222, 46 Cal. Rptr. 3d 73

The provisions in Cal. Const., art. XI, § 3(a) that a city may adopt a charter by majority vote and a charter may be amended in the same manner must be construed to mean that the electorate of a city has the right, but not the obligation, to adopt or amend a charter; but if the electorate exercises that right, only a majority vote, not a super majority vote, is required for approval of such charter adoption or amendment. Further, Cal. Const., art. XIII C, § 2(b) clearly and unambiguously means that approval of a local government's imposition or increase of any general tax requires only a majority vote, and a two-thirds vote cannot be required for such approval. Howard Jarvis Taxpayers Assn. v. City of San Diego (2004) 120 Cal. App. 4th 374, 390-394, 15 Cal. Rptr. 3d 457

The two statutes governing initiatives to repeal or amend city charters, Elec. Code § 9255 and Elec. Code § 1415, have no maximum time limits. Nothing in them requires a city council to order the election at the next available opportunity. Indeed, the fact that each statute allows options in election dates refutes that idea. Jeffrey v. Superior Court (2002) 102 Cal. App. 4th 1, 3-6, 125 Cal. Rptr. 2d 175

City charter is city's constitution; accordingly, appellate court construes voter-approved amendment to city charter as court would construe voter-approved amendment to state constitution; court will not presume lawmakers (here, voters) intended literal construction of law if that construction would result in absurd consequences; in those circumstances, court must consider extrinsic evidence of voters' intent despite unambiguous language of enactment; information and arguments contained in official ballot pamphlet may indicate voters' understanding of measure and their intent in passing it; historical context in which provisions was adopted also is relevant; statement of individual legislator (in form of declaration) can properly be consider as evidence of legislative intent as long as statement is reiteration of legislative discussion and events leading up to adoption of proposed amendment rather than merely expression of personal opinion. Woo v. Superior Court (2000) 83 Cal. App. 4th 967, 974-978, 100 Cal. Rptr. 2d 156

Provisions of Elections Code do not require either notice of intention to circulate charter amendment petitions, or that circulator be city resident. San Rafael Fireman's Assn. v. City Council (1980) 105 Cal. App. 3d 358, 362-364, 164 Cal. Rptr. 376

[11] Growth-Control Ordinances

Initiative ordinance that conflicts with city's general plan is not amendment to general plan when no basis exists for believing that voters viewed measure as amendment. Lesher Communications, Inc. v. City of Walnut Creek (1990) 52 Cal. 3d 531, 538-544, 277 Cal. Rptr. 1, 802 P.2d 317

Gov. Code § 65863.6 (requiring growth-control ordinances to contain findings as to public health, safety, and welfare factors justifying restrictions on housing opportunities) inapplicable to growth-control ordinances enacted by initiative process. Building Industry Assn. v. City of Camarillo (1986) 41 Cal. 3d 810, 824, 226 Cal. Rptr. 81, 718 P.2d 68

Growth-control ordinances enacted by initiative process must be substantially and reasonably related to welfare of affected region, but must not unfairly discriminate against particular parcels of property or be arbitrary or capricious. Building Industry Assn. v. City of Camarillo (1986) 41 Cal. 3d 810, 824, 226 Cal. Rptr. 81, 718 P.2d 68

Referendum petition repealing zoning ordinance and creating inconsistency with city's general plan could not implicitly repeal city ordinance requiring consistency between zoning ordinances and general plan; referendum petition would fail to disclose scope of the proposed amendment. City of Irvine v. Irvine Citizens Against Overdevelopment (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 868, 878, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 797

Burden of proof requirement of Evid. Code § 669.5 (city or county ordinances placing restrictions on residential buildings) applies to ordinances adopted by initiative or referendum and constitutional when so applied. Building Industry Assn. v. City of Camarillo (1986) 41 Cal. 3d 810, 820, 226 Cal. Rptr. 81, 718 P.2d 68 ; Lee v. City of Monterey Park (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 798, 807, 219 Cal. Rptr. 309

[12] Tax Levies

Statewide statutory initiative repealing tax neither impairs fiscal powers of Legislature nor violates constitutional prohibition against referenda on tax levies. Carlson v. Cory (1983) 139 Cal. App. 3d 724, 729-731, 189 Cal. Rptr. 185

Subject of recall petition has "vital interest" in recall proceeding and sufficient standing to challenge irregularities. Baines v. Zemansky (1917) 176 Cal. 369, 380, 168 P. 565

Although Elec. Code § 11041(b) requires that all petition sections be printed in uniform size and darkness with uniform spacing, where a petition does not actually comply with Elec. Code § 11041(b), it may be valid under the doctrine of substantial compliance. The purpose of Elec. Code § 11041(b) is to ensure equal emphasis of the statement of the reasons and the answer, and this purpose may be satisfied if neither the statement nor the answers are unduly emphasized. Ruiz v. Sylva (2002) 102 Cal. App. 4th 199, 210-217, 125 Cal. Rptr. 2d 351

Elections official do not violate rule of Walters v. Weed (1988) 45 Cal. 3d 1, 14, 246 Cal. Rptr. 5, 752 P.2d 443 , by invalidating signatures on recall petition when residence addresses of signatories to petition differed from residences of those signatories as shown on voter registration affidavits. Hartman v. Kenyon (1991) 227 Cal. App. 3d 413, 423, 277 Cal. Rptr. 765

Clerk is under mandatory duty to take no further action on petition found to contain insufficient number of valid signatures under former Elec. Code § 27214 or 27215 [now see Elec. Code § 11224 or 11225]. Wilcox v. Enstad (1981) 122 Cal. App. 3d 641, 648, 176 Cal. Rptr. 560

Statute requiring attachment of circulator's declaration to petition sections, and specifying form and content of declaration, is not undue restraint on constitutional right of recall, because statute's purpose is to safeguard against possible forgery of signatures on recall petition. Dodge v. Free (1973) 32 Cal. App. 3d 436, 444, 108 Cal. Rptr. 311 (construing former Elec. Code § 27203 [see now Elec. Code §§ 104, 11046])

Successful appeal by officer, subject of recall petition, who was real party in interest in mandate proceeding by proponents against clerk. Dodge v. Free (1973) 32 Cal. App. 3d 436, 439, 108 Cal. Rptr. 311

Writ of mandate issued to compel city council to hold recall election on clerk's certification of sufficiency of petition. Moore v. City Council (1966) 244 Cal. App. 2d 892, 902-903, 53 Cal. Rptr. 603 ; Martin v. Board of Trustees (1929) 96 Cal. App. 705, 707-708, 274 P. 1015

City clerk ordered, in contempt proceeding, to comply with writ of mandate previously issued to compel clerk to process recall petition. Reites v. Wilkerson (1950) 99 Cal. App. 2d 500, 505, 222 P.2d 81

Relief granted in taxpayer's mandate proceeding to prevent expending public funds on unlawful election. Miller v. Greiner (1964) 60 Cal. 2d 827, 833-834, 36 Cal. Rptr. 737, 389 P.2d 129

Availability of injunctive relief to enjoin elections official from processing referendum petition. Kuhs v. Superior Court (1988) 201 Cal. App. 3d 966, 968-969, 247 Cal. Rptr. 544

Action to enjoin city from conducting special election is frivolous and subject to sanctions when action lacks legal grounds, plaintiffs are guilty of laches in initiating action, and plaintiffs fail to introduce any admissible evidence in support of their allegations. Finnie v. Town of Tiburon (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 1, 12-16, 244 Cal. Rptr. 581

Whether referendum petitions failed to comply with requirements of former Elec. Code § 4052 [see now Elec. Code § 9238] is moot once election is held; therefore, plaintiff's remedy of injunctive relief does not survive election, but is replaced by potential remedy of election contest. Chase v. Brooks (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 657, 662, 232 Cal. Rptr. 65

Injunction issued, on suit of privately interested party, to prevent city officials from taking further official action in unlawful referendum proceeding. Lincoln Property Co. No. 41, Inc. v. Law (1975) 45 Cal. App. 3d 230, 233, 236, 119 Cal. Rptr. 292

[15] Local Elections

The specified statutory exceptions contained in Cal. Const., art. II, § 9(a) to which the power of referendum does not extend, that is, urgency statutes, statutes calling elections, and statutes providing for tax levies or appropriations for usual current expenses of the State, impliedly limits exercise of referendum power reserved to local electors. Santa Clara County Local Transportation Authority v. Guardino (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 220, 239 n.11, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 207, 902 P.2d 225

Initiative and referendum powers of local voters are generally analogous to powers at state level, unless city charter provides otherwise. Hopping v. Council of City of Richmond (1915) 170 Cal. 605, 609-611, 150 P. 977

Former Elec. Code § 4014 [see now Elec. Code § 9218] (relating to local elections of noncharter municipalities on initiatives and providing that any number of proposed ordinances may be voted on at same election but that same subject matter must not be voted on twice within any 12-month period at special election) relates only to successive special initiative elections held within 12 months of each other, but not to admixture of initiative and referendum processes, and specifically not to special referendum election followed within 12-month period by special initiative election on same subject matter. Referendum Committee v. City of Hermosa Beach (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 152, 158, 160-161, 229 Cal. Rptr. 51

[16] Validity of Petition

Slight discrepancies between the version of Proposition 77 submitted to the Attorney General and the version circulated for signature did not mislead the public or otherwise frustrate or undermine the purposes underlying any of the applicable constitutional or statutory provisions or threaten the integrity of the electoral process. Costa v. Superior Court (2006) 37 Cal. 4th 986, 1028, 39 Cal. Rptr. 3d 470

Technical deficiencies in referendum and initiative petitions will not invalidate the petitions if they are in " 'substantial compliance' with statutory and constitutional requirements. A paramount concern in determining whether a petition is valid despite an alleged defect is whether the purpose of the technical requirement is frustrated by the defective form of the petition." MHC Financing Limited Partnership Two v. City of Santee (2005) 125 Cal. App. 4th 1372, 1389, 23 Cal. Rptr. 3d 622

Paramount concern in determining if petition is valid under substantial compliance theory despite alleged technical defect as whether or not purpose of technical requirement is frustrated by petition's defective form. Assembly v. Deukmejian (1982) 30 Cal. 3d 638, 652, 180 Cal. Rptr. 297, 639 P.2d 939

Failure to instruct signers of petition to list residence address, as required by former Elec. Code § 3516(c) [see now Elec. Code § 9020], rather than address at which signer is registered to vote, is grounds for invalidating petition that has not been provided by Secretary of State to Attorney General following preparation of title and summary. Assembly v. Deukmejian (1982) 30 Cal. 3d 638, 652, 180 Cal. Rptr. 297, 639 P.2d 939

Technical deficiencies in referendum and initiative petitions will not invalidate the petitions if they are in substantial compliance with statutory and constitutional requirements. A paramount concern in determining whether a petition is valid despite an alleged defect is whether the purpose of the technical requirement is frustrated by the defective form of the petition. The failure of proponents to print the short title on each page of the petition is not confusing or misleading when it is apparent that the pages from which the short title is missing are continuation pages of the text of the act. Zaremberg v. Superior Court (2004) 115 Cal. App. 4th 111, 118, 8 Cal. Rptr. 3d 723

Initiative petition that contained misleading assertions of fact that were false beyond dispute in violation of Elec. Code § 18600 held invalid. San Francisco Forty-Niners v. Nishioka (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 637, 639, 644-645, 650, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 388

Initiative petition involving land use and city's general plan that violated full text requirement of Elec. Code § 9201 held invalid; cases finding a lack of substantial compliance discussed. Mervyn's v. Reyes (1998) 69 Cal. App. 4th 93, 99-104, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 148

Although each section of referendum petition under Elec. Code § 9238(b), may include number and text of ordinance, with no title, by choosing to include both number and title of ordinance, there is duty to provide both of them correctly to voters who would rely on accuracy of materials presented; technical deficiencies in referendum petitions will not invalidate petitions if they are in substantial compliance with statutory and constitutional requirements; in considering whether petition substantially complies with statute, court looks to reason for statutory requirement and paramount concern in determining whether petition valid despite alleged defect is whether purpose of technical requirement frustrated by defective form of petition; substantial compliance means actual compliance in respect to substance essential to every reasonable objective of statute; petition sections containing misstated title neither technically nor

Although registrar invalidated certain signatures because circulator declarations attested that signatures were obtained before permissible collection period, petition sections themselves demonstrated that signatures were collected within required time period and accordingly trial court did not err in finding that petition sections contained obvious clerical error and that signatures on these sections should have been counted by registrar. Mapstead v. Anchundo (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 246, 258-272, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 602

Under Elec. Code §§ 100, 105, registrar correctly invalidated signatures that only gave post office boxes or mailing addresses rather than residence addresses or other descriptions of place of residence; Elec. Code § 105 requires that signer's residence address shown on petition be same as residence address shown on signer's voter registration affidavit and if residence address on petition does not match address on affidavit of registration, affected signature is not to be counted; Elec. Code §§ 100 and 9020 both require signer's printed name and residence address to be personally affixed by signer. Mapstead v. Anchundo (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 246, 261-272, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 602

Elections Code does not mandate automatic disqualification of individual who does not print separately each letter of his or her full name when signing referendum petition; action by county elections department to disqualify such person is arbitrary as a matter of law. Malick v. Athenour (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 1120, 1127, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 281

Referendum petition against ordinance is properly refused when, in reliance on advice of county officials, it had signatures of 10 percent of voters in unincorporated area rather than 10 percent of voters countywide as required by former Elec. Code § 3753 [see now Elec. Code § 9144], and when reliance on incorrect advice was not sufficiently justified so as to estop application of that requirement. Board of Supervisors v. Superior Court (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 206, 212-216, 195 Cal. Rptr. 67

Former Elec. Code § 29770 [see now Elec. Code § 18650], prohibiting use of names and addresses on initiative, referendum, or recall petition for any other purpose than securing qualification of measure or question for ballot, not unconstitutional infringement on rights to free speech and association. Bilofsky v. Deukmejian (1981) 124 Cal. App. 3d 825, 832-833, 177 Cal. Rptr. 621

Initiative petitions with insufficient number of valid signatures are entitled to be supplemented with additional signatures within one year of first signatures. Coalition for Fair Rent v. Abdelnour (1980) 107 Cal. App. 3d 97, 106, 107, 165 Cal. Rptr. 685

Petition to put city charter amendment on ballot is not invalidated merely because signers did not include printed names after signatures. San Rafael Fireman's Assn. v. City Council (1980) 105 Cal. App. 3d 358, 363, 164 Cal. Rptr. 376

The general rule set forth in Brosnahan v. Eu (1982) 31 Cal. 3d 1, 181 Cal. Rptr. 100, 641 P.2d 200 recognizing a strong presumption against preelection resolution of a challenge to an initiative measure--is inapplicable to a challenge not based on the alleged unconstitutionality of the substance of the initiative measure but rather on the contention that the measure in question is not the type of measure that may be adopted through the initiative process. Nonetheless, although preelection resolution of this type of a challenge is not presumptively improper, the challenge at issue in such a case generally will not become moot after an election if the measure is adopted, and thus such a claim reasonably is susceptible to judicial resolution either before or after an election. As a consequence, when such a challenge is brought prior to an election, a court should recognize that the need for an expedited preelection resolution of the claim is less compelling than with regard to the type of claim at issue in Costa v. Superior Court (2006) 37 Cal. 4th 986, 39 Cal.

Rptr. 3d 470 , which involved a claim that the initiative failed to comply with a procedural requirement relating to the circulation of the initiative petition. Accordingly, in such a case a court should take into consideration the availability of post-election relief in deciding whether it is preferable to resolve the issue in the often charged and rushed atmosphere of an expedited preelection review, or instead to leave the challenge for resolution with the benefit of the full, unhurried briefing, oral argument, and deliberation that generally will be available after the election. Independent Energy Producers Assn. v. McPherson (2006) 38 Cal. 4th 1020, 1024-1025 44 Cal. Rptr. 3d 644, 136 P.3d 178

As a general matter, a procedural challenge based upon an allegation that a proposed initiative measure has failed to comply with the essential procedural requirements necessary to qualify an initiative measure for the ballot (for example, an initiative petition's alleged failure to have obtained the requisite number of qualified signatures) may be brought and resolved prior to an election. Because the question at issue in such a case is whether the initiative measure has satisfied the constitutional or statutory procedural prerequisites necessary to qualify it for the ballot, it is logical and appropriate for a court to consider such a claim prior to the election, because if the threshold procedural prerequisites have not been satisfied, the measure is not entitled to be submitted to the voters. Costa v. Superior Court (2006) 37 Cal. 4th 986, 1006, 39 Cal. Rptr. 3d 470

Preelection review of initiative ballot measure is proper when challenged on grounds that electorate lacks power to adopt the proposed initiative. American Federation of Labor v. Eu (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 687, 695-696, 206 Cal. Rptr. 89, 686 P.2d 609

Because Secretary of State has no discretion to refuse to submit properly qualified initiative measure to voters, any challenge to submission must be promptly made and determined by petition for writ of mandate. Legislature v. Deukmejian (1983) 34 Cal. 3d 658, 679, 194 Cal. Rptr. 781, 669 P.2d 17

Although review of challenge to initiative measure is usually more appropriate after election, preelection review is compelled on clear showing of "jurisdictional" invalidity and that delay would result in unnecessary public expenditure and disruption of orderly conduct of subsequent primary election. Legislature v. Deukmejian (1983) 34 Cal. 3d 658, 665-667, 194 Cal. Rptr. 781, 669 P.2d 17

Constitutional and other challenges to ballot propositions or initiative measures are more appropriately reviewed judicially after election so as not to disrupt electoral process by preventing exercise of people's franchise, absent clear showing of invalidity. Brosnahan v. Eu (1982) 31 Cal. 3d 1, 4, 181 Cal. Rptr. 100, 641 P.2d 200

Although city's action for pre-election declaratory judgment as to validity of proposed initiative, aimed at limiting city's exercise of eminent domain power, was commenced promptly after initiative proponents began to circulate petitions, trial court improperly granted proponents' anti-SLAPP motion, since city had genuine and legitimate basis for challenging validity of proposed initiative. City of Riverside v. Stansbury (2007) 155 Cal. App. 4th 1582, 1585, 1594, 66 Cal. Rptr. 3d 862

Respect for the doctrine of separation of powers and concern for the electorate's constitutionally reserved initiative power does not permit courts to adjudicate the constitutionality of a ballot measure after the measure has been adopted by the voters, but before it has become effective. City of Santa Monica v. Stewart (2005) 126 Cal. App. 4th 43, 77, 24 Cal. Rptr. 3d 72

Elec. Code § 9380 is the statute governing voter pamphlets for district elections. Its provisions for challenges to ballot arguments are the same as those of Elec. Code § 13313, except that voters or the elections official may challenge candidate statements, but only voters may challenge district election ballot arguments. Moraga-Orinda Fire Protection Dist. v. Weir (2004) 115 Cal. App. 4th 477, 480, 10 Cal. Rptr. 3d 13

statements made in voter pamphlets provides no protection for baseless litigation. By enacting Code Civ. Proc. § 425.16(d), which exempts "any enforcement action brought in the name of the people of the State of California by the Attorney General, district attorney, or city attorney, acting as a public prosecutor," the Legislature has demonstrated that it knows how to create an exemption from the anti-SLAPP statute when it wishes to do so. It has not done so for voter pamphlet challenges. Moraga-Orinda Fire Protection Dist. v. Weir (2004) 115 Cal. App. 4th 477, 480-481, 10 Cal. Rptr. 3d 13

In light of the fact that the Legislature has determined in the Elections Code that an election cannot be undone on the basis of alleged deficiencies in a measure's impartial analysis, trying to achieve the same result under the rubric of constitutional due process requires a showing that the impartial analysis profoundly misled the electorate, and not just that it failed to educate the electorate as to all the legal nuances of the measure. People ex rel. Kerr v. County of Orange (2003) 106 Cal. App. 4th 914, 934, 131 Cal. Rptr. 2d 274

Elec. Code § 18600 prohibits making of intentionally false representations concerning contents, purport or effect of an initiative, and specifically with intent to induce voter into signing petition; when initiative petition contains misleading assertions of fact that are false beyond dispute, writ may issue to prevent circulation of undisputed falsehoods; rule, however, does not apply to expressions of opinion nor to factual matters that are subject to question or dispute; argument that writ of mandate constitutes unlawful prior restraint of right to free speech under First Amendment of United States Constitution rejected. San Francisco Forty-Niners v. Nishioka (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 637, 644-650, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 388

With regard to petition signatures, court in mandamus proceeding may review clerk's certification; when it finds clerk acted reasonably and not arbitrarily or fraudulently, it must accept clerk's determination; whether signer personally affixed his or her printed name and residence address is essentially factual question and thus question before court is whether registrar acted reasonably; in holding limited to facts of the case, appeal dismissed as moot and election results defeating ordinance allowed to stand when referendum petition containing insufficient signatures had been submitted to voters. Mapstead v. Anchundo (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 246, 269, 269 n.15, 277, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 602

Initiative process is not public opinion poll, but method of enacting legislation; if proposed measure does not enact legislation, or seeks to compel legislative action electorate has no power to compel, it should not be on ballot and preelection challenge is proper. Yes On Measure A v. City of Lake Forest (1997) 60 Cal. App. 4th 620, 626, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 517

Any voter may seek writ of mandate requiring any copy to be amended or deleted from ballot pamphlet; writ of mandate will only issue on clear and convincing proof that copy in question is false, misleading, or inconsistent with requirements of Election Code or Gov. Code §§ 88000-88007, and that issuance of writ will not substantially interfere with printing and distribution of ballot pamphlet as required by law. Lungren v. Superior Court (1996) 48 Cal. App. 4th 435, 439, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 690 ; Elec. Code § 9092; see Gov. Code § 88006

Trial court has discretion whether to entertain preelection challenge to ballot measure and appellate court will review trial court's action for abuse of discretion; trial court will remove initiative or referendum from ballot before voters are permitted to vote on measure only on compelling showing that proper case has been established for interfering; trial court's preelection "compelling showing" standard inapplicable to postelection appellate review; once appellate court consideration is postelection, whether appellate court confronted with victorious measure, or one that never made ballot in the first place, appellate court simply determines whether, as a matter of law, ballot measure is valid. Memorial Hospitals Assn. v. Randol (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 1300, 1306-1307, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 547

Writ petition for review of trial court's order preliminarily enjoining county elections official from accepting and processing referendum petitions not moot even though petitioner has circulated initiative petitions covering same subject matter as referendum petitions, because availability of initiative does not remedy denial of right to referendum.

Issuance of mandate writ prohibiting Secretary of State and three county voter registrars from qualifying, certifying, or placing initiative on ballot is proper because initiative petition was still in signature-collecting stage when writ petition was filed and measure presented palpable transgression of single-subject rule. California Trial Lawyers Assn. v. Eu (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 351, 357, 245 Cal. Rptr. 916

Denial of preliminary injunction to prevent city from conducting special election proper when electorate clearly has power to adopt proposed measure and substantive provisions of proposed measure are legally valid. Finnie v. Town of Tiburon (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 1, 12-13, 244 Cal. Rptr. 581

Appeal from denial of preliminary injunction to prevent city from conducting special election moot and subject to dismissal when election was already held and postelection injunctive relief would thus be purely academic. Finnie v. Town of Tiburon (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 1, 10-11, 244 Cal. Rptr. 581

Moot appeal involving defective initiative petition not subject to dismissal because defect in petition was likely to recur between other parties and yet evade meaningful review. Myers v. Patterson (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 130, 134-135, 241 Cal. Rptr. 751

Even though it is more appropriate to review challenges to initiative measures after election than to disrupt electoral process by preventing exercise of people's right to vote, preelection review is proper on showing that proposed initiative is beyond power of voters to adopt or is not legislative in character. Wiltshire v. Superior Court (1985) 172 Cal. App. 3d 296, 302, 218 Cal. Rptr. 199

Exceptions to general rule limiting judicial review of ballot measures to postelection proceedings is recognized when electorate lacks power to adopt proposal in first instance and when substantive provisions of proposed measure are legally invalid; thus, even if proposed measure is within scope of initiative power, courts retain equitable discretion to examine measure before election on compelling showing that substantive provisions of measure are clearly invalid. deBottari v. City Council (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 1204, 1209-1210, 217 Cal. Rptr. 790

Judicial review of constitutional or other challenges to ballot proposition or initiative measure is generally more appropriate after election in absence of clear showing of invalidity. Bailey v. County of El Dorado (1984) 162 Cal. App. 3d 94, 98-100, 210 Cal. Rptr. 237

_____ [name(s) and title(s)]	)	COMPLAINT FOR INJUNCTIVE RELIEF
,[and DOES I through _____,]	)

Plaintiff alleges:

1. Defendant _____ [allege name and official status of each defendant, e.g., Jane Smith is the Secretary of State of California or John Smith is the Clerk of the County of _____].

[2. At all times herein mentioned defendants _____ (names) were the agents, servants, and employees of their codefendants, and in doing the things hereinafter alleged were acting in the course and scope of their authority as such agents, servants, and employees, and with the permission and consent of their codefendants.]

[3. Plaintiff is ignorant of the true names and capacities of defendants sued as DOES I-_____, inclusive, and, therefore, sues these defendants by these fictitious names. Plaintiff will amend this complaint to allege their true names and capacities when ascertained. (Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that each of the fictitiously named defendants is responsible in some manner for the detriment alleged in this complaint.)]

4. Plaintiff is a taxpayer of the _____ [describe electoral jurisdiction, e.g., State of California or County of _____] and brings this action in that capacity under the provisions of Code of Civil Procedure Section 526a.

5. _____ [Allege facts showing why initiative or referendum proceeding is unlawful and why all official action on it should be halted to savetax money, e.g., On _____ (date), certain persons not parties to this action presented to defendant _____ (name), in his/her official capacity as _____ (describe, e.g., Clerk of the County of _____), a petition protesting against the adoption of a certain ordinance that was duly adopted by _____ (specify, e.g., the Board of Supervisors of the County of _____) on _____ (date), entitled _____ (set forth title), a copy of which is attached as Exhibit _____ and made a part hereof. The effective date of the ordinance was _____ (date). The petition was, therefore, presented for filing after the effective date of the ordinance. Nevertheless, defendant _____ (name) accepted the petition as duly filed and is now preparing to undertake, or has already undertaken, an examination of the petition to determine how many "qualified" signatures it contains].

6. _____ [Allege detriment and irreparable injury that will follow unless injunction is issued, and why compensatory relief or other legal remedies would be inadequate or extremely difficult to ascertain, e.g., Unless defendant is enjoined from pursuing the examination of the petition, and from taking further official action respecting it, public funds of _____ (specify, e.g., the County of _____) will be needlessly and unlawfully expended, in a substantial but presently unascertainable sum, and the working time of a number of employees of _____ (specify, e.g., the County of _____) will be fruitlessly devoted to a wasteful task, resulting in a proportionate neglect by them to perform proper and pressing duties respecting other matters, all to the detriment of plaintiff taxpayer and the taxpayers and citizens of _____ (specify, e.g., the County of _____)].

1. For an order requiring defendant(s) to show cause, if any, why he/she/they should not be enjoined as set forth below, during the pendency of this action;

2. For a temporary restraining order, a preliminary injunction, and a permanent injunction restraining and enjoining defendant[s, and each of them,] and his/her/their agents, servants, and employees, and all persons acting under, in concert with, or for him/her/them, from _____[specify acts to be restrained];

3. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

4. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

Attorney for Plaintiff _____ [name]

VERIFICATION

I, _____[name], am the plaintiff in the above-entitled action. I have read the foregoing complaint and know the contents thereof. The same is true of my own knowledge, except as to those matters which are therein alleged on information and belief, and as to those matters, I believe it to be true.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

[2] Use of Form

The form of complaint in [1], above, is for use in an action by a taxpayer for injunctive relief [see Code Civ. Proc. § 526a] against election officials who threaten to undertake, or have already undertaken, to act officially on an initiative or referendum petition when the proceeding is unlawful, either because of an error in timing or because the minimum required number of signatures does not appear on the petition [see, e.g., Kuhs v. Superior Court (1988) 201 Cal. App. 3d 966, 968-969, 247 Cal. Rptr. 544] . For discussion of the requirements regarding timing, signatures, and other procedures relating to initiative and referendum petitions, see §§ 302.20 et seq. and 302.40 et seq., respectively.

[3] Allegations

This complaint alleges the following:

- Defendant's status as an elections official (Paragraph 1).
- The scope of authority of defendants acting as agents (Optional Paragraph 2) [see Civ. Code § 2300 et seq.].
- The existence of fictitious defendants (Optional Paragraph 3) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 474].
- Plaintiff's status as a taxpayer (Paragraph 4) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 526a].
- Facts showing why the initiative or referendum proceedings is unlawful and should be restrained (Paragraph 5).
- The illegal expenditure and waste of public funds and the inadequacy of legal remedies (Paragraph 6) [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 526a, 527].

[4] Verification Requirement

A complaint seeking preliminary injunctive relief must be either verified or accompanied by affidavits (or declarations under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) in support of the allegations of the complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 527(a)]. If relying on a verified complaint instead of affidavits (or declarations), counsel must plead evidentiary facts that would entitle plaintiff to the relief sought [see E. H. Renzel Co. v. Warehousemen's Union (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 369, 373, 106 P.2d 1 ; Finnie v. Town of Tiburon (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 1, 15, 244 Cal. Rptr. 581] . Otherwise, verification is not required, but verification of the complaint requires the defendant to file a verified answer [Code Civ. Proc. § 446] and precludes a general denial [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For discussion, a procedural checklist, and additional forms necessary to obtain a temporary restraining order or preliminary injunction, see Ch. 303, Injunctions .

[5] Certification re Notice on Ex Parte Application

This form assumes that a separate ex parte application for a temporary restraining order and order to show cause re preliminary injunction will be made.

When a temporary restraining order is sought without formal notice, the applicant or the applicant's attorney is required to certify to the court under oath that (1) within the applicable time period under Cal Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1203, the applicant informed the opposing party when and where the application would be made; or (2) the applicant in good faith attempted to inform the opposing party but was unable to do so, specifying the efforts made to inform the opposing party; or (3) for reasons specified, the applicant should not be required to inform the opposing party [Code Civ. Proc. § 527(c); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1204(b)].

A party seeking an ex parte order must notify all parties no later than 10:00 a.m. the court day before the ex parte appearance, absent a showing of exceptional circumstances that justify a shorter time for notice [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1203(a)].

The clerk must not reject an ex parte application for filing and must promptly present the application to the appropriate judicial officer for consideration, notwithstanding the failure of an applicant to comply with the notification requirements in Cal Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1203 [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1205].

For more detailed discussion and related forms, including a form of application for a temporary restraining order that includes a certification re notice, see Ch. 303, Injunctions .

For a more detailed discussion of ex parte motions, see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders, § 372.19.

[6] Jurisdiction

An action seeking permanent injunctive relief is in the jurisdiction of the superior court and is not a limited civil case [see Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(8), 580(b)(2)].

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Petitioner,	)
vs.	)	NO. _____
_____ [name(s) and title(s)],	)	PETITION FOR WRIT OF MANDATE

Petitioner represents:

1. Petitioner _____[name] is one of several persons who propose to file _____ [an initiative or a referendum] petition with respondent.

2. Respondent _____[name] is the _____ [specify, e.g., Clerk of the County of _____].

3. _____ [Allege facts showing need for relief, e.g., On _____ (date), petitioner presented to respondent a petition in the form of Exhibit _____, attached hereto and made a part hereof, bearing more than _____ (number) signatures. Petitioner requested that the petition be filed and processed according to law. Respondent refused to accept the petition for the stated reason that _____ (set forth reasons stated, if any)].

4. Respondent has a clear, present, and ministerial duty to accept and process the petition by reason of _____ [specify authority binding respondent, e.g., Elections Code Sections 9110-9116 and any other statute, ordinance, or regulation].

5. Petitioner has no plain, speedy, and adequate remedy in the ordinary course of law, other than the relief sought in this petition, in that _____ [specify, e.g., petitioner has satisfied all requirements for submission of the _____ (initiative or referendum) petition to respondent and now has no other legal recourse to compel respondent(s) to fulfill his/her/their duties in accepting and processing the petition].

WHEREFORE, petitioner prays:

1. That the court issue an alternative writ of mandate commanding respondent to accept and process the petition according to law or, in the alternative, to show cause before the court at a time specified by the courtwhy respondent has not done so and why a peremptory writ of mandate should not be issued;

2. That on the return of the alternative writ and the hearing of this petition, the court issue a peremptory writ of mandate commanding respondent to accept and process the petition according to law;

3. For costs of this proceeding; and

4. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

VERIFICATION

I, _____[name], am the petitioner in this proceeding. I have read the foregoing petition and know its contents. The facts stated therein are true and are within my personal knowledge.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

The form of petition in [1], above, is for use in a proceeding for an alternative writ of mandate to compel an elections official to accept and process an initiative or a referendum petition presented for filing [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086].

For further discussion relating to the availability and procedure for obtaining either an alternative or peremptory writ of mandate, see Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition .

[3] Verification Requirement

A petition for a writ of mandate must be verified [Code Civ. Proc. § 1086]. Proof of service on each respondent and real party in interest of a copy of a petition that seeks an alternative writ must accompany the petition when it is offered for filing except when, in its discretion and for good cause, the court has granted the application for the writ ex parte [Code Civ. Proc. § 1107; for a discussion of serving the petition, see Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition].

[4] Memorandum

A memorandum also customarily accompanies a petition filed in a superior court, although it does not appear to be expressly required by statute [but see Code Civ. Proc. § 1090 (mandate proceeding referred to as "motion"); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1103(a)(2) (application for writ of mandate as "law and motion proceeding"), 3.1113(a) (a supporting memorandum required to be served with a motion (except motions specified in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1114); for discussion and forms, see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities]. When no alternative writ is sought, proof of service of a copy of the petition need not accompany the application, but proof of service of a copy of the filed petition must be lodged with the court prior to a hearing or any action by the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 1088.5].

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Petitioner,	)
vs.	)	NO. _____

Petitioner represents:

1. Petitioner _____[name] is the proponent of an initiative measure to _____ [describe, e.g., submit to a vote of the people at a special election a proposition to build a baseball stadium in the City of _____].

2. Respondent _____[name] is the _____ [identify, e.g., City Attorney for the City of _____].

3. On _____[date], petitioner filed with _____[name], the elections official of the _____ [specify, e.g., City of _____] a copy of the proposed initiative measure, and requested that a ballot title and summary be prepared by respondent. Petitioner paid the requisite filing fee of $_____. Copies of the notice and the proposed measure are attached as Exhibits _____ and _____, respectively, and made a part hereof.

4. On or about _____[date], the elections official transmitted a copy of the proposed measure to respondent, who prepared and returned to the elections official a ballot title for and a summary of the proposed measure. On _____[date], the elections official furnished a copy of the ballot title and summary to petitioner. Copies of the ballot title and summary are attached as Exhibits _____ and _____, respectively, and made a part hereof.

5. The _____ [ballot title or summary of proposed measure or both] as prepared by respondent is _____ [describe defect complained of, e.g., misleading] in that _____ [allege facts showing defective nature, e.g., it leads the voter to believe that the baseball stadium that is the subject of the measure will be built at no cost to the City and taxpayers of _____. However, according to the text of the proposed measure, it is only the land on which the stadium will be built that will cost the city and the taxpayers nothing.]

6. Petitioner has no plain, speedy, and adequate remedy in the ordinary course of law in that the law provides no other means by which petitioner can require respondent to amend the _____ [specify, e.g., ballot title] as requested below.

WHEREFORE, petitioner prays:

1. That the court issue a peremptory writ of mandate in the first instance commanding respondent to _____ [state terms of proposed peremptory writ, e.g., amend the ballot title to reflect the true nature of the cost to the City of _____ of building the baseball stadium that is the subject of petitioner's proposed initiative measure, so that the ballot title as amended is not false, misleading, or inconsistent with the requirements of Elections Code Section _____ (9105 or 9203)]; or

2. That the court first issue an alternative writ of mandate commanding respondent to _____[state terms of proposed alternative writ, as set forth above] or, in the alternative, show cause why he/she should not do so, and thereafter issue a peremptory writ commanding respondent to _____[state terms of proposed alternative writ, as set forth above];

3. For costs of this proceeding; and

4. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

The form of petition in [1], above, is for use by the proponent of an initiative measure to obtain a peremptory or alternative writ of mandate to amend the ballot title and/or the summary of the proposed measure, as prepared by a city attorney or a county counsel. The court must expedite hearing on the writ [Elec. Code §§ 9106 (county measure), 9204 (city measure)].

A peremptory writ of mandate will be issued only on clear and convincing proof that the ballot title or summary is false, misleading, or inconsistent with the requirements of Elec. Code § 9105 (in case of county measure) or Elec. Code § 9203 (in case of city measure), for example by being so worded as to constitute an argument, or likely to create prejudice, for or against the proposed measure [see Elec. Code §§ 9106, 9204; see also Elec. Code §§ 9105(a) (impartial wording of county measure's ballot title), 9203(a) (impartial wording of city measure's ballot title)].

For discussion of requirements relating to verification and points and authorities, see § 302.91[3], [4].

[3] Allegations

This form alleges:

- The identity and capacity of petitioner and respondent (Paragraphs 1 and 2) [see Elec. Code §§ 9106, 9204].

- Petitioner's filing of the requisite copy of the proposed measure, payment of the requisite filing fee, and request that a ballot title and/or summary be prepared by the county counsel or city attorney (Paragraph 3).

- Respondent's preparation of the requested ballot title and/or summary (Paragraph 4) [see Elec. Code §§ 9105, 9203].

- The false, misleading, or partial nature of the ballot title and/or summary as prepared (Paragraph 5) [see Elec. Code §§ 9105, 9106, 9203, 9205].

- Petitioner's lack of an adequate remedy at law, apart from the instant proceeding (Paragraph 6) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1086].

Plaintiff alleges:

1. _____ [Allege each defendant's residence and capacity, e.g., Defendant _____ (name) is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a resident of _____ County, California].

[2. Agency allegation, if appropriate. See § 302.90[1], Paragraph 2.]

[3. Fictitious name allegation, if appropriate. See § 302.90[1], Paragraph 3.]

4. Plaintiff is the _____ [describe office, e.g., Assessor of _____ County] and took office on _____[date]. [Plaintiff's current term of office will end on _____ (date).]

[ADD, if recall election has been determined in officer's favor within last six months]

5. On _____[date], at a duly held election, the voters of _____ [name electoral jurisdiction, e.g., _____ County] voted on the question whether plaintiff should be recalled, and more than one half of the votes were "No."

[CONTINUE]

6. _____ [Allege facts showing untimely commencement of recall proceedings, e.g., On _____ (date), defendants _____ (names) published in the _____ (name of newspaper) and served on plaintiff a notice of their intention to circulate a petition to recall plaintiff. Defendants have commenced recall proceedings _____ (prematurely or too late), in violation of _____ (the California Constitution, Article II, Section 18 and/or specify applicable statute(s), e.g., Elections Code Section 11007(a))].

7. Unless defendants are enjoined from pursuing the recall proceedings they have begun, plaintiff will suffer great and irreparable injury in that plaintiff will be obliged to resist an unlawful proceeding against him/her and will incur unnecessary debts; plaintiff's attendance to his/her official duties will be hampered; and plaintiff will be exposed to the risk of recall contrary to law.

8. Plaintiff has no adequate remedy at law for the injuries that are threatened in that it will be impossible for plaintiff to determine the precise amount of damage that he/she will suffer if defendants' conduct is not restrained, and plaintiff has no other legal remedy available to prevent defendants from going forward with the unlawful recall proceedings.

1. For an order requiring defendants to show cause, if any, why they should not be enjoined as set forth below, during the pendency of this action;

2. For a temporary restraining order, a preliminary injunction, and a permanent injunction, restraining and enjoining defendants, and each of them, and their agents, servants, and employees, and all persons acting under, in concert with, or for them, from continuing in any way the recall proceedings against plaintiff that defendants have begun as herein alleged;

3. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

4. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

The form of complaint in [1], above, is for use in an action by a public officer for injunctive relief against proponents of the officer's recall, when the recall proceedings have been begun prematurely or too late [see, e.g., Cal. Const. art. II, § 18; Elec. Code § 11007].

For discussion of the requirement of certification re notice under Code Civ. Proc. § 527(a) if a temporary restraining order is sought ex parte, see § 302.90[5].

[3] Allegations

The plaintiff's status as a public elective officer [see Cal. Const. art. II, § 13] should be alleged (Paragraph 4).

If the basis for complaint is the premature commencement of recall proceedings in violation of Elec. Code § 11007(a), the date when plaintiff took office should be alleged.

If the basis for complaint is a violation of Elec. Code § 11007(c), the date when plaintiff's term will end should be alleged (Paragraph 4).

If the basis for complaint is a violation of Cal. Const. art. II, § 18 or Elec. Code § 11007(b), Paragraph 5 should be included.

The facts showing untimely commencement of recall proceedings will vary from case to case. In any case it will be helpful to allege which law has been violated (Paragraph 6) [see § 302.67].

The complaint must allege the great or irreparable harm to be suffered by plaintiff, and that no adequate legal remedy is available (Paragraphs 7, 8) [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 526(a)(2),(4),(5), 527].

A complaint seeking preliminary injunctive relief must be either verified or accompanied by affidavits (or declarations under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) in support of the allegations of the complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 527(a); for further discussion, see § 302.90[4].

At least some of these petitions do not comply with requirements set out in the Elections Code, in that some of them _____ [describe noncompliance, e.g., do not have the circulator's declaration attached as required by Elections Code Section 11046]; and some of them _____[continue with as many instances of violations of the Elections Code as are known to plaintiff].

4. _____ [Allege further facts, as required, e.g., On _____ (date), plaintiff notified defendant that, to plaintiff's knowledge, some of the petitions then filed with defendant respecting plaintiff's recall were not in compliance with various provisions of the Elections Code. Plaintiff asked that defendant isolate all such petitions and that defendant not count any of the signatures on them during defendant's examination. Defendant replied that he/she would make no judgment as to compliance with Elections Code provisions other than those respecting signatures on the petitions. Furthermore, defendant refused, and continues to refuse, to disregard petitions that are not in compliance with pertinent Elections Code provisions].

5. Unless defendant is enjoined from counting signatures on petitions that do not comply with the Elections Code, plaintiff will suffer great and irreparable injury in that plaintiff will be obliged to resist an unlawful proceeding against him/her and will incur unnecessary debts; plaintiff's attendance to his/her official duties will be hampered; and plaintiff will be exposed to the risk of recall contrary to law.

6. Plaintiff has no adequate remedy at law for the injuries that are threatened in that it will be impossible for plaintiff to determine the precise amount of damage that he/she will suffer if defendant's conduct is not restrained, and plaintiff has no other legal remedy available to prevent defendant from going forward with the unlawful recall proceedings.

1. For an order requiring defendant to show cause, if any, why he/she should not be enjoined as set forth below, during the pendency of this action;

2. For a temporary restraining order, a preliminary injunction, and a permanent injunction, restraining and enjoining defendant from counting any signatures on, or otherwise processing, any petition for plaintiff's recall that does not comply in all respects with pertinent provisions of the Elections Code, and particularly certain of the petitions now filed with defendant, insofar as any of them are proved at trial not to comply with pertinent provisions of the Elections Code;

3. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

4. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

The form of complaint in [1], above, is for use in an action by a public officer for injunctive relief against an elections official [see Elec. Code § 11002 ("elections official" defined)] who threatens to process a recall petition not in compliance with pertinent Elections Code provisions [see Elec. Code § 11040 et seq.].

For discussion of the requirement of certification re notice under Code Civ. Proc. § 527(a) if a temporary restraining order is sought ex parte, see § 302.90[5].

[3] Duty of Elections Official

A recall petition is filed with a county elections official, a city elections official, or the secretary of the governing board of a district, depending on which officer's recall is being sought [see Elec. Code §§ 11002, 11102, 11220]. That official is not charged with determining the entire sufficiency of the petition but has only the duty of counting and verifying signatures [see Elec. Code §§ 11104-11107, 11222-11227]. Therefore, it is possible that a clerk would refuse in some cases to disregard signatures on petitions not in compliance with pertinent Elections Code provisions.

[4] Verification Requirement

Verification [Code Civ. Proc. § 446] is required if plaintiff seeks a temporary restraining order or a preliminary injunction on a complaint instead of on affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 527(a)]. If relying on a verified complaint instead of affidavits (or declarations), counsel must plead evidentiary facts that would entitle plaintiff to the relief sought [see E.H. Renzel Co. v. Warehousemen's Union (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 369, 373, 106 P.2d 1 ; Finnie v. Town of Tiburon (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 1, 15, 244 Cal. Rptr. 581] . Otherwise, verification is not required, but verification of the complaint requires the defendant to file a verified answer [Code Civ. Proc. § 446] and precludes a general denial [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion of the effect that verifying a complaint has on the answer, see Ch. 26, Answers .

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____
[or other as appropriate]

_____ [name],	)

_____ [name and title],	)	PETITION FOR WRIT OF MANDATE
Respondent,	)
_____ [name],	)
Real Party in Interest.	)

Petitioner represents:

1. Petitioner is registered to vote in _____ County and is one of several proponents of the recall of [name] , the real party in interest, who is the _____ [describe office, e.g., Assessor of _____ County].

2. Respondent is the _____ [describe official elections capacity, e.g., Clerk of _____ County].

3. _____ [Allege facts showing petitioner's need for relief, e.g., On _____ (date), petitioner presented to respondent a petition for the recall of _____ (name) and asked that it be filed and processed according to law. Respondent refused to accept it for the stated reason that _____ (set forth reason, if any reason was stated)].

4. Respondent has a clear, present, and ministerial duty to accept and process the recall petition by reason of Elections Code Section(s) _____.

5. Petitioner has no plain, speedy, and adequate remedy in the ordinary course of law, other than the relief sought in this petition, in that _____ [specify, e.g, petitioner has satisfied all requirements for submission of the recall petition to respondent and now has no other legal recourse to compel respondent to fulfill his/her duties in accepting and processing the petition].

WHEREFORE, petitioner prays judgment as follows:

1. That the court issue an alternative writ of mandate commanding respondent to accept and process the recall petition according to law or, in the alternative, to show cause before the court at a time specified by the court why respondent has not done so and why a peremptory writ of mandate should not be issued;

2. That on the return of the alternative writ and the hearing of this petition, the court issue a peremptory writ of mandate commanding respondent to accept and process the recall petition according to law;

3. For costs of this proceeding; and

4. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

The form of petition in [1], above, is for use in a proceeding for a writ of mandate to compel a clerk [see Elec. Code § 11002 ("elections official" defined)] to accept and process a recall petition that has been presented for filing [see Elec. Code §§ 11102-11103 (filing petition recalling state officer), 11222 (filing petition recalling other public officer)].

It is unclear whether the officer whose recall is being sought has the standing of a real party in interest. However, the officer clearly has a litigable interest [see, e.g., Dodge v. Free (1973) 32 Cal. App. 3d 436, 446, 108 Cal. Rptr. 311] , and probably should be made a real party in interest.

For discussion of requirements relating to verification and points and authorities, see § 302.91[3], [4].

Chapter 303 INJUNCTIONS
PART I. SCOPE

§ 303.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter covers temporary and permanent injunctive relief. The chapter discusses the following specific topics:

- A general overview of injunctive [see § 303.10 et seq.].
- Jurisdictional and venue requirements [see § 303.20 et seq.].
- Temporary restraining orders [see § 303.30 et seq.].
- Preliminary injunctions [see § 303.40 et seq.].
- Permanent injunctions [see § 303.60 et seq.].
- Defenses available in injunction proceedings [see § 303.70 et seq.].
- Proceedings after the grant or denial of injunctive relief [see § 303.80 et seq.].
- Enforcement of an injunction [see § 303.90 et seq.].

The chapter includes Procedural Checklists for a plaintiff seeking preliminary injunctive relief [see § 303.120] and for a defendant resisting injunctive relief [see § 303.121].

The chapter contains the following forms:

- Complaint for a temporary restraining order, preliminary injunction, permanent injunction, and damages [see § 303.130].
- An ex parte application for a temporary restraining order and preliminary injunction and a supporting declaration [see § 303.131].

- An order to show cause regarding a preliminary injunction and temporary restraining order [see § 303.132].

- A notice of motion and supporting declaration for a preliminary injunction [see § 303.133].

- A declaration opposing an application for a preliminary injunction [see § 303.134].

- A demurrer to a complaint for injunctive relief on the ground that the complaint fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action [see § 303.135].

- A preliminary injunction and undertaking [see § 303.136].

- An order denying a preliminary injunction and dissolving a temporary restraining order [see § 303.137].

The chapter also contains the following forms:

- A notice of motion and supporting declaration for an order dissolving or modifying a preliminary injunction [see § 303.138] and a form for that order [see § 303.139].

- Forms of a notice of motion and supporting declaration to determine and enforce the liability of a principal and surety based on a bond or undertaking filed as security for a wrongfully issued temporary restraining order or preliminary injunction [see § 303.140] and a form of judgment enforcing that liability [see § 303.141].

The chapter also includes a Research Guide [see § 303.100 et seq.].

A. Overview of Injunctive Relief

26-303 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 303.10

§ 303.10 Nature and Purpose of Injunctive Relief

[1] In General

An injunction is generally defined as an equitable remedy requiring a person to refrain from a particular act [see Code Civ. Proc. § 525; see also Civ. Code §§ 3368, 3420; Tide Water Assoc. Oil Co. v. Superior Court (1955) 43 Cal. 2d 815, 822, 279 P.2d 35] . An injunction may issue to prevent an act (prohibitory injunction) [People v. Mobile Magic Sales, Inc. (1979) 96 Cal. App. 3d 1, 13, 157 Cal. Rptr. 749] or to require a person to do an affirmative act (mandatory injunction) [see Comfort v. Comfort (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 736, 741, 112 P.2d 259] .

The distinction between mandatory and prohibitory injunctions becomes important when the issuance of the injunction is appealed. Mandatory injunctions are automatically stayed on appeal whereas prohibitory injunctions are not [Agricultural Labor Relations Bd. v. Tex-Cal Land Management, Inc. (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 696, 706, 238 Cal. Rptr. 780, 739 P.2d 140 ; Kettenhofen v. Superior Court (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 189, 191, 10 Cal. Rptr. 356, 358 P.2d 684 ; Byington v. Superior Court (1939) 14 Cal. 2d 68, 70, 92 P.2d 896 ; see § 303.81]. On appeal, the court must examine the terms and effect of the injunction to discover its character as mandatory or prohibitory [People v. Mobile Magic Sales, Inc. (1979) 96 Cal. App. 3d 1, 13, 157 Cal. Rptr. 749] . The distinction between these two purposes of injunctions is more fully discussed at § 303.11.

[2] No Right to Jury Trial

Because an action for injunctive relief is in essence equitable, there is no right to a jury trial [see People v. Englebrecht (2001) 88 Cal. App. 4th 1236, 1245, 106 Cal. Rptr. 2d 738 (action to abate public nuisance and for injunctive relief was equitable)]. For discussion of the right to a jury trial, including cases in which equitable and legal issues are mixed, see Ch. 322, Juries and Jury Selection, § 322.13.

PRACTICE TIP:

Avoid Requesting Mandatory Injunctions. Unless it is absolutely essential, avoid requesting a mandatory injunction (except for injunctive relief issued in connection with receivership orders). Mandatory temporary restraining orders and preliminary injunctions are rarely granted. For further discussion, see § 303.11[2].

[3] Damages Also Permitted

A suit may combine legal and equitable relief. Thus, a suit may seek both a money judgment and injunctive relief [St. James Church v. Superior Court (1955) 135 Cal. App. 2d 352, 361, 287 P.2d 387 ; see Pacific Western Oil Co. v. Bern Oil Co. (1939) 13 Cal. 2d 60, 66, 87 P.2d 1045] . In addition, a party may seek a preliminary injunction in a legal action for damages when it is reasonably necessary and fair to both sides to maintain the status quo pending the litigation's outcome [Lenard v. Edmonds (1957) 151 Cal. App. 2d 764, 769, 312 P.2d 308] .

ILLUSTRATION:

When Preliminary Injunction Proper. Although an action for ejectment is a purely legal action, the plaintiff may seek a preliminary injunction to restrain the defendant from committing waste [Lenard v. Edmonds (1957) 151 Cal. App. 2d 764, 769, 312 P.2d 308] .

Volume 26: Injunctions thru Insurance-Chs. 303-313
Chapter 303 INJUNCTIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Overview of Injunctive Relief

26-303 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 303.11

§ 303.11 Mandatory vs. Prohibitory Injunctions

[1] In General

The purpose of mandatory relief is to compel the performance of a substantive act or a change in the relative positions of the parties. By contrast, a prohibitory order seeks to restrain a party from a course of conduct or to halt a particular condition [Davenport v. Blue Cross of California (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 435, 446, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 641 ; People v. Mobile Magic Sales, Inc. (1979) 96 Cal. App. 3d 1, 13, 157 Cal. Rptr. 749 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 525 (defining "injunction" as writ or order requiring person to refrain from particular act); Scripps Health v. Marin (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 324, 332, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 86 (express codified purpose of prohibitory injunction is to prevent future harm to applicant by ordering defendant to refrain from doing particular act)]. An order enjoining action by a party is prohibitory in nature if its effect is to leave the parties in the same position as they were before the entry of the judgment. On the other hand, it is mandatory in effect if its enforcement would change the position of the parties and compel them to act in accordance with the judgment rendered [Paramount Pictures Corp. v. Davis (1964) 228 Cal. App. 2d 827, 835, 39 Cal. Rptr. 791 ; Musicians Club of L.A. v. Superior Court (1958) 165 Cal. App. 2d 67, 71, 331 P.2d 720] . In deciding whether an injunction is mandatory or prohibitory, courts will look to the substance and not the form of the injunction as the determining factor [Davenport v. Blue Cross of California (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 435, 447, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 641] .

[2] Mandatory Preliminary Injunctions Rarely Granted

A mandatory preliminary injunction is more difficult to obtain [see Shoemaker v. County of Los Angeles (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 618, 625, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 774 ; Alvarez v. Eden Township Hospital Dist. (1961) 191 Cal. App. 2d 309, 312, 12 Cal. Rptr. 661 ; see also Teachers Ins. & Annunity Assn. v. Furlotti (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 1487, 1493, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 455 (mandatory injunction rarely granted)], and will be issued only when justified by extraordinary circumstances [see Shoemaker v. County of Los Angeles (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 618, 625, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 774] , as for example the following:

- The need for immediate removal of an embankment that is causing flood waters to threaten land [see Piper v. Hawley (1918) 179 Cal. 10, 18, 175 P. 417] .

- The need to compel a general partner to pay current profits being withheld from limited partners [Fretz v. Burke (1967) 247 Cal. App. 2d 741, 744-745, 55 Cal. Rptr. 879] .

- The need to compel a contractor to release a mechanic's lien on an owner's property [see Slatkin v. White (2002) 102 Cal. App. 4th 963, 968, 126 Cal. Rptr. 2d 54] .

Although courts may be reluctant to impose a mandatory writ, in a proper case it is generally not denied [Allen v. Stowell (1905) 145 Cal. 666, 669, 79 P. 371] .

[3] Mixed Mandatory and Prohibitory Features

Whether a decree is mandatory or prohibitory often presents a close question, and frequently the same decree contains both mandatory and prohibitory features [Orange Co. Water Dist. v. City of Riverside (1957) 154 Cal. App. 2d 345, 348, 316 P.2d 43] . An injunction may have mandatory aspects and still be deemed prohibitory [see Youngblood v. Wilcox (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 1368, 1372 n.1, 255 Cal. Rptr. 527 (injunction to prevent club from prohibiting ousted members from use and enjoyment of club facilities pending determination on merits)]. An order that is entirely negative or prohibitory in form may prove on analysis to be mandatory and affirmative in essence and effect [Food & Grocery Bureau v. Garfield (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 174, 177, 114 P.2d 579 ; Podesta v. Linden Irrigation Dist. (1955) 132 Cal. App. 2d 250, 257, 281 P.2d 905] .

The distinction between mandatory and prohibitory injunctions becomes important when an appeal is taken on the injunction, because mandatory injunctions are automatically stayed on appeal whereas prohibitory injunctions are not [Agricultural Labor Relations Bd. v. Tex-Cal Land Management, Inc. (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 696, 706, 238 Cal. Rptr. 780, 739 P.2d 140 ; Kettenhofen v. Superior Court (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 189, 191, 10 Cal. Rptr. 356, 358 P.2d 684 ; Byington v. Superior Court (1939) 14 Cal. 2d 68,70, 92 P.2d 896 ; see § 303.84[1]]. On appeal, the court must examine the terms and effect of the injunction to discover its character as mandatory or prohibitory [People v. Mobile Magic Sales, Inc. (1979) 96 Cal. App. 3d 1, 13, 157 Cal. Rptr. 749] .

[4] Examples of Mandatory Injunctions

Mandatory injunctions include ordering the removal of a fence [Kettenhofen v. Superior Court (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 189, 190-191, 10 Cal. Rptr. 356, 358 P.2d 684] , the remodeling of a dwelling into a house [In re Donovan (1949) 94 Cal. App. 2d 399, 401, 210 P.2d 860] , or the removal of structures erected on a beach that were causing the plaintiff's beach to be washed away [Katenkamp v. Superior Court (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 696, 698-699, 108 P.2d 1] . They also include injunctions that compel the surrender of the lawful possession of real property [Byington v. Superior Court (1939) 14 Cal. 2d 68, 70, 72, 92 P.2d 896] , injunctions that compel a party to surrender a position he or she holds and is entitled to hold [Dosch v. King (1961) 192 Cal. App. 2d 800, 804, 13 Cal. Rptr. 765 ; Johnston v. Superior Court (1957) 148 Cal. App. 2d 966, 970, 307 P.2d 946] , and injunctions that compel reinstatement of a party to an administrative position when at the time of the trial court's order that party has already been removed from the position [Shoemaker v. County of Los Angeles (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 618, 625 n.4, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 774] .

Chapter 303 INJUNCTIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Overview of Injunctive Relief

26-303 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 303.12

§ 303.12 Nature of Provisional and Final Injunctions

[1] Provisional Relief in General

Provisional relief includes temporary restraining orders and preliminary injunctions [see Code Civ. Proc. § 527(a)-(f)]. A temporary restraining order or a preliminary injunction, or both, may be granted in an individual suit or in a class action in which one or more of the parties sues or defends for the benefit of numerous parties on the same grounds as in other actions, whether or not the class has been certified [Code Civ. Proc. § 527(b)].

[2] Temporary Restraining Order

A temporary restraining order (also commonly known as a "TRO") is issued by a court pending its determination whether a party is entitled to a preliminary injunction [San Diego Water Co. v. Pacific Coast S.S. Co. (1894) 101 Cal. 216, 218, 35 P. 651 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 527].

The temporary restraining order terminates automatically when a preliminary injunction is issued or denied [Landmark Holding Group, Inc. v. Superior Court (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 525, 529, 238 Cal. Rptr. 475] .

A temporary restraining order may be issued ex parte, on an appropriate showing, and although a bond is usually required, it is not essential [Chico Feminist Women's Health Center v. Scully (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 230, 237 n.1, 256 Cal. Rptr. 194 (quoting from Witkin, California Procedure, vol. 6, Provisional Remedies, § 247 (3d ed. 1985))].

For a complete discussion of temporary restraining orders, see § 303.30 et seq. For a sample form of a complaint for a temporary restraining order, see § 303.130.

In certain instances a statute authorizes the issuance of a TRO pending an evidentiary hearing to determine whether to issue a permanent injunction [see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. §§ 527.6 (threat of harm due to harassment), 527.8 (violence towards employees at workplace); see also USS-Posco Indus. v. Edwards (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 436, 442-443, 4 Cal. Rptr. 3d 54 (construing section 527.8); Scripps Health v. Marin (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 324, 333-336, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 86 (construing section 527.8)].

[3] Preliminary Injunction

A preliminary injunction, also called a temporary injunction or an injunction pendente lite, is issued to preserve the status quo pending a decision on the merits [Continental Baking Co. v. Katz (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 512, 528, 67 Cal. Rptr. 761, 439 P. 2d 889 ; O'Connell v. Superior Court (2006) 141 Cal. App. 4th 1452, 1472, 47 Cal. Rptr. 3d 147 ; Casmalia Resources, Ltd. v. County of Santa Barbara (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 827, 832, 240 Cal. Rptr. 903] . It is not, in itself, a cause of action [Korean American Legal Advocacy Foundation v. City of Los Angeles (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 376, 399, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 530 ; Major v. Miraverde Homeowners Assn. (1992) 7 Cal. App. 4th 618, 623, 9 Cal. Rptr. 2d 237] .

A preliminary injunction is a provisional remedy and temporary in character. It assumes a pending litigation in which all questions are to be settled by a judgment and, therefore, operates only until the judgment is rendered. The preliminary injunction automatically terminates at the time the court renders a judgment either granting or denying a permanent injunction [Shahen v. Superior Court (1941) 46 Cal. App. 2d 187, 188, 115 P.2d 516] . However, its effectiveness may be continued pending appeal from a judgment denying injunctive relief, depending on whether it is a mandatory or prohibitory injunction [see City of Pasadena v. Superior Court (1910) 157 Cal. 781, 786, 109 P. 620 ; see also §§ 303.81 and 303.84].

In deciding whether to issue a preliminary injunction, the court must balance the respective equities of the parties and conclude that, pending a trial on the merits, the responding party should or should not be restrained from exercising a claimed right [Robbins v. Superior Court (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 199, 206, 211 Cal. Rptr. 398, 695 P.2d 695 ; Continental Baking Co. v. Katz (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 512, 528, 67 Cal. Rptr. 761, 439 P.2d 889 ; see Southern Christian Leadership Conference v. Al Malaikah Auditorium Co. (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 207, 223, 281 Cal. Rptr. 216 ; see also Subpart D, § 303.43].

A hearing on a preliminary injunction is a full evidentiary hearing giving all parties the opportunity to present arguments and evidence [see Code Civ. Proc. § 527(a)-(f); Landmark Holding Group, Inc. v. Superior Court (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 525, 529, 238 Cal. Rptr. 475] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Use of Declarations or Affidavits. Live testimony is rarely permitted at hearings on preliminary injunctions. Instead, evidence usually is submitted in the form of declarations or affidavits, or by judicial notice. All declarations and affidavits must be offered into evidence, and must comply with all the rules of evidence (including hearsay).

For a complete discussion of preliminary injunctions, see Subpart D, § 303.40 et seq. For a sample complaint for a preliminary injunction, see § 303.130.

[4] Permanent Injunction

A permanent or final injunction [see Civ. Code § 3420] is issued as the ultimate relief in an action after trial on the merits. It may be the same in scope and effect as a previously granted preliminary injunction or different, since it is a restraint imposed by a new and distinct order [San Diego Water Co. v. Pacific Coast S.S. Co. (1894) 101 Cal. 216, 221, 35 P. 651] . For example, a permanent injunction that is broader in scope and effect supersedes the previously granted preliminary injunction [Milani v. Smith (1948) 85 Cal. App. 2d 163, 167, 192 P.2d 830 ; see Sheward v. Citizens' Water Co. (1891) 90 Cal. 635, 638, 27 P. 439] .

For a complete discussion of permanent injunctions, see Subpart E § 303.60 et seq. For a sample complaint for a permanent injunction, see § 303.130.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Overview of Injunctive Relief

§ 303.13 Persons Bound by Injunction

An injunction is generally a personal decree and is not effective against the world at large. On the other hand, enjoined parties may not nullify an injunction by carrying out prohibited acts with or through nonparties to the original proceeding. Thus, an injunction may cover classes of persons with or through whom the enjoined party may act [Planned Parenthood Golden Gate v. Foti (2003) 107 Cal. App. 4th 345, 352-353, 132 Cal. Rptr. 2d 46 (affirming injunction that covers agents, employees and those who act in concert with enjoined party)]. Any person, even one who was not a party to the original action, may be included in the scope of an injunction and held guilty of contempt for disobedience [Ross v. Superior Court (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 899, 906, 141 Cal. Rptr. 133, 569 P.2d 727] . For example, an injunction may include not only a corporation or association, but also its officers, employees, and agents [Mattos v. Superior Court (1939) 30 Cal. App. 2d 641, 647, 86 P.2d 1056 ; see Pitchess v. Superior Court (1969) 2 Cal. App. 3d 653, 656, 83 Cal. Rptr. 41] . On the other hand, an injunction against a corporate employer is inappropriate to enjoin the actions of specific employees [Huntingdon Life Sciences, Inc. v. Stop Huntingdon Animal (2005) 129 Cal. App. 4th 1228, 1266, 29 Cal. Rptr. 3d 521] . However, a claim for disobedience of the injunction cannot be based on the act of a person not in any way included in its terms or acting in concert with the enjoined party [Planned Parenthood Golden Gate v. Foti (2003) 107 Cal. App. 4th 345, 352-353, 132 Cal. Rptr. 2d 46 (invalidating injunction providing that anyone with personal notice was bound by it); see People ex rel. Gwinn v. Kothari (2000) 83 Cal. App. 4th 759, 770-771, 100 Cal. Rptr. 2d 29 (injunction in nuisance abatement action could not bind future purchasers of property)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Include All Enjoined Persons. It is common practice to make an injunction run to classes of persons through whom the enjoined person may act, such as agents, servants, employees, aiders, abettors, persons acting in concert with specifically named parties, corporate affiliates, etc., even though they are not parties to the action. This practice has been upheld by the courts [Berger v. Superior Court (1917) 175 Cal. 719, 721, 167 P. 143] . It is important, however, to include these categories of persons in the injunction order itself. Merely serving the injunction on a person not included in the order does not bring the person within the scope of the injunction, unless he or she has been acting in concert with one so included [Berger v. Superior Court (1917) 175 Cal. 719, 721-722, 167 P. 143 ; Planned Parenthood Golden Gate v. Foti (2003) 107 Cal. App. 4th 345, 352-353, 132 Cal. Rptr. 2d 46 (invalidating injunction providing that anyone with personal notice was bound by it)].

For discussion of how a court may use its contempt powers to enforce an injunction, see Subpart H, § 303.90 et seq.

§ 303.14 Courses of Action Available to Defendant

Counsel for a defendant who either is about to be or has been subjected to injunctive relief by a plaintiff can pursue several options. If a temporary restraining order has been granted, counsel should prepare and serve a memorandum of points and authorities and declarations to oppose the pending application for a preliminary injunction. If the temporary restraining order was issued on the basis of a verified complaint, counsel may demur or answer to the complaint. If a temporary restraining order was not sought or was not issued, counsel will still want to prepare and serve a memorandum of points and authorities and declarations to oppose the pending application for a preliminary injunction. Counsel for defendant also should consider making a motion for change of venue if plaintiff has brought the action in the wrong county [see generally Ch. 571, Venue]. Counsel may also want to consider petitioning for removal of the action to federal court [see generally Ch. 265, Federal Courts: Jurisdiction and Removal].

If a preliminary injunction has already issued, counsel for a defendant may:

- Seek to have the preliminary injunction modified or dissolved [see § 303.80].
- Appeal and seek to have the order stayed pending the outcome of the appeal [see § 303.81].
- Seek a writ of prohibition [see § 303.87].
- Decide not to comply with the preliminary injunction with the attendant risk of contempt [see § 303.92].

If it is later determined either by a judgment in defendant's favor or by appeal that the preliminary injunction should not have been issued to the plaintiff, then defendant's counsel may move for damages from the sureties who are liable under the injunction bond [see § 303.48].

If a permanent injunction has issued, counsel for a defendant has the same four basic options just listed: modification or dissolution, appeal, writ of prohibition, or risking contempt by noncompliance. Each of these major courses of action is discussed below.

For an outline of an opposing party's possible responses to an application for an injunction, see Defendant's Checklist for Opposing Injunctive Relief at § 303.121.

The scope of this chapter does not permit discussion of the particular factual situations in which injunctive relief has been granted or denied. For a listing of some of the statutory provisions that authorize the granting of injunctive relief to private parties, see the entries in the Research Guide at § 303.102[9]. For a similar listing of decisions that show factual situations in which injunctive relief has been granted to private parties, see the cases cited in the Research Guide § 303.104[19].

For a listing of some of the statutory provisions that prohibit the granting of injunctive relief, see the entries in the Research Guide at § 303.102[10]. For a similar listing of decisions that show factual situations in which injunctive relief has been denied, see the cases cited in the Research Guide at § 303.104[20].

Counsel who is seeking assistance with the applicability of injunctive relief to a particular situation also should consult other chapters in this set that contain forms for injunctive relief. References to these chapters appear at § 303.02[2].

§ 303.20 Subject Matter Jurisdiction

[1] Permanent Injunctive Relief

Superior courts have jurisdiction to grant permanent injunctive relief except in limited civil cases. Permanent injunctive relief cannot be granted in a limited civil case [see Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10 (original jurisdiction of superior courts); Code Civ. Proc. § 580(b)(2)].

[2] Preliminary Injunctive Relief

A preliminary injunction may be granted by the court in which the action is brought or by a judge of that court. A preliminary injunction may be enforced as an order of the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 525].

In a limited civil case, the court has original jurisdiction in civil proceedings to issue only temporary restraining orders and preliminary injunctions [Code Civ. Proc. § 86(a)(8)]. The court does not have jurisdiction to issue permanent injunctions in a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. § 580(b)(2)].

[3] Supreme Court and Courts of Appeal

The Supreme Court and courts of appeal lack jurisdiction over original applications for injunctive relief [Modern Barber Col. v. Cal. Emp. Stab. Com. (1948) 31 Cal. 2d 720, 730, 192 P.2d 916 ; Walsh v. Railroad Commission (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 691, 694, 107 P.2d 611 ; see Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10].

§ 303.21 Personal Jurisdiction

The granting of either a provisional or final injunction requires personal jurisdiction over the person enjoined [see Comfort v. Comfort (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 736, 741, 112 P.2d 259 (permanent); Rothschild v. Erda (1968) 258 Cal. App. 2d 750, 753, 66 Cal. Rptr. 209 (preliminary)]. Once a court obtains personal jurisdiction over the responding party, the effect of the injunction may extend beyond the boundaries of the state [People ex rel. Mosk v. National Research Co. of Cal. (1962) 201 Cal. App. 2d 765, 776, 20 Cal. Rptr. 516] .

§ 303.23 Venue

Because an action for injunctive relief is ordinarily personal and transitory, venue is generally proper in the county in which the defendant resides at the time of the action's commencement [*see Code Civ. Another venue may be applicable, however, as dictated by the capacity of the defendant, for example, if the defendant is a corporation [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 392-395.5]. A temporary restraining order (TRO) is permitted in the same situations as a preliminary injunction [see generally § 303.40 et seq.]. However, a court will issue a TRO only for a limited period of time, which is usually pending its consideration whether to order a preliminary injunction [San Diego Water Co. v. Pacific Coast S.S. Co. (1894) 101 Cal. 216, 218, 35 P. 651 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 527]. A TRO terminates automatically when a preliminary injunction is issued or denied [*Landmark Holding Group, Inc. v. PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Temporary Restraining Orders

§ 303.31 Procedure to Obtain Temporary Restraining Order

[1] Verified Complaint

Temporary restraining orders usually are obtained by counsel for the plaintiff filing a verified complaint with the clerk and presenting a copy of the complaint [see § 303.130], any affidavits (or declarations [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) [see § 303.171], and a memorandum of points and authorities to the court [see Code Civ. Proc. § 527]. If the action is initiated the same day a TRO or OSC is sought, the complaint must be filed first [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1150(b)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Submit Declarations or Affidavits. Although the evidentiary showing necessary for the issuance of the temporary restraining order may be satisfied solely by a verified complaint, the better practice is to submit declarations or affidavits. Code Civ. Proc. § 446 limits a party's ability to rely on a verified complaint to establish the necessary evidentiary facts. In any case, the applicant must submit a proposed order and memorandum of points and authorities.

A Procedural Checklist is included at § 303.120. The Checklist illustrates the basic steps counsel should follow either in applying for or in defending against temporary restraining orders. It should be consulted if counsel is interested in a step-by-step procedural discussion of temporary restraining orders.

[2] Notice to Opposing Party

In most cases, counsel must attempt to notify the opposition of the application for a TRO [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1150(a), (g), 3.1203-3.1204]. If certain requirements are met, however, a TRO may be issued ex parte without notice [see Code Civ. Proc. § 527(c); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1150(a), 3.1200- 3.1207; see also [3], below].

[3] Ex Parte Issuance

[a] Irreparable Injury Requirement

Temporary restraining orders may be granted ex parte if it appears from the facts set forth in the affidavit or declaration [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5] or the verified complaint that great or irreparable injury would result to the applicant before the matter could be heard on notice [see Code Civ. Proc. § 527(c)(1)]. This satisfies the requirements of due process [Dickey v. Rosso (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 493, 497-498, 100 Cal. Rptr. 358] .

The affidavits, declarations, or verified complaint must contain specific facts, on personal knowledge, supporting the allegations that are the basis for the request for a TRO. A restraining order may not be granted on an affidavit supported only on information and belief [Low v. Low (1956) 143 Cal. App. 2d 650, 654, 299 P.2d 1022] .

[b] Advance Notification Requirement

For ex parte issuance of a TRO, the applicant or the applicant's attorney must also certify to the court under oath (or by declaration under penalty of perjury) one of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 527(c)(2); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1204; see § 303.130]:

- No later than 10:00 a.m. the court day before the application, the party informed the responding party or the responding party's attorney when and where the application would be made.

- The party in good faith attempted to inform the responding party and the responding party's attorney but was unable to do so, specifying the efforts made to contact them.

- For reasons specified, the party should not be required to inform the responding party or the responding party's attorney.

The certification requirement does not apply to orders sought in certain family law proceedings [see Code Civ. Proc. § 527(g); see, e.g., Fam. Code §§ 2045 et seq., 6300 et seq., 7700 et seq.]. For discussion of issuing injunctive relief, including temporary restraining orders, regarding family law matters, see Ch. 221, Dissolution of Marriage: Procedure , Ch. 293, Harassment and Domestic Violence , and Ch. 412, Paternity .

PRACTICE TIP:

Requirement of Advance Notice. In view of the advance notice requirements, it is useful to keep in mind that "ex parte" generally means shortened and informal notice, rather than no notice at all.

Counsel should prepare a separate supporting declaration setting out in detail the actions taken to comply with the advance notice requirements [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1204; § 303.171].

ILLUSTRATION: Immediate Danger to Property. The final alternative of the advance notification requirement, i.e., that the moving party for specified reasons should not be required to give advance notification, may be used when the advance notice would result in immediate danger to real or personal property. If the responding party is likely to abscond with funds, for example, the applicant may cite this as a basis for being excused from attempting to provide advance notification.

[4] Order to Show Cause Issued

If a TRO is granted without notification, the matter must be made returnable on an order to show cause why a preliminary injunction should not be granted [Code Civ. Proc. § 527(d)(1); see § 303.133].

Personal service of an order to show cause on the responding party gives the court personal jurisdiction and, therefore, the power to enforce the order in contempt proceedings [Chrysler Credit Corp. v. Waegele (1972) 29 Cal. App. 3d 681, 687-689, 105 Cal. Rptr. 914] . For that purpose, the applicant need not serve the summons on the responding party at the same time of service of the order to show cause. This is true because service of a summons, in addition to the order to show cause, adds nothing to the order of the court commanding the responding party to appear for a hearing on the TRO [Chrysler Credit Corp. v. Waegele (1972) 29 Cal. App. 3d 681, 688, 105 Cal. Rptr. 914] . Until legal service of process has been made, however, the court has no jurisdiction to render judgment even though the responding party may have actual knowledge of the pendency of the action [Chrysler Credit Corp. v. Waegele (1972) 29 Cal. App. 3d 681, 688, 105 Cal. Rptr. 914] .

The party who obtained the temporary restraining order must, within five days from the date the temporary restraining order is issued or two days prior to the hearing whichever is earlier, serve on the opposing party a copy of the complaint if not previously served, the order to show cause stating the date, time, and place of the hearing, any affidavits to be used in the application, and a copy of the points and authorities in support of the application. The court may for good cause, on motion of the applicant or on its own motion, shorten the time required by this paragraph for service on the opposing party [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 527(d)(2), 527(d)(5)].

However, upon the filing of an affidavit by the applicant that the opposing party could not be served within the time required, the court may reissue any temporary restraining order previously issued. The time for hearing is then measured from the date of reissuance. No fees are charged for reissuing the order [Code Civ. Proc.§ 527(d)(5); for Judicial Council Form, see § 303.142].

PRACTICE TIP:

Preparation of Two Orders. Even when a TRO is being sought, the order to show cause and the TRO should be prepared so that they are stated separately but within the same document. The order to show cause must be stated first [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1150(e)]. Although this separation involves repetition, it enables a court to strike parts or delete the whole of the TRO without striking anything from the order to show cause.

PRACTICE TIP: Temporary Restraining Order Service. Unless service of a TRO is accepted by counsel for the enjoined parties at the hearing, personal service of the court order should be effectuated as soon as possible after the TRO issues. Counsel should consult local rules of practice concerning the time and place for filing proof of service.

[5] Time for Hearing of Order to Show Cause

The hearing on an order to show cause why a preliminary injunction should not be granted must be held on the earliest day that the business of the court permits, but not later than 15 days or, if good cause appears to the court, 22 days from the date of the TRO [Code Civ. Proc. § 527(d)(1)].

CAUTION:

Hearing Beyond Statutory Limit. If the order to show cause is set for hearing beyond the statutory limit, the TRO is void and must be dissolved [Agricultural P. Com. v. Superior Court (1938) 30 Cal. App. 2d 154, 155, 85 P.2d 898 ; McDonald v. Superior Court (1937) 18 Cal. App. 2d 652, 655, 64 P.2d 738] .

[6] Undertaking Preferred but Not Required

Although an undertaking is not required before obtaining a TRO [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 527, 529; Chico Feminist Women's Health Center v. Scully (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 230, 237 n.1, 256 Cal. Rptr. 194] , a trial court has the inherent equitable power to require one during the period of effectiveness of a TRO [Biasca v. Superior Court (1924) 194 Cal. 366, 367, 228 P. 861 ; Neumann v. Moretti (1905) 146 Cal. 31, 33, 79 P. 512] .

The court, in the exercise of discretion, may include as obligees any persons the court determines should be protected against the impact of the TRO if it were found later to have been improperly issued [Allen v. Pitchess (1973) 36 Cal. App. 3d 321, 329-330, 111 Cal. Rptr. 658] .

The policy behind exempting a public entity from providing an undertaking to obtain a preliminary injunction [Code Civ. Proc. § 529(b)(3); see § 303.46[1]] must be enforced also when a public entity applies for a TRO [City of South San Francisco v. Cypress Lawn Cemetery Ass'n (1992) 11 Cal. App. 4th 916, 920-924, 14 Cal. Rptr. 2d 323] .

[7] Period of Effectiveness

A TRO expires by its own limitation; it is effective until the propriety of granting the preliminary injunction can be determined on the hearing of the order to show cause [Maier v. Luce (1923) 61 Cal. App. 552, 555-556, 215 P. 399] . Thus, the order will expire after the 15/22-day time period for holding the hearing on the order to show cause, if no action is taken [see Code Civ. Proc. § 527(d)(1); see also [5], above]. A TRO also terminates automatically when a preliminary injunction is issued or denied [Landmark Holding Group, Inc. v. Superior Court (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 525, 529, 238 Cal. Rptr. 475] . In addition, a TRO remains in force until the preliminary injunction, if granted, has become effective against the party enjoined. This allows a reasonable time for filing the required undertaking and giving the necessary notice [Houser v. Superior Court (1932) 121 Cal. App. 31, 35, 8 P.2d 483] .

The party who obtained the temporary restraining order must, within five days from the date the temporary restraining order is issued or two days prior to the hearing whichever is earlier, serve on the opposing party a copy of the complaint if not previously served, the order to show cause stating the date, time, and place of the hearing, any affidavits to be used in the application, and a copy of the points and authorities in support of the application. The court may for good cause, on motion of the applicant or on its own motion, shorten the time required by this paragraph for service on the opposing party [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 527(d)(2), 527(d)(5)].

However, upon the filing of an affidavit by the applicant that the opposing party could not be served within the time required, the court may reissue any temporary restraining order previously issued. The time for hearing is then measured from the date of reissuance. No fees are charged for reissuing the order [Code Civ. Proc. § 527(d)(5)]. For Judicial Council Form, see § 303.142.

If the party who obtained the TRO is not ready to proceed at the time of the hearing on the order to show cause or has failed to serve a copy of the complaint, affidavits, and points and authorities required by Code Civ. Proc. § 527(d)(2), (3)] [see [1], above], the court must dissolve the TRO [Code Civ. Proc. § 527(d)(3); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1150].

PRACTICE TIP:

Preparation for Filing Undertaking. Many judges routinely require the filing of the undertaking in their courtroom within a certain number of days following the issuance of their TRO. Counsel should usually obtain an application for a bond before filing the application for the TRO, and also obtain the necessary financial information from the client. The bond application can then be completed after the court fixes the amount of the bond when it issues the TRO.

[8] Order Granted or Denied in Discretion of Court

The grant or denial of a TRO is left to the trial court's sound discretion. The court's decision may not be disturbed on appeal except on a clear showing of abuse of discretion [Killeen v. Hotel & Restaurant Employees' International Alliance & Bartenders' International League (1948) 84 Cal. App. 2d 87, 95, 190 P.2d 30 ; Palm Springs La Quinta Dev. Co. v. Kieberk Corp. (1940) 37 Cal. App. 2d 642, 644, 100 P.2d 346 ; see § 303.81].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
D. Preliminary Injunction

26-303 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 303.40

§ 303.40 Grounds for Obtaining Preliminary Injunction

[1] Applicant Entitled to Relief Demanded

A preliminary injunction may be granted when it appears that the party applying for relief is entitled to the relief demanded, and all or part of the relief consists in restraining the commission or continuance of the act complained of (or commanding certain conduct) either for a limited period or perpetually [Code Civ. Proc. § 526(a)(1); see § 303.10[1]]. In determining whether to issue a preliminary injunction, courts consider two factors: (1) the likelihood that the plaintiff will prevail on the merits of its case at trial; and (2) the interim harm that the plaintiff is likely to sustain if the injunction is denied compared to the harm the defendant is likely to suffer if the court grants the preliminary injunction [Right Site Coalition v. Los Angeles Unified School Dist. (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 336, 341-342, 72 Cal. Rptr. 3d 678 ; O'Connell v. Superior Court (2006) 141 Cal. App. 4th 1452, 1467-1468, 47 Cal. Rptr. 3d 147 ; Teamsters Local 856 v. Priceless, LLC (2003) 112 Cal. App. 4th 1500, 1509-1510, 5 Cal. Rptr. 3d 847 (affirming preliminary injunction requiring release of public employee salaries); White v. Davis (2002) 98 Cal. App. 4th 969, 981, 121 Cal. Rptr. 2d 51] .

[2] Injunction Necessary to Prevent Waste or Irreparable Injury

A preliminary injunction may be granted when it appears by the verified complaint or affidavits that the commission or continuance of some act during the litigation would produce waste, or great or irreparable injury, to a party in the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 526(a)(2)]. An order granting a preliminary injunction is not fatally flawed because it contains no explicit finding that the injunction is necessary to prevent irreparable injury [Conover v. Hall (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 842, 850, 114 Cal. Rptr. 642, 523 P. 2d 682] .

Under the "irreparable injury" standard, an injunction may issue to prevent wrongs of repeated and continuing character or ones that cause damages estimable only by conjecture and not by any accurate standard [Huong Que, Inc. v. Luu, 150 Cal. App. 4th 400, 417-418, 58 Cal. Rptr. 3d 527 ; People ex rel. Gow v. Mitchell Brothers' Santa Ana Theater (1981) 118 Cal. App. 3d 863, 870-871, 173 Cal. Rptr. 476 ; Wind v. Herbert (1960) 186 Cal. App. 2d 276, 285, 8 Cal. Rptr. 817] .

ILLUSTRATION:

Example of "Irreparable Injury." Plaintiffs seek a preliminary injunction against defendants, who operate a theater exhibiting and selling allegedly obscene films. May plaintiff show irreparable injury by the continued exhibition and sale pending trial? Yes. If the films being sold and exhibited are later determined to be obscene, their exhibition and sale would be a wrong of a repeated and continuing character. In addition, since the ultimate remedy plaintiffs seek is a permanent injunction, there is no standard for assessing damages [People ex rel. Gow v. Mitchell Brothers' Santa Ana Theater (1981) 118 Cal. App. 3d 863, 870-871, 173 Cal. Rptr. 476] .

The applicant may also show that the wrongful act constitutes an actual or threatened injury to personal or property rights that cannot be compensated by an ordinary damage award [Brownfield v. Daniel Freeman Marina Hospital (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 405, 410, 256 Cal. Rptr. 240] . Damage is not irreparable if it can be adequately compensated by an award of monetary damages [Helms Bakeries v. St. Bd. Equalization (1942) 53 Cal. App. 2d 417, 425, 128 P.2d 167] . Irreparable harm may be established where there is an injury, but an inability to ascertain the amount of damage, i.e., pecuniary compensation would not afford adequate relief or that it would be extremely difficult to ascertain the amount that would afford adequate relief [DVD Copy Control Assn., Inc. v. Kaleidescape, Inc. (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 697, 721-722, 97 Cal. Rptr. 3d 856].

Whether the damage and injury inflicted is irreparable and entitles the applicant to injunctive relief is so intimately bound up with the question of the availability of an adequate remedy at law that the two may well be considered together [People v. Monterey Fish Products Co. (1925) 195 Cal. 548, 564, 234 P. 398] .

[3] Action or Threatened Action Violates Rights of Another Party

A preliminary injunction will also issue when it appears during litigation that a party is doing, threatens, is about to do, or is procuring or suffering to be done, some act in violation of the rights of another party to the action regarding the subject of the action and tending to render the judgment ineffectual [Code Civ. Proc. § 526(a)(3)].

ILLUSTRATION:

Rendered Judgment Possibly Ineffectual. Plaintiffs, husband and wife, bring an action against defendants. Plaintiffs are both represented by the husband, who is not a licensed attorney. May defendants obtain a preliminary injunction preventing the husband from representing the wife? Yes. The husband's representation of the wife is unlawful under state law. Thus, doubt would be cast on any judgment affecting the wife [Abar v. Rogers (1981) 124 Cal. App. 3d 862, 864-865, 177 Cal. Rptr. 655] .

NOTE: Interference With Court-Appointed Receiver. Whenever the court has appointed a receiver pendente lite to take charge of property that is the subject of a pending action, all persons are effectively enjoined as a matter of law from interfering with the receiver's possession and control of that property.

[4] Pecuniary Compensation Inadequate

A preliminary injunction will issue when pecuniary compensation would not afford adequate relief [Code Civ. Proc. § 526(a)(4)], for example when injury to real property is threatened. In evaluating whether the legal remedy of damages is adequate, the defendant's asserted insolvency is a proper matter for the court's consideration [see West Coast Constr. Co. v. Oceano Sanitary Dist. (1971) 17 Cal. App. 3d 693, 700, 95 Cal. Rptr. 169 ; Union Oil Co. v. Domengeaux (1939) 30 Cal. App. 2d 266, 271-272, 86 P.2d 127] . In addition, an award of declaratory relief does not necessarily render the request for an injunction moot [Syngenta Crop Protection, Inc. v. Helliker (2006) 136 Cal. App. 4th 1464, 1496-1497, 40 Cal. Rptr. 3d 278 (declaratory judgment is cumulative remedy and does not preclude injunctive relief based on same facts)]. In addition, an award of declaratory relief does not necessarily render the request for an injunction moot [Syngenta Crop Protection, Inc. v. Helliker (2006) 138 Cal. App. 4th 1135, 1167, 42 Cal. Rptr. 3d 191 (declaratory judgment is cumulative remedy and does not preclude injunctive relief based on same facts)].

If monetary damages afford adequate relief and are not extremely difficult to ascertain, the court will deny a request for an injunction [*Ajaxo Inc. v. E*TRADE Group, Inc. (2005) 135 Cal. App. 4th 21, 64 n.44, 37 Cal. Rptr. 3d 221* ; Thayer Plymouth Center, Inc. v. Chrysler Motors Corp. (1967) 255 Cal. App. 2d 300, 306, 63 Cal. Rptr. 148] . Other legal remedies, aside from monetary damages, may also be adequate and therefore grounds for denying injunctive relief. For example, the following legal remedies are adequate:

- The right to pay a tax under protest with the subsequent right to file a claim for a refund and, if unsuccessful, the further right to bring a suit for a refund [Helms Bakeries v. St. Bd. Equalization (1942) 53 Cal. App. 2d 417, 421-425, 128 P.2d 167 ; see Ch. 540, Taxes and Assessments].

- The presence of an administrative remedy that plaintiff has not exhausted [Teeter v. Los Angeles (1930) 209 Cal. 685, 687, 290 P. 11 ; San Joaquin and Kings River Canal & Irr. v. Stanislaus (1908) 155 Cal. 21, 29, 99 P. 365] .

- The right to seek a writ of mandate [Moore v. Superior Court (1936) 6 Cal. 2d 421, 423-424, 57 P.2d 1314 ; see Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition].

- The right to pursue the legal remedy of quo warranto [Hallinan v. Mellon (1963) 218 Cal. App. 2d 342, 344-348, 32 Cal. Rptr. 446 ; Somo v. Superior Court (1933) 135 Cal. App. 584, 586, 27 P.2d 790 ; see Ch. 483, Quo Warranto].

- The availability of appeal, motion for new trial, or motion to vacate or modify a court's judgment [Lezama v. Justice Court (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 15, 21, 235 Cal. Rptr. 238 ; see Ch. 40, Appeal: An Overview , et seq., Ch. 318, Judgments , § 318.70 et seq., and Ch. 371, Motions After Trial , §§ 357.60 et seq., 357.90 et seq.].

- The federal government is in a better position from the standpoint of efficiency and policy to provide the relief sought [Larez v. Oberti (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 217, 221-223, 100 Cal. Rptr. 57 ; Diaz v. Kay-Dix Ranch (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 588, 592-599, 88 Cal. Rptr. 443] .

[5] Compensation Not Ascertainable

A preliminary injunction will issue when it would be extremely difficult to ascertain the amount of compensation that would afford adequate relief [Code Civ. Proc. § 526(a)(5)].

[6] Injunction Necessary to Avoid Multiplicity of Suits

A preliminary injunction will issue when necessary to prevent a multiplicity of judicial proceedings [Code Civ. Proc. § 526(a)(6)]. This rule applies to two kinds of actions [Verdier v. Verdier (1962) 203 Cal. App. 2d 724, 735, 22 Cal. Rptr. 93] :

- Cases in which many claims that have not been adjudicated have been brought into equity to be the subject of a single trial and decree.

- Vexatious cases on causes of action that have been settled by former adjudication.

ILLUSTRATION:

Preliminary Injunction Prevents Multiplicity. Ninety-eight plaintiffs file an action in superior court seeking damages for fraud involving land-sales contracts. Four months later, defendants' assignee brings actions against 13 of the plaintiffs in municipal court to recover amounts due on the contracts. May plaintiffs in the superior court action obtain an injunction to restrain the assignee from proceeding in the municipal court action? Yes. Since (1) the superior court action was within the superior court's subject matter jurisdiction, (2) defendants had appeared and submitted to personal jurisdiction, and (3) the superior court action was filed first, the injunction was properly granted to avoid a multiplicity of suits [Aldrich v. Transcontinental Land & Water Co. (1955) 131 Cal. App. 2d 788, 796-797, 281 P.2d 362] .

However, an injunction is not available to prevent multiple suits absent evidence that the controversy involves the same parties, subject matter, or facts [Planned Parenthood Golden Gate v. Foti (2003) 107 Cal. App. 4th 345, 358, 132 Cal. Rptr. 2d 46] .

Whether a case belongs to the second class of cases involves a question of res judicata [Bartholomew v. Bartholomew (1942) 56 Cal. App. 2d 216, 225, 132 P.2d 297 ; see Ch. 491, Res Judicata].

[7] Obligation Arises From Trust

A preliminary injunction may issue when the obligation arises from a trust [Code Civ. Proc. § 526(a)(7)].

[8] Statutes Specifically Authorizing Injunction for Violation

When a statute authorizes the granting of a preliminary injunction for its violation, a private party need not show irreparable injury and inadequacy of a remedy at law if the statutory conditions for the injunction's issuance are met [In re Marriage of Van Hook (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 970, 985, 195 Cal. Rptr. 541 ; see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. § 527.6 (injunctive relief prohibiting harassment)].

If a governmental entity seeks an injunction under a specific statute and the entity establishes that it is reasonably probable that it will prevail on the merits, a rebuttable presumption arises that the potential harm to the public outweighs the potential harm to the responding party. The responding party must then show that it will suffer grave or irreparable harm if the preliminary injunction issues. Only then will the court examine the relative actual harms to the parties [IT Corp. v. County of Imperial (1983) 35 Cal. 3d 63, 72, 196 Cal. Rptr. 715, 672 P.2d 121] .

Some statutes specifically state that their violation may be enjoined without the required showing of a lack of an adequate remedy at law and irreparable injury. These include:

- Bus. & Prof. Code § 4339 (authorizing injunction for violating any provisions governing pharmacies) and Bus. & Prof. Code § 4380 (authorizes injunctive relief for resale of drugs that constitute unfair trade practice without need to allege or prove damage or injury or threat of damage or injury).

- Bus. & Prof. Code § 8658 (authorizing injunction against violating provisions governing structural pest control operators).

- Health & Safety Code §§ 1508, 1541 (authorizing injunction against operating community care facility without license).

The mere showing of a violation of the statute, however, does not create an automatic right to an injunction. The applicant must still introduce sufficient evidence showing he or she is entitled to a preliminary injunction under one of the remaining requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 526 [Woods v. Superior Court (1980) 102 Cal. App. 3d 608, 613-617, 162 Cal. Rptr. 577] . Some statutes do provide, however, that the trial court must issue an injunction on a showing of a violation of the section to be enforced [see, e.g., Lab. Code § 3712 (if court finds defendant is operating a business without full compensation security required, it must issue order restraining the business as long as violation continues)].

D. Preliminary Injunction

26-303 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 303.41

§ 303.41 Situations Where Preliminary Injunction Unavailable

[1] Staying of Judicial Proceedings

A preliminary injunction may not be granted:

- To stay a judicial proceeding that was pending at the time the action was commenced in which the injunction is demanded, unless the restraint is necessary to prevent a multiplicity of proceedings [Civ. Code § 3423(a); Code Civ. Proc. § 526(b)(1)].

- To stay proceedings in a court of the United States [Civ. Code § 3423(b); Code Civ. Proc. § 526(b)(2)].

- To stay proceedings in another state on a judgment of a court of that state [Civ. Code § 3423(c); Code Civ. Proc. § 526(b)(3)].

The provision of Code Civ Proc. § 526(b)(1), that an injunction cannot be granted to stay a judicial proceeding pending at the commencement of the action in which the injunction is demanded, unless the restraint is necessary to prevent a multiplicity of judicial proceedings, necessarily implies that a judicial proceeding which is not pending at the commencement of the action in which the injunction is demanded may be stayed [Glade v. Glade (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 1441, 1455, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 695] . Thus, a family law court with priority of jurisdiction over alleged community property may stay a latter-commenced foreclosure action pending in another department of the superior court and concerning some of the same property [Glade v. Glade (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 1441, 1456, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 695 (noting that even if the foreclosure action had been considered as pending before the dissolution action, under Code Civ. Proc. § 526(b)(1) the family law court properly issued the injunction to prevent a multiplicity of actions)]. For discussion of the principle of priority of jurisdiction between departments of the superior court, see Ch. 324, Jurisdiction: Subject Matter .

[2] Preventing Execution of Public Statute

[a] In General

An injunction may not be granted to prevent the execution of a public statute for the public benefit by officers of the law [Civ. Code § 3423(d); Code Civ. Proc. § 526(b)(4); Carson Mobilehome Park Owners' Ass'n v. City of Carson (1983) 35 Cal. 3d 184, 195, 197 Cal. Rptr. 284, 672 P.2d 1297 ; McCarthy v. Superior Court (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 1023, 1031-1032, 236 Cal. Rptr. 833] . Under the doctrine of separation of powers [City of Los Angeles v. Superior Court (1959) 51 Cal. 2d 423, 430, 333 P.2d 745] , courts of equity have no power by injunction to restrain a public officer from performing an official act that he or she is required by valid law to perform. Thus, only acts that are without the sanction of a sound law may be restrained [Financial Indem. Co. v. Superior Court (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 395, 402, 289 P.2d 233 ; see O'Connell v. Superior Court (2006) 141 Cal. App. 4th 1452, 47 Cal. Rptr. 3d 147] .

ILLUSTRATION:

Ordinance Restraining Nightclub's Operation. A cabaret challenges a city ordinance that requires cabarets to be closed between the hours of 2 a.m. and 6 a.m. The cabaret argues that providing entertainment is an activity protected by the free speech guarantees of the federal and state constitutions and that the ordinance infringes those constitutional guarantees. Will the cabaret succeed in obtaining a preliminary injunction? No. Although First Amendment rights are at stake, a trial court may still weigh the competing burdens on the cabaret and the city and determine if the cabaret will prevail in a trial on the merits. Here, the burden on the cabaret's First Amendment rights is minimal, and the cabaret will be unlikely to prevail on the merits [Sundance Saloon, Inc. v. City of San Diego (1989) 213 Cal. App. 3d 807, 812, 261 Cal. Rptr. 841] .

[b] Exception if Statute Is Unconstitutional or Invalid

Civ. Code § 3423(d) and Code Civ. Proc. § 526(b)(4), which preclude issuing an injunction to prevent the execution of a public statute by officers of the law for the public benefit, do not apply to an unconstitutional or invalid statute or ordinance if the plaintiff shows he or she will suffer irreparable injury pending a trial on the merits [Alfaro v. Terhune (2002) 98 Cal. App. 4th 492, 120 Cal. Rptr. 2d 197 ; Leach v. City of San Marcos (1989) 213 Cal. App. 3d 648, 660-661, 261 Cal. Rptr. 805] . Courts have full authority to enjoin the execution of these enactments [Conover v. Hall (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 842, 850, 114 Cal. Rptr. 642, 523 P.2d 682] .

For example, injunctions are often granted to stop infringement of First Amendment rights [see, e.g., Ketchens v. Reiner (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 470, 480, 239 Cal. Rptr. 549 (statutes making it a crime for parents to abuse teacher in presence of school personnel or pupils was enjoined as overbroad and applicable to protected speech); American Booksellers Assn., Inc. v. Superior Court (1982) 129 Cal. App. 3d 197, 206, 181 Cal. Rptr. 33 (city ordinances restricting display of sexually explicit material for commercial purposes enjoined as overbroad); but see Sundance Saloon, Inc. v. City of San Diego (1989) 213 Cal. App. 3d 807, 812, 261 Cal. Rptr. 841] .

The general rule may also be inapplicable in the following cases:

- When the activity sought to be enjoined is an attempt to apply a statute or ordinance to conduct not within its terms [Crittenden v. Superior Court (1964) 61 Cal. 2d 565, 569, 39 Cal. Rptr. 380, 393 P.2d 692 ; Novar Corp. v. Bureau of Collection & Investigative Services (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 1, 6, 206 Cal. Rptr. 287] .

- When a public officer exceeds his or her powers [Financial Indem. Co. v. Superior Court (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 395, 402, 289 P.2d 233] .

- When a statute valid on its face is nevertheless being applied in an unconstitutional manner [Brock v. Superior Court (1939) 12 Cal. 2d 605, 610, 86 P.2d 805 ; Midget Products, Inc. v. Jacobsen (1956)

140 Cal. App. 2d 517, 523, 295 P.2d 542] .

ILLUSTRATION:

Conduct Outside Valid Statute. A political party applies to a city council for permission to solicit funds door-to-door within the city. The city council refuses permission, citing an ordinance regulating the soliciting of business door-to-door within the city. Will the party succeed in obtaining a preliminary injunction preventing application of the ordinance to them? Yes. The ordinance by its own terms applies expressly to commercial solicitation. In addition, it provides an exception for solicitations for religious, charitable or educational purposes, or "similar purposes." Whether a political solicitation would be deemed a similar purpose is open to reasonable doubt. Therefore, the trial court would not abuse its discretion in granting the injunction [see MacLeod v. City of Los Altos (1960) 182 Cal. App. 2d 364, 369-370, 6 Cal. Rptr. 326] .

ILLUSTRATION: Valid Statute Unconstitutionally Applied. Plaintiffs intend to manufacture and sell a dessert topping containing no milk or milk products. The California Director of Agriculture contends that the product must be marketed as "imitation milk," under a provision of the Agriculture Code requiring special licensing and consumer displays. The product is not, however, a true "imitation milk" product; it is a food product of its own distinctive character and peculiar merits. May the plaintiffs obtain a preliminary injunction preventing the director from applying this provision to them? Yes. The Director's attempt to apply the provision to plaintiffs is unconstitutional and constitutes an unreasonable interference with plaintiff's property and business; injunctive relief is appropriate [see Midget Products, Inc. v. Jacobsen (1956) 140 Cal. App. 2d 517, 523, 295 P.2d 542] .

[3] Preventing Breach of Contract Not Specifically Enforceable

[a] Basic Rule

An injunction may not be granted to prevent the breach of a contract the performance of which may not be specifically enforced, except for certain unique personal services contracts [Civ. Code § 3423(e); Code Civ. Proc. § 526(b)(5); Thayer Plymouth Center, Inc. v. Chrysler Motors Corp. (1967) 255 Cal. App. 2d 300, 304, 63 Cal. Rptr. 148 ; see [b], below].

ILLUSTRATION:

Contract: Affirmative and Negative Stipulations. Plaintiff seeks a permanent injunction to prevent defendant from selling to other dealers in breach of an exclusive agency contract. The contract contains both affirmative and negative stipulations. Will plaintiff succeed? No. When a contract contains both affirmative and negative stipulations, equity will not interfere to prevent a breach of the negative covenant if the affirmative covenant is of such a nature that it may not be specifically enforced by judicial decree [see Long Beach Drug Co. v. United Drug Co. (1939) 13 Cal. 2d 158, 168, 89 P.2d 386 ; Whipple Rd. Quarry Co. v. L.C. Smith Co. (1952) 114 Cal. App. 2d 214, 216, 249 P.2d 854] .

For discussion, procedural guides, and forms for use in obtaining and defending against the remedy of specific performance, see Ch. 528, Specific Performance .

[b] Exception for Certain Personal Service Contracts

Despite the general prohibition that precludes granting an injunction to prevent the breach of a contract the performance of which cannot be specifically enforced [see [a], above], there is a statutory exception involving certain personal services contracts [see Civ. Code § 3423(e); Code Civ. Proc. § 526(b)(5)]. This exception permits a court to order an injunction to prevent the breach of a contract if the contract meets four statutory requirements. The contract must be [Civ. Code § 3423(e); Code Civ. Proc. § 526(b)(5); see MCA Records, Inc. v. Newton-John (1979) 90 Cal. App. 3d 18,

22-24, 153 Cal. Rptr. 153] :

- In writing.
- For the rendition or furnishing of personal services from one to another.
- For a certain specified minimum compensation per annum [see Ch. 528, Specific Performance , for discussion of the minimum compensation requirements].
- One in which the promised services are of a special, unique, unusual, extraordinary, or intellectual character that gives them peculiar value that cannot be reasonably or adequately compensated in an action at law.

The minimum compensation provided in these contracts entered into on or before December 31, 1993, must be at the rate of $6,000 per annum, and at higher rates in successive years for contracts entered into on or after January 1, 1994 [Civ. Code § 3423(e); Code Civ. Proc. § 526(b)(5); see Stats. 1993, chs. 5, 836; MCA Records, Inc. v. Newton-John (1979) 90 Cal. App. 3d 18, 22-24, 153 Cal. Rptr. 153 ; for additional discussion of the minimum compensation requirements, see also Ch. 528, Specific Performance].

Because an injunction that forbids an artist to accept new employment may be a harsh and powerful remedy, the minimum compensation requirement in Civ. Code § 3423(e) is intended to serve as a counterweight in balancing the equities by ensuring that an artist who is enjoined from accepting new employment will at least have the alternative of earning a minimal annual compensation by performing his or her old contract [Foxx v. Williams (1966) 244 Cal. App. 2d 223, 236, 52 Cal. Rptr. 896 (construing former Civ. Code § 3423(5) before 1992 and 1993 amendments to the minimum annual compensation); see Beverly Glen Music, Inc. v. Warner Communications, Inc. (1986) 178 Cal. App. 3d 1142, 1145, 224 Cal. Rptr. 260 (employer could not enjoin other record company from employing performer whose contract did not ensure the statutory minimum compensation)].

[4] Preventing Exercise of Public or Private Office

An injunction may not be granted to prevent the exercise of a public or private office in a lawful manner by the person in possession [Civ. Code § 3423(f); Code Civ. Proc. § 526(b)(6)].

ILLUSTRATION:

Lawful Exercise of Public Office. Plaintiff taxpayers bring suit against the local district attorney, among others, seeking an injunction preventing the district attorney from spending public funds to deputize private attorneys to prosecute misdemeanor violations of local boating ordinances. The district attorney has the authority under Gov. Code § 24101 to appoint deputy district attorneys as necessary for the prompt and faithful discharge of the district attorney's duties. Will plaintiffs prevail? No. The court may not enjoin the lawful exercise of a public office by the officeholder [Fort Emory Cove Boatowners Assn. v. Cowett (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 508, 514, 270 Cal. Rptr. 527] .

[5] Preventing Legislative Act by Municipal Corporation

An injunction may not be issued to prevent a legislative act by a municipal corporation [Civ. Code § 3423(g); Code Civ. Proc. § 526(b)(7); see Save the Welwood Murray Memorial Library Com. v. City Council (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 1003, 1016-1017, 263 Cal. Rptr. 896 (although injunction is improper to prevent legislative act by municipal corporation, injunction was proper on ground of city's obligation to maintain public trust)]. Civ. Code § 3423(g) and Code Civ. Proc. § 526(b)(7) are based in the doctrine of separation of powers of government into three independent departments [City of Los Angeles v. Superior Court (1959) 51 Cal. 2d 423, 430, 333 P.2d 745] .

[6] Causing Noncompensable Injury to Public Interest

A court has the discretion to deny preliminary injunctive relief when the injunction would cause injury to a public interest that an injunction bond would not compensate [Socialist Workers 1974 California Campaign Committee v. Brown (1975) 53 Cal. App. 3d 879, 889, 125 Cal. Rptr. 915] .

ILLUSTRATION:

Relief Denied in Public Interest. The Socialist Workers Campaign Committee seeks an injunction to prevent disclosures required by state election laws of the names and addresses of contributors of $100 or more. The state contends that the public has a compelling interest in fair disclosure of campaign financing and the court concludes that the injury to the public from no disclosure would exceed the injury to plaintiffs from disclosure. Should the court enjoin the disclosures? No. The state has established a compelling state interest, and the injunction should not issue [see Socialist Workers 1974 California Campaign Committee v. Brown (1975) 53 Cal. App. 3d 879, 889, 125 Cal. Rptr. 915] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
D. Preliminary Injunction

26-303 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 303.42

§ 303.42 Procedure for Obtaining Preliminary Injunction

[1] In General

A Procedural Checklist is included at § 303.120. The Checklist illustrates the basic steps counsel should follow either in applying for or in defending against preliminary injunctions. Counsel should consult it for a step-by-step procedural discussion of preliminary injunctions.

In discussion of requirements imposed by Code Civ. Proc. § 527, the term "court" refers to the court in which the action is pending [Code Civ. Proc. § 527(h)(2)].

[2] Notice to Adversely Affected Parties

A preliminary injunction may not be granted without notice to the adversely affected party [Code Civ. Proc. § 527(a); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1150(a); see § 303.133]. Thus, an order that grants a preliminary injunction is void when it is made on the court's own motion and without prior notice [Thompson & Holmes v. Superior Court (1960) 184 Cal. App. 2d 306, 307, 7 Cal. Rptr. 386] . Likewise, such an order is void when made on oral motion in open court without the prior notice, unless notice was waived [Oksner v. Superior Court (1964) 229 Cal. App. 2d 672, 687, 40 Cal. Rptr. 621] .

Code Civ. Proc. § 527 does not specify the methods by which notice of the hearing of the application for the preliminary injunction may be given.

PRACTICE TIP:

Methods for Giving Notice. In practice, the most common means by which notice is given is by service of the order to show cause issued with a temporary restraining order [see Code Civ. Proc. § 527(a); see also § 303.133 and discussion at § 303.31[4]]. When an applicant wants to obtain a preliminary injunction against a party who has appeared in the action, a second method, called the noticed-motion procedure may be used [see § 303.133]. When a preliminary injunction is sought against a person who is not named as a party to the action or who has not appeared in the action, the applicant may serve an order to show cause issued by the court. In this instance, the noticed-motion procedure may not be used because the court does not have personal jurisdiction over the person and, therefore, no way of requiring the person to come to court [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1150(a); see also § 303.21]. Hence, in such a case, it is desirable to have the court issue an order to show cause that, if disobeyed, could be enforced through contempt proceedings.

PRACTICE TIP: Consult Local Rules and Practice. Although California Rules of Court have preempted local rules governing provisional remedies [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.20], some local rules remain regarding assignment of TROs and preliminary injunctions [see, e.g., Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 9.6]. Counsel should consult those local rules.

[3] Time for Application

A preliminary injunction may be granted at any time before judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 527(a)]. Thus, it is not necessary that an application for a preliminary injunction be made at the time the complaint is filed [McDonald v. Superior Court (1937) 18 Cal. App. 2d 652, 655-656, 64 P.2d 738] . Similarly, the fact that a court has issued a previous temporary restraining order that was void does not preclude the court from thereafter granting a preliminary injunction [McDonald v. Superior Court (1937) 18 Cal. App. 2d 652, 656, 64 P.2d 738] . An injunction may not be allowed after the defendant has answered, however, unless it is on notice or on an order to show cause [Code Civ. Proc. § 528]. In such a case, the defendant may be restrained until the decision of the court or judge granting or refusing the injunction [Code Civ. Proc. § 528].

[4] Verified Complaint or Affidavits Required

A preliminary injunction may be granted on a verified complaint or cross complaint or on affidavits or declarations under penalty of perjury [Code Civ. Proc. § 527(a), (h)(1); see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5; Gray v. Superior Court (2005) 125 Cal. App. 4th 629, 640-641, 23 Cal. Rptr. 3d 50 (no competent evidence supported injunction when criminal complaint signed under penalty of perjury by Chief Deputy District Attorney, but no indication attorney had personal knowledge of facts alleged); cf. California State University, Hayward v. National Collegiate Athletic Assn. (1975) 47 Cal. App. 3d 533, 545, 121 Cal. Rptr. 85 (under Code Civ. Proc. § 446 complaint filed by officer of state in official capacity did not have to be verified to be considered in support of preliminary injunction); see also §§ 303.130, 303.133 (forms)]. The complaint, affidavits, or declarations must show, by admissible evidence, that sufficient grounds exist for issuing the preliminary injunction [Code Civ. Proc. § 527(a)]. Thus, a preliminary injunction may issue on a satisfactory showing of sufficient facts under oath. Criminal sanctions for perjury are available to ensure that injunction applications are substantially supported by a truthful factual representation and made in good faith [Ancora-Citronelle Corp. v. Green (1974) 41 Cal. App. 3d 146, 148, 115 Cal. Rptr. 879] . Moreover, the requirement that good cause, under oath, must be shown in support of a preliminary injunction is jurisdictional. Thus, a court has no power to act unless the procedural requisites are met [Ancora-Citronelle Corp. v. Green (1974) 41 Cal. App. 3d 146, 148, 115 Cal. Rptr. 879] .

The allegations of the affidavits, declarations, or complaint must be factual. Conclusionary averments are insufficient to support issuing an injunction [Levy v. City of Santa Monica (2004) 114 Cal. App. 4th 1252, 1262, 8 Cal. Rptr. 3d 507 (declarations relying on conclusory statements, hearsay, and speculation insufficient)]. Averments that are conclusions of law are not competent testimony even if they may stand as a matter of pleading [E. H. Renzel Co. v. Warehousemen's Union (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 369, 370-371, 106 P.2d 1 ; Finnie v. Town of Tiburon (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 1, 15, 244 Cal. Rptr. 581 ; see Leach v. City of San Marcos (1989) 213 Cal. App. 3d 648, 661, 261 Cal. Rptr. 805] .

A petition for an injunction to limit picketing, restrain real property encroachments, or protect easements must depict by drawings, plot plans, photographs, or other appropriate means, or must describe in detail the premises involved, including, if applicable, the length and width of the frontage on a street or alley, the width of sidewalks, and the number, size, and location of entrances [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1161].

[5] Service of Complaint and Affidavits After Issuance of Temporary Restraining Order

Within five days from the date the temporary restraining order (TRO) is issued or two days before the hearing, whichever is earlier, a party who obtained a TRO must serve on the opposing party a copy of the complaint if not previously served, the order to show cause stating the date, time, and place of the hearing, any affidavits, and the memorandum of points and authorities in support of the application. At the time of the hearing, the party who obtained the TRO must be ready to proceed. The court must dissolve the TRO if the applicant fails to satisfy either of these requirements [Code Civ. Proc. § 527(d)(2), (3)]. These documents must be served two days before the actual hearing, not two days before the original date set for the hearing [McDonald v. Superior Court (1937) 18 Cal. App. 2d 652, 657, 64 P.2d 738 (decided under former Code Civ. Proc. § 527(a); now see Code Civ. Proc. § 527(d)(2) (service must be within five days from date of TRO or two days before hearing, whichever is earlier)].

[6] Service of Affidavits by Defendant in Response to Order to Show Cause

A defendant may, in response to an order to show cause, present affidavits or declarations "relating to the granting of the preliminary injunction" [Code Civ. Proc. § 527(e); see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5; see also § 303.134]. Thus, an application for a preliminary injunction may be resisted solely by affidavits or declarations, and there is no need that the defendant also file a verified answer in addition to the affidavits or declarations [Schwartz v. Arata (1920) 45 Cal. App. 596, 602-603, 188 P. 313] .

[7] Continuances Allowed Defendant

Before a preliminary injunction may be granted, the responding party is entitled to one continuance for a reasonable period of not less than 15 days, or any shorter period requested by the responding party, to enable him or her to meet the application for the preliminary injunction [Code Civ. Proc. § 527(d)(4); Cohen v. Herbert (1960) 186 Cal. App. 2d 488, 494, 8 Cal. Rptr. 922 (decided under former Code Civ. Proc. § 527(a))]. Although the statutory language may refer only to a continuance after a TRO has been granted, it clearly indicates that the responding party must have ample time to enable him or her to meet the application [Cohen v. Herbert (1960) 186 Cal. App. 2d 488, 494-495, 8 Cal. Rptr. 922] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Prompt Discovery, Continuance Request. As soon as a responding party is served with an application for a preliminary injunction, that responding party should consider initiating discovery and requesting the continuance to provide adequate time for such discovery before preparing the opposition papers. Expedited discovery may be necessary.

[8] Continuances Allowed Plaintiff

No provision exists for an applicant for an injunction to obtain a continuance. When the time for the hearing comes up after an applicant has obtained a TRO, the applicant must be ready to proceed or the court will dissolve the TRO [Code Civ. Proc. § 527(d)(3)]. If the responding party serves affidavits on the applicant in response to the order to show cause at least two days before the hearing, the applicant is not entitled to a continuance [Code Civ. Proc. § 527(e); see [6], above]. Applying the converse, if a responding party does not file the affidavits two days before the hearing, the applicant is entitled to a continuance [City of Los Angeles v. Superior Court (1925) 196 Cal. 445, 450-451, 238 P. 670] .

[9] Waiver of Responding Party's Rights

The responding party may waive the procedural requirements set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 527 [West Coast Constr.

Co. v. Oceano Sanitary Dist. (1971) 17 Cal. App. 3d 693, 699, 95 Cal. Rptr. 169] .

ILLUSTRATION:

Defendant Waives Right. Plaintiff brings an action for a TRO requiring defendant to refrain from spending a specified fund in a specified manner. Four appearances and four continuances later, the hearing on whether to issue a preliminary injunction is held with both parties participating. At the hearing, defendant files a counter-declaration asserting that the order to show cause dated December 8 was made returnable on December 24, 16 days later. Will defendant succeed in claiming that the order to show cause violates the 15-day limit of former Code Civ. Proc. § 527(a)? No. Defendant did not object to the continuances and participated voluntarily in the hearing. The procedural requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 527 are primarily for the benefit of the defendant and may be waived [West Coast Constr. Co. v. Oceano Sanitary Dist. (1971) 17 Cal. App. 3d 693, 699, 95 Cal. Rptr. 169] .

[10] Dissolution of Temporary Restraining Order

When the application for a preliminary injunction comes up for hearing [see [5], above], the court must dissolve the TRO if the applicant is not ready to proceed or has failed to serve a copy of the complaint, affidavits or declarations, and supporting memorandum of points and authorities [Code Civ. Proc. § 527(d)(2), (3)]. However, if the applicant has failed to file the memorandum of points and authorities two days before the hearing and the responding party demands an immediate hearing without the memorandum being on file, the responding party waives any objection that the memorandum was not on file [Remillard Brick Co. v. Dandini (1941) 47 Cal. App. 2d 63, 67, 117 P.2d 432 (decided under former Code Civ. Proc. § 527(d); now see Code Civ. Proc. § 527(d)(2), (3))].

[11] Hearing

On the day on which the order to show cause is made returnable, the hearing takes precedence over all other matters on the calendar except older matters of the same character and matters to which special precedence may be given by law [Code Civ. Proc. § 527(e); for further discussion of special precedence by statute, see Ch. 425, Pretrial Proceedings].

In the absence of a general demurrer in response to an order to show cause for a preliminary injunction [see discussion at § 303.43[5]], the question to be decided at the hearing is whether the responding party should be restrained pendente lite from exercising rights claimed by him or her [State Comp. Ins. Fund v. Maloney (1953) 121 Cal. App. 2d 33, 43, 262 P.2d 662 ; Trickey v. City of Long Beach (1951) 101 Cal. App. 2d 871, 878, 226 P.2d 694] .

D. Preliminary Injunction

26-303 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 303.43

§ 303.43 Determination by Court

[1] Discretion of Trial Court

The grant or denial of a preliminary injunction rests in the trial court's sound discretion, and its order may not be interfered with on appeal except for an abuse of discretion [IT Corp. v. County of Imperial (1983) 35 Cal. 3d 63, 69, 196 Cal. Rptr. 715, 672 P.2d 121 ; ReadyLink Healthcare v. Cotton (2005) 126 Cal. App. 4th 1006, 1016, 24 Cal. Rptr. 3d 720 ; see Hunt v. Superior Court (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 984, 999, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 236, 987 P.2d 705] .

A proper exercise of discretion requires the court to evaluate the two factors that must be considered in deciding whether to grant a preliminary injunction (discussed under [2], below) [see Hunt v. Superior Court (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 984, 999, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 236, 987 P.2d 705 ; King v. Meese (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 1217, 1226, 240 Cal. Rptr. 829, 743 P.2d 889 ; see also Cinquegrani v. Department of Motor Vehicles (2008) 163 Cal. App. 4th 741, 750, 77 Cal. Rptr. 3d 816 ; 14859 Moorpark Homeowner's Assn. v. VRT Corp. (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 1396, 1402, 74 Cal. Rptr. 2d 712 ; Shoemaker v. County of Los Angeles (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 618, 624-625, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 774] . A trial court abuses its discretion if it exceeds the bounds of reason or contravenes uncontradicted evidence in making its decision [Pro-Family Advocates v. Gomez (1996) 46 Cal. App. 4th 1674, 1680, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 600 ; 14859 Moorpark Homeowner's Assn. v. VRT Corp. (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 1396, 1402, 74 Cal. Rptr. 2d 712 ; Shoemaker v. County of Los Angeles (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 618, 624, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 774] .

[2] Consideration of Interim Harm and Determining Likelihood of Success

In deciding whether or not to grant a preliminary injunction, courts must evaluate two factors [Common Cause v. Board of Supervisors (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 432, 441-442, 261 Cal. Rptr. 574, 777 P.2d 610 ; Right Site Coalition v. Los Angeles Unified School Dist. (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 336, 341-342, 72 Cal. Rptr. 3d 678 ; Pleasant Hill Bayshore Disposal, Inc. v. Chip-It Recycling, Inc. (2001) 91 Cal. App. 4th 678, 695-696, 110 Cal. Rptr. 2d 708] :

- The likelihood that the applicant will prevail on the merits at trial.

- The balance of any interim harm to the applicant if the injunction is denied compared with the harm to the responding party if the injunction is issued.

Under the former factor, the court must evaluate the possibility of success on the merits [see Teachers Ins. & Annuity Assn. v. Furlotti (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 1487, 1493, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 455] . Success may be determined with respect to the ultimate merits of the action or the merits of a pending motion [Dodge, Warren & Peters Insurance Services, Inc. v. Riley (2003) 105 Cal. App. 4th 1414, 1418, 130 Cal. Rptr. 2d 385 (court affirms preliminary injunction based on probably of success on merits of pending discovery motion requiring preservation of electronic evidence)].

The latter factor involves consideration of such things as the inadequacy of other remedies, the degree of irreparable harm, and the necessity of preserving the status quo [14859 Moorpark Homeowner's Assn. v. VRTCorp. (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 1396, 1402, 74 Cal. Rptr. 2d 712 ; see O'Connell v. Superior Court (2006) 141 Cal. App. 4th 1452, 47 Cal. Rptr. 3d 147] . By balancing the respective equities, the trial court should conclude whether or not to grant an injunction that restrains defendant's rights pending the trial [Pro-Family Advocates v. Gomez (1996) 46 Cal. App. 4th 1674, 1681, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 600] . A trial court, however, may not grant a preliminary injunction regardless of the balance of harm unless there is some possibility that the plaintiff would ultimately prevail on the merits of the claim [Hunt v. Superior Court (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 984, 999, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 236, 987 P.2d 705] .

The burden is on the applicant to show all of the elements necessary to support issuance of a preliminary injunction; the applicant must affirmatively show that harm is likely to result if the injunction is not granted [Casmalia Resources, Ltd. v. County of Santa Barbara (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 827, 838, 240 Cal. Rptr. 903] . The more likely that the applicant will ultimately prevail, however, the less severe the harm that must be shown, especially when the injunction maintains, rather than alters, the status quo [King v. Meese (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 1217, 1227, 240 Cal. Rptr. 829, 743 P.2d 889 ; Right Site Coalition v. Los Angeles Unified School Dist. (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 336, 341-342, 72 Cal. Rptr. 3d 678 ; 14859 Moorpark Homeowner's Assn. v. VRT Corp. (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 1396, 1407, 74 Cal. Rptr. 2d 712] . Thus, if the party seeking the injunction can make a sufficiently strong showing of likelihood of success on the merits, the trial court has discretion to issue the injunction notwithstanding that party's inability to show that the balance of harms tips in his or her favor [Right Site Coalition v. Los Angeles Unified School Dist. (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 336, 342, 72 Cal. Rptr. 3d 678 ; 14859 Moorpark Homeowner's Assn. v. VRT Corp. (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 1396, 1407, 74 Cal. Rptr. 2d 712] .

In making its determination, the court must not determine the merits of the controversy or whether the applicant will prevail but only whether there is a likelihood the applicant will prevail [see Youngblood v. Wilcox (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 1368, 1372, 255 Cal. Rptr. 527 ; see also Pro-Family Advocates v. Gomez (1996) 46 Cal. App. 4th 1674, 1681 n.9, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 600 (granting preliminary injunction does not constitute an adjudication on merits of complaint)]. The court cannot undertake the final adjudication of a lawsuit in determining the propriety of a preliminary injunction, and granting or denying a preliminary injunction does not constitute adjudication of the ultimate rights in the controversy [Hunt v. Superior Court (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 984, 999, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 236, 987 P.2d 705] .

Although a court must consider both factors in making its decision [King v. Meese (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 1217, 1226, 240 Cal. Rptr. 829, 743 P.2d 889 ; Abrams v. St. John's Hospital & Health Center (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 628, 636, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 603] , it may deny a preliminary injunction if either of the two factors alone would support a ruling denying relief [Jessen v. Keystone Savings & Loan Assn. (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 454, 459, 191 Cal. Rptr. 104] . For example, a court should not issue an injunction if there is no possibility of success, even if issuing the injunction might prevent irreparable harm [see Scates v. Rydingsword (1991) 229 Cal. App. 3d 1085, 1096 ; see also Tosi v. County of Fresno (2008) 161 Cal. App. 4th 799, 803-804, 74 Cal. Rptr. 3d 727 ; 14859 Moorpark Homeowner's Assn. v. VRT Corp. (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 1396, 1408, 74 Cal. Rptr. 2d 712 ; Perez v. Hastings College (1996) 45 Cal. App. 4th 453, 456-457, 53 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1] , because there is no justification in delaying harm where, although irreparable, it is also inevitable [14859 Moorpark Homeowner's Assn. v. VRT Corp. (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 1396, 1408-1410, 74 Cal.

[b] Balancing of Equities if Public Entity Is Involved

If a preliminary injunction is sought by a governmental entity to enjoin alleged violation of an ordinance that specifically provides for injunctive relief, the balancing of equities proceeds somewhat differently. In that case, if the court determines a reasonable probability that the entity will prevail on the merits, a rebuttable presumption arises that the potential harm to the public outweighs the potential harm to the responding party. If the responding party shows that it would suffer grave or irreparable harm from the issuance of the preliminary injunction, the court must then examine the relative actual harms to the parties [IT Corp. v. County of Imperial (1983) 35 Cal. 3d 63, 72, 196 Cal. Rptr. 715, 672 P.2d 121 ; see DVD Copy Control Association Inc. v. Bunner (2004) 116 Cal. App. 4th 241, 250, 10 Cal. Rptr. 3d 185 (when plaintiff is not governmental entity and statute does not expressly provide otherwise, finding of interim harm is necessary)].

[3] Evaluation of Affidavits or Declarations

The trial court is the judge of the credibility of the affidavits or declarations filed in support of and in opposition to a preliminary injunction. In other words, the court must resolve all conflicts in the documents filed [Voeltz v. Bakery & Confectionery Workers International Union (1953) 40 Cal. 2d 382, 386, 254 P.2d 553 (overruled on other grounds in Smyrniotis v. Local Joint Executive Bd. (1966) 64 Cal. 2d 30, 40, 48 Cal. Rptr. 725, 409 P.2d 949)].

[4] Evaluation of Complaint

In general, a court will grant a preliminary injunction only under the following circumstances [Moreno Mut. Irr. Co. v. Beaumont Irr. Dist. (1949) 94 Cal. App. 2d 766, 778, 211 P.2d 928] :

- A complaint is on file [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1150(b)] stating a sufficient cause of action for injunctive relief of the same character as the preliminary injunction.

- The injunction is reasonably necessary to protect the legal rights of the moving party pending litigation.

The court will take undenied allegations in the complaint as true [Kold Kist v. Amalgamated Meat Cutters (1950) 99 Cal. App. 2d 191, 196, 221 P.2d 724] .

In an appropriate case, however, a court may grant a preliminary injunction based on a complaint that may be subject to a demurrer if any defects that appear in the complaint may be corrected by the filing of an amended complaint showing good grounds for granting it [Handyspot Co. v. Buegeleisen (1954) 128 Cal. App. 2d 191, 194, 274 P.2d 938 ; McPheeters v. McMahon (1933) 131 Cal. App. 418, 427, 21 P.2d 606] . Even when a complaint does not request injunctive relief, a court may issue a preliminary injunction on the basis of affidavits to maintain the status quo or to prevent irreparable injury during the pendency of the suit [Dennis v. Overholtzer (1957) 149 Cal. App. 2d 101, 104, 307 P.2d 1012] .

ILLUSTRATION:

Preliminary Injunction From Affidavits. Plaintiff brings an action for specific performance of a real estate sales contract and for declaratory relief. May the plaintiff obtain a preliminary injunction to maintain the status quo or prevent irreparable harm during the pendency of the lawsuit? Yes. The requirement that a complaint seeking injunctive relief be on file applies only when a preliminary injunction is sought on the basis of a complaint, not when it is sought on the basis of affidavits. A court's power to issue a preliminary injunction is not limited to injunctions based on complaints [Dennis v. Overholtzer (1957) 149 Cal. App. 2d 101, 104, 307 P.2d 1012] .

[5] Consideration of Demurrer to Complaint

A cause of action must exist before injunctive relief may be granted [Camp v. Board of Supervisors (1981) 123 Cal. App. 3d 334, 356, 176 Cal. Rptr. 620 ; Golden Gate S.T., Inc. v. San Francisco (1937) 21 Cal. App. 2d 582, 585, 69 P.2d 899] , and a court will sustain a demurrer to a complaint [see Form 303.135] that fails to state a cause of action [Golden Gate S.T., Inc. v. San Francisco (1937) 21 Cal. App. 2d 582, 586, 69 P.2d 899] . A court will also grant a demurrer to a complaint that contains only conclusionary allegations which are unsupported by facts [Davitt v. American Bakers' Union (1899) 124 Cal. 99, 101, 56 P. 775 ; see Willis v. Lauridson (1911) 161 Cal. 106, 108, 118 P. 530] . For a discussion of the requirement that a complaint allege facts for the issuance of an injunction, see § 303.42[4].

