PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE
A. Actions Against Insurance Companies to Recover Insurance Contract Benefits
1. In General

26-308 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 308.223

§ 308.223 Decisions

[1] Agent's Authority to Bind Insurer

Punitive damages properly awarded against insurer based on failure to give loss payee required notice of cancellation by company acting as insurer's managing agent within meaning of Civ. Code § 3294(b); agent had broad discretion over insurer's business, could solicit, bind, write, and administer insurance policies, and could exercise its independent judgment as to time, place, and manner of soliciting insurance and serving policyholders. Textron Fin. Corp. v. National Union Fire Ins. Co. (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 1061, 1080-1081, 13 Cal. Rptr. 3d 586

In action by insured against insurer regarding disputed health insurance coverage, trial court committed reversible error by refusing to instruct jury that person who told insured that coverage would be provided for particular services was agent of insurer for purposes of binding insurer, when person had agency appointment on file with Department of Insurance listing him as agent of that insurer, had entered into written agreement with insurer expressly authorizing him to transact business as insurer's agent, and officer of insurer testified that he was agent of insurer. Loehr v. Great Republic Ins. Co. (1990) 226 Cal. App. 3d 727, 733-735, 276 Cal. Rptr. 667

[2] Ambiguity

[a] Exclusion Clause

"Flood Exclusion" in excess policy encompassed water damage to insured's shipyards caused by Hurricane Katrina. Northrop Grumman Corp. v. Factory Mut. Ins. Co. (9th Cir. 2008) 538 F.3d 1090, 1094

"Vehicle theft exclusion" in jeweler's block insurance policy was ambiguous with respect to exclusion for loss from "[t]heft from any vehicle unless, you, an employee, or other person whose only duty is to attend to the vehicle are actually in or upon such vehicle at the time of the theft"; insured was behind running vehicle inspecting suspicious noise

when thief entered vehicle and drove away with jewels inside vehicle. E.M.M.I., Inc. v. Zurich Am. Ins. Co. (2004) 32 Cal. 4th 465, 470-474, 9 Cal. Rptr. 3d 701, 84 P.3d 385

Exclusionary clause must be conspicuous, plain, and clear. GGIS Ins. Svcs. v. Superior Court (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 1493, 1507, 86 Cal. Rptr. 3d 515

Exception to exclusion in jeweler's block policy for loss or damage to property left in unattended automobile was not ambiguous and did not apply to theft of jewelry from traveling sales representative's unattended vehicle, when policy stated that exclusion did not apply if property was lost or damaged while in custody of a "carrier" mentioned in schedule to contract, and schedule clearly defined carrier to mean commercial carrier. Nissel v. Certain Underwriters at Lloyds of London (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 1103, 1112-1113, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 174

"Family exclusion" clause in homeowner's policy expressly provided that insurer affords no liability coverage for injuries suffered by insured or insured's relatives, and was unambiguous and unequivocal. Lumbermens Mut. Cas. Co. v. Vaughn (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 171, 179, 244 Cal. Rptr. 567

Although rules of construction applicable to exclusionary clauses construe ambiguities against insurer, identical language used in defining boundaries of both coverage and exclusion regarding "bodily injury" was unambiguous, and excluded coverage. Mori v. Southern Gen. Ins. Co. (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 99, 104, 241 Cal. Rptr. 463

Possibly ambiguous exclusion clause as not strictly construed against insurer when insured itself proposed or drafted language of exclusion. Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. v. Fibreboard Corp. (1986) 182 Cal. App. 3d 462, 468, 227 Cal. Rptr. 203

[b] Generally

App. 3d 1510, 1516, 232 Cal. Rptr. 691* ; Employers Reinsurance Corp. v. Phoenix Ins. Co. (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 545, 553-554, 230 Cal. Rptr. 792 ; Threlkeld v. Ranger Ins. Co. (1984) 156 Cal. Tolson (1972) 27 Cal. App. 3d 237, 241, 103 Cal. Rptr. 513

Doctrine of strict construction against insurer does not mean strained construction; courts, under guise of strict construction, are not able to rewrite policy to bind insurer to risk that it did not contemplate and for which it has not

Court may not force construction of policy so as to cast liability on insurance company that it has not assumed. Horvatin v. Allstate Life Ins. Co. (9th Cir. 1988) 848 F.2d 1012, 1014

Principle that ambiguity of policy is interpreted against insurer as inapplicable when claimant is purported third-party beneficiary rather than party to contract, and conditions of bargaining inequality usually envisioned in insurance agreements did not exist in framing of policy. Garcia v. Truck Ins. Exch. (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 426, 435, 204 Cal. Rptr. 435, 437, 682 P.2d 1100

Ambiguity in termination clause, as in other clauses of insurance policy, construed against insurer. Williams v. American Cas. Co. (1971) 6 Cal. 3d 266, 275, 98 Cal. Rptr. 814, 491 P.2d 398

When interpreting policy involving coverage dispute, court must first determine whether language as construed by lay person is ambiguous; if so, court determines whether finding of coverage is consistent with objectively reasonable expectations of insured; court must use common sense in considering policy as a whole and circumstances of underlying case. Baker v. National Interstate Ins. Co. (2009) 180 Cal. App. 4th 1319, 1327-1328, 103 Cal. Rptr. 3d 565, 2009 Cal. App. LEXIS 2117

Court resolves ambiguous policy provision in insured's favor, consistent with insured's reasonable expectations; however, potential for coverage cannot be based on unresolved legal dispute concerning policy interpretation that is ultimately resolved in favor of insurer. Kim Seng Co. v. Great American (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 186, 193, 101 Cal. Rptr. 3d 537 , reh'g denied, 2009 Cal. App. LEXIS 1971 (2009)

Term in insurance contract is ambiguous if it is capable of two or more reasonable constructions. Supervalu, Inc. v. Wexford Underwriting Managers, Inc. (2009) 175 Cal. App. 4th 64, 73, 96 Cal. Rptr. 3d 316 (excess workers' compensation policy)

Policy language is ambiguous if susceptible of more than one reasonable interpretation in context of policy as whole; policy language cannot be found ambiguous in the abstract; any ambiguity must be resolved in manner consistent with objectively reasonable expectations of insured in light of nature and kind or risks covered by policy. GGIS Ins. Svcs. v. Superior Court (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 1493, 1506-1507, 86 Cal. Rptr. 3d 515

Replacement cost under fire insurance policy included cost of replacing a damaged building by purchasing another building at a different location; ordinary and popular sense of policy provisions did not support insurer's interpretation of policy; policy was ambiguous at best on meaning of replacement cost, and that ambiguity would be construed against insurer. Conway v. Farmers Home Mut. Ins Co. (1994) 26 Cal. App. 4th 1185, 1191-1192, 31 Cal. Rptr. 2d 883

Term "sudden and accidental" is not ambiguous; even if it was ambiguous, interpreting term to cover gradual pollution would not be within objectively reasonable expectations of insured. ACL Techs., Inc. v. Northbrook Prop. & Cas. Ins. Co. (1993)17 Cal. App. 4th 1773, 1788, 22 Cal. Rptr. 2d 206

Question whether policy language is ambiguous is one of law. Johnson v. Continental Ins. Cos. (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 477, 480, 248 Cal. Rptr. 412

Rules regarding interpretation of ambiguous language inapplicable to policy free from ambiguity; courts may adopt strained or absurd interpretation in order to create ambiguity when none exists. Advanced Micro Devices, Inc. v. Great Am. Surplus Lines Ins. Co. (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 791, 801, 245 Cal. Rptr. 44 ; Padberg v. Travelers Cos. (1987) 197 Cal. App. 3d 1161, 1166, 243 Cal. Rptr. 266

Rule that ambiguity in policy is to be resolved against insurer is inapplicable when contractual liability is superimposed on insurers by statute. Enterprise Ins. Co. v. Mulleague (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 528, 536, 241 Cal. Rptr. 846 (construing Ins. Code § 11580.2(a)(1), (m) regarding uninsured motorist coverage)

Ambiguity as resolved in favor of insured only if inquiry regarding meaning of disputed policy terms reveals material uncertainty in their application that is of consequence to coverage. National Auto. & Cas. Ins. Co. v. Contreras (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 831, 836-837, 238 Cal. Rptr. 627

Ambiguity in insurance policy required to be found, if it exists, in circumstances of particular case; ambiguity is not to be created by resort to hypothetical hyperbole. Blumberg v. Guarantee Ins. Co. (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 1286, 1296, 238 Cal. Rptr. 36

Rules pertaining to interpretation of ambiguous or uncertain language in insurance policies as applicable only when policy, in fact, presents some uncertainty or ambiguity. Hackethal v. National Cas. Co. (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 1102, 1109, 234 Cal. Rptr. 853 ; Apparel City Sewing Mach. Co. v. Transamerica Ins. Group (1982) 129 Cal. App. 3d 400, 405-406, 181 Cal. Rptr. 64

Alleged ambiguity in policy as not properly based on strained and grammatically incorrect reading of policy's terms. Atlas Assurance Co. v. McCombs Corp. (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 135, 143, 194 Cal. Rptr. 66

When policy provision is ambiguous. Spaid v. Cal-W. States Life Ins. Co. (1982) 130 Cal. App. 3d 803, 806, 182 Cal. Rptr. 3 ; Rullman v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (1970) 8 Cal. App. 3d 606, 609, 87 Cal. Rptr. 551 ; Brunt v. Occidental Life Ins. Co. (1963) 223 Cal. App. 2d 179, 183, 35 Cal. Rptr. 492 ; see Steven v. Fidelity & Cas. Co. (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 862, 871, 875, 27 Cal. Rptr. 172, 377 P.2d 284

[c] Reasonable Expectation Doctrine

In bad faith action against health care insurer in which insurer refused claim arising from treatment recommended by member physician, policy as unambiguous with respect to method of determining medical necessity of treatment; insured's expectation that member-physician's recommendantion would be honored as extending only to reasonable recommendation. Sarchett v. Blue Shield of Cal. (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 1, 10, 233 Cal. Rptr. 76, 729 P.2d 267 (reversing judgment on directed verdict finding ambiguity)

Insured could not have had objectively reasonable expectation that policies covered pre-acquisition torts of after-acquired companies when such coverage was not available in the marketplace at time policies in question were written. Cooper Cos. v. Transcontinental Ins. Co. (1995) 31 Cal. App. 4th 1094, 1109, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 508

Manner in which premiums were assessed supported court's conclusion with respect to insured's objectively reasonable expectations regarding policy coverage. Cooper Cos.v. Transcontinental Ins. Co. (1995) 31 Cal. App. 4th 1094, 1108, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 508

Because insured's decision to purchase, and expectations regarding coverage, are usually based on advertising or brochures, insurer might be required to provide coverage according to its advertising, despite more restrictive provisions in contract itself; however, newspaper advertisement language regarding definition of "loss of limbs" unambiguously referred to severance of limbs, even though language could have been more explicit. Suarez v. Life Ins. Co. of N. Am. (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 1396, 1403, 254 Cal. Rptr. 377

Doctrine of reasonable expectation of coverage as applicable only when ambiguity is present in policy. Hallmark Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1988) 201 Cal. App. 3d 1014, 1019, 247 Cal. Rptr. 638 ; Lumbermens Mut. Cas. Co. v. Vaughn

(1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 171, 179, 244 Cal. Rptr. 567 ; State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. v. Lewis (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 960, 963, 236 Cal. Rptr. 807 ; Wolf Mach. Co. v. Insurance Co. of N. Am. (1982) 133 Cal. App. 3d 324, 328, 183 Cal. Rptr. 695

[d] Specific Terms

Exception to pollution exclusion in liability and umbrella policies for damage from heat, smoke or fumes from a "hostile fire" held unambiguous; clear and explicit meaning of "fire" is a chemical reaction that releases heat and light; summary judgment for insurer reversed and remanded to allow insured's expert to provide evidence that there was a fire. Maffei v. Northern Ins. Co. of N.Y. (9th Cir. 1993) 12 F.3d 892, 896-897

"Children" is not ambiguous; stepchild was not within coverage limited to children of insured. Evans v. Safeco Life Ins. Co. (9th Cir. 1990) 916 F.2d 1437, 1441

Benefits arising from treatment of insured's child for autism not excluded from coverage, based on ambiguity of term "mental illness" in limiting clause, when policy neither defined nor explained term, nor suggested whether cause or manifestation determines coverage of particular illness, and evidence showed that autism is organically based. Kunin v. Benefit Trust Life Ins. Co. (9th Cir. 1990) 910 F.2d 534, 541

Under group comprehensive major medical policy, exclusion of "medical treatment" (of preexisting conditions), which was not defined anywhere in the policy, implied definition that most favors coverage; construction of term to include only therapeutic, and not diagnostic procedures was proper under circumstances. Franceschi v. American Motorists Ins. Co. (9th Cir. 1988) 852 F.2d 1217, 1220

Provision in incontestability clause of disability insurance policy that two-year contestability period would be tolled during any period that "insured is disabled" applied only to disabilities within policy coverage and not to all disabilities that fell within dictionary definition of "disability." John Hancock Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Greer (1998) 60 Cal. App. 4th 877, 883-886, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 48

Word "disparaging," which appeared in personal liability clause of policy in context of defamation torts dealing with injuries to character and reputation, was not ambiguous and insured could not reasonably expect that it referred to cause of action for disparagement of title. Truck Ins. Exch. v. Bennett (1997) 53 Cal. App. 4th 75, 83-86, 61 Cal. Rptr. 2d 497

Although policy language provided for coverage for any company "hereafter acquired," insured purchasing the policy would have had an objectively reasonable expectation of coverage only for companies acquired during policy period. Cooper Cos. v. Transcontinental Ins. Co. (1995) 31 Cal. App. 4th 1094, 1111, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 508

In context of fire damage policy paying replacement costs of a home, "replacement" did not require that insured rebuild on same lot; cost of purchasing replacement residence was also covered. Conway v. Farmers Home Mut. Ins Co. (1994) 26 Cal. App. 4th 1185, 1191-1192, 31 Cal. Rptr. 2d 883

Term "residence" in homeowner's policy is not ambiguous as used in resident relative exclusion; "residence" varies according to the facts and circumstances of the case and cannot be determined by the subjective intent of the dependent family member. Utley v. Allstate Ins. Co. (1993) 19 Cal. App. 4th 815, 821, 24 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1

"Roof" as used in policy covering damage to property in a warehouse was not ambiguous and did not include a temporary covering of plastic sheeting, used while roof was being repaired, that was not weatherproof enough to prevent rain damage to warehouse contents. Diep v. California Fair Plan Ass'n (1993) 15 Cal. App. 4th 1205,

"Accident" in liability policies occurs at time when complaining party was actually damaged, and not at time wrongful act was committed, according to general rule. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v. Longden (1987) 197 Cal. App. 3d 226, 231, 242 Cal. Rptr. 726 (rejecting conflicting holding of Sylla v. United States Fid. & Guar. Co. (1976) 54 Cal. App. 3d 895, 901, 127 Cal. Rptr. 38)

Policy insuring mortgage payments on "disability" of insured does not include liabilityon insured's death; policy provisions regarding prerequisite of physician's care, rights to examine insured, and extent of insured's sickness or injury, were inconsistent with construing "disability" to include death. Silva v. Aetna Life Ins. Co. (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 789, 795, 242 Cal. Rptr. 157

Automobile involved in accident was not "covered auto" under policy when insurer no longer had insurable interest in it at time of accident. International Serv. Ins. Co. v. Gonzales (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 110, 117-118, 239 Cal. Rptr. 341

Policy providing coverage to "spouse" of insured was unambiguous and sufficient to apprise parties that marriage is prerequisite to coverage under classification of "spouse"; former spouse not covered under policy despite lack of additional language providing specific exclusion in event of divorce. International Serv. Ins. Co. v. Gonzales (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 110, 117, 239 Cal. Rptr. 341

Under homeowner's policy, coverage of "bodily injury" as clearly defined and unambiguous, and exclusion of bodily injury to insureds as precluding liability therefor. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. v. Lewis (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 960, 963, 236 Cal. Rptr. 807

Term "any customer," used in bankers blanket bond, as ambiguous. Jones v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. (1969) 270 Cal. App. 2d 779, 786, 76 Cal. Rptr. 97

[3] Assignment

Fraud claims arising out contractual obligations of insurance carriers are not based on purely personal wrongs and therefore are assignable; insureds could assign fraud claim arising out of alleged misrepresentation and concealment of insurer's defense obligations. McLaughlin v. National Union Fire Ins. Co. (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 1132, 1147-1148 ; see Civ. Code § 954

Insurer that withdrew from providing coverage in California under cease and desist order from Insurance Commission under Ins. Code § 1065.2, and that assigned rights and liabilities under existing policy to another insurer, remained liable to insured under original policy after assignee-insurer became insolvent; burden of obligation transferable only with consent of party entitled to its benefit, pursuant to Civ. Code § 1457. Baer v. Associated Life Ins. Co. (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 117, 123-125, 248 Cal. Rptr. 236

Substance rather than form of transaction determines whether assignment was intended. Kelley v. British Commercial Ins. Co. (1963) 221 Cal. App. 2d 554, 564, 34 Cal. Rptr. 564 (assignment of cause of action against insurer for bad-faith refusal to settle claim under liability policy)

Assignment of right to collect insurance proceeds after loss by fire; assignee of chose in action as necessary party in any action on it. Greco v. Oregon Mut. Fire Ins. Co. (1961) 191 Cal. App. 2d 674, 687-688, 12 Cal. Rptr. 802

[4] Attorney's Fees

Made-whole rule does not bar automobile insurer from seeking reimbursement for med-pay proceeds that it paid to insured, subject to deduction under common-fund theory for its share of attorney's fees that insured expended to obtain payment from tortfeasor. 21st Century Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (2009) 47 Cal. 4th 511, 518, 98 Cal. Rptr. 3d 516, 213 P.3d 972 ; see also 21st Century Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (2009) 47 Cal. 4th 511, 515, 533-535, 98 Cal. Rptr. 3d 516, 213 P.3d 972 (conc. opn. of Werdegar, J.)

Insured's assignment of bad faith cause of action against insurer based on wrongful denial of benefits carries with it right to recover Brandt fees incurred by assignee in recovery of benefits from insurer. Essex Ins. Co. v. Five Star Dye House, Inc. (2006) 38 Cal. 4th 1252, 1264, 45 Cal. Rptr. 3d 362, 137 P.3d 192

In contingent fee context, Brandt fees are determined by calculating percentage of legal fees paid to attorney that reflects work attributable to obtaining contract recovery; no portion of legal fees attributable to punitive damages award can be recovered as Brandt fees. Cassim v. Allstate Ins. Co. (2004) 33 Cal. 4th 780, 811-812, 16 Cal. Rptr. 3d 374, 94 P.3d 513

Award of Brandt fees proper when insureds received full amount of personal property benefits under "extended replacement cost" homeowners' policy only after jury verdict. Major v. Western Home Ins. Co. (2009) 169 Cal. App. 4th 1197, 1219, 87 Cal. Rptr. 3d 556

Attorney's fees reasonably incurred to compel payment of policy benefits as element of damages in bad faith action. Brandt v. Superior Court (1985) 37 Cal. 3d 813, 819-820, 210 Cal. Rptr. 211, 693 P.2d 796 , disapproving Austero v. Washington Nat'l Ins. Co. (1982) 132 Cal. App. 3d 408, 422, 182 Cal. Rptr. 919

In bad faith action, insured may recover only that portion of attorneys' fees reasonably incurred to compel payment of policy benefits, and not fees incurred in pursuing bad faith action itself; fees attributable to obtaining portion of award exceeding amount due under policy are not recoverable. Campbell v. Cal-Guard Sur. Servs., Inc. (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 563, 571-572, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 64

Insurer not entitled to attorney's fees as damages for insured's breach of covenant of good faith and fair dealing, because insured's breach of covenant as giving rise to cause of action that sounds only in contract, not in tort; recovery therefore limited to contract damages. California Fair Plan Ass'n v. Politi (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 1612, 1618, 270 Cal. Rptr. 243

Insured's attorney's fees in declaratory relief action seeking declaration of rights under policy as required to be borne by insured. Carroll v. Hanover Ins. Co. (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 47, 51, 71 Cal. Rptr. 868

[5] Bad Faith Actions

[a] Basis for Relief

Summary judgment for insurer on causes of action for bad faith (common-law and statutory) properly granted when denial of claim that was basis for action turned on construction of preexisting-condition exclusion, and insurer's interpretation was not arbitrary or unreasonable. Franceschi v. American Motorists Ins. Co. (9th Cir. 1988) 852 F.2d 1217, 1220

Before insurer can be found to have acted tortiously, i.e., in bad faith, in refusing to bestow policy benefits, it must have done so without proper cause; ultimate test of bad-faith liability in first-party cases is whether refusal to pay policy benefits was unreasonable. Volkswagen v. Universal Underwriters Group (N.D. Cal. 2008) 571 F. Supp. 2d 1148,

Bad faith claim cannot be based on insurer's failure to renew policy or insurer's unilateral rescission in violation of Ins. Code § 650, although insured may argue that insurer's refusal to defend and rescission were in bad faith. Atmel Corp. v. St. Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Co. (N.D. Cal. 2006) 421 F. Supp. 2d 1265, 1268-1270

To avoid liability for bad faith, insurer's actions and position with respect to insured's claim, and delay or denial of policy benefits, must be founded on basis that is reasonable under all circumstances under objective standard. Bosetti v. United States Life Ins. Co. (2009) 175 Cal. App. 4th 1208, 1237, 96 Cal. Rptr. 3d 744 , rev. denied, 2009 Cal. LEXIS 10796 (2009)

Duty of good faith and fair dealing includes insurer's duty to investigate claims; insured's failure to comply with notice or claims provisions in policy will not excuse insurer's obligations unless insurer proves it was substantially prejudiced by late notice. Safeco Ins. Co. of America v. Parks (2009) 170 Cal. App. 4th 992, 1003-1004, 88 Cal. Rptr. 3d 730 , reh'g denied, 2009 Cal. App. LEXIS 293 (2009)

Insurer that denies or delays payment of policy benefits because of existence of genuine dispute with its insured as to existence of coverage liability or amount of coverage claim is not liable in bad faith even though it might be liable for breach of contract; however, "genuine dispute rule" cannot be invoked to protect insurer's denial of or delay in payment of benefits unless insurer's position was both reasonable and reached in good faith. Brehm v. 21st Century Ins. Co. (2008) 166 Cal. App. 4th 1225, 1238-1239, 83 Cal. Rptr. 3d 410 , citing Wilson v. 21st Century Ins. Co. (2007) 42 Cal. 4th 713, 723-724, 68 Cal. Rptr. 3d 746, 171 P.3d 1082

When insurer sought reimbursement for med-pay benefits previously paid in proper amount and in timely manner to insured, insured could not state cause of action for bad faith, because insured could not allege that insurer failed to pay benefits under policy; moreover, insured did not need to sue insurer to enforce its rights, and insured had tort remedy of malicious prosecution if insurer's conduct was malicious. Progressive W. Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (2005) 135 Cal. App. 4th 263, 278-279, 37 Cal. Rptr. 3d 434

Insurer that favors interests of one insured over those of another violates implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing. Schwartz v. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. (2001) 88 Cal. App. 4th 1329, 1337, 106 Cal. Rptr. 2d 523

Insurer's duty not to favor interests of one insured over those of another requires excess insurer to consider interests of all its insureds, including named insured, in limited policy proceeds, whether or not interest has matured to point of requiring payment. Schwartz v. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. (2001) 88 Cal. App. 4th 1329, 1338, 106 Cal. Rptr. 2d 523

Implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing may be breached when worker's compensation carrier sets reserves and processes claims in such a way that there is a negative impact on insured's premiums and dividends; when insured's premiums can be increased through insurer's claims handling practices, duty of good faith includes duty to act reasonably in adjusting claims against insured. Security Officers Serv., Inc. v. State Comp. Ins. Fund (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 887, 894-896, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 653 ; see also Tricor Cal., Inc. v. State Comp. Ins. Fund (1994) 30 Cal. App. 4th 230, 237-238, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 550 (evidence of negligent mishandling of claims is admissible in action alleging that bad faith claims handling by worker's compensation insurer resulted in payment of higher premiums and wrongfully denied dividends)

In action by deceased insured's estate against insurer stating causes of action for bad faith and wrongful death, based on denial of hospitalization coverage for depressed patient who then committed suicide, summary judgment for insurer was improper when triable issues of fact remained regarding whether insurer's conduct was substantial factor in causing death. Wilson v. Blue Cross of S. Cal. (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 660, 673-674, 271 Cal. Rptr. 876

[b] Conduct Not Constituting Bad Faith

If insurer's coverage decision was reasonable, it has no liability for breach of covenant of good faith and fair dealing; insurer that denied benefits reasonably, but incorrectly, is liable only for damages flowing from breach of contract, i.e., policy benefits. Griffin Dewatering Corp. v. Northern Ins. Co. of N.Y. (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 172, 196, 97 Cal. Rptr. 3d 568

Right of subrogation is not duty under contract, nor can it be transformed into duty by virtue of tort law; because decision of whether and how to pursue subrogation is insurer's right, insured cannot state cause of action for bad faith based on insurer's alleged failure to pursue its own right diligently and properly. Tilbury Constructors, Inc. v. State Comp. Ins. Fund (2006) 137 Cal. App. 4th 466, 477, 40 Cal. Rptr. 3d 392

Insured cannot maintain bad faith claim absent covered loss. Benavides v. State Farm Gen. Ins. Co. (2006) 136 Cal. App. 4th 1241, 1250, 39 Cal. Rptr. 3d 650

Property insurer that insured common areas of condominium structure did not unreasonably delay final payment for repairs following 1994 Northridge earthquake by reasonably investigating several genuinely disputed issues involving whether certain claimed items were covered and whether certain claimed fees were reasonable. Chateau Chamberay Homeowners Ass'n v. Associated Int'l Ins. Co. (2001) 90 Cal. App. 4th 335, 108 Cal. Rptr. 2d 776 (insurer entitled to summary adjudication on bad faith cause of action)

Homeowner insurer that recommends and guarantees work of particular general contractors or other professionals, needed to perform repair work following covered losses, does not subject itself to action for bad faith if professionals fail to perform adequately; insurers not liable in tort for omissions or errors of contractors engaged to provide repair and restoration services. Rattan v. United Servs. Auto. Ass'n (2000) 84 Cal. App. 4th 715, 723, 101 Cal. Rptr. 2d 6

Insurer did not commit bad faith by refusing policy-limits settlement offer that included release of only one of its three insureds; insurer may, within boundaries of good faith, reject settlement offer that does not include a complete release of all its insureds. Strauss v. Farmers Ins. Exch. (1994) 26 Cal. App. 4th 1017, 1021-1022, 31 Cal. Rptr. 2d 811 ; Heredia v. Farmers Ins. Exch. (1991) 228 Cal. App. 3d 1345, 1355, 279 Cal. Rptr. 511 ; see also Lehto v. Allstate Ins. Co (1994) 31 Cal. App. 4th 60, 73-74, 36 Cal. Rptr. 2d 814 (rejecting argument that insurer has duty to accept such a settlement when it would not increase potential liability of remaining insured, by crediting policy-limits settlement against any recovery ultimately obtained against remaining insured)

Insurer that promptly offered to replace insured's "totalled" vehicle, and then, on insured's refusal, tendered cash value (accepted by insured), exhibited "exemplary" conduct and did not act in bad faith as matter of law; insurer not required to inform insured of right to appraisal when insured accepted cash value without questioning adequacy of amount. Twaite v. Allstate Ins. Co. (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 239, 252, 264 Cal. Rptr. 598

[a] Generally

Insurer's breach of covenant of good faith and fair dealing does not sound in tort based on insurer's retroactive overcharging premium it knows is not owed, outside context of deliberate mishandling of claims that would otherwise give rise to tort remedies. Jonathan Neil & Assocs., Inc. v. Jones (2004) 33 Cal. 4th 917, 941-942, 16 Cal. Rptr. 3d 849, 94 P.3d 1055

Although plaintiff must prove economic damages in order to recover damages for emotional distress in bad faith action, plaintiff is not required to establish any causal link between economic loss and emotional damages. Clayton v. United Servs. Auto. Ass'n (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 1158, 1160-1162, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 419

[b] Defendants

State Compensation Insurance Fund is not quasi-governmental entity immune from liability for punitive damages for violation of implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing. Tricor Cal., Inc. v. State Comp. Ins. Fund (1994) 30 Cal. App. 4th 230, 241, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 550 ; Courtesy Ambulance Serv. v. Superior Court (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 1504, 1516-1517, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 161

In bad faith action by car owner against "administrator" of vehicle service contract (underwritten by insurance company), triable issue of fact existed regarding whether company, by its relationship with automobile dealer that sold VSC, sells "insurance" within meaning of Ins. Code § 116(b) (defining warranty contract as automobile "insurance"). Pistone v. Superior Court (1991) 228 Cal. App. 3d 672, 681-683, 279 Cal. Rptr. 173

California Insurance Guarantee Association immune from tort liability for its own violations of Unfair Practices Act [Ins. Code §§ 790-790.10], common law bad-faith actions, and intentional infliction of emotional distress in connection with its own claims settlement practices; however, insured is entitled to obtain reimbursement for amounts expended (up to statutory maximum) as result of CIGA's breach of its statutory duties to pay and defend covered claims. Carver v. Workers' Comp. Appeals Bd. (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 1539, 1546, 266 Cal. Rptr. 718

[c] Defenses

In bad faith action brought by insured, insurer may not raise affirmative defense of comparative bad faith; insured's obligations under covenant of good faith and fair dealing arise from contract, and insured's breach of covenant does not sound in tort because scope and nature of insurer's and insured's obligations under covenant are disparate. Kransco v. American Empire Surplus Lines Ins. Co. (2000) 23 Cal. 4th 390, 404-405, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 151, 2 P.3d 1

Insurer not required to allege as affirmative defense contention that its reliance on advice of counsel showed that conduct was reasonable and not in bad faith. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1991) 228 Cal. App. 3d 721, 727, 279 Cal. Rptr. 116

[d] Excess Insurance Issues

Excess or secondary policy does not cover a loss, nor does any duty to defend arise, until all primary insurance has been exhausted; however, rule of "drop-down upon vertical exhaustion" is possible when provision in excess policy states specifically that it is excess over specifically described policy and will cover a claim when that specific primary policy is exhausted. Padilla Constr. Co., Inc. v. Transportation Ins. Co. (2007) 150 Cal. App. 4th 984, 987 n.1, 58 Cal. Rptr. 3d 807

Excess insurer could not recover from primary carrier for bad faith on theory that excess insurer was forced to pay benefits because primary insurer improperly allocated proceeds from its policies in settlement with third-party claimant; there was no contractual relationship between primary and excess insurers, excess insurer was not third-party beneficiary of primary insurance contract, and there was no extra-contractual basis for duty of good faith, such as subrogation to insured's rights against primary carrier. Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. v. Maryland Cas. Co. (1994) 21 Cal. App. 4th 1586, 1599-1602, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 762

[e] Limitation Period

For purposes of accrual of bad faith cause of action, insurer is not required to take firm, unmovable position before denial letter can be considered unconditional. Liberty Transp., Inc. v. Harry W. Gorst Co. (1991) 229 Cal. App. 3d 417, 429-430, 280 Cal. Rptr. 159

Action for bad faith and intentional infliction of emotional distress (characterized as "restatement" of bad faith claim) under fire insurance policy is governed by one-year statutory limitation period of Ins. Code § 2071 if claim is essentially "on the policy," that is, when claim is transparent attempt to recover policy benefits in contravention of statutory limitation. Jang v. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 1291, 1303-1304, 95 Cal. Rptr. 2d 917 ; Prieto v. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 1188, 1196, 275 Cal. Rptr. 362

Causes of action for bad faith and unfair business practices subject to limitation period setforth in policy when based on insured's attempts to recover on policy. Abari v. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 530, 536, 252 Cal. Rptr. 565

Action for common-law bad faith alleging wrongful rescission of group insurance policy preempted by ERISA (29 U.S.C.S. §§ 1001-1461), but improperly removed because of untimely filing of petition for removal. Cantrell v. Great Republic Ins. Co. (9th Cir. 1989) 873 F.2d 1249, 1253, 1256

Surviving private action under Ins. Code § 790.03(h) preempted by ERISA (29 U.S.C.S. §§ 1001-1461), which provides exclusive remedies for claims asserting improper processing of claims regarding employee benefits plans. Commercial Life Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1988) 47 Cal. 3d 473, 483-484, 253 Cal. Rptr. 682, 764 P.2d 1059 ; see also Pilot Life Ins. Co. v. Dedeaux (1987) 481 U.S. 41, 107 S. Ct. 1549, 95 L. Ed. 2d 39 ; Kanne v. Connecticut Gen. Life Ins. Co. (9th Cir. 1988) 859 F.2d 96, 100 ; Rizzi v. Blue Cross of S. Cal. (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 380, 392-395, 253 Cal. Rptr. 541

[f.1] Prejudgment Interest Not Available

Prejudgment interest under Civ. Code § 3291 unavailable in insurance bad faith action because nature of action is one seeking recovery of property right, not one for personal injury. Gourley v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (1991) 53 Cal. 3d 121, 130, 279 Cal. Rptr. 307, 806 P.2d 1342

[g] Proper Plaintiffs

In action for declaratory relief seeking determination that insurer under CGL covering oil and gas operations had duty to defend, insurer failed to establish that particular company was not insured after making that assertion because company was identified in policy as joint venture but alleged activities did not involve joint venture. Frontier Oil Corp. v. RLI Ins. Co. (2007) 153 Cal. App. 4th 1436, 1468-1469, 63 Cal. Rptr. 3d 816

Co-owner of insured company and wife of named insured, who was insured under definition as spouse of insured in CGL policy, had standing to bring bad faith suit against insurer. Century Sur. Co. v. Polisso (2006) 139 Cal. App. 4th 922, 944, 43 Cal. Rptr. 3d 468

Pilot who rented and then damaged airplane was not insured on policy issued to airplane-rental company, could not bring bad faith action, and was properly defendant in subrogation action brought by insurer. McKinley v. XL Specialty Ins. Co. (2005) 131 Cal. App. 4th 1572, 1577-1578, 33 Cal. Rptr. 3d 98

Lessee of property could not sue lessor's insurer for bad faith because lessee was neither an implied-in-law coinsured nor a third-party beneficiary of contract between lessor and lessee, despite fact that lessor was obligated under lease agreement to maintain rental income insurance with loss payable to lessor in event of damage or destruction of leased property; fact that lease provided that lessee's rent would be reduced during any repairs to premises after damage or destruction to extent lessor received insurance proceeds held insufficient to confer third-party beneficiary status on lessee. Jones v. Aetna Cas. & Sur. Co. (1994) 26 Cal. App. 4th 1717, 1722-1725, 33 Cal. Rptr. 2d 291

Punitive damages awards are subject to limits under Due Process Clause of U.S. Constitution; courts must consider (1) degree of reprehensibility of defendant's conduct, (2) disparity between actual or potential harm suffered by plaintiff and punitive damages award, and (3) disparity between punitive damages award and civil or criminal penalties authorized or imposed in comparable cases; circumstances of case may warrant no punitive damages if component of compensatory damages punishes defendant's conduct. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v. Campbell (2003) 538 U.S. 408, 418, 425, 123 S. Ct. 1513, 155 L. Ed. 2d 585

Ratio of one to one is federal constitutional limit in case involving relatively low reprehensibility and substantial compensatory damages verdict, which included substantial award of noneconomic damages; punitive damages award modified in wrongful discharge case. Roby v. McKesson Corp. (2009) 47 Cal. 4th 686, 719, 101 Cal. Rptr. 3d 773, 219 P.3d 749

In fraud case, award of punitive damages in amount "just exceeding" largest single-digit ratio amount (10 times amount of compensatory damages) was maximum allowable amount under federal constitutional guidelines. Simon v. San Paolo U.S. Holding Co. (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 1159, 1189, 29 Cal. Rptr. 3d 379, 113 P.3d 63

Punitive damages under California law are constrained generally by restriction that they are ordinarily recoverable only in action for breach of obligation not arising from contract, when requisite culpable conduct is also present. Brewer v. Premier Golf Prop., LP (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 1243, 1251-1252, 86 Cal. Rptr. 3d 225

In action for unreasonable refusal to defend based on denial by adjustor and his supervisor without following internal protocol of deferring that ultimate decision to higher management, insurer was found to have acted with oppression but not with malice or fraud, and compensatory damages were substantial; 5.5:1 ratio of punitive to compensatory damages was excessive; $8.3 million award of punitive damages was properly reduced to $1.5 million; reprehensibility of conduct is most important factor. Walker v. Farmers Ins. Exch. (2007) 153 Cal. App. 4th 965, 972-974, n.9, 63 Cal. Rptr. 3d 507

Court's harmless error in ruling that spouse of named insured who was defined as insured under CGL part of policy, was also insured under Installation Floater, did not affect her award of punitive damages; consideration of relevant factors was not affected by her lack of coverage under floater. Century Sur. Co. v. Polisso (2006) 139 Cal. App. 4th 922, 946-947, 43 Cal. Rptr. 3d 468

Award of $2,015,000 in punitive damages and $623,000 in compensatory tort damages, ratio of 3.2-to-1, was well within constitutional limit; although compensatory damages were substantial, ratio was warranted given insurer's net worth and reprehensible conduct in taking "every opportunity to stall, stonewall, engage in scare tactics," and then refusing to pay insureds' attorney in full or in timely manner. Century Sur. Co. v. Polisso (2006) 139 Cal. App. 4th

Punitive damages properly awarded against insurer based on actions of company acting as its managing agent within meaning of Civ. Code § 3294(b), pursuant to agency agreement; loss payee on policy was not notified, as required by policy, of pending cancellation and subsequent removal of coverage for property in which loss payee held security interest; agent had active role in mistake. Textron Fin. Corp. v. National Union Fire Ins. Co. (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 1061, 1080-1081, 13 Cal. Rptr. 3d 586

Award of punitive damages in bad faith action against provider of automobile "theft deterrent policy" was supported by evidence that provider falsely represented to insured that she would be named as additional insured under policy written by reputable insurer and that claim would be submitted to insurer for investigation, when in fact insured was not named as additional insured and claim was never submitted to insurer; provider had no policies or procedures for handling claims; policy contained unreasonably short notice period; provider unreasonably delayed processing and denying claim; provider failed to respond to insured's inquiries concerning status of her claim; and provider failed to investigate insured's claim or her excuse for late reporting. Campbell v. Cal-Guard Sur. Servs., Inc. (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 563, 570-571, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 64

In bad faith action against group medical insurer, award of punitive damages was supported by evidence that denial of claim was product of fragmentary medical records, cursory review of records, consultant's disclaimer of any obligation to investigation, use of standard of medical necessity at variance with community standards, and uninformative follow-up letters sent to treating physicians. Hughes v. Blue Cross of N. Cal. (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 832, 847, 263 Cal. Rptr. 850

[i] Severance of Action Against Insured

Severance of action against tortfeasor from action against tortfeasor's insurer for bad faith was within discretion of trial court; suing insured for negligence and insurer for bad faith in same lawsuit violates both letter and spirit of Evid. Code § 1155, which precludes use of evidence that tortfeasor has insurance for alleged injury. Omaha Indem. Co. v. Superior Court (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 1266, 1271, 258 Cal. Rptr. 66

[j] Statutory Actions

[i] Availability of Private Remedy

Private cause of action under Royal Globe abrogated on October 17, 1988, but actions filed before that date survive, subject to requirement of conclusive judicial determination of underlying claim. Moradi-Shalal v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Cos. (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 287, 297-305, 250 Cal. Rptr. 116, 758 P.2d 58

Third-party claimant had direct cause of action under Ins. Code § 790.03 against tortfeasor's insurer, without first obtaining assignment from insured. Royal Globe Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1979) 23 Cal. 3d 880, 884-891, 153 Cal. Rptr. 842, 592 P.2d 329 , overruled prospectively in Moradi-Shalal v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Cos. (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 287, 297-305, 250 Cal. Rptr. 116, 758 P.2d 58 (final October 17, 1988)

Moradi-Shalal ruling applies to bar action if third-party claimant is insured by same insurer as other party; insurers do not owe duty of good faith and fair dealing to third-party claimants whom they also insure. Coleman v. Republic Indem. Ins. Co. of Cal. (2005) 132 Cal. App. 4th 403, 409, 413-415, 33 Cal. Rptr. 3d 744

Action by third party against insurer, alleging that insurer advised insured to lie in deposition taken in medical malpractice action, barred by Moradi-Shalal as to Ins. Code § 790.03 violations. Doctors' Co. Ins. Servs. v. Superior

Court (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 1284, 1291-1300, 275 Cal. Rptr. 674 (also holding that cause of action for intentional infliction of emotional distress precluded by former Civ. Code § 47(2) (now see Civ. Code § 47(b)) (privileged publication made in judicial proceeding))

[ii] Conclusion of Underlying Third-Party Action

In statutory action based on insurer's alleged violation of Ins. Code § 790.03(h), judicial determination of insured's liability is prerequisite for insurer's liability. Moradi-Shalal v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Cos. (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 287, 305-306, 250 Cal. Rptr. 116, 758 P.2d 58 (applicable to cases filed after October 17, 1988); Heninger v. Foremost Ins. Co. (1985) 175 Cal. App. 3d 830, 834-835, 221 Cal. Rptr. 303

Judgment against insured entered in underlying federal court action pursuant to settlement under Fed. R. Civ. P. 68 did not constituting conclusive judicial determination of insured's liability for purposes of satisfying procedural prerequisite under Moradi-Shalal, because of absence of express or implied admission of liability in settlement. Laxague v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 530, 535-536, 269 Cal. Rptr. 456

Procedural prerequisite of final judicial determination of insured's liability requires judgment that is final, for res judicata purposes, with regard to both liability and damages. Marenger v. Hartford Accident & Indem. Co. (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 625, 632, 268 Cal. Rptr. 290

Procedural prerequisite of conclusive judicial determination of insured's liability satisfied by summary judgment in favor of third party against insured; subsequent settlement agreement following appeal resolved only appeal taken from judgment, and language in agreement that insured does not admit liability does not affect nature of underlying judgment for purpose of allowing third party to sue insurer in viable Royal Globe action. Pon v. Fremont Indem. Co. (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 29, 33, 265 Cal. Rptr. 733 .

Determination of insured's liability pursuant to judicial arbitration, and subsequent entry of final judgment based on arbitration award, is sufficient judicial resolution of insured's liability in underlying third-party action. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 5, 16, 259 Cal. Rptr. 50

Third party's settlement of underlying action by accepting lump-sum payment, and signing "Release of Claims," was insufficient to establish final judicial determination of insured's liability in surviving private action under Ins. Code § 790.03(h); doctrine of collateral estoppel as inapplicable regarding liability of insured, which is condition precedent to viable statutory action. American Int'l Underwriters Agency Corp. v. Superior Court (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 1357, 1363, 256 Cal. Rptr. 730

In surviving private action under Ins. Code § 790.03(h), sustaining demurrer without leave to amend was proper on ground that settlement of underlying action pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 998 did not constitute final judicial determination of that action; compromise agreement did not constitute adjudication of either liability or damages. Wade v. 20th Century Ins. Co. (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 32, 38

Settlement of third party's underlying claim against insured, even if it contains admission of liability, was insufficient conclusion of underlying action for purposes of Moradi-Shalal requirement of judicial determination of insured's liability as prerequisite for cause of action still viable under Ins. Code § 790.03(h). Lee v. Travelers Cos. (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 691, 694, 252 Cal. Rptr. 468

Holding in Royal Globe [(1979) 23 Cal. 3d 880, 153 Cal. Rptr. 842, 592 P.2d 329] that underlying suit must be concluded prior to action against against insurer is applicable only to bad faith actions under Ins. Code § 790.03(h), and not to action for breach of third-party insurer's oral agreement to settle. Ahmed v. Peterson (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d

Action between third party and insured stayed due to insured's institution of bankruptcy proceedings as not "concluded" for purposes of third-party action against insurers under Ins. Code § 790.03(h), despite third party's contention that bankruptcy proceeding had removed insured from civil litigation as effectively as if judgment had been entered. Green v. Travelers Indem. Co. (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 544, 550-554, 230 Cal. Rptr. 13

Final determination that insured is liable is condition precedent to action against liability insurer for violation of Ins. Code § 790.03(h)(5); failure to obtain final determination bars action by spouse of injured person as representative of spouse's estate, as well as action by spouse in personal capacity for negligent infliction of emotional distress. Williams v. Transport Indem. Co. (1984) 157 Cal. App. 3d 953, 962, 203 Cal. Rptr. 868 , approved in Moradi-Shalal v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Cos. (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 287, 308, 250 Cal. Rptr. 116, 758 P.2d 58 (but disapproved on another ground)

Cause of action under Ins. Code § 790.03(h)(5) does not accrue until conclusion of action between third-party claimant and insured, but cause of action nevertheless survives when third-party claimant dies after insurer's alleged breach of duty but before conclusion of action against insured, pursuant to former Prob. Code § 573 [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 377.20 et seq.], providing for survival of actions, which encompasses rights not yet mature or actionable. Carr v. Progressive Cas. Ins. Co.(1984) 152 Cal. App. 3d 881, 888-891, 199 Cal. Rptr. 835

Injured plaintiff who successfully sued insured in personal injury action and then brought action under Ins. Code § 790.03 against insurer alleging bad faith in failure to settle within policy limits, did not have cause of action against insurer during appeal of underlying personal injury action because final judgment for res judicata purposes had not been secured. Nationwide Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1982) 128 Cal. App. 3d 711, 714, 180 Cal. Rptr. 464 , approved, Moradi-Shalal v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Cos. (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 287, 250 Cal. Rptr. 116, 758 P.2d 58

[iii] Conflict of Laws

Trial court properly applied foreign state's law to action under Ins. Code § 790.03(h) when accident occurred in foreign state and plaintiff subsequently moved to California, because law of foreign state would be more impaired if its laws were not applied, and application of law of plaintiff's residence would encourage forum-shopping. Zimmerman v. Allstate Ins. Co. (1986) 179 Cal. App. 3d 840, 846-847, 224 Cal. Rptr. 917 (foreign state did not recognize third-party bad faith claims)

[iv] Damages

Recoverable damages limited to those that accrued before insurer rectified initial violation of duties under Ins. Code § 790.03. Schlauch v. Hartford Accident & Indem. Co. (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 926, 936, 194 Cal. Rptr. 658

[v] Defendants

Physicians' cooperative and interindemnity associations (see Corp. Code § 25100, Ins. Code § 1280.7) not subject to liability for violation of Ins. Code § 790.03 in action by third party based on alleged bad faith failure to settle malpractice claim against member physician. Mundy v. Mutual Prot. Trust (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 127, 131-133, 267 Cal. Rptr. 917

Self-insurer subject to liability under Ins. Code § 790.03(h) when engaged in liability-insurance business in substantial although not exclusive manner, such as when it regularly issues written contracts of liability insurance to its customers pursuant to car-rental agreements, and employs investigative and legal resources to manage insurance claims. Nathanson v. Hertz Corp. (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 78, 82-84, 227 Cal. Rptr. 799

Self-insurer and its employees hired to investigate and adjust claims for compensation not engaged in business of insurance within meaning of Ins. Code § 790.01. Dill v. Claims Admin. Servs., Inc. (1986) 178 Cal. App. 3d 1184, 1190, 224 Cal. Rptr. 273 ; Richardson v. GAB Bus. Servs., Inc. (1984) 161 Cal. App. 3d 519, 523, 207 Cal. Rptr. 519

Unfair Practices Act (Ins. Code §§ 790-790.10) applicable to independent claims adjusters. Davis v. Continental Ins. Co. (1986) 178 Cal. App. 3d 836, 839-841, 224 Cal. Rptr. 66 ; Bodenhamer v. Superior Court (1986) 178 Cal. App. 3d 180, 183-185, 223 Cal. Rptr. 486 ; but see Henry v. Associated Indem. Corp. (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 1405, 1416, 266 Cal. Rptr. 578 (expressly declining to follow Davis and Bodenhamer on ground that adjuster is agent or employee of insurer and therefore not individually liable)

[vi] Defenses

In viable third-party action against insurer under Ins. Code § 790.03, insurer was unable to assert claim for equitable indemnity in cross-complaint, based on alleged negligence of third party's former attorney, because ordinary rules of implied equitable indemnity in tort do not apply to claim made against attorney based on breach of attorney's duty to client and brought by adverse party in litigation that is same as or related to that in which alleged negligence took place. California State Auto. Ass'n Inter-Ins. Bureau v. Bales (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 227, 230, 270 Cal. Rptr. 421

[vii] Failure to Settle

Jury award of damages in lesser amount than that of injured party's settlement request did not preclude action for failure to attempt in good faith to settle based on insurer's rejection of offer, because insurer's failure to investigate claim, offer to settle earlier, or make counteroffer might have constituted bad faith. Pray v. Foremost Ins. Co. (9th Cir. 1985) 767 F.2d 1329, 1330

Insurer not liable under Ins. Code § 790.03(h)(5) for failure to attempt to settle when its insured refuses to consent to settlement, and consent is prerequisite under policy provisions. Carlile v. Farmers Ins. Exch. (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 975, 980-981, 219 Cal. Rptr. 773

[k] Waiver and Estoppel

Insurer's cancellation of insurance contract was neither waiver nor estoppel that would preclude insurer from raising limitations clause as defense in bad faith action. Velasquez v. Truck Ins. Exch. (1991) 1 Cal. App. 4th 712, 722-723, 5 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1

[7] Bankruptcy of Insured

When rights derive from property claimed to be exempt in bankruptcy proceeding, claims arose after bankruptcy petition was filed, and bankruptcy court determines property to be exempt, debtor had standing to litigate causes of action with regard to that property; insured had standing to bring action against insurer regarding insured property that was claimed to be exempt in bankruptcy proceeding. Amstone v. Peninsular Fire Ins. Co. (1991) 226 Cal. App. 3d 1019, 1024-1027, 277 Cal. Rptr. 260

[8] Breach of Contract Action

No breach of contract action stated based on allegations that insurer failed to analyze whether insured was made whole or whether common-fund doctrine applied prior to instituting suit against insured for reimbursement of med-pay benefits previously paid; insurer does not have burden of determining whether insured made whole prior to seeking reimbursement. Progressive W. Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (2005) 135 Cal. App. 4th 263, 281-282, 37 Cal. Rptr. 3d 434

To support action for breach of contract, plaintiff must show plaintiff has suffered damages; in breach of contract action by insured against insurer, because insurer paid portion of insured's legal expenses in underlying lawsuit and second insurer paid balance of those expenses plus settlement, insured could not show it suffered any contract damages. Emerald Bay Cmty. Ass'n v. Golden Eagle Ins. Corp. (2005) 130 Cal. App. 4th 1078, 1088-1089, 31 Cal. Rptr. 3d 43

[9] Burden of Proof

Insured, in action on insurance policy against insurer, as having burden of proving contract of insurance and its terms, as well as loss; burden of bringing itself within any exculpatory clause contained in policy as on insurer. National Am. Ins. Co. v. Certain Underwriters at Lloyd's London (9th Cir. 1996) 93 F.3d 529, 534 (insured has burden of proving both existence and material terms of insurance contract); Executive Aviation, Inc. v. National Ins. Underwriters (1971) 16 Cal. App. 3d 799, 806, 94 Cal. Rptr. 347 ; Carr v. International Indem. Co. (1922) 58 Cal. App. 614, 617, 209 P. 83

In action between insurance companies, burden of showing that claim falls within scope of basic coverage as belonging to party claiming coverage; burden of showing that claim falls within exclusion as belonging to insurer whose policy is in question. American Star Ins. Co. v. Insurance Co. of W. (1991) 232 Cal. App. 3d 1320, 1325, 284 Cal. Rptr. 45

[10] Cancellation of Policy

If insured who has financed purchase of insurance policy through lender defaults, and lender notifies insurer under Ins. Code § 673(d) that it is exercising insured's right to cancel policy, additional named insured is not entitled to notice of cancellation; if subcontractor financed purchase of commercial lines policy naming contractor as additional insured, and lender instructed insurer to cancel policy for insured's nonpayment of premiums, pursuant to insured's assignment of right to cancel, additional insured not entitled to notice of cancellation. Gorham Co., Inc. v. First Fin. Ins. Co. (2006) 139 Cal. App. 4th 1532, 1541-1544, 44 Cal. Rptr. 3d 197

To state claim for wrongful cancellation insured must prove, in addition to fact that insurer attempted to cancel policy for an improper purpose, (1) that cancellation was proximate cause of damages suffered by insured; and (2) nature and extent of damages. McLaughlin v. National Union Fire Ins. Co. (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 1132, 1158-1159

Fact that attempted cancellation is ineffective and policy benefits are ultimately available to insured does not preclude recovery for wrongful cancellation if insured can show damage resulting from interim deprivation of benefits. McLaughlin v. National Union Fire Ins. Co. (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 1132, 1157-1158

Insured's acceptance of offer to renew insurance estops insurer from subsequently asserting nonrenewal by retroactively cancelling the renewal policy from its inception; whether or not insured has accepted a renewal policy is determined from the totality of the circumstances. Golden Eagle Ins. Co. v. Foremost Ins. Co. (1993) 20 Cal. App. 4th 1372, 1387-1389, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 242

When policy required mailing of notice to named insured to effect cancellation, evidence of insurer's cancellation procedures, and postal receipt showing that unidentified envelope was mailed to insureds, were insufficient to prove notice as matter of law; proof of mailing of notice is properly shown by declaration that competent witness placed notice in envelope addressed to named insured at proper address, with proper postage, and that envelope was placed in mail at certain location. Preis v. American Indem. Co. (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 752, 759-760, 269 Cal. Rptr. 617

Requirement that premium lender notify insurer of cancellation under Ins. Code § 673 is intended for benefit of insurer, not insured, because insurer may waive right to notice; insured is unable to claim ineffective cancellation of policy based on lack of notice to insurer. Hoffman v. Citadel Gen. Assurance, Ltd. (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 1356, 1362-1363, 240 Cal. Rptr. 253

[11] Class Action

Propriety of class action against insurer where complaint alleges community of interest among large number of policyholders and involving claims each too small to justify individual litigation as to be determined by kind of noticed hearing provided for in Vasquez v. Superior Court (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 800, 94 Cal. Rptr. 796, 484 P.2d 964 . Jensen v. Allstate Ins. Co. (1973) 32 Cal. App. 3d 789, 793, 108 Cal. Rptr. 498 (nevertheless holding that defendant's demurrer was properly sustained for complainant's failure to state cause of action where pertinent terms of insurance policy were not pleaded)

Class action to recover interest workmen's compensation carriers had failed to pay on workmen's compensation awards. Addington v. Industrial Indem. Co. (1972) 24 Cal. App. 3d 802, 808-810, 101 Cal. Rptr. 277

[12] Classes of Insurance

Pub. Util. Code § 3631, requiring regulated highway carriers to provide liability protection for personal injuries and property damage, was enacted to protect public against reckless operation of vehicles by financially irresponsible owners and provide means of recovery for those injured in their person or property by such operation and as not requiring vehicle liability policies to cover work-related injuries sustained by vehicle owner's employees. Chong v. Fremont Indem. Co. (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 1097, 1101-1102, 249 Cal. Rptr. 264

[13] Conflict of Interest

In conflict of interest situation between insurer and its insured, insurer's desire to exclusively control defense of action against insured as required to yield to insurer's obligation to defend policyholder; accordingly, insurer's obligation to defend as extending to paying reasonable value of legal services and costs performed by independent counsel, selected by insured. Executive Aviation, Inc. v. National Ins. Underwriters (1971) 16 Cal. App. 3d 799, 810, 94 Cal. Rptr. 347

Independent counsel's control of insured's defense does not extend to preventing insurer from exercising its contractual right to settle claim as insurer deems expedient; requirement in Civ. Code § 2860(f) that independent counsel be allowed to participate in all aspects of litigation does not give insured control over insurer's contractual right to settle a claim. Western Polymer Tech., Inc. v. Reliance Ins. Co. (1995) 32 Cal. App. 4th 14, 22, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 78

Insurer's reservation of rights regarding extent of damages covered by policy as not creating conflict of interest that would require insurer to provide independent counsel for insured. Blanchard v. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. (1991) 2 Cal. App. 4th 345, 349, 2 Cal. Rptr. 2d 884

Premature notification to insured to seek independent counsel did not amount to breach of covenant of fair dealing or, as pleaded, of duty to defend; allegations of premature notification without allegations of injury insufficient to state cause of action for either intentional or negligent infliction of emotional distress. Bogard v. Employers Cas. Co. (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 602, 619-620, 210 Cal. Rptr. 578

Conflict of interest exists when multiple theories of recovery are alleged and some theories involve conduct not covered by policy; when there is conflict of interest, insurer not allowed to compel insured to surrender control of litigation, necessarily implying that insurer has to pay for insured's independent counsel. San Diego Fed. Credit Union v. Cumis Ins. Soc'y, Inc. (1984) 162 Cal. App. 3d 358, 365-369, 208 Cal. Rptr. 494 (decided before enactment of Civ. Code § 2860)

Although insurance contracts have special features, general rules of contract interpretation apply in California. Northrop Grumman Corp. v. Factory Mut. Ins. Co. (9th Cir. 2008) 538 F.3d 1090, 1094

Contractual terms of insurance coverage are enforced whenever possible, even if doing so is inconsistent with proration provisions in other policies. Carmel Dev. Co. v. RLI Ins. Co. (2005) 126 Cal. App. 4th 502, 511-512, 24 Cal. Rptr. 3d 588 (determining which of multiple insurers provided excess coverage)

Traditional assignment of contract principles applied to insurance policies prior to enactment of Ins. Code § 1071.5, which requires insurers that withdraw as insurers to cause liabilities under existing policies to be reinsured and assumed; common-law assignment principles require assignor-insurer to remain liable on policy absent consent of insured to assignment. Baer v. Associated Life Ins. Co. (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 117, 123-125, 248 Cal. Rptr. 236

Insurance policy as contract, and when terms are plain and unambiguous, court as required to hold parties to contract; forced construction of insurance policy to impose liability on insurance company that it has not assumed as improper. Hackethal v. National Cas. Co. (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 1102, 1109, 234 Cal. Rptr. 853 ; Schrillo Co. v. Hartford Accident & Indem. Co. (1986) 181 Cal. App. 3d 766, 771, 226 Cal. Rptr. 717

Insurance policies as interpreted according to rules that govern construction of contracts generally. Zito v. Firemen's Ins. Co. (1973) 36 Cal. App. 3d 277, 284, 111 Cal. Rptr. 392 ; Chase v. National Indem. Co. (1954) 129 Cal. App. 2d 853, 858, 278 P.2d 68

[15] Construction as Question of Law

The proper construction of insurance policy is question of law, which is reviewed independently on appeal. Bluehawk v. Continental Ins. Co. (1996) 50 Cal. App. 4th 1126, 1131, 58 Cal. Rptr. 2d 147

[16] Cooperation Clause

When insurer has reserved rights, resulting in declaratory relief action, policy's "cooperation clause" does not effect waiver of insured's attorney-client or work product privileges with respect to documents sought by insurer. Rockwell Int'l Corp. v. Superior Court (1994) 26 Cal. App. 4th 1255, 1266, 1269-1270, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 153

[17] Costs and Expenses

Underwriters of certificate of errors and omission insurance not entitled to deduct from reimbursement to assured costs and expenses of investigating claim against insured and conducting arbitration. Hertzka & Knowles v. Salter (1970) 6 Cal. App. 3d 325, 329-336, 86 Cal. Rptr. 23

[18] Coverage Disputes

Claim for coverage under insurance policy is contract claim. Loughney v. Allstate Ins. Co. (S.D. Cal. 2007) 465 F. Supp. 2d 1039, 1041

Absent relevant admissions of insured, insurer moving for summary adjudication of issues or summary judgment on merits of case in which coverage is disputed must provide copies of policies or, if policies are missing, secondary evidence sufficient to inform court of relevant terms and conditions of insurance contract. Certain Underwriters at Lloyd's of London v. Superior Court (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 952, 955-959, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 821

Insurer has right to limit policy coverage in plain and understandable language, and is free to limit character and extent of risk it undertakes to assume. Hackethal v. National Cas. Co. (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 1102, 1109, 234 Cal. Rptr. 853

When two causes join in causing injury, one of which is insured against, insured covered by policy. Hughes v. Potomac Ins. Co. (1962) 199 Cal. App. 2d 239, 244, 18 Cal. Rptr. 650 ; Zimmerman v. Continental Life Ins. Co. (1929) 99 Cal. App. 723, 726, 279 P. 464

Insurers' liability under both homeowner's policy and automobile liability policy if injury results from two concurrent negligent acts of insured, one auto-related and other non-auto-related. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v. Partridge (1973) 10 Cal. 3d 94, 106, 109 Cal. Rptr. 811, 514 P.2d 123 ; see also Glens Falls Ins. Co. v. Rich (1975) 49 Cal. App. 3d 390, 394-395, 122 Cal. Rptr. 696

Group accidental-death and dismemberment insurance policy clause providing that coverage terminates on first premium due date following date on which insured ceases to be employee covers injury suffered on evening of first premium due date following termination. Green v. American Cas. Co. (1971) 17 Cal. App. 3d 270, 272-273, 94 Cal. Rptr. 528

[19] Declaratory Relief Actions

In declaratory relief action to determine insurer's obligations under policy, initial burden on insured to prove event is claim within scope of basic coverage; burden then shifts to insurer to prove that claim falls within exclusion. Merced Mut. Ins. Co. v. Mendez (1989) 213 Cal. App. 3d 41, 47, 261 Cal. Rptr. 273

Party's right to jury trial if action for declaratory relief is used as substitute for action at law for breach of contract. Patterson v. Insurance Co. of N. Am. (1970) 6 Cal. App. 3d 310, 315, 85 Cal. Rptr. 665 ; see also Interinsurance Exch. v. Savior (1975) 51 Cal. App. 3d 691, 693-694, 124 Cal. Rptr. 239

Insured in declaratory relief action required to prove coverage under policy whether action was instituted by him or by insurer. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v. Spann (1973) 31 Cal. App. 3d 97, 100, 106 Cal. Rptr. 923

[20] Definitions

"Fire" means a chemical reaction that releases heat and light; summary judgment for insurer reversed and remanded to allow insured's expert to provide evidence that there was a fire. Maffei v. Northern Ins. Co. of N.Y. (9th Cir. 1993) 12 F.3d 892, 896-897

Phrases "legally obligated to pay" and "legal liability," as used in general liability policies, are arguably synonymous and refer to tort liability, not liability based upon negligent failure to perform contract. Wilmington Liquid Bulk Terminals, Inc. v. Somerset Marine, Inc. (1997) 53 Cal. App. 4th 186, 193-195, 61 Cal. Rptr. 2d 727

"Loss" under former Ins. Code § 556 (covering false or fraudulent claims; now see Penal Code § 550) defined as destruction, damage, or deprivation of a person, thing, or amount. People v. Newman (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 646, 650, 284 Cal. Rptr. 628

"Insurance" under Ins. Code § 22 as construed to require two elements: (1) risk of loss to which one party is subject and shifting of that risk to another party, and (2) distribution of risk among similarly situated persons; however, mere fact that contract contains these two elements as not necessarily meaning that agreement constitutes insurance contract for purposes of statutory regulation. Truta v. Avis Rent A Car Sys. Inc. (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 802, 812, 238 Cal. Rptr. 806

"Willful" as connoting act done with malevolence, and "willful tort" as synonymous with "malice in fact" under Ins. Code § 533. California Shoppers, Inc. v. Royal Globe Ins. Co. (1985) 175 Cal. App. 3d 1, 32, 221 Cal. Rptr. 171

Rptr. 80* (discussing cases and repudiating holdings asto meaning of term in Sylla v. United States Fid. & Guar. Co. (1976) 54 Cal. App. 3d 895, 127 Cal. Rptr. 38 and Oil Base, Inc. v. Continental Cas. Co. (1969) 271 Cal. App. 2d 378, 76 Cal. Rptr. 594 , as contrary to established California law)

"Willful act" as used in Ins. Code § 533. Russ-Field Corp. v. Underwriters at Lloyd's (1958) 164 Cal. App. 2d 83, 95-96, 330 P.2d 432

[21] Discovery of Unfair Settlement Practices

In action against insurance company for unfair settlement practices, breach of contract, and breach of duty of good faith and fair dealing, plaintiff entitled to discover names, addresses, and files of other insureds whose claims were handled by plaintiff's claims adjuster because determination of frequency of alleged unfair practices was relevant to plaintiff's action and might lead to admissible evidence. Colonial Life & Accident Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1982) 31 Cal. 3d 785, 790-792, 183 Cal. Rptr. 810, 647 P.2d 86

[22] Duty to Insured

Former 10 Cal. Code Reg § 2695.1 [now see 10 Cal. Code Reg § 2695.4] imposes on insurers duty to advise insureds of applicable claim time limits; insurer's violation of Fair Claims Settlement Practices Regulations (10 Cal. Code Reg 2695.4(a)) may provide basis of estoppel against insurer's assertion of contract limitations defense. Spray, Gould & Bowers v. Associated Int'l Ins. Co. (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 1260, 1269-1274, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 552 . Insurer's exercise of poor judgment in insuring bad risk did not establish duty to insured; property loss caused by pilot's crashing of plane, not by insurer's naming of that pilot in pilot-clause endorsement in policy on airplane; insurer under no duty to investigate named pilot's qualifications. American Cont'l Ins. Co. v. C & Z Timber Co. (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 1271, 1279, 241 Cal. Rptr. 466 (summary judgment for insurer upheld)

Any fiduciary duty owed to insured limited to four corners of insurance contract; implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing not extended beyond contract terms. Gibson v. Government Employees Ins. Co. (1984) 162 Cal. App. 3d 441, 446-452, 208 Cal. Rptr. 511 (insurer has no duty to advise insured of availability of particular kind of insurance or advise of coverage inadequacies obvious to reasonable person)

[23] Emotional Distress

Husband of injured party as capable of having independent cause of action for emotional distress against defendant insurance companies where he was party to insurance contract and effect on him of improper denial of wife's claim was reasonably foreseeable. Delos v. Farmers Inc. Group (1979) 93 Cal. App. 3d 642, 658-659, 155 Cal. Rptr. 843

[24] Estoppel and Waiver

ERISA, when applicable, preempts state estoppel claims; federal equitable estoppel in an ERISA action limited to situations in which wronged party can prove (1) provisions of plan are ambiguous; and (2) oral representations were made to employee; failure to inform insured that insurer would not pay benefits is not enough to satsify ERISA equitable estoppel requirements and insurer therefore was not equitably estopped from invoking a policy provision allowing it to terminate benefit payments under medical insurance plan. Qualls v. Blue Cross of Cal. (9th Cir. 1994) 22 F.3d 839, 845-846

Waiver established only by conduct showing intent to waive rights; denial of coverage on one ground does not, absent clear and convincing evidence, impliedly waive grounds not mentioned in denial letter. Waller v. Truck Ins. Exch., Inc. (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 1, 31-33, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 370, 900 P.2d 619

In insurance context especially, estoppel may arise from variety of circumstances in which insurer's conduct threatens unfairly to impose a forfeiture of benefits on insured; "equitable relief" may be broadly available in proper case to relieve insured of forfeiture under contractual condition of coverage. City of Hollister v. Monterey Ins. Co. (2008) 165 Cal. App. 4th 455, 488, 81 Cal. Rptr. 3d 72

Under commercial lines policy insuring against fire, "Functional Building Valuation" endorsement obligating insurer to pay repair cost or replace building, on condition that insured contract for repair or replacement within 180 days after loss (otherwise obligating insurer to pay market value), operated despite insured's failure to meet condition, when insurer's dilatory conduct caused delay; insurer estopped to assert 180-day contracting condition as bar to benefits. City of Hollister v. Monterey Ins. Co. (2008) 165 Cal. App. 4th 455, 491, 499, 81 Cal. Rptr. 3d 72

Under standard American Institute of Architects (AIA) construction contract (1) requiring owner to maintain property insurance covering interest of owner and contractor; and (2) containing a mutual waiver of owner's and contractor's rights against another for damages covered by that property insurance, owner's insurer could not recover as subrogee for rain damage to interior of facility cause by contractor's alleged negligence; owner's waiver of all claims to extent covered by insurance barred owner's property insurer from recovering as subrogee, even though damage was outside scope of contractor's work. Lloyd's Underwriters v. Craig & Rush, Inc. (1994) 26 Cal. App. 4th 1194, 1199-1201, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 144

In action by employee against employer's group health-plan insurer, arising from insurer's denial of benefits for insured's dependent, in which agent told insured dependent was covered but failed to obtain required form until after claim submitted, plaintiff as entitled to assert estoppel claim in favor of existence of coverage; "no-estoppel" rule generally applicable to claims under Employee Retirement Income Security Act as precluding enlargement of terms of coverage, but as not precluding assertion by eligible claimant of equitable estoppel doctrine to allow payment for coverage under substantive terms of agreement despite defective compliance with procedural claim requirement. Powell v. General Am. Life Ins. Co. (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 817, 821-822, 271 Cal. Rptr. 16

Insurer who acts within reasonable time as allowed to deny reinstatement to all who are uninsurable when they seek reinstatement; waiver as occurring if insurer does not deny reinstatement to uninsurable applicant within reasonable time; whether insurer held premium check beyond reasonable time, thereby waiving premium lapse, as question of fact. Mardirosian v. Lincoln Nat'l Life Ins. Co. (9th Cir. 1984) 739 F.2d 474, 477-478

In juvenile proceedings against insureds' minor son, insurer under homeowner's policy as estopped under facts from asserting that insured's counsel may not recover fees for representing insureds, if representation was initially appropriate; however, insurer as having no obligation to defend under policy because juvenile proceeding was not action for damages, pursuant to policy requirement. United Pac. Ins. Co. v. Hall (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 551, 555-556, 245 Cal. Rptr. 99

Insurer that reserved its rights under comprehensive business-liability policy, while defending insured in action resulting from traffic collision, as not estopped from asserting automobile exclusion two years later on discovering that insured had not exercised automobile-coverage option until after accident in question had occurred; insurer's "postaccident conduct" as not constituting waiver. Hartford Fire Ins. Co. v. Spartan Realty Int'l (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 1320, 1327

Insurer as not estopped from enforcing exclusionary clause regarding paying passengers inpolicy covering airplane when insured's assertion that insurer owed a duty to investigate qualifications of pilot were unfounded in common law or statute, and exclusionary clause was otherwise enforceable. American Cont'l Ins. Co. v. C & Z Timber Co. (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 1271, 1279 n.3, 241 Cal. Rptr. 466 (summary judgment for insurer in declaratory relief action upheld)

Insurer's failure to reinvestigate insurability of applicant each time policy is renewed as not estopping insurer from rescinding policy based on changed circumstances. International Serv. Ins. Co. v. Gonzales (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 110, 117, 239 Cal. Rptr. 341 (finding noncoverage of insured's former spouse who was named in initial policy as spouse, but divorced prior to renewal)

In action under Ins. Code § 790.03(h) (duty to settle third-party claim in good faith), in which demurrers to complaint were sustained without leave to amend, theory of estoppel as not preventing defendant from asserting absence of final judgment in action between insured and insurers (on ground that defendant's bad faith caused insured to file for bankruptcy, which caused stay of civil action and hence nonfinality of judgment), because (1) theory cannot be raised for first time on appeal, and (2) doctrine operates defensively only. Green v. Travelers Indem. Co. (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 544, 555, 230 Cal. Rptr. 13 ; but see Moradi-Shalal v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Cos. (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 287, 297-305, 250 Cal. Rptr. 116, 758 P.2d 58 (prospectively overruling Royal Globe Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1979) 23 Cal. 3d 880, 885-888, 153 Cal. Rptr. 842, 592 P.2d 329 , which allowed private statutory third-party standing)

Essential elements required to be established for doctrine of equitable estoppel to apply. Silva v. National Am. Life Ins. Co. of Cal. (1976) 58 Cal. App. 3d 609, 615, 130 Cal. Rptr. 211

Estoppel which is an element of plaintiff's action as required to be specifically pleaded in complaint; but estoppel which controverts new matter raised in answer as not required to be pleaded. Varela v. Wells Fargo Bank (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 741, 747, 93 Cal. Rptr. 428

Facts constituting waiver or estoppel as not required to be pleaded in complaint; if answer alleges breach of condition, plaintiff as able to prove waiver or estoppel by way of evidence in reply to such defense without any necessity of pleading it. Arnold v. American Ins. Co. (1906) 148 Cal. 660, 668, 84 P. 182 ; see also Walker v. Home Indem. Co. (1956) 145 Cal. App. 2d 318, 325, 302 P.2d 361

[25] Exclusions

Under the "reasonable expectations doctrine," where attempted exclusions in an insurance policy are not clear, plain, and conspicuous enough to negate a layperson's objectively reasonable expectations of coverage, they are unenforceable. Lancaster v. U.S. Shoe Corp. (N.D. Cal. 1996) 934 F. Supp. 1137, 1157

Insurer may seek summary judgment on ground that claim is excluded. Roberts v. Assurance Co. of America (2008) 163 Cal. App. 4th 1398, 1406, 78 Cal. Rptr. 3d 361

When investigation showed that damage to insured's property was result of movement of ancient landslide below property, which was activated by placement of fill soil on adjoining lot and on insured's lot during grading prior to construction, in combination with heavy rains, claim was barred under earth-movement exclusion in builder's risk policy. Roberts v. Assurance Co. of America (2008) 163 Cal. App. 4th 1398, 1406, 78 Cal. Rptr. 3d 361

[26] Excuse for Insured's Nonperformance of Condition

Delay or failure to give insurer notice of claim as required by liability insurance policy as excused if insured had no knowledge of accident and could not have acquired such knowledge by exercise of reasonable diligence; rule as applied where, although insured had knowledge of accident, accident was of apparently such trivial nature that there was no reasonable ground to believe that bodily injury would follow; a fortiori, same excuse as existing if "additional insured" has no knowledge he or she is included within terms of policy insuring named insured who, although present when accident occurs, is not then identifiable as party involved. Wasson v. Atlantic Nat'l Ins. Co. (1962) 207 Cal. App. 2d 464, 468-469, 24 Cal. Rptr. 665 (disapproved on another point in Campbell v. Allstate Ins. Co. (1963) 60 Cal. 2d 303, 307, 32 Cal. Rptr. 827, 384 P.2d 155)

Delay in filing statement within statutory [Ins. Code § 11580.2(b)(2)] and policy limits under uninsured motorist coverage provision in automobile liability insurance policy where uninsured vehicle was a "hit and run" vehicle as excused where claimant is an "additional insured" under terms of policy and did not know that coverage was available under policy. Hanover Ins. Co. v. Carroll (1966) 241 Cal. App. 2d 558, 566, 50 Cal. Rptr. 704

[27] Extrinsic Evidence

Extrinsic evidence to explain meaning of insurance policy as admissible when relevant to interpretation to which language of policy is reasonably susceptible. Garcia v. Truck Ins. Exch. (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 426, 435, 204 Cal. Rptr. 435, 682 P.2d 1100

When extrinsic evidence admissible to explain meaning of written instrument. Gribaldo, Jacobs, Jones & Assocs. v. Agrippina Versicherunges A.G. (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 434, 443, 91 Cal. Rptr. 6, 476 P.2d 406 ; Atlas Assurance Co. v. McCombs Corp. (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 135, 143, 194 Cal. Rptr. 66 ; Patterson v. Insurance Co. of N. Am. (1970) 6 Cal. App. 3d 310, 316, 85 Cal. Rptr. 665

[28] Fraud

Plaintiffs could not recover for fraud based on agent's misrepresentations about coverage provided by health insurance policy when plaintiffs did not read policy and a reading would clearly have disclosed policy's limitations on available benefits. Hadland v. NN Investors Life Ins. Co. (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 1578, 1587-1589, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 88

Insurance agent as possibly liable for negligent misrepresentation, based on agent's failure to disclose particular exclusion in policy while disclosing apparently exhaustive list of other exclusions; duty to disclose as based on fact that very small percentage of policyholders are aware of policy terms; insurer as having duty to disclose policy provisions, pursuant to Ins. Code §§ 780, 781, 790.03. Eddy v. Sharp (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 858, 864-866, 245 Cal. Rptr. 211 (reversing summary judgment in favor of agent)

In action by insured against insurer regarding malpractice defendants' indemnity policy, directed verdict for defendant in fraud cause of action as improperly denied when there was no misrepresentation in policy regarding coverage, and when plaintiff's reliance regarding coverage not expressly set forth in policy was unjustifiable as matter of law. Hackethal v. National Cas. Co. (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 1102, 1111, 234 Cal. Rptr. 853

[31] Insolvent Insurer

Insurance Commissioner, as conservator of insolvent insurance company's assets, holds assets in trust for private parties, primarily insurer's policyholders; assets held in trust by Commissioner pursuant to Ins. Code § 1011 (conservatorship) are not state funds within meaning of California False Claims Act [Gov. Code § 12650 et seq.]; Attorney General has standing to pursue only civil penalties and possibly injunctive relief (but not restitution) under Unfair Competition Law (Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 et seq.), and may not pursue civil remedies under California False Claims Act because assets are not state funds. California v. Altus Finance, S.A. (2005) 36 Cal. 4th 1284, 1290-1291, 1308-1309, 32 Cal. Rptr. 3d 498, 116 P.3d 1175 (answering questions from Ninth Circuit)

CIGA funds may not be used to pay claim if other insurance providing required coverage is available; therefore, CIGA had no liability for any portion of worker's compensation award for employee who suffered cumulative injury during period covered by three insurers, one of which was insolvent at time claim was adjudicated, because remaining two solvent insurers were jointly and severally liable for full amount of employee's claim. Industrial Indem. Co. v. Workers' Comp. Appeals Bd. (1997) 60 Cal. App. 4th 548, 556-559, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 295

In action by purchaser of defective rope against manufacturer and seller of rope, seeking indemnity and other relief arising from underlying tort settlement, manufacturer's motion for summary judgment on complaint and cross-complaint filed by co-defendant was properly granted when its insurer had been placed in liquidation; plaintiff's subrogated insurer was not entitled to recover indemnity from CIGA (Ins. Code § 1063 et seq.), either directly or indirectly, for noncovered subrogation claim. Collins-Pine Co. v. Tubbs Cordage Co. (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 882, 889, 271 Cal. Rptr. 20

When insolvent insurer is placed under conservatorship of Insurance Commissioner or liquidated, court has discretion under Ins. Code § 1020 to stay actions pending against insurer and to set terms and conditions of stay; person injured in shooting incident inside offices of insurance company that was itself insured by another carrier, and that was subsequently placed under conservatorship of insurance commissioner because of insolvency, was required to make binding election between seeking recovery from insolvent insurer's own assets or from proceeds of insurer's insurance coverage. Webster v. Superior Court (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 338, 350-351, 250 Cal. Rptr. 268, 758 P.2d 596

Insurance policy interpreted using same rules applicable to other contracts. GGIS Ins. Svcs. v. Superior Court (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 1493, 1506, 86 Cal. Rptr. 3d 515

"Course of performance" evidence is used not only to interpret an ambiguity, but also to reveal ambiguity in language otherwise thought to be clear; "course of performance" evidence is used to ascertain meaning of parties' agreement, and to supplement or qualify terms of agreement; rules relating to course of performance as extrinsic evidence apply to insurance policy interpretation. Employers Reinsurance Co. v. Superior Court (2008) 161 Cal. App. 4th 906, 920-921, 74 Cal. Rptr. 3d 733

Foreign insurer's conduct under Ins. Code §§ 1610 and 1611 confers jurisdiction on California courts only when conduct is sufficient to establish "minimum contacts" under Code Civ. Proc. § 410.10 and established case law. In re Marriage of Martin (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 1426, 1435, 255 Cal. Rptr. 720

Obligations of insurer under liability policy to defend and indemnify insured are not of such nature as to be subject to attachment so as to confer on California trial court quasi in rem jurisdiction over nonresident insured defendant in action for wrongful death arising out of automobile accident in another state. Javorek v. Superior Court (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 629, 646, 131 Cal. Rptr. 768, 552 P.2d 728

[35] Language of Policy

At pleading stage, insurer moving for demurrer based on insurance policy language must establish conclusively that language unambiguously negates, beyond reasonable controversy, construction alleged in body of complaint. Palacin v. Allstate Ins. Co. (2004) 119 Cal. App. 4th 855, 862, 14 Cal. Rptr. 3d 731

Homeopathic remedy was "drug" within meaning of medical malpractice policy exclusion for drugs not approved by FDA, when remedy qualified as drug under both dictionary definition of "drug" and technical definition provided by federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act administered by FDA. Meza v. Southern Cal. Physicians Ins. Exch. (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 709, 711-714, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 91

In interpreting an insurance contract, objective intent of parties, as evidenced by words of contract, is controlling. Lloyd's Underwriters v. Craig & Rush, Inc. (1994) 26 Cal. App. 4th 1194, 1197, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 144

Words used in insurance policy are construed according to their plain meaning and reasonable expectations of insured. Oliver Mach. Co. v. United States Fid. & Guar. Co. (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 1510, 1515, 1518, 232 Cal. Rptr. 691 ; Farmers Ins. Exch. v. Galvin (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 1018, 1021, 216 Cal. Rptr. 844

If policy language raises any reasonable doubt as to coverage or extent of liability, language is understood in its most inclusive sense. Continental Cas. Co. v. Pacific Indem. Co. (1982) 134 Cal. App. 3d 389, 394, 184 Cal. Rptr. 583

In construing words of insurance policy, court required to give words their plain and ordinary meaning; when language used is clear, court properly not straining construction to impose on insurer liability it has not assumed; meaning of term "property damage" as used in liability insurance policy. Giddings v. Industrial Indem. Co. (1980) 112 Cal. App. 3d 213, 218-220, 169 Cal. Rptr. 278

Absent circumstances to contrary, words in policy are used according to their plain, ordinary, and popular sense. Burke Concrete Accessories, Inc. v. Tolson (1972) 27 Cal. App. 3d 237, 241, 103 Cal. Rptr. 513 ; see also Civ. Code § 1644

[36] Limitations and Exclusions

Applicable limitations period is determined by gravamen of complaint rather than named cause of action; insured that seeks to recover benefits under policy is bound to contractual one-year limitations period. Akin v. Certain Underwriters at Lloyd's London (2006) 140 Cal. App. 4th 291, 299, 44 Cal. Rptr. 3d 284 (although insurer rescinded policies, insured attempted to revive them and recover benefits under their provisions)

Under "all-risks" homeowner's policy, claim for structural damage caused by both earth movement and third-party negligence is properly denied when policy clearly excluded both risks. Tzung v. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. (9th Cir. 1989) 873 F.2d 1338, 1340-1342

Insurer has burden of proof regarding existence of excepted risk or applicability of exclusion. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. v. Martin (9th Cir. 1989) 872 F.2d 319, 321 (citing Searle v. Allstate Life Ins. Co. (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 425, 437-438, 212 Cal. Rptr. 466, 696 P.2d 1308)

"Trading loss" exclusion (in policy purchased by municipal-bond brokerage firm), which applies to market losses sustained by firms as result of ill-advised, unauthorized, or unlucky trading decisions, was held not to preclude coverage merely because trade occurs somewhere in chain of events resulting in loss to insured; exclusion inapplicable to claim based on employee fraud simply because employee's acts included trading activities. Insurance Co. of N. Am. v. Gibralco, Inc. (9th Cir. 1988) 847 F.2d 530, 533

When insurer exercises its right to limit coverage of risks, plain language of that limitation is required to be observed. Wagner v. Director, Fed. Emergency Mgmt. Agency (9th Cir. 1988) 847 F.2d 515, 522

Any provision that takes away or limits coverage reasonably expected by insured must be conspicuous, plain, and clear, must be placed and printed so that it will attract reader's attention, and must be stated precisely and understandably, in words that are part ofworking vocabulary of average lay person. Haynes v. Farmers Ins. Exch. (2004) 32 Cal. 4th 1198, 1204, 13 Cal. Rptr. 3d 68, 89 P.3d 381

Insured parties are not expected to know of statutory limitations or exclusions on coverage not contained in their insurance policies. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. v. Workers' Comp. Appeals Bd. (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 1187, 1199 n.7, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 602, 947 P. 2d 795

Exclusionary clauses are subjected to heightened scrutiny and must be conspicuous, clear, and plain; otherwise, they are strictly construed against insurer; exclusionary provision in automobile insurance policy (limiting per-person liability to statutorily required minimums if permissive user is driving) was inconspicuous and unenforceable in policy otherwise providing for $100,000 limit per person. Thompson v. Mercury Cas. Co. (2000) 84 Cal. App. 4th 90, 94-98, 100 Cal. Rptr. 2d 596

Homeowners' policy exclusion for claims between two "insureds" applied to assault and battery complaint between husband and wife, who had "stormy relationship," but were still legally married and still physically residing in marital home when husband injured wife. Mitroff v. United Servs. Auto. Ass'n (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 1230, 1242-1243, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 759

Under "all-risks" policy, damage due to contractor's substandard performance, which damage was neither readily observable nor apparent on reasonable inspection, falls within policy's latent defect exclusion. Carty v. American States Ins. Co. (1992) 7 Cal. App. 4th 399, 404, 9 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1

Insurer is bound by greater coverage in earlier policy, if insured is not notified of specific reduction in coverage provided by renewal policy. Davis v. United Servs. Auto. Ass'n (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 1322, 1332, 273 Cal. Rptr. 224

Under "all risk" policy, exclusion of loss caused by "latent defect" excludes coverage of loss to insured's property resulting from rupture of kettle filled with molten zinc, caused by defective welding design, because defect was not apparent on reasonable inspection and was therefore latent defect as matter of law. Acme Galvanizing Co. v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 170, 179, 270 Cal. Rptr. 405

Limitations that insurer wishes to place on coverage is required to be stated in conspicuous, plain, and clear language. Strickland v. Federal Ins. Co. (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 792, 802, 246 Cal. Rptr. 345 (coverage for soil-stabilization found under homeowner's policy)

"Family exclusion" is designed to protect insurer from collusion both by and between family members; exclusion is applicable whether family member colludes with another family member, or with adversary who is not family member. Lumbermens Mut. Cas. Co. v. Vaughn (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 171, 181, 244 Cal. Rptr. 567

Lack of causal connection between excluded activity and loss did not render exclusion unenforceable. American Cont'l Ins. Co. v. C & Z Timber Co. (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 1271, 1279 n.3, 241 Cal. Rptr. 466

App. 3d 1320, 1324, 242 Cal. Rtpr 462* ; American Cont'l Ins. Co. v. C & Z Timber Co. (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 1271, 1279 n.3, 241 Cal. Rptr. 466 ; National Union Fire Ins. Co. v. Estate of Meyer (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 866, 872, 237 Cal. Rptr. 632

Exclusionary clause set in conspicuous, boldface type and organized by catagories in order of coverage sections is sufficiently conspicuous. Travelers Ins. Co. v. Lesher (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 169, 185, 231 Cal. Rptr. 791 , disapproved on other grounds, Buss v. Superior Court (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 35, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 366, 939 P.2d 766

[37] Limitation Period

Former 10 Cal. Code Reg § 2695.1 (now see 10 Cal. Code Reg § 2695.4) imposes on insurers duty to advise insureds of applicable claim time limits; insurer's violation of Fair Claims Settlement Practices Regulations (10 Cal. Code Reg 2695.4(a)) may provide basis of estoppel against insurer's assertion of contract limitations defense. Spray, Gould & Bowers v. Associated Int'l Ins. Co. (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 1260, 1269-1274, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 552

Contractual limitation period (12 months after discovery by insured of occurrence giving rise to claim) is applicable only to claim by insured, not to claim by insurer. California Union Ins. Co. v. Poppy Ridge Partners (1990) 224 Cal. App. 3d 897, 903, 274 Cal. Rptr. 191 (action by insurer to recover salvage value of insured property per contract provision)

[38] Lost or Destroyed Policy

through secondary evidence that attests to substance of policy; insured need not prove "actual language" of policy for this purpose. Dart Indus., Inc. v. Commercial Union Ins. Co. (2002) 28 Cal. 4th 1059, 1073, 124 Cal. Rptr. 2d 142, 52 P.3d 79

[39] Misrepresentation by Insurer

National Union Fire Ins. Co. (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 1132, 1152, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 559*

Northwestern Nat'l Ins. Group (1980) 109 Cal. App. 3d 462, 471-472, 167 Cal. Rptr. 296 , disapproved on other grounds, In re Marriage of Arceneaux (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 1130, 275 Cal. [44] Oral Contract With Third Party's Insurer

In action by insured against tortfeasor, seeking damages arising from accident, and against tortfeasor's insurer, seeking damages for breach of oral agreement to settle, dismissal of cause of action against insurer based on Royal Globe Ins.

Co. v. Superior Court (1979) 23 Cal. 3d 880, 153 Cal. Rptr. 842, 592 P.2d 329 , which holds that underlying suit must be concluded prior to action against insurer, as improper because Royal Globe conclusion requirement applies only to bad faith actions under Ins. Code § 790.03(h). Ahmed v. Peterson (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 374, 376, 230 Cal. Rptr. 636 ; but see *Moradi-Shalal v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Cos. (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 287, 297-305, 250 Cal. [48] Punitive Damages

NOTE:

Civ. Code § 3294 was amended in 1980 to define malice, oppression, and fraud; it was again amended in 1987, altering the standard of proof to require proof by clear and convincing evidence, and redefining malice and oppression [see Civ. Code § 3294(a), (c)]. Counsel should use the older cases with care, and only to the extent that the principles expressed in those earlier cases are consistent with the statute as amended.

Punitive damages properly awarded against insurance company when insurer refused to defend insured's employee in bad faith and was guilty of oppression, fraud, or malice. Tibbs v. Great Am. Ins. Co. (9th Cir. 1985) 755 F.2d 1370, 1374-1375

Amendments to Civ. Code § 3294 referring to "despicable" conduct impose new substantive limitation on punitive damage awards; "despicable" is a powerful term that connotes base, vile or contemptible behavior, and indicates that "malice" requires more than a willful and conscious disregard of a plaintiff's rights under current law. College Hosp.,

Inc. v. Superior Court (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 704, 725, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 898, 882 P.2d 894

Award of punitive damages in insurance bad faith case supported by evidence showing that insurer was intentionally dishonest and acted in conscious disregard of insured's rights in denying full first-party coverage; among other things, insurer never advised insured about available coverages, immediately told insured there was no coverage, and made effort to determine coverage only after insured insisted and drew attention to certain policy provisions; moreover, insurer stated that its investigation showed no basis for one portion of claim when it had not undertaken any such investigation. Amerigraphics, Inc. v. Mercury Cas. Co. (2010) 182 Cal. App. 4th 1538, 1559, 107 Cal. Rptr. 3d 307

Punitive damages award reversed when court concluded that although the evidence supported finding that carrier had been negligent, overzealous, legally incorrect, and callous, no evidence existed of behavior that was evil, criminal, recklessly indifferent, or done wth an intent to injure. Tomaselli v. Transamerica Ins. Co. (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 1269, 1286-1288, 31 Cal. Rptr. 2d 433

Insurer's bad faith conduct, such as extreme delay in investigating third party's claim against insured, does not necessarily rise to level of conduct required for punitive damages; third party must present substantial evidence of malice, such as intent by insurer to cause injury to third party, or that insurer acted in conscious disregard of third party's rights. Stewart v. Truck Ins. Exch. (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 468, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 338 (action brought within "window" period allowed under Moradi-Shalal v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Cos. (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 287, 297-305, 250 Cal. Rptr. 116, 758 P.2d 58)

Instruction that punitive damages may be recovered for defendant's fraud, malice or oppression as proper in action for tortious breach of covenant of good faith and fair dealing, without necessity of establishing actual fraud. Pistorius v. Prudential Ins. Co. (1981) 123 Cal. App. 3d 541, 556, 176 Cal. Rptr. 660

"Oppression" within meaning of Civ. Code § 3294, relating to punitive damages, as meaning subjecting person to cruel and unjust hardship in conscious disregard of his rights. Richardson v. Employers Liab. Assurance Corp. (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 232, 246, 102 Cal. Rptr. 547 (oppression by insurer against its insureds was proved)

Actual malice as required to be shown in order for punitive damages to be awarded under Civ. Code § 3294; but malice, including malicious intent, as inferred from circumstances of case. Richardson v. Employers Liab. Assurance Corp. (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 232, 245, 102 Cal. Rptr. 547 (holding malice proved in action by insureds against insurer for failure to settle claim under uninsured motorist provision of automobile liability policy)

"Fraud" as technically referring to number of different legal problems but as word of common usage with commonly accepted meaning, for example, an instance or an act of trickery or deceit especially when involving misrepresentation; an intentional misrepresentation, concealment, or nondisclosure for purpose of inducing another in reliance on it to part with some valuable thing. Fletcher v. Western Nat'l Life Ins. Co. (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 376, 405, 89 Cal. Rptr. 78 ; see Civ. Code § 3294(c)(3)

Promise made with no intention of performing as actionable fraud where other party relies on it as inducement to enter into agreement. Miller v. National Am. Life Ins. Co. (1976) 54 Cal. App. 3d 331, 338, 126 Cal. Rptr. 731

Insured's claim of fraud in inducement, though incident to insurance contract, as in tort and as supporting punitive damage award on proper proof. Miller v. National Am. Life Ins. Co. (1976) 54 Cal. App. 3d 331, 336, 126 Cal. Rptr. 731

Requirements for awarding punitive damages against insurer and its employees for bad-faith refusal to pay medical benefits due insured under his automobile insurance policy. Hale v. Farmers Ins. Exch. (1974) 42 Cal. App. 3d 681, 689-702, 117 Cal. Rptr. 146 , overruled in part, Egan v. Mutual of Omaha Ins. Co. (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 809, 822, 169

Cal. Rptr. 691, 620 P.2d 141

[49] Question of Law

When underlying facts are undisputed, interpretation of insurance policy presents question of law. Loughney v. Allstate Ins. Co. (S.D. Cal. 2007) 465 F. Supp. 2d 1039, 1042

Interpretation of written contract as solely judicial function, unless interpretation turns on credibility of extrinsic evidence, even when conflicting inferences may be drawn from uncontroverted evidence. Garcia v. Truck Ins. Exchange (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 426, 439, 204 Cal. Rptr. 435, 682 P.2d 1100 (insurance contract)

Construction of insurance policy as question of law when case is submitted on stipulation of facts and no evidence in aid of policy language is presented. Bianchi v. Westfield Ins. Co. (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 287, 293, 236 Cal. Rptr. 343 ; Employers Cas. Ins. Co. v. Foust (1972) 29 Cal. App. 3d 382, 385, 105 Cal. Rptr. 505

[50] Reasonable Expectation of Parties

Insured could not have had objectively reasonable expectation that policies covered pre-acquisition torts of after-acquired companies when such coverage was not available in the marketplace at time policies in question were written. Cooper Cos. v. Transcontinental Ins. Co. (1995) 31 Cal. App. 4th 1094, 1109, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 508

Manner in which premiums were assessed supported court's conclusion with respect to insured's objectively reasonable expectations regarding policy coverage. Cooper Cos. v. Transcontinental Ins. Co. (1995) 31 Cal. App. 4th 1094, 1108, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 508

In interpreting an insurance contract, objective intent of the parties, as evidenced by the words of the contract, is controlling. Lloyd's Underwriters v. Craig & Rush, Inc. (1994) 26 Cal. App. 4th 1194, 1197, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 144

Principle of construing insurance contracts to give effect to mutual intent of the parties exists is not to protect subjective belief of insurer, but objectively reasonable expectations of insured. Conway v. Farmers Home Mut. Ins Co. (1994) 26 Cal. App. 4th 1185, 1191, 31 Cal. Rptr. 2d 883

In interpreting standardized provisions in form insurance contract, courts' primary focus is on reasonable expectations of insured when executing contract. Travelers Ins. Co. v. National Union Fire Ins. Co. (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 1390, 1398, 255 Cal. Rptr. 727

Court as taking cognizance of reasonable expectations of parties in entering into contract. Holz Rubber Co., Inc. v. American Star Ins. Co. (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 45, 56 ; Century Bank v. St. Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Co. (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 319, 321, 93 Cal. Rptr. 569, 482 P.2d 193 ; Gray v. Zurich Ins. Co. (1966) 65 Cal. 2d 263, 269, 54 Cal. Rptr. 104, 419 P.2d 168 ; Globe Indem. Co. v. State of California (1974) 43 Cal. App. 3d 745, 751, 118 Cal. Rptr. 75 ; Dillon v. Hartford Accident & Indem. Co. (1974) 38 Cal. App. 3d 335, 345, 113 Cal. Rptr. 396 ; Otter v. General Ins. Co. (1973) 34 Cal. App. 3d 940, 951, 109 Cal. Rptr. 831 ; Hartford Accident & Indem. Co. v. Civil Serv. Employees Ins. Co. (1973) 33 Cal. App. 3d 26, 31, 108 Cal. Rptr. 737 ; State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v. Allstate Ins. Co. (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 508, 517, 88 Cal. Rptr. 246

Courts as interpreting meaning of form contracts according to reasonable expectation of reasonable buyer, thus protecting weaker buyers' expectation at expense of more strongly positioned draftsman. Employers Cas. Ins. Co. v. Foust (1972) 29 Cal. App. 3d 382, 386, 105 Cal. Rptr. 505

[51] Reformation of Policy

If parties attempt reformation years after insurance policy was executed and only after adverse effect on third parties is apparent, prejudice to third parties must be considered in determining initial intent of contracting parties; although policy may eventually be reformed, parties are not free merely to decide between themselves that something other than their clear written provision was their initial intent; court of equity must look at whole picture in deciding if there was mutual mistake that permits reformation. Schools Excess Liab. Fund v. Westchester Fire Ins. Co. (2004) 117 Cal. App. 4th 1275, 1283, 12 Cal. Rptr. 3d 626

Mistake of one party not known or suspected by another party to written contract as not justifying its reformation. Insurance Co. of N. Am. v. Bechtel (1973) 36 Cal. App. 3d 310, 316, 111 Cal. Rptr. 507

Written contract as subject to being reformed by court of equity where, due to mutual mistake on part of parties, it fails to express their true intentions; insurance policy as subject to being reformed to limit or exclude coverage if such was intention of parties, even where rights of third-party claimants who are not parties to insurance contract are adversely affected. Truck Ins. Exch. v. Wilshire Ins. Co. (1970) 8 Cal. App. 3d 553, 559, 87 Cal. Rptr. 604 ; see also Insurance Co. of N. Am. v. Bechtel (1973) 36 Cal. App. 3d 310, 317, 111 Cal. Rptr. 507 (employee insured under group policy is treatedas being in legal status of party to insurance contract, and employer policyholder is treated as agent of insurer)

Third person whom named insured and insurer mistakenly omit from coverage under liability policy as permitted to secure reformation, and party suffering damage who has recovered judgment as properly seeking, or joining in seeking, reformation. Orcutt v. Ferranini (1965) 237 Cal. App. 2d 216, 224, 46 Cal. Rptr. 715

Judgment reforming automobile liability insurance policy after accident to in effect exclude from coverage minor driver of vehicle at time of accident as not res judicata in action by injured third party against insurer to recover amount of its judgment against minor and his parents where third party was not a party to reformation action. Shapiro v. Republic Indem. Co. of Am. (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 437, 439-440, 341 P.2d 289

In action for reformation of excess insurance policy due to mistake, three-year statute of limitations (Code Civ. Proc. § 338(d)) is not tolled as to excess carrier during prosecution of underlying action defended by primary carrier, when (1) action is one for reformation rather than for excess carrier's failure to defend, (2) excess carrier's duty to defend has not commenced because defense has not been tendered to it, and (3) as a matter of law, reformation cause of action accrued more than three years before action was commenced when insured discovered facts constituting mistake. North Star Reinsurance Corp. v. Superior Court (1992) 10 Cal. App. 4th 1815, 1818, 1822-1825, 13 Cal. Rptr. 2d 775

Mistake that results in failure of written contract to express true intent of parties as principle prerequisite to reformation of policy. Am. Home Ins. Co. v. Travelers Indem. Co. (1981) 122 Cal. App. 3d 951, 961 Reformation to include additional insured as not permitted when there has been no objective demonstration that parties intended to cover party in original contract. Am. Home Ins. Co. v. Travelers Indem. Co. (1981) 122 Cal. App. 3d 951, 964, 175 Cal. Rptr. 826

Mistake that results in failure of written contract to express true intent of parties as principle prerequisite to reformation of policy. Am. Home Ins. Co. v. Travelers Indem. Co. (1981) 122 Cal. App. 3d 951, 961

Reformation as unavailable to incidental beneficiary to contract and therefore as also unavailable to party basing standing on rights of incidental beneficiary. Am. Home Ins. Co. v. Travelers Indem. Co. (1981) 122 Cal. App. 3d 951, 968, 175 Cal. Rptr. 826

Intended third-party beneficiary of insurance contract as capable of maintaining action for reformation. Jackson v. Aetna Life & Cas. Co. (1979) 93 Cal. App. 3d 838, 847-848, 155 Cal. Rptr. 905

[52] Reinsurance

Reinsured proved the existence and terms of two reinsurance policies; reinsured presented original excess insurance policy and subsequent endorsement converting it to a reinsurance policy, and although telexes between the broker and the reinsurers discussed cancellation of a portion of the coverage, no discussion occurred about cancellation of the general liability coverage of the reinsurance policy. National Am. Ins. Co. of Cal v. Underwriters (9th Cir. 1996) 93 F.3d 529, 534

[53] Release by Insured

Release of claims, signed by insureds in connection with settlement for uninsured motorist claim, is not subject to interpretation by parole evidence, and bars bad faith causes of action, because release covered "any and all rights," including "general, special, compensatory and punitive damages," and "any and all damages, injuries or claims," insureds had previously threatened to bring bad faith action regarding same conduct, and were represented by attorney when signing re l ease. Edwards v. Comstock Ins. Co. (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 1164, 1167-1169, 252 Cal. Rptr. 807

[54] Renewal of Policy

Insured's acceptance of offer to renew insurance estops insurer from subsequently asserting nonrenewal by retroactively cancelling renewal policy from its inception. Golden Eagle Ins. Co. v. Foremost Ins. Co. (1993) 20 Cal. App. 4th 1372, 1389, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 242

Whether or not insured has accepted renewal policy is determined from totality of the circumstances; insured who never paid renewal premium and told agent that he was seeking cheaper coverage elsewhere nevertheless was found to have accepted renewal policy because he retained renewal certificate for two months before objecting to amount of premium and because there was a pre-existing relationship between insurer and insured. Golden Eagle Ins. Co. v. Foremost Ins. Co. (1993) 20 Cal. App. 4th 1372, 1387-1390, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 242

To effect renewal of insurance policy, both offer to renew and acceptance of offer as required. Fujimoto v. Western Pioneer Ins. Co. (1978) 86 Cal. App. 3d 305, 313, 150 Cal. Rptr. 88

[55] Representations Regarding Coverage

Insurance broker's representation that benefits based on insured's "disability" would continue after insured's death is ineffective because broker was not insurance agent, and because statements were made long after issuance of policy and could not have been relied on by insured in connection with application for insurance. Silva v. Aetna Life Ins. Co. (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 789, 797, 242 Cal. Rptr. 157

[56] Rescission

D&O policies void ab initio because of applicant's material misrepresentations regarding number of prior claims of sexual harassment. United States Specialty Ins. Co. v. Bridge Capital Corp. (C.D. Cal. 2007) 482 F. Supp. 2d 1164, 1165, 1169-1170

When insurance broker completed application for insureds, who did not understand English well and signed without reading it, and questions remained regarding whether broker or insureds later provided information that was initially omitted, summary judgment for insurer reversed in suit by insureds based on violation of Health & Safety Code §

1389.3 (prohibition against postclaims underwriting) in connection with rescission following claim for benefits; to complete medical underwriting, health care service plan must make reasonable efforts to ensure potential subscriber's application is accurate and complete; insurer failed to establish as matter of law that its preissuance investigation met proper standard for completion of medical underwriting; disputed issues of material fact existed regarding whether insureds willfully misrepresented or omitted information in application. Nazaretyan v. California Physicians' Svc. (2010) 182 Cal. App. 4th 1601, 1607-1615, 107 Cal. Rptr. 3d 137

Summary judgment for insurer proper in suit by insured for contract breach, bad faith, and related claims based on rescission some months after issuance of health insurance policy, when insured omitted certain medical condition and treatment on application; insurer entitled to rescind policy based on applicant's material misrepresentations and omissions; pursuant to Ins. Code § 331, concealment, whether intentional or unintentional, entitles injured party to rescind insurance. Nieto v. Blue Shield of Cal. Life & Health Ins. Co. (2010) 181 Cal. App. 4th 60, 75-77, 103 Cal. Rptr. 3d 906 , reh'g denied, 2010 Cal. App. LEXIS 275 (2010)

Health & Safety Code § 1389.3 (prohibition against postclaim underwriting; remedies for willful misrepresentation applicable) precludes health-care services plan from rescinding contract for material misrepresentation or omission unless plan demonstrates either: (1) misrepresentation or omission was willful, or (2) it had made reasonable efforts to ensure subscriber's application was accurate and complete as part of precontract underwriting process. Hailey v. California Physicians' Svc. (2007) 158 Cal. App. 4th 452, 463-468, 69 Cal. Rptr. 3d 789

Insured cannot recover damages under policy in action for rescission under Civ. Code § 1692. Akin v. Certain Underwriters at Lloyd's London (2006) 140 Cal. App. 4th 291, 294, 299, 44 Cal. Rptr. 3d 284

If one party is injured by breach of contract and lacks ability or desire to keep contract alive, that party can choose between two different remedies: (1) treat contract as rescinded and recover damages resulting from the rescission; or (2) treat contract as repudiated by other party and recover damages to which that party would have been entitled had other party not breached contract or prevented that party's performance; election of one bars recovery under other. Akin v. Certain Underwriters at Lloyd's London (2006) 140 Cal. App. 4th 291, 296, 44 Cal. Rptr. 3d 284

In context of insurance case, action for damages for breach of contract may entitle aggrieved party to payment of benefits under policy, but action for rescission only permits aggrieved party to return of premiums and whatever else may be required torestore parties to status quo ante; in action for rescission, parties are treated as though policy of insurance never existed. Akin v. Certain Underwriters at Lloyd's London (2006) 140 Cal. App. 4th 291, 298, 44 Cal. Rptr. 3d 284

Ins. Code §§ 331 and 359 are part of larger statutory framework imposing heavy burdens of disclosure on both parties to insurance contract respecting material representations and provision of requested information; insurer may rescind fire insurance policy based on insured's negligent or unintentional misrepresentation of material fact in insurance application, notwithstanding willful misrepresentation clause included in required standard form fire insurance policy. Mitchell v. United Nat'l Ins. Co. (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 457, 468, 472-474, 479, 25 Cal. Rptr. 3d 627 ; see also Ins. Code §§ 2070, 2071

Liability insurer who undertook defense of insured contractor in third party actions permitted to intervene on behalf of insured in action by co-insurers for rescission of their liability policies, when insured was barred by statute from defending itself and insurer would lose its ability to seek equitable contribution from co-insurers if default judgment of rescission were granted. Truck Ins. Exch. v. Superior Court (1997) 60 Cal. App. 4th 342, 346-350, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 255

[57] Reservation of Rights

Insurer under standard CGL policy, having properly reserved its rights, may advance sums to defend its insured against third-party lawsuit, and may thereafter recoup those costs from insured if it is determined, as matter of law, that no duty to defend ever arose because third-party suit never suggested possibility of covered claim. Scottsdale Ins. Co. v. MV Transp. (2005) 36 Cal. 4th 643, 662, 31 Cal. Rptr. 3d 147, 115 P.3d 460

Insurer that provided defense under reservation of rights is not obligated to pay costs taxed against insured despite "supplemental payments" provision in policy (requiring insurer to pay all costs taxed against insured in suit) when insurer had no duty to indemnify nor defend as matter of law. Golden Eagle Ins. Corp. v. Cen-Fed, Ltd. (2007) 148 Cal. App. 4th 976, 56 Cal. Rptr. 3d 279, 2007 Cal. App. LEXIS 406 , pp27-37

Insurer that stated certain policy provisions as bases for exercising reservation of rights, as properly claiming whatever rights it has under policy; citation of policy rights relied on as not precluding exercise of others. California Union Ins. Co. v. Poppy Ridge Partners (1990) 224 Cal. App. 3d 897, 902, 274 Cal. Rptr. 191

[58] Review

In third appellate district, unauthorized failure of party, party's attorney, or representative of party's insurance carrier, to attend court-ordered appellate mediation necessarily constitutes conduct that unreasonably violates Local Rule 1(d)(9) (Cal. Rules of Ct., Supp. Third App. Dist., Local Rules of Ct., Rule 1, Mediation in Civil Appeals), warranting imposition of sanctions. Campagnone v. Enjoyable Pools & Spas Svc. & Repairs, Inc. (2008) 163 Cal. App. 4th 566, 572, 77 Cal. Rptr. 3d 551

Absent factual dispute, interpretation and application of insurance contracts are issues of law, reviewed de novo. Penn-Am. Ins. Co. v. Mike's Tailoring (2005) 125 Cal. App. 4th 884, 889, 22 Cal. Rptr. 3d 918

Reviewing court is required to make independent determination of whether policy language is ambiguous, looking to words of policy and considering language therein in accordance with its plain and ordinary sense. Johnson v. Continental Ins. Cos. (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 477, 480, 248 Cal. Rptr. 412

Under California law, when evidence is uncontradicted, interpretation of policy as solely judicial function, and reviewing court as not bound by interpretation of trial court. James B. Lansing Sound, Inc. v. National Union Fire Ins. (9th Cir. 1986) 801 F.2d 1560, 1564 ; Morris v. Atlas Assurance Co. (1984) 158 Cal. App. 3d 8, 12, 204 Cal. Rptr. 95

When no extrinsic evidence is introduced to aid in construction, interpretation of policy as presenting question of law, and appellate court as free to make independent determination concerning policy's meaning. Bareno v. EmployersLife Ins. Co. (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 875, 881, 103 Cal. Rptr. 865, 500 P.2d 889 ; Prickett v. Royal Ins. Co. Ltd. (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 234, 237, 14 Cal. Rptr. 675, 363 P.2d 907 ; State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. v. Lewis (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 960, 963, 236 Cal. Rptr. 807 ; Hackethal v. National Cas. Co. (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 1102, 1109, 234 Cal. Rptr. 853 ; Employers Reinsurance Corp. v. Phoenix Ins. Co. (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 545, 553, 230 Cal. Rptr. 792 ; State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v. Eastman (1984) 158 Cal. App. 3d 562, 566, 204 Cal. Rptr. 827 ; Boogaert v. Occidental Life Ins. Co. (1984) 150 Cal. App. 3d 875, 879, 198 Cal. Rptr. 357

Trial court's factual findings supported by substantial evidence as binding on appellate court interpreting insurance policy. Safeco Ins. Co. v. Hale (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 347, 351, 189 Cal. Rptr. 463

Issue that insurer, when renewing policy, may not change its terms without first notifying insured as improperly raised for first time on appeal. Zito v. Firemen's Ins. Co. (1973) 36 Cal. App. 3d 277, 282-283, 111 Cal. Rptr. 392

[59] Scope of Coverage of Particular Policies

Malpractice defendants' indemnity policy providing reimburse ment for expenses and lost income for insured's time spent in court, regarding trial of civil suit for damages related to malpractice, as not applying to time spent in administrative hearing regarding ethics charges and license revocation. Hackethal v. National Cas. Co. (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 1102, 1107-1110, 234 Cal. Rptr. 853

[60] Terminology of Policy

Insurance policy provisions must be given their ordinary meaning. Sentex Sys., Inc. v. Hartford Accident & Indem. Co. (9th Cir. 1996) 93 F.3d 578, 580

A plea for clarity in policies. Insurance Co. of N. Am. v. Electronic Purification Co. (1967) 67 Cal. 2d 679, 691-692, 63 Cal. Rptr. 382, 433 P.2d 174 ; see also Bareno v. Employers Life Ins. Co. (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 875, 878, 103 Cal. Rptr. 865, 500 P.2d 889

Courts interpret words of insurance contract with their ordinary and popular sense, unless words are used in technical sense or special meaning is given to them by usage. GGIS Ins. Svcs. v. Superior Court (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 1493, 1506, 86 Cal. Rptr. 3d 515

Although they have special features, insurance policies are fundamentally contracts and are therefore interpreted using the ordinary rules of contractual interpretation. Bluehawk v. Continental Ins. Co. (1996) 50 Cal. App. 4th 1126, 1131, 58 Cal. Rptr. 2d 147

When extrinsic evidence is admitted as an aid to interpretation of an insurance policy, the appellate court is not bound by the trial court's interpretation but independently determines the meaning of the policy. Golden Sec. Thrift & Loan Ass'n v. First Am. Title Ins. Co. (1996) 53 Cal. App. 4th 250, 256, 61 Cal. Rptr. 2d 442

[61] Third Party Beneficiaries

Insurer that denies coverage and refuses to defend liability action against insured does not have requisite direct and immediate interest in liability action against insured for intervention purposes on ground that plaintiff as judgment creditor may proceed directly against it under Ins. Code § 11580(b)(2); after denial of coverage and defense, insurer may not then intervene in liability action. Hinton v. Beck (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 1378, 1380, 1385-1386, 98 Cal. Rptr. 3d 612

Right of insured's judgment creditor to sue insurer under Ins. Code § 11580(b)(2) does not extend to supplemental payments provision of policy covering defense and interest costs; defense duty and related costs and interest provisions fall outside scope of policy provisions that may be enforced by insured's judgment creditor, if there has been no assignment of cause of action. San Diego Hous. Comm'n v. Industrial Indem. Co. (2002) 95 Cal. App. 4th 669, 691-692, 116 Cal. Rptr. 2d 103

Third party injured on store's premises could bring action directly against store's insurer to recover medical expenses under liability policy's medical payment clause, which provided for payment of medical expenses of persons injured on premises, without regard to fault. Harper v. Wausau Ins. Corp. (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 1079, 1086-1090, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 64

[62] Types of Policies

Insurance policy indemnifying television network for costs if cast member could not work because of illness as not disability policy because it contained no mandatory provisions for disability policies required under Ins. Code §§ 10350.1-10350.12; contractual limitations period of one year as controlling, rather than statutory three-year limitations period for disability policies. CBS Broad. Inc. v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 1075, 1081, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 197

[63] Unfair Competition Actions

Insured stated cause of action for unfair business practices by alleging: (1) insurer's "pattern and practice" of seeking med-pay reimbursement even though insurer never engaged in any discussion, analysis or conclusion that injured party had in fact been made whole; (2) insurer's continuing to seek sums it is not entitled to as a matter of law to further its "unlawful scheme"; (3) insurer's "pattern and practice" of ignoring California law by seeking 100 percent reimbursement for amounts paid under its med-pay provision; and (4) insurer's "systematic scheme" that is contrary to law and nothing more than "sharp, illicit business practice." Progressive W. Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (2005) 135 Cal. App. 4th 263, 283, 37 Cal. Rptr. 3d 434

Insurer's practice of employing "broker-agents" who were not appointed agents, including charging of broker fees for use of persons called brokers who were actually agents, constituted unfair business practice; broker-agents are not exempt from appointment requirement of Ins. Code § 1704(a). Krumme v. Mercury Ins. Co. (2004) 123 Cal. App. 4th 924, 945-948, 20 Cal. Rptr. 3d 485

Purchasers of health insurance policies stated claims for unfair business practices under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200, fraud, and negligence failure to disclose, based on violations of Ins. Code §§ 330, 331, 332, 334, 361, by alleging that insurer failed to notify them of imminent material changes in their insurance policies, resulting in higher premiums and lower coverage, before they purchased policies. Pastoria v. Nationwide Ins. (2003) 112 Cal. App. 4th 1490, 1496-1499, 6 Cal. Rptr. 3d 148

Adoption of Ins. Code §§ 1861.03 and 1861.10 as part of Prop. 103 did not restore or create private action under Ins. Code § 790.03. Maler v. Superior Court (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 1592, 1596-1598, 270 Cal. Rptr. 222

Remedies available under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17203 are limited to injunctive relief and restitution and do not include award of damages. Industrial Indem. Co. v. Superior Court (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 1093, 1095-1097, 257 Cal. Rptr. 655

Compliance with terms of warranty [Ins. Code § 445] as, generally speaking, condition precedent to right of recovery under policy. Chase v. National Indem. Co. (1954) 129 Cal. App. 2d 853, 858, 278 P.2d 68

Provision in fire insurance policy that "This policy being written at a reduced rate based on the protection of the premises by an automatic sprinkler system, it is a condition of this policy that, so far as the sprinkler system and the water supply therefor are under the control of the insured, due diligence shall be used by the insured to maintain them in complete working order ..." as warranty within meaning of Ins. Code §§ 441, 442, and 445. Holz Rubber Co., Inc. v. American Star Ins. Co. (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 45, 55-56 n. 11, 120 Cal. Rptr. 415, 533 P.2d 1055

[67] Wrongful Death Action

Summary judgment for insurer is improper in cause of action for wrongful death, based on denial of hospitalization benefits for depressed patient who then committed suicide, when triable issues of fact remained regarding whether insurer's conduct was substantial factor in causing death. Wilson v. Blue Cross of S. Cal. (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 660, 664, 668-671, 271 Cal. Rptr. 876

[68] Workers' Compensation Carrier

(1972) 7 Cal. 3d 616, 625-631, 102 Cal. Rptr. 815, 498 P.2d 1063* (involving tortious conduct of carrier's investigators in investigating insurance claim); Fremont Indem. Co. v. Superior Court (1982) 133 Cal. App. 3d 879, 881, 184 Cal. Rptr. 184 ; but see Everfield v. State Comp. Ins. Fund (1981) 115 Cal. App. 3d 15, 18-21, 171 Cal. Rptr. 164 (alleged acts of carrier insufficiently outrageous and extreme to avoid exclusivity of worker's compensation remedy)

[1] Accidental Death Benefits

Insurer's failure to investigate whether road in Cuba was "freeway" within meaning of "Freeway Coverage" provision precluded summary judgment for insurer in action to recover death benefits arising from death of insured in Cuban accident; although Swiss Embassy representative concluded that accident did not occur on "freeway," analysis and supporting evidence were neither provided to court nor authenticated. Estate of Parker v. AIG Life Ins. (C.D. Cal. 2004) 317 F. Supp. 2d 1167, 1173

Policy that paid for loss of life due to "bodily injury caused solely by an accident" held to be "accidental death" rather than "accidental means" policy because phrase "accidental means" was not expressly used; therefore proper to instruct jury that as a matter of law death by drowning, unless suicidal, is presumed to be an accidental death, notwithstanding evidence that insured ingested alcohol and Valium prior to accident. Olson v. American Bankers Ins. Co. (1994) 30 Cal. App. 4th 816, 823-824, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 897

"In consequence of," as used in Ins. Code § 10369.12 permitting insurers to exclude losses sustained "in consequence of" insured being intoxicated or under influence of any controlled substance, equated with "proximate cause"; not error to instruct jury that to avoid liability under exclusion, insurer was required to prove that influence of alcohol was "the" (not merely "a") proximate cause of insured's death. Olson v. American Bankers Ins. Co. (1994) 30 Cal. App. 4th 816, 828-831, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 897

Policy covering death by "accidental means" is distinguishable from a policy covering "accidental death"; "accidental death" policies provide coverage for accidental results, i.e. unforeseen or unexpected death; "accidental means" requires that means of death be accidental, and death caused by unintentional overdose resulting from voluntary and intentional act of ingesting cocaine was not death by "accidental means." Weil v. Federal Kemper Life Assurance Co. (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 125, 134-135, 147, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 316, 866 P.2d 774 .