PRACTICE TIP:

One Judge for Demurrer, Injunction. Local rules in some courts (e.g., Los Angeles Superior Courts) prescribe that demurrers to a complaint or cross-complaint that are filed before the hearing of an OSC or a motion for preliminary injunction must be heard by the judge who will hear the preliminary injunction [Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 9.6].

NOTE: Cause of Action Not Stated. A court may deny a temporary restraining order or preliminary injunction on the ground of a failure to state a cause of action even if no demurrer has been filed. If an amended complaint stating a cause of action is filed before hearing the order to show cause or motion, or if it appears to the court that the complaint or cross-complaint can be amended to state a cause of action, the court may grant a preliminary injunction [see County of Tehama v. Sisson (1907) 152 Cal. 167, 178-179, 92 P. 64] .

[6] Effect of Denial of Allegations

Ordinarily, a preliminary injunction should not be granted when a verified answer filed in response explicitly and unequivocally denies the allegations of the complaint. Nevertheless, circumstances may exist in a case that justify the issuance of a preliminary injunction notwithstanding the absolute denial in the answer. When the allegations of the complaint make out a strong case for injunctive relief, the defendant cannot deprive the court of its power and discretion to issue the injunction merely by filing an answer and denials or an affidavit [Garner v. Journeyman Barbers', Hairdressers', Cosmetologists' and Proprietors' Int'l Union of America (1963) 223 Cal. App. 2d 101, 104, 35 Cal. Rptr. 693] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
D. Preliminary Injunction

26-303 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 303.44

§ 303.44 Preliminary Injunction and Anti-SLAPP Motion to Strike Compared

The fact that a preliminary injunction has been issued does not preclude the granting of, or have collateral estoppel or res judicata effect on, a subsequent anti-SLAPP suit [see Code Civ. Proc. § 425.16 (SLAPP stands for "Strategic Lawsuit Against Public Participation")], motion to strike. The issues involved in consideration of a preliminary injunction are different from those involved in an anti-SLAPP suit motion to strike [Lam v. Ngo (2001) 91 Cal. App. 4th 832, 836] . In deciding whether to grant preliminary injunction, the trial court not only assesses "the likelihood that the plaintiff will prevail at trial," but "the interim harm that the plaintiff will likely sustain if the injunction were denied" and must balance the respective equities, which decision is tested under an abuse of discretion standard. In passing on anti-SLAPP suit motions, the trial court determines whether the plaintiff has made a prima facie showing of facts which, if proved at trial, support a favorable judgment. A plaintiff's ability to obtain a preliminary injunction cannot be equated with a "probability" the plaintiff will prevail on the claim in a situation in which equities favored the grant of a preliminary injunction [Lam v. Ngo (2001) 91 Cal. App. 4th 832, 843 (preliminary injunction required protesters to remain certain distance from business establishment which had lost approximately 40 percent of its business since protest, vandalism, and harassment of customers began)].

The trial court has the authority to issue a preliminary injunction even after a notice of appeal is filed on a ruling of an anti-SLAPP motion [Novartis Vaccines & Diagnostics, Inc. v. Stop Huntingdon Animal Cruelty USA, Inc. (2006) 143 Cal. App. 4th 1284, 1302, 50 Cal. Rptr. 3d 27].

Note also that a petition for injunctive relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 527.6 is subject to a special motion to strike under the anti-SLAPP statute [Thomas (2005) 126 Cal. App. 4th 635, 646-661, 24 Cal. Rptr. 3d 619] . However, no motion to strike can be filed in response to the TRO procedure provided for in Code Civ. Proc. § 527.6 [Thomas v. Quintero (2005) 126 Cal. App. 4th 635, 652, 24 Cal. Rptr. 3d 619] .

There is an additional difference when multiple causes of action are involved. A single cause of action can sustain a preliminary injunction, but an anti-SLAPP suit motion involves examination of each of the causes of action attacked, because the purpose is to weed out meritless claims at an early stage [Lam v. Ngo (2001) 91 Cal. App. 4th 832, 844] .

ILLUSTRATION:

Preliminary Injunction Does Not Preclude Grant of Anti-SLAPP Motion to Strike. A city council member who owned a restaurant obtained a preliminary injunction against protesters who were harassing customers of the restaurant and putting posters on its walls and windows, limiting the conditions of the protest. The complaint alleged causes of action for intentional infliction of emotional distress, intentional interference with economic advantage, trespass, and nuisance. Only the protest organizer was a named defendant, but the declarations at both hearings indicated that the organizer had not engaged in or authorized anything other than peaceful protest. Should the motion to strike have been granted? In part, yes. The cause of action against the protesters as a group for nuisance might be meritorious, but the anti-SLAPP suit motion as it applied to the named defendant was granted. Plaintiffs showed that other, anonymous, protesters did engage in violent acts for which there was no First Amendment protection. Therefore the anit-SLAPP motion was denied to the extent it contemplated causes of action against Doe defendants based on violent acts. Plaintiff should substitute for current Doe defendants any specific individuals who were actually involved in the wrongful acts [Lam v. Ngo (2001) 91 Cal. App. 4th 832, 844, 852] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
D. Preliminary Injunction

26-303 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 303.45

§ 303.45 Issuance of Injunction

[1] When Issued

A preliminary injunction may be issued and served on any day, including judicial holidays [Code Civ. Proc. § 134(b)].

[2] Order Must Be Clear and Definite

A preliminary injunction must be definite enough to provide a standard of conduct for those whose activities are proscribed as well as a standard for a court to apply in determining whether an injunctive order has been violated. Thus, a court may not issue an injunction with terms so vague that people of common intelligence must necessarily guess at its meaning and differ as to its application [Pitchess v. Superior Court (1969) 2 Cal. App. 3d 644, 651, 83 Cal. Rptr. 35 ; ReadyLink Healthcare v. Cotton (2005) 126 Cal. App. 4th 1006, 1026, 24 Cal. Rptr. 3d 720 (injunction barring soliciting "anyone" associated with plaintiff was vague and overbroad); see also Korean Philadelphia Presbyterian Church v. California Presbytery (2000) 77 Cal. App. 4th 1069, 1085, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 275 (overbroad injunction also containing ambiguous language); San Diego Unified Port Dist. v. U.S. Citizens Patrol (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 964, 972 n.2, 74 Cal. Rptr. 2d 364 (vague injunctive provision involving First Amendment rights)].

When restrictions in the area of free expression are at issue, a preliminary injunction must be drawn with narrow specificity to prevent repression of First Amendment rights [In re Berry (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 137, 155, 65 Cal. Rptr. 273, 436 P.2d 273 ; Evans v. Evans (2008) 162 Cal. App. 4th 1157, 1171-1173, 76 Cal. Rptr. 3d 859 (order prohibiting party from contacting sheriff's department about other party was overbroad); Chico Feminist Women's Health Center v. Scully (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 230, 250, 256 Cal. Rptr. 194 ; see Westside Sane/Freeze v. Ernest W. Hahn, Inc. (1990) 224 Cal. App. 3d 546, 558-560, 274 Cal. Rptr. 51 ; see also Balboa Island Village Inn, Inc. v. Lemen (2007) 40 Cal. 4th 1141, 1159-1161, 57 Cal. Rptr. 3d 320, 156 P.3d 339 (permanent injunction that limits speech must be narrowly drawn); San Diego Unified Port Dist. v. U.S. Citizens Patrol (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 964, 971-973, 74 Cal. Rptr. 2d 364 (injunction went much further than necessary to provide relief sought by district)].

[3] Granting of Permanent Injunction Prohibited

A court may not grant a permanent injunction based on the evidence produced at the hearing on a preliminary injunction unless [Paul v. Allied Dairymen, Inc. (1962) 209 Cal. App. 2d 112, 122, 25 Cal. Rptr. 595 ; Anderson v. Joseph (1956) 146 Cal. App. 2d 450, 454, 303 P.2d 1053] :

- The parties stipulate.
- The applicant submits the cause of action on the merits and makes a satisfactory showing.
- The responding party defaults in pleading.

Any order purporting to grant a permanent injunction without satisfying one of the exceptions is void [Paul v. Allied Dairymen, Inc. (1962) 209 Cal. App. 2d 112, 122, 25 Cal. Rptr. 595 ; Anderson v. Joseph (1956) 146 Cal. App. 2d 450, 454, 303 P.2d 1053] .

[4] Statement of Decision Not Required

A court is not required to issue a statement of decision or explanation when it makes its decision concerning a preliminary injunction [Metro Traffic Control, Inc. v. Shadow Traffic Network (1994) 22 Cal. App. 4th 853, 858, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 573 ; City of Los Altos v. Barnes (1992) 3 Cal. App. 4th 1193, 1198, 5 Cal. Rptr. 2d 77] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Decision Statement Aids Appeal. One court has criticized the lack of a statement of decision requirement in a case in which oral testimony was permitted, stating that without it appellate courts have difficulty reviewing the sufficiency of the evidence that was before the trial court. Thus, the better practice is to request a statement of decision [People v. Landlords Professional Services, Inc. (1986) 178 Cal. App. 3d 68, 70-72, 223 Cal. Rptr. 483] .

Chapter 303 INJUNCTIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
D. Preliminary Injunction

26-303 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 303.46

§ 303.46 Undertaking

[1] When Required

On granting an injunction, the court or judge must require an undertaking on the applicant's part to the effect that the applicant will pay the party enjoined any damages, not exceeding an amount to be specified, that may be sustained by reason of the injunction if the court finally decides that the applicant was not entitled to the injunction [Code Civ. Proc. § 529(a); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1150(f)].

This requirement does not apply to any of the following:

- Either spouse against the other in proceedings for legal separation or dissolution of marriage [Code Civ. Proc. § 529(b)(1)].
- The applicant for an order described in Fam. Code § 240 [Code Civ. Proc. § 529(b)(2)].
- Public entities and officers [Code Civ. Proc. § 529(b)(3); see Code Civ. Proc. § 995.220].

The undertaking is mandatory, and a preliminary injunction does not become operative until it is furnished [Casitas Inv. Co. v. Charles L. Harney, Inc. (1962) 203 Cal. App. 2d 811, 816, 21 Cal. Rptr. 821 ; Griffin v. Lima (1954) 124 Cal. App. 2d 697, 699, 269 P.2d 191] . An order granting a preliminary injunction that does not provide for an undertaking is inoperative and of no effect [Federal Automotive Services v. Lane Buick Co. (1962) 204 Cal. App. 2d 689, 695, 22 Cal. Rptr. 603] or a nullity [Oksner v. Superior Court (1964) 229 Cal. App. 2d 672, 687, 40 Cal. Rptr. 621] . Actions on undertakings are governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 996.410 et seq. [see § 303.48; see generally Ch. 538, Suretyship, Bonds, and Undertakings]. However, a bond may be waived or forfeited by the person to be enjoined [Smith v. Adventist Health System/West (2010) 182 Cal. App. 4th 729, 740-744, 106 Cal. Rptr. 3d 318] .

PRACTICE TIPS:

Applying for Undertaking. A client should be fully advised about the necessity for an undertaking when the injunction is first discussed with the client. If a bond will be sought from a bonding company, the application should be completed and a financial statement obtained from the client who must guarantee the bond. The implication of the guarantee and the premium also should be fully discussed with the client. If possible, line up the bond before filing the application for preliminary injunction.

Amount of Bond. The amount of the bond is fixed on the basis of the amount of damage the party restrained will probably sustain by reason of an injunction if the court finally decides the applicant was not entitled to that injunction. Counsel for both sides should be prepared to discuss the amount of the bond, and should assist the court by presenting facts that bear on the amount of the probable damage.

[2] Injunction Enjoining Construction Project

In all actions in which the court has granted a plaintiff's application for a preliminary injunction to enjoin a construction project that has received all legally required licenses and permits, the defendant may apply for an undertaking as security for costs and damages incurred as a result of the delay. The defendant must request the order by noticed motion. The motion must be made on the grounds that there is no reasonable possibility that the plaintiff will obtain a judgment against the moving defendant and that the plaintiff will not suffer undue economic hardship by filing the undertaking [Code Civ. Proc. § 529.1(a)].

If, after a hearing, the court determines that the grounds for the motion have been established, it must order the plaintiff to file the undertaking in an amount specified in the court's order as security for costs and damages of the defendant. The plaintiff's liability may not exceed $500,000 [Code Civ. Proc. § 529.1(b)].

Under this provision a construction project includes, but is not restricted to, the construction, surveying, design, specifications, alteration, repair, improvement, maintenance, removal, or demolition of any building, highway, road, parking facility, bridge, railroad, airport, pier or dock, excavation or other structure, development, or other improvement of real or personal property [Code Civ. Proc. § 529.1(c)].

The undertaking must be in writing [see Code Civ. Proc. § 995.320] and is not required of a public entity [see Code Civ. Proc. § 995.220].

[3] Injunction Enjoining Housing Project

When a plaintiff in a civil action seeks an injunction against construction of certain housing projects, the defendant may apply by noticed motion for an undertaking as security and costs for damages for harm caused by delay in carrying out the project. The housing project must be a development project, as defined by Gov. Code § 65928, and must meet or exceed the requirements for low- or moderate-income housing as set forth in Gov. Code § 65915. The defendant may apply for the undertaking if the application for injunction has the effect of preventing or delaying the project from being carried out [see Code Civ. Proc. § 529.2(a); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 529.2(c) (liability of developer to plaintiff for cost of obtaining undertaking for bad faith change in development plan)].

The motion must be made on both of the following grounds [Code Civ. Proc. § 529.2(a)]:

- The action was brought in bad faith, vexatiously, for the purpose of delay, or to thwart the low- or moderate-income nature of the housing development project.

- The plaintiff will not suffer undue economic hardship by filing the undertaking.

If the court, after hearing, determines that the grounds for the motion have been established, it will order the plaintiff to file the undertaking in an amount specified in the court's order as security for costs and damages of the defendant. The plaintiff's liability may not exceed $500,000 [Code Civ. Proc. § 529.2(b)].

The undertaking must be in writing [see Code Civ. Proc. § 995.320] and may not be required of a public entity [see Code Civ. Proc. § 995.220].

[4] Poor or Indigent Movant

The undertaking required by Code Civ. Proc. § 529(a) is a form of security intended to protect an adversary party from potential injury [Conover v. Hall (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 842, 851, 114 Cal. Rptr. 642, 523 P.2d 682] . California courts retain common law authority to waive the requirement of an undertaking in cases involving poor or indigent litigants [Conover v. Hall (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 842, 847, 850-852, 114 Cal. Rptr. 642, 523 P.2d 682] .

26-303 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 303.47

§ 303.47 Dissolution of Injunction for Deficient Undertaking

If a preliminary injunction is issued without the required undertaking, the person enjoined may have it dissolved [Neumann v. Moretti (1905) 146 Cal. 31, 32-33, 79 P. 512 ; Casitas Inv. Co. v. Charles L. Harney, Inc. (1962) 203 Cal. App. 2d 811, 816, 21 Cal. Rptr. 821] . In addition, within five days after service of the injunction, the person enjoined may object to the undertaking, and, if the court determines that the undertaking is insufficient and a sufficient one is not filed within the time required, the order granting the injunction must be dissolved [Code Civ. Proc. § 529(a); see Rees v. Gardner (1961) 197 Cal. App. 2d 469, 471, 17 Cal. Rptr. 93] .

In determining the sufficiency of an undertaking, a court must consider the harmful effect on the beneficiary if the applicant is not entitled to the injunction. This determination should include the amount of attorney's fees necessary for the beneficiary to prosecute an appeal of the injunction or to defend at trial the causes of action on which the injunction was granted [ABBA Rubber Co. v. Seaquist (1991) 235 Cal. App. 3d 1, 14-16, 286 Cal. Rptr. 518] .

A surety's liability on an injunction undertaking may be enforced on a motion made in court without the necessity of an independent action [Code Civ. Proc. § 996.440(a)]. The motion may not be made until after entry of the final judgment in the action or proceeding in which the undertaking is given and time for appeal has expired. If an appeal is taken, the motion must be made after the appeal is finally determined. In either case, the motion may not be made more than one year after the later of these dates [Code Civ. Proc. § 996.440(b)]. For forms of notice of motion and declaration for enforcing an undertaking on an injunction, and an order therefor, see §§ 303.140, 303.141. For discussion of actions against sureties generally, see Ch. 538, Suretyship, Bonds, and Undertakings, § 538.40 et seq.

ILLUSTRATION:

Motion to Recover Denied. Plaintiff obtains a temporary restraining order and makes a deposit in lieu of bond to satisfy the undertaking requirement. However, plaintiff's application for a preliminary injunction is denied. Defendants then present a motion to recover their attorneys' fees and damages in defending against the temporary restraining order. Will defendants prevail? No. The motion to recover on the undertaking may not be made until entry of the final judgment and time for appeal has expired, or, if appeal is taken, until the appeal is finally determined [Satinover v. Dean (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 1298, 1300-1301, 249 Cal. Rptr. 277] .

Within one day after an application for a preliminary injunction is granted, or other time ordered, a proposed order must be presented to the judge for signature, together with an undertaking in the amount ordered [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1150(f)]. Unless otherwise ordered, any restraining order previously granted will remain in effect during the time allowed for presentation for signature of the order of injunction and undertaking. If the proposed order and the undertaking required are not presented within the time allowed, the temporary restraining order may be vacated without notice All bonds and undertakings must comply with *Cal. PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
E. Permanent Injunction

26-303 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 303.60

§ 303.60 Statutory Grounds for Issuance of Permanent Injunction

The Civil Code lists the following grounds for granting a final injunction to prevent the breach of an obligation existing in the applicant's favor:

- When pecuniary compensation would not afford adequate relief [Civ. Code § 3422(1)];
- When it would be extremely difficult to ascertain the amount of compensation that would afford adequate relief [Civ. Code § 3422(2)];
- When the restraint is necessary to prevent a multiplicity of judicial proceedings [Civ. Code § 3422(3)]; or
- When the obligation arises from a trust [Civ. Code § 3422(4)].

These grounds are the same as four of the grounds listed for the granting of a preliminary injunction [see Code Civ. Proc. § 526(a)(4)-(7); see also § 303.40]. The principles and examples underlying the factors of inadequate remedy at law and multiplicity of suits are essentially the same with regard to preliminary and permanent injunctions [see § 303.40[4] and [6]]. However, because a permanent injunction is a judgment, the trial court's discretion is not as broad as when deciding whether to issue a preliminary injunction; like any judgment, a permanent injunction must be sufficiently supported by the evidence of record [DVD Copy Control Assn., Inc. v. Kaleidescape, Inc. (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 697, 721, 97 Cal. Rptr. 3d 856].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
E. Permanent Injunction

26-303 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 303.61

§ 303.61 Procedure for Obtaining Permanent Injunctions

[1] In General

A final or permanent injunction [see Civ. Code 3420, 3422] is obtained by procuring a judgment that grants the desired relief, just as in any other civil action [see San Diego Water Co. v. Pacific Coast S.S. Co. (1894) 101 Cal. 216, 220, 35 P. 651 ; Chico Feminist Women's Health Center v. Scully (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 230, 253, 256 Cal. Rptr. 194] . To qualify for a permanent injunction, the plaintiff must prove (1) the elements of a cause of action involving the wrongful act sought to be enjoined, and (2) the grounds for equitable relief [San Diego Unified Port. Dist. v. Gallagher (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 501, 503, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 30 (district failed to establish its entitlement to equitable relief by failing to show it is likely to prevail on merits)].

Permanent injunctive relief may be granted without trial if there is stipulation or other satisfactory showing that warrants submitting cause on the merits [Camp v. Board of Supervisors (1981) 123 Cal. App. 3d 334, 357-358, 176 Cal. Rptr. 620 ; see Hunt v. Superior Court (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 984, 999 n.8, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 236, 987 P.2d 705 (dicta)]. For discussion of when a court may grant a permanent injunction based on evidence produced at a hearing on a preliminary injunction, see § 303.45[3]].

For discussion and forms relating to obtaining and entering judgments in general, see Ch. 318, Judgments, § 318.40 et seq. For a sample form of judgment awarding a permanent injunction against interference with economic relations, see Ch. 565, Unfair Competition, § 565.130 et seq.

[2] Order to Show Cause Not Necessary

When an injunction is a part of the final judgment that adjudicates all of the rights of the parties, a notice or an order to show cause like those required before the issuance of a preliminary injunction is not necessary [Knox v. Wolfe (1946) 73 Cal. App. 2d 494, 506, 167 P.2d 3] .

[3] Issues to Be Determined

Issues decided on a hearing of an order to show cause for a preliminary injunction may be reexamined at the final hearing [Hartwick v. Superior Court (1959) 174 Cal. App. 2d 809, 811, 345 P.2d 304 ; Trickey v. City of Long Beach (1951) 101 Cal. App. 2d 871, 878, 226 P.2d 694] . Those issues must be determined on the basis of the situation as it exists at the time of the trial, not at the time of bringing the action [Ellis v. American Federation of Labor (1941) 48 Cal. App. 2d 440, 445, 120 P.2d 79 ; Collins v. Sargent (1928) 89 Cal. App. 107, 114, 264 P. 776] .

[4] Effect of Final Order on Preliminary Order

At the time a judgment on the permanent injunction is made either granting or denying the permanent injunction, the preliminary injunction automatically ends [City of Oakland v. Superior Court (1982) 136 Cal. App. 3d 565, 569, 186 Cal. Rptr. 326 (no necessity for formal motion to dissolve preliminary); Shahen v. Superior Court (1941) 46 Cal. App. 2d 187, 188, 115 P.2d 516] .

26-303 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 303.70

§ 303.70 Courses of Action Available to Responding Party When Applicant Seeks Injunctive Relief

The following courses of action are available to oppose a preliminary injunction:

- If a temporary restraining order (TRO) has been granted, prepare and serve a memorandum of points and authorities and declarations to oppose the pending application for a preliminary injunction.

- If the TRO was issued on the basis of a verified complaint, demur to or answer the complaint.

- If a TRO was not sought or was not issued, prepare and serve a memorandum of points and authorities and declarations to oppose the pending application for a preliminary injunction.

- Consider making a motion for change of venue if applicant has brought the action in the wrong county.

- Consider petitioning for removal of the action to federal court.

- If a preliminary injunction has already issued,

  - Seek to have the preliminary injunction modified or dissolved [see § 303.80].

  - Appeal and seek to have the order stayed pending the outcome of the appeal [see § 303.81].

  - Seek a writ of prohibition [see § 303.87].

  - Decide not to comply with the preliminary injunction with the attendant risk of contempt [see § 303.92].

- If it is later determined either by a judgment in enjoined party's favor or by appeal that the preliminary injunction should not have been issued, move for damages from the sureties who are liable under the injunction bond [see § 303.82].

PRACTICE TIP:

Consider Proposed Injunction's Overbreadth. Counsel representing a responding party should evaluate the possible overbreadth of the proposed preliminary injunction. Consider a more limited alternative order that may be acceptable to the responding party.

F. Defenses

26-303 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 303.71

§ 303.71 Affirmative Defenses to Injunctive Relief

[1] Changed Circumstances or Completed Acts

Absent extraordinary circumstances, injunctive relief may not be granted when events have rendered the relief unnecessary or ineffectual [Paul v. Milk Depots, Inc. (1964) 62 Cal. 2d 129, 133, 41 Cal. Rptr. 468, 396 P.2d 924] . Thus, an injunction will not be granted when, at the time of the hearing, conditions have so changed that no unlawful act is threatened [Donald v. Cafe Royale, Inc. (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 168, 184, 266 Cal. Rptr. 804 ; Engle v. City of Oroville (1965) 238 Cal. App. 2d 266, 270, 47 Cal. Rptr. 630 ; see O'Toole v. Superior Court (2006) 140 Cal. App. 4th 488, 513, 44 Cal. Rptr. 3d 531 ; Cisneros v. U.D. Registry, Inc. (1995) 39 Cal. App. 4th 548, 574, 46 Cal. Rptr. 2d 233 (denial of injunction justified based on changed circumstances rendering injunctive relief moot or unnecessary); accord Scripps Health v. Marin (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 324, 332, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 86] . In addition, injunctive relief has no application to wrongs that have been completed, or that have voluntarily ceased, and will be denied absent a showing that past violations will probably recur [Cisneros v. U. D. Registry, Inc. (1995) 39 Cal. App. 4th 548, 574, 46 Cal. Rptr. 2d 233 ; Phipps v. Saddleback Valley Unified School Dist. (1988) 204 Cal. App. 3d 1110, 1117, 251 Cal. Rptr. 720 ; Gold v. Los Angeles Democratic League (1975) 49 Cal. App. 3d 365, 372, 122 Cal. Rptr. 732 ; see Smith v. Board of Supervisors (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 862, 868, 265 Cal. Rptr. 466 (neither appellate court nor trial court may issue injunction or writ of mandamus to prevent what has taken place)]. To authorize injunctive relief, it must appear with reasonable certainty that the wrongful acts will be continued or repeated [Sahlolbei v. Providence Healthcare, Inc. (2003) 112 Cal. App. 4th 1137, 1156-1157, 5 Cal. Rptr. 3d 598 (termination of physician without pre-termination hearing was continuing harm that could be prevented by reinstating him and ordering hearing); Scripps Health v. Marin (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 324, 332-333, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 86] . The evaluation of the probability that the acts complained of will recur lies in the trial court's discretion [City of Vernon v. Central Basin Mun. Water Dist. (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 508, 517-518, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 650 (denial of injunction upheld)]. For example, an injunction was not issued in the following cases:

- To prohibit a corporation that sold information regarding residential renters to landlords from reporting information that only possibly related to a consumer ("possibles") when the court had granted summary adjudication, providing in part that defendants could not make a report about a consumer unless defendants had positively identified that consumer as the party involved, and the evidence at trial showed that since the order was made the corporation ceased reporting or discussing possibles [Cisneros v. U.D. Registry, Inc. (1995) 39 Cal. App. 4th 548, 573-574, 46 Cal. Rptr. 2d 233] .

- To prevent the construction of a radio tower already erected [McManus v. KPAL Broadcasting Corp. (1960) 182 Cal. App. 2d 558, 563, 6 Cal. Rptr. 441] .

- To prohibit the construction of a freeway already completed [Griffith v. Department of Public Works (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 848, 853, 345 P.2d 469] .

- To compel contractors and subdividers to remove a completed and accepted public street built according to government-approved plans and specifications [Anderson v. Fay Improvement Co. (1955) 134 Cal. App. 2d 738, 743, 286 P.2d 513] .

- To prevent the erection of a building already built [Gardner v. Stroever (1889) 81 Cal. 148, 150, 22 P. 483] .

[2] Doctrine of Balancing of Conveniences

The doctrine of balancing of conveniences may be invoked as a defense when the applicant seeks an injunction to vindicate a technical and unsubstantial right that would impose an unusual hardship on the public or the responding party [Fairrington v. Dyke Water Co. (1958) 50 Cal. 2d 198, 200, 323 P.2d 1001] . Under the doctrine, a court may deny injunctive relief and relegate the applicant to his or her remedy at law if the benefit to the applicant would be slight compared to the injury caused the responding party [Wright v. Best (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 368, 386, 121 P.2d 702] . Proof of irreparable injury by the responding party is a necessary element of the defense [Fairrington v. Dyke Water Co. (1958) 50 Cal. 2d 198, 200, 323 P.2d 1001] . The doctrine is often applied in encroachment cases when one party has built a wall or other structure that is only partly on the land of his or her neighbor [see Baglione v. Leue (1958) 160 Cal. App. 2d 731, 734, 325 P.2d 471] .

When a court of equity balances conveniences to determine that an injunction, otherwise warranted, should be withheld, its action approaches an exercise of the right of eminent domain in favor of a private person. Thus, proof of irreparable injury by the defendant is a necessary element of a defense based on a balancing of conveniences [Fairrington v. Dyke Water Co. (1958) 50 Cal. 2d 198, 200, 323 P.2d 1001] .

For additional discussion of the doctrine in relationship to adjoining land cases and a form of affirmative defense based on it, see Ch. 11, Adjoining Landowners .

[3] First Amendment Rights Infringed

An injunction may not be granted when the restraint interferes with freedom of speech [Rosicrucian Fellow. v. Rosicrucian Fellow Non-Sectarian Ch. (1952) 39 Cal. 2d 121, 145, 245 P.2d 481 ; see, e.g., Evans v. Evans (2008) 162 Cal. App. 4th 1157, 1166-1167, 76 Cal. Rptr. 3d 859 (order prohibiting party from publishing false statements is unconstitutional prior restraint); Saline v. Commonwealth Energy Corporation (2002) 100 Cal. App. 4th 909, 915-916, 122 Cal. Rptr. 2d 813 (injunction prohibiting corporate director from disclosing contents of corporate records was unlawful prior restraint absent allegations director would commit tort against corporation); San Diego Unified Port Dist. v. U.S. Citizens Patrol (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 964, 970-971, 74 Cal. Rptr. 2d 364 (right to free speech protected from censorship by hostile reaction, sometimes referred to as "heckler's veto"; preliminary injunction that subjected defendant's right to engage in protected speech to censorship of group that disagreed with its content constituted impermissible "heckler's veto" to defendant's protected speech)]. This is especially true when the injunction involves religious controversies [Rosicrucian Fellow. v. Rosicrucian Fellow Non-Sectarian Ch. (1952) 39 Cal. 2d 121, 145, 245 P.2d 481 ; cf. Korean Philadelphia Presbyterian Church v. California Presbytery (2000) 77 Cal. App. 4th 1069, 1081, 1087-1089, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 275 (discussing distinction between internal church disputes involving question of ownership or control of church property, which civil courts may decide, and internal church disputes involving religious doctrine and practice, which civil courts may not adjudicate)]. In a public nuisance case, the injunction may not burden the constitutional right of association more than is necessary to serve the significant governmental issue at stake [People ex rel. Gallo v. Acuna (1997) 14 Cal. 4th 1090, 1115, 1120-1122, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 277, 929 P.2d 596 ; People ex rel. Reisig v. Acuna (2010) 182 Cal. App. 4th 866, 885-886, 106 Cal. Rptr. 3d 560 ; People v. Englebrecht (2001) 88 Cal. App. 4th 1236, 1262, 106 Cal. Rptr. 2d 738 (injunction issued in gang conduct abatement proceeding did not impermissibly burden associational rights)].

Not every injunction that impinges on the right of free expression constitutes an invalid prior restraint [Balboa Island Village Inn, Inc. v. Lemen (2007) 40 Cal. 4th 1141, 1159-1161, 57 Cal. Rptr. 3d 320, 156 P.3d 339 (court may issue permanent injunction enjoining defamation); Aguilar v. Avis Rent-A-Car System, Inc. (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 121, 140, 143, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 132, 980 P.2d 846 ; see also Brekke v. Wills (2005) 125 Cal. App. 4th 1400, 1409, 23 Cal. Rptr. 3d 609 (defendant's speech not protected when between purely private parties, about purely private parties, on matters of purely private interest)]. Once a court has found that a specific pattern of speech is unlawful, it may be enjoined without violating the prohibition against prior restraint [Balboa Island Village Inn, Inc. v. Lemen (2007) 40 Cal. 4th 1141, 1159-1161, 57 Cal. Rptr. 3d 320, 156 P.3d 339 (court may issue permanent injunction enjoining defamation); Aguilar v. Avis Rent-A-Car System, Inc. (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 121, 140, 143, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 132, 980 P.2d 846] . The following are examples of speech that could be enjoined:

- Posting a computer program that decrypted movies stored on DVDs and enabled users to copy and distribute those movies may be enjoined as a violation of the trade secret laws [DVD Copy Control Assn., Inc. v. Bunner (2003) 31 Cal. 4th 864, 881883, 4 Cal. Rptr. 3d 69, 75 P.3d 1] .

- Sending unwanted e-mails to a private, proprietary e-mail system may be enjoined as a trespass to chattels [Intel Corp. v. Hamidi (2003) 30 Cal. 4th 1342, 1353, 1 Cal. Rptr. 3d 32, 71 P.3d 296 (former employee enjoined from sending e-mail to employees on company's system)].

- Injunctive relief is available to prevent a defendant from continuing a course of repetitive speech that has been judicially determined to constitute unlawful harassment in violation of the Fair Employment and Housing Act (Gov. Code. § 12900 et seq.) [Aguilar v. Avis Rent-A-Car System, Inc. (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 121, 126, 144-145, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 132, 980 P.2d 846 (opinion discusses other instances in which injunctive restraint of speech has been upheld)].

- In a gang conduct abatement proceeding, provisions of an injunction forbidding both the use of any words, gestures, hand signs or other forms of communication which describe or refer to the gang and the wearing of clothing which bears the gang name or letters that spell out the gang name were proper when read as enjoining the conscious expression of gang affiliation, support and allegiance [People v. Englebrecht (2001) 88 Cal. App. 4th 1236, 1266-1267, 106 Cal. Rptr. 2d 738] .

[4] Laches

The equitable defense of laches may be asserted in a suit for an injunction [see Vesper v. Forest Lawn Cemetery Assn. (1937) 20 Cal. App. 2d 157, 165, 67 P.2d 368] by showing unreasonable delay in bringing the action and prejudice to the responding party from the delay [Finnie v. Town of Tiburon (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 1, 14, 244 Cal. Rptr. 581] . Whether delay amounts to laches is measured in each case by equitable considerations [California Western School of Law v. California Western University (1981) 125 Cal. App. 3d 1002, 1007, 178 Cal. Rptr. 685] . Thus, there is no hard and fast rule as to the length of time that operates to bring about laches, and the defense may be invoked even if the delay is less than an applicable limitation period [Holt v. County of Monterey (1982) 128 Cal. App. 3d 797, 801, 180

Cal. Rptr. 514] . In the case of an intentional and continuing invasion of the applicant's rights, the delay must amount to assent or acquiescence [California Western School of Law v. California Western University (1981) 125 Cal. App. 3d 1002, 1007, 178 Cal. Rptr. 685] .

The following are some factors courts weigh in deciding whether to deny an injunction on the basis of laches [California Western School of Law v. California Western University (1981) 125 Cal. App. 3d 1002, 1006, 178 Cal. Rptr. 685 ; Tustin Community Hospital, Inc. v. Santa Ana Community Hospital Assn. (1979) 89 Cal. App. 3d 889, 905, 153 Cal. Rptr. 76] :

- The length of the delay.
- Excuses for the delay.
- Responding party's knowledge of the harm to applicant.
- Moving party's acquiescence or consent, or the appearance of acquiescence or consent, regarding responding party's conduct.
- Prejudice to, or reliance by, the responding party.
- Possible changes in conditions that have occurred during the delay in bringing suit.
- The effect of the delay on the availability of evidence.
- Alternative solutions to injunctive relief.
- A general balancing of the equities of the parties.

Examples of fact situations in which laches was found to be a defense to an injunction include the following:

- Moving party has passively permitted responding party to spend money and effort in building an illegal structure [Vesper v. Forest Lawn Cemetery Asso. (1937) 20 Cal. App. 2d 157, 165-166, 67 P.2d 368 ; Los Angeles Athletic Club v. Long Beach (1932) 128 Cal. App. 427, 433, 17 P.2d 1061] .
- Moving party knew of a proposed condominium construction plan two-and-one-half years before filing suit to stop the project [Holt v. County of Monterey (1982) 128 Cal. App. 3d 797, 801, 180 Cal. Rptr. 514] .
- Plaintiff waited three months after learning of a proposed municipal election, and until two weeks before it was scheduled, before seeking an injunction against allowing it [Finnie v. Town of Tiburon (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 1, 14, 244 Cal. Rptr. 581] .

Because the trial court has discretion over granting or denying an injunction, an appellate court will not interfere with a court's conclusion unless manifestly an injustice is done [Lusk v. Krejci (1960) 187 Cal. App. 2d 553, 556, 9 Cal. Rptr. 703] .

[5] Other Legal Remedy Adequate

A responding party may challenge an injunction on the ground that a legal remedy would be adequate. For example, if monetary damages afford adequate relief and are not extremely difficult to ascertain, an injunction may not be granted [

Thayer Plymouth Center, Inc. v. Chrysler Motors Corp. (1967) 255 Cal. App. 2d 300, 306, 63 Cal. Rptr. 148] .

ILLUSTRATION:

Legal Remedy Adequate Relief. An automobile manufacturer notifies an auto dealer that it is terminating the dealer's dealership contract to sell its automobiles. The dealer files a declaratory relief action to the effect that the manufacturer's notice of termination to him was void. The dealer also seeks a preliminary injunction prohibiting the manufacturer from giving effect to the notice of termination pending the determination of the lawsuit. Should the injunction issue? No. In cases involving breach of a dealership contract, a dealer's remedy at law for damages ordinarily affords adequate relief. When an adequate remedy exists at law, and if monetary damages afford adequate relief and are not extremely difficult to ascertain, an injunction may not be granted [Thayer Plymouth Center, Inc. v. Chrysler Motors Corp. (1967) 255 Cal. App. 2d 300, 306, 63 Cal. Rptr. 148] .

For discussion of adequacy of the legal remedy, including the adequacy of other types of legal remedies, see § 303.40[4].

[6] Policy Favoring Public Interest

Although a party has made a prima facie case for injunctive relief, the court must consider the interests of third persons, if any, as well as the general public. For example, when private property has been put to a public use by a public service corporation and a public necessity has been established, a landowner harmed by the public use is not entitled to an injunction but must instead seek damages [see Loma Portal Civic Club v. American Airlines, Inc. (1964) 61 Cal. 2d 582, 588-589, 39 Cal. Rptr. 708, 394 P.2d 548 ; see O'Connell v. Superior Court (2006) 141 Cal. App. 4th 1452, 1471, 47 Cal. Rptr. 3d 147 (trial court erred in failing to take into account public interest in enforcing state testing requirement)].

ILLUSTRATION:

Public Benefit Outweighs Individual Harm. Landowners in an area adjacent to a public airport seek an injunction against various airlines to ban certain flight operations in the air space over their property. Will the plaintiffs prevail? No. The public interest in adequate and safe air service outweighs the rights of individual landowners to the peaceful enjoyment of their property [see Loma Portal Civic Club v. American Airlines, Inc. (1964) 61 Cal. 2d 582, 588-589, 39 Cal. Rptr. 708, 394 P.2d 548 ; see also Kachadoorian v. Calwa County Water Dist. (1979) 96 Cal. App. 3d 741, 747, 158 Cal. Rptr. 223 (no injunction available for removing public utility's pipeline); Diaz v. Kay-Dix Ranch (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 588, 591-600, 88 Cal. Rptr. 443 (farm workers action to enjoin ranch owners from knowingly employing illegal entrants as properly dismissed if federal action comparatively more efficient)].

[7] Terms Contrary to Law

An injunction may not be granted when the relief would be contrary to the requirements of the law. Although courts have flexible and expansive power to issue equitable relief, they do not have the power to disregard or set aside express terms of legislation [People ex rel. Dept. of Transportation v. Maldonado (2001) 86 Cal. App. 4th 1225, 1233-1234, 104 Cal. Rptr. 2d 66 ; Armstrong v. Picquelle (1984) 157 Cal. App. 3d 122, 129, 203 Cal. Rptr. 552] .

ILLUSTRATION:

Injunction Requires Acts Contrary to Law. The California Department of Transportation brought a nuisance abatement action against a property owner, arising from his use of a billboard on his property, which was adjacent to a landscaped freeway. The trial court issued an injunction requiring, among other things, that the property owner obtain a permit before displaying any advertising. The injunctive provision was invalid because no permit is required under the Outdoor Advertising Act [Bus. & Prof. Code § 5200 et seq.] if an advertising display falls within an exception to the general prohibition on advertisements on landscaped freeways. The court could not disregard the Act's provisions that its permit requirements do not apply to owners of property abutting landscaped freeways when the advertisements on their property fall within the statutory exceptions [see People ex rel. Dept. of Transportation v. Maldonado (2001) 86 Cal. App. 4th 1225, 1233-1234, 104 Cal. Rptr. 2d 66] .

[8] Unclean Hands

A responding party may challenge an action for an injunction by claiming that the applicant does not have "clean hands" [see London v. Marco (1951) 103 Cal. App. 2d 450, 453, 229 P.2d 401] . The inequitable conduct charged must pertain to the subject matter involved in the action and must affect the equitable relations between the parties [Nutro Products, Inc. v. Cole Grain Co. (1992) 3 Cal. App. 4th 860, 869, 5 Cal. Rptr. 2d 41 ; Germo Mfg. Co. v. McClellan (1930) 107 Cal. App. 532, 541, 290 P. 534] . The applicant may also assert the unclean hands defense against a responding party [see Hernandez v. Stabach (1983) 145 Cal. App. 3d 309, 315, 193 Cal. Rptr. 350] .

ILLUSTRATION:

Unclean Hands Defense Asserted. Plaintiffs bring a class action against an apartment owner alleging that the owner's apartments are dangerous, uninhabitable, and in violation of state and local laws. In addition, plaintiffs seek a preliminary injunction against defendant's retaliatory unlawful detainer actions. May plaintiffs assert the unclean hands doctrine against defendant, after defendant alleges that the injunction should not issue because plaintiffs were in violation of their lease agreements because of overcrowding? Yes. Defendant could not raise the overcrowding defense because of unclean hands as he rented to plaintiffs with knowledge that overcrowding would occur [see Hernandez v. Stabach (1983) 145 Cal. App. 3d 309, 315, 193 Cal. Rptr. 350] .

The unclean hands defense has no applicability when the act sought to be enjoined is against public policy [Jomicra, Inc. v. California Mobile Home Dealers Assn. (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 396, 402, 90 Cal. Rptr. 696] .

§ 303.80 Dissolving or Modifying Injunction or Temporary Restraining Order

[1] On Change of Facts or Law or to Serve Ends of Justice

In any action, the court may on notice modify or dissolve an injunction or temporary restraining order on a showing that [Code Civ. Proc. § 533]:

- There has been a material change in the facts on which the injunction or temporary restraining order was granted;

- The law on which the injunction or temporary restraining order was granted has changed; or

- The ends of justice would be served by the modification or dissolution of the injunction or temporary restraining order.

The court may also, on notice and motion, modify or dissolve a final injunction on these same grounds, as set out in Civ. Code § 3424 [Civ. Code § 3424(a); but see Civ. Code § 3424(c) (Civ. Code § 3424 does not apply to final injunctions issued pursuant to the Family Code)].

The statutory provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 533 and Civ. Code § 3424 in effect codify a case law rule based on the court's inherent power to amend an injunction [see Sontag Chain Stores Co. v. Superior Court (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 92, 94-95, 113 P.2d 689 ; New Tech Developments v. Bank of Nova Scotia (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 1065, 1072, 236 Cal. Rptr. 746] . Thus, for example, courts held that it was proper to vacate or modify an injunction when it was equitable to do so under changed circumstances, even when the parties had previously stipulated to the judgment giving rise to the injunctive relief [see Mendly v. County of Los Angeles (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 1193, 1207, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 822 ; Welsch v. Goswick (1982) 130 Cal. App. 3d 398, 404-405, 181 Cal. Rptr. 703] . If the restrained party seeks to terminate a restraining order, the burden is on the restrained party to show by a preponderance of the evidence that one of the circumstances set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 533 is present and justifies terminating the restraining order [Loeffler v. Medina (2009) 174 Cal. App. 4th 1495, 1504, 95 Cal. Rptr. 3d 343].

ILLUSTRATION:

Law Change Justifying Modification. Plaintiff, a corporate storeowner, successfully obtains a final judgment granting an injunction to prevent defendant labor unions from picketing in front of its store. Following the injunction's rendition, the law changes regarding the rights of labor unions to picket. Defendants move to vacate or modify the injunction. After the superior court indicates its intention to act on defendant's motion, plaintiff files a writ of prohibition in the California Supreme Court claiming that the superior court had no jurisdiction to modify a final judgment. Will the plaintiff prevail on the writ of prohibition? No. An injunction, even a permanent one, is of an executory or continuing nature. A court has an inherent power to modify or dissolve such a judgment when the facts or the law affecting the action change [see Sontag Chain Stores Co. v. Superior Court (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 92, 94-95, 113 P.2d 689 ; Waremart Foods v. United Food & Commercial Workers Union (2001) 87 Cal. App. 4th 145, 153-154, 104 Cal. Rptr. 2d 359 (union successfully challenged preliminary injunction restricting picketing at retail store because trial court made no finding that public officers charged with the duty to protect the store's property were unable or unwilling to furnish adequate protection, as required by Lab. Code § 1138.1(a)(5), which became effective after preliminary injunction issued)].

A court cannot modify or dissolve an injunction granted by an arbitrator under an agreement to arbitrate. The proper foru m is a new arbitration proceeding [Swan Magnetics, Inc. v. Superior Court (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 1504, 1506, 1512, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 541] .

For a form of motion to modify or dissolve an injunction or temporary restraining order, see § 303.138.

[2] Injunction Defective Because of No Notice

If an injunction is granted without notice to the person enjoined, he or she may apply to dissolve or modify it on reasonable notice to the judge who granted the injunction or the court in which the action was brought [Code Civ. Proc. § 532(a); see New Tech Developments v. Bank of Nova Scotia (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 1065, 1071, 236 Cal. Rptr. 746 ; see [1], above].

[3] Injunction Defective Because Vague and Ambiguous

Lack of notice may occur when an injunction is uncertain or ambiguous and the defendant is unable to determine from the order what he may and may not do [Evans v. Evans (2008) 162 Cal. App. 4th 1157, 1171-1173, 76 Cal. Rptr. 3d 859 (order prohibiting party from contacting sheriff's department about other party was overbroad); ReadyLink Healthcare v. Cotton (2005) 126 Cal. App. 4th 1006, 1026, 24 Cal. Rptr. 3d 720 (injunction barring soliciting "anyone" associated with plaintiff was vague and overbroad); City of Redlands v. County of San Bernardino (2001) 96 Cal. App. 4th 398, 415, 117 Cal. Rptr. 2d 582 (injunction prohibiting county from readopting general plan amendment "or any similar amendment" not vague or ambiguous)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
G. Proceedings After Grant or Denial of Relief

26-303 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 303.81

§ 303.81 Review by Appeal

An appeal may be taken from an order granting or dissolving, or refusing to grant or dissolve, an injunction [Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1(a)(6) (appeal in other than limited civil case), Code Civ. Proc. § 904.2(g) (appeal of ruling by superior court judge or other judicial officer in limited civil case)]. Unlike the rule governing certain intermediate orders, there is a right of appeal from the rendition of injunctive relief at any stage of the proceeding. The intent of Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1(a)(6) (former Code Civ. Proc. § 963(2)) is that all orders granting or refusing injunctions, whether temporary, permanent, or provisional pending appeal, are appealable [Western Electroplating Co. v. Henness (1959) 172 Cal. App. 2d 278, 283, 341 P.2d 718 ; see Pro-Family Advocates v. Gomez (1996) 46 Cal. App. 4th 1674, 1678 n.1, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 600 (order modifying preliminary injunction is appealable as an order granting an injunction); see also Chico Feminist Women's Health Center v. Scully (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 230, 251, 256 Cal. Rptr. 194 (order modifying preliminary injunction is appealable as order granting injunction pursuant to former Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1(f), now see Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1(a)(6))].

An order refusing to grant a permanent injunction is not appealable unless and until it is embodied in a final judgment. Although the rationale for this rule differs, the appropriate rationale is that a trial court may revisit its decision to deny a permanent injunction at any time until final judgment. Thus, the interlocutory denial of a permanent injunction is not a sufficiently definitive "order refusing to grant an injunction" within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1(a)(6) [Bishop Creek Lodge v. Scira (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 631, 633-634, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 398 ; see Art Movers, Inc. v. Ni West, Inc. (1992) 3 Cal. App. 4th 640, 645-649, 4 Cal. Rptr. 2d 689 (collecting cases holding that interlocutory order dismissing a cause of action for a permanent injunction is appealable only from the final judgment in the case)].

Cases purporting to allow appeals from interlocutory denials of permanent injunctions have usually done so in connection with some other basis for appeal [Art Movers, Inc. v. Ni West, Inc. (1992) 3 Cal. App. 4th 640, 645-649, 4 Cal. Rptr. 2d 689 ; see, e.g., Pardee Construction Co. v. City of Camarillo (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 465, 467, 208 Cal. Rptr. 228, 690 P.2d 701 (appeal from order made after final judgment); Mateo-Woodburn v. Fresno Community Hospital & Medical Center (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 1169, 1174-1175 n.2, 270 Cal. Rptr. 894 (appeal from order dissolving preliminary injunction)]. Those opinions that have permitted an immediate appeal have done so without discussion [Art Movers, Inc. v. Ni West, Inc. (1992) 3 Cal. App. 4th 640, 645-649, 4 Cal. Rptr. 2d 689] .

A defendant may not separately appeal from an order fixing the amount of a preliminary injunction bond. Such an order is not listed in Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1 or Code Civ. Proc. § 904.2 as an appealable matter and thus is not appealable. The appellate court may, however, in connection with the appeal of an order granting a preliminary injunction, address the issue of whether the amount of the undertaking is inadequate to meet requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 529(a) [County of Los Angeles v. City of Los Angeles (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 1025, 1026-1028, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 799] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
G. Proceedings After Grant or Denial of Relief

26-303 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 303.82

§ 303.82 Scope and Standard of Review

The standard of review is abuse of discretion, and the appellate court looks at the evidence that was presented to the trial court to determine if there was substantial support for the trial court's decision [Thompson v. 10,000 RV Sales, Inc. (2005) 130 Cal. App. 4th 950, 964, 31 Cal. Rptr. 3d 18 ; Trader Joe's Co. v. Progressive Campaigns, Inc. (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 425, 430-431, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 442] .

The appellate court's task is to ensure that the trial court's express or implied factual determinations are supported by substantial evidence [Shapiro v. San Diego City Council (2002) 96 Cal. App. 4th 904, 912, 117 Cal. Rptr. 2d 631 ; Shoemaker v. County of Los Angeles (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 618, 625, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 774] . The appellate court does not, however, reweigh the evidence, even if it was conflicting [Academy of Pediatrics v. Van de Kamp (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 831, 838, 263 Cal. Rptr. 46] . Thus, the appellate court will not reweigh conflicting evidence to determine the credibility of witnesses. It is the trial court's province to resolve conflicting evidence and in so doing to judge the credibility of witness affidavits that are submitted in support of an application for a preliminary injunction [Shoemaker v. County of Los Angeles (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 618, 625, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 774] . Rather, the reviewing court must examine the evidence and interpret the facts in the light most favorable to the prevailing party, drawing all reasonable inferences in his or her favor and resolving conflicts in the evidence in favor of the trial court's order [Horsford v. Board of Trustees of California State University (2005) 132 Cal. App. 4th 359, 33 Cal. Rptr. 3d 644 ; American Academy of Pediatrics v. Van de Kamp (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 831, 838, 263 Cal. Rptr. 46 ; People ex rel. Gillespie v. Neu (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 1066, 1072-1073, 257 Cal. Rptr. 778 ; see Pro-Family Advocates v. Gomez (1996) 46 Cal. App. 4th 1674, 1680, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 600 (if evidence conflicts, reviewing court must construe evidence in light most favorable to trial court's decision); accord California Correctional Peace Officers Assn. v. State of California (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 294, 302, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 302] .

If the trial court was presented with evidence on the two factors of interim harm and likelihood of success (see § 303.43[2]), but fails to make express findings, the appellate court will presume that the trial court made appropriate factual findings and review the record for substantial evidence to support the ruling [14859 Moorpark Homeowner's Assn. v. VRT Corp. (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 1396, 1402, 74 Cal. Rptr. 2d 712] . For further discussion of abuse of discretion standard, see § 303.86[1].

When review of a preliminary injunction involves solely questions of law, independent review standard rather than abuse of discretion standard applies [Strategix, Ltd v. Infocrossing West, Inc. (2006) 142 Cal. App. 4th 1068, 1072, 48 Cal. Rptr. 3d 614 ; Teamsters Local 856 v. Priceless, LLC (2003) 112 Cal. App. 4th 1500, 1509-1510, 5 Cal. Rptr. 3d 847 (applying independent review to construe California Public Records Act); San Diego Unified Port Dist. v. U.S. Citizens Patrol (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 964, 969, 74 Cal. Rptr. 2d 364 ; for further discussion, see § 303.86[2]].

§ 303.83 Law at Time of Appellate Decision Applicable

On an appeal involving an injunctive decree or order, the appellate court applies the law in effect at the time the appellate court renders its opinion [Hunt v. Superior Court (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 984, 999, 1008, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 236, 987 P.2d 705 (upholding trial court's grant of preliminary injunction); Cal-Dak Co. v. Sav-On Drugs, Inc. (1953) 40 Cal. 2d 492, 496-497, 254 P.2d 497 (reversing order denying preliminary injunction); Waremart Foods v. United Food & Commercial Workers Union (2001) 87 Cal. App. 4th 145, 153-154, 104 Cal. Rptr. 2d 359] . Similarly, when injunctive relief against a legislative enactment is sought, the relevant provision for purposes of appeal is the one that is in effect at the time of the appeal [Building Industry Ass'n v. City of Oxnard (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 1, 3-4, 218 Cal. Rptr. 672, 706 P.2d 285 (remanded to trial court to determine necessity of injunction with regard to modified ordinance); Aktar v. Anderson (1997) 58 Cal. App. 4th 1166, 1176, 68 Cal. Rptr. 2d 595] .

However, although the appellate court usually applies the law in effect at the time of its decision, when plaintiffs seek both injunctive relief and damages, as well as a determination that defendant's actions violated existing law, the appellate court may confine itself to the law applicable at the time of the acts described in the complaint when the record is insufficient to enable the appellate court to determine if defendant is in compliance with an amended statute. In that situation, the trial court is the proper court in which to seek relief based on changes in law that occurred after the entry of judgment [Cisneros v. U. D. Registry, Inc. (1995) 39 Cal. App. 4th 548, 565, n.4, 46 Cal. Rptr. 2d 233] .

§ 303.84 Stay of Order or Decree

[1] Stay of Injunction Pending Appeal

To preserve the status quo pending appeal, a mandatory injunction is automatically stayed, whereas a prohibitory injunction is not [Agricultural Labor Relations Bd. v. Tex-Cal Land Management, Inc. (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 696, 706, 238 Cal. Rptr. 780, 739 P.2d 140 ; see Dewey v. Superior Court (1889) 81 Cal. 64, 68, 22 P. 333 ; Paramount Pictures Corp. v. Davis (1964) 228 Cal. App. 2d 827, 835, 39 Cal. Rptr. 791] . When a decree consists of both mandatory and prohibitory features, an appeal will stay operation of the mandatory features but not the prohibitory ones [Agricultural Labor Relations Bd. v. Tex-Cal Land Management, Inc. (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 696, 706, 238 Cal. Rptr. 780, 739 P.2d 140 ; Ohaver v. Fenech (1928) 206 Cal. 118, 123, 273 P. 555] .

The trial court may also protect the parties on appeal by stipulating conditions in its order that preserve the subject matter of the appeal for the appellant and the benefits of the judgment for the respondent [City of San Diego v. Southern Cal. Tel. Corp. (1954) 42 Cal. 2d 110, 120, 266 P.2d 14 ; Tulare Irr. Dist. v. Superior Court (1925) 197 Cal. 649, 671, 242 P. 725] .

ILLUSTRATION:

Conditions Placed on Order. Plaintiff city sues to recover amounts due from defendant utility for use of city streets between the time one franchise agreement expired and another was entered into. At issue was the method of determining compensation under the expired franchise agreement and whether the trial court properly stayed an injunction preventing the utility from using the streets until the matter was resolved. Will the city prevail in its contention that the injunction could be stayed only on the condition that amounts due the city must be determined using the method actually used under the earlier franchise agreement? No. Since the dispute centered on the old accounting method, the trial court could condition the injunction on appeal by requiring the exact terms of the expired franchise rather than the allegedly erroneous interpretation of those terms previously used. Thus, either party could appeal the trial court's determination of the amounts due and both were protected because the condition ensured the status quo under the exact terms of the expired franchise [City of San Diego v. Southern Cal. Tel. Corp. (1954) 42 Cal. 2d 110, 120, 266 P.2d 14] .

[2] Injunctive Order to Preserve Status Quo

After a trial court has denied a motion for injunctive relief, it may still exercise its discretion to order injunctive relief to preserve the status quo pending a motion for a new trial or an appeal [Pierce v. City of Los Angeles (1911) 159 Cal. 516, 517-520, 114 P. 818 (motion for new trial); City of Pasadena v. Superior Court (1910) 157 Cal. 781, 786-787, 109 P. 620 (appeal)]. This power also extends to situations in which the trial court denies an injunction but decides either to continue a preliminary injunction in force or to make an original order restraining the defendant pending an appeal by the unsuccessful plaintiff [American Trading Co. v. Superior Court (1923) 192 Cal. 770, 771-773, 222 P. 142 (continuing in force restraining order pending appeal from order denying preliminary injunction); City of Pasadena v. Superior Court (1910) 157 Cal. 781, 786-787, 109 P. 620 (preliminary injunction continued in effect)].

[3] Writ of Supersedeas

If a court mistakenly attempts to enforce a mandatory injunctive order that should be stayed pending appeal, the appellant is entitled as a matter of right to issuance of a writ of supersedeas. A supersedeas writ maintains the status quo until the appeal is finally determined. In addition, although enforcement of a prohibitory injunction pending appeal does not entitle the appellant to a writ of supersedeas as a matter of right, a court of appeal has inherent power to issue the writ if it is necessary or proper to the complete exercise of its appellate jurisdiction [Rubin v. American Sportsmen Television Equity Soc. (1951) 102 Cal. App. 2d 288, 290-291, 227 P.2d 303 ; see Masonite Corp. v. County of Mendocino Air Quality Management Dist. (1996) 42 Cal. App. 4th 436, 444, 49 Cal. Rptr. 2d 639 (petition for writ of supersedeas granted to stay effect of trial court's order denying motion for preliminary injunction relating to disclosure of alleged trade secrets pending appeal); see also Shoemaker v. County of Los Angeles (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 618, 624, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 774 (writ of supersedeas granted staying enforcement of preliminary injunction mandating affirmative act to preserve status quo pending appeal)]. For a discussion of the procedure used to obtain a writ of supersedeas and related forms, see Ch. 43, Appeal: Stay of Proceedings .

§ 303.85 Temporary Restraining Orders

A temporary restraining order is separately appealable [Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1(a)(6); McLellan v. McLellan (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 343, 357, 100 Cal. Rptr. 258 ; David v. Goodman (1948) 89 Cal. App. 2d 162, 170, 200 P.2d 568] . However, when a temporary restraining order was issued under the Domestic Violence Prevention Act (Fam. Code § 6200 et seq.) and thereafter the trial court on the date set for the hearing granted a three-year restraining order, an appeal from the temporary restraining order following the granting of the three year restraining order has been held moot and the purported appeal from the temporary restraining has been dismissed [O'Kane v. Irvine (1996) 47 Cal. App. 4th 207, 210 n.4, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 549] .

§ 303.86 Preliminary Injunctions

[1] Abuse of Discretion Standard

An order granting, denying, dissolving, or refusing to dissolve a preliminary injunction will not be modified or dissolved on appeal except for an abuse of discretion [see IT Corp. v. County of Imperial (1983) 35 Cal. 3d 63, 69, 196 Cal. Rptr. 715, 672 P.2d 121 ; ReadyLink Healthcare v. Cotton (2005) 126 Cal. App. 4th 1006, 1016, 24 Cal. Rptr. 3d 720 ; for discussion of when the standard of independent review rather than abuse of discretion applies, see, below]. The appellate court must determine whether the trial court abused its discretion in failing to consider or in evaluating the following two factors [Smith v. Adventist Health System/West (2010) 182 Cal. App. 4th 729, 749, 106 Cal. Rptr. 3d 318 ; Teachers Ins. & Annuity Assn. v. Furlotti (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 1487, 1493, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 455 ; Kennedy, Cabot & Co. v. National Assn. of Securities Dealers, Inc. (1996) 41 Cal. App. 4th 1167, 1174-1175, 49 Cal. Rptr. 2d 66 ; see Garamendi v. Executive Life Ins. Co. (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 504, 512, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 578 ; see also § 303.43[2]]:

- Whether the applicant will prevail on the merits at trial.

- The interim harm that the applicant is likely to sustain if the injunction is denied as compared to the harm that the responding party is likely to suffer if the preliminary injunction is issued.

A court abuses its discretion if it exceeds all bounds of reason or contravenes uncontradicted evidence [Biosense Webster, Inc. v. Superior Court (2006) 135 Cal. App. 4th 827, 834, 37 Cal. Rptr. 3d 759 ; California Correctional Peace Officers Assn. v. State of California (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 294, 302, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 302 ; Teachers Ins. & Annuity Assn. v. Furlotti (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 1487, 1493, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 455] .

When the trial court has denied a preliminary injunction, if the appellate court finds that the trial court abused its discretion as to one of the factors, it may still affirm if it finds no abuse of discretion as to the other [Cohen v. Board of Supervisors (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 277, 286-287, 219 Cal. Rptr. 467, 707 P.2d 840 ; Abrams v. St. John's Hospital & Health Center (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 628, 636, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 603); see also § 303.43[2]]. Thus, an appellate court will reverse an order denying a preliminary injunction only if the trial court has abused its discretion in ruling on both factors [14859 Moorpark Homeowner's Assn. v. VRT Corp. (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 1396, 1403, 74 Cal. Rptr. 2d 712] . However, if the superior court limited its ruling to only one of the factors, that factor must conclusively support the order [Right Site Coalition v. Los Angeles Unified School Dist. (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 336, 344-345, 72 Cal. Rptr. 3d 678 (reversing denial of injunction when court expressly declined to address likelihood of success on merits factor); Efstratis v. First Northern Bank (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 667, 671, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 445 (reversing denial of injunction based solely on likelihood of prevailing on merits factor); see King v. Meese (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 1217, 1227, 240 Cal. Rptr. 829, 743 P.2d 889 (recognizing rule and finding that balance of hardships did not support denial of relief irrespective of plaintiff's likelihood of success on merits, but taking "unusual" step of determining merits issue because of importance of case and absence of contested facts)].

On the other hand, when the trial court has granted a preliminary injunction, but in so doing has abused its discretion as to either factor, that is, likelihood of success on the merits or interim harm, it appears that the appellate court must reverse [Teachers Ins. & Annuity Assn. v. Furlotti (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 1487, 1493, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 455 (decision reversed only if trial court abused discretion as to either factor); 14859 Moorpark Homeowner's Assn. v. VRT Corp. (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 1396, 1403, 74 Cal. Rptr. 2d 712 (appellate court reverses if trial court abused discretion in ruling on one of the factors)]. Although this appears to conflict with language in King v. Meese (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 1217, 1227, 240 Cal. Rptr. 829, 743 P.2d 889 , that a trial court's order concerning a preliminary injunction may be affirmed if either factor alone would support the ruling, the order appealed from in King was an order denying a preliminary injunction, and the correct rule is that an injunction should not issue if there is no possibility of success even though its issuance might prevent irreparable harm [American Academy of Pediatrics v. Van de Kamp (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 831, 837-838, 263 Cal. Rptr. 46 (appellate court must reverse if either of two interrelated factors do not support superior court's order granting injunction); see also Hunt v. Superior Court (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 984, 999, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 236, 987 P.2d 705 (trial court may not grant preliminary injunction regardless of balance of harm unless there is some possibility that plaintiff would ultimately prevail on merits of claim); Pro-Family Advocates v. Gomez (1996) 46 Cal. App. 4th 1674, 1681, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 600 (if party that sought preliminary injunction has no likelihood of prevailing at trial, reviewing court must reverse the order granting the preliminary injunction)]. Nonetheless, the presence or absence of each factor is usually a matter of degree, and if the party seeking an injunction can make a sufficiently strong showing of likelihood of success on merits, the trial court has discretion to issue an injunction notwithstanding the party's inability to show that the balance of harm tips in that party's favor [Common Cause v. Board of Supervisors (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 432, 447, 261 Cal. Rptr. 574, 777 P.2d 610 (finding no likelihood that plaintiffs would prevail on merits andthus preliminary injunction should not have been issued)]. However, the California Supreme Court has held that the decision in Common Cause v. Board of Supervisors (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 432, 447, 261 Cal. Rptr. 574 did not suggest that when a party makes a sufficient showing of likely success on the merits a trial court need not consider the relative balance of hardships at all, or that, when the balance of hardships dramatically favors the denial of a preliminary injunction, a trial court nonetheless may grant a preliminary injunction on the basis of the likelihood of success factor alone [White v. Davis, 30 Cal. 4th 528, 561, 133 Cal. Rptr. 2d 648, 68 P.3d 74 (taxpayer's interest in not having public funds spent unlawfully not irreparable harm that warrants preliminary injunctive relief)]. Moreover, although a trial court's decision granting a preliminary injunction is reviewed under the abuse of discretion standard, if the preliminary injunction mandates an affirmative act changing the status quo, the appellate court will exercise greater scrutiny to determine whether there has been an abuse of discretion [Perez v. Hastings College (1996) 45 Cal. App. 4th 453, 456-457, 53 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1] .

The appellate court's decision is not a final adjudication as to the parties' ultimate rights concerning the controversy [Hunt v. Superior Court (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 984, 999, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 236, 987 P.2d 705] . Rather, the appellate court merely determines whether the trial court abused its discretion based on the record before the trial court at the time it ruled on the matter [Right Site Coalition v. Los Angeles Unified School Dist. (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 336, 344-346, 72 Cal. Rptr. 3d 678 (remanding determination to trial court); Shoemaker v. County of Los Angeles (1995) 37 Cal.

App. 4th 618, 625-626, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 774] . For further discussion concerning abuse of discretion standard, see § 303.82.

[2] When Issue Is Pure Question of Law

When there is no issue of fact, an appellate court may determine whether the granting of the preliminary injunction was error as a matter of law [Citizens to Save California v. California Fair Political (2006) 145 Cal. App. 4th 736, 746, 52 Cal. Rptr. 3d 17 ; Strategix, Ltd v. Infocrossing West, Inc. (2006) 142 Cal. App. 4th 1068, 1072, 48 Cal. Rptr. 3d 614 ; Pro-Family Advocates v. Gomez (1996) 46 Cal. App. 4th 1674, 1680, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 600 ; California Correctional Peace Officers Assn. v. State of California (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 294, 302, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 302 ; see also Shapiro v. San Diego City Council (2002) 96 Cal. App. 4th 904, 912, 117 Cal. Rptr. 2d 631 ; San Diego Unified Port Dist. v. U.S. Citizens Patrol (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 964, 969, 74 Cal. Rptr. 2d 364 (when solely question of law standard of review is not abuse of discretion but independent review of whether trial court correctly interpreted and applied statutory or constitutional law)].

The issue of the likelihood of prevailing on the merits occasionally depends on a question of pure law rather than on evidence to be introduced at the subsequent trial, for example, when a question concerns a statute's constitutionality on its face [Evans v. Evans (2008) 162 Cal. App. 4th 1157, 1166, 76 Cal. Rptr. 3d 859 ; Citizens to Save California v. California Fair Political (2006) 145 Cal. App. 4th 736, 746, 52 Cal. Rptr. 3d 17 ; Hunter v. City of Whittier (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 588, 595-596, 257 Cal. Rptr. 559 ; see Ketchens v. Reiner (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 470, 474, 239 Cal. Rptr. 549] . Similarly, when issuance of preliminary injunction depends on the construction of a statute, and the matter is purely a question of law, the standard of review is whether the statute was correctly construed, and accordingly the appellate court reviews de novo the court's order granting a preliminary injunction [Teamsters Local 856 v. Priceless, LLC (2003) 112 Cal. App. 4th 1500, 1509-1510, 5 Cal. Rptr. 3d 847 (applying independent review to construe California Public Records Act); Yes on Measure A v. City of Lake Forest (1997) 60 Cal. App. 4th 620, 623, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 517] . When a question of pure law is involved, it can sometimes be determinative of the matter, for example, if a defendant can show that the plaintiff's interpretation is wrong as a matter of law and therefore there is no possibility that plaintiff can prevail on the merits [Kennedy, Cabot & Co. v. National Assn. of Securities Dealers, Inc. (1996) 41 Cal. App. 4th 1167, 1174-1175, 49 Cal. Rptr. 2d 66 (scope of arbitration clause in action to enjoin pending arbitration)]. Even if the question of law is not entirely determinative, it may be appropriate for an appellate court to express its opinion on the question to clarify or narrow the issues for trial [Hunter v. City of Whittier (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 588, 595-596, 257 Cal. Rptr. 559 ; see Ketchens v. Reiner (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 470, 474, 239 Cal. Rptr. 549] .

To the extent that the determination on the likelihood of a party's success rests on an issue of pure law not presenting factual issues to be resolved at trial, when the trial court has denied a preliminary injunction, the appellate court reviews the determination de novo [Evans v. Evans (2008) 162 Cal. App. 4th 1157, 1166, 76 Cal. Rptr. 3d 859 ; 14859 Moorpark Homeowner's Assn. v. VRT Corp. (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 1396, 1403-1407, 74 Cal. Rptr. 2d 712] .

If the grant or denial of a preliminary injunction depends on the construction of a statute and the matter is purely a question of law, the standard of review is not whether discretion was appropriately exercised, but whether the statute was correctly construed [Garamendi v. Executive Life Ins. Co. (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 504, 512, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 578 ; Ciani v. San Diego Trust & Savings Bank (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 1604, 1611, 285 Cal. Rptr. 699] .

[3] Burden on Appellant

The burden is on the appellant to make a clear showing of abuse of the trial court's discretion in denying or granting a preliminary injunction [IT Corp. v. County of Imperial (1983) 35 Cal. 3d 63, 69, 196 Cal. Rptr. 715, 672 P.2d 121 ; see California Correctional Peace Officers Assn. v. State of California (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 294, 302, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 302 ; see also Shoemaker v. County of Los Angeles (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 618, 624, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 774 (burden on party attacking trial court's ruling to make clear showing of abuse of discretion)], or error of law [Pro-Family Advocates v. Gomez (1996) 46 Cal. App. 4th 1674, 1680, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 600 ; see California Correctional Peace Officers Assn. v. State of California (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 294, 302, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 302] .

The right to appeal an order granting injunctive relief does not bar a party from applying for a writ of prohibition when the right to appeal does not afford an adequate remedy [Northcutt v. Superior Court (1924) 66 Cal. App. 350, 356, 226 P. 25 ; see United Farm Workers Organizing Committee v. Superior Court (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 556, 563-564, 94 Cal. Rptr. 263, 483 P.2d 1215] . An appellate court will issue a writ of prohibition to restrain a trial court from enforcing an injunction when the trial court has acted in excess of its jurisdiction [City of Los Angeles v. Superior Court (1959) 51 Cal. 2d 423, 430, 333 P.2d 745] . For example, writs of prohibition have been issued to restrain a court in the following instances:

- When the court enjoined the enactment or enforcement of a valid public statute or ordinance [City of Los Angeles v. Superior Court (1959) 51 Cal. 2d 423, 430, 333 P.2d 745] .

- When a court attempted to enforce an order from a court that had not complied with the procedural requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 527 [Harlan v. Superior Court (1949) 94 Cal. App. 2d 902, 905, 211 P.2d 942 (disapproved on other grounds in Signal Oil & Gas Co. v. Ashland Oil & Refining Co. (1958) 49 Cal. 2d 764, 775-776 n.5, 322 P.2d 1)].

- When a court threatened to interfere by injunction with the functioning of another branch of the government [Alden v. Superior Court (1963) 212 Cal. App. 2d 764, 768, 28 Cal. Rptr. 387] .

- When a plaintiff had failed to serve the affidavits on the defendant at least two days before the hearing of the order to show cause as required by former Code Civ. Proc. § 527(a) [Green v. Superior Court (1924) 65 Cal. App. 237, 240, 223 P. 582 (decided under former Code Civ. Proc. § 527(a); now see Code Civ. Proc. § 527(d)(2) requiring service within five days from date of temporary restraining order or two days before hearing, whichever is earlier)].

Prohibition is also an appropriate remedy to enjoin the enforcement of a preliminary injunction alleged to be unconstitutional [United Farm Workers Organizing Committee v. Superior Court (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 556, 563 n.7, 94

Cal. Rptr. 263, 483 P.2d 1215 ; Evans v. Superior Court (1939) 14 Cal. 2d 563, 579, 96 P.2d 107] . For discussion, procedural guide, and forms relating to proceedings seeking a writ of prohibition, see Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
H. Enforcement of Injunction

26-303 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 303.92

§ 303.92 Contempt

[1] In General

A person is subject to contempt if he or she refuses to comply with a court's valid injunctive order [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1209(a)(5); see also § 303.13]. Specifically, the four elements necessary to establish contempt are [Conn v. Superior Court (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 774, 784, 242 Cal. Rptr. 148] :

- The rendition of a valid order.
- Actual knowledge of the order.
- Ability to comply.
- Willful disobedience.

Contempt proceedings are quasi-criminal in nature [Pacific Tel. & Tel. Co. v. Superior Court (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 370, 371, 72 Cal. Rptr. 177] . The accused contemnor is entitled to a presumption of innocence and cannot be compelled to testify. Furthermore, the contempt must be proved beyond a reasonable doubt [In re Martin (1977) 71 Cal. App. 3d 472, 480, 139 Cal. Rptr. 451] . The major difference between contempt and a criminal trial is that there is no right to a jury [Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 9.7(b); see In re Morelli (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 819, 850, 91 Cal. Rptr. 72] . For each act of contempt, the court may impose a fine not exceeding $1,000 and/or a jail term of up to five days [Code Civ. Proc. § 1218]. The statutes governing contempt [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1209-1222] do not provide for recovering attorney's fees in contempt proceedings.

PRACTICE TIP:

Contempt Is Costly Procedure. Contempt is a very costly procedure because it is in essence a mini-trial. However, costs and fees may be recoverable in a successful proceeding. A person who is subject to a court order as a party to the action, or any agent of this person, who is adjudged guilty of contempt for violating that court order may be ordered to pay to the party initiating the contempt proceeding the reasonable attorney's fees and costs incurred by this party in connection with the proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 1218(a)]. Moreover, a finding of contempt will often encourage the contemnor to reconsider settlement alternatives.

For discussion, procedural checklists, and forms for use in initiating contempt proceedings, see Ch. 135, Contempt .

[2] No Contempt When Order Is Ambiguous

The acts constituting contempt must be clearly and specifically prohibited by the terms of the injunction. The party subject to the injunction must be able to determine from its terms what he or she may and may not do, and thus may not be held guilty of contempt for violating an injunction that is uncertain or ambiguous [Brunton v. Superior Court (1942) 20 Cal. 2d 202, 205, 124 P.2d 831 ; Sorensen v. Superior Court (1969) 269 Cal. App. 2d 73, 78, 74 Cal. Rptr. 597] . The test is whether an injunction forbids an act in terms so vague that persons of common intelligence must necessarily guess at its meaning and differ as to its application [Pitchess v. Superior Court (1969) 2 Cal. App. 3d 644, 651, 83 Cal. Rptr. 35] .

Any ambiguity in the injunction must be resolved in favor of the person accused of the violation [Gottlieb v. Superior Court (1959) 168 Cal. App. 2d 309, 313, 335 P.2d 714] . Thus, in determining whether the party to be enjoined has been given sufficient notice of the conduct proscribed or compelled, the language of the injunction must be interpreted in light of the record that discloses the kind of conduct that is sought to be enjoined [People v. Wheeler (1973) 30 Cal. App. 3d 282, 296, 106 Cal. Rptr. 260 ; see City of Vernon v. Superior Court (1952) 38 Cal. 2d 509, 514, 241 P.2d 243 ; Gelfand v. O'Haver (1948) 33 Cal. 2d 218, 222, 200 P.2d 790] .

[3] No Contempt When Judge Lacks Jurisdiction

An injunction may be void because the judge who issued it lacked jurisdiction to do so [In re Wood (1939) 34 Cal. App. 2d 546, 551, 93 P.2d 1058 ; see Condor Enterprises, Ltd. v. Valley View State Bank (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 734, 741, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 613] .

26-303 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 303.93

§ 303.93 Purposeful Failure to Comply With Injunction

Although an enjoined party may deliberately choose to disobey an injunctive order that he or she believes to be invalid and then test the validity of an adjudication of contempt by seeking a writ of habeas corpus [see In re De Silva (1948) 33 Cal. 2d 76, 79, 199 P.2d 6 ; In re Circosta (1963) 219 Cal. App. 2d 777, 784, 33 Cal. Rptr. 514 ; see generally Ch. 292, Habeas Corpus], certiorari [see Brady v. Superior Court (1962) 200 Cal. App. 2d 69, 72, 19 Cal. Rptr. 242 ; see generally Ch. 492, Review (Certiorari), Writ of], or prohibition [Harlan v. Superior Court (1949) 94 Cal. App. 2d 902, 905-906, 211 P.2d 942 ; see generally Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition], this is not the preferred practice. Orderly procedure suggests that, when the party served believes the order is invalid, he or she should take the proper steps to have it dissolved rather than resort to self-help [Mason v. U. S. Fid. & Guar. Co. (1943) 60 Cal. App. 2d 587, 591, 141 P.2d 475] .

Injunction is available to restrain contamination by waste. Health & Safety Code § 5460

[t] Probate

Court may suspend powers of personal representative or make order to secure proper performance of personal representative's duties when it appears that petitioner's interest otherwise would be jeopardized. Prob. Code § 9614

Order restraining personal representative from taking proposed action without court supervision as described in Prob. Code § 10580(a) or (b) may be granted without requiring notice to personal representative and without cause being shown. Prob. Code § 10588

[u] Public Utility

Injunction is available to restrain violation of law by public utility. Pub. Util. Code §§ 2102, 2103

[v] Real Property

Court, by injunction after good cause shown, may restrain party in possession from doing any act which injures real property during foreclosure of mortgage on property or after levy and before transfer of possession in accordance with sale under levy. Code Civ. Proc. § 745

[w] Redemption

Court may restrain waste during time period allowed for redemption of property sold at execution sale. Code Civ. Proc. § 729.090(c)

[x] Roadside Vegetation Control

Any property owner may seek injunction to restrain violation of Property Owners' Roadside Vegetation Control Information Act of 1991 (Food & Agric. Code § 5501 et seq.). Food & Agric. Code § 5509

[y] Subdivisions

Aggrieved person, firm, or corporation may file suit in superior court of county in which any real property attempted to be subdivided, sold, leased, or financed in violation of Gov. Code § 66410 et seq. (provisions regulating subdivisions). Gov. Code § 66499.33

[z] Taxpayer Suits

Action to restrain illegal expenditure of, waste of, or injury to, estate, funds, or other property of a governmental entity. Code Civ. Proc. § 526a

[aa] Trademarks and Trade Names

Likelihood of injury to business reputation or of dilution of distinctive quality of mark registered under Bus. & Prof. Code § 14200 et seq. (registration and protection of trademarks) or a mark valid at common law is ground for injunctive relief notwithstanding absence of competition between parties or absence of confusion as to source of goods or services. Bus. & Prof. Code § 14330

Use without owner's consent or infringement of mark registered under state or federal law to sell, enhance commercial value of, or solicit purchase of, product or service is ground for injunction against that use or infringement. Bus. & Prof. Code § 14335

Owner of mark registered under Bus. & Prof. Code § 14200 et seq. (registration and protection of trademarks) may proceed by suit to enjoin manufacture, use, display, or sale of any counterfeits or imitations thereof. Bus. & Prof. Code § 14340

Court of competent jurisdiction may restrain by injunction use of name of any organization in commercial venture, trade, or business; in the solicitation of subscriptions for or sale of any newspaper, book, or other publication, or in solicitation of advertising in any newspaper, book, or other publication; or in solicitation of donations, aid, or other benefits by any other person, firm, or corporation representing directly or indirectly that such is sponsored, endorsed, or being offered by organization owning such name. Bus. & Prof. Code § 14493

Corporation's shareholder may enjoin ultra vires acts by corporation or its officers. Corp. Code § 208(a)

[cc] Unfair Competition and Trade Practices

Person injured by violation of Bus. & Prof. Code § 16700 et seq. (restraint of trade) is entitled to preliminary and permanent injunctive relief under same conditions and principles as generally applicable. Bus. & Prof. Code § 16750(a)

Any person or trade association may bring action to enjoin and restrain any violation of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17000 et seq. (unfair trade practices). Bus. & Prof. Code § 17070

Provisions regarding obtaining injunctive relief to restrain person from violating Bus. & Prof. Code § 17000 et seq. (unfair trade practices). Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17078-17081

Preventive relief may be granted to enforce penalty or forfeiture in case of unfair competition. Bus. & Prof. Code § 17202

Any person who engages, has engaged, or proposes to engage in unfair competition may be enjoined in any court of competent jurisdiction. Bus. & Prof. Code § 17203

Injunctive relief is available to any consumer who suffers damage as result of unfair method of competition declared to be unlawful by Civ. Code § 1770 (Consumers Legal Remedies Act). Civ. Code § 1780(a)(2)

Violation of Civ. Code §§ 1797.8-1797.86 (relating to grey market goods) is unfair competition under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 and is unfair method of competition or deceptive practice within meaning of Civ. Code § 1770. Civ. Code § 1797.86

Court of competent jurisdiction may restrain by injunction use of insignia or name of unincorporated association by person not entitled to use same. Corp. Code § 21308

[dd] Unlawful Motor Vehicle Subleasing

Injunction and other relief is authorized in case of unlawful motor vehicle subleasing, as defined in Penal Code § 571. Civ. Code § 3343.5

[ee] Water Rights

Injunctions in water diversion cases. Code Civ. Proc. §§ 530, 532, 534; Water Code § 1052

[10] Specific Situations When Injunctions Prohibited

Preventive relief is given in no other cases than those specified in Civ. Code §§ 3366-3423. Civ. Code § 3274

Preventive relief is not granted to enforce penalty or forfeiture or to enforce penal law with exception of case involving nuisance or as otherwise provided by law. Civ. Code § 3369

Situations in which injunctions not issued. Civ. Code § 3423; see Code Civ. Proc. § 526

Injunctions may not restrain offering for sale, or issuance of any municipal bonds for public improvements or public utilities. Code Civ. Proc. § 526a

Enumerated acts involving labor disputes are legal; no court or judge has jurisdiction to issue restraining order or preliminary or permanent injunction from doing them. Code Civ. Proc. § 527.3; see Lab. Code § 1138.1-1138.5 (restrictions on granting injunctive relief when it is available in relation to labor disputes)

Injunctions by private persons may not enjoin reasonable and necessary operation in any industrial or commercial zone or airport when zones for such use have been established under authority of law. Code Civ. Proc. § 731a

Injury to formations bearing oil or gas is not grounds for enjoining secondary recovery operations if undertaking is given. Code Civ. Proc. § 731c

Injunctions is prohibited for purpose of preventing or enjoining collection of state taxes. Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 4807, 6931

[11] Uniform Foreign-Money Claims Act

Procedure for establishing under Uniform Foreign-Money Claims Act (Code Civ. Proc. § 676 et seq.) value of foreign-money claim in U.S. dollars for purposes of facilitating enforcement of provisional remedies. Code Civ. Proc. § 676.11

[1] Appeal

[a] Appeal Negates Motion to Dismiss

Trial court may properly refuse to consider motion to dismiss preliminary injunction if there has been appeal from order granting preliminary injunction because it does not have jurisdiction under Code Civ. Proc. § 916. Environmental Coalition of Orange County, Inc. v. AVCO Community Developers, Inc. (1974) 40 Cal. App. 3d 513, 525, 115 Cal. Rptr. 59

[b] Considerations on Appeal

Trial court, when it denies application for preliminary injunction, is implicitly determining that plaintiff has failed to satisfy either or both "interim harm" and "likelihood of prevailing on the merits" factors; on appeal, question is whether trial court abused its discretion in ruling on both factors; appellate court, even if finds that trial court abused its discretion as to one factor, may affirm trial court's order if it finds no abuse of discretion as to other. Cohen v. Board of Supervisors (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 277, 286-287, 219 Cal. Rptr. 467, 707 P.2d 840 ; Savage v. Trammell Crow Co. (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 1562, 1571 n.2, 273 Cal. Rptr. 302

When there is no issue of fact, an appellate court may determine whether granting a preliminary injunction was error as a matter of law. Citizens to Save California v. California Fair Political (2006) 145 Cal. App. 4th 736, 746, 52 Cal. Rptr. 3d 17

To the extent review of injunction depends on its constitutionality, court of appeals independently reviews whether trial court correctly interpreted and applied applicable constitutional principles; facts relevant to the constitutional analysis are reviewed de novo, independent of trial court's findings. Evans v. Evans (2008) 162 Cal. App. 4th 1157, 1166, 76 Cal. Rptr. 3d 859

If the grant or denial of a preliminary injunction depends on the construction of a statute and the matter is purely a question of law, the standard of review is not whether discretion was appropriately exercised, but whether the statute was correctly construed. Strategix, Ltd v. Infocrossing West, Inc. (2006) 142 Cal. App. 4th 1068, 1072, 48 Cal. Rptr. 3d 614

The law is well settled that the decision to grant a restraining order rests in the sound discretion of the trial court; a trial court will be found to have abused its discretion only when it has exceeded the bounds of reason or contravened the uncontradicted evidence. Biosense Webster, Inc. v. Superior Court (2006) 135 Cal. App. 4th 827, 834, 37 Cal. Rptr. 3d 759

To the extent trial court reviewed evidence to resolve disputed factual issues and draw inferences from presented facts, court of appeal reviews such factual findings under substantial evidence standard. Thompson v. 10,000 RV Sales, Inc. (2005) 130 Cal. App. 4th 950, 964, 31 Cal. Rptr. 3d 18

Appellate court applies abuse of discretion standard of review in reviewing lower court's order granting preliminary injunction. ReadyLink Healthcare v. Cotton (2005) 126 Cal. App. 4th 1006, 1016, 24 Cal. Rptr. 3d 720

Trial courts evaluate two interrelated factors when deciding whether to issue preliminary injunction; first is likelihood that plaintiff will prevail on merits at trial; second is interim harm plaintiff will likely sustain if injunction were denied as compared to harm defendant will likely suffer if injunction were issued; by balancing respective equities, trial court should conclude whether, pending trial on merits, defendant should or should not be restrained from exercising his or her claimed right; thus, on appeal from order granting preliminary injunction, question generally is whether both irreparable harm and likelihood of prevailing on merits are established. California Correctional Peace Officers Assn. v. State of California (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 294, 302, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 302

By granting preliminary injunction, trial court made preliminary evaluation of who was likely to be prevailing party based on evidence before it at that time; appellate court is called on to address only propriety of that preliminary injunction and whether particular evidence placed before trial court at time of its ruling adequately supports it. Korean Philadelphia Presbyterian Church v. California Presbytery (2000) 77 Cal. App. 4th 1069, 1081, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 275

Appeal from order granting preliminary injunction involves limited review of two interrelated factors evaluated by trial court in deciding whether to issue injunction; first is reasonable probability that plaintiff will prevail on merits at trial; second is interim harm plaintiff is likely to sustain if injunction is denied as compared to harm defendant is likely to suffer if preliminary injunction is granted. Teachers Ins. & Annuity Assn. v. Furlotti (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 1487, 1493, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 455

Question on typical appeal from order granting preliminary injunction is whether both the likelihood of prevailing on the merits and irreparable harm are established; if evidence conflicts, reviewing court must construe evidence in the light most favorable to trial court's decision; if no issue of fact is presented, however, reviewing court determines whether granting of preliminary injunction was error as matter of law; if party that sought preliminary injunction has no likelihood of prevailing at trial, trial court has committed an error of law and reviewing court must reverse order granting preliminary injunction. Pro-Family Advocates v. Gomez (1996) 46 Cal. App. 4th 1674, 1680-1681, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 600

Appeal from order granting preliminary injunction ordinarily involves very limited review of trial court's exercise of discretion concerning (1) likelihood of plaintiff ultimately prevailing, and (2) plaintiff's interim harm if preliminary injunction denied compared to defendant's interim harm if injunction granted pending final determination of merits; when likelihood of prevailing on merits depends on question of pure law rather than on evidence to be produced at trial, however, question of law can sometimes be determinative over the other factor, for example, when defendant shows that plaintiff's interpretation is wrong as a matter of law and thus plaintiff has no possibility of prevailing on the merits.

Kennedy, Cabot & Co. v. National Assn. of Securities Dealers, Inc. (1996) 41 Cal. App. 4th 1167, 1174-1175, 49 Cal. Rptr. 2d 66 .

On appeal from order granting preliminary injunction, appellate court may reach merits of any purely legal questions if propriety of trial court's finding regarding "interim harm" factor is undisputed; in these circumstances, appellate court is in as good a position to resolve issue as trial court would be after determination of appeal; moreover, in reviewing grant of preliminary injunction, appellate court is required to interpret facts in light most favorable to prevailing party and to indulge in all reasonable inferences in support of trial court's order. Crespin v. Kizer (1990) 226 Cal. App. 3d 498, 507, 518, 276 Cal. Rptr. 571

Party challenging grant of preliminary injunction is ordinarily required to demonstrate that trial court abused its discretion in evaluating interrelated factors of (1) likelihood that plaintiff will prevail on merits at trial, and (2) interim harm that plaintiff is likely to sustain if injunction were denied as compared to harm that defendant is likely to suffer if preliminary injunction were issued; however, when matter is solely question of violation of law, standard of review is not abuse of discretion but whether statutory or constitutional law was correctly interpreted and applied by trial court. Bullock v. City and County of San Francisco (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 1072, 1094, 271 Cal. Rptr. 44

On appeal from order granting or denying preliminary injunction, reviewing court does not ordinarily decide merits of complaint; instead, court decides only whether trial court abused its discretion in granting or denying injunction; but in appropriate case, as when there are no factual issues requiring resolution at trial and when issues have been extensively briefed, merits of action are permissibly determined on appeal from preliminary injunction order. Wilkinson v. Times Mirror Corp. (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 1034, 1039-1040, 264 Cal. Rptr. 194

[c] Effect of Appellate Decision

Neither trial court nor appellate court may undertake final adjudication of lawsuit in determining propriety of preliminary injunction; granting or denying preliminary injunction does not constitute adjudication of ultimate rights in controversy. Hunt v. Superior Court (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 984, 999, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 236, 987 P.2d 705

Appellate court should decline to address the potential merits or to determine whether a preliminary injunction should issue because it is the appellate court's role to review the trial court's exercise of its discretion in applying and weighing the factors, rather than to exercise discretion in the first instance. Right Site Coalition v. Los Angeles Unified School Dist. (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 336, 344-346, 72 Cal. Rptr. 3d 678

Appellate decision does not constitute final adjudication of ultimate rights in controversy, but rather only a determination of whether trial court abused its discretion based on record before it at time of ruling. Shoemaker v. County of Los Angeles (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 618, 625-626, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 774

Conclusion by appellate court that trial court did not abuse its discretion in denying preliminary injunction is no intimation of what judgment should be following trial on merits. Socialist Workers 1974 California Campaign Committee v. Brown (1976) 53 Cal. App. 3d 879, 889, 125 Cal. Rptr. 915 ; French Art Cleaners v. St. Bd. of Dry Cleaners (1949) 91 Cal. App. 2d 890, 897, 206 P.2d 25

Appellate court in passing on propriety of issuing or dissolving preliminary injunction is not determining merits of case in advance of trial; court's decision as to propriety of granting writ is not intimation of what judgment of lower court should be at final hearing and not law of case in subsequent appeal from final judgment on merits. Jomicra, Inc. v. California Mobile Home Dealers Assn. (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 396, 401, 90 Cal. Rptr. 696

Person who pays fine in accordance with order of contempt for violating preliminary injunction pending appeal is entitled to refund of fine when order granting injunction reversed on appeal. Elysium, Inc. v. Superior Court (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 763, 765-766, 72 Cal. Rptr. 355

If permanent injunction later granted after order granting or denying preliminary injunction appealed, then appeal dismissed as moot. American Ins. Co. v. Gernand (1968) 262 Cal. App. 2d 300, 305, 68 Cal. Rptr. 810

Reversal of order granting preliminary injunction restores parties to their status quo ante. Sloan v. Court Hotel (1945) 72 Cal. App. 2d 308, 317, 164 P.2d 516

[d] Law at Time of Appellate Decision Applicable

Law in effect when appellate court renders its opinion is required to be applied. Sullivan v. Fox (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 673, 683, 235 Cal. Rptr. 5

[e] Mandatory vs. Prohibitory Injunction

[i] Distinguishing Type of Injunctions

Reviewing court looks to substance of order to determine its real nature. Feinberg v. One Doe Co. (1939) 14 Cal. 2d 24, 28, 92 P.2d 640 ; Paramount Pictures Corp. v. Davis (1964) 228 Cal. App. 2d 827, 835, 39 Cal. Rptr. 791

Prohibitory language of preliminary injunction did not control whether it was deemed by court to be mandatory or prohibitory because substance and not form is determining factor. Davenport v. Blue Cross of California (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 435, 446-447, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 641

Appellate court exercises greater scrutiny in determining whether abuse of discretion has occurred when trial court has granted preliminary injunction that mandates an affirmative act changing status quo; trial court abused discretion in granting preliminary injunction that required college to readmit student following college's refusal to do so because of unsatisfactory academic performance when student failed to demonstrate likelihood to prevail on merits. Perez v. Hastings College (1996) 45 Cal. App. 4th 453, 456-457, 53 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1

Plaintiff must show urgency and prospect of irreparable injury if mandatory injunction is requested. Youngblood v. Wilcox (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 1368, 1372 n.1, 255 Cal. Rptr. 527

Injunction may have incidental mandatory aspects but still be deemed prohibitory. Youngblood v. Wilcox (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 1368, 1372 n.1, 255 Cal. Rptr. 527

Injunction enjoining party from refusing to allow access to documents, with provision for court hearing if dispute arose over particular document, was prohibitory rather than mandatory injunction. Franchise Tax Board v. Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. (1983) 139 Cal. App. 3d 843, 845-846, 189 Cal. Rptr. 99

[ii] Effect of Appeal

Decree that is of dual nature is stayed with regard to mandatory features but not prohibitory features on appeal. Food & Grocery Bureau v. Garfield (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 174, 177, 114 P.2d 579 ; Ohaver v. Fenech (1928) 206 Cal. 118, 123, 273 P. 555

[f] Preliminary Injunctions

[i] In General

Order modifying preliminary injunction is appealable order under Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1(a)(6). Pro-Family Advocates v. Gomez (1996) 46 Cal. App. 4th 1674, 1678 n.1, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 600

Order denying preliminary injunction is appealable order. Lubavitch Congregation v. City of Long Beach (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 1388, 1390, 266 Cal. Rptr. 513

Failure to appeal provisions of preliminary injunction does not preclude later review of subsequent permanent injunction; final adjudication of ultimate rights in controversy normally occurs following hearing on merits, at which time trial court may enter permanent injunction, which is entirely new order from which appeal may be taken. Chico Feminist Women's Health Center v. Scully (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 230, 253, 256 Cal. Rptr. 194

Order dissolving injunction is expressly appealable, under former Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1(f) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1(a)(6)). New TechDevelopments v. Bank of Nova Scotia (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 1065, 1068 n.1, 236 Cal. Rptr. 746

In reviewing preliminary injunction on appeal, appellate court interprets facts in light most favorable to prevailing party and indulges all intendments and reasonable inferences in support of trial court's order. MCA Records, Inc. v. Newton-John (1979) 90 Cal. App. 3d 18, 21, 153 Cal. Rptr. 153

[ii] Abuse of Discretion Required for Reversal

Generally, ruling on application for preliminary injunction rests in sound discretion of trial court; exercise of that discretion will not be disturbed on appeal absent showing that it has been abused. Hunt v. Superior Court (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 984, 999, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 236, 987 P.2d 705

Order granting, denying, dissolving, or refusing to dissolve preliminary injunction may be modified or dissolved on appeal only if abuse of discretion present. King v. Meese (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 1217, 1226, 240 Cal. Rptr. 829, 743 P.2d 889 ; Continental Baking Co. v. Katz (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 512, 527, 67 Cal. Rptr. 761, 439 P.2d 889

Order granting preliminary injunction will be reversed if it coerces defendant into performing mandatory act that might not be ordered after trial. Hagen v. Beth (1897) 118 Cal. 330, 331, 50 P. 425 ; Bo Kay Chan v. Gerdon Land Co. (1951) 103 Cal. App. 2d 724, 726-728, 230 P.2d 1

If the grant or denial of a preliminary injunction depends on the construction of a statute and the matter is purely a question of law, the standard of review is not whether discretion was appropriately exercised, but whether the statute was correctly construed. Strategix, Ltd v. Infocrossing West, Inc. (2006) 142 Cal. App. 4th 1068, 1072, 48 Cal. Rptr. 3d 614

The law is well settled that the decision to grant a restraining order rests in the sound discretion of the trial court; a trial court will be found to have abused its discretion only when it has exceeded the bounds of reason or contravened the uncontradicted evidence. Biosense Webster, Inc. v. Superior Court (2006) 135 Cal. App. 4th 827, 834, 37 Cal. Rptr. 3d 759

Appellate court applies abuse of discretion standard of review in reviewing lower court's order granting preliminary injunction. ReadyLink Healthcare v. Cotton (2005) 126 Cal. App. 4th 1006, 1016, 24 Cal. Rptr. 3d 720

Generally, preliminary injunction is reviewed based on abuse of discretion. However, where likelihood of prevailing on merits depends on question of law or construction of statute, appellate court review is de novo. Teamsters Local 856 v. Priceless, LLC (2003) 112 Cal. App. 4th 1500, 1509-1510, 5 Cal. Rptr. 3d 847

Ordinarily, court of appeal examines trial court's denial of preliminary injunction for abuse of discretion in evaluating the interrelated factors of the plaintiff's likelihood of success on merits and magnitude of interim harm to plaintiff and defendant. However, when trial court's decision is based solely on question of law, court of appeal considers issue de novo. Los Angeles County Association of Environmental Health Specialists v. County of Los Angeles (2002) 102 Cal. App. 4th 1112, 1117, n.4, 126 Cal. Rptr. 2d 300

Decision to grant preliminary injunction rests in trial court's sound discretion and will not be reversed unless court has exceeded all bounds of reason or contravened uncontradicted evidence. California Correctional Peace Officers Assn. v. State of California (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 294, 302, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 302

On appeal, preliminary injunction will be overturned only on showing abuse of discretion. Trader Joe's Co. v. Progressive Campaigns, Inc. (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 425, 430-431, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 442

When no factual dispute and review of preliminary injunction involves solely question of law as to whether challenged portions of the preliminary injunction violate constitutional law, standard of review not abuse of discretion standard, but rather independent review standard; appellate court independently reviews challenged portions of injunction to determine whether trial court correctly interpreted and applied statutory and constitutional law. San Diego Unified Port Dist. v. U.S. Citizens Patrol (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 964, 969, 74 Cal. Rptr. 2d 364

When issuance of preliminary injunction depends on construction of statute, and matter is purely question of law, standard of review is not whether discretion was appropriately exercised, but whether statute was correctly construed and appellate court reviews de novo order granting preliminary injunction. Yes on Measure A v. City of Lake Forest (1997) 60 Cal. App. 4th 620, 623, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 517

Denial of injunction within trial court's sound discretion and absent abuse of discretion denial will be upheld on appeal. Cisneros v. U. D. Registry, Inc. (1995) 39 Cal. App. 4th 548, 574, 46 Cal. Rptr. 2d 233

Appeal from order granting preliminary injunction involves limited review of two factors, likelihood of success on merits and interim harm; appellate court must reverse if trial court abused discretion on either factor. Shoemaker v. County of Los Angeles (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 618, 625, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 774

Granting or denying preliminary injunction on verified complaint, together with oral testimony or affidavits rests in sound discretion of trial court and its order will not be interfered with on appeal except for abuse of discretion. Southern Christian Leadership Conference v. Al Malaikah Auditorium Co. (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 207, 223, 281 Cal. Rptr. 216

When preliminary injunction mandates affirmative act that changes status quo, appellate court scrutinizes it even more closely for abuse of discretion than it otherwise does. Board of Supervisors v. McMahon (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 286, 295, 268 Cal. Rptr. 219

Trial court that dissolved preliminary injunction did not commit abuse of discretion when initial issuance was contrary to statutory law. New Tech Developments v. Bank of Nova Scotia (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 1065, 1073, 236 Cal. Rptr. 746

[iii] Burden on Appellant

The burden rests with the party challenging an injunction to make a clear showing of an abuse of discretion. Biosense Webster, Inc. v. Superior Court (2006) 135 Cal. App. 4th 827, 834, 37 Cal. Rptr. 3d 759

Party challenging injunction bears burden of showing clear abuse of discretion or error of law. California Correctional Peace Officers Assn. v. State of California (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 294, 302, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 302

Burden is on party challenging trial court's ruling on application for injunction to make clear showing of abuse of discretion. Teachers Ins. & Annuity Assn. v. Furlotti (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 1487, 1493, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 455

Burden rests with appellant to make clear showing of abuse of trial court's discretion in denying or granting preliminary injunction. American Credit Indemnity Co. v. Sacks (1989) 213 Cal. App. 3d 622, 629-630, 262 Cal. Rptr. 92 ; Socialist Workers 1974 California Campaign Committee v. Brown (1975) 53 Cal. App. 3d 879, 889, 125 Cal. Rptr. 915

[iv] Facts Involved

If evidence conflicts, appellate court must construe it in light most favorable to trial court's decision. California Correctional Peace Officers Assn. v. State of California (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 294, 302, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 302

Trial court abuses discretion if it exceeds bounds of reason or contravenes uncontradicted evidence; if evidence conflicts, reviewing court must construe evidence in light most favorable to trial court's decision. Pro-Family Advocates v. Gomez (1996) 46 Cal. App. 4th 1674, 1680, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 600

On review of order granting or denying preliminary injunction, appellate court examines evidence in light most favorable to prevailing party, drawing all reasonable inferences in his or her favor, and resolving conflicts in evidence in favor of trial court's order. People ex rel. Gillespie v. Neu (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 1066, 1072-1073, 257 Cal. Rptr. 778 ; MCA Records, Inc. v. Newton-John (1979) 90 Cal. App. 3d 18, 21, 153 Cal. Rptr. 153

[v] Facts Not Involved

Appellate court determines whether granting of preliminary injunction was error as matter of law if no issue of fact is presented. California Correctional Peace Officers Assn. v. State of California (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 294, 302, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 302

Question on typical appeal from order granting preliminary injunction is whether both likelihood of prevailing on the merits and irreparable harm are established; if party that sought preliminary injunction has no likelihood of prevailing at trial, trial court has committed error of law and reviewing court must reverse order granting the preliminary injunction. Pro-Family Advocates v. Gomez (1996) 46 Cal. App. 4th 1674, 1681, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 600

Appellate court is not bound by abuse of discretion standard when it reviews trial court's decision to grant injunction based solely on interpretation of statute. Thornton v. Carlson (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 1249, 1255, 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 375

When issue of fact is not present, appellate court is permitted to determine whether granting of preliminary injunction was error as matter of law. Environmental Coalition of Orange County, Inc. v. AVCO Community Developers, Inc. (1974) 40 Cal. App. 3d 513, 521, 115 Cal. Rptr. 59

[g] Stay of Order or Decree

Stay orders issued by appellate court in connection with appellants' petition for writ of supersedeas do not alter normal standard of judicial review of granting of preliminary injunction; stay orders do not reflect determination of case merits but are designed only to maintain status quo during pendency of appeal. Voorhies v. Greene (1983) 139 Cal. App. 3d 989, 995, 189 Cal. Rptr. 132

Postjudgment injunction is proper to maintain status quo of parties pending appeal from judgment. Addiego v. Hill (1968) 268 Cal. App. 2d 280, 289-290, 73 Cal. Rptr. 901

Superior court has power to reinstate preliminary injunction pending appeal on ground appeal from judgment does not deprive court of jurisdiction and power to preserve subject of litigation until final determination of appeal. Hayes v. Risk (1967) 255 Cal. App. 2d 613, 627-628, 64 Cal. Rptr. 36

[h] Temporary Restraining Orders (TRO)

Notwithstanding that they have become moot, courts made exception to consider issues raised on appeal with regard to ex parte restraining orders. H-CHH Associates v. Citizens for Representative Government (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 1193, 1219, 238 Cal. Rptr. 841

TRO is separately appealable. McLellan v. McLellan (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 343, 357, 100 Cal. Rptr. 258 ; David v. Goodman (1948) 89 Cal. App. 2d 162, 170, 200 P.2d 568

[2] Attachment Compared to Injunction

Injunction is not appropriate when it achieves same result as prejudgment attachment without meeting requirements for attachment. Doyka v. Superior Court (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 1134, 1136-1137, 285 Cal. Rptr. 14

[3] Attorney's Fees

Plaintiffs is entitled to attorney's fees under "private attorney general doctrine" (Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.5; 42 U.S.C. § 1988) for obtaining preliminary injunction to prevent reporting of immigration status of public school children to immigration service under state law that was later repealed. Maria P. v. Riles (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 1281, 1290-1293, 240 Cal. Rptr. 872, 743 P.2d 932

Reasonable attorney's fees are treated as item of damages recoverable on bond when either temporary restraining order or preliminary injunction is regular on its face and requires legal services to obtain its dissolution. Allen v. Pitchess (1973) 36 Cal. App. 3d 321, 327, 111 Cal. Rptr. 658 ; Russell v. United Pacific Ins. Co. (1963) 214 Cal. App. 2d 78, 88-89, 29 Cal. Rptr. 346

Damages recoverable on temporary restraining order bond include reasonable value of legal services to procure dissolution of order and to resist successfully application for issuance of preliminary injunction; those damages are not included legal services incurred to defend main action after dissolution of temporary restraining order. Allen v. Pitchess (1973) 36 Cal. App. 3d 321, 327-328, 111 Cal. Rptr. 658

Fixing of reasonable fee rests in trial judge's discretion and is not to be disturbed on appeal unless its allowance constitutes palpable and plain abuse of discretion. Russell v. United Pacific Ins. Co. (1963) 214 Cal. App. 2d 78, 89, 29 Cal. Rptr. 346

[4] Defenses

[a] Changed Circumstances

Trial court erred in dismissing plaintiffs' request for injunctive relief, which sought to prevent defendants from making warrantless entry into owner's property to impound dog for violation of leash law in violation of Fourth Amendment rights of pet and property owners in city, because although there was no dispute that dog had died in interim, defendants had not addressed whether plaintiffs owned some other pet subject to leash law and if that possibility existed, request for injunction was not moot. Conway v. Pasadena Humane Society (1996) 45 Cal. App. 4th 163, 179-180, 52 Cal. Rptr. 2d 777

Denial of injunctive relief is justified when changed circumstances render the remedy unnecessary. East Bay Mun. Utility Dist. v. Department of Forestry & Fire Protection (1996) 43 Cal. App. 4th 1113, 1126, 51 Cal. Rptr. 2d 299

In action asking that restaurant be enjoined from operation so long as handicapped persons were not provided full access to accommodations, trial court finding that action was moot was proper because restaurant was no longer in business, was insolvent, and was dissolved as corporation. Donald v. Cafe Royale, Inc. (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 168, 183-184, 266 Cal. Rptr. 804

Dismissal of action seeking to enjoin city from enforcing unconstitutional ordinance was proper on ground of mootness when city agreed in good faith not to enforce ordinance. Lee v. Gates (1983) 141 Cal. App. 3d 989, 993-994, 190 Cal. Rptr. 682

[b] Completed Acts

Injunction lies only to prevent threatened injury and has no application to wrongs that have been completed. Griffith v. Department of Public Works (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 848, 853, 345 P.2d 469 ; Gold v. Los Angeles Democratic League (1975) 49 Cal. App. 3d 365, 372, 122 Cal. Rptr. 732

The purpose of injunctive relief is to prevent future or threatened harm; it must appear with reasonable certainty that the wrongful acts will be continued or repeated. O'Toole v. Superior Court (2006) 140 Cal. App. 4th 488, 513, 44 Cal. Rptr. 3d 531

Termination of physician without pre-termination hearing was continuing harm that could be prevented by granting injunction reinstating him and ordering hearing. Sahlolbei v. Providence Healthcare, Inc. (2003) 112 Cal. App. 4th 1137, 1156-1157, 5 Cal. Rptr. 3d 598

Injunctive relief lies only to prevent threatened injury and has no application to completed wrongs; it should neither serve as punishment for past acts, nor be exercised in absence of any evidence establishing reasonable probability acts will be repeated in future; indeed, change of circumstances at time of hearing, rendering injunctive relief moot or unnecessary, justifies denial of request; moreover, not only may injunctive relief be denied when defendant voluntarily discontinued wrongful conduct, there exists no equitable reason for ordering it when defendant has in good faith discontinued proscribed conduct; thus to authorize issuance of injunction, it must appear with reasonable certainty that wrongful acts will be continued or repeated. Scripps Health v. Marin (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 324, 332-333, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 86

When acts discontinued in good faith, court of equity will not grant injunction to prevent future acts when no evidence that acts likely in future to be repeated; evaluation of probability of recurrence of complained of acts lies in trial court's discretion. City of Vernon v. Central Basin Mun. Water Dist. (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 508, 517-518, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 650

Injunction should not issue as remedy for past acts that are not likely to recur; injunction properly issues only when right to be protected is clear, injury is impending and so immediately likely that only issuance of injunction will avoid it. East Bay Mun. Utility Dist. v. Department of Forestry & Fire Protection (1996) 43 Cal. App. 4th 1113, 1126, 51 Cal. Rptr. 2d 299

Injunction should not be granted as punishment for past acts in absence of any evidence that acts likely to be repeated in future; injunction may be denied when defendant's wrongful conduct voluntarily ceases. Cisneros v. U. D. Registry, Inc. (1995) 39 Cal. App. 4th 548, 574, 46 Cal. Rptr. 2d 233

Equity acts in present tense not in past tense. Engle v. City of Oroville (1965) 238 Cal. App. 2d 266, 270, 47 Cal. Rptr. 630

Injunctive power is not used as punishment for past acts unless there is evidence they will probably recur; no injunctive relief is available to prevent in future that which in good faith has been discontinued. Mallon v. City of Long Beach (1958) 164 Cal. App. 2d 178, 190, 330 P.2d 423

[c] Doctrine of Balancing of Conveniences

Proof of irreparable injury is necessary element of defense based on balancing of conveniences because court's action in withholding relief from plaintiff amounts to exercise of right of eminent domain in private person's favor. Fairrington v. Dyke Water Co. (1958) 50 Cal. 2d 198, 200, 323 P.2d 1001

Good faith of party against whom injunction is sought, proportionate hardships to parties, delay in seeking mandatory injunction, and whether plaintiff will suffer irreparable injury are considered in balancing equities to grant injunction. Bennett v. Lew (1984) 151 Cal. App. 3d 1177, 1184-1185, 199 Cal. Rptr. 241

Factors to be considered by court in encroachment case when balancing conveniences. Christensen v. Tucker (1952) 114 Cal. App. 2d 554, 562-563, 250 P.2d 660

[d] First Amendment Rights Infringed

Following a trial at which it is determined that the plaintiff defamed the defendant, the court may issue an injunction prohibiting the defendant from repeating the statements determined to be defamatory. Balboa Island Village Inn, Inc. v. Lemen (2007) 40 Cal. 4th 1141, 1161, 57 Cal. Rptr. 3d 320, 156 P.3d 339

Order prohibiting party from publishing false statements is unconstitutional prior restraint. Evans v. Evans (2008) 162 Cal. App. 4th 1157, 1167-1168, 76 Cal. Rptr. 3d 859

Speech not protected by First Amendment when between purely private parties, about purely private parties, on matters of purely private interest. Brekke v. Wills (2005) 125 Cal. App. 4th 1400, 1409, 23 Cal. Rptr. 3d 609

Freedom of association does not trump parent's right to direct and control activities of minor child, including with whom child may associate. Brekke v. Wills (2005) 125 Cal. App. 4th 1400, 1410, 23 Cal. Rptr. 3d 609

Injunction precluding city council members from engaging in acts designed to influence city administrative staff through direct communication with staff with respect to zoning enforcement matters violated First Amendment. Levy v. City of Santa Monica (2004) 114 Cal. App. 4th 1252, 1261-1262, 8 Cal. Rptr. 3d 507

Injunction that bound anyone with actual notice of it was content-based and violated First Amendment rights of abortion protestors. Planned Parenthood Golden Gate v. Foti (2003) 107 Cal. App. 4th 345, 354-355, 132 Cal. Rptr. 2d 46

Injunction prohibiting corporate director from disclosing contents of corporate records was unlawful prior restraint on free speech, absent allegations that director would commit tort against corporation. Saline v. Commonwealth Energy Corporation (2002) 100 Cal. App. 4th 909, 915-916, 122 Cal. Rptr. 2d 813

In trespass action, trial court's order granting preliminary injunction banning defendants from soliciting signatures for initiative petitions at plaintiff's store during pendency of action affirmed; under facts, state constitutional right to engage in expressive activity on private property, as recognized in Robins v. Pruneyard Shopping Center (1979) 23 Cal. 3d 899, 153 Cal. Rptr. 854, 592 P.2d 341 , did not protect defendants' challenged activity; "heckler's veto," which refers to hostile reaction to disfavored viewpoint, was not involved. Trader Joe's Co. v. Progressive Campaigns, Inc. (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 425, 430-438, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 442

Right to free speech protected from censorship by hostile reaction ("heckler's veto"); preliminary injunction that subjected defendant's right to engage in protected speech to censorship of group that disagreed with its content constituted impermissible "heckler's veto"; even if there were basis to enjoin certain conduct of defendant's members, injunction went much further than necessary to provide relief sought by plaintiff. San Diego Unified Port Dist. v. U.S. Citizens Patrol (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 964, 970-971, 74 Cal. Rptr. 2d 364

Denial of preliminary injunction, which would allow cable television company to reconnect subscribers in apartment complex who had been disconnected by landlord in breach of contract, was proper; cable company did not have right to connect equipment under U.S. Const., amend. I, partly because intrusion of connection would amount to taking of owner's property without compensation. Cox Cable San Diego, Inc. v. Bookspan (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 22, 25-30, 240 Cal. Rptr. 407

In action for mandamus and injunctive relief to compel county to set aside decision approving specific plan for condominium construction, laches was defense even though suit was brought within statutory time limits, when plaintiff knew of proposed project two and one half years before filing suit and when developers substantially and justifiably relied to their detriment on plan's approval. Holt v. County of Monterey (1982) 128 Cal. App. 3d 797, 801, 180 Cal. Rptr. 514

Defense of laches in trademark injunction action was unavailable to defendants engaging in intentional and continuing invasion of plaintiff's rights despite knowledge of plaintiff's objection to their use of trade name during entire period of infringement; court was required to weigh equities in determining application of defense. California Western School of Law v. California Western University (1981) 125 Cal. App. 3d 1002, 1006, 178 Cal. Rptr. 685

No hard and fast rule exists with regard to length of time that operates to bring about laches. Lusk v. Krejci (1960) 187 Cal. App. 2d 553, 556, 9 Cal. Rptr. 703

[f] Legal Remedy Adequate

Injunction is not granted when plaintiff has right to seek writ of mandate. Moore v. Superior Court (1936) 6 Cal. 2d 421, 423-424, 57 P.2d 1314

Injunction is not granted when plaintiff has failed to exhaust administrative remedy. Teeter v. Los Angeles (1930) 209

Cal. 685, 687, 290 P. 11 ; San Joaquin and Kings River Canal & Irr. Co. v. County of Stanislaus (1908) 155 Cal. 21, 29, 99 P. 365

Injunctive or declaratory relief was not proper when petitioner had statutory basis to file appeal, move for new trial, or move to vacate or modify judgment but failed to do so. Lezama v. Justice Court (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 15, 21, 235 Cal. Rptr. 238

Injunction is not granted when plaintiff has right to pursue legal remedy of quo warranto. Hallinan v. Mellon (1963) 218 Cal. App. 2d 342, 344-348, 32 Cal. Rptr. 446 ; Somo v. Superior Court (1933) 135 Cal. App. 584, 586, 27 P.2d 790

Injunction is not granted when plaintiff has right to pay tax under protest with subsequent right to file claim and sue for refund. Helms Bakeries v. St. Bd. Equalization (1942) 53 Cal. App. 2d 417, 421-425, 128 P.2d 167

[g] Public Interest

Where plaintiff seeks to enjoin public officers and agencies in the performance of their duties, the public interest must be considered. O'Connell v. Superior Court (2006) 141 Cal. App. 4th 1452, 1471, 47 Cal. Rptr. 3d 147

Preliminary injunction requiring state-maintained visitor center in nuclear weapons research facility to allow petitioners to distribute literature opposing such facility was properly granted if administrative inconvenience caused to respondent by granting injunction was greatly outweighed by infringement of petitioners' constitutionally protected rights if injunction were denied. U. C. Nuclear Weapons Labs Conversion Project v. Lawrence Livermore Laboratory (1984) 154 Cal. App. 3d 1157, 1160, 1172, 201 Cal. Rptr. 837

Courts of equity are permitted to go further in giving and withholding injunctive relief in furtherance of public interest than when only private interests are involved. Socialist Workers 1974 California Campaign Committee v. Brown (1975) 53 Cal. App. 3d 879, 889, 125 Cal. Rptr. 915

[h] Relief Unnecessary or Ineffectual; No Threatened Act or Recurrence

Injunctive relief is not granted when events have rendered this relief unnecessary or ineffectual. Paul v. Milk Depots, Inc. (1964) 62 Cal. 2d 129, 133, 41 Cal. Rptr. 468, 396 P.2d 924

Injunctions cannot be predicated on the proponent's fear of something that may happen in the future. Connerly v. Schwarzenegger (2007) 146 Cal. App. 4th 739, 750, 53 Cal. Rptr. 3d 203

Injunction may not issue in vacuum based on proponents' fears about something that may happen in future; it must be supported by actual evidence that there is realistic prospect that party enjoined intends to engage in activity to be prohibited; preliminary injunction held to be overbroad and dissolved, and case remanded to trial court concerning portion of preliminary injunction that enjoined defendants and others "and all persons acting in concert or participating with them" from coming onto church's property or "interfering" with worship services or other church functions "at all times and at all places" to determine if (1) pressing need to prevent physical trespass still existed and (2) narrower language concerning this portion of preliminary injunction could be formulated consistent with court's opinion. Korean Philadelphia Presbyterian Church v. California Presbytery (2000) 77 Cal. App. 4th 1069, 1083-1085, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 275

When acts discontinued in good faith, court of equity will not grant injunction to prevent future acts when no evidence that acts likely in future to be repeated; evaluation of probability of recurrence of complained of acts lies in trial court's discretion. City of Vernon v. Central Basin Mun. Water Dist. (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 508, 517-518, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 650

Denial of injunction justified on changed circumstances rendering injunctive relief moot or unnecessary; injunction should not be granted as punishment for past acts absent any evidence that acts are likely to be repeated in future; injunction may be denied when defendant's wrongful conduct voluntarily ceases. Cisneros v. U. D. Registry, Inc. (1995) 39 Cal. App. 4th 548, 574, 46 Cal. Rptr. 2d 233

Injunctive relief is inappropriate if there is no reasonable probability that past acts complained of will recur. Phipps v. Saddleback Valley Unified School Dist. (1988) 204 Cal. App. 3d 1110, 1117, 251 Cal. Rptr. 720

Injunction is not proper remedy to prevent person from doing act that he or she has never undertaken or threatened to undertake. San Francisco v. Market S. R. Co. (1950) 95 Cal. App. 2d 648, 655, 213 P.2d 780

[5] Demurrer to Complaint

Complaint fails to state cause of action for injunctive relief if it alleges only general conclusions not warranted by any pleading of facts. E. H. Renzel Co. v. Warehousemen's Union (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 369, 373, 106 P.2d 1

Complaint treated as affidavit and its sufficiency tested by same rules that are applicable to oral testimony; conclusions are not competent to justify issuance of injunction simply because they might stand as a matter of pleading. Bank of America v. Williams (1948) 89 Cal. App. 2d 21, 23, 200 P.2d 151

[6] Dissolution or Modification

Rule that superior court should modify or vacate injunction on motion if it finds changes in facts or law or if ends of justice would be served applies to preliminary as well as permanent injunctions. New Tech Developments v. Bank of Nova Scotia (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 1065, 1072, 236 Cal. Rptr. 746

Even though jurisdiction to modify injunction is inherent, better practice is to include specific reservation of jurisdiction to modify injunction in judgment. Components for Research, Inc. v. Isolation Products, Inc. (1966) 241 Cal. App. 2d 726, 731, 50 Cal. Rptr. 829

[7] Enforcement of Injunction

No contempt is possible for violating mandatory injunction stayed during course of appeal. Stewart v. Superior Court (1893) 100 Cal. 543, 547, 35 P. 156 ; Johnston v. Superior Court (1957) 148 Cal. App. 2d 966, 969-971, 307 P.2d 946

[8] Enforcement of Undertaking

[a] In General

Because cause of action against sureties is predicated on breach of contract, no element of wrongful act or bad motive is necessary. Russell v. United Pacific Ins. Co. (1963) 214 Cal. App. 2d 78, 87, 29 Cal. Rptr. 346

All that is necessary to recover on injunction bond is final judgment dissolving injunction plus proof of damage; dissolution of injunction fulfills condition of bond. Edwards v. Container Kraft Carton & Paper Supply Co. (1958) 161 Cal. App. 2d 752, 761, 327 P.2d 622

[b] Damages Available

Right to recover damages under former Code Civ. Proc. § 535 (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 996.440) for improperly issued injunction was not available when plaintiffs posted no bond, undertaking, or deposit; defendants were limited to common law remedies by way of action for abuse of process or malicious prosecution. Wallace v. Miller (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 636, 643-645, 189 Cal. Rptr. 637

Damages recoverable on preliminary injunction or temporary restraining order are those that appear with reasonable certainty to be necessary and proximate result of injunction, not exceeding bond's penal sum. Allen v. Pitchess (1973) 36 Cal. App. 3d 321, 327, 111 Cal. Rptr. 658

Measure of damage varies with circumstances of case; arbitrary rules do not govern; equitable principles apply; damages allowed are required to furnish just and reasonable compensation for loss sustained. Surety Sav. & Loan Assn. v. National Automobile & Cas. Ins. Co. (1970) 8 Cal. App. 3d 752, 757, 87 Cal. Rptr. 572

Plaintiff seeking damages from surety on injunction bond is not limited to damages accruing during time injunction was operative; plaintiff is entitled to damages flowing directly from wrongful injunction for period of time beyond date of injunction's dissolution. Russell v. United Pacific Ins. Co. (1963) 214 Cal. App. 2d 78, 88, 29 Cal. Rptr. 346

[c] No Liability for Failure to Post Bond

Failure to post undertaking merely precludes litigant from obtaining injunction; it does not subject him or her to liability for damages that may accrue while opponent allows injunction to stand; remedy in these circumstances is to obtain injunction's dissolution. Dickey v. Rosso (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 493, 499, 100 Cal. Rptr. 358

[d] Terms of Bond Limit Liability

Surety's liability is measured by terms of bond. Wilshire Mortgage Corp. v. Graybeal Co. (1940) 41 Cal. App. 2d 1, 6, 105 P.2d 996

[e] Waiver of Right to Damages

Defendants in suit for injunction waive their rights under surety bond when they sign stipulation dismissing suit without insisting either that plaintiff voluntarily dismiss suit or that court determine whether injunction was properly granted when bond stipulates that surety would not be liable without superior court finally deciding whether plaintiff entitled to temporary restraining order or to preliminary injunction. Wilshire Mortgage Corp. v. Graybeal Co. (1940) 41 Cal. App. 2d 1, 6-7, 105 P.2d 996

[9] General Grounds When Injunctions Available

[a] Inadequacy of Legal Remedy

NOTE:
For specific case examples of when injunctions have been held to be proper, see [19], below.

Extreme difficulty in ascertaining damages is a factor favoring injunctive relief. Huong Que, Inc. v. Luu, 150 Cal. App. 4th 400, 417-418, 58 Cal. Rptr. 3d 527

To obtain preliminary injunctive relief plaintiff is required to show inadequacy of other remedies at law. Gleaves v. Waters (1985) 175 Cal. App. 3d 413, 417, 220 Cal. Rptr. 621 ; In re Marriage of Van Hook (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 970, 984, 195 Cal. Rptr. 541

[b] Irreparable Injury

Term "irreparable injury" as applied to granting of injunction is defined as that species of damages, whether great or small, that ought not to be submitted to on the one hand or inflicted on the other. Anderson v. Souza (1952) 38 Cal. 2d 825, 834, 243 P.2d 497 ; Wind v. Herbert (1960) 186 Cal. App. 2d 276, 285, 8 Cal. Rptr. 817

Elements of cause of action for injunctive relief are tort or other wrongful act constituting cause of action, plus irreparable injury, that is, factual showing that wrongful act constitutes actual or threatened injury to property or personal rights that cannot be compensated by ordinary damage award. Brownfield v. Daniel Freeman Marina Hospital (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 405, 410, 256 Cal. Rptr. 240

Irreparable harm suffered by plaintiff through permanent loss of potential subscriber is sufficient to support issuance of preliminary injunction. National Subscription Television v. Formula International, Inc. (1984) 153 Cal. App. 3d 308, 315, 200 Cal. Rptr. 213

Under definition of irreparable injury, trial judge is warranted in using injunctive power against wrong that is deemed insufferable because it constitutes an overbearing assumption by one person of superiority and domination over rights and property of others. Fretz v. Burke (1967) 247 Cal. App. 2d 741, 746, 55 Cal. Rptr. 879

[c] Personal Services Contract for Unique Services

Term "minimum compensation" referred to in Civ. Code § 3423(e) and Code Civ. Proc. § 526(b)(5) does not mean "net profits"; hence, preliminary injunction to restrain defendant from recording for anyone other than plaintiff pending determination of lawsuit was proper when, under terms of contract, plaintiff advanced to defendant nonreturnable sum of $200,000 per year and defendant was to bear cost of producing recordings, notwithstanding cost of producing recordings exceeded $194,000 per year. MCA Records, Inc. v. Newton-John (1979) 90 Cal. App. 3d 18, 22, 153 Cal. Rptr. 153 (construing former Civ. Code § 3423(5) and Code Civ. Proc. § 526 second subd. (5); now see Civ. Code § 3423(e) and Code Civ. Proc. § 526(b)(5))

Breach of agreement to transfer stock of peculiar value may be enjoined because it may be specifically enforced. Gilfallan v. Gilfallan (1914) 168 Cal. 23, 26, 141 P. 623 ; Steinmeyer v. Warner Cons. Corp. (1974) 42 Cal. App. 3d 515, 519, 116 Cal. Rptr. 57

[d] Preventing Multiplicity of Suits

Injunction is not available to prevent multiple suits absent evidence that the controversies involve the same parties, subject matter, or facts. Planned Parenthood Golden Gate v. Foti (2003) 107 Cal. App. 4th 345, 358, 132 Cal. Rptr. 2d 46

Injunction is necessary to consolidate cases to avoid unseemly conflict between courts that might arise if they were free to make contradictory decisions relating to same controversy. Rynsburger v. Dairymen's Fertilizer Coop., Inc. (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 269, 279, 72 Cal. Rptr. 102

Two classes of cases in which injunction issued to prevent multiplicity of actions are those in which many claims consolidated into one action, and those in which vexatious suits filed on causes of action that have been settled by former adjudication. Verdier v. Verdier (1962) 203 Cal. App. 2d 724, 735, 22 Cal. Rptr. 93 ; Bartholomew v. Bartholomew (1942) 56 Cal. App. 2d 216, 225, 132 P.2d 297

[e] Public Trust

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 526(a)(7), court is authorized to grant injunction when obligation arises from public trust; thus, injunction is proper to enforce city's obligation to use certain property as library. Save the Welwood Murray Memorial Library Com. v. City Council (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 1003, 1016-1017, 263 Cal. Rptr. 896 (construing former Code Civ. Proc. § 526 first subd. (7); now see Code Civ. Proc. § 526(a)(7))

[f] Rendering Judgment Ineffectual

Preliminary injunction against disposal of property is proper if disposal would render final judgment ineffectual, for example, when property is being dissipated. Heckmann v. Ahmanson (1985) 168 Cal. App. 3d 119, 136, 214 Cal. Rptr. 177

Injunction may be issued under Code Civ. Proc. § 526(a)(3) to enjoin directors who had resigned and who had been superseded by election of others when they were shown to have threatened to hold directors' meeting and to take action detrimental to interest of stockholder seeking injunctive relief. Rossi v. Rossi (1955) 134 Cal. App. 2d 639, 641, 286 P.2d 563 (construing former Code Civ. Proc. § 526 first subd. (3); now see Code Civ. Proc. § 526(a)(3))

[g] Taxpayer Suits

Taxpayer's general interest in not having public funds spent unlawfully, while sufficient to afford standing to bring taxpayer's action under Code Civ. Proc. § 526a and to obtain permanent injunction after full adjudication on merits, does not constitute type of irreparable harm that warrants preliminary injunctive relief. White v. Davis, 30 Cal. 4th 528, 556-557, 133 Cal. Rptr. 2d 648, 68 P.3d 74

Code Civ. Proc. § 526a authorizes action by resident taxpayer against officers of county, town, city, or city and county to obtain injunction restraining and preventing illegal expenditure of public funds; primary purpose of Code Civ. Proc. § 526a is to enable large body of citizenry to challenge governmental action that would otherwise go unchallenged because of standing requirement. Blair v. Pitchess (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 258, 267-268, 96 Cal. Rptr. 42, 486 P.2d 1242

Taxpayer action must involve an actual or threatened expenditure of public funds. General allegations, innuendo, and legal conclusions are not sufficient; rather, the plaintiff must cite specific facts and reasons for a belief that some illegal expenditure or injury to the public fisc is occurring or will occur. Connerly v. Schwarzenegger (2007) 146 Cal. App. 4th 739, 749, 53 Cal. Rptr. 3d 203

Liberal construction of Code Civ. Proc. § 526a to permit taxpayers' challenge to illegal government activity without showing of special damage to particular taxpayer does not require trial court in action for preliminary injunction conclusively to presume irreparable injury and balance of interim harms in taxpayer's favor when taxpayer has failed to show further actual or threatened harm to himself or herself, or to show that other persons in community felt imminently threatened. Cohen v. Board of Supervisors (1986) 178 Cal. App. 3d 447, 453-456, 225 Cal. Rptr. 114

[h] Unconstitutional or Invalid Statute

Equity court may enjoin prosecution that is based on unconstitutional statute or ordinance that would injure plaintiff's rights. Abbott v. City of Los Angeles (1960) 53 Cal. 2d 674, 678 n.2, 3 Cal. Rptr. 158, 349 P.2d 974

Enforcement of local ordinance banning street vendors from parking in residential areas is preempted by Vehicle Code and thus subject to preliminary injunction. Barajas v. City of Anaheim (1993) 15 Cal. App. 4th 1808, 1813, 1817, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 764

Granting of preliminary injunction against enforcement of municipal ordinance is proper if ordinance is unconstitutionally overbroad with pervasive chilling effect on exercise of free speech. American Booksellers Assn., Inc. v. Superior Court (1982) 129 Cal. App. 3d 197, 206-207, 181 Cal. Rptr. 33

Code Civ. Proc. § 526(b)(7) is not applicable when action sought to be restrained is unlawful so long as purportedly taken in absence of conditions that are prerequisite to its legality. Camp v. Board of Supervisors (1981) 123 Cal. App. 3d 334, 356-357, 176 Cal. Rptr. 620 (construing former Code Civ. Proc. § 526 second subd. (7); now see Code Civ. Proc. § 526(b)(7))

Preliminary injunction is properly issued preventing enforcement of unconstitutionally vague and overbroad municipal ordinance that required license to engage in charitable solicitations and vested unrestrained discretion in licensing official. Hillman v. Britton (1980) 111 Cal. App. 3d 810, 818-826, 168 Cal. Rptr. 852

Injunctive relief is available when statute valid on its face is unconstitutionally applied, but discretion of trial court is not abused in denying preliminary injunction to party that is unlikely to prevail on question of constitutionality. Merandette v. City and County of San Francisco (1979) 88 Cal. App. 3d 105, 110-111, 151 Cal. Rptr. 580

[10] General Grounds When Injunctions Not Available

[a] Bar Federal Actions

NOTE:
For specific case examples of when injunctions have been held to be improper, see [20], below.

State courts do not have power to enjoin litigants from filing and prosecuting pending or prospective in personam actions in the federal courts. General Atomic Co. v. Felter (1977) 434 U.S. 12, 12, 98 S. Ct. 76, 54 L. Ed 2d 199

[b] No Irreparable Harm

Injunction not available when employer suffered no actual or threatened harm to its computer system when former employee sent mass e-mail messages to current employees. Intel Corporation v. Hamidi (2003) 30 Cal. 4th 1342, 1353, 1 Cal. Rptr. 3d 32, 71 P.3d 296

Injunctive or declaratory relief was not proper when county was not moving to enforce judgment for attorney's fees against allegedly indigent petitioners, and therefore no serious risk of irreparable harm was shown. Lezama v. Justice Court (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 15, 21, 235 Cal. Rptr. 238

[c] Prevent Breach of Contract Not Specifically Enforceable

Breach of contract to render personal services may not be enjoined because contract may not be specifically enforced.

Foxx v. Williams (1966) 244 Cal. App. 2d 223, 235, 52 Cal. Rptr. 896

[d] Prevent Breach of Personal Services Contract

Employer that is prohibited by Civ. Code § 3423(e) from enjoining performer/employee from performing for another company is similarly unable to enjoin other company from hiring employee/performer. Beverly Glen Music, Inc. v. Warner Communications, Inc. (1986) 178 Cal. App. 3d 1142, 1145, 224 Cal. Rptr. 260 (construing former Civ. Code § 3423(5); now see Civ. Code § 3423(e), with amended minimum compensation requirements)

Personal services contract clause giving employer option to pay employee at least $6,000/year does not satisfy minimum compensation requirement for injunctive relief allowed under exception of Civ. Code § 3423(e). Motown Record Corp. v. Brockert (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 123, 135-140, 207 Cal. Rptr. 574 (construing former Civ. Code § 3423(5); now see Civ. Code § 3423(e), with amended minimum compensation requirements)

Injunction to prevent breach of personal services contract requires compensation for services under that contract to be at rate of not less than $6,000/year, and performer's being paid at least $6,000/year under another contract with same employer does not satisfy that requirement. Motown Record Corp. v. Brockert (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 123, 134, 207 Cal. Rptr. 574

[e] Prevent Collection of Tax

Injunction will not be granted to prevent collection of tax; rule applies equally to local taxes; to contest constitutionality of tax ordinance, taxpayer must pay tax and file suit for refund. Flying Dutchman Park, Inc. v. City and County of San Francisco (2001) 93 Cal. App. 4th 1129, 1131, 1137, 1151-1153, 113 Cal. Rptr. 2d 690 (parking tax)

Injunction prohibiting sale of noncash asset seized pursuant to jeopardy assessment is improper injunction against collection of tax. Hunter-Reay v. Franchise Tax Board (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 875, 878-881, 189 Cal. Rptr. 810

[f] Prevent Execution of Public Statute

Courts lacks jurisdiction to enjoin enforcement of validly adopted constitutional ordinance. Carson Mobilehome Park Owners' Ass'n v. City of Carson (1983) 35 Cal. 3d 184, 195, 197 Cal. Rptr. 284, 672 P.2d 1297

Injunction is not available to enjoin execution of public statute except where: (1) the statute is unconstitutional and there is a showing of irreparable injury; (2) the statute is valid but is enforced in an unconstitutional manner; (3) the statue is valid but, as construed, does not apply to the plaintiff; and (4) the public official's action exceeds his or her authority. Alfaro v. Terhune (2002) 98 Cal. App. 4th 492, 501, 120 Cal. Rptr. 2d 197

Injunctive relief is not available to prevent execution of public statute relating to parole. McCarthy v. Superior Court (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 1023, 1031-1032, 236 Cal. Rptr. 833

Trial courts are required to be extremely cautious to enjoin law enforcement officials from enforcing ordinance approved and adopted to promote and protect public morality. DeMott v. Board of Police Commissioners (1981) 122 Cal. App. 3d 296, 300, 175 Cal. Rptr. 879

Only exceptions to rule that injunction will not lie to prevent execution of public statute by officers of law for public benefit is when statute itself is unconstitutional or when officer of law is acting illegally. Lawton v. Board of Medical Examiners (1956) 143 Cal. App. 2d 256, 263, 299 P.2d 362

[g] Prevent Legislative Act by Municipal Corporation

Civ. Code § 3423(g) and Code Civ. Proc. § 526(b)(7), which prevent injunctive relief being granted to prevent legislative act by municipal corporation, are based on doctrine of separation of powers of government into three independent departments. City of Los Angeles v. Superior Court (1959) 51 Cal. 2d 423, 430, 333 P.2d 745 (construing former Civ. Code § 3423(7) and Code Civ. Proc § 526 second subd. (7); now see Civ. Code § 3423(g) and Code Civ. Proc § 526(b)(7))

[11] Jurisdiction: Personal Jurisdiction Required

Plaintiff is not required to serve summons in addition to temporary restraining order for court to obtain personal jurisdiction over defendant. Chrysler Credit Corp. v. Waegele (1972) 29 Cal. App. 3d 681, 687-689, 105 Cal. Rptr. 914

[12] Mandatory Injunction vs. Mandate

Mandate, rather than mandatory injunction, is traditional remedy for public official's failure to perform legal duty, and legal principles governing judicial compulsion of official acts have developed under rubric of mandamus rather than injunction. Common Cause v. Board of Supervisors (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 432, 442, 261 Cal. Rptr. 574, 777 P.2d 610

There are two basic requirements for a writ of mandate: a clear, present and usually ministerial duty on the part of the defendant, and a clear, present and beneficial right in the petitioner to the performance of that duty. Catalina Investments, Inc. v. Jones (2002) 98 Cal. App. 4th 1, 6, 119 Cal. Rptr. 2d 256

[13] Nature and Purpose of Injunctive Relief

[a] In General

Injunctions may require person to do certain action in affirmative manner. Comfort v. Comfort (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 736, 741, 112 P.2d 259

Express codified purpose of prohibitory injunction is to prevent future harm to applicant by ordering defendant to refrain from doing particular act. Scripps Health v. Marin (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 324, 332, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 86

Injunction is equitable remedy available in special proceeding for mandamus as well as in civil action because Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1084-1097 (mandamus proceedings) incorporate Code Civ. Proc. §§ 525-534 (injunctive relief) as rules of practice. Camp v. Board of Supervisors (1981) 123 Cal. App. 3d 334, 356, 176 Cal. Rptr. 620

[b] Action Rather Than Proceeding

Suit for injunction classified is "action" under Code Civ. Proc. § 22 rather than "special proceeding" within meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 23. Tide Water Assoc. Oil Co. v. Superior Court (1955) 43 Cal. 2d 815, 822, 279 P.2d 35 ; Yuba County v. North America Consolidated Gold Min. Co. (1909) 12 Cal. App. 223, 225, 107 P. 139

Suit for injunction is case in equity. Coast Truck Line v. Asbury Truck Co. (1933) 218 Cal. 337, 339, 23 P.2d 513 ; People v. Englebrecht (2001) 88 Cal. App. 4th 1236, 1245, 106 Cal. Rptr. 2d 738

Well-established rule is that injunction may run to classes of persons through whom enjoined party may act, such as agents, servants, employees, aiders, and abettors, though they were not parties to action; thus, injunction restraining corporation and its officers, agents, and employees is binding on all such persons having notice of injunction. Ross v. Superior Court (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 899, 906, 141 Cal. Rptr. 133, 569 P.2d 727 ; Pitchess v. Superior Court (1969) 2 Cal. App. 3d 653, 656, 83 Cal. Rptr. 41

Complaint was insufficient to state damage claim against defendant for alleged violation of injunction when complaint on face showed defendant was not party enjoined; action claiming violation of injunction must plead and prove party was bound by order and had ability to comply with order; court noted plaintiff cited no authority holding private civil action seeking damages for violation of an injunction may be maintained, although some courts have stated in dicta that such action is available. Freeman v. San Diego Assn. of Realtors (1999) 77 Cal. App. 4th 171, 203-204, 91 Cal. Rptr. 2d 534

Person may be held guilty of contempt when he or she violates injunction even though not a party to original action if he or she is included in injunction and has either actual or constructive notice thereof. Mattos v. Superior Court (1939) 30 Cal. App. 2d 641, 647, 86 P.2d 1056

[15] Preliminary Injunctions

[a] Burden of Proof

To obtain preliminary injunction, plaintiff must establish that defendants should be restrained from challenged activity, pending trial; plaintiff must show (1) reasonable probability it will prevail on merits and (2) that harm to plaintiff resulting from not granting preliminary injunction outweighs harm to defendant from imposing injunction. Trader Joe's Co. v. Progressive Campaigns, Inc. (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 425, 429-430, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 442

In seeking preliminary injunction, plaintiff bears burden of demonstrating both likely success on merits and occurrence of irreparable harm before final judgment can be entered. Savage v. Trammell Crow Co. (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 1562, 1571, 273 Cal. Rptr. 302

[b] Denial in Doubtful Case

Denial of preliminary injunction to cable television company that would have allowed it to reconnect subscribers at apartment complex who had been disconnected by complex owner in breach of contract was proper when money damages would be adequate, cable company had no First Amendment right to connect equipment, and intrusion would be more harmful to owner and competing cable company than exclusion would be to plaintiff. Cox Cable of San Diego, Inc. v. Bookspan (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 22, 25-30, 240 Cal. Rptr. 407

Preliminary injunction will not issue in doubtful case. Thayer Plymouth Center, Inc. v. Chrysler Motors Corp. (1967) 255 Cal. App. 2d 300, 305, 63 Cal. Rptr. 148

Denial of preliminary injunction is proper when plaintiff's allegations completely denied and substantial conflict in evidence exists. London v. Marco (1951) 103 Cal. App. 2d 450, 452-453, 229 P.2d 401

[c] Discretion of Trial Court

Generally, ruling on application for preliminary injunction rests in sound discretion of trial court. Hunt v. Superior Court (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 984, 999, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 236, 987 P.2d 705

The law is well settled that the decision to grant a restraining order rests in the sound discretion of the trial court; a trial court will be found to have abused its discretion only when it has exceeded the bounds of reason or contravened the uncontradicted evidence. Biosense Webster, Inc. v. Superior Court (2006) 135 Cal. App. 4th 827, 834, 37 Cal. Rptr. 3d 759

Granting or denial of preliminary injunction rests in trial court's sound discretion; discretion is abused when court exceeds bounds of reason or contravenes uncontradicted evidence. Continental Baking Co. v. Katz (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 512, 527, 67 Cal. Rptr. 761, 439 P.2d 889 ; California Correctional Peace Officers Assn. v. State of California (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 294, 302, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 302

Trial court is required to exercise its discretion in favor of party that is more likely to be injured by decision to grant or refuse injunction. Continental Baking Co. v. Katz (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 512, 528, 67 Cal. Rptr. 761, 439 P.2d 889 ; California State University, Hayward v. National Collegiate Athletic Assn. (1975) 47 Cal. App. 3d 533, 544, 121 Cal. Rptr. 85 Generally, ruling on application for preliminary injunction rests in trial court's sound discretion, and exercise of that discretion is not disturbed on appeal absent showing that it has been abused. Board of Supervisors v. McMahon (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 286, 295, 268 Cal. Rptr. 219

Granting or denial of preliminary injunction on verified complaint, together with oral testimony or affidavits, rests in trial court's sound discretion even though evidence may be conflicting. California Satellite Systems, Inc. v. Nichols (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 56, 63, 216 Cal. Rptr. 180

Granting or denial of preliminary injunction rests in trial court's sound discretion; action of trial court is not adjudication of ultimate rights in controversy, but merely determination that defendant should or should not be restrained; denial of injunction is usual action unless there is reasonable probability that plaintiff will succeed in action. Bennett v. Lew (1984) 151 Cal. App. 3d 1177, 1182-1183, 199 Cal. Rptr. 241

Exercise of court's discretion to deny preliminary injunction is proper if based on substantial evidence either that irreparable harm will not occur to plaintiff or that plaintiff has not demonstrated reasonable probability of success in action. Jessen v. Keystone Savings & Loan Assn. (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 454, 459, 191 Cal. Rptr. 104

Exercise of trial court's discretion in granting or denying preliminary injunction is based on considerations of balancing of hardships and likelihood that moving party will prevail in trial on merits. Forde v. Bank of Finance (1982) 136 Cal. App. 3d 38, 42, 186 Cal. Rptr. 272

[d] Effect of Judgment on Merits

When judgment on merits for defendant is reversed on appeal and case remanded, plaintiff is entitled to preliminary injunction originally granted; but evidentiary hearing is required before preliminary injunction reinstated. City of Oakland v. Superior Court (1982) 136 Cal. App. 3d 565, 569-570, 186 Cal. Rptr. 326

Judgment granting or denying final injunction ends preliminary injunction. Shahen v. Superior Court (1941) 46 Cal. App. 2d 187, 188, 115 P.2d 516

Granting of preliminary injunction does not constitute adjudication on merits of complaint. Pro-Family Advocates v. Gomez (1996) 46 Cal. App. 4th 1674, 1681 n.9, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 600

Appellate decision does not constitute final adjudication of ultimate rights in controversy, but rather only determination of whether trial court abused its discretion based on record before it at time of ruling. Shoemaker v. County of Los Angeles (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 618, 625-626, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 774

[f] Factors Considered

In deciding whether to issue preliminary injunction, trial court weighs two interrelated factors, i.e., likelihood moving party will prevail on merits, and relative interim harm to parties from issuance or nonissuance of injunction; trial court may not grant preliminary injunction regardless of balance of harm unless there is some possibility that plaintiff would ultimately prevail on merits of claim. Hunt v. Superior Court (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 984, 999, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 236, 987 P.2d 705

Only when one party cannot prevail on the ultimate merits of the case as a matter of law, the balance of hardships is irrelevant and the grant of a preliminary injunction would merely delay the inevitable result. Tosi v. County of Fresno (2008) 161 Cal. App. 4th 799, 803-804, 74 Cal. Rptr. 3d 727

The likelihood of a plaintiff's ultimate success on the merits affects the showing necessary to a balancing-of-hardships analysis. That is, the more likely it is that the plaintiff will ultimately prevail, the less severe must be the harm that they allege will occur if the injunction does not issue. It is the mix of these factors that guides the trial court in its exercise of discretion. Right Site Coalition v. Los Angeles Unified School Dist. (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 336, 345-346, 72 Cal. Rptr. 3d 678

When plaintiff is not governmental entity and statute does not expressly provide otherwise, finding of interim harm is necessary. DVD Copy Control Association Inc. v. Bunner (2004) 116 Cal. App. 4th 241, 250, 10 Cal. Rptr. 3d 185

Trial courts evaluate two interrelated factors when deciding whether to issue preliminary injunction; first is likelihood that plaintiff will prevail on merits at trial; second is interim harm plaintiff will likely sustain if injunction were denied as compared to harm defendant will likely suffer if injunction were issued; by balancing respective equities, trial court should conclude whether, pending trial on merits, defendant should or should not be restrained from exercising his or her claimed right. California Correctional Peace Officers Assn. v. State of California (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 294, 302, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 302

Two related factors trial court considers in determining whether to grant preliminary injunction are (1) likelihood plaintiff will prevail on merits of its case at trial and (2) interim harm that plaintiff is likely to sustain if injunction is denied as compared to harm defendant is likely to suffer if injunction is granted; latter factor involves consideration of such things as inadequacy of other remedies, degree of irreparable harm, and necessity of preserving status quo. 14859 Moorpark Homeowner's Assn. v. VRT Corp. (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 1396, 1402, 74 Cal. Rptr. 2d 712

In ruling on motion for preliminary injunction, court considers whether greater injury will result to defendant from granting injunction than to plaintiff from refusing it; trial court considers probability of plaintiff's ultimately prevailing in trial on merits and denies preliminary injunction unless there is reasonable probability that plaintiff will successfully assert his or her rights. Southern Christian Leadership Conference v. Al Malaikah Auditorium Co. (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 207, 223, 281 Cal. Rptr. 216

[g] Irreparable Injury Showing

Order granting preliminary injunction is not fatally flawed because order contains no explicit finding that injunction is necessary to prevent irreparable injury. Conover v. Hall (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 842, 850, 114 Cal. Rptr. 642, 523 P.2d 682

When party seeking injunction will not succeed on merits, injunction should not issue even though its issuance might prevent irreparable harm, because there is no justification in delaying that harm when, although irreparable, it is also inevitable. 14859 Moorpark Homeowner's Assn. v. VRT Corp. (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 1396, 1408, 74 Cal. Rptr. 2d 712

To qualify for preliminary injunctive relief, plaintiff is required to show irreparable injury, either existing or threatened, and to satisfy this requirement, plaintiff is required to present evidence. Loder v. City of Glendale (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 777, 782-783, 265 Cal. Rptr. 66

Before trial court can exercise its discretion to grant preliminary injunction, applicant is required to make prima facie showing of entitlement to injunctive relief and to demonstrate real threat of immediate and irreparable injury due to inadequacy of legal remedies. Triple A Machine Shop, Inc. v. State of California (1989) 213 Cal. App. 3d 131, 138, 261 Cal. Rptr. 493

Requirement of showing irreparable injury is strictly applied if preliminary injunction sought to thwart enforcement of ordinances the validity of which is presumed. City of Santa Monica v. Superior Court (1964) 231 Cal. App. 2d 223, 227, 41 Cal. Rptr. 824

[h] Nomenclature Used Unimportant

Regardless of label for order used by issuing court, if restraint is until further order of court, it is preliminary injunction. Neumann v. Moretti (1905) 146 Cal. 31, 32-33, 79 P. 512 ; Lincoln v. Superior Court (1942) 51 Cal. App. 2d 61, 67, 124 P.2d 179

[i] Purpose

General purpose of preliminary injunction is to preserve status quo pending final adjudication of claims on merits. O'Connell v. Superior Court (2006) 141 Cal. App. 4th 1452, 1472, 47 Cal. Rptr. 3d 147

Purpose of preliminary injunction is to preserve status quo until final determination of action's merits. Korean American Legal Advocacy Foundation v. City of Los Angeles (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 376, 398-399, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 530 ; Major v. Miraverde Homeowners Assn. (1992) 7 Cal. App. 4th 618, 623, 9 Cal. Rptr. 2d 237

Preserving status quo is not restricted to inaction; continuing of regular and usual procedures is also encompassed in term's meaning. Fretz v. Burke (1967) 247 Cal. App. 2d 741, 746, 55 Cal. Rptr. 879

[j] Scope of Injunction

Injunction against corporate employer inappropriate to enjoin actions of specific employees. Huntingdon Life Sciences, Inc. v. Stop Huntingdon Animal (2005) 129 Cal. App. 4th 1228, 1266, 29 Cal. Rptr. 3d 521

Preliminary injunction that subjected defendant's right to engage in protected speech to censorship of group that disagreed with its content constituted impermissible "heckler's veto," and even if there were basis to enjoin certain conduct of defendant's members, injunction went much further than necessary to provide relief sought by plaintiff.

San Diego Unified Port Dist. v. U.S. Citizens Patrol (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 964, 970-971, 74 Cal. Rptr. 2d 364

In action by political group challenging prohibition of shopping center and its management company against distributing leaflets in center, trial court, in granting preliminary injunction, did not abuse its discretion by extending injunction to all shopping centers throughout state owned, managed, or controlled by defendants, even though complaint mentioned only one shopping center, when evidence presented to trial court showed that other shopping centers managed or owned by defendants had enforced similar rules restricting access to centers; not only did this disposition avert wastefulness of additional judicial proceedings that would have produced same result, it appropriately provided complete interim relief from extensive threatened infringement of California constitutional rights (Cal. Const., art. I, § 2(a)). Westside Sane/Freeze v. Ernest W. Hahn, Inc. (1990) 224 Cal. App. 3d 546, 560, 274 Cal. Rptr. 51

[16] Procedure to Obtain Permanent Injunction

[a] Determination by Appellate Court

Whether permanent injunction should issue is question of law when ultimate facts undisputed; appellate court is permitted to determine issue without regard to conclusion of trial court in this situation. Eastern Columbia, Inc. v. Waldman (1947) 30 Cal. 2d 268, 273, 181 P.2d 865

[b] Effect of Appeal From Preliminary Injunction

Appeal from order granting or refusing to grant preliminary restraining order pending determination of cause on its merits does not deprive court of jurisdiction to try cause on its merits. Gray v. Bybee (1943) 60 Cal. App. 2d 564, 571, 141 P.2d 32

[17] Procedure to Obtain Preliminary Injunction

[a] Granting Permanent Injunction Generally Prohibited

Court has jurisdiction to determine merits of case and to grant permanent injunction on hearing for preliminary injunction without further trial when only substantive issue to be decided is question of law resolvable without reference to extrinsic evidence, which was already addressed at preliminary injunction hearing. Camp v. Board of Supervisors (1981) 123 Cal. App. 3d 334, 357-358, 176 Cal. Rptr. 620

Unless based on stipulation or other satisfactory showings submitting cause on merits, court has no jurisdiction to determine merits on hearing of motion for temporary injunction, and orders purporting to do so are void; stipulation to use of return in mandamus action in declaratory relief action is not stipulation to trial on merits. Antoine v. Department of Public Health (1973) 33 Cal. App. 3d 215, 220-221, 108 Cal. Rptr. 689

[b] Standard of Proof Required

Clear and convincing evidence standard is proper one for preliminary injunction because preliminary injunction involves only temporary determination, and clear and convincing evidence standard is sufficient to show existence of reasonable probability of obtaining permanent injunction. People ex rel. Gow v. Mitchell Brothers' Santa Ana Theater (1981) 118 Cal. App. 3d 863, 872, 173 Cal. Rptr. 476

[c] Undertaking

A bond may be waived or forfeited by the person to be enjoined. Smith v. Adventist Health System/West (2010) 182 Cal. App. 4th 729, 740-744, 106 Cal. Rptr. 3d 318

Single individual may constitute sufficient surety within meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 529 in accordance with trial court's discretion. River Trails Ranch Co. v. Superior Court (1980) 111 Cal. App. 3d 562, 567, 168 Cal. Rptr. 747

Minute order that continues in effect restraining order that does not provide for an undertaking is of no effect. Miller v. Santa Margarita Land & Cattle Co. (1963) 217 Cal. App. 2d 764, 766, 31 Cal. Rptr. 866

[d] Verified Complaint or Affidavits Required

Explicit finding of irreparable harm is not required to sustain preliminary injunction when complaint alleged irreparable injury, absent any contrary indication in record. Conover v. Hall (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 842, 850, 114 Cal. Rptr. 642, 523 P.2d 682

In absence of verified showing of threatened harm by moving party, a trial court exceeds its jurisdiction by granting preliminary injunction. Gray v. Superior Court (2005) 125 Cal. App. 4th 629, 640-641, 23 Cal. Rptr. 3d 50

Court subjects facts stated in complaint to same test to which oral testimony is subject; conclusionary statements are required to be supported by facts or court will not sustain application for injunction. Finnie v. Town of Tiburon (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 1, 14-15, 244 Cal. Rptr. 581

Declaration in connection with action for preliminary injunction was properly disregarded because declarant merely interpreted question of law beyond declarant's competence. Sullivan v. Fox (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 673, 682 n.4, 683, 235 Cal. Rptr. 5

Complaint alleging on information and belief and declaration by widow, not party to contract, regarding her expectations as to survivability of dealership, was insufficient for injunction. San Francisco Newspaper Printing Co. v. Superior Court (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 438, 441-442, 216 Cal. Rptr. 462

Complaint is required to state facts showing how and why injury would result. San Juan Gold Co. v. San Juan Ridge Mut. Water Asso. (1939) 34 Cal. App. 2d 159, 174, 93 P.2d 582

Court was not justified in extending its aid by way of preventive relief in absence of facts substantiating or supporting allegation of irreparable injury. Eames v. Philpot (1925) 72 Cal. App. 151, 157, 236 P. 373

[18] Procedure to Obtain Temporary Restraining Order

Restraining orders generally not granted on affidavits stated on information and belief. Provident L. Corp. v. Provident I. Dist. (1937) 22 Cal. App. 2d 105, 108, 79 P.2d 392

Temporary restraining order is not necessarily void merely because order to show cause not actually heard and determined within statutory period; hearing may be continued either at request of defendant or when necessary business of court prevents it from hearing the matter within statutory period. McDonald v. Superior Court (1937) 18 Cal. App. 2d 652, 656-657, 64 P.2d 738

Nomenclature used does not determine whether an order is temporary restraining order or preliminary injunction. Yellen v. Fidelity & Casualty Co. of N.Y. (1931) 115 Cal. App. 434, 436, 1 P.2d 1019

[19] Specific Situations When Injunctions Available

[a] Actions in Excess of Jurisdiction

NOTE:
For case examples of general grounds for injunctions, see [9], above.

Court of equity may enjoin municipal corporations, inferior boards, or inferior tribunals from acting or proposing to act in excess of their jurisdiction and without authority. San Ysidro Irr. Dist. v. Superior Court (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 708, 719-720, 16 Cal. Rptr. 609, 365 P.2d 753

[b] Completed Acts That Will Probably Recur

For standing to seek injunction, plaintiff must show likelihood plaintiff will be harmed in future if injunction not granted. Blumhorst v. Jewish Family Services of Los Angeles (2005) 126 Cal. App. 4th 993, 1004, 24 Cal. Rptr. 3d 474

Injunction may be granted with regard to past acts if there is evidence that they will probably recur. Rosicrucian Fellow. v. Rosicrucian Fellowship Non-Sectarian Ch. (1952) 39 Cal. 2d 121, 144, 245 P.2d 481 ; Fretz v. Burke (1967) 247 Cal. App. 2d 741, 744, 55 Cal. Rptr. 879

Court in injunction matters does not consider issues moot when issues relate to matter of public interest and there is likelihood that matter will arise again in future. Dept. of Agriculture v. Tide Oil Co. (1969) 269 Cal. App. 2d 145, 150-151, 74 Cal. Rptr. 799

Court is not required to accept guilty party's statement that he or she no longer intends to commit transgressions when he or she retains means of continuing transgressions. Wood v. Peffer (1942) 55 Cal. App. 2d 116, 124, 130 P.2d 220

[c] Conversion

Injunction against use of plaintiff's jewelry molds was appropriate to prevent defendants from profiting from conversion of plaintiff's property. Gladstone v. Hillel (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 977, 988-990, 250 Cal. Rptr. 372

[d] First Amendment Rights Protected

Loss of First Amendment freedoms, for even minimal periods of time, "unquestionably" constitutes irreparable injury. Ketchens v. Reiner (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 470, 480, 239 Cal. Rptr. 549

In case involving unconstitutionally overbroad and vague licensing ordinance, plaintiffs were irreparably harmed when threatened with prosecution or arrest if they asserted their First Amendment rights, even though they neither applied for nor were denied license to solicit, and were not under arrest for attempting to solicit without license. Hillman v. Britton (1980) 111 Cal. App. 3d 810, 813-816, 168 Cal. Rptr. 852

[e] Injuries to Land

[i] Eminent Domain Without Compensation

General rule is that when taking of private property for public use is attempted under power of eminent domain without any provision having been made for compensation, injunction is available; exception to rule is made when public use has intervened and other relief by way of damages for inverse condemnation is available. Sheffet v. County of Los Angeles (1970) 3 Cal. App. 3d 720, 737, 84 Cal. Rptr. 11

[ii] Encroachments

Mandatory injunction is available to abate encroachment; balancing conveniences of parties and weighing relative hardships. Posey v. Leavitt (1991) 229 Cal. App. 3d 1236, 1243, 1247-1249, 1251-1252, 280 Cal. Rptr. 568

To justify mandatory injunction against encroachment, plaintiff must show irreparable injury even though damage need not be great. Pearson v. Baldwin (1954) 125 Cal. App. 2d 670, 673, 270 P.2d 866

[iii] Private Nuisances

Polluting kilns of factory enjoined as private nuisance. Vowinckel v. N. Clark & Sons (1932) 216 Cal. 156, 163, 13 P.2d 733

Obstruction of easement enjoined as private nuisance. Hartsif v. Wann (1956) 139 Cal. App. 2d 119, 120, 293 P.2d 65

Barking of dogs in pet hospital enjoined as private nuisance. Wilms v. Hand (1951) 101 Cal. App. 2d 811, 816, 226 P.2d 728

[iv] Public Nuisances

Although gang injunction with nonassociation provision placed incidental burden on familial relationships, such burden was necessary under the circumstances for injunction to be effective. People ex rel. Reisig v. Acuna (2010) 182 Cal. App. 4th 866, 885-886, 106 Cal. Rptr. 3d 560

Health & Safey Code § 33459 et seq. allows redevelopment agency to seek injunction compelling utility to remove or remedy environmental contamination within project area; redevelopment agency need not plead direct financial jeopardy to have standing to sue. Redevelopment Agency of San Diego v. San Diego Gas & Electric Co. (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 912, 917-920, 4 Cal. Rptr. 3d 317

Gang member subject to injunction prohibiting various activities including possessing weapons and associating with other gang members within designated area. People v. Englebrecht (2001) 88 Cal. App. 4th 1236, 1242, 1267, 106 Cal. Rptr. 2d 738

Owner of property adjacent to landscaped freeway may be subject to injunction prohibiting advertising display violating Outdoor Advertising Act [Bus. & Prof. Code § 5200 et seq.]. People ex rel. Dept. of Transportation v. Maldonado (2001) 86 Cal. App. 4th 1225, 1231, 104 Cal. Rptr. 2d 66

Sale of videotapes of obscene films was subject to preliminary injunction because sale is clearly commerce and public distribution of obscenity. People ex rel. Gow v. Mitchell Brothers' Santa Ana Theater (1981) 118 Cal. App. 3d 863, 869-870, 173 Cal. Rptr. 476

Property owner adjacent to nuisance on state-owned land may obtain injunction if owner shows special injury to himself or herself; proof of substantial injury, actual or potential, is required to maintain action for public nuisance. Woods v. Johnson (1966) 241 Cal. App. 2d 278, 281, 50 Cal. Rptr. 515

[v] Threatened Repeated Acts of Trespass

Distribution of newsletter under apartment doors could be enjoined because building was private and access restricted to tenants and their guests. Golden Gateway Center v. Golden Gateway Tenants Assn. (2001) 26 Cal. 4th 1013, 1033-1035, 111 Cal. Rptr. 2d 336, 29 P.3d 797

Trespass of continuing nature, constant recurrence of which would render remedy at law inadequate unless by multiplicity of suits, affords sufficient ground for relief by way of injunction. Slater v. Pacific American Oil Co. (1931) 212 Cal. 648, 655, 300 P. 31 ; State of California v. Hansen (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 604, 611, 11 Cal. Rptr. 335

Courts of equity do not permit suit for injunction to be substituted for legal action for ejectment; injunction issued, however, because threatened injury would be irreparable and legal remedy inadequate. Harmon v. DeTurk (1917) 176 Cal. 758, 762, 169 P. 680

Injunction will issue to prevent wrongful act if its continuance may ripen into easement in favor of defendant that will deprive plaintiff of use and enjoyment of his or her property or take substance of his or her estate. Freitas v. City of Atwater (1961) 196 Cal. App. 2d 289, 296, 16 Cal. Rptr. 397

Property owner was not relegated to successive suits for damages when repeated or continuous trespasses take place. Empire Star Mines Co. v. Butler (1944) 62 Cal. App. 2d 466, 529, 145 P.2d 49

[vi] Use of Property

Plaintiff is entitled to injunction against continued and threatened wrongful use of property unless harmful results thereof are of trivial nature or are compensable in damages. Kennedy v. Rosecrans Gardens, Inc. (1952) 114 Cal. App. 2d 87, 90, 249 P.2d 593

In cases involving promises as to use of property, injunctive relief is granted if awarding of damages inadequate. Smith v. Mendonsa (1952) 108 Cal. App. 2d 540, 543, 238 P.2d 1039

[vii] Water Rights

Injunctive relief is proper when one cotenant is taking more water than his or her proportionate share. Barton Land & Water Co. v. Crafton Water Co. (1915) 171 Cal. 89, 97, 152 P. 48 ; De La Cuesta v. Bazzi (1941) 47 Cal. App. 2d 661, 672-673, 118 P.2d 909

Injunctive relief is proper to restrain defendant from using water of particular stream when party seeking injunction claims right to take all water from particular stream. Lema v. Ferrari (1938) 27 Cal. App. 2d 65, 71, 80 P.2d 157

[f] Interference With Established Business

Injunctive relief is granted to prevent improper diversion of customers by private competitors or even to restrain law enforcement officials from acting beyond scope of their authority. Crittenden v. Superior Court (1964) 61 Cal. 2d

565, 568, 39 Cal. Rptr. 380, 393 P.2d 692

Owner of business may enjoin enforcement of unconstitutional or void statute or ordinance that deprives him or her of effective access to his or her customers. Crittenden v. Superior Court (1964) 61 Cal. 2d 565, 568, 39 Cal. Rptr. 380, 393 P.2d 692 ; McKay Jewelers, Inc. v. Bowron (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 595, 597-604, 122 P.2d 543

Owner of established business may enjoin enforcement of unconstitutional or void statute or ordinance that causes irreparable injury to his or her business. Crittenden v. Superior Court (1964) 61 Cal. 2d 565, 568, 39 Cal. Rptr. 380, 393 P.2d 692 ; Bueneman v. City of Santa Barbara (1937) 8 Cal. 2d 405, 408-415, 65 P.2d 884

Threat of future interference with lawful business is proper subject for injunctive action. Uptown Enterprises v. Strand (1961) 195 Cal. App. 2d 45, 51, 15 Cal. Rptr. 486 ; Imperial Ice Co. v. Rossier (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 33, 39, 112 P.2d 631

[g] Labor Policy of State Violated

Injunctive relief and damages are appropriate when employees are discharged contrary to public policy as reflected in Lab. Code §§ 923 (freedom of employees to pursue rights) and 1196 (discrimination against employee for testifying concerning minimum wage violations). Montalvo v. Zamora (1970) 7 Cal. App. 3d 69, 75-77, 86 Cal. Rptr. 401

[h] Obscenity

Issuance of preliminary injunction prohibiting exhibition of obscene films in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. § 527 is constitutional because burden is on censor to bring matter to final determination and statute requires that highest priority is given to final determination. People ex rel. Gow v. Mitchell Brothers' Santa Ana Theater (1981) 118 Cal. App. 3d 863, 867-869, 173 Cal. Rptr. 476

[i] Partnership Dissolution Proceedings

Preliminary injunction is proper in partnership dissolution proceedings. Fretz v. Burke (1967) 247 Cal. App. 2d 741, 744, 55 Cal. Rptr. 879 ; Kendall v. Foulks (1919) 180 Cal. 171, 173-174, 179 P. 886

[j] Preventing Breach of Specifically Enforceable Contract

Injunction is proper to restrain owner from using policy limiting occupancy of three-bedroom apartment in publicly assisted complex; Civ. Code § 3423 is not applicable because regulatory agreement provided that city could compel owner's performance by mandamus or other legal or equitable proceeding. Zakaria v. Lincoln Property Co. (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 500, 507-510, 229 Cal. Rptr. 669

[k] Restrictive Covenant in Deed

Code Civ. Proc. § 731a does not abolish rule that land use that is violative of restrictive covenant may be enjoined even though zoning permits the use. Mullally v. Ojai Hotel Co. (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 9, 11-12, 71 Cal. Rptr. 882

Grantor is entitled to injunction to restrain grantee from violating valid restrictive covenant contained in deed. Doo v. Packwood (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 752, 756-757, 71 Cal. Rptr. 477

[l] Restrictive Employment Covenants

Rule of equity that under contract calling for exceptional services employer may enjoin his or her employee from rendering those services to others is applicable to options. Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc. v. Brodel (1948) 31 Cal. 2d 766, 773-774, 192 P.2d 949

Injunction is properly issued against parties to agreement not to compete, those in privity with them, and persons who may aid convenantor in violating covenant. H.G. Fenton Mat. Co. v. Challet (1942) 49 Cal. App. 2d 410, 415, 121 P.2d 788

[m] Trade Secrets

Injunction issued under trade secret law against web site operator for posting program that decrypted contents of DVDs and enabled users to copy and distribute movies did not violate free speech clauses of United States and California Constitutions. DVD Copy Control Assn., Inc. v. Bunner (2003) 31 Cal. 4th 864, 881883, 4 Cal. Rptr. 3d 69, 75 P.3d 1

Preliminary injunction not available to protect trade secret when, after publication, trade secret became widely known to public. DVD Copy Control Association Inc. v. Bunner (2004) 116 Cal. App. 4th 241, 252-255, 10 Cal. Rptr. 3d 185

Injunctions in the area of trade secrets are governed by the principles applicable to injunctions in general. Schlage Lock Company v. Whyte (2002) 101 Cal. App. 4th 1443, 1449, 125 Cal. Rptr. 2d 277

Part of information contained in reports filed with County Air Quality Management District (District) pursuant to the Air Toxics "Hot Spots" Information and Assessment Act of 1987 (Health & Safety Code § 44300 et seq.) qualified as protected trade secrets under the act and trial court erred in denying motion for preliminary injunction to prevent its disclosure by District; similarly, information denominated as trade secrets in reports when submitted to District were entitled to trade secret protection, did not become public records despite mistaken disclosure by public agencies to environmental organizations, and trial court erred in denying motion for preliminary injunction to prevent disclosure of that information by District; however, information mistakenly not designated as trade secrets in the original filed reports, but only so designated in later revised, redacted reports and items identified in reports as trade secret information, but voluntarily disclosed elsewhere without trade secret designation, became a public record not subject to trade secret protection, so that trial court did not err in denying the motion for preliminary injunction to enjoin disclosure of that category of information by District. Masonite Corp. v. County of Mendocino Air Quality Management Dist. (1996) 42 Cal. App. 4th 436, 449-455, 49 Cal. Rptr. 2d 639

Any unwarranted disclosure of confidential information constitutes breach of trust, and equity may restrain any threatened disclosure or use thereof by employee or former employee to detriment of employer; character of information, if peculiar and important to business, is not material. Ernst & Ernst v. Carlson (1966) 247 Cal. App. 2d 125, 128-129, 55 Cal. Rptr. 626 (manner of handling account by accounting firm); Riess v. Sanford (1941) 47 Cal. App. 2d 244, 246, 117 P.2d 694 (manner of manufacturing cactus phonograph needles)

Guidelines required to be established as conditions precedent to obtain injunction against unlawful use of confidential information by former employee. Nalley's Inc. v. Corona Processed Foods, Inc. (1966) 240 Cal. App. 2d 948, 952, 50 Cal. Rptr. 173 ; Alex Foods, Inc. v. Metcalfe (1955) 137 Cal. App. 2d 415, 429, 290 P.2d 646

Injunction prohibiting defendants from soliciting further business from customers was not too broad when evidence existed that justified trial court in concluding that list of customers was confidential and was unfairly used by defendants to detriment of plaintiffs. American Loan Corp. v. California Commercial Corp. (1963) 211 Cal. App. 2d 515, 525, 27 Cal. Rptr. 243

[n] Preserving Discovery

Injunction available to preserve status quo pending discovery motion. Dodge, Warren & Peters Insurance Services, Inc. v. Riley (2003) 105 Cal. App. 4th 1414, 1416, 130 Cal. Rptr. 2d 385 (court affirms preliminary injunction based on probably of success on merits of pending discovery motion requiring preservation of electronic evidence)

[20] Specific Situations When Injunctions Prohibited

[a] Authorize Violation of Criminal Statute

NOTE:
For case examples of general grounds when injunctions are not available, see [10], above.

Preliminary injunction may not permit and authorize even a limited violation of criminal statute. Downing v. Cal. State Board of Pharmacy (1948) 85 Cal. App. 2d 30, 36, 192 P.2d 39

[b] Encroachments

Injunction to remove encroachment is not always available; if court in its discretion balances hardship and allows encroachment to remain, it may grant encroacher affirmative relief (here prescriptive easement) to protect its interest in disputed land. Hirshfield v. Schwartz (2001) 91 Cal. App. 4th 749, 754-755, 110 Cal. Rptr. 2d 861

[c] Enforce Criminal Law

Civ. Code § 3369 is statutory enactment of fundamental rule that courts of equity are not concerned with criminal matters and may not be resorted to for preventing criminal acts except when property rights are involved. Stegner v. Bahr & Ledoyen, Inc. (1954) 126 Cal. App. 2d 220, 231, 272 P.2d 106 ; Perrin v. Mountain View Mausoleum Asso. (1929) 206 Cal. 669, 671, 275 P. 787

Civ. Code § 3369 is applicable when acts complained of constitute merely a crime or series of crimes; only when threatened acts will constitute public nuisance as that term is defined by statute may court of equity prevent injury through injunction. People v. Brophy (1942) 49 Cal. App. 2d 15, 32, 120 P.2d 946

Reason that court of equity will not undertake to enforce criminal law is that individual accused of crime by way of injunction would be required to prove his or her own innocence and would lose constitutionally guaranteed rights. Monterey Club v. Superior Court (1941) 48 Cal. App. 2d 131, 146, 119 P.2d 349

[d] Federal Labor Law Preempts State Jurisdiction

Trial court has no jurisdiction to issue injunction in labor dispute enjoining picketing when under federal law controversy is subject to jurisdiction of National Labor Relations Board and when plaintiff fails to demonstrate that Board in its discretion would decline to assert jurisdiction. Musicians Union, Local No. 6 v. Superior Court (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 695, 700, 73 Cal. Rptr. 201, 447 P.2d 313

[e] Prevent Criminal Prosecution

Separation of powers doctrine (Cal. Const., art. III, § 3) requires judicial restraint in enjoining criminal investigations and prosecutions; prosecutor's authority stems from executive branch of government, and investigation and gathering of evidence relating to criminal offenses is prosecutor's responsibility and rests solely within his or her discretion; discretionary authority to investigate and prosecute criminal conduct is considered too vital to the interest of public order to be subjected to prior restraint by courts except under extraordinary circumstances. Triple A Machine Shop, Inc. v. State of California (1989) 213 Cal. App. 3d 131, 144-145, 261 Cal. Rptr. 493

Injunction is not granted to protect person from prosecution for alleged commission of criminal offense; court having jurisdiction over criminal offenses is forum in which such question of fact determined. Manchel v. County of Los Angeles (1966) 245 Cal. App. 2d 501, 505, 54 Cal. Rptr. 53

Rule that injunction not granted to protect person from prosecution for alleged commission of criminal offense is rule irrespective of contention that injunction should be issued to prevent multiplicity of actions or to prevent injurious interference with plaintiff's business. Fairchild v. Brock (1948) 88 Cal. App. 2d 425, 429, 199 P.2d 9

[f] Prevent Fair Competition With Former Employer

In absence of enforceable contract containing negative covenants to the contrary, equity will not enjoin former business associate from soliciting business of former employer provided competition is fairly and legally conducted. Anderson Crop Dusters, Inc. v. Matley (1958) 159 Cal. App. 2d 811, 814, 324 P.2d 710 ; Aetna Bldg. Maintenance Co. v. West (1952) 39 Cal. 2d 198, 203, 246 P.2d 11

Question in cases of alleged unfair competition is whether former employee is guilty of unfair competition in soliciting former employer's customers. Aetna Bldg. Maintenance Co. v. West (1952) 39 Cal. 2d 198, 203, 246 P.2d 11

Whether equity will enjoin former employees from using information acquired while in that employment to disadvantage of former employer depends on whether or not in each case information gained is secret and confidential. Peerless Oakland Laundry Co. v. Hickman (1962) 205 Cal. App. 2d 556, 559, 23 Cal. Rptr. 105

Injunction is not granted against former employee of plaintiff employer when relief would in effect restrain employee from pursuing his or her profession. Futurecraft Corp. v. Clary Corp. (1962) 205 Cal. App. 2d 279, 288, 23 Cal. Rptr. 198

[g] Restrain Exercise of Constitutional Right

In action for injunction to require shopping center to allow plaintiff to distribute religious leaflets on automobiles in center's parking lot, preliminary injunction was properly denied when defendant's declaration stated that prohibiting distribution of any literature in parking lot was designed to prevent littering and traffic problems, which was valid regulation of time, place, or manner of activity otherwise protected by California Constitution, which is measured by federal constitutional standards, was content neutral and narrowly tailored to meet significant interest of shopping center, and thus demonstrated that plaintiff was not likely to succeed in establishing right to distribute religious tracts in parking lot. Savage v. Trammell Crow Co. (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 1562, 1571-1575, 273 Cal. Rptr. 302

[h] Right-to-Die

Judicial intervention in right-to-die cases should be minimal; thus, injunction is improper unless there is disagreement between parties and they have exhausted all nonjudicial efforts to resolve dispute. Conservatorship of Morrison (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 304, 312, 253 Cal. Rptr. 530

[i] Transfer Possession of Real or Personal Property

Injunctive relief not appropriate remedy for secured creditor to recover personal property; writ of possession is appropriate remedy for secured party to obtain possession of collateral. Simms v. NPCK Enterprises, Inc. (2003) 109 Cal. App. 4th 233, 243, 134 Cal. Rptr. 2d 557

No basis for injunctive relief as existing to restore attorney locked out of law offices by other members of legal corporation to possession or use of premises, equipment, or client files on mere allegations of wrongful discharge from employment; preliminary injunction as not granted to transfer possession of real or personal property held under ostensibly extant employment contract when title in dispute. Voorhies v. Greene (1983) 139 Cal. App. 3d 989, 996-998, 189 Cal. Rptr. 132

[j] Trespass by Public Service Entity

Trespass by public service entity generally precludes award of injunctive relief when owner has notice or gives permission. Slemons v. Southern Cal. Edison Co. (1967) 252 Cal. App. 2d 1022, 1026, 60 Cal. Rptr. 785

PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLISTS

26-303 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 303.120

§ 303.120 Plaintiff's Checklist for Obtaining Preliminary Injunction

PRACTICE TIP:
If plaintiff desires to obtain a preliminary injunction after a complaint has already been filed and the party against whom it is sought has appeared, the plaintiff may follow the noticed motion procedure directly, without requesting a temporary restraining order [see Wutchumna Water Co. v. Superior Court (1932) 215 Cal. 734, 739-740, 12 P.2d 1033 (implicitly approving motion procedure); see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1150(a)].

☐ Draft notice of motion for preliminary injunction [see § 303.133].

☐ Draft memorandum of points and authorities.

☐ Draft affidavits or declarations.

☐ Obtain statements from, and then prepare affidavits or declarations on behalf of, all persons who have personal knowledge of facts that support issuance of requested preliminary injunction.

☐ Obtain signatures and, if affidavits used, have statements notarized.

☐ Make sufficient copies for service on all parties.

☐ Request that the court file to be made available to judge hearing the application [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1150(b)].

☐ Appear at hearing of motion.

☐ Present complaint, memorandum of points and authorities, and affidavits or declarations, to court.

PRACTICE TIP:
Counsel should ascertain in which department, if relevant, and at what time of day, if restricted, applications for preliminary injunctions are considered [see, e.g., Los Angeles Co. Super Ct. Rules, Rule 2.5(i) (applications for preliminary injunction assigned to Writs and Receivers Department)].

☐ Present any oral argument or witnesses, if permitted by local court rules, to appropriate court for hearing.

☐ Disclose to court any previous application for similar relief, and if any, the result of the application [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1008(b); see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1150(e)].

COMMENT:
If the temporary restraining order has been issued, the hearing on order to show cause for preliminary injunction must be set no later than 15 days or, if good cause appears to court, 22 days from date of order [Code Civ. Proc. § 527(d)(1)].

☐ If granted, draft proposed preliminary injunction and present it to the judge for signature within one court day after the granting of the application unless another time period has been ordered by court [Cal. Rules Ct., Rule 3.1150(f)].

☐ Obtain undertaking or bond in amount ordered by court [see Code Civ. Proc. § 529(a)] and present it to the judge with the proposed preliminary injunction order within one court day after granting of application unless another time period has been ordered by court [Cal. Rules Ct., Rule 3.1150(f)].

☐ Personally serve preliminary injunction signed by judge on all enjoined parties, and serve by mail on the attorneys for all parties to ensure that they have notice of it.

PRACTICE TIP:
If a party desires to obtain a preliminary injunction against a party who has not appeared in the action, an order to show cause is generally used. The order serves not only as a notice of the hearing but also as a citation or summons giving the court personal jurisdiction over the party to be enjoined [see Sarracino v. Superior Court (1974) 13 Cal. 3d 1, 8 n.6, 118 Cal. Rptr. 21, 529 P.2d 53] .

☐ Draft complaint [see § 303.130], if case has not yet been initiated.

☐ Draft order to show cause [see § 303.131].

☐ Draft memorandum of points and authorities.

☐ Draft affidavits or declarations.

☐ Obtain statements from, and then prepare affidavits or declarations on behalf of, all persons who can make the application for provisional relief stronger from factual standpoint.

☐ Obtain signatures and, if affidavits, have statements notarized.

☐ Make sufficient copies to append a copy of each affidavit or declaration to each copy of the complaint.

☐ File complaint, if not previously filed.

☐ If action is initiated on the same day as the OSC is sought, provide file-stamped copy of complaint to judge who will hear application;if action was initiated earlier, request that court file to be made available to judge hearing the application [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1150(f)].

☐ Present papers to court.

PRACTICE TIP:

Counsel should ascertain in which department, if relevant, and at what time of day, if restricted, applications for preliminary injunctions are considered.

☐ Serve order to show cause, any memorandum of points and authorities, and affidavits or declarations on party to be enjoined.

If unable to serve, file an affidavit stating that the opposing party could not be served within the time required and ask court to reissue Order to Show Cause and Temporary Restraining Order [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 527(d)(2), 527(d)(5); for illustration of Judicial Council Form 982(a)(30), see § 303.142].

☐ Appear at hearing.

☐ Present papers and any oral argument or witnesses, if permitted by local court rules, to appropriate court for hearing.

☐ Disclose to the court any previous application for similar relief, and if any, the result of the application [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1008(b); see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1150(e)].

☐ If granted, draft proposed preliminary injunction and present it to the judge for signature within one court day after granting of application unless another time period has been ordered by court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1150(f)].

☐ Obtain undertaking or bond in amount ordered by court [see Code Civ. Proc. § 529(a)] and present it to judge with proposed preliminary injunction order within one court day after granting of application unless another time period has been ordered by court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1150(f)].

☐ Personally serve preliminary injunction signed by judge on all enjoined parties, as well as on their attorneys, and serve by mail on the attorneys for all parties to ensure that they have notice of it.

§ 303.121 Defendant's Checklist for Opposing Injunctive Relief

[1] Preliminary Determinations

PRACTICE TIP:
Counsel defending against an application for injunctive relief should carefully investigate local practice for any different or additional requirements governing opposition to injunctive relief.

☐ Determine date, manner, and place of service of temporary restraining order and order to show cause, notice of motion, or order to show cause.

☐ Determine which of the facts alleged in applicant's documents are true, which are false, and which ones responding party is unsure about.

☐ Determine sufficiency of complaint and affidavits, declarations, and other supporting papers for purposes of responding to complaint by demurrer, answer, motion to strike, and counter-affidavits or counter-declarations.

☐ Ascertain available defenses:

- ☐ Injunctive relief is prohibited by statute.
- ☐ Injunctive relief is prohibited by equitable considerations or other reasons as they have been developed by decision.
- ☐ Changed circumstances or complete acts.

☐ Balance of conveniences favors responding party.

☐ Injunction will infringe on responding party's First Amendment rights.

☐ Laches.

☐ Applicant's legal remedy is adequate.

☐ Injunction will adversely affect important public interest.

☐ Unclean hands.

☐ Statutes of limitation.

☐ Venue.

[2] Documents to Be Obtained

☐ Written statements of parties or witnesses under penalty of perjury, supported by documentary evidence.

☐ Diagrams, photographs, or other descriptions of property or conduct involved.

☐ Bills, receipts, canceled checks, etc., that might serve as evidence of extent of harm incurred by applicant.

[3] Response to Temporary Restraining Order

☐ Respond to notification, if any [see Code Civ. Proc. § 527(c); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1150(g), 3.1200- 3.1207; see also § 303.31[3]].

☐ Request undertaking or bond if court decides to issue temporary restraining order [see § 303.31[6]].

[4] Response to Application for Preliminary Injunction

☐ Consider initiating discovery for use in preparing the application's opposition (including expedited discovery).

☐ Draft motion to modify or dissolve temporary restraining order, if temporary restraining order was issued and motion is warranted.

☐ Draft answer to complaint and verify answer, if necessary [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446].

☐ Draft demurrer to complaint, if warranted [see § 303.43[5], 303.135].

☐ Draft motion to strike any portions of applicant's declarations that do not satisfy the requirements for admissible evidence.

☐ Draft responding affidavits or declarations [see § 303.134]:

☐ Obtain statements from and prepare affidavits or declarations on behalf of all persons who can provide factual statements on personal knowledge that contradict applicant's complaint, affidavits, or declarations in support of application for preliminary injunction.

☐ Obtain signatures and, if affidavits, have statements notarized.

☐ Make sufficient copies for the purpose of appending a copy of each to each copy of the answer to be served on all other parties.

☐ Prepare memorandum opposing application for preliminary injunction, if warranted [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113], and make sufficient copies for the purpose of appending a copy of each to each copy of the demurrer or answer to be served on all other parties.

☐ File answer and any other supporting papers.

☐ Serve answer, affidavits or declarations, and any memorandum of points and authorities on all other parties [see Code Civ. Proc. § 527(e)].

☐ Obtain continuance to prepare for hearing, if desired [see Code Civ. Proc. § 527(d)(4)].

☐ Appear at hearing.

☐ Draft proposed order denying preliminary injunction and dissolving temporary restraining order [see § 303.137], if desired or requested; or alternatively, ordering the filing of an undertaking by the applicant.

☐ Prepare an affidavit or declaration, if requested or required, that states facts that will assist the court in fixing the amount of the undertaking or bond.

☐ Object to undertaking, if warranted on grounds that [see Code Civ. Proc. § 529; see also Code Civ.

Proc. § 995.920 et seq.]:

☐ Sureties are insufficient.

☐ Amount of undertaking is insufficient.

☐ Undertaking is insufficient for any other cause [see Code Civ. Proc. § 995.920].

☐ Ascertain damages to later be taken out of amount of undertaking if temporary restraining order is dissolved.

8. Plaintiff has no adequate remedy at law for the injuries _____ [currently being suffered or that are threatened] as _____ [specify facts in addition to those previously alleged that tend to show the inadequacy of any legal remedy, especially monetary damages, that plaintiff might pursue, e.g., it will be impossible for plaintiff to determine the precise amount of damage that he/she will suffer if defendants' conduct is not restrained or plaintiff will be forced to institute a multiplicity of suits to obtain adequate compensation for his/her injuries].

[9. Allege damages, if any, that have been incurred, e.g., As a proximate result of defendants' wrongful conduct, plaintiff's _____ (specify, e.g., property or business) has been damaged in the sum of $_____. (Plaintiff will be further damaged in like manner so long as defendants' conduct continues. The full amount of this damage is not now known to plaintiff, and plaintiff will amend this complaint to state this amount when it becomes known to him/her or on proof of the damages.)]

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendants, and each of them, as follows:

1. For an order requiring defendants to show cause, if any they have, why they should not be enjoined as set forth in this complaint, during the pendency of this action;

2. For a temporary restraining order, a preliminary injunction, and a permanent injunction, all enjoining defendants, and each of them, and their agents, servants, and employees, and all persons acting under, in concert with, or for them:

a. From _____ [specify each of the acts, courses of conduct, and conditions defendants are to be prohibited from doing, commencing, continuing, maintaining, failing to do, etc.];

b. To _____ [specify each of the acts, courses of conduct, and conditions defendants are to be commanded to do, undertake, etc.];

3. For damages in the sum of $_____, plus damages in such further sums as may be sustained and as are ascertained before final judgment in this action;

4. For costs of suit incurred in this action; and

5. For such other and further relief as the court deems proper.

VERIFICATION

I, _____ [name], am the plaintiff in the above-entitled action. I have read the foregoing complaint and know its contents. The same is true of my own knowledge, except as to those matters that are alleged in the complaint on information and belief, and as to those matters, I believe them to be true.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

[2] Use of Form

The general form of complaint in [1], above, is for use by a plaintiff who is seeking a temporary restraining order, preliminary injunction [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 526, 527; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1150], and permanent injunction [Code Civ. Proc. § 525] as well as damages. The infinite variety of factual situations in which injunctions may be issued precludes any greater specificity [see, e.g., Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1151 (description of property required in petition for injunction to limit picketing, enjoin encroachment on real property, or protect easement)]. Counsel desiring more specific allegations regarding a particular factual situation should consult § 303.02[2] for references to forms of complaints for specific injunctive relief contained in this set. For further discussion of this complaint, see § 303.42[4].

In drafting the general form of complaint for injunctive relief at [1], above, it was assumed that counsel will be filing affidavits (or declarations under penalty of perjury [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) in support of the allegations in the complaint. If the complaint will not be supported by affidavits (or declarations), counsel must take care to plead evidentiary facts that would entitle plaintiff to the relief sought [Finnie v. Town of Tiburon (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 1, 15, 244 Cal. Rptr. 581 ; Moreno Mut. Irr. Co. v. Beaumont Irr. Dist. (1949) 94 Cal. App. 2d 766, 778, 211 P.2d 928 ; see Leach v. City of San Marcos (1989) 213 Cal. App. 3d 648, 661, 261 Cal. Rptr. 805] . In addition, if no affidavits or declarations are prepared, the complaint must be verified [see Code Civ. Proc. § 527(a)].

[3] Verification

Verification [Code Civ. Proc. § 446] is required if plaintiff seeks a temporary restraining order or a preliminary injunction on a verified complaint instead of on affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 527(a)]. If relying on a verified complaint instead of affidavits (or declarations), counsel must plead evidentiary facts that would entitle plaintiff to the relief sought [see E.H. Renzel Co. v. Warehousemen's Union (1940) 16 Cal. 2d

369, 373, 106 P.2d 1 ; Finnie v. Town of Tiburon (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 1, 15, 244 Cal. Rptr. 581] . For discussion, a procedural checklist, and additional forms necessary in order to obtain a temporary restraining order or preliminary injunction, see Ch. 303, Injunctions .

Otherwise, verification is not required, but verification of the complaint requires the defendant to file a verified answer [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446] and precludes use of a general denial [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion of the effect that verifying a complaint has on the answer, see Ch. 26, Answers .

[4] Certification re Notice

For a discussion of the notice required when a temporary restraining order is sought without formal notice, see § 303.31[3][b]. The certification is normally appended to the application for the temporary restraining order [see § 303.132].

[5] Subject Matter Jurisdiction

Superior courts in limited civil cases have jurisdiction to issue temporary restraining orders and preliminary injunctions to preserve property or rights of any party to an action of which court has jurisdiction [Code Civ. Proc. § 86(a)(8)], but they cannot issue permanent injunctions in limited civil cases. For discussion of subject matter jurisdiction [Cal. Const., art. VI, §§ 5 and 10], see § 303.20. For discussion of jurisdiction in California courts in general, see Ch. 323, Jurisdiction: Personal , and Ch. 324, Jurisdiction: Subject Matter .

[6] Personal Jurisdiction

For discussion of personal jurisdiction, see § 303.21. For further discussion, see generally Ch. 323, Jurisdiction: Personal .

[7] Venue

For discussion of venue, see § 303.23. For discussion and forms related to the subject of venue generally, see Ch. 571, Venue .

[8] Allegations

[a] In General

The form of complaint in [1], above, alleges the following:

- Plaintiff's capacity (Paragraph 1).
- Facts showing a protectible right or interest (Paragraph 2).
- Defendants' capacity (Paragraph 3).
- An optional allegation alleging fictitious defendants (Paragraph 4) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 474].
- The nature of defendants' wrongful conduct (Paragraph 5).
- An optional paragraph setting forth any demand that plaintiff has made that defendants refrain from their conduct (Paragraph 6).

- Facts showing how defendants' conduct will constitute great and irreparable injury (Paragraph 7) [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 526(a)(2), 527; see E. H. Renzel Co. v. Warehousemen's Union (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 369, 373, 106 P.2d 1] .

- Facts showing why plaintiff lacks an adequate remedy at law (Paragraph 8) [see Civ. Code § 3422(1)-(3); Code Civ. Proc. § 526(a)(4)-(6)].

- An optional paragraph setting forth any damages that plaintiff has incurred (Paragraph 9) [see Civ. Code § 3333].

[b] Pleading Must Be Factual, Not Conclusionary

The allegations of the complaint must be factual; conclusionary averments are insufficient to support issuance of an injunction [E. H. Renzel Co. v. Warehousemen's Union (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 369, 370-371, 106 P.2d 1 ; Finnie v. Town of Tiburon (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 1, 15, 244 Cal. Rptr. 581 ; see Leach v. City of San Marcos (1989) 213 Cal. App. 3d 648, 661, 261 Cal. Rptr. 805] .

[c] Irreparable Injury and Inadequacy of Legal Remedy

This complaint alleges both plaintiff's irreparable injury (Paragraph 7) and the inadequacy of his or her legal remedy (Paragraph 8). Although Code Civ. Proc. § 526 appears to make these separate, independent grounds for obtaining preliminary injunctive relief [see Code Civ. Proc. § 526(a)(2), (4), (5)], both allegations traditionally are included in a complaint for injunctive relief [see Lezama v. Justice Court (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 15, 21, 235 Cal. Rptr. 238] . This is because an injury will not be considered irreparable when it can be adequately compensated in damages--that is, when the remedy at law is adequate [Helms Bakeries v. St. Bd. Equalization (1942) 53 Cal. App. 2d 417, 425, 128 P.2d 167] . Moreover, Civ. Code § 3422, which governs the issuance of final injunctions, does not list irreparable injury as a ground for obtaining a final injunction [see Civ. Code § 3422].

Nevertheless, the fact that an injury cannot be compensated at law clearly must be alleged as part of an allegation that an injury is irreparable. The California Supreme Court has stated that the questions of whether an actual or threatened injury is irreparable and whether the legal remedy is adequate are so inextricable that the two should be considered together [People v. Monterey Fish Products Co. (1925) 195 Cal. 548, 564, 234 P. 398] . The complaint should therefore allege both facts showing actual or threatened injury (Paragraph 7) and facts showing that the legal remedy of an action for damages is inadequate because of either the inadequacy of pecuniary compensation for the wrong committed or threatened, or the continuing or repeated character of the wrong (Paragraph 8) [see Huong Que, Inc. v. Luu, 150 Cal. App. 4th 400, 417-418, 58 Cal. Rptr. 3d 527 ; Brownfield v. Daniel Freeman Marina Hospital (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 405, 410, 256 Cal. Rptr. 240 ; Lezama v. Justice Court (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 15, 21, 235 Cal. Rptr. 238 ; Gleaves v. Waters (1985) 175 Cal. App. 3d 413, 417, 220 Cal. Rptr. 621] .

[9] Damages Permitted

A suit may combine legal and equitable relief. For further discussion, see § 303.10[3]. For additional discussion of damages, see Ch. 177, Damages .

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use to apply ex parte for a temporary restraining order and order to show cause re preliminary injunction [see Code Civ. Proc. § 527(a)-(f) (procedure for securing temporary restraining order and preliminary injunction on basis of facts alleged in verified complaint or set forth in affidavits); Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5 (use of declaration under penalty of perjury in lieu of affidavit)]. For a form of order to show cause re preliminary injunction and temporary restraining order, see § 303.132, below. For discussion of the requirements under Code Civ. Proc. § 527(c) for issuing a temporary restraining order ex parte, see § 303.31[3]. Generally, temporary restraining orders will not be granted on affidavits which are stated on information and belief [Low v. Low (1956) 143 Cal. App. 2d 650, 654, 299 P.2d 1022 ; Provident L. Corp. v. Provident I. Dist. (1937) 22 Cal. App. 2d 105, 108, 79 P.2d 392] . For discussion of jurisdiction, venue, and sufficiency of allegations, see § 303.130[5] -[10].

The form at [1], above, includes a statement to indicate whether the plaintiff has previously applied for similar relief, and if so, the result of the application [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1150(e)].

The form also includes an attorney's certificate regarding advance notification of the application, which is required by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1204. For discussion of this requirement, see § 303.31[3][b].

[3] Memorandum

There is no requirement that the ex parte application for a temporary restraining order and order to show cause re preliminary injunction be supported by a memorandum. Nevertheless, statute requires that, when the matter first comes up for hearing, the party who obtained the temporary restraining order must be ready to proceed, and must have served on the opposite party within five days from the date of the temporary restraining order or at least two days before the hearing, whichever is earlier, a copy of the complaint and of all affidavits or declarations to be used in the application and a copy of the points and authorities in support of the application [Code Civ. Proc. § 527(d)(1)].

Even when not required, counsel may wish to cite any authority that would support the granting of the temporary restraining order and order to show cause for the court's information so that the application will not be denied and plaintiff directed to proceed by noticed motion. If a memorandum of points and authorities is used, the nature of the papers in the caption of this form should be amended to include "and Memorandum of Points and Authorities." For memoranda of points and authorities supporting and opposing the issuance of preliminary injunctions, see California Points and Authorities, Ch. 116, Injunctions (Matthew Bender).

On reading the [verified] complaint of plaintiffs on file in the above-entitled action [and the _____ (declaration(s) or affidavit(s))] [and the memorandum of points and authorities submitted therewith], it appears to the satisfaction of the court that this is a proper case for granting an order to show cause for a preliminary injunction [and a temporary restraining order, and that, unless the temporary restraining order prayed for be granted, great or irreparable injury will result to plaintiff before the matter can be heard on notice].

IT IS ORDERED that the above-named defendants, and each of them, appear in [_____ (Department or Division) _____ of] this court, located at _____ [address], _____ [city], on _____ [date], at _____ [time], or as soon thereafter as the matter may be heard, then and there to show cause, if any they have, why they and their agents, servants, employees, and representatives, and all persons acting in concert or participating with them, should not be enjoined and restrained during the pendency of this action from engaging in, committing, or performing, directly or indirectly, any and all of the following acts:

_____ [Specify the various acts and lines of conduct or threatened acts and conduct sought to be prohibited, as far as practicable use the same terms as those used in the prayer of the complaint];

b.

_____ [Continue with such specifications if more than one].

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the above-named defendants, and each of them, appear at the same time and place and show cause, if any they have, why they should not be commanded by order of this court and required [during the pendency of this action] to:

a.

_____ [Specify each of the acts or courses of conduct defendants are to be commanded to do, commence, or continue, and each of the conditions they are to maintain];

b.

_____ [Continue with such specifications if more than one].

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that:

a. Plaintiff shall serve this order to show cause on defendants in the following time and manner:

_____ .

b. Proof of service must be delivered to the court hearing the OSC on:

c. The parties shall adhere to the following briefing schedule:

[d. The temporary restraining order shall expire on:

[IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that, pending the hearing and determination of the order to show cause, the above-named defendants, and each of them, and their officers, agents, employees, representatives, and all persons acting in concert or participating with them, are restrained and enjoined from engaging in or performing, directly or indirectly, any and all of the following acts:]

_____ (Specify acts or conduct to be prohibited pending the order to show cause hearing. Frequently these acts will be merely a repetition of the preceding prohibitory specifications, but counsel may seek a restraining order that is different (usually less extensive) from the preliminary injunction he or she seeks);]

[b.

_____ (Continue with such specifications if more than one).]

[IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that, pending the hearing and determination of the above order to show cause, the above-named defendants, and each of them, are required and ordered to:]

_____ (Specify each of the acts or courses of conduct defendants are to be commanded to do, commence, or continue, and each of the conditions they are to maintain pending the order to show cause hearing. Frequently these acts will be merely a repetition of the preceding mandatory specifications, but counsel may seek a restraining order that is different (usually less extensive) from the preliminary injunction he or she seeks);]

[b.

_____ (Continue with such specifications if more than one).]

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that copies of the complaint [, _____ (declaration(s) or affidavits(s)),] [memorandum of points and authorities,]and this order to show cause [and temporary restraining order] be served on _____ [defendants or the party against whom this order is made] not later than _____ [date].

[Include order fixing bond if counsel for plaintiff knows that same will be required by court e.g., Bond on this temporary restraining order is fixed in the sum of $_____.]

Let the above order issue [on plaintiff's filing a bond in the sum of $_____].
Dated: _____.

Judge of the Superior Court

[If counsel for plaintiff does not know in advance that the court will require a bond before issuing a temporary restraining order, he or she should not include any reference to a bond in the body of the order. Rather, reference to it may be added to the order later, as follows, e.g., Bond on the above temporary restraining order is fixed in the sum of $_____. The above temporary restraining order may not issue until plaintiff has filed a bond in the above-specified sum.]
Dated: _____.

_____ [signature]
Judge of the Superior Court

The form of order to show cause (OSC) and optional temporary restraining order (TRO) in [1], above, is for use by plaintiff in obtaining that injunctive relief before the hearing on an order to show cause why a preliminary injunction should not be issued [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1150(a)-(c)]. The form contains both prohibitory and mandatory allegations with regard to the OSC and the TRO. Counsel should freely delete any of the allegations that are not appropriate to the type of relief required in a particular situation.

The language granting a TRO is set forth as optional language in the form as it would not be used in the case in which the plaintiff is seeking only a preliminary injunction and not a TRO. For the same purpose, language within the OSC may also be modified by use of optional phrases for giving notice of a hearing on an application for a preliminary injunction when plaintiff's counsel is not seeking a TRO and/or the opposing party has not appeared in the action. The use of an OSC is preferred over the noticed-motion procedure set forth in § 303.133 because it is an order from the court that may be enforced by contempt proceedings [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1209(a)(5)].

The OSC and the TRO must be stated separately, with the OSC stated first. Furthermore, the retraining language sought in an OSC and a TRO must be separately stated in each and may not be incorporated by reference. The OSC must describe the injunction to be sought at the hearing, and the TRO must describe the activities to be enjoined pending the hearing [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1150(c)].

In addition, the proposed OSC must contain blank spaces for the time and manner of service on the responding party or parties, the date on which the proof of service must be delivered to the court hearing the OSC, a briefing schedule, and if applicable, for the expiration date of the TRO [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1150(c)]. When a temporary restraining order is granted without notice, the matter must be made returnable on order to show cause why preliminary injunction should not be granted. The hearing on the order to show cause must be held on the earliest day that the business of the court permits, but not later than 15 days, or 22 days if good cause appears to the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 527(d)(1)].

For a discussion of the procedures required to obtain a TRO, the ex parte issuance of a TRO, and the issuance of an OSC, see §§ 303.30 -303.31.

[3] No Ex Parte Issuance After Answer

An injunction may not be allowed after the defendant has answered unless it is on notice or on an order to show cause [Code Civ. Proc. § 528]. In that case, however, the defendant may be restrained until the decision of the court or judge granting or refusing the injunction [Code Civ. Proc. § 528].

[4] Undertaking

An undertaking on temporary restraining order is not required by statute but may be required by reason of the trial court's inherent power over provisional relief. If required, the bond may include as obligees any persons who the trial court determines, in exercise of its sound discretion, should be protected against the impact of the temporary restraining order if it is found to have been improperly issued [Allen v. Pitchess (1973) 36 Cal. App. 3d 321, 329-330, 111 Cal. Rptr. 658] . As stated as instructions in the form at [1], above, if counsel for plaintiff does not know in advance that the court will require a bond before issuing a temporary restraining order, he or she should not include any reference to a bond in the body of the order. Rather, reference to it may be added to the order later, if necessary.

MEMORANDUM

[2] Use of Form

The form of notice of motion in [1], above, is for use by plaintiff in giving notice of a hearing at which he or she intends to apply for a preliminary injunction. The noticed-motion procedure is generally used when the party sought to be enjoined has already appeared. This procedure and that of the order to show cause, which must be issued when the plaintiff has been granted a temporary restraining order [see Code Civ. Proc. § 527(b)], are the two principal methods of meeting the notice requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 527(a)-(c). When a party has not appeared, an order to show cause is generally used to give notice of the hearing. Although not specifically mentioned in Code Civ. Proc. § 527, the noticed-motion procedure has been approved implicitly by the California Supreme Court [see Wutchumna Water Co. v. Superior Court (1932) 215 Cal. 734, 739-740, 12 P.2d 1033] .

For a discussion of the grounds and availability for obtaining a preliminary injunction, see §§ 303.40 -303.41. For a discussion of the procedural requirements applicable to obtaining a preliminary injunction, including notice to adversely affected parties, see § 303.42.

[3] Memorandum of Points and Authorities

A memorandum of points and authorities must be served with the motion and notice of motion [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.112(a), 3.113(a)]. For discussion and general forms of points and authorities, see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities .

[4] Service of Complaint and Declarations

Because the noticed-motion procedure for applying for a preliminary injunction is generally used when the opposing party has already appeared, he or she will already have been served with a copy of the complaint and summons [see § 303.130]. It is uncertain when the affidavits or declarations must be served if they are to be used to support the application for the preliminary injunction. It would be best to serve them along with the notice of motion, but, in any event, they must be served on defendant within five days of the temporary restraining order or at least two days before the hearing on the motion, whichever is earlier [see Code Civ. Proc. § 527(d)(2)].

[2] Use of Form

The form of declaration at [1], above, is for use by a defendant to oppose a complaint seeking a preliminary injunction [see Code Civ. Proc. § 527(e) (defendant may present affidavits in response to order to show cause relating to granting of preliminary injunction)]. The declaration may be used in addition to an answer to the complaint and any demurrer [see § 303.135]. With appropriate modifications, it may be used to structure a declaration by a person who is not a defendant in the action but who, nevertheless, is in a position to offer factual material useful to counsel defending against an application for a preliminary injunction.

For a discussion of the grounds and availability for obtaining a preliminary injunction, see §§ 303.40 -303.41. For a discussion of the procedural requirements applicable to obtaining a preliminary injunction, see § 303.42.

If the declarations are served on the applicant at least two days before the hearing on the order to show cause, the applicant will not be entitled to any continuance on that account [Code Civ. Proc. § 527(e)].

[2] Use of Form

The form of demurrer in [1], above, is for use by counsel for a defendant in replying to a complaint for injunctive relief. The demurrer alleges that the complaint fails to state a cause of action either because no cause of action is alleged or because the allegations in the complaint are not adequately factual [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a)]. The form includes the notice of hearing on the demurrer, and room to insert a memorandum of points and authorities, both of which are required [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.112(a), 3.113(a), 3.1320(c)].

For a discussion of the grounds and availability for obtaining a preliminary injunction, see §§ 303.40 -303.41. General defenses against an action for injunctive relief are discussed in §§ 303.70 -303.71. For discussion of a complaint for injunctive relief, see § 303.130[2] -[11].

[3] Demurrer When No Cause of Action

A cause of action must exist before injunctive relief may be granted [Camp v. Board of Supervisors (1981) 123 Cal. App. 3d 334, 356, 176 Cal. Rptr. 620 ; Golden Gate S.T., Inc. v. San Francisco (1937) 21 Cal. App. 2d 582, 585, 69 P.2d 899] . A preliminary injunction is not, in itself, a cause of action [Major v. Miraverde Homeowners Assn. (1992) 7 Cal. App. 4th 618, 623, 9 Cal. Rptr. 2d 237] .

A demurrer to the complaint will be sustained when a cause of action for injunctive relief is not stated [Golden Gate S.T., Inc. v. San Francisco (1937) 21 Cal. App. 2d 582, 586, 69 P.2d 899] .

[4] Demurrer When Insufficient Facts

When the complaint is the sole basis of an application for a preliminary injunction and is treated as an affidavit, its sufficiency must be tested by the same rules applicable to oral testimony. Conclusions that might stand as a matter of pleading are not competent to justify the issuance of an injunction [Bank of America v. Williams (1948) 89 Cal. App. 2d 21, 23, 200 P.2d 151 ; see Willis v. Lauridson (1911) 161 Cal. 106, 108, 118 P. 530] . Thus, a complaint for an injunction that is unsupported by affidavits and alleges only general conclusions not warranted by any pleading of facts does not state a cause of action to enjoin the acts complained of [E. H. Renzel Co. v. Warehousemen's Union (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 369, 373, 106 P.2d 1 ; Finnie v. Town of Tiburon (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 1, 15, 244 Cal. Rptr. 581 ; see Leach v. City of San Marcos (1989) 213 Cal. App. 3d 648, 661, 261 Cal. Rptr. 805] .

The _____ [application or motion] of plaintiff for the preliminary injunction came on regularly for hearing by the court this date in accordance with _____ [an order to show cause issued by this court on _____ (date) or plaintiff's motion for a preliminary injunction]. Plaintiff appeared by counsel _____ [name]; defendant appeared by counsel _____ [name].

On proof made to the court's satisfaction, and good cause appearing:

IT IS ORDERED that during the pendency of this action the above-named defendants, and each of them, and their officers, agents, employees, representatives, and all persons acting in concert or participating with them, are enjoined and restrained from engaging in, committing, or performing, directly or indirectly, by any means whatsoever, any of the following acts:

a. _____ [Specify the various acts and types of conduct that are prohibited with sufficient clarity to apprise all of the persons enjoined of what they are prohibited from doing];

b. _____ [Continue with such specifications if more than one].

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the above-named defendants are required and ordered to:

a. _____ [Specify each of the acts or courses of conduct defendants are required to do, commence, or continue, and each of the conditions they are to maintain];

b. _____ [Continue with such specifications if more than one].

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that, before this order shall take effect, plaintiff must file a written undertaking in the sum of $_____, as required by Code of Civil Procedure Section 529, for the purpose of indemnifying defendants for the damages as they may sustain by reason of this preliminary injunction if the court finally decides that plaintiff is not entitled to it.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the preliminary injunction as set forth above shall issue on plaintiff's filing a written undertaking in the sum specified above.

The court reserves jurisdiction to modify this injunction as the ends of justice may require.
Dated: _____.

_____ [signature]
Judge of the Superior Court

[2] Use of Form

The form of preliminary injunction in [1], above, should be prepared by counsel for a plaintiff when counsel has persuaded a court to issue a preliminary injunction. The form contains both prohibitory and mandatory allegations. Counsel should freely delete any of the allegations to which the court has not agreed.

For a detailed discussion of proceedings after a court has granted a preliminary injunction, see § 303.80 et seq.

[3] Time to Apply

A preliminary injunction may be granted at any time before judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 527(a)]. Thus, it is not necessary that an application for a preliminary injunction be made at the time the complaint is filed [McDonald v. Superior Court (1937) 18 Cal. App. 2d 652, 655-656, 64 P.2d 738] .

[4] Specific Reservation of Jurisdiction to Modify

Even though jurisdiction to modify an injunction seems to be an inherent power of the court [see Sontag Chain Stores Co. v. Superior Court (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 92, 94-95 113 P.2d 689 ; see also discussion in § 303.80[1]], it is advisable to include in the judgment a specific reservation of jurisdiction to modify the injunction [Components for Research, Inc. v. Isolation Products, Inc. (1966) 241 Cal. App. 2d 726, 731, 50 Cal. Rptr. 829] .

[5] Undertaking Required

On granting a preliminary injunction, the court or judge must require an undertaking [see Oksner v. Superior Court (1964) 229 Cal. App. 2d 672, 687, 40 Cal. Rptr. 621 ; Federal Automotive Services v. Lane Buick Co. (1962) 204 Cal. App. 2d 689, 695, 22 Cal. Rptr. 603 (order granting preliminary injunction that does not provide for bond is nullity)]. The undertaking must be to the effect that the applicant will pay to the party enjoined any damages, not exceeding an amount to be specified, that party may sustain by reason of the injunction if the court finally decides that the applicant was not entitled to the injunction [Code Civ. Proc. § 529(a)]. Certain persons and entities are exempted from this requirement [see Code Civ. Proc. § 529(b)]. However, a bond may be waived or forfeited by the person to be enjoined [Smith v. Adventist Health System/West (2010) 182 Cal. App. 4th 729, 740-744, 2010 Cal. App. LEXIS 291] .

All bonds and undertakings must comply with Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1130 [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1150(f); for discussion of Rule 3.1130, see Ch. 538, Suretyship, Bonds, and Undertakings].

For a discussion of undertakings generally, see § 303.46. See also the discussion of proceedings to enforce liability on an undertaking or bond in.

[6] Procedure to Obtain Writ After Hearing

Notwithstanding Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1312, on the preparation of orders, whenever an application for a preliminary injunction is granted, a proposed order must be presented to the judge for signature, together with an undertaking in the amount the judge has ordered, within one court day after the granting of the application or within the time ordered by the court. Unless otherwise ordered, any restraining order previously granted remains in effect during the time allowed for presentation for signature of the order of injunction and undertaking. If the proposed order and the undertaking required are not presented within the time allowed, the temporary restraining order may be vacated without notice [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1150(f)].

[7] Service of Writ

The Code of Civil Procedure does not provide how or by whom an injunction must be served. Because the statutes are silent, it is sufficient if service is made in conformity with the mode of service prescribed with reference to service of a summons [Golden Gate Consol. Hydraulic Mining Co. v. Superior Court of Yuba County (1884) 65 Cal. 187, 190, 3 P. 628 (service of temporary restraining order held valid); see generally Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers].

[2] Use of Form

The form of order in [1], above, may be used by defense counsel who has persuaded a court to deny plaintiff's application for a preliminary injunction and to dissolve the temporary restraining order if one was granted. Note that the optional language dissolving the temporary restraining order is not mandatory because an order denying a preliminary injunction automatically dissolves an existing temporary restraining order [Landmark Holding Group, Inc. v. Superior Court (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 525, 529,238 Cal. Rptr. 475] . Orders denying preliminary injunctions are also made by minute order.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that, on _____ [date], at _____ [time], or as soon thereafter as the matter may be heard, in [_____ (Department or Division) _____ of] this court, located at _____ [address], _____ [city], defendant _____ [name] will, and hereby does, move for an order _____ [dissolving or modifying] the _____ [temporary restraining order or preliminary injunction or permanent injunction] granted on _____ [date]. [If the injunction is to be modified or only partially dissolved, specify the extent of this change.] The motion will be made on the grounds that _____ [specify, e.g., there has been a material change in the facts on which the injunction was granted in that _____ (specify)].

The motion will be based on this notice of motion, on the _____ [declaration(s) or affidavit(s)] of _____ [name(s)], on the memorandum of points and authorities served and filed in this proceeding, on the papers and records on file, and on such oral and documentary evidence as may be presented at the hearing of the motion.

SUPPORTING DECLARATION OF _____ [name]

I, _____ [name], declare:

1. I am _____ [specify, e.g., the defendant in the within action].

2. On _____ [date], the court granted a _____ [temporary restraining order or preliminary injunction or permanent injunction] compelling me to _____ [describe court's order compelling defendant to do or refrain from doing something].

3. _____ [Describe changed circumstances or other reason for motion to modify or dissolve injunction, e.g., At the time of granting the preliminary injunction, the court also ordered plaintiff to post a bond in the amount of $_____, which plaintiff never posted].

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

SUPPORTING MEMORANDUM

[Add memorandum of points and authorities supporting motion.]

[2] Use of Form

The form of notice of motion in [1], above, is for use by counsel for a defendant who has been subjected to a temporary restraining order, preliminary injunction, or permanent injunction, when defendant desires to have the order or injunction either dissolved or modified [see Civ. Code § 3424 (motion to modify or dissolve temporary restraining order, preliminary injunction, or final injunction on grounds of material change in facts, change in law, or ends of justice would otherwise be served); Code Civ. Proc. § 533 (preliminary injunction or temporary restraining order)]. If the restrained party seeks to terminate a restraining order, the burden is on the restrained party to show by a preponderance of the evidence that one of the circumstances set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 533 is present and justifies terminating the restraining order [Loeffler v. Medina (2009) 174 Cal. App. 4th 1495, 1504, 95 Cal. Rptr. 3d 343]. With slight changes, the form may be adapted for use by a plaintiff or other party. Though not the situation addressed in the declaration at [1], above, a party who has been enjoined without notice may apply for dissolution or modification of an injunction [Code Civ. Proc. § 532(a)].

[3] Court's Power to Amend Injunction

For discussion of the court's power to amend injunctions, see § 303.80.

[4] Service of Motion to Modify or Dissolve Permanent Injunction

Service of a motion to modify or dissolve a final injunction must be made on the nonmoving party as follows [Civ. Code § 3424(b)]:

- If the party has not appeared in the action, the motion must be served in the same manner as a summons, pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 415.10 et seq.

- If the party has appeared in the action, the motion must be served on the party or his or her attorney (or on the party if he or she has appeared without an attorney), either in the same manner as a summons under Code Civ. Proc. § 415.10 et seq., or as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 1010 et seq. (service of notice of motion and other papers).

For detailed discussion and forms relating to service of summons and service of other papers, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers .

[5] Memorandum of Points and Authorities

A memorandum of points and authorities must be served with the motion and notice of motion [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.112(a), 3.113(a)]. For discussion and general forms of points and authorities, see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities .

MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES

[2] Use of Form

The form of notice of motion in [1], above, is for use by defense counsel to enforce the liability of plaintiff and his or her surety on a bond or undertaking posted for a temporary restraining order or preliminary injunction after a decision has been made in the main action and it has been determined that plaintiff was not entitled to the temporary restraining order or preliminary injunction [see Code Civ. Proc. § 996.440(b)]. Actually, a motion to enforce a bond such as that in [1], above, does not require that a legally effective order or injunction have been issued, but only requires that the person restrained knew of and complied with an improvidently issued order or injunction and suffered damages as a result [see Special Editions v. Kellison (1982) 129 Cal. App. 3d 803, 809, 181 Cal. Rptr. 351 (decided under former Code Civ. Proc. § 535)].

A deposit may be made in lieu of a bond or undertaking [see Code Civ. Proc. § 995.710(a)]. Thus, the form contains alternative language for a bond, undertaking, or deposit, as appropriate.

For further discussion of undertakings generally, see § 303.46 et seq.

[3] Jurisdiction

A surety on a bond given on an injunction submits itself to the jurisdiction of the court in all matters affecting its liability on the bond [see Code Civ. Proc. § 996.420(a)].

[4] Noticed-Motion Procedure to Enforce Liability

If a bond is given on a temporary restraining order or preliminary injunction, the liability of the party and his or her surety or sureties, if any, may be enforced on a motion filed in the trial court without the necessity of an independent action [see Code Civ. Proc. § 996.440(a)].

[5] When Motion May Be Made

The motion may not be made until after entry of the final judgment in the action in which the bond or undertaking was given and the time for appeal has expired, or, if an appeal was taken, until the appeal is finally determined [Code Civ. Proc. § 996.440(b); see Satinover v. Dean (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 1298, 1300-1301, 249 Cal. Rptr. 277 (enforcement may not be made after dissolution of temporary restraining order or court's refusal to grant preliminary injunction until after termination of main action)]. The motion may not be made or notice of the motion served more than one year after the later of these dates [Code Civ. Proc. § 996.440(b)].

[6] Service of Notice; Contents; Affidavits

Notice of the motion must be served on the principal and sureties at least 30 days before the time set for hearing of the motion. The notice must state the amount of the claim and must be supported by affidavits or declarations setting forth the facts on which the claim is based. The notice and affidavits or declarations must be served in accordance with any procedure authorized by Code Civ. Proc. § 1010 et seq. [Code Civ. Proc. § 996.440(c)].

[7] Response by Sureties

Judgment may be entered against the principal and sureties in accordance with the motion unless the principal or sureties serve and file affidavits or declarations opposing the motion showing those facts as may be deemed by the judge hearing the motion sufficient to present a triable issue of fact [Code Civ. Proc. § 996.440(d)].

[8] No Stay of Proceedings

The principal and sureties may not obtain a stay of the proceedings pending determination of any conflicting claims among beneficiaries [Code Civ. Proc. § 996.440(e)].

[9] Trial

If a triable issue of fact is presented, the court must specify the issues to be tried. Trial must be set for the earliest date convenient to the court, allowing sufficient time for any discovery proceedings that may be requested [Code Civ. Proc. § 996.440(d)].

[10] Measure of Damages

Damages recoverable on a preliminary injunction or a temporary restraining order bond are those that appear with reasonable certainty to be the necessary and proximate result of the injunction, not exceeding the penal sum of the bond [Allen v. Pitchess (1973) 36 Cal. App. 3d 321, 327, 111 Cal. Rptr. 658 (decided under former Code Civ. Proc. § 535)]. The factors to be considered in determining the loss depend on the circumstances of the case. The measure of damage will vary with those circumstances. Arbitrary rules do not govern; equitable principles are applied. The allowance, although often difficult to measure accurately, should furnish just and reasonable compensation for the loss sustained [Surety Sav. & Loan Assn. v. National Automobile & Cas. Ins. Co. (1970) 8 Cal. App. 3d 752, 757, 87 Cal. Rptr. 572] . A plaintiff seeking damages from the surety on an injunction bond is not, however, limited to damages accruing during the time the injunction was operative; he or she is entitled to damages flowing directly from the wrongful injunction for a period of time beyond the date of its dissolution [Russell v. United Pacific Ins. Co. (1963) 214 Cal. App. 2d 78, 88, 29 Cal. Rptr. 346] .

[11] Attorney's Fees

When either a temporary restraining order or a preliminary injunction is regular on its face and thus requires legal services to obtain its dissolution, reasonable attorney's fees are treated as an item of damages recoverable on the bond [Allen v. Pitchess (1973) 36 Cal. App. 3d 321, 327, 111 Cal. Rptr. 658 (temporary restraining order; decided under former Code Civ. Proc. § 535); Russell v. United Pacific Ins. Co. (1963) 214 Cal. App. 2d 78, 88-89, 29 Cal. Rptr. 346 (preliminary injunction)]. The fixing of a reasonable fee rests in the trial judge's discretion; an appellate court will not disturb the ruling unless the sum allowed is so exorbitant that its allowance constitutes a palpable and plain abuse of discretion [Russell v. United Pacific Ins. Co. (1963) 214 Cal. App. 2d 78, 89, 29 Cal. Rptr. 346] . Note that, once a temporary restraining order has been dissolved and the preliminary injunction denied, attorney's fees in defending the main action are not recoverable [Allen v. Pitchess (1973) 36 Cal. App. 3d 321, 327-328, 111 Cal. Rptr. 658] .

[12] Waiver

Defendants in a suit for an injunction waive their rights under a surety bond when they sign a stipulation dismissing the suit without insisting either that the plaintiff voluntarily dismiss the suit or that the court determine whether the injunction was properly granted, if the bond stipulated that the surety would not be liable without the superior court finally deciding that the plaintiff was not entitled to either a temporary restraining order or to a preliminary injunction [Wilshire Mortgage Corp. v. Graybeal Co. (1940) 41 Cal. App. 2d 1, 6-7, 105 P.2d 996] . Ordinarily, however, voluntary dismissal of action for injunction with or without prejudice constitutes a final decision against plaintiff on the issue of entitlement to an injunction for purposes of proceeding against the surety under Code Civ. Proc. § 996.440 [Special Editions v. Kellison (1982) 129 Cal. App. 3d 803, 808, 181 Cal. Rptr. 351 (decided under former Code Civ. Proc. § 535)].

[13] Terms of Bond Limit Surety's Liability

A surety's liability is limited by the terms of its bond [see Code Civ. Proc. § 996.470(a); Wilshire Mortgage Corp. v. Graybeal Co. (1940) 41 Cal. App. 2d 1, 6, 105 P.2d 996] . The principal's liability is not limited to the amount of the bond, except as otherwise provided by statute [see Code Civ. Proc. § 996.470(a)].

[14] No Liability for Injunction Issued Without Bond

Under former law, the statutory remedy for enforcing a bond or undertaking was unavailable if no bond or undertaking was posted on a temporary restraining order or preliminary injunction [Wallace v. Miller (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 636, 642-645, 189 Cal. Rptr. 637 (decided under former Code Civ. Proc. §§ 535, 1054a)]. Because the present law setting forth enforcement procedures against sureties [see Code Civ. Proc. § 996.440] is substantially similar to the previous law, this also appears to be true under current law.

[2] Use of Form

The form illustrated in [1], above, is Judicial Council Form CIV-025, for use by a party who has been issued a temporary restraining order, but has been unable to serve the opposing party within the required five days from the date the temporary restraining order is issued or two days prior to the hearing whichever is earlier. Upon the filing this form by the applicant declaring that the opposing party could not be served within the time required, the court may reissue any temporary restraining order previously issued [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 527(d)(2), 527(d)(5)].

The party who obtained the temporary restraining order must serve on the opposing party a copy of the complaint if not previously served, the order to show cause stating the date, time, and place of the hearing, any affidavits to be used in the application, and a copy of the points and authorities in support of the application [Code Civ. Proc. § 527(d)(2)].

The time for hearing is then measured from the date of reissuance. No fees are charged for reissuing the order [for further discussion, see §§ 303.31[4]; 303.31[7]].

Use of this Judicial Council Form is optional. Chapter 304 INSANE AND OTHER INCOMPETENT PERSONS
PART I. SCOPE

§ 304.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter discusses and contains a procedural checklist for use in actions involving the involuntary detention and treatment of persons in mental institutions. It also briefly discusses voluntary admissions to mental institutions. The part includes a form for a petition for writ of habeas corpus for use in seeking judicial review of involuntary detention for intensive treatment [see § 304.280] and an optional Judicial Council Form Petition for Writ of Habeas Corpus--LPS Act (MS-265) [see § 304.280.1]. The part also includes a form of demand for a court or jury trial on the issue of whether a proposed conservatee is gravely disabled [see § 304.282], a petition for rehearing when a proposed conservatee is adjudicated gravely disabled [see § 304.283], an order granting or denying a rehearing [see § 304.284], and an order terminating a conservatorship [see § 304.284.1].

This chapter also discusses and contains a procedural checklist for use in actions and proceedings involving the treatment or judicial commitment of mentally retarded or developmentally disabled persons [see § 304.240 et seq.].

This chapter also discusses the ability of mentally disordered persons to bring actions for false imprisonment, malicious prosecution, assault and battery, and for negligently or intentionally inflicted harm [see § 304.90 et seq.].

It also discusses the liability of mentally disordered persons and their relatives and therapists for damages inflicted on others by mentally disordered persons and contains a form of complaint against a therapist by a third person for failure of the therapist to warn the third person of a dangerous client [see § 304.300] and by the decedent's personal representative for failure of the therapist to take measures to prevent the decedent's suicide [see § 304.301].

This chapter also includes a discussion of the constitutional rights of all persons detained because of mental disorder and similar conditions [see § 304.97].

This chapter discusses the procedure for obtaining a court order authorizing a designated person to consent to health care for an adult who is in need of health care but lacks capacity to make health care decisions and does not have a conservator authorized to make the decisions [see § 304.110 et seq.]. Forms for petitions for such an order are included and discussed [see §§ 304.320 et seq.].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

26-304 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 304.10

§ 304.10 "Insanity" and "Incompetency" Defined

An examination of applicable statutes and of the cases interpreting them indicates the variety of meanings of the term "insanity" and terms equivalent to it as well as the possibility of the use of these terms in different situations. Among other meanings are the following: (1) insanity or incompetency in relation to capacity to contract as governed by the Civil Code; (2) insanity or incompetency in relation to testamentary capacity as governed by the Probate Code and related cases; (3) insanity in relation to capacity to commit a crime as governed by the Penal Code; and (4) insanity or mental disorder in relation to "mental illness" that warrants confinement under the Welfare and Institutions Code or that merits appointment of a conservator under that code. "Insanity" may mean a variety of things depending on the pertinent statute, and as a result a variety of issues of fact can be the subject of litigation. Depending on which statute is invoked, the parties to the litigation are different and the results obtained are different [In re Zanetti (1949) 34 Cal. 2d 136, 141, 208 P.2d 657] .

A person is "insane" if the person is incapable of caring for his or her property, transacting business, or understanding the nature or effects of his or her acts [Alcott Rehabilitation Hosp. v. Superior Court (2001) 93 Cal. App. 4th 94, 101, 112 Cal. Rptr. 2d 807 (tolling of statute of limitations based on insanity)]. Insane persons are not of sound mind [Estate of Ladd (1979) 91 Cal. App. 3d 219, 226, 153 Cal. Rptr. 888] . The terms "insane" and "incompetent" are not necessarily interchangeable since a person may be incompetent by reason of insanity or from some other cause [Robertson v. Superior Court (2001) 90 Cal. App. 4th 1319, 1328 fn. 8, 109 Cal. Rptr. 2d 650 ; see In re Locks (2000) 79 Cal. App. 4th 890, 895, 94 Cal. Rptr. 2d 495 (finding of not guilty by reason of insanity establishes legal status of insanity, but does not constitute finding of incompetence to refuse treatment)].

For a discussion of the meanings of terms appearing in the various statutes governing detention for treatment and governing civil commitment such as the term "mentally disordered," see the discussion in the Introductions to the appropriate parts of this chapter.

§ 304.11 Rights and Responsibilities of Persons With Mental Illness

Persons with mental illness have the same legal rights and responsibilities that other persons have under the state and federal constitutions and laws, except as otherwise specifically provided by federal or state law or regulation [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5325.1 (enumerating some of the rights of mentally ill persons)].

Statutory law sets forth a variety of limitations on the rights and responsibilities of persons who may be classified as mentally ill. Statutes specifically provide, for example, that persons without understanding have no power to make contracts of any kind (but are liable for the reasonable value of necessaries furnished for their support and the support of their families) [Civ. Code § 38]; that persons of unsound mind are not liable for exemplary damages unless capable of knowing, at the time of commission, that a tortious act is wrong (but are liable for compensatory damages) [Civ. Code § 41]; that the adoption of a minor may be set aside on the ground of the minor's developmental disability or mental illness, in certain circumstances [Fam. Code § 9100], and that a marriage contracted by a person of unsound mind is voidable on that ground [Fam. Code § 2210].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. In General

26-304 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 304.12

§ 304.12 Protection and Advocacy Agency for Persons With Disability or Mental Illness

[1] Background

Protection and advocacy agencies are federally mandated disability rights agencies established under federal law to provide advocacy services to people with disabilities, including investigating incidents of abuse or neglect and otherwise protecting the legal and civil rights of people with disabilities. The California Legislature has found and declared that it is in the interest of people with disabilities in this state that protection and advocacy services be available to all people with disabilities who may be subject to abuse or neglect, or who request or require the advocacy services of the protection and advocacy agency [Stats. 2003, ch. 878, § 1(a)(1), (4), (9)]. Protection and advocacy services are available to all persons with disabilities as defined under California law, even when that law defines disability in a manner that is broader than the definition of disability under federal law [Stats. 2003, ch. 878, § 1(b)(1)].

For purposes of protection and advocacy services, the term "disability" means a developmental disability as defined in 42 U.S.C.S. § 15002(8), a mental illness as defined in 42 U.S.C.S. § 10802(4), a disability within the meaning of the Americans with Disabilities Act [42 U.S.C.S. § 12101 et seq.] as defined in 42 U.S.C.S. § 12102(2), or a disability within the meaning of the California Fair Employment and Housing Act [Gov. Code § 12900 et seq.] as defined in Gov. Code § 12926(i) or (k) [Welf. & Inst. Code § 4900(d), (i)].

Establishment of a protection and advocacy is mandated by federal law as a prerequisite to the receipt of specified federal funding for assistance programs for persons with developmental disabilities or mental illness [see 42 U.S.C.S. § 6042].

[2] Powers and Duties

The agency is a private, nonprofit corporation that has the following powers and duties:

- To establish a grievance procedure for clients or prospective clients of the protection and advocacy system to ensure that persons with a disability or mental illness have full access to services of the system [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 4901(a)].

- To investigate any incident of abuse and neglect of persons with a disability or mental illness if the incident is reported to the agency or if the agency determines there is probable cause to believe the incident occurred [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 4902(a)(1)]. "Probable cause" to believe that an individual has been subject to abuse or neglect, or is at significant risk of being subjected to abuse or neglect, exists when the agency determines that it is objectively reasonable for a person to entertain that belief. The individual making a probable cause determination may base the decision on reasonable inferences drawn from his or her experience or training regarding similar incidents, conditions, or problems usually associated with abuse or neglect. Information supporting a probable cause determination may result from monitoring or other activities, including, but not limited to, media reports and newspaper articles [Welf. & Inst. Code § 4900(h)]. The agency's authority to investigate includes having reasonable access to a facility or program, as well as the authority to examine all relevant records and to interview any facility or program service recipient, employee, or other person who might have knowledge of the alleged abuse or neglect [Welf. & Inst. Code § 4902(a)(1)].

- To pursue administrative, legal, and other appropriate remedies or approaches to ensure the protection of the rights of persons with disabilities [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 4902(a)(2)].

- To provide information and training on, and referral to, programs and services addressing the needs of persons with developmental disabilities or mental illness [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 4902(a)(3)].

- To have reasonable access to state facilities or programs that provide care and treatment to persons with disabilities or mental illness, together with access to those persons [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 4902(b)]. The agency may not obtain access through the use of physical force if access is delayed or denied, but may pursue appropriate legal remedies to enforce its access authority [Welf. & Inst. Code § 4906].

- To have access to statutorily specified information about and records of specified persons with disabilities or mental illness, and the facilities and programs rendering care and treatment to those persons [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 4903(a)-(e)].

- To issue public reports [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 4903(f)(2)].

- To report investigation results to responsible investigative or enforcement agencies [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 4903(f)(3)].

- To pursue alternative remedies, including initiating legal action [Welf. & Inst. Code § 4903(f)(4)].

- To report suspected elder or dependent adult abuse under the Elder Abuse and Dependent Adult Civil Protection Act (Welf. & Inst. Code § 15600 et seq.) [Welf. & Inst. Code § 4903(f)(5)].

[3] Statutory Immunities

The agency is aided in the exercise of its protection and advocacy powers by a variety of statutory immunities from civil, criminal, and punitive damage liability in specified situations [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 4904].

[4] Complaints to Agency--Prohibition Against Retaliation

The agency may not subject a person with a disability to reprisal or harassment, or directly or indirectly take or threaten to take any action that would prevent the person, his or her legally authorized representative, or family member from reporting or otherwise bringing to the agency's attention any facts or information relative to suspected abuse, neglect, or other violations of the person's rights [Welf. & Inst. Code § 4905(a)]. Furthermore, any attempt to involuntarily remove from a facility, program, or service, or to deny privileges or rights without good cause to, a person with a disability or mental illness by or for whom a complaint has been made to the agency within 60 days after the complaint has been made or within 60 days after the conclusion of any proceeding resulting from a complaint raises a presumption that the action was taken in retaliation for filing the complaint [Welf. & Inst. Code § 4905(b)].

[5] Relationship to Other Entities

The agency's statutory authority does not supplant the jurisdiction or responsibilities of adult protective services programs under Welf. & Inst. Code § 15600 et seq. or Welf. & Inst. Code § 15750 et seq. [Welf. & Inst. Code § 4901(d)], or the duties or authority of the State Long-Term Care Ombudsman Program under Welf. & Inst. Code § 9700 et seq. [Welf. & Inst. Code § 4901(e)(1)]. The agency must cooperate with this program when appropriate [Welf. & Inst. Code § 4901(e)(2); see Welf. & Inst. Code § 9717]. Finally, the agency's statutory authority does not alter or impact the Elder and Dependent Adult Civil Protection Act (Welf. & Inst. Code § 15600 et seq.), including the confidentiality requirements and legal responsibility of the agency to report elder or dependent adult abuse or neglect as required by that Act [Welf. & Inst. Code § 4901(f)(1)]. The adult protective services agency retains the responsibility for investigating any report of abuse or neglect in accordance with Welf. & Inst. Code § 15750 et seq., when the reported abuse or neglect is within that agency's jurisdiction [Welf. & Inst. Code § 4901(f)(2)].

§ 304.31 Standard for Involuntary Treatment

[1] "Gravely Disabled" or "Danger"

The standard for involuntary detention or treatment of persons under the LPS Act is not simply the existence of mental disorder or impairment. The person to be detained must be a danger to others or to himself or herself, or gravely disabled as a result of the condition [see Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 5150, 5170, 5200, 5206, 5213, 5225, 5230, 5250]. Involuntary commitment under the LPS Act is proper only if the person committed meets the appropriate statutory standards [see In re L.L. (1974) 39 Cal. App. 3d 205, 209, 114 Cal. Rptr. 11.]

[2] "Gravely Disabled" Defined

[a] Mental Disorder

For purposes of Welf. & Inst. Code § 5150 et seq. (72-hour detention of person who is dangerous or gravely disabled for evaluation and treatment), Welf. & Inst. Code § 5200 et seq. (court-ordered evaluation of person alleged to be dangerous or gravely disabled), Welf. & Inst. Code § 5250 et seq. (additional 14-day detention for treatment of person who is dangerous or gravely disabled), and Welf. & Inst. Code § 5350 et seq. (establishment of conservatorship for person who is gravely disabled as a result of mental disorder), "gravely disabled" means a condition in which a person, as a result of a mental disorder, is unable to provide for his or her basic personal needs for food, clothing, or shelter [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5008(h)(1)(A); see Conservatorship of Smith (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 903, 905, 909, 232 Cal. Rptr. 277] .

For these same purposes, "gravely disabled" also includes a condition in which a person has been found to be mentally incompetent under Penal Code § 1370 (incompetent to stand trial) and (1) the indictment or information that charges a felony involving death, great bodily harm, or a serious threat to the physical well-being of another person has not been dismissed, and (2) as a result of mental disorder, the person is unable to understand the nature and purpose of the proceedings and to assist counsel in conducting a defense in a rational manner [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5008(h)(1)(B)].

[b] Chronic Alcoholism and Substance Abuse

For purposes of Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 5225 et seq. (court-ordered evaluation of person who is impaired by chronic alcoholism), 5250 et seq. (14-day detention for treatment of person who is impaired by chronic alcoholism), and 5350 et seq. (establishment of conservatorship for person who is gravely disabled because of impairment due to chronic alcoholism), "gravely disabled" means a condition in which a person, as a result of impairment by chronic alcoholism, is unable to provide for his or her basic personal needs for food, clothing, or shelter [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5008(h)(2)].

A person is also "a danger to others or to himself or herself, or gravely disabled" under the LPS Act if he or she is a danger or gravely disabled as the result of the use of controlled substances. Any person in this category is subject to the provisions of Welf. & Inst. Code § 5150 et seq. (72-hour detention for evaluation and treatment), Welf. & Inst. Code § 5200 et seq. (court-ordered evaluation), Welf. & Inst. Code § 5275 et seq. (rightto hearing by writ of habeas corpus), and Welf. & Inst. Code § 5325 et seq. (rights of persons involuntary detained for evaluation or treatment). However, any custody, evaluation and treatment, or any procedures pursuant to these provisions must relate to and concern the problem of the person's use of controlled substances [Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 5342, 5343].

[3] Consideration of Historical Course of Mental Disorder

Welf. & Inst. Code § 5008.2 provides that the historical course of a person's mental disorder, as determined by available relevant information about the course of the person's mental illness, must be considered if it has a direct bearing on the determination of whether a person is a danger to others, or to himself or herself, or gravely disabled, as the result of a mental illness. This requirement must be met when applying the term "mental disorder" for the purposes of Welf. & Inst. Code § 5200 et seq. (court-ordered evaluations), Welf. & Inst. Code § 5250 et seq. (detention for treatment), Welf. & Inst. Code § 5275 et seq. (judicial review), and Welf. & Inst. Code § 5350 et seq. (establishment of conservatorship for gravely disabled persons) [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5008.2].

Available relevant information about the historical course of a person's mental disorder must also be considered when determining if probable cause exists to take a person into custody, or to cause a person to be taken into custody, under Welf. & Inst. Code § 5150. If the probable cause is based on the statement of a person other than the one taking the person into custody, a member of the attending staff, or a professional person, the person making the statement may be held liable in a civil action for intentionally giving a statement that he or she knows to be false [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5150.05].

[4] Present Disability Required

The disability must be present and not prospective. Thus, a person will not be found to have a grave disability if the proposed conservatee can presently provide for his or her basic needs with the help of another, even if a conservatorship may apparently be needed at some future time, for example, because of the need for possible medical treatment [see Conservatorship of Neal (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 685, 687-689, 235 Cal. Rptr. 577 (proposed conservatee's common law wife was presently able to provide for his needs)].

[5] Survival With Help of Others

A person is not "gravely disabled" within the meaning of Welf. & Inst. Code § 5008(h)(1)(A) if he or she is capable of surviving safely in freedom with the help of willing and responsibilty family members, friends, or third parties [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 5250(d)(1); Conservatorship of Early (1983) 35 Cal. 3d 244, 250-251, 197 Cal. Rptr. 539, 673 P.2d 209 ; Conservatorship of Davis (1981) 124 Cal. App. 3d 313, 321, 177 Cal. Rptr. 369 ; see also Conservatorship of Neal (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 685, 687-689, 235 Cal. Rptr. 577 ; Conservatorship of Wilson (1982) 137 Cal. App. 3d 132, 134-135, 186 Cal. Rptr. 748] . However, unless the family, friends, or others specifically indicate in writing their willingness and ability to help the person, they will not be considered willing or able to provide this help [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5250(d)(2)]. This provision was enacted to avoid the necessity for, and the harmful effects of, requiring family, friends, and others publicly to state, and requiring the certification review officer publicly to find, that no one is willing or able to assist the mentally disordered person in providing for the person's basic needs for food, clothing, or shelter [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5250(d)(3)].

[6] Mentally Retarded Person Not "Gravely Disabled"

"Gravely disabled" does not include a person who is mentally retarded [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5008(h)(3)]. For a discussion of "gravely disabled" in the context of mental retardation, see § 304.70 et seq.

26-304 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 304.32

§ 304.32 Legislative Intent of the LPS Act

The stated legislative intent of the LPS Act is to end the inappropriate, indefinite, and involuntary commitment of mentally disordered persons and persons impaired by chronic alcoholism, and to eliminate their legal disabilities [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5001(a); Kaplan v. Superior Court (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 1354, 1360, 265 Cal. Rptr. 408] . The provisions of the Act are intended to reflect the concern of the legislature that mentally disordered persons are to be regarded as patients to be provided care and treatment and not as inmates of institutions for the purpose of secluding them from the rest of the public [Welf. & Inst. Code § 4132].

The LPS Act has been described as "scrupulously protect[ing] the rights of involuntarily detained mentally disordered persons" [Edward W. v. Lamkins (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 516, 526, 122 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1] . It expressly guarantees a number of legal and civil rights and provides that involuntarily detained patients retain all rights not specifically denied under the Act [Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 5325, 5327; Edward W. v. Lamkins (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 516, 526, 122 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1] .

The Act is intended to provide prompt, short-term, community-based intensive treatment, without stigma or loss of liberty, to individuals with mental disorders who are either dangerous or gravely disabled [Ford v. Norton (2001) 89 Cal. App. 4th 974, 977, 107 Cal. Rptr. 2d 776] . The purpose is to protect an individual from the consequences of his or her illness by providing remedial treatment [Conservatorship of Rodney M. (1996) 50 Cal. App. 4th 1266, 1271, 58 Cal. Rptr. 2d 513] . The Act represents a balance between prompt intervention for the purpose of treating gravely disabled persons and the protection of their rights not tobe deprived of freedom without due process [Edward W. v. Lamkins (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 516, 526, 122 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1 ; Elizabeth G. v. Kevin M. (Conservatorship of Kevin M.), (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 79, 89, 56 Cal. Rptr. 2d 765] .

Under the LPS Act, a person who is dangerous or gravely disabled due to a mental disorder may be detained for involuntary treatment; however, these detentions are implemented incrementally in accordance with the legislative purpose of preventing inappropriate, indefinite commitments of mentally disordered persons [Ford v. Norton (2001) 89 Cal. App. 4th 974, 979, 107 Cal. Rptr. 2d 776] . Involuntary placements under the Act can be terminated before the expiration of the commitment period. Thus, the Act assures a person who is properly detained of an opportunity for early release [Ford v. Norton (2001) 89 Cal. App. 4th 974, 979, 107 Cal. Rptr. 2d 776] .

§ 304.33 Exclusions From LPS Act

Mentally disordered sex offenders, mentally retarded persons, and mentally disordered criminal offenders are excluded from the LPS Act, unless specifically provided otherwise in Pen. Code § 4011.6 or other statutes [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5002; see Pederson v. Superior Court (2003) 105 Cal. App. 4th 931, 939-942, 130 Cal. Rptr. 2d 289 (finding Pen. Code § 1367.1, which requires misdemeanor defendants suspected of incompetence due to mental disorder to submit to LPS involuntary evaluation and treatment before or instead of competency determination, is unconstitutional; it deprives these defendants of equal protection because felony defendants are not required to undergo LPS evaluation and treatment before competency determination)].

The initial 72-hour evaluation and treatment of minors is covered by the Children's Civil Commitment and Mental Health Treatment Act of 1988 [Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 5585-5585.59; see § 304.45[1]]. However, the LPS Act covers treatment and evaluation of minors after the initial 72-hour period [Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 5585.20, 5585.53, 5585.55].

§ 304.34 Seventy-Two Hour Detention

[1] Basis for Custody--"Gravely Disabled" or "Danger"

The detention for evaluation and treatment of persons for 72 hours in an evaluation facility is governed by Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 5150-5156. If any person, as a result of mental disorder, is a danger to others or to himself or herself or is gravely disabled, a peace officer, a member of the attending staff, as defined by regulation, of an evaluation facility designated by the county, or any other professional person designated by the county, may, on probable cause, take the person (or may cause the person to be taken) into custody and place the person in a facility for 72-hour treatment and evaluation [Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 5150, 5150.05].

When determining if probable cause exists to take a person into custody under Welf. & Inst. Code § 5150, available relevant information about the historical course of the person's mental disorder must be considered if this information has a reasonable bearing on the determination of whether the person is a danger to self or others, or is gravely disabled as a result of the mental disorder [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5150.05(a)]. The information to be considered includes evidence presented by the individual who has provided or is providing mental health or related support services to the person to be detained, evidence presented by the person's family members, and evidence presented by the person or anyone else he or she has designated [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5150.05(b)]. If probable cause is based on the statement of a person other than the person authorized to take the mentally disordered person into custody, a member of the attending staff, or a professional person, the person making the statement may be liable in a civil action for intentionally giving any statement he or she knows to be false [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5150.05(c)].

For an outline of the procedures and statutory standards applicable to 72-hour detentions, see the Procedural Checklist, Paragraph I(A).

[2] Notice

Any person who takes another person into custody under Welf. & Inst. Code § 5150 must orally inform the person taken into custody of certain information specified by statute [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 5157(a)]. In addition, when the person is admitted to a designated facility for a 72-hour evaluation and treatment, the admission staff must inform the admittee, orally and in writing, of information specified by statute [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 5157(c)]. The designated facility must keep records of the advisement [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 5157(b), (d)].

[3] Evaluation and Treatment Requirements

Each person admitted to a facility for 72-hour treatment and evaluation for mental disorders must receive an evaluation as soon as possible after he or she is admitted and receive whatever treatment and care his or her condition requires for the full period that he or she is held [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5152(a)].

[4] Requirement for Early Release

The person must be released before 72 hours have elapsed only if the psychiatrist directly responsible for the person's treatment believes, as the result of personal observations, that the person no longer requires evaluation or treatment [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5152(a); Ford v. Norton (2001) 89 Cal. App. 4th 974, 980-981, 107 Cal. Rptr. 2d 776 (although LPS Act permits broad range of persons to initiate 72-hour detention, only psychiatrist can authorize early release)].

However, if both a psychiatrist and a psychologist have personally evaluated or examined the person and there is a collaborative treatment relationship between them, either may authorize the person's release, but only after they have consulted with each other [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5152(a)]. In the event of a clinical or professional disagreement about an early release, the 72-hour hold must be maintained unless the facility's medical director overrules the decision of the psychiatrist or psychologist who opposes the release. Both the psychiatrist and the psychologist must enter their findings, concerns, or objections into the person's medical record [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5152(a)].

If any other professional person, who is authorized to release the person, believes the person should be released before 72 hours have elapsed, and the psychiatrist directly responsible for the person objects, the matter must be referred to the medical director for the final decision. However, if the medical director is not a psychiatrist, he or she must appoint a designee who is a psychiatrist. If the matter is referred, the person must be released before 72 hours have elapsed only if the psychiatrist making the final decision believes, as a result of his or her personal observations, that the person no longer requires evaluation or treatment [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5152(a)].

[5] Postdetention Requirements

Persons who have been detained for evaluation and treatment must be released, referred for further care and treatment on a voluntary basis, certified for intensive treatment, or have a conservator or temporary conservator appointed under Welf. & Inst. Code § 5350 et seq., as required [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5152(b)].

In addition, persons who have been detained for evaluation and treatment and who are receiving medications as a result of their mental illness must be given, as soon as possible after detention, written and oral information about the probable effects and possible side effects of the medication by a person designated by the mental health facility where each respective person is detained. The State Department of Mental Health is required to develop and promulgate written materials on the effects of medications for use by county mental health programs, as disseminated or as modified by the county mental health program, that address the probable effects and possible side effects of the medication [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5152(c)]. The following information must be given orally to the patient [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5152(c)]:

- The nature of the mental illness or behavior that is the reason the medication is being given or recommended;
- The likelihood of improving or not improving without the medication;
- Reasonable alternative treatments available; and

- The name and type, frequency, amount, and method of dispensing the medication, and the probable length of time the medication will be taken.

The fact that the above information has or has not been given must be indicated on the patient's chart. A failure to give information about the probable effects and possible side effects of the medication does not constitute new grounds for release [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5152(c)].

[6] Inebriated Persons

[a] Basis for Custody

The detention and treatment of inebriated persons for 72 hours is governed by Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 5170-5176. When any person is a danger to others or to himself or herself or gravely disabled as a result of inebriation, a peace officer, a member of the attending staff, as defined by regulation, of an evaluation facility designated by the county, or any other person designated by the county may, on reasonable cause, take the person (or cause the person to be taken) into civil protective custody and place the person in a facility designated by the county and approved by the Department of Health as a facility for 72-hour treatment and evaluation of inebriates [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5170].

The provisions for detention of inebriates apply only to those counties in which the Board of Supervisors has adopted a resolution stating that suitable facilities exist and has adopted the relevant statutory provisions [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5176]. The procedures for detention of inebriates for 72 hours are outlined in the Procedural Checklist, Paragraph A(2).

[b] Requirements for Treatment Facility

The treatment and evaluation facility must include one or more of the following: (1) a screening, evaluation, and referral facility (which may be provided by a mobile crisis unit, first aid station, or ambulatory detoxification unit); (2) a detoxification facility for alcoholic and acutely intoxicated persons; and (3) an alcohol recovery house [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5170.1].

[c] Civil Protective Custody for Disorderly Conduct

Pen. Code § 647(g) requires a peace officer who finds a person in a public place under the influence of intoxicating liquor in such a condition that he or she is unable to exercise care for his or her own safety or the safety of others to place the person in civil protective custody and take him or her to a facility designated under Welf. & Inst. Code § 5170 for the 72-hour treatment and evaluation of inebriates [see Pen. Code § 647(f)(public inebriacy as disorderly conduct); but see Pen. Code § 647(g)(1)-(3) (civil protective custody not available to certain violators)]. Pen. Code § 647(g) also provides that after the person has been taken to the treatment facility, he or she is not subject to any criminal prosecution or juvenile court proceeding based on the facts giving rise to the placement.

This civil protective custody is available to any person who has violated the disorderly conduct provisions of Pen. Code § 647(f) except (1) persons who are under the influence of drugs, or the combined influence of drugs and liquor, (2) persons whom the officer has probable cause to believe have committed a felony, (3) persons whom the officer has probable cause to believe have committed some misdemeanor other than the mere public inebriety, and (4) persons whom the peace officer in good faith believes will attempt to escape or will be unreasonably difficult for medical personnel to control [Pen. Code § 647(g)].

For factors that may be considered in determining a peace officer's reasonable ability to comply with these civil protective custody procedures, see People v. Ambellas (1978) 85 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 24, 30-40 ; Stout v. City of Porterville (1983) 148 Cal. App.3d 937, 945-947, 196 Cal. Rptr. 301 (police not required to take public inebriate into custody).

The failure of a county to establish a facility for inebriates does not deny equal protection of the laws to persons in that county [People v. McNaught (1973) 31 Cal. App.3d 599, 608-609, 107 Cal. Rptr. 566] .

[d] Statutory Right to Make Telephone Calls

Persons placed in an evaluation and treatment facility pursuant to these provisions have the statutory right to make telephone calls [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 5170.5].

[e] Request for Early Release

A person who requests to be released from the facility before 72 hours have elapsed must be released only if the psychiatrist directly responsible for the person's treatment believes, as a result of his or her personal observations, that the person is not a danger to others or to himself or herself. If any other professional person who is authorized to release the person, believes the person should be released before 72 hours have elapsed and the psychiatrist directly responsible for the person's treatment objects, the matter must be referred to the medical director of the facility for the final decision. However if the medical director is not a psychiatrist, he or she must appoint a designee who is a psychiatrist. If the matter is referred, the person will be released before 72 hours have elapsed only if the psychiatrist making the final decision believes, as a result of his or her personal observations, that the person is not a danger to others or to himself or herself [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5170.7].

[7] Court-Ordered Evaluation

[a] In General

Any person alleged, as a result of a mental disorder, to be a danger to others or to himself or herself or to be gravely disabled may be given an evaluation of his or her condition under a superior court order pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code § 5200 et seq. Procedures for court-ordered evaluation are outlined in the Procedural Checklist, Paragraph A(3).

The procedure is begun by an individual's application to a person or agency designated by the county for a petition alleging that there is in the county a person who is, as a result of a mental disorder, a danger to others or to himself or herself or is gravely disabled, and requesting that an evaluation of the person's condition be made [see Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 5201, 5208 ("evaluation" defined)]. The agency screens the case to determine if there is probable cause to believe the allegations and whether or not the person will voluntarily accept services or an evaluation [see Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 5202, 5208(f) ("prepetition screening" defined)]. The person or agency providing prepetition screening must conduct a reasonable investigation of the allegations and make a reasonable effort to interview the subject of the petition personally [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5202].

The person to be evaluated has a right to remain in his or her own home or other place of his or her own choosing prior to the evaluation, and to be accompanied to the evaluation by certain other persons [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 5206]. A person who fails to appear after proper notification for evaluation may, however, be taken into custody [see Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 5206, 5208].

[b] Criminal Defendants

The court-ordered evaluation of criminal defendants who appear to be dangerous or gravely disabled as a result of chronic alcoholism or the use of narcotics or restricted drugs is governed by Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 5225-5230. The judge before whom the person is brought may order the person's evaluation [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 5225], but the defendant must be advised of the right immediately to continue with the criminal proceeding [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 5226]. Procedures for court-ordered evaluation of a criminal defendant pursuant to these statutory provisions are outlined in § 304.221 (see Paragraph 4).

[8] Disposition After Evaluation

The relevant statutes provide that the period of initial detention for evaluation and treatment may not exceed 72 hours, but Saturdays, Sundays, and holidays may be excluded from computation if evaluation and treatment services are not available on those days [see Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 5151, 5171, 5213(a), 5230]. Several dispositions of the person involuntarily evaluated are possible:

- The person may be released at or before the end of the 72-hour detention period [see Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 5152(a), 5170.7, 5172, 5206, 5226.1, 5230; see also Welf. & Inst. Code § 5152.1 (notification of release)];

- The person may be referred for further care and treatment on a voluntary basis [see Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 5152(b), 5171, 5172, 5206, 5230]; or

- The person may have a conservator appointed [see Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 5152(b), 5172, 5206]. For procedures for appointment of a conservator, see Ch. 281, Guardianship and Conservatorship: Appointment of Conservators .

If the relevant statutory standards are met, the person may be certified for 14-day involuntary intensive treatment [Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 5152(a), 5172, 5206, 5230].

[9] Liability of Medical Personnel

Persons and entities, such as hospitals and clinics, authorized to detain a mentally disordered person for a 72-hour period may not be held criminally or civilly liable for exercising this authority in accordance with the law [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5278; Jacobs v. Grossmont Hospital (2003) 108 Cal. App. 4th 69, 74, 133 Cal. Rptr. 2d 9 (immunity extends to peace officers, members of attending staff at designated facilities, certain members of a mobile crisis team, and other professionals designated by county); Cruze v. National Psychiatric Services, Inc. (2003) 105 Cal. App. 4th 48, 54-57, 129 Cal. Rptr. 2d 65 (applying immunity to institutions and agencies with which health care professionals are associated, affiliated, or employed)]. To eliminate any concern for possible liability related to the decision to detain a person involuntarily for 72 hours, Welf. & Inst. Code § 5278 affords immunity to those individuals who exercise the authority to detain in accordance with the law. This immunity allows those individuals to make the decision to impose a 72-hour hold for treatment and evaluation, without fear of exposure to criminal or civil liability. The immunity applies to individuals or entities who make the decision to detain, when that decision is supported by probable cause [Jacobs v. Grossmont Hospital (2003) 108 Cal. App. 4th 69, 76, 133 Cal. Rptr. 2d 9] . If the provisions of Welf. & Inst. Code § 5152 have been met, the professional person in charge of the facility providing the 72-hour treatment and evaluation and the medical director of the facility (or their designees), as well as the psychiatrist who is directly responsible for the person's treatment, or the psychologist, may not be held civilly or criminally liable for any action by the person following his or her early release [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5154(a); Ford v. Norton (2001) 89 Cal. App. 4th 974, 980-984, 107 Cal. Rptr. 2d 776 (immunity does not extend to psychologist who authorized early release, because this release does not meet requirements of Welf. & Inst. Code § 5152); but see Welf. & Inst. Code § 5152(a) (psychologist who has personally evaluated or examined person, and who has collaborative relationship with psychiatrist, may authorize early release after consulting with psychiatrist)].

The immunity provided by Welf. & Inst. Code § 5278 is not absolute [Jacobs v. Grossmont Hospital (2003) 108 Cal. App. 4th 69, 77, 133 Cal. Rptr. 2d 9] . It extends to claims based on circumstances that are inherent in the involuntary detention, evaluation, and treatment, but it does not confer blanket immunity for any act or omission occurring during the 72-hour hold, no matter how negligent, wrongful, or criminal [Jacobs v. Grossmont Hospital (2003) 108 Cal. App. 4th 69, 78-79, 133 Cal. Rptr. 2d 9 (rejecting hospital's suggestion that liability should be limited to extreme or outrageous acts not rationally related to a therapeutic purpose of necessary to maintain detention for required period)].