Asphysia resulting from choking on undigested food as accidental death by "external means." Spaid v. Cal-W. States Life Ins. Co. (1982) 130 Cal. App. 3d 803, 806-808, 182 Cal. Rptr. 3

When insured died nearly two years later from injuries sustained in automobile accident, and insurance policy contained double indemnity provision if death occurred within 90 days of injuries from accident, court as applying process of nature rule, admitting evidence of actual causation rather than relying on arbitrary time limitations, and allowing recovery if claimant can prove that death occurred as direct, exclusive result of accident. National Life & Accident Ins. Co. v. Edwards (1981) 119 Cal. App. 3d 326, 332-336, 174 Cal. Rptr. 31

When express terms of insurance policy place burden of providing death was accident on beneficiary, claimant as required to provide theory of why death was accidental; insurance company as acting reasonably in withholding payment and continuing to investigate in absence of evidence showing death was not suicide. Blake v. Aetna Life Ins. Co. (1979) 99 Cal. App. 3d 901, 924, 160 Cal. Rptr. 528

Beneficiary of group life insurance covering beneficary's father is entitled to accidental death benefit (double indemnity), even though circumstances of death brought case within terms of exclusionary provision, insurance was offered and obtained through father's employer, copy of policy was not delivered to father (but was available for inspection), exclusionary provision limited coverage father could otherwise reasonably have expected, and exclusionary provision was not clearly and plainly called to father's attention. Jones v. Crown Life Ins. Co. (1978) 86 Cal. App. 3d 630, 638-640, 150 Cal. Rptr. 375

Beneficiary of one who died as result of self-administered overdose of heroin is entitled to accidental death benefits; death certificate properly certified by local registrar as prima facie evidence, in all courts and places, of facts stated in it; "accident" and "accidental" as never having acquired technical meaning in law and is required to be construed according to ordinary understanding and common usage. Pilcher v. New York Life Ins. Co. (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 717, 720-723, 102 Cal. Rptr. 82

"Accidental death" and "death by accidental means" distinguished. Rooney v. Mutual Benefit Health & Accident Ass'n (1946) 74 Cal. App. 2d 885, 888-889, 170, P.2d 72When disease will and will not be considered intervening cause of death by accidental means. Horton v. Travelers Ins. Co. (1920) 45 Cal. App. 462, 471-473, 187 P. 1070

[2] Annuities

Sales of annuities, like sales of life insurance, do not fall within ambit of California Consumer Remedies Act. Estate of Migliaccio v. Midland Nat'l Life Ins. Co. (C.D. Cal. 2006) 436 F. Supp. 2d 1095, 1109

Classification of annuities as life insurance [Ins. Code § 101] for purposes of Insurance Code as not requiring their classification as insurance for purposes of Revenue and Taxation Code relating to exemption of insurance proceeds from inheritance tax. Estate of Barr (1951) 104 Cal. App. 2d 506, 511, 231 P.2d 876

Annuity contract as differing from life insurance contract; in life insurance policy risk assumed is to pay on insured's death; in pure annuity contract risk assumed is topay as long as insured may live. Equitable Life Assurance Soc'y v. Johnson (1942) 53 Cal. App. 2d 49, 57, 127 P.2d 95 ; see also Estate of Barr (1951) 104 Cal. App. 2d 506, 508, 231 P.2d 876

[3] Application

Contract of insurance arising on insurer's receipt of completed application and first premium payment as not terminated until applicant receives from insurer both notice of rejection of application and refund of premium. Smith v. Westland Life Ins. Co. (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 111, 120-121, 123 Cal. Rptr. 649, 539 P.2d 433

Insurer as generally having right to know all that applicant for life insurance knows regarding applicant's state of health and medical history. Thompson v. Occidental Life Ins. Co. (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 904, 915, 109 Cal. Rptr. 473, 513 P.2d 353

Effect of applicant's good faith belief in his or her "good health." Harte v. United Benefit Life Ins. Co. (1967) 66 Cal. 2d 148, 152, 56 Cal. Rptr. 889, 424 P.2d 329 ; Metropolitan Life Ins. Co. v. Devore (1967) 66 Cal. 2d 129, 140, 56 Cal. Rptr. 881, 424 P.2d 321

Effect of insurer's unreasonable delay in acting on life insurance application if applicant paid first premium and died before application was accepted. Smith v. Minnesota Mut. Life Ins. Co. (1948) 86 Cal. App. 2d 581, 591-592, 195 P.2d 457 ; see also Orcutt v. Ferranini (1965) 237 Cal. App. 2d 216, 224-226, 46 Cal. Rptr. 715

[4] Assignment

Insurance policy as property that can be sold, assigned, or bequeathed by its owner. Sullivan v. Union Oil Co. of Cal. (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 229, 237, 105 P.2d 922 ; Estate of Sears (1960) 182 Cal. App. 2d 525, 530, 6 Cal. Rptr. 148

Life insurance policy as subject to assignment. Curtiss v. Aetna Life Ins. Co. (1891) 90 Cal. 245, 251-252, 27 P. 211 ; see also former Civ. Code § 2764 (now see Ins. Code § 10130)

Language contained in life insurance policy ("assignee ... shall have all right, title and interest of the prior Owner") as entitling assignee to receive notice of impending lapse of policy and consequent right to reinstatement despite fact that Ins. Code § 10173.2, requiring such notice, had not yet been enacted. Estate of Coate (1979) 98 Cal. App. 3d 982, 987-989, 159 Cal. Rptr. 794

[5] Beneficiary

Insured armed forces member has right to change beneficiary of policy issued under Servicemen's Group Life Insurance Act (former 38 U.S.C.S. §§ 765-779, now see 38 U.S.C.S. § 1965 et seq.), even though state court divorce decree required insured to name children of former marriage as beneficiaries, because provisions of the federal act prevail over and displace inconsistent state law under Supremacy Clause. Ridgway v. Ridgway (1981) 454 U.S. 46, 56-60, 102 S. Ct. 49, 70 L. Ed. 2d 39

Ins. Code § 10173.2 requires insurer to give notice to assignees of prospective lapse of policy; no comparable provision applicable to owner-beneficiaries of insurance policies. Mardirosian v. Lincoln Nat'l Life Ins. Co. (9th Cir. 1984) 739 F.2d 474, 477

Failure of insurer to take affirmative action to change beneficiary of life insurance policy on request of insured was not unreasonable behavior constituting violation of covenant of fair dealing, but may be negligent conduct. *National Life & Accident Ins. Ordinary beneficiary of life policy as having merely an expectancy of incomplete and inchoate gift revocable at will of insured; contract beneficiary as having vested right in policy proceeds. Phoenix Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Birkelund (1946) 29 Cal. 2d 352, 360, 175 P.2d 5 ; see also Orcutt v. Ferranini (1965) 237 Cal. App. 2d 216, 220-221, 46 Cal. Rptr. 715 ; *Estate of Welfer (1952) 110 Cal. Cal. 2d 675, 681, 336 P.2d 165)

Execution of holographic will giving insurance proceeds to other than named beneficiaries and evidence of intent to change beneficiary as not substantial compliance with insurer's rules so as to change beneficiary. Moss v. Warren (1974) 43 Cal. App. 3d 651, 656, 117 Cal. Rptr. 796

Member of United States Armed Forces as unable to effect valid change of beneficiary on policy issued under Servicemen's Group Life Insurance Act [former 38 U.S.C.S. §§ 765-779] except through use of designated form filed with Uniformed Services, though serviceman intended to change beneficiaries and executed and submitted forms to effectuate that intent. Hill v. Hill (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 760, 763-766, 100 Cal. Rptr. 458

Code § 790.03*. Greenberg v. Equitable Life Assurance Soc'y (1973) 34 Cal. App. 3d 994, 998-1001, 110 Cal. Rptr. 470 ; but see *Moradi-Shalal v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Cos. [28] Rescission

Insurer properly rescinded life insurance policy after receiving claim for payment by insured's widower following insured's death, based on two inaccurate answers on application regarding existence of other life insurance policies; because insured's failure to disclose other current insurance policies in application was material to insurer's decision to issue policy, and insurer did not waive right to information of material facts, insurer was entitled to summary judgment. West Coast Life Ins. Co. v. Ward (2005) 132 Cal. App. 4th 181, 186-188, 33 Cal. Rptr. 3d 319

[29] Retirement Systems

Provisions for death benefits under retirement systems as differing in important respects from ordinary life insurance policies; for example, retirement benefits as completelystatutory in origin, membership in retirement system as compulsory, and requirements for change of beneficiary as not subject to negotiation. Watenpaugh v. State Teachers' Ret. Sys. (1959) 51 Cal. 2d 675, 681, 336 P.2d 165 ; see also Estate of Richartz (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 292, 294-295, 288 P.2d 857

[1] Application

Ins. Code §§ 10113 and 10381.5 preclude insurer from raising defense of fraud based on insured's statements in application for insurance, if application had not been attached to or endorsed on policy when issued; insurer may not invoke defense of misrepresentations in or omissions from unattached and unendorsed application. Ticconi v. Blue Shield of Calif. Life & Health Ins. Co. (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 528, 540-541, 72 Cal. Rptr. 3d 888

Applicant's failure to answer question in application for polio policy as to whether there had been polio in his family in preceding 90 days where truthful answer, if given, would have been "no," as not depriving him of coverage. Metts v. Central Standard Life Ins. Co. (1956) 142 Cal. App. 2d 445, 451-452, 298 P.2d 621

Application for insurance as required to be construed as it would be taken by ordinary applicant. Metts v. Central Standard Life Ins. Co. (1956) 142 Cal. App. 2d 445, 450, 298 P.2d 621 (involving application for special polio insurance)

Recital in receipt given for first month's premium payment with application for sickness and accident insurance policy that policy would be dated and made effective as of date of payment if, in opinion of company's authorized officers, applicant were insurable and acceptable as a standard risk as a condition subsequent, that is as meaning that applicant was covered until rejected; hence applicant injured after making application and before policy was issued or application was rejected as covered despite insurer's subsequent determination that applicant was unacceptable as a standard risk. Brunt v. Occidental Life Ins. Co. (1963) 223 Cal. App. 2d 179, 181-183, 35 Cal. Rptr. 492

Applicant's cashing of check for returned premium on rejection of his application for polio insurance as not constituting acknowledgment that no contract of insurance had been entered into or barring him from suing to recover insurance benefits. Metts v. Central Standard Life Ins. Co. (1956) 142 Cal. App. 2d 445, 453, 298 P.2d 621

[2] Arbitration

Binding arbitration clause in individual disability insurance policy upheld despite assertedly contrary language in Certificate of Insurance. Boghos v. Certain Underwriters at Lloyd's of London (2005) 36 Cal. 4th 495, 503-509

[3] Construction of Policy

Health policy unambiguously stated that benefits were not payable after cancellation of coverage, and that benefits were only payable for covered charges incurred during lifetime of policy, not lifetime of insured; numerous policy provisions regarding termination would be rendered meaningless if policy was interpreted to provide "lifetime" benefits. Fraker v. Sentry Life Ins. Co. (1993) 19 Cal. App. 4th 276, 284, 23 Cal. Rptr. 2d 372

Disability insurance policy as construed in favor of insured where two constructions are reasonable. Schilk v. Benefit Trust Life Ins. Co. (1969) 273 Cal. App. 2d 302, 307, 78 Cal. Rptr. 60

Judgment against insurer providing plaintiff insured with reimbursement for each of several operations necessarily resulting from plaintiff's accident where insurer contended that policy provided liability for one operation only if as result of injury more than one operation becomes necessary as proper where policy stated that it provided benefits for "surgical operations" that result "from accidental bodily injuries." Williams v. Seaboard Life Ins. Co. of Am. (1969) 274 Cal. App. 2d 95, 99-100, 78 Cal. Rptr. 597

Phrase "at or above the wrist" in accident policy defining term "loss of limb" as physical separation of hand at or above the wrist as ambiguous. Crawford v. Lloyds London (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 524, 528, 80 Cal. Rptr. 70

"Premium due date," in context of group disability insurance, as reasonably interpreted to refer either to date on which group's collective premium is due from employer, or alternatively, to date on which premium is paid by payroll deduction. Williams v. American Cas. Co. (1971) 6 Cal. 3d 266, 273-274, 98 Cal. Rptr. 814, 491 P.2d 398

[4] Covenant of Good Faith

State tort action for bad faith handling of disability insurance when plan was part of collective bargaining agreement as required to be treated as 29 U.S.C.S. § 185(a) (violation of union labor contract) claim, or dismissed as preempted by federal labor-contract law. Allis-Chalmers Corp. v. Lueck (1985) 471 U.S. 202, 105 S. Ct. 1904, 85 L. Ed. 2d 206, 221

Knowing misstatement of definition of total disability under California law to insured claiming under disability policy, and to physician examining insured to determine disability, as constituting bad faith claims practice. Moore v. American United Life Ins. Co. (1984) 150 Cal. App. 3d 610, 620-621, 637-638, 197 Cal. Rptr. 878

[5] Coverage

Dual role of ERISA plan administrator in both determining eligibility for benefits and paying benefits "out of its own pocket" creates conflict of interest that reviewing court should consider in determining whether plan administrator has abused its discretion in denying benefits. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co. v. Glenn (2008) 554 U.S. 105, 128 S. Ct. 2343,

2348-2351, 171 L. Ed. 2d 299

Pursuant to Ins. Code § 10123.15, disability policies must provide same coverage for bipolar disorders as for other brain disorders. Bosetti v. United States Life Ins. Co. (2009) 175 Cal. App. 4th 1208, 1231-1232, 96 Cal. Rptr. 3d 744 , rev. denied, 2009 Cal. LEXIS 10796 (2009)

When mental symptoms arise from separate physical causal event, or physical symptoms arise from separate mental causal event, "mental disorder" is necessarily ambiguous, absent dispositively precise definition in disability policy. Bosetti v. United States Life Ins. Co. (2009) 175 Cal. App. 4th 1208, 1233, 96 Cal. Rptr. 3d 744 , rev. denied, 2009 Cal. LEXIS 10796 (2009)

Unconditional coverage for newborns required by Ins. Code § 10119 extends only for 31 days, and insurer's requirement of evidence of insurability (i.e., proof of good health) in any application made after expiration of the 31-day period was not a prohibited limitation of coverage under the statute; insurer could deny coverage when insured waited 49 days after birth before submitting written application for dependent coverage. Redlands Cmty. Hosp. v. New England Mut. Life Ins. Co. (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 898, 908, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 582

Accident insurance covering loss of limbs, and defining "loss" of legs as "actual severance," as not covering loss of use of legs because of spinal injury caused by traffic accident. Suarez v. Life Ins. Co. of N. Am. (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 1396, 1403, 254 Cal. Rptr. 377

National Life & Accident Ins. Co. (1960) 2 Cal. Rptr. 454*

"Disability insurance." California Physicians' Serv. v. Garrison (1946) 28 Cal. 2d 790, 803, 172 P.2d 4

"Health care service plan" (HMO) under Knox-Keene Act (Health & Safety Code § 1340 et seq.) is any person who undertakes to arrange for provision of health care services to subscribers or enrollees, or to pay for or to reimburse any part of cost for those services, in return for prepaid or periodic charge paid by or on behalf of subscribers or enrollees; HMO not precluded from delegating liability for health care decisions. Watanabe v. California Physicians' Svc. (2008) 169 Cal. App. 4th 56, 66-67, 86 Cal. Rptr. 3d 374

"Injury" defined in disability policy as "accidental bodily injury sustained ... directly and independently of disease or bodily infirmity, or any other causes" did not encompass repetitive keyboard typing resulting in carpal tunnel syndrome; typing did not become "accident" merely because cumulative effect of long period of typing was onset of that condition. Gin v. Pennsylvania Life Ins. Co. (2005) 134 Cal. App. 4th 939, 945-946, 36 Cal. Rptr. 3d 571

"Violent means." Horton v. Travelers Ins. Co. (1920) 45 Cal. App. 462, 470-471, 187 P. 1070

[7] Estoppel

ERISA, when applicable, preempts state estoppel claims; federal equitable estoppel in an ERISA action limited to situations in which wronged party can prove (a) provisions of plan are ambiguous; and (b) oral representations were made to employee; failure to inform insured that insurer would not pay benefits is not enough to satisify ERISA equitable estoppel requirements and insurer therefore was not equitably estopped from invoking a policy provision allowing it to terminate benefit payments under medical insurance plan. Qualls v. Blue Cross of Cal. (9th Cir. 1994) 22 F.3d 839, 845-846

In action by employee against employer's group health-plan insurer, arising from insurer's denial of benefits for insured's dependent after agent told insured that dependent was covered but failed to obtain required form until after claim was submitted, plaintiff was entitled to assert estoppel claim; "no-estoppel" rule generally applicable to ERISA claims precludes use of estoppel to create additional coverage that did not otherwise exist under substantive provisions of benefit plan, but estoppel could be used to obtain coverage within scope of benefits offered. Powell v. General Am. Life Ins. Co. (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 817, 821-822, 271 Cal. Rptr. 16

Preexisting condition exclusion as applicable if condition was manifest to insured at time policy obtained; sickness as manifesting itself when symptoms would cause reasonable person to seek medical consultation; establishment, as matter of law, of preexisting condition within context of policy language as supporting insurer's motion for summary judgment. Mogil v. California Physicians Corp. (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 1030, 1034, 1041, 267 Cal. Rptr. 487

Long term disability policy excluding coverage for treatment of "mental or nervous disorders" if insured is not confined to institution specializing in that particular disorder, as excluding outpatient treatment for manic depression; manic depression as "mental disorder" within meaning of policy despite characterization as having physical etiology. Equitable Life Assurance Soc'y v. Berry (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 832, 840, 260 Cal. Rptr. 819 , superseded by statute as stated in Bosetti v. United States Life Ins. Co. (2009) 175 Cal. App. 4th 1208, 1229-1232, 96 Cal. Rptr. 3d 744

Notwithstanding representations in insurer's brochure that hospital policy was supplementary insurance, exclusion in policy respecting benefits insured not required to pay as applicable to benefits paid under Medicare Plan A which is not voluntarily financed but mandatorily financed under contracts between hospital and federal government. Appleman v. National-Ben Franklin Ins. Co. (1978) 84 Cal. App. 3d 1012, 1014-1015, 149 Cal. Rptr. 117

Provision in medical and hospital insurance policy excluding hospitalization or medical treatment furnished by or on behalf of federal or state government as excluding only liability for services rendered without charge. Migliore v. Sheet Metal Workers' Welfare Plan (1971) 18 Cal. App. 3d 201, 205-206, 95 Cal. Rptr. 669

[9] Federal Preemption

Two-part test to determine whether state law regulates insurance within purview of ERISA § 514(b) (29 U.S.C. § 1144(b)(2) provides that: (1) state law must be specifically directed toward entities engaged in insurance, and (2) state law must substantially affect risk-pooling arrangement between insurer and insured). Coast Plaza Doctors Hospital v. Blue Cross of Cal. (2009) 173 Cal. App. 4th 1179, 1187, 93 Cal. Rptr. 3d 479

In California, health care providers are statutorily required to provide emergency care to patient without regard to patient's ability to pay for care; if patient who receives emergency care is enrollee of health care service plan, Health & Safety Code § 1371 requires plan to reimburse provider for cost of emergency care, absent certain exceptions. Coast Plaza Doctors Hospital v. Blue Cross of Cal. (2009) 173 Cal. App. 4th 1179, 1182, 93 Cal. Rptr. 3d 479

Health & Safety Code § 1371.4 (requiring Knox-Keene plan to reimburse provider for cost of emergency care given to patient who is plan enrollee) is not subject to ordinary preemption under ERISA because it falls under purview of ERISA's saving clause; trial court committed reversible error by sustaining insurer's demurrer to hospital's complaint for recovery of cost of emergency services rendered. Coast Plaza Doctors Hospital v. Blue Cross of Cal. (2009) 173 Cal. App. 4th 1179, 1189, 93 Cal. Rptr. 3d 479

[10] Fraudulent Claims

Various paragraphs of Penal Code § 550(a) describe different means of committing single crime of insurance fraud; defendant cannot be convicted of multiple violations of § 550(a) for same act. People v. Zanoletti (2009) 173 Cal. App. 4th 547, 556, 92 Cal. Rptr. 3d 757

Multiple convictions under Penal Code § 550(a) are appropriate when based on different acts of fraud. People v. Zanoletti (2009) 173 Cal. App. 4th 547, 556-558, 92 Cal. Rptr. 3d 757

Insurance fraud under Penal Code § 550 is concerned with means, rather than the end; under Penal Code § 550(a)(5), crime is complete when individual knowingly prepares, makes, or subscribes any writing, with intent to present or use it, or to allow it to be presented, in support of any false or fraudulent claim; under Penal Code § 550(a)(1), crime is complete when fraudulent claim is "presented." People v. Zanoletti (2009) 173 Cal. App. 4th 547, 560, 92 Cal. Rptr. 3d 757

Various paragraphs of Penal Code § 550(a) describe different means of committing single crime of insurance fraud; defendant cannot be convicted of multiple violations of section 550(a) for same act. People v. Zanoletti (2009) 170 Cal. App. 4th 1516, 1524-1525, 89 Cal. Rptr. 3d 156

Penal Code § 550(b)(3), prohibiting concealment or knowing failure to disclose occurrence of event affecting continued right to receive insurance benefit, requires specific intent to defraud. People v. Blick (2007) 153 Cal. App. 4th 759, 774-775, 63 Cal. Rptr. 3d 260

[11] Inception of Illness or Disability

Illness or disability as deemed to have its inception when it first becomes manifest or when there is distinctive symptom or condition from which expert may diagnose disease with reasonable accuracy. Bower v. Roy-Al Corp. (1973) 33 Cal. App. 3d 1027, 1033, 109 Cal. Rptr. 612

[12] Incontestability Clause

Disability coverage offered by the Department of Veterans Affairs of the State of California under a Cal-Vet program is not form of insurance subject to Insurance Code and is not subject to provisions of Insurance Code requiring disability policies to include incontestability clause. Sweatman v. Department of Veterans Affairs (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 62, 68-74, 104 Cal. Rptr. 2d 602, 18 P.3d 29

Statutory incontestability clause in disability policies (Ins. Code § 10350.2), intended to remove fraud as a defense after the passage of two years, controls over nonrequired policy provisions less favorable to insured; Ins. Code § 10350.2 places effective, mandatory limits on insurer's ability to deny disability benefits on account of preexisting condition, regardless of when the condition first became manifest; if any nonrequired policy provision, such as a definitional provision, is in conflict with any required provision, such as an incontestability clause, insurer's rights, duties and obligations are governed by required provisions. Galanty v. Paul Revere Life Ins. Co. (2000) 23 Cal. 4th 368, 375, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 67, 1 P.3d 658

[13] Lien on Insurer's Recovery From Tortfeasor

Validity of clause in group health service agreement conditioning benefits on member's agreement to reimburse group for benefits paid on collection of damages and allowing group a lien to extent of benefits provided to be filed with person whose act caused injuries, his agent, or court. Block v. Cal. Physicians' Serv. (1966) 244 Cal. App. 2d 266, 272-273, 53 Cal. Rptr. 51

[14] Life and Disability Insurance Compared

Risk assumed by disability insurance policy as different from risk assumed by life insurance contract. Baine v. Continental Assurance Co. (1942) 21 Cal. 2d 1, 4, 129 P.2d 396

[15] Notice of Claim

Form A, in Ins. Code § 10350.5, relating to disability policies and concerning notice of claim, as not prescribing a 20-day period as a contractual absolute, but as meaning that notice of claim may be given after 20-day period if given as soon as is reasonably possible. Joyce v. United Ins. Co. (1962) 202 Cal. App. 2d 654, 661, 21 Cal. Rptr. 361

Failure to give, or delay in giving, required notice of loss under disability insurance policy providing for giving of notice of claim "as soon as practicable," "promptly," "immediately," or in similar language, as not fatal to recovery under policy unless insurer has been prejudiced by such failure or delay. Joyce v. United Ins. Co. (1962) 202 Cal. App. 2d 654, 662, 21 Cal. Rptr. 361

Failure of insured to notify defendant insurer of accident in which plaintiff was injureduntil some seven and one-half months later as not barring recovery on policy requiring notice be given as soon as practicable, unless defendant insurer was in fact prejudiced by delay. Gibson v. Colonial Ins. Co. (1949) 92 Cal. App. 2d 33, 36, 206 P.2d 387 (disapproved on another point in Campbell v. Allstate Ins. Co. (1963) 60 Cal. 2d 303, 307, 32 Cal. Rptr. 827, 384 P.2d 155)

[16] Offset of Workers' Compensation Benefits

Disability insurer as entitled to offset only temporary disability benefits received by insured from workers' compensation benefits. Russell v. Bankers Life Co. (1975) 46 Cal. App. 3d 405, 416, 120 Cal. Rptr. 627

[17] Policy Provisions

"Total disability" does not signify absolute state of helplessness, but means disability that renders insured unable to perform the substantial and material acts necessary to the prosecution of a business or occupation in usual or customary way. Hecht v. Paul Revere Life Ins. Co. (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 30, 32, 85 Cal. Rptr. 3d 18

Ins. Code § 10176.2, providing that disability insurance policy may provide that physical therapy services will be paid only if prescribed by physician or surgeon, as not operating to discriminate unreasonably against chiropractors. California Chiropractic Ass'n v. Board of Admin. (1974) 40 Cal. App. 3d 701, 704-708, 115 Cal. Rptr. 286

[18] Punitive Damages

Punitive damages as properly awarded when insurer demonstrated bad faith in refusing plaintiff's disability claim by taking inconsistent position that plaintiff was disabled for purpose of determining accuracy of medical policy application but not disabled for purpose of recovery under disability policy. Austero v. Washington Nat'l Ins. Co. (1982) 132 Cal. App. 3d 408, 418, 182 Cal. Rptr. 919

Termination of disability payments in disregard of medical report that plaintiff remained disabled and unreasonable delay in resuming payments after medical consultant confirmed plaintiff's inability to work as grounds for punitive damage award. Pistorius v. Prudential Ins. Co. (1981) 123 Cal. App. 3d 541, 548, 549, 176 Cal. Rptr. 660

Punitive damage award of $5 million as excessive as matter of law since it was 40 times larger than compensatory damage award and it represented two and one half months of insurer's net income for one year and more than seven months of income for another year. Egan v. Mutual of Omaha Ins. Co. (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 809, 823-824, 157 Cal. Rptr. 482, 598 P.2d 452

Knowingly false representation by insurer that insured under health and accident insurance policy would receive lifetime benefit payments under policy in event she was permanently disabled by reason of sickness or injury made to induce insured not to cancel policy and resulting in actual damages to insured (amount of premiums paid for insurance coverage which insurer did not intend to provide as supporting award of punitive damages). Wetherbee v. United Ins. Co. of Am. (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 921, 929-932, 71 Cal. Rptr. 764 (trial court awarded actual damages in sum of $1,050 and punitive damages in amount of $500,000; appellate court held amount of punitive damages awarded was excessive as matter of law and reversed for retrial on issue of amount to be awarded; on retrial jury awarded $200,000 punitive damages and this award was affirmed on appeal [Wetherbee v. United Ins. Co. of Am. (1971) 18 Cal. App. 3d 266, 95 Cal. Rptr. 678])

[19] Question of Fact

[1] In General

Under Washington law, policy language covered not only actual collapse, but also imminent collapse; collapse provision contained additional language indicating intent to extend broader coverage. Assurance Co. of Am. v. Wall & Assocs. LLC of Olympia (9th Cir. 2004) 379 F.3d 557, 562-563

Insurer entitled to summary judgment in action by insured for bad faith because insurer's denial of claim for burglarized items was based on insured's fraud in inflating value of stolen property. Feldman v. Allstate Ins. Co. (9th Cir. 2003) 322 F.3d 660, 670

Breach of contract claim failed as matter of law when policy explicitly excluded coverage for damage caused by landslide and third-party negligence, and claim's viability depended on existence of that coverage. Loughney v. Allstate Ins. Co. (S.D. Cal. 2007) 465 F. Supp. 2d 1039, 1043

Homeowners' policy defining term "collapse" to mean "actually fallen down or fallen into pieces" did not cover imminent collapse of deck attached to house; no public policy overrides express provision of policy. Rosen v. State Farm Gen. Ins. Co. (2003) 30 Cal. 4th 1070, 1073-1075, 135 Cal. Rptr. 2d 361, 70 P.3d 351 (distinguished from Doheny W. Homeowners' Ass'n v. Am. Guarantee & Liab. Ins. Co. (1997) 60 Cal. App. 4th 400, 402-403, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 260 , in which policy did not specifically define "collapse"); see also Jordan v. Allstate Ins. Co. (2004) 116 Cal. App. 4th 1206, 1221-1222, 11 Cal. Rptr. 3d 169

Builder's risk policy providing first-party coverage during course of construction, and covering "direct physical loss to Covered Property from any covered loss," did not cover damages to structure caused by earth movement; loss fell within "earth movement" exclusion. Roberts v. Assurance Co. of America (2008) 163 Cal. App. 4th 1398, 1406, 78 Cal. Rptr. 3d 361

Although insurer's interpretation of policy exclusion for wet or dry rot was reasonable, it also had duty to investigate insured's claim based on additional coverage provisions relating to entire collapse of structure, which appellate court had held, in prior related case, was also reasonable and consistent with insured's objectively reasonableexpectations. Jordan v. Allstate Ins. Co. (2007) 148 Cal. App. 4th 1062, 1074, 56 Cal. Rptr. 3d 312

Commercial policy that provided coverage only for "direct physical loss" to property did not cover loss resulting from destroyed computer data after computer "crash." Ward Gen. Ins. Servs. v. Employers Fire Ins. Co. (2003) 114 Cal. App. 4th 548, 556-557, 7 Cal. Rptr. 3d 844

Insurers not required by public policy or common-law duty to investigate fitness of pilots specifically authorized by policy to operate insured aircraft. American Cont'l Ins. Co. v. C & Z Timber Co. (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 1271, 1277-1279, 241 Cal. Rptr. 466 (summary judgment for insurer upheld)

Action to recover on insurance policy covering loss of aircraft. Executive Aviation, Inc. v. National Ins. Underwriters (1971) 16 Cal. App. 3d 799, 805-810, 94 Cal. Rptr. 347

Insurance policy as not insuring property but interest in property of person for whose benefit policy is issued and who is named in it as the insured. Benton v. Cravens, Dargan & Co. (1961) 188 Cal. App. 2d 637, 643, 10 Cal. Rptr. 740

[2] Aircraft Policies

Policy insuring private airplane that required insurer to pay for physical damage to aircraft, including disappearance of aircraft, provided coverage for reimbursement of expenses reasonably incurred to prevent further physical loss after government seizure when no probable cause was found to seize airplane in subsequent civil forfeiture proceeding. American Alternative Ins. Corp. v. Superior Court (2006) 135 Cal. App. 4th 1239, 1248-1249, n.2, 37 Cal. Rptr. 3d 918 (also involving endorsement deleting exclusion of coverage for government seizure)

Damages proximately caused by fueling of aircraft are within coverage of aircraft insurance policy that covers damages arising out of use or maintenance of aircraft. Transport Indem. Co. v. Schnack (1982) 131 Cal. App. 3d 149, 151-154, 182 Cal. Rptr. 256

Provision in helicopter insurance policy excluding damage "due and confined to" mechanical failure did not preclude recovery for damage to hull of helicopter that crashed when fan blade in engine component sheared off and traveled backward through engine, causing engine failure, but did preclude recovery for damage to engine. Cobb v. Home & Auto. Ins. Co. (1978) 86 Cal. App. 3d 673, 679, 150 Cal. Rptr. 370

[3] All-Risk Homeowners' Policy

All-risk homeowners' policy expressly excluded coverage for loss of value of house caused by unfinished renovation project, pursuant to exclusion of coverage for loss caused by inadequate repair, construction, renovation, or remodeling. Wilson v. Farmers Ins. Exch. (2002) 102 Cal. App. 4th 1171, 1174-1177, 126 Cal. Rptr. 2d 305

[4] Burden of Proof

In action on "all-risks" policy as opposed to "specific peril" policy, insurer has burden of proving insured's loss was proximately caused by peril specifically excluded from coverage. Pieper v. Commercial Underwriters Ins. Co. (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 1008, 1018-1020, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 551 (homeowners policy); Southern Ins. Co. v. Domino of Cal.,

Inc. (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 619, 626, 219 Cal. Rptr. 112 (involving action by insurer against insured for declaratory relief concerning loss of business merchandise); Strubble v. United Servs. Auto. Ass'n (1973) 35 Cal.App. 3d 498, 504, 110 Cal. Rptr. 828 (involving homeowners all-risks of physical loss insurance policy)

In action on policy to recover for loss of aircraft, insured has burden of proving contract of insurance and its terms, as well as loss, and insurer has burden of bringing itself within any exculpatory clause contained in policy. Executive Aviation, Inc. v. National Ins. Underwriters (1971) 16 Cal. App. 3d 799, 806, 94 Cal. Rptr. 347

[5] Condominium Insurance

Because condominium owner's insurance policy covered real property items that "are your insurance responsibility as expressed or implied under the governing rules of the condominium," and insured submitted claim for water damage to walls andfloors, demurrer to complaint for breach of contract and bad faith on ground of no coverage as matter of law was properly sustained, based on assertion that damaged items were not insured's "insurance responsibility" under homeowners association rules; however, court should have allowed insured to amend complaint because whether property damage was insured's implied responsibility under homeowner association rules and whether damage was to "improvements" were issues open to interpretation. Palacin v. Allstate Ins. Co. (2004) 119 Cal. App. 4th 855, 864-868

Meaning of "sue and labor clause." Young's Mkt. Co. v. American Home Assurance Co. (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 309, 313-315, 93 Cal. Rptr. 449, 481 P.2d 817

In "California Special Multi-Peril Policy" issued to business, "business income" provision (business-interruption clause) led ordinary insured to conclude that, in event of covered loss that forced complete suspension of its business operations, policy would cover any lost profits; if there were no lost profits, policy would cover ongoing expenses incurred during period of suspension. Amerigraphics, Inc. v. Mercury Cas. Co. (2010) 182 Cal. App. 4th 1538, 1551-1554, 107 Cal. Rptr. 3d 307

In "California Special Multi-Peril Policy" issued to business, "business income" provision (business-interruption clause) covered both elements stated in policy definition, i.e., that insured was entitled to recover both net income and continuing normal operating expenses without having to offset one against the other. Amerigraphics, Inc. v. Mercury Cas. Co. (2010) 182 Cal. App. 4th 1538, 1548, 1554, 107 Cal. Rptr. 3d 307

Under a property insurance policy, insurer is not liable for reimbursing investigation costs incurred by insured when investigation ultimately discloses no covered loss, unless there is policy language requiring reimbursement. McMillin Scripps N. P'ship v. Royal Ins. Co. (1993) 19 Cal. App. 4th 1215, 1220-1221, 23 Cal. Rptr. 2d 243

All-risk policy excluding loss caused by mere disappearance of property, or loss or shortage of property disclosed on taking inventory, was not vague or ambiguous, and did not require construction against insurer. Southern Ins. Co. v. Domino of Cal., Inc. (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 619, 624, 219 Cal. Rptr. 112

Interpretation of "necessity of destruction" in insurance policy covering loss from death of race horse. Donnelly v. Underwriting Members of Lloyd's (1942) 51 Cal. App. 2d 739, 742-743, 125 P.2d 530

Duty of insured to prevent and mitigate insurable loss and obligation of insurer to reimburse for expenses so incurred were separate questions; fulfillment of duty to mitigate gives rise to obligation of reimbursement under sue and labor clause if mitigation expenses are for primary benefit of insurer and not incidental to insured's obligation to mitigate. Southern Cal. Edison Co. v. Harbor Ins. Co. (1978) 83 Cal. App. 3d 747, 759, 148 Cal. Rptr. 106

Interpretation of policy when evidence is uncontradicted is solely a judicial function; reviewing court not bound by trial court's interpretation. Graydon-Murphy Oldsmobile v. Ohio Cas. Ins. Co. (1971) 16 Cal. App. 3d 53, 57, 93 Cal. Rptr. 684

Property insurance policy containing vacancy exclusion with exception for "building under construction" may cover water damage that occurred while building was vacant during renovations to existing structure; "construction" cannot reasonably be understood to be limited only to erection of new structures. TRB Invs., Inc. v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. (2006) 40 Cal. 4th 19, 22-23, 31, 50 Cal. Rptr. 3d 597, 145 P.3d 472 (reversing summary judgment for insurer, and remanding for proceedings consistent with opinion)

Exclusion in homeowner's policy precluding coverage for bodily injury or propertydamage arising out of sale or transfer of real property, including known or unknown property defects, precluded defense duty and coverage regarding claims brought against insured sellers of real property by purchasers, alleging personal injury and property damage based on negligence, fraud, and contract breach with regard to construction and design defects. Davis v. Farmers Ins. Group (2005) 134 Cal. App. 4th 100, 106-107, 35 Cal. Rptr. 3d 738 ("course of construction" policy converted to homeowner's policy and second homeowner's policy)

Exclusion in commercial lines policy from coverage for "water that backs up from" sewer or drain encompassed exclusion from coverage for sewage that inevitably accompanies water in sewer; damage resulting from clogged sewer line that caused raw sewage to flow into basement was therefore not covered under policy terms covering discharge of "pollutants" caused by discharge of water directly resulting from breaking of part of system containing water. Penn-Am. Ins. Co. v. Mike's Tailoring (2005) 125 Cal. App. 4th 884, 890-893, 22 Cal. Rptr. 3d 918

If multiple causes of commercial property loss were both excluded under policy, and insured articulated no other possible cause, summary judgment finding no coverage was proper; efficient proximate cause of loss was excluded peril. Alex R. Thomas & Co. v. Mutual Serv. Cas. Ins. Co. (2002) 98 Cal. App. 4th 66, 76, 119 Cal. Rptr. 2d 394

[8] Multiple Causes of Loss

"Weather conditions" clause, excluding coverage for losses incurred when weather conditions contribute to loss caused by an excluded peril, did not violate Ins. Code § 530 with respect to exclusion of coverage under "open peril" policy for damage to home caused by rain-induced landslide, under particular policy language and facts of case. Julian v. Hartford Underwriters Ins. Co. (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 747, 761, 27 Cal. Rptr. 3d 648, 110 P.3d 903

Existence of coverage when loss caused by multiple perils, both included and excluded under policy, in context of first-party property damage, is determined by whether covered peril was "efficient proximate cause" of loss. Garvey v. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 395, 402-404, 257 Cal. Rptr. 292, 770 P.2d 704 ; Sabella v. Wisler (1963) 59 Cal. 2d 21, 31-32, 27 Cal. Rptr. 689, 377 P.2d 889 ; see also Alex R. Thomas & Co. v. Mutual Serv. Cas. Ins. Co. (2002) 98 Cal. App. 4th 66, 72, 119 Cal. Rptr. 2d 394

By specifying in water-damage exclusion that even though water damage caused by sudden and accidental release of water is covered, mold resulting from that damage is not, all-risk homeowners' policy clarified that mold damage caused by sudden and accidental release of water is excluded peril; water-damage exclusion did not violate Ins. Code § 530 or "efficient proximate cause" doctrine. DeBruyn v. Superior Court (2008) 158 Cal. App. 4th 1213, 70 Cal. Rptr. 3d 652, 2008 Cal. App. LEXIS 45 , p.22

"Efficient proximate cause" rule of Garvey v. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 395, 402-404, 257 Cal. Rptr. 292, 770 P.2d 704 , applies retroactively; rule is not new rule of law, and appellate cases to contrary misconstrue statutory ruleunder Ins. Code §§ 530 and 532. La Bato v. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 336, 343, 263 Cal. Rptr. 382

Efficient proximate cause analysis did not apply when excluded risk of brush fire was caused by covered risk of arson, because efficient proximate cause analysis applies only when there are separate and distinct perils, either of which could have independently caused damage, and does not apply when there is single cause of damage that can be characterized in two different ways, i.e., brush fire or arson. Pieper v. Commercial Underwriters Ins. Co. (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 1008, 1018-1020, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 551 ; see Penn-Am. Ins. Co. v. Mike's Tailoring (2005) 125 Cal. App. 4th 884, 891-892, 22 Cal. Rptr. 3d 918 (efficient proximate cause analysis did not apply because loss resulted from single cause)

[9] Rental Dwelling Insurance

Insurer had no duty to defend insured in defamation suit filed by deputy sheriff based on insured's defamatory statements that sheriff had strip searched her, because arrest followed violent domestic argument in insured's own dwelling between her and her co-insured husband concerning insured rental property under rental dwelling policy (held by landlords insuring rental property); insufficient causal relationship between defamatory statements and insured property. Turner v. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. (2001) 92 Cal. App. 4th 681, 689-690, 112 Cal. Rptr. 2d 277

[10] Tort Cause of Action

Under policy obtained by homeowners' association insuring common areas of condominium complex, insurer owed no duty of care to individual unit owners; individual owners had no negligence cause of action against insurer based on insurer's delay in funding repairs to insured structures and facilities, which delayed owners' ability to repair their own units. Adelman v. Associated Int'l Ins. Co. (2001) 90 Cal. App. 4th 352, 366-370, 108 Cal. Rptr. 2d 788

[1] Appraisal

If insurer and insured disagree about amount of loss, parties must participate in informal appraisal proceeding in which each party selects a competent and disinterested appraiser, who together must then select a competent and disinterested umpire, unless appraisers cannot agree, in which case court appoints appraiser. *Mahnke v. Superior Court (2009) 180 Cal. App. 4th 565, 103 Cal. Rptr. 3d 197, 2009 Cal. App. LEXIS 2036, 6 , citing Ins. Code § 2071

If insurer and insured disagree about amount of loss, ensuing appraisal proceedings must conform to procedural requirements of Arbitration Act. *Mahnke v. Superior Court (2009) 180 Cal. App. 4th 565, 103 Cal. Rptr. 3d 197, 2009 Cal. App. LEXIS 2036, 9

Requirement that each party select "competent and disinterested appraiser" pursuant to Ins. Code § 2071, incorporated into every fire insurance policy issued in California, constitutes contractual agreement between parties to select neutral arbitrators. *Mahnke v. Superior Court (2009) 180 Cal. App. 4th 565, 103 Cal. Rptr. 3d 197, 2009 Cal. App. LEXIS 2036, 14

Disclosure requirements in Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.9 and relevant ethics standards for neutral arbitrators apply only to jointly selected or court-appointed, proposed neutral arbitrator, or, in contested appraisal proceedings, the competent and disinterested umpire; there is no automatic and unlimited right of disqualification for disclosures of competent and disinterested appraisers selected by parties in appraisal proceedings pursuant to Ins. Code § 2071. *Mahnke v. Superior Court (2009) 180 Cal. App. 4th 565, 103 Cal. Rptr. 3d 197, 2009 Cal. App. LEXIS 2036, 20-23

Judgment that does not conform to appraisal award made pursuant to Ins. Code § 2071, on which it is based, violates Code Civ. Proc. § 1287.4. Devonwood Condominium Owners Assn. v. Farmers Ins. Exchange (2008) 162 Cal. App. 4th 1498, 1506-1507, 77 Cal. Rptr. 3d 88

Appraisal proceeding under Ins. Code § 2071 is an arbitration; appraiser in fire-insurance appraisal proceeding has arbitral immunity from liability for negligence based on allegations of not adequately representing insured's interests with respect to crucial issue of "replacement cost"; litigation privilege under Civ. Code § 47(b) does not apply to prevent a party from suing its own expert witness, even if that suit is based on the expert's testimony, and therefore does not protect appraiser from negligence claims raised by insured with respect to appraiser's role as expert hired by insured. Lambert v. Carneghi (2008) 158 Cal. App. 4th 1120, 1129-1134, 1144, 70 Cal. Rptr. 3d 626

[2] Arson

In action by insured against insurance company for breach of contractual duty of good faith, arson charge on which insured was acquitted as not tolling four-year statute of limitations on bringing actions, and insurer as granted summary judgment based on running of statute. Hartford Accident & Indem. Co. v. Superior Court (1981) 121 Cal. App. 3d 249, 252-255, 175 Cal. Rptr. 282

Agent as having no authority under general power of attorney to commit arson. Nuffer v. Insurance Co. of N. Am. (1965) 236 Cal. App. 2d 349, 355, 45 Cal. Rptr. 918

Recovery on fire insurance policy as not defeated by fact that loss for which recovery is sought resulted from intentional burning by insured's agent of property covered by policy, unless insured personally participated in arson or ratified it or agent would benefit substantially from recovery on policy. Erlin-Lawler Enters., Inc. v. Fire Ins. Exch. (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 381, 384, 73 Cal. Rptr. 182 ; Nuffer v. Insurance Co. of N. Am. (1965) 236 Cal. App. 2d 349, 354-355, 45 Cal. Rptr. 918

When corporation may recover on policy where fire was deliberately set by its officer or shareholder. Erlin-Lawler Enters., Inc. v. Fire Ins. Exch. (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 381, 385-386, 73 Cal. Rptr. 182

Innocent joint tenant as denied recovery under policy where fire was set by other joint tenant. Erlin-Lawler Enters., Inc. v. Fire Ins. Exch. (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 381, 386, 73 Cal. Rptr. 182

Innocent partners and joint venturers as barred from recovery under policy where arson was perpetrated by partner or joint venturer. Erlin-Lawler Enters., Inc. v. Fire Ins. Exch. (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 381, 386, 73 Cal. Rptr. 182

Innocent spouse as not barred from recovery under policy covering his or her separate property where arson was perpetrated by other spouse but as barred where property burned was community property. Erlin-Lawler Enters., Inc. v. Fire Ins. Exch. (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 381, 386, 73 Cal. Rptr. 182

[3] Construction of Policy

"Actual cash value" as used in Ins. Code § 2071, setting forth required policy provisions, as meaning fair market value. Jefferson Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 398, 402, 90 Cal. Rptr. 608, 475 P.2d 880 ; Elliano v. Assurance Co. of Am. (1975) 45 Cal. App. 3d 170, 179, 119 Cal. Rptr. 653

Insurer of holder of life estate on residence and insurer of trust holding remainder interest properly pro rated benefits after destruction of home by fire, based on relative insured interests of parties, pursuant to "other insurance" provisions in policies; multiple insureds cannot recover more than value of property destroyed on fire insurance claim resulting from single occurrence. Burns v. California FAIR Plan Assn. (2007) 152 Cal. App. 4th 646, 656-659, 61 Cal. Rptr. 3d 809

"Actual cash value," as used in loss settlement provision of Ins. Code § 2071, is synonymous with fair market value, and insurer therefore may not use replacement cost less depreciation to determine actual cash value, unless insurer and insured have agreed to use this method to value damage to property. Cheeks v. California Fair Plan Ass'n (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 423, 425-429, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 568

Insurer's submission to suit under service of suit provision as not barring insurer from reliance on Ins. Code § 2071 standard Appraisal Clause because there is no connection between the two clauses. Appalachian Ins. Co. v. Rivcom Corp. (1982) 130 Cal. App. 3d 818, 827-828, 182 Cal. Rptr. 11

Ins. Code §§ 2070-2080, relating to fire insurance, as inapplicable to business interruption insurance provided for in fire insurance policy. Apparel City Sewing Mach. Co. v. Transamerica Ins. Group (1982) 129 Cal. App. 3d 400, 409, 181 Cal. Rptr. 64

In construing ambiguous fire insurance policy, coverage as extending to dwelling and personal property when face sheet of policy failed to clearly exclude personal property and insured could reasonably expect such coverage from other terms of contract. Hurd v. Republic Ins. Co. (1981) 113 Cal. App. 3d 250, 253, 169 Cal. Rptr. 675

Meaning, nature, and effect of coinsurance clause in fire insurance policy. Los Angeles Mut. Ins. Co. v. Cawog (1973) 30 Cal. App. 3d 378, 385-386, 106 Cal. Rptr. 307

Civ. Code § 1668, providing that contracts exempting anyone from responsibility for his own fraud or willful injury or violation of law, whether willful or negligent, are against policy of law, as not intended to provide that owner or other person interested in property could not insure premises against damage by fire caused by his own negligence. Sacramento-Yolo Port Dist. v. Cargill of Cal., Inc. (1970) 4 Cal. App. 3d 1004, 1012, 84 Cal. Rptr. 822

[4] Duties of Insured

Insureds could not maintain breach of contract action against insurer for closing claim for loss of home based on insureds' failure to submit to examinations under oath, because reasons for failure to appear were legally insufficient excuses that did not raise triable issue; related bad faith claim could not survive summary judgment motion because of genuine dispute as to insurer's liability, insurer's denial of claim based on insureds' refusal to submit to examination, and investigation showing arson. Cook v. Allstate Ins. Co. (C.D. Cal. 2004) 337 F. Supp. 2d 1206, 1214-1218

Summary adjudication for insurer proper in action by insured for contract breach based on denial of claim of loss of residence following fire; local fire department and fire investigation company concluded that fire was deliberately set; insured failed to comply with insurer's requests for proof of loss, including timely statement of loss, detailed damages claim, property inventory, and relevant receipts and records; insured also failed to submit to examination under oath; insured's purported reliance on alleged advice of counsel in refusing to answer insurer's questions and failing to supply requested documentation did not excuse her failure to comply with policy conditions requiring her to supply that information. Abdelhamid v. Fire Ins. Exch. (2010) 182 Cal. App. 4th 990, 1000-1008, 106 Cal. Rptr. 3d 26

Under commercial lines policy insuring against fire, "Functional Building Valuation" endorsement obligating insurer to pay repair cost or replace building, on condition that insured contract for repair or replacement within 180 days after loss (otherwise obligating insurer to pay market value), operated despite insured's failure to meet condition, when insurer's dilatory conduct caused delay; insurer estopped to assert180-day contracting condition as bar to benefits. City of Hollister v. Monterey Ins. Co. (2008) 165 Cal. App. 4th 455, 491, 499, 81 Cal. Rptr. 3d 72

Insured's compliance with policy requirement to submit to examination under oath is prerequisite to right to receive benefits under policy; insured's failure, six months after insurer's initial request for examination under oath, to propose any dates for examination, to respond in timely manner to insurer's proposed dates, and to submit to examination, legally constituted refusal to submit to examination under oath; insured's noncompliance bars contract and bad faith actions. Brizuela v. CalFarm Ins. Co. (2004) 116 Cal. App. 4th 578, 587-595, 10 Cal. Rptr. 3d 661

Failure of named insured to submit to examination under oath, pursuant to policy requirements, barred action against insurer brought by purported assignee of vandalism claim; showing of resulting prejudice by insurer unnecessary, because submission to examination is condition precedent to duty to pay on claim. California Fair Plan Ass'n v. Superior Court (2004) 115 Cal. App. 4th 158, 166, 8 Cal. Rptr. 3d 746

[5] Gratuitous Repair of Damage by Third Person

Fact that repairing of fire loss may cost insured nothing or that insured may, if property is destroyed by fire, compel another person to replace destroyed property without expense to him, or that he may recoup his loss by resort to a contract liability of a third person, as in no way affecting liability of insurer, in absence of any exemption in policy, to pay insured for loss in accordance with terms of policy. Hughes v. Potomac Ins. Co. (1962) 199 Cal. App. 2d 239, 250-251, 18 Cal. Rptr. 650

[6] Interest

In action on fire insurance policy, interest on recovery as ordinarily allowed from time when loss was due and payable and amount was determined or was capable of being made certain by calculation. Atlantic Mut. Ins. Co. v. Cooney (1962) 303 F.2d 253, 270

When evidence in action on fire insurance policy shows total loss of property insured and compliance with all terms of policy on part of insured, except such as have been waived by insurer, interest as properly included on amount of obligation due under terms of policy from date when loss was payable. Jacobs v. Farmers' Mut. Fire Ins. Co. (1935) 5 Cal. App. 2d 1, 11, 41 P.2d 960

Prejudgment interest from date insurance proceeds should have been paid as recoverable under Civ. Code § 3287 in action by insured against insurer under earthquake damage provision of fire policy for damage to insured's building from earthquake where insurer did not dispute liability but only amount of loss, ultimate jury award to insured conformed closely to amount claimed in proofs of loss, and prior to suit parties had all of the knowledge and all of the means of knowledge of the extent of the loss which was available to them or to the court or jury on the subsequent trial of the case. Koyer v. Detroit Fire & Marine Ins. Co. (1937) 9 Cal. 2d 336, 345-346, 70 P.2d 927

Denial of insured's motion for prejudgment interest in action on fire policy as prejudicial error where dispute between parties essentially involved insurer's denial of coverage and not manner of computation of loss. Esgro Cent., Inc. v. General Ins. Co. of Am. (1971) 20 Cal. App. 3d 1054, 1060-1062, 98 Cal. Rptr. 153

[7] Lessor-Lessee

When lessee contracts with lessor for latter to maintain fire insurance andobtain waiver of subrogation clauses in its policies, in very nature of transaction absolution of risk of loss from lessee's own negligence as prime purpose of contract. Sacramento-Yolo Port Dist. v. Cargill of Cal., Inc. (1970) 4 Cal. App. 3d 1004, 1012, 84 Cal. Rptr. 822

Fire insurance policy purchased by lessor for mutual benefit of lessor and lessee as not excluding coverage for fires caused by negligence of lessee and hence insurer as having no right to recover from lessee sums it paid lessor on account of fire loss resulting from lessee's negligence. Gordon v. J.C. Penney Co. (1970) 7 Cal. App. 3d 280, 283-285,

86 Cal. Rptr. 604

Failure of employer-lessee to maintain insurance as agreed as breach of lease giving rise to liability measured by damage suffered from failure to secure indemnity from promised insurance. Davidson v. Welch (1969) 270 Cal. App. 2d 220, 236-237, 75 Cal. Rptr. 676

Where there is agreement for insurance between parties standing in relationship of lessor and lessee and party obligated in violation of his agreement procures insurance payable to himself alone, other party for whose benefit agreement was made as having equitable lien on proceeds of such insurance. Davidson v. Welch (1969) 270 Cal. App. 2d 220, 237, 75 Cal. Rptr. 676

[8] Limitations Period

Denial of coverage, even if phrased as "representation" that policy does not cover insured's claim, or words to that effect, offers no grounds for estopping insurer from raising statute of limitations defense. Vu v. Prudential Prop. & Cas. Ins. Co. (2001) 26 Cal. 4th 1142, 1153, 113 Cal. Rptr. 2d 70 , reaffirming Neff v. New York Life Ins. Co. (1947) 30 Cal. 2d 165, 180 P.2d 900

Insurer may be estopped from raising one-year statute of limitations defense under Ins. Code § 2071 if insured can show that insured refrained from bringing timely action because insured reasonably relied on insurer's factual misrepresentation that damages were less than policy's deductible amount. Vu v. Prudential Prop. & Cas. Ins. Co. (2001) 26 Cal. 4th 1142, 1153, 113 Cal. Rptr. 2d 70 (answering certified question from 9th Cir. involving earthquake damage claim after 1994 Northridge earthquake; not deciding whether district court erred in sustaining insurer's motion for summary judgment)

One-year contractual limitation period (see Ins. Code 2071) is tolled to time insurer formally denies claim in writing; one-year period equitably tolled because insurer had never denied claim in writing. Aliberti v. Allstate Ins. Co. (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 138, 145-149, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 645 , see also Prudential-LMI Commercial Ins. v. Superior Court (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 674, 678, 798 P.2d 1230

[9] Loss Recoverable

Policy containing exclusion at variance with Ins. Code § 2071, and excluding loss caused by enforcement of "ordinance or law regulating construction" (code upgrades), provided for "replacement cost" rather than "actual cash value"; policy covered costs of replacement home of substantially similar construction that is functional equivalent of home lost or portion of home destroyed, even if changes in building codes result in higher loss settlement than "cost to repair or replace" property with "material of like kind and quality" within "reasonable time after" loss, without "allowance for any increased cost of repair or reconstruction by reason of any ordinance or law regulating construction or repair" as provided in Ins. Code § 2071. Fire Ins. Exch. v. Superior Court (2004) 116 Cal. App. 4th 446, 458, 462-466, 10 Cal. Rptr. 3d 617

Replacement cost under fire insurance policy included cost of replacing a damaged building by purchasing another building at a different location; ordinary and popular sense of policy provisions did not support insurer's interpretation of policy; policy was ambiguous at best on meaning of replacement cost, and that ambiguity would be construed against insurer. Conway v. Farmers Home Mut. Ins Co. (1994) 26 Cal. App. 4th 1185, 1191-1192, 31 Cal. Rptr. 2d 883

In action by insureds against insurer under homeowner's policy, arising from claim submitted for fire damage to insured's garage, insurer as obligated to pay cost of rebuilding wooden floor, rather than constructing reinforced and substantially more expensive concrete floor required by municipal building code, when "loss settlement clause" provided for "replacement cost of that part of the building damaged for equivalent construction and use on the same premises." McCorkle v. State Farm Ins. Co. (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 610, 614, 615, 270 Cal. Rptr. 492

Policy of insurance as a contract of indemnity against actual loss and insured as entitled to recover under open policy such loss as he has actually sustained not exceeding sum stipulated. Whitney Estate Co. v. Northern Assurance Co. of London (1909) 155 Cal. 521, 524, 101 P. 911

Loss as difference between fair market value of property immediately before fire and its fair market value immediately after fire. Jefferson Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 398, 402, 90 Cal. Rptr. 608, 475 P.2d 880 ; Elliano v. Assurance Co. of Am. (1975) 45 Cal. App. 3d 170, 179, 119 Cal. Rptr. 653

Insured owner of building as entitled to receive gross loss of rents by reason of fire without any deduction for supposed expenses of collecting them where policy indemnified owner in specified sum on its rents and provided that, if building be rendered untenantable by fire, insurer shall be liable to insured for actual loss of rent ensuing therefrom based on rentals in force from rented portions at time of fire, not exceeding sum insured, to be computed from date of fire for time it would require to put premises in tenantable condition; if not strictly a valued policy, such policy as nevertheless analogous to valued policy insofar as it prescribes method for determining, as between parties, amount of loss. Whitney Estate Co. v. Northern Assurance Co. of London (1909) 155 Cal. 521, 522-526, 101 P. 911

Interest accruing on construction loan during time required to repair and restore building in construction partially destroyed by fire as not an element of "actual cash value of the property at the time of loss" and as not recoverable from insurer under fire policy providing that insurer "does insure the named insured ... to the extent of the actual cash value of the property at the time of the loss, but not exceeding the amount which it would cost to repair or replace the property with material of like kind and quality, ... without compensation for loss resulting from interruption of business or manufacture, nor in any event for more than the interest of the insured, against all LOSS BY FIRE ..." and separately provided "This policy insures against all risks of direct physical loss to ... Building[s]. ..." Bergren v. Premier Ins. Co. (1976) 56 Cal. App. 3d 273, 275, 128 Cal. Rptr. 452

[10] Mortgagee Clause in All-Risk Policy

Loss payable clause patterned after ISO Standard Mortgagee Clause is standard loss payable clause. Home Sav. of Am. v. Continental Ins. Co. (2001) 87 Cal. App. 4th 835, 841, 104 Cal. Rptr. 2d 790

Mortgagee was covered under insured's all-risk policy with respect to intentional demolition of residence, which was part of overall renovation and development of property by non-insured third party owner, following transfer of title without mortgagee's knowledge; loss was fortuitous as to mortgagee because policy did not exclude loss caused by intentional demolition of residence by third party, and mortgagee did not approve or ratify destruction of residence. Home Sav. of Am. v. Continental Ins. Co. (2001) 87 Cal. App. 4th 835, 850-852, 855, 104 Cal. Rptr. 2d 790

Sufficiency of complaint by insured owner of bar and restaurant damaged by fire against three companies which insured premises against fire loss for breach of duty of good faith and fair dealing. Gruenberg v. Aetna Ins. Co. (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 566, 575, 108 Cal. Rptr. 480, 510 P.2d 1032

[11] Proof of Loss

Purpose of proofs of loss in fire insurance cases. Crotty v. Union Mut. Life Ins. Co. (1892) 144 U.S. 621, 626, 12 S. Ct. 749, 36 L. Ed. 566

Failure of fire insurer to object to proof of loss on ground it was not made by insured as waiver of objection. Greco v.

Oregon Mut. Fire Ins. Co. (1961) 191 Cal. App. 2d 674, 685, 12 Cal. Rptr. 802

Willful misrepresentation [see Penal Code § 550] by one partner of insured partnership to insurance company with respect to claim under fire insurance policy, which under Ins. Code § 2071 (standard form of fire insurance) voids policy, as imputed to innocent copartner so as to bar latter's recovery under policy. Zemelman v. Boston Ins. Co. (1970) 4 Cal. App. 3d 15, 17-18, 84 Cal. Rptr. 206

In absence of fraud on part of insured, court as carefully examining evidence regarding failure to furnish proof of loss by fire so as to avoid forfeiture of legitimate claims merely because of technical omissions. Elliano v. Assurance Co. of Am. (1970) 3 Cal. App. 3d 446, 449, 83 Cal. Rptr. 509

[12] Rescission

Pursuant to Ins. Code §§ 331, 359, insurer may rescind fire insurance policy based on insured's negligent or unintentional misrepresentation of material fact in insurance application, notwithstanding willful misrepresentation clause included in required standard form fire insurance policy. Mitchell v. United Nat'l Ins. Co. (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 457, 472-474, 479,25 Cal. Rptr. 3d 627 ; see also Ins. Code §§ 2070, 2071

Joergensen (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 139, 142-143, 88 Cal. Rptr. 723*

[14] Warranties

Provision in fire insurance policy that "This policy being written at a reduced rate based on the protection of the premises by an automatic sprinkler system, it is a condition of this policy that, so far as the sprinkler system and the water supply therefor are under the control of the insured, due diligence shall be used by the insured to maintain them in complete working order ..." as warranty within meaning of Ins. Code §§ 441, 442, and 445. Holz Rubber Co., Inc. v. American Star Ins. Co. (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 45, 55-56 n.11, 120 Cal. Rptr. 415, 533 P.2d 1055

[1] Burden of Proof

In action on homeowners policy to recover for damage allegedly caused by earthquake, insurer as having burden of proving that loss was caused by earth movement or landslide rather than by earthquake, where policy insured plaintiffs against all risks of physical loss, subject only to certain specific exclusions, including movement other than earthquake. Strubble v. United Servs. Auto. Ass'n (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 498, 503-505, 110 Cal. Rptr. 828

[2] Cancellation of Policy

Ins. Code § 10086.5, prohibiting cancellation of policy because insured accepted earthquake insurance, as applicable prospectively only; insurer that issued homeowner's policy essentially to enable homeowner to close escrow, prior to enactment of Ins. Code § 10086.5, and informed insured that dwelling did not qualify for earthquake coverage under its usual underwriting standards and that policy would probably be cancelled if insured ultimately accepted mandatory offer of earthquake coverage, as entitled to cancel policy on insured's acceptance of that coverage, pursuant to Ins. Code §§ 10082 and 10086, which allow insurer to utilize usual underwriting standards in issuing insurance that includes earthquake coverage. Williams v. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 1540, 1548-1549, 265 Cal. Rptr. 644

[3] Construction of Policy

Provision in property insurance policy covering "loss or damage caused by or resulting from risks of direct physical loss involving collapse of a building or any part of a building" covered both actual and imminent collapse, but did not cover "substantial impairment of structural integrity." Doheny W. Homeowners' Ass'n v. American Guarantee & Liab.

Ins. Co. (1997) 60 Cal. App. 4th 400, 403-409, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 260

Exclusion for automobile-related activities in homeowners policy as applicable unless independent nonvehicular conduct also occurs. National Indem. Co. v. Farmers HomeMut. Ins. Co. (1979) 95 Cal. App. 3d 102, 108, 157 Cal. Rptr. 98

Although earthquake itself is a specific peril, earthquake endorsement providing coverage of this peril in homeowners all-risks insurance policy which otherwise excluded damages resulting from earth movement as not changing "all-risks" nature of policy, since coverage must be construed broadly and exclusions narrowly. Strubble v. United Servs. Auto. Ass'n (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 498, 505 n.6, 110 Cal. Rptr. 828

[4] Coverage

Insurer under homeowners' policy had no duty to defend insured in underlying suit alleging that insured acted under unreasonable belief of self-defense while hitting and kicking plaintiff; acts did not constitute "accident," and policy excluded intentional acts; insured's unreasonable belief in need for self-defense does not turn resulting purposeful and intentional act of assault and battery into "accident" within policy coverage. Delgado v. Interinsurance Exch. of Auto. Club of So. Cal. (2009) 47 Cal. 4th 302, 305, 317, 97 Cal. Rptr. 3d 298, 211 P.3d 1083

"Weather conditions" clause, excluding coverage for losses incurred when weather conditions contribute to loss caused by an excluded peril, did not violate Ins. Code § 530 with respect to exclusion of coverage under "open peril" policy for damage to home caused by rain-induced landslide, under particular policy language and facts of case. Julian v. Hartford Underwriters Ins. Co. (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 747, 761, 27 Cal. Rptr. 3d 648, 110 P.3d 903

Existence of coverage when loss caused by multiple perils, both included and excluded under policy, in context of first-party property damage, as determined by whether covered peril was "efficient proximate cause" of loss. Garvey v. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 395, 402, 257 Cal. Rptr. 292, 770 P.2d 704 (damage to dwelling allegedly caused by negligent construction (covered) and soil subsidence (excluded)); see also Sabella v. Wisler (1963) 59 Cal. 2d 21, 31-32, 27 Cal. Rptr. 689, 377 P.2d 889 (damage to dwelling allegedly caused by water-pipe leakage (covered) and soil settlement (excluded))

Homeowners' all-risk policy excluded coverage of extensive water damage that occurred years after contractor drove nail through pipe while hanging drywall, ultimately resulting in corrosion and leaking; policy excluded coverage of damage caused by third parties' negligent conduct and defective workmanship whenever they interact with an excluded peril; and policy excluded perils of corrosion and continuous or repeated seepage or leakage of water. Freedman v. State Farm Ins. Co. (2009) 173 Cal. App. 4th 957, 962-963, 93 Cal. Rptr. 3d 296 , citing Julian v. Hartford Underwriters Ins. Co. (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 747, 27 Cal. Rptr. 3d 648, 110 P.3d 903

Efficient proximate cause doctrine applies only when two or more conceptually distinct perils combine to cause the loss; when loss was caused by only a single cause, albeit one susceptible to various characterizations, efficient proximate cause analysis has no application; concealment of ancient landslide is not a conceptually distinct peril apart from ancient landslide itself. Roberts v. Assurance Co. of America (2008) 163 Cal. App. 4th 1398, 1409, 78 Cal. Rptr. 3d 361

By specifying in water-damage exclusion that even though water damage caused by sudden and accidental release of water is covered, mold resulting from that damage is not, all-risk homeowners' policy clarified that mold damage caused by sudden and accidental release of water is excluded peril; water-damage exclusion did not violate Ins. Code § 530 or "efficient proximate cause" doctrine. DeBruyn v. Superior Court (2008) 158 Cal. App. 4th 1213, 1224, 70 Cal. Rptr. 3d 652

Under commercial property insurance policy, coverage for "hidden decay" not otherwise defined in policy covers progressive physical deterioration, rather than just decay caused by rot, unless other policy terms limit coverage. Stamm Theatres, Inc. v. Hartford Cas. Ins. Co. (2001) 93 Cal. App. 4th 531, 534, 542-543, 113 Cal. Rptr. 2d 300

"Brush fire" exclusion in all risks policy was clear and unambiguous in context of case involving fire that swept through seven miles of chaparral area, because homeowners were aware that they lived in high risk area for brush fires, were unable to find coverage that did not exclude brush fire damage, and considered brush fire exclusion to be problem with policy. Pieper v. Commercial Underwriters Ins. Co. (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 1008, 1016-1018, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 551

Test for latent defect or inherent vice is whether or not defect was apparent by reasonable inspection; however, for purposes of determining whether such defects are excluded from coverage under homeowner's policy, test includes reasonable inspection with expert assistance. Chadwick v. Fire Ins. Exch. (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 1112, 1126, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 871

Loss in the form of diminished market value, allegedly due to fact that insured home was in a landslide area, is not recoverable under all-risk homeowners policy; diminution in value is not a covered peril; insuring land values is illegal in California under Ins. Code § 12660. Hoffman v. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 184, 191, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 809

Under homeowner's policy containing natural groundwater and earth movement exclusion, but not excluding third-party negligence, "efficient proximate cause" of structural damage due to earth movement caused by combination of third-party negligence and resultant rising groundwater levels, as third-party negligence under facts (therefore affording coverage). State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. v. Von Der Lieth (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 1123, 1131-1135, 2 Cal. Rptr. 2d 183, 820 P.2d 285

"Concurrent proximate cause" rule regarding coverage when loss caused by both covered and excluded perils, as applicable only to third-party liability context, and as inapplicable in first-party property damage context. Garvey v. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 395, 410-413, 257 Cal. Rptr. 292, 770 P.2d 704

Existence of coverage when loss caused by both included and excluded perils, in context of first-party loss, as determined by whether covered peril was "prime or moving cause" of loss. Brooks v. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co. (1945) 27 Cal. 2d 305, 309-310, 163 P.2d 689 (regarding death of insured caused by fire in house (covered) and insured's disease of cancer (excluded))

Under all-risk homeowner's policy, insurer as having no duty to defend or to indemnify regarding underlying action arising from sale of property based on alleged misrepresentations of insured regarding property boundaries and legality of patio construction; injured party as improperly seeking, in effect, to convert tortfeasor's homeowner's policy to title policy. Warner v. Fire Ins. Exch. (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 1029, 1032-1037, 281 Cal. Rptr. 635

Damage to concrete foundation, caused by corrosive attack of sulfates and chlorides, as excluded from coverage under all-risk homeowner's policy, pursuant to exclusion of loss due to "seepage or leakage of water," "wear and tear," "deterioration," "inherent vice, latent defect," or "contamination." Butki v. United Servs. Auto. Ass'n (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 464, 466-467, 274 Cal. Rptr. 909

Homeowner's policy as excluding coverage for damage caused by broken pipe initially caused by gradual corrosion of pipe metal exposed to acidic soil, under exclusion regarding "deterioration." Murray v. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 58, 64-65, 268 Cal. Rptr. 33

Exclusionary provisions of property-insurance policies as unenforceable to extent that they purport to limit insurers' liability beyond what is permitted by Ins. Code § 530 and its interpreting cases. Howell v. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 1446, 1456, 267 Cal. Rptr. 708 ; see Julian v. Hartford Underwriters Ins. Co. (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 747, 754, 27 Cal. Rptr. 3d 648, 110 P.3d 903

Issue of efficient proximate cause for purposes of determining coverage in multiple causation cases as question of fact for jury. Howell v. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 1446, 1459, 267 Cal. Rptr. 708

Homeowner's policy excluding coverage for damage from "continuous or repeated seepage or leakage" from plumbing system as excluding coverage for leakage damage initially caused by sudden break in pipe; break, which alone would have constituted covered peril, as not distinct from leakage for purposes of determining "efficient proximate cause." Finn v. Continental Ins. Co. (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 69, 72-73, 267 Cal. Rptr. 22

In bad faith action for denial of coverage based on claim arising from cracks in foundation and floor of dwelling, summary judgment for insurer as proper when all three asserted causes of damage--earth movement, contaminated soil, and third-party negligence--were excluded under homeowner's policy. Brodkin v. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. (1989) 265 Cal. Rptr. 710

Under all-risk homeowner's policy, exclusion of loss resulting from earth movement as precluding coverage for damage to deck through removal of lateral support, resulting from flooded creek that caused departure of portion of insured's backyard. La Bato v. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 336, 340-343, 263 Cal. Rptr. 382

Under property insurance policy issued to condominium homeowners' association, latent defect, which was excluded peril, as efficient cause of loss, precluding coverage under Garvey; "diminution of value" as not covered peril (invoking coverage under multiple-causation rule), but rather as mere measure of loss or damage. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. v. Superior Court (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 1435, 1445, 264 Cal. Rptr. 269

Under "all-risk" homeowner's policy covering soil stabilization, insurer not entitled to offset for amounts paid by municipality in incomplete effort to stabilize land; insurer also not entitled to pro rate benefits to insured with benefits paid to neighboring homeowners by their respective insurers for cost of soil stabilization, in absence of clear and conspicuous policy provision to that effect. Strickland v. Federal Ins. Co. (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 792, 802-803, 246 Cal. Rptr. 345

"All-risk" homeowner's policy as including coverage for damage caused by continuing geological hazard of earth movement resulting from ancient landslide underneath house, including structural damage to house, ruptured gas lines, and possible total collapse during earthquake or rainstorm; coverage includes cost of stabilizing underlying soil. Strickland v. Federal Ins. Co. (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 792, 801-802, 246 Cal. Rptr. 345

When earth slide following heavy rainfall, excluded peril, that resulted in destruction of insured's home would not have occurred if subdrain under home had not been damaged; was damage to drain, covered peril, concurrent proximate cause of loss; insurer liable under policy. Premier Ins. Co. v. Welch (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 720, 728, 189 Cal. Rptr. 657 , overruled in part, Garvey v. State Farm Fire & Casualty Co. (1989) 38 Cal. 3d 395, 399, 257 Cal. Rptr. 292, 770 P.2d 704

When loss occurs through concurrence of covered and uncovered risks, insurer's liabilityunder policy as depending on whether of not efficient cause of loss (cause that sets other causes in motion) is covered peril; if so, insurer is liable under policy even though other exempted causes also contribute to loss. Premier Ins. Co. v. Welch (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 720, 725, 189 Cal. Rptr. 657 , disapproved, Garvey v. State Farm Fire & Casualty Co. (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 395, 410-412, 257 Cal. Rptr. 292, 770 P.2d 704

Twelve-inch drop of masonry wall, accompanied by open breaks in wall and decommissioning of house's heating system, which took place suddenly without warning or previous visible indication of such drastic consequences, and resulted from house having been built on fill and improperly compacted soil, was not "normal" settling within meaning of exclusionary clause of comprehensive dwelling insurance policy. Prickett v. Royal Ins. Co. Ltd. (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 234, 237-238, 14 Cal. Rptr. 675, 363 P.2d 907

[5] Earthquake Insurance

Code Civ. Proc. § 340.9 revives all claims against insurer that are "on the policy" in accordance with Ins. Code § 2071, including breach of contract, bad faith, negligence, and negligent and intentional misrepresentation (in this case, all state law claims). Campanelli v. Allstate Life Ins. Co. (9th Cir. 2003) 322 F.3d 1086, 1096-1097 (not deciding whether § 340.9 revives RICO claim); but see 20th Century Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (2001) 90 Cal. App. 4th 1247, 1268, 109 Cal. Rptr. 2d 611 (Code Civ. Proc. § 340.9 revives breach of contract and bad faith claims, but not fraud claims because they are not covered by one-year limitations period of Ins. Code § 2071)

Insurer that paid $1.5 million settlement to insured homeowners' association for damage to structures caused by Northridge earthquake, could not require insured to rescind settlement agreement and repay $1.5 million (which it had already spent on repairs) before bringing later claims of fraud based on understating policy limits by $7 million, contract breach, and bad faith; precedents holding that plaintiff cannot avoid fraudulently induced contract of release without rescinding contract and restoring money paid as consideration for release, do not apply to contract for settlement and release of insurance claims, when insurer is alleged to have induced the settlement by misrepresenting policy limits. Village Northridge Homeowners Assn. v. State Farm Fire Casualty Co. (2007) 157 Cal. App. 4th 1416, 1421, 1427, 69 Cal. Rptr. 3d 551

Code Civ. Proc. § 340.9 revives lawsuit that was terminated after demurrer was sustained without leave to amend solely on statute of limitations grounds, and then dismissed without prejudice; if demurrer to complaint is sustained without leave to amend solely by virtue of statute of limitations, and time for direct attack on judgment has passed, case is final, but not "litigated to finality" under Code Civ. Proc. § 340.9(d)(1). Mid-Century Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (2006) 138 Cal. App. 4th 769, 776-777, 41 Cal. Rptr. 3d 833

Insurer's reopening and reconsideration of insured's Northridge earthquake claim at insured's request seven years after claim was settled (because structure could not be repaired for settlement sum) equitably tolled revived one-year period under Code Civ. Proc. § 340.9. Ashou v. Liberty Mut. Fire Ins. Co. (2006) 138 Cal. App. 4th 748, 761-764, 41 Cal. Rptr. 3d 819 (not deciding whether equitable tolling renders suit timely); see also Prudential-LMI Commercial Ins. v. Superior Court (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 674, 693, 274 Cal. Rptr. 387, 798 P.2d 1230

Code Civ. Proc. § 340.9 does not obligate insurer to investigate and adjust new Northridge earthquake damage claims presented in 2001 without regard to actions insurer may have taken on claims relating to same property originally presented in 1994. Lincoln Fountain Villas Homeowners Ass'n v. State Farm Fire & Cas. Ins. Co. (2006) 136 Cal. App. 4th 999, 1005-1006, 39 Cal. Rptr. 3d 345

Because both insurer and insured condominium homeowners' association inspected damage after Northridge earthquake and concluded that it was largely cosmetic and totaled amount less than deductible, and because insured consequently withdrew its claim in 1994, it could not cite Code Civ. Proc. § 340.9 eight years later to support claims for contract breach and bad faith; statute did not create any rights for insured beyond expansion of filing period for claims it would otherwise have. 1231 Euclid Homeowners Ass'n v. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. (2006) 135 Cal. App. 4th 1008, 1020-1021, 37 Cal. Rptr. 3d 795

Code Civ. Proc. § 340.9 does not revive action if complaint lacked factual allegations sufficient to survive demurrer.

Davaloo v. State Farm Ins. Co. (2005) 135 Cal. App. 4th 409, 419, 37 Cal. Rptr. 3d 528 (original complaint for contract breach and bad faith, filed at end of revival period, lacked factual allegations and failed to mention statute)

Requirement under Code Civ. Proc. § 340.9, that insured had contacted "representative" of insurer regarding potential Northridge earthquake claim before year 2000, was met because insured contacted insurer's "producer," who wrote the policy, and reported losses shortly after earthquake. Arocho v. California Fair Plan Ins. Co. (2005) 134 Cal. App. 4th 461, 472, 36 Cal. Rptr. 3d 200

Code Civ. Proc. § 340.9 does not preclude Northridge earthquake victims from obtaining equitable relief from statutory limitation period of Ins. Code § 2071; insured may raise equitable estoppel against insurer's limitations defense following expiration of one-year extension period under § 340.9. Doheny Park Terrace Homeowners Ass'n, Inc. v. Truck Ins. Exchange (2005) 132 Cal. App. 4th 1076, 1095, 34 Cal. Rptr. 3d 157 ; Cordova v. 21st Century Ins. Co. (2005) 129 Cal. App. 4th 89, 106

Code Civ. Proc. § 340.9 does not preclude victims of Northridge earthquake from obtaining equitable relief from statutory limitation period of Ins. Code § 2071; insured allowed to raise equitable estoppel against insurer's limitations defense following expiration of one-year extension period under § 340.9. Cordova v. 21st Century Ins. Co. (2005) 129 Cal. App. 4th 89, 108-109

Insured permitted to state cause of action against CIGA for violation of Ins. Code § 1063 et seq. (payment of claims of insolvent insurers) by alleging CIGA denied insured's Northridge earthquake claim revived by Code Civ. Proc. § 340.9 against insurer declared insolvent after effective date of § 340.9. Berger v. California Ins. Guarantee Ass'n (2005) 128 Cal. App. 4th 989, 1002-1005, 27 Cal. Rptr. 3d 583

Code Civ. Proc. § 340.9 merely reopened filing window, for one-year period, to otherwise viable cases that had become time-barred, but did not affect any other defenses that insurer might have to insured's claim; statute does not revive cause of action on ground that settlement was void because of fraud and duress; defense of prior settlement and release is not affected by operation of statute. Rosenblum v. Safeco Ins. Co. (2005) 126 Cal. App. 4th 847, 859-861, 24 Cal. Rptr. 3d 427 (no evidence of fraud or duress in settlement proceedings)

Pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 340.9(d)(2), relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 340.9 does not apply if insurer and insured entered into written settlement agreement and insured was represented by counsel admitted to California bar who signed agreement; cause of action filed within one-year statutory extension period against insurer for bad faith, contract breach, injunction, and related torts was therefore barred by statute of limitations because represented insured had previously entered into settlement agreement of class action suit against that insurer regarding insurer's handling of deductible amounts on policies. Israel-Curley v. California Fair Plan (2005) 126 Cal. App. 4th 123, 128-129, 24 Cal. Rptr. 3d 1

Because owner assigned insurance proceeds to lender under deed of trust, lender had rightto control disbursement of any insurance policy obtained by owner; lender had right to control earthquake insurance proceeds. JEM Enters. v. Washington Mut. Bank (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 638, 645, 121 Cal. Rptr. 2d 458

Code Civ. Proc. § 340.9 does not apply to damage arising from aftershock of Northridge earthquake, if insured did not obtain earthquake coverage until after January 17, 1994. Migliore v. Mid-Century Ins. Co. (2002) 118 Cal. Rptr. 2d 548

Code Civ. Proc. § 340.9 (extending limitations period for time-barred Northridge earthquake claims) applies if otherwise applicable limitations bar is based on either untimely notice to insurer or untimely filing of lawsuit, and as so construed does not unconstitutionally impair contracts; insured's case against insurer not "litigated to finality" within meaning of statute until timely appeal is final. Bialo v. Western Mut. Ins. Co. (2002) 95 Cal. App. 4th 68, 78-83, 115 Cal. Rptr. 2d 3 (reversing summary judgment for insurer in bad faith case)

Code Civ. Proc. § 340.9(a) survives constitutional challenge under U.S. Const. art. I, § 10, cl. 1, Cal. Const. art. I, § 9, and due process provisions. Hellinger v. Farmers Group, Inc. (2001) 91 Cal. App. 4th 1049, 1061-1067, 111 Cal. Rptr. 2d 268 ; see also Bialo v. Western Mut. Ins. Co. (2002) 95 Cal. App. 4th 68, 82 ; 20th Century Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (2001) 90 Cal. App. 4th 1247, 1268 .

Individual owners of condominium units had no negligence cause of action against association's insurer, based on insurer's delay in funding repairs to insured structures and facilities damaged in 1994 Northridge earthquake, although owners' ability to repair their own units was consequently delayed; insurer owed no duty of care to persons who were not policyholders. Adelman v. Associated Int'l Ins. Co. (2001) 90 Cal. App. 4th 352, 366-370, 108 Cal. Rptr. 2d 788

Under tolling provision for mediation program devised to resolve disputes arising from 1994 Northridge earthquake (Ins. Code § 10089.82(e)), any applicable statute of limitations for litigation purposes is tolled for number of days beginning from referral to mediation until (1) date on which mediation is either completed or declined, or (2) date on which insured fails to appear for scheduled mediation for second time, or (3) if settlement is completed, expiration of any applicable three business-day cooling off period; tolling not extended to date that any notification is given by Department of Insurance following termination of mediation. Michelson v. Mid-Century Ins. Co. (2000) 83 Cal. App. 4th 450, 458-459, 99 Cal. Rptr. 2d 804 (issue of tolling during mediation moot because limitations period was exceeded based on applicable cut-off dates prior to mediation)

Clause in earthquake and flood insurance policy that provided that parties would select appraisers if parties failed to agree as to "amount of loss" and that appraisers would then appraise "the loss" did not provide for appraisal of replacement cost for purpose of determining amount of deductible based on replacement cost. Unetco Indus. Exch. v. Homestead Ins. Co. (1997) 57 Cal. App. 4th 1459, 1467-1469, 67 Cal. Rptr. 2d 784

If lender does not require earthquake insurance on property that secured loan, and loan documents contain no reference to earthquake insurance proceeds, lender has no right to receive or to control proceeds of earthquake insurance policy. Ziello v. Superior Court (1995) 36 Cal. App. 4th 321, 329, 42 Cal. Rptr. 2d 251 ; cf. Martin v. World Sav. & Loan Ass'n (2001) 92 Cal. App. 4th 803, 809, 112 Cal. Rptr. 2d 225 (provision in loan documents that although earthquake coverage not required, any earthquake coverage obtained must name lender as loss payee, was enforceable)

Ins. Code § 10081 et seq. require only that insurance carriers offering homeowners insurance to condominiums containing four or more dwelling units offer earthquake coverage to individual unit owners; no requirement that such carriers offer condominium association earthquake coverage for common areas. Marina Green Homeowners Ass'n v. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 200, 203-206, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 364 ; see Ins. Code § 10087(a)

[6] Interest

If policy provides that any loss for which company may be liable is payable 60 days after proof of loss is received, and ascertainment of loss is made either by agreement between insured and company or by filing with company an award as therein provided, principal payable under policy does not bear interest for any time before period so provided has expired but bears interest from that time. Hughes v. Potomac Ins. Co. (1962) 199 Cal. App. 2d 239, 253-254, 18 Cal. Rptr. 650

[7] Gratuitous Repair of Damage by Third Person

Amount of loss fixed immediately after occurrence of peril insured against; damage repair by gratuitous act of someone other than party to insurance contract does not inure to benefit of insurer so as to deprive insured of right to recover under policy. Hughes v. Potomac Ins. Co. (1962) 199 Cal. App. 2d 239, 249-251, 18 Cal. Rptr. 650 (landslide damage repaired by gratuitous act of county Flood Control District)

[8] Limitation Period

In case involving first-party progressive property loss claim under homeowner's policy, one-year suit provision of Ins. Code § 2071 to run from date of "inception of the loss," defined as that point in time when appreciable damage occurs and is or should be known to insured, such that reasonable insured would be aware that notification duty under policy has been triggered; one-year period tolled from time insured gives notice of damage to insurer, pursuant to applicable policy notice provisions, until formal written denial of claim. Prudential-LMI Commercial Ins. v. Superior Court (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 674, 679, 686-687, 693, 274 Cal. Rptr. 387, 798 P.2d 1230

In first-party progressive property loss cases, when loss occurs over several policy periods and is not discovered until several years after it commences, manifestation rule, which fixes liability on insurer whose policy was in force when the damage became appreciable (that is, manifest), is applicable. Prudential-LMI Commercial Ins. v. Superior Court (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 674, 694, 699, 274 Cal. Rptr. 387, 798 P.2d 1230 ; see Sapiro v. Encompass Ins. (N.D. Cal. 2004) 221 F.R.D. 513, 518

Equitable tolling of Prudential-LMI Commercial Ins. v. Superior Court (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 674, 693, 274 Cal. Rptr. 387, 798 P.2d 1230 cannot be extended to allow tolling after insured received payment on claim, but did not receive unequivocal written statement from insurer that claim was closed. Marselis v. Allstate Ins. Co. (2004) 121 Cal. App. 4th 122, 125, 16 Cal. Rptr. 3d 668

Rule of equitable tolling set forth in Prudential-LMI Commercial Ins. v. Superior Court (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 674, 274 Cal. Rptr. 387, 798 P.2d 1230 , applied retroactively. San Jose Crane & Rigging, Inc. v. Lexington Ins. Co. (1991) 227 Cal. App. 3d 1314, 1320-1321, 278 Cal. Rptr. 301

Insurer did not breach duty of good faith and fair dealing by refusing to pay replacement value based on costs of construction to be completed more than 180 days after appraisal, because it had paid undisputed actual cash value in timely manner and was otherwise reasonable in retaining experts and investigating, obtaining appraisal on disputed portion of claim, and promptly paying replacement-cost appraisal award after insureds purchased another home in lieu of proceeding with untimely reconstruction of damaged home. Fraley v. Allstate Ins. Co. (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 1282, 1293, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 386

Determination of when appreciable damage occurs for purposes of triggering 12-month limitation period for progressive loss claim is factual matter. San Jose Crane & Rigging, Inc. v. Lexington Ins. Co. (1991) 227 Cal. App. 3d 1314, 1316, 278 Cal. Rptr. 301

Insurer not estopped to plead statute of limitations defense merely because it failed to inform insured of pertinent laws or legal theories when it denied claim; insured barred by statute of limitations from bringing action almost seven years after geotechnical expert advised that damage to house was caused by earth movement and third-party negligence (covered risk), because statute of limitations commences when party knows or should know of facts essential to claim. Love v. Fire Ins. Exch. (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 1136, 1143-1144, 271 Cal. Rptr. 246

Under homeowner's "all risk" policy, claim for damage arising from structural defects as barred by contractual one-year limitations period, when insured had notice of defects more than one year of commencing suit. Magnolia Square Homeowners Ass'n v. Safeco Ins. Co. (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 1049, 1059-1060, 271 Cal. Rptr. 1

Plaintiff's status as absentee landlord during worsening of subsidence damage as not tolling accrual of cause of action. Abari v. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 530, 535, 252 Cal. Rptr. 565

Contractual one-year limitation period as barring insured's action against insurer based on damage to dwelling caused by earth subsidence, when insured failed to file action within one year of knowing or having reason to know that cause was covered risk; insurer as not estopped from asserting limitation period by reason of its failure to inform insured that although earth subsidence was excluded risk, third-party negligence was covered risk, because insurer is under no obligation to explain to insured all possible legal theories of recovery. Lawrence v. Western Mut. Ins. Co. (1988) 204 Cal. App. 3d 565, 572-574, 251 Cal. Rptr. 319

[9] Newly-Acquired Property Clause

Clause in commercial property insurance policy that extended coverage to newly-acquired property and provided that such coverage would terminate 90 days after property was acquired or upon reporting property value to insurer, whichever occurred first, provided only temporary coverage, which was not automatically converted to permanent coverage when insured reported property value to insurer within 90 day period. S. Kornreich & Sons, Inc. v. Genesis Ins. Co. (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 407, 413-417, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 418

[10] Terminology

Market value, where property is of such nature that its market value can be readily determined, as frequently applied as test or criterion of "actual cash value" of property at time of loss under policies insuring to that extent. Hughes v. Potomac Ins. Co. (1962) 199 Cal. App. 2d 239, 253, 18 Cal. Rptr. 650

Terms "dwelling" or "dwelling building" in insurance policies as connoting a place fit for occupancy, a safe place in which to dwell or live; hence, unless policy specifically limits coverage to building or excludes land underlying house and supporting it, landslide which causes soil beneath house to give way and leave it overhanging 30-foot cliff as covered by policy. Hughes v. Potomac Ins. Co. (1962) 199 Cal. App. 2d 239, 248-249, 18 Cal. Rptr. 650

[11] Workers' Compensation

Homeowner's policy that included coverage for comprehensive personal liability and provided statutorily-mandated workers' compensation coverage for insured's residential employees covered insured's son, who was employed as carpenter by insured; Labor Code § 3352(a), which excludes from mandatory workers' compensation coverage employer's parent, spouse or child who works as residential employee, does not apply when coverage is provided under personal liability policy. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. v. Workers' Comp. Appeals Bd. (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 1187, 1193-1201, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 602, 947 P. 2d 795

Labor Code § 4151, which permits election of workers' compensation coverage for and by any person not defined as employee under Labor Code, does not require "conscious" election; insured who purchased homeowner's policy providing comprehensive personal liability coverage, including workers' compensation coverage for residential employees, thereby elected to provide coverage for son who worked as carpenter on his residence, and employee son elected to be covered because he did not give written notice upon entering into employment that he elected not to be covered by workers' compensation laws. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. v. Workers' Comp. Appeals Bd. (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 1187, 1198-1200, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 602, 947 P. 2d 795

[1] Aircraft Policy

Provision of California Uniform Aircraft Financial Responsibility Act [Pub. Util. Code §§ 24230-24410] requiring insurer to provide Department of Transportation (Department) with 30 days' prior notice before canceling aircraft liability policy is ambiguous as to whether it governs cancellation of all aircraft liability policies or only those policies filed with Department after accident to satisfy aircraft owner or operator's financial responsibility requirement; court chose latter interpretation because it was likely to have fairer and more predictable consequences. Escobedo v. Estate of Snider (1997) 14 Cal. 4th 1214, 1226-1228, 930 P.2d 979 (interpreting Pub. Util. Code § 24361)

No coverage under aircraft liability insurance policy defining term "insured" in insuring clause to include not only named insured "but also any person while using or riding in the aircraft ... provided the actual use is with the permission of the Named Insured" when plane crashed while being piloted by permissive user who did not meet pilot qualifications specified in subsequent parts of policy. National Ins. Underwriters v. Carter (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 380, 384-386, 131 Cal. Rptr. 42, 551 P.2d 362

In aviation liability insurance, exclusion for "injury to or destruction of any crops ... to which the aerial application is deliberately made whether in error or not" as unambiguously precluding coverage for pilot's mistakenly spraying wrong crop with herbicide. Farm Air Flying Serv. v. Southeastern Aviation Ins. Servs., Inc. (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 637, 639-640, 254 Cal. Rptr. 1

Under policy issued to owner of airplane for liability for death of passengers, providing that insurance would only be effective when pilot held current medical certificate, insurer as not liable for deaths that occurred while pilot with expired medical certificate was operating airplane, despite fact that pilot's medical condition did not cause accident. National Union Fire Ins. Co. v. Estate of Meyer (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 866, 868-873, 237 Cal. Rptr. 632

Aircraft liability policy as not excluding coverage for injuries to passenger because pilot failed to renew his medical certificate. Woods v. Insurance Co. of N. Am. (1974) 38 Cal. App. 3d 144, 147-148, 113 Cal. Rptr. 82

[2] Assignment of Policy

Although accrued right to collect proceeds of a policy is assignable without consent, insofar as an assignment involves substitution of one insured for another it is not effective without consent of insurer; sale of assets of business did not operate to make acquiring business an insured in absence of insurer's consent. Quemetco Inc. v. Pacific Auto. Ins. Co. (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 494, 502, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 627

[3] Attorney's Fees

Directors' and officers' liability policy that provided coverage for payment of legal costs, but did not state that insurer will defend claims, did not impose duty to defend; policy obligates insurer only to pay defense expenses as incurred. Gon v. First State Ins. Co. (9th Cir. 1989) 871 F.2d 863, 868

Insurer not liable for insured's attorney's fees paid to independent counsel during pendency of third-party claims because resolution of those claims did not control outcome of parties' coverage dispute. Native Sun Inv. Group v. Ticor Title Ins. Co. (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 1265, 1276-1277, 235 Cal. Rptr. 34

Expenses and attorney's fees of city defending action against it for false imprisonment are recoverable against city's insurer. City of Newport Beach v. Sasse (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 803, 809, 88 Cal. Rptr. 476

[4] Cancellation

No formal written notice of cancellation of liability policy normally required; however, when contractual conditions for cancellation are part of insurance policy, strict compliance required. Pacific Nat'l Ins. Co. v. Webster (1985) 174 Cal. App. 3d 779, 782, 220 Cal. Rptr. 274

[5] Collateral Estoppel

Insurer was collaterally estopped from relitigating issues of liability and damages and was bound by judgment in underlying action, despite fact that parties to underlying action agreed that in exchange for covenant not to execute, action would proceed as uncontested matter, because plaintiff's counsel presented evidence on liability and damages to judge, who rendered decision on those issues; proceeding was sufficient to satisfy "actual trial" requirement of policy's "no action" clause because it involved (1) independent adjudication of facts based on evidentiary showing; and (2) process that did not create potential for abuse, fraud or collusion. National Union Fire Ins. Co. v. Lynette C. (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th 1434, 1451, 33 Cal. Rptr. 2d 496 .

Doctrine of collateral estoppel inapplicable when earlier judgment, on which estoppel was based, is reversed; collateral estoppel doctrine requires final judgment on merits. Grain Dealers Mut. Ins. Co. v. Marino (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 1083, 1088-1089, 246 Cal. Rptr. 410

[6] Commercial General Liability Policy

Although Patent Act as amended in 1994 and effective in 1996 includes some conduct involving advertising, thus allowing patent infringement to arise out of insured's advertising activities in some instances, in this case conduct alleged in underlying complaint (direct infringement of patent by offering to sell infringing products through advertising) did not include advertising injury of "misappropriation of advertising idea or style of doing business" pursuant to comprehensive general liability (CGL) policy. Homedics, Inc. v. Valley Forge Ins. Co. (9th Cir. 2002) 315 F.3d 1135, 1139-1141

When CGL policy contained "personal liability injury liability" and "advertising injury" clauses, duty to defend was triggered by underlying complaint by insured's competitor in software products stating causes of action for false advertising and unfair competition that suggested claim for disparagement by implication, based on allegations of insured's representations about technological architecture of its own products. E.piphany, Inc. v. St. Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Co. (N.D. Cal. 2008) 590 F. Supp. 2d 1244, 1251

In action arising from third-party suit filed against insured computer-chip manufacturer, based on sale of allegedly defective chips, CGL policy covering "property damage," defined as "physical damage" or "loss of use," did not cover costs attributable to repair and replacement of defective components. Atmel Corp. v. St. Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Co. (N.D. Cal. 2006) 430 F. Supp. 2d 989, 994

Insurer under standard CGL policy, having properly reserved its rights, may advance sums to defend its insured against third-party lawsuit, and may thereafter recoup those costs from insured if it is determined, as matter of law, that no duty to defend ever arose because third-party suit never suggested possibility of covered claim. Scottsdale Ins. Co. v. MV Transp. (2005) 36 Cal. 4th 643, 662, 31 Cal. Rptr. 3d 147, 115 P.3d 460

Coverage for "advertising injury" arising out of "misappropriation of advertising ideas or style of doing business" under comprehensive general liability (CGL) policy requires widespread promotion to the public such that one-on-one solicitation of few customers does not give rise to insurer's duty to defend underlying lawsuit; allegations in underlying complaint that insured defendant took competitor's customer list and solicited customers from it did not give rise to insurer's duty to defend; defendant's alleged act was not misappropriation of advertising ideas under policy definition. Hameid v. National Fire Ins. of Hartford (2003) 31 Cal. 4th16, 29-30, 1 Cal. Rptr. 3d 401, 71 P.3d 761 (not deciding whether widespread promotional activities directed at specific market segments constitute advertising under policy); see Hayward v. Centennial Ins. Co. (9th Cir. 2005) 430 F.3d 989, 991-992 (misappropriation of trade secrets and wrongful solicitation of plaintiff's customers did not constitute advertising injury)

Insurer's duty to indemnify insured for "all sums that the insured becomes legally obligated to pay as damages" under standard comprehensive general liability (CGL) policy is limited to money ordered by court; duty to indemnify under policy containing this provision does not extend to any expenses required by administrative agency pursuant to environmental statute. Certain Underwriters at Lloyds, London v. Superior Court (2001) 24 Cal. 4th 945, 960, 966, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 672, 16 P.3d 94

Comprehensive liability insurers insuring only for tangible property losses do not owe duty to defend in dispute involving right to use implied easement; interference with easement right is not property damage to tangible property giving rise to duty to defend. Kazi v. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. (2001) 24 Cal. 4th 871, 879-882, 887, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1, 15 P.3d 223

Coverage for "advertising liability," which included "infringement of ... title," did not apply to underlying judgment for plaintiff in action by one real estate developer against another, for impermissibly including registered trademark in name of real estate development and related advertisements; in context of relevant comprehensive umbrella liability policy, "title" means name of literary or artistic work; moreover, policy excluded coverage "with respect to advertising activities" for "infringement of registered trade mark, service mark or trade name." Palmer v. Truck Ins. Exch. (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 1109, 1114-1116, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 647, 988 P.2d 568

Under standard comprehensive general liability insurance policy, insured's site investigation expenses are defense costs that insurer must pay if insured establishes following requirements by preponderance of evidence: site investigation was actually conducted between tender of defense and conclusion of action, site investigation was objectively reasonable and necessary effort to avoid or minimize liability, and site investigation expenses were objectively reasonable and necessary for that purpose. Aerojet-Gen. Corp. v. Transport Indem. Co. (1997) 17 Cal. 4th 38, 60-63, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 118, 948 P.2d 909

Standard comprehensive or commercial general liability insurance policies provide that insurer has duty to indemnify insured for those sums that insured becomes legally obligated to pay as damages for covered claim. Aerojet-Gen. Corp. v. Transport Indem. Co. (1997) 17 Cal. 4th 38, 56, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 118, 948 P.2d 909 ; California Pac. Homes, Inc. v. Scottsdale Ins. Co. (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 1187, 1192, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 328 .

Comprehensive general liability policy that did not specifically define "damages" incurred because of "property damage" that insured is "legally obligated" to pay covered environmental cleanup costs, including governmental-response reimbursement and remedial injunctive relief expenses. AIU Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 807, 828-843, 274 Cal. Rptr. 820, 799 P.2d 1253

Nonconformity exclusion in CGL precluded coverage in underlying suit for advertising activities based solely on insured telecommunication company's advertising allegedly misrepresenting its own phone cards. Total Call Int'l, Inc. v. Peerless Ins. Co. (2010) 181 Cal. App. 4th 161, 169-172, 104 Cal. Rptr. 3d 319

In CGL issued to school bus business primarily involved in transporting school children, exclusion for bodily injury damages caused by insured's "products" and "completed operations," advising insured that it did not have coverage for bodily injury arising out of "your product" or "your work," and providing separate definitions of "your product" and "your work," excluded coverage for damages arising from insured's negligent inspection of a bus; inspection was a work-related, "completed operation," even though damages occurred after insured sold the bus. Baker v. National Interstate Ins. Co. (2009) 180 Cal. App. 4th 1319, 1339, 103 Cal. Rptr. 3d 565, 2009 Cal. App. LEXIS 2117

Insurance industry's standardized "products-completed operations hazard" exclusion language in CGL policies sets forth two unambiguous, separate, and unrelated circumstances under which coverage is excluded. Baker v. National Interstate Ins. Co. (2009) 180 Cal. App. 4th 1319, 103 Cal. Rptr. 3d 565, 2009 Cal. App. LEXIS 2117

When advertising injury coverage included trademark infringement, exclusion for prior publication before the coverage date applies to trademark infringement, and is not limited to defamation and privacy claims; in this policy, "advertising injury" is surrounded by quotation marks, and appears with quotation marks in prior-publication exclusion; "advertising injury" has the same meaning when used in exclusion that it has whenever it appears in policy enclosed in quotation marks. Kim Seng Co. v. Great American (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 186, 195, 200, 101 Cal. Rptr. 3d 537 , reh'g denied, 2009 Cal. App. LEXIS 1971 (2009)

CGL policy is written in two essential parts: insuring agreement, which states covered risks, and exclusion clauses, which remove coverage for risks that would otherwise fall within insuring clause; policy exclusions are strictly construed, while exceptions to exclusions are broadly construed in favor of insured. Food Pro Int'l, Inc. v. Farmers Ins. Exch. (2008) 169 Cal. App. 4th 976, 985, 89 Cal. Rptr. 3d 1 , rev. denied, 2009 Cal. LEXIS 3729 (2009)

When party injured by brake-cleaning product did not file complaint against product manufacturer until three weeks before limitations period expired; plaintiff served complaint late after difficulty in locating proper agent; and defendant promptly notified its insurance broker, which failed to respond on insured's behalf, default judgment entered against defendant without further communication by plaintiff's attorney was improper, and motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 should have been granted. Fasuyi v. Permatex, Inc. (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 681, 696-703, 84 Cal. Rptr. 3d 351

Commercial general liability policy executed in Texas regarding oil and gas operations in California, and interpreted

according to California law, included duty to defend pollution claims arising from oil and gas operations in Beverly Hills notwithstanding that pollution liability endorsement does not mention duty to defend. Frontier Oil Corp. v. RLI Ins. Co. (2007) 153 Cal. App. 4th 1436, 63 Cal. Rptr. 3d 816

Sums agreed to be paid as settlement of litigation are not subject to indemnification as "damages" under excess liability insurance policies; "damages" as interpreted in Powerine I and used in liability insurance indemnity provisions means only money ordered by a court to be paid. Aerojet-General Corp. v. Commercial Union Ins. Co. (2007) 155 Cal. App. 4th 132, 143-144, 65 Cal. Rptr. 3d 803 (terms of agreement not entered as judgments in lawsuits); citing Certain Underwriters at Lloyd's of London v. Superior Court (2001) 24 Cal. 4th 945, 962-964, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 672, 16 P.3d 94 (Powerine I)

No potential duty to defend, and no coverage under advertising injury and property damage provisions of CGL policy for liability based on insured's violation of federal Telephone Consumer Protection Act of 1991 (47 U.S.C. § 227(b)(1)(C)) and invasion of privacy by sending unsolicited faxed advertisements. ACS Sys., Inc. v. St. Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Co. (2007) 147 Cal. App. 4th 137, 151-155, 53 Cal. Rptr. 3d 786

"Occurrence" in CGL policy as applied to bodily injuries caused by exposure to asbestos means injurious exposure to asbestos, not manufacture and distribution of those products; aggregation provisions in policy preclude treating all asbestos exposure as resulting from single annual occurrence. London Mkt. Insurers v. Superior Court (2007) 146 Cal. App. 4th 648, 669-672, 53 Cal. Rptr. 3d 154

Insurer of developer under occurrence-based commercial general liability policy was potentially liable for coverage and therefore had duty to defend construction-defect suit brought by condominium association, because property damage occurred during policy period, even though association was not formed and owned no property until after damage occurred; critical question is when property damage occurred, not when homeowners' association came into existence. Standard Fire Ins. Co. v. Spectrum Cmty. Ass'n (2006) 141 Cal. App. 4th 1117, 1131, 46 Cal. Rptr. 3d 804

Setoff affirmative defense could constitute suit seeking damages for purposes of CGL policy if affirmative defense: (1) would unquestionably have been suit for damages if asserted in court of law, and (2) fell within scope of contractual obligation; in suit by insured against its tenants to recoup CERCLA testing costs, affirmative defenses seeking apportionment of costs did not constitute suit seeking damages because tenants had no independent claim against insured; because tenants' indemnity claim was purely defensive, it was not functional equivalent of allegation seeking affirmative relief that could be asserted as suit for damages, which, in turn, might constitute suit for damages within meaning of usual CGL policy duty-to-defend provision. CDM Investors v. Travelers Cas. & Sur. Co. (2006) 139 Cal. App. 4th 1251, 1269, 43 Cal. Rptr. 3d 669

Under nonstandard CGL policy, duty to defend "any suit or action," did not obligate insurer to defend administrative actions that had not ripened into lawsuits; "wrongful entry" or "violation or infringement of property or contract rights" do not cover liability for pollution-related property damage; term "accident" means "sudden, unintended, and unexpected happening that is identifiable in time and place." Lockheed Martin Corp. v. Continental Ins. Co. (2005) 134 Cal. App. 4th 187, 193-194, 35 Cal. Rptr. 3d 799 , overruled in part, State of California v. Allstate Ins. Co. (2009) 45 Cal. 4th 1008, 1036, 201 P.3d 1147

Business policy that defined advertising to include notice that is broadcast or published to general public or specific market segments about insured's goods, products, orservices, for purpose of attracting customers or supporters, did not cover injuries caused by insured's hosted breakfast and Internet press release announcing that its franchisee company would disassociate itself from franchisor company, soliciting business from current customers, and importuning employees to join new company in same type of business; no advertising offense alleged. Rombe Corp. v. Allied Ins. Co. (2005) 128 Cal. App. 4th 482, 492-494, 27 Cal. Rptr. 3d 99

Underlying complaint alleging that plaintiff's former employee currently worked fordefendant, stole trade secrets, and attempted to solicit his former employer's customers, did not involve any advertising injury, defined in policy as: oral or written publication of material that slanders or libels a person or organization or disparages a person's or organization's goods, products or services, oral or written publication of material that violates a person's right of privacy; misappropriation of advertising ideas or style of doing business; or infringement of copyright, title or slogan. We Do Graphics, Inc. v. Mercury Cas. Co. (2004) 124 Cal. App. 4th 131, 136-138, 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 9 (no coverage or duty of defense)

Automobile exclusion in commercial general liability (CGL) policy precluded coverage and duty to defend with respect to assigned action arising from passenger's injuries sustained in automobile collision, because CGL policy was issued to company owned by driver's father, who purchased automobile for son's use; demurrer of CGL insurer properly sustained. Ace Am. Ins. Co. v. Walker (2004) 121 Cal. App. 4th 1017, 1025-1026, 18 Cal. Rptr. 3d 1

In case in which subcontractor provided substandard-grade steel pile caps to contractor, and contractor welded most of defective pile caps to driven piles at water-facility pumping plant before realizing that grade of steel was inferior, contractor's welding of defective pile caps did not constitute "property damage" within meaning of subcontractor's commercial general liability (CGL) policy solely because welded unit was inadequate to meet contractual design specifications, because there was no physical injury to piles or to other property, and defective pile caps were ultimately used as modified to meet design specifications. F & H Constr. v. ITT Hartford Ins. Co. (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 364, 371, 377, 12 Cal. Rptr. 3d 896

Policy defining "personal injury" as "injury other than 'bodily injury,' arising out of one or more of the following offenses: ... oral or written publication of material that slanders or libels a person or organization or disparages a person's or organization's goods, products or services" potentially covered underlying claim that insured had contacted plaintiff's customers, told them that plaintiff was infringing its patent, and threatened legal action. Atlantic Mut. Ins. Co. v. J. Lamb, Inc. (2002) 100 Cal. App. 4th 1017, 1032-1037, 123 Cal. Rptr. 2d 256

In case involving inclusion of contractor as additional insured in subcontractor's commercial general liability (CGL) policy, contractual liability coverage included indemnitee's attorney fees and costs as sums insured is "legally obligated to pay as damages because of" covered tort claims. Golden Eagle Ins. Co. v. Ins. Co. of W. (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 837, 852, 121 Cal. Rptr. 2d 682

CGL policy issued to construction company and "additional insured" endorsement provided coverage for "those sums that [additional insured] becomes legally obligated to pay as damages because of 'bodily injury' " and limited coverage to "liability arising out of" construction company's work; policy and endorsement covered construction company employee's injuries incurred while performing maintenance work for employer when wooden stair located on additional insured's premises collapsed, because sufficient causal connection existed between insured's work and additional insured's liability. Fireman's Fund Ins. Cos. v. Atlantic Richfield Co. (2001) 94 Cal. App. 4th 842, 848-851, 115 Cal. Rptr. 2d 26

Construction company's commercial general liability policy covering bodily injury and property damage did not cover claims by insured's business partner seeking resolution of economic disputes arising from construction-defect suits, dissolution of partnership, and accounting; insured could not possibly be liable to partner for causing property damage because partner made no claim for physical injury to tangible property; all asserted construction defect claims that were potentially covered under policy were already being defended by insurer in third-party suits; no duty to defend. Continental Cas. Co. v. Superior Court (2001) 92 Cal. App. 4th 430, 439-441, 111 Cal. Rptr. 2d 849

Complaint allegations of trade dress infringement, in light of extrinsic evidence (that product was possibly depicted in advertisement prior to suit) provided to insurer when insured tendered defense, were sufficient to implicate potential coverage under CGL policies' advertising injury liability coverage, and therefore to trigger duty to defend. El-Com

Hardware, Inc. v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. (2001) 92 Cal. App. 4th 205, 215-219, 111 Cal. Rptr. 2d 670 (reversing summary judgment for insurer)

Public policy requires that commercial general liability policy, held by contractor and insuring real estate developer as named additional insured, provide duty to defend developer against entire third-party action (that is, both covered and noncovered claims) brought by real estate buyer for construction defects. Presley Homes, Inc. v. American States Ins. Co. (2001) 90 Cal. App. 4th 571, 574-576, 108 Cal. Rptr. 2d 686

Executive officers covered, for purposes of surviving demurrer, with respect to action brought by their corporation alleging breach of fiduciary duty and related torts, based on their comments criticizing restructuring of subsidiary medical management company and opining that changes compromised patient care and violated California insurance laws; officers possibly acting within scope of their duties as executive officers. Barnett v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. (2001) 90 Cal. App. 4th 500, 512-513, 108 Cal. Rptr. 2d 657 (reversing dismissal of all claims following sustaining of demurrer)

Coverage for personal and advertising injury did not include duty to indemnify or defend shareholder/director in federal counterclaim alleging defamation and other torts because he was not acting as director at relevant times and was therefore sued in individual capacity; allegation of breach of fiduciary duty did not render him an "insured" under corporation's CGL policy. Lomes v. Hartford Fin. Servs. Group, Inc. (2001) 88 Cal. App. 4th 127, 134, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 471

Action by city against hotel owner for violating ordinance against renting rooms to nonpermanent residents did not invoke liability insurer's coverage with respect to claiming damages that insured was "obligated to pay" under commercial general liability (CGL) policy; underlying action by city alleged (1) violations of city ordinance, city planning code, and unfair business practice statutes, and (2) public nuisance; action sought injunctions, abatement of nuisance, appointment of receiver, and civil penalties. Bullock v. Maryland Cas. Co. (2001) 85 Cal. App. 4th1435, 1444-1449, 102 Cal. Rptr. 2d 804 (distinguishing AIU Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 807, 274 Cal. Rptr. 820, 799 P.2d 1253)

In action for indemnity under third-party general liability insurance policy, proof of causation and amount of damages incurred during each policy period are essential elements of plaintiff's prima facie case. Golden Eagle Refinery Co. v. Associated Int'l Ins. Co. (2000) 85 Cal. App. 4th 1300, 1314, 102 Cal. Rptr. 2d 834 , overruled in part, State of California v. Allstate Ins. Co. (2009) 45 Cal. 4th 1008, 1036, 201 P.3d 1147

Comprehensive general liability policies do not cover liabilities arising from ownership of properties acquired after the policy period. *Tosco Corp. v. General Ins. Co. (2000) 85 Cal. Ins. Code § 677.2(b) and (c), governing notice of cancellation of commercial general liability policy for nonpayment of premiums, requires notice to all insureds named in policy. Kotlar v. Hartford Fire Ins. (2000) 83 Cal. App. 4th 1116, 1121, 100 Cal. Rptr. 2d 246

Automobile exclusion clause in commercial general liability policy precluded coverage for injuries resulting when insured's niece took van keys without permission from insured's business office, drove van around parking lot, and struck her friend; injured party's complaint against insured for negligence in use of premises, negligent entrustment of van, negligent failure to supervise use of van, and vicarious liability did not state claim potentially covered under policy because injuries resulted solely from niece's use of insured's van; insurer had no duty to indemnify or defend. Belmonte v. Employers Ins. Co. (2000) 83 Cal. App. 4th 430, 433-435, 99 Cal. Rptr. 2d 661

"Advertising" as used in standard CGL policy does not include responding to single customer in competitive bidding process with product tailor-made for that customer. Peerless Lighting Corp. v. American Motorists Ins. Co. (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 995, 1012, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 753

Self-insured retentions (SIRs) are not primary insurance; with respect to losses insured by successive commercial liability policies, rule of horizontal exhaustion does not apply to SIRs; insured not required to exhaust SIRs on all potentially applicable policies before any insurer has any duty to indemnify insured for losses. Montgomery Ward & Co. v. Imperial Cas. & Indem. Co. (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 356, 364, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 44

Under "first-publication" exclusion clause contained in general commercial liability policy, insurer had no duty to defend or indemnify certain defamation claims asserted against insured in underlying lawsuits; policy expressly did not cover re-publication of defamatory material whose "first publication" took place before effective date of policy. Ringler Assocs. Inc. v. Maryland Cas. Co. (2000) Cal. App. 4th 1165, 1186-1187, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 136

"Infringement of ... title" with respect to "infringement of copyright, title or slogan" in context of "advertising liability," means distinctive name, designation, or other appellation; "infringement of title," in context of commercial general liability policy in question, inapplicable to claims based on infringement of legal ownership rights to property, such as patent infringement suit. Maxconn Inc. v. Truck Ins. Exch. (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 1267, 1277-1279, 88 Cal. Rptr. 2d 750 (no duty to defend)

"Advertising injury coverage" applicable to "advertising injury caused by ... offense committed in ... course of advertising your goods, products or services," did not provide potential coverage for alleged copyright infringement concerning unauthorized copy of registered painting purchased by and displayed in insured's building lobby; insurer therefore had no duty to defend suit for copyright infringement brought by artist of original painting. Ziman v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 1382, 1389, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 397

Standard pickup truck modified with hydraulic scissors lift (which raises and lowers container called a "bed") is "mobile equipment," not "automobile," for purposes of commercial general liability policy; house fire, which started when truck bed overfilled with gravel fell into burning propane kettle and ignited roofing tar, was not excluded peril. Alpine Ins. Co. v. Planchon (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 1316, 1321-1324, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 777

Comprehensive or commercial general liability policy triggered if specified harm is caused by included occurrence, so long as at least some such harm results within policy period. California Pac. Homes, Inc. v. Scottsdale Ins. Co. (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 1187, 1192, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 328

"Work product" exclusion in comprehensive general liability policy issued to real estate developer and general contractor precluded coverage for damages recovered by homeowners based on design and construction deficiencies (for example, problems with roofing, drainage system, leaks) in action brought under former Code Civ. Proc. § 374 (condominium association's standing to sue regarding damage to common areas) [now see Civ. Code § 1368.3]. Diamond Heights Homeowners Ass'n v. National Am. Ins. Co. (1991) 227 Cal. App. 3d 563, 572-573, 277 Cal. Rptr. 906

Under comprehensive general liability policy issued to real estate contractors and developers, broad form endorsement excluding coverage for property damage to "work performed by the named insured arising out of such work" did not exclude coverage for claims arising out of work performed by subcontractors retained by insured; exclusion for "property damage to the named insured's products arising out of such products" not applicable to damages arising from faulty services provided to named insured by subcontractors. Maryland Cas. Co. v. Reeder (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 961, 971, 976, 270 Cal. Rptr. 719

Comprehensive general liability protection against claims for bodily injury or damage to tangible property resulting from accidental event, when accident is defined as something that insured did not intend to happen, did not cover wrongful-termination claim, and no duty to defend action therefore exists. St. Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1984) 161 Cal. App. 3d 1199, 1202, 208 Cal. Rptr. 5

[7] Continuous or Progressive Damage

Under standard comprehensive general liability insurance policy, insurance policy is triggered when included occurrence causes specified harm within policy period; once policy is triggered, insurer is responsible for full extent of insured's liability resulting from included occurrence thereafter, and not just for that part of injury or damages that occurred during policy period. Aerojet-Gen. Corp. v. Transport Indem. Co. (1997) 17 Cal. 4th 38, 56-57

Under "continuous injury" theory adopted for third-party liability insurance cases in California, bodily injury and/or property damage that is continuous or progressively deteriorating throughout several policy periods is covered by all policies in effect during those periods, not merely by policy in effect at time damage is first manifested. Montrose Chem. Corp. v. Admiral Ins. Co. (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 645, 689, 42 Cal. Rptr. 2d 324, 913 P.2d 878

In context of continuous or progressively deteriorating property damage or bodily injury insurable under third-party liability policy, as long as uncertainty exists about damage or injury that may occur during policy period and imposition of liability upon insured, and no legal obligation to pay third party claims has been established, there is potentially insurable risk within meaning of Ins. Code §§ 22, 250; "loss in progress" rule will not defeat coverage when it had yet to be established, at time insurer entered into insurance contract with policyholder, that insured had legal obligation to pay damage to third party in connection with loss. Montrose Chem. Corp. v. Admiral Ins. Co. (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 645, 693, 42 Cal. Rptr. 2d 324, 913 P.2d 878

Continuous injury trigger described in Montrose Chemical Corp. v. Admiral Ins. Co. (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 645, 42 Cal. Rptr. 2d 324, 913 P.2d 878 , absent consideration of some defense other than trigger itself that would render no claim in underlying suit even potentially covered, generally means that all primary insurers over time of alleged continuous injury have obligation to defend underlying action claiming continuous damage. Padilla Constr. Co., Inc. v. Transportation Ins. Co. (2007) 150 Cal. App. 4th 984, 987, 58 Cal. Rptr. 3d 807

Mere fact that portions of continuous damage could not possibly have been covered by primary insurer makes no difference so far as excess insurer's duty to defend isconcerned. Padilla Constr. Co., Inc. v. Transportation Ins. Co. (2007) 150 Cal. App. 4th 984, 988, 58 Cal. Rptr. 3d 807

"Personal injury" coverage in commercial general liability (CGL) policy did not potentially include coverage for lessee's claim alleging business losses because of insured lessor's failure to timely vacate premises pursuant to lease agreement; insured lessor's conduct did not constitute "wrongful eviction," a covered claim under policy; moreover, "property damage" provision did not potentially include coverage for loss of use of intangible property rights. Cunningham v. Universal Underwriters (2002) 98 Cal. App. 4th 1141, 1150-1156, 120 Cal. Rptr. 2d 162

Insurers had duty to indemnify third-party claimant, who purchased insured hotel after expiration of all policies, because hotel was extensively expanded and remodeledby insureds and damage occurred during policy period. Century Indem. Co. v. Hearrean (2002) 98 Cal. App. 4th 734, 743, 120 Cal. Rptr. 2d 66

Insurer had no duty to indemnify insured for cleanup costs and property damage for which policy holder was liable under CERCLA, when damage occurred during policy period but before insured purchased damaged site or otherwise had any connection with damages. FMC Corp. v. Plaisted & Cos. (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 1132, 1150-1155, 72 Cal. Rptr. 2d 467

Once coverage for continuous injury was triggered under comprehensive general liability policy, provision requiring insurer to indemnify insured for "all sums" which insured was obligated to pay by reason of specified liabilities requiredinsurer to cover insured's liability in full up to policy limits, even though only part of damages occurred during policy period; insured was not required to pay pro rata share for period during which it either had no insurance or for any other reason had not established coverage. FMC Corp. v. Plaisted & Cos. (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 1132, 1183-1187, 72 Cal. Rptr. 2d 467

When coverage for single occurrence that resulted in continuous and progressive environmental injury was triggered in more than one policy period, insured was not entitled to "stack" policies and receive sum of coverage limits of policies triggered by occurrence, but was instead required to select one policy under which it would be indemnified and would receive coverage up to maximum amount "per occurrence" under that policy. FMC Corp. v. Plaisted & Cos. (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 1132, 1188-1190, 72 Cal. Rptr. 2d 467

Under comprehensive general liability policy issued to developer, insurer had duty to defend third party action alleging damages resulting from severe leakage throughout home, although damage did not manifest itself until nearly two years after policy expired, when clear implication of complaint was that there had been continuing and progressive deterioration beginning with defective design and construction. Pepperell v. Scottsdale Ins. Co. (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 1045, 1054, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 164

[8] Coverage

[a] In General

Under subcontractor's liability policy covering property damage defined as "physical injury" to "tangible property," claim arising from insured's faulty drywall construction was not covered under diminution-of-value theory based on increased fire risk to structure and burden of maintaining fire safety system caused by inadequate drywall installation; lack of coverage hinged on narrow definition of "property damage" under policy. New Hampshire Ins. Co. v. Vieira (9th Cir. 1991) 930 F.2d 696, 701

Bank's loss of collateralization due to misrepresentations regarding collateral was economic loss that was not covered under liability policy, rather than covered "property damage"; fact that misrepresentations related to quantity and physical condition of collateral did not convert loss into one for property damage; damage also was not "advertising injury" within meaning of policy. Fireman's Fund Ins. v. Nat'l Bank for Coops. (N.D. Cal. 1994) 849 F. Supp. 1347, 1356-1357, 1359

Standard business general liability policy does not provide coverage for physical and emotional distress arising from non-covered economic losses (business and intentional torts). Waller v. Truck Ins. Exch., Inc. (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 1, 15-16, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 370, 900 P.2d 619

"Unfair competition" as used in advertising injury coverage of comprehensive general liability policy refers to common law tort of unfair competition rather than to conduct prohibited under Unfair Business Practices Act (Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 et seq.). Bank of W. v. Superior Court (1992) 2 Cal. 4th 1254, 1263-1264, 1272, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 538, 833 P.2d 545 ; Chatton v. National Union Fire Ins. Co. (1992) 10 Cal. App. 4th 846, 863-865, 13 Cal. Rptr. 2d 318

Patent infringement not covered under "advertising injury" coverage of standard business general liability policy. Bank of W. v. Superior Court (1992) 2 Cal. 4th 1254, 1275, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 538, 833 P.2d 545 ; Aetna Cas. & Sur. Co. v. Superior Court (1994) 19 Cal. App. 4th 320, 327-328, 23 Cal. Rptr. 2d 442 ; Intex Plastics Sales Co. v. United Nat'l Ins. Co. (9th Cir. 1994) 23 F.3d 254, 256 ; Iolab Corp. v. Seaboard Sur. Co. (9th Cir. 1994) 15 F. 3d 1500, 1506-1507 ; National Union Fire Ins. Co. v. Siliconix Inc. (N.D. Cal. 1989) 729 F. Supp. 77, 79

Civ. Code § 2782, governing unenforceability under certain circumstances of construction-contract provisions limiting liability, does not limit enforcement of "additional insured" endorsement provided to indemnitee by indemnitor's liability insurer pursuant to terms of indemnity agreement. American Cas. Co. v. General Star Indem. Co. (2005) 125 Cal. App. 4th 1510, 1515-1516, 1531, 24 Cal. Rptr. 3d 34

Homeowners' serving of eviction notice on tenants on ground that homeowners would soon be moving into house, then renting to other tenants instead, in violation of local rent-stabilization ordinance, was not "occurrence" or "accident" with respect to tenants' underlying wrongful eviction claim. Swain v. California Cas. Ins. Co. (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 1, 7, 120 Cal. Rptr. 2d 808

In suit alleging that insured's agent retrieved documents regarding prior litigation from trash of claimant's attorneys, which documents revealed to insured privileged attorney-client information about claimant, no potential claim for "property damage" existed; although damages may be awarded for use of information contained in trashed documents, no recovery may be based on injury to or loss of use of documents as "tangible property" within policy definition. Ananda Church of Self-Realization v. Massachusetts Bay Ins. Co. (2002) 95 Cal. App. 4th 1273, 1281-1285, 116 Cal. Rptr. 2d 370

Policy covering only real property in another state did not cover property owned by insured in California for which claim was sought; insurer not entitled to contribution and indemnification from additional insurers if underlying claim concerning property in another state was not covered under policy. Fidelity & Deposit Co. v. Charter Oak Fire Ins. Co. (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 1080, 1085-1088, 78 Cal. Rptr. 2d 429

Policy language covering sums that insured becomes "legally obligated to pay" refers to tort liability, because it describes liability based on breach of duty imposed by law, rather than by contract. Old Republic Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 128, 146, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 642 (contract claim not covered)

When policy defined "occurrence" for which coverage was provided as event "unexpectedly and unintentionally" resulting in injury, court did not err in ruling that if insured intended any damage to third party property, coverage would be denied not only for expected or intended damage but for any further third party property damage resulting from same cause, even though further damage exceeded scope or nature of expected or intended third party property damage. FMC Corp. v. Plaisted & Cos. (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 1132, 1173-1179, 72 Cal. Rptr. 2d 467

Showing that insured expected soil damage to result from discharge of pollutants was sufficient to bar coverage for both soil damage and unexpected groundwaterdamage resulting from same discharge, when comprehensive general liability policy provided coverage only for unexpected and unintentional injuries. FMC Corp. v. Plaisted & Cos. (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 1132, 1173-1179, 72 Cal. Rptr. 2d 467

Judgment in favor of investors against directors and officers of financial services company for negligence and breach of fiduciary duty was not covered under policy; damages awarded for emotional distress were not covered because emotional distress is not "bodily injury" as required by policy, and plaintiffs' alleged physical distress derived from investment loss which was an economic loss and thus not within policy coverage for property damage to "tangible property." McLaughlin v. National Union Fire Ins. Co. (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 1132, 1150, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 559 ; see also Keating v. National Union Fire Ins. (9th Cir. 1993) 995 F.2d 154, 156-157

Coverage for inducing patent infringement, as opposed to patent infringement itself, is barred by Ins. Code § 533; in order to be liable for inducing infringement, party must have specific intent to induce another to infringe, and act would have to be intentionally performed with knowledge of its harmful nature. Aetna Cas. & Sur. Co. v. Superior Court (1993) 19 Cal. App. 4th 320, 331 (no duty to defend because no potential for coverage existed); Intex Plastics Sales Co. v. United Nat'l Ins. Co. (9th Cir. 1994) 23 F.3d 254, 256-257

Phrase "bodily injury, sickness or disease" was plain and unambiguous; coverage under bodily injury clause of comprehensive general liability policy is limited to physical injury to body and does not include include nonphysical, emotional, or mental harm. Chatton v. National Union Fire Ins. Co. (1992) 10 Cal. App. 4th 846, 854, 13 Cal. Rptr. 2d 318

Phrase "tangible property" in comprehensive general liability policy does not include coverage for injury to, or destruction or loss of use of, intangible property, such as economic interests or property rights. Chatton v. National Union Fire Ins. Co. (1992) 10 Cal. App. 4th 846, 857-858, 13 Cal. Rptr. 2d 318

"Occurrence" as defined in comprehensive general liability policy means "accidental" and therefore does not cover purposeful acts such as intentional or fraudulent conduct. Chatton v. National Union Fire Ins. Co. (1992) 10 Cal. App. 4th 846, 860-861, 13 Cal. Rptr. 2d 318

General liability policy covering sums that insured is legally obliged to pay as damages because of personal injury did not provide coverage for action alleging only fraud and intentional and negligent misrepresentation. Horsemen's Benevolent & Protective Ass'n v. Insurance Co. of N. Am. (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 816, 820, 271 Cal. Rptr. 838

Under "protection and indemnity" provision of all-risk yacht policy that covered sums insured is legally obligated to pay as result of ownership, operation, or maintenance of vessel, insurer had no duty to defend or to indemnify insured regarding wrongful death action arising from insured's alleged shooting of person aboard yacht; protection and indemnity policies cover only those liabilities specifically enumerated in policy. Reliance Ins. Co. v. Alan (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 702, 706-708, 272 Cal. Rptr. 65 , disapproved on other grounds, Buss v. Superior Court (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 35, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 366, 939 P.2d 766

In action brought by third party against insured, alleging causes of action based on contaminated soil on third party's property, arising from insured's contamination of soil some 15 years prior to third party's purchase of property, insurer under policy covering damage "caused by an occurrence," defined as "physical injury" to property "during the policy period," had duty to defend and indemnify insured, when both wrongful act and damage occurred within policy period, despite fact that third party did not own property at that time. Garriott Crop Dusting Co. v. Superior Court (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 783, 793-795, 270 Cal. Rptr. 678

"Contractual liability coverage" covers third-party tort liabilities that insured assumes by contract, not damages suffered by third party as result of insured's breach of contract entered into with that party. Loyola Marymount Univ. v. Hartford Accident & Indem. Co. (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 1217, 1226, 271 Cal. Rptr. 528

Inverse condemnation damages arising from property damage unintentionally caused by city's drainage system as covered by city's liability insurance policy, providing for payment of sums obligated to pay that were caused by occurrence resulting in property damage neither expected nor intended by insured. Mill Valley v. Transamerica Ins. Co. (1979) 98 Cal. App. 3d 595, 600, 601, 159 Cal. Rptr. 635

Insurer, under comprehensive general liability insurance policy and comprehensive personal insurance policy, as liable to State of California under Health & Safety Code § 13009 for cost of fire fighting when fire was caused by negligence of insured and spread to other property. Globe Indem. Co. v. State of California (1974) 43 Cal. App. 3d 745, 752-753, 118 Cal. Rptr. 75

Liability insurance policy of lessee of trucks naming manufacturer-lessor as additional insured as not covering latter's liability based on strict liability in tort for defect in manufacture causing injury to lessee's employee. Dart Transp. Serv. v. Mack Trucks, Inc. (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 837, 847-848, 88 Cal. Rptr. 670

[b] Burden of Proof

Under rule allocating to insured burden of proving that claim comes within policy coverage and allocating to insurer burden of proving that claim falls within exclusion, insured had burden of proving that property damage for which it was liable occurred unexpectedly, because policy's definition of covered occurrence included requirement that damage occur unexpectedly. FMC Corp. v. Plaisted & Cos. (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 1132, 1157-1160, 72 Cal. Rptr. 2d 467

[c] When Coverage Is Triggered

Under standard general liability policy, coverage is triggered when complaining party is actually damaged, not when wrongful act causing damage was committed. Montrose Chem. Corp. v. Admiral Ins. Co. (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 645, 669-670, 42 Cal. Rptr. 2d 324, 913 P.2d 878 ; Remmer v. Glens Falls Indem. Co. (1956) 140 Cal. App. 2d 84, 88, 295 P.2d 19

Under "continuous injury" theory adopted for third-party liability insurance cases in California, coverage under standard general liability policy is triggered neither by accident, event, or conditions causing bodily injury or property damage, nor by date of discovery of the damage or injury; it is only effect--occurrence of bodily injury or property damage during policy period, resulting from sudden accidentalevent or continuous or reported exposure to conditions--that triggers coverage. Montrose Chem. Corp. v. Admiral Ins. Co. (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 645, 675, 42 Cal. Rptr. 2d 324, 913 P.2d 878

Continuous injury trigger, rather than manifestation trigger, applied to third party action against insured developer for damages resulting from severe leakage throughout home, when clear implication of complaint was that there had been continuing and progressive deterioration beginning with defective design and construction of home. Pepperell v. Scottsdale Ins. Co. (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 1045, 1050-1055, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 164

Although continuous injury trigger applied to gradual release of pollutants, insurer had no duty to indemnify insured for cleanup costs and property damage for which insured was liable under CERCLA, when damage occurred during policy period but before insured purchased site or otherwise had any connection with damages. FMC Corp. v. Plaisted & Cos. (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 1132, 1150-1155, 72 Cal. Rptr. 2d 467

Under "claims made" policy, coverage is triggered when claim is made against insured and reported to insurer within policy period. KPFF, Inc. v. California Union Ins. Co. (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 963, 972, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 36

[9] Directors' and Officers' Liability Policy

In action against their insurers by corporations involved in merger and insured by D&O policies containing "company reimbursement coverage," for denial of coverage in underlying shareholder class action, summary judgment for one insurer reversed because claims and exposures settled in underlying suit were not so narrow in scope as to preclude coverage; claims may have sought non-restitutionary compensation for injuries suffered by shareholders, which would be covered. Pan Pac. Retail Props. v. Gulf Ins. Co. (9th Cir. 2006) 471 F.3d 961, 966-970

Directors and officers sued in their official capacities with regard to one corporation were not "insureds" within meaning of errors and omissions policy covering them in their official capacity with regard to different corporation for which they worked during same period. Bowie v. Home Ins. Co. (9th Cir. 1991) 923 F.2d 705, 709

Waiver under Ins. Code § 554 (late notice) requires insurer to intentionally relinquish its right to deny coverage; denial of coverage on one ground does not, absent clear and convincing evidence to suggest otherwise, impliedly waive grounds not stated in the denial. Oakland-Alameda County Coliseum, Inc. v. National Union Fire Ins. Co. (N.D. Cal. 2007) 480 F. Supp. 2d 1182, 1191

In mixed action, insurer that ascertained obligation under D&O policy to pay only 50 percent of defense costs had no contractual or other duty to advance on current basis 100 percent of reasonable attorneys' fees and costs that insured becomes obligated to pay in defending itself, its subsidiary, and several officers and employees in ongoing lawsuit; insurer need only advance on current basis those defense costs it believes to be covered under policy until different allocation is negotiated, arbitrated, or judicially determined. Commercial Capital Bankcorp, Inc. v. St. Paul Mercury Ins. Co. (C.D. Cal. 2006) 419 F. Supp. 2d 1173, 1185

"Insured vs. insured" exclusion in D&O policy bars coverage for securities fraud claims only if director or officer actively and voluntarily provided substantial aid or help to securities fraud plaintiff with intent of obtaining economic benefit by aiding prosecution of lawsuit; officers who provided information to securities fraud plaintiffs did not do so to obtain economic benefit and therefore did not provide "assistance" to plaintiffs within meaning of exclusion. Harris v. Gulf Ins. Co. (N.D. Cal. 2003) 297 F. Supp. 2d 1220, 1226

Letter to insured from third-party claimant's attorney was "claim" within meaning of D&O policy; insured's failure to report claim in timely manner after receiving letter rendered its later notice of claim untimely. Westrec Marina Management, Inc. v. Arrowood Indemnity Co. (2008) 163 Cal. App. 4th 1387, 1396, 78 Cal. Rptr. 3d 264

Insurer not liable for settlement or judgment in underlying suit against corporation and officer for breach of contract; D&O policy did not cover corporation's contractual debt or officer's liability for contract breach; in underlying suit, corporation was simply required to pay amount it voluntarily contracted to pay. August Entm't, Inc. v. Philadelphia Indem. Ins. Co. (2007) 146 Cal. App. 4th 565, 581-583, 52 Cal. Rptr. 3d 908 (affirming trial court's judgment for insurer after sustaining demurrer to complaint in bad faith action)

D&O policy issued to condominium association covering "wrongful acts" referred to negligent acts, negligent errors, and negligent omissions, and did not cover claim by contractors for breach of contract. Oak Park Calabasas Condo. Ass'n v. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. (2006) 137 Cal. App. 4th 557, 564-565, 40 Cal. Rptr. 3d 263

Violation of Corp. Code §§ 25400, 25500 (stock manipulation) involves knowing and intentional, not negligent, conduct; pursuant to Ins. Code § 533, D&O policy does not cover liability alleged in class action suit against insured based on fraudulent manipulation of securities market in violation of Corporations Code. California Amplifier, Inc. v. RLI Ins. Co. (2001) 94 Cal. App. 4th 102, 112-116

Policy construed as "wasting" or "self-consuming"; defense costs held payable against liability limits just like any other element of "loss" as defined in policy. Helfand v. National Union Fire Ins. Co. (1992) 10 Cal. App. 4th 869, 880, 13 Cal. Rptr. 2d 295

[10] Duty to Defend

[a] Commencement of Action for Breach of Duty

If any facts stated or fairly inferable in complaint, or otherwise known or discovered by insurer, suggest claim potentially covered by policy, duty to defend arises and is not extinguished until insurer negates all facts suggesting potential coverage; however, if, as matter of law, neither complaint nor known extrinsic facts indicate any basis for potential coverage, duty to defend does not arise in first instance. Scottsdale Ins. Co. v. MV Transp. (2005) 36 Cal. 4th 643, 655, 31 Cal. Rptr. 3d 147, 115 P.3d 460 ; Kim Seng Co. v. Great American (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 186, 193, 101 Cal. Rptr. 3d 537 , reh'g denied, 2009 Cal. App. LEXIS 1971 (2009)

Cause of action for refusal to defend accrues on discovery of loss or harm (when insurer refuses to defend); duty to defend is continuing; limitations period is equitably tolled from time cause of action accrues (when insurer refuses defense) until underlying lawsuit is terminated by final judgment. Eaton Hydraulics Inc. v. Continental Cas. Co. (2005) 132 Cal. App. 4th 966, 973, 34 Cal. Rptr. 3d 91

Duty of insurer under liability insurance policy to defend action against insured as continuing; hence, insured as entitled to elect to wait until final judgment is entered and duty to defend ceases before commencing action against insurer for breach of contract. Oil Base, Inc. v. Continental Cas. Co. (1969) 271 Cal. App. 2d 378, 389-390, 76 Cal. Rptr. 594

[b] Damages Recoverable for Breach of Duty

Wrongful failure to defend as rendering insurer liable for all damages reasonably incurred by insured in defending third-party action. Wint v. Fidelity & Cas. Co. (1973) 9 Cal. 3d257, 261, 107 Cal. Rptr. 175, 507 P.2d 1383

Distinction in measure of damages between wrongful refusal to settle and wrongful refusal to defend. Hogan v. Midland Nat'l Ins. Co. (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 553, 565, 91 Cal. Rptr. 153, 476 P.2d 825 ; Comunale v. Traders & Gen. Ins. Co. (1958) 50 Cal. 2d 654, 659-660, 328 P.2d 198

Insurer who tortiously breaches duty to defend is liable for full amount of default judgment against insured, regardless of whether coverage actually existed; insured is not required to prove that judgment would have been lower had insurer undertaken defense. Amato v. Mercury Cas. Co. (1997) 53 Cal. App. 4th 825, 831-839, 61 Cal. Rptr. 2d 909

Refusal of insurer to defend insured, when insured tendered defense of third party's claim, as subjecting insurer to liability for amount of stipulated judgment between insured and third party; conscious decision by insurer not to defend as precluding it from later setting aside stipulated judgment between insured and third party after third party brings action against insurer to recover amount of stipulation. Sunseri v. Camperos Del Valle Stables, Inc. (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 559, 561-562, 230 Cal. Rptr. 23

[c] Duty to Investigate

When sale of excess policy of supplemental liability insurance in rental car transaction occurs after rental car customer presents facially valid driver's license and after license inspection and signature verification have been met, excess insurer has no obligation to conduct further inquiry regarding validity of customer's driver's license and does not forfeit any statutory or contractual right to rely on customer's presentation of facially valid but suspended license as basis for avoiding liability to third persons under excess policy. Philadelphia Indemnity Ins. Co. v. Montes-Harris (2006) 40 Cal. 4th 151, 161-164, 51 Cal. Rptr. 3d 709, 146 P.3d 1251 (answering certified question from 9th Cir.)