For example, the statute does not insulate from liability negligent medical treatment that falls below the standard of professional care [Jacobs v. Grossmont Hospital (2003) 108 Cal. App. 4th 69, 79 fn. 3, 133 Cal. Rptr. 2d 9 ; see Gonzalez v. Paradise Valley Hosp. (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 735, 741, 3 Cal. Rptr. 3d 903 (Welf. & Inst. Code § 5278 is inapplicable to actions for negligence stemming from acts or omissions in evaluation or treatment during 72-hour hold)]. Protected conduct is confined to the exercise of statutory authority to detain, evaluate, and treat against a patient's wishes; immunity does not extend to the manner in which evaluation and treatment are conducted [Gonzalez v. Paradise Valley Hospital (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 735, 741, 3 Cal. Rptr. 3d 903] .

In addition, a treating psychiatrist who releases a patient who has been involuntarily committed under the LPS Act, merely because the patient does not have insurance, may be liable to the patient and any person the patient injures. The immunities for treating psychiatrists contained in the Act are not applicable unless the treating psychiatrist complies with the requirements of the Act before releasing a patient. In other words, the psychiatrist must believe, based on his or her own personal observations, that the patient is no longer a danger [Bragg v. Valdez (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 421, 425, 433, 3 Cal. Rptr. 3d 804] . A psychiatrist's decision to release a patient under the Act must be made on medical, not monetary, grounds [Bragg v. Valdez (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 421, 431-432 fn.10, 3 Cal. Rptr. 3d 804 (suggesting actions that might appropriately be taken to transfer uninsured patient to public facility for treatment)]. An action by a person the patient injures based on a psychiatrist's failure to comply with the duties imposed under the involuntary commitment procedures of the LPS Act is not barred by Civ. Code § 43.92 or Tarasoff v. Regents of University of California (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 425, 131 Cal. Rptr. 14, 551 P.2d 334 , which preclude a cause of action against a psychotherapist for failing to warn of a patient's threatened violent behavior unless the patient has made a serious threat of physical violence against a reasonably identifiable victim [Bragg v. Valdez (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 421, 433-435, 3 Cal. Rptr. 3d 804] .

However, the immunity afforded by Welf. & Inst. Code § 5154 does apply in a case in which a psychiatrist fails to warn an individual of a patient'sspecific threats of harm against that individual, and the patient harms the individual, as long as the psychiatrist authorized release of the patient in accordance with the required statutory findings--that is, that the patient no longer posed a threat to self or others [Michael E.L. v. County of San Diego (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 515, 523-524, 527, 530, 228 Cal. Rptr. 139 (psychiatrist owes duty under Tarasoff to take reasonable care to protect intended victim from danger of serious violence he or she perceives in person placed under 72-hour hold for evaluation and treatment, but is immune from liability if person's release complies with statutory requirements)].

[10] Confiscation of Firearms

When a person is taken into custody for evaluation of an apparent mental disorder under Welf. & Inst. Code § 5150, the detaining officer must confiscate any firearms or other deadly weapons owned or possessed by the person [Welf. & Inst. Code § 8102(a)]. The confiscated weapons must be returned to the person unless the law enforcement agency, within 30 days of the person's release, files a petition with the court to determine whether returning the weapons would be likely to result in endangering the person or others, and sends the person notice of his or her right to a hearing on this issue [Welf. & Inst. Code § 8102(c); see Rupf v. Yan (2000) 85 Cal. App. 4th 411, 420-428, 102 Cal. Rptr. 2d 157 ; People v. One Ruger .22-Caliber Pistol (2000) 84 Cal. App. 4th 310, 313-314, 100 Cal. Rptr. 2d 780 (upholding constitutionality of this procedure)]. At this hearing, the court may allow the psychiatrist who examined the person during his or her confinement to testify on the issue of whether the person is a danger to self or others [People v. One Ruger .22-Caliber Pistol (2000) 84 Cal. App. 4th 310, 314-315, 100 Cal. Rptr. 2d 780 (Evid. Code § 1024 affords exception to patient-psychotherapist privilege when psychotherapist has reasonable cause to believe that patient is dangerous to self or others, and that disclosure of otherwise privileged communication is necessary to avert danger to others)]. The court may also admit testimony of the detaining officer regarding his or her observations of the person or consider the officer's report [see Rupf v. Yan (2000) 85 Cal. App. 4th 411, 428-432, 102 Cal. Rptr. 2d 157 (assuming, without deciding, that hearing is subject to rules of evidence applicable in civil cases and not to more relaxed evidentiary rules used in administrative proceedings)]. The court may consider whether the circumstances leading to the 72-hour hold might occur again, and whether possession or control of the confiscated weapons in this event would pose a risk of danger to the detained person or others [Rupf v. Yan (2000) 85 Cal. App. 4th 411, 424, 102 Cal. Rptr. 2d 157] .

The power to seek forfeiture of firearms or other deadly weapons under Welf. & Inst. Code § 8102 is predicated on the performance of an assessment and evaluation of the person as required by Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 5151 and 5152. A court does not have the power to order the forfeiture of firearms owned by a person who, although subject to detention under Welf. & Inst. Code § 5150, was never assessed or evaluated [City of San Diego v. Kevin B. (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 933, 940-943, 13 Cal. Rptr. 3d 450] .

In addition to the confiscation and forfeiture of weapons provided by Welf. & Inst. Code § 8102, any person who has been detained for evaluation under Welf. & Inst. Code § 5150 may not own, possess, control, receive, or purchase firearms for a period of five years after the person's release from the mental health facility that performed the evaluation of his or her mental state [Welf. & Inst. Code § 8103(f)(1)].

§ 304.35 Fourteen-Day Involuntary Intensive Treatment

[1] Certification

The procedures for certification of a person, after detention for 72 hours, for 14 days of involuntary treatment in a hospital are set forth in Welf. & Inst. Code § 5250 et seq. To detain the person for 14-day treatment, the person must have been found by the professional staff to be, as a result of mental disorder or impairment by chronic alcoholism, a danger to others or to himself or herself or to be gravely disabled. The person must also have been advised of, but not to have accepted, voluntary treatment, and the facility providing treatment must be designated by the county to provide intensive treatment, must agree to admit the person, and must comply with certification review hearing requirements [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5250(a)-(c)]. The procedures for certification of a person for 14-day involuntary intensive treatment are outlined in § 304.222.

[2] Notice of Rights

When a notice of 14-day certification is delivered to a person for 14-day treatment, the person is informed that he or she has the right to a certification review hearing and the right to the assistance of an attorney or another person to prepare for that hearing [see Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 5252, 5254].] The person detained is also informed of his or her legal right to judicial review by habeas corpus and the right to counsel, including court-appointed counsel [Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 5254.1, 5276].

[3] Certification Review Hearing--General Requirement and Time

When a person is certified for intensive treatment, a certification review hearing to determine whether or not probable cause exists to detain the person for intensive treatment must be held unless judicial review has been requested [see Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 5254, 5256; see also § 304.40[1]]. The certification review hearing must be held within four days of the date on which the person is certified for a period of intensive treatment, unless judicial review is requested or the hearing is postponed by request of theperson or his or her attorney or advocate [Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 5254, 5256]. Hearings may be postponed for 48 hours or, in counties with a population of 100,000 or less, until the next regularly scheduled hearing date [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5256].

[4] Conduct of Hearing

The hearing must be conducted by either a court-appointed commissioner or a referee or a certification review hearing officer who is either a state-qualified administrative judge, a medical doctor, a licensed psychologist, a registered nurse, a lawyer, a certified law student, a licensed marriage, family, or child counselor, or a licensed clinical social worker. No employee of the county mental health program or of any facility designated by the county and approved by the State Department of Mental Health as a facility for 72-hour treatment and evaluation may serve as a certification review hearing officer [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 5256.1]. At the hearing, the evidence in support of the certification decision must be presented by a person designated by the director of the facility. In addition, either the district attorney or the county counsel may present evidence [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5256.2]. All relevant evidence may be admitted and considered [Welf. & Inst. Code 5256.4(d)]. Although resistance to involuntary commitment may be a product of a mental disorder, resistance does not, in and of itself, imply the presence of a mental disorder or constitute evidence that a person meets the criteria of being dangerous to self or others or of being gravely disabled [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5256.4(e)].

[5] Rights of Person Certified

The person certified is entitled, among other things, to be present at the hearing, to be assisted by an attorney or advocate, to present evidence, to question those presenting evidence in support of the certification decision, and to make reasonable requests for the attendance of facility employees who participated in or had knowledge of the certification decision [see Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 5256.3, 5256.4(a)]. The mental health facility must make reasonable attempts to notify family members, or any other person designated by the patient, of the time and place of the certification hearing, unless the patient requests that this information not be provided. The treating facility must also advise the patient that he or she has the right to request that this information not be provided [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5256.4(c)].

[6] Detention or Release After Findings

If the person conducting the hearing finds that there is no probable cause to believe that the person certified is, as a result of a mental disorder or impairment by chronic alcoholism, a danger to others or to himself or herself, or is gravely disabled, then the person certified may no longer be involuntarily detained. The person is not prohibited from remaining at the facility on a voluntary basis, however, and the facility is not prevented from providing the person with appropriate referral information concerning mental health services [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5256.5]. If the person conducting the hearing finds that there is probable cause that the person certified is a danger to others or to himself or herself or is gravely disabled, the person may be detained for involuntary care, protection, and treatment related to the mental disorder or alcoholic impairment for 14 or 30 additional days [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5256.6; see Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 5250, 5270.15; see also § 304.37, below].

[7] Notice of Findings to Person Certified

The person certified must be given oral notification of the decision at the conclusion of the certification review hearing, and, as soon thereafter as is practicable, the person's attorney or advocate and the director of the facility where the person is receiving treatment must be provided with written notification of the decision. The attorney or advocate must notify the person certified of the decision and of his or her rights to file a request for release and to have a hearing. A copy of the decision and the certification must be submitted to the superior court [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 5256.7].

[8] Availability of Legal Services

Any person who is held longer than 72 hours for treatment has a right to a lawyer, a qualified interpreter, and a hearing before a judge. If the person detained is unable to pay for a lawyer, one will be provided free [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 5157; see also Phillips v. Seely (1974) 43 Cal. App. 3d 104, 113, 117 Cal. Rptr. 863 (legal services at public expense are mandated in mental health matters when restraint of liberty is possible)].

[9] Disposition After Hearing

[a] During Treatment Period

If, during the 14-day additional treatment period, the psychiatrist directly responsible for the person's treatment believes, based on personal observations, that the person is no longer either a danger to others or to himself or herself, or is no longer gravely disabled because of mental disorder or impairment by chronic alcoholism, the person's involuntary commitment must end, and the person must be released [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5257(a)].

If both a psychiatrist and a psychologist have personally evaluated or examined the person and there is a collaborative treatment relationship between them, either may authorize the person's release, but only after they have consulted with each other [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5257(a)]. In the event of a clinical or professional disagreement about an early release, theperson may not be released unless the facility's medical director overrules the decision of the psychiatrist or psychologist who opposes the release. Both the psychiatrist and the psychologist must enter their findings, concerns, or objections into the person's medical record [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5257(a)].

If any other professional person who is authorized to release the person believes the person should be released during the 14-day additional treatment period and the psychiatrist directly responsible for the person's treatment objects, the matter must be referred to the medical director of the facility for the final decision. However, if the medical director is not a psychiatrist, he or she must appoint a designee who is a psychiatrist [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5257(a)].

If the matter is referred, the person must be released during the 14-day additional treatment period only if the psychiatrist making the final decision believes, based on personal observations, that the person certified no longer is, as a result of mental disorder or impairment by chronic alcoholism, a danger to others or to himself or herself or gravely disabled [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5257(a)].

The person is not prohibited, however, from remaining at the facility on a voluntary basis, and the facility is not prohibited from providing the person with appropriate referral information concerning mental health services [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5257(a)].

[b] After Treatment Period

Persons who have been certified for 14 days of intensive treatment, and who are not sooner released, must not be involuntarily detained beyond 14 days, except in the following cases [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5257(b)]:

- The person agrees to receive further treatment on a voluntary basis;

- The person is certified for an additional 14 days of intensive treatment as a suicidal person [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 5260 et seq.; see also § 304.36];

- The person is certified for an additional 30 days intensive treatment [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 5270.10 et seq.; see also discussion § 304.37];

- The person is the subject of an LPS conservatorship petition [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 5350 et seq.; see also §§ 304.38 and 304.144[6]]; or

- The person is the subject of a petition for postcertification as an imminently dangerous person [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 5300 et seq.; see also discussion § 304.39].

[10] Liability of Medical Personnel

If the provisions of Welf. & Inst. Code § 5257 have been met, the professional person in charge of the facility providing intensive treatment (or his or her designee), the medical director of the facility (or his or her designee), the psychiatrist directly responsible for the person's treatment, or the psychologist may not be held civilly or criminally liable for any action by a person who is released before the end of the 14 days of intensive treatment [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5259.3(a)], or for any action by a person who is released at the end of the 14 days of intensive treatment [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5259.3(b)]. In addition, the attorney or advocate representing the person, the court-appointed commissioner or referee, the certification review officer conducting the certification review hearing, and the peace officer responsible for the person's detainment may not be held civilly or criminally liable for any action by the person released at or before the end of the 14 days of intensive treatment [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5259.3(c)].

However, a treating psychiatrist who releases a patient who has been involuntarily committed under the LPS Act, merely because the patient does not have insurance, may be liable to the patient and any person the patient injures. The immunities for treating psychiatrists contained in the Act are not applicable, unless the treating psychiatrist complies with the requirements of the Act before releasing a patient. In other words, the psychiatrist must believe, based on his or her own personal observations, that the patient is no longer a danger [Bragg v. Valdez (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 421, 425, 433, 3 Cal. Rptr. 3d 804] . A psychiatrist's decision to release a patient under the Act must be made on medical, not monetary, grounds [Bragg v. Valdez (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 421, 431-432 fn. 10, 3 Cal. Rptr. 3d 804 (suggesting actions that might appropriately be taken to transfer uninsured patient to public facility for treatment)]. An action by a person the patient injures based on a psychiatrist's failure to comply with the duties imposed under the involuntary commitment procedures of the LPS Act is not barred by Civ. Code § 43.92 or Tarasoff v. Regents of University of California (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 425, 131 Cal. Rptr. 14, 551 P.2d 334 , which preclude a cause of action against a psychotherapist for failing to warn of a patient's threatened violent behavior unless the patient has made a serious threat of physical violence against a reasonably identifiable victim [Bragg v. Valdez (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 421, 433-435, 3 Cal. Rptr. 3d 804] .

§ 304.36 Fourteen-Day Treatment of Suicidal Persons

[1] Certification

The procedures for additional treatment of suicidal persons are set forth in Welf. & Inst. Code § 5260 et seq. Additional involuntary intensive treatment may occur only under the following conditions [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5260(a)-(d)]:

- The professional staff has analyzed the person's condition and has found that the person presents an imminent threat of taking his or her own life;

- The person has been advised of but has not accepted voluntary treatment;

- The facility providing additional intensive treatment is equipped, staffed, and designated to provide that treatment; and

- The person, as a result of mental disorder or impairment by chronic alcoholism, has threatened or attempted to take his or her own life during the 14-day period of intensive treatment or the 72-hour evaluation and treatment, or was detained for evaluation and treatment because the person threatened or attempted to take his or her own life.

The procedures for certification of a suicidal person for 14 days of additional intensive treatment are outlined in § 304.224.

[2] Disposition After Treatment

A certification of imminently suicidal persons must be for no more than 14 days of intensive treatment, and must terminate only as soon as the psychiatrist directly responsible for the person's treatment believes, based on his or her personal observations, that the individual has improved sufficiently for him or her to leave, or is prepared to accept voluntary treatment or referral or to remain in the facility providing intensive treatment on a voluntary basis [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5264(a)].

If both a psychiatrist and a psychologist have personally evaluated or examined the person and there is a collaborative treatment relationship between them, either may authorize the person's release, but only after they have consulted with each other [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5264(a)]. In the event of a clinical or professional disagreement about an early release, the person may not be released unless the facility's medical director overrules the decision of the psychiatrist or psychologist who opposes the release. Both the psychiatrist and the psychologist must enter their findings, concerns, or objections into the person's medical record [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5264(a)].

If any other professional person who is authorized to release the person believes the person should be released before 14 days have elapsed and the psychiatrist directly responsible for the person's treatment objects, the matter must be referred to the medical director of the facility for the final decision. If, however, the medical director is not a psychiatrist, he or she must appoint a designee who is a psychiatrist. If the matter is referred, the person must be released before 14 days have elapsed only if the psychiatrist believes, based on his or her personal observations, that the individual has improved sufficiently for him or her to leave, or is prepared to accept voluntary treatment on referral or to remain in the facility providing intensive treatment on a voluntary basis [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5264].

Persons to whom Welf. & Inst. Code § 5226.1(criminal defendants dangerous as a result of use of drugs or chronic alcoholism) does not apply, or with respect to whom the criminal charge has been dismissed under Welf. & Inst. Code § 5226.1, must be released at the end of the 14 days of further intensive treatment unless any of the following applies [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5264(b); see Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 5270.10 et seq., 5300 et seq.; see also discussion § 304.38]:

- The patient agrees to receive further treatment on a voluntary basis;
- The patient is recommended for conservatorship; or
- The patient is confined for 180 days for treatment as an imminently dangerous person.

[3] Liability of Medical Personnel

If the provisions of Welf. & Inst. Code § 5264 [see § 304.36[2]] have been met, the professional person in charge of the facility providing intensive treatment (or his or her designee), the medical director of the facility (or his or her designee), the psychiatrist directly responsible for the person's treatment, or the psychologist may not be held civilly or criminally liable for any action by a person who is released before the end of the 14 days of intensive treatment [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5267(a)], or for any action by a person who is released at the end of the 14 days of intensive treatment [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5267(b)].

§ 304.37 Thirty-Day Involuntary Intensive Treatment--Certification

On completion of a 14-day period of intensive treatment under Welf. & Inst. Code § 5250 [see § 304.35[1]], the person may be certified for an additional period of not more than 30 days of intensive treatment under both of the following conditions [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5270.15]:

- The professional staff of the agency or facility treating the person has found that the person remains gravely disabled as the result of a mental disorder or impairment by chronic alcoholism; and

- The person remains unwilling or unable to accept treatment voluntarily.

The purpose of this additional intensive treatment is to reduce the number of gravely disabled persons for whom conservatorship petitions are filed and who are placed under temporary conservatorship only to obtain an additional period of treatment without the petitioner's belief that a conservator is actually needed and the intent to proceed further on the conservatorship petition [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5270.10]. Additional intensive treatment is operative only if the county board of supervisors by resolution authorizes its application. The board of supervisors must also make a finding that any additional costs incurred by the county in implementation are funded either by new funding sufficient to cover the resulting costs that are incurred by the county or by funds redirected from cost savings that result from its implementation, or from a combination of thesesources, so that no current service reductions will occur as a result [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5270.12].

If it is contemplated that a gravely disabled person may need to be detained beyond the end of the 14-day period of intensive treatment, the professional person in charge of the treating facility must cause an evaluation to be made, based on the patient's current condition and past history, about whether it appears that the person is likely to qualify for appointment of a conservator even after a period of up to 30 days of additional treatment. The evaluation must be made prior to proceeding with an additional 30-day certification. If the appointment of a conservator appears likely, the conservatorship referral must be made during the 14-day period of intensive treatment [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5270.55(a)]. If it appears that with up to 30 days additional treatment the person is likely to reconstitute sufficiently to obviate the need for appointment of a conservator, the person may be certified for the additional 30-day period [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5270.55(b)].

If no conservatorship referral has been made during the 14-day period and, during the 30-day period, it appears that the person is likely to require the appointment of a conservator, the conservatorship referral must be made to allow sufficient time for conservatorship investigation and other related procedures. If a temporary conservatorship is obtained, it must run concurrently with and not consecutively to the 30-day certification period. The conservatorship hearing must be held by the 30th day of the certification period. The maximum involuntary detention period for gravely disabled persons under Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 5150, 5250, and 5270.15 is limited to 47 days [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5270.55(c); see Welf. & Inst. Code § 5352.3 (period may exceed 47 days if continuance is granted)].

For further discussion of the appointment of a conservatorship for a gravely disabled person, see § 304.144[6].

26-304 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 304.39

§ 304.39 180-Day Treatment for Imminently Dangerous Persons

[1] Basis for Commitment

Postcertification treatment is governed by Welf. & Inst. Code § 5300 et seq.]. At the expiration of the 14-day period of intensive treatment, a person may be confined for further treatment for an additional period, not to exceed 180 days, if one of the following exists [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5300]:

(a) The person has attempted, inflicted, or made a serious threat of substantial physical harm on the person of another after having been taken into custody and while in custody for evaluation and treatment, and who, as a result of mental disorder or mental defect, presents a demonstrated danger of inflicting substantial physical harm on others;

(b) The person had attempted or inflicted physical harm on the person of another, that act having resulted in his or her being taken into custody, and who presents, as a result of mental disorder or mental defect, a demonstrated danger of inflicting substantial physical harm on others; or

(c) The person had made a serious threat of substantial physical harm on the person of another within seven days of being taken into custody, that threat having at least in part resulted in his or her being taken into custody, and the person presents, as a result of mental disorder or mental defect, a demonstrated danger of inflicting substantial physical harm on others.

[2] Affirmative Obligation to Treat

Any commitment to a licensed health facility under Welf. & Inst. Code § 5300 et seq., which governs postcertification treatment, places an affirmative obligation on the facility to provide treatment for the underlying causes of the person's mental disorder [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5300].

Amenability to treatment is not required for a finding that any person qualifies for further treatment. Treatment programs need only be made available to these persons. Treatment does not mean that the treatment be successful or potentially successful, nor does it mean that the person must recognize his or her problem and willingly participate in the treatment program [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5300].

[3] Petition and Hearing

The professional person in charge of the facility, or a designee, may ask the district attorney or the county counsel (see Welf. & Inst. Code § 5114) to petition the superior court in the county in which the facility is located for an order requiring the person to undergo an additional period of treatment [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5301]. The petition must actually be filed within the 14-day period [People v. Superior Court (Finch) (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 1546, 1550-1551, 248 Cal. Rptr. 23] . For purposes of counting the 14-day period, the general method of counting set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 12 is used, meaning that the day on which the 14-day period of confinement begins is excluded and the last day is included [People v. Superior Court (Finch) (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 1546, 1551, 248 Cal. Rptr. 23 (if 14-day period begins on February 11, February 12 is counted as first day and February 25 is last day)]. The remedy for late filing is release of the person from confinement, not dismissal of the petition [People v. Superior Court (Finch) (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 1546, 1548, 1551, 248 Cal. Rptr. 23] .

If, at the hearing, the court or jury finds that the person named in the petition meets the standard for postcertification treatment [see Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 5300, 5304(a)], the court must remand the person for a period not to exceed 180 days of further treatment [Welf. & Inst. Code§ 5304]. Procedures for the petition for further treatment for 180 days are outlined in § 304.225.

[4] Notice of Right to Representation and Jury Trial

At the time a petition for postcertification treatment is filed, the court must advise the person named in the petition of his or her right to be represented by an attorney and of his or her right to demand a jury trial. The court must appoint a public defender or another attorney to represent the person named if that person is financially unable to provide his or her own attorney. The attorney must represent the person and advise the person of his or her rights in relationship to the proceeding [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5302].

[5] Release or Other Disposition

The person must be released at the end of 180 days unless another petition that alleges the same condition of the person is filed for postcertification treatment in the superior court in which the original petition was filed [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5304(b)].

§ 304.40 Judicial Review by Writ of Habeas Corpus

[1] Certification for Involuntary Intensive Treatment

If a person detained for 72-hours is subsequently detained by certification for 14-day involuntary intensive treatment, additional 14-day treatment, additional 30-day treatment or 180-day postcertification treatment, that person is entitled to a hearing by writ of habeas corpus for release under Welf. & Inst. Code § 5275 [see Thorn v. Superior Court (1970) 1 Cal. 3d 666, 674-675, 83 Cal. Rptr. 600, 464 P.2d 56 ; see also Welf. & Inst. Code § 5250 et seq.; Welf. & Inst. Code § 5260 et seq.; Welf. & Inst. Code § 5270.10 et seq.; Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 5300, 5308]. See §§ 304.35 and 304.39[1]

Review by habeas corpus is a matter of right after the detainee or a person acting on his or her behalf has made a request for release to (1) the person who delivered the copy of the notice of certification to the detainee at the time of the delivery, or (2) any member of the treatment facility staff at any time during the period of intensive treatment pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 5250, 5260, or 5270.10 [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5275]. A patient must not be moved from the county providing evaluation services to a different county for intensive services once the evaluation facility staff has been notified that judicial review will be sought until judicial review has been completed [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5276].

[2] Notice to Detainee

The person delivering the notice of certification to the person certified must, at the time of delivery, inform the person certified of his or her legal right to a judicial review by writ of habeas corpus and must explain the term to the person certified [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5254.1]. The person delivering the notice must also inform the person of the right to counsel, including court-appointed counsel, pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code § 5276 [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5254.1], and the right to a certification review hearing within four days of certification unless judicial review is requested [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5254; see § 304.35[3]].

Certification of an imminently suicidal person for an additional 14 days of intensive involuntary treatment requires notice to the detainee of his or her continuing legal right to judicial review by habeas corpus, and an explanation of that term [Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 5262, 5263; see § 304.36[1]]. Certification for additional 30-day intensive treatment under Welf. & Ins. Code § 5270.15 also requires notification that is substantially in the form required for initial 14-day certification under Welf. & Inst. Code § 5252 [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5270.15; see § 304.37[1]]. Likewise, a person hospitalized under Welf. & Inst. Code 5300 et seq.(additional confinement for imminently dangerous persons), must be notified of his or her right to judicial review by habeas corpus in the manner prescribed in Welf. & Inst. Code § 5254.1 [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 5308 (citing former Welf. & Inst. Code § 5252.1, now repealed, which is continued in Section 5254.1); see § 304.39[1]].

If a person detained for certification requests release, that person must be informed of his or her right to counsel to assist in preparation of the writ of habeas corpus, and the right to court-appointed counsel, if he or she cannot afford to pay for legal services [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5276].

[3] Jurisdiction and Venue

Venue for judicial review by habeas corpus is in the superior court for the county in which the 72-hour evaluation was conducted if the patient or person acting in his or her behalf informs the professional staff of the evaluation facility (in writing) that judicial review will be sought. Otherwise, judicial review is in the superior court for the county in which the facility providing intensive treatment is located [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5276].

[4] Standard of Proof on Review by Habeas Corpus

The standard of proof on review of certification for involuntary confinement by habeas corpus is the existence of more evidence than not, namely, a preponderance of the evidence, that the patient is gravely disabled. Procedurally, the state must bear the burden of proof, including the burden of persuasion, to justify the certification [In re Azzarella (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 1240, 1247, 254 Cal. Rptr. 922] .

§ 304.41 Assisted Outpatient Treatment Program

[1] When Available

In any county that provides assisted outpatient treatment services under the Assisted Outpatient Treatment Demonstration Project Act of 2002 [Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 5345-5349.5], a court may order a person who is the subject of a petition filed under the Act to obtain assisted outpatient treatment if the court finds, by clear and convincing evidence, that the facts stated in the verified petition are true and establish that all of the requisite criteria for this treatment are met, including, but not limited to the following [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5346(a)]:

- The person is at least 18 years of age.
- The person is suffering from a mental illness [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5600.3(b)(2), (3)].
- There has been a clinical determination that the person is unlikely to survive safely in the community without supervision.
- The person has a history of lack of compliance with treatment for his or her mental illness.
- The person has been offered an opportunity to participate in a treatment plan by the local mental health department, but continues to fail to engage in treatment.
- The person's condition is deteriorating substantially.
- Participation in the assisted outpatient treatment program is the least restrictive placement necessary to ensure the person's recovery and stability.
- The person needs this treatment to prevent a relapse or deterioration that is likely to result in grave disability or serious harm to self or others.

- It is likely that the person will benefit from this treatment.

[2] Petition

The petition is filed by the county mental health director, at the request of certain specified persons (including family members and treatment providers), and after conducting an investigation into the appropriateness of filing the petition [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 5346(b)]. It must be accompanied by an affidavit of a licensed mental health treatment provider who has examined the subject of the petition within 10 days before the submission of the petition or has attempted to do so but has been unsuccessful in persuading the person to submit to an examination [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5346(b)(5)]. The petition must be filed in the superior court in the county in which the person is present or reasonably believed to be present [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5346(b)(1)]. The petition and notice of hearing must be personally served on the person who is the subject of the petition [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5346(d)(1)].

[3] Hearing

A hearing on the petition must beheld within five days after it is received by the court, excluding Saturdays, Sundays, and holidays [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5346(d)(1)]. The hearing is limited to the facts and grounds stated in the petition, to ensure adequate notice to the person who is the subject of the petition and his or her counsel [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5346(b)(4)(B)]. The person has the right to be represented by counsel at all stages of the proceedings, and the court must appoint the public defender to represent the person if he or she has not retained counsel [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5346(c), (d)(4)(C)].

At the hearing, the court must hear testimony and may examine the person in or out of court, if the person is available [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5346(d)(1), (4)(E), (F) (person has right to be present at hearing and to present evidence)]. The court may conduct the hearing in the person's absence if appropriate attempts to secure his or her attendance have failed, but must set forth the factual basis for conducting the hearing without the person's presence [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5346(d)(1)].

The court may not order assisted outpatient treatment unless an examining licensed mental health treatment provider, who has personally examined and reviewed the available treatment history of the person within 10 days before the filing of the petition, testifies in person at the hearing [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5346(d)(2)]. If the person refuses to be examined and the court finds reasonable cause to believe that the allegations in the petition are true, the court may order the person taken into custody and transported to a hospital for examination by a licensed mental health treatment provider as soon as is practicable [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5346(d)(3)]. Detention under the order may not exceed 72 hours [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5346(d)(3)].

[4] Order

If, after hearing all relevant evidence, the court finds that the person does not meet the criteria for assisted outpatient treatment, the court must dismiss the petition [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5346(d)(5)(A)]. If the court finds that the person does meet the criteria for assisted outpatient treatment and there is no appropriate and feasible less restrictive alternative, the court may order the person to receive this treatment for an initial period of up to six months [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5346(d)(5)(B)]. The order must state the categories of treatment, as set forth in Welf. & Inst. Code § 5348, that the person is to receive [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5346(d)(5)(B)]. The court may only order treatment that has been recommended by the examining licensed mental health treatment provider and included in a written treatment plan [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5346(d)(5)(B), (e)].

If the person ordered to undergo assisted outpatient treatment was not present at the hearing at which the order was issued, he or she mayimmediately petition the court for a writ of habeas corpus [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5346(j) (treatment under order may not begin until petition is resolved)].

[5] Subsequent Proceedings

The director of the outpatient treatment program must file an affidavit with the court at least every 60 days during the period of the order, affirming that the person continues to meet the criteria for this treatment [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5346(h)]. If the person disagrees with the director's affidavit, he or she has the right to a hearing on whether he or she still meets the criteria for assisted outpatient treatment [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5346(h)]. At the hearing, the burden of proof is on the director [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5346(h)].

If the person believes he or she is being wrongfully retained in the assisted outpatient treatment program against his or her wishes, the person may file a petition for a writ of habeas corpus, thus requiring the director to prove that the person continues to meet the criteria for assisted outpatient treatment [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5346(i)].

If the court determines that the person's condition requires further assisted outpatient treatment beyond the period specified in the initial treatment order, the court may order continued treatment for a period of up to 180 days [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5346(g)].

[6] Settlement Agreements

Any person the court determines meets the criteria for assisted outpatient treatment under Welf. & Inst. Code § 5346(a) [see § 304.41[1]] may voluntarily enter into an agreement for treatment services [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5347(a)]. After a petition for an order for assisted outpatient treatment is filed, but before the conclusion of the hearing on the petition, the person who is the subject of the petition, or the person's legal counsel with the person's consent, may waive the right to a hearing for the purpose of obtaining treatment under a settlement agreement, as long as an examining licensed mental health treatment provider states that the person can survive safely in the community [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5347(b)(1)]. The settlement agreement must be agreed to by all parties and may not be for a period of more than 180 days [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5347(b)(1)]. The agreement must be in writing, approved by the court, and include a treatment plan developed by the community-based program that will provide services which provides treatment in the least restrictive manner consistent with the person's needs [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5347(b)(2)]. Either party may request the court to modify the treatment plan at any time [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5347(b)(3)]. Such an agreement has the same force and effect as an order for treatment [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5347(b)(5)].

The court must designate the appropriate county department to monitor the person's treatment under, and compliance with, the settlement agreement [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5347(b)(4)]. If the person fails to comply with the treatment, the designated county department must notify the counsel designated by the county and the person's counsel of the person's noncompliance [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5347(b)(4)]. At the hearing on the issue of noncompliance, the written statement of noncompliance submitted is prima facie evidence that a violation of the conditions of the agreement has occurred [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5347(b)(6)]. If the person denies any of the facts set forth in the statement, he or she has the burden of proving by a preponderance of the evidence that the alleged facts are false [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5347(b)(6)].

§ 304.42 Conservatorship for Gravely Disabled Person

[1] When Appropriate

Conservatorship is an additional means by which a patient may be involuntarily committed for psychiatric treatment [Edward W. v. Lamkins (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 516, 526, 122 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1] .

A conservator of the person or estate, or both, may be appointed for any person who is gravely disabled as a result of mental disorder or impairment by chronic alcoholism [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5350]. The definition of "gravely disabled," is discussed in § 304.111. Welf. & Inst. Code § 5350 does not apply to a person who is gravely disabled as defined in Welf. & Inst. Code § 5008(h)(1)(B) (incapacity to stand trial) [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5350(e)(4)].

Notwithstanding the definition of "gravely disabled" in Welf. & Inst. Code § 5008(h)(1)(A), a person is not gravely disabled for purposes of an LPS conservatorship under Welf. & Inst. Code § 5350 if that person can survive safely without involuntary detention with the help of responsible family, friends, or others who are both willing and able to help provide for the person's basic personal needs for food, clothing, or shelter [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5350(e)(1)]. Unless they specifically indicate in writing their willingness and ability to help, family, friends, or others are not considered willing or able to provide this help [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5350(e)(2)]. The legislative purpose of this provision is to avoid the necessity for, and the harmful effects of, requiring family, friends, and others publicly to state, and requiring the court publicly to find, that no one is willing or able to assist the mentally disordered person in providing for the person's basic needs for food, clothing, or shelter [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5350(e)(3)]. Because of this purpose and despite the writing requirement, if the person who is willing and able to assist the proposed conservatee testifies in court to his or her willingness and ability, the person need not give a writing to that effect [Conservatorship of Johnson (1991) 235 Cal. App. 3d 693, 699 n.5, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 46] . Thus, even if it is admitted that a proposed conservatee has a mental disorder and would otherwise be unable to provide for his or her personal needs, the court will not find the person to be "gravely disabled" as long as he or she can safely survive with the assistance of awilling family member or friend who can provide for these needs [see Conservatorship of Johnson (1991) 235 Cal. App. 3d 693, 698-699, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 46 (assistance offered by conservatee's mother held insufficient to ensure conservatee's "safe survival")]. However, the limitations on the definition of "gravely disabled" discussed in this paragraph are inapplicable if the proposed conservatee has been charged with the commission of a felony involving death, great bodily harm, or a serious threat to the physical well-being of another person, and has been found mentally incompetent to stand trial [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5350(e)(4); see Welf. & Inst. Code § 5008(h)(1)(B); see also Pen. Code § 1370 and discussion § 304.31[2]].

A conservatee living in a board and care facility paid for by public assistance checks issued to a parent has been found not to be utilizing the assistance of willing and responsible family members, friends, or third parties [Conservatorship of Law (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 1336, 1341, 249 Cal. Rptr. 415] . Similarly, Department of Corrections supervision of a parolee does not qualify as "third-party assistance" precluding a finding of "grave disability" [Conservatorship of Jones (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 292, 300-302, 256 Cal. Rptr. 415] .

[2] Procedure for Appointment of Conservator

The procedure for establishing, administering, and terminating conservatorships for gravely disabled persons under the Lanterman-Petris-Short Act is the same as that provided in the Guardianship and Conservatorship Law (Prob. Code § 1400 et seq.), except as follows:

- A conservator (not a guardian) may be appointed for a gravely disabled minor [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5350(a)].

- Appointment of a conservator for a gravely disabled person is subject to the list of priorities in Probate Code § 1812, unless the officer investigating the conservatorship for the court recommends otherwise [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5350(b)(1)].

- In appointing a conservator for a person who has been charged with the commission of a felony involving death, great bodily harm, or a serious threat to the physical well-being of another person, and has been found mentally incompetent to stand trial [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 5008(h)(1)(B); see also Pen. Code § 1370 and discussion § 304.31[2]], the court must consider the purposes of protection of the public and the treatment of the conservatee [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5350(b)(2)].

- A conservatorship of the estate cannot be established for a gravely disabled person under the Lanterman-Petris-Short Act if the person already has a guardian or conservator of the estate appointed under the Probate Code [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5350(c)].

- A conservatorship of the person may be established for a gravely disabled person under the LPS Act even if the person already has a guardian or conservator of the person appointed under the Probate Code [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5350(c)]. The LPS Act proceedings will not terminate the Probate Code proceedings, but will be concurrent with and superior to them [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5350(c)]; however, the guardian or conservator under the Probate Code must be given notice of the LPS Act proceedings [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5350(g)]. The court in the LPS Act proceedings may appoint the existing guardian and conservator or another person as conservator [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5350(c)].

- On or after filing a petition for appointment of a conservator, any person entitled to petition for appointment of the conservator may file a petition for appointment of a temporary conservator of the person or estate or both [Prob. Code § 2250.2].

- The proposed conservatee may demand a trial on the issue of whether he or she is gravely disabled, and may specify whether it is to be a court or jury trial [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5350(d)]. The demand must be made within five days following the hearing on the conservatorship petition [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 5365 and discussion in § 304.42[8]]. If the trial is demanded before the hearing, the hearing is waived.

Whether the trial is to be a jury or a court trial, it must begin within 10 days of the date of demand, unless counsel for the proposed conservatee requests that it be continued for a period not to exceed 15 days [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5350(d)].

- The conservatorship investigation must be conducted under the LPS Act and not under the Probate Code [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5350(f); see also § 304.42[6]].

- In appointing a conservator for a conservatee who is gravely disabled as defined in Welf. & Inst. Code § 5008(h)(1)(B) (incapacity to stand trial), the court must consider both the purposes of protecting the public and treating the conservatee [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5350(b)(2)].

Because a conservatorship under the grave disability provisions of the LPS Act threatens a massive curtailment of the conservatee's liberty and personal autonomy, strict compliance with the statutory procedures designed to protect the conservatee is required [Edward W. v. Lamkins (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 516, 531, 533-534, 122 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1] .

For discussion of the Guardianship and Conservatorship Law, see Ch. 280, Guardianship and Conservatorship: Appointment of Guardians , through Ch.290H, Guardianship and Conservatorship: Termination of Guardianships and Conservatorships .

[3] Demand for Trial

A demand for a court or jury trial must be made within five days following the hearing on the conservatorship petition. If the proposed conservatee demands a court or jury trial before the date of the hearing, as provided for in Welf. & Inst. Code § 5365, the demand constitutes a waiver of the hearing [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5350]. The court or jury trial must commence within 10 days of the date of the demand, except that the court must continue the trial date for a period not to exceed 15 days on request of counsel for the proposed conservatee. The right to court or jury trial also applies in subsequent proceedings to reestablish a conservatorship [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5350].

The right to a jury trial may be waived orally in open court by the attorney for the proposed conservatee because civil procedural law determines whether an individual has waived the right to a jury trial in a conservatorship proceeding [Conservatorship of Maldonado (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 144, 148, 218 Cal. Rptr. 796 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 631(d)(3); Prob. Code § 1827; Welf. & Inst. Code § 5350].

[4] Persons for Whom Conservatorship Proceedings May Be Initiated

Conservatorship proceedings may be initiated for any person who has been committed to a state hospital or local mental health facility or placed on outpatient treatment under Pen. Code § 1026 (insane defendant), or 1370 (mentally incompetent defendant), or transferred under Pen. Code § 4011.6 (commitment of prisoner to mental facility) on recommendation of the medical director of the state hospital or a designee, or on recommendation of the professional person in charge of the local mental health facility or a designee, or on recommendation of the local mental health director or a designee to the conservatorship investigator of the county of residence of the person before his or her admission to the hospital or facility or of the county in which the hospital or facility is located. The initiation of conservatorship proceedings or the existence of a conservatorship does not affect any pending criminal proceedings [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5352.5].

Subject to the provisions of Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 5150 and 5250 (discussed in §§ 304.34 and 304.35[1]), conservatorship proceedings may be initiated for any person convicted of a felony who has been transferred to a state hospital under the jurisdiction of the State Department of Mental Health under Pen. Code § 2684 by the recommendation of the medical director of the state hospital to the conservatorship investigator of the county of residence of the person or of the county in which the state hospital is located [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5352.5].

Subject to Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 5150 and 5250, conservatorship proceedings also may be initiated for any person committed to the Youth Authority or on parole from a facility of the Youth Authority, by the recommendation of the Director of the Department of the Youth Authority or the director's designee to the conservatorship investigator of the county of residence of the person or of the county in which the facility is situated [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5352.5].

[5] Who May Recommend Conservatorship

When the professional person in charge of an agency providing comprehensive evaluation or a facility providing intensive treatment determines that a person in his or her care is gravely disabled as a result of mental disorder or impairment by chronic alcoholism and is unwilling to accept, or incapable of accepting treatment voluntarily, he or she may recommend conservatorship to the officer providing conservatorship investigation of the county of residence of the person before his or her admission as a patient in a facility [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5352]. Thus, if a person can provide for his or her own basic personal needs (is not gravely disabled) or is able to voluntarily accept treatment, there is no need for a conservatorship [Conservatorship of Walker (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 1082, 1092, 242 Cal. Rptr. 289 ; but see Conservatorship of Symington (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 1464, 1467, 257 Cal. Rptr. 860 (actual finding that proposed conservatee is unwilling or unable to accept treatment is not necessary to establish LPS conservatorship)]. The determination of whether a proposed conservatee is gravely disabled as a result of mental disorder and amendable to treatment under the LPS Act is solely in the conservator's discretion. A court can order an investigation for a conservatorship, but cannot require that a petition for an LPS conservatorship be filed [People v. Karriker (2007) 149 Cal. App. 4th 763, 782, 57 Cal. Rptr. 3d 412] .

The professional person in charge of an agency providing comprehensive evaluation or a facility providing intensive treatment may recommend conservatorship for a person without the person being an inpatient in the facility, if both of the following conditions are met: (1) the professional person or another professional person designated by the professional person has examined and evaluated the person and determined that the person is gravely disabled; (2) the professional person or another professional person designated by the professional person has determined that future examination on an inpatient basis is not necessary for a determination that the person is gravely disabled [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5352].

[6] Investigation and Report

The officer providing conservatorship investigation must investigate all available alternatives to conservatorship and must recommend conservatorship to the court only if no suitable alternatives are available. The officer must render to the court a written report of the investigation before the hearing. If the officerproviding conservatorship investigation recommends against conservatorship, he or she must set forth all alternatives available. A copy of the report must be transmitted to the individual who originally recommended conservatorship, to the person or agency, if any, recommended to serve as conservator, and to the person recommended for conservatorship. The court may receive the report in evidence and may read and consider the contents of the report in rendering its judgment [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5354; Conservatorship of Isaac O. (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 50, 54-55, 235 Cal. Rptr. 133 (failure to transmit copy of conservatorship investigation report to proposed conservatee does not cause court to lose jurisdiction over proceeding)]. However, only nonhearsay portions of the investigator's report may be admitted at a contested court or jury trial on the issue of grave disability [Conservatorship of Manton (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 645, 648-653, 217 Cal. Rptr. 253, 703 P.2d 1147] .

If the investigating officer recommends conservatorship, the recommendation must designate the most suitable person, corporation, state or local agency, or county officer or employee to be conservator [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5355]. The appointment of a conservator is subject to the list of priorities set forth in Prob. Code § 1812, unless the conservatorship investigator recommends otherwise [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5350(b)]. Under Prob. Code § 1812, preference is to be given in the following order: the spouse or domestic partner [as defined by Prob. Code § 37; Fam. Code § 297 et seq.], an adult child, a parent, a brother or sister, and any other person eligible [see Prob. Code § 1812; Conservatorship of Walker (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 1082, 1100-1101, 242 Cal. Rptr. 289] . While the LPS Act does not expressly state that the conservatorship investigator should follow these priorities, at least one appellate court has implied that they should be followed. It held that a trial court abused its discretion in summarily appointing a public conservator on the basis of a report that did not "justify negating the possibility of appointing immediate family members" [see Conservatorship of Walker (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 1082, 1101, 242 Cal. Rptr. 289] .

The report also must contain an agreement signed by the person or agency recommended certifying that the person or agency is able and willing to serve as conservator [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5356]. Despite the requirement that the investigative report contain this agreement, the public guardian must serve as conservator of any person found to be gravely disabled if the court recommends the conservatorship after the investigation and finds that no other person or entity is willing and able to serve as conservator [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5356].

The report must contain the investigating officer's recommendations concerning the powers to be granted to, and the duties to be imposed on the conservator, the legal disabilities to be imposed on the conservatee, and the proper placement for the conservatee under Welf. & Inst. Code § 5358 [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5356].

All conservators of the estate have the general powers specified in Prob. Code §§ 2400-2586 and the additional powers specified in Prob. Code §§ 2590-2595 as the court may designate [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5357; for discussion of a conservator's powers under Prob. Code §§ 2400-2595], see Ch. 287, Guardianship and Conservatorship: General Management Powers , and Ch. 288, Guardianship and Conservatorship: Independent Exercise of Powers . The report must set forth which, if any, of the additional powers it recommends [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5357]. The report also must recommend for or against the imposition of disabilities on the proposed conservatee concerning his or her privilege of possessing a driver's license and his or her right to enter into contracts, to vote [see Elec. Code § 2208], and to refuse or consent to medical treatment [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5357]. At any time, the conservatee may petition the court for a hearing to contest the rights denied or the powers granted to the conservator [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5358.3].

[7] Petition by Investigating Officer

If the officer providing conservatorship investigation concurs with the recommendation that a conservatorship be established, he or she must petition the superior court in the county of residence of the patient to establish conservatorship [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5352]. Only the officer designated by the county to provide conservatorship investigation may file and prosecute the petition [Kaplan v. Superior Court (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 1354, 1358-1360, 265 Cal. Rptr. 408 ; see Welf. & Inst. Code § 5351].

When temporary conservatorship is indicated, the fact must be alternatively pleaded in the petition. The officer providing conservatorship investigation or other county officer or employee designated by the county must act as the temporary conservator [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5352].

[8] Hearing on Petition; Right to Attorney

[a] General Requirements

A hearing on any petition under Welf. & Inst. Code § 5350 et seq. must be held within 30 days of the date of the petition. The court must appoint the public defender or other attorney for the conservatee or proposed conservatee within five days after the date of the petition [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5365]. In fixing a sum for the compensation and expenses of appointed counsel, the court has discretion to compensate counsel for services rendered or expenses incurred before he or she was appointed [see Prob. Code § 1472(a)(1)].

& Inst. Code § 5350] to represent himself or herself in the civil commitment proceedings, but the court has the discretion to permit self-representation [Conservatorship of Joel E. (2005) 132Cal. App. 4th 429, 438-442, 33 Cal. Rptr. 3d 704] . The California Supreme Court has held that a hearing to establish a conservatorship under LPS Act did not violate the or the proposed conservatee's constitutional right of due process when the court accepted representation by the proposed conservatee's attorney and proceeded with the hearing in the proposed conservatee's absence, when the proposed conservatee told appointed counsel that he did not contest the proposed conservatorship and did not want to attend the hearing, and there were no allegations that the attorney misrepresented the contents of that discussion [Conservatorship of John L. (2010) 48 Cal. 4th 131, 157, 105 Cal. Rptr. 3d 424, 225 P.3d 554] .

[b] Notice of Hearing

The LPS Act does not expressly describe the requirements for notice to a proposed conservatee, but does provide that, with specified exceptions, the procedure for establishing a conservatorship under the Act is the same as that provided in division 4 of the Probate Code [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5350; Edward W. v. Lamkins (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 516, 526, 122 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1] . The Probate Code requires that a proposed conservatee be served with notice of the petition at least 15 days before the hearing on the petition [Prob. Code §§ 1822-1824].

The county mental health program must make reasonable attempts to notify family members or any other person designated by the person for whom conservatorship is sought (proposed conservatee) of the time and place of the conservatorship hearing. The treating facility must advise the proposed conservator that he or she may request that information about the time and place of the conservatorship hearing not be given to family members if the proposed conservator is not a family member. This request must be honored by the mental health program. However, neither Welf. & Inst. Code § 5350 nor § 5350.2 is to be interpreted to allow the proposed conservatee to request that any proposed conservator not be advised of the time and place of the conservatorship hearing [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 5350.2].

At the hearing, the court may receive oral and written evidence [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5118]. The proposed conservatee may waive the presence of the physician or other professional person who recommended conservatorship and of the physician providing evaluation or intensive treatment [see § 304.42[5]]. If there is such a waiver, the physician or other professional person need not be present at the hearing if the parties stipulate that the recommendation and records of the physician or other professional person concerning the proposed conservatee's mental condition and treatment will be received in evidence [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5365.1]. However, the conservatee's failure to exercise the waiver does not create an affirmative right to the physician's or other professional person's presence at the hearing [Conservatorship of Scharles (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 247, 254, 269 Cal. Rptr. 398] .

Because of the deprivation of liberty and stigma attached to involuntary commitment to a mental institution, due process requires that grave disability be established by proof beyond a reasonable doubt and, if a jury trial has been requested, by a unanimous verdict [Conservatorship of Hofferber (1980) 28 Cal. 3d 161, 178-179, 167 Cal. Rptr. 854, 616 P.2d 836 ; Conservatorship of Margaret L. (2001) 89 Cal. App. 4th 675, 679, 107 Cal. Rptr. 2d 542] .

On the other hand, it requires a verdict of only nine out of twelve jurors to find that a person is not gravely disabled [Conservatorship of Margaret L. (2001) 89 Cal. App. 4th 675, 679 fn. 4, 107 Cal. Rptr. 2d 542] . A court is required on request to instruct a jury in language emphasizing that the proposed conservatee is presumed not gravely disabled until the state carries its burden of proof. On a proper statement of the evidence, a party is also entitled on request to have jurors informed of the manner in which the "reasonable doubt" standard must be established when the evidence is circumstantial [Conservatorship of Walker (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 1082, 1098-1099, 242 Cal. Rptr. 289].

Due process further requires that physical restraints not be used on the proposed conservatee during a jury trial unless there are facts on the record that justify the trial court's decision to impose restraints and a sua sponte instruction advises the jury that restraints are not evidence of the defendant's disability [Conservatorship of Warrack (1992) 11 Cal. App. 4th 641, 647-648, 14 Cal. Rptr. 2d 99] . The testimony of a treating psychologist that a defendant posed present danger constitutes sufficient evidence justifying restraints. However, the lack of an instruction to jury with regard to restrains imposed on a proposed conservatee is harmless error when counsel unanimously agree that the restrains lack evidentiary value [Conservatorship of Warrack (1992) 11 Cal. App. 4th 641, 647-648, 14 Cal. Rptr. 2d 99] .

[d] Admissibility of Investigative Reports

Welf. & Inst. Code § 5354 does not authorize use of hearsay portions of the investigating officer's report at a contested court or jury trial on the issue of grave disability [Conservatorship of Manton (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 645, 648-653, 217 Cal. Rptr. 253, 703 P.2d 1147 ; see § 304.42[6]]. An investigative report may be admitted only at the initial court "hearing" to the extent that the report does not otherwise qualify for admission under any exception to the hearsay rule [Conservatorship of Manton (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 645, 648-653, 217 Cal. Rptr. 253, 703 P.2d 1147] .

[9] Exclusionary Rule Does Not Apply

The exclusionary rule does not apply to a trial of a proposed conservatee's grave disability in a conservatorship proceeding under the LPS Act [Conservatorship of Susan T. (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 1005, 1014-1015, 36 Cal. Rptr. 2d 40, 884 P.2d 988] . According to the California Supreme Court, the deterrent effect of the exclusionary rule does not outweigh the social cost of disregarding a continuing state of disability [Conservatorship of Susan T. (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 1005, 1018-1020, 36 Cal. Rptr. 2d 40, 884 P.2d 988] . It is possible, however, that a seizure of evidence in such proceedings may be so egregious as to implicate due process concerns under Rochin v. California (1952) 342 U.S. 165, 172, 72 S. Ct. 205, 96 L. Ed. 183 [Conservatorship of Susan T. (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 1005, 1020, 36 Cal. Rptr. 2d 40, 884 P.2d 988] .

In Conservatorship of Susan T., the California Supreme Court refused to consider whether the exclusionary rule applies to 14-day and 30-day certifications for intensive treatment, but noted that in both types of hearing certification hearings, all relevant evidence must be admitted and considered by the hearing officer according to statute [Conservatorship of Susan T. (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 1005, 1019, 36 Cal. Rptr. 2d 40, 884 P.2d 988] .

[10] Temporary Conservatorship

The court may establish a temporary conservatorship for a period not to exceed 30 days and appoint a temporary conservator on the basis of the comprehensive report of the officer providing conservatorship investigation or on the basis of an affidavit of the professional person who recommended conservatorship stating the reasons for his or her recommendation, if the court is satisfied that the comprehensive report or affidavit shows the necessity for a temporary conservatorship [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5352.1].

When a temporary conservatorship is sought, the proposed conservatee must be given at least five days' notice of the proposed appointment, unless the court, for good cause, orders otherwise [Prob. Code § 2250(e)]. A public guardian's practice of requesting a waiver of this notice in all applications for temporary conservatorships was held to violate the potential conservatees' right to due process [Edward W. v. Lamkins (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 516, 543-545, 122 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1] . The appointment of a temporary conservator affects a conservatee's liberty, personal autonomy, and dignitary interests in receiving notice and an opportunity to be heard [Edward W. v. Lamkins (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 516, 530, 533-535, 538-539, 122 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1] . There is also a substantial risk of erroneous ex parte decisionmaking in the mental health context. When a temporary conservatorship is established without notice to the proposed conservatee, the court will often be acting on incomplete information, because the proposed conservatee is given no opportunity to present his or her side of the story [Edward W. v. Lamkins (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 516, 535-536, 122 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1] . Finally, the costs associated with providing notice in most cases are generally minimal [Edward W.

v. Lamkins (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 516, 544, 122 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1] . The notice requirement of Prob. Code § 2250(c) may be departed from only on a showing of good cause, i.e., an individualized showing of exigent circumstances in a particular case; a blanket statement of reasons offered as a matter of routine policy does not constitute good cause [Edward W. v. Lamkins (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 516, 541-545, 122 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1] .

All temporary conservatorships expire automatically at the conclusion of 30 days, unless before that date the court conducts a hearing on the issue of whether or not the proposed conservatee is gravely disabled. However, if the proposed conservatee demands a court or jury trial on the issue of grave disability, the court may extend the temporary conservatorship until the date of the disposition of the issue by the court or jury trial, provided that the extension in no event exceeds a period of six months [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5352.1].

A temporary conservator must determine what arrangements are necessary to provide the person with food, shelter, and care pending the determination of conservatorship. He or she must give preference to arrangements that allow the person to return to his or her home, family, or friends. If necessary, the temporary conservator may require the person to be detained in a facility providing intensive treatment or in a facility specified in Welf. & Inst. Code § 5358 pending the determination of conservatorship. Any person so detained has the same right to judicial review set forth in Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 5275-5278, as discussed in § 304.144[6][d]. The powers of a temporary conservator are those granted in the decree, but in no event can they be broader than the powers that may be granted a conservator [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5353].

[11] Placement and Treatment of Conservatee

[a] Inpatient Placement

When ordered by the court after a hearing, the conservator must place the conservatee in the least restrictive alternative placement, as designated by the court. The placement may include a medical, psychiatric, nursing, or other state-licensed facility, or a state hospital, county hospital, hospital operated by the Regents of the University of California, a United States government hospital, or other nonmedical facility approved by the State Department of Mental Health or an agency accredited by the State Department of Mental Health, or, in cases of chronic alcoholism, to a county alcoholic treatment center [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5358(a)].

A conservator may also have the right, if specified in the court order, to require the conservatee to receive treatment related specifically to remedying or preventing the recurrence of the conservatee's grave disability, or to require the conservatee to receive routine medical treatment unrelated to remedying or preventing the recurrence of the conservatee's grave disability [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5358(b); see Welf. & Inst. Code § 5352.6 (development of individualized treatment plan); see also Keyhea v. Rushen (1986) 178 Cal. App. 3d 526, 535, 223 Cal. Rptr. 746 (discussing right of LPS conservator to require conservatee's receipt of medical treatment)]. Except in emergency cases in which the conservatee faces loss of life or serious bodily injury, no surgery may be performed on the conservatee without the conservatee's prior consent or a court order specifically authorizing the surgery obtained under Welf. & Inst. Code § 5358.2 [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5358(b)].

If a conservatee requires medical treatment and the conservator has not been specifically authorized by the court to require the conservatee to receive medical treatment, the conservator, after notice to the conservatee, must obtain a courtorder for that medical treatment, except in emergency cases in which the conservatee faces loss of life or serious bodily injury. The conservatee, if he or she chooses to contest the request for a court order, may petition the court for a hearing, which must be held before the court grants the order [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5358.2].

[b] Outpatient Placement

If the conservatee is not to be placed in his or her own home or the home of a relative, the first priority is placement in a suitable facility as close as possible to his or her home or the home of a relative. "Suitable facility" means the least restrictive residental placement available and necessary to achieve the purposes of treatment. At the time that the court considers the report of the officer providing conservatorship investigation the court must consider available placement alternatives. After considering all of the evidence, the court must determine the least restrictive and most appropriate alternative placement for the conservatee. When the conservatee is incapable of making routine medical decisions, the court must designate the least restrictive alternative placement for a conservatee upon the establishment of a conservatorship [Conservatorship of Amanda B. (2007) 149 Cal. App. 4th 342, 351-352, 56 Cal. Rptr. 3d 901 ; see Welf. & Inst. Code § 5358(c)(1)]. The court also must determine who is to be notified of a change of placement [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5358(c)]. The fact that the proposed conservatee is not an inpatient is not to be construed by the court as an indication that the person does not meet the criteria of grave disability [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5358(c)].

If requested, the local mental health director is required to assist the conservator or the court in selecting a placement facility for the conservatee. When a conservatee who is receiving services from the local mental health program is placed, the conservator must inform the local mental health director of the facility's location and any movement of the conservatee to another facility, and must require the conservator to notify the district attorney or the attorney representing the originating county [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5358(c)].

If the conservatee leaves a facility without permission, the conservator can take the conservatee into custody or request a peace officer to detain the conservatee [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5358.5].

[c] In Community Care or Residential Elderly Facility

[i] Licensing Requirement

If the conservator places the conservatee in a community care facility [see Health & Safety Code § 1502(a) ("community care facility" defined); see also Health & Safety Code § 1500 et seq.], or if an employee of the conservator places, refers, or recommends placement of the conservatee in a community care facility, the facility must be licensed or be exempt from licensing under Health & Safety Code § 1505 (placement in county-licensed foster family home) or satisfy the condition of Welf. & Inst. Code § 362(c) (counseling or education program for minor adjudged dependent child of the court) [Health & Safety Code § 1536.1(b), (c); see Health & Safety Code § 1536.1(a) ("placement agency" includes LPS conservator)]. If the conservator places the conservatee in a residential care facility for the elderly [see Health & Safety Code § 1569.2(k) ("residential care facility for the elderly" defined); see also Health & Safety Code § 1569 et seq.], or if an employee of the conservator places, refers, or recommends placement of the conservatee in a residential care facility for the elderly, the facility must be either licensed or exempt from licensing under Health & Safety Code § 1569.145 (various specified exemptions from licensing requirement) [Health & Safety Code § 1569.47(b), (c); see Health & Safety Code § 1569.47(a) ("placement agency" includes LPS conservator)].

It is a misdemeanor for an employee of an LPS conservator to place, refer, or recommend placement of a conservatee in an unlicensed community care facility or residential care facility for the elderly, except when the facility is exempt from licensing as discussed above [see Health & Safety Code §§ 1536.1(c), 1569.47(c)]. Furthermore, any employee of an LPS conservator who knows, or reasonably suspects, that such a facitlity is not exempt and is operating without a license must report the facility's name and address to the State Department of Social Services. Failure to do so is a misdemeanor [Health & Safety. Code §§ 1536.1(d), 1569.47(d)].

[ii] Duty to Report Abuses by Facility

If the conservatee is placed in either a community care facility or in a residential care facility for the elderly, the conservator is required to notify the appropriate licensing agency of any known or suspected incidents that would jeopardize the health or safety of the facility's residents [Health & Safety Code §§ 1536.1(f), 1569.47(f)]. A representative, although not inclusive, list of reportable incidents is set forth in Health & Safety Code §§ 1536.1(f) and 1569.47(f), and includes incidents of physical, mental, or verbal abuse experienced by the residents [see Health & Safety Code §§ 1536.1(f)(1), (5), 1569.47(f)(1), (5)], or any situation in which a facility has insufficient or incompetent personnel on duty [see Health & Safety Code §§ 1536.1(f)(4), 1569.47(f)(4)].

[iii] Judicial Review of Placement

A gravely disabled conservatee may challenge his or her placement or the conditions of her confinement by writ of habeas corpus pursuant to Penal Code § 1473 (writ of habeas corpus for unlawful restraint or imprisonment generally), Welf. & Inst. Code § 7250 (writ of habeas corpus for unlawful confinement instate hospital for mentally disordered) [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 5358.7], or Welf. & Inst. Code § 5275 (writ of habeas corpus for release from intensive treatment pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 5250, 5260, or 5270.10). See discussion § 304.223, see §§ 304.280 and 304.280.1, and Ch. 292, Habeas Corpus .

However, a conservatee under an LPS conservatorship who is subject to involuntary intensive treatment may not ordinarily utilize the habeas corpus writ to obtain a less restrictive treatment placement [see In re Gandolfo (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 889, 897, 206 Cal. Rptr. 149, 686 P.2d 669] . Nevertheless, habeas corpus directed to the court in the county of treatment may be an appropriate remedy for an unreasonable denial of such freedom as is essential to the conservatee's welfare, or for unreasonable consequences that might flow from limitations of the statutory review mechanism [In re Gandolfo (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 889, 898, 206 Cal. Rptr. 149, 686 P.2d 669] .

[12] Transfer of Conservatee

The conservator may transfer the conservatee to a less restrictive alternative placement without a further hearing and court approval. In any case in which a conservator has reasonable cause to believe that the conservatee is in need of immediate, more restrictive placement because the condition of the conservatee has so changed that the conservatee poses an immediate and substantial danger to himself or herself or others, the conservator has the right to place the conservatee in a more restrictive facility or hospital. If the change of placement is to a placement more restrictive than the court-determined placement, the conservator must provide written notice of the change of placement and the reason for the change to the court, the conservatee's attorney, the county patient's rights advocate, and the other persons designated by the court pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code § 5358(c), discussed in § 304.42[11] [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5358(d)(1)]. If the conservatee is gravely disabled as defined in Welf. & Inst. Code § 5008(h)(1)(B), the conservator must also notify the district attorney or the attorney representing the originating county [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5358(d)(2)]. If any person designated to receive notice of the transfer of a gravely disabled conservatee objects to the transfer within 10 days after receiving notice, the matter must be set for a further hearing and court approval. The notification and hearing is not required for the transfer of persons between state hospitals [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5358(d)(2)].

[13] Outpatient Treatment

A conservator who places his or her conservatee in an inpatient facility pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code § 5358, as discussed in § 304.42[11], may also require the conservatee to undergo outpatient treatment. Before doing so, the conservator must obtain the agreement of the person in charge of a mental health facility that the conservatee will receive outpatient treatment and that the person in charge of the facility will designate a person to be the outpatient supervisor of the conservatee. The person in charge of the facility must notify the county mental health director or his or her designee of the agreement. At 90-day intervals following the commencement of the outpatient treatment, the outpatient supervisor must report in writing to the conservator and to the person in charge of the mental health facility setting forth the status and progress of the conservatee [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5358.6].

[14] Petition for Rehearing

[a] Who May File and When

At any time, the conservatee may petition the superior court for a rehearing as to his or her status as a conservatee. However, after the filing of the first petition for rehearing, no further petition for rehearing may be submitted for a period of six months [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5364, see Conservatorship of Amanda B. (2009) 173 Cal. App. 4th 1380, 1384, 93 Cal. Rptr. 3d 817 (conservatee may file an initial petition for rehearing at any time, but must wait six months before filing a subsequent petition for rehearing concerning his or her status as conservatee)].

[b] Availability of Appointed and Pro Bono Counsel

[i] General Rights

Statutory provisions governing the hearing on the petition and the appointment of counsel when necessary are discussed in § 304.42[8]. One court has noted that the five days in which the court has to appoint counsel pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code § 5365 do not necessarily constitute a gap in the law for appointed counsel to aid an indigent conservatee in filing the petition for rehearing. The indigent conservatee has the option of contacting and advising previously appointed counsel to file the petition, inasmuch as previously appointed counsel is the conservatee's attorney of record and, as such, is responsible for protecting the conservatee's rights [see Conservatorship of Scharles (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 1334, 1343 n.7, 285 Cal. Rptr. 325] . Alternatively, the indigent conservatee may have access to privately obtained pro bono counsel [see, e.g., Conservatorship of Scharles (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 1334, 1337, 285 Cal. Rptr. 325] .

A proposed conservatee who requests substitute appointed counsel must be given a full opportunity to state the reasons for his or her requests [Conservatorship of David L. (2008) 164 Cal. App. 4th 701, 712, 79 Cal. Rptr. 3d 530]. A court's failure to afford a proposed conservatee a full opportunity to state his or her reasons for requesting substitute counsel violates his or her right to due process of law [Conservatorship of David L. (2008) 164 Cal. App. 4th 701, 712, 79 Cal. Rptr. 3d 530].

[ii] Motion for Independent Forensic Psychiatric Examination

When an indigent conservatee in fact has privately obtained pro bono counsel and moves for an independent forensic psychiatric examination at county expense, it is an abuse of discretion for the trial court to deny the motion solely on the basis that the conservatee has obtained pro bono rather than appointed counsel and absent a judicial inquiry into the financial and evidentiary need for the examination, when county policy would permit funding of the examination if the conservatee had appointed counsel [Conservatorship of Scharles (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 1334, 1340-1342, 285 Cal. Rptr. 325] . Furthermore, denial of the conservatee's motion under these circumstances deprives the conservatee of his or her statutory right to a meaningful rehearing by discriminately restricting his orher ability to gather and present evidence [see Conservatorship of Scharles (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 1334, 1340, 1343, 285 Cal. Rptr. 325] . Finally, denial of the conservatee's motion under these circumstances conflicts outright with statewide policy of encouraging attorneys to perform pro bono services [Conservatorship of Scharles (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 1334, 1342, 285 Cal. Rptr. 325] .

[c] Standard of Proof

At the hearing on the petition, the burden is on the conservatee to produce evidence and prove by a preponderance of the evidence that he or she is no longer gravely disabled [Conservatorship of Everette M. (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 1567, 1572, 269 Cal. Rptr. 182 ; Baber v. Superior Court (1980) 113 Cal. App. 3d 955, 965-966, 170 Cal. Rptr. 353 ; see Conservatorship of Scharles (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 1334, 1343 n.8, 285 Cal. Rptr. 325 (declining to address conservatee's contention that court's denial of her request for an independent forensic psychiatric examination shifted burden of proof back to conservator and county)]. The conservatee establishes a prima facie case by showing that, since the prior establishment or reestablishment of conservatorship, his or her situation has changed so that he or she is no longer disabled [Conservatorship of Everette M. (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 1567, 1573, 269 Cal. Rptr. 182 ; Baber v. Superior Court (1980) 113 Cal. App. 3d 955, 966, 170 Cal. Rptr. 353] .

[15] Appeal

[a] Right to and Effect of Appeal

It is clear that an order establishing a conservatorship for a person under the Lanterman-Petris-Short Act is appealable, but the statutory authority for the right to appeal, and the effect of an appeal on the operation and effect of the order while the appeal is pending, are not clear. Prob. Code § 1301(a) provides that the grant or refusal to grant an order granting letters of conservatorship is appealable. Welf. & Inst. Code § 5350 provides that the procedure for establishing, administering, and terminating a conservatorship under the LPS Act is the same as that provided in Prob. Code § 1400 et seq. for guardianships, conservatorships, and other protective proceedings. Although Prob. Code § 1301(a) is not one of the Probate Code sections referred to in Welf. & Inst. Code § 5350, it may be argued that the legislature intended to make conservatorships under the LPS Act subject to the same rules for appeal as Probate Code guardianships, since Prob. Code § 1301 states broadly that is applies "with respect to guardianships, conservatorships, and other protective proceedings."

However, the rules for staying an order establishing a conservatorship under the LPS Act differ somewhat from the rules for staying an order establishing a conservatorship under the Probate Code. Welf. & Inst. Code § 5352.4, which applies to conservatorships under the LPS Act, provides that if the conservatee appeals the court's decision to establish the conservatorship, the conservatorship will continue unless execution of judgment is stayed by the appellate court. In contrast, Prob. Code § 1310(a), which applies to Probate Code conservatorships, provides that an appeal stays the operation and effect of the judgment or order, and Prob. Code § 1310(b) provides that when an appeal is taken, the trial court, for the purpose of preventing injury or loss to a person or property, may direct the exercise of the powers of the conservator, or may appoint a temporary conservator to exercise the powers, as if no appeal were pending.

[b] Strict Standard of Review

The appellate court must apply a strict standard of review for the appeal of an LPS commitment proceeding, because the deprivation of individual liberty is at stake [Conservatorship of Buchanan (1978) 78 Cal. App. 3d281, 288, 144 Cal. Rptr. 241 (disapproved on other grounds in Conservatorship of Early (1983) 35 Cal. 3d 244, 255, 197 Cal. Rptr. 539, 673 P.2d 209)]. On appeal of the issue of grave disability, the court must review the whole record in the light most favorable to the judgment below to determine whether it discloses substantial evidence such that a reasonable trier of fact could find the conservatee gravely disabled beyond a reasonable doubt [Conservatorship of Walker (1989) 206 Cal. App. 3d 1572, 1577, 254 Cal. Rptr. 552 ; see Conservatorship of Johnson (1991) 235 Cal. App. 3d 693, 696-697, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 46] . Substantial evidence is evidence that is reasonable, credible, and of solid value [Conservatorship of Walker (1989) 206 Cal. App. 3d 1572, 1577, 254 Cal. Rptr. 552] . Error in the proceeding can be held to be harmless only if the court is able to declare that it was harmless beyond a reasonable doubt [see Conservatorship of Early (1983) 35 Cal. 3d 244, 255, 197 Cal. Rptr. 539, 673 P.2d 209] .

An appellate court will not independently review the record for error. The procedural safeguards established by Anders v. California (1967) 386 U.S. 738, 87 S. Ct. 1396, 18 L. Ed. 2d 493 and People v. Wende (1979) 25 Cal. 3d 436, 158 Cal. Rptr. 839, 600 P.2d 1071 , which require an independent review of the record in certain criminal cases to determine whether there is any arguable appellate issue, do not apply on appeal of an order for a conservatorship under the LPS Act [Conservatorship of Ben C. (2007) 40 Cal. 4th 529, 543].

[c] Applicable Rules

The rules governing appeals from the superior court in criminal cases are applicable to any appeal from a judgment or order pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code § 5350, except when otherwise expressly provided by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.300 et seq. Cal Rules of Ct., Rule 8.320 et seq. sets forth requirements for the contents of the record on appeal, transmission of copies of that record, and service of appellate briefs.

[d] Appeals by Indigents--Special Considerations

Special considerations apply in the case of appeals by indigent persons. For example, an indigent appellant whose appointed counsel submits a brief that raises no specific issues or describes the appeal as frivolous is nevertheless entitled to a Wende review on appeal from an order granting a conservatorship under Welf. & Inst. Code § 5350 [Conservatorship of Besoyan (1986) 181 Cal. App. 3d 34, 38, 226 Cal. Rptr. 196 ; see People v. Wende (1979) 25 Cal. 3d 436, 441-442, 158 Cal. Rptr. 839, 600 P.2d 1071] . Similarly, a Wende review is required when appointed counsel fails to discover an arguable issue on appeal [Conservatorship of Margaret L. (2001) 89 Cal. App. 4th 675, 682, 107 Cal. Rptr. 2d 542]. Thus, an appellate court must conduct an independent review of the trial record to determine whether any arguable factual or legal issues exist [see People v. Wende (1979) 25 Cal. 3d 436, 441-442, 158 Cal. Rptr. 839, 600 P.2d 1071] . Furthermore, at least one court of appeal has held that an indigent conservatee is entitled to a free trial transcript in an appeal from the imposition of an LPS conservatorship and confinement in a county mental health facility [Waltz v. Zumwalt (1985) 167 Cal. App. 3d 835, 836-839, 213 Cal. Rptr. 529] .

[a] Procedure

A fundamental difference between a conservatorship under the Probate Code and one under the LPS Act is in the termination of the conservatorship. A probate conservatorship continues indefinitely, subject to periodic review [see Prob. Code §§ 1850, 1860]. An LPS conservatorship automatically terminates one year after the appointment of the conservator, not including the period of service of a temporary conservator. However, affirmative steps may be taken to reestablish it for another year (discussed in § 304.43[1]) [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5361; see Conservatorship of Benvenuto (1986) 180 Cal. App. 3d 1030, 1035, 226 Cal. Rptr. 33] . An LPS conservatorship may also be terminated by the court if the goals of the treatment plan have been reached and the conservatee is no longer gravely disabled [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5352.6]. Any facility in which a conservatee is placed must release the conservatee at his or her request when the conservatorship terminates [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5361].

[b] Notice of Impending Termination

Sixty days before the automatic termination date of the conservatorship, the clerk of the superior court must give notice of the pending termination to the conservator, the conservatee, the conservatee's attorney, and the person in charge of the facility where the conservatee resides. If the conservator is a private party, the clerk must also notify the mental health director and the county officer providing conservatorship investigation [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5362(a)]. Thus, the court that appointed the conservator bears the responsibility of initiating the process that may lead to the reestablishment of the conservatorship [see Henreid v. Superior Court (1976) 59 Cal. App. 3d 552, 556, 130 Cal. Rptr. 892] .

The notification must be given in person or by first-class mail. It must be in substantially the form set forth in the statute [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5362(a)]. The statutory notice of termination informs the recipients, including the conservatee, that they will be notified if the conservator petitions to reestablish the conservatorship [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5362(a); see Conservatorship of Moore (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 718, 726-728, 229 Cal. Rptr. 875 (notice provisions are reasonably likely to provide actual notice and thus meet requirement of procedural due process)].

The statutory notice also informs the recipients that, on the request of anyone entitled to notice, a court hearing or jury trial may be had on the issue of whether the conservatee is still gravely disabled and in need of conservatorship [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5362(a)]. Failure to advise the conservatee of his or her right to a jury trial on the reestablishment petition has been held to constitute reversible error [Conservatorship of Benvenuto (1986) 180 Cal. App. 3d 1030, 1037-1039, 226 Cal. Rptr. 33] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Lanterman-Petris-Short Act And Related Proceedings

26-304 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 304.43

§ 304.43 Reestablishment of Conservatorship

[1] Basis

If the conservator determines that the conservatee remains gravely disabled, he or she may petition the superior court for reappointment for a succeeding one-year period. The petition must include the opinion of two physicians or licensed psychologists who have a doctoral degree in psychology and at least five years of postgraduate experience in the diagnosis and treatment of emotional and mental disorders that the conservatee is still gravely disabled as a result of mental disorder or impairment by chronic alcoholism. If the conservator is unable to obtain the opinion of two physicians or psychologists, he or she may request that the court appoint them [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5361].

[2] Notice Requirements

No express manner of giving notice of the filing of a petition for reestablishment is specified in the LPS Act. In general, the proceedings for establishing, administering, and terminating LPS conservatorships are those applicable to other conservatorships under the Probate Code [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5350]. A petition for the establishment of a probate conservatorship must be served on the proposed conservatee either personally or by mail with acknowledgment of receipt [Prob. Code § 1824]. However, one court has refused to impose this requirement with regard to proceedings for the reestablishment of an LPS conservatorship [Conservatorship of Delay (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 1031, 1040 ns.10-11, 245 Cal.Rptr. 216 (local rule providing for service by first-class mail meets due process requirements)].

If service is by mail, it must be addressed to the conservatee. It may be sent to him or her in care of the facility where he or she resides. However, service by mail only on the facility where the conservatee resides is insufficient [Conservatorship of Delay (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 1031, 1040-1041, 245 Cal. Rptr. 216] .

The petition for reestablishment must also be transmitted to the facility in which the conservatee has been placed at least 30 days before the date of automatic termination of the conservatorship. The facility may detain the conservatee after the termination date only if the reestablishment proceedings have not been completed and the court orders the conservatee to be held until the proceedings have been completed [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5361].

[3] Continuation of Powers of Conservator of Estate

If a petition for reestablishment is filed, the superior court may grant the conservator of the estate a continuation of authority, for a reasonable time after the date of automatic termination, as necessary for (1) the collection of assets or income that accrued during the conservatorship but were uncollected before the date of termination; (2) the payment of expenses that accrued during the conservatorship and of which the conservator was notified before the termination; and (3) the completion of sales of real property for which the only act remaining at the date of termination is the actual transfer of title [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5361].

[4] Dismissal of Petition to Reestablish Conservatorship

The conservator has the discretion under Code Civ. Proc. § 581(b)(1) to voluntarily dismiss the petition to reestablish the conservatorship before trial commences [Conservatorship of Martha P. (2004) 117 Cal. App. 4th 857, 865-869, 12 Cal. Rptr. 3d 142 (request for dismissal granted on finding that conservatee was no longer gravely disabled)].

[5] Hearing or Jury Trial

Any party entitled to notice, including the conservatee, may request a court hearing or a jury trial on the reestablishment petition [see Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 5361, 5362(a); see also Conservatorship of Benvenuto (1986) 180 Cal. App. 3d 1030, 1037-1039, 226 Cal. Rptr. 33] . If a jury trial is requested, the jury must unanimously agree that the conservatee is gravely disabled [Conservatorship of Roulet (1979) 23 Cal. 3d 219, 235, 152 Cal. Rptr. 425, 590 P.2d 1] . However, only nine out of 12 jurors are required to find that the conservatee is not gravely disabled [Conservatorship of Rodney M. (1996) 50 Cal. App. 4th 1266, 1270-1271, 58 Cal. Rptr. 2d 513] .

If there is no request for a jury trial, the court may accept or deny the petition on its own motion [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5362(b); see Conservatorship of Moore (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 718, 731-733, 229 Cal. Rptr. 875 (fact that conservatee may be gravely disabled does not automatically preclude meaningful waiver of hearing or trial)]. Furthermore, a conservatee who waives his or her presence and the presence of his or her attorney at a reestablishment hearing essentially admits that he or she does not oppose reestablishment. A conservatee's due process rights are adequately protected when the conservatee receives a copy of the petition for reestablishment of conservatorship, is aware of the proposed placement and disabilities, has received written notices of right to a hearing and a jury trial, and conservatee's attorney has met with the conservatee and signed an affidavit attesting to the conservatee's agreement to reestablishment of the conservatorship without a hearing [see Conservatorship of Tian L. (2007) 149 Cal. App. 4th 1022, 1031, 57 Cal. Rptr. 3d 382] . Thus, a "brief and pro forma" hearing is not necessary; an ex parte review is sufficient [see Conservatorship of Pollock (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 1406, 1413, 257 Cal. Rptr. 14] .

In ruling on a petition for reestablishment, the court must apply the standard of proof beyond a reasonable doubt [Conservatorship of Roulet (1979) 23 Cal. 3d 219, 223-230, 152 Cal. Rptr. 425, 590 P.2d 1] . The court must determine whether the conservatee remains gravely disabled as of the time of the hearing or trial. If the conservatee is at that time able to provide for his or her basic needs, the court may not approve the petition on the basis of expert testimony that the conservatee is likely to once again become gravely disabled in the future [Conservatorship of Benvenuto (1986) 180 Cal. App. 3d 1030, 1033-1034, 226 Cal. Rptr. 33 ; Conservatorship of Murphy (1982) 134 Cal. App. 3d 15, 18-19, 184 Cal. Rptr. 363] .

[6] Ratification of Acts of Conservator After Termination

If the conservator continues in good faith to act within the powers granted in the initial appointment beyond the date of automatic termination, he or she may petition for a decree that ratifies his or her acts beyond the period. The decree must be granted and must provide for retroactive appointment of the conservator to provide continuity of authority in those cases in which the conservator did not apply in time for reappointment [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5363].

[7] Compensation of Conservator or Conservator's Attorney

California Rules of Court, Rules 7.750-7.755 set forth requirements that apply to payment of compensation to conservators and their attorneys, and are specifically made applicable to conservatorships under the LPS Act [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.750]. These rules provide that a petition for allowance of compensation to a conservator or to the attorney for a conservator may include a request for compensation for services rendered before an order appointing the conservator [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.751(a)]. The petition must show facts that demonstratethe necessity for these preappointment services [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.751(a)]. All petitions for orders fixing and allowing compensation must comply with the requirements of Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.702 concerning petitions for extraordinary compensation in decedents' estates, to the extent applicable to conservatorships, except that the best interest of the conservatee is to be considered rather than the interest of the beneficiaries of the estate [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.751(b)]. Thus, the petition must include, or be accompanied by, a statement of the facts on which the petition is based showing the nature and difficulty of the tasks performed, the results achieved, and the benefit of the services to the conservatee, and the amount requested for each category of service performed, the hourly rate of each person who performed the services and the hours spent by each of them, and a description of the services rendered [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.702]. Thecourt may order the conservator to file an accounting before or at the time the petition is filed or heard [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.752].

A conservator may not pay or receive, and the attorney for a conservator may not receive, any payment from the estate of the conservatee for services rendered in advance of a court order authorizing the payment [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.755(a)]. If an advance payment is made or received, the court may surcharge the conservator, in addition to removing the conservator or imposing any other sanction authorized by law on the conservator or on the attorney [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 7.755(a), 7.700(b)].

26-304 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 304.45

§ 304.45 Juveniles

[1] Involuntary Commitment

Special rules apply to the involuntary commitment of juveniles under the Children's Civil Commitment and Mental Health Treatment Act of 1988 [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 5585 et seq.]. This Act governs only an initial 72-hour evaluation and treatment period. Evaluation and treatment of a minor beyond this period continues to be governed by the provisions of the LPS Act [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5585.20]. The Act does not apply to emancipated minors, who are considered as adults and are subject to the LPS Act [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5585.59].

The Act applies if "authorization for voluntary treatment is not available" [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5585.50]. The Act does not address the question of whether authorization for voluntary treatment is available if the minor's parent or guardian consents, but the minor objects. However, under other applicable law, a parent or guardian has the power to apply for the voluntary admission of his or her minor child or ward to a state mental institution subject to certain due process limitations if the child is over the age of 14 [Welf. & Inst. Code § 6000; In re Roger S. (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 921, 927, 141 Cal. Rptr. 298, 569 P.2d 1286 ; see also discussion § 304.50].

[2] Basis for Commitment

A minor who as a result of mental disorder is a danger to self or to other persons, or who is gravely disabled, may be taken into custody involuntarily for 72 hours by a peace officer, by a member of the attending staff of a county-designated evaluation facility, by members of a mobile crisis team, or by other professional persons designated by the county [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5585.50]. A minor is gravely disabled if, as a result of a mental disorder, he or she is unable to use the elements of life that are essential to health, safety, and development, including food, clothing, and shelter, even though these elements are provided to the minor by others. Mental retardation, epilepsy, or other developmental disabilities; alcoholism or other drug abuse; or repeated antisocial behavior do not, by themselves, constitute a mental disorder [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5585.25].

The minor who has been taken into custody must be placed in a facility designated by the county and approved by the State Department of Mental Health as a facility for 72-hour treatment and evaluation of minors. The facility must make every effort to notify the minor's parent or legal guardian as soon as possible after the minor is detained [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5585.50]. Minors under the age of 16 years may not be held with adults receiving psychiatric treatment under the LPS Act [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5585.55]. A waiver of this limitation may be granted on a county level if the policy causes undue hardship due to inadequate or unavailable alternative resources [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5751.7].

[3] Probable Cause Requirement

The decision to take the minor into custody must be based on probable cause. The receiving facility must require a written application that states the circumstances under which the minor's condition was called to the attention of the person who made the decision that the minor should be taken into custody. The application must state that that person has probable cause to believe that the minor is, as a result of mental disorder, a danger to self or to others, or is gravely disabled, and that authorization for voluntary treatment is not available. If the probable cause is based on the statement of a person other than the person who made the decision, the person who made the statement is civilly liable for intentionally giving a statement known to be false [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5585.50].

[4] Evaluation and Treatment

The minor must receive a clinical evaluation during the 72-hour period [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 5585.52]. If, in the opinion of the evaluator, the minor will require additional mental health treatment, a treatment plan must be written and must identify the least restrictive placement alternative in which the minor can receive the necessary treatment. The family, legal guardian, or caretaker and the minor must be consulted and informed about the basic recommendations for further treatment and placement requirements. Every effort must be made to obtain the consent of the minor's parent or legal guardian prior to treatment and placement of the minor. Inability to obtain this consent does not preclude the involuntarytreatment of a minor who is determined to be gravely disabled or a danger to self or to others [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5585.53].

[5] Wards and Dependents of Juvenile Court

If a juvenile court, after finding a minor to be a person described by Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 300, 601, or 602 (a ward or dependent child of the court), is in doubt about the state of mental health or the mental condition of the minor, the court may continue the hearing and proceed pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 6550, 6551 [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 6550]. If the court is in doubt as to whether the person is mentally disordered or mentally retarded, the court must order the person to be taken to a facility designated by the county and approved by the Department of Health as a facility for 72-hour evaluation and treatment. From that point, the provisions of the LPS Act governing civil commitments apply, except that the professional person in charge of the facility must make a written report to the court concerning the results of the evaluation of the person's mental condition [Welf. & Inst. Code § 6551].

The determination of whether a juvenile may be committed to a state mental hospital must be made pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 6550 and 6551 and the provisions of the LPS Act [In re E. (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 183, 189, 123 Cal. Rptr. 103, 538 P.2d 231] . The actual commitment of a minor ward of the juvenile court to a state hospital can be accomplished only through the appointment of a conservator under the LPS Act who is authorized to place the minor in such a hospital. A probation officer, as court-appointed custodian of the minor, cannot make application for a "voluntary" commitment pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code § 6000(b) [In re E. (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 183, 192, 123 Cal. Rptr. 103, 538 P.2d 231 ; In re Vicki H. (1979) 99 Cal. App. 3d 484, 497, 160 Cal. Rptr. 294 ; see Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 5350-5371; In re L. L. (1974) 39 Cal. App. 3d 205, 209-210, 214-215, 114 Cal. Rptr. 11 (approved in part in In re E. (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 183, 193 n.14, 123 Cal. Rptr. 103, 538 P.2d 231)].

[6] Mental Retardation

If, after referral, the minor is found to be mentally retarded, the juvenile court may direct the filing in another court of a petition for the commitment of the minor to a state hospital as a mentally retarded person pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code

§§ 6500-6512 [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 6551]. See § 304.70 et seq. for commitment procedures. Additionally, either before or after adjudication, a minor brought before the juvenile court under the Juvenile Court Law may be referred for commitment as a mentally retarded person if it appears to the juvenile court that the person is mentally retarded [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 6512].

§ 304.46 Statutory Rights of Patients

Each person involuntarily detained for evaluation and treatment under the LPS Act, each person admitted as a voluntary patient, and each mentally retarded person committed pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 6500-6512 has certain enumerated statutory rights [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 5325].

The professional person in charge of the facility or a designee may, however, for good cause shown, deny a person any of these rights, except the right to refuse convulsive or shock treatment and psychosurgery and the right to a patient advocate [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 5326]. Good cause for denying patient rights exists either when the professional person in charge of the facility or a designee has good reason to believe that the exercise of the specific right would be injurious to the patient; or when there is evidence that the specific right, if exercised, would seriously infringe on the rights of others; or when the institution or facility would suffer serious damage if the specific right was not denied; and when there is not a less restrictive way of protecting the interests to be protected [9 Cal. Code Reg. § 865.2]. The reason used to justify the denial of a right to a patient must be related to the specific right denied. A right must not be withheld or denied as a punitive measure, nor must a right be considered a privilege to be earned. Treatment must not include denial of any right specific by statute, and waivers signed by a patient, relative, guardian, or conservator must not be used as a basis for denial of a right specified by statute [9 Cal. Code Reg. § 865.2(b), (c)]. These rights may not be waived by the person's parent, guardian, or conservator [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5325].

[1] Qualified Right

Under the LPS Act, a mental patient has a qualified right to refuse medical treatment [Keyhea v. Rushen (1986) 178 Cal. App. 3d 526, 534-536, 223 Cal. Rptr. 746 ; see also People v. Thomas (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 1034, 1037, 266 Cal. Rptr. 295 ; Riese v. St. Mary's Hospital & Medical Center (1987) 209 Cal. App. 3d 1303, 1313, 271 Cal. Rptr. 199] . Mental patients cannot be presumed incompetent, and therefore incapable of making treatment decisions, solely because they are hospitalized [Riese v. St. Mary's Hospital & Medical Center (1987) 209 Cal. App. 3d 1303, 1315, 271 Cal. Rptr. 199 ; see Welf. & Inst. Code § 5331].

[2] Antipsychotic Medication

[a] Scope of Right

The right to refuse medical treatment includes the right to refuse antipsychotic medication [Riese v. St. Mary's Hospital & Medical Center (1987) 209 Cal. App. 3d 1303, 1318, 243 Cal. Rptr. 241 ; see Keyhea v. Rushen (1986) 178 Cal. App. 3d 526, 540-541, 223 Cal. Rptr. 746] . "Antipsychotic medication" is any medication customarily prescribed for the treatment of symptoms of psychoses and other severe mental and emotional disorders[Welf. & Inst. Code § 5008(l); see Keyhea v. Rushen (1986) 178 Cal. App. 3d 526, 531 n.1, 223 Cal. Rptr. 746 (containing partial list of antipsychotic medications)]. Any person who is subject to detention pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code § 5150 (72-hour detention of persons who are dangerous or gravely disabled for evaluation and treatment), Welf. & Inst. Code § 5250 (additional 14-day detention for treatment), Welf. & Inst. Code § 5260 (further 14-day detention if person is suicidal), or Welf. & Inst. Code § 5270.15 (additional 30-day detention for treatment if person remains gravely disabled and unwilling or unable to accept treatment voluntarily) has a qualified right to refuse treatment with antipsychotic medication, subject to the provisions set forth in Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 5332-5327[Welf. & Inst. Code § 5325.2].

[b] Nonemergency Situations

In a nonemergency situation, antipsychotic medication cannot be administered without the patient's informed consent, absent (1) a staff determination that treatment alternatives to involuntary medication are unlikely to meet the patient's needs, and (2) a judicial determination of incompetence [Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 5332(a), (b), 5333(b), 5334(c) (adopting, in large part, rule of Riese v. St. Mary's Hospital & Medical Center (1987) 209 Cal. App. 3d 1303, 1320, 271 Cal. Rptr. 199)]. If possible, the agency or facility providing the treatment must acquire the person's medication history [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5332(d)]. However, antipsychotic medication can be administered to the patient, over his or her refusal, pending an appeal of a determination of incapacity [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5334(e)(3)]. See discussion in § 304.47[2][d] and [g].

[c] Emergency Situations

In an emergency, the patient may be treated with antipsychotic medication over his or her objection prior to a capacity hearing, but only with antipsychotic medication that is required to treat the emergency condition [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5332(e)]. An "emergency" is a situation in which action to impose treatment over a person's objection is immediately necessary for the preservation of life or the prevention of serious bodily harm to the patient or others, and it is impracticable to first gain consent [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5008(m)]. It is not necessary for harm to take place or become unavoidable prior to treatment or intervention [Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 5008(m), 5332(e)]. In an emergency, any antipsychotic medication provided is to be provided in the manner least restrictive to the personal liberty of the patient [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5332(e)].

There is no statutory specification as to how long the medication can be administered on an emergency basis. In what appears to be an "emergency" fact situation, one court of appeal has held, in a ruling issued prior to the 1991 enactment of Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 5325.2 and 5332-5337 (codification of right and exercise of right to refuse antipsychotic medication), that the state may administer involuntary antipsychotic medication to a prisoner without a judicial determination that the patient is incompetent to refuse the treatment. The state may administer medication only on a short-term basis not to exceed 24 days; thereafter, unless the emergency continues, involuntary medication may not continue absent a court order. A court may extend the period of involuntary medication for an additional period of one year. To obtain a court order, the state must file a petition containing specified allegations and must satisfy the court that (1) because of a mental disorder, the patient presents a danger to others or to himself or herself or is gravely disabled; and (2) the patient is incompetent to refuse medication [People v. Thomas (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 1034, 1037, 1039-1040 n.2, 266 Cal. Rptr. 295 (involving state prisoner confined in medical facility and noting that the procedural requirements of the LPS Act, insofar as they are relevant to a given case, extend to state prisoners)]. It is not clear what effect the emergency provisions of Welf. & Inst. Code § 5332(e) have on this holding.

[d] Petition to Determine Incapacity to Consent to Medication

As previously noted, under the LPS Act, a mental patient's right to refuse antipsychotic medication on a nonemergency basis can be denied only when there has been a staff determination that treatment alternatives to involuntary medication are unlikely to meet the patient's needs and a judicial determination of incapacity to consent to the medication [Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 5332(b), 5333(b), 5334(c)]. Thus, a petition must be filed in superior court [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5333(b)], and there must be an evidentiary hearing, at which the person subject to the hearing has the right to representation by an advocate or legal counsel [Welf. & Inst. Code 5332(b), 5333(a)]. The standard of proof by which incapacity must be determined is not statutorily specified, but case law decided prior to the 1991 enactment of Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 5325.2 and 5332-5337 indicates that the standard is one of clear and convincing evidence [see, e.g., Riese v. St. Mary's Hospital & Medical Center (1987) 209 Cal. App. 3d 1303, 1322, 271 Cal. Rptr. 199 (antipsychotic medication case); Lillian F. v. Superior Court (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 314, 324, 206 Cal. Rptr. 603 (convulsive treatment case)].

The requirement that there be a judicial determination of incapacity under the LPS Act before a person may be subjected to involuntary administration of psychotropic medication extends to prisoners [Keyhea v. Rushen (1986) 178 Cal. App. 3d 526, 542, 223 Cal. Rptr. 746 ; but see In re Locks (2000) 79 Cal. App. 4th 890, 894-897, 94 Cal.

Rptr. 2d 495 (inmate who has had judicial hearing under Pen. Code § 1026, in which inmate was found not guilty by reason of insanity, and who was committed to state hospital for treatment, is not entitled to hearing to determine whether he or she is competent to refuse to take psychotropic medication; inmate's only judicial remedy is to seek determination that he or she is not danger to others under Pen. Code § 1026.2)].

[e] Factors to Be Considered at Capacity Hearing

A judicial determination of capacity or incapacity to consent to medication should focus primarily on (1) whether the patient is aware of his or her situation; (2) whether the patient is able to understand the benefits and risks of, as well as the alternatives to, taking the proposed medication; and (3) whether the patient is able (a) to understand and knowingly and intelligently to evaluate the information required to be given to patients whose informed consent is sought [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 5326.2 (information required to be given to constitute informed consent)], and (b) otherwise to participate in the medication decision through rational thought processes [Riese v. St. Mary's Hospital & Medical Center (1987) 209 Cal. App. 3d 1303, 1322-1323, 271 Cal. Rptr. 199] . If the patient is judicially determined to possess the capacity to give informed consent and refuses to do so, he or she cannot be required to take the medication in a nonemergency [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5332(b)]. If the patient is judicially determined incapable of giving informed consent, either the patient may be required to take the medication [see Welf. & Inst. Code 5332(b); see also Welf. & Inst. Code § 5334(e)(3)] or consent may be obtained from a surrogate, as circumstances dictate [see Riese v. St. Mary's Hospital & Medical Center (1987) 209 Cal. App. 3d 1303, 1323, 271 Cal. Rptr. 199] .

Generally, the court may only consider such issues as are pertinent to assessing consent, and may not decide medical questions such as whether the proposed treatment is actually necessary or is the least drastic alternative available [People v. Thomas (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 1034, 1039-1040, 266 Cal. Rptr. 295 ; Riese v. St. Mary's Hospital & Medical Center (1987) 209 Cal. App. 3d 1303, 1320-1321, 271 Cal. Rptr. 199] . However, the court must find that treating staff have considered and determined that treatment alternatives to involuntary medication are unlikely to meet the patient's needs [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 5332(b)].

[f] Duration of Incapacity Determination

Any determination of a person's incapacity to refuse treatment remains in effect only for the duration of the shorter of the following times [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5336]:

(1) The detention period described in Welf. & Inst. Code § 5150 (72 hours) or Welf. & Inst. Code § 5250 (14 days), or both;

(2) Until capacity has been restored according to standards developed by the treatment facility in conjunction with its medical or clinical staff; or

(3) Any court-determined time.

[g] Review of Capacity Determination

The person who is the subject of the capacity hearing may appeal the determination to the superior court or the court of appeal [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5334(e)(1)]. The person who filed the original petition for the hearing may request the district attorney or county counsel in the county in which the person is receiving treatment to appeal the determination to the superior court or the court of appeal on behalf of the state [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5334(e)(2)]. Any appeal to the superior court is subject to de novo review [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5334(f)].

The provisions regarding the conduct of capacity hearing and the appeal of a capacity hearing determination do not preclude the right of a person to bring a writ of habeas corpus under Welf. & Inst. Code § 5275 [Welf. & Inst. Code §

5334(e)(4); see § 304.223].

[3] Psychosurgery and Convulsive (Shock) Treatment

[a] Scope of Right

Under the LPS Act, psychosurgery (defined in Welf. & Inst. Code § 5325(g)) may only be performed if the patient gives written informed consent (defined in Welf. & Inst. Code § 5326.5) and other required procedures are followed [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 5326.6]. There is no provision for administration of psychosurgery in the case of a patient who has refused consent, even when the patient could be deemed incapable of informed consent.

Convulsive treatment (defined in Welf. & Inst. Code § 5325(f) and including coma treatment) may be administered to an involuntary patient, including a patient under guardianship or conservatorship, only if the patient gives written informed consent and other required procedures have been followed [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 5326.7]. Requirements for the administration of convulsive treatment to all other patients, including but not limited to voluntary patients and those receiving treatments in a physician's office or a private home, are similar to those for the administration of convulsive treatments to involuntary patients under the LPS Act, although less stringent [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 5326.75; Aden v. Younger (1976) 57 Cal. App. 3d 662, 684, 129 Cal. Rptr. 535] .

The provision of special procedures for consent of mental patients to psychosurgery and convulsive treatment is not a denial of equal protection of the laws, because it is based on a reasonable classification having a substantial relation to a legitimate object to be accomplished [Aden v. Younger (1976) 57 Cal. App. 3d 662, 673, 129 Cal. Rptr. 535] . Furthermore, a patient has no right to be left uninformed concerning treatment. No such right renders unconstitutional the requirement that a physician inform the patient concerning the treatment to be administered [Aden v. Younger (1976) 57 Cal. App. 3d 662, 674-675, 129 Cal. Rptr. 535] .

[b] Determination of Incapacity to Consent to Convulsive Treatment

The patient's attorney, or if none, a public defender appointed by the court, must also agree to the patient's capacity or incapacity to give written informed consent [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 5326.7(e)]. If either the attending physician or the attorney believes that the patient does not have the capacity to give written informed consent, a petition is filed in the superior court to determine the patient's capacity to consent [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 5326.7(f); see Conservatorship of Fadley (1984) 159 Cal. App. 3d 440, 446, 205 Cal. Rptr. 572] . In a hearing pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code § 5326.7(f), (g) to determine whether the conservatee has the capacity to give informed consent to convulsive treatments, the standard of proof is "clear and convincing" evidence [Lillian F. v. Superior Court (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 314, 324, 206 Cal. Rptr. 603] . A finding of lack of capacity to give informed consent is improper if the conservatee, although mentally ill, has reiterated a rational fear and refusal of shock treatments during nonpsychotic moments [see Conservatorship of Waltz (1986) 180 Cal. App. 3d 722, 728-734, 227 Cal. Rptr. 436] .

Intentional violation of Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 5326.2-5326.8 is subject to a civil penalty of not more than $5,000 for each violation. The penalty may be assessed and collected in a civil action brought by the Attorney General in a superior court [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5326.9]. Alleged or suspected violations of the laws governing denial of rights must be reported to the Director of Health, who must investigate [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5326.9(a)]. Statutory requirements for the administration of convulsive treatment may not be altered by a local governmental entity such as a city. Regulation of convulsive treatment is a matter of state rather than local concern [Northern Cal. Psychiatric Society v. City of Berkeley (1986) 178 Cal. App. 3d 90, 105-106, 223 Cal. Rptr. 609] .

26-304 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 304.48

§ 304.48 Confidentiality of Records

[1] General Rule of Nondisclosure

All information and records obtained in the course of providing services under the LPS Act, the Bronzan-McCorquodale Act [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5600 et seq.], voluntary admission and judicial commitment procedures [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 6000 et seq.], and procedures for mental institutions [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 7000 et seq.] must be kept confidential and may be disclosed only under certain listed circumstances [see Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 5010, 5328-5329]. A person whose confidential records have been willfully and knowingly released in violation of these provisions or of Health & Safety Code § 11860 et seq. (concerning methadone programs) may bring an action for civil damages and injunction [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5330].

[2] Exceptions

[a] "Administration of Justice"

Confidential records may be disclosed to the court, as well as to the Youth Authority and Adult Correctional Agency, as necessary for the administration of justice [Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 5328(f), 5328.02]. A district attorney is also allowed access to an individual's treatment record information contained in an updated evaluation when that individual is charged under the Sexually Violent Predators Act (Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 6600-6609.3) [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5328.01; Albertson v. Superior Court (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 796, 803-804, 107 Cal. Rptr. 2d 381, 23 P.3d 611] .

[b] "Serious Danger to Others"

Another important exception to the confidentiality of records under Welf. & Inst. Code § 5328 applies when a patient, in the opinion of his or her psychotherapist, presents a serious danger of violence to a reasonably foreseeable victim. In such a case, confidential records or information may be released to the potential victim and to law enforcement agencies as the psychotherapist determines is needed for the protection of the potential victim [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5328(r)]. In certain situations, the information and records made confidential under Welf. & Inst. Code § 5328 may be disclosed to governmental law enforcement agencies investigating a crime when the records relate to a patient who is or has been confined as a mentally disordered sex offender [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 5328.01].

[c] Information Relating to Genetically Handicapping Conditions

If the patient consents, information specifically pertaining to the existence of genetically handicapping conditions, as defined in Health & Safety Code § 341.5, may be released to qualified professional persons for purposes of genetic counseling for blood relatives on the request of a blood relative. If a patient does not or cannot respond to a request for permission to release this information after reasonable attempts have been made over a two-week period to get a response, the information may be released on the request of a blood relative [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5328(q)]. For this purpose, "qualified professional persons" means those persons with the qualifications necessary to carry out the genetic counseling duties as determined by the genetic disease unit established by the StateDepartment of Health Services under Health & Safety Code § 309 [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5328(q)].

[d] On Request of Designated State Agencies

Regardless of the disclosure limitations of Welf. & Inst. Code § 5328, information and records must be disclosed to the state agency charged with the protection and advocacy of persons with disabilities or mental illness [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5328.06(a); see Welf. & Inst. Code § 4900 et seq. (discussed in the General Introduction)]. Access to this information and these records is gained according to the procedures set forth in Welf. & Inst. Code § 4900 et seq. [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5328.06(b)].

[3] Some Disclosure Protected by Immunity

Members of a mental health professional quality assurance committee established under Welf. & Inst. Code § 4070 (standards and guidelines for quality assurance activities) and Welf. & Inst. Code § 5624 (county mental health quality assurance program) are immune from monetary liability and damages for any act or proceeding performed within the function of a committee formed to review and evaluate the adequacy, appropriateness, or effectiveness of the care and treatment planned for or provided to mental health patients in order to improve the quality of care by mental health professionals, if the act was taken without malice, after a reasonable effort to obtain the facts of the matter, and in the reasonable belief that the action was warranted [Civ. Code § 43.7(a)].

A similar immunity is available to some professional societies and various committees that monitor the quality of professional services and the members of those societies and committees if the act is undertaken to maintain the professional standards of a society or to review the quality of services rendered [Civ. Code § 43.7(b); see Ch. 340, Libel and Slander]. Persons providing information to professional licensing boards or review committees are also immune from liability and damages when they make a communication that is intended to aid in the evaluation of a practitioner of the healing arts and that does not represent as true any matter not reasonably believed to be true [Civ. Code § 43.8]. The immunities provided by Civ. Code § 43.7 and Civ. Code § 43.8 do not affect the availability of any absolute privilege under Civ. Code § 47 [Civ. Code § 43.8]. The immunities also are inapplicable to the quality assurance committee itself, as opposed to the individual members of the committee [Civ. Code § 43.7(e)].

§ 304.49 Information to Patient's Family Members or Other Designated Person

[1] Patient's Diagnosis, Prognosis, Medication, or Progress

On the request of a member of the family of a patient, or other person designated by the patient, a public or private treatment facility must give the family member or the designee notification of the patient's diagnosis, the prognosis, the medications prescribed, the side effects of medications prescribed, if any, and the progress of the patient if, after notification of the patient that this information is requested, the patient authorizes disclosure. If, when initially informed of the request for notification, the patient is unable to authorize the release of that information, notation of the attempt must be made into the patient's treatment record, and daily efforts must be made to secure the patient's consent or refusal of authorization. However, if a request for information is made by the spouse, parent, child, or sibling of the patient and the patient is unable to authorize the release of that information, the requester must be notified of the patient's presence in the facility, except to the extent prohibited by federal law [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5328.1(a)].

[2] Patient's Admission, Release, Transfer, Serious Illness, Injury, or Death

On the admission of any mental health patient to a 24-hour public or private mental health facility licensed pursuant to Health & Safety Code § 1250, the facility must make reasonable attempts to notify the patient's next of kin or any other person designated by the patient of the patient's admission, unless the patient requests that such information not be provided. The facility must make reasonable attempts to notify the patient's next of kin or any other person designated by the patient of the patient's release, transfer, serious illness, injury, or death only on request of the family member, unless the patient requests that this information not be provided [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5328.1(b)].

[3] Public or Private Entity Not Liable for Release of Information

No public or private entity or public or private employee is liable for damages caused or alleged to be caused by the release of information or the omission to release information regarding the patient's condition pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code § 5328.1 [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5328.1(c); see § 304.49].

[4] Photocopying of Records

Nothing in Welf. & Inst. Code § 5328.1 is to be construed to require photocopying of a patient's medical records in order to satisfy its provisions [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5328.1(c); see § 304.49].

§ 304.50 Voluntary Admission

[1] Mentally Disordered Adults

On receipt of a written application for admission of a person into a state hospital for the mentally disordered or mentally retarded, the medical director of the hospital may admit any person who is a suitable person for care and treatment in that hospital. If the person is an adult, the application must be made voluntarily by the person at a time when the person is in a condition of mind that renders the person competent to make the application or, if the person is a conservatee with a conservator appointed pursuant to the Welfare and Institutions Code with the right to place the conservatee in a state hospital, by the conservator [Welf. & Inst. Code § 6000(a)].

[2] Mentally Disordered Minors

The application of a minor for voluntary admission must be made by the minor's parents, or by the parent, guardian, conservator, or other person entitled to custody of the minor [Welf. & Inst. Code § 6000(b)]. However, the California Supreme Court has held that minors 14 years of age and older have the right to establish that they should not be so admitted, and the right to notice and a hearing on that issue, unless these rights are waived [In re Roger S. (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 921, 935-938, 141 Cal. Rptr. 298, 569 P.2d 1286] . If the minor has a conservator appointed under the Welfare and Institutions Code who is authorized by the court to place the conservatee in a state hospital, the application must be made by the conservator [Welf. & Inst. Code § 6000(b)].

A minor who has been declared to be within the jurisdiction of the juvenile court may, with the advice of counsel, make a voluntary application for inpatient or outpatient mental health services in accordance with Welf. & Inst. Code § 5003, and, notwithstanding the provisions of Welf. & Inst. Code § 6000(b), 6002, or 6004, the juvenile court may authorize the minor to make such an application if it is satisfied that the minor suffers from a mental disorder [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 6552].

The involuntary commitment of a minor ward or dependent child of the juvenile court may not be accomplished as a voluntary commitment by having the probation officer or court place the minor in a hospital. Such a commitment can only be accomplished in accordance with the procedures and safeguards of the LPS Act [In re E. (1975) 15 Cal. 3d

[3] Release

A person who has been voluntarily admitted may leave the hospital when the person who is entitled to make the voluntary admission, whether that person is the patient or the patient's parent, guardian, or conservator, has given notice of the desire to leave or obtain the person's release [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 6000].

[4] Voluntary Patients' Rights

A person admitted as a voluntary patient to a state hospital, a private mental institution, or a county psychiatric hospital has the following rights in addition to the right to leave the hospital as specified in Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 6000-6008: the right to receive the care and treatment that the condition warrants for the full period of patient status; and the full patient rights specified in Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 5325-5331 [Welf. & Inst. Code § 6006]. See generally the discussion § 304.46.

§ 304.70 Governing Statutes

Receipt of services by mentally retarded persons is governed by the Lanterman Developmental Disabilities Services Act [Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 4500-4846]. Under this Act, care for the developmentally disabled is provided by private contractors operating, among other services, residential care facilities [Morohoshi v. Pacific Home (2004) 34 Cal. 4th 482, 486, 20 Cal. Rptr. 3d 890, 100 P.3d 433] .

The judicial commitment of mentally retarded persons is governed by Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 6500-6512. Judicial commitment generally is governed by Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 6250-6254.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Developmentally Disabled Persons

26-304 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 304.71

§ 304.71 Definitions

"Developmental disability" means a disability that originates before an individual attains age 18, continues or can be expected to continue indefinitely, and constitutes a substantial disability for the individual. Developmental disabilities include mental retardation, cerebral palsy, epilepsy, and autism. It also includes disabling conditions that are closely related to or that require treatment similar to mental retardation, but does not include other handicapping conditions that are solely physical in nature [Welf. & Inst. Code § 4512(a)]. This last category was held not to be unconstitutionally vague when taken together with its implementing regulations, because the determination of developmental disability does not depend on a subjective standard, but rather on a determination of whether an individual's condition is substantially similar to that of mental retardation [Mason v. Office of Administrative Hearings (2001) 89 Cal. App. 4th 1119, 1129, 108 Cal. Rptr. 2d 102] . For a definition of "mentally retarded person" for purposes of judicial commitment, see Judicial Commitment, below.

"Substantial disability" means the existence of significant functional limitations in three or more of the following major life activities, as appropriate to the individual's age [Welf. & Inst. Code § 4512(l)]:

- Self-care.
- Receptive and expressive language.
- Learning.
- Mobility.
- Self-direction.
- Capacity for independent living.
- Economic self-sufficiency.

"Services and supports for persons with developmental disabilities" means specialized services and supports or special adaptations of generic services and supports directed toward the following [Welf. & Inst. Code § 4512(b)]:

- The alleviation of a developmental disability;

- The social, personal, physical, or economic habilitation or rehabilitation of an individual with a developmental disability; or

- The achievement and maintenance of independent, productive, normal lives.

The determination of which services and supports are necessary must be made on the basis of the individual's needs and preferences or, when appropriate, those of the individual's family [Welf. & Inst. Code § 4512(b)].

The coordination and delivery of services is the responsibility of private nonprofit community agencies, called "regional centers" [Welf. & Inst. Code § 4620(b); Morohoshi v. Pacific Home (2004) 34 Cal. 4th 482, 486, 20 Cal. Rptr. 3d 890, 100 P.3d 433] . These regional centers are responsible for determining through testing and evaluation whether an individual has a developmental disability [Welf & Inst. Code §§ 4642, 4643; Morohoshi v. Pacific Home (2004) 34 Cal. 4th 482, 488, 20 Cal. Rptr. 3d 890, 100 P.3d 433 ; see also § 304.73[2]]. Although the term "regional center" is not defined, such centers have been established pursuant to the Lanterman Developmental Disabilities Services Act to provide fixed points of contact in the community for persons with developmental disabilities and their families so that those persons may have access to the facilities and services best suited to them throughout their lifetimes. It is the intent of the legislature that the network of regional centers for persons with developmental disabilities and their families be accessible to every family in need of regional center services. It is the further intent of the legislature that the design and activities of regional centers reflect a strong commitment to the delivery of direct service coordination and that all other operations expenditures of regional centers are necessary to support and enhance the delivery of direct service coordination and services and supports identified in individual program plans [Welf. & Inst. Code § 4620].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Developmentally Disabled Persons

26-304 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 304.72

§ 304.72 Rights of Developmentally Disabled Persons

Persons with developmental disabilities have the same legal rights and responsibilities guaranteed all other individuals by the federal constitution and laws and constitution of the state. No otherwise qualified person may be excluded by reason of having a developmental disability from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any program or activity that receives public funds [Welf. & Inst. Code § 4502]. In addition, developmentally disabled persons have certain other enumerated rights [see Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 4502, 4503], although some of these rights, the right to refuse psychosurgery, electroconvulsive therapy, or behavior modification techniques which cause pain or trauma, may be denied for good cause [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 4504]. Mentally retarded persons committed to state hospitals pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 6500-6512 have the rights discussed in Part I of this chapter, in § 304.46 [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 5325 et seq.].

An adult person with a developmental disability has the legal right to determine where his or her residence will be. Except in a situation that presents immediate danger to the health and well-being of the individual, the regional center or its designee must not remove a consumer from a residential care facility against the consumer's wishes unless there has been specific court action to abridge such right with respect to an adult, or unless the parent, guardian, or conservator consents with respect to a child [Welf. & Inst. Code § 4741].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Developmentally Disabled Persons

26-304 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 304.73

§ 304.73 Provision of Services

Developmental disabilities alone do not justify judicial commitment. Instead, persons with developmental disabilities are to receive services pursuant to the Lanterman Developmental Disabilities Services Act, although persons who constitute a danger to themselves or others may be judicially committed if evidence of the danger is proven in court [Welf. & Inst. Code § 4507; see generally the discussion § 304.74].

The Lanterman Developmental Disabilities Services Act is a comprehensive statutory scheme designed to provide an array of services and supports sufficiently complete to meet the needs of choices of each person with developmental disabilities, regardless of age or degree of disability, and at each stage of life, and to support his or her integration into the mainstream life of the community [Welf. & Inst. Code § 4501]. The purpose of the statutory scheme is (1) to prevent or minimize the institutionalization of developmentally disabled persons and their dislocation from family and community and (2) to enable them to approximate the pattern of everyday living of nondisabled persons of the same age [Association for Retarded Citizens v. Department of Developmental Services (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 384, 388, 211 Cal. Rptr. 758, 696 P.2d 150 ; Williams v. Macomber (1990) 226 Cal. App. 3d 225, 228 n.1, 276 Cal. Rptr. 267] .

[1] Guardian or Conservator for Developmentally Disabled Person

The Director of Developmental Services may be appointed as either guardian or conservator of the person or estate, or both, of any developmentally disabled person who is either (1) eligible for the services of a regional center, or (2) a patient who was admitted or committed to any state hospital from a county served by a regional center [Health & Safety Code § 416].

Unless exceptions are expressly made in Health & Safety Code §§ 416-416.23, Prob. Code §§ 1400-2808 (appointment, powers, and duties of Probate Code conservators) apply to such guardianship and conservatorship appointments [Health & Safety Code § 416.1; for discussion of Prob. Code §§ 1400-2808, see Ch. 280, Guardianship and Conservatorship: Appointment of Guardians , through Ch. 290H, Guardianship and Conservatorship: Termination of Guardianships and Conservatorships].

Limited conservatorships may also be established under the provisions of the Probate Code for developmentally disabled adults [see Prob. Code § 1801(d)]. For a discussion of the establishment of limited conservatorships, see Ch. 281, Guardianship and Conservatorship: Appointment of Conservators .

[2] Regional Center Services

Any person believed to have a developmental disability, and any person believed to have a high risk of parenting a disabled infant, is eligible for initial intake and assessment services in the regional centers [Welf. & Inst. Code § 4642]. In addition, any infant having a high risk of becoming developmentally disabled may be eligible for initial intake and assessment services in the center. "High risk infant" means any child less than 36 months of age whose genetic, medical, or environmental history is predictive of a substantially greater risk for developmental disability than that for the general population [Welf. & Inst. Code § 4642]. If any person requests regional center services and is found to be ineligible, the reasons for denial must be presented in writing to the applicant and, if necessary, a referral to other appropriate services must be arranged. The applicant must also be advised of the appeals procedure [Welf. & Inst. Code § 4645; see Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 4700-4725 (procedure)].

If a regional center determines that a person has a developmental disability and is eligible for services, a planning team consisting of the disabled person, his or her parents or guardian, one or more regional representatives, and any other person or entity invited to participate, must develop an individual program plan [Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 4512(j), 4646(c), (d)]. The plan must identify the disabled person's goals, objectives, and needed services and supports, taking into account the individual needs and preferences of the person and his or her family [Welf. & Inst. Code § 4646(a), (d)]. It must include a schedule of the type and amount of services and supports to be purchased by the regional center or obtained from generic agencies or other resources in order to achieve the plan's goals and objectives [Welf. & Inst. Code § 4646.5(a)(4)]. The plan must be completed within 60 days after completion of the assessment [Welf. & Inst. Code § 4646(b), (c)]. This direct service coordination is the regional centers' most important role [Welf. & Inst. Code § 4640.6(a); Morohoshi v. Pacific Home (2004) 34 Cal. 4th 482, 488, 20 Cal. Rptr. 3d 890, 100 P.3d 433] .

If a person who is eligible for regional center services moves to another location in the state, he or she must be considered eligible for services offered by the regional center in the new location unless, after a comprehensive reassessment, that center concludes that the original determination that the person has a developmental disability is clearly erroneous [Welf. & Inst. Code § 4643.5(a), (b)].

The regional centers secure the needed services by purchasing or obtaining them from direct service providers, such as residential care facilities [Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 4647(a), 4648(a)(1); Morohoshi v. Pacific Home 100 P.3d 433] . The direct provision of care is not a responsibility of the regional centers [Morohoshi v. Pacific Home (2004) 34 Cal. 4th 482, 488-489, 20 Cal. Rptr. 3d 890, 100 P.3d 433] . Except in emergency situations, regional centers may not provide direct treatment and therapeutic services, but must use appropriate public and private community agencies and service providers to obtain these services [Welf. & Inst. Code § 4648(f)]. Regional centers have important, but limited monitoring responsibilities [Morohoshi v. Pacific Home (2004) 34 Cal. 4th 482, 490, 20 Cal. Rptr. 3d 890, 100 P.3d 433] . They must monitor the provision of care and services supplied by a provider to ensure they are provided in accordance with the disabled person's individual program plan [Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 4742, 4743], and inform the provider of any corrective actions that need to be taken [Welf. & Inst. Code § 4745]. A regional center may terminate its contract with a provider if the provider fails to comply with the contract or with applicable law and regulations [Welf. & Inst. Code § 4648.1(d)]. A regional center is not required, however, to monitor the provision of care and services on a day-to-day basis, but is only required to provide periodic monitoring [Morohoshi v. Pacific Home (2004) 34 Cal. 4th 482, 490, 20 Cal. Rptr. 3d 890, 100 P.3d 433] .

When a minor child requires a living arrangement outside of the family home, the regional center must make every effort to secure a living arrangement, consistent with the individual program plan, in reasonable close proximity to the family home [Welf. & Inst. Code § 4685.1(a)]. This requirement may not be construed to impede the movement of consumers to other geographical areas or the preference of the parent or guardian for the placement of their minor child [Welf. & Inst. Code § 4685.1(c)].

[3] State Hospital Admissions

In addition to the procedure provided for the judicial commitment of mentally retarded persons who are dangerous to themselves or to others [Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 6500-6513; see § 304.74, below], Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 4653, 4825, and 6000.5 provide a procedure under which a nonprotesting developmentally disabled adult may be admitted to a state hospital as a "voluntary" patient on application of the person's parent or conservator and referral by a regional center. A judicial hearing must be held prior to a "voluntary" admission under this procedure. The indefinite placement of a developmentally disabled person without prior judicial determination regarding his or her disability or a knowing and intelligent request for admission denies equal protection and due process [In re Hop (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 82, 92-93, 171 Cal. Rptr. 721, 623 P. 2d 282] This requirement does not, however, provide a vehicle for judicial commitment of nonconsenting developmentally disabled adults to state hospitals. It only applies constitutional safeguards to this statutory scheme [In re Violet C. (1989) 213 Cal. App. 3d 86, 88, 94-95, 261 Cal. Rptr. 470] .

If there is no parent or conservator to apply for admission of a nondangerous developmentally disabled person to a state hospital, the Director of Developmental Services may be appointed conservator of the person in a Probate Code proceeding [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 4825; Health & Safety Code §§ 416, 416.1, 416.9]. On appointment, the Director may delegate his or her duties as conservator to a regional center or to other designated agencies or individuals [see Health & Safety Code § 416.19]. The Director's delegate may then apply to a state hospital for the admission [North Bay Regional Center v. Sherry S. (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 449, 458, 256 Cal. Rptr. 129] . If the developmentally disabled person is unable to consent to the admission, a judicial hearing and determination is required in addition to the delegate's application for the admission [North Bay Regional Center v. Sherry S. (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 449, 460, 256 Cal. Rptr. 129] . The same procedural scheme applies to the commitment of a nondangerous developmentally disabled person who objects to the commitment [see In re Violet C. (1989) 213 Cal. App. 3d 86, 95-97, 261 Cal. Rptr. 470] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Developmentally Disabled Persons

26-304 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 304.74

§ 304.74 Judicial Commitment

[1] Statutory Grounds in General

Judicial commitments of mentally retarded persons who are dangerous to themselves or to others are governed by Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 6500-6513. Judicial commitments generally are governed by Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 6250-6254. Procedures for judicial commitment are outlined in the Procedural Checklist, below.

[2] Definition of Mental Retardation

For a person to be "mentally retarded" for the purposes of a commitment proceeding under Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 6500-6513, evidence must be adduced (1) that the allegedly retarded person has significantly subaverage general intellectual functioning, (2) that this functioning exists concurrently with deficits in adaptive behavior, and (3) that both of these deficits appeared in the developmental period [In re Krall (1984) 151 Cal. App. 3d 792, 797, 199 Cal. Rptr. 91] .

[3] Jury Trial and Standard of Proof

Due process of law requires that a developmentally disabled person be entitled to a jury trial on demand prior to commitment [In re Hop (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 82, 93, 171 Cal. Rptr. 721, 623 P. 2d 282] . Equal protection and due process also requires the court to advise the defendant of his or her right to a jury trial. Before adjudicating commitment or recommitment in a court trial, the record must show that the defendant was advised of and waived the right to a jury trial [People v. Alvas (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 1459, 1463-1466, 271 Cal. Rptr. 131 (requirement that court advise defendant of right to jury trial does not apply retroactively)].

Due process also requires the application of the standard of proof beyond a reasonable doubt [In re Hop (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 82, 93-94, 171 Cal. Rptr. 721, 623 P.2d 282 ; O'Brien v. Superior Court (1976) 61 Cal. App. 3d 62, 72, 132 Cal. Rptr. 13] . Additionally, because the definition of mental retardation does not have a meaning commonly understood by people of reasonable intelligence, evidence by a qualified expert is necessary to create an evidentiary foundation for a jury's finding of mental retardation [In re Krall (1984) 151 Cal. App. 3d 792, 797, 199 Cal. Rptr. 91]

[4] Presence at Hearing

In the absence of an affirmative showing that the person is physically unable to attend or has waived personal attendance, due process requires the physical presence of the alleged mentally retarded person at the commitment hearing [In re Watson (1979) 91 Cal. App. 3d 455, 462, 154 Cal. Rptr. 151] .

Because commitment proceedings of mentally retarded persons are essentially civil in nature, the subject of the petition may be called as a witness [see Evid. Code § 776 (examination of adverse party)]. However, the subject may still claim the privilege against self-incrimination; and, to the extent that mental retardation and dangerousness must be proven by evidence of criminal conduct, such evidence must, if the privilege is claimed, be elicited from sources other than the subject [Cramer v. Tyars (1979) 23 Cal. 3d 131, 137-139, 151 Cal. Rptr. 653, 588 P.2d 793 (error in requiring subject to testify about criminal conduct held harmless if other evidence supporting petition uncontradicted)].

[5] Expiration of Order

An order of commitment made under Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 6500-6513 expires automatically one year after the order is made. However,subsequent petitions may be filed for additional periods of commitment, following the same procedures as in the original proceeding [Welf. & Inst. Code § 6500]. A decision on an appeal of a commitment order that is rendered beyond the one-year period is technically moot. However, a decision may be made on the merits when the issues are important questions of law that could repeatedly evade appellate review if the committed person is likely to be committed in the future [People v. Quinn (2001) 86 Cal. App. 4th 1290, 1293, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 915] .

[6] Detention Pending Recommitment

During the interim period, if any, between the expiration of a commitment order made under Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 6500-6513 and the recommitment hearing, a developmentally disabled person may be detained pursuant to an ex parte temporary hold order [Cramer v. Gillermina R. (1981) 125 Cal. App. 3d 380, 392, 178 Cal. Rptr. 69] . An adversarial probable cause hearing prior to the temporary detention is not constitutionally required, either on equal protection or on due process grounds. Further, a person detained during the interim period is not entitled to credit for the time he or she is detained prior to recommitment [Cramer v. Gillermina R. (1981) 125 Cal. App. 3d 380, 387-388, 392, 394, 178 Cal. Rptr. 69] .

§ 304.75 Judicial Review by Habeas Corpus

[1] Authority to Seek Review

Every adult who is or has been admitted or committed to a state hospital, community care facility, or health facility as a developmentally disabled person has a right to a hearing by writ of habeas corpus for release from the facility after the person committed or any person acting in his or her behalf makes a request for release to any member of the staff of the state hospital or other facility or to any employee of a regional center [Welf. & Inst. Code § 4800(a)]. However, it should be noted that the statutory scheme that provides for the "voluntary" admission of a developmentally disabled adult to a state hospital without a prior judicial hearing has been declared constitutionally infirm, notwithstanding the availability of a writ of habeas corpus pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code § 4800 [see In re Hop (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 82, 90-92, 171 Cal. Rptr. 721, 623 P.2d 282 ; see also § 304.73[3]].

Procedures for judicial review are set forth in Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 4800-4805. A form for a request for release is set forth in Welf. & Inst. Code § 4800(d). Procedures for judicial review by writ of habeas corpus are outlined in § 304.223. For a petition for writ of habeas corpus, see § 304.280 and Ch. 292, Habeas Corpus .

[2] Jury Trial and Standard of Proof

Due process does not require that the alleged developmentally disabled person seeking judicial review on writ of habeas corpus be given the right to request a jury trial. No jury trial is required because a jury trial is provided in the initial judicial commitment proceeding pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code § 6500 et seq. and because no judicial commitment is for longer than a year [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 6500], at which time a new petition and hearing, with the right to a jury trial, is required [see O'Brien v. Superior Court (1976) 61 Cal. App. 3d 62, 72, 132 Cal. Rptr. 13] . Proof by a preponderance of the evidence rather than proof beyond a reasonable doubt is the proper standard of proof in proceedings for judicial review by writ of habeas corpus [see O'Brien v. Superior Court (1976) 61 Cal. App. 3d 62, 72, 132 Cal. Rptr. 13] .

The statutory rules for commitment of dangerous mentally retarded persons [Welf. & Inst. Code § 6500] contain no requirement of proof that the dangerous condition be caused by mental retardation. Further, the absence of a causational requirement is not violative of equal protection rights because the statute furthers the state's compelling interest to protect all dangerous retarded persons, not just those whose violence is caused by retardation [People v. Quinn (2001) 86 Cal. App. 4th 1290, 1293, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 915] .

D. Civil Actions And Constitutional Rights

26-304 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 304.90

§ 304.90 Actions Brought by Mental Patients

[1] In General

Generally, a person who is not actually insane and who is unlawfully hospitalized or otherwise unlawfully detained may bring a civil action for his or her injuries. Either the one-year statute of limitations for false imprisonment [Code Civ. Proc. § 340(c)] or the two-year (one-year, prior to January 1, 2003) statute of limitations for assault, battery, or injury caused by the wrongful act or neglect of another [Code Civ. Proc. § 335.1; see former Code Civ. Proc. § 340(3); Ch. 345, Limitation of Actions, § 345.14] applies to such actions, even though they may involve violations of the LPS Act [see Jackson v. Cedars-Sinai Med. Ctr. (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 1315, 1321, 269 Cal. Rptr. 877 (complaint alleging violations of Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 5150, 5250, 5325.1, 5326.2 and 42 U.S.C.S. § 1983 resulting in false imprisonment, assault and battery, and intentional infliction of emotional distress)].

When necessary, a guardian ad litem should be appointed for an incompetent person who is a party to a civil action [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 372, 373(c)]. For discussion and forms for use in proceedings to appoint a guardian ad litem, see Ch. 291, Guardians ad Litem .

[2] False Imprisonment

The involuntary hospitalization of a person in a mental institution in violation of relevant statutes constitutes false imprisonment [Maben v. Rankin (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 139, 144, 10 Cal. Rptr. 353, 358 P.2d 681] . A good-faith report of the behavior of a person by a doctor who does not recommend to participate in a detention [Fish v. Regents of University of Cal. (1966) 246 Cal. 327, 331-332, 54 Cal. Rptr. 656] or the fact that a doctor testified at a hearing that the person was insane [Baer v. Smith (1945) 68 Cal. App. 2d 716, 721, 157 P.2d 646] does not make the doctor liable for false imprisonment. Liability for false imprisonment may be based on lack of probable cause for the detention [see Whaley v. Jansen (1962) 208 Cal. App. 2d 222, 229, 25 Cal. Rptr. 184 (see Welf. & Inst. Code § 5150)]. Failure by the sheriff to serve a petition for a commitment hearing in violation of the statutory requirements may also be the basis of a false imprisonment action [see Culbertson v. Santa Clara County (1968) 261 Cal. App. 2d 274, 275, 67 Cal. Rptr. 752 (decided under former Welf. & Inst. Code § 5050.2 (now see Welf. & Inst. Code § 5208))]. Release of the plaintiff by writ of habeas corpus is immaterial to an action for false imprisonment based on lack of probable cause, since there may have been probable cause for the detention although the plaintiff was entitled to release under the standard applicable in habeas corpus proceedings for release [Whaley v. Kirby (1962) 208 Cal. App. 2d 232, 238, 25 Cal. Rptr. 50 ; Vallindras v. Massachusetts Bonding & Ins. Co. (1954) 42 Cal. 2d 149, 155, 265 P.2d 907] . For further discussion and forms for use in actions for false imprisonment generally, see Ch. 257, False Imprisonment .

[3] Assault and Battery

When force is used to accomplish the unlawful detention of a person as a mental patient, there may be liability for assault and battery. The use of force in the treatment of the patient hospitalized may not, however, constitute assault and battery in all circumstances. Further, there is not necessarily such a close relationship between detention and treatment that any treatment, even though in itself proper, becomes unlawful merely because it is given during an unlawful detention [Maben v. Rankin (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 139, 144, 10 Cal. Rptr. 353, 358 P.2d 681] . For discussion and forms concerning actions for assault and battery generally, see Ch. 58, Assault and Battery .

[4] Malicious Prosecution

One who initiates a civil proceeding against another which alleges the other's insanity is liable for the harm to the other's reputation caused by the proceedings if [Brock v. Southern Pac. Co. (1948) 86 Cal. App. 2d 182, 185, 195 P.2d 66] :

- The proceedings are initiated without probable cause and primarily for a purpose other than that of securing the adjudication of the claim on which the proceedings are based, and

- Except where they are ex parte, the proceedings have terminated in favor of the person against whom they are brought.

When the commitment proceeding is dismissed, such a dismissal constitutes a favorable termination of the proceeding for purposes of a malicious prosecution action [Sutherland v. Palme (1949) 93 Cal. App. 2d 307, 312-313, 208 P.2d 1035] . For discussion and forms for use in malicious prosecution actions generally, see Ch. 357, Malicious Prosecution and Abuse of Process .

[5] Negligent Harm to Mental Patient

When a mentally ill patient is confined for care and treatment in the psychiatric ward of a hospital, there is a duty imposed by law on the hospital to exercise such reasonable care toward the patient as the patient's mental and physical condition, if known, requires. The duty extends to safeguarding the patient from dangers due to mental incapacity [Vistica v. Presbyterian Hosp. (1967) 67 Cal. 2d 465, 469, 62 Cal. Rptr. 577, 432 P.2d 193] . If those charged with the care and treatment of a mentally disturbed patient have notice or knowledge of facts from which they could reasonably conclude that the patient would be likely to harm himself or herself in the absence of preclusive measures, then they must use reasonable care under the circumstances to prevent such harm [Meier v. Ross Gen. Hosp. (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 420, 424, 71 Cal. Rptr. 903, 445 P.2d 519] .

Whenever the facts of a case support a theory of liability based on a duty to protect plaintiff from his or her own actions, voluntary or involuntary, the plaintiff may properly rely on res ipsa loquitur although plaintiff participated in events leading to the accident, if the evidence excludes plaintiff's conduct as the responsible cause [Meier v. Ross Gen. Hosp. (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 420, 427, 71 Cal. Rptr. 903, 445 P.2d 519 ; Vistica v. Presbyterian Hosp. (1967) 67 Cal. 2d 465, 470-471, 62 Cal. Rptr. 577, 432 P.2d 193] . The applicability of the doctrine of res ipsa loquitur may depend on whether the jury believes that plaintiff was in such a state as to make him or her irrational and not responsible for taking an action such as attempting escape which results in plaintiff's injury. The applicability of res ipsa loquitur may be submitted to the jury where there is such a question of fact [DeMartini v. Alexander Sanitarium, Inc. (1961) 192 Cal.

App. 2d 442, 446, 13 Cal. Rptr. 564] .

The question of the contributory negligence of a mental patient is a question of fact, unless the evidence discloses that the plaintiff is completely devoid of reason, in which case the plaintiff would be entitled tohave the jury so instructed. The position of such a plaintiff would be like that of a child of tender years, who is incapable of contributory negligence as a matter of law [DeMartini v. Alexander Sanitarium, Inc. (1961) 192 Cal. App. 2d 442, 447, 13 Cal. Rptr. 564] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
D. Civil Actions And Constitutional Rights

§ 304.91 Suicide

A defendant's liability for the wrongful death of one who committed suicide arises in two situations. First, a psychiatrist who knows of facts from which he or she could reasonably conclude that a patient would be likely to harm himself or herself in the absence of preclusive measures has a duty to use reasonable care under the circumstances to prevent such harm [Meier v. Ross Gen. Hosp. (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 420, 424, 71 Cal. Rptr. 903, 445 P.2d 519 ; Bellah v. Greenson (1978) 81 Cal. App. 3d 614, 619, 146 Cal. Rptr. 535 ; for a complaint against a hospital in such a case, see Ch. 295, Hospitals]. Although the duty of care varies in each case, it exists regardless of whether the patient had been institutionalized or was merely being seen by the psychiatrist on an out-patient basis [Kockelman v. Segal (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 491, 501-505, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 552 ; for a complaint in an out-patient case, see § 304.301]. However, the duty to take measures to prevent a patient from committing suicide does not extend beyond the patient's unconditional release [Katona v. County of Los Angeles (1985) 172 Cal. App. 3d 53, 59, 218 Cal. Rptr. 19] .

The standard of care by which the conduct of the psychiatrist is measured may be either a professional medical standard or an ordinary negligence standard, depending on whether the conduct which led to the suicide was based on good-faith medical reasons or was without any peculiarly "medical" justification [Meier v. Ross Gen. Hosp. (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 420, 429, 433, 71 Cal. Rptr. 903, 445 P.2d 519 (also permitting a res ipsa loquitur instruction to be given where evidence showed that, as a matter of common knowledge, injury would not have occurred unless defendant had been negligent)]. In determining the amount of care required of the psychiatrist in a particular case, the fact that the psychiatrist failed to disclose information respecting the decedent's likelihood of committing suicide, even to the decedent's closest relatives, may not be considered in the absence of evidence showing that the risk to be prevented thereby was a danger of violent assault on another person [Bellah v. Greenson (1978) 81 Cal. App. 3d 614, 622, 146 Cal. Rptr. 535] .

In alleging the psychiatrists failure to take preventive measures, the plaintiff need not specify the nature of the precautionary steps which could or should have been taken by the defendant. This presents a purely factual question to be resolved at a trial on the merits [Bellah v. Greenson (1978) 81 Cal. App. 3d 614, 620, 146 Cal. Rptr. 535] .

The second situation in which defendant may be liable for a person's suicide arises when the suicide is a proximate result of a mental condition for which the defendant was either negligently or intentionally responsible. Thus, if the defendant intended by his or her conduct to cause serious mental distress or physical suffering, and did so, and such distress or suffering is shown to have been a substantial factor in bringing about the suicide, a cause of action for wrongful death results. It is irrelevant that the suicide was committed either in a state of insanity or in response to an irresistible impulse [Tate v. Canonica (1960) 180 Cal. App. 2d 898, 909, 5 Cal. Rptr. 28] . On the other hand, a defendant is only responsible for a suicide as a result of his or her negligent conduct if, by acting negligently, he or she causes a mental condition which results in an uncontrollable impulse to commit suicide. It should be stressed that it is the uncontrollable impulse for which the defendant is responsible. If the act only causes a mental condition in which the decedent was able to realize the nature of an act of suicide and has the power to control it if he or she so desired, the act is an independent intervening force [Tate v. Canonica (1960) 180 Cal. App. 2d 898, 915, 5 Cal. Rptr. 28 ; see Grant v. F.P. Lathrop Constr. Co. (1978) 81 Cal. App. 3d 790, 797-799, 146 Cal. Rptr. 45 ; for complaints for the negligent and intentional infliction of mental distress, see Ch. 362, Mental Suffering and Emotional Distress].

§ 304.93 Harm Caused by Mentally Disordered Persons

[1] Actions Against Mentally Disordered Persons

Civ. Code § 41 provides that a person of unsound mind, of whatever degree, is civilly liable for a wrong he or she commits, but is not liable for exemplary damages unless, at the time of the act, the person was capable of knowing that the act was wrongful. This statute is intended to place an incompetent person in the same posture as a competent person [Herrle v. Estate of Marshall (1996) 45 Cal. App. 4th 1761, 1766, 53 Cal. Rptr. 2d 713] . It is a codification of the common law, and is based on severalpolicy considerations, including that, as between two innocent persons, the one whose act caused the injury should bear the loss. It also avoids the difficult evidentiary problems in attempting to estimate the existence and extent of a person's mental deficiency. Finally, imposing liability encourages those responsible for incompetent persons to provide care for them so as to avoid injury to others [Herrle v. Estate of Marshall (1996) 45 Cal. App. 4th 1761, 1766, 53 Cal. Rptr. 2d 713] .

The defense of assumption of the risk is available to an incompetent defendant in an action by a caregiver for injuries caused by the defendant, when the caregiver has consented to care for mentally ill patients who are known to be occasionally violent and combative [Herrle v. Estate of Marshall (1996) 45 Cal. App. 4th 1761, 1765-1768, 53 Cal. Rptr. 2d 713] . Because of the nature of the activity of caring for the mentally infirm, and the relationship between patients and caregivers, mentally incompetent patients should not owe a legal duty to protect caregivers from injuries suffered in attending to them [Herrle v. Estate of Marshall (1996) 45 Cal. App. 4th 1761, 1770-1771, 53 Cal. Rptr. 2d 713 (health care provider, not patient, is in best position to protect against risks to provider based on very reason for treatment)].

[2] Actions Against Therapists

Civ. Code § 43.92 provides that on or after January 1, 1986, there is no monetary liability on the part of, and no cause of action arises against, any psychotherapist as defined in Evid. Code § 1010 in failing to warn of and protect from a patient's threatened violent behavior or failing to predict and warn of and protect from a patient's violent behavior except if the patient has communicated to the psychotherapist a serious threat of physical violence against a reasonably identifiable victim or victims [Civ. Code § 43.92(a); see Calderon v. Glick (2005) 131 Cal. App. 4th 224, 232, 31 Cal.

Rptr. 3d 707 (no duty to warn if patient consistently denied to psychotherapists that patient intended to harm anyone); Barry v. Turek (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 1241, 1244-1246, 267 Cal. Rptr. 553] . There is no monetary liability on the part of, and no cause of action against, a psychotherapist who discharges his or her duty to warn and protect under these limited circumstances by making reasonable efforts to communicate the threat to the victims and to a law enforcement agency [Civ. Code § 43.92(b); see also Welf. & Inst. Code § 5328 (authorizing release of patient's confidential records by psychotherapist in certain situations)]. No monetary liability or cause of action can be brought against a psychotherapist who discharges his or her duty to warn [Civ. Code § 43.92(b)]. The constitutionality of Civ. Code § 43.92 has been upheld [Ewing v. Goldstein (2004) 120 Cal. App. 4th 807, 821, 15 Cal. Rptr. 3d 864] .

A therapist has no duty to warn an individual when the patient has not communicated to the therapist any threats of physical violence against that individual [Calderon v. Glick (2005) 131 Cal. App. 4th 224, 230-232, 31 Cal. Rptr. 3d 707] . A therapist also is not liable for professional malpractice to such an individual who is harmed by the therapist's patient, because the therapist does not owe a duty of care to the individual [Calderon v. Glick (2005) 131 Cal. App. 4th 224, 232-234, 31 Cal. Rptr. 3d 707] .

In one case, for example, the court of appeal held that a psychiatrist owed no duty of care to the neighbors of a patient when the patient shot and killed two of the neighbors' family members. The surviving family members argued that the psychiatrist's negligent prescription of drugs to the patient caused him to become violent and caused the shooting. The court concluded, however, that despite plaintiffs' causation argument, they neglected to show first that the psychiatrist owed them a duty of care, a requirement to establishing liability. The court noted that the patient, who had come to the psychiatrist with a preexisting mental disorder, had exhibited no violent tendencies nor expressed any dangerous motives against the neighbors that would have put the psychiatrist on notice that the patient may have been a danger to his eventual victims. Absent such advance indicators of potential violence towards the neighbors, the psychiatrist owed no duty of care to protect them from potential danger [Greenberg v. Superior Court (2009) 172 Cal. App. 4th 1339, 1348-1350, 92 Cal. Rptr. 3d 96] .

Under case law existing prior to 1986, when a therapist determined, or pursuant to the standards of the profession should have determined, that a patient presented a serious danger of violence to another, the therapist incurred an obligation to use reasonable care to protect the intended victim against the danger [see Hedlund v. Superior Court (1983) 34 Cal. 3d 695, 700-704, 194 Cal. Rptr. 805, 669 P.2d 41 ; Tarasoff v. Regents of University of Cal. (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 425, 431, 131 Cal. Rptr. 14, 551 P.2d 334 (decided prior to 1985 enactment of Civ. Code § 43.92)].

Although Civ. Code § 43.92 states that the communication must come from the patient to trigger a duty to warn, the court of appeal has held that the duty to warn is also triggered under the statute if the threat of harm is communicated to the psychotherapist by a member of the patient's immediate family for the purpose of facilitating and furthering the patient's treatment [Ewing v. Goldstein (2004) 120 Cal. App. 4th 807, 817, 15 Cal. Rptr. 3d 864 (triable issue of fact existed as to whether duty was triggered by information known to therapist)]. Expert medical testimony is not required to prove that the psychotherapist actually believed or predicted that the patient posed a serious threat of physical violence to another person [Ewing v. Northridge Hosp. Med. Ctr. (2004) 120 Cal. App. 4th 1289, 1302-1304, 16 Cal. Rptr. 3d 591] .

Despite the warning requirement imposed by Civ. Code § 43.92, one court of appeal opinion held that because the statute is designed to protect "a reasonably identifiable victim or victims," a failure to warn under the statute may not be used to hold a psychiatrist liable for injuries caused to a police officer by a patient, if the psychiatrist knew only that the patient harbored homicidal feelings for his work supervisor [Tilley v. Schulte (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 79, 85-86, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 497] . In that particular case, the patient had not told the psychiatrist that he harbored generalized homicidal feelings or that he desired to harm the police officer, and the incident the officer was investigating at the time did not involve the patient's work supervisor. The psychiatrist's failure to report the hostile feelings toward the patient's supervisor did not result in liability for the injuries to the officer under Civ. Code § 43.92, because, under the facts, that statute could only be used to protect the supervisor [see Tilley v. Schulte (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 79, 85-86, 82 Cal.

A communication made by a member of the patient's family to the patient's therapist for the purpose of advancing the patient's therapy is a patient communication within the meaning of Civ. Code § 43.92. Thus, a therapist's duty to warn a victim arises if the information communicated by the family member leads thetherapist to believe or predict that the patient poses a serious risk of grave bodily injury to this individual [Ewing v. Goldstein (2004) 120 Cal. App. 4th 807, 817-820, 15 Cal. Rptr. 3d 864] . For example, a statement by a patient's father to his son's therapist relatinga threat the son had made against the boyfriend of the son's former girlfriend should have been considered a patient communication in determining whether the therapist's duty to warn was triggered [Ewing v. Goldstein (2004) 120 Cal. App. 4th 807, 817-820, 15 Cal. Rptr. 3d 864] . The statute only applies, however, to statements by family members of a threat made by the patient, not to statements of a mere belief that the patient poses a danger [Ewing v. Goldstein (2004) 120 Cal. App. 4th 807, 820 fn. 12, 15 Cal. Rptr. 3d 864] .

A therapist has a duty to warn if, and only if, the threat the therapist has learned--whether from the patient or a family member--actually leads the therapist to believe the patient poses a risk of grave bodily injury to another person [Ewing v. Goldstein (2004) 120 Cal. App. 4th 807, 821, 15 Cal. Rptr. 3d 864] . A threat to take another's life, if believed, is sufficient to trigger a therapist's duty to warn the intended victim and a law enforcement agency. The duty to warn can also arise if the therapist becomes aware that the patient intends to commit an act of grave bodily injury, akin to "mayhem" as defined by Pen. Code § 203 or "serious bodily injury" as defined by Pen. Code § 243(f)(4) [Ewing v. Goldstein (2004) 120 Cal. App. 4th 807, 821, 15 Cal. Rptr. 3d 864] .

An action by a person a patient injures based on a psychiatrist's failure to comply with the duties imposed under the involuntary commitment procedures of the LPS Act is not barred by Civ. Code § 43.92 or Tarasoff v. Regents of Univ. of Cal. (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 425, 131 Cal. Rptr. 14, 551 P.2d 334 [Bragg v. Valdez (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 421, 433-435, 3 Cal. Rptr. 3d 804] . However, the immunity afforded by Welf. & Inst. Code § 5154 applies in a case in which a psychiatrist fails to warn an individual of a patient's specific threats of harm against that individual, and the patient harms the individual, as long as the psychiatrist authorized release of the patient in accordance with the required statutory findings, i.e., that the patient no longer posed a threat to self or others [Michael E.L. v. County of San Diego (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 515, 523-524, 527, 530, 228 Cal. Rptr. 139 (psychiatrist owes duty under Tarasoff to take reasonable care to protect intended victim from danger of serious violence he or she perceives in person placed under 72-hour hold for evaluation and treatment, but is immune from liability if person's release complies with statutory requirements)].

[3] Actions Against Relatives

The public policy of California allows a person to walk the streets of the state even if mentally ill [Alva v. Cook (1975) 49 Cal. App. 3d 899, 906, 123 Cal. Rptr. 166] . As a result, when the relatives of a person cannot successfully petition under the LPS Act for the person's commitment, they are not liable on a negligence theory for caring for the person at home so that the person was able to injure a third party [Alva v. Cook (1975) 49 Cal. App. 3d 899, 906, 123 Cal. Rptr. 166] . In the absence of ultimate pleaded facts showing that the person was dangerous to himself or to herself or to others at least sufficient to warrant a reasonable assumption that a petition for evaluation or commitment under the LPS Act would be granted, a court will not equate relatives' assumption of a moral obligation to care for a mentally disordered relative to a guarantee and indemnification agreement for the person's conduct on or off the relatives' premises. A court has refused to hold that the relatives' take care of the person at their risk [see Alva v. Cook (1975) 49 Cal. App. 3d 899, 909, 123 Cal. Rptr. 166] .

[4] Notice of Release on Outpatient Status

Although not creating civil liability for any violation of its provisions, Penal Code § 1603 does give the victim, or the next of kin of the victim, of the offense for which a person has been committed the right to request notice of the offender's release on outpatient status. In any case in which the victim or victim's next of kin has filed a request for notice with the director of the state hospital or other treatment facility, he or she must be notified by the director at the inception of any program in which the committed person would be allowed any type of day release unattended by staff of the facility [Penal Code § 1603(a)(3)].

§ 304.94 Governmental Immunity and Liability: Tort Claims Act

Under the California Tort Claims Act [Gov. Code §§ 810-996.6], a public entity or public employee engaging in medical activities concerning a mental patient has a limited immunity from tort liability. Generally, the Government Code sections dealing with governmental immunity or responsibility for torts of employees in dealing with mental patients are intended to provide immunity for diagnosing, treating, confining, and releasing the mentally ill, but to make clear that public entities and employees are liable for injuries caused by negligent or wrongful acts or omissions in administering or failing to administer prescribed treatment or confinement [Los Angeles County v. Superior Court (1965) 62 Cal. 2d 839, 843-844, 44 Cal. Rptr. 796, 402 P.2d 868 ; Hernandez v. State of California (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 895, 899, 90 Cal. Rptr. 205] . Public entities have been held to enjoy an absolute immunity for injuries caused by patients of mental institutions under Gov. Code § 854.8 [Guess v. California (1979) 96 Cal. App. 3d 111, 120, 157 Cal. Rptr. 618] . Limits on liability of public employees and entities for injuries to persons in mental institutions is not a denial of equal protection of the laws to such persons [Los Angeles County v. Superior Court (1965) 62 Cal. 2d 839, 846, 44 Cal. Rptr. 796, 402 P.2d 868 ; Goff v. County of Los Angeles (1967) 254 Cal. App. 2d 45, 51, 61 Cal. Rptr. 840] . 26-304 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 304.95

§ 304.95 Statutory Liability to Person Detained

If the probable cause to detain a person as mentally disordered is based on the statement of a person other than a peace officer, a member of the attending staff, or a professional person, the person making the statement is liable in a civil action for intentionally giving a statement which he or she knows to be false [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5150]. Further, any individual who seeks a petition for court-ordered evaluation knowing that the person for whom the petition is sought is not, as a result of mental disorder, a danger to others, or to himself or herself, or gravely disabled is guilty of a misdemeanor, and may be held liable in civil damages by the person against whom the petition was sought [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5203].

Any individual who is knowingly and willfully responsible for detaining a person for more than 14 days is liable to that person in civil damages [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5255], and a person who knowingly and willingly detains a person for more than 14 days in violation of the provisions for release of suicidal persons certified for additional treatment is liable to that person in civil damages [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5265].

Any physician who intentionally violates Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 5326.2-5326.8 (patients' rights) is subject to a civil penalty of not more than $5,000 for each violation. This penalty may be assessed and collected in a civil action brought by the Attorney General in a superior court [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5326.9(c)]. The remedy provided by this section is in addition to and not in substitution for any other remedies which a person may have under law [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5326.9(c)].

Every adult who is or has been committed or admitted to a state hospital, community care facility, health facility, developmental center, or any other appropriate placement permitted by law, as a developmentally disabled patient has a right to a hearing by writ of habeas corpus for release from the facility after the person or anyone acting in his or her behalf makes a request for release. The staff member to whom the request is made has a duty to inform the person of rights and to provide a request for release form, among other things. Any person who intentionally violates this section is guilty of a misdemeanor [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 4800(a)-(c)]. Additionally, a state hospital, or other facility, may not admit any adult as a developmentally disabled patient on recommendation of a regional center unless a copy of a certificate showing that there has been no objection to the admission has been transmitted to the hospital or other facility. Any person knowingly certifying that no objection has been made, knowing that an objection has in fact been made, is guilty of a misdemeanor [Welf. & Inst. Code § 4803].

A person requesting release on certification for intensive treatment pursuant to the LPS Act has a right to judicial review and to be informed of certain rights in that regard (see the discussion in § 304.144[6][d]). Any person who intentionally violates the section of the Welfare and Institutions Code providing for the right of the patient to request release and to be informed of his or her rights is guilty of a misdemeanor [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5275].

26-304 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 304.96

§ 304.96 Statutory Immunity From Liability for Acts of Person Detained

Notwithstanding Welf. & Inst. Code § 5113, if the provisions of Welf. & Inst. Code § 5152 have been met, the professional person in charge of the facility providing 72-hour treatment and evaluation, his or her designee, the medical director of the facility or his or her designee described in Welf. & Inst. Code § 5152, the psychiatrist directly responsible for the person's treatment, or the psychologist, will not be held civilly or criminally liable for any action by a person released before the end of 72 hours [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5154(a)]. For purposes of applying this immunity, the releasing professional is only required to show that the provisions of Welf. & Inst. Code § 5152 actually dealing with early release have been met and need not show compliance with other provisions of Welf. & Inst. Code § 5152. Therefore, the professional must show only that he or she had a subjective belief, based on his or her personal observations, that the person being evaluated no longer required evaluation and treatment [Coburn v. Sievert (2005) 133 Cal. App. 4th 1483, 1500-1505, 35 Cal. Rptr. 3d 596] .

The professional person in charge of the facility providing 72-hour treatment and evaluation, his or her designee, the medical designee, the medical director of the facility or his or her designee described in Welf. & Inst. Code § 5152, the psychiatrist directly responsible for the person's treatment, or the psychologist, will not be held civilly or criminally liable for any action by a person released at the end of the 72 hours pursuant to this article [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5154(b)].

The peace officer responsible for the detainment of the person is not civilly or criminally liable for any action by a person released at or before the end of 72 hours pursuant to this article [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5154(c); see Tarasoff v. Regents of Univ. of Cal. (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 425, 449-450, 131 Cal. Rptr. 14, 551 P.2d 334] . Similar exemptions from liability exist for other types of detention and release pursuant to the LPS Act [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 5173 (inebriates released at or before 72 hours); Welf. & Inst. Code § 5257 (release of person certified for intensive treatment at or before end of 14 days); Welf. & Inst. Code § 5267 (release of person held for further intensive treatment at or before end of 14 days)]. Additionally, individuals authorized to detain a person under the various procedures of the LPS Act are not either criminally or civilly liable for exercising that authority in accordance with law [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 5278; see also Cruze v. National Psychiatric Servs., Inc. (2003) 105 Cal. App. 4th 48, 56, 129 Cal. Rptr. 2d 65 (immunity under Welf. & Inst. Code § 5278 extends to institutions and agencies with or by which health care professionals are associated, affiliated, or employed)]. This immunity applies only to claims based on facts inherent to involuntary detention, however, and does not extend to other tortious or criminal wrongs committed during the course of detention, evaluation, or treatment [Jacobs v. Grossmont Hosp. (2003) 108 Cal. App. 4th 69, 78-79, 133 Cal. Rptr. 2d 9 ; see Gonzalez v. Paradise Valley Hosp. (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 735, 741, 3 Cal. Rptr. 3d 903 (Welf.& Inst. Code § 5278 is inapplicable to actions for negligence stemming from acts or omissions in evaluation or treatment during 72-hour hold)]. Protected conduct is confined to the exercise of statutory authority to detain, evaluate, and treat against a patient's wishes; immunity does not extend to the manner in which evaluation and treatment are conducted [Gonzalez v. Paradise Valley Hosp. (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 735, 741, 3 Cal. Rptr. 3d 903] .

In addition, a treating psychiatrist who releases a patient who has been involuntarily committed under the LPS Act, merely because the patient does not have insurance, may be liable to the patient and any person the patient injures. The immunities for treating psychiatrists contained in the Act are not applicable, unless the treating psychiatrist complies with the requirements of the Act before releasing a patient--that is, the psychiatrist must believe, based on his or her own personal observations, that the patient is no longer a danger [Bragg v. Valdez (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 421, 425, 433, 3 Cal. Rptr. 3d 804] . A psychiatrist's decision to release a patient under the Act must be made on medical, not monetary, grounds [Bragg v. Valdez (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 421, 431-432 fn. 10, 3 Cal. Rptr. 3d 804 (suggesting actions that might appropriately be taken to transfer uninsured patient to public facility for treatment)]. An action by a person the patient injures based on a psychiatrist's failure to comply with the duties imposed under the involuntary commitment procedures of the LPS Act is not barred by Civ. Code § 43.92 or Tarasoff v. Regents of University of California [Tarasoff v. Regents of Univ. of Cal. (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 425, 131 Cal. Rptr. 14, 551 P.2d 334] , which preclude a cause of action against a psychotherapist for failing to warn of a patient's threatened violent behavior unless the patient has made a serious threat of physical violence against a reasonably identifiable victim [Bragg v. Valdez (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 421, 433-435, 3 Cal. Rptr. 3d 804] .

The immunity afforded by Welf. & Inst. Code § 5154 does apply in a case in which a psychiatrist fails to warn an individual of a patient's specific threats of harm against that individual, and the patient harms the individual, as long as the psychiatrist authorized release of the patient in accordance with the required statutory findings--that is, that the patient no longer posed a threat to self or others [Michael E.L. v. County of San Diego (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 515, 523-524, 527, 530, 228 Cal. Rptr. 139 (psychiatrist owes duty under Tarasoff to take reasonable care to protect intended victim from danger of serious violence he or she perceives in person placed under 72-hour hold for evaluation and treatment, but is immune from liability if person's release complies with statutory requirements)].

[1] Inaccuracy of Psychiatric Predictions

The concern of the legislature and courts was at one time to minimize formal court procedure and to work toward a change in public attitudes as to proceedings for the commitment of the mentally ill, from commitment like a criminal to admission like a patient. This change considered modernization of commitment legislation [see Brock v. Southern Pac. Co. (1948) 86 Cal. App. 2d 182, 185, 195 P.2d 66] . The modern trend however, is toward recognition of the limits of psychiatric determinations as medical determinations and of a consequent need for judicial safeguards of the rights of the allegedly mentally disordered. It has been recognized, for example, that psychiatrists still experience considerable difficulty in confidently and accurately diagnosing mental illness and that those difficulties are multiplied manyfold when psychiatrists venture from diagnosis to prognosis and undertake to predict the consequences of such an illness. There is a growing concensus that psychiatrists are not uniquely qualified to predict dangerous behavior and are, in fact, less accurate in their predictions than other professionals. The same studies which proved the inaccuracy of psychiatric predictions have demonstrated beyond dispute the no less disturbing manner in which such prophecies consistently err: they predict acts of violence that will not in fact take place, thus branding as "dangerous" many persons who are in reality totally harmless. A court has, however, declined to reach the conclusion that no psychiatrist should be permitted in civil commitment proceedings to give an opinion as to the future dangerousness of a person and that any commitment based on such an opinion constitutes a deprivation of liberty without due process of law [People v. Burnick (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 306, 326-328, 121 Cal. Rptr. 488, 535 P.2d 352] .

[2] Stigma and Abridgment of Personal Freedom

Proceedings to determine whether a person is mentally ill are, technically, civil rather than criminal proceedings [People v. Parriera (1965) 237 Cal. App. 2d 275, 284, 46 Cal. Rptr. 835 (deciding that a declaration of intent to commit suicide was not admissible under the hearsay rule as a declaration against penal interest since it could not lead to criminal prosecution but only to proceedings for commitment civil in nature)]. The Supreme Court, however, has noted the social stigma attached to mental illness. The enlightened view and the treatment of the mentally ill as subjects of understanding and compassion rather than ignorance and aversion, the Court has noted, does not prevail [see People v. Burnick (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 306, 321, 121 Cal. Rptr. 488, 535 P.2d 352] . The Court has also noted as indisputable fact that civil commitment entails a massive curtailment of liberty in the constitutional sense and that the destruction of an individual's personal freedoms effected by civil commitment is scarcely less total than that effected byconfinement in a penitentiary. The Court has also noted that civil commitment, because it is for an indefinite term, may in some ways involve a more serious abridgment of personal freedom than imprisonment for commission of a crime usually does, that civil commitment involves stigmatizing the affected individuals, and thatthe stigma attached, although in theory less severe than the stigma attached to criminal conviction, may in reality be as severe, or more so [see People v. Burnick (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 306, 322-323, 121 Cal. Rptr. 488, 535 P.2d 352] .

[3] Procedural Safeguards

Although the LPS Act authorizes a commitment process somewhat more medical and with fewer legal procedures than the civil commitment procedures which it repealed, nevertheless the provisions of the act requiring notice of the 14-day certification for involuntary intensive treatment to be given to the superior court and to various attorneys, among others, and the express specification of the rights of a patient who requests release to have counsel appointed and to seek habeas corpus demonstrate the concern of the legislature that the patient's rights receive full protection at all times [Thorn v. Superior Court (1970) 1 Cal. 3d 666, 674, 83 Cal. Rptr. 600, 464 P.2d 56] . Due process requires conveying to the patient a realistic notice that he or she has been certified for 14-day intensive treatment but that he or she has a right to counsel and to seek release on habeas corpus. Absent an understanding by the patient of the nature of the detention and of the rights, the patient cannot knowingly decide whether or not to exercise them. Many patients, for example, will be undergoing treatment with sedating and tranquilizing drugs, and others may lack the capacity to comprehend the nature of the notice of certification. It is therefore appropriate that additional procedures be established which will assure that the patient's rights receive meaningful protection [Thorn v. Superior Court (1970) 1 Cal. 3d 666, 674-675, 83 Cal. Rptr. 600, 464 P.2d 56 (affirming superior court order that all certified patients be visited by counsel)].

Since commitment proceedings are purely statutory and not based on the common law, jurisdiction to enter an order of commitment depends on strict complaince with each of the specific statutory prerequisites for maintenance of the proceeding. The requirements of the statute must be at least substantially, if not strictly, followed, in order to give the court jurisdiction [In re Raner (1963) 59 Cal. 2d 635, 639, 30 Cal. Rptr. 814, 381 P.2d 638 ; In re Hofmann (1955) 131 Cal. App. 2d 758, 761-762, 281 P.2d 96] .

[4] Right to Treatment

It has been said that the insane have always been subject to the control of the state both for their own protection and for the protection of others [Dribin v. Superior Court (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 345, 352, 231 P.2d 809] . The states in their character as parens patriae have the general duty of caring for insane persons. The prerogative is a segment of the police power. In the exercise of that power, insane persons may be restrained and confined both for the welfare of themselves and for the protection of the public. If the exactions of due process are met, such restraint and confinement do not violate any constitutional right of the individual [Higgins v. United States (9th Cir. 1953) 205 F.2d 650, 653] .

The United States Supreme Court has declined to decide whether mentally ill persons dangerous to themselves or to others have a right to treatment on compulsory confinement by the state, or whether the state may compulsorily confine a nondangerous, mentally ill individual for the purpose of treatment. The court, however, has considered the case of the confinement of a nondangerous individual and decided that a finding of "mental illness" alone cannot justify a state's locking a person up against his or her will and keeping the person indefinitely in custodial confinement. Further, the state may not confine the harmless mentally ill in order to raise their living standards or in order to save citizens from exposure to those whose ways are different [O'Connor v. Donaldson (1975) 422 U.S. 563, 575, 95 S. Ct. 2486, 45 L. Ed. 2d 396] .

Involuntary confinement for the status of having a mental or physical illness or disorder constitutes a violation of the cruel and unusual punishment clauses of both the state and federal constitutions [U.S. Const., Amendments VIII and XIV

; Cal. Const. art I, § 17] unless it is accompanied by adequate treatment [People v. Feagley (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 338, 359, 121 Cal. Rptr. 509, 535 P.2d 373] .

§ 304.110 Governing Statutes

The procedures for determining whether or not a person lacks capacity to make health care decisions are governed by Prob. Code § 3200 et seq. Prior to amendments effective July 1, 2000, Prob. Code § 3200 et seq. referred to a person's capacity to give "informed consent" to health care decisions, rather than "capacity" to make health care decisions [see discussion below].

The procedures authorized by Prob. Code § 3200 et seq. are supplemental and alternative to other procedures or methods for obtaining consent to health care or making health care decisions [Prob. Code § 3210(a)]. These procedures are also subject to a valid advance health care directive, including a power of attorney for health care or individual health care instruction [see Prob. Code § 4600 et seq.; see below]. If an advance health care directive exists, it should be carefully examined before invoking the petition procedure described in this part. For discussion of the rules governing advance health care directives, see California Legal Forms, Ch. 104, Medical and Hospital Services (Matthew Bender).

Effective July 1, 2000, the Natural Death Act [see Health & Safety Code § 7185 et seq.] and statutory provisions for powers of attorney for health care [see Probate Code § 4600 et seq.] are repealed, revised, and replaced by the Health Care Decisions Law [Prob. Code § 4600 et seq.]. Accordingly, the procedures authorized by Prob. Code § 3200 et seq. (also revised effective July 1, 2000), are subject to any provisions respecting health care decisions under the Health Care Decision Law.

The most significant distinction between the versions of the procedures outlined in Prob. Code § 3200 et seq. effective July 1, 2000, and the prior version of those procedures is in terminology. The prior procedures used the term "informed consent," while the procedures effective July 1, 2000, generally use the terms "consent" or "health care decision." A health care decision is defined as a decision regarding the patient's health care, including selection and discharge of health care providers and institutions, approval or disapproval of diagnostic tests, surgical procedures, programs of medication, and directions to provide, withhold or withdraw all forms of health care [Prob. Code § 3201(b), effective July 1, 2000]. Additionally, the prior procedures refer to "medical condition" and "treatment," whereas the procedures effective July 1, 2000, refer to "health" and "health care."

Prob. Code §§ 810-814, which set forth criteria for determining whether a person lacks capacity to give consent to health care decisions, were not amended by the legislation effective July 1, 2000. Since Prob. Code § 3204(h) still references Prob. Code § 811(a) regarding the patient's mental functions, Prob. Code §§ 810-814 apparently continue to apply.

§ 304.111 Definitions

The following definitions apply to the procedures discussed in this part [Prob. Code § 3200]:

- "Health care" means any care, treatment, service, or procedure to maintain, diagnose, or otherwise affect a patient's physical or mental condition.

- "Health care decision" (which replaces the former term "informed consent") means a decision regarding the patient's health care, including the following:

  - Selection or discharge of health care providers and institutions.

  - Approval or disapproval of diagnostic tests, surgical procedures, and programs of medication.

  - Directions to provide, withhold, or withdraw artificial nutrition and hydration and all other forms of health care, including cardiopulmonary resuscitation.

- "Health care institution" means an institution, facility, or agency authorized by law to provide health care in the ordinary course of business.

- "Patient' means an adult who does not have a conservator of the person and for whom a health care decision needs to be made.

§ 304.112 Capacity to Consent to Medical Treatment

[1] Test for Determining Capacity

The mere diagnosis of a mental or physical disorder is not sufficient in and of itself to support a determination that a person is of unsound mind or lacks the capacity to make medical decisions [Prob. Code §§ 810(b), 811(d)]. Prob. Code § 813 establishes specific rules for determining whether a person has the capacity to give informed consent to a proposed medical treatment. These rules prevail over the more general rules for determining whether a person lacks the capacity to make decisions [see Prob. Code § 812 (general rules in Prob. Code § 812 subject to Prob. Code § 813)]. Under Prob. Code § 813, a person has the capacity to give informed consent to a proposed medical treatment if the person is able to do all of the following [Prob. Code § 813(a)]:

- Respond knowingly and intelligently to queries about that medical treatment.
- Participate in that treatment decision by means of a rational thought process.
- Understand all of the following items of minimum basic medical treatment information with respect to that treatment:

  (1) The nature and seriousness of the illness, disorder, or defect that the person has.

  (2) The nature of the medical treatment that is being recommended by the person's health care providers.

  (3) The probable degree and duration of any benefits and risks of any medical intervention that is being recommended by the person's health care providers, and the consequences of lack of treatment.

[2] Evidence of Deficit in Mental Functions Required

For purposes of determinations regarding legal capacity, including the capacity to make medical decisions, there exists a rebuttable presumption affecting the burden of proof that all persons have the capacity to make decisions and to be responsible for their acts or decisions [Prob. Code § 810(a)].

A judicial determination that a person is of unsound mind or lacks the capacity to make a medical decision should be based on evidence of a deficit in one or more of the person's mental functions rather than a diagnosis of a mental or physical disorder [Prob. Code § 810(c)]. Accordingly, a determination that a person lacks the capacity to make medicaldecisions must be supported by evidence of a deficit in at least one of the following functions, as well as evidence of a correlation between the deficit or deficits and an incapacity to make medical decisions [Prob. Code § 811(a)]:

- Alertness and attention, including, but not limited to, the following:

  (1) Level of arousal or consciousness.

  (2) Orientation to time, place, person, and situation.

  (3) Ability to attend and concentrate.

- Information processing, including, but not limited to, the following:

  (1) Short- and long-term memory, including immediate recall.

  (2) Ability to understand or communicate with others, verbally or otherwise.

  (3) Recognition of familiar objects and familiar persons.

  (4) Ability to understand and appreciate quantities.

  (5) Ability to reason using abstract concepts.

  (6) Ability to plan, organize, and carry out actions in one's own rational self-interest.

  (7) Ability to reason logically.

- Thought processes. Deficits in these functions may be demonstrated by the presence of the following:

  (1) Severely disorganized thinking.

  (2) Hallucinations.

  (3) Delusions.

  (4) Uncontrollable, repetitive, or intrusive thoughts.

- Ability to modulate mood and affect. Defects in this ability may be demonstrated by the presence of a pervasive and persistent or recurrent state of euphoria, anger, anxiety, fear, panic, depression, hopelessness or despair, helplessness, apathy or indifference, which is inappropriate in degree to the individual's circumstances.

A deficit in the mental functions listed above may be considered only if the deficit, by itself or in combination with one or more other mental function deficits, significantly impairs the person's ability to understand and appreciate the consequences of his or her actions with regard to the type of act or decision in question [Prob. Code § 811(b)].

If an adult who does not have a conservator of the person is in need of health care for an existing or continuing medical condition, and there are doubts as to the adult's capacity to make health care decisions, a petition may be filed to determine whether the adult has that capacity [Prob. Code § 3201(a), (b)]. If the petition seeks an order that the adult lacks the necessary capacity, the petition may also request that a designated person be authorized to consent to make a health care decision on behalf of the adult [*Prob. - Placing a person in a mental health treatment facility;
- Prescribing or administering experimental drugs [see Health & Safety Code § 111515];
- Performing convulsive treatment [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 5325]; and § 304.118 Representation of Patient

[1] Retained or Appointed Counsel

On the filing of the petition, the court will determine the name of the attorney the patient has retained to represent the patient in the proceeding or the name of the attorney the patient plans to retain. If the patient has not retained an attorney and does not plan to retain one, the court will appoint the public defender or private counsel under Prob. Code § 1471 to consult with and represent the patient at the hearing on the petition [Prob. Code § 3205]. Counsel will be appointed at or before the time of the hearing if, based on information contained in the court investigator's report or obtained from any other source, the court determines that the appointment would be helpful to the resolution of the matter or is necessary to protect the patient's interests [Prob. Code § 1471].

[2] Attorney's Fees

If counsel is appointed under Prob. Code § 1471, the court, on conclusion of the proceeding, will fix a reasonable sum for compensation and expenses of counsel, and will make a determination of the patient's ability to pay all or a portion of this amount. The sum allowed to the attorney may include, in the discretion of the court, compensation for services rendered and expenses incurred before the date of the order appointing counsel. If the court determines that the patient has the ability to pay all or part of the sum, the court will order the patient to pay in whatever installments and in whatever manner as the court determines to be reasonable and compatible with the person's financial ability. The payment ordered by the court will be made to the county if the public defender has been appointed or if private counsel has been appointed to perform the public defender's duties and the county has compensated the counsel. In the case of other court-appointed counsel, the payment will be made to the counsel directly. If, however, the court determines that the patient lacks the ability to pay all or a portion of the fixed sum, the county will pay the sum to the private counsel to the extent the court determines the patient is unable to pay [Prob. Code §§ 1472, 3205].

§ 304.121 Requisite Findings

The court may authorize the recommended health care and designate a person to consent to the health care if it determines from the evidence all of the following [Prob. Code § 3208(a)]:

- That the existing or continuing condition of the patient's health requires the recommended course of health care.

- That there is a probability that the condition, if untreated, will become life-endangering or result in a serious threat to the physical or mental health of the patient.

- That the patient is unable to consent to the recommended health care.

The court may authorize the withholding or withdrawing of artificial nutrition and hydration and all other forms of health care, and designate a person to give or withhold consent to the recommended health care if the court determines from the evidence all of the following [Prob. Code § 3208(c)]:

- That the recommended health care is in accordance with the patient's best interest, considering the patient's personal values to the extent known by petitioner.

- The patient is unable to consent to the recommended health care.

In determining whether the patient's mental functioning is so severely impaired that the patient lacks capacity to make any health care decisions, the court may take into consideration the frequency, severity, and duration of periods of impairment [Prob. Code § 3208(b)]. A judicial determination that a person lacks the capacity to make medical decisions must be supported by evidence of a deficit in at least one of a number of specific mental functions, as well as evidence of a correlation between the deficit or deficits and an incapacity to make medical decisions [see Prob. Code § 811(a) and discussion in § 304.112[2]].

If the patient has the capacity to consent to the recommended health care, the court must so find in its order [Prob. Code § 3208.5(a)]. If the court finds that the patient has the capacity to consent to the recommended health care but refuses to do so, the court may not authorize the health care or designate a person to consent to it [Prob. Code § 3208.5(c); see Prob. Code § 813(b) (person who has capacity to give informed consent to proposed medical treatment also has capacity to refuse consent to that treatment)].

If the court finds that the patient has capacity to consent to the recommended health care, the court must, if requested, determine whether the patient has accepted or refused the recommended health care, and whether the consent is an informed consent [Prob. Code § 3208.5(b)].

If an order authorizing health care and designating a person to consent to it has been made, and the patient later recovers the capacity to consent, the court must revoke the first order [Prob. Code § 3208.5(c)]. Until revoked or modified, however, such an order is effective authorization for the treatment [Prob. Code § 3208.5(c)].

§ 304.144 Decisions

[1] Alcoholism

Fact that county has not established facility for detention and treatment of persons impaired by alcoholism is not denial of equal protection. People v. McNaught (1973) 31 Cal. App. 3d 599, 107 Cal. Rptr. 566

[2] Appointment of Attorney

Proposed conservatee does not have right to represent himself or herself in LPS Act proceedings, but court may permit self-representation. Conservatorship of Joel E. (2005) 132 Cal. App. 4th 429, 438-442, 33 Cal. Rptr. 3d 704

Mere fact that conservatorship is established under LPS Act does not give rise to constructive attorney-client relationship between county counsel, whowas designated as attorney for public conservator, and conservatee. In re Lee G. (1991) 1 Cal. App. 4th 17, 29-33, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 375

Representation by county counsel's office of public conservator in LPS Act proceedings against conservatee and of Department of Social Services in separate dependency proceedings to determine whether conservatee should regain custody of child does not give rise to conflict of interest requiring recusal of county counsel in dependency proceedings. In re Lee G. (1991) 1 Cal. App. 4th 17, 29-33, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 375

[3] Attorney's Fees

Legal services for indigent persons at public expense are mandated in mental health matters when restraint of liberty possible. Phillips v. Seely (1974) 43 Cal. App. 3d 104, 113, 117 Cal. Rptr. 863

[4] Confidentiality of Patient Records

Welf. & Inst. Code § 5328, requiring confidentiality of records of mentally ill persons, establishes absolute discovery privilege, subject only to legislative exceptions listed in statute. Gilbert v. Superior Court (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 161, 169-170, 238 Cal. Rptr. 220

Provisions of Welf. & Inst. Code § 5328 requiring confidentiality of patient records have legislative purpose of encouraging persons to seek treatment on voluntary basis; purpose would be nullified by permitting persons or agencies to obtain disclosure whenever determined by court to be administration of justice. County of Riverside v. Superior Court (1974) 42 Cal. App. 3d 478, 481, 116 Cal. Rptr. 886

[5] Confinement to Mental Hospital

[a] In General

Variation of length and conditions of confinement of mentally disturbed persons, depending on degrees of danger reasonably perceived as to special classes of persons, is valid exercise of state power. Conservatorship of Hofferber (1980) 28 Cal. 3d 161, 172, 167 Cal. Rptr. 854, 616 P.2d 836

[b] Basis For

Kentucky statutory scheme involving differing burdens of proof for involuntary commitment of mentally retarded (clear and convincing evidence) and mentally ill (beyond reasonable doubt) individuals has rational basis and therefore is consistent with Equal Protection Clause; permitting family members and guardians party status in commitment proceedings for mentally retarded but not in proceedings for mentally also has rational basis. Heller v. Doe (1993) 509 U.S. 312, 328-329, 113 S. Ct. 2637, 125 L. Ed. 2d 257

Dangerous mental condition of incompetent criminal defendant, which is basis for continued confinement, must be established beyond a reasonable doubt and, if requested, by unanimous jury. Conservatorship of Hofferber (1980) 28 Cal. 3d 161, 178-179, 167 Cal. Rptr. 854, 616 P.2d 836

Legislature did not specify standard of proof required for involuntary commitment of persons under LPS Act; question is for courts to decide in view of consequences of commitment. People v. Burnick (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 306, 314 n.5, 121 Cal. Rptr. 488, 535 P.2d 352

Person committed to mental hospital is not entitled to release when person's condition worse at time of application for writ of habeas corpus and person is unable to care for himself or herself. In re Cloutman (1941) 47 Cal. App. 2d 77, 78, 117 P.2d 378

Question of whether person is suffering from mental condition such as justifies commitment to state hospital under applicable statutory standard is question of fact. In re Gavin (1926) 80 Cal. App. 27, 30, 251 P. 231

[6] Conservatorship for Gravely Disabled Person

[a] Due Process and Other Constitutional Issues

Hearing to establish conservatorship under Lanterman-Petris-Short (LPS) Act did not violate Act or proposed conservatee's constitutional right of due process when court accepted representation of proposed conservatee's attorney and proceeded with hearing in proposed conservatee's absence, when proposed conservatee told appointed counsel that he did not contest proposed conservatorship and did not want to attend hearing, and there were no allegations that the attorney misrepresented the contents of that discussion. Conservatorship of John L. (2010) 48 Cal. 4th 131, 157, 105 Cal. Rptr. 3d 424, 225 P.3d 554 .

Mentally disordered offender did not have constitutional or statutory right to jury trial on issue of whether to administer involuntary antipsychotic medication under Welf. & Inst. Code § 5300. People v. Fisher (2009) 172 Cal. App. 4th 1006, 1015-1016, 91 Cal. Rptr. 3d 609

Mentally disordered offender had constitutional right to be present at hearing on issue of whether to administer involuntary antipsychotic medication under Welf. & Inst. Code § 5300 because he did not personally waive his right to be present and was not unable to attend the hearing, but absence from court on day that his psychiatrist testified was harmless beyond a reasonable doubt when his counsel thoroughly cross-examined psychiatrist, psychiatrist's testimony was compelling, and defendant thereafter was present and was given a full and fair opportunity to rebut the testimony. People v. Fisher (2009) 172 Cal. App. 4th 1006, 1013-1014, 91 Cal. Rptr. 3d 609

Court in Lanterman-Petris-Short Act proceeding did not have duty to instruct jury sua sponte that if the proposed conservatee was able to accept voluntary treatment there is no need for conservatorship; Lanterman-Petris-Short Act conservatorships are civil, not criminal, proceedings, and the civil trial procedural rules are ones that apply. Conservatorship of George H (2008) 169 Cal. App. 4th 157, 162, 165, 86 Cal. Rptr. 3d 666 ; disagreeing with holding in Conservatorship of Walker (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 1082, 242 Cal. Rptr. 289

Proposed conservatee who requests substitute appointed counsel must be given full opportunity to state the reasons for his or her requests, and court's failure to afford proposed conservatee a full opportunity to state his or her reasons for requesting substitute counsel violates his or her right to due process of law. Conservatorship of David L. (2008) 164 Cal. App. 4th 701, 712, 79 Cal. Rptr. 3d 530

Conservatee's due process rights were adequately protected under Lanterman-Petris-Short Act when conservatee received copy of petition for reestablishment of conservatorship and accompanying medical statement, conservatee was aware of proposed placement and disabilities, conservatee received at least two written notices of right to hearing and jury trial, and conservatee's attorney met with conservator in person and signed an affidavit attesting to conservatee's agreement to reestablishment of conservatorship without a hearing. Conservatorship of Tian L. (2007) 149 Cal. App. 4th 1022, 1031, 157 Cal. Rptr. 3d 382

Ex parte procedure to reestablish conservatorship for gravely disabled person comported with constitutional due process requirements when proposed conservatee communicated to court (via attorney) that he did not desire hearing after being notified of right to hearing. Conservatorship of Moore (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 718, 726-727, 229 Cal. Rptr. 875

Notification procedures set forth in Welf. & Inst. Code § 5362 for reestablishing conservatorship for gravely disabled person met constitutional standards for due process of law. Conservatorship of Moore (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 718, 726-727, 229 Cal. Rptr. 875

Criminal due process rights applicable in LPS conservatorship proceedings; appellate court is required to review entire record for error when appointed appellate counsel files brief stating there are no arguable issues on appeal. Conservatorship of Besoyan (1986) 181 Cal. App. 3d 34, 36-38, 226 Cal. Rptr. 196

Jury verdict finding person not gravely disabled for purposes of LPS Act is different from criminal acquittal so that appeal or later petition to have person declared LPS conservatee is not barred by due process or protection against double jeopardy. Conservatorship of Davis (1981) 124 Cal. App. 3d 313, 330, 177 Cal. Rptr. 369

Standard of "gravely disabled" defined in Welf. & Inst. Code § 5008 is neither unconstitutionally vague nor overbroad. Conservatorship of Chambers (1977) 71 Cal. App. 3d 277, 285, 139 Cal. Rptr. 357

[b] Grave Disability Requirement

Department of Corrections supervision of parolee does not qualify as "third-partyassistance," which precludes finding of "grave disability" required to establish and maintain LPS conservatorship. Conservatorship of Jones (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 292, 300-302, 256 Cal. Rptr. 415

Conservatee who is living in board and care facility paid for by public assistance checks issued to parent is not deemed to be using assistance of willing and responsible family members, friends, or third parties, so as to preclude LPS conservatorship. Conservatorship of Law (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 1336, 1341, 249 Cal. Rptr. 415

Finding of "grave disability" is improper if proposed conservatee can presently provide for his or her basic needs with help of another, even if conservatorship might be needed at future time because of need for possible medical treatment. Conservatorship of Neal (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 685, 687-689, 235 Cal. Rptr. 577

Procedure permitting recommendation of conservatorship for person both gravely disabled and unwilling or unable to voluntarily accept treatment pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code § 5352 implies that if person is not gravely disabled or is able to voluntarily accept treatment that no conservatorship is required. Conservatorship of Walker (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 1082, 1092, 242 Cal. Rptr. 289

Person is not gravely disabled within Welf. & Inst. Code § 5008(h)(1)(A) (formerly Welf. & Inst. Code § 5008(h)(1)) if capable of surviving safely with help of willing and responsible family members, friends, or third parties. Conservatorship of Early (1983) 35 Cal. 3d 244, 250-251, 197 Cal. Rptr. 539, 673 P.2d 209 ; Conservatorship of Neal (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 685, 687-689, 235 Cal. Rptr. 577 ; Conservatorship of Davis (1981) 124 Cal. App. 3d 313, 321, 177 Cal. Rptr. 369

Finding of grave disability must be based on evidence that person, due to mental disorder, is incapacitated or unable to carry out transactions necessary for survival, or otherwise provide for basic needs of food, clothing, or shelter, with or without aid of others. Conservatorship of Smith (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 903, 905, 909, 232 Cal. Rptr. 277

In proceeding by public guardian for reappointment pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code § 5361, evidence was insufficient to support finding that conservatee presently disabled as defined in Welf. & Inst. Code § 5008(h), when trial court's determination based on likelihood that conservatee, if released, would return to alcohol, and not on whether conservatee was presently capable of managing own affairs. Conservatorship of Murphy (1982) 134 Cal. App. 3d 15, 18-19, 184 Cal. Rptr. 363

[c] Investigation Report

Investigating officer who receives recommendation from interested person other than professional person in charge of evaluating or treating facility that conservatorship be instituted, and who does not concur with recommendation, does not file conservatorship petition or prepare investigation report. Kaplan v. Superior Court (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 1354, 1357-1358, 265 Cal. Rptr. 408

Appointment of LPS conservator is subject to list of priorities in Prob. Code § 1812 unless conservatorship investigator recommends otherwise; trial court abused its discretion in summarily appointing public conservator on basis of report that did not "justify negating the possibility of appointing immediate family members." Conservatorship of Walker (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 1082, 1101, 242 Cal. Rptr. 289

Court is not deprived of jurisdiction if proposed conservatee does not receive copy of investigation report as required by Welf. & Inst. Code § 5354. Conservatorship of Forsythe (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 1406, 1411-1412, 238 Cal. Rptr. 77 ; Conservatorship of Jones (1986) 188 Cal. App. 3d 306, 312, 232 Cal. Rptr. 600

Report mailed to conservatee's appointed counsel is sufficient to satisfy Welf. & Inst. Code § 5354 requirement that investigation report be mailed to proposed conservatee. Conservatorship of Jones (1986) 188 Cal. App. 3d 306, 312, 232 Cal. Rptr. 600

Only nonhearsay portions of investigator's report are admissible (Welf. & Inst. Code § 5354) at contested court or jury trial on issue of grave disability. Conservatorship of Manton (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 645, 648-653, 217 Cal. Rptr. 253, 703 P.2d 1147

[d] Judicial Review

Conservatee may file an initial petition for rehearing under Welf. & Inst. Code § 5364 to challenge his or her status as conservatee at any time, but must wait six months before filing a subsequent petition for rehearing concerning his or her status as conservatee. Conservatorship of Amanda B. (2009) 173 Cal. App. 4th 1380, 1384, 93 Cal. Rptr. 3d 817

Anders/Wende procedures imposed by Supreme Court, which require an independent review of the record in certain criminal cases to determine whether there is any arguable appellate issue, are not required in appeals from LPS conservatorship proceedings because a conservatee is not a criminal defendant and the proceedings are civil in nature Conservatorship of Ben C. (2007) 40 Cal. 4th 529, 543, 53 Cal. Rptr. 3d 856, 150 P.3d 738

In petition for rehearing, conservatee made prima facie showing that he was no longer gravely disabled by establishing existence of monthly income and furnishing budget that would fit within income, establishing employment history, testifying that he would seek further employment to assist in meeting budgetary needs, and providing evidence that fiance would prepare meals and monitor medication. Conservatorship of Everette M. (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 1567, 1573-1574, 269 Cal. Rptr. 182

Temporary conservator's appointment and placement choice is challenged by same habeas corpus mechanism used for 14-day certification challenge. In re Lois M. (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 1036, 1039-1040, 263 Cal. Rptr. 100

Appellate court is required to review entire record for error when appointed appellate counsel files brief stating there are no arguable issues on appeal. Conservatorship of Besoyan (1986) 181 Cal. App. 3d 34, 36-38, 226 Cal. Rptr. 196

Gravely disabled indigent conservatee is entitled to free trial transcript in appeal from imposition of LPS conservatorship and confinement in county mental health facility. Waltz v. Zumwalt (1985) 167 Cal. App. 3d 835, 836-839, 213 Cal. Rptr. 529

Relief by habeas corpus was improperly granted by one county to relocate LPS conservatee to less restrictive facility when another county had continuing jurisdiction and had previously found that conservatee was "gravely disabled" and developmentally disabled and had ordered placement in locked facility. In re Gandolfo (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 889, 893-900, 206 Cal. Rptr. 149, 686 P.2d 669

State's appeal of jury verdict that person is not gravely disabled for purposes of LPS Act did not violate respondent's rights against double jeopardy. Conservatorship of Baber (1984) 153 Cal. App. 3d 542, 550, 200 Cal. Rptr. 262 ; Conservatorship of Davis (1981) 124 Cal. App. 3d 313, 330, 177 Cal. Rptr. 369

[e] Jury Instructions on Grave Disability

Criminal circumstantial evidence instruction was not required when civil instruction given and inferences from circumstantial evidence point only toexistence of certain mental state to be provided. Conservatorship of Law (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 1336, 1342, 249 Cal. Rptr. 415

Use of present tense in defining "grave disability" was sufficient to instruct jury on conservatee's present disabilities. Conservatorship of Law (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 1336, 1341-1342, 249 Cal. Rptr. 415

Proper instruction on grave disability eliminated need for special instructions on evidence of conservatee's ability and willingness to voluntarily accept treatment. Conservatorship of Law (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 1336, 1341, 249 Cal. Rptr. 415

"Not gravely disabled" presumption merely insured that state prove its case beyond reasonable doubt, so that trial court failure to instruct on presumption is not prejudicial once jury is properly instructed on standard of proof. Conservatorship of Law (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 1336, 1340, 249 Cal. Rptr. 415

Jury instructions, which admonished that LPS conservatorship may not be imposed only if person can provide for his or her needs and is willing to accept treatment, were erroneous. Conservatorship of Walker (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 1082, 1098-1099, 242 Cal. Rptr. 289

Court is required on request to instruct jury in language emphasizing that proposed conservatee is presumed not gravely disabled until state carries its burder of proof. Conservatorship of Walker (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 1082, 1091-1092, 242 Cal. Rptr. 289

In proceeding to reestablish conservatorship over proposed conservatee previously found to be gravely disabled as defined in former Welf. & Inst. Code § 5008(h)(1) (now see Welf. & Inst. Code § 5008(h)(1)(A)), trial court was not in error when it instructed jurors that if they found proposed conservatee capable of surviving safely in freedom by himself or with help of willing and responsible family members and friends, they should find he was not gravely disabled. Conservatorship of Baber (1984) 153 Cal. App. 3d 542, 552-553, 200 Cal. Rptr. 262

In proceeding to reestablish conservatorship over proposed conservatee previously found to be gravely disabled as defined in former Welf. & Inst. Code § 5008(h)(1) (now see Welf. & Inst. Code § 5008(h)(1)(A)), trial court erred when it failed to intruct jurors that they must find proposed conservatee both unwilling and incapable of making meaningful commitment to treatment before determining him to be gravely disabled. Conservatorship of Baber (1984) 153 Cal. App. 3d 542, 552-553, 200 Cal. Rptr. 262

In proceeding to establish conservatorship for person allegedly suffering from mental disorder and gravely disabled pursuant to former Welf. & Inst. Code § 5008(h)(1) (now see Welf. & Inst. Code § 5008(h)(1)(A), failure of court to admit evidence of and to instruct jury on availability of assistance of others to meet proposed conservatee's basic needs was prejudicial error requiring reversal. Conservatorship of Early (1983) 35 Cal. 3d 244, 248, 197 Cal. Rptr. 539, 673 P.2d 209

In conservatorship proceeding under Welf. & Inst. Code § 5350, jury instruction that "gravely disabled" means inability to provide for personal needs without assistance of others was erroneous; proper instruction must consider ability to provide for personal needs with any available help or encouragement, such as family assistance. Conservatorship of Wilson (1982) 137 Cal. App. 3d 132, 134-135, 186 Cal. Rptr. 748

[f] Standard and Burden of Proof

On proper state of evidence, party is entitled to request to have jurors informed of manner in which "reasonable doubt" standard must be established when evidence is circumstantial. Conservatorship of Walker (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 1082, 1097-1098, 242 Cal. Rptr. 289

Conservatorship is allowed to be established only if jury finds unanimously and beyond reasonable doubt that person is gravely disabled. Conservatorship of Early (1983) 35 Cal. 3d 244, 248, 197 Cal. Rptr. 539, 673 P.2d 209

Petitioner for rehearing pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code § 6364 has burdens of producing evidence and proving by preponderance of evidence that he or she is no longer gravely disabled. Baber v. Superior Court (1980) 113 Cal. App. 3d 955, 965-966, 170 Cal. Rptr. 353

[7] Temporary and Successor Conservatorship Proceedings

Appointment of conservator pending outcome of conservatorship trial is in substance a temporary conservatorship, which is well within authority of trial court. Conservatorship of Early (1983) 35 Cal. 3d 244, 255, 197 Cal. Rptr. 539, 673 P.2d 209

Successorship public conservator is permitted to reestablish LPS conservatorship without notice and hearing to conservatee concerning successor's appointment; notice and hearing requirements of Prob. Code §§ 2283 and 2684 are inapplicable to public conservators under Welf. & Inst. Code § 5350 et seq. Conservatorship of Cabanne (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 199, 204-205, 272 Cal. Rptr. 407

[8] Reestablishment of Conservatorship

Conservator is entitled to voluntarily dismiss petition to reestablish the conservatorship before trial commences. Conservatorship of Martha P. (2004) 117 Cal. App. 4th 857, 865-869, 12 Cal. Rptr. 3d 142

In reestablishment hearing, conservatee is permitted to waive presence of physician or other professional person who recommends that conservatorship be continued, as long as parties stipulate that person's recommendation and records concerning conservatee may be received in evidence [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 5365.1]. Conservatorship of Scharles (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 247, 254-255, 269 Cal. Rptr. 398

Reappointment of conservatorship is proper for gravely disabled conservatee who is unlikely to take medication on release because of lack of insight into illness. Conservatorship of Walker (1989) 206 Cal. App. 3d 1572, 1577, 254 Cal. Rptr. 552

Continued grave disability does not by itself satisfy evidentiary requirements for continuing special disabilities previously imposed on conservatee. Conservatorship of Walker (1989) 206 Cal. App. 3d 1572, 1578, 254 Cal. Rptr. 552

Gravely disabled person is not automatically precluded from making knowing and intelligent waiver of right to hearing on issue of reestablishing conservatorship; ability to make waiver as question of fact. Conservatorship of Moore (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 718, 732-733, 229 Cal. Rptr. 875

In proceeding to reestablish conservatorship, psychiatrist permitted to testify as expert witness on person's mental capacities and able to rely on hearsay, including statements made by patient or third party. Conservatorship of Torres (1986) 180 Cal. App. 3d 1159, 1163, 226 Cal. Rptr. 142

[9] Detention

Person committed to Department of Health following acquittal of criminal charge because of insanity is not permitted to be held in department's custody for period in excess of maximum term provided for underlying offense for which charged and acquitted; unless People or other committing authority establishes grounds for extended commitment; People, after expiration of maximum term, as extended, if further confinement and treatment are sought, must proceed in accordance with civil commitment provisions of Lanterman-Petris-Short Act. In re Moye (1978) 22 Cal. 3d 457, 460, 149 Cal. Rptr. 491, 584 P.2d 1097

Standard of proof on lawfulness of temporary detention is preponderance of evidence. In re Lois M. (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 1036, 1040-1042, 263 Cal. Rptr. 100

County has burden of proof on lawfulness of temporary detention. In re Lois M. (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 1036, 1039-1040, 263 Cal. Rptr. 100

Test for probable cause for warrantless arrest is applicable to detention pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code § 5150; probable cause for detention are facts known to peace officer that would lead person of ordinary care and prudence to believe, or to entertain strong suspicion, that person is mentally disordered and danger to self, or is gravely disabled. People v. Triplett (1983) 144 Cal. App. 3d 283, 287-288, 192 Cal. Rptr. 537

Police officer who responded to disturbance call and found defendant who appeared intoxicated, upset, and had bleeding cuts on wrists had probable cause to detain defendant pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code § 5150. People v. Triplett (1983) 144 Cal. App. 3d 283, 287-288, 192 Cal. Rptr. 537

[10] Involuntary Treatment

Welf. & Inst. Code § 5300 is constitutionally adequate for due process purposes because elements of present illness and potential danger are both provided for, and statute makes clear that past conduct is relevant only as prognosticator of probable future behavior. People v. Superior Court (Dodson) (1983) 148 Cal. App. 3d 990, 998, 196 Cal. Rptr. 431

[11] Jury Trial

Due process requires that physical restraints not be used on proposed conservatee during jury trial absent facts on record justifying trial court's decision to impose restraints, accompanied by cautionary instruction to jury. Conservatorship of Warrack (1992) 11 Cal. App. 4th 641, 647-648, 14 Cal. Rptr. 2d 99

Proposed conservatee is permitted to exercise six peremptory challenges available to civil parties, rather than 10 challenges available to criminal defendants. Conservatorship of Gordon (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 364, 368-370, 257 Cal. Rptr. 365

Attorney for proposed conservatee in LPS hearing may properly waive, by oral consent in open court, proposed conservatee's right to jury trial. Conservatorship of Mary K. (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 265, 271, 285 Cal. Rptr. 618 ; Conservatorship of Isaac O. (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 50, 55-56, 235 Cal. Rptr. 133 ; Conservatorship of Maldonado (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 144, 148, 218 Cal. Rptr. 796

Petitioner for rehearing pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code § 5364 has no right to jury trial under either LPS Act or Constitution. Baber v. Superior Court (1980) 113 Cal. App. 3d 955, 960-965, 170 Cal. Rptr. 353

[12] Medical Treatment and Antipsychotic Drugs

Given requirements of prison environment, state may, pursuant to administrative hearing procedure and without judicial hearing, treat prison inmate who has serious mental illness with antipsychotic medication against inmate's will if inmate is dangerous to himself or herself or others, and treatment is in inmate's medical interest. State of Washington v. Harper (1990) 494 U.S. 210, 110 S. Ct. 1028, 108 L. Ed. 2d 178, 201-207 .

In determining whether patient lacks capacity to consent to antipsychotic medication, court is not permitted to decide medical questions such as whether proposed treatment is actually necessary or is least drastic alternative available, but may consider such issues only as pertinent to assessing consent. People v. Thomas (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 1034, 1039-1040, 266 Cal. Rptr. 295 ; Riese v. St. Mary's Hospital & Medical Center (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 1303, 1320-1321, 271 Cal. Rptr. 199 ; but see Welf. & Inst. Code § 5332(b) (enacted in 1991, and requiring that antipsychotic medication be administered over patient's refusal in nonemergency situation only after staff determination that treatment alternatives to involuntary medication are unlikely to meet patient's needs and judicial determination of incapacity to refuse)

Absent judicial determination of patient's incompetence, medical and psychiatric personnel are not permitted to administer antipsychotic medication in nonemergency situations without patient's informed consent. Riese v. St. Mary's Hospital & Medical Center (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 1303, 1320, 271 Cal. Rptr. 199 (decided before 1991 enactment of Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 5325.2, 5332-5337).

Prisoners, like nonprisoners under LPS statutory scheme, are entitled to judicial determination of competency to refuse treatment before subjection to long-term involuntary antipsychotic medication. Keyhea v. Rushen (1986) 178 Cal. App. 3d 526, 542, 223 Cal. Rptr. 746 (decided before 1991 enactment of Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 5325.2, 5332-5337)

Mental patient has qualified right to refuse medical treatment. Keyhea v. Rushen (1986) 178 Cal. App. 3d 526, 534-536, 223 Cal. Rptr. 746 (decided before 1991 enactment of Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 5325.2, 5332-5337).

Procedures established by Department of Health to implement authorization of Welf. & Inst. Code § 6000(b) for admissions of minors to state hospitals denied minors 14 years of age and older due process. In re Roger S. (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 921, 935-938, 141 Cal. Rptr. 298, 569 P.2d 1286

Welf. & Inst. Code § 6000, authorizing voluntary commitment of minor by parent, guardian, or person entitled to minor's custody, did not authorize juvenile court to commit minor by ordering probation officer to have minor voluntarily commited to mental hospital. In re E. (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 183, 191, 123 Cal. Rptr. 103, 538 P.2d 231

Local court rule authorizing appointment of nonattorney adviser, rather than attorney, for minor hospitalized under LPS Act violated minor's due process rights. In re Antoine C. (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 424, 425, 427, 230 Cal. Rptr. 738

Commitment of minor ward of juvenile court to state hospital may be properly accomplished only in accordance with LPS Act. In re Vicki H. (1979) 99 Cal. App. 3d 484, 497, 160 Cal. Rptr. 294

Direct commitment of juvenile to mental hospital without consent of minor or parents and without invoking statutory procedures is in excess of powers of juvenile court. In re L. L. (1974) 39 Cal. App. 3d 205, 213, 217, 114 Cal. Rptr. 11

[14] Other Privileges in LPS Hearings

Welf. & Inst. Code § 5303 is not intended to import whole of criminal procedure into postcertification proceedings; subject of hearings did not have right not to be called as a witness and not to testify. Conservatorship of Bones (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 1010, 1015-1017, 234 Cal. Rptr. 724

[15] Privilege Against Self-Incrimination

In proceeding to reestablish conservatorship over proposed conservatee previously found to be gravely disabled as defined in former Welf. & Inst. Code § 5008(h)(1) (now see Welf. & Inst. Code § 5008(h)(1)(A)), trial court erred in refusing to allow public guardian to call proposed conservatee as witness; prospective conservatee was not permitted to refuse to testify at commitment hearing on ground that testimony would violate privilege against self-incrimination because conservatorship proceeding not analgous to criminal trial. Conservatorship of Baber (1984) 153 Cal. App. 3d 542, 550, 200 Cal. Rptr. 262

Proposed conservatee in LPS Act proceeding has no absolute right to warning of privilege against self-incrimination before psychiatric examination. Conservatorship of Mitchell (1981) 114 Cal. App. 3d 606, 612, 170 Cal. Rptr. 759

[16] Psychosurgery and Convulsive Treatments

Regulation of electroconvulsive treatment is a matter of state, not local, concern and city ordinance purporting to ban such treatment was properly enjoined for being unconstitutional and void. Northern Cal. Psychiatric Society v. City of Berkeley (1986) 178 Cal. App. 3d 90, 105-106, 223 Cal. Rptr. 609

Hearing under Welf. & Inst. Code § 5326.7(f) is limited to issue of whether patient has capacity to give informed consent to convulsive treatment; court's review of need for treatment was improper, but harmless error. Conservatorship of Fadley (1984) 159 Cal. App. 3d 440, 446, 205 Cal. Rptr. 572

Standard of proof in hearing under Welf. & Inst. Code § 5326.7(f), (g) to determine capacity of conservatee to give informed consent to convulsive treatments is clear and convincing evidence. Lillian F. v. Superior Court (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 314, 324, 206 Cal. Rptr. 603

Review committee procedure for convulsive treatment and psychosurgery did not violate constitutional rights of patient. Aden v. Younger (1976) 57 Cal. App. 3d 662, 683-684, 129 Cal. Rptr. 535

Patient's right to informed consent to procedures is protected by statutes governing psychosurgery and convulsive treatments; patient as having no right to be left uninformed. Aden v. Younger (1976) 57 Cal. App. 3d 662, 675, 129 Cal. Rptr. 535

Procedures for informed consent of mental patients to convulsive treatment and psychosurgery did not violate equal protection rights of mental patients. Aden v. Younger (1976) 57 Cal. App. 3d 662, 673-674, 129 Cal. Rptr. 535

B. Developmentally Disabled Persons

26-304 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 304.162

§ 304.162 Decisions

Person involuntarily committed to state institution for mentally retarded has constitutionally protected interests in conditions of reasonable care and safety, reasonably nonrestrictive confinement conditions, and training as may be required by these interests, under due process clause of U.S. Const., amend. XIV; decisions by appropriate professional are entitled to presumption of correctness in determining whether state has met its obligations. Youngberg v. Romeo (1982) 457 U.S. 307, 324-325, 102 S. Ct. 2452, 73 L. Ed. 2d 28

Lanterman Developmental Disabilities Services Act (Welf. & Inst. Code § 4500 et seq.) does not authorize sterilization of nonconsenting persons even when necessary to achieve goals of Act; present legislative scheme that absolutely precludes sterilization of incompetent developmentally disabled persons is impermissible deprivation of privacy and liberty interests protected by U.S. Const., amend. XIV, and Cal. Const., art. I, § 1. Conservatorship of Valerie N. (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 143, 160-161, 219 Cal. Rptr. 387, 707 P.2d 760

Department of Developmental Services is without authority under Lanterman Act (Welf. & Inst. Code § 4500 et seq.) to control manner in which regional centers provide services or their operations; department director's spending priorities directing cutbacks in services by category without regard to individual client's plan are therefore void. Association for Retarded Citizens v. Department of Developmental Services (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 384, 389-390, 211 Cal. Rptr. 758, 696 P.2d 150

Statutory scheme permitting placement of nonprotesting developmentally disabled adults in state hospitals without prior hearing violate equal protection and due process. In re Hop (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 82, 92-93, 171 Cal. Rptr. 721, 623 P.2d 282

Instruction that permits jury in commitment proceeding to take into account possible improvement by allegedly mentally retarded person if given future medication was properly refused because inquiry under Welf. & Inst. Code § 6507 is limited to person's present condition or status. Cramer v. Tyars (1979) 23 Cal. 3d 131, 142, 151 Cal. Rptr. 653, 588 P.2d 793

Statutory administrative fair hearing provisions of the Lanterman Act are the procedure available for conservator to object to regional center's community placement decision; parties are not authorized to bypass this procedure and insist on judicial hearing. Conservatorship of the Person & Estate of Whitley (2007) 155 Cal. App. 4th 1447, 1461, 66 Cal. Rptr. 3d 808

Although decision on appeal of commitment order that is rendered beyond one-year period is technically moot, decision may be made on merits when issues are important questions of law that could repeatedly evade appellate review if committed person is likely to be committed in the future. People v. Quinn (2001) 86 Cal. App. 4th 1290, 1293, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 915

Statutory rules for commitment of dangerous mentally retarded persons [Welf. & Inst. Code § 6500] contain no requirement of proof that dangerous condition be caused by mental retardation; absence of causational requirement is not violative of equal protection rights because statute furthers state's compelling interest to protect all dangerous retarded persons, not just those whose violence is caused by retardation. People v. Quinn (2001) 86 Cal. App. 4th 1290, 1293, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 915

Grounds for regional center's denial of client's request that she be provided specified in-home day-care services held insufficient and contrary to purposes and provisions of Lanterman Developmental Disabilities Services Act (Welf. & Inst. Code § 4500 et seq.) when center's only basis for denial was that its policy is not to provide such services. Williams v. Macomber (1990) 226 Cal. App. 3d 225, 232, 233-234, 276 Cal. Rptr. 267

Welf. & Inst. Code § 6500 is not unconstitutionally vague because it fails to define "dangerousness" for those alleged to come within its scope who are not both incompetent and charged with one of its specified crimes; insofar as "dangerousness" is not defined in Welf. & Inst. Code § 6500, it should be construed to mean potential for infliction of substantial harm on defendant himself or herself, or on others. People v. Alvas (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 1459, 1466-1467, 271 Cal. Rptr. 131

Exploration of specially designed reunification services is prerequisite to termination of parental rights of developmentally disabled person. In re Victoria M. (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 1317, 1329-1331, 255 Cal. Rptr. 498

Welf. & Inst. Code § 4514, requiring confidentiality of records of developmentally disabled persons, establishes absolute discovery privilege subject only to legislative exceptions listed in statute; denial of access to records under Welf. & Inst. Code § 4514 does not violate procedural due process. Gilbert v. Superior Court (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 161, 170-172, 174, 238 Cal. Rptr. 220

Expert testimony regarding mental retardation is necessary to support jury finding of mental retardation in commitment proceeding under Welf. & Inst. Code § 6500. In re Krall (1984) 151 Cal. App. 3d 792, 797, 199 Cal. Rptr. 91

Definition of mental retardation for purposes of commitment under Welf. & Inst. Code § 6500. In re Krall (1984) 151 Cal. App. 3d 792, 797, 199 Cal. Rptr. 91

Welf. & Inst. Code § 6500, providing for civil commitment of mentally retarded persons who are dangerous to themselves or others, is not unconstitutionally vague for failing to define mental retardation, because the term has generally accepted technical meaning and commitment hearings under statute afford full procedural safeguards against errors in fact-finding. Money v. Krall (1982) 128 Cal. App. 3d 378, 397-399, 180 Cal. Rptr. 376

Developmentally disabled person is not entitled to credit for time detained pursuant to ex parte hold order between expiration of commitment and recommitment hearing. Cramer v. Gillermina R. (1981) 125 Cal. App. 3d 380, 394, 178 Cal. Rptr. 69

Separate statutory schemes for treatment of mentally ill (Welf. & Inst. Code § 5150 et seq.) and developmentally disabled persons (Welf. & Inst. Code § 6500 et seq.) is not unconstitutional on equal protection grounds because mentally ill persons are not similarly situated with developmentally disabled persons and because state has substantial interest in treating them differently. Cramer v. Gillermina R. (1981) 125 Cal. App. 3d 380, 387-388, 178 Cal. Rptr. 69

Detention of developmentally disabled persons, without adversarial probable cause hearing, during interim between automatic expiration of commitment order and recommitment hearing is constitutional. Cramer v. Gillermina R. (1981) 125 Cal. App. 3d 380, 392, 178 Cal. Rptr. 69

Regional center has standing to petition for writ of habeas corpus to enforce recommendation of community placement for developmentally disabled adult who was voluntarily admitted to state hospital before 1977; burden of proof is on opponents of recommendation; but, if disabled adult proven competent to choose residence, choice is to be respected even if more restrictive than recommended by center. In re Borgogna (1981) 121 Cal. App. 3d 937, 940-949, 175 Cal. Rptr. 588

Miranda principles are inapplicable to proceedings under former Welf. & Inst. Code § 6500.1, but trial court is required, on appropriate motion, to hold hearing regarding voluntariness of statements made to police by allegedly mentally retarded person. Cramer v. Shay (1979) 94 Cal. App. 3d 242, 245, 247, 156 Cal. Rptr. 303

Due process requires right to jury trial in commitment or recommitment proceedings of allegedly mentally retarded persons pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code § 6500 et seq. O'Brien v. Superior Court (1976) 61 Cal. App. 3d 62, 69, 132 Cal. Rptr. 13

No right to jury trial required by due process or statute on writ of habeas corpus testing the commitment of a mentally retarded person pursuant to former Health & Safety Code §§ 38450 and 38451 (now see Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 4800, 4801). O'Brien v. Superior Court (1976) 61 Cal. App. 3d 62, 72, 132 Cal. Rptr. 13

Proof by preponderance of the evidence rather than beyond a reasonable doubt is required in proceedings on writ of habeas corpus of mentally retarded person seeking release from commitment. O'Brien v. Superior Court (1976) 61 Cal. App. 3d 62, 72, 132 Cal. Rptr. 13

§ 304.182 Decisions

[1] Actions by Mental Patients

[a] Assault and Battery

Force used to accomplish unlawful detention of person as mental patient results in liability for assault and battery; but use of force in treatment does not constitute assault and battery in all circumstances, even when confinement was unlawful. Maben v. Rankin (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 139, 144, 10 Cal. Rptr. 353, 358 P.2d 681

[b] False Imprisonment

Involuntary hospitalization of a person in mental hospital in violation of statute constitutes false imprisonment. Maben v. Rankin (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 139, 144, 10 Cal. Rptr. 353, 358 P.2d 681

Doctor who reports to another doctor but who does not participate in detention of a person is not liable for false imprisonment in absence of bad faith or taking active part in detention. Fish v. Regents of the Univ. of Cal. (1966) 246 Cal. App. 2d 327, 331-332, 54 Cal. Rptr. 656

Sheriff liable for false imprisonment to person detained in invalid sanity hearing due to failure of sheriff to serve petition as required by statute. Culbertson v. Santa Clara County (1968) 261 Cal. App. 2d 274, 275, 67 Cal. Rptr. 752

Failure to satisfy a specific statutory requirement of the detention renders it wrongful for purposes of false imprisonment action. Culbertson v. Santa Clara County (1968) 261 Cal. App. 2d 274, 275-276, 67 Cal. Rptr. 752

Probable cause to confine for mental disorder is not confined to acts committed in the presence of the officers. Whaley v. Jansen (1962) 208 Cal. App. 2d 222, 229, 25 Cal. Rptr. 184

Probable cause to detain person as mentally disordered may be shown from fact that doctors later found person to be mentally disordered. Whaley v. Kirby (1962) 208 Cal. App. 2d 232, 238, 25 Cal. Rptr. 50

Release of person from commitment on a writ of habeas corpus is immaterial to lack of probable cause for commitment of person in an action for false imprisonment. Whaley v. Kirby (1962) 208 Cal. App. 2d 232, 238, 25 Cal. Rptr. 50

Personal and family psychiatric history of a plaintiff who sues for unlawful commitment is not remote to the subject matter of the suit. Regents of University of Cal. v. Superior Court of San Francisco (1962) 200 Cal. App. 2d 787, 788, 19 Cal. Rptr. 568

Testimony of doctor that a person is insane does not make the doctor liable for false imprisonment. Baer v. Smith (1945) 68 Cal. App. 2d 716, 721, 157 P.2d 646

[c] Invastion of Privacy

Failure to allege lack of probable cause to file petition seeking evaluation of person as mentally ill prevents liability for invasion of privacy. Schwartz v. Thiele (1966) 242 Cal. App. 2d 799, 804, 51 Cal. Rptr. 767

[d] Malicious Prosecution

Dismissal of petition alleging that a person is mentally disordered is favorable termination of a prosecution for purposes of malicious prosecution action. Sutherland v. Palme (1949) 93 Cal. App. 2d 307, 313, 208 P.2d 1035

Person who wrongfully initiates civil commitment proceedings against another is liable for harm to reputation caused by the proceedings. Brock v. Southern Pac. Co. (1948) 86 Cal. App. 2d 182, 185, 195 P.2d 66

[e] Negligence

When facts of case support a theory of liability based on a duty to protect plaintiff from his or her own actions, plaintiff may properly rely on res ipsa loquitur. Meier v. Ross Gen. Hosp. (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 420, 427, 71 Cal. Rptr. 903, 445 P.2d 519

Those charged with care of patient who know of facts from which they could reasonably conclude that the patient would be likely to harm himself or herself or others in the absence of preclusive measures are required to use reasonable care under the circumstances to prevent such harm. Meier v. Ross Gen. Hosp. (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 420, 424, 71 Cal. Rptr. 903, 445 P.2d 519

Duty of hospital where mentally ill patient is confined is to exercise such reasonable care toward the patient as the patient's mental and physical condition, if known, requires. Vistica v. Presbyterian Hospital (1967) 67 Cal. 2d 465, 469, 62 Cal. Rptr. 577, 432 P.2d 193

Even though decedent was clearly acting erratically, paramedics were under no affirmative duty to prevent decedent, who was voluntary passenger, from escaping ambulance on arrival at hospital and were not liable for failing to protect her from her own suicidal, reckless, or irrational conduct when she was subsequently hit by car. Hernandez v. KWPH Enters. (2004) 116 Cal. App. 4th 170, 181, 10 Cal. Rptr. 3d 137

Question of contributory negligence of a mental patient is a question of fact, unless the evidence discloses that plaintiff was completely devoid of reason, as a matter of law. DeMartini v. Alexander Sanitarium, Inc. (1961) 192 Cal. App.

2d 442, 447, 13 Cal. Rptr. 564

[2] Constitutional Protections

[a] In General

Inherently speculative nature of psychiatric predictions. People v. Burnick (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 306, 328, 121 Cal. Rptr. 488, 535 P.2d 352

Confinement to a state hospital results in a real deprivation of liberty. People v. Burnick (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 306, 319, 121 Cal. Rptr. 488, 535 P.2d 352

Social stigma results from commitment for mental illness. People v. Burnick (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 306, 321, 121 Cal. Rptr. 488, 535 P.2d 352

In common with all those confined against their will for treatment of mental illness, person committed under mentally disordered sex offender statutes suffer massive curtailment of liberty. People v. Burnick (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 306, 319, 121 Cal. Rptr. 488, 535 P.2d 352

[b] Procedural Safeguards

Due process demands that the length of commitments to state hospitals must bear some reasonable relationship to the purpose which originally justified commitment. In re Davis (1973) 8 Cal. 3d 798, 805, 106 Cal. Rptr. 178, 505 P.2d 1018 , cert. denied sub. nom. Palma v. California (1973) 414 U.S. 870, 94 S. Ct. 87, 38 L. Ed. 2d 88

Use of inappropriate printed forms in commitment proceedings condemned. In re Lopez (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 147, 148 n. 1, 89 Cal. Rptr. 614, 474 P.2d 430 ; In re Raner (1963) 59 Cal. 2d 635, 637 n. 1, 30 Cal. Rptr. 814, 381 P.2d 638

Procedures to safeguard patient rights in certification for intensive treatment. Thorn v. Superior Court (1970) 1 Cal. 3d 666, 675-676, 83 Cal. Rptr. 600, 464 P.2d 56

When commitment proceedings are purely statutory in origin and not based on common law, requirements of the statute must be followed to give the court jurisdiction of the proceedings. In re Raner (1963) 59 Cal. 2d 635, 639, 30 Cal. Rptr. 814, 381 P.2d 638

Sterilization of the mentally retarded or disordered after commitment to a state mental hospital. Guardianship of Kemp (1974) 43 Cal. App. 3d 758, 763, 118 Cal. Rptr. 64

Person being taken to state mental hospital is in custody within the meaning of Miranda rule. People v. Layton (1972) 29 Cal. App. 3d 349, 354, 105 Cal. Rptr. 509

Burden of proving that criminal defendant is not guilty by reason of insanity is on defendant, whereas burden of providing insanity in civil commitment proceeding as on state. People v. Redmond (1971) 16 Cal. App. 3d 931, 939-940, 94 Cal. Rptr. 543

Authority of the court in civil commitment proceedings is purely statutory. In re Hofmann (1955) 131 Cal. App. 2d 758, 761, 281 P.2d 96

[c] Right to Treatment

Mental illness alone without finding of harmfulness is not capable of justifying a state in locking person up against his or her will in custodial confinement without treatment. O'Connor v. Donaldson (1975) 422 U.S. 563, 576, 95 S. Ct. 2486, 45 L. Ed. 2d 396

States have general duty as parens patriae to care for insane persons. Higgins v. United States (9th Cir. 1953) 205 F.2d 650, 653

Insane persons is always subject to the control of the state for their own protection and for the protection of others. Dribin v. Superior Court (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 345, 352, 231 P.2d 809

[3] Governmental Immunity and Liability

[a] Immunities

Decision of public employee psychotherapist whether to warn the intended victim of the therapist's patient is not kind of discretionary decision for which immunity from liability is granted by Gov. Code § 820.2. Tarasoff v. Regents of University of California (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 425, 444-445, 131 Cal. Rptr. 14, 551 P.2d 334 (decided prior to 1985 enactment of Civ. Code § 43.92, which establishes limitations on psychotherapist's liability for failure to warn)

Scope of immunity granted by Gov. Code § 856. Tarasoff v. Regents of University of California (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 425, 448, 131 Cal. Rptr. 14, 551 P.2d 334 (decided prior to 1985 enactment of Civ. Code § 43.92, which establishes limitations on psychotherapist's liability for failure to warn)

Liability may only be imposed against public entity under Gov. Code § 855 for violation of statute or regulation promulgated by one of four state departments specified by statute; regardless of whether liability is predicated on statute or regulation, relevant statute or regulation must prescribe specific minimum standard and provisions providing only general guidelines, such as requiring "sufficient" personnel or like, cannot be basis for imposing liability. Lockhart v. County of Los Angeles (2007) 155 Cal. App. 4th 289, 305-309, 66 Cal. Rptr. 3d 62

Pen. Code § 1618 provides absolute immunity to state agencies and staff of Forensic Conditional Release Program for injuries caused by released mentally disordered offenders. Ley v. State of Cal. (2004) 114 Cal. App. 4th 1297, 1303-1305, 8 Cal. Rptr. 3d 642

Hospital's compliance with minimum legal standards for equipment, personnel, or facilities, for purposes of applicability of immunity exception under Gov. Code § 855(a), was issue of fact not resolvable on motion for nonsuit. Baber v. Napa State Hospital (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 213, 220, 257 Cal. Rptr. 55 (action for negligence against hospital based on hospital's failure to protect plaintiff from violent patients)

Person detained on 72-hour hold under Welf. & Inst. Code § 5150 is confined within meaning of Gov. Code § 856.2; immunity of Gov. Code § 856.2 applies to public entity confining person who escapes and sustains injury while on 72-hour hold. Los Angeles County-U.S.C. Medical Center v. Superior Court (1984) 155 Cal. App. 3d 454, 460-463, 202 Cal. Rptr. 222

Gov. Code § 854.8 is not a denial of equal protection of the laws or due process of laws to person in mental institutions. Los Angeles County v. Superior Court (1965) 62 Cal. 2d 839, 846, 44 Cal. Rptr. 796, 402 P.2d 868 ; Goff v. County of Los Angeles (1967) 254 Cal. App. 2d 45, 51, 61 Cal. Rptr. 840

Tort Claims Act provisions protect a patient under confinement from medical malpractice and mistreatment but not protecting the patient or the public from injuries following unwarranted release from confinement. Hernandez v. State of California (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 895, 899, 90 Cal. Rptr. 205

Gov. Code § 855.6 provides immunity when faulty diagnosis results in a mentally defective person not being placed in custody. Kravitz v. California (1970) 8 Cal. App. 3d 301, 306-307, 87 Cal. Rptr. 352

Gov. Code § 855.8 immunizes public employee from liability in malicious prosecution case involving commitment proceeding. Fish v. Regents of the Univ. of Cal. (1966) 246 Cal. App. 2d 327, 331, 54 Cal. Rptr. 656

[b] Statutory Liabilities

Patient confined in state-operated mental hospital without his informed consent and without involuntary placement procedure mandated by state (Florida) law stated claim for violation of procedural due process rights against hospital staff under 42 U.S.C.S. § 1983; liability of state hospital staff under 42 U.S.C.S. § 1983 was unaffected by possible availability of postdeprivation damage remedies. Zinermon v. Burch (1990) 494 U.S. 113, 110 S. Ct. 975, 108 L. Ed. 2d. 100, 121-122

Tort Claims Act provisions was intended to provide immunity for diagnosing, treating, confining, and releasing the mentally ill, but to make clear that public entities and employees are liable for injuries caused by negligence or wrongful acts or omissions. Los Angeles County v. Superior Court (1965) 62 Cal. 2d 839, 843-844, 44 Cal. Rptr. 796

[c] Statutory Immunity for Acts of Persons Detained

Police officers who released person were not liable for harm to a third person because of the immunity provided by Welf. & Inst. Code § 5154. Tarasoff v. Regents ofUniversity of California (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 425, 450, 131 Cal. Rptr. 14, 551 P.2d 334

Gov. Code § 856.2 immunized governmental entity for acts of escaped mental patient. Buenavista v. City and County of San Francisco (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 1168, 1173-1174, 255 Cal. Rptr. 329

Scope of immunity granted by Welf. & Inst. Code § 5154. Lowe v. County of San Diego (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 515, 527-530, 228 Cal. Rptr. 139

[4] Harm Caused by Mentally Disordered Persons

[a] Actions Against Mentally Disordered Persons

Defense of assumption of risk is available to incompetent defendant in action by caregiver for injuries caused by defendant, when caregiver has consented to care for mentally ill patients who are known to be occasionally violent and combative. Herrle v. Estate of Marshall (1996) 45 Cal. App. 4th 1761, 1765-1768, 53 Cal. Rptr. 2d 713

[b] Actions Against Relatives

Nonliability of relatives caring for mentally disordered person for acts of the person when a petition for commitment of the person would not have been granted. Alva v. Cook (1975) 49 Cal. App. 3d 899, 906, 909, 123 Cal. Rptr. 166

Fact that patient had on several occasions displayed inappropriate and offensive sexual behavior was insufficient to put psychotherapist on notice, for purposes of defeating statutory immunity under Civ. Code § 43.92, that patient presented serious threat of physical violence. Barry v. Turek (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 1241, 1246, 267 Cal. Rptr. 553

Determination of whether person attacked by patient was "reasonably identifiable victim" for purposes of Civ. Code § 43.92, limiting therapist's liability,involves consideration of patient's access to victim and patient's prior conduct toward persons similarly situated to victim. Barry v. Turek (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 1241, 1245, 267 Cal. Rptr. 553

[c] Actions Against Therapists

Three-year period of limitation under Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5 for professional negligence applies when psychotherapist fails to warn third party of danger posed by patient. Hedlund v. Superior Court (1983) 34 Cal. 3d 695, 700-703, 194 Cal. Rptr. 805, 669 P.2d 41 (decided prior to the 1985 enactment of Civ. Code § 43.92)

Emotional distress of small child when mother was shot was foreseeable as matter of law when therapist negligently failed to warn child's mother that patient threatened her. Hedlund v. Superior Court (1983) 34 Cal. 3d 695, 705-706, 194 Cal. Rptr. 805, 669 P.2d 41 (decided prior to the 1985 enactment of Civ. Code § 43.92)

When therapist determines, or pursuant to standards of the profession should determine, that patient presents a serious danger of violence to another, therapist incurs an obligation to use reasonable care to protect intended victim against the danger. Tarasoff v. Regents of University of California (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 425, 431, 131 Cal. Rptr. 14, 551 P.2d 334 (decided prior to 1985 enactment of Civ. Code § 43.92, which establishes limitations on psychotherapist's liability for failure to warn)

Therapist's duty to warn victim arises if information communicated by patient's family member leads therapist to believe or predict that patient poses serious risk of grave bodily injury to this individual. Ewing v. Goldstein (2004) 120 Cal. App. 4th 807, 817-820, 15 Cal. Rptr. 3d 864

Therapist has duty to warn if, and only if, threat therapist has learned actually leads therapist to believe patient poses risk of grave bodily injury to another person, Ewing v. Goldstein (2004) 120 Cal. App. 4th 807, 821, 15 Cal. Rptr. 3d 864

Action by person patient injures based on psychiatrist's failure to comply with duties imposed under involuntary commitment procedures of LPS Act is not barred by Civ. Code § 43.92 or Tarasoff (Tarasoff v. Regents of Univ. of Cal. (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 425, 131 Cal. Rptr. 14, 551 P.2d 334). Bragg v. Valdez (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 421, 433-435, 3 Cal. Rptr. 3d 804

Immunity afforded by Welf. & Inst. Code § 5154 applies in case in which psychiatrist fails to warn individual of patient's specific threats of harm against that individual, and patient harms individual, as long as psychiatrist authorized release of patient in accordance with required statutory findings--that is, that patient no longer posed threat to self or others. Michael E.L. v. County of San Diego (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 515, 523-524, 527, 530, 228 Cal. Rptr. 139

Fact that patient had on several occasions displayed inappropriate and offensive sexual behavior was insufficient to put psychotherapist on notice, for purposes of defeating statutory immunity under Civ. Code § 43.92, that patient presented serious threat of physical violence. Barry v. Turek (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 1241, 1246, 267 Cal. Rptr. 553

Determination of whether person attacked by patient was "reasonably identifiable victim" for purposes of Civ. Code § 43.92, limiting therapist's liability,involved consideration of patient's access to victim and patient's prior conduct toward persons similarly situated to victim. Barry v. Turek (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 1241, 1245, 267 Cal. Rptr. 553

Psychiatrist immune from liability under Welf. & Inst. Code § 5154 for release of patient at or before end of 72-hour treatment and evaluation. Lowe v. County of San Diego (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 515, 527-530, 228 Cal. Rptr. 139

Public entity immune from liability for injuries caused by patient of mental institution. Guess v. California (1979) 96 Cal. App. 3d 111, 120, 157 Cal. Rptr. 618

Psychiatrist not required to disclose risk of self-inflicted harm or risk of property damage. Bellah v. Greenson (1978) 81 Cal. App. 3d 614, 622, 146 Cal. Rptr. 535

26-304 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 304.221

§ 304.221 Detention for 72 Hours for Treatment or Evaluation

1. Detention of mentally disordered person [Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 5150-5157]

a. STANDARD: On probable cause to believe that a person is, as a result of mental disorder, a danger to others, or to himself or herself, or gravely disabled [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5150].

b. PROCEDURE: Application in writing stating the circumstances under which the person's condition was called to the attention of the person taking custody and stating the existence of probable cause [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5150].

c. BY: Peace officer, member of the attending staff of an evaluation facility, or other professional person designated by the county [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5150].

d. TIME: 72 hours, including Saturdays, Sundays, and holidays unless the Director of Mental Health has certified that evaluation and treatment services cannot reasonably be made available at the facility in question on those days [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5151].

NOTE:
When a person is detained pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code § 5150, the total period of detention, including both voluntary and involuntary periods, may not exceed the total maximum period during which the person could have been detained involuntarily from the time of admission to the facility, unless the person agrees to remain voluntarily for a longer period [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5258].

e. CHALLENGED BY: Writ of habeas corpus. See § 304.223.

f. ACTIONS FOR DAMAGES: False imprisonment. See § 304.90 et seq. and Ch. 257, False Imprisonment .

NOTE:

When probable cause is based on a statement by a person other than a peace officer, member of the attending staff, or professional person, the person giving the statement is liable in a civil action for intentionally giving a statement he or she knows to be false [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5150].

g. DISPOSITION:

(1) Provision of evaluation, crisis intervention, or other inpatient or outpatient services on a voluntary basis [Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 5151, 5152].

STANDARD: In the judgment of the professional person, the person to be evaluated can be properly served without being detained [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5151].

(2) Release before 72 hours have elapsed [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5152].

(a) STANDARD: The psychiatrist directly responsible for the person's treatment believes, as the result of personal observations, that the person no longer requires evaluation or treatment [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5152(a)]. If both a psychiatrist and a psychologist have personally evaluated or examined the person and there is a collaborative treatment relationship between them, either may authorize the person's release, but only after they have consulted with each other. In the event of a clinical or professional disagreement about an early release, the 72-hour hold must be maintained unless the facility's medical director overrules the decision of the psychiatrist or psychologist who opposes the release. Both the psychiatrist and the psychologist must enter their findings, concerns, or objections into the person's medical record [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5152(a)].

(b) RESOLUTION OF DISPUTES RE RELEASE: If any other professional person, who is authorized to release the person, believes the person should be released before 72 hours have elapsed, and the psychiatrist directly responsible for the person objects, the matter shall be referred to the medical director for the final decision. However, if the medical director is not a psychiatrist, he or she must appoint a designee who is a psychiatrist. If the matter is referred, the person must be released before 72 hours have elapsed only if the psychiatrist making the final decision believes, as a result of his or her personal observations, that the person no longer requires evaluation or treatment [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5152(a)].

(3) Referral for further care and treatment on a voluntary basis [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5152(b)];

(4) Certification for 14-day intensive treatment [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5152(b)]; or

(5) Appointment of a conservator or temporary conservator [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5152(b)].

h. RIGHTS OF PERSON: To receive an evaluation as soon after admission as possible and to receive such treatment and care as his or her condition requires for the full period that he or she is held [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5152(a)]. To be given written and oral information about the probable effects and possible side effects of medications the person is receiving, by someone designated by the mental health facility [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5152(c)].

2. Detention of inebriate [Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 5170-5176].

a. STANDARD: On reasonable cause to believe that a person is a danger to others, or to himself or herself, or gravely disabled as a result of inebriation [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5170].

b. PROCEDURE: Application in writing stating the circumstances under which the person's condition was called to the attention of the person taking custody and stating that the person taking custody believes as a result of personal observations that the person is as above or has violated Penal Code § 647(f) [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5170.3].

c. BY: Peace officer, member of the attending staff of a facility, or other person designated by the county [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5170].

d. TIME: 72 hours, including Saturdays, Sundays, and holidays.

e. RELEASE OR CHALLENGE: See Paragraph A(1), above.

f. ACTIONS FOR DAMAGES: See Paragraph A(1), above.

g. RIGHTS OF PERSON: Except when physically impossible, no later than three hours after placement in the facility, the right to make at least two completed phone calls [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5170.5].

3. Court-ordered evaluation [Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 5200-5213].

a. STANDARD: Person alleged as a result of a mental disorder to be a danger to others, or to himself or herself, or to be gravely disabled [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5200].

b. PROCEDURE:

(1) Application by an individual for a petition alleging that there is a person as described above and requesting an evaluation of the person's condition [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5201].

(2) Prepetition screening [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5202] to determine whether there is probable cause to believe the allegations and whether the person will agree voluntarily to receive crisis intervention services or evaluation in his or her own home or in a facility [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5202]. The person or agency providing prepetition screening must conduct a reasonable investigation of the allegations and make a reasonable effort to personally interview the subject of the petition [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5202].

(3) Filing of the petition [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5202].
(a) STANDARD: There is probable cause and the person will not voluntarily receive services or evaluation [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5202].

(b) FORM: Petition [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5204]. Contents [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5204].

(c) BY: Person or agency designated by county to prepare petition.

(4) Order for evaluation [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5206].

(a) STANDARD: Person appears to the satisfaction of a judge of a superior court to be as a result of mental disorder a danger to others, to himself or herself, or gravely disabled and has refused or failed to accept evaluation voluntarily [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5206].

(b) PROCEDURE: Judge issues an order notifying the person to submit to evaluation at a time and place designated [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5206].

(c) FORM: Order for Evaluation [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5207].

(d) BY: Judge of the superior court [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5206].

(5) Personal service of the order and petition on the person to be evaluated and the professional person in charge of the facility or a designee [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5208].

(6) Notification of person who served the order that the person has failed to appear [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5208].
BY: Professional person in charge [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5208].

(7) Person taken into custody and placed in a facility for evaluation [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5206].
BY: Peace officer, counselor in mental health, or court-appointed official [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5206].

(8) Evaluation [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5206].

c. TIME: 72 hours maximum, excluding Saturdays, Sundays, and holidays if services not available on those days; evaluation to be as prompt as possible [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5206].

d. RIGHTS OF PERSON: To remain at home or other place of his or her own choosing prior to the evaluation; to be accompanied by one or more relatives, friends, an attorney, personal physician, or other professional or religious advisor to the place of evaluation; and, if the person requests, to have those persons present during the evaluation [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5206]. To be given written and oral information about the probable effects and possible side effects of medications the person is receiving during detention for evaluation, by someone designated by the mental health facility [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5213(b)].

e. RELEASE OR CHALLENGE: Habeas corpus see Paragraph C, below.

f. ACTIONS FOR DAMAGES: False imprisonment. see Part IV and Ch. 257, False Imprisonment.

Any person who seeks a petition for evaluation knowing that the person is not as alleged, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and may be held civilly liable for damages to the person for whom the petition is sought [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5203].

g. DISPOSITION:

(1) Released;

(2) Referred for care on a voluntary basis;

(3) Certified for intensive treatment; or

(4) Recommended for conservatorship [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5206].

4. Court-ordered evaluation of criminal defendant [Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 5225-5230].

a. STANDARD: Criminal defendant who appears, as a result of chronic alcoholism or the use of narcotics or restricted dangerous drugs, to be a danger to others, to himself or herself, or to be gravely disabled, brought before a judge [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5225].

b. PROCEDURE:

(1) Transfer to superior court, if necessary [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5225].

(2) Order for evaluation [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5225].
(a) FORM: Order for Evaluation [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5227].

(b) BY: Judge of superior court.

(3) Service of order for evaluation on the person to be evaluated and the professional person in charge of the facility [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5228].

(4) Dismissal or suspension of criminal proceedings [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5226.1].

c. TIME: No time specified for evaluation; subsequent detention for treatment for 72 hours from the time of evaluation or detention for evaluation, excluding Saturdays, Sundays, and holidays if treatment services are not available on those days [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5230].

d. RIGHTS OF PERSON: The criminal defendant must be advised of his or her right to immediately continue with the criminal proceeding. The judge must fully appraise the defendant of this option and of the consequences of the evaluation procedure. Right to legal counsel at the proceeding where the choice is made [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5226].

e. CHALLENGE BY: Writ of habeas corpus [see Paragraph C, below].

f. ACTION FOR DAMAGES: None due to judicial immunity.

g. DISPOSITION:

§ 304.222 Intensive Treatment for 14 Days [Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 5250-5259.3]

1. STANDARD: Person detained for 72 hours who has received an evaluation, where the professional staff has found that the person is, as a result of mental disorder or impairment by chronic alcoholism, a danger to others, or himself or herself, or gravely disabled; the person has not accepted voluntary treatment; and the facility is designated by the county to provide treatment, agrees to admit the person, and complies with certification hearing requirements [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5250].

2. PROCEDURE:

a. Signing of notice of certification.
FORM: Notice of Certification [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5252].

b. Delivery of notice of certification to person certified [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5253] and sending of a copy of the notice to the person's attorney or advocate [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5253].

c. Designation by the person of another person who is to be sent a copy of the certification notice [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5253].

d. Informing the person of the right to a certification review hearing and his or her rights at that hearing [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5254].

e. Advice and explanation of the right to judicial review by habeas corpus, explanation of the term, and the right to counsel [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5254.1] [see Paragraph C, below].

3. BY: Notice of certification must be signed by the professional person, or a designee, in charge of the agency or facility and a physician who participated in the evaluation, or, if a physician is not available, certain other professionals [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5251].

4. TIME: Not more than 14 days [Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 5250, 5257].

NOTE:

When a person is detained pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code § 5250, the total period of detention, including both voluntary and involuntary periods, may not exceed the total maximum period during which the person could have been detained involuntarily from the time of admission to the facility, unless the person agrees to remain voluntarily for a longer period [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5254.1].

5. RIGHTS OF PERSON: To be informed of the legal right to a certification review hearing and a judicial review by habeas corpus [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5252.1].

6. CERTIFICATION REVIEW HEARING:

a. Hearing required within four days of date on which person is certified for period of intensive treatment unless judicial review is requested or hearing is postponed by request of person or his or her attorney or advocate [Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 5254, 5256].

b. Certified person entitled to be present, to be assisted, present evidence, to question, and to make certain requests [see Welf.& Inst. Code § 5256.4(a)]. Mental health facility required to make reasonable attempts to notify family members or other person designated by patient of time and place of hearing [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 5256.4(c)].

c. All relevant evidence admitted and considered by hearing officer [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5256.4(b), (d)]. Resistance to involuntary commitment does not imply existence of mental disorder or evidence that person is dangerous or gravely disabled [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5256.4(e)].

d. Required release of certified person on finding of no probable cause that person is a danger to himself or herself or others, or is gravely disabled [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5256.5].

e. Detention for 14 days beyond end of initial 72-hour detention period if probable cause is found [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5256.6].

f. Notification to certified person, attorney or advocate, and director of facility where person receiving treatment of decision, statement of evidence relied on, and reasons for decision [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5236.7].

7. DISPOSITION:

a. Release [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5257(a)].

STANDARD: The psychiatrist directly responsible for the person's treatment believes, as a result of his or her personal observations, that the person certified no longer is, as a result of mental disorder or impairment by chronic alcoholism, a danger to others or to himself or herself, or gravely disabled; disputes regarding release are to be resolved using a procedure specified by statute [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 5257(a)]. If both a psychiatrist and a psychologist have personally evaluated or examined the person and there is a collaborative treatment relationship between them, either may authorize the person's release, but only after they have consulted with each other. In the event of a clinical or professional disagreement about an early release, the person may not be released unless the facility's medical director overrules the decision of the psychiatrist or psychologist who opposes the release. Both the psychiatrist and the psychologist must enter their findings, concerns, or objections into the person's medical record [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5257(a)].

b. Holding in the facility pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code § 5226.1 [see Paragraph A(4), above];

c. Patient remaining voluntarily [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5154];

d. Petition for appointment of conservator [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5257(b)(4); see Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 5350-5371];

e. Certification for further intensive treatment as suicidal person [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5257(b)(2) see Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 5260-5268];

f. Certification for additional 30 days of intensive treatment [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5257(b)(3); see Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 5270.10-5270.65]; or

g. Petition for postcertification of imminently dangerous person [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5257(b)(5); see Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 5300-5309].

8. RELEASE OR CHALLENGE: Habeas corpus [see Paragraph C, below].

9. ACTIONS FOR DAMAGES:

a. False imprisonment;

b. Civil rights action [see 42 U.S.C.S. §§ 1981-1983].

c. Any individual who is knowingly and willfully responsible for detaining a person for more than 14 days in violation of the provisions of Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 5250-5259.3 is liable to that person in civil damages [Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 5259.1];

§ 304.225 Additional Intensive Treatment for 30 Days [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5270.10 et. seq.]

1. STANDARD: On completion of 14-day period of intensive treatment (see Paragraph B, above), person may be certified for additional period of not more than 30 days of intensive treatment if professional staff of treating agency or facility finds that person remains gravely disabled as a result of mental disorder or impairment by chronic alcoholism and person remains unwilling or unable to accept treatment voluntarily [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5270.15].

2. PROCEDURE:

a. Second notice of certification must be signed by professional person in charge of treating facility and one of following [Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 5270.20, 5270.25; see Welf. & Inst. Code § 5252 (statutory form)]:

(1) Physician who must, if possible, be board-qualified psychiatrist and who participated in evaluation and finding that patient meets standard;

(2) Licensed psychologist who has doctoral degree in psychology and at least five years of postgraduate experience in diagnosis and treatment of emotional and mental disorders and who participated in evaluation and finding that patient meets standard;

(3) Another physician or psychologist, if professional person in charge of treating facility is the physician who performed the medical evaluation and finding, or a psychologist; or

(4) Social worker or registered nurse who participated in evaluation and finding if professional person in charge of treating facility is the physician who performed the medical evaluation and finding, or a psychologist, and another physician or psychologist is not available.

b. Copies of second notice of certification must be filed with court, personally delivered to person certified, and sent to person's attorney, district attorney, public defender, if any, and treating facility [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5270.30].

c. Person certified must be informed of his or her rights [see Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 5252, 5270.25; see also Paragraph 3, below].

d. Unless judicial review is requested [see Paragraph C, above], second certification review hearing must be held [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5270.15; see Welf. & Inst. Code § 5256; see also Paragraph B(6), above].

3. RIGHTS OF PERSON CERTIFIED:

a. Professional staff of treating agency or facility must monitor person's progress daily and analyze person's condition at intervals of no more than 10 days to determine whether person continues to meet criteria established for certification [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5270.15].

b. Professional person in charge of the treating facility, or a designee, may permit person to leave facility for short periods during period of intensive treatment [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5270.65].

c. Person must be asked to designate any individual who is to be sent copy of certification notice, either at time of certification or later if he or she is incapable of making the designation at that time [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5270.30].

d. Person is entitled to judicial review [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5270.15; see Paragraph C, above].

e. Person is entitled to certification review hearing unless judicial review is requested [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5270.15; see Paragraph B(6), above].

f. Person is entitled to attorney or advocate, who must visit him or her and provide assistance in preparing for hearing or to answer questions regarding commitment or to provide other assistance [Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 5252, 5270.25].

4. DISPOSITION:

a. Release before or at end of 30-day period if psychiatrist directly responsible for person's treatment believes, as a result of personal observations, that person no longer meets criteria for certification, or is either prepared to accept voluntary treatment on a referral basis or remain in treating facility voluntarily [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5270.35(a)]. If both a psychiatrist and a psychologist have personally evaluated or examined the person and there is a collaborative treatment relationship between them, either may authorize the person's release, but only after they have consulted with each other. In the event of a clinical or professional disagreement about an earlyrelease, the person may not be released unless the facility's medical director overrules the decision of the psychiatrist or psychologist who opposes the release. Both the psychiatrist and the psychologist must enter their findings, concerns, or objections into the person's medical record [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5270.35(a)].

NOTE:

If any other professional person who is authorized to release the person believes that the person should be released before 30 days have elapsed, and the psychiatrist directly responsible for the person's treatment objects, the matter must be referred to the medical director of the facility for the final decision. However, if the medical director is not a psychiatrist, he or she must appoint a designee who is a psychiatrist. If the matter is referred to a designee, the person may be released before 30 days only if the designee-psychiatrist believes, as a result of his or her personal observations, that the person no longer meets the criteria for certification or is prepared to accept voluntary treatment [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5270.35(a)].

b. Patient remains in treating facility voluntarily [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5270.35(b)(1)].

c. Further involuntary detention for one of following reasons [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5270.35(b)(2), (3)]:

(1) Person is subject of LPS conservatorship petition [see Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 5350-5371]; or

(2) Person is subject of petition for postcertification of imminently dangerous person [see Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 5300-5309; see also Paragraph F, below].

5. RELEASE OR CHALLENGE. Writ of habeas corpus [see Paragraph C, above].

6. ACTION FOR DAMAGES

a. False imprisonment.

b. Civil rights action [42 USC §§ 1981-1983].

c. Any individual who is knowingly and willfully responsible for detaining person for more than 30 days without basis for further detention is civilly liable to person detained [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5270.40].

d. Petition to the court by public officer on grounds that person is a danger to health and safety of others while on outpatient status [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5307].

e. Notice of hearing by clerk to person, county mental health director, and person's attorney [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5307].

f. Hearing within 15 days, and order of confinement, if judge determines that person is danger to health and safety of others or self [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5307].

g. Confinement of person pending hearing under Welf. & Inst. Code § 5306.6 or 5307, if county mental health director is of the opinion that the person will be a danger to self or to another while on outpatient status and that to delay hospitalization until hearing would pose demonstrated danger of harm to the person or to another [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5308].

4. RELEASE BEFORE EXPIRATION OF COMMITMENT PERIOD:

a. Person being treated may be released prior to expiration of commitment period if psychiatrist directly responsible for person's treatment believes, as a result of his or her personal observations, that person no longer constitutes demonstrated danger of substantial physical harm to others. Disputes concerning release are to be resolved using a statutory procedure [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5309].

b. Notice to public officer, to counsel of person, to court, and to county mental health director [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5309].

c. Unconditional release plan becomes effective within five judicial days of actual notice, unless a court hearing is requested [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5309].

d. If requested, hearing held within five judicial days of notice, and release will not take effect until approved by the court after the hearing [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5309].

TO THE SUPERIOR COURT OF THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA FOR THE [CITY AND] COUNTY OF _____:

Petitioner alleges:

1. _____ [Name of person certified for intensive treatment] is unlawfully restrained of his/her liberty [and imprisoned, detained, and confined] by _____ [name and official position of professional person or persons in charge of the facility providing intensive treatment, or description if name is not known], at _____ [name and address of hospital or other facility], _____ County, California.

2. [Petitioner is the _____ (specify relationship) of _____ (name), the person for whom this petition has been filed.]

3. _____ [Name] purports to restrain and keep custody of _____ [name] by authority of and pursuant to a notice of certification for _____ [specify, e.g., involuntary intensive treatment as described in Section _____ (5250, 5260, or 5270.10) of the Welfare and Institutions Code (allegedly) delivered to _____ (name) on or about _____ (date).]

4. The illegality of the detention of _____ [name] consists in the following: _____ [allege facts showing that the person detained does not come within the substantive statutory standard for the type of detention occurring, e.g., _____ (name) is not properly certified for involuntaryintensive treatment because he/she is neither a danger to others, nor to himself/herself, nor is he/she gravely disabled as required for certification by Section 5250 of the Welfare and Institutions Code or allege other procedural error, e.g., _____ (name) has been held for a period of time in excess of 14 days from the delivery of the notice of certification, without the delivery, as required by Section 5253 of the Welfare and Institutions Code, of an additional notice of certification for additional treatment or the commencement of any other proceedings whatsoever which would authorize this detention].

5. Petitioner is entitled pursuant to Section 5275 of the Welfare and Institutions Code to a hearing by writ of habeas corpus for his/her release because _____ [petitioner or _____ (name) acting in his/her behalf] made a request for release on or about _____ [date], to _____ [name], _____ [the person delivering the copy of the notice of certification to _____ (name of person detained) or a member of the treatment staff of the facility wherein _____ (name of person detained) is detained for intensive treatment]. At that time _____ [name of person detained or person requesting release] _____ [signed or marked with his/her mark] a form of request for release as provided by Section 5275 of the Welfare and Institutions Code.

6. _____ [No other or The following other] applications, petitions, or motions have been filed or made in regard to the detention alleged herein: _____ (list if applicable)].

WHEREFORE, petitioner prays:

1. That a writ of habeas corpus be granted, directed to _____ [name and title of custodian], commanding him/her to have the body of _____ [petitioner or name of person in whose behalf the writ is sought], together with the reasons for his/her detention [and the conditions or length of time or place thereof] before _____ [this court or Your Honor] at a specified time within two judicial days after this petition is filed;

2. That _____ [petitioner or name of person in whose behalf writ is sought] be _____ [specify precise relief desired, e.g., released from detention]; and

3. That the court grant such other and further relief as it deems proper.

[2] Use of Form

This form is a petition for writ of habeas corpus for use in a proceeding to obtain judicial review as a matter of right of the certification for involuntary intensive treatment of a person in a mental facility [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 5275 et seq.]. Judicial review by writ of habeas corpus under these provisions is available after a person detained by a notice of certification for involuntary treatment, or a person acting on his or her behalf, has made a request for release (1) to the person delivering the notice at the time of delivery or (2) to any member of the treatment facility staff at any time during the period of 14-day or 30-day intensive treatment pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 5250, 5260, 5270.10 [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5275; see Welf. & Inst. Code § 5308].

The allegations in this form are intended to comply with the requirements of both Welf. & Inst. Code § 4275 et seq. and Penal Code § 1473 et seq. The allegations can be adapted for use under other statutory provisions for habeas corpus relief in LPS proceedings [see, e.g., Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 5358.7 (habeas corpus for conservatee challenging placement or conditions of confinement), 7250 (habeas corpus for persons committed to state hospitals for mentally disordered); see also Penal Code § 1473 (general right of habeas corpus); see § 304.280.1]. However, habeas corpus relief is available to any person whose liberty is unreasonably restrained, whether or not that person comes within statutory provisions regarding habeas corpus [see Cal. Const., art. I, § 4 (writ of habeas corpus may not be suspended unless required by public safety in cases of rebellion or invasion); In re De La O (1963) 59 Cal. 2d 128, 142-143, 28 Cal. Rptr. 489, 378 P.2d 793] . For additional forms and further discussion of habeas corpus generally, see Ch. 292, Habeas Corpus .

By court rule, any petition for writ of habeas corpus that seeks the release from or modification of the conditions of custody of one who is confined under the process of any court in a state or local penal institution, hospital, narcotics treatment facility, or other institution must be on a form approved by the Judicial Council [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 56.5(a)]. Any such petition is exempt from the provisions of Rule 56 relating to form and content of a petition and requiring a petition to be accompanied by points and authorities [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 56.5(a)]. However, for good cause the court may permit the filing of a petition that does not comply with the provisions of this rule [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 56.5(b)]. If the petitioner is filing a habeas petition in pro per, however, he or she should add a declaration or cover letter stating why the Judicial Council form was notavailable or setting out any other facts that would convince the court to waive the form requirement.

A petition for a writ of habeas corpus that is not on the Judicial Council form must contain the information required on other petitions, motions, or applications with respect to the commitment [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 201]. See Form No. 1.1 for the Judicial Council form for a Petition for Writ of Habeas Corpus.

[3] Allegations

The petition alleges the following:

- That a person in a mental facility is unlawfully restrained of his/her liberty (Paragraph 1) [Penal Code § 1474];

- The name of the person unlawfully restrained (Paragraph 1) [Penal Code § 1474];

- The name or description of the officer by whom he/she is restrained (Paragraph 1) [Penal Code § 1474];

- The place of restraint (Paragraph 1) [Penal Code § 1474];

- The relationship of the person restrained to the petitioner, if appropriate (Paragraph 2);

- The cause or pretext of the restraint (Paragraph 3) [Penal Code § 1473; Welf. & Inst. Code § 5275];

- The illegality of the restraint and supporting facts (Paragraph 4) [Penal Code § 1474; Welf. & Inst. Code § 5276];

- That the person is entitled pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code § 5275 to a hearing by writ of habeas corpus (Paragraph 5) [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5275]; and

- What, if any, other applications, petitions, or motions have been filed or made with regard to the detention (Paragraph 6) [Penal Code § 1475].

[4] Verification; Signature

This petition must be verified [Penal Code §§ 1474(3), 1475], and the petition must be signed by the party for whose relief it is intended or by some person in his or her behalf [Penal Code § 1474].

[5] Endorsement

Any court or judge authorized to grant the writ, to whom a petition is presented, must endorse on the petition the hour and date of its presentation and the hour and date of the granting or denial of the writ [Penal Code § 1476].

[6] Jurisdiction and Venue

Judicial review must be in the superior court for the county in which the facility providing intensive treatment is located or in the county in which the 72-hour evaluation was conducted if the patient or a person acting in his or her behalf informs the professional staff of the evaluation facility in writing that judicial review will be sought. If the staff of the evaluation facility has been informed in writing that a judicial review will be sought, no patient may be transferred from the county providing evaluation services to a different county for intenstive treatment until the completion of the judicial review [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5276].

For the purpose of conducting hearings under the LPS Act, the court in and for the county where the petition is filed may be convened at any time and place within or outside the county, suitable to the mental and physical health of the patient, and may receive evidence both oral and written, and render decisions. The time and place for hearing, however, must not be different from the time and place for the trial of civil actions for that court, if any party to the proceeding, prior to the hearing, objects to the different time and place. Hearings conducted at a state hospital or mental health facility are deemed to be hearings held in a place for the trial of civil actions and in a regular courtroom of the court. However, any party to the proceeding may demand that the hearing be public, and that it be held in a place suitable for attendance of the public [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5118].

[7] Prayer and Relief Sought

The prayer should indicate the precise relief sought since a court which has issued the writ of habeas corpus is not limited either to discharging petitioner from or remanding petitioner to custody, but it may dispose of the petition as justice of the case may require [In re Crow (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 613, 619, 94 Cal. Rptr. 254, 483 P.2d 1206] . For a form for a petition for the writ of habeas corpus seeking modification of the terms and conditions of confinement or seeking enforcement of rights to which an inmate is entitled in confinement, see Ch. 292, Habeas Corpus .

[8] Time of Hearing

The court must either release the person or order an evidentiary hearing to be held within two judicial days after the petition is filed [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5276].

[9] Notice to Family Members

Reasonable attempts must be made by the mental health facility to notify family members or any other person designated by the patient of the time and place of the judicial review, unless the patient requests that this information not be provided. The patient must be advised by the treatingfacility that he or she has the right to request that this information not be provided [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5276].

[10] Right to Counsel

The person requesting release must be informed of the right to counsel by a member of the treatment staff and by the court. If the person chooses to be represented, the court must immediately appoint the public defender or other attorney to assist the person in preparation of a petition for the writ of habeas corpus and, if the person so elects, to represent the person in the proceedings. The person must, however, pay the cost of these legal services if he or she is able [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5276]. Additionally, the person delivering the copy of the notice of certification to the person certified must, at the time of delivery, inform the person certified of the legal right to judicial review by writ of habeas corpus and must inform the person of the right to counsel, including court-appointed counsel pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code § 5276 [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5254.1 (initial 14-day certification); Welf. & Inst. Code § 5270.25 (additional 30-day certification); but see Welf. & Inst. Code § 5262 (additional 14-day certification for imminently suicidal persons requires notice of right to habeas corpus, but does not mention notice of right to counsel)]. The notice of certification contains a recitation that the person has been informed of the right to counsel, including court-appointed counsel [see Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 5252, 5270.25 (form of notice)].

[11] Waiver of Presence of Physicians

The person requesting release on advice of counsel, may, waive the presence at the evidentiary hearing of the physician or other professional person who certified the petition under Welf. & Inst. Code § 5251 and of the physician providing intensive treatment. In the event of such a waiver, the physician or other professional person is not required to be present at the hearing if it is stipulated that the certification and records of the physicians concerning the mental condition and treatment of the person regarding release will be received in evidence [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5276.1].

[12] Preparation for Hearing

The behavior of the petitioner at the hearing on the writ is important to whether the petitioner is released or the confinement is continued. Counsel therefore should give consideration to the effect which medication or treatments such as convulsive treatments will have on petitioner if administered before the hearing. Although no statutory authority specifically authorizes the petitioner to seek a restraining order or temporary injunction controlling the administration of medication or treatments before the hearing on the writ of habeas corpus, there does not seem to be any reason why it would not be possible to obtain such an order pending the hearing, particularly if treatment or medication would interfere with petitioner's ability to consult with counsel [see Thorn v. Superior Court (1970) 1 Cal. 3d 666, 674-675, 83 Cal. Rptr. 600, 464 P.2d 56 ; In re Raner (1963) 59 Cal. 2d 635, 640, 30 Cal. Rptr. 814, 381 P.2d 638 ; but see Campbell v. People (1961) 190 Cal. App. 2d 253, 256, 12 Cal. Rptr. 60] . See generally Ch. 393, Injunctions , for discussion and forms.

[13] Statutory Grounds for Release

The person seeking judicial review must be released immediately if the court finds that (1) the person is not, as a result of mental disorder, or impairment by chronic alcoholism, a danger to others, or to himself or herself, or gravely disabled; (2) the person had not been advised of, or had accepted, voluntary treatment; or (3) the facility providing intensive treatment is not equipped and staffed to provide treatment or is not designated by the county to provide intensive treatment [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5276].

[14] Other Grounds for Release

If the proper statutory procedures are not strictly followed for commitment of a person to a mental hospital, the person committed may petition the court for a writ of habeas corpus [In re E. (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 183, 192-193, 123 Cal. Rptr. 103, 538 P.2d 231] . If commitment procedures are set up by statute and are in the nature of special civil proceedings unknown to the common law, jurisdiction to enter an order of commitment pursuant to the statutory scheme depends on strict compliance with each of the specific statutory prerequisites for maintenance of the commitment. Procedures for civil commitment of persons in mental hospitals are this type of special statutory procedure [In re Raner (1963) 59 Cal. 2d 635, 639-640, 30 Cal. Rptr. 814, 381 P.2d 638 (decided under procedures for commitment of narcotic addicts); In re Hofmann (1955) 131 Cal. App. 2d 758, 761-762, 281 P.2d 96] .