Insurer does not have continuing duty to investigate potential for coverage if it has made informed decision on coverage at time of tender; however, when information available at time of tender shows no coverage but later information shows otherwise, duty to defend may then arise. American States Ins. Co. v. Progressive Casualty Ins. Co. (2009) 180 Cal. App. 4th 18, 26, 102 Cal. Rptr. 3d 591

Insurer who provided homeowner's coverage for third party bodily injury and property damage claims and who refused to tender defense of third party claims alleging emotional distress and "other injuries" without conducting any investigation was not entitled to have judgment against insured vacated based on insurer's mistake or excusable neglect in denying coverage, because complaint, on its face, should have alerted reasonable insurer to need to investigate whether plaintiffs' claims of emotional distress potentially included physical injury. Eigner v. Worthington (1997) 57

Cal. App. 4th 188, 196-199, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 808

[d] Insurer's Defenses

Although insurer is precluded from unilaterally rescinding once insured has filed suit, insurer may raise same issues by asserting rescission as affirmative defense and counterclaim. Atmel Corp. v. St. Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Co. (N.D. Cal. 2006) 416 F. Supp. 2d 802, 805-807

In action for breach of duty to defend in which insurer raised affirmative defense of rescission, if insurer is entitled to rescission, then policies are rendered void ab initio, and insurer never owed insured duty to defend. Atmel Corp. v. St. Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Co. (N.D. Cal. 2006) 416 F. Supp. 2d 802, 807

If insurer, by reasonable investigation, could have discovered a ground for asserting lack of coverage, that ground is waived if insurer fails to state it at time a request for coverage is tendered by insured; insurer may not belatedly raise that ground if reason upon which insurer initially denied coverage is found to have no merit or if insurer did not deny coverage at the outset. Alta Cal. Reg'l Ctr. v. Fremont Indem. Co. (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 455, 459, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 841 , disapproved on other grounds, Waller v. Truck Ins. Exchange, Inc. (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 1, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 370, 900 P.2d 619

Insurer that simply denies coverage, without expressly reserving right to assert defenses based on policy provisions that could limit amount of benefits available under policy if coverage ultimately is found to exist, does not waive right to assert those defenses in the event coverage is found; unreasonable to require insurer that is denying coverage to assert at outset an inconsistent theory that coverage is limited under policy terms. Alta Cal. Reg'l Ctr. v. Fremont Indem. Co. (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 455, 459-460, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 841 , disapproved on other grounds, Waller v. Truck Ins. Exch. Inc. (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 1, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 370, 900 P.2d 619 (carrier's attempt to assert applicability of "other insurance" clause to limit benefits); see Zumbrun v. United Servs. Auto. Ass'n (E.D. Cal. 1989) 719 F. Supp. 890, 897

Defense under primary policy, accompanied by a reservation of rights, did not constitute an estoppel against denial of coverage under an excess policy written by same insurer. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. v. Jioras (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 1619, 1626-1627, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 840

If action is brought against insured, and insurer, with knowledge of a ground of noncoverage under policy, assumes and conducts defense without disclaiming liability and giving notice of its rights, insurer waives right to assert noncoverage. Phoenix Ins. Co. v. United States Fire Ins. Co. (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 1511, 1527, n.15, 235 Cal. Rptr. 185 ; Miller v. Elite Ins. Co. (1980) 100 Cal. App. 3d 739, 755, 161 Cal. Rptr. 322

[e] Insurer's Recovery of Expenses

Amounts expended by insurance company in partial defense of action as not always reimbursable as matter of law if court finds there was no duty to defend. St. Paul Mercury Ins. Co. v. Ralee Eng'g Co. (9th Cir 1986) 804 F.2d 520, 522-523

Insurer under standard CGL policy, having properly reserved its rights, may advance sums to defend its insured against third-party lawsuit, and may thereafter recoup those costs from insured if it is determined, as matter of law, that no duty to defend ever arose because third-party suit never suggested possibility of covered claim. Scottsdale Ins. Co. v. MV Transp. (2005) 36 Cal. 4th 643, 662, 31 Cal. Rptr. 3d 147, 115 P.3d 460

In context of claim alleging continuous injury resulting from discharge of hazardous substances over period of time, insurer whose policy covered only portion of period at issue may recover from insured those defense costs that can be allocated solely to that part of claim for which insurer is not even potentially liable, such as damages caused by occurrence after policy expired. Aerojet-Gen. Corp. v. Transport Indem. Co. (1997) 17 Cal. 4th 38, 69-71, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 118, 948 P.2d 909

Under standard general commercial liability policy, insurer has obligation imposed by law to defend against entire action if at least one claim is potentially covered; however, insurer may seek reimbursement from insured for defense costs that can be allocated solely to those claims that are not even potentially covered; insurer has burden of proof by preponderance of evidence. Buss v. Superior Court (1997)16 Cal. 4th 35, 47-53, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 366, 939 P.2d 766

Under claims made policy covering structural engineering firm, insurer had no duty to defend seismic claim made after policy period had expired; complaint during policy period seeking modest damages for repairing damage to building resulting from cable failures did not constitute requisite written notice under policy's awareness provision, because it did not give insurer reasonable basis to infer likelihood of seismic claim. KPFF, Inc. v. California Union Ins. Co. (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 963, 974-976, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 36

Under awareness provision of claims made policy, written notice of circumstances that could give rise to subsequent claim arising out of act or omission of insured must be provided by insured itself; letter from counsel retained by insurer in earlier action did not constitute requisite written notice. KPFF, Inc. v. California Union Ins. Co. (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 963, 976-977, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 36

[f] Limitations on Duty to Defend

Insurer under comprehensive general liability policy issued to motion-picture special-effects company not obligated to defend or indemnify insured in action by motion-picture studio for failure to complete work, because harm was not "property damage" within meaning of policy. Gulf Ins. Co. v. L.A. Effects Group, Inc. (9th Cir. 1987) 827 F.2d 574, 577

Insurer had no duty to defend insured based on cross-complaint in suit by family members regarding insured's alleged mismanagement of family-owned property; cross-complaint asserted only economic causes of action, all of which pertained solely to financial management of property. Storek v. Fidelity & Guaranty Ins. Underwriters, Inc. (N.D. Cal. 2007) 504 F. Supp. 2d 803, 807-809

Liability insurance policies often contain "deductible" or "self-insured retention" (SIR), requiring insured to bear portion of loss otherwise covered by policy; unlike deductible, which generally relates only to damages, SIR also applies to defense costs and settlement of any claim; SIRs are equivalent to primary liability insurance; policies that are subject to SIRs are "excess policies" that have no duty to indemnify until SIR is exhausted. Forecast Homes, Inc. v. Steadfast Ins. Co. (2010) 181 Cal. App. 4th 1466, 1473-1474, 105 Cal. Rptr. 3d 200

In case in which developer required its subcontractors to defend and hold it harmless against any liability arising out of subcontractors' work, and required subcontractors to add developer to their general liability policies as additional insured, insurer had no obligation to defend developer because named insureds failed to pay "self-insured retention" (SIR), which was precondition for coverage; only named insureds, and not developer, could satisfy SIR and trigger coverage. Forecast Homes, Inc. v. Steadfast Ins. Co. (2010) 181 Cal. App. 4th 1466, 1472-1474, 1476-1481, 105 Cal. Rptr. 3d 200

Insurer had no duty to defend directors and officers in underlying bond litigation under "Nonprofit Organization Liability Insurance" policy because policy did not cover damages arising out of breach of contract, and plaintiffs in underlying suit sought to recover damages for failure of defendants to perform their contractual obligations to make repayments on bonds. Medill v. Westport Ins. Corp. (2006) 143 Cal. App. 4th 819, 829-831, 49 Cal. Rptr. 3d 570

Insurer has no duty to defend class action suit. Low v. Golden Eagle Ins. Co. (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 109, 113, 120 Cal. Rptr. 2d 827 (suit seeking class action status, alleging personal injury from ingestion of insured's food product)

Insurer under comprehensive general liability (CGL) policy issued to corporation that provided coverage for bodily injury and property damage did not owe duty to indemnify or defend shareholder/director in federal counterclaim alleging defamation, conversion, intentional interference with economic relations, breach of fiduciary duty, and misappropriation of trade secrets; plaintiff/counterclaim defendant was not acting as director at relevant times. Lomes v. Hartford Fin. Servs. Group, Inc. (2001) 88 Cal. App. 4th 127, 134, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 471 (same insurer already defending defendant and counterclaimant in that suit)

No duty under commercial general liability (CGL) policies to defend lawsuit for violation of Clean Water Act if alleged conduct occurred after expiration of all policies. Buena Vista Mines, Inc. v. Industrial Indem. Co. (2001) 87 Cal. App. 4th 482, 487-490, 104 Cal. Rptr. 2d 557

Insurer has no duty to defend when policy provides no potential basis for coverage. Waller v. Truck Ins. Exch., Inc. (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 1, 37, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 370, 900 P.2d 619 ; Lomes v. Hartford Fin. Servs. Group, Inc. (2001) 88 Cal. App. 4th 127, 132, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 471

Insurer not required to defend insured in third party action seeking incidental emotional distress damages caused by insured's noncovered economic or business torts. Waller v. Truck Ins. Exch., Inc. (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 1, 15-16, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 370, 900 P.2d 619

Insurer providing homeowners' policy had no duty to defend daughter of woman who lived with insured in suit involving daughter's negligence in abandoning drunken passenger on highway; daughter was not "insured" under policy because was not member of insured's household or insured's dependent. Safeco Ins. Co. v. Parks (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 779, 793-794, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 17

There is no duty to defend if there is no possibility of coverage; yacht insurance policy provided no possible coverage for insured's liability for allegedly transmitting herpes virus to plaintiff, because only connection with boat was allegation that plaintiff and defendant were sailing on defendant's boat while sexual relations allegedly occurred. Peters v. Firemen's Ins. Co. (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 808, 812-814, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 326

Insurer had no duty to defend action for assault and battery, intentional infliction of emotional distress, negligence, and negligent infliction of emotional distress arising from alleged rape and related injuries. Quan v. Truck Ins. Exch. (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 583, 595-602, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 134

Insurer has no duty arising by operation of law to defend insured's corporate successor in action brought by third party injured by insured's predissolution activities, despite finding of corporate successor's tort liability for those activities; law may not impose contractual insurance relationship between insurer and stranger to insurance contract. General Accident Ins. Co. of Am. v. Superior Court (1997) 55 Cal. App. 4th 1444, 1454-1455, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d 781

Allegations that priest used counseling techniques to obtain information about plaintiff and then misused those techniques to induce plaintiff's behavior were "inseparably intertwined" with priest's sexual misconduct, and insurer therefore had no duty to defend claim. Jane D. v. Ordinary Mut. (1995) 32 Cal. App. 4th 643, 653, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 131

No duty to defend sexual harassment suit against insured corporation when complaint contained no allegations of negligent conduct, acts in question could not reasonably be characterized as negligent or unintentional, corporation was aware of harassment by its officers and employees, and conduct was ratified or condoned by corporation. Coit

Drapery Cleaners, Inc. v. Sequoia Ins. Co. (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 1595, 1603-1604, 18 Cal. Rptr. 2d 692

Liability policy covering accidental bodily injury or property damage does not impose duty on insurer to defend action for conspiracy to engage in fraudulent billing practices, when potential for recovery is limited to intangible economic interests and property rights. Hurley Constr. Co. v. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. (1992) 10 Cal. App. 4th 533, 541, 12 Cal. Rptr. 2d 629

Liability policy covering "bodily injury" did not impose duty on insurer to defend or to indemnify regarding action for negligent breach of fiduciary duty, breach of contract, and infliction of emotional distress, brought by insured's employee based on insured's failure to provide promised health insurance coverage and employee's consequent liability for medical expenses arising from car accident. Aim Ins. Co. v. Culcasi (1991) 229 Cal. App. 3d 209, 217-228, 280 Cal. Rptr. 766

Duty to defend is measured by nature and kind of risks covered by policy; under claims-made medical malpractice policy, no potential duty to defend exists when third party neither made any claim nor asserted any right against insured. Hill v. Physicians &Surgeons Exch. (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 1, 7, 274 Cal. Rptr. 702

Under general comprehensive policy that excluded coverage for personal injuries arising out of business pursuits of insured, insurer had no duty to defend in underlying action alleging negligent infliction of emotional distress based on wrongful termination claim against insured. California Ins. Guarantee Ass'n v. Wood (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 944, 949, 266 Cal. Rptr. 250

Medical malpractice insurer has no duty to defend insured in wrongful termination action; although evaluation of physician's performance requires medical expertise, decision to terminate physician is not "rendering professional services" within meaning of coverage. Inglewood Radiology Med. Group, Inc. v. Hospital Shared Servs., Inc. (1989) 217 Cal. App. 3d 1366, 1370, 266 Cal. Rptr. 501

Under homeowner's policy providing obligation to defend actions that seek damages, insurer was under no duty to provide representation of insureds in juvenile proceedings against insureds' minor son. United Pac. Ins. Co. v. Hall (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 551, 556, 245 Cal. Rptr. 99

Insurer of real estate company had no duty to defend and indemnify insured's employee in action based on employee's activities prior to employment with company, when policy provided coverage for employee "but only while acting within the scope of his duties as such." Padberg v. Travelers Cos. (1987) 197 Cal. App. 3d 1161, 1165-1166, 243 Cal. Rptr. 266

Under vendor's broad form endorsement to comprehensive general liability policy purchased by manufacturer, insurer had no duty to defend vendor regarding injury caused by product manufactured by predecessor corporation because policy provided coverage only for named insured's products. Oliver Mach. Co. v. United States Fid. & Guar. Co. (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 1510, 1515-1520, 232 Cal. Rptr. 691

Psychiatrist's malpractice insurance policy did not require defense of criminal prosecution for Medi-Cal fraud and theft; no duty of insurance company to defend absent potential for coverage within limits of policy. Jaffe v. Cranford Ins. Co. (1985) 168 Cal. App. 3d 930, 934, 214 Cal. Rptr. 567

Insurer's obligation to defend was terminated when bifurcated trial settled issue of liability; insurer's letter stating that it would assume cost of defense for entire action did not impose broader obligation than policy created. California Union Ins. Co. v. Club Aquarius (1981) 113 Cal. App. 3d 243, 247-248, 169 Cal. Rptr. 685

[g] Multiple Insurers Having Duty to Defend

In context of claim alleging continuous injury resulting from discharge of hazardous substances over 28-year period, each insurer that issued standard comprehensive general liability policy during that period had duty to defend entire action, because each policy potentially covered part of claim; each insurer may also have had corresponding right to require other insurers to share in discharging duty or to contribute to its costs. Aerojet-Gen. Corp. v. Transport Indem. Co. (1997) 17 Cal. 4th 38, 69-70

When more than one insurer owes duty to defend, defense by one insurer does not excuse failure of other insurer to perform. Wint v. Fidelity & Cas. Co. (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 257, 263, 107 Cal. Rptr. 175, 507 P.2d 1383

If coverage is ultimately denied and hence there is no duty to indemnify, insured may nonetheless recover costs incurred in defense of action; however, costs may not be recovered if other insurers were on the risk and assumed insured's defense. Tradewinds Escrow, Inc. v. Truck Ins. Exch. (2002) 97 Cal. App. 4th 704, 712, 118 Cal. Rptr. 2d 561

Court's confirmation of good faith settlement between liability insurer and insured did not bar non-settling co-insurers from asserting future claims for equitable contribution or indemnity against settling insurer. Rohr Indus., Inc. v. First State Ins. Co. (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 1480, 1487-1490, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 872

No definite rule applicable in all situations regarding apportionment of costs of defense among insurers jointly responsible for defense; trial court's method of allocation, according to relative limits of coverage set by respective policies, was not abuse of discretion given acceptance of formula by overwhelming weight of authority. CNA Cas. of Cal. v. Seaboard Sur. Co. (1986) 176 Cal. App. 3d 598, 619-620, 222 Cal. Rptr. 276

[h] Payment of Policy Limits

In action involving environmental clean-up, issuance of remedial action order by California Department of Health Services was not equivalent to adjudication of liability that would allow primary insurer to pay out its policy limits and thereby extinguish its duty to defend insured, even though estimated cost of cleanup exceeded policy limits, but approval of remediation plan that clearly establishes that cost of remediation will exceed primary policy limits would be sufficient to allow primary insurer to tender policy limits to insured and thereby extinguish its duty to defend. County of Santa Clara v. USF & G (N.D. Cal. 1994) 868 F. Supp. 274, 277-278, 280

[i] Procedure in Action for Breach of Duty to Defend

When liability insurer providing defense to its insured believes there is no longer potential for coverage and, therefore, no longer duty to defend, it may bring declaratory relief action to obtain judicial declaration that it need no longer do so; however, insured may seek to stay that action if proceeding could prejudice its defense of underlying liability action. Great American Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (2009) 178 Cal. App. 4th 221, 225, 234-235, 100 Cal. Rptr. 3d 258

Insurer or insured may sue to determine whether insurer has duty to defend or indemnify insured in action by third party; coverage action may be framed as action for declaratory relief, breach of contract, breach of implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing, or otherwise; coverage action should generally be stayed until third-party action is resolved. GGIS Ins. Svcs. v. Superior Court (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 1493, 1504-1505, 86 Cal. Rptr. 3d 515

Demurrer to complaint by insured alleging bad faith was properly sustained without leave to amend after judgment was entered on cross-complaint in underlying action in which insured sought damages from insurer for breach of duties to defend and indemnify against injured party's claim; insured had impermissibly split single cause of action. Lincoln Prop. Co., N.C., Inc. v. Travelers Indem. Co. (2006) 137 Cal. App. 4th 905, 914-916, 41 Cal. Rptr. 3d 39

Claim for breach of covenant of good faith and fair dealing and claim for breach of duty to defend with respect to handling of particular claim are parts of same asserted primary right, and therefore must both be brought in same suit; failure to do so bars second action as impermissible splitting of single cause of action. Lincoln Prop. Co., N.C., Inc. v. Travelers Indem. Co. (2006) 137 Cal. App. 4th 905, 914-916, 41 Cal. Rptr. 3d 39

Absent relevant admissions of insured, insurer moving for summary adjudication of issues or summary judgment on merits of case in which coverage is disputed must provide copies of policies or, if policies are missing, secondary evidence sufficient to inform court of relevant terms and conditions of insurance contract. Certain Underwriters at Lloyd's of London v. Superior Court (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 952, 955-959, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 821

[j] Reservation of Rights

Insurer that has assumed defense with reservation of rights not required to segregatehandling of liability claims from coverage investigation. Employers Ins. of Wausau v. Albert D. Seeno Constr. (9th Cir. 1991) 945 F.2d 284, 288

Insurer under standard CGL policy, having properly reserved its rights, may advance sums to defend its insured against third-party lawsuit, and may thereafter recoup those costs from insured if it is determined, as matter of law, that no duty to defend ever arose because third-party suit never suggested possibility of covered claim. Scottsdale Ins. Co. v. MV Transp. (2005) 36 Cal. 4th 643, 662, 31 Cal. Rptr. 3d 147, 115 P.3d 460

Insurer may reserve its right to assert noncoverage of settled claims unilaterally. Blue Ridge Ins. Co. v. Jacobsen (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 489, 498, 106 Cal. Rptr. 2d 535

To obtain reimbursement from insured for defense costs regarding claims not potentially covered, insurer must reserve its right to seek reimbursement. Buss v. Superior Court (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 35, 61 n.27, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 366, 939 P.2d 766

Absent contrary provision in policy, insurer has no right of reimbursement for defending claims potentially covered by policy, and insurer's "reservation of rights" to seek reimbursement for claims is therefore ineffectual, even if insured agrees to reservation. Buss v. Superior Court (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 35, 49-50

Insurer that refused to defend California Department of Transportation (CalTrans) as additional insured in action arising from fatal traffic collision allegedly because of defective median barrier and involving company hired by CalTrans, could not intervene to defend while reserving rights after case had already been settled; insurer took no steps to participate until several years had passed and comprehensive settlement agreement had been reached. Noya v. A.W. Coulter Trucking (2006) 143 Cal. App. 4th 838, 842, 49 Cal. Rptr. 3d 584

When insurer has reserved its rights, resulting in declaratory relief action, policy's "cooperation clause" does not effect waiver of insured's attorney-client or work product privileges with respect to documents sought by insurer. Rockwell Int'l Corp. v. Superior Court (1994) 26 Cal. App. 4th 1255, 1265-1266, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 153

Insurer's reservation of rights letter that conditioned its right to seek reimbursement of defense costs on insured's agreement to reservation of that right did not create, in absence of any express agreement by insured, contractual understanding sufficient to entitle insurer to seek subsequent reimbursement of defense costs. American Motorists Ins. Co. v. Allied-Sysco Food Servs., Inc. (1993) 19 Cal. App. 4th 1342, 1355-1356, 24 Cal. Rptr. 2d 106 , disapproved on other grounds, Buss v. Superior Court (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 35, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 366, 939 P.2d 766 ; but see Walbrook Ins. Co. Ltd. v. Goshgarian & Goshgarian (C.D. Cal. 1989) 726 F. Supp. 777 ; Omaha Indem. Ins. Co. v. Cardon Oil Co. (N.D. Cal. 1988) 687 F. Supp 502 (insured's acceptance of defense under insurer's reservation of rights letter that expressly reserved right to recover defense costs without conditioning that right on insured's approval constituted insured's agreement to insurer's reservation of rights)

Following determination of noncoverage, insurer not entitled to recover defense costs on equitable restitution theory when insurer was uncertain whether policy provided coverage and undertook defense to protect itself from breach of contract claim, and policy contained no reimbursement provision. Reliance Ins. Co. v. Alan (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 702, 708-710, 272 Cal. Rptr. 65 , disapproved on other grounds, Buss v. Superior Court (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 35, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 366, 939 P.2d 766

Insurer properly undertaking defense under reservation of rights. Gray v. Zurich Ins. Co. (1966) 65 Cal. 2d 263, 279, 54 Cal. Rptr. 104, 419 P.2d 168 ; State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v. Allstate Ins. Co. (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 508, 515, 88 Cal. Rptr. 246

[k] Scope of Duty to Defend

[i] Generally

Policy provision for defense of malicious prosecution claims also required insurer to defend claim for abuse of process. Lunsford v. American Guarantee & Liab. Ins. Co. (9th Cir. 1994) 18 F.3d 653

Under California law, liability insurer has broad duty to defend its insured against claims that create potential for indemnity; because duty to defend is broader than duty to indemnify, insurer may have duty to defend even though no damages are ultimately awarded. E.piphany, Inc. v. St. Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Co. (N.D. Cal. 2008) 590 F. Supp. 2d 1244, 1251

Duty to defend, although broad, is not unlimited, and is measured by nature and kinds of risks covered by policy. E.piphany, Inc. v. St. Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Co. (N.D. Cal. 2008) 590 F. Supp. 2d 1244, 1251

If any facts stated or fairly inferable in complaint, or otherwise known or discovered by insurer, suggest claim potentially covered by policy, insurer's duty to defend arises and is not extinguished until insurer negates all facts suggesting potential coverage; however, if, as matter of law, neither complaint nor known extrinsic facts indicate any basis for potential coverage, duty to defend does not arise in first instance. Scottsdale Ins. Co. v. MV Transp. (2005) 36 Cal. 4th 643, 655, 31 Cal. Rptr. 3d 147, 115 P.3d 460 ; GGIS Ins. Svcs. v. Superior Court (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 1493, 1506, 86 Cal. Rptr. 3d 515

Institution of "suit" for purposes of triggering insurer's duty to defend is effected by filing of complaint that initiates court proceeding; "suit" denotes court proceedings, not substantive or functional equivalent of court proceedings, e.g., administrative notice or order issued by EPA, even if administrative action has serious consequences or precludes substantial defenses. Foster-Gardner, Inc. v. National Union Fire Ins. Co. (1998) 18 Cal. 4th 857, 879, 882, 888-889, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 107, 959 P.2d 265

Evidence extrinsic to complaint may defeat as well as trigger insurer's duty to defend, when issue of coverage can be determined as matter of law on undisputed facts. Montrose Chem. Corp. v. Superior Court (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 287, 296-299, 24 Cal. Rptr. 2d 467, 861 P.2d 1153

Insurer had duty to defend claim arising out of sexual molestation committed by teacher despite fact that Ins. Code § 533 barred coverage, because claim also alleged negligent nonsexual conduct related to molestation. Horace Mann Ins. Co. v. Barbara B. (1993) 4 Cal. 4th 1076, 1084, 17 Cal. Rptr. 2d 210, 846 P.2d 792 ; but see State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. v. Century Indem. Co. (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 648, 661-663, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 403 (teacher's alleged negligent failure to report hisown molestation of students was so directly related to and inseparable from uninsurable molestation itself that alleged negligence did not trigger insurer's duty to defend); Jane D. v. Ordinary Mut. (1995) 32 Cal. App. 4th 643, 653, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 131 (allegations that priest used counseling techniques to obtain information about plaintiff and then misused those techniques to induce plaintiff's behavior were "inseparably intertwined" with priest's sexual misconduct, and therefore insurer had no duty to defend claim)

Insurer must defend its insured whenever it ascertains facts that give rise to potential of liability under policy; duty to defend "insured" includes both named insured and anyone else included in policy definition of "insured." American States Ins. Co. v. Progressive Casualty Ins. Co. (2009) 180 Cal. App. 4th 18, 26, 102 Cal. Rptr. 3d 591

When some claims are potentially covered and others are not, insurer must defend entire action, including those claims for which there is no potential coverage, even if those claims predominate; duty to defend entire action continues until insurer produces undeniable evidence supporting allocation of specific portion of defense costs to noncovered claim. American States Ins. Co. v. Progressive Casualty Ins. Co. (2009) 180 Cal. App. 4th 18, 26, 102 Cal. Rptr. 3d 591

Issue whether particular policy provides potential for coverage and duty to defend is question of law. Kim Seng Co. v. Great American (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 186, 193, 101 Cal. Rptr. 3d 537 , reh'g denied, 2009 Cal. App. LEXIS 1971 (2009)

Duty to defend is both separate from and broader than duty to indemnify. Food Pro Int'l, Inc. v. Farmers Ins. Exch. (2008) 169 Cal. App. 4th 976, 985, 89 Cal. Rptr. 3d 1 , rev. denied, 2009 Cal. LEXIS 3729 (2009)

To prevail in duty to defend action, insured must prove existence of potential for coverage, while insurer must establish absence of any potential; insured need only show that underlying claim may fall within policy coverage; insurer must prove it cannot. Food Pro Int'l, Inc. v. Farmers Ins. Exch. (2008) 169 Cal. App. 4th 976, 985, 89 Cal. Rptr. 3d 1 , rev. denied, 2009 Cal. LEXIS 3729 (2009)

Liability insurer owes broad duty to defend its insured against claims that create potential for indemnity; carrier must defend suit that potentially seeks damages within coverage of policy; duty to defend is broader than duty to indemnify. Great American Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (2009) 178 Cal. App. 4th 221, 234, 100 Cal. Rptr. 3d 258

Potential liability for purposes of duty to defend is gauged by facts alleged in complaint and facts known to insurer at time of coverage. Griffin Dewatering Corp. v. Northern Ins. Co. of N.Y. (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 172, 197-198, 97 Cal. Rptr. 3d 568

Insurer's refusal to defend insured (contractor whose primary work involves movement of water) in suit by water district was reasonable; suit arose from insured's work on manhole feeding into main sewer that resulted in sewer-water damage to a residence; refusal to defend was rooted in literal language of absolute pollution exclusion. Griffin Dewatering Corp. v. Northern Ins. Co. of N.Y. (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 172, 202-208, 97 Cal. Rptr. 3d 568 , citing MacKinnon v. Truck Ins. Exch. (2003) 31 Cal. 4th 635, 3 Cal. Rptr. 3d 228, 73 P.3d 1205

Duty to defend groundless action applies only to claims covered by policy. Venoco, Inc. v. Gulf Underwriters Ins. Co. (2009) 175 Cal. App. 4th 750, 765, 96 Cal. Rptr. 3d 409

Duty to defend arises under California law on tender to insurer of potentially covered claim and continues until lawsuit is concluded or until insurer shows that facts extrinsic to third-party complaint conclusively negate potential for coverage. Frontier Oil Corp. v. RLI Ins. Co. (2007) 153 Cal. App. 4th 1436, 1466, 63 Cal. Rptr. 3d 816

Underlying complaint alleging that as result of oil and gas exploration activities, hazardous substances were discharged into environment, causing damage covered by policy, created potential for coverage under CGL policy; because insurer failed to establish absence of duty to defend, it was not entitled to summary judgment on that basis. Frontier Oil Corp. v. RLI Ins. Co. (2007) 153 Cal. App. 4th 1436, 1468, 63 Cal. Rptr. 3d 816

Insurer under primary and excess liability policies covering property damage had duty to defend insured commercial nursery that sold strawberry nursery stock to third-party growers, in suit by growers alleging that aerially sprayed herbicide that causes systemic damage to strawberry plants drifted onto insureds' property and stock ofplants, which insureds negligently sold to growers. Hendrickson v. Zurich Am. Ins. Co. (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 1084, 1091, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 622

Insurer may have duty to defend even if insurer ultimately has no obligation to indemnify, either because no damages are awarded in underlying action against insured or because actual judgment is for damages not covered under policy. Wausau Underwriters Ins. Co. v. Unigard Sec. Ins. Co. (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 1030, 1047, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 688

Liability insurer owes duty to defend its insured if claim creates any potential for indemnity; whether duty to defend arises is determined by comparing terms of policy with allegations of complaint and any known extrinsic facts; any doubt as to whetherfacts create duty to defend is resolved in favor of insured. Smith Kandal Real Estate v. Continental Cas. Co. (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 406, 413-414, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 52

Insurer's unilateral determination that insured did not contaminate groundwater and therefore was not liable for misconduct alleged in third-party complaint did not permit insurer to avoid duty to defend; duty to defend covers third party claims that are groundless, false, or fraudulent. A-H Plating, Inc. v. American Nat'l Fire Ins. Co. (1997) 57 Cal. App. 4th 427, 442-443, 67 Cal. Rptr. 2d 113

Insurer had duty to defend action including claims that teacher engaged in both sexual conduct and nonsexual physical conduct with student, when nonsexual conduct was temporally and spatially separate from sexual conduct, and trier of fact could reasonably find non-sexual conduct was inappropriate or negligent and caused student embarrassment. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. v. Century Indem. Co. (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 648, 664-665, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 403

When dispute arises over whether or not policy limits have been exhausted, primary insurer must continue to defend until it obtains declaratory judgment or summary judgment that it has exhausted policy limits; primary insurer that successfully proves exhaustion is entitled to be reimbursed by excess insurer for its share of defense costs. Hartford Accident & Indem. Co. v. Superior Court (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 1774, 1780-1782, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 32 , relying on Montrose Chem. Corp. v. Superior Court (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 287, 24 Cal. Rptr. 2d 467, 861 P.2d 1153

Insurer that possessed evidence suggesting that insured did not reside with mother-in-law had duty to defend insured in action by mother-in-law for injuries suffered in auto accident involving insured, even though jury ultimately found that parties did in fact reside together and coverage therefore was barred under policy's "resident relative" exclusion. Amato v. Mercury Cas. Co. (1993) 18 Cal. App. 4th 1784, 1789, 23 Cal. Rptr. 2d 73 , modified, Amato v. Mercury Cas. Co. (1997) 53 Cal. App. 4th 825, 61 Cal. Rptr. 2d 909

Insurer had duty to appeal adverse judgment when reasonable grounds for appeal exist, and policy is construed to include post-trial remedies; duty to appeal not precluded by contract unless contract very specifically exempts insurer from that duty. Jenkins v. Insurance Co. of N. Am. (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 1481, 1490-1492, 272 Cal. Rptr. 7

Under homeowner's policy containing personal liability coverage, insurer had duty to defend insured in action by third party based on transmission of venereal disease, when complaint alleged both negligent and intentional torts and insurer was potentially required to indemnify with regard to negligent conduct. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. v. Eddy (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 958, 965-966, 267 Cal. Rptr. 379

Law held to impose implied obligation to defend on excess insurer when that obligation is not expressly and clearly omitted from particular risk; absent explicit provision that defense duty is optional, duty is imposed. Interstate Fire & Cas. Co. v. Stuntman, Inc. (9th Cir. 1988) 861 F.2d 203, 205

Insurer required under liability policy to defend lawsuit against insured that potentially seeks damages within coverage of policy. Aetna Cas. & Sur. Co. v. Centennial Ins. Co. (9th Cir. 1988) 838 F.2d 346, 350 ; Gulf Ins. Co. v. L.A. Effects Group, Inc. (9th Cir. 1987) 827 F.2d 574, 576 ; Wint v. Fidelity & Cas. Co. (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 257, 261, 107 Cal. App. 3d 559, 561, 230 Cal. Rptr. 23

Insurer had duty to provide counsel hired to defend insured with sufficient funds to conduct defense, and had duty to stay informed of progress and status of litigation in order to act intelligently and in good faith on settlement offers; duty to defend includes duty to negotiate and evaluate settlement offers. Travelers Ins. Co. v. Lesher (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 169, 188, 191, 231 Cal. Rptr. 791 , disapproved on other grounds, Buss v. Superior Court (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 35, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 366, 939 P.2d 766)

Insurer's duty to defend is broader than duty to indemnify. Val's Painting & Drywall, Inc. v. Allstate Ins. Co. (1975) 53 Cal. App. 3d 576, 584, 126 Cal. Rptr. 267

[ii] Application of Exclusions

"Exclusion--Engineers, Architects or Surveyors Professional Liability," or "professional services exclusion," in CGL policy did not preclude duty to defend when exclusion was applied narrowly to incident occurring while insured was on project site as engineering consultant; because insured was engineering firm, general liability policy would otherwise be essentially useless. Food Pro Int'l, Inc. v. Farmers Ins. Exch. (2008) 169 Cal. App. 4th 976, 986, 992, 89 Cal. Rptr. 3d 1 , rev. denied, 2009 Cal. LEXIS 3729 (2009)

CGL insurer had duty to defend insured, one of insured's partners, and manager employed by insured, in suit by former employee for sexual harassment, defamation, and other claims in context of wrongful termination, alleging that coworker made defamatory sexual remarks about former employee following her termination of their affair; alleged defamation was outside scope of exclusion for personal injury arising out of any employment-related practices, policies, acts or omissions, including defamation. Golden Eagle Ins. Corp. v. Rocky Cola Cafe, Inc. (2001) 94 Cal. App. 4th 120, 128-129, 114 Cal. Rptr. 2d 16

Insurer had duty to defend action seeking to recover for losses caused by leak in underground fuel tank, despite policy exclusion for losses arising out of "request, demand or order" that insured or others in any way respond to or assess effects of pollutants; although fire department had ordered plaintiff to conduct tests, improve its monitoring systems, and repair leaking tank, complaint also alleged that plaintiff removed and replaced storage tanks, excavated and disposed of contaminated soil, and repaired damage to property where leak occurred, none of which activities had been ordered by fire department or any other agency. Charles E. Thomas Co. v. Transamerica Ins. Group (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 379, 382-384, 72 Cal. Rptr. 2d 577

Under comprehensive general liability policy purchased by machine manufacturer, exclusionary clause for relabeled products held insufficient to release insurer from duty to defend additional insured vendor, when all products sold were relabeled and when to deny duty would nullify coverage of additional insured. Oliver Mach. Co. v. United States Fid. & Guar. Co. (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 1510, 1514-1515, 232 Cal. Rptr. 691

Statutory exclusion against indemnification of punitive damages not sufficient by itself to establish that insurer had no duty to continue defense against claim for punitive damages after settlement of other claims for which insurer had potential duty to indemnify, when policy did not expressly exclude coverage for punitive damages. Ohio Cas. Ins. Co.

v. Hubbard (1984) 162 Cal. App. 3d 939, 946-948, 208 Cal. Rptr. 806

[11] Duty to Provide Independent Counsel

In general, insurer entitled to control settlement negotiations without interference from insured; insurer normally cannot be liable to insured if insurer does no more than settle claim or suit within policy limits; insurer retains contractual right to settle claim as insurer deems expedient even if independent counsel is controlling insured's defense. Seltzer v. Barnes (2010) 182 Cal. App. 4th 953, 966-967, 106 Cal. Rptr. 3d 290

Conduct of insurer that accepted defense under reservation of rights and provided full defense pending its analysis of Cumis issue was not equivalent of providing no defense at all, when insured filed bad faith action rather than provide insurer with requested information regarding vague Cumis conflict, insurer waived its contractual right to control defense and sat as second chair to personal attorney for insured, insurer did not restrict defense counsel's discovery activities or litigation expenses, and record contained no support for allegation that insurer intended to offer only token defense. Dynamic Concepts, Inc. v. Truck Ins. Exch. (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 999, 1006-1009

Independent counsel's control of insured's defense does not extend to preventing insurer from exercising its contractual right to settle claim as insurer deems expedient; requirement in Civ. Code § 2860(f) that independent counsel be allowed to participate in all aspects of litigation does not give insured control over insurer's contractual right to settle claim. Western Polymer Tech., Inc. v. Reliance Ins. Co. (1995) 32 Cal. App. 4th 14, 22, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 78

Dispute between insurer and insured concerning duty to provide independent counsel in the first instance not required to be resolved by mandatory binding arbitration provisions of Civ. Code § 2860(c). Truck Ins. Exch. v. Dynamic Concepts, Inc. (1992) 9 Cal. App. 4th 1147, 1150-1151, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 873

Confidential communications between insurance adjuster and insurer privileged under Evid. Code § 954 (attorney-client privilege), and not subject to discovery by insured, when there is no issue regarding misrepresentation of status of insurance adjuster and no allegations of damage by virtue of adjuster's dual role in representing interests of both insurer and insured. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. v. Superior Court (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 1222, 1227, 265 Cal. Rptr. 372

Duty to provide independent counsel does not encompass duty to provide two insurance adjusters who maintain separate files: one for underlying liability action and one for coverage dispute. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. v. Superior Court (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 1222, 1226-1227, 265 Cal. Rptr. 372

Prompt filing of declaratory relief action is appropriate procedure for determining application of principles set forth in San Diego Fed. Credit Union v. Cumis Ins. Soc'y, Inc. (1984) 162 Cal. App. 3d 358, 208 Cal. Rptr. 494 in given case; insurer that is dissatisfied with competence of Cumis counsel is afforded other applicable remedies in addition to those under Civ. Code § 2860 (particularly when action filed prior to enactment of statute). United States Fid. & Guar. Co. v. Superior Court (1988) 204 Cal. App. 3d 1513, 1526, 1527, 252 Cal. Rptr. 320

[12] Duty to Settle

[a] Assignment of Cause of Action Against Insurer

Absent assignment of rights from insured under automobile liability policy, injured third party's only viable claim is under Ins. Code § 11580(b)(2) (direct action by insured's judgment creditor against insurer on final judgment arising from conduct by insured and covered by liability policy issued by insurer); assignment grants to third party only those rights that were properly assignable, i.e., claims by insured against insurer except his nonassignable, "purely personal" tort claims for emotional distress and punitive damages. Archdale v. American Int'l Specialty Lines Ins. Co. (2007) 154 Cal. App. 4th 449, 458, 468, 64 Cal. Rptr. 3d 632

Judgment against insured is necessary condition to insured's assignment to claimant of bad faith cause of action against insurer; stipulated judgment with covenant not to execute is insufficient to bind insurer under Civ. Code § 2778(5); however, insured's criminal conviction for manslaughter with gross negligence is sufficient basis for assignment. Smith v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (1992) 5 Cal. App. 4th 1104, 1114-1116, 7 Cal. Rptr. 2d 131

Assignment of bad faith cause of action against insurer invalid when no legal liability had been imposed in wrongful death action that would have given rise to insurer's liability. Doser v. Middlesex Mut. Ins. Co. (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 883, 891-892, 162 Cal. Rptr. 115

Insured permitted to assign cause of action for recovery of amount by which judgment exceeded policy limits to injured third party, and still maintain cause of action to recover emotional distress damages, as long as both plaintiffs' actions are joined into single action against insurer. Cain v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (1975) 47 Cal. App. 3d 783, 794-796, 121 Cal. Rptr. 200 ; see also Murphy v. Allstate Ins. Co. (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 937, 946, 132 Cal. Rptr. 424, 553 P.2d 584

Insured not permitted to maintain separate action against insurer to recover damages for emotional distress resulting from insurer's wrongful failure to settle third-party action against insured within policy limits after assigning "all causes of action" against insurer. Purcell v. Colonial Ins. Co. (1971) 20 Cal. App. 3d 807, 810-814, 97 Cal. Rptr. 874

[b] Coercion of Insured

Bad faith action may lie against insurer who uses insured's fear of uninsured punitive damage exposure to coerce insured to contribute to settlement, when insurer knows punitive damages are unlikely. J.B. Aguerre, Inc. v. American Guarantee & Liab. Ins. Co. (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 6, 13-15, 68 Cal. Rptr. 2d 837

[c] Damages as Element of Cause of Action for Bad Faith Failure to Settle

Essential element of cause of action for breach of implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing based on wrongful refusal to settle is resulting damages; damages ordinarily include entire amount of judgment after trial, including amount in excess of policy limits, but excluding any punitive damages. Wolkowitz v. Redland Ins. Co. (2003) 112 Cal. App. 4th 154, 163, 5 Cal. Rptr. 3d 95 ; see also Hamilton v. Maryland Cas. Co. (2002) 27 Cal. 4th 718, 726, 117 Cal. Rptr. 2d 318, 41 P.3d 128 ; PPG Indus., Inc. v. Transamerica Ins. Co. (1999) 20 Cal. 4th 310, 313-315, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 455, 975 P.2d 652

[d] Damages for Breach of Duty to Settle

Punitive damages awards are subject to limits under due process clause of U.S. Constitution; courts must consider: (1) degree of reprehensibility of defendant's conduct, (2) disparity between actual or potential harm suffered by plaintiff and punitive damages award, and (3) disparity between punitive damages award and civil or criminal penalties authorized or imposed in comparable cases; circumstances of case may warrant no punitive damages if component of compensatory damages punishes defendant's conduct. State Farm Mutual Auto. Ins. Co. v. Campbell (2003) 538 U.S. 408, 419-427, 123 S. Ct. 1513, 155 L. Ed. 2d 585 (bad faith failure to settle)

Insured that sues insurer for wrongful failure to settle may not recover from insurer the amount of punitive damages ultimately awarded against insured in third-party lawsuit, if punitive damages award was based on conduct of insured.

PPG Indus., Inc. v. Transamerica Ins. (1999) 20 Cal. 4th 310, 315-319, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 455, 975 P.2d 652

Insurer that wrongfully breaches duty to insured to settle claim against insured within policy limits is liable to insured for underlying judgment in excess of policy limit and for damages for mental suffering. Crisci v. Security Ins. Co. (1967) 66 Cal. 2d 425, 429-434, 58 Cal. Rptr. 13, 426 P.2d 173

Insurer that refuses to accept reasonable settlement offer within policy limits in violation of its duty to consider in good faith interest of insured in settlement is liable for entire judgment against insured even if it exceeds policy limit. Comunale v. Traders & Gen. Ins. Co. (1958) 50 Cal. 2d 654, 659, 661, 328 P.2d 198

Insurer that breaches duty of reasonable settlement is liable for all insured's damages proximately caused by breach, regardless of policy limits; when underlying action has proceeded to trial and judgment in excess of policy limits was entered against insured, insurer is ordinarily liable to insured for entire amount of that judgment, excluding any punitive damages awarded. Archdale v. American Int'l Specialty Lines Ins. Co. (2007) 154 Cal. App. 4th 449, 466, 64 Cal. Rptr. 3d 632 , citing Hamilton v. Maryland Casualty Co. (2002) 27 Cal.4th 718, 725, 117 Cal. Rptr. 2d 318, 41 P.3d 128

Determination that insurer unreasonably failed to settle within policy limits does not itself show intent necessary to recover punitive damages; requisite intent shown when insurer refused to accept and actively concealed known adverse evidence, willfully manipulated testimony of insured, and exploited access to cross file of insured third party. Betts v. Allstate Ins. Co. (1984) 154 Cal. App. 3d 688, 708-710, 201 Cal. Rptr. 528

Punitive damages recoverable in action by insured against insurer for bad faith breach of duty to settle claim against insured within policy limit. Cain v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (1975) 47 Cal. App. 3d 783, 793-794, 121 Cal. Rptr. 200

[e] No Comparative Bad Faith Defense

In bad faith suit brought by insured, insurer may not assert affirmative defense of "comparative bad faith"; because of disparate scopes and natures of insurer's and insured's obligations of good faith, insurer's breach sounds in tort, while insured's arises strictly from contractual provisions. Kransco v. American Empire Surplus Lines Ins. Co. (2000) 23 Cal. 4th 390, 404-405, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 151, 2 P.3d 1 (third-party suit for failure to settle)

[f] Reasonableness of Settlement Offer

Only permissible consideration in evaluating reasonableness of settlement offer is whether, in light of victim's injuries and probable liability of insured, ultimate judgment is likely to exceed amount of settlement offer; such factors as limits imposed by policy, desire to reduce amount of future settlements, or belief that policy does not provide coverage, should not affect determination of reasonableness. Johansen v. California State Auto. Ass'n Inter-Ins. Bureau (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 9, 16, 123 Cal. Rptr. 288, 538 P.2d 744

Whether liability insurer's failure to accept settlement offer constitutes breach of implied covenant depends on whether that settlement offer was reasonable; existence of coverage dispute, however meritorious the insurer's position, is not proper consideration in deciding whether to accept offer to settle claim against insured. Archdale v. American Int'l Specialty Lines Ins. Co. (2007) 154 Cal. App. 4th 449, 464-465, 64 Cal. Rptr. 3d 632

Reasonable settlement offer exists when, in light of nature and scope of victim's injuries and probable liability of insured, ultimate judgment is likely to exceed amount of offer. Archdale v. American Int'l Specialty Lines Ins. Co. (2007) 154 Cal. App. 4th 449, 470, 64 Cal. Rptr. 3d 632

Whether insurer has acted unreasonably in rejecting settlement offer is question of fact to be determined by jury. Cain v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (1975) 47 Cal. App. 3d 783, 792, 121 Cal. Rptr. 200 ; Marsango v. Automobile Club of S. Cal. (1969) 1 Cal. App. 3d 688, 696, 82 Cal. Rptr. 92

[g] Reimbursement for Settlement of Noncovered Claims

Insurer may seek reimbursement from insured for reasonable settlement of noncovered claims, in absence of insured's express agreement, on following conditions: (1) timely and express reservation of rights; (2) express notification to insured of insurer's intent to accept proposed settlement offer; and (3) express offer to insured that insured may assume insured's own defense if insurer and insured disagree regarding whether to accept proposed settlement. Blue Ridge Ins. Co. v. Jacobsen (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 489, 501, 106 Cal. Rptr. 2d 535

[h] Scope of Duty to Settle

If policy grants to insurer "right and duty" to defend any claim or suit for covered injury or damage, including claims and suits that are "groundless, false, or fraudulent" and "right to settle any claim or suit within available limits of coverage," insurer need not obtain insured's consent prior to settling with third party, even though settling leads to loss of insured's potential claim for malicious prosecution, injures insured's reputation, or affects insured's future insurability. Hurvitz v. St. Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Co. (2003) 109 Cal. App. 4th 918, 920, 929-934, 135 Cal. Rptr. 2d 703

Implied covenant may not be used to limit or restrict express grant of discretion in contract to party to contract; insurer acted properly under insurance policy, and within its contractual discretion, in settling claims against insured. New Hampshire Ins. Co. v. Ridout Roofing Co. (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 495, 504, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 286 ; see also Carma Developers (Cal.), Inc. v. Marathon Dev. Cal., Inc. (1992) 2 Cal. 4th 342, 374, 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 467, 826 P.2d 710

Liability of insurer clearly established based on insurer's initial refusal to defend third-party action, and subsequent refusal to settle within policy limits; case provides "classic" demonstration of bad faith as defined by decisional law, in that insurer abandoned insured in face of multimillion-dollar third-party claim, causing him significant emotional distress over long period of time. Tan Jay Int'l, Ltd. v. Canadian Indem. Co. (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 695, 702-708, 243 Cal. Rptr. 907

Even when coverage dispute exists, insurer deciding whether or not to settle is required to conduct itself as if it alone were liable for entire amount of judgment; belief that policy does not provide coverage is improper factor in insurer's decision regarding whether settlement offer is reasonable. Travelers Ins. Co. v. Lesher (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 169, 188, 231 Cal. Rptr. 791 , disapproved on other grounds, Buss v. Superior Court (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 35, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 366, 939 P.2d 766

Insurer liable for failure to accept numerous offers to settle within policy limits in light of evidence that it unreasonably failed to investigate and fairly appraise claims against insured. Betts v. Allstate Ins. Co. (1984) 154 Cal. App. 3d 688, 707-708, 201 Cal. Rptr. 528

Insurer does not breach contract when it fails to settle claim voluntarily by reimbursing insured, and insists on adjudication of controversy when policy has standard "no action" clause, providing for indemnification once liability is established by judgment after trial or by settlement in which insurer participates. Clark v. Bellefonte Ins. Co. (1980) 113 Cal. App. 3d 326, 335-338, 169 Cal. Rptr. 832

[i] Settlement Without Insurer's Participation

Rule that defending insurer is not bound by settlement made without its participation, as described in Hamilton v. Maryland Cas. Co. (2002) 27 Cal. 4th 718, 725-731, 117 Cal. Rptr. 2d 318, 41 P.3d 128 , applies whether claim against insurer to recover on agreed or stipulated judgment is based on breach of contract or on tortious bad faith. Mercado v. Allstate Ins. Co. (9th Cir. 2003) 340 F.3d 824, 826-827 ; Wolkowitz v. Redland Ins. Co. (2003) 112 Cal. App. 4th 154, 164, 5 Cal. Rptr. 3d 95

Defending insurer cannot be bound to settlement made without its participation and without any actual commitment on its insured's part to pay judgment, even if settlement has been found to be in good faith for purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 877.6. Hamilton v. Maryland Cas. Co. (2002) 27 Cal. 4th 718, 730, 117 Cal. Rptr. 2d 318, 41 P.3d 128

In case by numerous plaintiffs against insured church, Valuation Order in which judge purported to make findings concerning actual trial requirements under Hamilton v. Maryland Cas. Co. (2002) 27 Cal. 4th 718, 117 Cal. Rptr. 2d 318, 41 P.3d 128 , for purpose of precluding insurers from declaring forfeiture of coverage if church settled without their consent, and providing evidence of bad faith for future use, was vacated as exceeding judge's authority on grounds that judge made factual findings and prepared coercive order in mediation proceedings. Travelers Cas. & Sur. Co. v. Superior Court (2005) 126 Cal. App. 4th 1131, 1146, 24 Cal. Rptr. 3d 751

[13] Environmental Impairment Policy

If insured, without insurer's agreement, stipulates to judgment against insured in excess of both policy limits and previously rejected settlement offer, and if stipulated judgment is coupled with covenant not to execute, agreed judgment cannot fairly be attributed to insurer's conduct, even if insurer's refusal to settle within policy limits was unreasonable. Hamilton v. Maryland Cas. Co. (2002) 27 Cal. 4th 718, 731, 117 Cal. Rptr. 2d 318, 41 P.3d 128 ; see also Wolkowitz v. Redland Ins. Co. (2003) 112 Cal. App. 4th 154, 164, 5 Cal. Rptr. 3d 95 (agreement between bankruptcy trustee and injured third party)

Bankruptcy order simply allowing excess claim by injured third party on trustee's unopposed motion does not constitute judicial determination of debtor's liability for purposes of establishing damages proximately caused by refusal of debtor's insurer's to settle; demurrer properly sustained regarding complaint for bad faith by bankruptcy trustee against debtor's insurer, based on agreement between trustee and third party resulting in bankruptcy court's allowance of claim ($26 million) in excess of policy limits ($500,000), because claim was never formally filed (and thus never supported) and personal injury action following rejection of settlement offer was not prosecuted; claim allowance not binding on insurer. Wolkowitzv. Redland Ins. Co. (2003) 112 Cal. App. 4th 154, 164-166

Environmental impairment liability policy with "unusual" wording, that covered damage caused by discharge of toxic chemicals that is gradual and fortuitous and neither expected nor intended by the insured, did not cover clean-up and abatement costs arising from insured's intentional discharge of chemicals into ground. Masonite Corp. v. Great Am. Surplus Lines Ins. Co. (1990) 224 Cal. App. 3d 912, 917-920, 274 Cal. Rptr. 206

[14] Evidence

Absent relevant admissions of insured, insurer moving for summary adjudication of issues or summary judgment on merits of case in which coverage is disputed must provide copies of policies or, if policies are missing, secondary evidence sufficient to inform court of relevant terms and conditions of insurance contract. Certain Underwriters at Lloyd's of London v. Superior Court (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 952, 955-959, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 821

Admissions made in criminal action for theft admissible under Evid. Code § 1224 when insurer's obligation to defend and indemnify its insured depends on employee's criminal liability or lack thereof. Atlas Assurance Co. v. McCombs

Corp. (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 135, 146, 194 Cal. Rptr. 66

In wrongful death action against manufacturer and repairer of portable grinder, accident report prepared by agent of manufacturer's insurer containing evidence favorable to plaintiff's theory concerning defective grinder wheel not admissible under Evid. Code § 1224, which permits hearsay evidence in certain situationswhen indemnitor is sued and evidence would be admissible against indemnitee, because manufacturer was in position of indemnitee, not indemnitor. Young v. Aro Corp. (1973) 36 Cal. App. 3d 240, 245, 111 Cal. Rptr. 535

[15] Exclusions

Under all-risk policy insuring office building, exclusion for "faulty workmanship" not applicable to claim arising from rain damage resulting from roofer's failure to cover roof overnight; policy ambiguous regarding whether faulty-workmanship exclusion refers to flawed quality of finished product or flawed construction process. Allstate Ins. Co. v. Smith (9th Cir. 1991) 929 F.2d 447, 449-450

Words of exclusionary clause "arising from" augmented with words "directly or consequentially" implied that, to be excluded from coverage, claim need be only slightly connected to one of types of injury that is specifically identified for exclusion. Continental Cas. Co. v. City of Richmond (9th Cir. 1985) 763 F.2d 1076, 1080-1081

Liability policy issued to oil company containing "toxic pollution exclusion" excluded coverage for injuries caused by toxic chemical contamination of property adjacent to location of oil and gas operations; exception to exclusion that applies under limited circumstances provided that insured notifies insurer of claim within 60 days of occurrence did not apply because insured did not make required notification. Venoco, Inc. v. Gulf Underwriters Ins. Co. (2009) 175 Cal. App. 4th 750, 758-763, 96 Cal. Rptr. 3d 409

Endorsement in liability insurance policy issued to nonprofit property owners association that excluded coverage of claims for wrongful acts based on design or construction of any structure, did not preclude coverage of lawsuit brought by member against association asserting claims of fraud and breach of duty; member's claims were not based on association's involvement in design or construction of a structure, but instead were based on association's conduct in opining on dispute between the member and another homeowner after the member constructed structure blocking view of other homeowner. Marquez Knolls Property Owners Assn., Inc. v. Executive Risk Indemnity, Inc. (2007) 153 Cal. App. 4th 228, 230, 234-235, 62 Cal. Rptr. 3d 510

"Employment-Related Practices" liability exclusion in CGL policy did not apply to claims by employees of independent contractor. North Am. Bldg. Maint., Inc. v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. (2006) 137 Cal. App. 4th 627, 634, 642-643, n.5, 40 Cal. Rptr. 3d 468

Commercial general liability policies often contain exclusions for loss resulting from rendering of or failure to render professional services; claims based on insured company's failure to close escrow, which caused plaintiff's eviction and loss of financing, alleged wrongful acts committed during performance of escrow services and therefore fell within professional services exclusion. Tradewinds Escrow, Inc. v. Truck Ins. Exch. (2002) 97 Cal. App. 4th 704, 713, 118 Cal. Rptr. 2d 561

Neither "work performed" exclusion nor "premises alienated" exclusion barred coverage for insured developer's liability for property damage arising from work of third persons; coverage extended to damages from conversion and marketing of condominiums. Prudential-LMI Commercial Ins. Co. v. Reliance Ins. Co. (1994) 22 Cal. App. 4th 1508, 1513-1514, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 841

Changes made in 1986 to premises alienated exclusion were meant to clarify that exclusion was intended to apply to insureds who fail to repair or disclose defects at time of a sale, rather than to a contractor's completed operations. Prudential-LMI Commercial Ins. Co. v. Reliance Ins. Co. (1994) 22 Cal. App. 4th 1508, 1512, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 841

Under business liability policy covering losses arising from accidental event, personal injury, or advertising injury, and excluding losses arising from rendering of professional services, insurer not liable to defend or indemnify insured regarding third-party actions alleging securities fraud. Allstate Ins. Co. v. Interbank Fin. Servs.(1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 825, 830-831, 264 Cal. Rptr. 25

Under comprehensive general liability policy issued to contractor, "work product" exclusion precluded coverage when losses arose solely from insured's defective work and insured's satisfactory work that was damaged by work that failed. Maryland Cas. Co. v. Imperial Contracting Co. (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 712, 723, 260 Cal. Rptr. 797

Language in comprehensive general liability policy's definition of covered "occurrence" requiring that property damage have occurred "unexpectedly and unintentionally" was not functional equivalent of policy exclusion as to which insurer should bear burden of proof, but was instead integral part of definition of occurrence and therefore subject to rule assigning burden of proof of coverage to insured. FMC Corp. v. Plaisted & Cos. (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 1132, 1158-1160, 72 Cal. Rptr. 2d 467 .

Provision in liability policy issued to developer excluding coverage for property damage caused by subsidence and arising out of or attributable to operations of insured was applicable to claims based on subsidence resulting from lot preparation work performed by independent contractors under contract to insured developer. Blackhawk Corp. v. Gotham Ins. Co. (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 1090, 1094-1098, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 413

Policy specifically excluding coverage for bodily injury to employee of insured "arising out of and in the course of his employment by the insured" was inapplicable to injuries inflicted by one employee on another employee while drinking alcohol and socializing after work hours at insured's house, which was used as business office. West Am. Ins. Co. v. California Mut. Ins. Co. (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 314, 323, 240 Cal. Rptr. 540

Provision excluding, inter alia, use and operation of aircraft, was applicable to liability for negligent flight training; liability for negligent flight instruction depended on pilot's use and operation of aircraft, precluding finding that negligent instruction was independent concurrent proximate cause of airplane crash and therefore covered by policy. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. v. Keenan (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 1, 23-25, 216 Cal. Rptr. 318

Negligent supervision of minor's swimming from stopped boat not within homeowner's insurance policy exclusion of liability for use of boat; insured's liability not dependent on use of boat, although use of boat put injured party in position leading to injury. Ohio Cas. Ins. Co. v. Hartford Accident & Indem. Co. (1983) 148 Cal. App. 3d 641, 645, 196 Cal. Rptr. 164

Firearm exclusion in liability policy issued to liquor store owners did not preclude coverage for damages to plaintiff shot by store employee; complaint alleged injuries were caused by owners' negligence in hiring employee with violenttendencies, an insured risk, and negligence was not indivisibly related to use of firearm. Underwriters Ins. Co. v. Purdie (1983) 145 Cal. App. 3d 57, 70-71, 193 Cal. Rptr. 248

Aircraft exclusion effective unless there is independent, concurrent, nonaircraft-related proximate cause for injuries. Hartford Fire Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 406, 416-417, 191 Cal. Rptr. 37

Provision excluding coverage for damages "arising out of" non-insured premises inapplicable to damage from animal that escaped from noninsured premises. Safeco Ins. Co. v. Hale (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 347, 353-354, 189 Cal. Rptr.

General liability policy that excludes automobile-related accidents did not cover incident in which there was no independent act of negligence not auto-related and in which insured also held automobile insurance such that overlapping coverage was not with in reasonable expectation. Allstate Ins. Co. v. Jones (1983) 139 Cal. App. 3d 271, 277, 278, 188 Cal. Rptr. 557

Under tavern owner's insurance policy, exclusion of coverage for injury caused by serving liquor to intoxicated person enforceable when insured aware of lack of that coverage, and word "exclusions" in insurance policy was printed in bold face type set off by double spacing. Stewart v. Estate of Bohnert (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 978, 989, 162 Cal. Rptr. 126

[b] Absolute Pollution Exclusion

Scope of absolute pollution exclusion (implemented in 1986) is limited to injuries arising from events commonly thought of as pollution--that is, environmental pollution--and therefore does not apply to ordinary acts of negligence involving harmful substances. MacKinnon v. Truck Ins. Exch. (2003) 31 Cal. 4th 635, 645-653, 3 Cal. Rptr. 3d 228, 73 P.3d 1205

Insurer's oral representation, given to induce policy renewal, that future liability claims based on release of sewage would be covered (despite previous position that coverage of sewage releases for same claim was excluded under "total pollution exclusion"), did not give rise to bad faith liability for refusal to defend insured (contractor whose primary work involves movement of water) in suit by water district regarding residential property damage resulting from faulty repair work on manhole feeding into main sewer; oral promise not alleged in complaint, and complaint not amended. Griffin Dewatering Corp. v. Northern Ins. Co. of N.Y. (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 172, 210-211, 97 Cal. Rptr. 3d 568

"Total pollution exclusion" excludes little more than "absolute pollution exclusion," i.e., is less favorable to insured; specifically, "total pollution exclusion" further limits coverage by excluding releases from products and for certain off-site releases of pollutants. Griffin Dewatering Corp. v. Northern Ins. Co. of N.Y. (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 172, 178, n.3, 97 Cal. Rptr. 3d 568

Furniture-stripping company's release of methylene chloride into public sewer system constituted "environmental pollution" under CGL policy with "absolute pollution exclusion" clause similar to that in MacKinnon v. Truck Ins. Exch. (2003) 31 Cal. 4th 635, 3 Cal. Rptr. 3d 228, 73 P.3d 1205 ; coverage excluded for injuries to sewer worker arising from discharge of substance. American Casualty Co. of Reading, Pa. v. Miller (2008) 159 Cal. App. 4th 501, 515-516, 71 Cal. Rptr. 3d 571

In policy executed in Texas concerning oil and gas operations in California, "Oil and Gas Lease Operators' Pollution Liability Coverage" endorsement removed absolute pollution exclusion from original policy and replaced it with limited promise of coverage for claims arising from any "sudden and accidental emission, discharge, release or escape of pollutants." Frontier Oil Corp. v. RLI Ins. Co. (2007) 153 Cal. App. 4th 1436, 1444, 3 Cal. Rptr. 3d 816

Unambiguous total pollution exclusion excluded coverage under CGL and excess policies regarding EPA order and resulting suit, based on insured company's placement of dredged fill material (pollutants within meaning of Clean Water Act) on its leased property to replace road washed out by storms, and resultant filling of adjacent creek; state and federal environmental laws may provide insight into scope of policies' definition of pollutants without being specifically incorporated in those definitions. Ortega Rock Quarry v. Golden Eagle Ins. Co. (2006) 141 Cal. App. 4th 969, 980-990, 46 Cal. Rptr. 3d 517

Absolute pollution exclusion regarding "[a]ny loss, cost, or expense arising out of any governmental direction or request that you test for ... pollutants" excluded coverage for costs incurred in responding to California Water Quality Control Board's order to test property for pollutants, which resulted in finding that insured's property was not cause of groundwater pollution. CDM Investors v. Travelers Cas. & Sur. Co. (2006) 139 Cal. App. 4th 1251, 1261-1262, 43 Cal. Rptr. 3d 669

Pollution exclusion excluded coverage for claims alleging sale of defective sandblasting products that caused bodily injury from inhaling sandblasted silica particles; policy endorsement specifically excluding asbestos claims does not restrict scope of exclusion for silica claims; insurers properly rejected tenders of defense based on pollution exclusion contained in CGL policy. Garamendi v. Golden Eagle Ins. Co. (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 480, 487-488, 25 Cal. Rptr. 3d 642 (policy did not except product liability claims from exclusion)

[c] Pollution Exclusion Prior to 1986 Absolute Exclusion

Insured rather than insurer has burden of proving that discharge is "sudden and accidental" within meaning of exception to pollution exclusion. Aeroquip Corp. v. Aetna Cas. & Sur. Co., Inc. (9th Cir. 1994) 26 F.3d 893, 895

Insured cannot break down its long-term waste disposal practices into temporal components to bring its activities within exception for "sudden and accidental" activities; discharges that occurred when waste treatment plant broke down or became incapacitated could not be characterized as "sudden" and segregated from insured's long-term waste practices when evidence clearly indicated that pollution was gradual and resulted from those long-term practices. Smith v. Hughes Aircraft Co. (9th Cir. 1993) 22 F.3d 1432, 1438 (applying California law)

Fact that chemical was not listed as a pollutant by Environmental Protection Agency until after discharges in question occurred is irrelevant, because language of pollution exclusion does not require that listing. Smith v. Hughes Aircraft Co. (9th Cir 1993) 22 F.3d 1432, 1438 (applying California law)

Exception to pollution exclusion in liability and umbrella policies for damage from heat, smoke, or fumes from "hostile fire" held unambiguous; clear and explicit meaning of term "fire" is chemical reaction that releases heat and light. Maffei v. Northern Ins. Co. of N.Y. (9th Cir. 1993) 12 F.3d 892, 896-897

Pollution exclusion held applicable to action against insured based on gaseous styrene emanation from insured's manufacturing plant; styrene gas, released into atmosphere as result of manufacturing process for fiberglass bathtubs, was not "product" within meaning of "products-completed operations hazard" exception to pollution exclusion. Hydro Sys., Inc. v. Continental Ins. Co. (9th Cir. 1991) 929 F.2d 472, 475-477

In case in which State of California sought coverage for liability imposed in federal court based on discharge of hazardous waste, because California's liability for property damages was founded on its negligence in allowing pollutants to escape from evaporation ponds into surrounding groundwater and land, application of "sudden and accidental" discharge exception to pollution exclusion depends on when pollutants escaped from site into larger environment, and not when chemical wastes were initially deposited into storage on site. State of Cal. v. Allstate Ins. Co. (2009) 45 Cal. 4th 1008, 1021-1022, 90 Cal. Rptr. 3d 1, 201 P.3d 1147

"Accidental" discharge, within meaning of "sudden and accidental" exception to pollution exclusion, is one insured neither intended nor expected to happen; discharge is "expected" only when insured subjectively knew or believed it was highly like to occur. State of Cal. v. Allstate Ins. Co. (2009) 45 Cal. 4th 1008, 1024, 90 Cal. Rptr. 3d 1, 201 P.3d 1147

In case in which State of California sought coverage for liability imposed in federal court based on discharge of hazardous waste, to extent California can show that "sudden and accidental" releases proximately caused damage for which it was held liable, it is contractually entitled to indemnity for that liability. State of Cal. v. Allstate Ins. Co. (2009) 45 Cal. 4th 1008, 1029, 90 Cal. Rptr. 3d 1, 201 P.3d 1147

In case in which State of California sought coverage for liability imposed in federal court based on discharge of hazardous waste, when property damage was caused by set of pollutant discharges, some sudden and accidental, and some gradual or nonaccidental, California must prove its damages were indivisible to claim coverage, while insurers must show damages were not indivisible; triable issue exists as to whether damages are divisible, precluding summary judgment for insurer. State of California v. Allstate Ins. Co. (2009) 45 Cal. 4th 1008, 1029-1035, 90 Cal. Rptr. 3d 1, 201 P.3d 1147 , citing State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v. Partridge (1973) 10 Cal. 3d 94, 109 Cal. Rptr. 811, 514 P.2d 123

Insurers have burden of proof to show watercourse pollution exclusion applies. State of Cal. v. Allstate Ins. Co. (2009) 45 Cal. 4th 1008, 1022, 90 Cal. Rptr. 3d 1, 201 P.3d 1147

Insured bears burden of proving that discharge is "sudden and accidental"; "sudden and accidental" provision is coverage provision, rather than exclusionary provision, thus allocating burden of proof to insured. Aydin Corp. v. First State Ins. Co. (1998) 18 Cal. 4th 1183, 1191, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 537, 959 P.2d 1213

"Sudden and accidental" language in pollution exclusions is unambiguous if words are given their full significance: "sudden" describes event that is abrupt or immediate and also unexpected; "accidental" is synonymous with "unexpected and unintended"; plain language of "sudden and accidental" discharge of pollutants means abrupt, unintended, and unexpected discharge of pollutants. Syntex Corp. v. Lowsley-Williams & Cos. (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 871, 883, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 371

Word "sudden," as used in exception to pollution exclusion for pollution caused by "sudden and accidental" release or "sudden, unintended and unexpected" happening, requires that release be abrupt; consequently, gradual release of pollutants, no matter how unexpected, does not fall within exception. FMC Corp. v. Plaisted & Cos. (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 1132, 1145-1146, 72 Cal. Rptr. 2d 467

Pollution exclusion in comprehensive general liability policy focuses on discharge of pollutants into or upon land, air, or water and not on environmental damage caused by discharge; therefore, when hazardous waste is deposited directly into landfill, relevant discharge of pollutants for purpose of exclusion is deposit of waste into landfill, and not subsequent release of pollutants from landfill into water, air, and adjoining land, but when hazardous waste is stored in tanks or other containers, relevant discharge is release from storage containers into environment. Standun, Inc. v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 882, 889-891, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 116

When insured arranges to have hazardous waste removed from its property and deposited into municipal landfill by third party, disposal of hazardous waste into landfill by third party is discharge of pollutants for purpose of pollution exclusion, even if insured complied with all applicable regulations and licensing requirements in disposing of hazardous waste. Standun, Inc. v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 882, 889, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 116

Exclusion for losses "arising out of ... request, demand or order" that insured or others in any way respond to or assess effects of pollutants could not be broadly read to exclude all losses arising out of pollution; if insurer had intended absolute exclusion of pollution-related liability, policy language could have so stated. Charles E. Thomas Co. v. Transamerica Ins. Group (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 379, 383-384, 72 Cal. Rptr. 2d 577

For purpose of policy exclusion for property damage caused by release of pollutants unless release was "sudden and accidental," release was accidental if it was "unexpected" and unintended, and release was "unexpected" if insured did not know or believe release was substantially certain or highly likely to occur; fact that insured had adopted procedures to prevent, contain, and clean up spills in general did not mean that insured expected any particular spill. A-H Plating,

Inc. v. American Nat'l Fire Ins. Co. (1997) 57 Cal. App. 4th 427, 439-441, 67 Cal. Rptr. 2d 113

"Absolute" 1986 pollution exclusion held unambiguously to exclude cost of operation to clean up soil and groundwater contaminated with hazardous substance; exclusion may be ambiguous with regard to whether policy definition of "pollutants" to include "any solid ... irritant or contaminant, including ... waste" applies to nonhazardous solid waste that insured was required to remove as part of cleanup operation; however, waste located on insured's property would be excluded under "owned property" exclusion in any case. Titan Corp. v. Aetna Cas. & Sur. Co. (1994) 22 Cal. App. 4th 457, 469-471, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 476

Purchaser of property containing underground storage tanks denied coverage for clean-up costs under its comprehensive general liability policy; "sudden and accidental" exception to pollution exclusion inapplicable because pollutants were released gradually by corroding storage tanks; one neglected aspect of judicial attempts to interpret term "sudden" is that no ordinary person would think something that happens gradually also happened suddenly. ACL Techs., Inc. v. Northbrook Prop. & Cas. Ins. Co. (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 1773, 1788, 22 Cal. Rptr. 2d 206

Exception to standard pollution exclusion for "sudden and accidental" interpreted to have temporal meaning; leak of 60-day duration was not "sudden" when policy defined term as "not continuous"; no reasonable expectation of coverage for long-term pollution. Truck Ins. Exch. v. Pozzuoli (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 856, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 650

Coverage for pollution claims arising from deliberate, liability-producing acts that insured expected to cause harm is barred by Ins. Code § 533 and "intentional acts" exclusion. Shell Oil Co. v. Winterthur Swiss Ins. Co. (1993) 12 Cal. App. 4th 715, 747-748, 15 Cal. Rptr. 2d 815

"Sudden" as used in exception to pollution component includes temporal component and does not merely mean "unexpected" or "unintended"; if discharge continues for a long time; at some point it ceases to be sudden and accidental. Shell Oil Co. v. Winterthur Swiss Ins. Co. (1993) 12 Cal. App. 4th 715, 756, 15 Cal. Rptr. 2d 815

[16] Homeowner's Policy

[a] Business Pursuit Exclusion

Homeowner's policy provision excluding coverage of any business pursuit by insured other than "activities therein" that are ordinarily incident to nonbusiness pursuits did not exclude activities that, although they occur while insured is engaged in business pursuit, are ordinarily incident to nonbusiness pursuit. Crane v. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 112, 116, 95 Cal. Rptr. 513, 485 P.2d 1129 (involving home care of children)

Professional plumber who installed water heater for friend, from whom he sometimesbut not always expected payment for similar services, was not covered under his homeowner's insurance policy for damages caused by his faulty work that resulted in fire; policy excluded coverage for professional services, business activities, and damages arising out of any premises other than those of insured. Amex Assurance Co. v. Allstate Ins. Co. (2003) 112 Cal. App. 4th 1246, 1252-1253, 5 Cal. Rptr. 3d 744

"Business pursuit" exclusion is broader than employment exception, and is applicable to injuries inflicted by one employee on another employee while drinking alcohol and socializing after work hours at insured's house, which was used as business office; employer's business pursuit logically included any activity that arises from and is in course of employee's employment. West Am. Ins. Co. v. California Mut. Ins. Co. (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 314, 323-324, 240 Cal. Rptr. 540

Application of business pursuit exclusion turns on motivation for pursuit; business defined as regular activity with motivation for profit or gain. Fire Ins. Exch. v. Jiminez (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 437, 443-444, 229 Cal. Rptr. 83

Homeowner's policy that excluded coverage for bodily injury or property damage arising out of business pursuits, or arising from any premises other than insured premises, did not cover injury to third person that occurred on separate commercial premises that was also owned by insured, but was not listed in policy. Fire Ins. Exch. v. Jiminez (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 437, 439-443, 229 Cal. Rptr. 83

Homeowner's policy exclusion of coverage of business pursuits applicable to preclude duty on insurer's part to defend or indemnify insured against civil action that, although unrelated to insured's profession as attorney, arose from supplemental income project, such as mining partnership for profit in which insured had engaged for more than a year. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. v. Drasin (1984) 152 Cal. App. 3d 864, 869-870, 199 Cal. Rptr. 749

[b] Coverage

Homeowner's policy did not provide indemnity or defense coverage for claim arising from insured's alleged breach of quasi-marital agreement, because crucial act for coverage purposes is "sundering of the relationship," an intentional act, irrespective of insured's contention that losses to third party occurred accidentally; moreover, policy did not cover losses arising from breach of contract. Chamberlain v. Allstate Ins. Co. (9th Cir. 1991) 931 F.2d 1361, 1364-1365

Homeowner's policy providing coverage for claim made because of "property damage," defined as "physical injury to or destruction of tangible property, including loss of this property," caused by "occurrence" defined as "an accident, including exposure to conditions which results, during the policy period, in bodily injury or property damage," did not cover damages arising from insured's sale of real property based on insured's alleged negligent failure to inspect property, misrepresentation, breach of contract, and rescission. Safeco Ins. Co. of Am. v. Andrews (9th Cir. 1990) 915 F.2d 500, 501-502

Injury caused by multiple acts, both included and excluded under policy, in context of third-party liability, is covered under policy if act covered under policy was "concurrent proximate cause" of loss. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v. Partridge (1973) 10 Cal. 3d 94, 104-105, 109 Cal. Rptr. 811, 514 P.2d 123 (car passenger injured by insured's firing of pistol in car, caused by insured's filing of "hair trigger" and driving negligently)

Homeowners' encroachment on adjacent property to rebuild residence was not "accident" under homeowners' policy, even though they acted under mistaken belief that they owned disputed boundary strip because they had obtained a lot line adjustment from city with cooperation from previous owner of adjacent property; there was no unexpected and unintended event between the intentional construction of the building and the encroachment. Fire Ins. Exch. v. Superior Court (2010) 181 Cal. App. 4th 388, 396-397, 104 Cal. Rptr. 3d 534 , reh'g denied, 2010 Cal. App. LEXIS 282 (2010)

Adult son of named insured was not "resident of household" under homeowners' policy because he was temporarily house-sitting at time in question, had no permanent residence, generally slept in spare bedroom or on living room couch, and kept most of his belongings in his car; no coverage for son under policy. California Cas. Indem. Exch. v. Frerichs (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 1446, 1453, 88 Cal. Rptr. 2d 858 (reversing trial court's holding that son was resident and therefore insured under policy, with respect to injuries inflicted on third party)

"Household" in homeowners' policy was unambiguous; nephew living in named insured's home was resident relative within meaning of policy exclusion, even though he paid rent. Afrasiabi v. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 1183, 1186-1187, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 926

"Household" under homeowner's policy did not include stepson of insured's daughter who lived with insured's daughter in duplex adjacent to insured's; units were separate households, although insured intended policy to cover entire structure containing both duplex units. Jacobs v. Fire Ins. Exch. (1991) 227 Cal. App. 3d 584, 588-589, 278 Cal. Rptr. 52

"Vacant land" covered under homeowner's policy as meaning lands that are both unoccupied and unused; beneficial use or improvement of untenanted property (such as construction and maintenance of dam and reservoir) as rendering it nonvacant, particularly when improvements caused damage that was subject of claim under policy. Bianchi v. Westfield Ins. Co. (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 287, 292-293, 236 Cal. Rptr. 343

Automobile liability insurance policy, rather than homeowner's liability policy, as covering personal injury claim by third party struck by can of burning gasoline thrown by insured's son after gasoline ignited while son was attempting to start nonowned vehicle away from insured's premises by pouring gasoline into carburetor. United Services Auto. Ass'n v. United States Fire Ins. Co. (1973) 36 Cal. App. 3d 765, 770-771, 111 Cal. Rptr. 595

Reasonable expectations of parties to homeowner's policy as not including vicarious liability imposed by Veh. Code §§ 17707 and 17708 on parent or guardian as signers of minor's application for driver's license for accident arising from negligent operation of vehicle by minor. Los Angeles Ins. Co. v. Fireman's Ins. Co. (1973) 30 Cal. App. 3d 669, 673-674, 106 Cal. Rptr. 540

Homeowner's policy as not covering insured's teenage weekend guest when "insured" defined in policy to include named insured and, if residents of his household, his spouse, relatives of either, and any other person under age of 21 in care of an insured; residence as connoting place of abode of some permanency, more than temporary sojourn. Vanguard Ins. Co. v. Hartford Ins. Co. (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 765, 767-768, 88 Cal. Rptr. 628

[c] Exclusions Generally

Provision excluding coverage for "bodily injury or property damages arising out of any premises, other than an insured premises, owned, rented, or controlled by anyinsured," as excluding coverage for injuries occurring as result of insured's negligent construction of improvement on premises other than insured premises. Preston v. Goldman (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 108, 120-121, 227 Cal. Rptr. 817, 720 P.2d 476

Homeowner's policy excluding liability for bodily injury to insureds, and including death within definition of "bodily injury," as excluding coverage for damages arising from insured's infliction of injuries to his spouse and wrongful death of his own children. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. v. Lewis (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 960, 962-965, 236 Cal. Rptr. 807

Homeowner's insurance policy provision excluding coverage of "midget automobiles" as not excluding coverage of injury inflicted by "minibike," based on expert testimony that "midget automobile" describes four-wheeled vehicle, whereas "minibike" describes a two-wheeled vehicle; "midget automobile" as susceptible of more than one interpretation, and extrinsic evidence as admissible to construe it. Gulf Ins. Co. v. Edgerly (1973) 31 Cal. App. 3d 334, 339-341, 107 Cal. Rptr. 246

[d] Family Exclusion

"Family exclusion" (excluding liability coverage for injuries to insured or insured's relatives) in homeowner's policy as not against public policy. Lumbermens Mut. Cas. Co. v. Vaughn (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 171, 180, 244 Cal. Rptr. 567 ; State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. v. Clendening (1983) 150 Cal. App. 3d 40, 43, 197 Cal. Rptr. 377

[e] Illegal Act Exclusion

Under homeowners policy that expressly covers accidental bodily injury, but excludes coverage for bodily injury arising out of "illegal act," without defining term, insurer obligated to defend and indemnify insureds in wrongful death action brought against them after their teenage son accidentally shot and killed his friend. Safeco Ins. Co. v. Robert S. (2001) 26 Cal. 4th 758, 765-767, 110 Cal. Rptr. 2d 844, 28 P.3d 889 ; see also Kerns v. CSE Ins. Group (2003) 106 Cal. App. 4th 368, 394-395, 130 Cal. Rptr. 2d 754

[f] Intentional or Criminal Act Exclusion

Insurer under homeowners' policy had no duty to defend insured in underlying suit alleging that insured acted under unreasonable belief of self-defense while hitting and kicking plaintiff; acts did not constitute "accident," and policy excluded intentional acts; insured's unreasonable belief in need for self-defense does not turn resulting purposeful and intentional act of assault and battery into "accident" within policy coverage. Delgado v. Interinsurance Exch. of Auto. Club of So. Cal. (2009) 47 Cal. 4th 302, 305, 317, 97 Cal. Rptr. 3d 298, 211 P.3d 1083

Homeowner's policy excluding coverage for "bodily injury ... [that] is a foreseeable result of an intentional or criminal act of [the] insured or which is in fact intended by [the] insured" does not cover injuries caused by insured's armed assault on victim for which insured was convicted of felony; insurer entitled to summary judgment based on criminal act exclusion, despite subsequent claim that insured acted unintentionally and in self-defense. 20th Century Ins. Co. v. Schurtz (2001) 92 Cal. App. 4th 1188, 1196-1198, 112 Cal. Rptr. 2d 547

[g] Motor Vehicle Exclusion

Insurer as liable under both homeowner's policy and automobile liability policy for injury resulting from two concurrent negligent acts of insured, one auto-related and other non-auto-related. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v. Partridge (1973) 10 Cal. 3d 94, 97, 106, 109 Cal. Rptr. 811, 514 P.2d 123 (holding limited by Garvey v. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 395, 257 Cal. Rptr. 292, 770 P.2d 704); see also Glens Falls Ins. Co. v. Rich (1975) 49 Cal. App. 3d 390, 394-395, 122 Cal. Rptr. 696

Insurer not entitled to summary judgment in assigned action by injured party against insurer for contract breach and bad faith; injured party poured gasoline into carburetor of nonoperating van used only as toolshed and parked on insured's property; motor vehicle exclusion exception for vehicle not subject to motor vehicle registration and used only on insured location may apply. Meraz v. Farmers Ins. Exch. (2001) 92 Cal. App. 4th 321, 325-327, 111 Cal. Rptr. 2d 804

Under homeowner's policy excluding bodily injury arising out of maintenance of motor vehicle, physical injury to third party who attempted to repair insured's automobile tire, caused by insured's prior use of flammable sealant, as excluded from coverage. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. v. Salas (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 268, 274, 271 Cal. Rptr. 642

Provision in homeowner's policy excluding coverage regarding bodily injury arising out of use or loading of motor vehicle owned by insureds as precluding coverage regarding wrongful death action that arose out of insureds' use and loading of their van in their driveway. National Am. Ins. Co. v. Coburn (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 914, 917-923, 257 Cal. Rptr. 591

Stolen "sandrail vehicle," designed primarily for use on sand dunes, as excluded from coverage under homeowner's policy that did not cover any "motor propelled vehicle ... designed for movement on land," and as not falling within exception for vehicles used solely for service of insured location (such as tractor-mower). Watamura v. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 369, 371, 253 Cal. Rptr. 555

Homeowner's policy excluding motor vehicle coverage as also excluding coverage for liability resulting from insured's negligent entrustment of motor vehicle. Safeco Ins. Co. v. Gilstrap (1983) 141 Cal. App. 3d 524, 530-531, 190 Cal. Rptr. 425

[h] Resident Relative Exclusion

Although there is no "bright line" test for determining child's residency if parents are divorced, usual rules of contract interpretation and common understanding of terms "resident" and "residence as providing clear direction regarding applicability of resident relative exclusion: does child regularly spend time in household in question, such that there exists continuing expectation of child's periodic return on intervals regular enough that household is child's home during time child is there, as opposed to place of infrequent and irregular visits. Kibbee v. Blue Ridge Ins. Co. (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 53, 62, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 294 (finding that child was not resident relative)

"Residence" is not ambiguous as used in a resident relative exclusion, and its meaning varies according to facts and circumstances of case; there was substantial evidence that son was a resident relative at parent's house when he ate, slept, kept his belongings, and received mail at the house. Utley v. Allstate Ins. Co. (1993) 19 Cal. App. 4th 815, 821, 24 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1

[i] Sexual Misconduct Exclusion

Under mobile homeowner's policy that excluded injuries arising out of "[p]hysical abuse, sexual abuse, sexual molestation or sexual harassment by anyone" and applying "whether damages arise from an insured's act or failure to act," insurer had no duty to defend or indemnify insured with respect to underlying third-party action alleging intentional and negligent acts related to sexual assault. Northland Ins. Co. v. Briones (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 796, 805-810, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 127

[17] Implied Covenant of Good Faith and Fair Dealing

Covenant of good faith and fair dealing that neither party will do anything to injure right of other to receive benefits of agreement as implied in every contract, including insurance policies. Gruenberg v. Aetna Ins. Co. (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 566, 573, 108 Cal. Rptr. 480, 510 P.2d 1032 ; Crisci v. Security Ins. Co. (1967) 66 Cal. 2d 425, 430, 58 Cal. Rptr. 13, 426 P.2d 173 ; Comunale v. Traders & Gen. Ins. Co. (1958) 50 Cal. 2d 654, 658, 328 P.2d 198

Mere filing by insurer of action to declare insurer's rights and duties relative to insurance policy, absent other facts, as not forming basis of breach of duty of good faith and fair dealing; assuming insurer has not otherwise abandoned, compromised, or rejected insured's claim, action seeking declaratory relief as not frustrating insured's enjoyment of contract rights, but rather insurer's exercise of statutory right to seek declaratory relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 1069. Atlas Assurance Co. v. McCombs Corp. (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 135, 150, 194 Cal. Rptr. 66

[18] Interest

In action on liability policy, insurer as generally liable for interest from date judgment is entered against insured, or from date of payment of proper settlement; if policy is of indemnity, interest as accruing from date of payment. Atlantic Mut. Ins. Co. v. Cooney (9th Cir. 1962) 303 F.2d 253, 270

Insurer of defendants in personal injury action as not obligated to pay prejudgment interest under Civ. Code § 3291, when insurer made settlement offer of policy limits to third party before lawsuit filed, and policy stated that insurer's obligation to pay prejudgment interest ceases when insurer offers amount due under coverage. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v. Crane (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 1127, 1138, 266 Cal. Rptr. 422

[19] Interpretation of Policy Terms

Changes in standard Insurance Services Office (ISO) policy forms, by themselves, are not evidence of whether or not a particular policy contained particular language on a given date; ISO is not a party to the insurance contract and its forms therefore have no bearing on contents of a specific insurance contract unless and until specifically adopted by the contracting parties. Crane v. Royal Ins. Co. of Am. (9th Cir. 1994) 17 F.3d 1186, 1188 (involving language of watercraft exclusion)

Insurance policy providing liability coverage for bodily injury sustained by any "person" as including fetus later born alive for purposes of action for prenatal injury under former Civ. Code § 29 [now see Civ. Code § 43.1]. Endo Labs., Inc. v. Hartford Ins. Group (9th Cir. 1984) 747 F.2d 1264, 1266-1267

In multi-part insurance policy, "employment related defense" benefit providing $10,000 coverage for each suit and $500,000 annual aggregate limit, provided coverage for each of 46 suits filed against insured by its employees demanding arbitration; insurer breached its obligation by treating 46 suits as one. Volkswagen v. Universal Underwriters Group (N.D. Cal. 2008) 571 F. Supp. 2d 1148, 1155, 1157

"Damages" that insured is legally obligated to pay because of property damage, within meaning of comprehensive general liability policy that does not define term, as including reimbursement of government-response costs, and costs of injunctive relief insofar as they comprise remedial and mitigative, rather than prophylactic, measures. AIU Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 807, 833, 841-843, 274 Cal. Rptr. 820, 799 P.2d 1253

In eminent domain action in which government agency filing action reduces market value of property by amount required to effect environmental cleanup, insured is not legally obligated to compensate agency in money as result of any loss or detriment suffered by agency; policies insuring vacant land did not insure against diminution in market value as result of property's environmental condition because diminution in value does not constitute "damages." Block v. Golden Eagle Ins. Corp. (2004) 121 Cal. App. 4th 186, 196-199, 17 Cal. Rptr. 3d 13 ; see Goodstein v. Continental Casualty Co. (9th Cir. 2007) 509 F.3d 1042, 1054 (distinguished; involving Washington law)

Subcontractor's general liability policy coverage of contractor as additional insured did not cover injury to subcontractor's employee because injury was caused by contractor's own conduct and additional insured coverage was limited "to liability [to contractor] arising out of [subcontractor's] ongoing operations performed for [contractor]." St. Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. American Dynasty Surplus Lines Ins. Co. (2002) 101 Cal. App. 4th 1038, 1055-1060, 124 Cal. Rptr. 2d 818

California courts as consistently giving broad interpretation to terms "arising out of" or "arising from" in various kinds of insurance provisions; these terms broadly link factual situation with event creating liability and connote only minimal causal connection to incidental relationship. Acceptance Ins. Co. v. Syufy Enters. (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 321, 328, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 557 (under contractor's CGL policy, injury to roof worker while entering negligently maintained "hatch" to reach roof arose out of contractor's work for building owner); see also Vitton Constr. Co., Inc. v. Pac. Ins. Co. (2003) 110 Cal. App. 4th 762, 766, 2 Cal. Rptr. 3d 1

Policies requiring that injury occur during policy period did not cover anticompetitive conduct that occurred during policy period but caused injury that occurred after expiration of policy period; policy that covered "occurrences or accidents which happen during the policy period" might be construed to provide coverage because "occurrence" simply meant something that happened during policy period, regardless of whther injury occurred then or later; policies that simply covered "offenses committed during the policy period" potentially covered injury, because triggering event was the act rather than the injury. American Cyanamid Co. v. American Home Assurance (1994) 30 Cal. App. 4th 969, 982, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 920

Insured's ongoing negligent failure to protect and supervise her foster child, who was sexually molested by insured's husband over a period of several years, constituted several distinct breaches of insured's duty which occurred during each of three separate policy periods. National Union Fire Ins. Co. v. Lynette C. (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th 1434, 1463-1465, 33 Cal. Rptr. 2d 496

Under contractor's liability policy, damages allegedly arising out of conversion of personal property did not constitute "property damage," defined as "injury, destruction or loss of use of tangible property," because conversion does not involve physical injury to property but rather the taking or deprivation of property, nor does conversion constitute loss of use of property. Collin v. American Empire Ins. Co. (1994) 21 Cal. App. 4th 787, 810-813, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 391

Multiple instances of negligent care and supervision, which allowed several children to be repeatedly molested, constituted one single occurrence under terms of policy because each child's injuries resulted from repeated exposure to substantially same general conditions. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. v. Elizabeth N. (1992) 9 Cal. App. 4th 1232, 1234, 1236-1239, 12 Cal. Rptr. 2d 327

"Bodily," modifying "injury," means "having a body or a material form: physical, corporeal," and as not reasonably encompassing "purely mental, emotional, and spiritual"; "bodily injury" as not including emotional distress in absence of physical injury; "bodily injury" as more restrictive than "personal injury." Aim Ins. Co. v. Culcasi (1991) 229 Cal. App. 3d 209, 219-220, 224, 280 Cal. Rptr. 766

Teacher's conduct in molesting student does not constitute occurrence "in the course of the insured's educational employment activities" within meaning of educators' employment liability policy covering teacher. Horace Mann Ins. Co. v. Analisa N. (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 850, 855-856, 263 Cal. Rptr. 61

"Accident" within meaning of homeowner's policy does not include sexual activity in violation of Penal Code § 288a (oral copulation), and insured's contention that resulting harm was unintentional as irrelevant; accident never present when insured performs deliberate act unless some additional, unexpected, independent, and unforeseen happening occurs that produces damage. Merced Mut. Ins. Co. v. Mendez (1989) 213 Cal. App. 3d 41, 50-53, 261 Cal. Rptr. 273

"Accident" is source and cause of damage to property, within terms of accident policy insuring against liability for property damage that is unexpected or unforeseen happening or consequence from either known or unknown cause. Hogan v. Midland Nat'l Ins. Co. (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 553, 559, 91 Cal. Rptr. 153, 476 P.2d 825 ; Geddes & Smith, Inc. v. St. Paul Mercury Indem. Co. (1959) 51 Cal. 2d 558, 564, 334 P.2d 881 ; Rafeiro v. American Employers' Ins. Co. (1970) 5 Cal. App. 3d 799, 807, 85 Cal. Rptr. 701 ; Oil Base, Inc. v. Continental Cas. Co. (1969) 271 Cal. App. 2d 378, 387, 76 Cal. Rptr. 594

Covered "damages" include expenses incurred by insured environmental polluters pursuant to injunctive relief sought by government agencies in underlying action that compelled insureds to "clean up" their pollution of waterways. Aerojet-Gen. Corp. v. Superior Court (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 216, 237-238, 258 Cal. Rptr. 684

Under personal liability umbrella policy issued to insured, boat owned by partnership in which insured was partner as not "owned by" insured individually; person injured in collision with partnership's boat entitled to recover benefits only from partnership's comprehensive business liability policy, and not from personal umbrella policy of one partner, although, under other circumstances, vehicle legally registered to partnership could be deemed "owned by" an individual partner for purposes of insurance coverage under definition of "insured." Bartlome v. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 1235, 1243, 256 Cal. Rptr. 719

Merchant insurance policy excluding liability coverage arising from provision of "professional services" excluded coverage for damages arising from cosmetic establishment's ear-piercing services; definition encompassed service offered in course of business enterprise. Hollingsworth v. Commercial Union Ins. Co. (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 800, 808-810, 256 Cal. Rptr. 357

Under general liability policy, "occurrence" means accident, including continuous or repeated exposure to conditions, that results in bodily injury or property damage neither expected nor intended from standpoint of insured. Hallmark Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1988) 201 Cal. App. 3d 1014, 1017, 247 Cal. Rptr. 638

Under liability insurance policy covering "malicious prosecution ... if such offense is committed during the policy period," "offense" is "committed" on institution of malicious action; "bodily injury" interpreted to refer to "personal injury," including malicious prosecution. Harbor Ins. Co. v. Central Nat'l Ins. Co. (1985) 165 Cal. App. 3d 1029, 1036, 211 Cal. Rptr. 902

Insurance Co. of N. Am. (1984) 157 Cal. App. 3d 641, 647, 204 Cal. Rptr. 135*

[20] Judgment Creditor Actions

Because Ins. Code § 11580(b)(2) requires that injured party first obtain judgment against insured, it is not "direct action" statute within meaning of 28 U.S.C.S. § 1332(c)(1) (in "direct actions" insurer deemed citizen of state of which insured is citizen, as well as of any state where insurer has been incorporated or where insurer has principal place of business); because "direct actions" under 28 U.S.C.S. § 1332(c)(1) are causes of action in which liability sought against insurers could be imposed against their insureds, they do not involve suits against insurers for their own alleged misconduct. Mezzetti v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (N.D. Cal. 2004) 346 F. Supp. 2d 1058, 1062-1064

With respect to direct action against insurer under Ins. Code § 11580(b)(2), property damage need not be caused by vehicle or draft animal (pursuant to Ins. Code § 11580(a)(2)). People ex rel. City of Willits v. Certain Underwriters at Lloyd's of London (2002) 97 Cal. App. 4th 1125, 1131-1132, 118 Cal. Rptr. 2d 868

(1970) 5 Cal. App. 3d 799, 805-807, 85 Cal. Rptr. 701*

[21] Legal Malpractice Policy

Under "claims made and reported" policy, if late report was made de minimis time after expiration of policy because insured learned of claim late in policy period under ambiguous circumstances and did not confirm existence of claim until after policy expired, and if insured had not been given opportunity to be protected under extended claim-reporting endorsement, reporting requirement is condition that may be equitably excused under common law contract principles; no blanket notice-prejudice rule applied, however. Root v. American Equity Specialty Ins. Co. (2005) 130 Cal. App. 4th 926, 947-948, 30 Cal. Rptr. 3d 631

Legal malpractice policy did not create duty to defend malicious prosecution action brought against insured attorney, when that action arose from another action voluntarily brought by insured on his own behalf. Johnson v. First State

Under legal malpractice policy in which "claim" is not limited to "lawsuit," expenses incurred by insured in investigation of claim that does not result in litigation as covered; however, expenses incurred in defense of criminal prosecution as not covered if related only to nebulous possibility of future civil suit, when policy required that insurer either undertake certain action that insured believes is reasonably required, or consent in writing to allow insured to take that action. Stein v. International Ins. Co. (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 609, 613-615, 266 Cal. Rptr. 72

[23] Limitation of Actions

Code § 11583*, when insurer, that made partial payments under liability policy to injured person but never gave written notice of applicable statute of limitations regarding cause of action against tortfeasor, applicable (one-year) statute of limitations as tolled from date when first advance payment was made until date on which injured person retained counsel. Associated Truck Parts, Inc. v. Superior Court (1991) 228 Cal. App. 3d 864, 870, 279 Cal. Rptr. 76

[24] Limits on Coverage

Client's suit against attorney alleging multiple causes of action arising out of negligent collection of debt was single "claim" within policy definition because plaintiff client had one right--to non-negligent performance of debt collection services by attorney--and acts in question arose out of collection of a single debt. Bay Cities Paving & Grading, Inc. v. Lawyers' Mut. Ins. Co. (1993) 5 Cal. 4th 854, 859-860, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 691, 855 P.2d 1263

Safeco Ins. Co. (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 268, 272, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 702*

[27] Notice Provisions

Letter to insured from third-party claimant's attorney was "claim" within meaning of D&O policy; insured's failure to report claim in timely manner after receiving letter rendered its later notice of claim untimely. Westrec Marina Management, Inc. v. Arrowood Indemnity Co. (2008) 163 Cal. App. 4th 1387, 1396, 78 Cal. Rptr. 3d 264

In homeowner's action against insurer of homeowner's contractor, seeking payment on default judgment that resulted from lack of notice by insured in underlying action against contractor, insurer is liable on default judgment unless it suffered actual, substantial prejudice; mere inability to investigate claim thoroughly or to present defense in underlying suit does not satisfy prejudice requirements. *Belz v. [28] Personal Injury Policy

Excess policy covering personal injury, defined as injury arising out of racial or religious discrimination and humiliation caused by injury to character or reputation, did not cover damages for humiliation and emotional distress arising from discriminatory hiring practices; provision was limited to certain types of discrimination and would not be expanded to cover all types of discrimination; humiliation was covered only if it arose out of torts against character or reputation, not discriminatory hiring. *American Motorists Ins. Co v. Allied-Sysco Food Servs., Inc. (1993) 19 Cal. App. 4th 1342, 1348, 24 Cal. Rptr. 2d 106 , overruled on other grounds, Buss v. Superior Court [1997] 16 Cal. 4th 35, 50, 65 Cal. In personal injury liability policy, coverage for injury arising out of "wrongful entry or eviction, or other invasion of the right of private occupancy" as referring to real property, and as inapplicable to damages arising from repossession of automobile. Waranch v. Gulf Ins. Co. (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 356, 359-361, 266 Cal. Rptr. 827

For purposes of "personal injury" insurance policy covering false arrest, detention, or imprisonment, or malicious prosecution, tort of malicious prosecution is committed on filing of complaint; therefore, policy issued subsequent to filing of underlying complaint as not liable for damages arising therefrom. Zurich Ins. Co. v. Peterson (1986) 188 Cal. App. 3d 438, 448, 232 Cal. Rptr. 807

Personal injury clause providing liability coverage for wrongful eviction, wrongful entry, or invasion of right of private occupancy of premises did not potentially provide coverage for claim asserted by partners in video store that defendant insured wrongfully took possession of partnership assets, because (1) clause applied to real property and partner's interest in partnership property is interest in personalty, even if partnership property consists of realty and (2) partner's statutory right to possess partnership real property does not include personal right of action to sue nonpartner third party for interference with that right to possess. Tinseltown Video, Inc. v. Transportation Ins. Co. (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 184, 196-200, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 371

Although personal injury coverage is triggered by commission of specified offense rather than by damage suffered by plaintiff, fact that gravamen of plaintiff's action against insured was claim for economic losses not covered under policy was evidence that insured could not show potential for coverage. Tinseltown Video, Inc. v. Transportation Ins. Co. (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 184, 202, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 371

[29] Personal Liability Policy

Comprehensive personal liability insurance policy that contained statutorily-mandated workers' compensation coverage for insured's residential employees covered insured's son, who was employed as carpenter by insured; Labor Code § 3352(a), which excludes from mandatory workers' compensation coverage employer's parent, spouse or child who works as residential employee, does not apply when coverage is provided under personal liability policy. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. v. Workers' Comp. Appeals Bd. (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 1187, 1193-1201, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 602, 947 P. 2d 795

Labor Code § 4151, which permits election of workers' compensation coverage for and by any person not defined as employee under Labor Code, does not require "conscious" election; by purchasing comprehensive personal liability insurance policy that provided workers' compensation coverage for residential employees homeowner "elected" to provide coverage for son who worked as carpenter on his residence, and employee son "elected" to be covered because he did not give written notice upon entering into employment that he elected not to be covered by workers' compensation laws. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. v. Workers' Comp. Appeals Bd. (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 1187, 1198-1200, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 602, 947 P. 2d 795

[30] Primary and Excess Policies

Excess insurance policy issued to stunt-performer company, excluding damages arising from bodily injury to performers, and defining personal injury coverage to include bodily injury, shock, sickness, or disease (including mental suffering), as covering indemnification for damages over excess amount for that portion of third-party judgment compensating stunt performer for mental injuries resulting from shock, sickness, or disease, that is, resulting from non-bodily injuries. Interstate Fire & Cas. Co. v. Stuntman, Inc. (9th Cir. 1988) 861 F.2d 203, 205

Excess insurance policy as including risk of primary carrier's insolvency within scope of its coverage and excess insurer liable for amounts up to policy limits of primary carrier, in addition to any amounts covered by excess insurance policy. Reserve Ins. Co. v. Pisciotta (1982) 30 Cal. 3d 800, 815, 180 Cal. Rptr. 628, 640 P.2d 764

When insured has primary insurance from one insurer and excess insurance from another, and condition precedent to excess insurer's liability may or may not occur, according to when insured chooses to make claims on primary insurer, excess insurer as not liable if insured did not allocate primary insurance claims fairly and in good faith so as to get maximum possible primary benefits. Kaiser Found. Hosps. v. North Star Reinsurance Corp. (1979) 90 Cal. App. 3d 786, 791-794, 153 Cal. Rptr. 678

[31] Professional Liability Policies

[a] Generally

Notice-prejudice rule, requiring insurer to establish actual and substantial prejudice in order to avoid liability based on insured's breach of notice clause, as inapplicable to "claims-made" professional liability policy. Burns v. International Ins. Co. (9th Cir. 1991) 929 F.2d 1422, 1424 (regarding policy issued to officers and directors of savings and loan corporation)

In coverage provision of errors and omissions policy applicable to wrongful act committed anywhere in world provided that claim is "first brought" in U.S., Puerto Rico, or Canada, phrase "claim first brought" was ambiguous; parties intended that determination of coverage would be made at single point in time (when injured party first brought to insured's attention that claim for damages was being asserted); completed claim is not made or brought until it is received. National Cas. Co. v. Sovereign Gen'l Ins. Servs., Inc. (2006) 137 Cal. App. 4th 812, 822-823, 40 Cal. Rptr. 3d 591

Professional liability policy issued to insurance salesman, providing coverage for claims made against insured and reported in writing to insurer during policy period, as not covering claims made after policy period expired; "notice prejudice rule," applicable to "occurrence" policy (covering claims arising from occurrence during policy period), as inapplicable to "claims made" policy. Pacific Employers Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 1348, 1359, 270 Cal. Rptr. 779

[b] Exclusions

Liability policy issued to medical professionals, containing exclusion denying defense or indemnity for intentional act "even if such activities are related to your rendering or failing to render professional services," did not cover class action brought against professional medical group based on group's alleged policy of withholding epidural care from indigent women because Medi-Cal would not pay for procedure. Upland Anesthesia Med. Group v. Doctors' Co. (2002) 100 Cal. App. 4th 1137, 1139, 1142-1144, 123 Cal. Rptr. 2d 94

Ownership exclusion in professional liability insurance for real estate agents and brokers is designed to cover risks involved in selling property for others; broker's attempt to purchase for herself property, for which her client had made counteroffer, did not invoke ownership exclusion because broker was not dealing with her own property. Morris v. Employers Reinsurance Corp. (2000) 84 Cal. App. 4th 1026, 1029-1030, 101 Cal. Rptr. 2d 350

Insurer could "conclusively presume" that plaintiff was partner in accounting firm and that her claim fell within exclusion in firm's professional liability policy for claims brought by former partners when, despite plaintiff's failure to meet statutory licensing requirements for becoming partner in accounting firm, both plaintiff and firm held her out to insurer as partner and requested that defendant insure her as partner. Montgomery v. Cal Accountants Mut. Ins. Co. (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 854, 859, 860, 72 Cal. Rptr. 2d 39

Dual capacity doctrine did not bring claim brought against accounting firm by former partner in her capacity as investor, rather than former partner, within coverage of professional liability policy; claim fell within policy exclusion for claims made by former partners, because exclusion clause in policy did not distinguish between claims relating to investment actions and claims relating to partnership disputes. Montgomery v. Cal Accountants Mut. Ins. Co. (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 854, 860, 72 Cal. Rptr. 2d 39

[32] Self-Insurance

Self-insurance is not "insurance" and is not subject to regulation under Insurance Code; moreover, with exception of certificates of automobile self-insurance, self-insurance may not be considered in determining priority of insurance coverage policy. Orange County Water Dist. v. Association of Cal. Water Agencies Joint Powers Ins. Auth. (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 772, 777-779, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 182

[33] Subrogation

Owner's liability insurer subrogated to owner's right of indemnity from contractor and its insurer under indemnity agreement, notwithstanding "other insurance" clauses in both owner's and contractor's liability policies. Rossmoor

Sanitation, Inc. v. Pylon, Inc. (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 622, 634, 119 Cal. Rptr. 449, 532 P.2d 97

Rossmoor Sanitation, Inc. v. Pylon (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 622, 119 Cal. Rptr. 449, 532 P.2d 97 , did not apply to case in which dispute was between primary insurer of one party and excess insurer of other; by contrast, Rossmoor involved dispute between two primary carriers, each of whose policies contained "other insurance" clause, on issue of whether their respective liability on loss should be settled on standard basis of apportionment. JPI Westcoast Constr., L.P. v. RJS & Assoc., Inc. (2007) 156 Cal. App. 4th 1448, 1460, 68 Cal. Rptr. 3d 91

Rossmoor Sanitation, Inc. v. Pylon, Inc. (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 622, 119 Cal. Rptr. 449, 532 P.2d 97 did not permit insurer to bring subrogation action on indemnity contract in all cases in which indemnity contract exists; nor did it purport to establish general rule that contractual indemnity agreement between insured and third party takes precedence over well-established general rules of primary and excess coverage in action between insurers. Reliance Nat'l Indem. Co. v. General Star Indem. Co. (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 1063, 1078, 1081, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 627

Whether insurer is entitled to subrogation against party who, by separate contract, has agreed to assume responsibility for same loss and is not responsible for causing loss, depends on respective equities of parties; equities do not permit recovery if (1) parties to indemnity agreement are not present, and (2) action is between primary and excess carriers as identified by their policies. Reliance Nat'l Indem. Co. v. General Star Indem. Co. (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 1063, 1078, 1081-1082, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 627

Liability insurer that pays claim against its insured that resulted from negligence of insured's attorneys has no subrogation rights with respect to insured's legal malpractice claim against attorneys [Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. v. McDonald, Hecht & Solberg (1994) 30 Cal. App. 4th 1373, 1387, 36 Cal. Rptr. 2d 424] .

Ins. Code § 11583 does not require that settlement proceeds paid by tortfeasor's insurer to plaintiff be reduced by amount paid by plaintiff's insurer to plaintiff when tortfeasor's insurer knew of payment before settling; settlement made with knowledge of prior payment is no bar to insurer-subrogee's cause of action. Griffin v. Calistro (1991) 229 Cal. App. 3d 193, 196-197, 280 Cal. Rptr. 30

Insured that is required to reimburse insurer for medical payments made under policy out of recovery from third party required to pay from all damages recovered, not only medical payment damages; insured entitled to pro rata recovery of attorney's fees incurred in obtaining recovery. Hartford Accident & Indem. Co. v. Gropman (1984) 163 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 33, 39-40

Insurer not permitted to subrogate against tortfeasor who has statutory right to reimbursement against insured party. Longoria v. Hengehold Motor Co. (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 1059, 1060-1062, 191 Cal. Rptr. 439

[34] Successor Corporations

Predecessor corporation's products liability coverage held available to provide coverage to successor corporation for product liability claims arising out of predecessor corporation's pre-sale occurrences. Northern Ins. Co. of N.Y. v. Allied Mut. Ins. (9th Cir. 1992) 955 F.2d 1353, 1357-1358 ; see Ray v. Alad Corp. (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 22, 28, 136 Cal. Rptr. 574, 560 P.2d 3 (successor liability rule in products liability actions)

If liability is assumed by contract, successor corporation's rights are defined and limited by that contract, and hence cannot be deemed transferred by operation of law. Henkel Corp. v. Hartford Accident & Indem. Co. (2003) 29 Cal. 4th 934, 943, 129 Cal. Rptr. 2d 828, 62 P.3d 69

Purchasing corporation faced with CERCLA cleanup costs for hazardous waste deposited by its predecessor before

CERCLA was enacted held not covered under predecessor's liability policy; since CERCLA was passed after asset purchase occurred, no liability passed at time of the asset sale because no such liability existed at that time. Quemetco Inc. v. Pacific Auto. Ins. Co. (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 494, 501-502, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 627

[35] Third-Party Bad Faith Actions

Third party judgment creditor's loss of use of money during insurer's 81-day delay in paying full amount of judgment with interest failed to meet threshold economic loss requirement necessary to recover emotional distress damages for bad faith. Maxwell v. Fire Ins. Exch. (1998) 60 Cal. App. 4th 1446, 1449-1452

[36] Third-Party Rights Generally

Although liability insurer has option to join injured third party as codefendant in insurer's declaratory relief action to determine coverage, third-party claimant does not have equivalent rights. Otay Land Co. v. Royal Indem. Co. (2008)169 Cal. App. 4th 556, 564-565, 86 Cal. Rptr. 3d 408

Current property owner's declaratory relief action was properly dismissed when it regarded liability insurer's anticipated coverage of one of its former insureds, a nonparty that formerly owned the property, with respect to contamination problems; third-party claimant was premature in claiming that actual controversy existed relating to its current or future rights under insurance policy; declaratory relief theory may not proceed without more specific justification for allowing separate action to proceed, in light of existence of integrally related litigation on policy interpretation grounds, still pending between parties directly affected. Otay Land Co. v. Royal Indem. Co. (2008) 169 Cal. App. 4th 556, 566-567, 86 Cal. Rptr. 3d 408

Because insurer's duties flow to its insured alone, third-party claimant may not bring direct action against insurance company; as general rule, third party may directly sue insurer only if there has been assignment of rights by, or final judgment against, insured. Shaolian v. Safeco Ins. Co. (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 268, 271, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 702

Third-party claimant as precluded from suing on contracts without either assignment of rights from insureds or judgment in claimant's favor. Griffith v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 59, 71, 281 Cal. Rptr. 165

Injured third party as having no right to obtain disclosure of policy limits from insurer prior to filing of lawsuit or other formal proceeding; under Insurance Information and Privacy Act (Ins. Code § 791 et seq.), policy limits as protected "personal information," release of which is prohibited prior to initiation of formal proceeding. Griffith v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 59, 64-73, 281 Cal. Rptr. 165

[37] Time of Occurrence

Legal malpractice insurance policy providing coverage against claim for breach of professional duty "which may be made against them" during period set forth in policy by reason of any negligent act, error, or omission, whenever or wherever same was or may have been committed, as covering claim for legal malpractice made more than two years after expiration of policy for alleged malpractice occurring during policy period. Gyler v. Mission Ins. Co. (1973) 10 Cal. 3d 216, 218-219, 110 Cal. Rptr. 139, 514 P.2d 1219

Policies requiring that injury occur during policy period did not cover anticompetitive conduct that occurred during policy period but caused injury that occurred after expiration of policy period; policy that covered "occurrences or accidents which happen during the policy period" might be construed to provide coverage because "occurrence" simply meant something that happened during policy period, regardless of whther injury occurred then or later; policies that simply covered "offenses committed during the policy period" potentially covered injury, because triggering event was the act rather than the injury. American Cyanamid Co. v. American Home Assurance (1994) 30 Cal. App. 4th 969, 982, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 920

Under multiperil policy issued to condominium developer, coverage for third-party liability based on structural damage discovered after policy issued, and effect of insured's discovery of other damage prior to that date, requires factual determinations (precluding summary judgment for insurer) because (1) knowledge of one defect or set of defects is not equivalent of knowledge of other, distinct defects of same construction project; (2) to bar third-party liability coverage, defect causing postsale damage must be known to insured or agents at relevant time; and (3) coverage as not barred merely because insured "should have discovered" defect but negligently failed to do so. Chu v. Canadian Indem. Co. (1990) 224 Cal. App. 3d 86, 97-101, 274 Cal. Rptr. 20

Under general liability policy, time of accident as time when complaining party was actually injured. Hallmark Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1988) 201 Cal. App. 3d 1014, 1018-1019, 247 Cal. Rptr. 638

[38] Transfer of Policy

Transfer of a policy does not create a separate liability limit in favor of transferee; substitution of transferees as named insured did not entitle new named insured to separate liability limits. Golden Eagle Ins. Co. v. Foremost Ins. Co. (1993) 20 Cal. App. 4th 1372, 1380-1382, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 242

[39] Willful Act of Insured

[a] Application to Sexual Offenses

Ins. Code § 533 precludes coverage under homeowner's liability policy for damages arising from insured's sexual molestation of minor. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. v. Abraio (9th Cir. 1989) 874 F.2d 619, 623 ; State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. v. Estate of Jenner (9th Cir. 1989) 874 F.2d 604, 606-607 ; American States Ins. Co. v. Borbor (9th Cir. 1987) 826 F.2d 888, 891

Insurer under no duty to defend or indemnify wife in action alleging her negligent supervision of child, arising from sexual molestation by her husband, because policy excluded claims resulting from intentional acts by "an insured" under policy; coverage as also precluded by Ins. Code § 533. Allstate Ins. Co. v. Gilbert (9th Cir. 1988) 852 F.2d 449, 453-454 ; see also Farmer v. Allstate Ins. Co. (C.D. Cal. 2004) 311 F. Supp. 2d 884, 895

Homeowner's policy did not cover claims of sexual molestation asserted by insureds' granddaughters; policy does not cover acts intended to cause bodily injury; child molestation is always intentional. Miller v. Allstate Ins. Co. (S.D. Cal. 2007) 489 F. Supp. 2d 1133, 1137

Ins. Code § 533 precludes, as matter of law, coverage for damages arising from insured's sexual child molestation. J.C. Penney Cas. Ins. Co. v. M.K. (1991) 52 Cal. 3d 1009, 1025, 1028, 278 Cal. Rptr. 64, 804 P.2d 689 ; Allstate Ins. Co. v. Kim W. (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 326, 332-333, 206 Cal. Rptr. 609

Insurer had no duty to defend or indemnify insured under mobile homeowner's policy with respect to intentional conduct alleged in third-party action for sexual assault; "no such thing as" negligent stalking, negligent harassment, or unintentional child molestation; insured cannot recharacterize clearly intentional and willful sexual misconduct as merely negligent or nonwillful, so as to trigger insurance coverage. Northland Ins. Co. v. Briones (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 796, 809-810, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 127

Ins. Code § 533 precludes coverage for damages arising from child molestation, regardless of whether child molester had subjective intent to harm his or her victim, because molestation is intentional act that is inherently and necessarily harmful. Barbara B. v. Horace Mann Ins. Co. (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 158, 167, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 350

Coverage under foster parents' liability policy for foster mother's negligent failure to protect minor plaintiff from sexual assault by foster father, not precluded by Ins. Code § 533 or by public policy, because foster mother did not engage in criminal orintentional conduct. National Union Fire Ins. Co. v. Lynette C. (1991) 228 Cal. App. 3d 1073, 1084-1086, 279 Cal. Rptr. 394 (finding coverage based on ambiguity created by exclusion regarding sexual conduct, when read in light of basic coverage)

Under homeowner's policy providing coverage for personal liability, insurer has duty to defend insured in action brought by third party based on transmission of a venereal disease, when complaint alleged both negligent and intentional torts, and insurer was potentially required to indemnify with regard to negligent conduct. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. v. Eddy (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 958, 965-966, 267 Cal. Rptr. 379

[b] Application to Torts, Crimes, and Statutory Violations Generally

Insurer not entitled to summary judgment because in underlying litigation by bankruptcy trustee against corporate entities, officers, and directors, allegations of negligent conduct were not inseparably intertwined with allegations of willful conduct. Unified W. Grocers, Inc. v. Twin City Fire Ins. Co. (9th Cir. 2006) 457 F.3d 1106, 1114

Policy provision for defense of malicious prosecution claims also required insurer to defend claim for abuse of process. Lunsford v. American Guarantee & Liab. Ins. Co. (9th Cir. 1994) 18 F.3d 653

Homeowner's policy did not provide coverage for wrongful death, for which insured had been convicted of second-degree murder; stipulated judgment between survivors of victim and insured, establishing that insured caused victim's death without premeditation or intent to kill, had no collateral effect on dispute between survivors and insurer because insurer was not party or privy to underlying action. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. v. Engstrom (9th Cir. 1991) 933 F.2d 772, 773

Ins. Code § 533 does not bar coverage for insured vicariously liable for willful acts of coinsured by reason of business partnership; insured's liability for partner's acts distinguished from ability to insure against that liability. American States Ins. Co. v. Borbor (9th Cir. 1987) 826 F.2d 888, 892

Ins. Code Section 533 does not automatically bar insurance coverage for violation of Section 10(b) of the Securities and Exchange Act of 1934 and federal Rule 10b-5; "scienter" requirement under statute and rule require only showing of recklessness, not necessarily willful conduct within meaning of Ins. Code § 533. Raychem Corp. v. Federal Ins. Co. (N.D. Cal. 1994) 853 F. Supp. 1170, 1179-1180

Since employment discrimination may involve disparate impact as well as intentional conduct, and disparate impact does not require showing of willfulness, Ins. Code § 533 does not necessarily preclude coverage of employment discrimination claims. Save Mart Supermarkets v. Underwriters (N.D. Cal. 1994) 843 F. Supp. 597, 606

Nolo contendere plea to misdemeanor battery did not support willfulness of insured's conduct in throwing person into swimming pool resulting in unintentional harm because he landed on concrete steps instead of in water; intent to commit bodily injury is not element of misdemeanor battery. State Farm Fire and Casualty Co. v. Superior Court (2008) 164 Cal. App. 4th 317, 329, 78 Cal. Rptr. 3d 828

Garage liability policy provided potential for coverage for customer's injuries when employee claimed that he struck customer in self-defense after being attacked; trial court improperly decided as matter of law that deliberate acts in self-defense can never be an "accident" within meaning of insuring clause. Jafari v. EMC Ins. Cos. (2007) 155 Cal. App. 4th 885, 900-901, 66 Cal. Rptr. 3d 359 , vacated, transferred Jafari (Davar) v. EMC Insurance Companies (2009) 102 Cal. Rptr. 3d 283, 220 P.3d 241, 2009 Cal. LEXIS 12811

Willful conduct required for liability under Corp. Code § 25500 (fraudulent manipulation of securities market) must be knowing and deliberate and, therefore, necessarily constitutes willful act under Ins. Code § 533. California Amplifier, Inc. v. RLI Ins. Co. (2001) 94 Cal. App. 4th 102, 108, 113 Cal. Rptr. 2d 915 (no liability coverage under D&O policy)

General liability policy that expressly promised coverage for claim of malicious prosecution obligated insurer to provide defense of malicious prosecution action against insured. Downey Venture v. LMI Ins. Co. (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 478, 507-509, 78 Cal. Rptr. 2d 142

Attorneys' fees imposed on insured as fine or restitution for felony drunk driving under Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.4 are not covered because Ins. Code § 533 precludes, as matter of public policy, fines or restitution imposed as result of criminal conviction. Baker v. Mid-Century Ins. Co. (1993) 20 Cal. App. 4th 921, 926, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 34

Manufacturer of products containing asbestos not entitled to defense or indemnification of claims based on conspiracy theories because conspiracy, by definition, cannot occur by accident and therefore cannot be "occurrence" under liability policy. Fibreboard Corp. v. Hartford Accident & Indem. Co. (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 492, 510-511, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 376 .