[15] Other Uses of Form

This form for a petition for writ of habeas corpus may also be used, with appropriate modifications, to challenge the validity of the judicial commitment of a person as a mentally disordered sex offender to a state hospital or other mental health facility.[In re Bevill (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 854, 858, 69 Cal. Rptr. 599, 442 P.2d 679] . The writ may be used to challenge a finding that a person is a mentally disordered sex offender if the finding was obtained without following the proper statutory court procedures[In re Baker (1970) 5 Cal App. 3d 55, 57-58, 84 Cal. Rptr. 814] . In addition, the writ is proper if the proceedings were based on an invalid criminal conviction[In re Bevill (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 854, 860, 69 Cal. Rptr. 599, 442 P.2d 679] or if the requirements of due process were not met in the commitment proceedings [In re Baker (1970) 5 Cal. App. 3d 55, 57-58, 84 Cal Rptr. 814 ; People v. Harvath (1967) 251 Cal. App. 2d 780, 783, 60 Cal. Rptr. 15] . It may also be used for judicial review of the confinement of a developmentally disabled (mentally retarded) adult [see § 3034.70 et seq.].

[16] Order to Show Cause

The superior court may in some cases follow the procedure of issuing in response to the petition for the writ an order to show cause why a writ of habeas corpus should not issue rather than issuing the writ itself. This procedure would most frequently, however, be followed by an appellate court and the order to show cause would usually be directed to the medical director of the hospital to inquire into the detention and confinement of a person in the hospital [see In re L. L. (1974) 39 Cal. App. 3d 205, 114 Cal. Rptr. 11 ; In re Cirino (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 1009, 1011, 105 Cal. Rptr. 194] . For a discussion of the procedure whereby an order to show cause rather than a writ of habeas corpus is issued, see Ch. 292, Habeas Corpus .

[2] Use of Form

This form is an illustration of the approved Judicial Council petition for writ of habeas corpus for use in LPS proceedings [Cal. Judicial Council Form MC-265]. The petition may be used in a proceeding to obtain judicial review of involuntary detention, treatment, placement, or conditions of detention, treatment, or placement under the Lanterman-Petris-Short Act [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5000 et seq.]. This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

The California Rules of Court state that except as otherwise provided (see below), petitions for habeas corpus must be submitted on California Judicial Council Form MC-275, the Judicial Council's general form for petitions of habeas corpus [Cal. Rules of Court, Rule 4.551(a); see Cal. Rules of Court, Rule 4.550(a) (rules applicable to "any other provision of law authorizing relief from unlawful confinement or unlawful conditions of confinement"); for discussion and illustration of form MC-275, see Ch. 292, Habeas Corpus, § 292.81]. However, the Judicial Council also has approved two additional forms for petitions for writ of habeas corpus for use in proceedings relating to mental health commitments, neither of which is specifically referenced in the Rules of Court:

- This form, Cal. Judicial Council Form MC-265, Petition for Writ of Habeas Corpus--LPS Act (Mental Health); and

- Cal. Judicial Council Form MC-270, Petition for Writ of Habeas Corpus--Penal Commitment

(Mental Health).

Both of the latter forms, as well as Form MC-275, are designated as optional [see Cal. Rules of Court, Rules 1.30(b), 1.35)]. However, any petition that is not on a Judicial Council form must contain all pertinent information specified in Form MC-275 [see Ch. 292, Habeas Corpus, § 292.81], including information required regarding other petitions, motions, or applications filed in any court with respect to the commitment [Cal. Rules of Court, Rule 4.551(a)(2)].

Habeas Corpus petitions under the Lanterman-Petris-Short Act are subject to the general processing and procedural rules governing habeas corpus petitions generally [Cal. Rules of Court, Rule 4.550(a) (rules applicable to "any other provision of law authorizing relief from unlawful confinement or unlawful conditions of confinement"); see Cal. Rules of Court, Rules 4.550-4.552 (procedural rules)]. For detailed discussion of these rules, see Ch. 292, Habeas Corpus .

[3] Allegations

This illustration is based on the failure to comply with statutory requirements for 180-day postcertification treatment under Welf. & Inst. Code § 5300 et seq. The petition alleges the following:

- The unlawful restraint of the liberty of the petitioner at a treatment facility by the named agency and treating psychiatrist (Paragraph 1) [Penal Code § 1474].

- The date the petitioner was admitted to the treatment facility and the current statutory basis for confining the petitioner (Paragraph 2) [Penal Code § 1473].

- The illegality of the restraint and the supporting facts (Paragraph 3) [Penal Code § 1474].

- The relief sought (Paragraph 4).

This form does not provide for a statement regarding other applications, petitions, or motions that have been filed or made with regard to the detention, as required by Penal Code § 1475 [see § 304.280]. However, petitioner may want to add this information in an attachment to the petition.

[4] Other Uses of Form

This petition for writ of habeas corpus may also be used, with appropriate modifications, to challenge other involuntary restraints in LPS proceedings, including detention by certification for involuntary intensive treatment or the confinement of a conservatee [Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 5275 et seq., 7250].

[2] Use of Form

This form is used to demand a court or jury trial on the issue as to whether the proposed conservatee is gravely disabled [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5350(d)].

[3] Time for Filing

The demand for a court or jury trial must be made within five days following the hearing on the conservatorship petition. If it is made before the hearing, it constitutes a waiver of the right to the hearing [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5350(d)].

[4] Time for Commencement of Trial

The court or jury trial must commence within 10 days of the date of the demand, except that the court must continue the trial date for a period not to exceed 15 days upon the request of counsel for the proposed conservatee [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5350(d)].

[5] Right Applies to Proceedings for Reappointment

The right to demand a court or jury trial also applies to proceedings for reestablishment of the conservatorship [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5350(d)].

[1] FORM Petition for Rehearing as to Status as Gravely Disabled Person Requiring Conservator [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5364]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

Conservatorship of the _____ [Person and Estate or Person or Estate] of _____ [name], Conservatee.	)))))	NO. _____ PETITION FOR REHEARING

Petitioner _____ [name], respectfully represents:

1. Petitioner was adjudged to be a gravely disabled person and _____ [name] was appointed the conservator of his/her _____ [person and estate or person or estate] by this court on _____ [date].

2. Petitioner is _____ years old and presently _____ [resides at _____ (address), California or is a patient at _____ (name and address of institution)].

3. Petitioner is no longer gravely disabled and is able to provide for his/her basic personal needs for food, clothing, and shelter. [Attached as Exhibit A and incorporated by reference is _____ (specify, e.g., a report of _____ (name), a duly licensed California physician and surgeon and specialist in psychiatry, to the effect that petitioner is no longer gravely disabled).]

4. Petitioner has not filed a petition for rehearing within six months of the date before the date of this petition.

[ADD, if petitioner seeks appointed counsel]

[5. Petitioner is not represented by, and cannot afford to pay for, counsel in this proceeding. (Previously appointed counsel assisted petitioner to prepare this petition and, at petitioner's request, is willing to represent petitioner in this proceeding if appointed by the court.)]

WHEREFORE, petitioner prays as follows:

1. That a rehearing be granted;

2. That the court find that petitioner is not gravely disabled;

[3. That _____ (name) be appointed as counsel for petitioner in this proceeding;]

4. That the conservatorship be terminated; and

5. For such other and further orders as the court may deem proper.

[Verification. See § 304.280.]

[2] Use of Form

This petition is for use by the conservatee to seek a rehearing on his or her status as a conservatee [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5364].

[3] Contents of Petition

After giving the date of appointment of the conservator and the conservatee's age and residence, the petition should contain facts showing that the conservatee is no longer gravely disabled [see Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 5350 (requirement that conservatee be gravely disabled), 5008(h) (definition of grave disability); see also discussions in §§ 304.111 and 304.144[6]]. Since a petition for rehearing cannot be filed more often than every six months, the petition should also state that the petitioner has not sought a rehearing within the six months prior to the date of the petition [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5364].

If the petitioner seeks the appointment of counsel, the petition should contain statements that the petitioner is unrepresented and indigent and the prayer should contain a request for appointment.

[4] Notice

Although there is no statutory notice requirement, notice of the petition should be given to the conservator. Notice of the time and place of the rehearing may now be required to be given by the county mental health program to family members or to any other other person designated by the proposed conservatee. Welf. & Inst. Code § 5350.2 requires this notice for a conservatorship hearing, subject to specific exceptions. It does not refer to rehearings, but its application to rehearings appears to follow by parallel reasoning. Nevertheless, no reported decision has so interpreted this section.

[5] Attorney and Time of Hearing

The hearing must be held within 30 days of the petition, and an attorney must be provided for the petitioner [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5365]. The petitioner may be represented by privately obtained pro bono counsel [see, e.g., Conservatorship of Scharles (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 1334, 1337, 285 Cal. Rptr. 325] . Plaintiff alleges:

1. Defendant _____ [name] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a resident of _____ County, California.

2. [Plaintiff is ignorant of the true names and capacities of defendants sued herein as DOES 1-_____ inclusive, and therefore sues these defendants by those fictitious names. Plaintiff will amend this complaint to allege their true names and capacities when ascertained. (Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that each of these fictitiously named defendants is negligently responsible in some manner for the occurrences herein alleged, and that plaintiff's injuries as herein alleged were proximately caused by that negligence.)]

3. [Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that] at all times herein mentioned each of the defendants was the agent and employee of each of the remaining defendants, and in doing the things hereinafter alleged, was acting within the scope of that agency.

4. At all times herein mentioned defendant was, and still is, a psychotherapist as defined in Section 1010 of the Evidence Code duly certified to practice as such in California.

5. At all times herein mentioned, defendant _____ [name] was _____ [employed or engaged] by _____ [name of patient] to provide psychotherapy to _____ [name] and did provide such psychotherapyand treatment for mental disorders and mental problems suffered by _____ [name].

6. On or about _____ [date], _____ [name of patient] did assault and batter plaintiff by _____ [specify manner of assault and battery, e.g., threatening to strike plaintiff and by violently striking plaintiff in and about the face].

[EITHER]

7. _____ [Name of patient] communicated to defendant, as his/her psychotherapist, a serious threat of physical violence against plaintiff, a reasonably identifiable victim.

[OR]

7. _____ [Name of member of patient's immediate family], a member of the immediate family of _____ [name of patient], communicated to defendant, as the psychotherapist of _____ [name of patient], a serious threat of physical violence posed by _____ [name of patient] against plaintiff, a reasonably identifiable victim, and _____ [name of member of patient's immediate family] communicated this serious threat in order to facilitate and further the treatment of _____ [name of patient].

8. At no time did defendant make reasonable efforts to communicate the threat of violence against plaintiff to him/her and to a law enforcement agency.

9. As a proximate result of the negligence of defendant[s, and each of them], plaintiff was hurt and injured in his/her health, strength, and activity, sustaining injury to his/her body and shock and injury to his/her nervous system and person, all of which injuries have caused, and continue to cause, plaintiff great mental, physical, and nervous pain and suffering. [Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that such injuries will result in some permanent disability to him/her.] As a result of such injuries, plaintiff has suffered general damages.

[EITHER]

10. As a further proximate result of defendant's negligence herein alleged, plaintiff has been required to expend money and incur obligations, for medical services, X rays, drugs, and sundries reasonably required in the treatment and relief of the injuries herein alleged, plaintiff has been damaged thereby.

[OR]

10. As a further proximate result of the negligence of defendant [s, and each of them], plaintiff has incurred, and will contin ue to incur, medical and related expenses. [The full amount of those expenses is not known to plaintiff at this time, and plaintiff will move to amend this complaint to state such amount when the same becomes known to him/her, or on proof thereof.]

11. As a further proximate result of the negligence of defendant [s, and each of them], plaintiff was prevented from attending to his/her usual occupation as a _____ [state occupation] for a period _____ [of _____ (specify) or to the date of the filing of this complaint] and thereby lost earnings.

12. As a proximate result of the negligence of defendant [s, and each of them], plaintiff's _____ [describe personal property] was _____ [describe damage, e.g., destroyed beyond repair, all to plaintiff's damage in the sum of $_____ or damaged]. [If property was not destroyed, add: Plaintiff has expended $_____ for repair of that _____ (describe personal property), which is a reasonable sum for the repair.]

13. [At all times herein mentioned, defendant _____ (specify public entity, e.g., County of _____), was a _____ (specify type of public entity), duly organized and existing under the laws of the State of California and situated in the County of _____).]

14. [On or about _____ (date), plaintiff presented to _____ (name of governmental entity employing defendant psychotherapist) by _____ (delivering or mailing) a claim to the _____ (clerk or secretary or auditor) for the injuries, disability, losses, and damages suffered and incurred by him/her by reason of the above-described occurrence, all in compliance with the requirement of Section 905 of the Government Code. A copy of the claim is attached as Exhibit A and incorporated by reference.]

15. [On or about _____ (date), _____ (name of governmental entity) _____ (rejected the claim in its entirety or allowed the claim in the amount of $_____ and rejected it as to the remainder or failed to act on the claim within the period of 45 days after its presentation, and the claim was thus deemed rejected, under the provisions of Section 912.4 of the Government Code, at the expiration of the 45-day period, to wit, on _____ (date).]

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment [against defendants, and each of them,] as follows:

1. For general damages to according to proof;

2. For medical and related expenses according to proof;

3. For loss of earnings according to proof;

4. For costs of suit herein incurred;

5. For damage to plaintiff's personal property [in the sum of $_____]; and

6. For such other and further relief as the court deems proper.

[Verification, if desired. See Form 1.]

[2] Use of Form

This complaint for damages is for use when a psychotherapist's patient has communicated to the psychotherapist a serious threat of physical violence against a reasonably indentifiable victim (plaintiff), the psychotherapist failed to make reasonable efforts to communicate the threat to plaintiff and to a law enforcement agency, and the patient subsequently harmed plaintiff [see Civ. Code § 43.92]. For further discussion, see § 304.93[2].

[3] Allegations

The complaint alleges the following:

- That defendant is a psychotherapist as defined in Evid. Code § 1010 (Paragraph 4).

- That defendant stood in the relationship of psychotherapist-patient with the person who harmed plaintiff (Paragraph 5).

- That the defendant's patient injured plaintiff (Paragraph 6).

- That the patient, or a member of the patient's immediate family, communicated to the defendant, as the patient's psychotherapist, a serious threat of physical violence against a reasonably identifiable victim, plaintiff (Paragraph 7) [Civ. Code § 43.92].

- That defendant did not make reasonable efforts to communicate the threat of violence to plaintiff and a law enforcement agency (Paragraph 8) [Civ. Code § 43.92].

[4] Verification

Although verification of this complaint is not required [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(a)], verification will require any answer to be verified in an unlimited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446]. Verification will also preclude the defendant from using a general denial in an unlimited civil case, and will preclude a general denial in a limited civil case if the action is a claim assigned to a third party for collection [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion, see Ch. 26, Answers .

If a public entity is named as a defendant, the complaint generally would not be verified since under Code Civ. Proc. § 446 a public entity need not verify its answer even though a complaint be verified. If a doctor or psychotherapist employed by a public entity is also a defendant, however, the complaint might be verified to require a verified answer from the individual defendant [see Code Civ. Proc. § 446].

[5] Jurisdiction

The superior court has jurisdiction of the action, which will be classified as an unlimited civil case unless the amount in controversy, exclusive ofinterest, is $25,000 or less, in which case it will be classified as a limited civil case [Cal. Const. art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(1)].

In limited civil cases, the caption must identify the case as a limited civil case and must state whether the demand exceeds or does not exceed $10,000 [Code Civ. Proc. § 422.30(b); Gov. Code § 70613(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(9), (10)].

[6] Venue

The county in which the cause or some part of the cause arose is the proper county for the trial of actions against a public officer or a person especially appointed to execute the duties of a public officer, for an act done by the officer or person in virtue of the office; or against a person who, by the officer's command or in the officer's aid, does anything touching the duties of the officer [Code Civ. Proc. § 393(b)].

An action against a county or city and county, city, or local agency may be tried in that county, or city and county, or in the county in which the city or local agency is located [see Code Civ. Proc. § 394].

[7] Specification of Damages

In an action to recover damages for personal injury or wrongful death, the complaint must not state the amount of actual or punitive damages demanded for this cause of action [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)]. However, the complaint still must specify whether it is a limited or an unlimited civil case [see Code Civ. Proc. § 422.30], and, if it is a limited civil case, the first paper must state whether or not the amount of the demand exceeds $10,000 [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b) (complaint must comply with Code Civ. Proc. § 422.30 and Gov. Code § 70613(b))].

Otherwise, the amounts claimed as damages for anything other than personal injury or wrongful death (for example, property damage) must be alleged [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)] or an equivalent statement must be included, for example, a statement that the damages for a particular loss or harm sustained [see Civ. Code §§ 3281, 3282] are not known and that leave will be sought to amend the complaint to state the exact amount when ascertained. If this is done, counsel must remember to seek leave to amend the complaint to so state before judgment.

No claim for punitive damages may state an amount sought regardless of the nature of the case [Civ. Code § 3295(e)].

For discussion of and forms for requesting and stating the amount of damagessought when they are not stated in the complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 425.11, 425.115], see Ch. 177, Damages , and Ch. 205, Defaults and Default Judgments .

[8] Statute of Limitations

The three-year statute of limitations under Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5 for professional negligence governs an action against a psychotherapist for injuries suffered as a result of the therapist's negligence in failing to warn a potential victim of a threat to the victim made by the therapist's patient [see Hedlund v. Superior Court (1983) 34 Cal. 3d 695, 700-705, 194 Cal. Rptr. 805, 669 P.2d 41 (decided prior to 1985 enactment of Civ. Code § 43.92)].

CAUTION:
A notice of intention to commence an action against a health care provider must be served 90 days prior to the commencement of this action [Code Civ. Proc. § 364(a)]. For form of such a notice, see Ch. 415, Physicians: Medical Malpractice .

[2] Use of Form

This complaint is for use in an action for wrongful death of a mental patient who committed suicide. The cause of action is based on the negligence of a psychiatrist who knew that the decedent was likely to attempt suicide and failed to take appropriate measures to prevent the suicide. When the death of a person is caused by the wrongful act or negligence of another, certain persons, or the decedent's personal representative on their behalf, may bring an action for damages against the person causing the death and any other person responsible (or against the personal representatives of those persons) [Code Civ. Proc. § 377.60].

The complaint alleges the following:

- The plaintiff's standing to bring the wrongful death action (Paragraph 1) [Code Civ. Proc. § 377.60]
- Existence of a psychiatrist-patient relationship (Paragraph 5)
- The therapist's knowledge that the decedent was likely to attempt suicide (Paragraph 6), the negligent failure of the psychiatrist to take preventive measures (Paragraph 6)
- Damages proximately resulting from such negligence (Paragraphs 8, 9).

These allegations constitute a cause of action for breach of a psychiatrist's duty of care [Bellah v. Greenson (1978) 81 Cal. App. 3d 614, 620, 146 Cal. Rptr. 535 (cause of action was barred by statute of limitations)].

This complaint is for use if the decedent was not hospitalized. For a complaint for use where the decedent was hospitalized, see Ch. 295, Hospitals .

Code Civ. Proc. § 377.60 permits decedent's surviving spouse, domestic partner children, and issue of deceased children to bring a wrongful death action without qualification, and permits others to bring an action under specified circumstances. For allegations establishing that specific classes of persons are entitled to bring a wrongful death action, including allegations that are required of plaintiffs who are not the decedent's surviving spouse, domestic partner children, or issue of deceased children, see Ch. 181, Death and Survival Actions .

For purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 377.60, a "domestic partner" is a person who, at the time of the decedent's death, was the domestic partner of the decedent in a registered domestic partnership established under Fam. Code § 297(b) [Code Civ. Proc. § 377.60(f)(1)]. For a death occurring before January 1, 2002, a person may maintain a wrongful death cause of action under Code Civ. Proc. § 377.60, as a domestic partner of thedecedent, by establishing the factors listed in Fam. Code § 297(b)(1)-(6), as it read under Stats. 2001, Ch. 893, § 3, before becoming inoperative on January 1, 2005 [Code Civ. Proc. § 377.60(f)(2)]. A mere cohabitant, who does not qualify as a domestic partner, lacks standing to sue for the wrongful death of his or her cohabitant [Holguin v. Flores (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 428, 434-443, 18 Cal. Rptr. 3d 749] .

If a plaintiff is a minor, a guardian ad litem must be appointed for the purposes of the action, unless the minor already has a guardian [see Code Civ. Proc. § 372]. For discussion and forms relating to appointment of a guardian ad litem generally, see Ch. 291, Guardians ad Litem .

In a wrongful death action, damages may be awarded that, under all the circumstances of the case, may be just, but may not include damages recoverable under Code Civ. Proc. § 377.34 (survival actions). The court must determine the respective rights in an award of the persons entitled to assert the cause of action [Code Civ. Proc. § 377.61]. An action under Code Civ. Proc § 377.30 (survival actions) may be joined with a wrongful death action arising out of the same wrongful act or neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 377.62(a)]. In addition, a wrongful death action and a survival action under Code Civ. Proc § 377.31 (survival of pending action) arising out of the same wrongful act or neglect may be consolidated for trial as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 1048 [Code Civ. Proc. § 377.62(b)].

[3] Statute of Limitations

This cause of action is based on negligence rather than on breach of contract and therefore the one-year statute of limitations [Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5] is applicable [Bellah v. Greenson (1978) 81 Cal. App. 3d 614, 622, 146 Cal. Rptr. 535] .

[2] Use of Form

This form is a petition for an order authorizing a particular course of health care and authorizing the petitioner or person designated by a petitioning medical facility to consent to the health care on behalf of an adult who does not have a conservator of the person and who is in need of health care. It is drafted on the assumption that it will be accompanied by a medical affidavit or declaration under penalty of perjury [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5].

[3] Contents of Petition

The petition must state, or set forth by medical affidavit or declaration under penalty of perjury [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5] attached to the petition, all of the following so far as is known to the petitioner at the time the petition is filed [Prob. Code § 3204]:

- The health condition of the patient (respondent) which requires treatment;
- The recommended course of health care which is considered to be medically appropriate;
- The threat to the patient's health if authorization for the recommended health care is delayed or denied by the court;
- The predictable or probable outcome of the recommended health care;
- The medically available alternatives, if any, to the recommended health care;
- The efforts made to obtain consent from the patient; and
- The name of the person to be designated to give consent to the recommended health care on behalf of the patient, if the petition is filed by a person on behalf of a medical facility.
- The deficit or deficits in the patient's mental functions listed in Prob. Code § 811(a) which are impaired, and identifying a link between the deficit or deficits and the patient's inability to respond knowingly and intelligently to queries about the recommended health care or inability to participate in a treatment decision about the recommended health care by means of a rational thought process.
- The names and addresses, so far as they are known to the petitioner, of the persons specified in Prob. Code § 1821(b).

Prob. Code § 1821(b) specifies the persons who are entitled to notice of a petition for the establishment of a conservatorship. They include the spouse or domestic partner [as defined by Prob. Code § 37; Family Code § 297 et seq.], and the relatives of the proposed conservatee within the second degree. If no spouse or domestic partner or relatives within the second degree are known to the petitioner, the persons entitled to notice are the spouse or domestic partner of a predeceased parent, the children of a predeceased spouse or domestic partner, the siblings of the parents,if any, but if none, then the natural and adoptive children of the parents' siblings, and the natural and adoptive children of the siblings [Prob. Code § 1821(b)].

[4] Existence of Capacity

Paragraph 5 of this form alleges that the respondent lacks capacity to consent to health care. It also specifies the deficit or deficits that the patient has in the mental functions listed in Prob. Code § 811(a) and identifies a correlation between the deficit or deficits and the patient's inability to consent to health care [see § 304.112[2]].

The grounds on which a finding of incapacity to consent to medical treatment may be based are specified in Prob. Code § 813. Under Prob. Code § 811, before the court actually issues a determination that a person lacks the capacity to make a health care decision, there must be evidence of a deficit in one or more specific mental functions that, by itself or in combination with other deficits, significantly impairs the persons's ability to understand and appreciate the consequences of his or her actions [see Prob. Code § 811 and discussion in § 304.112[2]]. Diagnosis of a mental or physical disorder, without evidence of a deficit in at least one of these mental functions, as well as evidence of a correlation between the deficit or deficits and the alleged incapacity is not sufficient to support a finding of incapacity [see Prob. Code § 810(c)]. Prob. Code § 3204(h) requires that the petition state the deficit or deficits in the patient's mental functions listed in Prob. Code § 811(a) which are impaired and identify a link between the deficit or deficits and the patient's inability to respond knowing and intelligently to queries about the recommended health care or inability to participate in a treatment decision about the recommended health care by means of a rational thought process. For additional discussion, see § 304.112[1].

Note that the current version of Prob. Code § 3200 et seq., effective July 1, 2000, refers to an individual's capacity to consent to health care and to make health care decisions. Prior to July 1, 2000, the statutes used the term "informed consent." Since the statute no longer uses the latter term, that term is no longer used in this form. For additional discussion, see Governing Statutes in the Introduction to this part.

[5] Verification

The petition must be verified [Prob. Code § 1021(a)].

§ 307.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter discusses and contains the following forms for use in actions involving assignments for the benefit of creditors and in defenses involving composition agreements:

- A complaint for use by a common law assignee for the benefit of creditors to quiet title to real property against a judgment creditor of the assignor [see § 307.50].

- A complaint to recover property transferred by the assignor [see § 307.51].

- A complaint by a creditor of an assignor for the benefit of creditors against the assignee to have the validity of the claim determined [see § 307.52].

- An affirmative defense for inclusion in an answer to a complaint in an action on a creditor's claim if the claim is barred by a composition agreement entered into between a defendant and the defendant's creditors, including the plaintiff [see § 307.53].

§ 307.10 Procedure for Making Assignment for Benefit of Creditors; Statutory Authorization Repealed

Prior to January 1, 1981, there were two procedures for making assignments for the benefit of creditors: (1) a statutory procedure, pursuant to Civ. Code §§ 3448-3473, and (2) a nonstatutory, or common law, procedure. The statutory procedure [Civ. Code §§ 3448-3473] was repealed by Stats. 1980, Ch 135, pursuant to a finding of the California Law Revision Commission that this procedure was not utilized and its recommendation that the statutes be repealed [California Law Revision Commission Annual Report (1979), pp. 1121-1122]. This leaves only the nonstatutory procedure.

§ 307.11 Purpose of Assignments

An assignment for the benefit of creditors is a business liquidation device available as an alternative to bankruptcy. Its use is prevalent in the commercial credit community in larger urban areas. Assignments are handled predominantly by large creditors' associations and by attorneys who specialize in the field. An assignment is most successful when there is cooperation among the debtor, the creditors, and the assignee [California Law Revision Commission Annual Report (1979), p 1121]. By an assignment for the benefit of creditors, the debtor assigns his, her, or its property to an assignee who sells the property and distributes the proceeds among the assignor's creditors [see Bumb v. Bennett (1958) 51 Cal. 2d 294, 298-299, 333 P.2d 23 ; Mechanics Bank v. Rosenberg (1962) 201 Cal. App. 2d 419, 421-424, 20 Cal. Rptr. 202] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

26-307 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 307.12

§ 307.12 Assignments

[1] Generally

A conveyance to a trustee made with the intention to divest oneself not only of title to property but of all control over it, as well as with the intention to convey absolutely all one's property for the purpose of securing a distribution of its proceeds among one's creditors, is considered in legal effect an assignment for the benefit of creditors, no matter what name or designation the parties may have given it [Sabichi v. Chase (1895) 108 Cal. 81, 86, 41 P. 29 (disapproved in Bumb v. Bennett (1958) 51 Cal. 2d 294, 300, 333 P.2d 23 only insofar as Sabichi held that preferential assignments were invalid because they violated former statutory assignment provisions)].

[2] Preferential Assignments

In addition to assignments to all one's creditors, which are considered in legal effect assignments for the benefit of creditors [see Sabichi v. Chase (1895) 108 Cal. 81, 86, 41 P. 29] , an assignor may also make a valid common law assignment for the benefit of particular creditors [see Bumb v. Bennett (1958) 51 Cal. 2d 294, 298-300, 333 P.2d 23 ; Jarvis v. Webber (1925) 196 Cal. 86, 96-99, 236 P. 138] . The power to make such an assignment for the benefit of particular creditors rests on the right of creditors to take payment or security for their debts, even though others may thereby be deprived of all means of obtaining satisfaction of their own equally meritorious claims [see Heath v. Wilson (1903) 139 Cal. 362, 367, 73 P. 182] . That is, since an insolvent debtor may lawfully pay one or more creditors to the exclusion of others by way of a direct transfer [see Civ. Code § 3432 (debtor as permitted to pay one creditor in preference to another)], the debtor is permitted to do the same thing by way of a transfer in trust. In the absence of fraud, an assignment for the benefit of a particular class of creditor, and to such other creditors as have assented to its terms, effectively postpones the nonconsenting creditors in favor of the claims of the consenting creditors [see Bumb v. Bennett (1958) 51 Cal. 2d 294, 300, 333 P.2d 23 ; Brainard v. Fitzgerald (1935) 3 Cal. 2d 157, 163, 44 P.2d 336 (in absence of fraud, assignment limited to particular class of creditors as prevailing over subsequent attachment or execution)].

[3] Assignments Under Attachment Law

[a] Conditions of Assignment

Although there no longer exists a general statutory authorization for assignment for the benefit of creditors, the Attachment Law [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 481.010-493.060] permits a general assignment for the benefit of creditors as a means of terminating a lien of a temporary protective order or attachment if the lien was created within 90 days prior to the making of the assignment [see Code Civ. Proc. § 493.030(a)]. The assignment must meet the following conditions [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 493.010, 493.020]:

- It must be of all the defendant's assets that are transferable and not exempt from enforcement of a money judgment.

- It must be for the benefit of all the defendant's creditors.

- It must not itself create a preference of one creditor or class of creditors over any other creditor or class of creditors.

The lien may be reinstated under specified conditions [see Code Civ. Proc. § 493.050]. Once the lien terminates, the assignee is subrogated to the rights of the plaintiff under the temporary protective order or attachment [Code Civ. Proc. § 493.060(a)].

[b] Exempt Property

In any general assignment for the benefit of creditors [see Code Civ. Proc. § 493.010 (definition)] by an individual (or by a married couple), the assignor (or either spouse) may choose to retain as exempt property either the property that is otherwise exempt under the Enforcement of Judgments Law [see Code Civ. Proc. § 703.010 et seq.; see also Ch. 254, Executions and Enforcement of Judgments] or, in the alternative, the following property (to be valued at fair market value as of the date of the making of the assignment):

- The assignor's aggregate interest, not to exceed $7,500 in value, in real property or personal property that the assignor or a dependent or spouse of the assignor uses as a residence, in a cooperative that owns property that the assignor or a dependent or spouse of the assignor uses as a residence, or in a burial plot for the assignor or a dependent or spouse of the assignor [Code Civ. Proc. § 1801(a)].

- The assignor's interest, not to exceed $1,200 in value, in one motor vehicle [Code Civ. Proc. § 1801(b)].

- The assignor's interest, not to exceed $200 in value in any particular item, in household furnishings, household goods, wearing apparel, appliances, books, animals, crops, or musical instruments, that are held primarily for the personal, family, or household use of the assignor or a dependent or spouse of the assignor [Code Civ. Proc. § 1801(c)].

- The assignor's aggregate interest, not to exceed $500 in value, in jewelry held primarily for the personal, family, or household use of the assignor or a dependent or spouse of the assignor [Code Civ. Proc. § 1801(d)].

- The assignor's aggregate interest, not to exceed in value $400 plus any unused amount of the exemption provided under Code Civ. Proc. § 1801(a), in any property [Code Civ. Proc. § 1801(e)].

- The assignor's aggregate interest, not to exceed $750 in value, in any implements, professional books, or tools, of the trade of the assignor or the trade of a dependent or spouse of the assignor [Code Civ. Proc. § 1801(f)].

- Any unmatured life insurance contract owned by the assignor, other than a credit life insurance contract [Code Civ. Proc. § 1801(g)].

- The assignor's aggregate interest, not to exceed in value $4,000 in any accrued dividend or interest under, or loan value of, any unmatured life insurance contract owned by the assignor under which the insured is the assignor or an individual of whom the assignor is a dependent or spouse [Code Civ. Proc. § 1801(h)].

- Professionally prescribed health aids for the assignor or a dependent or spouse of the assignor [Code Civ. Proc. § 1801(i)].

- The assignor's right to receive a social security benefit, unemployment compensation (after any deduction under Unemp. Ins. Code § 1255.7 for unpaid child support), or a local public assistance benefit [Code Civ. Proc. § 1801(j)(1)].

- The assignor's right to receive a veterans' benefit [Code Civ. Proc. § 1801(j)(2)].

- The assignor's right to receive a disability, illness, or unemployment benefit (after any deduction under Unemp. Ins. Code § 1255.7 for unpaid child support) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1801(j)(3)].

- The assignor's right to receive alimony, support, or separate maintenance, to the extent reasonably necessary for the support of the assignor and any dependent or spouse of the assignor [Code Civ. Proc. § 1801(j)(4)].

- The assignor's right to receive a payment under a stock-bonus, pension, profit-sharing, or annuity plan, or a similar plan or contract, on account of illness, disability, death, age, or length of service, to the extent reasonably necessary for the support of the assignor and any dependent or spouse of the assignor, provided [Code Civ. Proc. § 1801(j)(5)]:

    - The plan or contract was not established by or under the auspices of an employer of which the assignor was a partner, officer, director, or controlling person at the time the assignor's rights under the plan or contract arose.

    - The payment is not on account of age or length of service.

- The plan or contract is qualified under the Internal Revenue Code [see I.R.C. §§ 401(a), 403(a), 403(b), 408, 409 (qualification of plan or contract)].

- The assignor's right to receive, or property that is traceable to, an award under a crime victim's reparation law [Code Civ. Proc. § 1801(k)(1)].

- The assignor's right to receive, or property that is traceable to, a payment on account of the wrongful death of an individual of whom the assignor was a dependent or spouse, to the extent reasonably necessary for the support of the assignor and any dependent or spouse of the assignor [Code Civ. Proc. § 1801(k)(2)].

- The assignor's right to receive, or property that is traceable to, a payment under a life insurance contract that insured the life of an individual of whom the assignor was a dependent or spouse on the date of such individual's death, to the extent reasonably necessary for the support of the assignor and any dependent or spouse of the assignor [Code Civ. Proc. § 1801(k)(3)].

- The assignor's right to receive, or property that is traceable to, a payment, not to exceed $7,500, on account of personal bodily injury, as compensation for pain and suffering or actual pecuniary loss (other than loss of future earnings), of the assignor or an individual of whom the assignor is a dependent or spouse [Code Civ. Proc. § 1801(k)(4)].

- The assignor's right to receive, or property that is traceable to, a payment in compensation of loss of future earnings of the assignor or an individual of whom the assignor is or was a dependent or spouse, to the extent reasonably necessary for the support of the assignor and any dependent or spouse of the assignor [Code Civ. Proc. § 1801(k)(5)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

26-307 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 307.13

§ 307.13 Debtor's Complete Investment of Interest in Property Assigned Required

An assignment for the benefit of creditors must vest all interest in the property transferred in the assignee or trustee [see Brainard v. Fitzgerald (1935) 3 Cal. 2d 157, 163, 44 P.2d 336 ; Mechanics Bank v. Rosenberg (1962) 201 Cal. App. 2d 419, 424, 20 Cal. Rptr. 202] . Thus, the intention of the debtor to divest himself, herself, or itself must be present [Mechanics Bank v. Rosenberg (1962) 201 Cal. App. 2d 419, 424, 20 Cal. Rptr. 202 (secret intention of assignor to reserve present interest was not controlling when transaction effected, in fact, divestment of assignor's interest)]. However, a reservation in an assignment instrument of any surplus of the property assigned after the creditors have been paid does not invalidate the assignment since the assignee would hold the excess as agent or trustee for the assignor, whether stated in the instrument or not [Heath v. Wilson (1903) 139 Cal. 362, 369, 73 P. 182] .

§ 307.14 Assignment of Real Property as Conveyance

An assignment of real property for the benefit of creditors which purports to pass all interest of the assignor is a conveyance [see Civ. Code § 1215] and, as such, is subject to all the provisions of the Civil Code relating to transfers of real property [Moore v. Schneider (1925) 196 Cal. 380, 389-392, 238 P. 81 ; see also Bumb v. Bennett (1958) 51 Cal. 2d 294, 299-300, 333 P.2d 23 (holding, however, that failure to record transfer did not render conveyance invalid against subsequently attaching creditor since unrecorded deed or assignment is sufficient to pass title against creditor)].

§ 307.15 Duties of Assignee

The assignment must vest legal title to the property assigned in the assignee or trustee [see Moore v. Schneider (1925) 196 Cal. 380, 385, 238 P. 81] who has the duties of a trustee acting for the benefit of creditors in accordance with the assignment instrument [*Mechanics Bank v. 26-307 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 307.16

§ 307.16 Status of Assignee

Although an assignment for the benefit of creditors is binding on the assignor and the creditors assenting to it [Peterson v. Ball (1931) 211 Cal. 461, 468, 296 P. 291] and, in the absence of fraud or other considerations, may postpone the claim of a nonconsenting creditor to that of a consenting creditor [see Brainard v. Fitzgerald (1935) 3 Cal. 2d 157, 163, 44 P.2d 336] , the assignee acquires no greater right in the property assigned than the assignor had at the time of the assignment. He or she takes only the interest of the assignor in and to the property and can assert no claim to the property which the assignor might not [Moore v. Schneider (1925) 196 Cal. 380, 385-386, 238 P. 81] . In this respect, although the assignee may be a trustee and the creditors may be considered the beneficiaries of the assignment [see Mechanics Bank v. Rosenberg (1962) 201 Cal. App. 2d 419, 424-425, 20 Cal. Rptr. 202] , the assignee is no more than a representative of the assignor and does not represent the creditors [Peterson v. Ball (1931) 211 Cal. 461, 471, 296 P. 291] .

The assignee or trustee is a representative of the assignor and not a bona fide purchaser for value [First Nat'l Bank v. Pomona Tile Mfg. Co. (1947) 82 Cal. App. 2d 592, 608, 186 P.2d 693] . "Value," as used in the phrase "bona fide purchaser for value," means a present contemporaneous value, whereas the consideration for a general assignment for the benefit of creditors is the antecedent debt owed by the assignor to the creditors, and, hence, is past consideration [First Nat'l Bank v. Pomona Tile Mfg. Co. (1947) 82 Cal. App. 2d 592, 607, 186 P.2d 693] .

The assignment may not take priority over a prior assignment since it is not for value [First Nat'l Bank v. Pomona Tile Mfg. Co. (1947) 82 Cal. App. 2d 592, 607-608, 186 P.2d 693] .

An assignee for the benefit of creditors does not assume the underlying liabilities of the debtor. For instance, the assignee cannot be personally liable for attorney's fees that are awarded against the debtor in an action on a lease under which the debtor is a tenant. The procedure of an assignment for the benefit of creditors would be eviscerated if an assignee were required to assume the underlying liabilities of the assignor's insolvent business [Sherwood Partners, Inc. v. EOP-Marina Bus. Ctr., L.L.C. (2007) 153 Cal. App. 4th 977, 979, 62 Cal. Rptr. 3d 896].

§ 307.17 Right to Set Aside Fraudulent Transfer

An assignee of a general assignment for the benefit of creditors, as defined in Code Civ. Proc. § 493.010 [see § 307.12[3]], may exercise any or all of the rights specified in Civ. Code § 3439.07 of the Uniform Fraudulent Transfer Act and all those in Civ. Code §§ 3440-3440.9 (relating to transfers of personal property by assignor without immediate delivery and change in possession) if they are available to one or more creditors of the assignor who are beneficiaries of the assignment. In those cases, the assignee can exercise those rights and remedies (1) only to the extent the rights or remedies are so available, and (2) only for the benefit of those creditors whose rights are asserted by the assignee [Civ. Code §§ 3439.07(d), 3440(b)]. Pursuant to Civ. Code § 3439.07(a)-(c) and subject to the limitations set forth in Civ. Code § 3439.08, if a transfer or obligation is fraudulent as to a creditor, the creditor may have the transfer set aside or the obligation annulled to the extent necessary to satisfy his or her claim, disregard the conveyance and attach or levy execution on the property conveyed, or seek other remedies such as injunction or appointment of a receiver to take possession of the asset transferred or its proceeds [see Ch. 270, Fraudulent Conveyances].

Civ. Code § 3439.07(d) appears to abrogate the prior rule that an assignee may not maintain an action to set aside a fraudulent conveyance made by an assignor [see Moore v. Schneider (1925) 196 Cal. 380, 385-387, 238 P. 81] .

§ 307.18 Right to Occupy Business Premises

In any general assignment for the benefit of creditors, as defined in Code Civ. Proc. § 493.010 [see § 307.12[3]], the assignee has the right to occupy, for a period of up to 90 days after the date of the assignment, any business premises held under a lease by the assignor on payment when due of the monthly rental reserved in the lease for the period of the occupancy, notwithstanding any provision in the lease for its termination on the making of the assignment or the insolvency of the lessee or other condition relating to the financial condition of the lessee. The assignee has this right whether the lease was entered into before or after February 17, 1982, the effective date of Civ. Code § 1954.1. Civ. Code § 1954.1 is to be construed as establishing the reasonable rental value of the premises recoverable by a landlord on a holding-over by the tenant on the termination of a lease under the circumstances specified above [Civ. Code § 1954.1].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

26-307 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 307.19

§ 307.19 Parties Bound by Assignments

[1] Which Parties Are Bound

A common law assignment for the benefit of creditors is binding on the assigning debtor and all creditors who assent to it [Peterson v. Ball (1931) 211 Cal. 461, 468, 296 P. 291] . It vests the assignor's title to the property in the assignee and is, at most, void only against creditors not assenting to it and against good-faith purchasers and encumbrancers for value [Garn v. Thorwaldson (1919) 40 Cal. App. 62, 66, 180 P. 9] . The acceptance of the assignment by the creditors is presumed until the contrary is shown, and while the nonacceptance of any particular creditor may result in postponing him, her, or it to other creditors, it is not fatal to the assignment, since preferences are not illegal under the law [Brainard v. Fitzgerald (1935) 3 Cal. 2d 157, 163, 44 P.2d 336 (citing Civ. Code § 3451, repealed by Stats. 1980, Ch 135); but see Civ. Code § 3432].

A nonconsenting creditor is not bound by an assignment for the benefit of a limited number of creditors, and his, her, or its consent to it cannot be compelled by any act of the debtors, the trustee, or other creditors. An attempted transfer by a debtor, for the purpose of paying or securing one or more creditors but not amounting to an assignment for creditors generally, must be executed with due regard to the general principles of law applicable to such transactions to be made effective as against nonconsenting creditors [Jarvis v. Webber (1925) 196 Cal. 86, 99, 236 P. 138 ; see also Brainard v. Fitzgerald (1935) 3 Cal. 2d 157, 161, 44 P.2d 336] .

[2] Assignment Voided by Fraudulent Transfer

If an assignment for the benefit of a particular class of creditors was in fraud of the debtor's other creditors by virtue of being in violation of the provisions governing fraudulent conveyances, a nonconsenting creditor may avoid the attempted preference [see Bumb v. Bennett (1958) 51 Cal. 2d 294, 300, 333 P.2d 23] . Thus, if the debtor (1) intended to prevent the application of his or her property, in whole or in part, to the satisfaction of his or her debts [see Civ. Code § 3439.04(a) (conveyance made with actual intent to defraud creditor); Heath v. Wilson (1903) 139 Cal. 362, 73 P. 182 ; CACI Nos. 4200, 4201 (related California Judicial Council jury instructions)]; (2) made the transfer or incurred the obligation without receiving reasonably equivalent value in exchange for the transfer or obligation if he or she was insolvent at the time or became insolvent as a result of the transfer or obligation [see Civ. Code § 3439.05; CACI Nos. 4203, 4205, 4206 (related California Judicial Council jury instructions); but see Civ. Code § 3439.03 (value as given to extent antecedent debt is satisfied or secured)]; or (3) transferred personal property without an actual and continued change of possession of the property transferred [see Civ. Code § 3440; Jarvis v. Webber (1925) 196 Cal. 86, 99 ; see also Civ. Code § 3440(e); Brainard v. Fitzgerald (1935) 3 Cal. 2d 157, 159, 44 P.2d 336 (provisions of Civ. Code § 3440 inapplicable to statutory or common law assignments made for benefit of creditors generally); but see Civ. Code § 3440.1(e) (provisions in Civ. Code § 3440 et seq. are generally inapplicable to assignments for benefit of creditors)], then an assignment for the benefit of a particular creditor or creditors is ineffective as against a nonconsenting creditor [see Civ. Code §§ 3439.07(a), 3440(b); Bumb v. Bennett (1958) 51 Cal. 2d 294, 300, 333 P.2d 23 ; Jarvis v. Webber (1925) 196 Cal. 86, 88] .

For a complaint by an assignee for the benefit of creditors against a judgment creditor of debtor to quiet title, see § 307.50.

[3] Waiver of Assignment Irregularities by Filing Claim

A creditor is bound by an assignment and waives all objection to the regularity of the assignment and to the title of the assignee to the assets if he, she, or it accepts the assignment by filing his, her, or its claim under it [Lacy v. Gunn (1904) 144 Cal. 511, 516, 78 P. 30 (involving former statutory assignment)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

26-307 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 307.20

§ 307.20 Recovery of Preferences by Assignee

[1] Generally

Code Civ. Proc. § 1800 contains detailed provisions, discussed below, authorizing recovery by the assignee of a general assignment for the benefit of creditors of transfers of the assignor's property under conditions specified in the statute. Code Civ. Proc § 1800 is not preempted by the Bankruptcy Code [Haberbush v. Charles & Dorothy Cummins Family Limited Partnership (2006) 139 Cal. App. 4th 1630, 1640, 43 Cal. Rptr. 3d 814 ; accord, Credit Managers Assn. v. Countrywide Home Loans, Inc. (2006) 144 Cal. App. 4th 590, 598-600, 50 Cal. Rptr. 3d 259 ; contra, Sherwood Partners, Inc. v. Lycos, Inc. (9th Cir. 2005) 394 F.3d 1198, 1202-1206] .

[2] Insolvent Defined

Code Civ. Proc. § 1800(a)(1) defines "insolvent," as used in the section, as meaning, with reference to a person other than a partnership, a financial condition such that the sum of the person's debts is greater than all of the person's property, at a fair valuation, exclusive of (1) property transferred, concealed, or removed with intent to hinder, delay, or defraud the person's creditors [Code Civ. Proc. § 1800(a)(1)(A)(i)]; and (2) property that may be exempted from property of the estate pursuant to the person's election made under Code Civ. Proc. § 1801 (see § 307.12[3][b]) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1800(a)(1)(A)(ii)].

With reference to a partnership, "insolvent" means a financial condition in which the sum of the partnership's debts are greater than the aggregate of, at a fair valuation, all of the partnership's property, exclusive of property of the kind specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 1800(a)(1)(A)(i), above [Code Civ. Proc. § 1800(a)(1)(B)(i)], and the sum of the excess of the value of each general partner's separate property, exclusive of property of the kind specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 1800(a)(1)(A)(ii), above, over that partner's separate debts [Code Civ. Proc. § 1800(a)(1)(B)(ii)].

[3] Transfer Defined

The term "transfer" means every mode, direct or indirect, absolute or conditional, voluntary or involuntary, or disposing of or parting with property or with an interest in property, including retention of title as a security interest [Code Civ. Proc. § 1800(a)(10)].

[4] Insider Defined

The term "insider," with respect to an individual, means any of the following [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1800(a)(3)(A)]:

- A relative of the assignor or of a general partner of the assignor.
- A partnership in which the assignor is a general partner.
- A general partner of the assignor.
- A corporation of which the assignor is a director, officer, or person in control.

If the assignor is a corporation, "insider" means any of the following [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1800(a)(3)(B)]:

- A director of the assignor.
- An officer of the assignor.
- A person in control of the assignor.
- A partnership in which the assignor is a general partner.
- A general partner of the assignor.
- A relative of a general partner, director, officer, or person in control of the assignor.

If the assignor is a partnership, "insider" means any of the following [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1800(a)(3)(C)]:

- A general partner in the assignor.
- A relative of a general partner in, general partner of, or person in control of the assignor.
- A partnership in which the assignor is a general partner.
- A general partner of the assignor.
- A person in control of the assignor.

"Insider" also includes an affiliate of the assignor, or an insider of an affiliate as if the affiliate were the assignor [see Code Civ. Proc. 1800(a)(3)(D)]. A managing agent of the assignor is also classified as an "insider" [see Code Civ. Proc. 1800(a)(3)(F)].

For purposes of the above definition, "relative" means an individual related by affinity or consanguinity with the third degree as determined by the common law, or an individual in a step or adoptive relationship within the third degree. "Affiliate" means a person that directly or indirectly owns, controls, or holds with power to vote, 20 percent or more of the outstanding voting securities of the assignor; or 20 percent or more of whose outstanding voting securities are directly or indirectly owned, controlled, or held with power to vote by the assignor (excluding securities held in a fiduciary or agency capacity without sole discretionary power to vote, or held solely to secure a debt if the holder has not in fact exercised the power to vote), or a person who operates the business of the assignor under a lease or operating agreement or whose business is operated by the assignor under a lease or operating agreement [see Code Civ. Proc.

[5] Inventory Defined

The term "inventory" means personal property leased or furnished, held for sale or lease, or to be furnished under a contract for service, raw materials, work in process, or materials used or consumed in a business, including farm products such as crops or livestock, held for sale or lease [Code Civ. Proc. § 1800(a)(2)].

[6] Judicial Lien Defined

"Judicial lien" means a lien obtained by judgment, levy, sequestration, or other legal or equitable process or proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 1800(a)(4)].

[7] New Value Defined

The term "new value" means money or money's worth in goods, services, or new credit, or release by a transferee of property previously transferred to the transferee in a transaction that is neither void nor voidable by the assignor or the assignee under any applicable law, but does not include an obligation substituted for an existing obligation [Code Civ. Proc. § 1800(a)(5)].

[8] Receivable Defined

"Receivable" means a right to payment, whether or not that right has been earned by performance [Code Civ. Proc. § 1800(a)(6)].

[9] Security Agreement Defined

The term "security agreement" means an agreement that creates or provides for a security interest [Code Civ. Proc. § 1800(a)(7)].

[10] Security Interest Defined

The term "security interest" means a lien created by an agreement [Code Civ. Proc. § 1800(a)(8)].

[11] Statutory Lien Defined

The term "statutory lien" means a lien arising solely by force of statute on specified circumstances or conditions, or lien of distress for rent, whether or not statutory, but does not include security interest or judicial lien, whether or not that interest or lien is provided by or is dependent on a statute and whether or not that interest or lien is made fully effective by statute [Code Civ. Proc. § 1800(a)(9)].

[12] Recovery of Property Transferred

Except as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 1800(c) [see [13], below], an assignee of any general assignment for the benefit of creditors, as defined in Code Civ. Proc. 493.010 [see § 307.12[3]], may recover any transfer of property of the assignor [Code Civ. Proc. § 1800(b)]:

- To or for the benefit of a creditor;
- For or on account of an antecedent debt owed by the assignor before the transfer was made;

- Made while the assignor was insolvent;

- Made on or within 90 days before the date of the making of the assignment or if the creditor, at the time of transfer, was an insider and had reasonable cause to believe the debtor was insolvent at the time of the transfer, made between 90 days and one year before the date of making the assignment; and

- That enables the creditor to receive more than another creditor of the same class.

[13] Property Not Recoverable

An assignee may not recover a transfer [Code Civ. Proc. 1800(c)]:

- To the extent that it was intended by the assignor and the creditor to or for whose benefit the transfer was made to be a contemporaneous exchange for new value given to the assignor and in fact a substantially contemporaneous exchange.

- To the extent that the transfer was in payment of a debt incurred in the ordinary course of business or financial affairs of the assignor and the transfer was in the ordinary course of business or financial affairs of the assignor and the transferee and according to ordinary business terms [see Credit Managers' Assn. v. Brubaker (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 1587, 1593-1594, 285 Cal. Rptr. 417 (chief executive officer was not in business of making loans, thus repayments by insolvent of advances made to it by chief executive officer were not "in ordinary course of transferee's business" and were recoverable by assignee for benefit of creditors)].

- Of a security interest in property acquired by the assignor:

  - To the extent that the security interest secures new value that was (1) given at or after the signing of a security agreement that contains a description of the property as collateral, (2) given by or on behalf of the secured party under the agreement, (3) given to enable the assignor to acquire the property, and (4) in fact used by the assignor to acquire the property, and

  - That is perfected within 10 days after the security interest attaches.

- To or for the benefit of a creditor to the extent that, after the transfer, the creditor gave new value to or for the benefit of the assignor not secured by an otherwise unavoidable security interest and on account of which new value the assignor did not make an otherwise unavoidable transfer to or for the benefit of the creditor.

- Of a perfected security interest in inventory or a receivable or the proceeds of either, except to the extent that the aggregate of all such transfers to the transferee caused a reduction, as of the date of the making of the assignment and to the prejudice of other creditors holding unsecured claims, of any amount by which the debt secured by the security interest exceeded the value of all security interest for the debt on the later of (1) 90 days before the date of the making of the assignment, and (2) the date on which new value was first given under the security agreement creating the security interest;

- That is the fixing of a statutory lien [Code Civ. Proc. § 1800(c)].

- That is payment to a claimant [see Civ. Code § 3085 ("claimant" defined)] in exchange for the claimant's waiver or release of any potential or asserted claim of lien, stop notice, or right to recover on a payment bond, or any combination of those claims [Code Civ. Proc. § 1800(c)].

- To the extent payment of a debt to a spouse, former spouse, or child of the debtor is for alimony or maintenance, or for a separation agreement, divorce decree, or other order of a court of record, or for a determination made in accordance with state or territorial law by a governmental unit, or for a property settlement agreement; but not to the extent that either of the following occurs:

  - The debt is assigned to another entity voluntarily, by operation of law, or otherwise, in which case the assignee may not recover that portion of the transfer that is assigned to the state or any political subdivision of the state pursuant to Part D of Title IV of the Social Security Act [42 U.S.C. 601 et seq.] and passes on to the spouse, former spouse, or child of the debtor; or

  - The debt includes a liability designated as alimony, maintenance, or support, unless the liability is actually in the nature of alimony, maintenance, or support.

[14] Property Transferred to Secure Surety's Reimbursement

An assignee of any general assignment for the benefit of creditors (as defined in Code Civ. Proc. § 493.010 [see § 307.12[3]]) may avoid a transfer of property of the assignor transferred to secure reimbursement of a surety that furnished a bond or other obligation to dissolve a judicial lien that would have been avoidable by the assignee under Code Civ. Proc. § 1800(b). The liability of the surety under the bond or obligation is discharged to the extent of the value of the property recovered by the assignee or the amount paid to the assignee [Code Civ. Proc. § 1800(d)].

[15] Circumstances Under Which Transfer Made or Perfected

For the purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 1800, a transfer of real property other than fixtures, but including the interest of seller or purchaser under a contract for the sale of real property, is perfected when a bona fide purchaser of the property from the debtor against whom applicable law permits the transfer to be perfected cannot acquire an interest that is superior to the interest of the transferee. A transfer of a fixture or property other than real property is perfected when a creditor on a simple contract cannot acquire a judicial lien that is superior to the interest of the transferee [Code Civ. Proc. § 1800(e)(1)].

Except as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 1800(e)(3), a transfer is made at the time the transfer takes effect between the transferor and the transferee, if the transfer is perfected at, or within 10 days after, that time; at the time the transfer is perfected if perfected after 10 days; or immediately before the date of the making of the assignment if the transfer is not perfected at the later of the making of the assignment and 10 days after the transfer takes effect between transferor and transfeee [Code Civ. Proc. § 1800(e)(2)].

For the purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 1800, a transfer is not made until the assignor has acquired rights in the property transferred [Code Civ. Proc. § 1800(e)(3)].

[16] Presumption of Insolvency

For the purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 1800, an assignor is presumed to have been insolvent on and during the 90 days immediately preceding the date of the making of the assignment [Code Civ. Proc. § 1800(f)].

§ 307.21 Discharge of Debtor

[1] Release of Debtor as Condition of Assignment

Ordinarily an assignment for the benefit of creditors and the payment of dividends thereunder do not act as a discharge of the debtor, except to the extent that the claims of the creditors are thereby reduced by actual payment. However, such assignments often contain a condition that the debtors shall be released from further liability; that condition in an assignment is binding on creditors who accept the benefits of the assignment [Boteler v. Robinson (1930) 105 Cal. App. 611, 615, 288 P. 135] .

[2] Secured Creditors

If the assignor is released from further liability to a particular creditor on the acceptance of the benefits of the assignment by that creditor, any lien or other security held by the creditor for the released claim normally cannot continue to exist [Equitable Life Assur. Soc'y v. Jacobson (1924) 68 Cal. App. 717, 722, 230 P. 200] . However, a security agreement in which such a creditor retains title to the property until the underlying indebtedness is fully satisfied would not be affected by the creditor's promise to release his or her claim against the assignor since, in the absence of a contrary intention, the assignment does not ordinarily include property retained by the creditor as security [see Stoody Co. v. Valley Pipe & Welding Co. (1937) 20 Cal. App. 2d 580, 586-587, 67 P.2d 747 (holding that creditor has right to recover property sold under conditional sales contract)].

§ 307.22 Claims Having Priority Over Assignment

[1] Debts Owed to United States

The debts due to the United States by any person who is insolvent must first be satisfied. This priority extends to cases in which a debtor, not having sufficient property to pay all his, her, or its debts, makes a voluntary assignment of those debts [31 U.S.C. § 191]. Any assignee or other person, who pays, in whole or in part, any debt due by the assignor before he, she, or it satisfies and pays the debts due to the United States from the assignor, is personally answerable to the extent of those payments for the debts so due to the United States, or for as much of these debts as may remain due and unpaid [31 U.S.C. § 192].

[2] Unemployment Contributions and Sales and Use Taxes

The wage and employer contributions required to be paid by any employing unit for unemployment and disability insurance and sales and use taxes required to be paid by any person, together with interest and penalties, must be satisfied whenever (1) the employment unit or person is insolvent or (2) the unit or person makes a voluntary assignment of its assets [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1701; Rev. & Tax Code § 6756].

[3] Labor Claims

When an assignment, whether voluntary or involuntary or formal or informal, is made for the benefit of creditors of the assignor, or results from any proceeding in insolvency or receivership commenced against the assignor, or when any property is turned over to the creditors of a person, firm, association, or corporation, or to a receiver or trustee for the benefit of creditors, the following claims have priority in the following order:

- Allowed unsecured claims for wages, salaries, or commissions, including vacation, severance, and sick-leave pay:

  - Earned by an individual within 90 days before the date of the making of the assignment or the taking over of that property or the commencement of the court proceeding or the date of the cessation of the debtor's business, whichever occurs first; but only

- To the extent of $2,000 for each such individual.

- Allowed unsecured claims for contributions to employee benefit plans:

  - Arising from services rendered within 180 days before the date of making of such assignment or the taking over of that property or the commencement of the court proceeding or the date of the cessation of the debtor's business, whichever occurs first, but only

  - For each such plan, to the extent of (1) the number of employees covered by such plan multiplied by $2,000, less (2) the aggregate amount paid to those employees under Code Civ. Proc. § 1204(a) plus the aggregate amount paid by the estate on behalf of those employees to any other employee benefit plan [Code Civ. Proc. § 1204].

The above claims must be paid by the trustee, assignee, or receiver before the claim of any other creditor of the assignor, insolvent, or debtor whose property is so turned over, and must be paid as soon as the money with which to pay it becomes available. If there is insufficient money with which to pay all such labor claims in full, the money available must be distributed among the claimants in proportion to the amount of their respective claims. The trustee, receiver, or assignee for the benefit of creditors has the right to require sworn claims to be presented and has the right to refuse to pay any preferred claim, either in whole or in part, if he or she has reasonable cause to believe that the claim is not valid, but must pay any part that is not disputed, without prejudice to the claimant's rights, as to the balance of his or her claim, and withhold sufficient money to cover the disputed portion until the claimant in question has a reasonable opportunity to establish the validity of his or her claim by court action, either in his or her own name or through an assignee [Code Civ. Proc. § 1204].

For a more thorough discussion of wage preferences and a form for use by an unpaid wage claimant where the claimant's employer has made an assignment for the benefit of creditors, see Ch. 342, Liens and Wage Preferences .

[4] Consumer Deposits

In any general assignment for the benefit of creditors, the following claims have priority, subordinate to the priorities for labor claims under Code Civ. Proc. § 1204, but prior to all other unsecured claims: allowed unsecured claims of individuals, to the extent of $900 for each individual, arising from the deposit, before the commencement of the case, of money in connection with the purchase, lease, or rental of property, or the purchase of services, for the personal, family, or household use of those individuals, that were not delivered or provided [Code Civ. Proc. § 1204.5]. The priority granted by Code Civ. Proc. § 1204.5 is subordinate to that granted by former Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 18933 and 26312 (see now Rev. & Tax. Code § 19253) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1204.5].

§ 307.23 Insolvency as Factor in Involuntary Bankruptcy

Prior to October, 1979, a general assignment for the benefit of creditors was an act of bankruptcy under the former Bankruptcy Act [see former 11 U.S.C. § 21(a)(4)] and gave the bankruptcy court exclusive jurisdiction regardless of the solvency of the alleged bankrupt debtor [In re Wing Sing Chew (9th Cir. 1974) 495 F.2d 18] . With the enactment of the Bankruptcy Reform Act of 1978 [see 11 U.S.C. § 101 et seq.], acts of bankruptcy, including assignments for the benefit of creditors, have been eliminated and an equity solvency test or a custodian taking possession of the debtor's property have replaced the former Act's test as grounds for creditors to initiate an involuntary bankruptcy proceeding against a debtor.

Under the Bankruptcy Code, a bankruptcy court will order relief against a debtor in an involuntary bankruptcy case only if (1) the debtor is generally not paying the debtor's debts as those debts become due, or (2) within 120 days before the date of the filing of the involuntary petition in bankruptcy, a custodian, other than a trustee, receiver, or agent appointed or authorized to take charge of less than substantially all of the property of the debtor for the purpose of enforcing a lien against the property, was appointed or took possession [11 U.S.C. § 303(h)].

Under the Servicemembers Civil Relief Act [see 50 U.S.C. App. § 501 et seq.] and comparable California law [see Mil. & Vet. Code § 400 et seq.], it is unlawful for any lender, creditor, credit reporting agency, or other person to determine that a service member [see 50 U.S.C. App. § 511; Mil. & Vet. Code § 400] is unable to pay any civil obligation or liability in accordance with its terms, solely because the service member applied for or received a stay, postponement, or suspension, pursuant to the federal act or Mil. & Vet. Code § 400 et seq., in the payment of any tax, fine, penalty, insurance premium, or other civil obligation or liability [50 U.S.C. App. § 518(1); Mil. & Vet. Code § 401(a)(1)].

§ 307.24 Other Remedies

[1] Extension Agreements

Other remedies that may be available to an insolvent debtor include extension agreements whereby the creditors agree to extend the time in which payment of their claims is to be made. However, such agreements contemplate eventual payment of the claims in full. The agreement may simply postpone payment in full to a specified date or provide for partial payment on a specified future date with the balance to be paid in a series of installments [see California Legal Forms, Ch. 78, Creditors' Agreements: Nonbankruptcy Alternatives (Matthew Bender)].

Notwithstanding Civ. Code § 1526(a) (right of creditor to prevent accord and satisfaction by striking out a "payment in full" notation), the acceptance of a check or draft constitutes an accord and satisfaction if a check or draft is tendered pursuant to a composition or extension agreement between a debtor and its creditors, under which all creditors of the same class are accorded similar treatment, and the creditor receives the check or draft with knowledge of the restriction [Civ. Code § 1526(b)]. A creditor will be conclusively presumed to have knowledge of the restriction if either of the following conditions is satisfied [Civ. Code § 1526(b)]:

- The creditor executes a written consent to the composition or extension agreement prior to the receipt of the check or draft.

- The creditor receives written notice, not less than 15 days nor more than 90 days prior to receipt of the check or draft, that a check or draft will be tendered with a restrictive endorsement and that acceptance and cashing of the check or draft will constitute an accord and satisfaction.

For purposes of Civ. Code § 1526(b)(2), mailing the notice by first-class mail, postage prepaid, addressed to the address shown for the creditor on the debtor's books or such other address as the creditor may designate in writin,g constitutes notice [Civ. Code § 1526(d)].

[2] Composition Agreements

[a] Defined

A composition of the debtor's outstanding obligations in lieu of or in addition to an extension agreement is another alternative. A composition agreement with creditors is an agreement, made on a sufficient consideration, between an insolvent or embarrassed debtor and his or her creditors, or a considerable proportion of them, whereby the creditors agree to accept a dividend less than the whole of their claims, to be distributed pro rata, in discharge and satisfaction of the whole [Reynolds v. Pennsylvania Oil Co. (1907) 150 Cal. 629, 634-635, 89 P. 610 (quoting from Wilson v. Samuels (1893) 100 Cal. 514, 518, 35 P. 148)]. The essence of the agreement is that the assenting creditors agree to forbear prosecution of their claims and agree to discharge their claims against the debtor on payment of less than the full amount of their claims [see Reynolds v. Pennsylvania Oil Co. (1907) 150 Cal. 629, 634, 89 P. 610 ; Pierson v. McCahill (1862) 21 Cal. 122, 128] . The agreement may provide for the cash payment of a negotiated uniform percentage of the amounts of the claims (composition), or it may be a combination composition-extension agreement whereby the assenting creditors agree to accept a negotiated uniform percentage, in discharge of the full amounts of their claims, under which they are paid a designated part in cash and the balance over an extended period of time, usually in installments [see California Legal Forms, Ch. 78, Creditors' Agreements: Nonbankruptcy Alternatives (Matthew Bender)].

[b] Consideration

Except as modified by statute [see Civ. Code § 1524], an agreement between a debtor and a single creditor for the acceptance by the creditor of an amount less than that owed in full satisfaction of the debt is invalid for want of consideration [Pierson v. McCahill (1862) 21 Cal. 122, 129] . In comparison, a composition is an agreement between a debtor and two or more creditors. It is considered an agreement among the creditors themselves as well as an agreement between the debtor and the creditors [Reynolds v. Pennsylvania Oil Co. (1907) 150 Cal. 629, 634, 89 P. 610] , since the creditors agree among themselves to forego their right to pursue the usual method of enforcing their demands in consideration of being paid a less sum at a given time. In this respect, the agreement is binding on the creditors, since the engagement of each creditor is a sufficient consideration for the engagement of the others to do the same [Wilson v. Samuels (1893) 100 Cal. 514, 520, 35 P. 148 ; Pierson v. McCahill (1862) 21 Cal. 122, 129] . For an affirmative defense to a creditor's action against a debtor when the action is barred by composition agreement, see § 307.53.

[c] Good Faith of Parties Required

The law demands the utmost good faith on the part of the debtor in effecting a composition agreement. It will not, for example, permit a debtor, by pretending to be insolvent, to induce the creditors to accept a small portion of their debts in lieu of the whole when, in fact, the debtor's property is ample to pay the creditors in full. This good faith requires that the debtor, before being permitted to profit by the composition agreement, make a full and fair disclosure of assets to, and practice no concealment, deception, or fraud on, the creditors [Boas v. Bank of America (1942) 51 Cal. App. 2d 592, 597, 125 P.2d 620 (disapproved on another point in Gagne v. Bertran (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 481, 488 n. 5, 275 P.2d 15); see also Bank of America v. Greenbach (1950) 98 Cal. App. 2d 220, 233-234, 219 P.2d 814 (creditor has legal right to rely on debtor's statements and debtor is required to make full and complete disclosure and exercise utmost good faith)].

The law also demands the utmost good faith between the debtor and the creditors in entering into a composition agreement. Such agreements rest on the express or implied understanding that all the creditors are to share in the assets of the debtor [O'Brien v. Greenebaum (1891) 92 Cal. 104, 107, 28 P. 214 ; Muth v. Educators Security Ins. Co. (1981) 114 Cal. App. 3d 749, 758, 170 Cal. Rptr. 849] . Hence, if some of the creditors have, unknown to the others, obtained as a consideration for their assent more favorable terms than are disclosed by the agreement, the agreement is fraudulent and void as to those creditors who did not receive such secret preferences [O'Brien v. Greenebaum (1891) 92 Cal. 104, 107, 28 P. 214] .

Finally, the law requires that the creditors act in good faith among themselves, since a composition is also an agreement among the creditors by which each creditor agrees with the others to receive the sum fixed by the agreement in satisfaction of his, her, or its debt. Hence, a secret preference paid by a person other than the debtor, such as a friend or relative of the debtor, and not from the debtor's assets, to induce the creditors to whom it is paid to enter into the composition agreement violates the principles of equity and the mutual confidence among creditors on which the agreement is based and renders the agreement invalid [Kullman v. Greenebaum (1891) 92 Cal. 403, 404-406, 28 P. 674] .

[2] Discharge of Debtor

[a] Release of Debtor as Condition of Assignment

When transaction is considered mortgage and not assignment for benefit of creditors, exercise of power of sale in contract of conveyance bars creditor under Code Civ. Proc. § 580d from maintaining action to recover deficiency on note. Jensen v. Friedman (1947) 79 Cal. App. 2d 494, 498-501, 507, 179 P.2d 855

Assignment for benefit of creditors and payment of dividends thereunder ordinarily does not discharge debtor, except to extent that claims of creditors are thereby reduced by actual payment. Boteler v. Robinson (1930) 105 Cal. App. 611, 615, 288 P. 135

Condition in assignment which releases debtor from further liability on assignment of assets binds creditors who accept benefits of assignment. Boteler v. Robinson (1930) 105 Cal. App. 611, 615, 288 P. 135 ; Equitable Life Assur. Soc'y v. Jacobson (1924) 68 Cal. App. 717, 722, 230 P. 200

[b] Secured Creditors

Security agreement in which creditor retains title to property is not affected by creditor's promise to release claim against debtor since, in absence of contrary intention, assignment does not include property retained by creditor as security. Stoody Co. v. Valley Pipe & Welding Co. (1937) 20 Cal. App. 2d 580, 586-587, 67 P.2d 747

Lien or other security normally does not continue to exist on acceptance of benefits of assignment containing condition that debtor is discharged on making assignment. Equitable Life Assur. Soc'y v. Jacobson (1924) 68 Cal. App. 717, 722, 230 P. 200

[3] Duties of Assignee

Assignee for benefit of creditors has discretion, according to what he or she considers to be in best interest of creditors, to perform or refuse to perform assignor's part of executory contract; but in dealing with assignor's obligations, assignee is required to exercise ordinary prudence and good faith, and when assignee induces other party to perform or otherwise reaps benefit of contract, he or she is required to assume its obligations. Sweet v. Markwart (1958) 158 Cal. App. 2d 700, 707, 323 P.2d 192

[4] Duties of Trustee

Requirement that trustees in bankruptcy read and "reasonably construe" documents sent to them. In re Franciscan Vineyards, Inc. (9th Cir. 1979) 597 F.2d 181

[5] Jurisdiction of Action to Determine Creditor's Rights

General jurisdiction to determine respective rights of creditors where assignment for benefit of creditors is made reposes in superior court. Hempy v. Public Utilities Com. (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 214, 217, 14 Cal. Rptr. 436, 363 P.2d 476

[6] Parties Bound by Assignment

[a] In General

Assignment for benefit of creditors which is otherwise valid common law assignment is not invalid as against creditors of assignor by reason of failure to record assignment as required by (former) Civ. Code § 3465 [repealed by Stats. 1980, Ch 135] for statutory assignments. Bumb v. Bennett (1958) 51 Cal. 2d 294, 299, 333 P.2d 23

Valid common law assignment of stock in trade for benefit of creditors generally prevails over subsequent attachment. Brainard v. Fitzgerald (1935) 3 Cal. 2d 157, 163, 44 P.2d 336

Acceptance of assignment for benefit of creditors generally is presumed until contrary is shown. Brainard v. Fitzgerald (1935) 3 Cal. 2d 157, 163, 44 P.2d 336

Common law assignment for benefit of creditors is binding on assigning debtor and all creditors who assent. Peterson v. Ball (1931) 211 Cal. 461, 468, 296 P. 291 ; Jarvis v. Webber (1925) 196 Cal. 86, 98-99, 236 P. 138

Creditor has right to proceed against other assets of debtor although creditor had assented to assignment and accepted its benefits. Lacy v. Gunn (1904) 144 Cal. 511, 518, 78 P. 30 ; Mechanics Bank v. Rosenberg (1962) 201 Cal. App. 2d 419, 20 Cal. Rptr. 202

Common law assignment is, at most, void only against creditors not assenting thereto and purchasers and encumbrancers in good faith and for value. Wilhoit v. Lyons (1893) 98 Cal. 409, 412, 33 P. 325 ; Garn v. Thorwaldson (1919) 40 Cal. App. 62, 66, 180 P. 9

[b] Fraudulent Transfers

Provisions of former Civ. Code § 3440 (now see Civ. Code §§ 3440-3440.9) (presumably fraudulent transfers of personal property not accompanied by immediate delivery and continued change of possession) exempting general assignments for benefit of creditors. Brainard v. Fitzgerald (1935) 3 Cal. 2d 157, 159, 44 P.2d 336

Nonconsenting creditor not bound by transfer of personal property made for benefit of certain creditors which did not comply with provisions of former Civ. Code § 3440 (now see Civ. Code §§ 3440-3440.9) in that there was lack of requisite delivery and continual change of possession. Jarvis v. Webber (1925) 196 Cal. 86, 99, 236 P. 138

[c] Nonconsenting Creditors

Although requirement in common law assignment for particular creditors that creditors surrender their security or forfeit right to participate in proceeds of assignment may be so unreasonable as to render assignment invalid as against nonconsenting creditor, that objection cannot be raised by parties not injured by enforcement of condition. Bumb v. Bennett (1938) 51 Cal. 2d 294, 300, 333 P.2d 23

Common law assignment for benefit of certain creditors does not bind nonconsenting creditor to transfer of property, and creditors' consent cannot be compelled by any act of debtor, trustee, or other creditors. Jarvis v. Webber (1925) 196 Cal. 86, 99, 236 P. 138

[d] Waiver of Assignment Irregularities

Creditor who accepts assignment by filing claim under it thereby waives all objections to regularity of assignment and to assignee's title to assets. Lacy v. Gunn (1904) 144 Cal. 511, 516, 78 P. 30 (statutory assignment)

[7] Priorities

[a] Sales and Use Taxes

Rev. & Tax Code § 6756 (preference of sales and use taxes) expresses legislative intent that tax obligations are preferred as to principal, interest, and penalties in all cases of assignment for benefit of creditors and that right to interest and penalties is not cut off by mere fact of assignment. People v. Warfel (1958) 162 Cal. App. 2d 400, 408, 328 P.2d 456

Priority conferred by Rev. & Tax Code § 6756 (recovery of sales and use taxes) is applicable only to cases of insolvency where state would otherwise be required to share equal footing with employer's general creditors. Durkin v. Durkin (1955) 133 Cal. App. 2d 283, 286, 284 P.2d 185

[b] Wage Claims

NOTE:
The following cases were decided prior to the 1979 amendment of Code Civ. Proc. § 1204 .

Assignment for benefit of creditors creates in wage claimants of assignor a lien on property assigned superior in entitlement to expenses of administration and liquidation incurred by assignee. Meyer v. Bass (9th Cir. 1960) 281 F.2d 728, 731 ; Division of Labor Law Enforcement v. Stanley Restaurants (9th Cir. 1955) 228 F.2d 420, 423

Intent of Code Civ. Proc. § 1204 (preference of wage claims over claims of assignees of assignments for benefit of creditors) to ease economic burden of employees of businesses in financial distress. Dunlop v. Tremayne (1965) 62 Cal. 2d 427, 429, 42 Cal. Rptr. 438, 398 P.2d 774

Payments made by employer, pursuant to industry-wide bargaining agreement, into independent trust funds for medical, welfare, and retirement benefits constitute wages under Code Civ. Proc. § 1204 and, hence, have priority over trustee's claims. Dunlop v. Tremayne (1965) 62 Cal. 2d 427, 429-431, 42 Cal. Rptr. 438, 398 P.2d 774

Under rule of ejusdem generis, words "other persons" in Code Civ. Proc. § 1204 are intended to refer to those in same general class as those specifically mentioned; that is, other persons not standing in relation to corporation in official capacity. Carpenter v. Policy Holders Life Ins. Ass'n (1937) 9 Cal. 2d 167, 170, 70 P.2d 487

Officials of corporation, such as president, vice president, or secretary treasurer, are not entitled to preferential claim under Code Civ. Proc. § 1204 for unpaid balance of salaries due them when corporation passes into liquidation. Carpenter v. Policy Holders Life Ins. Ass'n (1937) 9 Cal. 2d 167, 169, 70 P.2d 487

Assignee does not assume contractual obligations of insolvent; thus, assignee is not liable to employee of insolvent for term of his or her contract remaining after insolvent discontinued its business operations. Credit Managers' Assn. v. Brubaker (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 1587, 1594, 285 Cal. Rptr. 417 (but affirming recovery in quantum meruit for two weeks of service assisting in winding down insolvent's affairs)

Officer or major shareholder in corporation is entitled to wage preference under Code Civ. Proc. § 1204 in property assigned for benefit of creditors for services performed within specific designations in section. Clark v. Marjorie Michael, Inc. (1939) 34 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 775, 777-785 , 90 P.2d 866

[8] Recording of Assignment of Real Property

Fact that conveyance of real property is not recorded does not render assignment invalid since unrecorded deed or assignment is sufficient to pass title against subsequent attaching creditor. Bumb v. Bennett (1958) 51 Cal. 2d 294, 299-300, 333 P.2d 23

Assignment of real property for benefit of creditors is conveyance under Civ. Code § 1215 and subject to all provisions of Civil Code relating to transfers of real property. Moore v. Schneider (1925) 196 Cal. 380, 389-392, 238 P. 81

[9] Requirement of Debtor's Complete Divestment

Reservation in assignment of surplus of property assigned after creditors have been paid does not invalidate assignment since assignee would hold excess as agent or trustee for assignor in any case. Heath v. Wilson (1903) 139 Cal. 362, 369, 73 P. 182

Intention of debtor to divest himself or herself of property subject to assignment for benefit of creditors is required to be present; however, secret intent to reserve interest is not controlling if transaction effected complete divestment. Mechanics Bank v. Rosenberg (1962) 201 Cal. App. 2d 419, 424, 20 Cal. Rptr. 202

[10] Requisites of Common Law Assignments

[a] In General

Consideration for general assignment for benefit of creditors is antecedent debt owed by assignor to creditors. Brainard v. Fitzgerald (1935) 3 Cal. 2d 157, 163, 44 P.2d 336 ; First Nat'l Bank v. Pomona Tile Mfg. Co. (1947) 82 Cal. App. 2d 592, 607, 186 P.2d 693

If intention of debtor is merely to secure debt and conveyance is not intended as absolute disposition of property, but debtor reserves right therein, conveyance is treated as mortgage, although debtor is insolvent, and conveyance covers all debtor's property, and but portion of debts are secured by it. Heath v. Wilson (1903) 139 Cal. 362, 369, 73 P. 182

If conveyance is to trustee with intention to divest oneself not only of title, but of all control over property, and to convey absolutely, and with purpose of securing distribution of its proceeds among creditors, in legal effect conveyance is assignment for benefit of creditors. Sabichi v. Chase (1895) 108 Cal. 81, 86, 41 P. 29 (disapproved in Bumb v. Bennett (1958) 51 Cal. 2d 294, 300, 333 P.2d 23 insofar as preferential assignments were held invalid)

[b] Right to Make Preferences

Since insolvent is permitted lawfully to pay one or more of his or her creditors to exclusion of others by direct transfer, insolvent is permitted to do same thing by way of transfer in trust when there is no basis for contending that transfer is in fraud of creditors. Bumb v. Bennett (1958) 51 Cal. 2d 294, 300, 333 P.2d 23

Creditor violated no rule of law by taking payment or security for his or her demand, though others are thereby deprived of all means of obtaining satisfaction of their own equally meritorious claims. Heath v. Wilson (1903) 139 Cal. 362, 367, 73 P. 182

Assignee is entitled to prejudgment interest under Civ. Code § 3282(a) on amount of preference recovered from date of demand letter that requested exact amount awarded; demand letter set forth exact amounts and manner of their calculation. Credit Managers' Assn. v. Brubaker (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 1587, 1595, 285 Cal. Rptr. 417

[11] Status of Assignee

Assignee under common law assignment is representative of assignor and not of creditors. Peterson v. Ball (1931) 211 Cal. 461, 471, 296 P. 291

Assignee of common law assignment for benefit of creditors acquires no greater right in property than assignor has at time of assignment, takes only interest of assignor in and to property and is unable to assert claim to property which assignor might not. Moore v. Schneider (1925) 196 Cal. 380, 385-386, 238 P. 81

Assignee not permitted to maintain action to set aside fraudulent conveyance made by assignor since conveyance is binding on assignor and, therefore, binding on assignee. Moore v. Schneider (1925) 196 Cal. 380, 385, 387, 238 P. 81

Assignee for benefit of creditors entitled to be substituted in action in place of assignor; assignor's default to be set aside. Credit Managers Ass'n v. National Indep. Bus. Alliance (1984) 162 Cal. App. 3d 1166, 1171-1173, 209 Cal. Rptr. 119

Assignee for benefit of creditors is not bona fide purchaser for value because he or she is not purchaser for value within meaning of that phrase. First Nat'l Bank v. Pomona Tile Mfg. Co. (1947) 82 Cal. App. 2d 592, 607, 186 P.2d 693

Assignment for benefit of creditors does not have priority over other assignments under assignment priority rules since it is not for value. First Nat'l Bank v. Pomona Tile Mfg. Co. (1947) 82 Cal. App. 2d 592, 607-608, 186 P.2d 693

[1] FORM Complaint by Common Law Assignee for Benefit of Creditors Against Judgment Creditor of Debtor to Quiet Title [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 760.020(a), 761.020] and for Preliminary and Permanent Injunction [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 526, 527]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)
vs.	)	NO. _____
_____ [name(s) of known defendant(s)] [if unknown defendants are included, add:; and all persons unknown, claiming any legal or equitable right, title, estate, lien, or interest in the property described in the complaint adverse to plaintiff's title, or any cloud on plaintiff's title thereto],	)	COMPLAINT TO QUIET TITLE TO REAL PROPERTY AND FOR PRELIMINARY AND PERMANENT INJUNCTION

Plaintiff alleges:

1. Defendant _____ [name] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a resident of _____ County, California.

2. Plaintiff is now, and at all times herein mentioned was, the common law assignee for the benefit of [certain specified] creditors of _____ [name of assignor], hereinafter referred to as the assignor [, and such other creditors as consented to the terms of the assignment]. This assignment was executed and signed by the assignor on _____ [date][, and on _____ (date), was duly recorded in the Official Records of _____ County, California, Book/Reel _____, page/image _____ (or allege other facts putting defendant(s) on notice prior to his/her/its acquiring interest in property)]. A copy of the assignment is attached as Exhibit A and incorporated by reference.

3. Under the assignment, the assignor assigned to plaintiff all of his/her/its property of every kind and nature wheresoever situated, both real and personal or mixed, including the following-described real property located in _____ County, California: _____ [give legal description and street address or common designation, if any]. Defendant _____ [name] claims and asserts an interest in this real property adverse to plaintiff.

4. Plaintiff was _____ [seised or possessed] of the above-described property within five years of the commencement of this action.

5. On the date of the execution and signing of the assignment by the assignor, defendant was a creditor of the assignor who was indebted to defendant in the sum of $_____.

[6. On or about _____ (date), defendant, although not a party to the assignment and not named specifically as a creditor for whose benefit the assignment was made, consented to the assignment by _____ (describe actions of defendant which manifested his or her or its assent to assignment).]

7. On _____ [date], defendant, as plaintiff, filed an action in the _____ [specify, e.g., Superior] Court in and for the County of _____ against the assignor on the debt referred to in Paragraph 5.

8. On _____ [date], a judgment was entered in that action in favor of the plaintiff (defendant herein), and on or about _____ [date], a writ of execution was issued by the clerk of the court that rendered the judgment. [A certified copy each of the judgment and of the writ of execution are attached as Exhibits B and C, respectively, and incorporated by reference.] On or about _____ [date], defendant herein caused the writ of execution to be levied on the real property hereinabove described.

9. Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that defendant is about to cause the above-described real property to be sold to satisfy the judgment in the action against the assignor.

10. Plaintiff has had an appraisal made of the assets of the assignor in the assignment, and the books and records of the assignor indicate that accounts payable and debts of the assignor surpass in amount the value of the appraised assigned estate. Therefore it is anticipated there will be no residue that plaintiff may return to the assignor on satisfaction of his/her/its liabilities, pursuant to the terms of the assignment.

11. Plaintiff is attempting, pursuant to the assignment, to collect the assets of the assignor, to convert these assets to cash, and to make distribution to the creditors of the assignor and, more particularly, plaintiff is and has been attempting to sell the above-described real property. Plaintiff has been hindered in his/her/its negotiation for this sale by reason of the attachment and execution by defendant, and therefore delayed in the speedy distribution of the estate to the creditors of the assignor, thereby causing plaintiff great and irreparable injury.

[12. If unknown defendants have been named, allege: The defendants herein named as "all persons unknown, claiming any legal or equitable right, title, estate, lien, or interest in the property described in the complaint adverse to plaintiff's title, or cloud on plaintiff's title thereto" are unknown to plaintiff. These defendants, and each of them, claim some right, title, estate, lien, or interest in the above-described property adverse to plaintiff's title and their claim or claims constitute a cloud on plaintiff's title. These claims are without any right whatever and these defendants have no right, title, estate, lien, or interest whatever in the above-described property or any part thereof.]

[13. If the claim of a named defendant is unknown, uncertain, or contingent, allege: The claim of _____ (name of defendant) is _____ (unknown or uncertain or contingent). (If the lack of knowledge, uncertainty, or contingency is caused by a transfer to an unborn or unascertained person or class member, or by a transfer in the form of a contingent remainder, vested remainder subject to defeasance, executory interest, or similar disposition, allege: _____ (Name), age _____, is the person who would be entitled to an adverse claim if _____ (describe contingency) had occurred prior to the commencement of this action.) (If person is subject to a legal disability, allege: This person is subject to _____ (specify legal disability)).]

14. Pecuniary compensation would not afford plaintiff adequate relief because of the difficulty in measuring the damages involved in the delay of distributing the assignor's estate to his/her/its creditors[, _____ (allege any additional facts showing inadequacy of legal remedy)], and, therefore, plaintiff has no adequate remedy at law.

15. Plaintiff seeks to quiet title against the claims of defendant(s) as follows: the claim of _____ [named defendant] based on the debt, judgment, and writ described in Paragraphs 5, 7 and 8[; _____ (continue with whichever are applicable: successor defendants described in Paragraph _____; all persons unknown as described in Paragraph 12; and _____ (name), whose unknown, uncertain, or contingent claim, if any, is fully described in Paragraph 13)]. Defendants' claims, and each of them, are without any right whatever and defendants, and each of them, have no right, title, estate, lien, or interest whatever in the above-described property, or any part of that property[, except the following: _____ (set forth any adverse claims of which plaintiff admits the validity, e.g., a utility easement held by Pacific Gas and Electric Company)].

16. Plaintiff seeks to quiet title as of _____ [date]. [If the date is a date other than the date on which the complaint was filed, allege why a determination is sought as of that date.]

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment as follows:

1. For a judgment quieting title in plaintiff's interest in the above-described real property and determining the ownership rights in the property of plaintiff and defendant(s);

2. That defendant be ordered to release the real property herein described from the levy of the writ of execution made on it;

3. That defendant and his/her/its officers and agents, and each of them, be enjoined pendente lite and permanently both from selling the real property herein described pursuant to the levy of the writ of execution heretofore made or causing any future levy on that property pursuant to the writ; that this court make an order directing defendant to show cause, at a time and place appointed in that order, why he/she/it should not be enjoined and restrained during the pendency of this action from doing any of the above-mentioned acts and things; that a temporary restraining order be granted to plaintiff herein enjoining and restraining defendant, his/her/its agents, officers, and employees, and each of them, until the hearing on the order to show cause, from doing or causing to be done, and continuing, any of the acts or other things herein complained of; and that, on the hearing of the order to show cause, a preliminary injunction be granted, enjoining defendant and his/her/its agents, officers, and employees from doing any of these acts and things during the pendency of the action;

4. That, in the alternative, this court make a binding declaration of plaintiff's rights and duties in the real property hereinabove described and of defendant's rights and duties therein, and that it be adjudged and decreed by the court that if defendant has any rights in and to this property, such rights are merely rights against the contingent residuary interest of the assignor by virtue of the assignment made to plaintiff;

5. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

6. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

The complaint in [1], above, is for use by the assignee of an assignment for the benefit of creditors in an action against a judgment creditor of the assignor to quiet title to real property on which the judgment creditor is attempting to execute [see Bumb v. Bennett (1958) 51 Cal. 2d 294, 298, 333 P.2d 23] . The form is based on the fact that the assignment was prior to defendant's attempted execution on the real property [see Bumb v. Bennett (1958) 51 Cal. 2d 294, 300, 333 P.2d 23 ; Brainard v. Fitzgerald (1935) 3 Cal. 2d 157, 161, 44 P.2d 336] or that defendant as a creditor of the assignor consented to the assignment [see Peterson v. Ball (1931) 211 Cal. 461, 468, 296 P. 291 ; see also § 307.19].

A plaintiff who intends to name "all persons unknown" as defendants may wish to obtain a title report before commencing the action, because an examination of the record title and an inspection of the property will be necessary [see Code Civ. Proc. § 762.060(b)]. The court also may order plaintiff to obtain a title report and keep it available for inspection and copying by the parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 762.040(b)].

[3] Allegations

The complaint in [1], above, alleges the following:

- The status of plaintiff as assignee of an assignment for the benefit of creditors and the nature of the assignment (Paragraph 2).

- The assignment of all the assignor's property as the basis for plaintiff's title and the legal and street description of the property (Paragraph 3) [Code Civ. Proc. § 761.020(a),(b)].

- That plaintiff has been seised or possessed of the real property in question within five years of the date on which the action was filed (Paragraph 4) [Code Civ. Proc. § 318].

- The status of defendant as a creditor of plaintiff on the date of the assignment (Paragraph 5).

- The status of other defendants who are either unknown (Paragraph 12) [Code Civ. Proc. § 762.020(a)] or whose claim is unknown, uncertain, or contingent (Paragraph 13) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 762.020(b)].

- An optional allegation that defendant had consented to the terms of the assignment (Paragraph 6) [see Peterson v. Ball (1931) 211 Cal. 461, 468, 296 P. 291] .

- The defendant's adverse claim to certain real property that formed part of the assignment to plaintiff, based on defendant's civil action against the assignor and his, her, or its subsequent enforcement proceedings (Paragraphs 3, 7-9, 11).

- The insufficiency of the assets of the assignment to satisfy the demands on the assignor's estate (Paragraph 10).

- The claims against which plaintiff seeks to have titled quieted (Paragraph 15) [Code. Civ. Proc. § 761.020(c)].

- Any defendants' claims plaintiff admits are valid (Paragraph 15) [Code. Civ. Proc. § 762.060(c)].

- The date as of which plaintiff seeks to have title quieted, including, if necessary, the reasons why title is sought to be quieted as of some date other than the date on which the complaint is filed (Paragraph 16) [Code. Civ. Proc. § 761.020(d)].

The complaint in [1], above, does not contain any allegations regarding fictitious defendants [Code Civ. Proc. § 474], nor any allegations regarding defendants who are personal representatives [Code Civ. Proc. § 762.030(a)] or heirs and intestate or testate successors [Code Civ. Proc. § 762.030(b)] of persons known or believed by the plaintiff to be deceased. If those defendants are necessary in a particular situation [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 762.010, 762.030], use the appropriate allegations from Ch. 482, Quieting Title , Form 1. Note also that a lis pendens must be filed as soon as the complaint is filed [see Code Civ. Proc. § 761.010(b), discussed under [8], below].

For a detailed discussion of the allegations required in a complaint to quiet title, see Ch. 482, Quieting Title .

[4] Prayer

A complaint to quiet title must include a prayer for the determination of the title against adverse claims [Code Civ. Proc. § 761.020(e)].

[5] Verification

A complaint to quiet title must be verified [Code Civ. Proc. § 761.020].

[6] Alternative Remedies

In the case of an attachment of the assignor's real or personal property that passed to the assignee, a possible alternative remedy to the complaint in [1], above, to quiet title is a motion for wrongful attachment based on the fact that the levy of attachment was on property other than that of the person against whom the writ was issued [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 490.010(d), 490.050 (person not party to action whose property is attached as permitted to move for wrongful attachment in that action)]. For a discussion and form for a motion for wrongful attachment, see Ch. 62, Attachments . In addition, if the creditor of the assignor has caused a levy of attachment or execution on personal property assigned to the assignee in a creditor's action against the assignor, the assignee may make a third-party claim [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 720.010-720.800] claiming title and right to possession of the personal property levied on in the action. For discussion and forms for third-party claims, see Ch. 254, Executions and Enforcement of Judgments, § 254.310 et seq.

[7] Certification re Notice

When a temporary restraining order is sought without formal notice to the opposing party, the applicant or the applicant's attorney must certify to the court under oath one of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 527(c)(2)]:

- That within a reasonable time before the application, the applicant informed the opposing party or the opposing party's attorney when and where the application would be made.

- That the applicant in good faith attempted, but was unable, to inform the opposing party and the opposing party's attorney, specifying the efforts made to contact them.

- That for reasons specified the applicant should not be required to so inform the opposing party or the opposing party's attorney.

An additional requirement is that it must appear from facts shown by affidavit or verified complaint that great or irreparable injury will result to the applicant before the matter can be heard on the notice [Code Civ. Proc. § 527(c)(1)].

[8] Lis Pendens

Immediately on the commencement of the filing of a complaint to quiet title, the plaintiff must file a lis pendens in the office of the county recorder of each county in which any real property described in the complaint is located [Code Civ. Proc. § 761.010; see generally Ch. 482, Quieting Title and Ch. 348, Lis Pendens].

§ 307.51 Complaint by Assignee for Benefit of Creditors to Recover Transfer of Property of Assignor [Code Civ. Proc. § 1800]

[1] FORM Complaint by Assignee for Benefit of Creditors to Recover Transfer of Property of Assignor [Code Civ. Proc. § 1800]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)	NO. _____
Plaintiff,	)	COMPLAINT TO RECOVER TRANSFER OF vs.	)	PROPERTY OF ASSIGNOR FOR BENEFIT OF
_____ [name(s)],	)	CREDITORS
Defendant(s).	)	Time: _____
	)	Location: _____
	)	Judge: _____
	)	Date Action Filed: _____
		Trial Date: _____

Plaintiff alleges:

1. _____ [Capacity and residence of defendant. See § 307.50[1], Paragraph 1].

2. _____ [Allege plaintiff's capacity as assignee of general assignment for the benefit of creditors. See § 307.50[1], Paragraph 2].

3. _____ [Allege facts regarding assignment, e.g., Under the assignment, _____ (name of assignor), the assignor, assigned to plaintiff all of his/her/its property of every kind and nature wheresoever situated, both real and personal or mixed].

4. On _____ [date], the assignor transferred _____ [specify property] to or for the benefit of _____ [name of defendant] who is a creditor of the assignor.

[EITHER]

5. The above-described transfer was made on or within 90 days before the date of the making of the above-described assignment.

[OR]

5. The above-described transfer was made between 90 days and one year before the date of the making of the above-described assignment. Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that at the time of the above-described transfer, defendant was an insider in that he/she/it was _____ [specify role as insider, e.g., a general partner of the assignor], and that defendant had reasonable cause to believe the assignor was insolvent at the time of the transfer.

6. Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that the above-described transfer of property was for and on account of an antecedent debt owned by the assignor to defendant before the transfer was made.

7. The above-described transfer of property was made while the assignor was insolvent in that _____ [specify facts showing assignor was insolvent within definition of Civ. Code § 1800(a), e.g., the sum of the assignor's debts was greater than all of his/ her/its property, at fair valuation, exclusive of property transferred, concealed, or removed with intent to hinder, delay, or defraud his/her/its creditors and property exempted from property of the estate under Code of Civil Procedure Section 699.010 et seq.].

8. Plaintiff has had an appraisal made of the assets of the assignor in the assignment, and the books and records of the assignor indicate that the transfer to defendant will enable defendant to receive more than will other creditors of the assignor of the same class.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment as follows:

1. That defendant be ordered to transfer the property received from the assignor to plaintiff assignee;

2. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

3. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

Attorney for Plaintiff

[Verification, if desired. See § 307.50[1].]

[2] Use of Form

The complaint in [1], above, is for use by an assignee of a general assignment for the benefit of creditors in an action to recover a transfer of property of the assignor. For a description of transfers of property which the assignee may not recover, see § 307.20[13], above.

[3] Allegations

The complaint alleges:

- The status of plaintiff as assignee of an assignment for the benefit of creditors (Paragraph 2).
- Facts concerning the assignment (Paragraph 3).
- The transfer of property to defendant creditor (Paragraph 4).
- Either that the transfer was made on or within 90 days before the date of the making of the assignment, or that the transfer was made between 90 days and one year before the date of the making of the assignment when the creditor was an insider and had reasonable cause to believe the debtor was insolvent (Paragraph 5).
- That the transfer was for and on account of an antecedent debt owed by the assignor before the transfer was made (Paragraph 6).
- That the transfer was made while the assignor was insolvent (Paragraph 7).
- That the transfer would enable defendant creditor to receive more than would other creditors of the same class (Paragraph 8) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1800(b)].

[4] Statute of Limitations

An action by an assignee under Code Civ. Proc. § 1800 must be commenced within one year after the making of the assignment [Code Civ. Proc. § 1800(g)].

[5] Interest

An assignee was held entitled to prejudgment interest under Civ. Code § 3282(a) on the amount of preference recovered from the date of a demand letter that requested that exact amount awarded; when the demand letter set forth exact amounts and the manner of their computation [Credit Managers' Assn. v. Brubaker (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 1587, 1595, 285 Cal. Rptr. 417] .

[1] FORM Complaint for Declaratory Relief [Code Civ. Proc. § 1060]--By Creditor of Assignor Against Assignee for Benefit of Creditors to Determine Validity of Claim

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)
vs.	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	COMPLAINT FOR DECLARATORY RELIEF Defendant.	)

Plaintiff alleges:

1. [Capacity and residence of defendant. See § 307.50[1], Paragraph 1].

2. Plaintiff is now, and at all times mentioned herein has been, a creditor of _____ [name of assignor], hereinafter referred to as the assignor, holding a claim against the assignor in the sum of $_____. This claim arose as follows: _____ [set out circumstances and particular facts concerning debt].

3. On or about _____ [date], the assignor made an assignment for the benefit of creditors to defendant, and defendant, since that date, has been and now is the assignee for the benefit of creditors of the assignor.

4. Since the date alleged in Paragraph 3, defendant has reduced all of the assets of the assignment to cash and has a sum of money presently available for distribution among the creditors of the assignor in an amount unknown to plaintiff.

5. Immediately after the assignment, plaintiff duly filed his/her/its creditor's claim against the assignor with defendant as the the assignee for the benefit of creditors.

6. An actual controversy has arisen and now exists between plaintiff and defendant as to whether plaintiff's claim should be allowed and be entitled to receive a proportionate share of the distribution of the dividends from the assets to be distributed among the total creditors of the assignor. Plaintiff claims _____ [set forth plaintiff's contentions]. Whereas, defendant claims _____ [set forth defendant's contentions].

7. Plaintiff desires a judicial determination of his/her/its rights and duties, and a declaration as to whether or not plaintiff is eligible for and entitled to his/her/its proportionate share of the moneys to be distributed by defendant, and whether or not the assets of the assignor in the hands of defendant are now in a condition for distribution to the creditors.

8. Such a declaration is necessary and appropriate at this time in order that the parties may ascertain their respective rights and duties.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment as follows:

1. For a determination of the rights of the parties herein and their duties and obligations with respect to the matters and things set forth in the foregoing complaint;

2. For a declaration allowing the plaintiff's claim and adjudging that plaintiff is entitled to receive whatever shares may be allowed by defendant in connection with the distribution of the assets of the assignor pursuant to the assignment for the benefit of creditors made to defendant;

3. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

4. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

§ 307.53 Affirmative Defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)] to Creditor's Action Against Debtor--Action Barred by Composition Agreement

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)] to Creditor's Action Against Debtor--Action Barred by Composition Agreement

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that:

1. On or about _____ [date], defendant and his/her creditors, including plaintiff, entered into and executed a composition agreement by the terms of which the creditors agreed to accept part payment in full satisfaction of their claims against defendant [and to forego legal action against defendant unless defendant failed to make payment as provided in the agreement,] and agreed that, on receipt of payment according to the terms of the agreement, their claims against defendant would be fully discharged. The claim sued on is covered by the composition agreement, a copy of which is attached as Exhibit 1 and incorporated by reference.

2. _____ [Specify performance of agreement or prematurity of action, e.g., On or about _____ (date), defendant paid plaintiff the full sum of $_____, in accordance with the terms of the composition agreement, and was therefore discharged from any and all liability to plaintiff on account of the claim sued on or Payment pursuant to the terms of the agreement is not due until _____ (date), and this action therefore is premature].

[2] Use of Form

The affirmative defense in [1], above, is for use in an answer to the complaint in a creditor's action against his or her debtor when the claim sued on is covered by a composition agreement entered into between defendant and his or her creditors, including plaintiff, and the agreement has been fully performed, or the time for performance has not yet arrived.

For discussion of composition agreements, see § 307.24[2].

Chapter 308 INSURANCE
PART I. SCOPE

26-308 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 308.01

§ 308.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter discusses insurance and contains forms for use in actions by and against insurance companies, insureds, brokers, and agents. The chapter is divided into four major categories. The first relates to actions against insurance companies to receive policy benefits, the second to actions by and against agents, brokers, and employees, the third to actions by insurance companies, and the fourth to proceedings involving certification and licensing.

Pertaining to actions against insurance companies to receive policy benefits, this chapter discusses insurance generally [see § 308.10 et seq.] and contains a general form of complaint by a beneficiary, insured, or loss-payable payee against the insurer to recover policy benefits [§ 308.370], various forms of allegations [§§ 308.371- 308.378] for insertion in such a complaint, a complaint by the insured against the insurer for damages for tortious breach of an insurance contract [§ 308.379], and a complaint by the insured under a health and accident policy against the insurer for declaratory relief as to the extent of coverage and for damages for intentional infliction of emotional distress [§ 308.380].

This chapter also discusses life insurance [see § 308.40 et seq.] and contains a complaint by an insured against the insurer to recover the cash surrender value of his or her policy [§ 308.390], a complaint by the named beneficiary under a group policy to recover life insurance proceeds [§ 308.391], and an allegation of the presumption of death where the insured has been missing for seven years [§ 308.392] for inclusion in a complaint to recover policy proceeds [see § 308.370]. For a complaint for reformation of an insurance policy based on mistake as to coverage and for damages for breach of the policy as reformed. For a complaint by a spouse to recover the community property interest in life insurance proceeds on the death of the other spouse.

This chapter also discusses disability insurance [see § 308.50 et seq.] and contains a general form of complaint by the insured against the insurer to recover insurance benefits under a disability policy [§ 308.400]. For complaints by insureds in actions against insurers to recover compensatory and punitive damages for tortious breach of contract, see §§ 308.379, 308.380.

This chapter also discusses property insurance and is divided into a general discussion [see § 308.60 et seq.], fire insurance [see § 308.70 et seq.], burglary and theft insurance [see § 308.80 et seq.], and comprehensive dwelling insurance [see § 308.90 et seq.]. For complaints by insureds in actions against insurers to recover compensatory and punitive damages for tortious breach of contract, see §§ 308.379, 308.380. The general discussion includes the following forms:

- A general form of complaint by an insured against an insurer that may be adapted for use in case of breach of any property insurance policy by the insurer [see § 308.410].

- An allegation of the insurable interest of the insured's transferee in the property [§ 308.411].

- Various allegations of loss [see §§ 308.412, 308.412].

- A general form of complaint by an insured for a declaration of the liability of each insurer in the case of multiple insurers when the amount of loss is not in dispute [see § 308.414].

This discussion on fire insurance [see § 308.70 et seq.] includes a complaint by an insured against the insurer in which an estoppel is pleaded against the insurer to rely on the 12-month limitation on a policy for filing a complaint [§ 308.420], a complaint for declaratory relief against several insurers and their agent under an oral contract for insurance [see § 308.421], and a cross complaint by the agent against his or her codefendant insurers for declaratory relief [see § 308.422]. §§ 308.410 -308.414 may also be adapted for use in actions on fire insurance policies.

The discussion on burglary and theft insurance [see § 308.80 et seq.] contains a general form of complaint by an insured against the insurer for the latter's failure to pay a loss covered by the policy [see § 308.430]. §§ 308.410 -308.414 may also be adapted for use in actions on burglary and theft insurance policies. For forms for use in actions on surety policies insuring against loss occasioned by an employee, see § 308.450 -308.451.

This discussion on comprehensive dwelling insurance policies including loss of property covered by a homeowners policy [see § 308.90 et seq.] includes two complaints by the insured against the insurer:

- To recover for loss for collapse of the dwelling's foundation [see § 308.440].

- To recover for loss caused by landslide [see § 308.441].

§§ 308.410- 308.414 may also be adapted for use in actions on comprehensive dwelling insurance policies.

This chapter also discusses surety insurance [see § 308.100 et seq.] and contains a complaint by the insured against the insurer on such a policy for failure of the insurer to pay a covered loss [see § 308.450], as well as alternative allegations of coverage and loss [see §§ 308.451, 308.452]. §§ 308.410 and 308.414 may also be adapted for use in actions on surety insurance policies. For complaints by insureds in actions against insurers to recover compensatory and punitive damages for tortious breach of contract, see §§ 308.379 and 308.380.

This chapter also discusses and contains forms relating to liability insurancegenerally [see § 308.110 et seq.]. The discussion includes the nature of liability insurance, the scope of the insurer's duty to defend the insured in a third-party action, the insurer's duty to investigate and settle a claim, and the insurer's duty of good faith and fair dealing regarding a third-party claim. It includes a form of complaint by the insured's judgment creditor against an insurer to recover the amount of a judgment obtained against the insured [see § 308.460], a form of complaint brought by an insured against the insurer to recover the amount of a third-party judgment against the insured in excess of the policy limits, based on the insurer's wrongful refusal to settle [see § 308.461], a form of complaint by the insured against the insurer to recover damages resulting from the insurer's wrongful refusal to defend the insured in a third-party action [see § 308.462], and a form of complaint by the insured's judgment creditor (after assignment by the insured) to recover the amount of the judgment against the insured in excess of policy limits, based on the insurer's wrongful failure to settle the claim within policy limits [see § 308.463]. For additional complaints by the insured against the insurer for breach of the implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing, see §§ 308.379 and 308.380.

This chapter also discusses marine insurance [see § 308.140 et seq.] and contains a complaint by the insured against the insurer on a valued policy insuring a ship [see § 308.470], a general form of complaint by an insured against the insurer on an open policy [see § 308.471], and a complaint by an insured against the insurer on a marine policy personal property floater [see § 308.472]. For actions against shipowners by injured workers and others, rights and remedies of shipowners, actions against shipowners by shippers, and actions for pilotage, salvage, and towage, and forms for use in such actions, see Ch. 522, Ships and Shipping .

This chapter also discusses arbitration and appraisal proceedings [see § 308.510 et seq.] and contains forms relating to appraisal only. For forms for use in arbitration proceedings, see Ch. 32, Contractual Arbitration: Agreements and Compelling Arbitration , Ch. 33, Contractual Arbitration: Appointment of Arbitrator and Conduct of Proceeding , and Ch. 34, Contractual Arbitration: Judicial Review . Included are a demand for appraisal of a loss under an insurance policy [§ 308.480], a petition and an order for appraisal of the amount of loss to the property covered by the insurance [see §§ 308.481, 308.482], a petition for appointment of and an order appointing an umpire on failure of the appraisers selected by the parties to do so [see §§ 308.483, 308.484], and a notice of the appraisers' award [see § 308.485].

This chapter also discusses some of the more common affirmative defenses that may be pleaded by insurance companies in their answers to complaints seeking recovery under insurance policies [see § 308.160 et seq.]. For a discussion and format of answers generally, see Ch. 26, Answers .

This chapter also contains complaints by and against insurance agents, brokers, and employees [see § 308.170 et seq.]. Included are complaints by a customer against a broker or agent for failure to secure issu ance of the policy or coverage ordered [see §§ 308.510 -308.512]; a complaint by an agent or broker against an insurance company for an accounting and damages for breach of contract [see § 308.513]; and a complaint by a former employee against an insurance company for damages for breach of an employement contract [see § 308.514].

This chapter also contains discussion of complaints filed by insurance companies. illustrative complaints for use in actions by insurance companies [see § 308.190 et seq.]. It includes the following forms:

- A complaint to recover an unpaid premium [see § 308.520].

- A complaint against an insured to recover payment made by the insurer under a policy and for damages for an insured's fraud in a claim or proof of loss [see § 308.521].

- A complaint by one insurer against another for a declaration as to which policy provides primary coverage and which excess coverage with respect to an insurable event [see § 308.522].

- A complaint by an insurer against the insured's independent (Cumis) counsel seeking damages for that counsel's negligent breach of its duties to the insurer under Civ. Code § 2860 [see § 308.523].

This chapter also discusses the certification of insurance businesses, the licensing of life agents and agent-brokers, and related disciplinary proceedings. It also includes a discussion of licensing and disciplinary proceedings for insurance adjusters [see § 308.190 et seq.].

§ 308.11 "Insurance" and "Policy" Defined

"Insurance" is a contract whereby one undertakes to indemnify another against loss, damage, or liability arising from a contingent or unknown event [Ins. Code § 22; see also Reichert v. General Ins. Co. (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 822, 830 n.5, 69 Cal. Rptr. 321, 442 P.2d 377 ; Fageol Truck & Coach Co. v. Pacific Indem. Co. (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 731, 739, 117 P.2d 661] . The contract is one of "adhesion" [see Smith v. Westland Life Ins. Co. (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 111, 122 n.12, 123 Cal. Rptr. 649, 539 P.2d 433 ; Young v. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co. (1969) 272 Cal. App. 2d 453, 460-461, 77 Cal. Rptr. 382 ; Schmidt v. Pacific Mut. Life Ins. Co. (1969) 268 Cal. App. 2d 735, 737, 74 Cal. Rptr. 367] . A contract of adhesion is a standardized contract which, imposed and drafted by the party of superior bargaining strength, relegates to the subscribing party only the opportunity to adhere to the contract or reject it [Schmidt v. Pacific Mut. Life Ins. Co. (1969) 268 Cal. App. 2d 735, 737, 74 Cal. Rptr. 367] .

The written instrument in which the contract of insurance is set forth is the "policy" [Ins. Code § 380].

§ 308.12 "Insurer" and "Insured" Defined

The person who undertakes to indemnify another by insurance is the "insurer" and the person indemnified is the "insured" [Ins. Code § 23]. In place of these words, the English variants, "assurance," "assurer," and "assured," are frequently used. Any person capable of making a contract may, subject to the restrictions imposed by the Insurance Code, be an insurer [Ins. Code § 150; for limitations on persons who may contract, see Fam. Code § 6700 et seq. (minors) and Civ. Code §§ 38-40 (persons of unsound mind); for emancipated minors' ability to enter into insurance contracts, see Fam. Code § 7051]. Any person except a public enemy may be insured [Ins. Code § 151].

A sole proprietorship is not a legal entity itself, but refers to a natural person who directly owns the business; therefore, an automobile registered in a sole proprietor's trade name is owned by the sole proprietor [Providence Wash. Ins. Co. v. Valley Forge Ins. Co. (1996) 42 Cal. App. 4th 1194, 1199, 50 Cal. Rptr. 2d 192] . As to whether the individual is also the insured, an "insured" under statute [Ins. Code § 151] must be a legal "person," such as an individual, partnership, or corporation [Providence Wash. Ins. Co. v. Valley Forge Ins. Co. (1996) 42 Cal. App. 4th 1194, 1200, 50 Cal. Rptr. 2d 192] . The designation "dba" or "doing business as" simply indicates the individual operates his or her sole proprietorship under a fictitious business name, and doing business under another name does not create an entity distinct from the person operating the business, so it is the individual who is the insured [Providence Wash. Ins. Co. v. Valley Forge Ins. Co. (1996) 42 Cal. App. 4th 1194, 1201, 50 Cal. Rptr. 2d 192] .

1. In General

26-308 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 308.13

§ 308.13 Insurable Interest

[1] In Property

An "insurable interest" in property is any interest in the property, or any relation to it or liability in respect of it, of such a nature that a contemplated peril might directly damnify the insured [Ins. Code § 281; see also Davis v. Phoenix Ins. Co. (1896) 111 Cal. 409, 414, 43 P. 1115] . The insurable interest may consist of: (1) an existing interest; (2) an inchoate interest founded on an existing interest; or (3) an expectancy, coupled with an existing interest in that out of which the expectancy arises [Ins. Code § 282]. But a mere contingent or expectant interest in anything, not founded on an actual right to the thing or on any valid contract for it, is not insurable [Ins. Code § 283]. The measure of an insurable interest in property is, except in the case of a property held by the insured as a carrier or depositary, the extent to which the insured might be damnified by loss or injury of it [Ins. Code § 284]. A carrier or depositary has an insurable interest in a thing held by him or her as such to the extent of its value [Ins. Code § 285].

An insurable interest in property insured must exist when the insurance takes effect and when the loss occurs, but need not exist in the meantime [Ins. Code § 286; see also Greco v. Oregon Mut. Fire Ins. Co. (1961) 191 Cal. App. 2d 674, 686, 12 Cal. Rptr. 802] .

[2] In Person

Every person has an insurable interest in his or her own life and health and inthe life and health of (1) any person on whom he depends wholly or in part for education or support, (2) any person under a legal obligation to him for the payment of money or respecting property or services of which death or illness might delay or prevent the performance, and (3) any person on whose life any estate or interest vested in him or her depends [Ins. Code § 10110; see Ins. Code § 10112 (insurance of or for minors)].

An insurable interest by the person purchasing the insurance in the life or health of the person insured must exist when the insurance takes effect, but need not exist thereafter or when the loss occurs [see Ins. Code § 286].

§ 308.14 Insurable Events

Any contingent or unknown event, whether past or future, which may damnify a person having an insurable interest, or create a liability against him, other than as noted below, may, subject to the provisions of the Insurance Code, be insured against [Ins. Code § 250].

A lottery or its outcome may not be insured against [Ins. Code § 251], and a policy executed by way of gaming or wagering is void [Ins. Code § 252]. Too, if the insured has no insurable interest [see § 308.13], the contract is void [Ins. Code § 280]. Any stipulation in an insurance policy for the payment of loss whether the person insured does or does not have any interest in the property insured or that the policy shall be received as proof of such interest is void [Ins. Code § 287].

§ 308.15 Types of Policies

A policy is either "open" or "valued" [Ins. Code § 410]. An open policy is one in which the value of the subject matter is not agreed on but is left to be ascertained in case of loss [Ins. Code § 411; see Ins. Code § 2051 (measure of indemnity in fire insurance under an open policy)]. A valued policy is one which expresses on its face an agreement that the thing insured shall be valued at a specified sum [Ins. Code § 412; see Ins. Code §§ 2050, 2052-2056 (valued fire insurance policies); see also Elliano v. Assurance Co. of Am. (1975) 45 Cal. App. 3d 170, 180, 119 Cal. Rptr. 653 ; Breshears v. Indiana Lumbermens Mut. Ins. Co. (1967) 63 Cal. Rptr. 879 (both cases pointing out that such policy is seldom if ever written in this state since it is subject to moral hazard of over evaluation)].

A "running" policy is one which contemplates successive insurances and which provides that the object of the policy may be from time to time defined, especially as to the subjects of insurance, by additional statements or endorsements [Ins. Code § 413].

§ 308.16 Entitlement and Contents of Policy; Signatures

Except in an underwriter's policy issued under a name or title approved by and registered with the Insurance Commissioner [Ins. Code § 20], each policy must [Ins. Code § 16] be entitled by the insurer's own name printed on the policy in large bold type [Ins. Code § 430].

A policy must specify: (1) the parties between whom the contract is made; (2) the property or life insured; (3) the interest of the insured in the property insured if he is not the absolute owner of it; (4) the risks insured against; (5) the period during which the insurance is to continue; and (6) either a statement of the premium or, if the insurance is of a character where the exact premium is only determinable on the termination of the contract, a statement of the basis and rates on which the final premium is to be determined and paid [Ins. Code § 381; see Ins. Code § 383 (violation of this last requirement as a misdemeanor)]. "Premium," as used in Ins. Code § 381(f) (item (6) above), includes a service charge imposed for payment in full of the stated insurance premium for a one-month term policy [Troyk v. Farmers Group, Inc. (2009) 171 Cal. App. 4th 1305, 1324, 90 Cal. Rptr. 3d 589].

Policies issued by incorporated insurers must be subscribed by the president or vice president, or chairman, or chief executive officer, or in case of the death, absence, or disability of those officers by any two directors, and countersigned by the secretary of the corporation [Ins. Code § 386]. All such policies are as binding and obligatory on the corporation as if executed over the corporate seal [Ins. Code § 386]. In the case of fire insurance, if the insurer has no president or secretary in the United States, the facsimile signature on the standard form [see Ins. Code § 2071] may be that of its principal executive officer or manager residing in the United States [Ins. Code § 2082.5].

§ 308.17 Warranties

There are two classes of conditions usually inserted in insurance policies. The first points to the time of the contract and the second to things which may occur or which have to be performed at a time subsequent. The first is an affirmative warranty and the second a promissory warranty. Breach of an affirmative warranty consists in the falsity of the affirmation when made; breach of a promissory warranty, which is in its nature executory, consists of nonperformance of the stipulation [Cowan v. Phoenix Ins. Co. (1889) 78 Cal. 181, 184, 20 P. 408] .

A statement in a policy which imports that there is an intention to do or not to do a thing which materially affects the risk is a warranty that such act or omission will take place [Ins. Code § 445; Chase v. National Indem. Co. (1954) 129 Cal. App. 2d 853, 858, 278 P.2d 68] .

A warranty is either express or implied [Ins. Code § 440]. A statement in a policy of a matter relating to the person or thing insured, or to the risk, as a fact, is an express warranty of it [Ins. Code § 441]. Every express warranty made at or before execution of a policy must be contained in the policy itself, or in another instrument signed by the insured and referred to in the policy, as making a part of it [Ins. Code § 443].

A warranty may relate to the past, the present, the future, or to any or all of these [Ins. Code § 444]. When, before the time arrives for the performance of a warranty relating to the future, a loss insured against happens, or performance becomes unlawful at the place of the contract, or impossible, the omission to fulfill the warranty does not avoid the policy [Ins. Code § 446].

The violation of a material warranty or other material provision of a policy on the part of either party to it entitles the other to rescind [Ins. Code § 447], but, unless thepolicy declares that a violation of specified provisions thereof shall avoid it, the breach of an immaterial provision does not avoid the policy [Ins. Code § 448; see Los Angeles Mut. Ins. Co. v. Cawog (1973) 30 Cal. App. 3d 378, 383, 106 Cal. Rptr. 307] . A breach of warranty without fraud merely exonerates the insurer from the time that it occurs, or where the warranty is broken in its inception, prevents the policy from attaching to the risk [Ins. Code § 449].

Generally speaking, compliance with the terms of a warranty is a condition precedent to a right to recover on the policy [Chase v. National Indem. Co. (1954) 129 Cal. App. 2d 853, 858, 278 P.2d 68] .

26-308 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 308.18

§ 308.18 Application for Insurance

[1] Temporary Coverage; Termination

An ordinary person who applies for insurance and pays the premium at the time he applies is justified in assuming that payment will bring immediate protection, regardless of whether or not the insurer ultimately decides to accept the risk. The layman's expectation of complete and immediate coverage on payment of the premium is so strong that if the insurer wishes to avoid its obligation of providing such protection it must not only use clear and unequivocal language evidencing its intent to limit temporary coverage pending its approval of the policy, but must also call such limiting condition to the attention of the applicant. In the absence of proof by the insurer that it satisfied both of these requirements, the coverage provided under a temporary contract of insurance is that which the ordinary layman, acting in the ordinary course of business, reasonably may expect by virtue of that transaction, namely, complete and immediate coverage on payment of the premium [Smith v. Westland Life Ins. Co. (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 111, 122-123, 123 Cal. Rptr. 649, 539 P.2d 433 ; see State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v. Khoe (9th Cir. 1989) 884 F.2d 401, 405-408 (summary judgment for insurer reversed because triable issue of fact remained regarding "conditional receipt clause"); see also Ins. Code § 10115 (life insurance other than group insurance); see generally § 308.18[2]].

When a contract of temporary insurance arises on the insurer's receipt of an application for insurance together with the first premium payment, the expectation of the applicant of complete and immediate coverage actually emerges from two conjoined acts--his signing of the application and his payment of the premium. This reasonable expectation on the part of the applicant extends to a continuance of such coverage until the insurer has nullified the two factors responsible for its existence--the application for the policy by rejection and notice of rejection, and the payment of premium by a refund of it. Unless the insurer manifests this intention to refuse permanent coverage by the return of the premium within a reasonable time, the applicant can assume that his insurance is effective [Smith v. Westland Life Ins. Co. (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 111, 123-124, 123 Cal. Rptr. 649, 539 P.2d 433 (rejecting, at page 118 n.10, trial court's finding that issuance of amended policy rather than one applied for was a qualified acceptance constituting rejection of application under Civ. Code § 1585 and hence terminated temporary coverage; the Supreme Court explained that "we are unwilling to take this overly technical approach in the present case to find termination of the temporary insurance")].

[2] Approval of Life Insurance Policy Prior to Insured's Death

Unlike the issue of temporary coverage raised if an applicant for life insurance dies before the application has been approved, Ins. Code § 10115 addresses the issue of coverage if the application has been approved, but the policy has not been issued and delivered at the time of the insured's death [compare Hodgson v. Banner Life Ins. Co. (2004) 124 Cal. App. 4th 1358, 1372-1373, 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 907 ; with Ransom v. Penn Mut. Life Ins. Co. (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 420, 425, 274 P.2d 633] . Under the rule of Ransom v. Penn Mut. Life Ins. Co. (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 420, 425, 274 P.2d 633 , and its progeny, the retention of a premium payment, in light of the conditional receipt issued by the insurance company, may create a reasonable expectation of coverage in the mind of the applicant. Ins. Code § 10115, on the other hand, imposes a coverage obligation whenever the conditions for issuance of a life insurance policy have been satisfied, but the formalities of issuance and deliverance have not occurred. This obligation is imposed by law and does not rest on the reasonable expectation of the parties, based on the language of a conditional receipt and the acceptance of an initial premium payment [Hodgson v. Banner Life Ins. Co. (2004) 124 Cal. App. 4th 1358, 1372-1373, 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 907] .

Therefore, in a case in which a life insurance policy applicant paid an initial premium and set up automatic payments for future premiums after receiving a conditional receipt, the insurance became effective despite the applicant's death prior to the full processing of "permanent coverage," and even though the insurer returned the check because the policy amount was too high for a conditional receipt under new guidelines not printed on the application. The policy in that case stated that insurance does not take effect until the full first premium is paid and until the policy is delivered to the owner while the insured is living and his or her health remains as described in the application. However, Ins. Code § 10115, provides the following [Hodgson v. Banner Life Ins. Co. (2004) 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 907] :

> "When a payment is made equal to the full first premium at the time an application for life insurance other than group life insurance is signed by the applicant and either (1) the applicant received at that time a receipt for said payment on a form prepared by the insurer, or (2) in the absence of such a receipt the insurer receives the said payment at its home office ... and in either case the insurer, pursuant to its regular underwriting practices and standards, approves the application for the issuance by it of a policy of life insurance on the plan and for the class of risk and amount of insurance applied for, and the person to be insured dies on or after the date of the application, on or after the date of the medical examination, if any, or on or after any date specially requested in the application for the policy to take effect, whichever is later, but before such policy is issued and delivered, the insurer shall pay such amount as would have been due under the terms of the policy in the same manner and subject to the same rights, conditions and defenses as if such policy had been issued and delivered on the date the application was signed by the applicant."

This language means that if a prospective insured makes a first premium payment concurrently with submitting an insurance application, if either the prospective insuredreceives a form receipt for the premium or the insurer receives the payment at its home office, if the insurer approves the application for the class of risk and amount applied for, and if the prospective insured dies on or after the date of the application, the insurer must pay the amount that would have been due under the terms of the policy as if the policy had been issued and delivered on the date that the prospective insured signed the application [Hodgson v. Banner Life Ins. Co. (2004) 124 Cal. App. 4th 1358, 1372, 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 907] .

[3] Duty of Disclosure

Each party to an insurance contract is required to communicate to the other, in good faith, all facts within his knowledge which are, or which he believes to be, material to the contract and as to which he makes no warranty, and which the other has not the means of ascertaining [Ins. Code § 332]. But, except in answer to the inquiries of the other, neither party is bound to communicate information of matters: (1) which the other knows; (2) which, in the exercise of ordinary care, the other ought to know and of which the party has no reason to suppose him or her ignorant; (3) of which the other waives communication; (4) which prove or tend to prove the existence of a risk excluded by a warranty, and which are not otherwise material; or (5) which relate to a risk excepted from insurance, and which are not otherwise material [Ins. Code § 333].

Materiality is to be determined not by the event but solely by the probable and reasonable influence of the facts on the party to whom the communication is due in forming his estimate of the disadvantages of the proposed contract or in making his inquiries [Ins. Code § 334]. In one case, a trucking company's application listed some of the commodities that it hauled while omitting dump trucks. Seeking summary judgment regarding coverage for an accident that occurred while the insured was hauling a dump truck, the insurer stated that the premium charged was based on the types of commodities identified in the application, and that if the application had disclosed that the insured hauled motor vehicles, the insurer would have either declined to issue the policy or charged a significantly higher premium. The appellate court held that the material misrepresentation in the application rendered the policy invalid and established a complete defense to the insured's counts for breach of contract and bad faith [Superior Dispatch, Inc. v. Insurance Corp. of N.Y. (2010) 181 Cal. App. 4th 175, 191-193, 104 Cal. Rptr. 3d 508 , reh'g denied, 2010 Cal. App. LEXIS 215 (2010)] .

Each party is bound to know all the general causes which are open to his or her inquiry equally with that of the other and which may affect either the political or material perils contemplated and all the general usages of trade [Ins. Code § 335].

Information of the nature or amount of the interest of one insured need not be communicated unless in answer to an inquiry, except as prescribed by Ins. Code § 381 (relating to required contents of insurance policies) or by the provisions of the insurance contract if such provisions are prescribed by the Insurance Code as part of a standard form [Ins. Code § 337].

Neither party to an insurance contract is bound to communicate, even on inquiry, information of his own judgment on the matters in question [Ins. Code § 339].

As a matter of law, notification of the right to arbitration is not required in every communication between an insurer and insured [Chase v. Blue Cross of Cal. (1996) 42 Cal. App. 4th 1142, 1157, 50 Cal. Rptr. 2d 178] . Instead, forfeiture of an insurer's right to arbitration results only if the insurer breaches the covenant of good faith and fair dealing by engaging in bad faith conduct designed to mislead the insured [Chase v. Blue Cross of Cal. (1996) 42 Cal. App. 4th 1142, 1157, 50 Cal. Rptr. 2d 178] . The question of whether an insurer has engaged in a course of conduct designed to mislead its insured is primarily a factual one. For example, in a case in which the insurer had informed the insured of the right to arbitrate in some correspondence, the court of appeal would not rule as a matter of law whether the insurer had forfeited its right to arbitrate [Chase v. Blue Cross of Cal. (1996) 42 Cal. App. 4th 1142, 1157-1158, 50 Cal. Rptr. 2d 178] .

It should be noted that California law mandating forfeiture of the right to arbitration if an insurer breaches the covenant of good faith and fair dealing by engaging in bad faith conduct designed to mislead the insured is not preempted by the Federal Arbitration Act (9 U.S.C.S. § 1 et seq.) [Chase v. Blue Cross of Cal. (1996) 42 Cal. App. 4th 1142, 1158, 50 Cal. Rptr. 2d 178] . States may regulate contracts, including arbitration clauses. The broad purpose of the federal act, to countermand judicial reluctance to enforce privately contracted arbitration agreements, is not violated merely because general contract law principles preclude enforcement of a given arbitration agreement [Chase v. Blue Cross of Cal. (1996) 42 Cal. App. 4th 1142, 1159, 50 Cal. Rptr. 2d 178] .

[4] Waiver

The right to information of material facts may be waived, either (1) by the terms of insurance or (2) by neglect to make inquiries as to such facts where they are distinctly implied in other facts of which information is communicated [Ins.

Code § 336].

Waiver requires the insurer to intentionally relinquish its right to deny coverage [Monteleone v. Allstate Ins. Co. (1996) 51 Cal. App. 4th 509, 515, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 48] .

[5] Concealment

A neglect to communicate that which a party knows and ought to communicate is concealment [Ins. Code § 330] and concealment, whether intentional or unintentional, entitles the injured party to rescind the insurance [Ins. Code § 331]. An intentional and fraudulent omission on the part of one insured to communicate information of matters proving or tending to prove the falsity of a warranty entitles the insurer to rescind [Ins. Code § 338].

[6] Representations

A representation (1) may be oral or written [Ins. Code § 350], (2) may be made at the time of or before issuance of the policy [Ins. Code § 351], (3) cannot qualify an express provision in an insurance contract although it may qualify an implied warranty [Ins. Code § 354], and (4) may be altered or withdrawn before the insurance is effected but not afterwards [Ins. Code § 355]. A representation as to the future is a promise unless it is merely a statement of a belief or an expectation [Ins. Code § 353]. The completion of the insurance contract is the time to which a representation must be presumed to refer [Ins. Code § 356].

When an insured has no personal knowledge of a fact he may nevertheless repeat information which he has on the subject and which he believes to be true with the explanation that he does so on the information of others; or he may submit the information in its whole extent to the insurer. In neither case is he responsible for its truth unless it proceeds from an agent of the insured whose duty it is to give the information [Ins. Code § 357].

A representation is false when the facts fail to correspond with its assertions orstipulations [Ins. Code § 358]. If a representation is false on a material point, whether affirmative or promissory, the injured party is entitled to rescind the contract from the time the representation becomes false [Ins. Code § 359]. The materiality of a representation is determined by the same rule as the materiality of a concealment [Ins. Code § 360; see § 308.18[3]].

[7] Grounds for Rescission

[a] In General

Ins. Code §§ 331, 338, and 359 provide that a contract may be rescinded on the ground of concealment or for a materially false misrepresentation. Ins. Code § 361 makes these provisions applicable to a modification of an insurance contract as to its original formation. In the case of concealment, the statute expressly provides for rescission whether the concealment was intentional or unintentional [Ins. Code § 331]. This is also true of a false representation. "[A]n insurer may rescind the contract of insurance ab initio for a material misrepresentation--even though the insured's misstatements were the result of negligence, or, indeed, the product of innocence" [Barrera v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (1969) 71 Cal. 2d 659, 666 n. 4, 79 Cal. Rptr. 106, 456 P.2d 674 (holding, however, that insurer could not rescind)].

Materiality is determined solely by the probable and reasonable effect which truthful answers would have had on the insurer [Ins. Code § 331; Unionamerica Ins. Co. v. Fort Miller Group, Inc. (N.D. Cal. 2008) 590 F. Supp. 2d 1254, 2008 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 104565, 10 ; Imperial Cas. & Indem. Co. v. Sogomonian (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 169, 181, 243 Cal. Rptr. 639] . The fact that the insurer has demanded answers to specific questions in an application for insurance is in itself usually sufficient to establish materiality as a matter of law [Thompson v. Occidental Life Ins. Co. (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 904, 915-916, 109 Cal. Rptr. 473, 513 P.2d 353] .

On the other hand, if the applicant for insurance had no present knowledge of the facts sought, or failed to appreciate the significance of information related to him, his incorrect or incomplete responses would not constitute grounds for rescission. Moreover, questions concerning illness or disease in an application for life insurance do not relate to minor indispositions but are to be construed as referring to serious ailments which undermine the applicant's general health. Finally, as the misrepresentation must be a material one, an incorrect answer on an insurance application does not give rise to the defense of fraud where the true facts, if known, would not have made the contract less desirable to the insurer. And the trier of fact is not required to believe the "post mortem" testimony of an insurer's agents that insurance would have been refused had the true facts been disclosed [Thompson v. Occidental Life Ins. Co. (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 904, 916, 109 Cal. Rptr. 473, 513 P.2d 353] .

[b] Exceptions

All life insurance policies issued in California must provide that the validity of the policy is incontestable after the policy has been in effect, during the lifetime of the insured, for a period of two years from its date of issue [Ins. Code §§ 10113.5 (individual life insurance), 10206 (group life insurance)]. After this period has elapsed, the incontestability clause precludes the insurer from asserting defenses based on the insured's fraud or misrepresentation, including the insured's misrepresentation about his or her health in applying for the insurance [Amex Life Assurance Co. v. Superior Court (1997) 14 Cal. 4th 1231, 1236-1238, 1243, 930 P.2d 1264] .

An automobile liability insurer must undertake a reasonable investigation of the insured's insurability within a reasonable period of time from the acceptance of the application and the issuance of a policy. This duty directly inures to the benefit of third person injured by the insured. The injured party, after he has obtained an unsatisfied judgment against the insured, may properly proceed against the insureron the policy [see Ins. Code § 11580(b)(2); see also § 308.20] and the insurer cannot successfully defend on the ground of its own failure reasonably to investigate the application [Barrera v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (1969) 71 Cal. 2d 659, 663, 79 Cal. Rptr. 106, 456 P.2d 674 ; see Philadelphia Indem. Ins. Co. v. Findley (9th Cir. 2005) 395 F.3d 1046 (certifying question of whether duty of insurer to investigate insurability of insured applies to automobile liability insurer that issues excess liability insurance policy in context of rental car transaction)].

The fact that the automobile liability insurer that fails to make such an investigation loses its right to rescind does not, however, necessarily mean that it forfeits all remedies against the insured for his misrepresentations. The insurer may, after satisfying the injured person's claim, still prosecute a cause of action against the insured for damages for wrongful misrepresentation, or, in an action against it brought by the insured after he has satisfied a judgment against him by the injured person, defend on the ground of misrepresentations in the application [Barrera v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (1969) 71 Cal. 2d 659, 681, 79 Cal. Rptr. 106, 456 P.2d 674] .

§ 308.19 Change of Interest

Except as noted below, and in the cases of life and disability insurance [see Ins. Code §§ 10130, 10131], a change of interest in any part of a subject insured, unaccompanied by a corresponding change of interest in the insurance, suspends the insurance to an equivalent extent until the interest in the subject and the interest in the insured are vested in the same person [Ins. Code § 300]. The mere transfer of the subject matter insured does not transfer the insurance; it suspends it until the same person becomes the owner of both the insurance and the subject matter insured [Ins. Code § 305]. Moreover, where a fire insurance policy, for example, provides that it is not assignable without the consent of the insurer, any purported assignment of it on transfer of the property covered without such consent is ineffective. The insurance involves the obligation of the insurer to indemnify a particular person against loss and the selection of its indemnitee properly is a matter of its own choice [Greco v. Oregon Mut. Fire Ins. Co. (1961) 191 Cal. App. 2d 674, 682, 12 Cal. Rptr. 802] .

A change of interest in a subject insured after the occurrence of an injury which results in a loss does not affect the right of the insured to indemnity for the loss [Ins. Code § 301], and the right to recover on the policy after the loss has occurred is assignable without the insurer's consent [see § 308.20]; this latter situation involves only the payment of a claim founded on a loss against which the policy indemnifies, and the designation of a payee of such claim properly is a matter left solely to the discretion of the indemnitee, that is, the insured [Greco v. Oregon Mut. Fire Ins. Co. (1961) 191 Cal. App. 2d 674, 682, 12 Cal. Rptr. 802] .

A change of interest in one or more of several distinct subjects separately insured by one policy does not avoid the insurance as to the others [Ins. Code § 302]. Nor does a change of interest by will or succession on the death of the insured avoid insurance; in such event the interest in the insurance passes to the person taking the interest in the subject matter insured [Ins. Code § 303]. In the case of partners, joint owners, or owners in common who are jointly insured, a transfer of interest by one to another of them does not avoid the insurance, even though it has been agreed that the insurance shall cease on an alienation of the subject insured [Ins. Code § 304].

On the assignability of life and disability insurance policies, see Ins. Code §§ 10130, 10131, 10173, and 10174. On assignment by the insured under a group life insurance policy of the incidents of ownership, see Ins. Code § 10209.3.

§ 308.20 Assignment of Claim Against Insurer

At common law, a partial assignee of a claim had no legal standing to sue. The underlying rationale was that the original creditor could not split his cause of action and sue the debtor in two actions, and he could not bring about the same result by assigning part of the claim to another and subjecting the debtor to two suits by different plaintiffs. Enforcement of a partial assignment of a claim was permitted in equity, however, by the process of requiring joinder of all interested parties, that is, the assignor and all partial assignees. But under the codes, which have merged legal and equitable actions and adopted the equity procedure of joinder, there is no longer any procedural obstacle to enforcement of the partial assignment. The partial assignee may sue by joining the partial assignor, and the partial assignor may sue on joinder of the partial assignee [Cain v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (1975) 47 Cal. App. 3d 783, 794-795, 121 Cal. Rptr. 200] .

But, an insured under a liability policy, for example, may not make a blanket assignment to the injured party of his or her claim against the insurer for bad-faith refusal to settle within the policy limits [see § 308.463] and, after the injured party has commenced action on the assignment, himself or herself sue the insurer in a separate action for damages for emotional distress resulting from the insurer's wrongful failure to settle with the injured party. That is, he or she may not split his or her cause of action and maintain separate actions on the parts against the insurer [see Purcell v. Colonial Ins. Co. (1971) 20 Cal. App. 3d 807, 810-814, 97 Cal. Rptr. 874 ; see also Reichert v. General Ins. Co. (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 822, 832, 69 Cal. Rptr. 321, 442 P.2d 377 ; Cain v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (1975) 47 Cal. App. 3d 783, 795, 121 Cal. Rptr. 200] .

In the case of a policy containing liability provisions, Ins. Code § 11580(b) provides that no such policy shall be issued or delivered to any person in this state unless it contains "(2) A provision that whenever judgment is secured against the insured or the executor or administrator of a deceased insured in an action basedupon bodily injury, death, or property damage, then an action may be brought against the insurer on the policy and subject to its terms and limitations, by such judgment creditor to recover on the judgment."

Ins. Code § 11580(b) also provides that a direct action against an insurer is allowed only after the underlying judgment against the insured is "final." This has been interpreted to mean that the appeal has been concluded or the time for appeal has passed [McKee v. National Union Fire Ins. Co. (1993) 15 Cal. App. 4th 282, 287, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 286] .

Notwithstanding the provisions of this section, the injured third party, that is, the insured's judgment creditor, may not sue the insurer to recover that portion of the judgment in excess of the policy limits against the insured without first obtaining an assignment of the cause of action from the insured. The reason for this requirement was explained by the California Supreme Court as follows [Murphy v. Allstate Ins. Co. (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 937, 942, 132 Cal. Rptr. 424, 553 P.2d 584] :

> "The insured may assign [his or her] cause of action for breach of the duty to settle without consent of the insurance carrier, even when the policy provisions provide the contrary... . However, part of the damage arises from the personal tort aspect of the bad faith cause of action... . And because a purely personal tort cause of action is not assignable in California, it must be concluded that damage for emotional distress is not assignable... . The same is true of a claim for punitive damage... .
> "In Purcell v. Colonial Ins. Co. (1971) 20 Cal. App. 3d 807, 814 [97 Cal. Rptr. 874] , an insured assigned his cause of action for breach of the duty to settle, the assignee suing on the assignment. Subsequently, the insured sued for mental distress. The second action was held to violate the rule against splitting a cause of action... . The court suggested the insured should have brought a single action in his own name for all damage, agreeing to pay part of the recovery to the assignee."

The court concluded that Ins. Code § 11580 does not authorize the insured's judgment creditor to proceed against the insurer for the excess of the judgment over policy limits without an assignment and the Court concluded that the action is not authorized by former Code Civ. Proc. § 720 [now see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 708.180(c), (d), 708.210], relating to creditors' suits. Holding that an assignment is necessary to enable the insured's judgment creditor to sue the insurer to recover the excess of the judgment over policy limits, the Court explained [Murphy v. Allstate Ins. Co. (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 937, 946-947, 132 Cal. Rptr. 424, 553 P.2d 584] :

> "Requiring assignment before the claimant may proceed would of course insure notice to the insured that the claimant wished to proceed against the insurer. At that point the insured would have the choice of partially assigning and then joining in the action, or of bargaining for a release from liability in excess of coverage. The release would permit the insured to protect [himself or herself] from continued exposure to personal liability. Further, because the judgment creditor would then both own and control the cause of action against the insurer, [he or she] could attempt to satisfy [his or her] judgment thereby. Finally, the insured could protect [his or her] right to nonassignable claims for punitive, emotional and personal injury damage."

§ 308.21 Actions by Third Party Beneficiaries

[1] No Action Against Insurer Absent Assignment or Third Party Beneficiary Status

As a general rule, unless there has been an assignment of rights or a final judgment [see § 308.20], a third party claimant may not bring a direct action against the insurance company on the contract [J. C. Penney Cas. Ins. Co. v. M. K. (1991) 52 Cal. 3d 1009, 1018, 804 P.2d 689 ; see Ins. Code § 11580(b)(2) (injured party who procures final judgment against insured may bring action against insurer to recover on judgment)]. However, a third party may bring a direct action against an insurance company to enforce the terms of a contract intended to benefit the third party [Civ. Code § 1559]. The third party need not be named in the contract, as long as he or she is a member of a class for whose benefit the policy was expressly made [Northwestern Mut. Ins. Co. v. Farmers' Ins. Group (1978) 76 Cal. App. 3d 1031, 1042-1043, 143 Cal. Rptr. 415] .

[2] Enforcing Medical Payment Provisions

Both homeowner's and liability insurance policies frequently include medical payment provisions requiring the insurer to pay medical expenses incurred by a third party who suffers injury because of an accident on the insured's property, regardless of fault. Such an injured party is the direct beneficiary of the medical payment provision and therefore has the right to bring a direct action against the insurer to recover under the medical payment provision [Harper v. Wausau Ins. Corp. (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 1079, 1088-1090, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 64] .

§ 308.22 Interpretation of Policies

Being contracts [see § 308.11], insurance policies are interpreted in accordance with the rules governing construction of contracts generally [Zito v. Firemen's Ins. Co. (1973) 36 Cal. App. 3d 277, 284, 111 Cal. Rptr. 392 ; on construction of indemnity contracts, see Civ. Code § 2778 and Hertzka & Knowles v. Salter (1970) 6 Cal. App. 3d 325, 330-338, 86 Cal. Rptr. 23 (involving construction of certificate of errors and omissions insurance issued by Underwriters at Lloyds, London); on construction of disability policies, see Ins. Code §§ 10176, 10176.1].

An appellate court held that the choice-of-law rule in Civil Code § 1646 determines the law governing the interpretation of a contract, notwithstanding the application of the governmental interest analysis to other choice-of-law issues, and therefore in one case California law governed a policy issued in Texas [Frontier Oil Corp. v. RLI Ins. Co. (2007) 153 Cal. App. 4th 1436, 1459-1460, 63 Cal. Rptr. 3d 816 ; see Chapter 140, Contracts]. Section 1646 states that a contract is to be interpreted according to the law and usage of the place it is to be performed if the contract "indicate[s] a place of performance" and according to the law and usage of the place it was made if the contract "does not indicate a place of performance." A contract "indicate[s] a place of performance" within the meaning of Civil Code § 1646 if the contract expressly specifies a place of performance or if the intended place of performance can be gleaned from the nature of the contract and its surrounding circumstances [Frontier Oil Corp. v. RLI Ins. Co. (2007) 153 Cal. App. 4th 1436, 1442-1443, 63 Cal. Rptr. 3d 816] . In a case involving a commercial general liability insurance policy executed in Texas regarding oil and gas operations in Beverly Hills, the court found that the provisions for both indemnity and defense obligations related to locations in California, not Texas. It concluded that California was the intended place of performance of the contract with respect to those claims, that the policy thus "indicate[s] a place of performance" within the meaning of Civil Code § 1646 with respect to those claims, and that California law governs the interpretation of the policy [Frontier Oil Corp. v. RLI Ins. Co. (2007) 153 Cal. App. 4th 1436, 1462 63 Cal. Rptr. 3d 816] .

The proper construction of an insurance policy is a question of law, which is reviewed independently on appeal [Hameid v. National Fire Ins. of Hartford(2003) 31 Cal. 4th 16, 21, 1 Cal. Rptr. 3d 401, 71 P.3d 761 ; Rosen v. State Farm Gen. Ins. Co. (2003) 30 Cal. 4th 1070, 1074, 135 Cal. Rptr. 2d 361, 70 P.3d 351 ; Bluehawk v. Continental Ins. Co. (1996) 50 Cal. App. 4th 1126, 1131, 58 Cal. Rptr. 2d 147] .

The general rules for construing policies are as follows:

- The mutual intention of the parties at the time the contract is formed governs interpretation [Civ. Code § 1636; E.M.M.I., Inc. v. Zurich Am. Ins. Co. (2004) 32 Cal. 4th 465, 470, 9 Cal. Rptr. 3d 701, 84 P.3d 385] .

- Relevant statutory law governing insurance policies and in force at the time the policy is issued is read into the policy and becomes a part of the contract between the parties [Modglin v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (1969) 273 Cal. App. 2d 693, 698, 78 Cal. Rptr. 355] .

- Policies are construed in their entirety with each clause lending meaning to the others [Holz Rubber Co., Inc. v. American Star Ins. Co. (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 45, 55, 120 Cal. Rptr. 415, 533 P.2d 1055 ; see also Sentex Sys., Inc. v. Hartford Accident & Indem. Co. (9th Cir. 1996) 93 F.3d 578, 580 (insurance policy provisions must be given their ordinary meaning); New York Life Ins. Co. v. Hollender (1951) 38 Cal. 2d 73, 81, 237 P.2d 510 (life insurance policy); Crawford v. Lloyds London (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 524, 526, 80 Cal. Rptr. 70 (accident policy)].

- Coverage clauses are broadly construed so as to afford the greatest possible protection to the insured [E.M.M.I., Inc. v. Zurich Am. Ins. Co. (2004) 32 Cal. 4th 465, 471, 9 Cal. Rptr. 3d 701, 84 P.3d 385 ; State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v. Partridge (1973) 10 Cal. 3d 94, 101, 109 Cal. Rptr. 811, 514 P.2d 123 , limited on other grounds, Garvey v. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 395, 405, 257 Cal. Rptr. 292, 770 P.2d 704 ; Mid-Century Ins. Co. v. Hauck (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 293, 297, 110 Cal. Rptr. 707] . In this regard, the reasonable expectations of the parties in entering into the agreement will be considered by the court [Holz Rubber Co., Inc. v. American Star Ins. Co. (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 45, 56, 120 Cal. Rptr. 415, 533 P.2d 1055 ; Gray v. Zurich Ins. Co. (1966) 65 Cal. 2d 263, 269, 54 Cal. Rptr. 104, 419 P.2d 168 ; Otter v. General Ins. Co. (1973) 34 Cal. App. 3d 940, 951, 109 Cal. Rptr. 831] and, if semantically permissible, the policy will be construed to fairly achieve the agreement's object of securing indemnity to the insured for losses to which the insurance relates [State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v. Jacober (1973) 10 Cal. 3d 193, 203, 110 Cal. Rptr. 1, 514 P.2d 953 ; Schmidt v. Pacific Mut. Life Ins. Co. (1969) 268 Cal. App. 2d 735, 738, 74 Cal. Rptr. 367] . If there is any doubt as to the extent or fact of coverage, whether as to the peril insured against, the amount of liability, or the person or persons protected, the language must be understood in its most inclusive sense for the benefit of the insured [Holz Rubber Co., Inc. v. American Star Ins. Co. (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 45, 59-60, 120 Cal. Rptr. 415, 533 P.2d 1055 ; State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v. Elkins (1975) 52 Cal. App. 3d 534, 538, 125 Cal. Rptr. 139] . If the insurer deals with the public on a mass basis, the notice of noncoverage of the policy in a situation in which the public may reasonably expect coverage must be conspicuous, plain, and clear [Schmidt v. Pacific Mut. Life Ins. Co. (1969) 268 Cal. App. 2d 735, 738, 74 Cal. Rptr. 367] .

- Exclusionary clauses are interpreted narrowly against the insurer [E.M.M.I., Inc. v. Zurich Am. Ins. Co. (2004) 32 Cal. 4th 465, 471, 9 Cal. Rptr. 3d 701, 84 P.3d 385 ; State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v. Partridge (1973) 10 Cal. 3d 94, 102, 109 Cal. Rptr. 811, 514 P.2d 123 , limited on other grounds, Garvey v. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 395, 405, 257 Cal. Rptr. 292, 770 P.2d 704 ; Northbrook Excess & Surplus Ins. Co. v. Coastal Rescue Sys. Corp. (1986) 182 Cal. App. 3d 763, 767-768, 227 Cal. Rptr. 639] . The burden is on the insurer to phrase exceptions and exclusions in clear and unmistakable language [E.M.M.I., Inc. v. Zurich Am. Ins. Co. (2004) 32 Cal. 4th 465, 471, 9 Cal. Rptr. 3d 701, 84 P.3d 385 ; State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v. Jacober (1973) 10 Cal. 3d 193, 202, 110 Cal. Rptr. 1, 514 P.2d 953 ; Harris v. Glens Falls Ins. Co. (1972) 6 Cal. 3d 699, 701, 100 Cal. Rptr. 133, 493 P.2d 861] and, to be given effect, those clauses must be conspicuous, plain, and clear [State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v. Jacober (1973) 10 Cal. 3d 193, 202, 110 Cal. Rptr. 1, 514 P.2d 953 ; see also California State Auto. Ass'n Inter-Ins. Bureau v. Warwick (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 190, 194, 130 Cal. Rptr. 520, 550 P.2d 1056] . Moreover, an exclusionary clause will not be construed in a manner that would render the coverage a nullity [SDR Co. v. Federal Ins. Co. (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 1433, 1437, 242 Cal. Rptr. 534 ; Oliver Mach. Co. v. United States Fid. & Guar. Co. (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 1510, 1514-1515, 232 Cal. Rptr. 691] . Under the "reasonable expectations doctrine," if attempted exclusions in an insurance policy are not clear, plain, and conspicuous enough to negate a layperson's objectively reasonable expectation of coverage, they are unenforceable [Lancaster v. U.S. Shoe Corp. (N.D. Cal. 1996) 934 F. Supp. 1137, 1157] . Thus, for example, the "reasonable expectations doctrine" may be applied to an ERISA plan that confers discretion on the plan administrator to construe plan terms and that is therefore subject to abuse of discretion review [Lancaster v. U.S. Shoe Corp. (N.D. Cal. 1996) 934 F. Supp. 1137, 1159] .

- If a clause is included because of a specific statutory directive, the clause must be given a reasonable construction in light of the legislature's apparent intent [John Hancock Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Greer (1998) 60 Cal. App. 4th 877, 884, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 48 (incontestability clause in disability policy)].

- Ambiguity or uncertainty in an insurance contract will be resolved in the insured's favor, consistent with the insured's reasonable expectations [E.M.M.I., Inc. v. Zurich Am. Ins. Co. (2004) 32 Cal. 4th 465, 470, 9 Cal. Rptr. 3d 701, 84 P.3d 385 ; Safeco Ins. Co. v. Robert S. (2001) 26 Cal. 4th 758, 765, 110 Cal. Rptr. 2d 844, 28 P.3d 889 ; Kazi v. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. (2001) 24 Cal. 4th 871, 879, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1, 15 P.3d 223] . However, a series of decisions has made clear that this rule is only the final step in an interpretive process designed to achieve the fundamental goal of all contractual interpretation, which is to give effect to the mutual intention of the parties [see Bank of W. v. Superior Court (1992) 2 Cal. 4th 1254, 1264, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 538, 833 P.2d 545 (court stated that insured had invoked rule of construction against insurer "too early" in interpretive process)]. Ambiguity exists when an insurance policy provision is susceptible to two or more constructions that are reasonable and not based on strained interpretations [E.M.M.I., Inc. v. Zurich Am. Ins. Co. (2004) 32 Cal. 4th 465, 470, 9 Cal. Rptr. 3d 701, 84 P.3d 385 ; Producers Dairy Delivery Co. v. Sentry Ins. Co. (1986) 41 Cal. 3d 903, 912, 226 Cal. Rptr. 558, 718 P.2d 920] .

- The mere fact that a word or phrase in a policy may have multiple meanings does not create an ambiguity [Palmer v. Truck Ins. Exch. (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 1109, 1118, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 647, 988 P.2d 568 ; Atlantic Mut. Ins. Co. v. Ruiz (2004) 123 Cal. App. 4th 1197, 1203, 20 Cal. Rptr. 3d 628] . A word with a broad meaning or multiple meanings may be used for that very reason--that is its breadth--to achieve a broad purpose [Bay Cities Paving & Grading, Inc. v. Lawyers' Mut. Ins. Co. (1993) 5 Cal. 4th 854, 868, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 691, 855 P.2d 1263 ; Atlantic Mut. Ins. Co. v. Ruiz (2004) 123 Cal. App. 4th 1197, 1203, 20 Cal. Rptr. 3d 628] .

Various rules are applied to determine whether or not ambiguity exists. The court must consider the allegedly ambiguous language in context, with regard to its intended function in the policy, because the language in a contract must be construed in the context of the contract as a whole and cannot be found to be ambiguous in the abstract [Bank of W. v. Superior Court (1992) 2 Cal. 4th 1254, 1264-1265, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 538, 833 P.2d 545] . If a party claims that language is ambiguous, the court must consider extrinsic evidence to determine whether or not the language is indeed ambiguous, even if it appears to the court to be plain and unambiguous on its face [Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. v. G. W. Thomas Drayage & Rigging Co. (1968) 69 Cal.2d 33, 36-37, 69 Cal. Rptr. 561, 442 P.2d 641 ; ACL Techs., Inc. v. Northbrook Prop. & Cas. Ins. Co. (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 1773, 1790-1791, 22 Cal. Rptr. 2d. 206 (extrinsic evidence not admissible to show ambiguity when policy language is clear and explicit)].

Courts may consider evidence of the drafting history of standardized policy provisions and other insurance industry interpretive aids when those aids are relevant to the issues being considered [Montrose Chem. Corp. v. Admiral Ins.

Co. (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 645, 670, 42 Cal. Rptr. 2d 324, 913 P.2d 878] . In one case, for example, the California Supreme Court found that the drafting history of standardized general liability policy provisions was relevant in evaluating the insurer's argument that the insurance industry would be harmed by the adoption of a "continuous injury" trigger of coverage theory and that the industry purportedly never anticipated that such a theory would be applied to these policies [Montrose Chem. Corp. v. Admiral Ins. Co. (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 645, 671, 42 Cal. Rptr. 2d 324, 913 P.2d 878] .

Reliance on insurance industry materials has also been criticized, however [see ACL Techs., Inc. v. Northbrook Prop. & Cas. Ins. Co. (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 1773, 1790-1791, 22 Cal. Rptr. 2d 206] , and the California Supreme Court has qualified its approval of reliance on such materials by stating that they "are by no means dispositive" [Montrose Chem. Corp. v. Admiral Ins. Co. (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 645, 671, 42 Cal. Rptr. 2d 324, 913 P.2d 878] . Thus, insurance industry information sources apparently may not be relied on in a manner that would contravene the established rules of insurance contract interpretation [see American Star Ins. Co. v. Insurance Co. of W. (1991) 232 Cal. App. 3d 1320, 1330, 284 Cal. Rptr. 45] ; for example, to show an ambiguity when the policy language is clear and explicit [ACL Techs., Inc. v. Northbrook Prop. & Cas. Ins. Co. (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 1773, 1790-1791, 22 Cal. Rptr. 2d 206] or to arrive at an interpretation that would not be in accordance with the reasonable expectations of the insured [see Montrose Chem. Corp. v. Admiral Ins. Co. (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 645, 673, 42 Cal. Rptr. 2d 324, 913 P.2d 878 (after finding drafting history of business general liability policy relevant in evaluating insurer's argument against adopting "continuous injury" theory of coverage, court found no reason to infer that insured's reasonable expectations with respect to policy provisions would differ from position taken in industry materials)]. Cases relying on insurance industry sources generally involve disputes between multiple insurers [see, e.g., Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. v. Aetna Cas. & Sur. Co. (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 1621, 1629, 273 Cal. Rptr. 431 , overruled on other grounds, Montrose Chem. Corp. v. Admiral Ins. Co. (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 645, 684, 42 Cal. Rptr. 2d 324] or situations in which the industry sources take a position that is favorable to coverage and/or contrary to that being asserted by the insurer in the particular case [see, e.g., Montrose Chem. Corp. v. Admiral Ins. Co. (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 645, 673, 42 Cal. Rptr. 2d 324, 913 P.2d 878 ; Prudential-LMI Commercial Ins. Co. v. Reliance Ins. Co. (1994) 22 Cal. App. 4th 1508, 1512-1513 (stating that "insurance industry publications are particularly persuasive as interpretive aids where they support coverage on behalfof the insured"); Maryland Cas. Co. v. Reeder (1991) 221 Cal. App. 3d 961, 968, 976-977, 270 Cal. Rptr. 719] .

Policy language is given the meaning that a layperson would ascribe to the language, unless it can be shown that at the time of formation of the contract, both the insured and the insurer understood the policy language in a technical or restrictive manner [Civ. Code § 1644; AIU Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 807, 822, 274 Cal. Rptr. 820, 799 P.2d 1253 ; see also Civ. Code § 1645 (technical words interpreted in technical sense)]. If the policy language is clear and explicit, then that language governs [Rosen v. State Farm Gen. Ins. Co. (2003) 30 Cal. 4th 1070, 1074, 135 Cal. Rptr. 2d 361, 70 P.3d 351 (homeowners' policy defining term "collapse" to mean "actually fallen down or fallen into pieces" did not cover imminent collapse of deck attached to house)].

If the meaning a layperson would ascribe to contract language is not ambiguous, the courts will apply that meaning [Hameid v. National Fire Ins. of Hartford (2003) 31 Cal. 4th 16, 21, 1 Cal. Rptr. 3d 401, 71 P.3d 761 ; AIU Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 807, 822, 274 Cal. Rptr. 820, 799 P.2d 1253 ; Sentex Sys., Inc. v. Hartford Accident & Indem. Co. (9th Cir. 1996) 93 F.3d 578, 580 (insurance policy provisions must be given their ordinary meaning)]. Courts may also employ "common sense" in determining the insured's reasonable expectations [Bank of W. v. Superior Court (1992) 2 Cal. 4th 1254, 1276, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 538, 833 P.2d 545 ; Cooper Cos. v. Transcontinental Ins. Co. (1995) 31 Cal. App. 4th 1094, 1106, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 508] .

If a court determines that an ambiguity does exist, the language must then be interpreted in the sense that the insurer believed the insured understood it [Civ. Code § 1649; Bank of W. v. Superior Court (1992) 2 Cal. 4th 1254, 1264-1265, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 538, 833 P.2d 545 ; AIU Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 807, 822, 274 Cal. Rptr. 820, 799 P.2d 1253 ; ACL Techs., Inc. v. Northbrook Prop. & Cas. Ins. Co. (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 1773, 1784-1785, 22 Cal. Rptr. 2d 206 ; Shell Oil Co. v. Winterthur Swiss Ins. Co. (1993) 12 Cal. App. 4th 715, 737, 15 Cal. Rptr. 2d 815] . This rule, in the insurance context, protects not the subjective belief of the insurer, but rather the "objectively reasonable expectations" of the insured [Bank of W. v. Superior Court (1992) 2 Cal. 4th 1254, 1265, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 538, 833 P.2d 545 ; AIU Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 807, 822, 274 Cal. Rptr. 820, 799 P.2d 1253 ; Conway v. Farmers Home Mut. Ins. Co. (1994) 26 Cal. App. 4th 1185, 1191 ; ACL Techs., Inc. v. Northbrook Prop. & Cas. Ins. Co. (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 1773, 1788, 22 Cal. Rptr. 2d 206] .

This term has often been referred to as the insured's "reasonable expectation of coverage" [see Gray v. Zurich Ins. Co. (1966) 65 Cal. 2d 263, 280, 54 Cal. Rptr. 104, 419 P.2d 168] . In making this interpretation, the court must interpret the language in context, with regard to its intended function in the policy, because "language in a contract must be construed in the context of that instrument as a whole, and in the circumstances of that case, and cannot be found to be ambiguous in the abstract" [Bank of W. v. Superior Court (1992) 2 Cal. 4th 1254, 1265, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 538, 833 P.2d 545 (italics omitted); Producers Dairy Delivery Co. v. Sentry Ins. Co. (1986) 41 Cal. 3d 903, 916, n.7, 226 Cal. Rptr. 558, 718 P.2d 920] . Courts may also employ "common sense" [Bank of W. v. Superior Court (1992) 2 Cal. 4th 1254, 1276, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 538, 833 P.2d 545 ; Cooper Cos. v. Transcontinental Ins. Co. (1995) 31 Cal. App. 4th 1094, 1106, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 508] .

To establish the intended purpose of the language in question, courts may consider the record in the case when appropriate, including the insured's purpose in obtaining the coverage, the amount and structure of the premiums, and the general availability or unavailability in the marketplace of the type of coverage the insured is seeking based on the ambiguous language [see Cooper Cos. v. Transcontinental Ins. Co. (1995) 31 Cal. App. 4th 1094, 1106-1109, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 508] . If the insured had no objectively reasonable expectation of coverage, taking into account the facts and circumstances under which the policy was purchased, an ambiguity will be construed in a manner favorable to the insurer [see Cooper Cos. v. Transcontinental Ins. Co. (1995) 31 Cal. App. 4th 1094, 1106-1111, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 508] . Thus, the fact that a provision is found to be ambiguous does not automatically require that it be construed against the insurer in all cases [Cooper Cos. v. Transcontinental Ins. Co. (1995) 31 Cal. App. 4th 1094, 1106, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 508] .

If these rules do not eliminate or resolve any ambiguity, any ambiguous language will be construed against the party who caused that language to exist [Civ. Code § 1654; Bank of W. v. Superior Court (1992) 2 Cal. 4th 1254, 1265, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 538, 833 P.2d 545] . Because the insurer writes the policy, it is held responsible for ambiguous policy language, which is therefore construed in favor of coverage [AIU Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 807, 822, 274 Cal. Rptr. 820, 799 P.2d 1253] .

Although they have special features, insurance policies are fundamentally contracts and are therefore interpreted using the ordinary rules of contractual interpretation [Bluehawk v. Continental Ins. Co. (1996) 50 Cal. App. 4th 1126, 1131, 58 Cal. Rptr. 2d 147] .

The Ninth Circuit has adopted the reasonable expectations doctrine as federal common law for interpretation of ERISA governed insurance contracts. In such cases, the court "will protect the reasonable expectations of applicants, insureds, and intended beneficiaries regarding coverage afforded by insurance carriers even though a careful examination of the policy provisions indicates that such expectations are contrary to the expressed intention of the insured" [Saltarelli v. Bob Baker Group Med. Trust (9th Cir. 1994) 35 F.3d 382, 385-386 (exclusionfor pre-existing conditions not enforceable because table of contents had no heading for this "critically important item," headings that appeared relevant referred to sections with no mention of the exclusion, and exclusion appeared only in "Definitions" chapter and required coordinated reading of three different definitions)].

When extrinsic evidence is admitted as an aid to interpretation of an insurance policy, the appellate court is not bound by the trial court's interpretation but independently determines the meaning of the policy [Golden Security Thrift & Loan Ass'n v. First Am. Title Ins. Co. (1996) 53 Cal. App. 4th 250, 256, 61 Cal. Rptr. 2d 442] .

§ 308.23 Proof of Lost Policy Provisions

In general, if a contract has been lost in good faith and the actual language is unavailable, the proponent of the lost contract need only prove the relevant substance of the document and need not provide proof of the actual language [Dart Indus., Inc. v. Commercial Union Ins. Co. (2002) 28 Cal. 4th 1059, 1073, 124 Cal. Rptr. 2d 142, 52 P.3d 79] . With respect to a lost or destroyed insurance policy, an insured may establish rights under the policy through secondary evidence that attests to the substance of that insurance policy; the insured need not produce the actual language of the policy for this purpose. That is, the absence of "actual language" evidence does not preclude an insured from obtaining the benefits of a policy that has been lost or destroyed. If an insurance policy indisputably covered the relevant time period and the policy was lost in good faith and not recovered after a diligent search, secondary evidence that attests to the substance, but not the precise language of an insurance policy, is not insufficient as a matter of law to establish the insurer's contractual obligations [Dart Indus., Inc. v. Commercial Union Ins. Co. (2002) 28 Cal. 4th 1059, 1074, 124 Cal. Rptr. 2d 142, 52 P.3d 79] .

§ 308.24 Common-Law Bad Faith Action Against Insurer

[1] Covenant of Good Faith and Fair Dealing

A covenant of good faith and fair dealing is implied in every contract, including insurance policies. This covenant requires that no party to a contract will injure the right of another party to receive the benefits of the agreement. An insurer's refusal, without proper cause, to compensate its insured for a loss covered by the policy may give rise to a cause of action in tort for breach of the implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing [Wilson v. 21st Century Ins. Co. (2007) 42 Cal. 4th 713, 720, 68 Cal. Rptr. 3d 746, 171 P.3d 1082, 2007 Cal. LEXIS 13314 . Gruenberg v. Aetna Ins. Co. (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 566, 573-574, 108 Cal. Rptr. 480, 510 P.2d 1032] Inasmuch as a breach of this duty sounds in both contract and tort, the insured may recover punitive damages under Civ. Code § 3294 in an appropriate case [Egan v. Mutual of Omaha Ins. Co. (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 809, 819-821, 157 Cal. Rptr. 482, 598 P.2d 452] .

While an insurance company has no obligation under the implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing to pay every claim its insured makes, the insurer cannot deny the claim without fully investigating the grounds for its denial. To protect its insured's contractual interest in security and peace of mind, it is essential that an insurer fully inquire into possible bases that might support the insured's claim before denying it. By the same token, denial of a claim on a basis unfounded in the facts known to the insurer, or contradicted by those facts, may be deemed unreasonable. A trier of fact may find that an insurer acted unreasonably if the insurer ignores evidence available to it which supports the claim. The insurer may not just focus on those facts which justify denial of the claim [Wilson v. 21st Century Ins. Co. (2007) 42 Cal. 4th 713, 721, 68 Cal. Rptr. 3d 746, 171 P.3d 1082, 2007 Cal. LEXIS 13314].

The California Supreme Court held that an insurer that refused to provide underinsured motorist benefits to its insured, who was injured in an automobile accident by an underinsured drunk driver, unreasonably failed to investigate the insured's claim for benefits based on spinal injuries resulting from the accident. The insurer asserted without investigating that the injuries were the result of a preexisting condition and that the insured's pain was due to "soft tissue" injuries, although medical examinations refuted those assertions [Wilson v. 21st Century Ins. Co. (2007) 42 Cal. 4th 713, 721, 68 Cal. Rptr. 3d 746, 171 P.3d 1082, 2007 Cal. LEXIS 13314]. The Court stated that a jury could reasonably find that nothing in the material the claims examiner had received justified its conclusions. The claims examiner had no basis for his contrary conclusion that a causative link between the accident and the insured's injuries was "unlikely." Nor was there any apparent medical basis for the claims examiner's assertion that the insured had a preexisting condition [Wilson v. 21st Century Ins. Co. (2007) 42 Cal. 4th 713, 721, 68 Cal. Rptr. 3d 746, 171 P.3d 1082, 2007 Cal. LEXIS 13314]. Although the insurer was not obliged to accept the examining physician's opinion without scrutiny or investigation, to the extent it had good faith doubts, it would have been within its rights to investigate the basis for the claim by asking the physician to reexamine or further explain his findings, having a physician review all the submitted medical records and offer an opinion, or, if necessary, having its insured examined by other physicians (as it later did). What it could not do, consistent with the implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing, was ignore the physician's conclusions without any attempt at adequate investigation, and reach contrary conclusions lacking any discernable medical foundation [Wilson v. 21st Century Ins. Co. (2007) 42 Cal. 4th 713, 722, 68 Cal. Rptr. 3d 746, 171 P.3d 1082, 2007 Cal. LEXIS 13314]. In reversing summary judgment for the insurer, the Court found the existence of sufficient evidence for a jury to find that the insurer's decision was prompted not by an honest mistake, bad judgment, or negligence, but rather by a conscious and deliberate act, "which unfairly frustrates the agreed common purposes and disappoints the reasonable expectations of the other party thereby depriving that party of the benefits of the agreement" [Wilson v. 21st Century Ins. Co. (2007) 42 Cal. 4th 713, 726, 68 Cal. Rptr. 3d 746, 171 P.3d 1082, 2007 Cal. LEXIS 13314].

Inasmuch as a breach of this duty sounds in both contract and tort, the insured may recover punitive damages under Civ. Code § 3294 in an appropriate case [Egan v. Mutual of Omaha Ins. Co. (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 809, 819-821, 157 Cal. Rptr. 482, 598 P.2d 452] .

[2] Damages for Emotional Distress

The plaintiff in a bad faith action may not recover damages for emotional distress caused by the insurer's bad faith unless he or she can prove some economic loss. However, once economic loss is established, the plaintiff need not show any causal link between the economic loss and the emotional distress in order to recover damages for emotional distress [Clayton v. United Servs. Auto. Ass'n (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 1158, 1160-1162, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 419 (rejecting Blake v. Aetna Life Ins. Co. (1979) 99 Cal. App. 3d 901, 925, 160 Cal. Rptr. 528 , insofar as it holds that emotional distress must arise from financial deprivation arising from claim)].

[3] Parties Entitled to Bring Action

Because the covenant of good faith and fair dealing is contractual, privity of contract ordinarily is required [see Gruenberg v. Aetna Ins. Co. (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 566, 576, 108 Cal. Rptr. 480, 510 P.2d 1032 ; Austero v. National Cas. Co. (1976) 62 Cal. App. 3d 511, 516-517, 133 Cal. Rptr. 107] . Consequently, a bad faith action against an insurer generally is available only to the policyholder, a named insured, the insured's assignee [Murphy v. Allstate Ins. Co. (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 937, 943-944, 132 Cal. Rptr. 424, 553 P.2d 584] , or an express third-party beneficiary of the contract, such as a person falling within the policy's definition of "additional insured" [Northwestern Mut. Ins. Co. v. Farmers' Ins. Group (1978) 76 Cal. App. 3d 1031, 1041-1042, 143 Cal. Rptr. 415 ; see Johansen v. California State Auto. Ass'n Inter-Ins. Bureau (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 9, 20, 123 Cal. Rptr. 288, 538 P.2d 744 ; Cancino v. Farmers Ins. Group (1978) 80 Cal. App. 3d 335, 338-339, 145 Cal. Rptr 503 ; see also Jones v. Aetna Cas. & Sur. Co. (1994) 26 Cal. App. 4th 1717, 1722-1725, 33 Cal. Rptr. 2d 291 (lessee could not sue lessor's insurer for bad faith on third-party beneficiary theory)]. A person may also be an insured under the particular policy definition. For example, a commercial general liability (CGL) policy may insure an individual and his or her sole proprietorship as named insureds, but may include within the definition of "insured" the spouse of that individual, with respect to the conduct of that business. In that case, the spouse is entitled to sue the insurer for bad faith [Century Sur. Co. v. Polisso (2006) 139 Cal. App. 4th 922, 940-945, 43 Cal. Rptr. 3d 468] . Absent an assignment, a third-party plaintiff cannot sue the defendant's insurer directly for breach of the covenant [Coleman v. Gulf Ins. Group (1986) 41 Cal. 3d 782, 795, 226 Cal. Rptr. 90, 718 P.2d 77 ; Murphy v. Allstate Ins. Co. (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 937, 943-944, 132 Cal. Rptr. 424, 553 P.2d 584] .

Once a third party obtains a final judgment against the insured, the judgment creditor attains limited third-party beneficiary status by virtue of Ins. Code 11580, the "direct action statute" that permits judgment creditors of an insured to bring an action against the insurer to recover the amount of the judgment. Therefore, a third-party judgment creditor may maintain a direct action for breach of the covenant of good faith and fair dealing against an insurer that refuses, unreason ably and in bad faith, to pay the entire amount of a judgment after it becomes final [Hand v. Farmers Ins. Exch. (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 1847, 1857, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 258 ; see § 308.464]. A stipulated judgment with a covenant not to execute against the insured will also support a direct action against an insurer [Pruyn v. Agricultural Ins. Co. (1995) 36 Cal. App. 4th 500, 518-522, 42 Cal. Rptr. 2d 295] . A judgment supporting a direct action need not be based on a contested or adversarial trial, but may rest on a default hearing following a settlement or an uncontested trial, if the insured settled with the claimant and presented no defense [Garamendi v. Golden Eagle Ins. Co. (2004) 116 Cal. App. 4th 694, 711-712, 10 Cal. Rptr. 3d 724 (insurer overtly declined to participate in litigation)].

However, a third-party judgment creditor may not maintain a direct action for breach of the covenant of good faith and fair dealing against an insurer that unreasonably refused to settle, since the insurer's duty to settle runs only to the insured, and not to the judgment creditor [Murphy v. Allstate Ins. Co. (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 937, 943-944, 132 Cal. Rptr. 424, 553 P.2d 584 ; see Hand v. Farmers Ins. Exch. (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 1847, 1858, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 258] .

When an insured obtains a bad faith judgment against its own insurer (a situation in which Ins. Code § 11580 is inapplicable), the insured becomes a judgment creditor of the insurer. The entry of judgment absolves the insurer of any further contractual obligations, and the judgment for damages replaces the insurer's contractual obligations. The insured therefore cannot assert yet another bad faith claim based on the insurer's failure to pay the judgment, nor can the insured assert such a claim in his or her status as judgment creditor [Tomaselli v. Transamerica Ins. Co. (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 1766, 1771, 31 Cal. Rptr. 2d 224] .

For a form of complaint by an insured against an insurer for bad faith breach of contract, and for discussion of that cause of action, including preemption defenses, see § 308.379.

For a form of complaint for use by an insured against its liability insurer to recover the amount of a third-party judgment in excess of policy limits, including a cause of action for bad faith, see § 308.461. For a form of complaint for use by an insured against its liability insurer to recover damages resulting from the insurer's wrongful failure to defend a third-party action, including a cause of action for bad faith, see § 308.462.

[4] Tort Damages Not Available Based Solely on Retroactive Excessive Premiums

The California Supreme Court has ruled that a plaintiff does not have a tort action against an insurer that breaches the covenant of good faith and fair dealing by retroactively overcharging a premium that the insurer knows is not owed [Jonathan Neil & Assocs., Inc. v. Jones (2004) 33 Cal. 4th 917, 941, 16 Cal. Rptr. 3d 849, 94 P.3d 1055] . In this case, a trucking company participated in, and paid premiums charged by, the California Automobile Assigned Risk Plan (CAARP), a statutorily created program governed by the Insurance Commissioner, and designed to make vehicle liability insurance available to those unable to obtain insurance through ordinary methods [see Ins. Code § 11620 et seq.; 10 Cal. Code Regs. § 2432 et seq.]. In ruling against theavailability of tort remedies in this context, the Court noted that the insured in this case (the trucking company) was not in the same vulnerable position as those who suffer from an insurer's bad faith claims and settlement practices, because of the following [see Jonathan Neil & Assocs., Inc. v. Jones (2004) 33 Cal. 4th 917, 939-941, 16 Cal. Rptr. 3d 849, 94 P.3d 1055] :

- The billing dispute in this case did not, by itself, deny the insured the benefits of the insurance policy, the security against losses, and third-party liability.

- The billing dispute did not require the insured to prosecute the insurer in order to enforce its right, as in the case of bad-faith claims and settlement practices (the trucking company's bad faith action arose as a cross-complaint in a case filed by the insurer to recover retroactively charged premiums;

- Traditional tort remedies may be available to an insured who is wrongfully billed a retroactive premium--for example, actions for malicious prosecution, defamation, and intentional interference with prospective economic advantage.

The excessive premium charges in this case did not involve the deliberate mishandling of claims that would otherwise give rise to tort remedies. Therefore, the Supreme Court's holding applies only to retroactive billing cases in which the billing is separate and distinct from any allegations of claims mishandling [Jonathan Neil & Assocs., Inc. v. Jones (2004) 33 Cal. 4th 917, 941 n.10, 16 Cal. Rptr. 3d 849, 94 P.3d 1055] . The Court did not decide whether an insurer that in bad faith terminates or causes the termination of an insured in an assigned risk program such as the CAARP, effectively leaving the insured without the benefits of insurance, may be liable in tort [see Jonathan Neil & Assocs., Inc. v. Jones (2004) 33 Cal. 4th 917, 941 n.11, 16 Cal. Rptr. 3d 849, 94 P.3d 1055] .

[5] Punitive Damages

An insured may recover punitive damages in a bad faith action if there is clear and convincing evidence that the defendant is guilty of oppression, fraud or malice [Civ. Code § 3294(a); Neal v. Farmers Ins. Exch. (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 910, 922, 148 Cal. Rptr. 389, 582 P.2d 980 ; Campbell v. Cal-Gard Sur. Servs., Inc. (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 563, 570] . A finding that the insurer acted in bad faith does not automatically support an award of punitive damages [Silberg v. California Life Ins. Co. (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 452, 462-463, 113 Cal. Rptr. 711, 521 P.2d 1103] .

In one case, the insureds' "extended replacement cost" homeowners' policy (providing 25 percent over policy limits) covered, among other things, the dwelling, personal property ($135,100), and mortgage disaster protection. As a condition to recovering extended replacement cost coverage, the insurer required that the dwelling coverage limits be equal to the cost to replace the home, which in turn required the insurer's inspection and issuance of a report. The policy, written before the inspection, stated personal property limits of $135,100. After the inspection, the insurer increased the limits by letter, increasing personal property limits to $213,651 [see Major v. Western Home Ins. Co. (2009) 169 Cal. App. 4th 1197, 1204, 87 Cal. Rptr. 3d 556]. After a fire destroyed the home in October 2003, the insurer had a separate claims-administration company handle the claim. It did not make the first payment until February 2004; and failed to make a timely mortgage payment that month. The first adjuster handling the claim failed to provide the insureds with a copy of the policy after several requests. Three months later that company reassigned the claim to a second adjuster, who had not received the required training under California law regarding fair claims settlement practices. The insurer was delinquent two months on mortgage payments, and delinquent in payments for the trailer located on the property, in which the insureds were living. The second adjuster failed to respond to the insureds' repeated demands and inquiries, telling them that their claim was "not his top priority." In mid-July that adjuster denied the claim for replacement coverage of the swimming pool, and further admitted to ignorance regarding additional coverage questions. In September the insurer again failed to pay mortgage benefits. In October 2004, the insurers retained legal counsel. Shortly thereafter, the insurer paid all personal property benefits submitted in May 2004. An officer of the insurer reviewed the inspection report and noted that the replacement cost for the house was "significantly higher" than the coverage limit in the policy, after which he authorized a corresponding increase in limits. The insureds filed suit in February 2005, after which the claims-administration company sent the insureds' counsel a letter increasing coverage limits, to reflect the discrepancy between policy limits and the inspection report. The first claims adjuster assumed claims-handling duties after the insureds retained counsel. By spring of 2005, the insurer had paid all policy benefits due. A jury verdict found for the insureds on claims of breach of contract and bad faith, awarding damages for personal property benefits (approximately $31,300), noneconomic damages for emotional distress ($450,000), Brandt fees, and punitive damages (approximately $646,500). The appellate court upheld the judgment, holding that the insureds were entitled to the economic damages award because the increased policy benefits were not "courtesy benefits," but were rather increased coverage limits that the insurer was contractually bound to pay under the policy terms [Major v. Western Home Ins. Co. (2009) 169 Cal. App. 4th 1197, 1210, 87 Cal. Rptr. 3d 556]. The court also held with respect to the punitive damages award that the first claims adjuster employed by the claims-administration company was a managing agent within the meaning of Civil Code § 3294(b); hence, the insurer was responsible for her actions in handling the claim. Furthermore, neither the award of noneconomic damages nor the award of punitive damages was excessive [Major v. Western Home Ins. Co. (2009) 169 Cal. App. 4th 1197, 1221-1222, 87 Cal. Rptr. 3d 556].

Courts must ensure that the measure of punishment is not only reasonable, but also proportionate to both the amount of harm to the plaintiff and the general damages recovered [State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v. Campbell (2003) 538 U.S. 408, 426, 123 S. Ct. 1513, 155 L. Ed. 2d 585] . An excessive punitive damages award implicates the due process clause of the U.S. Constitution as an irrational and arbitrary deprivation of the defendant's property [see State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v. Campbell (2003) 538 U.S. 408, 429, 123 S. Ct. 1513, 155 L. Ed. 2d 585 ($145 million punitive damages award in Utah insurance bad faith case reversed in 6 to 3 decision on constitutional grounds); see also U.S. Const. amend. XIV].

The U.S. Supreme Court has provided the following general guidelines for the imposition of punitive damages:

- The degree of reprehensibility of the defendant's conduct [State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v. Campbell (2003) 538 U.S. 408, 419, 123 S. Ct. 1513, 155 L. Ed. 2d 585 ; BMW of N. Am., Inc. v. Gore (1996) 517 U.S. 559, 575, 116 S. Ct. 1589, 134 L. Ed. 2d 809] ;

- The disparity between the actual or potential harm suffered by the plaintiff and the punitive damages award [State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v. Campbell (2003) 538 U.S. 408, 424-425, 123 S. Ct. 1513, 155 L. Ed. 2d 585 ; BMW of N. Am., Inc. v. Gore (1996) 517 U.S. 559, 575, 116 S. Ct. 1589, 134 L. Ed. 2d 809] ; and

- The disparity between a punitive damages award and the civil or criminal penalties authorized or imposed in comparable cases [State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v. Campbell (2003) 538 U.S. 408, 426-427, 123 S. Ct. 1513, 155 L. Ed. 2d 585 ; BMW of N. Am., Inc. v. Gore (1996) 517 U.S. 559, 575, 116 S. Ct. 1589, 134 L. Ed. 2d 809 ; Pacific Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Haslip (1991) 499 U.S. 1, 23, 111 S. Ct. 1032, 113 L. Ed. 2d 1] .

In an insurance bad faith case, the degree of reprehensibility of the defendant's conduct may be analyzed only with respect to the conduct that harmed the insured in that particular case [State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v. Campbell (2003) 538 U.S. 408, 417-425, 123 S. Ct. 1513, 155 L. Ed. 2d 585] . Therefore, a large and disproportionate punitive damages award based on the insurer's questionable claims-handling practices unrelated to the case at hand was vulnerable to reversal, particularly if a great deal of evidence unrelated to that case was considered for the purpose of punishing the insurer [see State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v. Campbell (2003) 538 U.S. 408, 417-427, 123 S. Ct. 1513, 155 L. Ed. 2d 585 ; see also Romo v. Ford Motor Co. (2003) 113 Cal. App. 4th 738, 753, n.7, 6 Cal. Rptr. 3d 793 (jury instructions must not invite jury to impose punitive damages sufficient to punish and deter all conduct by defendant of type directed toward plaintiffs in particular case)].

There are no concrete constitutional limits on the ratio between harm, or potential harm, to the plaintiff, and the punitive damages award [State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v. Campbell (2003) 538 U.S. 408, 424, 123 S. Ct. 1513, 155 L. Ed. 2d 585 ; BMW of N. Am., Inc. v. Gore (1996) 517 U.S. 559, 575, 116 S. Ct. 1589, 134 L. Ed. 2d 809] . The U.S. Supreme Court has stated that few awards exceeding a single-digit ratio between punitive and compensatory damages will satisfy due process. An award of more than four times the amount of compensatory damages "might be close to the line of constitutional impropriety" [State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v. Campbell (2003) 538 U.S. 408, 425, 123 S. Ct. 1513, 155 L. Ed. 2d 585, 605-606 ; BMW of N. Am., Inc. v. Gore (1996) 517 U.S. 559, 581, 116 S. Ct. 1589, 134 L. Ed. 2d 809 ; Pacific Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Haslip (1991) 499 U.S. 1, 23-24, 111 S. Ct. 1032, 113 L. Ed. 2d 1] . Single-digit ratios are more likely to comport with due process, while still achieving the goals of deterrence and retribution, than awards with ratios in the range of, for example, 500 to one, or (as in the case before the Court) 145 to one [State Farm Mut.Auto. Ins. Co. v. Campbell (2003) 538 U.S. 408, 425, 123 S. Ct. 1513, 155 L. Ed. 2d 585] . However, greater ratios may comport with due process if a particularly egregious act has resulted in only a small amount of economic damages [State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v. Campbell (2003) 538 U.S. 408, 425, 123 S. Ct. 1513, 155 L. Ed. 2d 585] .

The converse is also true. If compensatory damages are substantial, then a lesser ratio, perhaps only equal to those compensatory damages, can reach the outermost limit of the due process guarantee. The precise award in any case must be based on the facts and circumstances of the defendant's conduct, as well as the harm to the plaintiff [State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v. Campbell (2003) 538 U.S. 408, 425, 123 S. Ct. 1513, 155 L. Ed. 2d 585] . In the particular insurance bad faith case before the Court, the Court reversed a judgment of $145 million in punitive damages because the $1 million compensatory damages award was based in part on factors also relevant to the punitive damages award. Under the facts of that case, involving an insurer's bad faith failure to settle that resulted in an excess verdict against the insureds, the Court found that the compensatory damages likely were based on a component that was duplicated in the punitive damages award--that is, the outrage and humiliation that the insureds suffered at the actions of their insurer [State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v. Campbell (2003) 538 U.S. 408, 426, 123 S. Ct. 1513, 155 L. Ed. 2d 585] .

The Court cited the following factors in reversing the punitive damages award in that case [State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v. Campbell (2003) 538 U.S. 408, 426, 123 S. Ct. 1513, 155 L. Ed. 2d 585] :

- The harm arose from a transaction in the economic realm, not from physical injury;
- The insurer paid the excess verdict before the complaint was filed;
- The compensatory award was substantial (the insureds were awarded $1 million for a year and a half of emotional distress); and
- A component of the compensatory damages duplicated the punitive damages award.

Because insurance bad faith cases arise from economic transactions as opposed to circumstances involving physical injuries, courts determining the validity of a punitive damages award in an insurance bad faith case must also consider the following factors on a case-by-case basis:

- The insurer's mitigating conduct within a reasonable time after the dispute arises between the insurer and insured;
- The adequacy of the compensatory damages award to remedy all wrongs;
- The amount of compensatory damages; and
- The nature and distinguishable components of the compensatory damages award.

The California Supreme Court has stated that a ratio of one to one is the federal constitutional limit in a case involving relatively low reprehensibility and a substantial compensatory damages verdict, which included a substantial award of noneconomic damages [Roby v. McKesson Corp. (2009) 47 Cal. 4th 686, 719, 101 Cal. Rptr. 3d 773, 219 P.3d 749 (wrongful discharge case)].

In one insurance bad faith case, involving a "California Special Multi-Peril Policy" (insuring business personal property) issued to a printing and design business, the award of punitive damages against the insurer was supported by substantial evidence that the insurer was intentionally dishonest and acted in conscious disregard of the insured's rights in denying full coverage for a claim following water damage to the insured's property [Amerigraphics, Inc. v. Mercury Cas. Co. (2010) 182 Cal. App. 4th 1538, 1559-1560, 107 Cal. Rptr. 3d 307] . In that case, the jury awarded $3 million in punitive damages, which the trial court reduced to $1.7 million, representing 10 times the total of $130,000 in compensatory damages, plus $40,000 in prejudgment interest. The appellate court analyzed the appropriate factors used in setting the award, stating among other things, that of the five reprehensibility factors, only financial vulnerability weighs in favor of the insured [Amerigraphics, Inc. v. Mercury Cas. Co. (2010) 182 Cal. App. 4th 1538, 1562-1563, 107 Cal. Rptr. 3d 307] . The court concluded that the trial court's remittitur of punitive damages to $1.7 million was constitutionally excessive. It held that neither the interest in deterrence nor the insurer's substantial wealth justified a punitive damages award of 10 times the amount of compensatory damages. Noting that the $130,000 in compensatory damages awarded was the precise amount of damages that the insured sought, it stated that there did not appear to be a punitive element to the compensatory damages award. The court concluded that the maximum award of punitive damages consistent with due process in this case is $500,000, that is, a 3.8-to-one ratio of compensatory damages [Amerigraphics, Inc. v. Mercury Cas. Co. (2010) 182 Cal. App. 4th 1538, 1566, 107 Cal. Rptr. 3d 307] .

For a more complete discussion of punitive damages, see Ch. 177, Damages, § 177.40 et seq.

[6] Attorneys' Fees

Attorneys' fees may be recovered as an element of damages in a bad faith action. However, the plaintiff may recover only those fees reasonably incurred to compel the payment of policy benefits, and may not recover fees incurred in pursuing the bad faith action itself. Accordingly, if the plaintiff's award in the bad faith action exceeds the amount due under the policy, any fees attributable to obtaining the excess amount are not recoverable [Brandt v. Superior Court (1985) 37 Cal. 3d 813, 819-820, 210 Cal. Rptr. 211, 693 P.2d 796 ; Campbell v. Cal-Gard Sur. Servs., Inc. (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 563, 571-572] .

An insured's assignment of a cause of action against an insurance company for tortious breach of the covenant of good faith and fair dealing by wrongfully denying benefits due under an insurance policy carries with it the right to recover Brandt fees that the assignee incurs to recover the policy benefits in the lawsuit against the insurance company [Essex Ins. Co. v. Five Star Dye House, Inc. (2006) 38 Cal. 4th 1252, 1264, 45 Cal. Rptr. 3d 362, 137 P.3d 192] .

Although one appellate court has held that Brandt fees are recoverable on appeal, authority to the contrary exists [Baron v. Fire Ins. Exchange (2007) 154 Cal. App. 4th 1184, 1198, 65 Cal. Rptr. 3d 502 ; accord McGregor v. Paul Revere Life Ins. Co. (9th Cir. 2004) 369 F.3d 1099, 1101 ; but see Burnaby v. Standard Fire Ins. Co. (1995) 40 Cal. App. 4th 787, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 326]. The court held that attorney fees the insured has incurred to defend a judgment against the insurer's appeal are a logical extension of the fees incurred in pursuing the recovery in the trial court. The collection of the benefits due is not complete when the insurer resists the judgment by challenging the judgment on appeal [Baron v. Fire Ins. Exchange (2007) 154 Cal. App. 4th 1184, 1198, 65 Cal. Rptr. 3d 502 ; see also McGregor v. Paul Revere Life Ins. Co. (9th Cir. 2004) 369 F.3d 1099, 1101].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Actions Against Insurance Companies to Recover Insurance Contract Benefits
1. In General

26-308 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 308.25

§ 308.25 Statutory Actions Against Insurer

[1] Unfair Practices Act

The Unfair Practices Act (Ins. Code §§ 790-790.10) regulates trade practices in the business of insurance by proscribing practices that constitute unfair methods of competition, or unfair or deceptive acts or practices [Ins. Code § 790]. Prior to the California Supreme Court's opinion in Moradi-Shalal v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Cos. (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 287, 297-305, 250 Cal. Rptr. 116, 758 P.2d 58 , private actions were brought under the Act by both first-party insureds and third-party claimants. However, Moradi-Shalal, by overturning Royal Globe Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1979) 23 Cal. 3d 880, 885-888, 153 Cal. Rptr. 842, 592 P.2d 329 , eliminated a third-party cause of action under the Act, effective October 17, 1988. The Court also unequivocally disapproved any private cause of action under the Act. Subsequent cases have held that under the reasoning of Moradi-Shalal, Ins. Code § 790.03(h) cannot be used as the basis for a private action, whether brought by first parties or third parties.

Consequently, all private first-party claims under Ins. Code § 790.03(h) are precluded prospectively from the effective date of Moradi-Shalal (October 17, 1988) [Tricor Cal., Inc. v. Superior Court (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 880, 885-887, 269 Cal. Rptr. 642 ; Zephyr Park v. Superior Court (1989) 213 Cal. App. 3d 833, 836-840, 262 Cal. Rptr. 106 ; see also McMillin Scripps N. P'ship v. Royal Ins. Co. (1993) 19 Cal.App. 4th 1215, 1222, 23 Cal. Rptr. 2d 243 (no statutory cause of action for failure to properly investigate claim)]. For further discussion of Moradi-Shalal, see § 308.25[2].

[2] Anti-Discrimination, Unfair Competition, and Anti-Trust Statutes

The business of insurance is subject to the laws of California applicable to any other business, including, but not limited to, the Unruh Civil Rights Act (Civ. Code §§ 51-53), and the antitrust and unfair business practices law (Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 16600-17365 and 17500-17930) [Ins. Code § 1861.03(a)]. However, although the laws affecting businesses are generally applicable to the insurance business, none of the following are prohibited [Ins. Code § 1861.03(b)]:

- Any agreement to collect, compile, and disseminate historical data on paid claims or reserves for reported claims, provided the data is contemporaneously transmitted to the commissioner.

- Participation in any joint arrangement established by statute or the commissioner to assure availability of insurance.

- Any agent or broker, representing one or more insurers, obtaining from any insurer it represents information relative to the premium for any policy or risk to be underwritten by that insurer.

- Disclosure by any agent or broker to an insurer it represents of any quoted rate or charge offered by another insurer represented by that agent or broker for the purpose of negotiating a lower rate, charge, or term from the insurer to whom the disclosure is made.

- Any agents, brokers, or insurers from utilizing or participating with multiple insurers or reinsurers for underwriting a single risk or group of risks.

In Manufacturers Life Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 257, 41 Cal. Rptr. 2d 220, 895 P.2d 56 , the California Supreme Court held that the Unfair Insurance Practices Act (Ins. Code § 790 et seq.) does not supersede or displace insurance-industry-related claims under the Cartwright Act (Bus. & Prof. Code § 16720 et seq.) and/or the Unfair Competition Act (Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 et seq.). The Unfair Insurance Practices Act does not grant the insurance industry a general exemption from state antitrust and unfair business practices statutes. Rather, the rights and remedies available under those statutes are cumulative to the powers granted to the insurance commissioner to enjoin future unlawful actions and impose sanctions in the form of license and certificate suspension or revocation when a member of the industry violates any applicable statute, rule, or regulation [Manufacturers Life Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 257, 263, 279-284, 41 Cal. Rptr. 2d 220, 895 P.2d 56] .

The Unfair Insurance Practices Act does not create a private right of action for violation of its provisions, and a plaintiff may not "plead around" that limitation by casting a cause of action based on a violation of the Unfair Insurance Practices Act as one brought under the Unfair Competition Act. However, the Unfair Competition Act permits any person to sue for injunctive relief and restitution for conduct constituting unfair competition, defined as any "unlawful, unfair or fraudulent business act or practice" [Manufacturers Life Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 257, 267-268, 41 Cal. Rptr. 2d 220, 895 P.2d 56 ; see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17200, 17203, 17204].

In Manufacturers Life Ins. Co., a life insurance brokerage and consulting business that advised attorneys regarding settlement annuities brought suit against other insurers, competing insurance brokers, trade associations, and an officer of a competing broker, asserting causes of action for violation of the Cartwright Act, the Unfair Competition Act, and the Unfair Insurance Practices Act [Manufacturers Life Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 257, 263-264, 41 Cal. Rptr. 2d 220, 895 P.2d 56] . The California Supreme Court allowed the plaintiff to state a claim under the Cartwright Act. The Court held that this result did not compromise the rule of Moradi-Shalal. In Moradi-Shalal the Court did not hold that by identifying practices that are unlawful in the insurance industry, practices that violate the Cartwright Act, the legislature intended to bar Cartwright Act causes of action based on those practices. Remedies and penalties under the Unfair Competition Act are cumulative to other remedies and penalties [Manufacturers Life Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 257, 284, 41 Cal. Rptr. 2d 220, 895 P.2d 56] .

There is a conflict between California appellate courts regarding the application of Moradi-Shalal in barring particular claims under the Unfair Competition Law (UCL) [see Zhang v. Superior Court (2009) 178 Cal. App. 4th 1081, 1084-1085, 100 Cal. Rptr. 3d 803 (4th Appellate District) , review granted, depublished, Zhang v. Superior Court (2010) 105 Cal. Rptr. 3d 886, 225 P.3d 1080, 2010 Cal. LEXIS 897 , contra Textron Fin. Corp. v. National Union Fire Ins. Co. (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 1061, 1070, 13 Cal. Rptr. 3d 586 (4th Appellate District) ; see also Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 et seq.].

In Textron Fin. Corp. v. National Union Fire Ins. Co. (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 1061, 13 Cal. Rptr. 3d 586 (4th Appellate District, Division 3) , the plaintiff, a secured party with respect to the vehicle involved, alleged that when the owner canceled coverage, the insurer failed to notify the plaintiff. The complaint alleged that the insurer did the following: (1) "used misleading documents to falsely suggest that it would provide insurance ... where it had no intention to do so"; (2) "falsely suggested that it would ... provid[e] timely notice of [policy] cancellations"; (3) "misrepresented the terms and meaning of its policies"; and (4) "engaged in a pattern and practice of wrongful and false cancellations of insurance policies" [see Textron Fin. Corp. v. National Union Fire Ins. Co. (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 1061, 1070, 13 Cal. Rptr. 3d 586 ; see also Zhang v. Superior Court (2009) 178 Cal. App. 4th 1081, 1086, 100 Cal. Rptr. 3d 803 , review granted, depublished, Zhang v. Superior Court (2010) 105 Cal. Rptr. 3d 886, 225 P.3d 1080, 2010 Cal. LEXIS 897]. In upholding the trial court's ruling sustaining the defendant insurer's demurrer to the UCL cause of action, the appellate court in Textron Financial commented that the specific allegations of wrongful conduct contained in the cause of action for using misleading documents and misrepresenting both the terms of the insurance policies and its obligations under them for its own benefit, are the type of activities covered by the UCL [see Textron Fin. Corp. v. National Union Fire Ins. Co. (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 1061, 1070, 13 Cal. Rptr. 3d 586 ; see also Zhang v. Superior Court (2009) 178 Cal. App. 4th 1081, 1086-1087, 100 Cal. Rptr. 3d 803 , review granted, depublished, Zhang v. Superior Court (2010) 105 Cal. Rptr. 3d 886, 225 P.3d 1080, 2010 Cal. LEXIS 897]. The court in Textron Financial relied on Safeco Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1990) 216 Cal. App. 3d 1491, 265 Cal. Rptr. 585 (2nd Appellate district, division 2), which rejected a third-party UCL claim based on the insurer's position during negotiations that its insured was not legally liable for a certain item of claimed damages. This claim was concededly covered by the description in Ins. Code § 790.04(h) of prohibited "unfair claims settlement practices" [Safeco Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1990) 216 Cal. App. 3d 1491, 1493-1494, 265 Cal. Rptr. 585 ; see Zhang v. Superior Court (2009) 178 Cal. App. 4th 1081, 1087, 100 Cal. Rptr. 3d 803 , review granted, depublished, Zhang v. Superior Court (2010) 105 Cal. Rptr. 3d 886, 225 P.3d 1080, 2010 Cal. LEXIS 897].

However, in Zhang v. Superior Court (2009) 178 Cal. App. 4th 1081, 100 Cal. Rptr. 3d 803 (4th Appellate District) , review granted, depublished, Zhang v. Superior Court (2010) 105 Cal. Rptr. 3d 886, 225 P.3d 1080, 2010 Cal. LEXIS 897 , the appellate court disagreed in part with Textron Financial, which was decided by a different division of the Fourth Appellate District, in holding that Moradi-Shalal did not bar the claim under the UCL [Zhang v. Superior Court (2009) 178 Cal. App. 4th 1081, 1084-1085, 100 Cal. Rptr. 3d 803 , review granted, depublished, Zhang v. Superior Court (2010) 105 Cal. Rptr. 3d 886, 225 P.3d 1080, 2010 Cal. LEXIS 897]. In Zhang v. Superior Court, the insured brought an action against her insurer based on its handling of a first-party claim. The complaint alleged causes of action for: (1) breach of contract; (2) bad faith; and (3) violation of the UCL, which incorporated all the previous allegations. The third cause of action also alleged that the defendant "engaged in unfair, deceptive, untrue, and/or misleading advertising. ... [Defendant] promises its insureds that it will timely pay proper coverage in the event the insured suffers a covered loss. ... However ... [defendant] in fact has no intention of properly paying the true value of its insureds' covered claims. ... [Defendant] had and has no intention of honoring such advertised promises" [see Zhang v. Superior Court (2009) 178 Cal. App. 4th 1081, 1084, 100 Cal. Rptr. 3d 803 , review granted, depublished, Zhang v. Superior Court (2010) 105 Cal. Rptr. 3d 886, 225 P.3d 1080, 2010 Cal. LEXIS 897]. The defendant demurred to the third cause of action on the basis that the conduct alleged was prohibited by Ins. Code § 790.03, and the insured could not state a private cause of action pursuant to Moradi-Shalal. The trial court also relied on Textron Financial in sustaining the demurrer [see Zhang v. Superior Court (2009) 178 Cal. App. 4th 1081, 1084-1085, 100 Cal. Rptr. 3d 803 , review granted, depublished, Zhang v. Superior Court (2010) 105 Cal. Rptr. 3d 886, 225 P.3d 1080, 2010 Cal. LEXIS 897]. The court noted that in reviewing a ruling on demurrer, it is required to give a generous interpretation of the pleading in favor of stating a cause of action. Therefore, if any of the allegations would support a cause of action under the UCL, it is immaterial that some of them might not. For that reason, the court found it unnecessary to determine whether the plaintiff's allegations, found in other causes of action but incorporated into the UCL cause of action, relating to claim-handling procedures would alone permit suit under the UCL. The court considered it clear that the insured's claims of false advertising support the third cause of action [Zhang v. Superior Court (2009) 178 Cal. App. 4th 1081, 1085, 100 Cal. Rptr. 3d 803 , review granted, depublished, Zhang v. Superior Court (2010) 105 Cal. Rptr. 3d 886, 225 P.3d 1080, 2010 Cal. LEXIS 897].

The court in Zhang v. Superior Court noted that the California Supreme Court in Moradi-Shalal, among other things, held that the prohibitory provisions of Ins. Code § 790.03 (part of the Unfair Insurance Practices Act) did not create a private right of action under the statute against insurers who commit the unfair practices enumerated in that provision. Although it was a third-party case, the principle was later extended to first-party suits in an appellate case [see Zephyr Park v. Superior Court (1989) 213 Cal. App. 3d 833, 837-838, 262 Cal. Rptr. 106] . The court noted that although neither case expressly references the UCL, they both stand for the accepted principle that a violation of Ins. Code § 790.03 does not result in a private cause of action for unfair practices. To that extent, the court agreed that the insured would be unable to state a cause of action for tort damages based directly and solely on the insurer's alleged violations of that statute [Zhang v. Superior Court (2009) 178 Cal. App. 4th 1081, 1085-1086, 100 Cal. Rptr. 3d 803 , review granted, depublished, Zhang v. Superior Court (2010) 105 Cal. Rptr. 3d 886, 225 P.3d 1080, 2010 Cal. LEXIS 897]. The court noted that the UCL on its face applies to all businesses, and does not expressly except or exempt insurers. It also authorizes any injured person to sue for the violation of its requirements and/or prohibitions, that is, for unfair competition. Unfair competition is defined to include any unlawful, unfair, or fraudulent business act or practice, and unfair, deceptive, untrue, or misleading advertising [Zhang v. Superior Court (2009) 178 Cal. App. 4th 1081, 1086, 100 Cal. Rptr. 3d 803 , review granted, depublished, Zhang v. Superior Court (2010) 105 Cal. Rptr. 3d 886, 225 P.3d 1080, 2010 Cal. LEXIS 897 ; see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200].

The court in Zhang v. Superior Court stated that in Safeco Ins. Co. v. Superior Court, the insurer's alleged misconduct was arguably proscribed only by the Unfair Insurance Practices Act, and the result in that case was required by Moradi-Shalal. However, in Textron Financial, which relied on Safeco Ins. Co. v. Superior Court, and in the instant case, the plaintiffs alleged conduct that is not merely improper under the Unfair Insurance Practices Act [see Zhang v. Superior Court (2009) 178 Cal. App. 4th 1081, 1087, 100 Cal. Rptr. 3d 803 , review granted, depublished, Zhang v. Superior Court (2010) 105 Cal. Rptr. 3d 886, 225 P.3d 1080, 2010 Cal. LEXIS 897]. The California Supreme Court in Moradi-Shalal did not state that insurers who violate the Unfair Insurance Practices Act can never be liable in tort to the injured party, whether first party or third party. After explaining that enforcement of violations of Ins. Code § 790.03 was vested solely in the insurance commissioner, the Court noted that courts retain jurisdiction to impose civil damages or other remedies against insurers in appropriate common-law actions, based on such traditional theories as fraud, infliction of emotional distress, and (as to the insured) either breach of contract or bad faith [see Moradi-Shalal v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Companies (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 287, 304-305, 250 Cal. Rptr. 116, 758 P.2d 58 ; see also Zhang v. Superior Court (2009) 178 Cal. App. 4th 1081, 1087, 100 Cal. Rptr. 3d 803 , review granted, depublished, Zhang v. Superior Court (2010) 105 Cal. Rptr. 3d 886, 225 P.3d 1080, 2010 Cal. LEXIS 897]. Moreover, in Manufacturers Life Ins. Co., the California Supreme Court expressly eschewed the idea that the Unfair Insurance Practices Act was intended to displace existing rights and remedies for unlawful business practices in the insurance industry, among them the Cartwright Act (Bus. & Prof. Code § 16720 et seq.) and the UCL [Manufacturers Life Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 257, 267, 41 Cal. Rptr. 2d 220] . In Manufacturers Life Ins. Co. v. Superior Court, although the insurers attempted to persuade the court that they were in essence untouchable with respect to civil claims based on anticompetitive conduct, the Court rejected the argument that the Unfair Insurance Practices Act exempts insurance companies from other state antitrust laws or from civil liability for anticompetitive conduct. The Court also stated that the Unfair Insurance Practices Act does not reflect legislative intent to repeal the Cartwright Act insofar as it applies to the insurance industry; and the legislature has stated its intent that the remedies and penalties under the UCL are cumulative to other remedies and penalties [Manufacturers Life Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 257, 279, 284, 41 Cal. Rptr. 2d 220 ; see Zhang v. Superior Court (2009) 178 Cal. App. 4th 1081, 1088, 100 Cal. Rptr. 3d 803 , review granted, depublished, Zhang v. Superior Court (2010) 105 Cal. Rptr. 3d 886, 225 P.3d 1080, 2010 Cal. LEXIS 897]. Pursuant to Manufacturers Life Ins. Co., the court in Zhang v. Superior Court stated it found no reason to treat insurers differently from other businesses with respect to actions under the UCL except as required by Moradi-Shalal. If a plaintiff relies on conduct that violates the Unfair Insurance Practices Act but is not otherwise prohibited, Moradi-Shalal requires that a civil action under the UCL be considered barred. In the instant case, the insured's specific additional allegations made part of the UCL cause of action were that the insurer made fraudulent misrepresentations and promulgated misleading advertising with respect to its intentions to "pay proper coverage in the event the insured suffers a covered loss" [see Zhang v. Superior Court (2009) 178 Cal. App. 4th 1081, 1088, 100 Cal. Rptr. 3d 803 , review granted, depublished, Zhang v. Superior Court (2010) 105 Cal. Rptr. 3d 886, 225 P.3d 1080, 2010 Cal. LEXIS 897]. The court noted that false advertising is a recognized basis for suit under the UCL both expressly as provided by statute and in case law. It found no reason why an insurance company should not be subject to similar liability under the UCL if false advertising or similar misrepresentations can be proved [Zhang v. Superior Court (2009) 178 Cal. App. 4th 1081, 1089, 100 Cal. Rptr. 3d 803 , review granted, depublished, Zhang v. Superior Court (2010) 105 Cal. Rptr. 3d 886, 225 P.3d 1080, 2010 Cal. LEXIS 897 ; see Progressive West Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (2005) 135 Cal. App. 4th 263, 37 Cal. Rptr. 3d 434 (3rd Appellate District; while not deciding whether conduct was "unfair," holding that plaintiff can maintain UCL claim against insurer with respect to fraudulent conduct)].

The court in Zhang v. Superior Court held that at the very least, the insured's allegations in the third cause of action, that the insurer solicited her business through false advertising and false promises, justifies a claim under the UCL. The court clarified that it did not hold that the insured can recover under this cause of action if she proves only that the insurer behaved unreasonably in handling her claim. She will also have to establish that the insurer advertised or otherwise represented to the public that it operated honestly and equitably in settling claims, and that it had a policy or regular practice of "lowballing," delaying, or taking unfair advantage, so that its advertising and/or representations were likely to mislead the public [Zhang v. Superior Court (2009) 178 Cal. App. 4th 1081, 1090, 100 Cal. Rptr. 3d 803 , review granted, depublished, Zhang v. Superior Court (2010) 105 Cal. Rptr. 3d 886, 225 P.3d 1080, 2010 Cal. LEXIS 897].

In Triplett v. Farmers Ins. Exch. (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 1415, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 741 , after trial a plaintiff attempted to add the defendant's insurer under Code Civ. Proc. § 187 to obtain sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5, based on allegations that the insurer insisted on a jury trial and unreasonably failed to settle the case [Triplett v. Farmers Ins. Exch. (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 1415, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 741] . The court stated that the insurer is not the alter ego of the insured for purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 187, even if the insurer did exert some practical control over the defense of the case [Triplett v. Farmers Ins. Exch. (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 1415, 1421, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 741] . The court further stated that the decision to insist on the right to a jury trial rather than settle a case is not sanctionable under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5, even if the trial court had concluded that the failure to settle was motivated by ulterior and improper purposes; a defendant always has the right to take a case to trial [Triplett v. Farmers Ins. Exch. (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 1415, 1422, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 741] . Finally, the court pointed out that a third party may not use sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 to get around the holding in Moradi Shalal [Triplett v. Farmers Ins. Exch. (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 1415, 1424, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 741] . § 308.26 Action for Conspiracy to Commit Bad Faith

An action for civil conspiracy cannot be stated against noninsurers with respect to bad faith conduct unless the defendant owes an independent duty to the insured [Doctors' Co. v. Superior Court (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 39, 47, 260 Cal. Rptr. 183, 775 P.2d 508] . For example, if an attorney, hired by an insurer to represent the insured, wrongfully derogates the insured's collateral rights against the third party, he or she may incur liability for civil conspiracy, along with the insurer, for breach of the duty of good faith and fair dealing with regard to the insurance policy [Barney v. Aetna Cas. & Sur. Co. (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 966, 981-982, 230 Cal. Rptr. 215 (attorney wrongfully dismissed action with knowledge that insured intended to pursue collateral rights); see also Ivy v. Pacific Auto. Ins. Co. (1958) 156 Cal. App. 2d 652, 663, 320 P.2d 140 (attorneys' conduct in arranging settlement violated attorneys' own fiduciary duty to insured plaintiff)]. However, an agent or employee of an insurer, acting solely in a representative capacity, is not subject to liability for civil conspiracy to violate Ins. Code § 790.03 [Doctors' Co. v. Superior Court (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 39, 44-45, 260 Cal. Rptr. 183, 775 P.2d 508 ; see § 308.25[1]].

Similarly, with respect to the insured's duty of good faith and fair dealing, an insurer does not establish a cause of action for conspiracy to commit bad faith against the agents of the insured based on alleged acts that were solely within their capacity as agents [Cooper v. Equity Gen. Ins. (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 1252, 1261, 268 Cal. Rptr. 692] . An insurer is also unable to state a cause of action for conspiracy to commit bad faith against the insured's attorney, based on the attorney's breach of fiduciary duty, when that duty is owed not to the insurer, but rather to the insured [Cooper v. Equity Gen. Ins. (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 1252, 1261-1262, 268 Cal. Rptr. 692] .

Every person has an insurable interest in himself or herself, in any person on whom he or she depends wholly or in part for education or support, in any person under a legal obligation to him or her for the payment of money or respecting property or services of which death or illness might delay or prevent the performance, and in any person on whose life any estate or interest vested in him or her depends [Ins. Code § 10110]. An interest in the life or health of a person insured must exist when the insurance takes effect but need not exist thereafter or when the loss occurs [Ins. Code § 286]. If the insured has no insurable interest, the contract is void [Ins. Code § 280].

A person may not obtain an insurance policy on the life of another in whom he or she has no insurable interest. However, a person has an insurable interest in his or her own life [Ins. Code § 10110], and he or she may therefore insure his or her own life and make the proceeds of the policy payable to his or her estate or to any other person. In this situation, the question as to whether or not the named beneficiary has an insurable interest in the life of the insured is immaterial [Boyer v. United States Fid. & Guar. Co. (1929) 206 Cal. 273, 279, 274 P. 57 ; Comegys v. National Union Assurance Soc'y (1935) 3 Cal. App. 2d 637, 639-640, 39 P.2d 861] .

An insured may also assign his or her policy to a person with no insurable interest. That is, a life policy may pass by transfer, will, or succession to any person, whether or not the transferee has an insurable interest, and the transferee may recover on the policy [Ins. Code § 10130; see Ins. Code §§ 10129, 10129.5]. Notice of the transfer need not be given to the insurer to preserve the validity of the policy unless expressly required by the policy [Ins. Code § 10131].

§ 308.42 Insurance Takes Effect When Insured Signs Application and Pays First Premium or Receives Receipt

Ins. Code § 10115 provides the following:

> "When a payment is made equal to the full first premium at the time an application for life insurance other than group life insurance is signed by the applicant and either (1) the applicant received at that time a receipt for said payment on a form prepared by the insurer, or (2) in the absence of such a receipt the insurer receives the said payment at its home office ... and in either case the insurer, pursuant to its regular underwriting practices and standards, approves the application for the issuance by it of a policy of life insurance on the plan and for the class of risk and amount of insurance applied for, and the person to be insured dies on or after the date of the application, on or after the date of the medical examination, if any, or on or after any date specially requested in the application for the policy to take effect, whichever is later, but before such policy is issued and delivered, the insurer shall pay such amount as would have been due under the terms of the policy in the same manner and subject to the same rights, conditions and defenses as if such policy had been issued and delivered on the date the application was signed by the applicant."

This language means that if a prospective insured makes a first premium payment concurrently with submitting an insurance application, if either the prospective insured receives a form receipt for the premium or the insurer receives the payment at its home office, if the insurer approves the application for the class of risk and amount applied for, and if the prospective insured dies on or after the date of the application, the insurer must pay the amount that would have been due under the terms of the policy as if the policy had been issued and delivered on the date that the prospective insured signed the application [Hodgson v. Banner Life Ins. Co. (2004) 124 Cal. App. 4th 1358, 1372, 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 907] .

Consequently, in a case in which a life insurance policy applicant paid an initial premium and set up automatic payments for future premiums after receiving a conditional receipt, the insurance became effective despite the insured's death prior to the full processing of "permanent coverage," and despite the insurer's having returned the check because the policy amount was too high for a conditional receipt under new guidelines not printed on the application. The premium check was received at the insurer's home office, and the application was processed and ultimately approved essentially for the coverage requested by the insured. Ins. Code § 10115 prevailed despite policy language stating that the insurance does not take effect until the full first premium is paid and the policy is delivered to the owner while the insured is living and his or her health remains as described in the application [Hodgson v. Banner Life Ins. Co. (2004) 124 Cal. App. 4th 1358, 1371-1373, 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 907] .

§ 308.43 Incontestability Clause

Every group and individual life insurance policy issued in California must provide that the validity of the policy is incontestable after the policy has been in effect, during the lifetime of the insured, for a period of two years from its date of issue [Ins. Code §§ 10113.5 (individual life insurance), 10206 (group life insurance)]. After this period has elapsed, the incontestability clause precludes the insurer from asserting defenses based on the insured's fraud or misrepresentation, including the insured's misrepresentation about his or her health in applying for the insurance [Amex Life Assurance Co. v. Superior Court (1997) 14 Cal. 4th 1231, 1236-1238, 930 P.2d 1264] .

An individual life insurance policy, on reinstatement, may be contested on account of fraud or misrepresentation of facts material to the reinstatement only for the same period following reinstatement, and with the same conditions and exceptions, as the policy provides with respect to contestability after original issuance. [Ins. Code § 10113.5].

Incontestability clauses do not apply to nonpayment of premiums and, in the case of individual policies, to supplemental benefits described in Ins. Code § 10271, to the extent that the policy or a contract supplemental to the policy provides for the contestability of such benefits. Nor do they preclude the assertion of defenses based on policy provisions that exclude or restrict coverage [Ins. Code §§ 10113.5, 10206]. In addition, individual insurance policies delivered or issued for delivery prior to January1, 1974, are not required to contain incontestability provisions [Ins. Code § 10113.5].

Some cases from outside California have permitted the insurer to contest a claim despite the incontestability clause when an impostor claimed to be the named insured. The California Supreme Court has held that after the contestability period has expired, an insurer may not assert the defense that an impostor took the medical exam if the named insured personally applied for insurance. However, the court left open the possibility that the impostor defense could be recognized if the impostor both applied for the insurance and took the medical exam, using someone else's name [Amex Life Assurance Co. v. Superior Court (1997) 14 Cal. 4th 1231, 1239-1246, 930 P.2d 1264] .

§ 308.45 Death Caused by Beneficiary

A person who feloniously and intentionally kills the decedent is broadly precluded from recovering any money or property that he or she would otherwise be entitled to on the death of the decedent [see generally Prob. Code § 250 et seq.]. Statutory law expressly provides that a named beneficiary of a bond, life insurance policy, or other contractual arrangement who feloniously and intentionally kills the principal obligee or the person on whose life the policy is issued is not entitled to any benefit under the bond, policy, or other contractual arrangement, and it becomes payable as though the killer had predeceased the decedent [Prob. Code § 252; see Nationwide Life Ins. Co. v. Richards (9th Cir. 2008) 541 F.3d 903, 905 n.1 ; In re Peterson (2007) 156 Cal. App. 4th 676, 679, 67 Cal. Rptr. 3d 584] . Another statute provides that, in any case not described in Prob. Code §§ 250-252 in which a person feloniously and intentionally kills another, any acquisition of property, interest, or benefit by the killer as a result of the killing is to be treated in accordance with the principles of Prob. Code § 250 et seq. [Prob. Code § 253].

A final judgment of conviction of felonious and intentional killing is conclusive for purposes of Prob. Code § 250 et seq. [Prob. Code § 254(a)]. In the absence of a final judgment of conviction of felonious and intentional killing, the court may determine by a preponderance of evidence whether the killing was felonious and intentional. The burden of proof is on the party seeking to establish that the killing was felonious and intentional for the purposes of Prob. Code § 250 et seq. [Prob. Code § 254(b)].

In one case, the insurer brought an interpleader action under Code Civ. Proc. § 386 in a civil suit between the beneficiary of the policy, who was the husband convicted of the decedent's murder, and the administrator of the decedent's estate. The insurer asked for an order discharging it from any liability to the beneficiary or to the administrator, and directing both parties to litigate between themselves their claims to the life insurance proceeds. The court dismissed the insurer after it deposited the proceeds with the court clerk and the parties stipulated to litigate the matter. The trial court took judicial notice of court documents evidencing the beneficiary's conviction for the first-degree murder of the decedent. The beneficiary's attorney submitted a declaration that the conviction was on appeal; the court nevertheless granted the administrator's motion for summary judgment. The appellate court held that the administrator met her burden under Prob. Code § 252(b) to show that the beneficiary feloniously and intentionally killed the decedent. Although the phrase "final judgment of conviction" in Prob. Code § 254 does not include a judgment that is on appeal, the nonfinal judgment of first-degree murder, not rebutted by any evidence that appellant did not feloniously and intentionally murder his wife, constitutes sufficient evidence to warrant the granting of the administrator's summary judgment motion under Prob. Code § 254(b) [In re Peterson (2007) 156 Cal. App. 4th 676, 685-687, 67 Cal. Rptr. 3d 584].

Under the former statutory rule that made a conviction or an acquittal a conclusive determination of the unlawfulness or lawfulness of the killing [see former Prob. Code § 258 (repealed in 1983)], an appellate court held that a judgment committing a defendant to a state hospital after a finding of insanity was an acquittal for the purposes of that statute, even though the person seeking to inherit was found guilty of the crime by the jury [see Estate of Ladd (1979) 91 Cal. App. 3d 219, 225-226, 153 Cal. Rptr. 888 (jury's verdict of guilty, entered before determination of sanity, is not conviction)]. The court discussed the legislative intent underlying the former statute, that termination of inheritance rights should be based on a degree of culpability not present in one who, owing to mental incapacity, is not held criminally responsible for his or her conduct [see Estate of Ladd (1979) 91 Cal. App. 3d 219, 225-227, 153 Cal. Rptr. 888] . A similar argument should support a contention that a killing by a person found not guilty by reason of insanity is not felonious and intentional for the purposes of Prob. Code § 254(b).

In the event of an intentional killing of the insured by the primary beneficiary, the contingent beneficiaries become entitled to the insurance proceeds. If there are no contingent beneficiaries, the proceeds are payable to and become a part of the murdered insured's estate and may be recovered by his or her heirs (excluding the killer) [Estate of McGowan (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 611, 615, 111 Cal. Rptr. 39 (decided under former Prob. Code § 258); see also Beck v. West Coast Life Ins. Co. (1952) 38 Cal. 2d 643, 645, 241 P.2d 544 ; Mize v. Reserve Life Ins. Co. (1975) 48 Cal. App. 3d 487, 491 n.2, 121 Cal. Rptr. 848] . This would be true even apart from Prob. Code § 250 et seq., because public policy does not allow a beneficiary who murders or unlawfully kills the insured to recover under the policy [Drown v. New Amsterdam Cas. Co. (1917) 175 Cal. 21, 23, 165 P. 5 ; Estate of McGowan (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 611, 615, 111 Cal. Rptr. 39] .

If a spouse is the named beneficiary of a policy on the life of the other spouse and deliberately and without justification kills the latter, the community property interestof the killer-spouse in the policy proceeds is limited to one half of the cash-surrender value, if any, immediately before commission of the wrongful act. It does not include the death benefit that is otherwise payable to the spouse, to the extent that it is greater than the cash-surrender value [Aetna Life Ins. Co. v. Primofiore (1978) 80 Cal. App. 3d 920, 924-926, 145 Cal. Rptr. 922 (decided under former Prob. Code § 258 (now see Prob. Code § 250(a)))].

An insurance company, financial institution, or other obligor making payment according to the terms of its policy or obligation is not liable by reason of Prob.Code § 250 et seq. unless, prior to payment, it has received at its home office or prinicipal address written notice of a claim under Prob. Code § 250 et seq. [Prob. Code § 256].

§ 308.51 Disability and Life Insurance Compared Disability insurance is classifed by the Insurance Code as different from life insurance [see Ins. Code § 100(1), (6)], since risks assumed by one type of policy will not be covered by another. There are, however, situations where disability insurance includes the risk of the insured's death in the coverage [see Ins. Code § 10174], but that coverage comes into operation only if the insured dies from injuries resulting from an accident.

§ 308.52 Occupational and Nonoccupational Policies Compared

An "occupational policy" or an "own occupation" policy indemnifies the insured if the insured becomes disabled from performing the material acts necessary to his or her chosen profession. By contrast, a general disability policy, otherwise known as a "nonoccupational" or "any occupation" policy, indemnifies the insured if the insured becomes incapable of following any occupation for profit [see Gross v. Unumprovident Life Ins. Co. (C.D. Cal. 2004) 319 F. Supp. 2d 1129, 1132-1133] .

To determine coverage under "occupational" policies, a court must first analyze the policy language with respect to key terms such as "disability," "partial disability," and "residual disability," as well as the definition of the insured's occupation [see Gross v. Unumprovident Life Ins. Co. (C.D. Cal. 2004) 319 F. Supp. 2d 1129, 1132-1136] . With respect to the insured's occupation, some courts focus on the substantial and material duties of a typical person pursuing the profession in which the insured was engaged at the time of disability, while other courts take a more functional approach, examining the insured's actual occupational experience [see Gross v. Unumprovident Life Ins. Co. (C.D. Cal. 2004) 319 F. Supp. 2d 1129, 1146] .

Essentially, the question is whether the insured continues to work in his or her pre-disability occupation, albeit in a limited fashion, or whether the insured is essentially performing a different occupation altogether, although using some of the skills the insured acquired in that occupation. In making this determination, it is irrelevant whether the insured is able to earn a more substantial living post-disability than the insured earned pre-disability. Because occupational disability policies are designed to indemnify against loss of capacity to work, not against loss of income, the fact that the insured derives a larger income from a new occupation will not bar recovery under the disability policy. However, the insured's post-disability income is relevant to the question of whether a given occupational duty is important [see Gross v. Unumprovident Life Ins. Co. (C.D. Cal. 2004) 319 F. Supp. 2d 1129, 1153-1159 (occupational policy covering orthopedic surgeon)].

§ 308.53 Incontestability Clauses

Every disability policy issued in California must contain an incontestability clause, which much conform with either of two statutorily prescribed forms [Ins. Code § 10350.2]. The insurer may choose which of the forms to include in the policy. The first form provides that after two years from the date the policy is issued, the insurer may not void the policy or deny a claim for loss incurred or disability on the basis of a misstatement made in the application, unless the misstatement is fraudulent. Under the second provision, the contract becomes incontestable after two years as to any statement contained in the application, regardless of whether it is fraudulent. However, under the second provision, the two-year contestability period is tolled during any period during which the insured is disabled [Ins. Code § 10350.2]. Only a disability that falls within the policy coverage tolls the contestability period; an undisclosed pre-existing condition that does not fall within the policy coverage does not toll the period [John Hancock Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Greer (1998) 60 Cal. App. 4th 877, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 48] .

Disability coverage offered by the Department of Veterans Affairs of the State of California under a Cal-Vet program is not a form of insurance subject to the Insurance Code. Therefore, these disability policies are not required to include an incontestability clause [Sweatman v. Department of Veterans Affairs (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 62, 68-74, 104 Cal. Rptr. 2d 602, 18 P.3d 29] .

§ 308.54 Arbitration Clauses

The United States Arbitration Act (9 U.S.C.S. § 1, et seq.) creates a presumption in favor of arbitrability [Engalla v. Permanente Med. Group, Inc. (1997) 15 Cal. 4th 951, 971, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d 843, 938 P.2d 903 ; see 9 U.S.C.S. § 2] and permits courts to refuse to enforce agreements to arbitrate only on "such groundsas exist at law or in equity for the revocation of any contract" [9 U.S.C.S. § 2; see Ch. 32, Contractual Arbitration: Agreements and Compelling Arbitration]. Similarly, Code Civ. Proc. § 1280, et seq. expresses a strong public policy favoring the enforcement of valid agreements to arbitrate [Boghos v. Certain Underwriters at Lloyd's of London (2005) 36 Cal. 4th 495, 502, 30 Cal. Rptr. 3d 787, 115 P.3d 68 ; Moncharsh v. Heily & Blase (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 1, 9, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 183, 832 P.2d 899] .

The California Supreme Court has upheld a binding arbitration clause in an individual disability insurance policy, despite assertedly contrary language in the Certificate of Insurance [Boghos v. Certain Underwriters at Lloyd's of London (2005) 36 Cal. 4th 495, 503-509, 30 Cal. Rptr. 3d 787, 115 P.3d 68] .

In this case, the arbitration clause read as follows [see Boghos v. Certain Underwriters at Lloyd's of London (2005) 36 Cal. 4th 495, 500, 30 Cal. Rptr. 3d 787, 115 P.3d 68] :

> "BINDING ARBITRATION: Not withstanding [sic] any other item setforth [sic] herein, the parties hereby agree that any dispute which arises shall be settled in Binding Arbitration. By agreeing to Binding Arbitration, all parties acknowledge and agree that they waive their right to a trial by jury. Binding Arbitration will be held before a neutral arbitrator who will be agreed to by all parties. If the parties cannot agree as to the arbitrator, or believe that a single arbitrator cannot adequately settle the dispute, then an arbitration panel made up of three arbitrators shall be formed. One arbitrator shall be appointed by Us. The second arbitrator shall be appointed by You. The third arbitrator shall be agreed by the two appointed arbitrators. The venue shall be in Los Angeles County or at another location if agreed by all parties. The arbitration will be governed by the commercial arbitration rules of the American Arbitration Association. Costs for the arbitration shall be equally split among the parties."

The "service of suit" clause in the Certificate of Insurance read as follows [see Boghos v. Certain Underwriters at Lloyd's of London (2005) 36 Cal. 4th 495, 500, 30 Cal. Rptr. 3d 787, 115 P.3d 68] :

> "In the event of the failure of Underwriters to pay any amount claimed to be due under the insurance described herein, Underwriters have agreed that, at the request of Assured (or Reinsured) they will submit to the jurisdiction of a court of competent jurisdiction within the United States. Nothing in this clause constitutes or should be understood to constitute a waiver of Underwriters' rights to commence an action in any court of competent jurisdiction in the United States, to remove an action to a United States District Court, or to seek a transfer of a case to another Court as permitted by the laws of the United States or of any State in the United States. In any suit instituted against any one of them upon the insurance described herein, Underwriters have agreed to abide by the final decision of such Court or of any Appellate Court in the event of an appeal."

When the insured sued the insurer for contract breach and related torts, based on a benefits dispute, the insurer moved to compel arbitration on all claims, pursuant to the arbitration clause of the policy. The trial court and court of appeal found that the "service of suit" and arbitration provisions conflicted, creating ambiguity and requiring interpretation in favor of the insured and against compelled arbitration [Boghos v. Certain Underwriters at Lloyd's of London (2005) 36 Cal. 4th 495, 508, 30 Cal. Rptr. 3d 787, 115 P.3d 68] . However, the California Supreme Court disagreed. In a typical "service of suit" clause, one or more parties agree to submit to the jurisdiction of courts for designated purposes related to the contract in which the clause appears. In this case, the insurer agreed, "[i]n the event of [its] failure ... to pay any amount claimed to be due under the [policy]," and "at the request of Assured," to "submit to the jurisdiction of a court of competent jurisdiction within the United States" [see Boghos v. Certain Underwriters at Lloyd's of London (2005) 36 Cal. 4th 495, 502, 30 Cal. Rptr. 3d 787, 115 P.3d 68] . The policy also included language establishing priority as between the arbitration (or appraisal) clause and the service of suit clause. The first sentence of the arbitration clause expressly declares (after corrected spelling) that, "Notwithstanding any other item set forth herein, the parties hereby agree that any dispute which arises shall be settled in Binding Arbitration." The phrase "[n]otwithstanding any other item" clearly indicates the parties intended the arbitration clause to apply according to its terms and for all disputes to be settled in binding arbitration, even if other provisions, read in isolation, might seem to require a different result. No ambiguity therefore existed [Boghos v. Certain Underwriters at Lloyd's of London (2005) 36 Cal. 4th 495, 503, 30 Cal. Rptr. 3d 787, 115 P.3d 68 (leaving for remand determination whether clause in arbitration provision requiring insured to share costs of arbitration and arbitrator's fees is enforceable)].

Fire insurance is a class of insurance [Ins. Code § 100(2)] and includes:

- Insurance against loss by fire, lightning, windstorm, tornado, or earthquake [Ins. Code § 102(a)].

- Insurance against loss or destruction of or damage to any of the following-described property when such insurance includes loss of it by fire and excludes coverage of property while it is in the custody or possession of or being transported by any carrier for hire or in the mail:

- Accounts, books, maps, manuscripts, indexes and other valuable papers, documents, and records incidental to the business or profession or activity in which the insured is engaged, resulting from any cause, but excluding any article constituting stock in trade or used as a sample or sold or held for sale.

- Moneys, stamps, coins, bullion, securities, notes, drafts, acceptances, or instruments of like kind or character, resulting from any cause, except:

    - Forgery; or

    - Any dishonest, fraudulent, or criminal act of any officer, employee, partner, director, trustee, or authorized representative of the insured [Ins. Code § 102(b)].

- Insurance by means of an all-risk policy of the type commonly known as the "Personal Property Floater" against any and all kinds of loss of or damage to, or loss of use of, any personal property other than merchandise [Ins. Code § 102(c)].

An insurance policy that insures against loss by windstorms, tornadoes, or earthquakes is not a fire insurance policy

- The guaranteeing of behavior of persons and the guaranteeing of performance of contracts (including executing or guaranteeing bonds and undertakings required or permitted in all actions or proceedings or by law allowed), other than insurance policies and other than for payments secured by a mortgage, deed of trust, or other instrument constituting a lien or charge on real estate.

- Insurance against loss resulting from the forgery or alteration of any instrument of any kind or character or of any signature thereon. Nothing in Ins. Code § 105 limits any of the powers of title insurers.

- Any of the following insurance when included as part of a contract containing any such guarantee of behavior or performance or in a contract indemnifying any bank, banker, broker, financial or moneyed corporation or association, any state, political subdivision, public or municipal corporation, or any officer of any state, political subdivision, public or municipal corporation: insurance indemnifying the insured named therein against loss or destruction from any cause of any evidences of debt of any kind or character, evidences of ownership of any kind or character, deeds, mortgages, warehouse receipts, bills of lading, certificates of stock, bonds, notes, drafts, checks, instruments of similar character, stamps, documents, money, precious metals of any kind or character, refined or unrefined, and articles made therefrom, jewelry, watches, necklaces, bracelets, gems and precious and semi-precious stones, and also against loss or damage, except by fire, to the insured's premises, furnishings, fixtures, equipment, safes and vaults therein, caused by burglary, robbery, hold-up, theft or larceny or attempt thereat. No such insurance indemnifying against loss of property as specified above shall, however, indemnify against loss of any such property occurring while in the mail or in the exclusive custody or possession of a common carrier for the purpose of transportation, except for the purpose of transportation by an armored motor vehicle.

No insurance may be written as surety insurance if it falls within the definition of financial guaranty insurance as set forth in Ins. Code § 12100.

§ 308.111 Liability Insurance as Class of Insurance

The various classes of insurance are listed in Ins. Code § 100 and are defined in Ins. Code §§ 101-120. Liability insurance is enumerated as a class of insurance under Ins. Code § 100(8). It is defined under Ins. Code § 108 [see § 308.112]. Other classes of insurance that may insure against liability include marine [see Ins. Code §§ 100(3), 103], workers' compensation [see Ins. Code §§ 100(9), 109], common carrier [see Ins. Code §§ 100(10), 110], boiler and machinery [see Ins. Code §§ 100(11), 111], team and vehicle [see Ins. Code §§ 100(15), 115], and miscellaneous [see Ins. Code §§ 100(20), 120].

§ 308.112 Liability Insurance Defined

Liability insurance includes:

- Insurance against loss resulting from liability for injury, fatal or nonfatal, suffered by any natural person, or resulting from liability for damage to property or to property interests of others; but does not include workers' compensation, common carrier liability, boiler and machinery, or team and vehicle insurance [Ins. Code § 108(a); for discussion and forms regarding workers' compensation and motor vehicle insurance, see Ch. 577, Workers' Compensation , Ch. 88, Automobiles: Automobile Insurance , and Ch. 88A, Automobiles: Uninsured Motorist Claims].

- With respect to operations or property covered by a liability insurance policy as defined in Ins. Code § 108(a), insurance of medical, hospital, surgical, and funeral loss or expense of the insured or other persons injured, and in the case of an automobile liability policy, disability benefits to the insured or other persons injured, and in the event of their death, funeral and accidental death benefits to their dependents, beneficiaries, or personal representatives irrespective of legal liability of the insured, when issued with or supplemental to the insurance defined in Ins. Code § 108(a) [Ins. Code § 108(b)(1); for discussion of automobile liability policy coverage, see Ch. 88, Automobiles: Automobile Insur ance].

- When issued with or supplemental to the insurance defined in Ins. Code § 108(a), disability insurance covering the insured and members of his or her household, or other persons who customarily operate any automobile covered by and named in the policy; and the disability insurance may cover against accidental injury, death, or dismemberment caused by any or all hazards as defined in the coverage [Ins. Code § 108(b)(2)].

- Insurance covering injuries sustained by an insured resulting from a tort committed by a third party against which the third party is not himself or herself covered by liability insurance [Ins. Code § 108(c)].

- Insurance coverage against the legal liability of the insured, and against loss, damage, or expense incident to a claim arising out of the death or injury of any person as the result of negligence or malpractice in rendering professional services by any person who holds a certificate or license issued pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 2000-2515, a license issued pursuant to the Osteopathic Initiative Act [see Bus. & Prof. Code, Appendix II], a license as a community clinic defined in Health & Safety Code § 1203(a), or a license as a health facility pursuant to Health & Safety Code §§ 1250-1339.27 [Ins. Code § 108(d)].

The Insurance Code provisions relating to disability insurance do not apply to insurance defined in Ins. Code § 108 [Ins. Code § 108(e)].

26-308 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 308.113

§ 308.113 Nature of Risk, Not Choice of Remedy, Determines Whether Coverage Applies to Tort or Contract Claims

[1] Same Act May Be Both Breach of Contract and Tort

The California Supreme Court in Vandenberg v. Superior Court (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 815 , held that policy language limiting coverage to amounts the insured is "legally obligated to pay as damages," does not necessarily refer to tort liability, to the exclusion of a claim that involves a contract. Noting that the same act may constitute both a breach of contract and a tort, the Court held that coverage may not be predicated on an injured party's choice of remedy or the form of the action [Vandenberg v. Superior Court (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 815, 838-841, 88 Cal. Rptr. 2d 366, 982 P.2d 229] .

Courts must focus on the nature of the risk and the injury, in light of the policy provisions, to make that determination. A coverage agreement that embraces "all sums [that] the insured shall become legally obligated to pay as damages ..." is intentionally broad enough to include the insured's obligation to pay damages for breach of contract as well as for tort, within limitations imposed by other terms of the coverage agreement (for example, bodily injury and property damage as defined, caused by an occurrence) and by the exclusions [Vandenberg v. Superior Court (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 815, 838-841, 88 Cal. Rptr. 2d 366, 982 P.2d 229] .

In Vandenberg, the Court considered commercial general liability (CGL) policies issued to the lessee of commercial property. The policies provided coverage for sums the lessee was "legally obligated to pay as damages" because of property damage. Thirty years after the lessee had used the land as an automobile sales and service facility, the owners took possession of the land and prepared to sell it. After discovering soil and groundwater contamination, the owners sued the lessee, alleging breach of contract, breach of the covenant of good faith and fair dealing, public and private nuisance, negligence, waste, trespass, strict liability, and equitable indemnity, and seeking both declaratory relief and injunctive relief, based on the lessee's installation and operation of waste oil storage tanks that caused petroleum contamination. A settlement between the owners, the lessee, and the sole insurer that agreed to provide the lessee a defense, disposed of all claims except those based on the theory that the contamination constituted a breach of the lease agreement. The parties agreed to resolve those claims through binding arbitration. Although the insurer agreed to provide a defense, it reserved the ultimate issues of coverage and indemnity for further resolution [see Vandenberg v. Superior Court (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 815, 826, 88 Cal. Rptr. 2d 366, 982 P.2d 229] .

Following the arbitrator's ruling for the owners, all of the insurers rejected the lessee's request for indemnification, and the lessee then sued the insurers for failure to defend, settle, or indemnify. All the insurers sought summary adjudication on the basis that the arbitrator awarded damages for breach of lease, a contractual cause of action, and that contractual damages are not covered by the policies. The trial court granted that motion, but the court of appeal reversed. The appellate court ruled that coverage under the insurance policies could not be determined by the "general rule" that damages for an insured's nonperformance of a contract are not covered under commercial general liability (CGL) policies [see Vandenberg v. Superior Court (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 815, 827, 88 Cal. Rptr. 2d 366, 982 P.2d 229] .

The Supreme Court granted review. The insurers contended that CGL policies limiting coverage to amounts the insured is "legally obligated to pay as damages," or using similar language, refer to tort liability and not contract liability. The Court held that the long line of cases so holding misread the seminal case of Ritchie v. Anchor Cas. Co. (1955) 135 Cal. App. 2d 245, 286 P.2d 1000 , which held that the phrase "liability imposed by law" as used in the policy at issue in that case related to the nature of the liability to be defended rather than the result of the lawsuit. In that case, "liability imposed ... by written contract" occurred in one coverage provision, but not the coverage provision in question. Subsequent cases erroneously generalized that the phrase "damages for a liability imposed by law"uniformly refers to a liability arising ex delicto as distinguished from ex contractu [Vandenberg v. Superior Court (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 815, 839, 88 Cal. Rptr. 2d 366, 982 P.2d 229] .

[2] Mutual Intent of Parties Regarding "Damages" Provision Controls

Insurance policies are contracts construed in accordance with the parties' mutual intent at the time of contract formation, as inferred from the written provisions [Civ. Code §§ 1636, 1639]. Whatever ambiguity a phrase possesses due to a party's legal knowledge is resolved in favor of coverage [Vandenberg v. Superior Court (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 815, 840-841, 88 Cal. Rptr. 2d 366, 982 P.2d 229] .

If the policies in question do not suggest that the phrase "legally obligated to pay as damages" has any special or legalistic meaning, that language must be interpreted in accordance with the ordinary and popular sense [Vandenberg v. Superior Court (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 815, 840-841, 88 Cal. Rptr. 2d 366, 982 P.2d 229] .

[3] Appellate Cases Limiting Damages to Tort Liability Disapproved

The Supreme Court in Vandenberg v. Superior Court (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 815 , disapproved a twenty-year-old line of appellate cases holding that the phrase "legally obligated to pay as damages" in this context uniformly referred to a liability arising ex delicto as distinguished from ex contractu. These cases had erroneously established an arbitrary distinction between tort and contract damages, categorically precluding coverage pled on a theory of breach of contract [Vandenberg v. Superior Court (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 815, 839-841 n.13, 88 Cal. Rptr. 2d 366, 982 P.2d 229 ; see, e.g., International Surplus Lines Ins. Co. v. Devonshire Coverage Corp. (1979) 93 Cal. App. 3d 601, 610-611, 155 Cal. Rptr. 870 (example of disapproved case)].

26-308 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 308.114

§ 308.114 Duty to Indemnify--Scope of Duty to Indemnify

[1] In General

Under a standard commercial or comprehensive liability insurance policy, the insurer has a duty to indemnify the insured for those sums that the insured becomes legally obligated to pay as damages for a covered claim. The insurer's duty to indemnify arises after liability has been established and extends to claims that are actually covered, in light of the facts proved [Aerojet-Gen. Corp. v. Transport Indem. Co. (1997) 17 Cal. 4th 38, 56, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 118, 948 P.2d 909] .

[2] Trigger of Duty

An insurer's duty to indemnify under a standard commercial or comprehensive general liability policy is triggered when it is established that specified harm was caused by an included occurrence and at least some such harm resulted within the policy period. Once the duty to indemnify is triggered, it extends to all specified harm caused by the included occurrence, even if some of the harm occurs after the policy has expired [Aerojet-Gen. Corp. v. Transport Indem. Co. (1997) 17 Cal. 4th 38, 56-57, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 118, 948 P.2d 909 ; see also Montrose Chem. Corp. v. Admiral Ins. Co. (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 645, 669-673, 42 Cal. Rptr. 2d 324, 913 P.2d 878].

[3] Indemnification Against Liability and Against Claims Distinguished

Under an insurance policy indemnifying the insured against liability, the insured is entitled to recover on becoming liable [see Civ. Code § 2778(1); Hertzka & Knowles v. Salter (1970) 6 Cal. App. 3d 325, 338, 86 Cal. Rptr. 23] . Under an insurance policy indemnifying the insured against claims, demands, damages, or costs, the insured is not entitled to recover until after payment [see Civ. Code § 2778(2)]. Whether an insurance policy is an indemnity against liability or one against demands depends on the intent of the parties as expressed in the language of the policy. For further discussion, see Ch. 300, Indemnity and Contribution .

[4] "All Sums Insured Legally Obligated to Pay as Damages" in CGL Policy Equates to Money Ordered by

Court

A CGL policy, often referred to as a business general liability policy, provides liability insurance for businesses. In general, CGL policies are limited to providing coverage for accidental occurrences, and do not provide coverage for professional negligence claims [Food Pro Int'l, Inc. v. Farmers Ins. Exch. (2008) 169 Cal. App. 4th 976, 985, 89 Cal. Rptr. 3d 1 , rev. denied, 2009 Cal. LEXIS 3729 (2009)] .

The insurer's duty to indemnify the insured for "all sums that the insured becomes legally obligated to pay as damages" under the standard comprehensive general liability (CGL) insurance policy is limited to money ordered by a court [Certain Underwriters at Lloyd's of London v. Superior Court (2001) 24 Cal. 4th 945, 960, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 672, 16 P.3d 94] . The provision imposing the duty to defend expressly links "damages" to a "suit"--that is, a civil action prosecuted in a court--because it is in a "suit" that "damages" are fixed in their amount through the court's order. Moreover, "damages" exist traditionally inside of court [Certain Underwriters at Lloyd's of London v. Superior Court (2001) 24 Cal. 4th 945, 962, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 672, 16 P.3d 94] .

The duty to indemnify under a CGL policy containing this provision therefore does not extend to any expenses required by an administrative agency pursuant to an environmental statute (and, specifically, pursuant to proceedings conducted before the Regional Water Boards pursuant to the Porter-Cologne Act) [Certain Underwriters at Lloyd's of London v. Superior Court (2001) 24 Cal. 4th 945, 966, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 672, 16 P.3d 94 ; see Water Code § 13000 et seq.].

The California Supreme Court reached a similar conclusion in a case involving a "nonstandard" (or "manuscript form") excess third-party liability policy [see County of San Diego v. Ace Prop. & Cas. Ins. Co. (2005) 37 Cal. 4th 406, 416, n.4, 33 Cal. Rptr. 3d 583].The central insuring agreement in that case obligated the insurer to indemnify the insured county for "all sums [that the county] is obligated to pay by reason of liability imposed by law or assumed under contract or agreement" for "damages ... by reason of injury of any nature sustained by any person or persons" and "damages because of injury to or destruction of tangible property." The Court held that this language limited the insurer's duty of indemnity to the payment of money. Therefore, the insurer was not obligated to reimburse the insured county either for costs and expenses associated with responding to administrative orders to clean up and abate soil or groundwater contamination outside the context of a government-initiated lawsuit seeking remedial relief, or for property buy-out settlements negotiated with third-party claimants outside the context of a court suit [County of San Diego v. Ace Prop. & Cas. Ins. Co. (2005) 37 Cal. 4th 406, 416-417, 421, 33 Cal. Rptr. 3d 583, 118 P.3d 607 (distinguishing Powerine Oil Co., Inc. v. Superior Court (2005) 37 Cal. 4th 377, 395-396, 33 Cal. Rptr. 3d 562, 118 P.3d 589 , based on different policy language); see Certain Underwriters at Lloyd's of London v. Superior Court (2001) 24 Cal. 4th 945, 960, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 672, 16 P.3d 94] .

In another case, however, the California Supreme Court held that the insuring language of nine excess/umbrella policies was broader than that of the standard primary CGL policy [see Certain Underwriters at Lloyd's of London v. Superior Court (2001) 24 Cal. 4th 945, 960, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 672, 16 P.3d 94] , and covered costs that the insured was required to expend in complying with an administrative agency's pollution cleanup and abatement orders [Powerine Oil Co., Inc. v. Superior Court (2005) 37 Cal. 4th 377, 382-383, 398, 33 Cal. Rptr. 3d 562, 118 P.3d 589] . In that case, the relevant insuring language of the policies (identical in all nine policies) stated [see Powerine Oil Co., Inc. v. Superior Court (2005) 37 Cal. 4th 377, 395-396, 33 Cal. Rptr. 3d 562, 118 P.3d 589] :

> The Company hereby agrees ... to indemnify the Insured for all sums which the Insured shall be obligated to pay by reason of the liability ... imposed upon the Insured by law ... for damages, direct or consequential and expenses, all as more fully defined by the term "ultimate net loss" on account of: ... property damage ... caused by or arising out of each occurrence happening anywhere in the world.

"Ultimate net loss" was defined in the policy as "the total sum [that] the Insured, or any company as [the Insured's] insurer, or both, become obligated to pay by reason of ... property damage ... either through adjudication or compromise, and shall also include hospital, medical and funeral charges and all sums paid as salaries, wages, compensation, fees, charges and law costs, premiums on attachment or appeal bonds, interest, expenses for doctors, lawyers, nurses and investigators and other persons, and for litigation, settlement, adjustment and investigation of claims and suits [that are] paid as a consequence of any occurrence covered hereunder" [see Powerine Oil Co., Inc. v. Superior Court (2005) 37 Cal. 4th 377, 395-396, 33 Cal. Rptr. 3d 562, 118 P.3d 589] .

[5] Damages Under CERCLA

Under the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation, and Liability Act of 1980 (CERCLA) [42 U.S.C.S. § 9601 et seq.] and comparable state statutes, an entity may become liable for the costs of cleaning up hazardous wastes and remedying property damage that occurred before the entity had any connection with the property damage or with the site on which the hazardous wastes were released. This commonly occurs when the entity acquires the site after the damage occurred [see, e.g., FMC Corp. v. Plaisted & Cos. (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 1132, 1151, 72 Cal. Rptr. 2d 467] .

Although an insurer's duty to indemnify under an occurrence-based comprehensive general liability policy is generally triggered when a specified harm occurs during the policy period, an insurer has no duty to indemnify the insured for damages under CERCLA unless every factual predicate for CERCLA liability, including a connection between the insured and the damage or the site, could be shown to have existed before or during the policy period [FMC Corp. v. Plaisted & Cos. (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 1132, 1154-1155, 72 Cal. Rptr. 2d 467] . Therefore, although the insured may be liable for cleanup costs for damages that occurred before it acquired a toxic waste site, its insurer may not be obligated to indemnify it for those costs.

[6] Personal Injury Liability Clause

Personal injury liability coverage, unlike liability coverage for property damage or bodily injury, is not based on an accidental occurrence, but is instead triggered when the insured commits one of the offenses listed in the personal injury clause of the policy. In this context, the term "personal injury" does not refer to bodily harm, but instead to injury caused by the specified offense [Tinseltown Video, Inc. v. Transportation Ins. Co. (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 184, 195, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 371 (citing General Accident Ins. Co. v. West Am. Ins. Co. (1996) 42 Cal. App. 4th 95, 103, 49 Cal. Rptr. 2d 603)].

26-308 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 308.115

§ 308.115 Willful Act of Insured

[1] Statutory Exclusion (Ins. Code § 533).

An insurer is not liable for a loss caused by the willful act of the insured, but an insurer is not exonerated by the negligence of the insured, or of the insured's agents or others [Ins. Code § 533]. Ins. Code § 533 is incorporated into every insurance contract, operating as an exclusionary clause contained within the contract regarding willful acts of the insured. As an exclusion, the statute is strictly construed against the insurer [American States Ins. Co. v. Borbor (9th Cir. 1987) 826 F.2d 888, 891, 894] . The public policy behind Ins.Code § 533 is to prevent the encouragement of willful torts [J.C. Penney Cas. Ins. Co. v. M.K. (1991) 52 Cal. 3d 1009, 1021, 278 Cal. Rptr. 64, 804 P.2d 689 ; Allstate Ins. Co. v. Kim W. (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 326, 331, 206 Cal. Rptr. 609] . Moreover, homeowner's policies generally exclude from personal liability coverage bodily injury or property damage that is either expected or intended from the standpoint of the insured [see, e.g., Grain Dealers Mut. Ins. Co. v. Marino (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 1083, 1086, 246 Cal. Rptr. 410] .

Malicious prosecution constitutes a willful act within the meaning of both Ins. Code § 533 and a homeowner's policy exclusion regarding intentional acts of the insured, precluding the insurer's duty to defend or indemnify the insured with regard to a third-party action arising from that conduct [State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. v. Drasin (1984) 152 Cal. App. 3d 864, 867-869, 199 Cal. Rptr. 749 ; Maxon v. Security Ins. Co. (1963) 214 Cal. App. 2d 603, 615-616, 29 Cal. Rptr. 586] . Nevertheless, many standard general liability policies do purport to insure against damages resulting from liability for malicious prosecution. This policy language has created some confusion among courts, and apparently in some cases among insurers themselves, as to insurers' obligations under policies containing such language [see, e.g., City Prods. Corp. v. Globe Indem. Co. (1979) 88 Cal. App. 3d 31, 33, 151 Cal. Rptr. 494] . For additional discussion of cases involving insurance issues relating to malicious prosecution claims, see California Insurance Law and Practice, Ch. 41 (Matthew Bender).

Similarly, there is no potential liability for coverage, and therefore no duty to defend, arising from a wrongful termination action against the insured when the liability policy extends coverage only for claims resulting from an accidental event [St. Paul Mercury Ins. Co. v. Ralee Eng'g Co. (9th Cir. 1986) 804 F.2d 520, 522-523 ; Dyer v. Northbrook Prop. & Cas. Ins. Co. (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 1540, 1546-1549, 259 Cal. Rptr. 298] . The application of Ins. Code § 533 to other specific types of intentional conduct is discussed in California Insurance Law and Practice, Ch. 41 (Matthew Bender).

The California Supreme Court has held that as a matter of law, Ins. Code § 533 precludes insurance coverage for damages arising from child sexual molestation, because that conduct is inherently harmful [J.C. Penney Cas. Ins. Co. v. M.K. (1991) 52 Cal. 3d 1009, 1025, 1028, 278 Cal. Rptr. 64, 804 P.2d 689] . Consequently, in such a case, an insured (or other interested party, such as an injured third party seeking to establish insurance coverage) cannot show or attempt to show that the insured subjectively intended no harm [J.C. Penney Cas. Ins. Co. v. M.K. (1991) 52 Cal. 3d 1009, 1025, 1028, 278 Cal. Rptr. 64, 804 P.2d 689] . Child sexual molestation includes activity such as that prohibited by Penal Code § 288 (lewd acts with child under age of 14) [see, e.g., Allstate Ins. Co. v. Gilbert (9th Cir. 1988) 852 F.2d 449, 451-454 ; Fire Ins. Exch. v. Abbott (1988) 204 Cal. App. 3d 1012, 1022-1023, 251 Cal. Rptr. 620] . Although the Court limited its holding to cases involving child molestation, other courts have applied the same analysis to determine that other conduct is inherently harmful, including wrongful termination in violation of public policy [see B & E Convalescent Ctr. v. State Comp. Ins. Fund (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 78, 97-98, 9 Cal. Rptr. 2d 894] , assault [see Fire Ins. Exch. v. Altieri (1991) 235 Cal. App. 3d 1352, 1357, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 360] , racial hate crimes [see Allstate Ins. Co. v. Tankovich (N.D. Cal. 1991) 776 F. Supp. 1394, 1397-1398] , antitrust claims [see Trailer Marine Transp. v. Chicago Ins. Co. (N.D. Cal. 1992) 791 F. Supp 809, 811-812] , sexual assault on an adult [see State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. v. Ezrin (N.D. Cal. 1991) 764 F. Supp. 153, 156-158] , and an insured's intentional misrepresentation that he or she does not have AIDS in order to induce a partner to engage in sex [Aetna Cas. & Sur. Co. v. Sheft (9th Cir. 1993) 989 F.2d 1105, 1108] .

Conversely, a federal court applying this analysis has held that Ins. Code § 533 does not automatically bar coverage for copyright infringement claims, because copyright infringement can be either innocent or intentional [Zurich Ins. Co. (U.S. Branch) v. Killer Music, Inc. (9th Cir. 1993) 998 F.2d 674, 678-679] . Since patent infringement, like copyright infringement, may be either inadvertent or intentional, the rationale applied to copyrights should apply with equal force to patent infringement claims, although as a practical matter the application of Ins. Code § 533 to patent infringement claims ordinarily will not be a determining factor with respect to claims under standard business general liability policies since those policies ordinarily do not cover patent infingement claims [see Bank of W. v. Superior Court (1992) 2 Cal. 4th 1254, 1275, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 538, 833 P.2d 545 ; Aetna Cas. & Sur. Co. v. Superior Court (1993) 19 Cal. App. 4th 320, 327-328, 23 Cal. Rptr. 2d 442 ; Intex Plastics Sales Co. v. United Nat'l Ins. Co. (9th Cir. 1994) 23 F.3d 254, 256 ; Iolab Corp. v. Seaboard Sur. Co. (9th Cir. 1994) 15 F. 3d 1500, 1506-1507 ; National Union Fire Ins. Co. v. Siliconix, Inc. (N.D. Cal. 1989) 729 F. Supp. 77, 79] . Coverage for inducing patent infringement, as opposed to patent infringement itself, is barred by Ins. Code § 533, since in order to be liable for inducing infringement, a party must have the specific intent to induce another to infringe [Aetna Cas. & Sur. Co. v. Superior Court (1993) 19 Cal. App. 4th 320, 331, 23 Cal. Rptr. 2d 442 ; Intex Plastics Sales Co. v. United Nat'l Ins. Co. (9th Cir. 1994) 23 F.3d 254, 256-257] .

With respect to discrimination claims, one federal court has drawn a distinction between claims of disparate impact and disparate treatment for purposes of Ins. Code § 533. This court reasoned that while disparate treatment is intentional, and claims based on such treatment therefore are barred by Ins. Code § 533, disparate impact claims may be based on unintentional acts. The court concluded that since a plaintiff need not establish that the insured intended to commit a wrongful act in order to recover on a disparate impact theory, the criteria established in J.C. Penney Casualty Insurance Co. v. M.K. [J.C. Penney Cas. Ins. Co. v. M.K.(1991) 52 Cal. 3d 1009, 1019-1021, 278 Cal. Rptr. 64, 804 P.2d 689] were not met, and Ins. Code § 533 therefore is inapplicable [Save Mart Supermarkets v. Underwriters (N.D. Cal. 1994) 843 F. Supp. 597, 606 (claims of both sex discrimination and race discrimination)].