Teenaged boy's fatal shooting of teenaged girl, caused by his pulling trigger of gun that he thought would not fire because he had removed two bullets, in attempt to scare victim, was willful act within meaning of Ins. Code § 533, precluding coverage under his father's homeowner's policy; conduct was more than merely reckless, exposing victim to high probability of injury in egregiously wrongful manner. Studley v. Benicia Unified Sch. Dist. (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 454, 459, 281 Cal. Rptr. 631

Insured's fatal shooting of brother during discussion about real property they owned jointly was not "accident" within terms of homeowners' policy when insured brought gun with her, left it in her pocket, brandished it during argument, and ultimately used it to shoot victim four times in head, four minutes later shooting him again at close range; evidence showed that she did not act in self-defense. United Servs. Auto. Ass'n v. Cavanaugh (1991) 227 Cal. App. 3d 1277, 1285-1287, 278 Cal. Rptr. 214

Insurer has no duty under homeowners' policy to defend insured in criminal prosecution following insured's shooting of his wife and her lawyer when they attempted to take inventory of his store for purposes of dissolution proceedings; rationale against imposing liability on insurer similar to that precluding insurance coverage for punitive and exemplary damages, because restitution is ordered as punishment in criminal case. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. v. Superior Court (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 74, 77-78, 236 Cal. Rptr. 216

Insurance coverage of corporation for willful tort prohibited by Ins. Code § 533 when tortious act constituted act of corporation but not when corporation vicariously liable for willful act of employee. City Prods. Corp. v. Globe Indem. Co. (1979) 88 Cal. App. 3d 31, 39, 151 Cal. Rptr. 494

[c] Application to Wrongful Discharge

No potential liability for coverage, and therefore no duty to defend, arising from wrongful-termination action against insured when liability policy extends coverage only for claims resulting from accidental event. Lipson v. Jordache

Enters., Inc. (1992) 9 Cal. App. 4th 151, 159, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 271 (causes of action for wrongful termination and breach of employment contract); Loyola Marymount Univ. v. Hartford Accident & Indem. Co. (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 1217, 1224-1225, 271 Cal. Rptr. 528 ; Commercial Union Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 1205, 1209, 242 Cal. Rptr. 454

Employer who wrongfully terminated employee, in violation of public policy, had no reasonable expectation of defense; Ins. Code § 533 precluded insurer's duty to defend. B & E Convalescent Ctr. v. State Comp. Ins. Fund (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 78, 102, 9 Cal. Rptr. 2d 894

Under comprehensive general liability policy defining covered "occurrence" as "an accident, an event or a continuous or repeated exposure to conditions which results, during the policy period, in bodily injury or property damage neither expected nor intended by the insured," issue whether policy provides potential coverage regarding action against insured for wrongful termination and related causes of action, was question of fact; summary judgment for insurer as improper. United Pac. Ins. Co. v. McGuire Co. (1991) 229 Cal. App. 3d 1560, 1564-1567, 281 Cal. Rptr. 375

[d] Statutory Prohibition

Ins. Code § 533 and Civ. Code § 1668 (contracts exempting person from responsibility for willful injury against policy of law) prohibit only contracts that indemnify for"loss" or "responsibility" resulting from willful wrongdoing, and do not invalidate contract for legal defense against action charging conduct. Gray v. Zurich Ins. Co. (1966) 65 Cal. 2d 263, 277, 54 Cal. Rptr. 104, 419 P.2d 168

Ins. Code § 533, codifying general rule that insurance policy indemnifying insured against liability due to insured's own willful wrong is void as against public policy, has no application when insured is not personally at fault. Arenson v. National Auto. & Cas. Ins. Co. (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 81, 84, 286 P.2d 816

Ins. Code § 533, implied in every contract, provides that insurer is not liable for loss caused by willful act of insured. Tradewinds Escrow, Inc. v. Truck Ins. Exch. (2002) 97 Cal. App. 4th 704, 714, 118 Cal. Rptr. 2d 561 (commercial automobile liability policy)

[1] Abandonment

Abandonment of ship as relinquishment by insured of his interest in it to insurer; conditions for abandonment. Hilton v. Federal Ins. Co. (1931) 118 Cal. App. 495, 501, 5 P.2d 648 (citing former Civ. Code § 2716 [now Ins. Code § 1970]); see also Standard Marine Ins. Co. v. Nome Beach Lighterage & Transp. Co. (1904) 133 F. 636, 643

[2] Assignment

[3] Barratry

Master of vessel as committing barratry when acting in bad faith he sells cargo of ship for purpose of serving his own ends or against what he knew or believed to be the law though he thought he was advancing interests of owners of cargo; fact that master is part owner of vessel as not incapacitating him from committing barratry, especially with reference to cargo. Meyer v. Great W. Ins. Co. (1894) 104 Cal. 381, 387, 38 P. 82

[4] Concealment

As general rule, unless inqury is made, insured as not required to communicate such facts as are covered by warranty, express or implied, but rule as subject to exceptions, such as facts relating to unseaworthiness of vessel. Tremaine v. Phoenix Assurance Co. (1935) 6 Cal. App. 2d 552, 554-555, 45 P.2d 210

[5] Construction

Marine insurance policy's "all-risks" provision as not covering loss of trawler seized by police as stolen vessel because of defective title; policy broadly categorized as "casualty" policy as convertible to title insurance policy because insureds encountered difficulty for which they were not insured. Commercial Union Ins. Co. v. Sponholz (9th Cir. 1989) 866 F.2d 1162, 1163

Marine insurance policies as construed liberally in favor of insured. Victoria S.S. Co. v. Western Assurance Co. (1914) 167 Cal. 348, 353, 139 P. 807

Ambiguity or uncertainty in marine insurance policy as resolved against insurer and, if semantically permissible, contract as given such construction as will fairly achieve its object of providing indemnity for loss to which insurance relates; this rule as particularly applicable to exclusions, since burden rests on insurer to phrase exceptions and exclusions in clear and unmistakable language. Harris v. Glens Falls Ins. Co. (1972) 6 Cal. 3d 699, 701, 100 Cal. Rptr. 133, 493 P.2d 861

Construction of endorsement on back of marine policy (which permitted vessel to prosecute voyages anywhere on navigable waters of the globe, with specified exceptions) providing vessel was "to be employed on the Gulf of California and captain is privileged to act as his own pilot without prejudice to this insurance." Gulf of Cal. Navigation & Express Co. v. State Inv. & Ins. Co. (1886) 70 Cal. 586, 587-590, 12 P. 473

"Held-covered" clause in marine insurance as not designed to permit insured to voluntarily change scope of risk by willfully breaching warranty and thereupon tendering increased premium; but as intended to protect insured from particular hazard, namely, that despite his best efforts to contrary, he or his crew fail to comply with terms of warranty. Campbell v. Hartford Fire Ins. Co. (1976) 533 F.2d 496, 497-498 n.1

Yacht insurance policy as covering loss of yacht by sinking on trial trip few miles from San Francisco Bay where policy was ambiguous in that it admittedly covered trial trips "within the specified waters" but failed to specify any waters and in blank space in policy left for purpose of specifying waters words "Laid up and out of commission in Sausalito, California" had been typed. Harris v. Glens Falls Ins. Co. (1972) 6 Cal. 3d 699, 701, 100 Cal. Rptr. 133, 493 P.2d 861

Temporary stop for pickup by drivers as not breaking requisite continuity of transportation, and cargo stolen during such stop as covered by inland marine insurance clause which covers losses occurring while cargo in transit or in ordinary course of transportation. Aetna Cas. & Sur. Co. v. Burbank Generators, Inc. (1981) 121 Cal. App. 3d 813, 816-817 Policy insuring vessel owner and providing that "The assured is protected and indemnified as shipowner in respect of liabilities and expenses which he shall have become liable to pay and shall have in fact paid" as, in respect to liability for cargo loss, a policy of indemnity for liability and not indemnity for reimbursement for actual payment since limiting phrase requiring payment applied only to "expenses" and not to "liabilities." Orion Ins. Co. v. Firemen's Ins. Co. (1975) 46 Cal. App. 3d 374, 378-381, 120 Cal. Rptr. 222

Policy insuring vessel owner and providing that "The assured is protected and indemnified as shipowner in respect of liabilities and expenses which he shall have become liable to pay and shall have in fact paid" as, in respect to liability for cargo loss, a policy of indemnity for liability and not indemnity for reimbursement for actual payment since limiting phrase requiring payment applied only to "expenses" and not to "liabilities." Orion Ins. Co. v. Firemen's Ins. Co. (1975) 46 Cal. App. 3d 374, 378-381, 120 Cal. Rptr. 222

[6] Definitions

"Stranded" as meaning that vessel must remain stationary for a time and as implying a settling of vessel and interruption of voyage under extraordinary circumstances; burden of proof. Amok Gold Mining Co. v. Canton Ins. Office, Ltd. (1918) 36 Cal. App. 265, 269-270, 171 P. 1098

[7] Effect of Change of Ships on Cargo Insurance

Insurer of cargo as discharged from liability under policy where before commencement of or during voyage ship named in policy is changed without necessity or consent of underwriters since unnecessary or unsanctioned change of ship produces alteration of risk run by underwriters. Schroeder v. S. Schweizer Lloyd Transp. (1882) 60 Cal. 467, 476-477

[8] Evidence

In action against insurance company to recover for injury to insured goods, policy itself, or evidence of its terms, as required to be introduced in evidence to show risks covered by insurance and extent of defendant's obligation. California Canneries Co. v. Canton Ins. Office, Ltd. (1914) 25 Cal. App. 303, 309, 143 P. 549

Code §§ 2705 and 2717 [now Ins. Code §§ 1963, 1971], which differ from English law as to what constitutes constructive total loss. Boole v. Union Marine Ins. Co., Ltd. (1921) 52 Cal. App. 207, 210, 198 P. 416

Explosion of boiler causing ship to sink as not constituting loss from danger peculiar to sea within meaning of former Civ. Code § 2199 [now Harb. & Nav. Code § 422(g)] enumerating perils of sea. Miller v. California Ins. Co. (1888) 76 Cal. 145, 147-149, 18 P. 155

Arbitration award in insurance appraisal proceeding as required to be vacated when fact that "neutral" appraiser had done business with appraiser selected by insurance company while proceeding was pending was not disclosed to insured. Figi v. New Hampshire Ins. Co. (1980) 108 Cal. App. 3d 772, 775-778, 166 Cal. Rptr. 774

Insurer's submission to suit under service of suit provision as not barring insurer from reliance on Ins. Code § 2071 standard Appraisal Clause because there is no connection between the two clauses. Appalachian Ins. Co. v. Rivcom Corp. (1982) 130 Cal. App. 3d 818, 827-828, 182 Cal. Rptr. 11

Waiver of right to arbitration as not established by insurer's partial payment of claim filed when amount of loss was not fixed. Appalachian Ins. Co. v. Rivcom Corp. (1982) 130 Cal. App. 3d 818, 826, 182 Cal. Rptr. 11

Waiver of appraisement. Case v. Insurance Co. (1889) 82 Cal. 263, 268, 22 P. 1083

Function of appraisers as being to determine amount of damage resulting to various items submitted for their consideration; resolution of questions of coverage and interpretation of policy provisions as not within their function. Hughes v. Potomac Ins. Co. (1962) 199 Cal. App. 2d 239, 253, 18 Cal. Rptr. 650

Although arbitrators are frequently, by terms of agreement providing for arbitration, given broad powers, appraisers as generally having more limited powers; function of appraisers as being to determine amount of damage resulting to various items submitted for their consideration. Jefferson Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 398, 403, 90 Cal. Rptr. 608, 475 P.2d 880 ; Kacha v. Allstate Ins. Co. (2006) 140 Cal. App. 4th 1023, 1032

Where appraisers misinterpret meaning of "actual cash value" as used in fire insurance policy and therefore fail to decide factual issue submitted to them, insured as properly invoking jurisdiction of superior court to vacate award and order rehearing. Jefferson Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 398, 403, 90 Cal. Rptr. 608, 475 P.2d 880

Where appraisal award is based on misconception of law, this fact as permitted to be proved to court by extrinsic evidence, including declaration of one of appraisers; declaration of appraiser as properly received to show what appraisers considered issue to be, for purpose of determining whether they exceeded their powers by making error of law. Jefferson Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 398, 403, 90 Cal. Rptr. 608, 475 P.2d 880

§ 308.331 Decisions

[1] Burden of Proof

Burden of proving affirmative defenses on defendant. Mayfield v. Fidelity & Cas. Co. (1936) 16 Cal. App. 2d 611, 616, 61 P.2d 83

[2] Collusion

Collusion between injured party and insured in procuring judgment for amount invoking excess liability policy was breach of both cooperation clause and covenant of good faith and fair dealing. Andrade v. Jennings (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 307, 327-328, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 787

[3] Fraud

Generally, if policy precludes recovery as result of fraud on part of "the" insured, recovery is precluded only as to particular insured who committed fraud, while innocent coinsured is allowed to recover; by contrast, if policy precludes recovery as result of fraud on the part of "any" insured, effect of fraudulent acts of one insured preclude recovery as to all insureds, which precludes innocent coinsured from recovery. Watts v. Farmers Ins. Exch. (2002) 98 Cal. App. 4th 1246, 1258, 120 Cal. Rptr. 2d 694 (case remanded for determination of whether coinsured in question was innocent spouse entitled to recover based on his one-half interest in damaged property)

[4] Impostor Defense

After contestability period expired, insurance company could not assert as defense to life insurance claim that impostor took mandatory medical examination, when named insured had personally applied for insurance; court left open question of whether "impostor defense" may be asserted if impostor both applies for insurance and takes medical examination using someone else's name. Amex Life Assurance Co. v. Superior Court (1997) 14 Cal. 4th 1231, 1243-1245, 930 P.2d 1264

[5] Limitation Period

Insurer may be estopped from raising one-year suit provision as defense if it did not comply with regulations (10 Cal. Code Reg. § 2695.4(a)) requiring every insurer to disclose to first-party claimant all time limits that might apply to claim presented by claimant. Spray, Gould & Bowers v. Associated Int'l Ins. Co. (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 1260, 1267-1269, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 552 ; see also Neufeld v. Balboa Ins. Co. (2000) 84 Cal. App. 4th 759, 761, 101 Cal. Rptr. 2d 151 (Spray, Gould & Bowers applied retroactively because does not create new law)

Policy provision requiring filing of suit within one year after inception of loss enforceable, and specifically authorized by Ins. Code § 2071. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. v. Superior Court (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 604, 608-609, 258 Cal. Rptr. 413 ; see also Abari v. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 530, 535, 252 Cal. Rptr. 565)

Limitations provisions in policy, requiring filing of claim within 60 days of proof of loss and filing of complaint within three years after written proof of loss is required, bars action against insurer regarding recovery of benefits under health-insurance policy. NN Investors Life Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 1070, 1073-1074

Cause of action under limitation period discovery rule as accruing when plaintiff discovers or should have discovered all facts essential to cause of action. Abari v. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 530, 535, 252 Cal. Rptr. 565

Insurer as not estopped from asserting limitation period by reason of its failure to informinsured that although earth subsidence was excluded risk, third-party negligence was covered risk, because insurer is under no obligation to explain to insured all possible legal theories of recovery. Lawrence v. Western Mut. Ins. Co. (1988) 204 Cal. App. 3d 565, 572-574, 251 Cal. Rptr. 319

[6] Pleading

General demurrer to complaint by insured against insurer for actual and punitive damages for malicious nonpayment of fire insurance as properly sustained without leave to amend where complaint shows on its face that plaintiff was adjudicated a bankrupt after his cause of action accrued and that plaintiff's rights which he seeks to assert have passed to his trustee in bankruptcy under § 70 of the Federal Bankruptcy Act former 11 U.S.C.S. § 110; see present 11 U.S.C.S. § 541(a)(1) and Revision Notes thereto. Reichert v. General Ins. Co. (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 822, 829-830, 69 Cal. Rptr. 321, 442 P.2d 377

[7] Proof of Loss

Insured's failure to produce adequate proof of loss as specified in policy defeats claim for recovery of benefits; in portfolio policy covering contents of warehouse, "mysterious disappearance" exclusion applied to missing property absent physical evidence to show what happened to it, and insured's failure to provide any physical evidence that property was stolen precluded claim for replacement value of property. Blasiar, Inc. v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 748, 757, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 374

[8] Rescission

Under Ins. Code § 650, whenever right to rescind policy is authorized by that portion of Insurance Code, including for concealment or misrepresentations in application, right to rescind applies to all insureds, permitting attribution of culpable conduct unless policy provides otherwise. TIG Ins. Co. of Mich. v. Homestore, Inc. (2006) 137 Cal. App. 4th 749, 758, 40 Cal. Rptr. 3d 528

Because copy of corporation's latest "form 10-Q" (quarterly SEC financial report) was required to be filed with insurance application, after former CFO pleaded guilty to filing false form 10-Q, insurer properly obtained rescission of D&O policy against corporation and its officers and directors, based on falsified form. TIG Ins. Co. of Mich. v. Homestore, Inc. (2006) 137 Cal. App. 4th 749, 755-756, 40 Cal. Rptr. 3d 528 (policy language allowed rescission regarding insureds in addition to officer who concealed material facts)

Under liability policy covering insured's fruit stand, which was located on property leased from State, endorsement naming State as additional insured, based on State's representation to insured that it was required pursuant to lease, as subject to rescission when insurer later discovered that lease contained no such requirement. Merced County Mut. Fire Ins. Co. v. State of California (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 765, 775, 284 Cal. Rptr. 680

[9] Waiver and Estoppel

Insurer as bound by judgment against its insured because it had opportunity to defend where, even though it received notice one day before default hearing, it had six months to apply for relief pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 473. Clemmer v. Hartford Ins. Co. (1978) 22 Cal. 3d 865, 884-885, 151 Cal. Rptr. 285, 587 P.2d 1098

Issuance of policy by insurer on known facts as waiving all conditions inconsistent therewith. Allen v. Home Ins. Co. (1901) 133 Cal. 29, 33, 65 P. 138

Insurers by their acts and conduct as being estopped from availing themselves of defense which they interpose to actions on their policies or as waiving their right to avail themselves of such defense. West Coast Lumber Co. v. State Inv. & Ins. Co. (1893) 98 Cal. 502, 508, 33 P. 258

Insurer that simply denies coverage, without expressly reserving right to assert defenses based on policy provisions that could limit amount of benefits available under policy if coverage ultimately is found to exist, does not waive right to assert those defenses in the event coverage is found; unreasonable to require insurer that is denying coverage to assert at outset an inconsistent theory that coverage is limited under policy terms. Alta Cal. Reg'l Ctr. v. Fremont Indem. Co. (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 455, 459, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 841 (involving carrier's attempt to assert applicability of "other insurance" clause to limit benefits); see Zumbrun v. United Servs. Auto. Ass'n (E.D. Cal. 1989) 719 F. Supp. 890, 897

Defense under primary policy, accompanied by a reservation of rights, did not constitute an estoppel against denial of coverage under an excess policy written by same insurer. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. v. Jioras (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 1619, 1626-1627, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 840

If action is brought against insured, and insurer, with knowledge of a ground of noncoverage under policy, assumes and conducts defense without disclaiming liability and giving notice of its rights, insurer waives right to assert noncoverage. Phoenix Ins. Co. v. United States Fire Ins Co. (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 1511, 1527, n.15, 235 Cal. Rptr. 185 ; Miller v. Elite Ins. Co. (1980) 100 Cal. App. 3d 739, 755, 161 Cal. Rptr. 322

Requirements contained in policy of insurance as subject to waiver by parties; what constitutes waiver. Chase v. National Indem. Co. (1954) 129 Cal. App. 2d 853, 858, 278 P.2d 68

Actual knowledge of breach of policy provision as not essential to establish waiver of provision; possession by insurer of information which if pursued with reasonable diligence would lead to discovery of breach as sufficient. Dalzell v. Northwestern Mut. Ins. Co. (1963) 218 Cal. App. 2d 96, 102, 32 Cal. Rptr. 125

Insurance company as able to waive provisions placed in policy for its own benefit and by its conduct may be estopped to assert defenses which might otherwise be available. Dalzell v. Northwestern Mut. Ins. Co. (1963) 218 Cal. App. 2d 96, 101, 32 Cal. Rptr. 125 (adding, "This rule applies to a provision requiring that suit papers be forwarded to the insurer")

General agent as having authority to waive conditions in insurance policy by mere parol, even though policy itself requires waivers to be in writing. Chase v. National Indem. Co. (1954) 129 Cal. App. 2d 853, 859, 278 P.2d 68

Printed stipulation that any waiver must be made in writing and attached to policy as not preventing conduct of officers of insurer from constituting waiver or estoppel of insurer, based on its presumed knowledge, when its proper officer had knowledge, where such conduct led insured to rely on policy as valid policy, although there was a breach of condition of which insurer knew; in such case, insurer as not permitted to rely on such breach against claim for subsequent loss. Arnold v. American Ins. Co. (1906) 148 Cal. 660, 667-668, 84 P. 182

Question of waiver of policy provision by insurer as usually a question of fact; courts of California as having ruled that there may be allowance of waiver of provisions by some agent of insurer even where policy expressly states that no change may be made in its terms unless endorsed on policy itself and unless such changes are made by designated officer of insurer, particularly where there is evidence of ratification ofagent's acts by insurer. Phillips v. Reserve Life Ins. Co. (1954) 128 Cal. App. 2d 540, 547, 275 P.2d 554

§ 308.343 Decisions

[1] Broker's Duty

[a] General Scope of Duty

Because jewelry store owner asked her insurance agent to obtain commercial coverage including theft, and insurer that provided policy at insurance agent's request did not include theft due to store's failure to meet structural requirements for theft coverage, insured's agent, who failed to notify insured of lower coverage and failed to provide her with policy until after theft loss, was responsible in negligence to insured; in cause of action by insured against surplus lines broker through whom coverage was placed, and surplus lines broker's owner, for breach of contract, bad faith, and other torts, summary judgment against insured was proper because policy did not provide coverage for theft loss, insured's agent's misrepresentations could not be imputed to surplus lines broker, and insured's agent was not agent for either defendant. Rios v. Scottsdale Ins. Co. (2004) 119 Cal. App. 4th 1020, 1025-1027, 15 Cal. Rptr. 3d 18

Insurance broker owes no duty of care to named insured to provide named insured with notice of insurer's intent to cancel policy for nonpayment of premiums for commercial general liability policy; instead, Ins. Code § 677.2 imposes duty on insurer to notify named insureds of its intent to cancel policy, negating need for court to impose that duty on broker. Kotlar v. Hartford Fire Ins. (2000) 83 Cal. App. 4th 1116, 1123, 100 Cal. Rptr. 2d 246

[b] Duty to Account to Insurer for Premiums Collected

Loan company as not mere agent of insurance company, and as liable for breach of fiduciary duty when insurance is of mutual benefit to loan company and plaintiff, and when loan company fails to notify insurer of disability claim as required by Ins. Code § 779.19. Wilson v. Household Fin. Corp. (1982) 131 Cal. App. 3d 649, 653-655, 182 Cal. Rptr. 590

Fiduciary duty to insurer with respect to premiums received as imposed on any person receiving premium payments while acting as insurance agent, whether licensed or not, and as giving rise to civil action by insurer in event of breach by failure to transmit premiums. Middlesex Ins. Co. v. Mann (1981) 124 Cal. App. 3d 558, 570-571, 177 Cal. Rptr. 495

Insurance broker as becoming actual agent of insurer to deliver policy and collect premium and as owing fiduciary duty to insurer to transmit premium to it when insurance policy is delivered by insurer to broker for delivery to insured and insured delivers to broker premium to be delivered to insurer. Maloney v. Rhode Island Ins. Co. (1953) 115 Cal. App. 2d 238, 244-247, 251 P.2d 1027

[c] Duty to Recommend Additional Coverage

Broker did not breach his fiduciary duty to insured by failing to advise them of availability of personal umbrella policy that would have provided additional underinsured motor vehicle coverage at no additional charge, when insured did not inquire into availability of excess coverage and insurer did not hold out broker as having special expertise in area of personal insurance. Fitzpatrick v. Hayes (1997) 57 Cal. App. 4th 916, 927-930, 67 Cal. Rptr. 2d 445

[2] Contracts

In action by agent against insurer arising from agent's termination, in which good cause for termination was required by agency agreement, jury finding that no good cause existed supported by evidence that insurer terminated agent because agent had filed lawsuit against insurer. Wallis v. Farmers Group, Inc. (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 718, 733-734, 269 Cal. Rptr. 299 , overruled in part by Dore v. Arnold Worldwide, Inc. (2006) 39 Cal. 4th 384, 46 Cal. Rptr. 3d 688, 139 P.3d 56

In action by insurance agency corporation against insurance company regarding commissions dispute, asserting breach of covenant of good faith and fair dealing and breach of contract, special relationship such as that between insured and insurer does not exist, and bad faith remedy in tort not available because only usual commercial contract remedies apply. Multiplex Ins. Agency, Inc. v. California Life Ins. Co. (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 925, 937-938, 235 Cal. Rptr. 12

Ambiguous termination provisions in insurance agency contract, stating that agent will return policy-holder files and not compete with insurer's agents for one year on payment by insurer of contract value, entitlted agent to escape obligation to return files by refusing tender of contract-value payment, based on parol evidence of representation by insurer that agent would be self-employed independent contractor. *Heston v. [3] Fraud of Agent

In suit by insured against insurer and its agent, alleging sale of whole life insurance policy by falsely promising that earnings from policy would be sufficient to pay premium costs after 11 years ("vanishing premium" policy), delayed discovery rule may apply when insured did not discover facts constituting fraud until 12th year, i.e., when insurer required him to continue paying out-of-pocket premiums because dividends had declined; when plaintiff reasonably should have discovered facts for purposes of accrual of cause of action or application of delayed discovery rule is generally question of fact; question of fact remained regarding effectiveness of disclaimer "buried" in policy. Broberg v. The Guardian Life Ins. Co. of America (2009) 171 Cal. App. 4th 912, 917-923, 90 Cal. Rptr. 3d 225

In prosecution for capping under Ins. Code § 750, defendant's claim that he believed that referring insureds to lawyers and doctors was legal is immaterial; ignorance of a law is not a defense to a charge of its violation. People v. Meneses (2008) 165 Cal. App. 4th 1648, 1663-1664, 82 Cal. Rptr. 3d 100

Attorney retained by insurer to provide coverage advice in lawsuit against its insureds may be liable to plaintiff in that lawsuit for making fraudulent statement about coverage; third parties adequately pled cause of action for fraud against insurer's coverage counsel, who advised insurer to provide coverage for willful acts so that insurer would not have to pay for Cumis counsel, then represented to third parties that willful acts were not covered so that insurer would not have to pay total amount due on judgment for third parties against insureds; counsel retained by insurer has duty to describe insurance coverage truthfully to third-party beneficiary. Shafer v. Berger (2003) 107 Cal. App. 4th 54, 80-81, 131 Cal. Rptr. 2d 777

Action by insured employer against insurer and its agent for fraud in inducement when agent, to induce insured to terminate existing workers' compensation insurance and take out insurance with defendant insurer, represented that stated percentage of premiums would be returned, and insured, unaware that such rebates were illegal [see Ins. Code §§ 750-752 (repealed by Prop. 103, approved by voters in Nov. 1988)] was induced to terminate existing insurance and take out insurance with defendant insurer. R.D. Reeder Lathing Co. v. Cypress Ins. Co. (1970) 3 Cal. App. 3d 995, 999-1000, 84 Cal. Rptr. 98

Plaintiffs could not recover for fraud based on agent's misrepresentations about coverage provided by health insurance policy when plaintiffs did not read policy and a reading would clearly have disclosed policy's limitations on available benefits. Hadland v. NN Investors Life Ins. Co. (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 1578, 1587-1589, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 88

Showing required by plaintiff to establish cause of action for damages based on fraud and deceit. Andrew v. Bankers & Shippers Ins. Co. (1929) 101 Cal. App. 566, 575, 281 P. 1091

[4] Fraud of Broker

Insurer can sue broker for fraud based on forged insurance application; insurance broker is not exempt from consequences of own fraud; rescission is not insurer's exclusive remedy against insured. Century Sur. Co. v. Crosby Ins., Inc. (2004) 124 Cal. App. 4th 116, 122-127, 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 115

[5] Independent Claims Adjuster

Independent insurance adjuster was not liable to insured on breach-of-fiduciary-duty theory, in connection with insurer's ultimate denial of claim, when adjuster is hired by insurance company to adjust disputed claim with insured; adjuster owes no fiduciary duty to insured absent facts evidencing relationship of trust, confidence, integrity, and fidelity. Thompson v. Cannon (1990) 224 Cal. App. 3d 1413, 1418, 274 Cal. Rptr. 608

Independent claims adjuster of self-employed insurer imbued with same immunity from civil suit as principal, so long as adjuster discloses agency role and commits no intentional tort while investigating claim in question. Mottola v. R. L. Kautz & Co.(1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 98, 109, 244 Cal. Rptr. 737

Independent claims adjuster was simply alter ego of self-insured employer. Mottola v. R. L. Kautz & Co. (1988) 199

App. 3d 905, 909, 274 Cal. Rptr. 186* (reversing dismissal of poorly pleadedaction that stated causes of action in fraud and intentional infliction of emotional distress)

[8] Negligence of Agent or Broker

Although insurance agent does not generally have duty to volunteer that insured should procure additional or different insurance coverage, rule changes when either: (1) agent misrepresents nature, extent, or scope of coverage being offered or provided; (2) insured requests or inquires about particular type or extent of coverage; or (3) agent assumes additional duty by either express agreement or by holding itself out as having expertise in given field of insurance sought. Williams v. Hilb, Rogal & Hobbs Ins. Svcs. of Cal., Inc. (2009) 177 Cal. App. 4th 624, 635-636, 98 Cal. Rptr. 3d 910

Agent holding itself out as having expertise in insurance being sought by insured may be liable to insured for losses resulting from breach of that special duty. Williams v. Hilb, Rogal & Hobbs Ins. Svcs. of Cal., Inc. (2009) 177 Cal. App. 4th 624, 636, 98 Cal. Rptr. 3d 910

Agent who held herself out as having expertise in insurance needs of particular dealerships that install spray-on linings onto beds of pickup trucks breached duty she assumed when she failed to advise insured dealership of need for workers' compensation insurance and failed to include that coverage in her package for those dealerships. Williams v. Hilb, Rogal & Hobbs Ins. Svcs. of Cal., Inc. (2009) 177 Cal. App. 4th 624, 637, 98 Cal. Rptr. 3d 910

Insurance agent generally has no duty to volunteer that insured should obtain different or additional insurance coverage; exceptions occur only when either (1) agent misrepresents nature, extent, or scope of coverage being offered or provided, (2) insured requests or inquires about particular type or extent of coverage, or (3) agent assumes additional duty either by express agreement or by professing to have expertise in given field of insurance sought by insured. Roberts v. Assurance Co. of America (2008) 163 Cal. App. 4th 1398, 1403-1404, 78 Cal. Rptr. 3d 361

When insured requested only "course of construction" insurance, agent had no duty to obtain liability coverage for insured. Roberts v. Assurance Co. of America (2008) 163 Cal. App. 4th 1398, 1403-1404, 78 Cal. Rptr. 3d 361

In case in which musical group sued its insurer, insurance broker, and business manager based on insurer's failure to defend and broker's and manager's failure to advise it of ramifications of "FELE" policy exclusion excluding liability coverage for former group member's underlying copyright infringement suit, and failure to advise that it needed to obtain E&O coverage, trial court's finding that insurer had duty to defend did not preclude negligence actions. Third Eye Blind, Inc. v. Near N. Entm't Ins. Servs., LLC (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 1311, 1323, 26 Cal. Rptr. 3d 452

If insurance broker knows of actual misstatements in insurance application, broker may be liable to insurer for transmitting those misrepresentations in application, knowing insurer will reasonably rely on them. Century Sur. Co.

v. Crosby Ins., Inc. (2004) 124 Cal. App. 4th 116, 129, 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 115

Because jewelry store owner asked her insurance agent to obtain commercial coverage including theft, and insurer that provided policy at insurance agent's request did not include theft due to store's failure to meet structural requirements for theft coverage, insured's agent, who failed to notify insured of lower coverage and failed to provide her with policy until after theft loss, was responsible in negligence to insured; in cause of action by insured against surplus lines broker through whom coverage was placed, and surplus lines broker's owner, for breach of contract, bad faith, and other torts, summary judgment against insured was proper because policy did not provide coverage for theft loss, insured's agent's misrepresentations could not be imputed to surplus lines broker, and insured's agent was not agent for either defendant. Rios v. Scottsdale Ins. Co. (2004) 119 Cal. App. 4th 1020, 1025-1027, 15 Cal. Rptr. 3d 18

Stipulated judgment for $6 million (containing covenant not to execute) in action between nightclub owner, who was insured under comprehensive general liability policy containing broad assault and battery exclusion, and third party assaulted while leaving nightclub, did not establish amount of damages in resulting assigned action against insurance broker based on broker's negligence in not clarifying that exclusion to insured; judgment correctly limited broker's liability to $1 million coverage that would have been available under policy, rather than $6 million under stipulated judgment; stipulated judgment containing covenant not to execute cannot create presumption of liability or damages in suit against negligent broker. Valentine v. Membrila Ins. Servs., Inc. (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 462, 473-475, 13 Cal. Rptr. 3d 125

Contractor A subcontracted work to contractor B, which in turn subcontracted certain part of that work to subcontractor C; in B's suit against C's insurance broker for negligence in failure to name B as additional insured in C's commercial general liability policy, as required in contract between B and C, C's insurance broker was not entitled to summary judgment because triable issues of fact remained concerning whether underlying claim by A against B based on faulty work sought to recover at least some damages stemming from "property damage" according to policy language; furthermore, B's settlement with C, resulting in dismissal with prejudice in favor of C, did not operate as retraxit barring B's cause of action against C's broker. Roger H. Proulx & Co. v. Crest-Liners, Inc. (2002) 98 Cal. App. 4th 182, 189-200, 119 Cal. Rptr. 2d 442

Agent whose misrepresentations regarding scope of insured's existing coverage caused insured to forego procuring additional insurance that would have covered claims in question may be held liable for negligent misrepresentation. Clement v. Smith (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 39, 44-47, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 676

Duty to use reasonable care as arising when insurance agent elects to respond to inquiries regarding adequacy of insured's homeowners policy; demurrer reversed. Free v. Republic Ins. Co. (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 1726, 1729-1730, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 296

Broker's violation of statutes prohibiting procurement of insurance from nonadmitted insurer as proper basis for liability to claimants as well as insured; broker's failure to obtain type of insurance requested by insured may constitute actionable negligence and proximate cause of injury. Nowlon v. Koram Ins. Ctr., Inc. (1991) 1 Cal. App. 4th 1437, 1446-1447, 2 Cal. Rptr. 2d 683

Insurance broker with twenty years experience who procures replacement primary policy containing lower liability limits than original primary policy which results in $200,000 gap in coverage between liability limits of primary insurance policy and excess insurance policy and who fails to notify insured of potential gap in coverage as 75 percent negligent. Reserve Ins. Co. v. Pisciotta (1982) 30 Cal. 3d 800, 816-817, 180 Cal. Rptr. 628, 640 P.2d 764

Insurance agent as not having duty to inform insured of advantages of additional coverage, or to elicit additional facts from insured applicable to that coverage, absent express agreement or holding out that establishes special duty; general duty of reasonable care that insurance agent owes client as not including obligation to procure policy affording client complete liability protection. Jones v. Grewe (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 950, 954, 956, 234 Cal. Rptr. 717

Long relationship between agency and client, client's previous questions about coverage of existing policy, and client's request for additional insurance for recently purchased vehicles as creating duty in agent to warn client not to drive such vehicles before purchasing additional insurance even though agent did not expressly promise to procure additional insurance; nonfeasance in failing to provide any information as not distinguished from misfeasance in providing misinformation for purposes of imposing liability. Westrick v. State FarmInsurance (1982) 137 Cal. App. 3d 685, 691-692, 187 Cal. Rptr. 214

Insurance company and not applicant as charged with agent's error, if any, in selecting and completing application blank for insurance. Home Indem. Co. v. Mission Ins. Co. (1967) 251 Cal. App. 2d 942, 951, 60 Cal. Rptr. 544

President's power to act in foreign affairs preempts California Holocaust Victim Insurance Relief Act of 1999 (Ins. Code §§ 13800-13807). American Ins. Ass'n v. Garamendi (2003) 539 U.S. 396, 420-428, 123 S. Ct. 2374, 156 L. Ed. 2d 376

In declaratory relief action by insurer to determine duty to defend, arising from damaged aircraft that was insured under CGL, intervenor (company that owned aircraft) permitted to defend on its own, despite default against insured that was entered because insured failed to appear for his deposition. Westchester Fire Ins. Co. v. Mendez (9th Cir. 2009) 585 F.3d 1183, 1189

Notice-prejudice rule, requiring insurer to establish actual and substantial prejudice to avoid liability based on insured's breach of notice clause, held applicable to contracts of reinsurance. Insurance Co. of Pa. v. Associated Int'l (9th Cir. 1990) 922 F.2d 516, 524

Primary insurer held wholly responsible for obligation to defend in underlying third-party action when both primary and excess policies provided that excess insurer's duty to defend would begin only when primary insurer made "payment" of its liability limit to excess insurer, and it had not done so; primary insurer as required to pay for total defense costs despite fact that large proportion of eventual settlement or judgment would be covered by excess policy. Hartford Accident & Indem. Co. v. Continental Nat'l Am. Ins. (9th Cir. 1988) 861 F.2d 1184, 1186-1187

In declaratory relief action by excess insurer against primary insurers, primary insurers not liable for defense or indemnity of insured when primary policy exclusion regarding advertising activities was basis for denial of coverage. Aetna Cas. & Sur. Co. v. Centennial Ins. Co. (9th Cir. 1988) 838 F.2d 346, 351-352

When two or more applicable policies contain excess insurance clauses, liability is prorated according to amount of coverage afforded. James B. Lansing Sound, Inc. v. Nat'l Union Fire Ins. Co. (9th Cir. 1986) 801 F.2d 1560, 1567

In action by insurer to rescind employment liability insurance policy, insured's untruthful negative answer to application questions concerning any previous discrimination, harassment, or wrongful discharge claims were material misrepresentations, supporting motion for summary adjudication for insurer; insurer did not unreasonably delay action for rescission, precluding defense of laches. Admiral Ins. Co. v. Debber (E.D. Cal. 2006) 442 F. Supp. 2d 958, 967-969, 972

Excess insurer has no duty to defend if primary insurer refused tender of defense; so long as primary insurer had duty to defend and provide coverage for insured's legal expenses in defending underlying lawsuit, then excess policy did not step down and provide coverage, even if claim involved type of damage covered by umbrella policy. Republic W. Ins. Co. v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. (N.D. Cal. 2003) 241 F.Supp. 2d 1090, 1096-1099 ; see Ticor Title Ins. Co. v. Employers Ins. of Wausau (1995) 40 Cal. App. 4th 1699, 1707, 48 Cal. Rptr. 2d 368

If primary coverage is not exhausted, then excess insurer's duty not triggered, even if insured withdrew claim with primary insurer, and regardless of whether primary insurer refused to defend. Republic W. Ins. Co. v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. (N.D.Cal.2003) 241 F. Supp. 2d 1090, 1099

In case arising out of remedial action order requiring environmental cleanup and remediation, primary coverage cannot be exhausted until approval of remediation plan that clearly establishes that cost of remediation will exceed primary limits; primary insurer can then tender its policy limits and extinguish its duty to defend, thereby triggering excess carrier's defense obligation. County of Santa Clara v. United States Fid. & Guar. Co. (N.D. Cal. 1994) 868 F. Supp. 274, 280

Insurer under standard CGL policy, having properly reserved its rights, may advance sums to defend its insured against third-party lawsuit, and may thereafter recoup those costs from insured if it is determined, as matter of law, that no duty to defend ever arose because third-party suit never suggested possibility of covered claim. Scottsdale Ins. Co. v. MV Transp. (2005) 36 Cal. 4th 643, 662, 31 Cal. Rptr. 3d 147, 115 P.3d 460

If applicant for life insurance misrepresents his or her history as smoker to obtain nonsmoker rate, insurer may rescind policy. O'Riordan v. Federal Kemper Life Assurance (2005) 36 Cal. 4th 281, 287, 30 Cal. Rptr. 3d 507, 114 P.3d 753 (triable issues of material fact existed with respect to whether insured concealed or failed to communicate material information to insurer regarding use of cigarettes in 36 months preceding application, precluding summary judgment for insurer)

In single action brought by insured against both primary and excess insurers, primary and excess insurance carriers do not necessarily have "substantially adverse interests" for purposes of entitling an after-named excess insurance carrier to exercise a separate challenge pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6 (permitting exercise of one challenge against assigned trial judge by each "side" in litigation), after previous exercise of that challenge by primary insurance carrier. Home Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (2005) 34 Cal. 4th 1025, 1037, 22 Cal. Rptr. 3d 885, 103 P.3d 283 (no challenge allowed after trial court found interests of coparties were not substantially adverse)

In context of claim alleging continuous and/or progressively deteriorating bodily injury and/or property damage resulting from discharge of hazardous substances over 28-year period, insurer who issued standard comprehensive general liability insurance policy covering part of period had duty to defend entire claim, because part of claim was potentially covered; however, insurer could seek reimbursement from insured for defense costs that could be allocated solely to that part of claim that was not even potentially covered by policy. Aerojet-Gen. Corp. v. Transport Indem. Co. (1997) 17 Cal. 4th 38, 69-71, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 118, 948 P.2d 909

In context of claim alleging continuous injury resulting from discharge of hazardous substances over 28-year period, insurer could not seek equitable contribution for defense costs from insured based on insured's decision to avail itself of "fronting" policies that did not cover insured's defense costs for eight of those years; equitable contribution applies only between insurers and cannot be required of uninsured or self-insured party. Aerojet-Gen. Corp. v. Transport Indem. Co. (1997) 17 Cal. 4th 38, 71-72, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 118, 948 P.2d 909 ; see also County of San Bernardino v. Pacific Indem. Co. (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 666, 690-691, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 657

Under standard general commercial liability policy, insurer has obligation imposed by law to defend against entire action if at least one claim is potentially covered. Buss v. Superior Court (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 35, 47-49, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 366, 939 P.2d 766

Insurer may seek reimbursement from insured for costs of defending claims not even potentially covered by standard general commercial liability policy; insurer may recover only those costs that can be allocated solely to those claims that are not even potentially covered; insurer has burden of proof by preponderance of evidence. Buss v. Superior Court (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 35, 49-52, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 366, 939 P.2d 766

Insurer's right of reimbursement is implied in law as quasi-contractual, whether or not right is implied in fact in the policy as contractual; right of restitution runs against person who benefits from "unjust enrichment" and in favor of person who suffers loss thereby. Buss v. Superior Court (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 35, 50, 939 P.2d 766 ; Prichard v. Liberty Mut. Ins. Co. (2000) 84 Cal. App. 4th 890, 905-906, 101 Cal. Rptr. 2d 298

Under standard general commercial liability policy, insurer must reserve right to seek reimbursement from insured for defense costs for claims that are not even potentially covered; insurer may reserve right of reimbursement without insured's agreement. Buss v. Superior Court (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 35, 61 n.27, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 366, 939 P.2d 766

Under "continuous injury" theory adopted for third-party liability insurance cases in California, bodily injury and/or property damage that is continuous or progressively deteriorating throughout several policy periods is covered by all policies in effect during those periods, not merely by policy in effect at time damage is first manifested; coverage is triggered when complaining party is actually damaged, not when wrongful act causing damage was committed. Montrose Chem. Corp. v. Admiral Ins. Co. (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 645, 669-670, 689, 42 Cal. Rptr. 2d 324, 913 P.2d 878

Under "manifestation" theory adopted for first-party property insurance cases in California, damage that is continuous or progressive throughout several periods is covered by policy in effect at time damage is first manifested (that point in time at which appreciable damage occurs, so that reasonable insured would be on notice of potentially insured loss); insurers whose policy terms commence after initial manifestation of loss are not responsible for any potential claim relating to previously discovered and manifested loss. Prudential-LMI Commercial Ins. v. Superior Court (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 674, 685, 699, 274 Cal. Rptr. 387, 798 P.2d 1230

In action for declaratory relief brought by primary insurance carrier, when insured had replacement policy limiting primary coverage to $100,000 per occurrence for injuries to one person and excess insurance covering liabilities over $300,000, and primary insurer was found liable up to policy limits by trial court for injury to insured's stepson, postjudgment insolvency of primary carrier was properly considered by reviewing court; excess insurer was liable for coverage that primaryinsurer should assume but not liable for insured's liabilities within coverage gap, because maintenance clause of excess policy was breached by procurement of replacement primary policy with lower limit than original primary policy. Reserve Ins. Co. v. Pisciotta (1982) 30 Cal. 3d 800, 813-816, 180 Cal. Rptr. 628, 640 P.2d 764

In insurance context, right to contribution arises when several insurers are obligated to indemnify or defend same loss or claim, and one insurer has paid more than its share of loss or defended action without any participation by the others; when multiple insurers insure same insured and cover same risk, each insurer has independent standing to assert cause of action against its coinsurers for equitable contribution when it has undertaken defense or indemnification of common insured. Scottsdale Ins. Co. v. Century Surety Co. (2010) 182 Cal. App. 4th 1023, 1031, 105 Cal. Rptr. 3d 896

Equitable contribution permits reimbursement to insurer that paid on loss for excess it paid over its proportionate share of obligation, on theory that debt it paid was equally and concurrently owed by other insurers and should be shared by them pro rata in proportion to their respective coverage of risk; purpose of rule of equity is to accomplish substantial justice by equalizing common burden shared by coinsurers, and to prevent one insurer from profiting at expense of others. Scottsdale Ins. Co. v. Century Surety Co. (2010) 182 Cal. App. 4th 1023, 1031, 105 Cal. Rptr. 3d 896

In choosing appropriate method of allocating defense costs among multiple liability insurers, each insuring same insured, trial court must determine which method of allocation will most equitably distribute obligation among insurers pro rata in proportion to their respective coverage of risk, as matter of distributive justice and equity; trial court's determination of which method of allocation will produce most equitable results is necessarily matter of its equitable judicial discretion. Scottsdale Ins. Co. v. Century Surety Co. (2010) 182 Cal. App. 4th 1023, 1032, 105 Cal. Rptr. 3d 896 (reversing determination)

In action between insurers, insurer seeking equitable contribution must prove that it had paid more than its fair share of defense and indemnity costs for common insureds, and bears burden of producing evidence necessary to calculate the fair share; one insurer cannot recover equitable contribution from another any amount that would result in the first insurer paying less than its fair share, even if that means that the otherwise liable second insurer will have paid nothing. Scottsdale Ins. Co. v. Century Surety Co. (2010) 182 Cal. App. 4th 1023, 1034-1036, 105 Cal. Rptr. 3d 896

In action between insurers, insurer seeking equitable contribution can recover only based on evidence that it paid more than its fair share under allocation agreements it made with other insurers; it cannot recover an amount from a nonparticipating insurer that would result in its paying less than its fair share under those same agreements. Scottsdale Ins. Co. v. Century Surety Co. (2010) 182 Cal. App. 4th 1023, 1037-1038, 105 Cal. Rptr. 3d 896

In action for equitable contribution between CGL insurers, arising from plaintiff's alleged overpayment towards settlement of underlying action against mutual insured contractor, relief denied because plaintiff did not pay its proportionate share of benefits; "contractors warranty endorsement" in defendant's primary policy excluded liability coverage for operations completed by independent contractor unless insured obtained both a hold-harmless agreement from contractor, and a certificate of insurance showing that contractor was insured. North American Capacity Ins. Co. v. Claremont Liability Ins. Co. (2009) 177 Cal. App. 4th 272, 276, 295-297, 99 Cal. Rptr. 3d 225

In action for equitable contribution between CGL insurers, arising from plaintiff's alleged overpayment towards settlement of underlying action against mutual insured contractor, relief denied because plaintiff did not pay its proportionate share of benefits; defendant's umbrella policy contained "contractors warranty endorsement" virtually identical to endorsement in its primary policy, which does not apply to operations performed by independent contractors unless insured: (1) will receive written agreement from each independent contractor; and (2) will obtain certificates of insurance from each independent contractor indicating that it will maintain similar coverage. North American Capacity Ins. Co. v. Claremont Liability Ins. Co. (2009) 177 Cal. App. 4th 272, 287-293, 99 Cal. Rptr. 3d 225

In action for equitable contribution between CGL insurers, arising from plaintiff's alleged overpayment towards settlement of underlying action against mutual insured contractor, relief denied because plaintiff did not pay its proportionate share of benefits; defendant's umbrella policy did not drop down to cover losses for which there was no coverage under its primary policy. North American Capacity Ins. Co. v. Claremont Liability Ins. Co. (2009) 177 Cal. App. 4th 272, 291-293, 99 Cal. Rptr. 3d 225

Multiple insurers on the same risk have reciprocal rights and duties that arise out of equitable principles; loss is distributed in a ratio that reflects percentage of total coverage provided by each insurer's policy; various methods a trial court may choose for determining equitable allocation include time on the risk, policy limits, combined policy limits/time on the risk, equal shares, and maximum loss. Employers Mut. Cas. Co. v. Philadelphia Indem. Ins. Co. (2008) 169 Cal. App. 4th 340, 348, 86 Cal. Rptr. 3d 383

In case involving multiple CGL insurers of mobilehome park, insurer that did not provide defense in action against "failure to maintain" claims of park's residents, owed contribution of defense costs and statutory attorney fees to insurers that provided defense and obtained settlement for $3 million, allocating $1.2 million to damages and $1.8 million for attorney fees under Civil Code § 798.85. Employers Mut. Cas. Co. v. Philadelphia Indem. Ins. Co. (2008) 169 Cal. App. 4th 340, 353-354, 86 Cal. Rptr. 3d 383

When insured subcontractor was suspended as corporation and previous construction jobs resulted in third-party lawsuits against contractor, subcontractor and contractor, and insurer and contractor entered into settlement agreements; on subsequent breach of settlement agreements by contractor, insurer had standing to bring suit against contractor because insurer was either party to or third-party beneficiary of all settlement agreements made. Performance Plastering v. Richmond American Homes of Cal., Inc. (2007) 153 Cal. App. 4th 659, 665-668, 63 Cal. Rptr. 3d 537

Insurer of holder of life estate on residence and insurer of trust holding remainder interest properly pro rated benefits after destruction of home by fire, based on relative insured interests of parties, pursuant to "other insurance" provisions in policies; multiple insureds cannot recover more than value of property destroyed on fire insurance claim resulting from single occurrence. Burns v. California FAIR Plan Assn. (2007) 152 Cal. App. 4th 646, 656-659, 61 Cal. Rptr. 3d 809

As general rule, when multiple insurance carriers insure same insured and cover same risk, each insurer may assert claim against coinsurer for equitable contribution when it has undertaken defense or paid liability on behalf of insured; modern trend is to require contribution when there is same level of insurance for same risk, regardless of "other insurance" language. Edmondson Property Management v. Kwock (2007) 156 Cal. App. 4th 197, 202-203, 67 Cal. Rptr. 3d 243

In absence of any contractual provision converting coinsurer's primary policy to excess policy, trial court properly applied general rules of equitable contribution; because both insurers issued primary insurance policies covering same risk at same level of insurance, coinsurer must pay its fair share of liability paid by other insurer in settlement of personal injury action. Edmondson Property Management v. Kwock (2007) 156 Cal. App. 4th 197, 209, 67 Cal. Rptr. 3d 243

In declaratory relief action between primary and excess insurers, arising from homeowner's liability for landslide causing damage to neighbor's backyard, event of landslide constituted only one occurrence of property damage, paid by primary insurer in amount of $500,000; resultant damaged condition in neighbor's backyard, left unrepaired for extended period, did not constitute continuation of damage through other policy periods, e.g., for loss of use; and did not give rise to multiple occurrences; primary insurer's liability determined on "per occurrence" basis. Safeco Ins. Co. of Am. v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. (2007) 148 Cal. App. 4th 620, 632-639, 55 Cal. Rptr. 3d 844

In action for equitable contribution against nonparticipating insurer, settling insurer meets its burden of proof by making prima facie showing of coverage under nonparticipating insurer's policy (same showing of potential coverage necessary to trigger nonparticipating insurer's duty to defend); burden of proof then shifts to recalcitrant insurer to prove absence of actual coverage. Safeco Ins. Co. of Am. v. Superior Court (2006) 140 Cal. App. 4th 874, 881-882, 44 Cal. Rptr. 3d 841

Excess insurer cannot maintain subrogation action against primary insurer, based on unreasonable refusal to settle underlying tort claim, if tort claim did not go to trial, and no excess judgment was entered against insured. RLI Ins. Co. v. CNA Cas. of Cal. (2006) 141 Cal. App. 4th 75, 82-83, 45 Cal. Rptr. 3d 667 ; see also Hamilton v. Maryland Cas. Co. (2002) 27 Cal. 4th 718, 117 Cal. Rptr. 2d 318, 41 P.3d 128 (judgment in excess of policy must be entered before there can be claim for breach of primary insurer's duty to settle); but see Fortman v. Safeco Ins. Co. (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 1394, 271 Cal. Rptr. 117

Central insuring clause in umbrella policy covering "ultimate net loss in excess of ... applicable underlying limit [that] insured shall become legally obligated to pay as damages," and defining "ultimate net loss" as "sum actually paid or payable in cash in ... settlement or satisfaction of any claim or suit for which ... insured is liable either by adjudication or settlement with ... written consent" of insurer, imposes duty to indemnify limited to court-rendered damages. CDM Investors v. Travelers Cas. & Sur. Co. (2006) 139 Cal. App. 4th 1251, 1263-1266, 43 Cal. Rptr. 3d 669

"Other insurance" issue arises only between carriers on same level of coverage. Carmel Dev. Co. v. RLI Ins. Co. (2005) 126 Cal. App. 4th 502, 513-514, 24 Cal. Rptr. 3d 588

In action by real estate developer's excess insurer against subcontractors' insurers naming developer as "additional insured," excess insurer's duty to defend underlying action was triggered when specified primary insurance was exhausted, pursuant to excess policy provisions, regardless of existence or exhaustion of subcontractor's policies. Travelers Cas. & Sur. Co. v. Transcontinental Ins. Co. (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 949, 959, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 272

Right to contribution arises if policies of two or more insurers of common insured, providing primary coverage for same risk, contain conflicting "other insurance" clauses, and if one insurer pays more than its share of loss or defense costs without participation from other insurers; in action for declaratory relief and contribution between two commercial general liability insurers who provided primary insurance coverage at different times to common insured, insurer on policy declared to be "excess" to other insurance was obligated to contribute, on pro rata basis, to defense and indemnification costs that other insurer incurred on insured's behalf. Travelers Cas. & Sur. Co. v. Century Sur. Co. (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 1156, 1160, 13 Cal. Rptr. 3d 526 ; Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. v. Maryland Cas. Co. (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 1279, 1304, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 296

Primary insurer could not enforce its "excess" other-insurance clause to avoid contribution and allocation claims of other insurers that had discharged their primary coverage duty to insured; if primary insurer "excess" other-insurance clause and pro rata clauses of other three insurers are mutually repugnant, only proper result is to ignore all clauses and require some equitable pro rata apportionment. Century Sur. Co. v. United Pac. Ins. Co. (2003) 109 Cal. App. 4th 1246, 1256-1260, 135 Cal. Rptr. 2d 879

Insurer's declaratory relief action to determine its duty to indemnify is not strategic litigation against public participation (SLAPP) suit; therefore, insurer not subject tomotion to strike by defendant in declaratory relief action who was plaintiff (and third-party claimant) in underlying personal injury action against insured. State Farm Gen. Ins. Co. v. Majorino (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 974, 977-979, 121 Cal. Rptr. 2d 719 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 425.16

Equitable contribution did not apply to require one insurer to reimburse second insurer with respect to claim paid to common insured; insured failed to comply with special condition endorsement in policy of insurer that denied claim; endorsement required insured to obtain both certificates of insurance from all subcontractors and hold harmless agreements from all subcontractors indemnifying insured against all losses for work performed and that insured be named an additional insured on all subcontractor general liability policies. Scottsdale Ins. Co. v. Essex Ins. Co. (2002) 98 Cal. App. 4th 86, 90-98, 119 Cal. Rptr. 2d 62

Privilege under Civil Code § 47(b) precludes action by claimants' insurer against tortfeasors' insurer for fraudulently misrepresenting applicable policy limits toclaimant's counsel during settlement negotiations, causing claimants to execute full release and to obtain underinsured motorist benefits from their own insurer. Home Ins. Co. v. Zurich Ins. Co. (2002) 96 Cal. App. 4th 17, 116 Cal. Rptr. 2d 583

County that negligently referred high-risk patient to hospital was primarily liable and equitably responsible for entire obligation; comprehensive hospital liability insurer that provided medical malpractice defense established right of subrogation against county subject to any applicable defenses that county may have; county's status as additional insured on hospital policy does not negate its responsibility for injuries caused by its own negligence. Truck Ins. Exch. v. County of Los Angeles (2002) 95 Cal. App. 4th 13, 21-22, 25-26, 115 Cal. Rptr. 2d 179

Insurer may not deny coverage for third-party claims, settle insured's subsequent bad faith claim based on its denial of coverage, and then obtain reimbursement for bad faith settlement from another insurer that provided coverage to insured and settled underlying case. United Servs. Auto. Ass'n v. Alaska Ins. Co. (2001) 94 Cal. App. 4th 638, 648, 114 Cal. Rptr. 2d 449

California insurers stated cause of action for declaratory relief that defendant violated unfair competition law (UCL) (Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 et seq.) by transferring its asbestos and environment policies to parent company's Pennsylvania subsidiary created only to pay off future claims, and disclaiming further liability for those claims, without consent of California policyholders, or alternatively, for sending California policyholders misleading and incomplete notice of the transfers; UCL violation based on violation of Civil Code § 1457 (transferring burden of obligation with consent of party). AICCO, Inc. v. Insurance Co. of N. Am. (2001) 90 Cal. App. 4th 579, 590-598, 109 Cal. Rptr. 2d 359 (reversing sustaining of demurrer and dismissal of complaint)

Hospital's insurer that settled medical malpractice suit was not entitled to equitable contribution from insurer of nurse who was involved in incident, but was not named as defendant; nurse's insurer never had any duty to indemnify her with respect to injury. American Cont'l Ins. Co. v. American Cas. Co. (2001) 86 Cal. App. 4th 929, 938-941, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 632 (case of first impression)

Trial court has discretion to select method of allocating defense costs among multiple insurers to effect most equitable results based on facts and circumstances of each case. Centennial Ins. Co. v. United States Fire Ins. Co. (2001) 88 Cal. App. 4th 105, 112, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 559

Multiple insurers with disproportionate (90 percent/10 percent) amounts of time in which their policies covered loss were properly ordered to pay defense costs according to "time on the risk" method rather than "equal shares" approach. Centennial Ins. Co. v. United States Fire Ins. Co. (2001) 88 Cal. App. 4th 105, 113-114, 105

Ins. Code § 11580 permits insurer to intervene in action against insured for personal injury or property damage; insurer may intervene to assert defenses of suspended corporation; in negligence action in which suspended corporate defendant would have defaulted, defendant's insurer permitted to intervene if insurer remains liable for any default judgment against insured and has no means other than intervention to litigate liability or damage issues. Reliance Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (2000) 84 Cal. App. 4th 383, 386-388, 100 Cal. Rptr. 2d 807

Principles of equitable contribution, rather than equitable subrogation, applied to apportion defense costs between insurers because each insurer remained primarily responsible for defense. Maryland Cas. Co. v. Nationwide Mut. Ins. Co. (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 1082, 1089, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 374 ; see also *Carmel Dev. Co. v. RLI Ins. Co. (2005) 126 Cal. App. 4th 502, 509, 24 Cal. Defense costs of insurer, which defended action under policy with "excess only" other-insurance clause, were prorated with insurer covering same loss under policy with "pro rata" other-insurance clause. Pacific Indem. Co. v. Bellefonte Ins. Co. (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 1226, 1237, 95 Cal. Rptr. 2d 911

Multiple primary policies with conflicting "other insurance" clauses require proration of loss between carriers, if first policy contains "excess only" clause and second policy contains hybrid "pro rata/escape" clause. Commerce & Indus. Ins. Co. v. Chubb Custom Ins. Co. (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 739, 748-749, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 415

With respect to suit by insurer against car rental company for declaratory relief, equitable subrogation, indemnity, and violation of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200, and cross-complaint for indemnity, breach of contract, and declaratory relief against two individual insureds, regarding automobile liability coverage on rental car, costs and attorney fees expended by rental company in defending insurer's subrogation claim were properly recoverable by rental company under rental agreement, pursuant to Civ. Code § 2778. United Servs. Auto. Ass'n v. Snappy Car Rental, Inc. (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 461, 465, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 742

If conflict exists between "excess only other insurance" clause and "pro rata other insurance" clause, current trend in California is to prorate settlement and defense costs between two policies; however, amount not prorated if one policy provides that its exposure is not to be reduced by existence of other insurance, if this insurance is primary, and if other insurance is excess or contingent. American Cont'l Ins. Co. v. American Cas. Co. (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 508, 515-516, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 560

Primary coverage is insurance coverage under which, under terms of policy, liability attaches immediately on happening of occurrence giving rise to liability; excess or secondary coverage applies if, under terms of policy, liability attaches only after predetermined amount of primary coverage has been exhausted. Reliance Nat'l Indem. Co. v. General Star Indem. Co. (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 1063, 1076, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 627

In action between insurers for contribution and indemnification, insurer that provided defense to insured who was found liable in underlying suit could not recover from additional insurer because court found no potential coverage under liability policies, even though policies of different insurers were substantially identical, and there was final judicial determination that coverage existed under other policy; this court was not bound by that determination. Old Republic Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 128, 155-156, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 642

Liability insurer that undertook defense of insured contractor in third party actions should have been permitted to intervene on behalf of insured in action by co-insurers for rescission of their liability policies, when insured was barred by statute from defending itself and insurer would lose its ability to seek equitable contribution from co-insurers if default judgment of rescission were granted. Truck Ins. Exch. v. Superior Court (1997) 60 Cal. App. 4th 342, 346-350, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 255

Court's confirmation of good faith settlement between liability insurer and insured did not bar nonsettling co-insurers from asserting future claims for equitable contribution or indemnity against settling insurer. Rohr Indus., Inc. v. First State Ins. Co. (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 1480, 1487-1490, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 872

In declaratory relief action brought by public entity self-insurance pool against commercial excess insurer, court found that self-insurance pool was not "other insurance" subject to excess insurer's policy provision that its coverage would not apply until all other insurance was exhausted. Orange County Water Dist. v. Association of Cal. Water Agencies Joint Powers Ins. Auth. (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 772, 777-779, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 182

Excess liability insurer that contributed to settlement of third party action against insured without reserving any rights against insured did not waive its right to seek equitable indemnity from insured's other insurers on grounds of non-coverage. Mitchell, Silberberg & Knupp v. Yosemite Ins. Co. (1997) 58 Cal. App. 4th 389, 393-395, 67 Cal. Rptr. 2d 906

Excess carrier's ability to sue primary carrier for bad faith rests exclusively on subrogation principles, not on any independent duty of primary carrier to excess carrier; excess insurer cannot maintain bad faith suit on theory that it is third-party beneficiary of contract between insured and primary insurer. Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. v. Maryland Cas. Co. (1994) 21 Cal. App. 4th 1586, 1600-1601, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 762

In bad faith action between insurers based on primary insurer's rejection of settlement offer within policy limits, evidence that primary insurer engaged qualified legal counsel, financed exhaustive investigation, and carefully weighed settlement offers was sufficient to support judgment in its favor. Walbrook Ins. Co. v. Liberty Mut. Ins. Co. (1992) 5 Cal. App. 4th 1445, 1458-1459, 7 Cal. Rptr. 2d 513

Under terms of excess policy, insured was required to contribute its self-insured retention after it gave excess insurer permission to settle third-party action; insured was obligated to contribute to settlement despite its contention that, although it gave excess carrier permission to settle, it did not agree to settlement. Harbor Ins. Co. v. City of Ontario (1991) 231 Cal. App. 3d 927, 934-935, 282 Cal. Rptr. 701

Under umbrella policy providing that insurer has no duty to defend but has right to associate with underlying insurers for that purpose, and containing "no action" clause allowing insured to make claim of loss after insured's liability is established by final judgment after trial or by written agreement of insured, claimant, and excess carrier, primary insurer has right to enter into good-faith settlement of claim in amount that invades excess coverage without consent of excess insurer (subject to certain conditions); excess insurer waives rights under "no action" clause if it rejects reasonable settlement and at same time fails to offer to undertake defense. Diamond Heights Homeowners Ass'n v. National Am. Ins. Co. (1991) 227 Cal. App. 3d 563, 581-583, 277 Cal. Rptr. 906

Excess policy providing that coverage in event of "exhaustion or reduction" of underlying policy "by reason of losses paid thereunder" triggered on exhaustion ofunderlying insurance by payment only; excess insurer not liable for underlying or "first dollar" coverage on insolvency of primary insurer. Span, Inc. v. Associated Int'l Ins. Co. (1991) 227 Cal. App. 3d 463, 480, 277 Cal. Rptr. 828

Excess insurer that is on notice of primary insurer's insolvency has increased duty to inquire about its potential liability because ordinary presumption that primary carrier will provide experienced defense no longer applies. Span, Inc. v. Associated Int'l Ins. Co. (1991) 227 Cal. App. 3d 463, 483, 277 Cal. Rptr. 828

Excess carrier has no duty or right to participate in insured's defense absent policy language to the contract; in subrogation action by excess carrier against primary carrier based on primary carrier's bad faith refusal to settle, primary carrier was not entitled to raise affirmative defense of excess carrier's conduct because excess carrier had no duty to ascertain that primary carrier had fulfilled its duty to insured prior to exhaustion of primary limits. Continental Cas. Co. v. Royal Ins. Co. (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 111, 119, 268 Cal. Rptr. 193

Respective insurers of three defendants, who voluntarily made payments to plaintiff in settlement of underlying action and then obtained arbitration award apportioning responsibility among them, could not disturb arbitration ruling in subsequent declaratory relief action in which trial court found that none of their policies provided any coverage; doctrines of subrogation, contribution, and indemnification were inapplicable when parties voluntarily assumed obligations by making payments they had no positive duty to make. United Pac. Ins. Co. v. Hanover Ins. Co. (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 925, 936-943, 266 Cal. Rptr. 231

Ambiguities in primary policy construed to compel broadest coverage under that policy, without regard to effect on excess policy issued by another insurer, even if ultimate effect is insured's inability to obtain payment under either policy. United States Elevator Corp. v. Associated Int'l Ins. Co. (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 636, 646-649, 263 Cal. Rptr. 760 .

When carrier is expressly designated as excess insurer, neither insured nor primary carrier is entitled to expect that excess carrier would participate in defense costs beyond the express terms of its policy. Signal Co. v. Harbor Ins. Co. (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 359, 369, 165 Cal. Rptr. 799, 612 P.2d 889 ; Chubb/Pac. Indem. Group v. Insurance Co. of N. Am. (1987) 188 Cal. App. 3d 691, 697-698, 233 Cal. Rptr. 539

Reinsurance agreement concerning group policy of medical insurance, containing exclusion clause provided by successor insurer regarding insureds "eligible" for extension of benefits after discontinuance of policy, found ambiguous and inadequately defining basic terms of contract; summary judgment in favor of original insurer and against successor insurer improper on ground that several issues regarding administration of group plan remained to be determined. Stratton v. First Nat'l Life Ins. Co. (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 1071, 1091, 258 Cal. Rptr. 721

For a procedural guide which may be adapted for use in the prosecution or defense of the action, see Ch. 140, Contracts . For complaints alleging tortious breach of contract, see §§ 308.379, 308.380.

Proc. § 415.10*, by mail pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 415.30 (in which case two copies of the notice and acknowledgment of service will be prepared to be sent to the defendant with the complaint and summons and a postage prepaid return envelope), or by mail out of state pursuant to *Code Civ. For additional copies to be prepared in the case of multiple defendants, a discussion of the manner of service, and who may be served, as well as forms of summonses, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers .

[4] Pleading

An action on an insurance policy is an action on contract. The essential elements required to be pleaded in an action for damages for breach of contract are: (1) the contract; (2) plaintiff's performance or excuse for nonperformance; (3) defendant's breach; and (4) the resulting damages to plaintiff [Reichert v. General Ins. Co. (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 822, 830, 69 Cal. Rptr. 321, 442 P.2d 377] . In the case of an action on an insurance policy, an allegation of a loss covered by the contract must also be included, since it is only when a loss occurs that the duty to pay, as evidenced by the insurance contract, arises [see Blasingame v. Home Ins. Co. (1888) 75 Cal. 633, 635, 17 P. 925] .

It is also common to allege the insurer's capacity as a corporation, unincorporated association, or other, its authority to issue insurance policies of the class involved in the action, and, if venue is to be based on the location of defendant insurer's place of business, the county in California in which its principal place of business is situated [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 395.2, 395.5].

If the policy is in writing, as is normally the case, its execution may be pleaded by (1) pleading the policy in haec verba,

(2) attaching a copy as an exhibit and incorporating it by a reference, or (3) pleading its legal effect [see Evans v. Holly Corp. (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 1020, 1023, 93 Cal. Rptr. 712 (legal effect of policy alleged); see also Ch. 140, Contracts].

[5] Allegations

Paragraph 1 alleges defendant insurer's capacity as a California corporation (an insurer may be a foreign corporation or an unincorporated association instead of a domestic corporation), its authority to issue insurance of the class involved, and the location of its principal place of business in California.

Paragraph 2 alleges the contract--that is, the issuance of the policy by defendant for a consideration. (Because the policy in this case is alleged to be in writing, consideration is presumed [Civ. Code § 1614] and, therefore, need not be specifically alleged.) It also alleges that the policy covers a specific risk or loss. These allegations establish a duty on the part of the defendant to plaintiff. The loss, itself, is alleged in a later paragraph (Paragraph 4). The policy is attached asan exhibit to the complaint and incorporated in the pleading by reference. It is also permissible to plead the legal effect of the policy or the entire policy or relevant portions of it in haec verba without attaching it as an exhibit.

Paragraph 4, as already mentioned, alleges the occurrence of a loss covered by the policy, and hence a duty on the part of defendant to perform its obligations under the policy.

Paragraph 5 alleges plaintiff's performance of all conditions on plaintiff's part to be performed [see Code Civ. Proc. § 457]. For alternative allegations, see § 308.377.

Paragraph 6 alleges plaintiff's demand for performance by the defendant and defendant's refusal to perform, that is, defendant's breach of the contract.

Paragraph 7 is optional because it is for use only if the defendant's breach of the contract have been tortious. That is, if defendant breached its implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing [see § 308.379[3]]. If Paragraph 7 is used, Paragraph 9 will also be used. For allegations that may be adapted for incorporation as Paragraph 9, see §§ 308.379 and 308.380, Ch. 177, Damages , and Ch. 362, Mental Suffering and Emotional Distress . If the complaint shows that defendant has been guilty of malice, oppression, or fraud, optional Paragraph 10, alleging punitive or exemplary damages [see Civ. Code § 3294], will also be included.

Paragraph 8 alleges plaintiff's damages proximately caused by defendant's breach [see Civ. Code §§ 3300, 3302]--that is, plaintiff's loss of the policy benefit and interest on that amount.

The complaint also includes an allegation of plaintiff's insurable interest (Paragraph 3) [see Ins. Code §§ 281-286, 10110; Breedlove v. Norwich Union Fire Ins. Soc'y (1899) 124 Cal. 164, 168, 56 P. 770] .

The complaint concludes with a prayer and is verified. On the effect of verification, see § 308.370[7].

[6] Dating and Signing Complaint

There is no legal requirement that the complaint be dated, but this is nevertheless frequently done so that counsel may have a record of it. This is particularly helpful when the original and copies are sent to the court clerk by mail for filing; the retained office file copy will have the date on it that the complaint was executed and will allow counsel or his secretary to properly follow through if the conformed copies are not received back from the court within a reasonable time.

The complaint, of course, is a pleading [Code Civ. Proc. § 422.10] and must be signed by either the plaintiff or plaintiff's attorney [Code Civ. Proc. § 446]. Complaints must be signed by at least one attorney of record in the attorney's individual name, or, if the party is not represented by an attorney, by the party [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7]. Complaints must include the signer's address and telephone number, if any. An unsigned paper will be stricken unless omission of the signature is corrected promptly after being called to the attention of the attorney or party [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(a)].

[7] Verification

Although verification of this complaint is not required [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(a)], verification will require any answer to be verified in an unlimited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446]. Verification will also preclude the defendant from using a general denial in an unlimited civil case, and will preclude a general denial in a limited civil case if the action is a claim assigned to a third party for collection [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion, see Ch. 26, Answers .

[8] Variations in Caption

If the action is prosecuted by a plaintiff in a representative capacity or by a plaintiff by and through a guardian or guardian ad litem, or by a public or legal entity, the caption will be changed accordingly and the first paragraph of the complaint will allege the capacity of the plaintiff. For further discussion, see Ch. 20, Allegations Commonly Used , Ch. 61, Associations and Clubs , Ch. 108, Captions and Introductions , Ch. 160, Corporations: Capacity et seq., Ch. 181, Death and Survival Actions , Ch. 291, Guardians ad Litem , Ch. 364, Minors , and Ch. 440, Probate: Is Probate Necessary ? et seq.

[9] Venue and Jurisdiction

Venue of actions against corporations and associations is governed by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 395.2, 395.5. For further discussion, see Ch. 571, Venue .

The superior court has jurisdiction of the action, which is classified as an unlimited civil case unless the amount in controversy, exclusive of interest, is $25,000 or less, in which case it is classified as a limited civil case [Cal. Const. art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86].

In limited civil cases, the caption must identify the case as a limited civil case and must state whether the demand exceeds or does not exceed $10,000 [Code Civ. Proc. § 422.30(b); Gov. Code § 70613; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(9), (10)].

[10] Damages

The measure of damages for breach of contract is set forth in Civ. Code§§ 3300 and 3301 and interest is provided for in Civ. Code § 3287. The detriment[see Civ. Code § 3282] caused by the breach of an obligation to pay money only is deemed to be the amount due by the terms of the obligation with interest on it [Civ. Code § 3302].

If the breach is tortious, the measure of damages is set forth in Civ. Code § 3333 [see § 308.379].

No claim for punitive damages may state an amount sought regardless of the nature of the case or whether it is a limited civil case [Civ. Code § 3295(e)].

For discussion of and forms for requesting and stating the amount of damages sought if they are not stated in the complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 425.11, 425.115]; see Ch. 177, Damages, § 177.40 et seq., and Ch. 205, Defaults and Default Judgments .

[d] Splitting Cause of Action

Action against tortfeasor on subrogated claim by partial subrogee (insurer), which had paid insured to extent of policy limit for loss by fire resulting from tortfeasor's negligence, in which both tortfeasor and insured (on ground insured was an unwilling plaintiff) were named as defendants, where insured filed cross complaint against tortfeasor for full amount of damages sustained by him and tortfeasor, before cross complaint was filed, paid plaintiff full amount of its subrogated claim, as not constituting a splitting of a cause of action, but as preventing a splitting since (1) there was but a single action rather than vexatious multiple litigation, and (2) there was no earlier action at which claims of plaintiff and insured against tortfeasor could and should have been settled. Phillips v. Western Pac. R.R. Co. (1971) 22 Cal. App. 3d 441, 444-446, 99 Cal. Rptr. 451

§ 308.372 Allegation--Execution and Delivery of Binder by Defendant Insurer's Agent

[1] FORM Allegation--Execution and Delivery of Binder by Defendant Insurer's Agent

2. On or about _____ [date], in consideration of the payment of an annual premium of $_____ to be made by _____ [plaintiff or name of insured if other than plaintiff], defendant _____ [name of insurance company], by and through its duly authorized agent _____ [name], executed and delivered to _____ [plaintiff or name of insured] in _____ [city, county, and state] its _____ [binder or binding receipt or open-cover certificate or covering note or specify other type of temporary coverage], a copy of which is attached hereto as Exhibit A and made a part hereof, wherein defendant, insured _____ [plaintiff or name of insured] for the period from _____ [date], to _____ [date], against _____ [risk assumed by insurer, e.g., loss or damage by fire of the premises therein described], in the sum of $_____, payable to plaintiff. Defendant failed to deliver any policy to _____ [plaintiff or name of insured] [, and plaintiff is unaware of the provisions usually inserted in such policies, except as herein set forth]. Moreover, defendant did not terminate this application for insurance by rejecting the application and notifying plaintiff of such reject and by refunding the premium payment to plaintiff prior to the date of the loss covered under the policy as hereinafter alleged.

[2] Use of Form

The allegation in this form is for use in place of Paragraph 2 of the form in § 308.370.

[3] Binders

A binder, binding receipt, open-cover certificate, or covering note is a written memorandum which affords the insured temporary coverage until the policy is issued by the insurer. Such binders are frequently written by agents to give the insured coverage while the insurer investigates the risk.

Such binders often are ambiguous as to when the temporary coverage under the binder is terminated either by rejection of the application or the issuance of a permanent policy. Because of this ambiguity provisions in a binder which make issuance of a permanent policy subject to company approval of the application but which are silent as to how and when the temporary coverage immediately created on its execution may, or will, be otherwise effectively terminated if and when the insurer rejects the application give rise to a contract of insurance immediately on receipt of the application and payment of the premium. Any provision that the company must be satisfied that the insured was acceptable at the date of the application creates only a right to terminate the contract if the company becomes dissatisfied with the risk before a policy is issued [Ransom v. Penn Mut. Life Ins. Co. (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 420, 424, 274 P.2d 633] . If the insurer does decide to reject the application for insurance, the contract of insurance immediately created on the receipt of the application and payment of the premium is not terminated until (a) the insurer has actually rejected the application and by appropriate notice communicated such rejection to the insured and (b) refunded the premium payment to the insured [Smith v. Westland Life Ins. Co. (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 111, 121, 123 Cal. Rptr. 649, 539 P.2d 433 ; see Hodgson v. Banner Life Ins. Co. (2004) 124 Cal. App. 4th 1358, 1369, 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 907] .

Practicality dictates that a temporary insurance binder issued on an application for insurance cannot contain all the details and terms of the proposed insurance contract. The imposition of such a requirement would frustrate the beneficial purpose of providing temporary coverage pending consideration of the application and would necessitate the immediate issuance of an entire written policy. Hence, insurance binders are adequate if they indicate the subject matter, the coverage period, the rate, and the amount of the insurance. Such binders are governed by the terms, conditions, and exclusions customarily contained in the standard policy issued by the issuer of the binder and in standard insurance policies used by insurance companies in general for the same or essentially similar coverage. That is, the binder is construed as being subject to the terms and conditions of the policy to be issued or of the policy ordinarily issued by the company, or, if there is a standard policy in the jurisdiction, according to the terms and conditions of that policy, and it is presumed that the parties contemplated such a policy, containing such conditions and limitations [National Emblem Ins. Co. v. Rios (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 70, 76, 79 Cal. Rptr. 583] .

[5] Decisions

Rule that insurance policies are to be construed liberally in favor of assured and that any uncertainty or ambiguity in insurance contract is to be interpreted most strongly against insurer as applying with greater force to covering agreements. Victoria S.S. Co. v. Western Assurance Co. (1914) 167 Cal. 348, 353, 139 P. 807 (involving marine insurance)

Covering notes or binding slips omitting to specify premium rate for insurance as construed by courts as implying customary rates. Law v. Northern Assurance Co. (1913) 165 Cal. 394, 403, 132 P. 590

Ins. Code § 10115, which imposes coverage obligation whenever conditions for issuance of life insurance policy have been satisfied, but formalities of issuance and deliverance have not occurred, does not rest on "reasonable expectation" of parties, based on language of conditional receipt and acceptance of initial premium payment. Hodgson v. Banner Life Ins. Co. (2004) 124 Cal. App. 4th 1358, 1372-1373, 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 907 ; cf. Ransom v. Penn Mut. Life Ins. Co. (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 420, 425, 274 P.2d 633

Assigned risk insurer is not bound on ground of ostensible agency by representation made by producer of policy that policy was to be effective immediately rather than on date it was issued as specified by insurer since producer could not and did not say what particular insurer was bound and insurer to assume risk was to be designated by manager of assigned risk plan and not by producer of policy. *Interinsurance Exch. v. § 308.374 Allegation--Premium Paid During Grace Period

[1] FORM Allegation--Premium Paid During Grace Period

Page _____, paragraph _____, lines _____ of the policy, Exhibit A attached, provides that _____ [specify, e.g., a grace period of 31 days will be granted for the payment of each premium falling due after the first premium, during which grace period the policy shall continue in full force and effect]. _____ [Plaintiff or name of insured if other than plaintiff], on _____ [date], during the grace period, paid to defendant the sum of $_____, the full amount of the premium that fell due on _____ [date].

[2] Use of Form

The allegation in this form is for use in conjunction with Paragraph 2 of the form in § 308.370.

[3] Grace Period

Insurance policies frequently contain a provision granting an extension of a certain number of days after the due date of renewal premiums within which the premium can be paid without resulting in a lapse of coverage for failure to pay on or before the due date. Such periods are referred to as "grace periods" [see, e.g., Ins. Code §§ 10244(1) (funeral insurance contract), 10291.5(b)(12), 10350.3 (disability insurance policies)].

Payment of the renewal premium within the grace period is to be distinguished from a reinstatement of a policy lapsed for nonpayment of premium by acceptance of a late renewal premium [see § 308.375].

Page _____, paragraph _____, lines _____, of the policy, Exhibit A attached, provides that _____ [specify, e.g., if any renewal premium be not paid within the time granted the insured for payment, a subsequent acceptance of premium by the insurer or by any agent duly authorized by the insurer to accept such premium, without requiring in connection therewith an application for reinstatement, shall reinstate the policy]. _____ [Plaintiff or name of insured if other than plaintiff, failed to pay the premium due on _____ [date], and, by its terms, the policy lapsed on _____ [date], for nonpayment of premiums. On or about _____ [date], _____ [plaintiff or name of insured] tendered to defendant [a check in] the sum of $_____, which was the full amount of the premium then due, and defendant accepted the payment without requiring an application for reinstatement. [A copy of the canceled check is attached hereto as Exhibit B and made a part hereof.]

[2] Use of Form

The allegation in this form is for use in conjunction with Paragraph 2 of the form in § 308.370 if the loss occurred after application for reinstatement of the policy was made.

[3] Reinstatement of Policy

Insurance policies frequently contain provisions for their reinstatement after lapse for nonpayment of premium by the insurer's acceptance of a late payment of the premium [see, e.g., Ins. Code §§ 10334, 10350.4 (reinstatement of accident, sickness, and disability policies)].

[4] Renewal of Policy

To effect the renewal of an insurance policy, both an offer to renew and acceptance of the offer are required [Fujimoto v. Western Pioneer Ins. Co. (1978) 86 Cal. App. 3d 305, 313, 150 Cal. Rptr. 88] .

[5] Waiver of Late Payment

When the insured relies on waiver of prompt payment of the premium to impose liability on the insurer, that waiver must be pleaded or else the court may not consider if acceptance of a past due premium with knowledge that a loss was sustained during the period of default constitutes a waiver and restores the policy to its full effect, without interruption, from the beginning of the renewal period and not from the date of receipt of the payment [Fujimoto v. Western Pioneer Ins. Co. (1978) 86 Cal. App. 3d 305, 310].

Plaintiff [and the insured] performed all conditions of the policy on his/her/its/their part to be performed; up to the time of loss, as herein alleged, all premiums on the policy were fully paid; in accordance with the terms of the policy, written notice and _____ [proof or loss] of loss were furnished to defendant on or about _____ [date within time required by policy], [on a form furnished by the defendant].

§ 308.379 Complaint by Insured Against Insurance Company for Actual [Civ. Code § 3333] and Punitive [Civ. Code § 3294] Damages for Tortious Breach of Insurance Contract--General Form

[1] FORM Complaint by Insured Against Insurance Company for Actual [Civ. Code § 3333] and Punitive [Civ. Code § 3294] Damages for Tortious Breach of Insurance Contract--General Form

[Caption, introduction. See § 308.370.]

1. Defendant is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of _____ with its principal place of business in _____ County, California, and authorized to transact, and transacting, business in California as _____ [specify, e.g., an automobile liability] insurer [or other allegation of capacity and authority as appropriate].

2. At all times herein mentioned, plaintiff had in full force and effect a written _____ [specify, e.g., automobile] insurance policy, number _____, hereinafter referred to as "the policy," issued to plaintiff as the insured by defendant and covering _____ [specify, e.g., a _____ (year, make, and model) automobile, California license number _____, hereinafter referred to as "the automobile," of which plaintiff was the registered owner]. Implied in the policy was a covenant by the defendant that it would act in good faith and deal fairly with the insured and that it would do nothing to interfere with the rights of the insured to receive the benefits of the agreement.

3. The policy, among other things, provided coverage _____ [specify, e.g., for injuries and damages sustained by occupants of the automobile as a result of the negligence of uninsured motorists] as follows: _____ [set forth policy provision, e.g., "The Company will pay all sums which the insured or his legal representative shall be legally entitled to recover as damages from the owner or operator of an uninsured automobile because of bodily injury, sickness, or disease, including death resulting therefrom, hereinafter called 'bodily injury', sustained by the insured, caused by accident and arising out of the ownership, maintenance or use of such uninsured automobile, provided, for the purpose of this policy, determination as to whether the insured or such representative is legally entitled to recover such damages and, if so, the amount thereof shall be made by agreement between the insured or such representative and the Company or, if they fail to agree, by arbitration"]. The limit of liability under the _____ [specify, e.g., uninsured motorist] coverage was $_____ [specify, e.g., $15,000 for each person and $30,000 for each accident].

4. On or about _____ [date], _____ [specify occurrence of covered loss, e.g., near Grants, New Mexico, plaintiff was riding as an occupant in the automobile which was being operated by plaintiff's wife, _____ (name), when, without any fault on the part of plaintiff or his wife, who had at the time been married to each other for over 30 years, the automobile was negligently struck by an uninsured motorist which proximately resulted in the immediate death of plaintiff's wife. At the time of her death, plaintiff's wife was _____ (specify, e.g., 58) years of age and up to the time of her death had been working part time with earnings of approximately $_____ (specify, e.g., $100 per week)].

5. By the provisions of the policy defendant represented to plaintiff that if plaintiff complied with all the terms and conditions of the policy defendant would _____ [specify, e.g., pay to plaintiff the amount of damages up to the policy limit which he was "legally entitled to recover" from the uninsured motorist in the event of injury to or death of occupants in the automobile caused by the uninsured motorist]. Plaintiff duly complied with all the terms and conditions of the policy on his part to be performed and _____ [specify, e.g., was "legally entitled to recover" damages in excess of $_____ (specify, e.g., $100,000) from the uninsured motorist for the wrongful death of his wife. Consequently, plaintiff became entitled to receive from defendant payment in the amount of $15,000, the policy limit, for the death of his wife as hereinabove alleged].

[Allege defendant's wrongful conduct, of which the following Paragraphs 6-10 are illustrative.]

6. Defendant's above-stated representation in its policy was false and fraudulent in that defendant never intended _____ [specify, e.g., to pay a sum equal to its policy limit in settlement of a claim under the uninsured motorist provision of the policy where the insured was "legally entitled to recover" at least that amount from the uninsured motorist, but instead had a fixed and firm policy of contesting all uninsured motorist claims where it could not negotiate a settlement for a sum of money which was substantially less than the policy limit]. At the time defendant entered into the insurance contract with plaintiff, defendant willfully concealed the above facts, all for the purpose of defrauding and deceiving plaintiff and inducing him to purchase the policy.

7. Plaintiff, at the time the representation was made, believed it to be true and, in reliance on it, was induced to, and did, enter into the insurance contract with defendant; had plaintiff known the true facts, he would not have purchased the policy.

8. At all times herein material, defendant knew that _____ [specify, e.g., the amount plaintiff was "legally entitled to recover" as damages from the uninsured motorist for the wrongful death of his wife exceeded the sum of $15,000 and that defendant was therefore obligated to pay plaintiff the full $15,000].

9. Notwithstanding defendant's knowledge of its obligation _____ [specify, e.g., to pay plaintiff the full $15,000] it _____ [specify, e.g., admitted to plaintiff that it was liable under the uninsured motorist provision of thepolicy but offered plaintiff only the sum of $5,000. Plaintiff rejected this offer and demanded payment of the full $15,000].

10. For the sole purposes of _____ [specify, e.g., compelling plaintiff to accept a lesser sum in settlement of his claim or, if he persisted in seeking more, to incur substantial detriment, delay, and additional expenditures in pursuing enforcement of his claim, all during which time defendant would retain use of the money], defendant, in breach of its covenant of good faith and fair dealing, intentionally, maliciously, and oppressively refused and failed to _____ [specify, e.g., pay plaintiff the $15,000] in accordance with the terms of the policy.

11. As a direct and proximate result of defendant's wrongful conduct as herein alleged, plaintiff _____ [specify, e.g., was compelled to present his claim in arbitration and in connection therewith to incur attorney's fees in the sum of $_____ (specify, e.g., $2,000) and costs in the sum of $_____ (specify, e.g., $40). At the hearing before the arbitrator defendant stipulated to all fundamental proofs and admitted all of plaintiff's contentions except the issue of damages. Consequently, the only issue to be decided by the arbitrator was the amount of damages to be awarded plaintiff for the death of his wife. The arbitrator awarded plaintiff the full $15,000, the policy limit. A copy of the arbitrator's decision and a copy of his award are attached hereto as Exhibits A and B, respectively, and made a part hereof].

[If defendant has fully paid the policy limit of coverage, specifically allege nature and extent of economic damages caused by interim breach, as illustrated in Paragraph 12.]

12. As a direct and proximate result of defendant's unreasonable delay in paying policy benefits until _____ [date], _____ [specify, e.g., plaintiff lacked sufficient funds to pay his mortgage and lost his home of 15 years in foreclosure proceedings on _____ (date)].

[CONTINUE]

13. As a further direct and proximate result of defendant's wrongful conduct as herein alleged, plaintiff sustained emotional and mental distress and anguish, embarrassment, mortification, humiliation, and indignity, all to his general damage in the additional sum of $_____ [specify, e.g., $20,000].[Set forth any additional special or general damages in separately numbered paragraphs.]

[14. In committing the acts described in this complaint, defendant acted in conscious disregard of the rights of plaintiff and was guilty of _____ [malice and/or oppression and/or fraud] in that _____ [specify facts constituting malice, oppression, or fraud]. The conduct of defendant warrants an assessment of punitive damages in an amount appropriate to punish defendant and deter others from engaging in similar wrongful conduct.]

[Set forth prayer. The following is based on the illustrative fact situation alleged above.]

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendant as follows:

1. For the sum of $_____ [specify, e.g., $2,000] as attorney's fees, plus legal costs in the sum of $_____ [specify, e.g., $40], incurred in the handling of the claim before the arbitrator;

2. For interest at the legal rate on the sum of $_____ [specify, e.g., $15,000] from the date it should have been paid to _____ [date], the date it was finally paid;

3. For general damages for mental suffering and emotional distress;

[4. Allege amount of additional special damages, if any;]

[5. For exemplary and punitive damages;]

6. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

7. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

This complaint is for use in an action by an insured against his or her insurer for damages for tortious breach of contract. The illustrative fact situation is adapted from the one that gave rise to the contempt proceeding reported in In re Bongfeldt (1971) 22 Cal. App. 3d 465, 99 Cal. Rptr. 428 . For a discussion of the essential allegations of the complaint, the number of copies to prepare, and verification, see § 308.370. For a form of complaint alleging the insurer's fraud and intentional infliction of mental distress, see § 308.380. For complaints against liability insurers for damages for breach of the duty to defend or to settle, see §§ 308.462 and 308.463.

[3] Covenant of Good Faith

There is an implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing in every contract, including insurance policies, that neither party will do anything that will injure the right of the other to receive the benefits of the agreement. Hence, an insurer has a duty to act in good faith and fairly in handling the claim of an insured, namely, a duty not to withhold unreasonably payments due under a policy. Thatresponsibility is not the requirement mandated by the terms of the policy, but rather an obligation imposed by law under which the insurer must act fairly and in good faith in discharging its contractual responsibilities. An insurer's refusal, without proper cause, to compensate its insured for a loss covered by the policy may give rise to a cause of action in tort for breach of the implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing [Gruenberg v. Aetna Ins. Co. (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 566, 563-574, 108 Cal. Rptr. 480, 510 P.2d 1032 (fire policy); Mustachio v. Ohio Farmers Ins. Co. (1975) 44 Cal. App. 3d 358, 363, 118 Cal. Rptr. 581 (same); see also Richardson v. Employers Liab. Assurance Corp. (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 232, 239, 102 Cal. Rptr. 547 , disapproved on other grounds, Gruenberg v. Aetna Ins. Co. (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 566, 108 Cal. Rptr. 480, 510 P.2d 1032 (indemnity under uninsured motorist provision of automobile liability policy); Fletcher v. Western Nat'l Life Ins. Co. (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 376, 401-402, 89 Cal. Rptr. 78 (disability policy)].

The insurer's duty to act in good faith and fairly is unconditional and independent of the performance of the insured's contractual obligations. It is absolute [Gruenberg v. Aetna Ins. Co. (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 566, 578, 108 Cal. Rptr. 480, 510 P.2d 1032 ; see also Cain v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (1975) 47 Cal. App. 3d 783, 797, 121 Cal. Rptr. 200] .

For further discussion, see § 308.24.

[5] When Cause of Action Arises

The covenant of good faith and fair dealing does not arise prior to the existence of a contractual relationship between the contracting parties. Consequently, for example, an insurer's precontractual conduct in evaluating the health of an applicant for insurance is not conduct that will support a cause of action for bad faith [Hess v. Transamerica Occidental Life Ins. Co. (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 941, 945, 235 Cal. Rptr. 715] .

If a contractual relationship does exist between the insurer and insured, and a complaint for bad faith is filed prior to the insurer's denial of the claim, the defect in the cause of action is considered to be procedural in nature, and the pleading is not subject to dismissal as long as the insurer's conduct that was anticipated by the plaintiff occurred prior to litigation of the case [Virgin v. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 1372, 1375-1377, 267 Cal. Rptr. 704] .

[6] Preemption by Federal Law

[a] ERISA

An action brought under state law, asserting improper processing of a claim for benefits under an employee benefit plan subject to the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 [29 U.S.C.S. § 1001 et seq.] is preempted by federal law [Pilot Life Ins. Co. v. Dedeaux (1987) 481 U.S. 41, 57, 107 S. Ct. 1549, 95 L. Ed. 2d 39] . However, under ERISA's "insurance saving clause," laws that "regulate insurance" are saved from preemption [29 U.S.C.S. § 1144(b)(2)(A)]. In an action regarding a disability employee benefit plan under a group insurance policy, the United States Supreme Court held that the applicable state common law of bad faith did not "regulate insurance" for purposes of the exemption under 29 U.S.C.S. § 1144(b)(2)(A), because, even though the state law was associated with the insurance industry, the law developed from general principles of tort and contract law available in any breach of contract case in that state [Pilot Life Ins. Co. v. Dedeaux (1987) 481 U.S. 41, 50-51, 107 S. Ct. 1549, 95 L. Ed. 2d 39] . For a state law to be deemed a "law ... [that] regulates insurance" under 29 U.S.C.S. § 1144(b)(2)(A), it must satisfy two requirements: (1) it must be specifically directed toward entities engaged in insurance; and (2) it must substantially affect the risk pooling arrangement between the insurer and the insured [Kentucky Ass'n of Health Plans, Inc. v. Miller (2003) 538 U.S. 329, 341-342, 123 S. Ct. 1471, 155 L. Ed. 2d 468 (Kentucky "Any Willing Provider" statutes, which prohibit health insurers from discriminating against any willing provider who is located within geographic coverage area of health benefit, fell within purview of 29 U.S.C.S. § 1144(b)(2)(A) and were not preempted by ERISA as asserted by HMOs)].

Although the United States Supreme Court has not decided the issue, other courts have held that statutory bad faith actions are also preempted by ERISA, the savings clause notwithstanding [Kanne v. Connecticut Gen. Life Ins. Co. (9th Cir. 1988) 867 F.2d 489, 493-494 ; Commercial Life Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1988) 47 Cal. 3d 473, 483-485, 253 Cal. Rptr. 682, 764 P.2d 1059] . Moreover, both Pilot Life and Commercial Life are fully retroactive in effect [Faria v. Northwestern Nat'l Life Ins. Co. (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 1129, 1134, 265 Cal. Rptr. 309] . In any event, the California Supreme Court has abrogated prospectively the right of a third-party claimant to sue under Ins. Code § 790.03(h), and held that no private cause of action was intended by the enactment of the Unfair Claims Settlement Practices Act (Ins. Code § 790 et seq.) [Moradi-Shalal v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Cos. (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 287, 297-305, 250 Cal. Rptr. 116, 758 P.2d 58 , overturning Royal Globe Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1979) 23 Cal. 3d 880, 885-888, 153 Cal. Rptr. 842, 592 P.2d 329 prospectively; see § 308.126]. Absent the enactment of legislation to the contrary, elimination of first-party standing under the analysis of Moradi-Shalal will leave only a common-law bad faith remedy in California, which will be subject to preemption by ERISA under the appropriate circumstances.

Moreover, state common law claims asserting the improper processing of a claim for benefits under an ERISA-regulated employee benefit plan are not only preempted by ERISA, but are also so completely displaced by ERISA's civil enforcement provision under 29 U.S.C.S. § 1132(a)(1)(B) that complaints pur porting to plead those common law causes of action are removable to federal court, even if only the defenses thereto arise under federal law [Metropolitan Life Ins. Co. v. Taylor (1987) 481 U.S. 58, 63-67, 107 S. Ct. 1542, 95 L. Ed. 2d 55 (suit was necessarily federal in character pursuant to congressional intent in enacting ERISA civil enforcement provisions)].

[b] Federal Labor Laws

The federal Labor-Management Relations Act (29 U.S.C.S. § 141 et seq.) may preempt state bad faith actions that arise from a collective bargaining agreement [see Allis-Chalmers Corp. v. Lueck (1985) 471 U.S. 202, 208-213, 105 S. Ct.

1904, 85 L. Ed. 2d 206] . When resolution of a state law claim is substantially dependent on analysis of the terms of an agreement in a labor contract, preemption of a bad faith action is required to preserve the central role of arbitration in labor-management relations and to prevent parties from sidestepping grievance procedures by bringing tort actions in state court [Allis-Chalmers Corp. v. Lueck (1985) 471 U.S. 202, 215-220, 105 S. Ct. 1904, 85 L. Ed. 2d 206] .

[c] Other Federal Laws

The Federal Employee Health Benefits Act (5 U.S.C.S. § 8901 et seq.) preempts an insured's state-law bad faith claims, pursuant to its preemption clause under 5 U.S.C.S. § 8902(m)(1), if the state law claims invariably expand the insurer's obligations under the terms of the federal plan, and are therefore inconsistent with it [Hayes v. Prudential Ins. Co. of Am. (9th Cir. 1987) 819 F.2d 921, 925-926 ; Hartenstine v. Superior Court (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 206, 217, 241 Cal. Rptr. 756] .

[7] Affirmative Defense of Comparative Negligence

A court of appeal has held that the affirmative defense of comparative negligence is available to an insurer in a bad faith action [Patrick v. Maryland Cas. Co. (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 1566, 1575, 267 Cal. Rptr. 24] . In that case, the insurer was held entitled to a jury instruction regarding comparative negligence principles in a bad faith action arising from the insurer's delay of benefit payments, in which the insured sought to recover physical injury damages that he alleged were proximately caused by the delay. The insurer alleged that the insured's negligent conduct in falling off the roof of his house while attempting to make the repairs entitled it to a comparative negligence instruction under Li v. Yellow Cab Co. (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 804, 119 Cal. Rptr. 858, 532 P.2d 1226 , and the court of appeal agreed [Patrick v. Maryland Cas. Co. (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 1566, 1571-1575, 267 Cal. Rptr. 24] . However, counsel should note that it is not clear that damages other than for physical injuries should be reduced, if they were not affected by the plaintiff's negligence [cf. Franklin v. Gibson (1982) 138 Cal. App. 3d 340, 343-344, 188 Cal. Rptr. 23 (raising issue of apportionment of plaintiff's fault among severable elements of damage when that fault did not contribute to all injuries)].

In Kransco v. American Empire Surplus Lines Ins. Co. (2000) 23 Cal. 4th 390, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 151, 2 P.3d 1 , the California Supreme Court discussed Patrick in the context of a case in which it held that an insurer may not raise an affirmative defense of comparative bad faith in a negligence action [Kransco v. American Empire Surplus Lines Ins. Co. (2000) 23 Cal. 4th 390, 394, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 151, 2 P.3d 1 , see § 308.110 et seq.]. In Kransco, the insurer appealed a bad faith judgment against it in a case in which the insurer had raised both "comparative bad faith," and comparative negligence as affirmative defenses against the insured. Review was granted on the issue of comparative bad faith, but the Court also discussed the issue of comparative negligence in the context of this case, a third-party liability case. The Court noted that the insurer based this defense on Patrick. The Court emphasized that it did not grant review on the propriety of the comparative negligence instructions given at trial and accordingly did not address that issue in its opinion. It did however, discuss Patrick, noting that the extension of comparative negligence principles to first party insurance bad faith actions in Patrick was inapposite to the third party insurance bad faith action before it, which was factually distinguishable. The Court stated, however, that Patrick does not shield a third party insurer from full responsibility for its bad faith failure to settle a case, even if the insured's litigation misconduct or mishandling of the claim inflated the size of the verdict, although evidence of misconduct may support contract defenses, cross-claims, or separate causes of action for breach of the terms of the insurance contract that are otherwise available to the insurer [Kransco v. American Empire Surplus Lines Ins. Co. (2000) 23 Cal. 4th 390, 412, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 151, 2 P.3d 1] .

[8] Damages

A breach of the covenant of good faith and fair dealing by the insured sounds in both contract and tort [Johansen v. California State Auto. Ass'n Inter-Ins. Bureau (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 9, 18, 123 Cal. Rptr. 288 ; see also Gruenberg v. Aetna Ins. Co. (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 566, 575, 108 Cal. Rptr. 480, 510 P.2d 1032] . The insured may recover damages for all detriment resulting from the breach, including mental distress [Silberg v. California Life Ins. Co. (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 452, 561-561, 113 Cal. Rptr. 711, 521 P.2d 1103 ; Jarchow v. Transamerica Title Ins. Co. (1975) 48 Cal. App. 3d 917, 940, 122 Cal. Rptr. 470 ; Civ. Code § 3333] and, in a proper case, may recover punitive damages under Civ. Code § 3294 as well [Cain v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (1975) 47 Cal. App. 3d 783, 793, 121 Cal. Rptr. 200] . Attorney's fees reasonably incurred in compelling an insurer to pay benefits wrongfully withheld, including fees incurred in bringing breach of contract action against the insurer, are recoverable as damages in a separate action in tort against the insurer for breach of the covenant of good faith. The attorney'sfees incurred in bringing the tort action itself, however, are not recoverable [Brandt v. Superior Court (1985) 37 Cal. 3d 813, 819-820, 210 Cal. Rptr. 211, 693 P.2d 796] . Furthermore, if contingent fees are involved, the trier of fact must determine the percentage of the legal fees paid to the attorney that reflects the work attributable to obtaining the contract recovery. No portion of legal fees attributable to a punitive damages award can be recovered as Brandt fees [Cassim v. Allstate Ins. Co. (2004) 33 Cal. 4th 780, 811-812, 16 Cal. Rptr. 3d 374, 94 P.3d 513] .

[9] Mental Suffering

Mental suffering constitutes an aggravation of damages when it naturally ensues from the act complained of. Hence, in an action by an insured against the insurer for damages for breach of the duty of good faith and fair dealing, it is not essential to plaintiff's claim for damages for emotional distress that the insured allege, as is required in an action for damages based on the independent tort of intentional infliction of emotional distress, "extreme" and "outrageous" conduct by the defendant [see Restatement (Second) of Torts § 46], but, rather, it is sufficient that the insured allege, in addition to mental distress, facts showing that the insured has suffered substantial economic losses as a result of defendant's conduct, apart from the mental distress [Gruenberg v. Aetna Ins. Co. (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 566, 579-580, 108 Cal. Rptr. 480, 510 P.2d 1032 ; see Frazier v. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co. (1985) 169 Cal. App. 3d 90, 107-108, 214 Cal. Rptr. 883] . The losses sustained need not be compensable, however. The courts may adjudicate negligence claims for mental distress when sufficient guarantees of genuineness are found in the facts of the case--for example, when the plaintiff has suffered substantial damage apart from the alleged emotional injury [Jarchow v. Transamerica Title Ins. Co. (1975) 48 Cal. App. 3d 917, 937, 122 Cal. Rptr. 470 (affirming judgment for four plaintiffs for $50,000 each for emotional distress where plaintiffs' financial and property interests had been damaged in the amount of $7,270 ($170 for loss of use of portion of land subject to recorded but unreported easement and $7,100 attorney's fees in action to quiet title against easement) which sum was also awarded to plaintiffs in the judgment)].

In customary bad faith cases, the essence of the emotional distress suffered usually is anxiety arising from financial deprivation caused by the nonpayment of an insurance claim [Blake v. Aetna Life Ins. Co. (1979) 99 Cal. App. 3d 901, 924-925, 160 Cal. Rptr. 528] . However, a plaintiff who meets the threshold requirement of showing economic loss may recover damages for emotional distress caused by the insurer's bad faith without showing any causal link between the economic loss and emotional distress [Clayton v. United Servs. Auto. Ass'n (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 1158, 1160-1162, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 419] .

[10] Decisions

[a] Arbitration

Arbitrator's decision on insured's right to uninsured motorist coverage as not precluding subsequent civil action by insured against insurer based on breach of covenant of good faith; theories of res judicata and collateral estoppel as not applicable because issues in arbitration not identical to issues in civil action. Corral v. State Farm Mut. Auto Ins. Co. (1979) 92 Cal. App. 3d 1004, 1009-1014, 155 Cal. Rptr. 342 ; contra Rios v. Allstate Ins. Co. (1977) 68 Cal. App. 3d 811, 818-819, 137 Cal. Rptr. 441

[b] Attorney's Fees

In bad faith action against insurer, attorney's fees as improperly awarded with respect to legal services attributable to any portion of plaintiff's recovery which exceeded amount due under policy. Dinkins v. American Nat'l Ins. Co. (1979) 92 Cal. App. 3d 222, 234, 154 Cal. Rptr. 775

[c] Covenant of Good Faith

Insurer's course of conduct, designed to mislead insured into forfeiting contractual right to impartial review of claim denial, constitutes a breach of covenant of good faith and fair dealing; judgment on directed verdict for plaintiff on that issue is proper. Sarchett v. Blue Shield of Cal. (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 1, 13-15, 233 Cal. Rptr. 76, 729 P.2d 267

Insurer did not commit bad faith by refusing policy-limits settlement offer that included release of only one of its three insureds; insurer may, within boundaries of good faith, reject settlement offer that does not include a complete release of all its insureds. Strauss v. Farmers Ins. Exch. (1004) 26 Cal. App. 4th 1017, 1021-1022, 31 Cal. Rptr. 2d 811 ; Heredia v. Farmers Ins. Exch. (1991) 228 Cal. App. 3d 1345, 1355, 279 Cal. Rptr. 511 ; see also Lehto v. Allstate Ins. Co (1994) 31 Cal. App. 4th 60, 73-74, 36 Cal. Rptr. 2d 814 (rejecting argument that insurer has a duty to accept such a settlement when it would not increase potential liability of remaining insured, by crediting policy-limits settlement against any recovery ultimately obtained against remaining insured)

Ultimate test of liability in first-party bad faith action is whether refusal to pay policy benefits was unreasonable; bad faith implies unfair dealing rather than mistaken judgment. Congleton v. National Union Fire Ins. Co. (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 51, 59, 234 Cal. Rptr. 218

When alleged bad faith conduct consists of insurer's interpretation of its ambiguous policy to exclude coverage, that interpretation is not conclusive evidence of bad faith unless inherently unreasonable. Congleton v. National Union Fire Ins. Co. (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 51, 59, 234 Cal. Rptr. 218

In general, insured is unable to base bad faith action on nonrenewal of policy, even if coverage dispute exists between insurer and insured over prior claim, because unless policy provides otherwise, insurer has no legal duty to renew insurance policy when its term has expired. Travelers Ins. Co. v. Lesher (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 169, 194, 231 Cal. Rptr. 791 , overruled on other grounds, Buss v. Superior Court (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 35, 50, 65 Cal Rptr. 2d 366, 939 P.2d 766)

In bad faith action in which insurer had actual and constructive notice of insured's intention to pursue rights against third party, insurer has fiduciary duty not to interfere with those rights; insurer's third-party settlement and inducement of dismissal, precluding insured's claim against third party, is actionable, even though insurer had no express duty under policy to file counterclaim or to provide legal advice, and despite fact that insured had independent attorney. Barney v. Aetna Cas. & Sur. Co. (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 966, 974-981, 230 Cal. Rptr. 215

Common law bad faith cause of action embodies the same factors as statutory cause of action under Ins. Code § 790.03(h), because statute is merely codification of tortious breach of implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing as applied to insurance. California State Auto. Ass'n Inter-Ins. Bureau v. Superior Court (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 1428, 1432 n. 5, 229 Cal. Rptr. 409 ; but see Moradi-Shalal v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Cos. (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 287, 297-305, 250 Cal. Rptr. 116, 758 P.2d 58 (prospectively overruling Royal Globe Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1979) 23 Cal. 3d 880, 885-888, 153 Cal. Rptr. 842, 592 P.2d 329 , which allowed private statutory third-party standing)

Insured's cross complaint for breach of good faith and fair dealing is properly filed in action by insurer for declaratory relief regarding rights to coverage under policy; issues of coverage, liability, and damages as not requiring determination prior to filing of insured's cross complaint. California State Auto. Ass'n Inter-Ins. Bureau v. Superior

Court (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 1428, 1431-1433, 229 Cal. Rptr. 409

Health insurer as breaching its duty of good faith and fair dealing by failing to advise insureds of availability of arbitration, thereby waiving insurer's right to compel arbitration. Davis v. Blue Cross of N. Cal. (1979) 25 Cal. 3d 418, 431, 158 Cal. Rptr. 828, 600 P.2d 1060

Substantial evidence as present that insurer breached covenant of good faith and fair dealing when it rejected insured's offer that insurer pay $10,000 of $15,000 under uninsured motorist policy provision, reserving $5,000 for future arbitration as offset for amount already paid under medical payment provisions of policy, where the offer detailed sufficient evidence to show that uninsured motorist was negligent to some extent and that damages suffered by insured greatly exceeded $10,000. Neal v. Farmers Ins. Exch. (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 910, 921

Plaintiff's counsel's erroneous reference to value of injuries suffered by plaintiff in argument before jury respecting amount of compensatory damages to be awarded for breach of covenant of good faith and fair dealing based on insured's failure to accept reasonable offer of settlement under uninsured motorist provision as not prejudicial where extent and severity of plaintiff's injuries were relevant to award of punitive damages and court had clearly instructed jury to ignore value of plaintiff's injuries as element of compensatory damages. Neal v. Farmers Ins. Exch. (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 910, 925, 148 Cal. Rptr. 389, 582 P.2d 980

Covenant of good faith and fair dealing that neither party will do anything that will injure right of other to receive benefits of agreement as implied in every contract, including insurance policies. Johansen v. California State Auto. Ass'n Inter-Ins. Bureau (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 9, 14, 123 Cal. Rptr. 288, 538 P.2d 744 ; Gruenberg v. Aetna Ins. Co. (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 566, 575, 108 Cal. Rptr. 480, 510 P.2d 1032 ; Gribaldo, Jacobs, Jones & Assocs. v. Agrippina Versicherunges A.G. (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 434, 447, 91 Cal. Rptr. 6, 476 P.2d 406 ; Comunale v. Traders & Gen. Ins. Co. (1958) 50 Cal. 2d 654, 658, 328 P.2d 198

Scope of insurer's duty to deal fairly with its insured as prescribed by law as not subject to being delineated entirely by customs of insurance industry. Silberg v. California Life Ins. Co. (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 452, 462, 113 Cal. Rptr. 711, 521 P.2d 1103

Insurer as breaching covenant of good faith and fair dealing by its failure to make payments under policy providing for payment of costs of hospital care and surgeon's fees up to maximum amount stated on ground that loss was excluded from policy where policy was ambiguous as to whether or not loss was excluded, and, therefore, as liable to insured for physical and mental distress proximately caused by its conduct. Silberg v. California Life Ins. Co. (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 452, 460, 113 Cal. Rptr. 711, 521 P.2d 1103

Violation of insurer's duty implied in covenant of good faith and fair dealing as sounding in tort and insured as permitted to recover for all detriment resulting from violation, including mental distress. Silberg v. California Life Ins. Co. (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 452, 460-461, 113 Cal. Rptr. 711, 521 P.2d 1103

Insurer that unreasonably and in bad faith withholds payment of claim of its insured as subject to liability in tort; sufficiency of plaintiff's claim for damages for emotional distress; rules governing actions for independent tort of intentional infliction of mental distress as inapplicable where mental distress results from substantive invasion of property interests. Gruenberg v. Aetna Ins. Co. (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 566, 575-581, 108 Cal. Rptr. 480, 510 P.2d 1032

Bad faith as implying unfair dealing rather than mistaken judgment; implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing as mutual, running from insured to insurer as well as vice versa. California Shoppers, Inc. v. Royal Globe Ins. Co. (1985) 175 Cal. App. 3d 1, 55, 221 Cal. Rptr. 171 (insurer not liable for breach of implied covenant when mistake regarding identity of party claiming policy benefits was reasonable and contributed to by insured)

Implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing as not extended beyond contract terms. Gibson v. Government Employees Ins. Co. (1984) 162 Cal. App. 3d 441, 446-452, 208 Cal. Rptr. 511 (insurer has no duty to advise insured of availability of particular kind of insurance or of coverage inadequacies obvious to reasonable person)

Insurer as not necessarily excused from duty of good faith when item of information is omitted from claim form; if such omission exists, insurer as having duty, in some circumstances, of conducting independent investigation of insured's claim for benefits; bad faith as not precluded simply because insurer unduly delays payment of benefits rather than denying them outright. McCormick v. Sentinel Life Ins. Co. (1984) 153 Cal. App. 3d 1030, 1036, 200 Cal. Rptr. 732

Evidence regarding handling of past claims as admissible against insurer in bad faith action to prove pattern of unfair claims practices when antecedent practice is substantially similar to practice in present case; past claims as not needing to beidentical if differences immaterial to purpose for which evidence offered. Moore v. American United Life Ins. Co. (1984) 150 Cal. App. 3d 610, 625-626, 197 Cal. Rptr. 878

In certain situations, to be determined as question of fact, insurer's failure to properly investigate insured's legitimate claim as giving rise to liability for breach of implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing; however, duty to investigate as not arising unless and until good faith effort by insured to comply with claims procedure is made. Paulfrey v. Blue Chip Stamps (1983) 150 Cal. App. 3d 187, 195-196, 197 Cal. Rptr. 501

Insurance company which has no defense to claim for recovery under fire insurance policy as having no business threatening to retire its file if insured does not accept its first offer; to intimate to insured that he is suspected of arson when any basis for such a charge has been eliminated by only investigator employed by insurer to look into matter as violating every principle of good faith and fair dealing. Mustachio v. Ohio Farmers Ins. Co. (1975) 44 Cal. App. 3d 358, 362, 118 Cal. Rptr. 581

Insurer which deliberately breaches its obligation to insured as not permitted to profit thereby, whether at expense of insured or of another insurer which faithfully discharges its obligation. Smith v. Travelers Indem. Co. (1973) 32 Cal. App. 3d 1010, 1019, 108 Cal. Rptr. 643

Bad faith of plaintiff's disability insurer in maliciously trying to cause plaintiff to surrender his policy or disadvantageously set tle nonexistent dispute with it as essentially tortious and as basis for action for damages for intentional infliction of emotional distress and for tortious interference with protected property right of insured for which damages may be recovered to compensate for all detriment proximately resulting therefrom, including economic loss as well as emotional distress resulting from conduct or from economic losses caused by insurer's conduct, and in proper case, punitive damages. Fletcher v. Western Nat'l Life Ins. Co. (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 376, 401-402, 89 Cal. Rptr. 78

Implied-in-law duty of good faith and fair dealing as imposing on disability insurer duty not to threaten to withhold or actually withhold payments, maliciously and without probable cause, for purpose of injuring insured by depriving him of benefits of policy; violation of that duty as sounding in tort notwithstanding that it also constitutes breach of contract. Fletcher v. Western Nat'l Life Ins. Co. (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 376, 401, 89 Cal. Rptr. 78 (nevertheless reversing judgment for plaintiff because of misconduct of plaintiff's counsel and prejudicially erroneous jury instruction, but holding that punitive damages in such case are proper)

In contingent fee context, Brandt fees are determined by calculating percentage of legal fees paid to attorney that reflects work attributable to obtaining contract recovery; no portion of legal fees attributable to punitive damages award can be recovered as Brandt fees. Cassim v. Allstate Ins. Co. (2004) 33 Cal. 4th 780, 811-812, 16 Cal. Rptr. 3d 374

California Life Ins. Co. (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 452, 461, 113 Cal. Rptr. 711, 521 P.2d 1103*

American United Life Ins. Co. (1984) 150 Cal. App. 3d 610, 637, 197 Cal. Rptr. 878*

Net income for purposes of determining punitive damages as including dividends, but excluding federal income taxes. Moore v. American United Life Ins. Co. (1984) 150 Cal. App. 3d 610, 637, 197 Cal. Rptr. 878

In action by deceased's wife against insurance company for damages for emotional distress for defendant's bad faith failure to pay accidental death benefits evidence as not supporting jury's award of damages where wife testifies that no financial hardship resulted from nonpayment and physical symptoms she suffered were caused by outrage that insurance company thought husband's death was caused by suicide since in customary bad faith cases, essence of emotional distress is anxiety arising from financial deprivation caused by claim's nonpayment. Blake v. Aetna Life Ins. Co. (1979) 99 Cal. App. 3d 901, 924-925, 160 Cal. Rptr. 528 ; but see Clayton v. United Servs. Auto. Ass'n (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 1158, 1160-1162, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 419 (rejecting Blake v. Aetna Life Insurance Co.; plaintiff who meets threshold requirement of showing economic loss may recover damages for emotional distress caused by insurer's bad faith without showing any causal link between economic loss and emotional distress)

Title insurance company which insures buyer of real property against liens and encumbrances of record and negligently fails to discover or disclose recorded lien or encumbrance or fails to exclude a known recorded lien or encumbrance from coverage, and, on being notified of existence of recorded lien or encumbrance unjustifiably refuses to take any legal action to clear title or eliminate cloud, as liable to insured in compensatory damages for any emotional distress which results. Jarchow v. Transamerica Title Ins. Co. (1975) 48 Cal. App. 3d 917, 926, 122 Cal. Rptr. 470 (affirming judgment for four plaintiffs and against insurer for $200,000 in emotional distress)

[e] Evidence

In common-law bad faith action by insured, defendant's responsive pleading, filed after payment of uninsured motorists benefits, as irrelevant to prove that defendant acted in bad faith when it initially denied claim; admission of that evidence resulting in jury verdict for plaintiff as requiring reversal. Nies v. National Auto. & Cas. Ins. Co. (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 1192, 1200-1202, 245 Cal. Rptr. 518

[f] Litigation Tactics

"Defensive pleading," including assertion of affirmative defenses, in insurance bad faith action is communication protected by absolute litigation privilege of Civ. Code § 47(b), and as such is precluded from forming basis for complaint's allegations of ongoing bad faith. California Physicians' Serv. v. Superior Court (1992) 9 Cal. App. 4th 1321, 1330, 12 Cal. Rptr. 2d 95

[g] Postjudgment Conduct by Insurer

When insured obtains bad faith judgment against insurer, entry of judgment absolves insurer of any further contractual obligations; insured therefore may not assert still another bad faith claim based on insurer's refusal to pay the first judgment, nor can insured maintain such a claim by virtue of its status as judgment creditor. Tomaselli v. Transamerica Ins. Co. (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 1766, 1771, 31 Cal. Rptr. 2d 224 ; but see Hand v. Farmers Ins. Exch. (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 1847, 1857, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 258 (third party who obtains judgment against insured may maintain direct cause of action against insurer under Ins. Code § 11580 for insurer's postjudgment bad faith refusal to pay amount of judgment); see generally § 308.464

[h] Preemption by Federal Law

Action brought under state law, asserting improper processing of claim for benefits under employee benefit plan subject to Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 (29 U.S.C.S. §§ 1001-1461) as preempted by federal law. Pilot Life Ins. Co. v. Dedeaux (1987) 481 U.S. 41, 107 S. Ct. 1549, 95 L. Ed. 2d 39, 54F ederal Labor-Management Relations Act (29 U.S.C.S. §§ 141-187) as preempting state bad faith actions when resolution of state law claim is substantially dependent on analysis of labor agreement. Allis-Chalmers Corp. v. Lueck (1985) 471 U.S. 202, 215-220, 105 S. Ct. 1904, 85 L. Ed. 2d 206

ERISA preempts bad faith action based on violation of Ins. Code § 790.03(h) notwithstanding ERISA provision exempting from preemption laws that regulate insurance. Kanne v. Connecticut Gen. Life Ins. Co. (9th Cir. 1988) 867 F.2d 489, 493-494

Employer that (in order to provide employees with any benefits specified in ERISA) purchases group insurance policy, contributes toward premiums, remits to insurer, and retains authority to terminate policy or to change terms, as establishing or maintaining ERISA plan regardless of whether it also processes claims or otherwise administers policy. Marshall v. Bankers Life & Cas. Co. (1992) 2 Cal. 4th 1045, 1057, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 72

Summary judgment in favor of insurer, in action to recover benefits under policy issued by insured's employer, as improper when policy is ambiguous and uncertain because neither original nor copy of policy is available, and insured is entitled to have trier of fact determine terms of policy; summary judgment as improper when facts regarding existence of ERISA plan are disputed. Rogers v. Prudential Ins. Co. (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 1132, 1137-1139, 267 Cal. Rptr. 499

Existence of "welfare benefit plan" for purposes of applying ERISA as shown by: (1) plan (evidenced by employee benefit booklet), with plan administrator (employee of company), source of financing (employer), and procedure to apply for and collect benefits (2) established by employer (3) for purpose of providing medical benefits to participant employees and beneficiaries. Faria v. Northwestern Nat'l Life Ins. Co. (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 1129, 1137

Defense of ERISA preemption as waivable issue; failure to raise ERISA defense at trial as precluding insurer from raising it on appeal, based on factors including insured's lack of opportunity to refute defense at trial; issue as one of "choice of law" rather than "choice of forum," which arises when issue is subject-matter jurisdiction regarding exclusive, rather than concurrent, federal jurisdiction. Hughes v. Blue Cross of N. Cal. (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 832, 849-859

Such factors as employer's payment of policy premiums and other involvement, and its administration of the plan, as evidencing that group insurance plan was ERISA plan as matter of law. Lambert v. Pacific Mut. Life Ins. Co. (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 456, 463-465, 259 Cal. Rptr. 398

Tort claim arising out of manner in which benefit claim is handled as not separable from terms of contract; claim as relating to plan under Federal Employee Health Benefits Act (5 U.S.C.S. §§ 8901-8913) as long as it has connection with or refers to plan. Hartenstine v. Superior Court (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 206, 218, 241 Cal. Rptr. 756

[i] Proper Plaintiffs

Lessee of property could not sue lessor's insurer for bad faith because lessee was neither an implied-in-law coinsured nor a third-party beneficiary of contract between lessor and lessee, despite fact that lessor was obligated under lease agreement to maintain rental income insurance with loss payable to lessor in event of damage or destruction of leased property; fact that lease provided that lessee's rent would be reduced during any repairs to premises after damage or destruction to extent lessor received insurance proceeds held insufficient to confer third-party beneficiary status on lessee. Jones v. Aetna Cas. & Sur. Co. (1994) 26 Cal. App. 4th 1717, 1722-1725, 33 Cal. Rptr. 2d 291

[j] Punitive Damages

Amendments to Civ. Code § 3294 referring to "despicable" conduct impose new substantive limitation on punitive damage awards; "despicable" is a powerful term that connotes base, vile or contemptible behavior, and indicates that "malice" requires more than a willful and conscious disregard of a plaintiff's rights under current law. College Hosp., Inc. v. Superior Court (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 704, 725, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 898, 882 P.2d 894

Punitive damages award reversed when court concluded that although the evidence supported finding that carrier had been negligent, overzealous, legally incorrect, and callous, no evidence existed of behavior that was evil, criminal, recklessly indifferent, or done wth an intent to injure. Tomaselli v. Transamerica Ins. Co. (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 1269, 1286-1288, 31 Cal. Rptr. 2d 433

Substantial evidence that punitive damages were properly awarded when insurer's refusal to accept reasonable offer of settlement and its subsequent submission of matter to its attorney were part of conscious course of conduct, firmly grounded in established company policy (evidenced by excerpt from claims representative manual stressing need to take advantage of insured's importunate circumstances), designed to utilize lamentable circumstances of insured and her family to force settlement more favorable to company than facts would otherwise have warranted. Neal v. Farmers Ins. Exch. (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 910, 923, 148 Cal. Rptr. 389, 582 P.2d 980

Punitive damages as not available in action for bad faith based solely on contract theory. Frazier v. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co. (1985) 169 Cal. App. 3d 90, 105-107, 214 Cal. Rptr. 883

Breach of covenant of good faith and fair dealing as supporting only compensatory damages; punitive damages as only justified by insured's proving that insurer willfully and deliberately failed to take steps necessary to avoid adverse consequences of unwarranted denial of claim. Weisman v. Blue Shield of Cal. (1984) 163 Cal. App. 3d 61, 67, 209 Cal. Rptr. 169

Nature of defendant's acts in light of record, amount of compensatory damages awarded, and wealth of defendants as proper factors to consider in determining punitive damage award. Pistorius v. Prudential Ins. Co. (1981) 123 Cal. App. 3d 541, 554, 176 Cal. Rptr. 660

Conscious disregard of insured's rights as proper grounds for award of punitive damages in tort action for breach of covenant of good faith and fair dealing. Pistorius v. Prudential Ins. Co. (1981) 123 Cal. App. 3d 541, 553, 176 Cal. Rptr. 660

Award of $150,000 in punitive damages against insurer for breach of implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing, as proper where insurer never informed insured of settlement offer, never allowed insured to contribute towards possible settlement, and exposed insured to damages of $11,000 when claim could have been compromised for half that amount. Miller v. Elite Ins. Co. (1980) 100 Cal. App. 3d 739, 758, 161 Cal. Rptr. 322

Punitive damages as awardable in action arising out of breach of covenant of good faith and fair dealing which is implied in every liability insurance policy. Cain v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (1975) 47 Cal. App. 3d 783, 793, 121 Cal. Rptr. 200 (affirming judgment for injured party against insurer in amount of $32,883.69 (excess of judgment over policy limit) and in favor of insured against insurer in amount of $25,000 compensatory damages and $115,000 punitive damages)

Requirements for awarding punitive damages against insurer and its employees for bad faith refusal to pay medical benefits due insured under his automobile insurance policy. Hale v. Farmers Ins. Exch. (1974) 42 Cal. App. 3d 681, 689-702, 117 Cal. Rptr. 146 , overruled in part, Egan v. Mutual of Omaha Ins. Co. (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 809, 822, 169 Cal. Rptr. 691, 620 P.2d 141

[k] Statute of Limitations

Action on implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing as action on policy to which four-year statute of limitations [Code Civ. Proc. § 337(1)] applies. Comunale v. Traders & Gen. Ins. Co. (1958) 50 Cal. 2d 654, 662, 328 P.2d 198

Cause of action for breach of covenant of good faith and fair dealing as accruing whenclaim for benefits was denied. Frazier v. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co. (1985) 169 Cal. App. 3d 90, 103, 214 Cal. Rptr. 883

Bad faith cause of action as sounding in both contract and tort; unless plaintiff irrevocably elects to proceed in tort, plaintiff as entitled to proceed on contract theory to which four-year statute of limitations of Code Civ. Proc. § 337(1) applies. Frazier v. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co. (1985) 169 Cal. App. 3d 90, 102-103, 214 Cal. Rptr. 883

[1] FORM Complaint by Insured Against Insurance Company for Declaratory Relief [Code Civ. Proc. § 1060] and Actual [Civ. Code § 3333] and Punitive [Civ. Code § 3294] Damages for Fraud [Civ. Code § 1710(4)] and Intentional Infliction of Mental Distress--Disability Policy [Ins. Code § 106]

[Caption, introduction. See § 308.370.]

FIRST CAUSE OF ACTION

1. Defendants DOE 1 through DOE _____, inclusive, are sued herein under fictitious names. Their true names and capacities are unknown to plaintiff. When their true names and capacities are ascertained, plaintiff will amend this complaint by inserting their true names and capacities herein. [Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges, that each of the fictitiously named defendants is responsible in some manner for the occurrences herein alleged, and that plaintiff's damages as herein alleged were proximately caused by those defendants.]

2. Defendant is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of _____ with its principal place of business in _____ County, California, and authorized to transact, and transacting, business in California as an insurer [or other allegation of capacity and authority as appropriate].

3. On or about _____ [date], plaintiff purchased from defendant insurer a policy of health and accident insurance, hereinafter referred to as "the policy," in which plaintiff was the named insured. Under the terms of the policy, defendant insurer agreed to pay plaintiff a monthly indemnity of $_____ [specify, e.g.,

$150 per month for a maximum period of 30 years], if plaintiff were disabled as the result of an injury. The policy further provided in part as follows: _____ [set forth definitions of injury and sickness contained in policy, e.g.,

" 'Injury' wherever used in this policy means bodily injury caused by an accident occurring while this policy is in force and resulting directly and independently of all other causes in loss covered by this policy. 'Sickness' wherever used in this policy means sickness or disease contracted and commencing after the Policy Date and resulting in loss covered by this policy."]

4. At all times herein mentioned, plaintiff paid all premiums on the policy as they became due and payable and has otherwise performed all the terms and conditions of the policy on his/her part to be performed. At all times herein mentioned, the policy was, and now is, in full force and effect.

5. On or about _____, plaintiff was injured _____ [specifymanner and place of injury]. From and after that date, plaintiff has at all times been, and now is, disabled as the result of that injury.

6. From and after the date of the aforementioned injury, defendant insurer commenced monthly payments to plaintiff of $_____ [specify, e.g., $150] in accordance with the provisions of the policy.

7. On or about _____ [date], defendant insurer advised plaintiff that it would make no further payments to plaintiff under the provisions of the policy. Thereafter, one of the grounds raised for the failure to continue payments was _____ [specify, e.g., that plaintiff had a congenital back defect which contributed to plaintiff's condition and therefore the defendant insurer was not liable under the terms of the policy].

8. An actual controversy has arisen between the parties as to whether plaintiff's condition constitutes an injury within the meaning of the policy.

SECOND CAUSE OF ACTION

1. Plaintiff refers to Paragraphs 1-7, inclusive, of his/her First Cause of Action and by this reference makes them a part hereof.

2. Within _____ [specify, e.g., 60 days] prior to issuance of the policy on _____ [date], plaintiff was solicited by and had conversations with the agent for defendant insurer. These meetings and conversations were held for the purpose of soliciting plaintiff as a policy holder with defendant insurer. During the course of these conversations defendant insurer, through its agent, falsely and fraudulently represented to plaintiff that if plaintiff were injured and thereafter disabled, plaintiff would be entitled to the monthly indemnity of $_____ [specify, e.g., $150]. The agent further represented that if plaintiff were disabled, defendant insurer would take good care of him/her and he/she would not have to worry about anything.

3. The representations so made by defendant insurer, through its agent, were in fact false and fraudulent. The true facts were that defendant insurer did not intend to cover all disability, and further that defendant insurer intended to deal with plaintiff and other assureds in bad faith and with the intention of using any methods at their disposal to avoid legitimate payments under the policy.

4. When defendant insurer, through its agent, made the representations, it knew them to be false; the statements were made with the intent to defraud and deceive plaintiff and to induce him/her to purchase the policy, as hereinbefore alleged.

5. Plaintiff, at the time the representations were made, was ignorant of their falsity and believed them to be true. In reliance on them plaintiff was induced to and did enter into the contract of accident and health insurance, as hereinbefore alleged. Had plaintiff known the true facts, he/she would not have purchased the policy.

6. As a direct and proximate result of defendant insurer's false representations and its subsequent failure to pay under the policy, plaintiff was forced to employ the services of an attorney in an attempt to secure payments to which he/she was entitled, all to his/her detriment in the sum of $_____ [specify, e.g., $1,000].

7. At all times herein mentioned defendant insurer knew that the insurance benefits were essential to plaintiff's sustenance, and at all times defendant insurer was, and now is, aware that it is obligated to continue to pay the benefits to plaintiff. The conduct of defendant insurer, as herein alleged, has been malicious and oppressive to plaintiff. As a result of this fraudulent, malicious, and oppressive conduct, plaintiff has suffered great mental anguish, mortification, humiliation, and shame, and has become sick and ill, all to his/her damage in the sum of $_____ [specify, e.g., $100,000].

8. In committing the acts described in this complaint, defendant acted in conscious disregard of the rights of plaintiff and was guilty of _____ [malice and/or oppression and/or fraud] in that _____ [specify facts constituting malice, oppression, or fraud]. The conduct of defendant warrants an assessment of punitive damages in an amount appropriate to punish defendant and deter others from engaging in similar wrongful conduct.

THIRD CAUSE OF ACTION

1. Plaintiff refers to Paragraphs 1-7, inclusive, of his/her First Cause of Action and to Paragraphs 2-8, inclusive, of his/her Second Cause of Action and by this reference makes them a part hereof.

2. Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that sometime prior to _____ [date], and continuing up to the present the defendants _____ [name of insurer], _____ [name of representative of insurer], and DOES 1-_____, inclusive, and each of them, conspired to defraud plaintiff. Pursuant to this conspiracy, defendants, and each of them did on _____ [date], write a letter to plaintiff accusing him/her of misrepresentation with implied threats of criminal prosecution and civil litigation to recover the sum of $_____ [specify, e.g., $2,250] which had been paid by defendant _____ [name of insurer] to plaintiff under the terms of the policy, at a time when each of these defendants knew that the statements in the letter were false. Further, pursuant to this conspiracy, the letter was mailed to plaintiff for the sole and exclusive purpose of frightening him/her into releasing defendant insurer from any further obligation under the policy at a time when defendants, and each of them, knew full well that they were obligated to make continued payments. A copy of the letter is attached hereto as Exhibit A, and made a part hereof.

3. At the time the letter was written, defendants, and each of them, were awarethat plaintiff was totally disabled; [that he/she was the parent of _____ (number) children who were dependent on this indemnity for their livelihood;] that it had been represented that defendants would deal with plaintiff in good faith and take good care of him/her; that plaintiff was suffering from a severe _____ [specify, e.g., back injury]; [that plaintiff is a person of limited education]; that the demand for repayment of the $_____ [specify, e.g., $2,250] contained in Exhibit A was a total impossibility; that plaintiff throughout the negotiations leading to the purchase of the insurance policy was extremely fearful of his/her family's welfare.

4. Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that with all of the knowledge as hereinbefore alleged, defendants, and each of them, conspired to implant fear and terror in the mind of plaintiff by writing the letter attached as Exhibit A at a time when each of the defendants knew there was no justifiable cause and knew there was no basis for the cancellation of the indemnity payments. That at the time the letter was written, it was the intention of defendants, and each of them, to write a subsequent letter that would permit plaintiff to cancel his/her insurance policy in exchange for defendants' forebearing to bring suit or other proceedings against plaintiff at a time when defendants, and each of them, knew there was no basis for such threats. In furtherance of the conspiracy, on _____ [date], defendants did in fact write a letter to plaintiff, a copy of which is attached hereto as Exhibit B and made a part hereof. This letter was written in furtherance of the conspiracy to frighten plaintiff and to implant fear and terror in his/her mind so that he/she would agree to the demands set forth in plaintiff's Exhibit B and in particular that he/she would agree to cancel his/her policy at a time when defendants, and each of them, knew full well they were obligated to make continued disability payments thereunder. In furtherance of this conspiracy, defendants, and each of them, did further threaten litigation [, possible criminal action,] and additional costs by way of attorney's fees, all for the purpose of frightening plaintiff into relinquishing rights which defendant, and each of them, knew were undisputed and which defendants, and each of them, knew they were fully obligated to make under the terms of the policy.

5. As a proximate result of the acts performed by defendants, and each of them, in furtherance of this conspiracy as alleged, plaintiff suffered extreme nervous and mental strain, all to his/her damage in the sum of $_____ [specify, e.g., $100,000].

6. In doing the things herein alleged, defendants, and each of them, acted willfully and maliciously and without right in carrying out the hereinbefore alleged conspiracy, and by reason thereof plaintiff is entitled to punitive damages against defendants, and each of them.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendants as follows:

1. For a declaration of plaintiff's rights under his/her policy of insurance;

2. For general damages in the sum of $_____ [specify, e.g., $100,000];

3. For punitive damages in the sum of $_____ [specify, e.g., $1,500,000];

4. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

5. For such other and further relief as to the court may deem proper.

§ 308.392 Allegation--Insured Disappeared More Than Five Years Earlier and Is Presumed Dead [Evid. Code § 667]

[1] FORM Allegation--Insured Disappeared More Than Five Years Earlier and Is Presumed Dead [Evid. Code § 667]

1. On or about _____ [date more than five years ago] at a time when the policy was in full force and effect, the insured disappeared and has been missing and unheard from since.

2. The policy, Exhibit A, requires that "proof of death" be given to defendant. In compliance with this requirement, plaintiff, on or about _____ [date more than five years after disappearance of insured] gave defendant written notice of proof of death pointing out the facts of the insured's disappearance, that he/she has been missing and not heard from since, and that the five year period prescribed by Section 667 of the Evidence Code after which a missing person is presumed dead expired on _____ [date]. A copy of the written proof of death is attached hereto as Exhibit B and made a part hereof.

[2] Use of Form

The allegations in this form, appropriately renumbered, are for use in a complaint to recover life insurance proceeds where the insured's death is established by the statutory presumption that a person not heard from in five years is dead [Evid. Code § 667].

[3] Presumption of Death

[a] Lack of Statutory Procedure

A person not heard from in five years is presumed to be dead [Evid. Code § 667]. There is, however, no statutory procedure for establishing the fact of death for the purposes of claiming insurance proceeds by the beneficiary of a life insurance policy. Health & Safety Code §§ 103450-103490, authorizing a judicial proceeding to establish the fact of death, apply only to persons who are known to be dead. Former Prob. Code §§ 280-294 (effective July 1, 1988) [see Prob. Code § 12400 et seq.], relating to administration of estates, apply only where a person owns property in California subject to probate administration and has been missing five years [see 1 Ops. Cal. Att'y Gen. 543 (1943) (opinion rendered when time period was seven years)]. Former Prob. Code §§ 1170-1175 [now see Prob. Code § 200 et seq.], authorizing a proceeding to establish the fact of death, apply only to persons claiming an interest in real or personal property and whose title is affected by the death [see Pollack v. Hamm (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 264, 269, 90 Cal. Rptr. 181, 475 P.2d 213] .

[b] Proof of Death

Where payment to the beneficiary of the proceeds under a life insurance policyis made to depend not on the fact of death but on proof of death and the insured disappears and is not heard from for five years, presentation of the proof of death cannot ordinarily be made without the aid of the statutory presumption that a person missing five years is dead [Evid. Code § 667]; that is, it cannot be made until after the lapse of the five-year period. Once it is established that the person has been missing and not heard from in five years, then evidence is admissible to show the date of death and that death occurred while the policy was in full force and effect. That is, the statutory presumption establishes the fact of death but not the date of death. Any facts or circumstances relating to the character, habits, condition, state of mind, or any of those things which usually control a person's conduct are competent evidence from which the date of death may be inferred [Benjamin v. District Grand Lodge No. 4, Indep. Order B'nai B'rith (1915) 171 Cal. 260, 263-267].

The presumption created by Evid. Code § 667 is not exclusive and, where there is evidence of a specific peril to which the missing person was subjected, death may be found to have occurred in a shorter period. Although the general rule is that the presumption of life continues during the entire period of five years following the disappearance of a person, such presumption may be overcome by evidence showing either that within such time the missing person was subjected to some specific peril, or that other circumstances or conditions intervened sufficient to quicken the ordinary five-year period of time necessary to create the presumption of death. But in that regard, it is unnecessary that the evidence be direct or positive; it need only be of such character as to make it more probable that the person died at a particular time than that he or she survived [Pollack v. Hamm (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 264, 269-270, 90 Cal. Rptr. 181, 475 P.2d 213] .

Consequently, if there is evidence that the insured died prior to expiration of the statutory period, the beneficiary may present proof of death to the insurer and, if the latter refuses to pay, commence an action to recover on the policy. As to the circumstantial evidence required in such action to raise a presumption of death at a time prior to the lapse of five years, "no specific statement can be made that will apply in all cases" [Rogers v. Manhattan Life Ins. Co. (1903) 138 Cal. 285, 289, 71 P. 348 (where circumstances indicate suicide it is a question of fact for the jury)]. But a finding or verdict that the insured did not die at the time indicated and that he or she is alive will be res judicata in any subsequent action to recover the insurance proceeds after lapse of the five-year period [see Minnis v. Equitable Life Assurance Soc'y (1928) 204 Cal. 180, 182-184, 267 P. 538] .

Judicial proceeding to establish fact of death. Health & Safety Code §§ 10550-10558

[5] Decisions

NOTE:
In 1983, Evid. Code § 667 was amended to reduce the seven-year period to five years.

Statutory presumption that person missing seven years is dead as establishing fact of death but as not fixing time within seven-year period at which missing person died. Benjamin v. District Grand Lodge No. 4, Indep. Order B'nai B'rith (1915) 171 Cal. 260, 264, 152 P. 731 ; Linneweber v. Supreme Council (1916) 30 Cal. App. 315, 318, 158 P. 229

Once fact of death is established by virtue of statutory presumption that person missing seven years is dead, evidence as to date of death as admissible. Benjamin v. District Grand Lodge No. 4, Indep. Order B'nai B'rith (1915) 171 Cal. 260, 266 ; see also Linneweber v. Supreme Council (1916) 30 Cal. App. 315, 318, 158 P. 229

Presumption of death of person not heard from in seven years as not arising until expiration of seven years unless circumstantial evidence establishes that death occurred at earlier time. Rogers v. Manhattan Life Ins. Co. (1903) 138 Cal. 285, 289, 71 P. 348 ; see also Minnis v. Equitable Life Assurance Soc'y (1928) 204 Cal. 180, 184, 267 P. 538

Any facts or circumstances relating to character, habits, condition, state of mind, or any of those things which usually control person's conduct as competent evidence from which death of one absent and not heard from whatever may have been duration of his absence may be inferred. Benjamin v. District Grand Lodge No. 4, Indep. Order B'nai B'rith (1915) 171 Cal. 260, 267

Statutory presumption that person not heard from for seven years is dead as not exclusive; presumption that life continued throughout seven-year period as subject to being overcome by evidence showing either that within such time missing person was subjected to some specific peril or that circumstances of conditions intervened sufficient to quicken ordinary seven-year period necessary to create presumption of death. Pollack v. Hamm (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 264, 269-270, 90 Cal. Rptr. 181, 475 P.2d 213 (executive appointment to fill vacancy in judicial office resulting from loss at sea in boating accident of incumbent judge whose body was not found)

Fact and exact date of death in action against insurance company prior to expiration of seven years after which time person not heard from is presumed dead as provable by circumstantial evidence. Lesser v. New York Life Ins. Co. (1921) 53 Cal. App. 236, 238-240, 200 P. 22

Finding by trial court in action to recover on life insurance policy prior to expiration of seven-year period that insured was not drowned accidentally or at all on certain date, which was date insured disappeared and which plaintiff had sought by circumstantial evidence to prove was date of death and that, because plaintiff had failed to prove by preponderance of evidence that insured was dead, insured was not dead as res judicata and conclusive on parties as to issue of insured's deathduring time referred to in judgment and as a bar to subsequent action commenced after expiration of seven years from date of insured's disappearance. Minnis v. Equitable Life Assurance Soc'y (1928) 204 Cal. 180, 182-184, 267 P. 538

In proceeding before Industrial Accident Commission (predecessor to Workers' Compensation Appeals Board) to recover compensation for death of employee claimed to have been murdered in course of his employment, burden as on applicant to establish by competent evidence fact of such death; proof as permitted to be made by circumstantial evidence; actual finding of body as not an indispensable requisite to conclusion that employee met his death by violence. Western Grain & Sugar Prod. Co. v. Pillsbury (1916) 173 Cal. 135, 138, 159 P. 423

Beneficiary under life insurance policy which does not require that evidence of death be presented within any given period following death of insured as not required to furnish insurer with proof of death until such proof is possible under circumstances of case; statute of limitations as not beginning to run on cause of action until such proof is available to beneficiary. Benjamin v. District Grand Lodge No. 4, Indep. Order B'nai B'rith (1915) 171 Cal. 260, 264-265 ; see

Delay in presenting proof of death as excusable where insurance policy requires proof of death within six months after its occurrence and insured disappeared, his body being discovered too late to allow presentation of proof of death within six-month period. Benjamin v. District Grand Lodge No. 4, Indep. Order B'nai B'rith (1915) 171 Cal. 260, 264

[2] Use of Form

This form of complaint is for use by an insured to recover insurance benefits under an individual accident policy where the insurer has refused to pay. With appropriate modifications, it may also be used to recover such benefits under a group policy or under a disease, surgical, medical, hospital, or other like policy.

For a discussion of the essential allegations of the complaint, the number of copies to prepare, and verification, see § 308.370.

If the insurer's refusal to pay results from a dispute between the parties as to the coverage provided by the policy, the insured (or insurer) may file a complaint for declaratory relief [Code Civ. Proc. § 1060], rather than for breach of contract, to secure a judicial declaration of the respective rights and duties of the parties under the policy. For complaints for declaratory relief and a procedural guide for use in such actions, see Ch. 182, Declaratory Relief .

1. Plaintiff [is, and] at all times herein mentioned was [,] the owner of _____ [specify, e.g., a dwelling house] and personal property located therein at _____ [street address and city], County, California, hereinafter referred to as "the insured premises" [, more particularly described as follows: _____ (describe)]

2. Defendant is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a corporation organized and existing under the laws of _____ [state or foreign country] [, with its principal place of business in this state situated in _____ County,] and authorized to transact, and transacting, business in California as a[n] [foreign] insurance corporation [or other allegation of capacity and authority as appropriate].

3. At all times herein mentioned, defendant was engaged in this state in the business of writing insurance policies insuring against, among other things, loss by fire, and in such policies providing for payment of the amount fixed therein in the event of loss by fire of the property described and covered by such policies.

4. On or about _____ [date], defendant [, in consideration of the payment by plaintiff to defendant of the premium of $_____,] issued a written policy of insurance, number _____, hereinafter referred to as "the policy," to plaintiff. By the terms of the policy [and in consideration of the aforesaid payment], defendant insured plaintiff for a period of _____ [number] year(s) from _____ [date], to _____ [date], against loss by fire of the property mentioned in Paragraph 1 as follows: _____ [enumerate, e.g.:

	COVERAGE	LIMITS OF LIABILITY
A.	Dwelling house at _____ _____ [address]	$50,000.00
B.	Appurtenant private structures at _____ _____ [address]	5,000.00
C.	Personal property in the premises at _____ _____ [address]	25,000.00
D.	Personal property away from the insured premises	2,500.00

F.	Comprehensive personal liability	25,000.00 each occurrence
G.	Medical payments	1,000.00 each person.

[A copy of the policy is attached hereto as Exhibit A and made a part hereof.]

5. On or about _____ [date], while the policy was in full force and effect, the above-described _____ [specify, e.g., dwelling house] and personal property therein were _____ [totally destroyed or partially destroyed or damaged] by fire, thereby causing plaintiff to sustain a loss in the sum of $_____ for the _____ [specify, e.g., dwelling house] and the further sum of $_____ for loss of personal property therein. [Plaintiff has, from the date of the loss, suffered, and shall continue to suffer, additional loss at the rate of $_____ per _____ (week or month or specify other time period) as additional living expense incurred as a direct result of the destruction by fire of his/her house as herein alleged.]

6. Immediately after sustaining the loss, to wit, on _____ [date], plaintiff gave defendant written notice of the fire and loss, and on or about _____ [date], delivered to defendant a complete inventory of the destroyed, damaged, and undamaged property and a written proof of the loss and the facts surrounding it.

7. After receipt of the notice, inventory, and proof of loss, defendant, on or about _____ [date], commenced negotiations with plaintiff with reference to the loss, and these negotiations continued until on or about _____ [date], at which time they were terminated by defendant. Defendant has failed and refused to pay plaintiff the amount of loss sustained by him/her as a result of the fire and within the policy limits [as set forth in Exhibit A] as alleged in Paragraph 5 and continues to fail and refuse to pay to plaintiff that sum or any part of it.

8. Plaintiff has performed all of the conditions of the policy to be performed on his/her part, except for the requirement that this action be commenced within 12 months from the date of loss. Defendant waived this requirement and is estopped to rely on it for the following reasons: _____ [specify, e.g., (1) on issuing the contract of insurance, defendant sent the original of the policy to _____ (name), the holder of the mortgage on the insured premises, andsent plaintiff an eight-page printed document bearing the designation "HOMEOWNERS POLICY CALIFORNIA MEMORANDUM OF INSURANCE"; (2) this document, a copy of which is attached hereto as Exhibit B and made a part hereof, has the appearance of a facsimile of the policy and purports to set forth all the essential terms thereof but contains no reference to the 12 month limitation for the commencement of an action on the policy; (3) plaintiff was never informed of this period of limitation until long after its expiration; (4) after receiving notice of the loss, defendant participated with plaintiff in negotiations looking to a compromise settlement of the amount of his/her claim; (5) these negotiations extended over a period beyond the 12 months following the loss; and (6) defendant at all times admitted that plaintiff had suffered a loss covered by the policy but never gave him/her any indication of its intention to rely on the contractual limitation on the time within which he/she might file suit on his/her claim until after that time limitation had expired].

9. As a direct and proximate result of defendant's failure and refusal to pay plaintiff the full or any of the amounts agreed by it to be paid in the event of loss by fire, plaintiff has been damaged in the sum of $_____ for the destruction of his/her _____ [specify, e.g., dwelling house] [,] [and] the sum of $_____ for the destruction of his/her personal property therein [, and the further sum of $_____ to date for additional living expense incurred by plaintiff as a result of the loss of his/her house by fire]. [Plaintiff is continuing to incur additional living expense as a direct result of the fire loss and will seek leave to amend this complaint to insert the true amount thereof when ascertained.]

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment as follows:

1. For the sum of $_____ for loss of _____ [specify, e.g., the dwelling house] and personal property, plus interest thereon at the legal rate from _____ [date payment should have been made under the terms of the policy];

[2. For the sum of $_____ as additional living expense incurred to date, together with such further sum as plaintiff is required to pay for such expense after the filing of this complaint and before judgment, subject to the policy limit;]

3. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

4. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[1] FORM Proceedings to Determine Liability Under Oral Fire Insurance Contract--Complaint for Declaratory Relief [Code Civ. Proc. § 1060]--By Insured Against Several Insurance Companies and Their Mutual Agent

1. At all times herein mentioned plaintiff was the owner of _____ [property destroyed by fire] hereinafter referred to as "the subject property" located at _____ [street address and city], _____ County, California.

2. Defendants _____ [names of insurance companies], hereinafter collectively referred to as "defendant insurers," are, and at all times herein mentioned were, corporations organized and existing under the laws of the State of California and authorized to transact, and transacting, business in this state as fire insurers [or allege capacity and authority of each defendant insurer in separately numbered paragraphs].

3. Defendant _____ [name], hereinafter referred to as "defendant agent," at all times herein mentioned was a duly authorized and acting insurance agent of defendant insurers, and of each of them individually, as to agreements of insurance coverage and, in doing the things herein alleged was acting within the course and scope of his/her agency and authority.

4. On or about _____ [time], on _____ [date], defendant agent orally agreed with plaintiff to insure plaintiff against destruction or damage by fire of the subject property up to a total amount of $_____, for a premium _____ [of $_____ to be or later to be computed by defendant agent and] billed to plaintiff. The insurance was to be effective forthwith and continue for a period of _____ [specify]. Defendant insurers did thereby insure plaintiff against any and all loss by fire not exceeding the amount of $_____, this amount to be allocated among defendant insurers by defendant agent, their duly delegated and authorized agent in this regard.

5. Plaintiff, in complete reliance on the oral agreement with defendant agent to insure his/her property, placed no other insurance with any other person, or persons, with respect to the subject property and considered himself/herself wholly and completely insured and protected by defendants, and each of them.

6. On or about _____ [date], while the agreement was in full force and effect, the subject property was totally destroyed by fire. The fair market value of the property immediately before the fire was $_____; after the fire, the property had no market value whatsoever. As a result of the fire and loss of property, plaintiff was injured in the sum of $_____. By reason thereof, plaintiff became entitled to receive $_____ from defendants, the sum which defendants agreed to pay plaintiff in the event the subject property was destroyed or damaged by fire.

7. Immediately thereafter, to wit, on or about _____ [date, plaintiff gave defendants, and each of them, written notice of the loss and destruction of the subject property by fire and duly furnished the required inventory and written proof of loss. Notwithstanding said notice, inventory, and proof, defendants, and each of them, have failed and refused, and continue to fail and refuse, to pay plaintiff the sum of $_____ or any part of it.

8. Plaintiff has duly performed each and every condition on his/her part to be performed under the agreement.

9. Plaintiff contends that defendant insurers are liable to plaintiff in the full amount of the policy purchased by plaintiff and that if they are not so liable then defendant agent is liable to plaintiff in that amount on the ground that there was a valid agreement between plaintiff and defendant agent for the purchase and sale of insurance and that by failing to do whatever was necessary in order to complete that sale from defendant insurers, defendant agent breached its agreement with plaintiff.

10. Defendant insurers deny any liability to plaintiff and contend that no policy was in existence at the time of the loss, that they had not agreed at that time to the issuance of such a policy, and that defendant agent had no authority to bind them to an agreement to issue the policy. Defendant agent contends that he/she is not personally liable to the plaintiff for the loss, that at all times he/she was acting as an agent for defendant insurers, his/her disclosed principals, and that he/she had authority from defendant insurers, and each of them, to bind them to issue policies on oral agreements such as the one herein alleged.

11. By reason of the foregoing, an actual controversy exists between plaintiff and defendants herein as to the rights and obligations of the parties.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment as follows:

1. That the court declare the rights and obligations of the parties with respect to the oral agreement and insurance policies herein referred to;

2. That plaintiff recover judgment from the defendants, in accordance with the declaration of the court, for the total amount of $_____, together with interest thereon from and after the date that payment under the policies should have been made;

3. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

4. For such other and further relief as court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

This form of complaint is for use where the agreement to insure was orally made by an agent of two or more insurers, the loss occurred after the agreement was entered into but before any policy was issued, and the insurers deny liability under the agreement [see Rimington v. General Accident Group of Ins. Cos. (1962) 205 Cal. App. 2d 394, 395, 23 Cal. Rptr. 40] . With appropriate modifications, it may also be used where an oral covering agreement or binder was made by an agent acting for a single insurance company [see §§ 308.371 and 308.372]. Cross Defendants.	)

Cross Complainant alleges:

1. Cross defendants are, and at all times herein mentioned were, corporations organized and existing under the laws of the State of California and authorized to transact, and transacting, business in this state as fire insurers [or allege capacity and authority of each cross defendant in separately numbered paragraphs.]

2. Cross complainant is, and at all times herein mentioned was, licensed to transact, and transacting, business as an insurance agent in the State of California and at all times herein mentioned was the duly appointed, authorized, and acting agent of cross defendants, and of each of them. At all times herein mentioned, cross complainant, as such agent, had authority on behalf of cross defendants, and each of them, to receive and accept proposals for fire insurance on property located in _____ [city] and vicinity, and to bind an insurance coverage on such risks orally or in writing. In all of his/her dealings with plaintiff and cross defendants relating to insurance coverage for plaintiff, as alleged in the complaint on file herein, cross complainant at all times acted and purported to act only and solely on behalf of and as agent for cross defendants, and each of them, and not as a principal.

3. The above-entitled action was commenced by plaintiff against cross complainant and cross defendants and seeks a declaration of plaintiff's rights in respect to an [alleged] agreement to insure plaintiff against loss by fire of certainproperty owned by plaintiff and allegedly destroyed by fire, all as more fully set forth in the complaint on file herein.

4. If there is any liability to plaintiff in the main action on the part of any defendant named in the complaint, all of such liability rests on and is the ultimate liability of one or more of the defendant insurers (cross defendants herein), and does not rest on nor is it the ultimate liability of cross complainant.

5. [Cross complainant is informed and believes and thereon alleges that] [C]ross defendants, and each of them, contend that ay liability to plaintiff in the main action herein rests on and is the ultimate liability of cross complainant and that it does not rest on nor is it the ultimate liability of cross defendants, or any of them. Cross complainant is [further] informed and believes and thereon alleges that if a judgment is rendered in the main action herein in favor of plaintiff and against cross defendants, or any of them, such cross defendants will file legal proceedings against cross complainant in which they will seek to recover from cross complainant any amounts they are required to pay under any such judgment.

6. Cross complainant has been made a party defendant by plaintiff in the main action herein solely as a result of his/her actions for and in behalf of cross defendants as their agent acting within the course and scope of his/her authority as such agent and the subsequent repudiation of his/her actions by cross defendants, and each of them; as a proximate result thereof, cross complainant has been, is, and will continue to be compelled to incur expenses, costs of litigation, and attorney's fees in amounts not yet ascertainable. Cross complainant prays leave to amend this cross complaint to insert such amounts when they are ascertained.

7. As a further proximate result of the actions of cross defendants in repudiating the authority of cross complainant to act in their behalf and bind them to the issuance of insurance policies as herein alleged, cross complainant has been damaged by loss of and damage to his/her heretofore excellent reputation as an insurance agent in the business community of _____ [city] and vicinity, and loss and damage to his/her insurance business, all to his/her damage in the sum of $_____.

8. In the respects herein alleged, there is an actual controversy and dispute between cross complainant and cross defendants, and each of them, concerning the rights and liabilities of the parties with respect to the [alleged] oral agreement sued on in the complaint herein. Cross complainant is without an adequate remedy at law, and the filing and maintenance of this cross complaint is necessary to prevent a multiplicity of actions should the judgment rendered in the main action herein be in favor of plaintiff and against defendants, or any of them.

WHEREFORE, cross complainant prays:

1. For judgment declaring the respective rights and liabilities of the parties concerning the matters in dispute as alleged herein, and, in the event a money judgment is rendered in the main action in favor of plaintiff against cross defendants, or any of them (whether or not plaintiff also recovers judgment against this cross complainant), for judgment declaring that cross complainant has no obligation or liability to the cross defendants, or any of them, with respect to such money judgment or any part of it;

2. In the event a money judgment is rendered in the main action in favor of plaintiff against cross complainant (whether or not plaintiff also recovers judgment against other defendants, cross defendants herein), for judgment that cross complainant is to be fully indemnified by cross defendants, and each of them, for all sums he/she is required by the judgment for plaintiff to pay;

3. For judgment against cross defendants, and each of them, in favor of cross complainant for loss and damage to cross complainant's reputation and to his/her insurance business in the sum of $_____, and for all expenses, costs of litigation, and attorney's fees incurred by cross complainant in defense of plaintiff's action according to proof; and

4. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

This complaint is for use by a judgment creditor of an insured to recover from the insurer the amount of the underlying judgment against the insured after the insurer's failure to pay the amount of the judgment [see Ins. Code § 11580(b)(2)].

For a complaint for use by a judgment creditor of an insured to recover from the insurer on an assigned cause of action the amount of the underlying judgment against the insured in excess of the insurance policy limits, including allegations of bad faith, see § 308.463.

[3] Allegations

This complaint alleges the following [see Ins. Code § 11580(b)(2)]:

- Defendant's capacity as a California corporation, its authority to issue liability insurance, and the location of its principal place of business in California (Paragraph 1).
- The issuance of the policy by defendant to the insured, and the relevant policy terms (Paragraph 2).
- The occurrence of a loss to plaintiff covered by the policy, giving rise to defendant's liability (Paragraph 3).
- The filing of the underlying action by plaintiff (Paragraph 4).
- The terms of the underlying judgment (Paragraph 5).
- Plaintiff's demand to defendant for payment of the underlying judgment (Paragraph 6).
- A statement that defendant has paid nothing on the underlying judgment (Paragraph 7).
- A statement of damages in the amount of the underlying judgment (Paragraph 8).
- Plaintiff's authority to bring suit (Paragraph 9).

[4] Defenses

In an action brought under Ins. Code § 11580(b)(2), the insurer may assert defenses based on the insured's breach of a policy condition, such as a cooperation or notice clause [see, e.g., § 308.502]. However, the breach is not a valid defense unless the insurer was substantially prejudiced by it. The burden of proving prejudice is on the insurer [Campbell v. Allstate Ins. Co. (1963) 60 Cal. 2d 303, 305-306, 32 Cal. Rptr. 827, 384 P.2d. 155].

A potential for coverage cannot be based on an unresolved legal dispute concerning policy interpretation which is ultimately resolved in favor of the insurer [Lebas Fashion Imps. of USA, Inc. v. ITT Hartford Ins. Group (1996) 50 Cal. App. 4th 548, 556, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 36] .

The insurer may also assert the defense that the loss was not covered by the policy, provided, however, that if it undertook a defense of the action against the insured it properly reserved its right to assert noncoverage at a later time [ see § 308.119[9]].

For a form alleging that the insured failed to comply with the "no action" clause of the standard liability policy by bringing the action against the insurer before the amount of the insurer's obligation was finally determined, see § 308.494. For discussion of the "no action" clause, the interaction of that clause with Ins. Code § 11580(b)(2), and cases interpreting the "actual trial" requirement found in the standard "no action" clause, see § 308.494[2] et seq.

[5] Declaratory Relief Action

If there is a dispute between the insured and the insurer regarding policy coverage of the loss, either may bring an action for declaratory relief to have the issue adjudicated [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1060; Tomerlin v. Canadian Indem. Co. (1964) 61 Cal. 2d 638, 643, 394 P.2d 571 (action by insured)]. This may be done either before or after termination of the third-party action against the insured. Those actions have precedence on the trial calendar [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1062.3]. For discussion and forms regarding declaratory relief, see Ch. 182, Declaratory Relief .

Declaratory relief. Code Civ. Proc. § 1060

Liability policy provision authorizing judgment creditor of insured to sue insurer to recover on judgment. Ins. Code § 11580(b)(2)

[7] Decisions

Right of injured party to sue insurer on liability policy after obtaining judgment against insured is established by Ins. Code § 11580. Campbell v. Allstate Ins. Co. (1963) 60 Cal. 2d 303, 305, 32 Cal. Rptr. 827, 384 P.2d 155

Third party judgment creditor's loss of use of money during insurer's 81-day delay in paying full amount of judgment with interest failed to meet threshold economic loss requirement necessary to recover emotional distress damages for bad faith. Maxwell v. Fire Ins. Exch. (1998) 60 Cal. App. 4th 1446, 1450-1452

Stipulated judgment after uncontested proceeding constitutes "actual trial" for purposes of policy's 'no action" clause and Ins. Code § 11580(b)(2) when following exist: (1) an independent adjudication of facts based on a evidentiary showing; and (2) a process that does not create the potential for abuse, fraud, or collusion. National Union Fire Ins. Co. v. Lynette C. (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th 1434, 1451, 33 Cal. Rptr. 2d 496

Liability policy provision, prohibiting action against insurer unless judgment entered against insured "after actual trial," is not more restrictive than Ins. Code § 11580 (specifying only that judgment be "secured" against insured). Rose v. Royal Ins. Co. (1991) 2 Cal. App. 4th 709, 714, 3 Cal. Rptr. 2d 483

Judgment creditor of insured unable to maintain cause of action against insurer under Ins. Code § 11580(b)(2) until final judgment entered in favor of judgment creditor and against insured. Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. v. City of Turlock (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 988, 1004, 216 Cal. Rptr. 796

The policy was intended to and did insure plaintiff against accidental injury to or destruction of property of another caused by the operation of that certain steam shovel described in the policy].

[3. If plaintiffs' policy covered a business operation, add: Plaintiff insured, at all times herein mentioned, was engaged in business as _____ (specify) at _____ (address).]

[2] Use of Form

This form of complaint is for use by an insured against its insurer to recover the amount of a third-party judgment in excess of the policy limits, and compensatory and punitive damages in appropriate cases, based on the insurer's unreasonable failure to accept an offer to settle within the policy limits.

For a form of complaint brought by an insured's judgment creditor against the insurer to recover the amount of the third-party judgment, see § 308.460. For a form of complaint brought by an insured's judgment creditor against the insurer to recover on an assigned cause of action for breach of contract when the judgment exceeded the policy limits, see § 308.463.

[3] Allegations

This form of complaint alleges:

- The issuance of the policy by defendant and the relevant policy terms (Paragraph 2);
- The occurrence of a loss covered by the policy (Paragraph 4);
- The filing of the underlying third-party action (Paragraph 5);
- Service of summons and complaint in the third-party action, notice of that action to defendant, and a statement that the plaintiff has performed all his or her duties under the policy (Paragraph 6);
- A statement regarding a reasonable settlement offer within policy limits made by the third party to defendant, defendant's refusal of the offer, and a statement that there was a substantial likelihood that the underlying judgment would result in an award of damages in excess of the policy limits (Paragraph 8) [see Murphy v. Allstate Ins. Co. (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 937, 941, 132 Cal. Rptr. 424, 553 P.2d 584] ;
- The terms of the underlying judgment, and plaintiff's demand to defendant to satisfy the judgment (Paragraph 10);
- A statement that defendant paid either none of the judgment, or a portion representing the policy limits (Paragraph 11); and
- Damages in the amount of the judgment either satisfied by plaintiff, or remaining unsatisfied (Paragraph 14) [see Civ. Code §§ 3300 (compen satory damages generally), 3302 (damages for breach of obligation to pay money); see also Murphy v. Allstate Ins. Co. (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 937, 941, 132 Cal. Rptr. 424, 553 P.2d 584 (insurer that wrongfully fails to settle within policy limits when there is substantial likelihood of recovery in excess of limits as subject to liability for whole amount of judgment notwithstanding policy limits)].

Optional Paragraph 3 is for use if plaintiff wishes to allege that the plaintiff insured is engaged in a particular type of business.

Optional Paragraph 7 may be used to allege that defendant undertook and controlled the defense of the underlying action.

Optional Paragraph 9 is for use if plaintiff wishes to allege acts regarding defendant's tortious breach of the insurer's duty to settle, in support of the award of exemplary, or punitive, damages [see, e.g., Egan v. Mutual of Omaha Ins. Co. (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 809, 817-819, 157 Cal. Rptr. 482, 598 P.2d 452 (first-party case in which insurer's failure to thoroughly investigate foundation of its denial of medical benefits under policy supported cause of action for breach of implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing)].

Optional Paragraph 12 may be used to allege that plaintiff paid the entire amount of the judgment, or the portion in excess of policy limits [see Brown v. Guarantee Ins. Co. (1957) 155 Cal. App. 2d 679, 689-690, 319 P.2d 69 (when injured party offers to settle for amount within policy limits, and insurer's wrongful failure to settle results in excess judgment against insured, insured entitled to recover amount of underlying judgment from insurer without first satisfying judgment)].

Optional Paragraph 13 is for use to allege plaintiff's demand for reimbursement from defendant after payment of all or a portion of the underlying judgment.

Optional Paragraph 15 is for use if plaintiff wishes to allege compensatory damages caused by defendant's tortious failure to settle [see Civ. Code § 3333; see, e.g., Egan v. Mutual of Omaha Ins. Co. (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 809, 817, 824, n.11, 157 Cal. Rptr. 482, 598 P.2d 452 (insured entitled to emotional-distress damages proximately caused by insurer's bad faith breach of duty of good faith and fair dealing)].

Optional Paragraph 16 is for use if plaintiff wishes to allege that he or she may recover exemplary damages based on defendant's tortious conduct [see Civ. Code § 3294 (punitive damages generally)].

[4] Personal Injury and Punitive Damages

In an action brought to recover damages for personal injury or wrongful death, the complaint must not state the amount of actual or punitive damages demanded [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)].

Otherwise, the amounts claimed as damages must be alleged [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)] or an equivalent statement must be included--for example, a statement that the damages for a particular loss or harm sustained are not known and that leave will be sought to amend the complaint to state the exact amount when ascertained. If this is done, counsel must remember to seek leave to amend the complaint to so state before judgment [see Civ. Code §§ 3281, 3282].

No claim for punitive damages may state an amount sought regardless of the nature of the case or whether it is a limited civil case [Civ. Code § 3295(e)].

For discussion of and forms for requesting and stating the amount of damages sought when they are not stated in the complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 425.11, 425.115], see Ch. 177, Damages, § 177.40 et seq., and Ch. 205, Defaults and Default Judgments .

[5] Insurer's Assumption of Defense

[a] Duty to Defend

If the insurer wrongfully refused to defend the third-party action, Paragraphs 5-7 of the form in § 308.462[1] may be incorporated into this form to allege that the defendant breached its duty to defend.

This form includes an allegation that the insurer assumed defense of the underlying action, pursuant to its duty to defend under the terms of the policy.

[b] Duty to Appoint Independent Counsel

If the criteria set forth in Civ. Code § 2860 apply, the insurer has a duty to appoint independent counsel to represent the insured, to avoid a conflict of interest between the insurer and the insured. For further discussion, see § 308.118 and Levy, Golden & Sacks, California Torts, Ch. 82.

[6] State Statutes

Punitive damages generally. Civ. Code § 3294

Contract damages generally. Civ. Code §§ 3300, 3302

Tort damages generally. Civ. Code § 3333

[7] Decisions

Insurer that wrongfully fails to settle within policy limits when there is substantial likelihood of recovery in excess of limits as subject to liability for whole amount of judgment notwithstanding policy limits. Murphy v. Allstate Ins. Co. (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 937, 941, 132 Cal. Rptr. 424, 553 P.2d 584 ; Johansen v. California State Auto. Ass'n Inter-Ins. Bureau (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 9, 19-20, 123 Cal. Rptr. 288, 538 P.2d 744

Size of judgment recovered in personal injury action against insured when it exceedspolicy limits, although not conclusive, as furnishing inference that value of claim is equivalent of amount of judgment, and that acceptance of offer within those limits was most reasonable method of handling claim. Johansen v. California State Auto. Ass'n Inter-Ins. Bureau (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 9, 17, 123 Cal. Rptr. 288, 538 P.2d 744 ; see also Crisci v. Security Ins. Co. (1967) 66 Cal. 2d 425, 431, 58 Cal. Rptr. 13, 426 P.2d 173

When there is great risk of recovery beyond policy limits so that most reasonable manner of disposing of claim is settlement within those limits, consideration in good faith of insured's interest as requiring insurer to settle claim; unwarranted refusal to do so as constituting breach of implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing. Comunale v. Traders & Gen. Ins. Co. (1958) 50 Cal. 2d 654, 659, 328 P.2d 198 ; Kelley v. British Commercial Ins. Co. (1963) 221 Cal. App. 2d 554, 562, 34 Cal. Rptr. 564 ; see also *Johansen v. [2] Use of Form

This form of complaint is for use by an insured against his or her insurer to recover damages resulting from the insurer's wrongful failure to defend a third-party action against the insured on a claim within the actual or potential coverage of the policy.

[3] Allegations

The complaint alleges:

- The issuance of the policy and its relevant provisions (Paragraph 2).
- The occurrence of a loss covered by the policy (Paragraph 3).
- The filing of the underlying third-party action (Paragraph 4).
- A statement that the plaintiff has performed all his or her duties under the policy (Paragraph 5).
- Defendant's refusal to defend plaintiff in the third-party action (Paragraph 6).
- Plaintiff's damages proximately caused by defendant's refusal to defend (Paragraph 9) [see Civ. Code §§ 3300 (compensatory damages generally), 3302 (damages for breach of obligation to pay money)].
- A statement that the underlying action was resolved in the third party's favor (Paragraph 10).

Optional Paragraph 7 is for use if plaintiff wishes to allege facts regarding defendant's breach of the implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing [see, e.g., Egan v. Mutual of Omaha Ins. Co. (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 809, 817-819, 157 Cal. Rptr. 482, 598 P.2d 452 (first-party case in which insurer's failure to thoroughly investigate foundation of its denial of medical benefits under policy supported cause of action for breach of implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing)]. Optional Paragraph 8 is for use to allege defendant's refusal to accept a reasonable settlement offer within policy limits [see Samson v. Transamerica Ins. Co. (1981) 30 Cal. 3d 220, 227-228, 237, 178 Cal. Rptr. 343, 636 P.2d 32 (insurer that rejects reasonable settlement offer within policy limits, in addition to refusing to defend, is subject to liability for underlying judgment in excess of policy limits)].

Optional Paragraph 11 is for use to allege that defendant refused to pay the amount of the settlement or judgment in the underlying action.

Optional Paragraph 12 is for use if plaintiff wishes to allege compensatory damages caused by defendant's tortious conduct [see Civ. Code § 3333; see, e.g., Egan v. Mutual of Omaha Ins. Co. (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 809, 817, 824, n.11, 157 Cal. Rptr. 482, 598 P.2d 452 (insured entitled to emotional-distress damages proximately caused by insurer's bad faith breach of duty of good faith and fair dealing; award of future policy benefits also proper)].

Optional Paragraph 13 is for use if plaintiff wishes to allege that he or she may recover exemplary damages based on defendant's tortious conduct [see Civ. Code § 3294 (punitive damages generally)].

[4] Decisions

Institution of underlying third-party "suit" triggering insurer's duty to defend must be actual filing of complaint that initiates court proceeding, rather than substantive or functional equivalent of court proceedings, e.g., notice or order issued by administrative agency. Foster-Gardner, Inc. v. National Union Fire Ins. Co. (1998) 18 Cal. 4th 857, 879, 888-889, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 107, 959 P.2d 265 ; Consolidated Am. Ins. v. Mike Soper Marine (9th Cir. 1991) 951 F.2d 186, 190

Insurer that rejects reasonable settlement offer within policy limits, in addition to refusing to defend, as subject to liability for underlying third-party judgment in excess of policy limits. Samson v. Transamerica Ins. Co. (1981) 30 Cal. 3d 220, 227-228, 237, 178 Cal. Rptr. 343, 636 P.2d 32 ; Consolidated Am. Ins. v. Mike Soper Marine (9th Cir. 1991) 951 F.2d 186, 190

In action by insured against insurer for reimbursement based on breach of contractual duty to defend, reasonable settlement made by insured to terminate underlying claim is presumptive evidence of fact and amount of insured's liability on claim. *Peter Culley & Assocs. v. Emotional distress damages and future policy benefits as recoverable compensatory damages under Civ. Code § 3333 in tort cause of action for breach of implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing. Egan v. Mutual of Omaha Ins. Co. (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 809, 824 n.11, 157 Cal. Rptr. 482, 598 P.2d 452

Insurer's failure to thoroughly investigate foundation of denial of benefits under policy as supporting cause of action for breach of implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing. Egan v. Mutual of Omaha Ins. Co. (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 809, 817-819, 157 Cal. Rptr. 482, 598 P.2d 452

Insurer that tortiously breaches duty to defend liable for full amount of default entered against insured in underlying action; insured need not prove that judgment would have been less had insurer undertaken defense. *Amato v. [2] Use of Form

This form of complaint is for use by a judgment creditor of an insured to recover from the insurer on an assigned cause of action, the amount of the underlying judgment against the insured in excess of the insurance policy limits, based on the insurer's wrongful failure to settle the claim within policy limits.

For a form of complaint brought by an insured to recover the amount of a third-party judgment in excess of policy limits, see § 308.461.

[3] Allegations

This form of complaint alleges (1) the issuance of the policy by defendant to the insured, and the relevant policy terms (Paragraph 2); (2) the occurrence of a loss to plaintiff covered by the policy, giving rise to defendant's liability (Paragraph 3); (3) a statement that there was a substantial likelihood that plaintiff's recovery would exceed the policy limits (Paragraph 4) [see Murphy v. Allstate Ins. Co. (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 937, 941, 132 Cal. Rptr. 424, 553 P.2d 584] ; (4) the filing of the underlying action by plaintiff (Paragraph 6); (5) a statement that plaintiff made a reasonable settlement offer within policy limits to the insurer in the underlying action following filing of suit, and that defendant refused the offer (Paragraph 7); (6) the terms of the underlying judgment (Paragraph 8); (7) defendant's payment to plaintiff of the portion of the underlying judgment within policy limits (Paragraph 9); (8) a statement of damages in the amount of the balance of the judgment not paid together with interest (Paragraph 11); (9) a statement that the insured performed all his or her duties under the policy (Paragraph 12); and (10) facts regarding the assignment of the insured's claim to plaintiff (Paragraph 15) [see Ins. Code § 11580(b)(2)].

Optional Paragraph 5 is for use if plaintiff wishes to allege that the plaintiff made a reasonable settlement offer, requesting an amount within policy limits to defendant prior to filing of the underlying action, and defendant's refusal of the offer. Optional Paragraph 10 is for use if plaintiff wishes to allege acts regarding defendant's tortious breach of the insurer's duty to settle, in support of the award of exemplary, or punitive, damages [see, e.g., Egan v. Mutual of Omaha Ins. Co. (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 809, 817-819, 157 Cal. Rptr. 482, 598 P.2d 452 (first-party case in which insurer's failure thoroughly to investigate foundation of its denial of medical benefits under policy supported cause of action for breach of implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing)]. Optional Paragraph 13 is for use if plaintiff wishes to allege compensatory damages caused by defendant's tortious failure to settle [see Civ. Code § 3333]. Optional Paragraph 14 is for use if plaintiff wishes to request exemplary damages based on defendant's tortious conduct [see Civ. Code § 3294 (punitive damages generally)].

[4] Entitlement and Assignability of Damages

A single cause of action for a wrongful failure to settle within policy limits can give rise to two forms of damages: (1) compensation for pecuniary loss (which would include the amount of the judgment in excess of the policy limit), and (2) general damages for mental distress [see Purcell v. Colonial Ins. Co. (1971) 20 Cal. App. 3d 807, 812, 97 Cal. Rptr. 874] . The first type of damages may be assigned to the insured's judgment creditor but the second type may not, although an as signment of the cause of action to the judgment creditor without a reservation of the cause of action insofar as it is based on a claim for damages for mental suffering will result in a waiver of the latter claim [see Cain v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (1975) 47 Cal. App. 3d 783, 784-795, 121 Cal. Rptr. 200 ; Purcell v. Colonial Ins. Co. (1971) 20 Cal. App. 3d 807, 814, 97 Cal. Rptr. 874] .

[1] FORM Complaint by Insured's Judgment Creditor Against Insurer to Recover Amount of Judgment Against Insured, and for Compensatory and Punitive Damages Based on Insurer's Bad Faith Refusal to Pay Amount of Judgment After Judgment Became Final [Ins. Code § 11580]

1. At all times herein mentioned, defendant was, and is, a corporation organized and existing under the laws of _____ [state or foreign country] [, with its principal place of business in this state situated in _____ County,] and authorized to transact, or transacting, business in California as a liability insurer [or other allegation of capacity and authority as appropriate].

2. On _____ [date], plaintiff obtained a judgment against _____ [name of insured] (the "insured") in the _____ Court of _____, in an action entitled _____ v. _____, case number _____, for damages in the amount of $_____, for _____ [specify, e.g., personal injuries suffered by plaintiff on the business premises of the insured as the proximate result of the negligence of the insured and its employees]. A copy of that judgment is attached as Exhibit A and incorporated herein. That judgment became final on _____ [date] and is not subject to further appeal.

3. At all times during which the events forming the basis for the above-mentioned action occurred, the insured was insured by defendant under a policy of _____ [e.g., business general liability or homeowners or automobile] insurance, policy number _____ (the "policy"), under which defendant agreed to _____ [specify relevant policy terms, e.g., "pay all sums that the insured shall become legally obligated to pay as damages because of 'bodily injury' or 'property damage' to which this insurance applies."]

4. Plaintiff is informed and believes, and alleges, that the insured performed all the terms and conditions that the insured was required to perform under the policy.

5. Under the terms of the policy, defendant was obligated to pay the damages awarded to plaintiff against the insured in above-mentioned action. [If insurer represented or conceded the existence of coverage, or failed to deny coverage, add statement to that effect.]

6. The policy _____ [provides or is deemed by operation of California Insurance Code Section 11850 to provide] that _____ [set out relevant statutory language as follows, or give language used in policy if it varies from statutory language: "whenever judgment is secured against the insured ... in an action based upon bodily injury, death, or property damage, then an action may be brought against the insurer on the policy and subject to its terms and limitations, by such judgment creditor to recover on the judgment."]

7. When the aforementioned judgment became final, plaintiff, as a judgment creditor of the insured, became a third-party beneficiary of the contract between defendant and the insured by virtue of the operation of [the policy provision quoted above and] California Insurance Code Section 11850. As a third party beneficiary, plaintiff was [and is] entitled to immediate payment from defendant of the entire amount awarded to plaintiff in the above-mentioned action.

8. On _____ [date], [and repeatedly since then,] plaintiff demanded that defendant pay the amount of the judgment obtained by plaintiff in the above-mentioned action.

9. Defendant _____ [has repeatedly refused, and still refuses to pay plaintiff _____ (all or any portion of the judgment or specify portion of judgment, e.g., any portion of the judgment in excess of $50,000) as required by the policy or delayed paying plaintiff the amount of the judgment until _____ (date)].

10. By virtue of plaintiff's status as a third party beneficiary of the insurance contract between defendant and the insured, defendant also _____ [owed or owes] directly to plaintiff a duty of good faith and fair dealing in connection with payment of the judgment in the above-mentioned action.

11. Defendant's _____ [refusal or delay] was unreasonable and made in bad faith, in that defendant had no lawful or reasonable ground on which to _____ [refuse to pay or delay paying] plaintiff the amount of the judgment.

[Add if insurer's failure to pay judgment has not been cured by the time action is filed: 12. As a proximate result of defendant's _____ (failure and refusal to pay or delay in paying) plaintiff the full amount of the judgment as herein alleged, plaintiff has been damaged in the sum of $_____ (amount of judgment), together with interest thereon at the legal rate from the date the judgment was entered and continuing until the date it _____ (was or is) paid.]

[13. _____ (Allege any other injuries or damages proximately caused by defendant's conduct, e.g., emotional distress damages).]

14. In committing the acts described in Paragraphs 9 and 11 of this complaint, defendant acted in conscious disregard of the rights of plaintiff and was guilty of _____ [malice and/or oppression and/or fraud] in that _____ [specify facts constituting malice, oppression, or fraud]. The conduct of defendant warrants an assessment of punitive damages in an amount appropriate to punish defendant and deter others from engaging in similar wrongful conduct.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendant as follows:

[1. For the sum of $_____ [amount of judgment], together with interest thereon at the legal rate from and after _____ [date], until paid;]

2. For general damages in the sum of $_____;

3. For special damages _____ [according to proof or in the sum of $_____;

4. For exemplary damages;

[2] Use of Form

This form is a complaint for use by a judgment creditor against an insurer that refuses to pay a judgment against its insured after that judgment has become final [see Ins. Code § 11580]. The complaint seeks recovery of the amount of the judgment, if that amount has not already been paid, and compensatory and punitive damages based on the insurer's unreasonable failure to pay all or part of the judgment (or delay in paying the judgment) after the judgment has become final.

For a complaint by a judgment creditor against an insurer to recover only the amount of the underlying judgment against an insured, see § 308.460. For a complaint by a judgment creditor seeking damages for breach of the insurer's covenant of good faith and fair dealing to its insured, based on an assignment of the insured's claims to the judgment creditor, see § 308.463. For complaints by an insured against the insured's own insurance carrier generally and for damages for breach of the covenant of good faith and fair dealing, see §§ 308.379, 308.461, and 308.462.

[3] Right of Judgment Creditor to Recover Judgment From Insurer

Ins. Code § 11580, which is often referred to as the "direct action" statute, permits the judgment creditor of an insured to sue the insurer directly on the policy to recover the amount of the judgment, subject to the terms and limitations of the policy. It has been held that by virtue of this statute, the judgment creditorbecomes a third-party beneficiary of the insurance contract after the judgment against the insurer becomes final [Murphy v. Allstate Ins. Co. (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 937, 943, 132 Cal. Rptr. 424, 553 P.2d 584 ; Hand v. Farmers Ins. Exch. (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 1847, 1857, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 258] . For a complaint by an insured's judgment creditor against the insurer seeking only the amount of the underlying judgment, see § 308.460.

Paragraph 12 of this form seeks recovery of the underlying judgment in situations when that judgment has not been paid, and to that extent duplicates the allegations of the form in § 308.460. If the underlying judgment has already been paid, and the action seeks recovery for unreasonable delay in paying the judgment rather than an ongoing refusal to do so, Paragraph 12 should be eliminated, and the appropriate alternative language should be used in other paragraphs.

[4] Right of Judgment Creditor to Maintain Direct Action Against Insurer for Breach of Covenant of Good Faith and Fair Dealing

The general rule is that persons not a party to the insurance contract cannot directly sue an insurer for breach of the covenant of good faith and fair dealing [Coleman v. Gulf Ins. Group (1986) 41 Cal. 3d 782, 795, 226 Cal. Rptr. 90, 718 P.2d 77 ; Murphy v. Allstate Ins. Co. (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 937, 943-944, 132 Cal. Rptr. 424, 553 P.2d 584] . Ordinarily, the third party must first obtain an assignment of the insured's claims against the insurer, and then assert those claims against the insurer in the insured's place. For a form suitable for use when an assignment of the insured's rights has been obtained, see § 308.463.

Under a limited exception to this rule, a judgment creditor has been permitted to bring a direct action for breach of the covenant of good faith and fair dealing against an insurer that refuses, unreasonably and in bad faith, to pay the entire amount of a judgment after it becomes final [Hand v. Farmers Ins. Exch. (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 1847, 1857, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 258] . In this limited situation, since a direct right of action exists, it is unnecessary for the insurer to obtain an assignment of the claim from the insured. The rationale for this exception is that by virtue of Ins. Code § 11580, a judgment creditor of an insured enjoys third party beneficiary status and rights under the policy. These rights include the covenant of good faith and fair dealing. Moreover, from the point the judgment becomes final, the insurer's duty to pay runs contractually to the judgment creditor as well as the insured. Thus, the insurer owes the judgment creditor the duty to exercise good faith in not withholding adjudicated damages, and the judgment creditor may maintain an action against the insurer for breach of that duty [Hand v. Farmers Ins. Exch. (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 1847, 1856-1858, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 258 ; see Murphy v. Allstate Ins. Co. (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 937, 943-944, 132 Cal. Rptr. 424, 553 P.2d 584] .

The judgment creditor may maintain a direct action against the insurer only with respect to duties that are directly owed to the judgment creditor. For example, the insurer's duty to settle, which forms the basis for a high percentage of third-party bad faith claims, runs only to the insured, and may not be enforced by the judgment creditor since it occurs before the judgment creditor acquires any rights by virtue of Ins. Code § 11580 [Murphy v. Allstate Ins. Co. (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 937, 943-944, 132 Cal. Rptr. 424, 553 P.2d 584 ; Hand v. Farmers Ins. Exch. (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 1847, 1856-1858, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 258] .

As with other bad faith claims, a judgment creditor's cause of action for bad faith nonpayment of a finally adjudicated claim may sound in tort as well as contract [Hand v. Farmers Ins. Exch. (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 1847, 1860, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 258] , and tort damages therefore may be available.

[5] Single Action Seeking Recovery of Underlying Judgment and Damages for Bad Faith

If the insurer has not paid the amount of the underlying judgment, the judgment creditor may seek recovery of that amount, as well as damages for the insurer's bad faith refusal to pay it, in a single action [Hand v. Farmers Ins. Exch. (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 1847, 1859-1860, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 258] . The insurer is free, however, to assert defenses in such an action, including the defense of noncoverage [see Hand v. Farmers Ins. Exch. (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 1847, 1852, 1859, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 258] .

[6] Cautionary Note

Tomaselli v. Transamerica Ins. Co. (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 1766, 31 Cal. Rptr. 2d 224 , restricts the right of an insured to bring an action against its own insurer after the insured obtains a bad faith judgment and the insurer refuses to pay that judgment. In Tomaselli, the court held that the entry of judgment absolves the insurer of any further contractual obligations, and that the insureds therefore cannot assert a second bad faith claim based on the insurer's failure to pay the first judgment, either on the basis of the covenant of good faith and fair dealing or by virtue of their status as judgment creditors [Tomaselli v. Transamerica Ins. Co. (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 1766, 1771, 31 Cal. Rptr. 2d 224] . Thomaselli appears to be distinguishable from Hand v. Farmers Ins. Exch. (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 1847, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 258 , on the basis that Thomaselli involved a claim by an insured as judgment creditor (a situation in which Ins. Code § 11580 is inapplicable), rather than a third party as judgment creditor as was the case in Hand. Nevertheless, Thomaselli contains some very broad language to the effect that the covenant of good faith and fair dealing is extinguished once the insurer's contractual duties to pay have been transformed from a contract right into a judgment [Tomaselli v. Transamerica Ins. Co. (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 1766, 1771-1772, 31 Cal. Rptr. 2d 224] . Pending further developments in the case law, it appears that other courts could applyelements of this rationale to deny recovery in similar circumstances involving third-party claims.

[7] State Statutes

"Direct action" statute permitting judgment creditor to recover amount of judgment directly from insurer. Ins. Code § 11580.2

[8] Decisions

General rule that third party claimants may not bring actions directly against insurer for breach of covenant of good faith and fair dealing. Coleman v. Gulf Ins. Group (1986) 41 Cal. 3d 782, 795, 226 Cal. Rptr. 90, 718 P.2d 77 ; Murphy v. Allstate Ins. Co. (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 937, 943-944, 132 Cal. Rptr. 424, 553 P.2d 584

"Direct action" statute makes judgment creditor a third-party beneficiary of insurance contract and allow judgment creditor to enforce implied contractual covenants to extent that those covenants or their duties run in its favor. Murphy v. Allstate Ins. Co. (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 937, 943-944, 132 Cal. Rptr. 424, 553 P.2d 584 ; Hand v. Farmers Ins. Exch. (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 1847, 1857, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 258

Judgment creditor may maintain direct action against insurer that refuses, unreasonably and in bad faith, to pay judgment creditor claimant entire amount of judgment after it becomes final. Hand v. Farmers Ins. Exch. (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 1847, 1857-1859, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 258

Judgment creditor may not maintain direct action against insurer for bad-faith failure to settle a claim against its insured, absent an assignment of insured's rights. Murphy v. Allstate Ins. Co. (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 937, 943-944, 132 Cal. Rptr. 424, 553 P.2d 584 ; see Hand v. Farmers Ins. Exch. (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 1847, 1857-1858, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 258

[2] Use of Form

This form of complaint is for use by the insured against the insurer under a valued marine insurance policy to recover for loss of the insured ship from a covered peril where the insurer has refused to pay. With appropriate modifications it may also be used to recover for partial loss of the ship or for total or partial loss of cargo under a valued policy. For a discussion of the essential allegations of a complaint for breach of an insurance contract, the number of copies to prepare, and verification, see § 308.370. For complaints seeking damages for a tortious breach of contract which may be adapted for use under a marine policy, see §§ 308.379 and 308, 380.

[3] "Valued Policy" Defined

A valued policy is one which expresses on its face an agreement that the thing insured shall be valued at a specified sum [Ins. Code § 412].

[4] Effect of Valuation

Except where a valuation is fraudulent in fact or the subject matter has been hypothecated by bottomry or respondentia before its insurance and without the knowledge of the person actually procuring the insurance, a valuation in a marine insurance policy is conclusive between the parties in the adjustment of either a partial or total loss if the insured has some interest at risk and there is no fraud on his or her part [*Ins. [2] Use of Form

This form of complaint is for use by the insured against the insurer under an open marine insurance policy to recover for loss of the property insured where the insurer has refused to pay.

[3] "Open Policy" Defined

An open policy is one in which the value of the subject matter is not agreed on but is left to be ascertained in case of loss [Ins. Code § 411].

[4] Rules for Estimating Loss Under Open Policy

In estimating a loss under an open policy of marine insurance, the following rules must be observed:

- The value of a ship is its value at the beginning of the risk, including all articles or charges which add to its permanent value or which are necessary to prepare it for the voyage insured.

- The value of cargo is either its actual cost to the insured, when laden on board, or, where that cost cannot be ascertained, its market value at the time and place of lading, adding the charges incurred in purchasing and placing it on board, but without reference to:

  - Any losses incurred in raising money for its purchase;

  - Any drawback on its exportation;

  - The fluctuations of the market at the port of destination; or

  - Expenses incurred on the way or on arrival.

- The value of freightage is the gross freightage, exclusive of primage, without reference to the cost of earning it.

- The cost of insurance is in each case to be added to the value thus estimated [Ins. Code § 1992].

[5] Partial Loss of Ship or Equipments

In the case of a partial loss of a ship or its equipments, the old materials are to be applied towards payment for the new. Whether the ship is new or old, a marine insurer is liable for only two-thirds of the remaining cost of the repairs after such deduction, except that anchors and cannon must be paid for in full, and sheathingmetal at a depreciation of only two and one-half percent for each month that it has been fastened to the ship [Ins. Code § 1997].

[6] Damaged Cargo

If cargo insured against partial loss arrives at the port of destination ina damaged condition, the loss of the insured is computed as follows:

- Deduct the market price, at the port of destination, of the damaged subject matter from its market price there when sound; and

- Take that proportion of the value which the remainder thus ascertained bears to such market price when sound [Ins. Code § 1993].

[2] Use of Form

This form is for use by either the insured or insurer to demand appraisal of the actual cash value of and amount of loss to property under a policy insuring against the risk causing the loss where the parties cannot agree on the value or loss and the policy provides for appraisal on demand of either party. The demand for appointment of appraisers and an umpire will, of course, comply with whatever requirements are specified in the policy. The demand may be, and frequently is, made in the form of a letter rather than in notice form. This form may be recast in letter form. For a letter form demanding arbitration pursuant to an arbitrationclause, see Ch. 32, Contractual Arbitration: Agreements and Compelling Arbitration .

[3] Changes in Standard Fire and Residential Property Policies Issued or Renewed After December 31, 2001

In the aftermath of the Northridge earthquake, the California legislature enacted and amended certain Insurance Code provisions to increase the rights of insureds under residential property policies sold in California that originated or were renewed after December 31, 2001. Among other provisions enacted for this purpose, Ins. Code § 2071 sets forth an appraisal clause for inclusion in the standard form of fire insurance policy. Similarly, Ins. Code § 10082.3 sets forth the same appraisal provision applicable to residential property insurance policies [see Ins. Code § 10087], to policies, endorsements, or certificates of insurance regarding earthquake coverage [see Ins. Code § 10020 et seq.], and to basic residential earthquake policies [see Ins. Code § 10089.5 et seq.].

The appraisal provision under these statutes contains significant new language providing, for example, that appraisals are requested, rather than demanded, that appraisals are informal unless otherwise stipulated, and that appraisals may not be compelled in the event of an official disaster) [Ins. Code §§ 2071, 10082.3]. For the complete text of this new appraisal provision, see §§ 308.150 and 308.151[1].

Because the allegations of the affirmative defense are deemed denied by the plaintiff [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.20(b)], the defendant may not move for judgment on the pleadings on the basis of it. The defendant may, however, if the defense can be established by affidavits, declarations under penalty of perjury, or other proper papers, move for summary judgment under Code Civ. Proc. § 437c. [1] FORM Affirmative Defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--Action Against Liability Insurer--Failure of Insured to Comply With "No Action" Clause

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state: TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that: the policy sued on contains the provision that no action shall be brought under the policy until _____ [recite relevant term of policy, e.g., the amount of the insured's obligations shall have been finally determined either by judgment against the insured after actual trial or by written agreement of the insured, the claimant, and the company]. That provision has not been complied with inasmuch as _____ [state specifics of noncompliance, e.g., defendant never agreed with respect to the amount of its insured's obligations, nor were the amount of those obligations ever determined by a judgment following actual trial].

[2] Use of Form

This form, for use in an action against a liability insurer, states as an affirmative defense noncompliance with the terms of the "no action" clause in the insurer's policy. For additional information on affirmative defenses, see § 308.490[2].

[3] "No Action" Clause

Standard liability policies contain a clause typically labeled "Action Against Company" (1973 ISO CGL Form) or "Legal Action Against Us" (1986 ISO CGL Form), and more commonly referred to as the "no action" clause. The precise language of the "no action" clause depends on the policy form being used, but the clause typically provides that no party has a right to sue the insurer on the policy unless all terms of the policy have been fully complied with and until the amount of the insured's obligation has been finally determined "either by judgment against the insured after actual trial or by written agreement of the insured, the claimant and the insurer." A more recent variation of this language states that suit may be brought upon "an agreed settlement or on a final judgment against an insured against an actual trial ... An agreed settlement means a settlement and release of liability signed by us, the insured, and the claimant or the claimant's legal representative."

[4] "Actual Trial" Requirement

The permissible scope of the "no action" clause is limited by Ins. Code § 11580(b)(2), which requires that all liability policies issued in California contain a provision that whenever judgment is secured against the insured in anaction based on bodily injury, death, or property damage, an action may be brought against the insurer by the judgment creditor to recover on the judgment, subject to the policy terms and limitations. This statutory language arguably conflicts with the "actual trial" requirement of the no-action clause. Although the law on this point may not be fully settled, a judgment creditor has been permitted to sue an insurer under Ins. Code § 11580(b)(2) when the insured enters into a stipulated judgment without trial after the insurer has wrongfully refused to defend, assuming that there is no fraud or collusion in the settlement [Sanchez v. Truck Ins. Exch. (1994) 21 Cal. App. 4th 1778, 1786-1787, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 812] . On the other hand, it has been held that if the insurer provides independent counsel or otherwise participates in the defense, the "actual trial" requirement of the "no action" clause bars an action based on a stipulated judgment entered into without the insurer's consent [Wright v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Cos. (1992) 11 Cal. App. 4th 998, 1016-1017, 14 Cal. Rptr. 2d 588 ; Rose v. Royal Ins. Co. (1991) 2 Cal. App. 4th 709, 716, 3 Cal. Rptr. 2d 483] .

One case interpreting the "actual trial" requirement focused not on whether the insurer provided a defense in the underlying action, but rather on the essential fairness of the process used to determine the result in the underlying action. In that case, the court, after examining prior authority, concluded that two elements are necessary to satisfy the "actual trial" requirement in the standard "no action" clause: (1) an independent adjudication of facts based on an evidentiary showing; and (2) a process that does not create the potential for abuse, fraud, or collusion [National Union Fire Ins. Co. v. Lynette C. (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th 1434, 1449, 33 Cal. Rptr. 2d 496] . In that case, the parties to the underlying action stipulated that in exchange for a covenant not to execute and a nondisclosure agreement, the action would proceed as an uncontested matter. Plaintiff's counsel presented evidence on liability and damages to a judge, who rendered a decision on those issues (the insurer's counsel was involved in the negotiations at an earlier stage, but took a "neutral" posture in the uncontested action). In the subsequent declaratory relief action under Ins. Code § 11580, the court concluded that the uncontested proceeding in the underlying action satisfied the two-part test stated above, and therefore met the "actual trial" requirement of the policy's "no action" clause [National Union Fire Ins. Co. v. Lynette C. (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th 1434, 1451, 33 Cal. Rptr. 2d 496] .

Right of judgment creditor to bring action against insurer after obtaining judgment against insured in action based on bodily injury, death, or property damage, subject to policy terms and limitations. Ins. Code § 11580(b)(2)

[6] Decisions

Owner of apartment complex (contractually required to be added as additional insurer on contractor's liability policy) and its insurer, properly named subcontractors on construction project in question and subcontractors' liability insurer as defendants in same suit; prohibition against suing insurer and insured in same action does not apply if insured is not injured third party (in this suit, tenants no longer involved in dispute because their claims were settled); moreover, if building owner is additional insured, then is first party and is not prohibited from suing both insurer and insured in same suit. Royal Surplus Lines Ins. Co. v. Ranger Ins. Co. (2002) 100 Cal. App. 4th 193, 200-201, 122 Cal. Rptr. 2d 459

"Actual trial" requirement of "no action" clause has two components: (1) independent adjudication of facts based on evidentiary showing; and (2) process that does not create potential for abuse, fraud, or collusion. Procedure under which, in exchange for covenant not to execute and nondisclosure agreement, underlying action would proceed as uncontested matter in which insurer's counsel took neutral posture and evidence on liability and damages was presented to judge who made decision on those issues, was sufficient to satisfy these requirements. National Union Fire Ins. Co. v. Lynette C. (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th 1434, 1449, 33 Cal. Rptr. 2d 496

Insurer could not rely on "no action" clause to defeat assigned bad faith cause of action. Camelot by Bay Condo. Owners' Ass'n v. Scottsdale Ins. Co. (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th 33, 43 n.4, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 354

Insurer that refuses to defend its insured cannot rely on "no action" clause to preclude action under Ins. Code § 11580 when stipulated judgment was obtained against insured in good faith. Sanchez v. Truck Ins. Exch. (1994) 21 Cal. App. 4th 1778, 1783-1785, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 812

For purposes of claimant's right under Ins. Code § 11580(b)(2) to recover from insurer, and apart from "no action" clause, stipulated judgment entered into by its insured cannot bind insurer when insurer provided insured with defense and there is no evidence insurer rejected any reasonable settlement offer; cases in which judgments not on merits were found binding on insurer were based on principle tnat insurer who has opportunity to defend and wrongfully fails to do so is liable on judgment. Wright v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Cos. (1992) 11 Cal. App. 4th 998, 1013 n.6, 1016, 14 Cal. Rptr. 2d 588

"Actual trial" requirement of "no action" clause is valid under Ins. Code § 11580(b)(2); consent judgment entered into by parties and approved by court exercising administrative function in simply recording what had been agreed on did not satisfy "actual trial" requirement because term "judgment after actual trial" presupposes contest of issues leading up to final determination by court or jury. Rose v. Royal Ins. Co. (1991) 2 Cal. App. 4th 709, 715-716, 3 Cal. Rptr. 2d 483

Settlement negotiated by primary insurer and confirmed as good-faith settlement by court was binding on excess insurer, despite fact that settlement invaded excess coverage and excess insurer did not consent to settlement; excess insurer may waive its rights under "no action" clause if it rejects reasonable settlement and at same time fails to undertake defense. Diamond Heights Homeowners Ass'n v. National Am. Ins. Co. (1991) 227 Cal. App. 3d 563, 581-581, 277 Cal. Rptr. 906

In case involving first-party progressive property loss claim under homeowner's policy, one-year suit provision of Ins. Code § 2071 begins running from date of "inception of the loss," defined as point in time when appreciable damage occurs and is or should be known to insured, such that reasonable insured would be aware that notification duty under policy has been triggered; one-year period is tolled from time insured gives notice of damage to insurer, under applicable policy notice provisions, until formal written denial of claim. Prudential-LMI Commercial Ins. v. Superior Court (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 674, 679, 686-687, 693, 274 Cal. Rptr. 387, 798 P.2d 1230

Insurer may be estopped from raising one-year suit provision as defense if it did not comply with regulations (10 Cal. Code Reg. § 2695.4(a)) requiring every insurer to disclose to first-party claimant all time limits that might apply to claim presented by claimant. *Spray, Gould & Bowers v. Associated Int'l Ins. Insurer's cancellation of policy does not render limitations clause ambiguous for purposes of bad faith action; summary judgment upheld on grounds that action was barred by limitations clause. Velasquez v. Truck Ins. Exch. (1991) 1 Cal. App. 4th 712, 719, 5 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1

Bad faith action based on denial of claim in underlying policy constitutes action on policy, even though claimant seeks damages in addition to policy benefits; summary judgment based on defense of limitations clause in policy held proper. *Velasquez v. Standard form fire insurance policy is required by California law [Ins. Code §§ 2070, 2071] to contain provisions (1) requiring insured to render to insurance company, within 60 days after loss, formal proof of loss, and (2) stating that no suit or action on policy for recovery of any claim will be sustainable in any court unless commenced within 12 months next after inception of loss. *Elliano v. In action by beneficiaries of deceased insured against insurer to recover life insurance policy benefits, triable issues of material fact existed with respect to whether insured concealed or failed to communicate material information to insurer regarding use of cigarettes in 36 months preceding application for life insurance at nonsmoker rate, precluding summary judgment for insurer, which had rescinded policy and denied claim as improper. *O'Riordan v. § 308.498 Affirmative Defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--Noncoverage of Policy or Loss Resulting From Excluded or Excepted Risk

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--Noncoverage of Policy or Loss Resulting From Excluded or Excepted Risk

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state: TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that:

1. The policy sued on expressly _____ [specify limitation or exclusion, e.g., provides that it does not cover accounts, bills, currency, deeds, evidences of debt, money, or securities or provides that it does not cover loss resulting directly or indirectly from earth movement or excludes any loss resulting from earthquake].

2. [As shown by the complaint herein,] plaintiff seeks to recover for loss _____ [allege facts showing loss was excluded from coverage, e.g., by fire of currency, money, and securities or resulting from earth movement or proximately and immediately resulting from an earthquake].

[2] Use of Form

For discussion of the use of this form, see § 308.490[2]. On the effect of a wrongful denial of coverage by the insurer and its failure to defend the insured under a liability policy, see § 308.110 et seq.

[3] Loss From Excepted Peril

If a peril is specially excepted in an insurance contract and there is a loss that would not have occurred but for that peril, the loss is excepted even though the immediate cause of the loss was a peril that was not excepted [Ins. Code § 532].

Ins. Code § 532 must be read in conjunction with Ins. Code § 530, which provides, "An insurer is liable for a loss of which a peril insured against was the proximate cause, although a peril not contemplated by the contract may have been a remote cause of the loss; but he is not liable for a loss of which the peril insured against was only a remote cause." When Ins. Code § 532 is read along with Ins. Code § 530, the "but for" clause of Ins. Code § 532 necessarily refers to a "proximate cause" of the loss, and the "immediate cause" refers to the cause most immediate in time to the damage [Garvey v. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 395, 402, 257 Cal. Rptr. 292, 770 P.2d 704 ; Sabella v. Wisler (1963) 59 Cal. 2d 21, 33-34, 27 Cal. Rptr. 689, 377 P.2d 889] . Furthermore, because the "but for" clause of Ins. Code § 532 refers to the efficient proximate cause of the loss, coverage would not exist if the covered risk was simply a remote cause of the loss, or if an excluded risk was the efficient proximate (that is, predominant) cause of the loss [Garvey v. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 395, 402-403, 257 Cal. Rptr. 292, 770 P.2d 704] . On the other hand, the fact that an excluded risk contributed to the loss would not preclude coverage if that risk was a remote cause of the loss [Garvey v. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 395, 402-403, 257 Cal. Rptr. 292, 770 P.2d 704] .

The special pleading requirement of former Code Civ. Proc. § 437a (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 431.50), with respect to the answer, when the defendant insurer claims exemption from liability on the ground that, although the proximate cause of the loss was a peril insured against, the loss was remotely caused by or would not have occurred but for a peril excepted in the insurance contract, has been held unconstitutional [Coolidge v. Standard Accident Ins. Co. (1931) 114 Cal. App. 716, 723-724, 300 P. 885 ; Board of Educ. v. Alliance Assurance Co. (1908) 159 F. 994, 1000] .

[4] Coverage Regarding Multiple Causation of Loss

[a] Nature of Coverage is Determinative

The determination of whether coverage exists when there are multiple causes of the loss, some covered and some excluded under the policy, depends initially on the nature of the coverage, that is, whether it is in the context of first-party property damage or third-party liability [Garvey v. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 395, 405-408, 257 Cal. Rptr. 292, 770 P.2d 704] .

[b] First-Party Property Damage

If the loss caused by both included and excluded perils occurred within the context of first-party property damage (such as structural damage to a dwelling insured by a homeowners' policy), the existence of coverage is determined by the "efficient proximate cause" rule. In determining whether a loss is within a policy exception, the efficient cause--the one that sets others in motion--is the cause to which the loss is to be attributed, though the other causes may follow it and operate more immediately in producing the disaster [Garvey v. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 395, 402, 257 Cal. Rptr. 292, 770 P.2d 704 (damage to dwelling allegedly caused by negligent construction (covered) and soil subsidence (excluded)), citing Sabella v. Wisler (1963) 59 Cal. 2d 21, 31-32, 27 Cal. Rptr. 689, 377 P.2d 889 (damage to dwelling allegedly caused by water-pipe leakage (covered) and soil settlement (excluded))]. This rule derives from an earlier case in which the Court examined the issue of coverage in first-party multiple-cause coverage and relied on the determination of the "prime or moving cause" of the loss [Garvey v. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 395, 403, 257 Cal. Rptr. 292, 770 P.2d 704 ; see Brooks v. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co. (1945) 27 Cal. 2d 305, 309-310, 163 P.2d 689 (death of insured caused by fire in house (covered) and insured's disease of cancer (excluded))]. The rule in Garvey applies retroactively [La Bato v. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 336, 343, 263 Cal. Rptr. 382] .

A "classic Garvey" situation was found to exist when a homeowner's policy contained a natural groundwater and earth movement exclusion, but did not exclude third-party negligence, and structural damage to a house built on a mountain slope allegedly involved several levels of causation: (1) prior to the land's development, the state government removed a portion of the slope to create a highway, decreasing the stability of the hillside; (2) various third parties failed to provide adequate water drainage following the development of the slope; and (3) resultant rising groundwater levels caused earth movement beneath the house [see State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. v. Von Der Lieth (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 1123, 1132-1133, 2 Cal. Rptr. 2d 183, 820 P.2d 285] . Under the facts of that case, the efficient proximate cause was held to be the covered risk of third-party negligence [State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. v. Von Der Lieth (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 1123, 1131-1136, 2 Cal. Rptr. 2d 183, 820 P.2d 285] .

Policy exclusions are unenforceable to the extent that they conflict with Ins. Code § 530 and the efficient proximate cause doctrine [Julian v. Hartford Underwriters Ins. Co. (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 747, 754, 27 Cal. Rptr. 3d 648, 110 P.3d 903] . Insurers are therefore prohibited from attempting to contract around the proximate cause doctrine through sweeping language that would have rendered the policies' coverage terms virtually illusory [Julian v. Hartford Underwriters Ins. Co. (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 747, 756, 27 Cal. Rptr. 3d 648, 110 P.3d 903] . Under Ins. Code § 530 and the efficient proximate cause doctrine, reasonable insureds consider themselves insured against losses proximately caused by perils covered under a first-party insurance policy, regardless of contrary language employed in connection with excluded perils [Julian v. Hartford Underwriters Ins. Co. (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 747, 756, 27 Cal. Rptr. 3d 648, 110 P.3d 903 ; see Garvey v. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 395, 412-413, 257 Cal. Rptr. 292, 770 P.2d 704 ; Howell v. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 1446, 1454, 1459, 267 Cal. Rptr. 708] .

This concept has engendered some confusion with respect to whether the exclusion of coverage for losses caused by weather conditions that contribute to excluded losses violates Ins. Code § 530 and the efficient proximate cause doctrine. The California Supreme Court has held that one such policy did exclude coverage for the loss and that the result did not violate Ins. Code § 530. In that case, the insurer that issued an "open peril" policy (analogous to an "all risk" policy) denied coverage for a loss resulting from a rain-induced landslide by invoking a provision that excluded coverage for losses caused by weather conditions that "contribute in any way with" an excluded cause or event such as a landslide. That policy covered losses proximately caused by weather conditions that do not "contribute in any way with" another excluded cause or event. The insurer's investigative engineering report concluded that a landslide, triggered by heavy rainfall, caused the damage to the insureds' house. The Court preliminarily held that Ins. Code § 530 and the efficient proximate cause doctrine do not inflexibly prohibit an insurer from insuring against some manifestations of weather conditions, but not others [Julian v. Hartford Underwriters Ins. Co. (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 747, 759, 27 Cal. Rptr. 3d 648, 110 P.3d 903] . Addressing only the application of the weather conditions clause to a loss occasioned by a rain-induced landslide, the Court concluded that to the extent the weather conditions clause excludes the specific peril of rain inducing a landslide, there is no violation of Ins. Code § 530 or the efficient proximate cause doctrine [Julian v. Hartford Underwriters Ins. Co. (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 747, 760-761, 27 Cal. Rptr. 3d 648, 110 P.3d 903] . The Court noted, however, that the phrase "contribute in any way with" that links weather conditions with earth movement in this case "seems particularly designed to circumvent the efficient proximate cause doctrine." A construction of the weather conditions clause that would deny a fair result within the reasonable expectations of both the insured and the insurer would therefore be open to attack on the ground that the application of the clause impermissibly circumvents the efficient proximate cause doctrine [see Julian v. Hartford Underwriters Ins. Co. (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 747, 760, 27 Cal. Rptr. 3d 648, 110 P.3d 903] .

Notwithstanding the rule in Garvey, the parties have the right to enlarge coverage beyond the language of Ins. Code §§ 530 and 532. If they do so, the broad coverage language in the policy prevails over the statutory rules of causation. For example, an all-risks policy that covered damage to a construction project "contributed to or aggravated by" a flood, provided coverage when a flood damaged the project, despite the jury's finding that a design defect, an excluded peril, was the "efficient cause" of the damage [Mission Nat'l Ins. Co. v. Coachella Valley Water Dist. (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 484, 497, 258 Cal. Rptr. 639] .

In Garvey, the Court projected that a case might arise in which courts should distinguish between types of negligence when determining whether a loss caused by negligence is covered under a similar policy. Specifically, the Court observed that if construction is undertaken on the insured premises for the sole purpose of protecting against the operation of a specifically excluded risk under the policy, and that improvement subsequently fails to serve its purpose because it was negligently designed or constructed, the damage to the structure should arguably not be covered. On the other hand, ordinary negligence that contributes to property loss, but does not involve acts undertaken to protect against an excluded risk, may give rise to coverage under an all-risk policy [Garvey v. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 395, 408-409 n.7, 257 Cal. Rptr. 292, 770 P.2d 704] . As the Supreme Court later clarified, that observation simply indicates that an insured cannot automatically transform an uncovered loss into a covered one by claiming a negligent construction job existed in the chain of causation [State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. v. Von Der Lieth (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 1123, 1135, 2 Cal. Rptr. 2d 183, 820 P.2d 285] .

Therefore, an insurer cannot rely on that language in Garvey to exclude coverage based on a landslide or earth movement precipitated by the negligent acts of third parties, when those acts exposed the property to greater danger danger of landslides and earth movement without taking precautionary measures against those occurrences, rather than having been undertaken for the purpose of lessening those dangers [State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. v. Von Der Lieth (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 1123, 1134-1135, 2 Cal. Rptr. 2d 183, 820 P.2d 285 (citing with approval Davis v. United Servs. Auto. Ass'n (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 1322, 1329-1330, 273 Cal. Rptr. 224 (finding coverage under policy excluding risk of settlement, when contractor failed to reinforce foundation, but improvements were made for purpose of grading land and supporting structure, not merely for earth-movement prevention), and Winans v. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. (1990) 743 F. Supp. 733, 736 (construction negligence resulting in earth settling is separate act not excluded under earth-movement exclusion))]. In other words, the observation in Garvey regarding different types of negligence was never intended to exclude coverage for negligence when the record establishes that the negligently constructed improvements were the type undertaken for reasons other than prevention of an excluded occurrence [State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. v. Von Der Lieth (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 1123, 1135, 2 Cal. Rptr. 2d 183, 820 P.2d 285 ; Davis v. United Servs. Auto. Ass'n (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 1322, 1329, 273 Cal. Rptr. 224] . To hold otherwise would render third-party negligence coverage illusory [State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. v. Von Der Lieth (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 1123, 1135, 2 Cal. Rptr. 2d 183, 820 P.2d 285] .

[c] Third-Party Liability

If the loss caused by both included and excluded perils occurred within the context of third-party liability, the existence of coverage is determined by the "concurrent proximate cause" rule. Although there may be some question whether either of the causes can be characterized as the "prime," "moving," or "efficient" cause of the accident, coverage under a liability insurance policy is equally available to an insured whenever an insured risk constitutes simply a concurrent cause of the injuries [State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v. Partridge (1973) 10 Cal. 3d 94, 104-105, 109 Cal. Rptr. 811, 514 P.2d 123 (car passenger injured by insured's firing of pistol in car, caused by insured's filing of "hair trigger" and negligent driving)].

In contrast, when the cause of an injury can occur only through the operation of an excluded peril, the exclusion cannot be avoided. For example, an exclusion for injury arising from the use of a vehicle would apply to injuries caused by the negligent welding of the chassis. Although the welding was a separate act of negligence from negligent driving, the plaintiffs could have been exposed to the negligent welding only through the use of the vehicle. [Gurrola v. Great Sw. Ins. Co. (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 65, 67, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 749 , discussing State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v. Partridge (1973) 10 Cal. 3d 94, 109 Cal. Rptr. 811, 514 P.2d 123 and State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. v. Camara (1976) 63 Cal. App. 3d 48, 133 Cal. Rptr. 600] .

The "concurrent proximate cause" rule for third-party liability is inapplicable in the first-party context [Garvey v. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 395, 410-413, 257 Cal. Rptr. 292, 770 P.2d 704] .

[b] Exclusions From Coverage

"Weather conditions" clause, excluding coverage for losses incurred when weather conditions contribute to loss caused by an excluded peril, did not violate *Ins. The policy sued on provides in part as follows: _____ [set forth policy provision requiring notice and proof of loss, e.g., "The insured shall give written notice to this company of any loss without unnecessary delay ... and within 60 days after the loss, unless such time is extended in writing by this company, the insured shall render to this company a proof of loss, signed and sworn to by the insured ..."].

2. [The first notice defendant received of the loss for which recovery is sought was in the complaint herein on its service on defendant on _____ and] [A]t no time, within 60 days after the loss or otherwise, has plaintiff rendered to defendent a proof of loss as required by the terms of the policy or any proof of loss at all. Nor has the time within which the proof of loss was to be rendered pursuant to the above policy provision been extended by defendant in writing or at all.

3. Plaintiff's failure to [give notice and] render proof of loss as herein alleged substantially prejudiced defendant's rights in that _____ [specify facts showing prejudice].

[2] Use of Form

This form of defense is for insertion in an answer to a complaint seeking recovery of a loss covered by a policy insuring against risks to property when the insured failed to give timely notice and proof of loss, and that failure prejudiced the insurer [see § 308.463]. With appropriate modifications it may be used in an answer to a complaint seeking recovery under any type of policy when the insured failed to give notice or proof of the accident, injury, death, claim, or loss [see, e.g., Ins. Code §§ 550 (fire), 551 (casualty), 555 (proof by third party), 10350.5, 10350.7 (disability)] as required by the terms of the policy.

[3] "Notice-Prejudice" Rule

California courts follow the so-called "notice-prejudice" rule. Under that rule, the insured's failure to give timely notice under the policy will not defeat the insured's right to recovery unless the insurer has been substantially prejudiced by that failure [see Campbell v. Allstate Ins. Co. (1963) 60 Cal. 2d 303, 306, 32 Cal. Rptr. 827, 384 P.2d 155] . Prejudice is not presumed as a matter of law to result from late notice, and the insured has the burden of proving actual prejudice [Moev. Transamerica Title Ins. Co. (1971) 21 Cal. App. 3d 289, 302, 98 Cal. Rptr. 547] . However, the notice-prejudice rule has been held inapplicable to "claims-made" insurance policies [Helfand v. National Union Fire Ins. Co. (1992) 10 Cal. App. 4th 869, 888, 13 Cal. Rptr. 2d 295] . For additional discussion of the notice-prejudice rule and notice requirements in insurance policies generally, see California Insurance Law and Practice, Chs. 12 and 41 (Matthew Bender).

[4] State Statutes

Notice and proofs of loss. Ins. Code §§ 550-552, 555

Waiver of defects in proof or delay. Ins. Code §§ 553, 554

Standard form fire insurance policy must include notice of loss, inventory, and proof of loss. Ins. Code § 2071

Duty of insurer under standard form of fire insurance policy to notify insured of right to obtain claim-related documents. Ins. Code § 2071(a)

[5] Decisions

[a] Defense

Defense that neither plaintiff nor anyone on his behalf gave notice or proof of loss as required by the policy. West Coast Lumber Co. v. State Inv. & Ins. Co. (1893) 98 Cal. 502, 506-507, 33 P. 258

[b] Delay in Giving Notice

Unless requirement for notice to insurer in event of loss is made condition precedent to recovery on policy or a forfeiture is provided for, failure to give notice does not defeat recovery. Abrams v. American Fid. & Cas. Co. (1948) 32 Cal. 2d 233, 236-237, 195 P.2d 797

Compliance with policy requirement for notice is shown if reasonable explanation for delay is given; accepted excuse restores timeliness of notice. Wasson v. Atlantic Nat'l Ins. Co. (1962) 207 Cal. App. 2d 464, 468, 24 Cal. Rptr. 665 , disapproved on other grounds, Campbell v. Allstate Ins. Co. (1963) 60 Cal. 2d 303, 307, 32 Cal. Rptr. 827, 384 P.2d 155

[c] Discovery of Loss

"Discovery of loss" for notice purposes under bond means time when insured discovers it has suffered loss, not time when insured discovers potential loss; discovery of loss regarding embezzlement liability occurred when insured paid plaintiff to settle third-party lawsuit. Downey Sav. & Loan Ass'n v. Ohio Cas. Ins. Co. (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 1072, 1089, 234 Cal. Rptr. 835

[d] Duty of Court

Court, in absence of fraud on part of insured, is under obligation to carefully examine evidence regarding failure to furnish proof of loss by fire so as to avoid forfeiture of legitimate claims merely because of technical omissions. Elliano v. Assurance Co. of Am. (1970) 3 Cal. App. 3d 446, 449, 83 Cal. Rptr. 509

[e] Prejudice Required to Be Shown

To defeat liability because of insured's breach of notice clause of policy, insurer is required to show that it was prejudiced by breach. Campbell v. Allstate Ins. Co. (1963) 60 Cal. 2d 303, 306, 32 Cal. Rptr. 827, 384 P.2d 155 ; Downey Sav. & Loan Ass'n v. Ohio Cas. Ins. Co. (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 1072, 1089, 234 Cal. Rptr. 835

Where there is no valid contractual agreement requiring that notice of loss be given within specific (other than a reasonable) period, trial court's findings on sufficient evidence, that 41 day delay in notifying insurer concerning accident did not prejudice it in defending action against insured arising out of accident, is binding on appellate court. Abrams v. American Fid. & Cas. Co. (1948) 32 Cal. 2d 233, 239, 195 P.2d 797

Insurer suffered actual prejudice when insured failed to give any notice of lawsuit against it, thereby permitting a default judgment to be entered against insured for more than plaintiff's actual property damage and preventing insurer from offering any defense to the charges against its insured. Collin v. American Empire Ins. Co. (1994) 21 Cal. App. 4th 787, 819-821, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 391 .

"Notice-prejudice" rule inapplicable to "claims-made" insurance policies; insured must give notice during policy period or there is no coverage. Helfand v. National Union Fire Ins. Co. (1992) 10 Cal. App. 4th 869, 888, 13 Cal. Rptr. 2d 295 ; Slater v. Lawyers' Mut. Ins. Co. (1991) 227 Cal. App. 3d 1415, 1421-1423, 278 Cal. Rptr. 479 ; Pacific Employers Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 1348, 1360-1361, 270 Cal. Rptr. 779

Breach of notice clause by insured is no defense to insurer unless latter was substantially prejudiced by it; prejudice not presumed as a matter of law from breach; and insurer has burden of proving actual prejudice and not just mere possibility of prejudice. Moe v. Transamerica Title Ins. Co. (1971) 21 Cal. App. 3d 289, 302, 98 Cal. Rptr. 547 ; Northwestern Title Sec. Co. v. Flack (1970) 6 Cal. App. 3d 134, 141, 85 Cal. Rptr. 693

Requirement of Ins. Code § 11580.2, relating to uninsured motorist coverage in automobile liability insurance policy and defining uninsured motor vehicle as including one whose owner or operator is unknown, that insured must have, inter alia, filed with insurer within 30 days after accident statement of facts designed to prevent frauds and not to lessen coverage extended to innocent motorists; hence, failure to comply with requirement as not defeating coverage unless insurer was prejudiced by delay in filing statement. Hanover Ins. Co. v. Carroll (1966) 241 Cal. App. 2d 558, 563-566, 50 Cal. Rptr. 704

Whether insured has failed to comply with notice provisions of his policy and whether failure has resulted in prejudice to insurer are questions of fact. Joyce v. United Ins. Co. (1962) 202 Cal. App. 2d 654, 662, 21 Cal. Rptr. 361

[f] Waiver

[i] Of Notice or Proof of Loss

Pursuant to Ins. Code § 554, delay in presentation to insurer of notice or proof of loss is waived if caused by act of insurer, or if insurer fails to object promptly and specifically on that ground; delay alone is insufficient to constitute waiver absent some element of misconduct by insurer or detrimental reliance by insured. Oakland-Alameda County Coliseum, Inc. v. National Union Fire Ins. Co. (N.D. Cal. 2007) 480 F. Supp. 2d 1182 , ___, 2007 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 24381 , pp.21-22

Waiver under Ins. Code § 554 requires insurer intentionally to relinquish its right to deny coverage; denial of coverage on one ground does not, absent clear and convincing evidence to suggest otherwise, impliedly waive grounds not stated in the denial. Oakland-Alameda County Coliseum, Inc. v. National Union Fire Ins. Co. (N.D. Cal. 2007) 480 F. Supp. 2d 1182 , ___, 2007 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 24381 , p.23

Forfeiture of insured mortgagor's rights under policy by failure to give notice or proof of loss not waived by insurer's payment of loss to mortgagee. Clark v. Casselman (1917) 177 Cal. 82, 86, 169 P. 1005

Because insured sought reimbursement only for pre-tender expenses incurred to defend underlying action and incurred no expenses after tendering claim, Ins. Code § 554 did not preclude insurer from denying liability for costs under no-voluntary-payments provision. Insua v. Scottsdale Ins. Co. (2002) 104 Cal. App. 4th 737, 744, 129 Cal. Rptr. 2d 138

Insurer's failure to object to delay in submitting proof of loss or defects in contents of proof of loss constitutes waiver. Elliano v. Assurance Co. of Am. (1970) 3 Cal. App. 3d 446, 448-449, 83 Cal. Rptr. 509 (fire insurance)

Insurer which denies coverage not permitted to insist on strict compliance with notice provisions of policy. Eichler Homes, Inc. v. Underwriters at Lloyd's, London (1965) 238 Cal. App. 2d 532, 539, 47 Cal. Rptr. 843

Failure of fire insurer to object to proof of loss on ground it was not made by insured (it was made by implied assignee of insurance proceeds) constitutes waiver of objection. Greco v. Oregon Mut. Fire Ins. Co. (1961) 191 Cal. App. 2d 674, 685, 12 Cal. Rptr. 802

Denial by insurer of all liability under policy constitutes waiver of conditions of policy relating to time of notice and proof of disability. Lincke v. Mutual Benefit Health & Accident Ass'n (1946) 76 Cal. App. 2d 222, 231, 172 P.2d 912 ; see also Wasson v. Atlantic Nat'l Ins. Co. (1962) 207 Cal. App. 2d 464, 469, 24 Cal. Rptr. 665 , disapproved on other grounds, Campbell v. Allstate Ins. Co. (1963) 60 Cal. 2d 303, 307, 32 Cal. Rptr. 827, 384 P.2d 155

[ii] Of Payment of Premium

Act of mailing termination notice does not constitute waiver by insurer of its right to rely on automatic termination provision of life insurance policy for nonpayment of premium. Silva v. National Am. Life Ins. Co. of Cal. (1976) 58 Cal. App. 3d 609, 612, 130 Cal. Rptr. 211

Insurer's acceptance of partial premium payment is waiver of its right to treat contract as forfeited for nonpayment of full premium. Pierson v. John Hancock Mut. Life Ins. Co. (1968) 262 Cal. App. 2d 86, 89-91, 68 Cal. Rptr. 487

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state: TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges:

1. The policy sued on conditions the following provision: _____ [state, e.g., "Assistance and Cooperation of the Insured. The insured shall cooperate with the company and, upon the company's request, shall attend hearings and trials and shall assist in effecting settlements, securing and giving evidence, obtaining the attendance of witnesses and in the conduct of suits. The insured shall not, except at his own cost, voluntarily make any payment, assume any obligation or incur any expense other than for such immediate medical and surgical relief to others as shall be imperative at the time of the accident." The policy further provides: "Action Against Company. No action shall be against the compnay unless, as a condition precedent thereto, the insured shall have fully complied with all the terms of this policy"].

2. The insured failed to cooperate with defendant herein in that _____ [specify acts of noncooperation].

3. Defendant was substantially prejudiced by the insured's failure as herein alleged in that had the insured cooperated with defendant there was a substantial likelihood the trier of fact in plaintiff's action against the insured would have found in the insured's favor.

[2] Use of Form

This form of defense is for use in an answer to a complaint by an injured party against a tortfeasor's insurer to recover on the judgment obtained by the injured party against the tortfeasor [see Ins. Code § 11580(b)(2); see also § 308.480].

[3] Cooperation Clauses

Liability policies frequently contain clauses requiring the cooperation of the insured in the event of a claim. The clause illustrated in the above defense was taken from the automobile liability policy involved in Hall v. Travelers Ins. Co. (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 304, 306 n.1, 93 Cal. Rptr. 159 .

[4] Breach of Cooperation Clause

In an action against the insurer by an injured party who has obtained a judgment against the insured, the insurer under a liability policy may assert the insured's breach of the cooperation clause on which the policy was conditioned in defense of its obligation under the policy, provided the insurer exercised reasonable diligence to procure the cooperation of the insured and the insurer was substantially prejudiced by the insured's failure to cooperate. To prove substantial prejudice by the insured's failure to cooperate in defense of the action against the insured, the insurer must establish at the very least that had the cooperation clause not been breached there was a substantial likelihood the trier of fact would have found in the insured's favor. The burden of proving the insurer was substantially prejudiced by the insured's failure to cooperate is on the insurer [State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. v. Miller (1970) 5 Cal. App. 3d 837, 840, 85 Cal. Rptr. 288 ; see also Hall v. Travelers Ins. Co. (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 304, 308, 93 Cal. Rptr. 159] .

[5] Decisions

Defense of lack of notice, tender of defense, or cooperation as not supported by showing of substantial prejudice without showing that if a timely tender of defense had occurred, insurer would have undertaken the defense. *Clemmer v. Holding of substantial prejudice to insurer by insured's breach of cooperation clause not supportable on tenuous foundation that there might have been advanced valid defense which finder of fact could reasonably have accepted. Billington v. Interinsurance Exch. (1969) 71 Cal. 2d 728, 733, 79 Cal. Rptr. 326, 456 P.2d 982

To establish prejudice insurer required to establish at very least that if cooperation clause had not been breached there was substantial likelihood that trier of fact would have found in insured's favor; burden of proving that insured's breach resulted in substantial prejudice is on insurer. Billington v. Interinsurance Exch. (1969) 71 Cal. 2d 728, 737, 744, 79 Cal. Rptr. 326 ; see also Hall v. Travelers Ins. Co. (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 304, 308, 93 Cal. Rptr. 159 ; Northwestern Title Sec. Co. v. Flack (1970) 6 Cal. App. 3d 134, 141, 85 Cal. Rptr. 693 (rule applies whether policy is "occurrence-type" or "claims-type"); State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. v. Miller (1970) 5 Cal. App. 3d 837, 840, 85 Cal. Rptr. 288 ; Allstate Ins. Co. v. King (1967) 252 Cal. App. 2d 698, 706, 60 Cal. Rptr. 892

Objection that answer is defective in that it failed to plead affirmative defense of violation of cooperation clause by insured lacks merit when answer disclaimed liability on basis of insured's refusal to comply with cooperation clause, plaintiff did not object to introduction at trial of evidence based on cooperation clausedefense, and objection was raised for first time on appeal. Billington v. Interinsurance Exch. (1969) 71 Cal. 2d 728, 736-737, 79 Cal. Rptr. 326, 456 P.2d 982

Insurer, in action against it by injured party which first obtained judgment against insured, permitted to assert defenses based on insured's breach of condition of policy, such as cooperation clause, but breach not valid defense unless insurer was substantially prejudicd by it. *Campbell v. "No voluntary payments" provision precludes insurance coverage for repair expenses voluntarily incurred by home developer, who neither notified insurer nor sought its consent before presenting it with fait accompli of completed settlements with homeowners; California law enforces "no voluntary payments" provisions in absence of economic necessity, insurer breach, or other extraordinary circumstances. *Jamestown Builders, Inc. v. When insurer has reserved it rights, resulting in a declaratory relief action, policy's "cooperation clause" does not effect a waiver of insured's attorney-client or work product privileges with respect to documents sought by insurer. Rockwell Int'l Corp. v. Superior Court (1994) 26 Cal. App. 4th 1255, 1266, 1269-1270, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 153

Requirement of cooperation by policyholder assumes that insurer has complied in good faith with conditions of policy; hence, any settlement agreement between insured and injured third party after judgment by which latter acquires former's rights against insurer when insurer has repeatedly denied any coverage does not constitute breach of cooperation clause or estop insured and injured third party from enforcing default judgment against insurer. Drinnon v. Oliver (1972) 24 Cal. App. 3d 571, 583, 101 Cal. Rptr. 120

Insurer as not required to continue defense of its insured where insured has breached cooperation clause of policy resulting in substantial prejudice to insurer. Hall v. Travelers Ins. Co. (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 304, 308-309, 93 Cal. Rptr. 159

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--Reservation of Right to Raise Defense of Noncoverage of Policy

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state: TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that:

1. The policy sued on does not cover the loss on which judgment against the insured was recovered by plaintiff, as alleged in the complaint, in that _____ [specify].

2. In undertaking defense of the cause of action by plaintiff against the insured, defendant and the insured executed a written agreement by the terms of which defendant expressly reserved its right to deny that the policy issued by defendant to the insured covered the loss on which the insured was sued by plaintiff. A copy of the agreement is attached hereto as Exhibit A and made a part thereof.

[2] Use of Form

This form of defense is for use in an answer to a complaint by a third party who recovered judgment against defendant's insured and now sues defendant insurer to recover under the judgment [see Ins. Code § 11580(b)(2); see also § 308.460] where the insurer undertook defense of the insured in the action by plaintiff but entered into an agreement with the insured reserving its right to contest coverage of the loss by the policy at a later date [see § 308.462].

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--Willful Act of Insured

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state: TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that: the loss herein sued on resulted from the willful and intentional act of the plaintiff in _____ [specify, e.g., _____ (setting fire or procuring the setting of fire) to the property covered by the policy and the loss sought to be recovered in this action consists of the value of the property destroyed or damaged in that fire].

This form of defense is for insertion in an answer to a complaint by the insured in an action against the insurer seeking to recover for a loss under a property policy. It may also be used by an insurer in its answer to a complaint under a liability policy, for example, by the insured, who has paid a judgment against him or her, for indemnity [see § 308.461; Evans v. Pacific Indem. Co. (1975) 49 Cal. App. 3d 537, 539-540, 122 Cal. Rptr. 680 (assault and battery)], or by the injured party who has recovered a judgment against the insured and seeks to recover under the policy [see § 308.460], provided the insurer, in defending the action against the insured, reserved the right to contest coverage at a later time [see §§ 308.462, 308.503], or the issue of coverage, or the facts on which the issue of coverage turns, were not necessarily adjudicated in the third party's action against the insured [see Hogan v. Midland Nat'l Ins. Co. (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 553, 564-565, 91 Cal. Rptr. 153, 476 P.2d 825] .

If, however, the insurer wrongfully refused to defend the action against the insured in which the complaint set forth alternative theories of liability, one of which was within policy coverage, and it is not clear whether the jury's verdict in that case was based on the theory covered by the policy, the matter of coverage is res judicata and the insurer is liable [see Hogan v. Midland Nat'l Ins. Co. (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 553, 566, 91 Cal. Rptr. 153, 476 P.2d 825 ; see also § 308.462].

[3] Nonliability of Insurer for Insured's Willful Act

Ins. Code § 533 provides that an insurer is not liable for a loss caused by the willful act of the insured, but that the insurer is not exonerated by the negligence of the insured or of the insured's agents or others. For public policy regarding contracts exempting a person from responsibility for willful injury to the person or property of another, see also Civ. Code § 1668. Ins. Code § 533 is a part of every insurance contract and is equivalent to an exclusionary clause in the contract itself. However, conduct amounting to a conscious disregard of the safety of others does not constitute a willful act so as to preclude any indemnification under Ins. Code § 533 [Peterson v. Superior Court (1982) 31 Cal. 3d 147, 158-159, 181 Cal. Rptr. 784, 642 P.2d 1305] .

1. At all times herein mentioned defendant was, and is, an insurance broker, licensed under the laws of the State of California engaged in business as such in _____ [city and county], California.

2. At all times herein mentioned plaintiff was, and is, engaged in _____ [type of business, e.g., the scrap iron and metal business] in _____ [city and county], California.

3. _____ [Allege facts establishing need for business interruption insurance coverage for mechanical breakdown, e.g., On or about _____ [date], plaintiff purchased an auto shredder for use in his/her business. The cost of the shredder was in excess of $_____ (specify, e.g., $200,000) and its purchase was financed through _____ (name of bank or other lender), which required monthly payments on the shredder in excess of $_____ (specify, e.g., $5,000). Continue, setting forth facts showing why operation of shredder was essential to business.]

4. For some _____ [specify, e.g., 10 years] prior to the events herein alleged, defendant had acted as plaintiff's insurance broker and had handled all of plaintiff's insurance needs. Defendant intended that plaintiff rely, and plaintiff did rely, on defendant's expertise and advice in connection with plaintiff's insurance matters.

5. _____ [Allege negotiations for coverage, e.g., While the shredder was being shipped from its place of manufacture to plaintiff's place of business, plaintiff and defendant discussed fire and extended coverage on the shredder. Plaintiff informed defendant of the financing arrangement between plaintiff and _____ (name of lender) and specifically requested that business interruption insurance covering a mechanical breakdown of the shredder be obtained].

6. Pursuant to these negotiations, defendant, on or about _____ [date], advised plaintiff that he/she had obtained the type of coverage plaintiff wanted and that "everything would be covered" [except breakdown caused by _____ (specify, e.g., flood or earthquake)] and that the insurance would provide payments of $_____ [specify, e.g., $500] a day for each day thebreakdown continued. Defendant made these statements with the intent that plaintiff rely on them and plaintiff did rely on them in that he/she did not seek or obtain the desired coverage elsewhere.

7. On or about _____ [date], plaintiff received from defendant the original of a policy, number _____, hereinafter referred to as "the policy," issued by _____ [name], hereinafter referred to as "the insurance company," in which plaintiff was the named insured. Enclosed with the policy was a cover letter from defendant to plaintiff in which he/she stated that the policy was "just what you [plaintiff] wanted," provided all the coverage requested, and that the policy term was _____ [specify, e.g., three years], commencing _____ [date]. Defendant further stated in his/her letter that he/she was retaining a copy of the policy for his/her files and that the premium for the policy was $_____ [specify, e.g., $11,948]. Defendant made the statements in his/her letter intending that plaintiff should rely on them and plaintiff did rely on them in that he/she failed to read the policy itself. Plaintiff paid the stated premium and is informed and believes and thereon alleges that of this premium paid the sum of $_____ [specify, e.g., $1,823] was for the business interruption coverage. Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that the policy issued complied with the coverage requested by defendant to the insurance company and since that coverage, as hereinafter alleged, was materially different from that requested by plaintiff, defendant had no reasonable ground for believing that the statements as to coverage in his/her letter to plaintiff were true.

8. The policy issued provided for payments to the insured for business interruption due to "perils insured" at the rate of $_____ [specify, e.g., $500] for each workday during the period of suspension of business, [excluding the first three days of breakdown,] but if specifically excluded loss caused by a mechanical breakdown. This latter exclusion was diametrically opposed to the coverage plaintiff had specifically requested defendant to obtain and to the representation in defendant's above-mentioned letter that the policy provided all the coverage requested by plaintiff.

9. _____ [Allege mechanical breakdown, e.g., On or about _____ (date), there was a mechanical breakdown of the shredder and it was out of operation from that date until on or about _____ (date). (It then ran until on or about _____ (date), when it broke down a second time and was inoperative this time from that date until on or about _____ (date).) The shredder was thus out of operation because of mechanical breakdown for a total of _____ (number, e.g., 86) days]. Plaintiff expended the sum of $_____ [specify, e.g., $1,345.42] to expedite repairs on the _____ [specify, e.g., shredder during the [two] breakdown[s].

10. Plaintiff duly notified the insurance company of the loss and on or about _____ [date], the insurance company notified plaintiff that the loss was not covered by the policy and that the company did not write policies providing coverage for losses resulting from mechanical breakdown of equipment.

11. On learning his/her loss was not covered by the policy, plaintiff contacted _____ [name], an insurance company specializing in _____ [specify, e.g., boiler and machinery coverage], ascertained that the company issued policies indemnifying against business interruption due to mechanical breakdown, and secured issuance of such a policy on _____ [date]. This policy covered the _____ [specify, e.g., auto shredder] and insured against mechanical breakdown for a period of _____ [specify, e.g., three years], commencing _____ [date]. The policy covers the amount actually expended by the insured to repair or replace property damaged by an accidental breakdown and provides $_____ [specify, e.g., $500] per day coverage for each day of total prevention of operation. The premium for this policy was the sum of $_____ [specify, e.g., $6,229], which plaintiff paid.

12. As a proximate result of defendant's negligent failure to secure issuance of a policy with the coverage specifically requested by plaintiff and of defendant's misrepresentation to plaintiff that the policy issued provided the coverage requested, plaintiff was damaged in the following sums: the sum of $_____ [specify, e.g., $43,000] for the _____ [number, e.g., 86] days that the _____ [specify, e.g., shredder] was inoperative due to mechanical breakdown at the rate of $_____ [specify, e.g., $500] per day; the sum of $_____ [specify, e.g., $1,823] which is that portion of the premium paid to the insurance company for business interruption coverage under the policy of a kind not requested by plaintiff; less the sum of $_____ [specify, e.g., $6,229] which is the premium paid for the subsequent policy providing business interruption insurance of a kind plaintiff requested; plus the sum of $_____ [specify, e.g., $1,345.42], which sum was expended by plaintiff in expediting repair of the _____ [specify, e.g., shredder], for a total sum of $_____ [specify, e.g., $39,939.42], together with interest on that sum at the legal rate from and after _____ [date plaintiff received notice of noncoverage as alleged in Paragraph 10].

1. For the sum of $_____ [specify, e.g., $39,939.42] with interest thereon at the legal rate from and after _____ [date];

2. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

3. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

This form of complaint illustrates an action after loss by an insured against an insurance broker for damages based on the latter's negligent failure to secure issuance of a policy providing the coverage specifically requested by the insured and negligent mirepresentation that a policy providing the requested coverage had been obtained. The fact situation illustrated is adapted from Greenfield v. Insurance Inc. (1971) 19 Cal. App. 3d 803, 97 Cal. Rptr. 164 . Greenfield was a consolidated appeal from two judgments. The first was a judgment in favor of the insured against the broker based on the facts set forth in this complaint. The appellate court modified the judgment with respect to damages and affirmed the judgment as modified. The second was a judgment of dismissal following the sustaining of the broker's demurrer to the insured's complaint without leave to amend on the ground that the matter was res judicata. In this action, based on the same acts of the broker, the insured sought to recover additional damages in the sum of $250,000 for loss of value of his business. The court of appeal affirmed the judgment of dismissal saying: "[T]he demurrer was properly sustained. A party may not split a cause of action, using the same wrong as the basis for separate suits. Greenfield [plaintiff] was bound in the first action to prove all prospective damages caused by the wrongful acts of Insurance [defendant]. The first action is a bar to the second action." Therefore, if a plaintiff is to recover additional damages, that plaintiff must set them forth together in the same complaint. Paragraph 12 of the complaint can be amended to include any addtional damages plaintiff may have sustained or additional paragraphs which set them forth may be inserted in the complaint.

For a discussion of the general format of the complaint, the number of copies to prepare, and verification, see § 308.370.

[3] Statement of Action

In the first of the two cases consolidated in Greenfield, the complaint alleged breach of an oral contract, negligence, and fraud based on defendant's failure to obtain a business interruption insurance policy covering mechanical breakdown. Judgment after a court trial was entered for plaintiff based on the negligence and fraud allegations. Although these separate theories are referred to by the court of appeal as "causes of action" [Greenfield v. Insurance Inc. (1971) 19 Cal. App. 3d 803, 808, 97 Cal. Rptr. 164] , they are in reality only counts, that is, different theories of recovery based on the same cause of action of the same invasion of a primary right. Both counts and causes of action may be separately stated.

Contrary to the former rule, however [see former Code Civ. Proc. §§ 427, 430(5), repealed 1971, operative July 1, 1972], separate counts or causes of action need not be separately stated, but if they are, they must be separately numbered [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.112].

Where the facts are simple, the parties the same, and only the theory of recovery changes from one count to another, the better practice, for the sake of brevity, would be to combine the separate counts into a single statement as is done in this complaint.

[4] Allegations

The complaint alleges defendant's capacity (Paragraph 1). It states a cause of action for negligence in failing to secure issuance of a policy containing the coverage requested in that it alleges: (1) the facts giving rise to a duty on the part of defendant to exercise ordinary care (Paragraphs 4-6), including plaintiff's need for insurance and insurable interest (Paragraphs 2, 3); (2) breach of that duty by defendant (Paragraphs 8, 10); (3) loss (Paragraph 9); and (4) proximate cause and damages (Paragraph 12).

It also states a cause of action for fraud based on negligent misrepresentation in that it alleges: (1) the relationship between the parties giving rise to a duty on the part of defendant not to misrepresent (Paragraphs 4, 5), including plaintiff's need for insurance and insurable interest (Paragraphs 2, 3); (2) representations by defendant (Paragraphs 6, 7); (3) defendant's intention that plaintiff rely on the representations and plaintiff's justifiable reliance on them (Paragraphs 4, 6, 7); (4) defendant's lack of reasonable ground for believing the representations made to plaintiff were true (Paragraph 7); (5) the falsity of the representations (Paragraphs 8, 10); (6) loss (Paragraph 9); and (7) proximate cause and damages (Paragraph 12).

For a discussion of negligence and a procedural guide for use in such actions, see Ch. 380, Negligence . For a further analysis of complaints for and discussion of fraud and for a procedural checklist for use in such actions, see Ch. 269, Fraud and Deceit .

[2] Use of Form

This form of complaint is for use by an insured to recover damages for negligence in issuing a policy with lower maximum limits than that which was ordered. The complaint was adapted from the complaint in Walker v. Pacific Indem. Co. (1960) 183 Cal. App. 2d 513, 6 Cal. Rptr. 924 . In that action, which was brought by the injured person-judgment creditor as the insured's assignee, the insurance company was joined on the theory that its agent had obligated it to issue the larger policy. The jury's verdict was against the agent but for the insurer. Plaintiff did not appeal from the judgment in favor of the insurer. It is, therefore, assumed that the jury determined that the agent in accepting plaintiff's order for the policy was acting as a broker rather than as the insurance company's agent, or that the issue of agency had not been properly presented to the jury. For complaints against the broker alone, see §§ 308.510, 308.511.

For a discussion of the general format of the complaint, the number of copies to prepare, and verification, see § 308.370. For a discussion of negligence and a procedural guide for use in negligence actions, see Ch. 380, Negligence

- Breach of duty (Paragraphs 6, 7);
- Injury (Paragraphs 8-10); and
- Proximate cause and damages (Paragraph 11).

For a discussion of the general format of the complaint, the number of copies to prepare, and verification, see § 308.370. For a form of affirmative defense based on materially false and fraudulent statements contained in a proof of loss in an action by the insured against the insurer to recover under the policy, see § 308.497.

[3] Allegations

The complaint alleges:

- Plaintiff's capacity (Paragraph 1);
- Defendant's residence (Paragraph 2; this allegation will be included only if venue [see Code Civ. Proc. § 395] is to be based on it; otherwise, it will be omitted);
- The relationship between the parties giving rise to the duty not to misrepresent (Paragraph 3);
- Defendant's representations (Paragraphs 4, 6);
- Defendant's intention that plaintiff rely on the representations and plaintiff's reliance thereon (Paragraph 7);

For a further analysis of complaints for and discussion of actionable fraud and for a procedural checklist for use in such actions, see Ch. 269, Fraud and Deceit .

[4] Civil Penalties and Restitution

Ins. Code § 1879.1 permits local district attorneys and other specified law enforcement officials to bring an action against persons convicted of insurance fraud to recover a civil penalty approximating the amount of the illegal profits realized as a result of the fraudulent activity [see Ins. Code § 1879.1(a) (amount of penalty and actions for recovery)]. A private litigant may not bring an action to recover these penalties. However, penalties collected under this section, after reinbursement of costs to the prosecuting agency, will be reimbursed to the victims of the insurance fraud as restitution.

In some cases, this civil penalty procedure may provide an alternative to the type of action contemplated by this form. It does not preclude the use of other legal and equitable remedies, such as the type of action contemplated by this form, to recoup losses from insurance fraud [Ins. Code §§ 1879.1(f), 1879.8]. However, any restitution paid to the victim in an action under Ins. Code § 1879.1 will be credited against compensation obtained by the victim against the defendant for the same or related conduct [Ins. Code § 1879.1(f)].

[2] Use of Form

This form of complaint is for use by one insurer against another insurer, both of which issued a liability policy covering the same insurable event, to seek a declaration regarding which of the policies is primary and which is excess [see Code

Civ. Proc. § 1060 (declaratory relief); see also Employers Reinsurance Corp. v. Phoenix Ins. Co. (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 545, 230 Cal. Rptr. 792] .

For a form of complaint brought by one insurer and its insured against another insurer and its insured, to seek a declaration regarding excess and primary coverage of automobile liability policies based on presumptions under Ins. Code § 11580.9, see Ch. 88, Automobiles: Automobile Insurance .

[3] Allegations

This form of complaint alleges:

- The plaintiff insurer's capacity as a California corporation, its authority to issue insurance, and the location of its principal place of business in California (Paragraph 1);
- The issuance of a liability policy by the plaintiff insurer to the insured, and the relevant terms of the policy (Paragraph 2);
- The defendant insurer's capacity as a California corporation, its authority to issue insurance, and the location of its principal place of business in California (Paragraph 3);
- The issuance of a liability policy by the defendant insurer to the insured, and the relevant terms of the policy (Paragraph 4);
- A description of the incident giving rise to liability (Paragraph 5);
- The existence of a controversy between plaintiffs and defendants (Paragraph 6);
- A statement regarding plaintiff insurer's contention that its policy provides only excess coverage (Paragraph 7);
- A statement regarding defendant insurer's contention that its policy provides only excess coverage (Paragraph 8); and
- A statement that a judicial determination is required so that plaintiff and defendant insurers can ascertain their rights and duties (Paragraph 11) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1060].

[4] Jurisdiction

This action for declaratory relief is in the jurisdiction of the superior court as an unlimited civil case [Cal. Const. art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86, 580(b)(4), 1060; see Code Civ. Proc. § 86(a)(7)(A) (restricted extent to which declaratory relief may be maintained as limited civil case); see also Ch. 182, Declaratory Relief].

[5] Multiple Insurance Coverage

[a] Types of Coverage

When two or more insurance policies apply to the same risk, the application ofeach policy is generally determined by the explicit provisions of the respective "other insurance" clauses [see, e.g., American Auto. Ins. Co. v. Republic Indem. Co. (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 507, 510, 341 P.2d 675 ; Continental Cas. Co. v. Pacific Indem. Co. (1982) 134 Cal. App. 3d 389, 394, 184 Cal. Rptr. 583] . In multiple coverage insurance cases, there are three types of policies: (1) a primary policy in which the insurer bears the entire costs of defense and of payment up to its policy limits, (2) an escape policy in which the insurer is liable only if the insured has no other valid and collectible insurance, and (3) an excess policy in which the insurer is liable for any liability of the insured over and above the policy limits of a primary policy [Continental Cas. Co. v. Pacific Indem. Co. (1982) 134 Cal. App. 3d 389, 394, 184 Cal. Rptr. 583 ; see also Signal Cos., Inc. v. Harbor Ins. Co. (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 359, 365, 165 Cal. Rptr. 799, 612 P.2d 889 (excess policy)].

Although a claim for contribution among insurers providing overlapping coverage for the same insured rests on equitable principles, in cases involving multiple policies covering the same loss, courts have allocated the burden of paying among several insurers without reference to questions of the comparative fault or negligence of such insurers, because their obligation to protect the insured arises from a contract, not because the insurers were negligent or at fault [Topa Ins. Co. v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Cos. (1995) 39 Cal. App. 4th 1331, 1333, 46 Cal. Rptr. 2d 516] . Thus, in cases involving duplicate or overlapping insurers, courts have prorated the responsibility by focusing on contractual issues rather than on "fault" concepts, and have ordered proration based on the proportion each insurer's coverage bore to the total coverage provided by all policies [Topa Ins. Co. v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Cos. (1995) 39 Cal. App. 4th 1331, 1333, 46 Cal. Rptr. 2d 516] .

[b] Effect of Escape Clauses

Escape clauses are not favored in the law. An escape clause will not be given effect when the underlying primary policy does not fully protect the insured [Continental Cas. Co. v. Pacific Indem. Co. (1982) 134 Cal. App. 3d 389, 396-397, 184 Cal. Rptr. 583] .

[c] Effect of Excess Clauses

When two or more applicable policies contain excess insurance clauses, both liability and the costs of defense should be prorated according to the amount of coverage afforded, even when either policy is sufficient to fully absorb the excess liability over the underlying policy [Continental Cas. Co. v. Pacific Indem. Co. (1982) 134 Cal. App. 3d 389, 396-397, 184 Cal. Rptr. 583 ; see Argonaut Ins. Co. v. Transport Indem. Co. (1972) 6 Cal. 3d 496, 507, 99 Cal. Rptr. 617, 492 P.2d 673 ; see also Employers Reinsurance Corp. v. Phoenix Ins. Co. (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 545, 557, 230 Cal. Rptr. 792] .

[6] State Statutes

[7] Decisions

Public entity self-insurance pool is not "other insurance" subject to excess insurer's policy provision that its coverage would not apply until all "other insurance" was exhausted. Orange County Water Dist. v. Association of Cal. Water Agencies Joint Powers Ins. Auth. (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 772, 777-779, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 182

Liability under excess policy as attaching only after all primary coverage has been exhausted; "other insurance" provision in primary policy (stating that if other collective insurance with another insurer is available, coverage is in excess of that other insurance) as not transforming policy to "excess" policy with respect to another policy providing "contingent excess" coverage. North River Ins. Co. v. American Home Assurance Co. (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 108, 112-116, 257 Cal. Rptr. 129

Conflicting excess insurance clauses as essentially irreconcilable; when multiple policies contain excess insurance clauses, both liability and costs of defense as ordinarily prorated according to amount of coverage afforded. Employers Reinsurance Corp. v. Phoenix Ins. Co. (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 545, 557, 230 Cal. Rptr. 792

When multiple insurance policies apply to same risk, relative application is generally determined by explicit provisions of respective "other insurance" clauses. Employers Reinsurance Corp. v. Phoenix Ins. Co. (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 545, 556, 230 Cal. Rptr. 792

Issuer of primary and excess policy coverage as owing duty to settle underlying claim in good faith, and second excess insurer as not estopped from attacking amount of settlement as excessive when amount in excess of primary policy coverage, even though amount is within excess policy coverage of both insurers and second insurer had declined to participate in defense and settlement of underlying claim of insured. Continental Cas. Co. v. Pacific Indem. Co. (1982) 134 Cal. App. 3d 389, 398, 184 Cal. Rptr. 583

Escape clauses as not favored in law, and when in conflict with "other insurance" clause in another policy covering same risk, as disregarded if insured not fully protected and "other insurance" clauses in both policies will be given effect according to applicable proration. Continental Cas. Co. v. Pacific Indem. Co. (1982) 134 Cal. App. 3d 389, 396, 184 Cal. Rptr. 583

Liability under secondary policy as not attaching until all primary insurance is exhausted, even if total amount of primary insurance exceeds amount contemplated in secondary policy; if proration among multiple primary policies exceeds amount contemplated in secondary policy, insurer under secondary policy as incurring no liability. Olympic Ins. Co. v. Employers Surplus Lines Ins. Co. (1981) 126 Cal. App. 3d 593, 600-601, 178 Cal. Rptr. 908

Allocation of liability between two insurers; underlying coverage and excess insurance; umbrella coverage as excess over and above all underlying coverage. Otter v. General Ins. Co. (1973) 34 Cal. App. 3d 940, 944-953

In action by one insurer against another to determine primary liability, liability as required to be prorated in accordance with policy limits where each policy provides that insurer is not liable for greater proportion of loss than applicable limit of liability stated in declaration bears to total applicable limit of liability of all valid and collectible insurance against such loss. Liberty Mut. Ins. Co. v. Colonial Ins. Co. (1970) 8 Cal. App. 3d 427, 433-434, 87 Cal. Rptr. 348

§ 308.523 Complaint by Insurance Company Against Insured's Independent (Cumis) Counsel for Damages Caused by Independent Counsel's Negligent Breach of Statutory Duties [Civ. Code § 2860(d), (f)] to Cooperate and Exchange Information With Insurer's Counsel

[1] FORM Complaint by Insurance Company Against Insured's Independent (Cumis) Counsel for Damages Caused by Independent Counsel's Negligent Breach of Statutory Duties [Civ. Code § 2860(d), (f)] to Cooperate and Exchange Information With Insurer's Counsel

1. Plaintiff is, and at all times mentioned in this complaint was, a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of _____, authorized to transact and transacting business in California as an insurance company.

2. On or about _____ [date], plaintiff entered into a written policy of liability insurance with _____ [name of insured] (hereafter referred to as the "policy"). The terms of the policy generally require plaintiff to _____ [specify relevant basic policy obligation, e.g., defend and indemnify anyone qualifying as an insured under the policy against any claims for bodily injury or property damage coming within the coverage provided by the policy].

3. One or about _____ [date], an action (hereafter referred to as the "underlying action") was filed against _____ [name of defendant/insured] in _____ [court, e.g., the Superior Court of Marin County, California], File No. _____, seeking damages for _____ [bodily injury and/or property damage or specify other damages] allegedly arising out of _____ [describe accident or occurrence forming basis for underlying claim, e.g., a chemical spill occurring on _____'s premises or an incident in which the plaintiff in the underlying action was struck by a bat in the course of a softball game]. Specifically, the complaint in the underlying action alleged that _____ [specify basic allegations in underlying complaint, e.g., during an altercation that occurred in the course of the softball game, _____ (name of defendant in underlying action) flung or threw a bat in the direction of _____ (name of plaintiff in underlying action), striking _____ (name) in the face and causing severe injuries to his nose and right eye)]. _____ [Name of defendant in underlying action] referred the claim to the plaintiff in this action, contending that plaintiff was required by the terms of the policy to defend and indemnify _____ [name of defendant in underlying action].

4. Upon reviewing the claim, plaintiff made a good-faith determination that a question existed as to whether or not the claim was covered by the policy, specifically _____ [describe issue, e.g., whether the bat was intentionally thrown at the plaintiff in the underlying action, thereby barring coverage under the terms of the policy and Ins. Code § 533]. Plaintiff thereupon elected to defend _____ [name of defendant in underlying action] subject to a reservationof plaintiff's right to deny coverage in the event that it was ultimately determined that _____ [e.g., defendant's actions were intentional]. Plaintiff thereafter concluded that its defense of _____ [name of defendant in underlying action] subject to a reservation of rights created a conflict of interest within the meaning of Civil Code Section 2860, and notified _____ [name of defendant in underlying action] of his/her/its right to independent counsel under Civil Code Section 2860. _____ [Name of defendant in underlying action] retained _____ [name of attorney or law firm], the defendant in this action, as independent counsel under Civ. Code § 2860.

5. Under Civil Code Section 2860(d), defendant had a duty to disclose to plaintiff all information concerning the action except privileged materials relevant to coverage disputes, and to inform and consult with plaintiff in a timely matter on all matters relating to the underlying action. Moreover, under Civil Code Section 2860(f), defendant had a duty to allow plaintiff's own counsel in the underlying action to participate in all aspects of the litigation in the underlying action, and to cooperate fully in the exchange of information that is consistent with each counsel's ethical and legal obligation to the defendant in the underlying action.

6. Defendant negligently breached his/her/its duties to plaintiff as described in Paragraph 5, above, by _____ [describe nature of breach being alleged, e.g., failing to inform plaintiff or plaintiff's counsel in a timely manner of matters relevant to the underlying litigation and/or refusing to cooperate with plaintiff or plaintiff's counsel and to permit plaintiff and plaintiff's counsel to participate fully in the litigation of the underlying action]. Specifically, _____ [describe breach, e.g., defendant knew but failed to disclose to plaintiff facts indicating that the statute of limitations on the underlying claim had expired prior to the date on which the underlying action was filed, and plaintiff had no opportunity to discover these facts because defendant precluded plaintiff from participating in the litigation].

7. As a direct and proximate result of defendant's breach of its duty to plaintiff, _____ [describe consequences of breach, e.g., plaintiff was precluded from timely asserting a complete defense to the underlying action, in that plaintiff's counsel was unaware of the existence of a defense based on the statute of limitations and that defendant would not assert that defense in the underlying action].

[EITHER]

8. As a direct and proximate result of defendant's breach of its duty to plaintiff, judgment in the amount of $_____ was entered against _____ [name of defendant in underlying action] in the underlying action. Plaintiff paid the amount of that judgment on behalf of its insured, in accordance with the policy terms.