If an insured intends to throw someone into a swimming pool intending to get that person wet, but mistakenly throws that person onto the pool's concrete steps, causing injury, the incident is an "accident" within the meaning of insurance law. The term "accident" may refer to the unintended or unexpected consequence of the act. When an injury is an unexpected or unintended consequence of the insured's conduct, it may be characterized as an accident for which coverage exists. Therefore, potential coverage exists, and the insurer has a duty to defend [State Farm Fire and Casualty Co. v. Superior Court (2008) 164 Cal. App. 4th 317, 324, 329, 78 Cal. Rptr. 3d 828].

Ins. Code § 533 precludes, as a matter of public policy, fines or restitution imposed as a result of a criminal conviction [Baker v. Mid-Century Ins. Co. (1993) 20 Cal. App. 4th 921, 924-926, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 34 ; see California Cas. Mgmt. Co. v. Martocchio (1992) 11 Cal. App. 4th 1527, 1533, 15 Cal. Rptr. 2d 277 , (sanctions imposed against insured under former Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7)) for bad faith litigation tactics are not insurable)]. This includes attorneys' fees awarded as a fine or restitution for a criminal act, such as fees awarded to victims of felony drunk driving [Baker v. Mid-Century Ins. Co. (1993) 20 Cal. App. 4th 921, 925-926, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 34 (fees awarded under Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.4)].

[2] Defense of Claims Arising From Insured's Willful Act

The statutory prohibition against coverage for a loss caused by a willful act does not necessarily absolve the insurer from the duty to defend an action arising from an insured's willful act. The insurer and insured are free to contract for the provision of a defense to claims that cannot be indemnified. However, when there clearly is no basis for coverage, whether under the policy language or because coverage is precluded by the operation of Ins. Code § 533, the duty to defend exists only if the policy expressly provides for a defense without regard to indemnification or the policy terms lead the insured to reasonably expect a defense of the type of claim asserted [B & E Convalescent Ctr. v. State Comp. Ins. Fund (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 78, 100, 9 Cal. Rptr. 2d 894 (no duty to defend wrongful termination action for which coverage was precluded under Ins. Code § 533); see Republic Indem. Co. v. Superior Court (1990) 224 Cal. App. 3d 492, 497-498, 273 Cal. Rptr. 331 (insurer excused from defending action premised on willful conduct only if there is an express exclusion to that effect or if insured does not reasonably expect a defense); cf. Century Transit Sys., Inc. v. American Empire Surplus Lines Ins. Co. (1996) 42 Cal. App. 4th 121, 130, 49 Cal. Rptr. 2d 567 (no duty to defend assault and battery action because policy specifically excluded coverage for "any claim based on assault and battery"); see also Gray v. Zurich Ins. Co. (1966) 65 Cal. 2d 263, 274, 54 Cal. Rptr. 104, 419 P.2d 168] . For example, it was held in one case that although Ins. Code § 533 barred coverage for sexual molestation committed by a teacher, the insurer had a duty to defend because the claim also alleged negligent nonsexual conduct related to the molestation [Horace Mann Ins. Co. v. Barbara B. (1993) 4 Cal. 4th 1076, 1084, 17 Cal. Rptr. 2d 210, 846 P.2d 792] . If allegations of nonsexual conduct are "inseparably intertwined" with the sexual misconduct, however, the insurer has no duty to defend [Jane D. v. Ordinary Mut. (1995) 32 Cal. App. 4th 643, 653, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 131] .

For example, allegations that a priest used counseling techniques to obtain information about the plaintiff and then misused those techniques to induce the plaintiff's behavior were held to be "inseparably intertwined" with the priest's sexual misconduct [Jane D. v. Ordinary Mut. (1995) 32 Cal. App. 4th 643, 653, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 131] . Similarly, an insurer did not have a duty to defend a teacher in an action alleging that a teacher molested a student and then negligently failed to report the incident to the proper authorities, because the failure to report was directly and necessarily linked to the molestation [State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. v. Century Indem. Co. (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 648, 661-663, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 403] . Another case held that an insurer had no duty to defend a sexual harassment suit against an insured corporation when the complaint contained no allegations of negligent conduct and the acts in question could not reasonably be characterized as negligent or unintentional [Coit Drapery Cleaners, Inc. v. Sequoia Ins. Co. (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 1595, 1603-1604, 18 Cal. Rptr. 2d 692] .

Even when the insurer has provided a defense, if Ins. Code § 533 precludes the duty of indemnity, it also prevents coverage for the insured's costs of suit, such as attorney's fees [Combs v. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. (2006) 143 Cal. App. 4th 1338, 1347, 49 Cal. Rptr. 3d 917] .

For discussion of the insurer's duty to defend generally, see § 308.119. For additional discussion of the relationship between Ins. Code § 533 and the insurer's duty to defend, see California Insurance Law and Practicie, Ch. 41 (Matthew Bender).

§ 308.116 Illegal, Intentional, or Criminal Act Exclusions

If a homeowners policy expressly covers accidental bodily injury, but excludes coverage for bodily injury arising out of an "illegal act," without defining the term, the insurer may nonetheless be obligated to defend and indemnify its insureds in a wrongful death action. In one case, the insurer was obligated to defend and indemnify its insureds after their teenage son accidentally shot and killed his friend [Safeco Ins. Co. v. Robert S. (2001) 26 Cal. 4th 758, 765-767, 110 Cal. Rptr. 2d 844, 28 P.3d 889] . In its decision, the California Supreme Court discussed the ambiguous language of the policy. Because the term "illegal act," left undefined, is subject to many definitions, some of which would cover this incident, and some of which would exclude it, the Court construed the policy against the insurer to allow coverage [Safeco Ins. Co. v. Robert S. (2001) 26 Cal. 4th 758, 763-767, 110 Cal. Rptr. 2d 844, 28 P.3d 889] . Therefore, if a policy uses this language, a criminal act that results from unintentional conduct may be covered under the policy.

By contrast, in one appellate case involving a similar incident, the homeowners' policy contained an exclusion for bodily injury that "is a foreseeable result of an intentional or criminal act of any insured or [that] is expected or intended by any insured, including bodily injury ... [that] is more extensive than or of a differentnature from that expected or intended by the insured" [see Century-Nat'l Ins. Co. v. Glenn (2001) 86 Cal. App. 4th 1392, 1397-1398, 104 Cal. Rptr. 2d 73] . In that case, the insured, allegedly trying only to scare off inebriated youths attending his backyard party, shot a gun off in the backyard and wounded one of the youths. The insured pled nolo contendere to felony willful discharge of a firearm. In a declaratory judgment action, the trial court granted summary judgment for the insurer. On appeal, the court affirmed, holding that the "criminal acts" exclusion barred coverage. The court concluded that the bodily injury suffered by the victim was a "foreseeable result" of a criminal act by the insured [Century-Nat'l Ins. Co. v. Glenn (2001) 86 Cal. App. 4th 1392, 1397-1398, 104 Cal. Rptr. 2d 73] . In Safeco Insurance Co. v. Robert S., the Supreme Court would have found coverage if it had interpreted the policy's clause excluding coverage for an "illegal act" as the equivalent of a clause excluding coverage for a "criminal act" [Safeco Ins. Co. v. Robert S. (2001) 26 Cal. 4th 758, 765, 110 Cal. Rptr. 2d 844, 28 P.3d 889] . The Court determined that it could not do so, however, because the term was left undefined and therefore ambiguous [Safeco Ins. Co. v. Robert S. (2001) 26 Cal. 4th 758, 766, 110 Cal. Rptr. 2d 844, 28 P.3d 889] .

In Delgado v. Interinsurance Exch. of Auto. Club of So. Cal., the insured under a homeowner's policy hit and kicked a person, who brought suit against the insured. In his first cause of action for intentional tort, the injured party alleged that the insured acted in an unprovoked manner and without justification. In his second cause of action, he alleged that the insured negligently and unreasonably believed he was engaging in self-defense, and unreasonably acted in self-defense when he struck the plaintiff. The insured tendered the defense of the matter to his insurer, which denied coverage and refused to defend. The insurer asserted that the assault was not an "occurrence," defined in the policy as an "accident," and that the allegations arose out of the insured's intentional acts, which were excluded from coverage. After the trial court dismissed the intentional tort claim, the parties settled, stipulating that the insured's use of force occurred because he negligently believed he was acting in self-defense. The insured then agreed to pay the injured party a portion of the judgment, and assigned the claims against his insurer. The injured party gave the insured a partial satisfaction of judgment and a covenant not to execute on the remainder of the judgment. He then sued the insurer, alleging that the insured's actions constituted an accident [see Delgado v. Interinsurance Exch. of Auto. Club of So. Cal. (2009) 47 Cal. 4th 302, 305-306, 317, 97 Cal. Rptr. 3d 298, 211 P.3d 1083].

The California Supreme Court held that there was no potential for coverage, and that the insurer had no duty to defend [Delgado v. Interinsurance Exch. of Auto. Club of So. Cal. (2009) 47 Cal. 4th 302, 305, 312, 317, 97 Cal. Rptr. 3d 298, 211 P.3d 1083]. In the context of liability insurance, an accident is an unexpected, unforeseen, or undesigned happening or consequence from either a known or an unknown cause. The Court held that whether there was an accident within the policy language need not be determined from the injured party's perspective. An insured's unreasonable, subjective belief in the need for self-defense does not convert an act that is purposeful and intended to inflict injury into an "accident" [Delgado v. Interinsurance Exch. of Auto. Club of So. Cal. (2009) 47 Cal. 4th 302, 308-311, 97 Cal. Rptr. 3d 298, 211 P.3d 1083].

The injured party's argument that an insured's mistaken and unreasonable belief in the need for self-defense converts the assault into an accidental act is based on the notion that a provocative act by the injured party turns the insured's physical response into an accidental act. This argument fails because the insured's acts of wrongdoing are the acts that must be considered the starting point of the causal series of events. "Accident" in the policy coverage clause refers to the injury-producing acts of the insured, not those of the injured party. Therefore, an insured's unreasonable belief in the need for self-defense does not turn the resulting purposeful and intentional act of assault and battery into an accident within the policy coverage clause [Delgado v. Interinsurance Exch. of Auto. Club of So. Cal. (2009) 47 Cal. 4th 302, 314-317, 97 Cal. Rptr. 3d 298, 211 P.3d 1083].

§ 308.117 Intervention by Insurer

An intervention takes place when a third person is permitted to become a party to an action or proceeding between other persons, either by joining the plaintiff in claiming what is sought by the complaint, or by uniting with the defendant in resisting the claims of the plaintiff, or by demanding anything adversely to both the plaintiff and defendant [see Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a)]. Insurance companies may seek to intervene in actions brought by or against their insured to protect their interests. An insurer must be permitted to intervene in an action to request the court to vacate a default judgment against the insured [Nasongkhla v. Gonzalez (1994) 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 379] . Otherwise, the insurer may have no other opportunity to litigate fault or damages issues in any action later brought under Ins. Code § 11580. Furthermore, it would be unfair to wait until after a judgment is entered against the defendant because the burden of proof would then be on the insurer to show substantial likelihood that the jury would have found in the insured's favor [Nasonghkhla v. Gonzalez (1994) 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 379] . Note that the insurer must choose between vacation of default (aligned with insured) or declaratory relief (adverse to insured) [Nasongkhla v. Gonzalez (1994) 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 379] . For discussion and forms regarding intervention, see Ch. 395, Parties .

An insurer providing a defense, even though subject to a reservation of rights, may intervene in the action when the insured attempts to settle the case to the potential detriment of the insurer. In contrast to the insurer that refuses to defend, an insurer providing a defense under a reservation of rights has not lost its right to control the litigation, and therefore retains a direct interest in the case [Gray v. Begley (2010) 182 Cal. App. 4th 1509, 1523-1524, 106 Cal. Rptr. 3d 729] .

When an insurer denied coverage and refused to defend the liability action against the insured, it could not later intervene in the action under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a). The insurer did not have a direct and immediate interest to warrant intervening in the lawsuit [Hinton v. Beck (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 1378, 1380, 1385-1386, 98 Cal. Rptr. 3d 612].

§ 308.118 Insurer's Duty to Provide Insured With Independent Counsel When Conflict of Interest Exists

[1] Requirements

The language of a liability insurance policy typically reserves control of the defense to the insurer. The insurer ordinarily selects defense counsel for the insured and controls the insured's defense. However, a conflict of interest may arise when an insurer reserves its right to contest coverage and the determination of whether coverage exists depends upon resolution of facts at issue in the underlying lawsuit. This conflict is premised on the presumptive inability of a defense attorney, hired by the insurer to defend its insured, to represent the divergent interests of the joint clients [San Diego Fed. Credit Union v. Cumis Ins. Soc'y, Inc. (1984) 162 Cal. App. 3d 358, 365, 375, 208 Cal. Rptr. 494] .

In San Diego Navy Federal Credit Union v. Cumis Insurance Society, the court held that under these circumstances the counsel retained by the insurer must notify the insured of the conflict and either obtain the written consent of the insured or cease the joint representation. If the insured does not consent to joint representation, the carrier must pay for the insured to retain separate counsel of the insured's choice, and must permit the insured and the insured's independent counsel to control the litigation [San Diego Fed. Credit Union v. Cumis Ins. Soc'y, Inc. (1984) 162 Cal. App. 3d 358, 375, 208 Cal. Rptr. 494] . Independent counsel appointed under these circumstances to represent an insured at the insurer's expense have come to be referred to as " Cumis counsel."

The Cumis requirements, with some additional controls, have been codified in Civ. Code § 2860. Under Civ. Code § 2860, if the provisions of an insurance policy impose a duty to defend on the insurer, and a conflict of interest arises that creates a duty on the part of the insurer to provide independent counsel to the insured, the insurer must provide independent counsel to represent the insured unless, at the time the insured is notified that a possible conflict may arise or does exist, the insured expressly waives, in writing, the right to independent counsel. An insurance contract may contain a provision that sets forth the method of selecting counsel consistent with Civ. Code § 2860 [Civ. Code § 2860(a)].

A conflict of interest does not exist for purposes of Civ. Code § 2860 concerning allegations or facts in the litigation for which the insurer denies coverage. In addition, conflict of interest is deemed to exist concerning allegations of punitive damages or solely because an insured is sued for an amount in excess of the insurance policy limits [Civ. Code § 2860(b); see Civ. Code § 2860(c) (requirements set by insurer), (d) (disclosure and privileges), (e) (waiver), (f) (cooperation between counsel)].

When an insurer reserves its rights on a given issue and the outcome of that coverage issue can be controlled by counsel first retained by the insurer for the defense of the claim, a conflict of interest may exist [Civ. Code § 2860(b)]. However, not every reservation of rights entitles the insured to select Cumis counsel. The insured is not entitled to Cumis counsel if the coverage issue is extrinsic to the issues in the underlying action. Moreover, a mere possibility of an unspecified conflict does not require Cumis counsel. Instead, the court must analyze the parties' respective interests to determine whether they can be reconciled, such as by a defense based on total non-liability, or whether an actual conflict prevents the insurer-appointed counsel from presenting a quality defense for the insured [see Dynamic Concepts, Inc. v. Truck Ins. Exch. (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 999, 1007-1008, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 882] .

An insurer is entitled to a reasonable period of time to analyze an insured's request for Cumis counsel [Dynamic Concepts, Inc. v. Truck Ins. Exch. (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 999, 1010, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 882] .

[2] Arbitration of Fee Issues

Under Civ. Code § 2860(c), Cumis fee issues are to be decided in an arbitrationforum and not the state's judicial forum. However, the statutory arbitration requirement applies only to disputes concerning the fees to be paid; it does not require that disputes over the insurer's duty to provide Cumis counsel in the first instance be arbitrated [Truck Ins. Exch. v. Dynamic Concepts, Inc. (1992) 9 Cal. App. 4th 1147, 1150-1151, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d. 873] .

In one case, the insurer agreed to provide a defense to its insured under a reservation of rights, but then elected not to have counsel representing its own interests participate in the third-party action, instead allowing counsel selected by the insured to conduct and control the entire defense. A subsequent fee dispute between the insured's counsel and the insurer is subject to mandatory arbitration under Civil Code § 2860(c) if the reservation of rights creates a conflict of interest that triggers the insurer's duty to provide independent counsel [Long v. Century Indemnity Co. (2008) 163 Cal. App. 4th 1460, 1464-1465, 1475, 78 Cal. Rptr. 3d 483]. Civil Code § 2860(b) states that a conflict may exist "when an insurer reserves its rights on a given issue and the outcome of that coverage issue can be controlled by counsel first retained by the insurer for the defense of the claim." Although that language arguably suggests the duty to provide Cumis counsel may be contingent on the insurer's retention of its own counsel, the potential conflict described in § 2860(b) exists because the interests of the insurer and its insured diverge, precluding the use of counsel (absent a waiver by the insured) who purports to represent jointly the interests of both insurer and insured. It is not the presence of the insurer-selected attorney that creates the conflict. Rather, the existence of the conflict or potential conflict creates the need for "independent" or Cumis counsel, an attorney who owes his or her allegiance solely to the insured. Even if the insurer forgoes its right to its own representation under these circumstances, the insured retains its right to independent counsel whom it selects and controls [Long v. Century Indemnity Co. (2008) 163 Cal. App. 4th 1460, 1472, 78 Cal. Rptr. 3d 483].

In a case brought by the insured against its liability insurer for breach of contract and bad faith involving failure to defend, including failure to pay Cumis fees, the defendant insurer filed a petition to compel arbitration under Civ. Code § 2860(c). The insured successfully opposed the petition on the ground that the complaint alleged wrongful conduct beyond the mere failure to pay attorney's fees, and therefore fell outside the scope of section 2860. The appellate court reversed, holding that notwithstanding the inclusion of other nonarbitrable issues in the complaint, any contested issues concerning the amount of attorney's fees allegedly owed by the insurer for the insured's independent counsel are subject to mandatory arbitration under Civ. Code § 2860(c) [Compulink Mgmt. Ctr., Inc. v. St. Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Co. (2008) 169 Cal. App. 4th 289, 300, 87 Cal. Rptr. 3d 72].

Furthermore, Civ. Code § 2860(c) does not affect the normal relationship between the federal and state courts when actions have been filed in both of these jurisdictions dealing with the same subject matter. Since Civ. Code § 2860 does not forbid federal judges or juries from deciding these issues, it is not an abuse of discretion to deny a petition compelling the arbitration of a Cumis fee dispute pending the outcome of a federal action involving the same issues [Caiafa Prof'l Law Corp. v. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. (1993) 15 Cal. App. 4th 800, 805, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 138] .

[3] Liability of Independent Counsel to Insurer

The insurer may not recover from Cumis counsel under Civ. Code § 2860 for that counsel's negligent failure to investigate, prepare, assert, establish, or perform similar functions regarding a defense of position favorable to the insurer. However, Cumis counsel may be held liable to the insurer for negligent failure to keep the insurer properly informed of the facts, theories, status, procedural developments, and evaluations in the underlying action, to disclose all nonprivileged information relating to the action, and to timely inform and consult with the insurer on all matters related to the action, when these failures preclude the insurer from timely presenting a complete defense to the action [Assurance Co. of Am. v. Haven (1995) 32 Cal. App. 4th 78, 83, 92, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 25] . For discussion and form, see § 308.523.

26-308 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 308.119

§ 308.119 Insurer's Duty to Defend

[1] Scope of Duty to Defend

Liability insurance policies normally provide that the insurer will defend suits brought against the insured that come within the risk assumed by the insurer, even if they are groundless, false, or fraudulent [see, e.g., Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. v. Chasson (1962) 207 Cal. App. 2d 801, 803-804, 24 Cal. Rptr. 726] . Under such a provision, the insurer is required to defend any action against the insured that potentially seeks damages within the coverage of the policy [Gray v. Zurich Ins. Co. (1966) 65 Cal. 2d 263, 276-277, 54 Cal. Rptr. 104, 419 P.2d 168 ; Watts Indus., Inc. v. Zurich Am. Ins. Co. (2004) 121 Cal. App. 4th 1029, 1039, 18 Cal. Rptr. 3d 61 ; CNA Cas. of Cal. v. Seaboard Sur. Co. (1986) 176 Cal. App. 3d 598, 605-607, 222 Cal. Rptr. 276] . If any facts stated or fairly inferable in the complaint, or otherwise known or discovered by the insurer, suggest a claim potentially covered by the policy, the insurer's duty to defend arises and is not extinguished until the insurer negates all facts suggesting potential coverage. On the other hand, if, as a matter of law, neither the complaint nor the known extrinsic facts indicate any basis for potential coverage, the duty to defend does not arise in the first instance [Scottsdale Ins. Co. v. MV Transp. (2005) 36 Cal. 4th 643, 655, 31 Cal. Rptr. 3d 147, 115 P.3d 460] . That is, if there is no possibility of coverage, there is no duty to defend [Waller v. Truck Ins. Exchange, Inc. (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 1, 37, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 370, 900 P.2d 619 ; Fire Ins. Exch. v. Abbott (1988) 204 Cal. App. 3d 1012, 1029, 251 Cal. Rptr. 620] .

A "suit" in this context is a court proceeding initiated by the filing of a complaint [Foster-Gardner, Inc. v. National Union Fire Ins. Co. (1998) 18 Cal. 4th 857, 888, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 107, 959 P.2d 265] . In a case of first impression in California, the California Supreme Court has held that a coercive administrative action is not the initiation of a "suit" within the meaning of a comprehensive general liability policy that does not specifically define the term [Foster-Gardner, Inc. v. National Union Fire Ins. Co. (1998) 18 Cal. 4th 857, 889, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 107, 959 P.2d 265] . The Court stated that with respect to policies that treat the terms "suit" and "claim" separately rather than synonymously but do not define the terms, a precomplaint notice may not be construed to mean a "suit" in some instances but not in others. "Suit" denotes court proceedings, not a substantive or functional equivalent of court proceedings such as anEPA notice or order, even if the administrative action has serious consequences or precludes substantial defenses [

Foster-Gardner, Inc. v. National Union Fire Ins. Co. (1998) 18 Cal. 4th 857, 879, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 107, 959 P.2d 265] .

In 1986, the standard insurance form was amended to define "suit" as "a civil proceeding in which damages because of bodily injury, property damage, personal injury or advertising injury to which this insurance applies are alleged. 'Suit' includes an arbitration proceeding alleging such damages to which you must submit or submit with our consent." Since then, this definition has been refined [see Foster-Gardner, Inc. v. National Union Fire Ins. Co. (1998) 18 Cal. 4th 857, 864 n.3, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 107, 959 P.2d 265] .

One court of appeal has noted that read together, Foster-Gardner and CertainUnderwriters at Lloyd's of London v. Superior Court (2001) 24 Cal. 4th 945, 955, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 672, 16 P.3d 94 [see § 308.114[4]] stand for the proposition that the duty to defend a "suit" seeking "damages" under pre-1986 CGL policies is restricted to civil actions prosecuted in a court, initiated by the filing of a complaint, and does not include claims, which can denote proceedings conducted by administrative agencies under environmental statutes. Likewise, the duty to indemnify for "all sums that the insured becomes legally obligated to pay as damages" in the same standard primary policies is limited to money ordered by a court and does not include expenses, such as those that may be incurred in responding to administrative agency orders [see Certain Underwriters at Lloyd's of London v. Superior Court (2001) 24 Cal. 4th 945, 961, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 672, 16 P.3d 94] .

In another case, the defendant filed a setoff claim against the insured plaintiff that implicated the plaintiff's insurance coverage. The California Supreme Court held that the plaintiff stated a prima facie case against the plaintiff's insurer for breach of contract and bad faith, based on the insurer's refusal to indemnify and defend against the setoff claim, by alleging that: (1) the insurance policy obligated the insurer to defend and indemnify the insured against suits seeking damages, and (2) under the terms of the policy, the setoff claim by the defendant in the underlying suit fell within the scope of that contractual obligation. In that case, the Court held that a defendant may not obtain an award of affirmative relief against a plaintiff by way of Code Civ. Proc. § 431.70. Instead, the defendant may only assert the setoff defensively to defeat the plaintiff's claim in whole or in part. Because the precise terms of the policy were not before the Court, however, the Court did not decide whether an insured may treat a setoff claim as a suit for damages [Construction Protective Servs., Inc. v. TIG Specialty Ins. Co. (2002) 29 Cal. 4th 189, 198-199, 126 Cal. Rptr. 2d 908, 57 P.3d 372] . For further discussion of Code Civ. Proc. § 431.70, see Ch. 26, Answers .

To determine whether the insurer has a duty to defend, the factual allegations of the complaint and the extrinsic facts known to the insurer must be compared with the terms of the policy [Montrose Chem. Corp. v. Superior Court (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 287, 295, 24 Cal. Rptr. 2d 467, 861 P.2d 1153] . In determining whether a particular policy provides a potential for coverage and a duty to defend, courts are governed by the general rules applicable to the interpretation of insurance policies [Waller v. Truck Ins. Exch., Inc. (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 1, 18-19, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 370, 900 P.2d 619 ; for discussion of these rules, see § 308.22]. The court must construe the coverage provisions of the policy liberally in favor of the insured and construe the exclusions narrowly against the insurer [Charles E. Thomas Co. v. Transamerica Ins. Group (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 379, 382, 72 Cal. Rptr. 2d 577 ; Mariscal v. Old Republic Life Ins. Co. (1996) 42 Cal. App. 4th 1617, 1623, 50 Cal. Rptr. 2d 224] .

The duty to defend is fixed by the facts that the insurer learns from the complaint, the insured, or other sources [Gray v. Zurich Ins. Co. (1966) 65 Cal. 2d 263, 276, 54 Cal. Rptr. 104, 419 P.2d 168 ; Jarchow v. Transamerica Title Ins. Co. (1975) 48 Cal. App. 3d 917, 944, 122 Cal. Rptr. 470] . It does not turn on the ultimate adjudication of coverage [State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v. Allstate Ins. Co. (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 508, 526, 88 Cal. Rptr. 246] . An insurer is required to investigate and evaluate facts expressed or implied in the third-party complaint, as well as those learned from its insured and any other sources, before it may properly reject the tender of defense [CNA Cas. of Cal. v. Seaboard Sur. Co. (1986) 176 Cal. App. 3d 598, 610, 222 Cal. Rptr. 276] . An insurer may breach the implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing by failing to promptly and properly investigate its insured's claim [Egan v. Mutual of Omaha Ins. Co. (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 809, 817, 169 Cal. Rptr. 691 ; Eigner v. Worthington (1997) 57 Cal. App. 4th 188, 195, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 808] . An insurer who denies coverage without investigation runs the risk that the insured may later be able to prove that a reasonable investigation would have uncovered evidence establishing a potential for coverage. In that case, the insurer is liable for the costs of the defense and may also be exposed to tort liability in a bad faith action [Eigner v. Worthington (1997) 57 Cal. App. 4th 188, 195-199, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 808] .

The fact that a coverage dispute is capable of being resolved without reference to the facts of the underlying claim does not permit an insurer to avoid its duty to defend when the facts determinative of coverage are disputed [Amato v. Mercury Cas. Co. (1993) 18 Cal. App. 4th 1784, 1791-1792, 23 Cal. Rptr. 2d 73 (in action by mother-in-law for injuries sustained in accident caused by son-in-law, evidence suggesting that son-in-law did not reside with mother-in-law created a potential for coverage and triggered insurer's duty to defend, even though jury ultimately found that parties did reside together and coverage was barred under policy's "resident relative" exclusion; repudiated as to the proper measure of damages on appeal after remand, Amato v. Mercury Cas. Co. (1997) 53 Cal. App. 4th 825, 61 Cal. Rptr. 2d 909)].

There is no duty to defend if the facts giving rise to the claim do not arise out of operations covered by the policy, and occur in a remote location from the operations of the insured [Hartford v. State of California (1996) 41 Cal. App. 4th 1564, 1570, 49 Cal. Rptr. 2d 282 (coverage of operation of exhibitor's booth at fairground did not extend to injury on bleachers that were 100 feet from booth and had no relationship to exhibitor's operations)].

Even if a complaint, on its face, does not create a potential for coverage under the policy, evidence extrinsic to the complaint can generate a duty to defend [Gray v. Zurich Ins. Co. (1966) 65 Cal. 2d 263, 276, 54 Cal. Rptr. 104, 419 P.2d 168] . In such a situation, facts extrinsic to the complaint are considered in determining whether any potential for coverage existed at the inception of theunderlying lawsuit [Golden Eagle Ins. Co. v. Travelers Cos. (9th Cir. 1996) 103 F.3d 750, 757] . However, absent an allegation of facts showing a potential for coverage, and in the face of mere speculation by the insured about unpled third party claims, coverage will not be found, and there will be no duty to defend [Hurley Constr. Co. v. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. (1992) 10 Cal. App. 4th 533, 538, 12 Cal. Rptr. 2d 629] .

Evidence extrinsic to the complaint may also defeat an insurer's duty to defend, when the issue of coverage can be determined as a matter of law on undisputed facts [Montrose Chem. Corp. v. Superior Court (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 287, 296-299, 24 Cal. Rptr. 2d 467, 861 P.2d 1153] .

Inasmuch as potential liability depends on the facts known to the insurer or pleaded in the complaint, when the only potential for liability depends on the resolution of a legal question, instead of on the resolution of disputed facts, there may be no duty to defend [see State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v. Longden (1987) 197 Cal. App. 3d 226, 233, 242 Cal. Rptr. 726 (potential liability depended on whether undisputed facts constituted an "accident")].

The duty to defend is broader than the duty to indemnify [Fire Ins. Exch. v. Jiminez (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 437, 441, 229 Cal. Rptr. 83] . Any doubt regarding whether the duty to defend exists will be resolved in favor of the insured against the insurer [Eichler Homes, Inc. v. Underwriters at Lloyd's, London (1965) 238 Cal. App. 2d 532, 538, 47 Cal. Rptr. 843] . The duty to defend does not dissolve simply because the insured is ultimately found liable under facts not giving rise to coverage [Central Mut. Ins. Co. v. Del Mar Beach Club Owners Ass'n (1981) 123 Cal. App. 3d 916, 927, 176 Cal. Rptr. 895] .

When a suit against an insured alleges a claim that potentially, or even possibly, could subject the insured to liability for covered damages, the insurer must defend unless and until the insurer can demonstrate, by reference to undisputed facts, that the claim cannot be covered [Borg v. Transamerica Ins. Co. (1996) 47 Cal. App. 4th 448, 455, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 811] . To prevail, the insured must prove the existence of a potential for coverage, while the insurer must establish the absence of any such potential [Borg v. Transamerica Ins. Co. (1996) 47 Cal. App. 4th 448, 455, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 811] .

Thus, the insured need only show that the underlying claim may fall within policy coverage, while the insurer must prove it cannot; facts merely tending to show that the claim is not covered, or may not be covered, but that are insufficient to eliminate the possibility that resultant damages (or the nature of the action) will fall within the scope of coverage, add no weight to the scales [Borg v. Transamerica Ins. Co. (1996) 47 Cal. App. 4th 448, 456, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 811] . Only if the underlying complaint can by no conceivable theory raise a single issue which could bring it within the policy coverage is the insured excused from the duty to defend [Borg v. Transamerica Ins. Co. (1996) 47 Cal. App. 4th 448, 456-457, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 811] . However, the existence of an unresolved legal dispute concerning policy interpretation, which is ultimately resolved in favor of the insurer, is not a basis for the existence of a duty to defend [Lebas Fashion Imports of USA, Inc. v. ITT Hartford Ins. Group (1996) 50 Cal. App. 4th 548, 556, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 36] .

The duty to defend is not without limitation. It extends only to the defense of those actions of the nature and kind covered by the policy. For example, a workers' compensation insurer has no duty to defend a civil action by an employee against his employer for wrongful termination in violation of public policy merely because the plaintiff might later file a covered workers' compensation claim [La Jolla Beach & Tennis Club, Inc. v. Industrial Indem. Co. (1994) 9 Cal. 4th 27, 44, 36 Cal. Rptr. 2d 100, 884 P.2d 1048] .

Comprehensive liability insurers that insure only for tangible property losses do not owe a duty to defend in a dispute involving the right to use an implied easement. Interference with an easement right is not property damage to tangible property giving rise to a duty to defend [Kazi v. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. (2001) 24 Cal. 4th 871, 879-882, 887, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1, 15 P.3d 223] . Actions over easement ownership, interference, or the right to use an easement concern "pure rights in property" or intangible rights only [Kazi v. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. (2001) 24 Cal. 4th 871, 882, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1, 15 P.3d 223] . An easement is a nonpossessory interest in the land of another that gives its owner the right to use the land of another or to prevent the other property owner from using that property owner's own land. It represents a limited privilege to use the land of another for the benefit of the easement holder's land, but it does not create an interest in the land itself [Kazi v. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. (2001) 24 Cal. 4th 871, 880-881, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1, 15 P.3d 223] .

The insurer, after taking into consideration facts gathered from its own investigation or information supplied to it, and determining that no potential liability under the policy exists, may refuse to defend the lawsuit. The lack of pre-existing authority on the existence of an insurer's duty to defend on a given issue does not automatically compel the insurer to defend a third party lawsuit until the issue is resolved by controlling authority. It is not necessary that there be a published judicial opinion definitively construing the specific policy provision on which the insurer relies in denying a defense. If the terms of the policy provide no potential for coverage, the insurer may properly deny a defense even if that duty is later evaluated under case law that did not exist at the time of the tender [Waller v. Truck Ins. Exch., Inc. (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 1, 23-25, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 370, 900 P.2d 619] .

However, an insurer refuses to defend at its own risk. If liability or potential liability under the policy is ultimately established, the insurer is accountable to itsinsured or to the person who obtained judgment against the insured in the action it refused to defend [Dillon v. Hartford Accident & Indem. Co. (1974) 38 Cal. App. 3d 335, 339-340, 113 Cal. Rptr. 396 (holding no duty to defend under policies involved)].

[2] Summary Adjudication of Duty to Defend

On a motion for summary adjudication of the duty to defend, the insured must prove the existence of a potential for coverage, while the insurer must prove the absence of any potential for coverage. Facts that tend to show that the claim is not covered or may not be covered but which do not wholly eliminate the possibility that the claim will fall within the scope of coverage are insufficient to meet the insurer's burden [Montrose Chem. Corp. v. Superior Court (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 287, 300, 24 Cal. Rptr. 2d 467, 861 P.2d 1153] .

Because the insured is entitled to a prompt ruling on its motion for summary adjudication of the duty to defend, the court may not delay adjudication to give the insurer time to investigate and prepare. However, a ruling in favor of the insured is not necessarily a permanent determination. Although the insurer must undertake the defense once summary adjudication is entered in favor of the insured, the insurer may continue to investigate and develop evidence that will allow it to defeat the insured's coverage claim and terminate its defense. The insurer may move for a summary adjudication that it has no duty to defend at any time it can conclusively eliminate the potential for coverage [Liberty Mut. Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1997) 58 Cal. App. 4th 617, 621-624, 68 Cal. Rptr. 2d 219 ; Haskel, Inc. v. Superior Court (1995) 33 Cal. App. 4th 963, 978, 39 Cal. Rptr. 2d 520] .

An insurer's subsequent motion for summary judgment or adjudication on the duty to defend is not considered a motion for reconsideration, and the insurer is therefore not required to prove that the facts on which the motion is based were newly discovered after the insured's earlier motion for summary adjudication [Liberty Mut. Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1997) 58 Cal. App. 4th 617, 623, 68 Cal. Rptr. 2d 219] .

[3] After Payment of Policy Limits

An insurer may limit the duty to defend by including policy language expressly limiting its defense obligation when the insurer has already paid out the insured's limit of coverage based on the same claim [Heredia v. Farmers Ins. Exch. (1991) 228 Cal. App. 3d 1345, 1355, 279 Cal. Rptr. 511 ; Johnson v. Continental Ins. Cos. (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 477, 481, 248 Cal. Rptr. 412 ; but see County of Santa Clara v. USF & G (N.D. Cal. 1994) 868 F. Supp. 274, 277-278, 280 (issuance of remedial action order by California Department of Health Services was not equivalent to an adjudication of liability that would allow primary insurer to pay out its policy limits and thereby extinguish its duty to defend insured)]. Although California has yet to decide whether a general duty to defend ends with the payment of policy limits, an insurer may be able to rely on clear policy language to insulate itself from the duty to defend once policy limits are paid out in those cases in which the insured suffers no prejudice [see Johnson v. Continental Ins. Cos. (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 477, 483-486, 248 Cal. Rptr. 412] .

For a form of complaint brought by an insured against an insurer to recover damages for failure to defend, see § 308.462.

[4] Trigger of Duty to Defend

An insurer's duty to defend under a policy providing occurrence-based coverage, such as a standard commercial liability policy, is triggered when the harm specified in the policy may possibly have been caused by an included occurrence, if at least some of the harm may potentially have resulted within the policy period [Aerojet-Gen. Corp. v. Transport Indem. Co. (1997) 17 Cal. 4th 38, 75, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 118, 948 P.2d 909] . It is not necessary for the harm to be reported during the policy period. If bodily injury or property damage continues throughout successive policy periods, all of the insured's policies in effect during those periods are triggered. Coverage is not limited to the policy in effect at the time of the precipitating event or conditions [Montrose Chem. Corp. v. Admiral Ins. Co. (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 645, 669-670, 42 Cal. Rptr. 2d 324, 913 P.2d 878 ; County of San Bernardino v. Pacific Indem. Co. (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 666, 682, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 657 ; see Armstrong World Indus., Inc. v. Aetna Cas. & Sur. Co. (1996) 45 Cal. App. 4th 1, 39-40, 52 Cal. Rptr. 2d 690] .

A claims-made liability policy generally limits coverage to claims made against the insured and reported to the company during the policy period. Reporting of the claim to the insurance company is the event that triggers coverage [KPFF, Inc. v. California Union Ins. Co. (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 963, 972, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 36] .

[5] Duty to Defend All Claims

Under a standard general commercial liability policy, once a potential for coverage is established as to at least one of the claims asserted against the insured, the insurer is obligated to defend against all of the claims involved in the action, both covered and noncovered, until either the action is concluded or it is shown that no claim can in fact be covered [

Buss v. Superior Court (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 35, 46, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 366, 939 P.2d 766] . If such a showing is made, the duty to defend is extinguished prospectively only; in other words, the insurer has a duty to defend the entire action until that point [Buss v. Superior Court (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 35, 46, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 366, 939 P.2d 766] .

[6] Right to Reimbursement of Defense Costs From Insured

Under a standard commercial liability insurance policy, the insurer has a quasi-contractual duty to defend the entire action if at least one claim is potentially covered [Buss v. Superior Court (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 35, 47-49, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 366, 939 P.2d 766] . However, the insurer has a right to seek reimbursement from the insured for those defense costs that can be allocated solely to claims that were not even potentially covered [Buss v. Superior Court (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 35, 50-52].

To obtain reimbursement for defense costs, the insurer must reserve its right to reimbursement. Through reservation, the insurer gives the insured notice of how the insurer will, or at least may, proceed and provides the insured an opportunity to take any steps that the insured may deem reasonable or necessary in response, including choosing either to accept defense by the insurer and under the insurer's control or, instead, to defend in some other way [Buss v. Superior Court (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 35, 61 n.27, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 366, 939 P.2d 766 ; see also Blue Ridge Ins. Co. v. Jacobsen (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 489, 502, 106 Cal. Rptr. 2d 535] .

The insurer may unilaterally condition its proffer of a defense on its reservation of a right later to seek reimbursement of costs advanced to defend claims that are not, and never were, potentially covered by the relevant policy. Such an announcement by the insurer permits the insured to decide whether to accept the insurer's terms for providing a defense, or instead to assume and control the insured's own defense [Scottsdale Ins. Co. v. MV Transp. (2005) 36 Cal. 4th 643, 656, 31 Cal. Rptr. 3d 147, 115 P.3d 460 ; see Buss v. Superior Court (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 35, 61 n27, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 366, 939 P.2d 766] . Having reserved the right to dispute coverage, an insurer may settle a third-party action within policy limits, even over the insured's objection, then obtain reimbursement of its settlement payments from the insured on a later determination that the underlying claims were not covered [Blue Ridge Ins. Co. v. Jacobsen (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 489, 498, 106 Cal. Rptr. 2d 535, 22 P.3d 313 ; see Scottsdale Ins. Co. v. MV Transp. (2005) 36 Cal. 4th 643, 660 n.5, 31 Cal. Rptr. 3d 147, 115 P.3d 460] .

An insurer under a standard CGL policy, having properly reserved its rights, may advance sums to defend its insured against a third-party lawsuit, and may thereafter recoup those costs from the insured if it is determined, as a matter of law, that no duty to defend ever arose because the third-party suit never suggested the possibility of a covered claim [Scottsdale Ins. Co. v. MV Transp. (2005) 36 Cal. 4th 643, 662, 31 Cal. Rptr. 3d 147, 115 P.3d 460] .

If only a portion of a claim is potentially covered, as may occur when a claim seeks damages for injuries occurring over an extended period of time, the insurer has a right to seek reimbursement for defense costs that can be allocated solely to that part of the claim that was not even potentially covered. For example, an insurer may seek reimbursement for defense costs for part of a claim involving acts or omissions that may have caused continuing or discrete injury only after its policies expired [Aerojet-Gen. Corp. v. Transport Indem. Co. (1997) 17 Cal. 4th 38, 69-71, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 118, 948 P.2d 909] . The insurer bears the burden of proving the allocation of costs by a preponderance of the evidence [Aerojet-Gen. Corp. v. Transport Indem. Co. (1997) 17 Cal. 4th 38, 69, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 118, 948 P.2d 909 ; Buss v. Superior Court (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 35, 53, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 366, 939 P.2d 766] .

Absent express language in the policy, an insurer has no right of reimbursement for claims that were potentially covered by the policy, even if the claims are ultimately not covered. Therefore, an insurer's "reservation of rights" to seek reimbursement for such claims is ineffectual, even if the insured agrees to the reservation [Buss v. Superior Court (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 35, 49-50 & n.12, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 366, 939 P.2d 766] .

An insurer may not seek equitable contribution to defense costs from an insured party, even if the insured party is "self-insured" or covered only by a fronting policy during some part of the period covered by a claim [Aerojet-Gen. Corp. v. Transport Indem. Co. (1997) 17 Cal. 4th 38, 71-72, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 118, 948 P.2d 909 ; County of San Bernardino v. Pacific Indem. Co.(1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 666, 690-691, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 657] .

[7] Claims-Made Policies

A claims-made liability policy generally limits coverage to claims made against the insured and reported to the company during the policy period [KPFF, Inc. v. California Union Ins. Co. (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 963, 972, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 36] . In addition, a claims-made policy may contain an "awareness provision" (also known as a "discovery clause"), to the effect that if the insured gives written notice to the insurer during the policy period of any circumstances that may later give rise to a claim against the insured by reason of a covered act or omission, then any claim arising out of the act or omission will be treated as having been made during the policy period. An awareness provision extends the limits of insurance coverage in a claims-made policy [Gyler v. Mission Ins. Co. (1973) 10 Cal. 3d 216, 220, 110 Cal. Rptr. 139, 514 P. 2d 1219] .

Information received from sources other than the insured does not constitute written notice from the insured within the meaning of an awareness provision. Thus, if the insured fails to give the insurer written notice of circumstances that could give rise to a subsequent claim within the policy period, the insurer's receipt of such information from a third party during the policy period does not trigger the coverage provided by the awareness provision. In addition, reports based on speculation or rumor do not rise to the level of notice necessary under anawareness provision [KPFF, Inc. v. California Union Ins. Co. (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 963, 976-978, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 36] .

The transmission of pleadings to the insurance company may serve as a means of reporting a claim. In addition, if the pleadings contain material relevant both to reporting a claim and to circumstances covered by an awareness provision, the pleadings may also serve as written notice of circumstances that may give rise to future claims. However, in order to trigger the awareness provision, the pleadings must do more than present a speculative possibility of circumstances that might give rise to future claims; they must give the insurer a reasonable basis to infer the likelihood of such claims [KPFF, Inc. v. California Union Ins. Co. (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 963, 974-976, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 36] .

The covenant of good faith and fair dealing, which is implied in all insurance policies, imposes on the insurer a duty to investigate claims that have been properly submitted under a claims-made policy. This includes a duty to make inquiries regarding professional principles and practices relevant to evaluating a claim and determining whether the insurer has a duty to defend. The insurer is charged with constructive notice of facts it could have learned if it had properly conducted the investigation [KPFF, Inc. v. California Union Ins. Co. (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 963, 973, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 36] . In addition, the significance of written notice of circumstances under an awareness provision is evaluated in light of professional understanding of the matters disclosed, and the insurer is charged with the knowledge it would have obtained had it inquired into the professional understanding of such written notice [KPFF, Inc. v. California Union Ins. Co. (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 963, 974, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 36 ; see Civ. Code § 19].

[8] In Context of Primary and Excess Coverage

If an insured has both primary and excess insurance, the excess insurer generally has no duty to participate in the insured's defense, or to contribute to a settlement on its behalf, until primary coverages are exhausted [Phoenix Ins. Co. v. United States Fire Ins. Co. (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 1511, 1520, 1528, 235 Cal. Rptr. 185] . When a dispute arises over whether or not policy limits have been exhausted, the primary insurer must defend until it obtains a declaratory judgment or summary judgment that it has exhausted its policy limits [Hartford Accident & Indem. Co. v. Superior Court (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 1774, 1781, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 32 ; see also Montrose Chem. Corp. v. Superior Court (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 287, 24 Cal. Rptr. 2d 467, 861 P.2d 1153] . A primary insurer that successfully proves exhaustion is equitably entitled to be reimbursed by the excess insurer for its share of the defense costs [Hartford Accident & Indem. Co. v. Superior Court (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 1774, 1780-1782, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 32] .

Construing a "broad as primary" endorsement in an excess insurance policy to apply to any loss that is within the scope of the primary policy's coverage, regardless of whether there is actual payment, does not violate the stricture against interpretations that make words redundant, in particular the words "the excess of" as in the policy's phrase, "a loss which is covered ... the excess of which would be payable" [Housing Group v. California Ins. Guarantee Ass'n (1996), 56 Cal. Rptr. 2d 378] . Thus, in an insured developer's declaratory relief action against an excess insurer, the trial court properly found that defendant covered construction defects lawsuits against plaintiff after the primary coverage had been exhausted, where plaintiff had a primary comprehensive general liability policy and an umbrella policy with the excess insurer, which listed the primary policy in its schedule of "underlying" insurance and which had a "broad as primary" endorsement that provided coverage for "a loss which is covered under the policies of underlying insurance" [Housing Group v. California Ins. Guarantee Ass'n (1996), 56 Cal. Rptr. 2d 378] .

An excess insurer has no duty to defend or to provide coverage unless and until the insured's primary insurance coverage is exhausted, and a good faith settlement between an excess insurer and its insured does not bar the contribution claim of a second excess insurer [Home Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1996) 46 Cal. App. 4th 1286, 1292, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 292] .

[9] Nonwaiver Agreement and Reservation of Rights

If an action is brought against an insured, and the insurer, with knowledge of a ground of noncoverage under the policy, assumes and conducts the defense without disclaiming liability and giving the insured notice of its rights, the insurer waives right to assert the ground of noncoverage [Phoenix Ins. Co. v. United States Fire Ins. Co. (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 1511, 1527 n.15, 235 Cal. Rptr. 185 ; Miller v. Elite Ins. Co. (1980) 100 Cal. App. 3d 739, 755, 161 Cal. Rptr. 322] . An insurer may also waive its right to assert a policy exclusion if it fails to assert a reservation of rights in a timely manner, especially if the insured is prejudiced by the delay [see Stonewall Ins. Co. v. City of Palos Verdes Estates (1996) 46 Cal. App. 4th 1810, 1839, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 176 (insurer's failure to inform insured of its reservation of rights under exclusion until three weeks before trial constituted waiver; insured was prejudiced because separate counsel could have been retained for excluded claim had timely notice been given)]. To avoid waiving its right to assert noncoverage defenses, while at the same time satisfying its duty to defend, the insurer may undertake defense of the action after either securing a nonwaiver agreement (bilateral agreement) from the insured, or by making an adequate reservation of rights (unilateral agreement) to assert noncoverage at a later time [Val's Painting & Drywall, Inc. v. Allstate Ins. Co. (1975) 53 Cal. App. 3d 576, 586, 126 Cal. Rptr. 267 ; see, e.g., Golden Eagle Ins. Corp. v. Cen-Fed, Ltd. (2007) 148 Cal. App. 4th 976, ___, 56 Cal. Rptr. 3d 279 (reservation of rights)].

The insurer may not recover from the insured its attorney's fees and legal expenses in defending the action, as long as the claim against the insured waspotentially within policy coverage [Buss v. Superior Court (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 35 , 49-52, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 366, 939 P.2d 766 ; Val's Painting & Drywall, Inc. v. Allstate Ins. Co. (1975) 53 Cal. App. 3d 576, 582-583, 126 Cal. Rptr. 267 ; Hertzka & Knowles v. Salter (1970) 6 Cal. App. 3d 325, 329-336, 86 Cal. Rptr. 23] . A reservation of rights to recover such costs is ineffective, even if the insured agreed to the reservation [Buss v. Superior Court (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 35, 49-50]. However, if an insurer properly reserved its rights, it may recoup defense costs from the insured if it is determined, as a matter of law, that no duty to defend ever arose because the third-party suit never suggested the possibility of a covered claim [Scottsdale Ins. Co. v. MV Transp. (2005) 36 Cal. 4th 643, 662, 31 Cal. Rptr. 3d 147, 115 P.3d 460] . The insurer must reserve its right of reimbursement for defense costs in order to avoid waiver. It may do so unilaterally, without the agreement of the insured [Scottsdale Ins. Co. v. MV Transp. (2005) 36 Cal. 4th 643, 656, 31 Cal. Rptr. 3d 147, 115 P.3d 460 ; Buss v. Superior Court (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 35, 61 n.27, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 366, 939 P.2d 766 ; see Golden Eagle Ins. Corp. v. Cen-Fed, Ltd. (2007) 148 Cal. App. 4th 976, ___, 56 Cal. Rptr. 3d 279 , 2007 Cal. App. LEXIS 406 , pp5-6, n4, 5 (because letter of "complete" reservation of rights to deny coverage not included in appellate record, unclear whether insurer has right of reimbursement of defense costs and expenses although it had no duty to indemnify nor defend; also unclear whether insurer sought that reimbursement)].

An insurer who does not reserve any rights against the insured still retains the right to assert that its policy does not provide coverage in an action seeking equitable indemnity from the insured's other insurers [Mitchell, Silberberg & Knupp v. Yosemite Ins. Co. (1997) 58 Cal. App. 4th 389, 393-395, 67 Cal. Rptr. 2d 906] .

An insurer that adequately reserves its right to assert a noncoverage defense will not be bound by a judgment against the insured in favor of the injured party. For example, in a case involving allegations of sexual molestation, the underlying action by the injured party against the insured went forward while the coverage dispute was being decided in the reviewing courts. The reviewing courts ultimately determined that the insurer was not entitled to summary judgment on the issue of coverage because of the possibility that the injury was caused in part by the insured's negligence, for which the policy provided coverage. In the underlying third party action, damages were awarded against the insured based on a theory of negligence. Because the insurer had adequately reserved its right to assert a noncoverage defense, it was not collaterally estopped from subsequently litigating the issue of whether the insured's conduct was intentional, rather than negligent, and therefore not covered under the policy [Barbara B. v. Horace Mann Ins. Co. (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 158, 164-166, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 350 (citing J.C. Penney Cas. Ins. Co. v. M.K. (1991) 52 Cal. 3d 1009, 1017-1018, 278 Cal. Rptr. 64, 804 P.2d 689)].

Even without a nonwaiver agreement or reservation of rights, the insurer is not bound by the judgment against the insured in the third-party action regarding issues not necessarily adjudicated in that action. Hence, the insurer can still present in the insured's action against it for wrongful failure to defend any defenses that are not inconsistent with the judgment in the third-party action against the insured [Hogan v. Midland Nat'l Ins. Co. (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 553, 564, 91 Cal. Rptr. 153, 476 P.2d 825 ; see also Alta Cal. Reg'l Ctr. v. Fremont Indem. Co. (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 455, 459, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 841 , disapproved on other grounds, Waller v. Truck Ins. Exch., Inc. (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 1, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 370, 900 P.2d 619 (insurer that simply denies coverage, without expressly reserving right to assert defenses based on policy provisions that could limit amount of benefits available under policy in the event coverage did exist, does not waive right to assert those defenses in the event coverage ultimately is found to exist].

§ 308.121 Damages Recoverable for Wrongful Failure to Defend

[1] Expenses of Litigation

When the insured is required to conduct his or her own defense because of the insurer's breach of its duty to defend, the insured may recover the expenses of litigation, including costs and attorney's fees, from the insurer. The insured may also recover the expenses of an appeal when the grounds for the appeal are reasonable, even if the appeal is unsuccessful [Arenson v. National Auto. & Cas. Ins. Co. (1957) 48 Cal. 2d 528, 537, 310 P.2d 961] . Generally, the insurer is liable for the total amount of the fees expended in defending the action, even if some of the damages recovered in the action against the insured were outside the coverage of the policy [Hogan v. Midland Nat'l Ins. Co. (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 553, 564, 91 Cal. Rptr. 153, 476 P.2d 825] .

[2] Amount of Third-Party Judgment or Good Faith Settlement

In addition to the costs of defense, the insured may also recover the amount of the judgment by the third party, up to the policy limits, unless the insurer canestablish that the loss was not covered by the policy (and is not estopped from doing so) [see Hogan v. Midland Nat'l Ins. Co. (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 553, 564-566, 91 Cal. Rptr. 153, 476 P.2d 825 ; see also Gray v. Zurich Ins. Co. (1966) 65 Cal. 2d 263, 279-280, 54 Cal. Rptr. 104, 419 P.2d 168 (insurer liable for amount of third-party judgment when judgment did not exclude possibility of policycoverage); see generally § 308.119[9]].

If the insurer tortiously breaches its duty to defend and the insured suffers a default judgment because he or she cannot afford other counsel, the insurer is liable for the full amount of the default judgment, regardless of whether coverage in fact existed [Amato v. Mercury Cas. Co. (1997) 53 Cal. App. 4th 825, 831-833, 61 Cal. Rptr. 2d 909] . Additionally, the insured is not required to prove that the amount of the underlying judgment would have been smaller if the insurer had provided a defense [Amato v. Mercury Cas. Co. (1997) 53 Cal. App. 4th 825, 835-839, 61 Cal. Rptr. 2d 909] .

Moreover, an insurer that rejects a reasonable settlement offer within policy limits, in addition to refusing to defend, is subject to liability for the underlying judgment in excess of policy limits [Samson v. Transamerica Ins. Co. (1981) 30 Cal. 3d 220, 237-238, 178 Cal. Rptr. 343, 636 P.2d 32 ; see § 308.461; see also § 308.123[4][a]].

An insurer that wrongfully fails to defend is liable for the full amount of a reasonable settlement up to the policy limit arrived at in good faith between the third party and the insured [Cravens, Dargan & Co. v. Pacific Indem. Co. (1972) 29 Cal. App. 3d 594, 602, 105 Cal. Rptr. 607 ; Northwestern Title Sec. Co. v. Flack (1970) 6 Cal. App. 3d 134, 146, 85 Cal. Rptr. 693 ; see Consolidated Am. Ins. v. Mike Soper Marine (9th Cir. 1991) 951 F.2d 186, 191 (insurer also liable for accrued interest on stipulated judgment)].

If an insurer erroneously denies coverage or improperly refuses to defend the insured in violation of its contractual duties, an insured is entitled to make a reasonable settlement of the claim in good faith and may then maintain an action against the insurer to recover the amount of the settlement [Earth Elements, Inc. v. National Am. Ins. Co. (1995) 41 Cal. App. 4th 110, 111, 48 Cal. Rptr. 2d 399] . Thus, for example, an insurer that breached its contractual duty to defend and indemnify an insured that was sued by a third party was liable to the insured for breach of contract for the value of the insured's counterclaim against the third party, which the insured agreed to dismiss in order to settle the third party's claim [Earth Elements, Inc. v. National Am. Ins. Co. (1995) 41 Cal. App. 4th 110, 112, 48 Cal. Rptr. 2d 399] .

[3] Compensatory Damages

The insured may also recover compensatory damages for pain and emotional distress proximately caused by the refusal to defend [State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v. Allstate Ins. Co. (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 508, 529, 88 Cal. Rptr. 246 (affirming award of damages for attorney's fees, costs, physical pain, and emotional distress); see Ch. 177, Damages , and Ch. 362, Mental Suffering and Emotional Distress].

[4] Punitive Damages

If the insurer's conduct in failing to defend gives rise to a cause of action in tort for breach of the implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing, the insured may be entitled to punitive damages [see Tibbs v. Great Am. Ins. Co. (9th Cir. 1985) 755 F.2d 1370, 1375 ; see also § 308.120]. A simple breach by the insurer of its obligation to defend does not, in and of itself, support an award of punitive damages. To recover punitive damages, oppression, fraud, or malice on the part of the insurer must be shown [see Civ. Code § 3294(a); Tibbs v. Great Am. Ins. Co. (9th Cir. 1985) 755 F.2d 1370, 1375] .

"Malice" means conduct intended to injure the insured, or "despicable" conduct carried on by the insurer with a willful and conscious disregard of the rights or safety of others [Civ. Code § 3294(c)(1)]. The word "despicable" indicates that absent an intent to injure, "malice" requires more than a "willful and conscious" disregard of the insured's interests; rather, the conduct must be "base," "vile," or "contemptible" [College Hosp., Inc. v. Superior Court (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 704, 725, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 898, 882 P.2d 894 ; see Tomaselli v. Transamerica Ins. Co. (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 1269, 1286-1288, 31 Cal. Rptr. 2d 433] .

Constitutional due process considerations limit the imposition of punitive damages [see State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v. Campbell (2003) 538 U.S. 408, 416, 123 S. Ct. 1513, 155 L. Ed. 2d 585 (bad faith failure to settle)]. For further discussion, see § 308.24[5].

For discussion and forms regarding contract and tort damages generally, see Ch. 177, Damages .

[5] Representation Provided by Another Insurer

The insured is not entitled to recover damages from an insurer who fails to provide a defense if the insured received representation from another insurer [Barbara B. v. Horace Mann Ins. Co. (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 158, 164, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 350 ; Ceresino v. Fire Ins. Exch. (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 814, 823, 264 Cal. Rptr. 30] . Under these circumstances, the insured is not faced with the financial burden of undertaking its own defense, nor is it deprived of an insurance carrier's expertise in investigating and defending against the third party claim [Barbara B. v. Horace Mann Ins. Co. (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 158, 164, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 350 ; Ceresino v. Fire Ins. Exch. (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 814, 823, 264 Cal. Rptr. 30] .

26-308 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 308.122

§ 308.122 Effect of Settlement Between Insured and Insurer in Multi-Insurer Litigation

California appellate decisions are unresolved as to the effect of a settlement between an insured and one of its liability insurers that purports to release theinsurer from all claims arising from an event covered by multiple insurers. In Rohr Indust., Inc. v. First State Ins. Co. (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 1480, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 872 , which involved a claim of continuous injury covered by multiple insurers over an extended period of time, the Court of Appeal held that a trial court lacked the authority to bar or dismiss claims of non-settling insurers against a co-insurer based on the court's determination of a good faith settlement between the co-insurer and the insured. The Court held that the trial court's finding of a good faith settlement pursuant to Civ. Code §§ 877 and 877.6 did not bar a third insurer's claims for equitable contribution against the settling insurer, because co-insurers are not co-obligors within the meaning of the statute [Rohr Indus., Inc. v. First State Ins. Co. (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 1480, 1487-1490, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 872 ; see also Topa Ins. Co. v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Cos. (1995) 39 Cal. App. 4th 1331, 1339-1340, 46 Cal. Rptr. 2d 516 ; Hartford Accident & Indem. Co. v. Superior Court (1994) 29 Cal. App. 4th 435, 441, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 520] .

A different result was suggested in Diamond Heights Homeowners Ass'n v. National Am. Ins. Co. (1991) 227 Cal. App. 3d 563, 277 Cal. Rptr. 906 . In that case, the Court of Appeal stated that if the trial court confirms the good faith of a settlement between the insured and its primary insurer, the excess insurer stands in the position of a co-obligor and is barred from claiming that the settlement was made in bad faith [Diamond Heights Homeowners Ass'n v. National Am. Ins. Co. (1991) 227 Cal. App. 3d 563, 582, 277 Cal. Rptr. 906] . Although the court was not called on to decide the issue of whether the excess insurer would be permitted to seek contribution or indemnity from the settling primary insurer, the court's conclusion that the excess insurer was in the position of a co-obligor suggests that the court's confirmation of a good faith settlement could bar a co-insurer from seeking contribution.

5. Liability Insurance

26-308 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 308.123

§ 308.123 Insurer's Duty to Settle Claim Against Insured

[1] Substantial Likelihood of Recovery in Excess of Policy Limits

Liability insurance policies usually include a provision authorizing the insurer to investigate, negotiate, and settle any claim or suit against the insured as it deems expedient [see, e.g., Merritt v. Reserve Ins. Co. (1973) 34 Cal. App. 3d 858, 863, 870, 110 Cal. Rptr. 511] . Moreover, there is implied in every contract, including insurance policies, a covenant of good faith and fair dealing that neither party will do anything that will injure the right of the other to receive the benefits of the agreement [Johansen v. California State Auto. Ass'n Inter-Ins. Bureau (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 9, 14, 123 Cal. Rptr. 288, 538 P.2d 744 ; Gribaldo, Jacobs, Jones & Assocs. v. Agrippina Versicherunges A. G. (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 434, 447, 91 Cal. Rptr. 6, 476 P.2d 406 ; see § 308.24[1]]. The implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing imposes a duty on the insurer to settle a claim against its insured within policy limits whenever there is a substantial likelihood of a recovery in excess of those limits [Johansen v. California State Auto. Ass'n Inter-Ins. Bureau (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 9, 14-15, 123 Cal. Rptr. 288, 538 P.2d 744 ; Comunale v. Traders & Gen. Ins. Co. (1958) 50 Cal. 2d 654, 659, 328 P.2d 198] . Conversely, an insurer is not required to accept a settlement demand that is within policy limits when there is no threat of an excess judgment against the insured [Camelot by Bay Condo. Owners' Ass'n v. Scottsdale Ins. Co. (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th 33, 53-54, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 354] .

The requirement in Civ. Code § 2860(f) that independent counsel be allowed to participate in all aspects of litigation does not give the insured control over the insurer's contractual right to settle a claim [Western Polymer Tech., Inc. v. Reliance Ins. Co. (1995) 32 Cal. App. 4th 14, 22, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 78] .

[2] Agreement to Accept Settlement Offer

[a] Reasonable Settlement Within Policy Limits

An insurer that fails to accept a reasonable settlement offer within the policy limits, because it does not believe the policy provides coverage, assumes the risk that it will be liable for all resulting damages, including a judgment that exceeds the policy limits [Blue Ridge Ins. Co. v. Jacobsen (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 489, 498, 106 Cal. Rptr. 2d 535 ;

Johansen v. California State Auto. Ass'n Inter-Ins. Bureau (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 9, 12, 15, 123 Cal. Rptr. 288, 538 P.2d 744] . In determining whether a settlement offer is reasonable, an insurer may not consider the issue of coverage. Instead, the only permissible consideration in evaluating the reasonableness of the settlement offer is whether, in light of the victim's injuries and the probable liability of the insured, the ultimate judgment is likely to exceed the amount of the settlement offer [Blue Ridge Ins. Co. v. Jacobsen (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 489, 498, 106 Cal. Rptr. 2d 535 ; Johansen v. California State Auto. Ass'n Inter-Ins. Bureau (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 9, 16, 123 Cal. Rptr. 288, 538 P.2d 744] .

[b] Insurer's Reservation of Right to Assert Noncoverage

An insurer may agree to defend a lawsuit subject to a reservation of its right to assert noncoverage [Blue Ridge Ins. Co. v. Jacobsen (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 489, 497-498, 106 Cal. Rptr. 2d 535 ; Gray v. Zurich Ins. Co. (1966) 65 Cal. 2d 263, 279, 54 Cal. Rptr. 104, 419 P.2d 168] . The insurer only has a duty to indemnify the insured for covered claims. It has no duty to pay for noncovered claims, because the insured did not pay premiums for such coverage [Blue Ridge Ins. Co. v. Jacobsen (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 489, 502-503, 106 Cal. Rptr. 2d 535 ; Buss v. Superior Court (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 35, 50-51, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 366, 939 P.2d 766 ; see § 308.119].

If the insurer adequately reserves its right subsequently to assert the noncoverage defense, it will not be bound by the judgment. If the injured party prevails,that party or the insured may assert a claim against the insurer. The insurer may then raise the noncoverage defense previously reserved [Blue Ridge Ins. Co. v. Jacobsen (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 489, 497-498, 106 Cal. Rptr. 2d 535 ; Gray v. Zurich Ins. Co. (1966) 65 Cal. 2d 263, 279, 54 Cal. Rptr. 104, 419 P.2d 168] .

An insurer may reserve its right to assert noncoverage unilaterally merely by giving notice to the insured. By accepting the insurer's defense under these circumstances, the insured is deemed to have accepted this reservation of rights [Blue Ridge Ins. Co. v. Jacobsen (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 489, 498, 106 Cal. Rptr. 2d 535] .

[c] Insurer's Right to Seek Reimbursement From Insured

If an insurer has reserved its right subsequently to assert noncoverage, has accepted a reasonable offer, and has subsequently established that its policy does not provide coverage, the insurer may seek reimbursement of the settlement payment from its insured [Blue Ridge Ins. Co. v. Jacobsen (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 489, 499, 106 Cal. Rptr. 2d 535 ; Johansen v. California State Auto. Ass'n Inter-Ins. Bureau (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 9, 19, 123 Cal. Rptr. 288, 538 P.2d 744] .

An insurer may seek reimbursement for reasonable settlement of noncovered claims paid on the insured's behalf in the absence of the insured's express agreement, if the insurer satisfies the following conditions [Blue Ridge Ins. Co. v. Jacobsen (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 489, 501, 106 Cal. Rptr. 2d 535] :

- A timely and express reservation of rights;

- An express notification to the insured of the insurer's intent to accept a proposed settlement offer; and

- An express offer to the insured that the insured may assume the insured's own defense if the insurer and the insured disagree regarding whether to accept the proposed settlement.

An insurer that satisfies these prerequisites is deemed to have an implied-in-law right of reimbursement to avoid the insured's unjust enrichment [Blue Ridge Ins. Co. v. Jacobsen (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 489, 502, 106 Cal. Rptr. 2d 535] .

[3] Settlements Made Without Insurer's Participation

If the insurer denies coverage and a defense, the policyholder may make a reasonable, noncollusive settlement without the insurer's consent and seek reimbursement for the settlement amount in an action for breach of the covenant of good faith and fair dealing. If the insurer has repudiated its obligation to defend, the policyholder may, in the absence of fraud, settle with the plaintiff, on the best terms possible, taking a covenant not to execute, without forfeiture of the right to indemnity [see Hamilton v. Maryland Cas. Co. (2002) 27 Cal. 4th 718, 728, 117 Cal. Rptr. 2d 318, 41 P.3d 128 ; see also Roman v. Unigard Ins. Group (1994) 26 Cal. App. 4th 177, 180-184, 31 Cal. Rptr. 2d 501] . Therefore, a policyholder that is denied a defense for covered claims by its liability insurer may make a reasonable settlement with the plaintiff, in good faith, and then maintain (or assign) an action against the insurer for breach of its defense duties. In such an action, a reasonable settlement made by the insured to terminate the underlying claim against the insured may be used as presumptive evidence of the insured's liability on the underlying claim and of the amount of liability [Hamilton v. Maryland Cas. Co. (2002) 27 Cal. 4th 718, 728-729, 117 Cal. Rptr. 2d 318, 41 P.3d 128 ; see also Isaacson v. California Ins. Guarantee Ass'n (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 775, 791, 244 Cal. Rptr. 655, 750 P.2d 297] .

However, if the insurer has accepted defense of the claim, and might have prevailed at trial had the insured and the claimant not settled without the insurer's participation, no presumption of the insured's liability arises from the fact or amount of the settlement between the insured and the claimant [Hamilton v. Maryland Cas. Co. (2002) 27 Cal. 4th 718, 729, 117 Cal. Rptr. 2d 318, 41 P.3d 128 ; see also Isaacson v. California Ins. Guarantee Ass'n (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 775, 793-794, 244 Cal. Rptr. 655, 750 P.2d 297] . Moreover, court approval of the settlement pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 877.6 ("good faith settlement" protections in multiparty cases) cannot transform an agreed judgment that, by covenant, the insured will never be required to pay, into a determination of the existence and extent of the insured's liability. In one case, for example, after the insurer undertook defense of the underlying case and rejected the claimant's settlement offer, the insured, without the insurer's agreement, stipulated to a judgment against it in excess of both the policy limits and the previously rejected settlement offer, coupled with a covenant not to execute. The parties obtained court approval of the settlement pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 877.6. The California Supreme Court held that the stipulated judgment carried no weight in the subsequent assigned bad faith action brought by the claimant against the insurer [Hamilton v. Maryland Cas. Co. (2002) 27 Cal. 4th 718, 731, 117 Cal. Rptr. 2d 318, 41 P.3d 128 (insurer entitled to summary judgment)].

A good faith finding under Code Civ. Proc. § 877.6 bars actions for contribution or indemnity by joint tortfeasors or co-obligors not participating in the settlement [Code Civ. Proc. § 877.6(c); Hamilton v. Maryland Cas. Co. (2002) 27 Cal. 4th 718, 729, 117 Cal. Rptr. 2d 318, 41 P.3d 128] . The purpose of a Section 877.6 hearing is to ensure fairness to absent tortfeasors, not fairness to the settling defendant's insurer. By contrast, the concerns of the settling defendant's insurer are whether its insured is admitting liability too easily or is agreeing to pay more than the defendant's proportionate share of the plaintiff's loss. For purposes of a dispute between the settling tortfeasor and that tortfeasor's insurer, the evidentiary showing made at the Section 877.6 proceedings cannot be a substitute for anactual trial [Hamilton v. Maryland Cas. Co. (2002) 27 Cal. 4th 718, 729, 117 Cal. Rptr. 2d 318, 41 P.3d 128] . Consequently, a defending insurer cannot be bound to a settlement made without its participation and without any actual commitment on its insured's part to pay the judgment, even if the settlement has been found to be in good faith for purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 877.6 [Hamilton v. Maryland Cas. Co. (2002) 27 Cal. 4th 718, 730, 117 Cal. Rptr. 2d 318, 41 P.3d 128] . For further discussion of Code Civ. Proc. § 877.6, see Ch. 300, Indemnity and Contribution .

An insured who is provided a defense by the insurer, and believes that this insurer has rejected a reasonable settlement demand within policy limits, may minimize further injury by doing either of the following:

- If the insurer is willing to contribute some part of the demanded settlement figure, the insured may conclude a favorable settlement by contributing the deficit and, assuming the insurer's breach can be proven, recover the payment in a subsequent action against the insurer for breach of the covenant of good faith and fair dealing [see Hamilton v. Maryland Cas. Co. (2002) 27 Cal. 4th 718, 732, 117 Cal. Rptr. 2d 318, 41 P.3d 128 ; see also Isaacson v. California Ins. Guarantee Ass'n (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 775, 793, 244 Cal. Rptr. 655, 750 P.2d 297] .

- If the claimant is willing, the parties may exchange an assignment and a covenant not to execute before trial, eliminating the insured's personal exposure to an excess judgment. This assignment, however, is not immediately assertable and does not settle the third party's claim. So long as the insurer is providing a defense, the insurer is allowed to proceed through trial to judgment. The assignment of the bad faith cause of action becomes operative after the excess judgment has been rendered [see Hamilton v. Maryland Cas. Co. (2002) 27 Cal. 4th 718, 732, 117 Cal. Rptr. 2d 318, 41 P.3d 128 ; see also Archdale v. American Int'l Specialty Lines Ins. Co. (2007) 154 Cal. App. 4th 449, 474, 468, 64 Cal. Rptr. 3d 632 ; Safeco Ins.Co. v. Superior Court (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 782, 788-789, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 43] .

[4] Wrongful Failure to Settle

[a] Judgment in Excess of Policy Limits

If an insurer wrongfully declines a reasonable offer to settle a claim for an amount within policy limits and a judgment is entered against the insured exceeding policy limits, the insurer is liable for the full amount of the judgment, notwithstanding the policy limits [Murphy v. Allstate Ins. Co. (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 937, 941, 132 Cal. Rptr. 424, 553 P.2d 584 ; Johansen v. California State Auto. Ass'n Inter-Ins. Bureau (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 9, 19, 123 Cal. Rptr. 288, 538 P.2d 744] .

Because the covenant of good faith and fair dealing is contractual, privity of contract ordinarily is required to bring an action against an insurer for wrongful failure to settle [see Gruenberg v. Aetna Ins. Co. (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 566, 576, 108 Cal. Rptr. 480, 510 P.2d 1032 ; Austero v. National Cas. Co. (1976) 62 Cal. App. 3d 511, 516-517, 133 Cal. Rptr. 107] . Absent an assignment, a third-party plaintiff cannot sue the defendant's insurer directly for breach of the covenant [Coleman v. Gulf Ins. Group (1986) 41 Cal. 3d 782, 795, 226 Cal. Rptr. 90, 718 P.2d 77 ; Murphy v. Allstate Ins. Co. (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 937, 943-944, 132 Cal. Rptr. 424, 553 P.2d 584 ; see § 308.24[1]].

An appellate court has held that if an insurer is providing a defense, but merely refuses to settle, the insured has no immediate remedy. The court reiterated the general rule that a cause of action for bad faith refusal to settle arises only after a judgment has been rendered in excess of the policy limits [Safeco Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 782, 788, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 43] .

For a form of complaint brought by an insured against the insurer to recovery a third-party judgment in excess of policy limits, based on the insurer's wrongful failure to settle, see § 308.461.

[b] Compensatory and Punitive Damages

An insured may recover damages for emotional distress that results from the insurer's tortious conduct in refusing to settle third-party actions [see, e.g., Crisci v. Security Ins. Co. (1967) 66 Cal. 2d 425, 433-434, 58 Cal. Rptr. 13, 426 P.2d 173] .

An insurer's unreasonable failure to settle a third-party action, in violation of the implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing, constitutes a tort as well as a breach of contract, and consequently may support an award of punitive damages when accompanied by malice, fraud, or oppression [Betts v. Allstate Ins. Co. (1984) 154 Cal. App. 3d 688, 708, 201 Cal. Rptr. 528 ; Miller v. Elite Ins. Co. (1980) 100 Cal. App. 3d 739, 758, 161 Cal. Rptr. 322 ; see Civ. Code § 3294(a) (punitive damages); see also Ch. 177, Damages, § 177.40 et seq.].

Constitutional due process considerations limit the imposition of punitive damages [see State Farm Mutual Auto. Ins. Co. v. Campbell (2003) 538 U.S. 408, 428, 123 S. Ct. 1513, 155 L. Ed. 2d 585 (bad faith failure to settle)]. For further discussion, see § 308.24[5] and Ch. 177, Damages .

[c] No Liability for Punitive Damages Awarded Against Insured Based on Insured's Conduct

An insured that sues an insurer for wrongful failure to settle may not recover from the insurer the amount of punitive damages ultimately awarded against the insured in the third-party lawsuit, if the punitive damages award was based on the conduct of the insured [PPG Indus., Inc. v. Transamerica Ins. (1999) 20 Cal. 4th 310, 315-319, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 455, 975 P.2d 652] . The rationale for this ruling is threefold [PPG Indus., Inc. v. Transamerica Ins. (1999) 20 Cal. 4th 310, 316-319, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 455, 975 P.2d 652] :

- Liability for intentional wrongdoing may not be offset or reduced by the negligence of another;
- The purpose of punitive damages (punishing the defendant and deterring future misconduct by making an example of the defendant) would not be served by shifting responsibility for the defendant's morally culpable behavior to the insurer; and
- Public policy prevents indemnification for punitive damages.

[5] Other Unreasonable Settlement Conduct

[a] Liability for Settling Claim in Derogation of Insured's Collateral Rights

An insurer may incur liability by settling a third-party claim if, by doing so, it derogates the rights of the insured to pursue collateral claims against the third party. The insurer has a fiduciary duty not to contravene the insured's rights, and subjects itself to liability for breach of the duty of good faith and fair dealing in such a case if it knows of the insured's intent to pursue those rights, even though the insurer does not breach any express duty and the insured has retained independent counsel [Barney v. Aetna Cas. & Sur. Co. (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 966, 975-981, 230 Cal. Rptr. 215 ; Rothtrock v. Ohio Farmers Ins. Co. (1965) 233 Cal. App. 2d 616, 43 Cal. Rptr. 716] . Moreover, an insurer has a duty to use good faith in investigating, defending, setting claims reserves, and settling claims, when those activities directly influence the insured's premiums and dividends under the policy [Security Officers Serv., Inc. v. State Comp. Ins. Fund (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 887, 890, 898, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 653 (insurer's claims adjustment and settlement practices allegedly resulted in increased premium revenue from insured)].

[b] Liability for Delay in Settling Claim

An insured may bring a bad faith action against an insurer for unreasonable settlement conduct if the insurer's unreasonable delay in settling a claim harms the insured. For example, in one case, a burglar took customer property from the insured's jewelry store. Because the insurer's delay in settling the claim alienated the insured's customers and thereby harmed the insured's goodwill, the insured was entitled to bring a bad faith action against the insurer [Bodenhamer v. Superior Court (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 1472, 1479, 238 Cal. Rptr. 177] .

[c] Liability for Forcing Insured to Contribute to Settlement

Because California law bars indemnification against punitive damage awards [Ins. Code § 533], an insurer's duty of good faith does not require it to pay money to settle punitive damage claims. However, the insurer must reasonably assist and cooperate with the insured in defending and settling punitive damages claims. Therefore, in cases in which punitive damages are sought against the insured, the insurer's duty of good faith requires the insurer to give fair consideration to the insured's concerns about its exposure to punitive damages in its attempts to settle the case. A bad faith action may lie against an insurer who uses the insured's fear of uninsured punitive damage exposure to coerce the insured to contribute to a settlement [J.B. Aguerre, Inc. v. American Guarantee & Liab. Ins. Co. (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 6, 13-15, 68 Cal. Rptr. 2d 837] .

[d] No Liability for Injuring Insured's Business Reputation in Settling Claim

When the policy language permits an insurer to settle a claim as it deems expedient, the implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing apparently does not impose any obligation on the insurer to consider potential injury to the insured's business reputation in settling a claim. Thus, an insurer is under no obligation to forgo settlement in favor of vindicating the insured's reputation, and an allegation that a settlement injured the insured's business reputation is not sufficient to support a bad faith action [Western Polymer Tech., Inc. v. Reliance Ins. Co. (1995) 32 Cal. App. 4th 14, 26-27, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 78] .

[6] No Affirmative Defense of Comparative Bad Faith

In an action against an insurer for breach of the covenant of good faith and fair dealing, the insurer may not raise as an affirmative defense the insured's "comparative bad faith." Because of the disparate scopes and natures of the insurer's and the insured's obligations of good faith, an insurer's breach sounds in tort, while the insured's arises strictly from contractual provisions [Kransco v. American Empire Surplus Lines Ins. Co. (2000) 23 Cal. 4th 390, 404-405, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 151, 2 P.3d 1] . In so ruling, the California Supreme Court expressly disapproved, to the extent that it is inconsistent, California Cas. Gen. Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 274, 218 Cal. Rptr. 817 , the only published California case holding that in a bad faith action, the insurer may assert the affirmative defense of comparative bad faith [Kransco v. American Empire Surplus Lines Ins. Co. (2000) 23 Cal. 4th 390, 407, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 151, 2 P.3d 1] .

The scope of the insured's duty of good faith and fair dealing, and the remedies available to the insurer for a breach of that duty, are fundamentally and conceptually distinct from the insurer's reciprocal duty, and the remedies available to the insured for breach of that duty, under the insurance policy. The parties are bound by a reciprocal obligation of good faith and fair dealing, but the particular duties differ, given the differing performance due under the contract of insurance. A fundamental disparity exists between the insured, which performs its basic duty of paying the policy premium at the outset, and the insurer, which, depending on a number of factors, may or may not have to perform its basic dutiesof defense and indemnification. An insured is thus not on equal footing with its insurer. The relationship between insured and insurer is inherently unequal, the inequality resting on contractual asymmetry. An insurer's tort liability for breach of the covenant is thus predicated on special policy factors inapplicable to the insured. The scope of the insured's duty of good faith and fair dealing in turn is confined by the express contractual provisions of the policy. In addition, an insurer's rights under an insurance contract are adequately protected by other means, such as the following [Kransco v. American Empire Surplus Lines Ins. Co. (2000) 23 Cal. 4th 390, 408, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 151, 2 P.3d 1] :

- Evidence of an insured's misconduct may factually disprove the insurer's liability for bad faith by showing that the insurer acted reasonably under the circumstances.

- The insured's breach of the covenant of good faith and fair dealing is separately actionable as a contract claim.

- Some forms of misconduct by an insured will void coverage altogether under the insurance policy, and without coverage there can be no liability for bad faith on the part of the insurer.

- An insured's fraudulent misconduct is separately actionable and can give rise to tort damages.

§ 308.125 Judgment Creditor Action Against Insurer

Liability insurance policies are required to provide, whenever judgment is secured against the insured or the executor or administrator of a deceased insured in an action based on bodily injury, death, or property damage, then the judgment creditor may bring an action against the insurer on the policy and subject to its terms and limitations, to recover on the judgment [Ins. Code § 11580(b)(2)]. Under Ins. Code § 11580(b)(2), no assignment by the insured is required [Campbell v. Allstate Ins. Co. (1963) 60 Cal. 2d 303, 305, 32 Cal. Rptr. 827, 384 P.2d 155] .

This statutory authority includes the right to bring a direct action for breach of the covenant of good faith and fair dealing against an insurer that refuses, unreasonably and in bad faith, to pay the entire amount of a judgment after it becomes final [Hand v. Farmers Ins. Exch. (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 1847, 1857, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 258] . However, once the judgment has been paid in full, the insurer's delay in paying policy benefits, even if unreasonable, does not in itself establish the economic loss necessary to maintain a third party judgment creditor's bad faith action [Maxwell v. Fire Ins. Exch. (1998) 60 Cal. App. 4th 1446, 1449-1450, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 866] .

A judgment creditor may not maintain a direct action for breach of the covenant of good faith and fair dealing against an insurer that unreasonably refused to settle, since the insurer's duty to settle runs only to the insured, and not to the judgment creditor [Murphy v. Allstate Ins. Co. (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 937, 943-944, 132 Cal. Rptr. 424, 553 P.2d 584 ; see Hand v. Farmers Ins. Exch. (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 1847, 1858, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 258] .

For a form of complaint brought by a judgment creditor against an insurer under Ins. Code § 11580(b)(2), see § 308.460. For a form of complaint brought by a judgment creditor against the insurer to recover the amount of a judgment in excess of policy limits based on the insurer's wrongful failure to settle on an assigned cause of action, which includes an allegation of bad faith, see § 308.463.

§ 308.126 Third-Party Statutory Bad Faith Action Against Insurer

In 1959, the California legislature enacted the Unfair Practices Act (Ins. Code §§ 790-790.10) to regulate trade practices in the business of insurance by proscribing practices that constitute unfair methods of competition, or unfair or deceptive acts or practices [Ins. Code § 790]. The act provides for enforcement by the Insurance Commissioner [Ins. Code § 790.06]. In 1979, the California Supreme Court held that the Act also permits a private cause of action for violations of the Act, which could be brought by a third-party claimant against the insured's carrier without first obtaining an assignment from the insured [Royal Globe Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1979) 23 Cal. 3d 880, 885-888, 153 Cal. Rptr. 842, 592 P.2d 329 , overturned prospectively by Moradi-Shalal v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Cos. (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 287, 297-305, 250 Cal. Rptr. 116, 758 P.2d 58] .

The court in Royal Globe held that the provisions of Ins. Code § 790.03(h) (regarding unfair claims-settlement practices, such as failure to attempt in good faith to settle claims promptly) may be violated either by a single knowing commission of the prohibited act or by showing that the act was committed with such frequency as to indicate a general business practice [Royal Globe Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1979) 23 Cal. 3d 880, 890-891, 153 Cal. Rptr. 842, 592 P.2d 329 , overturned prospectively by Moradi-Shalal v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Cos. (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 287, 297-305, 250 Cal. Rptr. 116, 758 P.2d 58] . Subsequently, actions were filed under Ins. Code § 790.03 by both first-party insureds andthird-party claimants [see, e.g., Travelers Ins. Co. v. Lesher (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 169, 189, 231 Cal. Rptr. 791 , disapproved on other grounds, Buss v. Superior Court (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 35, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 366, 939 P.2d 766] .

However, in 1988, the California Supreme Court reconsidered Royal Globe and overturned it, effective prospectively only [Moradi-Shalal v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Cos. (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 287, 297-305, 250 Cal. Rptr. 116, 758 P.2d 58] . In Moradi-Shalal, the Court held that the analysis of Royal Globe allowing a private action under the Act was incorrect, and that only the Insurance Commissioner has standing to enforce that statute [Moradi-Shalal v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Cos. (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 287, 297-305, 250 Cal. Rptr. 116, 758 P.2d 58] .

As the holding in Moradi-Shalal is prospective, it does not apply to cases that were filed prior to the date on which that decision became final, October 17, 1988. For those surviving cases, a third-party claimant must establish that the insurer had facts to demonstrate that the liability of its insured had become "reasonably clear" [Moradi-Shalal v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Cos. (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 287, 307, 250 Cal. Rptr. 116, 758 P.2d 58 (disapproving Williams v. Transport Indem. Co. (1984) 157 Cal. App. 3d 953, 965, 203 Cal. Rptr. 868 , holding that duty arises only on determination of liability of insured); see Ins. Code § 790.03(h)(5)]. The plaintiff must also establish that, knowing these facts, the insurer did not act in good faith to effectuate a prompt, fair, and equitable settlement [see Mercury Cas. Co. v. Superior Court (1986) 179 Cal. App. 3d 1027, 1035, 225 Cal. Rptr. 100] . Moreover, the underlying action between the injured party and the insured must have been concluded [Moradi-Shalal v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Cos. (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 287, 305, 250 Cal. Rptr. 116, 758 P.2d 58] . The Court in Moradi-Shalal, after discussing conflicting appellate court decisions, held that for purposes of a surviving Royal Globe action, the conclusion must be a final binding judicial determination of liability in the underlying action. Consequently, a settlement between the insured and the claimant, dismissal of the underlying action with prejudice, or even an admission of liability by the insurer, in the absence of a final judgment regarding liability, is insufficient to satisfy the condition precedent of finality of the underlying action [Moradi-Shalal v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Cos. (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 287, 308-313, 250 Cal. Rptr. 116, 758 P.2d 58] .

A stipulated judgment under Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6 (judgment entered pursuant to terms of stipulated settlement by parties to pending litigation), entered into between the third-party claimant and the insured, signed by the insurer, that stipulates to the liability of the insured, is sufficiently conclusive to be the basis of the cause of action [California State Auto. Ass'n Inter-Ins. Bureau v. Superior Court (1990) 50 Cal. 3d 658, 665, 268 Cal. Rptr. 284, 788 P.2d 1156] . For discussion of the effect of Moradi-Shalal on first-party statutory bad faith actions, see § 308.25[1].

§ 308.127 Insurer Under No Common Law Duty to Renew Policy

There is no general duty to renew a professional liability insurance policy. Thus, in the absence of statutory provisions to the contrary, an insurer may refuse to renew a term policy for any reason, or for no reason at all [*Schimmel v. NORCAL Mut. Ins. Co. (1995) 39 Cal. App. 4th 1282, 1283, 46 Cal. § 308.128 Coverage of Insured's Corporate Successor

Federal and state case law are in conflict regarding whether, under California law, product line tort liability includes any right to insurance coverage for the tort [see Henkel Corp. v. Hartford Accident & Indem. Co. (2003) 29 Cal. 4th 934, 943, 129 Cal. Rptr. 2d 828, 62 P.3d 69] . The Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals has held that the right to indemnity follows the liability, rather than the policy itself. As a result, in that case, even though the parties did not assign the predecessor's insurance policy in the agreement, the right to indemnity under the policy transferred to the successor corporation by operation of law [Northern Ins. Co. of N.Y. v. Allied Mut. Ins. Co. (9th Cir. 1992) 955 F.2d 1353] . However, California appellate courts have held that under California law, product line tort liability does not include any right to the insurance coverage for the tort [see General Accident Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1997) 55 Cal. App. 4th 1444, 1454, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d 781 ; Quemetco Inc. v. Pacific Auto. Ins. Co. (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 494, 499-501, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 627] .

The California Supreme Court has held that if liability is assumed by contract, the successor corporation's rights are defined and limited by that contract, and hence cannot be deemed transferred by operation of law [Henkel Corp. v. Hartford Accident & Indem. Co. (2003) 29 Cal. 4th 934, 943, 129 Cal. Rptr. 2d 828, 62 P.3d 69] . For more complete discussion, see California Insurance Law and Practice, Ch. 47 (Matthew Bender).

§ 308.141 "Marine Insurance" Defined

"Marine insurance" is a class of insurance [Ins. Code § 100(3)] and includes insurance against any and all kinds of loss of or damage to vessels, craft, aircraft, cars, automobiles, and vehicles of every kind (excluding aircraft and automobiles operating under their own power or while in storage not incidental to transportation), as well as to all goods, freights, cargoes, merchandise, effects, disbursements, profits, money, bullion, securities, choses in action, evidences of debt, valuable papers, bottomry and respondentia interests, and all other kinds of property and interests in it in respect to, appertaining to, or in connection with any and all risks or perils of navigation, transit, or transportation, including war risks, on or under any seas or other waters, on land, or in the air, or while being assembled, packed, crated, baled, compressed, or similarly prepared for shipment or while awaiting shipment, or during any delays, storage, transshipment, or reshipment incidental thereto including marine builder's risks, and all personal property floater risks [Ins. Code § 103(a)].

It also includes insurance against any and all kinds of loss or damage to person or property in connection with or appertaining to a marine, inland marine, transit, or transportation insurance including liability for loss or damage arising out of or in connection with the construction, repair, maintenance, or use of the subject matter of such insurance (but not including life insurance or surety bonds) [Ins. Code § 103(b)] and to precious stones, jewels, jewelry, gold, silver, and other precious metals, whether used in business or trade or otherwise and whether the same be in course of transportation or otherwise [Ins. Code § 103(c)]. Inland marine insurance is deemed to include hull insurance on water pleasure craft not used for commercial purposes of a size and type determined by the Insurance Commissioner [Ins. Code § 103(b)]

Except as specified in Ins. Code § 103, marine insurance does not mean insurances against loss by reason of bodily injury to the person [Ins. Code § 103(b)].

§ 308.142 Insurable Interests

On insurable interests in property generally, see Ins. Code §§ 281-286 and § 308.41.

With respect to marine insurance, the owner of a ship has in all cases an insurable interest in the ship, even when it has been chartered by one who agrees to pay him or her its value in case of loss [Ins. Code § 1880], but the insurable interest of the owner of a ship hypothecated by bottomry is only the excess of its value over the amount secured by bottomry [Ins. Code § 1881]. ("Bottomry" is a contract by which a vessel or its freightage is hypothecated as security for a loan, which is to be repaid only if the vessel survives a particular risk, voyage, or period [Harb. & Nav. Code § 450].)

A shipowner also has an insurable interest in expected freightage which he or she would have certainly earned but for the intervention of a peril insured against [Ins. Code § 1883; see also Civ. Code § 2110 ("Property carried is called freight; the reward, if any, to be paid for its carriage is called freightage"); Ins. Code § 1882 ("Freightage, in marine insurance, signifies all the benefit derived by the owner, either from the chartering of the ship or its employment for the carriage of his own goods or those of others")]. This interest exists, in the case of a charter party, when the ship has broken ground on the chartered voyage [Ins. Code § 1884; see also Civ. Code § 1959 ("The contract by which a ship is let is termed a charter-party")]. If a price is to be paid for the carriage of goods, the interest exists when they are actually on board or there is some contract for putting them on board and both ship and goods are ready for the specified voyage [Ins. Code § 1884].

In marine insurance, a person who has an interest in the thing from which profits are expected to proceed has an insurable interest in the profits [Ins. Code § 1885].

The charterer of a ship has an insurable interest in it to the extent that he or she is liable to be damaged by its loss [Ins. Code § 1886].

Policies are either open or valued [Ins. Code § 410]. An open policy is one in which the value of the aubject matter is not agreed on but is left to be ascertained in the case of loss [Ins. Code § 411]. A valued policy is one which expresses on its face an agreement that the thing insured shall be valued at a specified sum [Ins. Code § 412]. A running policy is one which contemplates successive insurances and which provides that the object of the policy may be from time to time defined, especially as to the subjects of insurance, by additional statements or endorsements [*Ins. § 308.144 Duration of Risk

Marine policies are time policies, voyage policies, or mixed policies [see Ins. Code § 460, excluding marine insurance from that section's inception hour requirement of policies]. A time policy is one that limits the duration of the risk by fixing commencement and termination dates. Such policies cover all voyagesundertaken during the policy term [see Gulf of Cal. Navigation & Express Co. v. State Inv. & Ins. Co. (1886) 70 Cal. 586, 587, 12 P. 473] . A voyage policy is one that covers only a specified voyage which is described by setting forth the places of its beginning and ending; in such case, the voyage insured is one which conforms to the course of sailing fixed by mercantle usage between those places [Ins. Code § 1940] or, if the course is not fixed by mercantile usage, the voyage insured is that way between the places specified which, to a master of ordinary skill and discretion, would seem the most natural, direct, and advantageous [Ins. Code § 1941; on the effect on insurance of deviations from the course of voyage, see Ins. Code §§ 1942-1945].

A mixed policy is either a time or voyage policy in which, in the case of a time policy, for example, the duration of the policy is stated but the policy applies only to specified voyages during that time or, in the case of a voyage policy, covers a specified voyage but limits the risk as to time.

Many insurance contracts contain clauses providing for arbitration or appraisal proceedings to be followed where the insurer and insured disagree on the right of the insured to recover damages or the amount thereof or on matters of valuation and the amount of loss. Not only do such clauses provide a means for settling disputes without resort to suit, but they may also block an insured's right to sue until and unless the arbitration or appraisal provisions have been complied with.

26-308 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 308.151

§ 308.151 Policy Provisions

[1] Arbitration

Typical of arbitration clauses are those in automobile liability policies relating to uninsured motorist coverage. Such policies must "provide that the determination as to whether the insured shall be legally entitled to recover damages, and if so entitled, the amount thereof, shall be made by agreement between the insured and the insurer or, in the event of disagreement, by arbitration" [Ins. Code § 11580.2(f); see Freeman v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 473, 480-481, 121 Cal. Rptr. 477, 535 P.2d 341 ; In re Bongfeldt (1971) 22 Cal. App. 3d 465, 467-468 n.1, 99 Cal. Rptr. 428 ; see generally Ch. 88A, Automobiles: Uninsured Motorist Claims].

The arbitration must be conducted by a single neutral arbitrator [Ins. Code § 11580.2(f)]. Many policies require arbitration before the American Arbitration Association, but some do not. Enforcement of arbitration agreements and arbitration proceedings are governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 1280 et seq. For further discussion of arbitration, a general procedural checklist, and forms for use in such proceedings, see Ch. 33, Contractual Arbitration: Appointment of Arbitrator and Conduct of Proceeding .

[2] Appraisal

Typical of appraisal clauses are those found in the California Standard Form Fire Insurance Policy, Ins. Code § 2071, applicable to fire insurance policies that originated or were renewed prior to January 1, 2002. This version of the statute is as follows:

> "Appraisal. In case the insured and this company shall fail to agree as to the actual cash value or the amount of loss, then, on the written demand of either, each shall select a competent and disinterested appraiser and notify the other of the appraiser selected within 20 days of such demand. The appraisers shall first select a competent and disinterested umpire; and failing for 15 days to agree upon such umpire, then, on request of the insured or this company, such umpire shall be selected by a judge of a court of record in the state in which the property covered is located. The appraisers shall then appraise the loss, > stating separately actual cash value and loss to each item; and, failing to agree, shall submit their differences, only, to the umpire. An award in writing, so itemized, of any two when filed with this company shall determine the amount of actual cash value and loss. Each appraiser shall be paid by the party selecting him and the expenses of appraisal and umpire shall be paid by the parties equally."

In 2001, this provision in the standard form of fire insurance policy was amended, applicable to policies originated or renewed after December 31, 2001, as follows, with the changes shown by added italics [Ins. Code § 2071; see 2001 ch. 583, § 4]:

> "Appraisal. In case the insured and this company shall fail to agree as to the actual cash value or the amount of loss, then, on the written request of either, each shall select a competent and disinterested appraiser and notify the other of the appraiser selected within 20 days of the request. Where the request is accepted, the appraisers shall first select a competent and disinterested umpire; and failing for 15 days to agree upon the umpire, then, on request of the insured or this company, the umpire shall be selected by a judge of a court of record in the state in which the property covered is located. Appraisal proceedings are informal unless the insured and this company mutually agree otherwise. For purposes of this section, "informal" means that no formal discovery shall be conducted, including depositions, interrogatories, requests for admission, or other forms of formal civil discovery, no formal rules of evidence shall be applied, and no court reporter shall be used for the proceedings. The appraisers shall then appraise the loss, stating separately actual cash value and loss to each item; and, failing to agree, shall submit their differences, only, to the umpire. An award in writing, soitemized, of any two when filed with this company shall determine the amount of actual cash value and loss. Each appraiser shall be paid by the party selecting him or her and the expenses of appraisal and umpire shall be paid by the parties equally. In the event of a government-declared disaster, as defined in the Government Code, appraisal may be requested by either the insured or this company but shall not be compelled."

In addition, Ins. Code § 10082.3 was enacted in 2001, applicable to the following policies originated or renewed after December 31, 2001: all policies of residential property insurance (defined in Ins. Code § 10087); all policies, endorsements, or certificates of insurance providing coverage for loss or damage caused by the peril of earthquake issued pursuant to Ins. Code § 10020 et seq. (underwriters fire patrols); and all policies of basic residential earthquake insurance issued pursuant to Ins. Code § 10089.5 et seq. (California Earthquake Authority) [Ins. Code § 10082.3]. This statute sets forth, among other things, a provision for appraisals identical to the one provided above under the version of Ins. Code § 2071(a) that was amended in 2001 [see Ins. Code § 10082.3].

The appraisal provisions of the policy will usually detail the procedural steps to be followed to effect an appraisal of loss under the policy. Generally, appraisal award proceedings are subject to the arbitration provisions outlined in the California Arbitration Act [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1280 et seq.; Devonwood Condominium Owners Assn. v. Farmers Ins. Exchange (2008) 162 Cal. App. 4th 1498, 1505, 77 Cal. Rptr. 3d 88 ; see also Ch. 34, Contractual Arbitration: Judicial Review]. The arbitration provisions of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1280-1294.2 may be invoked in any case in which the provisions of the policy are incomplete or inadequate [see, e.g., Johnston v. Security Ins. Co. (1970) 6 Cal. App. 3d 839, 840 n.1, 86 Cal. Rptr. 133 ("It appears from the record that the respective appraisers submitted their respective figures as to the loss payable and that the hearing proper was conducted by the neutral umpire alone taking active part. The parties, however, have treated the proceeding as an arbitration ... and we do likewise"); Canadian Indem. Co. v. Ohm (1969) 271 Cal. App. 2d 703, 706, 76 Cal. Rptr. 902 ("That the appraisal procedure provided in [the] insurance policy constituted an arbitration agreement, governed by [Code Civ. Proc. § 1280 et seq.] is not questioned by either party")].

In fact, an agreement to arbitrate includes any agreement providing for valuations, appraisals, and similar proceedings [Code Civ. Proc. § 1280]. A confirmed award in an appraisal proceeding has thus been treated as a confirmed award in arbitration in one decision of the court of appeal. If a party is dissatisfied with the award, his or her remedy is a proceeding to vacate or correct it [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1286.2, 1286.4, 1286.6]. If a party fails to serve and file either a petition to vacate the award or a response to a petition to confirm it within the 100-day period from the date of service of the award as prescribed in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1288, 1288.2, the award must be treated as final [Klubnikin v. California Fair Plan Ass'n (1978) 84 Cal. App. 3d 393, 395, 397-398, 148 Cal. Rptr. 563 ; see generally Ch. 32, Contractual Arbitration: Judicial Review].

A party may petition the court to confirm, vacate, or correct an appraisal; and a responding party may seek dismissal of the petition, or ask the court to confirm, vacate, or correct the award [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1285, 1285.2]. The court must confirm the award as made unless it corrects the award and confirms it as corrected, vacates the award, or dismisses the proceedings [Code Civ. Proc. § 1286]. If an award is confirmed, judgment must be entered accordingly. The judgment so entered has the same force and effect as, and is subject to all the provisions of law relating to, a judgment in a civil action of the same jurisdictional classification; and it may be enforced like any other judgment of the court in which it is entered, in an action of the same jurisdictional classification [Code Civ. Proc. § 1287.4; Devonwood Condominium Owners Assn. v. Farmers Ins. Exchange (2008) 162 Cal. App. 4th 1498, 1505-1506, 77 Cal. Rptr. 3d 88]. A judgment that is not in conformity with the appraisal award made pursuant to Ins. Code § 2071, on which it is based, violates Code Civ. Proc. § 1287.4 [Devonwood Condominium Owners Assn. v. Farmers Ins. Exchange (2008) 162 Cal. App. 4th 1498, 1506-1507, 77 Cal. Rptr. 3d 88].

An "insurance agent" is a person authorized, by and on behalf of an insurer, to transact all classes of insurance other than life insurance [Ins. Code §§ 31, 1621]. A life licensee is a person authorized to act as a life agent on behalf of a life insurer or a disability insurer to transact any of the following: (1) life insurance; (2) accident and health insurance; or (3) life and accident and health insurance [Ins. Code §§ 32(a), 1622]. A life agent may be authorized to transact 24-hour care coverage [Ins. Code § 32(c); see Ins. Code §§ 1749(d), 1749.02, 1749.33(b)]. A "fire and casualty broker-agent" is a person licensed under Ins. Code § 1625 [Ins. Code § 33.5]. An "insurance broker" is a person who, for compensation and on behalf of another person, transacts insurance other than life with, but not on behalf of, an insurer [Ins. Code §§ 33, 1623]. An "insurance solicitor" is a natural person employed to aid a fire and casualty broker-agent acting as an insurance agent or insurance broker in transacting insurance other than life [Ins. Code §§ 34, 1624].

§ 308.171 Insurer Has Special Duties to Insured Based on Nature of Insurance Contract

An insurer is not a fiduciary. The insurer-insured relationship is not a true fiduciary relationship in the same sense as the relationship between trustee and beneficiary, or attorney and client. It is, instead, a relationship often characterized by unequal bargaining power in which the insured must depend on the good faith and performance of the insurer. This characteristic has led the courts to impose "special and heightened" duties on insurers. Although these "special" duties are akin to, and often resemble, duties also owed by fiduciaries, these fiduciary-like duties arise because of the unique nature of the insurance contract, not because the insurer is a fiduciary [see Vu v. Prudential Prop. & Cas. Ins. Co. (2001) 26 Cal. 4th 1142, 1150-1151, 113 Cal. Rptr. 2d 70, 33 P.3d 487 ; Hydro-Mill Co., Inc. v. *Hayward, Tilton & Rolapp Ins. Assocs., Inc. (2004) 115 Cal. 26-308 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 308.172

§ 308.172 Nature of Duty Between Agent or Broker and Insured

[1] Relationship Not Defined as Fiduciary

It is unclear whether a fiduciary relationship exists between an insurance broker and an insured [see Hydro-Mill Co., Inc. v. Hayward, Tilton & Rolapp Ins. Assocs., Inc. (2004) 115 Cal. App. 4th 1145, 1156, 10 Cal. Rptr. 3d 582] . If an insurer is not a fiduciary, then arguably, neither is a broker [see Hydro-Mill Co., Inc. v. Hayward,Tilton & Rolapp Ins. Assocs., Inc. (2004) 115 Cal. App. 4th 1145, 1158, 10 Cal. Rptr. 3d 582] .

[2] Agent and Broker Have Some Fiduciary Duties Toward Insured

Whether or not the relationship between a broker and an insured is a fiduciary one, a broker still has certain fiduciary duties toward an insured. For example, all funds received by any person acting as an insurance agent or broker as a premium or a return premium on or under any policy of insurance are received and held by that person in his or her fiduciary capacity. Any such person who diverts or appropriates those fiduciary funds to his or her own use is guilty of theft and punishable as provided by law [see Ins. Code § 1733; see also Hydro-Mill Co., Inc. v. Hayward, Tilton & Rolapp Ins. Assocs., Inc. (2004) 115 Cal. App. 4th 1145, 1158, 10 Cal. Rptr. 3d 582 ; Westrec Marina Mgmt., Inc. v. Jardine Ins. Brokers Orange County, Inc. (2000) 85 Cal. App. 4th 1042, 1050, 102 Cal. Rptr. 2d 673 (brokers liable for breach of fiduciary duty by failing to obtain insurance at best available price)].

26-308 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 308.173

§ 308.173 Agent or Broker's Liability for Failure to Obtain Requested Coverage

Insurance agents and brokers have been liable to insureds or applicants for insurance on a number of theories, including breach of contract and professional negligence. Some of the cases arose in the context of an agent who failed to obtain insurance for a client as promised. In other cases, the agent obtained insurance, but failed to obtain certain requested coverage or obtained the requested coverage in the wrong amount. In any of these situations, contractual liability of the agent can be at least theoretically premised on the agent's breach of an oral agreement to obtain insurance as requested by the client [see Hydro-Mill Co., Inc. v. Hayward, Tilton & Rolapp Ins. Assocs., Inc. (2004) 115 Cal. App. 4th 1145, 1153, 10 Cal. Rptr. 3d 582 ; see also Saunders v. Cariss (1990) 224 Cal. App. 3d 905, 908-909, 274 Cal. Rptr. 186] .

In one case, for example, the insured based a suit against the broker for failure to obtain the full extent of requested earthquake coverage on theories of negligence, breach of oral contract, negligent misrepresentation, and breach of fiduciary duty [see Hydro-Mill Co., Inc. v. Hayward, Tilton & Rolapp Ins. Assocs., Inc. (2004) 115 Cal. App. 4th 1145, 1153, 10 Cal. Rptr. 3d 582] .

In some situations, the duty may extend to third parties. In one such case, a company (the customer) hired a software company to design computer software for its business. The contract between them required the software company to obtain an errors and omissions policy to compensate the customer for the software company's breach. The customer contacted a retail insurance broker and informed the broker that the software company, which was located in India, needed E&O insurance. The broker contacted a surplus lines insurance broker for that purpose and gave it the information received from the customer. The surplus lines broker contacted an insurance company, which issued a policy to the software company. The policy, however, excluded coverage for any claims arising from or related to work performed in India. When the software company failed to deliver the software, the customer sued for breach of contract. The insurance company refused to pay benefits or defend the action, citing the India exclusion. A default judgment was entered for the customer, which was uncollectible. The customer then sued the surplus lines broker for negligence in procuring a policy that did not cover work in India. The court of appeal held that the surplus lines broker owed the customer a duty of care, even though the parties had no direct contact, the parties were not in privity of contract, and the customer was not named in the policy. The controlling factors in this situation are: (1) the extent to which the transaction was intended to affect the plaintiff (in this case, the customer); (2) the foreseeability of harm to the plaintiff;

(3) the degree of certainty that the plaintiff suffered injury; (4) the closeness of the connection between the defendant's conduct and the injury suffered; (5) the moral blame attached to the defendant's conduct; and (6) the policy of preventing future harm [Business to Bus. Mkts., Inc. v. Zurich Specialties London Ltd. (2005) 135 Cal. App. 4th 165, 168-169, 37 Cal. Rptr. 3d 295] .

In this case, the policy was intended to protect the plaintiff, the harm was foreseeable, the plaintiff suffered damages as shown on a prove-up default hearing, the defendant bore moral blame for accepting the responsibility of finding the required insurance and failing to do so adequately, and imposing liability on the defendant would have the "salutary effect of encouraging ... insurance brokers to secure insurance policies for their clients that meet their clients' needs." Furthermore, whether the connection between the plaintiff and the defendant was sufficiently close depends on whether the plaintiff was an intended beneficiary, to whom the defendant owed a duty of care, or merely an incidental third-party beneficiary, to whom the defendant owed no such duty. An intended beneficiary need not be specifically named, so long as that person or entity is in the class of members that the insurance is intended to benefit [Business to Bus. Mkts., Inc. v. Zurich Specialties London Ltd. (2005) 135 Cal. App. 4th 165, 169-171, 37 Cal. Rptr. 3d 295 ; Harper v. Wausau Ins. Co. (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 1079, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 64] . Although the plaintiff in this case was "not quite an intended beneficiary," it was treated as one because of the relationship among the plaintiff, the two brokers, and the insured--for example, because the contract between the plaintiff and the software company required the software company to obtain the insurance [Business to Bus. Mkts., Inc. v. Zurich Specialties London Ltd. (2005) 135 Cal. App. 4th 165, 171, 37 Cal. Rptr. 3d 295 ; see also Biakanja v. Irving (1958) 49 Cal. 2d 647, 650, 320 P.2d 16] .

If a third party's injuries arise from the defendant's rendering of professional services, additional factors must be considered, including: (1) the degree to which clients and third parties ordinarily relinquish control for decision making to the professional; (2) the degree to which the defendant works under professional standards established and maintained by the defendant's profession; (3) the defendant's ability to spread costs by raising fees or buying liability insurance; and (4) the expected and customary reliance by clients and others on the skillfulness and expertise of the defendant's profession. In this particular case, all these additional factors weighed in support of finding a duty. Surplus lines insurance is a specialized, niche-market service. Clients and others rely on the broker to obtain the right type of policy. In addition, insurance is a highly regulated industry with a number of associations and bodies dedicated to promoting the industry's well-being and professionalism. Finally,insurance exists within a broad, well-developed marketplace, permitting market participants to charge prices that reflect their costs and risks [Business to Bus. Mkts., Inc. v. Zurich Specialties London Ltd. (2005) 135 Cal. App. 4th 165, 172, 37 Cal. Rptr. 3d 295] .

26-308 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 308.174

§ 308.174 Agent and Broker Have Duty to Advise Insured of Coverage Availability Under Some Circumstances

As a general rule, the agent or broker does not have a fiduciary duty to voluntarily inform the insured of the availability or advantages of additional coverage [Fitzpatrick v. Hayes (1997) 57 Cal. App. 4th 916, 927, 67 Cal. Rptr. 2d 445 ; Jones v. Grewe (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 950, 954, 234 Cal. Rptr. 717] .

However, there are two exceptions to this rule. The agent owes the insured a fiduciary duty to advise the insured of the availability of coverage if the insured requests or specifically inquires into a particular type or extent of coverage [see Free v. Republic Ins. Co. (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 1726, 1730, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 296 ; Westrick v. State Farm Ins. (1982) 137 Cal. App. 3d 685, 691-692, 187 Cal. Rptr. 214] or if the agent assumes an additional duty by either express agreement or by representing that he or she has expertise in the specific field of insurance being sought by the insured [see Kurtz, Richards, Wilson & Co. v. Insurance Communicators Mktg. Corp. (1993) 12 Cal. App. 4th 1249, 1257, 16 Cal. Rptr. 2d 259] . In addition, an agent may be found to have breached its fiduciary duty to the insured if it misrepresents the nature, extent or scope of the coverage being offered or provided [Desai v. Farmers Ins. Exch. (1996) 47 Cal. App. 4th 1110, 1119, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 276] . An agent who negligently represents the coverage provided by a policy thereby assumes a special duty to ensure that the insured has the coverage it thought it had purchased [Paper Savers, Inc. v. Nacsa (1996) 51 Cal. App.4th 1090, 1095, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 547 ; see § 308.173].

The mere fact that the insured has purchased insurance from the same agent over a period of years and has followed the agent's advice on other insurance matters is insufficient to imply the existence of a duty to recommend additional coverage [Fitzpatrick v. Hayes (1997) 57 Cal. App. 4th 916, 929-930, 67 Cal. Rptr. 2d 445] . In addition, absent a specific inquiry by the insured into the availability of additional coverage or the adequacy of the coverage purchased, an insurance agent's representation of the adequacy of the insured's coverage does not in itself create liability if the coverage ultimately proves to be inadequate [Fitzpatrick v. Hayes (1997) 57 Cal. App. 4th 916, 927-929, 67 Cal. Rptr. 2d 445 ; Jones v. Grewe (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 950, 954, 956-957, 234 Cal. Rptr. 717] .

§ 308.175 Two-Year Limitations Period Applies to Suit Against Broker Based on Professional Negligence

If the gravamen of a suit by an insured against a broker is the broker's failure to execute its obligations as an insurance broker, the two-year limitations period for professional negligence under Code Civ. Proc. § 339 applies [see Hydro-Mill Co., Inc. v. Hayward, Tilton & Rolapp Ins. Assocs., Inc. (2004) 115 Cal. App. 4th 1145, 1158-1160, 10 Cal. Rptr. 3d 582] . In one case, for example, the insured brought suit on theories of negligence, breach of oral contract, negligent misrepresentation, and breach of fiduciary duty, because the broker obtained less earthquake coverage for the insured than requested, resulting in losses to the insured following the Northridge earthquake. The court held that the two-year limitations applied to all stated causes of action because they were all based on the broker's professional negligence in failing to obtain the requested coverage [Hydro-Mill Co., Inc. v. Hayward, Tilton & Rolapp Ins. Assocs., Inc. (2004) 115 Cal. App. 4th 1145, 1154-1160, 10 Cal. Rptr. 3d 582] .

26-308 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 308.176

§ 308.176 Broker's Obligations to Insurer

In the proper circumstances, an insurance broker may be liable to the insurer for fraud and negligence. If the insurance broker has forged a document in support of an insurance application, the insurer may sue the broker for fraud [Century Sur. Co. v. Crosby Ins., Inc. (2004) 124 Cal. App. 4th 116, 122-127, 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 115] . Furthermore, if the insurance broker knows of actual misstatements in the insurance application, the broker may be liable to the insurer for transmitting those misrepresentations in the application, knowing that the insurer will reasonably rely on them [Century Sur. Co. v. Crosby Ins., Inc. (2004) 124 Cal. App. 4th 116, 129, 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 115] .

In one case, for example, the insurance broker allegedly prepared and submitted an application for liability insurance for a company that was a general contractor although the broker represented that the company worked only as a drywall contractor. In addition, the broker's agent allegedly submitted with the application a letter forged by the broker that was purportedly from the insured's former insurer, asserting that the insured had no known losses in the previous two years. The trial court sustained the broker's demurrer on the ground that the broker owed no duty to the insurer in negligence and that the insurer could not maintain a fraud action against the broker, because the insurer's exclusive remedy was in rescission against the insured. The court of appeal reversed, holding that the insurer properly pleaded a cause of action in fraud, based on the false written statement included with the insurance application. An insurer has a fraud remedy against a broker who has actively forged documents to support an insurance application [Century Sur. Co. v. Crosby Ins., Inc. (2004) 124 Cal. App. 4th 116, 122-123, 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 115] . The right of rescission is not an insurer's exclusive remedy against an insured [Century Sur. Co. v. Crosby Ins., Inc. (2004) 124 Cal. App. 4th 116, 126, 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 115] .

Furthermore, the insurer properly pleaded a cause of action in negligence against the broker by alleging that: (1) the broker and his agent (who allegedly did the actual forging of the application) owed a duty toward the insurer to properly prepare and process the application for insurance in an honest, truthful, and accurate manner, by fully divulging in good faith to the insurer all facts within their knowledge material to the contract that the insurer had no means of ascertaining; (2) the broker owed a duty not to defraud the insurer; (3) the broker intentionally, carelessly, or negligently failed to prepare and process the application by failing to fully and truthfully divulge to the insurer the insured's true and accurate loss history; (4) the insurer relied on the application; and (5) the insurer incurred resulting damages [Century Sur. Co.

An insurer is entitled to payment of the premium as soon as the subject matter insured is exposed to the peril insured against [Ins. Code § 480]. On cancellation of policies for nonpayment of premium, see Ins. Code §§ 484, 661(a)(1), 676(a), 1861.03(c)(1). On when the insured is entitled to return of the premium or a portion of it, see Ins. Code §§ 481-483 and 485-487. On the prohibition against increasing premiums of certain automobile insurance policies, see Ins. Code §§ 488 and 488.5. For a related form, see § 308.520.

An insurer may seek action to recover payment made by it to its insured based on a materially false and fraudulent claim or proof of loss [see Civ. Code §§ 1572, 1709, 1710, 3287, 3333]. For a related form, see § 308.521.

An insurer may seek declaratory relief to determine liability, in an case by one insurer against another insurer, both of which issued a liability policy covering the same insurable event, and to seek a declaration regarding which of the policies is primary and which is excess [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1060 (declaratory relief); see also Employers Reinsurance Corp. v. Phoenix Ins. Co. (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 545, 230 Cal. Rptr. 792] . For a related form, see § 308.522.

When several insurers are obligated to indemnify or defend the same loss or claim, an insurer that has paid more than its share of the loss or has defended the action without any participation by the others, has the right to seek equitable contribution from its coinsurers. When multiple insurers insure the same insured and cover the same risk, each insurer has independent standing to assert a cause of action against its coinsurers for equitable contribution when it has undertaken a defense or indemnification of the common insured [Scottsdale Ins. Co. v. Century Surety Co. (2010) 182 Cal. App. 4th 1023, 1031, 105 Cal. Rptr. 3d 896] .

An insurer may seek an action for damages against in independent (Cumis) counsel caused by the independent counsel's negligent breach of statutory duties, and to cooperate and exchange information with the insurer's counsel [Civ. Code § 2860(d), (f)]. For a related form, see § 308.523.

§ 308.202 Certificate of Authority to Transact Insurance

[1] Requirement and Limitations

No person may transact any class of insurance business in California without first being admitted for that class. Except for the State Compensation Insurance Fund as authorized by Ins. Code §§ 11770 and 11778 to 11780.5, inclusive, admission is secured by procuring a certificate of authority from the Insurance Commissioner [Ins. Code § 700; see Ins. Code § 705.1 (fee)]. Except as specifically permitted by the Insurance Code, no certificate of authority can be issued to an unincorporated insurer [Ins. Code § 699].

The ownership or financial control, in part, direct, or indirect, of any domestic, foreign, or alien insurer, by any state of the United States or foreign government or its political subdivision, or by an agency of any other state, government, or its subdivision, does not restrict the insurance commissioner from issuing, renewing, or continuing in effect the license of that insurer to transact in California the kinds of insurance business for which that insurer is otherwise qualified, unless the commissioner finds that any of the following is true [Ins. Code § 699.5(a); see State of California v. Altus Fin. S.A. (9th Cir. 2008) 540 F.3d 992, 997 n.5]:

- The insurer is subject to any form of subsidy that would enable it to compete unfairly with domestic insurers.

- The insurer is subject to governmental practices that discriminate on the basis of any characteristic listed or defined in Civil Code § 51(b) or (e) [see Ch. 116, Civil Rights: Discrimination in Business Establishments, § 116.11].

- The ownership or financial control will not create any soverign immunity in the insurer;

- Appropriate measures and controls do not exist to avoid security problems resulting from an insurer's access to confidential information and data of its insured; or

- The ownership or financial control results in substantial or undue influence being asserted over the insurer.

This provision applies only if the insurer complies with all other requirements for issuance, renewal, or continuation of a license [Ins. Code § 699.5(a)]. An applicant's failure to submit information requested by the commissioner for the purpose of determining whether to make one or more of these findings is sufficient to deny the application [Ins. Code § 699.5(b)]. No license may be issued to an insurer that iswholly owned by a governmental entity [Ins. Code § 699.5(c)].

If the applicant is a wholly owned domestic subsidiary of an admitted domestic insurer, the commissioner is required to issue a certificate of authority to the applicant within 180 days of application unless the commissioner has found that the applicant is substantially deficient in respect to one or more of the items set forth in Ins. Code § 717 [Ins. Code § 717.1].

For detailed discussion of the licensing and requirements applicable to insurance carriers, see California Insurance Law and Practice, Chs. 2 and 3 (Matthew Bender).

[2] Expiration

Subject to the annual fee provisions [see Ins. Code § 705], a certificate of authority is for an indefinite term and expires on expiration or termination of the corporate existence of its holder [Ins. Code § 701].

[3] Suspension

The certificate may, after proper notice and hearing, be suspended for not exceeding one year, or the holder may be fined in a sum not exceeding $55,000, for any of the practices listed in Ins. Code § 704 [Ins. Code §§ 704, 704.7] or on the ground set forth in Ins. Code § 704.5.

The proceedings are conducted in accordance with the provisions of Gov. Code § 11500 et seq., the Administrative Adjudication Act [Ins. Code § 704]. Judicial review of the proceedings is instituted by filing a petition for writ of mandate [Gov. Code § 11523] in the proper superior court under the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5. The petition must be filed within 30 days after the last day on which reconsideration can be ordered, unless time is extended by a request to the agency to prepare the record [Gov. Code § 11523].

For forms for use in those proceedings, see Ch. 471, Investigations by Public Agencies , and Ch. 473, Public Agency Adjudication through Ch. 473H, Alternative Procedures for Agency Decisions . For forms relating to review, see Ch. 474, Availability of Judicial Review of Agency Decisions , through Ch. 474C, Procedures in Reviewing Agency Decisions .

26-308 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 308.203

§ 308.203 License for Insurance Agent, Broker, Solicitor, and Life Agent

Unless exempt by law, no person may act as an insurance agent, broker, or solicitor, or as a life agent, unless he or she holds a valid license from the Insurance Commissioner authorizing him or her to act in that capacity [Ins. Code § 1631; see Ins. Code § 1621 et seq. (definitions)]. Exemptions are noted in Ins. Code §§ 1634 and 1635. Any person who transacts insurance without a valid license is guilty of a misdemeanor punishable by a fine not exceeding $50,000, by imprisonment in a county jail for a period not exceeding one year, or by both thefine and imprisonment [Ins. Code § 1633].

A person otherwise eligible for a license may be authorized to act in the capacity of insurance agent, insurance broker, insurance solicitor, or life agent, unless prohibited under Ins. Code § 1621 et seq. [Ins. Code § 1632; see Ins. Code § 1640 et seq. (prohibitions and restrictions); see also Ins. Code § 1639 (qualifications for nonresident licenses)]. For definitions of these classifications, see § 308.170 et seq.

An organization may hold any license or licenses necessary to act in the following capacities: (1) a life-only agent; (2) an accident and health agent; (3) a fire and casualty broker-agent; (4) a cargo shipper's agent; (5) a personal lines licensee; (6) a credit insurance agent; (7) a rental car agent; (8) a limited lines licensee with a nonresident license; or (9) a self-service storage agent [Ins. Code § 1637; see Ins. Code § 1628 (organization defined as legal entity other than natural person)].

A written application for a license or renewal under Ins. Code § 1621 et seq. must be filed with the Insurance Commissioner [Ins. Code § 1652(a); see Ins. Code §§ 1650 (contents of license), 1652 et seq. (procedure), 1662 et seq. (bonds), 1666 et seq. (qualifications), 1675 et seq. (examinations), 1702 et seq. (issuance of license), and 1716 et seq. (license terms)]. The holder of a license under Ins. Code § 1621 et seq. must comply with the conduct set forth in Ins. Code § 1724 et seq. [see Ins. Code § 1724 et seq.].

§ 308.204 Denial of License

The grounds for denying a license are listed in Ins. Code §§ 1668, 1669, and 1672. Except as provided in Ins. Code § 1669 (denial without hearing), a license may not be denied without an opportunity to the applicant to be heard in support of his or her application. When a hearing is held, the proceedings are conducted in accordance with the provisions of Gov. Code § 11500 et seq., the Administrative Adjudication Act [Ins. Code § 1667]. Judicial review of the proceedings may be instituted by filing a petition for a writ of mandate [Gov. Code § 11523] in the superior court pursuant to the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5.

For further discussion and forms for use in those proceedings, see Ch. 471B, Licensing by Public Agencies .

If the applicant for a license, within one year from the date the commissioner received the application whether or not the filing is complete, or within one year from the date a certificate of convenience was issued, whichever is later, neither fully qualifies for and receives the license on a permanent basis nor is denied its issue, the application is automatically denied without prejudice to the filing of a new application, unless in a proceeding under a statement of issues the commissioner for good cause determines that the denial should be set aside or stayed [Ins. Code § 1670; see also Ins. Code § 1765.4 (applications to act as surplus lines broker or special lines surplus lines broker)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
D. Certification and Licensing

26-308 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 308.205

§ 308.205 Disciplinary Actions Against Licensees

[1] Grounds

The Insurance Commissioner may suspend or revoke any permanent license issued pursuant to Ins. Code § 1621 et seq. on any of the grounds set forth in Ins. Code § 1666 et seq. on which he or she may deny an application for a license [Ins. Code § 1738]. The grounds for application denial are set forth in Ins. Code §§ 1668, 1669, and 1672. Other grounds for suspension or revocation of a license are scattered throughout the Insurance Code [see, e.g., Ins. Code §§ 383.5, 760, 766, 773, 777.2, 783, 1746, 1747; see also Ins. Code §§ 1745, 1746 (minor offenses); Ins. Code § 1748 (payment of money penalty in lieu of suspension)]. The purpose of suspending or revoking a license is not to punish the errant licensee but to insure that the privileges granted under the license are not exercised in derogation of the public interest [Ready v. Grady (1966) 243 Cal. App. 2d 113, 117, 52 Cal. Rptr. 303] .

[2] Procedure and Judicial Review

A suspension or revocation of a license based on a ground set forth in Ins. Code § 1669 (grounds for denying application for license without a hearing) may be without notice or hearing. A suspension or revocation of any permanent license, except a restricted license, on any other ground may be ordered only after notice and hearing conducted in accordance with the provisions of Gov. Code § 11500 et seq., the Administrative Adjudication Act, and the Insurance Commissioner has all the power granted in those sections [Ins. Code § 1738].

Judicial review of the order after hearing may be had by filing a petition for writ of mandate [Gov. Code § 11523] in the superior court pursuant to the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5. For further discussion and forms for use in those proceedings, see Ch. 471B, Licensing by Public Agencies .

Since the Insurance Commissioner is not a constitutional agency with judicial authority but a state officer exercising statutory powers, his determination in a disciplinary proceeding is subject to a trial de novo in the superior court in which the court is entitled to exercise its independent judgment on the evidence [Ready v. Grady (1966) 243 Cal. App. 2d 113, 115, 52 Cal. Rptr. 303] .

26-308 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 308.206

§ 308.206 Insurance Adjusters

An insurance adjuster within the meaning of Ins. Code § 14000 et seq. is a person other than a private investigator as defined in Bus. & Prof. Code § 7521 who, for any consideration whatsoever, engages in business or accepts employment to furnish, or agrees to make, or makes, any investigation for the purpose ofobtaining information in the course of adjusting or otherwise participating in the disposal of any claim under or in connection with a policy of insurance, or engages in other specified activities [Ins. Code § 14021]. The license requirement does not apply to an attorney-at-law in the performance of his or her duties as an attorney, among other classifications of persons [see Ins. Code § 14022].

A violation of the licensing statute is punishable as a misdemeanor, except for the falsification of fingerprints or photographs submitted as part of the license application, which is punishable as a felony [Ins. Code § 14080].

An application for a license under Ins. Code § 14000 et seq. must be on a form prescribed by the Insurance Commissioner and accompanied by the appropriate application [see Ins. Code §§ 14023-14045 (licensing procedure), 14050 et seq. (bonds), 14090 et seq. (expiration and renewal), 14097 (fee schedule)]. The grounds for license denial include the prior refusal or revocation of a license, among other things [see Ins. Code § 14028]. An insurance adjuster is prohibited from knowingly making any false report to his or her employer or client for whom information was being obtained, among other things [see Ins. Code § 14038].

The Insurance Commissioner may suspend or revoke a license issued under Ins. Code § 14000 et seq. on the ground that the licensee (or his or her manager, if an individual, or if the licensee is a person other than an individual, any of its officers, directors, partners, or its manager) has committed any of several enumerated acts, including assault, battery, or kidnapping, or the use of force or violence on any person, without proper justification [see Ins. Code § 14061(h); see also Ins. Code §§ 14060 et seq. (disciplinary proceedings), 14070 et seq. (nonresidents), 14061, 14063, 14064 (grounds for suspension or revocation)].

Public insurance adjusters are subject to a separate but similar licensing, conduct, and disciplinary scheme [see Ins. Code § 15000 et seq.]. A public insurance adjuster is essentially a person who, for compensation, assists an insured in negotiating for or effecting the settlement of a claim for insurance proceeds [Ins. Code § 15007].