[OR]

8. As a direct and proximate result of defendant's breach of its duty to plaintiff, plaintiff was effectively compelled to settle the underlying action, and did settle that action by paying $_____ to the plaintiff in the underlying action. Plaintiff was compelled to settle the action because if it failed to do so, a strong likelihood existed that the verdict in the underlying action would be substantially in excess of of the policy limits and plaintiff might then be found liable to its own insured for breach of the covenant of good faith and fair dealing.

[CONTINUE]

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendant as follows:

1. For the sum of $_____ [specify the lesser of (1) the policy limits, or (2) the amount of the judgment or settlement in the underlying action], representing the amount paid by plaintiff to satisfy the _____ [judgment or settlement] against its insured in the underlying action;

2. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

3. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

This form is a complaint by an insurer against a law firm that acted as independent (Cumis) counsel for the insured. The complaint seeks damages for tortious breach of the law firm's duties to the insurer under Civ. Code § 2860(d) and (f) [see § 308.523[3][b]]. The complaint alleges that as a result of the law firm's negligent breach of those duties, the insurer was compelled to pay a judgment or settlement against the insured.

[3] Independent (Cumis) Counsel

[a] Requirement

The language of the standard liability policy typically reserves control of the defense to the insurer. However, in San Diego Fed. Credit Union v. Cumis Ins. Soc'y, Inc. (1984) 162 Cal. App. 3d 358, 375, 208 Cal. Rptr. 494 (" Cumis"), the court held that when an insurer reserves its rights to contest coverage, and the determination of whether or not coverage exists depends on the resolution of factsat issue in the underlying lawsuit, a conflict of interest arises. This conflict is based on the presumptive inability of a defense attorney, hired by the insurer to represent the insured, to represent the divergent interests of the joint client.

Under these circumstances, the insurer must notify the insured of the conflict and either obtain the written consent of the insured or cease the joint representation. If the insured does not consent to joint representation, the insurer must pay for the insured to retain separate counsel of the insured's choice, and must permit the insured and the insured's independent counsel to control the litigation [San Diego Fed. Credit Union v. Cumis Ins. Soc'y, Inc. (1984) 162 Cal. App. 3d 358, 375, 208 Cal. Rptr. 494] . Independent counsel appointed in this manner is commonly referred to as " Cumis counsel."

The Cumis requirements, with some additional controls, have been codified in Civ. Code § 2860. For discussion of these requirements, see § 308.118 and California Insurance Law and Practice, Ch. 13 (Matthew Bender).

[b] Statutory Rights and Duties of Cumis Counsel

Civ. Code § 2860(d) provides that when Cumis counsel is appointed, that counsel (and the insured) has a duty to (1) disclose to the insurer all information concerning the action, except privileged materials relevant to coverage disputes; and (2) timely inform and consult with the insurer on all matters relating to the action. Moreover, Civ. Code § 2860(f) provides that both Cumis counsel and the insurer's own counsel must be allowed "to participate in all aspects of the litigation." Both counsel are required to cooperate fully in the exchange of information that is consistent with each counsel's ethical and legal obligation to the insured [Civ. Code § 2860(f)].

[c] Liability of Cumis Counsel to Insurer for Breach of Statutory Duties

Cumis counsel may be liable to an insurer for breach of counsel's statutory duties under Civ. Code § 2860(d) and (f) [Assurance Co. of Am. v. Haven (1995) 32 Cal. App. 4th 78, 83, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 25] . However, there are significant limitations on the basis for this liability.

First and most importantly, Cumis counsel may not be held liable for negligently failing to investigate, prepare, assert, establish, or perform similar functions with respect to the defense of the action [Assurance Co. of Am. v. Haven (1995) 32 Cal. App. 4th 78, 83, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 25] . Permitting the insurer to impose liability on the insured's Cumis counsel for negligent conduct of the insured's defense has been held inconsistent with the independent nature of the representation and Cumis counsel's ethical obligations to the insured, and has also been held inconsistent with Cumis counsel's right to control the defense of the case [Assurance Co. of Am. v. Haven (1995) 32 Cal. App. 4th 78, 86-88, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 25] . Thus, Cumis counsel is under no duty to the insurer to investigate or make determinations regarding how the case will be handled. It is the insurer's duty to make its own investigation and determinations, if needed, using (among other sources) the information provided by Cumis counsel [Assurance Co. of Am. v. Haven (1995) 32 Cal. App. 4th 78, 89, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 25]

Cumis counsel may, however, be held liable for breach of those statutory duties that are specifically owed to the insurer [Assurance Co. of Am. v. Haven (1995) 32 Cal. App. 4th 78, 88, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 25] . Thus, Cumis counsel may be liable for damages incurred by the insurer as the result of counsel's failure to:

- Disclose to the insurer all information concerning the action (except privileged material relevant to coverage disputes) [Civ. Code § 2860(d)];

- Timely inform and consult with the insurer on all matters relating to the action [Civ. Code § 2860(d)];

- Allow the insurer's counsel to "participate in all aspects of the litigation" [Civ. Code § 2860(f)], subject to the right of Cumis counsel to control the litigation [see Assurance Co. of Am. v. Haven (1995) 32 Cal. App. 4th 78, 87-88, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 25] ; or

- Cooperate fully in the exchange of information that is consistent with each counsel's ethical and legal obligation to the insured [Civ. Code § 2860(f)].

In Assurance Co. of Am. v. Haven (1995) 32 Cal. App. 4th 78, 88, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 25 , the insurer alleged that Cumis counsel failed to keep the insurer properly informed of the facts, theories, status, procedural developments, and evaluations in the underlying action, failed to disclose all nonprivileged information relating to the action, and failed to timely inform and consult with the insurer on all matters related to that action. These failures allegedly precluded the insurer from timely presenting a valid defense regarding the statute of limitations and peculiar risk, with the result that the insurer was effectively compelled to settle the action to avoid an excess judgment against its insured. The court concluded that while the insurer could not directly sue Cumis counsel for negligent conduct of the defense, it could recover for negligent breach of statutory duty under Civ. Code § 2860(d) and (f), when that breach precluded the insurer from timely asserting a complete defense to the action [Assurance Co. of Am. v. Haven (1995) 32 Cal. App. 4th 78, 92, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 25] .

§ 314.10 Nature of Suit in Interpleader

[1] Codified Equitable Remedy Requiring Adjudication in Single Suit of Multiple Claims

The provisions of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 386-386.6 codify the equitable remedy known as a bill of interpleader or suit in interpleader. This equitable suit historically provided a means for a debtor or obligor to avoid a multiplicity of actions on claims based on a single obligation, by compelling the various claimants to interplead and litigate their claims among themselves. The obligor could thus avoid facing multiple, vexatious litigation with respect to a single obligation [see Hancock Oil Co. v. Hopkins (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 497, 508, 150 P.2d 463 ; City of Morgan Hill v. Brown (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 1114, 1122, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 361 ; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 386(a)].

Interpleader was originally a limited device of equity courts, bound by restrictions both on the nature of the multiple claims made on an interpleading debtor and also on the debtor's position with respect to the subject matter in dispute. However, notwithstanding the technical restrictions on interpleader that existed historically or that prevail in other jurisdictions, the remedy of interpleader in California, as codified under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 386-386.6, is to be broadly interpreted to give effect to the remedial nature of the codifying provisions and to promote justice. Thus, the conditions under which interpleader may be utilized are limited only by the codifying provisions, which broaden and enlarge the historic equitable remedy [see Hancock Oil Co. v. Hopkins (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 497, 508, 150 P.2d 463 ; City of Morgan Hill v. Brown (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 1114, 1122-1123, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 361] .

Although Code Civ. Proc. § 386 has broadened the scope of the interpleader remedy, the claimants still must seek the same thing, debt, or duty. If the claims do not relate to the same thing, debt, or duty, then interpleader is improper [City of Morgan Hill v. Brown (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 1114, 1123, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 361] .

[2] Equitable Principles Generally Apply

A suit in interpleader is an equitable proceeding in which the rights of the parties, as between themselves, are governed by principles in equity [Union Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Broderick (1925) 196 Cal. 497, 502, 238 P. 1034 ; Williams v. Gilmore (1942) 51 Cal. App. 2d 684, 689, 125 P.2d 539] .

Thus, there is generally no right to a jury in a suit in interpleader. Except in cases in which a right to jury trial is now given by the law, conflicting claims to funds, property, or the value of funds or property that have been deposited or delivered under Code Civ. Proc. § 386 are deemed to be issues triable by the court and may be first tried by the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 386(e)]. Even before the 1951 amendment that added this statutory language, it was clear that the right to a jury trial did not exist for factual issues that were raised by the pleadings among the interpleaded adverse claimants, which normally would have been triable by jury [see Union Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Broderick (1925) 196 Cal. 497, 502, 238 P. 1034] . This is because the gist of an interpleader action--the apportionment of claimants' rights to the deposited funds or property--is governed by principles of equity. That the equitable issue of apportionment may be partially dependent on the resolution of legal issues does not change the essentially equitable nature of the interpleader action, and there is ordinarily no right to a jury trial of such an action [Shopoff & Cavallo LLP v. Hyon (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 1489, 1512-1515, 85 Cal. Rptr. 3d 268 ; see also Corder v. Corder (2007) 41 Cal. 4th 644, 653-654, 61 Cal. Rptr. 3d 660, 161 P.3d 172 (in action to apportion proceeds of damages award among heirs following settlement of underlying wrongful death suit, general equitable nature of apportionment proceedings precludes jury trial, even if court takes additional evidence regarding competing interests in proceeds)]. However, if the amount deposited, or the value of property delivered, is less than that claimed by one or more of the claimants, any factual issues involved in determining whether there is a deficiency in the deposit or delivery may be tried by a jury [Code Civ. Proc. § 386(e); see § 314.19].

Because of the equitable nature of a suit in interpleader, traditional equitable defenses would also appear to be available to a claimant opposing the right of the stakeholder to proceed in interpleader. For example, when the stakeholder has been an active participant in the wrongful act which results in the stakeholder's possession of the property or funds in dispute, the stakeholder may be denied any relief by way of interpleader [see Young v. Colyear (1921) 54 Cal. App. 232, 234, 201 P. 623 (noting in dictum that warehouseman would be barred right to proceed in interpleader when property held by warehouseman had been taken unlawfully); see also Williams v. Gilmore (1942) 51 Cal. App. 2d 684, 689, 125 P.2d 539 (fact that judgment was based on tort was not moral wrong barring interpleader in suit by judgment debtors to determine to whom proceeds of judgment should be paid)].

§ 314.11 Examples of Situations in Which Interpleader Remedy Is Available

Examples of situations in which interpleader has been used to adjudicate conflicting claims include the following:

- Claims made on an insurance company for the proceeds of certain insurance policies [see Union Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Broderick (1925) 196 Cal. 497, 500, 238 P. 1034 (involving issue of claims of two alleged beneficiaries under policy in which name of beneficiary had been changed); Lincoln Nat'l Life Ins. Co. v. Mitchell (1974) 41 Cal. App. 3d 16, 18, 115 Cal. Rptr. 723 (claim of trustee under alleged trust created by beneficiary opposed by such beneficiary)].

- Claims made on an obligor by an assignor and assignee under alleged assignment [see Great-West Life Assur. Co. v. Superior Court (1969) 271 Cal. App. 2d 124, 125, 76 Cal. Rptr. 284] .

- Claims consisting of the garnishment of funds held by the stakeholder as obligee under a contract or judgment when the obligor has demanded the performance of the garnished obligation [see Leroy v. Bella Vista Investment Co. (1963) 222 Cal. App. 2d 369, 375-376, 35 Cal. Rptr. 128 (contract); Williams v. Gilmore (1942) 51 Cal. App. 2d 684, 686, 125 P.2d 539 (in case of conflicting claims arising out of garnishment of obligation, judgment debtor is permitted to maintain action in interpleader, despite having knowledge of conflicting claims before judgment)].

- Claims made by adverse claimants on tenant for rent due under lease [see Hancock Oil Co. v. Hopkins (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 497, 501, 504-505, 150 P.2d 463] .

- Claims made by adverse claimants to funds held by bank in loan or checking account [see Camp v. Oakland Mortg. & Finance Co., (1931) 212 Cal. 433, 434-435, 298 P. 974 (rival claimants to loan proceeds); Conner v. Bank of Bakersfield (1920) 183 Cal. 199, 190 P. 801 (rival claimants to proceeds of negotiable certified check)].

- Claims by buyer and seller of real estate and other interested parties, made on an escrow holder for funds held on deposit and evidences of title [see Security Trust & Sav. Bank v. Carlsen (1928) 205 Cal.

309, 314-315, 271 P. 470 ; Contra Costa County Title Co. v. Waloff (1960) 184 Cal. App. 2d 59, 61-62, 7 Cal. Rptr. 358] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

27-314 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 314.12

§ 314.12 Scope of Interpleader Remedy

[1] Two Basic Situations in Which Interpleader May Is Available

There are two basic types of interpleader remedy, set out respectively in Code Civ. Proc. § 386(a) and Code Civ. Proc. § 386(b). The traditional remedy set out in Code Civ. Proc. § 386(a) is for use when a stakeholder or debtor is subject to two or more claims against an amount owed under contract or against personal property that is admittedly owing, at least in part [see [2], below]. This remedy was enlarged in 1975 with the enactment of Code Civ. Proc. § 386(b), which permits interpleader by a person or entity who does not necessarily admit liability even in part, but who might nevertheless be subject to double or multiple liability on a single obligation [see [3], below].

Either remedy may, in turn, be pleaded in two or more procedural contexts [see § 314.13]. The type of remedy and the type procedure available in a given case depends on a number of factors including the following:

- Whether the interpleading stakeholder has been made a defendant in an action brought by any one of the adverse or multiple claimants.
- Whether the stakeholder claims any interest in the disputed property or funds.
- Whether any independent liability on the part of the stakeholder has arisen.
- Whether any of the claims remain unliquidated.

[2] Conflicting Claims to Personal Property or Contract Obligation

As discussed in [1], above, there are two types of interpleader remedies. The first, set out in Code Civ. Proc. § 386(a), is the codified version of the traditional equitable remedy. It is generally available to give relief to a debtor who acknowledges owing to someone all or part of a contractual obligation or specified personal property, but who cannot ascertain to which of two or more adverse claimants it should be paid or delivered. The debtor may, in good faith, bring into court all persons who make conflicting claims to the performance of the obligation, or to the personal property, and compel them to interplead and litigate their claims [see Krassner v. Veneman (1962) 206 Cal. App. 2d 299, 303, 23

Cal. Rptr. 673 ; Williams v. Gilmore (1942) 51 Cal. App. 2d 684, 689, 125 P.2d 539] . The debtor deposits into court the amount, property, or value of property that is acknowledged to be owing, and is discharged from liability to the interpleaded claimants [see Code Civ. Proc. § 386(a)].

[3] Claims Involving Multiple Liability for Single Obligation

Of the two types of interpleader remedy [see [1], above], the second, set out in Code Civ. Proc. § 386(b), allows any person or entity against whom double or multiple claims have been made, or may be made, which may give rise to double or multiple liability, to compel the claimants to interplead and litigate their claims in a single proceeding without necessarily admitting any liability to any of these claimants.

This second type of remedy was added in 1975, broadening the prior codified interpleader remedy [see [2], above]. The legislative history indicates that it was enacted primarily in order to allow insurance companies faced with multiple claims under a particular liability insurance policy, exceeding that policy's limit, to deposit the limit in court and compel the claimants to interplead and thereby apportion the proceeds of the policy among themselves. By interpleading claimants who are or may be making claims under the policy, the insurance company avoids the problems of making settlements within the limits of the policy or of paying out on adjudicated claims when to do so leaves other claimants without any relief under the policy.

Although the primary intent of Code Civ. Proc. § 386(b) was to provide a means by which an insurance company and claimants under a liability policy issued by the company could more fairly adjudicate the claims under the policy, Code Civ. Proc. § 386(b) does not by its terms limit the remedy to insurance companies faced with multiple claims under liability policies. The remedy appears to be available to any person or entity against whom double or multiple claims are made, or may be made [see also § 314.14[2]].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

27-314 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 314.13

§ 314.13 Procedural Contexts in Which Interpleader May Be Raised

There are several procedures by which a stakeholder or debtor may utilyze one of the two statutory interpleader remedies summarized in § 314.12. When the stakeholder has not yet been sued by any of the potential adverse claimants, the stakeholder may invoke either remedy by means of a complaint in interpleader [see § 314.14].

When a stakeholder has been named as a defendant in an action brought by one or more of the adverse claimaints, that defendant has one or more of the following options, depending on which interpleader remedy is sought:

- If the defendant is invoking the more traditional interpleader remedy under Code Civ. Proc. § 386(a) [see § 314.12[2]], that defendant may, before answering the complaint, apply for a court order directing that one or more claimants adverse to the plaintiff but not named in the action be substituted in defendant's place [see § 314.15[1]]. If such a defendant is sued for payment of a stated amount alleged to be wrongfully held, has no interest in that amount, and all conflicting claimants are already parties to the action, the defendant may instead move to be dismissed under Code Civ. Proc. § 386.5 [see § 314.15[2]].

- A defendant may invoke the interpleader remedy under either Code Civ. Proc. § 386(a) or Code Civ. Proc. § 386(b) [see respectively § 314.12[2] and [3]], by filing a cross complaint in interpleader, to compel the plaintiff and one or more nonparties to interplead and litigate their claims [see § 314.15[3]].

- If the defendant is invoking the interpleader remedy against mulitple liability under Code Civ. Proc. § 386(b) [see § 314.12[3]], that defendant may, as an alternative to cross complaining, initiate a separate action in interpleader to compel the claimants to interplead and litigate their claims [see § 314.15[3]].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

§ 314.14 Interpleader by Plaintiff

[1] Conflicting Claims to Personal Property or Contract Obligation

Whenever conflicting claims are or may be made on a person for or relating to personal property, or the performance of an obligation, or any portion thereof, that person may bring an action against the conflicting claimants to compel them to interplead and litigate their several claims [Code Civ. Proc. § 386(a)].

In bringing an action in interpleader under Code Civ. Proc. § 386(a), a plaintiff is only required to allege facts in the complaint showing that the parties to be called in make claims on him or her for the same thing, that the respective claims are adverse to each other, and that the plaintiff cannot safely determine for himself or herself which claim is right and lawful [Fidelity Sav. & L. Ass'n v. Rodgers (1919) 180 Cal. 683, 684-685, 182 P. 426] . The plaintiff cannot maintain the action on allegations of a suspicion of double vexation. He or she must allege facts showing a reasonable probability of double vexation [Hancock Oil Co. v. Hopkins (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 497, 510, 150 P.2d 463] .

A defendant may not object to a complaint in interpleader because it failed to show that the interpleaded claims were well founded since, by necessity, some of the claims are not well founded. It is sufficient to allege that the plaintiff cannot safely determine which claim is right and lawful [Fidelity Sav. & L. Ass'n v. Rodgers (1919) 180 Cal. 683, 684, 182 P. 426] . Even this requirement, however, has been questioned. To express a doubt regarding which adverse claimant a plaintiff is liable to is an admission that the basis on which the right to interpleader rests is the avoidance of double liability, when the right to the remedy is, in fact, founded on the fact that the plaintiff is threatened with double vexation in respect to one liability [see Hancock Oil Co. v. Hopkins (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 497, 510, 150 P.2d 463] . However, this reasoning, at least, would be limited to actions under Code Civ. Proc. § 386(a), since the purpose of action in interpleader under Code Civ. Proc. § 386(b) is to prevent double or multiple liability [see Code Civ. Proc. § 386(b) and discussion in [2], below].

For forms of complaint in interpleader under Code Civ. Proc. § 386(a), see §§ 314.60[1], 314.62, 314.64.

[2] Claims Involving Multiple Liability for Single Obligation

Any person, firm, corporation, association, or other entity against whom double or multiple claims are made, or may be made, by two or more persons that are such that they may give rise to double or multiple liability may bring an action [see §§ 314.60[2], 314.61] against the claimants to compel them to interplead and litigate their claims [Code Civ. Proc. § 386(b)].

An action of interpleader may be maintained under Code Civ. Proc. § 386(b) even though the claims made on the party bringing the action are unliquidated and no liability on the part of such party has arisen [Code Civ. Proc. § 386(b)].

As discussed in § 314.12[3], the intent of Code Civ. Proc. § 386(b) was to give relief to insurance companies and claimants under liability insurance policies when the claims under a particular policy exceed the amount of the policy. Actions in interpleader under Code Civ. Proc. § 386(b) are not, however, limited to such situations by the statutory language. In this respect, the interpleader remedy under Code Civ. Proc. § 386(b) resembles, and was patterned after, the expanded federal interpleader remedy set out in Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 22(1), in which persons having claims against a plaintiff may be joined as defendants and be required to interplead when the claims are such that the plaintiff is or may be exposed to double or multiple liability.

Thus, by analogy to Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 22(1), interpleader actions under Code Civ. Proc. § 386(b) do not appear to require a "stake" or "fund" as such [see Xerox Corp. v. Nashua Corp. (SD NY 1970) 314 F. Supp. 1187, 1189, 166 U.S.P.Q. 344 (interpleader of rival patent claims)]. This is in contrast to interpleader actions under Code Civ. Proc. § 386(a), in which the conflicting claims relate to personal property or a contract obligation, liability for which is wholly or partly admitted by the stakeholder [see discussion in [1], above].

Also by analogy to Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 22(1), an interpleader action under Code Civ. Proc. § 386(b) appears to be available when the claims made on the interpleading party involve a threat to multiple liability on what is in fact but a single claim or obligation [Texas v. Florida (1938) 306 U.S. 398, 412, 59 S. Ct. 563, 83 L. Ed. 817 ; Fulton v. Kaiser Steel Corp. (5th Cir. [Ala] 1968) 397 F.2d 580, 582-583] . This includes the situation in which multiple claims, although not mutually exclusive, exceed in the aggregate the limits on the stakeholder's liability, such as claims made on an insurance company or a surety in excess of the insurer's obligation under a particular policy or the surety's liability under a particular bond [see State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. v. Tashire (1967) 386 U.S. 523, 530-533, 87 S. Ct. 1199, 18 L. Ed. 2d 270 ; American Fid. Fire Ins. Co. v. Construcciones Werl, Inc. (D St. Croix 1975) 407 F. Supp. 164, 172-173 ; see also discussion in § 314.17].

For forms of complaint in interpleader under Code Civ. Proc. § 386(b), see §§ 314.60[2], 314.61, 314.63.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

27-314 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 314.15

§ 314.15 Interpleader by Defendant

[1] Substitution of Nonparty Claimant for Defendant

[a] Application for Substitution Before Filing Answer

A defendant, against whom an action is pending on a contract, or for specific personal property, may apply to the court for an order to substitute a person who is not a party to the action in the place of the defendant, and to discharge the defendant from liability to either party. The defendant may make the application on depositing in court the amount claimed on the contract, or delivering the property or its value to such person as the court may direct [Code Civ. Proc. § 386(a)].

The application may be made upon affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) at any time before the defendant files an answer. The declaration must state that a person who is not a party to the action has made against the defendant a demand on the contract, or for the property, and the demand was made without any collusion with the defendant. The application must be made on notice both to the person who is not a party and to the adverse party [Code Civ. Proc. § 386(a)]. For forms of application and supporting declaration, see respectively § 314.110 and § 314.111.

The court may in its discretion make the order requested [Code Civ. Proc. § 386(a)]. For a form of proposed order, see § 314.112.

[b] Proceedings After Substitution Governed by Interpleader Rules

A proceeding in interpleader by which a defendant before answering applies for an order of substitution is not, strictly speaking, an action of interpleader, since the action is instituted by one of the persons making claim to the fund or property in dispute [Hellman Commercial T. & S. Bk. v. Alden (1929) 206 Cal. 592, 600, 275 P. 794] .

If, however, the court grants the application and makes the order substituting in the applicant's place an adverse claimant who was not a party to the action, the proceeding is between the contesting claimants to the fund deposited in court, and it is governed by the same rules that apply to actions of interpleader [see Hellman Commercial T. & S. Bk. v. Alden (1929) 206 Cal. 592, 600, 275 P. 794 ; see also Camp v. Oakland Mortgage & Fin. Co. (1931) 212 Cal. 433,

435-436, 298 P. 974 (original interpleading defendant is not adverse party on whom service of papers incident to appeal is required to be made)]. For discussion of rules applicable to interpleader actions generally, see § 314.16.

[c] Failure to Apply Before Filing Answer

Failure to comply with the procedural requirement of Code Civ. Proc. § 386(a), that the application for substitution be made before filing an answer to the complaint, does not render the court powerless to consider the application. Rather, the court may, in its discretion, permit the answer to be withdrawn and grant additional time to file an answer, within which time the applicant may reapply for the order of substitution [Israel v. Bryan (1921) 52 Cal. App. 66, 71-72, 197 P. 121] .

[2] Stakeholder Alleged to Have Wrongfully Withheld Sum of Money

When the only relief sought against one of two or more defendants is the payment of a stated amount of money alleged to be wrongfully withheld, that defendant may apply to the court for an order discharging him or her from liability and dismissing him or her from the action, upon deposit of the claimed amount with the clerk of the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 386.5]. The application is to be made on affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) that he or she is a mere stakeholder with no interest in the amount whatever, and that conflicting demands have been made on him or her for the amount by parties to the action. The application is to be made on notice to the parties with the conflicting demands [Code Civ. Proc. § 386.5].

The court may, in its discretion, make the order requested [Code Civ. Proc. § 386.5]. The conditions that must be met before the court may grant such and order are that the relief sought against the defendant be the payment of a stated amount of money allegedly wrongfully withheld, and that the money is also claimed adversely to plaintiff by a codefendant [see Pasadena Inv. Co. v. Peerless Casualty Co. (1955) 134 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 902, 904, 286 P.2d 1014 (holding these conditions not met in action in which plaintiff claimed payment of money, but co-defendant was seeking only declaratory relief regarding money as distinguished from payment)].

For forms of noticed application and supporting declaration, see respectively § 314.110 and § 314.111.

[3] Cross Complaint in Interpleader

[a] Conflicting Claims to Personal Property or Contract Obligation

Rather than apply for an order of substitution [see [1], above], a defendant who is being sued for a contract obligation or specified personal property may alternatively file a verified cross complaint in interpleader [Code Civ. Proc. § 386(a)].

The cross complaint must do all of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 386(a)]:

- Admit that the defendant has no interest in the amount or property claimed, or in a portion of that amount or that property.

- Allege that all or a portion of the amount or property is demanded by parties to the action or cross action. (By requiring an allegation that the amount or property is demanded by parties to the "action or cross action," it appears that any claimants not already made parties to the original complaint may simply be named in the cross complaint.)

- Apply to the court, on notice to the parties, for an order to deliver all or part of the property or its value to such persons as the court may direct.

For a form of verified cross-complaint in interpleader for use under Code Civ. Proc. § 386(a), see § 314.70.

[b] Claims Involving Multiple Liability for Single Obligation

Similar to the cross complaint procedure in Code Civ. Proc. § 386(a) [see [a], above], when a person, firm, corporation, association, or other entity is subject to double or multiple claims that have been or may be made by two or more persons, and these claims may give rise to double or multiple liability, that person or entity, as a defendant in an action brought on one or more of the claims, may file a verified cross complaint in interpleader [Code Civ. Proc. § 386(b)].

The cross complaint must must do all of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 386(b)]:

- Admit that defendant has no interest in the money or property claimed, or has no interest in a portion of the money or property.

- Allege that all or part of the money or property is demanded by the parties to the action and cross action.

- Apply to the court on notice to such parties for an order to deliver all or part of the money or property to such person or persons as the court may direct.

In the alternative, the person, firm, corporation, association, or other entity, instead of filing a verified cross complaint in interpleader, may bring a separate action against the claimants to compel them to interplead and litigate their several claims [Code Civ. Proc. § 386(b)].

Because a cross complaint must include an admission that the cross complainant has no interest, at least in part, in the money or property claimed, it appears that a defendant must use the alternative procedure, bringing a separate action in interpleader, when that defendant wishes to contest liability to any of the claimants for the money or property claimed.

For a form of verified cross-complaint in interpleader for use under Code Civ. Proc. § 386(b), see § 314.70. For forms of complaint in interpleader for use under Code Civ. Proc. § 386(b), see §§ 314.60[2], 314.61, and 314.63.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

27-314 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 314.16

§ 314.16 Action in Interpleader as Two-Stage Proceeding

[1] Determination That Claims May Be Interpleaded Followed by Determination of Interpleaded Claims

The manner in which an action or cross action in interpleader is maintained and the procedure for discharging the interpleading plaintiff or cross complainant are not spelled out in Code Civ. Proc. § 386. These have developed through case law [see Great-West Life Assur. Co. v. Superior Court (1969) 271 Cal. App. 2d 124, 126, 76 Cal. Rptr. 284] .

In general, an action or cross action in interpleader is a two-stage process contest that can involve two sets of pleadings. The first set of pleadings concern only the threshhold issue: whether plaintiff or cross complainant is entitled to compel the defendants or cross defendants to interplead their claims.

The second set of pleadings come into play if and when the defendants or cross defendants are compelled to interplead. They involve the interpleaded claims of the defendants, which are usually pleaded as affirmative causes of action in the defendants' respective answers to the complaint or cross complaint in interpleader [see San Francisco Sav. Union v. Long (1898) 123 Cal. 107, 109, 55 P. 708 ; Great-West Life Assur. Co. v. Superior Court (1969) 271 Cal. App. 2d 124, 126, 76 Cal. Rptr. 284 ; see also City of Morgan Hill v. Brown (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 1114, 1126-1127, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 361 (discussing two-step procedure)].

Because an interpleading party may now deny liability in whole or in part to any or all of the adverse or conflicting claimants, at least when bringing a separate action in interpleader under Code Civ. Proc. § 386(b) [see § 314.14[2] and § 314.15[3][b]], the second stage of an interpleader action may involve a determination of the interpleading party's liability, in addition to the determination of the claims of the interpleaded parties [see State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. v. Pietak (2001) 90 Cal. App. 4th 600, 612-614, 109 Cal. Rptr. 2d 256 (defendant in interpleader action probably can assert compulsory cross-claim against interpleading plaintiff arising out of transaction related to interpleader action, although "there is respectable body of law" suggesting that such cross-claims are precluded in interpleader action); see also [3], below, § 314.19].

[2] Determination That Claims May Be Interpleaded

[a] Adjudicating Objections to Interpleader

In the first stage of an interpleader action, the court determines whether the interpleading party is entitled to maintain an action in interpleader. If the court determines this issue in the affirmative, it enters an interlocutory decree requiring the adverse claimants to litigate their claims between themselves [see San Francisco Sav. Union v. Long (1898) 123 Cal. 107, 109, 55 P. 708 ; Great-West Life Assur. Co. v. Superior Court (1969) 271 Cal. App. 2d 124, 127, 76 Cal. Rptr. 284 ; see also § 314.100 (form of proposed interlocutory order)].

The interpleaded or adverse claimants may contest the issue of the interpleading party's entitlement to the remedy of interpleader at the time the trial court is determining that issue. They may raise this objection by demurrer to the complaint or cross complaint in interpleader [see Hancock Oil Co. v. Hopkins (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 497, 501-502, 510, 150 P.2d 463 ; Los Angeles v. Amidor (1903) 140 Cal. 400, 401, 73 P. 1049] or in the answer [see San Francisco Sav. Union v. Long (1898) 123 Cal. 107, 109, 55 P. 708 ; Williams v. Gilmore (1942) 51 Cal. App. 2d 684, 689, 125 P.2d 539] .

If the interpleaded or adverse claimants fail to object to the interpleading party's right to maintain an interpleader action at the first stage of the proceeding, but proceed without objection to litigate their claims fully in the action, they are deemed to have consented to the interpleader remedy, and may not later object that the complaint did not state a cause of action for interpleader, or that the facts were such that the interpleading party was not entitled to compel the claimants to interplead [Conner v. Bank of Bakersfield (1920) 183 Cal. 199, 202-203, 190 P. 801 ; O'Connell v. Zimmerman (1958) 157 Cal. App. 2d 330, 337, 321 P.2d 161 ; see City of Morgan Hill v. Brown (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 1114, 1127, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 361 (discharge of interpleading party deposit of money into court was not erroneous when neither claimant objected)].

The first stage may require a full trial on the issue of whether interpleader lies in the particular action. The court may, however, issue an interlocutory decree on the pleadings alone, when the allegations of the complaint, coupled with admissions in the answer or answers, show that the interpleading party is entitled to the relief asked [see Willims v. Gilmore (1942) 51 Cal. App. 2d 684, 689-690, 125 P.2d 539] .

If the interpleaded claimants have agreed to submit their claims to private arbitration, but the interpleading party is not a party to that agreement, the arbitration agreement does not deprive the court of subject-matter jurisdiction to determine whether the claims can be interpleaded and whether the interpleading party should be discharged [Dial 800 v. Fesbinder (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 32, 44-46, 55, 12 Cal. Rptr. 3d 711 (after deciding that interpleading party is entitled to discharge, court has discretion to stay resolution of interpleaded claims pending outcome of arbitration)].

[b] Effect of Interlocutory Decree Requiring Interpleader

Following the entry of the interlocutory decree, requiring the adverse claimants to litigate their claims between themselves, the interpleading party ceases to be a party to the action [San Francisco Sav. Union v. Long (1898) 123 Cal. 107, 109, 55 P. 708 ; Great-West Life Assur. Co. v. Superior Court (1969) 271 Cal. App. 2d 124, 127, 76 Cal. Rptr. 284] .

An interlocutory order will not, however, completely discharge the interpleading party, even though by its terms it purports to do so, in either of the following situations [Great-West Life Assur. Co. v. Superior Court (1969) 271 Cal. App. 2d 124, 127-128, 76 Cal. Rptr. 284] :

- When the interlocutory order fails to discharge the interpleading party from the claims of all the adverse or conflicting claimants, if it specifically directs the interpleading party to deposit additional sums with the clerk as they become due when such sums may not be necessary to satisfy the conflicting claimants.

- When the order states that costs and attorney's fees will be paid to interpleading party, but defers the determination of this award until the trial between the claimants [see discussion in § 314.23].

In each of these cases, the first stage of the two-stage interpleader action remains partially undetermined, and the interpleading party necessarily remains an active participant in the case [Great-West Life Assur. Co. v. Superior Court (1969) 271 Cal. App. 2d 124, 127-128, 76 Cal. Rptr. 284] .

[3] Determination of Interpleaded Claims

[a] Determination of Interpleaded Claims

In the second stage of an interpleader action, the trial court adjudicates the claimants' rights to the subject in controversy. The claimants, as defendants or cross defendants in a complaint for interpleader, typically plead their respective causes of action when answering the complaint or cross complaint. These answers are treated as cross complaints [see § 314.80], and are served on each answering party [see San Francisco Sav. Union v. Long (1898) 123 Cal. 107, 109, 55 P. 708] .

This rule is codified in Code Civ. Proc. § 386(d), which applies to defendants named in a complaint to compel conflicting claimants to interplead and litigate their claims, or to defendants named in a cross complaint in interpleader. These defendants may, in lieu of or in addition to any other pleading, file an answer to the complaint or cross complaint, and this answer must include the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 386(d)]:

- Allegations of fact regarding his or her ownership of or other interest in the amount or property.
- Any affirmative defenses.
- The relief requested.

The answer must be served on all other parties to the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 386(d)].

The allegations of each answer are deemed denied by all other parties to the action, unless otherwise admitted in the pleadings [Code Civ. Proc. § 386(d)].

If the interpleaded claimants have agreed to submit their claims to private arbitration, a claimant may seek an order compelling arbitration and staying the court's proceedings; on the completion of the arbitration, a claimant may move for an order confirming the arbitration award [Dial 800 v. Fesbinder (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 32, 44-45, 55, 12 Cal. Rptr. 3d 711] .

It is unclear whether the second stage of an interpleader action may include an interpleaded party's compulsory cross-claim against the interpleading party arising out of a transaction related to the interpleader action [see Code Civ. Proc. § 386(d) (possible alternative pleadings filed by interpleaded parties in addition to their answers to complaint or cross-complaint for interpleader); State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. v. Pietak (2001) 90 Cal. App. 4th 600, 612-614, 109 Cal. Rptr. 2d 256 (defendant in interpleader action probably can assert compulsory cross-claim against interpleading plaintiff, although "there is respectable body of law" suggesting that such cross-claims are precluded in interpleader action)].

An interlocutory order discharging the stakeholder at stage one does not preclude summary judgment at stage two when the undisputed facts show that one of the claimants has the right to the property, at least in cases in which the claimants did not dispute the stakeholder's right to be discharged [City of Morgan Hill v. Brown (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 1114, 1127-1128, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 361] .

[b] Scope of Issues to Be Tried

It is unclear whether the trial court is confined to a trial of only those issues raised by the pleadings that relating to the ownership of or interest in the amount of property in dispute [see State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. v. Pietak (2001) 90 Cal. App. 4th 600, 612-614, 109 Cal. Rptr. 2d 256 (defendant in interpleader action probably can assert compulsory cross-claim against interpleading plaintiff arising out of transaction related to interpleader action, although "there is respectable body of law" suggesting that such cross-claims are precluded in interpleader action)]. In any event, any objections in the second stage of the proceeding relating to the adjudication of issues not directly dependent on the adjudication of the claimants' respective rights in the disputed amount or property may not be raised for the first time on appeal from an adverse judgment [see Weingetz v. Cheverton (1951) 102 Cal. App. 2d 67, 79-81, 226 P.2d 742] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

27-314 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 314.17

§ 314.17 Abrogation of Requirement of Identical Claims of Common Origin

An order of substitution may be made or an action of interpleader may be maintained under Code Civ. Proc. § 386(a) or (b), and the applicant or interpleading party may be discharged from liability to all or any of the conflicting claims, although the claims or titles of the adverse claimants do not have a common origin, or are not identical but are adverse to and independant of one another [Code Civ. Proc. § 386(a), (b)].

This provision of Code Civ. Proc. § 386 abrogates two essential elements of the historic equitable remedy of interpleader. These two requirements were: (1) that the same thing, debt, or duty must be claimed by both or all the parties against whom the relief of interpleader was demanded, and (2) that all of the adverse titles or claims must be dependent, or be derived from a common source [see Hancock Oil Co. v. Hopkins (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 497, 502-503, 150 P.2d 463] .

The abrogation of the requirement that the claims be identical does not mean that the claims of the parties need not relate to the same obligation. It does mean that interpleader is allowed when one person claims all of a fund held by the interpleading party and another person claims only a portion of the fund [see Hancock Oil Co. v. Hopkins (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 497, 504, 150 P.2d 463 ; see further discussion in §§ 314.12[3], 3.14[2]]. The claimants must, however, seek the same thing, debt, or duty. If the claims do not relate to the same thing, debt, or duty, then interpleader is improper [City of Morgan Hill v. Brown (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 1114, 1123, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 361] .

Thus, for example, interpleader is proper if a tenant pleads that the lessor and a third party assert conflicting claims concerning the obligation to pay the rent and royalties reserved by the lease [see Hancock Oil Co. v. Hopkins (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 497, 504-505, 150 P.2d 463] .

On the other hand, interpleader by a client regarding attorney's fees was not proper where a law firm and a former member of the firm had a dispute over the amount due the attorney from the law firm, but it was undisputed that the client owed the fee to the firm. The fact that the amount due the attorney might be partly based on the amount of fees from the client did not alter the fact that the attorney's claim was based on agreements with the firm, not the client [City of Morgan Hill v. Brown (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 1114, 1123, 1126, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 361] .

The requirement that the claims of the conflicting claimants must relate to the same obligation derives from the fact that the right to relief in interpleader results from the double vexation the interpleading party faces with respect to one obligation [see Hancock Oil Co. v. Hopkins (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 497, 504, 510, 150 P.2d 463 ; City of Morgan Hill v. Brown (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 1114, 1122, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 361] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

27-314 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 314.18

§ 314.18 Partial Interpleader and Relaxation of Requirement of Disinterested Plaintiff

One essential element of the historic equitable remedy of interpleader was that the one seeking the relief may not have or claim any interest in the subject matter [see Hancock Oil Co. v. Hopkins (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 497, 502-503, 150 P.2d 463] . This element was retained in California in former Code Civ. Proc. § 386. Thus, a plaintiff in interpleader was required to be a disinterested stakeholder, that is, the plaintiff did not contest liability for the amount or property, but merely a judicial determination of how the payment or property was to be distributed among two or more claimants [see Hancock Oil Co. v. Hopkins (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 497, 505, 150 P.2d 463 ; Conner v. Bank of Bakersfield (1920) 183 Cal. 199, 203, 190 P. 801] . Any dispute or objection to liability on the part of the interpleading party was fatal to the action.

For example, any uncertainty about the amount of the interest due on an obligation would be fatal to the action [see Conner v. Bank of Bakersfield (1920) 183 Cal. 199, 203, 190 P. 801 ; Williams v. Gilmore (1942) 51 Cal. App. 2d 684, 688, 125 P.2d 539 (holding, however, that when determination of amount of interest required nothing more than computation, interpleader action could be maintained)].

Even though courts still require the determination of the propriety of interpleader to turn in part on whether the stakeholder is truly a disinterested party [see Lincoln Nat'l Life Ins. Co. v. Mitchell (1974) 41 Cal. App. 3d 16, 19, 115 Cal. Rptr. 723] , this requirement has been relaxed by amendments to Code Civ. Proc. § 386 in 1951 and 1975. The amendments permit a stakeholder partially to interplead the adverse claimants and claim, at least, a partial interest in the subject matter. Thus, for example, a defendant against whom an action is pending on a contract obligation or with respect to specific personal property, who chooses to file a verified cross complaint in interpleader under Code Civ. Proc. § 386(a) [see discussion in § 314.15[3][a]], may admit in such cross complaint that he or she either has no interest in the amount or property claimed or has no interest in a specified portion of the amount or property [see Code Civ. Proc. § 386(a)].

Further, the requirement of disinterested stakeholder has been virtually abolished for an applicant or interpleading party who proceeds under Code Civ. Proc. § 386(b) [see discussion in §§ 314.12[3], 314.14[2]]. Such an interpleading party may deny liability in whole or in part to any or all of the claimants sought to be interpleaded [Code Civ. Proc. § 386(b); but see discussion in § 314.15[3][b] (defendant denying liability in whole should bring separate action rather than filing cross complaint)].

No provision is made in Code Civ. Proc. § 386(a) for a plaintiff to deny all liability on any interpleaded claims, although such plaintiff may bring an action to compel conflicting claimants to interplead on only a portion of the claims made against the plaintiff [see Code Civ. Proc. § 386(a)]. Thus, the requirement of a disinterested stakeholder still applies, at least in part, to such a plaintiff.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

§ 314.19 Trial of Issues Raised by Partial Interpleader

Although a jury trial may not ordinarily be had in either stage of the action in interpleader [see discussion in § 314.10[2]], in the event that the amount deposited is less than the amount claimed to be due by one or more of the conflicting claimants thereto, or in the event the property or the value thereof delivered is less than all of the property or the value thereof claimed by one or more of such conflicting claimants, any issues of fact involved in determining whether there is a deficiency in such deposit or delivery must be tried by the court or a jury as provided in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 607-630 (trial by jury) or Code Civ. Proc. §§ 631-636 (trial by court) [Code Civ. Proc. § 386(e)].

These issues would normally be tried after the adjudication of the issues involved in the conflicting claims to funds or property, since Code Civ. Proc. § 386(e) provides that conflicting claims are issues triable by the court and may be first tried. This order of adjudication would conform to the general rule concerning the order of adjudication of equitable and legal issues that gives a court discretion to try the equitable issues first [see Jaffe v. Albertson (1966) 243 Cal. App. 2d 592, 609, 53 Cal. Rptr. 25] . This rule is normally invoked, however, when the decision regarding the equitable issues is such as to make a jury trial of the legal issues unnecessary.

Since the order of proof in a trial rests largely within the discretion of the trial court [see County of San Luis Obispo v. Bailey (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 518, 527, 93 Cal. Rptr. 859, 483 P.2d 27] , and since the language of Code Civ. Proc. § 386(e) is permissive, it would seem that in appropriate cases the trial court may order the adjudication of the issue of the stakeholder's liability before the adjudication of the issues involved in the trial of the suit in interpleader.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

27-314 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 314.20

§ 314.20 Independent Liability of Interpleading Party to Claimant

Another essential element of the historic equitable remedy of interpleader was that the interpleading party had incurred no independent liability to either of the claimants [see Hancock Oil Co. v. Hopkins (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 497, 502-503, 150 P.2d 463] .

This element closely resembles the present requirement that the claims of the conflicting or adverse claimants must relate to the same obligation or property [see discussion in § 314.17]. To this extent it appears still to be a requirement that an interpleading party must satisfy before a court will order interpleader. That is, a stakeholder may not have incurred some personal obligation to any of the claimants that is independent of the title or right of possession of the fund or property in question [Hancock Oil Co. v. Hopkins (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 497, 505, 150 P.2d 463] .

To justify dismissal of an interpleader action, this independent obligation must be such that it will not be resolved by the litigation between the interpleaded defendants [Hancock Oil Co. v. Hopkins (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 497, 505, 150 P.2d 463] . Thus, the rationale for the rule that a plaintiff's independent liability defeats a right of interpleader is that if such liability exists, a decision regarding which of the conflicting claimants was right would not absolve the party seeking interpleader from performing his or her independent contract [Security Trust & Sav. Bank v. Carlsen (1928) 205 Cal. 309, 314, 271 P. 100] .

This requirement is satisfied, then, if the relations of the parties are such that the court's decision would determine the responsibility of the interpleading party, rendering the party a mere stakeholder for the purposes of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 386-386.6 [see Hancock Oil Co. v. Hopkins (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 497, 505-506, 150 P.2d 463 (interpleader of adverse claimants to rent held by tenant not barred by independent obligation of tenant to landlord under terms of lease); Security Trust & Sav. Bank v. Carlsen (1928) 205 Cal. 309, 316-317, 271 P. 100 (obligations of escrow holder to pay money and deliver documents deposited with it under terms of escrow does not bar interpleader when rightful owner could hold holder liable if holder delivered property to party not entitled thereto and court's decision would thus determine escrow holder's responsibility)].

As a matter of law and public policy, an interpleader plaintiff is not liable in tort for naming someone as a potential claimant when filing an interpleader action. Thus, a claimant to the fund at issue may not successfully sue the interpleader plaintiff for malicious prosecution, abuse of process, or intentional infliction of emotional distress [*Cantu v. PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

§ 314.22 Deposit of Amount in Dispute or Delivery of Property

[1] General Rules Regarding Deposit

Any amount that a plaintiff or cross complainant admits is payable in the interpleader action may be deposited by him or her with the clerk of the court at the time of the filing of the complaint or cross complaint in interpleader without first obtaining an order of the court therefor [Code Civ. Proc. § 386(c)]. This provision changed the prior rule that stated that in a proceeding in interpleader the moneys in question do not come into legal custody until actually paid into the court on an order of the court therefor [see Durkin v. Durkin (1955) 133 Cal. App. 2d 283, 294, 284 P.2d 185] .

When in the legal custody of the court, the funds deposited no longer are subject to further claims being made to them, such as claims consisting of writs of attachment or execution that purport to levy on all or part of the funds in question [see Van Orden v. Anderson (1932) 122 Cal. App. 132, 141, 9 P.2d 572 (attachment); Durkin v. Durkin (1955) 133 Cal. App. 2d 283, 293, 284 P.2d 185 (execution)].

In the case of substitution of defendants under Code Civ. Proc. § 386(a) or discharge of a defendant under Code Civ. Proc. § 386.5, a court order is required by those sections before the money in dispute may be deposited with the court.

When a deposit has been made pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 386, the court shall, on application of any party to the action, order such deposit to be invested in an insured interest-bearing account. Interest on such amount is allocated to the parties in the same proportion as are the original funds [Code Civ. Proc. § 386.1]. Thus, if the eventual judgment allocates none of the deposited funds to the plaintiff, the plaintiff has no claim to interest earned by the funds while on deposit; that interest belongs to the parties to whom allocations were made [Canal Ins. Co. v. Tackett (2004) 117 Cal. App. 4th 239, 243-246, 11 Cal. Rptr. 3d 626] .

When the subject matter of the dispute is personal property, the property may be delivered only pursuant to court order to such person as the court shall, in its order, direct [Code Civ. Proc. § 386(a),(b)].

[2] Liability for Interest on Deposited Fund or Damages on Delivered Property

Any interest on amounts deposited with the court clerk and any right to damages for detention of property that has been delivered to the court, either itself or its value, pursuant to court order, ceases to accrue after the date of deposit or delivery [Code Civ. Proc. § 386(c)]. Prior to such deposit or delivery, the stakeholder may be liable to the successful interpleaded claimant for interest on the money or damages for wrongful withholding of the property claimed [see Conner v. Bank of Bakersfield (1917) 174 Cal. 400, 402-403, 163 P. 353 (interest)].

Before 1951, none of the interpleaded defendants in an action in interpleader could obtain affirmative relief against the interpleading plaintiff, and their claims against the plaintiff, if any, arising out of the subject matter of the action could not be put in issue in the interpleader suit because there could be no uncertainty concerning the amount of funds or property deposited. Hence, a successful adverse claimant could bring a separate action for damages for wrongful withholding of the disputed funds or property [see Conner v. Bank of Bakersfield (1920) 183 Cal. 199, 203-204, 190 P. 801] .

However, the 1951 amendment to Code Civ. Proc. § 386 permits a defendant to file a cross complaint in interpleader even though such defendant admits to having an interest in a portion of the money or property in dispute, and the 1975 amendment to Code Civ. Proc. § 386 permits an interpleading party proceeding under Code Civ. Proc. § 386(b) to deny liability in whole or in part to any or all of the claimants. Therefore, it would appear that all questions concerning the amount of the plaintiff's liability, even though these issues may not be raised by the interpleading party, should be adjudicated in the interpleader action.

There may be no res judicata effect regarding those issues concerning an interpleading plaintiff's liability when the plaintiff is proceeding under Code Civ. Proc. § 386(a), since that subdivision does not permit a plaintiff to deny liability on any conflicting claims that have been made on plaintiff [see Code Civ. Proc. § 386(b)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

27-314 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 314.23

§ 314.23 Costs and Attorney Fees

[1] Request for Allowance of Costs and Attorney Fees

A party to an action who follows the procedure set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 386 (complaints and cross complaints in interpleader and application for substitution) or Code Civ. Proc. § 386.5 (application for dismissal), may insert in his or her motion, petition, complaint, or cross complaint a request for allowance of costs and reasonable attorney fees that such party has incurred in such action. In ordering the discharge of such party, the court may, in its discretion, award such party his or her costs and reasonable attorney fees from the disputed amount which has been deposited with the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 386.6(a)].

A party is not entitled to costs and attorney fees under Code Civ. Proc. § 386.6(a) unless he or she has completed all the steps provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 386 or 386.5. For example, it is not sufficient for a defendant stakeholder under Code Civ. Proc. § 385.5 to have answered that he or she was a mere stakeholder in the action with no interest in the amount claimed in order to qualify for costs and attorney fees. The stakeholder must, in addition, have paid the money into court or have sought a discharge from liability [see Phillips v. Barton (1962) 207 Cal. App. 2d 488, 495, 24 Cal. Rptr. 527] .

At the time of the final judgment in the action, the court may make such further provisions for assumption of such costs and attorney fees by one or more of the adverse claimants as may appear proper [Code Civ. Proc. § 386.6(a)]. This provision involving the question of which of the adverse claimants may bear the burden of costs and attorney fees should not be confused with the requirement that the court determine at the time of its order of discharge the amount of costs and attorney fees which should be awarded. A court is in error if it deferred this determination until the trial between the adverse claimants, that is, the second phase of the two-stage proceeding [see Great-West Life Assur. Co. v. Superior Court (1969) 271 Cal. App. 2d 124, 128, 76 Cal. Rptr. 284 , and discussion in § 314.16[2][b]].

[2] Determination of Amount of Award

The authorization of costs and attorney fees to be paid to a party who has followed the procedure set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 386 or 386.5, in effect, operates as a preference to the funds or property in dispute. Hence, a court does not abuse its discretion in making an award under Code Civ. Proc. § 386.6, even though in doing so the court seriously depletes an already inadequate fund [see Sweeney v. McClaran (1976) 58 Cal. App. 3d 824, 828-830, 130 Cal. Rptr. 205] .

However, attorney fees must be limited to only those incurred in pursuit of the stakeholder's remedy. An award thus is improper to the extent that it includes fees for legal work done in connection with other causes of action that were originally included in the interpleading stakeholder's complaint [Sweeney v. McClaran (1976) 58 Cal. App. 3d 824, 830, 130 Cal. Rptr. 205] .

It appears, however, that an award of attorney fees incurred in successfully defending an appeal by a claimant disputing a stakeholder's right to interpleader is proper [see Lincoln Nat'l Life Ins. Co. v. Mitchell (1974) 41Cal. App. 3d 16, 20, 115 Cal. Rptr. 723 (stating that amount of fee for defending appeal is more effectively determined in trial court)].

[3] Right of Attorney Stakeholder to Fees

A party may not be denied the attorney fees authorized by Code Civ. Proc. § 386.6(a) for the reason that such party is an attorney, appeared in pro se, and performed his or her own legal services [Code Civ. Proc. § 386.6(b)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

§ 314.24 Appealability of Order of Discharge

Although an order discharging a plaintiff or defendant under Code Civ. Proc. § 386 has a substantial effect in that it removes one party from litigation and further requires the remaining parties to litigate or settle their dispute, it makes no final disposition of the funds or property on deposit [see Lincoln Nat'l Life Ins. Co. v. Mitchell (1974) 41 Cal. App. 3d 16, 19, 115 Cal. Rptr. 723] . Therefore, a court order, either granting a judgment of interpleader that discharges a plaintiff in interpleader or substituting a party defendant in the place of a defendant who has applied for an order of substitution under Code Civ. Proc. § 386(a), is considered interlocutory and nonappealable until such time as a final judgment has been entered disposing of the claims of the remaining litigants [see Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1(a); Camp v. Oakland Mortgage & Fin. Co. (1928) 205 Cal. 380, 381-383, 270 P. 685 ; Neilsen v. Saylors (1956) 146 Cal. App. 2d 139, 140, 303 P.2d 781 (order of substitution); Lincoln Nat'l Life Ins. Co. v. Mitchell (1974) 41 Cal. App. 3d 16, 19, 115 Cal. Rptr. 723 (judgment of interpleader)].

However, the general rule rendering interlocutory orders nonappealable does not apply when the order requires the payment of money by a complaining party [see Fish v. Fish (1932) 216 Cal. 14, 16, 13 P.2d 375] . Thus, a provision for costs and attorney fees in a court order granting a judgment of interpleader renders the order appealable [Sweeney v. McClaran (1976) 58 Cal. App. 3d 824, 828, 130 Cal. Rptr. 205] .

Moreover, a summary judgment that constitutes a final determination as to the complaint in interpleader, by awarding the disputed fund to one of the claimants, is appealable even though cross complaints between the claimants remain to be litigated [City of Morgan Hill v. Brown (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 1114, 1128, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 361] .

PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

27-314 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 314.44

§ 314.44 Decisions

[1] Jurisdiction

Municipal court has jurisdiction to grant leave to plaintiff to amend complaint in order to force transfer of action in interpleader to superior court when amounts periodically deposited with clerk raised total funds deposited to over $5,000. Great-West Life Assur. Co. v. Superior Court (1969) 271 Cal. App. 2d 124, 126, 128-129, 76 Cal. Rptr. 284 (decided under prior lawregarding jurisdictional amounts and jurisdiction over what are now termed limited civil cases)

[2] Venue of Action Commenced Against Defendant Stakeholder

Proper county for venue of action against corporate defendant stakeholder is county of its principal place of business when corporation, although admitting no interest in disputed property other than possessory lien, did not before answer apply for order of substitution as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 386(a). Independent Iron Works v. American President Lines (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 858, 861-862, 221 P.2d 939

[3] Nature of Remedy

[a] In General

Conditions under which remedy of interpleader may be invoked as prescribed by statute and such remedy has been broadened and enlarged. Hancock Oil Co. v. Hopkins (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 497, 508, 150 P.2d 463

Interpleading party is not permitted to maintain action on mere pretext of suspicion of double vexation; such party is required to allege facts showing reasonable probability of double vexation. Hancock Oil Co. v. Hopkins (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 497, 508, 150 P.2d 463

Code Civ. Proc. § 386 concerning remedy of interpleader is remedial statute and has purpose to avoid multiplicity of suits and prevent vexatious litigation. Hancock Oil Co. v. Hopkins (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 497, 508, 150 P.2d 463

Right to remedy on interpleader is founded, not on consideration that stateholder may be subjected to double liability, but on fact that such stakeholder is threatened with double vexation in respect to one liability. Hancock Oil Co. v. Hopkins (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 497, 510, 150 P.2d 463

Person who may be subject to conflicting claims for money or property may bring interpleader action to compel claimants to litigate their claims among themselves; once person admits liability and deposits money with court, he or she is discharged from liability and freed from obligation of participating in litigation between claimants; purpose of interpleader is to prevent multiplicity of suits and double vexation. City of Morgan Hill v. Brown (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 1114, 1122, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 361

Action in interpleader to adjudicate conflicting claims of possession is appropriate for bailee when person other than bailor presents reasonably compelling evidence demonstrating entitlement to possession; award of costs and attorney's fees as within discretion of court under Code Civ. Proc. § 386.6, and ordinarily should be awarded to diligent bailee. Messerall v. Fulwider (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 1324, 1332-1333, 245 Cal. Rptr. 548

Dilemma of debtor who knows that he or she owes sum of money to someone but cannot ascertain to which of two or more claimants it should be paid is met in California by Code Civ. Proc. § 386 permitting debtor to interplead contending parties and deposit money with clerk of court. Krassner v. Veneman (1962) 206 Cal. App. 2d 299, 303, 23 Cal. Rptr. 673

Code Civ. Proc. § 386 permits any person who owes obligation to bring into court, in good faith, all persons who make conflicting claims to performance of obligation and compel them to litigate their claims. Williams v. Gilmore (1942) 51 Cal. App. 2d 684, 689, 125 P.2d 539

[b] Equitable Proceeding

Suit in interpleader is equitable proceeding in which rights of parties as between themselves are governed by principles of equity, including absence of right to trial by jury. Union Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Broderick (1925) 196 Cal. 497, 502, 238 P. 1034

Stakeholder is barred from asserting right to exercise of remedy of interpleader when property in dispute was obtained by such stakeholder as active participant in wrongful act, since interpleader is of equitable nature. Young v. Colyear (1921) 54 Cal. App. 232, 234, 201 P. 623

[4] Action in Interpleader Is Two-Stage Proceeding

[a] In General

Action in interpleader is two-fold contest when plaintiff's right to maintain such action is first determined, and, if his or her right is sustained, court enters interlocutory decree, requiring defendants to litigate their claims between themselves. San Francisco Sav. Union v. Long (1898) 123 Cal. 107, 109, 55 P. 708 ; Great-West Life Assur. Co. v. Superior Court (1969) 271 Cal. App. 2d 124, 126, 76 Cal. Rptr. 284

Two-step procedure generally followed in interpleader action; first, determine whether plaintiff may bring suit and force claimants to interplead; second, if so, court will discharge plaintiff from liability and action may proceed for determination of rights of various claimants to property then in custody of court. City of Morgan Hill v. Brown (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 1114, 1126-1127, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 361

Procedure of discharging interpleading plaintiff is not spelled out in statute, but, rather, was developed through case law. Great-West Life Assur. Co. v. Superior Court (1969) 271 Cal. App. 2d 124, 126, 76 Cal. Rptr. 284

[b] Determination of Right to Maintain Interpleader

Defendants and interpleading party who have fully litigated their claims without objection are deemed to have consented to remedy invoked and are not permitted later to object that complaint did not state cause of action for interpleader. Conner v. Bank of Bakersfield (1920) 183 Cal. 199, 202-203, 190 P. 801 ; O'Connell v. Zimmerman (1958) 157 Cal. App. 2d 330, 337, 321 P.2d 161

Defendant who considers complaint in interpleader insufficient is required to demur to it. Los Angeles v. Amidor (1903) 140 Cal. 400, 401, 73 P. 1049

Determination of propriety of interpleader turns on whether stakeholder is truly disinterested party whose discharge still leaves parties in litigation with substantial rights to be resolved. Lincoln Nat'l Life Ins. Co. v. Mitchell (1974) 41 Cal. App. 3d 16, 19, 115 Cal. Rptr. 723

Despite court order discharging plaintiff from further liability and finding that case was proper one for interpleader, when court requires further deposits from plaintiff, plaintiff remains active party litigant if there is possibility that further deposits are not necessary for plaintiff's protection. Great West Life Assur. Co. v. Superior Court (1969) 271 Cal. App. 2d 124, 127-128, 76 Cal. Rptr. 284

Trial of issue of whether interpleader lies in particular case is not necessary when allegations of complaint coupled with admissions in answer show that interpleading plaintiffs were entitled to relief asked. Williams v. Gilmore (1942) 51 Cal. App. 2d 684, 689, 125 P.2d 539

[c] Contest Between Adverse Claimants

Answers to complaint of interpleader are in nature of cross complaint. San Francisco Sav. Union v. Long (1898) 123 Cal. 107, 109, 55 P. 708

Adverse defendant is not permitted to argue for first time on appeal that trial of issues among adverse defendants were outside scope of issues raised by complaint in interpleader. Weingetz v. Cheverton (1951) 102 Cal. App. 2d 67, 79-81, 226 P.2d 742

[5] Elements of Common-Law Bill of Interpleader

Four essential elements of common-law bill of interpleader as: (1) same thing, debt, or duty must be claimed adverse or conflicting claimants; (2) all adverse titles or claims must be dependant, or be derived from common source; (3) one seeking relief must not have nor claim any interest in subject matter; and (4) interpleading party must have incurred no independent liability to claimants. Hancock Oil Co. v. Hopkins (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 497, 502-503, 150 P.2d 463 ; City of Morgan Hill v. Brown (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 1114, 1122, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 361

[6] Interpleader by Defendant

[a] Application to Substitute Adverse Party

Proceeding under Code Civ. Proc. § 386(a) for substitution of defendant is not strictly speaking action in interpleader, but, on granting application for substitution, proceeding is between contesting claimants and is governed by same rules applicable to actions in interpleader. Hellman Commercial T. & S. Bk. v. Alden (1929) 206 Cal. 592, 600, 275 P. 794

Court has discretionary power to grant request to withdraw answer and permit defendant to make motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 386(a) for order of substitution and dismissal. Israel v. Bryan (1921) 52 Cal. App. 66, 71, 197 P. 121

Defendant is permitted to file answer after making application for order to substitute person not party to action as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 386(a), and is not required to risk default by awaiting court's determination of application. Cassidy v. Norton (1914) 25 Cal. App. 433, 435, 143 P. 1057

[b] Notice of Appeal

On order of substitution and dismissal of defendant under Code Civ. Proc. § 386(a), such party is not adverse party on whom service need be made of papers incident to appeal from judgment determining adverse claims. Camp v. Oakland Mortgage & Fin. Co. (1931) 212 Cal. 433, 435-436, 298 P. 974

[7] Interpleader by Plaintiff

[a] Claims Giving Rise to Double or Multiple Liability

Interpleader action is permitted to be maintained under Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 22(1) when claims made on interpleading party involve threat to multiple liability on what is in fact but single claim or obligation. Texas v. Florida (1938) 306 U.S. 398, 412, 59 S. Ct. 563, 83 L. Ed. 817 ; Fulton v. Kaiser Steel Corp. (5th Cir. [Ala] 1968) 397 F.2d 580, 582-583

Interpleader is permitted under Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 22(1) when claims, although not in theory mutually exclusive, in aggregate exceed limits on stakeholder's liability. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. v. Tashire (1967) 386 U.S. 523, 530-533, 87 S. Ct. 1199, 18 L. Ed. 2d 270 ; American Fid. Fire Ins. Co. v. Construcciones Werl, Inc. (D St. Croix 1975) 407 F. Supp. 164, 172-173

Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 22(1) does not require stake or fund as such since action will lie when all that is involved is threat of multiple liability on what is in fact but single claim or obligation. Xerox Corp. v. Nashua Corp. (SD NY 1970) 314 F. Supp. 1187, 1189, 166 U.S.P.Q. 344

In bringing action in interpleader under Code Civ. Proc. § 386(a), nothing more is required of plaintiff than to show that parties to be called in make claims for same thing, that respective claims are adverse to each other, and that plaintiff cannot safely determine which claim is right and lawful. Fidelity Sav. & L. Ass'n v. Rodgers (1919) 180 Cal. 683, 684-685, 182 P. 426

[b] Claims Relating to Personal Property or Performance of Obligation

Tenant is not permitted to maintain suit in interpleader on mere pretext or suspicion of double vexation; such tenant is required to allege facts showing a reasonable probability of double vexation. Hancock Oil Co. v. Hopkins (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 497, 508, 150 P.2d 463

Code Civ. Proc. § 386(a) requires nothing more of interpleading stakeholder than to show that parties to be called in make claims against such stakeholder for same thing, that respective claims are adverse to each other, and that stakeholder cannot safely determine which claim is right and lawful. Fidelity Sav. & L. Ass'n v. Rodgers (1919) 180 Cal. 683, 684, 182 P. 426

Complaint in interpleader under Code Civ. Proc. § 386(a) is not required to state facts showing that claims of adverse or conflicting claimants are well founded, since action by its nature as its underlying basis assumes that only one claimant is entitled to property. Fidelity Sav. & L. Ass'n v. Rodgers (1919) 180 Cal. 683, 684, 182 P. 426

[8] Independent Liability of Interpleading Party to Claimant

Obligation referred to in rule requiring interpleading party to have incurred no independent liability is required to be such that litigation between defendants to action in interpleader will not determine it, in order to warrant dismissal of action. Hancock Oil Co. v. Hopkins (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 497, 505, 150 P.2d 463

Mere fact that contractual relation exists between plaintiff and one defendant in interpleader action under which fund is required to be paid to such claimant does not defeat right of interpleader. Hancock Oil Co. v. Hopkins (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 497, 505, 150 P.2d 463

Requirement of no independent liability rarely construed to prohibit relief. City of Morgan Hill v. Brown (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 1114, 1123, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 361

Rationale for rule of independent liability defeating right to interpleader is that, when such liability exists, decision as to which conflicting claimant was right would not absolve party asking interpleader from performing his or her independent contract. Security Trust & Sav. Bank v. Carlsen (1928) 205 Cal. 309, 314, 271 P. 100

Provisions of escrow agreement that no rescission or modification of its terms should take place without consent of parties thereto does not deprive escrow holder of right to interplead rival claimants because such holder has, based on such terms, independent liability to parties under escrow agreement. Security Trust & Sav. Bank v. Carlsen (1928) 205 Cal. 309, 316-317, 271 P. 100

Independent liability requirement does not preclude interpleader when liability asserted is duty of stakeholder to deliver property to claimant. Pacific Loan Management Corp. v. Superior Court (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 1485, 1489-1490, 242 Cal. Rptr. 547

[9] Claimant's Remedies

Interpleader action is not permitted to be brought by claimant to fund, but such claimant is permitted to take initiative and bring action for declaratory relief. Pasadena Inv. Co. v. Peerless Cas. Co. (1955) 134 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 902, 903, 286 P.2d 1014

Complaint in interpleader is not required to express doubt as to which adverse claimant plaintiff is liable. Hancock Oil Co. v. Hopkins (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 497, 510, 150 P.2d 463

[10] Deposit of Fund in Dispute

Interpleading party is not required to deposit or pay into court money or property in controversy. Fox v. Sutton (1900) 127 Cal. 515, 519, 59 P. 939

When fund in question does not come into legal custody of court, fund is subject to further claims being made on it, such as liens created by service of writs of attachment or execution. Durkin v. Durkin (1955) 133 Cal. App. 2d 283, 293-294, 284 P.2d 185 (execution); Van Orden v. Anderson (1932) 122 Cal. App. 132, 141, 9 P.2d 572 (attachment)

[11] Liability for Interest on Deposited Fund or Property

Successful adverse claimant is permitted to bring action for interest as damages accruing from time of claimant's demand up to time money was paid into court. Williams v. Gilmore (1942) 51 Cal. App. 2d 684, 687-688, 125 P.2d 539 (decided prior to amendment to Code Civ. Proc. § 386(a) permitting plaintiff's partial interpleader)

[12] Partial Interpleader and Relaxation of Requirement of Disinterested Plaintiff

Defendants in action to compel interpleader are not permitted to obtain affirmative relief against plaintiff; any claims against plaintiff arising out of subject matter of interpleader suit are permitted to be considered only when presented in another and different action. Conner v. Bank of Bakersfield (1920) 183 Cal. 199, 203, 190 P. 801 (decided prior to amendment to Code Civ. Proc. § 386 permitting partial interpleader)

[13] Order to Enjoin Prosecution of Related Proceedings

Jurisdiction to restrain further prosecution of another action in connection with interpleader proceeding as including jurisdiction to restrain collecting on claim already reduced to judgment. Surety Co. of the Pacific v. Piver (1983) 149 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 29, 32, 197 Cal. Rptr. 531

Denial of preliminary injunction as abuse of discretion when plaintiff made showing of actual (not merely hypothetical) danger of multiplicity of suits, and when real parties did not give any explanations of why pending interpleader action was inadequate to preserve their rights to funds or how they would be damaged by such injunction. Board of Educ. v. Superior Court (1979) 97 Cal. App. 3d 977, 979, 159 Cal. Rptr. 265

Since purpose of interpleader action is to avoid multiplicity of suits, preliminary injunction against prosecution of other actions, pending determination of rights of various claimants, is permitted to be granted by court in exercise of its discretion. Fidelity & Deposit Co. v. Santa Monica Fin. Co. (1960) 182 Cal. App. 2d 211, 216, 6 Cal. Rptr. 213

When liability of surety on bond is different from that of its principal, surety is not entitled to injunction to restrain prosecution of action on bond is part of its interpleader action. Fidelity & Deposit Co. v. Santa Monica Fin. Co. (1960) 182 Cal. App. 2d 211, 217-219, 6 Cal. Rptr. 213

[14] Specific Situation in Which Interpleader Permitted

Tenant has right to interplead landlord and adverse claimant to determine to whom rent must be paid. Hancock Oil Co. v. Hopkins (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 497, 510, 150 P.2d 463

Escrow holder is permitted to maintain action in interpleader despite having obligations by virtue of provisions of escrow instruction to pay money and deliver documents deposited when court's decision in such action would determine such holder's responsibility. Security Trust & Sav. Bank v. Carlsen (1928) 205 Cal. 309, 314-315, 271 P. 470

Judgment debtor is permitted to interplead claimants to proceeds of judgment, regardless of whether debtor had knowledge of conflicting claims before judgment or of whether judgment was based on tort. Williams v. Gilmore (1942) 51 Cal. App. 2d 684, 689, 125 P.2d 539

[15] Costs and Attorney Fees

Stakeholder is entitled to determination of costs and reasonable attorney fees at time of court's order of discharge. Great-West Life Assur. Co. v. Superior Court (1969) 271 Cal. App. 2d 124, 128, 76 Cal. Rptr. 284

Right to recover attorney fees in interpleader is statutory and conditioned by Code Civ. Proc. § 386.6 on following procedure set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 386 or 386.5. Phillips v. Barton (1962) 207 Cal. App. 2d 488, 495-496, 24 Cal. Rptr. 527

[16] Appealability of Order of Discharge

Order discharging defendant stakeholder from liability and dismissing such stakeholder from plaintiff's action which provides for costs and attorney fees is appealable. Sweeney v. McClaran (1976) 58 Cal. App. 3d 824, 828, 130 Cal. Rptr. 205

Award under Code Civ. Proc. § 386.6 of attorney fees are required to be limited to only those incurred in pursuit of stakeholder's remedy, whether by complaint or cross complaint. Sweeney v. McClaran (1976) 58 Cal. App. 3d 824, 830, 130 Cal. Rptr. 205

Award under Code Civ. Proc. § 386.6 of costs and attorney fees out of penal sum of contractor's license bond is permitted, even though such award may seriously deplete amount of such sum. Sweeney v. McClaran (1976) 58 Cal. App. 3d 824, 828-830, 130 Cal. Rptr. 205

Judgment of interpleader, discharging interpleading stakeholder and leaving adverse claimants to litigate their claims, is interlocutory and nonappealable, and is subject to review on appeal only after ultimate resolution of claims of adverse claimants. Lincoln Nat'l Life Ins. Co. v. Mitchell (1974) 41 Cal. App. 3d 16, 20, 115 Cal. Rptr. 723

Stakeholder is not bound by promise to pay all costs of collection and reasonable attorney fees incurred by holder of promissory note on account of note's collection when stakeholder has properly filed suit in interpleader alleging there are adverse claimants to proceeds of note. Leroy v. Bella Vista Investment Co. (1963) 222 Cal. App. 2d 369, 377, 35 Cal. Rptr. 128

§ 314.60 Complaint Alleging Adverse Claims Made on Plaintiff With Respect to One Liability

[1] General Form of Complaint

[a] FORM Complaint Alleging Adverse Claims Made on Plaintiff With Respect to One Liability

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA, COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)
vs.	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	COMPLAINT IN INTERPLEADER
[and DOES I through _____,]	)
Defendant(s).	)

Plaintiff alleges:

1. Defendants _____ [names] are, and at all times mentioned herein were, residents of _____ County, California [or allege other capacity and residence of defendants].

[2. Defendants Doe I through Doe _____, inclusive, are sued herein under fictitious names. Their true names and capacities are unknown to plaintiff. When their true names and capacities are ascertained, plaintiff will amend this complaint by inserting their true names and capacities herein. (Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges, that each of the fictitiously named defendants is responsible in some manner for the occurrences herein alleged, and that plaintiff's damages as herein alleged were proximately caused by those defendants.)] (Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that each of these fictitiously named defendants is making or has a claim to the _____ [personal property or funds or obligation] herein described which is conflicting with the claims of defendants herein and which may subject plaintiff to vexatious litigation with respect to such _____ [property or funds or obligation].)]

3. _____ [Describe personal property or obligation, or portion thereof, to which conflicting claims have been made, e.g., On or about _____(date), plaintiff entered into a written contract with defendant _____ (name) for the construction of a sidewalk over plaintiff's property. Under this contract defendant _____ (name) promised to perform all necessary labor and supply all necessary materials for the construction of the sidewalk and plaintiff promised to pay defendant _____ (name) the sum of $_____ on completion of the sidewalk. Defendant _____ (name) has fully performed all conditions, covenants, and promises under the contract and plaintiff now holds the sum of $_____, _____ (the sum due under the contract or after deduction of all sums of money consisting of prior payments or specify other portion of sum that is not in dispute)].

4. _____ [State conflicting claims that have been made on plaintiff relating to personal property or performance of obligation, or portion thereof, so that plaintiff shows reasonable probability of vexatious litigation, e.g., Defendant _____ (name of claimant under contract) has made (a) demand(s) on plaintiff for the payment of the sum due under the contract (, specifically making a written demand for this sum on _____ [date], a copy of which is attached hereto as Exhibit A and made a part hereof). However, plaintiff has refused to pay such sum because defendant _____ (name of assignee) has claimed that this sum is now due and owing to him/her under an alleged assignment of all right, title, and interest in and to the aforementioned contract, which assignment was made by defendant _____ (name of claimant under contract) to defendant _____ (name of assignee) on or about _____ [date], and of which plaintiff was given notice by _____ (specify manner in which notice was given) (, a copy of which notice is attached hereto as Exhibit B and made a part hereof)].

5. Plaintiff is indifferent with respect to which defendant plaintiff should _____ [deliver the above-described personal property or pay the sum of money or perform the above-described obligation] and _____ [claims no interest in such _____ (personal property or sum) or does not dispute that he/she is required to perform such obligation].

6. The respective claims made by defendants _____ [names] are adverse and conflicting and are made without plaintiff's collusion. Plaintiff is unable to safely determine which of the claims is valid.

7. [Plaintiff has deposited the sum of $_____, being the entire amount in dispute which is due and unpaid at this time with the clerk of this court on the filing of this complaint.]

8. [Defendants _____ (names) have commenced separate actions against plaintiff on their respective claims. These actions have been commenced in _____ (list title of court and number of each action). Defendants _____ (names) have threatened to file actions against plaintiff on their respective claims and plaintiff fears that unless restrained by an order of the court, these defendants will file such actions on their claims. Therefore, it is necessary to restrain the prosecution of those actions which have been commenced against plaintiff and to restrain the filing of those actions which have been threatened to be filed, in order to prevent a multiplicity of judicial proceedings and to prevent plaintiff from facing vexatious litigation with respect to the above-described _____ (personal property or sum of money or obligation).]

9. Plaintiff has incurred attorney fees and costs as a result of these proceedings.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendants, and each of them, as follows:

1. That defendants be ordered to interplead and litigate their respective rights to the above-described _____ [personal property or sum of money or obligation];

2. That plaintiff be discharged from any and all liability on account of the claims of each of the defendants;

[3. That defendants _____ (names) be restrained from prosecution of their actions against plaintiff on their respective claims and that defendants _____ (names) be restrained from instituting any actions against plaintiff on their respective claims;]

4. That plaintiff be awarded costs and reasonable attorney fees to be determined by the court [and to be paid out of the money deposited with the court]; and

5. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

VERIFICATION

I, _____ [name], am the plaintiff in the above-entitled action. I have read the foregoing complaint and know the contents thereof. The same is true of my own knowledge, except as to those matters which are therein alleged on information and belief, and as to those matters, I believe it to be true.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

[b] Use of Form

The form of complaint set out in [a], above, is for use by a plaintiff on whom conflicting claims have been or may be made for or relating to personal property, or the performance of an obligation, or any portion thereof, when the plaintiff seeks to compel the conflicting claimants to interplead and litigate their several claims [see Code Civ. Proc. § 386(a)].

Although the form under [a], above, may be used when only a portion of the personal property or obligation is being demanded by some or all of the conflicting claimants, it does not include an allegation that the plaintiff claims an interest in the property in question or disputes the nature of the obligation being demanded of the plaintiff. By the terms of Code Civ. Proc. § 386(a), only a cross complainant may assert such an interest in the amount or property claimed by the conflicting claimants.

For a form of such cross complaint and a form of complaint in interpleader under Code Civ. Proc. § 386(b) under which a plaintiff may deny all liability to any claimant, see §§ 314.61 and 314.70.

[c] Allegations

In bringing an action in interpleader under Code Civ. Proc. § 386(a), nothing more is required of a plaintiff than to show in the complaint that the parties to be called in make claims on him or her for the same thing, that the respective claims are adverse to each other, and that the plaintiff cannot safely determine which claim is right and lawful [

Fidelity Sav. & Loan Asso. v. Rodgers, (1919) 180 Cal. 683, 684-685, 182 P. 426] .

Therefore, the complaint set out in [a], above, alleges:

- Facts showing that plaintiff is the holder of personal property or is obligated to do some thing (Paragraph 3) to which conflicting claims have been made to the whole, or to any portion thereof, such that plaintiff faces a reasonable probability of vexatious litigation with respect to one liability (Paragraph 4) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 386(a); Hancock Oil Co. v. Hopkins (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 497, 510, 150 P.2d 463 ; Fidelity Sav. & L. Ass'n v. Rodgers (1919) 180 Cal. 683, 684-685, 182 P. 426] ;

- That plaintiff is indifferent and claims no interest in the property or does not dispute the nature of the obligation (Paragraph 5) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 386(a) which does not permit partial interpleader]; and

- That the claims are adverse and conflicting and that plaintiff is unable to safely determine which claim is valid (Paragraph 6) [see Fidelity Sav. & L. Ass'n v. Rodgers (1919) 180 Cal. 683, 684-685, 182 P. 426] .

The requirement that the complaint contain an allegation that the plaintiff express a doubt as to which adverse claimant he or she is liable does not mean that the plaintiff must allege the legal probability of recovery by each conflicting claimant [see Fidelity Sav. & L. Ass'n v. Rodgers (1919) 180 Cal. 683, 684, 182 P. 426] . Moreover, the need for such an allegation has been called into question, since it implies that the plaintiff may be subjected to double liability, rather than be threatened with double vexation with respect to one liability [see Hancock Oil Co. v. Hopkins (1944)24 Cal. 2d 497, 510, 150 P.2d 463] . However, the allegation is included in the form under [a], above, in Paragraph 8 as a precaution and because it appears to be included as a matter of general practice.

In addition, the form under [a], above, alleges that plaintiff has incurred attorney fees and costs as a result of the proceedings in interpleader (Paragraph 9) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 386.6(a)].

[d] Deposit of Amount in Dispute

The complaint in [a], above, includes an optional allegation that the sum of money in dispute has been deposited with the clerk of the court (Paragraph 7) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 386(c)]. A plaintiff or cross complainant may so deposit the amount in dispute without receiving a prior court order [see Code Civ. Proc. § 386(c)]. The allegation is not essential to the action since Code Civ. Proc. §§ 386-386.6 do not require that the party deposit or pay into the court the money in controversy [Fox v. Sutton (1900) 127 Cal. 515, 519, 59 P. 939] . However, by depositing the amount in dispute, any interest on the money deposited with the court ceases to accrue after the date of the deposit [Code Civ. Proc. § 386(c)], and all funds deposited would be in the custody of the court and free from any further dispute which may arise when the funds remain, in effect, in the hands of the interpleading party [see Van Orden v. Anderson (1932) 122 Cal. App. 132, 141, 9 P.2d 572 (under prior law when funds deposited would be considered voluntarily deposited, funds as still subject to garnishment or attachment even though in hands of clerk)].

Code Civ. Proc. § 386(c) also provides that any right to damages for detention of property "so delivered," or its value, shall cease to accrue after the date of such delivery. Code Civ. Proc. § 386(c) was originally a part of what is today Code Civ. Proc. § 386(a), and the term, "so delivered," of course, refers to property delivered pursuant to court order as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 386(a) or (b).

[e] Order to Enjoin Prosecution of Other Actions

The complaint in [a], above, alleges as an optional allegation that actions were pending against plaintiff with respect to the disputed personal property or obligation and that other such actions were threatened to be commenced against the plaintiff (Paragraph 8) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 386(f)].

Code Civ. Proc. § 386(f) provides that after any complaint to compel conflicting claimants to interplead and litigate their claims or cross complaint in interpleader has been filed, the court in which it is filed may enter its order restraining all parties to the action from instituting or further prosecuting any other proceeding in any court in California affecting the rights to the interpleader until further order of the court. It would not appear to be necessary to allege the prosecution of other proceedings or the threat of such prosecutions in order to obtain the injunctive relief, and a prayer in the complaint or cross complaint for such relief as set forth in the form under [a], above, should be sufficient [see Van Orden v. Anderson (1932) 122 Cal. App. 132, 137, 9 P.2d 572] . However, the allegation is included in the form under [1], above, as a precautionary measure [see Fidelity & Deposit Co. v. Santa Monica Fin. Co. (1960) 182 Cal. App. 2d 211, 214, 6 Cal. Rptr. 213] .

[f] Verification

Unlike a cross complaint in interpleader, which must be verified [Code Civ. Proc. § 386(a),(b)], a complaint in interpleader is not required to be verified, although verification of the complaint will require the defendant to file a verified answer in an unlimited civil case in superior court [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446]. Verification will also preclude a general denial in an unlimited civil case, and will preclude a general denial in a limited civil case when the action is a claim assigned to a third party for collection [see Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)].

However, if a temporary restraining order or a preliminary injunction, or both, is sought on the basis of facts alleged in the complaint establishing the ground for pendente lite injunctive relief, and, in the case of a temporary restraining order, that great or irreparable injury would result to the plaintiff before the matter can be heard on notice, the complaint must be verified. Otherwise, these facts must be set forth in a separate affidavit [Code Civ. Proc. § 527(a)-(c)] (or declaration under penalty of perjury [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]), which is then attached to, or incorporated in, the ex parte application for a temporary restraining order and order to show cause re preliminary injunction, or attached to the notice of motion for a preliminary injunction, as the case may be.

Since the function of a complaint is to allege ultimate facts and that of an affidavit is to state evidentiary facts, the better practice would be to use an affidavit or declaration under penalty of perjury in which to set forth the operative evidentiary facts. For forms and procedure, see Ch. 393, Injunctions .

[g] Certification re Notice

When a temporary restraining order is sought without notice to the adverse party or parties, it must appear from facts shown by declaration or verified complaint that irreparable injury will result to the applicant before the matter can be heard on notice [Code Civ. Proc. § 527(c)(1)].

Further, the applicant or the applicant's attorney is required to certify to the court under oath one of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 527(c)(2)]:

- Within a reasonable time prior to the application he or she informed the opposing party (or his or her attorney, if any) of the time and place the application would be made.

- He or she in good faith attempted to inform the opposing party (or attorney) but was unable to do so, specifying the efforts made to do so.

- For reasons specified he or she should not be required to inform the opposing party (or attorney) [Code Civ. Proc. § 527(c)(2)].

This certificate may be appended to the ex parte application (affidavit or declaration) for the temporary restraining order and order to show cause re preliminary injunction. For procedure and forms, see Ch. 393, Injunctions .

[h] Discharge of Interpleading Party

The procedures for determining the propriety of interpleader are not spelled out in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 386-386.6 and are only partially dealt with in the cases [see Great-West Life Assur. Co. v. Superior Court (1969) 271 Cal. App. 2d 124, 127, 76 Cal. Rptr. 284] . However, after the filing of the complaint or cross complaint and after the time for answer has passed, there are two ways by which an interpleading plaintiff or cross complainant may obtain a discharge from liability in the interpleader action.

The first is for the interpleading party and the conflicting claimants to stipulate that the party is a mere stakeholder in the action and on deposit of the disputed funds or delivery of the property will be discharged from all liability to the claimants and to obtain an order on the stipulation [see Conner v. Bank of Bakersfield (1920) 183 Cal. 199, 202, 190 P. 801 ; Pinecrest Prod., Inc. v. RKO Teleradio Pictures, Inc. (1970) 14 Cal. App. 3d 6, 10, 92 Cal. Rptr. 44 ; see also § 314.101].

The second is for the interpleading party to serve and file a notice of motion for an order of discharge [see Sweeney v. McClaran (1976) 58 Cal. App. 3d 824, 827, 130 Cal. Rptr. 205] , or for a judgment of interpleader [see Lincoln Nat'l Life Ins. Co. v. Mitchell (1974) 41 Cal. App. 3d 16, 18, 115 Cal. Rptr. 723] which discharges the party from liability and dismisses the party from the action on his or her depositing the disputed funds with the court clerk, if this has not already been done, or delivering the disputed property as the court shall order [see San Francisco Sav. Union v. Long (1898) 123 Cal. 107, 109 55 P. 708 ; Great-West Life Assur. Co. v. Superior Court (1969) 271 Cal. App. 2d 124, 127, 76 Cal. Rptr. 284 ; see also §§ 314.102 and 314.103].

If there is no dispute as to the propriety of bringing an action in interpleader or to the amount or property in dispute, such a stipulation or motion is an efficient and expeditious means to dispose of the first stage in the interpleader contest and to proceed with the main action between the conflicting claimants.

[i] Jurisdiction of Actions in Interpleader

An action in interpleader is classified as a limited civil case that is within the jurisdiction of the municipal court or, if there is none in the county, of the superior court, when amount of money or value of property involved is $25,000 or less [Code Civ. Proc. § 86(a)(2)]. In all other actions of interpleader, the superior courts have original jurisdiction [see Cal. Const., Art VI, § 10; Great-West Life Assur. Co. v. Superior Court (1969) 271 Cal. App. 2d 124, 126, 128-129, 76 Cal. Rptr. 284 (holding that, in action in which amounts periodically deposited with clerk raised total fund deposited to over jurisdictional limit, municipal court had jurisdiction to grant leave to plaintiff to amend complaint in order to force transfer of cause to superior court)].

[b] Use of Form

The form of complaint set out in [a], above, is for use by a plaintiff, who may be a person, firm, corporation, association, or other entity in an action against two or more persons who have made or may make claims against the plaintiff to compel such persons to interplead and litigate their several claims when the claims are such that they may give rise to double or multiple liability on the part of plaintiff with respect to one potential obligation [see Code Civ. Proc. § 386(b)].

The form under [a], above, is an alternative form to [1][a], above, and is for general use by a plaintiff in interpleader seeking to prevent vexatious litigation with respect to one obligation. However, unlike the form of complaint in [1][a], above, the form under [a], above, may be used even though the claims are unliquidated and no liability on the part of the plaintiff has arisen and even if the plaintiff denies liability in whole or in part to any or all of the adverse claimants [see Code Civ. Proc. § 386(b)].

In addition, when the person, firm, corporation, association, or other entity against whom such claims are made, or may be made, is a defendant in an action brought on one or more of such claims, the form under [a], above, may be used, in lieu of a verified cross complaint in interpleader, in a separate action against the claimants to compel them to interplead and litigate their several claims [see Code Civ. Proc. § 386(b)].

With appropriate modifications, the form under [a], above, of complaint may be adapted for use as a cross complaint by a defendant to an action brought on one or more claims described in Code Civ. Proc. § 386(b) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 386(b)]. In such a case, the cross complaint must be verified [Code Civ. Proc. § 386(b)]. Although Code Civ. Proc. § 386(b) provides that a cross complainant may deny liability in whole or in part to any or all of the claimants, a defendant who files such a cross complaint, by virtue of the statute, admits that he, she, or it has, if liability is established, no interest in the money or property claimed or in only a portion of it [see Code Civ. Proc. § 386(b)]. For a form of cross complaint under Code Civ. Proc. § 386(a), see § 314.70.

See also discussion in [1][b]-[j], above.

[c] Allegations

The complaint set out in [a], above, alleges, in pertinent part, the following:

- The capacity, when appropriate, of plaintiff (Paragraph 1) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 386(b) permitting person, firm, corporation, association, or other entity to bring interpleader action)];

- The nature of plaintiff's obligation (Paragraph 4);

- The event or other condition giving rise to double or multiple liability (Paragraph 5);

- The claims made or which may be made on plaintiff (Paragraph 6);

- Facts showing when appropriate, that plaintiff denies all liability to any or all defendants or that plaintiff claims an interest in the subject matter in dispute (Paragraph 7) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 386(b)]; and

- That the claims are such that they may give rise to double or multiple liability on the part of plaintiff with respect to but one obligation (Paragraph 9) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 386(b); see also discussion in § 314.14[2]].

[d] Trial of Issues Raised by Denial of Plaintiff's Liability

When the plaintiff denies liability in whole or in part to any or all of the defendant claimants, it is unclear what procedures the court should follow in determining the propriety of bringing the interpleader action, the right and obligations between the conflicting claimants, and the total amount of plaintiff's obligation, if any. Although Code Civ.

Proc. § 386(e) provides that, except in cases in which by the law a right to a jury trial is now given, conflicting claims to deposited or delivered funds or property or the value thereof are issues that must be tried by the court, and any issues of fact involved in determining whether there is a deficiency in such deposit or delivery are to be tried by the court or a jury as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 577 et seq. (trial and judgments in civil actions), that section does not specifically provide for the trial of those issues raised when plaintiff denies liability and disputes owing any obligation to any or all of the defendants.

It appears, however, that a dispute over the plaintiff's liability is in essence a dispute over the amount claimed to be due from the plaintiff by one or more of the conflicting claimants [see Code Civ. Proc. § 386(e); see also §§ 314.10[2], 314.19]. Thus, if the plaintiff's liability depends on the resolution of legal questions, factual issues relating to those questions may be tried by a jury [see Shopoff & Cavallo LLP v. Hyon (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 1489, 1513, 85 Cal. Rptr. 3d 268 (jury trial is available if nature of rights at issue and remedy sought are legal rather than equitable)]. Then, once the plaintiff's liability has been established, the question of apportionment among the defendants will be tried by the court as an equitable matter [see Shopoff & Cavallo LLP v. Hyon (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 1489, 1513-1515, 85 Cal. Rptr. 3d 268] .

[e] Joinder of Parties

An interpleading party may join as a defendant in such action any other party against whom claims are made by one or more of the claimants or such other party may interplead by cross complaint; provided, however, that such claims arise out of the same transaction or occurrence [Code Civ. Proc. § 386(b)].

[2] Use of Form

The form of complaint set out in [1], above, is for use by a lessee in an action to compel the landlord and a conflicting claimant who each assert an exclusive right to the rents and/or royalties to be paid by the lessee under the terms of the lease to compel them to interplead and litigate their claims to the rent and/or royalties.

See also discussion in § 314.60[1][b] et seq.

[3] Continual Deposits Into Court

When a court orders the plaintiff to make continual deposits with the clerk of the court as such deposits become due, the propriety of interpleading further amounts may be left open.

Although a court may find that a plaintiff is subject to the risk of double vexation for the amount then on deposit, such a finding is not the same as a finding that there may be conflicting claims to all sums that may become due under the contract or other agreement in question in any amount forever, since there may well be a time when the amount deposited with the court is in excess of the amount owing to any or all of the conflicting claimants. In such a case, a plaintiff cannot continue to allege that further deposits are necessary for its protection and, as a result, the plaintiff remains an active party litigant with respect to such amounts in excess [see Great-West Life Assur. Co. v. Superior Court (1969) 271 Cal. App. 2d 124, 127-128, 76 Cal. Rptr. 284] .

However, it would appear that a plaintiff would not remain an active party litigant on receiving a discharge from the interpleader action, conditioned on the making of continual deposits into court as they become due, if the adjudication of the rights and obligations between the remaining defendant litigants would decide completely plaintiff's obligations with respect to the amounts due and to become due [see Signal Oil & Gas Co. v. Taliaferro (1962) 207 Cal. App. 2d 271, 273-276, 24 Cal. Rptr. 593 (affirming plaintiff's right to interplead conflicting claimants to rent and court's order of discharge conditioned on plaintiff's making continual deposits of rent payments into court)].

2. That cross defendants be ordered to interplead and litigate their respective claims to the _____ [money sued for (and admittedly owing) or describe specific property sued for];

3. That cross complainant be discharged from any and all liability on account of the claims of each of the cross defendants [on delivery of the property or its value to such person as the court directs];

4. That each of the cross defendants be restrained from instituting or further prosecuting any proceeding or action against cross complainant for recovery of the _____ [amount or describe personal property] sued for;

5. That cross complainant be awarded [from the money deposited with the clerk of this court] his/her costs and reasonable attorney fees [incurred in pursuing the interpleader remedy] in an amount to be determined by the court; and

[2] Use of Form

The form of cross complaint set out in [1], above, is for use by a defendant against whom an action is pending on a contract, or for specific personal property, and on whom a demand for the money due on the contract, or for the property, has been made by a person not a party to the action to compel the plaintiff and such other person to interplead and litigate their claims to the money or property [see Code Civ. Proc. § 386(a)].

In lieu of filing a cross complaint in interpleader, a defendant who has no interest in the money or property sued for may, before answer, move by noticed motion for the substitution of the nonparty in place of defendant and defendant's discharge from liability [Code Civ. Proc. § 386(a); see § 314.110], or, in the case of multiple defendants, when the only relief sought against one of them is the payment of a stated amount of money alleged to be wrongfully withheld, that defendant may, by noticed motion, move for his or her discharge from liability and dismissal from the case as a mere stakeholder [Code Civ. Proc. § 386.5; see § 314.116].

The form under [1], above, of cross complaint in interpleader is intended only to present a suggested format which may be followed when a defendant seeks to interplead the plaintiff and a person not a party to the action as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 386(a). It may, however, be adapted for use by a defendant against whom an action has been brought on one or more claims as described in Code Civ. Proc. § 386(b) [see discussion in § 314.60[2]].

The form of proposed order set out in [1], above, is an interlocutory order of discharge for use by a plaintiff in interpleader when a trial was necessary concerning the issues involving the propriety of the plaintiff's right to bring the action in interpleader. It should be noted that such a trial is not necessary when the allegations of the complaint, coupled with the admissions in the answer, show that the plaintiff was entitled to the relief requested [see Williams v. Gilmore (1942) 51 Cal. App. 2d 684, 689, 125 P.2d 539] . Moreover, even when there is a dispute as to the propriety of interpleader, the action may normally be disposed of on plaintiff's motion for discharge as discussed in § 314.60[1].

The form in [1], above, may be used when the plaintiff is not completely discharged and the court retains jurisdiction over the manner of plaintiff's discharge. This would be required when the court orders the plaintiff to make further deposits into the court and there is a possibility that such deposits would not be necessary for the plaintiff's protection [see Great-West Life Assur. Co. v. Superior Court (1969) 271 Cal. App. 2d 124, 127-128, 76 Cal. Rptr. 284] or fails to make a determination of the amount of costs and attorney fees to which the plaintiff is entitled [see Great-West Life Assur. Co. v. Superior Court (1969) 271 Cal. App. 2d 124, 128, 76 Cal. Rptr. 284] or in the event that the amount deposited is less than the amount claimed to be due, or that the property or the value thereof is lessthan all of the property or the value thereof claimed by any of the conflicting claimants [see Code Civ. Proc. § 386(e)].

for Defendant _____ [name]

[2] Use of Form

The form of notice of motion set out in [1], above, is for use by a defendant, against whom an action is pending on a contract, or for specific personal property, in applying, before answer, for an order to substitute a person who has made a demand against the defendant on such contract, or for such property, in the place of defendant, and to discharge the defendant from liability to either the party or the person, on the deposit in court of the amount claimed on the contract, or the delivery of the property or its value to such person as the court directs [see Code Civ. Proc. § 386(a)].

A defendant who makes such application must accompany the form under [1], above, with an affidavit (or declaration under penalty of perjury under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) stating that such person has made a demand on such contract, or for such property, against the defendant without defendant's collusion [see § 314.111].

A memorandum in support of the motion must be served and filed with the notice of motion [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a)]. For discussion and forms, see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities .

[3] Filing of Answer Before Making Application or Granting of Order

The requirement that a defendant apply for an order to substitute a person not a party to the action in the place of defendant before filing an answer, as is required under Code Civ. Proc. § 386(a), is not a jurisdictional prerequisite. Hence, the court in the exercise of its discretion has the power to permit an answer which has been filed before the defendant applied for an order of substitution under Code Civ. Proc. § 386(a) to be withdrawn and to grant the defendant time within which to file the answer [Israel v. Bryan (1921) 52 Cal. App. 66, 197 P. 121] .

On making the application, the defendant may then file his or her answer. Code Civ. Proc. § 386(a) does not require a defendant to take the risk of being in default, by not filing an answer and not knowing whether the court will grant the application for substitution [Cassidy v. Norton (1914) 25 Cal. App. 433, 435, 143 P. 1057] .

[2] Use of Form

The form of proposed order set out in [1], above, for the payment of funds deposited by an interpleading party in a proceeding in interpleader, is for use by either the interpleading party when he or she has been awarded costs and attorney fees under Code Civ. Proc. § 386.6(a) that are to be paid out of the deposited funds, or by a party for whom judgment has been rendered in the action between the interpleaded parties.

The form in [1], above, is for use in any court in which local court rules do not require either additional forms or information to be inserted in the court order or the use of a local court form of order directing payment of deposited funds. Counsel should consult local rules and practice to determine whether there are any such additional requirements or court forms.

[3] Disposition of Funds Deposited With Court

When any money is deposited with the clerk or judge of a superior court pursuant to an action or proceeding in the court, or pursuant to any order, decree, or judgment of the court, that money must be deposited as soon as practicable with the treasurer and a duplicate receipt of the treasurer, for it must be filed with the auditor [Gov. Code § 68084(a)]. If any money so deposited is to be withdrawn or paid out, the order directing the payment or withdrawal must require the auditor to draw a warrant for it and the treasurer to pay it [Gov. Code § 68084(b)].

When a deposit has been made pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 386, and the court has ordered such deposit to be invested in an insured interest bearing account as is permitted under Code Civ. Proc. § 386.1, such interest is then allocated to the parties in the same proportion as the original funds are allocated [Code Civ. Proc. § 386.1]. Thus, if the eventual judgment allocates none of the deposited funds to the plaintiff, the plaintiff has no claim to interest earned by the funds while on deposit; that interest belongs to the parties to whom allocations were made [Canal Ins. Co. v. Tackett (2004) 117 Cal. App. 4th 239, 243-246, 11 Cal. Rptr. 3d 626] .

For further discussion and forms relating general to deposits in court, see Ch. 211, Deposit in Court . See also discussion in § 314.60[1][b] et seq.

PART I. SCOPE

§ 315.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter discusses the wrongful use of, or wrongful interference with the use of, irrigation water. The Legal Background discusses irrigation districts, including the formation of these districts under the Irrigation District Law [Water Code § 20500 et seq.] and the delivery and diversion of water by districts [see § 315.11]. Also covered in the Legal Background is (1) the California State Water Resources Control Board's (SWRCB) authority to initiate legal action to prevent the diversion or unauthorized use of water [see § 315.12], and the review of SWRCB decisions [see § 315.13]; (2) the procedures applicable to obtaining injunctive relief to restrain or prevent the diversion or diminution of irrigation water [see §§ 315.14-315.17]; (3) damages that are available in these circumstance [see § 315.18]; (4) the rights among cotenants [see § 315.19]; and (5) the duty of care applicable when diverting water [see § 315.20].

The chapter also includes the following forms for use in proceedings dealing with issues related to irrigation and water usage:

- A complaint to enjoin the interference with and diversion of irrigation water [see § 315.50], and an answer to a complaint by a riparian owner to enjoin the diversion of water [see § 315.51];

- A complaint for damages based on negligent irrigation when negligent maintenance of irrigation ditches causes flooding of the plaintiff's property [see § 315.52];

- Allegations for use in actions alleging that the diversion of irrigation waters causes flooding [see § 315.53] and when the interference with irrigation waters causes either stoppage or flooding [see § 315.54]; and

- A complaint seeking compensatory and punitive damages for the intentional trespass and destruction of the gates and valves controlling an irrigation pipeline [see § 315.55].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

27-315 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 315.10

§ 315.10 Irrigation Defined

Irrigation can generally be defined as the operation of watering lands for agricultural purposes by artificial means. The California Code of Regulations defines irrigation use in the section governing the State Water Resources Control Board as any application of water to the production of irrigated crops or for the maintenance of large areas of lawn, shrubbery, or gardens [23 Cal. Code Reg § 662].

Within California water districts, irrigation includes subirrigation, percolation, underground storage, and well replenishment [Water Code § 34029]. It is the established general state policy in California that the use of water for domestic purposes is the highest use of water and that the next highest use is for irrigation [Water Code § 106].

Within California's irrigation districts [see § 315.11], irrigation works are defined as dams, reservoirs, wells, conduits, pumps, power houses, power generating equipment, power lines, and their appurtenances [Water Code § 20530]. For this same purpose, conduits are defined as canals, laterals, ditches, flumes, pipes, and their appurtenances [Water Code § 20531].

For further definition of and forms for use in the acquisition and determination of rights to irrigation water, see Ch. 575, Waters .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

27-315 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 315.11

§ 315.11 Irrigation Districts

[1] Formation of Districts

Irrigation districts are agencies of the State of California and are formed and exist for governmental purposes [Water Code § 20570]. A majority of the holders of title to land susceptible of irrigation from a common source and by the same system of works, who are also holders of title to a majority in value of the land may propose the formation of a district in accordance with Water Code § 20500 et seq. (the Irrigation District Law) [Water Code § 20700]. The formation of a district may also be proposed by not less than 500 petitioners, each of whom is an elector residing in the proposed district or the holder of title to land in the district where the petitioners include the holders of title to not less than 20 percent in value of the land included within the proposed district [Water Code § 20700]. The land to be formed into a district need not consist of contiguous parcels [Water Code § 20701].

[2] Delivery of Water by Districts

Generally, an irrigation district may do any act necessary to furnish sufficient water in the district for any beneficial use [Water Code § 22075], including all of the following:

- Controlling, distributing, and spreading water [Water Code § 22078];
- Providing for drainage [Water Code § 22095];
- Constructing the necessary works for collection of water [Water Code § 22226]; and
- Acquiring and operating necessary equipment [Water Code § 22231].

Districts may also be involved in electric power [see Water Code § 22115], airports [see Water Code § 22140], and flood control [see Water Code § 22160].

A district may refuse to deliver water through a ditch which is not clean or not in suitable condition to prevent waste of water and may determine through which of two or more available ditches it will deliver water [Water Code § 22257].

The district may also regulate the amount of water to be used when seepage from irrigation would damage adjacent land inside or outside the district [see Water Code § 22255].

[3] Requirement to Apportion Water Ratably and to Distribute It Equitably

All water distributed by districts for irrigation purposes must be apportioned ratably to each landowner on the basis of the ration which the last assessment against the owner's land for district purposes bears to the whole sum assessed in the district, except as otherwise provided [see Water Code § 22250]. However, rights to water are assignable [Water Code § 22251].

Water must be distributed equitably among those offering to make the required payment [Water Code § 22252]. Each district must establish equitable rules for the distribution and use of water and must print and distribute its rules [Water Code § 22257]. Rights to water from the irrigation district sources are obtained by application to the board of the district [Water Code § 22252.1].

[4] Diversion of Water

The Irrigation District Law [Water Code § 20500 et seq.] does not authorize the diversion of water from any stream or conduit from its channel to the detriment of any person having any interest in the stream, in the conduit, or in the water in it, unless compensation is previously ascertained and paid [Water Code § 22263].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

27-315 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 315.12

§ 315.12 Administrative Remedies Available

The State Water Resources Control Board (SWRCB) exercises the adjudicatory and regulatory functions of the state in the field of water resources and is empowered to hold hearings and investigations to provide for the orderly and efficient administration of the water resources of the state [Water Code §§ 174, 183]. The diversion or unauthorized use of water is a trespass, and SWRCB may institute in the superior court in and for any county where this diversion or use is attempted appropriate action to have the trespass enjoined [Water Code § 1052; see Water Code §§ 22650, 22654, 22655 for actions which may be instituted by, intervened in, or defended by irrigation districts; see also § 315.55 (form of complaint for damages for trespass)]. SWRCB may also impose civil liability in the amount of $500 for each day in which the trespass occurs [see Water Code § 1052]. In addition, SWRCB may take appropriate actions before the executive, legislative, or judicial agencies to prevent waste, unreasonable use, unreasonable method of use, or unreasonable method of diversion of water [Water Code § 275].

All claims for money or damages brought against an irrigation district are governed by Gov. Code § 900 et seq. [Water Code § 22727; see C. A. Magistretti Co. v. Merced Irrigation Dist. (1972) 27 Cal. App. 3d 270, 274-276, 103 Cal. Rptr. 555] . If a water user desires judicial review of the State Water Resources Control Board's (SWRCB) order either (1) licensing less water or water use than specified in the user's permit or (2) granting or refusing to grant permission to change the place of water diversion, place of water use, or purpose of water use, the water user may bring a petition for a writ of mandate [see Water Code §§ 1615, 1705.5 (applicable to proceedings for the judicial review of a decision or order of the board pending on December 31, 1996); Water Code § 1126 (applicable after that date); *see also Code Civ. PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

§ 315.14 Injunctive Relief Available When Natural Flow Diverted

[1] Notice Requirements; Exceptions

In all actions which are brought when a temporary restraining order is applied for to prevent the diversion, diminution, or increase of the flow of water in its natural channels to the ordinary flow of which the plaintiff claims to be entitled, the court must first require due notice of the application to be served on the defendant [Code Civ. Proc. § 530]. However, notice is not required unless it appears from the verified complaint or affidavits (or declarations under penalty or perjury [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) on which the application for injunctive relief is made either [Code Civ. Proc. § 530]:

- That within 10 days before the time of the application, the plaintiff was in the peaceable possession of the water's flow and that, within this time, the plaintiff was deprived of the flow thereof by the wrongful diversion of the flow by the defendant; or

- That the plaintiff, at the time of the application, is and for 10 days before thereto was, in possession of the flow of the water and that the defendant is threatening to divert the water's.

[2] Required Showings

In addition to giving due notice [see [1], above], when a plaintiff seeks an injunction to restrain the diversion of water above his or her lands, the plaintiff must show the following [Carlsbad Mut. Water Co. v. San Luis Rey Dev. Co. (1947) 78 Cal. App. 2d 900, 914, 178 P.2d 844] :

- There is a wrongful diversion of water above his or her lands; and

- The amount of water wrongfully diverted would be rightfully used by him or her for reasonable and beneficial purposes.

[3] Denial of Injunction in Court's Discretion if Defendant Gives Bond

If the notice of application is given [see [1], above] and on the application's hearing it is made to appear to the court that the plaintiff is entitled to the preliminary injunction but that issuance of the injunction pending the litigation will entail great damage on the defendant and that the plaintiff will not be greatly damaged by the acts complained of pending the litigation and can be fully compensated for any damage he or she may suffer, the court may refuse the injunction. However, the defendant must give bond as provided for in Code Civ. Proc. § 532 [Code Civ. Proc. § 530].

[4] Ascertaining Damages at Trial

At the trial, the same proceedings with regard to ascertaining damages must be had, and with the same effect, as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 532 [Code Civ. Proc. § 530].

27-315 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 315.15

§ 315.15 When Injunctive Relief Sought to Prevent Diversion of Irrigation Water

[1] Dissolution or Modification

[a] Application to Dissolve or Modify Injunction

If an injunction is granted without notice to the person enjoined, the person may apply, on reasonable notice to the judge who granted the injunction, or to the court in which the action was brought, to dissolve or modify the injunction [Code Civ. Proc. § 532(a)]. The application may be made on the complaint or the affidavit on which the injunction was granted, or on affidavit on the part of the person enjoined, with or without the answer [Code Civ. Proc. § 532(a)].

[b] Dissolution or Modification Is in Court's Discretion and Is Dependant on Certain Factors, Including Payment of Bond

In all actions in which an injunction or restraining order has been or may be granted or applied for, to prevent the diversion, pending the litigation, of water used, or to be used, for irrigation or domestic purposes only, the court may in its discretion dissolve or modify the injunction [Code Civ. Proc. § 532(b)]. However, to obtain the injunction's dissolution or modification, it must be made to appear to the court (1) that great damage will be suffered by the person enjoined, in case the injunction is continued, and (2) that the person in whose behalf the injunction issued can be fully compensated for any damages suffered by reason of the continuance of the acts enjoined during the litigation [Code Civ. Proc. § 532(b)]. In addition, the dissolution or modification is subject to the person enjoined giving a bond in an amount as may be fixed by the court or judge, conditioned that the enjoined person will pay all damages that the person in whose behalf the injunction issued may suffer by reason of the continuance, during the litigation, of the acts complained of [Code Civ. Proc. § 532(b)].

[2] Ascertaining Damages at Trial

At trial, the amount of damages must be ascertained and in case judgment is rendered for the person in whose behalf the injunction was originally granted, the amount fixed as such damages must be included in the judgment, together with reasonable attorney's fees [Code Civ. Proc. § 532(b)].

[3] Action on Bond

In any suit brought on the bond, the amount of the damages as fixed in the judgment is conclusive [Code Civ. Proc. § 532(b)].

§ 315.16 Action for Injunctive Relief to Prevent Diversion of Water

[1] Answer Based on Diversion of Water for Irrigation

In any action brought by a riparian owner to enjoin the diversion of water appropriated or proposed to be appropriated, or the use thereof, against any person or persons appropriating or proposing to appropriate such waters, the defendant may set up in his or her answer that the water diverted or proposed to be diverted is for the irrigation of land or other public use [Code Civ. Proc. § 534]. In this case, he or she must also in the answer set forth all of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 534]:

- The quantity of water desired to be taken and necessary to the irrigation of land or the public use;
- The nature of this use;
- The place where the water is used or proposed to be used;
- The duration and extent of the diversion or proposed diversion, including the stages of the flow of the stream at and during the time in which the water is to be diverted;
- That the water may be diverted without interfering with the actual and necessary beneficial uses of the plaintiff; and
- That the defendant desires that the court ascertain and fix the damages, if any, that will result to the plaintiff or to his or her riparian lands from the appropriation of the water so appropriated or intended to be appropriated by defendant.

[2] Plaintiff's Reply to Answer

The plaintiff may serve and file a reply to the defendant's answer stating plaintiff's rights to the water and the damage plaintiff will suffer by the defendant's taking of the water [Code Civ. Proc. § 534].

[3] Plaintiff's Right to Implead Other Parties

Plaintiff may implead as parties to the action all persons necessary to a full determination of plaintiff's rights to the water and the damages plaintiff will suffer by the proposed taking by defendant [Code Civ. Proc. § 534]. The court has jurisdiction to hear and determine all the plaintiff's rights to water as well as all the rights to water of other parties to the action. The other parties have a right to state and prove their rights, and must be bound by the judgment rendered the same as though made parties plaintiff at the commencement of the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 534].

[4] Right to Jury Trial

On the filing of an answer as provided for in Code Civ. Proc. § 534, the parties plaintiff or other parties and defendant are entitled to a jury trial on the issues as to damages raised in the action, as provided in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1230.010-1273.050 (eminent domain proceedings) [Code Civ. Proc. § 534].

[5] Trial Procedure

[a] Evidence

At the trial, the court must receive and hear evidence on behalf of the respective parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 534].

[b] When Allegations in Answer Found to Be True

If the court finds that (1) the allegations of the answer are true, (2) the appropriation and diversion of the waters is for irrigation of land or other public use, and (3) after allowing sufficient water for the actual and necessary beneficial uses of the plaintiff and other parties, there is water available to be beneficially appropriated by the defendant, then the court must fix the time and manner and extent of the appropriation and the actual damages, if any, resulting to the plaintiff or other parties on account of the same [Code Civ. Proc. § 534].

[c] Ascertaining Damages

In fixing the damages set forth in [b], above, the court must be guided by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1263.410-1263.450 (compensation for injury to remainder in eminent domain proceedings) [Code Civ. Proc. § 534].

[d] Effect of Deposit

If, on the ascertainment and fixing of damages [see [b] and [c], above], within 30 days the defendant either (1) pays into court the amount of damages fixed and the costs adjudged to be paid by the defendant or (2) gives a good and sufficient bond to pay the damages and costs on the case's final settlement, the injunction prayed for by the plaintiff must be denied to the extent of the amount that the defendant is permitted to appropriate. In addition, any preliminary injunction that was granted must be vacated [Code Civ. Proc. § 534].

[6] Appeal

[a] Right to Appeal

Any of the parties may appeal from the judgment as in other cases [Code Civ. Proc. § 534].

[b] Stay Pending Appeal; Deposit Required

If the judgment is in the defendant's favor and if on and pending the appeal the defendant keeps on deposit with the clerk of the court the amount of the damages and costs, or the bond, if it is given, so awarded to be paid to the plaintiff or other parties in the event the judgment is affirmed, no injunction against the appropriation of the amount the defendant is permitted to appropriate may be granted or enforced pending the appeal [Code Civ. Proc. § 534].

§ 315.17 Interference With Easement Prohibited; Injunctive Relief Available

The purchaser of land subject to an irrigation easement takes subject to that easement and may not interfere with its use by the easement owner. When a purchaser maintains an obstruction in the ditch or canal which prevents drainage, he or she may be enjoined from maintaining the obstruction and ordered to restore the ditch to its previous state [Morris v. George (1943) 57 Cal. App. 2d 665, 676, 681-682, 135 P.2d 195] . Thus, when the right to a water-carrying ditch is jeopardized by the contemplated operations of another, the easement holder is entitled to injunctive relief [McLaughlin v. Del Re (1886) 71 Cal. 230, 231, 236, 16 P. 881] . In addition, when a smaller conduit is substituted for a larger one causing the water right's owner to obtain insufficient water for irrigation needs, this interference may be enjoined [Enos v. Harmon (1958) 157 Cal. App. 2d 746, 750-752, 321 P.2d 810] .

§ 315.18 Damages Awarded in Addition to Injunctive Relief

Damages may be awarded in addition to injunctive relief. For instance, an award of damages has been sustained against a defendant who negligently moved an immense timber jam existing in a stream above plaintiff's property which caused the breaking of plaintiff's dike and the flooding of plaintiff's lands [Sacchi v. Bayside Lbr. Co. (1910) 13 Cal. App. 72, 85, 108 P. 885] . In addition, when the continuing discharge of sewage prevents a landowner from widening and deepening creek beds in accordance with flood control requirements before developing his or her property, the city's knowing discharge of sewage constitutes an actionable taking of property compensable by damages [Amador Valley Investors v. Livermore (1974) 43 Cal. App. 3d 483, 491-492, 117 Cal. Rptr. 749] .

§ 315.19 Rights Among Cotenants

One cotenant, insofar as he or she interferes with the joint property to the damage or injury of his or her cotenant, is a trespasser to that extent. A cotenant cannot, simply because he or she has a certain interest in the common property, deal with it or use it to the detriment of other co-owners; each of the parties in this case has the right to protect his or her respective interest. The use by a tenant of more than his or her share of the water may therefore be enjoined [see Barton Land & Water Co. v. Crafton Water Co. (1915) 171 Cal. 89, 97, 152 P. 48 ; De La Cuesta v. Bazzi (1941) 47 Cal. App. 2d 661, 672-673, 118 P.2d 909] .

27-315 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 315.20

§ 315.20 Duty of Care

[1] When Diverting Water

One who artificially changes the condition of a watercourse has a continuing duty to maintain that diversion or changed condition within the reasonable capacity of the system which effected the change. For example, when public works are not planned and constructed in accordance with good engineering standards and are negligently maintained, plaintiff may recover for damage to his or her crops caused by flood water breaching the banks of the channel [Granone v. County of Los Angeles (1965) 231 Cal. App. 2d 629, 649, 42 Cal. Rptr. 34] . Similarly, negligence exists when the obstruction of a watercourse causes an overflow of water beyond that which would have occurred in the absence of the obstruction [Van Zyl v. Spiegelberg (1969) 2 Cal. App. 3d 367, 375, 82 Cal. Rptr. 689] .

[2] When Constructing and Maintaining Canals and Ditches

The owners of canals and ditches that are maintained for the purpose of conveying water for irrigation purposes either for private use or for sale to the public are liable for damages to the crops or property of adjacent owners resulting from the overflow or leakage from the canal or ditch on account of negligence on the part of the owners in the construction, maintenance, or operation of the system [Massetti v. Madera Canal & Irrigation Co. (1937) 20 Cal. App. 2d 708, 714, 68 P.2d 260] . The owner of ditches, canals, or other works is under a duty to construct them as far as possible so that the water will not seep or percolate therefrom to the injury of the lands of others below. The owner is not held to be the insurer against all damages incurred, but he or she is held liable in damages for all injuries that are the direct and proximate result of his or her actual negligence or the failure to exercise ordinary and reasonable care [Ketcham v. Modesto Irrigation Dist. (1933) 135 Cal. App. 180, 187, 26 P.2d 876 ; see Diamond Springs Lime Co. v. American River Constructors (1971) 16 Cal. App. 3d 581, 596-597, 94 Cal. Rptr. 200] .

When actual physical damage is caused to real property as the proximate result of the construction of a public work which is deliberately planned and carried out by a public agency, then plaintiff should consider filing an action for damages for inverse condemnation. For discussion and forms concerning inverse condemnation, see Ch. 247, Eminent Domain .

[3] Preventing Excess Drainage

No essential difference is usually recognized between damages caused by surface overflow and damages caused by direct percolation. Whether the seeping nature of the soil is known or unknown at the time of construction, the responsibility of the builder of an irrigation conduit is usually held to be the same, that is, use of effective intercepting trenches, cementing, and other scientific methods. The receptacle built for holding water must be made and maintained as nearly waterproof as human agency can reasonably and prudently make it [Kall v. Carruthers (1922) 59 Cal. App. 555, 559, 211 P. 43] . To knowingly construct a canal through loose sand or gravel incapable of holding water, without taking any steps to prevent or control seepage, constitutes negligence [Tormey v. Anderson-Cottonwood Irrigation Dist. (1921) 53 Cal. App. 559, 564, 200 P. 814] .

§ 315.34 Decisions

[1] Availability of Injunctive Relief

Embankments erected by defendant and causing water to flow on another's land which would not flow there naturally create a nuisance per se; its continuance ripens into a right in the nature of an easement or servitude; mandatory injunction issues to prevent creation of these easement. Learned v. Castle (1889) 78 Cal. 454, 461-462, 21 P. 11

Plaintiff seeking an injunction to restrain diversion of water above his or her lands must show (1) that there is a wrongful diversion of water above his or her lands, and (2) that the amount of water wrongfully diverted would be rightfully used by him or her for reasonable and beneficial purposes. Carlsbad Mut. Water Co. v. San Luis Rey Dev. Co. (1947) 78 Cal. App. 2d 900, 914, 178 P.2d 844

[2] Damages Awarded in Addition to Injunctive Relief

City's knowing discharge of sewage is actionable as a taking of property compensable by damages when continuing discharge prevents the landowner from widening and deepening creek beds in accordance with flood control requirements before developing his or her property. Amador Valley Investors v. Livermore (1974) 43 Cal. App. 3d 483, 491-492, 117 Cal. Rptr. 749

When there has been a grant of a right of way for a drainage ditch by the landowner to an irrigation district, the landowner is not precluded from recovering for damages to his or her lands from all seepage; the landowner is estopped from afterward prosecuting action for part damages or for future damages reasonably to be expected by reason of necessary, natural, and ordinary use of utility. Lourence v. West Side Irrigation Dist. (1965) 233 Cal. App. 2d 532, 536, 43 Cal. Rptr. 889 (district is not relieved from liability for seepage because of land grant, thus landowner entitled to instruction for negligence)

Award of damages is proper when a smaller conduit substituted for a larger one causes the owner of a water right to obtain insufficient water for his or her irrigation needs. Enos v. Harmon (1958) 157 Cal. App. 2d 746, 751-752, 321

P.2d 810

Damages are appropriate, in addition to injunctive relief, against a defendant negligently moving immense timber jam existing in a stream above plaintiff's property and thus causing the breaking of plaintiff's dike and the flooding of plaintiff's lands. Sacchi v. Bayside Lbr. Co. (1910) 13 Cal. App. 72, 85, 108 P. 885

[3] Duty of Care

[a] Construction and Maintenance of Ditches and Canals

Liability of public works contractor for damage caused by collapse of partially constructed dam. Diamond Springs Lime Co. v. American River Constructors (1971) 16 Cal. App. 3d 581, 596-598, 94 Cal. Rptr. 200

Owners of canals and ditches maintained for purpose of conveying water for irrigation purposes either for private use or for sale to public are liable for damages to crops or property of adjacent landowner resulting from overflow or leakage from the canals or ditches on account of negligence on the part of owners in the construction, maintenance, or operation of the system. Massetti v. Madera Canal & Irrigation Co. (1937) 20 Cal. App. 2d 708, 714, 68 P.2d 260 ; Ketcham v. Modesto Irrigation Dist. (1933) 135 Cal. App. 180, 187, 26 P.2d 876

Owners of ditches, canals, or other works are not held as insurers against all damages incurred but are held liable in damages for all injuries which are a direct and proximate result of their actual negligence or of their failure to exercise ordinary and reasonable care. Ketcham v. Modesto Irrigation Dist. (1933) 135 Cal. App. 180, 187, 26 P.2d 876

[b] Diverting Water

In action by adjoining owner alleging defendants diverted stream and storm drain from defendants' adjoining property onto plaintiffs' property by bulldozing ditch on plaintiffs' property resulting in erosion during and after each rain, three-year statute of limitations of Code Civ. Proc. § 338 is applicable and runs from each occurrence of erosion. Polin v. Cho (1970) 8 Cal. App. 3d 673, 676-679, 87 Cal. Rptr. 591

Negligence exists when obstruction of watercourse causes overflow of water beyond that which would have occurred in the absence of the obstruction. Van Zyl v. Spiegelberg (1969) 2 Cal. App. 3d 367, 375, 82 Cal. Rptr. 689

Person is not permitted with impunity to obstruct or divert flow of natural watercourse to "damage of others" property; when natural watercourse is obstructed, the diverter is under a continuing duty of providing proper facilities for handling of diverted waters so as to prevent damage to property of others. Van Zyl v. Spiegelberg (1969) 2 Cal. App. 3d 367, 373, 82 Cal. Rptr. 689

Plaintiff seeking to recover damages under same state of facts but under different theories of recovery, that is, private nuisance and negligence, has but one cause of action. Van Zyl v. Spiegelberg (1969) 2 Cal. App. 3d 367, 372, 82 Cal. Rptr. 689

One who artificially changes condition of watercourse has a continuing duty to maintain that diversion or changed condition within reasonable capacity of its system which effected the change. Granone v. County of Los Angeles (1965) 231 Cal. App. 2d 629, 649, 42 Cal. Rptr. 34

[c] Drainage and Drainage Systems

Upper landowner has right to discharge reasonable and noninjurious amounts of irrigation water through natural areas of flow onto lower landowner's property, and lower landowner has coequal burden to receive reasonable and noninjurious amounts of irrigation water through natural flowage channels. Martinson v. Hughey (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 318, 328, 244 Cal. Rptr. 795

Construction of artificial drainage systems by upper landowner is permitted to increase velocity, but not volume, of discharge. Martinson v. Hughey (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 318, 328, 244 Cal. Rptr. 795

When lower landowner and predecessors built berm on property and obliterated natural water course for receiving waters from above and built compensating ditch to receive waters that servient tenement had duty to receive, lower landowner was not permitted to pare down rights of upslope owners to discharge waters from their properties into compensating ditch by blocking it, even in absence of prescriptive easement. Martinson v. Hughey (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 318, 329, 244 Cal. Rptr. 795

[d] Excess Drainage

Responsibility of builder of irrigation conduit when seeping nature of soil known or unknown at time of construction; duty of builder to make and maintain conduit as nearly waterproof as human agency can reasonably and prudently make it. Kall v. Carruthers (1922) 59 Cal. App. 555, 559, 211 P. 43

Knowingly constructing canal through loose sand and gravel incapable of holding water, without taking any steps to prevent or control seepage, constitutes negligence. Tormey v. Anderson-Cottonwood Irrigation Dist. (1921) 53 Cal. App. 559, 564, 200 P. 814

[e] Liability

The form in [1], above, is a complaint for an injunction to prohibit interference with a landowner's right to obtain irrigation water through a given pipeline. The complaint also prays for damages for injury sustained by plaintiff's crops due to the absence of water.

It should be noted that some of the allegations in this complaint are based on the requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 530. It should also be noted, however, that the meaning of the term "natural" in Code Civ. Proc. § 530 is not certain. It may refer to natural watercourses in the sense of streams or creeks, or it may refer to "natural" in the sense of "customary" or "regular." The complaint in [1], above, is based on the assumption that the latter reference is intended since the complaint involves a factual situation based on the diversion of water from an irrigation pipeline, not a natural watercourse.

[3] Allegations

The complaint alleges:

- plaintiff's right to irrigation water by means of a specific pipeline located on defendant's property (Paragraph 5);

- plaintiff's immediate need for the irrigation water (Paragraph 6);

- plaintiff's possession of the flow of irrigation water within 10 days before the complaint's filing (Paragraph 7) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 530; see also Higgins v. Kadjevich (1960) 186 Cal. App. 2d 520, 521-522, 9 Cal. Rptr. 115] ;

- defendant's interference with the flow of irrigation water to plaintiff (Paragraph 8); and

- damage to plaintiff (Paragraph 9) [see Higgins v. Kadjevich (1960) 186 Cal. App. 2d 520, 521-522, 9 Cal. Rptr. 115] .

[4] Verification

Verification [Code Civ. Proc. § 446] is required if plaintiff seeks a temporary restraining order or a preliminary injunction on a complaint instead of on affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 527(a)]. If relying on a verified complaint instead of affidavits (or declarations), counsel must plead evidentiary facts that would entitle plaintiff to the relief sought [see E.H. Renzel Co. v. Warehousemen's Union (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 369, 373, 106 P.2d 1 ; Finnie v. Town of Tiburon (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 1, 15, 244 Cal. Rptr. 581] . Otherwise, verification is not required, but verification of the complaint requires the defendant to file a verified answer [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446] and precludes use of a general denial [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion of the effect that verifying a complaint has on the answer, see Ch. 26, Answers .

[5] Certification re Notice

No temporary restraining order will be granted without notice to the opposing party unless the applicant or the applicant's attorney certifies one of the following to the court under oath: (1) that within a reasonable time before the application the applicant informed the opposing party or the opposing party's attorney at what time and where the application would be made; (2) that the applicant in good faith attempted but was unable to inform the opposing party and the opposing party's attorney, specifying the efforts made to contact them; or (3) that for reasons specified the applicant should not be required to so inform the opposing party or the opposing party's attorney [Code Civ. Proc. § 527(c)].

For discussion of this requirement and the procedure and additional forms for obtaining a temporary restraining order, see Ch. 303, Injunctions .

[6] Jurisdiction

An action seeking permanent injunctive relief is in the jurisdiction of the superior court and is not a limited civil case except as otherwise provided by statute [see Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(8), 580(b)(2)].

[7] Venue

Subject to the court's power to transfer actions and proceedings as provided in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 392-402, the county in which the real property which is the subject matter of the action, or some part of the action, is situated, is the proper county for the trial of actions to recover real property, or of estates and interests in real property, or for the determination in any form of such right or interest, and for injuries to real property [Code Civ. Proc. § 392(a)(1)].

Defendant answers the complaint as follows:

1. Defendant's purpose in interfering with or diverting the flow of water through the irrigation pipeline is to irrigate defendant's crops on the property belonging to defendant and adjoining the irrigation pipeline. Without the use of these irrigation waters defendant cannot, as a practical matter, irrigate his/her/its crops.

2. Defendant proposes to use these irrigation waters solely for defendant's crops on defendant's land to the following extent and duration: _____ [indicate extent and duration, e.g., for 10 days per month during the irrigation season of April through August of each year]. Defendant proposes to take only _____ gallons of water per day.

3. Defendant's diversion of the flow of water from the pipeline will not interfere with plaintiff's actual or necessary beneficial use. _____ [Allege amount of use remaining to plaintiff, e.g., Plaintiff shall have full use of the irrigation water in such pipeline for a period of 20 days per month during the irrigation season of April through August of each year.]

4. Defendant's diversion of the flow of water from the pipeline is fully compensable in that _____ [describe condition indicating compensable damages, e.g., the gages and control valves can register the amount of water diverted by defendant].

5. Unless defendant has use of the flow of water from this pipeline, defendant will be unable to transmit water to his/her/its land to the damage and impairment of his/her/its growing crops.

WHEREFORE, defendant prays:

[2] Use of Form

The answer in [1], above, is based on Code Civ. Proc. § 534. It is for use in responding to an action by a riparian owner to enjoin the diversion of water and alleges, basically, that the water which is being diverted or is proposed to be diverted is for either the irrigation of land or other public use [see Code Civ. Proc. § 534].

[3] Allegations

The answer alleges:

- Defendant's purpose in interfering with or diverting irrigation water (Paragraph 1) [Code Civ. Proc. § 534];

- The nature, place, duration, and extent of use (Paragraph 2) [Code Civ. Proc. § 534];

- No resulting interference with plaintiff's actual or necessary beneficial use (Paragraph 3) [Code Civ. Proc. § 534]; and

- Damages as fully compensating plaintiff for any loss (Paragraph 4) [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 532(b), 534].

[Verification, if desired. See § 315.50.]

[2] Use of Form

This form is a complaint for damages to real property caused by the negligence of a private landowner or governmental entity. It is brought by a landowner whose land has been flooded.

[3] Allegations

The complaint alleges (1) defendant's control and/or ownership of the irrigation system (Paragraph 2); and (2) breach of defendant's duty and damages (Paragraph 4) [see generally Civ. Code § 1714(a)]. The complaint also alleges the filing of a claim with a public entity and either its total or partial rejection (Paragraphs 5 and 6). This allegation must be used if damages resulted from an irrigation pipeline or system owned, controlled, or operated by an irrigation district, water district, or the like because Gov. Code § 905 requires that such a claim be presented to the appropriate public entity as a prerequisite to filing suit against it. For further discussion, see Ch. 464, Public Entities and Officers: California Tort Claims Act .

[4] Verification

Although verification of a complaint for damages for injury to real property is not required, verification will require any answer to be verified also, if the action is in the superior court and is not a limited civil case, unless the defendant is a public entity [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446]. Verification will also preclude a general denial except in a limited civil case, and will preclude a general denial even in a limited civil case when the action is a claim assigned to a third party for collection [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion, see Ch. 26, Answers .

[5] Jurisdiction

The superior court has jurisdiction of the action, which will be classified as an unlimited civil case unless the amount in controversy, exclusive of interest, is $25,000 or less, in which case it will be classified as a limited civil case [Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(8)].

If the action is a limited civil case, the caption must state whether the demand exceeds or does not exceed $10,000 and must also identify the case as a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. § 422.30(b); Gov. Code § 70613; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(9), (10)].

[6] Venue

Subject to a court's power to transfer actions and proceedings, the superior court in the county where the real property that is the subject of the action, or some part of the real property, is situated is the proper county for trial for injuries to real property [see Code Civ. Proc. § 392(a)(1)].

[2] Use of Form

This form is a complaint for use in an action for damages for trespass when a defendant has wrongfully entered a landowner's property, destroyed the irrigation network on the property, and appropriated the water.

[3] Allegations

The complaint alleges:

- Plaintiff's possession of the premises (Paragraph 1) [Williams v. Goodwin (1974) 41 Cal. App. 3d 496, 508, 116 Cal. Rptr. 200] .

- The identity of the defendant (Paragraph 2).

- The time, place, and circumstances of the trespass and injury and the damages arising from the trespass (Paragraph 3).

- Malice on the part of defendant entitling plaintiff to punitive damages (Paragraph 4) [Civ. Code §

3294].

[4] Verification

Although verification of a complaint for damages for injury to real property is not required, verification will require any answer to be verified also, if the action is in the superior court and is not a limited civil case, unless the defendant is a public entity [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446]. Verification will also preclude a general denial except in a limited civil case, and will preclude a general denial even in a limited civil case when the action is a claim assigned to a third party for collection [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion, see Ch. 26, Answers .

[5] Jurisdiction

The superior court has jurisdiction of the action, which will be classified as an unlimited civil case unless the amount in controversy, exclusive of interest, is $25,000 or less, in which case it will be classified as a limited civil case [Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(8)].

If the action is a limited civil case, the caption must state whether the demand exceeds or does not exceed $10,000 and must also identify the case as a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. § 422.30(b); Gov. Code § 70613; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(9), (10)].

[6] Venue

Subject to a court's power to transfer actions and proceedings, the superior court in the county where the real property that is the subject of the action, or some part of the real property, is situated is the proper county for trial for injuries to real property [see Code Civ. Proc. § 392(a)(1)].

§ 316.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter discusses the rights and duties of joint tenants and tenants in common between themselves and against third persons.

It includes a form of complaint for declaratory relief for use when a joint tenant has died and an instrument which allegedly created a joint tenancy fails to establish the intent necessary to create a joint tenancy [see § 316.70] and forms of allegations of a failed testamentary gift [see § 316.71] and of undue influence [see § 316.72] for potential inclusion in that complaint.

It also includes a form of demand by a cotenant out of possession to regain concurrent possession or establish ouster [see § 316.73], and a form of complaint for use by a cotenant out of possession to bring an action to quiet title against a cotenant in possession who is claiming adversely [see § 316.74].

In addition, it includes forms of complaint for use by a cotenant to bring an action against another cotenant for contribution for the payment of a tax assessment to prevent the condemnation of real property [see § 316.75], and for use by a cotenant out of possession to bring an action against a cotenant in possession for treble damages and a permanent injunction when the cotenant in possession has been committing waste [see § 316.76].

Chapter 316 JOINT TENANCY AND TENANCY IN COMMON
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

27-316 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 316.10

§ 316.10 Definitions

[1] Cotenancy

The ownership of property by several persons can be of joint interests, partnership interests, interests in common, or community interests of husband and wife [Civ. Code §§ 682, 682.1]. A partnership interest is one owned by several persons in partnership for partnership purposes [Civ. Code § 684], and community property is property acquired by husband and wife, or either, during marriage, when not acquired as the separate property of either [Civ. Code § 687; Fam. Code §§ 760, 770]. For discussion and forms related to the law of community property, see Ch. 122, Community Property . For discussion and forms related to partnerships and joint ventures, see Ch. 401, Partnerships: Actions Between General Partners and Partnership .

As used throughout this chapter, the term "cotenancy" includes both joint tenancies and tenancies in common; similarly, the term "cotenant" includes both joint tenants and tenants in common.

[2] Joint Tenancy; Survivorship as Distinguishing Feature

A "joint tenancy" is an interest owned by two or more persons in equal shares when expressly declared in the instrument conferring title [Civ. Code § 683; but see Prob. Code § 5130 ("joint account" subject to Multiple-Party Accounts Law, discussed in § 316.15, is not required to mention right of survivorship)].

A joint tenancy is distinguished from a tenancy in common by its feature of survivorship; on the death of a joint tenant, the surviving joint tenant becomes the sole owner of the entirety, not by descent but by survivorship and by virtue of the original grant creating the tenancy [King v. King (1951) 107 Cal. App. 2d 257, 259, 236 P.2d 912] . Thus, no interest in the property passes to the heirs, devisees, or personal representatives of the joint tenant first to die [Santoro v. Carbone (1972) 22 Cal. App. 3d 721, 729, 99 Cal. Rptr. 488 (disapproved on other ground in Tenzer v. Superscope, Inc. (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 18, 30, 216 Cal. Rptr. 130, 702 P.2d 212); Clark v. Carter (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 291, 294, 70 Cal. Rptr. 923] .

[3] Tenancy in Common; Tenancies in Common Preferred

An interest in common is one owned by several persons not in joint ownership or partnership [Civ. Code § 685]. Holding an undivided interest in property is the very essence of tenancy in common [Davis v. Davis (1963) 222 Cal. App. 2d 691, 693, 35 Cal. Rptr. 281] .

Common law favored joint tenancies over tenancies in common, and thus it was necessary to use restrictive words to limit the estate to a tenancy in common. The common law rule is abrogated by Civ. Code § 683(a). In most instances, an intention to create a joint tenancy must be expressed in the instrument granting title [see Civ. Code § 683(a); Abbey v. Lord (1959) 168 Cal. App. 2d 499, 503, 336 P.2d 226] . Note, however, that after July 1, 1990, Civ. Code § 683(a) no longer applies to joint accounts that are governed by the Multiple-Party Accounts Law (Prob. Code §§ 5100-5407) [Civ. Code § 683(b); see § 316.15.. See also the discussions under §§ (creation of tenancy in common) and 316.14[1]/]

[4] "Community Property With Right of Survivorship" Distinguished

Spouses may also hold title to property as "community property with right of survivorship" [Civ. Code § 682.1]. When real or personal property is held in this manner, and one of the spouses dies, the property passes to the surviving spouse without estate administration, pursuant to the terms of the instrument and subject to the same procedures as property held in joint tenancy [Civ. Code § 682.1(a)]. The right of survivorship inherent in assets held as community property with right of survivorship may be terminated before the death of either spouse using the same procedures by which a joint tenancy may be severed [Civ. Code § 682.1(a)]. In addition, the community property character ensures that both spouse's interests receive an automatic step-up in basis when the first spouse dies [I.R.C. § 1014(a)(1), (b)(6); see Civ. Code § 682.1(a)].

Certain joint accounts in financial institutions governed by Prob. Code § 5100 et seq. may not be held in this manner [Civ. Code § 682.1(b)]. Specifically, this manner of holding property is not authorized for joint, P.O.D., and Totten trust accounts including checking accounts, savings accounts, certificates of deposit, share accounts, and similar arrangements [see Civ. Code §§ 682.1(b), 683(b); see also Prob. Code §§ 5122(a), 5132].

Civ. Code § 682.1(a) applies to instruments created on or after July 1, 2001 [Civ. Code § 682.1(c)]. For property held in joint tenancy before this operative date, spouses should consider whether their circumstances suggest that the manner of holding title be changed. Spouses may establish their clear intent to hold their joint tenancy property as community property before the death of either spouse [see Rev. Rul. 87-98, 1987-2 C.B. 206 ; see also Fam. Code §§ 850-853]. For example, the spouses might execute a transmutation agreement to establish a clear intent to hold the subject property as community property. In general, transmutation agreements must be made in writing, in the form of an express declaration, consented to or accepted by the spouse whose interest in the property is adversely affected, but need not be recorded [see Fam. Code § 852(a); In re Marriage of Campbell (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 1058, 1062-1065, 88 Cal. Rptr. 2d 580] .

For additional discussion, see Ch. 122, Community Property .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

27-316 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 316.11

§ 316.11 Confidential Relation Between Cotenants

Cotenants stand in such confidential relation to one another with respect to the common property and the common title to it that it would be inequitable to permit one, without the consent of the others, to buy an outstanding adversary claim or title or to assert it for that cotenant's exclusive benefit, thereby undermining the common title and prejudicing the interests of the other cotenants. A partner and cotenant cannot gain the sanction of the courts in an endeavor to freeze out a copartner and cotenant [Ferry v. McNeil (1963) 214 Cal. App. 2d 411, 416, 29 Cal. Rptr. 577] .

However, when cotenants acquire their interests at different times by different instruments and no relation of trust and confidence exists between them, no fiduciary relationship exists. Thus, when a cotenant's interest is acquired by foreclosure, the new owner is not a fiduciary to other cotenants and can acquire an adverse interest [Wilson v. S.L. Rey, Inc. (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 234, 242-243, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 552] .

§ 316.12 Creation of Joint Tenancy

[1] Methods of Creation; Express Declaration Is Required

A joint tenancy, other than one in a joint account in a financial institution that is subject to the Multiple-Party Accounts Law [see § 316.15], may be created in the following ways: (1) by a title created in a single will or transfer when expressly declared therein; (2) by a transfer from a sole owner to himself or herself and others when expressly declared therein; (3) by a transfer from tenants in common or joint tenants to themselves, to some of them, or to any of them and others, when expressly declared therein; (4) by a transfer from a husband and wife when holding title as community property or otherwise to themselves, to themselves and others, or to one of them and to another or others, when expressly declared therein; or (5) when granted or devised to executors or trustees as joint tenants. A joint tenancy in personal property may be created by a written transfer, instrument, or agreement [Civ. Code § 683(a)].

Joint tenancies may be created only by a writing [see Civ. Code § 683(a); California Trust Co. v. Bennett (1949) 33 Cal. 2d 694, 697, 204 P.2d 324 ; Allen v. Samuels (1962) 204 Cal. App. 2d 710, 715, 22 Cal. Rptr. 528] . The fact that a deed is taken in joint tenancy establishes a prima facie case that the property is actually owned in joint tenancy [Weak v. Weak (1962) 202 Cal. App. 2d 632, 638, 21 Cal. Rptr. 9] .

The sole technical requisite is an express declaration of joint tenancy in the instrument [Gonzales v. Gonzales (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 428, 435, 73 Cal. Rptr. 83] . Generally, the term "or" between the names of cotenants without the designation of joint tenancy is insufficient to create a joint tenancy [Cooke v. Tsipouroglou (1963) 59 Cal. 2d 660, 664, 31 Cal. Rptr. 60, 381 P.2d 940 ; but see §§ 316.12[3] (motor vehicles), 316.15[4] ("joint account")].

Some cases require delivery, actual or symbolic, when a donor intends to make a present gift by putting his or her property in joint tenancy with another [see Berl v. Rosenberg (1959) 169 Cal. App. 2d 125, 130-134, 336 P.2d 975 (gift of securities in possession of broker requires delivery, but letter of instructions to broker constituted sufficient delivery); Hill v. Donnelly (1942) 56 Cal. App. 2d 387, 392-393, 132 P.2d 867 (recordation of deed is sufficient delivery although donor retained possession of recorded deed)]. Other cases involving joint bank accounts do not require the donor to part with the passbook or certificate in order to create the joint tenancy [Kennedy v. McMurray (1915) 169 Cal. 287, 293-295, 146 P. 647] .

[2] Safe-Deposit Boxes

No contract or other arrangement between persons, firms, or corporations renting safe-deposit boxes and renters thereof can create a joint tenancy in the safe-deposit box or in its contents. Any contract or arrangement purporting to do so is void [Civ. Code § 683.1; see also American Trust Co. v. Fitzmaurice (1955) 131 Cal. App. 2d 382, 387, 280 P.2d 545]

[3] Motor Vehicles

A vehicle may be registered in or transferred to the names of two or more persons as coowners in the alternative by the use of the word "or." A vehicle registered or transferred in this way is deemed held in joint tenancy. Each coowner is deemed to have granted his or her coowners the absolute right to dispose of title and interest in the vehicle. On the death of a coowner, the interest of the decedent passes to the survivor as though title and interest had been held in joint tenancy, unless a contrary intention is set forth in writing on the application for vehicle registration [Veh. Code §§ 4150.5(a), 5600.5(a)].

§ 316.13 Creation of Tenancy in Common

Every interest created in favor of several persons in their own right is an interest in common unless it is (1) acquired in partnership, for partnership purposes, (2) declared in its creation to be a joint interest, or (3) acquired as community property [Civ. Code § 686; see also Civ. Code §§ 683(a) (declaration of joint tenancy), 684 (partnership interest defined), 687 (community property defined); Fam. Code §§ 760, 770; see Parker v. Walker (1992) 5 Cal. App. 4th 1173, 1182-1183, 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 908 (payment of judgment in favor of two plaintiffs without any allocation of their interests creates tenancy in common; each is presumed to have half interest, and one claiming larger share has burden to prove entitlement)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

27-316 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 316.14

§ 316.14 Effect of Unsuccessful Attempts to Create Joint Tenancy

[1] Tenancy in Common Created Generally

Although common law favored joint tenancies, California prefers tenancies in common, except in the case of joint accounts governed by the Multiple-Party Accounts Law (discussed under § 316.15) [see Civ. Code §§ 683, 686; Reiss v. Reiss (1941) 45 Cal. App. 2d 740, 747]. Thus, a tenancy in common is a residual form of ownership so that if an estate is conveyed or transferred and it is not expressly declared in the conveyance or transfer to be an estate in joint tenancy and was not acquired in partnership for partnership purposes or as community property, it is held by the grantees or transferees as tenants in common [Estate of Horn (1951) 102 Cal. App. 2d 635, 640, 228 P.2d 99] . For example, when a bill of sale by which a sole owner conveyed real property to herself and another person did not expressly declare the transfer to be a joint tenancy as required by Civ. Code § 683(a), a tenancy in common was created [see Bill Froelich Motor Co. v. Estate of Kohler (1966) 240 Cal. App. 2d 897, 900-901, 50 Cal. Rptr. 200] . See also the discussions in §§ 316.10[3], 316.13.

[2] Attempted Testamentary Gift

Except in the case of a gift in the form of an account governed by the Multiple-Party Accounts Law [see Prob. Code § 5304, discussed under § 316.15[2]], if a donor puts property into joint tenancy form but the transaction does not qualify as a gift causa mortis (that is, a gift made in contemplation of approaching death) and the donor intends the gift to take place after his or her death, the transaction is treated as a testamentary disposition. The disposition cannot be upheld, however, unless effected in conformity with the statutes regulating the execution of wills [Estate of Franco (1975) 50 Cal. App. 3d 374, 381, 123 Cal. Rptr. 458] .

[3] Undue Influence Involved

The rules applicable to proof of undue influence in a will contest also apply to the creation of joint tenancies if a question of undue influence is involved. To set aside a joint tenancy agreement on the ground of undue influence, it is necessary to establish that the influence was such as to destroy the free agency of the party claimed to have been unduly influenced. It is not sufficient to prove general influence, however strong and controlling, but it must be shown that the influence was used directly to procure the joint tenancy. It must amount to coercion destroying the free agency of the party claimed to have been unduly influenced. Opportunity to influence the mind of such a party, even coupled with an interest, isnot sufficient [Estate of Kreher (1951) 107 Cal. App. 2d 831, 839, 238 P.2d 150] . Influence is not undue if no deceit is practiced and the gift is a voluntary act of the donor [Goldman v. Goldman (1953) 116 Cal. App. 2d 227, 235, 253 P.2d 474] . For example, a joint tenancy relationship was upheld based on evidence that the parties, two brothers, had for some years previous pursued a policy, or plan, by which, at various times, individual accounts held in the name of either brother were converted by them into joint tenancy accounts with one another [Estate of Kreher (1951) 107 Cal. App. 2d 831, 840, 238 P.2d 150] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

27-316 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 316.15

§ 316.15 Joint Accounts at Financial Institutions

[1] Scope of Law

Operative July 1, 1990, the most common types of personal joint accounts in state and federal banks, savings and loan associations, credit unions, and similar organizations and in industrial loan companies are governed by the California Multiple-Party Accounts Law (Prob. Code §§ 5100-5407) [see Prob. Code § 5128 (defining "financial institution")]. The Multiple-Party Accounts Law applies to accounts in existence on July 1, 1990, and accounts established thereafter [Stats. 1989, ch. 397, § 41]. "Account" within the meaning of that law means a contract of deposit of funds between a depositor and a financial institution, and includes a checking account, savings account, certificate of deposit, share account, and other like arrangement [Prob. Code § 5122(a)]. Joint accounts, "P.O.D. accounts," and Totten trust accounts are "multiple-party accounts" within the meaning of the California Multiple-Party Accounts Law [Prob. Code § 5132]. Most business and true fiduciary accounts, for example, regular fiduciary or trust accounts maintained in connection with relationships established other than by the deposit agreement and accounts for the estate of a ward, conservatee, or decedents, are excluded from the coverage of the Multiple-Party Accounts Law [see Prob. Code § 5122(b) (also excluding accounts of unincorporated associations or charitable or civic organizations)].

Accounts that are governed by the Multiple-Party Accounts Law may be used with a special power of attorney authorized by Prob. Code § 5204 and discussed in Ch. 95, Banks, Deposits, and Checks . Totten trust accounts are discussed in Ch. 560, Trusts: Express, Public, Charitable, and Totten Trusts , while P.O.D. accounts are discussed in Ch. 95, Banks, Deposits, and Checks .

Prob. Code §§ 5301-5307 concerning beneficial ownership as between parties, or as between parties and P.O.D. payees or beneficiaries of multiple-party accounts, govern controversies between those persons and their creditors and other successors, but have no bearing on the power of withdrawal of those persons as determined by the terms of account contracts [Prob. Code § 5201(a)].

Prob. Code §§ 5401-5407 govern the liability of financial institutions who make payments pursuant to that chapter and are discussed in more detail in Ch. 95, Banks, Deposits, and Checks [Prob. Code § 5201(b)].

2] Testamentary Formalities Not Necessary

Any transfers resulting from the application of Prob. Code § 5302 are effective by reason of the account contracts involved and are not to be considered as testamentary. However, these are subject to the provisions governing nonprobate transfers to a former spouse [see § 316.18]. The right of a surviving party to a joint account [see Prob. Code § 5302(a)], or of a beneficiary [see Prob. Code § 5302(c)], or of a P.O.D. payee [see Prob. Code § 5302(b)] to the sums on deposit on the death of a party to a multiple-party account may not be denied, abridged, or affected because that right has not been created by a writing executed in accordance with the laws of California prescribing the requirements to effect a valid testamentary disposition of property [Prob. Code § 5304].

[3] Delivery Not Necessary

When a donor makes a present gift of funds by placing separate property funds in a joint tenancy account, the joint tenancy is not defeated because the donor retains possession of the passbook or certificate [Kennedy v. McMurray (1915) 169 Cal. 287, 295, 146 P. 647] .

[4] "Joint Account" Defined; Community Property and Tenancy in Common Accounts

"Joint account" means an account payable on request to one or more of two or more parties whether or not mention is made of any right of survivorship [Prob. Code § 5130]. That definition reverses the rule applicable to joint tenancies in most other types of property and allows creation of a joint tenancy without an express statement of survivorship. Instead, an express description of the account as a tenancy in common account is necessary to overcome the right of survivorship [see Prob. Code § 5306 (discussed in § 316.15[7][c]].

The Multiple-Party Accounts Law includes provisions that set forth the exact wording sufficient to create a specific type of account such as a joint account, tenancy in common account, or community property account [see Prob. Code § 5203]. For definitions of the accounts applicable under the Multiple-Party Accounts Law, see Ch. 95, Banks, Deposits, and Checks .

[5] Ownership of Account While All Parties Are Living

[a] Nonspouses

During the lifetime of all parties, an account belongs to the parties in proportion to the net contributions by each to the sums on deposit, unless there is clear and convincing evidence of a different intent [Prob. Code § 5301(a); see Prob. Code §§ 5134 (net contribution defined), 5150 (sums on deposit defined); see also definitions under Multiple-Party Accounts Law in Ch. 95, Banks, Deposits, and Checks].

[b] Accounts Owned by Spouses

For the purposes of Prob. Code §§ 5301-5307, except to the extent the account or deposit agreement expressly provide otherwise, if the parties to an account are married to each other and the account is expressly described in the account agreement as a "community property" account, the ownership of the account during lifetime and after the death of a spouse is governed by the law governing community property generally [Prob. Code § 5307; see § 316.16]. Prob. Code § 5307 is one exception to the general rule that a right of survivorship arising from the express terms of the account or under Prob. Code § 5302, a beneficiary designation in a Totten trust account, or a P.O.D. payee designation may not be changed by will [Prob. Code § 5305(c)].

Notwithstanding Prob. Code §§ 5301-5303, if parties to an account are married to each other, whether or not they are so described in the deposit agreement, their net contribution to the account is presumed to be and remain their community property [Prob. Code § 5305(a)].

For further discussion of Prob. Code § 5305, including the presumption established by that section, see Ch. 95, Banks, Deposits, and Checks .

[6] Changes in Account Terms

During the lifetime of a party, the terms of the account may be changed as provided in Prob. Code § 5303(b) to eliminate or to add rights of survivorship. Withdrawal of funds from the account by a party with a present right of withdrawal during the lifetime of a party also eliminates rights of survivorship on the death of that party with respect to the funds withdrawn [Prob. Code § 5303(c)].

Once established, the terms of a multiple-party account can be changed only by one of the methods prescribed by statute [see Prob. Code § 5303(b); see also Ch. 95, Banks, Deposits, and Checks].

[7] Ownership After Death of Party

[a] Determined by Terms of Account

The provisions of Prob. Code § 5302 regarding rights of survivorship are determined by the form of the account at the death of a party [Prob. Code § 5303(a)]. A right of survivorship arising from the express terms of the account or under Prob. Code § 5302 cannot be changed by will [Prob. Code § 5302(e)].

[b] Death of Party to Joint Account

Sums remaining on deposit at the death of a party to a joint account belong to the surviving party or parties as against the estate of the decedent unless there is clear and convincing evidence of a different intent. If there are two or more surviving parties, their respective ownerships during lifetime are in proportion to their previous ownership interests under Prob. Code § 5301, augmented by an equal share for each survivor of any interest the decedent may have owned in the account immediately before the decedent's death; and the right of survivorship continues between the surviving parties [Prob. Code § 5302(a); see also Prob. Code § 5144 (proof of death, discussed in § 316.15[8]) and Prob. Code § 5600 et seq. (see §§ 316.17, 316.18)].

[c] Death of Party to Tenancy in Common Account

If an account is expressly described in the deposit agreement as a "tenancy in common" account, no right of survivorship arises from the terms of the account or under Prob. Code § 5302 unless the terms of the account or deposit agreement expressly provide for survivorship [Prob. Code § 5306; see also Prob. Code § 5144 (proof of death, discussed in § 316.15[8])]. The death of a party to a tenancy in common account has no effect on beneficial ownership of the account other than to transfer the rights of the decedent as part of the decedent's estate [Prob. Code § 5302(d); see Prob. Code § 5600 et seq. and § 316.17].

[8] Withdrawals

Financial institutions' rights and duties are discussed in more detail in Ch. 95, Banks, Deposits, and Checks . In general, the financial institution at which the account is maintained must honor withdrawal requests that are made in accordance with the terms of the account agreement, and may do so without regard to whether any other party is incapacitated or deceased at the time the payment is demanded; but payment may not be made to the personal representative or heirs of a deceased party unless proof of death is presented to the financial institution showing that the decedent was the last surviving party or unless there is no right of survivorship under Prob. Code § 5302 [Prob. Code §§ 5401(b), 5402]. Proof of death includes an original, attested, or certified copy of a death certificate, or a record or report that is prima facie evidence of death under Health & Safety Code § 103550, Evid. Code §§ 1530-1532, or another California statute [Prob. Code § 5144].

The financial institution has no obligation to inquire regarding the source of funds received for deposit to a multiple-party account or the proposed application of funds withdrawn [Prob. Code § 5401(c)(1)]. A financial institution is not required to determine any party's net contribution or to limit withdrawals based on a party's net contribution [Prob. Code § 5401(c)(2), (3)]. Unless the financial institution has received a court order restraining payment, payment made pursuant to Prob. Code § 5401 discharges the financial institution from all claims for amounts so paid whether or not the payment is consistent with the beneficial ownership ofthe account as between parties, P.O.D. payees, or beneficiaries, or their successors [Prob. Code § 5405(a), (b)].

[9] Levies and Setoffs

All funds in an account, unless otherwise agreed in writing by the financial institution and the parties to the account, remain subject to liens, security interests, rights of setoff, and charges, notwithstanding the determination or allocation of net contributions with respect to the parties [Prob. Code § 5401(d)].

[10] Notice From Party Restraining Payment From Account

A party to a joint account may give written notice to the financial institution, at the branch or office at which the account is carried, not to permit withdrawals in accordance with the terms of the account, other than a checking account, share draft account, or other similar third-party payment instrument, except with the signatures of more than one of the parties during their lifetimes or of more than one of the survivors after the death of any one of the parties. Unless the notice is withdrawn by a subsequent writing, after receipt of such a notice, the financial institution may only pay the sums on deposit in accordance with the written instructions pending determination of the rights of the parties or their successors [Prob. Code § 5405(c); see Prob. Code § 5146 (absent account terms to contrary, receipt of notice is receipt at branch or office where account is carried)]. No liability attaches to the financial institution for complying with the terms of any written notice provided pursuant to Prob. Code § 5405(c) [Prob. Code § 5405(c); see also Prob. Code § 5405(b) (court order restraining payments by financial institution, discussed in Ch. 95, Banks, Deposits, and Checks)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

27-316 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 316.16

§ 316.16 Property Owned by Husband and Wife

[1] Presumption

A husband and wife may hold property as joint tenants or tenants in common, or as community property or community property with a right of survivorship [Fam. Code § 750]. All real property in this state and all personal property wherever situated acquired during marriage by either spouse is presumed community property [see Fam. Code § 760]. For additional discussion of the presumptions with respect to property held by spouses, see Ch. 122, Community Property .

[2] As Joint Tenants

For purposes of division of property on dissolution of marriage or legal separation, property acquired by the parties during marriage in joint form, including property held in joint tenancy, is presumed to be community property [Fam. Code § 2580; see In re Marriage of Buol (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 751, 757, 763, 218 Cal. Rptr. 31, 705 P.2d 354 ; see also In re Marriage of Hilke (1992) 4 Cal. 4th 215, 220-224, 14 Cal. Rptr. 2d 371, 841 P.2d 891 (presumption applies when one spouse dies after bifurcated judgment dissolving marital status and reserving property issues for later adjudication)]. This is a presumption affecting the burden of proof and may be rebutted by either of the following [Fam. Code § 2580]:

- A clear statement in the deed or other documentary evidence of title by which the property is acquired that the property is separate property and not community property; or

- Proof that the parties have made a written agreement that the property is separate property.

If a spouse is unable to rebut the community property presumption of Fam. Code § 2580, he or she may obtain reimbursement for traceable separate property contributions, unless a written waiver has been executed [see Fam. Code § 2640].

The law that applies to characterize property acquired in joint form on dissolution or legal separation is unclear.

The above-mentioned community property presumption and separate property reimbursement statute were first enacted in 1983 as Civ. Code §§ 4800.1 and 4800.2, respectively. As originally enacted, both former Civ. Code §§ 4800.1 and 4800.2 applied to proceedings commenced on or after January 1, 1984, but the enacting legislation also provided that they applied to proceedings commenced before that date, to the extent that proceedings on the division of property were not yet final on that date [see 1983 Stats., ch. 342, § 4]. However, the California Supreme Court held that retroactive application of both sections to proceedings commenced before January 1, 1984, unconstitutionally impaired vested property rights without due process of law [see In re Marriage of Fabian (1986) 41 Cal. 3d 440, 450, 224 Cal. Rptr. 333, 715 P.2d 253 ; In re Marriage of Buol (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 751, 757, 218 Cal. Rptr. 31, 705 P.2d 354 ; see also In re Marriage of Heikes (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 1211, 1213, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 155, 899 P.2d 1349 ; In re Marriage of Hilke (1992) 4 Cal. 4th 215, 222-223, 14 Cal. Rptr. 2d 371, 841 P.2d 891] .

Urgency legislation was then enacted, which became operative on April 10, 1986, to provide that (now former) Civ. Code §§ 4800.1 and 4800.2 applied to proceedings for dissolution of marriage or legal separation commenced on or after January 1, 1984, regardless of when the property was acquired or the date of any agreement affecting the property [1986 Stats., ch. 49, § 1]. This legislation was also held unconstituional when retroactively applied to property acquired before January 1, 1984 [see In re Marriage of Griffis (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 156, 166, 231 Cal. Rptr. 510 ; see also In re Marriage of Hopkins & Axene (1987) 199 Cal. App. 3d 288, 289, 245 Cal. Rptr. 433] .

Later 1986 legislation amended former Civ. Code § 4800.1 to provide that former Civ. Code §§ 4800.1 and 4800.2, in the forms operative on January 1, 1987, applied to all property held in joint title regardless of the date of acquisition of the property or the date of any agreement affecting the character of the property. This amendment also provided that the sections would apply to proceedings begun after January 1, 1984, unless property settlements or judgments had already been executed before January 1, 1987 [former Civ. Code § 4800.1(a)(3), as amended by 1986 Stats., ch. 539]. In 1988, appellate courts held this legislation unconstitutional as applied to property acquired before January 1, 1984 [In re Marriage of Bankovich (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 49, 54-56, 249 Cal. Rptr. 713] . Then, in 1990, former Civ. Code § 4800.2 was held unconstitutional as applied to quasi-community property acquired before January 1, 1984 [In re Marriage of Craig (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 683, 686-687, 268 Cal. Rptr. 396] .

Notwithstanding the above, the California Supreme Court, in In re Marriage of Hilke [In re Marriage of Hilke (1992) 4 Cal. 4th 215, 14 Cal. Rptr. 2d 371, 841 P.2d 891] , later upheld the retroactive application of former Civ. Code § 4800.1 to property acquired before January 1, 1984, in a proceeding involving joint tenancy property that was commenced after that date. The Court rejected the claim that such a retroactive application impairs a vested property right without due process of law. It reasoned that a vested property right is one not subject to a condition precedent, and a joint tenant's survivorship interest is subject to the condition precedent that he or she survive the other joint tenant. It concluded that a joint tenant has no present vested interest in being a surviving joint tenant [see In re Marriage of Hilke (1992) 4 Cal. 4th 215, 222-223 n.4, 14 Cal. Rptr. 2d 371, 841 P.2d 891] . Thus, it appears that so long as the retroactive application of the community property presumption only impairs an unvested right, such as a right of survivorship, it may be applied to property acquired before January 1, 1984 [see In re Marriage of Hilke (1992) 4 Cal. 4th 215, 222-223, 223 n.4, 14 Cal. Rptr. 2d 371, 841 P.2d 891] .

The Hilke Court did not address the applicability of former Civ. Code § 4800.2 to pre-1984 acquisitions [see In re Marriage of Hilke (1992) 4 Cal. 4th 215, 222-224, 14 Cal. Rptr. 2d 371, 841 P.2d 891] . However, in In re Marriage of Heikes [In re Marriage of Heikes (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 1211, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 155, 899 P.2d 1349] , the Court held that former Civ. Code § 4800.2 (and its Family Code successor) may not constitutionally be applied to property acquired before January 1, 1984 [In re Marriage of Heikes (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 1211, 1225, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 155, 899 P.2d 1349] , thereby validating a number of prior appellate decisions that had forbidden retroactive application of the reimbursement statute [see, e.g., In re Marriage of Bankovich (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 49, 54-56, 249 Cal. Rptr. 713] . Thus, a spouse who made a separate property contribution to the acquisition of community property before 1984 may not seek reimbursement for the contribution unless there was a qualifying reimbursement agreement--as provided under pre-1984 law [see In re Marriage of Heikes (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 1211, 1218, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 155, 899 P.2d 1349 ; In re Marriage of Lucas (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 808, 816, 166 Cal. Rptr. 853, 614 P.2d 285] .

For further discussion of these presumptions, see Ch. 222, Dissolution of Marriage: Property Division and Valuation .

[3] Execution on Property Held in Joint Tenancy by Spouse

With respect to execution on property held in joint tenancy by husband and wife by a judgment creditor of one spouse, the other spouse's interest in the joint tenancy property is not subject to execution. No basis exists for affording the creditor a stronger hand against property held in joint tenancy with the exemption claimant's spouse than against property in which the exemption claimant is not married to the cotenant [Schoenfeld v. Norberg (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 755, 764, 90 Cal. Rptr. 47 (decided prior to enactment of former Civ. Code § 5120.130(b)(1), now see Fam. Code § 913(b)(1))].

[4] As Tenants in Common

When husband and wife own property as tenants in common, one spouse's undivided interest in the property is his or her separate property [see Estate of Adams (1964) 228 Cal. App. 2d 264, 266, 39 Cal. Rptr. 522] .

Beginning on January 1, 1987, for the purpose of division of property on dissolution of marriage or legal separation, property acquired by the parties during marriage in joint form, including tenancy in common, is rebuttably presumed to be community property [see Fam. Code § 2580]. For further discussion of Fam. Code § 2580, see § 316.16[2], and Ch. 222, Dissolution of Marriage: Property Division and Valuation .

§ 316.17 Joint Tenancy with Former Spouse

A joint tenancy between a decedent and the decedent's former spouse, created before or during the marriage, is severed as to the decedent's interest if, at the time of the decedent's death, the former spouse is not the decedent's surviving spouse (as defined in Prob. Code § 78) as a result of the dissolution or annulment of the marriage. This also applies to property held as community property with a right of survivorship [Prob. Code § 5601(a), (d); see Civ. Code § 682.1]. A judgment of legal separation that does not terminate the status of husband and wife is not a dissolution for these purposes [Prob. Code § 5601(a)]. In any case, a joint tenancy is not severed by this provision in either of the following situations [Prob. Code § 5601(b)]:

- If the joint tenancy is not subject to severance by the decedent at the time of the decedent's death.

- If there is clear and convincing evidence that the decedent intended to preserve the joint tenancy in favor of the former spouse.

In addition, this provision does not affect the rights of a subsequent purchaser or encumbrancer for value in good faith who relies on an apparent severance under these provisions, or who lacks knowledge of a severance under these provisions [Prob. Code § 5601(c)]. Similarly, this does not affect the rights of a purchaser or encumbrancer of real property for value who in good faith relies on an affidavit or a declaration under penalty of perjury that includes the information and statements specified by statute [Prob. Code § 5602(a)]. A person relying on the affidavit or declaration has no duty to inquire into the truth of these statements [Prob. Code § 5602(b); see Prob. Code § 5602(c) (affidavit or declaration may be recorded)].

These provisions apply to instruments creating a joint tenancy, whether the instrument was executed before, on, or after the operative date of January 1, 2002 [Prob. Code § 5604(a), (b); see Prob. Code § 5604(c) (when provisions not applicable)]. Nothing in these provisions is intended to limit the court's authority to order a party to a dissolution or marriage to preserve a joint tenancy in favor of the former spouse [Prob. Code § 5603].

§ 316.18 Nonprobate Transfer to Former Spouse

A nonprobate transfer to the transferor's former spouse, in an instrument executed by the transferee before or during the marriage, fails if the former spouse is not the transferor's surviving spouse [see Prob. Code § 78 (definition)] at the time of the transferor's death as a result of the dissolution or annulment of the marriage [Prob. Code § 5600(a); see Prob. Code § 5600(e) (definition of nonprobate transfer)]. A judgment of legal separation that does not terminate the status of husband and wife is not a dissolution for these purposes [Prob. Code § 5600(a)]. However, a nonprobate transfer does not fail in the following situations [Prob. Code § 5600(b)]:

- If the nonprobate transfer is not subject to revocation by the transferor at the time of the transferor's death.

- If there is clear and convincing evidence that the transferor intended to preserve the nonprobate transfer for the former spouse.

- If a court order requiring that the nonprobate transfer be maintained on behalf of the former spouse is in effect at the time of the transferor's death.

These provisions apply to instruments making a nonprobate transfer, whether the instrument was executed before, on, or after the operative date of January 1, 2002 [Prob. Code § 5604(a), (b); see Prob. Code § 5604(c) (when provisions not applicable)]. Nothing in these provisions is intended to limit the court's authority to order a party to a dissolution or marriage to maintain the former spouse as a beneficiary on any nonprobate transfer [Prob. Code § 5603].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

27-316 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 316.19

§ 316.19 Termination of Joint Tenancy Generally

[1] Acts Constituting Termination

[a] Deed, Declaration, or Other Written Instrument

A joint tenant may sever a joint tenancy in real property as to the joint tenant's interest without the joinder or consent of the other joint tenants by either of the following means [Civ. Code § 683.2(a)]:

- Execution and delivery of a deed that conveys legal title to the joint tenant's interest to a third person, whether or not pursuant to an agreement that requires the third person to reconvey legal title to the joint tenant; or

- Execution of a written instrument that evidences the intent to sever the joint tenancy, including a deed that names the joint tenant as transferee, or of a written declaration that, as to the interest of the joint tenant, the joint tenancy is severed.

Civ. Code § 683.2 does not authorize severance of a joint tenancy contrary to a written agreement of the joint tenants, but a severance contrary to a written agreement does not defeat the rights of a purchaser or encumbrancer for value in good faith and without knowledge of the written agreement [Civ. Code § 683.2(b)].

Severance of a joint tenancy of record by deed, written declaration, or other written instrument is not effective to terminate the right of survivorship of the other joint tenants as to the severing joint tenant's interest unless one of the following requirements are satisfied [Civ. Code § 683.2(c)]:

- Before the death of the severing joint tenant, the deed, written declaration, or other written instrument effecting the severance is recorded in the county where the real property is located; or

- The deed, written declaration, or other written instrument effecting the severance is executed and acknowledged before a notary public by the severing joint tenant not earlier than three days before the death of that joint tenant and is recorded in the county where the real property is located not later than seven days after the death of the severing joint tenant.

This recording requirement does not limit the manner or effect of the following [Civ. Code § 683.2(d)]:

- A written instrument executed by all the joint tenants that severs the joint tenancy.

- A severance made by or pursuant to a written agreement of all the joint tenants.

- A deed from a joint tenant to another joint tenant [see Re v. Re (1995) 39 Cal. App. 4th 91, 98-99, 46 Cal. Rptr. 2d 62 (plain language of*Civ. Code § 683.2(d)(3)* sets forth exception to requirement in Civ. Code § 683.2(c) that deed be recorded before severing joint tenant's death; thus, execution of deeds to each other by two of three joint tenants, one of whom died before deeds were recorded, resulted in severance of joint tenancy)].

[b] Application of Statutory Rules

The provisions of Civ. Code § 683.2(a) and (b) apply to all joint tenancies in real property, whether the joint tenancy was created before, on, or after January 1, 1985, except that in the case of the death of a joint tenant before January 1, 1985, the validity of the severance is determined by the law in effect at the time of death. The provisions of Civ. Code § 683.2(c) and (d) do not apply to or affect a severance made before January 1, 1986, of a joint tenancy [Civ. Code § 683.2(e)].

Civ. Code § 683.2 is a statutory recognition of the rule that a joint tenant can sever the tenancy in real property by a conveyance to himself or herself, rather than a conveyance to and from a strawman [see Riddle v. Harmon (1980) 102 Cal. App. 3d 524, 528-530, 162 Cal. Rptr. 530 ; see Estate of Carpenter (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 709, 711-712, 189 Cal. Rptr. 651 ; Clark v. Carter (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 291, 294, 70 Cal. Rptr. 923 (giving common law rule)].

[c] Unilateral Conversion by Spouse

A spouse can unilaterally convert a joint tenancy to a tenancy in common by conveying the property to himself or herself directly or through a strawman even though the property has been declared by both spouses to be their homestead. Such a conversion in the manner in which title is held common does not affect the homestead [Estate of Grigsby (1982) 134 Cal. App. 3d 611, 618, 184 Cal. Rptr. 886] .

[2] Agreement or Course of Dealing

Any interference with the right of survivorship by the terms of an agreement between joint tenants severs the joint tenancy relationship [Rich v. Silver (1964) 226 Cal. App. 2d 60, 64, 37 Cal. Rptr. 749 ; California Trust Co. v. Anderson (1949) 91 Cal. App. 2d 832, 836, 205 P.2d 1127] . When the survivorship feature of a joint tenancy is destroyed, a tenancy in common is created [see Davis v. Davis (1963) 222 Cal. App. 2d 691, 693, 35 Cal. Rptr. 281] . For instance, by awarding joint tenancy property on dissolution of marriage to the spouses "jointly, each [spouse] to hold an undivided one-half interest," the court changed the property from joint tenancy to tenancy in common [Davis v. Davis (1963) 222 Cal. App. 2d 691, 693, 35 Cal. Rptr. 281] .

A joint tenancy may also be terminated by any conduct or course of dealing sufficient to indicate that all parties have mutually treated the joint tenancy as terminated. For instance, when joint tenants contracted with each other for the sale by one and purchase by the other of one of the joint tenancy interests, the joint tenancy was held to have been terminated because the right of either party to insist on a sale is wholly inconsistent with the joint tenancy relationship and because such an agreement negates the intent of the survivor to succeed to the other's interest [Smith v. Morton (1972) 29 Cal. App. 3d 616, 621, 106 Cal. Rptr. 52] . Similarly, in interpreting a stipulated property settlement agreement, the court of appeal inferred that the two divorced spouses did not intend to preserve the attribute of survivorship inherent in the original joint tenancy relationship. The court held that the informal understanding resulting from the stipulation was sufficient to accomplish the transmutation from joint tenancy to tenancy in common [Rich v. Silver (1964) 226 Cal. App. 2d 60, 65-66, 37 Cal. Rptr. 749] .

[3] Acts Not Constituting Termination

The following acts do not terminate a joint tenancy: execution of a mortgage by a joint tenant; execution of a trust deed by a joint tenant; execution of a lease by a joint tenant; conveyance of a life estate by one joint tenant to another; a judgment lien against the interest of one joint tenant; or the giving right of possession to one joint tenant during the lifetime of the other [County of Fresno v. Kahn (1962) 207 Cal. App. 2d 213, 217, 24 Cal. Rptr. 394 ; People v. Nogarr (1958) 164 Cal. App. 2d 591, 593-594, 330 P.2d 858 (mortgage)]. Encumbrance by one joint tenant without consent of the other only creates a lien on that joint tenant's undivided one-half interest in the property [Kane v Huntley Financial (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 1092, 1096-1097, 194 Cal. Rptr. 880] .

The filing of a partition action for the purpose of terminating a joint tenancy is not sufficient to terminate the relationship in the event the joint tenant filing the action in partition dies before the granting of the judgment [Clark v. Carter (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 291, 295, 70 Cal. Rptr. 923] .

A deed by which one joint tenant attempts to obtain fraudulently the other joint tenant's interest by deed is voidable; a court may set the deed aside as if it had never been executed [Estate of Casella (1967) 256 Cal. App. 2d 312, 323, 64 Cal. Rptr. 259] . Execution of a holographic will purporting to sever a joint tenancy is not effective to sever the tenancy if the will is not notarized or recorded [Estate of England (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 1, 4-6, 284 Cal. Rptr. 361] .

[4] Intent as Factor

Intent of the joint tenants is an important factor in determining whether their acts in dealing with the property terminate the joint tenancy [County of Fresno v. Kahn (1962) 207 Cal. App. 2d 213, 216, 24 Cal. Rptr. 394 (contract of sale of real property); but see Estate of Propst (1990) 50 Cal. 3d 448, 457-459, 268 Cal. Rptr. 114, 788 P.2d 628 (rule applicable to severance of joint tenancy in personal property, discussed in § 316.19[6])].

[5] Consent of Joint Tenant Not Required

A joint tenant may dispose of his or her interest without the consent of the other joint tenant [Wilk v. Vencill (1947) 30 Cal. 2d 104, 108-109, 180 P.2d 351] . Similarly, neither notification of the other joint tenant nor recordation of the deed terminating the joint tenancy is required to make the transmutation from joint tenancy to tenancy in common legally effective [Burke v. Stevens (1968) 264 Cal. App. 2d 30, 35, 70 Cal. Rptr. 87] . In the Burke case, one spouse conveyed a power of attorney to her attorney who, in turn, executed a quitclaim deed to his associate; the associate subsequently deeded his interest back to the wife. The court upheld the termination of the joint tenancy relationship by the wife even though there had been no notice to the husband and no recordation of the deed [Burke v. Stevens (1968) 264 Cal. App. 2d 30, 35-36, 70 Cal. Rptr. 87] .

[6] Unilateral Termination of Joint Tenancy in Personal Property

In the absence of a prior agreement to the contrary, a joint tenant of personal property may unilaterally sever his or her own interest from the joint tenancy and thereby nullify the right of survivorship, as to that interest, of the other joint tenant or tenants without their consent [Estate of Propst (1990) 50 Cal. 3d 448, 457-459, 268 Cal. Rptr. 114, 788 P.2d 628 (overruling Fish v. Security Pacific Nat. Bank (1948) 31 Cal. 2d 378, 387, 189 P.2d 10 , Estate of Harris (1937) 9 Cal. 2d 649, 72 P.2d 873 , and In re Kessler (1932) 217 Cal. 32, 34, 17 P.2d 117 , and disapproving inconsistent statements in several other cases)]. Severance of the joint tenancy converts the joint tenancy to a tenancy in common. Because the tenant in common also has an undivided fractional interest in the property, the unilateral severance of the joint tenancy by a joint tenant does not deprive the other joint tenants of their fractional shares [Estate of Propst (1990) 50 Cal. 3d 448, 457-459, 268 Cal. Rptr. 114, 788 P.2d 628] .

Propst involved withdrawal of funds in joint tenancy bank accounts and establishment of new accounts solely in the withdrawing joint tenant's name before Prob. Code § 5303(c) governed the situation [Stats. 1989, ch. 397, § 41 (operative July 1, 1990, applies to accounts in existence on July 1, 1990, and accounts established thereafter); see § 316.15[6]]. The holding in Propst applies to all types of joint tenancy personal property and is retroactive unless the party claiming the right of survivorship proves that application of the rule allowing unilateral severance would cause that party substantial detriment as a result of the party's reasonable reliance on the prior rule. Retroactivity does not apply to judgments that were final before Propst became fi nal and that upheld a right of survivorship under the now abrogated rule. Nor does retroactivity apply to give rise to a claim on property that had already been transferred to a surviving party, in reliance on the prior rule, before Propst became final [Estate of Propst (1990) 50 Cal. 3d 448, 457-459, 268 Cal. Rptr. 114, 788 P.2d 628] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

27-316 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 316.20

§ 316.20 Termination of Joint Tenancy by Death

[1] Survivor Takes All

On the death of a joint tenant, the surviving joint tenant becomes the sole owner of the entirety, not by descent, but by survivorship and by virtue of the original grant creating the tenancy [King v. King (1951) 107 Cal. App. 2d 257, 259, 236 P.2d 912] . Thus, no interest in the property passes to the heirs, devisees, or personal representatives of the joint tenant first to die [Santoro v. Carbone (1972) 22 Cal. App. 3d 721, 729, 99 Cal. Rptr. 488 ; Clark v. Carter (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 291, 294, 70 Cal. Rptr. 923] .

A mortgage executed by one joint tenant is a lien or charge on that joint tenant's interest only and does not sever the joint tenancy estate; when the joint tenant so encumbering his or her interest dies, his or her interest in the property, therefore, ceases to exist and the surviving joint tenant takes the property free of the lien [People v. Nogarr (1958) 164 Cal. App. 2d 591, 593-594, 330 P.2d 858] . Likewise, the title of the surviving joint tenant is not subject to a trust deed executed by the other joint tenant without the surviving joint tenant's knowledge or consent [Hamel v. Gootkin (1962) 202 Cal. App. 2d 27, 30, 20 Cal. Rptr. 372] .

[2] Exceptions

[a] Simultaneous Death

If property is held by two joint tenants, both of whom have died, and it cannot be established by clear and convincing evidence that one of them survived the other, the property held in joint tenancy is administered or distributed, or otherwise dealt with, one-half as if one joint tenant had survived and one-half as if the other joint tenant had survived [Prob. Code § 223(b)]. If property is held by more than two joint tenants, all of whom have died, and it cannot be established by clear and convincing evidence that any of them survived the others, the property held in joint tenancy is divided into as many portions as there were joint tenants, and the share of each joint tenant is administered, distributed, or otherwise dealt with as if that joint tenant had survived the other joint tenants [Prob. Code § 223(c)].

[b] Murder of Joint Tenant

A joint tenant who intentionally and feloniously kills another joint tenant effects a severance of the decedent's interest so that the decedent's share passes as the decedent's property and the killer has no rights by survivorship [Prob. Code §§ 251, 257]. The killer, or in the case of a murder-suicide,the killer's heirs, are still entitled to his or her one-half interest [Estate of Hart (1982) 135 Cal. App. 3d 684, 687, 691, 185 Cal. Rptr. 544 ; Johansen v. Pelton (1970) 8 Cal. App. 3d 625, 630, 87 Cal. Rptr. 784] . Prob. Code § 251 codifies the better reasoned rule under prior case law and abrogates the rule that made the killer a constructive trustee of the whole for the victim's heirs or estate [see 17 Law Rev. Comm. 493, 505 (1984) (citing Estate of Hart (1982) 135 Cal. App. 3d 684, 185 Cal. Rptr. 544 , and Johansen v. Pelton (1970) 8 Cal. App. 3d 625, 87 Cal. Rptr. 784)].

[1] When Applicable

Proceedings for partition of real and personal property are governed by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 872.010-874.240. A partition action may be brought by (1) a coowner of personal property, or (2) an owner of an estate of inheritance or an estate for life or years in real property if the property or estate is owned by several persons concurrently or successively [*Code Civ. [2] Right to Demand Partition

Partition of concurrent interests in property is a right unless barred by a valid waiver [Code Civ. Proc. § 872.710(b)]. A joint tenant or a tenant in common possesses the absolute right to have his or her interests severed from that of his or her contenants [see Lazzarevich v. Lazzarevich (1952) 39 Cal. 2d 48, 50, 244 P.2d 1 ; see also De Roulet v. Mitchel (1945) 70 Cal. App. 2d 120, 123, 160 P.2d 574] . The cotenant demanding partition need not specify any reason for the demand; the only indispensable requirement is that clear title be shown [see Code Civ. Proc. § 872.220]. Partition may not be denied for the reason that severance will result in financial loss to the cotenants [De Roulet v. Mitchel (1945) 70 Cal. App. 2d 120, 124, 160 P.2d 574] .

[3] Waiver or Modification by Contract

Although partition is a matter of right when a cotenant desires it, that right may be waived by contract, either expressly or by implication [see Penasquitos, Inc. v. Holladay (1972) 27 Cal. App. 3d 356, 358, 103 Cal. Rptr. 717] . Thus, if cotenants contract that a selling owner must first offer his or her interest to the coowners before selling to a third party, the absolute right to partition has been modified. To allow a partition action prior to offering the right to purchase to the other cotenants would permit a circumvention of contractual obligation. On the nonselling owner's refusal or failure to exercise his or her right to purchase within a reasonable time, the seller has discharged his or her obligation to the coowner and may proceed with partition [Schwartz v. Shapiro (1964) 229 Cal. App. 2d 238, 253, 40 Cal. Rptr. 189] . The right to partition property is not always absolute and may be defeated by an agreement between cotenants permitting a variance from the ordinary incidents of their cotenancy. An example of such a variance agreed to between cotenants occurs if (1) property is taken under a deed naming two persons as joint tenants, (2) one of the joint tenants is to retain the property for his or her lifetime and to enjoy a life estate therein while the other joint tenant holds a remainder interest, and (3) the remainder interest would terminate on the death of the holder of that interest [see Rowland v. Clark (1949) 91 Cal. App. 2d 880, 882, 206 P.2d 59] .

Likewise, an agreement operating to limit or modify the right to partition of cotenancy property is implied if the purpose for which the property was acquired would be defeated by partition. If parties have committed property for a specific use for a certain period of time, such as committing land to a specific purpose for the term of a 50-year lease, frustration of purpose would result if partition were permitted [see Pine v. Tiedt (1965) 232 Cal. App. 2d 733, 739-740, 43 Cal. Rptr. 184] .

Partition is not available without consent of the other cotenant if it would conflict with a previous agreement of the parties to the use of the property; under those circumstances, the cotenant seeking partition is held to be estopped to assert or has waived the right to demand partition [Heber v. Yaeger (1967) 251 Cal. App. 2d 258, 262-263, 59 Cal. Rptr. 353] .

[4] Only Cotenants May Bring Action

Only cotenants may bring actions for partition. It is the cotenancy that gives the right to partition. Several persons may own a thing without being cotenants thereof, and, in those cases, no partition can be had [Akagi v. Ishioka (1975) 47 Cal. App. 3d 426, 431, 120 Cal. Rptr. 807] .

[5] Partition of Joint Tenancy Required Before Death

The severance or attempted severance of a joint tenancy must take place before the death of the one joint tenant and before the other joint tenant, as a consequence, becomes the owner of the whole by virtue of his or her right of survivorship [Green v. Skinner (1921) 185 Cal. 435, 438, 197 P. 60] .

[6] Effect of Partition

If a court finds a plaintiff entitled to partition, the court (1) makes an interlocutory judgment determining the interests of the parties in the property, (2) orders the partition of the property in accordance with their interests, and (3) specifies the manner of partition unless the manner ofpartition is to be determined later [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 872.720(a), 872.810]. In a partition there is no change of title between the tenants in common as there is in a grant deed; there is simply a dividing up of what the parties already own. After the partition, each tenant in common has exactly the same proportional interest in the property that he or she had previously; the only difference is that now the interest is in severalty while previously it was in common [Rancho Santa Margarita v. Vail (1938) 11 Cal. 2d 501, 539, 81 P.2d 533] .

A court may order the property sold and the proceeds divided among the parties in accordance with their interests where either (1) the parties agree to such relief, or (2) the court determines that sale and division of the proceeds would be more equitable under the circumstances than division of the property [Code Civ. Proc. § 872.820]. However, the fact that real property is held in joint tenancy does not compel equal division of the proceeds on a sale following a partition action; by seeking a partition and accounting, a joint tenant puts in issue the interest of each party to the real property in question [Kershman v. Kershman (1961) 192 Cal. App. 2d 23, 26, 13 Cal. Rptr. 290] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

27-316 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 316.22

§ 316.22 Right to Possession of Property

[1] Generally

Survivorship is the distinguishing feature of joint tenancies, as discussed in § 316.10[2]. In other respects, the rights of joint tenants and tenants in common are the same.

Each cotenant is equally entitled to share in the possession of the entire property, and neither may exclude the other from any part of it [see Zaslow v. Kroenert (1946) 29 Cal. 2d 541, 548, 176 P.2d 1 (applicable to tenancy in common of real property); see also Krum v. Malloy (1943) 22 Cal. 2d 132, 135, 137 P.2d 18 (applicable to coowners of automobile)]. In addition, a single cotenant may confer occupancy rights on a third person [Atlantic Oil Co. v. Los Angeles County (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 585, 602, 72 Cal. Rptr. 886, 446 P.2d 1006] .

For a discussion and forms for use in recovering cotenants' personal property from third parties, see Ch. 119, Claim and Delivery . For a discussion and forms for use in ousting a third party claiming real property adversely to cotenants, see Ch. 241, Ejectment . And for a discussion and forms for use in asserting adverse title to real property, see Ch. 13, Adverse Possession .

[2] Inference of Permissive Use or Possession

The mere fact of common ownership does not necessarily or conclusively establish that cotenants have consented to any usage or possession among themselves of a type for which permission is essential [Krum v. Malloy(1943) 22 Cal. 2d 132, 136, 137 P.2d 18 (permission is necessary when coowner desires exclusive possession and use of automobile for a time)]. However, in the absence of other evidence on the issue but on proof of ownership and use of the property by one cotenant, an inference normally arises that the other cotenant consented to the use [Bruce v. Ullery (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 702, 712, 25 Cal. Rptr. 841, 375 P.2d 833] .

[3] Contracts Between Joint Tenants for Exclusive Possession

A contract between joint tenants concerning exclusive possession of the property is not incompatible with the existence of joint tenancy [Hammond v. McArthur (1947) 30 Cal. 2d 512, 516, 183 P.2d 1 ; Taylor v. Taylor (1961) 197 Cal.

App. 2d 781, 787, 17 Cal. Rptr. 512] . This is true even when the contract for possession is contemporaneous with the creation of the joint tenancy [Toth v. Crawford (1963) 212 Cal. App. 2d 827, 830, 28 Cal. Rptr. 343] .

[4] Reasonable Restriction of Cotenants

Each cotenant is entitled to possession of the entire premises and may by lease or license transfer that right to possession to another or authorize another to exercise it, but he or she may not do any act to the prejudice of his or her cotenants in their estate. A cotenant's right of privacy in a cotenancy residence is not completely at the mercy of another with whom he or she shares legal possession, but is subject to reasonable restrictions on the right to exercise full control over the property in disregard of the wishes of another cotenant present on the premises [Tompkins v. Superior Court (1963) 59 Cal. 2d 65, 69, 27 Cal. Rptr. 889, 378 P.2d 113 (one joint tenant who is away from premises is unable to authorize police officers to enter and search premises over objection of joint tenant who is present at time where no prior warning is given, no emergency exists, and officer fails to disclose his or her purpose to occupant who is present or to inform that occupant of absent occupant's consent); see also Verdier v. Verdier (1957) 152 Cal. App. 2d 348, 352, 313 P.2d 123 (one joint tenant exceeds his or her right as joint tenant when entering joint tenancy premises with intent to remain and oust person occupying premises with consent of other joint tenant)].

[5] Presumption of Possession for All Cotenants

The possession by one cotenant is deemed the possession by all, and each may assume that another in exclusive possession is possessing for all and not adversely to the others. Thus, one cotenant cannot, merely by exclusive possession, gain title by adverse possession against the other cotenants. Such possession is presumed to be by permission and rightful unless notice is brought home to the others that it has become hostile [Dimmick v. Dimmick (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 417, 422, 24 Cal. Rptr. 856]. The exclusive occupancy by one cotenant is deemed permissive only and does not become adverse until the tenant out of possession has had either actual or constructive notice that the possession of the cotenant is hostile [Hunter v. Schultz (1966) 240 Cal. App. 2d 24, 28, 49 Cal. Rptr. 315 ; Weller v. Chavarria (1965) 233 Cal. App. 2d 234, 243, 43 Cal. Rptr. 364 ; West v. Evans (1946) 29 Cal. 2d 414, 418, 175 P.2d 219] .

[6] Adverse Possession by Cotenant Requires Notice and Ouster

[a] Evidence of Ouster

One cotenant cannot acquire the title of his or her cotenant by mere exclusive possession of the premises [see Hunter v. Schultz (1966) 240 Cal. App. 2d 24, 28, 49 Cal. Rptr. 315] . Ouster is the wrongful dispossession or exclusion of one cotenant by his or her cotenant or cotenants from the common property to which they are entitled to possession [Zaslow v. Kroenert (1946) 29 Cal. 2d 541, 548, 176 P.2d 1] . The occupying cotenant must impart notice of intended ouster to the cotenant out of possession by acts of ownership of the most open, notorious, and unequivocal character [Hunter v. Schultz (1966) 240 Cal. App. 2d 24, 28, 49 Cal. Rptr. 315 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 760.010 et seq. for actions to quiet title to real property].

Ouster may be found in acts of an adverse character such as claiming the whole by one cotenant, denying the title of other cotenants, or refusing to allow other cotenants to enter [Zaslow v. Kroenert (1946) 29 Cal. 2d 541, 548, 176 P.2d 1] . Evidence of ouster must be stronger than that required to establish title by adverse possession in a stranger [Russell v. Lescalet (1967) 248 Cal. App. 2d 310, 314, 56 Cal. Rptr. 399 ; Hunter v. Schultz (1966) 240 Cal. App. 2d 24, 28, 49 Cal. Rptr. 315 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 760.010 et seq. for actions to quiet title to real property]. A cotenant's filing of a petition alleging that the property is community property and entirely belongs to the cotenant is an ouster of other cotenants. It triggers an obligation to pay rent but also commences the limitation period for adverse possession [Estate of Hughes (1992) 5 Cal. App. 4th 1607, 1614-1616, 7 Cal. Rptr. 2d 742] .

[b] Establishing Ouster by Demand for Concurrent Possession

If real property is owned concurrently by two or more persons, a tenant out of possession may establish an ouster from possession by serving on a tenant in possession a written demand for concurrent possession of the property. The written demand must make specific reference to Civ. Code § 843 and to the time within which concurrent posession must be offered. Service of the written demand must be made in the same manner as service of summons in a civil action. An ouster is established 60 days after service is complete if within that time the tenant in possession does not offer and provide unconditional concurrent possession of the property to the tenant out of possession [Civ. Code § 843(a), (b); for a form of demand, see § 316.73].

Civ. Code § 843 does not apply to the extent the tenant out of possession is not entitled to possession or an alternative remedy is provided under the terms of an agreement between the cotenants or the instrument creating the cotenancy or another written instrument that indicates the possessory rights or remedies of the cotenants. Civ. Code § 843 supplements and does not limit any other means by which an ouster may be established [Civ. Code § 843(a)].

A claim for damages for an ouster established by this notice may be asserted by an independent action or in an action for possession or partition of the property or another appropriate action or proceeding subject to the applicable statute of limitations. Nothing in Civ. Code § 843 precludes the cotenants, at any time before or after a demand is served, from seeking partition of the property or from making an agreement as to the right of possession among the cotenants, the payment of reasonable rental value in lieu of possession, or any other terms that may be appropriate [Civ. Code § 843(c), (d)].

[c] Cotenants' Remedies Against Adversely Possessing Cotenant

On proof of ouster and a demand for entry by the cotenant out of possession and a refusal by the cotenant in possession, the ousted cotenant is entitled to recover common possession of the premises. One cotenant ousted by another is entitled to recover damages resulting from the ouster, which ordinarily amounts to his or her share of the value of the use and occupation of the land from the time of the ouster [Zaslow v. Kroenert (1946) 29 Cal. 2d 541, 548, 176 P.2d 1 ; see also Code Civ. Proc. §§ 318, 321 for statutory period in which to bring actions for recovery of real property and Code Civ. Proc. § 338 for statutory period in which to bring actions for recovery of personal property]. If there is no showing that the ousted cotenant cannot regain common possession of the premises or that the ouster was permanent, damages for loss of use afford the cotenant out of possession adequate relief [Zaslow v. Kroenert (1946) 29 Cal. 2d 541, 549, 176 P.2d 1] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

27-316 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 316.23

§ 316.23 Right to Rents and Profits

[1] Cotenants' Fractional Share

When there is common ownership, each of the owners is entitled to realize the value of his or her own interest and, in considering such a situation, a court is entitled to view all contiguous lands owned by the persons involved so that if one of them takes no more than his or her legitimate fractional interest of the total the other common owners may not complain. This rule is qualified by another rule that one owner incommon cannot take more than his or her fractional share in value of the products of the common property involved [Garibaldi v. Garibaldi (1968) 264 Cal. App. 2d 9, 11, 70 Cal. Rptr. 92] .

For a cotenant's remedies against a common owner who realizes in excess of his or her fractional share, see § 316.26.

[2] Cotenants in Exclusive Possession

A cotenant out of possession has no right against another cotenant in exclusive possession of the premises to recover a share of the profits derived from the common property by reason of the labor and expenditure of the cotenant in possession. Likewise, a cotenant out of possession may not recover rental value for occupancy and use of the property when he or she has not been ousted or excluded and when there has been no agreement between cotenants that the premises were occupied by the cotenant in possession as a receiver or bailiff for a share of the rents and profits [Teixeira v. Verissimo (1966) 239 Cal. App. 2d 147, 155, 48 Cal. Rptr. 496] . However, in a partition action between the cotenants, the amount expended by the cotenant in possession to protect or preserve the property may be offset by the reasonable value of that cotenant's occupancy [Hunter v. Schultz (1966) 240 Cal. App. 2d 24, 31-32, 49 Cal. Rptr. 315] . And, when a cotenant receives rents from third persons for use of the cotenancy lands, that cotenant must account to his or her cotenants for their share [Dabney-Johnston Oil Corp. v. Walden (1935) 4 Cal. 2d 637, 656, 52 P.2d 237] .

[3] Cotenants in Oil and Mineral Rights

In view of the fact that no enjoyment can be had of an estate in oil or mineral rights except through removal, it is not waste for a cotenant to go upon the cotenancy land and produce oil or minerals. The cotenant producing such substances must account to the other cotenants for their percentages of the material produced [see Dabney-Johnston Oil Corp. v. Walden (1935) 4 Cal. 2d 637, 655-656, 52 P.2d 237] . Thus, any of several cotenants individually may enter the cotenancy property and explore for oil and gas. In doing so, the cotenant is compelled to bear the entire expense and risks of operation if unsuccessful. And, if the cotenant is successful, he or she cannot exclude the other cotenants who desire to drill. As to the remaining cotenants, he or she is required to render an accounting for profits [Gerhard v. Stephens (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 864, 894, 69 Cal. Rptr. 612, 442 P.2d 692] .

See also the discussions in §§ 316.24[3], 316.2[2]. For a discussion and forms for use in demanding an accounting to determine profits of cotenancy property, see Ch. 7, Accounting, Action for. § 316.24 Right to Contribution

[1] Advances to Preserve Common Estate

When a cotenant makes advances from his or her own pocket to preserve the common estate, his or her investment in the property increases by the entire amount advanced. On sale of the estate, he or she is entitled to be reimbursed for the entire advancement before the balance is equally divided [Southern Adjustment Bureau v. Nelson (1964) 230 Cal. App. 2d 539, 541, 41 Cal. Rptr. 148] . But when one cotenant asserts exclusive possession, he or she is not entitled to contribution for money allegedly paid for insurance premiums, interest, and repairs when these expenditures were not necessary to protect the interests of the cotenant out of possession [Regalado v. Regalado (1961) 198 Cal. App. 2d 549, 552, 18 Cal. Rptr. 468] .

[2] Payment of Taxes

A cotenant who pays taxes assessed against the common property is, in the absence of an agreement to the contrary, entitled to a ratable contribution from his or her defaulting cotenants, even though the payment may have been made without the latter's consent or over the latter's objection [see Marsh v. Edelstein (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 132, 141, 88 Cal. Rptr. 26] . A cotenant, being an owner and under a moral and legal obligation to pay taxes on the cotenancy property, cannot by neglecting to pay the taxes and thus allowing the property to be sold, hope to strengthen his or her title by purchasing the property at the sale or from a stranger who bought it at the sale [People v. Taliaferro (1961) 188 Cal. App. 2d 372, 374, 10 Cal. Rptr. 724 (rule applied to condemnation sale of real property held in joint tenancy)]. An individual so purchasing the property does not acquire any right or title thereto, and the purchase is deemed one mode of paying taxes [Weisberg v. Loughridge (1967) 253 Cal. App. 2d 416, 420, 61 Cal. Rptr. 563 (rule applied to personal property sold at foreclosure sale)].

[3] Cotenants in Oil Rights

When one cotenant produces oil from the cotenancy property, he or she is entitled to charge the interests of the nonproducing cotenants for their proportionate share of drilling and operating expenses. The nonconsenting cotenants may either ratify the oil lease and thus receive their fractional share of royalties or reject the oil lease and receive their fractional part of the oil produced less their proportionate part of the costs of discovery and production [Little v.

Mountain View Dairies (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 232, 234-235, 217 P.2d 416 ; Robinson v. Southwestern Dev. Co. (1954) 130 Cal. App. 2d 1, 5, 277 P.2d 825] .

Chapter 316 JOINT TENANCY AND TENANCY IN COMMON
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

27-316 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 316.25

§ 316.25 Right to Encumber Property

[1] Cotenant's Undivided Interest

One cotenant, whether a joint tenant or tenant in common, may dispose of or encumber his or her undivided interest without the consent, knowledge, or approval of the other cotenants [Schoenfeld v. Norberg (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 755, 765-766, 90 Cal. Rptr. 47 ; Thompson v. Thompson (1963) 218 Cal. App. 2d 804, 807, 32 Cal. Rptr. 808] . However, the encumbrance affects that cotenant's interest only. Thus, a creditor may levy only on the interest of a debtor joint tenant [Schoenfeld v. Norberg (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 755, 765-766, 90 Cal. Rptr. 47 (rule applicable to writ of execution levied on joint tenancy property to enforce money judgment against one spouse); Hamel v. Gootkin (1962) 202 Cal. App. 2d 27, 30, 20 Cal. Rptr. 372 (rule applicable to trust deeds executed by deceased joint tenant in real property); People v. Nogarr (1958) 164 Cal. App. 2d 591, 594, 330 P.2d 858 (rule applicable to mortgage on real property executed by deceased joint tenant)].

One cotenant may not act for another cotenant without special authority and thus bind the entire estate with respect to matters that constitute a burden on the property [Gordon v. City Council (1961) 188 Cal. App. 2d 680, 687-688, 10 Cal. Rptr. 776 ; see § 316.25[2]]. Hence, when a note is made payable to two persons as joint tenants and the trust deed securing the note named them beneficiaries in a joint tenancy capacity, an accord and satisfaction with one tenant that was unknown to the other is not binding on the other as to his or her interest [Stark v. Coker (1942) 20 Cal. 2d 839, 844-845, 129 P.2d 390] .

Similarly, as to interests in cotenancy real property, a cotenant is unable to create an easement or servitude upon the common land against his or her cotenants in favor of adjoining lands [see People ex rel. Dept. of Pub. Wks. v. Silveira (1965) 236 Cal. App. 2d 604, 628, 46 Cal. Rptr. 260] . And because it is impossible to sever the right to encroach for the benefit of an improvement on another's land [see Mecchi v. Picchi (1966) 245 Cal. App. 2d 470, 487, 54 Cal. Rptr. 1] , when one joint tenant owning a right to encroach conveys his or her interest in the joint tenancy, the grantees on the grantor's death are deemed to hold the right to encroach for the common benefit of themselves and their cotenants [Mecchi v. Picchi (1966) 245 Cal. App. 2d 470, 487-488, 54 Cal. Rptr. 1] .

[2] Implied Consent of Cotenants Required

One cotenant may not act for another cotenant without special authority in binding the entire estate with respect to matters that constitute a burden on the property; however, the consent of one is deemed the consent of all the cotenants as to matters that constitute a benefit to the property [Gordon v. City Council (1961) 188 Cal. App. 2d 680, 687-688, 10 Cal. Rptr. 776] . Accordingly, a cotenant is without authority to contract for the cutting and removal of timber from the common property, especially when there exists the potential for improper cutting that could seriously impair the value of the land [Jay v. Dollarhide (1970) 3 Cal. App. 3d 1001, 1032, 84 Cal. Rptr. 538 (when one cotenant purported to exercise dominion over, and to convey, the entire property under claim of right against all heirs)]. And, when one tenant in common makes an oil and gas lease with respect to the common property with a third person, the lease binds the other cotenants who ratify the lease by their acceptance of benefits under the lease [Atlantic Oil Co. v. Los Angeles County (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 585, 602, 72 Cal. Rptr. 886, 446 P.2d 1006 ; see §§ 316.23[3], 316.24[3]].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

27-316 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 316.26

§ 316.26 Duty Not to Commit Waste

If a joint tenant or tenant in common of real property commits waste on the property, any aggreived person may bring an action for waste against him or her [Code Civ. Proc. § 732]. The judgment in any such action may be for treble damages [Code Civ. Proc. § 732]. For example, when trees form a boundary line between two landowners, the trees are owned by them as tenants in common; each such owner has the right to demand that his or her cotenant use his or her part so as not to injure or destroy the whole. In assessing a cotenant's use of the common property, a court may look to the environmental qualities of the surrounding land to determine if the use constitutes legitimate enjoyment of the property [Scarborough v. Woodill (1907) 7 Cal. App. 39, 41-42, 93 P. 383] .

A cotenant of real property cannot lawfully do any act that would impair the rights of his or her cotenants [Garibaldi v. Garibaldi (1968) 264 Cal. App. 2d 9, 14, 70 Cal. Rptr. 92] . Likewise, he or she cannot transfer to another the right to do what he or she cannot do lawfully [see Garibaldi v. Garibaldi (1968) 264 Cal. App. 2d 9, 14, 70 Cal. Rptr. 92 ; see also Fuller v. Montafi (1921) 55 Cal. App. 314, 320, 203 P. 406] . Thus, when one tenant in common contracts with a third party without the other tenant's consent to cut and remove timber on the common property, the nonconsenting tenant may seek an injunction to prevent waste; the enjoined third party may not seek damages for breach of contract from either cotenant [see Garibaldi v. Garibaldi (1968) 264 Cal. App. 2d 9, 14-15, 70 Cal. Rptr. 92 ; Fuller v. Montafi (1921) 55 Cal. App. 314, 320, 203 P. 406] . And, logging must be performed in such manner that the rights of those cotenants who do not consent to the contract are protected [Garibaldi v. Garibaldi (1968) 264 Cal. App. 2d 9, 15, 70 Cal. Rptr. 92] . For a discussion and forms for use when logging rights are involved, see Ch. 350, Logs and Timber .

§ 316.28 Tortious Acts Not Imputed to Other Cotenants

A cotenant of real property is not liable for the tort of his or her cotenant unless he or she actively participates in it directly or through an agent, or ratifies the tortious acts [Daly v. Smith (1963) 220 Cal. App. 2d 592, 604, 33 Cal. Rptr. 920] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

27-316 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 316.29

§ 316.29 Cotenants' Remedies Against Third Parties

A cotenant may recover possession of the cotenancy premises from all persons except his or her cotenants, and the recovery inures to the benefit of all cotenants [McCormick v. Marcy (1913) 165 Cal. 386, 392, 132 P. 449] . Likewise, a cotenant in sole possession of the cotenancy property may maintain an action to protect the property from injury or destruction [see Fortain v. Smith (1896) 114 Cal. 494, 498, 46 P. 381] .

However, a cotenant has no right to oust a person who holds possession with the consent of another cotenant. Thus, when a cotenant leases to a third party, he or she confers on that person the same right to possession as he or she has; by either lease or license a cotenant confers on another person the right to occupy and use the property of the cotenancy as fully as the landlord or licenser might have used or occupied it if the lease or license had not been granted. If either cotenant expels the tenant or licensee, he or she is guilty of trespass [Verdier v. Verdier (1957) 152 Cal. App. 2d 348, 352, 313 P.2d 123] .

§ 316.52 Decisions

[1] Confidential Relationship Between Cotenants

Inequitable for one cotenant to buy adversarial claim or title or assert it for his or her exclusive benefit without consent of other cotenants. Ferry v. McNeil (1963) 214 Cal. App. 2d 411, 416, 29 Cal. Rptr. 577

[2] Cotenants' Remedies Against Third Parties

If, under state law and deposit contract, delinquent taxpayer joint tenant can withdraw all funds, IRS levy pursuant to I.R.C. § 6331(d) reaches all funds and bank is required to pay over all sums owed even if only one joint tenant is delinquent taxpayer; third parties' rights are determinable in post-seizure hearings. United States v. National Bank of Commerce (1985) 472 U.S. 713, 721-728, 105 S. Ct. 2919, 86 L. Ed. 2d 565

Cotenant is able to recover possession of cotenancy premises from all persons except his or her cotenants; such recovery inures to benefit of all cotenants. McCormick v. Marcy (1913) 165 Cal. 386, 392, 132 P. 449

Cotenant in sole possession of cotenancy property is empowered to maintain action to protect property from injury or destruction. Fortain v. Smith (1896) 114 Cal. 494, 498, 46 P. 381

[3] Creation of Joint Tenancy

[a] By Writing

Term "or" between names of cotenants without designation of joint tenancy is insufficient to create joint tenancy. Cooke v. Tsipouroglou (1963) 59 Cal. 2d 660, 664, 31 Cal. Rptr. 60, 381 P.2d 940

Joint tenancies are created only by writing. California Trust Co. v. Bennett (1949) 33 Cal. 2d 694, 697, 204 P.2d 324 ; Allen v. Samuels (1962) 204 Cal. App. 2d 710, 715, 22 Cal. Rptr. 528

Fact that deed is taken in joint tenancy establishes prima facie case that property is actually owned in joint tenancy. Weak v. Weak (1962) 202 Cal. App. 2d 632, 638, 21 Cal. Rptr. 9

Sole technical requisite of creation of joint tenancy is express declaration of joint tenancy in instrument. Gonzales v. Gonzales (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 428, 435, 73 Cal. Rptr. 83

[b] Safe-Deposit Boxes

No joint tenancy exists in safe-deposit box when all funds belong to one of purported joint tenants. American Trust Co. v. Fitzmaurice (1955) 131 Cal. App. 2d 382, 387, 280 P.2d 545

[c] Savings and Loan Association Certificates

Joint tenancy form of savings and loan association certificate is conclusive evidence of intention to create joint tenancy in absence of fraud or undue influence. Estate of Friedman (1971) 20 Cal. App. 3d 399, 403, 97 Cal. Rptr. 653

[4] Definitions

[a] Joint Tenancy--Survivorship as Distinguishing Feature of Joint Tenancy

Right of survivorship is "grand" and "distinguishing" incident of joint tenancy estate. Estate of Blair (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 161, 166, 244 Cal. Rptr. 627

Decedent is unable to bequeath half of any joint tenancy property because on death other joint tenant becomes sole owner of property by right of survivorship. Estate of Kennedy (1982) 135 Cal. App. 3d 676, 681, 185 Cal. Rptr. 540

No interest passes to heirs or devisees of first joint tenant to die. Santoro v. Carbone (1972) 22 Cal. App. 3d 721, 729, 99 Cal. Rptr. 488 ; Clark v. Carter (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 291, 294, 70 Cal. Rptr. 923

On death of one joint tenant, survivor is sole owner by virtue of original grant creating tenancy. King v. King (1951) 107 Cal. App. 2d 257, 259, 236 P.2d 912

[b] Tenancy in Common

[i] Undivided Interest

Holding an undivided interest in property is very essence of tenancy in common. Davis v. Davis (1963) 222 Cal. App. 2d 691, 693, 35 Cal. Rptr. 281

[ii] Tenancies in Common Preferred

Express intention is required to create joint tenancy. Abbey v. Lord (1959) 168 Cal. App. 2d 499, 503, 336 P.2d 226

[5] Duty Not to Commit Waste

Where trees form boundary line between two landowners, trees are owned by them as tenants in common; each owner has right to demand that his or her cotenant so use his or her part so as not to injure or destroy the whole; in assessing cotenant's use of common property, court is able to look to environmental qualities of surrounding land to determine if use constitutes legitimate enjoyment of property or waste. Scarborough v. Woodhill (1907) 7 Cal. App. 39, 41-42, 93 P. 383

Cotenant of real property is unable to lawfully do any act such as acts constituting waste, which would impair rights of his or her cotenants; cotenant is unable to transfer right to do what he or she cannot lawfully do to another. Garibaldi v. Garibaldi (1968) 264 Cal. App. 2d 9, 14-15, 70 Cal. Rptr. 92 ; Fuller v. Montafi (1921) 55 Cal. App. 314, 320, 203 P. 406

Nonconsenting cotenant is entitled to seek injunction to prevent waste where one cotenant contracts with third party to cut and remove timber from cotenancy premises; enjoined third party is unable to seek damages for breach of contract from either cotenant. Garibaldi v. Garibaldi (1968) 264 Cal. App. 2d 9, 14-15, 70 Cal. Rptr. 92 ; Fuller v. Montafi (1921) 55 Cal. App. 314, 320, 203 P. 406

Rights of nonconsenting cotenants are required to be protected from waste in logging operation. Garibaldi v. Garibaldi (1968) 264 Cal. App. 2d 9, 15, 70 Cal. Rptr. 92

[6] Effect of Attempts to Create Joint Tenancy

[a] Tenancy in Common Created

Instrument conveying title is required to state expressly that property is to be held in joint tenancy; intent to create joint tenancy is required to be set forth in instrument creating it. Bill Froelich Motor Co. v. Estate of Kohler (1966) 240 Cal. App. 2d 897, 901, 50 Cal. Rptr. 200

Tenancy in common is residual form of ownership. Estate of Horn (1951) 102 Cal. App. 2d 635, 640, 228 P.2d 99

Preference for tenancies in common over joint tenancies. Reiss v. Reiss (1941) 45 Cal. App. 2d 740, 747, 114 P.2d 718

[b] Testamentary Gift

Testamentary disposition is attempted where stock held jointly by brother and sister with sole intent that stock transfer title to sister after her brother's death; such disposition conforms to statutes regulating execution of wills or failing as gift at death. Estate of Franco (1975) 50 Cal. App. 3d 374, 381, 123 Cal. Rptr. 458

[c] Undue Influence

No undue influence if no deceit exists and gift is voluntary. Goldman v. Goldman (1953) 116 Cal. App. 2d 227, 235, 253 P.2d 474

Undue influence defined. Estate of Kreher (1951) 107 Cal. App. 2d 831, 839, 238 P.2d 150

No undue influence if policy or plan of giving is found. Estate of Kreher (1951) 107 Cal. App. 2d 831, 840, 238 P.2d 150

[7] Husband and Wife

[a] As Joint Tenants

Requirements of California transmutation statute [Fam. Code § 852(a)] do not apply when realty is transferred from third party to spouses as joint tenants; property therefore is held in joint tenancy rather than as community property. In re Summers (9th Cir. 2003) 332 F.3d 1240, 1245

Severance of joint tenancy by recording declaration of severance [Civ. Code § 683.2] is not "transfer" or "disposition" of "property" and therefore does not violate either automatic temporary restraining order in dissolution proceeding or similarly worded court-ordered temporary restraining order or preliminary injunction enjoining spouse from "transferring, encumbering, hypothecating, concealing, or in any way disposing of any property, real or personal, whether community, quasi-community, or separate, without the written consent of the other party or an order of the court, except in the usual course of business or for the necessities of life." Estate of Mitchell (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 1378, 1395, 91 Cal. Rptr. 2d 192

Husband's separate property residence that he deeded "for a gift" to himself and wife as joint tenants during marriage was community property, subjectto reimbursement provisions of Civ. Code § 4800.2 (superseded by Fam. Code § 2640). In re Marriage of Perkal (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 1198, 1202-1203, 250 Cal. Rptr. 296

For purposes of determining character of real property on one spouse's death, property is presumed to be as described in deed and burden of proving otherwise is on party seeking to rebut presumption. Estate of Blair (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 161, 167, 244 Cal. Rptr. 627

Fact that deed was taken in joint tenancy established prima facie case that property was in fact held in joint tenancy; devisee was permitted to test surviving joint tenant's claim by showing, through extrinsic evidence, that property held under joint tenancy deed was in fact community property. Estate of Blair (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 161, 167, 244 Cal. Rptr. 627

Parties to dispute over whether property passing by will is community property or is held in joint tenancy were not bound by writing requirement of Civ. Code § 5110.730 (superseded by Fam. Code § 852, operative January 1, 1994) for agreement or understanding between husband and wife made before 1985, because retroactive application of statute would contravene due process, substantially affecting vested property right. Estate of Blair (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 161, 168, 244 Cal. Rptr. 627

Absent other independent or corroborating evidence, evidence is insufficient to support trial court's finding of transmutation of property from joint tenancy to community property when evidence fails to show when transmutation occurred and court is thus unable to apply proper standard of proof. Estate of Blair (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 161, 167-168, 244 Cal. Rptr. 627

In cases arising under former Prob. Code § 229 (descent of community property passing by intestacy when decedent died before January 1, 1985), community property presumption of Civ. Code § 5110 (superseded by Fam. Code § 760, operative January 1, 1994), rather than common law form-of-title presumption, is applicable, because courts must look to source of property before it was placed in joint tenancy; this presumption is consistent with legislative intent that intestate succession should reflect decedent's contribution to estate. In re Estate of Luke (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 1006, 1015, 240 Cal. Rptr. 84

Acquisition of real property in joint tenancy prior to marriage does not create presumption of community property under former Civ. Code § 4800.1 (superseded by Fam. Code § 2580). In re Marriage of Leversee (1984) 156 Cal. App. 3d 891, 896-897, 203 Cal. Rptr. 481

Testimony of one spouse's hidden intent does not overcome presumption created by deed that property is held in joint tenancy. Estate of Levine (1981) 125 Cal. App. 3d 701, 705, 178 Cal. Rptr. 275

Spouse's voluntary contribution of money to joint account creates presumption that money is joint tenancy money and is gift from contributing spouse. In re Marriage of Mahone (1981) 123 Cal. App. 3d 17, 24-25, 176 Cal. Rptr. 274

Property settlement agreement effectively terminated joint tenancy and subjected property to disposition by husband's will. Estate of Gebert (1979) 95 Cal. App. 3d 370, 379, 157 Cal. Rptr. 46

Presumption of equal interests of spouses in joint tenancy property in absence of evidence to contrary. Johansen v. Pelton (1970) 8 Cal. App. 3d 625, 630, 87 Cal. Rptr. 784

Joint tenancy in real property creates rebuttable presumption that property is held in joint tenancy; evidence of common understanding or agreement overcomes presumption. Clark v. Carter (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 291, 294-295, 70 Cal. Rptr. 923

When property is conveyed to a husband and wife as joint tenants, form of the conveyance destroys statutory presumption that property is community even though consideration for conveyance consists of community funds or assets; such instrument creates a tenancy in which interests of husband and wife are separate property; form of the instrument is not conclusive as to status of property; and property acquired by a husband and wife as joint tenants is capable of being shown to be actually community property or separate property of one spouse according to intention, understanding, or agreement of parties. Lovetro v. Steers (1965) 234 Cal. App. 2d 461, 468, 44 Cal. Rptr. 604

[b] As Tenants in Common

Spouses' undivided interest in property held in tenancy in common is separate property of each. Estate of Adams (1964) 228 Cal. App. 2d 264, 266, 39 Cal. Rptr. 522

[c] Execution on Property Held in Joint Tenancy by Spouses

With respect to execution on jointly held property of husband and wife by judgment creditor of husband, wife's interest in joint tenancy property is not subject to execution; no basis for affording the creditor stronger hand against property held in cotenancy with exemption claimant's spouse than against property in which cotenant is not married to claimant. Schoenfeld v. Norberg (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 755, 764, 90 Cal. Rptr. 47

[8] No Duty to Insure

No obligation exists on part of one cotenant to insure other cotenant against loss of latter's interest in cotenancy property. Russell v. Williams (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 487, 491, 24 Cal. Rptr. 859, 374 P.2d 827

[9] Presumption of Community Property

Requirement of former Civ. Code § 4800.1 (superseded by Fam. Code § 2580, operative January 1, 1994) that community presumption concerning joint tenancy property be rebutted by statement in deed or other documentary evidence of title or proof that parties made written agreement that property is separate, is inapplicable to proceedings for dissolution of marriage or legal separation commenced before January 1, 1984, in which proceedings for division of property are not final on January 1, 1984, because retroactive application of statute unconstitutionally impairs vested property rights without due process of law. In re Marriage of Buol (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 751, 757, 763, 218 Cal. Rptr. 31, 705 P.2d 354 (superseded by statute: see In re Marriage of Heikes, 10 Cal. 4th 1211, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 155, 899 P.2d 1349 (1995))

Presumption that residence conveyed to husband and wife as joint tenants is community property is overcome only by evidence of agreement that spouses intended that there be separate interests in property. In re Marriage of Lucas (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 808, 813-815, 166 Cal. Rptr. 853, 614 P.2d 285 (decided before, and partially abrogated by, 1983 enactment of Civ. Code §§ 4800.1 and 4800.2, superseded by Fam. Code §§ 2580 and 2640, operative January 1, 1994)

Community property presumption arising from joint tenancy title was overcome by evidence that wife told husband several times that residence was really her separate property and if she died, husband could live in it if he obtained custody of wife's children, and if not, he must sell house and put proceeds in trust for wife's children. In re Marriage of Milse (1986) 182 Cal. App. 3d 203, 206, 227 Cal. Rptr. 70

Trial court's finding under former Civ. Code § 5110 (superseded by Fam. Code § 760, operative January 1, 1994) that residence acquired by husband before marriage remained his separate property, subject to pro tanto community interest, despite title change to joint tenancy during marriage, was supported by substantial evidence of oral agreement that change was made for survivorship purposes only. In re Marriage of Scherr (1986) 177 Cal. App. 3d 314, 319-320, 222 Cal. Rptr. 872

Community presumption arising from joint tenancy title was overcome by evidence that wife's mother deeded realty to spouses in joint tenancy solely to permit wife to have property in event of her death and so informed her son-in-law, who said he had no desire to be named on deed; therefore Civ. Code § 4800.1 was inapplicable. In re Marriage of Delgado (1986) 176 Cal. App. 3d 666, 669, 222 Cal. Rptr. 119

Presumption of community property when single-family residence taken as joint tenants was applicable when property was being acquired by sales contract that provided for buyers to take title as joint tenants. In re Marriage of Tucker (1983) 141 Cal. App. 3d 128, 133-135, 190 Cal. Rptr. 127

[10] Right to Contribution

[a] Advances to Preserve Common Estate

When unmarried cohabitants had implied agreement to own property as true joint tenants, trial court's decision to divide proceeds of sale equally, with no reimbursement to party making greater contribution to acquisition, was proper. Milian v. De Leon (1986) 181 Cal. App. 3d 1185, 1193, 226 Cal. Rptr. 831

Where cotenant makes advances from his or her own pocket to preserve common estate, his or her investment in property increases by amount advanced; on sale of estate, he or she is entitled to reimbursement of entire advancement before balance is equally divided. Southern Adjustment Bureau v. Nelson (1964) 230 Cal. App. 2d 539, 541, 41 Cal. Rptr. 148

When one cotenant asserts exclusive possession, he or she is not entitled to contribution for money allegedly paid for insurance premiums, interest, and repairs when such expenditures not necessary to protect interests of cotenant out of possession. Regalado v. Regalado (1961) 198 Cal. App. 2d 549, 552, 18 Cal. Rptr. 468

[b] Payment of Taxes

In absence of an agreement to contrary, cotenant who pays taxes assessed against common property is entitled to ratable contribution from his or her defaulting cotenants even though payment may have been made without latter's consent or over latter's objection. Marsh v. Edelstein (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 132, 141, 88 Cal. Rptr. 26

Cotenant, being an owner and under moral and legal obligation to pay taxes on cotenancy property, is not capable, by neglecting to pay taxes and thus allowing land to be sold in a condemnation proceeding, of strengthening his or her title by purchasing the land at sale or by purchasing land from a stranger who bought it at sale. People v. Taliaferro (1961) 188 Cal. App. 2d 372, 374, 10 Cal. Rptr. 724

Cotenant purchasing cotenancy property at tax sale to acquire superior title does not acquire any right or title and purchase deemed one mode of paying taxes. Weisberg v. Loughridge (1967) 253 Cal. App. 2d 416, 420, 61 Cal. Rptr. 563

[c] Cotenants in Oil Rights

Where one cotenant produces oil from cotenancy property, he or she is entitled to charge the interests of nonproducing cotenants for their proportionate share of drilling and operating expenses; nonconsenting cotenants either ratify oil lease and thus receive fractional share of royalties or reject oil lease and receive their fractional part of oil produced less their proportionate part of costs of discovery and production. Little v. Mountain View Dairies (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 232, 234-235, 217 P.2d 416 ; Robinson v. Southwestern Dev. Co. (1954) 130 Cal. App. 2d 1, 5, 277 P.2d 825

[11] Right to Encumber Property

[a] Cotenant's Undivided Interest

One cotenant disposing of or encumbering his or her undivided interest without consent, knowledge, or approval of other cotenants. Schoenfeld v. Norberg (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 755, 765-766, 90 Cal. Rptr. 47 ; Thompson v. Thompson (1963) 218 Cal. App. 2d 804, 807, 32 Cal. Rptr. 808

Encumbrance only affects encumbering cotenant's interest. Schoenfeld v. Norberg (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 755, 765-766, 90 Cal. Rptr. 47

Encumbrance by one cotenant affects that cotenant's interest only if trust deed was executed by deceased joint tenant to real property. Hamel v. Gootkin (1962) 202 Cal. App. 2d 27, 30, 20 Cal. Rptr. 372

Encumbrance by one cotenant affects that cotenant's interest only when mortgage on real property is executed by deceased joint tenant. People v. Nogarr (1958) 164 Cal. App. 2d 591, 594, 330 P.2d 858

One cotenant does not act for another cotenant without special authority and thus does not bind the entire estate with respect to matters constituting a burden on property. Gordon v. City Council (1961) 188 Cal. App. 2d 680, 687-688, 10 Cal. Rptr. 776

Where note made payable to two persons as joint tenants and trust deed securing note named them as beneficiaries in joint tenancy capacity, an accord and satisfaction with one tenant which was unknown to other is not binding on other's interest. Stark v. Coker (1942) 20 Cal. 2d 839, 844-845, 129 P.2d 390

Cotenant is unable to create an easement or servitude on common land against his or her cotenants in favor of adjoining lands. People ex rel. Dept. of Public Works v. Silveira (1965) 236 Cal. App. 2d 604, 628, 46 Cal. Rptr. 260

Impossibility of severance of right to encroach; grantees deemed to hold right for common benefit. Mecchi v. Picchi (1966) 245 Cal. App. 2d 470, 487-488, 54 Cal. Rptr. 1

[b] Implied Consent of Cotenants Required

One cotenant does not act for another cotenant without special authority and thus does not bind entire estate with respect to matters that constitute a burden on property; however, consent of one is deemed consent of both cotenants as to matters that constitute benefit in favor of their property. Gordon v. City Council (1961) 188 Cal. App. 2d 680, 687-688, 10 Cal. Rptr. 776

Cotenant is without authority to contract for cutting and removal of timber from common property, especially if there exists potential for improper cutting that could seriously impair value of land. Jay v. Dollarhide (1970) 3 Cal. App. 3d 1001, 1032, 84 Cal. Rptr. 538

When one tenant in common makes an oil and gas lease with respect to common property with a third person, lease binds other cotenants who ratify lease by their acceptance of benefits under lease. Atlantic Oil Co. v. Los Angeles County (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 585, 602, 72 Cal. Rptr. 886, 446 P.2d 1006

[12] Right to Possession of Property

Each cotenant is equally entitled to share in possession of entire property; neither is capable of excluding other from any part of it. Zaslow v. Kroenert (1946) 29 Cal. 2d 541, 548, 176 P.2d 1 ; Krum v. Malloy (1943) 22 Cal. 2d 132, 135, 137 P.2d 18

Single cotenant may confer occupancy rights on third person. Atlantic Oil Co. v. Los Angeles County (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 585, 602, 72 Cal. Rptr. 886, 446 P.2d 1006

[b] Adverse Possession by Cotenant Requires Notice and Ouster

[i] Evidence of Ouster

One cotenant does not acquire title of his or her cotenant by mere exclusive possession of premises. Hunter v. Schultz (1966) 240 Cal. App. 2d 24, 28, 49 Cal. Rptr. 315

Ouster is wrongful dispossession or exclusion of one cotenant by his or her cotenant or cotenants from common property to which they are entitled to possession. Zaslow v. Kroenert (1946) 29 Cal. 2d 541, 548, 176 P.2d 1

Occupying cotenant is required to impart notice of intended ouster to cotenant out of possession by acts of ownership of most open, notorious, and unequivocal character. Hunter v. Schultz (1966) 240 Cal. App. 2d 24, 28, 49 Cal. Rptr. 315

Ouster is found in acts of an adverse character such as claiming whole by one cotenant, denying title of other cotenants, or refusing to allow other cotenants to enter. Zaslow v. Kroenert (1946) 29 Cal. 2d 541, 548, 176 P.2d 1

Evidence of ouster by cotenant is required to be stronger than that offered by stranger to establish title by adverse possession. Russell v. Lescalet (1967) 248 Cal. App. 2d 310, 314, 56 Cal. Rptr. 399 ; Hunter v. Schultz (1966) 240 Cal. App. 2d 24, 28, 49 Cal. Rptr. 315

[ii] Cotenant's Remedies Against Adversely Possessing Cotenant

On proof of ouster and a demand for entry by cotenant out of possession and refusal by cotenant in possession, ousted cotenant is entitled to recover common posession of premises; one cotenant ousted by another is entitled to recover damages resulting from ouster which ordinarily amount to his or her share of value of use and occupation of land from time of ouster. Zaslow v. Kroenert (1946) 29 Cal. 2d 541, 548, 176 P.2d 1

When there is no showing that ousted cotenant cannot regain common possession of premises or that ouster was permanent, damages for loss of use afford cotenant out of possession adequate relief. Zaslow v. Kroenert (1946) 29 Cal. 2d 541, 549, 176 P.2d 1

[c] Contracts Between Joint Tenants for Exclusive Possession

Contract between joint tenants concerning exclusive possession of property is not incompatible with existence of a joint tenancy. Hammond v. McArthur (1947) 30 Cal. 2d 512, 516, 183 P.2d 1 ; Taylor v. Taylor (1961) 197 Cal. App. 2d 781, 787, 17 Cal. Rptr. 512

Contract for exclusive possession of joint tenancy property is not incompatible with existence of joint tenancy even when contract is contemporaneous with creation of joint tenancy. Toth v. Crawford (1963) 212 Cal. App. 2d 827, 830, 28 Cal. Rptr. 343

[d] Inference of Permissive Use or Possession

In absence of other evidence on issue, but on proof of ownership and use of property by one cotenant, inference ordinarily arises that other cotenant consented to such use. Bruce v. Ullery (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 702, 712, 25 Cal. Rptr. 841, 375 P.2d 833

[e] Presumption of Possession for All Cotenants

Possession by one cotenant is deemed possession by all; each assumes that another in exclusive possession is possessing for all and not adversely toothers. Dimmick v. Dimmick (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 417, 422, 24 Cal. Rptr. 856, 374 P.2d 824

Exclusive occupancy by one cotenant is deemed permissive only and is not adverse until tenant out of possession has had either actual or constructive notice that possession of cotenant is hostile. Weller v. Chavarria (1965) 233 Cal. App. 2d 234, 243, 43 Cal. Rptr. 364 ; Hunter v. Schultz (1966) 240 Cal. App. 2d 24, 28, 49 Cal. Rptr. 315 ; West v. Evans (1946) 29 Cal. 2d 414, 418, 175 P.2d 219

[f] Reasonable Restriction of Cotenants

Cotenant is not entitled to act to prejudice of his or her cotenants in their estate; cotenant's right of privacy in a cotenancy residence is not completely at mercy of another with whom he or she shares legal possession, but is subject to reasonable restrictions on right to exercise full control over property in disregard of wishes of another joint occupant present on premises. Tompkins v. Superior Court (1963) 59 Cal. 2d 65, 69, 27 Cal. Rptr. 889, 378 P.2d 113

Joint tenant exceeds his or her right as joint tenant when entering joint tenancy premises with intent to remain and oust person occupying premises with consent of other joint tenant. Verdier v. Verdier (1957) 152 Cal. App. 2d 348, 352,

313 P.2d 123

[a] Cotenants' Fractional Share

Each common owner is entitled to realize value of his or her own interest; in considering such situation, court is entitled to view all contiguous lands owned by persons involved so that none of them takes more than his or her fractional share of total; preceding rule is modified by rule that one co-owner is unable to take more than his or her fractional share in value of products of common property. Garibaldi v. Garibaldi (1968) 264 Cal. App. 2d 9, 11, 70 Cal. Rptr. 92

[b] Cotenants in Exclusive Possession

Cotenant out of possession has no right against another in exclusive possession of premises to recover share of profits derived from common property by labor and expenditure of tenant in possession; likewise, tenant out of possession has no right to recover rental value for occupancy or use of property by tenant in possession when there is neither an ouster or exclusion of one tenant by other nor an agreement between cotenants that tenant in possession of premises act as a receiver or bailiff for rents and profits of all cotenants. Teixeira v. Verissimo (1966) 239 Cal. App. 2d 147, 155, 48 Cal. Rptr. 496

Amount expended by one cotenant in possession to protect or preserve property offset by reasonable value of that cotenant's occupancy in partition action between cotenants. Hunter v. Schultz (1966) 240 Cal. App. 2d 24, 31-32, 49 Cal. Rptr. 315

Cotenant receiving rents from third persons for use of cotenancy lands is accountable to his or her cotenants for their share. Dabney-Johnston Oil Corp. v. Walden (1935) 4 Cal. 2d 637, 656, 52 P.2d 237

[c] Cotenants in Oil and Mineral Rights

Any of several cotenants is entitled to explore for oil and minerals; if successful exploration, cotenant is prohibited from excluding other cotenants who desire to drill; and, as to other cotenants, exploring cotenant is required to render accounting for profits. Gerhard v. Stephens (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 864, 894, 69 Cal. Rptr. 612, 442 P.2d 692

No waste when one cotenant produces oil or minerals on cotenancy property; producing cotenant is required to account to other cotenants for their percentages of material produced. Dabney-Johnston Oil Corp. v. Walden (1935) 4 Cal. 2d 637, 655-656, 52 P.2d 237

[14] Termination of Cotenancy by Partition

[a] Effect of Partition

In a partition, no change of title occurs between tenants in common like there does in a grant deed, but rather a dividing up of what parties already own occurs; after partition, each tenant in common has exact same proportional interest in property that he or she had previously, only difference being that now interest is in severalty while previously it was in common. Rancho Santa Margarita v. Vail (1938) 11 Cal. 2d 501, 539, 81 P.2d 533

Once trial court in partition action determines that true joint tenancy exists, order for reimbursement or contribution on account of differences in amounts each party has paid towards property's acquisition is improper, unless agreement for reimbursement exists. Milian v. De Leon (1986) 181 Cal. App. 3d 1185, 1195, 226 Cal. Rptr. 831

Fact that real property is held in joint tenancy does not compel equal division of proceeds on sale following partition action; by seeking partition and accounting, joint tenant puts in issue interest of each party to real property in question. Kershman v. Kershman (1961) 192 Cal. App. 2d 23, 26, 13 Cal. Rptr. 290

[b] Of Joint Tenancy

Severance or attempted severance of joint tenancy is required before death of one joint tenant and before other joint tenant, as a result, becomes owner of whole by virtue of his or her right of survivorship. Green v. Skinner (1921) 185 Cal. 435, 438, 197 P. 60

[c] Only Cotenants May Bring Action

Only cotenants are capable of bringing actions for partition; cotenancy gives right to partition; when several persons own thing without being cotenants thereof, no partition is available. Akagi v. Ishioka (1975) 47 Cal. App. 3d 426, 431, 120 Cal. Rptr. 807

[d] Right to Demand Partition

[i] Absolute Right

Joint tenant or tenant in common possesses absolute right to have his or her interests severed from those of his or her cotenant. Lazzarevich v. Lazzarevich (1952) 39 Cal. 2d 48, 50, 244 P.2d 1 ; De Roulet v. Mitchel (1945) 70 Cal. App. 2d 120, 123, 160 P.2d 574

Absent action for partition, cotenant has no right to force another cotenant to change boundaries of possessory interest; probate court therefore lacked jurisdiction to order individual who was cotenant with trust estate and also beneficiary of trust to execute documents for lot line adjustment. Dabney v. Dabney (2002) 104 Cal. App. 4th 379, 383, 127 Cal. Rptr. 2d 917

Cotenant demanding partition is not required to specify any reasons for demand; only indispensable requirement is a showing of clear title; partition must not be denied for reason that severance will result in financial loss to cotenants. De Roulet v. Mitchel (1945) 70 Cal. App. 2d 120, 124, 160 P.2d 574

[ii] Modification or Waiver by Contract

Right to partition is capable of being waived by express or implied contract. Penasquitos, Inc. v. Holladay (1972) 27 Cal. App. 3d 356, 358, 103 Cal. Rptr. 717

Absolute right of cotenant to demand partition of cotenancy premises is capable of being modified or waived by contract. Schwartz v. Shapiro (1964) 229 Cal. App. 2d 238, 253, 40 Cal. Rptr. 189

When property is taken in joint tenancy and there is an agreement between cotenants that one holds a life estate with remainder over to other cotenant, right to partition is defeated by variance from ordinary incidents of cotenancy. Rowland v. Clark (1949) 91 Cal. App. 2d 880, 882, 206 P.2d 59

Waiver of right to partition is found when cotenants entered into contracts leasing cotenancy property and when reason for which tenants acquired their term of years would be frustrated by partition. Pine v. Tiedt (1965) 232 Cal. App. 2d 733, 739-740, 43 Cal. Rptr. 184

Partition is not available without consent of other cotenant when it would conflict with previous agreement of parties to use of property; under these circumstances, cotenant seeking partition is estopped to assert or has waived right to partition. Heber v. Yaeger (1967) 251 Cal. App. 2d 258, 262-263, 59 Cal. Rptr. 353

[15] Termination of Joint Tenancy

[a] Acts Constituting Termination

Joint tenancy is severed by voluntary conveyance by tenant to stranger or to his or her cotenant, by judgment in partition, or by execution sale; joint tenancy is terminated when one joint tenant transfers his or her entire interest in estate to trustee for use and benefit of grantor. Hammond v. McArthur (1947) 30 Cal. 2d 512, 514-515, 183 P.2d 1 ; Clark v. Carter (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 291, 294, 70 Cal. Rptr. 923

Plain language of Civ. Code § 683.2(d)(3) sets forth exception to requirement in Civ. Code § 683.2(c) that deed be recorded prior to severing joint tenant's death; thus, execution of deeds to each other by two of three joint tenants, one of whom died before deeds were recorded, resulted in severance of joint tenancy. Re v. Re (1995) 39 Cal. App. 4th 91, 98-99, 46 Cal. Rptr. 2d 62

Execution levy on one joint tenancy interest does not sever joint tenancy when joint tenant dies before execution sale. Grothe v. Cortlandt Corp. (1992) 11 Cal. App. 4th 1313, 1316-1324, 15 Cal. Rptr. 2d 38

Stipulated court order that joint tenancy property be divided and sold severs joint tenancy. Estate of Seibert (1990) 226 Cal. App. 3d 338, 341-342, 276 Cal. Rptr. 508

One joint tenant's execution of quitclaim deed to another, to defraud creditor, is effective in severing joint tenancy and creating tenancy in common even though deed is later declared void with respect to creditor. Estate of Baumann (1988) 201 Cal. App. 3d 927, 936-937, 247 Cal. Rptr. 532

In addition to methods of severance authorized by Civ. Code § 683.2, agreement between joint tenants to dispense with right of survivorship terminates joint tenancy relationship. Estate of Blair (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 161, 168-169, 244 Cal. Rptr. 627

Agreement between joint tenants that is inconsistent by its terms with one or more of four essential unities of joint tenancy is considered severance, even though agreement does not expressly terminate joint tenancy. Estate of Blair (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 161, 169, 244 Cal. Rptr. 627

Cotenant's transfer of property by forging other cotenant's signature to deed affects severance of joint tenancy and transfer of only forger's interest in property. Handy v. Shiells (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 512, 517-518, 235 Cal. Rptr. 543

Joint tenant's grant of his or her separate property subject to reservation of life estate severs joint tenancy; as a result, at severing joint tenant's death, his or her grantees take half interest in property conveyed as tenants in common with former joint tenant who survived grantor. Mecchi v. Picchi (1966) 245 Cal. App. 2d 470, 487, 54 Cal. Rptr. 1

[b] Acts Not Constituting Termination

[i] Examples in General

Following acts do not terminate joint tenancy: execution of mortgage by joint tenant; execution of trust deed by joint tenant; execution of lease by one joint tenant to another; judgment lien against interest of one joint tenant; or giving right of possession to one joint tenant during lifetime of other. County of Fresno v. Kahn (1962) 207 Cal. App. 2d 213, 217, 24 Cal. Rptr. 394

Mere withdrawal of one-half of amount in joint tenancy account by one of joint tenants does not destroy joint tenancy when withdrawing joint tenant makes no attempt to destroy joint tenancy holding prior to death of nonwithdrawing joint tenant. Cordasco v. Scalero (1962) 203 Cal. App. 2d 95, 108, 21 Cal. Rptr. 339 , disapproved on other grounds, Estate of Propst (1990) 50 Cal. 3d 448, 461-462, 268 Cal. Rptr. 114, 788 P.2d 628

Filing of partition action to terminate joint tenancy is insufficient to terminate relationship if filing joint tenant dies before granting of judgment. Clark v. Carter (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 291, 295, 70 Cal. Rptr. 923

[ii] Fraud

Joint tenancy unities are not destroyed when one of joint tenants is fraudulently induced to convey his or her interest in joint tenancy property to other joint tenant; status of title remains in joint tenancy. Estate of Casella (1967) 256 Cal. App. 2d 312, 323, 64 Cal. Rptr. 259

[c] Consent of Joint Tenants Not Required

Joint tenant is able to dispose of his or her interest without consent of other joint tenant. Wilk v. Vencill (1947) 30 Cal. 2d 104, 108-109, 180 P.2d 351

Neither notification of other joint tenant nor recordation of deed terminating joint tenancy is required to make transmutation from joint tenancy to tenancy in common legally effective. Burke v. Stevens (1968) 264 Cal. App. 2d 30, 35, 70 Cal. Rptr. 87

[d] Effect of Termination by Death

[i] Interest Passes by Survivorship

Cause of action for damage to property passes to surviving joint tenant and is not part of decedent's estate. Ferk v. County of Lake (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 268, 274-276, 252 Cal. Rptr. 196

On death of joint tenant, surviving joint tenant is sole owner of entirety, not by descent, but by survivorship and by virtue of original grant creating tenancy. King v. King (1951) 107 Cal. App. 2d 257, 259, 236 P.2d 912

No interest in joint tenancy property passes to heirs, devisees, or personal representatives of joint tenant first to die. Santoro v. Carbone (1972) 22 Cal. App. 3d 721, 729, 99 Cal. Rptr. 488 ; Clark v. Carter (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 291, 294, 70 Cal. Rptr. 923

Mortgage executed by one joint tenant is lien or charge on that joint tenant's interest only and does not sever joint tenancy estate; when joint tenant so encumbering his or her interest dies, his or her interest in property ceases to exist and surviving joint tenant takes property free of lien. People v. Nogarr (1958) 164 Cal. App. 2d 591, 594, 330 P.2d 858

Title of surviving joint tenant is not subject to trust deed executed by other joint tenant without surviving joint tenant's knowledge or consent. Hamel v. Gootkin (1962) 202 Cal. App. 2d 27, 30, 20 Cal. Rptr. 372

[ii] Exception: Murder of Cotenant

When there is murder-suicide of joint tenants, equitable policy of treating joint tenancy property as if there had been a simultaneous death adopted; slayer's act terminates joint tenancy as to both parties, and property devolves to estates of deceased joint tenants according to their respective interests. Johansen v. Pelton (1970) 8 Cal. App. 3d 625, 632-633, 87 Cal. Rptr. 784

[e] Intent as Factor

Intent of joint tenants is important factor in determining whether their acts in dealing with property terminate joint tenancy. County of Fresno v. Kahn (1962) 207 Cal. App. 2d 213, 216, 24 Cal. Rptr. 394 (contract of sale of real property); but see Estate of Propst (1990) 50 Cal. 3d 448, 461-462, 268 Cal. Rptr. 114, 788 P.2d 628 (rule applicable to severance of joint tenancy in personal property)

[f] Interference With Survivorship

[i] Agreement; Effect

Agreement to dispense with right of survivorship terminates joint tenancy. Estate of Blair (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 161, 169, 244 Cal. Rptr. 627

Any interference with right of survivorship by terms of agreement between joint tenants severs joint tenancy relationship. Rich v. Silver (1964) 226 Cal. App. 2d 60, 64, 37 Cal. Rptr. 749 ; California Trust Co. v. Anderson (1949) 91 Cal. App. 2d 832, 836, 205 P.2d 1127

Creation of tenancy in common when survivorship feature of joint tenancy is destroyed. Davis v. Davis (1963) 222 Cal. App. 2d 691, 693, 35 Cal. Rptr. 281

[ii] Agreement or Course of Dealing

Joint tenancy is terminated either by mutual agreement between parties or by any conduct or course of dealing sufficient to indicate that all parties have mutually treated joint tenancy as terminated. Smith v. Morton (1972) 29 Cal. App. 3d 616, 621, 106 Cal. Rptr. 52

Survivorship feature of joint tenancy is destroyed by stipulation in property settlement agreement between divorced spouses. Rich v. Silver (1964) 226 Cal. App. 2d 60, 65-66, 37 Cal. Rptr. 749

[16] Tortious Acts Not Imputed to Other Cotenants

Real property cotenant is not liable for tort of his or her cotenant unless he or she actively participates in it directly or through agent or unless he or she ratifies tortious acts. Daly v. Smith (1963) 220 Cal. App. 2d 592, 604, 33 Cal. Rptr. 920

Plaintiff,

_____ [name,] [and DOES I through _____,] Defendant(s).

Plaintiff alleges:

1. Defendant _____ [name] is, and at all times mentioned in this complaint was, a resident of _____ County, California [or allege other capacity and residence].

[2. Plaintiff is ignorant of the true names and capacities of defendants sued as DOES I-_____, inclusive, and therefore sues these defendants by fictitious names. Plaintiff will amend this complaint to allege their true names and capacities when ascertained.]

3. _____ [Name of decedent] died on _____ [date], at _____ [city], California and at the time of his/her death was a resident of _____ County, California. Thereafter, on _____ [date], an order was made appointing plaintiff _____ [executor or administrator (with the will annexed)] of the estate of _____ [name of decedent]; letters _____ [testamentary or of administration] were issued to plaintiff on _____ [date]. Since that date plaintiff has acted, and is now acting, as _____ [executor or administrator] of the estate.

4. At the time of decedent's death on _____ [date], _____ [specify personal property, e.g., bank account number _____, at _____ Bank, hereinafter "bank account"] was purportedly held in joint tenancy by decedent and defendant _____ [name]. Defendant claims title to _____ [specify personal property, e.g., the bank account] as a surviving joint tenant.

5. _____ [Set out essential facts giving rise to adverse contentions of parties, e.g., On or about _____ [date], decedent, while terminally ill and confined in a hospital from which he was never released, signed a signature card, which defendant also signed, furnished by _____ Bank. A copy of this signature card is attached to this complaint as Exhibit A and made a part of this complaint. After the signing of the card, defendant from time to time withdrew various sums from the account for his/her own use and, on decedent's death, defendant withdrew the entire balance for his/her own use.]

6. An actual controversy has arisen and now exists between plaintiff and defendant concerning their respective rights and duties. Plaintiff contends _____ [set forth plaintiff's contentions, e.g., that (1) decedent did not understand the nature of a joint tenancy account and did not intend the bank account to become the property of the surviving joint tenant, (2) creation of the bank account was induced by the fraud, undue influence, and duress of defendant, (3) the bank account was created pursuant to defendant's representations that defendant, acting as decedent's agent, would use the money in the bank account solely to pay decedent's bills and other financial obligations and for no other purpose while decedent was confined in the hospital, and defendant was to have no other interest, right, or title in or to the account, (4) all funds withdrawn from the account in violation of the above representations by defendant for his/her own use are held by defendant as trustee for the benefit of decedent's estate, and (5) defendant is legally obligated to pay over these funds to the plaintiff]. Defendant disputes these contentions and contends _____ [specify, e.g., that (1) the agreement between decedent and the bank created a joint tenancy of the bank account between decedent and defendant, (2) decedent intended that title to the money in the bank account was to immediately vest in defendant, (3) either decedent or defendant could, while both of them lived, withdraw sums from the bank account each for his/her own use, (4) any balance remaining in the bank account on the death of either of them was to be paid to the survivor, and (5) defendant, having survived decedent, was and is entitled to the entire balance in the bank account].

7. Plaintiff desires a judicial determination of his/her rights and duties, and a declaration as to _____ [set forth specific determination sought, e.g., whether the written agreement between decedent and the bank created a true joint tenancy vesting in defendant title to the money in the bank account with the right of survivorship or whether decedent was induced to create the joint tenancy bank account by the fraud, undue influence, and duress of defendant and solely on defendant's representations that he/she would use the money to pay decedent's bills and other financial obligations and for no other purpose].

8. A declaration of rights and duties with respect to _____ [specify personal property, e.g., the bank account] is necessary and appropriate at this time so that the parties may ascertain their respective rights and duties. [In addition, allege any financial or other burden caused to plaintiff by the unsettled state of affairs with respect to the property in question.]

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment as follows:

1. For a declaration _____ [state the determination court is requested to render, e.g., that decedent at no time intended to transfer all or any part of the funds in the bank account to defendant for his/her own use, that decedent was induced to create the joint bank account by fraud, undue influence, and duress, and on defendant's representations as alleged in this complaint, and that defendant has no interest, right, or title in or to the bank account other than to the extent that funds in the account were withdrawn during decedent's lifetime by defendant and used for the payment during decedent's lifetime of decedent's bills and other financial obligations];

[2. That defendant render an accounting of all sums withdrawn by him/her from the bank account and the purpose and disposition of each withdrawal;]

[3. That defendant be declared a constructive trustee of all sums withdrawn from the account for his/her personal use or for any use other than for paying the bills and other financial obligations of the decedent;]

[4. That defendant be ordered to pay over to plaintiff all sums of which he/she is declared a constructive trustee, together with interest at the legal rate from the date each such sum was withdrawn from the bank account;]

5. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

6. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

This form is a complaint for use to secure a declaration of rights under an instrument creating a joint tenancy in personal property originally belonging to one of the two joint tenants if the plaintiff contends that no true joint tenancy was created. For example, this form may be used if execution of the instrument creating the joint tenancy was secured by the fraud or undue influence of the defendant or if a joint tenancy was created in form only, subject to a collateral agreement between the parties negating the existence of a true joint tenancy. A joint account is one that is payable on request to one or more of two or more parties, whether or not mention is made of any right of survivorship [Prob. Code § 5130; see Stats. 1989, ch. 397, § 41 (applicable to accounts in existence on or created after July 1, 1990)]. An account expressly described as a tenancy in common has no right of survivorship, unless the terms of account or deposit agreement expressly provide for survivorship [see Prob. Code § 5306; § 316.15[7][c]].

With appropriate modifications, this form may also be used to secure a declaration of the rights of the parties under a written instrument purporting to create a joint tenancy in real property [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1060].

[3] Allegations

This complaint alleges (1) facts showing the existence of an actual controversy relating to the legal rights and duties of the respective parties under a written instrument (Paragraph 6), and (2) a request that these rights and duties be adjudged (Paragraph 7) [see Strozier v. Williams (1960) 187 Cal. App. 2d 528, 531, 9 Cal. Rptr. 683] .

To protect personal privacy and other legitimate interests, parties and their attorneys must not include financial account numbers, or must redact such numbers where inclusion is necessary, in all pleadings and other papers filed in the court's public file, whether filed in paper or electronic form, unless otherwise provided by law or ordered by the court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1.20(b)].

[4] Alternative Theories of Liability

In this form the plaintiff, as the personal representative of a deceased joint tenant, seeks (1) a declaration that no true joint tenancy was established, that the decedent was induced to create the joint bank account by the fraud, undue influence, duress, and false representations of the defendant, and that defendant is a constructive trustee of the sums withdrawn by him or her from the joint tenancy account for his or her own use, and (2) an order requiring defendant to pay over these sums to plaintiff.

In the fact situation illustrated by this form, counsel may wish to set forth a separate cause of action expressly seeking to impress a constructive trust on the sums withdrawn either in addition to, or in lieu of, the action for declaratory relief [see, e.g., Estate of Aiello (1980) 106 Cal. App. 3d 669, 165 Cal. Rptr. 207 (judgment for plaintiff impressing constructive trust on money withdrawn by defendant from joint tenancy savings account and ordering defendant to transfer this sum to estate affirmed in proceeding pursuant to former Prob. Code § 851.5 (now see Prob. Code §§ 9860-9865) by administratrix on behalf of named beneficiaries to determine ownership of money held in joint tenancy savings account); Casa Colina Convalescent Home v. Wiest (1963) 214 Cal. App. 2d 161, 29 Cal. Rptr. 407 (judgment for defendant affirmed in action to impress constructive trust on bank accounts held in joint tenancy)]. For forms for use in an action to impress a constructive trust, see Ch. 561, Trusts: Constructive Trusts .

If there are any funds remaining in the account, counsel may wish to join the bank as a party defendant and seek a preliminary injunction enjoining the bank's payment of the balance to defendant pending determination of the litigation. For forms for use to secure temporary injunctive relief, see Ch. 303, Injunctions . Counsel may wish to give written notice to the financial institution not to honor withdrawals without the signature of his or her client [see Prob. Code § 5405(c) (discussed in § 316.15[10]); see also Prob. Code § 5405(b) (court order restraining payments by financial institution, discussed in Ch. 95, Banks, Deposits, and Checks)].

[5] Verification

Although verification of this complaint is not required [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(a)], verification will require any answer to be verified in an unlimited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446]. Verification will also preclude the defendant from using a general denial in an unlimited civil case, and will preclude a general denial in a limited civil case if the action is a claim assigned to a third party for collection [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion, see Ch. 26, Answers .

[6] Jurisdiction and Venue

An action for declaratory relief is within the jurisdiction of the superior court and is not a limited civil case [Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. § 1060; see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(7), 580(b)(4); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 580(b)(3) (court in limited civil case is not authorized to determine title to real property)]. When title or right to possession is to be tried, or permanent injunctive relief is sought, the case will be classified as an unlimited civil case [see Code Civ. Proc. § 88].

The superior court in the county where the subject real property, or some part of it, is situated is the proper court for the trial of an action for the determination of a right or interest in real property [Code Civ. Proc. § 392(a)(1)].

Defendant disputes these contentions and contends _____ [set forth defendant's contentions, e.g., that decedent intended and did create a present and existing joint tenancy relationship between himself/herself and defendant].

[2] Use of Form

This form's allegations are for use in a complaint for declaratory relief by the personal representative of a decedent who attempted to make a testamentary disposition by means of a purported joint tenancy instrument that did not comply with the requirements for execution of wills [see, e.g., Prob. Code §§ 6110-6113; Estate of Franco (1975) 50 Cal. App. 3d 374, 381, 123 Cal. Rptr. 458] . Note, however, that since July 1, 1984, a testamentary disposition may be made by placing the funds in a deposit account subject to the Multiple-Party Accounts Law (Prob. Code §§ 5100-5407) [see Prob. Code § 5304 (discussed in § 316.15[2])].

These allegations can be substituted for Paragraphs 5 and 6 in § 316.70[1]. These allegations may be modified, if appropriate, for use in an action for declaratory relief with respect to real property [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1060].

1. _____ [Set out essential facts of the transaction giving rise to the adverse contentions of the parties, e.g., On or about _____ (date), while defendant was living in decedent's household, defendant induced decedent to sign an agreement with _____ Bank changing decedent's bank account from one in decedent's sole name to one in which decedent and defendant were purportedly joint tenants. 2. An actual controversy has arisen and now exists between plaintiff and defendant concerning their respective rights and duties. Plaintiff contends _____ [set forth plaintiff's contentions as to legal consequences resulting from facts alleged in preceding paragraph, e.g., that as a result of decedent's age, senility, and illness, decedent was unable to form an intention to create a joint tenancy with defendant and that the purported joint tenancy was a result of defendant's moral coercion on decedent that overcame decedent's free agency]. Defendant disputes these contentions and contends _____ [set forth defendant's contentions, e.g., that decedent fully intended to and did create a joint tenancy relationship between himself/herself and defendant with the understanding that defendant would take the proceeds of the account as a surviving joint tenant in the event of decedent's death].

[2] Use of Form

This form contains allegations for use in a complaint for declaratory relief by the personal representative of a decedent if the decedent created a joint tenancy between himself or herself and another person, and the other person exercised undue influence as inducement for creation of the joint tenancy. These allegations may be substituted for Paragraphs 5 and 6 in § 316.70[1]. § 316.73 Demand for Concurrent Possession [Civ. Code § 843]

[1] FORM Demand for Concurrent Possession [Civ. Code § 843]

DEMAND FOR CONCURRENT POSSESSION

I, _____ [name of coowner out of possession], hereby demand that you, _____ [name of owner in possession], provide me with unconditional concurrent possession of the following property that we own concurrently: _____ [address and/or legal description of property].

This demand is made pursuant to Civil Code Section 843. You must meet this demand within 60 days from the date that it is served on you, or your ouster of me from the property will be established.
Dated: _____.

_____ [Name of person

making demand]

[2] Use of Form

This form is for use by a coowner to gain concurrent possession of or to establish an ouster from jointly owned real property [Civ. Code § 843(b)]. Civ. Code § 843 supplements and does not limit any other means by which an ouster may be established [Civ. Code § 843(a)].

[3] Required Contents

The demand must be in writing and make specific reference to Civ. Code § 843 and to the time within which concurrent posession must be offered [Civ. Code § 843(b)]. Because this form is not a pleading, it does not have to meet pleading requirements and may be prepared on ordinary stationery.

[4] Service

Service of the written demand must be made in the same manner as service of summons in a civil action [Civ. Code § 843(b)]. For a discussion and forms relating to service of summons, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers .

[5] Effect of Failure to Yield Possession Pursuant to Demand

A claim for damages for an ouster established by this notice may be asserted by an independent action or in an action for possession or partition of the property or another appropriate action or proceeding, subject to the applicable statute of limitations [Civ. Code § 843(c)]. This right to establish an ouster by service of notice does not preclude the cotenants, at any time before or after a demand is served, from seeking partition of the property or from making an agreement as to the right of possession among the cotenants, the payment of reasonable rental value in lieu of possession, or any other terms that may be appropriate [Civ. Code § 843(d)].

[6] When Demand Is Not Proper

The right to make a demand under Civ. Code § 843 does not apply to the extent the tenant out of possession is not entitled to possession or an alternative remedy is provided under the terms of an agreement between the cotenants or the instrument creating the cotenancy or another written instrument that indicates the possessory rights or remedies of the cotenants [Civ. Code § 843(a)].

[7] State Statutes

Right of concurrent owner to demand concurrent possession of jointly owned real property and to establish ouster if demand is not met. Civ. Code § 843

[2] Use of Form

This form is a complaint for use in a quiet title action brought by a cotenant out of possession against a cotenant in possession who claims title to real property adversely to the cotenant out of possession.

CAUTION:

This form does not contain any allegations regarding fictitious defendants [Code Civ. Proc. § 474; see § 316.74[5]], nor any allegations regarding unknown defendants [Code Civ. Proc. § 762.020(a)], defendants who are personal representatives [Code Civ. Proc. § 762.030(a)], heirs, intestate or testate successors [Code Civ. Proc. § 762.030(b)], or for unknown, uncertain, or contingent claims [Code Civ. Proc. § 762.020(b)], on the assumption that a cotentant in the fact situation used as the basisof this form would know all his or her cotenants and that the additional expense and complication of an "all persons" quiet title action would thus not be warranted [see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. §§ 762.040(b), 762.060(b)]. If any of these assumptions do not apply to your particular situation, modify the caption and include additional allegations as appropriate from Ch. 482, Quieting Title .

[3] Required Allegations

By statute, a quiet title complaint must include all of the following allegations [Code Civ. Proc. § 761.020]:

- A description of the property that is the subject of the action (Paragraph 1). In the case of tangible personal property, the description must include its usual location. In the case of real property, the description must include both its legal description and its street address or common designation, if any.

- The title of the plaintiff as to which a determination is sought and the basis of the title (Paragraphs 1, 2).

- The adverse claims to the title of the plaintiff against which a determination is sought (Paragraphs 4, 5). If the plaintiff admits the validity of any adverse claim, the complaint must so state [Code Civ. Proc. § 762.060(c)]. If the claim or the share or quantity of the claim of a person required to be named as a defendant is unknown, uncertain, or contingent, the plaintiff must so state in the complaint. If the lack of knowledge, uncertainty, or contingency is caused by a transfer to an unborn or unascertained person or class member, or by a transfer in the form of a contingent remainder, vested remainder subject to defeasance, executory interest, or similar disposition, the plaintiff must also state in the complaint, so far as is known to the plaintiff, the name, age, and legal disability, if any, of the person in being who would be entitled to the claim had the contingency on which the claim depends occurred prior to the commencement of the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 762.020(b)].

- The date as of which the determination is sought (Paragraph 6). If the determination is sought as of a date other than the date the complaint is filed, the complaint must include a statement of the reasons why a determination as of that date is sought.

- A prayer for the determination of the title of the plaintiff against the adverse claims.

To recover real property, or possession of real property, a plaintiff must allege and prove that he or she, or his or her ancestor, predecessor, or grantor, was seised or possessed of the property in question within five years before the commencement of the action (Paragraph 3) [Code Civ. Proc. § 318; see Civ. Code § 689 (owner of present interest in real property is entitled to immediate possession)]. Nevertheless, the requirement of seisin under Code Civ. Proc. § 318 is met if plaintiff had record title even though the defendant may have been in actual possession [Tobin v. Stevens (1988) 204 Cal. App. 3d 945, 949-951, 251 Cal. Rptr. 587 ; Schoenfeld v. Pritzker (1967) 257 Cal. App. 2d 117, 121, 64 Cal. Rptr. 592] . Thus, in many cases, the allegation will not be necessary.

[4] Who Must Be Made Defendants

The plaintiff must name as defendants the persons having adverse claims to the title of the plaintiff against which a determination is sought [Code Civ. Proc. § 762.010]. If the name of a person required to be named as a defendant is not known to plaintiff, the plaintiff must state this in the complaint and must name as parties all persons unknown in the manner described in § 316.74[5] [Code Civ. Proc. § 762.020(a)].

The court on its own motion may, and on motion of any party must, make such orders as appear appropriate for joinder of such additional parties as are necessary or proper [Code Civ. Proc. § 762.040(a)].

If a person required to be named as a defendant is dead and the plaintiff knows of a personal representative, the plaintiff must join the personal representative [Code Civ. Proc. § 762.030(a)]. If a person required to be named as a defendant is dead, or is believed by the plaintiff to be dead, and the plaintiff knows of no personal representative, the plaintiff must state these facts in an affidavit filed with the complaint. When it is stated in the affidavit that the person is dead, the plaintiff may join as defendants "the testate and intestate successors of _____ (name of deceased person), deceased, and all persons claiming by, through, or under such decedent," naming them in that manner [Code Civ. Proc. § 762.030(b)(2); see also Ch. 15, Affidavits, Certificates, and Declarations , for general forms of affidavits or declarations under penalty of perjury].

If a person required to be named as a defendant is believed by plaintiff to be deceased, the person believed to be deceased may be named as a defendant as may that person's successors. The successors must be denominated as follows: "the testate and intestate successors of _____ (name of person believed to be deceased), believed to be deceased, and all persons claiming by, through, or under such person" [Code Civ. Proc. § 762.030(b)(3)].

[5] Unknown Defendants

In addition to the persons required to be named as defendants in the action, the plaintiff may name as defendants "all persons unknown, claiming any legal or equitable right, title, estate, lien or interest in the property described in the complaint adverse to plaintiff's title, or any cloud upon plaintiff's title thereto," naming them in that manner [Code Civ. Proc. § 762.060(a)]. If unknown defendants are named, the plaintiff must nameas defendants the persons having adverse claims that are of record or known to the plaintiff or reasonably apparent from an inspection of the property [Code Civ. Proc. § 762.060(b)]. Naming unknown defendants and serving them by publication [see § 316.74[8]] will entitle the plaintiff to an in rem judgment against the whole world [Code Civ. Proc. § 764.030], except that a person who is in open and actual possession of the property cannot be named as an unknown defendant [Code Civ. Proc. § 763.010(c)].

The plaintiff may also name unknown defendants as DOES pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 474 [see Code Civ. Proc. § 760.060 (rules governing civil actions generally as applicable in quiet title actions unless they are inconsistent with quiet title provisions)].

[6] Verification

The complaint must be verified [Code Civ. Proc. § 761.020].

[7] Jurisdiction and Venue

The superior court has jurisdiction over a quiet title action [Code Civ. Proc. § 760.040(a)]; the action is not a limited civil action [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86, 580(b)(3)]. Subject to the power of the court to transfer actions, the proper county for the trial of an action to quiet title to real property is the county in which the property, or some of it, is located [Code Civ. Proc. § 760.050(a)].

[8] Service of Summons

The form, content, and manner of the service of summons in a quiet title action is the same as in civil actions generally [Code Civ. Proc. § 763.010(a)]. If unknown defendants are named, there must also be service by publication and posting [Code Civ. Proc. § 763.010(b)]. The requirements for service by publication and posting are discussed in Ch. 482, Quieting Title . The procedure for service of summons is set forth in Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers .

[9] Lis Pendens

Immediately on the commencement of a quiet title action by filing the complaint, the plaintiff must file a lis pendens in the office of the county recorder of each county in which any real property described in the complaint is located [Code Civ. Proc. § 761.010(b)]. The lis pendens gives constructive notice of the pendency of the action to subsequent purchasers or encumbrancers [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.24]. For forms of lis pendens, see Ch. 348, Lis Pendens .

[10] State Statutes

Sufficiency of occupancy without prescription in satisfying quiet title requirements. Civ. Code § 1006

Full period adverse possession or prescription. Civ. Code § 1007

Five years is period of limitation to bar action against adverse possessor. Code Civ. Proc. § 322

Procedure for and effect of quiet title action. Code Civ. Proc. § 760.010 et seq.

[11] Decisions

Possession by one cotenant is deemed possession by all; each assumes that another in exclusive possession is possessing for all and not adversely to others. Dimmick v. Dimmick (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 417, 422, 24 Cal. Rptr. 856, 374 P.2d 824

Quieting title is relief granted once court determines that title belongs in plaintiff. Leeper v. Beltrami (1959) 53 Cal. 2d 195, 216, 1 Cal. Rptr. 12, 347 P.2d 12 (when contract of purchase exists between plaintiff and defendant, something must be found wrong with contract before quiet title action can be brought by plaintiff seller)

Contract between joint tenants concerning exclusive possession of property is not incompatible with the existence of a joint tenancy. Hammond v. McArthur (1947) 30 Cal. 2d 512, 516, 183 P.2d 1 ; Taylor v. Taylor (1961) 197 Cal. App. 2d 781, 787, 17 Cal. Rptr. 512

Each cotenant is equally entitled to share in possession of entire property; neither is capable of excluding the other from any part of it. Zaslow v. Kroenert (1946) 29 Cal. 2d 541, 548, 176 P.2d 1

No cotenant is entitled to a possession or usage that excludes for any period of time a like possession or usage by his or her cotenants. Krum v. Malloy (1943) 22 Cal. 2d 132, 135, 137 P.2d 18

[2] Use of Form

This form of complaint is for use in an action for contribution [see Civ. Code § 1432] brought by one cotenant against another cotenant for pro rata reimbursement for property taxes paid by the former to preserve the cotenancy estate.

[3] Allegations

This complaint alleges:

[2] Use of Form

This complaint is for use in an action for treble damages for waste and for a permanent injunction to prevent waste on the cotenancy property.

[3] Allegations

The complaint alleges the following:

- The cotenancy interest of plaintiff and defendant (Paragraph 1).
- Defendant's exclusive possession of the cotenancy property (Paragraph 2).
- The acts of defendant that constitute waste (Paragraph 4).
- The amount of depreciation of the market value of the cotenancy property as a result of defendant's acts (Paragraph 6) [see Civ. Code § 3422; see also Sallee v. Daneri (1942) 49 Cal. App. 2d 324, 327, 121 P.2d 781] .
- The fact that defendant acted willfully and maliciously, which thus entitles plaintiff to treble damages (Paragraph 7) [see Kanner v. Globe Bottling Co. (1969) 273 Cal. App. 2d 559, 568, 78 Cal. Rptr. 25] .
- The fact that the defendant will continue to commit this waste unless enjoined (Paragraphs 4, 5) [see Civ. Code § 3422].

[4] Verification

Although verification of this complaint is not required [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(a)], verification will require any answer to be verified in an unlimited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446]. Verification will also preclude the defendant from using a general denial in an unlimited civil case, and will preclude a general denial in a limited civil case if the action is a claim assigned to a third party for collection [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion, see Ch. 26, Answers .

[5] Jurisdiction and Venue

An action seeking permanent injunctive relief is in the jurisdiction of the superior court and is not a limited civil case [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(8), 580(b)(3)]. When title or right to possession is to be tried, or permanent injunctive relief is sought, the case will be classified as an unlimited civil case [see Code Civ. Proc. § 88].

The superior court in the county where the subject real property, or some part of it, is situated is the proper court for the trial of an action for the determination of a right or interest in real property [Code Civ. Proc. § 392(a)(1)].

[6] State Statutes

Grounds for issuance of permanent injunction. Civ. Code § 3422

Treble damages for waste. Code Civ. Proc. § 732

[7] Decisions

Cotenant is without authority to contract for the cutting and removal of timber from the common property, especially when there exists the potential for improper cutting that could seriously impair the value of the land. Jay v. Dollarhide (1970) 3 Cal. App. 3d 1001, 1032, 84 Cal. Rptr. 538

Rights of nonconsenting cotenant must be protected in logging operation. Garibaldi v. Garibaldi (1968) 264 Cal. App. 2d 9, 15, 70 Cal. Rptr. 92

Nonconsenting cotenant is entitled to seek injunction to prevent waste when one cotenant contracts with third party to cut and remove timber from cotenancy premises; enjoined third party is unable to seek damages for breach of contract from either cotenant. Garibaldi v. Garibaldi (1968) 264 Cal. App. 2d 9, 14-15, 70 Cal. Rptr. 92 ; Fuller v. Montafi (1921) 55 Cal. App. 314, 320, 203 P. 406

Each cotenant has right to attempt to realize monetary value of his or her individual ownership while not exceeding his or her fractional share of total; in addition, when question arises as to share taken by one cotenant, whole land ownership of all of cotenants is considered. Garibaldi v. Garibaldi (1968) 264 Cal. App. 2d 9, 15, 70 Cal. Rptr. 92 (action for waste brought by cotenants against cotenant contracting with third party for cutting and removal of timber from cotenancy property)

In assessing a cotenant's use of common property, court is able to look to environmental qualities of surrounding land to determine if use constitutes legitimate enjoyment of property. Scarborough v. Woodill (1907) 7 Cal. App. 39, 41-42, 93 P. 383

A. Court Commissioners

27-317 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 317.10

§ 317.10 Constitutional and Statutory Authorization

The California Constitution states that the Legislature may provide for the appointment by trial courts of record of officers such as commissioners to perform subordinate judicial duties [Cal. Const., art. VI, § 22; see also Rooney v. Vermont Investment Corp. (1973) 10 Cal. 3d 351, 362, 110 Cal. Rptr. 353, 515 P.2d 297 ; Branson v. Martin (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 300, 305, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 401] . Accordingly, the Legislature has provided that superior court judges may appoint a specified number of court commissioners, depending on the size of the counties in which they sit [see Gov. Code § 70141(a)]. Judges of the superior courts of two or more counties may appoint the same person as court commissioner [Gov. Code § 70143].

Appointment of a court commissioner is made by minute order [Gov. Code § 70144]. The official title is "court commissioner" of a particular county [Gov. Code § 70141(a)].

Appointment of additional commissioners to act as temporary judges in actions to enforce child support orders under Fam. Code §§ 4251 and 4253 is authorized by Gov. Code § 70141(e).

Salaries and travel expenses of superior court commissioners are prescribed in Gov. Code §§ 70141.4 et seq., and 70145-70148a. Because court commissioners are salaried judicial officials, they are prohibited from receiving fines or fees for their own use [Cal. Const., art. VI, § 17; Code Civ. Proc. § 259(e)].

Superior court commissioners hold office during the pleasure of the courts that appoint them, and both are forbidden to engage in the private practice of law [Gov. Code §§ 68082, 70142, 72190].

There are a number of other statutes that provide for similar officers who have narrower functions or more limited powers [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 195, 196 (jury commissioner); Fam. Code §§ 1814-1816 (counselor of conciliation)].

A. Court Commissioners

§ 317.11 Qualifications

A superior court commissioner must be a citizen of the United States, a resident of California, and, if required by the court for which he or she is to be a commissioner, must have been admitted to practice before the California Supreme Court for a specified period of time preceding his or her appointment [Gov. Code § 70142].

Chapter 317 JUDGES
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Court Commissioners

27-317 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 317.12

§ 317.12 Powers and Duties

[1] Generally

The powers and duties of court commissioners are defined by statute [see Code Civ. Proc. § 259, discussed in [2]-[11], below]. At the direction of the judges, commissioners may have the same jurisdiction and exercise the same powers and duties as the judges of the court with respect to any infraction or small claims action [Gov. Code § 72190; see Branson v. Martin (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 300, 305, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 401] . Not included within the statutory powers and duties is the power to punish for contempt [Marcus v. Workmen's Comp. Appeals Bd. (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 598, 603, 111 Cal. Rptr. 101] .

[2] Ex Parte Motions and Writs

A commissioner, subject to the court's supervision, has power to hear and determine ex parte motions for orders and alternative writs and writs of habeas corpus in the superior court for which the commissioner is appointed [Code Civ. Proc. § 259(a); see also Lewis v. Neblett (1961) 188 Cal. App. 2d 290, 296-297, 10 Cal. Rptr. 441 (commissioner empowered to issue order for judgment creditor to appear); Estate of Roberts (1942) 49 Cal. App. 2d 71, 77, 120 P.2d 933 (commissioner empowered to approve or reject probate claim)].

[3] To Take Proof and Report Findings

[a] Advisory Capacity

A commissioner, subject to the court's supervision, has power to take proof and make and report findings thereon as to any matter of fact on which information is required by the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 259(b); Gov. Code § 72190; see International Jet Ski Boating Assn., Inc. v. Superior Court (1991) 232 Cal. App. 3d 112, 115-116, 283 Cal. Rptr. 33 (under Code Civ. Proc. § 259(b) referral to commissioner is not appropriate to determine motion for summary judgment or summary adjudication without parties' stipulation because those motions involve only issues of law)].

The commissioner's findings are, however, advisory only [Ellsworth v. Ellsworth (1954) 42 Cal. 2d 719, 723, 269

P.2d 3 ; Crocker Citizens Nat. Bank v. Knapp (1967) 251 Cal. App. 2d 875, 881, 60 Cal. Rptr. 66] , and the court order remains interlocutory throughout the period for filing and hearing exceptions to the commissioner's report [Ellsworth v. Ellsworth (1954) 42 Cal. 2d 719, 724, 269 P.2d 3 ; Weinfeld v. Weinfeld (1958) 159 Cal. App. 2d 608, 614, 324 P.2d 342] .

[b] Exceptions to Report

Any party to a contested proceeding may except to the commissioner's report [see § 317.171 (form)] and the subsequent court order made on it within five days after written notice of the court's action [Code Civ. Proc. § 259(b); see also Goetz v. Superior Court (1958) 49 Cal. 2d 784, 787, 322 P.2d 217 ("written notice" requires service of copies of commissioner's recommendations and court order on opposing counsel by prevailing party's attorney of record to commence running of five-day period for filing of exceptions)]. A copy of the exceptions must be filed and served on the opposing party or the opposing party's counsel within the five days allowed for excepting. A party may then argue his or her exceptions before the court on giving notice of motion for that purpose within 10 days of entry of the order [see § 317.172 (notice of motion)]. After the hearing on the exceptions, the court may sustain, set aside, or modify its order theretofore made [Code Civ. Proc. § 259(b); see also Ellsworth v. Ellsworth (1954) 42 Cal. 2d 719, 724, 269 P.2d 3 ; Crocker Citizens Nat. Bank v. Knapp (1967) 251 Cal. App. 2d 875, 881, 60 Cal. Rptr. 66] . An order setting aside the original order approving the commissioner's finding is not appealable [see Ellsworth v. Ellsworth (1954) 42 Cal. 2d 719, 724, 269 P.2d 3 (appeal dismissed on motion)].

[c] Commissioner and Referee Compared

In certain instances the court may appoint a court commissioner of the court where the cause is pending as a referee [see Code Civ. Proc. § 640(b)]. When a court commissioner is appointed to act as a referee under Code Civ. Proc. § 638 or 639, his or her authority is derived from the order appointing him or her and not from the statute defining the duties and powers of a commissioner [Jackson v. Puget Sound Lumber Co. (1896) 123 Cal. 97, 101].

Thus, for example, in the case of a consensual general reference under Code Civ. Proc. § 638, the decision of the referee or commissioner on the whole issue must stand as the decision of the court, and on filing of the statement of decision with the clerk of the court, judgment may be entered thereon in the same manner as if the action had been tried by the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 644(a)]. In the case of all other references, however, the decision of the referee or commissioner is only advisory. The court may adopt the referee's recommendations, in whole or in part, after independently considering the referee's findings and any objections and responses to them filed with the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 644(b)]. For discussion of a general or special reference under Code Civ. Proc. § 638 or 639, see Ch. 38, Reference, §§ 38.11, 38.12.

On the other hand, when a commissioner is authorized under Code Civ. Proc. § 259(b) to make and report findings "as to any matter of fact uponwhich information is required by the court", the hearing before the commissioner is not had on stipulation of the parties, and therefore cannot be a general reference [see Code Civ. Proc. § 638(a)] during which an entire matter may be considered, but is similar to a special reference [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 638(b), 639] in that a commissioner reports only on matters of fact on which information is required by the court [see Ellsworth v. Ellsworth (1954) 42 Cal. 2d 719, 723, 269 P.2d 3 ; Weinfeld v. Weinfeld (1958) 159 Cal. App. 2d 608, 613, 324 P.2d 342] . A special reference does not determine the whole issue, and the report of the commissioner does not become the decision of the court without further action by the trial judge [see Ellsworth v. Ellsworth (1954) 42 Cal. 2d 719, 723, 269 P.2d 3] .

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 259(b) the commissioner's report and subsequent court order on it may be excepted to in the time provided for in that section. For discussion of the time in which to except to that report and order, see [b], above. With regard a referee appointed under Code Civ. Proc. § 639, the time in which to object to the referee's report or recommendations is specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 643(c). For discussion of the time in which to make such an objection, see Ch. 38, Reference .

For discussion of a general or special reference under Code Civ. Proc. § 638 or 639 to a referee, see Ch. 38, Reference .

A court commissioner is a different and separate statutory creature from a juvenile court referee. There is no provision for the use of commissioners in Juvenile Court Law. The appointment of juvenile court referees is provided for in Welf. & Ins. Code § 247 [see In re Courtney H. (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 1221, 1224-1226, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 560 (declining to treat commissioner as juvenile court referee when commissioner had not been formally so appointed)]. For further discussion of juvenile court referees, see Ch. 327, Juvenile Courts: Jurisdiction and General Procedures, § 327.20.

[4] To Take and Approve Bonds and Determine Objections to Bonds

A commissioner, subject to the court's supervision, has power to take and approve bonds and undertakings, and to determine objections to bonds and undertakings [Code Civ. Proc. § 259(c); Gov. Code § 72190].

[5] To Act as Temporary Judge

A commissioner, subject to the court's supervision, may act as a temporary judge when otherwise qualified so to act and when appointed for that purpose, or by written consent of an appearing party, but while so acting the commissioner shall receive no compensation therefor other than the compensation as commissioner [Code Civ. Proc. § 259(d); Gov. Code § 72190]. However, a court commissioner may act as a temporary judge only when the parties to the proceeding so stipulate [Rooney v. Vermont Investment Corp. (1973) 10 Cal. 3d 351, 360, 110 Cal. Rptr. 353 ; In re Courtney H. (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 1221, 1224, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 560 ; see also discussion at § 317.20 et seq.].

For discussion of Fam. Code § 4250 et seq., which establish specific procedures for commissioners to act as temporary judges in actions filed by the local child support agency to enforce child support orders, see Ch. 258, Family Law Enforcement .

[6] To Hear Preliminary Matters

A commissioner, subject to the court's supervision, may hear all preliminary matters, including motions or petitions for the custody and support of children, the allowance of temporary alimony, costs, and attorneys' fees, and issues of fact in contempt proceedings in "divorce, maintenance, and annulment of marriage cases" [sic, dissolution of marriage, legal separation, and nullification of marriage cases] and to report findings and conclusions to the court for approval, rejection, or change [Code Civ. Proc. § 259(e)].

[7] To Hear Actions for Paternity and Support

A commissioner, subject to the court's supervision, may hear actions to establish paternity and to establish or enforce child support pursuant to Fam. Code § 4251(a) [Code Civ. Proc. § 259(f)].

For discussion of Fam. Code § 4250 et seq., particularly provisions that provide for commissioners to act as temporary judges in actions filed by the local child support agency for an order to establish, modify, or enforce child or spousal support, including actions to establish paternity, see Ch. 259, Family Law Enforcement: Special Remedies For Support Enforcement, § 259.153[4][o].

[8] To Hear Uncontested Cases

A commissioner, subject to the court's supervision, has power to hear, report on, and determine all uncontested actions and proceedings, subject to the requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 259(d) [Code Civ. Proc. § 259(g); Gov. Code § 72190]. Code Civ. Proc. § 259(d) provides that a commissioner may act as a temporary judge when otherwise qualified so to act and when appointed for that purpose, or by written consent of a party appearing at the hearing.

Definitions and Distinction Between Court-Appointed Temporary Judges and Temporary Judges Requested by Parties

A "judge pro tempore," or "temporary judge" is an attorney or court commissioner who is performing the function of a judge. The terms are used interchangeably in case law, although the latter term seems to be preferred now because Cal. Const., art. VI, § 21, uses the term "temporary judge" in lieu of the phrase "judge pro tempore" as was used in former Cal. Const., art. VI, § 5, which was repealed in 1966. Moreover, Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.810 et seq. use the term temporary judge.

The Rules of Court distinguish between temporary judges appointed by the trial courts [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.810 et seq.] and temporary judges requested by the parties [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.830 et seq.]. These two types of temporary judges are subject to different qualification standards and different disqualification criteria and procedures. Court-appointed temporary judges have more standards to meet before appointment, such as training and continuing education, and there are more instances where other activities may disqualify the attorney from serving. Temporary judges requested by the parties, are privately compensated, and do not have the degree of standards required for court-appointed temporary judges. These differences are discussed in the following sections.

§ 317.21 Appointment and Disqualification of Court-Appointed Temporary Judges

[1] Governing Law and Definitions

The appointment of a temporary judge is governed by Cal. Const., art VI § 21. The power of court commissioners to so act is governed by Code. Civ. Proc. § 259 and Gov. Code § 72190. The procedure for a court-appointed temporary judge is governed by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.810 et. seq. These rules do not apply to subordinate judicial officers, or to attorneys designated by the courts to serve as temporary judges at the parties' request [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.810(a)].

A "court-appointed temporary judge" means an attorney who has satisfied the requirements for appointment under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.812 and has been appointed by the court to serve as a temporary judge in that court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.810(b)].

[2] Nature of Appointment and Relationship to Court

The purpose of court appointment of attorneys as temporary judges is to assist the public by providing the court with a panel of trained, qualified, and experienced attorneys who may serve as temporary judges at the discretion of the court if the court needs judicial assistance that it cannot provide using its full-time judicial officers [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.811(a)].

The appointment of attorneys to serve as temporary judges is the responsibility of the presiding judge, who may designate another judge or committee of judges to perform this responsibility. In carrying out this responsibility, the presiding judge is assisted by a Temporary Judge Administrator as prescribed by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 10.743 [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.811(d)].

Court-appointed attorneys are appointed and serve as temporary judges solely at the discretion of the presiding judge [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.811(b)].

Court appointment and service of an attorney as a temporary judge do not establish an employment relationship between the court and the attorney [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.811(c)].

[3] Attorney Experience, Training Requirements, and Continuing Education

The presiding judge may not appoint an attorney to serve as a temporary judge unless the attorney has been admitted to practice as a member of the State Bar of California for at least 10 years before the appointment. However, for good cause, the presiding judge may permit an attorney who has been admitted to practice for at least five years to serve as a temporary judge [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.812(a)].

The presiding judge may appoint an attorney to serve as a temporary judge only if the attorney [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.812(b)]:

- Is a member in good standing of the State Bar and has no disciplinary action pending;

- Has not pled guilty or no contest to a felony, or has not been convicted of a felony that has not been reversed;

- Has satisfied the education and training requirements in [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.812(c)].

- Has satisfied all other general conditions that the court may establish for appointment of an attorney as a temporary judge in that court; and

- Has satisfied any additional conditions that the court may require for an attorney to be appointed as a temporary judge for a particular assignment or type of case in that court.

An attorney may not serve as a court-appointed temporary judge if [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.818(b)]:

- If the attorney, in any type of case, is appearing on the same day in the same courthouse as an attorney or as a party;

- If the attorney, in the same type of case, is presently a party to any action or proceeding in the court; or

- If, in a family law or unlawful detainer case, one party is self-represented and the other party is represented by an attorney or is an attorney.

For good cause, the presiding judge may waive these limitations [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.818(b)].

"Good standing" means the attorney is currently eligible to practice law in the State of California, may be with an active or voluntarily inactive member of the State Bar, and the court may appoint voluntary inactive members to serve as temporary judges if the court decides to do so [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.812 (Advisory Committee Comment)]

The presiding judge may appoint an attorney to serve as a temporary judge only if the following minimum training requirements are satisfied [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.812(c)]:

- (Mandatory training on bench conduct and demeanor) Before appointment, the attorney must have attended and successfully completed, within the previous three years, a course of at least three hours' duration on the subjects identified in Rule 2.813 approved by the court in which the attorney will serve. This course must be taken in person and be taught by a qualified judicial officer.

- (Mandatory training in ethics) Before appointment, the attorney must have attended and successfully completed, within the previous three years, a course of at least three hours duration on the subjects identified in Rule 2.813(b) approved by the court in which the attorney will serve. This course may be taken by any means approved by the court, including in-person, by broadcast with participation, or online.

- (Substantive training) Before appointment, the attorney must have attended and successfully completed, within the previous three years, a course on the substantive law in each subject area in which the attorney will serve as a temporary judge. These courses may be taken by any means approved by the court, including in-person, by broadcast with participation, or online. The substantive courses have the following minimum requirements:

- (Small claims) An attorney serving as a temporary judge in small claims cases must have attended and successfully completed, within the previous three years, a course of at least three hours' duration on the subjects identified in Rule 2.813(c) approved by the court in which the attorney will serve.

- (Traffic) An attorney serving as a temporary judge in traffic cases must have attended and completed, within the previous three years, a course of at least three hours' duration on the subjects identified in Rule 2.813(d) approved by the court in which the attorney will serve.

- (Other subject areas) If the court assigns attorneys to serve as temporary judges in other substantive areas such as civil law, family law, juvenile law, unlawful detainers, or case management, the court must determine what additional training is required and what additional courses are required before an attorney may serve as a temporary judge in each of those subject areas. The training required in each area must be of at least three hours duration. The court may also require that an attorney possess additional years of practical experience in each substantive area before being assigned to serve as a temporary judge in that subject area.

- (Settlement) An attorney need not be a temporary judge to assist the court in settlement conferences. However, an attorney assisting the court with settlement conferences who performs any judicial function, such as entering a settlement on the record under Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6, must be a qualified temporary judge who has satisfied the training requirements under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.813(c)(1), (2).

- The substantive training requirements in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.812(c)(3)(A)-(C) do not apply to courts in which temporary judges are used fewer than 10 times altogether in a calendar year.

The contents of the training programs to meet the standards for appointment are governed by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.813.

The presiding judge in each court should establish additional experience and training requirements for temporary judges beyond the minimum requirements provided in this rules if it is feasible for the court to do so [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.813(d)].

A court that uses temporary judges must maintain records verifying that each attorney who serves as a temporary judge in that court has attended and successfully completed the courses required under Rule 2.813 [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.813(e)].

To serve as a temporary judge, an attorney must complete the application required under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 10.744, must satisfy the requirements prescribed in these standards rule, and must satisfy such other requirements as the court appointing the attorney in its discretion may determine are appropriate [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.813(f)].

Each attorney appointed as a temporary judge must attend and successfully complete every three years a course on bench conduct and demeanor, an ethics course, and a course in each substantive area in which the attorney will serve as a temporary judge. The courses must cover the same subjects and be of the same duration as the courses prescribed in Rule 2.812. These courses must be approved by the court that appoints the attorney [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.815(a)].

Commencing five years after last serving in a judicial position either as a full-time judicial officer or as an assigned judge, a retired judicial officer serving as a temporary judge must satisfy all the education and training requirements of this rule [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.812(d)]. However, a retired judicial officer serving as a temporary judge in a small claims case must satisfy all the requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 116.240(b) and the rules in Ch. 1, Div. 6, Tit. 2 of the Cal. Rules of Ct. before serving in the case [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.812(d)].

[4] Appointment by Court, Oath of Office, and Stipulation of Parties

The appointment of attorneys to serve as temporary judges is the responsibility of the presiding judge, who may designate another judge or committee of judges to perform this responsibility. In carrying out this responsibility, the presiding judge is assisted by a Temporary Judge Administrator as prescribed by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 10.743 [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.811(d)].

An attorney may serve as a temporary judge for the court only after the court has issued an order appointing him or her to serve. Before serving, the attorney must subscribe the oath of office and must certify that he or she is aware of and will comply with applicable provisions of Canon 6 of the Code of Judicial Ethics and the California Rules of Court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.814]. For a form of oath of office, see § 317.18. A temporary judge must make all disclosures required under the Code of Judicial Ethics [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.817].

After notice has been given under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.816(a), (b), a party stipulates to a court-appointed temporary judge by either of the following [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.816(d)]:

- The party is deemed to have to have stipulated to the attorney serving as a temporary judge if the party fails to object to the matter being heard by the temporary judge before the temporary judge begins the proceeding; or

- The party signs a written stipulation agreeing that the matter may be heard by the temporary judge.

For a form of stipulation, see § 317.18.

A stipulation to a temporary judge will be valid so long as the basic constitutional requirement of the parties' consent is present. The litigants interest in having his or her dispute heard in a competent and unbiased tribunal requires consent to the individual appointee. The specific consent cannot be expanded to encompass consent to another judge [Kim v. Superior Court (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 256, 260-261, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 468] . For example, when the judge from Judicial Arbitration & Mediation Services, Inc. (JAMS) whom the parties stipulated to hear a matter died, the court was not authorized, over one party's objection, to rely on the stipulation to appoint new judge from JAMS to hear the matter [Kim v. Superior Court (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 256, 260-261, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 468] .

[5] Required Notices Before Taking of Evidence

Before the swearing in of the first witness at a small claims hearing, before the entry of a plea by the defendant at a traffic arraignment, or before the commencement of any other proceeding, the court must give notice to each party that [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.816(b)]:

- A temporary judge will be hearing the matters for that calendar;

- The temporary judge is a qualified member of the State Bar and the name of the temporary judge is provided; and

- The party has a right to have the matter heard before a judge, commissioner, or referee of the court.

The court may give the notice by either of the following methods [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.816(c)]:

- A conspicuous sign posted inside or just outside the courtroom, accompanied by oral notification or notification by videotape or audiotape by a court officer on the day of the hearing; or

- A written notice provided to each party.

After notice has been given, a party stipulates to a court-appointed temporary judge by either of the following [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.816(d)]:

- The party is deemed to have to have stipulated to the attorney serving as a temporary judge if the party fails to object to the matter being heard by the temporary judge before the temporary judge begins the proceeding; or

- The party signs a written stipulation agreeing that the matter may be heard by the temporary judge.

[6] Withdrawal of Stipulation

An application or motion to withdraw a stipulation for the appointment of a temporary judge must be supported by a declaration of facts establishing good cause for permitting the party to withdraw the stipulation [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.816(e)]. In addition:

- The application or motion must be served and filed, and the moving party must mail or deliver a copy to the presiding judge.

- A declaration that a ruling by a temporary judge is based on an error of fact or law does not establish good cause for withdrawing a stipulation.

- The application or motion must be heard by the presiding judge or a judge designated by the presiding judge.

- If the application or motion for withdrawing the stipulation is based on grounds for the disqualification of, or limitation of the appearance by, the temporary judge first learned or arising after the temporary judge has made one or more rulings, but before the temporary judge has completed judicial action in the proceeding, the temporary judge, unless the disqualification or termination is waived, must disqualify himself or herself, but in the absence of good cause the rulings the temporary judge has made up to that time must not be set aside by the judicial officer or temporary judge who replaces the temporary judge.

[7] Disqualification of Attorney and Request for Disqualification

[a] Disclosure and Disqualification Requirements

A temporary judge must make all disclosures required under the Code of Judicial Ethics [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.818], and a temporary judge must disqualify himself or herself as a temporary judge in proceedings as provided under the Code of Judicial Ethics [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.818(a)].

An attorney may not serve as a court-appointed temporary judge if [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.818(b)]:

- The attorney, in any type of case, is appearing on the same day in the same courthouse as an attorney or as a party;

- The attorney, in the same type of case, is presently a party to any action or proceeding in the court; or

- In a family law or unlawful detainer case, one party is self-represented and the other party is represented by an attorney or is an attorney.

For good cause, the presiding judge may waive these limitations [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.818(b)].

[b] Waiver of Disqualifications or Limitations

After a temporary judge who has determined himself or herself to be disqualified under the Code of Judicial Ethics or prohibited from serving under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.818(b) has disclosed the basis for his or her disqualification or limitation on the record, the parties and their attorneys may agree to waive the disqualification or limitation and the temporary judge may accept the waiver. The temporary judge must not seek to induce a waiver and must avoid any effort to discover which attorneys or parties favored or opposed a waiver. The waiver must be in writing, must recite the basis for the disqualification or limitation, and must state that it was knowingly made. The waiver is effective only when signed by all parties and their attorneys and filed in the record [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.818(c)(1)].

No waiver is permitted where the basis for the disqualification is any of the following [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.818(c)(2)]:

- The temporary judge has a personal bias or prejudice concerning a party;

- The temporary judge has served as an attorney in the matter in controversy; or

- The temporary judge has been a material witness in the controversy.

[c] Late Discovery of Grounds for Disqualification or Limitation

In the event that grounds for disqualification or limitation are first learned of or arise after the temporary judge has made one or more rulings in a proceeding, but before the temporary judge has completed judicial action in the proceeding, the temporary judge, unless the disqualification or limitation is waived, must disqualify himself or herself. But in the absence of good cause the rulings the temporary judge has made up to that time must not be set aside by the judicial officer or temporary judge who replaces the temporary judge [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.818(d)].

[d] Notification of the Court

Whenever a temporary judge determines himself or herself to be disqualified or limited from serving, the temporary judge must notify the presiding judge or the judge designated by the presiding judge of his or her withdrawal and must not further participate in the proceeding, unless his or her disqualification or limitation is waived by the parties as provided in Rule 2.818(c) [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.818(e)].

[e] Requests for Disqualifications

Requesting disqualification of a court-appointed temporary attorney is a different procedure from seeking disqualification of a judge under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.3 [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.818 (Advisory Committee Comment)].

A party may request that a temporary judge withdraw on the ground that he or she is disqualified or limited from serving. If a temporary judge who should disqualify himself or herself or who is limited from serving in a case fails to withdraw, a party may apply to the presiding judge under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.816(e) for a withdrawal of the stipulation. The presiding judge or the judge designated by the presiding judge must determine whether good cause exists for granting withdrawal of the stipulation [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.818(f)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Appointment and Disqualification of Temporary Judges

27-317 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 317.22

§ 317.22 Appointment and Disqualification of Temporary Judge Requested by Parties

[1] Definitions and Governing Law

Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 2.830-2.834 apply to attorneys designated as temporary judges under Cal. Const., art VI, § 21 at the request of the parties rather than by prior appointment of the court [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.816 et seq.] including privately compensated temporary judges and attorneys who serve as temporary judges pro bono at the request of the parties [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.830(a)].

"Privately compensated" means that the temporary judge is paid by the parties [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.830(b)].

Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 2.830-2.834 do not apply to subordinate judicial officers or to attorneys who are appointed by the court to serve as temporary judges for the court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.830(c)].

[2] Compensation

A temporary judge selected by the parties may not be compensated by the parties unless the parties agree in writing on a rate of compensation that they will pay [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.832].

[3] Stipulation

When the parties request that an attorney be designated by the court to serve as a temporary judge on a case, the stipulation of the parties that a case may be tried by a temporary judge must be in writing and must state the name and office address of the member of the State Bar agreed on. The stipulation must be submitted for approval to the presiding judge or the judge designated by the presiding judge [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.831(a); see In re Marriage of Crook (1991) 235 Cal. App. 3d 30, 33-34, 286 Cal. Rptr. 537 (signature of attorneys on stipulation sufficient to bind parties)].

Under case law interpreting former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 244, failure to obtain a written stipulation was not jurisdictional because the duty under the former rule for a written stipulation was directory rather than mandatory; therefore, when the requirements of Cal. Const., art VI § 21 were otherwise met, the parties' oral stipulation or stipulation by conduct waived any claim of error based on strict compliance with Rule 244 [see In re Richard S. (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 857, 864-866, 2 Cal. Rptr. 2d 2, 819 P. 2d 843 ; In re Julio N. (1992) 3 Cal. App. 4th 1120, 1122-1124, 5 Cal. Rptr. 2d 86] . Whether this interpretation stands for the new language under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.831 is a question that remains open.

[4] Order, Oath, and Certification

The order designating the temporary judge must be signed by the presiding judge or the presiding judge's designee and refer to the stipulation. The stipulation and order must then be filed. The temporary judge must take and subscribe the oath of office and certify that he or she is aware of and will comply with applicable provisions of canon 6 of the Code of Judicial Ethics and the California Rules of Court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.831(b)].

The temporary judge may proceed with the hearing, trial, and determination of the cause after the stipulation, order, oath, and certification have been filed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.831(c)].

[5] Disclosure to the Parties

In addition to any other disclosure required by law, no later than five days after designation as a temporary judge or, if the temporary judge is not aware of his or her designation or of a matter subject to disclosure at that time, as soon as practicable thereafter, a temporary judge must disclose to the parties any matter subject to disclosure under the Code of Judicial Ethics [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.831(d)].

[6] Disqualification

In addition to any other disqualification required by law, a temporary judge requested by the parties and designated by the court under this rule must disqualify himself or herself as provided under the Code of Judicial Ethics [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.831(e)].

[7] Withdrawing Stipulation

A motion to withdraw a stipulation for the appointment of a temporary judge must be supported by a declaration of facts establishing good cause for permitting the party to withdraw the stipulation, and must be heard by the presiding judge or a judge designated by the presiding judge. A declaration that a ruling is based on error of fact or law does not establish good cause for withdrawing a stipulation. Notice of the motion must be served and filed, and the moving party must mail or deliver a copy to the temporary judge. If the motion to withdraw the stipulation is based on grounds for the disqualification of the temporary judge first learned or arising after the temporary judge has made one or more rulings, but before the temporary judge has completed judicial action in the proceeding, the provisions of Rule 2.816(e)(4) apply. If a motion to withdraw a stipulation is granted, the presiding judge must assign the case for hearing or trial as promptly as possible [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.831(f)].

[8] Notices, Court Facilities, Hearing Site

In each case in which he or she is appointed, a temporary judge requested by the parties must file a statement that provides the name, telephone number, and mailing address of a person who may be contacted to obtain information about the date, time, location, and general nature of all hearings and other proceedings scheduled in the matter that would be open to the public if held before a judge. This statement must be filed at the same time as the temporary judge's certification under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.831(b). If there is any change in this contact information, the temporary judge must promptly file a revised statement with the court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.834(b)(1)]. In addition, the statement filed by a temporary judge may also provide the address of a publicly accessible website at which the temporary judge will maintain a current calendar setting forth the date, time, location, and general nature of any hearings scheduled in the matter that would be open to the public if held before a judge [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule

2.834(b)(2)]. The clerk must post the information from the statement filed by the temporary judge in the court facility [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.834(b)(3)].

A party who has elected to use the services of a temporary judge requested by the parties is deemed to have elected to proceed outside court facilities. Court facilities, court personnel, and summoned jurors may not be used in proceedings pending before a temporary judge requested by the parties except on a finding by the presiding judge or his or her designee that their use would further the interests of justice [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.834(c)].

The presiding judge or his or her designee, on application of any person or on the judge's own motion, may order that a case before a temporary judge requested by the parties must be heard at a site easily accessible to the public and appropriate for seating those who have made known their plan to attend hearings. The application must state facts showing good cause for granting the application, and must be served on all parties and the temporary judge and filed with the court. The proceedings are not stayed while the application is pending unless the presiding judge or his or her designee orders that they be stayed. The issuance of an order for an accessible and appropriate hearing site is not a ground for withdrawal of a stipulation that a case may be heard by a temporary judge [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.834(d)(1)]. If a court staff mediator or evaluator is required to attend a hearing before a temporary judge requested by the parties, unless otherwise ordered by the presiding judge or his or her designee, that hearing must take place at a location requiring no more than 15 minutes' travel time from the mediator's or evaluator's work site [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.834(d)(2)].

[9] Sealed Records

A motion or application to seal records in a case pending before a temporary judge requested by the parties must be filed with the court and must be served on all parties that have appeared in the case and the temporary judge. The motion or application must be heard by the trial court judge to whom the case is assigned or, if the case has not been assigned, by the presiding judge or his or her designee. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 2.550-2.551 on sealed records apply to motions or applications filed under Rule 2.835 [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.835(a)].

[10] Complaint for Intervention

A motion for leave to file a complaint for intervention in a case pending before a temporary judge requested by the parties must be filed with the court and served on all parties and the temporary judge. The motion must be heard by the trial court judge to whom the case is assigned or, if the case has not been assigned, by the presiding judge or his or her designee. If intervention is allowed, the case must be returned to the trial court docket unless all parties stipulate in the manner prescribed in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.831(a) to proceed before the temporary judge [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.835(b)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Appointment and Disqualification of Temporary Judges

27-317 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 317.23

§ 317.23 Superior Court Commissioner as Temporary Judge

[1] Authority to Act

Every superior court commissioner has power to act as a temporary judge when otherwise qualified so to act and when appointed for that purpose, or by written consent of an appearing party [Code Civ. Proc. § 259(d)]. Consent of only one party in a contested proceeding, however, is not adequate for appointment of a commissioner because the California Constitution requires that the parties litigant must stipulate to the appointment of a temporary judge [see Cal. Const., art. VI, § 21 and discussion under [3][a], below].

[2] Membership in State Bar

A superior court commissioner need not be admitted to the State Bar unless required by the court appointing him or her [see Gov. Code § 70142; see also Barfield v. Superior Court (1963) 216 Cal. App. 2d 476, 477 n.1, 31 Cal. Rptr. 30] . But if not admitted to the State Bar, he or she would not be eligible to serve as a temporary judge by stipulation or otherwise [see Cal. Const., art. VI, § 21].

[3] Stipulation

[a] Requirement to Act

Although no statute or rule requires a stipulation for the appointment of a court commissioner as a temporary judge, Cal. Const., art. VI, § 21 authorizes the appointment of temporary judges only "on stipulation of the parties litigant." Therefore, a commissioner cannot act as a temporary judge except on stipulation of the parties who have appeared in the litigation [Sarracino v. Superior Court (1974) 13 Cal. 3d 1, 6, 118 Cal. Rptr. 21, 529 P.2d 53 ; People v. Tijerina (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 41, 49, 81 Cal. Rptr. 264, 459 P.2d 680 ; In re Courtney H. (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 1221, 1227, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 560] .

Code Civ. Proc. § 259(d) authorizes a court commissioner to act as a temporary judge when otherwise qualified so to act and when appointed for that purpose, or "by written consent of an appearing party." The statutory power of a commissioner to act as a temporary judge, however, is subject to the constitutional requirement of a stipulation by the parties litigant [Sarracino v. Superior Court (1974) 13 Cal. 3d 1, 6, 118 Cal. Rptr. 21, 529 P.2d 53] . Code Civ. Proc. § 259(g) further authorizes a commissioner to act as temporary judge in an uncontested action or proceeding, subject to the requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 259(d). When subsection (d) is read together with subsection (h), subject to the requirement of Cal. Const., art. VI, § 21, it is arguable that the clause of subsection (d) permitting the appointment of a temporary judge by written consent of "an appearing party" applies only when the action or proceeding is uncontested. For discussion of the appointment of a court commissioner as a temporary judge after one party has defaulted, see § 317.23[4][b].

A stipulation to a temporary judge will be valid so long as the basic constitutional requirement of the parties consent is present. The litigants interest in having his or her dispute heard in a competent and unbiased tribunal requires consent to the individual appointee. The specific consent cannot be expanded to encompass consent to another judge [Kim v. Superior Court (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 256, 260-261, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 468 (involving stipulation to appointment of judge from Judicial Arbitration & Mediation Services, Inc.)].

[b] Implied Stipulations

A stipulation that a matter can be heard by a court commissioner sitting as a temporary judge may be implied from the parties' conduct. Conduct short of an express oral or written stipulation may be tantamount to a stipulation that a commissioner may sit as a temporary judge [In re Horton (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 82, 91-92, 100, 284 Cal. Rptr. 305, 813 P. 2d 1335 , modified on other grounds, People v. Horton (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 1068, 1068, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 516, 906 P. 2d 478); see Estate of Fain (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 973, 988-989, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 618 (implied stipulation to retired judge as temporary judge)].

Thus, voluntary participation in the proceedings on the part of a party and his or her attorney is deemed tantamount to a stipulation that a commissioner can hear the case sitting as a temporary judge [see Estate of Lacy (1975) 54 Cal. App. 3d 172, 182, 126 Cal. Rptr. 432 ; Estate of Soforenko (1968) 260 Cal. App. 2d 765, 766, 67 Cal. Rptr. 563 (in both cases parties were represented by attorneys who appeared, voiced no objections to the matter being heard by a commissioner, participated fully in the hearing, and strenuously examined the witnesses and argued the evidence)].

For example, an implied stipulation was found in a criminal case in which [In re Horton (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 82, 91-92, 100, 284 Cal. Rptr. 305, 813 P. 2d 1335 (modified on other grounds in People v. Horton (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 1068, 1068, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 516, 906 P. 2d 478)]:

- Counsel participated without objection in a trial heard by a commissioner acting as temporary judge;
- All parties knew the temporary judge's status;
- Counsel stated his intention to obtain an express stipulation; and
- The parties treated the temporary judge as having authority to make binding rulings.

Conduct of the attorney may justify an implied stipulation that a matter may be heard by a commissioner sitting as a temporary judge without the need for an express stipulation by the client [In re Horton (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 82, 92-93, 284 Cal. Rptr. 305, 813 P. 2d 1335 (modified on other grounds in People v. Horton (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 1068, 1068, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 516, 906 P.2d 478); Estate of Fain (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 973, 989-990, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 618] .

The reason for the tantamount stipulation doctrine is to prevent a party from sitting back, fully participating in a trial and then claiming that the court was without jurisdiction on obtaining an unfavorable result [see Estate of Fain (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 973, 989, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 618 ; In re Courtney H. (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 1221, 1227, 45 Cal. Rptr.

2d 560 (although compelling argument could be made that parties never given opportunity to stipulate cannot do so impliedly, court bound by tantamount stipulation doctrine as explained by California Supreme Court)].

The following cases exemplify situations in which an implied stipulation was not established:

- Party appeared in propria persona to seek an order to show cause re: child support. The Judicial Council form used by that party did not have the notice required by Fam. Code § 4251(b) that the matter would be heard by a commissioner acting as temporary judge unless the party objected. The commissioner who heard the matter never disclosed that he was a commissioner sitting as a temprorary judge and that the party could object. Therefore, even though the party participated fully in two hearings, no implied stipulation was involved [Monge v. Gerig (2001) 93 Cal. App. 4th 911, 916-919, 113 Cal. Rptr. 2d 524] .

- Petitioner's counsel believed the commissioner was scheduling the case for jury trial, and interposed a timely objection to the commissioner's authority [Yetenekian v. Superior Court (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 361, 367, 189 Cal. Rptr. 458] .

- Petitioner agreed to defer adjudication and requested a continuance after first having refused to stipulate and after having objected to the commissioner's hearing of a contempt cause [Nierenberg v. Superior Court (1976) 59 Cal. App. 3d 611, 619, 130 Cal. Rptr. 847] .

[4] Parties Litigant

[a] Requirement

The parties litigant are those parties before the court taking part in the litigation [see Estate of Kent (1936) 6 Cal. 2d 154, 162-163, 57 P.2d 901 ; In re Plotkin (1976) 54 Cal. App. 3d 1014, 1017, 127 Cal. Rptr. 190] . If no stipulation has been entered into by the parties litigant pursuant to Cal. Const., art. VI, § 21, an order issued by a commissioner acting as temporary judge is invalid and in excess of the commissioner's jurisdiction [In re Plotkin (1976) 54 Cal. App. 3d 1014, 1017, 127 Cal. Rptr. 190 (order holding plaintiff's expert witness in contempt for refusing to appear and give deposition to defendant was invalid; although plaintiff and defendant had entered stipulation, it was defendant and expert witness who were parties litigant in that cause, and they had not entered into stipulation)].

[b] Exception When Default Prior to Hearing

When a default has been entered against a party prior to the hearing of an action, an exception to the constitutional requirement of a stipulation of the parties litigant exists [see Sarracino v. Superior Court (1974) 13 Cal. 3d 1, 6-8, 118 Cal. Rptr. 21, 529 P.2d 53 ; Barfield v. Superior Court (1963) 216 Cal. App. 2d 476, 479, 31 Cal. Rptr. 30] . However, the statute authorizing a court commissioner to hear, report, and determine uncontested actions or proceedings also requires that there be written consent of an appearing party [Code Civ. Proc. § 259(d), (g)].

If a default has been entered, a stipulation that a court commissioner may act as a temporary judge need not be signed by the party in default [Barfield v. Superior Court (1963) 216 Cal. App. 2d 476, 479, 31 Cal. Rptr. 30 ; Bill Benson Motors, Inc. v. Macmorris Sales Corp. (1965) 238 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 937, 943, 48 Cal. Rptr. 123] because the party in default is no longer considered a "party litigant" therein [Sarracino v. Superior Court (1974) 13 Cal. 3d 1, 10-11, 118 Cal. Rptr. 21, 529 P.2d 53 ; Barfield v. Superior Court (1963) 216 Cal. App. 2d 476, 479, 31 Cal. Rptr. 30]. The constitution requires a stipulation "of" and not "between" the parties litigant [see Cal. Const., art. VI, § 21; see also Barfield v. Superior Court (1963) 216 Cal. App. 2d 476, 479, 31 Cal. Rptr. 30] and has been construed to mean an agreement between the court and any one party litigant rather than to an agreement between the parties or their attorneys [see Barfield v. Superior Court (1963) 216 Cal. App. 2d 476, 479, 31 Cal. Rptr. 30]. Thus, an interlocutory decree of divorce was properly entered by a temporary judge pursuant to a stipulation executed by counsel for plaintiff wife only when the default of defendant husband had first been duly entered in the cause [Barfield v. Superior Court (1963) 216 Cal. App. 2d 476, 477-479, 31 Cal. Rptr. 30]. When a defendant husband was in default with respect to an application for temporary support for failure to appear at the hearing, a stipulation executed by his wife and counsel for temporary support was therefore sufficient to empower a commissioner to act as temporary judge [Sarracino v. Superior Court (1974) 13 Cal. 3d 1, 10-11, 118 Cal. Rptr. 21, 529 P.2d 53].

For purposes of this exception, the term "default" has been broadly defined [see Sarracino v. Superior Court (1974) 13 Cal. 3d 1 (petitioner's failure to appear after notice at hearing on application for temporary support put him in default for purposes of entering orders against him); Bill Benson Motors, Inc. v. Macmorris Sales Corp. (1965) 238 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 937, 944, 238 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 937, 48 Cal. Rptr. 123 (equating defendant's refusal to appear at trial with default entered on failure to answer)]. For example, defendants were not a "party litigant" in a case in which defendants failed to file any response to a motion or appear at the hearing, instructed a former attorney to give up the file in the case but made no arrangements for the successor attorney to appear for them, and did no other acts of litigation after plaintiff's complaint was filed. Under these circumstances, the stipulation of the plaintiff was sufficient to empower a commissioner to act as temporary judge [Reisman v. Shahverdian (1984) 153 Cal. App. 3d 1074, 1089-1090, 201 Cal. Rptr. 194] .

[5] Term "Cause" as Distinct From Principal Case

The term "cause" as used in the phrase "sworn and empowered to act until final determination of the cause" refers to the proceeding before the court [see Cal. Const., art. VI, § 21; see also Sarracino v. Superior Court (1974) 13 Cal. 3d 1, 9, 118 Cal. Rptr. 21, 529 P.2d 53 ; In re Plotkin (1976) 54 Cal. App. 3d 1014, 1017, 127 Cal. Rptr. 190]. A temporary judge may hear "causes" connected with but distinct from the underlying principal case [Sarracino v. Superior Court (1974) 13 Cal. 3d 1, 9-10, 118 Cal. Rptr. 21, 529 P.2d 53 (temporary support); In re Steven A. (1993) 15 Cal. App. 4th 754, 769-770, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 576 (dispositional hearing under Welf. & Inst. Code § 358 is direct progeny of jurisdictional hearing under Welf. & Inst. Code § 356); Estate of Soforenko (1968) 260 Cal. App. 2d 765, 67 Cal. Rptr. 563 (executor's first account); Quezada v. Superior Court (1959) 171 Cal. App. 2d 528, 530, 340 P.2d 1018 (civil contempt to enforce temporary support order)]. However, an appointment as a temporary judge does not authorize him or her to act in distinct proceedings, although ancillary to the principal action, without being appointed and qualified for that purpose [Sarracino v. Superior Court (1974) 13 Cal. 3d 1, 10, 118 Cal. Rptr. 21, 529 P.2d 53 (commissioner's power as temporary judge to render temporary support orders against petitioner would not include power to hold petitioner in contempt for noncompliance with those orders); Nierenberg v. Superior Court (1976) 59 Cal. App. 3d 611, 618, 130 Cal. Rptr. 847 (parties' original stipulation that commissioner could sit as temporary judge in criminal proceeding was no longer effective to confer judicial power on commissioner to adjudicate contempt cause which had arisen during criminal action)].

"Ancillary" proceedings are those proceedings on a separate record independent of the ruling in the stipulated cause. Proceedings that question the finality of the temporary judge's ruling, or that are a part of or a continuation of the stipulated cause, are not ancillary but direct progeny of the stipulated cause. Therefore, no further stipulation is needed for a temporary judge to determine a subsequent motion for relief from his or her ruling, such as a motion to reconsider the sustaining of a demurrer without leave to amend, a motion to vacate the judgment, or a motion to vacate an order for new trial [McCartney v. Superior Court (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 1334, 1338-1339, 273 Cal. Rptr. 250].

Basic principles of contract law may be applied to determine whether a subsequent hearing is ancillary to or the direct progeny of earlier proceedings. For example, a stipulation in a dependency proceeding authorized a temporary judge to hear "the within action" and "any new proceedings," but also allowed the parties to withdraw the stipulation "at such new proceedings." In trying to give effect to all the provisions and to reconcile any apparent conflicts, the court construed the term "within action" to include the jurisdictional and dispositional hearings, but to exclude a permanancy planning hearing as a "new proceeding" [In re Steven A. (1993) 15 Cal. App. 4th 754, 770-772, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 576

(father should have been allowed to withdraw the stipulation before the permanancy planning hearing)].

§ 317.30 Governing Law

Disqualification of judges for cause is governed by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170-170.5. Former Code Civ. Proc. § 170 provides that a judge has a duty to decide any proceeding in which he or she is not disqualified. Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1 sets forth the various grounds on which a judge shall be disqualified in accordance with certain definitions in Code Civ. Proc. § 170.5. Code Civ. Proc. § 170.2 distinguishes certain relationships that do not constitute grounds for disqualification. Code Civ. Proc. § 170.3 describes procedures by which a judge may disqualify himself or herself and by which a party may disqualify a judge. Code Civ. Proc. § 170.4 describes the authority still left to a judge after disqualification or after the filing of a statement of disqualification by a party.

Requesting disqualification of a court-appointed temporary attorney is a different procedure from seeking disqualification of a judge under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.3 [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.817 (Advisory Committee Comment)]. For disqualification of a court-appointed temporary judge, see § 317.21[7]. Disqualification of a party requested temporary judge also utilizes a different procedure that involves the withdrawal of the stipulation of the temporary judge. For disqualification of a party requested temporary judge, see § 317.22[6], [7].

§ 317.32 Disqualification of Appellate Justices

Code Civ. Proc. § 170 et seq. do not apply to appellate-level justices. The federal rule applies in California for the disqualification of appellate judges, whereby each appellate judge himself or herself decides whether or not the facts require recusal. The only question remaining for a higher court is whether or not an appellate proceeding wherein a biased justice participated became illegally and prejudicially unfair [Kaufman v. Court of Appeal (1982) 31 Cal. 3d 933, 939, 940, 184 Cal. Rptr. 302, 647 P.2d 1081] . Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(b) does, however, state that a judge before whom a proceeding was tried or heard shall be disqualified from participating in any appellate review of that proceeding.

§ 317.34 Orders Rendered by Judge After Disqualification Void

[1] In General

Except as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 170.4, a disqualified judge has no power to act in any proceeding after his or her disqualification or after the filing of a statement of disqualification until the question of disqualification has been determined [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.4(d)]. Disqualification occurs when the facts creating disqualification arise, not when the disqualification is established [Christie v. City of El Centro (2006) 135 Cal. App. 4th 767, 776, 37 Cal. Rptr. 3d 718] , and a disqualified judge's orders are void, regardless of whether they happen to have been legally correct [Rossco Holdings, Inc. v Bank of America (2007) 149 Cal. App. 4th 1353, 1367, 58 Cal. Rptr. 3d 141] . Orders made by a judge after disqualification are void [Noorthoek v. Superior Court (1969) 269 Cal. App. 2d 600, 607, 75 Cal. Rptr. 61 (judge had previously disqualified self without specifying grounds)].

A judge has no authority to grant a motion for limited, partial, or conditional disqualification because no actions, other than those set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 170.4, are permitted after disqualification [Geldermann, Inc. v. Bruner (1991) 229 Cal. App. 3d 662, 665, 280 Cal. Rptr. 264 (tentative statement of decision issued before disqualification could not be adopted as statement of decision once judge disqualified self from determining posttrial issues)].

[2] Exceptions

[a] Powers Retained

A disqualified judge, notwithstanding his or her disqualification may do any of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.4(a)]:

(1) Take any action or issue any order necessary to maintain the jurisdiction of the court pending the assignment of a judge not disqualified.

(2) Request any other judge agreed on by the parties to sit and act in his or her place.

(3) Hear and determine purely default matters.

(4) Issue an order for possession prior to judgment in eminent domain proceedings.

(5) Set proceedings for trial or hearing.

(6) Conduct settlement conferences.

[b] Power to Strike Statements of Disqualification

If a statement of disqualification is untimely filed or if on its face it discloses no legal grounds for disqualification, the trial judge against whom it was filed may order it stricken [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.4(b)]. A party may file no more than one statement of disqualification against a judge unless new grounds for disqualification are first learned of or arise after the first statement was filed. A judge against whom repetitive statements of disqualification, not alleging new grounds, are filed has the power to and shall strike the repetitive statements [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.4(c)(3)].

[c] Power to Continue Trial When Statement of Disqualification Filed After Commencement of Trial

If a statement of disqualification is filed after a trial or hearing has commenced by the start of voir dire, by the swearing of the first witness, or by the submission of a motion for decision, the judge against whom a statement of disqualification is filed may order the trial or hearing to continue, notwithstanding the filing of the statement of disqualification [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.4(c)(1)].

For purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 170.4(c)(1), trial has commenced when the judge has heard and ruled on motions in limine [Eckert v. Superior Court (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 262, 266-267, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 467 (trial had commenced when motion was made after rulings on motions in limine and before voir dire had started)].

If it is determined that the judge is disqualified, all orders and rulings of that judge made after the filing of the statement of disqualification shall be vacated [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.4(c)(1)]. For purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 170.4(c), the trial or hearing is deemed to have commenced 10 days prior to the date scheduled for trial or hearing, as to any grounds for disqualification known before that time if [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.4(c)(2)]:

(1) A proceeding is filed in a single judge court or has been assigned to a single judge for comprehensive disposition; and

(2) The proceeding has been set for trial or hearing 30 or more days in advance before a judge whose name was known at the time.

§ 317.35 Validity of Rulings Made Before Disqualification

[1] Before Disqualified Judge Has Completed Action

If grounds for disqualification are first learned of or arise after the judge has made one or more rulings in a proceeding, but before the judge has completed judicial action in a proceeding, the rulings he or she has made up to that time shall not be set aside by the judge who replaces the disqualified judge in the absence of good cause [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.3(b)(4); see, e.g., Sincavage v. Superior Court (1996) 42 Cal. App. 4th 224, 231, 49 Cal. Rptr. 2d 615 (disqualification before sentencing did not invalidate judgment of conviction for criminal offenses when judge conducted trial impartially)]. The good cause exception of Code Civ. Proc. § 170.3(b)(4) does not apply if the grounds for disqualification arise and are learned of by the judge, but the judge mistakenly interprets the legal conclusion of the grounds requiring disqualification [Rossco Holdings, Inc. v Bank of America (2007) 149 Cal. App. 4th 1353, 1363-1364, 58 Cal. Rptr. 3d 141] .

It appears that case law decided prior to January 1, 1985, when Code Civ. Proc. § 170.3 became effective, might still apply to void a judgment in a situation when the trial judge, after rendition of judgment but before hearing of a motion for new trial, remembers a ground for disqualification that existed all along [Tatum v. Southern Pacific Co. (1967) 250 Cal. App. 2d 40, 43, 58 Cal. Rptr. 238 (trustee of stock; reasoning that it is not the establishment of disqualification but the fact of disqualification which controls)].

[2] After Disqualified Judge Has Completed Judicial Action

Neither Code Civ. Proc. § 170.4(d) (judge's power to act after disqualification) nor Code Civ. Proc. § 170.3(b)(4) (validity of judge's rulings made before disqualifying facts are discovered, but before completion of judicial action in the proceeding) applies when the disqualifying facts are discovered after judgment has been entered [Urias v. Harris Farms, Inc. (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 415, 422-423, 285 Cal. Rptr. 659].

As discussed below, it is clear that if a party raises the disqualification issue in a timely manner after the judge has completed judicial action in the proceeding and before judgment is final, the judgment is voidable [see Christie v. City of El Centro (2006) 135 Cal. App.4th 767, 780, 37 Cal. Rptr. 3d 718 ; Urias v. Harris Farms, Inc. (1991) 234 Cal.

App. 3d 415, 424, 285 Cal. Rptr. 659]. Whether a judgment may be avoided after it is final is less clear.

More recent cases have held that when a disqualification is discovered after a judgment is rendered, the judgment is voidable, not void. The party seeking disqualification must properly raise the issue and allege facts that show the grounds for the disqualification [Urias v. Harris Farms, Inc. (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 415, 423-424, 285 Cal. Rptr. 659 ; see Church of Scientology of California v. Wollersheim (1996) 42 Cal. App. 4th 628, 655-658, 49 Cal. Rptr. 2d 620 (plaintiff's action to set aside judgment against it in prior case, filed while appeal of prior case was pending, based on alleged newly discovered evidence of judge's bias and prejudice; dismissal upheld because, due to lack of evidence and untimeliness of action, plaintiff could not show likelihood of success needed to withstand defendant's Code Civ. Proc. § 425.16 SLAPP suit motion to strike); Betz v. Pankow (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 931, 938-940, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 841 (extending rule to disqualified arbitrators)]. The statement of disqualification is timely if submitted at the earliest practicable opportunity after the disqualifying facts are discovered [Urias v. Harris Farms, Inc. (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 415, 424-425, 285 Cal. Rptr. 659 (statement filed two days after counsel learned facts showing grounds for disqualification of judge who had granted summary judgment motion); see Church of Scientology of California v. Wollersheim (1996) 42 Cal. App. 4th 628, 658, 49 Cal. Rptr. 2d 620 (plaintiff's action to set aside judgment against based on alleged newly discovered evidence of judge's bias and prejudice filed seven years after issue of alleged bias was first raised in the prior action was clearly too late; plaintiff failed to show likelihood of success necessary to defeat defendant's Code Civ. Proc. § 425.16 motion to strike action as a SLAPP Suit)].

Earlier California Supreme Court cases stated that judgments made before disqualification is raised are void [Giometti v. Etienne (1934) 219 Cal. 687, 689, 28 P.2d 913 ; Cadenasso v. Bank of Italy (1932) 214 Cal. 562, 569, 6 P.2d 944 ; Lindsay-Strathmore Irrigation Dist. v. Superior Court of Tulare County (1920) 182 Cal. 315, 333, 187 P. 1056]. The recent cases, holding the judgments to be voidable rather than void, have noted that the earlier cases, based on earlier versions of the disqualification statutes, do not clearly state their underlying theory and do not uniformly accept the rule in its broadest form [Urias v. Harris Farms, Inc. (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 415, 423-424, 285 Cal. Rptr. 659]. Cadenasso, for example, although stating that the judgment was void and subject to attack at any time before the judgment becomes final, expressly indicated that it was not addressing the issue of whether an action to vacate the judgment would lie after the judgment became final [Cadenasso v. Bank of Italy (1932) 214 Cal. 562, 569, 6 P.2d 944] . Moreover, both Giometti and Lindsay-Strathmore I. Dist. involved judgments that were not yet final.

For discussion of collateral attack on judgments for lack of jurisdiction and discussion of void versus voidable judgments, see Ch. 489, Relief From Judgments and Orders .

The Code of Judicial Ethics establishes standards for ethical conduct of judges on and off the bench and is binding on them [Cal. Rules of Ct., Code Jud. Ethics, Preamble].

The Canons require a judge to disqualify himself or herself in any proceeding in which disqualification is required by law. In addition, in all trial court proceedings, a judge is required to disclose on the record information that the judge believes the parties or their lawyers might consider relevant to the question of disqualification, even if the judge believes there is no actual basis for disqualification [Cal. Rules of Ct., Code Jud. Ethics, Canon 3E].

27-317 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 317.37

§ 317.37 Interest in Proceeding

[1] Disqualifying Interests

The three types of interest for which a judge may be disqualified are:

- Being a party to the proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(4)];

- Having personal knowledge of disputed evidentiary facts concerning the proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(1)]; and

- Having a financial interest in the subject matter of, or in a party to, the proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(3); see § 317.38].

A "proceeding" is the action, case, cause, motion or special proceeding to be tried or heard by the judge [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.5(f)].

The statutory grounds for disqualification embody the ancient maxim that no person ought to be a judge in his or her own cause [Cadenasso v. Bank of Italy (1932) 214 Cal. 562, 570, 6 P.2d 944 ; Meyer v. City of San Diego (1898) 121 Cal. 102, 104, 53 P. 434] , a maxim which appeals so forcefully to one's sense of justice that it has been said to be a natural right. Both natural justice and enlightened public policy demand strict observance of this principle. For in addition to being judicially sound, a decision must be rendered by a court free from the charge of interest or the taint of partiality. Otherwise, public confidence will be destroyed and judicial usefulness undermined [see Meyer v. City of San Diego (1898) 121 Cal. 102, 104, 53 P. 434] .

[2] Judge Is Party to Proceeding

A judge shall be disqualified from sitting or acting in any action or proceeding to which the judge, or the judge's spouse, or a person within the third degree of relationship to either of them, or the spouse of such a person is a party or an officer, director, or trustee of a party [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(4)]. The third degree of relationship is to be calculated according to the civil law system [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.5(d)]. The expression "to which he or she is a party" in former Code Civ. Proc. § 170(1) was held to mean to which he or she is a real party [Younger v. Superior Court (1902) 136 Cal. 682, 685, 69 P. 485 (judge made party defendant to complaint in action for partition of land)] or "quasi" party, meaning a member of a group in a representative suit to protect the rights of that group and in which the judge could intervene [Lindsay-Strathmore Irrigation Dist. v. Superior Court. (1920) 182 Cal. 315, 326, 187 P. 1056] and made so in good faith [Younger v. Superior Court (1902) 136 Cal. 682, 685, 69 P. 485]. Thus, a plaintiff cannot make all the superior judges in the state save one parties to the action and thereby select his or her own judge [Younger v. Superior Court (1902) 136 Cal. 682, 685, 69 P. 485]. But when a judge is made a party on proper allegation, the judge cannot arbitrarily determine that this has been done in bad faith in order to work a disqualification [see Younger v. Superior Court (1902) 136 Cal. 682, 685, 69 P. 485 (writ of certiorari issued to annul trial judge's ex parte order striking from court files a complaint making judge party defendant to action)]. A judge who is related to an officer of a corporation that is not a party of record, but is nonetheless a real party in interest, is disqualified [see Lynip v. Alturas School District (1915) 29 Cal. App. 158, 160-161, 155 P. 109].

[3] Judge Has Knowledge of Disputed Facts

A judge shall be disqualified if he or she has personal knowledge of disputed evidentiary facts concerning the proceeding. A judge shall be deemed to have personal knowledge if the judge, or the spouse of the judge, or a person within the third degree of relationship to either of them, or the spouse of such a person is to the judge's knowledge likely to be a material witness in the proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(1)]; see People v. Williams (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 635, 653, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 573, 941 P.2d 752 (method of calculating degrees of relationship; finding witness to be related to judge, if at all, in fifth degree)].

This disqualifying provision is triggered only when a person with the requisite relationship to the judge is likely to be a material witness [People v. Williams (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 635, 653, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 573, 941 P.2d 752]. A material witness is one "who can give testimony ... no one else, or at least very few, can give" [People v. Williams (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 635, 653, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 573, 941 P.2d 752 (quoting from Black's Law Dict. (6th ed. 1990) p. 977, col.2)]. Testimony is material only if it is "important," "more or less necessary," "going to the merits," or if it has some likelihood of affecting the outcome of the case [People v. Williams (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 635, 653, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 573, 941 P.2d 752] (quoting from Black's Law Dict. (6th ed. 1990) p. 976, col.2); witness not material witness when witness's testimony was not important or necessary to merits of case and could not have affected outcome.

For a form alleging the judge to have knowledge of disputed facts that can be included in a statement of disqualification, see § 317.191.

§ 317.38 Having Financial Interest

[1] Disqualification

A judge shall be disqualified if he or she, or a spouse, or a minor child living in the household, has a financial interest in the subject matter in the proceeding or in a party to the proceeding or if the judge or the judge's spouse is a fiduciary who has a financial interest [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(3)(A), (B); see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Code Jud. Ethics, Canon 4D; for a form alleging this ground that can be included in a statement of disqualification, see § 317.192]. Fiduciary includes any executor, trustee, guardian, or administrator [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.5(g); see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Code Jud. Ethics, Terminology, Canon 4E]; and a judge has a duty to make reasonable efforts to inform himself or herself about his or her personal and fiduciary interests and those of his or her spouse and the personal financial interests of children living in the household [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(3)(C)].

Disqualification is merited even though the judge discovers his or her holding only after judgment is rendered and even though the outcome of the case cannot substantially affect the judge's interest as trustee [Tatum v. Southern Pacific Co. (1967) 250 Cal. App. 2d 40, 43, 58 Cal. Rptr. 238 (judgment of disqualified judge vacated; see discussion of the case at § 317.35[1])]. Furthermore, disqualification occurs whether or not the corporation in which the judge is a stockholder is a named party to the action [City of Vallejo v. Superior Court (1926) 199 Cal. 408, 416-418, 249 P. 1084 (plaintiff in condemnation action did not make bank owning deed of trust on property sought to be condemned a party to the action; though bank could have required that it be made party)], and even if the judge disposes of his or her stock after hearing evidence in the case but before rendition of judgment [Adams v. Minor (1898) 121 Cal. 372, 375, 53 P. 815 (judge disposed of bank stock)].

[2] "Financial Interest" Defined

"Financial interest" is defined as ownership of more than a one percent legal or equitable interest in a party, or a legal or equitable interest in a party of a fair market value in excess of $1,500, or a relationship as director, advisor, or other active participant in the affairs of a party, except as follows [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.5(b)]:

(1) Ownership in a mutual or common investment fund that holds securities is not a financial interest in those securities unless the judge participates in the management of the fund.

(2) An office in an educational, religious, charitable, fraternal, or civic organization is not a financial interest in securities held by the organization.

(3) The proprietary interest of a policyholder in a mutual insurance company, or a depositor in a mutual savings association, or a similar proprietary interest, is a financial interest in the organization only if the outcome of the proceeding could substantially affect the value of the interest.

It is not clear whether "equitable interest" as used in Code Civ. Proc. § 170.5(b) will be interpreted so broadly as to overrule prior law holding an interest as stockholder of a holding company that owned practically all the stock of a subsidiary that was the holder of mortgage on property sought to be condemned was too remote to disqualify the trial judge [Central Pac. Ry. Co. v. Superior Court (1931) 211 Cal. 706, 719-720, 296 P. 883].

Code Civ. Proc. § 170.5(b) defines "financial interest" only in terms of an interest in a party and thus seems inconsistent with Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(3), which specifies that a financial interest in the subject matter is also grounds for disqualification [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.1(a)(3), 170.5(b)]. If the two sections are harmonized to require disqualification for financial interest in the subject matter, or if a financial interest in the subject matter is deemed a ground for disqualification under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(6) (interests of justice require recusal or substantial doubt as to judge's capacity to be impartial), the following cases decided under former Code Civ. Proc. § 170(a)(1) may be helpful. They have stated the test of "interest" as follows:

"If a judge has an interest in the subject matter of an action, or property which may be directly affected by the result of a judgment that may be rendered, the court does not consider the extent of the interest nor inquire into the effect it would have on rulings. It is sufficient to disqualify a judge if there is a certain, definable, pecuniary, or proprietary interest or relation which will be directly affected by a judgment that may be rendered" [Hall v. Superior Court (1926) 198 Cal. 373, 379, 245 P. 814 ; Lindsay-Strathmore I. Dist. v. Superior Court (1920) 182 Cal. 315, 329-330, 187 P. 1056 ; see Meyer v. City of San Diego (1898) 121 Cal. 102, 104, 53 P. 434].

For example, if the validity of a special property tax is the subject of the litigation whose outcome will, without any further official action, prevent or impose a tax on the judge's property, he or she is disqualified [Meyer v. City of San Diego (1898) 121 Cal. 102, 110-111, 53 P. 434 (action to set aside contract and enjoin issuance and sale of bonds to carry out contract)].

The same rule applies if the judge's property is directly affected by his or her decision. For example, it applies when a judge's decision will stop the flow of mining tailings onto his or her property [North Bloomfield G.M. Co. v. Keyser (1881) 58 Cal. 315, 323], prevent the diversion of underground water under his or her land [Lindsay-Strathmore I. Dist. v. Superior Court (1920) 182 Cal. 315, 336, 187 P. 1056], or enjoin the use of a canal by an irrigation district within which he or she owns land [Hall v. Superior Court (1926) 198 Cal. 373, 383, 245 P. 814] .

27-317 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 317.39

§ 317.39 Interests That Do Not Disqualify Judge

It shall not be grounds for disqualification that the judge [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.2]:

(1) Is or is not a member of a racial, ethnic, religious, sexual or similar group and the proceeding involves the rights of such a group [see also Savage v. Trammell Crow Co. (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 1562, 1570, 1581, 273 Cal. Rptr. 302 (action relating to free speech right to spread gospel by leafletting in a shopping center parking lot; Section 170.2(a) precludes disqualification on basis that judge is Roman Catholic)];

(2) Has in any capacity expressed a view on a legal or factual issue presented in the proceeding, except as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(2) (as lawyer to party or in similar proceeding), or Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(b) or (c) (as judge) [see Roth v. Parker (1997) 57 Cal. App. 4th 542, 549, 67 Cal. Rptr. 2d 250 (mere fact that judge has participated in settlement discussions is not proper ground for disqualification under Code Civ. Proc. 170.2(b))]; or

(3) Has as a lawyer or public official participated in the drafting of laws or in the effort to pass or defeat laws, the meaning, effect or application of which is at issue in the proceeding unless the judge believes that his or her prior involvement was so well known as to raise a reasonable doubt in the public mind as to his or her capacity to be impartial.

Thus, a judge is not disqualified if he or she has an interest in a similar suit against the same or other defendants, or an interest in a point of law or issue of fact as such, or an interest in any general or special phase of the case, for that type of interest does not give rise to a definite, material, financial stake in the direct outcome of a particular case [see County of Nevada v. Superior Court (1974) 10 Cal. 3d 663, 664, 111 Cal. Rptr. 568, 517 P.2d 832 ; Goodspeed v. Great Western P. Co. (1937) 19 Cal. App. 2d 435, 444, 65 P.2d 1342]. For example, not all nonretired superior court judges were, as such, disqualified from hearing, or proceeding in, an action in which the validity of the Governmental Conflict of Interest Act, [see former Gov. Code §§ 3600-3760] was challenged [County of Nevada v. Superior Court (1974) 10 Cal. 3d 663, 664, 111 Cal. Rptr. 568, 517 P.2d 832 (superior court had refused to exercise its jurisdiction)].

And the mere fact that the outcome of litigation might have a conceivable effect upon a tax rate will not disqualify a judge-taxpayer [see Cuyamaca Water Co. v. Superior Court of California (1924) 193 Cal. 584, 593, 226 P. 604 (action to quiet title); Oakland v. Oakland Water Front Co. (1897) 118 Cal. 249, 252, 50 P. 268 (company claimed interest in land adverse to city's interest); Central & West Basin Water etc. Dist. v. Wong (1976) 55 Cal. App. 3d 191, 195, 127 Cal. Rptr. 448 (action against water district might lower property taxes and water rates paid by judge presiding at trial)].

In summary, the rule is that a judge will not be disqualified unless the decision to be made would have a direct and ascertainable impact on the judge or his or her property. The impact will not be deemed to exist unless the effect of the judge's decision on his or her interest can be predicted in advance with assurance. For instance, if the decision will actually raise or lower taxes on the judge's property, or if his or her costs for water will be increased or reduced, the judge is disqualified. But if these predictions cannot be made with some degree of certainty because an independent determination must be made by an independent body whose action is not a foregone conclusion, the judge is not disqualified [Central & West Basin Water etc. Dist. v. Wong (1976) 55 Cal. App. 3d 191, 195, 127 Cal. Rptr. 448].

C. Disqualification of Judges for Cause Under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170-170.5

27-317 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 317.40

§ 317.40 Rule of Necessity Precluding Disqualification

In certain instances the rule of necessity may allow a judge to hear a case. The rule of necessity means that a judge is not disqualified to try the case because of his or her personal interest in the matter at issue if no other judge is available to hear and decide the case [People v. Superior Court (Mudge) (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 407, 410, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 721]. For example, when members of an appellate court panel belonged to the California Judges Association, which had filed an amicus curiae brief in support of the trial court's ruling, and the brief indicated that the majority of California trial judges and appellate justices, approximately 90 percent, belong to the Association, membership in that organization by the appellate court panel was held not to disqualify them from hearing the matter. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.2(a), it is not a grounds of disqualification that the judge is or is not a member of a racial, ethnic, religious, sexual, or similar group and the proceeding involves the rights of the group. Some appellate panel had to hear the case and the rule of necessity allowed the appellate panel to do so in the pending matter [People v. Superior Court (Mudge) (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 407, 410, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 721 (Code Civ. Proc. § 170.65 declared unconstitutional); see Olson v. Cory (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 203, 27 Cal. 3d 532, 537, 164 Cal. Rptr. 217, 178 Cal. Rptr. 568, 609 P. 2d 991, 636 P.2d 532 (rule of necessity provides that judge is not to be disqualified because of personal financial interest if no other judge or court is available)].

§ 317.41 Related to Lawyer in Proceeding

A judge shall be disqualified if a lawyer or a spouse of a lawyer in the proceeding is the spouse, former spouse, child, sibling, or parent of the judge or the judge's spouse or if that person is associated in the private practice of law with a lawyer in the proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(5)]. In construing a similar provision under prior law, disqualification was upheld despite evidence that the relative of the judge had discontinued his partnership with the attorney of record [Johnston v. Brown (1897) 115 Cal. 694, 696, 47 P. 686]. However, a judge is not disqualified by relationship to an attorney whose signature on papers does not constitute a bona fide appearance in the case [Benton v. Budd (1898) 120 Cal. 329, 331, 52 P. 851]. For a form alleging this ground that can be included in a statement of disqualification, see § 317.193.

C. Disqualification of Judges for Cause Under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170-170.5

27-317 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 317.42

§ 317.42 Lawyer or Former Lawyer of Party

[1] Disqualification

A judge shall be disqualified in any proceeding when he or she has served as a lawyer in the proceeding, or in any other proceeding involving the same issues he or she served as a lawyer for any party in the present proceeding or gave advice to any party in the present proceeding on any matter involved in the action or proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(2)(A)]. For a form alleging this ground that can be included in a statement of disqualification, see § 317.194.

A judge shall be deemed to have served as a lawyer in the proceeding if within the past two years [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(2)(B)]:

- A party to the proceeding or an officer, director, or trustee of a party was a client of the judge when the judge was in the private practice of law or a client of a lawyer with whom the judge was associated in the private practice of law; or

- A lawyer in the proceeding was associated in the private practice of law with the judge.

[2] Private Practice of Law Defined

"Private practice of law" includes a fee for service, retainer, or salaried representation of private clients or public agencies, but excludes lawyers as full-time employees of public agencies or lawyers working exclusively for legal aid offices, public defender offices, or similar nonprofit entities whose clientele is by law restricted to the indigent [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.5(e)]. Nevertheless, a judge who served as a lawyer for or an officer of a public agency that is a party to the proceeding shall be deemed to have served as a lawyer in the proceeding if he or she personally advised or in any way represented the public agency concerning the factual or legal issues in the proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(2)(C)]. "Officer of a public agency" does not include a Member of the Legislature or a state or local agency official acting in a legislative capacity [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.5(c)].

[3] Representation or Advice Involving Same Issues

Disqualification for having served as a lawyer for, or given advice to, any party in the present proceeding in any other proceeding or on any matter involving the same issues as the present proceeding applies to representation or advice whether or not it occurred within two years before the present proceeding. Any attorney-client relationship between the judge or any associate of the judge and any party or officer, director, or trustee of a party, as well as an association between the judge and any lawyer in the proceeding, is deemed to constitute serving in the proceeding if it occurred within the past two years [see Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(2)(B)]. Thus, so long as the attorney-client relationship between the judge and a party occurred more than two years before the proceeding, a judge is not necessarily prohibited from acting if the same issues are not involved [see Reeve v. Jahn (1937) 9 Cal. 2d 244, 250, 70 P.2d 610 (judge was not disqualified when at least 30 years before he had acted as attorney and guardian ad litem for minor children of deceased wife in partition proceeding but that property was not in question in subsequent quiet title action); Morrissey v. Gray (1911) 160 Cal. 390, 393, 117 P. 438 (judge who had previously acted as attorney for widow to secure letters of administration on estate and to set apart probate homestead was not disqualified from trying action to foreclose mortgage against estate despite having drafted mortgage being foreclosed; applying former Code Civ. Proc. § 170 prior to 1927 amendment adding the two-year provision)]. Some "issue" must be put into controversy before disqualification is properly raised [see Muller v. Muller(1965) 235 Cal. App. 2d 341, 343-344, 45 Cal. Rptr. 182 (no issue in controversy when defendant allowed default to be entered against him)]. Under former Code Civ. Proc. § 170(4), it has been held that there must be some indication of actual participation by the judge in the previous action before grounds exist for disqualification [People v. Peralez (1971) 14 Cal. App. 3d 368, 376, 92 Cal. Rptr. 256 (judge's name appeared as district attorney in record of defendant's prior robbery conviction)].

[4] Requirement That Advice Have Been Given to Party

Although a judge may be disqualified for having given advice to any party on any matter involved in the case [see Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(2)(A)], the prohibition does not extend to advice given to persons not parties to an action who are alleged to have similar causes of action with the one involved [Lassen Irr. Co. v. Superior Court (1907) 151 Cal. 357, 362-363, 90 P. 709 (judge had counseled persons who had claims against water company similar to plaintiff's)], nor to advice given as a friend rather than in a professional capacity [Lassen Irr. Co. v. Superior Court (1907) 151 Cal. 357, 363, 90 P. 709 (dictum)].

Under prior law when a party had served as an agent for a former client of the judge, the principal was not a party within the contemplation of former Code Civ. Proc. § 170(a)(4); thus, the judge was not disqualified from acting [see O.A. Graybeal Co. v. Cook (1936) 16 Cal. App. 2d 231, 234, 60 P.2d 525 (judge was former attorney for bank (not a party) of which holding corporation, the party, was an agent)].

[5] Served as Lawyer Within Previous Two Years

A judge shall be disqualified if he or she or a lawyer with whom he or she was associated in private practice, has served as a lawyer for a party within the past two years [see Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(2)]. The purpose of this provision is not only to guard jealously the actual impartiality of a judge, but also to insure public confidence; it should be liberally construed with a view to effect its objects and to promote justice [People v. Thomas (1972) 8 Cal. 3d 518, 520, 105 Cal. Rptr. 366, 503 P.2d 1374 (decided under former Code Civ. Proc. § 170(4)]. Thus, when a law firm (then headed by the judge in the present case) has represented the present defendant within the past two years the judge is disqualified [see Mayo v. Beber (1960) 177 Cal. App. 2d 544, 549, 2 Cal. Rptr. 405 (dictum decided under former Code Civ. Proc. § 170(4)) (but motion for new trial on grounds of disqualification was properly denied because plaintiff impliedly waived the judge's disqualification)]. On the other hand, a judge who had formerly been employed as an assistant district attorney within two years before the commencement of a prosecution for taking a vehicle in violation of former Veh. Code § 10851 was not an "attorney or counsel for any party" within this provision of former Code Civ. Proc. § 170(4) [People v. Thomas (1972) 8 Cal. 3d 518, 520-521, 105 Cal. Rptr. 366, 503 P.2d 1374]. The court reasoned that where the offense was not committed until more than a year after the assistant district attorney's elevation to the bench, it was unreasonable to assume that his prior representation of the People would result in conscious or unconscious bias for two years in all criminal cases in the county in which the judge had formerly served as assistant district attorney [People v. Thomas (1972) 8 Cal. 3d 518, 520-521, 105 Cal. Rptr. 366, 503 P.2d 1374].

[6] Waiver of Disqualification

Express waiver of disqualification for having served as an attorney in the matter in controversy is not authorized [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.3(b)(2)].

However, even this non-waivable ground for disqualification can be waived if the party is aware of the ground of disqualification and fails to challenge the non-disqualification by a timely petition for writ of mandate pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 170.3(d) [People v. Barrera (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 541, 552, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 755 (treating time when parties decided to waive disqualification as the time of notice to parties of the decision that sets in motion the 10-day period for seeking review by writ of mandate)].

For further discussion of an express waiver of disqualification, see § 317.54.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Disqualification of Judges for Cause Under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170-170.5

27-317 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 317.43

§ 317.43 Bias or Prejudice

[1] Disqualification

A judge shall be disqualified in any proceeding when for any reason [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(6)(A)]:

(1) The judge believes his or her recusal would further the interests of justice;

(2) The judge believes there is a substantial doubt as to his or her capacity to be impartial; or

(3) A person aware of the facts might reasonably entertain a doubt that the judge would be able to be impartial.

Bias or prejudice towards a lawyer in the proceeding may be grounds for disqualification [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(6)(B); for a form alleging this ground that can be included in a statement of disqualification, see § 317.195].

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(6)(A)(iii), a court need not determine whether there is actual bias to order disqualification. The objective test is whether a reasonable member of the public at large, aware of all the facts, would fairly entertain doubts as to the judge's impartiality [Christie v. City of El Centro (2006) 135 Cal. App. 4th 767, 776, 37 Cal. Rptr. 3d 718 ; Housing Authority of the County of Monterey v. Jones (2005) 130 Cal. App. 4th 1029, 1041-1042, 30 Cal. Rptr. 3d 676 ; Briggs v. Superior Court (2001) 87 Cal. App. 4th 312, 318-319, 104 Cal. Rptr. 2d 445 ; Ng v. Superior Court (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 1010, 1024, 61 Cal. Rptr. 2d 49]. Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(6) is broader than the former Code Civ. Proc. § 170(a)(5) which provided for disqualification when it appeared probable that, by reason of bias or prejudice on the part of the judge, a fair and impartial trial could not be had before that judge [see Ensher, Alexander & Barsoom v. Ensher (1964) 225 Cal. App. 2d 318, 322-323, 37 Cal. Rptr. 327] . The cases discussed in this section and the following sections that were decided under prior law and may be subject to reinterpretation under the statutory scheme enacted in 1984. For discussion of whether a financial interest in the subject matter of the proceeding could be used as a basis for disqualification under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(6), see § 317.38.

Bias or prejudice consists of a mental attitude or disposition of a judge toward a party to the litigation [Ensher, Alexander & Barsoom v. Ensher (1964) 225 Cal. App. 2d 318, 323, 37 Cal. Rptr. 327], and if it is sufficiently serious to impair a judge's impartiality so that it appears probable that a fair trial cannot be held, a judge will be disqualified [see Ensher, Alexander & Barsoom v. Ensher (1964) 225 Cal. App. 2d 318, 322-323, 37 Cal. Rptr. 327]. A judge's remarks about the veracity of a witness who is not a party [Evans v. Superior Court (1930) 107 Cal. App. 372, 379, 290 P. 662 (judge stated that witness had committed perjury in another matter)], and under prior law, a judge's strained relations with a party's attorney [Higgins v. San Diego (1899) 126 Cal. 303, 314-315, 58 P. 700] do not merit a judge's disqualification.

It has been held under former Code Civ. Proc. § 170(5) that disqualification requires not only a showing of bias or prejudice, but also a determination that by reason thereof, a fair and impartial trial cannot be had [Briggs v. Superior Court (1932) 215 Cal. 336, 343, 10 P.2d 1003 (when judge charged that petitioners had misstated truth in their affidavit, it was not probable that he could preside fairly and impartially over a contempt proceeding against them); Rohr v. Johnson (1944) 65 Cal. App. 2d 208, 211, 150 P.2d 5 (although judge had indicated that he thought the defendant honest, it was probable that he could be fair and impartial in an action to recover personal property when only issues presented were plaintiff's incompetence at time she gave property to defendant and whether gift was induced by undue influence on defendant's part)].

[2] No Disqualification for Bias to Pass on Question of Law

There can be no disqualification of a judge for bias to pass on questions of law alone [Calhoun v. Superior Court (1958) 51 Cal. 2d 257, 260-261, 331 P.2d 648 (but judge was disqualified because issues before court not limited to issues of law where conviction of criminal defendant might result in motion for new trial and in passing on that motion, court's duty would be to consider weight of evidence); but see McKay v. Superior Court (1950) 98 Cal. App. 2d 770, 777, 220 P.2d 945 (holding in case involving trial for murder there was no distinction in disqualifying effect of statements of judge based on whether case was to be tried before jury or before judge sitting without a jury)]. If decided correctly, all issues of law must be decided the same way regardless of whether the judge be biased. If the issue is decided incorrectly in a lower court, presumably the error will be corrected on appeal [Calhoun v. Superior Court (1958) 51 Cal. 2d 257, 260-261, 331 P.2d 648].

[3] When Judge Has Belief in Perjury by Party

In deciding questions of fact, a judge may often reject the testimony of a party, but this does not necessarily indicate that he or she believes that the party was guilty of deliberate falsification [Keating v. Superior Court of San Francisco (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 440, 443]. The rejection of the testimony may have been the result of a consideration of the ability of the party to observe or remember, and in that situation failure to accept a party's version of the facts does not show that the judge is biased or prejudiced against him or her [Keating v. Superior Court of San Francisco (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 440, 444]. Nor is a judge disqualified from proceeding to try and decide a case or pass on a motion for new trial because he or she states during the course of the trial that in his or her opinion a party has deliberately given false testimony, provided the opinion of the judge is based upon a consideration of the evidence produced [see Kreling v. Superior Court (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 305, 312-313, 153 P.2d 734 (judge rendered decision as to affirmative defense raised in one case which was to be raised in other subsequent cases; because cases were consolidated, however, subsequent hearings were not considered to be retrials and judge was not disqualified from hearing them); Fishbaugh v. Fishbaugh (1940) 15 Cal. 2d 445, 456, 101 P.2d 1084 (judge was not disqualified when claim of disqualification was not made in connection with retrial of action)]. It is the duty of a judge when acting as the trier of the facts to pass on the credibility of witnesses, and if he or she believes that a party has testified falsely, and chooses to say so rather than remain silent, he or she is not disqualified from proceeding to render judgment [Keating v. Superior Court (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 440, 444].

The rule is different, however, and a judge is disqualified from the retrial of a case when he or she has stated during the course of the prior trial that he or she believes a party has done one of the following things:

- Willfully sworn falsely [Keating v. Superior Court (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 440, 444, 289 P.2d 209 (judge so stated after conclusion of testimony in fraudulent conversion action); but see Taliaferro v. Taliaferro (1962) 203 Cal. App. 2d 642, 647, 21 Cal. Rptr. 864 (judge not disqualified when, in a wholly different prior action, he had "thought of" referring the defendant to the district attorney for perjury but had subsequently apologized to defendant in chambers and had not referred the matter); McEwen v. Occidental Life Ins. Co. (1916) 172 Cal. 6, 11, 155 P. 86 (when judge commented that he did not see how jurors could possibly have reached their particular verdict, he was not considered to have charged any party with perjury)];

- Has willfully misstated the facts [Evans v. Superior Court (1930) 107 Cal. App. 372, 382-383, 290 P. 662 (judge likened defendant's conduct to that of a pirate)]; or

- Has knowingly made false statements in an affidavit [Briggs v. Superior Court of Los Angeles County (1932) 215 Cal. 336, 343, 10 P.2d 1003 (constructive contempt action)].

In these circumstances, a judge is disqualified even though his or her belief may have been founded on evidence produced during the prior trial [see Keating v. Superior Court (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 440, 444, 289 P.2d 209 ; Briggs v. Superior Court of Los Angeles County (1932) 215 Cal. 336, 343, 10 P.2d 1003] and whether the subsequent trial is to be of the entire case or only a retrial of a single issue [Keating v. Superior Court (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 440, 446, 289 P.2d 209 (single issue of damages)].

The rationale be hind the rule that a judge is disqualified from the retrial of a cause when he or she has expressed an opinion to the effect that a party has committed perjury in testifying at a former trial is that every litigant has the right to have his or her cause tried by one who has no preconceived opinion against his or her veracity which may preclude a full and fair consideration of the facts and the law involved [Chastain v. Superior Court (1936) 14 Cal. App. 2d 97, 103, 57 P. 2d 982].

[4] When Judge Has Fixed Opinion

A judge who has a fixed opinion as to some characteristic of a party such that the judge is prevented from deciding the case according to the evidence is disqualified [see Adoption of Richardson (1967) 251 Cal. App. 2d 222, 232, 59 Cal. Rptr. 323 (prior to hearing at which deaf-mutes were to seek adoption of child, judge wrote to adoption bureau director and said adoption should be "nipped in the bud"; at hearing, judge indicated that he would not approve an adoption of a normal child by deaf-mutes under any circumstances); but see Adoption of Schroetter (1968) 261 Cal. App. 2d 365, 369-370, 67 Cal. Rptr. 819 (judge was not disqualified for having indicated concern over fact that prospective adoptive parent had had psychiatric treatment in past)].

The Richardson decision court elaborated on the meaning of bias or prejudice as follows:

> "Bias equates here with partiality. Here the judge had a fixed opinion of the unfitness of petitioners solely because they were deaf-mutes. He was under some influence which so swayed his mind in one direction as to prevent his deciding the case according to the evidence. This leaning or inclination against all deaf-mutes without regard to their character, abilities and demonstrated fine qualities is inconsistent with a state of mind fully open to conviction which the evidence might produce. One whose opinion is preconceived and expressed in writing with reference to particular persons or situations is obviously inclined to that view, and considerable evidence would ordinarily be necessary before those positively expressed impressions could be removed and his mind restored to the straight line of impartiality" [Adoption of Richardson (1967) 251 Cal. App. 2d 222, 232, 59 Cal. Rptr. 323].

[5] Nondisqualifying Matters

[a] Listed

Examples of alleged causes of bias or prejudice that have been held under prior law to be insufficient to disqualify a judge are numerous and varied. Despite this fact, many of the cases which discuss this issue may be classified under the following five headings [see Kreling v. Superior Court (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 305, 310-312, 153 P.2d 734 ; In re Morelli (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 819, 843-844, 91 Cal. Rptr. 72 ; Shakin v. Board of Medical Examiners (1967) 254 Cal. App. 2d 102, 116-117, 62 Cal. Rptr. 274 ; Rohr v. Johnson (1944) 65 Cal. App. 2d 208, 211, 150 P.2d 5] :

- Erroneous rulings against a litigant.
- Opinion uttered in the discharge of judicial duty.
- Error on a question of law.
- Opinion based on actual observance in participation in legal proceedings.
- Prior information without hostility.

[b] Erroneous Rulings Against Litigant

Erroneous rulings against a litigant, even when numerous and continuous, form no ground for a charge of bias and prejudice, especially when they are subject to review on appeal [McEwen v. Occidental Life Ins. Co. (1916) 172 Cal. 6, 10-11, 155 P. 86 (plaintiff complained that judge had generally ruled against her counsel's objections to admitting certain evidence); Shakin v. Board of Medical Examiners (1967) 254 Cal. App. 2d 102, 116, 62 Cal. Rptr. 274)].

[c] Opinion Uttered in Discharge of Official Duty

An expression of opinion uttered by a judge, in what he or she conceives to be the discharge of official duties, is not evidence of bias or prejudice [Kreling v. Superior Court (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 305, 310-312, 153 P.2d 734 ; see People v. Brown (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 322, 336-337, 24 Cal. Rptr. 2d 710, 862 P.2d 710 (judge's ex parte communications with juror, defense investigator, and defense counsel arising out of frustration with counsel's investigation of irrelevant matters did not rise to level requiring disqualification); McEwen v. Occidental Life Ins. Co. (1916) 172 Cal. 6, 11, 155 P. 86 (judge's remark that he did not know how jury could possibly have reached such verdict indicated perhaps that he had formed an opinion regarding the legal questions presented in the case); Taliaferro v. Taliaferro (1962) 203 Cal. App. 2d 642, 646-647, 21 Cal. Rptr. 864 (judge "thought of" referring defendant to district attorney for perjury but later apologized and did not refer matter); Wampler v. Muller (1953) 121 Cal. App. 2d 396, 398, 262 P.2d 853 (judge stated in writing to counsel that he believed that counsel's motion for a new trial had more than usual merit when it was hard to believe jury's verdict)].

[d] Error on Question of Law

A judge's error as to a question of law does not constitute bias or prejudice [In re Morelli (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 819, 849, 91 Cal. Rptr. 72 (judge refused to shorten or extend time for court procedures); Shakin v. Board of Medical Examiners (1967) 254 Cal. App. 2d 102, 116, 62 Cal. Rptr. 274 (judge denied petitions for stay of judgment on three occasions); Estate of Buchman (1955) 132 Cal. App. 2d 81, 104, 281 P.2d 608 (judge denied due process to executor); Ryan v. Welte (1948) 87 Cal. App. 2d 888, 895, 198 P.2d 351 (judge ruled that plaintiff could not state a cause of action)]. This is true no matter how gross the error, since a litigant cannot substitute proceedings for disqualification for his or her remedy of appeal [Ryan v. Welte (1948) 87 Cal. App. 2d 888, 893, 895, 198 P.2d 351].

[e] Opinion Based on Observance of Proceedings

When a judge's state of mind appears to be adverse to a party, but the adversity is based on his or her actual observance of witnesses and evidence given, the judge's attitude does not amount to that prejudice against a party which disqualifies the judge [People v. Yeager (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 374, 391, 10 Cal. Rptr. 829, 359 P.2d 261 (judge's remand of juvenile defendant to justice court and raising amount of bail were determinations based on facts before him); Kreling v. Superior Court (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 305, 312, 153 P.2d 734 (judge decided question of fact during first of four consolidated trials); Haldane v. Haldane (1965) 232 Cal. App. 2d 393, 395, 42 Cal. Rptr. 828 (judge's attitude toward parties to divorce action developed during course of trial)]. The rationale behind this rule is that it is the judge's duty to consider and pass on evidence produced and, when it is in conflict, to resolve the conflict in favor of the party whose evidence outweighs that of the opposing party [People v. Yeager (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 374, 391, 10 Cal. Rptr. 829, 359 P.2d 261 (criminal prosecution for robbery)].

[f] Prior Information Without Hostility

A judge's prior knowledge or opinions on the background of a case or a party to the case, which are so inconsequential as to be no indication whatsoever of hostility, are not probative of any bias or prejudice [In re Morelli (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 819, 845-846, 91 Cal. Rptr. 72 (actions of judge which were not pertinent to issues of contempt action); Rohr v. Johnson (1944) 65 Cal. App. 2d 208, 211, 150 P.2d 5 (judge believed in honesty and uprightness of defendant but issues involved did not necessarily concern his honesty); Goodspeed v. Great Western P. Co. (1937) 19 Cal. App. 2d 435, 447-449, 65 P.2d 1342 (judge had acquired data as to status of defendant's predecessor company during an investigation some 15 years before when he was attorney; any informed member of community would have same knowledge)].

[6] Review in Superior Court Appellate Division

Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(6)(C) is broad enough to require the disqualification of a judge from an appellate panel reviewing a judgment where that same judge heard a pretrial matter involving a contested factual or legal issue related to the merits, or made a procedural determination that had a substantial effect on the ultimate outcome, or where the determination, though not directly appealable, is related to an issue on appeal from the final judgment [Housing Authority of the County of Monterey v. Jones (2005) 130 Cal. App. 4th 1029, 1041-1042, 30 Cal. Rptr. 3d 676]. Disqualification under these circumstances is required under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(6)(C) even though the pretrial proceeding heard by the judge is not the one on appeal [Housing Authority of the County of Monterey v. Jones (2005) 130 Cal. App. 4th 1029, 1042, 30 Cal. Rptr. 3d 676].

A judge must be disqualified when, by reason of permanent or temporary physical impairment, he or she is unable to properly perceive the evidence or properly conduct the proceedings [*Code Civ. § 317.44A Prospective Employment as Dispute Resolution Professional

A judge must be disqualified when he or she has a current arrangement concerning prospective employment or other compensated service as a dispute resolution neutral or is participating in, or, within the last two years has participated in, discussions regarding prospective employment or service as a dispute resolution neutral, or has been engaged in such employment or service, and any of the following applies [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(8)(A)]:

- The arrangement is, or the discussion was, with a party to the proceeding;

- The matter before the judge includes issues relating to the enforcement of an agreement to submit a dispute to alternative dispute resolution or the appointment or use of a dispute resolution neutral;

- The judge directs the parties to participate in an alternative dispute resolution process in which the dispute resolution neutral will be an individual or entity with whom the judge has the arrangement, has previously been employed or served, or is discussing or has discussed the employment or service; or

- The judge will select a dispute resolution neutral or entity to conduct an alternative dispute resolution process in the matter before the judge, and among those available for selection is an individual or entity with whom the judge has the arrangement, with whom the judge has previously been employed or served, or with whom the judge is discussing or has discussed the employment or service.

The statute specifies that "party" includes the parent, subsidiary, or other legal affiliate of any entity that is a party and is involved in the transaction, contract, or facts that gave rise to the issues subject to the proceeding. "Dispute resolution neutral" means an arbitrator, mediator, temporary judge, referee, special master, neutral evaluator, settlement officer, or settlement facilitator. "Participating in discussions" or "has participated in discussion" means that the judge solicited or otherwise indicated an interest in accepting or negotiating possible employment or service as an alternative dispute resolution neutral or responded to an unsolicited statement regarding, or an offer of, such employment or service by expressing an interest in that employment or service, making any inquiry regarding the employment or service, or encouraging the person making the statement or offer to provide additional information about that possible employment or service. If a judge's response to an unsolicited statement regarding, a question about, or offer of, prospective employment or other compensated service as a dispute resolution neutral is limited to responding negatively, declining the offer, or declining to discuss such employment or service, that response does not constitute participating in discussions [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(8)(B)].

Grounds for disqualification under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(8)(A) apply when they both arise and are learned of, not when the judge understands their legal significance [Rossco Holdings, Inc. v Bank of America (2007) 149 Cal. App. 4th 1353, 1363, 58 Cal. Rptr. 3d 141] .

27-317 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 317.46

§ 317.46 Statement of Disqualification by Party

If a judge who should disqualify himself or herself refuses or fails to do so, any party may file with the clerk a written, verified statement objecting to the hearing or trial before the judge and setting forth the facts constituting grounds for disqualification [see §§ 317.190 -317.196]. The statement must be presented at the earliest practicable opportunity after discovery of the facts constituting the grounds for disqualification, and copies of the statement must be served on each party or his or her attorney who has appeared and must be personally served on the judge alleged to be disqualified, or on his or her clerk, provided that the judge is present in the courthouse or in chambers [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.3(c)(1)].

The verified statement of disqualification must set forth facts, not conclusions, from which a judge's disqualification for cause appears probable as to an issue or issues to be tried [see Calhoun v. Superior Court (1958) 51 Cal. 2d 257, 260, 331 P.2d 648 (statement declaring fixed belief of judge that party was dishonest and that his testimony was unworthy of belief showed bias); Shakin v. Board of Medical Examiners (1967) 254 Cal. App. 2d 102, 117, 62 Cal. Rptr. 274 (statement declaring judge had natural bias or prejudice against constitutional rights of individual showed so little bias as to be sham and frivolous); Ensher, Alexander & Barsoom v. Ensher (1964) 225 Cal. App. 2d 318, 323, 37 Cal. Rptr. 327 (statement declaring that, at most, judge would be unable to continue with case on remittitur if further matters would be lengthy because of judge's appointment as administrator of state agency showed no bias)]. For a form of statement, see § 317.190.

It has been suggested that if there are numerous parties, one of whom challenges the qualification of a judge in the manner provided by the Code of Civil Procedure, the challenge inures to all parties [Turkington v. Municipal Court (1948) 85 Cal. App. 2d 631, 639, 193 P.2d 795 (dictum)]. It is the fact of disqualification that is important, not who raises it [Turkington v. Municipal Court (1948) 85 Cal. App. 2d 631, 639, 193 P.2d 795 (dictum)].

The statement must be verified in the manner provided by Code Civ. Proc. § 446 for the verification of pleadings [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.3(c)(1)] or as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5 (declaration under penalty of perjury) or Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.6 (written affirmation).

The written statement must be served on each party, or his or her attorney, who has appeared in the action and on the judge alleged to be disqualified. The judge may be served personally or by service on his or her clerk, provided the judge is present in the courthouse or in chambers [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.3(c)(1)].

- Conclusions.
- References to copious transcripts without citation to specific excerpts.
- Allegations of facts not pertinent or appropriate to the issues to be determined in the hearing.
- Material not legally indicative of bias or prejudice, such as judicial opinions expressed in discharge of litigation and judicial ruling.
- Judicial reactions based on actual observations in legal proceedings.
- References to circumstances so inconsequential as to be no indication whatsoever of hostility and nonprobative of any bias or prejudice.

A judge may not disregard a statement of disqualification even if it is legally insufficient as a matter of law or untimely. The judge must strike the insufficient statement from the file within the 10-day period for filing a consent or answer [Urias v. Harris Farms, Inc. (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 415, 421, 285 Cal. Rptr. 659] .

A judge's powers to file an answer to a statement of disqualification under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.3(c)(3) and to strike a statement of disqualification under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.4(b) are not mutually exclusive; in other words, a judge may first file an answer and then strike a statement of disqualification as long as he or she complies with the 10-day time limit of Code Civ. Proc. § 170.3(c) [PBA, LLC v. KPOD, Ltd. (2003) 112 Cal. App. 4th 965, 972-973, 5 Cal. Rptr. 3d 532].

§ 317.49 Consent or Answer by Judge

Within 10 days after the statement of disqualification is filed or within 10 days after it is served, whichever is later, the judge may file a consent to the disqualification, in which case the judge shall notify the presiding judge or the person authorized to appoint a replacement of his or her recusal, or the judge may file a written verified answer admitting or denying any or all of the allegations contained in the party's statement and setting forth any additional facts material or relevant to the question of his or her disqualification [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.3(c)(3); see also Oak Grove School Dist. v. City Title Ins. Co. (1963) 217 Cal. App. 2d 678, 702, 32 Cal. Rptr. 288] . The clerk must forthwith transmit a copy of the consent or answer to each party or his or her attorney who has appeared in the proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.3(c)(3)].

Without conceding his or her disqualification, a judge whose impartiality has been challenged by the filing of a written statement may request any other judge agreed on by the parties to sit and act in his or her place [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.3(c)(2); for a stipulation by the parties, see § 317.199].

A judge who fails to file a consent or answer within the time allowed shall be deemed to have consented to his or her disqualification and the clerk shall notify the presiding judge or person authorized to appoint a replacement [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.3(c)(4)]. This automatic disqualification for failure to answer under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.3(c)(4) does not require that the statement of disqualification be sufficient as a matter of law or timely. The judge may not ignore such a statement. Even if the statement is insufficient or untimely, the judge will be disqualified if he or she does not answer or strike the statement from the file within the 10-day period for filing a consent or answer [Urias v. Harris Farms, Inc. (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 415, 421, 285 Cal. Rptr. 659 (construing Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.3(c)(4), 170.4(b))].

§ 317.50 Determination of Disqualification

A judge who refuses to recuse himself or herself shall not pass on his or her own disqualification. Rather, all questions concerning the judge's disqualification must be heard and determined by another judge [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.3(c)(5)]. The judge to hear the questions may be agreed on by the parties who have appeared in the case [see § 317.198] or, if they fail to agree within five days after notification of the judge's answer, the clerk must notify the Executive Officer of the Judicial Council of the need for a selection. The chairperson of the Judicial Council, or the vice-chairperson if the chairperson is unable to act, will make the selection as expeditiously as possible. No challenge may be made, for cause or otherwise, against the judge selected to decide the question of disqualification [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.3(c)(5)]. Additionally, the parties may impliedly agree on a judge to determine disqualification as would be the case if the party claiming disqualification voluntarily chooses to have the hearing before a named judge and the other party makes no objection and participates in the hearing [Donovan v. Superior Court (1952) 39 Cal. 2d 848, 853, 250 P.2d 246].

If a judge chooses to appear and contest a disqualification for cause under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1, he or she may request representation by the county counsel [see Gov. Code § 27647].

The judge deciding the question of disqualification may decide the question on the basis of the statement of disqualification and answer and any written arguments the judge requests, or the judge may set the matter for hearing as promptly as practicable. If a hearing is ordered, the judge shall permit the parties and the judge alleged to be disqualified to argue the question of disqualification and shall for good cause shown hear evidence on any disputed issue of fact. If the judgment deciding the question of disqualification determines that the judge is disqualified, the judge hearing the question shall notify the presiding judge or the person having authority to appoint a replacement of the disqualified judge [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.3(c)(6)].

Apparently, the qualified judge selected by both parties to hear and determine the matter of a judge's disqualification need not be a judge of the same court. Furthermore, any judge selected by the parties to hear and determine the matter of a judge's disqualification must be an active, not a retired, judge, and the judge selected may refuse to serve unless assigned by the presiding judge of the court where the matter is pending or by the Chairperson of the Judicial Council [see 62 Ops. Cal. Att'y Gen. 295 (1979)] .

§ 317.51 Selection of Nondisqualified Judge to Try Main Case

If a judge is disqualified by in any of the following ways, the main case must be heard and determined by another judge who is not disqualified [see Code Civ. Proc. § 170.3(a)(1), (c)(6)]:

- Admitting disqualification.
- Filing a written consent to disqualification.
- Failing to file an answer within 10 days.
- Being determined to be disqualified in a hearing.

There are several methods for selecting a new judge. The parties may agree on a nondisqualified judge [see § 317.199], and if this is done, the disqualified judge may request that the new judge sit and act in his or her place [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.4(a)(2)]. Or, if the parties fail to agree, the presiding judge must assign a nondisqualified judge to hear and determine the case [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.3(a), (c)(6)]. If the disqualified judge is the presiding judge, the judge appointed to act in the absence or inability of the presiding judge would make the appointment [see Code Civ. Proc. § 170.3(a)(2), (c)(6)]. When the disqualified judge is the only judge of the court or there is no judge of the court who is qualified to hear the matter, the chairperson of the Judicial Council must assign a judge to hear the matter [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.3(a)(2), (c)(6), 170.8].

A determination of the question of the disqualification of a judge is reviewable only by writ of mandate from the appropriate court of appeal sought within 10 days of notice to the parties of the decision [Fink v. Shemtov (2010) 180 Cal. App. 4th 1160, 1176, 103 Cal. Rptr. 3d 509] .

§ 317.52 Review of Determination Regarding Disqualification

A determination of the question of a judge's disqualification is not an appealable order. It may be reviewed only by writ of mandate from the appropriate court of appeal and sought only by the parties to the proceeding. The petition for the writ must be filed and served within 10 days after service of written notice of the entry of the court's order determining the question of disqualification [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.3(d)]. Code Civ. Proc. § 170.3(d) bars review of the issue on appeal after the final judgment [see People v. Williams (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 635, 652, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 573, 941 P.2d 752 (Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1 disqualification claim was not properly raised on appeal because of defendant's failure to pursue Code Civ. Proc. § 170.3(d) procedure); People v. Hull (1991) 1 Cal. 4th 266, 269-270, 276, 2 Cal. Rptr. 2d 526, 820 P.2d 1036 (applying Code Civ. Proc. § 170.3(d) to peremptory challenges under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6); Fink v. Shemtov (2010) 180 Cal. App. 4th 1160, 1176, 103 Cal. Rptr. 3d 509 (attempt to challenge trial court's order striking party's statement of disqualification by way of appeal is improper); Roth v. Parker (1997) 57 Cal. App. 4th 542, 549, 67 Cal. Rptr. 2d 250 (order denying Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1 motion not appealable); In re Sheila B. (1993) 19 Cal. App. 4th 187, 194-195, 23 Cal. Rptr. 2d 482 (order granting Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6 motion not appealable)].

It has been held that Code Civ. Proc. § 170.3(d) does not insulate a final judgment from appellate attack on a constitutional due process claim that a judge was biased. Section 170.3(d) applies to all statutory judicial disqualification claims, even if based on statutory provisions that appear to codify due process grounds. But Section 170.3(d) does not bar review, on appeal from a final judgment, of nonstatutory claims that a final judgment is constitutionally invalid because of judicial bias [People v. Brown (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 322, 335-336, 24 Cal. Rptr. 2d 710, 862 P.2d 710 ; see People v. Williams (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 635, 652 n.5, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 573, 941 P.2d 752]. However, a party may forfeit the constitutional claim by failing to raise the issue by statutory means [Roth v. Parker (1997) 57 Cal. App. 4th 542, 548-549, 67 Cal. Rptr. 2d 250 (constitutional issue waived); see People v. Brown (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 322, 336, 24 Cal. Rptr. 2d 710, 862 P.2d 710 (litigant should use statutory procedure and negligent failure to do so may constitute forfeiture of the constitutional claim; finding no forfeiture because defendant had sought writ relief as required by Section 170.3(d), but relief was summarily denied)]. Moreover, in civil cases constitutional questions must be raised at the earliest opportunity or will be considered to be waived [Roth v. Parker (1997) 57 Cal. App. 4th 542, 549, 67 Cal. Rptr. 2d 250] .

If a party is afforded oral argument and a written opinion on writ review, the law-of-the-case doctrine may preclude assertion of the issue on appeal [People v. Brown (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 322, 336 n.11, 24 Cal. Rptr. 2d 710, 862 P.2d 710] .

Only parties to the proceeding can petition for the writ [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.3(d)].

Prohibition may, however, be the appropriate remedy if a judge exceeds the limited powers of a disqualified judge, as opposed to making a determination of the question of disqualification [compare Code Civ. Proc. § 170.3(d) (mandate to review determination of question of disqualification) with Code Civ. Proc. § 1102 (prohibition to arrest proceedings in excess of jurisdiction of tribunal)].

In addition, disqualification may become a basis for attack by action or motion on the judgment itself when the ground of disqualification is not known until after judgment [see Cadenasso v. Bank of Italy (1932) 214 Cal. 562, 566-567, 6 P.2d 944 ; see also § 317.56].

§ 317.53 Who Are "Parties to the Proceedings" for Purposes of Review of Determination Under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.3(d)

Only parties to the proceeding can petition for a writ of mandate on the question of a judge's disqualification [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.3(d)]. In construing the term "parties to the proceeding" for purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 170.3(d), the Supreme Court has held that even assuming the word "parties" in Section 170.3(d) were susceptible to an interpretation that includes an allegedly disqualified judge who files an answer to a statement of disqualification, the governing statutes compel the conclusion that such a judge is not one of "the parties to the proceeding" [italics added] referred to in Section 170.3(d) [Curle v. Superior Court (2001) 24 Cal. 4th 1057, 1062-1066, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 751]. Although the hearing to decide a disqualification motion pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 170.3 might be considered a proceeding as that term ordinarily is understood, such a hearing is not a proceeding as defined in Code Civ. Proc. § 170.5, which sets forth controlling definitions of several terms used in Code Civ. Proc. § 170 through Code Civ. Proc. § 170.5 [Curle v. Superior Court (2001) 24 Cal. 4th 1057, 1064-1066, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 751] .

The Supreme Court noted that a "proceeding" is defined as "the action, case, cause, motion, or special proceeding to be tried or heard by the judge" [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.5(f), italics added]. Thus the only reasonable construction of this language is that "the judge" is the individual alleged to be disqualified from hearing or trying a matter that has not yet been decided; therefore, the proceeding referred to must be the underlying proceeding. The court concluded that, because Section 170.5(f), establishes that the "proceeding" to which Section 170.3(d) refers is the underlying proceeding, the "parties to the proceeding" within the meaning of Section 170.3(d) are the litigants in the underlying action or proceeding--and not the judge alleged to be disqualified from presiding over that action or proceeding. Likewise, because Section 170.3(d) expressly states that only the parties to the proceeding may seek writ review of a disqualification order, the Supreme Court reasoned that the Legislature clearly intended that those parties possess the exclusive right to file a petition for writ of mandate pursuant to this provision [Curle v. Superior Court (2001) 24 Cal. 4th 1057, 1065-1066, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 751 (this view was further bolstered by analysis of draft legislation stating that "The right to seek review by mandate is limited to the parties (thereby excluding the judge). ..." (Sen. Com. on Judiciary, Analysis of Sen. Bill No. 598 (1983-1984 Reg. Sess.) at p.15)].

§ 317.54 Express Waiver of Disqualification

A judge who determines himself or herself to be disqualified, may, after disclosing the basis for his or her disqualification on the record, ask the parties and their attorneys whether they wish to waive the disqualification. A waiver of disqualification must recite the basis for the disqualification, and is effective only when signed by all parties and their attorneys and filed in the record [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.3(b)(1)]. Waiver is not available, however, if the basis of disqualification is either of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.3(b)(2)]:

(1) The judge has a personal bias or prejudice concerning a party, or

(2) The judge served as an attorney in the matter in controversy, or has been a material witness concerning that matter.

The judge shall not seek to induce a waiver and shall avoid any effort to discover which lawyers or parties favored or opposed a waiver of disqualification [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.3(b)(3)]. For a form of stipulation waiving disqualification, see § 317.197.

§ 317.56 Waiver of Chance to Disqualify Judge by Delay

[1] Earliest Practicable Opportunity

The statement of disqualification must be presented at the earliest practicable opportunity after discovery of the facts constituting the ground of disqualification [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.3(c)(1); see Develop-Amatic Engineering v. Republic Mortgage Co. (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 143, 150 ; Mayo v. Beber (1960) 177 Cal. App. 2d 544, 550, 2 Cal. Rptr. 405] ; otherwise, it is deemed waived [see Caminetti v. Pac. Mutual L. Ins. Co. (1943) 22 Cal. 2d 386, 391, 139 P.2d 930 ; Develop-Amatic Engineering v. Republic Mortgage Co. (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 143, 150, 91 Cal. Rptr. 193 ; Shakin v. Board of Medical Examiners (1967) 254 Cal. App. 2d 102, 115, 62 Cal. Rptr. 274 ; Mayo v. Beber (1960) 177 Cal. App. 2d 544, 550, 2 Cal. Rptr. 405]. This rule applies even if grounds for disqualification are not discovered until after entry of judgment [see Urias v. Harris Farms, Inc. (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 415, 424-425, 285 Cal. Rptr. 659 ; see also Church of Scientology of California v. Wollersheim (1996) 42 Cal. App. 4th 628, 655-656, 49 Cal. Rptr. 2d 620].

The rationale behind the rule is that it is intolerable to permit a party to play fast and loose with the administration of justice by deliberately standing by without making an objection of which he or she is aware, and thereby permitting the proceedings to go to a conclusion which a party may acquiesce in if favorable and which he or she might avoid if not [see Keating v. Superior Court (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 440, 446, 289 P.2d 209 ; Develop-Amatic Engineering v. Republic Mortgage Co. (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 143, 150, 91 Cal. Rptr. 193] .

However, even if the issue is not raised at trial, an appellate court may consider a claim that the judge was biased against a party on the basis of gender in presiding at trial. A party need not confront a judge with his or her alleged bias in presiding at trial, and does not waive the claim by failing to raise it at trial [see Catchpole v. Brannon (1995) 36 Cal. App. 4th 237, 244-245, 42 Cal. Rptr. 2d 440 ; for discussion, see Ch. 41, Appeal: Review Standards and Appellate Rule of Law, § 41.10[4][b]].

[2] Determining Timeliness

Although there is no pat formula for determining timeliness in these situations, the key factor, rather than being the time which elapses before the challenge is made, seems to be whether or not the party knew of the disqualifying facts, but delayed to raise them until the time an unfavorable judgment or ruling is made. In the following cases, for example, the parties waived the claimed grounds of disqualification by asserting them too late:

- Reichert v. General Ins. Co. (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 822, 838, 69 Cal. Rptr. 321, 442 P.2d 377 (motion to disqualify pursuant to former Code Civ. Proc. § 170(4) [former counsel] made orally at time of argument on demurrer to second amended complaint when same judge had heard and ruled on demurrer to first amended complaint two months before);

- Sacramento and San Joaquin Drainage Dist. v. Jarvis (1959) 51 Cal. 2d 799, 802, 336 P.2d 530 (disqualification pursuant to former Code Civ. Proc. § 170(6) [public works] was orally waived at trial; then an objection was raised several years after trial);

- Caminetti v. Pac. Mutual L. Ins. Co. (1943) 22 Cal. 2d 386, 391-392, 139 P.2d 930 (party knew during trial that judge's sister owned stock and had joined in written stipulation waiving that ground of disqualification in a connected action; party failed to challenge in present action until three months later when judge denied motion to set aside voting trust);

- Tri Counties Bank v. Superior Court (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 1332, 1338, 84 Cal. Rptr. 3d 835 (disqualification claim untimely where party waited seven months before asserting the alleged ground for disqualification, even where appellate court stay of trial court proceedings was in effect for part of that time);

- In re Farr (1974) 36 Cal. App. 3d 577, 582-583, 111 Cal. Rptr. 649 (at commencement of contempt hearing petitioner had said no challenge for bias [former Code Civ. Proc. § 170(5)] would be raised then later raised challenge for first time in hearing to purge contempt);

- Develop-Amatic Engineering v. Republic Mortgage Co. (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 143, 149, 150, 91 Cal. Rptr. 193 (motion to disqualify for bias [former Code Civ. Proc. § 170(5)] which was filed first time in motion for new trial could have been urged during trial when judge made challenged comments);

- Shakin v. Board of Medical Examiners (1967) 254 Cal. App. 2d 102, 115, 62 Cal. Rptr. 274 (motion to disqualify for bias [former Code Civ. Proc. § 170(5)] filed 11 days before appeal was calendared for oral argument when counsel had known for over one year that judge sought to be disqualified was judge scheduled to hear appeal);

- Mayo v. Beber (1960) 177 Cal. App. 2d 544, 551-552, 2 Cal. Rptr. 405 (motion to disqualify pursuant to former Code Civ. Proc. § 170(4) [former counsel] when plaintiff's counsel had known about previous case in which law firm then headed by judge had represented defendant, but counsel waited until after adverse verdict was recorded to make motion);

- Lagies v. Copley (1981) 110 Cal. App. 3d 958, 965-966, 168 Cal. Rptr. 368 , overruled on other grounds in Brown v. Kelly Broadcasting Co. (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 711, 738 n.23, 257 Cal. Rptr. 708, 771 P.2d 406 (plaintiff learned of facts forming basis for disqualification before hearing on demurrer, but did not urge disqualification until after judge had sustained demurrer).

On the other hand, a statement of disqualification is timely when it is presented promptly after the complaining party learns, after reversal, that the case is to be set for trial before the same judge [Keating v. Superior Court (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 440, 447, 289 P.2d 209] ; when it is filed two days after counsel learns facts showing grounds for disqualification of the judge who had granted a summary judgment motion [Urias v. Harris Farms, Inc. (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 415, 424-425, 285 Cal. Rptr. 659] ; when it is filed immediately after a judge's voluntary disqualification is set aside on the ground that the judge should not have disqualified himself pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6 [Oak Grove School Dist. v. City Title Ins. Co. (1963) 217 Cal. App. 2d 678, 704, 32 Cal. Rptr. 288]; or when parties to an action have no way of knowing of the grounds of disqualification until after the hearing, then promptly move to vacate judgment and hold a new trial [Adoption of Richardson (1967) 251 Cal. App. 2d 222, 236-237, 59 Cal. Rptr. 323 (petitioners in adoption case had no way of knowing extent of judge's bias and prejudice until after the hearing when they read judge's letter to adoption bureau director)].

[3] Power of Challenged Judge to Strike Untimely Statement

Just as a challenged judge may determine a statement of disqualification to be legally insufficient and disregard it or strike it from the file [see discussion under § 317.46], so may he or she determine the statement to be not timely filed and disregard it or strike it from the record on that basis [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.4(b); see Blackwell v. Blackwell (1961) 190 Cal. App. 2d 520, 524, 12 Cal. Rptr. 201 (affidavit was neither legally sufficient nor timely)].
